EXAMINATIONS FOR ARMY BEGUN

Registered Men Summoned To Appear Before Exemption Board

The Exemption Board for Somerset county, composed of Dr. Charles W. Wainwright, Dr. Charles T. Fisher, who has been appointed a member of the board to succeed Dr. C. E. Collins, who was compelled to resign because of ill health, and Mr. W. Jerome Sterling, have been at work the past week checking off the numbers of the drafted men in the county, and giving to each a new number, which will show the order in which he will be called for examination.

The men called for examination, 349 in number, are divided into groups of 25, and 25 men will be examined each day until the work has been completed. All men on the list, from No. 1 to 25, were required to appear at the Court House in Princess Anne yesterday (Monday) and undergo examination. On Tuesday all men, from No. 26 to 50, will appear there for examination; on Wednesday, all from No. 51 to 75 will undergo examination, and on down the line until the examination of those called under the first draft, is completed. No examination will be held on Saturday, but work will be resumed the following Monday.

Notices to all those who are in the first draft will be mailed and they will now stand the physical examination and otherwise comply with the regulations of the government authorities in the matter of selecting the army.

Women's Council Of Defense Meet

Sixteen counties of the 23 in the State were represented last Thursday at the joint all-day meeting of the county chairmen and the State commission of the Women's Section, Maryland Council of Defense, which was held at headquarters, 522 Park avenue, Baltimore. Reports covering three months' work were read by the county chairmen. These reports were requested by Governor Harrington and will be made public after having been submitted to him.

The county commissioners, consisting of five women each, were appointed last April by Governor Harrington to carry out in each county the plans outlined by the State Commission, and to co-ordinate all forms of war work and activity among women, whether individual or collective. The reports indicate that there has been no lessening of the work of women's organizations throughout the State as a result of the torrid weather. Food production and conservation, Red Cross and navy league work was the principal form of activity.

Mrs. Edward Shoemaker, president of the state commission, presided at the meeting.

Samuel H. Goslee Dead

Mr. Samuel H. Goslee died at his home, near Loretto, Monday night of last week at 11 o'clock, aged 70 years.

Mr. Goslee was a long and well-known resident of Somerset county. He was a son of the late Capt. Matthias Goslee and the last member of a family of seven children.

Funeral services were held at the Methodist Episcopal Church, at Allen, conducted by Revs. John Bradford and W. J. Twilley. The remains were interred in the cemetery of that church, of which he had been a long and faithful member.

He is survived by a widow, three daughters, (Misses Florence and Virginia Goslee, of Loretto, and Mrs. George Lankford, of Mobile, Ala.), two sons (J. Oscar Goslee, of Loretto, and Clark Goslee, of Portsmouth, Va.) and two grandchildren (Virginia Dean and Emerson Lankford, of Mobile, Ala.).

Unusually Hot Weather

Residents of Somerset county and of every section of the State along the Atlantic seaboard, for that matter, passed through a seige of the warmest weather that has prevailed during the present summer last week. The hot and murky spell began a week previous and reached the high water mark on Monday and Tuesday, when the mercury climbed to the 89 degree mark, the highest for the season. While the prevailing conditions caused more or less suffering, yet there have been no reports of heat prostrations in this section.

Demonstration In Canning

Miss Rhos Morgan, County Home Demonstration Agent, has arranged for a demonstration in canning on Tuesday, August 14th, at 10 a. m. and 3 p. m., in the Washington High School building, Princess Anne. The demonstration will be given by Miss Grace Reeves, of the United States Department of Agriculture, a recognized expert in home economics throughout the United States. The public is invited.

NO SLACKERS CAN ESCAPE

Registrants Ignoring Summons From Local Board Considered Drafted

Registered persons who ignore summons from local boards to report for examinations under the draft law are storing up grave trouble for themselves. A supplement to the regulations issued by the President last Thursday makes this apparent.

Upon failure to report, or refusal to submit to examination, the name of the person concerned will be forwarded to the proper authorities. The person will be notified that he is regarded physically fit and held for the military service. If he continues to disobey the law to the extent of ignoring notice to proceed to the mobilization point, he is liable to punishment as a deserter, which in war time may be death.

The procedure in such cases is gradual but sure. The names of persons certified to district boards who do not file claims within the time prescribed will be listed. Those who appear or file claims will have their names cancelled from the list.

The District Board will then forward the list to the adjutant general of the state, stating that persons whose names are listed have been called for military service, have not responded and have not been exempted or discharged.

The adjutant general will then mail to those persons listed a notice informing him that he has been selected for military service and ordering him to report for military service to the adjutant within five days. From that time the person notified is in the military service of the United States. Those who ignore this last summons are then posted to the Adjutant General of the Army. Procedure against them as deserters may then be started.

Mrs. C. C. Ball Dead

Last Sunday night, about 9 o'clock, after an illness of five years such as is experienced by few in this life, there passed to its maker the spirit of Mrs. Lenora Ball, wife of Mr. Christopher C. Ball, at her home in Princess Anne.

Mrs. Ball was stricken with paralysis in 1912 and has been an invalid the greater part of that time. She was in the 68th year of her age and is survived by her husband and three daughters (Mrs. A. D. Marshall, of Baltimore; Mrs. George W. Brown, of Princess Anne; Mrs. T. L. Carrow, of Rusk, Texas) and one son (Mr. George Ball, of this county).

Funeral services will be held in the Manokin Presbyterian Church this (Tuesday) afternoon at 4 o'clock, conducted by the Rev. W. L. Freund, pastor of the church, and interment will be in the Presbyterian cemetery.

July Weather Report

The weather report for the month of July, as compiled by Mr. James R. Stewart, co-operative observer of Princess Anne, is as follows:

Maximum temperature, 93 degrees on the 31st; minimum temperature, 62 degrees on 1st; total precipitation, 6.45 inches. Clear days, 4; partly cloudy, 18; cloudy, 9. Thunder storms on the 10th, 16th, 17th, 19th, 23d, 25th and 26th. The prevailing wind was southwest.

Working For Baltimore's Extension

The campaign committee of the Non-partisan Greater Baltimore Extension League was announced last Saturday. It includes the names of prominent men in each of the counties of the state as well as the names of several score of prominent Baltimoreans. The committee for Somerset county is Hon. Joshua W. Miles, Mr. Robert F. Dyer, Dr. Gordon T. Atkinson and Mr. James C. Tawes.

Death Of Mrs. Louisa Waller

Mrs. Louisa Waller, wife of the late James D. Waller, died at her home in Mount Vernon on the 26th inst. She is survived by four daughters (Mrs. Fitzhugh Lee Webster, of Mt. Vernon; Mrs. Archibald Renshaw, of Waterloo; Miss Cecelia Waller, of Baltimore; Miss Lillie Waller, Mt. Vernon) and one son (Mr. Lester J. Waller, of Baltimore).

Help The Soldier Boys

Volunteers are wanted for making "Housewives"—a little sewing kit—for 118 drafted men. The materials for making the same will be furnished by the Princess Anne Red Cross Center, and can be obtained from Miss Grace Collins. Furnishings for these kits can be obtained at Dashiell's Department Store. Will you not get busy and help in this great work now in progress.

On our 7th page will be found an advertisement of the Pocomoke Fair, which opened its gates today (Tuesday) and will continue until Friday night. A big field of horses are on the entry list.

MRS. W. A. CHAPMAN KILLED

Her Husband Badly Hurt In Motor Accident At Schroom Lake

Mrs. M. Blanche Chapman, wife of Mr. William A. Chapman, a lawyer of Germantown, Pa., was killed on Saturday, the 28th ult., in a motor accident at Schroom Lake, New York.

The accident occurred while Mr. and Mrs. Chapman were on their way home from Saranac Lake, N. Y., where they went by motor ten days ago. Mr. Chapman was driving slowly along the road which leads through the village near Schroom Lake. As he started up a hill, some defect in the car's machinery, it is said, caused him to lose control. The automobile slewed over sideways, and the two occupants were thrown out on the road.

Mrs. Chapman was taken twenty miles in a motor to the Moses Hospital at Fort Ticonderoga, where an operation was performed. When she struck the macadam road, however, Mrs. Chapman sustained a fractured skull, and except for a brief interval in which she inquired how the accident occurred, she remained unconscious. Mr. Chapman was rendered unconscious also by the fall, his shoulder was dislocated, one arm was broken and he sustained other injuries.

Mrs. Chapman's body was taken to Philadelphia Sunday and arrangements completed for the funeral, which took place last Monday afternoon at "Four Acres," the Chapman home, Wissahickon avenue and Kitchen's Lane, Germantown.

The deceased was a daughter of E. P. McCormick, formerly of Williamsport, Pa., and for many years a resident of Germantown. Mrs. Chapman had no children. She is survived by three sisters—Miss Katharine McCormick, an artist; Miss Helen McCormick, and Miss Elizabeth McCormick.

Mr. Chapman, many years ago, resided with his parents on the farm near Princess Anne now owned by Mr. Robert W. Adams, and is known to many of our citizens, who will remember that his brother Howard was killed while hauling lumber to the mill when they resided on that farm.

Superintendent Holloway Resigns

County Superintendent William J. Holloway, of Wicomico county, last week tendered to the Board of Education his resignation, to accept the position of State Supervisor of Rural Schools, a position created by the last Legislature, but not filled up to this time. Professor Holloway has for the past nine years filled most acceptably the position of County Superintendent of Wicomico county, and under his management the schools of that county have taken advanced steps and are second to no county in this State. Previous to his election as County Superintendent, Mr. Holloway had devoted several years to teaching in the schools of the county.

Canning Club Organized At Marion

Miss Rhos Morgan, County Demonstrator, organized a woman's canning club at Marion Station last Tuesday. The meeting was held in the High School building and the following officers were elected: Miss Caroline Coulbourne, president; Mrs. May Robinson, vice-president; Miss Emily Davis, secretary and treasurer.

Miss Morgan gave an interesting demonstration in canning corn, peas and squash. The next meeting will be held in the High School building on August 14th. A girls' canning club will be organized at that time.

Accused By Soldier

John William Ward, of Lawson's district, charged by Melville G. Moore, a member of Company L, First Maryland Regiment, M. N. G., with making slanderous statements regarding the militia and their uniforms, was tried before United States Commissioner Edward P. Wyatt, of Crisfield, last week and released under $1,000 bail for appearance before the United States District Court.

Castle Haven Farm Sold For $31,000

Castle Haven farm, one of the old show places of Dorchester county, was sold last Wednesday by John L. G. Lee, trustee for Henry A. Harrison. Mr. Harrison was formerly of New York but is now serving with the American Ambulance Corps in France. Edward Phillips and Thomas B. Hubbard, Cambridge, were the purchasers of Castle Haven for the sum of $31,000.

State Examination For Teachers

A State Examination for teachers, both white and colored, will be held at the High School building in Princess Anne, on Thursday and Friday, August 16th and 17th. The examination will be conducted by County Superintendent W. H. Dashiell, acting for State Superintendent M. Bates Stephen.

McMULLEN WILL BE A CANDIDATE

Announces He Will Seek Re-Election As State Comptroller

State Comptroller Hugh A. McMullen, after much deliberation, following numerous requests of party and personal friends, has decided to enter the Democratic primary for re-nomination. Some weeks ago Mr. McMullen had decided not to be a candidate, but the demand from Democrats for him to be a candidate for State Comptroller has been so persistent, that he has yielded and last Tuesday issued the following statement:

"In view of the many requests which have been made to me from men in various portions of this state, who had a claim upon me, and especially of the resolutions passed by the Democratic State Central Committee at Baltimore on the 25th inst., I deem it my duty to announce myself as a candidate for the nomination for the office of Comptroller of the Treasury of Maryland at the primaries to be held in September.

"My personal wish was to be relieved from the duties of the office during the next two years, and I was under the impression that some other person would perform its duties as well, or better, than myself. However, I realize the claims of my party upon me, and cheerfully comply with their request.

"It is a source of great gratification to me to have a public approval of my conduct of the office during the past two years, and if I am nominated and elected this fact will spur me on to give my very best thought and attention to the work of the State. I may be permitted to say that I have tried to conduct the office with impartiality, with fairness and with a sense of my duty to those who bear the cost of government. I have always held to the notion that it was the duty of a citizen to accept positions of public responsibility when his services might, in any manner, be beneficial to the state, even if it had to be done at the sacrifice of his own convenience and welfare, and consistency requires that I be governed by this sense of duty. I have further felt that if I decided to consider these requests it would not be showing the proper spirit of gratitude to the Democratic party and the citizens of this state, who have nominated and elected me to this office when the nomination and election was aggressively sought by others."

The Great Salisbury Fair

The season for country fairs is here and every father and mother is preparing to go just to take their children, you know. Soon will be heard cries of the fakers, the spiels of the showmen, the urging of the drivers as they force their horses at top-notch speed around the race course, cries of the vendors, "toys, pop-corn, peanuts and red lemonade," and the one hundred and one other things that go to make up the usual scenes around the fair grounds. Then there will be those who like to see the dainty and pretty fancywork, or test the home-made cakes; jellies and wines, or see the fancy chickens and other live stock, as well as those who go to meet their friends and acquaintances.

According to all reports The Great Salisbury Fair, which opens its gates on Tuesday, August 14th, will be prepared to show the people in this section one of the greatest fairs ever seen. With watching the noble striding around the track, the flying motorcycles going at reckless speed, the daring acrobats performing high in the air, trained animals and pretty dancers; with a midway more than twice as long as ever seen on the grounds before; with the thousands of people who will pore in its gates—with all these and many more too numerous to mention one ought to see enough to make it worth his while to go to Salisbury this year.

Grace Marshall In Cambridge Asylum

Grace Marshall, the young girl who was imprisoned by her parents for a number of years and when released last year was a living skeleton and had lost the power of speech, has been sent by the commissioners of Talbot county to the State Insane Hospital at Cambridge. Since she was rescued, her aunt, Mrs. James, of Easton, has cared for her, but as she was a poor woman and unable longer to keep her, and having no other relatives or friends that would care for her in the pitiful condition she was left, there was nothing else to do but send her to the asylum to be looked after—which is the last or next to the last act, which is death, that could befall any one.

Mr. George Reading, who spent last week as the guest of his cousin, Mr. Joseph R. Reading, on Wicomico creek, returned to his home in Phillipsburg, New Jersey, last Saturday.

CANDIDATES' DATES NOW SET

Aspirants Must File Certificates On Or Before August 20th

Under a ruling handed down last Thursday by the State Law Department, all candidates for nomination for Comptroller—the only Statewide office to be filled this fall—must file certificates of their candidacies with the Secretary of State on or before August 11, and all other candidates seeking nominations must file their certificates with the Board of Election Supervisors of Baltimore city, or their respective counties, on or before August 20th.

The law provides that candidates asking nominations for State offices must file their certificates at least 30 days before the primaries, and that local candidates must file their certificates 20 days before the primaries. The State Law Department rules that this means 30 or 20 full days before the primaries, and that primary day itself is not to be counted. Hence, it has fixed the dates referred to above, as the primaries this fall will be held on September 11.

Candidates for the nomination for Comptroller would have until August 12 to file their certificates but for the fact that that date falls on Sunday. Hence their time will be shortened by one day.

The Law Department also calls attention to the fact that candidates for the Legislature must have been residents of the State for the three years last preceding the election, and residents of the district from which they aspire for the last year. In other words, no one can be a candidate for the Legislature who has not been a resident of his district for the last year, and a resident of the State for the last three years.

As certificates of candidacies cannot be accepted until the date of the primary has been ratified by the governing bodies of both of the leading political parties of the State, and as the Republican State Central Committee will not ratify the date for the September primary until August 8, candidates for Comptroller will have but three days in which to file their certificates after the Republican Committee has met. Candidates for other offices will have just nine days in which to file their papers.

However, there is nothing to prevent a candidate from announcing his candidacy whenever he sees fit to do so. Therefore, most of the candidates are expected to be in the field before they will be permitted to file their papers. State Comptroller McMullen already has announced his candidacy for re-nomination, and it looks as if he will have no opposition.

Senate Puts Dry Bill Up To States

By a vote of 65 to 20, eight more than the constitutional requirement, the Senate last Wednesday adopted the Shepherd resolution to submit to the legislatures of the states a prohibition amendment to the Constitution. Senator France was one of the 20 who voted against the resolution. Senator Smith did not vote, because, as was announced by Senator Martin, the Democratic leader, the Maryland senator was unable to be in Washington on account of illness.

The resolution now goes to the House, but under an agreement reached by the House leaders some time ago in which the Prohibition forces acquiesced, the vote will be delayed until the regular session, which opens on the first Monday in December. The vote will be taken probably before Christmas. There is no doubt that the resolution will pass the House, so that the state legislatures, which meet next January, will be confronted with the duty of voting for or against the ratification of the resolution.

Sensors and members of the House acted on the Prohibition amendment with unusual promptness. The Shepherd resolution was called up on Monday and was passed Wednesday afternoon. Any opposition to the resolution could have easily taken the shape of a filibuster, which might have delayed the resolution for at least a week or two. The promptness with which the resolution passed the Senate is said to be due to the determination of the members of the National Congress to rid themselves once for all of prohibition as a political factor in their political future. By passing a joint resolution Congress will have thrown the responsibility on the state legislatures, and the prohibitionists hereafter must concentrate their political activity on the men who are elected to the legislatures.

The Business Men's Association of Princess Anne—S. Frank Dashiell, president; J. Earle Morris, secretary, and W. O. Lankford, treasurer—met in the office of Mr. Harry C. Dashiell last night (Monday) and transacted a lot of unfinished business on hand pertaining to the collection of claims.

HOG CHOLERA IN THE COUNTY

County Agent C. Z. Keller Assisting Farmers In Checking Disease

During the past few weeks there has been several outbreaks of cholera in the county. All cases of cholera should be reported at once to your county agent, C. Z. Keller.

Farmers at this time should keep a close watch on their hogs and at the first sign of sickness appearing among them, separate at once the sick hogs from the others and put them in quarantine. Epsom Salts administered with the feed will serve to keep the digestive system of the hog in a healthy condition and help to avoid infection with cholera. Hogs should be kept in a sanitary condition, all wallow holes containing stagnant water should be filled in and the hogs allowed to run where they can obtain pure, fresh water. All buildings used by hogs, pens and troughs, should be sprayed from time to time with a disinfectant, (one part compound cresol solution to 30 parts of water.) Where hog houses are small, turn over, exposing interior to sunlight.

To keep hog cholera from reaching your herd the following precautions should be taken: Do not visit your neighbor's farm nor allow him to visit you if he has hog cholera on his premises. Do not drive into hog lots after driving on public highways. Do not use hog lots for yarding wagons and farm implements. Do not place newly purchased stock, stock procured or borrowed for breeding purposes, immediately with your herd. Keep such stock quarantined in separate pens for at least two weeks and use care in feeding and attending stock to prevent carrying infection from these to other pens. Burn to ashes or cover with quick lime and bury under 4 feet of earth all dead animals and the viscera removed from animals at butchering time, because they attract buzzards, dogs, etc., which are liable to carry hog cholera infection. If hog cholera appears in the neighborhood confine your dog and encourage your neighbor to do the same.

If hog cholera appears in your herd, have all hogs inoculated at once, after which they should be given a light diet, with pure drinking water and confined to limited quarters that should be cleaned and sprayed three times a week with one part of compound cresol solution to 30 parts of water until the disease has abated in the herd. To obtain the best results the serum must be administered as soon as the disease is detected in the herd.

The temperature of all hogs should be taken. A temperature above 104 degrees in ordinary weather, and when the animal is not excited, indicates infection, and such hogs require an increased dose of serum. A tonic mixture of the following ingredients: Pulverized charcoal, 10 pounds; lime (air slaked), 10 pounds; hardwood ashes, 10 pounds; salt, 5 pounds; sulphur, 5 pounds; sulphate of iron, 1 pound; mixed thoroughly and kept before the hogs in a dry place will help to keep them in a healthy condition.

Most of the cholera in this county is spread by buzzards which feed on the bodies of hogs which have died from cholera and have been thrown in the woods or marsh instead of being buried. Other cases of cholera have been caused by the bodies being thrown into streams. There is a State law against this which carries with it a heavy penalty and it will be enforced by the proper authorities. Farmers should co-operate in this matter and report all such cases to the county health officials.

Within the next few weeks an active campaign will be undertaken in this county, by meetings and demonstrations, to stamp out hog cholera. Farmers desiring further information on hog cholera or desire to have their hogs inoculated write County Agent Keller.

Magazines For The Soldiers

The Postoffice Department has arranged to accept and forward to the soldiers and sailors of the United States Expeditionary Forces in Europe all unwrapped and unaddressed copies of magazines when mailed by others than the publishers, the postage thereon to be prepaid at the rate of one cent a copy regardless of weight. Magazines to be mailed in this way must have printed in the upper right hand corner of the front cover the following:

NOTICE TO READERS.—When you finish reading this magazine place a 1-cent stamp on this notice, hand same to any postal employee and it will be placed in the hands of our soldiers and sailors at the front. No Wrapping. No Address. A. S. BURLISON, Postmaster General.

Practically all magazines printed after the issuance of this order will bear this notice.

Speaking of "intangible values" what would be the proper estimate of the "good-will" feature that goes with the sale of an undertaker's establishment.

Patricia

The Great Romance of Preparedness

THE CAST.

MRS. VERNON CASTLE as Patricia Channing.
MILTON SILLS as Donald Parr.
WARNER OLAND as Baron Huroki.
DOROTHY GREEN as Fanny Adair.

SYNOPSIS.

Baron Huroki, chief of the Japanese secret service in America, conspiring to overthrow the United States with Mexico, desires control of the great Channing munitions plants owned by Patricia—last of "The Fighting Channings"—and sole executrix of the $100,000,000 trust secretly created by patriotic progenitors to combat the national perils inherent in "unpreparedness." His schemes failing through the opposition of Patricia and her fiancé, Capt. Donald Parr, Huroki in revenge causes the destruction by fire of vast stores of munitions in the Channing freight yards near Bayonne—a holocaust in which Patricia and Donald escape annihilation by the narrowest of chances.

NINTH EPISODE

Cat's Paw and Scapegoat.

THE CONVENTIONAL THING.

That night had been sultry, a night of heat rendered the more oppressive by humidity, a true Manhattan night of August. But the day that followed broke upon the uneasy city in dawn-light so pitilessly clear that at least one belated wayfarer, half dulled senses suddenly stirring to appreciate that the friendly cloak of darkness was no more for him, was seized with a little fit of shivering, as if chilled.

His trembling fingers strove to draw together the front of his coat, a fruitless effort. Looking down angrily, he discovered a wine-spattered expanse of white gaping between the edge of his dress coat—something, of course, not built to be buttoned.

Mumbling pettishly an inane oath, the belated one glanced furtively round to see whether, by mischance, anybody else were abroad to be a witness to the witlessness; then, reassured to find himself the lonely tenant of an empty side street, pulled himself together after a fashion and resumed a desultory course toward his lodgings.

This was the figure, in the role of rejected suitor for the hand of Patricia Channing, cut by Mr. Rodney Wrenn—in his sober senses not inaptly to be termed a gentleman.

As his struggling feet wove their uncertain way upon the sidewalk, a motor car of the touring type overtook him, rounded the next corner, and disappeared. Mr. Wrenn was aware of its transit, but was likewise sufficiently aware of his condition to wish not to be seen, even by strangers. He held his face averted till the car had passed. Had he looked up he would have recognized the face of the woman he loved, or thought he loved, but the recognition would have been one-sided.

She lay, with eyes closed, as if she slept, in the arms of Capt. Donald Parr, her head pillowed on his shoulder.

Donald Wrested the Instrument From Her.

hers, her body enveloped in a coarse, damp blanket, her hair in a disorderly tangle framing a face whose pallor was the shade of parchment.

Captain Parr was scarcely less pale, though his eyes were open wide and his face set in a cast of grave solicitude for the woman in his arms.

With him in the touring car were two operatives of Miss Channing's recently organized secret intelligence bureau—Mr. Ryley and a subordinate, both showing the effects of an experience scarcely less trying than that which Miss Channing and Captain Parr had patently undergone.

If any of these identified the man in the street as Mr. Wrenn, he kept it to himself.

After an indeterminate duration in his befuddled consciousness, he found himself unexpectedly at home, the door to his sitting room shutting out the wakening world.

He shivered again, bethought him of a certain decanter whose contents ought to provide temporary relief for jangled nerves, and in search for it came abruptly upon a framed photograph which decorated his study table.

The face that was pictured therein was the face of Patricia, smiling, exquisite, provokingly coquettish.

A phase of mock sobriety possessed the mind of Rodney Wrenn as he picked up the photograph and stood staring hungrily at it.

He recalled a day that was scarcely six weeks old, when Patricia, the self-same girl whose counterfeited presentment was smiling into his eyes, had seemed to be wholly his, pledged to become his bride by an understanding no less complete in fact.

They had been light-hearted lovers on that day, and on many a day that had gone before.

Then, in a twinkling, Donald Parr had stepped between them.

In the opinion of Rodney his subsequent sufferings had aged him swiftly to full manhood. But he was herein self-deluded; he remained a boy, of man's stature but of youthful mentality. As he was presently to prove.

His look grew still more morose as he reviewed the events which had followed the coming of Captain Parr.

There had been a brief time when Donald had seemed to be high in the favor of the girl. So constantly were the two together that the gossip of Newport had excusably bruited their engagement. And that was something which Rodney, for all his resentment, had been able to understand. The boyish hero-worship which he had always accorded Donald Parr still maintained its sway upon his thoughts. It was quite conceivable that the girl should become—perhaps only temporarily—in-fatuated with such a man.

But all the time she was changing, her very nature was changing incomprehensibly. Hardly had society settled itself to accept Captain Parr as the fortunate suitor when, following one of Patricia's business trips to New York, all that was off. Donald was in deep disfavor and Baron Huroki, that sly, suave Japanese, and his constant associate, Senor Juan de Lima, were constantly at Patricia's elbows, with Fanny Adair forming a triumvirate of her intimates.

Coincident had been the banishment of Rodney and his mother, who since Patricia's childhood had stood in loco parentis to the girl, managing her several households in town and county, supervising her education, chaperoning her social life.

And now, but a few weeks later—weeks unmarked by any token of contrition from Patricia or even of remembrance of their existence—the papers were publishing formal announcement of her betrothal to Juan de Lima!

It was all incredible to Rodney. Such heartlessness, such inconstancy, passed comprehension.

Rage clouded his wits and senses. "Jade!" he muttered sullenly.

Headless of risk to his hands, he shattered the glass in the frame with a blow of his fist, ripped out the photograph, and tore it across and again.

Then, as the fragments fell to the floor, he sank into a chair, dropped his head on a forearm on the table, and sobbed gustily.

Almost immediately he fell asleep. At precisely the same time Donald was carrying the semi-conscious girl into the sitting room of his own lodgings, his assistant Ryley hovering in attendance, ready to lend assistance if needed—or permitted.

The door was opened by a half-frantic woman of middle age—Patricia's maid—who took the girl to her maternal bosom as soon as Parr relinquished her.

"Oh, my dearie!" she cried. "Where have you come from in such a state?" "Out of the jaws of death, out of the mouth of hell," Parr answered for Patricia. "If you had obeyed orders, Anne, and stayed awake till she was asleep, this would never have happened. She followed me to the Bayonne docks last night; there was a fire—caused by those accursed Japs—and we were caught in it. How we escaped—ask Ryley. I don't know."

But don't stand there, staring. Get Miss Channing to bed immediately—get her out of those wet clothes and wrap her up warmly. Don't talk! Do as I bid you!"

The girl had revived sufficiently to walk. As, supported by the maid, she disappeared in the direction of the bedchamber, Parr turned to Ryley.

"It's six," he announced, taking out his watch. "Don't sleep till you get hold of a magistrate and swear out warrants for the arrest of Huroki and De Lima on charges of criminal conspiracy, and causing the Bayonne explosions. Bring the warrants here to me at one o'clock. I'll execute them personally and with bitter vengeance."

"At what time?"

"One o'clock—I must get a little sleep."

"To your hotel?"

"No—here. I'll call here about twelve-thirty to take Miss Channing to breakfast. If we're not in, Anne will tell you where to find us."

"Very good, Captain Parr."

The door closed behind Ryley. Too tired to think, unconscious even of the fact that he still held his watch between thumb and forefinger, Donald dropped into a chair to await Anne's return. Naturally, it was impossible for him to leave before he received first-hand assurance that Patricia was resting comfortably. His eyes closed. He was instantly asleep.

It was high noon when he awoke. Profoundly fatigued as he had been, a constitution inured to all manner of hardship and fatigue had profited tremendously by those scanty hours of repose. If his muscles ached a trifle from resting in an unaccustomed pose, his head was clear and all his faculties alert almost with his first blink.

He started to his feet with an exclamation of dismay; by the watch that remained in his grasp the hour was twelve.

"The deuce!" he grumbled anxiously. It was too bad; to have turned himself out of his lodgings to provide Patricia with a safe hiding place from Huroki, to have moved ostentatiously to a hotel in order to forestall evil-minded gossip if it ever should by mischance transpire that the girl had used his rooms, and then to have this happen! Nothing, not even the utmost liberality in the matter of tipping, would prevail to stop the tongues of the hall attendants from clacking!

And it couldn't be remedied. "Why didn't you wake me?" he demanded angrily of Anne when that one appeared from the direction of the bedchamber.

"You were so tired, poor dear!" she told him, with a beaming affection that

caller, one to be got rid of with all possible haste.

"Well?" Donald suggested coldly. "Well . . . I just wanted to ask you for Patricia's address. She was at the Ritz, but she's left, and . . . I thought you might know where I could find her."

"I'm sorry—I can't help you out."

There was a little pause. Rodney's gaze wandered past Donald and became congested.

"You liar!" he said quickly. With a groan of dismay Donald rounded on his heel, to see, poised lightly on the threshold of the adjoining bedchamber, Patricia—a charming vision of innocent loveliness in the negligee which she had donned over her nightdress when roused by the sound of voices in the sitting room, but a vision of disastrous omen in Donald's sight.

"So this—" Rodney began furiously. "Be quiet, you young idiot!"

With an oath the boy broke away, aimed an uncertain blow at Donald and ran from the apartment.

Without daring to look in the direction of the girl, Donald snatched up his coat and, shrugging into it, pursued.

Overtaking the younger man on the steps outside the front door of the building, Donald caught his arm and held it against his struggles.

"Rodney!" he pleaded. "Listen to me. Be reasonable. You're wrong—all wrong! I can easily explain—" "Liar!"

The epithet sounded simultaneously with the impact of a gloved hand on Donald's lips. Instinctively this last released Rodney who promptly took to his heels and petted up the street.

Remembering that he was hatless and wore an unkempt cravat, Donald relinquished further pursuit for the time being.

"I'll find him at his rooms," he reflected moodily as he turned back into the house. "I'll make him listen. It oughtn't to be difficult; Rod's sensible enough . . . sober!"

AN EXIT.

It was nearer two o'clock than one when Mr. Ryley found Donald and Patricia breakfasting in the name of luncheon in the grill room of a quiet hotel.

"I'm sorry I'm late," he apologized. "I'd have been on the dot only for Mr. Huroki. Looks as if he's got wind of these warrants already, somehow—or else he suspects it's high time we were taking some drastic action in his case."

"How so?" asked Donald. "He's been flying around pretty lively all morning—ever since nine o'clock—calling on the Japanese consul, visiting his bank and a couple of lawyer's offices, and things like that. We had a man after him all the time, of course. Here's his report."

The detective offered Donald a leaf from a pocket notebook blackened with memoranda in a minute hand; the majority of which was a simple, concise record of an active man's busy morning, all going to indicate hurried preparations toward a change of address, the final item alone excited uncommon interest on the part of Donald.

"Stopped at Walton," he read to himself—"lunched in grill with woman he picked up in lobby. Headwaiter says woman is Iris Mayne, common to the town. (Q. Is this the Badger Queen?) Joined at lunch by boy with hang-over whom Mayne called from the other side of the room. Couldn't find anybody who knew boy. Mayne and boy hurried away before Huroki finished. H. then returned to residence."

"Is he still there?" Donald inquired, returned the memoranda.

"That's all I was waiting for—to get him bottled up. We've got cops and plain-clothes at both ends of the block in addition to our own men. He won't disarm his temper. "I just couldn't bear to disturb you, after all you'd been through."

"Well," . . . he grumbled uncomfortably. . . . "How is Miss Channing?"

"Still asleep—the lamb!"

"I'll run over to the hotel. . . . Or, wait a minute."

A haphazard glance at himself in a pier-glass had shown him a figure clothed in garments shockingly the worse for close contact with fire and prolonged immersion in salt water. He was in no shape to be seen in the streets.

"You'll find a change of clothes for me in that hall closet," he said. "Please fetch it instantly. I want to clear out of this with the least possible delay."

The woman hustled off, brought back all he desired, made herself scarce. He effected the change with all possible expedition, but was still in his shirt-sleeves, knotting his tie, when a knock sounded on the hall door.

Donald hesitated only an instant before opening the door. This would undoubtedly prove to be Ryley, a bit ahead of time. And Ryley was both intelligent and trustworthy.

But it was Rodney Wrenn who stepped in over the threshold as Donald opened the door.

For a moment embarrassment blinded Donald to Rodney's condition. But as soon as the latter spoke, it was unmistakably manifest.

"Look here, Don; I'm sorry to trouble you, but . . . Well, it's this way, mother's all broken up about this row with Patricia and . . . And so'm I. It's driving me mad. I've always been foolish about her—and all that—and it seemed pretty tough to be cut out even by you. But you were at least white. And now the papers say she's going to marry that damn Greaser!"

The boy paused. Donald regarded him uneasily. There was no questioning the evidence of his furred enunciation, his abnormally flushed face and unsteady eyes; he had been drinking, and drinking heavily. A dangerous relinquished further pursuit for the time being.

get away from us so easily this time."

"And De Lima?"

"At last accounts, still abed in his hotel. If Huroki's planning an evasion, he evidently means to leave De Lima to shift for himself. . . . Here are the warrants," Ryley pursued, delivering the papers, "and here's a note that came for you just as I stopped at the house to ask Anne where to find you. Thought perhaps I'd better bring it along."

"Thank you."

With a word of apology to Patricia, Donald opened the note. Written in Rodney's unsteady hand, it read as follows:

Dear Don:

I'm frightfully sorry I was such an ass. I ought to have known better. But I'm so broken up about Patricia and everything I couldn't see straight. As soon as I get over this katzenjammer, I'm going to ask her to forgive me. For the present, I must ask you not only to overlook my boorishness but to help me out of a bad scrape I'm in.

It's a woman, and it isn't my fault. I'm in wrong—that's all. Only it'll get me in bad all round if anything gets into the papers. Please don't say anything to anybody—just come secretly to this address as soon as you can.

Respectfully yours,

Rodney.

The address was written below the signature: "Hotel Baltimore. Ask for me by my name."

Thoughtfully, Donald refolded and pocketed the note. He was fond of Rodney, and could not refuse the boy's request. At the same time, its urgency complicated matters a trifle.

Summoning the waiter, he settled his account.

"Please take Miss Channing back to my rooms," he requested Ryley. "Then go on to Huroki's. I'll join you there in the course of half an hour or so. Don't do anything pending my arrival."

The Baltimore was well-known to Donald by unsavory repute.

A sardonic clerk delivered Captain Parr to the guidance of a cynical bell-boy, who left him at the door of a room on the fifth floor. His knock was answered by a handsome creature of some thirty animated years, a woman whose complete self-possession and alluring negligee assorted well with the implications latent in Rodney's note.

"Captain Parr?"

Her tones were as professionally dulcet as her smile was worldlywise. Donald bowed coolly.

"I am looking for Mr. Wrenn."

"He is expecting you. Won't you please come in?"

Donald entered. The woman closed the door and paused momentarily with back to it. He swung around sharply, suspecting that she had turned the key and withdrawn it—for the first time suspecting that Rodney's note might have been a forgery.

"Where is Mr. Wrenn?" he demanded.

"He was called away unexpectedly, but will be back at any moment. Please sit down."

"Thank you—no."

Donald moved quickly to the door. The woman sought to interpose herself between him and it, but he was too quick. A twist of the handle confirmed his surmise; he was locked in with this dangerous animal.

"Be good enough," he said brusquely, "to open without delay."

"But surely you can wait—" "I have no time to waste. Do as I say!"

"Am I so repulsive, then?"

He shrugged impatiently. "I'm in no mood for nonsense. Open that door!"

"But listen to me . . ."

She came closer, with a sudden lithe movement threw herself upon him, arms clasp his neck.

"You're right, it is a plant, dearie. Mr. Wrenn isn't here—won't be. I sent you that note because I'm mad about you—wanted to get you here—" "Oh—rot!" Donald ejaculated in disgust; and breaking her hold, threw her from him. "I'll give you one minute to unlock that door!"

For an answer he received a mocking laugh.

"Do you hear?" he asked.

She laughed again. Impatiently he turned from her and looked round the room for something to aid him to break open the door. A stand of fire-irons near the chimney-piece offered a substantial brass poker. Seizing this, he made for the door. Behind his back, the woman seized the telephone and screamed into the transmitter.

"Help! Help! A strange man has me locked in here!"

By the time she had said that much, Donald had wrested the instrument from her.

She relinquished it without much resistance, then darting beyond his reach, paused and again laughed in his face while hurriedly disordered her hair and attire in such manner as to indicate a struggle.

This time Donald answered her laugh with a quiet smile.

"Well," he said, dropping the poker, "you've got me—Mrs. Mayne!"

That was a shot at random, suggested by sudden suspicion; but it told. The woman's hands fell limp; she stared and gasped.

"How did you know?"

He gave a gesture, signifying that her question was immaterial. At the same instant a thunder of heavy blows sounded on the door, and it yielded to a passkey, admitting three sturdy and willing porters.

They made for Donald in a concerted rush, but only to bring up with lifted hands at the point of his pistol.

"Easy!" he ordered. "Steady! Into that room there—all of you. Step lively, and don't crowd! You, too, Mrs. Mayne!"

Herding the quartette into the adjoining bedchamber, he locked its door, and tossed the key out of the open

Young Men Still Wanted In The Navy
While the authorities at Washington are well pleased with the loyal response of the young man of the country to the call to colors, attention is called to the need of more young men from Maryland to fill the Navy to its newly authorized strength of 150,000.

During the last month the Navy recruiting authorities at Baltimore have been particularly impressed with the type of young men making application. This is regarded as an indication that the unusual advantage offered by this branch of the country's service is being more appreciated than in normal times. A great many young men just finishing school have gone into the Navy with the apparent intention of making it their future vocation, realizing the opportunities for advancement are a great deal better than in civil life. The Baltimore recruiting authorities are directing attention to the special need for young men in the Hospital Training Corps, one of the best ratings in the Naval Service. In this rating young men are enlisted as hospital apprentice, second class, and can, by diligent application to their duties, promote themselves in a comparatively short time to the Chief Pharmacist's Mate, from which rating they can advance to the warrant grade of Pharmacist.

Minors who apply for enlistment in the Navy must have the written consent of their parents, or legal guardian. Forms for this purpose and all other particulars can be obtained from the nearest postmaster; directly from the Navy Recruiting Station, Calvert and Lexington Sts., Baltimore, or from the Navy Recruiting Substations at Cumberland and Hagerstown.

Watch Your Kitchen Waste

A large part of the $700,000,000 estimated food waste in this country is good food which is allowed to get into garbage pails and kitchen sinks. Ask yourself, "Can it be eaten?"

Don't throw out any left-overs that can be reheated or combined with other foods to make palatable and nourishing dishes. Do you know—

That every bit of uneaten cereal can be used to thicken soups, stews, or gravies?

That stale bread can be used as the basis for many attractive meat dishes, hot breads, and desserts?

That every ounce of skimmed milk or whole milk contains valuable nourishment? Use every drop of milk to drink or to add nourishment to cereals, soups, sauces, and other foods. If you don't want milk to sour, keep it cool, clean, and covered continually.

That every bit of meat and fish can be combined with cereals or vegetables for making meat cakes, meat or fish pies, and so on, and to add flavor and food value to made dishes?

That every spoonful of left-over gravy can be used in soups and sauces or as flavoring for meat pies, croquettes and vegetables?

That every bit of clean fat trimmed from meat and every spoonful of drippings and every bit of grease that rises when meat is boiled can be clarified, if need be, and is valuable in cookery? Don't fatten your garbage pail at the expense of your bank account.

That when meat is boiled, the water dissolves out some valuable food and flavoring material? Save such water for soup or for use in stews or gravies, or for cooking vegetables. Save and keep soup stock. Every professional cook knows that keeping a soup or stock pot is an essential economy.

That valuable food and flavoring get into the water in which rice and many vegetables are cooked? Use such water for soup making if it has an agreeable flavor. Don't pour nourishment down the sewer.

That careless paring of potatoes or fruits often wastes as much as 20 per cent of their food material?

That the outside leaves of lettuce and the tops of many vegetables make desirable cooked "greens" or even salads?

Make it your business to know what foods and how much food your family needs to be efficient. Learn how to make the most of the foods you buy.

Write to-day to the U. S. Department of Agriculture, Washington, D. C., or to your State agricultural college for bulletins telling you about the nature and uses of foods and how to feed your family economically, and get the greatest nourishment out of every pound of food that comes into your home.

LIVE THE CHEERFUL LIFE.

Look on the Bright Side and Enjoy What You Have.

When we are in trouble we are prone to cry out about it, complaining that we are unjustly used, that no one else has suffered as we do. When things go well with us we take it as a matter of course that so it ought to be. We are not largely given to gratitude.

We may have food enough, a comfortable shelter, be clothed comfortably; we may have health and employment in such labor as we are able and like to perform; we may have a competence which puts us above anxiety—and still we find fault and complain.

Some one may have a better dress, or a handsomer car, or may entertain more elaborately, or is greater in popular favor than ourselves. There is something that does not please us. Instead of being glad that there are so many things to make us happy we complain and find fault. We let a "crumpled roseleaf" spoil our joy amidst a wealth of things that should make us glad.

Why not set the mind on the good things of life? Ignore the things that are petty and of really small consequence. Cultivate a cheerful habit of mind, looking for all that is good and appreciating the blessings that have fallen to our share.

For every one there is something to enjoy. The sun at least shines for all. When you are heavy hearted count up the good things of life that are yours to enjoy.—Chicago Post.

Fruit Diet as a Cure.

The fruit diet is a sure and positive cure for what is popularly known as bleeding and for persons usually designated as bleeders, persons who cannot stop the flow of blood once it is started from a wound or other cause. The fruit diet will supply the blood with fibrin. Fibrin is the substance out of which nature fabricates flesh and muscle. A person on the fruit diet hardly bleeds at all when he cuts himself accidentally with a knife or when, for proper reasons, a dentist is forced to draw one of his teeth. The blood coagulates almost instantaneously. If you believe none of this, just try it. The experience is safe and sane. The fruit diet is cheaper and better than the meat diet, and it will do more for you. You will feel fine and chirrupy and optimistic. You never find a fruit eater who is a pessimist.—Los Angeles Times.

American Medical Association.

The American Medical Association is the largest organization of the kind in the world. There are 70,000 members. In May, 1846, in response to a call issued by the Medical Society of the State of New York, there was held in New York city a conference for the purpose of discussing questions relating to the standardization of medical education in the United States. This conference adjourned to meet a year later in Philadelphia, where it resolved itself into a permanent organization—the American Medical Association. A long line of distinguished men have been presidents of the association.

Value of Cinders.

Not so many years ago great heaps of cinders were piled up, often dumped into low places where new earth was needed. Manufacturing concerns were glad to get rid of the accumulations. But now the cinders are in great demand for use in the foundation for cement and concrete work. They form a perfect drainage material, and it has been found that frost acts very lightly on them. Furthermore, concrete work in which cinders are used is said to be of extreme durability. When cinders are ground and mixed with cement the mass becomes very hard.

Old Age on Saturn.

We are reminded that if human beings lived on the planet Saturn they would be old at three years of age—not that life is any swifter or the cares of maturity any more pressing. It is merely because Saturn is so far from the sun that it takes nearly thirty years, according to the earth's measurement of time, to travel in its orbit round the sun.

Odd Bits From Novels.

"He fixed the jury with his eye," says a novelist. A poor thing to fix a jury with, truly.

"He stood as if carved from stone," says another writer. No wonder! He had just been chiseled out of his rocks.—Boston Transcript.

Actions.

Every man's actions form a center of influence upon others, and every deed, however trivial, has some weight in determining the future destiny of the world.

A DANGEROUS TROUBLE

Princess Anne People Tell How To Act In Time

Kidney diseases are very dangerous, they come on silently, gain ground rapidly, and cause thousands of deaths that could have been prevented by proper treatment. In the beginning, Nature gives early warning of kidney disease—backache, twinges of pain when stooping or lifting, headaches and urinary disorders. If these symptoms are unheeded, there is grave danger of dropsy or fatal Bright's disease. Doan's Kidney Pills have earned a reputation for their effectiveness in kidney troubles, and are known and recommended the world over. Princess Anne testimony proves the merit of Doan's Kidney Pills to our readers.

S. M. Worrall, 80 Broad street, Princess Anne, says: "I was troubled with a severe backache and general run-down condition of my kidneys. I had terrible pains in the small of my back. Whenever I stooped and then tried to straighten, it seemed as if I were run clear through the middle of my back with a sharp sword. At night, I lost quite a bit of sleep on account of having to get up several times to pass the kidney secretions. The secretions were scalding in passage and I was in a very miserable state. Two boxes of Doan's Kidney Pills cured me and I am still enjoying good health."

Price 60c. at all dealers. Don't simply ask for a kidney remedy—get Doan's Kidney Pills—the same that Mrs. Hastings has twice publicly recommended. Foster-Milburn Co., Props., Buffalo, N. Y.

Too Economical.

"The servant that works for me must be very, very economical," said the boarding house mistress to the applicant for work.

"I'm such a one, ma'am," promptly returned the applicant. "Indeed, me last mistress discharged me for being that way."

"For being economical?"

"Yes, with me clothes. I used to wear hers."

Rather Unpleasant.

"I won my wife by saving her from drowning."

"Ah, that was romantic!"

"It seemed so once. But now every time I do anything that doesn't suit her she tells me she wishes I had let her drown."—Kansas City Journal.

Treasurer's Sale —FOR— 1915 TAXES

By virtue of the power and authority vested in me as County Treasurer for Somerset county by the provisions of Chapter 10 of the Acts of the General Assembly of Maryland of 1910, I hereby give notice that on at the hour of 1.30 o'clock p. m., at the Court House door in Princess Anne, Maryland, I will sell at public auction, for cash, all the lots or parcels of land hereinafter severally mentioned and described, to pay and satisfy the state and county taxes levied against the said hereinafter described lots or parcels of land for the year 1915, or charged to and due from the several persons to whom the same are assessed, which said taxes are now due and in arrears for said year, together with the interest and costs thereof and costs of sale.

No. 1—All that tract of land situate in West Princess Anne Election District, Somerset county, Md., which was conveyed unto John S. Cooper and Albert Sisk by John Dorman and others by a deed dated the twenty-sixth day of December, 1913, and recorded among the land records of said county in Liber S. F. D., No. 65, folio 429, etc., and assessed to said John S. Cooper and Albert Sisk for said year.

No. 2—All that lot or parcel of land lying on the west side of Church street, in West Princess Anne Election District, in the town of Princess Anne, said county and state, adjoining the property formerly owned by Lazarus Maddox, deceased, having a frontage on Church street of fifty-eight feet and a depth of one hundred feet and assessed to Rosa King's heirs for said year.

No. 3—All that lot of land in West Princess Anne Election District, in said county and state, located on Fitzgerald's lane, containing one acre, more or less, and assessed to Mar' Wash Spence for said year.

JOHN E. HOLLAND,

Treasurer for Somerset County.

Says Phosphates Make Beautiful Women And Strong, Healthy, Vigorous, Robust Men

Physicians all over the world are prescribing phosphates to build up run down enemic conditions and those who have treated their patients with Argo-Phosphate are changing thin, enemic women with toneless tissues, flabby flesh, into the most beautiful rosy cheeked and plump round formed women imaginable

Atlanta, Ga. Dr. Jacobson said in a recent interview that 90 per cent. of anemia comes from nervous breakdown which can only be corrected by supplying the necessary phosphates to the nervous system that is lacking in the food you eat, and this can be quickly supplied by taking one or two 5-grain Argo-Phosphate tablets after each meal, and at bed time. It will in many cases make a pale scrawny face the picture of health in a few days. I have seen women that I expected would have to be kept under treatment for months restored to perfect health in one or two weeks time. SPECIAL NOTICE. The Argo-Phosphate recommended by Dr. F. H. Jacobson contains phosphates such as are prescribed by leading physicians throughout the world, and it will be found the most effective form for treating patients with Nervous Dyspepsia, Stomach troubles, Brain Fog and Nervous Prostration. It will renew youthful vim and vigor, and build up the whole body. If your druggist will not supply you with Argo-Phosphate, send $1.00 for two weeks treatment, to Argo Laboratories, 10 Forsyth St., Atlanta, Ga.

MINTING OUR DIMES.

The Way the Silver Coins Are Made, Counted and Packed.

The process of dime making is an interesting one. The silver bullion is first melted and run into two pound bars. These in turn are run through, immense rollers and flattened out to the thickness of the coin. These silver strips are then passed through a machine, which cuts them into proper size for the presses, the strips first having been treated with a kind of tallow to prevent their being scratched in their passage through the cutters.

The silver pieces are then put into the feeder of the printing presses and are fed to the die by automatic machinery at the rate of 100 per minute, 48,000 dimes being turned out in a regular working day of eight hours.

As the smooth pieces are pressed between the punderous printing dies they receive the lettered and figured impression in a manner similar to that of a paper pressed upon a form of type. At the same time the piece is expanded in a slight degree, and the small corrugations are cut into its rim.

The machine drops the completed coin into a receiver, and it is ready for the counter's hands. The instrument used by the counter is not a complicated machine by any means, as one might suppose. It is a simple copper colored tray, having raised ridges, running across its surface at a distance apart the exact width of a dime.

From the receiver the money is dumped on the board or tray, and as it is shaken rapidly by the counter the pieces settle down into the spaces between the ridges. All these spaces being filled, the surplus coin is brushed back into the receiver, and the counter has exactly 1,250 silver dimes, or $12.50, on his tray, which number is required to fill the spaces. The tray is then emptied into boxes, and the money is ready for shipment.—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

THE GLORY OF CORN.

Our Crop the Biggest and Best of Any Kind Grown in Any Land.

"No nation can starve," writes our secretary of agriculture, "which raises in a year 3,000,000,000 bushels of corn."

Not only not starve, but it can live without wheat, live well and grow fat. Who says eating corn is a hardship?

Corn comes to your table in twenty different uniforms and every one of them a perfect fit.

American corn is the biggest and best crop of any kind grown in any country of the world.

Search the earth around and you will find no other product of the field so beautiful as corn in midsummer, standing in long, straight rows like soldiers, with green banners streaming. In autumn these rows turn to myriads of tents, which fill with their yellow ears 10,000 cribs with food too good for any king.

Corn alone saved John Smith's colony at Jamestown and so gave our continent its first English settlement.

Corn kept from starvation the pilgrims in Massachusetts and led very properly to the first Thanksgiving day. The American Indian placed the white races under an unpayable debt when he introduced our ancestors to corn.

Whether you eat "roasting ears" or hot corn muffins, golden cakes just off the griddle or a warm, thick bread, you cannot go wrong.

I tell you, if Homer had not died a couple of thousand years ago he would write us a finer epic on corn than he did about the siege of Troy.—Philadelphia Ledger.

Hanging the Flag.

When a flag pole is in a slanting or horizontal position if the rope holding the upper corner of the flag be pulled very tight and the rope holding the lower corner be slackened somewhat, thus allowing the flag to drop slightly away from the pole, the wind will spill out of it. This will do much to prevent the flag from wrapping around the pole.

A little experimenting will show how much to slack away the lower corner. It depends on the size of the flag and the angle of the pole.—New York Sun.

Panama Canal Forts.

The fortifications for the defense of the Panama canal consist of seacoast forts at each end of the canal and field fortifications around the locks. The object of the seacoast forts at the canal terminals is to prevent an enemy in time of war from entering and blocking the canal by sinking vessels in it.

Can Apples, Pears And Tomatoes

Are you helping your country by saving some of the products of your war garden says the bulletin from the National Emergency Food Garden Commission of Washington. The Commission will send to any one who sends a two-cent stamp for postage its canning and drying manuals free of any charge.

Apples, pears and quinces may be canned by two methods. The first requires the boiling of the fruit sections in a thin syrup of sugar and water. The grated rind of a lemon to two quarts of fruit improves flavor. Boil the sections in the syrup until tender, fill jars with fruit and add boiling syrup to overflowing, and seal at once. Fill and seal one jar at a time and do the work as rapidly as possible. The second method, the fruit is washed, peeled, quartered and cored and packed as tightly as possible without crushing in jars, the tops set on the jars and then the jars are steamed until the fruit is tender. After steaming add boiling hot syrup of heavy density and seal at once.

In canning tomatoes use only the firm, well formed fruit and scald for several minutes to loosen the skin. Dip into cold water for an instant, peel and remove cores with a narrow-bladed, sharp-pointed knife, being careful not to cut into the seed lobes more than necessary. Pack carefully and firmly into hot jars and add a level teaspoonful of salt for each quart. No water should be added to tomatoes. Adjust and partially tighten tops of jars and sterilize in boiling water for twenty-five to thirty minutes. Remove jars from sterilizer and tighten tops at once. Invert jars to test for leakage and let them cool in this position in a place free from draughts. Wrap in dark paper to prevent loss of color and store in a cool, dry place. Small tomatoes an inch and a-half in diameter may be washed carefully, blanched for ten minutes, cold-dipped and packed with peeling. Jars should be filled with boiling water, a level teaspoonful of salt added to each quart and the whole sterilized for twenty to thirty minutes.

Summer Complaint

During the hot weather of the summer months some member of almost every family is likely to be troubled with an unnatural looseness of the bowels, and it is of the greatest importance that this be treated promptly, which can only be done when the medicine is kept at hand. Mrs. F. F. Scott, Scottsville, N. Y., states, "I first used Chamberlain's Colic and Diarrhoea Remedy as much as five years ago. At that time I had a severe attack of summer complaint and was suffering intense pain. One dose relieved me. Other members of my family have since used it with like results."

OYSTER PRICES WILL GO HIGHER

There Will Be Rejoicing Along The Chesapeake When Scale Changes

Great will be the rejoicing up and down the Chesapeake Bay, in its tributaries and estuaries, in the towns, villages and hamlets, which dot its shores, when the news is spread that the price of oysters, following the trend of other food products, will go upward during the coming season. The rejoicing will be long and loud because for several years oyster prices have been on the descending rather than on the ascending scale.

The increase in the price is to be brought about by the Oyster Growers' Association of North America, which, at a meeting in New York, agreed to advance the price at figures ranging from 25 to 35 per cent. in bulk.

W. H. Killian, of Baltimore, president of the association, and a member of the State Conservation Commission, took a stand in favor of the proposed increase, which was accepted by the 70 growers, representing a majority of the association. The growers declare that the advance will be maintained.

That there has not been an increase in the price of oysters is surprising to those engaged in the industry. Except during brief periods when they were so fortunate as to have supplies on hand when the market was curtailed by freezing spells, there has been no marked increase in prices for several years. They declare that the returns are not commensurate with the capital invested and labor expended. They have looked to the conservation commission to make some move by which higher prices for oysters would be possible. They have argued that efforts of the commission to increase the supply of oysters fall short if the prices are low. Oyster-men are advocating a campaign of education for the main product of the Chesapeake Bay in industrial centers by which the demand will be increased, thus increasing the price. They point to the fact that there is more nutriment in 50 cents' worth of oysters than in 75 cents' worth of beef steak, a fact not known in the West and elsewhere where the oyster is regarded as a luxury and not as a food product.

Extension Work In Maryland

The Maryland Agricultural Extension Service now has in its employ a strong force of specialists in the various branches of agriculture and home economics, in co-operation with county agents in the several counties of the State in organizing practical work among the farmers and the farm women. President Woods is fortunate in coming to a State which has the unique distinction of being the first to employ an agent in every one of its counties, there being twenty-three in all engaged in agricultural demonstration. Following the example of the men's work, it is expected that before long a woman home demonstration agent will be located in each county as well. An important part of the work of both men and women agents is the encouragement of club organization among our country boys and girls. The efficiency of this work in particular is being rapidly strengthened by the co-operation extended by the State Board of Education and the school authorities of the several counties. With the close co-operation of these agencies the institution will establish beyond doubt an enviable record in the promotion of rural development and in meeting the agricultural demands of a most critical period in the history of the State and Nation.

RHEUMATISM ARRESTED

Many people suffer the tortures of lame muscles and stiffened joints because of impurities in the blood, and each succeeding attack seems more acute until rheumatism has invaded the whole system. To arrest rheumatism it is quite as important to improve your general health as to purify your blood, and the cod liver oil in Scott's Emulsion is nature's great blood-maker, while its medicinal nourishment strengthens the organs to expel the impurities and rebuild your strength. Scott's Emulsion is helping thousands every day who could not find other relief. Refuse the alcoholic substitutes.

WANTED

The following is quoted from a letter just received from the U. S. Civil Service Commission, Washington, D. C.:

"The United States Government needs, and needs badly, great numbers of Stenographers and Typewriters, both men and women.

"Students just starting a course of study may be informed that there is now practically no limit to the number of stenographers and typewriters the Government needs.

"The Commission believes that the study of stenography and typewriting by a great number of persons with a view of entering the Government service will be justified. The usual entrance salary ranges from $900 to $1200 a year."

The business demand for secretaries, stenographers and bookkeepers is also very urgent, and all students beginning a course with us during the next few months can be sure of employment promptly upon graduation at salaries higher than ever paid before.

THE GREAT SALISBURY FAIR

Salisbury, Maryland
August 14, 15, 16 and 17

The Fair season is now on, and the biggest of all the Fairs held in this section—The Great Salisbury Fair—will open its gates to the public with a line of amusements and attractions never before equaled.

Racing

This is a good season for horses, and one of the best entry sheets is promised the lovers of this sport this year at Salisbury. There will be many spirited, hotly contested races, such as will thrill all those fortunate enough to see them.

Motorcycle Racing

Salisbury has gone after and obtained the fastest motorcycle racers in the country. The nominal records on one-half mile tracks have already been made on these grounds, and this year will probably see even these records broken. Those who like a thrill cannot help to be satisfied when watching fast drivers forcing their high-powered machines around the track at a pace which seems impossible to maintain without risk of life.

Midway

Arrangements have been made with a prominent New York road show man to furnish a large number of good, clean, decent shows, the minimum amount of space to be used to be not less than fifteen hundred feet, and maybe much more. This will give one of the largest, best and most attractive Midways ever seen on these grounds. The contract calls for nothing but good, clean, moral shows.

Free Attractions

The Free Attractions offered this year are fully equal to those seen here in the past, and are the best of their kind.

ROSA RENTZ TRIO, a wonderful balancing novelty, consisting of many sensational comedy acts, is performed upon a stand erected on a high pole, and is an act that is sure to please all who see it.

WEBER SISTERS—The well known Weber Sisters will be on the grounds this year, and those who enjoy wonderful ground acrobatic stunts have a treat in store for them. A trio of wonderful beauty and wonderful acting.

IRENE LA TOUR—When it comes to attractions, young and old are alike interested, and even if they were not Irene La Tour and her clever dog, Zaza, would please them. Come and see a human intelligence under animal skin.

Don't forget that any one of these amusements is well worth in itself the full price of admission to the grounds, and don't fail to come and enjoy the Fair, its racing—horse and motorcycle—its free attractions, its great midway, its many exhibits—household, fancy work, agriculture, stock and other lines. Come and meet your friends, they will all be here at

Aug. 14, 15, 16 and 17

ADMISSION:

Tuesday and Friday - - - 35c
Wednesday and Thursday - - - 50c

THE SALISBURY FAIR has been a great success, and it is the earnest desire of its management to make it even a greater one. With this end in view they have decided to make it a community affair instead of a private enterprise. Under this plan all the net earnings would go to the building up and improving the Fair. Stockholders in lieu of dividends, to receive admission tickets to the grounds. It is impossible to give full details of this plan here. Call at the office on the Fair Grounds and learn all about it. See if you don't want to help to make this Fair one of the best in the whole country. Some one will be in a booth in our Grand Stand to explain the whole idea and to take your subscription for stock.

Tyler-Hopper Wedding

The marriage of Miss Ethel Marie Hopper, daughter of William J. Hopper and the late Mrs. Louisa Hopper, to Sergt. Mark V. Tyler, of Crisfield, who is a member of Company C, Fifth Maryland Regiment, took place last Tuesday evening at six o'clock at the home of the bride's brother, William J. Hopper, Jr., 303 West Belvidere avenue, Arlington, Baltimore county. The ceremony was performed in the presence of the two immediate families and a few intimate friends of the couple by the Rev. George M. Clayton, pastor of Wilton Heights Methodist Protestant Church. A reception followed the ceremony. Sergeant and Mrs. Tyler left after the ceremony for a short trip to Atlantic City. The groom is stationed with his company at Fredericksburg, Va.

James W. Long Dead

Mr. James W. Long died at his home near Green Hill, Somerset county, last Thursday night, at the advanced age of 91 years.

Funeral services were held at his late home last Sunday afternoon, conducted by the Rev. Mr. Martin, of Rehoboth, and the interment was in the Methodist cemetery, at Pocomoke City.

He is survived by his widow, four daughters, (Mrs. Tubman T. Beauchamp, of Rehoboth; Mrs. Henry Flurer, of Princess Anne; Mrs. Frank Chamberlin, of Westover, and Miss Ida Long, who resided with her mother) and three sons, (Messrs. They stopped at the Washington Hotel last Thursday and remained until Friday morning, when they left for Pocomoke City and Snow Hill. From there they went to Ocean City, where they met a party of friends from Lancaster county, Pa., who were spending the week-end in the city by the sea.

Miss Rhea Morgan, county demonstrator, and Miss Reeves, of the United States Department of Agriculture, gave demonstrations in canning and drying during last week. Meetings were held at Loretto and Friendship on Monday, Princess Anne on Tuesday, Fairmount and Deal's Island on Wednesday, Crisfield on Thursday, and Perryhawkin on Friday. The meetings were well attended at each place.

RECORD CORN CROP THIS YEAR

Department Of Agriculture Predicts 3,191,000,000 Bushels

A corn crop surpassing any ever grown before, a reduction in wheat prospects, due to damage in the spring wheat crop and record crops of barley, rye, white and sweet potatoes, tobacco and hay were forecasted last Wednesday in the August 1 crop report of the Department of Agriculture.

Corn production was placed at 3,191,000,000 bushels, an increase of 67,000,000 bushels over the July forecast and 68,000,000 above the record crop of 1912. The showing is due to vast improvement in the growing of corn in Illinois, Iowa, Indiana and Missouri. In Kansas the condition declined to 33 per cent. of a normal, compared with 66 per cent. on July 1, and as a result Kansas crop is forecast at 81,740,000 bushels, compared with 169,536,000 bushels forecast in July. Oklahoma's crop showed a decline from 61 per cent. of a normal to 30 per cent., with production forecast reduced from 65,592,000 bushels to 33,844,000 bushels.

Spring wheat production forecast in July at 276,000,000 bushels showed the results of adverse weather conditions. The prospects are put at 236,019,000 bushels, a drop of about 40,000,000 bushels from the July 1 report. North Dakota crop suffered most with a loss in prospective production of about 15,000,000 bushels, while South Dakota lost about 3,000,000 bushels and Washington 7,000,000 bushels.

Winter wheat, however, is turning out better than previously forecast with a forecast total of 417,000,000 bushels, or 15,000,000 bushels more than indicated from July conditions.

The combined yield of winter and spring wheat, therefore, shows a reduction of 25,000,000 bushels from the production forecast in July. The crop forecast from August 1 conditions will be only 653,000,000 bushels, or 13,000,000 bushels more than harvested last year.

White potatoes are expected to yield 467,000,000 bushels, or 15,000,000 bushels more than forecast from July conditions, and 47,000,000 bushels more than the record crop of 1912. Sweet potatoes also will be a record with 86,400,000 bushels.

Sheriff Pruitt Not Guilty Of Contempt

The Baltimore American last Friday said:

Sheriff J. Edward Pruitt, of Somerset county, was released from a charge of contempt of court yesterday afternoon, when he was before Judge Bond, in the City Court, on the complaint of Attorney Henry H. Dinneen, of this city. The charge grew out of the fact that Pruitt refused to accept a writ of habeas corpus when service was offered him at Camden Station more than two weeks ago.

The writ was intended for the release of a negro who had been sentenced in Somerset county to the House of Correction for six months. Pruitt said the writ was defective as it did not have the proper name of the negro and again he was not sure the writ was signed by Judge Stanton or that Dinneen was an attorney. The case was dismissed without comment by Judge Bond. The negro in question was released earlier in the week by the Jurist.

Judge Covington On Labor Mission

Chief Judge J. Harry Covington, of the Supreme Court of the District of Columbia, who, with his family, has been spending the summer at his country home at Easton, Maryland, received word from President Wilson to come to Washington immediately to go to the Pacific Coast on important business for the Government.

It now appears that the President selected Judge Covington for this duty and that he conferred with the Secretary of Labor and the President on Monday as to the details of the matter. He went to Washington from Easton Monday, having cut short his vacation. He left for the West Thursday night and expects to be away for at least six weeks.

Seldon M. Worrell Dies In Hospital

Mr. Seldon M. Worrell, who was taken to the Peninsula General Hospital, at Salisbury, last Friday afternoon and operated on for a complication of diseases, died at that institution yesterday (Monday) morning at 3 o'clock, aged 49 years.

His remains were brought to his home in Princess Anne yesterday afternoon and funeral services will be held in St. Andrew's Protestant Episcopal Church this (Tuesday) afternoon, conducted by the Rev. W. G. Woolford, and interment will be in the cemetery adjoining the church. He is survived by his widow, one daughter (Miss Nellie G. Worrell) and one son, (Martin D. Worrell).

JUDGE H. L. D. STANFORD'S LIFE WORK ENDED

Noted Jurist Of Princess Anne Died Suddenly Last Friday Afternoon At The Peninsula General Hospital While On Operating Table

Judge Henry Laurensen Dashiell Stanford, of Princess Anne, died suddenly at the Peninsula General Hospital, Salisbury, last Friday afternoon at one o'clock. Judge Stanford had been confined to his home for the past three weeks, suffering from a nervous breakdown complicated by kidney trouble. Although the seriousness of his condition had been known to his intimate friends, yet his sudden death was unexpected and a great shock to this community and the entire county.

Judge Stanford had planned to go to Clifton Springs, New York, for quiet and complete rest and was to have left town on the midnight train last Friday. On Thursday he seemed better and spent the day disposing of some personal matters and chatting pleasantly with his family and a number of friends who called upon him. At an early hour last Friday morning his condition became suddenly worse and he suffered a complete mental collapse and, eluding the members of his family, went to the bath room, locked the door and made an attempt to take his own life. Medical aid was summoned and he was removed to the hospital at Salisbury for an operation, which was performed by Dr. J. McFadden Dick, assisted by Drs. T. J. Smith and C. W. Wainwright, of this town. The operation was successful and it was thought that he would recover, but his physicians stated that he died instantly on the operating table from the effects of a blood clot.

Judge Stanford was 60 years of age and was born at Salisbury, Md., (then a part of Somerset county) on October 2nd, 1856. His parents were the late Isaac Stanford and Martha (Moore) Stanford. His father died when he was very young, leaving a widow and a large family of children. The family for a while lived in Baltimore, but as a young man Judge Stanford took up his residence in Princess Anne, being a clerk at the Washington Hotel at the time it was under the management of the late Wm. P. Rider. Later he went to Florida where he was engaged in the real estate business for about two years.

In 1888 Judge Stanford returned to Maryland and at the age of 32 years commenced the study of law in the office of Page & Miles. The firm was then composed of the late Justice Henry Page and Collector of Internal Revenue Joshua W. Miles. After studying law for two years he was admitted to the bar on April 17th, 1890. At this time he went to Salisbury and engaged in the practice of law there in partnership with ex-Secretary of State Robt. P. Graham. This partnership continued until 1895, at which time Judge Stanford came back to Princess Anne and the partnership of Miles & Stanford was formed and continued without interruption until Judge Stanford took his seat on the bench of this circuit in December, 1911. The law firm of Miles & Stanford was widely known throughout the entire State and particularly on the Eastern Shore and enjoyed a large and lucrative practice. During his practice at the bar Judge Stanford participated in many of the leading cases coming before the lower courts as well as the Court of Appeals of this State.

In December, 1911, he became a member of the bench of the First Judicial Circuit, having been elected to office at the general election in November, 1911. He was a candidate for the appointment upon the retirement of the late Judge Charles Holland, of Wicomico, in 1910, but Governor Crothers at the time appointed E. Stanley Toadvin to fill the vacancy. Both men were candidates for the nomination in the primaries of September, 1911, but Judge Stanford received the nomination, having carried both Worcester and Dorchester counties, in addition to his home county of Somerset, and having received a flattering vote in Wicomico county, the home of Judge Toadvin.

Judge Stanford has been very active on the bench and has attended every session of the Court in all the counties since his elevation to the office. He possessed a fine legal mind and was a very hard student of the law both as a practitioner and as a member of the bench. He was extremely helpful to all attorneys who practiced before him, and was always ready and willing to advise with attorneys over any legal matter brought to his attention. Judge Stanford looked after Court matters in Wicomico county, which was without a resident Judge, and always spent Friday of each week there.

He was a Democrat in politics and was very active in party affairs before going on the bench. He was for many years a leader in his party in the county, and was as well prominent in party affairs in the State. He was active in the fight for the passage of the Poe Amendments and was at that time an uncompromising advocate of legislation to insure the control of the Southern Maryland and lower Eastern Shore counties to the Democratic party. He was considered one of the leading authorities in the State on all questions pertaining to the election laws of Maryland, and was consulted by attorneys from all sections of the State on this branch of the Maryland law. In 1908 he was a member of the Maryland Legislature, representing this county in the House of Delegates, and at that session took a leading part in the framing and passage of much progressive legislation.

He was a charter member of the board of directors of the Peninsula General Hospital, of Salisbury, and was for many years a vestryman of St. Andrews Protestant Episcopal Church, of this town. He was a most active churchman and annually represented St. Andrews at all the Diocesan Conventions, and was frequently elected to represent the Diocese of Easton at the general conventions of the church. He was a member of Manokin Lodge, A. F. & A. M., Wa Wa Tribe Improved Order Red Men, Modern Woodmen of America, and the order of Heptasoph.

In 1895 he married Miss Marion Frances Waller, daughter of the late Clarence C. Waller, of Salisbury. He is survived by his widow, three daughters, (Misses Marian Waller Stanford, Martha Wilson and Eleanor Moore Stanford,) and one son, (H. Lawrence D. Stanford.) He is also survived by one brother, (Mr. Samuel M. Stanford, of Minneapolis, Minn.,) and two sisters, Mrs. Charles H. Rider, of Washington, D. C., and Mrs. Mary Atwood, of Boston, Mass.)

Funeral services were held yesterday (Monday) afternoon at 3 o'clock in St. Andrew's Protestant Episcopal Church, conducted by the Rev. W. F. Adams, Bishop of the Diocese of Easton, assisted by the Rev. J. S. Miller, of Newark, N. J., and the Rev. W. G. Woolford, rector in charge during the absence of the Rev. H. E. Spears. The pallbearers were: Dr. Jas. G. Wilson, of Clarksburg, W. Va.; Messrs. Clarence Perry, W. S. Gordy, Mark Cooper, of Salisbury; A. S. Bowland and B. H. Dougherty, of Princess Anne. The interment was in the cemetery adjoining the church.

The funeral was largely attended, not only by citizens of the town and county, but of different parts of the State. Out of respect for Judge Stanford the stores and places of business in town were closed during the funeral.

To Increase Wheat And Rye Yields

Specialists of the Department of Agriculture and the State Agricultural College hope that by better methods the average yield per acre will be at least maintained wherever there is a fertilizer shortage and will be increased in other sections. Much educational work will be done to make this desire an actuality, and in this campaign the most successful growers will have a prominent part. For instance, it is stated that on the land that could be sown to fall wheat this autumn, it is possible materially to increase the yield per acre by putting into practice some principles that are already well known to most farmers. These should appeal especially to those who cannot increase their usual acreages without doing injustice to other crops which should be grown. These principles may be summed up as follows:

1. Plow early. Give the plowed land two months to settle before sowing where possible.
2. Compact the late-plowed land with roller and harrow.
3. Don't plow after a cultivated crop. Prepare such land with disk and harrow.
4. Make the seed bed a fit place for the seed.
5. Sow with a drill, sump, plow, clean seed of adapted variety.
6. Prevent losses from smut by treating infected seed with formaldehyde.
7. Make the soil fertile with manure or fertilizers applied judiciously where needed.
8. Reduce winter killing by following the above suggestions.

The accomplishment of this great increase of wheat and rye acreage without disrupting correct farming practice will call for tremendous effort on the part of farmers. However, the U. S. Department of Agriculture, the State College of Agriculture, and other State and local agencies are planning to aid in every way possible.

Mr. and Mrs. Louis W. Morris, of Philadelphia, were visitors at the homes of Dr. Charles W. Wainwright and Mr. W. O. Lankford last week.

THE TRI-COUNTY INSTITUTE

Will Convene At Ocean City On August 28th To September 7th

Superintendents W. H. Dashiell, E. W. McMaster and W. J. Holloway, of Somerset, Worcester and Wicomico counties, respectively, have issued a circular to the teachers of the three counties, from which we glean the following information that will prove of interest to our readers as well as to the teachers:

The thirteenth annual Tri-County Institute will be held at Ocean City, Maryland, August 28th to September 7th. The opening session will take place at 9 o'clock Tuesday morning at the new Public School Building, and will be devoted to organization. Lecture work will begin the same morning at 9.30 o'clock, and will continue through the week, Saturday included, from 9.30 a.m. to 12.30 p.m. The Institute will close on Friday, September 7th, at noon, with examinations on Friday morning. Regular school work will begin on Monday morning, September 10th.

The teachers will be divided into four groups, as follows:

Group A—Teachers of First and Second grades of High and Graded Schools.

Group B—Teachers of Rural (one room) Schools.

Group C—Teachers of Third to Seventh grades of High and Graded Schools.

Group D—Teachers of High Schools and Principals of Graded Schools doing High School work.

The instructors are as follows: Miss Marie Lovnes, Teachers' College, Columbia University, "Organization and Management and Methods of Study"; Prof. O. I. Woodley, President College Normal School, Huntington, West Virginia, "Reading, Language and Literature"; Dr. T. R. Garth, Richmond Public Schools, "General Theory and Practice and School Discipline"; Prof. Harold F. Cotterman, Maryland State College of Agriculture, "Agricultural Education."

All teachers will be examined on the lectures of one of the instructors at the Institute. On Tuesday, at the close of the first day's work, they will hand their respective Superintendents a card indicating their election of the course on which they expect to take the final examination. After this they will not be allowed to change the course. The instructors will set the examination, read the papers, and report the marks to the respective Boards of Education. It is expected that arrangements will be perfected with the State Department of Education whereby satisfactory completion of a certain number of Institute courses will be accepted, in lieu of Summer School attendance, towards the renewal of teachers' certificates.

All teachers are expected to be present promptly at 9 o'clock Tuesday morning, to sit through four periods every day, and have their attendance recorded. Excuses for absence will not be entertained except by reason of illness, and a physician's certificate must certify that fact. By attending on Saturday, September 1st, teachers will get pay for Monday, August 27th.

Life And Death Telegrams

The managers of the Western Union Telegraph Company give the following information to those who may wish to forward any important telegrams to any one in the Navy:

The Director of Naval Communications advises that in order to provide for what are referred to as "life and death telegrams" without disclosing the location of ships of the Navy, orders have been issued to all naval personnel serving in the fleet directing them to inform their families that messages of the character mentioned are to be forwarded addressed to ships in care of the Bureau of Navigation at Washington, D. C. For example: John Smith, U. S. S. Texas, care of Bureau of Navigation, Navy Department, Washington, D. C.

Telegrams of less importance or urgency are to be forwarded from distant points with the same form of address with the understanding that such telegrams will be forwarded by the Bureau of Navigation to the addressee by mail.

New Title For Miss Richmond

The State Board of Education, at a meeting held last Wednesday in Baltimore, at which Governor Harrington presided, conferred upon Miss Sarah A. Richmond a new and unique title, Dean of Women of the State Normal School. In her new position she will devote her time to looking after the women teachers and girl students, being associated with Principal West in the general management of the school, which will reopen in September with Dr. West in charge and a full corps of instructors.

In the average man's life the longest day is the one just before pay day.

Exemptions Only For Military Or Industrial Efficiency

The nation's "military efficiency" stands out as the dominant factor in the draft call in a joint statement issued last Tuesday by the divisional boards of Baltimore city, of the Western Shore and of the Eastern Shore, through their respective chairmen, Edwin G. Baetjer, Robert Moss and W. Laird Henry.

The statement gives a clear-cut exposition of the attitude the boards take on exemption claims and appeals, and outlines the policy and rules that will be followed in their decisions in all such cases.

Two chief objects are behind the draft call, the boards hold: to raise armies and to maintain industries.

"Any considerable diminution of manpower," the statement recites, "must interfere to some extent with industry. The success of the nation's military operations is the dominant object to which the conservation of certain industries is related as one means necessary to that end."

Exemption or relief from the call to service are not to be granted out of consideration for the support of dependents, or as a privilege of certain industrial or agricultural vocations; nor in the interest of any individual or vocation; but "solely in the interest of the nation's military and industrial efficiency. Of the two, the military is the more important factor."

Exemptions or discharges are neither permanent or final, the boards point out. "No exemption," they hold, "continues after the cause therefor ceases to exist." In this connection, men temporarily discharged or exempted may be required to report at intervals fixed by the board for supplementary inquiry. Certificates of exemption may be revoked or modified at any time.

Mere difficulty in filling a man's place, loss of profit to the employer or increased cost of filling a position will not be sufficient to sustain a claim for exemption on industrial grounds.

It is not only necessary that the particular industry or operation named in a man's claim for occupational exemption be essential to the military or national interest, but that the man's experience, technical or otherwise, must be such that his place cannot be filled without "direct, substantial loss or injury" to the enterprise.

"It is evident," the statement says, "that this exemption cannot include anyone except those who occupy exceptional positions in an exceptional enterprise or agricultural operation."

"Such dependency ordinarily renders discharge advisable because, since the drafted person loses his civil income and thus loses his means of support, the wife is left without support and this lack of support is the effect which the act aims to avoid. But wherever such effect does in fact follow and the wife is not left without reasonably adequate support, but will receive such support from other sources, there is no real dependency rendering discharge advisable. The following classes of cases are within this ruling:

- "1. Where the parents or other relatives of the wife or the husband are able, ready and willing to provide adequate support for her (and children, if any) during the absence of the husband.
- "2. Where the wife owns land which has produced income by the husband's labor, but which could with reasonable certainty be rented during his absence to other persons so as to produce an adequate support.
- "3. Where there exists some arrangement by which the salary or wage of the husband is continued, in whole or in part, by third persons, being employers or insurers or others, and such portion of his salary or wage either alone or with an allotment of his soldiers' pay or with other definite income, will furnish a reasonably adequate support."

Salisbury Unit Mustered In

Company I of Salisbury is now a part of the United States Army, having been mustered in last Tuesday after passing a rigid test as to the physical fitness. Out of the 165 boys enrolled all passed with the exception of 20, and the examining surgeon pronounced them as fit a body of men as he ever examined. While there was much rejoicing among those who passed the examination, there was also great disappointment among those who were turned down. Many of these asked for a re-examination.

THE GREAT ROMANCE OF PREPAREDNESS

By LOUIS JOSEPH VANCE

THE CAST.

MRS. VERNON CASTLE as Patria Channing.
MILTON SILLS as Donald Parr.
WARNER OLAND as Baron Huroki.
DOROTHY GREEN as Fanny Adair.

SYNOPSIS.

Baron Huroki, chief of the Japanese secret service in America, conspiring to overthrow the United States with Mexico, desires control of the great Channing munition plants owned by Patria, last of "The Fighting Channings," and sole executrix of a $10,000,000 trust secretly created by patriotic progenitors to combat the national peril inherent in "unpreparedness." His schemes fail, thanks to Patria and her fiancé, Capt. Donald Parr, whose determined opposition at length drives Baron Huroki into hiding.

TENTH EPISODE

War in the Dooryard.

IN TIME OF PEACE.

The banishment of Baron Huroki proved to be as complete an affair as heart could wish, a mystery as profound, as finished, as thoroughgoing as could reasonably have been expected even of Oriental subtlety, cunning and forehandness, leaving no room for doubt but that the head of the Japanese secret service in the United States had long anticipated and planned against precisely such contingency as had at last driven him out of public life.

Without the slightest considerable lead into that blind labyrinth of underground life wherein the Japanese had taken refuge, Patria's private bureau of investigation, under the direction of Donald Parr, worked tirelessly for weeks upon the problem, leaving no stone unturned in its efforts to track down the fugitives.

At last Parr, innately incredulous, suspicious and solicitous for Patria's welfare, was drawn to admit that Baron Huroki must have fled the country.

He was at once glad and reluctant to believe this—reluctant because he feared lest some disaster impossible to foresee develop through overconfidence; glad because with Huroki eliminated from the land, Patria was free once more from that persecution and peril of assassination which had been her daily portion ever since, in coming of age, she had been so unfortunate as to attract the attention of the Japanese-Mexican junta.

But if both Donald and Patria breathed more freely as day followed day without overt attack upon the latter or any of her properties, they did not permit themselves to be deceived. Beneath this truce both divined an unceasing ebb and flow of intrigue.

Impossible as it was to surmise in what quarter or manner that malign outbreak should be apprehended, Patria and her aides neglected no imaginable precaution. The small arms and munitions factories, the ordnance foundries, arsenals and shipyards owned by Channing, Inc., were reorganized to a degree of the highest efficiency, each working three shifts of employees every twenty-four hours. Existing contracts with the allies for war material were filled, renewals and further orders were refused. Great stores of arms and ammunition began to accumulate, and were held against that day when, plunged unexpectedly into war, this nation should find itself in urgent need of equipment for the hordes of untrained volunteers who would spring up to its defense.

And whereas nothing could persuade a purblind people to prepare physically for the trials and strains of warfare, nothing could prevent Patria, or any other patriot, from putting the men on the pay roll in shape to fight for their homes.

Very quietly the Plattsburg scheme was put into effect at Powder Town, in accordance with the promise Patria had made her employees at the time of the strike. Under the supervision of Captain Parr the employees were organized into companies, put through a course of setting-up drills, and instructed in the use of arms—all on full pay for the time demanded for these exercises. Almost immediately the success of the experiment was assured by the response of the men, their eager interest and willingness.

With this encouragement, Patria caused the experiment to be put into effect at all the Channings plants. Its success was uniform. In a space of time incredibly brief the half-million men employed by Channings in various capacities were organized and rapidly approaching a state of military efficiency.

In short, all that could be accomplished toward the preparation of this country for war by private citizens whose efforts were unsanctioned by the government was done by Patria with the assistance of Donald Parr and their staff of aides.

Despite their most determined efforts to cloud these matters in secrecy, however, the news leaked out. Sharp-nosed reporters, denied admittance to the grounds of the various Channings works, lurked in the ofing with ears a-prick for every hint and every syllable of incautious gossip. Inevitably there dawned a day when the news, was bruited to the world.

It was the day preceding that on which Patria purposed starting, in her private car for the border ranches, to see for herself what was the truth about the situation in the Southwest, as well as to inspect her flying corps, take personal instruction in aviation, and supervise such preparations against armed invasion as might, in her judgment and Donald's, be deemed wise.

What was really going on along the border and south of it was masked in rumor, misinformation and official censorship. The country's half-trained and ill-equipped militia had been mobilized and transported to the Southwest; following which it had accomplished—by all reports—precisely nothing.

To look into these conditions, then, to find out for herself how grave the danger was of invasion following the prospective withdrawal of the American troops from Mexican territory, and to make due provision to protect her own properties—since she would in all probability be prevented by administrative ukase from extending such protection to others—was the main purpose of Patria's contemplated journey.

And because she had become one of the widely advertised personalities in the United States, since her accession to sole control of Channings, Inc., she had caused her plans to be made with all possible secrecy.

None the less they had become public property. While she dressed for her last trip to Powder Town, to review her employees there, a newspaper story advised her that she could hope to make few moves without the knowledge of the people.

Beneath a portrait of herself, in display headlines, she read:

Miss Patria Channing
America's Bertha Krupp,

who is rapidly converting her extensive arms and ammunition factories into armed camps, forsakes society to safeguard her vast properties in the Southwest—is reported to have said she will spend $100,000,000 to protect this country against peril of Japanese influences in Mexico.

Over this the girl shook an exasperated head.

She made no doubt but that Baron Huroki—presuming that he were still in hiding somewhere within the radius of metropolitan newspaper circulation—was reading with keen interest that half-same story.

And she was right.

Many miles away, in a dead little house in a dead little side street in Jersey City, seated on the floor of an apartment cunningly transformed by means of screens into the semblance of a room in a Japanese house—a room from which every ray of daylight was jealously excluded—Huroki was curling his lip over the headlines which made Patria's secrets his, and all the world's to boot.

But when he had finished reading, the sneer had faded from his face, a cast of thoughtfulness replacing it.

For many minutes he sat pondering, as still and immobile as one of the graven gods which, secretly, he worshipped. When at length he moved, it was merely to clap his palms together thrice; this done, he relaxed into movelessness. Nor did he stir so much as to turn his head when his summons was answered.

A cringing, servile creature in Japanese robes slipped noiselessly into the room and stood at attention, announcing himself by one word in his native tongue:

"Master . . . ?"

Huroki thought for another moment before he spoke.

"What are today's reports, Kato?"

"They say that we are apparently safe. All efforts at pursuit have been abandoned. The Channing girl is at her hotel in New York. Captain Parr spends most of his time in the Channing factories near Powder Town. It is certain that no sort of watch is being kept upon this house; not once since we took cover here has one of the Channing investigators approached this neighborhood."

The baron nodded approvingly.

"Order my roadster to the door. Fetch dusters, caps and goggles for yourself and me."

"It is an order."

Kato said no more, and his tone was colorless; yet in the barely perceptible hesitation he evidenced about putting these orders into effect, Huroki sensed an unuttered criticism: Was this wise on his part?

In response he touched the newspaper on the floor beside him.

"You have read this story, Kato?"

"Excellency—yes."

"Do you believe it is true that this girl is converting her factories into armed camps?"

"Our reports show that the Channings employees everywhere are being drilled persistently and made familiar with rifle practice."

"In other words, they are being made into a private army of trained men, ready to be offered to the country's service in event of war."

"Excellency—yes."

"I must see for myself. A dangerous business, a dangerous precedent; should many American captains of industry adopt this scheme, the United States will have a standing army too soon, far too soon. We must find some way to discourage this young woman—some way to sterilize her efforts toward preparedness before she can prove them practicable."

Kato bowed assent. After another moment Huroki dismissed him upon his errand.

Within ten minutes the two, thoroughly masked against recognition in their motoring garments, left the house and took their places—Kato at the wheel—in a high-powered motorcar of the roadster type.

Tooting the car along in discreet recognition of traffic regulations as long as they traveled city streets, once they had gained open country Kato drove at a pace which would have been foolhardy in a driver less adept.

For a time, en route, their way ran parallel with railroad tracks. For as much as a mile the roadster raced a light special train. Then, admonished by Huroki's touch on his sleeve, Kato modified the speed and permitted the special to draw ahead. As it did so, Huroki identified unmistakably the slight, girlish figure that sat alone on the observation platform.

So Patria Channing was likewise bound for Powder Town!

Even had he been without a mask, the face of the Japanese would have betrayed no trace of emotion. Yet the sight of the girl had set astir in him passions which had for some time lain dormant—dark passions bred of hatred and chagrin. For, alone among the many men and women with whom he had come in contact in the course of a long and active and varied career, Patria had proved a stumbling-block to his ambition, stubbornly opposing her puny strength to his—and overcoming him, persistently thwarting his shrewd schemes—and paying no penalty.

His arrangements were now all made for a furtive, unostentatious exit from the country which Patria had made too hot to harbor him longer. He was, in effect, being driven out by this insignificant wisp of womanhood—outlawed, a failure, disgraced, in ill favor with his emperor.

And he had been prepared to go without further attempt to balance his score with Patria. But this accidental encounter—of which the girl had remained so serenely unconscious—made him change his mind. Secretly he determined, before the special had rounded a bend ahead and vanished from his view, upon one final essay to avenge his wrongs ere he fled.

An hour later it stood empty with engine idle on a by-road near the summit of a hill overlooking the little valley in which lay Powder Town. Twenty feet above it, in the cover of a group of trees on the hilltop, Huroki and Kato were looking down into the valley, with the aid of binoculars, the Japanese reading plain confirmation of all the newspaper alleged concerning Patria's activities in the cause of preparedness.

On the open space that lay between the group of factory buildings and the town, upwards of five hundred men in semiform and bearing arms were performing evolutions with a snap and a precision that spoke well for Donald Parr's system of training.

Huroki's face darkened.

Down the road from the railway station came a motorcar. In it sat Patria Channing. As it appeared the men in training responded quickly to snapped orders and arrayed themselves in long ranks for review, presenting arms as the car came to a pause at a little distance before them.

Alighting, Patria was welcomed by Captain Parr and a group of officers.

After walking the length of the front ranks, Patria returned to the motorcar and took from the tonneau an object resembling, at a distance a pole, half of whose length was sheathed in black wrappings.

With this in hand, she addressed briefly the nucleus of her private forces. Having spoken, she offered the pole to the officer commanding under Captain Parr.

Unsheathing the flag, the commanding officer held it high, its brilliant colors radiant in the autumnal sunlight, before delivering it to the color guard.

A great roar of cheering broke out in the ranks and was carried clearly to the ears of the watchers on the hilltop.

With an angry gesture Huroki turned and strode back to his roadster. "Drive home," he ordered; "follow the railroad tracks as closely as you can. I must find some way."

THE TRESTLE.

A mile or so beyond the ridge-pole of the hills walling in the little valley, the road dipped down into another valley, rather more shallow, which the railroad spanned by means of a long high trestle.

Through this valley meandered a river, broad but not deep, some two hundred feet below the trestle at this, its highest point.

Well watered though it was, this valley offered little temptation to the agriculturist. Its soil was somewhat sterile and thickly sown with outcroppings of rock. Nevertheless, one farmer had thought well enough of it to establish a home near one end of the trestle.

This optimist was a Japanese. His utmost efforts, aided by those of his family and one or two helpers of his own race, wrung but the barest livelihood from the soil. Yet he persisted, year in and year out, patient and uncompromising.

It is a singular fact, to be interpreted at the whim of the reader, that any great railroad work in the United States seldom lacks a Japanese neighbor, such as this tolling little farmer.

It is not known that these hardy tillers of the soil have stores of dynamite or other high explosive cached conveniently; but if they had, they could readily at an hour's notice cripple the transportation facilities of this country and render efforts to rush troops to the western seaboard futile.

At the dwelling of the Japanese farmer in question, Baron Huroki alighted from his motorcar and engaged his countryman in a conversation which engrossed both till well past noon; at which time Patria Channing's special train was observed crossing the trestle, homeward bound.

When it had passed from sight, Huroki's course of action was mapped out to the last detail.

Summoning Kato, he delivered to him certain instructions, some by word of mouth, others written on scraps of paper in Japanese characters, and dismissed him with an injunction to make all possible haste upon his various errands.

Huroki himself retired to an afternoon of inaction in the house of his compatriot.

But Kato put in one of the busiest afternoons in his experience. In person, by telephone and through aides, he communicated the orders of Baron Huroki to half a hundred industrious Japanese gentlemen amiably and inconspicuously engaged in small ways of business throughout an area bounded on the north by Harlem, on the east by the remotest fastnesses of Brooklyn, on the south and west by the city of Philadelphia.

He likewise found time to visit a small but seaworthy private yacht which lay at anchor off Paulus Hook.

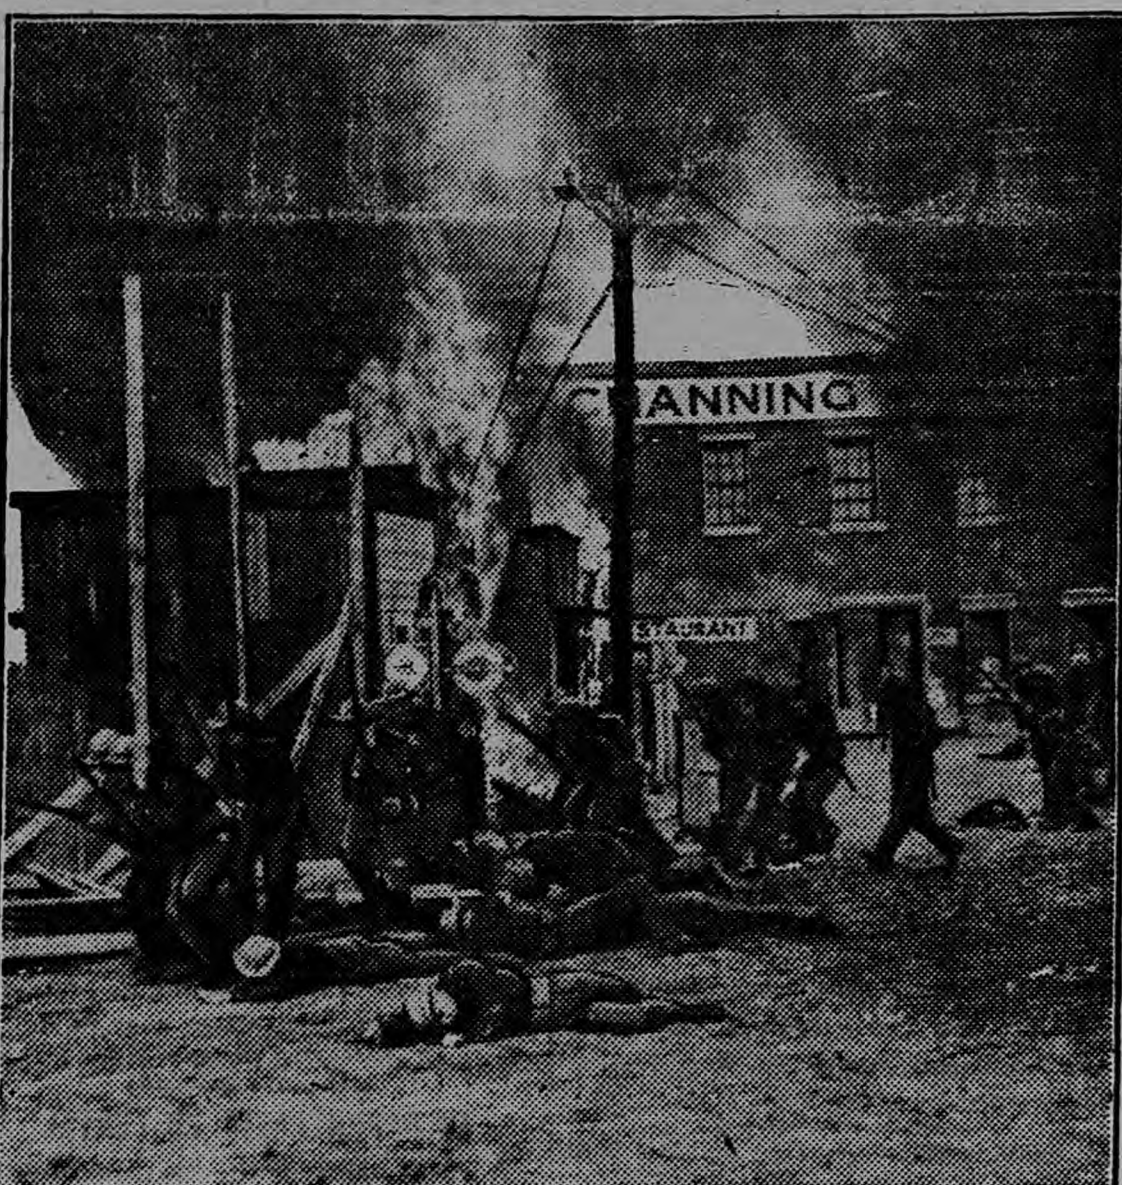

It was dusk when, weary but indomitable, he reappeared at the Japanese farm beneath the trestle, delivered his report to Baron Huroki, and drove on into the darkness.

By that time nearly a hundred motorcars were converging from every point of the compass upon the little valley occupied by the Channings' powder mills.

Each of these cars was occupied by at least five impassive Japanese, all reservists of the Japanese army, many of them veterans of the war with Russia, whose topcoats covered a complete infantry equipment for light marching.

Huroki's Followers Lose No Time in Attacking.

Huroki's Men Set Fire to Powder Town.

In the bottom of each car lay at least five modern magazine rifles.

Timing their progress to reach a certain point at a certain moment, they moved sedately through the twilight and the darkness, attracting no attention.

Between seven and eight these cars came together in a lonely stretch of countryside adjoining the valley of Powder Town. The driver of each reported to Kato personally, then parked his car in the fields by the roadside.

Checking off each arrival on a compact tally sheet, Kato at length extinguished the pocket flash-lamp by which he had worked, and—having consulted his watch—gave the word to march.

At precisely twenty minutes to eight o'clock the last file of armed Japanese trotted past him and disappeared in the gloom.

He delayed before following only long enough to plant a small rocket in the earth and touch a match to its fuse.

Spurring up into the night on a course which kept it invisible to the inhabitants of Powder Town, the rocket broke at an elevation which permitted it to be seen from the valley of the trestle.

At sight of it, Baron Huroki, standing on the porch of the Japanese farmhouse, uttered an inarticulate sound of satisfaction, pocketed his binocular, and, going into the house, took up the telephone and gave the number of the Ritz-Carlton in New York.

At eighteen minutes to eight Patria Channing paused in the act of completing her toilette for dinner to answer the telephone.

"Yes!" she called. "This is Miss Channing. Who are you?"

Out of the mystery of the night a voice responded in accents oddly familiar yet oddly unrecognizable:

"Your men have mutinied in Powder Town. They are rioting and shooting up the town. Captain Parr and others are besieged in the office building of Mill Number Five, in momentary danger of being blown up."

The voice ceased abruptly. There was the click of a receiver hung up. The girl's distracted efforts to get the connection renewed failed utterly. In panic she threw the instrument from her and began to tear off her frock.

"Fetch me a traveling suit," she ordered her maid. "Then call up the railroad and tell them to have my train ready for immediate service. I'm going out to Powder Town as quickly as I can."

Twenty-three minutes later she boarded her special at Jersey City.

As the train pulled out of the yard a furtive little Japanese dodged away between the tracks, left the yard, and seeking the first saloon addressed himself to the telephone.

Having received definite word that Patria was on the way, Baron Huroki hung up, left the Japanese farmhouse, and superintended the setting off of a great rocket.

This last, rising to a great height at high speed, was plainly visible in Powder Town when it exploded.

Kato saw it—he had been waiting for precisely that signal—and scrambled to his feet. Applying a whistle to his lips, he blew a single blast. Immediately the field in which he had been lying at length became peopled with the shadowy shapes of his countrymen.

A second blast set them in motion. In utter silence but for the rattle of accoutrements and the thudding of their feet, they bore down at double-quick on the unsuspecting little town which they had surrounded in the darkness.

In three minutes more the vanguard of the raiders debouched in the main street of Powder Town and charged up it, shooting and bayonetting all in their path.

Taken completely off their guard—who had, for that matter, no reason to anticipate anything of the sort, the terrorized inhabitants fled before this general assault like leaves before a great wind.

In five minutes the Japanese were in complete and undisputed possession of the town and were firing its houses.

The glare of those flames against the sky was synchronous with the calling of a bugle in the main yard of the Channing factories. The first refugees had just arrived and begun to gasp out their tales of horror. Parr, summoned from what had been intended as his final council with the officers commanding Patria's private army, prior to his departure for the Southwest, had needed to hear no more than half a dozen words before he gave the order to sound a general call to arms.

Thanks to their long and faithful drilling, the men of the night shift, dropping whatever work they had in hand at the moment, assembled under arms in the yard in record time. The flames of the second house to be fired in the town were just beginning to leap above the rising ground that separated the factories from the settlement when Patria's men doubled out of the main gateway, Donald at their head.

Halfway to the town they got their first taste of warfare, encountering there in the darkness a very considerable body of Japanese, outnumbering them two to one. They responded nobly, deploying in open skirmish order at the words of command and throwing themselves flat upon the ground before attempting to return the fire of the raiders. Though here and there a man fell, dead or wounded, not one looked back. Their casualties, if anything, seemed the one thing needed to stiffen their determination to drive back the enemy. And the accuracy of their fire proved so galling that the first line of Japanese was quick to give ground and retreat upon the burning town.

There, in the scorching, flame-illuminated streets, the combat became a hand-to-hand affair, the raiders, although they suffered heavily, giving, to begin with, almost as much punishment as they received, but inch by inch yielding.

The main street was littered with dead and wounded when at length they broke and fled, hotly pursued by Donald and his men.

Beyond the town the pursuit became more or less a running skirmish, the raiders endeavoring desperately to stem the pursuit long enough to enable them to regain their motorcars.

Both sides had suffered heavily. In the end it was with but a handful of his original command that Donald pressed the pursuit across the ridge-pole of the hills and down into the open fields where the motorcars of the raiders had been parked.

There a final stand was made, a desperate resistance opposed to Parr's men till the last Japanese had found a place in the car which he hoped would bear him to safety. Then, as the final car swept out of the field and down the road, spitting fire from half a dozen rifles, the pursuers swarmed upon the field and took possession of the abandoned cars.

Commandeering the first that came to hand, Parr jumped in with four of his men and resumed the pursuit. Other cars, laden to the running boards with employees of Channings, followed. A running battle of racing cars swept out through the sleeping countryside and, in due course, down into the valley of the trestle.

As his car took the down grade at the top of its speed, the nearest car of the fugitives, leading it by a bare two hundred yards, Donald saw the headlight of a locomotive sweep through the cut at the far end of the trestle, like a sword of light slashing the night.

Then, travelling at a fast clip, the train ran out on the trestle—a light train, he remarked, consisting of a single coach in addition to the locomotive and tender; in short, a special, such as Patria was accustomed to use.

By this time his motorcar had descended to the bottom of the valley, and crossed the bridge that spanned the river. Ten seconds later a sudden admonition drew his attention to the train; he looked up just in time to see the locomotive shoot out at a sharp angle from the trestle, twist and fall, dragging its tender and coach with it.

The crash of the wreck filled the valley like a thunderclap, followed by a hissing of escaping steam and the groans and screams of the injured train crew.

Instinctively Donald shut off the gasoline and jammed in the emergency brake, bringing his car to a halt within, thrice its own length. As it stopped he jumped out and began to run across fields toward the wreck, his companions at his heels.

TUESDAY MORNING, AUG. 14, 1917

So far the Conscientious Objectors have developed no scruples about letting their neighbors go to war.

President Wilson having decided that the baseball season shall go on, our national existence is preserved.

The Kaiser doesn't much care how long they perfect war legislation at Washington as long as they don't pass it.

The comfortable women in their low necked gowns wonder how the men can be so improper as to remove their stiff starched collars.

It is to be feared that if they put the real American motto on our coins, it would not be "In God we Trust," but "I should worry."

The man who would surely enlist for the French trenches if he were only younger, should try getting out in the trenches in the back yard and rooting out the weeds that are spoiling his garden.

JUDGE H. L. D. STANFORD

The death of Judge H. L. D. Stanford has deprived this community and State of one of its best and most distinguished citizens. His rise to success in his profession was remarkable. His ambition to become a lawyer took its start when his life was upon a most modest plain. It never failed him, and after a season spent in business pursuits in Florida, he began the difficult study which led to his distinction. His practice began in Salisbury, where, associated with Mr. Robert P. Graham, he became quickly the peer of his legal associates. Subsequently he became a member of the firm of Miles & Stanford, where his diligence and attention to work soon emphasized his efficiency. His rise to the bench is also well known. Here too his energy, adaptability and impartiality rose to eminence. It is needless to say that it will be difficult to find one better fitted to fill his place at the bar or upon the bench.

As a citizen Judge Stanford was held in the highest esteem by all who knew him. He was upright in his conduct, diligent in business and a friend to those who needed his assistance. A happy home and a lovely family, as well as a deeply sympathetic community, mourn his loss.

CONTRAST IN BUSINESS EXPERIENCE

Two merchants from different towns got to talking about business experiences the other day. The two places in which they severally conduct stores appeared to be of about the same size and prosperity. Both the men handle phonographs, and it appeared that No. 1 was selling about 50 talking machines a year, while the other did not dispose of over a dozen.

"How is it?" asked No. 2. "I have a mighty clean looking store on the best street, we have been there a long time and everybody knows us."

"Well, I don't know what's the matter with you," replied No. 1, "but I know this about our town, and that is it's a place where our people all trade at home. There are lots of good places to trade in all around us, some of them considerably bigger than we are. But our people know perfectly well that if they keep the money at home everyone is going to be more prosperous. It doesn't do any outside concern one particle of good to push their stuff in our town. They have had dollar days and all kinds of sales and plastered the town with hand-bills, but our people simply will not do it. Of course we advertise, we have to make them realize that we really have the goods. But as long as we keep letting them know what we've got, you couldn't get 'em away if you offered to give 'em the goods. Our town gained 40 per cent during the past 10-year census period. New houses going up all the time, everybody working at good jobs."

"Well, that's no doubt what makes the difference," said No. 2. "Our people would go out of town to buy even if they knew they were getting the same thing for the same money. They enjoy knocking the town. Makes 'em feel kind of superior to make out that nothing at home is any good. Of course we don't gain in population. If I could get two-thirds what I paid for my business, I'd sell out mighty quick."

What kind of a town is Princess Anne going to be for the next ten years? The one that stands by its home enterprises and grows, or the one that knocks and stands still?

The food speculators will generously permit the food dictator to dictate all the letters of advice to the women housekeepers that he may desire.

The Oklahoma draft revolters, being in jail where they will neither have to work or fight, seem to have accomplished the object of their offense.

The probability that the Liberty bonds will soon pay four per cent satisfies many people that they performed a truly patriotic act in buying them.

The same people who growl about the heat would be the ones who would growl the most next winter if there was a shortage of corn owing to lack of heat.

Under the laws as they now stand, the native Americans go to war to protect the rights of aliens who can not be drafted either here or in their home countries.

It is amazing how easy it will be for people to carry their own bundles home when they get a rebate for it, and how impossible to do so when cost of delivery is all charged into the regular prices.

AN OPPORTUNITY TO TRAVEL

A great many of the previous limitations on promotions in the United States Navy have been removed since the declaration of war, and young men going into the service now get the advantages thus offered.

Recruits are now held in the training stations only long enough to gain sufficient knowledge of their duties to enable them to be placed on board the ships in the fleet. Many of those who enlisted since war was declared are now second and third class petty officers on large battle-ships.

The Navy is still in need of musicians and the recruiting authorities at Baltimore are anxious to lay the advantages of this rating before the young musicians of the State. The pay is good, the surroundings are attractive, and the opportunities for travel are unexcelled. Applicants need only have a preliminary knowledge of band music, being sent to the Musicians' School to complete their course of studies. There is also a need for machinists in the Navy, and young men going into the service in this rating have unlimited opportunities ahead of them.

HOTEL LIFE

In spite of the great number of people who spend vacations in cottages and bungalows of their own, summer hotels are being built all the time, and many of them of great magnificence. You may be far away from the haunts of men and all provisions and supplies may have to be carted over the road, but the machinery of lavish living follows even to the wilderness. Even in the wild scenes of nature you find your oriental rugs and plate glass windows and mahogany furniture. The thing seems exotic and artificial, but it seems to take this kind of an atmosphere of display to make some people feel at home.

There are plenty of simpler resorts for the quiet folks also. Every hotel has its own type of people. Some are inexpensive and rough and plain, appealing to people who like plenty of good food but would as soon be thrown on the table. Others no more costly have somehow attracted to themselves circles of people who are rich in intelligence and culture if not in money. Associations are formed in places like these that last a life time and are elevating and enriching.

It's a gambling game to engage summer board from the handsome prospectuses that the managers send to your address. The hotel may be equipped with all the facilities for amusement, and you feast your eyes on the prospectus of tennis courts, lovely dance music, and charming society. When you get there the old habits look over their shoulders at you superciliously, and perhaps will venture a few words of stilted conversation about the time you go home.

It is hard to imagine a more uneasy or unpleasant situation than being a guest among people with whom one is not congenial. Even the finest view of sea and sky will pall, and then you begin to look around for human companionship. If your opposite at the dining table wants to know about your family pedigree or your bank book before he enters into conversation, you are more lonely than if you were in the wilderness. The people who get the most out of hotel life are those that go to places recommended by personal friends, or who try out an inn for a few days before settling down for their whole vacation.

Summer Complaint

During the hot weather of the summer months some member of almost every family is likely to be troubled with an unnatural looseness of the bowels, and it is of the greatest importance that this be treated promptly, which can only be done when the medicine is kept at hand. Mrs. F. F. Scott, Scottsville, N. Y., states, "I first used Chamberlain's Colic and Diarrhoea Remedy as much as five years ago. At that time I had a severe attack of summer complaint and was suffering intense pain. One dose relieved me. Other members of my family have since used it with like results."

WAR MATERIAL FIRST

At a conference of lumber dealers with the shipping board, it appeared that the lumber men are slow in making deliveries of their product. One reason given was that private contracts pay better than government work. So while the country is pleading for ships, some of the lumber men are getting rich on private work. Probably some of these same men blame the government for lack of military preparation.

If this spirit should prevail generally our fighting would be one grand botch. Supplies could not go forward until producers got good and ready. The war would be delayed while debts pile up and our losses of men multiply.

All this would mean an added burden for all industries. The longer the war is delayed, the greater the load of taxes that all our enterprises will have to carry. Our country can never get started on a normal basis again until this war is brought to a successful issue. It can not be brought to that issue until we secure a steady and ample supply of all kinds of munitions.

So while the country is howling for ships and more ships, it witnesses the unpatriotic spectacle of lumber men comfortably making money while the government waits. Fortunately, as the result of the Washington conference, the lumber men have promised to do better and forward their shipments. It was time they did.

Every man who is helping in even the most humble capacity in producing war material ought to look at himself as one of Uncle Sam's soldiers. This is a war of material even more than of men. Every producer should be thrilled by the call of his country in this golden cause. He should render the most prompt service possible. Germany has become the foremost military power by a general spirit of self-surrender. America can hold its place in this Armageddon only by universal manifestation of a like spirit.

$100 Reward $100

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages and that is catarrh. Catarrh being greatly influenced by constitutional conditions requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Medicine is taken internally and acts through the blood on the mucous surfaces of the system thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in the curative powers of Hall's Catarrh Medicine that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials. Address, F. #### NOT ENOUGH CHILDREN ever receive the proper balance of food to sufficiently nourish both body and brain during the growing period when nature's demands are greater than in mature life. This is shown in so many pale faces, lean bodies, frequent colds, and lack of ambition.

For all such children we say with unmistakable earnestness: They need Scott's Emulsion, and need it now. It possesses in concentrated form the very food elements to enrich their blood. It changes weakness to strength; it makes them sturdy and strong. No alcohol.

Political Announcement

SNOW HILL, MD., Aug. 1, 1917
To The Voters of Somerset County: I am a candidate to succeed the late Judge Robley D. Jones as Associate Judge of the First Judicial Circuit of Maryland, and will enter the primaries to be held September 11.

I am keenly conscious of the grave responsibilities of the position and if I am chosen by the people I will give to the duties of the office the best that is within me. My absolute lack of experience in soliciting votes for myself will perhaps place me at a disadvantage in the campaign, but I am content to submit my candidacy to your careful and conscientious consideration, and if it meets with your favor I trust you will so express yourselves at the primaries.

Yours truly,
JOHN W. STATON

The Pocomoke Fair began Tuesday of last week with a large number of pleasing side attractions. The racing during the week was fast and exciting and the lovers of good racing were given a real treat. A large number of people attended from Princess Anne. Besides being entertaining in itself, the Fair provided a meeting place for old friends and acquaintances, who enjoyed talking over times, swapping jokes, commenting on the weather, looking the exhibits over, watching the horses go through their paces, and the many other features of entertainment provided by the management.

Death Of Aged Colored Woman

Sophie Wilson, one of the most respected colored women of this town, died at her home last Friday, aged 95 years. In her day she was a famous cook and was employed by notable families of this town. She was born at "Elmwood" on the Manokin river. Her husband, who died many years ago, had been the sexton of St. Andrew's P. E. Church for a long time. She was laid to rest last Sunday afternoon, Rev. W. G. Woolford officiating at the service.

Dry Surplus Fruits and Vegetables

There is no difficulty about home drying fruits and vegetables. Sun drying of fruit was a common enough home industry a few years ago. A few home-made shallow trays and a little mosquito netting are all you need for sun drying. A few trays bent out of coarse wire netting and fitted like removable shelves into a lath frame are all you need to dry over your range or gas stove or before an electric fan.

Yes, There have been recent improvements in grandmother's successful method. It has been found that currents of air are better than heat in removing surplus water. Water is all that is taken out; flavor, texture, and food value are not impaired. Soaking and cooking restore the succulent quality so important in the winter diet.

FIRST DRAFT CALL ON SEPT. 1ST

One-Third Of Each State's Quota To Be Sent To Camps

More than 200,000 men of the selective draft forces will be called to the colors September 1st to go immediately to their divisional training, cantonments. This will bring the strength of the United States Army on that date up to practically 2,000,000 men.

Brigadier-General Crowder, Provost Marshal-General, dispatched the following telegram to the Governors of the States last Wednesday, cautioning them to make certain that the first one-third of their quota of the first increment of registered men is ready in time:

"New regulations governing mobilization and the certification of men from district boards to adjutants-general will be mailed to you on August 9th. In the meantime local boards should certify to district boards daily those who have been called and who have not been exempted or discharged either because they failed to file any claim or because their claim had been decided adversely."

"Strict compliance with this rule is necessary since on September 1 the War Department will call for not to exceed one-third of the quota from each state to be entrained for mobilization camps between September 1 and September 5. Unless we wish to be put in a position of not furnishing men as fast as the War Department is ready to receive them, each state should have accumulated by September 1 a minimum of one-third of its quota not exempted or discharged. This can only be attained if local boards certify these lists up with great expedition."

A Message From The Red Cross

Mrs. Belmont Tiffany has written for the August issue of Harper's Bazar a very interesting article on "A Message from the American Red Cross to the Women of America." She especially mentions the part that women of society are taking in this great work, and also tells of the organization's rapid growth since the war began in 1914.

Mrs. Tiffany explains very clearly the different functions of the Red Cross; for instance, this is what she says about the Department of Civilian Relief:

"Perhaps it is not generally known by persons not familiar with the work that the Red Cross has a Department of Civilian Relief, with which the Department of Military Relief co-ordinates and co-operates. In other words, the Red Cross is responsible for relief of all kinds for our own army and navy and is chartered to take care not only of the sick and wounded soldiers, but of all who need aid of any sort. It is also required to take care of and look after the dependent families and children of the members of the United States army and navy. All over the country we are doing civilian relief work."

VILLAGES OF GALICIA.

Where Family, Cattle and Fowls All Live in Two Rooms.

The villages of Galicia are especially interesting on Sundays and holidays, when the national costumes are donned.

The cottages are generally made of stone or board plastered over and are then covered with a coat of whitewash. The straw roof is frequently crowned with green growing moss, which adds to its picturesque appearance if not to its healthfulness. Water is drawn from the wells by a long pole balanced near the center. These wells have a decided old world appearance.

The interior of the cottages is usually divided into two rooms. In one room the entire family lives, eats and sleeps; in the other, in more or less harmonious contentment, dwell the cows, pigs, chickens and geese. No household would be complete without a number of geese.

Around the cottages a number of children are sure to be seen playing. A dozen or twenty or thirty of such cottages, each separated only by a small yard, make up a village. If there is a marriageable daughter in the house the lintel of the door and the window surroundings are ornamented with little irregular bands, which is a notice to the marriageable young men.—Christian Herald.

VALUE IN DEAD LETTERS.

The Loss and Trouble That Are Caused by Sheer Carelessness.

More than two and a quarter million dollars' worth of checks, drafts, money orders and other valuable papers were found in undelivered letters by the dead letter office during the last year, and practically all were restored to their owners.

The first assistant postmaster general announces that the dead letter division handled 10,839,890 letters and parcels during the year, a slight increase over the previous year. One-third of these letters and parcels, or 3,677,194, was delivered, 101,485 contained things of value without clew to their senders and were held for claimants, 7,019,436 had to be destroyed and 41,775 still are being investigated.

In addition to the valuable papers, with a face value of $2,903,119, found in undelivered letters, many contained stamps, and some currency was found loose in the mails.

The dead mail received by the dead letter division during the year contained 677,700 misdirected letters, 115,768 unaddressed letters, 228,700 letters held for postage, 440,200 letters written on hotel letter paper by persons unknown to the hotels and 104,700 letters bearing fictitious signatures.

Army Aviation Service.

Significant, in view of the popular conception of flying as extreme daredevilry, is the record of the United States army aviation service from Jan. 1 to Dec. 26, 1916. During that period 7,087 flights were made by military pilots. In all 3,357 hours were spent in the air, which means that more than nine hours each day of the year some soldier aviator was aloft. The distance traveled amounted to approximately 251,775 miles, or slightly more than ten times the circumference of the earth. There was no fatality. Evidently these figures cannot be fairly compared with current railroad and motorcar statistics. Contrasts are not needed, however, to accent their import. Safe flying is not yet accident proof and possibly never will be, but neither is it extremely foolhardy.—Searle Hendee in Popular Mechanics Magazine.

Richard the Hunchback.

Of all the kings of England perhaps Richard, the hunchback, has the most sinister reputation, his only rival being the crafty John. He died on Bosworth, field fighting for the crown he had gained by murder. It is a matter of history as well as of Shakespeare—not always the same thing—that the tide of success turned against Richard when Lord Stanley took himself and his men from his side to that of Richmond. When hard pressed Richard cried: "I am king of England! I will not budge an inch." Then, being overwhelmed, he died, crying: "Treason! Treason!"

Where Knowledge Stopped.

Bill—Do you know you borrowed $2 from me over six months ago?
Gill—Yes, I know that.
"And do you know you have never paid me?"
"Why, yes, I know that."
"Do you know when you are going to pay me?"
"Well, say, you don't expect me to know everything, do you?"—Pittsburgh Chronicle-Telegraph.

Eskimos and Whales.

The Eskimos use every part of the whale. The oil is light, fuel and food for them; the flesh, food; the whalebone and true bone are used in making sledges, huts, boats, spears and harpoons; the sinews form thread and twine; the thin membranes, window glass.

Never Unwelcome News.

Katharine—When a person already knows a thing he certainly hates having some one tell him about it. Tom—How about the girl who knows she is pretty?—Stray Stories.

Eat Their Way.

Earthworms swallow the earth which is in their way as they are making their galleries through the soil.

Temperance and labor are the two real physicians of man.

LUCK IN AN AIRPLANE.

Curious Bit of Good Fortune That Saved an Army Aviator.

Many an army aviator owes his life to miraculous good fortune, like the British aviator whose escape is described in "Tales of the Flying Services" by C. G. Grey.

An officer went out on a bombing expedition and met a German machine in order to save weight he had left his small arms behind him, but he thought it was a pity to pass by a good target and so he decided to drop a bomb on him. But dropping a bomb on a swiftly moving mark is not the same as firing at a fixed point. So he missed the German. Unfortunately for him, he also exposed himself to the fire of the enemy and received a rifle bullet in the thigh.

To be strictly accurate, the bullet struck his trousers pocket, hit a five franc piece, broke itself and the coin and distributed the assorted pieces of metal about the lower part of his body.

Feeling that he was badly hit, the pilot shut off his engine and dived for the ground from a height of about 6,000 feet. When he was a thousand feet from the ground he espied some aeroplanes in a field, and not knowing whether he was over German or French territory, he made up his mind to land among the aeroplanes, certain that if they did happen to be German machines he would be well treated by the flying corps.

Two hundred feet above ground he completely lost consciousness, but in some curious subconscious way he made a perfect landing right alongside of a British motor ambulance. So well did he land that for some minutes no one troubled about him. When they did go to look they found a badly wounded officer in a state of collapse.

He was promptly put into the ambulance and sent off to the hospital. There it was found that the bullet had cut a large artery and that the pilot would have died in a few minutes if the bullet had not also cut a muscle, which had sprung back and wrapped itself like a piece of elastic round the artery and formed, as it were, an automatic tourniquet.

MAKE YOUR DOLLARS WORK.

Hoarded Money Helps No One and Puts a Brake on Business.

When a manufacturer or other producer of real wealth does a profitable business and turns his profits back into the business he gives employment to men and creates more real wealth as he progresses year by year. He does more real good for his fellow men than he would if he gave all his profits in charity, because it is better to make people self supporting and independent than it is to give them something for nothing, no matter how worthy the motives may be.

When a rich man invests his money in productive enterprises he performs an important social service for the benefit of his country. Accumulated capital is always a power for good and accomplishes much good when intelligently handled. When a man deposits his savings in a bank his money is lent to others who can make good use of it in business or it is invested in productive enterprises or loaned to those who do produce real wealth.

If a depositor takes $1,000 in gold or its equivalent to a bank and deposits it that bank can extend credit to others in five times the amount deposited in actual cash. Many men can save money who do not know how to invest it in active business enterprises. As far as the common good is concerned, it does not matter much whether the man invests the money himself or gives it to a bank to handle for him. In the hands of the bank it will do more work and service for a greater number of people.

The worst a man can do with his money is to hoard gold or currency redeemable in gold. As far as the community is concerned, it would be better if he threw it away in riotous living and let somebody else have a chance to put it to good use. Every idle dollar in this country should be put to work at once.—New York Commercial.

Your Will Is Insurance.

In the Woman's Home Companion Clyde Scott Stillwell says: "A will is no more or less than the cheapest and best form of life insurance. A man should make it out on his wedding day, even though 'all his worldly goods' amount to no more than the clothes on his back. A rich man can afford to die without a will; there will be enough left of his estate after the lawyers and courts get done to provide for his family. But the poor man, the man whose estate is $10,000 or less, cannot afford to take that chance. A will to him is an indispensable necessity."

Making Wire.

Wire used to be made by hammering metal into sheets and cutting these into strips, which were hammered or rolled into wire. Now the material is rolled into rods by grooved rollers and drawn cold through holes in a plate of harder metal, usually hardened steel, by means of powerful machinery.

Certainly Not.

Mr. Liberty—I'm going to get you a piano, dear.
Mrs. Liberty—Oh, yes, you say you are, but your gifts always have strings to them.

"Well, you wouldn't want a piano without strings, would you?"—St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

In After Years.

He—Is Miss Willing waiting for her ideal hero? She—Oh, my, no! She's now skirmishing around for a man that has more dollars than sense.—Louisville Courier-Journal.

PRACTICAL HEALTH HINT.

The Wrong Way to Eat.

Hurried eating is a common contributing cause of constipation as well as other ills. When the food is not properly masticated more energy is required in the upper part of the alimentary canal to reduce it to the condition necessary for complete digestion, and in cases in which the vitality is depleted this may so seriously cripple the activity of the lower part of the alimentary canal as to contribute largely to the atonic condition, which is a large factor in such cases. When the food is not fully masticated it is held back in the stomach, and this also has a tendency to establish a sluggish action, which contributes to the condition favorable to constipation. While thorough mastication will not cure those cases which may be largely due to bad mental condition, excessive mixing of food, lack of exercise, overwork, too concentrated food or some physical defect of the intestine, it is an important factor, and more careful mastication will contribute to improvement in all cases.

Half Truths.

Half truths are often more calamitous than whole falsehoods. Not a word may be uttered, but a half suppressed innuendo, a dropped lip, an arched eyebrow, a shrugged shoulder, a significant look, an incredulous expression of countenance—nay, even an emphatic silence—may do the injurious work.

Highly Estimable.

"Half a loaf is better than no bread," said the philosopher. "There's no doubt about the respect to which half a loaf is entitled," replied the plain person. "It costs as much as a whole loaf used to."—Washington Star.

A DANGEROUS TROUBLE.

Princess Anne People Tell How To Act In Time

Kidney diseases are very dangerous, they come on silently, gain ground rapidly, and cause thousands of deaths that could have been prevented by proper treatment in the beginning. Nature gives early warning of kidney disease—backache, twinges of pain when stooping or lifting, headaches and urinary disorders. If these symptoms are unheeded, there is grave danger of dropsy or fatal Bright's disease. Doan's Kidney Pills have earned a reputation for their effectiveness in kidney troubles, and are known and recommended the world over. Princess Anne testifies to the merit of Doan's Kidney Pills to our readers.

S. M. Worrall, 80 Broad street, Princess Anne, says: "I was troubled with a severe backache and general run-down condition of my kidneys. I had terrible pains in the small of my back. Whenever I stooped and then tried to straighten, it seemed as if I were run clear through the middle of my back with a sharp sword. At night, I lost quite a bit of sleep on account of having to get up several times to pass the kidney secretions. The secretions were scalding in passage and I was in a very miserable state. Two boxes of Doan's Kidney Pills cured me and I am still enjoying good health."

Price 60c, at all dealers. Don't simply ask for a kidney remedy—get Doan's Kidney Pills—the same that Mrs. Hastings has twice publicly recommended. Foster-Milburn Co., Props., Buffalo, N. Y.

Girls Have Pretty Face And Beautiful Complexion

An Atlanta man makes new discovery that makes an old face look years younger. If your skin is dark, brown, or covered with freckles or blemishes, just use a little Cocotone Skin Whitener; it's made with coconut oil and is perfectly harmless. A few days' use will improve your looks 100%. The worn out skin comes off evenly, leaving no evidence of the treatment, the new healthy, under-skin appearing as a lovely new complexion. Just ask your druggist for an ounce of Cocotone Skin Whitener, and if he will not supply you send twenty-five cents to the Cocotone Co., Atlanta, Ga., and they will send you a box by return mail. If your hair is hard to comb, is kinky, nappy and will never stay straight, just use Cocotone Hair Dressing and it will become straight, long, soft, glossy and beautiful in a few days. Mail orders filled, 25c for large box.

BANKS AND BANKNOTES.

England's First Paper Money Was Issued by the Goldsmiths.

With the almost entire use of paper currency at the present time the history of its origin may not be uninteresting. In the days of the Stuarts merchants used to lodge their reserves of gold in the Tower, and when one day Charles I., in a thoughtless moment, annexed a large sum lodged in that way and forgot to put it back the merchants decided that henceforth they would put no more trust in princes, but would look to the goldsmiths.

The goldsmiths thereby became the first bankers, and the first goldsmith who hit upon the novel idea of giving a note, not only to the person who deposited gold, but also to the person who came to borrow, founded modern banking with an original deposit of £5,000.

The banker gave promise to pay up to, say, £25,000, and as long as there was no immediate demand on the part of the persons holding these promises to pay to have that promise converted into cash business proceeded merrily, but necessarily there was a limit beyond which it was not safe to do this kind of business, and it was always possible that something unforeseen might happen that would bring an unusual number of notes for presentation.

As a matter of fact, this did happen frequently in the early days, and finally the government stepped in and granted the almost entire monopoly of issuing notes to the Bank of England.—
London Standard.

It Came Out.

"Well, I didn't think you had it in you," remarked the jocosely chap as the sword swallower drew a five foot cavalry sabre from out of his gullet.—
Jack o' Lantern.

Sad Truth.

"Are you economizing over at your house?"
"No. We're simply eating less for the same money."—Washington Star.

Dr. Frederic Jacobson Says
75% of women need Phosphates to give them Strong, Healthy, rounded figure and to avoid Nervous breakdown.
Thousands of women grow strong in Nature's way.

"Consider The Lilies of The Field, How They Grow"

The life of the lily is but a few weeks or months.
The life of man is "three score years and ten."
But to live one's life in its fullness, women like the lily, must be nourished by those same vital elements which nature provides for nourishing every living thing; and these include the valuable phosphates so often lacking in the usual food we eat today. Argo-Phosphate is rich in these wonderful elements. It contains them in concentrated tablet form which is easy to take and quickly assimilated and absorbed into the system, and from youth to old age, builds and rebuilds body and brain in beautiful harmony with Nature's perfect plan.
"That's why," Argo-Phosphate makes good solid flesh and muscles.

SPECIAL NOTICE: Argo-Phosphate contains the Natural phosphate which thousands of physicians are prescribing daily to build up thin, pale colorless women to give them rosy cheeks, red lips, and a beautiful complexion. Many cases have been reported where women have increased their weight from 15 to 25 pounds with a few weeks treatment, and any woman who desires a well-rounded and developed form, should secure from her druggist, this new drug which is inexpensive and is dispensed by any reliable druggist with or without a doctor's prescription. If your druggist will not supply you, send $1.00 to the Argo Laboratories, 10

General Farm Topics

CALF SCOURS REMEDY.

Treatment With Formalin Said to Produce Good Results.

It is generally understood that preventive measures are the best remedies for calf scours, which causes considerable trouble to some dairymen in raising calves on skim milk, says the Kansas Farmer. The most important preventive measures are to guard against overfeeding, feed at regular periods, be sure the milk is at the proper temperature at feeding time, keep the pails and other utensils in which the skim milk for the calves is kept thoroughly clean and sterile and also keep the pens and stalls clean.

There are two entirely distinct troubles, both of which have the symptoms of scours. One is from navel infection

BROWN SWISS COW.

at time of birth, and the other is from indigestion. If a calf becomes sick within a few days after birth and dies within a day or two the case is probably navel infection. This trouble is often called white scours because the passages from the animals are generally white.

Indigestion is the cause of common scours. This generally occurs when the calf is from two weeks to a month old. Prevention is the best remedy.
The common causes of indigestion are overfeeding, feeding milk cold or sour, feeding sweet milk one meal and sour the next and dirty pails, troughs or stalls.

Each calf should be watched carefully. At the first sign of foul smelling dung its source should be determined, as this is one of the first indications of indigestion. The amount of milk fed should be cut to one-half the usual amount, and a dose of one ounce of castor oil in milk, followed by the for-malin treatment, is advisable. The formalin treatment consists in giving one tablespoonful of formalin solution, made by adding one-half ounce of for-malin to fifteen and one-half ounces of water, in each pint of milk fed. The amount of milk fed may be gradually brought back to normal after a day or two.

Many feeders have obtained good results from the use of blood meal as a means of correcting a condition of scours. Where the case is mild a teaspoonful of the dried blood is added to the milk at each meal.

PURE BREDS PAY.

No Profit in Raising Dairy Heifers of Scrub Breeding.

Raising dairy heifers as commonly practiced by farmers is a money losing proposition, as shown by cost account records kept by the Ohio agricultural experiment station in thirty herds. The keeping of inferior stock is discouraged.

An average loss of $6.90 a head was figured on 361 calves raised to a year old. A further loss of $9.04 a head was found on raising 327 heifers from one to two years old. Only two dairymen out of thirty made a profit on raising heifers to two years old.

Methods of feeding these heifers are above those commonly practiced on most dairy farms. The loss must be even greater under systems having no close management. Such a loss could not be made up by scrub animals, but high grades and pure breeds bring prices above the cost of raising them.
The disposal of inferior calves is one remedy to prevent such losses.

Corn Silage a Cheap Feed.

Because of the economy and convenience in feeding silage more silos are being built every season. This year will likely see a larger number erected to "can" the corn crop. Seventeen per cent more milk and 28 per cent more butter fat was produced by dairy cows fed largely silage than by others fed mainly a grain ration in a feeding test conducted at the Ohio agricultural experiment station. The silage ration produced butter fat at 13 cents a pound and the grain ration at 22 cents. Two pounds of dry matter can be produced in the form of silage at less cost than one pound in sugar beets, other tests have shown.

Creep For Pigs.

A creep which the pigs can crawl under and get away from their mothers to eat will pay for the few hours spent in building it. They will waste less feed when they have only those of their own size to fight; they will get more to eat when the older hogs don't have a chance to drive them away from the trough, and they will learn to eat grain and skim milk earlier if given a private dining room.

When to Harvest Beans.

Harvest beans when at least three-quarters of the leaves are ripe and when there is the least danger of rainy weather. Use a bean harvester or pull by hand. Allow the vines to dry at least two or three days in the field, and turn them occasionally to prevent spilling.

CHICKEN CHATTER.

About the quickest way of creating a generation of weaklings is to breed from parents that at some time in their lives suffered from a contagious disease.
A bit of powdered charcoal beats most of the so called bowel remedies that are on the market.
Lice, heat and too much food make the June chick's life a short and painful experience.
When you "don't understand what is the matter" with the chicks just try changing their runs. Many times the very earth where they are is foul and full of disease germs.
Don't forget to give the poultry an extra allowance of water on this warm weather. They may be able to pick up a good share of their living now, but they cannot pump water.

MAKING POULTRY PAY.

Freedom From Insects and Proper Feed
Will Bring Success.

When anything is found wrong with poultry or other domesticated birds the maxim should be "look for lice," writes a poultry expert in the Philadelphia Press. Every year I believe more thoroughly in this maxim. There are two reasons why this must be true.
They lie in the fact that lice breed in infinite numbers at the very season when other work is most insistently claiming every thought and every ounce of strength which the workers have to spare and in the additional encouraging fact that chicks from thrifty progeny on range can fight off all other ills if they are kept free from lice.

To give the chicks a fair chance for their fight dust the hens at the end of each week or sitting, as it is said to take a brood of lice about a week to hatch. Then put a very little plain oil on the head of each chick, use a little kerosene on the hens and trust to the favorable conditions prepared to give the results desired. Tobacco dust, simple and cheap, is used for dusting the hens. I do not like to use any dust on small chicks, as it seems to me there is danger of overdoing the matter.

The question of feed is disposed of in the same way. We plan to give as much time to feeding soft mash as we

White Leghorn hens, as a general rule, lead other breeds as layers, and this is one of the reasons why 90 per cent of all egg farms are stocked with this variety. They are all active hens, producing equally well in confinement and on range.
The hen shown is a Rose Comb
White Leghorn.

can afford or believe to be desirable.
Hopper feeding fills out all deficiencies and saves the time of the owners, while insuring that no chick shall get less than he needs. With chicks on full range, this is not as necessary, of course, as with chicks raised in confinement. But in all conditions I believe a little box of dry feed free to all the chicks is a first rate thing to provide.

The best ration for breeding fowls is plenty of good corn, a small amount of oats and all the dried meat scrap and wheat bran the fowls want to eat. A box of ground bran, a box of charcoal and a box of crushed oyster shells where the fowls can help themselves and a good supply of green grass will give more vitality to the eggs than any other feed.

The meat scrap and bran can be kept before the fowls where they can help themselves. They will not overeat after they have become accustomed to the food. Some persons have an idea that corn is not good for breeding hens, but my experience is that hens which eat large amounts of corn transmit more vitality to the chicks than those receiving other grains.

Banish the Rooster.

The rooster does not increase the egg production of hens in the same flock, and he may decrease it. Kill him, pen him up or sell him when the breeding season is over and produce infertile eggs. Blood rings are the cause of one-third of the annual egg loss, and the rooster is directly responsible. Blood rings are simply an early stage of chick development.

Proper Way to Carry a Hen.

The proper way to carry a fowl is to place it under the arm, the head pointing to the rear and the feet held firmly by the hand. In this way the bird can be carried for miles without the least discomfort to it or the person carrying it.

COUNTY EXEMPTION BOARD BUSY

Many Of The Registered Men Have Filed Dependency Claims

The Exemption Board for Somerset county—Drs. C. W. Wainwright, Chas. T. Fisher and W. Jerome Sterling—were busy last week examining men who were called for the first draft. In the list of those who appeared before the board for examination it will be noted that a great majority have filed claims for exemption on the plea of having families dependent upon them for support.

Wholesale claims for exemption from the Army draft, reported from many sections, caused Provost Marshal General Crowder to telegraph the governors of the states last Thursday night directing that local boards "reduce discharges for dependency to a far more restricted class and to very necessitous and clearly defined circumstances."

The following is the list of those accepted and rejected during the week:

PEOPLES BANK of SOMERSET COUNTY

WANTED

The following is quoted from a letter just received from the U. S. Civil Service Commission, Washington, D. C.:

"The United States Government needs, and needs badly, great numbers of Stenographers and Typewriters, both men and women.

"Students just starting a course of study may be informed that there is now practically no limit to the number of stenographers and typewriters the Government needs.

"The Commission believes that the study of stenography and typewriting by a great number of persons with a view of entering the Government service will be justified. The usual entrance salary ranges from $900 to $1200 a year."

The business demand for secretaries, stenographers and bookkeepers is also very urgent, and all students beginning a course with us during the next few months can be sure of employment promptly upon graduation at salaries higher than ever paid before.

THE GREAT SALISBURY FAIR

Salisbury, Maryland

August 14, 15, 16 and 17

The Fair season is now on, and the biggest of all the Fairs held in this section—The Great Salisbury Fair—will open its gates to the public with a line of amusements and attractions never before equaled.

Racing

This is a good season for horses, and one of the best entry sheets is promised the lovers of this sport this year at Salisbury. There will be many spirited, hotly contested races, such as will thrill all those fortunate enough to see them.

Motorcycle Racing

Salisbury has gone after and obtained the fastest motorcycle racers in the country. The nominal records on one-half mile tracks have already been made on these grounds, and this year will probably see even these records broken. Those who like a thrill cannot help to be satisfied when watching fast drivers forcing their high-powered machines around the track at a pace which seems impossible to maintain without risk of life.

Midway

Arrangements have been made with a prominent New York road show man to furnish a large number of good, clean, decent shows, the minimum amount of space to be used to be not less than fifteen hundred feet, and maybe much more. This will give one of the largest, best and most attractive Midways ever seen on these grounds. The contract calls for nothing but good, clean, moral shows.

Free Attractions

The Free Attractions offered this year are fully equal to those seen here in the past, and are the best of their kind.

ROSA RENTZ TRIO, a wonderful balancing novelty, consisting of many sensational comedy acts, is performed upon a stand erected on a high pole, and is an act that is sure to please all who see it.

WEBER SISTERS—The well known Weber Sisters will be on the grounds this year, and those who enjoy wonderful ground acrobatic stunts have a treat in store for them. A trio of wonderful beauty and wonderful acting.

IRENE LA TOUR—When it comes to attractions, young and old are alike interested, and even if they were not Irene La Tour and her clever dog, Zaza, would please them. Come and see a human intelligence under animal skin.

Don't forget that any one of these amusements is well worth in itself the full price of admission to the grounds, and don't fail to come and enjoy the Fair, its racing—horse and motorcycle—its free attractions, its great midway, its many exhibits—household, fancy work, agriculture, stock and other lines. Come and meet your friends, they will all be here at

ADMISSION:

Tuesday and Friday - - - 35c
Wednesday and Thursday - - - 50c

THE SALISBURY FAIR has been a great success, and it is the earnest desire of its management to make it even a greater one. With this end in view they have decided to make it a community affair instead of a private enterprise. Under this plan all the net earnings would go to the building up and improving the Fair. Stockholders in lieu of dividends, to receive admission tickets to the grounds. It is impossible to give full details of this plan here. Call at the office on the Fair Grounds and learn all about it. See if you don't want to help to make this Fair one of the best in the whole country. Some one will be in a booth in our Grand Stand to explain the whole idea and to take your subscription for stock.

TRAPSHOOTING TOURNAMENT

Princess Anne Club To Hold Second Annual Shoot September 6th

The second annual registered tournament of the Princess Anne Trapshooting Club will be held on Thursday, September 6th, to which the Interstate Association has contributed $50 in trophies. The shoot will be managed by H. L. Worthington.

Six interstate trophies will be given in three classes by the Lewis Class System, the two high men in each class to receive the trophies. In addition to these, one cent for each target thrown in the regular program of the shoot will form a purse which will be divided into three equal parts, each of which will be divided among the third, fourth and fifth man in each class, 5, 3, 2.

There will be 8 events as follows: First, 15 targets, entrance 30 cents; second, 15 targets, entrance 30 cents; third, 20 targets, entrance 40 cents; fourth, 20 targets, entrance 40 cents; fifth, 20 targets, entrance 40 cents; sixth, 20 targets, entrance 40 cents; seventh, 20 targets, entrance 40 cents; eighth, 20 targets, entrance 40 cents; making a total of $3.00.

The Maryland State Sportsman's Association, of which this club is a member, has donated a sterling silver prize to be given to the amateur shooter, who is a resident of Maryland or the District of Columbia, who makes the highest score on the total program.

The shooting will start at 10 o'clock a. m. The ladies of the Red Cross of Princess Anne will serve lunch on the grounds.

Public School Notes

The Board of Education at its meeting last Tuesday confirmed the following recommendations of teachers:

St. Peter's Creek School, Miss Mary S. Fitzgerald. Rehoboth School, Miss Miriam Dryden, principal; Miss Elizabeth Chamberlin, assistant. Marion Central School, Dan. A. Rourke, principal. Cokesbury Graded School, Mrs. Christie Wilson Horsey, principal. Quinton Graded School, Miss Virginia Dryden, assistant. Rock Creek Central School, Miss Norma Bradshaw, first assistant. Deal's Island Central School, S. S. Utz, principal. Princess Anne High School, A. J. Will, manual training instructor.

Mr. Rourke and Mr. Will both come from Pennsylvania and are highly recommended. Both have Maryland State certificates. Mr. Utz, who resigned at Deal's Island, has consented to return to the principalship of the central school there.

Mr. Harry Simpkins, of Mt. Vernon, was appointed to the vacant scholarship at Charlotte Hall School in St. Mary's county and Miss Flora Price, of Chance, was appointed to a vacant scholarship at the Maryland State Normal School.

In order to assist in relieving the congestion at the Princess Anne High School it was ordered that the room on the second floor of the building opposite the Court House, and formerly used as the postoffice, be rented, and that the pupils of the first and second grades be provided for there.

Demonstration Meetings

Miss Rhea Morgan, Home Demonstration Agent for Somerset county, held meetings last week at the following places: Monday, at Fairmount; Tuesday, at Marion Station; Wednesday, at Princess Anne; Thursday, at Westover, and Friday, at Dames Quarter. Along with canning the making of a fireless cooker has been demonstrated at different places with very good results.

Today (Tuesday) will be canning day at West. The women of that vicinity will bring their surplus vegetables to the school house and the entire day will be spent in canning. Those women who find that they cannot attend the demonstrations will be able to acquaint themselves with the work by writing Miss Morgan regarding any canning or home problem.

Robert F. Duer Out For Judgeship

Mr. Robert F. Duer filed his papers yesterday with the Board of Election Supervisors for the Republican nomination for associate judge of the First Judicial Circuit. He is 45 years old and has practiced law for nearly half of his lifetime and is one of the popular attorneys of Princess Anne.

WOMEN HELPING THE NATION

Women's Council Of Defense Organizing Red Cross Circles

Under the auspices of Women's Division Council of Defense, Mrs. L. A. Oates, chairman, the following Red Cross Circles have been organized in Somerset county:

Oriole Circle—Mrs. Fred. Phoebus, chairman; Mrs. William Wilson, secretary; Mrs. Carrie Willing, treasurer.

West Circle—Mrs. Mac Pusey, chairman; secretary and treasurer to be appointed at next meeting.

Loretto Circle—Mrs. O. D. Carter, chairman; Miss Ruby Richardson, secretary; Mrs. Florence Pollitt, treasurer.

Last week, through the kindness of Col. H. J. Waters, chairman of Men's Division Council of Defense for Somerset county, took Mrs. L. A. Oates and Mrs. John Page, members of the Governor's Commission, and Miss Rhea Morgan, county demonstration agent, to Deal's Island and Dame's Quarter in the interest of Red Cross and food conservation. Interesting meetings were held at both places. At Dame's Quarter six members were added to the National Red Cross Society. The ladies there also engaged to fill some jam cups and to make and furnish soldiers' "housewives."

The following were appointed officers of the Dame's Quarter Circle, which is to be a branch of the Deal's Island Auxiliary-at-Large: Mrs. Giles, chairman; Mrs. Carey, treasurer; Miss Edna H. White, secretary.

The officers of Deal's Island Circle are, Mrs. H. G. Alexander, chairman; Miss Emily Anderson, treasurer; Miss Daisy White, secretary.

At Deal's Island the commission found a good audience, a well decorated church and a competent orchestra. Col. Waters presided at the meeting, giving a well-timed talk on the war, its causes and needs, especially in the line of Red Cross service. Since the war will touch every family in this broad land every family should add, through the Red Cross, some comfort and luxury the Government cannot possibly afford. Six members of the National Society were added here with more to follow. Three hundred paper containers for jam were donated to the Deal's Island Auxiliary by Mrs. John D. Page. Much interest was shown in knitting for the soldiers. Some "housewives" are to be furnished and a good work will be done at Deal's Island for the land we love and the men we love who are going to fight for our land of liberty.

Tax Commissioners Touring State

The State Tax Commission are touring all the counties of the State. Last Thursday Belair was visited first and Elkton was the next stopping place. Their itinerary for this week follows:

Monday, August 20, Princess Anne, 9.30 a. m.; Snow Hill, 2 p. m.

Tuesday, August 21, Salisbury, 10 a. m.

Wednesday, August 22, Cambridge, 10 a. m.

Thursday, August 23, Denton, 9.30 a. m.; Easton, 2 p. m.

Friday, August 24, Centerville, 9.30 a. m.; Chestertown, 1 p. m.

On Monday of next week, at Frederick, at noon.

Tuesday, August 28, Hagerstown, 10 a. m.

Wednesday, August 29, Cumberland, 10 a. m.

Thursday, August 30, Oakland, 10 a. m.

At each county seat the commission will confer with the county commissioners and tax supervisors on real estate valuations, which are being established under the new assessment throughout the State outside of Baltimore. If necessary, new adjustments will be made in valuations at these conferences.

The tour of the commission will mark the last steps in the new assessment which is rapidly approaching completion. In many counties the huge task has been completed and tables compiled. These tables should increase in valuations, due largely to the improved highways which are beginning to yield perceptible returns in taxes. The new assessment is expected to be complete in all its details, including corrections, by the time the next General Assembly meets.

Berge Sisters Under Arrest

It is reported that the Berge Sisters, revivalists, who conducted a series of services in Princess Anne last winter, have been arrested by the Federal authorities for spreading pro-German literature and for tiding the German cause by attempting to influence Americans to refuse to enlist for service against Germany and to oppose the selective draft measure. While official information has not been obtained on the subject, it is believed that the two revivalists will doubtless be sentenced to terms of imprisonment in the Federal prison in Atlanta, Ga.

JUDGE HENRY L. D. STANFORD

His Funeral Attended By Prominent People Of The Eastern Shore

Among those present from out of town at the funeral of Judge Stanford on Monday afternoon of last week were: Rev. J. S. Miller, of Newark, N. J.; Rev. L. E. Williams, of Pocomoke City; Rev. Vernon S. Ashworth, of Crisfield; Chief Justice John R. Pattison, former Chief Justice W. Laird Henry, William L. Fletcher, Mr. and Mrs. Edward Dashiell and Frederick Hirst, of Cambridge; James E. Ellegood, F. Leonard Wailes, Joseph L. Bailey, Jay Williams, Judge E. Stanley Toadvin, Congressman Jesse D. Price, Senator L. Atwood Bennett and former Senator Marion V. Brewington, of Salisbury; George W. Upshur, William F. Johnson, John W. Staton and John Nock, of Snow Hill; James M. Crockett, L. Paul Ewell, Francis M. Wilson, John W. Ennis, Edgar Hargis, C. E. Hargis and S. M. Crockett, of Pocomoke City.

The Baltimore News of Sunday, the 12th instant, paid Judge Stanford the following tribute:

"Judge Stanford's death is a distinct loss to the legal profession and it will, of course, be felt the most in the First Judicial Circuit, which he served for so many years as an associate judge. Only a few weeks ago Judge Jones died, and as his successor has not been named, the four lower Eastern Shore counties are now left without an associate judge."

"Judge Stanford was a careful, conscientious jurist and a tireless worker. He had served the State as a Legislator and it was then that he was generally recognized as a real student of the law. His election to the bench was regarded as a merited promotion and his judicial services were most satisfactory to the people of his circuit and the State at large."

Eastern Shore Launching This Week

A four-masted schooner built for the White Shipping Company, of Baltimore, will be launched at 9 o'clock Wednesday morning from the yards of the Sharpstown Marine Railway, Sharpstown, Md. The vessel will be named Paul T. White after a bank official of Salisbury, and a brother of R. B. White, head of the company for which it was built. Miss Pauline White, a sister of the Messrs. White, will be the sponsor.

The White is 165 feet long, 37 feet 9 inches beam and 14 feet molded depth, with a cargo capacity for 900 tons deadweight. It will be the third four-masted schooner sent overboard within four months from Eastern Shore shipyards for Baltimore investors. The Charles M. Struven was built by E. James Tull, Pocomoke City, and is now in Martinique with her first cargo. The Albert F. Paul, built at Milford, Del., at Abbott's yard, is about ready to leave there for Baltimore in tow to be fitted out.

Governor Names Two Judges

Governor Harrington announced last Friday night in Cambridge that he had appointed William F. Johnson, of Worcester county, and Joseph L. Bailey, of Wicomico county, to the bench of the First Judicial Circuit, in the places made vacant by the deaths of Judge Robley D. Jones and Judge Henry L. D. Stanford, respectively. He also announced that he had designated Charles D. Waganan to be chairman of the State Industrial Accident Commission.

The commissions for Mr. Johnson and Mr. Bailey were mailed to them Friday night. They are expected to qualify and assume their duties at once, as the entire work of the circuit now is resting upon Chief Judge John R. Pattison. They will serve until their successors are elected in November.

It looks as if the people who set out to corner the tomato crop would be in the tomato soup.

REGISTRATION SEPTEMBER 4TH

Attorney General Ritchie Gives Rules and Regulations

Attorney General Ritchie the first of last week notified the Election Supervisors throughout the state that a registration day must be held in each of the counties on the Tuesday preceding the primary. September 4 has been designated as this registration period. The notice was sent out because the 1917 election laws pamphlet omitted reference to the September 4 sitting.

The Board of Election Supervisors for Somerset county—Edward B. Lankford, Lambert W. Cox and George E. Ford—publish their registration notice on our 4th page.

In response to queries regarding the fall registration and election as raised by several supervisors, General Ritchie in his letter says among other things:

"Adults who have not been registered prior to September 4, and who will be entitled to vote at the general election in November, are entitled to register on September 4, and to vote at the primary election on September 11, and also, of course, at the general election in November."

"Persons who become 21 years of age between the last preceding registration day and the registration of September 4 may register on September 4, and may vote at the primary election on September 11, and also, of course, at the general election in November."

"Such persons will not be entitled to vote at the primary election of September 11th unless they do register on September 4th. In the present case, the next preceding registration to the primary election of September 11th will be the registration of September 4th, so that persons who will become 21 before September 4th will not arrive at the age of 21 after the close of the next preceding registration." Therefore, persons who become 21 before September 4th will not be entitled to vote at the primary election on September 11th, unless they register on September 4th.

"Persons who will become 21 years of age after the registration of September 4th and before the general election in November may register on September 4th and may vote at the primary election on September 11th and also, of course, at the general election in November."

"While persons who will become 21 years of age after September 4 and before the primary election of September 11 may, as just explained, register on September 4, yet such persons are not required to register on September 4 in order to vote on September 11. They may vote at the primary election of September 11 without registering at all, in accordance with the provisions of section 182. But, in order that such persons may be entitled to vote at the general election in November, they must, of course, register at one of the October registrations."

To Furnish a Soldier's "Housewife"

One pair of 4-inch blunt-pointed scissors, which can be obtained at any dry goods store in Princess Anne; at least nine good sized safety pins and four big-eyed darning needles stuck in flannel leaf of "housewife."

In pockets at end, each pocket should be fastened with enapper, two rows ordinary pins cut off in single rows, one dozen bone buttons, underwear size; one dozen pearl buttons, shirt size; coarse white, black and khaki sewing cotton wound off on card board.

In other pocket, black and khaki darning cotton wound on card board; one package of needles Nos. 1-7, and any other furnishings which generosity and thought can devise.

If you give a "housewife" to any soldier directly kindly give name and address to Mrs. L. A. Oates. Other "housewives" made and furnished and returned to her will be distributed to our 118 men when they go to camp September 1st. All the men of Company L, Crisfield, have been furnished with "housewives" by the Red Cross Auxiliary of Crisfield.

Shooting Affair In Crisfield

Considerable excitement prevailed in Crisfield last Tuesday night about 9 o'clock when it became known that Mr. W. Edwin Riggan had shot Mr. Joseph Sterling on the street in that town.

It is alleged that Mr. Riggan resented the attentions paid his wife by Sterling, and finding Sterling and Mrs. Riggan walking up Somerset avenue, he jumped off his wheel and shot Sterling. Mrs. Riggan fainted and was placed in Mr. Irving Milbourne's auto, which came along at that time, and carried to her home.

Mr. Sterling's wounds are not serious, being inflicted with a 22 calibre pistol. Medical attention was given him at once, and it is thought he will soon be able to resume his business duties.

TO WIN THE WAR

TO MOVE DRAFT ARMY TO CAMPS

The Entire First Force To Be In Training Early In October

The entire 687,000 composing the first increment of the army draft forces will be under training early in October. Under orders issued the first of last week the first 30 per cent. of the quota of each district will begin entrainment for cantonments September 5, the next 30 per cent. September 15 and another 30 per cent. September 30. The remaining 10 per cent. will be mobilized as soon after that date as possible.

The plan to assemble the new forces in three increments distributes the task of furnishing supplies and equipment through September. It also will prevent serious shortage in any camp, and will give the new officers from the training camps time to familiarize themselves with their duties gradually before responsibility for a great body of men falls on them.

The order issued means that about 12,000 men will reach each of the 16 cantonments soon after September 5. They will first be examined physically by the doctors and finally accepted or rejected. This will take some time, and the men will have to be furnished with temporary quarters and rationed while awaiting examination. If the full quota were assembled at one time great confusion would result.

Presumably the first increment will have been organized into skeleton companies, battalions or regiments before the second arrives. The newcomers can be quickly absorbed by a going concern in that case and the third lot can be taken into the war machinery with even less disturbance when it reports 15 days later.

In farming communities local boards now will arrange the lists of those to fill the first increment with local crop conditions in mind. Harvesting is in progress in many sections. Drafted men engaged in that work and who otherwise would go with the first third of the district quota will be passed over to the second or third, as may be necessary.

Reviewing the question of discharge for dependent relatives, Provost Marshal-General Crowder issued a supplemental ruling recently holding that persons should not be discharged because of dependents resident abroad.

"The object of the law permitting persons to be discharged provided he has a person falling within any of the classes of dependents dependent upon him was to prevent such dependents becoming a charge upon the American people," the ruling says. "A dependent residing abroad could not become such a charge. Persons claiming discharge because of such a dependent cannot properly be discharged on ground that such discharge is advisable within the meaning of the act of Congress."

Orders To Speed Exemption Boards

Orders were received from Washington last Tuesday morning by Adjutant General Warfield instructing him, as United States Government draft officer, to issue orders to the three district boards to change their method of reporting the names of the men drawn, excused and those who filed exemptions.

In the future the men who are examined will be listed and their names sent in daily, and the district boards will sit daily in review of all cases as they come up. This necessarily, will speed up the work of the various bodies and the call for the men will not find them unprepared with many left to be examined.

The orders require all the men to be ready so that the first 30 per cent. can be prepared to entrain at least 24 hours before and not later than 12 hours after September 5.

The local boards are to certify their selections and exemptions daily to the district boards, and, then, in turn, are instructed to certify back their decision in the cases.

Handy-Taylor Marriage

Announcement has been made of the marriage of Mr. J. Bruce Handy, son of Mr. Robert B. Handy, of Washington, D. C., to Miss Florence Taylor, of the same city, which was solemnized at the bride's home on Saturday evening last. Mr. Handy has been drafted and his summons is to Petersburg, Va., on September 1st.

The Great Romance of Preparedness

THE CAST.

MRS. VERNON CASTLE as Patria Channing.
MILTON SILLS as Donald Parr.
WARNER OLAND as Baron Huroki.
DOROTHY GREEN as Fanny Adair.

SYNOPSIS.

Baron Huroki of Tokyo, conspiring to subvert the United States with Mexico in order to pave the way for Japanese invasion of the Pacific coast, is hunted from the country by Patria Channing, sole executrix of a $100,000,000 trust secretly created by patriotic propagators to combat the national peril inherent in "unpreparedness." Fearing for the safety of her properties in the Southwest, Patria leaves New York to investigate along the border, accompanied by her fiancé, Capt. Donald Parr.

ELEVENTH EPISODE

Lovers' Leap.

THE BORDERLAND.

Ever since earliest dawn the train had been alternately climbing with stertorous respiration the straightened passes and sweeping down in wild, free flight through the widening valleys of a great and spacious land of haggard beauty.

And since her eyes had first opened to this new day it had not been possible for long to distract Patria's attention from that endless panorama of grim, stark hills, painted desert and boundless plains.

And in Patria's eyes, while she watched, a gladness shone deep and tender; and ever and again her young bosom would lift and fall with a gentle sigh of happiness.

For this, to her, was home-coming; she was returning, after a long sojourn in a strange far country, to the land which held first place in her heart.

Toward mid-afternoon the train paused at a little station.

Here there was uncommon bustle of life. In addition to the customary groups of idle Mexicans and half-breeds, squaws with crude pottery to sell to the avid tourist, and assorted loafers, a company of hard-riding cow-people had gathered, and a couple of rough-coated motorcars stood waiting.

As Patria, with her little train of servants and companions, descended to the platform, high-spirited cheering greeted her; the horsemen and women yelled piercingly, and tossed aloft their hats; and from one of the motorcars a man whose heaviness of stature assorted oddly with his alertness of gesture strode forward sombrero in hand, then paused, stared and said in a voice of wonder:

"Patria Channing!"

The girl identified him after a moment of perplexity, during which her memory harked back to days a decade ago. Her characteristic little frown of thought was dispelled by a smile and a laugh of joyful recognition.

"Rodman Pillsbury!" she exclaimed—and gave him both her hands.

He took them awkwardly, shaking a still bewildered head.

"I don't know you at all, Pat," he said. "I was waiting for a little girl—a freckled, long-legged tomboy who could beat me riding and shooting and—most every way. And here you're a woman grown . . . Lord! how antique you make me feel!"

"You needn't," she told him gayly. "You've grown up every whit as much as I—but no more, not the least bit. When I went East you were as sturdy and husky as a stringbean and now you're as slim and lissome as a watermelon! Heavens! don't accuse me of having changed! . . . But forgive me . . ."

Swiftly she made Pillsbury known to her chaperon and Captain Parr.

"I want you to be great friends," she said with just a hint of embarrassment as these last clasped hands. "Rodman was the first sweetheart I ever had, Don—and Donald," she added charmingly to Pillsbury, "is my last; we are engaged."

To her immense relief there was no trace of hostility in the greeting which Rodman accorded her betrothed.

Mr. Pillsbury had grown up in more than physique in the course of ten years. The ability to mask his feelings with impenetrable dissimulation was only one of the accomplishments which he had acquired, and which fitted him so admirably to command at once the friendship and respect of the small army of employees who looked up to him as the local representative of the Channing interests—as, in short, what Rodman Pillsbury really was, Patria's viceregent, ruling dominions of land and men—broader, if less populous, than many a European principality.

That exhilaration which had been mounting in Patria ever since her awakening that morning grew still more intense as her motorcar swung away from the station and over a winding highroad. Now she was thoroughly at home. She seemed to recognize as old friends not only those well-remembered landmarks but every tree and boulder on the way—even that slow-plodding ox-cart with its heavy wooden wheels, primitively spokeless, and its Mexican driver with his goad trudging beside the yoked beasts, was like a brightly colored illustration from the Book of Yesterday.

"They, at least, don't change," she said to Rodman, nodding toward the cart with its load of straw.

"No," he agreed with a thoughtful frown; "the only thing that resigns the Greaser to the march of civilization is an opportunity to do murder with a modern magazine rifle or run guns and ammunition across the border in a six-cylinder machine!"

"Where is the border—I mean, the boundary line?" Parr inquired.

"I'll show you in a minute," Patria answered.

And presently, as the car topped a long, slow upgrade, gaining an eminence that overlooked much of that rolling countryside, she pointed out a bridge that spanned a gulley off to the right.

"That's the boundary line," she said; "that arroyo; beyond the bridge is Mexico."

"Is there much of that sort of thing going on hereabouts?" Parr turned to Pillsbury—"gun running, I mean?"

"I hardly think so. Things have been very quiet in this neck of the woods. It's to the southeast, along the Rio Grande, that the most of the trouble has occurred, to date."

Three miles beyond the point where the road forked, one arm running down to the bridge at the border, the car drew up in front of the Channing hacienda, a century-old structure built upon rambling lines of Spanish architecture.

With a cry of delight Patria felt herself folded in the aged arms of Rodman's mother—a slight and delicate little woman who had for many years been a second mother to Patria, the orphaned, only when the little girl went East to complete her education yielding place to Mrs. Wrenn in Patria's affections.

And Mrs. Pillsbury proved not to have changed in the least!

Then there was Bess Morgan waiting to greet her—a tow-headed little imp ten years ago, today a slender and dignified young woman whose serene poise did not in the least detract from her ability to ride harder and faster and shoot straighter than any man or woman within two days' journey of the Channing ranch.

Sister of Bud Morgan, now foreman of the Channing cowpunchers—an upstanding youngster of five-and-twenty—Bess lived with her mother and brother some twenty miles from the hacienda. She had ridden over to welcome an old rival for the affections of Rodman Pillsbury.

Their ancient enmity thawed to the warmth of a spontaneous kiss; and the relief, imperceptible to any but another woman, with which Bess received the news of Patria's betrothal to Donald, provided even more comforting reassurance to Patria in respect to the affections of Rodman.

ACROSS THE BORDER.

While the hacienda slept in peace, that primitive oxcart pursued laboriously its patient, creaking way across the bridged arroyo and the desert country beyond toward a far-flung line of mountains which loomed against the horizon in serrated array like the frozen profile of a stormy sea.

Distancing the oxcart as fast as willing hoofs could run, a horseman who, leaving the station aimlessly shortly after the departure of Patria's party for the hacienda, had spurred his steed to its swiftest pace as soon as he felt secure from observation, arrived in the early evening at a straggling row of adobe huts which figured as the nearest Mexican village.

Twilight was still bright when he dropped from his fagged animal and sought one of the dwellings which wore a slightly less unkempt appearance than its fellows.

In the doorway of this hut, somewhat contemptuously watching the evolutions of a squad of listless Mexican infantry in the village plaza, stood a gentleman in the field uniform of an officer of the Japanese army.

Hearing the thud of hurried footsteps in the deep dust of the street, the Japanese turned toward the approaching horse an expectant eye.

"Well, Gomez?" he said in Spanish. "Excellency, I have to report that the Channing girl, with Captain Parr and a small company of friends arrived from the East this afternoon."

The Japanese nodded gently. "Many thanks," he said in an indifferent voice. "You will be duly rewarded for your vigilance. Good-night."

As the Mexican disappeared in the gathering darkness, the Japanese smote his palms together smartly.

In response a wiry little Japanese, of vicious gesture, in the uniform of an orderly, came out of the hut and paused at attention.

"Go immediately, Kato," his superior ordered—"and Senor Zelaya, present my compliments and say that Baron Huroki will be obliged if General Zelaya will consent to honor this humble abode with his verminous presence, at his exalted convenience this evening."

Sooner than Baron Huroki anticipated, Zelaya shouldered through the doorway of his adobe quarters, a huge and forceful personality.

"Well, my friend," he said, leering companionably and slapping a boot-leg with the quirt which swung by its leathern thong from his right wrist, "there is news, I hear?"

"Sit down," Huroki suggested, nodding. "It is true; the Channing girl has come to the border to look after her possessions—even as I foretold she would."

"The dear little creature who has a hundred million of gold dollars to spend making fools of Japan and Mexico, eh?" Zelaya laughed. "How sweet of her to walk within our reach! Just when I could use a little money, too!"

"Undeceive yourself," Huroki replied brusquely; "these hundred millions remain well beyond our grasp; the girl is no such fool as to carry gold about with her in such quantities. She is not," he pursued in tone of thoughtful reminiscence not lacking a hint of vindictiveness, "in any way a fool. I tell you frankly—as I have said before—she will upset all our schemes if we discount her shrewdness and ability."

"And so—what?"

"We must find a way to trim her claws."

"You did not send for me to ask my advice," the outlaw laughed.

"No," Huroki admitted, "only your co-operation."

"Your scheme, then, is matured?"

The Japanese nodded. "Our course is plain, my friend. Leaving all other consideration aside for the time being—forgetting, that is, your patriotic selfishness and my loyalty to Nippon—we both need money—much money."

"Granted," Zelaya said, with glistering eyes.

"And Miss Channing has it—and means to keep it. How, then, to persuade her to give us enough for our modest needs?"

"Do go on!"

"The girl is madly infatuated with a young man very dangerous to our common cause," Huroki pursued smoothly—"Captain Donald Parr. He has accompanied her on this journey to the border. It is he, indeed, who jogs her elbow whenever she is in doubt as to how and when and where she ought to strike at us next."

"I should much enjoy meeting this gentleman," the bandit announced.

"I should much enjoy effecting the introduction," Huroki assented. "So I mean to do it. But you must first promise me not to flay him alive. Living, he is of incalculable value to us; dead, a deathless peril—for the Channing girl would never rest till she had avenged his death, though she were to plunge her beloved country into war with our two nations."

"I am all impatience for your point."

"It is simple enough. For months we have seen to it that this section of the border was undisturbed. That served our interests in more ways than one. By keeping the peace, we provided safe transit for arms and ammunition shipments from the North; we also inspired in the bosom of these fools hereabouts confidence in a confidence of immunity from our raids. . . . So tonight the Channing hacienda will sleep in tranquility, never dreaming that you, my friend, with a large force of your picked horsemen, will raid it at dawn and bring back to me the living—if somewhat damaged—body of Captain Donald Parr, to be held for ransom—for a round, corpulent ransom which the Channing girl will gladly pay rather than imperil the life of her betrothed by any attempt to rescue him. Do you see, O brother?"

"I see," Zelaya agreed, licking his thick lips as he rose. "I see and I go to pick my men!"

RIDERS OF THE DAWN.

In the first dim flush of that cool, sweet dawn, Patria awakened with a smile, and turning on her pillow, looked out through the open window at her bedside before snuggling beneath the covers for another hour or two of sleep.

And because the dew-wet world she viewed was so very beautiful, she could no more sleep, but must needs get up and move gently about her room, bathing, and dressing in her riding clothes.

While she dressed she saw one of the cowpunchers pass beneath her window, and called down to him softly, begging him to saddle a horse for her and fetch it to the entrance to the patio, without "letting on" to anybody.

He promised cheerfully, and went his way, and had the animal waiting for her when at length, fully attired, she descended to the patio and crept furtively toward the arched passage that opened on the out-of-doors.

But she was not to get away so easily. Parr's voice hailed her in amused expostulation before she gained the passageway.

"Here, now! What's all this?"

"Oh, dear!" she complained. "It's just my luck!"

"Why, what's the matter?"

"I did so want to go riding all by myself—this once! And, of course, you had to be up and about and spoil everything!"

"Bless your heart!" he said. "I'm not going to ruin your day the very first thing. Far be it from me to butt in where angels fear—where one angel does not fear to tread," he corrected, laughing. "Besides, I only got up so early in the hope of being permitted to smoke at least one pipe in peace. Cut along with you—and mind you're not late for breakfast!"

With this she turned and scurried out of the patio; and Donald filled and lighted his pipe, smiling tenderly to himself as he heard the drumming of her horse's hoofs die out in the distance.

Something like a quarter of an hour later a heavy and confused roll of hoofs roused him from the idliest and pleasantest of daydreams. Knocking out his pipe against the sill of the patio well, he sauntered curiously through the passageway—and saw that which startled him out of his false feeling of security in the twinkling of an eyelash.

A small squad of the border patrol was bearing down upon the hacienda at a dead run, desperate haste and anxious purpose written plainly on the face of each man.

Reining in and dismounting in the same breath, the officer commanding the patrol turned and waved half of his men away.

"Get on!" he cried. "Rouse the boys in the bunkhouse—get every man on the place under arms, and send him here in a hurry!"

"What's up?" Donald asked quietly.

"Devil's loose—or I'm in wrong," the officer told him. "We've just sighted half a hundred or more 'Greasers' headed this way. They crossed the border by the bridge over the arroyo. God knows what they mean, but if it isn't mischief, I don't know the signs. Get your people together and shut the house up tight before—"

He could not finish for the suddenness of that onslaught which, with no more warning, swept down upon the devoted hacienda with the fury of a black squall out of a blue sky.

In mid-speech the officer broke off and ducked into the passageway as the vanguard of the raiders appeared on the crest of the nearest rise and incontinently opened fire on the group at the entrance to the patio.

His men followed him without an instant's hesitation, leaving their mounts to run free; and then Donald, obliged to concede the impossibility of facing that charge in the hope of breaking through and satisfying his frantic solicitude for Patria, was driven into the patio by a veritable hail of bullets.

Stout wooden doors, strapped heavily with iron, closed the inside end of the passage; and these were hastily barred by the troopers, while Donald ran to find himself a weapon and the household awakened to find itself besieged.

Following the disappearance of Donald there was a brief lull, during which no shots were fired by the raiders.

Then, as Donald ran out from his room to the gallery, a rifle in hand, a frightful detonation rocked the hacienda on its foundations and the dynamited gates of the patio were blown in, hopelessly shattered and splintered.

A cloud of smoke momentarily filled the passage; as the draught drew it outward, bullets began to rain inward. The defenders were driven to cover behind the well and other coils of shelter, whence they responded with an ineffectual fire; half a dozen Mexicans fell, but the momentum of their charge carried two score into the courtyard uninjured, and firing fast. Immediately the defense of the hacienda resolved itself into a series of hand-to-hand encounters. Parr, crouching behind the well sill, had two troopers shot down at his side before he was enveloped in a rush, borne bodily from his feet, disarmed and man-handled.

Fighting as he had never fought before, he struggled clear for an instant—flung off the raiders who clung to him like wolves to the flanks of a stag, and found his feet again, half his clothing ripped from his body, his hands empty.

In that abbreviated breathing spell he saw the patio as a panorama of inferno, a pit of smoke and flame where men weltered and writhed like reptiles in a furnace. High above him he caught a glimpse of Bess Morgan, kneeling before her bedchamber door, on the gallery, and defending the stairs, a revolver in either hand, deadly determination in her look.

Then Parr was assailed from behind. A clubbed rifle descended on his skull with murderous force. He rocked blindly for an instant, then pitched forward into unconscious night.

That proved the culmination of the attack. With Captain Parr insensible and a prisoner, the leader of the raiding party ordered a retreat in good time to escape the charge of the Channing cowpunchers through the rose-garden.

LOVERS' LEAP.

Pelting across country at a round pace, joying in the free swing of the unjaded animal beneath her, drinking in delight with every deep-drawn respiration of the clean, cool air of early morning, Patria swung a wide arc through trackless fields before, some twenty minutes after leaving the hacienda, she drew rein to rest and breathe her horse.

It was then that a sound of distant firing was carried to her on the wings of the wind which was moving from the quarter wherein lay the hacienda.

Definitely frightened, she swung her horse's head about and spurred him down the main road, but a hundred yards or so short of the junction with the road to the bridge at the border checked the animal again and sat still, listening to the growing rumble of many hoofs.

Fearing lest she be caught in this rush of horsemen, she jumped down and led her mount into the shelter of the roadside trees, then scouted on afoot for a little distance to a point whence she commanded a view of the fork in the roads.

There she saw, first, an oxcart, counterpart of that which she had passed in her motorcar the previous afternoon, stalled by an accident to one of the wheels, which the Mexican driver had just succeeded in repairing.

An instant later a cloud of Mexican horsemen swept up the road from the hacienda and paused at the fork. The leader, a burly ruffian, stopped long enough beside the cart to admonish the driver in accents that carried clearly to the girl—familiar as she was with Spanish:

"Hurry that ammunition across the river before the Gringos get here—if you set any value on your skin!"

That was all; but the sight of the captive lying unconscious across the horse ridden by one of the Mexicans—a figure all too readily identified by the girl as that of her betrothed—was enough to decide Patria's course of action.

The raiding party swung on at top speed for the bridge. The driver of the oxcart picked up his goad and prodded his beasts to the best pace they could make. Patria ran back to her horse, fumbling in the pockets of her riding coat and finding there the envelope of an old letter.

With the soft-nosed bullet of a loaded cartridge for a pencil, using the saddle for a desk, she contrived to scrawl a simple message on the back of the envelope:

Mexicans with Capt. Parr prisoner crossing border by bridge—safe and trailing them—rush help—P. C.

Folding and tucking the envelope into the bride, Patria turned the horse's head homeward and slapped its side with the flat of her hand. Surprised and indignant, the animal snorted and scurried off. Without giving it another thought the girl set off after the oxcart.

She was somewhat surprised to find that it had made such progress; obliged to overtake it ere it came within sight of the bridge, or else give up her foolhardy scheme, she succeeded in the nick of time, with none to spare. An instant before the cart, lumbering in a haze of dust, left the shelter of the woods that cloaked the road, the girl labored up behind it and, unseen by the terrified driver, climbed aboard and buried herself in the mass of straw that hid the cases of ammunition.

Then, half-choked with dust and suffocating with lack of air and heat, as the sun beat down upon the straw, she resigned herself to enforced inaction that endured for many hours.

The cart had successfully negotiated the passage of the bridge and won to a considerable distance beyond it when a fusillade in the rear emboldened the girl to lift up her head, beneath the straw, and gasp in a few breaths of clean air while reconnoitering.

The cart was then on rising ground. The bridge across the arroyo lay beneath it and some distance back. She could see the main body of the Mexicans which ambushed the Channing cowpunchers.

A few fell in the charge. Her heart bled for them, but her grief on their account was a trifle compared with her anxiety for Donald. He was already far ahead of the oxcart, escorted by Zelaya and a picked guard. So much she had gathered from a conference at the bridge, when the cart paused for further instructions; and more, she had then learned that the cart was to proceed with all speed to a receiving depot in the hills where Zelaya was to wait with his prisoner till joined by the men he had left to guard the bridge.

It was high noon when at length the cart lurched its last lurch and came to a dead stop.

The complaint of its greaseless wheels had barely ceased when Patria, moveless beneath the straw, heard a voice she knew only too well. It was Huroki's, ordering the driver to hasten instantly to a nearby village and find Zelaya, to advise him that it seemed best to remove the prisoner instantly to a safer place; he—Huroki—wanted horses and a guard for this purpose without delay.

When the driver had gone, grumbling, Huroki spoke briefly with another Mexican, ordering him to stand guard over the prisoner pending the arrival of the horses and the guard, when he was to summon Huroki from some observation point at no great distance.

There followed three minutes of quiet. Then the girl took her life in her hands and poked her head out of the straw.

The oxcart was at rest before a small adobe hut with an open door. She could not see through the doorway, but from the fact that the ragged Mexican sentry stood close by understood that this hut was Donald's temporary prison.

They Arrived on the Lip of a Cliff.

In the distance she saw Huroki and his creature, Kato, passing from view behind a thicket, walking rapidly toward what appeared to be the brink of a cliff.

There was no time to be lost. Hastily drawing her pistol, the girl emerged from the straw and covered the sentry, ordering him to drop his rifle and put up his hands—which he did with gratifying alacrity.

But he demonstrated more courage and initiative than she had anticipated of his kind. For when she left him momentarily uncovered, while she clambered out of the cart, the fellow made an ill-advised snatch for his gun.

It was necessary to shoot him or be shot. Hastening by that twitching body in the dust before the door, the girl entered the hut, finding Donald there, conscious but sorely battered, and bound to a chair.

It was a matter of seconds only to free him. But, once he was freed, the riddle of the next step toward safety loomed imperatively. Its solution a thing of the utmost urgency.

Already Kato and Huroki, alarmed by the shot, were hurrying back toward the hut. Already the sounds of hoofs approached from the opposite direction.

There was a window in the back of the hut; through this the fugitives escaped, even as Huroki and Kato entered the ammunition depot by its doorway.

Then, skirting through underbrush, they skulked off as far as they might under cover. When the pursuit obliged them to take to the open, they found themselves hemmed in on three sides, and under fire. The only way they dared run was in the direction of Huroki's point of observation.

Two minutes later, hotly pressed, they arrived on the lip of a cliff not less than two hundred feet in height, commanding a wide view of the surrounding country.

At bay, Parr turned and emptied Patria's pistol at their pursuers, dropping two Mexicans and momentarily checking their rush.

Then—there was nothing else for it—one after the other the lovers leaped from the cliff.

A dense growth of foliage at the bottom saved them, breaking the force of their falls.

Half senseless, bruised and scratched and breathless, they lay on the ground beneath that friendly screen of leaves till the sound of hoofs and firing drew them out, cautiously, to the edge of the forest.

Along the road that skirted it the rear guard of the raiding party was flying for its life.

TUESDAY MORNING, AUG. 31, 1917

Now if corn was scarce instead of wheat, how gladly people would eat corn bread!

Now that the food bill is passed, the speculators will soon be made to realize that the war is not being run for their special benefit.

Who says girls aren't interested in current events, when they grab the papers so anxiously to see what the fall hat styles are to be?

Any slacker who really wants to escape the war could no doubt do so by jumping in front of a railroad train and having a leg or two cut off.

It's awful what a lot of dependents the young men have now when it comes to the draft examinations. They give no hint of it when they are courting their best girls.

It is said the government may require the price of coal to be reduced. They didn't do things that way in the good old days before the coal operators allowed the Washington situation to get away from them.

All Mr. Hoover has to do in a day now is to give interviews to 76,532 people, dictate 83,497 letters, conduct personally the prosecutions of 135 food speculators, address half a dozen public meetings, issue complete sets of instructions to the housewives, and travel back and forth between Washington, New York, and Chicago.

MR. TULL AND THE JUDGESHIP

Former State's Attorney Gordon Tull has announced his candidacy in the Democratic primaries for the vacancy on the First Judicial Circuit bench caused by the death of Judge H. L. D. Stanford. Mr. Tull has been urged by his many friends to enter the primaries, as the sentiment in Somerset county is to have a resident Judge at the county seat to succeed Judge Stanford.

Mr. Tull is 47 years old, was admitted to the bar in 1894 and elected State's Attorney in 1896 on the Democratic ticket and served two subsequent terms, being again elected in 1907 and 1911. Mr. Tull enjoys the distinction of having one of the largest family connections in the county, is of good moral character, a man of brilliant intellectual attainments and is temperate and conservative in all things. He should receive the support of his fellow Democrats in the four counties of the Judicial Circuit.

THE BIG POTATO CROP

Our people may well rejoice over the showing in the government's August crop report, of the big potato crop. An indicated yield of white potatoes nearly 30 per cent above the average, and of sweets over 40 per cent, above, is a triumph in food production.

This result, assuming the crop now comes through without rot or blight, has been accomplished by splendid co-operation on the part of millions of people. The big farmers have produced on their bonanza basis, with great rolling acres tilled by modern machinery and gangs of labor. But one must not overlook the service of many humble people, who have raised an infinite number of little crops in back yards and lawns, the only equipment after ploughing being the old rusty hoe and a watering pot to spray bugs with.

Also good work has been done on the lawns of many handsome estates where flourishing fields of tubers have been substituted for the usual silky lawns or flowering shrubbery. Thousands of public buildings have had this year the novel setting of a luxuriant crop.

As potatoes are perishable, the people will do well to make free use of them through the fall. In the hands of a skilled cook they can be made most appetizing. Many workingmen's families have made them the backbone of the pantry since meat became so high. Germany, with her wonderful efficiency, is fighting largely on a potato diet.

People often make the mistake of buying potato supplies for several months, then keeping them in unsuitable sheds where they rot. There is something mysterious about this food. It will often seem to be harvested in perfect condition, then for some unexplained cause will rot and scarcity will follow abundance. People who store them away should have the advice of some practical man as to what conditions are favorable for keeping them.

GIVE US THE SUMMER NEWS

This is the time of year when the newspapers are filled with items of people's movements. Long columns of personals and vacation goings and comings are printed. The supercilious make fun of it as mere tittle tattle. Yet the people who ridicule these items the most grab the paper with eagerness to see what they can learn.

It is a perfectly normal interest to know about the things your neighbors are doing. It fills a large part of our daily conversation, and if it is important enough to go into the paper. A knowledge of the goings and comings of our neighbors helps us keep in with them, and gives us pleasant subjects for conversation.

So let us not be ashamed to have it in the paper when we go away to summer resorts or have friends visiting us. Don't think you look queer if you bring or telephone such items to the papers. These personal movements are part of the story of daily life, and the newspaper does not do its duty unless it covers that story thoroughly. So give us the news about your doings.

WAR EXPERIENCE

A young man who recently moved from a small country town to a large city was asked why he went. His motive was not apparent, as he secured no better business position. He replied that he wanted "to get down nearer the big show." It was an illogical point of view, but one shared by many young men, and it has its part in reconciling many fellows to going to war.

This war is the greatest experience of human history. Nothing approaching it has ever been known. All the daring and chivalry of the ancient and medieval world are being reproduced. The greatest mechanical and organization problems are being worked out. Here is material for the greatest novels, dramas, and poetry. After a fellow has been through it, ordinary life will seem as dull as dishwater.

It is no wonder men of an adventurous temperament feel attracted by the stir and sweep of it. They may dread danger and suffering. Yet the young fellow with spirit and patriotism must feel some desire to take hold and help. He is like the villager who runs to every fire and takes hold with a will to save property and life. There may be danger from falling walls, and people often get hurt at fires. But there are plenty of men who enjoy fire fighting, and no peril could keep them away when the alarm bell rings.

It is fortunate for the world that so many men have this disregard of death and danger, this willingness to take part in intense and perilous experience. If we were all sober and calculating and prudent, and only took hold of things that are safe and peaceable, much of the world's rough work would never get done. Many evils that have been crushed by valor and chivalry would still exist.

All honor then to the young men who have this daring spirit and who go with a will. And may all who are drafted be able to see their task in this light.

The Hoover Wheat Control Plan

Mr. Hoover enters upon his duty with his plan for wheat control full grown, and he introduces it to the country with no delay. The time spent by Congress in dilly-dallying over the food bill should have been spent by the food administrator in perfecting his plans for placing into effect the legislation. Hence the immediacy of the effect of the law.

The Hoover plans are drastic and undoubtedly will prove adequate. And there is not a single turn of the screw upon the food gamblers that the law provides for that will not be made if there should arise the need. The plan as outlined is the licensing of elevators, the prohibiting of storage of grain more than thirty days, purchase of wheat at terminals, universality of price and the vigorous prosecution of violators of the law.

This plan when in effect will produce the results sought. Mr. Hoover makes no threats and advances no menaces. He assumes good faith and co-operation upon the part of the food producers and handlers. But the Damascus blade of the food laws hangs by a slender thread, and this may be cut immediately. Hence the way of the transgressor is apt to prove hard. And the temptation to transgress will find the appeal of interest for resistance. The country wants the food measure executed in conformity with the intent of the legislation.—Baltimore American.

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages and that is catarrh. Catarrh being greatly influenced by constitutional conditions requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Medicine is taken internally and acts through the blood on the mucous surfaces of the system thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in the curative powers of Hall's Catarrh Medicine that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials. Address, F. #### THE TIN CAN PROBLEM

It is surprising how, when you try to speed up industrial activity, one defect after another shows itself in the system of organization. It is about like mending a pair of old shoes. If you repair the sole then the heel gives out. Next the upper cracks, and by the time that has been patched the stitching falls apart.

But wonders can be accomplished with our American capacity for adjustment. One of the minor defects in our organization for war is now the shortage of tin for canning purposes. There is a nation-wide campaign to popularize the use of paper, fiber and other containers. With the government food organization mobilizing women and children for canning food products, a largely increased food supply in this form should be available. But if tin is going to be scarce, the canned produce will fall short for lack of a hitherto despised material.

The tin can has been regarded as about the lowest form of value. In the popular mind it is the constituent of dump heaps, something bad boys attach to the tails of homeless dogs and cats, and the legendary food of the goat. Many a house built on filled-in land really rests on a subsoil of tin cans. A back yard filled with them represents about the abomination of desolation, and it is hard to realize that this represents material of vital value.

You begin to realize it when at the automobile garage they will sell you a given quantity of oil for 70 cents, if you bring your own can, but if you expect the product to be put in a container they will ask 90 cents. So far there has been no tin saving campaign, but we may have to come to it. Meanwhile the public is reminded that every time it buys a double quantity of anything in a single container it gets a lower price on its product and helps save a valuable and scarce material.

READING FOR THE SOLDIERS

"Clip as well as knit," is the request of the army men for the soldier boys. Anything in the way of newspaper clippings, or still better, whole newspapers or magazines, would be more than welcome in the camps, particularly in France.

Nothing would do a homesick soldier any more good than to be made a regular recipient of his home newspaper. If you can't afford to subscribe for him, roll up back numbers of the paper and send them to him. If you did feel like putting him on the list, he would bless you.

Much is said about the need for keeping our soldier boys away from the temptations of army life. One of the greatest causes of vice is an unoccupied mind. If the army lines are well supplied with tents where there is plenty of interesting reading matter, a great many idle hours will be pleasantly filled. The fellow who is quietly reading the home paper or an American magazine is not chasing around the outskirts of the camp looking for trouble.

There isn't any possibility of getting too much of this stuff. The home paper will be read by soldiers who come from many miles distant and know nothing of the place where it is published. But anything American will look good to them. Our popular magazines will be thumbed over until they are reduced to rags.

Arrangements will be made for forwarding to the soldiers large quantities of old magazines and newspapers. Let us all begin now to save this material. It will all be needed. It will take but a few moments of time and a bit of postage to get it on the way. Let us not begrudge this bit of friendly co-operation with our boys, who are giving so much to their country, and who need all the good cheer that the home folks can send them.

Hoover Ready To Buy Wheat Crop

The food administration last Wednesday prepared to take over the entire 1917 wheat crop, if necessary, to stabilize prices throughout the year. It formed a $50,000,000 corporation, with all the stock held by the federal government, to buy and sell wheat at the principal terminals.

The move was the first of a series to be taken to reduce the price of bread. Millers already have agreed to put themselves under voluntary regulations and are working out with the food administration a differential of profits. Distribution of flour by wholesalers and the baking of bread will be taken up next.

The hope of the Food Administration is to establish a scale of prices from the farm to the grocery store, eliminating undue profits and ending speculation. The maintenance of a standard price for wheat its officials believe is the first and most necessary step.

Summer Complaint

During the hot weather of the summer months some member of almost every family is likely to be troubled with an unnatural looseness of the bowels, and it is of the greatest importance that this be treated promptly, which can only be done when the medicine is kept at hand. Mrs. F. F. Scott, Scottsville, N.Y., states, "I first used Chamberlain's Colic and Diarrhoea Remedy as much as five years ago. At that time I had a severe attack of summer complaint and was suffering intense pain. One dose relieved me. Other members of my family have since used it with like results." [Advertisement]

Political Announcements

PRINCESS ANNE, MD., Aug. 14, 1917.
To the Democratic Voters of Somerset, Dorchester, Wicomico, and Worcester Counties:

Gentlemen:—Two judges in the First Judicial Circuit have recently died making it incumbent upon the people of this circuit to fill said vacancies at the general election in November.

Having been solicited by friends to become a candidate in Somerset county to succeed the Hon. Henry L. D. Stanford as one of the associate judges of said circuit, I have determined to do so, and hereby beg to announce that I will enter the primary contest to succeed the late lamented Hon. Henry L. D. Stanford, subject to the wishes of the Democratic voters in the said four counties composing the First Judicial Circuit.

Your help is earnestly solicited and will be greatly appreciated.

Faithfully and obediently yours,
GORDON TULL.

SNOW HILL, MD., Aug. 1, 1917
To the Voters of Somerset County:

I am a candidate to succeed the late Judge Robley D. Jones as Associate Judge of the First Judicial Circuit of Maryland, and will enter the primaries to be held September 11.

I am keenly conscious of the grave responsibilities of the position and if I am chosen by the people I will give to the duties of the office the best that is within me. My absolute lack of experience in soliciting votes for myself will perhaps place me at a disadvantage in the campaign, but I am content to submit my candidacy to your careful and conscientious consideration, and if it meets with your favor I trust you will so express yourselves at the primaries.

Yours truly,
JOHN W. STATON

Order Nisi

In the matter of the tax sale of real estate in Fairmount Election District of Somerset county, assessed to Mrs. Dr. John L. Damish, made and reported by John E. Holland, County Treasurer for Somerset county. W. Jerome Sterling, purchaser, ex parte.

No. 3175, Chancery. In the Circuit Court for Somerset County.

Whereas, a certain John E. Holland, County Treasurer for Somerset county, in the State of Maryland, has reported to the Circuit Court for Somerset County, in Equity, a sale made by him to W. Jerome Sterling, of all that lot of land in Fairmount district, Somerset county, Maryland, viz: No. 8.—All that lot and improvements in Fairmount district, Somerset county, Maryland, known as the home place of the late Joseph Muir, containing 2 acres, more or less, which was devised to Susie J. Damish (then Susie J. Muir) by will recorded among the testamentary records in Liber T. No. 21, folio 194, and later conveyed to C. A. Cox, and assessed to the said Mrs. Dr. John L. Damish on the assessment books for the said election district, for the said year 1914, and sold for the payment of taxes due and in arrears, together with all the proceedings in relation thereto; and, whereas, upon examination it appears to the said Court that the said proceedings are regular, and that the provisions of law in relation thereto have been complied with.

Now, therefore, it is hereby ordered this 13th day of July, in the year 1917, by the Circuit Court for Somerset County, in Equity, that notice be given by publication of this order once a week for four successive weeks in the Marylander and Herald, a weekly newspaper published in Somerset county, before the 22nd day of August, in the year 1917, warning all persons interested in the said real estate to be and appear in this Court on or before the first day of September, 1917, to show cause, if any they have, why said sale should not be ratified and confirmed.

The report states the amount of sales to be $22.80.

Order Nisi

In the matter of the tax sale of real estate in Westover Election District of Somerset county, assessed to Maria F. Ballard, made and reported by John E. Holland, County Treasurer for Somerset county. Augustus Ritzel, purchaser, ex parte.

No. 3174, Chancery. In the Circuit Court for Somerset County.

Whereas, a certain John E. Holland, County Treasurer for Somerset county, in the State of Maryland, has reported to the Circuit Court for Somerset County, in Equity, a sale made by him to Augustus Ritzel, of all that lot of land in Westover district, Somerset county, Maryland, viz: Lot No. 1.—Being all that lot of land in Westover district, Somerset county, Maryland, containing 2½ acres, more or less, with the improvements thereon, situated on a private road leading to the land of L. W. Ballard, adjoining the land of Wesley Dorsey, conveyed unto Maria F. Ballard by deed from Lucy Sturgis recorded among the land records of Somerset county in Liber O. T. B. No. 21, folio 226, and assessed to the said Maria F. Ballard on the assessment books for said election district, for the said year 1912, and sold for the payment of taxes due and in arrears, together with all the proceedings in relation thereto; and, whereas, upon examination it appears to the said Court that the said proceedings are regular, and that the provisions of law in relation thereto have been complied with.

Now, therefore, it is hereby ordered this 13th day of July, in the year 1917, by the Circuit Court for Somerset County, in Equity, that notice be given by publication of this order once a week for four successive weeks in the Marylander and Herald, a weekly newspaper published in Somerset county, before the 22nd day of August, in the year 1917, warning all persons interested in the said real estate to be and appear in this Court on or before the first day of September, 1917, to show cause, if any they have, why said sale should not be ratified and confirmed.

The report states the amount of sales to be $10.
HENRY L. D. STANFORD, Judge.

Idyllic Life On Tangier Island

"We have one physician, one negro, one cow and one horse on Tangier Island, which is 17 miles from the Maryland mainland," said Dr. G. B. Gills, the lone physician, who was in Richmond, Va., last week to join the army. "There are close to 2000 people on the island and there is not a buggy or vehicle of any kind. The people farm, fish and engage in oystering. We live to ourselves and we are about the happiest people to be found. There are some people on the island who have never seen a train and have never seen an automobile. Three churches are on the island and the one negro man living on it belongs to a white church. All of my practice is done afoot, and I run the drug store on my own account. The island has electric lights, but we have to depend on rains for our drinking water. The sewer system is one that cannot be excelled on the face of the earth—it is operated by the tides, never gets out of order and costs nothing. There is no land for sale, for the island is pretty well built up. Up to a few years ago the dead of the island were buried in the front yards. That is a fine community and but for this war you would not catch me leaving there."

Mr. Riggins' Accident Proves Fatal

While Mr. John H. Riggins was riding his wheel in Crisfield last Tuesday morning he ran into a horse and wagon. The driver had stopped his vehicle and shouted to Mr. Riggins, but Mr. Riggins, who was deaf, apparently was absorbed in thought and ran right into the shaft of the wagon, the shaft striking him in the abdomen. He was taken to the hospital in Crisfield and after a strenuous fight by physicians and nurses, during which peritonitis set in, he died on Thursday morning about 3 o'clock.

Mr. Riggins was 59 years old and has resided in Crisfield for 30 years. He is survived by his widow (who before her marriage was Miss Annie E. Chait, of Albany, N. Y.) and one daughter (Miss Olive Riggins, of Crisfield). The funeral services were held at the First Baptist Church, Crisfield, last Sunday morning at 10.30 o'clock.

Baptist Picnic

On Thursday the members of the five Baptist Sunday Schools of Somerset county met at the Fred Gunby Farm, on Coulbourne's Creek, and spent the day picnicking. There were more than three hundred young and old present, who enjoyed bathing and a good time in the country. In the afternoon addresses were delivered by Prof. Sidney S. Handy, of St. John's College; Rev. K. A. Handy, of Baltimore, and Mrs. S. I. Carter, of the University of Virginia.

FILLING OUT A CHECK.

It is a Good Rule Always to Write the Stub First.

In a big store a woman was paying with a check for some goods she had just bought, and she was carefully filling in the stub of her check book first. "Oh, don't stop for that!" urged her shopping companion, who was in a hurry. "You can do that when you get home."

Unmoved, the careful woman finished the stub with special care, then wrote the check, gave it to the saleswoman and said to her impatient friend: "Before I was married I took care of some of my father's accounts. The first time he ever asked me to fill out a set of blank checks for him so he could sign them he told me: 'One rule you must always observe—write the stub first. Make a vow to yourself, like unto the vow of Jephthah, that you will never write a check until the stub is filled. If for any reason you should fail later to write the check it would be a simple matter to cancel the stub, but if you write a check and leave the stub blank you open the door to a hundred chances of mistake. No one's memory can be trusted on that subject. Never try to trust yours. Let the law of the Medes and the Persians! I have always found it perfectly easy to follow that rule, and that is one reason I have a bank account today. My husband is never afraid I will make him any trouble with it.'"

HEED BAD ODORS.

They May Warn You of Places Where Disease Germs Lurk.

Even a bad odor has its uses. Scientists say that the offensive smell which comes from decaying and disease breeding matter is in reality one of nature's measures of preparedness and of prevention.

Offensive odors indirectly prevent the spread of epidemics by calling attention to the breeding place of the disease. They give warning that something is wrong, and they persist in this warning by becoming more and more offensive until the wrong is righted.

The odor does not convey the germ or communicate the disease, because in most cases direct contact is necessary to do this, or the infection is communicated by some substance taken into or brought in contact with the body. But it does tell where the disease exists or is likely to exist. It also gives warning of tainted or unfit food, as the nose is intended by nature to be one of man's chief allies in the fight for health.

Some have even gone so far as to state that mothers should not discourage or forbid children smelling their food before they eat it. The tendency to do this is said to be a natural one. The nose is not placed above the mouth by accident. It was designed in primitive man as a guidepost for his stomach, and it is still a good guide.—Louisville Courier-Journal.

The Looking Glass in Fiction.

All nations have shown by their stories how the looking glass is regarded as ministering to vanity. The ancient Greeks depicted Venus with a mirror and even described her chamber as lined all over with mirrors, so that whichever way her eyes turned she could behold her beautiful self. But Minerva never used a mirror. Pass to West Africa and we find a native story which begins with a magic mirror that possessed the power of speech and always said, "Mistress, there is none," when its owner, a woman called Maria, asked it, "My mirror, is there any other beautiful woman like myself?" But one day Maria's daughter entered the forbidden room where it was kept, asked a similar question and got a similar answer. A tale of maternal jealousy and vengeance follows.—London Spectator.

Sunlight and Germs.

Here is an instructive experiment made by scientists to show the effects of sunlight. Some germs of the terrible disease anthrax were sown on two plates of gelatin, and while one plate was kept in the dark the other was placed in the sunlight. The germs grew, and at the end of ten minutes there were 360 colonies or groups in the sunshine plate and 400 colonies in the dark plate.

One hour later the result was: In the sunshine plate, none; in the dark plate, 2,520. No disease germ thrives in sunlight.

ORCHARD AND GARDEN.

Deep cultivation in the orchard may do more harm than good. Three inches is deep enough around trees—once in two weeks.

When the "June drop" is over and before the pits harden is the right time to thin peaches on trees that are heavily laden. Cultivate the new strawberry bed and the bush fruits about once in ten days, but shallow. Surplus suckers in blackberry or raspberry patches should be treated just like weeds. Don't let the rows get too wide nor too thick.

Late or main crop cabbage and celery plants should not be set until the latter part of June or early in July.

Double cropping may be followed to advantage in a small garden. Beans, corn, cucumbers, tomatoes and late celery follow the early crops nicely.

CURING SWEET CLOVER.

Hay Should Be Left in Swath Until the Plants Are Well Wilted. [Prepared by United States department of agriculture.]

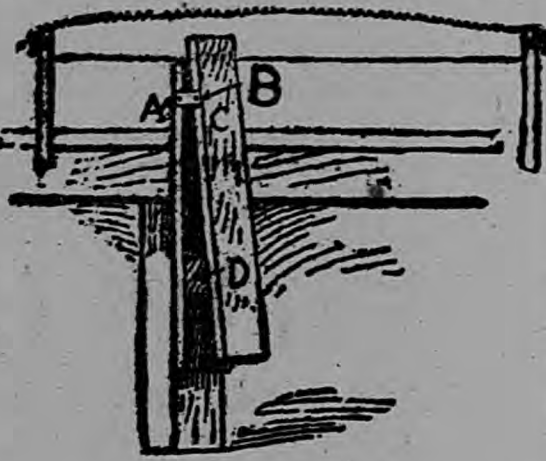

Serious injury to sweet clover stands may result by cutting the first crop of the second season too close to the ground. Examination of hundreds of acres of sweet clover in different sections of the United States during 1915 and 1916 showed that the stand on at least 50 per cent of the fields was partially or entirely killed by cutting too close. To prevent the loss of stands the United States department of agriculture advises farmers to examine fields carefully before mowing to determine the height at which the plants should be cut. At least one healthy bud or young branch should be left on each stub. In fact, the plants should be cut at least several inches above the young shoots or buds, as the stubble may die back from one to three inches if they are cut during damp or rainy weather.

One of the most successful methods for handling sweet clover hay is to allow the plants to remain in the swath until they are well wilted or just before the leaves begin to cure. The hay should then be raked into windrows and cocked at once. The cocks should be made as high and as narrow as possible, as this will permit better ventilation. In curing the cocks will shrink from one-third to one-half their original size. It may take ten days to two weeks to cure sweet clover by this method, but when well cured all the leaves will be intact and the hay will have an excellent color and aroma. When sweet clover is cocked at the proper time the leaves will cure flat and in such a manner that the cocks will readily shed water during heavy rains.

In stacking sweet clover a cover should be provided either in the form of a roof, a canvas or long, green grass. A foundation of rails, posts or boards is desirable, as this will permit the circulation of air under the stack. No instances of spontaneous combustion in sweet clover hay have been noted, says the writer of the bulletin, but this may be due to the fact that comparatively little sweet clover hay is stored in barns. The same precautions in this regard should be taken with sweet clover hay as with red clover or alfalfa.

Clamp For Saws.

Here is a plan for a saw clamp that is easy to make and is as good as a purchased one. Take two boards 2 by 6 inches and about three and one-half feet long. Nail one securely to your workbench and about eight inches

Plant Buckwheat.

Land to be used for buckwheat this year will be in proper condition for July seeding if plowed in early June and worked a few times before the crop is seeded. July seeding is usually better than earlier, as the ripening period should come during the cool weather of September, according to the Ohio agricultural experiment station.

Make Pigs Exercise.

Make pigs take exercise. A well fed pig that does not exercise is likely to get the thumps, and a pig with the thumps is as good as a dead pig, in the opinion of Carl P. Thompson, specialist in animal husbandry, Kansas State Agricultural college. Exercise is the only preventive. There is no cure.

A Storm That Made a Record.

The most violent storm that ever ravaged England occurred Nov. 26 and 27, 1703. The loss in London alone was $10,000,000. Eight thousand people were drowned in the floods. Twelve warships, with more than 1,800 men on board, were lost. Trees were uprooted—1,700 of them in Kent. Eddystone lighthouse was destroyed, and Winstanley, its contriver, was killed with several others.

Matrimonial Amenities.

"The wife and I had a spat this morning. She remarked that she didn't get much of a man when she married me."

"Whew! And what did you say?" "Oh, I agreed with her. I said if I'd been a high class man I wouldn't have picked her out."—Boston Transcript.

Modesty.

Modesty is one of the sweetest and most desirable qualities one can possess, and yet too much modesty hinders advancement. When this quality is overdeveloped it antagonizes aggressiveness, without which no great success can be attained.

Sympathetic.

Cabanne—Is he a good doctor? Chouteau—Oh, yes, a very good doctor.

"Well, I like a sympathetic doctor." "Oh, well, he's sympathetic. He never makes me pay in advance."—St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

Voice of the Turtle.

King Solomon in his song says: "The winter is over and gone; the flowers appear on the earth; the time of the singing of birds is come, and the voice of the turtle is heard in the land."

The term "Wallons" is used to designate those Belgians who speak French or a French dialect, while the Flemings are those who speak Dutch or a Dutch dialect.

CRYING FOR HELP

Lots Of It In Princess Anne But Daily Growing Less

The kidneys often cry for help. Not another organ in the whole body more delicately constructed; No one more important to health. The kidneys are the filters of the blood.

When they fail the blood becomes foul and poisonous. There can be no health where there is poisoned blood.

Backache is one of the frequent indications of kidney trouble. It is often the kidney's cry for help.

Read what Doan's Kidney Pills have done for overworked kidneys. Read what Doan's have done for Princess Anne people.

Mrs. James A. Hayman, Beechwood street, Princess Anne, says: "I was in a bad way about two years ago with a severe backache, which caused me untold pain. Whenever I stooped over and then tried to straighten up, sharp pains like the thrust of a knife struck me in the small of my back. I was very miserable until I heard of Doan's Kidney Pills and used a box. I was rid of the trouble."

TEST YOUR LUNGS.

A Simple Method by Which One May Measure His Development.

People often suffer from weak, undeveloped lungs without suspecting it. True, small, feeble lungs are usually associated with a small, narrow or sunken chest, but not invariably. By means of the misuse of physical culture it is possible to develop large chest muscles, thus acquiring a big chest measurement, while the lungs remain small and ill nourished.

Again, lung mischief is often so slow and insidious in its approach that the trouble is not discovered until it is firmly established. Here, however, is a simple test which will tell you whether your lungs are healthy or not: Take as deep a breath as you can, and then, in a slow but distinct voice count from one onward as far as you can without taking in more breath. The number of seconds you can continue counting is a pretty reliable index to the state of your lungs, so you should have some one to time you.

If your lungs are sound and normally developed your range will be between twenty and thirty-five seconds. If your limit is between ten and twenty seconds there is no need to be alarmed; probably your lungs are merely in need of exercise, to be readily obtained by regular deep breathing in pure air. A range less than ten seconds, however, points to more or less mischief, and you should not delay in having your lungs examined by a medical man.

WONK LAND FOR WHEAT AT ONCE

College Park, Aug. 9.—What will the 1918 wheat crop be, or rather what can be done to insure the best possible results?

Now is Maryland to meet the situation calling for more bushels? Will it be by increased acreage or by increased production per acre? Undoubtedly both would be ideal; but both are hardly possible. The acreage increase can hardly be more than 15 per cent. because in those counties of the State where wheat is a main crop, the acreage is at present almost a maximum. There are ten counties in the State where wheat is a secondary crop, due to the other crops which have proven more profitable; and we find, considering all angles of the situation, that a large increase in acreage would be apt to disturb the balance of other crops, and increased acreage also brings with it the need of more labor, which at present is very scarce.

The route to follow, then, is obvious, a greater production per acre, and the opinion of the Extension Service of the Maryland State College of Agriculture is that one of the most important factors entering into this is early seed bed preparation.

In the principal wheat growing districts the methods of land preparation for wheat, on the average farm, is very good. But on many, due to the scarcity of labor, plowing of stubble where wheat is to follow wheat is being delayed, and each week of delay means so much loss in weed growth, so much loss in moisture, and more work eventually at seeding time with a less effective seed bed.

To offset late plowing, all land for wheat should be thoroughly disked as soon as possible. Time spent in this way is not wasted, for a disk before plowing breaks up the clods which would be difficult to reach with a disk or harrow when they have been turned under. It kills weeds and puts a mulch on the surface reducing the loss of water, the supply of which is often a very determining factor in the next year's crop.

Where wheat does not follow wheat, it is customary to seed it in the stubble after corn. In the sections where stones interfere with disking, a spring-tooth harrow takes the place of the disk; but whatever the implement used on the stubble, the seed bed should be as deep as is possible to make it, should be dragged or rolled to make it compact as a preventive measure against winter-killing and heaving, and this should be done as quickly as possible after the corn is off.

Briefly the advice to wheat growers is to get onto the land and work it as soon as possible, stubble land at present with a disk if not with a plow, and the corn land as soon as the crop can be taken off.

SHEEP GROWERS ORGANIZE.

College Park, Aug. 9.—What is hoped to be the criterion of many similar actions over the State is the recent organization in Garrett county of a Sheep Growers' Association.

In order to put this waning industry back into the place where it belongs, some effective measures must be taken to control the vagrant dogs, to purchase co-operatively better stock, and to lend more encouragement generally than the sheep growing industry has heretofore met with.

This Association hopes to meet these needs in various ways, and has, among other things, addressed and circulated a petition addressed to the next meeting of the State Legislature for the passage of a State-wide Dog Law, similar to the one now in force in Allegany county.

The Sheep Growers' Association, as now organized, will consist of local sheep clubs in the several districts of the county, and these will be affiliated with the County Association. Representatives of the former will constitute the governing board of the latter. There is a great need for many more like organizations in the State, and plans for organization will be gladly furnished by any County Agent for his respective county, or by Mr. F. B. Bomberger, of the Extension Service of the State Agricultural College.

KEEP ON SWATTING.

College Park, Aug. 9.—Perhaps the suggestion for continued warfare on the house fly at this season seems ill-timed. Flies have been with us for several months, and their great numbers make the matter of extermination seem rather a huge undertaking. But freedom from the fly nuisance results during the entire warm months, not in killing the ones already hatched, but through preventive measures to destroy the breeding places.

On the farm, undoubtedly the most convenient and easily accessible hatchery, from the fly's viewpoint at least, is the manure pile.

As long as breeding places are convenient, flies will be with us always. This means there must be some community effort in the thickly settled districts, but the individual effort counts for much. Stables kept clean is one preventive. A screened manure pit is another, while probably the most convenient methods is to treat the manure with borax. One pound of borax will treat 16 bushels of manure.

MARKETING THE HONEY CROP

College Park, Aug. 16.—The marketing of any product is a problem entirely aside from the business of production. So involved has this problem become that all large business concerns recognize the necessity of employing experts to place their products where they will sell the most readily and secure the most profitable return.

Individual producers have paid too little attention to this important phase of their business. Beekeepers in particular seldom realize the necessity of doing more than produce honey which may be disposed of as quickly as possible to the highest bidder. Producing honey is only one-half the game. If the other half is neglected the results are only fifty per cent.

Efficient marketing concerns itself with four distinct problems; the production of a standard article, maintaining a constant supply, regulating distribution, and consistent advertising. It may be argued that these are problems for the commission men, wholesalers, and corporate concerns; that the individual producer will find it unprofitable or inadvisable to both market and produce. Nevertheless, the difference in returns will usually more than repay for the effort required to market properly.

Broadly speaking there are two distinct markets for honey; the local market, and the wholesale market. Few beekeepers in Maryland sell at wholesale, most of the honey being disposed of in the immediate neighborhood. However, contrary to the prevailing idea, the market principles mentioned are most important where local selling is practiced.

Nothing is more discouraging to the honey business than the yearly dumping of the entire crop on local markets, in any kind of a package, with little or no advertising, and at ridiculously variable prices. Beekeeping will never become a business until every beekeeper realizes the importance of proper marketing.

It is essential that each producer develop a standard, neatly labeled and attractive package both for comb and extracted honey. These packages once secured should remain unchanged from year to year and be kept constantly before the public by consistent advertising in the papers, in the store windows, by road side signs, posters, etc.

It is ruinous to dispose of all the honey at once as the best of trades will soon die if its demands are not constantly filled. As the market expands and the competition becomes keener it may be best to dispose of the product that crowded and over-supplied markets may be avoided. Underselling is never safe and should be avoided. It results in artificially lowering the local market. Beekeepers should guide themselves by the general market. They will find the honey market reports issued by the Department of Markets a great aid in determining prices. These reports may be secured free by application to the Office of Markets United States Department of Agriculture, Washington, D. C.

Maryland beekeepers should realize also that comb honey of a fine grade is not easily produced in the State and that because of this fact and the tremendous demand for liquid honey on the general market the production of extracted honey is the best business proposition.

WHEN THE HENS MOULT.

College Park, Aug. 16.—That proper care and feeding of hens during the moulting season is of utmost importance is being pointed out by Roy H. Waite, Poultryman of the Agricultural Experiment Station. He says:

"Take good care of your hens during the moult if you wish them to produce eggs for you later in the season. The moulting produces quite a jolt to hens. This is shown by their nervous condition at the time of moulting and by their dropping off laying. Naturally birds moult a few feathers at a time, but this has all been changed in the domestic fowl which moults in a comparatively short time. Some of the best laying hens seem to drop their feathers all at once.

"During the moult hens do not require as much energy, heat and fat forming feeds as they do when laying but they do need more tissue building feeds. Linseed meal furnishes just the kind of nourishment needed to produce feathers. Add about 10 per cent. of linseed meal to the mash during the moulting period. Sunflower seeds are just as good. If you have them feed a liberal amount. Be careful not to overfeed hens that have just come through the moult, as there is a tendency for them to become overfat.

"Keep them active and working and soon they will get back to laying, if they are the laying kind."

There are more than 1,100 boys enrolled in the Club contests in Maryland, and their activities cover the growing to corn, tobacco, potatoes, pigs and poultry. Potatoes will be the first of the crops harvested and in spite of the rainy weather having caused some delay in getting the crop planted, a very large number of boys will be in the competition. There are many instances of where the boys are outstripping their fathers in the production of different crops.

Pale Faced Women Take Phosphates to Make Rosy Cheeks and Beautiful Forms Men Need Phosphates to Make Strong, Healthy, Vigorous Bodies

Atheletes increase their strength, energy and endurance 200% or more by simply taking a few weeks treatment of Argo-Phosphate.

Atlanta, Ga. Dr. F. A. Jacobson says that Phosphates are just as essential to any man or woman who tries easily, is nervous, or irritable, worn out, or looks haggard and pale to make a strong, robust, vigorous, healthy body, as they are to cotton to make it grow. The lack of Phosphate is the cause of all enemic conditions and the administration of 5-grain Argo-Phosphate tablets will increase the strength and endurance of weak, nervous men and women 300 per cent. in two or three weeks time in many instances, and their continued use will build up the whole nervous system, and give new life, vim, vigor, and vitality to the whole body. I always prescribe Argo-Phosphate to patients who are pale and colorless, and it is surprising to see how quickly a few weeks treatment will transform a pale face to a rosy cheeked beauty. There can be no rosy cheeked, healthy, beautiful woman, without their system is sufficiently supplied with Phosphates. In recent interviews with physicians on the grave and serious consequences of a deficiency of Phosphates in the blood of American men and women, I have strongly emphasized the fact that doctors should prescribe more phosphates in the form of Argo-Phosphate for weak, worn-out, haggard-looking men and women. When the skin is pale, and flesh flabby, it is a sign of anemia. When the phosphates go from the blood, the pink cheeks go, too. The muscles lack tone. They become nervous, irritable, despondent, melancholy, the brain fags, and the memory fails. Therefore if you wish to preserve your youthful vim, vigor and vitality to a ripe old age, you must supply the deficiency of phosphates lacking in your food by using Argo-Phosphate, the form of Phosphates most easily assimilated.

NOTICE: Argo-Phosphate which is recommended and prescribed by physicians in all enemic cases is not a secret or patent medicine, but one that is sold and recommended by well known druggists everywhere, and physicians are daily prescribing the constituents contained in it. Being entirely unlike many other Phosphates, it is easily assimilated and will be found effective in the treatment of indigestion and stomach troubles, as well as for care worn, nervous conditions. The manufacturers of Argo-Phosphate will forfeit to any charitable institution $200.00 if they cannot treat any man or woman under 65 who lacks Phosphates, and increase their strength and endurance from 100 per cent. to 300 per cent. or more in one month's time, if they are free from organic trouble. It is dispensed by all reliable druggists. If your druggist will not supply you, send $1.00 to the Argo Laboratories, 10 Foreyth St., Atlanta, Ga., and they will send you a two weeks treatment by return mail.

Endowed Cemetery Plots

Mr. John S. McMaster, of Jersey City, N. J., recently visited the old Tennent Presbyterian Church built in 1750 on part of the site of the Battle of Monmouth, near Freehold, N. J., and in a letter says:

"This has been a church site since about 1690. This quaint old wooden white church and the large cemetery surrounding it are now in excellent condition. This church is practically today as it was when first built, with its high pulpit, sounding board, high pews and galleries. Unfortunately several similarly built old historic churches in our Land of Evergreens have either been destroyed or changed to look like modern churches.

"In the old Tennent Cemetery I found many burial plots which had in them a small, tasteful green enameled plate with the word 'Endowed' thereon in white letters.

"I trust that a system like this will be generally used in the cemeteries on the Eastern Shore. An endowment of $30 at 4 per cent. produces $2 a year, which is the annual charge in some of our cemeteries for keeping up these plots. Our own family burial plot has lately been thus endowed."

ENTRANCE EXAMINATIONS

State Scholarships In Engineering Courses

ENTRANCE EXAMINATIONS for the Department of Engineering, as well as for the College of Arts and Sciences, will be held in Gilman Hall, September 17th to 20th, 1917, beginning at 9 a. m. each day.

APPLICATIONS FOR SCHOLARSHIPS IN THE DEPARTMENT OF ENGINEERING, established under the provisions of the Laws of Maryland, Chapter 90, 1912, will now be received. If there is more than one applicant for a particular scholarship, a competitive examination must be taken Friday, September 21st, 1917, beginning at 9 a. m. Appointments will be made soon after.

Each Legislative District of Baltimore City, and each County of the State, with the exception of Caroline and Somerset Counties, will be entitled to one or more scholarships for the year 1917-1918, in addition to those which have already been assigned. In the two counties mentioned above, all the available scholarships have been awarded.

Under the provisions of the Act of Assembly, the County and City Scholarships in the Department of Engineering are awarded only to deserving students whose financial circumstances are such that they are unable to obtain an education in Engineering unless free tuition be granted to them. The scholarships entitle the holders to free tuition, free use of text-books, and exemption from all regular fees. The expense of attendance for those who do not receive scholarships is no greater than at other Maryland institutions.

Scholarships may be awarded to graduates of Loyola College, St. John's College, Washington College, Western Maryland College, Maryland Agricultural College, Mt. St. Mary's College, Rock Hill College, and one scholarship will be awarded "At large."

Applicants should address the Registrar, The Johns Hopkins University, for blank forms of application and for further information as to examinations, award of scholarships, and courses of instruction.

Alfalfa In The County

A number of farmers in the county have tried growing alfalfa during the past few years and in most cases have met with success.

Alfalfa does well on some of the heavier and well-drained soils of the county and makes a very desirable hay. Alfalfa hay is eaten readily and can be fed with good results to horses, cattle, sheep, brood sows and laying hens. Alfalfa will cut down the amount of grain that is fed in the ration which is an important consideration under present conditions.

Once alfalfa is established it will last for several years in this section and will yield three to four cuttings of valuable hay during the season. The feeding value of the hay is greater than that of red clover hay. When a stand of alfalfa is broken up corn or other crops yield heavily, for the alfalfa, being a legume, adds a large supply of nitrogen to the soil and the long roots improve its physical condition by making the lower layers more porous.

Alfalfa requires a carefully prepared seed bed. The land should be free from weeds before alfalfa is sown and it is usually well to have some cultivated crop to precede it. Alfalfa does well following early potatoes or cowpeas. The land should have been manured for the preceding crop, but not before the alfalfa is sown, on account of weeds being introduced into the soil. Plowing the soil before alfalfa is sown is desirable; it is not always necessary if the land was plowed for a preceding crop and has been kept free from trash. Disking often gives good results when the land is in good condition. When land is plowed, the work should be done several weeks before seeding to give the soil time to settle and become firm. Alfalfa grows best in a soil that is fine and mellow on the surface but is fairly compact beneath, so that it will hold moisture well.

About 2 to 2½ tons of ground oyster shell or limestone should be applied and worked into the land about a week before sowing. Seed should be inoculated with soil from old alfalfa field or by the use of pure cultures of the bacteria. Seed should be sown broadcast or with seed drill at the rate of 20 to 24 pounds to the acre, 10 to 12 pounds each way, and sown a little deeper than red clover. In this section the best time for sowing the seed is from August 25 to the 1st of September, depending on weather conditions. Plenty of moisture should be in the ground when the seed are sown. For further information in regard to growing of alfalfa write your county agent, C. Z. Keller.

Flowers That Yield Soap.

English countryfolk, on occasion, still find substitutes for soap among the wild flowers of the hedgerow. The best of these is the soapwort, which contains a mucilaginous juice which lathers freely, but almost equally good for washing purposes are the corn cockle, the wild lychins, the scarlet pimpernel, and the familiar clove. The fruit of the horse chestnut, also, has saponine qualities, and is largely used in place of soap in rural districts on the continent.

Ask Anyone Who Has Used It

There are families who always aim to keep a bottle of Chamberlain's Colic and Diarrhoea Remedy in the house for use in case it is needed, and find that it is not only a good investment but saves them no end of suffering. As to its reliability, ask anyone who has used it.

CAN YOU SPARE ONE DOLLAR?

At present prices the paper which goes into a year's subscription to the Marylander and Herald costs just 88 cents, without freight. It is plain that after the cost of printing and postage is added there is but little profit for the publisher. As a fact, every subscriber costs the publishers a good bit more than the charge of $1.00 a year. By looking at the label on your paper you can see if you are in arrears. If so, you will confer a favor by paying your subscription, and not expect us to continue sending the Marylander and Herald when you could pay the One Dollar more promptly.

Home Canning

No one has a better chance to serve the nation than the farm woman who knows how to can the garden vegetables that are not easily dried or stored. She helps to keep the family in good health by having on hand a variety of vegetables that balance up the meat and bread, and makes the store bill smaller. If she lives near a village she may possibly be able to sell a few jars to people who have not taken the pains to can or save vegetables for winter use. She will probably have the best success by following the plan prepared by the Department of Agriculture for the girls who are members of home economic clubs in Maryland. This plan is called the cold-pack method. The vegetables to be canned are handled in the following way: First, the vegetables are blanched in steam or boiling water; third, the hot jars are filled; fourth, the vegetables are cooked after they are packed in the sterilized jars; fifth, the vegetables in the sealed jars are sterilized by standing the jars in boiling water in a wash boiler with a homemade rack in the bottom of it. Vegetables should be canned just as soon after picking as possible.

For complete directions for canning vegetables write to your County Home Demonstration Agent, Miss Rhea Morgan.

HAVE YOU WEAK LUNGS?

Do colds settle on your chest or in your bronchial tubes? Do coughs hang on, or are you subject to throat troubles?

Such troubles should have immediate treatment with the strengthening powers of Scott's Emulsion to guard against consumption which so easily follows.

Scott's Emulsion contains pure cod liver oil which peculiarly strengthens the respiratory tract and improves the quality of the blood; the glycerine in it soothes and heals the tender membranes of the throat.

Scott's is prescribed by the best specialists. You can get it at any drug store.

Concerning Your Telephone

—Receivers—

ALWAYS hang up your telephone receiver when you have finished a conversation.

A receiver left off the hook automatically shuts off all incoming calls, and on a party line it puts the entire line out of service, both for calling and receiving.

It is apparently a little thing, but it can bring about serious results. Consider, for instance, where it involves an emergency call for a doctor or on account of fire.

Timber and Wood in Demand

State Forester Besley Advises Woodland Owners To Cut Timber

Timber and wood have never been as valuable as they are now. The large quantity of lumber required by the Government for war purposes, the great industrial expansions taking place in our cities, are rapidly using up the surplus on hand and creating a local demand for saw timber, railroad ties, poles, piling, and all products derived from the forests. Even cordwood, which heretofore has been difficult to sell, is now sure to be in demand this winter and next winter.

This affords an excellent opportunity for woodland owners to sell any mature timber and to utilize defective trees, or those of poor species, for cordwood. The present indications are that coal will be high in price and difficult to get, especially in the smaller towns, on account of shortage of cars.

Wood cut during August will probably be sufficiently seasoned to sell after January 1st. It is likely that timber prices will continue good after the war, so that woodland owners should cut conservatively now in order to have another timber crop in a few years from the small and middle-sized trees that have not yet reached their maximum value.

State Forester F. W. Besley, of Baltimore, Maryland, will advise any one how and what to cut for timber or for cordwood and how to find a market for it, if you will write to him at the above address.

He is now making an inspection trip through all of the counties of the State and will probably be able to visit your place and advise you on the ground, if requested to do so, and without charge.

The following is quoted from a letter just received from the U. S. Civil Service Commission, Washington, D. C.:

"The United States Government needs, and needs badly, great numbers of Stenographers and Typewriters, both men and women.

"Students just starting a course of study may be informed that there is now practically no limit to the number of stenographers and typewriters the Government needs.

"The Commission believes that the study of stenography and typewriting by a great number of persons with a view of entering the Government service will be justified. The usual entrance salary ranges from $900 to $1200 a year."

The business demand for secretaries, stenographers and bookkeepers is also very urgent, and all students beginning a course with us during the next few months can be sure of employment promptly upon graduation at salaries higher than ever paid before.

DEMOCRATIC TICKET FILED

No Contest Among Somerset Democrats In The Primaries

Last Tuesday the Progressive wing of the Democratic party filed a list of their candidates with the Board of Election Supervisors and, as no other names for the general election or State Central Committee have been filed, there will be no contest among the Democrats of Somerset county in the primaries. The Democratic ticket to be voted for at the coming election follows:

For County Treasurer—Frank D. Layfield, of Princess Anne.

For the House of Delegates—Harley D. Bennett, of Rock Creek; Lorie C. Quinn, Jr., of Crisfield; Frank M. Heminger, of Lawson's district.

For County Commissioner—E. Dengett Long, of Westover.

For Sheriff—W. James Hurley, of Crisfield.

Delegates to the State Convention—Joseph W. Disharoon, of Crisfield; Asbury S. Henderson, of Brinkley's district; Fred Thornton, of Crisfield, and J. Rigby Giles, of Dame's Quarter. State Central Committee—William F. Byrd, of Crisfield; William T. G. Polk, of Princess Anne, and Aden Davis, of Marion Station.

Julian Blades Killed In Auto Accident

Julian R. Blades was instantly killed in an automobile accident near Burnettsville school house, on the State road, 8 miles from Crisfield, about 2 o'clock last Sunday morning.

The car was driven by Marvin Scott, of Crisfield, and its occupants were Blades, Ralph Riggan, Emory Byrd and Linwood Wilson, all members of Company L, which is mobilized at the Crisfield Army. The soldiers were accompanying Scott to Princess Anne, where he was coming to get the Sunday papers which arrive here on the 3.38 train, when the car negotiated a short turn in the road while travelling at high speed. The machine struck a culvert on the side of the road, turned turtle and all of the occupants were thrown out. Blades was pinned beneath the car and his skull was crushed. Riggan suffered a broken collar-bone and the others received a few scratches. The car was completely wrecked.

Dr. I. A. B. Allen, of Marion, was called to the scene of the accident and rendered medical aid to the injured, but found that Blades' death had been instant. The dead soldier is 23 years of age and a resident of Crisfield, being unmarried but survived by a father and mother.

Miraculous Escape On Unsafe Bridge

Messrs. Isaac Hall, Linwood Taylor and Paul Lawrence, while on their way home from Deal's Island camp Sunday night, the 19th instant, was run down and violently struck by an automobile, driven by a careless driver, on the long bridge that connects the Island with the main land. The carriage was demolished, the horse thrown off the bridge and the boys, by a miracle, escaped with their lives. The bridge at this point is unsafe, the public, in case of accident, being protected only by a small wire drawn along the sides for a railing. The car, after doing the damage, drove on without rendering aid, and the identity of the occupants is unknown.

In order to avoid further accidents, which are sure to occur with the bridge in its present unsafe condition, the people of the county should demand that a substantial rail be built on both sides of the bridge. Reckless auto drivers should also be overhauled.

Williams-Giles Wedding

Miss Neva Emma Giles, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. Rigby Giles, of Dame's Quarter, this county, was married to Mr. William J. Williams, of Delmar, Del., on Saturday evening, August 18th, at the parsonage of Alnutt Methodist Protestant Church, Baltimore, by the Rev. F. T. Little.

Mr. Williams is convalescing from a recent injury he received while at work on the railroad, and it was this fact which hastened the marriage, which was to have taken place in September. After the ceremony Mr. and Mrs. Williams left for Norfolk, and expect to visit their parents, after which they will reside in Baltimore.

WASHINGTON H. S. IMPROVEMENTS

The Third Floor To Be Reconstructed Giving 5 Rooms Instead of 3

Considerable attention has been directed to the improvements that are necessary to relieve the congestion at the Princess Anne High School. It was thought at first that a room would be rented for the primary department on Prince William street. This has been found to be impossible. The county superintendent has suggested to the Board of Education plans for reconstructing the second floor of the high school building. These plans meet the approval of the Board and when carried out there will be five rooms instead of three, as at present. The principal's room will include a portion of the unnecessary passageway and a rolling partition will enable the two rooms thus constructed to be thrown into one for an assembly hall. On the west side two rooms will also take the place of the one, and a portion of the central room will be utilized as a cloak room. The portion known as the "Library" will be used for laboratory and domestic science work and a small room below will be devoted to the purpose of a library. The heating plant will also be readjusted to suit the necessary changes.

Mr. Columbus Lankford has charge of the reconstruction and work has already been begun to complete it. Mr. D. D. Hickey will make the changes required in the heating plant and toilet rooms. These changes will put the building in much better shape and will relieve the question of attempting to add the wings at this time, when the cost of building is so great.

Miss Dashiell Gives Proposal Party

Last Friday night Miss Nell Dashiell gave a "Proposal Party" at her home on Prince William street, which was highly enjoyed by those in attendance. In the party were:

Mr. and Mrs. L. Creston Beauchamp, Mr. and Mrs. H. L. Brittingham; Misses Margaret Dashiell, Henrietta Fitzgerald, Alice Fitzgerald, Dorothy Baum, Helen Fitzgerald, Elizabeth Pritchard, Margaret McBryde, Martha Starr, Louise Fitzgerald, Charlotte Todd, Emily Layfield, Elizabeth Jones, Clara Lankford, Elizabeth Smith, Dorothy Todd, Eleanor Kuhns, Frances Alvord, Mary Miles Dashiell, Amanda Lankford, and Messrs. Robert Duer, Julian Todd, Thomas H. Fitzgerald, Homer Kemp, Robert Chamberlin, Sandy Paxton, Joseph Scott, Gilbert Fitzgerald, William Ruark, Everett Cannon, Charles Smith, Warfield Dashiell, Percy Maddox, Randolph Maddox, Duncan McBryde, Robert Oates, Charles Fitzgerald and Charles J. Smith.

Mr. Tull Out Of Judgeship Contest

Last Wednesday Mr. Gordon Tull, of Princess Anne, forwarded to the Boards of Election Supervisors of the four counties of the First Judicial Circuit his sworn declaration of his withdrawal as a candidate for one of the associate judges of the circuit. His letter was as follows:

"On account of the conditions existing in the Democratic party in Somerset county, due to factional wrangles and the apathy apparently existing as to the coming primary election caused thereby, and in view of the State Machine in the other three counties comprising the First Judicial Circuit being against me, my chances are too slim to continue in the race, therefore I have decided to withdraw."

He also notified the papers of the four counties to discontinue the announcement of his candidacy.

State Steamer Sold For $50,000

The Conservation Commission last week sold the State steamer Governor Thomas to the Cotter Transportation Company, of New York, for $50,000. The price is regarded as an exceptionally good one and represents not only the original cost of the boat, but it is said, the cost of all repairs made to her since she was commissioned. The Governor Thomas was built in 1884, rebuilt in 1904 and elaborately repaired in 1914. She has been out of commission ever since the Conservation Commission was created, that body having come to the conclusion that the State did not need two steamers.

Capt. Green Instructor At Fort Myer

The War Department last Thursday ordered a group of Marylanders and Virginians, most of them graduates of the Fort Myer training camp, to return to that camp and become instructors for the new class of officers now beginning work. Only reserve officers who showed pronounced military aptitude were selected to work alongside the regular army officers in training the new men.

Among the Marylanders ordered to Fort Myer as instructors was Captain J. Weldon Green, son of Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin K. Green, of Manokin, Md.

Yaeger-Jones Wedding

Miss Nina Marie Jones, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William W. Jones, of Chance, this county, was married to Mr. Charles H. Yaeger, of Baltimore, on Saturday afternoon, August 18th.

The wedding took place in the parsonage of Alnutt Methodist Protestant Church, Baltimore, at 3 p.m., the Rev. F. T. Little performing the ceremony. There were no attendants, and the wedding was witnessed only by the relatives and a few intimate friends of the couple. The bride was attired in a dark blue traveling suit, with hat and gloves to match, and wore a corsage bouquet of Bride roses. Immediately after the ceremony the couple left for a trip to Philadelphia, Atlantic City and points in Virginia and Southern Maryland.

After September 10 Mr. and Mrs. Yaeger will be at home at 1933 Jefferson street, Baltimore.

Attempt To Burn Accomac Court House

Attempts to burn the Accomac (Va.) County Court House late last Wednesday night are believed by officials to have been the work of men who sought to evade the draft by destroying the records which they erroneously believed were kept in the building. Oil was poured on the inside stairway and fire set to it, but the blaze soon was discovered and extinguished.

Glen Ruark Injured While Diving

Glen Ruark, aged 23 years, late Sergeant of Company L, of Crisfield, and a son of Mr. and Mrs. Edward F. Ruark, of that city, is in a critical condition in the University Hospital, Baltimore, as the result of injuries which the young man sustained while in bathing with a party of friends at Old Island Sunday, the 19th instant.

Mr. Ruark made a dive from a boat at Old Island in about 7 feet of water, but apparently he struck the bottom or some substance below the water. He immediately came to the surface and it was seen by his companions that he had been injured. Mr. George Poleyette went to his assistance and later Mr. Leonard C. Sterling. He was removed from the water and taken to the Crisfield hospital, where it was found that a blow on the back, just below the neck, had broken his backbone and caused his body to be paralyzed from below the chest.

In an attempt to save the young man's life he was taken to the University Hospital, Baltimore, Monday night of last week, being accompanied by his wife, father-in-law and Miss Gertrude Melvin, a trained nurse.

Can and Alleviate Suffering

The ladies of the county are urged to make the best of their opportunities for canning and preserving. Just now, when fruits and vegetables are in abundance, is the time for work.

This is the most practical service that can be rendered by the housekeepers. Can for your own household. Can for the use of soldiers in the hospitals and convalescent homes. Can for those in your own community who may need help during the coming winter. There may be many of the last named.

The dangers of food shortage are not imaginary, and a little extra work and care just now may be the means of real alleviation of distress later on.

General Coleman duPont has offered, through his friend, Senator Harrison, to build and present to Maryland a road between Selbyville and Showell, the last remaining link between the Maryland Good Roads System and the duPont road in Delaware, after the five-mile strip between Berlin and Showell, now under construction, is completed.

JURORS FOR SOMERSET COUNTY

Those Who Will Serve At The September Term Of Court

Last Wednesday afternoon Chief Judge John R. Pattison drew the following jurors to serve at the September term of the Circuit Court for Somerset County:

West Princess Anne District—Vernie G. Jones, Wm. T. Reese, William S. Fleming, Ernest J. Pusey.

Second Draft Not Before Spring Of 1918

A full statistical report on the operations of the draft law will be prepared at the Provost Marshal General's office as soon as the mobilization of the first increment of 687,000 men of the National Army has been completed some time early in October.

Pending the preparation of the report and careful analysis of the conditions it discloses, no steps toward calling a second increment to the colors will be taken.

General Crowder last Wednesday said that the call for the second increment never had been considered at any conference at which he was present and that he had no indication that it had been taken up in any way by President Wilson or Secretary Baker.

The first increment will fill all the training areas—16 National Guard camps and 16 National Army cantonments—to capacity, and there will be a surplus of men besides those assigned to the regular army. The regulars are now 12,000 above full authorized war strength by voluntary enlistment and the National Guard is in a similar situation.

Training facilities already are taxed to make ready for the front men now available and it is regarded as very unlikely that organization of an additional 500,000 men of the National Army can be begun until the early spring of 1918. Neither quarters nor personnel to train the force will be available before that time.

Men Still Needed For The Navy

Despite the fact that the operation of the Selective Draft Law has considerably diminished the number of young men available, enlistments in the Navy from Maryland place this State well up in the ranks of the Eastern Naval Division.

Lieutenant M. A. Leahy, Navy Recruiting Officer for the Maryland District, is somewhat disappointed, however, with the more recent results, and believes the falling off in applicants is due largely to the erroneous impression that the Navy's complement has been filled. Lieutenant Leahy is anxious to correct this impression.

There is still need of several thousand more recruits before the Navy will be completely filled to its recently authorized strength of 150,000. The ratings in which men are needed most urgently are apprentice seamen, firemen, cooks, bakers and mess-attendants.

Soldiers To Get More Pay

Officers and men of the National Guard, the Comptroller of the Treasury ruled last Thursday, are entitled to pay in the federal service at the rate of their service in the guard. A third-enlistment man in the guard, for instance, is entitled to third-enlistment pay from the government. Thousands of officers and men will by this ruling receive more pay than they expected.

REMEMBER REGISTRATION DATES

Do Not Fail To Get Your Name On The Registration Books

There will be three opportunities for Democrats to register this year. The first will be the special registration day next Tuesday, September 4th, prior to the primary of September 11th. The other two opportunities will be on Tuesday, October 2nd, and Tuesday, October 9th. These will be the only three days when new names will be added or transfers given to voters. The day of revision, which is Tuesday, October 16th, will be for revision only, and no registration can be had on that day.

Every person who has removed from his last place of residence since the November election, must get a transfer from his old voting district and register in the district where he is now living, or he may lose his vote by having his name stricken from the books. All persons who have moved from another county into this county since last election must go in person to his last voting precinct and get a transfer and present it in person to the district where he is now living to be registered, and this must be done either on Tuesday, October 2nd, or Tuesday, October 9th. As this will be an important election for Democrats no one should fail to attend to this very important public duty. Do not wait to be notified, but attend to the matter yourself, thereby insuring the saving of your franchise.

Fort McHenry To Be Military Hospital

The historic old Fort McHenry, near Baltimore, it is announced by the War Department, will be made No. 2 of a group of great military hospitals of the country, and Major H. S. Purnell, U. S. A. Medical Corps, has been detailed to Baltimore to make the preliminary survey of the reservation.

The plan includes the immediate erection of temporary hospital buildings for 500 beds, to be used at first to take care of patients from the training camps, Camp Meade, near Annapolis, and Camp Lee, at Petersburg, Va. It is expected, also, the immigration station will be fitted up for hospital use during the war.

After the American troops begin fighting, it is the purpose of the Medical Corps to transfer to Baltimore the patients returned from France on the hospital ships too badly wounded or invalided to return to the trenches.

Another general hospital will be located near New York.

To Sell Shipwrecked Wine

Collector of Internal Revenue Joshua W. Miles will embark in the wine business in a few days, when he will put 40-odd barrels of wine on the market.

The wine was salvaged from the wreck of the steamer A. A. Raven, which grounded and was broken up at Bodie Island, off the North Carolina coast, five months ago. It is California vintage stuff and was brought around from the Pacific Coast via the Panama Canal.

Nearly 50 barrels were washed ashore and were seized by the beach dwellers and a force of Coast Guards. A dispute arose as to its ownership, and the upshot was that all the barrels were taken in charge by Government officials and shipped to Baltimore as the nearest wet point for its disposal.

Here Collector Miles seized it and it goes on sale. The proceeds, less taxes, freight and other handling expenses, will be held till a decision is reached as to the ownership or partial ownership.

An Amusing Case

The Baltimore Sun of Wednesday gave a case that amused us. A man with a financial rating above $50,000, and who was qualified physically, drove up to the office of the exemption board in a $6,500 automobile, and claimed exemption on the ground that his wife and child needed his support. The board rejected his plea in a very summary way. The trouble with that board was, it did not examine the applicant's head. A man as deficient as he in gray matter ought not to be sent to the front. He may have money, health and brass, but he is lacking in sense. The war is making some startling revelations as to physical, mental and moral degeneracy. We did not know how weak we were as a nation until the test was applied.

THE GREAT ROMANCE OF PREPAREDNESS

By LOUIS JOSEPH VANCE

Novelization of the Motion Picture Play of the Same Name Produced for the International Film Service, Inc., Under the Direction of Wharton, Inc.

THE CAST.

MRS. VERNON CASTLE as Patricia Channing.
MILTON SILLS as Donald Parr.
WARNER OLAND as Baron Huroki.
DOROTHY GREEN as Fanny Adair.

SYNOPSIS.

Baron Huroki of Tokyo, conspiring to embroil the United States and Mexico in order to pave the way for the Japanese invasion of the Pacific coast, is hunted from the country by Patricia Channing, sole executrix of the $100,000,000 trust secretly created by patriotic preceptors to combat the national peril inherent in "unpreparedness." Establishing himself just across the Mexican border, Huroki schemes to be revenged upon Patricia, who owns vast properties just north of the border.

TWELFTH EPISODE

"Peace" Which Passeth All Understanding!

BEFORE THE STORM.

The punishment administered by the Channing ranch hands to the raiding party which, under the leadership of that redoubtable scoundrel, Pancho Zelaya, had descended—literally like wolves upon a sheepfold—upon Patricia's hacienda in the quiet of early morning, seemed to work with salutary effect upon the understanding of Senor Zelaya and his Japanese confederate, Baron Huroki.

Days of complete peace followed that abortive raid, lengthening into weeks.

Scouts sent out by Captain Donald Parr, acting for Patricia, reported that Zelaya and Huroki had apparently never again ventured forth from the mountain fastnesses to which they had been driven by the Channing people, after their rescue of Patricia and Donald.

Nor was there perceptible any indication of concentration of Mexican soldiery in the country south of the border—whether troops of the de facto government or followers of Zelaya's outlaw fortunes.

In natural consequence that vigilance which had been excited among border landowners by the raid insensibly relaxed. The stronger guards which they had established against further attempts against their lives and properties were weakened by degrees. With a single exception, they relaxed into that fatal false sense of security which had theretofore been theirs, thanks to long immunity from such outrages as had been visited upon other sections or the border country.

That solitary exception was a noteworthy one—Patricia Channing, who had suffered too much at the hands of Baron Huroki and his associates to believe that anything short of complete preparation to cope with further attentions would discourage the enemy.

Such measures, then, as Patricia and her counselors reckoned she must take to provide against possible disaster, must necessarily be put into effect with the greatest secrecy. A minimum of show must mask a maximum of intelligently directed protective efforts.

Patricia spent days riding over her lands in company with Donald, Rodman Pillsbury and a small staff of chosen lieutenants. The topography of the countryside was examined with minute attention.

The tremendous acreage of the Channing ranch favored such secrecy. It would have been almost possible, to mobilize and maintain a great army within its boundaries undetected—it would have been altogether possible had the resources of the land been sufficient to clothe and equip and provision such a force.

As it was, a very considerable number of men was added to the normal population of the ranch without attracting any attention whatsoever.

Picked employees rode forth from the hacienda well-nigh daily, for a time, on long tours into the interior and east and west along the border. And the results of their adventurings appeared daily, by twos and threes and singly—seasoned horsemen all, alert, clear-eyed, determined patriots. As a rule they timed their arrivals to occur during the hours of darkness; and as soon as they had reported to Donald Parr, they were assigned to specific duties at a distance from the main ranch houses, and disappeared into the night as silently as they had come. The hinterland of the ranch swallowed them up; in its remotest stretches they lived and wrought sedulously at their tasks, all ready for that summons which might come at any hour. Meantime they drilled quietly, as cavalry, as artillerymen, and as machine-gun crews. Within a period of time surprisingly brief, Patricia had at her command a secret legion of trained fighting men, ready for any emergency, inured to hardship, familiar with the border country, resolute and willing.

these had been going on for weeks before her arrival at the ranch.

Occasionally their reconnaissances carried these swift sentries of the air lanes south of the border; but the reports of their observers were invariably destitute of alarming information. Apparently the Mexican population was apathetic, resigned to the pursuits of peace. There was no more gun-running that could be discovered. There was no movement of troops perceptible. There were no raids. There was not even a lonely case of sniping to keep the patrols on the qui vive.

For all that, Patricia's preparations were pushed forward with unabated energy.

There came a day, several weeks after Zelaya's futile raid, when this young woman rode out to review her modest but wonderfully efficient forces.

She returned to the hacienda in the quiet of evening, weary but exhilarated.

"I'm not afraid," she told Donald with a nod of her head indicating the Mexican mountains in the south—their ragged ramparts looming in purple shades against the silvered skies of a perfect moonlight night. "Let them come!"

He laughed sympathetically, but shook a reproving head.

"Let us not fall into the pit of overconfidence," he said. "I know how you feel. It's wonderful to know that we have all these fine fellows to rally to our defense in case of need. But after all, they're only a handful; and what I fear is that the next act of aggression, when it comes, will be invasion in overwhelming forces. We have gone as far as we can in the matter of making these men the toughest kind of hard-hitting fighters; but there aren't enough of them to withstand an army's advance. From now on we must devote all our energies to the planning of means to equalize superior numbers with superior intelligence. We must be prepared to deliver a staggering blow before the enemy can find out how insignificant our forces are."

They sat in silence for a little, both gazing out over the shadowed distances beyond the border.

"It is too quiet—too quiet altogether," Parr mused aloud. "I can't forget that Huroki is somewhere out there—hiding, planning, restlessly scheming to serve his country's purposes and at the same time to gain his revenge for the setbacks he has received at our hands."

"Nor can I forget it," the girl replied. "Of one thing we may feel assured: If Huroki has any voice in the councils that are taking place down there, the blow, when it comes, will fall here first of all."

The shadow of premonition darkened her mood transiently. She shivered a little.

"I wonder," she said, "what intrigues he is hatching down yonder?"

There is a certain psychic sympathy between the minds of those that hate well, even as it is with those who love; there was less coincidence than might be thought in the fact that, at approximately the same time, Baron Huroki was uttering substantially similar observations concerning Patricia, at a distance of something like a day's ride from the hacienda.

The scene was the main room of an adobe dwelling of somewhat more pretentious proportions and appointments than is commonly to be found in the wilder sections of inland Mexico.

There were a number of other adobe houses near it; but this was the largest of the lot, and it was further distinguished by a restless going and coming of orderlies and officers of superior rank in the field uniforms of the Japanese army—though there was not lacking a sprinkling of others attired in the livery of the troops loyal to the de facto government of Mexico.

The dwelling was, in short, the headquarters of General Nogri, commander in chief of the allied Japanese and Mexican forces which had been secretly gathered together in this remote retreat and were now marking time, under arms, against receipt of word from Tokyo to proceed with the long-planned invasion of the southwestern United States.

From the slight eminence on which the headquarters building stood the valley sloped away in dimly moonlit perspective; and as far as one could see it was a city of dust-colored tents populated by regiment upon regiment of highly trained and efficient troops.

Within the headquarters building, in a large room, brightly lighted and furnished with soldierly severity, an informal council of war was in progress, General Nogri himself presiding.

He was a man of nearly sixty, yet carried his compact and athletic body with the ease of twenty-five. His heavy-lidded eyes were as bright as any youth's; the network of wrinkles that inclosed them, with the whiteness of his hair, alone betrayed his age. And the habit of incontestable authority was distinctively his. A man who measured his words before uttering them, who spoke seldom, having once spoken, was to be obeyed to the letter, he dominated the conference absolutely.

In that presence the blustering, valiant Zelaya diminished to his right stature, that of a rowdyish braggart, thus far failed; we can employ none of ours, for it would be fatal to have a Japanese caught in an act of espionage."

"What would you suggest, then?" Torreon asked thoughtfully.

"Find some way to stimulate the efficiency of your system. Get us some trustworthy information—no matter how."

"If I may make a suggestion—" Zelaya ventured. At a nod from Nogri he proceeded, pulling at his mustache to mask the smile of relish with which he anticipated permission to commit yet another atrocity on American soil.

"It is a long time since we have broken the peace of the border hereabouts. And these Americans have short memories. Let me send a few—a mere handful—of my men to execute a flying raid on the Channing ranch. I will guarantee results."

"How so?" Nogri demanded.

Zelaya bent over the map and with the blunt end of a greasy forefinger indicated a certain point.

"Here is a house fully twenty miles from the hacienda," he said. "It is the home of the man named Morgan, ranch foreman. He lives there with his son, his sister and his mother—his wife is dead. Both Morgan and his sister are deep in the confidence of the Senorita Channing. Let my men bring in either of these . . ."

He paused and showed his teeth in a smile of gruesome significance. "And I will promise to induce him—or her—to tell us everything we want to know."

Eagerly Huroki's eyes sought the face of his commander in chief. It told him, however, nothing. Impassively General Nogri deliberated; it was nearly two minutes later when he delivered his verdict.

"Let this thing be done," he said; and rose, ending the conference.

"PEACE WITH HONOR."

Gomez was the name of the man chosen by Zelaya to do the work he had suggested—"Gomez the Killer" was the sobriquet by which he was known to his fellows; a quiet-mannered, sad-faced Mexican of something a little under the average build of his breed.

Listening gravely to the instructions of his superior, he nodded gentle comprehension, and saluted forth to execute Zelaya's will with no more compassion in his heart than he would have felt if ordered to exterminate all but one or two of a nest of rattlesnakes.

He journeyed northward that night by motorcycle, and spent the following day in what appeared to be desultory riding about the country just south of the border, pausing at the dwelling of his friend and that to pass the time of day.

In all he made just twenty such calls. Then he retired to well-earned rest.

In the gray dusk of the next dawn twenty mounted and armed Mexicans rendezvoused with the Killer at a point some two miles south of the boundary line of the Channing ranch, and about twenty miles from its hacienda.

He was well-informed as to the habits of the patrol—both that maintained by the United States government and that which Patricia Channing had organized. Since it was the custom for raiding parties to cross the border by night or in earliest dawn, Gomez refrained from doing anything as commonplace. He recognized no necessity for a clash with the patrols when it could be avoided by the exercise of a little patience.

Conducting his command to a point where they could skulk under cover of wooded ground, secure from spying eyes, he scouted on foot to a spot whence, lying at length on the crest of a little hill, he could spy through the undergrowth that concealed him.

Below him, just beyond a shallow arroyo, lay the Morgan homestead.

It was a Sunday morning, very quiet and warm. The peace of unaccustomed indolence enveloped the homestead. By convention it was a morning for a late breakfast—late, that is, in the esteem of folk in the habit of rising with the sun. So it was all of two hours after sun-up when the smoke began to ascend from the chimney of the peaceful Morgan kitchen. In the doorway Bud Morgan and his sister Bess were watching with unbridled amusement the efforts of Bud's little boy, Sam, to ride an aged and well-informed donkey—a sad-eyed creature who demonstrated his intelligence by lying down as often as the child got firmly seated on his back.

Their laughter came clearly to the ears of the Killer. His own eyes twinkled sympathetically. Then he yawned and hoped that their summons to breakfast would not be too long delayed. It bored him to wait there in the heat and dust without the solace of a cigarette.

He fondled the grip of his revolver and relished that his orders had been strict—that he might not shoot now, when the three offered him such fair targets, and have done with the business without delaying to take two of them prisoners if possible.

In due time, however, the mother appeared in the doorway and called them in. The donkey was abandoned to crop his own breakfast. The doorway was left untenanted. Gomez subjected the surrounding landscape to one final, prolonged scrutiny, then turned, squirmed back through the underbrush, rose to his feet, and hurried to rejoin his fellows.

Leading their horses, the Mexicans moved forward furtively, surrounding the home without rousing the suspicions of its tenants.

To these the attack came like thunder from the blue. They breakfasted behind doors closed and bolted—by habit of precaution; that circumstance alone provided them with a chance for their lives.

There came a sudden rush of feet in the doorway, and the front door was furiously battered with rifle butts. Simultaneously a window adjoining the table was smashed in. Bud Morgan had barely time to spring to the cartridge belt and holster which hung on the wall behind them when the first shot sounded. He emptied a revolver at the window in response—meanwhile urging the two women and the child into the adjoining bedchamber.

As they disappeared the front door began to give to the blows of an ax. Bud had a second revolver ready for the rush that followed its breaking in. The satisfaction of seeing two of the raiders fall was at least his before he was charged and carried to the floor by half a dozen Mexicans.

Why he was not shot outright passed his understanding. His weapons empty, he fought madly with his bare hands. He was a young man, and hard and powerful; the combined exertions of the six could not avail to keep him down for long. One after another he struck and kicked them off, then struggled to his feet. At the same time he was assailed from behind; a staggering blow from a gun-butt all but felled him.

Sick with pain, he reeled out through the doorway. There others awaited him. He went down again under their assault, again fought his way to his feet, this time with a revolver which he had wrested from the grasp of one of his adversaries.

Gomez the Killer confronted him as he rose—wary of eye, almost diffident of manner, watching his prey warily, revolver poised. It was becoming plain to Gomez that this man was not to be taken alive. As Bud caught sight of him, he fired. The American's head jerked back sharply, there was a look of agony on his face, swiftly erased by the blankness of unconsciousness, his knees buckled, and he dropped—one side of his head a mass of blood.

It never occurred to the Killer to doubt that his bullet had penetrated Bud's brain. He wasted no more thought upon the unhappy man—after irritably kicking him—and passed on into the house.

The bedchamber door was down. Within, Bess Morgan was fighting for her life. A dead Mexican just beyond the threshold testified to the skill with which she had used the revolver which, its every chamber discharged, she was now employing as a club.

Slender and young, a mere slip of a fair-haired girl barely out of her teens, she fought with science and the desperation of one who faces, if not death, worse than death. She had no reason to anticipate any sort of mercy; her mother lay dead, a bullet through her heart, in a far corner of the room; her little nephew had just dropped out of the window to be ruthlessly shot down as he fled round a corner of the house.

Lounging in the doorway, a shoulder against it, Gomez rolled and lighted a cigarette, watching her struggles with a glimmer of approbation. Gringo women like this, with such spirit and strength, were worth fighting for. The Killer regretted that he must hand her over to his superior. What a woman—once he had tamed her!

She was standing off no less than three Mexican desperadoes—one she stretched out with a skull cracked by a shrewd blow from the butt of the revolver, even while Gomez watched. But the others were too many for her; stepping back to avoid their rushes, she tripped over the body of one of their fellows, and went down. That was the end; in another moment she was helpless in their hands.

Gomez straightened up from the doorway. "Come," he said quietly; "hold her fast, but don't hurt her."

Struggling hopelessly, the girl was dragged from the house and thrown into the saddle of a horse belonging to one of the fallen Mexicans. Her captors rode knee-to-knee with her, on either side. There was no possibility of escape, yet she would not lose heart. She affected a sudden weakness, sat drooping, with head bowed and hands clasped on the pommel. The cavalcade swept to the tune of rushing hoofs out of the doorway, down into the arroyo, up its farther bank, and so

Behind it the Morgan homestead roared with flames, a funeral pyre for the body of the murdered mother.

The girl would not let herself think of that. She understood now that she had been taken alive for a purpose. She must defeat that purpose, either by escaping or by bringing her own death about in attempting to escape. She dared not think of the horror that lay behind, lest it unnerve her and make her fail.

Leaving the open country, the raiders took to the highroad. If they had eluded the patrols, they did not hope for long to go unpursued. Their safest course lay in open flight by the fastest practicable route to the hills. They spared neither their horses nor themselves.

It so happened that the animal ridden by Bess Morgan was one of the poorest of the lot. It lagged. They who rode beside her were constantly drawing ahead, and then with curses raining back. Deceived by her apparent resignation, they gave her more room.

Ahead of them, when they had ridden for about twenty minutes, the road swung round a high-banked bend. Out of the slope a tree-trunked branch over the road. Bess saw, and took her one chance.

A furtive twitch at the reins caused her horse to lag still more decidedly. The others won to a full length ahead as they swept round the curve.

Raising both arms, the girl caught the overhanging branch and lifted herself bodily from the saddle. The horse rocketed on, relieved of its burden, at somewhat faster pace.

But the efforts she made to swing up on the limb of the tree and by that route gain the top of the bank was hopeless. She had put too great stress upon her strength in her struggle; it failed her now. She dangled helplessly for a moment or two, then dropped to the roadway.

As soon as that happened, terror lent her new strength. She turned and ran wildly back along the road, seeking some place where she might find temporary cover by the roadside.

That refuge was denied her. On the one hand was open country, destitute of anything considerable enough to hide behind; on the other, the concave wall of the bluff.

And already her escape was discovered. She could hear the thunder of returning hoofs. Still she held on, running as she had never dreamed she would be able to run, despite her straining lungs and aching muscles.

The hoofs were very close behind her now. She put forth one last endeavor—which failed in its inception.

Overtaking her, the Mexicans rode up on either side. As she ran, the riders swung down from their saddles, caught her arms, lifting her fairly off her feet and holding her so while they wheeled their horses and dashed back.

Scorching heat helped Bud Morgan's return to consciousness. He roused slowly, rolled over to get farther away from the flames that were devouring his home, and sat up with a splitting pain in his head.

The hand that he instinctively lifted to his temple came away dripping with blood. Yet he was not seriously wounded. The bullet had cut a deep furrow in the side of his head, but had failed to penetrate the skull. To the temporary unconsciousness that followed the wound, he owed his present liberty and his escape from a tortured death somewhere in those hills to the south.

Yet life was bitter to savor anew. As he staggered away from the burning house that entombed his mother, he came upon the riddled body of his son.

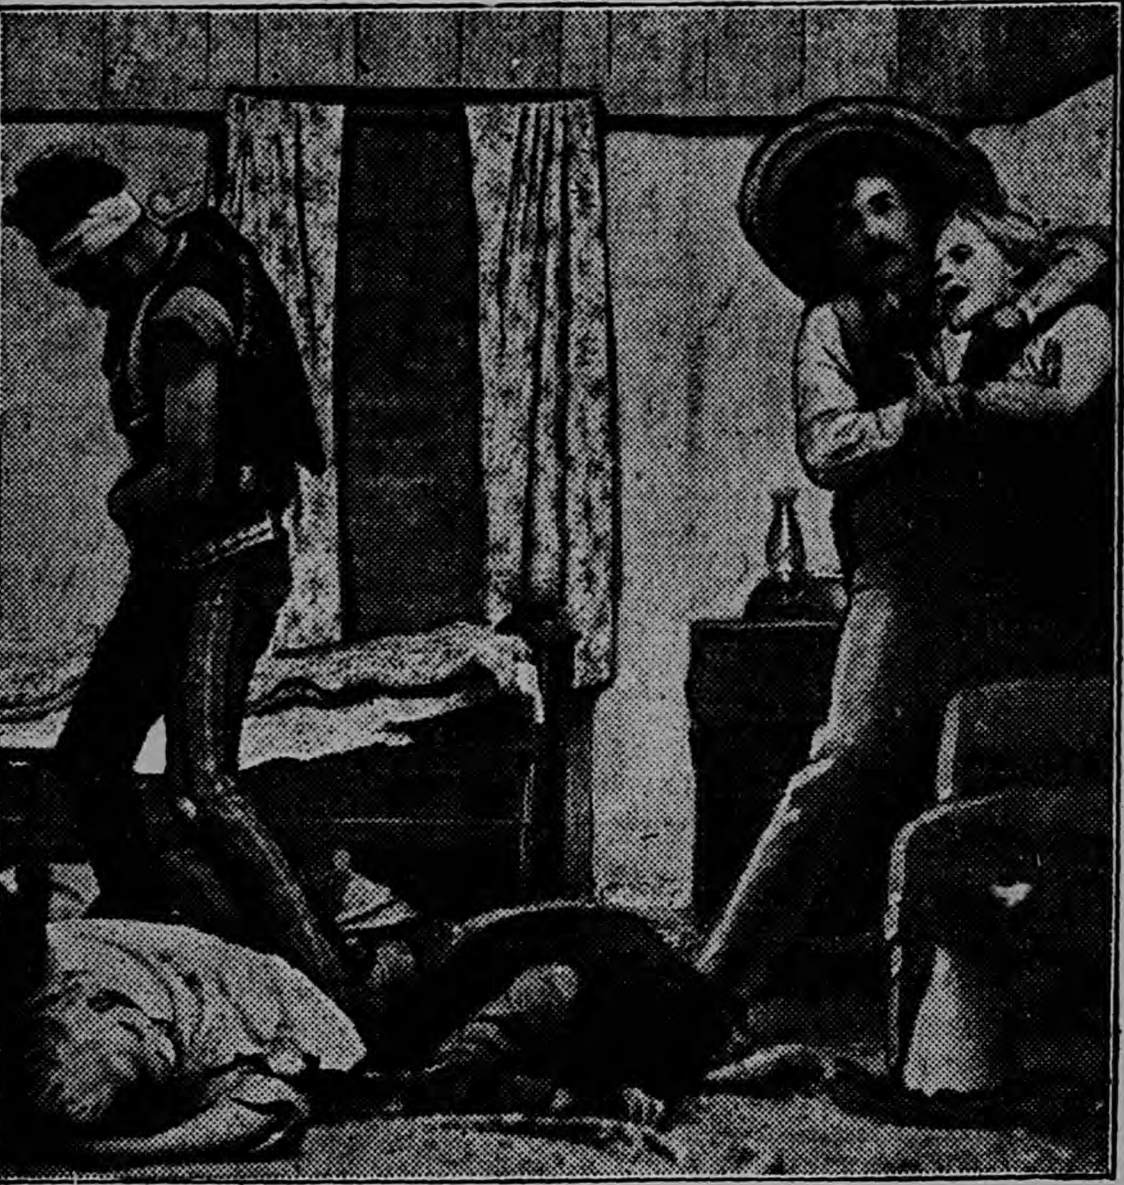

What his subsequent actions were he never knew. It was late afternoon when he rode up to the Channing hacienda, more mad than sane, on the back of a horse without saddle or bridle.

It was an hour later before he recovered sufficiently to gasp out his tale of horror to Patricia and Donald Parr in the library.

When he had finished, the man bowed his head on his folded arms, and sat racked with dry, convulsive sobs.

On either side of him Patricia and Donald sought, then avoided, each other's eyes.

In addition, she has at her command this immense treasure, this hundred-million-dollar trust, which she inherited and declares she will spend it for the sole purpose of defeating our plans . . . since, as it appears, her country is too niggardly and shortsighted to spend a dollar in its own defense!

"And we sit here in ignorance of her plans! We must know them, and we must know them without more delay—or we risk a setback that explodes our entire scheme of invasion!"

"How can that be?" Torreon inquired.

With a grunt of impatience Huroki pointed to a great topographical map spread out on the table between them.

"Have you forgotten that our chosen line of march strikes directly through the Channing ranch property? And what are we going to find there? What is this girl doing there, all this time while we sit here twiddling our thumbs? She isn't idle—I promise you that. She can purchase, if need be, the best military intelligence in the United States. It is sensible to suppose that her advisers have overlooked the fact that via the Channing ranch is the shortest and quickest route toward our goal—that, if we strike at all from this quarter, it will naturally and surely be along that line? The farther you send a dollar away from home the longer it takes to get it back.

The visitors at the military camps should leave the boys a little chance to do some drilling now and then.

Those women who carry cases should complete the illusion by wearing carefully pressed and turned up trousers.

Probably some of the motorists will be willing to save gasoline by insisting that the family should walk to church.

The I. W. W. men are demanding protection of the United States law so they shall be free to help beat the United States.

It is believed the farmers will patriotically increase their crops next summer if the government will guarantee profits and reimburse them for all losses.

The American soldiers in France object to the name "Sammy," but our old uncle with the striped trousers hasn't asked yet to have his name changed.

It's wonderful why the brokers who are selling all these airplane stocks that are sure to make people get rich right off, don't buy them and get rich themselves.

If this is such an awful country to live in as the I. W. W. people say, it would be excellent judgment for them to leave it at the earliest possible moment.

A man having sent a dollar to some one who advertised a sure preventive for automobile skidding, received the reply, "Keep the car in the garage whenever the streets are wet."

Those men who would rather go to jail than to serve in the army should be given credit for the excellent judgment they show in picking out a place of residence for which they are eminently adapted.

Now if President Wilson is going to set an example in favor of the "Carry Your Own Bundle Movement," it will be in order for him to walk up Pennsylvania avenue with a peck of potatoes and three pounds of butter.

The Baltimore American celebrated its one hundred and forty-fourth anniversary on Monday of last week. Despite its age, its vitality is unimpaired and it is a welcome daily visitor in thousands of homes where its sprightly record of the world news is daily enjoyed. Speaking of its anniversary, the American calls itself "Baltimore's oldest and best newspaper," a title which it has indisputably earned by its long and honorable career.

THE WHITE FLOUR HABIT

The effort of the food administration to save wheat runs up against the old-time habit of eating only white bread. As everyone knows white flour uses only a part of the wheat product. The husk of the wheat, which has very nourishing elements, is refined out. During recent years, whole wheat preparations have gained enormously in popularity, but still white flour is more popular with the majority of people.

Years ago white flour was considered even more of a delicacy than now. Corn and rye flours were used as an economy measure, but when people got up in the world they felt they must have white bread. Doctors used to say that many poor people would buy the most expensive white flour, when rye and corn would have been better for them physically at a less expense.

So-called graham flour was popularized to a considerable extent by Dr. Graham, who introduced it as a health measure, using the entire wheat, husk and all. The coarser substance promotes wholesome action of the intestines, which in these days of office and shop work many people fail to get. The modern whole wheat flours use more or less of this valuable husk. There has been some controversy among physicians as to which type of flour is most healthful, but the weight of opinion is strongly toward whole wheat, though there are some weak digestions that can't take it.

People who have acquired the whole wheat habit greatly prefer it. White flour seems relatively tasteless to them. Using whole wheat is a good economy measure. Anything that refines out all the valuable husk and turns it over to the lower animals is wasteful.

Hotels and restaurants will find a growing number of people who are a great deal better pleased with whole wheat breads and a great many more can be converted to their use. It's a good way to co-operate with the government in war measures.

WAR AFFECTS PUBLIC SCHOOLS

As in every other vocation, the public school system is feeling seriously the inconvenience of war times. There is a great scarcity of teachers throughout Maryland, in fact throughout the country. Many of the male teachers have shown their patriotism by volunteering, and many others, both male and female, have accepted remunerative positions. The constant demand made by the war for men's service has opened innumerable new lines for women. Teachers, by reason of their higher education, are eminently fitted to fill many of these positions and have not been slow to seek and accept occupations which carried an increased salary.

It would be impossible to mention the many avenues thus offering inducements at much better pay than school teachers receive. Especially is this true as it refers to teachers in the rural sections, where the salaries are at best but small.

Just how to meet such a condition is one of the problems confronting school authorities. That it must be met goes without saying, for the consensus of opinion of those highest in the knowledge of such matters is that it is a vital necessity for the future welfare of the country that education must be continued along still higher lines, instead of slacking, during the war.

THE DRAFT EVADERS

The great majority of our young men make a very creditable appearance toward the draft. What misgivings they feel are carefully kept out of their faces. But here and there the chicken heart shows up. And some men really show a good deal of courage in their effort to escape. The man who has sand enough to walk up to the dentist and get his teeth pulled out to escape the draft, really has the making of a soldier in him if he but knew it.

Not so the fellow who takes medicine to make his heart beat abnormally. Too bad that such can't put on petticoats and go with the old women where they belong. Only it's horribly unjust to the courageous female sex to classify them so.

If a man can only see it, the only way to get through life with any decent satisfaction to himself and his friends, is to take what comes like a man and do the required thing with a good spirit. The man who is caught working funny business on the exemption boards might as well say good night. He can drop out of sight and start in a new place where no one knows him, but he is dead so far as his home town goes.

And the trouble is that when once a man gets the habit of cowardice fastened on him, he will always squeal and funk in a tight spot. A man can die but once and the coward dies a thousand deaths in fearing one.

A courageous facing of difficulty and danger brings its reward. The fellows who have cheerfully responded to the call are feeling pretty well about now, as they resign themselves to the inevitable and accept the bright side of it. Meanwhile the smart little cowards who have put something over on Uncle Sam are still trembling for fear the long arm reaches out for them, as probably it will.

The Least We Can Expect is Trouble

There can be no such thing as half-baked price regulation. With the President's announcement of the rates for bituminous coal at the mines, this Government turns its back on the law of supply and demand. That law cannot be partially interfered with. Either regulation must go deep, and the Government take a firm grip on every influence that tends to defeat its policy, or we cannot go safely beyond the point of examining and approving or disapproving prices arrived at in the natural business way.

There must not be confiscation. The price proclaimed yesterday may be fair or unfair. But it is perfectly logical that when a price is set at a dollar less per ton than the operators have felt they could afford to sell for they should at once take steps for their own protection. One such step was this announcement.

The prices quoted for Maryland and several other territories are below the cost of production today and will automatically curtail production in these States.

The prices named will prevent the operators increasing wages as tentatively agreed on in many States between operators and miners.

This, too, may be warranted or not warranted. But it is a businesslike statement. It suggests consequences in regard to production which it may be impossible to avoid save by Government operation of the mines. It suggests strikes and labor difficulties such as the United States Government has never yet dared face in honest non-partisanship. It suggests doubt, delay, acrimony, a hopeless tangle of the country's economic machinery. Is the political machinery going to be equal to the task?—Baltimore American.

Stomach and Liver Troubles

No end of misery and actual suffering is caused by disorders of the stomach and liver, and may be avoided by the use of Chamberlain's Tablets. Give them a trial. They only cost a quarter.

LOST BAGGAGE

One of the annoyances of the vacation season is the amount of baggage that goes astray on the railroads. The misery of lost trunks is a fertile subject of conversation on the summer hotel piazza. It is a bad business proposition also, and many is the commercial traveler's sample trunk that goes astray.

Express companies report this summer an unusual number of complaints on lost baggage. They lay the trouble to the shortage of labor. They say they cannot find many of the responsible men they used to get. With help so scarce they have to take any one who comes along, regardless, whether he has any strength or not.

Also much complaint is made of the carelessness of the public. Packages are sent to stations without any tag or only an illegible one. Tags frequently get torn off in transit. Checks are often mere scrawls written by some one who is hurried or irresponsible.

If there are half a dozen clamorous people begging to get their stuff on the train just about to leave, the baggage man is going to scratch off his addresses in handwriting that looks like an Egyptian hieroglyphic. If he has an address to look up, he gets the wrong town. While disappointed people are fuming and fretting, the article gathers cobwebs in some remote office where no one has any idea of the location of the owner. Everything considered, it is a wonder that baggage goes as straight as it does.

There are a lot of people now who quietly slip a coin across. The man who merely stands on his rights and feels that in justice he should pay but one price for service, gets poor attention. However, the man who is considerate and gets his baggage to the station in good season to get a train, will get service that can not be had if he waits until the rush.

$100 Reward $100

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages and that is catarrh. Catarrh being greatly influenced by constitutional conditions requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Medicine is taken internally and acts through the blood on the mucous surfaces of the system thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. #### Political Announcements

SNOW HILL, MD., Aug. 1, 1917
To The Voters of Somerset County:
I am a candidate to succeed the late Judge Robley D. Jones as Associate Judge of the First Judicial Circuit of Maryland, and will enter the primaries to be held September 11.

I am keenly conscious of the grave responsibilities of the position and if I am chosen by the people I will give to the duties of the office the best that is within me. My absolute lack of experience in soliciting votes for myself will perhaps place me at a disadvantage in the campaign, but I am content to submit my candidacy to your careful and conscientious consideration, and if it meets with your favor I trust you will so express yourselves at the primaries.

Yours truly,

No. 3177, Chancery. In the Circuit Court for Somerset County.

Order Nisi

In the matter of the tax sale of real estate in Fairmount Election District of Somerset county, assessed to Mrs. Dr. John L. Damiah, made and reported by John E. Holland, County Treasurer for Somerset county. W. Jerome Sterling, purchaser, ex parte.

Order Nisi

No. 3175, Chancery. In the Circuit Court for Somerset County.

Whereas, a certain John E. Holland, County Treasurer for Somerset county, in the State of Maryland, has reported to the Circuit Court for Somerset County, in Equity, a sale made by him to W. Jerome Sterling, of all that lot of land in Fairmount district, Somerset county, Maryland, viz: No. 3—All that lot and improvements in Fairmount district, Somerset county, Maryland, known as the home place of the late Joseph Muir, containing 2 acres, more or less, which was devised to Susie J. Damiah (then Susie J. Muir) by will recorded among the testamentary records in Liber T. D. No. 21, folio 134, and later conveyed to G. A. Cox, and assessed to the said Mrs. Dr. John L. Damiah on the assessment books for the said election district, for the said year 1916, and sold for the payment of taxes due and in arrears, together with all the proceedings in relation thereto; and, whereas, upon examination it appears to the said Court that the said proceedings are regular, and that the provisions of law in relation thereto have been complied with.

Order Nisi

Now, therefore, it is hereby ordered this 19th day of July, in the year 1917, by the Circuit Court for Somerset County, in Equity, that notice be given by publication of this order once a week for four successive weeks in the Marylander and Herald, a weekly newspaper published in Somerset county, before the 29th day of August, in the year 1917, warning all persons interested in the said real estate to be and appear in this Court on or before the first day of September, 1917, to show cause, if any they have, why said sale should not be ratified and confirmed.

Order Nisi

The report states the amount of sales to be $22.88.

Mr. Elmer Horner announces the marriage of his daughter, Myrtle B., to Mr. Henry L. Nordhoff, of Baltimore. The bride was formerly of Mt. Vernon.

Mr. and Mrs. J. Bruce Handy, of Washington, D. C., spent several days last week at the home of Mr. Handy's sister, Mrs. T. J. Smith, on Main street.

All members of the Red Cross Circle of Princess Anne are requested to meet in the grand jury room at the Court House tomorrow (Wednesday) afternoon at 4 o'clock.

There will be an ice cream and cake festival held on the school house grounds at West next Thursday evening, August 30th, for the benefit of the Red Cross. The public is cordially invited.

Superintendent W. H. Dashiell and his daughter, Miss Emily Irving Dashiell, left yesterday (Monday) morning for Ocean City to be present at the sessions of the Tri-County Institute.

After visiting the shoe store at present prices the consumer decides that it will be cheaper to have his old shoes repaired, and after visiting the cobbler he decides that it is cheaper to have new shoes.

Miss Majorie Pettit and her brother, Mr. Kenneth Pettit, who is in training as a member of a company of Coast Artillerymen at Camp Howard, are visiting their cousin, Mrs. J. T. Taylor, Jr., at "East Glen."

Mr. Walter A. Green has been transferred from Rhodhiss, N. C., to King's Mountain, N. C., and appointed manager of the Phenix Store Company, of that city. Mr. Green is a native of Somerset county and his many friends here will be pleased to learn of his advancement.

The photo play at the Auditorium to-night (Tuesday) will be Marie Doro in "Hearts Desire." If you want to see a good play and hear special music you should not fail to be present. The music will be by Mr. Wedden, on the violin, and Mr. William Heaton, pianist. The admission will be 15 cents.

Monday of last week Dr. Roy A. Buhrman gave a sail down the Manokin river for the benefit of the Red Cross. Those in the party were Mesdames Roy A. Buhrman, J. T. Taylor, Jr., W. H. Dashiell, Misses Irene and Sara Taylor, Rhea Morgan, Mary Miles Dashiell, Emily Dashiell and Ellen McMaster.

Hon. Joseph L. Bailey took the oath of office before the Clerk of the Circuit Court for Wicomico county last Wednesday morning as Associate Judge of the First Judicial Circuit. Judge Bailey will have his first experience on the bench at the September term of the Circuit Court for Wicomico county.

Rev. Leolan Jackson received a letter from the Rev. Melvin E. Wheatley under date of August 22nd, saying that the Berge Sisters came to Hobbs, Maryland, on August 4th and went away on August 12th. The report reached them of their arrest while in that town and they laughed heartily about it. Mr. Wheatley said the report of their arrest was absolutely untrue and that great injustice is being done by the continuous circulation of such a report.

The contractors constructing the stone road from Pocomoke City to Westover have opened the road for the use of the public from that city as far as the Puncture Landing branch road. This is quite a convenience to the travelling public and is greatly appreciated. Even this part of the road is not completed and will doubtless have to be closed again, but it is a great convenience to the public to have the use of it at this season of the year when traffic is so heavy.

It Isn't Your Town, It's You

If you want to live in the kind of a town like the kind of a town you like, You needn't slip your clothes in a grip And start on a long, long hike, You'll only find what you left behind For there's nothing that's really new. It's a knock at yourself when you knock your town. It isn't your town—it's YOU.

Real towns are not made by men afraid. Let somebody else get ahead. When everybody works and nobody shirks You can raise your town from the dead. And if while you make your personal stake Your neighbor can make one, too, Your town will be what you want to see. It isn't your town—it's YOU.

Applegarth Cannery Burned

The canning house of former Senator William F. Applegarth, at Golden Hill, Dorchester county, with its entire contents, including 1,600 cases of goods newly packed and cans, boxes, shooks and materials purchased for this season, was burned last Wednesday night. The machinery is a total loss, with the possible exception of the boiler.

Two scows and a gasoline boat moored in the creek nearby and 700 gallons of gasoline also were lost. The loss is estimated at $40,000 or more. Neither Senator Applegarth nor his employees have any idea as to the origin of the fire, which was discovered about 11 o'clock.

Keep Up Education

The constant call is for trained men. The country needs them now and it will need them later on. The uneducated, the untrained, the undisciplined are liabilities, not assets. Therefore schools, colleges, and universities should be over-run with applications before the next term opens. Thousands have left for enlistment or will leave under the draft, and their places must be filled by those who have not yet reached the age limit for military duty. These, if they would best serve their country and their own interests, will be obliged to gain the knowledge and discipline adequate for the new and important and responsible duties that will inevitably devolve upon them, by the only means—the class room. Instead of a diminution in the desire for systematized education, there ought to be a new and intensified stimulation for learning. This is the conclusion reached by farseeing men of affairs, by civil and military leaders as well as the foremost educators of the country.

Their unanimous judgment is that "every college, university or technical school should keep its faculty and student body intact and all should redouble their energies and concentrate them on those things that will be of most service during the progress of the war and which will prepare their students for the most effective service of the country and of the world when the war is over."

Summer Complaint

During the hot weather of the summer months some member of almost every family is likely to be troubled with an unnatural looseness of the bowels, and it is of the greatest importance that this be treated promptly, which can only be done when the medicine is kept at hand. Mrs. F. F. Scott, Scottsville, N. Y., states, "I first used Chamberlain's Colic and Diarrhoea Remedy as much as five years ago. At that time I had a severe attack of summer complaint and was suffering intense pain. One dose relieved me. Other members of my family have since used it with like results."

Good Way To Can Tomatoes

A good, economical way to can tomatoes in the south, says the United States Department of Agriculture, is to pack firm, whole fruits in a jar and fill in the spaces with a concentrated tomato sauce. Each quart jar then will provide whole tomatoes for salads or baking and a tomato puree for soups or sauces. The department's recipe is as follows:

Select firm, uniformly red, ripe tomatoes of medium size. Put into trays and lower into boiling water for 1 minute. Remove, plunge into cold water, drain, and cut out the core with a slender pointed knife without cutting into the seed cells. Peel promptly and pack into jars. To each pint add one level teaspoonful of a mixture of one-third salt and two-thirds sugar. Fill the jars with a thick tomato sauce made by cooking the small or broken tomatoes until tender. Remove the seeds and skins by straining the pulp—and concentrate it by boiling about the consistency of ketchup. Adjust the rubber and cap, place the packed jars on a false bottom in a vessel of water, which reaches almost to their tops, and keep at boiling temperature for 25 minutes. Remove the jars from the water bath and tighten the covers immediately.

NEGLECTED FOODS.

Their More Liberal Use Would Be a Help in Home Economy.

Among the foodstuffs that American housekeepers have scarcely utilized are turnip tops, radish tops, mustard plants, sorrel and chick peas among the vegetables and the cheese product that can be extracted from whey.

The greens mentioned may all be cooked like spinach or they may be made into delicious cream soups, as they have been for centuries by European housewives. Enough sorrel grows in the average vacant lot in every city to make many purees or cream soups. Chick peas are as nutritious as beans and when served in a broth are just as tasty. They also can be made into a puree.

Radish tops and mustard leaves make a cheap and appetizing salad.

Professor Mary F. Rausch in a lecture at the University of Washington gave some hints about home economies, one of which was that foods in shallow pans cook more rapidly than in deep pans, thus saving gas. Another was that not a scrap of fat of any sort need be thrown away, but all should go into a double boiler and be tried out for use in frying or as shortening for pastry.—New York World.

Says Phosphates Make Beautiful Women And Strong, Healthy, Vigorous, Robust Men

Physicians all over the world are prescribing phosphates to build up run down, enervated conditions and those who have treated their patients with Argo-Phosphate are changing thin, enervated women with toneless tissues, flabby flesh, into the most beautiful rosy cheeked and plump round formed women imaginable

Atlanta, Ga. Dr. Jacobson said in a recent interview that 90 per cent. of emenias comes from nervous breakdown which can only be corrected by supplying the necessary phosphates to the nervous system that is lacking in the food you eat, and this can be quickly supplied by taking one or two 5-grain Argo-Phosphate tablets after each meal, and at bed time. It will in many cases make a pale scrawny face the picture of health in a few days. I have seen women that I expected would have to be kept under treatment for months restored to perfect health in one or two weeks time. SPECIAL NOTICE: The Argo-Phosphate recommended by Dr. F. H. Jacobson contains phosphates such as are prescribed by leading physicians throughout the world, and it will be found the most effective form for treating patients with Nervous Dyspepsia, Stomach troubles, Brain Fag and Nervous Prostration. It will renew youthful vim and vigor, and build up the whole body. If your druggist will not supply you with Argo-Phosphate, send $1.00 for two weeks' treatment, to Argo Laboratories, 10 Forsyth St., Atlanta, Ga.

Colored People Delighted With New Discovery To Bleach The Skin

Atlanta, Ga.—Says that recent tests have proven without doubt that swarthy or sallow complexion can be made light by a new treatment recently discovered by a man in Atlanta. Just ask your druggist for Cocotone Skin Whitener. People who have used it are amazed at its wonderful effect. Rid your face of that awful dark color or greasy appearance in a few minutes. It costs so little that you can't afford to be without it. Just think how much prettier you would look with that old dark skin gone and new soft, light skin in its place. Men and women today must care for their complexion to enter society.
If your druggist will not supply you with Cocotone Skin Whitener, send 25c for a large package to Cocotone Co., Atlanta, Ga.

PROTECT THE GRAIN FROM WEEVIL

College Park, Aug. 23.—It is difficult to estimate the loss each year from what is generally known to the farmer as "weevil." Not only is the actual feeding value lost in infected grain, but the presence of weevil, especially in wheat, regardless of how little the damage, always cuts the grade one or two points.

And now that the heavy rains of the summer have caused much wheat to sprout in the shock, or mold where it was hauled into the barn too wet or green, the extermination of the weevil is one other precaution that must needs be taken to conserve the small amount thus saved. Weevily wheat is not good feed, it is not good for flour, and it isn't good for seed.

In the work of controlling granary pests Prof. E. N. Cory, of the Entomology department of the State Agricultural College has issued a circular in which the Carbon Bisulphide Method of control is thoroughly explained.

The term "weevil," as used, is a general name for a large number of insect pests that attack stored grain products. But it is probably the Angoumois moth that does the greatest damage, often working through as much as 30 per cent. of the grain in the bin. The eggs of this fawn colored moth are deposited in masses between the kernels of corn or wheat in the shock or in the granary and the larvae or worms hatching therefrom enter the grain and feed within. When ready to pupate, they cut their way to the outside shell leaving only the outside membrane over the exit hole. The moth, when it emerges from the pupa case, easily breaks this membrane and emerges from the grain to produce another generation of insects. If conditions are favorable many generations are produced in a year.

Fumigation with Carbon Bisulphide has proved the most effective method of control.

Carbon Bisulphide or Disulphide is a slightly yellowish liquid having a very disagreeable odor (about the same as that of a rotten egg) due to impurities. It is highly volatile, that is, evaporates quickly, and produces a gas heavier than air and very inflammable.

How To Use Carbon Bisulphide.

Carbon Bisulphide should be used at the rate of 5 to 8 pounds per 1,000 cubic feet of space in the granary or per every 100 bushels of grain to be fumigated. The outside temperature should be about 70 degrees at the time of fumigation for best results.

If the grain is in a room that is capable of being closed tightly, the liquid may be exposed in shallow pans above the grain, on saturated pieces of burlap or it can be poured into the pile through a piece of pipe.

If a tight room is not available the grain may be covered with a tarpaulin or a piece of canvass and the Carbon Bisulphide exposed beneath it.

The greatest care should be used in regard to fire. Never carry a lighted lantern, pipe or cigar into a barn where Carbon Bisulphide fumigation is in progress.

The exposure should last for 36 hours. The fumigation should be repeated after an interval of two weeks. Shovel the grain over after each fumigation so as to air it and prevent the collection of moisture and possible subsequent heating.

Where directions are followed there is no chance for human poisoning as the Carbon Bisulphide evaporates completely.

Carbon Bisulphide can be purchased from almost any drug store in small quantities or from any chemical supply house. In large amounts it may be secured from E. R. Taylor, Penn. Yan, N. Y., or the Independent Chemical Company, 72 Front street, New York City.

Should further information be desired it can be had by addressing Prof. E. N. Cory, College Park, Md.

SHORT PASTURE HITS TWO WAYS.

College Park, Aug. 23.—Cows that come fresh in the spring give a good flow of milk during that season when pasture is abundant. When pastures become short, the flow of milk will decrease unless the pasture is supplemented with silage, soiling crops or a grain mixture. If the milk flow is permitted to decrease during the season of short pastures, the high production of the first few months cannot be recovered when pasture becomes abundant in the fall.

This means that the yearly production of milk is several hundred pounds less than it should be owing to the fact that the cows were short of feed for a few weeks during the hot, dry season.

Wheat bran.....200 lbs.
Cornmeal.....50 lbs.

(2)
Wheat bran.....100 lbs.
Cornmeal.....100 lbs.
Cottonseed meal.....25 lbs.

Hominy meal or chop may be substituted for cornmeal.

There are always weevil in an old granary, and before the crop is placed in such, or removed from one bin to another, the Carbon Bisulphide method of fumigation should be used to rid the bin of these pests.

SAVING TOMATO SEED ON THE FARM

College Park, Aug. 30.—It is the custom with tomato growers to buy their seed from the market. This has been done, but often times with considerable loss to the grower. The seed, of course, can be secured in this way at little cost, which no doubt, has appealed to the growers more than anything else; however, there is another consideration in this connection. The seed bought upon open market may have come, and often does come from plants that are more or less diseased. The plants may not only be diseased, but they are in many cases weak and unprofitable. This is especially true of seed that is saved from the general run of tomatoes at the canning houses and hundreds of pounds of seed are saved every year by this method.

A much better way to secure good tomato seed is to save it from the best plants in the field. This can be done by marking the plants with a stake about the time they begin to ripen fruit and by gathering the fruit from the marked hills separately. This seed is squeezed out into a barrel or the whole fruit of the tomatoes themselves placed in the barrel and crushed, after which water is added to the contents, and allowed to stand for two or three days, or until fermentation takes place, at which time the pulp will rise and the seed will sink to the bottom. The water is then poured off, together with whatever pulp may be removed with the water, and a fresh supply of water added. After stirring the contents, allow it to settle and pour off again. This may be repeated until the seed is fairly clean, after which it is removed and spread out to dry in a place where birds and mice cannot feed upon it.

Some of the canners of the State are co-operating in this good work by paying either the usual price or within a few cents of the usual price for the seed tomatoes, and still allow the grower to take home with him the seed. This can be done very well where the canner puts up a pulp or a catsup.

Seed saved as suggested here will yield a very good income on the extra expense of saving it.

This is not a new theory, but a demonstrated fact, as many of the growers are now practicing it. This method of improving the crop has already been applied to other crops such as potatoes, in which case the seed is saved by the hill method, and seed corn saved in the field, and wheat in which the plant berry is selected from the most prolific strains, thus producing higher yielding strains and varieties.

BEEKEEPERS SHOULD REQUEEN THEIR COLONIES NOW.

College Park, Aug. 30.—The proper time to prepare for the season's honey crop is the fall before. If the preparation is left until next spring a considerable reduction in the crop of 1918 will result. Prepare now.

All beekeeping operations previous to the honey flow should have for their object the securing of the greatest possible number of bees ready for field work when the flow starts. A colony cannot be too strong in field bees at this time. However, the condition of the colonies previous to and during winter determines to a large extent their strength in the spring. Also, if they are weak in the spring it is almost impossible to increase their strength sufficiently to secure much honey from the early flows in Maryland. It is essential for best results that preparation be started this coming fall.

Successful wintering depends upon the quality and quantity of food, sufficient protection and room and young, vigorous bees. Colonies should be wintered in double bodies with 40-50 pounds of honey in the top body. They should also be in a sheltered place, and packed thoroughly to protect them from the cold. If these conditions exist a colony of young, vigorous bees will winter successfully, increase rapidly in the spring and be sufficiently strong to produce a maximum crop even from early flows.

Numerous and vigorous workers are the results of a young and vigorous queen. Usually a queen's best efforts are limited to the first two years of her life, consequently it is advisable to requeen consistently every two years where honey production is the main business. A young newly-mated queen will produce quantities of vigorous workers, a condition which is highly desirable in the fall when the older queens are so apt to check their brood rearing.

August is the most profitable time, therefore, to requeen. New queens may be purchased from some reliable dealer or raised in the home apiary. Care should be used in their introduction to avoid loss as it is a bit difficult to secure the acceptance of a new queen at this time of year. The beekeeper should acquaint himself with the best methods of queen rearing and introduction so that he may take every opportunity to produce a few queens every year thus cutting down the expense of buying from queen breeders.

Colonies headed by these young prolific queens will develop a great number of young bees late in the season capable of successfully withstanding the winter and living long enough in the spring to rapidly build up the colonies for the honey flow.

Miss Lena Smith returned home from Norfolk, Va., where she has been spending the summer months.

Miss Edna Muir, of Baltimore, is visiting her grand-parents, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Bozman.

Mrs. E. C. Trower, of Norfolk, Va., is spending some time with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. James Campbell.

Mrs. Amanda Tyler and Miss Addie Tyler, of Annapolis, are guests of Mr. George Tyler.

Mr. and Mrs. Wallace Wolf and two sons, and Miss Helen Short, of Philadelphia, and Mrs. Myrtle Parsons, of Whitesville, Del., spent a few days of this week at the home of Mr. and Mrs. P. H. Cannon.

Friendship

Aug. 25—Some of our farmers are busy in the fodder field.

Miss Edith F. Ball is visiting relatives at Fruitland, Shad Point and Salisbury.

Miss Irma Brewington, of Shad Point, is visiting her cousin, Miss E. Elizabeth Ball.

Miss Minnie Dryden is visiting her sister, Mrs. Hubert Charnock, at Cape Charles, Va.

Miss E. Elizabeth Ball, who has been visiting her cousin, Miss E. Vesta Costen, has returned home.

Rev. and Mrs. Clarence Dougherty and son and Mr. and Mrs. S. M. Pusey motored to Deal's Island camp last Sunday.

The ladies of the Red Cross Society will have ice cream and cake for sale on the school ground Thursday, August 30th. Come and help a good cause.

The ladies of the Red Cross Society gave a supper on the school ground last Tuesday evening which was quite a success. Rev. Clarence Dougherty, of Pittsburgh, Pa., delivered an address which was enjoyed by all present.

Education

Education is the whole effect of environment. The individual is in some way affected by everything with which he comes in contact, from the first moment of life until the end. Teaching is therefore a factor in evolution. It is a means of carrying on the development of the individual. Man is as yet incomplete; it is likely that all his best exercises still lie before him. He must be ready for what is to come.

OLDER BUT STRONGER

To be healthy at seventy, prepare at forty, is sound advice, because in the strength of middle life we too often forget that neglected colds, or careless treatment of slight aches and pains, simply undermine strength and bring chronic weakness for later years.

To be stronger when older, keep your blood pure and rich and active with the strength-building and blood-nourishing properties of Scott's Emulsion which is a food, a tonic and a medicine to keep your blood rich, alleviate rheumatism and avoid sickness. No alcohol in Scott's.

Scott & Bowne, Bloomfield, N. J.

Perryhawkin

Aug. 25—A number of our people spent Friday at Ocean City.

Mr. Henry Henderson spent part of this week at the home of his nephew, Mr. E. T. Mills.

Mr. Harry Brown, accompanied by a number of friends, motored to Crisfield Saturday afternoon.

Mr. W. A. Riggan, superintendent of Holland's M. E. Sunday school, gave his scholars a delightful entertainment Saturday afternoon. Ice cream, cake and lemonade were served.

Mr. William Haddock, aged about 80 years, died at his home near Whitesburg Saturday afternoon after a lingering illness. Funeral services were held at his late home Sunday afternoon conducted by the Rev. Mr. Burns.

CHANGED HIS CAREER.

His Friends Fairly Congratulated Crozier Into the Army.

Congratulations made General William Crozier a soldier. He was a boy at the time in Kansas, whither his family had moved from Ohio, and hoped to be a lawyer.

David P. Lowe was the member of congress from his district. Lowe, meeting Judge Robert Crozier in the street, said:

"I have decided to appoint your son, William, to the Military academy at West Point."

The Judge, having gone home for dinner, told the news.

"But I don't want to be a soldier," William protested.

Word of Congressman Lowe's intention having spread through the town, all of the inhabitants, including the maidens, hastened to inform William how pleased they were over his good fortune. Old men said they knew that he would be a credit to the community. Physicians, lawyers and ministers praised his manly bearing and studious habits.

And so William Crozier, listening in silence, which was interpreted as modesty, gradually passed from reluctance to eagerness and entered West Point with a high pitch of enthusiasm.

General Crozier is a chemist, engineer, metallurgist and manufacturer, and the disappearing gun carriage he invented is used in the fortifications that guard the coasts of the two oceans.—Boston Globe.

Ye Bad Boys In Church.

In Salem in 1676 it was ordered by the town that "all ye boyes of ye towne are appointed to sit upon three pairs of stairs in ye meeting house, and William Lord is appointed to look after ye boyes upon ye pulpit stairs." In Stratford the tithing man was ordered to "watch over youths of disorderly carriage and see they behave themselves comelie and use such raps and blows as is in his discretion meet." In Durham any misbehaving boy was punished publicly after the service was over. We would nowadays scarcely seat twenty or thirty active boys together in church if we wished them to be models of attention and dignified behavior, but after the boys' seats were removed from the pulpit stairs they were all turned in together in a "boys' pew" in the gallery.

Napoleon and St. Raphael.

Two events of great historic interest have written the name of St. Raphael, a little sea bathing and winter resort in France, large in Napoleonic annals. It was here that the future emperor landed on his return from his Egyptian campaign in 1799, and it was from here, just fifteen years later, after causing every throne in Europe to totter and after redrawing the map of the whole continent to suit his imperial will, that he embarked for his brief period of exile on the island of Elbe.

Nicks' Forecasts For September

A reactionary storm period falls centrally on the 1st, 2nd and 3rd. The equinoctial strain of Jupiter, Mars and Earth, all three combined, is sufficient to excite expectations out of the ordinary, at and about this period. But the fact that the Moon is in opposition to Earth and Sun, and in perigee and on the celestial equator, all on the 1st, is sufficient to cause storms and other phenomena that will call for vigilant watching and care.

A regular storm period is central on the 7th, extending over the 6th to the 10th. The Moon is in conjunction with Jupiter on the 7th, and at last quarter and greatest north declination on the 8th. The Mercury period adds its perturbing power to Earth, Mars and Jupiter, all at the annual magnetic and electrical crisis that is due from about the 8th to the 15th of September. About the 6th look for rapid change to warmer; winds will drop back to southerly, cloudiness will ensue, and between the 7th and the 10th, decided storms of thunder, wind and rain will touch at most parts of the country as they move across the states to the Atlantic.

A reactionary storm period runs its course from the 12th to the 15th. Under stress of the Mercury, Earth, Mars and Jupiter periods, with the Moon in apogee on the 14th, on the celestial equator on the 15th, and at its new on the 16th. We must naturally expect strong and startling events during and about this period. A dangerous culmination of storms, and perhaps earthquakes, will center on and touching the 15th and 16th.

A regular storm period is central on the 19th, extending over the 16th to the 21st. This regular Vulcan period lies at the crisis of both the Mercury and the Earth equinoxes. The Mars and Jupiter periods are constantly increasing in their intensity, and the Moon passes conjunction with Earth and Sun on the 16th. This is another period that calls for special warning and watchfulness. Dangerous equinoctial storms are not only possible but quite probable between the 16th and 21st. We call special attention to the fact that storms and weather generally at this period will indicate the character of storms and weather which may be expected to prevail from this time well up into November. If the storms take on a warm and tropical phase, and are followed by warm and summer like weather, expect the same character of storms and weather to dominate the autumn, say up to the middle of November. Should storms be of the boreal, autumnal kind, between the 16th and 21st, followed by crisp, chilly winds and weather, it may be put down as almost a certainty that what we call "an early fall" will ensue.

A reactionary storm period is central on the 24th, 25th and 26th. This period lies near the center of Earth's equinox on the 21st, and the Mars equinox on the 30th. The indications are that storm disturbances will be greatly intensified at this time, with every probability that they will be prolonged into the regular storm period which is central on the 30th, coincident with the central day of the Mars equinoctial period. The conditions are much the same at the close, as at the beginning of September. The Moon is in perigee and on the celestial equator on the 29th, and full on the 30th. Low and falling barometer, with other storm warnings will appear about the 24th to the 26th, and these conditions, it is most probable, will break into furious, equinoctial storms, from about the 28th up to about October 3rd.

Ask Anyone Who Has Used It
There are families who always aim to keep a bottle of Chamberlain's Colic and Diarrhoea Remedy in the house for use in case it is needed, and find that it is not only a good investment but saves them no end of suffering. As to its reliability, ask anyone who has used it.

ENTRANCE EXAMINATIONS

State Scholarships In Engineering Course

ENTRANCE EXAMINATIONS for the Department of Engineering, as well as for the College of Arts and Sciences, will be held in Gilman Hall, September 17th to 20th, 1917, beginning at 9 a. m. each day.

APPLICATIONS FOR SCHOLARSHIPS in the Department of Engineering, established under the provisions of the Laws of Maryland, Chapter 90, 1912, will now be received. If there is more than one applicant for a particular scholarship, a competitive examination must be taken Friday, September 21st, 1917, beginning at 9 a. m. Appointments will be made soon after.

Each Legislative District of Baltimore City, and each County of the State, with the exception of Caroline and Somerset Counties, will be entitled to one or more scholarships for the year 1917-1918, in addition to those which have already been assigned. In the two counties mentioned above, all the available scholarships have been awarded.

Under the provisions of the Act of Assembly, the County and City Scholarships in the Department of Engineering are awarded only to deserving students whose financial circumstances are such that they are unable to obtain an education in Engineering unless free tuition be granted to them. The scholarships entitle the holders to free tuition, free use of text-books, and exemption from all regular fees. The expense of attendance for those who do not receive scholarships is no greater than at other Maryland institutions.

Scholarships may be awarded to graduates of Loyola College, St. John's College, Washington College, Western Maryland College, Maryland Agricultural College, Mt. St. Mary's College, Rock Hill College, and one scholarship will be awarded "At large."

Applicants should address the Registrar, The Johns Hopkins University, for blank forms of application and for further information as to examinations, award of scholarships, and courses of instruction.

CAN YOU SPARE ONE DOLLAR?

At present prices the paper which goes into a year's subscription to the Marylander and Herald costs just 88 cents, without freight. It is plain that after the cost of printing and postage is added there is but little profit for the publisher. As a fact, every subscriber costs the publishers a good bit more than the charge of $1.00 a year. By looking at the label on your paper you can see if you are in arrears. If so, you will confer a favor by paying your subscription, and not expect us to continue sending the Marylander and Herald when you could pay the One Dollar more promptly.

LABOR DAY

SEPTEMBER THIRD

This Institution Closed All Day

Labor means service. It is never wholly selfish. Our community, state and nation in turn share in the benefits which come to individuals as the result of toil.

Labor Day this year possesses unusual significance for the American people,

It bespeaks the gratitude of all for the efficient labor of each.

WANTED

The following is quoted from a letter just received from the U. S. Civil Service Commission, Washington, D. C.:

"The United States Government needs, and needs badly, great numbers of Stenographers and Typewriters, both men and women.

"Students just starting a course of study may be informed that there is now practically no limit to the number of stenographers and typewriters the Government needs.

"The Commission believes that the study of stenography and typewriting by a great number of persons with a view of entering the Government service will be justified. The usual entrance salary ranges from $900 to $1200 a year."

The business demand for secretaries, stenographers and bookkeepers is also very urgent, and all students beginning a course with us during the next few months can be sure of employment promptly upon graduation at salaries higher than ever paid before.
