Negroes Plan to Assault Women

George Washington, of North Carolina; Ferdinand Upshur and George Epps, of Virginia, all colored, were taken to Crisfield last Tuesday morning from Smith's Island charged with plotting an assault on two young women of the island. Late Monday evening Upshur and Epps concocted two very appealing love letters, addressed to the young women, urging them to meet the men at a lonely spot on the island and sent the letters by Washington. Both letters were signed "A Friend," and stated that something of vital importance to the two young women would be told them upon their arrival at the rendezvous. While crossing the island to the homes of the young women Washington's hat, in which he had placed the letters, was blown off by the wind and the two letters fell to the ground.

Several white residents of the island were passing the negro at the time and, noticing the letters, picked them up. As they were unsealed they were immediately read. Meanwhile, Washington took to his heels. The men who had picked up and read the letters immediately started for the spot indicated in the letters, under suspicion that everything was not right. When they arrived there the two negroes were waiting, but, on seeing the white men, started to run to a boat anchored close by and were pursued and captured.

A hearing was held Tuesday morning in Police Justice W. A. Britton's office, Crisfield, at which one of the negroes confessed that the letters were written with the intention of luring the young women to the lonely part of the island and there assaulting them. The negroes were brought to Princess Anne and lodged in jail to await the action of the September grand jury.

Tuberculosis Day Call

Churches, schools, labor unions, fraternal orders and other organizations to the number of 200,000 at least will be asked to join the anti-tuberculosis workers of the country in the observance of the Fourth National Tuberculosis Day, which has been designated for December 7, according to announcement by the National Association for the Study and Prevention of Tuberculosis.

The movement will be furthered by more than 1000 anti-tuberculosis societies working through State organizations and the National Association.

THE MESSAGE ON MEXICO

President Urges Americans To Leave Mexico As Quickly As Possible

President Wilson last Wednesday sounded a new, high note of international altruism and forbearance toward a weaker and less enlightened people in his message to Congress telling of his as yet unsuccessful steps to bring order out of the Mexican chaos.

The reading of the message in the hall of the House was listened to with closest attention by the assembled Senators and Representatives, and galleries crowded with members of official families, and at its conclusion, an outburst of vigorous applause, from Democrats and Republicans alike, left no doubt that the President's sentiments and policies had the hearty support of the great bulk of the membership of the Congress.

President Wilson Wednesday warned all Americans to leave Mexico at once.

At the same time the American Embassy and all consular representatives throughout the Southern Republic were instructed "to notify all officials, civil and military, in Mexico" that they would be held strictly responsible for harm or injury done to Americans or their property.

Secretary Bryan dispatched long telegrams to the embassies and all consular representatives quoting extracts from the President's address to Congress Wednesday in which he reviewed the futile peace negotiations with the Huerta Government and the policy the United States would pursue hereafter toward Mexico.

In these messages the Consuls were instructed to render every aid possible to departing Americans, furnishing transportation or any other pecuniary assistance to the needy. They were informed that a sufficient number of ships would be provided to carry away those in the seacoast towns.

Foreign Governments will be notified of the action of the United States, so that they may give similar advice, but the American Consuls will help all foreigners in any emergency. Within a day or two an announcement is expected of the mobilization of a large number of American troops along the southern frontier to enforce neutrality in the traffic of arms and munitions of war.

Important To Primary Voters

The judges of election in several districts, notably Mt. Vernon and Smith's Island, have been seeking counsel with respect to a situation that has arisen because of the neglect of the judges who served at the Presidential Primary in May, 1912, to enter the party affiliation of such voters as participated in the primary. It seems that on the registration books in these districts many persons are marked "voted at the primary 1912" and to have done so they must have affiliated either with the Democratic or Republican party, yet the judges failed to enter such affiliation.

It is rumored that an effort will be made by the so-called Progressive candidates to take advantage of the situation in order to vote in the primary some people who in 1912 affiliated as Republicans and voted in the Taft-Roosevelt primary. The Democratic judges in these districts have been advised by counsel not to permit such persons to vote in the coming Democratic primary. It is held that while the judges can and should correct the error of the judges who served in 1912, nevertheless before permitting anybody who voted in 1912 to vote in the primary they should satisfy themselves by swearing witnesses if necessary that such person affiliated as a Democrat in the Presidential Primary.

Any person who voted in the Taft-Roosevelt primary will, therefore, be promptly checked should he attempt to vote on September 8th next.

Whitcraft-Stradtlander Wedding

The marriage of Miss Joana Van Der beek Stradtlander, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Stradtlander, to Mr. Lewis Norris Whitcraft, took place at 5.30 o'clock Saturday afternoon at the home of the bride's parents, "Somerset Hall" on Wicomico Creek, near Princess Anne, Maryland.

The ceremony was performed by Rev. W. F. Freund, of Princeton New Jersey. Mrs. Wm. F. Bilyen, of Riverton, N. J., was the matron of honor, and Miss Edith Amy Combes, of Manhasset, Long Island, and Miss Edwena Cleves Harrison, of Princess Anne, cousins of the bride, were bridesmaids. Mr. Whitcraft had as his best man his brother, Mr. Franklin Pierce Whitcraft, of Baltimore, Maryland.

DEMOCRATIC MASS-MEETING TOMORROW NIGHT

A Democratic Mass-Meeting will be held at Shelltown, Brinkley's district, at Edward M. Riggins' store, on Wednesday, September 3rd, at 7.30 p. m. Hon. Joshua W. Miles, Mr. John W. West and other speakers will address this meeting.

Editor Quinn the Chauffeur On the "Starr" Machine

Editor MARYLANDER AND HERALD:

After reading the last issue of the Crisfield Times—with much disgust—and as I am a citizen of Deal's Island, Maryland, I like justice dealt out squarely to every man, I am compelled to write this letter from the standpoint of principle. The Editor, Mr. Quinn, one whom a great many of us in this county are very well acquainted with, is continually crying down with Miles and smash the machine; why did not Mr. Quinn say smash the machine when he was riding along with Mr. Miles? I claim as a citizen of this county, and have been all my life, that Mr. Joshua W. Miles has only been a passenger in this so-called machine. Mr. Quinn has been the chauffeur and has been running, or trying to run, this so-called machine, to suit himself. About two months ago he tried to capture the post-office in Crisfield, and before he reached there his gasoline gave out on him. So he deserted this Miles machine, and he is now chauffeur for the Western Starr machine, with Dr. Alexander as pilot.

If I mistake not, the signs of the times tell us that after the 8th of September this trio will have to change machines to make the point they are trying to reach, because two years ago they did fool some people by calling themselves Progressive Democrats. In our district their vote came out 57 straight progressive tickets, on 50 of which Governor Goldsborough's name was found marked.

Mr. Progressive Man, call yourself what you are, and do not try and blind the eyes of the people any longer. You can take a genuine Democrat and throw him in a mud hole and haul him out and scrub him, he is still a Democrat, but those so-called Progressive Democrats you can rub up against them and the whitewash will rub off and show the black spots. So be careful and call yourself by the right name. Running under fictitious names, you are liable to get in trouble.

As to Mr. Miles' county leadership, I can say as a friend of his and a Democrat, that I am proud to think that we have such a man at the head of our party in Somerset county and I claim that every honest, good thinking citizen, should join me and say the same. I am now 46 years old and have been a Democrat all my life and I have never asked for any favors either from Mr. Miles or any of my party leaders, but still I claim fair dealing and justice to every man; let us get together and keep Mr. Miles where he rightly belongs and send Western Starr where he belongs—that place I will leave for someone else to decide.

As an oysterman, I want to let the people of our county know Mr. Quinn's attitude on the oyster question. He has been a planter for the last ten years; we elected him to the Legislature of Maryland, and he voted straight for the Haman bill every time he had the opportunity to carry his point. When he came home the following April he took up the best crabbing bottoms there was in the Annapolis river and planted by the large schooner load. I want to say it was a God send to have had there men like Judge H. L. D. Stanford and Lybrand Thomas. Beware then, of such men as Mr. Quinn and Western Starr, don't let them fool you. And I hope the message will reach the people of this county, and that every good-thinking unprejudiced man will think this matter over and vote accordingly hereafter.

"Well Worthy of Support"

Baltimore, August 26th, 1912.

Mr. S. Frank Dashiell, Princess Anne. Dear Sir—I notice in the last issue of the MARYLANDER AND HERALD, which has just reached me, the announcement of your candidacy for re-election to the office of Clerk of the Circuit Court, and I write you now to give you my best wishes for success in the primary and at the general election. My interest in your candidacy particularly out of my association with you while you were in the State Senate. My greatest interest—as you know—has always been in the oyster question, and I know that while you were a member of the Senate you devoted your best efforts at all times to the protection of the interests of the oystermen.

I remember how you stood by the oystermen in the compromise of the Seth-Haman bill by which certain grassy bottoms, as well as natural bars; were to be reserved for the oystermen and crabbers and through your determined stand for their rights the reservations referred to were allowed. I therefore think they should consider you well worthy of their support.

With my very best wishes, I am Yours truly,

THOMAS B. WEBSTER.

Somerset County Is Proud Of Hon. Joshua W. Miles

Editor MARYLANDER AND HERALD:

Will you kindly allow me space in your paper as I desire to give to your readers a few thoughts in reference to our coming primary election.

First thought—I have read much of late the slander and abuse heaped upon the head of the Hon. Joshua W. Miles of your home town, indeed my indignation has been stirred as never before. Why he has been called a "machine boss," "a boss," "a ringster," "a crook," and most anything else but a gentleman, I desire to ask the question, where, and by whom is this filthy gossip coming from? I will leave the readers to judge for themselves. If the writer did not know Joshua W. Miles, I would be led to believe that he was some great monster or some "wild man from Borneo."

I wish to say, however, that I have known Joshua W. Miles for more than thirty years, and can say that I have always found him to be the highest type of man, truthful, honest and square, why this slander and abuse? Indeed Somerset county should feel proud that they have such a son, with such a clean character and high ideas, one whose whole life has been spent and given to the Democratic party and much of the fruits of his labor we enjoy today. However history always repeats itself. Moses the great law giver led the children of Israel into the Promised Land and after doing so they murmured against him and were ready to forsake him; and so it is in this day, many whom Joshua W. Miles aided and assisted in many a bitter struggle, financially and otherwise, are now ready to away with him, crying out as of old "crucify him," "crucify him."

I ask what, for, what has caused all this slander and abuse? Let me tell you, many of the workers and singers in Zion have gotten out of tune and have allowed to enter their hearts hatred, jealousy, malice and envy, and the outgrowth of such hearts engenders controversies, fosters quarrels, and cherishes riots. Now, Mr. Voter, what are you going to do on the eighth of September?

Are you going to let the old flag of Democracy, that has been waving for more than sixty years, trail in the dust of this hatred malice and jealousy? I think not. You will be looking out early in the morning of the 9th of September, at the Eastern Sky, watching for the silvery Star of peace, not for the "Western Starr," who would slay and destroy all our cherished hopes.

GEORGE B. HORNER.

Fontaine-Stevenson Wedding

A pretty home wedding took place last Wednesday at the home of Mr. James G. Stevenson, in the suburbs of Pocomoke City, the contracting parties being Miss Mary Hearne Stevenson, eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James G. Stevenson, and Mr. E. Clarke Fontaine, both of Pocomoke City. Mr. Frank E. Stevenson, of Baltimore, a brother of the bride, and a classmate of Mr. Fontaine, was best man. Miss Vesta Stevenson, a sister of the bride, was maid of honor, and Misses Lottie Fontaine and Vivian Stevenson officiated as bridesmaids. Little Miss Frances Stevenson, of Baltimore, a niece of the bride, was flower girl. The ceremony was performed by Rev. E. P. Roberts, pastor of Salem Methodist Episcopal Church.

The groom is a son of Mr. and Mrs. Edgar Fontaine, of Pocomoke City, and a nephew of Mr. C. Wesley Fontaine, of Princess Anne, he is a graduate of St. John's College, Annapolis, and has the degree of B. A. and M. A. from that institution. For seven years, from 1904 to 1911, he was principal of the Pocomoke City High School resigning that position in 1911 to accept the chair in English at the Gitan Country School, Roland Park. Early this summer the Worcester County School Board unanimously tendered him a reappointment as principal of the Pocomoke City High School, which position he has decided to accept.

The bride is one of Worcester's most popular and talented young ladies. She is a high school teacher of many years' experience, and during Mr. Fontaine's engagement at the Gilman Country School, Roland Park, Baltimore, officiated with marked success as principal of the Pocomoke High School. Mr. and Mrs. Fontaine left on the noon north-bound train for a two-week tour, which will include Baltimore, Philadelphia, Atlantic City and other northern cities.

"YOUNG RUBE'S" ADVICE

Whoops It Up for Waters, Alexander and Norris in The Crisfield Times Where Ignorance Is Bliss

Young Rube, a well known character around Princess Anne, undertakes to give some advice to the voters of the whole county. Being himself short on gray matter in his head he assumes in addressing Somerset county's farmers that all of them have only gray matter enough in their heads to use his language "to make a good lunch for a consumptive humming bird." Acting on this assumption, he proceeds to whoop it up for Waters, Alexander and Norris, malcontent candidates for State Central Committee. Utterly ignoring the fact that the State Central Committee is the governing body of a political party, he appeals for votes for Waters, Alexander and Norris upon the theory that, if elected to their political offices, these men will have something to do with questions of taxation in Somerset county.

Every item of fact contained in Young Rube's article shows although anxious to be a lawyer he never was a "toter of Codes." For instance stupid little Rube talks glibly of the amount of money paid by the county to Supervisors of Election and the amount of fees paid by the county to Dr. Smith, health officer.

The County Commissioners of Somerset county have absolutely no control over the salaries of Supervisors of Election—their fees are fixed by State law. The same is true of the fees paid Dr. Smith as a reporter of vital statistics. The total cost of paying the salaries of the clerical force in the County Commissioners' office, the County Commissioners themselves and the County Treasurer has been reduced since the passage of legislation secured by Democratic legislators, from $3,000 per year up to 1909 to $2,600 per year since that time. The amount paid for attorneys services rendered in connection with the County Treasurer's office is money well earned and the Democratic Board of County Commissioners are content to have the judgment of Mr. H. Fillmore Lankford who formerly served in this capacity as to whether or not these services are overpaid.

As to the amount paid for services of School Superintendent, the present Board of County School Commissioners is a Republican Board and young Rube should try his hand with that Board in securing a better expenditure of public school funds. Probably a great reduction could be made in the amount paid for School Superintendent's salary by employing Young Rube in that capacity and paying him what he is really worth.

Largest Steamship Afire

Flames of unknown origin menaced the biggest steamship afloat, the giant Hamburg American Liner Imperator, at her dock in New York City early Thursday morning. In the fight to save the great craft Second Officer Herman Grbrecht lost his life and seaman Otto Stumpf was badly injured. The 1131 steerage passengers, who had not yet disembarked, were stricken with terror, but with rare discipline the ship's crew of 1080 men, in command of cool-headed officers, managed to get all of them ashore in safety despite their panic. Officials of the line estimated that the damage to the vessel itself is not great. Great quantities of supplies were made unless, however, by the flames, smoke and water. The company announced that the ship would sail Saturday as scheduled, and that the damage would be repaired, so far as possible, at sea.

The Imperator has suffered several mishaps, more or less serious, since her launching May 23, 1912. Her maiden trip was postponed from month to month, first because she ran aground while on her way to Hamburg, and then because of trouble with her turbines. A benzine explosion occurred on board the vessel April 24, which caused the death of two men and serious injury to six others.

Impression of One of Starr's Speeches

When in the peregrinations of the activities of the anthropoid species, it behooves mankind to elevate itself and vociferate sic semper tyrannis, tin canus, godhelpus, in such an eventuality, it is better to do right than wrong. Also it is not proper in polite society to pick your teeth with a fork. The philosophical teachings of Rameses II tell us that civic virtue is much to be preferred to unrighteousness, also that all office holders are crooks, and that the bellmaker is the apotheosis of goodness. I also am a good man similiter ad infinitum ad infinitum.

NINE PERSONS KILLED

One of the Boilers That Caused Tragedy Cast Into Yard 1500 Feet Away

Nine people were killed and six injured when the boilers on the steamer Alice let go early Saturday morning, near Lock No. 2, in the Ohio River, at Pittsburgh, Penna.

The steamer had just cleared the lock and was proceeding up the river. She was just about 300 feet from the lock when a terrific report was heard for several miles around. Many were awakened from their slumbers and hurried to the scene of the catastrophe and commenced the work of attending to the members of the ill-fated craft.

Saved 40,000 Baskets of Peaches

Over 40,000 baskets of peaches have been harvested and shipped by the Messrs. Harrison, at Berlin, Worcester county, up to last week, as a result of their spraying their peach trees nine times at an expense of $3,000. This tremendous shipment does not include their soft peaches or culls.

Harrisons are well prepared to meet any demand made upon them this Fall for young trees of the kind that yield crops. They have 4,000,000 peach trees and 4,000,000 apples ready for shipment; 250,000 pear trees and 100,000 young cherry trees. On their great nursery stock. Ten million strawberry plants are all ready for the fields of Delaware and Maryland farms.

Setting out shade trees for ornamenting and making elegant the home even the humble home, also promises to become more general and to be on time for this demand the Harrisons have 40,000 Norway maples in one block and 60,000 in another. They are beautiful and well worth the time and expense of a visit.

Orlando Harrison, who with his brother George A. Harrison, and his son, G. Hale Harrison, are the heads of departments in the Harrison enterprises, has organized twenty different orchard companies, so great is his faith in the fruit-growing business on the peninsula and has himself directed the planting of over 300,000 acres. Mr. Harrison is 46 years old and has spent his whole life in propagating fruit trees and planting commercial orchards. The question of growing fruit is up to every farmer to decide.

$12,000 Fire At Easton

Easton was threatened with a conflagration Wednesday afternoon between 5 and 6 o'clock when a fire broke out in the second story of Samuel Norris' grocery and provision store on Market Space, one of the main business blocks in the heart of the town. But for the work of the volunteer firemen the entire block, which has three times before been burned out, would now be in ashes. The loss will amount to $10,000 or $12,000.

From Norris' store the flames swept to the bowling alley and billiard parlor of W. E. Lednum, which was badly damaged. The shoe store of Philip Hopkins, the rear buildings of the Emergency Hospital and a few small buildings were destroyed.

The main building of the Emergency Hospital was afire several times and for fear of it falling a prey to the flames every patient in the hospital was removed on stretchers and cots and carried to a place of safety. The greater portion of the furniture was also taken out, but after a hard struggle by the firemen the buildings were saved and the patients carried back.

Stevenson—Scott Wedding

The Wilmington (Del.) Morning News of the 25th ult., contains the following: "At the residence of the Rev. T. L. Tompkinson, 712 Monroe street, on Sunday afternoon, August 24th, W. Herman Stevenson and Miss Mary A. Scott were united in matrimony. The bridegroom is an employee of the duPont Company and a nephew of the clergyman who married them. The bride is a daughter of the late Whitley Scott. The couple are off for an extended wedding trip, including New York and up the Hudson river, a sea voyage to Norfolk, Virginia Beach, Richmond, Crisfield, and a visit to the family of the bridegroom in Princess Anne. Upon their return they will begin housekeeping in this city."

—Many prominent lawyers of Baltimore and of the state will attend the annual meeting of the American Bar Association, which convened yesterday (Monday) and will be in session today (Tuesday) and Wednesday at Montreal, Canada. Delegates to the meeting announced by Judge Walter I. Dawkins, president of the Maryland State Bar Association, are Chief Judge A. Hunter Boyd, of the Court of Appeals of Maryland; James C. Rogers, of Hyattsville, and Clayton Purnell, of Frostburg.

HIGH PRICED HONOR

It Costs to Represent Uncle Sam at a Foreign Court.

HEDGED ABOUT BY DIGNITY.

Trials and Tribulations That Beset a New Ambassador—Ceremonies in Which He Must Participate and For Which He Must Give Lavish Tips.

An unofficial American can live more economically abroad than at home—that is a fact. Food is cheaper. Servants work for less money. This being so, why is it not possible for an unpretentious Yankee diplomat to live in Europe for the same money as in America? I put the question to a former ambassador who has lived in London, Paris and Rome.

"They tell me one can go to the market and buy a part of a chicken—a wing or a drumstick. Think of it! Food must be cheap there."

"But the ambassador cannot sally forth with a market basket on his arm," said the retired diplomat.

That sums up the difficulty. An ambassador cannot do anything for himself. So he is a shining mark for everybody. There is nobody so helpless in America, except the poor taxpayer. Let us look into it.

International law, which is as full of fine spun distinctions as common law or domestic law, regards an ambassador as the direct personal representative of the ruler of his country and ordains that he be treated in a manner befitting such a very important person. This accounts for the ceremony attending the ambassador's presentation of the president's letter of credence to the sovereign. In detail the function varies in different countries, but the continental custom is in general as follows:

At the day and hour fixed by the king, emperor or president a court functionary of high degree in gorgeous uniform appears at the abode of the new American ambassador. He is accompanied by numerous other personages, somewhat lower in rank, but uniformed in equally bright colors. He is provided with three court carriages, together with attendants and outriders. He is in command of a mounted escort and, last, but not least, of a white plumed band, accoutered with instruments of glittering brass.

The American ambassador, probably flustered by the ceremony, is conducted to the first of the carriages, which is drawn by eight horses. He is politely waved to the back seat, while his personal escort, instead of sitting by his side, takes the seat facing him. The Yankee diplomat wears a frock coat—Prince Albert, he calls it—and a silk hat, and his gloves, dictated by his wife, are of gray suede.

Across from him sits the chief functionary, attired with a brilliance seldom seen outside of comic opera.

In solemn stately procession the carriages and outriders, preceded by the mounted troop, with the resonant band in the van, take up the march to the palace. On both sides of the thoroughfare is a curious, gaping crowd. At that the many corps de garde soldiers come out and present arms, and when the American ambassador, a plain man, perhaps, arrives at the palace there is an elaborate presentation of arms and a beating of drums that completely take the gimp out of him.

Unexpectedly simple is the sovereign's reception of the new diplomat. But after it is over the American must again endure the ceremonious processional back to his domicile. Then comes the shock.

The first secretary explains that the sun must not set before the portbore is distributed. This, the ambassador learns, is French for tip. He also learns that the transportation to and from the palace has a purse string to it. The keeper of the royal stables must be tipped.

"It is an inviolable custom," insists the first secretary.

"How much?" asks the fledgling diplomat.

"For an ambassador," says the first secretary, "the rule is $200."

There is probably an explosion, but in the end the ambassador pays.

A London editor, who was born in America and received his newspaper training on this side of the water, once said:

"You can safely give a present, if not a gratuity, to any official below the sovereign on the continent."

"How about England?" I asked.

"The present should be more expensive, the gratuity larger."—Henry Beach Needham in Saturday Evening Post.

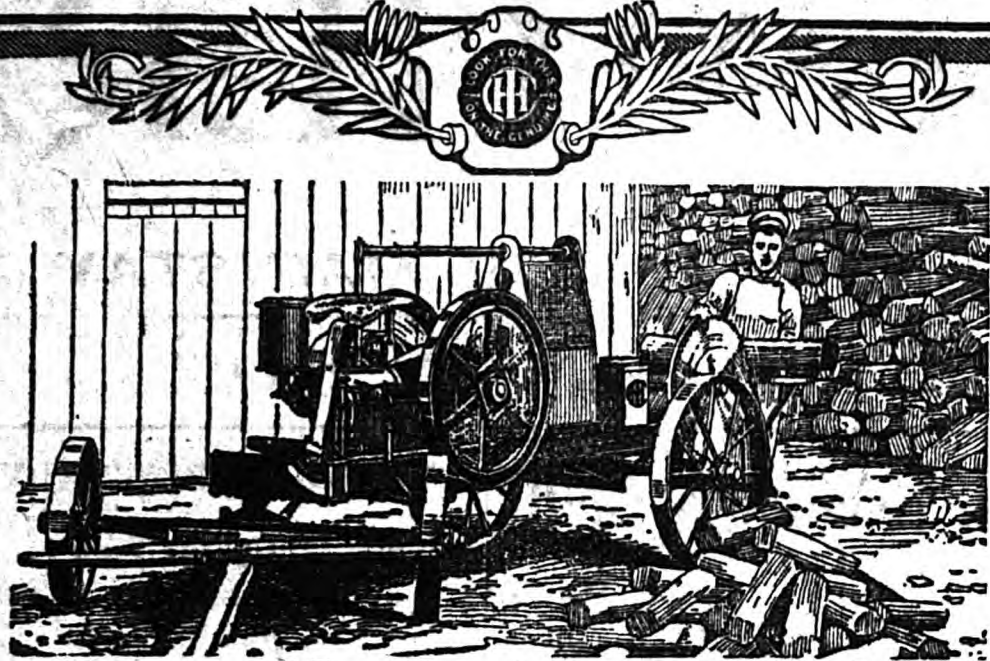

Paint Saves Money.

Why not use a little paint occasionally? It prolongs the life of the buildings, adds value to the price of the farm and helps to make a "home beautiful." Buildings last 25 to 50 per cent longer if painted. That means that a building which would last fifty to seventy-five years unpainted would last 75 to 125 years if painted. It is the same with fences and farm implements. It is easy to see that paint saves money.—Kansas Farmer.

Buy a Mechanical Drudge

ANY a winter day of back breaking labor has the average farmer spent stooping over the old buck saw, z-r-r-p, z-r-r-ping its way through tough wood for the kitchen stove supply. But the wise ones don't do it now. They have a handy engine to run the saw, while they rest and plan for next summer's work.

That engine is about the busiest and most convenient machine the wise man has on his farm. It pumps water for him, runs the separator, washing machine, feed grinder, corn sheller, and grindstone. Often it runs a hay press, ensilage cutter, small thresher, or a repair shop. The year round it drudges for him, saving the man's strength for more profitable things. And the wisest man has an because it does most for him at least cost. Its simplicity renders it almost trouble-proof. Its construction makes it easy to start and to operate, and it is most economical in fuel consumption. It is made of best material, and when necessary it will deliver 10 to 30 per cent above its rated horse power. I H C responsibility for the engine lasts all the years it is in service.

I H C engines are made in all styles—vertical and horizontal, portable, stationary and skidded, air and water cooled. There are pumping, sawing and spraying outfits. Sizes from 1 to 50-horse power, to operate on gas, gasoline, naphtha, distillate, kerosene, and alcohol. Oil tractors, 6-12 to 30-60-horse power for plowing, threshing, etc.

The I H C local dealer will show you the engines and tell you all about them. Get catalogues from him, or write the

MADE A GOOD GUESS.

He Had No Thermometer to Tell Him the Temperature.

It often happens on sledge journeys among the arctic ice that the thermometers are broken. In that case the party finds itself without any means of determining the temperature. But Roald Amundsen, the discoverer of the south pole, says that if the explorer accustoms himself to guess the temperature it is possible to estimate the mean temperature for a month with a fair degree of accuracy. This fact he proved by means of a guessing competition during the winter that his party spent in camp on the great ice barrier.

As each man came in in the morning he gave his opinion of the temperature outside, and each guess was entered in a book. At the end of the month I went over the figures, and the man who had guessed correctly the greatest number of times won the prize—a few cigars. Besides giving practice in estimating degrees of cold, it was a very good diversion with which to begin the day. When one day is almost exactly like another the first hour of the morning is likely to be a little sour. The competition engaged every one's attention pleasantly. Each man's entrance was awaited with excitement, and one man was not permitted to make his guess in the hearing of the man who followed him. Therefore they had to speak as they came in, one by one.

"Now, Stubberud," I would say, "what's the temperature today?"

Stubberud had his own way of calculating, which I never succeeded in understanding. One day, for instance, he looked about him and studied the various faces. "It isn't warm today," he said at last, with a great deal of conviction. I could immediately encourage him with the assurance that he had guessed correctly. It was —69 degrees F.

The monthly results were very interesting. So far as I can remember, the best performance in any month was eight approximately correct guesses. A man might keep remarkably close to the actual temperature for a long time and then suddenly one day make an error of 25 degrees.

The winner's mean temperature agreed within a few tenths of a degree with the actual mean temperature of the month, and the mean of all the competitors' mean temperature gave a result that was almost exactly correct. So if we had been so unlucky as to lose all our thermometers we should not have been entirely at a loss.

What Pepsys Saw in Church.

Once Pepsys goes to Hackney church, "chiefly," he says, "to see the young ladies of the school, whereof there is great store and very pretty." And on another Sunday, "After dinner I did by water alone to Westminster to the parish church and there did entertain myself with the perspective glass up and down the church, by which I had great pleasure of seeing and gazing at a great many very fine women; and what with that and sleeping, I passed away the time till the sermon was done." And again on a Sunday afternoon to the same church, "thinking to see Betty Michel and stay an hour in the crowd, thinking by the end of a nose that I saw that it had been her, but at last the head was turned toward me and it was her mother, which vexed me."—George Hodges in the Atlantic.

Damaraland.

Mistakes such as that which makes Uganda of Buganda are frequent when the white man bases his geographical nomenclature on his understanding of the native. Sometimes they are amusing when one gets the explanation. For instance, Damaraland should really be Damaqualand, just as Namaqualand and Griqualand, for "qua" is the masculine plural, meaning "men." "Ra" is the feminine dual. The explorer, with a sweep of his hand, questioned his native guides as to the name of the country. But they thought he was pointing to two Dama women in the distance and answered, "Damarara." So this portion of German Africa bears a name which signifies "land of two Dama women."—London Chronicle.

Told of a Tailor.

A Viennese tailor was so fascinated by his own figure in a suit ordered by a court functionary that he could not make up his mind to part with the garment. He passed hours daily before the mirror admiring the elegant fit until his mind gave way to lunacy. He finally had to be consigned to an asylum, whither he was enticed, says a correspondent, on pretext of his being invited to attend a levee in his court dress.—Pall Mall Gazette.

Happy Relief.

"You seem happier." "Yes," responded the clerk in the department store. "I've been transferred from the silk counter to the grindstone department. And very few women out shopping insist on pawing over that stock."—Washington Herald.

Call Money.

"I wish I had a lot of that call money." "What for?" "To pay my telephone bills with." "Stupid."—Baltimore American.

Base Hit.

"You talk about men!" exclaimed the suffragette. "What has man ever done for woman?" "He invented the ballot box," came timidly from the rear of the hall.

Where a man can live he can also live well, but he may not have to live in a palace.—Marcus Aurelius.

MARIA'S MONEY

She Drew Too Much on Her Imagination

By CLARISSA MACKIE

Maria Bevis dusted the glass showcase in her little store, piled the bolts of percale and gingham neatly on the shelves, hung some imitation lace collars in the window and unlocked the door for the day's business.

Behind the store, which was the front parlor of her house, were the rooms where Maria lived.

As she sat at the window waiting for customers she saw a girlish form hurry past and enter the grocery store. Maria Bevis smiled sadly.

"Shiftless," she muttered, snatching irritably at the red yarn of her ball.

"If that ain't just like Amy Lane.

Probably just got out of bed and gone to the store for something for breakfast! I never could believe Cousin Sam's daughter could be so different from me! Bevises have always been thrifty and hardworking. Somehow Amy Bevis was different; then she went and married Howard Lane, and everybody knows it's starvation business running a country newspaper.

But—

The door swung inward with jangling bell, and a little, black-eyed, white-haired woman hopped in like a sparrow and perched on a chair.

"Well, Maria, how goes it?" twittered Ida Ramsell girlishly.

"I'm all right, Ida," returned Maria dryly. "Going out to sew today?"

"Yes—up to Mrs. Bremer's. I'll want two yards of slate-colored silesia and two spoons of black thread No.
60, I guess. Just saw Amy," remarked
Ida.

"So did I."

"Amy looks sick, Maria."

"Probably she eats too much pastry.

I hear she lives out of the bakery," sniffed Maria, squinting suspiciously into a box of thread.

"They are having a hard time to get along," murmured Ida kindly.

"Humph! Howard better go to work and do something that will bring in real money. I never dreamed when I lent that money to Amy's father that he would die without a penny. When I spoke to her about it she and Howard up and promised to pay every-cent, with interest."

"I heard they said they would pay compound interest."

Maria flushed. "You do hear a lot of trashy talk, Ida! Howard did say that, but it's all talk. They've never made but the one payment on the interest.
I never expect to get the rest."

"I expect it's a good deal for you to lose," suggested Ida inquisitively.

"That's a personal matter," returned Maria stiffly. "It's enough that I lent it to Cousin Sammy, and he gave me the note for it payable on demand.
Amy and Howard have promised to pay it. But, land, I've given it up!"

"Folks say you don't speak to Amy and Howard now," ventured Ida Ram-sell as she arose to go.

"For once folks are right. I told 'em
I didn't hold to keeping acquaintance with cheats."

"Maria!" For once Ida's sharp voice was warmly sympathetic for young Howard Lane and his wife, Amy.
Swiftly she changed the topic. "Mr.
Busby told me to tell you that you were appointed one of the delegates to the convention at Ripple River. There'll be twenty-five churches represented. Mrs. Bremer's another. I suppose you'll go?"

"Go nowhere!" cried Maria bitterly.

"I can't afford to, Ida. If Amy would pay that money I could go."

"Well, I'm sorry. Goodbye," said Ida hurriedly, and the door jangled after her. "My," she breathed as she skipped down the street. "Maria must have lent them a lot of money! When I think of all the things she's wanted to do and couldn't because of the money tied up in that family loan I feel if she was a martyr."

Ida Ramsell repeated that remark the next afternoon at the sewing society, and a buzz of laughter went around the group of busy women.

"It must be thousands of dollars," observed Mrs. Bremer quietly. "although I never could understand how Maria Bevis could get hold of very much to lend. I remember, when I went into black for Mr. Bremer, I offered to sell her my new garnet silk, but Maria said she couldn't afford it just then; she'd lent every penny to Sammy's folks and they hadn't paid her back."

"Too bad of her to talk so much about it," said the minister's wife.

"Family affairs are best kept in the family."

"That's what I'm always telling Maria," chirruped Ida Ramsell, sewing jerkily. "But she will gabble about it. Does seem's if her milk of human kindness was turned to vinegar and the just rejoiced in gettings slaps at Howard and Amy."

"I wonder how the baby is," murmured Mrs. Busby, the minister's wife.

"Better, so Amy said when I ran in there yesterday. Seems they had trouble with the milk from Long's.
Howard wants to buy a cow, but I guess he doesn't dare to until they pay Maria."

That same night Amy and Howard Lane sat in their garden and talked of the future and played with Joyce, who seemed much better. From a tent on the green came sounds of laughter and threads of music, where a fair was in full swing.

Howard's arm was around Amy's waist. "Dear, if you hadn't married me you might have been over there enjoying yourself," he said, a little bitterly. "Now you are ashamed to go because you haven't got decent shoes to wear and because if you spent a penny Cousin Maria would frown and call us—"

"Cheats," finished Amy, with a little laugh. "Never mind, Howard. I've been to lots of fairs, and I've got you and baby, and that's enough for any girl. Only I do wish we could pay Cousin Maria's note."

They started to go into the house when a man entered the front gate and came briskly toward them. "Mr. and Mrs. Howard Lane?" he asked abruptly.

"Yes," said Howard.

"I'm Tobias Bevis—Maria's brother.

Guess you've heard of me from your father. Amy, ain't it? You was a little girl when I went away. Your father, my Cousin Sammy, mortgaged his house for $1,000 to send me to California to get back my health.
Well, I got it back and went to Australia, and I've been making money.
I've brought back Cousin Sammy's money with compound interest. It's here in this packet. I'm sorry I couldn't give it to him direct. He was one of the best men in the world."

The man's voice trembled as he finished speaking.

Without questioning why this long delayed loan was only now being repaid, Howard and Amy ushered Tobias Bevis into the house and listened to his story.

"I came here first. Maria wasn't home, and I went to the minister, Mr.
Busby, and he gave me the particulars of Cousin Sammy's death. I'm sorry, Amy, that your father lost his home on account of me, but I'll make it up if I can, to this little girl of yours.
Did you say her name was Joyce?"

He played with the baby while Amy and Howard counted the money with trembling fingers and unbelieving eyes. Twenty-two hundred dollars! What wealth! Perhaps there would be enough left after Cousin Maria's awful debt was paid to give them a fair start in the world. Paying the interest had always kept them back.

"We must go tonight," whispered
Amy, and Howard nodded assent.

Tobias promised to care for the baby until their return, and the happy pair hastened to Maria's house, where they found that splinter in a state of perturbation over the discovery of a man's leather suit case on her front plaza.

"What in time has happened?" she asked tartly as she ushered them into her sitting room.

"We've come to pay the note," said Amy proudly. "Will you please bring it at once, Cousin Maria? We must get it off our minds."

"With compound interest," added
Howard.

Maria looked at them blankly. She had never expected the note to be paid, and she had not looked at it for years.

Slowly she walked to the china closet and took down a large blue china teapot. She thrust her hand in the top and drew out a bundle of yellowed papers.

Her spectacled eyes selected one and brought it to the table and laid it on the red cover. "There it is," she said skeptically. "Do you want to pay the whole of it?"

"I hope it isn't over $2,000," whispered Amy prayerfully as she turned over the note.

She stared uncomprehendingly at it and gave it to her husband. "What does it say?" she whispered tensely.

Howard read and his face flushed.

"Cousin Maria, do you mean to say that this note is only for $25—that that is all Father Bevis borrowed from you?" he demanded hotly.

Maria nodded dazedly. "I guess that's right," she said sheepishly.

"Somehow I got to thinking how many things I could do with that money. It got to seem like a whole lot. I—I—"

She paused helplessly, while Howard counted out $30 and pushed it across the table. Then he caught up the note and set a lighted match to it.
When it crumbled to ashes he looked across the blacked fragments on the red cloth into Maria's scared eyes.

"Maria Bevis," he said gravely,
"you've spoiled the three years of our married life, all for that paltry little sum. It is paid in full. How are you going to pay us back for the agony you have caused us? You have made us the laughingstock of the village and—"

"Don't Howard," said Amy softly.

"Please don't. She is sorry."

"What would Rippledale say if it knew how much we really owed you?"
Howard added remorselessly.

Maria's head dropped into her hands.

"Tell 'em," she sniffed miserably. "I don't blame you one mite!"

There was silence. Then Howard spoke abruptly. "We won't tell a word.
Maria. People may think what they please about the amount, but it is your place to inform every one that the note is paid, the debt is canceled. Will you do it?"

"Yes," cried Maria fervently. "I'll tell 'em tomorrow at the missionary meeting, and I don't suppose you'll ever have much to do with me again!"

"Nonsense," said Amy brightly. "I'm coming over tomorrow morning with baby to buy something for new little dresses and we will have a cozy chat."

But Maria Bevis punished herself in her own way. When her brother Tobias came in and surprised her by his sudden arrival she told him the whole story, and any one who knew Maria Bevis and realized how she worshiped this young brother might understand that Maria Bevis was not too old to learn a lesson.

Blair Lee State Leader

Cy Cummings, a member of the Maryland legislature from Montgomery county, was in Washington for a day or two last week and in talking at the Shoreham, on Maryland politics and the Democratic leadership, said:

"Blair Lee's triumph in the contest, if it may be called a contest, for the Democratic nomination for the short-term United States senatorship is far more significant in its relation to future events than may appear to casual outsiders. It means, if it means anything, that Blair Lee is to become the Democratic State leader of Maryland, displacing Senator John Walter Smith, and it means, I believe, the defeat of Senator Smith next year."

"Senator Smith, as shrewd politicians view it, has brought about his own downfall. He had the chance of retaining the leadership for an indefinite period, as long as he might want it, if he had not blundered. Had he supported Blair Lee for governor instead of Mr. Gorman he would have disarmed the Lee forces and there would probably have been no fight against him for re-election. There has been for a long time a very strong sentiment for Mr. Lee, but Senator Smith could not see it, and he went blindly into the fight against Lee. The crumbling of the opposition to Blair Lee has brought out to the supporters of Senator Smith a realization of the mistakes their chief has made, and the result is inevitable—the opposition to Senator Smith is bound to grow."

Diamonds in Arkansas

Diamonds were first discovered in Arkansas August 1, 1906, near the mouth of Prairie Creek, in the vicinity of Murfreesboro, Pike county, and since that time approximately 1,375 stones, aggregating 550 carats, are reported to have been found in this locality. The diamonds in Arkansas occur in a rock known as peridotite, and for this reason search for further areas of the rock has been made. This search has resulted in the finding of three new areas, the known extent of which is much smaller than that near Murfreesboro. Four diamonds of good quality are said to have been picked up on the surface, the largest weighing 4 carats.
Further development work to ascertain the extent of the peridotite is now under way. On another tract, where a little washing for diamonds has been done in a crude way without machinery, 20 diamonds have been recovered.

"I'm no hero—I'm a regular."—Blair Lee.

Democrats of Somerset county can render their county a service by turning out at the primaries next Monday, September 8th, and casting their ballots for the Regular Democratic candidates.

Do you believe in keeping step with the Woodrow Wilson Democratic administration at Washington and with Blair Lee who will be the next United States Senator from Maryland, if so, come to the primary on Monday, September 8th, and vote the Regular Ticket and thereby support the true Democracy for which Woodrow Wilson stands.

Bargain Day in Somerset Politics

Fred. L. Thornton, Progressive candidate for County Commissioner's office, through "The Crisfield Times" last Saturday, says: If elected he will give his whole salary to the Crisfield Hospital. This is very philanthropic. Thornton probably knows he's safe, however when he says "if elected." If a County Commissioner does his full duty for six years he will earn the little salary he gets. Before next week, we shall in all likelihood, see the rest of the Progressive candidates offering green trading stamps with every ten votes.

Starr The Complainer Complains

Western Starr complains that the "machine," as it gratifies his notoriety seeking disposition to call it, has made his "career" the issue in the present campaign.

The "career" of Western Starr is not the issue nor one of the issues of this campaign. To call it such is to give it a dignity which it does not deserve. It has been, however, the subject of most profitable political discussion and it is undoubtedly true that the glaring inconsistencies in the "career" and the methods of this man are largely responsible for the radical change in public sentiment in this county during the last two years.

Western Starr emerged upon the political scene of Somerset county two years ago as the leading figure in the organization of the Progressive or Independent Democratic movement, which position of leadership he still retains in the present so-called Anti-Miles movement. During the past two years Starr has devoted his time incessantly to bitter abuse of the Democratic officials of the county and to an unparagoned denunciation of the record of the party. He has studiously and deliberately sought to convey the impression and to create the belief that the government of the county is in the hands of dishonest officials, who are corruptly managing its affairs.

It is, however, most significant that, notwithstanding all his abuse and denunciation, Western Starr has never made the first definite charge of official misconduct or wrongdoing against any man in the county. Neither has he ever proven any statement made by him against the record of the party.

Knowing that he can prove nothing, Western Starr is unscrupulous enough to seek to convey false impressions by base insinuations and deceptive statements. This is the predominant characteristic of all his public utterances. One who knew him long ago in another State said that "Starr talks much, but says nothing" and the people of this county are nauseated with his words-words-words.

To say the least, and put it mildly, Western Starr is a wild, erratic agitator, who, as John W. West has correctly said "must agitate."

The ink-slinging advertiser who signs himself "Public Gole" shows himself to be a "Public Nuisance."

The only reply that The Crisfield Times makes to the attack of Senator Lewis Milbourne upon them, which appeared in our last issue, is that Senator Milbourne is not a gentleman. In this connection we are reminded of the reply made by Woodrow Wilson, while he was Governor of New Jersey, to the statement made to him by Jim Nugent, the famous political spoilsman of that State: "You are no judge."

When the fifteen hundred votes that regulars will cast in the fifteen districts, of Somerset county are tabulated and counted on the night of September 8th, Republicans will not get much comfort, after all, out of the fact that a few hundred votes are cast for the "other fellows" in our Democratic primaries, some of whose followers will "come marching home" before the idea of November and swell the grand army of Democrats that will overthrow the common enemy on November fourth.

The announcement of the candidacy of Dr. R. R. Norris, of Crisfield, on the anti-Miles ticket, as they call it, for membership on the State Central Committee for Somerset county, which office carries with it control of the affairs of the Democratic party in the county, contains the following:

"I am anxious for the success of the Democratic party in Somerset county. To accomplish this end we must abide by the true interpretation of the policy of our party, thus ridding our county of bosses and machine-made candidates."

Dr. Norris is a brother-in-law of Ex-Senator Arthur P. Gorman, who was said by the press of the State to be the leader of the movement to bring out a candidates against the Hon. Blair Lee for the short-term Senatorship.

The public can draw its own conclusion.

All Births Must Be Reported

Wholesale prosecution of physicians and parents who neglect to report births is the plan the officials of the State Board of Health have adopted to enforce the statute requiring birth registration. The fact that parents of children may be prosecuted is not generally known, but the law provides that where a physician is not in attendance the parents of a child shall appear before the state health officer and record the birth.

Several prosecutions have already been made in the counties and in nearly all of the cases the defendant have pleaded ignorance of the law. However, this has not been accepted as an excuse and a number of fines have imposed. The law governing the birth registration was considered inadequate and at the last session of the legislature it was amended so that now the state authorities have plenty of grounds on which to bring prosecutions for failure to report births.

Dr. F. V. Beidler, who is in charge of the vital statistics bureau of the State Health Department, is endeavoring to ascertain all cases where physicians, midwives or parents have neglected to report births since the new law went into effect and suits against those who have not obeyed the statute will follow.

There have been some complaints of the failure of physicians and parents to report births occurring in Wicomico county, and these cases will be looked into. Those whose duty it is to report births had better obey the law strictly if they do not want to be prosecuted.

NOTICE To Tax-Payers

Notice is hereby given that the levy of the year 1913 for State and County taxes has been made for Somerset county. Pursuant to said levy the taxes are now in my hands for collection. A discount of three per cent. will be allowed on all county taxes paid on or before October 31st, 1913, and a discount of two per cent. if paid during November 1913. A discount of five per cent. will be allowed on all State taxes paid on or before August 31st, 1913.

The law provides that both County and State taxes must be paid in order to obtain the discount.

ROBERT F. MADDOX,
Treasurer and Collector of State and County Taxes.

Oysters Versus Meat

With meat soaring and the lowering cattle upon the ranges being turned to for moving picture records in prospects of the day when the bovine will be among the archeological curios of the past, the self-respecting oyster has decided to offer itself in immolation upon the altar of appetite. This is in effect the meaning of the action for nation wide adoption of the bivalve as a diet, which enterprise has been set upon foot by the Oyster Growers and Dealers Association of North America.

A quart of oysters, it is asserted, contains as much nutriment as a quart of milk, minus the microbes of the latter. Prepared in any form, or raw, the oyster is meat for the gods. The bivalve, so characteristic of the Chesapeake, is to be taken from the pages of elegy and placed upon the bill of fare of the nation; the gourmands are no longer to monopolize the festive and encrusted creature. The world and his wife will be invited to dine upon the cuisine that the oyster in varied forms offers, and while the price of meat soars the oyster will go gurgling down the halls of fame as the savior of the American dinner table.

Maryland all hails the movement to save the day for the American housewife by placing the oyster in a myriad of edible and poetic variations upon the menu of the country—the cheapest and best dish the world affords.—Baltimore American.

New Industry Profitable

A new agricultural industry has sprung up in Wicomico county in the growing of broom corn.

B. Frank Kennerly and Elisha T. Twilley last year started a broom factory in Salisbury and finding that broom corn was so expensive in freight from the States of Oklahoma and Indiana, distributed seed to many farmers in that section and many acres were grown.

David J. Ward had a large display and won first prize at the Wicomico Fair. He spent some time in Indiana and Illinois, making a special study of the planting of this crop, and this year he will go to Oklahoma to study the housing and curing of the broom tops. He says that Wicomico county land will produce one ton of first-class broom corn to an acre after being cured and should net the growers from $75 to $125 an acre.

Maryland Workshop for the Blind

If one were asked to name the places of interest in Baltimore, he probably would never think to include the Maryland Workshop for the blind, at 501 W. Fayette street; yet an hour spent in this institution would easily convince the visitor of its claim to a place in the list, for, besides the fact that all the workers there are sightless men and women, it is seldom that so many different industries are found in operation under one roof.

Ever since 1853, a school has been provided for the blind children of our State; but those who lost their sight in latter life were, except the few cases that it was possible for the school to reach, left in idleness and dependence until the establishment of the workshop, about six years ago.

The blind men and women of Baltimore and the counties gladly availed themselves of the opportunity thus offered to become self-supporting; and, under the wise management of Mr. G. W. Conner, who is himself without sight—and by the way, an Eastern Shoreman—the work has grown so rapidly that last year it was found necessary to build a large addition to the original structure occupied by the workshop.

Now, about one hundred and fifty blind persons go there daily from their homes to work at broom-making, piano-tuning, chair-caning, mattress making, basketry, weaving, knitting, crocheting, sewing or hammock making, according to individual talent and preference.

The workshop is an assured success; but its continued and increase success depends upon the recognition and patronage which it receives from the sighted people of the State. An artist cannot sell his picture if no one knows that he can paint; a carpenter cannot obtain employment unless it is known that he wants it. The blind men and women are doing good work, and doing it most gladly; they cannot sell everything that they can produce until their work becomes more widely known. To this end, some of Maryland's progressive towns have promised to lend a helping hand and dispose of the numerous and pretty things made by the blind people of that institution.

In Memoriam

In loving memory of my devoted mother, Mary O. Gibbons, who departed this life one year ago, September 24, 1912.

God alone knows how I miss thee
In my home, oh! mother dear,
How for thee my heart is yearning,
How I long thy voice to hear.

I could not have borne the sorrow
Of parting dear mother with thee,
If it were not for the blissful hope
That again thy dear face I will see,
In heaven be clasped in thy loving arms,
Reunited forever to be.

BY HER DAUGHTER.

BETTER PAINT

Better paint this year if your property needs it. Mistaken men have been waiting for paint to come-down. The cost of their job has gone-up not down; it always goes-up by waiting; never comes down.

Better paint than Devco? There isn't any.

Suppose one had waited 20 or 30 years ago for a better paint than Devco; how long would he have waited? How long would he still have to wait?

The price a gallon makes some difference; yes, but not much; it's the paint that counts, the quality counts.

It's the go-for that counts. Protection of property counts more yet.

Better paint.

DEVCO

C. H. Hayman sells it.

There is no road to success but through a clear, strong purpose—nothing can take its place. A purpose underlies character, culture, position, attainment of every sort—

Maryland Gets $10,000 for Roads

Maryland, under a special agreement, is receiving this year $10,000 out of the $500,000 appropriation for federal aid in conjunction with the states made available by the Act of August 24, 1912, for the improvement of roads which are or likely to be used as rural free delivery routes by the postal service.

Under the act each state receiving any of this money is to put up $2 for every dollar allotted to that state for road purposes under this act. The State of Maryland is to spend $20,000 under this provision of the law, and the federal government $10,000, making a total of $30,000 to be spent in connection with this legislation on this federal road experiment in Maryland.

Regarding this new Maryland post road the Postmaster General's report sent to Congress Wednesday says:

"The designated road in Maryland extends from Rockville to the village of Potomac, near the Potomac river, in Montgomery county. Survey of a were started on July 7, 1913, and the preliminary work has been completed, profile and plat drafted, cross sections calculated, alignment and grade adjusted and estimate complete. Specifications are in progress of writing and it is expected that advertisement can be made shortly after August 23, covering that part of this road which it is intended to construct, amounting to four miles. The fund at present available will provide for the construction of only four miles of the road on the basis of the engineer's estimate.

When finally completed the road will, however, be 5.4 miles long.

Caught a Bad Cold

"Last winter my son caught a very bad cold and the way he coughed was something dreadful," writes Mrs. Sarah E. Duncan, of Tipton, Iowa. "We thought sure he was going into consumption. We bought just one bottle of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy and that one bottle stopped his cough and cured his cold completely." For sale by all dealers.

INSECT ANAESTHETICS.

Wasps and Bees Paralyze Their Victims Before Killing.

That the sting of the wasp, which punctures the nerve centers of a captured caterpillar or spider, usually paralyzes the creature into helplessness rather than kills it is well known.

The curious thing is that the beetle anaesthetizes the mollusk at the first attack, preventing it from escaping by withdrawing to safety deep within its shell.

CAUGHT THE CAPTAIN.

He Was Not on the Early Morning Job, but the Kaiser Was.

Some time ago the Kaiser heard that a captain in one of the guards regiments at Potsdam had fired the regulation hour of schooling for his men at 6 o'clock in the morning.

The captain was not there, but the emperor showed neither annoyance nor surprise. He asked where the lesson was to be found in the books, and without more ado, to the mingled anxiety and delight of the men, he took the lesson in hand and explained the passage in history which was the subject of the day.

Nothing more was said or heard about the incident until a few days later, when the captain received a handsome alarm clock, evidently from the Kaiser.

Matlock, so dear to John Ruskin, brought him within sight of death in 1871. It was a wretched, wet summer; he went out in a miserable morning to paint, took a chill, and aggravated the internal inflammation that followed to a dangerous degree by refusing to take the doctor's medicines.

TO KEEP UP SOIL WEALTH.

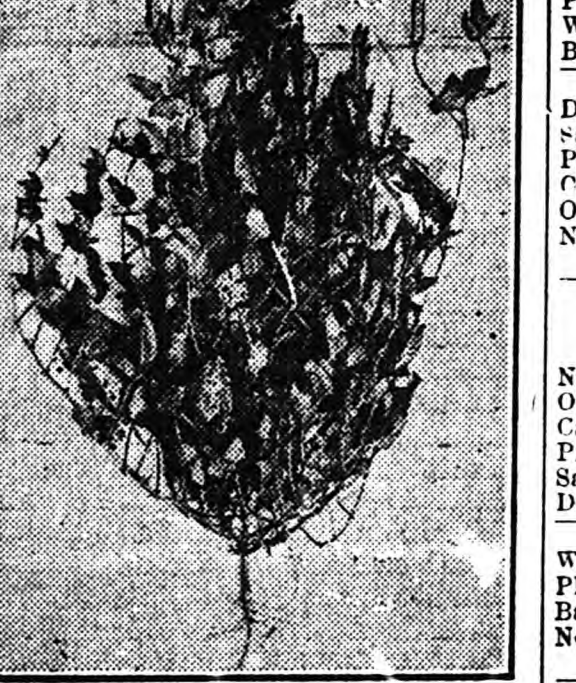

Growing a Legume Crop Is Necessary Every Four Years.

Clover or some other legume crop once every four years is absolutely necessary in order to maintain the nitrogen of the soil for corn, wheat, oats, timothy and like crops.

Where it is difficult to secure clover the trouble is either a sour soil needing limestone or a soil low in phosphorus.

Where clover has failed and a crop like clover is needed soy beans and cowpeas are proving a very profitable substitute in the corn belt.

Soy beans make a valuable hay, yielding from one and a half to three tons per acre. The seed when well to ripen make a very valuable concentrate, being as rich in protein as oilmeal.

A crop rotation should be practiced which includes the growing of clover or some other legume crop at least as often as once every four years.

All crop residues, as well as manure, whether stalks, straw or chaff, should be left on the farm, being hauled if necessary and plowed under, either directly or in the form of manure, in order to supply organic matter and nitrogen.

The heating and burning of alfalfa hay in the stack may be avoided by proper curing.

We believe it is not safe, as a rule, to pasture cows on alfalfa alone, says Hoard's Dairyman.

Most of the diseases to which the potato is subject may be avoided by intelligent handling of the seed before planting.

In choosing tomato plants for growing prize tomatoes do not select tree tomatoes, as they are not prolific, but pick out some good, smooth, meaty variety.

The use of machines for transplanting vegetables is on the increase. Every grower should know that machine set plants thrive just as well as those which are planted by hand, provided the work is done with care.

Supreme Court Decision About Newspaper Subscriptions

Few readers of newspapers fully and clearly understand the laws governing subscriptions. Following are the decisions of the Supreme Court of the United States on the subject.

Subscribers who do not give express notice to the contrary are considered as wishing to renew their subscriptions.

If subscribers order a discontinuance of their periodicals the publisher may continue to send them until all dues are paid.

If the subscriber refuses to take the periodical from the postoffice to which they are directed, he is responsible until he has settled his bill and ordered the paper discontinued.

If subscribers move to other places without informing the publisher, and the papers are sent to the former address, the subscriber is held responsible.

The courts have held that refusing to take periodicals from the postoffice, or removing and leaving them uncalled for is prima facie evidence of intention to defraud.

If subscribers pay in advance, they are bound to give notice at the end of the time if they do not wish to continue taking it, otherwise the publisher is authorized to send it and the subscriber will be responsible until express notice, with payment of all arrearages, is sent to the publisher.

A Useful Booklet

In order to assist the growers and shippers of fruit located in the communities reached by its lines in Maryland, Virginia and West Virginia, in finding a profitable market for their crops, the Baltimore and Ohio railroad has published a booklet containing complete list of the leading fruit dealers in Baltimore, Philadelphia, New York and Boston. The list of growers of fruit is arranged alphabetically according to the shipping point used and information is also given as to the variety of fruit grown and the post office address of each person engaged in the industry. The list of apple shippers, brokers and wholesale dealers in the principal markets of the east is separated from the list of growers. A copy of the booklet has been mailed to each grower and shipper in the states and cities and have also been sent to Baltimore and Ohio agents who will mail a copy upon application.

[COMMUNICATED]

Regular

Does any one question that I am regular, there has never been shown a single act in my entire life, political or otherwise, that has not been regular or straight.

Have I done anything irregular by presenting myself as a candidate as the law directs? What previous sin is this that I have committed that I am not included in the list of regulars. I announce myself because I believed it to be the only way; I am true that I consulted the leaders and being assured of their support, I placed my name before the people. If it be a crime to aspire to office and I am to suffer political destruction because of my presumption then I want to ask for whom was this primary law made, (not for me surely.) I am no kicker, no one has offended me. I am no bolter, I am with the ticket, I have no fight with any one, all that I ask is that my name be presented to the voters of Somerset county for their approval. This right is guaranteed to me by the law and I am only exercising my prerogative, can anyone object to this?

The MARYLANDER AND HERALD evidently does not consider me regular as she did not include me in her list to be voted for. This I cannot believe to be an oversight but appears to be intentional. As I cannot assign any reason for it, I would like an explanation.

Is it because I favor the repeal of the Haman Oyster Law and not a resurvey? We have had too many surveys; we have done nothing but survey and resurvey until nearly all of our natural rocks have been taken from us. Now are we willing to have another resurvey, if so then the least you can expect will be that they take it all.

Ask the candidate that is to receive your vote to pledge you in the open before the people that he will demand the repeal of the Haman Law, if he cannot do this publicly, then he has no right to your support. Your interest and my interest are centered in the Oyster Business then let us vote for our own interest once.

Don't guess at what a man will do make him tell you, don't take him on his record of six (6) years ago, many men have changed as many times in as many years, they could be radical planners by this time. Oystermen you have been fooled to many times, if you make a mistake this time there will be nothing left think twice before you vote and then be sure that you have the right man.

Oystermen do you want a square deal, would you be represented in the next Legislature, then cast your vote for me I need only One Hundred and Seventy five (175) votes to insure my nomination, will you be one of them?

If you care to hear the Oyster question discussed, arrange a meeting and I will be glad to come.

Very truly yours, The Peoples Candidate, A. L. HARDESTER, Crisfield, Md.

Diarrhoea Quickly Cured

"I was taken with diarrhoea and Mr. Yorks, the merchant here, persuaded me to try a bottle of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera, and Diarrhoea Remedy. After taking one dose of it I was cured. It also cured others that I gave it to," writes M. E. Gebhart, Oriole, Pa. That is not at all unusual. An ordinary attack of diarrhoea can almost invariably be cured by one or two doses of this remedy. For sale by all dealers. (Advertisement)

State and Federal Co-Operation Prevents Forest Fires

Reports of forest fires from the States with which the federal government is co-operating show that there has been a general lack of unusual fire danger this year. This is not taken to mean that there have not been a great many fires, but that an efficient fire-fighting force has been adequate. Only two states, Massachusetts and Maine, have thus far found it necessary, because of extra serious fire hazard, to call upon the emergency provisions of their agreement with the federal government.

Maine has found it necessary to employ extra men over and above the normal allowance provided in its agreement. This any State may do under the terms of the agreement up to a certain fixed maximum, on the initiative of the state officer in charge of forest protection. He must, however, satisfactorily establish the existence of unusual hazard before the extra men will be paid. The forester at Washington has the further right under a serious emergency to waive this maximum provision, within the limits of the funds available, and authorize the state to employ any number of additional men that may seem necessary.

In Massachusetts this emergency has been of a somewhat different sort. Normal conditions of fire hazard, upon which are based all the agreements of the federal government with the States, in Massachusetts call for a district dry spring and fall fire season. Fire protection work may thus largely be discontinued during the midsummer months. However, because of long drouths, there has been practically no let-up in the fire danger to the present. A shortage of funds was imminent, but relief was secured by an amendment to the agreement, approved by the secretary of agriculture, by which the federal government expends $500 more and the State $1,000 more. Under any conditions, the law requires the State to spend as much money as the federal government. In the usual summer, the State spends on an average three dollars to the federal government's one; New York will expend at least ten dollars. The government, however, will not necessarily adhere to the ratio established with a State confronted by an exceptional fire menace. In such emergencies it will help as far as its funds go in accordance with the needs of the situation.

Uses For Quartz

In the manufacture of soaps and polishing powders quartz is preferred to silica sand on account of its whiteness and angularity. Quartz crushed and graded to various sizes is used in the manufacture of sandpaper and sand belts as a scouring agent for "frosting" glass with sand blast apparatus, etc. Blocks of massive quartz and quartzite are used in the chemical industry as a filler for acid towers and as a flux in copper smelting. Ground quartz is also used in filters and in tooth powders and by dentists as a detergent.

A Ready Retort

A Glasgow professor always had the back benches in his classroom arranged on a higher level than the lower. On one occasion a student entered when a lecture was in progress and marched noisily to a seat on the top tier. "Gentlemen," remarked the lecturer, as he fixed his eye on the offender, "the scum always rises to the top." "Yes, and the dregs always sink to the bottom!" was the retort of the ready student.

WILLIAM J. SHORES

A Candidate for the Legislature
We are authorized to announce the candidacy of Wm. J. Shores, of Chance, as a candidate for one of the Democratic nominations for representative in the Maryland Legislature from Somerset county, subject to the action of the Democratic Primary Election.

JOHN A. T. HOLLAND

A Candidate for Sheriff
To the Democratic Voters of Somerset County, Maryland:
I hereby announce that I am a candidate for the office of Sheriff of Somerset county, Maryland, subject to the Democratic Primary to be held during the year 1913, in Somerset county, Maryland.

JOHN A. T. HOLLAND

A Candidate for County Treasurer
To the Democratic Voters of Somerset county:
At the solicitation of a large number of Democratic friends in Somerset county, I desire to announce that I have determined to become a candidate in the approaching Democratic Primaries for the office of County Treasurer.

Having been identified as a County Commissioner, with the recent Democratic administration of county affairs, I am somewhat familiar with the duties of the office of County Treasurer, and if nominated and elected, I promise a faithful discharge of its duties. As a tax-payer I am interested in the good management of Somerset county's fiscal affairs, and I believe the continued success of the Democratic party would best contribute to this end.

I appeal to every element of the Democratic party for support, and whatever the verdict of Democrats in the Primaries, I shall cheerfully, as heretofore, aid in the election of the nominees of the party in November.

EDWARD B. LANKFORD.

DR. R. R. NORRIS

A Candidate for the State Central Committee.
To the Democratic Voters of Somerset County:

Having descended from a family of Democrats, and believing in the doctrines of Thomas Jefferson and also in the policies now being so admirably upheld by the present National Administration, I am anxious for the success of the Democratic party in Somerset county and State of Maryland. To accomplish this end we must abide by the true interpretation of the policy of our party which has given us a Direct Primary law, the object of which is to "let the people rule," thus ridding our county of Bosses and Machine made candidates. The time has come when the people's wishes must be fulfilled, by themselves selecting their candidates by an open vote.

Being free of all Bosses, Machines and Cliques and not having solicited or asked the help of any man, I now present myself to the Democratic voters of Somerset county as a candidate for a member of the State Central Committee of the county, and I appeal to every Democrat in Somerset for support. I am not allied with any boss or machine but am a straight-out Democrat, with the best interests of my party at heart. I ask the people of this county to elect me at the coming primaries in order that I may represent the masses of Democrats of the county, on the State Central Committee.

I appeal to you knowing that the Democrats want and need a united party to meet the common enemy at the polls in November. I have never held political office, and being free from all political entanglements I believe I can help unite our party for the Fall election and serve all members of the party faithfully and fairly, as a member of the County Committee. I take this means of announcing my candidacy for a member of the Democratic State Central Committee, subject to the action of the coming primary election, and I shall be grateful for any support tendered me by the Democratic voters of the county.

Very respectfully,
Crisfield, Md. DR. R. NORRIS.

CHARLES W. MARSH

A candidate for the House of Delegates
To the Democratic voters of Somerset County:

I am persuaded by my many friends in Somerset to make this announcement of my candidacy for the House of Delegates, subject to the Democratic primaries.

It is important that you know the position of each candidate on all questions that affect the public before casting your ballot at the coming primary, therefore, I will briefly state my position on some of the questions affecting your interests.

I am in sympathy with those measures which point toward the progress and prosperity of our manufacturing industries, the advancement of our commercial interests, the increase of our agricultural advantages, the husbandry of our great national resources. I am utterly and unequivocally opposed to monopoly seizing any of our great natural resources under the guise of "law."

I am against the enactment of any measureavoring of encroachment upon any right which the people have, and will, if selected at the primary and elected at the general election, fight to the last ditch for the rights of those who are at present obtaining a livelihood from the natural oyster bars of the county and State.

Any measure adversely affecting the moral tone, or the forward movement of any one of our domestic interests will receive my unqualified disapproval. I shall be pleased to hear from all who are interested in my candidacy, and as I promise a square deal to every interest in my county, I invoke the co-operation of every one who believes in a "square deal" for all.

Respectfully submitted to the Democratic voters of Somerset county by one whose best interest is best served by best serving yours.

CHARLES W. MARSH.

JOHN W. WEST

A Candidate for the House of Delegates
To the Democratic Voters of Somerset County:

I hereby announce that I am a candidate for the House of Delegates, subject to the Democratic Primary.

While it is an honor to become a member of the General Assembly, I care but little for the honor. Any man who is worthy to be called a man is ambitious. My chief ambition in this matter is to serve with time and thought the whole people of this county and to be of service to the State. To me it will be a greater pleasure to help others than to be helped, to serve rather than to be served.

With a knowledge of the opportunities in other States, I believe I should be able by contrast to see the opportunities on the "Shore" for greatly increased business activities. The Peninsula is within five hundred miles of about half the population of this country. The possibilities for development are great and very much may be done by legislation that should result in launching a great forward movement of progress.

If I win in the primaries and at the regular election, you may be assured that my time, best thought and energy will be devoted to the best interests of the people.

I shall be pleased to hear from any one interested in my election and desire workers in every community. I am opposed, however, to voters making unqualified pledges to support any candidate in the Primary, for often by undue influence men have been led to make positive promises to support a particular candidate and on or before the day of election regretted they were bound. I wish to see men free to obtain all the information possible up to the day of the election, and then guided with knowledge and conscience cast a ballot for what they believe to be the best interest of the people.

Respectfully submitted to the Democratic voters of Somerset county by one who has a vital interest in the greatest good to the greatest number.

JOHN W. WEST.

A RECORD OF HONESTY

And Efficiency For Eleven Years of Democratic Government
—A Statement of Facts

Remember voter, the splendid record your Democratic officials have made in Somerset County in the last eleven years, when you go to the polls on Monday, September 8th.

Recall the facts, and have your neighbors bear them in mind.

Here are some of the things accomplished within your own knowledge:

1—Appropriations for public schools have been increased from an annual levy of $6,000.00 in 1901, to a levy of $22,000.00 in 1913.

2—A new public highway has been constructed leading from Princess Anne to Fairmount, through Stewart's and Revell's Necks, extending through a large part of the richest section of the county at a cost of only $2,000.

3—A new jail, the best equipped of any jail in this Judicial Circuit, has been erected at a cost of $8,200.00.

4—A new Court House has been erected and furnished with improved equipment and furniture at a cost of $35,000.00. Experts say that this property could not be rebuilt now for less than $40,000.00.

5—Bonds are outstanding for only $30,000.00 of the indebtedness created by the erection of this handsome building.

6—A new brick High School building has been erected at Crisfield at a cost of over $25,000.00.

Bonds to amount of $25,000.00 are outstanding for this improvement.

7—A new brick High School has been erected at Marion at a cost of $6,000.00.

There is no indebtedness outstanding for this improvement.

8—A levy of $3,800.00 has been made, collected, and paid over as required by the Shoemaker Road Law to assist adjoining land owners to construct one mile of new stone road near Pocomoke City.

9—Fifty miles of new shell road has been built in the county in the last six years at an average cost per mile of about $1,200.00.

10—Between five and six hundred terracotta pipe culverts have been laid throughout the county to replace old wooden bridges at a total cost of about $5,000.00.

11—$2,300.00 has been spent for a concrete bridge at Jenkins' Creek, and large corrugated iron culverts.

12—The real and personal property of Somerset County was reassessed by the Board of County Commissioners of Somerset County in 1908 and 1909 at a total cost to the people of Somerset County of less than $4,000.00.

The area of Wicomico County is smaller than that of Somerset County, but the total cost of reassessing property in Wicomico County in 1910 was over $8,000.00.

13—The old tax collectors' system has been abolished and the up-to-date Treasurer's system established in its place for the collection of taxes at a saving of $400.00 annually to the county, and the public revenues are more promptly collected than ever before in the history of the county.

14—During a period covering the last six years, out of a total levy of $120,000.00 for road purposes, $77,300.00 has been expended for permanent work and material to wit: For iron and concrete bridges, shell roads, terracotta pipes and lumber.

15—A substantial and long-needed improvement in the highway leading across the headwaters of East Creek near St. Paul Church, and the highway leading from Rehobeth to Shelltown was made in 1912.

Tax payers in these communities approve these excellent improvements.

16—During the last ten years three new iron bridges have been erected in Somerset County at a cost of $2,000.00.

17—Of Somerset County bonded indebtedness of $91,000.00, only $55,000.00 is fairly chargeable to Democratic management, and for this bonded indebtedness we exhibit the handsome new Court House at Princess Anne, and the new improved High School at Crisfield, the total cost of these two buildings being much in excess of the present bonded indebtedness issued to pay for same.

The balance of the bonded indebtedness of the county is for deficiencies contracted in the main

DEMOCRATIC CONVENTION

Tuesday, September 16th, is Favored by Chairman Vandiver

Tuesday, September 16th is favored by General Murray Vandiver, chairman of the Democratic State Central Committee, as the date for the state convention. It will probably be held in the Auditorium, Baltimore. General Murray Vandiver was authorized by a resolution adopted by the State Central Committee at its meeting in August to fix a date and place for the convention. Its session promises to be brief. It will ratify the nomination of Emerson C. Harrington, for Comptroller; C. C. Magruder, for Clerk of the Court of Appeals; and Blair Lee for United States Senator, who had no opposition. The convention will also adopt a platform. The convention will elect a chairman of the State Central Committee, who will serve two years. If the regular organization controls the convention a chairman will be elected who will be favorable to the reappointment of General Vandiver.

under Republican rule, and chiefly for school purposes, as Republican Commissioners did not levy sufficient appropriations to meet the annual needs of the public schools.

17—During the last ten years the assessment of the property of the New York, Philadelphia & Norfolk Railroad Company located in Somerset County has been increased by Boards of Democratic County Commissioners from a total of $227,000.00 in round numbers in 1901, to a total of $543,313.00 in 1913; in other words the assessment against the aforesaid Railroad Company's property in this county during the period of Democratic control from 1901 to the present time has been increased $306,313.00, more than double the assessment of 1901, notwithstanding the fact that the law of the state, over which the County Commissioners have no control and cannot defy, exempts the most expensive part of the railroad property, to wit: Its bridges.

Some criticism has been heard that by the legislation that was enacted to float the necessary bonds to build the new Court House, the payment of the bonded indebtedness was postponed for so long a time, but it is respectfully submitted, that in view of the county's meagre resources and general financial condition, it was not only wise public policy but good financing, to so legislate as to enable the county first, gradually to liquidate outstanding bonded indebtedness known as the "Deficiency Bond Indebtedness of 1898," created by previous administrations, which now aggregate $18,000, and are being paid for at the rate of $1,500 per annum by the present generation; and also to postpone the payment of any of the principal of these Court House Bonds to such a period as will enable the people of Somerset County to pay the school bonds of 1902, amounting to $18,000, in full, before paying any of the principal of the bonded indebtedness for the erection of the Court House, which will serve the people of Somerset County as well a hundred years hence as it serves them now.

Reckless, mischievous and unjust criticism has been made of Somerset County's Democratic Board of County Commissioners and the counsel for said board in the matter of its valuation of the property of the New York, Philadelphia & Norfolk Railroad Company. We respectfully submit the exhibit above made in item 17, as sufficient answer to this unfair criticism. It is, perhaps, however, well enough to state that the property of the New York, Philadelphia & Norfolk Railroad Company has been assessed higher for many years in Somerset County than in any of the other Counties through which said railroad runs. Only recently by the activity and zeal of the present County Treasurer, the revenue coming to Somerset County from the taxes of the rolling stock of the railroad company was largely increased, this increase having been made because of the recent purchase made by said railroad company on account of said rolling stock.

A significant fact that should always be borne in mind in connection with the taxation problem in Somerset County is that the total valuation of property for taxation purposes is lower in Somerset County than any county on the Eastern Shore.

DON'T BE FOOLED BY A PROGRESSIVE LABEL

The Anti-Saloon League Warns the Good Temperance Democrats of Somerset County Not to Be Fooled By a "Progressive" Label and Protests Most Emphatically Against the Breach of Faith Committed By The Crisfield Times as the Spokesman of the So-Called "Progressive" Democratic Movement In This County

I received a telegram from The Crisfield Times asking about the local option record in 1908 of Senator Louis M. Milbourne. It looked suspicious. There was no valid reason connected with the welfare of the temperance movement for dragging up an unfavorable record three sessions back which involved a difference of opinion as to the wisdom of a certain act when the man's claim of good faith in that transaction had been proved by his "delivery of the goods" in a later session.

Therefore I took the precaution of writing Senator Milbourne and enclosing a copy of the telegram so that he might protect himself if any unfair use was made of it.

Subsequent developments show that this precaution was wise. It seems that The Crisfield Times printed only so much of this telegram as served its own purpose. The telegram consisted of two parts; first, a frank statement of the earlier record of Senator Milbourne, as the League is a public concern and is not suppressing facts in favor of anybody; and, second, a statement of his later record which puts an entirely new face on the whole matter. It seems that The Times published only the first part so that the message as published put the League in the attitude of sticking a knife into a man who had proved himself to be a real friend of the temperance cause. This showed bad faith and but for the precaution taken would have put the League in a false position and have done it serious damage.

The editor of The Crisfield Times himself voted right on the local option bill when a member of the Legislature but he is not a candidate at this time.

The League is thoroughly satisfied that the legislative candidates backed by the so-called "Progressive" Democratic movement in Somerset County, are receiving the support of the new million dollar liquor organization of Baltimore City, which is headed by "Bob" Crain the notorious brewery lobbyist, and "Ed" Hirsch, who was kicked out the presidency of the Baltimore Federation of Labor.

This concern is trying to sneak in enough "wet" Democrats from "dry" counties to enable the Mahon-Preston city liquor ring to again control the legislature and defeat the local option bill or mutilate it so it will be useless. It makes terms either with the Progressives or the Regular organization, whichever the better serves its purpose, and has evidently found it impossible to do business with what is known as the "organization" in Somerset County.

The Anti Saloon League has nothing to do with the factional squabbles any more than partisan fights. It uses the terms "organization" and "progressive" simply as convenient means of designation which will be readily understood. The three men supported for the House of Delegates by the "organization" as follows: Charles A. Lockerman, Lybrand Thomas and John W. West are satisfactory on the local option question. They are not satisfactory because they are supported by the "organization" but each individual man is satisfactory to the League as a candidate. The League has received absolutely no assurances from the so-called "Progressive" candidates.

If this new Baltimore liquor organization succeeds in controlling the Legislature it will pass a local option bill, if it passes any, which will throw open the liquor question on the Eastern Shore where the people have settled it after years of fighting. It has plenty of money. It boasted of that fact recently.

Without casting any reflection or making any attack upon any other individual candidate, we are compelled to say that a vote for anybody except Lockerman, Thomas and West in Somerset County at the primary this year is a vote for the Mahon-Preston city liquor ring, for "Bob" Crain, the brewery lobbyist, for "Ed" Hirsch, the discredited labor leader, and for liquor for Somerset County.

WILLIAM H. ANDERSON,
Superintendent Anti-Saloon League of Maryland.

Is This Blair Lee Democracy?

Charles B. Morris, Charles H. Speights, Lorie C. Quinn, Jr., Aden Davis, Jr., and Lester M. Phoebus.

Charles H. Speights and Aden Davis, Jr., have publicly acknowledged that they voted for the Republican Governor, Goldsborough.

Lorie C. Quinn, Jr., is not a registered voter of this County and cannot vote either at the primaries or at the general election this year.

Charles B. Morris, who is also the "manager" of the "Progressive" campaign, came out of Republican Headquarters of this town on the night of election, two years ago, cheering over the election of Governor Goldsborough.

Mr. Voter, is this the kind of Democracy that you desire to endorse at the primaries on Monday next?

The Tri-County Institute

The Tri-County Institute held at Ocean City and which was concluded last Thursday, was regarded as one of the best that has been held during the nine years of its history. The educational problems discussed were of a high order and evoked much discussion among the teachers. The greatest interest was manifested from start to finish and many strangers were present and listened to the deep talks given by the instructors.

In the course of the Institute the superintendents of the three counties and the president of the Worcester County School Board, upon invitation, met the Mayor and City Council of Ocean City looking to the erection of a State building at that place. The Council proposes to donate a site and the Legislature will be invoked to make an appropriation for a building of sufficient size to take care of all the school assemblies of the State as their summer meetings occur, including the State Teachers' Association. The present school building is inadequate for such purposes.

TAXATION IN SOMERSET

A Comparison of The Taxable Basis and Tax Rates of Somerset, Worcester, Wicomico and Dorchester Counties

The taxable basis of Wicomico County is now about $4,500,000 greater than the taxable basis of Somerset County, although the county tax rate for 1913 is only 4 cents per $100 less than the rate for this county. The county tax rate for Somerset County of 98 cents is now 9 cents per $100 less than in 1912, while the rate for Wicomico County is 24 cents per $100 more than in 1912.

The taxable basis of Worcester County is about $1,500,000 greater than the taxable basis of Somerset County. Notwithstanding this fact, the tax rate of Worcester County for 1913 is $1.08 per $100, or 2 cents more than the tax rate of Somerset County for 1913.

The taxable basis of Dorchester County in 1912 was $5,774,011 greater than the taxable basis of Somerset County, in other words, almost double, yet the tax rate of Dorchester County for 1912 was only 54 cents less than the tax rate of Somerset County, and the tax rate of Dorchester County for 1912 was 32 cents per $100 greater than the tax rate of Somerset County is for the year 1913.

According to the amount of taxes levied and to be collected from taxpayers in the four counties of the First Judicial Circuit it requires $144,500 in Dorchester county, $126,703.02 in Wicomico county, $98,526.20 in Worcester county and only $83,167.36 in Somerset county to meet fixed charges and expenses. In other words, under an efficient, honest and economical administration the taxpayers are required to pay in Somerset county $61,332.64 less than is paid in Dorchester county, $43,535.66 less than is paid in Wicomico county and $15,358.84 less than is paid in Worcester county.

The property in all of these counties has been reassessed as recently as has the property in Somerset county and in fact the reassessment in Wicomico and Dorchester was made two years later than the reassessment in Somerset county.

Mr. Tax-Payer, ponder these facts in your mind and determine whether or not you are overburdened with exorbitant tax bills in comparison with the tax bills of your neighboring counties of Worcester, Wicomico and Dorchester. Each of them has a much higher taxable basis and it is only fair to presume that property is assessed as high in these counties as it is in Somerset county, yet the tax rates, as shown above are practically the same. The above facts support the assertion that the tax bills of Somerset county are equally as reasonable, if not more so, than the tax bills of Wicomico, Worcester and Dorchester counties.

George T. McClemmy Dead

Mr. George T. McClemmy, a well-known farmer and prominent citizen of Somerset County, died at his home, about one mile north of Princess Anne, last Thursday afternoon, in the 79th year of his age.

Mr. McClemmy was a printer, and when the civil war broke out was in the employ of the late Levin S. Waters, on the "Somerset Union," which newspaper was published in a building on the site where the postoffice now stands. During the war he enlisted in the Confederate army and served about two years. After returning from the war he worked on "The Phoenix," a paper started in the place of "The Union," which suspended publication during the war.

For several years he was a member of the firm of Polk & McClemmy, owners and publishers of the "True Marylander." His interest in that publication he sold to Col. E. G. Polk, his partner, and he then purchased the farm, where he resided at the time of his death, and settled down as a tiller of the soil.

In politics he was a Democrat, but never aspired to public office.

He is survived by five children—four sons and one daughter—Messrs. George M. McClemmy and Irving W. McClemmy, of Philadelphia; Robert Brattan McClemmy, of New Haven, Conn.; Hugh McClemmy, of Los Angeles, Cal.; and Miss Myra McClemmy, who resides on the home farm. Mr. McClemmy's wife died four years ago.

The funeral was held on Sunday last and interment was in the new Protestant Episcopal Cemetery, Rev. C. H. Weaver conducting the service.

Chicago's population has increased 62,100 since September, 1912, according to the count made by the Chicago Directory Company. The population this year is estimated at 2,388,500. Last year it was 2,326,400.

NONE BUT DEMOCRATS

Can Vote In Primaries—Voters Marked on Books as "Independents," "Independent Democrats" and "Progressive Republicans" Can Not Vote

There still seems to be considerable misunderstanding among the rank and file of the voters as to the rights of certain persons to vote in the Democratic Primaries next Monday. The law is very plain on the subject. As there will be no Republican ticket to vote for in Somerset County, their ticket having been agreed upon and as there is no opposition, will be certified to by the election supervisors, there will be no opportunity for Republicans to participate in the contest. The point which seems not clear to the voters is whether or not a man can vote in the primaries who has not heretofore declared his party affiliation. Here is the law on the subject:

None but Democrats can participate in the Democratic Primaries.

If a voter has already declared his party affiliation and is marked on the registration books as a Democrat he can vote in the primaries. If he is affiliated as a Republican he cannot vote in the primary.

If a voter has not heretofore, he can affiliate on the day of the primaries, or he could have done so last Wednesday at the one-day's sitting of the registration officers.

If a voter is affiliated on the registration books as a Republican, he cannot vote in the primaries next Monday.

Voters who are marked on the books "Declined," "Independent," "Independent Democrat," "Independent Republican," or "Republican," cannot participate in the primaries next Monday. The law says that no voter can change his party affiliation after he has once made such declaration within six months of the primaries. A man who wants to change his party affiliation can do so next October, but not before.

It is therefore very important that every Democrat should be affiliated on the books as a Democrat so as to be able to participate in his party primaries next Monday and affiliate before voting.

To the Citizens and Voters of Somerset County

Having recently accepted a position in Baltimore that requires all of my time from now until October 15th, and not being able, in consequence, to address you in person, I take this method to state my sentiments relative to the coming primaries.

As is well known to all of you, I am a candidate for nomination as one of the delegates to represent your interests at the next session of Legislature and ask for your support on the good record I made when I last represented you and your interests. Should I be chosen and elected you may depend on me to do all in my power to have the present Oyster Planting Law repealed, and have returned, for your use, that which I consider has been wrongfully taken from you and the general public. I am bitterly opposed to any planting law that trespasses upon the rights of public fishery, and I now promise to exert every effort to prevent the passage of any such bills. I promise to do all I can to help the passage of any Temperance Bill that may be presented. Being strongly in favor of anything that will tend to better the condition of my county and its people, I hereby pledge myself to help the passage of any Good Roads Bills that may be presented, provided such bills do not put too great a burden on the citizens of Somerset County. Anything I can do to improve our schools and the school system, you may rest assured will be done.

In conclusion, I beg to quote an old but true saying—"Experience teaches" and to remind you, that in no position does this apply quite as much as at Annapolis, for without experience as to "Ways and Means," very little can be accomplished by anyone, though he be "Ever so faithful," and right here let me remind you that I have the experience, know what to do, how to do it and when to do it, and if I am favored with your undivided support, I sincerely promise you that I will do any or all things that may benefit you or this county, as far as it is possible, by exerting every effort in my power to do so.

Asking your undivided support, I am proud to be one of you, even though, at this present time I cannot be home with you. LYBRAND THOMAS, Baltimore, Md.

"I'm no hero—I'm a regular."—Blair Lee.

PUZZLED THE CAPTAIN.

The Mysterious Dane Who Boarded His Vessel at Hamburg.

The captain of a vessel which was bringing to America in the fall of 1796 a mysterious passenger who had come aboard at Hamburg watched the latter so closely that at last the passenger said one day: "Sir, this is not the first occasion upon which I have observed the attentive scrutiny you bestow upon me. May I inquire the reason?"

"Sir," responded the candid captain, "you took passage on my ship as a Dane. I don't believe you're anything of the kind."

The passenger smiled. The smile was full of perspicacity and confidence and was followed with, "Pray, tell me, then, what you believe me to be?"

At this question Captain Ewing fidgeted, hesitated and finally blurted out: "Well, to be honest, I think you are a gambler. You've well nigh ruined yourself at home and are now coming to fleece the fools you'll find on shore."

The young man's smile broadened. The next minute he turned grave again, lowered his voice and replied: "Captain Ewing, as you have studied me during this voyage, so I have studied you. I have come to the conclusion that you are a man to be trusted. I am Louis Philippe, duc d'Orleans, eldest son of that Louis Philippe d'Orleans who was slain by the guillotine on the 7th of November, almost three years ago."

VANISHED WILD PIGEONS.

Once They Darkened Our Skies, but Are Never Seen Now.

Old residents of Olean—some of them not so very old, either—remember distinctly the time when flocks of wild pigeons flew over the then straggling village of Olean in such countless numbers as to almost obscure the very sky, when flock followed flock in such close succession as to partly give the impression that each was but the separated group and companion voyagers of the flock that had but just passed overhead on swiftly whirling wings. These flocks passed in one long procession for days at a time in the early spring and even for weeks. Thousands and even hundreds of thousands of them, if the reports of those days were to be taken implicitly, nested in the woods of Alton and Big Shanty, a short distance across the Pennsylvania line.

All at once these myriad flocks of pigeons ceased to come—disappeared abruptly, mysteriously, and apparently forever. Whence did they go so suddenly and so completely? No one has yet been able to answer that question. Since that time game authorities and naturalists have searched in vain for further traces of the birds, not only in this vicinity, but all over North America. Large sums have been offered by magazines as well as individuals for a nest or even a single egg of the passenger pigeon—Olean (N. Y.) Times.

Where J. R. Green Was Librarian. Lambeth Palace Library was founded about the beginning of the seventeenth century by philanthropic Archbishop Bancroft, and has been enriched by several of his successors. It now contains over 30,000 volumes, many of great rarity, besides a vast number of important manuscripts. Among the celebrated scholars who have had charge of this library was John Richard Green, the historian. He welcomed the change from an east end vicarage, because it set him free to pursue his historical researches. "The quiet of the Lambeth library," he wrote to his friend, Boyd Dawkins, "is like still waters after the noise of the east. I enjoy even the cleaner street, and, above all, my morning's trot through the parks."—Westminster Gazette.

One or the Other. His class was bright, and the teacher was proud of it. She was conducting a quiz in geography.

"In what zone do we live?" asked the teacher.

"The temperate zone," chanted the well drilled class.

"Right. And what do we mean by 'temperate'?" Willie, you may answer."

"Temperate is where it's frostin' cold half the time and roastin' hot the other half the time."

If Willie wasn't sent to the head for that it wasn't because he didn't deserve the honor.—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

An Author Who Lived Too Soon. That Swift's life was a failure in the eighteenth century and would have been a splendid success in the twentieth century no one, we think, will deny. Imagine what a fortune "Gulliver's Travels" and "A Tale of a Tub" would have brought their author in these days. Like the author of "Peter Pan" he would have made his plum and been made a baronet or an archbishop had he clung to holy orders, which he would probably have discarded. As it was, Swift died "like a rat in a hole," to use his own words.—London Saturday Review.

Very Annoying. Mabelle—What makes the leading lady so grouchy? Estelle—She had counted on making a big hit with her divorce case this season, and just as she was about to bring proceedings her husband had to go and die. Mabelle (indignantly)—Now, isn't that just like a man?—Judge.

Explain a Mystery. "It has always been my idea," remarked the man on the car, "that something jostled nature's elbow when she was pouring the seeds into the watermelon."—Toledo Blade.

HOW A MOTOR "TALKS."

The Sympathy That May Come Between the Animate and Inanimate.

"One day my chauffeur was taken ill, and I drove myself in, left the car standing in a side street during the day, and drove home at night," said a suburbanite. "Then, for the first time, I began to sense the feeling of mutuality or mutual sympathy, if such an expression may be permitted between the animate and inanimate things, between the machine and myself. Several trips by myself confirmed the sensation; then I bought another car for the family and now drive myself regularly in this one."

"I have often thought of the stories told by locomotive engineers in which their great engines are endowed with almost mental faculties. There are enough of them to fill a book, but I never considered them seriously until I began with this car. Sometimes the engine sags; sometimes it purrs. I know its 'sing' and its 'purr.' If anything is the matter with it it tells it in a language entirely intelligible to me. It responds to my lightest touch in all its functions, but once," and here his voice became grave, "it refused to run into an unlighted ditch where I was trying to steer it. I looked for half an hour for the trouble with the steering apparatus, but could find nothing wrong."—Suburban Life.

INSTINCT IN PLANTS.

Actions That Seem to Indicate Some Sort of Nervous System.

Plants sometimes appear to possess reasoning power. Charles Darwin instanced the case of the rootlet, which, piercing its way through the soil and detecting a stone or lump of hard clay in its path, will go round it without touching it. "How does the rootlet or plant know that the stone is there?" he asks. "Certainly it cannot see it and as it does not touch it cannot feel it. The avoidance therefore seems to be in the nature of perception of some kind which is a mental operation."

The species of mimosa known as the sensitive plant will contract its leaves even at the sound of a footstep, and when such a plant is being transplanted it crumples up during the process in such a way that it really appears to be suffering from fear. Afterward it recovers and resumes its ordinary mode of life.

Plants undoubtedly possess consciousness of a kind which enables them to carry out certain operations necessary to their preservation, and this can only be done through the possession of some sort of nervous system.—London Standard.

Disraeli's Nuptial Joke.

There was a little joke between them (Disraeli and his wife) which I heard from the late dean of Salisbury. "You know I married you for your money," Disraeli would say to her. "Oh, yes, but if you were to marry me again you would marry me for love," was the regular reply. "Oh, yes!" her husband would exclaim, and the little nuptial comedy ended.

But what Disraeli said to Bernal Osborne once about his marriage is much better worth the telling. It was at a dinner party after dinner when the men were alone. "What did you marry her for?" Osborne asked in his characteristic way. Disraeli twiddled his wineglass in the pause that followed this point blank inquiry. Then he lifted his head slowly and looked the other very expressively in the face. "For a reason," he said, "which you could never understand—gratitude."—From "Lord Beaconsfield and Other Tory Memories."

Wagner's Music.

By the study of Wagner's masterpieces a glimpse of the eternal is had, and once the vision of his truth fills the soul counterfeits are detected instinctively. The polyphony of Bach and the music of "Die Meistersinger" prove the spiritual kinship of Wagner with the founder of modern music. A Beethoven symphony and the "Tristan and Isolde" music demonstrate the common genealogy of the composer from Bonn, and the maker of music dramas, but listen to the Strauss music from "Salome" when the prophet is being murdered in the well and then hear the "mighty tone" structure of the last scene from "Götterdämmerung" and observe that Strauss shrieks while Wagner chants.—San Francisco Call.

The Coach and Four Came.

Among the many records of Harrow school is that of a boy, the son of a poor local tradesman in a very small way of business. His schoolfellows often taunted him about his family poverty. Their thoughtless jeers, although hurting his feelings, drew from the lad the retort, "I intend before I die to ride in a coach and four." The years sped by, and, lo and behold, the poverty stricken youngster of Harrow had developed into Dr. Parr, the great scholar of his time, whose customary and favorite means of locomotion was a coach and four.—London Mail.

Came Near It.

A New England farmer was once describing in the presence of a very humane person the great age and debility of a horse that he formerly owned and used. "You ought to have killed him," interrupted the humane person indignantly. "Well," drawled the farmer, "we did—almost."

The Emigrants

A Story For Labor Day

By EVELYN C. GOODRICH

In what is called the Black forest in Germany lived a poor couple, Jacob Gaatz and his wife, who had but one child, a daughter, Gretchen, who was the main comfort of her parents. She and Hans Dreckel, the son of a blacksmith, were brought up together, each being the other's only companion, for the region in which they lived was sparsely settled, and no other family lived near them.

Jacob Gaatz was a woodcutter. When Gretchen was nineteen years old there came a great commotion in the family. Hans Dreckel one day met Gretchen on the road carrying a bundle of fagots and said to her:

"Gretchen, I have come to an important decision. I am young and strong and am not satisfied to remain here in the forest, where there is nothing for a man to do but cut wood. One can earn only money enough by so doing to keep body and soul together, for if we ask a better price our employers say to us: 'There are plenty of men who would like the work at the same price. If you are not satisfied we will employ others in your place.' I shall go where there are labor unions, and, since I hear that there are better prices paid in the United States of America, I shall go there."

Hans kept his eyes on Gretchen while he was speaking and saw hers gradually fall, till they rested on the ground and were wet with tears. Till this moment Hans had never thought of Gretchen other than as a playmate and, after they were grown, as a friend. But now, when he saw the tears gather in her eyes because he was to leave her, a new sensation was born in his heart, a tenderness for the maiden with whom he had been reared, and taking her in his arms, he kissed away her tears.

When Gretchen reached her home and threw the fagots beside the fire-place she sat down in a chair and covered her face with her hands. Her mother, who was washing the breakfast dishes, paused and said:

"What is the matter, Gretchen?"
It was a long while before the mother could draw from her daughter that Hans was going to that far country, America. But Gretchen did not tell her what was of far more importance to all of them—that he had asked her to go with him as his wife. It was hard for the poor girl to lose her companion and, since the announcement of his intended departure, her lover.

There would have been no cause for sorrow, but reason for rejoicing, if she could have yielded to his wish. This she could not do, for it would have been cruel for her to leave her old father and mother, who would now need her more and more every day. She only said that Hans was going to America, knowing that if her parents knew they were keeping her from going with him it would trouble them greatly.

When Hans found that Gretchen would not go with him he asked her to promise him that if her parents died she would come to him. But this was not much comfort to him, for on that fondation his sweetheart was not likely to join him for many years. And, as for Gretchen, it meant that she must lose her parents in order to join her lover.

The day Hans departed he said to Gretchen: "You know that my father is old and cannot live long and my mother is not my own mother, but my stepmother. Father will never come to me in America, and when he dies mother will go to live with one of her own children. But there will be nothing to prevent your bringing your parents with you to my new home. They say money is made very easily there. A skilled laborer gets 12 marks a day. Out of that I can save 6 marks a day at least and can send this money to you so that you may all join me!"

"Oh, Hans," exclaimed the girl, "you are so good, so hopeful, but you must learn to do something that will enable you to earn so much money, and in these countries where high wages are paid they say it costs more to live. But," she added, "I will come to you if I can ever do so without bringing sorrow to my dear father and mother."

Hans kissed her again and again, then strode away without once looking back, lest he should show the moisture in his eyes, which he considered unmanly.

Eight years passed, during which the lovers remained true to each other. In all this time there was never an interval of more than a month that Hans did not write to his sweetheart, and she always replied to his letter with her whole heart. Hans prospered and offered to send her money to bring over her parents, but she never even mentioned the matter to them. Nor did they know that they were keeping apart two young persons who but for them might be happy together and rearing a family of children.

In all these eight years Gretchen never breathed a word to her parents of the sacrifice she was making for them. One day when Jacob was cutting wood a fierce storm came up and blew a huge limb from a tree, burying him under it. He lived but a few days.

when his wife and daughter found themselves without even the support of an aged woodcutter. Gretchen at once wrote to Hans announcing her father's death and in a few weeks received a reply. Folded in the letter was a paper which ordered a bank to pay her 300 marks. Hans told her to use it as she liked, either for support of herself and her mother or to bring her mother to him in America, where he and Gretchen might be married and her mother could live with them.

Gretchen, who was a prudent girl, with great self control, thought over Hans' proposition for several days before coming to a decision. When she had made up her mind as to the only course to pursue that would be justice to Hans she confessed to her mother that when he had gone to America he had asked her to be his wife and she had refused to leave her parents.

"I am too old to go so far, Gretchen," said the old woman, "but I will no longer be a burden to you. Go to Hans. I will remain here."

It was a long time before Gretchen could persuade her that such a course was impracticable and that her mother could only repay the sacrifice that she and Hans had made by giving her consent to go to America. Hans had learned the mason's trade and was getting 12 marks a day for his work. But recently he had set up as master mason and employed men to work for him.

When the old mother became convinced that it was her duty to make the trip she consented, and the two sailed for America in the steerage of an ocean liner. They arrived at the port of New York in due time and expected to find Hans there to meet them. In this they were disappointed, but he had been there and had made arrangements for them to be admitted into the country by the emigrant authorities, pledging himself to take care of them, so that they should not be a burden on the people. He also left instructions for them to come to him in a neighboring city, with tickets on the railroad to take them there.

When Gretchen and her mother reached their final destination they learned the reason of his not having met them on the arrival of the steamer. A strike had been declared by a certain trade union, and other trades had been gradually drawn into the struggle between capital and labor, including the masons. Hans had great influence with the men of his trade and was exerting himself to persuade them to keep the peace, assuring them that by doing so they would certainly win every just demand.

On arriving at the city where Hans lived they carried all their bundles except one box, which, being too heavy for them, they left to be brought later to the address that had been given them. Hans had expected them to hire a conveyance, but the frugal life they had led had not prepared them for such extravagance. So they walked, Gretchen inquiring the way, and passed through a street that was filled with workmen. On a wagon a man was standing speaking to a crowd of laborers who had gathered about him. They stopped to listen to him, but could not understand him since he spoke in the English language. But they could see by the upturned, intent faces that he was producing a profound effect upon them.

"Let us go on," said the mother. But Gretchen seemed disposed to listen to the man, though she did not know what he was saying. In vain her mother tugged at her to get her to go on, but in spite of the urging she remained. It was only when the man ceased to speak and getting down from the wagon, was lost in the crowd that Gretchen consented to pursue their way.

When they reached the house where Hans lived they found a suit of rooms on the second floor comfortably fitted up. They were received by a woman whom Hans had deputed for the purpose, who told them that Hans was very busy and they must make themselves at home till he came.

After awhile they heard a cheering in the street which seemed to be approaching the house and growing as it came nearer. Then there were shouts of "We've won! We've won!" The crowd stopped before the house, where the two emigrants were, and a man stood on the steps for a few minutes, cheered by the crowd. Then he hurried up the stairs and burst into the room. He and Gretchen flew to each other's arms.

"Himmel!" cried the old woman. "It is the man on the wagon!"

Gretchen had recognized Hans the moment she laid eyes on him, though he was but little more than a youth when they parted and he was now a man and very much changed. Their meeting was a happy one in many respects. In the first place, the winning of the strike was a great advantage to Hans, who had feared enforced idleness, whereas now that it was settled he could proceed with work he had contracted for. Gretchen and her mother had completed a journey both dreaded, and their future comfort was assured.

There was no reason for haste or delay in the wedding, so Gretchen was called on to fix the day, and, inasmuch as she had no trousseau to prepare, she chose an early date, since Hans desired that they should all get settled down to their new life and he give his mind to his work. The bride and her mother had no friends in their newly adopted country, but the groom had a plenty. A number of bridal presents from them came in, some of them from well-to-do persons for whom Hans had constructed buildings, and they were quite valuable.

Hans is prospering and is considered one of the most reliable men in labor matters, he being always consulted before any important action is taken.

TREATING A DOG BITE.

Act Promptly and There is Little Danger of Hydrophobia.

If you should be bitten by a dog suspected of rabies don't get scared, but act promptly.

Immediately apply a tourniquet above the wound. No tourniquet being at hand, use a handkerchief or necktie, twisting it tightly with a stick.

The poison should then be sucked out and the wound cauterized as soon as possible. If it is believed the dog was mad the Pasteur treatment should be resorted to. Only two-tenths of 1 per cent of those who take this treatment develop hydrophobia.

Although the germ of rabies has not been demonstrated, it is generally conceded the disease has a specific germ. Rabies never occurs in the human spontaneously, but always by inoculation. It is also moderately well demonstrated that dogs and other animals likewise contract the disease through inoculation. Many more male than female dogs go mad. The reason given for this is that male dogs fight among themselves, but a male seldom bites a female. The proportion is seven mad males to one mad female. Contrary to popular belief, rabies is more common in a temperate zone than in the tropics or the arctic region and in spring and fall than in summer and winter.

The only sure preventive thus far found for rabies is thorough muzzling, which is another proof that the disease has its origin in inoculation.

There is a disease called lyssophobia which closely resembles hydrophobia and is brought on by nervous dread. It has been contended by some that there is really no difference between these diseases and that hydrophobia is imaginary. This claim is refuted by the fact that animals and very young children, knowing neither imagination, dread or fear, do succumb to a disease exhibiting the unmistakable symptoms of hydrophobia.

These symptoms are, first, a fear of water, from which the disease derives its name; then the muscles stiffen and an attempt to drink water brings on convulsions; next the mere sight of water is sufficient to bring on a recurrence of the convulsions, fever sets in and death ensues in about a week, generally from exhaustion.

There is no known remedy for rabies, though opiates are freely used to alleviate the pain.—Dr. John J. Kelly in New York World.

OUR ENTERTAINERS.

Ten Per Cent of America's Population Work to Amuse the Rest.

It has been roughly estimated that 10 per cent of us, the people of the United States, keep busy and earn our living by amusing the other 90 per cent. This 10 per cent includes those who do the actual work of amusing—singers in grand opera, light opera, concert; actors in the "legitimate" theaters, in vaudeville, in burlesque, in small shows; performers in the various departments of the innumerable circuses, carnivals, street fairs, baseball players, football players, basketball players, motor racers, aviators, boxers, innumerable exponents of innumerable forms of professional athletics and professional sports.

It includes also the people who promote these amusements, who incorporate companies and manufacture devices to be used in amusing—film companies, with armies of employees in pantries, with moving picture fields, for example, the people in their large office forces, the people who manage and direct theaters, amusement parks, race courses, athletic fields, etc.; stage hands, mechanics, electricians and employees in countless other ramifications of the general business of amusement.

It includes those who originate schemes of entertainment, those who finance them, those who manage them, those who execute them, those press agents, advance men, sign painters, "spies" and "bankers," etc., who advertise them and draw the attention of the rest of us—the patrons who comprise the other 90 per cent.

Billy's Memory is Short

William F. Byrd seeks to justify the vote which he cast, as a member of the House of Delegates of 1910, in favor of the Lee Primary Election Law, with the referendum to the voters of Somerset County attached, by representing that if he had not voted in favor of the Bill, as passed, he had grave fears that all Primary Legislation would have been defeated at that session of the Legislature. Byrd says: "It resolved itself into a question with me whether to accept it by exempting Somerset County with the referendum, or have no law passed."

Boah! Boah! Billy, your memory is short, or it appears to be. The vote in the House of Delegates on this proposition was 76 in favor of the Bill, and 22 against it, so that even if you had voted against it, as you say you decided at first to do, it would have passed by the overwhelming majority of 53 votes.

Billy, how long, O, how much longer, will you try to fool the public by shedding "crocodile tears"? Why don't you quit it? In view of the large majority of votes in favor of the Bill how pitiful sounds your excuses and evasions. Senator Milbourne has always defended his vote in favor of the Bill upon the ground that it gave the people of this County the right to decide this question for themselves. This they did and by their judgment we are perfectly willing to abide.

The Progressive Campaign Has Been a Failure

Now that the Primary Campaign is drawing to a close, it is apparent to all that the bitter attack made upon the record and the leaders of the Democratic party in the county by a few selfish men who call themselves "Progressives" has signally failed. We predicted in the beginning that it would be so.

They have failed for two reasons: First—Because the men who led the movement were not the kind of men to inspire public confidence, and Second—Because the record of the party was such that it could not be successfully assailed. Furthermore, the kind of campaign conducted by these people, and especially by its chief spokesman, The Crisisfield Times, has disgusted good people and discredited from the beginning the whole movement.

Because there exists no facts to justify its course, The Times has given itself over to villification and abuse of good men—citizens whom the public generally know to be men of high character and integrity—and has spread broadcast over the county the most idle and improbable lies.

The William H. Anderson incident is characteristic of its campaign, and the statement contained in last week's issue that the Pennsylvania Railroad is assessed at only 7 per cent. of the value of its property, is another instance of its irresponsible mis-statements.

No rational person will believe, as is intimated in The Times, that Mr. Miles would undertake to have the railroad company practically exempted from taxation in this county, or that such men as William J. Coulbourne, Frank E. Mathews, Frank H. Dashiell, James D. Anderson and Edward B. Lankford, who have served as County Commissioners, would permit such a condition to exist. As a matter of fact all of the railroad company's real estate is assessed at $33 per acre, swamp and marsh included, which is much higher than the average assessment of the farmland through which it runs. Its track is assessed separately at $7,000 per mile, which up until this year, when Wicomico raised its assessment to $7,000, was higher than in any other county in Maryland. Its rolling stock is assessed by the State Tax Commissioner and the County Commissioners have no voice in its valuation. Facts of this nature are so readily attainable from the public records that there can be no palliation of such deliberate fabrications as the 7 per cent. story.

We have frequently, during this campaign, had resort to the public records to correct the misrepresentations of The Times. But it is almost impossible to keep up with their campaign of falsehoods, and some good citizens may be misled. These together with their nucleus of the perpetually discontented element in the county will give them some votes on Primary Day. But we predict that there will not be sufficient to be considered a serious protest against the present management of the party.

Yet, after all The Times has waged the only kind of campaign they could conduct. In this Republican county the Democratic party has had to be continually on its metal and to put forth its best men for office in order to hold control of the county government. Many of the leaders in the repudiation faction are there because they were not big enough, or did not have sufficient capacity to be entrusted with power by the Regular Democratic Party. A campaign of vituperation, vilification and deliberate misrepresentation was, therefore, the only recourse open to The Times—and they have proven themselves artists in this line.

The great majority of our people have refused to be misled and have resented the attempts to mislead them. We are gratified that our faith in the intelligence and integrity of our people has been justified. Nor are we alarmed at the possibility, suggested in Superintendent Anderson's letter, of money being sent to this county to aid in the election of the Progressive candidates. No quantity of money can affect the result of this election. The people who will decide this election cannot be debauched. They represent Somerset County's best citizenship. They are the men who for the past twelve years have been fighting the battles of the Democratic party. They are proud of their party's victories, proud of their public officers and of the courage and resourcefulness of their party leaders. These are the men in whom we place our faith, now as in the past, and in their present temper, we confidently predict that the issue of both the Primary and the General Election is safe.

Six Months of Democracy

It was just six months at noon Wednesday since control of the Federal Government of the United States, which had been held without interruption by the Republicans for sixteen years, passed in all its branches to the Democratic party. It was a tremendous peaceful revolution, and it may be recalled that both before and after the change of administration predictions were freely made by our G.O.P. friends that the country was headed straight for economic and political disaster.

In looking back over the half year it is difficult to see how it differs in material circumstances from a similar period of Republican rule. Business has been generally good, and as the fall approaches and the end of tariff uncertainty draws nearer it is expected that it will be even better. It had been hoped that before this date the new tariff, carrying into effect the Democratic pledges, would be in operation, but various causes have led to delay. It has been noticeable, however, that the long period of tariff discussion has excited no general apprehension, and that the American people as a whole regard the subject with indifference. It is very evident that they fully appreciate the fact that the welfare of the United States is just as safe, if not a good deal safer, in the hands of Woodrow Wilson as in those of William Howard Taft or Theodore Roosevelt. In the handling of both the tariff and the currency question the Democrats have shown a greater constructive ability than the Republicans.

In a word, President Wilson in the White House and the Democrats in both Senate and House have made good in a manner to confound their critics. The old tradition that only Republicans could be relied upon to give the country capable administration has been shattered. This is a great achievement, for which the credit can be given to the powerful personality of the President. No executive has ever grappled with public questions in a loftier spirit or made a deeper impression upon the people. During the coming six months, in which it may be expected that the tariff and currency issues will be disposed of and other important reforms be taken up, this favorable impression is certain to gain ground and to strengthen the Democratic greatly. An excellent start has been made, and the future, despite Mexico and other complications, looks bright for both party and nation.—Philadelphia Record.

Caught a Bad Cold

"Last winter my son caught a very bad cold and the way he coughed was something dreadful," writes Mrs. Sarah E. Duncan, of Tipton, Iowa. "We thought sure he was going into consumption. We bought just one bottle of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy and that one bottle stopped his cough and cured his cold completely." For sale by all dealers.

A Few Pertinent Questions

At the mass-meeting held at the Auditorium in this town on July 23rd last, the Chairman of the Convention declared it was "principle and not place" for which every genuine Progressive Democrat was contending. This sounds good and we may say "These are our sentiments." We recall, however, that the "Chairman," etc., has had a number of wild and zealous chases for place and even now he is out "Bush-wacking" for personal votes to the end that he may have place and power in the politics of Somerset county.

When "Captain Charles H. Speights," candidate for Delegate to the Democratic State Convention on the malcontent ticket asks Regular Democrats for votes in Somerset county, we wonder how often he is asked about the ballot he cast for Phillips Lee Goldsborough, nominee of the Republican State Convention of 1911 for Governor?

Mr. William J. Benton, president of the Oystermen's Association of Deal's Island, tells us that in Deal's Island district at the election in 1911 out of the fifty-seven straight Progressives tickets, fifty of them carried the name of Phillips Lee Goldsborough for Governor. Will Dr. Alexander tell us whether or not he was one of the seven out of the fifty-seven Deal's Island Progressives who did not vote for Goldsborough? There is other circumstantial evidence against you, Doctor, and if you make denial of the fact that you voted for Goldsborough, circumstances will have to be taken into consideration notwithstanding your denial. Anyhow, Doctor, you were in bad company when you led those fifty-seven Progressives to the ballot box, fifty of whom voted for Goldsborough. Somehow, you know you will insist that you are and have been a real leader in your district.

Dr. R. R. Norris, you say you are not allied with any "Boss or Machine," tell us what you think of Boss Mahon and Boss Vandiver? Will you use your influence as a member of the State Central Committee for or against the election of Murray Vandiver for Chairman of the Democratic State Central Committee?

Only a few short weeks ago, quite a number of our people imagined that we had in our midst a Wonderful Star of brilliant hue, when lo! there appeared on the political horizon of Somerset county a certain John W. West who proceeded to show our good citizens what a little star it was.

Since that time how that little star has shrunk.

In The Crisisfield Times of August 30th last, it is stated that "Mr. Joshua W. Miles is the counsel to the Board of County Commissioners and at the same time head of the political machine which owns and controls the county and virtually names the assessors of property values; that property in this county has been re-assessed several times in the last ten years, until every foot of real estate in the county is assessed at its actual cash sales value." These statements are as far from the truth as Editor Quinn can get from the truth, and this is saying a great deal.

The facts are that Somerset county has the lowest assessable basis of any county on the Eastern Shore and there has only been one assessment in Somerset county in the last fifteen years and this assessment took place in the years 1908-1909.

One of the assessors was Editor Quinn's fellow townsman, Mr. August Webster Ewell. Does Editor Quinn mean to say that Mr. Ewell aided in making an unfair assessment of the property of Somerset county? The fact is, that many farms are selling every year thousands of dollars in excess of the assessed valuation. A fine example of the difference between valuation according to assessment and actual sales valuation is afforded in the case of the "Beechwood Farm," owned by Mr. Henry J. Waters and other heirs of the late Levin L. Waters; this farm is assessed at $10,750.00 and at a sale made about two years ago, the timber alone standing on this farm was sold for ten thousand dollars cash.

Many persons are finding it helpful for the purpose of sanitation and as a deodorant, to burn a rag through the house after they have finished with each week's issue of The Times. Expurgated copies may be had after September 8th next.

Red Men Hold Reunion

The Red Men of Cecil county held their annual reunion at Elkton Monday of last week. Tribes from every council in the county were present and the parade was one of the largest for years. The parade started at 1:30 o'clock, with Joshua Clayton as chief marshal. Tribes from Perryville, Conowingo, Colors, Port Deposit, North East, Chesapeake City, Cecilton, Cherry Hill and Elkton, with 1,000 delegates, were present. Floats, horsemen, automobiles and three bands of music were in line.

Following the parade a meeting was held, presided over by Great Sannup Joseph H. Sloan, of Elkton. Speeches were made by Walter R. Rogers, John W. Walker, Dr. J. C. Littleton, H. B. Blades and W. Trickett Giles, of the Great Council of Maryland. In the evening degrees were conferred and a banquet held.

Samuel Richardson offered the following, which was passed as read: "We, the undersigned committee, do express for the entire Order and community at large, regrets at the loss of brother Pusey, who will make his home in Salisbury after this date. Brother Pusey, having been born in this vicinity, and he has endeared himself to all he has come in contact with, both as a citizen and a fraternal worker and we are sorry to part with him in our council fires."

Large Democratic Meeting

The Regular Democratic mass meeting at Crisfield, on Thursday evening, was one of the largest ever held in that town. The audience was representative, appreciative and enthusiastic. The people of the town abandoned the streets and literally packed the hall. Standing room was at a premium on the lower floor of the large auditorium. The speakers, Messrs. John W. West and Joshua W. Miles, were enthusiastically received and liberally applauded during their strong and forceful appeals.

The consensus of opinion at the adjournment of the meeting was that it was one of the most successful meetings ever held in the town, and that great good was bound to follow in substantial results for the Regular Democratic ticket in the coming Primaries.

Large Boiler Explodes

Two men were badly scalded and an engine-house wrecked by the explosion at Millington, Md., Wednesday morning of a huge boiler in a canning factory. The explosion shook the town and attracted scores of residents, who volunteered their services for rescue work. Richard Mabrey, who was firing the boiler, and John Bowman, who was working near the engine-room, had narrow escapes from instant death. They were scalded by escaping steam and cut by bits of flying iron. The boiler landed 50 feet from its original position. Mr. Bowman was carried to his home and his injuries dressed. Mr. Mabrey sought to clean his hands and face of coal dust, but pieces of flesh dropped off and Dr. Jacobs ordered him placed aboard a train and carried to the Delaware Hospital at Wilmington. Both men are expected to recover.

PAINT?

There are two good reasons for painting often enough or even too often. One, to look prosperous; two, to be so. Nothing does one more credit or gives one more credit than paint, supplemented of course by what goes with it; and paint cost nothing.

True, the first costs is $5 or $6 a gallon put-on; but it saves more than in the property; saves it from slow going down—not always slow—it drops with a jump when water gets in on wood and iron.

Dry wood and iron cost nothing, kept dry by paint.

Better paint when it needs it. Paint never goes down in the sense of being more profitable next year.

FATAL RAILROAD WRECK

Trains Crash in a Thick Fog—26 Perish and 50 Are Injured

Twenty-six persons were killed and nearly 50 injured, some of whom may die, in a rear-end collision shortly before 7 o'clock Tuesday morning on the New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad, six miles north of New Haven, Conn.

The first section of the White Mountain Express, bound for New York, speeding along at probably 40 miles an hour in a thick fog, rushed by a danger signal, it said, and crashed into the rear of the second section of the Bar Harbor Express, standing 10 feet beyond the block signal.

The White Mountain engine cleaved through the two rear Pullman cars, both of wood, splitting them in two and tossing their wreckage and three score of mangled human beings, some alive, some dead, on either side of the tracks.

The third car, also of wood and occupied by 40 boys on their way from a summer camp at Monmouth, Me., was lifted into the air and almost completely off the track. The car fell on its side crumpled up, crushing two of the boys to death and injured several others.

Some of the victims of the rear Pullmans were hurled from their berths over a fence paralleling the tracks, 50 feet distant, while mattresses, bedding and clothing found lodgment in the telegraph wires.

Under the "banjo" system, as soon as a train passes a signal, it sets red and automatically opens the signal in the previous block, allowing a train following to enter. Both more than an hour late, the two trains passed Wallingford, three miles north of the scene of the accident, eight minutes apart, shortly before 7 o'clock. Eight minutes ahead of them was the first section of the Bar Harbor express and a local train, due to stop at North Haven, three miles south of the wreck, led them all.

According to the officials, an engineer may pass a "banjo" signal set at red after he has brought his train to a stop. This, according to the railroad officials, the engineers of the Bar Harbor express did, and then came to another stop about 100 feet on the other side of the signal, a mile north of North Haven.

This opened the signal in the previous block, a mile away, and down a stretch of track, straight as an arrow, plunging through the thick fog, came the White Mountain Express, with the impetus of seven cars, baggage, day coach and five sleepers behind the engine.

SNARES IN ENGLISH.

Puzzles For Foreigners Who Are Learning the Language.

It is hard for the person to whom English is his native tongue to realize what a struggle the foreigner has to understand some of the peculiarities of our spelling and pronunciation. One foreigner gives the following description of his first lesson in an English class.

We have been given a book to learn the letters. I arrive at the class, having learned them perfectly. Soon, in the course of the lesson, we have the word "Love." I pronounce it, thinking the "w" has the sound of v.

"No; it is pronounced 'lo,'" says the teacher.

"Then why is the 'w' there?" I inquire, mystified.

"It is there because that is the way the word is spelled," responds the teacher. "but it is silent. Never mind why; it is sufficient to know that it is there."

Before long we come to n-o-w.

"Pronounce it," says the teacher.

"No," I reply.

"Why will you not?" she asks me.

It is some time before she understands that I am trying to pronounce the word when I say "No." Then she declares that, although n-o-w is n-o-w is now.

"If you want to make it no," she explains kindly, "you put k before it."

You may believe I am bewildered.

However, I memorize that n-o-w is now. The next word is s-n-o-w. I pronounce it like now with an s before it. The teacher laughs. The w is again become silent, apparently for no reason, and the word is called sno.

But that is not all. Later I find that if you drop the s from snow you can pronounce it whichever way you like—Youth's Companion.

LONDON'S QUEER MARKET.

All its Wares Are Strung Upon the Cobbed Pavements.

There are many queer markets scattered over the face of the globe, but London, among its many other unique features, is the proud possessor of what is perhaps the strangest and most extraordinary of them all.

At the Caledonian market, Islington, whence the great metropolis draws a large proportion of its meat supply, the cobbled pavements, with their countless rows of white fenced pens, are usually given up to the display of fat stock; but Fridays "a change comes over the spirit of the dream."

The cobbled pavements are there, the white pens still break up the wide expanse, but no cattle or sheep are to be seen.

On that day the great market is given over to a throng of miscellaneous traders, whose wares provide the most amazing contrasts imaginable.

There is nothing in the whole gamut of human devices and needs which one may not come across displayed in some odd collection set forth on the cobblestones.

The traders use four coppers or stalls. Each of them, whether he has a stock worth three or four hundred pounds or a few rusty old bolts and spindles which one might reasonably expect to purchase for a shilling or two, dumps his wares on the pavement of the market.

Moreover, at this remarkable place there are markets within markets, each taking its regular turn and place during the day and then packing up and vanishing. The market was opened by Prince Albert, Queen Victoria's consort, about sixty years ago—Wide World Magazine.

Wager of Battle.

In 1817 one Richard Thornton, called to the bar of the king's bench charged with the murder of Mary Ashford, in open court threw down his glove and defied his accuser, whereupon there was a pretty do. Wager of battle, it was supposed, had died a natural death in the dark ages, but Lord Eldon, through after consultation of precedent held that it was still the law of England and ordered a field to be prepared. Thornton's accuser thereupon declining combat, the prisoner was discharged. Next year parliament passed an act abolishing this privilege of appeal to the strong right arm.

Conceited.

"So you broke your engagement with him?"

"Yes."

"What for?"

"He's a conceited thing; I simply couldn't stand him."

"I never heard him brag. What makes you think him conceited?"

"All the time we were engaged he never once told me that he was unworthy of my love."—Detroit Free Press.

Provisional Government.

"Father," said the small boy, "what is a provisional government?"

"Well, my son, my impression is a general way is that a provisional government is one that has to keep hustling from day to day for provisions."—Washington Star.

The Best of Friends.

"Are you good friends of the Browns?"

"I should think so. We're taking care of their canary, bulldog and goldfish while they're abroad."—Detroit Free Press.

Difficult Feat.

There are a lot of difficult feats, but probably the most difficult of all is that of remembering the name of the man to whom you have just been introduced.—Philadelphia Ledger.

Lay hold on life with both hands. Wherever thou mayest see it, it is interesting.—Goethe.

A Flee For the Kitchen.

The kitchen should be the refinery, the laboratory, the factory of the home and the pivot point about which the activities of the home revolve. Costs should be considered thoughtfully; no scrap of food should be wasted. It all can be and should be used again in various ways.

By buying staple food supplies in large quantities from 15 to 30 percent can be saved. Any one wishing to do so may economize in this way.

Housewives must not look upon their purchases as mere drudgery; they must bring education, intelligence and concentration into practice. They should learn as manufacturers have, that the best results are to be obtained in a workshop that is well lighted, properly ventilated and comfortably large, suitably furnished and sanitary in all its equipments.—Dr. Adeline G. Soule in Les-He's.

Rowing and Morality.

From the moral standpoint there is no branch of athletics which is such a character builder as trying for a place in an eight oared shell. I've heard a wide variety of college critics say that rowing gets out the finest class of men who try for any team. Certainly the long period of training offers little to the flashy type of man who must have the prospect of immediate reputation.

There is no branch of athletics which so truly teaches the lessons of life. Steady, consistent effort, cheerful work, comradeship and good sportsmanship, when the race goes to another college, these are the habits which working for a place in the varsity shell instill into the American undergraduates.—James Rice in Outing.

A familiar burden in many homes. The burden of a "bad back."

A lame, a weak or an aching back. Often tells you of kidney ills.

Doan's Kidney Pills are for weak kidneys.

Here is Princess Anne testimony.

John W. Heath, farmer, R. F. D. No. 2, Princess Anne, Md., says: "For more than a year I suffered from distressing attacks of backache and at times my back became so weak I could hardly work. The kidney secretions were irregular in passage and there was sediment in them. Having heard so much about Doan's Kidney Pills, I got a box at Omar A. Jones' drug store and gave them a trial. They helped me at once and thus convinced me of their merit. The benefit Doan's Kidney Pills brought has been permanent. My former public endorsement of this remedy still holds good."

Antiquity of the Census.

The idea of the census is almost as old as history itself. King Amasis of Egypt took a census of his people 500 years before Christ. The Athenian Solon established a census for the purpose of facilitating taxation. We learn that about 443 B. C. Servius Tullius took a census of Rome. During the chaos of the dark ages the census dropped into oblivion, but was revived again about the beginning of the eighteenth century.

Discretion.

CASTORIA

USE THE AVAILABLE PLANT FOOD.

The fertility of the soil is not like a bank account, which is tangible, in sight, can always be drawn out at one or more times or at the will of the depositor, says the American Cultivator.

The soil is an investment with many qualifying conditions—namely, available plant food, physical condition and moisture.

SEE THIS, TRUCK GROWERS!

Here's a Homemade Hand Cultivator That Does Excellent Work.

An excellent hand cultivator for a small truck patch that will do excellent work can be made at very little cost. Get a front wheel from an old ball bearing bicycle. Be sure you get the complete bearings, spindle and nuts. Take off the rubber tire. Get the following pieces of the lightest lumber possible, but be sure the wood is tough and straight grained; elm is good: Two pieces for A, 3/4 by 2 by 26 inches; two pieces for B, 3/4 by 2 by 48 inches; one piece for C, 1 1/4 by 8 by 22 inches.

Through the front end of the A pieces bore a hole of size to fit on the spindle. Shave the ends thin enough to take a washer inside and outside and leave room for the nuts. Bore a five-sixteenths inch hole two inches from the other end; also have the ends of the B pieces fit against the outside of the A pieces two inches back of the bearing holes at B. With a little stove bolt fasten them there.

Shape the other ends like plow handles. Seven inches from the lower end of piece C bore a five-sixteenths inch hole and two inches from the top end a seven-eighths inch hole. Bolt the A pieces to C at D with a five-sixteenths inch bolt three and a half inches long. Cut a broom handle to eighteen inches long and slip it to the middle in the hole at top of C and fasten with small nails. Shave the ends to fit three-quarter inch holes. Make the angle of A and C at D about square. Bore three-quarter inch holes through the handle pieces B at the point where the broom handle will fit. Drive the ends in and secure with small nails.

Mount the frame on the wheel. Use any small cultivator shoe or shovel. If the handles stand too high cut a little off the lower end of C and set the shoe higher.—Farm and Fireside.

VALUE OF SWEET CLOVER.

Stockmen Awakening to Use of the Formerly Despised Plant.

In Farm and Fireside there appears an article about "Sweet Clover," an extract from which follows:

Since colonial days there has grown along our roadways a legume classed as weed by farmers, weed commissions and even experiment station officers.

Until late years the only steadfast friend of sweet clover has been the beekeeper, whose neighbors have in many cases uttered imprecations against him, accusing him of scattering the seed with malicious intent.

This antagonistic attitude is undergoing a change, and the agricultural press now contains many articles by stock growers who are loud in their praises of this "new discovery," which promises to make their poor lands a profitable stock range for horses, cattle and sheep.

Protein is the most expensive constituent of farm feeds. Comparative analyses of sweet clover, alfalfa, red clover, timothy and cowpeas showed that only the alfalfa and cowpeas excelled sweet clover in percentage of protein, the alfalfa by 1 per cent and the cowpeas by 3 per cent. Considered from the standpoint of digestible nutrients, we find the following comparative values for the different feeds:

Per ton.

Sweet clover hay $18.45

Alfalfa hay 23.45

Red clover hay 14.15

Timothy hay 9.85

Cowpea hay 19.76

Alfalfa Fine For Hogs.

To determine the value of alfalfa forage for hogs with and without grain the Oklahoma experiment station placed pigs averaging about seventy-five pounds each in weight on an alfalfa field in April. At the end of a hundred days the average daily gain was twenty-six one hundredths pound per head when on alfalfa alone; on alfalfa and all the dry corn chop they would eat the gain was 1.28 pounds per head and day; on alfalfa and a half ration of corn chop the gain was seven-tenths pound.

Best Ways With Timothy.

To cure timothy cut it just as the bloom is falling. If the crop is not too heavy and rank cut as soon as the dew is off, let it cure a few hours rake into windrows and haul to the barn the same day. If crop is rank cut it in the afternoon. It will not hurt it. Next day's sun will dry it in a few hours; when it can be raked into windrows. Haul it to the barn in the early afternoon.—Farm Journal

Growth of The Pottery Industry

The manufacture of pottery is one of the most important branches of the clayworking industry in the United States. During the year 1912 pottery was produced to the value of $36,504,164, according to the annual chart just issued by the United States Geological Survey, showing the production of all clay products, compiled by Jefferson Middleton. This figure indicates a healthy condition of the pottery industry, the increased value of the output for 1912 over 1911 being almost $2,000,000. Ohio was by far the largest producer in 1912, being credited with $15,508,735, and New Jersey was next, with over $8,000,000. Six States produced pottery to the value of more than $1,000,000.

Forest Notes

It has been discovered that the waste from dogwood shuttle-blocks can profitably be made into handles for steel knives and forks.

Contrary to popular belief, forest fires seldom travel more than 2 or 3 miles an hour. Even in extreme cases it is questionable whether they burn at a rate of more than 6 to 10 miles an hour.

Uncle Sam's forest rangers require that camp-sites within the forests shall be kept in sanitary condition. The ubiquitous tin can must be buried and waste paper burned when a camp is left.

More than 8,000 small logging operators now buy national forest timber; at 25,000 persons, settlers, miners, stockmen and others, obtain timber from Uncle Sam's big wood-lot for their own use free of charge.

The forests of Corsica, the little island upon which Napoleon was born, are managed by the French government. They produce lumber, firewood and turpentine, and all parts of the tree are far more closely utilized than in America.

The Newspaper Exchange

There is no section of a newspaper that comes home closer to the real life of the people than the classified advertising. The news dispatches tell of things that are very important, but distant. The classified advertising tells of things that closely affect the daily lives of home people.

One learns more of what is going on in town from reading these columns than from the best edited news stories. The housewife is anxious to see who is advertising for positions as servants. Working people want to know who desires help. People who own, or who want to buy or sell real estate, are interested in the transfers that are going on. It is hard to find a class of people who do not follow these notices.

Hence it is perfectly astonishing how many answers one can often get from a simple little notice in the To Rent, For Sale, or Want columns. Anything you can do by personal inquiry is multiplied a hundred fold through the newspaper press.

Some people will put in hours or days making inquiries and running around haphazard, when they want to rent a place or sell a piece of property. They devote dollars' worth of time, when a few cents spent in the newspaper would reach a hundred times as many people.

This kind of advertising permits the buyer to get the best price, because he soon learns whether there is to be any competition. It gives the seller the most advantageous trade, because he finds whether there is a real demand.

Farmers could do a rushing business, particularly through the parcel post, if they would advertise their products in nearby towns. They could develop a trade that would pay special prices rather than buy through middlemen. The classified ads. is a time saver and a money saver. In the MARYLANDER AND HERALD our "Business Advertisers" take the place of "Classified Ads."

RALLY DEMOCRATS

TO THE SUPPORT OF YOUR PARTY!
VOTE THE REGULAR DEMOCRATIC TICKET IN THE PRIMARIES ON Monday, September 8th

VOTE FOR THE MEN WHO HAVE RE-PEATEDLY CARRIED YOUR PARTY TO VICTORY IN THE PAST 12 YEARS

The leaders of the Progressive Party are not big enough to lead your party in a fight with its ancient enemy—not big enough to build—they are seeking to tear down the old party which all loyal Democrats have labored to build up, and are trying to repudiate and besmirch its brilliant record.

It is important to the Democratic Party that the Progressive, or Repudiation Party, be overwhelmed at the Primaries.

What Is a Democrat?

Editor MARYLANDER AND HERALD:

We often hear the question: "What is a Democrat?" There are so many brands of Democrats, Regulars, Progressives, Reactionaries, Standpaters, etc., that one is apt to be confused. Here in Somerset we have the "Regulars" and the "Progressives" and I have often wondered why these terms. My definition of a good Regular Democrat is one who is always regular and always progressive. A good Democrat is one human being who has not been instructed in the lore of government to such a degree that he is incapable of making a mistake. To say that a GOOD DEMOCRAT isn't susceptible to the pangs of hunger just the same as his WOULD-BE MORE PROGRESSIVE brethren would be stretching the truth, and no really good Democrat should be guilty of the stretching process.

I hardly think it possible that the so-called "Progressives" have been divinely commissioned to, practice civic righteousness in Somerset County, and therefore I am an organization Democrat, because I believe in organization in all things that pertain to the social, religious, or political welfare of the people, and until I am convinced that we have a better organization, one better capable of promoting the general welfare of my county, I am standing by the present one, headed (and justly so), by the Hon. Joshua W. Miles.

Thanking you for space, and congratulating you on the able way your paper has conducted the campaign through its columns, I am,

Yours truly,

C. W. MARSH.
Champ, Md., September 5, 1913.

Diarrhoea Quickly Cured

"I was taken with diarrhoea and Mr. Yorks, the merchant here, persuaded me to try a bottle of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera, and Diarrhoea Remedy. After taking one dose of it I was cured. It also cured others that I gave it to," writes M. E. Gebhart, Oriole, Pa. That is not at all unusual. An ordinary attack of diarrhoea can almost invariably be cured by one or two doses of this remedy. For sale by all dealers. (Advertisement)

Cadet Life at West Point

Briefly, at 3:45 p. m. the academic work is over for the day and drills for all classes occupy the hour from 4 to 5, followed by a dress parade at 5:25, excepting Wednesdays and Saturdays. This is the schedule from Sept. 1 to Nov. 1 and from March 15 to June. On Saturdays academic work ends at 12:30, and, with the exception of inspection at 1:30, the afternoon of the cadet is free until 6:25 supper call. His amusements are much like those of college students generally. Football is perhaps the most popular organized sport. Games are played at the West Point grounds with teams from many colleges, and the season closes with the annual army-navy game, when the West Pointers meet the midshipmen from Annapolis on Franklin field, Philadelphia. Basketball follows during the winter months, many contests with teams from other schools occurring during the season, and then in the spring comes baseball of course—Popular Mechanics.

Waiting

THOMAS S. FORSYTH.

Waiting, while the stars are in the sky;
Waiting, while the sun still rolls on high;
Waiting for a change from this unrest,
Waiting—but God knows best.

Ambition stifled within my breast;
Ambition, with all its wild behest;
Ambition to outdo all the rest.
Ambition—God knows best.

And so I take up my work again,
And try to still ambition's keen pain,
And I know in Heaven there is rest,
And that my God knows best.

Political Announcements

Regular

Does any one question that I am regular, there has never been shown a single act in my entire life, political or otherwise, that has not been regular or straight.

Have I done anything irregular by presenting myself as a candidate as the law directs? What grievous sin is this that I have committed that I be not included in the list of regulars. I announced myself because I believed it to be the only way; 'tis true that I consulted the leaders and being assured of their support, I placed my name before the people. If it be a crime to aspire to office and I am to suffer political destruction because of my presumption then I want to ask for whom was this primary made, (not for me surely), I am no kicker, no one has offended me. I am no boater, I am with the ticket, I have no fight with any one, all that I ask is that my name be presented to the voters of Somerset county for their approval. This right is guaranteed to me by the law and I am only exercising my prerogative, can anyone object to this?

The MARYLANDER AND HERALD evidently does not consider me regular as she did not include me in her list to be voted for. This I cannot believe to be an oversight but appears to be intentional. As I cannot assign any reason for it, I would like an explanation.
It is because I favor the repeal of the Haman Oyster Law and not a resurvey? We have had too many surveys; we have done nothing but survey and resurvey until nearly all of our natural rocks have been taken from us. Now are we willing to have another resurvey, if so then the least you can expect will be that they take it all.

Ask the candidate that is to receive your vote to pledge you in the open before the people that he will demand the repeal of the Haman Law, if he cannot do this publicly, then he has no right to your support. Your interest and my interest are centered in the Oyster Business then let us vote for our own interest once.

Don't guess at what a man will do when he tells you, don't take him on his record of six (6) years ago, many men have changed as many times in as many years, they could be radical planners by this time. Oystermen you have been fooled to many times, if you make a mistake this time there will be nothing left think twice before you vote and then be sure that you have the right man.

Oystermen do you want a square deal, would you be represented in the next Legislature, then cast your vote for me I need only one. Hundred and Seventy five (175) votes to insure my nomination, will you be one of them? If you care to hear the Oyster question discussed arrange a meeting and I will be glad to come.
Very truly yours, the Peoples Candidate,
A. L. HARDESTY,
Crisfield, Md.

WILLIAM J. SHORES

A Candidate for the Legislature
We are authorized to announce the candidacy of Wm. J. Shores, of Chamee, as a candidate for one of the Democratic nominations for representative in the Maryland Legislature from Somerset county, subject to the action of the Democratic Primary Election.

JOHN A. T. HOLLAND

A Candidate for Sheriff
To the Democratic Voters of Somerset County, Maryland:
I hereby announce that I am a candidate for the office of Sheriff of Somerset county, Maryland, subject to the Democratic Primary to be held during the year 1913, in Somerset county, Maryland.

JOHN A. T. HOLLAND.

To the Democratic Voters of Somerset County:

At the solicitation of a large number of Democratic friends in Somerset county, I desire to announce that I have determined to become a candidate in the approaching Democratic Primaries for the office of County Treasurer. Having been identified as a County Commissioner, with the recent Democratic administration of county affairs, I am somewhat familiar with the duties of the office of County Treasurer, and if nominated and elected, I promise a faithful discharge of its duties.
As a taxpayer I am interested in the good management of Somerset county's fiscal affairs, and I believe the continued success of the Democratic party would best contribute to this end.

I appeal to every element of the Democratic party for support, and whatever the verdict of Democrats in the Primaries, I shall cheerfully, as heretofore, aid in the election of the nominees of the party in November.
EDWARD B. LANKFORD.

DR. R. R. NORRIS

A Candidate for the State Central Committee.
To the Democratic Voters of Somerset County:

Having descended from a family of Democrats, and believing in the doctrines of Thomas Jefferson and also in the policies now being so admirably upheld by the present National Administration, I am anxious for the success of the Democratic party in Somerset county and State of Maryland. To accomplish this end we must abide by the true interpretation of the policy of our party which has given us a Direct Primary law, the object of which is to "let the people rule," thus ridding our county of Bosses and Machine made candidates. The time has come when the people's wishes must be fulfilled, by themselves selecting their candidates by an open vote.

Being free of all Bosses, Machines and Cliques and not having solicited or asked the help of any man, I now present myself to the Democratic voters of Somerset county as a candidate for a member of the State Central Committee of the county, and I appeal to every Democrat in Somerset for support. I am not allied with any boss or machine but am a straight-out Democrat, with the best interests of my party at heart. I ask the people of this county to elect me at the coming primaries in order that I may represent the masses of Democrats of the county, on the State Central Committee.

I appeal to you knowing that the Democrats want and need a united party to meet the common enemy at the polls in November. I have never held political office, and being free from all political entanglements I believe I can help unite our party for the Fall election and serve all members of the party faithfully and fairly, as a member of the County Committee. I take this means of announcing my candidacy for a member of the Democratic State Central Committee, subject to the action of the coming primary election, and I shall be grateful for any support tendered me by the Democratic voters of the county.
Crisfield, Md. Very respectfully,
Dr. R. NORRIS.

CHARLES W. MARSH

A candidate for the House of Delegates
To the Democratic Voters of Somerset County:

I am persuaded by my many friends in Somerset to make this announcement of my candidacy for the House of Delegates, subject to the Democratic primaries. It is important that you know the position of each candidate on all questions that affect the public before casting your ballot at the coming primary, therefore, I will briefly state my position on some of the questions affecting your interests.

I am in sympathy with those measures which point toward the progress and prosperity of our manufacturing industries, the advancement of our commercial interests, the increase of our agricultural advantages, the husbandry of our great natural resources. I am utterly and unequivocally opposed to monopoly seizing any of our great natural resources under the guise of "law." I am against the enactment of any measure favoring of encroachment upon any right which the people have, and will, if selected at the primary and elected at the general election, fight to the last ditch for the rights of those who are at present obtaining a livelihood from the natural oyster bars of the county and State.

Any measure adversely affecting the moral tone, or the forward movement of any one of our domestic interests will receive my unqualified disapproval. I shall be pleased to hear from all who are interested in my candidacy, and as I promise a square deal to every interest in my county, I invoke the co-operation of every one who believes in a "square deal" for all.

Respectfully submitted to the Democratic voters of Somerset county by one whose best interest is best served by best serving yours,
CHARLES W. MARSH.

JOHN W. WEST

A Candidate for the House of Delegates
To the Democratic Voters of Somerset County:

I hereby announce that I am a candidate for the House of Delegates, subject to the Democratic Primary. While it is an honor to become a member of the General Assembly, I care but little for the honor. Any man who is worthy to be called a man is ambitious. My chief ambition in this matter is to serve with time and thought the whole people of this county and to be of service to the State. To me it will be a greater pleasure to help others than to be helped, to serve rather than to be served.

With a knowledge of the opportunities in other States, I believe I should be able by contrast to see the opportunities on the "Shore" for greatly increased business activities. The Peninsula is within five hundred miles of about half the population of this country. The possibilities for development are great and very much may be done by legislation that should result in launching a great forward movement of progress.

If I win in the primaries and at the regular election, you may be assured that my time, best thought and energy will be devoted to the best interests of the people.
I shall be pleased to hear from any one interested in my election and desire workers in every community. I am opposed, however, to voters making unqualified pledges to support any candidate in the Primary, for often by undue influence men have been led to make positive promises to support a particular candidate and on or before the day of election regretted they were bound. I wish to see men free to obtain all the information possible up to the day of the election, and then guided with knowledge and conscience cast a ballot for what they believe to be the best interest of the people.

Respectfully submitted to the Democratic voters of Somerset county by one who has a vital interest in the greatest good to the greatest number.
JOHN W. WEST.

Southern Convocation Meeting

The Southern Convocation of the Diocese of Easton, was held in Coventry Parish, Somerset County, last Tuesday and Wednesday. The occasion was marked by considerable interest and a good attendance at both St. Mark's Church, Kingston, and St. Stephen's Church, Upper Fairmount.

The duplex envelope system as a fair, business-like and satisfactory system of church finance was ably presented by the Rev. L. L. Williams, rector of St. Mary's Church, Pocomoke City, and the Rev. S. A. Potter, rector of St. Paul's, Berlin.

The Rev. W. Fred Allen, rector of All Hallow's, Snow Hill, spoke forcibly on "The Intercession of Faith," at St. Mark's, Tuesday evening; and the Rev. S. A. Potter, on "The Necessity of The Principle of Sacrifice for The Development of Christian Character," at St. Stephen's, Wednesday evening.

At the same church, Wednesday morning, the Rev. John C. Horton, rector of St. Stephen's, East New Market, delivered a scholarly sermon on "The Sunday School Problem."

The rector of Coventry Parish, the Rev. Charles G. Cogley, was the celebrant at the Holy Communion in St. Stephen's Church, Wednesday at 11 a.m.

At a business meeting held in the rectory the Rev. S. A. Potter was elected Dean of the Southern Convocation to fill the unexpired term of the Rev. Thomas B. Barlow, of Cambridge, Md., who has removed to another field of work in the Diocese of Pittsburgh.

The brethren were greatly pleased with their cordial reception by the people of Coventry Parish, and it is to be hoped that their coming will be marked by a spiritual uplift in the life of the parish.

Inquest Over Girl's Death

A third hearing in the inquest into the death of Miss Meredith Ann Dukes, of Bishopville, Md., who died after an unprofessional operation August 18th, in a furnished room house at 1512 Arch street, Philadelphia, was held last Friday, and after several witnesses had been heard, was again continued for two weeks.

The police have not yet found Matthew Fleetwood, of Bishopville, with whom Miss Dukes left her home to go to Philadelphia. It was expected his brother, William Fleetwood, would appear as a witness, but he did not. Frank Paul, the coroner's detective, said several material witnesses might be arrested this week.

Fire broke out about 3 o'clock Tuesday morning in the storehouse on Broadway, Crisfield, occupied by Clarence Justice & Co., and gained great headway before the alarm was given. The store, and another adjoining it, were destroyed. The origin of the fire is unknown.

MARYLAND PRIMARIES

Progressives Won a Few Victories—Old Guard Control State

Primary election returns for the various counties of the State indicate that the Democrats had many bitter fights, while the Republicans had few of any kind. The result appears to be that the old guard will control the State Convention, dictate the platform and name the State chairman.

In Baltimore county the "Fred" Talbott ticket won a victory amounting to a walkover, and every man supported by the wing of the party known as the organization was nominated. Talbott himself was re-elected to the State Central Committee by a big vote.

There was great interest in the night in Anne Arundel, where a strongly organized opposition to Dr. George Wells, the Democratic boss for a generation, was backed by Senator Blair Lee. The result, however, was no surprise, as it was predicted that Wells would win on account of his personal popularity.

As hot a fight as there was in the entire State was that waged in Kent county between the Barroll and Beck-Vickers factions. The result was a split ticket. The old organization faction, led by Senator W. W. Beck and State's Attorney Vickers, elected two out of three members of the State Central Committee, both candidates for the House of Delegates, the delegates to the State Convention and candidate for Sheriff. The anti-organization wing, under the leadership of Hope H. Barroll, elected one member of the State Central Committee, two candidates for County Commissioner and the candidate for County Treasurer.

In Allegany county the nominees for the Senate are Fred N. Zihlman, Republican, and Archibald C. Willison, Democrat. On the Democratic side this is accounted a victory for the Old Guard, which has ruled the machinery there for years. On the Democratic side the hardest fight was between the organization and the Progressives for the State Central Committee. The organization was also victorious over the Progressives in electing their delegates to the State Convention.

Down in Charles county the organization ticket won by a vote of 8 to 1. In that county it is supposed that the delegates to the State Convention will be inclined to vote against the re-election of Murray Vandiver as State Chairman of the Democratic party.

Garrett county was carried by the Democratic Progressives. The Republican generally carry the county in the general election.

In Cecil county the Crothers forces went down to defeat, electing only one man on the county ticket—one of the candidates for County Commissioner. The anti-Crothers people got the Central Committee, the delegation to the State convention and the other places on the local ticket.

The election in Caroline county proved a surprise to all concerned. The ticket was "knifed" vigorously in every district but the regular forces elected their ticket with the exception of one candidate to the legislature.

Complete returns in Washington county show a mixed result, with the Democratic organization a winner by a neck in the hottest fight in the party in recent years. The organization elected three members of the State Central Committee.

Montgomery county returns show that Dr. Eugene Jones, the Blair-Lamar candidate for the Senate, carried the county by a majority of 464, and that the Lee county central committee and delegates to the State Convention were elected by about 800. This result is a great victory for Senator Lee, as nothing had been left undone to beat his local ticket in Montgomery.

Complete returns from Harford county show that James J. Archer, the Progressive candidate for the Senate, defeated W. W. Preston by about 300 and the Progressive delegates to the State Convention and the State Central Committee win by good majorities.

The organization candidates made a clean sweep in Howard county. With the exception of the Thra district, where the Progressives made their best showing and received a majority of the votes cast, the organization slate overwhelmed its opponents.

Queen Anne dealt a blow to John E. George, the machine leader, who has had some pretty hard knocks before. He got part of his ticket, but not all. One of the delegates to the State Convention may be against him and also one of the members of the State Central Committee.

Carroll reports that the Steele faction elected three candidates for the Legislature—and the Weant faction one. The Weant faction elected two members of the State Central Committee, and the Steele faction put across its leader, Thomas Coonan—defeating Weant. The Steele faction elected three to the State Convention, and the faction two.

Senator Jackson to Give Every Boy a Chance

Senator Jackson has the right to designate one principal and three alternates for appointment to the United States Naval Academy, the entrance examination taking place in February or April, 1914. Believing that the best interests of the navy can be promoted by recruiting its officers after the widest competition among the people to whom the navy belongs, and that every boy in Maryland of the required age should have an opportunity to enter the Naval Academy, he has decided to make these appointments by a competitive examination to be held on October 22, 1913, by the Civil Service Commission at the usual places in Baltimore, Hagerstown, Frederick, Cumberland, Washington, Salisbury and possibly Easton.

These examinations will last six hours and the subject matter will be similar to the usual entrance examination for the Naval Academy. These tests will be open to every boy in Maryland who is of the proper age and has the proper physical requirements. It will simply be necessary for the applicant to fill out the blanks furnished by the examining officer on the day of the examination.

For a United Party

EDITOR MARYLANDER AND HERALD: The differences of opinion in the Democratic party of Somerset county over questions of party management, having been submitted to the test of a primary election, the result should be accepted by all Democrats as binding.

This method is the only one provided by which such differences may be tried out, and when applied, should be accorded full credit as the decision of the party.

In view of statements indicating a different opinion, we place ourselves on record as giving our unqualified support to the Democratic candidates in the general election, in the hope that a united party may justify the confidence of the people.

Respectfully,
JOHN W. MORRIS,
CHARLES B. MORRIS.
Princess Anne, Sept. 11th.

Woman Killed Under Auto

Mrs. Rachel Henry, 70 years old, of New Church, Va., was killed and her husband, Alexander Henry, 73 years old, injured last Wednesday afternoon about one-half mile from their home when an automobile in which they were riding turned turtle, pinning them beneath it.

Mr. Henry had recently bought the car and was just learning to run it. He lost control of the machine, which ran up an embankment and upset.

Mrs. Henry lived but a few minutes after the accident. She begged her husband to remove the machine from her despite his age and own injuries he made every effort to release her. Failing, he went to a nearby farmhouse for assistance. When he returned with help his wife was dead.

The Primary Election in Somerset—Regulars Win

The primary election for Somerset county took place on Monday of last week, resulting in the election of the following candidates, all being identified with the regular organization:

Clerk of Circuit Court—Stephen Frank Dashiell, of Princess Anne.

Sheriff—Elwood Sterling, of Crisfield.

County Treasurer—Edward B. Lankford, of Dublin District.

County Commissioner—Thomas J. Webb, of Crisfield.

House of Delegates—Charles A. Lockerman, of Crisfield; Lybrand Thomas, of Deal's Island, and John W. West, of Dublin District.

State Central Committee—George W. Brown, of Princess Anne; Harding P. Tull, of Marion, and W. E. Dougherty, of Crisfield.

Delegates to State Convention—L. Wesley Beauchamp, of Westover; John R. Corbin, of Smith's Island; Charles Wesley Fontaine, of Princess Anne, and Lewis M. Milbourne, of Kingston. The Republicans had no part in the primaries as they have but one set of candidates in the field.

The day started with activity on all sides and the best of feeling prevailed. A hunt was made for every Democratic voter and a fairly full vote was polled. The official returns are given above and show the exact status of each candidate.

Big Fire in Pocomoke City

The large saw and lumber mill of James T. Young & Son, situated at the front of Walnut street, on the Pocomoke river, in Pocomoke City, was destroyed by fire Friday evening. The alarm was given about 7:30 o'clock by Mr. G. Edgar Schoolfield, who saw the smoke and flames issuing through the windows as he was going downtown from his house. The entire structure, valued at $7,500, was a mass of debris in less than 15 minutes.

Several thousand dollars worth of lumber was scattered in piles around the large yard and these were saved from destruction by the heroic efforts of the firemen and citizens. A new boiler, recently installed by the firm at a cost of $1,500, also escaped without material damage, but the pipes and belts which were a part of the mill machinery were considerably damaged. "The cause of the fire is unknown, but rumors of incendiarism are rife. Many believe that the mill was intentionally fired. The total loss is estimated at $7,500, with practically no insurance.

This conflagration was the fifth in the history of the firm, of which James T. Young is the senior partner. All of them started on the same site and resulted, in every case, in almost total demolition of their milling establishment. The first of these was in 1889, the name of the firm then being Young & Coulbourn, and the last previous to Friday night was in 1905.

Divorced From Paul Armstrong in New York City

With the granting of a decree of divorce by Justice Weeks, in New York City, to Mrs. R. Ella Abell Armstrong, from Paul Armstrong, the playwright, the name of the co-respondent is revealed for the first time. She is Miss Catherine Calvert, leading woman in The Deep Purple, A Romance of The Underworld and The Escape, all written by Armstrong. Mrs. Armstrong's suit was tried before J. Hampden Dougherty last week, as referee, for which reason the testimony was sealed and even the name of the co-respondent was kept secret.

The referee recommended the payment of $15,000 a year alimony to Mrs. Armstrong and this the court also approved. Justice Goff recently signed an order directing Armstrong to pay about $1,500 in arrears of alimony awarded pending the outcome of the suit. He was then said to be in California. Miss Calvert is advertised to appear at an early date in New York in one of Armstrong's plays. Her right name is Cassidy, and she belongs in Baltimore. After listening to the testimony of several witnesses produced by the defendant and co-respondent to disprove the charges made by Mrs. Armstrong, the referee expressed regret that he was compelled to uphold the charges made by the wife. Armstrong has filed notice of appeal. Mrs. Armstrong is also awarded custody of the three daughters, aged 13, 12 and 10.

Delaware Man for Collectorship

A new element in the fight over the collectorship of internal revenues came to light last Wednesday when the fact leaked out that Alfred Raughley, of Harrington, Kent county, Delaware, was being favorably considered by the President for this position.

The impression prevails that Mr. Wilson will name a Delaware man as Delaware, the District of Columbia and Maryland are all in the same district. Senator Willard Saulsbury's influence, it is said, is exerted in the interest of Mr. Raughley.

William H. Bryan and Columbus O'Donnell Lee, of Baltimore, are active candidates for the place, and Emerson R. Crothers, of Cecil; Wethered Barroll, son of Hope H. Barroll, of Kent county, and several others, are mentioned as "Willin' Barkises."

"Secretary McAdoo told me," said Senator Lee, "that the Collectorship had not been promised Delaware, that no decision had been made as to the appointment and that no one was authorized to make any announcement as to the position of the department in the matter. I explained to him that this place had been given to Maryland for many years and that the business of office comes largely from this State. I also told him that there are now a number of worthy Democrats who are aspirants and that there likely would be others when the time came for filling the place. I am perfectly satisfied that reports that the place will certainly go to Delaware are extremely erroneous."

MANY GO TO HEAR BRYAN

Lectured at Salisbury, Pocomoke City and Crisfield

Secretary of State William Jennings Bryan delivered his lecture, "The Making of Man," to an audience of about 2,000 people at the Salisbury Chautauqua last Monday night. Mr. Bryan arrived at Salisbury at 8.15 p. m., and was greeted with the tooting of horns and loud cheering on the streets as he passed on his way to the Chautauqua. From the time he entered the outskirts of the crowd until after he was seated on the platform he was loudly applauded. He delivered his lecture in a loud clear voice and was frequently interrupted with applause.

Mr. Bryan also addressed the Chautauquas at Pocomoke City and Crisfield on Wednesday last. This was Secretary Bryan's first visit to Pocomoke and the news that he had been secured by the local Chautauqua committee was hailed with delight by the entire population. Business during the afternoon was entirely suspended. Automobiles brought hundreds from Princess Anne, Snow Hill, Berlin and other points in Worcester, Wicomico and Somerset counties, while the afternoon trains from Accomac and Northampton counties in Virginia, were crowded with passengers who had come from as far south as Cape Charles to hear and see the distinguished speaker. The town was dressed in gala attire, stores and dwellings throughout the town being profusely decorated with flags and bunting.

Mr. Bryan went to Crisfield in an automobile from Pocomoke City at 6 o'clock. Upon his arrival there he was met by a reception committee and thousands of cheering citizens gathered

A Double Exchange

By REGINALD D. HAVEN

One day after I had taken a lunch-son in a restaurant the waiter handed me my overcoat. I put it on and left the place. While walking along I put my hand in a side pocket of the overcoat and grasped a letter. Not being aware of having anything in that pocket, I pulled it out and looked at the superscription. To my surprise, the letter was not addressed to me at all. It was postmarked the city where I then was and where I lived and was written in a feminine hand. I put it back where I found it, returned to the restaurant and told the proprietor that I had changed coats with some one. He said that whoever had taken my coat had not yet discovered his error, or at least had not returned it. I gave him my address and went away, resolved to keep the coat I had until I got my own.

The same evening after dinner I read the note I had come upon, with a view to finding some clue to the fellow who had taken my coat. What was my surprise to find a promise from a girl who signed herself "Anne" to meet the man to whom the letter was addressed on a certain corner at a certain hour that very evening and to marry him.

This was the only clue I found. If I wanted my coat back I could go to the place of rendezvous and demand it. I thought it would be rather hard on a man who was about to be married to call on him to rectify such a mistake. Such a commonplace proceeding would spoil a romance. Nevertheless I concluded to go for this reason: Probably the man, having discovered that the letter had passed into other hands, would call off the eelment, but would go to the place of rendezvous, presuming that I had read the note and would go there myself to find him and get back my coat.

The meeting was to be at 11 o'clock. The place was a crossing of two streets on which were only dwelling houses and at no time much frequented. At 11 o'clock at night only some late home goers would pass it. I went there at a quarter to 11, or, rather, I walked up one of the cross streets, around the block and passed the corner by another. I kept this up until exactly at 11 I passed a lady, noticing that she was veiled. I walked on, turned and took position behind a tree box.

The lady was doing the same thing I had been doing, and she kept it up till nearly half past 11. Then I saw her go to a street lamp, look at her watch, hesitate, and by the way she started off I knew she had made up her mind to give up whatever she was there for.

I hurried up to her and said, "Pardon me, but you may be looking for some one who having lost a note mentioning the time and place of the meeting has been unable to keep the appointment." Then I told her the reason for my being there. To prove my story I handed her the note she had written.

She was very much agitated. As soon as she had convinced herself that I had given her what I pretended to give she tore it into bits. She didn't seem to be thinking of me or the story I had told. Her mind was evidently on the man she was to have met and not very pleasantly on him.

"He doubtless lost your note," I remarked, "before having fixed in his memory the time of it."

"Nonsense!" she exclaimed, stamping her foot. "He has failed me—intentionally failed me."

"May I see you to your home?" I asked.

"No—yes."

"My second thought," I said, "is always more valuable, and, presuming that yours is the same, I shall accept your second mandate. I shall see you home; but, though I am a stranger to you, I trust you will not believe I am going for the purpose of learning where you live. If you prefer I will leave you before."

"Come as far as you like," she snapped. "You can't do me any harm."

She lived not far away, and we were but a few minutes reaching her home. Instead of stealing in, she put a latch-key in the door and opened it.

"I don't like," she said at parting, "that even a stranger should leave me without an explanation of this affair, but it is too long a story to be told here. Come to see me tomorrow evening and I will give you such information as I trust may indicate that I am not such a fool as would appear from what you have seen of me."

I accepted the invitation and listened to her story, which she was two hours in telling. I have not room for it here, and I don't care to dwell on it. I can only say that notwithstanding the hope she had expressed in giving me the invitation she had not been especially wise in trusting a man who, from certain of his doings that she told me, would lead any man not a fool to set him down as a cad. But men are fooled by women who could not fool their own sex, and women are fooled by men whom a man would see through at once.

The reason I don't care to dwell on the lady's story is that there is another story which more directly concerns me. It, too, is lengthy, though it may be all told in a few words—viz. the lady is my wife.

I never got my overcoat, and I never wanted it, for I would not wear it after it had been worn by the other party. The one I took in exchange for it I sent to a hospital for criminals.

WINDOW GLASS DECAYS.

It Gets So Brittle In Time That It May Be Cut With Shears.

It is generally supposed that glass is practically immortal. But it has been demonstrated that glass exposed to the elements will decay and in time become so rotten that it is worthless.

Window glass exposed to the heat and cold and varying winds will, after a number of years, become so brittle that it can be cut with a pair of shears. It is said that light and darkness have different effects on glass and this alternation alone will cause it to become fragile and in time worthless.

It is almost impossible to remove old windows from a building without breaking many of the panes of glass. New glass can be handled with much more carelessness.

There is a certain elasticity to new glass that leaves glass which has faced the weather for a number of years.

Street fakers who travel throughout the country selling scissors will obtain a lot of old window glass and show the crowds how wonderfully their shears will cut by clipping off strips of the glass just as a person would cut paper, when in fact the feat is due to the fact that the glass is actually rotten. —Harper's Weekly.

Many Names of the Thames.
The Thames has been the cause of much controversy. Its name has been variously stated as Tameses, Tamese, Tamises (at the junction of the Isis and Tame, near Dorchester), Tamisa, Tamesa, Thamisia, Thamesis and finally Isis (where it flows between the Oxfordshire and the Buckinghamshire shores). Thus at Oxford it is still of ten called the Isis until it receives the shallow river Tame just below Dorchester, from which point it is called Thames. Historians trace this error to an early attempted division of the Latin word Tamesis into two words—Tame isis or Tame Isis, suggested perhaps by the existence of the Tame in Buckinghamshire. The Saxons called it the Thames, ancient maps and documents designating it Thamesis Fluvius.—From "In Thamesland."

"Vor's der madder mit you tellers, anyhow?" quietly replied Jacobs. "I say I hab der schmall pox of butter out in mine wagon, rot der Mrs. Becker ordered last week already."—National Food Magazine.

A Story of Beau Nash.
Beau Nash was not entirely a butterfly, as is proved by the following anecdote. His father was a partner in a glass business at Swansea. This was little known, and the Duchess of Marlborough once twitted him with the obscurity of his birth. "Madam," replied Nash, "I seldom mention my father in company, not because I have any reason to be ashamed of him, but because he has some reason to be ashamed of me."

Children Cry FOR FLETCHER'S CASTORIA

Once Upon a Time

ONCE there was really no way out of it for the farmer. Plodding home from the field with his team at close of day, he saw before him the waiting small jobs about the house, barn, and yard, jobs that took time and labor, and never seemed to end. There was water to be pumped, wood to be sawed, various machines to be run by hand. It was a dreary prospect—but that was once upon a time. Today he lets the engine do it.

Buy from the IHC engine line. IHC engines are built right and consistently all through, to work efficiently for years. Whether you want it for sawing, pumping, spraying, electric light plant, for running separator, or repair shop, or for all sorts of tiresome energy-wasting small farm jobs, you have need of an

An IHC engine will develop from ten to thirty per cent more than its rated capacity. Perfect combustion makes it economical in fuel consumption. Its simplicity makes it practically trouble-proof.

IHC engines are built in vertical, horizontal, stationary, portable, skidded, air-cooled and water-cooled styles. The line includes sawing, pumping and spraying outfits. Sizes from 1 to 50-horse power. They operate on gas, gasoline, kerosene, naphtha, distillate and alcohol. IHC oil tractors range in size from 6-12 to 30-60-horse power, for plowing, threshing, etc.

Watch Jewels.
Each watch jewel is shaped to a circle and bored through the center, each boring being just a little less than the diameter of the pinion used in the factory where it is finally to be placed in the upper or lower plate of a watch.

Before the jewel gets to the setter it has been put into a lathe and by means of a minute steel point covered with diamond dust and oil the center has been enlarged to fit the steel pinions which shall be housed in it. In the hands of the setter the cylinder is put into a lathe. With a moistened finger the jewel is picked up and placed inside the cylinder as it rests on the tip of the revolving lathe shaft. With a pointed tool the setter presses against the revolving cylinder edge, forcing the soft metal to overlap and close upon the sapphire or ruby till it is imbedded firmly in the metal cushion. Then a pressure upon a follower at the other end of the lathe brings a cutter to bear upon the metal circumference, turning it to the exact size of the jewel hole in the plate of the watch, with the hole in the center of the jewel exactly in the center of the metal setting.

Weekly Outing of Algerian Ladies.

On Friday in Algiers I visited the cemetery of El Kettar, a great man who is worshipped as a saint. The cemetery where his body reposes is the one place in all Algiers where the women of the harems can feel the fresh air of heaven on their faces. And that is allowed only once a week, on Friday, when they are permitted to unveil and sit and chat together within the cemetery precincts. It was a curious sight as I entered, and it suggested resurrection morn. Fully fifty shrouded white figures were scattered about the grounds, sitting on graves, their bodies and heads covered by white robes, but their faces partly revealed. There was a small percentage of pretty faces and those belonged to the very young women. The middle aged were plain, with that plainness which proceeds from a dull mind and an uneventful life.—Ella Wheeler Wilcox in National Magazine.

Carlyle and the Book of Job.

Carlyle was once asked to take the reading at family prayers during a short visit paid to his friend, the provost of Kirkcaldy. The Bible chanced to open at the first chapter of the book of Job, and Carlyle immediately became absorbed in his subject and read on and on to the end of the last chapter, when, closing the volume, he remarked:

"That is a marvelous lifelike drama, only to be appreciated when read right through."

It is fair to infer that it was appreciated for once. Any one who has taken a long, solitary afternoon and attempted to give the book of Job an opportunity to be appreciated by reading it honestly through at one sitting can realize the consternation of the provost. Such a one will not be likely to wonder with Carlyle why he was not asked again to assist at family prayers in that household.

Peg Woffington's Farewell.

Peg Woffington was playing Rosalind at Covent Garden on the night of May 17, 1757, for the benefit of two minor actors and a French dancer, when she was overcome with sudden faintness. She struggled bravely on until the end, when she staggered off the stage. Recovering after a few moments, she came forward to speak the epilogue, but had proceeded no further than "If I were among you I would kiss as many of you as had beards that pleased me, complexions that liked me and breaths that I"—when, exclaiming in agony, "O God! O God!" she collapsed in a heap upon the floor. She never returned to the stage.—London Globe.

Glycerin and Shoes.

The labor of boot cleaning may be greatly decreased by the aid of a little glycerin. Brush the boots free from dust; then rub the glycerin well into the leather with a sponge or cloth; then let them nearly dry and brush them with a soft brush. If the boots have been blackened it will give them an excellent polish. If not it will give them the appearance of being new. They will be found to keep their polished state for at least three or four days by simply brushing them occasionally. It not only keeps them a good color, but makes them soft and comfortable.—New York Journal.

PERFORATED COINS.

Uncle Sam Tried Them Several Times but Without Success.

Perforated coins were never in favor in the United States, though various efforts were made to popularize them. The first United States coin with a perforated center was a gold dollar issued in 1849, which had a square hole in the middle of the planchet. It was the forerunner of the gold dollar issued by the United States mint in 1849. The coin was engraved, not struck from dies.

The next United States coin with a perforated center was issued from the Philadelphia mint in 1850 and was of the denomination of 1 cent. It was about the size of the bronze cent now in use. At that time the large, old fashioned copper cent was in general circulation, and the perforated coin received the name of "ring cent." The designer reasoned that by means of the perforation the cent could be distinguished by touch from the dime. Another perforated cent issued the same year showed two rings in the field with the words, "Cent. One-tenth Silver." The reverse showed an olive wreath around the perforation and the words, "United States of America."

The mint authorities undertook to design a coin that would answer all requirements, and the pieces were struck with both pierced and perfect centers in silver, copper, nickel and composition metal, six varieties in all, without counting the various metals, but none of the designs was favored by the government authorities, and consequently they were never put into general circulation.

The only gold half dollar ever produced at the United States mint was struck in 1852. It had a perforation in the center, and the obverse showed a wavy circle around the perforation, with the inscription, "United States of America," around the border. The reverse was blank. The coin was exactly half the weight of the dollar. Regardless of the generally accepted idea the gold fifty cent piece with which the public is familiar were not an issue of the United States, but were manufactured by California jewelers. There has not been any attempt to introduce the perforated coin in the United States since 1854. In that year two pieces of the denominations of 1 and 5 cents were issued at the Philadelphia mint.—Harper's Weekly.

Turkish Names.

On our visiting list are Mrs. Hyacinth, Mrs. Tulip, Mrs. Appletree and Mrs. Nightingale. I am also happy enough to possess the acquaintance of Mrs. Sweetmeat, Mrs. Diamond, Mrs. Air—though some know her as Mother Eve—Miss May-She-Laugh and Master He-Waited. This last appellation seemed to me so curious that I inquired into it and learned that my young gentleman wanted to be born. These are not surnames, you understand, for no Turk owns such a thing. To tell one Mistress Hyacinth from another you add the name of her man. And in his case all you can do is to tack on his father's—you could hardly say Christian—name.—H. G. Dwight in Atlantic.

Wild Schemes of Dinocrates.

The most remarkable proposal ever made about Mount Athos was that of the architect Dinocrates. His plan was to cut it into the shape of a gigantic statue of Alexander the Great, holding in the right hand a city, in the left a tank that was to receive all the waters of the region. Alexander was much taken with the scheme. But it was eventually rejected on the ground that the neighboring country was not fertile enough to feed the inhabitants of the projected city. Another of Dinocrates' plans was a temple to the wife of King Ptolemy of Egypt, with a roof of loadstones that would keep an iron statue of her floating in the air.

The Earth's Shadow.

The earth has a shadow, but very few ever see it, except in eclipses of the moon, or else few recognize it when they see it. Nevertheless many of us have noticed on fine, cloudless evenings in summer shortly before sunset a rosy pink arc on the horizon opposite the sun, with a bluish gray segment under it. As the sun sinks the arc rises until it attains the zenith and even passes it. This is the shadow of the earth.

Premontion.

He was brought to Bellevue hospital with some injury to the skull, and a surgeon, having examined the wound, determined to keep the man in the ward for a day or two.

"Oh, doctor," cried the patient, "do you think that I'll lose my head?"—New York Times.

Too Slow.

"Why has your daughter dropped her hospital work so soon?"
"She found she'd have to nurse poor patients for two years before they trusted her with any millionaires. So she's going on the stage in a musical comedy."—Kansas City Journal.

Utility.

"Of what use is a fly, anyway?" asks an exchange.
Well, if there is only one out and it happens to be a long one it will score a man from third.—Detroit Free Press.

Usual Result.

Sillicus—Do you believe that two can live as cheaply as one? Cynicus—Well, after they get married I suppose they generally find they have to.—Philadelphia Record.

If a thing is proper and possible to man, deem it attainable by thee.—Marcus Aurelius.

THACKERAY'S KIND HEART.

The Author Was Called a Cynic, but He Loved Children.

Thackeray's words were satirical, and he himself was called a cynic, but the author of "Love Affairs of Some Famous Men" shows what sort of heart beat in the satirist's breast by quoting from the letter of one to whom the following incident happened:

"In the week following his death there appeared some genial memorial lines in the pages of Punch. Walking down the then unsavory thoroughfare known as Bedfordbury, my eye caught the open page of the popular periodical, and I stayed to read the graceful tribute to the dead moralist. Turning away at length, a poorly dressed man in working garb said to me:

"I knew that man, sir."

"You knew Thackeray?" I asked.

"Yes, sir. I kept that little baker's shop yonder," pointing to the opposite side of the street, "and many's the time Thackeray would come and buy a pound or two of cake of me. I cut it into slices for him, and then, distributing it among the crowd of hungry children, he would walk away and bide in that court over there, that he might have the pleasure of seeing their enjoyment. He didn't know I knew him, but I did. People used to call him a cynic, sir, but it wasn't true. He loved the children, sir, and no man is a cynic who does that."

THEY NEVER SEE SPOOKS.

That is One Consolation That Color Blind Persons Have.

Are you afraid of the dark? There isn't a chance of your seeing a ghost if you are color blind, which may furnish you a ray of comfort for the beauties of landscape and floral decorations you may have missed during your lifetime. Dr. August Lummer, head of the physical institute of the University of Breslau, in Germany, is authority for this.

Dr. Lummer explains the phenomenon in this way:

"The normal eye has an arrangement of tiny rods and cones in the retina. The rods perceive light and the cones color. When a person with a normal eye tries to see in a half dark place the cones, which are useless, interfere with the effective action of the rods, and consequently the confusion creates the effect of apparitions that come and go and change their shapes.

"The color blind person lacks the cones, and his rods act with extraordinary efficiency in the dark. The color blind person sees a clear, permanent outline of things as long as there is the least amount of light present. That means that he never sees ghosts."—New York Herald.

Lexington Monuments.

All along the road to Lexington from Cambridge, Mass., in the United States of America, there are monuments to "rebel colonists" who slew British soldiers April 19, 1775, but the most striking is that which is raised to the memory of Samuel Whittemore. He was eighty years of age at the time, and he killed three British soldiers with his own hand. The stone records that for this he received punishment of three kinds. He was shot, he was bayoneted and he was beaten. He was then, reasonably enough, left for dead. The old fellow must have had a magnificent constitution and a spirit which the most devoted optimist might envy. For the inscription goes on to say that he recovered and lived to the age of ninety-eight. 1895 must have been "a good vintage"—for men.—London Chronicle.

Their Passport.

A senator told at a luncheon in Washington a senate story.
"We'd be a hard lot, indeed, we senators," he said, "if we were as black as we're painted. I once heard a dreadful story against us.

"Two ladies, it appeared, came to the visitors' gallery and demanded admission, but they had no cards.
"If you have no cards, ladies," said the doorkeeper, "perhaps you know one of the senators and can get a card from him."

"Oh, no, we don't know any senators," they said hastily.
"The doorkeeper bowed low.

"That, ladies," he said, "is very much to your credit. Pass right in."—Washington Star.

Why She Wept.

A young man who is very particular about his washerwoman recently wrote a note to his washerwoman and one to his sweetheart and by strange fatality put the wrong address on each envelope and sent them off. The washerwoman was sent the invitation to take an auto ride the next day, but when the young lady read, "If you crumple my shirt bosom as you did last time I'll go somewhere else," she burst into tears and vowed she would never speak to him again.—Florida Times-Union.

Well Described.

Small Sadie was walking along the street with her mother when a ferocious looking but friendly building approached. With a little scream she clung to her mother, crying, "Oh, mamma, look at the dog with the tingled face!"—Chicago News.

Consolation.

"Waiter, how do I know this isn't horse meat instead of beef?"
"You probably don't, sir; all kinds of people come here to eat."—Chicago Tribune.

Curious.

It is curious how much faster a street car bumps along when you are running after it than when you are riding in it.—New Orleans Picayune

TENNYSON AND SCOTT.

Why the One Did and the Other Didn't Accept the Laureateship.

When Sir Walter Scott was offered the laureateship in 1813 he declined the post because, as he wrote to Lady Abercorn, "the necessity of writing verses twice a year is a difficulty which no one ought to encounter who has any poetical character to lose; at least I am sure I should find it insupportable. The thing might be easily done in a decent sort of way as old Whitehead himself describes it:

"Whose muse collaged by sack or pension, Without a subject or invention, Must certain words in order set As innocent as a Gazette, Must some half meaning half disguise And utter neither truth nor lies."

Tennyson received the letter offering him the laureateship one morning before he was out of bed. On rising he immediately wrote two replies, one accepting, the other declining the offer, and determined to consult with his friends at dinner which to tend. Ever afterward he would jokingly declare that he accepted the honor because Venables assured him that if he became laureate he "would always, when dining out, be offered the liver wing of a fowl."—London Chronicle.

A Haunted Library.

One of the most curious "hauntings" occurs in a northern castle of great antiquity where Mary, queen of Scots, rested when she was being conveyed a prisoner through England. It is manifested in the library and takes the form that the books cannot be kept in order. They move about or are moved about from shelf to shelf. If you arrange the works of Shakespeare in correct order on one shelf, by next morning the volumes are scattered anyhow on different shelves. This has gone on for years. At different times the library has been searched and locked, watches have been set all night, servants have come and gone, but the mysterious occurrence goes on and is vouched for not only by the family, but by the guests who have stayed in the house. There is no legend to account for it.—London Mail.

China Decoration at Limoges.

Decoration of china has been reduced to an art in Limoges. The processes of lithographing and decalcomania have replaced all hand painting, except for rich decorations and special orders. Another process is that of applying soft underglaze colors so as to produce fine effects, and it is probable that very soon the leading styles of the best classes of goods will be decorated in this manner. The large manufacturers make their own decalcomania sheets, work out their designs and control their decorations. They employ girls to apply the decalcomania lithographs on the china. After the paper has been removed therefrom the articles are fired in the "moufles" to set the colors.

She Knew.

"Miss Janet is a long time coming down," he said to the pretty parlor maid. "Perhaps she is—na, ha—perhaps she is making up her mind whether to see me or not."
The maid smiled coldly.
"No," she said; "it is not her mind she is making up."—Philadelphia Ledger.

The Happy Bridegroom.

The happy bridegroom knows the word "obey" is in the marriage service only by hearsay. The happy bridegroom knows something to which he is a party is happening, but he has no definite idea as to what it is.—Philadelphia Ledger.

Her Bribe.

Unattractive Maiden Aunt—Goodby, Jottie. Come soon again. I hope you'll forgive my not kissing you, but I have an awful cold. Jottie (aged six)—Never mind. Do kiss me, auntie. Mother said she'd give me 5 cents if I'd let you—Exchange.

Local and Miscellaneous

—Mr. James U. Dennis, of Baltimore, spent last Thursday in Princess Anne.

—Mr. and Mrs. E. Rigby McDorman of Baltimore, are visitors at the home of Mr. S. Frank Dashiell, on Main street.

—Miss Beulah Powell, of Revell's Neck, who has been spending some time with friends and relatives at Cape Charles and Norfolk, Va., has returned home.

—Mr. and Mrs. Joshua W. Miles left last Tuesday in their motor car for Avalon, N. J., to visit Dr. and Mrs. Albert A. Sargent. Mrs. Sargent is a niece of Mrs. Miles. They expect to return tomorrow, Wednesday.

—The County Commissioners are having some changes made in the courtroom which will add to the convenience of the clerk and members of the bar. A railing will separate the aisle on the east side from the bar, and a railing, with table attachment, will be placed before the petit jury seats. The table arrangement will enable attorneys to have a depository for books and papers whilst addressing the jury. Mr. Columbus Lankford is executing the work and expects to have the improvements completed in time for court, which will begin on Monday next, September 22, it being the fourth Monday of the month.

—Miss Olga Young entertained a number of friends at cards last Tuesday evening, in honor of her guest, Miss Dorothy Allen, of Jersey City, N. J. The following guests were present: Misses Dorothy Jones, Mary Miles Dashiell, Irene and Sara Taylor, Emily Dashiell, Aline Wallop, Marian Stanford, Carlisle Weaver, Hallie Fitzgerald, Messrs. Maurice Adams, Robert Brattan, Richard Dale, Walter Long, Gordon Tull, James Taylor, Douglas Wall, Lawrence and Francis Brittingham, Oliver Beauchamp, Arthur Jones, Stewart Fitzgerald and Miss Shirley Dashiell and Mr. Bryan Dashiell, of Cambridge, Md.

—Mrs. Harold Gibbons has been visiting her sister, Mrs. Robert B. Pusey.

—Thou shalt not covet thy neighbor's feet, with which to do thy kicking.

—Miss Ellen Neale, of Washington D. C., is visiting Mrs. T. J. Smith on Main street.

—Mrs. Samuel K. Dennis, who has been visiting at Coburg, Canada, arrived home Thursday.

—Mrs. J. L. Davis, of Philadelphia, was the guest of her friend, Mrs. Robert B. Pusey, last week.

—Because no one agrees with you, don't jump to the conclusion that everybody else in the world is wrong.

—Mrs. Walter M. Wilson, of Salisbury, was the guest of Mrs. William H. Powell, of Beckford avenue, last week.

—Mr. James B. Sterling left yesterday (Monday) for Chestertown, where he will enter Washington College, as a student.

—The winner in the Buster Brown Shoe contest—as offered by Lankford's Department Store—will be published next week.

—Mrs. John E. Oates and daughter, Mrs. Keerans, of Charlotte, N. C., are visiting Mrs. L. A. Oates, on North Main street.

—Miss Lettie Long, daughter of Mr. S. Upshur Long, left yesterday (Monday) for Westminster, Md., to enter the Western Maryland College.

—Tonight (Tuesday) Rev. F. T. Benson, D.D., will deliver his lecture, "That Girl of Mine," in Salem Methodist Protestant Church, Fairmount.

—Mr. Milton S. Lankford, accompanied by his son and daughter, after a few days' visit to relatives in Princess Anne, returned to their home in Baltimore Saturday.

—Mrs. H. L. Brittingham entertained the Ladies' Card Club last Thursday evening at her home on Main street. This is the first meeting of the club since last spring.

—Master Robert Hayman, son of Mr. Charles H. Hayman, of Princess Anne, left on Monday last week to enter as a student at the Wilmington Conference Academy, Dover, Del.

—W. H. Anderson, superintendent of the Anti-Slavery League, has agreed to meet Lloyd Wilkinson, Democratic candidate for House of Delegates, in the Second district in a joint debate.

—Mr. J. W. Hiron, manager of the Beacon Business College at Salisbury, has been informed by several in this county that a representative of a competitive school has been circulating the statement that two of the teachers employed by the Beacon School at Salisbury are inexperienced, and he asks us to say that this is untrue, since every member of the faculty is an experienced teacher.

—At the meeting of the School Board last Tuesday Mr. E. Gordon Price, of Chance, Md., was appointed to fill the scholarship at Charlotte Hall School vacated by the declination of Mr. Ballard Miles to accept the position. Miss Clara B. Fishpaw, of Baltimore county, was appointed teacher of Manual Training and Domestic Science at the Crisfield High School. Miss Fishpaw has been teaching in Virginia and other sections and comes highly recommended.

—The State Convention will meet today (Tuesday) at noon in the auditorium Theatre, Baltimore. In addition to ratifying the nomination of Blair Lee for the United States Senate, Emerson C. Harrington for Comptroller, and C. C. Magruder for Clerk of the Court of Appeals, the convention will adopt the party platform and elect the next State chairman. Somerset county will be represented by Messrs. Lewis M. Milbourne, Charles Wesley Fontaine, John Ross Corbin and L. Wesley Beauchamp.

—Carroll Patterson Ford, the fourteen-year old son of Mr. Harry P. Ford, who spent his early life in Dames Quarter, this county, and who is now living with his family in Norwood, Pa., near Philadelphia, had the misfortune to shoot himself in the right foot on Wednesday of last week, the ball passing entirely through it. He was immediately taken to the near-by Ridley Park Hospital, where an operation was performed and portions of the stocking, which had become embedded in the wound, removed. Fortunately no bones were broken, and unless unforeseen complications arise, the injury is not likely to prove a serious one.

—At the session of the County Commissioners last Tuesday, the two ferries between Somerset and Wicomico counties were sold as follows: Reading to Isaac Dove for $200; White Haven to Harry Kenney for $375. One-half of these amounts are to be paid by each county. Bids were opened for the two miles of road to be constructed on the road leading from Princess Anne to Deal's Island, as follows: Haassan Paving Company, of Mass., Chesapeake Construction Company, of Preston, Md., Juniata Company, of Philadelphia. The bids were tabulated and forwarded to the State Roads Commission. For the construction of this stretch of road, the State pays 80 per cent., citizens 10 per cent., and the county the remainder.

—Virtue is its own reward. At any rate vice seems to have a greater commercial value.

—The man who profits by his experience is the fellow who sells it for more than he pays for it.

—Miss Aurelia Miles, of Marion, is a visitor at the home of her brother, Hon. Joshua W. Miles, on Main street.

—Miss Jennie M. Davis, of Baltimore, is visiting Mrs. Oliver T. Beauchamp, on Prince William street.

—Mr. and Mrs. Philip Dennis, of Pocomoke City, spent last Sunday at the home of the former's mother, Mrs. S. K. Dennis, on Main street.

—Mrs. Charles H. Rider, of Washington, D. C., spent last Saturday and Sunday with her brother, Judge H. L. D. Stanford, on Prince William street.

—Mr. and Mrs. H. G. Rineer and their daughter, Linda, of Baltimore county, spent last week at the home of Rev. and Mrs. J. Howard Gray, on Main street.

—Mr. J. Francis Brittingham, who has been spending the vacation with his mother, Mrs. H. L. Brittingham, returned to his work at the University of Missouri yesterday (Monday).

—Mrs. O. J. Rodgers and Mrs. G. F. Newton, committee, will serve oysters in many styles in the school hall, Westover, on Thursday from 5 to 9 p. m. Cake and ice cream also for sale. If stormy, come next evening.

—The residence of Mrs. Frank T. Smith, on Main street, came near destruction by fire last Sunday morning shortly after noon. The weather necessitated a fire in the library. The chimney proved to be foul and caught fire. Sparks descending upon the roof caused a blaze in several places. Prompt help on the part of neighbors subdued the flames.

—The Circuit Court for Somerset County convenes next Monday, September 22d. A number of jurors have been excused as follows: Wm. M. Austin, James W. Kirwan, Isaac C. Sterling, Sidney T. Cox, Irving J. Wallace, Frederick Thornton, and the following were substituted: Calvin H. Matthews, Robert L. Wharton, Jr., William A. Barnes, E. Manson Shumley, David W. White, William B. Mackay.

—We have received from Harrison's Nurseries, Berlin, a copy of their new catalogue, which contains much valuable information on fruit growers. On page 5 the catalogue contains the story of "Why Harrison's is Successful," and on page 6 the topics treated are "Hints from Bearing Orchards," and "Harrison's Special Service." The catalogue should be in the hands of every fruit grower.

—Mrs. Lillian Campeau was hostess at an enjoyable dinner party at her home, "The Maples," near Westover, Sunday evening, the 14th, in honor of her guest, Miss Myra Thomas. Twenty guests were seated at the sumptuous board where an elaborate repast was served, and all present had a very enjoyable evening. The decorations were elaborate, the color scheme being pink. The floral decorations were of pink roses, while pink shades subdued the illuminations and the ladies in attendance wore gowns of the same color.

—Miss Anna Elizabeth Lewis, the 17-year old daughter of Rev. Robert K. Lewis, pastor of the Methodist Protestant Church at Belair, Md., is a patient at the Woman's Hospital, on John street, Baltimore, suffering from a mild case of appendicitis, and was operated on last week. Dr. Nathan Hundley, who performed the operation, stated that no serious results were expected. Miss Lewis has many friends in Belair and on the Eastern Shore, where her father was stationed for five years prior to his being sent to Belair at the last session of the Maryland Conference, which was held in Lynchburg, Va., one of his last being at Marion in this county.

—The September term of the Circuit Court for Wicomico county convened Monday of last week with Judges Jones and Stanford on the bench and a full complement of court officers. Judge Stanford delivered a vigorous charge to the Grand Jury, cautioning that body to thoroughly investigate crimes of every nature brought before it, and particularly the mysterious death of Miss Wainwright. The calling of the docket showed 73 trials, 22 appearances, 22 appeals and 33 recognizances. Among the trials are three removed from Worcester and one from Dorchester. These cases are not very important and will not occupy a great deal of time in their trial. The session will probably not last more than this week.

HOTEL BURNED AT BERLIN

Theo. M. Palmentory is Killed in Early Morning Blaze

In a fire, which destroyed the Park Hotel, Berlin, Worcester county, early Sunday morning, Theodore M. Palmentory, 72 years old, was burned to death, and several persons escaped after climbing in their night clothes from the windows.

For nearly an hour, despite efforts of the Berlin Volunteer Fire Department, a large section of the town was threatened because of a high wind. The hotel loss will amount to about $15,000.

The blaze was discovered at 3 o'clock Sunday morning by Miss Mary Anderson, who lives in the Atlantic Hotel. Responding to the alarm, men aroused the guests. It was soon seen that it was useless to try to save the building.

Palmentory was asleep in a room on the third floor, and before assistance could reach him the flames had enveloped his apartment. Heroic efforts were made by the rescuers to save him, but all avenues of escape had been cut off. His charred body was found in the debris.

Palmentory came from Smyrna, Del., about thirty years ago, and for some time was Berlin agent of the Baltimore, Chesapeake & Atlantic Railway Company. He formerly was cashier for the L. L. Dirickson Banking Company. He took an active part in Republican politics. He retired from business several years ago.

Funeral of George T. McClemmy

The funeral of Mr. George T. McClemmy, whose death was chronicled in our last issue, took place from his late home, near Princess Anne, on Sunday afternoon of last week, Rev. Wm. G. Woolford conducting the services. The active pall bearers were the deceased's four sons, Messrs. Irving G., George M., Robert B. and Thomas McClemmy, and George W. Brown and W. O. Lankford. The honorary pall bearers were: Messrs. Joshua W. Miles, Henry J. Waters, William H. Dashiell, Omar A. Jones, Dr. C. W. Wainwright and S. Frank Dashiell. Interment was in the Presbyterian cemetery.

PAINT AND NOT

Paint was never before so high as last year about $2.25 a gallon, and it is still high for less or trash.

What is trash?

It looks like paint and costs like it, but it is not paint. It is a paint that is not worth the price of a gallon. Add that to the price of a gallon, that is the cost of a gallon. It is a paint that is not worth the price of a gallon. It is a paint that is not worth the price of a gallon.

But there is all paint and more to you and oil to it, a gallon is 500 gallons of perfect paint for the painter's pot. But trash is three-quarters two-thirds or half paint; you pay a half-dollar less for nobody-knows-what-it-is.

10 gallons Devco is enough for the average job; it takes 15 to 20 gallons of trash. And the wear same way. Unfortunately, they look alike when first put on.

FAST SWIMMING.

Strokes to Use and Methods to Follow to Acquire Speed.

The general rule may be set down that no swimmer should attempt speed—until he can cover a quarter of a mile with a good stroke. It matters not whether one aims at becoming an all-around competitor or a specialist at the sprint, the same rule obtains. Once the stroke has been perfected, the chosen events may be taken up, but even then it is the best policy to alternate fast swimming with easy stretches, at moderate pace, under the watchful eye of the coach. It is always advisable to limit the number of time trials.

There are but two strokes which can be recommended to the racing man for free style swimming, the crawl for distances, not exceeding 220 yards, and both the crawl and the trudgen for longer journeys. Some question is still in the mind of many as to which is preferable for the latter events, but in the writer's opinion—based upon the teachings of the past—any set of movements which affords best results at the longer courses after the swimmer has accustomed his muscles to the action by constant practice.—Outing Magazine.

SLAUGHTER IN BATTLE.

Gettysburg Loses Elapsed Those at Balaklava and Inkerman.

At Balaklava the light brigade lost 87 per cent of its men, and at Inkerman the guards lost 45 per cent, and both go down to history in verse and prose as having been annihilated.

At Gettysburg the Second Wisconsin lost 233 out of 302, the Nineteenth Indiana lost 210 out of 288 and the One Hundred and Fiftieth Pennsylvania volunteers out of 380 men and 17 officers brought back about eighty men and only one officer not wounded. The One Hundred and Twenty-first, the One Hundred and Forty-second, the One Hundred and Forty-third, the One Hundred and Forty-ninth and the One Hundred and Fifty-first Pennsylvania lost quite as heavily.

Among the first corps officers wounded in the first day's fight were Generals Doubleday, Meredith and Paul and Colonels Morrow, Stone, Wister, Fairchild, Dudley, McBride, Tilden, Leonard, Coulter and McFarland. The disaster of the afternoon to the Second division was lessened by its capture of much of Iverson's brigade, of Ewell's corps, out at the Mummasburg road, near Oak Hill.—General H. S. Huidekoper in National Magazine.

Puzzled Jurymen.

At a recent session a prisoner was indicted for pocket-picking, and to most people in court the clearest possible case was made out by the prosecution. "Have you anything you would like to tell the jury before they retire?" said the judge.

"Well, all I want to say is, I hope as 'ow they'll give me the benefit of the doubt," replied the prisoner despondently.

The jury considered their verdict. They were no little time over it.

"Can I assist you in any way, gentlemen?" said the judge, as last becoming impatient.

"We are almost agreed, me lud," said the foreman, "but we can't quite understand what the doubt is the prisoner wishes us to give him the benefit of."—London Answer.

Curious Marriage Custom.

Among the Islanders of Jersey there is a very curious but pretty marriage custom. As soon as the ceremony is over and when the happy couple are entering into occupation of their house the large granite slab over the porch is inscribed with the initials of the bride and bridegroom, and between the two a rough representation of two hearts is entwined, the whole thus forming a marriage certificate for all the world to see. It is said that should the couple by any chance be one day divorced the hearts are pierced through by an arrow, which is cut into them.

Witty Retort.

A lady of great beauty and attractiveness who was an ardent admirer of Ireland once crowned her praise of it at a party by saying:

"I think I was meant for an Irish woman."

"Madam," rejoined a witty son of Erin who happened to be present, "thousands would back me in saying that you were meant for an Irishman."

A FACT ABOUT THE "BLUES"

What is known as the "Blues" is seldom occasioned by actual existing external conditions, but in the great majority of cases by a disordered LIVER.

THIS IS A FACT which may be demonstrated by trying a course of

They control and regulate the LIVER. They bring hope and buoyancy to the mind. They bring health and elasticity to the body.

IMITATION PEARLS.

They Are Made With Essence d'Orient, a Fish Scale Product.

As the real pearl comes from the oyster, so to a large extent is the manufacture of artificial pearls dependent on a certain species of fish. The complete processes of manufacture are, of course, trade secrets, but it is interesting to know that it is from the brilliant scales of the ablet, or blay, that essence d'orient is produced, as with this essence imitation pearls are made. The blay is a small fish with a green back and a white belly, and the essence is obtained exclusively from its white scales, which are covered with a pigment of metallic appearance. They are first treated with ammonia and then with fish glue, a powder being first obtained and then a paste which can be easily spread on glass.

In the early stages of pearl manufacture, about 1850, this essence d'orient was applied to little balls of plaster, but the temperature and the damp heat of the human body modified the adhesive qualities of the pearly matter and caused changes of color. In 1880 a Parisian named Jacquin invented a method of covering small glass balls with this essence, thereby producing the first practical artificial pearl.

In the north and east of France and in Germany blay fishing is actively pursued. About 4,000 are required to produce a pound of scales, which in turn gives a quarter of a pound of essence.—New York Press.

ECHOES FROM WESTOVER

Westover Happenings Always Interest Our Readers

After reading of so many people in our town who have been cured by Doan's Kidney Pills, the question naturally arises: "Is this medicine equally successful in our neighboring towns?" The generous statement of this Westover resident leaves no room for doubt on this point.

Irving O. Dryden, R. F. D. mail carrier, Westover, Md., says: "My kidneys acted irregularly and my back was weak and painful. I could not stoop for any length of time and was unable to remain in one position long without having dull pains across my back. As soon as I began taking Doan's Kidney Pills I found relief and I continued until I was cured. I have so much confidence in this remedy that I advise all kidney sufferers to give it a trial."

Asbestos Has Many Uses.

Asbestos is the most important fireproofing material known. Its fibrous structure adapts it to a wide range of applications—from woven fabrics, such as theater curtains and articles of clothing to asbestos shingles, stucco, plaster, asbestos "wood" and various other forms of building material that render structures thoroughly fireproof. Its lightness, strength, durability and insulating properties against heat and electricity give it special advantages for use in constructing cars and electric motor subways. The most common uses of asbestos are for asbestos paper, millboard, pipe covering and lagging to inclose heat pipes, furnaces and locomotives in order to prevent loss of heat in transmission. As a nonconductor of heat it may be used not only in the preparation of fireproof safes and vaults, but also for cold storage and cooling structures. Houses made of asbestos materials or coated with asbestos throughout are not only warmer in winter, but cooler in summer.

Mother of Eighteen Children

"I am the mother of eighteen children and have the praise of doing more work than any young woman in my town," writes Mrs. C. J. Martin, Boone Mill, Va. "I suffered for five years with stomach trouble and could not eat as much as a biscuit without suffering. I have taken three bottles of Chamberlain's Tablets and am now a well woman and weigh 168 pounds. I can eat anything I want to, and as much as I want and feel better than I have at any time in ten years. I refer to any one in Boone Mill or vicinity and they will vouch for what I say." Chamberlain's Tablets are for sale by all dealers.

Children Cry FOR FLETCHER'S CASTORIA

NO SENSE IN EITHER.

Two Ways of Telling a Story, One of Which Pointed a Moral.

Two men entered a train at a small station out west and took seats facing an elderly gentleman. They fell to telling hunting stories with great animation and many, many oaths.

Noticing that the old gentleman was an interested listener, one of the men spoke to him and asked whether he, too, was not a hunter, with a story or two worth hearing.

The told gentleman thought he could tell one, and this is what he said: "One day I thought I would go hunting, so I took my tin pan tinner box gun and went up into tin pan tinner box woods on the side of a tin pan tinner box mountain, and I waited a tin pan tinner box long time; and then I saw a tin pan tinner box fine buck coming toward me, so I put my tin pan tinner box gun to my shoulder and fired. And that tin pan tinner box buck fell right in its tin pan tinner box tracks, and it was the finest tin pan tinner box buck I ever killed." After a pause he said, "How do you like my story?"

"Oh, the story is all right, but I don't see what all that 'tin pan tinner box' has to do with it."

"Well," replied the old gentleman, "that is just my way of swearing."

"I don't see much sense in swearing that way," said the other, with manifest disgust.

To which the old gentleman responded, "There is as much sense in my way of swearing as there is in yours, young man."—Youth's Companion.

A SKELETON IN THE CLOSET.

Tragic Story of the Origin of the Familiar Expression.

"A skeleton in the cupboard" is a familiar expression which has a tragic origin. The story is that a certain widow in England had a son in India, but owing to his falling health his mother became very anxious for his return. One day she received a letter from him containing the strange request that she should find some one who had no care or trouble and ask her to make six shirts for him.

Anxious to accede to his wishes, the mother hunted long and finally found a lady who apparently fulfilled the condition. The lady listened in silence to the request and then invited the widow into her bedroom, and there she opened a cupboard, which contained a human skeleton.

"Madam," she said, "I endeavor to keep my trouble to myself, but every night my husband compels me to kiss that skeleton, which was once his rival, whom he killed in a duel many years ago. Think you that I am happy?"

Then the mother wrote to her son of the fruitless errand, and his reply was: "I knew when I gave you the commission that every one had his cares, and you, mother, must have yours. Know, then, that I am condemned to death and can never return to England. Mother, mother, there is a skeleton in every house!"

Ysaie's Lost "Strad."

Of fiddles lost, stolen or strayed the most notable instance within recent times is the disappearance of the violin belonging to the great player Ysaie. It was a Stradivarius, made in 1732, and one of the violins shown in the loan collection of musical instruments at South Kensington in 1885. It was the practice of Ysaie, as of every other great player, to carry with him two violins, so that in case of accident he might have one to fall back upon. The stolen one was left unattended in the artist's room below the orchestra. It vanished, and in consequence of the hue and cry that resulted the instrument has never come to light again. Nor can the possessor of such a violin bring it to light while the present generation of experts is alive, for infallibly it would be recognized.—St. James' Gazette.

The Aged Hare.

About 500 years ago there lived in Aggehlin, a little town in Asia Minor, an innman, or village parson, the Khoja Naar-ed-Din Keffend. Harry Charles Lukash says that one day a camel passed along the street in which the Khoja lived, and one of the Khoja's neighbors who had never seen a camel before ran to ask him what this strange beast might be.

"Don't you know what this is?" said the Khoja, who had had never seen a camel, but would not betray his ignorance.

"That is a hare a thousand years old."—Pall Mall Gazette.

Bitter Disappointment.

"What's wrong with that melancholy man you were talking to just now?" "He has been disappointed in love."

"Too bad! Did some other fellow get the girl?"

"No; he got the girl, but she won't support him."—Birmingham Age-Herald.

Neatness.

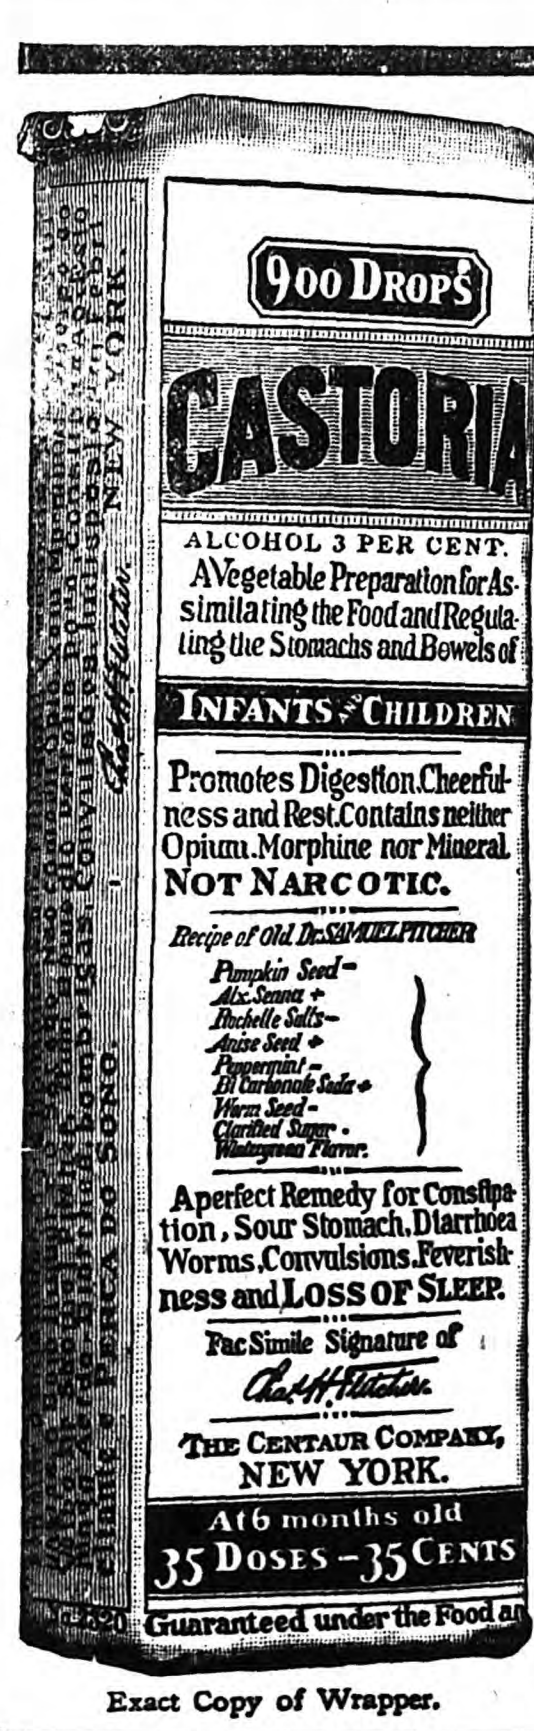

"I came very near doing what I set out to accomplish," said the man, with great self confidence.

"Yes," replied the cruel cynic. "But that's what the man said when he put the paste brush in the ink bottle."

Appropriate.

"What do you think would be a nice present to give a lawyer friend?" "Why not a new suit?"—Baltimore American.

The important thing in life is to have a great aim and to possess the aptitude and perseverance to attain it.—Goethe.

DEPLETING OF BAY FISH

The Decrease of Food Fish in the Chesapeake is Caused by Fertilizer Fishermen

Unless the authorities of Maryland and of Virginia co-operate with the federal government, can provide effective means for the adequate protection of the fish in Chesapeake Bay and its tributaries, including the Potomac river, by the rigid enforcement of existing laws and regulations governing the placing of fish nets and traps in those waters and, indeed, by even additional legislation, the fishers' industry of these waters are doomed. This is the opinion of the engineers in charge of public works in the waters of the Chesapeake Bay who, at the instance of Secretary of Commerce Redfield, made special investigations of reported violations of the laws and regulations governing the placing of fish nets in these waters. In their reports these officers agree that "the decrease in the number of fish in Chesapeake Bay is due to the excessive seining and destruction of fish by the fertilizer factories." According to the reports, "the only remedy is the enactment of a law by the legislature which will prevent the taking of fish from the waters of Chesapeake Bay and tributaries for other purposes than food, and prohibiting their use as fertilizer." The report says:

"The most probable cause of the diminishing annual catch of fish in the upper waters would appear to be the excessive amount caught in the lower part of Chesapeake Bay. The shores of the bay itself and most of its tributaries are almost completely lined with fish stakes, which extend far out from the shore, and besides these, there are boats fishing with seine, so that it is almost wonderful that any fish at all escape to reach the tributaries.

"It is believed that the cause for the diminished run of fish at this season is due to the excessive number of nets being placed at the mouth of the streams and in the streams, allowing only space enough for the steamboats and other traffic to pass.

"Another cause for the scarcity of the run of fish is that there are 12 or 13 fisheries in the tributaries of Chesapeake Bay on the west side, between the mouth of the Potomac river and Fort Monroe. These fisheries are supposed to confine their catch to menhaden, which are converted into fish oil and scrap, but it has been the observation of this office that they do not discriminate between menhaden fish and food fish. In the spring large quantities of herring are converted into oil and scrap, and during the season any school of fish that is sighted by the boats is caught up by nets, regardless of species. From records of this office one of these fisheries catches annually about 25,000 tons of fish, and has in operation seven steamers engaged in fishing. A day's catch of one of these steamers of 100 to 200 tons of fish is not unusual. If these figures of 25,000 tons of fish and seven boats should be multiplied by the number of fishing establishments in the district, 13, it would probably give the total catch of fish for a season, so it can be readily understood why the run of fish this season was small. It is expected, if these conditions continue, that the run each season will be reduced accordingly.

"The remedy for present conditions appears to be with the States of Maryland and Virginia. If the legislatures of these states should enact laws prohibiting fisheries and fertilizer factories in the states, and requiring the men that use trap nets to pay a license for that privilege, the revenue from these licenses would enable the states to patrol the waters and control the industry as they do now with oystering and oyster grounds."

Two Boats In Winter

To meet a demand for better service between Baltimore and the Eastern Shore, the Baltimore, Chesapeake & Atlantic Railway Company has practically determined to double its winter steamboat service between that city and Claiborne.

Heretofore it has been the practice of the company in winter to run only one boat each way between these points. While two trips each way have been made in summer and another boat, without regular schedule, run for the transportation of freight, toward the close of September it has been customary to cut the service down to a single boat for passenger and freight service, and this limited service has been continued until after the first of the succeeding June.

It is proposed to have boats leave Baltimore for Claiborne at 6.15 a. m. and 4.10 p. m. At Claiborne connection will be made with trains for stations down the peninsula to Ocean City.

There will be a corresponding schedule in the opposite direction with trains from Ocean City connecting with boats sailing from Claiborne to Baltimore in the morning and evening.

It is planned to use in this service the steamers Cambridge and Tred Avon. Each will carry passengers and freight, and while there will be a great increase in the convenience to passengers there will also be a great improvement in freight shipping facilities.

Under the old arrangement, it is said, a great deal of Eastern Shore business which should come to Baltimore has been diverted to Northern cities because of the superior transportation facilities provided by the Pennsylvania Railroad.

Caught a Bad Cold

"Last winter my son caught a very bad cold and the way he coughed was something dreadful," writes Mrs. Sarah E. Duncan, of Tipton, Iowa. "We thought sure he was going into consumption. We bought just one bottle of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy and that one bottle stopped his cough and cured his cold completely." For sale by all dealers.

DR. M. BATES STEPHENS'

Report To The State Board of Education

The following report of Dr. M. Bates Stephens, State Superintendent of Education, was made to the State Board of Education at a meeting held August 27th, 1913. It was adopted in its entirety by the Board:

We are facing the beginning of a new school year. Whatever our achievements or mistakes have been in the past, we need to realize there is very much constructive work along school lines which the State Board of Education can at least suggest, and possibly, through the co-operation of the county school authorities, accomplish.

We should begin the year with a definite plan of administration, with well defined ideas of what we should do and then work systematically to attain such ends. With the permission of the members of the Board, I offer the following suggestions as a basis for discussion, and out of such discussion I feel sure there will come a crystallized judgment which will be more valuable than any individual opinion. It may be that some of these recommendations have been made before, but I feel safe in saying that they have not been reduced to educational practice.

First, the real status of each county's school system is not known to this body. Aside from statistics compiled in our annual report, we have no means of determining the efficiency of schools in any particular county and statistics, valuable as they are for instituting several comparisons, will not furnish a safe standard for measuring actual school room results. In view of this lack of definite information, I suggest that this Board make an educational survey of at least two counties each year, such survey to require from 10 to 20 days during which all types of school shall be visited and closely examined. For such an examination there should be three persons—one to be appointed by the United States Commission of Education to represent his department, one by the State Board of Education to represent the State Department of Education, and the third to be named by the County School Board, and a resident of the county to represent the County School Board. The State Board of Education should select the county to be surveyed and after a conference with the United States Commission of Education the line of investigation should be determined.

Second, an awakening on the public school question is an urgent need. If people were as indifferent to their other business interests which are less important and sacred than the education of their children, it would be regarded as little less than criminal. They are indifferent for the reason they have not been caused to feel or realize such sacredness. They are not agreeable to many of our good educational practices because they are not informed as to their real merit. We must inaugurate some plan which will scatter broadcast this knowledge. If under the direction of this Board one meeting can be held in each county for instruction, entertainment and organization, it may result in many smaller unit meetings out of which will grow healthy school patrons or civic leagues whose object will be to bring the home and school into closer and more sympathetic relations.

Third, since 1910 the high schools of the State have increased in number and also in efficiency. It is possible for adequate and effective supervision of these schools to be given by the State Superintendent and his assistants. In behalf of the other schools no State supervision is provided or required. The rural school is not developing as it should and this condition is in part chargeable to an absence of State co-operation along the line of supervision. It would be a long step toward placing the rural schools on a higher plane of usefulness if this Board can use its influence in having provided a rural school supervisor for the State.

Fourth, the following school legislation is needed, viz.:

(a) A State-wide mandatory school attendance law.

(b) A minimum school term of seven months for the colored schools;

(c) Appropriations made for approved high schools and normal schools, and also for retired teachers should be paid out of the general treasury and should not be charged to the sixteen cents public school tax. The growing demand on the elementary schools makes it necessary to have at least sixteen cents of the State tax;

(d) The appropriations made for the three State Normal Schools is inadequate and should be increased. The Maryland State Normal School will likely move into its new home in about a year, and the approaching Legislature should provide for the additional cost of maintenance. The expenses of maintaining the Frostburg Normal and the Normal and Industrial School are larger than the annual appropriations;

(e) The institute law should be so modified that it will be legal for a county school board to provide tuition for a percentage of teachers to attend a summer school in lieu of holding an institute;

(f) The position of assistant teacher should be made more secure;

(g) In the absence of a State architect, plans for public school buildings should be approved by the State Board of Education;

(h) Until the State provides adequately for the training of teachers so that the number of Normal graduates will equal the annual loss to the profession, each county with an approved first group high school should have the authority to provide a teachers' training course under regulations to be prescribed by the Board. With such a law a time limit should be fixed after which it will be illegal for a person to enter upon the duties of teaching without training for the work.

Fifth, I recommend that an inspection be made of the following schools, which desire to be placed on the list of second group high schools, viz: Aberdeen, Girdletree, Queen Anne and Upper Marlboro.

Sixth, that this Board request the Executive Committee of the Maryland State Teachers' Association to make provision on its next program for such a lecture and demonstration work as may be provided by the Moral Education Board through its representative, Mr. Fairchild.

I submit for your consideration a list of high schools for your approval. While these schools, at least some of them, are not all we could wish, I feel they are making substantial progress and are worthy of recognition which the State gives.

VANDIVER IS CHAIRMAN

Democratic State Convention is Dominated by County Forces

The fight against the re-election of Gen. Murray Vandiver as chairman of the Democratic State Central Committee fizzled out in the State Convention, last Tuesday. Senator Blair Lee, the delegate from Harford (General Vandiver's home county), scattering delegates from Montgomery, Caroline, Garrett, Charles, Talbot, Somerset, one delegate from Wicomico and from other counties, refrained from rising when former Senator Gorman asked for a standing vote on the election of General Vandiver.

The activities of the Democratic committee, which is also called the party organization, of which activities Senator Lee complained two years ago when he was defeated for nomination for governor, were hedged in by the following resolution, which was adopted with a round of applause:

We declare that the sole purpose for which party organization exists is to win the party's battles at the general election; and we, therefore, pledge the choice of this convention for state chairman to place all the party's machinery, poll books and paraphernalia at the disposal, on equal terms, of all the Democratic credentials in the primaries, without prejudice or partiality, and to refrain from designating or proclaiming any candidate or set of candidates in the primaries as representing or being supported by the party organization. It is the sense of this convention that there are no organization candidates of the party until the Democratic voters themselves have selected the nominees at the primaries.

Almost simultaneously with the adoption of this resolution the convention adopted another, which was offered by George M. Upshur, of Worcester county, Senator Smith's friend, that the state committee be authorized to fill any vacancies which may arise after the adjournment of the convention.

General Vandiver declared that he has no intention to resign, but if he should resign, the way is paved for his successor.

Robert E. Lee paid an eloquent tribute to General Vandiver in nominating him for state chairman. He said:

We have had our party quarrels. It makes no difference now on which side we were on in the primaries. We are now united. We again look to the man for chairman of our State Central Committee whom we all know, all love and all respect. His personality was injected into the primaries. We all know the results. We know him as a man who leads a blameless life. We know that he is good, true and a loyal Democrat. Acting under his instructions I have visited and spoken in each congressional district of this State. His orders to me were to work in each district to elect Democratic candidates. He has measured up to every requirement. Under his generalship Smith, Warfield and Crothers were elected Governors. Gorman, Smith and Rayner elected United States Senators, and Baltimore was given the best administration it ever had, partly through his aid.

Great applause greeted the mention of General Vandiver's name as the climax.

The convention was called to meet at noon, but it was nearly 2 o'clock when it got down to business. Every delegate was in his seat. All other seats were occupied by Democrats interested in the proceedings of the convention. In the boxes sat women who are interested in the proposition to have an amendment to the constitution submitted to the people granting them the right to vote.

The most prominent leaders of the party were on the main floor of the theatre as delegates or spectators.

Among them were: United States Senator John Walter Smith, former Senator Blair Lee, Mayor James H. Preston, Congressman Covington and Linthicum, former Senator Gorman, former Congressman Thomas A. Smith, of Caroline; Emerson C. Harrington, of Dorchester; George M. Upshur, of Baltimore and Worcester county; Senator Dodson, of Talbot; former Senator W. P. L. Turpin, of Queen Anne, who reappeared after a retirement to private life for several years; Senator Beck, of Kent; Senator Carville D. Benson, of Baltimore county; John J. Mahon, Frank Kelly, Daniel J. Loden and other city leaders; J. Enos Ray, of Prince George's; Senator E. W. Hammond, of Howard; John B. Gray, of Calvert; J. Frank Smith, of St. Mary's; W. Mitchell Digges, of Charles; Augustine Mason, of Washington county; G. Semmes Hamill, Jr., of Garrett; Col. E. Austin Baughman, of Frederick; E. O. Weant, Dr. Frank T. Shaw and Guy W. Steele, of Carroll; Dr. George Wells, Senator Bellis, Frank S. Revell, of Anne Arundel; Col. Jacob W. Hook, Baltimore; Congressman J. Fred C. Talbot; Thomas S. Hopkins, Harford.

Gov. Goldsborough Assailed

Everything was not as pleasant at the Republican Convention in Baltimore on Thursday as it might have been. The Governor, himself, did not escape criticism, as is shown by the following clipping taken from the Baltimore News:

"One good Republican was disposed today to 'touch up' Governor Goldsborough on the nominations made in Dorchester county. For one important office, he said, the Governor had brought about the nomination of a 'horse-trader and note-shaver,' as against an unusually popular and proper nomination on the Democratic ticket, and the personal of the Governor's ticket was, he said, generally inferior to the nominations on the Democratic ticket. Another critic replied that the Governor had two brands of politics, the 'prayerful' kind for Baltimore city and the 'practical' kind for the counties of Maryland."

Reunion of Shore Veterans

Veterans of the civil war who once made the regiments of the Eastern Shore redoubtable, wearers of the blue and wearers of the gray, will shake the hearty handshake of goodfellowship and reminiscence of the great struggle in which they participated at the first general reunion of this kind, which will be held in Easton on September 25.

The original organization, from which this reunion movement received its birth was an association formed by the survivors of the First Eastern Shore Regiment.

For the purposes of this gathering, however, the association has invited not only the other veterans of the Union army, but the Confederate veterans as well, and arrangements have been made for at least one hundred visitors.

Chairman Vandiver, of the State Committee said:

"Fellow Democrats, I want to make a special plea this time for harmony in our party. I'm not going to make any speech. This isn't the time to make speeches. All I ask you is that you don't do anything here in this convention hall today that is going to split us. Let's keep together."

General Vandiver selected President Jesse D. Price, of the Senate, as the temporary chairman of the convention.

The nominations of the following candidates, to whom there was no opposition in the primaries, were formally and unanimously ratified by the convention:

For United States Senator—Blair Lee, of Montgomery county.

For State Comptroller—Emerson C. Harrington, of Dorchester county.

For Clerk of Court of Appeals—C. C. Magruder, of Prince George's county.

Mr. L. Wesley Beauchamp was one of the committee on resolutions, and Mr. C. Wesley Fontaine was on the committee on credentials.

The woman who stoops to conquer may have some difficulty in straightening herself out again.

DEMOCRATIC PLATFORM

Strong and Progressive—Sound and Sane—Endorses Wilson

We, the delegates and representatives of the Democratic party of Maryland, in State Convention assembled, reaffirm our allegiance to the principles of the Democratic party handed down through successive generations of Democratic statesmen, from Thomas Jefferson to Woodrow Wilson and William Jennings Bryan.

With the principles and policies set forth in the platform of the Baltimore Convention of the national Democracy we declare ourselves in full accord, and we pledge to them our zealous support.

We heartily congratulate the people and the Democracy the Union upon the splendid triumph of those principles and policies in the relation of the candidates of the Democratic party for President and Vice-President of the United States, of a large majority in the House of Representatives and of a sufficient number of Democratic senators to establish Democratic control over the federal Senate.

We commend the able and patriotic administration of President Wilson, supported by a Democratic Congress, and we rejoice in the faithful execution by them of the pledges of the Democracy to the people. We hail the overthrow of the high protectionism of the McKinley Tariff Law as the downfall of privilege, the dissolution of the government's partnership with monopoly and the release and rescue of the people from extortion and robbery under the form of law.

The passage through the House of Representatives and Senate of the Democratic Tariff Bill, revising tariff taxation in conformity with the fundamental principle of tariff for revenue only and in the interest of the people, constitutes a great spectacle of constructive statesmanship under Democratic control of the national government, and there may be entire confidence that the great program of the President to redeem the Democratic party pledges through legislation for the destruction of special privilege and for the restoration of the government to the people is certain of attainment and will constitute a record of successful party leadership for the welfare of our country rare in its history.

We call attention, with extreme pride, to the fact that the business of the country is continuing with normal activity during the period of tariff revision, thus justifying the faith of the people in the soundness of the Democratic tariff policy and fulfilling the pledge of the party in the national platform of 1912 that it would not injure or destroy any legitimate industry.

We endorse and commend the senior senator and the members of the House of Representatives from Maryland for their unwavering support of, and helpful co-operation in, the passage of the Tariff Bill, including the great Democratic income plan of taxation, and also for their faithful support of all measures before the Congress in fulfillment of the pledges of the Democratic party, by which purer and better government is to be had, and the rights of the people best conserved and protected.

We pledge the Democrats of Maryland to uphold the hands of President Wilson by electing Hon. Blair Lee to the United States Senate at the coming election. With a united party we shall strive, by every honorable means, to secure his triumphant election, so that Maryland may be represented by two Democrats in the Senate of the United States and the dangerously slender majority of Democrats there may be increased, so that beyond peradventure the further pledges to the people in our national platform may be expeditiously redeemed.

We pledge the Democratic party to a continuance of those progressive policies which it has in the past inaugurated in the state, and we declare our determination to have Maryland keep step with the truly progressive states of the Union in all legislative and administrative programs for the promotion of the highest interest of the people.

In every department and branch of the state government under Democratic control the rights and welfare of all the people and the interests of the taxpayers have been carefully guarded. Upon the record thus exhibited, and upon the pledge of a continuance to the people of those benefits, we present for re-election Hon. Emerson C. Harrington as Comptroller of the State Treasury, and Hon. Caleb C. Magruder as Clerk of the Court of Appeals, who have been consistently faithful and highly efficient in the conduct of their respective offices.

The great progressive measures which the Democratic party placed upon the statute books of Maryland, including particularly the public service commission law, the corrupt practices act, the system of nominations for public office by the direct vote of the people and the full train crew law, we promise to maintain and to improve as experience and the opinion and welfare of the people may require.

We advocate the improvement of the health laws of the state in all such respects as experience has shown to be desirable for the fullest protection of the health of the people.

The welfare and permanence of the institutions of a free people depends upon the intelligence of the masses, and the education of the children of the people is therefore a supreme duty of the state. We pledge ourselves to the ample support of and to all possible improvement in the public school system of Maryland.

We would foster the interests of agriculture by introducing into our public schools in the counties modern and advanced training in agriculture and farming, by improving and enlarging the present plan of farmer's institutes and

IMPROVE STATE SCHOOLS

Supt. Stephens Has High Hopes For His Campaign

Dr. M. Bates Stephens, Superintendent of Public Instruction, was in Washington last Thursday where he conferred with officials of the United States Department of Education concerning plans to increase the efficiency of Maryland's public schools. Dr. Stephens expressed great satisfaction over the results of the conference and said he felt sure much would be accomplished by the plans he has in view. The conference at Washington also included consideration of an educational campaign.

Dr. Stephens has prepared an outline of a report which he will submit to the State Board of Education at a meeting to be held in Baltimore on Wednesday.

The conference between Superintendent Stephens and the Federal educational officials was primarily on the proposed survey of public schools in Maryland. At a meeting of the State board held in Annapolis a few weeks ago preliminary plans for such a survey were adopted. The idea is to have the schools and their surroundings generally investigated by a commission of three, representing the Federal Government, the State and each county concerned. It is planned to make such surveys in at least two counties every year until all are investigated. Recommendations for improving conditions will be made as the inquiry progresses.

COURT NOW IN SESSION

The Grand and Petit Jurors to Serve During the Term

The September or Fall term of the Circuit Court for Somerset county convened yesterday (Monday) morning with Judge Stanford on the bench.

PENNSYLVANIA COAL

Total Production in 1912 Nearly 250,000,000 Short Tons

The combined production of anthracite and bituminous coal in Pennsylvania amounted in 1912 to 246,227,086 short tons, valued at $946,993,123, against 235,218,230 tons, valued at $821,537,250, in 1911, according to E. W. Parker of the United States Geological Survey, who compiled the figures in co-operation with the State Topographic and Geologic Survey Commission. The increase in quantity was 11,008,856 short tons, or 4.7 per cent, and the gain in value, $25,455,873, or 7.9 per cent. In 1911 the larger percentage of increase in value was due to an increase in the production of anthracite and a decrease in the output of the lower-priced bituminous coal. The total quantity of bituminous coal produced in the State in 1912 was 161,865,488 short tons, valued at $169,370,497, and that of anthracite coal 84,461,598 short tons, valued at $177,622,626. In 1912 both anthracite and bituminous values were increased in larger ratio than the increase in tonnage. On account of the suspension of operations on April 1 the production of anthracite in 1912 was less than in 1911 by 5,448,633 long tons in quantity and by $2,670,021 in value. The production of bituminous coal, on the other hand, increased 17,304,231 short tons in quantity and $23,215,545 in value. The average value per ton increased for both grades, anthracite from $2.17 to $2.36 per long ton and bituminous coal from $1.01 to $1.05 per short ton. The production of bituminous coal in Pennsylvania in 1912 exceeded that of anthracite by 77,503,890 short tons, or 93 per cent., but the value of the latter exceeded that of the former by $8,252,129.

A somewhat unusual comparison is presented in the statistics covering the labor employed in the anthracite and bituminous coal mines of Pennsylvania in 1912. Notwithstanding the production of anthracite, more men were employed in the anthracite mines in 1912

Thousands of women in this condition find Scott's Emulsion exactly what they need; it is predigested body-food so medically perfected that every drop yields direct returns in strengthening the organs and tissues and in making healthy, life-sustaining blood. Scott's Emulsion is devoid of alcohol or any harmful drugs, and overcomes tiredness and nervousness in a marvelous way.

than in 1911, whereas in the bituminous mines the production showed a material increase with fewer employees. The number of men employed in the anthracite mines in 1912 was 174,030, against 172,585 in 1911. The bituminous workers numbered 165,144 in 1912 and 168,199 in 1911. The average number of working days in the anthracite region, however, decreased from 246 in 1911 to 231 in 1912, while in the bituminous mines the average working time increased from 333 days in 1911 to 352 days in 1912. The average yearly production per man in the anthracite region in 1912 was 434 long, or 486 short tons, and in the bituminous fields 380 short tons. The total number of men employed in the coal mines of Pennsylvania in 1912 was 339,174, against 340,559 in 1911.

Don't Let Baby Suffer With Eczema And Skin Eruption

Babies need a perfect skin-covering. Skin eruptions cause them not only intense suffering, but hinder their growth. DR. HOBSON'S ECZEMA OINTMENT can be relied on for relief and permanent cure of suffering babies whose skin eruptions have made their life miserable. "Our baby was afflicted with breaking out of the skin all over the face and scalp. Doctors and skin specialists failed to help. We tried Dr. Hobson's Eczema Ointment and were overjoyed to see baby completely cured before one box was used" writes Mrs. Strubler, Dubuque, Iowa. All druggists, or by mail, 50 cents.

Big Ditch Nearly Ready

Completion of dry excavation on the Panama Canal just ten days ahead of schedule time, advanced the work on the great waterway almost to the final stage. Much digging and cleaning out remains to be done in Culebra Cut and at other points along the route, but all of this will be accomplished by mammoth dredges floating on the surface of the canal.

An army of men will be busy during the next four weeks running steam shovels and other equipment and material, including 36 miles of railroad track from the nine-mile channel in Culebra Cut between Gamboa dike and Pedro Miguel locks. This is preparatory to turning water into the channel from Gatun Lake on the Atlantic side, on October 5, five days in advance of the date set for dynamiting of Gamboa dike. The water will be introduced through four 26-inch pipes extending underneath the dike, and although the five-day period hardly will suffice to fill the channel to one-third the canal level, enough will be let in to act as a cushion against the explosion when the dike is destroyed.

Small vessels probably will be able to pass through the canal from end to end by October 10, and the waterway should be ready for shipping proper early in December.

TALE OF A TIGHTWAD.

Every Man Should Take to Heart the Moral It Points.

We once knew a man who was too stingy to take the newspaper in his home town and always went over to borrow his neighbor's paper.

One evening he sent his son over to borrow the paper, and while the son was on the way he ran into a large stand of bees, and in a few minutes his face looked like a summer squash.

Hearing the agonized cries of the son, the father ran to his assistance and in doing so ran into a barbed wire fence, cutting a handful of flesh from his anatomy and ruining a $4 pair of trousers.

The old cow took advantage of the hole in the fence, got into the cornfield and killed herself eating green corn. Hearing the racket, the stingy man's wife ran out of the house, upsetting a four gallon churn full of cream into a basket of kittens, drowning the whole flock. She slipped on the cream and fell downstairs, breaking her leg and a $19 set of false teeth. The baby, left alone, crawled through the spilled cream into the parlor and ruined a $40 parlor carpet. During the excitement the daughter eloped with the hired man, taking the family savings bank with them.

The moral is that every man should be a subscriber to his home newspaper.—Brooklyn Eagle.

THE GOLDEN HORSESHOE.

That Was the First Order Founded in This Country.

How many persons have ever heard of the Order of the Golden Horseshoe, the first order founded in America?

In 1724, when Virginia extended from the Atlantic into the unknown west, few of her colonists had crossed the Blue Ridge or the Alleghenies. So full of dangers from savages and wild beasts and so full of natural difficulties was the passage of these terrible heights that Governor Spotswood, setting out to discover a pass, looked on the expedition as so hazardous that he took with him a guard of "soldiers, gentlemen and pioneers," armed and carrying provisions. These scaled the pass with great hardships and perils and returned after the governor had out the name of King George in the rocks on the highest peak.

He then constituted the society, or order, of the Golden Horseshoe. Each man who had scaled this high pass was made a member of it, and to each one he presented a golden horseshoe. On the side was inscribed in Latin, "So It Pleases Him to Cross Mountains."

Any man thereafter who could prove that he had read with his own eyes the name of the king on the height was entitled to become a member of this order.—Chicago Record-Herald.

Economical Hand Bag.

"I want you to see my lovely new shopping bag," said a certain lady to a caller the other afternoon. "My husband gave it to me for my birthday, and it's simply grand. And it's so economical! You see, you open this and there are two compartments, and you open the compartment on this side and there is a little pocket in that, and you open the little pocket and there is a cute little pocketbook for change, with one side partitioned off for street car tickets."

"I see," said the caller. "But why do you call it economical?"

"Why, it takes so long to open all the things and get to your street car tickets that by the time you do whoever's with you has paid your fare."—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Reported Verbatim.

Very few speakers are precise and accurate enough to stand well in an absolutely verbatim report. I have come across a verbatim report of a wonderful question addressed by Lord Chief Justice Hyde to an accused person, writes "A Man of Kent" in the British Weekly. If any reader can make head or tail of it I should like to hear from him. Here is the question: "You took a man in the dark by the throat, that man that was guilty of such a thing, as when that you did let him go to call his companions to bring the money, bring fellows to you single; I would be glad to know whether in this case they would not have knocked you on the head and killed you."

Running No Risk.

"What," asks the maiden aunt, "going to marry that Mr. Newnun? Why, you hardly know the man, Imogene. In the few days you have been acquainted with him you cannot possibly have learned anything of his family or antecedents or habits or personal circumstances."

"That is true, Aunt Keturah. But you have always told me that no woman who knows anything about a man will marry him."

A Genius.

"Oh, doctor, I feel so discouraged—whoooping cough, measles, mumps and croup, one after the other, and now my child is ill again!"

"Why, the boy's a genius!"

"A genius?"

"Yes—infinite capacity for taking pains, you know."—London Tit-Bits.

Soft.

"Should a man shave up or down?" asked a youthful clerk, and the barber replied with a grin: "That depends. When I shave you, for instance, I always shave down."

Encouragement.

Jack—I am afraid that if I ask you to be my wife you will treat my proposal as a joke. Molly—But all jokes are not rejected, Jack.

VICTOR HUGO IN EXILE.

And the Attic Room in Which He Wrote His Masterpiece.

A graphic description of a visit to Victor Hugo in Guernsey and of his quaint home there is given by the late Sir William Butler in his autobiography.

"Of the many curious things to be seen in Hauteville house the master's sleeping room was the strangest. He had built it on the roof between two great blocks of chimneys. You ascended to his workshop bedroom by stairs which somewhat resembled a ladder. Quite half of the room was glass, and the view from it was magnificent. The isles of Jethou and Sark were in the middle distance, and beyond lay many a mile of the Norman coast. Alderney lay to the north, and beyond it one saw the glistening windows of the triple lighthouses of the Casquet rocks and still more to the right the high ridges overlooking Cherbourg. The bed was a small camp bedstead, with a table on one side of it and a small desk chest of drawers on the other, with pens, ink and paper always within reach.

"Near the bed stood a small stove, which he lighted himself every morning and on which he prepared his cafe au lait; then work began at the large table which stood in the glass alcove a few feet from the foot of the bed. This work went on till it was time to dress and descend to déjeuner in the room on the ground floor already described. As the sheets of writing paper were finished they were numbered and dropped on the floor, to be picked up, arranged and put away in the drawer desk at the end of the morning's labor. He called the writing table his 'carpenter's bench' and the leaves which fell from it his 'shavings.'"

"It was at this table and in this airy attic that most of the great work of his later life was done. Here were written 'Les Misérables,' 'Les Travailleurs de la Mer' and many volumes of poetry."

Tantalizingly Accurate.

She—There's such a thing as too much accuracy. He—No, no; it cannot be! She—Yes. I told Jack he could have just one kiss, and he only took one.—Princeton Tiger.

Liberal.

"I absolutely don't know what to give my cook for a wedding present." "Then simply give her money."

"Oh, no! It mustn't cost as much as that."—Uk.

Long Was Short.

Manager—Did you collect that bill from old man Long? Collector—No; he was in, but he was out.—Boston Transcript.

The Wonderful ALADDIN Lamp

Wonderful because it produces a luxurious, soft, white light, excelled only by sunlight. Burns ordinary kerosene or coal oil, the cheapest of all illuminating fuels. Burns Less Oil than Any Other Lamp of Equal Candle Power. Aladdin Lamps are most durable in construction—easiest to take care of—simplest in operation. The light is brighter and easier on the eyes than gas or electricity. Occultists declare the Aladdin Gives The Best Artificial Light Known. Users declare it is not only the best light, but the best lamp known. There is No Equal. The Aladdin is superior by test and best by comparison. It appeals to those who want superlative excellence for its own sake—appeals to those who consider economy a first essential. Odorless, noiseless, simple, safe and clean—The Aladdin Lamp for the multitude. Don't be bamboozled by an imitation. There is only one Aladdin. Insist on having it. The name is on every burner.

PAID WITH A FLAG.

Rich Ducal Estates in England With a Curious Rental.

It is not generally known that on the anniversary of Waterloo each year—June 18, 1815, was the original day—the Duke of Wellington is required to present the sovereign with a new flag bearing the French colors as an acknowledgment that his grace holds the manor of Stratfieldsaye at the will and pleasure of the king, that estate having been presented to the Iron Duke as a national gift for his success over Napoleon at Waterloo.

The ceremony of the presentation of the flag is today much shorn of its ancient glory, for formerly the ruling duke used to bring the trophy himself on horseback and personally offered it to the monarch. Nowadays it is sent by deputy, however, and is then placed by some appointed equerry in the position assigned to it—namely, over the marble bust of the old Duke of Wellington that stands on its pedestal in the guardroom at Windsor castle. The flag which has rested there during the preceding year is then taken down and returned to the duke's messenger.

It is on the special condition of thus rendering this annual tribute of feudal service, as we may call it, that the reigning duke is allowed to retain the splendid estate already mentioned. If he omits to send the banner on the proper day he forfeits the right to the estates.

The same principle applies to the beautiful domains of Glenheim held by the Duke of Marlborough, who similarly has to send a new flag on each anniversary of the battle (Aug. 13, 1704). The banner is placed over the bust of the noted Duke of Marlborough, also in the guardroom at Windsor.—London Sphere.

Election Tuesday, November 4th, 1913.

We have no desire to indulge in an altercation with The Crisfield Times, but when an article in its columns reflects upon the truthfulness of one of our best known and most reputable citizens, we have no option but to protest.

The article in The Times refers to a message sent to Mr. Joshua W. Miles, through his brother, Mr. Alonzo L. Miles, from ex-State Senator Gorman. The Times does not hesitate to pronounce the message a fabrication. This is an insufferable insult and one that no newspaper should be permitted to offer with impunity. The facts in the case are absolutely as stated in our last issue and the questioning of Mr. Alonzo Miles' truthfulness by The Crisfield Times is a matter for that paper to explain.

The Crisfield Times owes it to the public as well as itself to furnish some support for its allegations and to supply the proof that induced the sweeping assertion that "from beginning to end the statement is a fabrication out of the whole cloth."

The Oyster Plank in the Democratic Platform

The oyster plank in the Democratic State platform should create no alarm in the minds of those who realize the immense importance of a system of legally protected oyster culture and raise no false hopes in the minds of those who desire to secure the repeal of the legislation already on the statute books. Maryland is not going to tear down all the constructive work of years in this direction, any more than she is going to tear up all the good roads she has built. The Haman Oyster law represented a long struggle for public justice, as well as for economic development, and though its effectiveness has been hampered by the bitter hostility which that struggle engendered, no party in Maryland would undertake to ignore the principle which it established, or to throw away the immense advantages which it is sure to bring to the State and which are already being partially realized. To bring Maryland abreast of other States and to develop all her economic possibilities to the utmost, she must utilize fully and scientifically all the potential wealth in her waters, and make it worth while for capital to invest in it. While this is true, the oystermen have a right to a square deal, to such an administration of the law as will preserve the spirit of equity and will protect them from the greedy aggression of selfish individuals or interests, on the one hand, or the over-enthusiasm of the advocates and representatives of oyster culture, on the other. The Sun supported the fight for oyster culture from the beginning, and, without taking undue credit to itself, may say that the final triumph was due to its continuous and earnest support. But it has always felt that the oystermen should be protected in all their rights under the law, and that it should not be stretched, intentionally or unintentionally, to their detriment. Complaints have been made that under the survey natural rocks or bottoms have been included in the waters set apart for leasing, and the plank in the Democratic platform promises to give the Shellfish Commission power to correct such errors. This is absolutely right and carries out the suggestion to this effect made by the Sun months ago when this point was the subject of controversy. It may cost money to do this, but it will be money well spent, for it will serve to allay the bitterness which comes from a sense of injustice.

What the State needs to do is to bring everybody together on the question of oyster culture, and to make the oystermen realize that it is as much to their interest as it is to the interest of everybody else to grow a thousand bushels of oysters on ground where none grew before. In order to produce this spirit of harmonious co-operation, any wrongs or errors which can be shown to have been committed in the survey should be corrected, and the law so administered in general as to give as little occasion as possible for grievance. We believe the Shellfish Commission has endeavored to shape its course by this principle in the past, and any friction that has existed has not been properly caused by it. The oystermen, on their side, owe it to the State as patriotic citizens to uphold the law and to strengthen the hands of the commission in every way possible. —Baltimore Sun.

Federal Bird Protection

A gratifying victory was gained by the Audubon Society, and other bird protective associations when the Senate conferees on the tariff bill yielded to the House and the section concerning feathers and down was restored to its original form. As it left the House the bill contained an absolute prohibition against the importation of egrettes, specifically, and the plumage of any wild birds, generally, except plumes of the ostrich. Representations made in behalf of the importers of millinery induced the Senate to modify the provision so that the feathers of "edible," or "pestilential" birds would not be excluded.

If there are any bird pests in foreign lands their abatement as nuisances might very well be left to the devices of those interested. There was no need for the encouragement of destructive measures by opening the American market to the pelts of the victims. The exemption of the feathers of "edible" birds from the prohibition, though seemingly a harmless concession to admit game shot abroad, would have nullified the "entire" provision. Any bird is "edible." Some people eat crow; and the menus of Central Africa, Bolivia or Borneo may include cassowaries and condors. The point is that the exemption mentioned would have been broad enough to take in everything that flies. The objectionable words have been eliminated, and the Federal Government will go as far as it can by a regulation of trade to discourage the slaughter of nesting egrettes and birds of paradise to satisfy feminine vanity.

In this instance the Federal Government has acted strictly within its constitutional powers. Less clearly authorized is the protection of the migratory birds during their passage from State to State. In pursuance of an act of Congress comprehensive orders have been prepared by the Interior Department, which in effect supersede the game laws of the States. With respect to some birds shooting for game has been forbidden altogether, and the open season for all have been materially changed. The institution of game laws by way of pretended regulation of commerce is so illogical as to be grotesque. All that can be said in extenuation is that the end justifies the means; but sympathetic justification is not the same as a constitutional one. —Philadelphia Record.

Diarrhoea Quickly Cured

"I was taken with diarrhoea and Mr. Yorks, the merchant here, persuaded me to try a bottle of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera, and Diarrhoea Remedy. After taking one dose of it I was cured. It also cured others that I gave it to," writes M. E. Gebhart, Oriole, Pa. That is not at all unusual. An ordinary attack of diarrhoea can almost invariably be cured by one or two doses of this remedy. For sale by all dealers. [Advertisement]

Caroline County's Big Trees

The sturdy old oak at Wye Mills, which for years enjoyed the distinction of being the largest and most venerable on the Eastern Shore, along with the mammoth tree in the Fifth district of Talbot county, must admit its eclipse by the superior dimensions of a Caroline county patriarch which has seemingly just sprung into the limelight. The Caroline contestant for Eastern Shore arboreal records is near Ridgely. Its spread is 155 feet and its trunk eight feet above the ground is 40 feet in circumference. Many of its tree's branches would make saw logs, and it is believed to be more than 200 years old. The dimensions of the three contestants for Eastern Shore honors are: Ridgely oak, circumference, 40 feet; diameter, 12 feet; spread, 155. Wye Mills oak, circumference, 22 feet; diameter, 7 feet; spread, 142. Talbot oak, circumference, 18 feet; diameter, 6 feet; spread, 135 feet.

Oysters Plentiful

With the oyster season now on in earnest, packers in Baltimore announced that from present indications oysters this year will be plentiful and prices reasonable. The packers base their prediction on the rather large arrivals of the stock coming in. The oysters being received there now are larger and fatter than early arrivals of last week.

"These facts cause the packer to look for a plentiful supply and a good quality of oysters this year," said George R. Allewalt of Allewalt & Co., oyster packers of 309 South Charles street. "The oysters coming into Baltimore now are being shipped from Virginia. Although the dredging season for our Chesapeake bay oysters will not begin until October 15th, the fatted and excellent condition of the stock coming in now makes us look for still better oysters from the Maryland waters, as our bivalves are always of a better quality than the Virginia supply. The present cool weather is causing active sales in the oyster market and prices realized are good for this time of the year."

Last week in the wholesale market rawbox oysters by the barrel were selling from $4 to $4.50, while straight shucking stock brought $2.50 to $2.75.

Republican State Convention

The Republican State Convention in Baltimore last Thursday ratified a progressive platform, including the initiative, referendum and votes for women. The speeches of the leaders, who asked for harmony, were enthusiastically cheered, both by the old-line Republicans and many former Progressives who participated in the proceedings. One of the most significant features, which pointed toward complete amalgamation, was the reading of the platform by former Congressman Charles R. Schirm, a former Bull Moose leader.

Thomas Parran, United States Senatorial candidate, who was the principal speaker, attacked the Democratic platform, and in explaining his position on the liquor question declared that he was not in favor of local option or prohibition for Baltimore city.

Mrs. Daniel Hooker, Maryland leader of the woman suffragists, and her supporters in the gallery, led a demonstration of approval of the suffrage plank.

Oliver S. Metzgerott, of Prince George's county, was nominated for State Comptroller; and A. M. Denhard, of Baltimore city, for Clerk of the Court of Appeals. State Chairman Hanna, who was re-elected, announced that recent conferences between Progressives and regular Republican leaders had opened the way to harmony and amalgamation, and a telegram from Colonel Carrington, former leader of Progressives in Maryland, announced his intention of supporting the Republican ticket.

Paint Put On

Think of paint put on and not by the gallon.

A gallon of paint in the can is no account to anybody. Put it on. Now reckon its cost and value.

The secret is: One paint goes twice as far as a bad one.

You have a job, say an average job. It'll take 10 gallons Devoe, and 12 or 15 or 18 or 20 of middling poor, very poor, and trash. You know painter's wages in your town. Put the price of a gallon of paint and the painter's day wage together. You can, we can't.

Devoe costs less than any inferior paint; there are hundreds of them.

One paint is as good as another, so long as it lasts good; one lasts months, and another years; and the one that goes furthest lasts longest. DEVOE.

A ONE MAN CRUSADE

By M. QUAD

Copyright, 1913, by Associated Literary Press.

Just before graduating for the ministry Bruce Stevens spent four days in the town of Newbern as a part of his vacation.

Mr. Stevens found a political boss and a political ring in the town. He found one-half too many saloons for a town of its population.

He found the sheriff of the county and his deputies and the constable in cahoots with the tough element.

The justice of the peace was the keeper of a saloon and passed drinks over the bar, and he protected his own sort when it came to legal troubles.

"Why don't you do something?" he asked of a merchant of the town who was a representative of the better element.

"And get boycotted and driven into bankruptcy?" was asked in return.

"Is it as bad as that?"

"The gang has us by the neck and has us scared. We have no leader."

A few weeks later, when ready to take up his ministerial duties, Mr. Stevens asked to be sent to Newbern.

"But we have a minister there," was replied.

"But he has lost nearly all of his congregation."

"Yes, the reports from that parish are not at all cheering, and I believe Brother Baker would welcome a transfer. You know it's one of the hardest towns in the state."

"I have spent four days there."

"The cause of religion is reported as very lukewarm."

"I didn't know that there was any there at all," smiled the minister.

"Well, you'll be appointed to the place. I hope you may stir things up."

The Rev. Mr. Stevens arrived. He started out with a sermon that jolted and jarred. He spared neither Christian nor sinner. While he criticised the former for lack of backbone, he plainly told the latter that the crisis had come. The crisis meant decency and reform without any shame about it. After the sermon he lingered to talk with members of his congregation. He found them looking forward with great timidity. If he started a crusade he must not expect any active help from them. They were thoroughly cowed.

"This is to be a one man crusade," he answered them. "I did not expect your aid, and so I'm not disappointed."

Monday morning the crusade opened. Mr. Stevens visited the sheriff, and, without any beating around the bush, he said:

"Sheriff, I am the new minister."

"Yes?"

"I am going for your crowd tooth and toe nail."

"Why do you call it my crowd?" was asked.

"Because it is. There are violations of the law every hour of the day, and you stand by without interference. You drink in every saloon, and you comrade with every lawbreaker. It's the same with your deputies and the constables. It's got to stop. You have got to do your sworn duty."

"Another reformer struck the town, eh?" was the insulting reply.

The sheriff went from saloon to saloon and laughed at the reformer and said there should be no interference from him. Within two weeks he was removed and another man named by the minister was in his shoes. The citizens of Newbern were stunned. It seemed incredible.

The Rev. Mr. Stevens visited the justice in his saloon and said:

"It's for you to enforce the law, and here you are among the lawbreakers! The others are depending upon you to dismiss any complaint made against them. What course are you going to take?"

"None of your business!"

The next day the minister complained of nine saloons which had violated the law. Each one of them was dismissed. Inside of twenty days the old justice was out and a new one in.

There were ordinances against Sunday sports. They had not been enforced in five years. They came to the front now. No more baseball or horse racing.

"Beat the meddler up!" was whispered, and a shake purse was made up to reward a scrapper for doing it.

He started out with great ardor to make a two minute job of it, but it lasted only half that time. The minister knocked him out with a jab on the jaw and then had him arrested and fined for disorderly conduct.

Then a public meeting was called at a hall, and the minister did some tall talking. He put heart into the decent citizens so strongly that they came out boldly to his support, and the opposition saw that their cause was lost.

One thing more. The Rev. Mr. Stevens from his pulpit raked the citizens of Newbern as they had never heard a minister talk before. They owed a duty to God and to man. They must show up at church, whether they were Christians or not. The Sunday school must be resurrected. There must be church work. Religion and politics must mix until every office in the county was filled by a decent man. The devil had had possession of Newbern long enough. Now he must be knocked down and dragged out.

There was no devil there a year later. A stranger stopping at the inn of a Sunday would have looked around him and mused:

"A clean town—a nice town—a respectable town. Everybody seems to be going to church, and I guess I'll go along too."

Forest Notes

Switzerland has four co-operative associations for the growing and marketing of forest products.

The U. S. forest service is using gasoline railway speeders for fire protection purposes. They follow up trains on steep grades where sparks thrown out by forced draft are likely to start fires along the right of way.

Forest officers have found that high power telescopes are not always satisfactory in fire-lookout work. In some localities heat vibrations in the atmosphere are so magnified by the glass that clearer vision can be had with the unaided eye.

At the national conservation congress to be held in Washington, November 18-20, the subject of forestry will be handled by a main committee, with sub-committees which will report on federal and state forest policies, forest taxation, fires, lumbering, planting, utilization, forest schools and scientific forest investigations.

Elk have been found in the United States national forest, Utah, for the first time in many years. Since they are not from shipments from the Jackson Hole country to neighboring forests, the state and federal officials are gratified at this apparent increase in big game, as the result of protection.

ECHOES FROM WESTOVER

Westover Happenings Always Interest Our Readers

After reading of so many people in our town who have been cured by Doan's Kidney Pills, the question naturally arises: "Is this medicine equally successful in our neighboring towns?" The generous statement of this Westover resident leaves no room for doubt on this point.

Irving O. Dryden, R. F. D. mail carrier, Westover, Md., says: "My kidneys acted irregularly and my back was weak and painful. I could not stoop for any length of time and was unable to remain in one position long without having dull pains across my back. As soon as I began taking Doan's Kidney Pills I found relief and I continued until I was cured. I have so much confidence in this remedy that I advise all kidney sufferers to give it a trial."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, N. Y., sole agents for the United States. Remember the name—Doan's—and take no other.

Corn Crop Shows Loss

An enormous loss in the prospective production of corn, and indications of the biggest wheat crop ever produced were the feature of the government's September crop report, issued Tuesday afternoon. Hot weather and drought in a number of the principal corn-growing states during the month ending September 1 caused a deterioration of corn which experts calculate has resulted in the loss of 321,000,000 bushels, reducing the corn crop estimates to 2,351,000,000 bushels. This destructive crop weather caused a loss of about 300,000,000 bushels during July, and the August loss brought the total up to 621,000,000 since the first estimates of corn crop prospects were made by the government.

Mother of Eighteen Children

"I am the mother of eighteen children and have the praise of doing more work than any young woman in my town," writes Mrs. C. J. Martin, Boone Mill, Va. "I suffered for five years with stomach trouble and could not eat as much as a biscuit without suffering. I have taken three bottles of Chamberlain's Tablets and am now a well woman and weigh 168 pounds. I can eat anything I want to, and as much as I want and feel better than I have at any time in ten years. I refer to any one in Boone Mill or vicinity who they will vouch for what I say." Chamberlain's Tablets are for sale by all dealers.

Satisfied His Curiosity

Bayard Taylor's widest fame was won as a traveler and lecturer on his travels. He prided himself on his poetry more than on his prose. One can imagine therefore the sort of grim amusement he felt in telling this story—and he often told it to his friends: "I had delivered a lecture in a rural town out west, and several of my auditors were accosting me with expressions of their satisfaction. One person in particular was especially eager, saying: 'I am delighted, Mr. Taylor, to make your acquaintance. I have read everything you have ever written and have greatly enjoyed it all.' This was pleasant to hear, and, as he grasped my hand with evident friendship, I responded with a request for his opinion of my poetry. A look of overwhelming astonishment and perplexity came into his face. 'Your poetry?' he exclaimed. 'Have you ever written any poetry?' This, I need not tell you, fully satisfied my curiosity."—Chicago Record-Herald.

Children Cry FOR FLETCHER'S CASTORIA

Making the Little Farm Pay

By C. C. BOWSFIELD

SMALL fruits pay well and afford great pleasure to the family on a little farm. They are ideal products where the place is small and situated near a city, so that they may be sold to families or hotels and restaurants. Much waste and loss of profit will be avoided by delivering to private customers.

An advantage in raising berries comes from the quick growth as well as from the small acreage required. It takes only a year to get started with small fruits. They can be grown in an orchard and will return a large amount of money in the years when peach and apple trees are coming to maturity. The more this orchard ground is stirred the better, and the cultivation of berries is of actual benefit to the large fruits. A fair yield of strawberries will bring $200 to $300 an acre, according to market conditions. Raspberries return 30 to 50 per cent less.

Small fruit requires a rich, well drained soil. A light, deep loam is best, and an abundance of well rotted barnyard fertilizer should be plowed in. Soggy land is not favorable to any kind of fruits, but nevertheless moisture is needed, and unless rain is plentiful it will pay to carry water or convey it by means of hose.

Plant at the proper time in hills or hedges and keep the soil loose with hoe or cultivator. Pinch off all blossoms the first season. Mulch with straw and manure in the fall. Strawberries are hardy and prolific, but skilled attention will pay in extent and quality of production. With a view to successful marketing both early and late varieties should be cultivated.

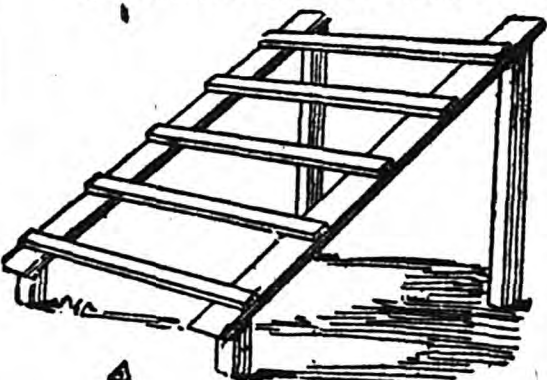

Raspberries are next in importance. There is not so much tedious work connected with growing raspberries as strawberries, and the profits are not quite so large. Set the plants in the spring in rows six feet apart and three feet apart in the rows. This gives plenty of room for cultivating, which must be done thoroughly throughout the growing season. Some experts do not stake raspberries, as is the custom with most growers. When the tips are about two feet high they are pinched back. This causes laterals to be sent out along the stems. In the spring at trimming time these laterals are cut back so as to leave about six inches, and they hold up all the berries they can properly mature.

The red varieties do not need the summer pruning, but are pruned back to about eighteen inches in the spring. Currants and gooseberries require almost the same treatment and can be considered together. One or two year old plants are best and should be set in rows four feet apart each way so that they may be cultivated both ways. This method insures thorough and easy cultivation. They should be cultivated frequently so as to have a good soil mulch during the growing season. It is best to grow the plants in bush form and trim out very little, only the surplus and deadwood.

It is very important to kill all currant worms with some poisonous spray as soon as they appear. If this is neglected the bushes will soon be destroyed.

When a producer has established a reputation for having a good quality of fruit and giving full measure there will be no difficulty in securing customers. If the product exceeds the demand of private patrons it is always possible to ship to stores or commission houses. Bear in mind, however, that the selling end of the business is important and try to arrange in advance for private customers or retail merchants to take the whole output.

Convenient Chicken Roast.

Select two four inch pieces six feet long. Lay them parallel and nail five crosspieces, three feet long and three inches wide, to these. The legs may be made of 2 by 4 stuff the desired length. By means of long spikes secure them to the parallel pieces. Place this in roasting quarters for chickens and they will soon be perching upon it at night.—Iowa Homestead.

PLANT TREES!

When we plant a tree we are doing what we can to make our planet a more wholesome and happier dwelling place for those who come after us. If not for ourselves.—Oliver Wendell Holmes.

Fall Plowing Kills Cutworms. Fall plowing of field areas will often be of service in controlling cutworms that are affecting field crops.

New Phone Building Completed

Mr. H. W. Carty, local manager of the Chesapeake & Potomac Telephone Company of the Eastern Shore, reports that the handsome new telephone building erected on the corner of High and Glasgow streets, Cambridge, Md., for the Chesapeake & Potomac Telephone Company, has been completed and turned over to its owners.

The building is two stories high, with cellar, and is constructed of hard red brick, sand finished, with white mortar joints. It is constructed along old Colonial lines, having curved iron step railings, small window panes, and other features which suggest old times.

The interior is finished in chestnut, with hard wood floors. All modern fireproof and safety appliances have been installed, as well as the modern comforts, including hot water heating.

The building was constructed especially for telephone purposes, and is said to be one of the handsomest and best-constructed buildings in Cambridge—a credit to the town and to the telephone company.

The commercial department of the telephone company, and the Western Union Telegraph Company will occupy the front room on the first floor. The Western Electric Company, which is installing the new switch boards and other central office equipment, have had a force of men to work for the past six weeks, and are rushing the installation as quickly as possible.

When the installation is completed, which is expected to be sometime during the month of November, Cambridge will have one of the best and most up-to-date telephone systems to be found anywhere.

Tuberculosis' Day December 7th

Churches, schools, labor unions, fraternal orders and other organizations to the number of 200,000 at least will be asked to join the anti-tuberculosis workers of the country in the observance of the Fourth National Tuberculosis Day, which has been designated for December 7th, according to an announcement issued by the National Association for the Study and Prevention of Tuberculosis.

The movement will be furthered throughout the country by more than 1,000 anti-tuberculosis societies working through various state organizations and The National Association. Personal appeals will be made to clergymen, school principals and leaders of various organizations urging them to set aside a definite time during the week preceding or the week following December 7th, for a lecture on tuberculosis.

Last year over 60,000 churches gave attention to this subject on Tuberculosis Day. It is hoped this year to swell the number of churches to 100,000 and to urge similar action besides in a large number of schools and other societies. The Tuberculosis Day Campaign will come this year during the Red Cross Christmas Seal sale. It is planned to urge the churches of the county to take a definite part in the movement.

The observance of Tuberculosis Day was endorsed last year by President Taft, Cardinal Farley, Col. Roosevelt, and many other prominent churchmen and public officials. Proclamations calling upon the people to observe this day were issued by the governors of more than a dozen states and by the mayors of a considerable number of cities.

Caught a Bad Cold

"Last winter my son caught a very bad cold and the way he coughed was something dreadful," writes Mrs. Sarah E. Duncan, of Tipton, Iowa. "We thought sure he was going into consumption. We bought just one bottle of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy and that one bottle stopped his cough and cured his cold completely." For sale by all dealers.

Gems Associated With Petrified Wood

The greater part of the precious opal is associated with petrified wood, generally forming a cast of twigs, limbs, bark, parts of tree trunks, or roots or occurring as seams or deposits in or around petrified wood in which the original texture of the wood is beautifully preserved.

A mistake has been made in cutting the Nevada opal too soon after it has been mined. Time should be allowed for proper seasoning of the stone without exposure to dry air, so that any excess of moisture may be lost slowly without causing the gem to crack.

The opal field has been very slightly developed but has probably yielded over $20,000 worth of rough gems. A few superb specimens worth several hundred dollars apiece and many fine gems worth $50 to $200 apiece have been obtained and the prospects of the field as a producer of valuable opal are bright.

Strengthen Weak Kidneys

Don't suffer longer with weak kidneys! You can get prompt relief by taking Electric Bitters, that wonderful remedy praised by women everywhere. Start with a bottle to-day, you will soon feel like a new woman with ambition to work, without fear of pain. Mr. John Dowling, of San Francisco, writes:—"Gratitude for the wonderful effect of Electric Bitters prompts me to write. It cured my wife when all else failed." Good for the liver as well. Nothing better for indigestion or biliousness. Price, 50c. and $1.00, at Omar A. Jones' drug store.

Task of The Postoffice

An inventory of all postoffice property of the United States is about to be undertaken by the postoffice department. It will mark the first attempt of that or any other department of the Federal government to obtain an accurate census of its immensely valuable property. The idea originated with Postmaster-General Burleson, who will issue the required orders within a short time.

It was stated by an official of the department, last week, that no one knew just what the postoffice department owns or what its assets were. The Postmaster-General, therefore, decided to find out definitely just how much property he has under his jurisdiction, its condition and its value. Mr. Burleson has given the subject a great deal of thought and has mapped out practically all his plans. It is his idea that there should be regular inventories at stated periods.

That the inquiry will be a stupendous task is indicated by the fact that there are more than 55,000 postoffices and their many branches, with much equipment constantly in transit in railway mail property and mail bags. Postmasters, their clerks and railway mail clerks will take the census. Several months will be required.

The first step in the investigation already has been taken. Recently Postmaster-General Burleson directed a census of all mail equipment, such as mail bags, locks, etc. Many thousands of mail bags are stored in postoffices and other places and are not now in use, hundreds of them in Washington being filled with old documents.

THE JOHNS HOPKINS UNIVERSITY State Scholarships in Engineering Courses

Applications for scholarships in the Department of Engineering, established in the Johns Hopkins University under the provisions of the Laws of Maryland, Chapter 90, 1912, should now be made.

Entrance examinations for all students will be held in McCoy Hall, The Johns Hopkins University, Baltimore, on September 30th to October 2d, 1913, beginning at 9 a. m.

If there is more than one applicant for a particular scholarship a competitive examination will be held at the University immediately following the examination for entrance.

In addition to certain collegiate scholarships, the Act provides for 6 scholarships at large and 102 scholarships, each for one year, to be apportioned among the counties and legislative districts of Baltimore city, the same number of awards so far as possible to be made each year. The undergraduate courses in Engineering will extend through four years, and it has been determined to offer 35 of the scholarships in the year 1913-1914. Allegany, Baltimore, Frederick and Washington Counties and the four Legislative Districts of Baltimore city will each be entitled to two scholarships, and each of the other counties to one scholarship in October, 1913. The six scholarships at large may also be awarded at that time.

Applicants for scholarships should address the Registrar, The Johns Hopkins University for the blank forms of application and for further information as to the examinations and the award of scholarships.

No. 17—Indictments—State vs. Edward Ford. Assault with intent to kill. Found guilty of assault and sentenced to 18 months in the House of Correction.

Hicks' Forecasts for October
The new moon being at an eclipse node on September 29th, will greatly augment the tendency to earthquake and volcanic disturbances up to the 4th to the 6th of October. Autumnal hurricanes, especially in the southern states, would be most natural at this period, with boreal storms of great energy coming out of the northwest to meet them.

A reactionary storm period falls on the 6th, 7th and 8th, coincident with the moon's first quarter on the 6th. Falling barometer, softening, southerly wind, and return of general falling weather will be the natural order on touching the 6th, 7th and 8th. Autumnal, chilly nights will come with the rising barometer from the northwest, progressively eastward and southward, on and about the 8th, 9th and 10th.

A regular storm period extends from the 10th to the 15th, having its center on the 12th. The moon is on the celestial equator on the 13th, indicating that low barometer, cloudiness and autumnal thunder storms will gather, and visit many localities in an eastward sweep from the 13th to the 15th.

A reactionary storm period centers on the 13th, 14th and 20th. The Venus disturbance, which reaches its center in November, will begin to affect storm weather conditions by this time.

A regular storm period covers the 22nd to the 27th, being central on the 24th. Falling barometer, and other growing storm conditions, will appear in western parts early in this period, all of which will move eastward, increasing in strength and magnitude.

A reactionary storm period covers the last three days of the month. The new moon on the 29th will bring the culmination of this period on and touching that day.

PRESIDENT TO WIELD AX And Appoint Democratic Postmasters in Maryland

According to information from Washington President Wilson is sharpening his ax and is preparing to chop off the official hands of those Republican postmasters in Maryland whose terms have expired. It is also reported that he will keep on chopping off heads as soon as laid on the block by term expirations. Maryland Republican postmasters are awaiting their doom without a quiver of their muscles and without a quiver of their political or official consciences. Changes in postmasters will be as follows:

First Congressional District—North East, Cecil county; Crisfield, Somerset; Greensboro, Caroline; Federalburg, Caroline; Hurluck, Dorchester county.

Second District—Ellicott City, Howard county.

Fifth District—Annapolis, Anne Arundel county; Leonardtown, St. Mary's county; Hyattsville, Prince George's county.

Sixth District—Cumberland, Allegany county; Thurmont, Frederick county; Silver Spring, Montgomery county; Mount Savage, Allegany county; Middletown, Frederick county; Hancock, Washington county.

There are also 734 fourth-class offices in the Postal Service in Maryland which President Taft included in the list of places protected by the Civil Service. First-class postmasterships are those that pay $3,000 or more. Included in this list for Maryland are Baltimore, Cumberland and Hagerstown. The second-class postmasterships pay between $2,000 and $3,000, and all between $1,000 and $2,000 are third-class. Those paying less than $1,000 a year are fourth-class postmasterships.

Postmasterships in Maryland, in addition to the Baltimore office, and which belong to the first, second and third class, and to which appointments are made by the President, are as follows:

Cumberland, $3,200; Hagerstown, $3,100; Frederick, $2,800; Westminster, $2,400; Easton, $2,400; Frostburg, $2,200; Belair, $2,200; Chestertown, $2,200; Annapolis, $2,800; Salisbury, $2,600; Cambridge, $2,500; Havre de Grace, $2,100; Crisfield, $2,200; Oakland, $1,900; Elkton, $1,900; Centerville, $1,900; Princess Anne, $1,900; Snow Hill, $1,700; Port Deposit, $1,800; Aberdeen, $1,700; Berlin, $1,900; Brunswick, $1,600; Denton, $1,700; Upper Marlboro, $1,100; Ellicott City, $1,800; Emmitsburg, $1,700; Federalburg, $1,500; Forest Glen, $1,500; Gaithersburg, $1,500; Greensboro, $1,200; Hampstead, $1,100; Hancock, $1,500; Hurluck, $1,100; Hyattsville, $1,500; Laurel, $1,900; Lonsdale, $1,600; Middletown, $1,100; Millington, $1,200; Mount Airy, $1,600; Mount Savage, $1,200; New Windsor, $1,300; North East, $1,400; Pocomoke, $1,900; Reisterstown, $1,200; Ridgely, $1,400; Rising Sun, $1,500; Rockville, $1,800; St. Michaels, $1,400; Smithsburg, $1,000; Sykesville, $1,500; Taneytown, $1,400; Thurmont, $1,400; Union Bridge, $1,400; Westernport, $1,300; Williamsport, $1,400; and Woodsboro, $1,800.

Wild West Show Coming

A special feature of the many features this season with the great Wyoming Bill Wild West Show is the beautiful Indian Princess, Arrow Shot, daughter of the famous Cherokee Chief, Bear Wolf, Princess Arrow Shot is the only person who has successfully ridden the untamable horse "Thunderbolt," which she will do the day the show exhibits in Princess Anne, Tuesday, October 7th.

She has received a college education, speaks seven languages in addition to her native tongue, and has just returned from a two years' tour of Europe where she has appeared before the nobility.

Wyoming Bill's Wild West Show is superior to any and all other tented enterprises of its kind and character. Its entertainment is strictly refined in every particular, interesting, entertaining, amusing and highly instructive.

There is probably no better equipment, touring the United States this season than this one. Its entire performance portrays frontier life past and present so remarkably natural that spectators at times imagine they are actual witnesses to some startling, sensational or thrilling feat of bravery, horsemanship or daring actually performed upon the once-great plains of the far west.

The show carries scores of Cowboys, Indians, etc., representative rough riders of every known country of the entire world—stage coaches, prairie schooners, Indian travoys, etc., 200 horses, Texas steers, elk, burros, etc. Grand free street parade at 10 o'clock morning of exhibition day, and is worth going miles to witness.

Two performances are given daily, rain or shine. New and specially constructed tents, thoroughly storm-proof, protect the audiences at all times from the elements.

Hon. John G. Woolley Will Speak In Princess Anne

The Anti-Saloon League of Maryland announces that it has arranged with the National Organization of the League for the services of Hon. John G. Woolley, of Madison, Wisconsin, for a series of large meetings throughout the State, and as a part of this plan the League will hold a meeting in Antioch Methodist Episcopal Church, at Princess Anne, on Sunday afternoon, October 12th, at 2:30 p. m., with Mr. Woolley as the speaker. Mr. Woolley has the reputation of being one of the greatest speakers on the American platform. Wherever he is known, the mere announcement that he will make an address is sufficient to insure a large audience.

The League employed Mr. Woolley for a series of meetings in several of the larger towns on the peninsula last May and feels that the influence of those meetings justifies having Mr. Woolley reach the larger towns of the State that were not included in the other schedule. Mr. Woolley is especially noted for his striking figures of speech and beautiful English, and the privilege of hearing a speaker of such statesmanlike quality as Mr. Woolley will be a rare treat to the people of Princess Anne and vicinity.

Rev. Cyrus P. Keen, Eastern Shore District Superintendent of the Maryland Anti-Saloon League, will also be present and make a brief address about the Maryland situation.

Wicomico Progressives

A mass convention was called at the Progressive headquarters, in the Humphreys Building, Salisbury, Thursday afternoon, by John H. Tomlinson, chairman of the State Central Committee. Robert D. Grier was elected chairman of the convention; and S. R. Henry, secretary. Addresses were made by Col. Thomas Lavery and Chairman Grier. William C. Smith, of Baltimore, Progressive nominee for clerk of the Court of Appeals of Maryland, spoke for one hour, after which a report of the State Central Committee, was heard on nominations, the following county ticket being nominated:

For the Legislature—Lloyd A. Richardson, Salisbury district; Ware C. Walter, Nanticoke district; John H. Tomlinson, Parsons district.

For County Commissioners—Andrew J. Bennett, Mardella district; Elijah Q. Rilett, Pittsburg district; Benjamin H. Cordrey, Hebron district.

For Sheriff—George P. Workman, Parsons district.

Flies From France to Africa

Roland G. Garros, a French aviator, flew 553 miles across the Mediterranean, from Saint Raphael, France, to Bizerta, the most northern seaport of Tunis. His time was 7 hours and 53 minutes. He started at 5:52 in the morning and reached Bizerta at 1:45 in the afternoon.

The flight of Garros is the longest over-sea journey ever made in an aeroplane. The aviator rejected the advice to affix floats to his aeroplane as a precaution in case he should be forced to descend on the water, and also declined the offer of the French naval authorities to station torpedo boat destroyers at intervals along his route. The flight is regarded by aviators and military men as an amazing performance of motor, aeroplane and aviator.

Dr. J. W. HERING DEAD Had Held High Offices and Was Prominent in Church Work

Joshua Webster Hering, until recently a member of the Maryland Public Service Commission, for several terms comptroller of the State Treasury, once Senator for Carroll county in the General Assembly, and for many years conspicuous in the Democratic politics of the State, died at 12:12 o'clock Tuesday afternoon, September 22, at his home, in Westminster, Md., aged 80 years.

His last illness was of several months' duration, and his death was not unexpected. He had long suffered from an affection of the stomach, and his physical disabilities compelled him to resign his office as Public Service Commissioner several weeks ago.

Dr. Hering was always regarded as one of the leading Democrats of the State and at all times his opinion was sought on things political.

He held no political office, however, until 1895, when he was elected to the State Senate. There he served on the committee of finance during the sessions of 1896 and 1898. During the 1896 session he also served as chairman of the committee on revaluation and assessment.

Dr. Hering attracted statewide attention in 1899, when he was nominated for the office of state comptroller. He made a campaign of the state which won him many friends in every section. He was elected to the office and was re-elected in 1901. He declined to become a candidate for the third time. However, in 1907 he was re-elected and again in 1909. He continued in office until the late Governor Crothers appointed him on the present Public Service Commission.

Dr. Hering never confined all his activities to things political. He took a great interest in religious affairs and was for many years one of the leading national laymen of the Methodist Protestant Church. He was the only layman who ever held the office of president of the General Conference. He was elected to the place when the conference met in Westminster in 1892, and was re-elected in 1896.

For many years he was a member of the Board of Trustees of the Western Maryland College and a member of the Board of Governors of Westminster Theological Seminary. He was also on the Board of Managers of the Methodist Protestant Church Home.

Financial affairs also always claimed a good part of Dr. Hering's time. For many years he was the cashier of the Union National Bank of Westminster, and in 1899 he was elected president of the Maryland Bankers' Association.

In 1900 he received the degree of LL. D. from St. John's College.

Gathered about his bedside when the end came were his wife, Mrs. Catherine Hering; his son and daughter-in-law, Doctor and Mrs. Joseph T. Hering; his son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Murray, and his son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Z. Miller.

Positions in Philippine Islands

The last examination before appointments are made of those who will attend the 1914 session of the Vacation Assembly at Baguio, the summer capital of the Philippines, as a preparation for their work with the Bureau of Education, is announced by the United States Civil Service Commission for December 30th and 31st, 1913, in various cities throughout the United States.

From the eligible list thus secured appointments will be made during the coming spring for service in the Philippine Islands beginning with the opening of school next school year.

The service requires: Women for, Home Economics; men for, Agriculture, Manual Training, High School Science, Mathematics, English, History and Supervisors of School Districts.

For information relative to the nature of the service and the examination, address Bureau of Insular Affairs, Washington, D. C.

Capt. Lewis Dize Dead

Captain Lewis Dize, a pioneer resident of Crisfield, and a well-known bay captain, died at the General and Marine Hospital, Crisfield, Monday of last week, of pneumonia.

Capt. Dize was one of the most noted fishermen on the Chesapeake Bay, and for several years had devoted his entire time in summer to escorting fishing parties from the north and west to the famous fishing rocks of the lower Chesapeake. He was 63 years of age, and leaves a widow, three sons and daughters, all of Crisfield.

On to victory is the song of all Democrats.

OYSTER BEDS RAIDED

Oystermen Descend Upon Leased Grounds in St. Mary's County

The long threatened trouble between the oyster planters and the natural rock oystermen came to a head last Thursday when six oystermen were arrested by Deputy Sheriff Getz, charged with raiding the leased oyster beds in the Patuxent river, near the mouth of Cole's creek, ten miles from the Chesapeake Bay.

The men arrested are Harry and Fred Elliott, Charles Parks, Walter Wise, Arthur Jett and Oppie Horseman, all of Talbot county. They were given a preliminary hearing before Justice Graves Thursday night and released on bail.

The men were charged with raiding the leased grounds of Harry Spedden, Earl C. Ryder and W. C. Wallace. The alleged offense took place on Tuesday when, according to Mr. Spedden, a fleet of oyster boats, about 30 in number, swept down on the leased beds. The raid was evidently well-planned and took place in daylight.

Mr. Spedden saw the men tonging oysters and went out to warn them. When he informed the raiders that they were working on private beds he was laughed at and informed that the oystermen intended to take oyster wherever they were found, regardless of the leases by the Shellfish Commission.

It is reported that each boat carried away 40 tubs of oysters, or something over 1,200 bushels for the entire fleet. On Wednesday several of the boats returned. Mr. Spedden, joined by Mr. Ryder, then went to Leonardtown and swore out warrants for the arrest of the six men whom they claim to recognize.

The Governor transmitted the report of the Shellfish Commission to Commander Howard, of the oyster Navy, with instructions to investigate. The lessees in the Patuxent complain that the oyster navy is not affording sufficient protection to them. Mr. Spedden declares that the boat on duty is unable to enforce the laws.

Bull Moosers Met In Baltimore

The Progressive State Convention held in Albough's Theatre, Baltimore, Wednesday night, nominated the following candidates:

United States Senator—George L. Wellington, of Allegany county.

State Comptroller—Col. Joseph R. Baldwin, of Harford county.

Clerk of Court of Appeals—William C. Smith, of Baltimore city.

A resolution was adopted giving the State Central Committee the power to fill all vacancies.

Under this authority the State Central Committee for Baltimore will make nominations for the Senate, House of Delegates, clerk of courts and other local offices. Mr. Ferguson for Congress in the Third District, and Mr. Gardner for sheriff, are already in the field as Progressive candidates. Committees for the counties will make nominations in those counties in which it is deemed advisable to make such nominations.

The platform adopted contains the main idea embodied in the National platform of 1912. Included in it are the initiative and referendum, and recall, votes for women, pensions for mothers, workmen's compensation, employers' liability, minimum wage for women, abolition of contract labor, and other things.

Gen. J. Stuart MacDonald, chairman of the State Central Committee, called the convention to order and made a speech. He was loudly cheered when he said: "The Progressive party is here to stay and is in the fight to a finish." There was an outbreak of applause when he mentioned Colonel Roosevelt's name.

Dr. M. B. Reichard, of Washington county, who presided over the convention last year, was selected as temporary chairman, and Dr. Lee Hall, of Worcester, and John H. Tomlinson, of Wicomico, were the temporary secretaries.

On motion of George R. Gaither a committee on rules, resolutions, permanent organization and credentials, one member from each county represented and each legislative district of Baltimore city, was appointed. D. C. Reese, of Crisfield, represents Somerset county.

To be sure of the right to vote in the November election, all Democrats who have moved since the last election should apply for a transfer at his old polling place today (Tuesday) and then take it to where he has moved and register.

There is no reason why any white man should not support the Democracy of Maryland when it comes before them, as it does this year, with its pledges to the people and which the Democratic candidates will carry out.

TO SAVE FISH INDUSTRY Conference On Linthicum Bills Held in Washington

State officials of Maryland and Virginia met with Federal authorities last Tuesday in Washington and discussed the proposed enactment of Federal legislation regulating the fish industry of the Chesapeake Bay. Incidentally the two bills of Representative Linthicum, now pending before Congress and providing for Federal regulation, were examined.

The Virginia delegation, headed by Representative James and McDonald Lee, Fish Commissioner, opposed the Linthicum measures on the grounds that they would interfere with the State's rights.

While no definite action was taken at the meeting, it is believed, regardless of the opposition of the Virginia representation, Federal laws will soon be enacted. The bills were prepared specifically to remedy conditions along the Chesapeake Bay, but are applicable to every section of the country where fishing is carried on to any extent. A generous support for the bills from every part of the country is expected.

The conference was held in the private office of Secretary of Commerce Redfield. Those present beside the Secretary were: Governor Goldsborough, Commander Howard, of the oyster navy; Shellfish Commissioners Smith and Phillips, of Maryland; Representatives Linthicum, of Maryland, and Jones, of Virginia; Acting United States Fish Commissioner Jones, McDonald Lee, chairman of the Commission of Fisheries of Virginia, and Major Edgar Jadwin, representing Secretary of War Garrison. Governor Mann was unable to reach Washington in time for the conference.

All of those who attended the conference agreed that some legislation should be enacted. Maryland is holding out for Federal laws, while Virginia believes in allowing the two States to enact their own laws. Maryland, however, had a decided advantage in that the Federal authorities have reported favorably upon the two bills offered by Representative Linthicum.

Mr. Jones said that the past few years showed conclusively that radical legislation is imperative if the fish in Chesapeake Bay and its tributaries are to be saved and fishing industries are to be preserved. The unsuccessful season just past, he said, brought the officials of Maryland and Virginia and the Federal Government face to face with this vital issue. He declared that the entire catch for the two seasons of 1912 and 1913 was not more than one day's catch in former years.

Figures were produced showing that in the last 15 years the annual shad catch in Virginia had decreased from 11,500,000 pounds to less than 3,000,000 pounds. In the same time the shad catch for Maryland decreased from a little over 7,000,000 pounds to less than 2,000,000 pounds. Reports from North Carolina disclose that in the last four years the shad catch has increased from about 4,000,000 pounds to about 7,500,000 pounds.

According to Commissioner Jones there is but one explanation of the decrease of the catch in Virginia and Maryland, that is, that the fishermen of these States have in their eagerness to catch the maximum number of fish had too little consideration for spawning fish.

"Assuming a catch of 2,000,000 shad in a given year, one-half would be females filled with spawn," said Commissioner Jones. "If only 10 per cent. of these are allowed to escape the nets and reach the spawning grounds over 2,000,000 eggs would be laid. This output, plus the work of the hatcheries, would go far to keep up the supply and the result would be an increased catch in a few years."

"It is not necessary to consider details of legislation that is demanded. The important thing is to determine whether a policy can be adopted which will meet the situation. Lines along which legislation should go are: Closed season Sundays the year round and on sturgeon two years or more; restriction of amount netting in a given area; keep clear the way to spawning grounds; prevent avoidable waste, allowing no food fish to be caught except for food purposes."

County Seats' Public School Day

A public school day is to be held in every county seat in the State during the coming session, at which the State Board of Education will assist.

This decision was made by the board at its meeting at the Rennett, in Baltimore, last Wednesday morning.

State Superintendent M. Bates Stephens was instructed by the board to arrange a schedule of meetings, one for each county, which will cover the entire State.

"Our idea," said Governor Goldsborough after the meeting, "is to stimulate interest in educational matters among the school children, the teachers and the citizens in general. Dr. Stephens will form a schedule and we will declare a holiday in each county for the day when the meeting will be held. We expect to have leading educators and business men take part in the meetings and to invite the teachers, scholars, parents and all others interested to come to the county seat with their lunch baskets and hear what the speakers have to say. The work will begin this fall and we will go into every county in the State."

Temperature of the Body.
The heat of the body varies at different ages and different times of the day. Except when you are suffering from fever, you are never so hot as when you are born. The temperature of a newborn baby is about 102 degrees, but during the first day it rapidly goes down to 97½ degrees, rising again to a little above the average temperature of a grownup person, which is about 98½ degrees. The heat of your body varies as much as two degrees in twenty-four hours. The minimum is reached about 4 o'clock in the morning, when your vitality is at its lowest, and the maximum about 4 in the afternoon. People who work by night and sleep during the day, however, are coldest in the afternoon and warmest in the early morning. It is a remarkable fact that we nearly always die if our blood varies more than a few degrees either way. A temperature below 95 degrees or above 105 degrees is generally fatal.—Pearson's.

Criminals and Crime.
Is the criminal so because he wants to be so? No more wicked fallacy was ever foisted upon a credulous world than this. Nobody at any period of the world ever wished to be criminal. Every one instinctively hates and fears crime. Every one is honest by nature. It is inherent in the soul. I have never met a criminal who did not hate his crime even more than his condemners hate it. The apparent exception is when the man does not consider his victim as a human being. He has killed because his victim exasperated him to it. He has robbed society because society made war on him. The offender hates his crime.

But he is not ashamed of it? Now, that is true. He is not ashamed of it in the current sense. He hates it, he fears it, but it does not fill him with a sense of sin.—H. Fielding Hall in Atlantic Monthly.

His Awful Dream.
Sydney Smith had been ill, and a friend having called to see him inquired what sort of night he had passed. "Oh, horrid, horrid, my dear fellow," I dreamed I was chained to a rock and being talked to death by Harriet Martineau and Margaret."

Why Not Schools For Men?
No man ever feels the need of education so much as the man who sees opportunity for advancement open before him, but who does not dare to take it for fear that he can not rise to it. It is useless to say anything to such a man about neglected opportunities, and it is equally futile to say the same thing to the youth who is neglecting his studies. The first cannot go back and live his boyhood over; the latter cannot comprehend his danger, nor will he believe in his own possibilities, nor can he really study intelligently things for which he is not sufficiently mature. The few who mature early enough in life to go through technical schools or colleges are provided for. Can we not provide men's schools for those who mature normally?—American Magazine.

A City That Was a Failure.
Of all the seven cities of Asia perhaps Sardi has the most interesting and romantic history, and yet, with all its natural advantages, its wealth, its famous rulers, its wise counselors, its victorious armies, it was the greatest failure of them all, says the Christian Herald. The richest man in the world, Croesus, was king of Sardi; the wisest man, Solon, was her guest, and yet, through overconfidence and lack of watchfulness, time and again it was surprised, conquered and all but destroyed, until at last the disintegrating rock and roll from its own citadel, loosened by the winter rains and hurried down by destructive earthquakes, buried the city thirty feet deep from the sight of man. It became a dead city, and it was buried by the forces of nature.

A MOTHER'S RUSE

By HELOISE BRAYTON

"Amy," said Mrs. Stringfellow to her daughter, "Walter Barnard has been paying attention to you now for six months. If you were engaged I presume that you would tell me. But I wish to know surely whether you are or are not."
"I am not," replied Amy dolefully.
"That evidently means that Walter hasn't spoken."
"I think he will, mamma."
"Not without being brought to the point."
"Mamma, you wouldn't wish me to tell him that I am expecting him to propose to me, would you?"
"Certainly not. That would not be the part of a girl. But a girl has her privileges, and one of them is to indicate to a young man paying her attention that she wishes him to discontinue doing so."
"But I don't."
The mother bit her lip, but said nothing more. Nevertheless she determined that since her daughter had not the spunk to bring her lover to a proposal she would make the attempt herself. To interfere in such a matter is always a great risk, and the lady realized that by doing so she might make a breach between herself and her daughter that might never be healed. But Mrs. Stringfellow was naturally diplomatic and determined that she would pursue a little game of her own which might mean a great deal or might mean nothing.
Not long after this little dialogue Mrs. Stringfellow arranged that Amy should go away on a visit. Amy objected, not being willing to leave Walter even for a day, though she did not see him often after once a week. But the mother prevailed, and Amy departed with fear and trembling at the man she wanted would during her absence fall into the toils of some other girl.
One day during Amy's absence Walter Barnard called upon her mother to pay his respects and ask how her daughter was enjoying herself. He was ushered into the library, where he usually visited with Amy. On the table lay a bill from a prominent dry goods store. It was so plainly exposed that the caller could not help seeing it, but he did not make himself acquainted with its contents till an unrolled package on a chair attracted his attention. It was white and of a delicate fabric. Near it was a box, in which some white gauzy substance so loosely rested that a part hung over the side. There was still another box with the cover on.
Barnard while waiting for Mrs. Stringfellow had nothing to occupy him, so his mind became fixed on these articles. He examined the fabric, and it seemed to him that there was about enough of it to make a dress. Then it occurred to him that the gauzy stuff might be intended for a bride's veil. Having gone thus far in his surmises, he was naturally curious to know what was in the covered box. He lifted the cover and saw that it was filled with orange blossoms.
Evidently some one was about to be married.
But who? There was only one single woman in the house, and that was Amy.
A terrible thought entered the young man's brain. Could it be possible that while he had been putting off his proposal some other man had come in and occupied the vacant place ahead of him? His heart seemed to stop beating. Perspiration stood out on his forehead.
He paced the floor till Mrs. Stringfellow came down. When she saw the dry goods she looked displeased, called a maid and directed her in a sharp tone to take them upstairs. Then she turned her attention to her visitor.
Barnard was too disconcerted to talk connectedly. He jumped from the warm weather to the news from abroad and from the news from abroad to the last bit of social gossip. Then he asked if Miss Stringfellow was enjoying her visit and was informed that she was having a delightful time. He asked when the young lady would return, and his hostess informed him that certain events that had happened since her departure would necessarily alter the time of her homecoming, but did not say whether it would be hastened or delayed.
Two or three times Barnard was on the verge of asking whether Amy was about to be married, but every time he balked. Once he got his question partly out, but Mrs. Stringfellow looked at him so coldly that he turned the question into something else. Finally he arose to go, stumbled against a chair's back or against an open door, dropped his hat and stepped on it, finally getting out in great confusion.
That night he slept only a few hours and in the morning took an early train for the place where Amy Stringfellow was visiting. She was much surprised at seeing him and waited for him to declare the object of his coming.
"Are you going to be married?" he asked in a tone to warrant that if she were he was ready to kill the groom.
"No. Why do you ask?"
There was an embarrassed silence for a few moments, when he spoke again.
"Well, then, I wish to put in my claim for you. I don't want any more scares like this."
When Amy returned to her home her mother confessed her ruse. Had it failed she could not have been convicted of it.

FLOWERS AS FOOD.

In India the Natives Eat Bassia Tree Blossoms Uncooked.

In these days one would hardly call a dinner of rosebuds a feast, nor should we be inclined to accept an invitation to dine on the blossoms of the pumpkin vine. Yet some Indians, like the old Aztecs, used to esteem these flowers, when properly prepared, a great dainty.
So, in the same way, do natives of many parts of India depend for food upon the blossoms of the bassia tree. They do not need even to cook the flowers, but make a good meal of them raw. These blossoms are described as sweet and sickly in odor and taste. They are sometimes dried in the sun, when they are kept and sold in bazaars as a regular article of diet.
The trees are so highly esteemed that the threat of cutting down their bassia trees will generally bring an unruly tribe to terms. This is perhaps not to be wondered at when it is considered that a single tree will yield from 200 to 400 pounds of flowers. The Parsees cook the flowers and also make sweetmeats of them.
"Nobody would be inclined to deny that smoked fish and smoked meat are agreeable varieties in our bill of fare, but few, perhaps, would feel ready to plead guilty to a taste for smoked flowers. And yet, when we give to the clove its well earned place among flavorings we are making use of a smoked flower bud. The buds grow on a small evergreen and are plucked from the ends of the branches before they expand. Then they are dried in the sun and smoked over a wood fire to give them the brown color.—Philadelphia Press.

The Word Coccoanut.

It really should be "coco-nut," but custom compels the inclusion of that superfluous "a." The term coco or co-coa by which the nuts are known is said by several authorities to be of Portuguese origin, and the derivation is quite out of the ordinary. According to Bauhin, cocoa or coquhen is derived from the three holes at the end of the nut, giving it the resemblance of a species of monkey. Another writer, Piso, would have us believe the name is due to the sound emitted when air is blown into one of the holes of the nut, it being likened unto the voice of an ape. The Portuguese for monkey is macaco or macoco. Perhaps the best explanation offered is that "coco" means a grin or grimace, for the three eyes of the nut certainly convey the impression of a hideous laugh. For the unnecessary "a" the blame has been laid on the head of a careless proofreader, who allowed the name in its present form to creep into Johnson's dictionary, although the learned doctor had used the correct spelling.—London Telegraph

Good Discipline.

"Our American militia is the best in the world," said the president of the Descendants of the Signers.
"How strict it is! During the annual encampment of our Virginia militia a private was riding one hot day on a trolley car with his uniform coat unbuttoned. This caused a sergeant on the smokers' seat behind to say:
"Button up that coat! Haven't you got any sense of military decency at all?"
"But here a gentleman on the left interfered, saying to the sergeant:
"How dare you give commands with a cigar in your mouth? I'm Major Fitzhugh Calhoun."
"At this point an elderly gentleman, with a white military mustache leaned over and murmured in the major's ear:
"Colonel Brewster Fairfax is sorry to remind you, sir, that to scold a sergeant in the presence of a private is a military offense hard to overlook."
—Washington Star.

Hens That Swim.

School Inspector (to the infant class)—Can a hen swim?
"Yes," says Maggie, with a significant nod of the head.
"What! Do you say a hen can swim?"
"Yes," with repeated nod.
The infant mistress is appealed to regarding the instruction imparted to the class.
"Maggie," says the infant mistress, "surely you are not thinking. Do you say a hen can swim?"
"With persistent nod Maggie says "Yes."
Head master enters the room. Inspector calls his attention to Maggie's repeated answer.
Head Master (to Maggie)—Do you mean to say a hen can swim?
"Yes," says Maggie.
"Did you ever see a hen swim?"
"Yes; a water hen."
Inspector confesses he has still something to learn.—London Answers.

Turkey as "the Sick Man."

Now a collector of old prints comes forward with the proof that the expression, "the sick man of Europe," so persistently applied for years to Turkey, really dates back to the seventeenth century, when John Sobieski drove back the Turks from the gates of Vienna. He shows an old engraving with the Turk on his sickbed in the center and the doctors representing all the nations of Europe gathered about him. As has been the case ever since, they cannot agree as to the treatment. All want to make an end of the Turk, but the Spaniard wishes to apply a bomb, the Pole wishes to give him steel, the Prussian would stifle him with his cloak, etc. Change the names and costumes of the doctors and this cartoon of nearly three centuries ago would answer for any of the numerous congresses that have since then attempted to settle the vexing eastern question.—Argonaut.

Our Limitations.

There are noises louder than thunder which we cannot hear, the roar that lies on the other side of silence, writes Frank Harris in "Unpath'd Waters." We men are poor, restless prisoners, hemmed in by our senses as by the walls of a cell, hearing only a part of nature's orchestra and that part imperfectly, seeing only a thousandth part of the color marvels about us and seeing that infinitesimal part incorrectly and partially.

Election Tuesday, November 4th, 1913.

A short term of court is always welcome. The September term lasted but a week and the grand jury attained the best record ever made in the county, its session having lasted but two days. It is a gratification to have court officials who make work move and the effective pushing of that work, so as to spare the people both time and money, forms an excellent object lesson.

The State of Maryland has lost a fine citizen in the death of Dr. Joshua W. Herring. Dr. Herring was a man of excellent attainments, broad views and a deep-rooted sense of honor. In business, politics and church he took a prominent position. It is this class of men that the State can ill afford to lose. Death is no respecter of persons and its toll is taken from all classes. It takes time, however, to get accustomed to the changes which the great destroyer works and to the successions which its ravages involve.

Those who are interested in books and are in sympathy with the work of supplying good literature, will be gratified to know that the Princess Anne Library is about to have a permanent home. The new location is on Church street and the building is the old station, donated by the New York, Philadelphia & Norfolk Railroad Company, which was moved last week to its new site. A library is a fine thing for a town and it is to be hoped that the enterprise which has proved so successful for several years past will now receive additional impetus.

Support The Democratic Ticket

The candidates named for the Democratic ticket at the recent primaries are all men of high standing in the county and deserve the support of the entire party. The war of words waged prior to the primary election is now a thing of the past and there is no just reason why the slightest touch of feeling should remain. The only thought should be to defeat Republican aspiration to again control the county.

We know of no good reason why the administration of Somerset county, which has continued with such success for a dozen years, should revert to a party whose alignment is an unsatisfactory representation of the people's property interests and whose record by no means measured up to the present standard.

That the affairs of Somerset county have been managed with care and economy, has been set forth in various statements to the public and these statements will appear again at intervals as the occasion requires. The election of a Republican commissioner o-treasurer, would mean a repudiation of this record and a serious reflection upon the men who have cared for the county's interests. It is the duty, therefore, of every Democrat to do his part in putting in office the class of men who are to continue the record already established.

The great matter now before the Democrats of Somerset county is that of reconciliation and good feeling. "In union there is strength." A united party and co-operative work ought to be the slogan from now to election day.

Does the Majority Rule?

According to the returns of the division assessors, 373,639 citizens of Philadelphia are qualified to vote. Of this number only 249,163, or about two-thirds, registered, and so made themselves eligible to cast ballots at the November election, while less than two-fifths actually turned out at the polls at the primary election last week. In other words, 124,276 electors were not enough interested in the course of public affairs to take the small trouble of seeing that they were properly enrolled, while of the number who did so, about 100,000 took no part in choosing candidates from among whom twelve judges of the local courts, four important county officers, an almost entirely new membership of Councils and a large number of subordinate officials must be elected.

This is the answer to those supporters of the direct primary who cannot understand why the scheme is not working out satisfactorily in practice when it figured out so nicely in theory. If every citizen was impelled by his sense of responsibility to the community to fulfill his duty on registration and election days, it would be possible to obtain a clear expression of popular opinion such as would make effective the ideal doctrine of majority rule; but as it is, much of the ruling nowadays is unquestionably done by a comparatively small minority, and the more complicated and intricate the act of voting is made by the elaboration of new-fangled laws, which are difficult to understand and more difficult to observe, the smaller the minority will become. A return to simpler methods would seem to be the only remedy, and the time is surely coming when the making of such a suggestion will not incur the foolish cry of "reactionary!"—Philadelphia Bulletin.

Maryland is a Democratic State when the people who are natural Democrats vote the ticket. It only goes to the Republican column when the people have lost faith in the leaders and the party managers. The people are generally so disgusted after two years of Republican rule that they are willing to come back to the Democrats anyway, but there is surely no reason why any man of Democratic tendency should fail to vote his party ticket this year when the party stands on such a wide-open, progressive and honest platform as that enacted in Baltimore.

Diarrhoea Quickly Cured

"I was taken with diarrhoea and Mr. Yorks, the merchant here, persuaded me to try a bottle of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera, and Diarrhoea Remedy. After taking one dose of it I was cured. It also cured others that I gave it to," writes M. E. Gebhart, Oriole, Pa. That is not at all unusual. An ordinary attack of diarrhoea can almost invariably be cured by one or two doses of this remedy. For sale by all dealers. (Advertisement)

THE JOHNS HOPKINS UNIVERSITY State Scholarships in Engineering Courses

Applications for scholarships in the Department of Engineering, established in the Johns Hopkins University under the provisions of the Laws of Maryland, Chapter 90, 1912, should now be made.

Entrance examinations for all students will be held in McCoy Hall, The Johns Hopkins University, Baltimore, on September 30th to October 2d, 1913, beginning at 9 a. m.

If there is more than one applicant for a particular scholarship a competitive examination will be held at the University immediately following the examination for entrance.

In addition to certain collegiate scholarships, the Act provides for 6 scholarships at large and 102 scholarships, each for one year, to be apportioned among the counties and legislative districts of Baltimore city, the same number of awards so far as possible to be made each year. The undergraduate courses in Engineering will extend through four years, and it has been determined to offer 35 of the scholarships in the year 1913-1914. Allegany, Baltimore, Frederick and Washington Counties and the four Legislative Districts of Baltimore city will each be entitled to two scholarships, and each of the other counties to one scholarship in October, 1913. The six scholarships at large may also be awarded at that time.

Applicants for scholarships should address the Registrar, The Johns Hopkins University for the blank forms of application and for further information as to the examinations and the award of scholarships.

Registration Notice!

The Board of Supervisors of Elections for Somerset County, hereby give notice, as required by law, that the duly appointed Boards of Registry for the several districts and precincts of said county will proceed to make an intermediate registration of all qualified voters, on Tuesday, September 30, 1913,

—AND—

Tuesday, October 7th, 1913,

AND WILL SIT FOR THE PURPOSE OF REVISION ONLY ON

Tuesday, October 14th, 1913, between the hours of 8 o'clock a. m. and 7 o'clock p. m.

On Revision Day no new names can be added to the list of qualified voters.

The said Boards of Registry will sit in their respective districts and precincts, at the usual places for holding registration and election in said districts and precincts.

Local and Miscellaneous

Miss Annie Morris has returned after spending several weeks in Portsmouth, Va.

Liberal sample of Wells' Famous Backache Remedy. See advertisement in this paper.

Mrs. J. Thomas Taylor has returned from Charles Town, W. Va., where she entered Miss Sarah Taylor as a student at Powhatan College.

Mr. G. Elmer Brown, son of Mr. G. W. Brown, left yesterday (Monday) for Washington, D. C., where he has accepted a position as bookkeeper in The Home Savings Bank of that city.

"My Old Kentucky Home" Company gave a very creditable performance before a large audience Thursday night, at the auditorium, of the play "The Ragged Hero," or "Jerry, the Tramp."

Our reading space has been greatly reduced this week by a large run of advertising, which shows the light in which the MARYLANDER AND HERALD is regarded as an advertising medium. It is needless to say this patronage is duly appreciated.

The old railroad station, donated by the N. Y., P. & N. Railroad Company to the Princess Anne Public Library, was moved last week to the site on Church street, opposite the Episcopal Church. The building will be completely renovated and the Library will be moved to it as soon as possible.

With Wyoming Bill's Historical Wild West exhibition this season and which is billed to appear in Princess Anne, Tuesday, October 7th, are a number of famous Indian chiefs—among whom will be found Bear Wolf, Spike Head, Big Little Horse, Thunder Cloud, Yellow Feather and others. They are accompanied by their squaws and papooses.

The Shoreland Club will enter upon its eighth year on October 30th, when the first meeting of 1913-14 will be held. Mrs. Charles W. Fitzgerald will be the hostess on this occasion. The officers of the club are as follows: President, Mrs. J. Douglass Wallop; vice-president, Mrs. John B. Roberts; secretary, Mrs. Earle B. Polk. Program committee, Mrs. H. Fillmore Lankford, Mrs. William H. Dashiell, Mrs. John B. Roberts, Mrs. J. Douglass Wallop. The subjects to be discussed during the year will bear upon Russian history.

—The Civic Club is to be credited with much of the good work for a cleaner and more sanitary Princess Anne. Our town boasts of its clean streets and its improved sanitary conditions. The club is now about to direct its attention to still other matters, including more effective public school conditions. The club deserves the co-operation of the general public in such matters. It already has that of the Town Commissioners.

—According to the report of State Bank Commissioner J. Dukes Downes, the Bank of Somerset, of Princess Anne, is one of 33 banks and trust companies out of 114 in Maryland that was entitled to be placed on the roll of honor. This is quite an honor, as to secure this, a bank must show a surplus and undivided profit in excess of its capital stock. The Bank of Somerset shows a surplus and undivided profit of $94,441.27, and is number 15 on the list.

—Alleged to be short in his accounts with the County Commissioners of Queen Anne county, Louis H. Perkins, of Centerville, aged 63 years, a former county treasurer, superintendent of the Methodist Sunday School, steward of the church and one of the county's most highly esteemed residents, committed suicide Wednesday by swallowing an ounce of carbolic acid and drowning. Discovered in the act of seeking death, desperate efforts were made to save his life, but without avail.

—Distribution of $50,000,000 by the Treasury Department among the banks of the South and West to facilitate the movement of crops has been half completed. Assistant Secretary of the Treasury Williams announced last Friday. A total of $24,159,000 has already been divided among 22 states. Part of the money has been distributed as follows: Illinois, $3,500,000; Louisiana, $3,075,000; Maryland, $2,700,000; Tennessee, $2,045,000; Missouri, $1,750,000, and Georgia, $1,622,000.

—Caught a Bad Cold

"Last winter my son caught a very bad cold and the way he coughed was something dreadful," writes Mrs. Sarah E. Duncan, of Tipton, Iowa. "We thought sure he was going into consumption. We bought just one bottle of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy and that one bottle stopped his cough and cured his cold completely." For sale by all dealers.

Paint Better

Better isn't enough; paint best. A man bought "cheap" paint; saved 20c or 30c or 40c or 50c a gallon, didn't he?

Yes, and bought 40 or 50 or 60 or 80 per cent. more gallons; how much did he make on his paint?

And he paid for painting those gallons—a fair day's work is a gallon—how much did he make on the labor part of his job?

He lost a quarter or third of his money.

How long will it last? not his money, the paint?

Perhaps half as long as Devco. How long will his money last, if he buys other stuff as he bought that paint?

Better buy the best paint; it makes the least bill and least effort.

BARGAINING AS A FINE ART.

Polite and Lascivious, the Oriental Shopkeeper Will Haggle Over the Price of an Article From Dawn Until Dark—A Sample Transaction.

He is the selfsame fellow still, the Cairo merchant, as in the days of Haroun-al-Raschid. He squats in cross-legged contentment as of yore, amenable only to the loquacious system of bargaining dear to the heart of the oriental. The western tourist, foolishly regarding time as of value, will lose all equanimity long before he has completed the smallest transaction. If his knowledge of the east and his patience suffice and he begins negotiations early enough in the day not to be driven forth as the merchant sets up his shutters at nightfall he may obtain the article he seeks at a just and equitable price. If he gains possession of it in less than the accustomed time he will certainly have paid more than its market value.

Vagabundo, the western traveler experienced in the ways of the east, catches sight during a stroll through the bazaars of an Arabic blade that takes his fancy. It hangs high at the top of the open booth, on the raised floor of which serenely squats the proprietor, with folded legs. Vagabundo, as from the merest curiosity, pauses to run his eye over the countless articles, suggests with a half stifled yawn that the scimitar looks like what might be a convincing weapon in the hands of an enemy, ventures to hope that the merchant is enjoying fine weather and strolls leisurely on. The shopkeeper continues to puff drowsily at his water bottle until the westerner is all but out of earshot. Then he appears suddenly to awake and drones out a languid invitation to return. Vagabundo pays no heed to the summons for some moments, gazes abstractedly upon the wares displayed in another booth, then wanders slowly back. The merchant hopes that the traveler is enjoying the best of health, invites him to squat in the bit of space not already occupied by himself or his wares, offers a cigarette and falls to discussing the state of the cotton crop in the delta. By the time the second cigarette is lighted he turns the conversation deftly to the scimitar and remarks that though it is hung among his wares rather for ornament than for sale it is possible he may some day tire of beholding it and part with it for perhaps 1,000 piasters. Vagabundo, puffing reminiscently for a time, recalls having heard a friend express a desire to obtain such a weapon for, say, 75 piasters or so and wonders, after all, why that friend should care for so useless an article. The shopkeeper regrets that the two prices named do not more nearly coincide, trusts that the inundations will not be so late this year as last and reaches again for the tube of his narghile. Vagabundo expresses his delight that the khedive has recovered from his recent attack, thanks the merchant for his disinterested hospitality and saunters away.

The shortest instant before he is finally lost from view in the surging stream of bazaar loungers he is called back to learn that the merchant is of the opinion that the new land tax will work more effectively than the old, that the scimitar is probably worth only 750 piasters and that some of the eucalyptus trees in the Esbekieh gardens are to be removed. With all due respect to Cramer Pasha Vagabundo doubts the practicability of his latest scheme of taxation and hopes that his friend may somewhere run across such a scimitar at 100 piasters.

Thus the transaction continues; a third, a fourth, even a fifth time Vagabundo returns. By the sixth visit he has dropped the fiction of a friend and openly offers 225 piasters for the blade, and the shopkeeper arouses himself sufficiently to take the weapon down for inspection and expresses a willingness to part with it for 275.

Over newly rolled cigarettes the negotiation proceeds, now touching upon the prevalence of ophthalmia, anon skirting the matter of scimitars, their manufacture and price. Speaking of scimitars, the merchant suspects that for the one in hand he would be satisfied perhaps at 250 piasters. Vagabundo lays that sum—which both recognized from the beginning as the just price—on the mat between them, grasps his newly acquired property and, amid protestations of lifelong friendship from the merchant, takes his departure.

Manchester business men and Chicago captains of industry, scornful such childish methods, have dived into the maelstrom of the bazaars of Cairo with the avowed intention of "doing business" after the manner of today and the west; but all in vain. The Cairo shopkeeper will hurry in his transactions for no mortal man. Let the pulsating westerner press his mercenary suit too forcibly and he discovers to his surprise, and perhaps even to his dismay, that the merchant of the east displays his wares and squats by day among them merely as a recreation and amusement and that the notion of selling anything is farthest from his thoughts.—Harry A. Franck in Century.

Red Hair and Temper. "All mankind," said Major Hurst, a well known English student of eugenics, "may be divided into those who are red haired and those who are not red haired. It is a fundamental difference." In almost every case of a red haired child the major has succeeded in discovering a red haired ancestor, and he thinks that practically the whole of the red haired population springs from a single red haired man far back in the past. Here are some of his conclusions:

In order for red to appear it must be in the ancestry on both sides.

A red father and a dark mother, or vice versa, hardly ever have a red child.

Two reds always have red offspring. But it is exceedingly rare to find two reds marry, as they seem to have a mutual antipathy.

It is a popular fallacy that red haired persons have any distinctive temperament. They are no more hot tempered than other people.

A Story of Talleyrand.

During the troublous days of the French revolution, when aristocratic heads were dropping in the basket in the name of liberty, fraternity and equality, Talleyrand lived and prospered by virtue of a marvelous ability to tell just the psychological moment to jump off one band wagon and aboard another.

The name of this French diplomat has been kept alive more than have those of most of his contemporaries by a vast number of anecdotes in which he figures. It was Talleyrand whom Mme. De Stael, homely but brilliant, tried to corner by asking him if she and the beautiful Mme. Recamier were to fast into the water, which one he would rescue. And Talleyrand smiled in his most insinuating manner and replied:

"Ah, madame, but you swim so well, you know."

ECHOES FROM WESTOVER

Westover Happenings Always Interest Our Readers

After reading of so many people in our town who have been cured by Doan's Kidney Pills, the question naturally arises: "Is this medicine equally successful in our neighboring towns?" The generous statement of this Westover resident leaves no room for doubt on this point.

Irving O. Dryden, R. F. D. mail carrier, Westover, Md., says: "My kidneys acted irregularly and my back was weak and painful. I could not stoop for any length of time and was unable to remain in one position long without having dull pains across my back. As soon as I began taking Doan's Kidney Pills I found relief and I continued until I was cured. I have so much confidence in this remedy that I advise all kidney sufferers to give it a trial."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. W. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, N. Y., sole agents for the United States.

USES OF CRIMSON CLOVER.

Value and Limitations of Plant as Described in Government Bulletin.

Probably the most important characteristic of crimson clover is its ability to grow and make its crop during the season when the land is not occupied by the ordinary summer grown crops. In sections where it succeeds, crimson clover can be sown following a grain crop or in an intertilled crop in late summer and will mature a hay crop the following spring in time to plow the land for spring seeded crops, such as corn or cotton. It may even be held for seed as far north as central Delaware and the stubble be plowed under in time for seeding the quick maturing strains of corn. It may be turned under for soil improvement when only six inches high if it is desired to fit the land for early spring seeded crops.

Even if only the stubble be turned under the effect upon the succeeding crop will be marked, especially if the soil be deficient in nitrogenous fertilizers. The plowing under the entire plant, however, will more rapidly correct any deficiency of nitrates or humus in the soil. It is one of the best cover crops for use in orchards and, in fact, under any conditions where the soil is likely to wash during the winter months.

Photograph by United States department of agriculture.

SINGLE PLANT OF CRIMSON CLOVER.

The many uses to which this crop may be put merit a careful study of the best methods of establishing a stand of crimson clover upon a farm.

Crimson clover is frequently called "scarlet clover" and, somewhat less commonly, "German clover," "Italian clover," "French clover," "incarnate clover," "annual clover," etc.

Crimson clover cannot ordinarily survive the severe winters of the northern states. In the northern sections where a fall seeded legume is desired it is suggested that hairy vetch seeded with rye be used instead.

Crimson clover is a "winter annual"—that is, it ordinarily makes its early growth in the autumn, passes the winter in a somewhat dormant but green state, makes a very early spring growth and matures its seed and dies before summer. It makes little or no growth in very hot weather and therefore should not be sown in the spring, except in the extreme north, where it may make a satisfactory growth by autumn, so that a hay crop may be taken from it at that time.

FARMER-BUSINESS MAN.

Farm and Fireside says:

"Many farmers are a great success at growing crops, but they fall down miserably when it comes to getting the money out of those crops. What we need at the present time more than any other one thing is better business talent on the part of our farmers."

The Farming That Pays.

The only permanent agriculture is that which is based on stock raising and permanent agriculture means profitable agriculture.

PLOWED UP EVERYWHERE.

Have your horse's teeth attended to by a veterinarian at least once a year. Spread the grain out thin in a large, shallow feed box to prevent the horse from eating too fast.

A black soil owes its color to the presence of organic matter. This means that the soil is well supplied with nitrogen. In some black soils, however, there is an excess of noxious salts, as in the case of "black alkali" soils.

In carrying a dead hog or sheep take a horseshoe in each hand, let the person on the opposite side put his hands underneath the animal and also take hold of the shoes. This way does not cramp the fingers like taking hold of hands.

Burial bought for 4 cents a pound is a good thing for heading barrels. Take the wooden hoop off the barrel, but not the wire hoop immediately below it. Spread the burial over the top, pound the wooden hoop on, nail it and trim the burial off within three or four inches of the edge.
