The Eastern Ledger has the following to say of the presiding officers of the next Senate and House:

"George M. Upshur, of Worcester, Dr. R. C. Mackall, of Cecil, and John Hubner, of Baltimore county, are already spoken of for speaker. The latter, it is said, would not accept."

General Beth, the speaker of the present House, is willing to be quoted in favor of Mr. Upshur, who he says possesses eminent qualifications for the place.

For the presidency of the Senate, George Peter, of Montgomery, Richard H. Edlin, of Charles, and Clinton McCullough, of Cecil, are most talked about at present. Senator Tunis is favorably inclined towards Senator Edlin."

To this list we would like to add the name of Hon. Robert F. Brattan of Somerset, the newly elected Senator, if our friends will excuse us for wanting every thing over here on the Eastern Shore.

He would make a most excellent presiding officer, being quick and decisive, and well versed in parliamentary usage.

Says Harper's Weekly, the most prominent newspaper journal in this country, edited by Geo. William Curtis, president of the Civil Service Reform League, on the result of the election in New York:

"It settles the nomination of the President by acclamation, and it makes the nomination of Mr. Blaine extremely improbable. It does more. It suggests the question whether a party apparently forced to desert the candidate whom it undoubtedly prefers is not a party in decadence. The election this year seems to show pretty plainly that the Republican party upon a platform of high protection and a vast surplus, with its demoralizing distribution, and with Mr. Blaine as its candidate, would be defeated. There is certainly no indication whatever that such a platform and candidacy would win from the Democrats the State of New York or any other State that they now hold, and since an increase of Republican votes in Republican States would be of no avail, it is not easy to see how such a Republican manifesto would be an earnest of victory."

—It is a fact that is not generally known, that America imports from Europe a large quantity of her hen eggs used for home consumption. This supply is collected from the countries of France, Italy, Bulgaria, Brussels and in small quantities from nearly all the continental countries of Europe, but principally from those named; and shipped by way of the Antwerp steam ship line directly to New York; thence as far west as Chicago. It is claimed that the European egg is superior in quality. Why should America be compelled to get her supply of eggs from Europe? Is it that we can't supply the demand or that it won't pay? That is, other things being better? In Europe it is a business with many people. The eggs are hatched by the incubating process and the hens which are of the most cultivated varieties are fed on food sufficiently nutritious to produce rich eggs. There is a lesson in this, for every farmer of Wisconsin county. Poultry raising, properly carried on, pays about as well as any thing now that engages a farmer. Notwithstanding the manner in which the business of fowl culture is conducted in this country, there are to day, wives who make more clear money from their poultry yards than their husbands on their farms of a hundred acres.

—Of the seven anarchists who were convicted and sentenced to be hanged for participating in the Haymarket bomb throwing in May, 1886, four paid the extreme penalty of the law last Friday upon the scaffold, one having committed suicide the day before, and two having had their death sentence commuted to imprisonment for life.

This closes the first tragedy of the kind the country has ever witnessed. The position which the government was compelled to take in the matter was not altogether unlike that taken in the matter of Chas. J. Guiteau for the murder of President Garfield. Their execution was a public necessity. They and their adherents were the avowed enemies of everything like social order and protection to property. They were the worst type of Red Republicans. The government was compelled to act promptly and decisively for the sake of its own perpetuity.

These men were acting under the guise of organized labor when, in fact, they had no more sympathy with organized labor than with organized capital. Greatly to the credit of the Knights of Labor, their acts were not endorsed. We are glad that the Minneapolis convention did refuse to sympathize with them, as it would have impaired the usefulness of an organization which may be of great service in bettering the laborer's condition.

Wonderful Cures.
W. D. Hoyt & Co., Wholesale and Retail Druggists of Rome, Ga., say: We have been selling Dr. King's New Discovery, Electric Bitters and Bucklen's Arnica Salve for two years. Have never handled remedies that sell as well, or give such universal satisfaction. There have been some wonderful cures effected by these medicines in this city. Several cases of pronounced Consumption have been entirely cured by use of a few bottles of Dr. King's New Discovery, taken in connection with Electric Bitters. We guarantee them always. Sold by L. D. Collier.

Read Examiners' Notices.
We the undersigned having been duly appointed and commissioned by the County Commissioners of Wisconsin to lay out and open a new road between Ebenezer White's gate and the corner of E. J. Adkins' field and close the old road between said points, if in our opinion the public convenience would be promoted thereby, hereby give notice that we will meet at Ebenezer White's gate, on Tuesday, the 20th day of December, 1887, at 9 o'clock to perform the duties imposed upon us by said commission.

Salisbury Advertiser.

The new Railroad Men's Building, which was opened last night in this city, is a particularly striking and characteristic building. Built and presented by Mr. Cornelius Vanderbilt for the benefit of the railroad employees on the New York Central and other lines, it is remarkable for the liberality both of conception and execution. Many rich men in many lands have provided various accommodations for their employees, but we do not know of an instance to be compared to this for the spirit in which it has been carried out. It is, in fact, a building in the construction of which the dominant idea is that of excellence. Mr. Vanderbilt has proceeded on the principle that nothing is too good for the honest and loyal workmen of the great desires to benefit. From the foundation to the roof everything is the best that money could buy. No comfort that could be secured has been neglected. A really magnificent and perfectly equipped club-house is the result, and one which any one who enters it, satisfied with it. If Mr. Vanderbilt had been providing for the wants of a company of fellow-millionaires he might have built a larger house, but he could hardly have devised a more thoroughly appointed one.

And herein lies the manifestation of American ideas. Mr. Vanderbilt, desiring to please and increase the comfort of the railroad men, builds for them and provides for them as much as he would build and provide for himself. The best of everything is not too good for them. He will not put them anything less than an edifice fitted in all respects for the use of gentlemen. Now this is a practical American liberality, and it is a distinctive national type. In Europe the rich man who contemplates a benefaction of the kind sets himself to harmonize the details with what he regards as the set life conditions of the poor men who are to use the building. He works down to the reverse of this. Mr. Vanderbilt, presenting his employees with an almost palatial club-house, implies thereby the belief that there is no luxury, no excellence of architecture, decoration or convenience which American citizens are not accustomed to, or which are to be considered as out of their sphere, no matter how humble their present position. There is true and sound democracy in the gift, and this aspect of it is one which must not be overlooked. We may be sure, too, that the railroad men themselves will be quick to appreciate the breadth and delicacy of the sentiment embodied in their handsome club-house.—N. Y. Tribune.

He Wanted Water.

One of those "English muffs, ye know," went over into "the States" the other day from Canada.

He took lodging at an inn in a border village, which shall be nameless.

He had dinner; and among those who sat at the table with him was the waiting-maid, whom he designated as "servant"; but he received an indignant correction from the landlady, who said:

"We call our servants 'helps'; 'er, they are not oppressed; they are not Russian serfs."

"All right," said the Englishman; "I shall remember."

And he did; for in the morning he awoke the whole house by calling out at the top of his voice, which was like the tearing of a strong rag:

"Help, help! Water, water!"

In an instant every person equal to the task rushed into the room with a pail of water.

"I am much obliged to you, I am sure," he said; "but I don't want no more 'water-ye-know'—I only want enough to shave with."

"Shave with?" said the landlady; "what do you mean by calling 'Help! Water?' We thought the house was afire."

"You told me to call 'servant' 'help' and I did. Did you think I would cry 'Water' when I meant fire?"

The explanation, it would seem, was satisfactory.

Happiness and Character.

It is commonly supposed that it is a comparatively easy and joyous thing to minister to any one's happiness, while it is a grave, difficult, and unwhimsical task to try to improve his character. The truth is they are indissolubly connected, and each is dependent on the other for its perfect development. No happiness worthy the name can exist while the character is imperfect; and the character is improved by the use of the gratifications of this life, but it is not only a very low order, but also essentially temporary in its nature. As the character deteriorates, all enjoyment diminishes, until the very capacity for it is gone. On the other hand, no character can be steadily improving, no life can be growing in value, without infusing a happiness of the purest and most ennobling kind. Every time that we influence another for good, every time we help him to become more faithful and honorable, more industrious and energetic, more self-controlled and generous, we are also helping him to become more happy, and we are also helping him to become more virtuous.

What am I to Do?

The symptoms of Biliousness are an unhappy but too well known. They differ in different individuals to some extent. A bilious man is seldom a breakfaster. Too frequently, also, he has an excellent appetite for liquids but none for solids of any kind. His tongue will hardly bear inspection at any time; it is not white and furred, it is rough, at all events.

The digestive system is wholly out of order and Diarrhoea or Constipation may be a symptom or the two may alternate. There are often Hemorrhoids or even "bleeding piles." There may be giddiness and often headache and acidity, or flatulence and tenderness in the pit of the stomach. To correct all this it is not a cure by Green's Great Peppermint Cure but a trifle and thousands attest its efficacy.

THE CORN PALACE.

The Great Architectural Wonder which the Iowa Have Built.

The Sioux City (Iowa) Journal of a recent date gave the following description of the Corn Palace in that city, which has elicited the admiration and wonder of all who have seen it: "The Corn Palace is in truth a revelation. The imposing exterior of the unique structure inspires in every beholder (just one initial sensation)—wonder. It fronts on Fifth street 210 feet, and on Jackson street 100 feet. Rising from the centre of the structure, as at first planned, 100 by 100 feet, is the dome or cupola, surmounted by a spire 100 feet high. Each of the four corners rises boldly into square pavilions. The extension now includes on the fifth street front Army Hall also, and beyond that, two additional pavilions, companions in form to the four pavilions of the original plan, making, as before stated, a frontage on Fifth street of 210 feet. Imagine such magnificent proportions, broken by the pavilion towers, by projecting minarets, by arched openings and immense panels, and then rising in relief the great roof, above all the towering cupola and spire, connected in relief with the pavilions with flying buttresses—imagine these products clothed all about with the products of the cornfield—decked out with shagreen in a profusion of colors—the harmonious whole, a stately witness of the bustling beauty of the Northwest, the realm of King Corn. It is a spectacle to enchain attention, to command admiration.

"All there is in proportion, dimensions all there is in symmetry of outline, and a desire to achieve admiration—all is there. And all there is in color, in its contrasts, variety and blending is there in a wonderful degree.

"Take the great fronts of the structure on Fifth and Jackson streets, and none who are not seen would believe that such magical effects could be wrought out of the materials of the cornfield. Take the 210 feet frontage on Fifth street, and every square inch of it is wrought into such cunning and representative form of the king of products. The walls rise one harmonious, though variegated, color, address GOLDEN SPECIFIC CO., 185 Race St., Cincinnati, O.

A Snow Storm.

Detroit, Mich., Oct. 23.—A furious gale, accompanied by snow and rain, has been raging on the lakes ever since morning, and it is feared that the loss to shipping will be heavy. A special to the press from St. Louis, Mo., says: "A snow-storm, has been sweeping over Lake Huron and the gale since yesterday. The ground is covered with snow, and it is feared that the shipping will suffer. The snow is falling in such quantities that it is feared the shipping will suffer."

Consumption Cured.

An old physician, retired from practice, having had placed in his hands by an East India missionary the formula of a simple vegetable remedy for the speedy and permanent cure of Consumption, Bronchitis, Catarrh, Asthma, and all Throat and Lung Affections, also a positive and radical cure for Nervous Debility and all Nervous Complaints, after having tested its wonderful curative powers in thousands of cases, has felt it his duty to make it known to his suffering fellow-men. Actuated by this motive and a desire to relieve human suffering I will send free of charge, to all who desire it, this recipe, in German, French or English, with full directions for preparing and using. Sent by mail by addressing with stamp, naming this paper—W. A. Noyes, 149 Power's Block, Rochester, N. Y.

Dr. J. S. Combs, Owensville, Ohio, says: "I have given Scott's Emulsion of Cod Liver Oil with Hypophosphites to four patients with better results than seemed possible with any remedy. All were hereditary cases of Lung disease, and advanced to that stage when Coughing, pain in the chest, frequent breathing, frequent pulse, fever, and Emaciation. All these cases have increased in weight from 10 to 25 lbs., and are now not needing any medicine. I prescribe no other Emulsion of Cod Liver Oil with Hypophosphites, Lime, and Soda, but Scott's, believing it to be the best."

TO THE

Farmers of Wicomico.

There are a great many of you who come to us to have your Wheat ground, you go home and tell your neighbors; they come. All go away satisfied. But this is too slow a way of letting the people know what we can do. We want some from all over the county. You people all along the Nantuxco, who have so many opportunities of sending up grain by water, we would like to show you what we can make out of 60 pounds of Wheat, and you people all along the railroad, put your Wheat on the cars. It will cost you nothing to have it hauled to and from the depot at our place. You have no use for your horses at this season of the year, send a bag up with a few bushels, (no matter if it is a boy he will do just as well as a man) you won't regret it. We don't stop here; if you have any grain of any kind for sale we buy that and pay the highest cash prices for it. We also

"Ironclad" Cloth.

This is our third year's run on it. Thought we made up enough of it the first season: thought the same every season. Every season we have had more customers for it than we had goods. This season we're not going to make that mistake. We'll have enough for everybody, and to last the season out.

We have pretty big ideas of what we can sell. When it sells faster than we expected, rely on it, it must be good.

There isn't as good to be had anywhere for equal money. It's all wool: all cotton wool: long, strong wool: nothing but wool: neither cotton nor flocking to make it heavier or lower the cost.

It's an honest cloth, through and through, with a heap of wear past the ordinary in it.

No other store has it. We twisted and pulled and harried it in all sorts of ways to try how it would stand rough usage, and then took all the mill made.
