At this time I was suffering most terrible pain in my back; limbs, and head, and could find no rest day or night for weeks, and I was growing weaker daily until this kind physician ordered me to take Hunt's Remedy. Before taking half of one bottle I commenced to improve, and after taking six bottles was entirely cured. This was nearly eight years ago and I have had no return of the disease. I have recommended Hunt's Remedy to others in similar cases, and it has never failed to cure. I have also used it for sick headache, and found in it a sure felief. I think it the best medicine made

-Some persons who are constitutional ly one sided have asked us why we published an abstract of Gov. Hamilton's abusive letter last week and the same time commented unfavorably in the editorial colums. The duty of a newspaper is to present important facts to the people. The Governor's letter was important, as coming from the chief executive of the state and treating of the subject of state administration. We gave it as nearly as we could in his own language. If there be any force in his bid for renomination, he may have the full which is the best evidence of the value set upon his claims.

-There is a complaint on the lips of some old democrats in the county which few localities ever heard. In all other places, as far as we known one of the most frequent sources of regret is that youngimen do not take enough interest in politics. The cry with these old democrats is that the young men are too than a theological nature. While his prominent and taking too active a part the canvass. Such remarks do not come from men who are really interested in the party and most assuredly not from any who are far seeing. A party which neglects its young men has a short lease of life before it. The older members of the party die, if they do not weaken their ing amid the conflicts of parties and efforts earlier, and if the next generation is ostracized there are no sinews disappears from the stage, and the wit, a savage fight, and finally, to the herror left to take up the burden. No party will run of its own momentum and it is a sad day when the young men are turned off to seek other attachments. ndge Black's Splendid Talents Lost to the Country.

The death of Jeremiah S. Black will be To the Democratic Conservative Voters of her many other noted citizens. Of all our distinguished men, whether Pennsylvanians by birth or adoption, Judge Black was the greatest in intellectual power of either the present or any past neration. Of his contemporaries, on y two approached him in the grandeur of either legal or political disputation and they will be readily recalled while the names of Thaddeus Stevens and William M. Meredith are green in the memory and pride of Pennysylvania. As a inrist he was the superior of both Stevens and Meredith; as a disputant he was unrivaled by either; as a statesman he lacked the skill and attributes of leaderhip possessed by Stevens and the profound discretion of Meredith; but, taken all in all, he was the greatest, grandest and noblest of Pennsylvania's' sons. Others have achieved more of which the world takes note, but none have been greater in all the great attributes of pub-

die and private character.

A native of Pennsylvania, the life this distinguished man was mainly passed in the State. In 1851 he became Chief Justice of the Pennsylvania Supreme Court, which is there the court of last resort; and he was again elected to with the Democratic Conservative that office in 1854. When Mr. Buchanan became President, he was appointed Attorney-General of the United States; and when Gen. Cass resigned from the illed that post until the accession of Mr. incoln. During that part of Mr. Buchanan's Administration when the agitations which finally culminated in the civil war had already assumed the most stormy character, Judge Black, along with Mr. Dix, Mr. Stanton, and Mr. Holt, stood firmly as a defender of the part toward preserving the Government intact and handing it over to the new to a Pennsylvania Democrat of the day:

Judge Black was a fervent Christian of the Campbellice denomination reverencing the Bible as a divine revelation, and holding fast to the faith of orthodox Protestantism. He was well acquainted with the polemical literature of English and American orthodoxy, such as it existed previous to the advent of modern rationalism; but of late years his occupations were much more of a legal ardent feelings and lively convictions always rendered him a partisan, his cordial sympathies often made him the personal friend of those whose public position he felt himself bound to assail. Thus it was that, while a Democrat of the old school, he was on terms of friendship with conspicuous Republicans, and kept bright the chain of social good feelsects. But now this great athletic figure will not again be heard among us. As we said, there is a great void which will not be filled, and the hearts nearest him when in the fulness of years such a man dies, the event is not without its consolation. His part has been well performed. After a life so long and so consistent, in purpose so high and manly, in action so splendid, the laurel that is laid upon his

Give him a call and be satisfied that he can tell you how you feel and are afflicted better than you know yourself.

DR. THAYER

Is a physician who has had a most successful practice for a quarter of a century, and traveled a greater por-tion of the Old World—England, Ireland, Scotland, France, Italy, Sicily, Switzerland, Turkey; also China and Japan, Central and South America, for study and information. He is competent to treat the most obstinate complaints that have baffled the skill of the most eminent physicians of the day. He does not treat Symptoms that so many complain of, but goes to the Root and Cause of the diseaseand will tell you how you feel better than you know yourself. Therefore, it is obvious that a man that is capable of knowing that cause must be more qualified to make a successful and speedy cure, without keeping the patient lingering along from month to month, or year to year, until the sufferer has almost given up in despair of ever being cured or benefitted. He does not bleed you out of your money at one dollar and two dollars a visit. day after day, and month after month as the general practicing physician does, but gives you the benefit of his long practice and medicine at a fair and reasonable price. DR. THAYER

Treats successfully and guarantees CURE in any of the following complaints: Liver Complaints, Consump ion, Malaria, Diarrhoea, Nervous, Sick and Bilious Headache, Constipation or Costiveness. Neuralgia of the Heart, Heart Disease, Lumbago, Kidney Complaints in their worst worm, Bright's Disease of the Kidneys, Dyspepsia. Jaundice. The people of Chestertown and its arroundings will now have the opportunity f calling on Dr. Thayer; the sick and affliced and, heretofore, incurable, can call and be treated and receive the benefit of this remarkable man's skill. It is certainly surprising that persons afflicted come to him and are told of all their complaints by him almost better than they know themselves as in most cases they have hitherto been tro ted for symptoms and not the cause of disease. Dr. Thayer treats the cause of all seases, and strikes at the root and cause of he complaint. We would advise all, no matter how afflicted, not to delay in giving him

Notes for the Farmers.

Spring hown oats are generally repor-d as worthless, while the fall sown oats re almost invariably promising. This ans that farmers should take time to heir oats in the fall.

Water the cabbage heads with a weak brine and you will keep off cabbage worms. The young insect is readily destroyed by salt and water. This remedy is an advantage to the cabbage, too, as it stimulates growth.

It is stated as a fact for farmers and horsemen that the seed of the sunflower is the best remedy ever discovered for the cure of founder in horses. Immedlately on discovering that your horses are foundered, put about a pint of whole seed into their feed and it will work a perfect cure.

It is a question worth considering how much hoeing and cultivating or rather how little would be given to crops were it not for the presence of weeds. The farmer is apt to say, "The corn or the po. tato field is getting very weedy and must be cultivated," but one rarely says, "The soil must be stirred."

There is little occasion for liquid manure cisterns about a barn when the owner has forethought and energy enough to use a proper amount of absorbents in the stable. Liquid manure is more easily and cheaply adapted when absorbed by stable manure than as a liqnid by itself. It is difficult to handle and to apply, and is more disagreeable also.

To keep lawns free from weeds, special care has to be given during the first year, as many weeds grow so rapidly that they crowd out the grass. Plantain, dandelion, and other perennial weeds are not deeply rooted yet during the brain of morbid fancies. Promptly cures Rhou matter by routing it. Bestores lifegiving proper the first year, and may be easily pulled out, while in later years it becomes almost impossible to eradicate them entirely.

When meal is fed plain to cows they often pass it with but half digestion, or in this shape it is apt to pass into the intestines without being returned with the cud to be remasticated. This creates a loss, and to prevent it mix the feed with wet cut hay, straw, fodder or other coarse feed. It is said that meal fed dry if not mixed with rough feed, will be better masticated than when it is fed wet.

As the country grows older the wells do not give as good water as they did when first dug, particularly if near houses or barns. In time the soil through which water percolates becomes saturated with offensive matter, and sometimes streams of filth find their way to the well from cesspools and stables. Rain water from the roofs of houses after being filtered is much better and always safe and pure.

Very careful experiments made in New York last season, says the New England Farmer, show that the flat culture of potatoes produces the finest tubers and the largest yields. The best results followed the Dutch method of planting, which consists in keeping the surface of the ground level, planting a single eye in a place, covering it six inches deep and allowing but a single stalk to grow in a hill, the hills to be a fool apart eace way.

Many gentlemen we cattle on try homes to take the place of native cows that have been discarded, often wonder at the increased yield of the new comers and express surprise that CATARRH dairymen are so slow at adopting the new wonders. The fact of it often is that the old discarded scrubs would have done quite as well as the new pets had they received the same care and generous treatment that is now being lavished upon these favorites of the master.

Prune and dress the orchard trees and the lawn ornamental trees, with prudent judgment, according to the requirements and habits of the tree; not rough hewing, backing and destroying the symmetry, beauty and often the health if not the life of the tree. Then wash the bodies and up the larger limbs with a mixture of these proportions: one pint of sifted ashes, one pint of lime, one quart of soft soap, one pint of salt; add water enough to reduce it to the consistency of thick whitewash, apply with a whitewash brush. We have found this and somewhat similar preparations to be destructive of insects and their larvæ, healthy to the tree, and giving the bark aug. 18-1y. after a week or so a smooth, clean and growing look.

The very best thing to use in the henhouse under the roosts, or to mix with the centents of the vaults, is a clear, sharp-cut sand, about such as masons would use to make their mortar. It absorbs all the valuable salts of both liquids and solids, and does not bake or or Liver Complaint, for Hop Bitters will all ye invalids of the world, Hop Bitters will make you well and to rejoice.

Sand contains no fertilizing properties to any extent, excepting potash, which is in the form of sillente of notash; but the action of the roots will find them. Sand contains no illeate of potash; but the action of the decomposition of those fertilizers which are very rich in nitrogenous matters liberates or makes soluble that potash or a part of it, so that it becomes a very good fertilizer for all crops, though more valuable as a top-dressing for grass and small grains, or to be used in the hill for corn, than for root crops.

Early plowing aids in securing a firm seed-bed is one of compact, fine earth, and is essential to a good crop of wheat. To make a good crop of wheat must germinate quickly and surely, and grow rapidly, for the tendency is to later sowing on account of the depredations of many enemies of the depredations of the depredations of the depredations of the de by breaking up the ground when it is moist and easily pulverized. It aids further by giving the sun, air and rain, an opportunity to aid the farmer. These are the great disintegrating agents of nature. They will mellow down the clods and solidify the fine earth. They will not only ald the farmer and save him this much work, but they will do it bet-ter than he may be able to do. other fertilizer I have ever used—Perut in Guano not excepted. I do alt each year, growing m not hesitate to say that I believe it is unconsisted as a grain and grass producer. I shall continue to use it as lost is I conduct a farm—if it can be had, believing that with it, and the use aclover seed alone, the highest state of fertility may be reached."

ROBINSON BARNES, Taylor's Island Dorchester Co., Md., writes, June 25, 1883: "I purchased a ton of Orchilla Guano last fall, which I applied to my wheat at the rate of 150 pounds to the acre. It has given me great satisfaction. It has produced more than three times as much wheat as where no fertilizer was put in the same field. The grain is fine and plump, and the heads are the largest I have ever grown. This is my first use of Orchilla, and I want no better manure. I will use it this fall in increased quantity.

JESSE W. DOWNS, Dayton, Howard Co., Md., writes, June 16, 1883: "I have used Orchilla Guano for the past four seasons on wheat, rye, corn and potatoes, and find it equal to any high-priced fertilizer that I have used in the past ten years. On good land it makes fine crops at once, and on thin land, I have watched its action carefully, and can say with truthfulness that it is a sure and permanent improver of the soil. It certainly makes 'poor lands rich.' I am only sorry I did not get hold of it long ago. All who have used it in this neighborhood speak well of it, and will use it again this fall." use it again this fall.
