CHRISTIANS OF EVERY DENOMINATION GREATLY HELPED BY READING THE FULL REPORT OF THESE DISCOURSES WHICH ARE BEING PUBLISHED EACH WEEK IN THIS PAPER.

As he is an independent speaker he treats the subject from all sides in his own peculiarly fascinating way, which has in the past proven to be very helpful to Christians of all denominations, as well as to thousands outside the churches. Pastor Russell has the reputation of bringing many infidels to a full acknowledgment of the Bible as being God's inspired revelation to man. He has spent over thirty years upon the platform as a Preacher, Lecturer, Debater, having as his object the betterment of his fellow man. He is a thorough believer in the doctrine of the Ransom, and delights in the fellowship of all consecrated believers in the Atonement, no matter the denomination. NEW AND HANDSOME PINE BLUFF SANATORIUM, ATTRACTIVELY SITUATED NEAR SALISBURY.

TO INCREASE CAPITAL

Stock To $20,000. Pine Bluff Sanatorium To Be Equipped For Practical Use.

The Pine Bluff Sanatorium Company at a meeting held Monday night, voted to increase the capital stock of the company to twenty thousand dollars. Mr. T. G. Redden has been engaged to dispose of some of this stock in Baltimore, adjacent counties, and in Wisconsin. The funds are needed to finish paying for the building and to provide a working capital, until the institution is on a self-sustaining basis.

This institution should elicit the support of all who recognize that the most valuable asset of a community is the public health. Well equipped sanatoria are all too few, but right here in Wisconsin is a plant that in design and appointments cannot be excelled by any in the country. The building is complete in every detail, and stands ready for the reception and care of patients. As soon as enough stock has been sold to justify the directors in making a start, the sanatorium will be opened.

The location is an ideal one, both as a summer and a winter resort. The building, consisting of a central administration building, with wings to the right and left lies in a beautiful pine grove on a bluff where Tony Tank Creek joins the Wisconsin River. It faces about southeast and is shielded from the North and West by the encircling pine woods, making it peculiarly adapted as a winter resort. In the summer, the prevailing winds are from the South, and these sweep up the river and across the creek unimpeded.

Salisbury, from its advantage of location, with its frequent train service and proximity to the ocean, offers advantages to the health-seeker that can be given by few towns. Nowhere are the attractions of outdoor life without undue exposure stronger than on the Wisconsin River, where reed birds, snail, and rabbit supply plentiful shooting. The river opens on the oyster grounds of the Chesapeake and touches the ducking country of the lower bay. Ocean City and vicinity, only thirty miles away, have wildfowl shooting in season, and the flocks shore bird shooting on the coast in spring and fall. The woodland park in which the sanatorium is situated, is about one and one half miles from the corporate limits of Salisbury, and is reached from this point by either gasoline launch or carriage. The park as well as the great forest of health-giving pine that borders the river here, is full of quail, rabbits, and small game of the season, while the Wisconsin teems with perch, black bass, rock, oysters and crabs.

An attractive booklet issued by the Company describes the plant in detail. Rev. A. H. Hollway is the President of the Sanatorium Company; O. M. Peters, Vice President; D. H. Hoare, Secretary and Treasurer; Dr. George W. Todd, of Salisbury, the prime mover in the enterprise, is the Superintendent and Manager. Directors:—Rev. T. E. Martindale, Jos. L. Bailey, D. J. Ward, F. P. Adkins, W. B. Tighman, S. P. Woodcock, S. S. Smyth, H. W. Hark.

The Governor Promises To Build New Road.

Governor Crothers has promised the County Commissioners of Talbot county to build under the State road laws a piece of road between Easton and Royal Oak, which when completed will give a fine shell road from Easton to the bay shore, a distance of 14 miles. The piece to be built will be about two miles long, and will thus cover the only break in this long stretch of shell road.

Shells will be used instead of stone, as the State Commissioners are anxious to experiment with shells and it will be built exactly like the stone roads. The work will probably be done by the County Commissioners under the direction of the State Commission. Besides this the Commission will contract for six miles more of stone road to be joined on to that completed last year, making nine miles of shell road.

RARE TREAT COMING.

Governor Glenn, Of North Carolina, To Lecture Here On March 1st.

The Methodist Protestant Church has secured the services of one of the best known lecturers in the country today, Ex-Gov. R. B. Glenn, of North Carolina. The committee with Mr. W. E. Sheppard as Chairman, appointed to look into this matter after considerable effort have finally obtained the promise of Mr. Glenn to be here and address an audience on March 1st, coming here from Atlantic City, N. J. His subject for the evening will be "Our Country, Its Dangers and Possibilities, or 'Our Country's Need of Strong Christian Men and Women.'"

It is not often that Salisburyans have an opportunity of listening to a man of the ability of Gov. Glenn and doubtless a large audience will greet him here on the evening of March 1st. Gov. Glenn is one of the strong men of the South and has wielded an influence in his own state and throughout the South that has done much to improve social and political conditions. A strong advocate of temperance, he has done much to bring about the great change in his section on the saloon question. The lecture will be given in Uman's Opera House and the proceeds are to be used for the Methodist Protestant Church. It will be well to hold the date, March 1st, in mind so that no other engagement will prevent attendance at this lecture.

REFUSES TO WED POOR.

Clergymen Announces He Will Unite Only Those With $2,000 A Year.

Rev. Wright Gibson, pastor of McKee's United Presbyterian Church, Pittsburg, has notified his congregation that until the high price of the necessities of life are reduced he will refuse to perform a marriage ceremony unless the intended bridegroom is able to prove he has an income of at least $2,000 a year. "This may appear as a strange statement coming from a minister of the Gospel and the pastor of a flock," said Mr. Gibson, "but I deem it my duty to do my part in preventing at least some of the divorces so prevalent in this country."

"After a most thorough study of the whole question I am of the impression the great majority of divorces are caused by poverty. Of course, I cannot stop marriages, but I am in a position to help, and if all ministers would take the same view of the matter there would be fewer divorces."

"The Land Of Evergreens"

Mr. John S. McMaster, of Jersey City, in a letter to Hon. J. M. Ellwood, of this city, urges the use of the term "The Land of Evergreens," by business men on their envelopes and postal cards as well as by all others in their private correspondence in order that the Eastern Shore of Virginia and Maryland may be generally known by this name.

This name for the lower part of the Eastern Shore has been very favorably received and many towns are having this phrase printed on their picture postal cards.

"The Land of Evergreens" is a very pretty and appropriate name for this section and by using the method advocated by Mr. McMaster, it would be generally known by this title. In speaking of the use of this phrase by business men Mr. McMaster says: "Many business men could profitably for themselves and your section have this phrase printed upon their business envelopes in addition to what they already have printed thereon, and for private correspondence such envelopes can be beautifully used. Such envelopes as these can be furnished by your local printer."

Mr. McMaster included several sample envelopes printed as per his suggestion, several of which are in the office of The Advertiser and can be seen by anyone interested by calling there.

—On account of a mail line yielding the town, the Millington Commission has passed an order for all done to be finished for the next 40 days.

NO EXTRA PAY.

Delegates Twilley And King, On Claims Committee, Are Being Heard From.

The House Committee on Claims has laid the law down that no one will receive pay for so called extra services this year. It has been the custom for previous legislatures to pass bills giving pay for services performed in addition to the regular salary.

Mr. Twilley, of Wisconsin, in an interview published in the Baltimore News states in a very emphatic way his position and also gives his position in regard to the large number of employees in the House. We give the interview in full.

"Ridiculous," Says Twilley.

"It is ridiculous," said Mr. Twilley of Wisconsin, a member of the Committee, "that the Legislature should pay the regular State employees for extra services, and I feel sure that the Claims Committee is going to turn down every such order that comes before it. It reminds me of the waiters in leading hotels, who depend on tips for their incomes."

"There is no question in my mind that both the bills of the William J. C. Delany Company and of George W. King are excessive. The bill of the Delany Company, instead of being $158, is $198 for material for which I am confident I should not have to pay more than $60 in the open market. The bill of George W. King, as referred to us by the House, for $23.50, covers the price of a ledger, two large inkpads and a stamp, as I understand it."

"I do not pretend to be a judge of the proper kind of paper and the cost of such paper as is used in one of these ledgers. It should, of course, be first class quality because the ledger is preserved as a record. It is natural, moreover, for a man to be willing to spend just a little more of another man's money than he would do of his own, and therefore I am willing that both companies should receive just a shade more than I should pay them; but at the outside the ledger, it seems to me, should not cost more than $7 and the ink pads $1 each."

Principle is Involved.

"Of course, these amounts seem very small in a contention of this sort were it not for the principle involved; and, whether small or large, it does not seem right that just because we are spending the taxpayers' money we should be willing to encourage excessive charges on the part of those who sell supplies to the Legislature."

"To be sure, coming down to the question of employees, I voted on the floor of the House for the number we have employed, but it was only after I had made a strenuous fight in the Committee on Organization to have the number of House employees limited to 70, the number of Democrats in the House. I was a new man, however, and was overruled, and as a member of that Committee making the report, I felt constrained to vote for its adoption. The Wisconsin county delegation in the House has only three employees. As chairman of the delegation, I was offered more, but declined, both on behalf of myself and the two other members of my delegation. Having but three, we have less than any other county."

ARMOUR PLANT AT

Ridgely Is Certain. Proposition Made By Town's Business Men Accepted.

The establishment by the Armour of a fruit preserving and juice extracting plant at Ridgely is now a certainty. William W. Seward, a local business man, has been formally notified by O. O. Davidson of the Armour corporation at Chicago, that the proposition made by him and his associates has been accepted and that contracts will be signed at Philadelphia next week, when Armour representatives will be in that city on their way to the National Canners' Convention at Atlantic City.

The plant of the Alliance Preserving Company, heretofore used for packing potatoes, will be acquired by the Armour and used by them this season. The new factory will afford a large market for local berry growers, who have often suffered great loss because just as the bulk of the crop was ready to go into the city markets prices there dropped below a figure allowing much profit.

As a means of developing to a much greater extent the small fruit industry on the Eastern Shore Armour's departure will be watched with great interest and its extension to other communities is regarded as a pleasing possibility of the future.

AS BIRTHDAY GIFT

People Plan Huge Memorial To Washington, To Spread Knowledge, To Fulfill Washington's Wish.

Planning for the biggest birthday present in history to be given by the American people for the father of their country on the 22nd of this month, leaders of the national movement to build a $2,500,000 George Washington Memorial Hall at Washington, D. C., are completing their campaign to assure the project in New York today. With the active support of every national patriotic and learned society as well as thousands of public spirited citizens already secured, the George Washington Memorial Association is now confident that the people of his country will join to celebrate Washington's Birthday this year by offering this living monument to carry out Washington's wish for the "general diffusion of knowledge." If every American will lend a hand during the next few weeks, it is declared, this great auditorium that is widely needed by all the national organizations of the country may be really started on the 178th anniversary of the birth of the first president.

Thousands of children in the schools of every state in the union are also reported to be calling upon their playmates to give a dime to buy one brick in the great structure that will carry out Washington's last wish. Preachers, teachers and public speakers are volunteering from many communities to rally their townsmen for the big Washington's Birthday project. In every town in the land it is proposed to hold mass meetings and raise funds for the birthday gift of the American people to George Washington.

To "promote institutions for the general diffusion of knowledge" according to the parting admonition of Washington to his people, is the object of the proposed headquarters and auditorium that is to be built for all the learned societies of the nation in his name.

"Every American owes a moral debt to George Washington whose last request of his people was for just such an institution as we hope to see raised in his name," said Mrs. Dimock today. "It is to carry out the dearest wish of our first president that we are asking all loyal Americans to contribute to the establishment of the George Washington Memorial Hall which we are assured is the thing most useful to promote knowledge in the nation today. Every contributor will receive a certificate as a holder of a perpetual interest in the big building as well as a souvenir button from our headquarters at 26 East 60th Street, where a substantial support is already being received from all over the country."

Salisbury Circuit.

We are now in the midst of a glorious revival at the Chapel. Fourteen have confessed faith in Christ, many backsliders reclaimed and the church greatly built up. Twenty-two have already joined the church, most of whom are heads of families which means much to the church.

The interest has become so great and the gatherings so large that on account of the small seating capacity of our Chapel, many have to be turned away nightly.

Bro. Jas. Wilson, of Mt. Vernon, and Geo. Bowman have been with us a part of the time and have rendered very helpful service. On Wednesday evening our District Superintendent, Rev. Geo. F. Jones was with us and preached a very helpful sermon on the subject, "The Man of One Talent." At the close of which a man and his wife, both of whom were well fifty years of age, fell at the altar and were happily saved. J. W. Haskins.

Prominent citizens of Wisconsin ask the Legislature to appropriate to the County Commissioners to aid in the erection of a new building for the purpose of creating a new school system.

FISHING WAS FINE

All Right for Those Who Liked It

Fishing is a great sport, but I'm not.

Therefore, fishing and I have never seemed to agree. I've tried it a number of times, but the most I ever got was a mud turtle and a few crawdads. Oh, I've had bites while fishing, but they've always been the kind that called for arnica to allay their enthusiasm. Honestly, if some one should give me a rod worth $100, a railroad ticket and a $20 bill as inducements to join a fishing party, I wouldn't do it again unless Lillian Russell, or some other raving beauty, consented to accompany the bunch and carry my lunch for me. So there!

Enthusiastic fishermen will scoff at this. But I don't care. They never catch anywhere near the number of fish they say they do. An enthusiast will go up in the mountains, stay a couple of days, wading, around soaked up to his neck, come home and tell what whoppers he hooked, when in reality all he caught was a heavy cold and possibly a few good poker hands. If every fisherman caught all the big fish he claims to have landed he'd go crazy.

However, getting down to the story I am about to relate, Geraldine called me up on the phone again the other night.

"Brother Tom and I are going up in the camp fishing to-morrow," she said, "and we thought we'd like to have you go along. Can you go?"

"Well," I replied, "I'm not much of a fisherman, and besides I haven't time to go out and dig for worms."

"Oh, we won't use worms. We'll use flies."

"I don't believe I'm active enough to catch flies. But I might set some fly paper for some if the gum on their legs won't."

"We use manufactured flies," she said, with a rippling laugh. "We'll call for you at 6:30 o'clock to-morrow morning. What about tackle?"

"Well, I played tackle once on a high school football team and got my arm and collarbone broken," I said, "but I'm getting too old."

"No, I mean poles and lines. Have you any?"

"No, but I might get a gunny sack and use it for a seine if—"

"Well, we'll lend you some tackle. We'll come after you in the auto. Is it all right?"

"I don't know. The last time I rode in it it was O. K. I certainly enjoyed the way Archibald let that dog an—"

"I mean is it all right for us to call for you?"

"O, sure, I'll go."

"Fine! We'll be there."

And she hung up the receiver.

They were on hand at 6:30 the next morning and I got in the auto. I sat down on the rear seat and got up again. Brother Tom had forgotten to pick up a hook, so I picked it up. After extracting it, I decided inwardly that it was hard luck for a fish to be caught. I never was much on hooks.

However, it was amusing to Geraldine, so I guess the incident had some good in it.

"O," she said, after I had come down again, "you sat on a hook."

"Yes, so it seems," I replied. I didn't say anything else—just had to think it.

"Did you bring your waders?" asked Geraldine.

"No," I replied.

"Then you'll have to fish from the bank."

"So I'm to be a banker, am I?" I asked.

"Yes," said Brother Tom, "and it probably means you'll let the fish a loan."

Well, we reached the creek about nine o'clock. We got out of the auto and Brother Tom said we'd go up stream about two miles and camp.

"Will you carry the lunch basket, please?" he said to me. "I'll go ahead and see if the path is all right."

I carried the basket. It weighed something like a ton, after I found he had his boots in the bottom, wrapped in a newspaper. We finally found a place to camp. Brother Tom rigged up a line for me and one for himself. Geraldine fixed hers.

"Throw it out in the stream," he said, when all was ready.

I'll bet I pitched that pole 20 feet out into the creek. Brother Tom looked at me in amazement.

"What did you throw your pole and line away for?" he asked.

"O, told me to."

"O, go on," said Geraldine. I was instructed to go down stream to a projecting rock and catch my tackle as it came along. I started. Geraldine cast and caught something right away. She caught me on the left hand.

"Hold on!" yelled Brother Tom. "I will not," I replied, rather provoked. "I'll drop this thing as soon as I can."

I got the hook out of my hand and rescued my tackle. We fished all morning. Brother Tom caught three little trout. Geraldine caught one.

We started for home at six o'clock and got into town about 8:30. We had just four little fish. As we came up the street Geraldine and Brother Tom saw a friend and stopped the auto.

"Where have you been?" asked the friend.

"Fishing," said Geraldine.

"Catch anything?"

"Fifty-three," said Brother Tom. When I got home I wrote "Fishing" on a blank piece of paper, got a pair of scissors and cut it out.

And it's going to stay out out.

THEIR FIRST TRIP.

They had only been married since June and it was their first experience in seeking country board. After riding ten miles in a rattling farm cart they arrived at the door of the farm house.

"And now, strangers," said the old farmer after he had asked about a score of questions. "I want to tell you right now that down here with us you are supposed to go to bed with the chickens." The young man whispered to his young wife and then both climbed back on the farm cart.

"Boy," said the young man, his lips compressed with determination, "drive us back to the station."

The freckled lad grinned and whipped up the horse.

"You uns didn't seem to like the place?" he chuckled.

"No," said the young man. "We have often read about crowded farm houses, but when it comes to shoving us off to the henhouse that is going a little too strong. I guess we'll stay in the city."

Looking for Trouble.

"Harold," she said, soothingly, "what you ask is impossible."

"Well," said Harold, dejectedly, "my friends were right, after all."

"How so?" she asked, curiously.

"When I spoke to them about you, they raised their hands and said, 'What, her? Oh, she's impossible, impossible! At that time I didn't know what they meant, but of course now I do,' and Harold turned and drummed mournfully on the window pane.

Being Broad-Minded.

"You say that you do not like him and yet you are going to vote for him?"

"Sure. My personal feelings should not influence me in a matter where the public welfare is at stake. He is a smart man."

"What causes you to believe that he is so smart?"

"He met my wife before I did and could have married her, but did not."

Merely Intimating.

"Do you mean to say that politician's opinions are for sale?"

"No," answered Senator Sorphism, "I won't accuse him of selling his opinions. But I will say that his attitude toward some cases resembles that of an expert witness."

A SMALL THOUGHT.

"Ah! when I look out upon the vast ocean and the limitless sky it actually makes me feel small."

The Average Man.

Call him a "bad dog" and "twit" make him glad. But call him a "rummy" and he'll get fighting mad.

Fair Warning.

"You are a likely-looking chap," said the glib-tongued proprietor of the summer hotel, "and there are lots of pretty girls around here. Why not spend your time love making?"

"I may," responded the young salesman on vacation, "but there is just one thing I wish to impress upon your mind."

"And what is that?"

"I am not one of those chaps who would rather make love than eat."

Hard to Please.

"I am in hard luck."

"How so?"

"Told Milly she was the first girl I ever loved, and she said she had no time to waste training mollycoddles."

"Well?"

"Then I told Amy that I thought I had loved many before I met the real thing in her, and she asked me if my proposal to her was the result of a cultured taste or only a forlorn hope."

Getting Rid of Them.

Stub—Why is the world is Cranker devoting so much time to flying those model airplanes? Does he expect to equal the Wrights?

Penn—No, it's a pet scheme of his. To-day he sent up his wife's dog and it never returned and to-morrow he is going to send up his wife's parrot if a strong wind is blowing.

A Question.

"Are the colors fast in that new tub suit I bought, Jane?"

"That depends on how you look at it, ma'am."

"What do you mean, Jane?"

"Well, when I want to wash it I'd call 'em fast the way them colors ran."

Matter of Business.

Harker—That fellow Bright is playing both ends against the middle from a business point of view.

Parker—How's that?

Harker—He operates three pie bakeries and has just put a new cure for indigestion on the market.

The First and the Last.

"How is it that she came to put on so many airs?"

"She went to a finishing school."

That was the last of it."

How to Cook Lima Beans.

Navy beans are just as good as lima beans in this: Cook fresh-shelled lima beans in boiling water until tender, press through a sieve, add salt and pepper and a tablespoonful of butter to each pint of pulp. Stir in two well beaten eggs and bread crumbs enough to roll. Wrap in greased paper and at serving time bake in quick oven for 20 minutes. Serve with tomato sauce.

FAIR PLAY FOR THE LEGISLATURE.

There seems to be a tendency among the leading daily papers of the State to take for granted that the present Legislature is not going to make good; that the pledges of the party in its platforms are not going to be carried out—or if carried out at all, they will be redeemed in such a way as to evade the spirit of promises made to the people of the State when they were asked to vote for its candidates. While admitting that the Legislature has failed to make good, the desire of the people as far as running the Legislature on an economical and business basis, is it fair to presume that the pledges of the party will not be redeemed?

It is unquestionably bad policy for a party to pledge itself to the enactment of certain measures then after securing the votes of the people by means of these promises, to refuse to redeem them. A little of this and the political party which practised it will find itself in the position of the boy, who cried "Wolf," "Wolf," and the people will read its platform pledges with a cynical smile upon their faces and refuse to believe in the pledges of a party, which has so lightly treated its promises in the past.

The Democratic party stands bound, before the people of the State, to pass certain legislation at Annapolis this year and should, by all means redeem those pledges in spirit as well as in letter. Nor are we prepared to believe that it is the intention of those who are steering the course of the party at Annapolis to evade these specific promises. There may be some honest difference of opinion as to the best way to carry out these pledges, but until it is proven that the party intends to repudiate its platform, let the Legislature be given the benefit of the doubt.

PINE BLUFF SANATORIUM.

In another part of this week's issue of the ADVERTISER will be found an article on the Pine Bluff Sanatorium. This is an enterprise which deserves the support and help of this community, dealing as it does with one of the most dangerous and deadly enemies of mankind—tuberculosis. Anything that will tend to lessen the ravages of this dread disease, should receive the hearty co-operation of all, and this institution should not be crippled by the lack of private or public support.

The gentlemen who have worked so hard to get this institution on its feet are entitled to the thanks of the citizens of this county. The lecture and exhibit made here by the State Tuberculosis Association made a deep impression upon all who saw it, and did much good by calling the attention of the public to the danger of allowing the disease to spread, and an organized attempt was made at the time to do something to better our local sanitary conditions. It is to be hoped that this movement will continue until something practical is done to better conditions in this county and city.

In the meantime the Sanatorium will provide a place where those who are afflicted with this terrible disease can get treatment. It has been demonstrated that tuberculosis can be prevented, and, in the earlier stages at least, can be cured.

MORTGAGE TAX REPEALED.

The bill introduced by Mr. E. E. Riley, of this county, in the House last week, to repeal the mortgage tax, as far as it applies to this County, is, we believe, a step in the right direction. As pointed out by the ADVERTISER, in an editorial some time back, the keeping of this tax on the mortgage books, was working a hardship on this County inasmuch as other counties did not have it. Mr. Riley is speaking of the bill, called attention to the fact that Wicomico County, and especially the city of Salisbury, did not have enough money to pay the mortgage tax, and money should put anything in the way of foreign capital seeking investment here. This is sound reasoning, and as long as Wicomico is as large a borrowing community as it is at the present time, inducements should be to persuade capitalists to invest their money here, instead of making them pay a tax which is not required in other parts of the State. As stated before this tax should apply equally to all parts of the State, or Wicomico County should be freed from its provisions.

SAYS WOMEN WILL

Be Strong As Men. Road To Beauty Is Road To Health, Declares Harvard Physical Director.

Dr. Dudley A. Sargent, Harvard's physical director, says that woman is fast nearing the day when she will approach the capabilities of man, not only in mental powers, but also in physical strength. He says that woman has begun to realize that the surest road to beauty of face and figure, as well as health of body, lies through the path of physical culture.

"Society, with its fads and frills, has gone in for this embracing of muscle and body development, 'style' being responsible for its present popularity," says Dr. Sargent. "Outdoor games, such as tennis, golf and horseback riding, have served to make the college and society girl stronger, while her sister of the shops and factories finds recreation and muscle nourishment in the factory gymnasiums and public gymnasiums.

"While man has had the advantage of centuries of training along this line, woman's ambition was latent, but now that she has started towards the intended goal her development and progress will be rapid. Woman's habits are better than man's, and her physical welfare is not retarded by business cares and worry."

CAPE CHARLES BOOM.

Pennsylvania Buys Twenty Acres And Car Shops Are Expected.

It has been learned from the very best of authority that the Pennsylvania Railroad, into whose hands the New York, Philadelphia and Norfolk Railroad has fallen, will locate at Cape Charles car shops and locomotive works. The deed for the land was recorded in the County Clerk's office last week, and it is expected in a few months the works will be under operation. The site is on about 20 acres of land fronting on the county road leading out of Cape Charles.

The Board of Trade is alive to the situation and are making efforts toward the building of a $20,000 High School there.

Permanent improvements are now being made to the wharfage property of the New York, Philadelphia and Norfolk Railroad, and it is reported the coaling of their steamers will be changed to the south side of the harbor.

B. C. & A. Steamer Stuck Fast In Virginia.

The Baltimore, Chesapeake and Atlantic steamer, Eastern Shore struck ground near Rues, at the mouth of the Accomac river she went ashore early Tuesday morning in the fierce blow which swept the Chesapeake.

There were no passengers on board the steamer when she grounded and no one was hurt. The fact that the wind has kept the tide at an unusually low mark made fruitless all efforts to float the stranded vessel.

Recommends Dr. Long's Book.

Two days ago I received a book written by Dr. J. I. T. Long, entitled "Knowledge vs. Ignorance" about 8 by 6 inches 216 pages, nicely bound, print as large as the average, one dollar. And right here I ask myself have I ever received so much for so little money? Will say no, I have not, for this book is full of light, strength and power of mind and carries with it greater force than I have ever seen in so much print, and I earnestly recommend it to all readers, no class left out, but especially to young of both sexes.

Deafness Cannot Be Cured.

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a running sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; pins cases out of ten are caused by catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness caused by catarrh—that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars free. F. J. CHENEY & CO., Toledo, O.

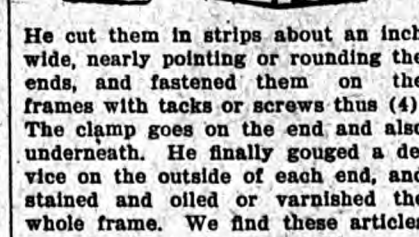

Sold by Druggists, 75c. Name Hall's Family Pills for catarrh.

TWO IDEAS OF REAL VALUE

Eastern Writer Describes Bookrack of Cheap Construction—Dripping Pan in the Oven.

My son made four very useful book-racks from one soap box 18 inches deep. He detached the bottom and cover, sawed the frame that was left according to the diagram (1). There were then four frames like this (2). He whittled the ends into shape (3), then sandpapered the surfaces so they were free of marks and very smooth.

He next cut and flattened out tin cocoa cans, heating them in the stove till they had the appearance of iron.

He cut them in strips about an inch wide, nearly pointing or rounding the ends, and fastened them on the frames with tacks or screws thus (4). The clamp goes on the end and also underneath. He finally gouged a device on the outside of each end, and stained and oiled or varnished the whole frame. We find these articles neat, durable and very useful.

The Dripping Pan in the Oven.—Just one very disagreeable experience, resulting from the boiling over of the juice of a baked blueberry pudding in my orange oven and its dripping down through the holes around the edge on the chimneys below, where it burned on instantly like enamel, was enough to teach me the wisdom of putting a dripping pan of the required size into the oven to heat and then placing the juicy article in dripping pan. If the juice would boil out, it ran over into the dripping pan. I find this device saves me much annoyance and labor.

TAFFETA TO COME IN AGAIN

Indications That It Will Take Former Place as Material for Petticoats.

Although dress fashions must take first place in feminine minds, the petticoat cannot be altogether neglected, for it follows in the wake of the continued evolution. Soft materials, whether silks or cottons, have become the most desired for petticoats since the sheath gown first appeared. We now, however, may expect a change. The narrow skirts will be no longer necessary and knickers will gradually go, while indications would seem to show that the petticoat of taffeta will regain first place, although for a time no stiffness will break the line of the gown and no rustling will herald the approach.

The closely fitted petticoat of satin or chiffon taffeta, with adjustable lingerie ruffles, has come back, and it will be joyfully received. Some of the most beautifully embroidered and lace-incrusted ruffles are being shown for wear with skirts of this kind. They would hardly fail to prove attractive to even the most ardent admirer of the passé petticoat.

For those who prefer petticoats of silk without lingerie trimming there are pretty ones of messaline, sun-plaited, and trenched to smoothness around waist and hips. These are in no way bulky, but they provide just the desired frill from that one naturally associates with lovely, irascible woman.

For Group.

Lobelia is a sovereign remedy for croup. Get a small bottle of it and when a child awakes in the night with a dry, hoarse cough, which mothers who have croupy children soon learn to recognize, begin giving lobelia in small doses until the child vomits. The drugist will tell you how to give it. Vomiting removes the mucus from the throat.

To Wash Clotheslines.

A good way to wash clotheslines is to wind them on a long board and scrub them with a scrubbing brush. You will find that in this way you keep them from getting tangled. It is no hard to wind them when you wash them in the tub.

—All of the passages of Scripture from which Rev. W. T. M. Beale, pastor of the Wicomico Presbyterian Church will take the subjects of his sermons during this month have been suggested by members of the congregation. Tomorrow morning the text will be Ex. 4:10 "The Power of Weakness" tomorrow evening Ps. 30:5, "God's judgement and His mercy."

—Estimates made by the Postoffice Department indicate that $800,000,000 one cent pieces are taken annually by the rural letter carriers from letter boxes for the payment of postage on mail deposited. Complaints against the practice have become so widespread that the Postoffice Department has issued instructions that after February 15th the practice will be discontinued.

—In view of the extent to which the practice of placing loose coins in boxes by rural patrons has grown, and the delay in the delivery and collection of mail and the hardship imposed on rural carriers incident thereto, commencing Feb. 15, rural letter carriers will not be required to collect loose coins from rural mail boxes. Patrons should enclose coins in an envelope or wrap them securely in a piece of paper, so they can be easily and quickly taken from the boxes. Carriers will be required to lift such coins and where accompanied by mail for dispatch, attach the requisite stamp.

—Rev. Dr. and Mrs. W. D. Buckner and two children had a very narrow escape from suffocation and probably cremation last Saturday night when their home at Pine Bluff, Ark., was almost entirely destroyed by fire.

The family had retired for the night and when they were awakened, the flames were shooting all around them and they had to flee in their night clothing. The entire house was gutted and the furniture practically ruined by fire and water. A library valued at several thousand dollars was also badly damaged. Dr. Buckner is a brother of Mrs. Harry Dennis, of this city and has many friends here.

—A horse which was attached to a trap in which were Misses Minnie Mills and Elizabeth Henry ran into the Adams Express Company's wagon yesterday afternoon about three o'clock and before the wheel could be separated the front axle of the trap was broken into. The Express Company's wagon had stopped in front of the Commercial building and the driver had gone upstairs to deliver a package, when the accident occurred.

From the statements of those who witnessed the accident it seems that the horse became scared of an automobile and shied into the wagon. Before any serious damage could be done Mr. William H. Clark grabbed the horse by the head and held it while the young ladies got out of the trap.—Cambridge Record.

—Mrs. Jesse D. Price gave a very handsomely appointed tea at her home on North Division Street, from 4 to 6 yesterday afternoon in honor of her sisters, Mrs. Porter, Mrs. Hornthal and Mrs. Duseh, of Norfolk, Va. The house was elaborately decorated for the occasion, and a profusion of yellow jonquils, ferns, and shaded candles added to the beauty of the affair.

Moovling with Mrs. Price in the drawing room were Mrs. Walter Duseh, Mrs. J. B. Porter, and Mrs. Irma Hornthal, of Norfolk, Va., Mrs. Charles Brookhead and Mrs. Harry Wallis. In the library were Mrs. H. L. Brewington, Mrs. Wilmer Galleste, Mrs. Ohas. LeViness, Mrs. R. H. Phillips, Miss Nellie Wallis, Miss Emma Powell and Miss Elizabeth Wallis. In the dining room refreshments were served by Misses Maria Bligood, Victoria Wallis, Mary Edwards, Alice Wallis and Miss Lillian Edwards.

—Senator Price, chairman of the Finance Committee, will introduce the new Reassessment bill, the provisions of which are similar to the bill under which the last reassessment was made. Under the bill the counties will be divided into districts ranging from one to eight districts. The Governor will appoint two assessors at large for each district, while the County Commissioners will appoint an assessor for each election district. These assessors will receive $5 per day, while the local assessors will receive an additional $5 for clerical services to the assessors. The assessment is to begin the first Tuesday of next May and is to be completed within 90 days, although the Governor has the right to extend the time if necessary. The assessors will all meet at the courthouses of the respective counties on the first Tuesday in May.

—Ground Hog Sees Shadow. If Mr. Ground Hog was not too lazy to come out on the 2nd day of this month, he certainly must have seen his shadow, and therefore we must look for six weeks of bad weather. There are those, however, who insist that news of the high price pork is now extending and reached his under the ground the day he was afraid to

HOW TO SAVE FRUIT CROP

Spraying at the Proper Time and in the Right Method Productive of Good Results.

Professor Ball of Utah and other workers on the Pacific coast have revolutionized spraying for the codling moth where this insect alone is to be combated. They find by one or at most two sprayings, judiciously timed and properly applied, almost the entire fruit crop can be saved.

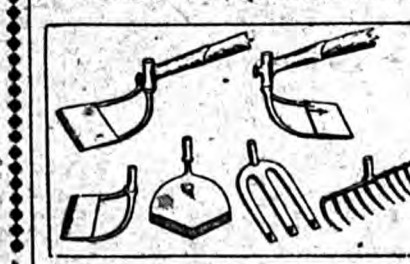

Ball's method is based primarily on two important facts. He claims that wherever upon the apple the eggs of the first brood are laid a great majority of the young worms coming therefrom crawl to the calyx and enter there; secondly, that immediately after the petals fall there are two cavities at the calyx end, the stamen "bars" roofing the lower of the two cavities.

The young larva enters the apple by eating through the floor of the lower cavity. Ball's idea was to get the poison lodged in sufficient quantity in the lower cavity, where it would do some good. To accomplish this he sprayed from above, while the apples were still erect. But for a few days after the petals fall these stamen "bars" are so tightly pressed together as to make it very difficult for the liquid to penetrate to the lower cavity. By waiting a week or ten days, even though the calyx lobes are closing at that time, these bars have shrunk, enabling a careful workman to place a big dose of poison in the lower chamber, where it is needed. The nozzle should be held above the apples, and made to give, not a mist, but a forcible and substantial spray, directly down upon the fruit. Later than this, however, spraying with these principles in view would be of little avail because the calyx lobes are almost completely closed. Ball's work shows that enough poison is retained from two early sprayings to kill an average of 90 per cent. of the worms of the first brood and 74 per cent. of the second brood. To accomplish good results the spray must be a forceful one used abundantly and from above the fruit.

set for use as a "Dutch" hoe or draw hoe as desired. A rake, earthing tool, or sharp-pointed hoe, can also be fitted to the one socket and handle, says Popular Mechanics. Each tool is provided with a top pin, which fits in and revolves in a hole in the socket. The tool is fitted in position by a strong screw, which binds in a tapered hole in the pin in such a way that neither tool nor screw can work loose.

SHRUBS MAKE FOR BEAUTY

Tonic is a Good Thing for a Debilitated Plant as Well as Human Organism.

If you have shrubs that do not seem to be doing well it is a good plan to dig out the soil for a radius of a couple of feet and replace with rich soil and well-rotted manure in proportion of about two-thirds soil and one-third manure.

We always have a heap of well-rotted manure in one corner of the garden or orchard, where it will be handy for use about the yard, and when we see a plant or tree that needs nourishment we go to this heap and get a part of a wheelbarrow load, finish the filling with good soil and fill in about the sick plant and keep it well stirred for a few days, and the way that plant booms is a caution.

You should understand that plants have ailments just as human beings do, and there is apt to be trouble with the circulation and assimilative organs, and you should proceed accordingly. Remember that a tonic is a good thing for a debilitated plant as well as the human organism.

Sometimes we have a tree or shrub that is too erratic in its growth and may need cutting back to cause it to assume a more pleasing shape. Where your lawn is small and not suitable for large trees there are scores of small yet beautiful specimens that can be used.

In the blue spruce there is an evergreen that grows slowly and will not crowd the view, and yet its gorgeous color and symmetry of form make it the king of ornamentals; then there is the arbutus vitae, a beautiful tree that adds grace to the landscape, and its vivid green is charming.—J. O. Shroyer.

Cultivation Helps Fruit. Cultivation through the summer will help bush and vine fruits to grow without check and to form fruit buds for next season's crop. Cultivation of fruit trees should be discontinued early enough so that the young growth will have time to mature and harden before the growing season closes.

Itching, bleeding, protruding or blind piles yield to Doan's Ointment. Chronic cases soon relieved. Finally cured. Druggists sell it.

DOWN ALONG THE

ARKANSAS

BRIDGE ACROSS THE RIVER NEAR CLEVELAND, OKLAHOMA

A FINE BOTTOM FARM

Rivers are great studies. They are as changeable as a woman, yet ever keep in the same general course. Confined within certain limits with moods that vary, they wander on, obedient to the laws that hold them to their course. They are sometimes tempestuous and careless as men, wiping out at one sweep the farms that have claimed their ancient channels and asserting once again the full sweep of their individuality. Sometimes they sleep the peaceful repose of a babe. At other times they burn away and leave but the bed, from which the fevered waters rise again to commence the elemental cycle of vapor, cloud, rain, rivulet and river. And each of these rivers has its own individuality. Some are long; some large; some deep; some shallow; some quiet; some turbulent.

The Arkansas is not long enough to be classed among the longest rivers of the world, though among the tributaries to the Father of Waters it is second only to the Missouri. It is not large and does not spread out the accumulated waters in wide sheets; yet at times, when the Arctic rain gods pour out a deluge, and the lower courses are fed by the inflowing creeks and rivers, its magnitude is majestic, inspiring, destructive. Nor is the channel deep. For the mountain pebbles and the rich, red sand and the plain white sand and all other varieties of sand from the mountains to the gulf are constantly filling in, scooping out, rolling and gliding down the swift current, piling in bars, building up islands or leveling the inequalities of the bed. And the flow is strong; the sweep of the waters is mighty power unharmed, to go on, ever, to the sea.

Whether at the snow peaked springs where it rises in the Rockies and goes dashing down the mountain defiles, whether fretting its way between the man-built walls through the city of Pueblo or gliding through the pebbly foothills, whether winding its silvery way across the Colorado and the Kansas plains or gliding on between the Oklahoma bluffs and hills, whether watering the mistletoe bedecked elms or the canebreaks in the state whose name it bears, the Arkansas has a beauty, a charm, that makes one love to dwell thereon. Anywhere along its course its acquaintance may be made—a sort of chance acquaintance—and one feels a nobler, wider sentiment, like that which comes from the contact with a broad, free-minded man.

However, since it cannot be considered as a whole, let the acquaintance be narrowed to that beautiful sweep of the stream flowing between the Osage reservation and Pawnee country, Okla., where on one side or the other, and sometimes both, farms have been hewn from the wooded valleys; where the sandstone bluffs rise, sometimes 50, sometimes 100 feet, with niches where the great horned owl, the peregrine falcon and the huge turkey vulture find a nesting site, and where, in olden days, the eagles reared their young. Here the red waters hurry down, down, down, with a splash that mingles with the rustle of the leaves, the shrill of insects and the cries of birds, in one sweet symphony that drowns the troubles, the stress of life, and gives new vigor to the one who can separate himself from his business or his strife, as he learns new things first hand from God's great book.

Here along the bottom roads the great cottonwoods rise, with massive pillars that reach up and up, over a hundred feet, just right for a giant's walking stick. Great pecan trees, huge burr oaks, walnuts, hickories and three or four smaller varieties of oak, black, white, red and chin quapin, are here. Then there are great hackberries with the corrugated and winged bark, and here is that beautiful black coated member of the rose family which has been designated by the natives as the shittim wood of the Sacred Book. The wood is hard, the hardest of the forest trees, with the possible exception of the persimmon; but the persimmon seldom gets beyond the bush stage.

A Veil Hint. If one wants to look ugly and slovenly, let the veil stretch and hang loose under the chin. No matter how well it is adjusted everywhere else, the appearance of a woman is ruined. A seller of imported veillings gives this hint to overcome this difficulty. After the veil is smoothly pinned and fastened on the hat and nape of neck, first try to draw back the objectionable fullness and secure it with invisible hairpins. Should they still be a pendant, loose and under the chin, give it a little twist and turn it under. The

WANTS HER LETTER PUBLISHED

For Benefit of Women who Suffer from Female Ills

Minneapolis, Minn.—"I was a great sufferer from female troubles which caused a weakness and broken down condition of the system. I read so much of what Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound had done for other suffering women I felt sure it would help me, and I must say it did help me wonderfully. My pains all left me, I grew stronger, and within three months I was a perfectly well woman."

I want this letter made public to show the benefit women may derive from Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.—Mrs. JOHN G. MOLDAN, 2115 Second St., North, Minneapolis, Minn.

Thousands of unsolicited and genuine testimonials like the above prove the efficiency of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, which is made exclusively from roots and herbs. Women who suffer from those distressing ills peculiar to their sex should not lose sight of these facts or doubt the ability of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound to restore their health.

If you want special advice write to Mrs. Pinkham, at Lynn, Mass. She will treat your letters as strictly confidential. For 20 years she has been helping sick women in this way, free of charge. Don't hesitate—write at once.

Paris And New York May

Now Be Able To Converse

It may be a long while yet before persons in Paris and persons in New York are able to speak to each other, "over the wires," but it is certain that long distance telephoning is being rapidly developed. Thanks to the new Tardien microphone, telephone conversation between Vienna and Paris—1400 kilometers—has been established, and the line will soon be open to the public. New York-Chicago is the next triumph. Dr. de Gerin, the inventor's assistant, hopes to register as a step toward the New York-San Francisco line, the crowning achievement he has in mind.

Dr. Tardien, of Paris, the inventor of the new microphone explaining the principles of the apparatus said that the main feature of it is the special combination of drums, which at the transmitter raises the voice two and three octaves above the normal.

This high pitch gives sound vibrations of a shorter and sharper character than those produced by the ordinary tone, and it is just these sharp, short vibrations which travel the farthest and easiest. "At the receiving instrument," continued Dr. Tardien, "the pitch of the voice is lowered to the normal again."

Experiments made between Stockholm and Kongsberg via Copenhagen and Berlin, a distance of 2456 kilometers, gave excellent results, conversation being carried on with ease. This was the more remarkable as the line included three sections of submarine cables. An interesting proof of the new microphone was afforded by a trial communication between Copenhagen and Haparanda—nearly a thousand kilometers—when official tests recorded a current of only one volt. The line included a 90 kilometer submarine cable.

New Tardien microphones have been in use at the Paris central battery for a year or more. Dr. de Gerin will shortly come to America to make a number of experiments for the benefit of the telephone authorities.

Meeting Of The Board Of County Commissioners.

A large delegation of the citizens of Freeland was before the Board and submitted a proposition that if the county would furnish tilings to drain the town of Freeland they would lay the tiling. The board accepted the proposition and Engineer Clark was instructed to make an estimate of the cost of laying the tiling and submit same to the citizens.

F. Leonard Wallis was before the Board to ask that the Board reconsider its action in ratifying the report of commission on Mt Herman—Nassawango road. Attorney G. W. Lilly was also before the board in the interest of Mr. Lemon on the same subject. Board held the matter open for consideration.

Commissioner Ward was authorized to purchase tiling for use on the road near Mr. Swelgart's farm.

Commissioner Taylor and Engineer Clark were empowered to repair the bridge at Quantico and Gum Mills.

Commissioner Traut was authorized to purchase an acre of ground to be used for caseway at Parnell's crossing.

Mr. E. J. D. Phillips of Hebron having declined his services as an examiner on the Hebron—Quantico road to be straightened and widened Mr. W. C. Brady was appointed in his place.

GOOD ROADS AID FARMERS

Many Millions of Produce Hauled Over Country Roads of United States at Big Cost.

There is no difference among well informed people as to the cost of bad roads; nor is there any longer a question as to where the burden of the cost is most severely felt. There are hauled over the country roads of the United States every year $25,000,000 tons of produce, equal to 50 per cent. of the railway tonnage of the country. The average haul from farm to railway is 9.4 miles and the average cost per ton per mile is between 23 and 25 cents. In Germany over better roads the cost is ten cents per ton per mile at the maximum and seven cents per ton per mile at the minimum. The loss suffered by the American farmer and consumer, figured on the basis of the German wagon road toll, is immense. If it were saved from year to year it would soon constitute a fund sufficient to improve all of the common highways of the country.

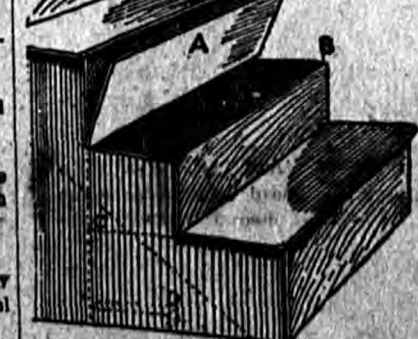

L. W. Page, who has collected a great deal of valuable information on this subject, and who talks about road improvement intelligently and reasonably, is not among those who clamor for the federalization of the highways. On the contrary, he deprecates the all too prevalent idea that nothing can be done in this country until the federal government puts its hand to the wheel, or its hand into its pocket. The states, in his opinion, should take the initiative, or, at least, prove their sincerity by setting an example for national government.

the wall and a banister forms the outer end, about six inches of the step may be left on either side of the lid to obviate this difficulty.

FARM HORSE WITHOUT SHOES

Should Be Allowed to Go Without Shoes for at Least Three Months Every Year.

Every farm horse should, if possible, be allowed to go without his shoes at least two or three months every year. In fact, it is hardly necessary to shoe a horse on the farm unless he is to go on the hard roads or work on hard soil where he is required to do much heavy pulling. Without shoes a horse's hoof will grow out and regain its natural shape which is always more or less changed by continuous shoeing. Horses condemned by the street railways companies hoofbound, cracked and otherwise injured have been taken on farms, their shoes pulled off, and turned out to pasture, thoroughly cured within six months. In fact the farmers around the large cities used to find this class of animals a cheap supply, many of which turned out to be first-class horses, showing that all that was needed was rest on the ground without their shoes.

DISK HARROW IS VERY USEFUL

Rapidly Coming Into Vogue as Most Important Tillage Implement in Grain Farming.

The disk harrow is coming into vogue as the most important tillage implement for grain farming. Nothing will conserve more moisture by using it on stubble after harvest and before plowing time than the disk. It may be used as a cultivator for summer fallowing. On ground where small grains are to follow such crops as beets or potatoes the use of the disk will often make plowing unnecessary.

Care of Farm Team.

The farm team should not be highly pampered, but should be kept in a good vigorous condition and not allowed to become run down and become thin in flesh and feeble.

BILLS AT ANNAPOLIS.

Proposed Legislation Of Local Interest Offered For Passage.

Senator Price has introduced a bill authorizing the County Commissioners to issue bonds for the purpose of paying off certain obligations incurred by advancing money to the Board of School Commissioners. The preamble of the bill is as follows:

Whereas, The rapid increase in population in the County of Wicomico and the very large increase in the number of pupils attending the public schools of Wicomico County, it has been necessary for the Board of County Commissioners of Wicomico County to purchase two lots of ground at great expense in the city of Salisbury and erect and equip public school buildings thereon, and new buildings at Pottsville, Hebron and other places in Wicomico County, and the public necessity for more school accommodations is absolutely necessary.

The bill provides for a $30,000 bond issue at a rate not to exceed 5 per cent in denominations of $500 each, and exempts said bonds from all State, county and city tax. They are to be dated as of July 1, 1910 and the first six bonds are to be due and redeemable Jan. 1, 1916 and every year thereafter six more bonds are to be redeemed until the entire issue is retired. After reimbursing the County for its outlay in the lots and buildings already bought the rest of the issue is to go to the Board of School Commissioners for the purpose of providing lots and buildings thereon, and for no other purpose.

Regulate Time For Catching Oysters.

Mr. Wingate has introduced a bill to fix and regulate the taking of oysters with rakes and tongs in waters of Wicomico County and Dorchester. This bill provides that any resident in Wicomico or Dorchester counties desiring to take or catch oysters, shall first apply to the Clerk of the Court of the county wherein he may reside and obtain a separate license for every person to be employed on such boat and that said bill be in effect from the 1st day of October until the 25th day of the following April. The bill further provides for the use of the waters of the Nantuxek river in common by the citizens of the two counties.

For City Wharf.

Mr. Twilley has introduced a bill providing for purchase or condemnation of a city wharf, for the use and benefit of the City of Salisbury. It provides also for the building of necessary improvement on said wharf, and gives the Council power to regulate by ordinance the use thereof, and to rent such portion as may not be necessary for the use of the city. The Mayor and Council may purchase any property or properties in fee for said purpose and sell part of all in fee.

The bill also amends the present charter so as to provide for the appointment of one person, not a member of the Council, to act as clerk to the Council, Collector of City taxes, and Treasurer, who shall be the same person, to serve for the term of two years. The said officer to receive a salary of $1,000 per year.

The city is also given the power to borrow $10,000 on its notes or other evidences of its indebtedness; provided, that the payment of these shall be made from the general taxes levied for the use of the city, and can not be paid by the levying or collecting of any special tax for this purpose.

A bill has been introduced by Mr. Twilley ratifying and confirming a deed given by the School Commissioners to Samuel Q. Johnson for land purchased of them by Mr. Johnson on Bull Street.

Other Bills.

Among other bills which have been introduced, is the one providing for a general reassessment of the property of the State outside of Baltimore City, introduced by Sen. Price as chairman of the Finance Committee. This bill is practically the bill decided upon by the Federal Association of County Commissioners. This bill provided that the counties be divided into districts, of from one to eight for each county. The Governor is to appoint two assessors at large for each district, and the County Commissioners are to appoint an assessor for each election district. The assessments are to be made by three assessors in each assessment district and then be submitted to the County Commissioners. The Assessors appointed by the Governor are to receive $5 per day and those named by the Commissioners are to be paid the same amount and $2 addition a day for serving as clerks to the assessors. The assessment is to be completed in 90 days although the Governor will be empowered to increase this limit if he deems it necessary. The assessment is to begin on the first Tuesday of May next.

A bill has been introduced by Dr. Ashby making the employment of children under 16 years of age for more than ten hours a day a misdemeanor. Senator Linthicum has introduced a more stringent pharmacy law. Senator Campbell has introduced an amendment to the Oyster Law allowing a person to take up to 30 acres of oyster bottom instead of ten at present, and 600 acres in the open instead of 100 at present. It also provides for the postponement of the sliding scale of rentals for six years making the rentals $1 per year until this time. A bill providing for state wide suffrage for women has been introduced by delegate Patton.

A bill has been introduced providing for the repeal of the compulsory Vaccination Act. This bill is exciting considerable interest as there are many who have always been opposed to this measure.

The bill introduced by Mr. Twilley in the House and Sen. Price in the Senate providing for the repeal of the mortgage tax in this County provided that all taxes now due must be paid.

PROPERTY AT OCEAN CITY

Under New Management. Change Means Progress.

A despatch from Snow Hill states a deed has been placed on record there by which the Atlantic Hotel and other property at Ocean City are transferred to the Atlantic Hotel Resort Company. "This is a strong and influential company, which owns and manages hotels at leading seaside resorts along the Atlantic Coast from Maine to Florida. Included in the transaction, besides the Atlantic Hotel, are the Seaside Hotel, the electric light plant, the laundry, and the large area of building lots. The property embraces that formerly owned by John F. Wagonman, of Washington, and later by the Ocean City Development Company, of which the late John W. Woodland, of Baltimore, was the chief stockholder.

There is no reason why Ocean City cannot be made one of the leading resorts of the country. If the management wishes the proposition as it should, and the railroads unite in making the rates and schedules so as to attract the people.

LENTEN SEASON IS HERE.

Tuesday, Pancake Day. Some Old Customs.

Last Tuesday was Shrove Tuesday, the Tuesday following Quinquagesima Sunday, and so called from the old English word "shrive," meaning to confess. In the olden time people confessed their sins on this day in preparation for the holy season of Lent, turning over a new leaf and carefully putting down the old. They laid aside their worldly garments and prepared to put on the sackcloth and ashes of penitence and gave up feasting and merry-making for abstinence and prayer.

On Tuesday everybody was supposed to get his digestion in order for the meager fare of Lent by the eating of pancakes. Just how pancakes came to be associated with the Tuesday before Lent is one of the lost traditions of popular memory, but the most common explanation is that when Lent was kept by a strict abstinence from meat all through the 40 days it was customary to use up all the lard and drippings in the making of pancakes.

As the family could not consume the immense number of pancakes prepared, it was customary to call in all the apprentice boys and servants about the premises, and this was done by a bell, which was called the pancake bell. The bell rang at 11 o'clock in the morning and, as everybody was hungry from waiting and anticipation, there was a grand rush, and the pancakes disappeared faster than snipers and coffee do nowadays in the popular eating resorts at the quick-lunch hour.

Called Flapjacks in South.

Pancakes are sometimes called in this country, especially in the South, flapjacks; but they do not appear to be made exactly in the manner common three or four hundred years ago. An old writer says, "the sulphury, neck-romantic cook doth mingle the water, eggs, spices and other fragrant, magical enchantments and put them little by little in the frying pan of boiling scald." He adds that some people went mad from eating too many or from the "magical, tragical enchantments."

When the householder dealt out the pancakes to the crowd a quart of good ale went to every man, a pint to every woman and a gill to every child. With these souvenirs we can well imagine the popularity of Pancake Day at that faraway period. The first pancake in the baking went to the dog of the house—they tried it on the dog then just as they do now—and the last to the person who was the latest in getting out of bed that morning. The final pancake was supposed to be the heaviest and most indigestible, and probably to contain the dregs of all the "magical, tragical" enchantments that the cook had dropped into the batter and that had sunk to the bottom.

Gives Up Frivolity.

With Tuesday the Christian world gave up frivolity, or is supposed to, and seriously decides upon "doing something" for Lent. Some never get any farther than the resolution: others "cut out the drinks and cigars" for nearly a week and the girls abandon the candy habit—until the chap they like best brings round a box of chocolate creams, with plenty of marshmallows, the next time he comes, and then they decide to continue the chocolate, but to leave off marshmallows—at least when plays are given that they don't care for. There are many ways of keeping Lent—strictly, too—so that you will scarcely know it's Lent at all. But, of course, you don't wear haircloth next to the skin nor live on herbs.

Boarding-house keepers and the heads of households generally are very well satisfied to see Lent come in this year, as provisions are so high. It will be possible to set forth a very scanty layout and to use it as a text on the duty of everybody to keep the penitential season. Ash Wednesday ushered in the season of penance and ashes.

Capt. Leatherbury Suffers Fire Loss At White Haven.

Capt. William K. Leatherbury met with quite a heavy loss by fire at White Haven Friday night, when his tomato canner and oyster packing house were completely destroyed. In the oyster house was stored 2,500 bushels of oysters, besides several tubs of shucked oysters ready for shipment. In the tomato cannery Capt. Leatherbury had about 600 cases of tomatoes, which he fortunately shipped on the steamer Virginia on Friday afternoon. Both buildings and their contents were completely destroyed, causing a loss estimated at more than $4,000. Capt. Leatherbury was on the steamer Virginia bound for Baltimore when the fire occurred.

He had $3,400 insurance on burned property, placed through White and Truitt, brokers, as follows: On oyster house and fixtures, $1,900; on tomato house and contents, $1,500.

BURNED TO DEATH

In Fire On Docks. The Charred Body Of Watchman Collins Found After Crisfield Fire.

From the fact that the charred body of the night watchman, J. D. Collins, was found in the ruins, it is thought that foul play may lie back of the $30,000 fire which destroyed the depot and docks of the Baltimore, Chesapeake and Atlantic Railway Company at Crisfield Thursday. The State Fire Marshal, Thomas J. Ewell, acting on the suggestion of State's Attorney Gordon Toll, of Somerset county, is coming down to investigate.

Boatmen who were out in the harbor about 1 o'clock Thursday morning say the fire started in the northwest corner of the building. The only fire kept in the building was in a small stove in the women's waiting room, and that stood in the southwest corner, at least 150 feet from where the first flickering blaze was seen.

Collins was a veteran employee of the company and always to be found at his post. It is thought doubtful that he was burned while asleep in the depot. Mare Green of the police schooner Helen Bangham, which lay near the dock, heard persons in an altercation on the landing a few minutes before the fire was discovered, and the theory is entertained that the watchman was killed either in a fight with rowdies or by thieves whom he whom he caught trying to rob the offices, and who afterward fired the building to hide their crime.

The townspeople turned out of their beds to help the firemen save adjoining property, which was threatened by sparks set over the town by a high wind. All the local records and money of the Company were consumed and a considerable quantity of freight that was on the dock.

A Romance of Progress

By ALBERT PATSON TERHUNE
ISAAC NEWTON—The Man Who Turned Accidents to Account

Good Dame Newton, farmer's widow, of Woolstrop, England, was in despair at the stupidity of her only son, Isaac. To the horror of all the neighbors the lad could not grasp the first principles of farming. He neglected his work in the fields, failed to show any interest in crops and was forever sneaking off into corners to read some book on science or mechanics. He had picked up a taste for such matters at the Grantham Grammar school, and they weaned him away from all concern about his mother's thriving farm. He took to devising mechanical toys in off hours, and even constructed a couple of sun dials.

Isaac actually wanted to be a scholar. A scholar, to the simple farm folk, meant a man in a tattered, rusty gown, who was glad enough to eat the crust of charity and who accomplished no good in life. Yet for such a miserable career Isaac begged leave to throw away an assured future as a prosperous farmer. And at last, worn down by his pleadings, the mother consented. At 18, in 1660, Newton went to Cambridge university. There he promptly went mathematic-mad. He discovered the binomial theorem and worked out the processes since employed as "Differential and Integral Calculus." Before he reached the age of 27 he was professor of mathematics at Trinity college.

Then the plague swept England, a scourging epidemic that wasted whole communities, paralyzed trade and progress, and killed men, women and children like flies. The dead were carried out of the cities each day by the hundreds of cartloads. Knowledge of the plague medicine and of Discover "Attraction" sanitation was a limited and the outbreak could not be checked. The colleges closed their doors. Newton, deprived for the time of occupation, returned to the Woolstrop farm.

There, in enforced idleness, he spent many weeks. One day, as he sat under a tree in his mother's orchard, an apple fell to the ground, grating his head as it passed. Newton started up from the drowsy into which he had drifted. The fall of the apple set him to thinking. Why had it fallen? When it had become detached from the limb why did it drop downward? Why did it not hang in air or fall in some other direction? What mysterious force drew all detached bodies to the earth as a magnet draws particles of steel? Since the days of Adam apples had tumbled earthward. Yet no one except Newton had troubled to consider the reason. The idle scholar set to work on the problem offered by this accident.

And the result of this study was the discovery of the great fact known as "The Attraction of Gravitation." Next he sought to connect this new discovered "attraction" with the force which holds planets to their orbits and prevents them from whirling off into space. Galileo, years before, had proven that a falling body drops 16 feet the first second and with arithmetically increased force for every subsequent second. Using this knowledge, Newton began to calculate the force necessary to hold the moon to its orbit around the earth. This, in spite of many dreary disappointments, he succeeded, after 16 years' struggle, in doing.

He again startled the world and made for himself new foes by discovering that rays of white light were not single in color, but were made up of countless rays of many colored light. From this followed a fresh working out of the theory of the rainbow and a masterly treatise on optics.

Then came the heaviest misfortune of Newton's life. For 20 years he had been at work on a scientific discovery and had at last worked it to a completion. All the papers representing that 20 years of labor lay one Work of Twenty years on his study table. His pet Years Destroyed, spangled diamond, leaped upon the table, and while frisking there upset one of the candles. Before Newton could run to the rescue the precious papers were a charred, undecipherable mass of ashes. Instead of flying into a rage of bemoaning the loss he lifted the mischief-making boy gently to the ground, saying only:

"Oh, diamond, you little know what mischief you have done." Then he set calmly to work on the 20-year task again. But the shock proved too much for his overstrained nerves. He broke down mentally and physically. To make matters worse he was practically penniless.

But with tardy generosity the government came to his relief. He was appointed warden of the royal mint, and so well did he discharge his duties that, in 1696, he was promoted to the office of mint master. Queen Anne, in 1705, made him a knight. Thus England was spared the eternal disgrace of allowing her greatest scientist to starve.

In 1727, at the age of 85, Newton died. At his deathbed some fellow scientists spoke in high praise of the dying man's profound wisdom.

"Wisdom?" echoed Newton. "I feel like a child who, wandering along the shores of the boundless seas of learning, has merely picked up a few tiny shells."

HOW MANY?

Mr. "Silver King," on the occasion of his silver wedding, thought it would be a fine idea to give a dinner to the prominent people of the village and neighborhood. He sent out the invitations and ordered the dinner. Then he decided it would be a good scheme to have some music. A friend told him there was an excellent quartet that could be secured, and sent the leader over to see the host.

"Kin yes sing?" he asked.

"Yes, sir, we can sing very well."

"Have you dress suits, for them's necessary?"

"Yes, sir, we all have evening clothes."

"How much will it cost?"

"We got two guineas apiece for such an engagement."

"I know, but how many of ye is there in this quartet?"

"Four."

"I don't think I shall go to the poker party to-night."

"That's one of the truest things you have done for quite awhile."

"Jinx owes me $5 which he was to pay me at the party to-night, and when I had decided to give to you to go shopping with, but I am really too tired to go out; guess I'll let it go this time."

"That is just like you! If it was anything you wanted to do you would go in a minute, but when it is something for your wife you are too tired! You will go to that poker party to-night or you will hear from me!"

Soft Seams.

Lady, began he summer tramp at the vine-covered gate, "can't yer help a poor victim of an accident?"

"What kind of an accident?" asked the housewife, suspiciously.

"Why, mum, last night while I was sleeping a dozen beams fell on me."

"Gracious! That was terrible! How did it happen?"

"Why, I was sleeping in a flower bed and they were moonbeams."

TO PREVENT LOSS.

Brown—My wife is getting awfully strenuous. Yesterday she broke a plate over my head. What would you advise me to do?

Jones—Well, you might buy cast iron plates.

The Why of It.

He says he tries so hard to win. But all his luck has fled. At a time, if you're peep in. You'd find him still in bed.

After the Honeymoon.

"Now is the time a good many young people are beginning to think about marriage," laughed the crusty bachelor.

"Gracious!" exclaimed the pretty miss in surprise. "Don't you think you are behind time? June is the time when young people think about matrimony."

"Oh, no, that's when they are married and haven't the time to think. Now is the time they are doing the serious thinking."

On the Job.

"Trying to make love to me!" said the pretty typewriter, with feline anger. "The idea! You are only a boy. I should take you to raise."

"That may be, Belinda," laughed the fresh elevator boy, as he gave the wheel a turn, "but it looks like I am about to take you to raise."

And then the car shot up toward the 'steenth story.

Their First Trip.

Mrs. Hardapple—Yes, Hiram, these railroads advertise that they do everything possible for the comfort and pleasure of their passengers.

Mr. Hardapple (looking up)—I know it now, Maria. There is even an ax and saw in a glass to remind us of the wild woodpile down at home.

THE POSSIBILITIES OF RICE

Numerous Ways in Which It May Be Prepared, and All Are Good.

While you are wondering, just as every housewife does these days, what in the world you are going to cook next that will be both appetizing and inexpensive, do you ever think of rice—plain rice?

There are so many ways one can use cold boiled rice. A favorite dish with the Italian housewife, and one that is well worth trying, for it is both economically and easily prepared, is called risotto. Cover the bottom of a well-buttered bake dish with finely chopped onion and put over it a thick layer of the cooked rice, then a layer of pimento, or sweet Spanish pepper, cut small. Then another layer of rice and a sprinkling of chopped onion. Cover with milk and bake slowly for an hour. Take out of the oven and sprinkle over the top half pound of grated cheese; bake for 15 minutes more, or until brown. Then serve.

Cold rice beaten with olive lemon juice and cayenne pepper, oil, taste, garnished with chopped par, to and served on crisp lettuce leaves, is an appetizing salad.

Grandmother would take a half cupful uncooked rice, one egg, dash of nutmeg, a cupful of sugar a a beat them together in an earthen bowl. Then she would add three pints of fresh milk, put in moderate oven and bake slowly for two hours, stirring frequently. Serve at once.

A Slight Jolt.

Diggs (reading)—Here's an in this paper of a man who paid out 600 for a dog. Now, what do you think of that?

Mrs. Diggs—Oh, that's all right, I suppose.

Diggs—But you don't seem to realize the magnitude of the sum, my dear. Just think—$10,000 for a pet. Why, that is more than I am worth!

Mrs. Diggs—Yes, but, of course, some pets are worth more than others.

A Return Short.

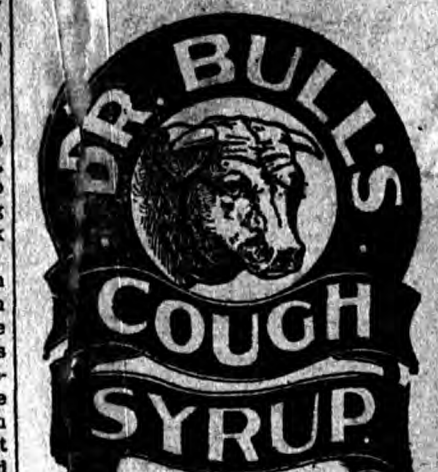

"If you want to be up to date, Mrs. Hasher, you'll have to get a side-board," remarked young Slopap.

"And if you don't come up to date with your payments soon, Mr. Slopap," rejoined the landlady, "you'll have to get outside board."

THEY MERELY TALK.

Chawles—During your long night watches before the mast don't the waves seem to talk to you?

Old Salt—Yep. But they don't ask foolish questions.

DIRECT PRIMARY BILL.

The question of the passage of a compulsory Direct Primary Law is occupying considerable space in the dispatches from Annapolis, and apparently the proposition is meeting with some little opposition.

Wicomico County has tried direct primaries and gave the men nominated under them a larger majority than the party nominees have received for some time, and we believe that a large majority of the party in this county is strongly in favor of making all future nominations by this method.

As pointed out in the ADVERTISER shortly after the primary election of last summer, there are some changes needed in the law if the true purpose is to be accomplished. One of the most important of these is to have the ticket marked inside of the voting booth by the voters, as is now done in our general elections. The plan of envelope voting, with ticket marked outside makes it almost necessary for rival candidates—or rival tickets, as the case may be—to have a complete organization of their own—with a full equipment of workers at the polls to mark the tickets of the voters as they come up. This was done last year in several of the districts and gave voice to the only dissatisfaction with direct primaries heard. Let us have secret ballots in the primaries as well as at the general elections, and there will be less use for factions in the party each with a complete working organization.

NO WILSON LAW WANTED.

Wicomico has always been proud, that here no one could have any just cause to complain of the way our elections are conducted. Our ballots have been fairly and impartially arranged and our election machinery has not been used for the benefit of either party. It is stated that there are a few politicians here who are trying to extend the provisions of the Wilson Law to this County. We have no criticism to make of our neighboring counties that have adopted this law—the conditions there may be such as to justify extreme measure, in order to protect themselves from the negro vote—but such a law is not wanted or needed here. The Democratic party cannot claim that it is in danger of losing this County in face of the largely increased majorities of the past few years. Nor is there any reason why they can not continue to carry and govern this county without the help of an unfair ballot law.

LOCAL BILLS.

In another section of this week's issue of the ADVERTISER will be found a number of bills—applying to Wicomico County, which have been introduced at Annapolis. We have not attempted to give the bills in full but have tried to sift out the main features of the same.

The money expended in having the bills introduced, printed and sent out to the newspapers of the State is money well expended, and for the first time papers which cannot stand the expense of having a special representative at Annapolis all the time is able to keep in touch with the legislation proposed and to keep its readers posted as well.

A good many local bills have been introduced and passed in previous years the character and contents of which were not known outside of a very narrow political circle. These bills may or may not have met with the approval of the communities affected, but at least the people are entitled to know the character of the bills proposed and before they become laws.

IS THE DEMOCRATIC PARTY AFRAID TO TRUST ITS OWN VOTERS?

It is reported that some of the Democratic leaders in this State are opposed to the enactment of the law to amend both parties to nominate all candidates by direct vote of the people at primaries conducted under the provisions of the law. This opposition, it is claimed, whether it comes from the majority or from that and success of the Democratic party. New conditions have arisen, and the old political order has passed away. The Democratic party in Maryland, if it is to continue in the public confidence and is to be continued in the conduct of the State Government must adjust itself to the new conditions and conform to the ideals of popular government.

According to The Sun's dispatches from Annapolis, Governor Crothers is convinced that the direct primaries all over the State will not only promote better government, but that they will be a distinct advantage to the Democratic party. The Republican party, he says is solid against the direct primary system because of the negro vote. That party at last fall's election objected to the disfranchisement of the negro upon the theory that the ballot is safe in his hands, that he is sufficiently intelligent to vote, and some went so far as to contend that the negro vote is a guaranty of good government. The Governor believes that this theory should be put to the test. In many of the counties and in parts of Baltimore city the majority of the Republican party is black. Put upon these negroes, therefore, the Governor says, the responsibility of making their party nominations.

As Governor Crothers says, a strong argument in favor of direct nominations is the fact that in those communities where they have once been tried they have never been abandoned. The people have been satisfied with them and their operations, and especially in those counties or municipalities where there is so large a majority that a nomination by the dominant party is considered equivalent to an election. Where parties are evenly divided, party conventions have always been constrained to make nominations that would appeal to those voters who held the balance of power. A convention is nearly always under the influence of those who control the party organization. Those persons who are in politics or have some personal interest in the matter usually attend the primaries when delegates to conventions are elected, and only a small portion of the electorate takes any part, even indirectly, in the nominations. By the direct nominations nearly the full party vote is apt to come out, if there is any contest, and a man who can be nominated by this system must be popular and will generally make a strong candidate at the general election.

While the last Democratic State convention did not pledge the enactment of a compulsory primary law, there can be no doubt that the sentiment of the party favors it, and the sentiment of the party is undoubtedly in favor of requiring the Republicans to make their nominations in the same way. The responsibility is on the Democratic party, and if the compulsory primary bill is not passed, the fair inference will be that the Democratic party is afraid of its own voters.—Baltimore Sun.

Money in Muskrats.

According to Fur News the trappers of the eastern shore of Maryland will receive nearly $500,000 this season for muskrat skins. "In Dorchester County alone," says, trappers have been paid $100,000 for this season's pelts. To say nothing of what they received from the sale of the meat, this alone more than paying the rental of the marshes, the cost of the traps and the expense of looking after them.

"One fur buyer of Hooper's Island, in lower Dorchester, has paid out $30,000 for muskrat hides this season, while others have bought almost as heavily. The prices offered by buyers this season ranged from thirty to seventy-five cents a hide, the hide from the kitten or young rat, which had heretofore been considered almost worthless, bringing the former price. "The big black rat commanded the top of the market always, the black fur being considered the finest as well as the most durable. The fur of the brown rat is less valuable because of the color and coarseness of the hair. It generally brings from fifteen to twenty-five cents less than the fur of the black rat.

"There are a few sections of the United States where the meat of the muskrat is used as food as it is here on the eastern shore of Maryland. In many sections of the country the little rodent is looked upon with disdain by those who claim to know a good thing when they see it, but when they talk of it as being an unclean animal and unfit for the stomach of man it only goes to show how little they know of this, the cleanest of all animals that live.

"The great majority of people are prejudiced against the muskrat because it bears the name of rat. By any other name it would eagerly be sought after by epicures. The roots and herbs of the marshes, on which alone it subsists, are thoroughly scrubbed by the little animal before it will allow them to come on its table.

"The house in which it lives, made of the marsh grasses and towering above the high water mark, is always as dry as a powder magazine and spotlessly clean, so there is nothing about the much despised rat of the great marshes to make it other than what it really is, the cleanest and most wholesome little animal that can be cooked and served.

of the California Fig Syrup Co. and the scientific attainments of its chemists have rendered possible the production of Syrup of Figs and Elixir of Senna, in all of its excellence, by obtaining the pure medicinal principles of plants known to act most beneficially and combining them most skillfully, in the right proportions, with its wholesome and refreshing Syrup of California Figs.

As there is only one genuine Syrup of Figs and Elixir of Senna and as the genuine is manufactured by an original method known to the California Fig Syrup Co. only, it is always necessary to buy the genuine to get its beneficial effects.

A knowledge of the above facts enables one to decline imitations or to return them, if upon viewing the package, the full name of the California Fig Syrup Co. is not found printed on the front thereof.

A Progressive Affair

Marjorie was a pretty girl. Now, just as water runs down hill unalterably, so will pretty girls be discovered by wandering youths—and Teddy was extremely bored with life, anyway, when his eyes first fell upon her. Therefore, his case was extremely severe.

He grabbed the young man just coming out of the door of the summer hotel and almost choked, such was his emotion. "Who," he got out, "who is that perfectly wonderful girl just getting out of the green canoe?"

"That's Marjorie Whitcomb," said the detained young man. "She lives farther down the lake."

"Well, she can have me," said Teddy, as he watched her approach the hotel.

That was the acme of praise from him. He straightened his tie nervously as she passed him. There was a good deal of excuse for his excitement. Marjorie Whitcomb had curly, butter-gold hair, brown eyes with even, pencilled brows and a complexion that defied tan and sunburn. Moreover, she walked like a young goddess and, as a goddess, was used to adoration.

Fifteen minutes later Teddy was bowing before her and ten minutes after that was paddling her down the lake in her own canoe.

"He is certainly the swift boy!" commented the astonished young man who had been shanghaied into performing the introduction.

In the three days of that week which Teddy passed at the lake he kept up the same speed, much to the disgust of other young men who admired Marjorie. He danced, swam, rowed and walked with her, and did them all equally well. When he left everybody said that it looked like an awful lack of the real thing both sides. Therefore Marjorie had always distributed her favors, but she had seemed quite content to be with Teddy.

Then the next week-end Teddy and his brother Bert came down together. To the amazement of the rocking-chair brigade, which had picked out the little Summers girl to pair off with Bert, the brothers both shadowed Marjorie for one day and then Teddy retired to the background and the little Summers girl, while his brother Bert duplicated Teddy's regard. Bert had cut out Teddy, who had submitted moreover, the little Summers girl was quite pretty enough provided one ceased looking at Marjorie.

All the way back to the city Teddy listened grimly to Bert's rhapsody on Marjorie. When they both returned for the next week-end, accompanied by their mutual friend Joe, who was six feet tall and romantically dark, Teddy kept grinning to himself in a jovial manner, which irritated the other two vastly, especially as he declined to explain.

"There's Marjorie!" the infatuated Bert cried, as the steamer neared the dock. "She said she'd meet me."

He indicated her to Joe with all the repressed pride of one on the inside track. Marjorie had on something pale yellow and fluffy and Joe was visibly struck dumb.

"Gee!" he breathed at last, when he had partially recovered. "Say, she's a winner!"

"I'll introduce you," promised Bert, kindly.

That evening at the hop in the hotel Joe danced with Marjorie six times, walked the veranda with her half an hour and otherwise obliterated Bert from the landscape.

"You will bring over your good-looking friends with you, will you?" inquired the highly gratified Teddy of his disgruntled brother.

Time had added him in getting over his own violent attack and subsequent betrayal and the little Summers girl was looking extremely pretty that evening.

"Aw, cut it out!" was the sharp reply. Bert's wound was fresh and he was strongly irritated. He was at the point where rage and jealousy and surprise were warring violently with no odds. "Joe's doing it on purpose."

"And Marjorie is letting him," reminded Teddy. Revenge sometimes is sweet.

"I believe," said Bert, with an effort, "I'll ask Daisy Summers for the next dance."

"I believe you won't!" said Teddy, firmly. "There's a perfectly good-looking bunch of girls sitting over in that corner and you go pick one out and leave my girl alone."

Look favored the abandoned young man and as Bert, with a dream of a Gibson girl on his arm, waltzed by Joe and the treacherous Marjorie he held his head high.

Marjorie's house guest's brother from the east arrived the following day and naturally as hostess she had to transfer her attention to him. The jolt was a hard one for Joe, who fancied that he had made such headway the evening before.

"Marjorie," explained Bert to him, seriously, "is mighty pretty, but she's a heartless, reckless little flirt. If you'd been sensible, like Ted and myself, and picked out the steady sort of girl you'd have some one to go around with up here." He departed with a great show of haste to where the Gibson girl smilingly awaited him.

Teddy grinned at him. Then he turned the grin on the forlorn Joe.

"Cheer up!" he said. "You'll feel better next time you come. Why, just look at Bert and me. Excuse me; I'm going walking with Daisy Summers."—Chicago Daily News.

HUNTING LIONS IN AFRICA

THE DEAD LION

PLAYFUL PASSENGERS

I had been out all the morning looking for tracks of lion, with no result, and on arrival at camp I was greeted with the news that a lioness had killed a big goat before sunset the previous day while the goats were out grazing. I had lunch, and was doubtful whether to go or not, as it seemed a very poor chance so late in the day. Elme, my Somali, had been taken ill, so I had no shikari. However, B., who had very kindly foregone the opportunity of going for her himself, lent me Haid, and off we went about two miles, where we found the horns and one or two small pieces of goat. Haid quickly got on to the track, which he followed at the rate of four miles an hour, until we got into a valley next beyond one in which I had got a big lion a few days before, which we believe was the father of the cubs. Getting on to stony ground made things more difficult, but he still followed the tracks at a good pace, and we went some way along a small nullah until Haid began to think we might be near. So he and I went forward while the others went up the nullah. However, the track kept to the side of the nullah, and we presently got to a part where the nullah divided and thick bushes grew all round. Here we walked about searching for the track. Presently we heard a whistle, so Haid and I rushed round to where Syce was standing with rather a scared face, pointing to the bushes close beside him. Just then I saw the lioness slinking between the bushes about 80 yards off, and, as she was disappearing, I had a snap shot. There was a growl, and the beast jumped into the air and immediately disappeared. We ran, Haid telling me to make a detour so as to come on the lioness from an unexpected quarter; but it had gone on, and we soon got on to a pronounced blood track, which took us some way, then turned back at an acute angle more than once. It was now dusk, and the tracks had taken us back to the spot where I had first shot. So Haid, vowing that the beast must be severely wounded or it would have gone further, said we must give it up and return the next day, when we should certainly find the beast dead. So confident was he that the men sang their triumphal lion song all the way back, which, of course, had the effect of bringing out the entire camp, which was a case of counting chickens before they were hatched.

Next day we were off again in good time, and on getting near the place came right on to fresh tracks. At first I thought it was a different lion and that we should find the other dead; but this soon proved not to be the case, as we found blood. The tracks were only visible here and there and appeared to lead uphill towards the valley where B. had shot a lion. However, we searched about the bushes with rifles at the ready for some time, until we heard a honey-bird chattering lustily in the nullah. These honey-birds come and call to guide a man to where there is a bees' nest, in the hopes that the man will get at the honey which they themselves cannot get at. But they also have a way of calling men if they see a lion or a snake. Haid took it as a good indication; so we left the bushes and followed the bird up the hill to the top, where it appeared to have nothing more to show. Finding no tracks Haid decided on a search down below where we had previously been; but to cut a long story short, after two hours' search we found that the bird had been quite correct, and we took the track again at a point just beyond where we had left it. Another three hours was spent looking for the tracks over in the next valley, the men being divided into three parties. Ultimately Haid pointed me out a smudge in the gravel soil which he said was the lioness. Although I had done a good deal of tracking, I could see no shape at all; but on inspection we found some twenty yards further back, an undoubted track on some softer ground. This led us into a flat place with clumps of dense bush intersected by bare ground; any of these clumps might have held an army of lions. This was the most critical part. The lioness was wounded, and we did not know how badly. She might have sprung on us from any of these dense bushes and, in fact, the tracks in one place led around into a bush we had already passed. Luckily, she had gone on. A long wait ensued while the men were gathered in and given instructions. Haid and I then crept noiselessly round to a fairly open space at right angles to the direction of the track, while another man was sent forward to a large ant-hill to mark. Presently Haid whispered: "There she is; shoot!" and I could see a dark-colored beast threading its way slowly through the bushes, heading straight toward us and about thirty-five yards off. As I put up my rifle it saw us and turned back. I shot and hit it behind the shoulder, the bullet lodging in front of the chest.

We were at once in hot pursuit, though I was delayed and actually prevented from having a second shot by a cartridge jamming. The lioness was soon found in a dense bush dead. She was hauled out and photographed. On cutting her open we found she was full of milk, so we decided to go the next day and see if there were any cubs about.

Three of them were found in a crevasse near the spot where the lioness had been killed the previous day. They were the size of half-grown cats and looked half asleep, and not at all resentful. They were rather dull, sleepy little beasts for the first week or two, but woke up when feeding time came. We kept three goats for them, when showed little objection, except when the latter dug their claws in.

They commenced teething a week after we got them, and when the canines began to appear they suffered considerably, one in particular getting quite cantankerous. They traveled each day on a fast mule, a camel being too apt to jolt and a donkey not fast enough. On arrival at camp and at the midday halt they got a drink from the goats, which traveled along, keeping pace with the mule all the way. We were making for the coast by Abyssinia, and reached Harrar when they were about three weeks old. Here they had the run of our bedrooms in an old Arab house, and occasionally got outside on the veranda, one distinguishing itself by falling down into the yard below, a feat which had absolutely no ill effects. They loved the early morning sun, but by 7:30 it was already too hot and they craved for shade.

We heard at Harrar that we might experience difficulty with the Abyssinians. It appears that all lions are considered to be the perquisite of Menelik, lions being the royal arms, and that no one is allowed to take lions out of the country. So we put them on a camel passing out of Harrar and escaped attention. They slept contentedly all the way, every march, and arrived with excellent tempers and appetites.

On arrival at Diridawa, the head of the French railway from Jibuti into Abyssinia, they were well housed in a loose box in the Hotel Continental. It was at this place, at about the age of five weeks, that we first tried them with meat. They took no interest in it at first, and in the first few days we had to put pieces in their mouths, which they mistook for the teat, and which, on being sucked hard, not unnaturally, disappeared down their throats. We tried them with blood, but they did not care about it. They got quite excited over a freshly-killed goat, sucking hard at the neck, just at the spot where a grown lion bites its prey, namely, low down on the front of the neck.

A Vell Hint.
If one wants to look ugly and slovenly, let the vell stretch and hang loose under the chin. No matter how well it is adjusted everywhere else, the appearance of a woman is ruined, the appearance of imported veillings gives this hint to overcome this difficulty. After the vell is smoothly pinned, and fastened on the hat and nape of neck, first try to draw back the objectionable fullness and secure it with invisible hairpins.

Should there still be a pendant, loose and under the chin, give it a little twist and turn it under.

Attention Sick Women

If you had positive proof that a certain remedy for female ills had made many remarkable cures, would you not feel like trying it?

If during the last thirty years we have not succeeded in convincing every fair-minded woman that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has cured thousands and thousands of women of the ills peculiar to their sex, then we long for an opportunity to do so by direct correspondence. Meanwhile read the following letters which we guarantee to be genuine and truthful.

Hudson, Ohio.—"I suffered for a long time from a weakness, inflammation, dreadful pains each month and suppression. I had been doctoring and receiving only temporary relief, when a friend advised me to take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I did so, and wrote to you for advice. I have faithfully followed your directions and now, after taking only five bottles of the Vegetable Compound, I have every reason to believe I am a well woman. I give you full permission to use my testimonial."

—Mrs. Lena Carmocino, Hudson, Ohio. R. F. D. No. 7.

St. Regis Falls, N. Y.—"Two years ago I was so bad that I had to take to my bed every month, and it would last from two to three weeks. I wrote to you for advice and took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound in dry form. I am happy to say that I am cured, thanks to your medicine and good advice. You may use my letter for the good of others."

—Mrs. J. H. Breyer, St. Regis Falls, N. Y.

There is absolutely no doubt about the ability of this grand old remedy, made from the roots and herbs of our fields, to cure female diseases. We possess volumes of proof of this fact, enough to convince the most skeptical.

For 30 years Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has been the standard remedy for female ills. No sick woman does justice to herself who will not try this famous medicine. Made exclusively from roots and herbs, and has thousands of cures to its credit.

Mrs. Pinkham invites all sick women to write her for advice. She has guided thousands to health free of charge. Address Mrs. Pinkham, Lynn, Mass.

HARBOR APPROPRIATION.

Salisbury To Receive Share For River Improvement.

As the bill introduced did not include the appropriation for Salisbury Harbor considerable uneasiness was felt here, in regard to the matter. It now appears however that the money for digging out the channel of the river on the branch leading to the Electric Light Plant is included, and that Salisbury will get the benefit. This is very gratifying to the people here, as the entire community will be benefited as well as those whose property lies along the branch to be improved. This together with the canal proposed to be dug by the Salisbury Realty Company at their own expense ought to mean a great deal to the future growth and prosperity of this city. As soon as these improvements are under way, the attention of manufacturers will be called to the unusual advantages Salisbury has to offer for manufacturing sites, being able to give them ample wharfage facilities combined with railroad connection. The channel made by the government being in close touch with the B. O. and A., while the improvements made by the holders of the Humphreys property will connect with the Pennsylvania Railroad. With these railroad and water facilities, this city ought to be able to offer inducements enough to those seeking suitable sites for the location of factories.

Recommends Dr. Long's Book.

Two days ago I received a book written by Dr. J. I. T. Long, entitled "Knowledge vs. Ignorance" about 8 by 6 inches 216 pages, nicely bound, print as large as the average, one dollar. And right here I ask myself have I ever received so much for so little money? Will say no, I have not, for this book is full of light, strength and power of mind and carries with it greater force than I have ever seen in so much print, and I earnestly recommend it to all readers, no class left out, but especially to young of both sexes.

Mr. Jackson, Jr., Suggested

The dinner given at Carval Hall, last week, to the Republican members of the Legislature, by Mr. William P. Jackson, National Committeeman from Maryland, has set political gossip a-going. Mr. Jackson made a strong address to his dinner guests and also created a most favorable impression by his personal manner. It was thereupon unanimously suggested that he be the Republican candidate for Congress next fall in this First Congressional district.—Easton Gazette.

ARKANSAS GIRL MARRIES

Marries Texan Of Her Choice At Home Of Mr. Harry Dennis, Salisbury.

An unusually pretty wedding took place at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Dennis, High Street, on Tuesday, at high noon, when Miss Betty Austin, of Pine Bluff, Ark., became the bride of Mr. Fred F. McNeely, of Dallas, Tex. Rev. David Howard, of St. Peter's Protestant Episcopal Church officiated. Miss Mary Dennis, the bride's only attendant, was maid of honor. Mr. G. Edgar Laws was best man, and Mr. Harry Dennis gave the bride away. Miss Sallie Toadvis played the wedding march. The bride was very becomingly attired in a dark blue traveling suit, with hat to match and carried brides roses. The maid of honor wore a white lingerie gown and carried pink roses. Immediately after the ceremony a wedding breakfast was served. Mr. and Mrs. McNeely left on the New York express for a tour of several weeks before going to their future home in Dallas, Tex.

The County Commissioners were in session Tuesday and transacted the following business:

JOINT BOARD OF HEALTH

Measure Agreed Upon By City And County. Better Sanitation Needed.

The question of making better arrangements to protect the health of the city of Salisbury and the county has been agitated here for some time. An attempt was made immediately after the exhibit here by the State Tuberculosis Commission, and a committee appointed to confer with the City and County Officials to see what could be done to better present conditions.

It was found that little could be done in the way of increasing the efficiency of the Health Officer, owing to the small sum of money available under the law to meet the expenses. It is now proposed for the City and County to join and support a local Board of Health, appropriate a sum of money which will be sufficient to make same an effective body. At a meeting held Messrs J. E. Ellsgood, E. Stanley Toadvis and Thos. Perry were appointed a committee to formulate a bill and present same to the City Council and the Board of County Commissioners. This committee prepared the bill and same was presented to a joint meeting of the City Council and Commissioners and practically agreed upon. The bill has been forwarded to Annapolis for enactment. It follows:

The County Commissioners and the City Council shall on the first Tuesday in April, 1910 and on each second year thereafter, appoint three persons, two for the Commissioners and one for the City Council, who with the President of the Board of Commissioners and Mayor of Salisbury, shall constitute a Board of Health for Wicomico County. The persons so appointed shall hold office for two years and serve without pay. They shall have full powers as a Board of Health.

The said Board after organizing at their first meeting shall elect a secretary who shall be an educated physician and experienced in sanitary science, who shall hold office for two years. He shall keep the accounts of the Board, visit the villages, districts and schools of the county, investigate all the causes of existing diseases and the sanitary conditions of the towns and villages of the County. He shall make inspection of Hospitals, Jails and almshouses in the county and suggest as to their proper sanitary condition. He will be clothed with all the authority of the Secretary of the Maryland Board of Health, as far as the county is concerned. He is to receive for his services $1200 per annum payable quarterly, and is to give his entire time to the work of the Board of Health. To carry out the provisions of the bill the Commissioners are to levy fifteen hundred dollars per year and the City Council is to levy one thousand dollars per year with which to pay the expenses of the work of the Board of Health, the Secretary and everything pertaining to the work. Part of this money can be used for the purpose of employing District Nurses when necessary and for the purpose of fumigation, etc.

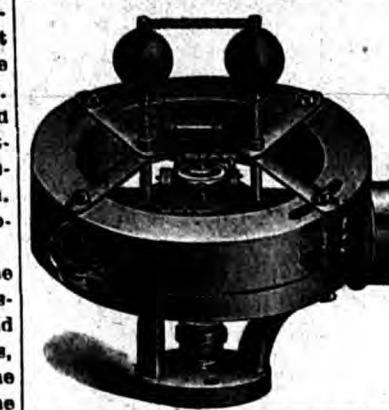

If the Board of County Commissioners or the City Council shall refuse for 30 days from the first day of April 1910 to appoint the member of the said Board of Health, or if either the said County Commissioners or the said City Council shall fail or refuse to appoint the said members after 30 days from the expiration of the term of office of the said Board then the Governor of the State shall appoint said members upon request of the majority of the Board of Health for Wicomico County, or upon the request of the State Board of Health.

The following provision in the bill is one which will save the county a great deal of money, and which will do away with promiscuous vaccination. The language is as follows: Section 8, And be it enacted, That the said Board of Health of Wicomico County shall have charge and control over all vaccination within the county that is to be done at the expense of the county and may appoint vaccine physicians to vaccinate all persons who are unable to pay for same and contract with the said physicians and the County Commissioners shall not pay the expenses of any vaccination unless the same is done by some one of the physicians so appointed, and no account shall be paid by the County Commissioners until the same shall be authenticated by the affidavit of the physician presenting same with the names and ages of the children setting forth that the services were duly performed as the appointee of the said Board of Health and that the parents or guardians are unable to pay for the said services and he shall not be paid more than fifty cents for each person so vaccinated, and the said account shall be approved by the County Board of Health, provided, also that the Secretary of the said County Board of Health shall not receive any compensation from the county for any vaccination done by him.

SALISBURY INVENTION.

A Governor That Increases Efficiency Of An Engine. Inventor Proposes To Form Company And Market.

Mr. Chas. Grant, who has been connected for several years with the Salisbury Wood Working Company, has recently perfected an invention which promises to be a great help to those who use motive power, in any form. Mr. Grant's invention is in the form of a governor or regulator which can be applied to any engine or prime motor, and it is claimed that when used it will greatly increase the efficiency of said engine or motor, for the reason that it keeps the engine running smoothly and evenly with perfect regularity. One of the most attractive features of this new governor is its simplicity and freedom from complicated mechanism. It is based upon sound fundamental principles of mechanics, and the ease with which it can be applied to any engine is expected to make it a favorite to the users.

If this invention will do what is claimed for it, it will be of almost incalculable value in the motor power world. Mr. Grant has patented his invention and has fully protected himself in all the rights belonging to same. In speaking of his invention, Mr. Grant says:

"The invention consists of three parts, a lower and upper ring a pair of centrifugal fly-balls which act much like those used in the common type of governors. The upper of the rings is an inertia ring that transfers circular motion into vertical motion at valve spindle by the employment of a curved slot on the inside edge of the inertia ring. The difference between this and the ordinary governor can best be understood when it is said it is a series of curves producing an accelerated movement whereas the common type is a series of angles and straight lines. Those governors respond to the sudden stresses of off and on load, with the quickness and the precision of the needle of a recording pressure gauge; for the reason the governing parts are much lighter than those of the common governor. The combination is shown by the above illustration.

Crockett—Jacobs.

Wednesday, January 12, at 5:30 p. m. at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Cass Jacobs in the south part of this city, occurred the marriage of their eldest daughter, Miss Anna E. to Mr. A. J. Crockett, of Los Animas, Colorado, Rev. John McGuinness, pastor of the Presbyterian church officiating. Promptly at the appointed hour the bridal party entered the parlor and took their places in the bay window which was decorated with roses and ferns. The wedding was a very quiet affair only a few intimate friends of the family being present. The bride wore a beautiful princess gown of French organdie trimmed with Valenciennes lace. The groom wore the conventional black. After the ceremony the wedding party was ushered into the dining room where a two course dinner awaited them. The dining table was particularly effective with a mound of pink and white carnations and fern leaves in the center.

The bride grew to womanhood in our midst and her charming temperament and womanly graces won her scores of friends. She graduated in the class of 1899 and since that time entered into the profession of teaching, having taught in the Los Animas public schools. The groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. F. A. Crockett of Salisbury Maryland, and comes to us well recommended, his present position being that of cashier with the Bent County Bank, of Los Animas. The happy couple left amid showers of rice for Omaha. They will visit in Kansas City and St. Louis for a few weeks after which they will be at home in Los Animas.

The bride was the recipient of many elegant and useful gifts—Archie Iowa Paper.

Russian Coats And Suits.

The Russian blouse coat is the leading type in suits for Spring and Summer wear, though there are many others, rather more closely fitted than those now worn, and short for the most part. Skirts have yokes and pleatings in various forms, though our old short plain skirts are seen on the very latest arrivals from Paris.

Top Coats And Costumes.

For top or extra coats, the coat suit is presented in especially pretty designs and promises to be more popular than it was last autumn. These take the place of a dress, or cover one, and are both smart and practical. The Russian models are quite as good for extra coats of silk, or cloth, and for run about wear long loose models of chevrons or plaids have collars of burnt orange, scarlet or Lincoln green. Rough silks and wools of the same character will follow these.

Pretty, New Lingerie.

Combinations, two garments in one, are growing in favor with discriminating people, who realize the importance of good cut, well fitting underwear if the figure is to appear trim. Women who like French daintiness of material and trimming with American correctness of cut and finish are buying Defender underwear. Made here in a well-lighted factory, under ideal industrial conditions, these bring to

MUST HAVE HUSBANDS.

Cleveland Girl Asks Cannon To Seek Congressional Action.

People all over the country write to Speaker Cannon about everything. But the prize package in the way of a request was dropped in an Uncle Joe in the form of a perfectly respectable looking letter. Here it is: "Our beaux cannot marry we girls, because all foods and clothing is too high. What good is us girls if we do not have husbands? Why don't you make congress provide husbands for us? You will do the country more good by seeing that all the young people are married. If all the young people were married we would not need any congress or president. This world would then be a paradise. We must have husbands. Get some for us." For reasons of the most profound delicacy the girl's name is omitted, but the letter is postmarked Cleveland, O.

"Pennsy" Leased Delaware Railroad.

At a meeting of the stockholders of the Delaware Railroad, the proposition to lease that Railroad to the P. W. & B. for a period of 99 years was agreed to by the stockholders, by a vote of 108,807 for to 4,889 against. This is reversing the old lease which the Delaware road held over the P. W. & B. and makes the latter the lessee.

There were about a hundred stockholders at the meeting and the subject was thoroughly discussed. The expected opposition of the minority stockholders did not assume the proportion that had been expected, the interest represented by Ferron & Co., of Philadelphia, acquiescing in the proposition.

The guarantees of the lease were fully explained by George V. Wagoner, general counsel of the Pennsylvania Railroad. The project now goes to the stockholders of the Philadelphia, Washington and Baltimore Railroad for action at a special meeting to be held in Wilmington next Monday.

Unanimously by a vote of 118,187 shares, the meeting endorsed the proposition for a new issue of Delaware Railroad stock.

A Smart Linen Frock.

A smart linen frock for southern wear is made in princess style with front panel extending to a yoke of Irish lace. On each side of the panel a belt goes about the waist, and the skirt is pleated below the flat suna effect. Sleeves end at the elbow where they meet long cuffs of Irish lace, and these and the front panel are braided in cotton soutache the color of the linen.

New Hats And Waists.

Leghorn and Milan braids with horsehair are the materials used for the more dressy models and very coarse rough braids are smart for more general wear. Turban shapes of tulle or metal gauze are the present fad and go well with the turban coiffure which is the most advanced style of hair dressing.

For wear with Spring suits chiffon cloth waists the color of the suit, made up in jumper and kimono styles over white lace, or net linings, which extend to the neck and wrist forming the yoke and long cuffs are among the smartest models shown. For round-necking a lace waist this style offers many possibilities. Lucy Carter.

An Expert Paper
Hanger

Merrilegs Can't Be Beat at the Job

"Hal hal hal!" suddenly cried Mr. Merrilegs.

He cut a deep gash in the wall paper that adorned the hall of his apartment and as he laughed he tore off a large triangular piece of wall paper (it reminded one of a certain type of man eating a piece of pie) and looked exceedingly jocular.

"What are you laughing at?" asked Mrs. Merrilegs.

"I am laughing," said Mr. Merrilegs, "because I feel so good. The pattern of this paper has distressed me for so long that I laugh at the prospect of an early relief."

"You picked it out," mused Mrs. Merrilegs, "just the same."

"I laugh as well," said Mr. Merrilegs, with a don't-interrupt-me wave of the hand, "at the landlord who refused to repaper the hall, and I laugh at the paper hanger who wanted $18 for a job which I am doing for less than $6. Is the paste ready?"

"All ready," said Mrs. Merrilegs. "Be careful, Charles, of that knife."

"Don't you worry about that knife," said Mr. Merrilegs, slashing away at the paper in a professional manner. "I know what I'm doing."

"I don't know what would happen to me," said Mrs. Merrilegs, "if you were to stab yourself, Charles."

"Now, I'm not going to stab myself," said Mr. Merrilegs. "So don't you get me nervous."

And so saying, Mr. Merrilegs stabbed himself briskly in the palm of his hand and immediately an uproar arose in the Merrilegs apartment.

"Perhaps," said Mrs. Merrilegs when the excitement had abated to a point where Mr. Merrilegs suffered his hand to be bound—"perhaps it would be better, after all, Charles, if we let the paper hanger finish it now."

The wounded man arose from his chair in a way that would have been an inspiration to any designer of Jack-in-the-boxes.

"What!" he shouted.

"Sh!" said Mrs. Merrilegs.

"I won't 'Sh!'!" shouted Mr. Merrilegs. "I won't 'Sh!'!" Here I've gone and got the wall paper and the brush and mixed the paste and everything and bought a paper hanger's knife and first you make me cut myself and then you just as good as say that I don't know how to paper the hall, anyhow, and that I'd better quit and turn it over to someone who does—or can!"

He stopped because he was quite out of breath. Tears of self-pity almost stood in his eyes.

And that, said he, with a frightful motion of despair to the cuckoo clock, which pointed at half past four—"and that is all the thanks I get!"

"Cuckoo!" said the clock.

"Now, Charles," said Mrs. Merrilegs, "you know I didn't mean it that way at all."

Mr. Merrilegs held his injured hand at a prominent angle, as one who would say, "See how I suffer for my country!" and he looked like a man who might forgive (if he were sufficiently coaxed) but who would not forget.

"And if you think you can finish it," continues Mrs. Merrilegs, "why go ahead and finish it—and welcome."

"Oh, I'll finish it," said Mr. Merrilegs. "Don't let that part of it worry you for a moment. I'll finish it all right."

"I would," said she.

"I will," said he.

And, bouncing up, he bounced into the hall and slashed away in a grim, grim manner that boded equally ill for wives and wall paper in halls.

"If—" began Mrs. Merrilegs, following him.

"If you will kindly do me the favor to go away out of this hall," said Mr. Merrilegs in that tone of extreme courtesy which a husband never uses except when he is on the point of creating a disturbance. "I will go ahead with the papering. Otherwise not."

"If you will let me help you, Charles—" began Mrs. Merrilegs.

"You wouldn't help me," said Mr. Merrilegs bitterly. "You would hinder me."

"At least—" "Will you go out?" "Charles—" "Will you go out? I say!" "Listen—" "WILL YOU GO OUT?"

And seeing, at last, that he was made of the same sort of stuff as Tell and Washington and Bruce and Nelson and all those other great and indomitable souls who knew so well how to persevere to the end, Mrs. Merrilegs, perhaps, felt a thrill of pride in her legs and arms. At any rate she ceased and retired from the scene.

And so, ha-ha-ing, Mr. Merrilegs arose, stepped cleverly in a little pool of paste, fell, tried to save himself, turned, and rolled himself in the length of sticky wall paper on the floor much as the future butterfly rolls itself in its cocoon, though with a great deal more spontaneity and incomparably more noise.

"Well," he bitterly cried again, when Mrs. Merrilegs had come once more to his rescue and had made him look less like a mummy and more like a man, "why don't you say something?"

"Charles," said Mrs. Merrilegs, looking in the telephone book for the paper hanger's number, "I will tell you. There are so many things I might say, all equally true and all equally good, that I find it impossible to make a selection."

CURRENT VERSE.

It Reaches Cactus Center.
Down here in Davis Center we were getting somewhat fevered.
As to just which pole explorer was to have his yarn believed:
We had took sides in the matter, and the sover game was shook.
While some rooted hard for Peary and the others yelled for Cook.

Pecos Johnson said, some sneerin', that the common daily feed
Of the most of Cook's supporters was a mass of locoweed.
Whereupon Bear Hawkins answered that it bothered him a heap
When he found that Peary's boosters was jest fit for herdin' sheep.

It was then, or shortly after, that the barkeep ducked his head,
'Cause the atmosphere was vibrant with the song of flyin' lead;
There was sounds of busted glasses, and the door was clean unlinged.
When we drifted to the sidewalk, somewhat punctured, bruised and stung.

Now we're strivin' here in Cactus, for to keep abreast of things,
But we've drawn one line quite firmly since we counted up our stings;
And a pole hunter comes to lecture, at high cost,
We'll inform him, ere he opens, that he's bound to git a frost.

The Curtain's Fall.
The curtain's falling, and the lights burn low,
So, in God's help, I'm ready now to go.

I've seen life's melodrama, paid the price,
Have known its loves and losses, hopes and fears,
The laughter and the tears,
And now, God knows, I would not see it twice.

I've crossed life's ocean, faced its blinding foam,
But now, heaven whispers I am nearing home,
And though a storm tossed hull I reach the shore.

A thing of tattered sheets and broken spars,
Naked against the stars,
I soon shall be at peace forever more.

For if again I pass these waters through,
I know the kingdom I am sailing to,
What boots it where I lie?—beneath the sod,
Or down the dark impenetrable deep,
Where wayworn seamen sleep?
All gates are good through which we pass to God.

A Woman's Way.
They walked together, he and she,
Along a brooklet side;
The weather was the balmiest
Of balmy summer-tide—
A fitting time for him to ask
If she would be his bride.

And she was waiting hopefully,
And she had waited long,
To hear him tell her all about
His love so deep and strong;
But language failed for thoughts that in
His brain would surge and throng.

Silence, 'tis said, surpasseth speech,
Love-meanings to convey—
A truth, maybe, but who is he
Can fathom woman's way?
The little lass she took offense,
At what he didn't say.

—Eugene C. Dolson, in Town and Country.

The Soul's Expression.
With stammering lips and insufficient sound,
I strive and struggle to deliver right
That music of my nature day and night
With dream and thought and feeling interwound.

And inly answering all the senses round
With octaves of a mystic depth and height,
Which crackle up grandly to the infinite
From the dark edges of the sensual ground!

This sense of soul I struggle to outbear
Through portals of the sense, sublime and whole.
And utter all myself into the air,
But if I did it—as the thunder roll
Breaks its own cloud—my flesh would perish there.

Before that dread apocalypse of soul.

Life and Death.
Hope, the great explorer,
Love, whom none can bind;
Youth, that looks before her;
Age, that looks behind;
Joy, with brow like summer's;
Grief, with watery eyes;
Masquers are and mummies
At Life's gate.

Power, with narrow forehead;
Wealth, with niggard palm;
Wisdom old, whose hoar head
Vaunts a barren calm,
Haughty overcomers
In their pomp and state,
Masquers are and mummies
At Death's gate.

The Eternal Feminine.
"Give me a kiss for a gerdon,"
Said the knight to his lady fair,
"Give me a kiss for a gerdon,
And a tress of thy golden hair."

"For I go to a far off country
At the head of my merrie men,
And those that return to those that go
Are only as one to ten."

And she gave him a kiss for a gerdon,
And a tress of her golden hair,
And sorrowed a while—then married a prince.

In the manner of ladies fair.
—Walter E. Reid, in New York Sun.

The Little Time.
So little time to love you—
So little time to see
The eyes that have made Heaven
On this poor earth for me!

So little time to listen
Unto that voice which thrills
A soul with sweeter music
Than mocking birds or rills.

But thankful that I met you
In days when Love was new,
And that I can't forget you—
The beautiful and true!

Sermon by
CHARLES T. RUSSELL
Pastor Brooklyn
Tabernacle.

WHAT GOD REQUIRES OF US

Text, "What Doth Thy God Require of Thee, but to Do Justly, and to Love Mercy, and to Walk Humbly With Thy God?" (Micah vi. 8.)

Norfolk, Va., Feb. 13.—Are the words of our text true? Is it possible that the true religion of the Bible demands nothing more of us than is expressed in this text? What about the Jewish Law? What about its sin-offering, its burnt-offering, its thank-offerings? What about the ten commandments? What about the digest of those commandments approved by our Lord Jesus, "Thou shalt love the Lord thy God with all thy heart, with all thy mind, with all thy strength; and thou shalt love thy neighbor as thyself"? What about Church attendance? What about our responsibilities to our families? To the Church? To the poor? What about the study of the Bible to know God's will? What about our responsibility for the heathen? What about baptism and the Lord's supper?

Indirectly, dear brethren, all the matters included in our questions and many more are included incidentally in the provisions of our text. Sometimes a whole sermon is preached in a few words. No one will dispute the reasonableness of the Divine requirement as stated in our text. Our Creator could not justly or with self-respect ask less than this of his creatures who would enjoy his favor. The interests of all demand that these principles should be required of every creature permitted the enjoyment of Divine favor to the extent of eternal life. Who ever fails to come up to these conditions would thus evidence his unworthiness of life eternal; his prolonged existence would merely be a prospering of sin and a menace to the happiness and righteousness of others. But now let us see the scope of this Divine requirement, whose justice we have already acknowledged. We note the natural division of our text into three parts:

- (1) Doing Justly;
- (2) Loving mercy;
- (3) Walking humbly.

The requirement of justice in all our dealings with our fellows, commands itself to every rational mind. It includes the whole Law of God. A brief statement of that Law which has our Lord's approval reads, "Thou shalt love the Lord thy God with all thy heart and all thy mind, all thy being and all thy strength; and thou shalt love thy neighbor as thyself. On these two propositions hang all the Law and the Prophets. It is but just that we should recognize our Creator as first; that we should glorify the One who gave us our being and all the blessings that come therewith; that we should be obedient to His righteous requirements that make for our own happiness and that of others. It is also but right that we should recognize the rights of others, as we would have them recognize our rights. The Golden Rule is the barest of justice. Not a hair's breadth less would come with the requirements of our text. Do Justly. Come, then, let us reason together. How many of us do justly in all of life's affairs—in our relationship to our God and to our neighbor?

Begin at home. Let each one criticize his words and his deeds toward his parents; toward his children; toward his brothers; toward his sisters; toward his husband; toward his wife. Do we in all of our relationships of life treat those who are so near and so dear to us according to the standards of justice, according to the Golden Rule? Do we do toward them as we would have them do toward us? If not, after making a beginning with the Lord, striving to render to him our homage and obedience, let us closely scrutinize every word, every act of the home life and see to what extent these can be improved upon and made more nearly just. The majority of people, we feel sure, will be surprised to know how unjust they have been toward those who are of the very nearest and dearest of fleshly relationships.

Follow the matter up and consider the justice or injustice of your words and deeds in daily life with your neighbors and daily associates. Do you invariably speak to them in the same words and with the same tone and gesture that you would approve if they were in your place and you in theirs? In matters of business do you drive a closer bargain with them than you would think just for them to drive with you? Or on the other hand, do you ask of them higher prices for the services or materials you furnish them than you would consider just and right if you were the purchaser and they the vendors? Do you watch your chickens that they do not commit depredations upon your neighbor's garden as carefully as you would wish your neighbor to watch his chickens as respects your garden, if you had one? Do you blow no more tobacco smoke in the face of your neighbor than you would like to have him blow in your face? Are you as careful about wiping your feet when entering his house as you would like him to be when entering your house? Do you treat all men, women, children and animals as kindly, as gently, as properly every way as you think would be just and right if you were in their place and they in yours? Do you speak as kindly of your neighbors as you would have them speak of you? Or do you hold up their imperfections to ridicule as you would like to have them hold up yours? Do you guard your tongue so that you speak only things you would think proper for your neighbor to speak respecting you, if you changed places?

Possibly God could have arranged some other way of dealing with sin and sinners which would not have required the death of Jesus as the ransom price, the purchase price, the redemption price for sinners. But the fact that this method was adopted by our great Creator assures us that no other method would have been so wise, so just, so beneficial. No other method would have so fully demonstrated God's Wisdom, Justice, Love and Power.

In brief, then, God's arrangement is that all of his human creatures shall have opportunity of full return to harmony with himself, provided they wish to do so, provided their hearts, their wills, are fully responsive to the letter and spirit of his Law—the requirements set forth in our text. God has provided in Jesus for the satisfaction of Divine Justice as respects all of the condemned race who desire to return to his favor.

We agree with all the orthodox creeds at Christendom that only repentance from sin and an endeavor to put it away from our thoughts and words and deeds, combined with faith in the Redeemer's sacrifice and a full consecration of heart and life to do the Father's will—nothing short of this attainment will gain the salvation which God is now holding out to mankind. To such the Apostle explains that the righteousness, the full demands of the Law of God, his full requirement, is fulfilled in us who are walking not after the flesh but after the Spirit (Romans vii. 4). From the moment of our consecration and letting of the Holy Spirit God deals with this class as with sons. He trains them in the School of Christ, disciplining, chastening, proving them, testing the sincerity of their consecration Vows and the loyalty of their hearts. To those who prove faithful the great reward is promised—glory, honor, immortality, joint-heirship with the Lord Jesus Christ in his Millennial Kingdom and the right of blessing all the families of the earth (Galatians iii. 29; Revelation vi. 21).

Our disagreement with all "orthodox creeds" is in respect to what shall be done with the unsalvaged—those who do not present themselves to God and who are not begotten again of the Holy Spirit. Our creeds of the dark ages misrepresented the teachings of the Bible in respect to these and told us that they are all to be consigned for hundreds or thousands of years to Purgatory or for all eternity to hell torment. Not such is the teaching of God's Word, but the very reverse, as we have previously shown. The Scriptures do not declare, in these and in the seed shall all the families of the earth be damned; but the reverse of this—that they shall all be blessed. All the sin-burden eyes shall be opened. All the dark ears of ignorance shall be unstopped. For the blessed thousands years of Christ's reign the world's uplifting or resurrection will proceed, while the knowledge of the glory of God shall fill the whole earth. The angels on the plains of Bethlehem did not declare to the shepherds, "Fear greatly! for behold, we bring you bad tidings of great misery which shall be unto all people." Their message was the reverse of this: "Fear not; behold, we bring you good tidings of great joy which shall be unto all people" (Luke ii. 10). God who had a "due time" for calling natural Israel and who had also a "due time" for calling spiritual Israel, has a "due time" for making known the riches of his grace to the non-elect world of mankind. And the "elect" of spiritual Israel and of natural Israel are to be the channels of this Divine grace and mercy, which during the Millennial Age, will flow as a river of salvation, to which all mankind will be invited to come and drink freely.

Love Mercy and Walk Humbly. It may astonish some that God requires even more than justice, which is his legal standard. In his permission of sin and its wage of death he has shown the sinner his own mercy or love. And it is for the sinner's benefit and for the good of all, that God requires that all who will have the full benefit of his mercy shall be required to cultivate this mercy quality in their own hearts. As the sinner attempts to conform his life to the perfect standard and finds himself unable to keep God's Law and obliged to come for mercy to the Throne of Grace, he is informed that he can have that mercy only upon condition that he will exercise similar mercy toward those who trespass against him, his ideals and interests.

Humility is a quality very necessary to every creature. Pride is a foe which besets not merely the weak and imperfect, but which overcame the great angel of light, Lucifer, and transformed him from a faithful servant of Jehovah into Satan, the Adversary of God. We are glad, therefore, that Divine Wisdom requires humility as one of the conditions of our acceptance with him. This requirement assures us of the security of the Divine Empire against all treason in the future; for none will be admitted to the eternal life conditions either now or in the Millennial Age except the humble. Let us hearken then to the lesson of our text and conclude with the words of the Apostle, "Humble yourselves, therefore, under the mighty hand of God, that he may exalt you in due time" (1 Peter v. 6).

"Drop In Any Time."

One of the pitfalls of friendship is the standing invitation. It is easy and pleasant to say: "Come whenever you like, my dear! We shall be delighted to see you at any time; don't stand on ceremony—come whenever you are this way." But let those who receive such invitations beware. It stands to reason that an unexpected visit cannot always be convenient—the hostess is in the midst of something or other and "not fit to be seen," or her husband has rushed home to take her out somewhere and she would rather go than stay at home and entertain her dearest friend, or the luncheon or the dinner is a makeshift—very nice, so far as the family is concerned, but not exactly suitable to set before visitors. The hostess tries to be nice, but can't help showing her vexation or embarrassment. The guest perceives something indecent in the atmosphere and is accordingly constrained, and every one is uncomfortable. Yet people still go on giving and accepting standing invitations.—New York Tribune.

Had to Bow to Custom. The late King Oscar of Sweden was the least conventional of monarchs, but he had to courtesy to custom nevertheless. The king and M. Bonnier, the botanist, met as strangers while out in search of flowers near Stockholm. They were soon the best of friends, and Bonnier suggested lunch at his inn.

"Come home with me instead," said the other.

When the way led to the palace gates Bonnier hesitated.

"I'm sorry," said his companion, "but I happen to be the king of this country, and this is the only place where I can entertain my friends."

The Cause of Many Sudden Deaths.

There is a disease prevailing in this country most dangerous because so deceptive. It is called Dropsy. Many sudden deaths are caused by it—heart disease, pneumonia, heart failure or apoplexy are often the result of kidney disease. If kidney trouble is allowed to advance the kidneys become clogged and blood will attack the vital organs, causing catarrh of the bladder, brick-dust or sediment in the urine, head aches, back aches, lame back, dizziness, sleeplessness, nervousness, or the kidneys themselves break down and waste away cell by cell.

Bladder troubles almost always result from a derangement of the kidneys and better health in that organ is obtained quickly by a proper treatment of the kidneys. Swamp-Root corrects inability to hold urine and sealing pain in passing it, and overcomes that unpleasant necessity of being compelled to go often through the day, and to get up many times during the night. The mild and immediate effect of Swamp-Root, the great kidney remedy is soon realized. It stands the highest because of its remarkable health restoring properties. A trial will convince anyone.

Swamp-Root is pleasant to take and is sold by all druggists in fifty-cent and one-dollar size bottles. You may have a sample bottle and a book that tells all about it, both sent free by mail. Address, Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y. When writing mention reading this generous offer in this paper. Don't make any mistake, but remember the name, Swamp-Root, and don't let a dealer sell you something in place of Swamp-Root—if you do you will be disappointed.

SENATOR LEE'S ENVELOPE PLAN.

According to the reports from Annapolis, Senator Lee is very enthusiastic over the way the primaries are held in his home County of Montgomery, especially that feature of the law which allows the voters to mark their tickets at home, place it into an envelope and then on the next day set for the primaries march up and deposit in the ballot box. A perfectly simple plan, and on its face apparently free from serious objections, but when put to a practical test, in a hotly contested primary election, we fear that it would be found very objectionable.

The same objections which apply to the open method of voting in general elections, would seem to apply to the primary elections, and if the secret of voting is good in one, it is good in both. Voters should be protected in the primary elections just as much as they should be protected in the general elections, and should have the privilege of going into the booths and mark out their tickets protected from any interference and without any solicited or unsolicited help from those who are straining every nerve to carry the election.

There are employers interested in primary elections just the same as in general elections, and employers should be protected from their dictation, and straight down the line can be found the same things figuring in the primary as in the general elections.

Senator Lee says that the Corrupt Practices Act has settled for good and over the question of bribery in this State. We hope and trust he is right, yet in view of certain things which have happened in various parts of the State since the passage of this law, we are not quite as certain about the matter as Senator Lee seems to be. And if bribery should be practiced in any primary election, the open system of voting would give the vote-buyers every opportunity to indulge in it with the certainty that they could tell if they were or not the votes bought were delivered.

This is practically the same plan as was tried in the direct primaries of this county held last year, and resulted in the only serious criticism of direct primaries heard. Under it "workmen" for certain candidates literally "collared" the unsuspecting voter as he approached the polls, and insisted upon helping him mark his ticket. It was very evident that while not as easy of manipulation as it was under the old system, yet with time and experience it could be easily controlled if any body of men made a determined effort to do so, and that the highest help to this manipulation would be the open system of voting. While the ticket nominated this year was freely chosen, and undoubtedly registered the wishes of the majority of voters in the County, yet future years might see the direct primaries almost as big a farce as the old convention system unless the same safeguards are thrown around it as are now thrown around the general elections. Let every voter mark his ticket as he sees fit in the privacy of the election booth, without assistance—except in case of physical disability—and the true wish of the voters will be more nearly registered than if the ballots are marked outside.

PROPOSED HEALTH BOARD.

There is nothing more primarily important than the health of our citizens, and it is the duty of every community to look after sanitary conditions closely, in order to protect the people from dangerous and unnecessary risks to their health and lives brought about by the lack of attention to sanitary principles. Perhaps, in no other way does a community show its progress and intelligence more than in the sanitation and care they show towards protecting the public's health, and surely no stronger endorsement can be held out to those who are looking forward to a place to make their home.

It is able to point out to the world that Salisbury and Wicomico County are doing every possible thing to safe guard against diseases will be an advertisement that will appeal to prospective settlers very strongly.

The action recently taken by the City Council and the Board of County Commissioners to organize a Board of Health and appropriating a sufficient sum of money for its proper support, is certainly a step in the right direction. Salisbury needs an efficient health department and so does the County. It is well known that we have been menaced more times than one with a serious epidemic of typhoid, and that at all times we have more of this and other diseases than we ought to have or would have if our sanitary conditions were properly looked after. As a matter of fact we can count ourselves as being unusually fortunate in not having more serious trouble than we have had, when we consider that we have no responsible body or head to look after sanitation.

Mr. Harmonson's Report.

Mr. Horace F. Harmonson, submitted his second annual report as Game Warden to Gov. Crothers this week. This report showed a great improvement over those of previous years, which Mr. Harmonson credits, in part at least, to the help and assistance he has had from the state magistrates, who have shown considerable activity in having the law enforced.

In his report Mr. Harmonson filed the following list of suggestions: State wide bill for the protection of game birds.

Prohibit shipment of partridges, rabbits and woodcock from the counties.

Bag limit. One dollar license for residents of the state.

A non resident license for wild fowl and game.

Paid wardens and a limited number from each county.

A larger fine for violations.

A gross fine for second offenses.

Increase the present fines for wild fowl as well as the license fee, and compel the nonresident to have his photograph and full description on his license.

A muskrat law.

A fishing license for seines.

The report of convictions received from the deputy game wardens in the different counties follows:

Anno Arundel, 3; Baltimore, 4; Cecil, 2; Caroline, 2; Charles, 1; Garrett, 3; Harford, 2; Kent, 3; Montgomery, 1; Queen Anne's, 2; Somerset, 1; Washington, 3; Wicomico, 3; Worcester, 3. The total of fines aggregated to $1,155.35

A comparison of the memoranda of the two seasons follows:

COMING OF BANGS

To Uman's Monday Night Should Draw A Large House. High-Class Entertainment.

"The Salubrities I Have Met" will be the subject of what promises to be one of the richest exhibitions of American humor and lecturing art ever given in Salisbury. John Kendrick Bangs, the widely known humorist has chosen the above lecture to treat his hearers with on Monday evening next at Uman's Opera House for the benefit of the Peninsula General Hospital. Mr. Bangs ranks second, only to Mark Twain in the world of humor, being the humorous editor of Harper's "Bazar," where his articles are profusely illustrated by the artist, Peter Newell. He is a member of the University Extension Staff, and this winter has been lecturing socially to a large extent in Philadelphia.

The affair here will be under the auspices of the Lady Board of Managers of the Hospital and such a rare opportunity as is offered for the public's entertainment should meet with response sufficient to fill the house. General admission seats, 75 cents; Reserved, $1.

It is reported that Mr. Lowe will soon begin the erection of a modern residence, barn, stables and other out buildings on the land for his own occupancy.

Better Not Get Dyspepsia

you can help it. Kodol prevents Dyspepsia, by actually helping Nature to Relieve Indigestion. It don't trifle with Indigestion.

Great many people who have had indigestion, have been cured by it—when nervous or cold dyspepsia resulted, and have not been able to cure it. Now Kodol and prevent having dyspepsia.

Everyone is subject to indigestion. Stomach derangement follows much abuse, just as naturally as a cold follows a cold. Indigestion results upon the stomach of Kodol.

When you experience sourness of stomach, belching of gas and vomiting fluid, bloated sensation, aching pain in the pit of the stomach, heart burn (so-called), flatulency, headache, dizziness or other trouble—feeling you need Kodol—then the crutcher you take Kodol—the better. But what you want, let Kodol digest it.

Ordinary dyspepsia, "dyspepsia tabes," physics, etc., are not likely to be of much benefit to you, in digestive ailments. Kodol is only a partial digester—and physics are not digesters at all.

Kodol is a perfect digester. If you could see Kodol digesting every particle of food, of all kinds, in the same test-tubes in our laboratories, you would know this just as well as we do.

Nature and Kodol will always cure a sick stomach—but in order to be cured, the stomach must rest. That is what Kodol does—rests the stomach, while the stomach gets well. Just as simple as A, B, C.

Our Guarantee

Go to your druggist today and get a bottle of Kodol. Then either you have used the entire contents of the bottle if you can honestly say that it has not done you any good, return the bottle to the druggist and he will refund your money without question or delay. We will then pay the druggist for the bottle. Don't hesitate, all druggists know that our guarantee is good. This offer applies to the large bottle only and to put one in a family. The large bottle is 50¢ times as much as the fifty cent bottle.

Kodol is prepared at the laboratories of E. C. DeWitt & Co., Chicago.

CHAPTER XXIII.

THE DISQUIETING END OF PONG.

LATER on he and Deppingham visited the underground chamber, accompanied by Mr. Britt. They found that the door to the passage had been blown away by the terrific concussion. The subterranean passage at this place was completely filled with earth and stone. Deppingham stared at the closed mouth of the passage. "They've cut off our exit, but they've also secured us from invasion from this source. I wonder if the beggars were clever enough to carry the plunder above the food line. If not they've had their work for nothing."

"Sellin' says there is a cave near the mouth of the passage," said Chase. "The tunnel comes out halfway up the side of the mountain overlooking the sea, and the hole is very carefully screened by the thick shrubbery. Trust Von Blitz to do the safe thing."

"I don't mind Von Blitz escaping so much," Chase said, his lips curled in a sneer. "As I do the unfortunate closing of what may have been our way to leave the chateau in the end."

"You must think me an ungrateful fool," said Chase bitterly. He had already stated his position clearly.

"Not at all, old chap. Don't get that into your head. I only meant that a hole in the ground is worth two warships that won't come when we need 'em."

Chase looked up quickly. "You don't believe that I can call the crushers?"

"Oh, come now, Chase; I'm not a demmed native, you know."

The other grinned amiably. "Well, you just wot," as the boys say.

After satisfying themselves that there was no possibility of the enemy ever being able to enter the chateau through the collapsed passage the trio returned to the upper world.

Robert Browne and Lady Agnes were seated on the edge of the fountain in Apollo's grotto, conversing earnestly, even eagerly, with Mr. Bowles, who stood before them in an unmistakable attitude of indecision and perturbation. Deppingham gave Chase a look which plainly revealed his uneasiness.

"You don't mean to say, Lord Deppingham, that you're afraid the bells will follow the advice of that rattle-headed Saunders," said Chase, with a laugh. "Why, it wouldn't hold in court for a second. Ask Britt."

Britt cleared his throat. "Not for half a second," he said. "I'm only wondering if Bowles has authority to grant divorces."

"I dare say he has," said Deppingham, tugging at his mustache. "He's—he's a magistrate."

"It doesn't follow," said Chase, "that he has unlimited legal powers."

"But what are they ragging him about down here, Chase?" blurted out the unhappy Deppingham.

"Come in and have a drink," said Chase suddenly. Deppingham was shivering. "You've got a chill in that damp cellar. I can assure you positively as representative of the opposition that the grandchildren of Skaggs and Wyckholme are not going to divorce or marry anybody while I'm here, Britt and Saunders and Bowles to the contrary. And Lady Deppingham is no fool. Come on and have something to warm the cockles."

"All right, old chap," Deppingham said, with a laugh. "I am chilled to the bone. I'll join you in a few minutes." To their surprise, he started off across the terrace in the direction of the consulting trio.

"Just the same, Chase," said Britt after a long silence, "he's worried, and not about marriage or divorce either. He's jealous. I didn't believe it was in him."

"See here, Britt; you've no right to stir him up with those confounded remarks about divorce. You know that it's rot. Don't do it."

"My dear Chase," said Britt, waving his hand serenely, "I can't help laughing at the position you're in at present. It doesn't matter what you get on to in connection with our side of the case, you're where you can't take advantage of it without getting killed by your own clients. Horrible paradox, eh?"

When Deppingham rejoined them he was pale and very nervous. His wife, who had been weeping, came up with him, while Browne went off toward the stables with the as-banker.

"What do you think has happened?" demanded his lordship, addressing the two men, who stood by irresolutely. "Somebody's trying to poison us! Lady Deppingham's dog is dead—poisoned, gentlemen!" He was wiping the moisture from his brow.

"I'm sorry, Lady Deppingham," said Chase earnestly. "He was a nice dog. But I hardly think he could have eaten what was intended for any of us. If he was poisoned, the poison was meant for him and for no one else. He bit one of the stable boys yesterday. It—"

"That may all be very true, Chase," protested his lordship, "but don't you see it goes to show that some one has a stock of poison on hand, and we may be the next to get it. He died half an hour after eating—after eating a biscuit that was intended for me! It's—it's demmed uncomfortable, to say the least."

"I'm sure you need the brandy after all this. Come along. Will you join us, Lady Deppingham?" said Chase.

"No, I'm going to bed?" She started away, then stopped and looked at her husband, her eyes wide with sudden comprehension. "Oh, Deppie, should have died! I should have died!"

"My dear!"

"But, my dear, I don't eat it—and have we any God bless you!" He turned abruptly and walked off beside her, ignoring the two distressed Americans. As they passed through the French window Deppingham put his arm about his wife's waist. Chase turned to Britt.

"I don't know what you're thinking, Britt, but it isn't so, whatever it is."

"Good Lord, man, I wasn't thinking that!"

There was not the slightest doubt in the minds of those conversant with the situation that the poison had been intended for either Lord or Lady Deppingham. The drug had been subtly, skillfully placed in one of the sandwiches which came up to their rooms at 11 o'clock, the hour at which they invariably drank off a cup of bouillon.

Drusilla Browne was jesting, no doubt, but it is doubtful if any one grasped the delicacy of her humor when she observed, in mock concern, addressing the assembled mourners, that she believed the bells were trying to get rid of their incumbents.

After the good old Borgia fashion and that she would never again have the courage to eat a mouthful of food so long as she stood between her husband and a hyemeral fortune.

"You know, my dear," she concluded, turning to her husband, "that I might have had Lord Deppingham's biscuit. His wife asked me to take it. Goodness, you're a dreadful Borgia person, Agnes," she went on, smiling brightly at her ladyship. Deppingham was fumbling nervously at his monocle.

"I should think you could be nervous, Lord Deppingham."

The most rigid questioning elicited no information from the servants. Baillo's sudden, involuntary look of suspicion, directed toward Lady Agnes and Robert Browne, did not escape the keen eye of Hollingsworth Chase.

"Impossible!" he said, half aloud. He looked up and saw that the princess was staring at him questioningly. He shook his head without thinking.

Despair settled upon the white people. They were confronted by a new and serious peril—poison. At no time could they feel safe.

One of the stable boys volunteered to carry a note from Chase to Rasula, asking the opportunity to lay a question of grave importance before him. Chase suggested to Rasula that he should meet him that evening at the west gate, under a flag of truce. The tone of the letter was more or less peremptory.

Rasula came, silent but curious. At first he would not believe, but Chase was firm in his denunciation of Jacob von Blitz. Then he was pleased to accuse Chase of duplicity and double dealing, going so far as to charge the deposed American with plotting against von Blitz to further his own ends in more ways than one. At last, however, he agreed to follow the advice of the American—grudgingly, to be sure, but none the less determined.

"You will find everything as I have stated it, Rasula," said Chase. "I'm sorry you are against me, for I would be your friend. I've told you how to reach the secret cave. The chests are there. The passage is closed. You can trap him in the attempt to rob the bank. I could have taken him over the wall and given him over to Lord Deppingham, but you would never have known the truth. Now I ask you to judge for yourselves. Give him a fair trial, Rasula—as you would any man accused of crime—and be just. If you need a witness—an eyewitness—call on me. I will come, and I will appear against him. I've been honest with you. am willing to trust you to be honest with me."

Inventor Davy and Love. Sir Humphry Davy, the inventor of the Davy lamp, found love something of a delusion, if not a snare. Writing to his mother, he said, "I am the happiest of men in the hope of a union with a woman equally distinguished for virtues, talents and accomplishments." And in a letter to his brother he expresses his rapture thus: "Mrs. Appreze has consented to marry me, and when the event takes place I shall not only have a fine wife, but a fine son."

The widow must have been a person possessed of great powers of fascination, for Sir Henry Holland makes mention of her as a lady who made such a sensation in Edinburgh society that even a regius professor did not think it beneath his scholarship to go down on his knees in the street to fasten her shoe. The sequel need not be dwelt upon further than to add that the marriage turned out to be altogether a mistake.

Ferguson and the Rabbits. Robert Ferguson, the poet, was first matriculated at St. Andrews' university in the session of 1764-5. It was the custom at this time for each bursar to take his turn in invoking "blessings" at the meals. The college table having been surfeited with an unbroken diet of rabbits in various forms of cookery, Ferguson, on being called to say grace, repeated what are now celebrated lines:

For rabbits young and for rabbits old,
For rabbits hot and for rabbits cold,
For rabbits tender and for rabbits tough
Our thanks we render, for we've had enough!

It may be added Ferguson was not sent down, but the rabbits were "rusticated."

Spaniards' Taste in Reading. The librarian selected a book entitled "Farming in the Ohio Valley." "Will you give this to that young man waiting at the desk?" she said to an assistant. "He is a Spanish student learning to read English, and I think this will suit him."

"That sounds like a very unpromising subject for a student in English to tackle," a friend remarked.

"It would be interesting to anybody but a Spanish student," said the librarian, "but the Spaniards run to farming literature. When training beginners in English of any other nationality something sprightly in the way of fiction or travel usually is recommended. But not to the Spaniards. Nine times out of ten it is a work on agriculture that he will make the best progress in."—New York Press.

SAVED FROM AN OPERATION

By Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

De Forest, Wis.—"After an operation four years ago, I had pains downward in both sides, backache, and weakness. The doctor wanted me to have another operation. I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and I am entirely cured of my troubles."

Mrs. AUGUSTE VERPERMANN, De Forest, Wis.

Another Operation Avoided. New Orleans, La.—"For years I suffered from severe female troubles. Finally I was confined to my bed and the doctor said an operation was necessary. I gave Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound a trial first, and was saved from an operation."—Mrs. LILY PEYRON, 1111 Kerlere St., New Orleans, La.

Thirty years of unparalleled success confirms the power of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound to cure female diseases. The great volume of unsolicited testimony constantly pouring in proves conclusively that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is a remarkable remedy for those distressing feminine ills from which so many women suffer.

If you want special advice about your case write to Mrs. Pinkham, at Lynn, Mass. Her advice is free, and always helpful.

IN LICHEN-GREEN CASHMERE

Smart Costume with Color Scheme the Point of the Greatest Importance.

Here is an extremely smart costume in lichen-green cashmere. The skirt is slightly trained and is plain with the exception of a braid at the foot. The long jacket is tight-fitting and is trimmed with many buttons and silk braid; the straps and loops each side front are formed of narrow braid.

The turn-over collar is faced with white silk, and is bound with braid. A jabot of soft lace gives a smart finish to the front; the jacket is lined through with silk of the same color as the cashmere.

Hat of green straw, trimmed with swathings of tulle of a darker shade, and white wings. Material required for the costume: Nine yards 46 inches wide, about 12 yards of braid, and 5 dozen buttons, 6 1/2 yards silk for lining jacket.

MAKING OVER WINTER FROCKS

Belts of All Kinds Are Used to Give Regulate Touch to the Bodice.

What will we do with our last winter's frocks?

There is hardly an evening or afternoon gown made last winter that has not a short waist. Of course, if we have plenty of material it is easy enough to fashion a new bodice. If we have not, the problem is to find some way of lengthening it without making the gown look patchy.

Deep belts are being used for this purpose, made peasant bodice fashion. Fortunately the sash is in the heyday of its popularity, and it covers a multitude of difficulties.

On evening frocks, a wide girde, studded with semi-precious stones, or jet, or tiny sparkling beads may often be used, not only to lengthen the waist line, but to give character and variety to the frock.

Black sashes with draped ends are seen on all sorts and descriptions of smart gowns.

On one the girde was made entirely of supple jet with ends hanging down in front, on which were long tassels.

Mohair Will Wash.

A mohair skirt is a mighty practical investment for the reason that it can be laundered with perfect success and does not have to be sent to a professional cleaner's when it needs to be cleaned. The home laundress who undertakes to wash a mohair skirt must remember two things. One, that white soap of good quality must be used with a little borax which is not only cleansing, but gives a certain stiffness to woolen materials.

Another thing to remember is that the use of a very hot iron is fatal to woolen goods. It may not apparently scorch it, but it will rot the threads so that the goods will crack on the first or second wearing.

Fluffing the Hair.

To make the hair which goes over the pompadour fluffy, some girls resort to the device of rough combing it underneath, which means running the comb backward over the hair, and then sprinkling powder over it underneath where it does not show when the hair is done up. Combing and powdering in this manner undeniably has a drying effect which makes for fluffiness, but both are too disastrous to the hair to be indulged in, for the rough combing breaks it, while the powder badly clogs the pores.

Girls to Wear Awnings.

The smartly dressed girl, instead of carrying an umbrella to protect her new hat, now stretches an awning over it. This contrivance she can make in soft rubberized silk, in attractive colors. It is to be hooked around the brim, and around the crown there are draw strings which shift it up into a soft drapery effect, which, topped off with a bow, gives a very graceful effect.

ALONG THE ERIE CANAL

moves in circular motions on the hard surface of the wet sand.

On the upper end of the island stand the Buffalo Wickwire Works. Smoke and fire belch out of its many chimneys and darken the pure fresh air. Grimy men move in and out of the plant. Built along straight lines with its many outbuildings and intricate outriggings suited to the purposes of the works, it looks both commonplace and bizarre.

From the Buffalo Wickwire Works, to the heart of Black Rock, the strip between the river and the canal tapers down to a narrow embankment. The proximity of the city shows itself in numerous habitations and bathhouses which stretch in a thin file along the water's edge. Narrow, with pointed roofs resting on piles behind the smooth even surface of the embankment, they look like big toy houses placed there by a giant infant in his play along the banks of the mighty river.

One mile inside the city line, the lumber yards begin, bathhouses and other structures multiply and the rural suburban life that slumbers and bobs up its head now and then on the little stretch of land between the canal and the river is swallowed up in the life of the big city.

The construction of the new Erie canal now being pushed by the state of New York is a waterway undertaking second only in importance to the building of the Panama canal. The Erie canal, when completed, will have cost approximately $101,000,000.

The new canal, which is going to be of the greatest importance as a carrier of commerce between the seaboard and the Great Lakes, is being constructed from the Hudson river to Lake Erie, parallel with the old canal. The new canal will admit boats 300 feet long, 40 feet beam, ten feet draft and capable of carrying a cargo of 2,500 tons.

The magnitude of the new canal may be realized by comparison with the old canal. The present canal accommodates only barges 78 feet long, 17 1/2 feet beam and 6 feet draft, capable of carrying 240 tons. The original Erie canal, opened to traffic in 1825, could handle boats of but 30 tons capacity, 61 feet long, 7 feet beam and 3 1/2 feet draft. There were enlargements of the canal in 1850 and 1862.

Col. Thomas W. Symons of the United States engineer corps is called the father of the new canal, because he suggested it. When he was engaged on harbor work for the United States at Buffalo he prepared for the chief of engineers an elaborate report upon the general traffic between the lakes and the seaboard.

This report attracted much attention and discussion. Finally Theodore Roosevelt, who was governor of New York at the time, appointed a commission to investigate the subject. Its report was favorable, a survey was made of the route suggested by Col. Symons, and at the following election the people of the state voted a bond issue of $101,000,000 to pay for the work.

The main channel of the new canal from Troy to Buffalo will be 353 miles long, and there will be branches from Waterford, near Troy, to Lake Champlain, 67 miles long; from Three Rivers, near Syracuse, to Oswego, 23 miles long; from Syracuse to Lake Onondago, six miles, and from Rochester to Lake Ontario, three miles, making a total of 442 miles.

The new canal route utilizes the Hudson river from New York to Waterford, four miles north of Troy. At Waterford one branch continues northward along the bed of the Hudson to Fort Edward, and thence across the country to Whitehall on Lake Champlain. The second branch turns westward at Waterford, enters the Mohawk river above the Great falls, thence it follows the bed of the Mohawk river to Rome, where it crosses the country to Oneida lake, and then goes down the Oneida river to the point where the Oneida, Seneca and Oswego rivers join at Three Rivers. From there one branch keeps on down the bed of the Oswego river to Lake Ontario.

The second branch follows the bed of the Seneca river nearly to Seneca Lake, and thence up the Clyde river and some smaller streams and across a small land area to the Genesee at Rochester. The Genesee is crossed in a pool and about six miles west of Rochester the new canal joins and becomes identified with the present Erie canal, which will be enlarged to the Niagara river at Tonawanda.

A Vell Hint.

If one wants to look ugly and slovenly, let the vell stretch and hang loose under the chin. No matter how well it is adjusted everywhere else, the appearance of a woman is ruined.

A seller of imported veerings gives this hint to overcome this difficulty. After the vell is smoothly placed and fastened on the hat and nape of neck, first try to draw back the objectionable fullness and secure it with invisible hairpins.

Should there still be a pendant, leave out under the chin, give it a little tug and turn it under. The Apprehensive.

"Come on and take a ride in my monoplane," insisted the inventor. "Why, it has a speed of a mile a minute."

"Indeed," said the cautious friend. "In what direction?"

"What has direction to do with it?"

"Why—I was thinking perhaps it made that speed coming down toward the earth."

Sample Bottle Often Proves Beneficial.

Oressona, Pa., Sept. 8, 1909. Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y. Gentlemen—Some time ago I was afflicted with kidney and bladder trouble and was unable to obtain any relief from other medicines so sent for a sample bottle of your Swamp Root. I received so much benefit from this small bottle that I purchased a large bottle of the druggist. I continued the use of Swamp Root until I regarded myself as cured and am now in very good health. I recommended it to a neighbor who has used it with the same results.

I regard your remedy Swamp Root as a preparation that will do all you claim for it.

MRS. ALBERT STERNER, Oressona, Pa.

Personally appeared before me this 18th of September, 1909, Mrs. Albert Sterner, who subscribed the above statement and made oath that the same was true in substance and in fact.

Question in Arithmetic.

Here's one for your boys: If the painting costs two or three times as much as the paint, and one paint goes twice as far as another, how much are those two paints worth?

Devoe is worth $1.50 or $1.75 a gallon, how much is the other one worth?

How much is a gallon of paint worth anyhow?

The answer is: Depends on the paint.

The reason is; paint isn't always paint. There are true and false paint and short measure. How much is a short measure gallon worth? How much is false paint worth? How much is Devoe worth?

There are millions a year in the answer to this last one.

L. W. Gunby Co., sells our paint.

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a running sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

THE FARMERS' INSTITUTE

Arrangements have been made to hold an Institute in the Court House at Salisbury, Thursday and Friday, March 3rd and 4th. The Institute workers will be:

Mr. C. O. Hulsart, Matawan, N. J. Mr. Hulsart was born on a farm in 1855; when he was a boy he was in a railroad office which he gave up for the farm; has been a close reader of agricultural literature; starting as a tenant, he afterward bought land and built a home where he now lives as a successful farmer. His specialty being trucking and growing small fruits. Of Mr. Willard's farm he is manager, having had entire charge of his large orchard of 15 acres for the last ten years. Under Mr. Willard he has had several years' experience in nursery work. Mr. Van Wagenen, one of our former institute workers, says of Mr. Day: "He has a good deal of first hand experience in the management of large orchard operations. He knows well and intimately how to conduct all orchard work. He knows plums, cherries, apples, peaches and something of small fruit."

T. O. Johnson, of the Norfolk Trucking Experiment Station, Va., graduated from the West Virginia University in the year 1896; taught science for three years and in 1899 re-entered the University on a fellowship; in 1900 graduated with the degree of M. Moore—Peters.

Miss Carrie Massey Peters, eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles M. Peters, was married Wednesday morning to Mr. Thomas Howard Moore, of Plainfield, N. J.

The ceremony took place at "Fairfield," the home of the bride's parents and was performed by Dr. T. E. Martindale of Asbury M. E. Church. In the presence of a large number of relatives and friends the house was beautifully decorated in a color scheme of green and white. Miss Annie Peters, a sister of the bride was maid of honor and the groom was attended by Mr. John Bucklin, of Red Bank, N. J.

Miss Lucille Collins, a cousin of the bride played the wedding march as the bride and maid of honor descended the stairway and entered the parlor. Before the front of an embankment of green they were met by the groom and best man entering from a side door. The bride was attired in a Reseda green broadcloth suit and carried roses and lilies of the valley. The maid of honor wore anemone thist broadcloth and carried sweet peas. Mr. and Mrs. Moore left on the 6:47 a. m. train for a trip North and will be at home at Plainfield, N. J. after May 1st. The bride party was accompanied as far as Delmar by a large number of young people. Tuesday evening the relatives and most intimate friends of the bride and groom were informally entertained at "Fairfield." The out of town guests of Mr. and Mrs. Peters were Mrs. Ella Moore, Plainfield, N. J. Mr. and Mrs. Frank B. Massey, Wilmington, Del., Mr. and Mrs. C. Peters, Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Peters, Berlin, Md., Miss Nellie Fayne, Elizabeth Richardson, Lucille Collins, Mr. Howard Collins, Mr. and Mrs. O. B. Timmons, Snow Hill, Md.

DOINGS AT ANNAPOLIS

Progress Of Legislature—Important Bills Still Wait—Probable Rush At End.

While there does not seem to be much doing in the line of finishing the big questions of this session, yet it is believed that a spirit of compromise is settling down at Annapolis and that before many days the main leaders will get together and decide upon the final shape the promised measures will be passed. Pres. Gorman, of the Senate, is out in an interview favoring the passage of the Public Utility Bill practically in the same form as proposed by Mr. Straus. This bill has been further complicated by the exposure of the Consolidated Gas monopoly in Baltimore City and the fight that is now on to repeal those laws which tie the hands of Baltimore from competition in the lighting business in Baltimore City and County. It is believed that these will be repealed and that the Public Utility Bill will be passed. The Direct Primary Bill is still in a very unsettled condition with Pres. Gorman and other State leaders opposing it, while the Governor under pressure from home are fighting for its passage. It is stated that probably a compromise will be made on this bill, by eliminating all State offices from its provisions making compulsory direct primaries for all local and county offices.

The Pure Food, alone of all the bills promised, seems to have a clear road. It has been favorably reported in the House and in spite of efforts to amend has been passed to its third reading.

The question of increased representation for Baltimore City is still an open one, and there have been several bills introduced on this line. It is generally believed that the one offered by Senator Price, of this County, will be the one finally decided upon. This provided for a compromise between those who are urging the giving of Baltimore a representation in the Legislature in proportion to its population and those who are opposed to any increase at all.

The fight for the Local Option Bill drawn by the Anti-Saloon League is on in full blast, and hearings have been given both sides. It is the general impression that the bill will pass the House by a narrow margin, but that it will have a rough road to travel in the Senate.

The passing of another Disfranchising Amendment has been much discussed, and several bills have been introduced towards this but it is not believed that this Legislature will pass such a bill, as many of the leaders deem it undesirable to push this question at the present time.

Women and equal suffrage have been considerably in the line light the past few weeks, and apparently have made some impression upon the gallant members of the Legislature.

It appears now that the closing days of the Legislature will be strenuous days indeed, with so many measures of importance on the calendar to settle, and it is feared in the rush that the lobby will, as is usual, get in some of its fine work on those days. There is unquestionably one of the strongest lobbies at Annapolis this year that has been seen for some time, and it is evident that every effort will be made to block the passage of some of the bills or insert clauses in them which will render them harmless to the corporations who are opposed to their enactment.

Gov. Glenn Makes Good.

The great concourse of people which assembled in the auditorium Sunday afternoon was drawn thither by a force more potent than the mere desire for entertainment. They had read of the great things accomplished by Governor Glenn, of North Carolina, and were eager to hear the story from his own lips, and to study at close range the man who was not afraid to do and to dare. Governor Glenn is a man well toward the sunset of life yet he has lost none of the vigor and enthusiasm which must have been his strong asset in the past. He brought from the sunny land of Dixie to his Northern brethren, a message vibrant with sincerity and truth, and pulsating with broad sympathies and loyal friendship—pointing with pride to the achievements in the future, yet keenly alert to the pitfalls which beset the Nation's onward march of progress. His is a personality which commands respect and admiration, and his address was generally conceded to have been the most uplifting heard here in many years.—Daily Independent Times, Ill.

NEXT BIG ATTRACTION

At Ulman's Opera House On Tuesday Night When Gov. Glenn Lectures.

From all reports every seat in Ulman's Opera House will be taken next Tuesday night, March 1st, to hear the lecture by Ex. Gov. R. B. Glenn, of North Carolina. The subject of the lecture will be, "Our Country, Its Dangers and Possibilities."

Tickets for the lecture are being sold by the Young Men's Club of the Bethesda M. P. Church. The young men report that they are having very little trouble disposing of the tickets, for Gov. Glenn's fame as a speaker is so well known that everybody is anxious to take advantage of the opportunity to hear him.

It is seldom that a town the size of Salisbury has to come to it, a man of such national reputation as Gov. Glenn. As an orator he has no superior in our country today. With a personality that attracts, a voice that is strong and logical, he possesses that combination of essentials that makes a finished and powerful speaker.

It has been learned that a large number of people from the country and nearby towns are coming to hear Gov. Glenn. Tickets are fast being redeemed at the box office, and it would be wise for every one to attend to this matter as early as possible, as a packed house is expected.

BANGS PLEASES SALISbury Hearers Monday in His Famous Lecture.

The lecture given at the Opera House, Monday evening, by the noted humorist and lecturer, John Kendrick Bangs, from the standpoint of entertainment was a decided success, and it is also stated to be a success from a financial standpoint as well—especially was the attendance good when the weather is taken into consideration. Mr. Bangs gave his famous lecture known as "Salubrity" in a very entertaining way, and his personal experiences with men and women of world wide reputation. His anecdotes of these and his description of the incidents that occurred were well rendered and kept the interest and attention of the audience throughout.

The lecture, descriptive of varying personalities, shifted from the simplest deepest paths to the highly ridiculous, and each character and phase was rendered in Mr. Bangs' own infinitely charming manner, which made the hearer equally susceptible to the cathos and humor. His description of many of the "Salubrity" and their characteristics, and the fact that these men so well that it would have been easy to have recognized most of them if no name had been given.

Salubrarians are indeed indebted to the Board of Lady Managers of the Hospital who made the arrangements for this lecture, and the one given some time back by Dr. Elbert Hubbard, and it is to be hoped that they feel encouraged and spurred on to extend to continue the course of lectures started by Salubrarians should liberally patronize entertainments of this character, which outside of their entertaining features, have a large educational value as well. Mr. Bangs was entertained while in Salisbury by Mr. W. B. Miller, who introduced him to the audience. After the lecture Mr. Bangs, Hon. and Mrs. W. P. Jackson, Judge Holland, W. B. Miller, Mr. W. L. Sheldrake and Son, Mr. W. L. M. V. Brewington were entertained by Senator and Mrs. E. Stanley Toddvin at their delightful home on Newton Street.

Woman Beat Two Men.

We suspect you'd like the tale, how a woman beat two hardware dealers in Girard, Pa.

Devotee said man tried his best to get those men to sell Dove and failed. He then turned to Mrs. E. R. Bowman, druggist.

They said they couldn't sell paint for more than $1.25 a gallon. Mrs. Bowman said she had bought at the paint, that has been sold there since.

She knew Dove: had sold his artists' materials. Had a sense and force, besides: she easily learned that when is dear in paint, and told the people.

Mr. Burt Young bought a gallon Dove for rooms that had always taken a gallon of other paint; and half left.

Mr. John Hanna, grocer, thought it expensive before he bought it; brought back nearly half of his paint, and said it was the cheapest job he ever had.

Mrs. Bowman reports universal satisfaction. She had a woman in paint town with a bright woman in it.

Memorial To Mrs. Waters.

Mrs. Mary Amelia Waters, relict of the late John Waters, of Wicomico County, died at the residence of her son-in-law, Senator Louis M. Milbourne on Wednesday morning, February 9th in the 70th year of her age.

Mrs. Waters was born in Quantico District, Wicomico County. She was a daughter of the late Captain William H. Acworth and was one of society's social attractions of Quantico and its vicinity during her younger life. Some of the older heads of that community will recall with interest her social charms.

She was married to Mr. John Waters in the fall of 1871, but she was left a widow more than twenty years ago since which time she has spent her life in retirement. She is survived by two daughters, Mrs. Lottie Milbourne and Miss Renie Waters, principal of the public school at Kingston, and two sisters and a brother, Mrs. A. M. Langdale, Mrs. Roberta Straughn and Mr. S. T. Acworth.

Deafness Cannot Be Cured.

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a running sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and the tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surface.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness—caused by catarrh—that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circular free. F. J. CHENEY & CO., Toledo, O.

BELL-HAVEN FIRE

Virginia Village Suffers Very Heavily By A Big Blaze.

The town of Belle Haven, a short distance from Cape Charles, on the Eastern Shore of Virginia, was almost wiped out by fire which started in a dance hall Saturday evening. The town being without fire-fighting apparatus, the flames quickly spread to the other buildings and in a short time the whole business section was in flames.

Among the losses were A. P. Kellam, department store, entirely destroyed, loss $10,000; Miss Stringer, millinery in Kellam building, loss on stock, $800; dance hall, owners unknown, entirely destroyed, loss $800; residence of C. Walker, damaged, smoke and water, $1,000; Belle Haven Drug Company, entirely destroyed, loss $8000.

The Belle Haven Bakery, Belle Haven Bank and some of the dwellings were slightly damaged.

A National Tuberculosis.

Announcement of a national tuberculosis Sunday to be held on April 24 in 215,000 churches of the United States was made today by the National Association for the Study and Prevention of Tuberculosis.

Following campaigns against consumption that have been carried on in the churches of hundreds of cities, and sermons on tuberculosis that have been preached before thousands of congregations during the past year, a movement has been started to establish a permanent tuberculosis Sunday, on which it is hoped that every one of the 33,000,000 churchgoers in the United States will bear the gospel of health. It is planned to enlist the active co-operation of anti-tuberculosis organizations, labor unions, fraternal organizations, and other bodies together with the churches in the movement. The aid of leading clergymen in many of the principal denominations has already been offered. All of the large inter-denominational bodies, such as the Young Men's Christian Association, the Young Women's Christian Association, the Episcopate, the Methodist Episcopal Church, and the various young people's societies are also in sympathy with the anti-tuberculosis campaign.

It is planned that on April 24th tuberculosis sermons shall be preached in all the churches of the country. Literature will be distributed to members of the congregations, and in every way an effort will be made to teach that tuberculosis is a dangerous disease and that it can be prevented and cured.

Clergymen who desire to obtain additional information in regard to tuberculosis will be able to secure literature from state and local anti-tuberculosis associations and boards of health, as well as from the National Association.

Farmer Has A Record For Slaying Hawks.

As a slayer of chicken hawks William Moore, a farmer of near Centerville holds the record. He has just killed the hundredth in a year. His latest exploit was when he captured and killed a huge hawk by jumping on it. The invader had pounced upon a turkey, which had rushed under a brush pile with its captor clinging on. Moore hastened to the spot with out his gun. So intent was the hawk upon securing its prey that it did not try to escape. With a spring the infuriated farmer landed upon the marauder with both feet and abruptly ended its career.

HOW TO CURE RHEUMATISM.

It Is An Internal Disease And Requires An Internal Remedy.

The cause of Rheumatism and kindred diseases is an excess of uric acid in the blood. To cure this terrible disease this acid must be expelled and the system so regulated that no more acid will be formed in excessive quantities. Rheumatism is an internal disease and requires an internal remedy. Rubbing with Oils and Liniment will not cure, affords only temporary relief at best, causes you to delay the proper treatment, allows the maldy to get a firmer hold on you. Liniment may ease the pain, but they will no more cure Rheumatism than paint will change the fibre of a rotten wood. Science has at last discovered a perfect and complete cure, which is called "Rheumoid." Tested in hundreds of cases, it has effected the most marvelous cures; we believe it will cure you. Rheumoid "gets at the joints from the inside," sweeps the poisons out of the system, tones up the stomach, regulates the liver and kidneys, and makes you well all over. Rheumoid "strikes the root of the disease and removes its cause." This splendid remedy is sold by druggists and dealers generally at 50c and $1 a bottle. In tablet form at 25c and 50c a package. GETTING POLISHED

By GEORGE A. FARGHER

"I don't object to being polished, so I can act like a real gentleman. I am mannered up so I don't put my elbows on the table, and as for keeping the end of the spoon out of my mouth, I am an expert, but, by Jove, I'm through being polished up any more," drawled the dry-goods clerk, in the latest style.

"What wrong?"

"Wrong? Say, you know my youngest sister, Jane? That's her real name when she goes to papa for money—on the cards it's spelled with a Y before the N and about four consonants after each vowel. Well, Jane loves me, and after she went through all the classes on how to act and not show your real bring up, she landed on me. 'Jack, dear,' says sister, 'you are the best salesman in Witherly's and you are all right, except you act just like all American men. You are too busy to know the right things to do—those nice little politenesses, and I'm going to polish you up for Miss Witherly.'"

"Of course that sounded good to me. I'm for owning the store, and I was getting on fine after a few lessons; had everything running smoothly. Why, I was so polished that it made me sick to watch my fellow-mortals eat, or act as though they weren't dragged up. There was only one thing that marred my happiness. If I found Jane on the porch or met her on the street, I would forget to tip my hat."

"I said she was entitled to as much respect as any other girl. It sounded like the book, but it always made me feel foolish to act as if I was glad to see her."

"Well, I forgot several times, as I have already remarked. Jane warned me—'I'll give you a lesson young man, some day, that will make you remember. It will be for your own good, and it will hurt me more than you.'"

"Say, yesterday I just caught on to the smoker as the express train pulled out. I was in an awful rush—wanted to get over to the park with the sticks and play a hole or two—so when I got off at Hyde Park and saw Jane coming home from the matinee, I slid alongside, pinched her arm, and said: 'Lovely day—haven't I met you before?' I was only joking, you know, but, horrors, I forgot to tip my hat—"

"It's one of those flat boys (we get $3.50 for them), and it is hard for me to get it on with just the right kind of rakishness. Jane—my sweet and polished little sister—well, she drew coldly away, looked shocked, and, mind you, we were right in the middle of a swell bunch of people. 'Oh, don't get funny, Sis, I'm dead sick of this mannerism business.'"

"I don't know you, sir," says little sister."

"By Jove—Whack—I thought a mule had landed a short-arm jolt, and when I turned around, a big handsome man had me by the neck. 'You're a nice kind of an excuse,' says he, real loud; 'I have something for masher like you.' Perhaps I wasn't mad. Jane hadn't even turned around, but the friends of the handsome man had. He led off, and every one handed out a jolt or a kick."

"I was doing the best I could when Jane came rushing back into the struggling bunch and explained matters. I was so tickled not to get more than one black eye and not to be taken to the police station, that I tried to smooth the handsome guy's feelings, for he was as mad as a hornet at Jane. Said it would be a lesson to him not to butt in on a woman's jokes."

"Well, look at that coming down the street. Here's where I take off my hat to Jane and the handsome guy. I hope he gets the balance of the polishing I was down for, and by the way sister is sympathizing with him about the battle scars I gave him, it looks as if he would. I hate to think of losing the partnership in Witherly's store—but no more polishing for me."

WORLD'S LARGEST PICTURE

The Paris Courthouse Will Have One of Over Three Thousand Square Feet.

Another record has been broken, says the Paris correspondent of a German paper. This time the size of a painting will stand for the new record.

Until now it has been supposed the Tintoretto "Paradise" in the palace of the doges, in Venice, which covers a space equal to 1,860 square feet, was the largest work of that kind in existence. Maito-Nord's creation for the Paris courthouse will have a surface space of about 3,235 square feet, and will undoubtedly be the largest decorative painting in the world.

English Woman Achieves Honors.

Miss Ivy E. Woodward, M. D., London, having passed the required examinations, has been admitted a member of the Royal College of Physicians. She is the first female student admitted to the membership of the college.

Miss Woodward received her medical education at the London School of Medicine for Women, which institution is in connection with the Royal Free hospital, where Miss Woodward has held the posts of clinical assistant, house physician, and assistant clinical pathologist. She is also clinical assistant at both the Royal Hospital for Diseases of the Chest and the New Hospital for Women.

When Starvation Threatened.

Some years ago the excursion steamer returning from Alaska to Seattle dislocated its propeller and came to a forced stop. For two days the vessel's engineers and machinists labored to repair the break, but without success. It was discovered that the ship's stores were not abundant. Alarm bred in the minds of pessimistic passengers, and the contagion spread. Starvation might assail the vessel before help arrived. A former California official took it on himself to reassure his timid companions, but his effort was not perfectly adapted to raise drooping spirits.

In fact, his closing sentences but added to the gloom. "Let us behave," he said. "If the worst comes and that dread necessity which in such misadventures has met others must be faced by us, let us remember that it is good to die that our friends may live. The one or more that may be sacrificed will be consoled by that thought."

There was a moment's silence, awful in its intensity, then a cheerful voice was heard. "You should be taken first, Gov. Booth." You know the bravest are the tenderest. And even the terror-stricken smiled once more.

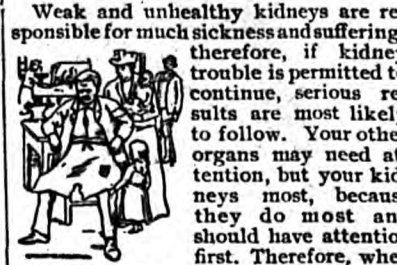

Prosecuted for Keeping Stamps.

A Marseilles wine merchant pestered three prominent men in his district, including a retired judge, with letters offering his vintages and inclosing stamps for reply. None of the three answered, and all kept the stamps. Whereupon the wine merchant lodged a complaint against them for a swindling abuse of confidence and appropriation of sums entrusted to them. The judicial authorities received the complaint, acted upon it, and opened criminal proceedings against all three persons on the charge of appropriating a two-cent postage stamp each. It seems that no other legal course was open to the authorities than to proceed in the matter. The sequel is worse. It is reported that the police, armed with search warrants, have effected domiciliary visits in the residences of the three accused persons to discover the corpus delicti in each case—that is to say, the wine merchant's letter containing the stamp for a reply. If the stamp be found unused the three accused persons will be ordered to disgorge the property wrongfully detained by them. If it be not found the presumption, apparently, will be that they used the property, and, logically, a conviction for swindling should follow.

Often The Kidneys Are

Weakened by Over-Work.

Unhealthy Kidneys Make Impure Blood.

Weak and unhealthy kidneys are responsible for much sickness and suffering, therefore, if kidney trouble is permitted to continue, serious results are most likely to follow. Your other organs may need attention, but your kidneys most, because they do most and should have attention first. Therefore, when your kidneys are weak or out of order, you can understand how quickly your entire body is affected and how every organ seems to fail to do its duty.

If you are sick or "feel badly," begin taking the great kidney remedy, Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root. A trial will convince you of its great merit.

The mild and immediate effect of Swamp-Root, the great kidney and bladder remedy, is soon realized. It stands the highest because its remarkable health restoring properties have been proven in thousands of the most distressing cases. If you need a medicine you should have the best. Sold by druggists in fifty-cent and one-dollar sizes. You may have a sample bottle by mail free, also a pamphlet telling you how to find out if you have kidney or bladder trouble. Mention this paper when writing to Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y. Don't make any mistake, but remember the name, Swamp-Root, and don't let a dealer sell you something in place of Swamp-Root—if you do you will be disappointed.

TUBERCULOSIS SUNDAY.

Perhaps no incident in the great campaign to stamp out tuberculosis is more significant than the proposition to have the churches of the United States take a definite part by establishing a national "Tuberculosis Sunday." The very fact that a large proportion of the 33,000,000 church-going Americans will hear some truths and receive some instruction which will enable them to order their physical lives better seems to bring the subject distinctly within the province of the church. It is to be hoped that every congregation in this community will accede to the request now being made by the Maryland Association for the Prevention and Relief of Tuberculosis and devote at least a part of one service on Sunday, April 24th, to this great, humanitarian movement.

SALISBURY IS GLAD TO HELP.

There has been some criticism by a few of our citizens, against sending our engines and fire forces to the assistance of our neighboring towns. These are basing their criticism on the ground that it leaves Salisbury herself unprotected, and at the mercy of fire should any start while these are away. This is a very narrow view to take of the matter, and as a matter of fact we would not be unprotected as we have more than one engine and doubtless could hold in check any blaze that might start while the other fire apparatus is away, and in a case of emergency when we need our entire equipment same can be rushed back at once.

We do not believe that Salisburyans have forgotten the help which has been rendered by other cities, when called upon them for aid, nor do we believe that any considerable number of our citizens are in favor of having the fire equipment back when it is called for, and all other aid. We have seen of this City's government cry for help has always been heard and a practical response made at once, and we hope and believe that this policy will never be changed, and that our neighbors can rest assured that Salisbury will render them aid at any time it is in her power to do so, and that they can rely upon her with the utmost freedom and with the full certainty of assistance.

SLOW PROGRESS AT ANNAPOLIS.

It looks, from this distance, as though there is being made but little progress by the Legislature, in fulfilling the promises of the Democratic platform. It is true enough, that in almost everything, as much time is spent in getting ready as in the actual doing. It is to be hoped that in this case considerably more time has been spent in the preparation than will be needed in the carrying out, for although the session is more than half over but little, if any, progress seems to have been made in solving some of the more important questions of Legislation.

According to press reports however a spirit of compromise and action is now hovering over the legislative halls and it is too to be hoped that it will not take its flight until some irremediable and tangible has been accomplished.

A bill were promised a good Public Utility Bill, one that would protect the people and do justice to the corporations at the same time. Although there may be some differences of opinion as to just what the right way to go about this, it ought not to be a difficult matter to frame a bill which will carry out the true meaning of this promise. The corporations at the state affected by this bill are of course very much opposed to the passage of any law at all to regulate or supervise their relations to the public, and if reports are true have organized a strong lobby at Annapolis either to defeat the bill, or making that impossible to draw the vote. The vote on this bill and other bills where large moneyed interests are concerned, will be carefully watched.

tation may be made or lost before the adjournment of the present Legislature.

If the present Legislature fails to redeem the promises of the past made by the Democratic party, that party will be to a great disadvantage when it again goes before the people asking its support. Let us hope that the more favorable reports coming from Annapolis are true and that the leaders of the party will get together and agree upon a plan of action and carry the measure through.

Eulogy On Hon. John P. Poe By Sen. Price.

Mr. President:—
In the death of the Hon. John Prentiss Poe, the State of Maryland has sustained a great loss and one that materially lessens the sum total of the purity and greatness of her citizenship.

That Mr. Poe was a great man in all the elements that contribute to true greatness there is no doubt. Measured by any true standard, his character shines forth in all the beauty and symmetry applicable to the best and highest ideals of our American manhood. He was modest, unassuming, brilliant, eloquent and resourceful, combining in his character and makeup, all the best elements that contribute to true worth and greatness, and filled a unique place in this State, and his death has left a void that is peculiarly difficult to fill; and while we have many brilliant men in all professions, and in all the walks of life, yet few men have possessed the varied accomplishments of this distinguished son of Maryland.

My acquaintance with Mr. Poe was of short duration, having known him personally only a few years, but the impression made upon me by this great man, from the first moment of my acquaintance with him, was of such a nature as to convince me that he was indeed a man.

While his manner was modest and unassuming yet he naturally impressed one as being full of reserve power and equal to the exigencies of all occasions.

The value of the services rendered this State by Mr. Poe would be hard to measure, and still harder to define, and they were numerous and far reaching, in that they affect the life and character of so many of the men of the present generation.

The impress of his legal work upon the law and the lawyers of this State will live for generations to come, and his great legal ability has added lustre and fame to the legal fraternity of the State and added prestige to the Maryland Bar throughout the Union.

During his life Mr. Poe held many positions of trust and importance in the State and there was no department in which his services were not called for that did not advance in efficiency and importance.

During his busy and useful life he was at different times a School Commissioner, State Senator, Dean of the Maryland Law School, City Councilor and Attorney General of Maryland as well as serving on several Commissions with great benefit to the State. He was in no sense an office seeker, but reluctantly consented to serve his party and his State, and only when he conceived it to be his duty, and where he saw an opportunity to perform a public service.

Some of the elements which contributed to his success in all his undertakings were his intense earnestness, his unflinching industry and a rugged honesty. One of the most lovable qualities of this noble man was his intense devotion to his friends.

While Mr. Poe was tolerant in his political opinions, yet he was an ardent believer in the principles of the Democratic party to which he held allegiance, and which could always command his time and his great talents, and while he will go down in history as a great lawyer, he will not be remembered as a devoted follower of the doctrines of Jefferson and Jackson, and he will be ever held in grateful remembrance by hosts of his Democratic colleagues.

A large part of his life and the best thought of his great mind were dedicated to the upbuilding and perpetuation of the political principles in which he believed.

The death of such a man must necessarily be a great loss to his State and party, and it is very proper for us to pause in our duties in this body, of which he was once an honored leader, to pay tribute to his great worth, and with hosts of others kneel at his shrine and offer our devotion to the monuments of his deeds and achievements. And now, Mr. President, I can pay no higher tribute to this great man than that contained in the words of Whittier:

"Formed on the good old plan,
A true and brave and downright, honest man;
He knew no trumpet in the market place,
Nor in the church with hypocrite face
Sore led with cant the lack of Christ—
An eagle;
Loathing pretense he did with cheerful will
What others, talked of while their hands were still."

DELMAR.

Horace L. Calver, a clerk in the Hardware store of F. G. Elliott, died suddenly Thursday morning about ten o'clock, while attending to his duties in the store. He was about 33 years of age and married. He was a member of the Improved Order of Red Men and the Junior Order of United American Mechanics.

CANCER CURE NEAR

Inoculation Remedy—State Laboratory Encouraged By Successful Experiments.

A strong hope of curing cancer, or at least greatly ameliorating the condition of cancer patients, by means of inoculation is held out in the report of Harvey R. Gaylord, director of the cancer laboratory of the State Department of Health at Buffalo submitted to the Legislature. This hope is based on extended experimentation during the last year in the inoculation or vaccination of various animals, mainly rats, with the cancer virus.

“It appears,” says the report, “that where the resistance of the animal is not sufficiently awakened by one inoculation of the tumor this resistance can be heightened by repeated doses, and in a considerable proportion of cases immunity can be raised to a point which will bring about a cure.”

Inoculation The Remedy. “It is needless to point out that this process of repeated vaccination, which has cured in the proportion of 25 to 40 in rats, might well be applied to these cases of late cancer in human beings in which surgery has nothing to offer and the outlook is hopeless. Such experiments can, of course, be undertaken only where patients are under the direct eye and control of the experimenter. If suitable quarters for such patients could be found, there is no doubt that there are many who would avail themselves of the opportunity to try this treatment.”

It was found in treating animals that where only one inoculation was made the animal usually died, whereas when a number of successful inoculations were made the resulting tumors were smaller, and after reaching a certain size spontaneous recovery would set in, and in the majority of cases the tumors would disappear, leaving the animal immune.

Cancer In Fish. Other investigations of far reaching importance conducted by the laboratory in the last year have had to do with the prevalence of many forms of cancer in fish and the possibility of infection by human beings. It has been found that cancer of the thyroid in particular is of very frequent occurrence in fish of the trout family.

“It is a very remarkable coincidence,” says the report, “that the area of the United States which includes the greatest concentration of human cancer cases is almost identical with the area through which the various members of the trout family are distributed.”

Commenting on the theory that a possible contagion of cancer might be distributed to human beings through the medium of water, the report points out that cancer is most prevalent in the well wooded, well watered and mountainous regions and along sea coasts. Cancer is more prevalent in rural districts than in cities.

Eat What

You want of the food you need
Kodol will digest it.

You need a sufficient amount of good wholesome food and more than this you need to fully digest it. If you can't gain strength, nor can you strengthen your stomach if it is weak.

You must eat in order to live and maintain strength.

You must not diet, because the body requires that you eat a sufficient amount of food regularly.

But this food must be digested, and it must be digested thoroughly. When the stomach can't do it, you must take something that will help the stomach.

The proper way to do it is to eat what you want, and let Kodol digest the food.

Nothing else can do this. When the stomach is weak it needs help; you must help it by giving it rest, and Kodol will do that.

Our Guarantee

Go to your druggist today, and purchase a dollar bottle, and if you can honestly say, that you did not receive any benefits from it, after using the entire bottle, the druggist will refund your money to you without question or delay.

We will pay the druggist the price of the bottle purchased by you. This offer applies to the large bottle only and to but one in a family.

We could not afford to make such an offer, unless we positively knew what Kodol will do for you. It would bankrupt us.

The dollar bottle contains 25 times as much as the fifty cent bottle.

Kodol is made at the laboratories of E. C. DeWitt & Co., Chicago.

CHAPTER XXIV.

THAT evening Lord Deppingham took to his bed with violent chill. He shivered and burned by turns and spent a most distressing night. Bobby Browne came in twice to see him before retiring. For some reason unknown to any one but himself, Deppingham refused to be treated by the young man, notwithstanding the fact that Browne held claim to a physician's certificate and professed to be especially successful in breaking up "the ague." Lady Agnes entreated her liege lord to submit to the doses, but Deppingham was resolute to intransigence.

"A lover's power, Deppy, or a rev. grains of quinine. Please be sensible. You're just like a child."

"What's in a Dover's powder?" demanded the patient, who had never been ill in his life. "Ipecac and opium, sugar of milk or sulphate of potash. It's an anodyne diaphoretic," said Browne. "Opium, eh?" came sharply from the couch. "Good Lord, an overdose of it would—" He checked the words abruptly and gave vent to a nervous fit of laughter.

"Don't be a fool, George," commanded his wife. "No one is trying to poison you."

"Who's saying that he's going to poison me?" demanded Deppingham shortly. "I'm objecting because I don't like the idea of taking medicine from a man just out of college."

"I've just given my wife a powder, old man. She's got a nervous headache," urged Browne tolerantly. "Your wife?" exclaimed Deppingham, sitting up. "The devil!" He looked hard at Browne for a moment.

"Oh, I say, now, old chap, don't you think it's rather too much of a coincidence?"

Browne arose quickly, a flash of resentment in his eyes. "See here, Deppingham—"

"I apologize, Browne," said Deppingham hastily. "I'm not afraid of your medicine. I'm only thinking of my wife. If I should happen to die, don't you know, there would be people who might say that you could have cured me. See what I mean?"

"You dear old goose!" cried his wife. "I fancy Selim or Ballo or even Bowles know what a fellow does himself with when he's bowled over by one of these beastly island ailments. Oblige me, Agnes, and send for Bowles."

He immediately recommended an old fashioned Dover's powder and ventured the opinion that a "good sweat" would soon put his lordship on his feet. "Better than ever," Deppingham kept Bowles beside him while Browne generously prepared and administered the medicine.

Later in the night the princess came to see how the patient was getting on. He was in a dripping perspiration. Geneva drew a chair up beside his couch and sat down. Lady Agnes was yawning sleepily over a book.

"Do you know, I believe I'd feel better if I could have another chill," he said. "I'm so beastly hot now that I can't stand it. Aggy, why don't you turn out on the balcony for a bit of fresh air? I'm a brute to have kept you moaning in here all evening."

Lady Agnes sighed prettily and stepped out into the murky night. "I say, Geneva, what's the news?" demanded his lordship. "Where is Chase?"

Now, the princess. It is most distressing to state, had willfully avoided Mr. Chase since early that morning. "I'm sure I don't know. I had dinner with Mrs. Browne in her room. I fancy he's off attending to the guard I haven't seen him."

"Nice chap," remarked Deppingham. "Isn't that he now speaking to Agnes out there?"

Geneva looked up quickly. A man's voice came in to them from the balcony, following Lady Deppingham's soft laugh.

"No," she said, settling back calmly. "It's Mr. Browne."

"Oh," said Deppingham, a faint shadow coming into his eyes. "Nice chap, too," he added a moment later. "I don't like him," said she, lowering her voice.

"I've no doubt Agnes is as much to blame as he," said his lordship at last. "She's made a fool of more than one man, my dear. She rather likes it."

"He's behaving like a brute. They've been married less than a year."

"It really doesn't amount to anything, Geneva," he argued. "It will blow over in a fortnight. Aggy's always doing this sort of thing, you know."

"I know, Deppy," she said sharply. "But this man is different. He's not a gentleman. Mr. Skaggs wasn't a gentleman. Blood tells. He will boast of this flirtation until the end of his days."

Aggy's had dozens of men in love with her—most of them, he protested. "She's not."

"They've come and gone, and she's still the same old Agnes, and you're the same old Deppy. I'm not thinking of you or Aggy. It's Drusilla Browne."

"I see. Thanks for the confidence you have in Aggy. I dare say I know how Drusilla feels. I've—I've had a bad turn or two myself lately, and but never mind. By the way, what does Chase say about it?" he asked suddenly.

She started and caught her breath. "Mr. Chase? He—he hasn't said anything about it," she responded lamely.

"He's—he's not that sort."

"Ah," reflected Deppingham. "He is a gentleman."

Geneva flushed. "Yes, I'm sure he is."

"I say, Geneva," he said, looking straight into her rebellious eyes, "you're in love with Chase. Why don't you marry him?"

"You—you are really delicious, Deppy," she cried. "The fever has!"

"He's good enough for any one—even you," went on his lordship coolly. "He may have a wife, said she, collecting her wits with rare swiftness. "Who knows? Don't be silly, Deppy."

"Rubbish! Haven't you stuffed Aggy and me full of the things you found out concerning him before he left Thorberg, and afterward—the letters from the ambassador's wife and the glowing things your St. Peterburg friends have to say of him, eh? Besides, he'd give his head to marry you—having already lost it."

"You are very amusing, Deppy, when you try to be clever. Is there a clause in that silly old will compelling me to marry any one?"

"Of course not, my dear princess, but I fancy you've got a will of your own. Where there's a will there's a way. You'd marry him tomorrow if—"

"If I were not amply prepared to contest my own will?" she supplied airily.

"No; if your will was not wrapped in convention three centuries old. You won't marry Chase because you are a princess. I'm awfully sorry for you, Geneva."

"Sorry for me? Dear me!"

"You're tremendously gone on him."

"Nonsense! Why, I couldn't marry Mr. Chase," she exclaimed, flustered at last. "Don't put such things into my head—I mean don't get such things into that ridiculous old head of yours. Are you forgetting that I am to become Karl's wife in June? You are babbling, Deppy."

"Well, let's say no more about it," he said, lying back resignedly. "It's too bad, that's all. Chase is a man. Karl isn't. You loathe him. I don't wonder that you turn pale and look frightened. Take my advice—take Chase."

"Don't!" she cried, a break in her voice. She arose and went swiftly toward the window. Then she stopped and turned upon him, her lips parted as if to give utterance to the thing that was stirring her heart so violently. The words would not come. She smiled plaintively and said instead: "Good night! Get a good sleep."

"The same to you," he called feverishly.

"Deppy," she said firmly, a red spot in each cheek, her voice tense and strained to a high pitch of suppressed decision, "I shall marry Karl Brabetz."

"That will be the end of your Mr. Chase."

"I hope so," he said. "But I'm not so sure of it if you continue to love him as you do now."

She went out with her cheeks burning and a frightened stir in her heart. Her thoughts raced back to Neneah's airy prophecy.

How could she face the charge, "I'm not so sure of it," unless she killed the indictment, "if you love him as you do now."

Lady Agnes and Browne passed by without seeing her and entered the window. She heard him say something to his companion, softly, tenderly—she knew not what it was. And Lady Agnes laughed—yes, nervously. Ah, but Agnes was playing! She was not in love with this man. It was different. It was not what Neneah meant—nor Deppingham, honest friend that he was.

Down below she heard voices. She wondered—inconsistently alert—whether he was one of the speakers. Thomas Saunders and Miss Pelham were coming in from the terrace. They were in love with each other! They could be in love with each other. There was no law, no convention that said them nay! They could marry—and still love! "If you continue to love him as you do now," battered at the doors of her conscience.

Her maid came in, and she prepared for bed. Left alone, she perched herself in the window seat to cool her heated face with the breezes that swept on ahead of the storm which was coming up from the sea. Her heart was hot; no breeze could cool it; nothing but the ice of decision could drive out the fever that possessed it.

"It is impossible—incredible!" she was saying to herself. "I could not love him like that. I should hate him. God above me, am I not different from those women whom I have known and pitied and despised? Am I not different from Guelma von Herick? Am I not different from Prince Henri's wife? Ah, and they loved too! And is he not different from those who have loved weak, unworthy men who came into the lives of those women? Ah, yes, yes! He is different."

She sat and stared out over the black sea, lighted fitfully by the distant lightning. There she pronounced sentence upon him—and herself. There was no place for him in her world. He should feel her disdain; he should suffer for his presumption. Presumption! In what way had he offended? She put her hands to her eyes, but he lips smiled—smiled with the memory of the kiss she had returned.

"What a fool! What a fool I am," she cried aloud, springing up resolutely. "I must forget. I told him I couldn't, but I can—I can." Halfway across the room she stopped, her hands clinched fiercely. "If—if Karl were only such as he!" she moaned.

She went to her dressing table and resolutely unlocked one of the drawers, as one would open a case in which the most precious of treasures was kept.

"It was so silly of me!" she muttered. "I shall not keep them for him." The drawer was partly filled with cigarettes. She took one from among the rest and placed its tip in her red lips, a reckless light in her eyes. A match was struck, and then her hand seemed to be in the clutch of some invisible force. The light flickered and died in her fingers. A blush suffused her face, her eyes, her neck. Then, with a guilty, ashamed, tender smile, she dropped the cigarette into the drawer. She turned the key.

"No," she said to herself; "I told him that I was keeping them for him."
