Careful Thorough Prescription Work

Sometimes you imagine that you have to wait a long time for the medicine, but if we give it to you in less time, it would NOT be such good medicine. No matter how busy we are, every prescription is prepared carefully and thoroughly; no part of the work is slighted in any detail. It must be right before we let it go out of our hands. You may think at the time that we are being too particular, but that is due to your anxiety and impatience. In your calmer thought you will admit that we are right and will thank us for preparing such RELIABLE medicine. Our methods have won the commendation of all local physicians who have had occasion to know about them.

Alex. H. Murrell Passes Away After A Long Illness.

After an illness of several weeks Dr. Alex. H. Murrell passed away Sunday afternoon at his home on Camden Avenue. He was 42 years old last June. Dr. Murrell was a native of this county, and in early life resided at Allen. His mother was a sister of the late Levin S. Price, of Allen, one of the best known men in this county. Dr. Murrell was a graduate of the Philadelphia College of Pharmacy, and after completing his course he came to Salisbury and opened a drug store, which he conducted for some time. For the past two or three years he had been employed as a rural mail carrier from the Salisbury postoffice. Dr. Murrell married a daughter of Capt. Thomas W. H. White, of Trappe District, who survives him. One brother, Mr. John M. Murrell, of Philadelphia, also survives. Dr. Murrell was a member of Trinity M. E. Church South, Salisbury. His remains were interred in the Price burial plot at Allen, Tuesday morning.

Many Persons Have Catarrh of Kidneys, Or Catarrh of Bladder and Don't Know It.

President Newhof and War Correspondent Richards Were Promptly Cured By Peruna.

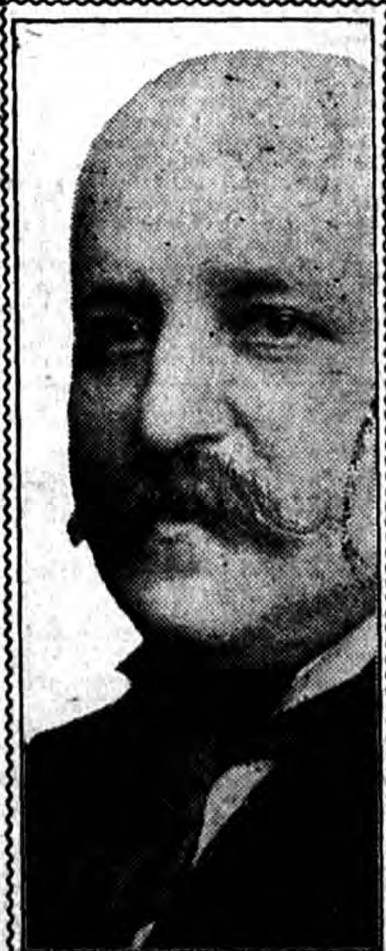

Mr. C. B. Newhof, 10 Delaware street, Albany, N. Y., President Montefiore Club, writes:
"Since my advanced age I find that I have been frequently troubled with urinary ailments. The bladder seemed irritated, and my physician said that it was catarrh caused by a prostatic cold which would be difficult to overcome on account of my advanced years. I took Peruna, hardly daring to believe that I would be helped, but I found to my relief that I soon began to mend. The irritation gradually subsided and the urinary difficulties passed away. I have enjoyed excellent health now for the past seven months. I enjoy my meals, sleep soundly, and am as well as I was twenty years ago. I give all praise to Peruna."—C. B. Newhof.

Mr. F. B. Richards, 600 E. Street, N. W., Washington, D. C., War Correspondent, writes: "Exactly six years ago I was ordered to Cuba as staff correspondent of the New York Sun. I was in charge of the Sun Dispatch boat through the Spanish American War. The effect of the tropical climate and the nervous strain showed plainly on my return to the states. Lassitude, depression to the verge of melancholia, and incessant kidney trouble made me practically an invalid. This undesirable condition continued, despite the best of treatment. Finally a brother newspaper man, who like myself had served in the war, induced me to give a faithful trial to Peruna. I did so. In a short time the lassitude left me, my kidneys resumed a healthy condition, and a complete cure was effected. I cannot too strongly recommend Peruna to those suffering with kidney trouble. To-day I am able to work as hard as at any time in my life, and the examiner for a leading insurance company pronounced me an 'A' risk."

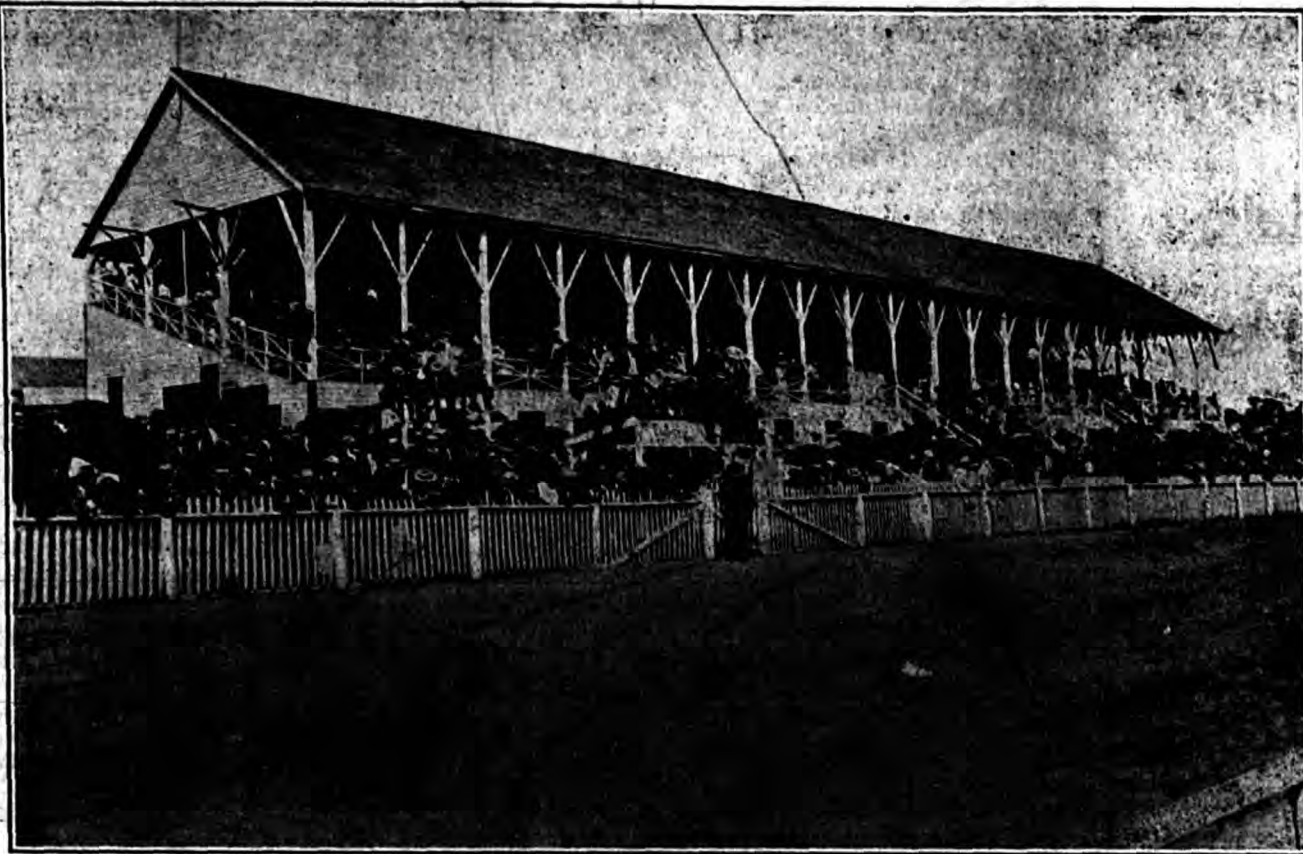

In Poor Health Over Four Years. Peruna's Only Remedy of Real Benefit.

Mr. John Nimmo, 215 Lippincott St., Toronto, Canada, a prominent merchant of that city and also a member of the Manitoba Order, writes:
"I have been in poor health generally for four years. I was unable to do any work, and my weight had fallen to 110 lbs. I was advised to try Peruna. I took it for a few days, and I felt better. I continued to take it, and in a few weeks I was able to do my work. I am now in good health, and my weight has increased to 140 lbs. I give all praise to Peruna."

PRES. C. B. NEWHOF, Suffered From Catarrh of Bladder.

Kidney remedies without getting the desired results. Peruna is the only remedy which was really of any benefit to me. I have not had a trace of kidney trouble nor a cold in my system. Peruna contains no narcotics of any kind. Peruna is perfectly harmless. It can be used any length of time without acquiring a drug habit. Peruna does not produce temporary results. It is permanent in its effect. I have not had a cold in my system, and I have not had a trace of kidney trouble nor a cold in my system. Peruna contains no narcotics of any kind. MARDELA SPRINGS.

Breezy Letter From Advertiser's Correspondent. Wafts News Of Interest From The Mineral Trysting Grounds.

Mr. Editor.—In the caption of this letter, we do hope that you will not leave out a part of our name. To drop the word "Springs" seems to mar the euphony. We are proud of the name "Mardela Springs." To leave out one part would be like cutting off the rooster's spur. It takes the italics out of his crow. Or like the dog with his tail off, he is never as much dog after as before. So let us have all that belongs to us, please. We are so glad that we are not living, as our fathers did, in Barren Creek Springs. We live in beautiful Mardela Springs.

On Saturday morning, the widow of Wm. J. Bounds departed this life, after a long and painful illness. About six months ago, she fell and dislocated or broke her hip, from which she never recovered. She was the mother of George and Leven L. Bounds; also of Annie D., wife of T. R. Bounds, Hattie, wife of Fred Holloway, of Baltimore, and Maggie, wife of Geo. O. Bradley, of Virginia. A large circle of relatives and friends attended the funeral on Sunday afternoon.

Since the Bryan boom was mentioned in the Mardela letter last week, there has been a good deal of speculation about the matter. A little stir of the smoldering ember has made quite a blaze. A fear is entertained, that the politicians have brought Mr. Bryan out too early, for it will be a difficult matter to keep him so long in the limelight of publicity. In fact, some think that he is brought out early in order that his boom may collapse, so as to make way for others. The duplicity of some politicians is amazing. The question is asked in this community, "If Mr. Bryan isn't in the lead, who is?" Judging by the known sentiment of several of the Southern States, some man of the type of Ex-Senator Geo. Gray is in demand. Given a little more time for the reform element to crystallize, Governor Folk may be the man. But here we are, even before we are aware of it, in the field of politics. We must call a halt.

Among the musical and literary inclined in our town, the suggestion of Mr. Bonaparte, Secretary of our Navy, as to whether or not we need a new National Anthem, has awakened some attention. It is doubtful whether "America," "The Star Spangled Banner" and "Yankee Doodle" can ever be out-ranked in popular appreciation.

Mr. B's suggestion is that Congress by legislation should decide whether or not we need a new official tune. But he ought to know that legislation can't give us a new tune, this will take inspiration. Tunes of the above kind are born, not made. The prize of five hundred dollars offered by some Americans is a tempting bid for some budding inspiration. Young man, you had better stop growing vegetables and for a few months turn your attention towards cultivating poetry. Five hundred dollars would be a nice nest egg.

It would be amusing, were it not so serious, to see how those two young fellows went about stealing cantaloupes last week. The owner saw their movements and has their names for a future reckoning. The good name of the families to which they belong is shielding these young pill-fellows for the present. That other fellow, in another patch was caught and made pay five dollars for his fun, or else he was executed. He concluded it was best to pay. He might have bought all he stole for a nickel, and thus he would have been four dollars and ninety five cents in. Boys, you can't steal without being found out. If the owner does not see you some one else will, and they are sure to tell on you.

It is thought that about eleven hundred persons went on the Baptist excursion to Ocean City last Tuesday.

The Town Commissioners have posted notices requiring all persons to clean up around their premises. This is a good move and all our citizens should heartily co-operate with them. Weeds and filth of all kinds are to be removed. This may prevent disease and will also beautify the town. No stock or fowls of any kind will be permitted to run at large in the town. The balliff is empowered by the Commissioners to enforce these ordinances.

Salisbury And Vicinity A Delightful Surprise To Visitors.

Mr. A. K. Trappe, of the State Bureau of Immigration was in Salisbury Monday and did not hesitate to express his admiration of our city. He said:

You have a splendid town here. There is plenty of push and business appearance in Salisbury. Your buildings and big stores as well as your handsome residences will compare favorably with a much larger city. Main street is certainly a business street, and you have some tremendous establishments here. Your manufacturing district is a busy place, and everything looks prosperous. The only bad thing I have seen in Salisbury is your streets, and I understand you are now getting ready to pave them. That is a move in the right direction. I have seen some of the finest corn in this county that I have seen in the State. You have some farms near Salisbury which are ideal ones. Altogether, I must congratulate you on having a beautiful and prosperous city."

Death Of T. S. Phipps From Typhoid Fever.

Mr. T. Samuel Phipps, died at his home on Broad street Saturday morning, of typhoid fever at the age of 52. Mr. Phipps was born in this county, but went West 26 years ago, and lived in Sioux Falls, Dak., for several years, and afterwards at Great Falls, Mont. He moved back to Salisbury in October 1904 and purchased the butcher business of H. F. Powell on Dock street. He leaves a widow and three children. He is also survived by the following brothers and sisters: George W. Phipps, the well known jeweler of this city; Benjamin Phipps, of the State of Washington; William Zedekiah and Edwin Phipps, of Salisbury, and Mrs. Susan Bounds, of New York. Funeral services were held in the M. P. Church Sunday afternoon, conducted by Rev. Mr. Phillips. The interment was in Parsons Cemetery.

POLITICAL EDUCATION

The Need Of Much Learning On This Subject Now Practically Neglected In Our School Studies. Of Great Import.

Man's education for modern civilized life in America at least is four sided: Social, Spiritual, Business and Political. Social education is acquired by social intercourse and varies in different localities, and stations of life. Spiritual education is obtained by church going and scripture reading. The business or bread and butter education is different for the different walks of life and for nearly every individual. It is acquired only by experience and hard knocks though a little school education is materially in all lines.

Political education is needed by all people and is the same for everyone. Works on political economy and money, and modern financing are all right in their way, in fact they are very beneficial, but for obtaining a thorough practical working political education, nothing surpasses the systematic reading of an unbiased daily paper—if such exists—and of the best magazines of the day. A political education does not mean a history of the Democratic or Republican parties at the end of one's tongue or the names of all the Government officers on one's mind, but a knowledge of the enterprises and work undertaken by the Government, and the methods, ways and means of accomplishing these public works. For instance every citizen in Wicomico county should know how our schools are carried on and should be thinking whether a change in curriculum or management would be beneficial or not. Every citizen should acquaint himself with the road proposition now facing our people and decide each for himself which will pay better; to use the uncared for dirt road, to scrape, straighten and grade our dirt road and use them that way; to make macadam roads, to use shells or stone or some other material for our roads. Whether it is better to have every man work a certain number of days on the road each year or to have the work done by a competent set of road hands paid out of the county treasury. This is the kind of political education our people need—a knowledge of public affairs and needs used for the public good. If public opinion demands improved roads and higher tax rates the County Commissioners will not long keep the people waiting. If public opinion demands a change in our school curriculum—demands a practical business course instead of Latin and German. The State Board will soon change the curriculum.

The thing to do is for every citizen to decide what changes are wanted what advancement can and should be made for the best interest not only of himself but also of the people at large, then he should use his influence to bring these changes about to make needed advancement.

WM. J. MORRIS.

Death Of T. S. Phipps From Typhoid Fever.

Rev. F. T. Tagg, editor of the Methodist Protestant, has developed into a farmer minister. He owns a fine farm in this county, and numerous times during each year he pays a visit to the estate and superintends the harvesting of certain crops. He takes a keen delight in being on the farm during the wheat harvesting period, and usually invites several of his ministerial friends from Baltimore to accompany him, and, if needs be, assist in the laborious work of harvesting his crops. Rev. Mr. Tagg is an excellent preacher, and at one time was pastor in this county. He is a brother in law of ex-County Commissioner, Geo. A. Dorer.—Centerville Record.

Edison's Latest.

New York.—The pumping out of eight square miles of river and filling it up with rock and earth is the engineering feat that may be undertaken in this city in the near future. This waterway that is threatened with extinction is the East River, that separates Long Island from Manhattan.

Thomas A. Edison, the inventor, is the inventor of this latest dream and Gothamites grasped the idea at once and are discussing its necessity, its cost and the question whether the undertaking would yield the city proper returns upon the investment.

The ever present problem with New York is traffic. Its ever increasing population and the way to enable New Yorkers to get to and from their homes and still live within the confines of the city makes this traffic question one of continual importance.

It was thought that when the Williamsburg Bridge was opened the crush at the Manhattan end of the Brooklyn Bridge would be relieved, but it was not. Co-incident with the opening of this new bridge there sprang up another army to journey to Long Island when the day's work was done and the crush at the old bridge continued just the same.

Before the subway was put in operation it was thought they would relieve the strain on the elevated roads and surface lines. At the time the subway was opened the elevated lines carried 600,000 passengers daily and now the subway are carrying 475,000 daily and yet there is no decrease in the traffic on the elevated or surface lines.

The additional ferries to Brooklyn and the new bridge are not sufficient to do the passenger business that is required. It is believed that the six horse beneath the East River, which are under construction and the addition of several bridges not be ample to handle the immense traffic.

The city is flourishing on a 50 per cent increase in population in the next fifteen years, and to handle this it will be necessary to make large increases in the traffic facilities.

There are many business men and engineers who believe that the making of dry land out of the East River is not only feasible, but necessary.

It is said that it will require the construction of dams and coffer dams, the pumping out of the eight square miles of water and filling this with rock and earth so that the track lines may connect Manhattan with the cities of Long Island by surface and elevated lines.

To accomplish this undertaking would mean the removal of great docks, warehouses, piers, business houses, the transportation of millions of cubic yards of dirt, and the expenditure of $500,000,000 or more than the cost of the Panama Canal.

It would be the greatest engineering feat of the century.

It is presumed that the Federal Government would insist upon leaving sufficient waterway from the Brooklyn Navy Yard to enable the biggest war vessels to go to and fro.

And the question arises what would become of the great bridges that now span this river? This question has been met with the suggestion that they be transformed into aerial gardens for the people, even if no longer needed for traffic.—Philadelphia Ledger.

The good country doctor, though with a practise so large that he was overworked, turned over a new leaf by sending the following notice to his clients: "The doctor can not live on work, and fresh air, and hope, any longer than you can. So pay him as promptly as you like to be paid when you have worked for some one. You expect the doctor, when you need him, to leave everything and come as quick as he can, any time, day or night, to help you, to do all he can for you, even to risk his health and life. The doctor expects you, when he has worked you, to do your best to pay his bills promptly, as soon as you can, not putting them off till all other bills are paid, or until you have spent your money, perhaps some of it foolishly. There is no doubt about it, too many folks leave the doctor to be paid last and never get him paid at all. He deserves better treatment."

Thousands Have Kidney Trouble and Never Suspect It.
How To Find Out.
Fill a bottle or common glass with your water and let it stand twenty-four hours. A sediment or tingling indicates an unhealthy condition of the kidneys; if it stains your linen it is evidence of kidney trouble; too frequent desire to pass it or pain in the back is also convincing proof that the kidneys and bladder are out of order.

There is comfort in the knowledge so often expressed, that Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, the great kidney remedy, fills every vein in curing rheumatism, pain in the back, kidneys, liver, bladder and every part of the urinary passage. It corrects inability to hold water and scalding pain in passing it, or bad effects following use of liquor, wine or beer, and overcomes that unpleasant necessity of being compelled to go often during the day, and to get up many times during the night. The mild and extraordinary effect of Swamp-Root is soon realized. It stands the highest for its wonderful cures of the most distressing cases. If you need a medicine you should have the best. Sold by druggists in fifty-cent and one-dollar sizes.

You may have a sample bottle and book that tells all about it, both sent free by mail. Address Dr. Kilmer & Co., Ringhamton, N.Y. When writing mention this paper and don't make any mistake, but remember the name, Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, and the address, Ringhamton, N.Y.

That Canal.

The Delaware and Chesapeake Canal Commission is rapidly completing arrangements to start the work of examining and reporting upon a route for a ship waterway between the Chesapeake and Delaware Bays. Appointed by President Roosevelt, under authority of Congress the commission consists of General Felix Angus, of Baltimore, Frank Taylor Chambers, an engineer in the navy, and Major Clement A. Flagler, an engineer in the army.

With a view to reporting on the desirability of the Government purchasing the works and franchises of the Chesapeake and Delaware Canal Company preliminary to the construction of the ship waterway, the commission will examine the existing canal and place a valuation upon it. Congress appropriated $10,000 to defray the expenses of the commission.

The project has been under consideration a quarter of a century. The waterway is demanded by the maritime and business interests of Baltimore, which port would thereby be brought in sailing distance nearly 400 miles nearer to Boston and European ports. It is endorsed also by the trade and maritime bodies of this port. The Trades League has for many years been active in supporting the proposition.

Apart from the purely commercial advantages the strategic and defensive value of the project is viewed by the Government as of the greatest importance. In 1894 a board of army and navy engineers and civilians made an inspection and reported that for national defense as well as for commercial purposes the line of the present Chesapeake and Delaware Canal offered the best route.

The fact that the Government advanced large sums to the operating company at the time the present canal was constructed was overlooked many years. That fact was discovered by the Treasury Department at the time of the Spanish American War. The presentation of loanage bills against some of the navy's smaller vessels led the Treasury Department to make an investigation, with the result that it was found that the advances had never been repaid. The canal company at once recalled the loanage bills, leaving adjustment of the Government's advances for future settlement.

Blind Men Successful Fishermen.

Three blind men fished skillfully, side by side, in a launch off Annapolis, drawing in black bass and flounders at the rate of one a minute. They never missed a bite. They never failed to land a fish. Only the captain had to bait their hooks for them—but then the captain baits the hooks of all deep sea anglers as a rule.

The sightless trio, smiling, said that blind fishermen were not rare; that in the institution where they lived a full third of the inmates fished.

They pointed out that fishing is a sport singularly suited for the blind. To sit still, to catch fish by "feeling" them on the line, is, indeed, the only sport where the blind are at no disadvantage. Fly fishing, of course, is beyond them, on account of the difficulties of the cast. Side by side in the rocking launch, hauling in the bass and flounders briskly, their faces growing redder and redder with sunburn, the three blind men fished and smoked and chattered, and at the day's end it was found that they had severely caught more fish than any other men aboard.—Chicago Chronicle.

To Clean Straw Hats.

"There is no excuse for a man wearing a discolored or dirty straw hat, says a druggist. 'A little oxalic acid and water will make the last year's straw hat, provided it is the proper shape, look as good as new. It will only cost a few cents for enough to clean the hat a hundred times. Not many persons know this and give up twenty five cents to have a straw hat cleaned. All you want to do is to take a teaspoonful of the acid and put it in a pint of water and allow it to dissolve. Then take a brush and scrub the hat until it is cleaned. Put it in the sun and allow it to dry. If some sulphur is sprinkled all over the hat after it is scrubbed it will help to bleach it white. The sulphur can be brushed off easily when the hat is dry.'"

Scalps on Face and Head—Threw off Little Watery Substance—Scratching Caused Very Bad Sores to Form—Other Remedies Did No Good.

COMPLETE CURE BY CUTICURA REMEDIES

"I will be glad to give anybody suffering from eczema any information regarding Cuticura Remedies. When my little girl was about a year and a half old there developed small pimples on her face which went into a scale which threw off a little watery substance. Her head was also affected with it. She used to scratch until it bled, making very bad sores. We tried two or three salves, including borax. They did not do any good, so I got some Cuticura Soap first, and then used the Cuticura Soap, Cuticure and Pills. They completely cured her, and we have had no more bother with it. Anything you want to publish regarding this will be O. K. Yours respectfully, Wm. F. Knox, 1216 So. 35th St., Philadelphia, Pa., June 10, 1905."

ANOTHER CURE

"I suffered from falling hair and dandruff, and also pimples on the face for about one year, and have been using medical treatment during that period without any satisfaction, until advised by friends of the Cuticura Remedies. THE TRIAL OF LOVE.

She had promised her life to a man whom she had loved for only a few days before. These few days had passed like a dream. She had laughed, without another thought than the pleasure of the moment. To be sure, she had suspected how it might end, but not that it should happen so soon. And not till the promised word was spoken did she awaken out of her dream.

The drawing-room clock ticked harder than usual that afternoon, and Elsie kept looking up from her work to notice how the hands flew. It would soon strike six. But just before the stroke she cast her embroidery away from her, sprang up and rushed out without answering her mother's astonished questions.

Only a few steps led to the garden she met him. He was punctual to the minute and beamed with joy because she came out to meet him. But when she passed the gate and proposed to him to walk a little farther, he looked at her in surprise. She did not appear very anxious to introduce her lover to her family.

Elsie hastily led the way across the field and up the hill. She threw herself down on a mossy stone under the spruces, and he stretched himself on the heather beside her. The stone was large enough to hold two, but she did not make room for him. "Are you very sure," she began, breaking a dry twig into tiny bits—"are you really, really sure that you love me?"

Introduced to her Mother.

At first he looked serious, but then burst out laughing in his bright, folk way.

"Sure of it? But there is surely no one who has forced me to say it!" "No. But you don't know me. What is it about me you love?"

"Everything." "But why should she be the only one to doubt and worry? And so to disturb his composure she began to set forth her faults. She unveiled every mad trait she had. She was quick tempered and a scold; she was envious and coquettish; she was stupid and ignorant. She sat and reckoned herself up in a serious voice; she spoke frankly, and she honestly wished to be believed. But the smile did not leave his lips nor did he take his eyes from her face. At each new confession he simply repeated—

"Yes, I knew that before." Finally the blood rushed to her head. It annoyed her to find she could not convince him. He sat there in the secure belief that she wished only to humble herself because of her great happiness. Could he not comprehend at all that he had done wrong in surprising her as he had and that a person cannot be sure of love so loosely rooted?

"No, you do not know me," said she. "When I answered you as I did this morning, it was because—well, not wholly because—but perhaps partly because—because of hardships at home."

There was a cracking of twigs. He had turned on his arm and was gazing at her without a word, but the color was gone from his face. She need worry no more about his not understanding.

There came over her a feeling of unspeakable regret. With a few words she had destroyed something she could never get back again. And this something, now it was lost, seemed dearer to her than all else in the world. She did not know him well.

"Ah, you are afraid of hardships!" "Then it would be best for you to reconsider," he continued. "I am a business man, and my position is not firmly secured. One day there may be money, another debts, and upon one kind of hardships others follow."

The money stone stood empty. She had slipped down on the heather beside him. And she took his hand and hid her eyes in it.

"It makes no difference to me, no difference at all, if I have to bear hardships with you," she said softly. His eyes came back from the far fields. It was only a cloud that had passed over the sun.

He understood now that the little bird he had wished to charm for himself had been frightened only by a too sudden approach, but that it now came of its own accord and that all he had to do was to open his arms.

And she—she knew she must love him whether she could tell why or not, whether it led to joy or sorrow. In a little while they went back the way they came, but this time they did not pass the garden gate. They opened it and went into the house to her mother.

FEAR OF THE BLACK CAT. If people are superstitious at all, there is every reason why they should be superstitious about black cats. In our modern life many ancient superstitions have expired for want of direct suggestion, but the black cat has stood faithfully by to take over as many of these dark fears as she could. A lady, returning to her house found a strange black cat waiting at the house door. Upstairs a faint light burned in a sick woman's chamber. As the returning lady entered, the black cat tried to brush past her into the house, and was excluded with difficulty. Next day the sick woman was dead!

Men watch beside the dead for fear of the intrusion of cats; and sometimes in the silence of the night, these watchers hear strange scratchings, eager purrings, faint mewings, all around, as if from walls and floors and ceilings.

If there are more things in heaven and earth than we have dreamed of, the pitiful human hunger for indications and hints from an unknown world has caused us to dream many things that are neither in heaven nor earth.

THE LADIES' SMOKER. "The smoking cars for women will be provided on our trains de luxe," says the general superintendent of the Pennsylvania system, commenting on the running of a train from London to Liverpool yesterday with the label "Ladies' Smoking" on one of the coaches.

With all due regard to the privileges of the American woman, we hope not. Whether she shall put an occasional cigarette at her own dinner table, or among a select circle of her friends, or even, perhaps, in the ladies' den of a hotel is a matter that she may be trusted to take care of herself.

The smoking car as an institution implies two accomplished facts—the tobacco habit carried to the point of slavery, and the practice of smoking in public, on the streets. Because even the stoutest champion of the equality of the sexes is squeamish about welcoming or promoting either thing, so far as the gentler sex is concerned, smoking cars for women will not recommend themselves to popular favor.

WOMEN TO BE TALLER

STATISTICS SHOW AN INCREASE OF ONE INCH IN TEN YEARS.

The Product of Modern Science in Pleasure and Pursuit—Increase in Higher Intelligence Shows Some Decrease in Beauty.

The latest statistics relating to the human frame show that the average height of the American woman has increased one inch in the last decade, while the man has not gained a fraction of an inch; in fact, he has lost a fraction, says Leslie Weekly. There is food for thought in these figures, yet it will not do to get hysterical about them, as some sensational newspapers have done. There is no reason to aver that the future woman will be a giantess and her consort a pigmy. Rather the deduction may be made that the woman is gradually losing her frailness and is approaching somewhat the virile strength and stature of the man. This is hailed as a consummation devoutly to be wished, because it will make for a future strong and vigorous race.

A century ago the woman of slight frame, petite and short, was the normal type. A large woman was looked upon as abnormal and masculine. In the last two decades woman has come into her own. She has won recognition from education-alists; she has left the fireside for the shop, store, and office, thus competing actively with men in the arduous cares of daily business; she has been forced to develop her frame and strength because of this competition. We see in the result of this so-called emancipation of women a larger, stronger, and brainier woman.

The normal woman a decade ago was five feet and five inches tall; she had added an inch, and probably will add another in another decade or generation. Then she will arrive at the average man's height. The craze for athletics on the part of boys and girls will tend to enlarge the frame, even if it does restrict the amount of knowledge. The frame of the girl is even more susceptible to the enlarging influence of exercise than that of the boy, by reason of centuries of repression.

HOUSEHOLD SUGGESTIONS.

Damp salt will remove tea stains from crockery.

Equal parts of turpentine, linseed oil and vinegar make a splendid polish for furniture, etc.

To render stained water bottles beautifully clean and bright put in salt and pour on vinegar; stand a few hours, then shake.

To boil eggs without the risk of cracking, hold them in a spoonful of boiling water before immersing them.

To turn out a cake from a tin without breaking, wrap it round with a damp cloth for a few minutes.

To turn out a pudding boiled in a mold, hold it for a few moments in cold water; this will prevent it sticking to the cloth.

Turpentine is the best preventative for moths. Saturate pieces of brown paper with same, and place in boxes.

A gas stove can be kept nice and clean by wiping each time after using, and once a week washing with turpentine.

For a Bride Elect. Linen showers for a bride elect have been exploited so frequently that something new is welcomed. An "emergency shower" is novel.

This is given, as are all other "showers," by a friend of the bride to be. Each guest is asked to bring something for the bride's pantry shelf, for emergency occasions. Necessarily, the articles are all canned, bottled and stuffs. They may include pickles, potted cheese, wafers, cherries, mince, deviled ham, olives and canned good of any sort.

Each article should be wrapped in white tissue paper and placed in a huge fancy market basket tied with a bow.

At such a function simple and suitable refreshments would be cheese, olives, deviled-ham sandwiches and coffee. There must be a "charm" cake, of course, to ascertain who will be next to marry. Make this of popped corn and syrup, molded in a cake tin, with the "charms" secreted in it. Turn it out on a silver decorated with flowers.

Some Don'ts of Life.

Don't act as if you were biased and know it all when some one is doing their level best to entertain you.

Don't monopolize all the conversation. That ego is a heavy burden, of course, and requires much attention, but remember that there are others.

Don't take your domestic troubles into the business world. You are doing a man's work, and must take lessons from a man, to live two lives.

Don't use heavy perfumes. They are vulgar to say the least, and sometimes very disagreeable to other people. Perfumes were invented for the use of people when the habits of personal cleanliness were not as general as they are now.

A Cozy Tea Table.

One of the prettiest, coolest tea tables seen lately was that on which Bulgarian embroidery mats, all in scarlet on canvas, were used. There was a centerpiece and square mats in wonderful openwork. A glass vase of scarlet nasturtiums and blue and white china made the table attractive and homelike.

WOMEN LAWYERS' ASSOCIATION

The women lawyers of this town have formed their own Association of the Bar, says the New York Sun, for "the cultivation of the science of jurisprudence, the promotion of reforms in the law, the facilitation of the administration of justice, the elevation of the standard of integrity and honor and courtesy among the legal profession and the creation of a spirit of fellowship among the members." What will be the attitude of this learned body on the subject of military?

Democratic Ticket.

FOR CONGRESS:
HON. THOMAS A. SMITH,
Of Caroline County.

The Republican brethren do not seem to dwell together in unity these days. They are talking of calling out the troops to preserve order at the Iowa Republican convention. Let the squabble continue and honest Democrats will get their dues.

Attorney-General Moody has been forced to admit that Judge Parker's contention that all the laws under which the federal government has prosecuted the trusts and corporations existed prior to 1904. Will President Roosevelt and Secretary Cortelyou also acknowledge that Judge Parker is right, or will they still deny it as was the case about his other charge that the corporations were contributing to the Roosevelt campaign fund in 1904, which has also been proven, but never acknowledged?

ADVICE TO YOUNG MEN.

"Young men keep out of politics," says Senator Platt. That advice would be all right if Senator Platt had said: keep out of Republican, Democratic, Prohibition or what-not machine politics, which are rotten to the core. Every citizen of a Republic should take enough interest in politics to investigate the policies of parties and vote—always vote—according to the result of his investigations. Young men especially should take an interest in politics, for it is upon the young men of today that the government of the Republic will rest tomorrow. Some young man of today will be, in a few years, president of this great country, or he will be Senator, or Congressman, or Governor of his state. What would happen if the young men of the country "keep out of politics?" Young men should investigate how the so-called Republican policy of protection that Platt and the other Republican leaders stand for, taxes them for the benefit of protected interests. Young men should know why the cost of living is so great—45 per cent. higher than when the present tariff was enacted—and their salaries are not increased in like proportion. Young men should inquire why they are compelled to continue in the employment of others all their lives instead of as formerly looking forward to be their own masters. It is not the interest of Senator Platt or the Republican leaders that young men investigate the plundering system that the Republican party stands for, therefore they say keep out of politics.

RIVAL REPUBLICAN FARMERS.

Private Secretary Loeb, who is general factotum at Oyster Bay, is a faithful worker for his strenuous chief. He keeps his ear to the ground quite as closely as Mr. Roosevelt does and keeps track of the undercurrents and dodges of the rival Republican statesmen and does not intend they shall outdo, or attract more attention than his master does. This keeps Loeb busy, for the wily ways of Fairbanks, Cannon, Shaw and the less well known candidates for the Republican nomination for president, require an active and fertile brain to cope with them. Loeb had noticed that farmer Fairbanks had been publishing the fact that he was getting in his hay crop and did not allow his master to be outdone. He, of course, so the story goes put up a job with Old Noah who owns the grass at Sagamore Hill to await the appearance of a storm before attempting to "put the hay in the barn" and then point out to the President the danger of the hay getting wet unless help was furnished forthwith. Noah's appeal to Mr. Roosevelt was promptly met and the diplomatic Loeb had the camera man take a snapshot of the President saying his hay in case some doubting friends of rival candidates should attempt to prove that "Roosevelt is no farmer." Loeb's literary bureau had the rest and the correspondents were all furnished with manifold copies describing how Teddy got in his hay.

Salisbury Boy Makes Himself Valuable.

Mr. Wade T. Porter, who recently accepted a position with the Shupe & Simmins Co., of Morristown, N. J., has been advanced and transferred to their Dover, N. J., store, taking effect next Monday, where he will be assistant general manager and look after the books of the concern. On the first of August Mr. Porter installed the loose leaf system in the Morristown store and will also operate it in the Dover Store. This is the system he opened up for H. S. Todd & Co., in 1902 and also for B. L. Gillis & Son in 1904. Since leaving Salisbury in June Wade has been general manager in Morristown store under the supervision of Mr. Simmins, who is secretary and treasurer of the Company, and has convinced them sufficiently of his ability to be sent to Dover to help run that part of the business, which has had a rapid growth. Dover is about the size of Salisbury.

Mill Washed Away During The Heavy Rain.

Mr. Alfred Fooks' Grist Mill on the road leading to Fruitland was washed down stream last Wednesday night and about 30 yards of the dam washed away. This is a hard blow on Mr. Fooks as he had recently spent several hundred dollars repairing the mill.

—Mr. H. S. Todd bought the piece of land adjoining Ullman's Sons' store of S. P. Woodcock & Co., last Saturday for $2000. The lot is 30 feet wide and about 100 feet deep. Mr. Todd has contracted with W. F. Bonds to put up a two story brick building, with basement, 30 x 60 feet, to be used for a wholesale tobacco and cigar house as soon as complete.

—Messrs. R. E. Powell & Co., began the work of completing the improvements to their large double store last Tuesday. The center row of shelving is being put in the old building. The central of the store on both sides of the center will be fitted up with glass counter cases. The firm will install the Lamson Cash system for immediate use, and expect to put in a steam-heating apparatus before cold weather.

—Dr. Deaton B. Potter, of New York, in company with his father, Foster F. Potter, M. D., spent Wednesday in this city. He will be married on August 21, and come directly here on his honeymoon. He has secured a home here on Camden Avenue, corner of Newton Street where he will open his office for the practice of medicine about September 1st. Dr. Potter is a graduate of the University of Maryland and has been practicing in New York City for two years.

—The stockholders of the Salisbury Hardware Co. have elected their officers for the ensuing year as follows:—E. S. Adkins, President; John W. Humphreys, Secretary; Fred P. Adkins, Treasurer; Thos. M. Livingstone, Gen. Manager. The firm has had a good year's business and the prospect is encouraging for an increased trade, over last.

—The Delmar News, of Delmar, Del., has resumed publication under the management of a stock company with the following officers:—S. W. Colver, president; F. A. Robertson, Manager and Editor; S. Ker Simons, Treasurer and Associate Editor. Their first issue was July 27. In reading matter and general typography it was an admirable edition and well deserving the unanimous patronage and support it seems to be receiving from the Delmar public. It has push in it, push behind it and should have prosperity and a long life ahead of it.

At the meeting of the City Council Monday night the bonds recently advertised were awarded to the Farmers & Merchants Bank, of this city, at their bid of $30,000.00 for the twenty thousand issue.
Baker, Watts & Co. of Baltimore, bid for the entire lot at 101.07.
Rudolph, Kleybolte & Co., of Baltimore and New York, bid the lump sum of $20,000.00 for the same.
T. A. Morris, of Leonardtown, bid $1080.00 for two of the bonds.
The Council granted the following building permits Monday night: Mrs. Richard Bradley, coal and wood house on Bush street; L. W. Gunby Company, garage for truck on East Camden Street; W. F. Bonds, cart shed on Parsons Street; H. S. Todd, two story brick building on Main Street.

IN MEMORIAM.

In loving remembrance of my dear wife, Hester A. Reddish, who died one year ago today, August 1st, 1905. As the evening sun is setting, Oft times as I sit alone
In my heart there comes a feeling,
That my companion must come home.
Once my home was bright and happy
Oh how sad and dreary today,
For my dear and loving Hester
Has forever passed away.
No fear of death did she betray
But with radiant face
Gave up all things here below
And was locked in God's embrace.
Mourn not for me my life is past
You kindly loved me to the last Prepare yourself do not delay
For I was early called away.
Sleep dear Hester take your rest
God took you home,
He thought it best.
By her loving husband,
John F. Reddish.

TO AILING WOMEN.

A Little Sound Advice Will Help Many A Sufferer in Salisbury.

No woman can be healthy and well
if the kidneys are sick. Poisons that pass off when the kidneys are well are retained in the body when the kidneys are sick. Kidneys and bladder get inflamed and swollen, crowding the delicate female organs nearby
and sometimes displacing them. This is the true cause of many bearing down pains, lameness, backache, sideache, etc. Urine poisoning also causes headaches, dizzy spells, languor, nervousness and rheumatic pain.

When suffering so, try Doan's Kidney Pills, the remedy that cures sick kidneys. You will get better as the kidneys get better, and health will return when the kidneys are well. Let a neighboring woman tell you about Doan's Kidney Pills.

Mrs. J. W. Bassett, wife of J. W.
Bassett, retired farmer, residing at 218 Muir St., Cambridge, Md., says:
"I have always enjoyed very good health until recent years when I suffered more or less trouble with my kidneys. It was manifested in severe headaches and rheumatism. The troubles were always worse if I caught cold or over exerted myself. I had terrible dizzy spells at times. Reading of Doan's Kidney Pills I asked my husband to get me a box. I took them as directed, and when I had finished the one box I felt so much better that I have since recommended them to a great many people. I know that they have done me a world of good and feel that they are a great thing for kidney complaint."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo,

States.

Remember the name—Doan's—and

The Supreme Court of Appeals, at Berlin, has ruled that lese majeste can be committed by criticizing the ancestors of a living monarch. The decision was in the case of an editor, sentenced to six months in prison for writing disrespectfully of the King of Saxony's ancestors.

Make Hay While The Sun Shines.

There is a lesson in the work of the thrifty farmer. He knows that the bright sunshine may last but a day
and he prepares for the showers which are so liable to follow. So it should be with every household. Dysentery, diarrhoea and cholera morbus may at ack some member of the home without warning. Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy, which is the best known medicine for these diseases, should always be kept at hand, as immediate treatment is necessary, and delay may prove fatal.

Stomach Troubles And Constipation.

No one can reasonably hope for good
gested. Mr. Chas. Baldwin, of Edwardsville, Ill., says, "I suffered from chronic constipation and stomach troubles for several years, but thanks to Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets am almost cured."

Why not get a package of these tablets and get well and stay well? Price 25 cents. For sale by C. L. Dickerson and G. Hearn.

Several trained Scotch collies have been used by the Germans in their Southwest African campaign but according to reports received in Berlin, they have proved an utter failure.
Apparently the animals lose their sense of smell after they have been in the tropics for a time.

A puny child is always an anxiety to the parents. There seems generally no reason why the little one should be weak when it is so well fed. But the fact is that it does not matter how much food the child takes if the stomach cannot extract the nourishment from it. No benefit can be derived from just eating. That is the condition of many a sickly child.
The stomach and organs of digestion and nutrition are not doing their work and the body is really starving.

It is little use to give fish foods, like cod liver oil or emulsions, in such a case, because these also have to be digested; they may lighten the stomach's labor but they don't strengthen it. Strength is what the stomach needs. Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery strengthens the stomach, nourishes the nerves and increases the action of the blood making glands.
It is superior to every other preparation for children's use, on account of its body building qualities, and also because it is pleasant to the taste and contains no alcohol, whiskey or other intoxicant. Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets are a valuable aid when the bowels are irregular. They are small.
Children take them readily.

Investigating the energy actually

CERTAINLY NOT!

When Bennie came to visit us,
He was not homesick, no!
Admitting that he'd like first rate
To see his mother, though.

He claimed that he was having fun,
With lots of things to do;
But guessed that he would not decline
To see his father, too.

All talk of "homesick" made his lips
In scorn unmeasured curl.
Still, moments came when he'd be glad To see the hired girl.

He vowed that he could stay a year,
This funny, funny Ben;
But in the meantime 'twould be nice
To see old Sport again.

And when we caught him unaware
And found him winking hard,
He said 'twas "nothing"—save he'd Like

To see the house and yard.

And since we could not give all this
(He was unmeasured curl.)
When he had been with us three days
He thought he'd better go.

—The Century.

Summer Diarrhoea in Children.

During the hot weather of the summer months the first unnatural loosness of a child's bowels should have immediate attention, so as to check
the disease before it becomes serious.
All that is necessary is a few doses of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy followed by a dose
of castor oil to cleanse the system.
Rev. M. O. Stockland, pastor of the First M. E. Church, Little Falls,
Minn., writes: "We have used Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy for several years and find it a very valuable remedy, especially for summer disorders in children." Sold by C. L. Dickerson and
G. Hearn.

Capt. Alexander Simpson, of the Aberdeen liner Moravian, has just completed his seventy first voyage, having traveled 2,000,000 miles without a mishap, a feat supposed to be unparalleled in British marine circles.

Unnecessary Expense.

Acute attacks of colic and diarrhoea come on without warning and prompt relief must be obtained. There is no necessity of incurring the expense of a physician's service in such cases if Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy is at hand. A dose of this remedy will relieve the patient before a doctor could arrive. It has never been known to fail, even in the most severe and dangerous cases and no family should be without it. For sale by C. L. Dickerson and G. Hearn.

Don't get the idea into your head that the people have it in for you.
They haven't and such an idea would cause you a whole lot of worry and unnecessary anxiety. The people, of course, know you are on earth, but, to be plain about it, they don't care whether you are or not. And if you were to die, the passenger would continue to run on its regular schedule, the freight would be late as usual and the section man would go each morning, as is his custom, to his daily grind. The most of us out as widely swath and make as many people conform to our ideas when we are dead as when we are alive. No the people haven't got it in for you. They have all they can look after to make a living and pay their debts. Such an idea bothers no one but yourself.—Cheney Sentinel.

rubies, and a third a gold napkin.

Hives, eczema, itch or salt rheum

READY MADE GOWNS

THOSE OF TO-DAY A DECIDED INNOVATION ON FIRST ONES.

Some Appropriately Called "Creations"—Elaborate Suggestions in Silks and Laces—Finest Only One of Many Dozen.

There was a time, not so long ago, either, when ready-made garments were a snare and a delusion. Nowadays it's different. Not only is it merely a question of price, and not a very large price, necessarily, to get a well-fitting, stylish tailor-made suit, but the daintiest and most elaborate frocks beautifully finished and thoroughly satisfactory in material and style may also be had in the greatest variety.

Many of the large manufacturers make a specialty of elaborate waists and gowns, using only silks and this material, and turning out no strictly tailored suits at all.

When a design has been determined on the finished sketch is given to the forewoman, who proceeds to "build" a model of the garment on a dress form, usually 38 in size. She uses only the coarsest kind of muslin, putting in tucks and pleats and shirring according to the design, and if insertion or other trimming is to be used she indicates it by means of colored muslin cut in strips or circles and pinned on.

When the model is complete and the necessary markings are made, it is taken off the form and the first pattern cut. From this pattern, of course, the cutters can easily draught and cut the patterns necessary for larger and smaller sizes. The garments are cut out in a decidedly wholesale fashion.

Some of these ready-made gowns may very appropriately be called "creations" without stretching one's imagination or overworking the word, so elaborate are they. Masses of tiny tucks with exquisite insertion and daintily fashioned yokes, often showing a combination of several kinds of lace are features of many of them, and the work on these delicate materials is as careful done as though each one were a separate model and not one of ever so many dozen.

Latest House Jacket.
The variations of the house jacket are very nearly without end and each new one is sure to find a welcome and a place. This one is tucked to form a girdle that is exceedingly attractive. In the illustration, it is made of China silk with trimming of lace, but it is appropriate for all materials that are used for garments of the sort that are thin enough to be tucked with success.

The jacket is made with the plain yoke, to which the full fronts and backs are attached, and which is concealed by the big collar. The sleeves are in one piece each, and cut on exceptionally graceful lines.

DRESSMAKING NOTES.

When altering a blouse it is a mistake to move the shoulder seam to the front. A better plan is to let it drop backwards instead of forwards.

To strengthen shirt buttonholes stitch them round with cotton after they are finished. They will then last much longer and will not tear away from the material.

In sewing a piece of material on bias to a straight piece the former is apt to become stretched. To avoid this the bias should be placed underneath and it will then be sewn in evenly.

It is often difficult to prevent the pile of velvet from being crushed in stitching it and a good plan is to place a piece of the same material face downward on it. The fingers, resting on this will not flatten the pile.

For Delicate Skins.
Housekeepers with delicate skins who have to wash their own dishes will find that by putting a little borax in the dish water and no soap they will save labor, for the glasses and dishes will look clearer and the wax will not only prevent the hands from chapping, but will keep them soft and white.

A Daily Thought.
As we grow older we need especially to set up barriers against depression. Nothing enters into the fabric of the soul like melancholy, and the time our forebodings are at a premium. "The darkest day of tomorrow will have passed."

Changed Her Mind.

"Does your sister Beattie still talk about her affinity and the communion of souls?"
"No, she's married now."

Experienced.

Frank—Do you prefer blondes or brunettes?
May—I don't know.
Frank—You ought to. You've been both.

Little Mary:—Pa, do you pay half price when you have your hair cut?

A Discovery.

Tom—My grandfather was a regular bibliomaniac.
Will—Oh, that's it, is it? I knew some of your ancestors was crazy but I didn't know what form it had taken.—Detroit Free Press.

Story without words.

Good! Good!
"I'm so disappointed in baby's weight, I was sure she would weigh ten pounds, but the scales said only seven."
"She looks heavier than that," said the caller. "Where did you weigh her?"
"On my husband's scales," answered the woman's wife.—Chicago Tribune.

HOW ARTHUR WAS FOUND.

By Epes W. Sargent.

"I beg your pardon," said a tiny voice, "but I'm lost."
Thurston sprang to his feet with an exclamation. "Bless my heart!" he cried, looking down with surprise at the manly little boy before him. "We will have to stop that."

"If you please," he said, primly, "I don't want it stopped! I got lost on purpose. I don't want to be found too quick."

"But what will your mother say?" he demanded, when speech was again permitted him.

"O," he said comfortably, "she'll probably say, 'Arthur you runned away again.'"

"So your name's Arthur," he said, catching at the hint. "What's your last name?"

He eyed him shrewdly. "I see did tell you I didn't want to be found too quick," he said. "If I tell, you'll know."

"I don't see what we can do about it, Arthur," he said, puzzled. "I'm about the only one left here, and she's—I'm not very used to little boys."

He concluded lamely.
"I won't mind if you work," he said, reassuringly. "I'm used to it," eyeing the somewhat rusty typewriter with a half-filled sheet in the carriage. "My mama does those things, too."

"You can give me a piece of bread and sugar, and I'll go on to the beach while I was in a house like this once, and they had very nice brown sugar; it's the nicest on bread, you know."

Thurston rummaged in the tiny pantry, upset by bachelor house-keeping, until he found some brown sugar left over from a fudge party he had given when his sister visited him.

Supplied with two slices, plentifully spread, Arthur departed for the beach and Thurston went back to his work, pausing every little while to make certain that the boy was still in sight. There was something most comforting in the thought of this little child playing about the yard. It was almost like the home he had fancied.

He came in when he saw that he was preparing to get dinner, and,

Arthur, You Runned Away.
perched upon a kitchen chair, gravely superintended the operation.

"Wouldn't you like to marry my mama and keep house for her?"

Thurston lay back and roared at the suggestion. The idea of Harvey Thurston, who was regarded as one of the coming writers, abandoning his career to keep house for a typewriter was too much for his risibles. Arthur offended, rose to his feet. "I'm sure," he said, "you needn't laugh. Lots and lots want to keep house for my mama, but she says no. They aren't as nice as you were, though."

There was a hurt accent to the "you were" that brought Thurston, penitent to his feet. "It wasn't that, dear," he said, as he swung him to his knees. "I'm sure I'd very, very much like to marry your mama."

"I don't quite know," he said musingly. "You would let me live with you, wouldn't you?"

"Certainly," he said tenderly; "why not?"

"You see," he explained, "there was a man, a long time ago, wanted to marry my mama, but he wouldn't because I was a baby, and he didn't like children," he said. He wrote things like you and mama, and he said I'd have to go to my grand-mama because he couldn't write with me around."

"Is your mama Mrs. Thorndyke?" He gave a little cry of disappointment. "Now you've gone and spoiled it all," he declared. "How did you know?"

For a moment Thurston was silent. He could not tell this little child that for four years he had lived a homeless life because he had asked the woman he loved to sacrifice her little son to his career. He had heard vaguely that she, too, had found success as a writer, but he had never met her. For answer he caught the child up. "Come," he said, as he looked the bungalow door. "I, too, am lost; help me to find myself."

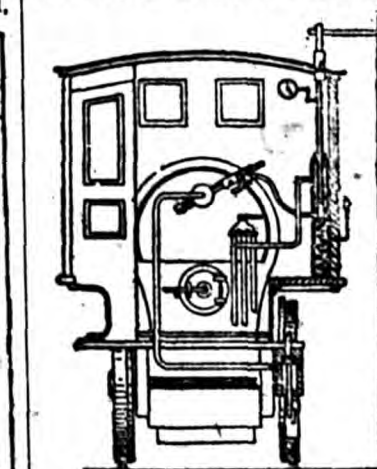

ANCIENT WATER VILLAGES.

Strange Relic of Old Customs Preserving in German Forest of Spree.

One of the most interesting regions in the "Old Fatherland" is the so-called "Spreevald," the Forest of the Spree, situated not far from the German capital, in the Province of Brandenburg, described in the Technical World Magazine. Each village is a little Venice, every house a little island; and these islets are connected by bridges sufficiently raised to allow boats to pass under them. Most of the houses, with their barns and stables, rest on piles, and there is generally a strip of artificial terra firma, either in front or at the rear of every building. By means of these land strips and of the bridges, the slender land communication is kept throughout the district, but most of the business and amusement is carried on through the canals, which not only form the main highways but penetrate and cross and recross the whole region. It is on these lagoons that all traffic is conducted in boats during the period from spring, when the last vestiges of frost and ice are disappearing, until the end of autumn. You see the letter carrier shoot up and down the canals, performing his duties in his frail craft; the police glide leisurely along the banks, watching everything going on; peasants bring the products of their toil to the nearest towns; children go to and from school, young mothers dressed in their Sunday clothes, are rowed to church, carrying in their arms a small, queer looking bundle from which two large eyes in a tiny face stare at the stranger in wonderment—baby is going to be baptized, an important moment with this strongly religious people.

Appliance for Locomotive.

Recently compiled statistics show that the loss of life and also the number of persons injured through collisions on railroads is greater in comparison than from any other cause, says the Chicago News. The death of the officials of the larger railroad lines to establish records for high speed, whether for long or short distances, is primarily the cause of these accidents and the consequent loss of life. Safety is sacrificed for Automatically applies the air brake. speed, as the breaking of a record means a good advertisement for that particular road. Of course, all railroads have specific rules to cover any possible chance of accident, but to break records and arrive at the destination on schedule time it often devolves upon the engineer to overlook a danger signal purposely and take the chance of coming out safely.

A New York man has invented an appliance for railroads which was designed especially to prevent accidents from negligence of this kind. It consists of a signal apparatus having a lever, much smaller, but similar to an ordinary railroad signal. When this signal is set as in the usual manner the lever comes in contact and operates an extension on the top of the cab of the locomotive, this extension when so released throwing the air brakes and stopping the train automatically. In this way there would be no danger of a train going past or the engineer disregarding the danger signal when it is set against him.

The Bicycle in France.

In America the bicycle craze is over; the wheel is now merely a medium of travel, not a valued toy. In France, however, it is still popular as an implement of sport. At some of the seaside places several new games are in vogue in which bicycles play a great part. In grounds or parks bicyclists of both sexes go in zigzag fashion round rows of flowerpots into which they have to fling potatoes. There are, besides, hurdle races for bicyclists, the hurdles being sacks filled with sawdust, zigzag runs amid rows of tennis balls, gloves and parasol contests, and "musical chairs." In the glove and parasol competitions people have to show their skill in twice pulling off and on the gloves and in twice opening and shutting the parasols. In musical chairs the rules of the children's game are observed with this addition, that until the music ceases the players ride round on their cycles. Then they have to rush for their seats. And when the music begins again all must get astride their bicycles and so on until only two chairs are left to be fought for.

Origin of "Hello."
The expression "Hello," says the Atchison Weekly Globe, is of French origin. Away back in the eleventh century the word was born. The Normans in England coined it. When the French invaders engaged in wolf hunts they cried when they saw their game, "A loup!" pronounced "luh-loo." The Anglo-Saxons picked up the word and it was corrupted into "hello."

A Trite Saying.

It is a trite saying that no man is stronger than his stomach. Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery strengthens the stomach—puts it in shape to make pure, rich blood—helps the liver and kidneys to expel the poisons from the body and thus cures both liver and kidney troubles. If you take this natural blood purifier and tonic, you will assist your system in manufacturing each day a pint of rich, red blood, that is invigorating to the brain and nerves. The weak, nervous, run-down, debilitated condition which so many people suffer from, is usually the effect of poisons in the blood; it is often indicated by pimples or boils appearing on the skin, the face becomes thin and the feelings "blue."

Dr. Pierce's "Discovery" cures all blood troubles as well as being a tonic that makes one vigorous, strong and cheerful. It is the only medicine put up for sale through druggists for like purposes that contains neither alcohol nor harmful habit-forming drugs, and the only one, every ingredient of which has the professional endorsement of the leading medical writers of this country. Some of these endorsements are published in a little book of extracts from standard medical works and will be sent to any address free, on receipt of request therefor by letter or postal card, addressed to Dr. R. C. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y. It tells just what Dr. Pierce's medicines are made of. The "Words of Praise" for the several ingredients of which Dr. Pierce's medicines are composed, by leaders in all the several schools of medical practice, and recommending them for the cure of the diseases for which the "Golden Medical Discovery" is advised, should have far more weight with the sick and afflicted than any amount of the so-called "testimonial" so conspicuously flaunted before the public by those who are afraid to let the ingredients of which their medicines are composed be known. Bear in mind that the "Golden Medical Discovery" has THE BADGE OF HONESTY on every bottle wrapper, in a full list of its ingredients.

Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets cure constipation, invigorate the liver and regulate stomach and bowels.

Dr. Pierce's great thousand-page illustrated Common Sense Medical Adviser will be sent free, paper-bound, for 21 one-cent stamps, or cloth-bound for 31 stamps. Address Dr. Pierce as above.

A Prominent Commercial Journal Of Montreal States What It Knows About The

SUN LIFE ASSURANCE CO. OF CANADA.

AS A COMPANY IN WHICH TO ASSURE.

"The Sun Life Assurance Company of Canada does things liberally and promptly. Twenty years ago an application took out, with that company, a Semi-Endowment Policy for $1,000, of which $500 was guaranteed at the expiration of the policy, with accumulated profits, and $1,000 in the event of death within the period.

"Now, the assured has been notified that the Endowment period has expired, and that he could, if he chose:—1st, withdraw $500, plus $401.05 of accumulated profits, or a total of $901.05; or 2nd, obtain with the amount of the first option, a non-participating policy for $1,630 payable at death; or 3rd, obtain an annuity for life of $73.15.

That sum of $401.05 of profits earned in twenty years for the assured by the Company, added to the $500 of guaranteed Semi-Endowment, is a result which is an eye-opener for people who desire to invest their savings safely. "The owner of the above policy (No. 13,537), was protected in case of death during the period of twenty years for the sum of 1,000, for nothing, and finally he draws nearly fifty per cent. more than he paid out in premiums during his twenty years of assurance.

"Once more therefore does the Sun Life of Canada prove the truth of its motto—

"PROSPEROUS AND PROGRESSIVE."

"We keep for public inspection the positive proof of the assurance policy as above related."

"Le Moniteur du Commerce."

With such results it should be easy for intending insurers to make a decision as to the Company which best looks after the interests of its policyholders.

ROADS AND ROAD MAKING.

AN IMPROVED ROAD GRADER.

Possessing Points of Advantage Over Present Day Variety.

Road graders are used extensively in the West, not only upon roads, but also upon other stretches of ground where an even grade is desired. Among recent improvements in graders is shown in the illustration to which horses can be attached to either side, something which has heretofore been impossible. For that purpose there is a rod or chain attached to the side of the framework of the grader and a brace bar, having one end loosely secured to the frame some distance in advance of where the draft rod or chain is attached. The horses are attached to the forward end of this rod. As shown in the illustration the upper framework of a "Western reversible grader," the draft chain or rod being hooked to eyebolts near the end of the side. A brace bar, composed of two pieces of gas pipe, is secured to the draft rod, one portion being larger and admitting the smaller portion, the adjustment being made by means of a pin. The angle-iron is attached to the front of the draft rod and in operation tends to guide Levels the ground.

It straight, while the pressure on the blade of the grader when moving earth crowds the rear of the machine away from the earth. The machine can be adjusted for different grades of ground by lengthening or shortening the draft. Among the advantages are convenient means for attaching horses to the side to assist in propelling the grader, and at the same time to prevent it from sliding sideways, commonly called "crawling," away from the moving earth; attaching the horses to either side of the grader, the draft being near the rear of the grader, the rear wheel is prevented from climbing and cutting the bank, insuring a clean ditch or furrow. It cannot be upset, and will work successfully in loose or sandy soil.

Dust Laying on Macadam Road.

With the growing use of automobiles the problem of the suppression of dust on highways is given a new importance, says Good Roads Magazine. It is claimed that the rapid pace of these vehicles, together with the vortex set up by the fans, are responsible for the great clouds of dust which arise, making travelling both unpleasant and dangerous. Among the most common remedies used is that of sprinkling the road with water. Water, however, it is claimed, acts as a solvent on the surface of the road, creating mud which shortly becomes dust when dried out. Many experiments have been made with petroleum and other liquids which, although acting similar to water, evaporate more slowly.

Among the remedies that have recently been successfully tried is that of a preparation of coal tar known as Tarvia, the outgrowth of various experiments in this country and abroad. It is stated by the manufacturers that the use of this material improves the wearing quality of macadam roads. It is also claimed that on hills, where the drainage of storms causes the road to ravel out, this preparation is especially valuable. A tarviated road has a roof of which the water runs without penetrating.

Among the places which have made considerable use of this material is the city of Montclair, N. J., and the superintendent of roads and sewers of that city reports that a tarviated road even after fifteen months of use is not injured by water, wind or heat, and the use of Tarvia in this city is being rapidly extended. The preparation has been used on heat grades, where practically the entire output of a large stone crushing plant passes over it, making a severe test, it being stated that after three months' use nothing has developed to indicate that even under these conditions it will not give equally good results. The walks and drives of the new park will be treated with Tarvia.

Good Roads in Georgia.

Many of the roads in the neighborhood of Savannah, Ga., have been improved with a cement gravel, which is said to resemble asphalt in its finished condition. The cost has averaged about $2,500 per mile, and sections that have been in use for eight or ten years are reported to be in good condition at present. Gravel, marl and clay are the constituents of these roads as they are of good concrete. There are about 30 miles of this kind of roadway already constructed, and as a result there has been added to the rateable property of the city about $500,000 for automobiles alone.

FORTUNE IN FISH BAIT.

Due to Lack of Humus and Scarcity of Anglerworms in Maine Soil.

By far the most popular bait for all kinds of fishing in Maine is living earthworms, which have the odor of the ground about them and which seem to be choice tidbits, not only for trout and landlocked salmon, but also for pickerel, perch, black bass and, indeed, every species of food fish that swims in fresh water.

More than ten years ago Carl Beers, a florist of Bangor, went into the business of rearing earthworms for the purpose of selling them to the local fishermen, as well as for shipment to Boston. He imported a breed of dark purple worms from Belgium, which were prolific breeders, though coarse and strong flavored, and later he secured a box of giant anglerworms from India. In the course of a few years he was able to supply live worms by the millions to his customers.

Those shipped to Boston were sold in job lots for 75 cents a pound. To the home customers he sold worms of average size for 10 cents a dozen. Though his greenhouse was a small one, and though his trade in worms was never extensive, he made money rapidly from the sale of worms, until last year, when he retired and went to his old home in Sweden, a wealthy man.

Sidney Cook of Presque Isle, the inventor of several diving appliances used by men who work in deep waters, was the next man to attract attention as a public benefactor in the bait line. Mr. Cook says his invention was made possible through having watched the Indians of Canada when they sought worms for bait.

"All earth worms come to the surface at night," said he, "and feed on the grasses and rotting leaves near the entrance to their burrows. While the worms were busy eating, the Indians of Canada had a habit of dragging a blanket with its under side smeared with bird lime along the surface of the land, thus picking up the fat worms, together with sticks and lumps of earth and small pebbles."

"After dredging the land for a time the Indians carried the blanket to the camp picked off the worms and added another coating of bird lime. Though I have been praised very much for my invention, it is not mine by rights, as I gained the idea from Indians."

"The only change I have made is to go out with a light giving forth a violet color and allowing it to shine for a few minutes upon the land to be visited with the smeared blanket. Most lights frighten earthworms and drive them underground, which is the reason why they feed in the dark, but a light that carries a blue or a violet blue shade seems to soothe the creatures and makes them careless of danger."

"Or perhaps the worms are hypnotized by the strange glare and cannot get away. That is the way a dark lamp acts upon deer at night, and I think a deer should know as much as an anglerworm."

Story of a Swindle.

In the Paris Matin M. Hardouin, a well-known writer and financial authority, thus describes an ingenious plan to hoodwink the New York customs authorities, which he says was carried out: "There exist in Montmartre poor devils who can turn out Rembrandts better than Rembrandt himself. Certain dishonest picture dealers in Paris know this and give orders for these 'Dutch' masterpieces. At the bottom of the canvases the name of Rembrandt is placed. Ordinarily the dealer sells these. But it occurred to one of them last summer that there was something better to do with them. 'These are good,' he said to the ragged painter who brought them. 'Put your own name on them in place of that of Rembrandt. Why give him the credit, eh?' The artist carried off the canvases, painted out the false name and put his own in place of it. Then he took them back, and the dealer bought them for a pitiful sum."

"After a few weeks the dealer sent the pictures to his correspondent in New York, and at the same time sent a letter to the customs authorities there, telling them that they were about to be the victims of a tremendous fraud. Two real Rembrandt pictures, recently discovered, were to arrive from Europe with the name of Rembrandt painted out and another insignificant name substituted for it. 'Take off the upper coat of paint in the right hand lower corner and you will find that the name of Rembrandt is there. The idea is to sell these old masterpieces in the United States after they have passed your administration. I warn you that each painting is worth at least $120,000.'"

"This advice did not fall into unheeded ears. The outer coat was taken off, and sure enough, there was the name 'Rembrandt,' with the proper date. The customs people demanded $25,000 for the two paintings, a sum paid contrary to the correspondent, who felt great thankfulness for being let off for that amount. But a fortnight later he sold the pictures for nearly $120,000, their authenticity being properly established by the receipt of the American custom house. 'They had cost $20 apiece in Paris.'"

Tuberculosis Among Indians.

It is true that 60 per cent. of the deaths among the Sioux and Yankton Indians now are from tuberculosis, but it is also true that 50 years ago tuberculosis was unknown among the Indians, and has fastened upon them only since the coming of the white man to Dakota.

THE DECAY OF CIVILIZATION.

Effect of Light and Heat Upon the Human Economy.

That the decay and disappearance of many ancient civilizations were due simply to the fact that the regions in which they flourished were unfitted for blond races, is maintained by Dr. Charles E. Woodruff, a surgeon in the United States Army, says the Literary Digest. The writer maintains that too much light is injurious to white races through its actinic or chemical effects, from which the dark skin-pigments of swarthy races protect them. This at once explains why, by survival of the fittest, dark races are found in tropical lands, why Europeans have always failed to colonize the tropics, and why blonds disappear when they migrate southward. Says the writer of a review in The Edinburgh Medical Journal: "It seems a small thing that mere tint of skin should influence migration and permanence of occupation, yet the evidence in support of this adduced in the book before us has much in its favor. The blond and intelligent rulers of regions suited better for more swarthy peoples have regularly in the course of ages died out, while their subjects, thoroughly acclimated to their domicile, remain. Egypt has been the theater of immigration of intellectual races over and over again; in each case these disappeared, and civilization decayed, though the native fellah survived and survives. 'There will,' the author predicts, 'never be another dark age, for the present Aryans conquerors rule it from London and are not colonizers.' The decadence of nations has been assigned to many causes, most of which are most properly results of the decay. The chief one appears to be that a civilization comes to an end because the people who created it perish from climatic unfitness. While the blond type of mankind requires for its evolution a cold, dark, northern country, the innate of various degrees of intensity up to absolute blackness is alone adapted for lasting existence in most regions of the world."

"We have too much sunshine in the United States, Major Woodruff thinks. 'The curious tendency for Americans to go back to Great Britain for permanent residence when they can,' says his reviewer, 'implies an instinctive desire for the feeling of comfort and well-being which they experience in their ancestral home.' None of the races that have come to this country until recently is adapted to the climate, Dr. Woodruff asserts, except the Jews. All the rest of us are degenerating from excessive light. The lower Mediterranean races, however, are now flooding over, and if the blond types die out as they did in Greece and Italy during the decadence of these two countries, our history may repeat theirs. Resolute Dr. Woodruff consoles us with the assurance that the northern types may survive in sufficient numbers to prevent the destruction of the republic, provided we take warning and limit the franchise to the races represented by these types. The climate of Greece, the writer asserts, took about seven centuries to destroy its blonds. In 500 B.C., the period of its greatest literary glory, the decadence of the Greeks was already evident and shows itself to-day in their literature and art. Ancient Greek statues exhibit many of the stigmata of degeneracy; even a famous head of Juno has arrested development of the jaw and is 'the head of a dying race.'"

There is a marked increase of abnormal conduct, due to heat, wind, barometric pressure, humidity, and pest their though. Dr. Woodruff says that in New York and Denver, where the mass of the people has too little pigment for the intensity of the light, there is a marked increase of abnormal conduct, due to the irritation in the light season and on bright days. A very bright day in Pennsylvania may be so comforting to a negro by satisfying his light hunger as to give him a sense of well-being, under which he behaves himself, while a very blond man, an albinist, would be goaded into an irritated state, in which he loses control of his emotions and normal inhibition, and commits abnormal acts."

"Light affects the nervous system, producing nervous instability and irritability. It particularly affects children at the age of six or seven, when the restless age begins of running about, when it is practically impossible to confine them. Hence they are more and more exposed to these harmful rays, and as the rays are most harmful to the developing cell, children are more harmed than adults with equal exposure."

Elephants in Line of Battle.
In a certain sense elephants are still used in battle by the East Indians, but they are only used as beasts of burden and draught for artillery; but in ancient times, and down to a comparatively recent period, they were used in the East as fighting animals, and taught to swing chains and balls of metal in their trunks, to pull horsemen off their horses, to lift men from the ground and dash them down, and also to trample infantry under their feet."

They were employed in this way from very early times, but it is difficult to point out the exact occasion on which they last appeared as engines of war. There is, however, every probability that the last campaign in which they were regularly used in this capacity was that of the year 1801, in which the great Akbar Deccan, and established the Mohammed Empire in India.

BEES

AMERICAN HONEY IN HOLLAND.

Establishes a Ready Market for Wisconsin Products.

Wisconsin is one of the commonwealths of the United States whose products are playing a prominent part in the "American Invasion" of Europe, says the Chicago News. It is Wisconsin honey that is displacing certain parts of the old world. And the place where the Badger State bee raisers' competition is chiefly felt is Holland, for many years one of the chief countries in Europe in the production of honey. Wisconsin honey is not alone in this campaign here, for great quantities of honey from California and some other States are sold in the same market. But as a matter of fact, Wisconsin and California honey practically carry the banner between them.

Bee raising has always been a much prized branch of agriculture in Holland, although since 1860 it has been in a state of decline. In the years between 1860 and 1900 the best colonies were reduced to about half what they had been before 1860. This decrease has been found to have been caused by the decrease of clover and buckwheat.

But besides this there was a deeper cause. The Dutch agriculturists have been content with the old ways of raising bees and the old fashioned hives. These old hives to this day can be seen on nearly all the farms. In the United States, however, the newest methods and inventions have been employed to make the bee swarms better and to increase the honey production. The result is that Holland is literally flooded with American honey. Honey to the value of millions of florins (4 florins is worth 40 cents) is imported every year. Not only does the real pure honey come in, but the artificial product as well, made fresh from potato meal, of which the bees are entirely innocent.

Still it has proved by the remarkably large harvests of several beekeepers in Holland that it is a country admirably fitted for bee feeding and is, in fact, quite as good as the best American States, Wisconsin and California. The large beehives covered with bloom in some of the provinces are ideal grounds for producing honey. Now all this is going to waste, much to the detriment of the orchards and grain fields, which also ruin the busy little fertilizing agents. They have to buy at great expense what the soil could produce with ease.

Of late years, however, a beginning has been made by some large beekeeping firms who have imported the American bee dwellings with movable honeycombs. It has been found that the Dutchman's slow and ancient methods make him no match for the American. The latter dars risk a dollar to win two, while a Dutchman turns a cent twice over, as the saying is, before venturing it. In Holland bee culture languishes in spite of high prices for honey, while in the United States it flourishes despite low prices.

A society has been formed to advance agriculture in Holland. This society is supported by the government. By organizing lectures and by distributing pamphlets on bee culture it is doing all in its power to foster this productive branch of culture.

First works on bee culture those of the Brahmins in India. Bible bees and honey are mentioned in several places—witness the words with milk and honey. As had a treatise on bee culture has been written by the first historian of the bee and previous to the fifth century A.D. no one improved on his treatise.

The Romans practiced bee culture to a high degree and almost every villa had its own bee colony with a specially appointed caretaker. Virgil in his "Georgics" sings of the "busy bee." The Germanic nations also practiced apiculture.

The introduction of Christianity had a great influence on the bee, as every other branch of agriculture and horticulture for the monasteries became practical and theoretical schools in these branches. The use of wax candles on the altars of the churches was a strong incentive to increased wax production.

The reformation was rather a blow to the beekeepers, as the use of candles was greatly diminished. The introduction of sugar was also of much influence in the decrease of the honey trade in Europe. Strange to say, California, where the bee was introduced only in 1853, is now the richest bee land in the whole world.

Bees and Fruit Trees.
The owner of a large pear orchard has demonstrated by actual experience the value of bees. "For years," he says, "my pear orchard refused to bear fruit in paying quantity. I determined to dig up the pear trees and put apples in their place. By chance, before doing so, I put a colony of bees in that orchard, and from that year my pear trees have borne heavily."

LATEST DESIGNS IN FURNITURE.

Conspicuous for Simplicity and Fine Workmanship.

Fashion, combined with the increasing popularity of the arts and crafts movement, has created a demand for furniture modeled on more simple lines than those conspicuous in the production of the past few decades. This simplicity does not mean the sacrifice of artistic effect.

and the introduction of freakish styles such as have been seen occasionally in the past, but the adaptation of the best ideas of the master cabinetmakers of olden days to the requirements of this age. The result is beautiful pieces of furniture—tables, cabinets, dressers and chairs being conspicuous in the list. The workmanship and woods are of the finest and the finished product is a source of joy and delight to all lovers of the beautiful.

In the accompanying illustrations are shown some recent examples of special merit of furniture of this description. The lended glass doors differentiate the corner china cupboard of dark toned oak, beautifully polished from the generality of such productions. The chess table of mahogany is an example of the effectiveness of this simplicity of treatment applied to small pieces of furniture.

HOME COOKING.

Custard Pie.

Beat three eggs, without separating, lightly, add three tablespoonfuls sugar, a saltspoonful of salt and a little nutmeg; pour into the bowl three cupfuls of hot milk and turn into a deep pie plate lined with a good crust; bake slowly until the custard puffs and a knife blade slipped in at the side comes out clean. If cooked too long it turns watery.

Frosted Rice.

Cook a cupful of rice in a pint of boiling water until dry, then add a pint of milk, a tablespoonful of butter, the grated rind of a lemon and the beaten yolks of four eggs; butter a pudding dish and pour in the mixture; bake until the pudding is firm; beat the whites of the eggs until stiff, add four level tablespoonfuls of sugar, a tablespoonful of lemon juice; spread over the top of the pudding and bake very slowly until the meringue has puffed and taken on a lovely golden brown color; close all the draughts of the stove and if necessary leave the oven door open, as all meringues must be cooked very slowly at not much more than a drying heat.

Chicken and Ham Sandwiches.

Chop fine equal parts of cold boiled chicken and cold roast or boiled ham. Mix them and moisten to a paste with melted butter, adding salt and pepper to taste. Spread between crustless slices of thinly cut bread.

Nut Sandwiches.

Rub cream cheese to a smooth paste with two dozen shelled and chopped English walnuts. Add a little salt and spread on crustless and buttered slices of thin graham bread.

Where False Hair Comes From.

"None of our stock is American hair, and it is practically impossible to buy any American hair," said a dealer in hair goods. "Her hair seems to be the last thing that woman in this country dreams of parting with. Sweden produces the biggest supply of false hair and it is generally thick, long and of fine quality. From France we get all our gray hair. There is one woman who makes a business of dealing in gray hair alone, and about every six months she goes to France and visits the small villages and towns, way back from the main avenues of travel and returns with a fresh stock.

"German furishes a small quantity, but it is apt to be coarse in quality and the color not so desirable as that from Sweden. Italy is a good field for black hair, but it is less soft and fine than some other hair. American women wear more false hair than those of any other nationality."

MECHANISM OF SMILING.

Wherein We Differ from Animals in Practicing This Art.

Smiling has been studied from a physical standpoint by George Dumas, a French physiologist, says the New York World. M. Dumas produced artificial smiles by applying an electric current to the nerves under the lobe of the ear.

The muscles concerned in smiling were made to contract, and the opposing muscles remained quiescent, but the action of the members of the smiling group was unequal, so that the experimenter obtained seemed to indicate grief rather than joy, particularly since the contraction around the eye exceeded that around the mouth. Nevertheless, he considers the result a triumph for his theory, and exhibits with pride a photograph of a "unilateral smile" caused by electric excitation of only one side of the face.

He says a smile may appear without any psychologic excitation and in itself has no expressive value. "And man," he says, "has formed the habit of associating the muscular sensations and the sight of these movements with an agreeable impression, so that he regards them as a sign expressive of this state of pleasure.

To manifest it he has formed, by association, the habit of smiling and of considering the smile of others as an evidence of their satisfaction.

We have learned to smile in different ways to indicate irony, indifference, etc., and the accentuation of the movements of different muscles has assumed the same value as a shrug of the shoulders, the raising of the head or the pronunciation of certain syllables or words. It is thus that psychologic progress has made of the smile a keyboard on which we play with more or less skill.

"The Oriental, especially the Japanese, always smiles out of politeness, even when he is sad; because it is a social fault to sadden a stranger. He has reached the maximum of self-mastery and, in a sense, a superior state of psychologic progress and of civilization."

M. Dumas says animals do not smile with their faces because their facial muscles are not, as in man, the most mobile. Those of his tail are a dog's most mobile muscles, therefore "he smiles" by moving his tail, and this movement has a tendency, even in his case, to become a real gesture. Cats also smile with the tail, and perhaps also birds; the erectile muscles of the feathers and tail are, with the maple for instance, real smiling muscles."

Elephant God's Overcoat.
This photograph shows in detail the patchwork overcoat in which the Burmese clothe the elephant god.

The garment is intended not only to protect the deity from the inclemencies of the weather but to keep him from the gaze of curious unbelievers.

First Used Word Electricity.
No one seems to have recalled, in connection with the commemoration of Sir Thomas Browne at Norwich, that he was the first person to use the word "electricity" as a noun. Gilbert and others who followed him had adopted the term "electric" to denote substances which, like amber, became attractive when rubbed; but they had used no name for the unseen itself.

The first occurrence of the substantive in English (or, for that matter, in any language) occurs on page 79 of the "Pseudodoxia Epidemica" (1646). In the following passage: "Glasses attracts but weakly though clear, some sleet stones and thick glasses indifferently; arsenic not at all; Saltes generally but weakly; as Sal Gemma, Alum and also Talker; nor very discoverably by any friction; but if gently warmed at the fire and wiped with a dry cloth, they will better discover their Electricity."

Land of Original Blackmail.
England, according to Mr. Justice Phillimore, enjoys in some foreign countries the reputation of being the home of the blackmailer. Certainly Great Britain was at least the land of the original "blackmail," the "mail," rent, or tribute paid on the Anglo-Scottish and Highland borders by farmers to freebooters in return for immunity from their visitations. In Ireland a similar institution was known as "black rent." The old word "mail," meaning rent, and coming either from the Anglo-Saxon "mael," a portion, or the old French "malle," a halfpenny, is quite a different word from the postal "mail," which is simply "male," a bag. To Coke and Blackstone "blackmail" had an innocent significance, meaning rent paid in labor or produce, as opposed to "white rent," paid in "white money," silver.—New York Globe.

What Does It Mean

to let Dividends "accumulate" on a Life Insurance Policy? In many companies it means nothing more than an agreement on the part of the policy-holder, to do without dividends for fifteen or twenty years, and then take whatever dividend the company will be willing to give. Dividends are declared every year in the Mutual Benefit, and the policyholders use them either to help pay premiums or to buy increased insurance. The policies of the

STATE FARMS PROSPER.

Our Lands Make Favorable Impression. Eastern Shore's Advantages. $3,000 A Year On Poultry One Example.

"Maryland has more advantages for farmers and manufacturers than any other State of this great country, and I am more convinced that the fortunes in the forest and in the rocks and in the broad blue bay and in the mighty rivers are more recognized now than ever before," says Secretary A. F. Trappe, of the State Bureau of Immigration.

Mr. Trappe has returned from a trip to the Eastern Shore, to find suitable locations for several farmers from Oklahoma, who came here last week. He accompanied the strangers to several counties, but was very much hampered by the rain since last Sunday morning. They visited first the settlement around Preston, Caroline county but here it developed that the farmers around that enterprising little town are not willing to part with their possessions except at a high figure. The people of Preston are building a new town hall and big flourmill.

Mr. Trappe says that the erection of a creamery near Preston has a double advantage: in the first place, it takes the milk of the farmers at reasonable figures and gives cash money into the hands of the farmers, and it encourages the keeping of a greater number of cows. In Dorchester county the rain interfered considerably with the inspection of farms, but the corn in the fields looks favorable. The same condition prevailed in Wicomico County.

The men from the far West were agreeably surprised at the business enterprise of Salisbury. That town made a good impression; everybody is hustling and from all appearances it seems that Salisbury has a little boom.

$3,000 In A Year from Chickens.

Mr. C. D. Krause, the son of a man from Pennsylvania who located here several years ago, started a little poultry farm and realized in the first year $3,000 cash money. He says that he will do better in the coming winter. In the wooded country between Salisbury and Princess Anne are a number of busy sawmills, to supply the demand for lumber in the farming region and the country from Princess Anne to Pocomoke made a decidedly favorable impression upon the visitors.

Mr. Frank V. Matthews showed the strangers a field in which he raised 50 barrels of fine potatoes an acre and received $3.25 a barrel for them. He has corn that is more than 5 feet high. In Pocomoke City, Secretary Trappe found a number of farmers from Pennsylvania, who intended to look up some farm property, and Messrs. Dryden and Co., have been advised that six families from Ohio will arrive some time next week to locate in Somerset.

How To Double Money.

How successful farming in that section is was proved by a man from Virginia, who a short time ago bought a farm of 40 acres, cleared the land and sold half of the property at the same figure for which he had bought the whole farm. Another farmer from Kansas, Mr. J. Hornung, bought 60 acres for $1,500 and has on his place the best soil in the whole section. He says that within a short time he will be able to show that his farm is worth at least $5,000. That a woman can compete with the men on the farm is proved by Mrs. J. Wuerchmidt, near Beaver Dam, Worcester County; Mrs. Wuerchmidt came from Wisconsin and took up 90 acres. Her husband, the late Rev. Mr. Wuerchmidt, was sick and she was compelled to make a living and has done so with success. Mr. William Malchow has erected a new gristmill near Pocomoke City and is building a new sawmill. He says that the sanitary conditions around Pocomoke could not be better, and mosquitoes are rare. From his experience it can be said that the corn crop in the eastern section of the peninsula is better than on the ridge of the counties of the Eastern Shore.

Mr. Trappe returned yesterday to be present at the meeting of the State Board of Immigration.

It is said that Mr. Robert G. Brown, of Chestertown, has invented an automatic railway switch which gives promise of revolutionizing the present mode of switching railway cars, and insuring to the young inventor a big fortune. With Mr. Brown's device, it is claimed that the engineer or other operators on the engine can throw the switch both before and after the passage of the train and with the cars in motion. It is stated that Mr. Brown conceived the idea of his invention in a dream which he subsequently worked out and developed into a practical device. Mr. Brown is a son of Mr. Arthur M. Brown, of Radcliffe Hall farm, near town, and it is hoped that he may make his fortune with his device. Chestertown, Md., Transcript.

HON. THOMAS A. SMITH,
Democratic Candidate for Congress, First District of Maryland.

25th Anniversary Of The Class Of '81 Of The University Of Maryland.

Dr. Josephus A. Wright recently attended a class reunion of the University of Maryland. There were seventy two in his class—who graduated March 6th, 1881. Scattered in various parts of the United States, one from Cuba and one from Egypt, of this number four have risen to distinction. Dr. L. E. Neale, Dr. C. W. Mitchell, Dr. J. S. Fulton, who are professors in the medical department of the University of Maryland, and Dr. H. J. Berkley is a professor at Johns Hopkins University. The reunion of the class was in the hands of an Executive committee who had the matter under consideration for a year in locating the members of the class. Of the seventy two, fifty nine are living and are engaged in active practice but one who had retired to his farm in Pennsylvania.

Of the class who are living all are married except two. This information was obtained from a circular sent out to each member of the class. They all have eight three children. At this 25th Anniversary thirty were present. They talked of old college days and the many changes that had taken place in a quarter of a century. The banquet was held at the hotel Remont. Dr. C. W. Mitchell was toast master. Each member of the class was called on for a speech. All responded in appropriate addresses. There are three members of this class who are natives of Wicomico County, D. John S. Fulton, Dr. Wm. A. Graham and Dr. J. A. Wright.

Large Summer Gathering Of Horticulturists At Berlin. Sumptuously Entertained.

Every county of the State was represented among the 300 members of the Horticultural Society who were the guests of Mr. Orlando Harrison, of Berlin, Wednesday and Thursday.

Mr. Harrison entertained his guests lavishly. The dinner served in the grove was pronounced "worthy of the Eastern Shore."

The address of welcome was delivered by Mr. Harrison. Other speakers were Messrs. N. F. Flitton and Thos. A. Smith, Capt. Richard W. Silvester, Dr. E. J. Dirlikson and Professor Waugh, of Massachusetts.

The great size of Mr. Harrison's nurseries was a surprise to most of his guests. They comprise over 1,000 acres. Wednesday afternoon was devoted to an inspection tour. Many of the members were enthusiastic over the thrifty condition of the trees and shrubs, the practical methods of packing and shipping and the systematic block of fruit trees.

The meeting wound up at Ocean City where Mr. Harrison took his guests on a special.

Messrs. W. F. Allen and Chas. R. Disharoon were present from Salisbury.

Sunday School Convention In Wicomico
On September 8th and 9th a District Sunday School Convention will be held at Bivalve. The date for other conventions being arranged for have not yet been fixed. It is desired to permeate the whole county with District meetings. The Maryland State Sunday School Association was never as vigorous and progressive as it is today, and is determined to lend its aid so effectively as to place Wicomico beside the best organized counties in the State. It asks the co-operation of pastors, superintendents and other friends of the Sunday School.

DEATH OF W. P. RIDER

At The Home Of His Son-In-Law, Hon. Joshua W. Miles, in Princess Anne. Was 85 Years Old. Sketch Of His Career.

Mr. Wm. P. Rider died Thursday, August 9, at the residence of his son-in-law, Hon. Joshua W. Miles, in Princess Anne in the 85th year of his age.

He was born 1821, October 21st at the Rider homestead on the Wicomico river, being what is now known as Quantico wharf. He had been engaged in farming until '65 when he bought the Washington Hotel in Princess Anne, and engaged in hotel keeping for 25 years, making this old hotel, then famous, still more so. He also kept the Surf House at Rehoboth Beach, Del., for several years.

His first wife was Miss Wallace, a half sister of Dr. Newman, a well known physician of Washington City, who also married a sister of Mr. Rider. By his first wife he had one son, Mr. Chas. H. Rider, Mrs. Virginia Gale, wife of Levin J. Gale of this county, Mrs. Mary Dougherty, wife of W. P. Dougherty, Mrs. Gertrude Fontaine, a widow and Mrs. Willie Stanford, wife of Mr. Samuel Stanford.

His second wife was Miss Margaret Ellegood, daughter of Robert H. Ellegood, by whom he leaves one child, the wife of Hon. J. W. Miles. Mr. Rider was the son of Mr. Chas. Rider, and was, therefore, a member of the Rider family one of the oldest and best known families of this county. He was a gentleman of the "old school," noted for his urbanity, generosity and exemplary character. He will be buried in the Presbyterian Churchyard Saturday at 4 o'clock p. m.

Death Of Mrs. Milton Pope.

Mrs. Ella L. Pope, wife of Mr. Milton H. Pope, died at her home on Poplar Hill Avenue on Wednesday morning at four o'clock. Her death was caused by a complication of diseases from which she had been suffering for several weeks.

Mrs. Pope was the daughter of John W. James, of Princess Anne Co., Va., and was married to Mr. Pope December 1883, and for several years resided in Pocomoke City.

Besides her husband, she is survived by four children: Miss Maud, Mr. Russell, Miss Elizabeth and an infant daughter, Ella.

Funeral services took place at her late home yesterday, (Friday) afternoon at three o'clock, conducted by Rev. W. S. Phillips, pastor of the Methodist Protestant Church, of which the deceased was a devoted member.

There were a number of beautiful floral tributes, among which was one consisting of forty white roses, significant of the number of years she had lived. Interment was made in Parsons Cemetery.

Her many friends, both in Salisbury and Pocomoke City, sympathize deeply with Mr. Pope and family in this, their great sorrow.

WICOMICO HAS CORN

There Will Be A Fair Crop Over The County, Despite The Soaking Rains, Mr. S. E. Gordy's Outlook.

Salisbury seems to be well blessed. During the panic of '92 and '93 although times were dull yet business kept right along at Salisbury. She was growing all the time and is still growing. During the drought of 1902 the farmers of Wicomico had fair crops; again during the rainy season of 1906 while we hear of drowned "corn fields" from all around yet on the ridge upon which Salisbury is built corn and other products are coming right along. We have never had extremely large crops on this ridge and what we ought to be more proud of and thankful for—we have never had a total crop failure. At Mr. S. E. Gordy's Orchard Hill Farm, there is a twenty acre field of pretty corn that takes everybody's eye who gets within "eye shot."

The corn is stalked and is planted 8 feet, 10 in. each way. Much of it is more than 16 feet high. Mr. Gordy expects 120 bushels of ears or more to the acre. Thirty years ago we doubt whether this same land would have made 40 bushels to the acre. It shows what Wicomico land can be made to do. It takes time, patience and lots of work to make grow such crops. All the corn on the ridge of the Peninsula is looking well. The excessive rain has injured it but little.

35,973 Rural Routes in United States—377 in Maryland.

The monthly report issued by Fourth Assistant Postmaster General DeGraw shows that on July 31 there were in operation in the United States 35,973 rural mail routes, an increase of 205 over the number in operation at the close of business the previous month.

In Maryland during July there were eight routes discontinued, or rather, there was a decrease of eight routes on account of the arrangement of the service in Carroll county. There are now in operation in Maryland 377 routes, divided among the Congressional districts as follows: First, 124; Second, 117; Third, 0; Fourth, 1; Fifth, 13; Sixth, 12. Fifteen petitions for routes in the State are pending.

—Francis A. Davis, a wealthy tobacco manufacturer, of Baltimore figured in a serious automobile accident in New York, Tuesday, and was placed under arrest there. Two young women were run down and so severely injured that they were rushed to the New York Hospital, where one of them is thought to be dying. A pathetic phase of the story is that one of the young women, Miss Grace Hyne, eighteen, a stenographer in a New York bank, had begun her vacation by visiting her chum, Miss Margaret Bellwood, nineteen, an actress, and that Mr. and Mrs. Davis had just begun their annual outing by taking an automobile trip.

It is reported that the litigation brought by property owners against the P. B. & W. R. R., in Wilmington which prevented the completion of the elevated lines in that city will soon be adjusted. The suits have been in progress nearly three years. It is understood that the railroad has made material advances in the prices offered for the property required.

Mr. C. C. West, of Delmar and Miss Blouine Sirman, of Laurel, were quietly married at Laurel Tuesday evening by Rev. W. H. Higgins. The happy couple left on the early train Wednesday morning for a sojourn at Atlantic City. On their return they will reside in Delmar. Mr. West is one of Delmar's well known young men. He is employed as an engineer by the N. Y. P. & N. R. R.

Foreign Commerce Grows.

Washington, D. C.—The foreign commerce of the United States in the fiscal year just ended aggregated $2,970,000,000. If the trade with Porto Rico and Hawaii, which was included in our foreign commerce prior to their annexation, were added the total would exceed $3,000,000,000. Both imports and exports exceed those of any earlier year.

The total imports of the year were valued at $1,235,000,000, exceeding the highest record of any earlier year, 1905, by $109,000,000, and the exports were $1,744,000,000, exceeding those of the highest record year, 1905, by $235,000,000. The excess of exports over imports was $509,000,000, exceeding that of 1905 by $116,000,000, but falling below that of each year of the period 1898-1901.

An analysis of the trade figures for 1906, with the purpose of determining the classes of articles in which this growth of imports and exports has occurred, cannot now be made in precise terms, since the Bureau of Statistics of the Department of Commerce and Labor has not yet completed the details for the twelfth month of the fiscal year.

It would appear, however, that about $970,000,000 of the exports were agricultural products and about $600,000,000 manufactures; the remaining being products of the mines, fisheries, forests and miscellaneous.

On the import side a similar analysis shows that the total of $1,235,000,000 worth of imports in the full year is composed of approximately $995,000,000 worth of articles, classified as "manufactures" materials, $205,000,000 worth of articles classified as "manufactures ready for consumption," $175,000,000 worth of merchandise classified as "articles of voluntary use luxuries etc." and about $355,000,000 worth of "articles of food and animals."

Shine In The Home.

Be a light to all who are in the house. Shine where you live. Eat without fault finding. Mend the torn garment without complaint. Go on the unpleasant errand without bewailing the necessity. Respond to the call for help cheerfully. Commend often; censure only when you must.

"Pap, I do try to do right; won't you please tell me sometimes when I please you?" a little girl said to her father, who was constantly correcting her.

The lights of kindness, gentleness, patience and consideration should never go out; we should keep the light of a good example always burning.

A boat went out to sea carrying a father and daughter. A terrible storm came up as they were hurrying back. The coast was dangerous. The mother lit a lamp and started up a wooden stairway to the attic window.

"It won't do any good, mother," the son called after her. But the mother went up, put the light in the window, knelt beside it and prayed.

Out in the storm the daughter saw a glimmer of gold on the water's edge. "Steer for that," the father said. Slowly, but steadily, they came toward the light, and at last were anchored in the little sheltered harbor by the cottage.

"Thank God!" cried the mother, as she heard their glad voices and came down the stairway, with the lamp in her hand. "How did you get here?" she said.

"We steered by mother's light," answered the daughter, "although we did not know what it was out there."

"Ah," thought the boy, a wayward boy, "it is time I was steering by mother's light;" and ere he slept he surrendered himself to God, and asked Him to guide him over life's rough seas.

Months went by, and disease smote him. "He cannot live long," was the verdict of the doctor, and one stormy night he lay dying. "Do not be afraid for me," he said, as they wept, "I shall make the harbor, for I am steering by mother's light."—The Optimist.

Women as Well as Men Are Made Miserable by Kidney and Bladder Trouble.

Kidney trouble preys upon the mind, discourages and lessens ambition; beauty, vigor and cheerfulness soon disappear when the kidneys are out of order or diseased.

Kidney trouble has become so prevalent that it is not uncommon for a child to be born afflicted with weak kidneys. If the child urinates too often, if the urine scalds the flesh, or if, when the child reaches an age when it should be able to control the passage, it is yet afflicted with bed-wetting, depend upon it, the cause of the difficulty is kidney trouble, and the first step should be towards the treatment of these important organs. This unpleasant trouble is due to a diseased condition of the kidneys and bladder and not to a habit as most people suppose.

Women as well as men are made miserable with kidney and bladder trouble, and both need the same great remedy. The mild and the immediate effect of Swamp-Root is soon realized. It is sold by druggists, in fifty-cent and one-dollar size bottles. You may have a sample bottle by mail free, also a

Home of Swamp-Root pamphlet telling all about Swamp-Root, including many of the thousands of testimonial letters received from sufferers cured. In writing Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y., be sure and mention this paper. Don't make any mistake; but remember the name, Swamp-Root. Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, and the address, Binghamton, N. Y., on every bottle.

Atlantic City Scenes On The Promenade.

The promenade is a delightful place to shop, you can fancy yourself in almost any country in the world, for the booths contain articles of every description, dainty shawls and lace are spread before you to admire and buy. The dark skinned Syrian will tell you that they are surely made in his home across the sea. The Egyptian tempts you with rare and precious stones of every color to bring luck, and the sweet perfume of sandal wood and attar of rose brings a dream of the Orient. Hindoos are very shrewd. Most of them make enough during the summer season, to return to their native lands, for our winters are too severe for the East Indian. He longs for the coral strand and the faint odor of the spices of his tropic India. Aramania supplies us with gorgeous rugs and rich tapestries. We must not forget the little Japanese, and their wonderful works of art. If one is hungry, a rice cake is quickly prepared by the lady of the kimono and fan. From Mexico, we have the fine and delicate lace worn—made by the native women. Indian pottery and beads from the squaw. California sends us the beautiful abalone shell of many colors, of which dainty trinkets are carved. Beads have a fascination for most women, and the wily Portuguese from Argentine Republic with a pleading musical voice will beg of you to buy, of course you can't resist, especially when he tells you that he longs for the warm air of his southern home and must sell before the cold north wind comes. If you are fond of sweets, then you must pay a visit to the Greek for he is famous the world over. Amusements are many and varied. One must be gay in the City by the Sea. Types of all nations are seen, from the Swedish blonde of Northern Europe to the dark eyed beauty of Louisiana whose voice is like the nightingale of her own wildwood. From the breezy Western maid of the Golden Gate to the Little Indian Princess with her Oriental collection of jewels and silken robes. La Belle Creole from New Orleans and even from Old Mexico comes the winsome Senorita to grace our Esplanade. It is a "Monte Carlo," for many hearts are won, and lost, in the shadow of the silvery moon. "So Maidens beware!" unless you hold the winning card. The fever is often contagious; it may be the moon or the singing of the surf. Sages have said that the summer air is charged, and but few escape, like the lotus or water lily of Egypt, when once you taste its fruit, a soft sleepy languor creeps over the senses. Dreams like the breath of the rose gardens of Cashmere or the orange wood of the Sorrentine Valley lure you on and on through the vines and hills of sunny Spain and the borders of the River Nile, where the lotus eater dreams his life away. "Ma petite!" let not such a fate befall you. With the restless murmur of the sea so like the human life, gay Queen City, we will leave your shores.

Katharine Lewis,
Atlantic City, N. J.

Of all creatures the angler is the least offender in the crime of killing. says April Country Life in America.

The very game he seeks, though beautiful and gentle to the eye and at times, noble in deed and purpose, is the most brutal killer of all races—the lovely trout in its attacks upon gaudy flies, the valiant bass and pike in devouring their smaller brethren, and the multitudinous sea fishes not alone in their feeding upon one another, but in their wanton murder of the millions upon millions of victims of their pure love of slaughter.

For the young American of means, who has sporting blood in his veins and longs to try a new and novel form of hunting, says the New England Magazine, there is a great chance now to engage in one of the oldest forms of big game hunting known, and in a field which has not been fittingly exploited by the amateur. To the man who has exhausted even the delight of the sixty mile an hour automobile there is an unlimited field. The chances are if he once gets an opportunity to taste the unbridled and terrific pleasure of "Nantucket sleigh ride," he will view his auto machine as a thing time after time.

An experience with whalers that they are prone to speak of in disappointment matter of fact language. But, for all that, there isn't an old whale of them all whose nostrils will not dilate with zest when he thinks upon it, and the landman who ever has had the rare fortune to experience one is not likely to find anything else in all the rest of his life that will not seem tame compared to it. Few landmen ever have the opportunity. When a whale boat lowers to fight a sixty foot whale the business is too important to remember the craft with unskilled passengers. And not many landmen would really care to go, even if they could, when they behold, wallowing in the sea, the huge thing that is to be attacked.

Beach Costumes.

Beach costumes are fast becoming a specialty, says "Vogue," and are no longer the object of criticism and surprise they were. The argument in their favor is, that as bathing is not healthful or possible for everyone, beach lounging on the sand, and breathing daily for an hour or more the air at bathing resorts, has been conceded to be one of the most health-giving of practices. It is quite natural that a costume for such an occasion should differ from one worn while bathing. So far as outward appearances go, to lie on the sand in a wet garment is quite the reverse of delicate, or in good taste, whereas a costume made and worn for that purpose has everything to recommend it.

WONDERFUL CURE BY CUTICURA REMEDIES

"My husband and five children were all afflicted with eczema. They had it two years. We saw Cuticura Remedies advertised and concluded to try them. So I sent for $1.00 worth, consisting of one cake of Cuticura Soap, one box of Ointment, and one vial of Fills, and we commenced to use them. I do not know how to express my joy in finding a cure, for two of my children were so bad that they have the brown scars on their bodies where they were sore. If it will be of any benefit to you, you can publish my letter with pleasure. Yours truly, Mrs. Maggie B. Hill, Stevens, Mason Co., W. Va., June 12, 1905."

AGENTS

VIRILITY OF LIVING PLANTS.

Method by Which They Extract Food and Resist Enemies.

There are many plants which display an ingenuity in gathering food or in attacking their enemies which would seem to indicate a surprising degree of intelligence. Since plants are rooted to their places, they are naturally greatly handicapped, but many of them have surprising compensations. There is, for example, the telegraph plant, of India, which has a method all its own for catching the sunshine. Each of its leaves is composed of three leaflets. The larger terminal one erects itself during the day and turns sharply down at night, describing complete circles with a peculiar, jerking motion like the second hand of a watch. Occasionally they rest for a period and then go on again, thus bringing every part of every leaf to the full action of the sunlight. Many plants shift the position of their leaves in the direction of the light, changing this power is possessed to a considerable degree by some of our common house plants.

Should a drop of water or bit of dirt fall upon the gland-tipped leaves of the sundew nothing more happens than as if they had been dropped upon the leaf of any ordinary plant; but let an insect or a bit of meat take the place of these insatiable substances, and you shall see the tentacular glands gradually bend over, and assisted by the curling up of the leaf itself, enfold the esculent morsel and cover it with a digestive fluid, which at once dissolves it and adapts it to be assimilated by the insect eating plant. But it is worthy of note that the instinct of the plant, under certain exceptional circumstances, like the instinct of insects, sometimes goes wrong; for the sundew as eagerly accepts morsels of cheese as it does of any other nitrogenous substance, and cheese is a poison to the Drosera plant. The sundew is not the only plant which exercises choice and discrimination in the selection of its food. In and about the swamps of North Carolina, and indeed in many other parts of the United States, is found the Dionaea, or Venus flytrap. It has, as has the Drosera, very small roots, which, like those belonging to the sundew, serve only to give it a foothold, and supply it with moisture; and plant captures the food necessary to its subsistence.

The leaf in this instance is constructed like a steel trap, the two halves snapping together and the marginal teeth interlocking as do the teeth of a trap. Long, sensitive bristles, generally three in number, arranged in a triangular order, erect themselves upon the upper surface of the trap. Touched ever so slightly by a hovering or flying insect, they transmit an impulse which in an animal would be called a mandate of its will, to the muscles or the machinery that moves the lobes of the trap, and so instantly in this obeyed that these lobes close upon the insect and capture it. Inorganic bodies placed upon the lobes, unless they touch the sensitive filaments, do not cause them to close; organic bodies, when moistened and placed upon the leaf cause it, after absorption has begun to take place, to close slowly.

The lobes may be made to close over either organic or inorganic substances, but with a difference. When an inorganic substance is placed upon the leaf and one of the sensitive bristles is touched the leaf indeed shuts up, but in such a manner as to leave a hollow space between the lobes of the trap, as if the plant were tasting the substance to see if it were fit for food. When, on the other hand, an organic substance falls upon the leaf both lobes press against it and against each other with force enough to flatten out a portion of the white of a hard boiled egg that they have been made to close upon. Again, when any inorganic substance is caught the glands are not excited to secrete the digestive fluid, and the lobes soon open, freeing the substance and showing it perfectly dry. If the object caught is too small to make it worth the attention of the plant it is allowed to escape between the interlocking teeth; but if the quarry be large enough and of a nutritious character the lobes will remain flattened together over it for fifteen, twenty-four or even thirty-five days.

Norwegian Lead Line.

Norway has decided to follow the example of England and adopt a lead line for her shipping. Subject to an arrangement with the Norske Veritas, a law will come into force by which stringent rules will be applied to Norwegian shipping. Attention in Norway has been directed to the subject of shipping losses, which are very heavy, and as no considerable proportion of Norwegian shipping sails about the world uninsured because unobtainable these losses have been keenly felt of late years.

The new merchant shipping act stipulates that "when a foreign ship is bought by a Norwegian subject no certificate of nationality shall be issued for the ship if built of wood, or of wood and iron (composite), and more than twenty years old, or of iron (steel), and more than thirty years old, unless classed A1 if of wood and A1 if of iron in the Norske Veritas or other surveying institutions recognized by the King." Even if allowed to registry under these conditions she will have to pass a thorough survey before being allowed to proceed to sea. British shipowners have long contended that the same regulations which are enforced on British ships should be equally enforced on foreign ships, and in fairness the contention is irrefragable.

SOMETHING FOR POSTERITY.

"Let us leave a few problems for posterity," counseled Bismarck, excellent advice, which is respectfully commended to our idealistic young friends of the magazines and elsewhere.

One of them is trying to reform the railroads. Another is trying to reform the Senate. Another has been purporting city and state governments, and is now kindly but firmly setting Congress upon the moral track again, says the New York World.

NEW YORK'S RISING HOI POLLOI.

If New York has ever had the leaven, she appears to be in danger of losing it in the face of the rising tide of hot polloi who threaten to engulf her, says the St. Louis Globe-Democrat. Yet, since it is inconceivable that in a city of such size, and containing so large a wealthy and leisure class, there are not many polite men, using the word in its best sense, their responsibility in the crisis is both obvious and urgent. Though they be, numerically speaking, nothing more than a clean drop in an ocean of dirty water, the force of their example will not be long in making itself felt. It is not only the evil things of this life which are contagious. Quit talking of "art for art's sake," and talk politeness for its own sake and as its own reward. Otherwise, according to its own witnesses, New York will not long be fit to live in.

FARM AND GARDEN. PROPER SOIL FOR TOMATOES.

Area With Gentle Slope to the South Considered Most Desirable.

The tomato as a field crop is adapted to a wide variety of soils, though a medium clay loam is probably the best. In fact, any soil well adapted to potatoes will grow the tomato to good advantage. The previous treatment, however, has an influence on the best development of the crop, and a clover sod, or soil upon which corn has been the preceding crop, is perhaps the best. In either case the land should be deeply cultivated.

The plants should be set from 4 to 4 1/2 feet apart each way and cultivation should begin immediately.

Pot-grown plant, ready for transplanting to field.

The first cultivation should be deep. In order to conserve the moisture, and each subsequent cultivation shallower. In order not to destroy the roots, which will fill the soil as soon as the plants reach maturity.

Enemies of the Currant Bush.

The currant has two chief enemies, one the well known currant worm, the other the rust or leaf spot. The worm comes early in the season, and is easily destroyed by dusting the leaves with powdered hellebore, dusted on when the leaves are damp. The leaf spot is apt to appear in midsummer, and if not checked will destroy the foliage, causing it to fall off. This may be prevented by spraying the foliage with Bordeaux mixture, applying it early in summer or at the very earliest time the disease is noticed. Gooseberries are attacked by the same worm that injures currants, and it is to be met in the same way, by dusting with powdered hellebore. Besides this worm there is the mildew of the foliage, which all gooseberries suffer from, but particularly the English varieties. This is controlled by spraying with Bordeaux mixture, but is even better done by spraying with a mixture made by placing an ounce of liver of sulphur to two gallons of water. It is well to have these mixtures, or the materials to make them, on hand, as in the case of both insects and fungi the damage by them is quickly done.

Preparing the Orchard.

Deep plowing is by all means advisable for a year or two preceding the planting of an orchard. The turning under of green manures and the growing of hoed crops advisable on rich land or new land which needs subduing. Corn is a good crop to plant. It is the best index crop known for bringing out the inequalities of the land. It will show the poor spots which need extra fertility and frequent irrigation will develop the gravel spots which need humus. The best thing, however, to immediately precede the planting is some crop like Irish potatoes, or garden vegetables of some kind. Such crops bring the soil into practically a garden condition, for with them deep plowing, high manuring and fertilizing and thorough cultivation are commonly practiced. Subsoiling is to be highly recommended on all lands underlain by a more or less stiff subsoil. This should be done when necessary the fall preceding the planting of the trees.

Grafting Peach Trees.

Grafting the peach is a practical failure, so far as we have ever seen done, says Field and Farm. The best plan to get the little seedlings worked over to the desired varieties is to spring-bud them. To do this the action should be cut, put in cold storage and kept until the stocks begin to start growth in the spring. Then they should be taken out as they can be used, which will be only a few at a time, and kept warm and damp until the buds are ready to set. The ordinary method of shield-budding should be used.

Success in Farming.

Knowledge is power in agriculture as well as in other professions. The more a farmer knows about the facts of agriculture, and the more he practices what he knows, the more successful he becomes. The wide awake farmer is observant, and profits by his failures as well as his successes.

Wisteria for the Veranda.

The Field and Farm always said that the wisteria is one of the most satisfactory vines for a veranda. It grows strong and high, makes a pretty, leafy screen and is loaded with blossoms in the early spring just when we need flowers the most.

WOMEN LAWYERS' ASSOCIATION.

The women lawyers of this town have formed their own Association, of the Bar says the New York Sun, for "the cultivation of the science of jurisprudence, the promotion of reforms in the law, the facilitation of the administration of justice, the elevation of the standard of integrity and honor and courtesy among the legal profession and the creation of a spirit of fellowship among the members." What will be the attitude of this learned body on the subject of millinery?

FOR CONGRESS:
HON. THOMAS A. SMITH,
Of Caroline County.

—Another of Tom Lawton's indictments of the Standard Oil System has been verified by the United States Circuit Court ordering Henry H. Rogers to pay back at least $2,350,000 which the receiver of the Bay State Gas Company alleged was taken from the treasury of that concern by Rogers. This and other drains upon the resources of Rogers may prevent him from being such a liberal contributor to the Republican campaign fund in the future as in the past.

THE GO-HEAD SALISBURY.

The Advertiser's announcement of the awarding of the contract for the paving of Main, Dock and Division streets to Church street, by the City Council Tuesday night should be welcome news to the property holders and business men of Salisbury.

This paper has been the exponent and advocate of good roads and good streets since its foundation in 1867. The trend of public sentiment, we are glad to say, is after many years in this line all over the country.

Salisbury will not have modern streets twelve months, before she will be ready to acknowledge their value in the commercial appreciation and comparative standing that will be hers.

With every other natural advantage to offer in the way of a central, prosperous location, splendid water and railway facilities in addition to a well governed town—one of the principal requisites to a go-ahead progressive city—good streets—has been sadly lacking. With the provisions already made they are about to be supplied, the contract calling for the work to begin first of September.

With electric lights, gas and good streets it will be a cheery Salisbury present and bright future.

GROWTH OF FOREIGN COMMERCE OF THE UNITED STATES DURING DECADE 1896-1906.

The foreign commerce of the United States has grown much more rapidly during the last decade than its population. Complete figures for the fiscal year 1906, just presented by the Bureau of Statistics of the Department of Commerce and Labor, show that while the population has grown since 1896 but 30 per cent, imports have grown 87 per cent, and exports 109 per cent. The classes of imports which show the greatest gains are manufactures and manufacturers' materials. Manufactures imported show an increase of 42 per cent, and manufacturers' materials imported show an increase of 95 per cent. On the export side agricultural products and manufactures show the largest gains. Agricultural products exported show an increase during the decade of 70 per cent, and manufactures an increase of 163 per cent.

This increase has occurred in the trade with all of the grand divisions of the world, but is especially marked in the trade with Asia and Oceania. Imports from Europe show an increase of 50 per cent, those from North America of 80 per cent, those from South America of 30 per cent, from Asia and Oceania 80 per cent, and from Africa 13 per cent. Exports to Europe show an increase of 78 per cent, those to North America an increase of 164 per cent, to South America 107 per cent, to Asia and Oceania 233 per cent, and to Africa 41 per cent.

The actual gain in the decade are, in imports, 447 millions, and in exports, 861 millions; in manufactures imported, 61 millions; in manufacturers' material imported, 238 millions; in agricultural products exported 400 millions, and in manufactures exported 347 millions. In the trade by grand divisions the actual increase in imports from Europe is 214 millions and in exports thereto 627 millions. In the trade with North America the increase in imports is 105 millions and in exports 192 millions. In the trade with South America the increase in imports is 23 millions and in exports 10 millions.

In exports 39 millions. In the trade with Asia and Oceania the increase in imports is 92 millions and in exports 98 millions. In the trade with Africa the increase in imports is 1 1/2 millions and in exports less than 6 millions. Some remarkable changes have occurred also in the routes of travel followed by this increased traffic. Comparing conditions in 1906 with those of 1896, the Atlantic ports show an increase of 829 millions in imports and 436 millions in exports; the Gulf ports, an increase of 50 millions in imports and 263 millions in exports; the Pacific ports, an increase of 17 millions in imports and 57 millions in exports; the Northern border and Lake ports, an increase of 43 millions in imports and 116 millions in exports; while the interior ports show an increase of about 9 millions in imports.

The Delaware side of our town is badly in need of a constable who will protect the interests of the people. At present drunks, both black and white, bums, and any old thing go along the public streets and do as they please. There is no reason why the people should endure it. If we had a constable who would enforce the law a few examples would soon rid the town of such disgraceful scenes.

Papers have been filed at Dover incorporating the Delaware Buggy Hardware Co., with a capital of $50,000. The par value of the stock is $50 per share, and any one desiring of purchasing shares in this company may do so on application. A great many shares have been subscribed, and as there is every indication that the company will pay good dividend it appears to be a good investment.—Delmar News.

My Hair is Scraggly

Do you like it? Then why be contented with it? Have to be? Oh, no! Just put on Ayer's Hair Vigor and have long, thick hair; soft, even hair. But first of all, stop your hair from coming out. Save what you have. Ayer's Hair Vigor will not disappoint you. It feeds the hair-bulbs; makes weak hair strong.

NEWPORT VIGNETTES.

Toilettes Seen At The Summer Capital: Cashio Frocks; Dinner Gowns: Fashionable Hats; Narragansett Bathing Suits.

If the girl in the moon should come to earth to see the very latest thing in fashionable apparel she would bet-ter come straight to Newport for be it whispered styles that are first seen here in August worn by the elect will be the reigning mode in the Fall and Winter tolettes.

Parisian Wrinkles.

Famous Parisian makers send their best to some of the fastidious women here who drop a style at once if it becomes too popular, and spend lavishly to be always gowned in advance of the fashions. The girl in the moon then or any other member of her sex can find valuable hints, as to colors, materials, general lines, and the so-called minor details, that go to make up a really smart whole effect.

Shoes, Gloves, Parasols.

Shoes, gloves, parasols, belts, gir-dies and sashes or the innumerable little touches in draped veils, velvet dog collars, or the jewelled clasps, serve to bring out the best points of the gown and its wearer. The mush-room hat, the one that has the brim drooping all around, the crown low, and the bandeaux underneath, shares with high crowned flat trimmed shapes first place in fashionable favor.

The New Helvetia Silks.

Another Parisian fad that is in favor here is the toilette of Pekin stripes in black and white, or the same combinations achieved in other ways. The new Helvetia Silks that come only in black or white, but in a variety of weaves, satin, armure, or a particularly soft lustrous taffeta that wears as well as it looks, will be in great demand by the time society goes back to winter quarters.

French Creations.

Gowns recently sent over from Paris are made up of these silks and for colored satin toilettes Paquin, Worth and others are using the soft lustrous Sapho silks on account of their texture and exquisite colorings. A gown of this fabric worn at one of the small dinners that are Newport's favorite form of entertaining, was in one of the new reds, that is exactly matched by the shade of pink topas. Another was in a soft yellow tone and the set of matching ornaments was made of yellow topas and pearls.

Semi-Precious Stones.

Matching sets of semi-precious stones, topas, amethysts, aquamarines, olivines and others of this class are made up into bracelets and necklaces, which are more often than not of the dog-collared order. Corsage pins, and various head ornaments, (not tiaras) are as much of a fad for function dress as are matching parasols, hats etc. for street attire.

Bathing Suits At The Pier.

Narragansett is very popular this season, and at the bathing hour on its beautiful beach, or dining in groups of intimates afterward in the pavil-ion one recognizes many members of Newport's smartest contingent. As always one sees the top notch of at-tractiveness in the bathing suits worn here. They vary from all black to pale pink and baby blues, but the cut and trimmings are of the best and where elaborate dressing is so general these suits are not so conspicuous as they would seem in less ornate sur-roundings.

Silk The Material.

Whatever color may be selected the favorite material for these suits is silk, usually taffeta and if a grade made of pure silk is used, nothing is so satisfactory. This material does not cling or shrink, and holds its color as well as anything in the salt water. Lucy Carter.

If The Baby Is Cutting Teeth.

Be sure and see that old and well-tried remedy, Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup, for children teething. It soothes the child, softens the gums, always all pain, cures wind colic and is the best remedy for diarrhoea. Twenty-five cents a bottle.

—WANTED—Lady or gentleman of fair education to travel for firm of $250,000 Capital. Salary $1,073 per year, payable weekly. Expenses ad-anced. Address GEO. E. CLOWS, Salisbury, Md.

Disease takes no summer vacation. If you need flesh and strength use Scott's Emulsion summer as in winter.

THE PRODIGAL SON'S BROTHER.

August 12, '06—(Luke 15:11-32.)

The world has heard a great deal about the Prodigal Son, but it has had very little interest in his elder brother who stayed at home and behaved himself. It is time somebody called attention to the virtues of the first born in contrast with the vices of the prodigal.

It is not an uncommon thing to find children of the same family so much unlike that they do not seem to have any relationship with each other. It is no unusual thing to find direct opposites on the genealogical tree. One child is light and another is dark, one child is swift and another is slow, one child is bright and another is dull, one child is happy and another is morose, one child looks like the father and another is the perfect image of the mother; direct opposites in taste, temperament and disposition.

In the parable of the two sons Christ shows up such a family. A father had two boys who were as much unlike as two human beings could be. One was a plodder, the other was a loafer. One was contented to stay at home, the other wanted to see the world. One was economical, the other was a spendthrift. One dressed in homespun, the other wore fine clothes. One was a recluse, the other was a hall fellow with all the sportsy young men in the neighborhood. One remained quietly at home and behaved himself, the other insisted on having his share of the inheritance, and having obtained it, plunged at once into a prolonged debauch, and "wasted his substance in riotous living."

The prodigal squandered his property, associated with fast men, fast horses, fast women, sunk lower and lower in the scale of manhood, until he became a wretched, ragged and ravenous tramp. His money was gone, his friends were gone, his health was gone, his clothes were gone. He was a living illustration of two old proverbs. One was "A fool and his money are soon parted." And the other was "The way of the transgressor is hard."

And yet the world at large knows more about the Prodigal Son than about his decent brother. There seems to be a sneaking disposition in the human heart to glorify a rake. A moral leper in the community will be more acceptable to polite society, if he owns an automobile, than a dozen clean men who have to go on foot. This is the explanation of the sickly sentimentality of silly women who send scented notes of condolence to cells of men guilty of crimes against their sex with flowers and appetizing dainties. There is more interest taken in one unrepentant rascal in a community on the part of a great many who ought to know better, than over ninety and nine just persons who need no repentance.

Of course the prodigal's father made a great fuss over him, for in spite of his emaciation and rags he was his baby boy who had long been mourned as dead. But one cannot help but feel that the elder son was somewhat justified in his disgust, to find such hilarity over the return of one who had never brought anything but disgrace upon the family. Do not waste any tears on the Prodigal Son. He was not a poor, innocent country lad, unaccustomed to the ways of city life, who was the prey of designing men and women. Oh, no! He was a prodigal before he left the old homestead, that the reason he left. He went out with the deliberate purpose of seeing the lions, of swinging around the whole circle of sinful pleasures, of being independent of the restraints of home and decent society. He was the black sheep of the family. He deliberately sought that style of life. When he got his money he went just as far from home as possible, for the purpose of "wasting" his substance in "riotous living." The point of the story is the boundless, faithless love of a forgiving father, and not the eleventh hour repentance of a reprobate son. Of course he was ready to mend his ways at last. The man-eating tiger having lost his teeth is reconciled to becoming a vegetarian.

Of the two young men in this story the elder brother is much to be preferred. He stayed at home and lived a decent life. He carried on the farm after his brother had deserted it, doing the extra work without a murmur. He honored his father and his mother, and kept the family together after the aged parent got too old to work. Perhaps he closed his mother's eyes in death when she departed. He carried the burdens in the heat of the day, while his rattle-headed young brother was loafing around the country, making the money fly. And he must be looked at leniently, if at the last, he felt that it was going a little too far to slaughter the prize calf in order that the burnt out vagrant might have something good to eat. It looked at first sight like rewarding vice, and putting a premium on iniquity. It is to be hoped that the Prodigal Son proved the reality of his repentance, and caused even the elder brother soon to be glad that he had returned. But he is not to be too severely blamed for being at first a little suspicious of the reality of the conversion.

RHEUMACIDE has cured thousands of cases after all other remedies and famous doctors had failed. Austin Percelle, of Salem, Va., spent $200 in medicines and hundreds of dollars for physicians' fees, and at last he was cured by half a dozen bottles of Rheumacide. G. Dietrich, of 2120 Ramsay street, Baltimore, says it has "made him a new man." Mrs. S. A. Combes, 114 S. Gilmore street, Baltimore, says it cleansed her blood, took away her pains, and made her "feel like a new woman." Your druggist sells and recommends Rheumacide.

After Noted Doctors Failed.

Here is a case cured by RHEUMACIDE after noted New York specialists had failed. Mr. W. R. Hughes writes from Atkins, Va.: "Four bottles of RHEUMACIDE have entirely cured me of a long-standing case of rheumatism and greatly improved my general health. I was a total wreck, having had rheumatism for twenty years. I spent several weeks and much money trying specialists in New York, but RHEUMACIDE is the only cure I have found. When I began to use it I weighed 140 pounds. Now I weigh 150 pounds, my normal weight."

TO AILING WOMEN.

A Little Sound Advice Will Help Many A Sufferer in Salisbury.

No woman can be healthy and well if the kidneys are sick. Poisons that pass off when the kidneys are well are retained in the body when the kidneys are sick. Kidneys and bladder get inflamed and swollen, crowding the delicate female organs nearby and sometimes displacing them. This is the true cause of many bearing down pains, lameness, backache, sideache, etc. Uric poisoning also causes headaches, dizzy spells, languor, nervousness and rheumatic pain.

When suffering so, try Doan's Kidney Pills. You will get better as the kidneys get better, and health will return when the kidneys are well. Let a neighboring woman tell you about Doan's Kidney Pills.

Mrs. J. W. Bassett, wife of J. W. Bassett, retired farmer, residing at 213 Main St., Cambridge, Md., says: "I have always enjoyed very good health until recent years when I suffered more or less trouble with my kidneys. It was manifested in severe headaches and rheumatism. The troubles were always worse if I caught cold or over exerted myself. I had terrible dizzy spells at times. 'Reading of Doan's Kidney Pills I asked my husband to get me a box. I took them as directed, and when I had finished the one box I felt so much better that I have since recommended them to a great many people. I know that they have done me a world of good and feel that they are a great thing for kidney complaint.'"

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, N. Y., sole agents for the United States.

What To Eat.

All medical authorities agree that meat eating is unwise for those who have a tendency to rheumatism, and that a fruit and vegetable diet is the only safeguard against pain.

It is said, in all seriousness, that buttermilk is the real foundation of youth. It certainly is cheap stuff, and if it possesses virtues we might as well utilize them.

There is a wide difference in acids. Older vinegar and lemon juice do not aggravate rheumatic tendencies, while oranges do. Grape fruits aid digestion by working upon the liver.

An old gentleman says that raw prunes are better than medicine as a preventive of rheumatism and other ailments incidental to old age. He has eaten four a day for years, and is a living proof of their virtues.

A young man living so far out of town that he can not wait for breakfast at his lodgings keeps his health by carrying milk chocolate in his pockets and eating enough of it on the train to carry him without faintness to an early luncheon hour. Some hard-working physicians carry little squares of chocolate against the possibility of being detained from meals with probable bad results.—Sel.

Make Hay While The Sun Shines.

There is a lesson in the work of the thrifty farmer. He knows that the bright sunshine may last but a day and he prepares for the showers which are so liable to follow. So it should be with every household. Dysentery, diarrhoea and cholera morbus may at tack some member of the home without warning. Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy, which is the best known medicine for these diseases, should always be kept at hand, as immediate treatment is necessary, and delay may prove fatal. For sale by C. L. Dickerson and G. Hearn.

Stomach Troubles And Constipation.

No one can reasonably hope for good digestion when the bowels are constipated. Mr. Chas. Baldwin, of Edwardsville, Ill., says, "I suffered from chronic constipation and stomach troubles for several years, but thanks to Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets am almost cured." Why not get a package of these tablets and get well and stay well? Price 25 cents. For sale by C. L. Dickerson and G. Hearn.

The Watchword Of Women.

Modesty is a woman's watchword. Whatever threatens her delicate sense of modesty, frightens her. For this reason many a woman permits diseases of the delicate womanly organs to become aggravated because she cannot bring herself to submit to the ordeal of examination questionings, offensive explanations and obnoxious local treatments, which some physicians find necessary. Doubtless thousands of the women who have taken advantage of Dr. Pierce's offer of free consultation by letter, have been led to do so by the escape thus offered from a treatment repugnant to modesty. Any sick woman may write to Dr. R. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y., in perfect confidence: all letters being treated as strictly private and answered confidentially and all answers being sent in plain envelopes with no advertisements or other printing upon them. Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription has been long hailed as "a God send to women." It makes weak women strong and sick women well. "Favorite Prescription" contains no alcohol, ether, opium, cocaine or other narcotics.

A SUMMER MOOD.

O to be lost in the wind and the sun, To be with the wind and the stream! With never a care while the waters run.

With never a thought in my dream, To be part of the robin's lilting call And part of the bobolink's rhyme, Lying close to the sky thrush singing alone, And lapped in the cricket's chime.

O to live with these beautiful ones With the lust and glory of man, Lost in the circuit of springtime suns— Submissive as earth and part of her plan— To lie as the snake lies, content in the grass!

To drift as the clouds drift, effortless, free, Glad of the power that drives them on, With never a question of wind or sea.

—Hamlin Garland.

Summer Diarrhoea in Children.

During the hot weather of the summer months the first unnatural looseness of a child's bowels should have immediate attention, so as to check the disease before it becomes serious. All that is necessary is a few doses of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy followed by a dose of castor oil to cleanse the system. Rev. M. O. Stockland, pastor of the First M. E. Church, Little Falls, Minn., writes: "We have used Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy for several years and find it a very valuable remedy, especially for summer disorders in children." Sold by C. L. Dickerson and G. Hearn.

Stripping The Maine Coast.

In whatever direction one drives out from Bath into the country, there are fresh traces of the man with the axe who is rapidly and ruthlessly devastating the hills and valleys of their chief beauty, says the Bath Times. Some of this tree cutting is defensible on the score of profit. A man must make his land pay. In other cases the man who owns the land is not only depriving the community of an asset, but robbing himself. This is particularly true near the coast, where as yet the landholder is left by himself, but where there is sure to be, sooner or later, a demand for land for summer homes—unless the farmer or fisherman deliberately destroys his prospects of that kind of profit.

A dollar made by wood cutting today in some such localities is likely to cost the owner of the timber hundreds at some future time when, had he not cut the wood from his property it would have brought a high price from a wealthy purchaser seeking an ideal summer home. When the shore-dwellers realize this fact, there is no doubt that they will act upon it, if realization does not come too late, after the timber has been burned, leaving a shadeless, barren ledge as unattractive for the purpose of the summer resident as useless for any purpose.

"Och!ly came to the rescue of a damsel in distress on the beach today."

"Saved her life?"

"No; saved her bathing suit. It was starting to rain and he had an umbrella."

Can't look well, eat well or feel well with impure blood feeding your body. Keep the Blood pure with Burdock Blood Bitters. Eat simply, take exercise, keep clean and you will have long life.

Hives, eczema, itch or salt rheum sets you crazy. Can't bear the touch of your clothing. Doan's Ointment cures the most obstinate cases. Why suffer. All druggists sell it.

Don't use harsh physics. The reaction weakens the bowels, leads to chronic constipation. Get Doan's Regulants. They operate easily, tone the stomach, cure constipation.

"My child was burned terribly about the face, neck and chest. I applied Dr. Thomas' Electric Oil. The pain ceased and the child sank into a restful sleep."—Mrs. Nancy M. Hanson, Hamburg, N. Y.

The intense itching characteristic of salt rheum and eczema is instantly allayed by applying Chamberlain's Salve. As a cure for skin diseases this salve is unequalled. For sale by C. L. Dickerson and G. Hearn.

MAPLE GROVE.

As our little village has never been represented in the good old Salisbury Advertiser I will endeavor to give a few items.

Our young folks have been enjoying themselves playing croquet at Figg's village for the past two weeks.

Mr. W. S. Passy and wife of near this place, visited Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Elliott Sunday last. Mr. James H. Calloway and son, Paul, of Drayden, Md., are spending a few days with their friends and relatives here.

Mr. and Mrs. Cyrus Benson, of near Seaford are visiting his father Mr. S. E. Benson of near this place.

Quite a number of people in this vicinity went on the trip to Chesapeake Beach and Washington on Wednesday of last week.

Miss Emma Elliott is on the sick list.

Our tent holders at Melson's Camp, returned home Monday with their goods and chattels. They report it one of the dullest weeks that has been spent on those grounds for ten years.

Mr. Geo. Niblett, of this place, who has been afflicted for the past six months with inflammatory rheumatism, we are glad to note is out again.

Our farmers will soon be able to talk as well as the town folks as the Riverton and Delmar Telephone Company is putting up lines through this vicinity lines being in reach of all.

Owing to so much rainy weather our farmers are thinking every day how they will get feed for stock another year.

For the past few years our poor old mothers could hardly get any peaches for family use for love or money. This year the chances are good to get your cans full for some cold snowy day this winter.

SHARPTOWN

Miss Mary Buschell, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur O. Adams and baby, Sarah, all of Baltimore, are at present the guests of Mr. Adams, mother.

Mrs. Mason and Mrs. Ella Baron who have been visiting Mrs. Julia Ellis for two weeks, returned to their homes in Norfolk, Va., Friday of this week.

Mr. L. T. Cooper is improving his dwelling by the addition of a handsome new porch.

On Tuesday last the M. P. Sunday School had their excursion to Ocean City. The day was very much enjoyed by all who took advantage of the occasion.

Master Ohlor Windsor is spending a few days with friends at Hebron, Md.

Mr. Wm. Kinnikin left Monday for Philadelphia.

Rev. Mr. Anderson, a former pastor of the P. E. Church here, paid a flying visit to our town Thursday last had spent a pleasant afternoon calling on old friends and acquaintances.

Dr. and Mrs. O. A. Zimmerman who have been spending some time as the guests of Mrs. Zimmerman's parents, Mr. and Mrs. B. P. Gravenor, left Monday for their home in Philadelphia.

Mr. Major Bradley had his shoulder hurt quite badly while at work at the Marine Railway Tuesday.

Mr. Hicks Wheatley was employed by the town Commissioners Wednesday last to clean the streets and sidewalks of weeds and grass. He used a large mower drawn by two horses. His work was very satisfactory. The appearance of the streets is very much improved to say nothing of the benefit derived from a sanitary standpoint.

The stock list is decreasing. This fact we think is due to the sanitary measures adopted by our citizens.

Sharptown Camp held under the auspices of the Ashbury M. E. Church will begin Saturday August 11. Rev. J. Harry Wilson being minister in charge. The camp ground is a beautiful one. Quite a number of able ministers are expected and no effort will be spared to make this camp meeting a success in every way.

Sharptown M. E. Camp meeting will begin August 10th and close on the 20th. This camp is to be held in the beautiful grove situated near the town and only about ten minutes walk from the steamboat wharf. The following ministers are expected to preach and take part in other services: Revs. Adam Stenzle, H. W. Bolton, W. E. Hills, G. R. Neese, E. H. Dickerson, G. S. Thomas, L. B. Morgan, J. W. Williams and Edwin Gardner. Revs. Bolton and Hills will preach Sunday, August 12th. Evangelistic services will follow each sermon during this camp. Children's meetings will be conducted each afternoon.

Make a note now to get Ely's Cream Balm if you are troubled with nasal catarrh, hay fever or cold in the head. It is purifying and soothing to the sensitive membranes that line the air passages. It is made to cure the disease, not to fool the patient by a short deceptive relief. There is no cocaine or mercury in it. Do not be talked into taking a substitute for Ely's Cream Balm. All druggists sell it. Price 50 cents. Mailed by Ely Brothers, 24 Warren Street, New York.

The corner stone of the Maryland Building at the Jamestown Exposition will be laid with appropriate ceremonies on Sept. 11th.

MARDELA SPRINGS.

There is not much news in our community. Our people have been trying to take it as easy as possible under the circumstances. The weather has been unbearably hot. But what is the use of telling this, for it has been on the tongue and lip of every one for several days. Our hottest day was on Tuesday, when the mercury ran up to 98. The corresponding day last year, it reached 94. I know this because I have kept a weather record. The humidity just wits us. Two or three of our people were overcome by the excessive heat.

The farmers are shipping their watermelons. The crop is very indifferent this year. The prospects for corn are brightening. Of course there are some low lands where the crop has been abandoned. But in other places the crop that seemed so uncertain is now greatly improved. Because of the partial failure of the corn crop, the farmers have sown many fields in low peas. The favorable reports from the West about the abundant corn crop has brought us much relief.

Mr. Chas. Gillis is having a nice house erected for himself on Bridge Street. Mr. George Sewell is the builder. It will be an ornament to that part of the town.

Mrs. Bratton is having her house enlarged and beautified. The large oaks in front of her house and that of Mr. Calloway are the pride of our town. Visitors look at these trees with great admiration.

Rev. John Anderson and wife are visiting at the home of Mr. and Mrs. A. S. Venables. Mrs. Anderson is a sister to Mrs. Venables. Miss Ella Stout another sister of Mrs. Venables is also spending a while in this hospitable home.

There are many strangers stopping in our town, but not nearly so many as would be here if only we had our hotel in operation. Here is a field of great possibility. But where is the man of enterprise who will take hold of it? A good hotel would be a paying institution here. It is an attractive place for summer visitors. The water has peculiar merits.

Rev. B. G. Parker and wife attended the Salem Union Camp this week. Mr. Parker preached on Wednesday. He reports fine meetings and good order. None of the objectionable features in some other camps are seen in this one. The shameful reports in circulation about the liquor and drunkenness in some camps weakens one's faith in camp meetings. If this can not be prevented, then it is a question in the mind of every conscientious christian, would it not be better to discontinue the camps. Why do not the authorities have these disorderly persons arrested? It is claimed that it is getting worse and worse every year. The present writer has heard many persons say that in their judgement the bad over balances the good. If this is really true, then there is an awful responsibility somewhere.

Rev. B. G. Parker will preach in the Presbyterian Church on Sunday afternoon at three o'clock. The many friends of Mr. Armstrong will be sorry to hear that he does not seem to be getting any better.

KELLY

Quite a number went to Pablo Landing last Thursday and reported a good time.

Mr. Josiah B. Johnson has had a large number engaged this last week rafting logs out of the creek near here.

We would like to know if any one has got a good crop of corn or any crop as the farmers around here are depleted. From a butter bean patch up to the corn crop it looks very dark for the farmer.

Owing to so much wet weather the late round potato is ruined.

The people here who have been so sick with typhoid fever are getting better.

Mr. Louis Rusk's child is sick.

Love Versus the Lily.

By Blanche Quimby.

She had wanted a Chinese lily and he had gotten one for her. When he brought the brown-skinned bulb to her she had immediately put it in its native surroundings—that is, water and pebbles. He had loved her, so he had said, but she had doubted him, for it was a well known fact that he was as fickle as the wind. To-night he told her again and had asked her to give him an answer.

"Yes, you may mean it now and for a week and a month, but the next pretty girl you meet, why, that much for me," snapping her finger.

"I will do anything to prove that I am earnest in what I say."

She was thoughtful for a moment. "No, I don't ask you to do anything; we will leave it to this lily that you have given me. If it blossoms I will give you my answer."

"Do you mean that if the flower should blast, as they often do, you will not marry me? It is nothing more than a resurrection of the olden times and I did not think you would resort to such a means to decide for you; I thought you would at least do that for yourself."

"Well, if you prefer that I should say no now, I will."

"I should rather have you say no, if that is what your heart tells you to say, than to have you say yes because the lily lived and blossomed."

"I guess we will trust it to the lily."

"They most always bloom," he finished out.

He did not call again for a week,

When the lily was in blossom.

but during that time the lily grew. It continued its growth for three or four weeks more, and all the while she watched it as the virgins watched the holy figs.

A short time after that he called. During their conversation a slight discussion arose, from which there came a little misunderstanding, and he went home with the agreement not to call until she put the lily in full bloom in the window.

Strange to relate, the lily did not wither as you would think it would, in accordance with the part it was to play, but still thrived. But by the end of the week, when he had not made his usual call, the ends of the long green lily leaves were beginning to turn yellow. She stood there looking at it. "Well—I do not care if you do die; you're nothing but a flower, and you needn't think that if you do not blossom it will make any difference in my answer, for I'll have some lilies in blossom to put in that window if they are made of paper."

She heard nothing from him for quite a little while, during which time the lily neither grew nor withered. It stayed in the same stage as if it were awaiting results to see when it was expected of it.

Then it gradually began to droop and droop. Would she have to keep her promise of saying no if the lily died, or would she let it die and get another?

One morning she went down and as usual looked at the lily the first thing. Lo and behold! Could it be the same lily? No. Yet it must be, but it was all in bloom and not a trace of the blighted blossoms and yellow leaves. The lily had solved the problem for her. Now she would not have to be deceitful and get another.

She put it in the window nearest the street in hopes—well, she was in hopes that was all.

That night he came and received the fulfillment of the promise of the blossomed lily. And he was satisfied that she did not say yes just because the lily bloomed.

If you had been near him when the parlor maid let him in, you would have heard him say:

"Did you have any trouble changing the lilies without her seeing you?"

"Oh, no, sir. But she was awful pleased when she saw them this morning, and thought they had taken to growing themselves."

"Well, I am glad you succeeded, for I would not like to have you try to do it again."

His Merry Thought.

Miss Budd—Is your husband a society man?

Mrs. Newport Lennox—I hardly think so dear. You see, he hasn't been blackmailed yet.

She—I suppose, Mr. Emerald Green, you are wedded to your art?

Emerald Green—Yes, and I wish now I had married for money. —Ally Sloper's Half-Holiday.

INTERFERENCE.

"Yes," said my friend, sadly, "you may play poker with a stranger and an unlimited raise, and may come out all right; you may shoot lions and tigers and the Falls of Niagara, and never suffer in your health; you may play with fire, and take no harm. But never meddle in the least degree with any one else's love affair. For you will come out of it with the reputation of a fool, with fool stamped all over your back and front, and you will deserve it. A helpless, unendurable fool for all time—that is what you will be. If you see a pure minded, refined girl on the verge of marrying a coarse, vulgar brute, let her; don't stand in the way. Probably the brute will never forgive you, and it's absolutely certain the girl never will."

"You speak with some warmth and bitterness. You have some personal experience in your mind?"

"I have. As you know, I am not a married man. But at one time I was engaged. It was years and years ago, and I was never one of those men who are well, silly about the girls they are going to marry. But speaking in sober fairness, I must say that Jessica was a really remarkable girl."

"Yes; engaged girls always are. Just say that you loved Jessica and Jessica loved you."

"Now that just shows where you are too hasty; for I'm by no means sure that Jessica did love me. I can't help thinking that if she had really loved me, things would have happened differently. Mind, I admit that I was wrong in interfering in any way with Ernest Budd."

"And who was Ernest Budd?"

"I think he was the most nauseous beast I ever met in my life. He was short, thick and ugly enough to stop the clocks. He was also a vain sentimentalist. He talked about women by the hour. He believed himself a woman killer. To listen to him made you feel sick and tired. I've heard him say that the beauty of women was practically the only thing he lived for—just that—in those words and 'he other man to whom he said it died a week later. Well, at this time Budd had come to an understanding with a washed out puss from Wimbledon, called Emily Chatter. I saw the girl, and I was sorry for her; I was very happy myself, and I wanted to save her from Ernest Budd and infinite sorrow in her after life. Knowing the rapid, mis-

I introduced him to Jessica. cellaneous and volcanic temperament of Ernest Budd, my task was easy; I had but to introduce him to a more attractive girl than Emily. I introduced him to Jessica."

"I'd talked it over with her, and she'd agreed to it. She was so happy herself—we were both very happy in those days."

"But after she met Budd?"

"Oh, she didn't like it. She said I might at least have told what an appalling boomer Ernest Budd was. Well, I'd told her what I have told you, and I think that ought to have been enough. I pointed out to her that within a very short time of Budd meeting her he would throw over Emily Chatter."

"And you were wrong?"

"It was absolutely right. And when Emily was saved by our intervention, then, so I told Jessica, she was perfectly free to drop Budd."

"Well, as I say, I pointed all this out to her, but she still was rather averse to it. She said the man's attentions were becoming perfectly insufferable, and that—knowing as he did that she was already engaged—he ought to be ashamed of himself. However, she kept on meeting him, and in a week he broke off his understanding with Emily Chatter."

"Well!" I asked. "What then? Did Emily commit suicide?"

"Not a bit of it. She must have known that Ernest Budd was no fit husband for a decent girl. No, she married a solicitor, and is very happy, they tell me."

"Apparently everything went right—just precisely as you wished and intended."

"Well, it didn't, then?"

"What was the matter? Did Jessica lose her exquisite tact, her ability for letting people see that she did not require them?"

"No, not that either. She was as good in that respect as ever she was. The trouble was—put in a few words—that it was me she chucked, and Ernest Budd whom she married."

His naughtiest and added vindictively, "And I'm glad to say that they're both beautifully unhappy."

GIANT WORK OF A GLACIER.

Is a Source of Heat and Light to the City of Tacoma.

How the ice-fields of Mount Tacoma are made to light streets and run cars nearly a hundred miles away is interestingly told by Day Allen Willey in the Technical World Magazine. Says Mr. Willey:

"From the glacial streams of Tacoma is already generated a very large quantity of electric power, which is being utilized not only for power, but for heating and lighting as well. To give an idea of the diversity of uses for the current it may be stated that it operates the electric railway systems in the cities of Seattle and Tacoma aggregating 168 miles of trolley line, in addition to cable railways situated in the hilly portions of these cities. Besides this service, however, current is furnished for one of the most notable interurban electric railways in the United States, that extending between Seattle and Tacoma, where power is secured from the third rail in connection with the multiple-unit system. This line is employed not only for passenger service, but for transporting freight and express material, and ranks among the most completely equipped electric systems in the world."

"The horse power required for a number of the largest industries in the city of Tacoma, including the shops of the Northern Pacific Railway and the waterworks pumping plant, is also obtained from this source; while illumination for streets and buildings in both Seattle and Tacoma, depends upon it to a considerable extent. The demand for power is increasing so rapidly that within a few years Mount Tacoma will be supplying fully 50,000 horse power to the cities mentioned."

Zangwill in Palestine.

Israel Zangwill writes of Palestine: "When your oriental journey is all over it is long before you will grow reconciled to the prosaic world of Europe and America. The equator and discomfort, the hegers and the lepers will be forgotten. Your eyes will be full of the pageantry of the East, of white tents and starry skies, and glorious sunshine and radiant color, and of a more beautiful humanity clad in flowing garments of indescribable patterns and innumerable hues, dusky, glorious-limbed men and graceful women draped in sheets and head-veils; you will dream of domes and minarets and long-curved bazaars where the merchant squats cross-legged amid his wares and business is a lazy, hour-long bargaining; you will hear the plaintive cadence of Arab love songs and the barbarous clang of oriental music, and you will not be so sure that the strenuous, grinding, smoky life of the West is an improvement upon the patriarchal repose of the book of Genesis."

Of the Sea of Galilee he says again: "In gospel time it was alive with ships and boats; now, for a change from horseback, we hired the entire fleet, a couple of boats, and were rowed by brawny fishers to the head of the lake, where we took our ease in a kahn till the horses came up. But I must not leave you with the impression that Palestine is wholly desolate and degenerate. For miles around Jerusalem there is indeed a stony desolation that makes the heart sink. But even at its worst the land retains traces of its ancient fatness, the bleak hills are terraced with the indications of ancient olive trees. The choked-up springs could be liberated and reforested would cool and moisten the climate."

"Occasionally an Arab settlement or a German or Jewish colony makes the wilderness to blossom as the rose. The planting of eucalyptus trees will diminish fever. Even as I write a world-famous tobacco-planter comes in to tell me how he has started a Palestine plantation from which he hopes a profit, and how a million poor Jews throughout Europe and Asia are dying to be allowed a chance of working upon the holy soil. If only the government would guarantee titles to the land bought!"

Throwing a Hand Grenade.

Reginald Wyon in his recently published book on "The Balkans from Within" writes from the interior of a blockhouse on the Turco-Bulgarian frontier: "We are shown captured bombs, heavy cylinders used for blowing up buildings and the dreaded hand grenade, whose short fuse is calmy lit by the burning cigarette and hurled among the attacking Turks. A man must indeed have nerves of iron to do this deed. Picture a devoted handful of men surrounded by an overwhelming force of Turks, slowly but surely drawing nearer. Now they are a hundred yards away, fifty yards—luckily they shoot aboriginally—but it is too far to put the weight with effect."

"They must wait, though here and there a bullet fired at random thins out the little band. A rush now. See! One coolly lights the fuse and quickly hurries it at the foe. He must make no mistake, his aim must be correct and his arm strong. A slip at the moment of throwing means his and his comrades' lives instead of the Turks', for the fuse is very short. But he has thrown it well; the Turks see it coming and halt in blind fear."

"A deafening crash, screams and yells of anguish, and the Turk break and run, shot down by the triumphant insurgents. Down into the valleys they fly, to the nearest village, where their officers, anxious to save themselves a semblance of authority, order its massacre and pillage. And the next day we read of the extermination of the whole band."

OPEN PUBLISHERY THE BEST.

GUARANTY OF HEALTH.

When the maker of a medicine, sold through druggists for family use, takes his patients fully into his confidence by frankly and fearlessly publishing broadcast as well as on its bottle wrappers, a full list of all its ingredients in plain English, this action on his part is the best possible evidence that he is not afraid to have the search light of investigation turned full upon his formula and that it will bear the fullest scrutiny and the most thorough investigation.

Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription for the cure of the weaknesses, periodical pains and functional derangements of the organs distinctly feminine, is the only medicine put up for sale through druggists for woman's special use, the maker of which is not afraid to take his patients into his full confidence by such open and honest publicity.

A glance at the published ingredients on each bottle wrapper, will show that it is made wholly from native, American, medicinal roots, that it contains no poisonous or habit-forming drugs, no narcotics and no alcohol—pure, triple-refined glycerine, of proper strength being used instead of the commonly employed alcohol, both for extracting and preserving the active medicinal properties found in the roots of the American forest plants named.

It is the only medicine for women's peculiar diseases, sold by druggists, that does not contain a large percentage of alcohol, which is in the long run so harmful to woman's delicate, nervous system. Now, glycerine is perfectly harmless, and serves a valuable purpose by possessing intrinsic value all its own, and besides it enhances the curative effect of the other ingredients entering into the Favorite Prescription."

Some of the ablest medical writers and teachers endorse these views and praise all the several ingredients of which "Favorite Prescription" is composed, recommending them for the cure of the very same diseases for which this world-famous medicine is advised. No other medicine for women has any such professional endorsement—worth more than any number of ordinary testimonials. If interested, send name and address to R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y., for his little book of extracts from the works of eminent medical writers and teachers, endorsing the several ingredients and telling just what Dr. Pierce's medicine is made of. It's free for the asking.

A City Without Men.

Perhaps the queerest city in the world is that of Nang Harm, the home of the royal family in Siam. The peculiarity lies in the fact that it is composed of women and children alone. It is in the center of Bangkok, has high walls around it, and its population of 9,000 there is no single man, though the king occasionally pays a visit. There are markets, temples, theaters, streets, avenues, parks, lakes, trees and a garcena; a hall of justice, and executioners, police, generals and others; all the positions, official or otherwise, being filled by women. Only men in Siam who can enter this city is the king.

Raising A Beard.

It was partly owing to the fact that Chemorley's razors needed honing and partly the beautifully trimmed beard that Slevor had raised during his year's absence abroad. Slevor said that at last he had known something of the joy of living since he had acquired this handsome adornment of his. "Some of the men let their hair grow long, too," he told Chemorley, "but I think that's carrying it too far. I can stand for a haircut once a month, but this thing of shaving every blessed day and wasting the precious hours of a man's life is too much."

Chemorley, having in mind his morning martyrdom of the past three weeks, was disposed to agree with his friend.

He talked it over with Mrs. Chemorley, as in duty bound. She did not seem to entertain the idea favorably.

"If it was too bad I could shave it off again," argued Chemorley. "You don't know what a bother it is, this shaving."

Accordingly he put in an appearance at breakfast the next morning unshaven. Mrs. Chemorley looked at

Mrs. Chemorley sniffed displeasure. She said: "I shouldn't think you would want to go downtown looking like that," she said.

"It does take a little strength of mind," admitted Chemorley. "But I'm going to do it, just the same."

Nobody noticed him that day, but the day following when the stubble had attained a quite respectable length, comment began. It is not necessary to recount what was said. It was about the usual thing. By the end of the week Chemorley had a decidedly trim appearance.

"Never mind," he said. "If it keeps growing at this rate it will be long enough to trim in a couple of weeks more."

The week following, however, the beard did not seem to progress at the same rate. The growth was almost imperceptible. Still, it was growing, and, in spite of the jeers of his friends and business associates, Chemorley let it grow. At the week's end, though, Chemorley received a letter from an important business connection in San Francisco. The business connection, whose business was worth a great deal to Chemorley, was to arrive in Chicago, it appeared, and he wanted Chemorley to meet him. Chemorley talked it over with his wife.

"I shall entertain him in style, of course," he said. "I'm anxious to make a good impression on that man."

"You are sure to do that with a face bristling like a scrubbing brush," said Mrs. Chemorley, snidely. "It may seem a small thing, but there really is a good deal in first impressions," she continued. "If I were you I would shave."

Chemorley got to thinking it over, and he shaved—for that occasion only.

A week later, just as the stubble had attained the hesitating point, Meiba came to town. Chemorley had been rather shunning society, but there was no getting out of taking Mrs. Chemorley to the Auditorium.

"Well, would you be willing for me to go the way I am?" asked Chemorley.

"If you think you can stand it, I might," replied his wife. "But," she added, "it isn't so very far along now. Don't you think you might shave it this once and then take a fresh start?"

He was determined to have that beard, however. The week went by and he bristled out finely. Every morning he would remark to Mrs. Chemorley on the blissfulness of not having to stop a razor, lather and scrape for ten long, valuable minutes and then being under no necessity of washing out a shaving mug, cleaning, drying and incensing the razor.

The second week was passed. The growth did actually begin to look like a beard. Then:

"My dear," said Mrs. Chemorley one morning. "Bertha writes me that she is going to make us a little visit and she is going to bring with her—whom do you think? Your old sweetheart, Ella Rogers. It seems that Ella is on her way to New York and Bertha and she will start East together. So Bertha thought we might like to entertain her for a few days. I'm sure I don't mind. You are beginning to look so nice and domestic with that beard. No, I shall not be uneasy."

Chemorley says that some of these days he will join a popular expedition and then he will raise that beard. For the present he has given up the idea.

GUIDES TO HEALTH.

Massage with this cream for enlarged pores: One ounce of white wax, one ounce spermaceti, one ounce almond oil, one dram violet extract.

If glycerin disagrees with your hands try this formula to whiten them: Lanolin, 100 grams; paraffin (liquid paraffin), 25 grams; extract of vanilla, 10 drops; oil of roses, 1 drop.

For an egg shampoo beat the yolk of one egg, one pint of hot water; spirit of rosemary one ounce. Beat the mixture thoroughly and use it warm. Rub it well into the scalp and rinse with several clear waters.

This formula for red nose has been very successful. Mix the ingredients thoroughly and apply to the face with a soft linen: One ounce of glycerin, one-half ounce rosemary water, twenty drops of carbolic acid.

Eat Almonds and Fruit.

According to a celebrated health expert, blanched almonds give the better nerve or brain and muscle food, and whoever wishes to keep her brain power up would do well to include them in her daily bill of fare. Juicy fruits give the same in less proportion, and are eaten by all those whose living depends on their clear-headedness. Apples supply the brain with rest. Prunes afford proof against nervousness, but are not muscle-feeding. They should be avoided by those who suffer from the liver, says Woman's Life. But it has been proved that fruits do not have the same effect upon everybody. Some people have never been able to eat apples without suffering the agony of indigestion.

ARTISTIC FURNITURE.

Especially Attractive When Wall Paper and Draperies Match.

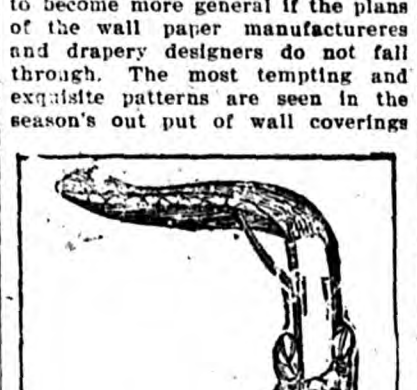

Combined with the willow, and usually in natural tone, deal wood is used with most artistic results in the fashioning of tables and stands, etc., and the quality of usefulness in many of the new productions is as pronounced as the simplicity and beauty of design. The newest table for veranda or sitting room as pictured here is of willow with smooth deal top and under shelf to correspond and two deep pockets on either side to hold work, papers or magazines. A chair on this order, that is with deep pockets, made its appearance some years ago proving a genuine favorite, and the table is likely to become just as popular. The willow is in natural color.

A decided novelty is the lawn chair here illustrated, with canopy top that is removable when so desired. This is an English importation. It is a very comfortable chair and the canopy top makes it much cooler than its predecessors of the hooded variety.

With regard to draperies, it is the fashion to have everything matching—that is, wall paper, window and door hangings, couch and cushions covers and the like. This matching arrangement has been the rule to some extent in the past, but it is destined to become more general if the plans of the wall paper manufacturers and drapery designers do not fail through. The most tempting and exquisite patterns are seen in the season's out put of wall coverings and draperies, and even the housewife in whom the matching propensity is not a conspicuous trait will find it difficult to resist the attractive combinations on view for this season. A most effective design is here described. The foundation color is in both paper and draperies cream serving as a background for a design of apricots and leaves in natural hues. Floral motifs predominate in these wall coverings and hangings and it is possible to carry out every reasonable scheme of color effect.

A Tangled Family.

By Clare Jayne.

The remarriage of Mrs. Vanstone, after a long widowhood, was the popular gossip of the season, yet no one seemed entirely satisfied except the new husband. The Vanstone relations were vexed, the servants sulked, and the widow's son and daughter, Charley and Millie, just of age, imagined their prospects blighted.

"Oh, George, what shall I do?" said Mrs. Vanstone, who was the lady's new name—ready to cry.

"Don't mind 'em, my dear!" said her husband, with a great, rolling laugh. "They're only children; they'll grow wiser as they grow older."

"Young people," said he, "I don't object to your making yourselves as miserable as you like, but you mustn't torment your mother. I'll have none of this."

Millie lost no time in carrying this revolutionary speech straight to her brother.

"Very well," said Charley, coolly; "we'll accept the challenge."

"I'll not submit to his tyranny," said Millie. "I've got a plan."

"So have I," said Charley, "lots of 'em; only they don't seem to work when I try to put them into practice."

"I've been writing to Louise Vane," said Millie.

"It seems to me as if I had heard the name before, now that you mention it," said Charley, rumpling up his brown, curly hair. "But why should you write to her?—and what has she to do with our affairs?"

"She sympathizes so thoroughly with me," said Millie. "She considers second marriages as sinful as I do. And she has asked me to come to her and stay as long as I please. There's a nice hotel in the village, Charley; and her father is very hospitable. And there is a fine supply of trout and delicious shooting. Louise writes, and plenty of agreeable society."

"Not a bad idea," said Charley, reflectively.

"Oh, George, what shall we do?" cried Mrs. Vanstone, turning pale when she comprehended that her children were gone.

"Give 'em their heads," said her husband, composedly drinking his coffee. "Never drive young coits with too tight a rein. They'll be glad to come back in six weeks or less."

Louise Vane received her former schoolmate with effusion.

Her father a stately, middle-aged gentleman, spoke a few kindly words of welcome.

"Oh, dear!" said Millie, when she was alone with her friend. "I do hope we shall not disturb Mr. Vane."

"Nothing disturbs papa," said Louise. "He will never think of noticing such chicks as we are. Every old maid and widow in the village has tried to marry him ever since poor mamma died."

"How dare they?" said indignant Millie. "I think the legislature ought to pass a law against second marriages. They are wicked, sinful; an outrage on civilization!"

"Of course they are," said Louise. "But don't worry, darling. Remember that you are with me now."

Three months of happiness at Vane Lodge followed. Millie and Louise read their favorite authors together, and worked hideous screens and impossible portieres in crevices.

And all this time neither she nor Charley wrote a line to Mrs. Vanstone.

One day Mr. Vane called his daughter into his study, with a serious face, and when she came out she was drowned in tears and fled straightway to the haven of her dearest friend's room.

"Darling!" cried Millie, "what is the matter? Tell me, I beseech you."

"The worst that could possibly happen!" cried Louise tragically. "Papa is going to marry again."

"He told me so himself," said Louise. "I never stopped to ask him who it was that was to desert our happy home. I just clasped my hands and cried, 'Papa!' and ran away, sobbing as if my heart would break. Oh, and I had so hoped that, when I was married, we could stay on here just the same; but, with a stepmother, of course, nothing will ever be the same!"

"You married, Louise!" cried Millie.

"Didn't he tell you? But it only happened this morning. Charley has asked me to be his wife."

"But," faltered Millie, "if your stepmother loved you very much indeed—"

"Fiddlesticks!" said Louise: "as if a stepmother could love one! Oh, I hate her already! And you, too, my poor wounded gazelle, will be driven from your refuge. If I could only offer you a harbor!"

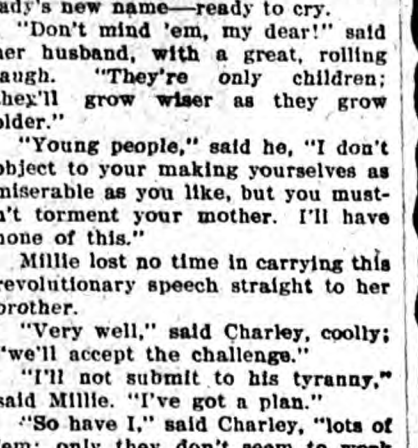

"It's so good of you, darling!" whispered Millie. "But I don't really think that it will be necessary, because—"

"You're not engaged to be married, too?" almost shrieked Louise, struck with a certain consciousness in her friend's face.

"Yes, I am," said Millie, hanging down her head.

"And to whom, you precious little conspirator?"

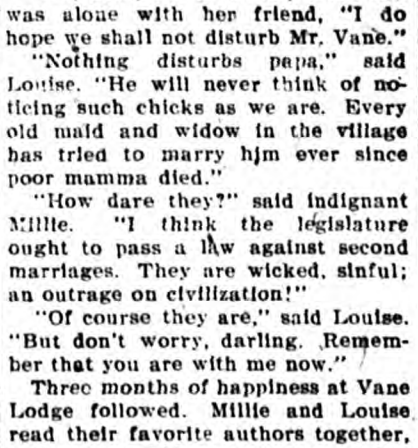

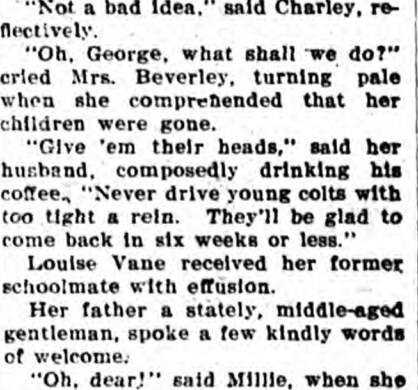

"To—your father!" said Millie. "Oh, don't blame me, Louise; indeed, I couldn't help it!"

magazines. A chair on this order, that is with deep pockets, made its appearance some years ago proving a genuine favorite, and the table is likely to become just as popular. The willow is in natural color.

A decided novelty is the lawn chair here illustrated, with canopy top that is removable when so desired. This is an English importation. It is a very comfortable chair and the canopy top makes it much cooler than its predecessors of the hooded variety.

With regard to draperies, it is the fashion to have everything matching—that is, wall paper, window and door hangings, couch and cushions covers and the like. This matching arrangement has been the rule to some extent in the past, but it is destined to become more general if the plans of the wall paper manufacturers and drapery designers do not fail through. The most tempting and exquisite patterns are seen in the season's out put of wall coverings and draperies, and even the housewife in whom the matching propensity is not a conspicuous trait will find it difficult to resist the attractive combinations on view for this season. A most effective design is here described. The foundation color is in both paper and draperies cream serving as a background for a design of apricots and leaves in natural hues. Floral motifs predominate in these wall coverings and hangings and it is possible to carry out every reasonable scheme of color effect.

GUIDES TO HEALTH.

Massage with this cream for enlarged pores: One ounce of white wax, one ounce spermaceti, one ounce almond oil, one dram violet extract.

If glycerin disagrees with your hands try this formula to whiten them: Lanolin, 100 grams; paraffin (liquid paraffin), 25 grams; extract of vanilla, 10 drops; oil of roses, 1 drop.

For an egg shampoo beat the yolk of one egg, one pint of hot water; spirit of rosemary one ounce. Beat the mixture thoroughly and use it warm. Rub it well into the scalp and rinse with several clear waters.

This formula for red nose has been very successful. Mix the ingredients thoroughly and apply to the face with a soft linen: One ounce of glycerin, one-half ounce rosemary water, twenty drops of carbolic acid.

Eat Almonds and Fruit.

According to a celebrated health expert, blanched almonds give the better nerve or brain and muscle food, and whoever wishes to keep her brain power up would do well to include them in her daily bill of fare. Juicy fruits give the same in less proportion, and are eaten by all those whose living depends on their clear-headedness. Apples supply the brain with rest. Prunes afford proof against nervousness, but are not muscle-feeding. They should be avoided by those who suffer from the liver, says Woman's Life. But it has been proved that fruits do not have the same effect upon everybody. Some people have never been able to eat apples without suffering the agony of indigestion.

DAIRY & CREAMERY

CANADA'S BUTTER PRODUCTION.

Vast Sums Realized Annually From This Source.

Commercial Agent Fleming reports that the twelve Government creameries in Alberta Province last year turned out for the market $55,000 pounds of butter, which averaged 21.35 cents. The product was sold in British Columbia, Yukon, China and Japan. The Government operates and turns over the entire net profit of these creameries to the 1,200 farmers supplying the milk. Fifteen private creameries have also been established in Alberta, and these exported in 1905 850,000 pounds of butter. Thus the farmers of the Province received one-third of a million dollars last year from this one source. During the past year Canada exported $4,590,705 pounds of butter, valued at $7,010,799; cheese, 215,379,587 pounds, valued at $22,427,540. The total valuation of the cheese, butter, bacon and hams exported from the Dominion in 1905, including Ontario, amounted to $42,107,335, against $38,457,432 for the year 1904. These exports alone amounted to $9,000,000 more than all the products of the forest (rough and manufactured), and $15,000,000 more than all the grain and grain products exported from this country during that period. The exports of butter from the United States during 1905 were valued at $2,876,628, while the value of the cheese exported was only $985,934.

To Hold Hose in Position.

If the lawn does not receive its proper share of care and attention it is not because efficient appliances of all kinds are not procurable. It requires somebody's individual attention to see that the grass and flowers are sprinkled at regular intervals, of course, the first requisite of which is a hose. Obviously the person directing the stream has to hold the hose, Clasp holds the hose.

and if the piece of ground is of any great size it takes considerable time to sprinkle it properly. In this device the hose holder is supported upon a tripod, the ends of the latter being bent so that they can be forced straight into the ground, but slight pressure being required. The holder will not turn over, no matter how heavy the force of water through the hose.

Avoid Excessive Churning.

Excessive churning has a tendency to incorporate a large amount of moisture in butter, but it injures the grain. The usual directions are to stop the churn when the butter granules are about the size of wheat or rice kernels, but most of the creameries do not stop the churn until the granules are about the size of peas, then they draw off the buttermilk, add a considerable amount of water to the butter and give the churn from ten to twelve additional revolutions. After this the water is withdrawn and salt is added, especially when the Disbrow churn is used, while the butter is in the churn and is incorporated with the latter in the course of about twenty minutes. In this way from fifteen to sixteen per cent. of moisture and from three to three and a half per cent. of salt is incorporated in the butter. The temperature of the cream is so regulated as to make the butter come in about thirty minutes, and in rather firm condition.

Feeding the Calf.

A calf should have enough to eat, of course, but no stuffing ought to occur, especially during its early existence. The average calf during the first seventy-two hours of its life should not have more than three or four quarts of milk daily and if one is to proceed appropriately—that is, in accordance with the most approved ideas—this ought to be administered in three feeds. When the calf has grown so as to be capable of digesting more never make the mistake of increasing the food in large quantities at any one time, but gradually work up to the calf's needs.

Use of Farm Scales.

A farm scale will maintain better relations between farmers and merchants and produce dealers, between landlords and tenants, and will give the farmer, equally with the men who trade in his commodities, an opportunity to know and demand his own.

Whipping a Shying or Frightened Horse is Senseless and Cruel; Pain does not relieve fright, but the assuring voice of the master does.

After the Ceremony.

It is no longer the custom for the groom to kiss the bride after the ceremony is over. The clergyman usually shakes hands with the newly wedded pair, congratulating them and wishing them goodspeed. At the time of the plighting of the troth the bride should give her bouquet to the maid of honor. If she wears gloves, she should remove the one from her left hand just before the plighting of the troth, but many brides prefer

TALK ABOUT SWIMMING.

The Story Was Good but Pat Was Equal to the Occasion.

We called him Paddy the Wit. The following story shows how he merited the name.

The crew were discussing the latest attempts to swim the Channel. A Yankee, who delighted in taking down the others, said: "Well, boys, talk about swimming, I guess I saw the greatest feat in that line. I was crossing the pond to the States; the ship had just cleared Queenstown, when a cry of 'Man overboard!' was raised.

"We saw the poor fellow about half a mile ahead of us, but could not come up to him. 'Put on full steam,' said the captain. It was done; but we never overtook him. Everybody thought he must have gone under, as he was no longer to be seen.

"Judge of our dismay when we reached New York. Who should walk aboard for his clothes but the man we concluded drowned outside of Queenstown." "How did he reach New York?" "Swam," was the reply. Everybody felt small after this tale, when up jumped Paddy the Wit, and seizing the Yankee's hand, exclaimed: "You saw that man yourself?"

"That's so," said the Yankee. "Be jabbers, I'm glad to meet you. That man was me. And if you had not seen me do it none of the boys would have believed it."—Tit-Bits.

Taking no Chances.

A Glasgow steamer was laboring in a heavy sea, the waves sometimes sweeping her decks, but the officers had assured the passengers that there was no danger, and all seemed reasonably calm with the exception of one meek-looking little man, who, every few minutes, would approach an officer, and anxiously inquire if he thought the ship would founder.

"No, I tell you!" one of them finally exclaimed, with impatience. "What is the matter with you? Look at those other people—they are not scared to death."

"Oh, I'm not scared," the man replied; "but if the ship was going to founder, I wanted to know a little ahead of time."

"Oh, wanted to tell your friends good by, and all that?" "Well, not exactly," the man said, hesitatingly; "the fact is, my mother-in-law is along with me, and if the ship was quite sure to sink, I wanted to say a few things to her."—Harper's Weekly.

He Was Insulted.

Larry was showing to a friend the "check" which the Chinese laundryman had given him in exchange for his bundle of soiled linen.

"Fwath d'ye suppose it is?" he asked.

"That's for identification," said his friend, "so the Chinaman can recognize you when you call for your clothes. It's a brief description of how you look, so there can't be any—where are you going?"

"I'm going back to smash the pig-tailed haythen's head for 'im!" exclaimed Larry, taking another look at their hieroglyphics and striding rapidly in the direction of Ping Yam's laundry.—Chicago Tribune.

Equal to the Emergency.

"Speaking of accommodating hotel clerks," remarked a Portland commercial traveller, "the best I ever saw was in a town near Bangor. I reached the hotel late in the evening and was assigned to a pretty tidy looking room. Just before I retired I heard a scampering under the bed and looked under, expecting to see a burglar. Instead, I saw a couple of large rats just escaping into their hole. I dressed and went down to the office and put in a big kick. The clerk was as serene as a summer's breeze.

"I'll fix that all right, sir," he said. "Front! Take a cat to 23 at once."

Her Mistake.

A young man had been calling now and then on a young lady, and one night, as he sat in the parlor waiting for her to come down, her mother entered the room instead, and asked him in a very grave, stern way what his intentions were.

He turned very red, and was about to stammer some incoherent reply when suddenly the young lady called down from the head of the stairs: "Mamma, mamma, that is not the one!"—Modern Society.

JUST IN TIME.

Dressing herself all in white, as was her custom almost every afternoon, Molly White went to sit in the hammock to read and await the return of her husband who had gone to the next town on business. She had been reading some time, when suddenly she heard footsteps. Peering through the vines she saw a young scout, one of her husband's friends, come galloping up the road toward the house very much excited. She thought of her husband immediately and suspected that he was in danger.

"What's the matter?" she exclaimed, seizing him by the arm.

"It's—It's, Will," he answered, quite breathlessly.

"Is he hurt?" she cried, excitedly.

"No, but he's going to be," he answered softly, at the same time glancing about to see whether or not he was telling this to more than one person.

"When? Where?" she cried, almost shouted.

"I've known where Black Rock is, about 10 miles from here, don't you? Well, that's where they're going to wait for him. Yet, see, they found out that he'd gone to C— and was going to bring back some cash and thought they'd give him a lift. Heard it from an old friend of his."

But Molly cared nothing for what he thought just then, and hailing the stevedore who was passing, she said in a low voice: "Jim, saddle King, mount four men and be ready to follow me in five minutes. Be sure the men are well armed." Jim hastened to execute his orders, and in five minutes he and his men were ready for further orders.

"You ain't going to try to head him off are you?" the scout asked Molly, and not receiving an answer, continued, "It's too late, he'll be there before you kin catch him."

"We'll see," said Molly shortly. Seizing her revolver from the table she hurried out to where her men were waiting, and bidding them follow her as rapidly as possible, she sprang into the saddle and was out in the road before anyone could remonstrate with her. The men followed quickly and were soon following their mistress, but she was more than a match for them.

Her horse was a thoroughbred, the fastest on the ranch, and Molly thought that by urging him on to a quick run, she might yet be able to reach her husband in time to warn him of his danger. On, she rode, now and then bending over King's neck to whisper in his ear, and the good steed, seeming to understand, went faster and faster.

Who followed were just able to discern a white speck disappearing in front of them.

But not until the sound of horses' hoofs had become indistinct, did Molly realize the danger to which she had subjected herself, in riding so far in advance of the others. She knew that if the highwaymen were at Black Rock first, and they probably would be, they would not let her escape. She would be shot.

But she was not alone. She had her revolver, and she knew that she could not be taken without a struggle. She turned around once more, and could just see four figures following at some distance, and hoped earnestly that they might not be far off when she should reach Black Rock.

By this time the moon had risen, lighting up the whole plain, and not a half mile off, she could see the huge rock loom up before her. She strained her eyes, and looked beyond, to see if there was a lone rider coming from that direction; but no one was in sight, and she knew then that her husband had not yet reached the spot.

As she came to within 100 yards of the place, a masked man stepped out from behind the rock, and shouted: "Halt!" at the same time leveling a revolver at her. But she had no thought of halting and raising her own revolver, she fired. The man fell, and she galloped past him, but not before one of the wounded man's companions had fired and hit her with a bullet. She felt faint, and slipping the revolver into its holster, she placed her hand on her side.

The pain at once grew warm with blood. She was now so weak that she could no longer manage the reins, so King of his own accord slowed down to a trot. There was no need of hastening now, for her own men had come upon the desperadoes, and after a sharp scuffle, the latter were made prisoners.

Molly had not ridden far, when on looking up she saw a man riding on a white horse, whom she knew to be her husband. She knew to her relief, and tried to call out to him, but the sound was only a moan.

King being no longer guided, stopped suddenly. The jolt caused Molly to reel in her seat, but instead of falling to the ground, she fell into a strong pair of arms. A voice was saying things she liked, but could not hear, but she knew that voice only too well. She smiled, and she whispered so low that he could hear, "Just—just in time, Will."

"In time? In time for what, dear?" he asked gently, wondering what she could mean.

But there was no answer. He turned her face to the moonlight. The quiet lips smiled still, and the beautiful face was almost as white as the dress she wore.

"Molly," he cried, "Molly."

What Does It Mean

to let Dividends "accumulate" on a Life Insurance Policy? In many companies it means nothing more than an agreement on the part of the policy-holder, to do without dividends for fifteen or twenty years, and then take whatever dividend the company will be willing to give. Dividends are declared every year in the Mutual Benefit, and the policyholders use them either to help pay premiums or to buy increased insurance. The policies of the

C., and are infants and unmarried; and that under the aforesaid distribution the said undivided one sixth part of the aforesaid remainder, bequeathed as aforesaid, for the benefit of said children of said Mary Louise Huntman, amounts in the net sum of $9147, with which said sum the said Executor charges himself to be accounted for in accordance with the trust created in said residuary clause of said will, and that the said Charles Huntman, Henry Huntman and Lu-lu Huntman are non residents of the State of Maryland.

It is thereupon this 12th day of June, 1906, ordered by the Circuit Court for Wicomico County, in Equity, that the plaintiff by causing a copy of this order to be inserted in some newspaper published in said Wicomico County once in each of four successive weeks, before the 1st day of August, 1906, give notice to the said absent defendants of the object and substance of this bill, warning them to appear in this Court, in person or by solicitor on or before the 20th day of August next, to show cause, if any they have why a decree ought not to be passed as prayed.

UNITED STATES COURT OF CLAIMS

The Publishers of Webster's International Dictionary always claim it is in fact the popular Unabridged thoroughly re-edited in every detail, and vastly enriched in every part, with the purpose of adapting it to the larger and severer requirements of another generation.

We are of the opinion that this allegation most clearly and accurately describes the work that has been accomplished and the result that has been reached. The Dictionary, as it now stands, has been thoroughly re-edited in every detail, has been corrected in every part, and is admirably adapted to meet the larger and severer requirements of another generation which demands more of our philological knowledge than any generation that the world has ever contained.

It is needless to add that we refer to the dictionary in our judicial work as of the highest authority in accuracy of definition; and that in the future in the past it will be the source of constant reference.

The management brings the entire production in regards to scenery superbly designed, together with property, lights and other modern effects, and a thoroughly capable company has been secured for the correct portrayal of the characters in the cast.

—There is a shrewd old fellow, the proprietor of a summer boarding house, who never gets the worst of it. One morning he took a new servant with him to the city to teach the servant the tricks of ingenious buying. The question of chickens arose. Said the old chap: "How many have you this morning?"

"About a dozen," replied the storekeeper.

"Well," said the proprietor of the summer boarding house, "my boarders is the biggest eaters you ever seen. Pick out nine of the toughest you've got."

The storekeeper complied, laying aside the three tender fowls. Whereupon the old chap gathered them into his basket, observing: "Guess I'll take these three."—New York Sun.

Burned to Death.

The seven year old son of Mr. and Mrs. R. Lee Waller was burned to death at the Waller Home on N. Division Street Wednesday morning. The colored girl had started to light a fire in the kitchen stove. She had put in some wood and poured some coal oil on it and was getting a match when little Harry struck one, touched it to the oil. An explosion followed, after which the boy was wrapped in flames. Mr. Hayman, an insurance agent chanced that way about that time, and seeing the accident ran in and put his coat around the boy smothering the flames. He was too late to save the boy's life. The flesh was burned almost to a crisp and nearly everything the little fellow touched left part of his flesh sticking to it. His sufferings must have been terrible. He died about two o'clock Wednesday afternoon and was buried Thursday afternoon. The people of Salisbury and vicinity feel the deepest sympathy for Mr. and Mrs. Waller in this hour of affliction.

TYPHOID NEAR ALLEN

Thirteen cases in One Family. Unsanitary Conditions Responsible For Outbreak. Six Other Cases in Same Neighborhood.

Mrs. Albert Smith, who lives about three miles north of Allen has been the mother of fifteen children and these, constitute, including mother and father, thirteen cases of typhoid fever. Mrs. Smith, before she was stricken down with the fever, would not have been taken to be over forty years of age. She lost two or three children some years back.

Messrs. Editors.—As a matter of news the following lines, as a matter of significance and importance surely merit a place and a prominent one in the columns of your paper. The time was when the most civilized and best informed of the inhabitants of the earth, regarded diseases and calamities of whatever character or form as a direct visitation of the wrath of Deity for sins of commission or omission. Science, and advancing intelligence have dispelled the fogs and mists that for eras and ages have enveloped and obscured the cause and origin of diseases and disasters.

Instead of imputing such to the God of the Skies and the Author of the Universe, science turns her flashlight upon the dark and dirty corners and cesspools and other diseases and death-breeding sources of the premises and lays bare the causes and origin of the fevers, etc., that attack the physical being of man.

Instead of accepting, as did our remote ancestors, disease as punishment for sin we are constrained to write as the cause and origin, the word, Ignorance, a term, the significance of which, has been appallingly costly to the human family. Who will pause and attempt to compute the cost of ignorance to the inhabitants of the earth? Do we not pour a glass of water, teeming with disease-breeding germs, down our thirsty throats, smack our lips and pronounce it good? Do we not go whistling along the paths of life with disease germs floating into our mouths and snapping at our heels? The writer would be glad to dwell on these features of the matter, but is at present without the time.

Thirteen cases of typhoid fever in one family and one house with six others within a radius of one mile surely means something, and is worthy of a little attention and reflection.

There must be, and doubtless, is, a local cause about this neighborhood for all these cases. Excessive rains, polluted soil, unsanitary environment, plus bad water, plus germ-laden milk, etc., contain the letters and syllables that spell the cause, the writer thinks.

When the people get their eyes wide open to the causes of diseases and wake up to full appreciation of the importance of prevention, the doctor will become a gentleman of leisure, and will have time to go fishing and to the fair.

Won't that be a happy time?
Hurriedly Allen Quill.

FIRST DEFIED ENGLAND.

Interesting Historic Document Shows Norfolk, Virginia Citizens Were Ahead Of Philadelphia.

Norfolk, Va.—The coming Jamestown Exposition brings to mind many historic facts long since forgotten. While loathe to leave the British Empire the patriots of Norfolk, Va., were the first to resent the aggression of the British Stamp Act which led to the American Revolution. Under the name of "The Sons of Liberty" they assembled in Norfolk on March 18th, and in bold and determined phrases announced their intention of resisting any further aggression on the part of the English Parliament. This was two months before the promulgation of the celebrated Mecklenburg Declaration of Independence and nearly five before the thirteen colonies assembled in Philadelphia to forever cast off the authority of the British Crown and start the country on a career of prosperity and splendor which will be celebrated at the Jamestown Exposition to be held at Hampton Roads near Norfolk in 1907.

The Norfolk people did not declare their independence but expressly affirmed their wish to be subjects of King George III. They merely stated their determination that they should not be taxed without representation.

Having taken into consideration the evident tendency of that oppressive and unconstitutional Act of Parliament commonly called the Stamp Act, and being desirous that our sentiments should be known to posterity and recollecting that we are a part of the colony who first in General Assembly openly expressed their detestation to the said act, which is pregnant with ruin and productive of the most pernicious consequence and, unwilling to rivet the shackles of slavery and oppression on ourselves and millions yet unborn, have unanimously come to the following resolutions:

1. "Resolved, That we acknowledge our Lord and Sovereign, King George the Third, to be our rightful and lawful king, and that we will, at all times, to the utmost of our power and ability support and defend his most sacred Person, Crown and Dignity; and shall always be ready when constitutionally called upon, to assist his Majesty, with our lives and fortunes; and to defend his just Rights and Privileges.

2. "Resolved, That we will by all lawful Ways and Means which Divine Providence has put into our hands, defend ourselves in the full enjoyment of, and preserve inviolate to posterity, those inestimable privileges of all freeborn British Subjects, of being taxed only by representatives of their own choosing; and of being tried by none but a jury of their peers. And that if we quietly submit to the execution of the said Stamp Act all our claims to Civil Liberty will be lost, and we and our subjects in America are deprived of the invaluable Privileges aforementioned.

3. "Resolved, That a committee be appointed who shall in such manner as they think proper, go upon necessary Business and make public the above resolutions, and that they correspond as they shall see occasion with the Associated Sons of and Friends to Liberty in the other British Colonies of America."

As a result of the adoption of the resolutions Lord Dunmore, the British Colonial Governor, made a demonstration before Norfolk and several shots were fired into the city from the frigate Liverpool. As a result of this and other outrages the Norfolk people were ready to throw off all authority and join with the other colonies when the Philadelphia Declaration of Independence was promulgated.

Proceedings of County Commissioners In Session To-Day.

Commissioner Wright and S. H. Cooper were named as a committee on the proposed new road in Barren Creek District, to run from Mr. Cooper's farm to the road leading from Mardela to Sharptown.

Commissioners Cooper and Brittingham were made a committee to meet the Commissioners of Worcester County at Whaleyville on Tuesday next to confer about the proposed new road petitioned for by Mr. Wimbrow and others.

Mr. Glen Perdue was before the Board and offered to donate to the county sufficient land from his farm on the Quantico road to widen the road thirty feet, if the Commissioners would have same cleared. The matter was left with Commissioner Cooper.

Messrs. Edward L. Austin, W. H. Beach and John E. Taylor were appointed a commission to lay out and widen the county road in Barren Creek District, between the lands of L. L. Bounds and W. F. Towers.

The Board agreed to appropriate $200 towards repairing the Fooks mill dam in Nutters District, which was recently washed out.

Daniel H. Hudson was granted a pension of $1.25 per month, order to H. H. Hitch and Brother.

NIGHT CHANGED TO DAY.

Wonderful Searchlight Drills To Be Seen At The Jamestown Exposition Next Year.

Poking their long fingers of light into every corner of Hampton Roads, and illuminating ever detail of cloud-land, searchlights will make night as bright as day during the Jamestown Exposition, which is to be held next year at Sewell's Point, Norfolk, Va.

Just across Hampton Roads from Sewell's Point is Fort Monroe, which is equipped with powerful searchlight by means of which a navy paper can be read five miles away. Every warship at the Naval Rendezvous next year will also have searchlights, some of which are so powerful as to require a special engine to generate their electricity. Among the largest of these is that just supplied to the new battleship, Connecticut. The lens of this searchlight is more than five feet across. When the maximum power is being used the light has an intensity of sixty thousand candle power and it's rays can be thrown several miles.

Searchlights were originally adopted to find torpedo boats at night. They are now used for signalling, to discover a man overboard, to aid navigation, and for many other purposes. When a man falls overboard from one of the great ships at sea, the searchlight is at once trained upon him, and the ray is held there until he is picked up by the boats.

In signalling a shutter is attached to the searchlight. This alternately interrupts and prolongs or shortens the period during which the light is visible. By this means the operator is able to telegraph forty miles, using any telegraph code. In Manila harbor, during the insurrection, messages were frequently sent more than forty miles, by using the clouds as reflectors. This system can be used on cloudless nights but the signals cannot be seen so far. The searchlight is also used in signalling on the same principle as wig-wag flags.

Searchlight drills take place whenever a squadron lies in harbor. Steam launches to represent attacking torpedo boats, are sent out from the vessels, with instructions to return under full speed, each launch striving to get as close as possible without being discovered. Meantime the searchlights are so directed as to have their rays skim very square yard of water within the light's range. Sometimes, even under the severe glare of the light, the boats succeed in reaching their ships. In actual war this would, of course, result in the annihilation of the war vessel.

Visitors to the Jamestown Exposition will have an opportunity to see searchlight drills on a scale never before attempted.

For Better Sanitary Conditions In Salisbury.

Dear Editor:—Mr. Jackson, the health officer, or the City Council all together ought to get that disease spreading pile of manure and green slime away from Camden Street, in the rear of Park stables. If it were thrown over to the farmers to take, we guarantee they would take it away quick enough and be glad of the chance. We find on West Church Street several places where garbage has been left till it is decaying and teeming with myriads of death dealing germs and bacteria. We would call particular attention to the vacant lot between Main and Church Streets where garbage has been allowed to accumulate for a decade or more. We would ask the people, to help the cause of health along by reporting to the Health Officer or some member of the City Council any unsanitary conditions that may come within their notice and we would ask them for the benefit of all, to see that the sanitary condition, so far as garbage and drainage is concerned, are in proper shape around their own homes. This would help the Council a great deal and would be a blessing to all.

FOR CONGRESS:
HON. THOMAS A. SMITH,
Of Caroline County.

HON. THOMAS A. SMITH
Representative Thomas A. Smith, of the First District, who was unanimously renominated for the Sixtieth Congress, by the Democratic convention at Ocean City, proved himself, in the first session of the Fifty-ninth Congress to be one of the most diligent and capable of the new members of the House, and achieved a degree of usefulness seldom attained by Representatives during a first term. Mr. Smith has been known as a tireless and conscientious worker. During the sessions of the General Assembly of 1894 and 1896 he served in the State Senate, where his fidelity to public interests and his sound common sense made him a valuable public servant, and as the Democratic candidate for Comptroller of the State Treasury, he led the forlorn hope of 1897, carrying the counties by a good majority, and having a plurality in every county of the Eastern Shore, including that of his Republican opponent, with the exception of one. As Chief of the Bureau of Statistics from 1900 to 1905, he had a notable record, and was an officer of the national association of the State statisticians. Two years ago, he was nominated for Congress and elected by over 500 plurality. Although the strongest kind of efforts were made to induce the overpowering Republican majority in the House of Representatives to unseat him, the elections committee refused to report the case. Speaker Cannon assigned Mr. Smith to the Committee on Railways and Canals, Education, and Private Land Claims, upon all of which he has done efficient work. He strongly supported the resolution to have a survey made for a ship canal across the Maryland and Delaware Peninsula, and was chosen by the Democratic members of the Committee on Railways and Canals to take charge of the resolution in the House. In the important work which came before the Committee on Education, Mr. Smith bore a conspicuous share. His early life was spent in teaching school in Maryland and in Michigan, and for several years he was a school commissioner of Caroline county, and from a basic standpoint was excellently equipped to deal with educational subjects. Modest and unobtrusive, yet conscientious and self-reliant, Mr. Smith took up his Congressional duties with a full sense of responsibility, and early attracted the attention of leading members of the House as one who was in his seat on every legislative day, and was punctual in his attendance upon stated or special meetings of committees. When the weight and measure clause in the canned goods section of the Pure Food bill came up, Mr. Smith was active in urging upon the majority leaders of the House, and particularly upon the influential members of the Committee on Interstate and Foreign Commerce, the mistaken premises upon which the attack upon that industry—so potent in its influence upon the economic life of his district and his State—proceeded. Although making no pretensions to facility in public speaking, Mr. Smith addressed the House in a plain, convincing argument which one of the most experienced and discerning of his colleagues, publicly complimented as unassailable in its simple statement of fact, and its open and manly presentation of the merits of the controversy.

The International Sunday school convention represents a constituency of some 26,000,000 people, writes Duncan C. Miller in the Chicago News. The lesson committee chooses the selections from the Bible for uniform study in these Sunday schools. Every three years the lesson is devoted to temperance. For a recent lesson the passage chosen for study was Proverbs xiii, 20-25, as follows, in the American revised version:

Who hath woe? Who hath sorrow? Who hath contentions? Who hath complaining? Who hath wounds without cause? Who hath redness of eyes? They that tarry long at the wine; They that go to seek out mixed wine. Look not thou upon the wine when it is red, When it sparketh in the cup, When it goeth down smoothly. At the last it biteth like a serpent, And stingeth like an adder. Thine eyes shall behold strange things, And thy heart shall utter perverse things. Yea, thou shalt be as he that lieth down in the midst of the sea, Or as he that lieth down upon the top of a mast. They have stricken me, shalt thou say, and I was not hurt; They have beaten me, and I felt it not. Woe saith I a waker? I will seek it yet again.

This is the picture of a drunkard drawn a thousand years before Christ. We have set forth the sorrows, the quarrels, the conflicts, the sin and the folly that comes from the drink habit. If such a description and such a warning was needed in that day, how much greater is the need in our time, with the multiplied perils of the fiery distilled liquors and the brutalizing and stupefying beers.

The same wise man who gave this description already had declared, "Wine is a mocker, and strong drink is a brawler, and whosoever erreth thereby is not wise." These descriptions found in the Bible are in accord with human experience that men "take an enemy in at the mouth that steals away the brains." In early indulgence there may be much that is fascinating, but at the last "it biteth like a serpent and stingeth like an adder."

The rabbis have a story that when Noah planted the vine the devil proposed to be his partner in its culture. He poured at different times on the roots of the plant the blood of a peacock, a monkey, a lion and a hog. It came to pass the fruit of the vine was pressed and the juice fermented. Men drank of it, and the first effect was to make them gay and proud. They drank still more, and they chattered like the silly monkeys. They drank more, and they roared like the lion and were ready to attack all that came in their way. At last, under deeper drafts, they would lie down even in the mire, like the hog.

Many other vices are connected with drunkenness. Gluttony and lust are associated with indulgence in drink. The body becomes diseased and weakened by debauchery. The mind also is directly affected. "Thine eyes shall behold strange things," or, as in the wider version, "strange women." The victim of just and the wretch suffering with delirium tremens or the stupid man "lying down in the midst of the sea," the man void of all sense of decency and without restraint of conscience, all are graduates from the school of the drunkard. The whole tendency of the use of liquor is to continue in its use.

The wretched sufferers as described in this Scripture are "they that tarry long at the wine," and after the debauch, with its suffering and wretchedness, and the drunkard again becomes conscious, he says, "I will seek it yet again."

The all night drunkard hastens at an early hour to the saloon and begs a mouthful of liquor to get a start for the day and says: "The hair of the dog is good for the bite." The miseries of the drunkard temporarily are relieved by another drink. It has been said, "Thus what has been an act may readily become a habit, all the more readily that each repetition more and more enfeebles both the will and the judgment."

Many of the most gifted of our race have been wrecked by drink. Robert Burns, the poet of the people, who seized and held the heart of the Scotch, who could write the "Cotter's Saturday Night" and "Mary in Heaven" under the power of the drink appetite, hastened his death by carousals in a low tavern with low companions. Edgar Allan Poe, whose literary genius helps give glory to our American men of letters, sold his splendid birthright for this wretched drink.

Cost of Drink in Germany.
Germany's enormous drink bill is explained in letters to the United States bureau of manufactures from Consuls Brittain and Guenther. Each inhabitant consumes a yearly average of 6½ quarts of wine, 129½ quarts of beer and 9 quarts of brandy. For a population of 60,000,000, the expenditure for liquor is $172,588,000. The average for male citizens over fifteen would be $37.30. German expenditures for schools were $90,722,000, for working people's insurance $104,244,000 and for the army and navy $203,847,000.

The Kaiser's Good Example.
For some time unfettered grape juice has had a conspicuous place on the table of Emperor William of Germany, and, following his lead, it is being used on numerous other tables of German nobles. At first it was imported, but the supply is now being made in Germany.

CARE OF THE BREEDERS.

They Must Be Kept in Good Condition at This Season of Year.

At this time of the year too much importance cannot be attached to the care of the breeding stock. If our breeders are in poor condition we must expect our chicks to be weak and lacking in vitality, says a writer in Successful Poultry Journal. Many breeders wonder why they lose so many chicks every year. They give the chicks the best of food and care, and still they lose large numbers. But often these same persons neglect the old birds from which they raise their chicks.

If possible at this time of year it is a good plan to have the birds on a grass range. The larger the range the better it will be for the birds. Eggs from birds on free range are always more fertile than from birds in yards. But some of us cannot give our birds free range. Then the best thing we can do is to as nearly as possible give our yarded birds the conditions they would have if they were on a free range. Most poultrymen know what these conditions are—green food, meat scraps, bone, etc.

I make a practice of feeding my male birds once a day separate from the hens. I have found this plan keeps these birds in better condition than they would otherwise be. The hens, too, should be well fed. They cannot produce strong, hatchable eggs if they are thin and hungry. Neither can they if they are over fat. A happy medium should be obtained between these two extremes. The breeding stock should not be kept in the same yard or pen with the young stock. If the young stock is given free range, as it should be, then the old birds should be confined. In this many breeders make a mistake. They allow the young and old birds to run together, much to the disadvantage of the younger and weaker ones. I have found that best results can be obtained by mating a male bird to six or eight hens and not over ten hens at the most. This applies to birds in confinement. If they have free range fifteen females are not too many for one vigorous male.

A Simple Brood Coop.
The brood coop herewith illustrated was designed by Victor D. Canaday of Taylors Falls, Minn. It is an extremely simple affair and can be made of almost any box of suitable size turned on its side and slatted part way over the front. A frame covered with one inch mesh poultry wire is arranged to slide in and out, so that at night the brood may have plenty of air and still be protected from animals. During the day, when this wire covered frame is slid to one side, the hen is kept confined by the wooden slats, while the little chicks may run back and forth, in and out, at will.

Kill the Weaklings.
One thing often overlooked, but a source of loss, is the coddling or "holding over" of chicks lacking vigor. Instead of delaying for any cause destroy at once all chicks which are crippled or weakly. If sick especially this should be done. The great danger lies in the fact that they may later be overlooked and bred from, says Kate Tyson, Mary in Poultry Success. We must breed for health and vitality by rigid selection.

It may seem cruel to say burn the dead baby chicks, but it is the best way. Many cats are taught to kill the chicks by allowing the dead ones around, and if they decay and the older fowls eat them it may cause serious illness. In fact, this is the cause of lumber neck. Cull out often, and while the number of our flock may in some cases be much decimated, yet we find it pays.

Do Not Crowd the Chicks.
Do not put too many chicks in a brooder. Between 50 and 100 will do, but 50 is best. Too much or too little heat, soft and sour food and not enough exercise are the causes of bowel trouble. At present the condition of things is such that we must depend to raise our chicks with the aid of brooders. The old way is getting too slow for most people now.

Flavor of Eggs.
The flavor of hens' eggs is declared by an English medical man to be very materially affected by food. When the hens are scavengers their eggs are made unfit to eat, but a diet of good pure grains produces remarkably fine and sweet eggs.

When the Hair Falls
Then it's time to act! No time to study, to read, to experiment! You want to save your hair, and save it quickly, too! So make up your mind this very minute that if your hair ever comes out you will use Ayer's Hair Vigor. It makes the scalp healthy. The hair stays in. It cannot do anything else. It's nature's way.

MASKS AND FACES.

Aug. 19 '06—(Luke 18:1-14.)

Because a man goes to church, prays eloquently, publicly, rolls up his eyes very piously, and joins devoutly in all the services is no evidence that he is sincere. He may do all that and more and yet be a pious fraud. The world is full of hypocrites. There are no more of them in the church than there are out of the church, for society is honeycombed with deceivers of all sorts, but there are too many of them even in the church. Many a man sits in his pew and goes through the motions of religion who at the close of the service practically says: Good by, religion. I will be back next Sunday.
With a Sunday sponge he hopes to wipe out the delinquencies of the week. He has a well-fitting suit of sheep's clothing which he puts over his wolf body one day in seven, and takes his place demurely among the lambs of the flock. Such men have always existed. The Jewish church was full of them.One of the most striking parables of the Christ is the picture he drew of the Pharisee and the Publican.
He says they both went up to the Temple to pray. The Pharisee walked right up as if he belonged there, and in the most self-satisfied manner informed heaven as to his pious credentials. He gave a tenth of his property to the poor, he fasted twice in the week, which was once more than ordinary people, and then he changed to see a Publican in the crowd he shuddered, and said, "God
I thank Thee I am not as other men are, especially that Publican." The old hypocrite! His religion was all form and ceremony and man mill-nery. Postures and genuflections and stilted references to his fel-lowmen, and self-righteous bragado. The Master, who knows all hearts says that heaven disowned him, and he went down to his house the same strutting, pious fraud that he was when he went to church.On the contrary the Publican, feeling his guilt and confessing himself a sinner, smote upon his breast, standing afar off, and was pardoned and cleansed of all his iniquity, and went down to his house justified. He did not pose, he did not put on airs, he did not claim superior sanctity, he did not slander other people, he really and sincerely prayed, and between the two men he was much to be preferred.The fact is a bluff, outspoken, frank and straightforward sinner is an improvement over a sleek, smug, well-fed, well-clothed, churchgoing, psalm-singing, hypocrite whose religion is all form and ceremony, and who "steals the liver of heaven to serve the devil in." You know where to find the avowedly wicked man;
the Pharisee is a snake in the grass.
You expect the Publican to rob you and are on the watch for him; the Pharisee always says grace before devouring your house, and gives thanks afterwards. He poses as a pillar of the church, when in reality he is a caterpillar using it for his own advancement and feeding upon every green thing.But the Pharisees do not by any means, all belong to the church.
They abound in all the walks of life.
There are political, Pharisees and financial Pharisees, and social Pharisees, and literary Pharisees. Pharisees who sit in editorial sanctuaries, and Pharisees who occupy university chairs, as well as Pharisees who stand in orthodox pulpits. Men who are guilty of double dealing, men who distract attention from their own faults by exposing the failings of others, men who believe in temperance for other people and a glass of toddy for themselves, men who strain at a gnat in public and gulp down whole droves of camels in secret, Pharisees all, and the world is full of them.That judge on the bench who "fears not God, neither regards man," who sentences criminals while his own life is scandalous is a Pharisee.
That woman who draws her skirts aside with a "holier than thou," air from a fallen sister "desisting" the outcast is a Pharisee.
That father who chastises his children for smoking cigarettes in secret while he smokes cigars in public is a Pharisee. It is all well enough to classify and catalogue those old-time sinners, but it is more profitable to put the microscope on our lives and see to which class we belong. Mr.
Facing Both-Ways is not dead yet, and wherever you find him he is in the same business that his ancestors followed.One of the characteristics of the Pharisee was that he despised other peoples. How much of that there is in the world! The white man de-spises the black man; the Republican despises the Democrat, and the Prohibitionist despises them both;
the Gentile despises the Jew, and the Mormon; the virtuous man despises the unclean man, the free man de-spises the jail bird; the Caucasian despises the Asiatic; the banker de-spises the mechanic; the man who believes a thing with all his might despises the man who scoffs at the theory. Bear in mind that to despise any one is the mark of a Pharisee, and against the Pharisee wherever found God thunders his anathema.
No matter what your face is, it is better to wear it openly than to put on a mask.CASTORIA.

The Kind You Have Always Bought

Beware the

*Dr. J. C. FitchOUR AMERICAN COLLEGES.One of the curses of American education has been sham and pretence, says the New York Tribune. Colleges which are not colleges, advertising work which they do not do, have too long imposed on philanthropists and too long demoralized the educational ideas of the communities which they pretend to serve. One of the best things which the General Education Board has done has been to set its face against this sham and make it difficult for institutions which are not honest with themselves and the public longer to impose upon the generous.
The board is working along these lines, not in the spirit of carping criticism, anxious to detect evil, but of helpful co-operation, seeking good, encouraging it and assisting those who are on the wrong track to get into the right way and use their influence for the greatest good of their communities. Such efforts continued are bound to result in the vast improvement of our collegiate education in all parts of the country.AS TO TIPPING.How disagreeable the tipping practice may be to some people—and there is no doubt that it has come to be something of a nuisance—it is certainly not a crime, and the criminal courts can employ their time much more profitably disposing of murders and highwaymen, of which there is a superabundance, than by wasting it on "tipping" cases, says the New Orleans Picaune. It is absurd to hold that in accepting tips the waiter or porter is robbing his employer. Quite the contrary is the case, as most employers of that class of labor not only expect, but desire, that their employees be tipped, as it is entirely at the expense of the public and probably obviates the necessity of paying living wages on their part. The mere attempt, at securing the passage of a prohibitive law is dignifying the practice much more above its deserts. It is a custom, foolish possibly but still a custom that has a strong hold on the masses of the people, and it is utterly absurd to imagine that it can be routed out by legislation.THE FRINGE HABIT."Thou shalt not make these fringes on the four quarters of thy vesture," it is written in Deuteronomy. We maintain, however, that this injunction is like St. Paul's counsel to women—of transitory and spent application. Anyway, it justifies fringes only on the vesture. We do not like them even there.A literary friend of ours adds that they are both dangerous and discocerting. Sitting cross-legged at his study table at night, his foot gets tangled in the looped tassels of the table cover, and when he uncrosses his legs his tangled foot habitually trips and throws him, pulling table cover, books, lighted lamp and all down upon him. He alleges that the fringes of his bedspread tickle his face at night, and that insomnia impenda. If this is generally true it is doubted if the Biblical reason for fringes—"to remember all the commandments of the Lord"—has the expected result in the case of the third of that series.TAPPING THE AIR.In a little establishment under the waterfall of Svalvoge, amid the rugged scenery of southern Norway, there has been in operation for about a year a set of machinery which may eventually revolutionize the agriculture of the world. The most conspicuous feature of this set of machinery is a row of great flaring electric arcs arranged for tearing the nitrogen from the air so that it can be turned into fertilizer.This remarkable achievement of the Norwegian scientists, which opens the atmosphere to a new variety of exploitation and is almost certain to find many other applications besides the manufacture of fertilizers, is another illustration of the frequently re-gotten fact that the laboratory experiment of today may be the manufacturing process of tomorrow.PROSPERITY IN FRANCE.Prosperity is sometimes the best test of the peace of a country. This certainly applies to France. A summary of the foreign trade of that nation for the first 11 months of 1905 shows that the exports increased over the previous year $66,000,000. The French minister of commerce in commenting on this thrift said that it was greater than ever before known in its history. He attributed this satisfactory progress to the wise policy of the third republic and the peace of nearly 25 years, a longer period of quiet than France has enjoyed for 800 years.
This prosperity has something to do with those triumphs of peace that are no less renowned than those of war and waste.An inventive genius has produced another preventive for sea sickness, but it cannot be a more certain one than the sure thing of staying on dry land.Any one tiring of other adulterations can now regulate himself with candy made of glucose and beautifully colored with menthol, red, aniline green or eosin pink.The real name of Gabrielle d'Annuncio, the Italian proverbial, is Aspa-guette. If this suggests Spaghetti to you, don't blame us.—Pembina (N. D.)

dents in Paris are said to be starving owing to the stoppage of the remittances which they have been accustomed to receive from their relatives at home. Most of them have been receiving $15 a month, but many have lived on as little as $10."Tain't 'nuff to look a gift horse in the mouth; better turn him wrong side out and see how he's lined."

Rheumatism in my feet and ankles, but after taking four bottles of Rheumacide I have not been bothered since. I tried every old kind of liniment and was

TO AILING WOMEN.

A Little Sound Advice Will Help Many A Sufferer in Salisbury.

No woman can be healthy and well if the kidneys are sick. Poisons that pass off when the kidneys are well are retained in the body when the kidneys are sick. Kidneys and bladder get inflamed and swollen, crowding the delicate female organs nearby and sometimes displacing them. This is the true cause of many bearing down pains, lameness, backache, side-ache, etc. Urine poisoning also causes headaches, dizzy spells, languor, nervousness and rheumatism.

When suffering so, try Doan's Kidney Pills, the remedy that cures sick kidneys. You will get better as the kidneys get better, and health will return when the kidneys are well. Let a neighboring woman tell you about Doan's Kidney Pills.

Mrs. J. W. Bassett, wife of J. W. Bassett, retired farmer, residing at 213 Main St., Cambridge, Md., says: "I have always enjoyed very good health until recent years when I suffered more or less trouble with my kidneys. It was manifested in severe headaches and rheumatism. The troubles were always worse if I caught cold or over exerted myself. I had terrible dizzy spells at times. Reading of Doan's Kidney Pills I asked my husband to get me a box. I took them as directed, and when I had finished the one box I felt so much better that I have since recommended them to a great many people. I know that they have done me a world of good and feel that they are a great thing for kidney complaint."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, N. Y., sole agents for the United States. Remember the name—Doan's—and take no other.

What To Eat.

All medical authorities agree that meat eating is unwise for those who have a tendency to rheumatism, and that a fruit and vegetable diet is the only safeguard against pain.

It is said, in all seriousness, that buttermilk is the real foundation of youth. It certainly is cheap stuff, and if it possesses virtues we might as well utilize them.

There is a wide difference in acids. Older vinegar and lemon juice do not aggravate rheumatic tendencies, while oranges do. Grape fruits aids digestion by working upon the liver.

An old gentleman says that raw prunes are better than medicine as a preventive of rheumatism and other ailments incidental to old age. He has eaten four a day for years and is a living proof of their virtues.

A young man living so far out of town that he can not wait for breakfast at his lodgings keeps his health by carrying milk chocolate in his pockets and eating enough of it on the train to carry him without faintness to an early luncheon hour. Some hard-working physicians carry little squares of chocolate against the possibility of being detained from meals with probable bad results.—Sel.

Make Hay While The Sun Shines.

There is a lesson in the work of the thrifty farmer. He knows that the bright sunshine may last but a day and he prepares for the showers which are so liable to follow. So it should be with every household. Dysentery, diarrhoea and cholera morbus may at tack some member of the home without warning. Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy, which is the best known medicine for these diseases, should always be kept at hand, as immediate treatment is necessary, and delay may prove fatal. For sale by C. L. Dickerson and G. Hearn.

Stomach Troubles And Constipation.

No one can reasonably hope for good digestion when the bowels are constipated. Mr. Chas. Baldwin, of Edwardsville, Ill., says, "I suffered from chronic constipation and stomach troubles for several years, but thanks to Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets am almost cured." Why not get a package of these tablets and get well and stay well? Price 25 cents. For sale by C. L. Dickerson and G. Hearn.

The Watchword Of Women.

Modesty is a woman's watchword. Whatever threatens her delicate sense of modesty, frightens her. For this reason many a woman permits diseases of the delicate womanly organs to become aggravated because she cannot bring herself to submit to the ordeal of unpleasant questioning, offensive examinations and obnoxious local treatments, which some physicians find necessary. Doubtless thousands of the women who have taken advantage of Dr. Pierce's offer of free consultation by letter, have been led to do so by the escape thus offered from a treatment repugnant to modesty. Any sick woman may write to Dr. R. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y., in perfect confidence: all letters being treated as strictly private and sacredly confidential and all answers being sent in plain envelopes with no advertising or other printing upon them. Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription has been long hailed as "a God send to women." It makes weak women strong and sick women well. "Favorite Prescription" contains no alcohol, ether, opium, cocaine or other narcotics.

A SUMMER MOOD.

O to be lost in the wind and the sun, To be with the wind and the stream! With never a care while the waters run.

With never a thought in my dream, To be part of the robin's lilting call And part of the bobolink's rhyme, Lying close to the sky thrush singing alone, And lapped in the cricket's chime.

O to live with these beautiful ones With the lust and glory of man Lost in the circuit of springtime suns— Submissive as earth and part of her plan— To lie as the snake lies, content in the grass!

To drift as the clouds drift, effortless, free, Glad of the power that drives them on, With never a question of wind or sea.

—Hamlin Garland.

Summer Diarrhoea in Children.

During the hot weather of the summer months the first unnatural looseness of a child's bowels should have immediate attention, so as to check the disease before it becomes serious. All that is necessary is a few doses of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy followed by a dose of castor oil to cleanse the system. Rev. M. O. Stockland, pastor of the First M. E. Church, Little Falls, Minn., writes: "We have used Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy for several years and find it a very valuable remedy, especially for summer disorders in children." Sold by C. L. Dickerson and G. Hearn.

Stripping The Maine Coast.

In whatever direction one drives out from Bath into the country, there are fresh traces of the man with the axe who is rapidly and ruthlessly devastating the hills and valleys of their chief beauty, says the Bath Times. Some of this tree cutting is defensible on the score of profit. A man must make his land pay. In other cases the man who owns the land is not only depriving the community of an asset, but robbing himself. This is particularly true near the coast, where as yet the landholder is left by himself, but where there is sure to be, sooner or later, a demand for land for summer homes—unless the farmer or fisherman deliberately destroys his prospects of that kind of profit.

A dollar made by wood cutting today in some such localities is likely to cost the owner of the timber hundreds at some future time when, had he not cut the wood from his property it would have brought a high price from a wealthy purchaser seeking an ideal summer home. When the shore-dwellers realize this fact, there is no doubt that they will act upon it, if realization does not come too late, after the timber has been burned, leaving a shadeless, barren ledge as unattractive for the purpose of the summer resident as useless for any purpose.

"Ochlo came to the rescue of a damsel in distress on the beach today."

"Saved her life?"
"No; saved her bathing suit. It was starting to rain and he had an umbrella."

Don't use harsh physics. The reaction weakens the bowels, leads to chronic constipation. Get Doan's Regulator. They operate easily, tone the stomach, cure constipation.

"My child was burned terribly about the face, neck and chest. I applied Dr. Thomas' Electric Oil. The pain ceased and the child sank into a restful sleep."—Mrs. Nancy M. Hanson, Hamburg, N. Y.

JOHN H. PHELPS, Scranton, Pa.

Your Night Caps were almost thrust upon me by a friend who evidently knows a thing or two. Shortly after the middle of last January I was in a state of almost complete nervous exhaustion, arising from excessive business effort, resulting in inability to sleep and mental depression. My physician for two months treated me, at a large expense, for nervous prostration, advised complete rest for an indefinite period. At that time, a vacation was impossible. Fortunately for me, I was then introduced to Night Caps. Shortly after I tried them. One-half a box seemed to brace my nerves within a week I could sleep. With sleep came a return of normal health and I feel like myself again. I have recovered my normal weight. You may be very sure that I now keep Night Caps constantly at hand, particularly as an assistant in case of over indulgence at table. If, at any time, you should deem it wise, or to your advantage, to refer anyone to me, do so, will be very glad to write inquirer about it. I would modestly, however, had you instruct them to enclose stamp for reply, for I have reason to believe that I shall find myself financially embarrassed if inquiries come from all who read your remedy. Kindly withhold this letter from publication. Believe me,

Very truly yours, (Signed) HARRY W. CROSS.

MARRIAGE AFTER PROBATION.

In Texas, where people do surprising and original things, the institution of marriage after probation has been introduced, says the New York Globe. The thing was started by a rich farmer, who advertised for a wife, but specified that the applicant should serve as his housekeeper for a certain length of time, in order that he should have a chance to prove her ability and temper. It happened that the farmer was satisfied with his very first applicant, and married the lady after a brief period of housekeeping probation.

It is to be hoped that the pair will live happily ever after. But the real test is that their "probation" began only after they were married. It is a misfortune of humanity that it accepts quite gracefully and reasonably a relation from which either party is free to withdraw, but far too often chafes and kicks under a bargain that is for all time and for better or worse. That is the reason why the probationary marriage will never work. The real trouble begins when the probation is over and the solid business of "getting along" on a permanent basis is at hand.

THE FARMER'S MAIL.

The cities of the country, big and little, in which there is free mail delivery, represent a proportion of the country's wealth and population which is vastly in excess of those of the rural districts now served by free mail delivery, and yet the country will presently be paying nearly $4,000,000 a year more to give this limited portion of the agricultural population its letters and papers than it pays to deliver all the city mail in the land, the latter being, it is needless to say, greatly in excess, in bulk and value, of the rural mail, says the Philadelphia Inquirer.

Cheaper postage and the extension of the parcel delivery system apparently await the time when Uncle Sam shall have undertaken to serve every one of his children, no matter how far up the creek or over the range he may live, with his daily mail—for by the time the country people get thoroughly accustomed to the carrier's visits it is fair to assume that they will acquire the habit of writing letters and will decide that they must have a daily paper instead of a weekly. Rural free delivery is making great changes in the customs of the people, and these changes are all toward assimilation to a common standard of culture.

UNABLE TO TAKE NOTICE.

There is no period of history of which men are so ignorant as that of the generation immediately preceding their own, are the opening words of an article in a current English magazine. We take exception. There is no period of which men are so ignorant as that of their own generation. Their predicament is that of the man in the classic paradox. They "cannot see the woods for the trees."

We know a good deal about such events of the preceding generation as the civil war, the war in the Crimea, the unifications of Germany and Italy, the expansion of our own country to the Pacific. But what do we know about the real significance of the far East, or, in our own country, of the populist, silver, socialist and municipal ownership movements, our occupation of the Philippines, and our determination to build the Panama Canal? It is really more difficult, even, to understand the present than it is to read the future, because the future has a perspective of its own, which the present has not.

PROMOTION IN RUSSIA.

By pursuing a policy of relentless cruelty many Russian officers have received rapid advancement, says Chicago News. They know how to please their masters. Gen. Grodekoff, who has just succeeded to the command of the Russian troops in the far east, is a conspicuous example. As governor of the Amur territory during the Boxer uprising he became notorious for his inhumanity, and after conducting a horrible massacre of Chinese was regularly known as the "Butcher." Conduct which would result in dismissal from many armies is the way to preferment in the Russian service.

AUSTRALIA'S IMMIGRANTS.

Australia in one respect, at least, sets an example to older countries. She has decided to set a high standard for the immigrant who would seek his fortune on the island-continent, says Pittsburg Gazette. In the opinion of some, Australia is too strict in putting up the bars, but if she is erring, it is on the side of safety. The government's action regarding the proposed deportation of unemployed persons from England affords an illustration in point. Promoters of the scheme were plainly told the immigrants would simply swell the ranks of the unemployed in Australia.

A New York banker says sailing ships will be the fashionable passenger line five years from now, but automobile manufacturers don't seem to heed.

Russia has a larger proportion of blind people than any other country, says a correspondent. But many are beginning to have their eyes opened. William Travers Jerome is the new Consul of Manhattan Island, says Boston Bulletin.

SAFETY OF STEEL VAULTS.

Comparing Destructive Power of Thermit and Nitroglycerine.

The use of thermit by burglars to crack safes has attracted much attention of late among scientists, engineers and machinists. Mr. Henry D. Hibbard has made a careful study of the subject and has come to the conclusion that bankers are in no greater danger than before thermit was discovered.

"The fusion of metal by electricity," says Mr. Hibbard, "has been known nearly a century; strong electric currents have been common for the last quarter of a century, and the idea that this agent might be used for safe burglary was brought forward prominently some nine years ago by parties who sought thereby to sell their apparatus for defeating burglary through its use, and yet no safe has ever been robbed by this means. One or two attempts reported some eight years ago were wholly futile.

"The use of thermit for safe robbing has a similar status, though actual burglarious attempts have not been made, so far as is known. The idea of so using it came up at once upon its discovery three years ago. The amount of thermit required to melt a hole through the wall of or top of a safe of the usual thickness of three inches is so great as to put it quite outside of feasibility from the burglar's standpoint. In melting the hole the contents of the safe would be set on fire and the profit to the burglar made very doubtful, as he must have good money which is not charred or smoked with which to pay his bills, as such money would very likely lead to his arrest if he tried to pass it.

"Nitroglycerine, extracted easily from dynamite, is in burglars' hands the great thing to be feared and guarded against. It is many times more important than all other burglar weapons put together.

"Various makers of safes of which weakness has been demonstrated through burglary would like the idea to prevail that all safes are vulnerable and insecure and therefore all in one class as far as that goes and for that reason the cheapest (theirs) is the one to buy. Such an assumption is wholly unwarranted.

"There is one way, however, in which thermit may be used to advantage in safe breaking. With a small amount such as can be carried in two pockets a safe plate may be quickly heated at any desired spot to a degree sufficient to draw out the hardness due to the hardening process commonly employed on plates forming the hard parts of a safe. The plate may then be cut or drilled.

"The ideal metal of which to make safes must be very hard to resist cutting, very tough to resist breaking, and self-hardening, that is, hard because of its composition and not because of a process to which it has been subjected. Such a metal is manganese steel (there is no other), and safes and vaults of it are now being made. This wonderful steel was discovered by scientific investigation at about the time (some twenty-three years ago) when burglars began using nitroglycerine in safe breaking. Science therefore has not done more for the burglar than it has for the banker.

"To correct minor points it may be said that the security of a burglar proof safe does not at all depend on the hinge of the door. With the hinge removed it is just as secure.

"A safe cannot be made of one piece of rolled steel or iron. All one-piece safes are cast to shape.

"Cutting a large hole through the wall of a safe cannot be done in a safe cast in one piece of genuine manganese steel. It is only feasible in a safe built up of a number of layers of iron and steel on the old-fashioned laminated system. If the plates or layers, or some of them, have been hardened it is necessary to first heat them enough to draw the hardening quality, after which they may be cut. This is where thermit has a field in the criminal line."

The Dog's Disappearance.

Recently published reminiscences left by Mme. de Chequy, who lived before and during the French revolution, give some queer pictures of high life in France in the eighteenth century. She tells, for example, the tragic fate of a small dog belonging to the Comtesse de Blot; "Attached to the chapel of the Palais Royal was a very big fat abbe of an interior order, who was never received on terms of equality save on New Year's day. This man called to wish Mme. de Blot the compliments of the season, and sat down on a folding chair that she had the goodness to offer him. He fancied the sitting down that he felt a slight retreating movement, and, feeling with his hand, found that he had sat down upon a little dog. Being certain that the mischief was already done, he determined that his wisest policy was to make an end of it, and, preening down firmly with all the weight of his heavy person, he effectually killed the little animal. The tail was sticking out, so he twisted it up, and, cautiously wriggling about, he gradually got the body into one of his big pockets and carried it off. Mme. de Blot never knew what was her dog's fate."

During the year 1894 Spain exported more than $12,000,000 worth of rice. Taskwood is second in value.

Are You Tired, Nervous and Sleepless?

Nervousness and sleeplessness are usually due to the fact that the nerves are not fed on properly nourishing blood; they are starved nerves. Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery makes pure, rich blood, and thereby the nerves are properly nourished and all the organs of the body are run as smoothly as machinery which runs in oil. In this way you feel clean, strong and strenuous—you are toned up and invigorated, and you are good for a whole lot of physical or mental work. Best of all, the strength and increase in vitality and health are lasting.

The trouble with most tonics and medicines which have a large, booming sale for a short time, is that they are largely composed of alcohol holding the drugs in solution. This alcohol shrinks up the red blood corpuscles, and in the long run greatly injures the system. One may feel exhilarated and better for the time being, yet in the end weakened and with vitality decreased. Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery contains no alcohol. Every bottle of it bears upon its wrapper The Badge of Honesty, in a full list of all its several ingredients. For the drugist to offer you something he claims is "just as good" is to insult your intelligence.

Every ingredient entering into the Golden Medical Discovery has the unanimous approval and endorsement of the leading medical authorities of all the several schools of practice. No other medicine sold through druggists for like purposes has any such endorsement. The "Golden Medical Discovery" not only produces good effects, but it can be obtained from the use of Golden Seal root, in all stomach, liver and bowel troubles, as in dyspepsia, biliousness, constipation, ulcers of stomach and bowels and kindred ailments, but the Golden Seal root used in its compound is greatly enhanced in its curative action by other ingredients such as Stone root, Black Cherry bark, Bloodroot, Mandrake root and chemically pure tripe-ried glycerine.

BEES AND BEE KEEPING.

FOUL BROOD IN BEE KEEPING.
Medicines Useless—All Diseased Combs Must Be Removed.

The first apparent evidence of the presence of the disease manifests itself in the behavior of the bees which do not seem to possess their usual activity but have a lazy, indolent manner. There is apt to be some litter in the entrance of the hive as though the bees were loath to "clean house." A few bees may fan at the entrance. After the disease is well advanced a foul smell resembling melting glue may be detected without removing the cover even, and at some little distance from the hive.

On removing the cover an examination of an infected colony reveals the following peculiarities: The brood is not compact, but scattered.
The empty cells, those not containing brood, may contain a dry scale in the bottom. The capping over the dead larvae are depressed slightly and darker than the healthy ones.
There is often a hole in the center of the cap. Many larvae, however, die before the cell is sealed.

In the treatment of this condition the following plan should be adopted, says Farmer's Bulletin:
"In the honey season, when the bees are gathering freely, remove the combs in the evening, and shake the bees into their own hives; give them frames with comb foundation starters and let them build comb for four days. The bees will make the starters into comb during the four days and store the diseased honey in them, which they took with them from the old comb. Then in the evening of the fourth day take out the new combs and give them comb foundations to work out, and then the cure will be complete. By this method of treatment all the diseased honey is removed from the bees before the full sheets of foundation are worked out. All the old foul brood combs must be burned or made into wax after they are removed from the hives, and all the new combs made out of the starters during the four days must be burned or made into wax, on account of the diseased honey that would be stored in them.

Shipping Honey for Market.

Barrels and kegs may be used, especially for the cheaper grades of honey used chiefly in the manufacture of other articles. They should be dry, make of well seasoned, sound wood, and the hoops driven tight and secured, as well-ripened honey readily absorbs moisture from wood, causing shrinkage and leakage. They should also be coated inside with beeswax or paraffin. This is easily done by warming the barrels, and then pouring in a gallon or two of hot wax or paraffin, and, after having driven in the bung tightly, rolling the barrels about a few times and turning them on end. The work should be done quickly and the liquid not adhering to the inner surfaces poured out at once, in order to leave but a thin coating inside.

GOVERNMENT BY EPIGRAM.

"Epigrams have been most useful to me in many ways. They make men think." Thus the Cleveland chief of police, who begins the daily publication of an epigram in the police paper of that city with this example: "Good advice is usually distasteful to those who need it most."

There are several extraneous aids to efficiency in office. "His Excellency the Governor" in the Gilbert opera tried practical jokes on his subordinates—compelled the guards to do bullet dances instead of drill and organized butter slides for the unsupplying syndicate. Devery used epigrams, and coined them himself. If the Cleveland chief will find room for his unfading sentiment, "A policeman has got a right to have some sense," there will be no need of publishing other official proverbs. Gen. Bingham uses brimstone and mythology.

DIFFICULTIES OF AMBASSADOR.

Only persons who are well endowed with this world's goods can stand the strain placed upon their resources by serving their country at the great capitals of Europe, says the Pittsburg Gazette. The beggarly salary of an Ambassador is hardly sufficient to pay his house rent, and the large sums which he is forced to spend in performing the social duties placed on him in one of the punctilious seats of government abroad make heavy inroads on his private resources. There are rich Senators in Congress, but all the Senators are not rich and don't have to be. On the other hand, it is impossible or a poor man to hold certain of the great diplomatic places.
The consequence is that promotion is only possible to a very limited extent, and men of special talents but without fortunes are prevented from making the most of their gifts because they have not the big opportunities.

When a smoking car for women is put on an English railroad and a fe- male card sharp is found working the transatlantic liners, who shall deny that the sex is struggling manfully for equality?

Attention to Brood Rearing.

The space given for brood rearing is often too small, and frequently no care is given to secure the proper amount of brood in time to insure a population ready for each harvest.
Attention to those points would enable great numbers of bee keepers who now regard 50 to 100 colonies as fully stocking their range to reach several hundred in a single apiary, with slight or no diminution in the average yield per colony.

Weighting the Cost.

In buying machinery of any kind,
we take account first of the length of time we can make it serve us during the year and then the amount of labor it will save when at work.
However, when it comes to choosing between machinery or more hired help, it is usually cheaper to choose the machinery.

Do not spray apple, peach, pear or plum trees when in full bloom. You will kill many honey bees or cross fertilizers.

"Raise horses for big money, cat- tle for sure money, and hogs for quick money," is an old saying and a good one.

TO "SMELL" AT TABLE.

Our aim should be to keep our food-range as wide as possible. Man's ability to eat and thrive upon everything has gone far to make him the dominant animal, living where others would starve. The sharpest lookout should be kept for any trace of "upol-ing" or putrefaction. Nature has provided an instinct and a special sense for this very purpose. If we would only use it and follow it and follow our noses we would escape many a poisonous poisoning. But Mrs. Grundy says it's rude to "smell" at table!

The last delusion, and not the least dangerous, is that our diet needs to be "regulated." A man who continuously and anxiously considers the kind of food he eats—whether it is going to agree with him or not when he eats it—is a dyspeptic and will always remain so.

The really healthy stomach ought to be and is capable of disposing of not only the digestible and the difficult of digestion, but the indigestible. Any other kind of stomach is not worth having, and that is the standard to which we physicians are now training our dyspeptic patients.
The stomach which will melt down and utilize anything in reason that is given to it is the only one fitted to survive.

LAUGH AND THE WORLD LAUGHS

Human nature is so much the same wherever we find it that we are not surprised oftentimes when one touch of humor makes the whole world grin, says the New York Globe. Thus it is with Andrew Carnegie's masterpiece of humor entitled "Spelling Reform by the Dollar Process" which, launched but a fortnight ago, has already proved a welcome contribution to international gaiety, clearly demonstrating that while the traditional Scotch may "joke" with difficulty, the Scot regards him as entitled all the more praise for endeavoring to afford it entertainment. For Wholesale Spelling Reform, whether originally intended as such or not, seems to be pretty generally accepted as a colossal joke, which is certainly the more characteristic interpretation.

What Does It Mean

to let Dividends "accumulate" on a Life Insurance Policy? In many companies it means nothing more than an agreement on the part of the policy-holder, to do without dividends for fifteen or twenty years, and then take whatever dividend the company will be willing to give.
Dividends are declared every year in the Mutual Benefit, and the policyholders use them either to help pay premiums or to buy increased insurance. The policies of the Mutual Benefit Life Ins. Co.

contain special and peculiar advantages which are not combined in the policies of any other company. Examine these advantages before plac-

THEY ARE COMING.

Christian Endeavorers Of Maryland To Invade Our City In October. Preparations. Program Outline. Open Arms To Welcome Them.

The indications are that the biennial convention of the Maryland Christian Endeavor Union to be held in Salisbury, Maryland, October 15, 16, 17 and 18, will be one of the most successful in the history of the Union, not only in point of attendance, but because of the practical results that are expected to follow the attractive conferences that are being arranged.

The number of delegates or Endeavorers attending from each society is not limited. The Salisbury Committee invites the Endeavorers of Maryland to come and free entertainment will be offered, provided application shall be made before October 5th to Mr. W. C. Humphreys, Chairman Entertainment Committee, Salisbury, Maryland. Already a number of societies have signified their intention of sending strong delegations to the convention. Reduced railroad rates have been secured and the Baltimore, Chesapeake and Atlantic Railroad has been selected as the official route from Baltimore, having made a special rate of $2.50 for the round trip.

To take advantage of the reduced rates application should be made to the Convention Transportation Manager, Mr. W. C. Perkins, 1609 W. Lombard St., Baltimore, before October 15th.

PRESENT AND PAST OF FAMOUS "OLD FURNACE"

On Snow Hill Road. Reached Its Summit Of Usefulness While Wicomico Was Part Of Another County. History Of Its Origin And Operations. Interesting Days For The Smugglers. Illustrations—"The Furnace," "Mansion House," and "Old Sampson," Of "Entailed Hat" Fame. A Time Of "Open House."

Few localities in Worcester county possess the weird interest attaching to them as does the property known as the "Old Furnace" estate, 18 miles from this town.

It is situated at the head of Nassawango Creek, which empties into the Pocomoke River a few miles below

The Abandoned Mansion House.

Snow Hill, and was the scene of great commercial activity some decades ago. The contrast between then and now is, indeed, hard to realize. Great are the mutations of time. If by some power, spiritual or magic, the participants in those scenes could be permitted to revisit in the flesh what is called the "Old Furnace," the imagination is left to conjecture what would be their comment. Now, everywhere and on all sides, there is nothing but desolation and decay. Where once there was a generous hospitality and mirth, there is now solemnity and silence. Where once were hurrying footsteps and reverberations of human voices, there is now only sand dunes and a lot of scrubby pines, which seem as if ashamed of themselves, and desire to be left alone in their solitude, poverty and bloom. The very aspects of nature seem to sympathize with the place and bestow upon it its grief.

And yet it was not always thus.

Out As A City.

In the early forties the late Hon. Thomas A. Spence, a man of gifted mind, a successful lawyer and politician, having knowledge of the great quantity of what is known as bog iron deposits in and near the stream, conceived the idea of utilizing them, and erecting a furnace for the making up of the deposits.

He erected a large mansion house there in which he and his family resided, a large storehouse for the sale of goods, blacksmith shops, carpenter shops and homes, and shops for all classes of mechanics. The village was regularly laid out in streets, alleys and squares, and a great many people were attracted there to make a livelihood in one way or another. The products of the furnace were conveyed to just below what is known now as "Old Nassawango Bridge," where they were put in scows for the purpose, and conveyed by them to schooners some distance down the stream, and which schooners carried their freight to the northern market, some of it going as far north as Troy, N. Y.

Flourishing Period.

Matters seemed to have flourished for a number of years, the proprietor in the meantime, having taken into possession the beautiful Indian name of "Nassawaddux," extending as far south as "Dividing Creek," the same being the dividing line between Somerset and Worcester Counties. It was a section abounding in generous, heavy handed hospitality of the old school, before the commercial spirit had become more prominent in the minds of our people; what one had owned was at the command of another, "without money and without price;" it would have been regarded as an insult by the worthies of that period had compensation of any kind been offered or even hinted at most remote.

Days Of Smuggling.

Various are the stories of smuggling with the West Indies which tradition has handed down to us from the past. Immense pines of first growth, their lofty tops pointing heavenward, huge cypresses covered with moss, and vines of various kind, running almost from tree to tree contributed to the dense shade, and helped to make this "forest primeval." The ruthless hands of the lumbermen had not then penetrated these primitive wilds, which lay on both banks of the Pocomoke from the marshes near its mouth to the swamps at its source. Imagine then the opportunity presented to the smuggler, the freebooter, and the man of "easy going conscience."

From most reliable sources we have heard that smuggling was a regular business on our river in the early part of the last century, there being a regular line of communication between the West Indies and certain landings on the Pocomoke and it is said that for a long period of years the business was carried on with impunity, little attention being paid to concealment but after awhile more caution was observed, and more circumspection employed.

What had been done openly an above board had to be done covertly. Schooners which had hitherto sailed up the river in the day time, were obliged to wait for a dark night before they made their landings. "Uncle Sam" had awakened up, and had made some investigations, which had caused the above mentioned gentry to be more cautious.

In connection with the above it is to be noted that all the old time dwellings at river wharves were provided with deep and well concealed cellars, and also "dig outs" in the banks of the river where a point could be found lofty enough: a place being invariably selected where there was a thick undergrowth the better to conceal the entrance thereto and of course any deposits placed therein. All these things which can be easily verified are alike suspicious, suggestive and significant and reveal to us a history of times long since passed which will not likely be repeated.

Back To The Furnace.

To return to our subject the "Old Furnace" with all its once valuable adjuncts has long since passed to utter ruin and decay, and desolation now marks the place that was once the centre of life and activity. To use the language of the late Stephen O'Connell Foster, "Bye, bye hard times comes a knockin' at the door."

The Hon. Thomas A. Spence, while a man of great ability in his chosen profession, of fine physical appearance, courtly and suave in manner, and dignified in person, was deficient in financial ability. Affairs began to go backwards at the furnace. It required money, and a great deal of it, to keep things going. Debts had been incurred, and creditors had become clamorous, and insisted upon a prompt settlement of their claims. Something had to be done and that quickly. Unable to raise the money to satisfy his creditors, he failed, and the "Old Furnace" with its immense chimney towering high above the surrounding pines and cypresses, became a thing of the past. The old chimney, or tower, ceased to emit its customary smoke, and ceased forever. The failure was a great setback to our country.

He, humiliated at his failure, being a very proud and sensitive man, left the county and went to Cambridge, Dorchester County, and began the practice of his profession, E. L. W. He practiced there until about the year 1854, when he sought and received the nomination for Judge of this judicial district, defeating the late Hon. John D. Crisfield for that position. He occupied the Bench until 1864, when under the constitution of that year, he was the Republican candidate for re-election, and was opposed by the late Hon. John R. Franklin, who defeated him at the polls. He, however, contested Judge Franklin's election before the Legislature, and that body being Republican in politics by a large majority, he obtained the position and held it until legislated out of office by the constitution of 1867.

For a number of years he then practiced law in this county, with headquarters in Salisbury, the late Col. Samuel A. Graham being associated with him in practice. Finally, he received the appointment of Attorney General for U. S. Post Office Department, at Washington, D. C., and while on business to Portland, Maine, in connection with his position, he

MANY ARE LOST

Practically Without The Advertiser. Why On It Far And Near. Wicomico Going Ahead.

Messrs. Editors:—In passing through Salisbury a few days ago I called at your office to renew my subscription to the Advertiser. It was dinner hour and the office door was closed. I hereby send you one dollar for the purpose of renewing my subscription, with my best wishes to the proprietors and patrons of the paper. I have taken the Advertiser so long that I would be lost without it.

Everywhere in the county as well as in Salisbury, I saw evidences of splendid improvements, showing how Wicomico is forging ahead and is fast becoming one of the most enterprising and progressive counties in the State. I had a few minutes at Mardela Springs. My old friend, George D. Freney drove me there at an early hour. Being a sufferer from rheumatism I wanted to try a drink from the health giving spring. It was the biggest drink of water I ever took in my life, but it did me lots of good. I am going back and stay longer. To all who try it for rheumatism I would say drink a plenty of it. Some of the dearest friends of my life are scattered through the county and I am often saddened at the thought of being moved from them.

Yours truly,

From Healthy Sinner And The Red Hills.

The Salisbury Advertiser was a welcome visitor to this place this week, it being an up to date paper full of the latest news.

Miss Consett McGraph, of Hotel Princess Anne, of Princess Anne, who is stopping at Hollywood Cottage, is very much improved in health and is much pleased with all the surroundings.

The old historic Red Hills still keeps up its reputation as a summer resort.

The large tract of timber land on which it is situated has recently been sold to Kistler and Co., of Pennsylvania. It is estimated there is about 50,000 tons of saleable timber on the tract.

Hollywood Cottage has been well patronized by the people of Pocomoke City this summer the main attraction being a moonlight sail on the Chincoteague Bay free to guests of the cottage. This is a most enjoyable trip, the scenery being a charming one. Sinnerickson is becoming a very popular health resort as very many of the patrons of Hollywood Cottage can testify.

How she obtains a ticket for admission to the court is as great a mystery as herself, but she is always present, and always dressed entirely in white. Her jewels are remarkable and she attracts or, rather, attracts so much attention that on several occasions she has been asked to sit in a quiet corner of the court, where she would not be quite so prominent a figure. On the first day of the Rennes court-martial in 1899 the white lady was the only woman on the platform where the judges sat. Three or four distinguished people, the ex-President of the Republic, M. Casimir-Perier, among them, had been allotted seats behind the judges, but the presence of a woman there, and of a woman dressed in white and glittering with jewels, created something of a scandal.

The upper-made in court was such a sight, although the white lady was found to be in possession of the pink card, signed by the Minister of War, entitling her to sit upon the platform. Col. Joumest, the president of the court martial, asked her to leave her prominent position and provided her with a seat elsewhere.

EMBROIDERY NOTES.

New lunch cloths, napkins and dolly sets show a great deal of the renaissance embroidery known as "French." These have flowing borders formed of exquisitely delicate sprays and vines, fanciful rather than imitating nature. In addition to the raised design there are additional borders about an eighth inch wide of needlework.

Fortunate the maiden who can embroider, for what can be more acceptable as a gift than half a dozen or less of more handkerchiefs with the initials daintily worked in one corner by the fair fingers of the donor? These may be stamped in quite simple or very elaborate designs in the shop, and are pleasant work to pick up at odd moments.

To make a bachelor's pin-cushion all a brier or cherry wood pipe with cotton wool or bran, and over this gum a little baby ribbon and wind it carefully round the pipe stem, tying a small bow at each end. Stick some pins in the cushion part, and the result is a very dainty trifle, very suitable as a bazaar novelty and easy to make.

Monograms in the center of napkins are effective when the cloths are large, but if not the letters placed in one corner diagonally above the end so that they will be in the middle of a square fold look better. They are from one and a half to one and three-quarter inches high. Most of the table linen is hemmed by hand, though if hemstitched ones are desired those on the cloths should be about two or two and a half inches wide and on the napkins from a half to three-quarters of an inch in width.

White Lady of Dreyfus Case.
Parisians have forgotten the white lady who has made her reappearance with the retrial of the Dreyfus case, and, unallied though it must sound, I admit that I, too, have forgotten her name, says a writer in the London Standard. She has always been something of a mystery. She is a rich and attractive woman, who must now be about thirty-five, and for the last twelve years she has not missed a single one of the greater or lesser trials of the Dreyfus case.

How she obtains a ticket for admission to the court is as great a mystery as herself, but she is always present, and always dressed entirely in white. Her jewels are remarkable and she attracts or, rather, attracts so much attention that on several occasions she has been asked to sit in a quiet corner of the court, where she would not be quite so prominent a figure. REMINISCENCES

The season at Digby—the Newport of Nova Scotia—was at its height. Emerson, tired of the nonsensical chatter of the summer girls at The Pines, made his way down to the beach where he could watch the incoming tide and be soothed by old Fundy's deep stentorian roar.

In the distance the Union Jack waved listlessly in the summer breeze. A quiet somnolence prevailed everywhere. He watched the sea gulls as they flew hither and thither, sometimes alighting, for an instant, on a bit of rock or sea weed; then up and away, soaring higher and higher, in the heavens until they were mere specks in the horizon.

The longer he watched them the more ardently he wished he were a gull or bird of prey so that when weary of this existence he could hie him away to other scenes.

He was deep in a reverie when something dropped in his lap.
A pink sunshade.

"Oh, I beg your pardon, how careless of me."
He looked up.
"Edith!"
"Harold!"

Simultaneously they uttered the words, and he sprang to grasp her outstretched hand.

"What in the world are you doing here?" she said.
"A truce from business cares," he replied; "and you?"

"Oh, I'm with a party of New York friends. We returned from abroad last month only to learn that we were to be entertained by one of our party in Montreal. From thence we came to Digby, and here we are all comfortably ensconced at the Lour Lodge."

"You haven't changed a bit," he said, as he gave her a sweeping glance. "Same sparkling black eyes, same wavy brown hair that curls in the same provoking way over your left ear."

She smiled.
"And where have you been since I saw you last?" he continued.
He watched her as she deftly opened her sunshade and arranged it in front of them to shut out the glaring sun, and his mind wandered back to three years before when he had first met her at Bar Harbor, when every corner and crevice of his heart was filled with her image.

There was a delightful summer spent in her company. Automobile rides, boating, bathing and moonlight strolls where they vowed undying devotion. Then he returned to college, and she to her studies abroad, and somehow they drifted apart.

He awoke with a start to realize that he had not heard a word of her conversation.

"And what do you think, Harold?" she was saying. "I met Florence Eggleston in Paris at the opera. We only talked for a moment. She was with some Frenchman, an inferior looking person with an unpronounceable name. I didn't have time to speak with her very long, and Mrs. De Laci, my hostess, says it is just as well, for she has a decidedly questionable reputation in Europe. You know, we used to think her quite pretty, but mercy! hasn't she faded? Really she looked extremely vulgar and overdone."

"Then I met the Taylors and Carads in Rome, and many other of our old friends on the continent."

"How is it with you, Harold? What have you been doing? Do you ever see any of the old crowd?"

"Occasionally," he answered, gazing across the Bay of Fundy. "I ran into Clyde Fessenden the other day at Sherbrooke, and I hardly knew him. He looked so seedy. Why, he was a physical wreck, and looked more like a walking ghost than a human being. I hadn't seen him for three years, so I suppose the change struck me more forcibly. He talked absent-mindedly about the current events, and after he went out I asked Will Travers, who happened to be with me, what ailed him. He said: 'Why, didn't you know he'd fallen in business? He married one of the popular debutantes last year. Can't think of her name now, but she's a terrible spendthrift, they say. Took about all he made to keep her in togs and swell her around, so he went through.' "Poor fellow," she said. "That's the penalty. I suppose you are married, Harold?"

"Oh, yes, some time ago."
"To whom, may I ask?"
"Florence Eggleston."
They were silent.
"And you?" he said presently.
"Oh! I married Clyde Fessenden."—Boston Post.

Purify Party Organizations

Whether Mr. Bryan be right or wrong in his judgment in fighting the continuance of Mr. Roger Sullivan on the Democratic National Committee from Ohio, there can be no doubt about the sincerity of his motives, and also of his wisdom if his opinion be correct as to Mr. Sullivan's corrupt methods, when he says: "If we must fight to purify the party organizations, the sooner it begins the better."

"Purify the party organization," is a good party platform for any party and Mr. Bryan proposes to make it a plank in the Democratic platform.

VOTE BUYING ON THE EASTERN SHORE.

In an interesting interview published in The Sun Mr. James E. Ellegood, of Wicomico county, tells the astonishing extent to which political corruption on the Eastern Shore has reached, and also suggests a reasonable and plausible remedy for the disease. It has been quite common, Mr. Ellegood says, for each party to spend upon an election in one county anywhere from $5,000 to $15,000 and even as high as $25,000. There is no legitimate use for any such sums as these. In rural communities the proper and necessary expenditure of money in a campaign is incomparably less than in a city. Public meetings cost little, registration costs little. It is not necessary to hire a man to persuade a countryman to get registered. Mr. Ellegood speaks of the expenditure of $5,000 by the Democrats of Wicomico county a few years ago, and doubtless some expenditure was made by the Republicans. Five thousand dollars amounted to $8 for each Democratic voter in the county who went to the polls. Suppose that one-fourth of the Democratic vote was purchased. The amount expended was sufficient to give each one over $8.

Mr. Ellegood hints that the expenditure in an Eastern Shore county at an election some times runs up to $25,000, while $15,000 is not uncommon. The Eastern Shore county casting the largest Democratic vote is Dorchester, and at the last election, when the Democrats carried the county, the vote of that party was 2,464. If this is the county in which $25,000 was spent, then there was $10 for each Democratic vote polled. If it was some other county, then the sum for each vote was still greater. The corrupting influence of vote buying is widespread. It tends to make poor men, and even men of moderate means, ineligible for public office. It tends to commit the government to the rich or the unscrupulous and excludes the poor man, with nothing but patriotism, ability and fitness to recommend him. It puts a temptation in the way of poor men to which they should never be subjected. The wages of a farm laborer run in this State from $13 to $20 a month. When a workman sees his neighbor receive as much for his vote as he can earn by hard work in the fields for a whole month, it is a severe strain upon his loyalty and patriotism to refuse a dollar offer. The man that corrupts is the greater criminal of the two. Mr. Ellegood, as is well known, is a strong advocate of the "straight party" system, and he is greatly encouraged at the success of recent efforts. Last fall the two party organizations in Wicomico made an agreement to spend no money for bribery. Both parties kept the agreement in good faith, and the result was the normal party vote of each party—just about what it would have been if each party had spent $5,000 in vote buying. The Democratic Congressional convention of the First District has month declared against corruption and asked the Republican party to pledge itself also against vote buying. Mr. Ellegood thinks that such an agreement is feasible, and that it will stop the evil at its source. He says that the heavy expenditure of candidates and the big campaign funds would not be counted as a political condition, and that it would be a great relief.

WM. H. COULBOURNE

Died At His Home Near Salisbury Thursday Afternoon. Was About 65 Years Of Age. Had Led An Active Life And Was Highly Esteemed By Many Friends.

Mr. Wm. H. Coulbourn, one of Wicomico's most prominent and esteemed citizens died of meningitis a little after twelve o'clock Thursday afternoon, August 23rd, at his home on the Coulbourn road leading from Salisbury to Fruitland. He had been unwell for several weeks with cerebral trouble.

Mr. Coulbourn was born in Worcester County, December 2, 1841, and remained there until 1871. That year he moved on the farm near Fooks mill where he died.

In politics Mr. Coulbourn was a Democrat and took rather an active interest in the political affairs of his country. He was elected to the office of County Commissioner in 1879 and held that position for two years. He held a position in the Maryland Legislature during the session of 1884. Mr. Coulbourn is survived by a wife, Mrs. Margaret Coulbourn, two sons, Mr. James Duncan Coulbourn, who is at the homestead and Mr. Augustus Coulbourn, who lives on the same farm, and one daughter, Mrs. May Coulbourn Johnson. He leaves an estate of some $10,000 or $20,000.

The funeral will be preached at the home at 10 o'clock this morning. The remains will be interred in the burial ground, near the house, which Mr. Coulbourn himself surveyed and cleared up not many months ago.

"FAIRBANKS" A WONDER.

One Of The Fastest Boats Afloat. Speed Of 22 Miles An Hour Attained On The Wicomico River.

The boat Fairbanks made by the Fairbanks Co., at Oxford, Md., is the fastest boat of her size in the world. She is 30 feet, 10 inches long, 4 feet wide and has a speed of 22 miles per hour. She came to Salisbury a few days ago under the command of Capt. Sid Gibson of Oxford. Engineer, Harry Link of Baltimore and Manager M. H. Fowler; and Messrs R. D. Grier and Otis L. Lloyd, who are the local agents for the Fairbanks engine with several other Salisburyans have had some pleasant trips in the boat.

She is equipped with a 15 horse power, two cycle, three cylinder Fairbanks engine and has made several trips from Baltimore to Oxford covering that distance in a little over three hours. She was entered in the regatta at St. Michaels on August 18th and carried off the highest honor winning a very handsome silver cup which may be seen at Sam'l Kirk & Son's Jewelry Store, Baltimore, Md. She distances all our local boats that have had the chance to give her a trial. She leaves for Oxford today from whence she will return to Baltimore.

The Fairbanks Co., is now building another boat at Oxford 6 feet longer than the "Fairbanks," finished with mahogany. Mr. Fowler says she will have a speed of 25 miles or more and he expects to make a trip to Salisbury as soon as she is completed in a month or two.

Horse Slung To Death By A Two Bushel Swarm Of Bees.

Mr. L. J. Powell, of Powellville, lost a valuable horse and Mr. Jeff Davis, who was driving the team to a wagon loaded with flour, came very near losing his life in a very unusual manner Friday. Mr. Powell had sent Davis with his team to Snow Hill after a load of merchandise for his store. When on their return, they had reached a piece of new ground on the farm of Mr. Wm. Dennis, Davis noticed several insects pitch on his face; thinking however that they were flies, he brushed them off and paid no further attention to them at the time.

Attacked By Bees.

They had gone only a few steps however before bees came swarming down on them by the thousands. Mr. Davis recognizing the danger, made a desperate effort to force his horse to rush through them but it was of no use. In a moment man and beast were covered, and the horse wild with pain and frantic with fear refused to budge. Mr. Davis was by this time covered with the bees, having his hat off, his hair was full and even his mouth, which in his crisis to the horse and his calls for assistance, was filled with stinging bees. Unable to see and crazed with pain he was in desperate straits.

Tries To Escape.

Finally he succeeded in getting his head in a ditch of water, where he washed off the best he could hundreds of the insects. Enjoying a few moments respite he nerved himself for a rush from the scene and leaping the ditch pursued by the relentless bees, he made a cut across the field to the home of Mr. Marcellus Dennis, where he arrived thoroughly exhausted, very much swollen and discolored. Such remedies as were at hand were applied at once and he soon obtained relief. It is said that there were combed out of his hair alone two table spoonful of bee stings.

Mr. Dennis To Rescue.

In the meantime however Mr. Marcellus Dennis had heard the cries for help and had rushed to the scene. Seeing the condition of the horse he made up his mind to help it if he could. The bees made madder than ever by the kicks and resistance of the horse made for him on his approach, and in a moment he was covered with the stinging bees. Having some protection in his beard and hat well pulled down, and nothing daunted by the reception, he made steadily for the horse which was down by this time. Thinking that if it was too cape, he proceeded to unfasten the harness and succeeded in getting it clear of everything but the bridle. Just as he was completing this work the horse gave a vicious lunge with his hind feet and caught Mr. Dennis fair on his left arm.

Horse Dies. Men In Bad Flight.

Thinking at the time that the arm must be broken and this added to the stinging of the bees, was too much for him and he was compelled to retreat and make his way back home as he best could, and on his arrival was found to be stung almost as badly as was Davis. The effort to save the horse was thrown away although it got up and walked several feet before it was finally overcome with the poison and fell dead.

It is thought that there were about two bushels of the bees altogether and probably an old time forest battle between live bees and wild ones, for honey which was interrupted by the arrival of horse and wagon.

A Hair Dressing

Nearly every one likes a fine hair dressing. Something to make the hair more manageable; to keep it from being too rough, or from splitting at the ends. Something, too, that will feed the hair at the same time, a regular hair-food. Well-fed hair will be strong, and will remain where it belongs—on the head, not on the comb!

SATURDAY NIGHT TALKS

By F. E. Davison, Retired Vt.

PROFESSION OR REALITY.

Aug. 26, '06—(Mark 10:17-31.)

Great professions imply ability. Credentials presuppose performance. It is no test of a perfect machine to keep the belt on the loose pulley. A horse that can trot in 2.10 is out of his class in a 2.40 race. When a steamer is guaranteed 20 knots an hour, the government will not accept it if on a trial trip it can only make 16. Tall men can reach higher than short men, and should be expected to do so. It is preposterous to apply the same rule to a 6 footer as to a man only 5 feet four. Men do not look for philosophers among the quited.

A conspicuous example of this law will occur to all who have read the New Testament. Ordinary reformers heartily welcome to their cause men of education, money, influence, bold and commanding positions. Not so, Jesus Christ. He was so cautious and exacting as to seem almost oppressive. He made the gate straight and the way narrow. A very "righteous" young man came to him with an eager inquiry, and He proposed a test to him which sent him away sorrowful, because he could not fulfill it. Why did He do that? Simply because of what the young man claimed. If he had really done what he claimed to be able to do, the test was nothing remarkable in its scope. Other people, since then have done it, and have not made a tithe of his pretensions.

This young fellow claimed to be the living embodiment of the Decalogue. He had absorbed the teaching of Sinai into his life and had kept the Ten Commandments from his youth up, to let him tell it. The law was written on tables of stone, but here was a table of flesh. How could Christ resist a man who could say that he had perfectly kept the Ten Commandments! According to his claims Christ and he were the only two persons since the world was created who had ever done so. As a matter of fact the Lord was more exacting with this young man—required more of him than he did of the Publican, the adulteress and the thief. Anything wrong about that? Why shouldn't he? According to his claim he was next to Christ Himself, let him do one thing more that Christ had done, and he would be His equal. Other people brought nothing with them, but sin he brought the Ten Commandments without a wrinkle or a stain. And yet when tested on one single point, his pocketbook, he collapsed. He wanted eternal life much, but he wanted his money more. His bank account was real, heaven was visionary. A wealthy disciple would have been to his taste, but a poor disciple had no attraction for him. After all self was the stronghold of the young man's life and when it came to a show down as to which had the greater hold on him, the commandments or the money, the money had it. Only He who reads all hearts would have been able to see what the fatal lack was, but Christ put his finger on the sore at the first diagnosis.

No matter what the object of your ambition you must pay the price or miss the goal. It is true of every kingdom that is worth having that the way into it is strait and narrow. It is true of the kingdom of art. How many there are who would like to become great painters. Artists are not born, they are made by struggle and quenchless zeal. The desire is born, but he who wins the prize does so through self-denial, through awkward attempts, through tears of mortification, through jeers perhaps and senseless mockery, through absolute refusal to yield to disappointment, through pressing on while hundreds give up in despair and fall to enter in. The masterpieces of art are the transfigured souls of the artists.

That is the way it is with the kingdom of music. Who are the men and women who sit on the thrones of vocal, and instrumental music today? Are they the dreamers, who fondly imagine they have musical talent? They are the people who from childhood have paid the price. They have given up all for it. They have not dabbled in this and that, they have known but one thing, and by day and night, year in and year out, they have beaten, beaten, beaten against the door of music, until those portals have swung open to their persistent appeal. Ten thousand approach the gate and are not willing to pay the price.

That which costs you nothing usually is worth nothing. You value more highly that which costs you most. Credentials do not count for much these days; ability to do is the main thing. You may be boosted into position by admiring friends, but you will be a misfit and will not be able long to hold it, unless you are competent. Not what you claim to be, but what you are is the test. To profess ability is one thing; to deliver the goods is sometimes quite another. Men who imagine that fitness for heaven, consists only in putting up a few cracks, and varnishing over a few discolorations are as much mistaken as the rich young ruler.

PRESERVING THE COMPLEXION.

By Strict Attention to Condition of the Stomach and Blood.

If women understood more about the actual structure of the skin they might find it easier to keep it in good condition.

In the first place, it is a breathing organ, like the lungs, and second, a natural loom for the manufacture of the beautiful protecting blanket (for such it really is) called the cuticle, scarf, or outer skin, which thinly covers the entire exterior of the body.

The scarf skin is woven or built up from beneath by millions of minute scales, which are welded firmly together by the glutinous fluids which ooze from the deeper parts of the skin, and are smoothed down on the surface by the oil thrown out upon it.

When anything affects the health of the scarf or outer skin some form of skin trouble results. Thus, if too much oil is secreted, the oil accumulates upon the surface and in the glands and produces a muddy complexion and gives rise to face spots. On the other hand, if the supply of oil is scanty, a delicate, irritable skin results, and is frequently the forerunner of chaps and eczema.

If the perspiration is acid or laden with an excess of irritant impurities, this will in time create inflammation and irritation. Rheumatic or gouty eczema is due to this cause. Lastly, impure blood frequently manifests itself by breaking out upon the skin, showing that the blood itself needs purification and cleansing.

It is evident, therefore, that any difficulty comes either from external or internal causes and indigestion is the more frequent one. Impurities that are not thrown off through their proper channels from the stomach make their way into the blood, and out through the skin, and one of the reasons that candy is so bad for the complexion is that it produces fermentation that is felt immediately by the blood. Sweats in moderation are a necessity, but they should be of the simplest and most wholesome kind, and eaten only in moderation. Acids produce precisely the same effect upon those with whom they disagree, and too much fat in food will also work out through the blood and complexion. Therefore one should have no doubts as to what properties suit the digestion and blood, and a diet should be regulated accordingly.

Copper Claret Set.

Copper, and particularly copper combined and ornamented with other metals, is constantly growing in favor for articles used on the table as well as those that are purely ornamental. A new claret set shown in the illustration is of dull copper inlaid with silver. The design of grapes with the leaves and the graceful tendrils appears on the jug and the six little cups, while on the round tray the silver is carried out most elaborately. The shape of the jug is plain, but quite effective, and the whole set is both original and handsome in design.

Another pleasing novelty for the table is the nickel asparagus set. The asparagus is laid on the tray and easily conveyed to the plate by the special spoons accompanying the set.

Dining Room Don'ts.
Don't fall to make the dining room the cheeriest room in the house, and the time spent in it the happiest of the day.

Don't forget that birth and breeding show up more clearly at the dinner table than at any other time. As a man eats, so he is.

Don't ignore details here if you must elsewhere. See to it that the silver shines, the glass glistens and the linen is spotlessly white.

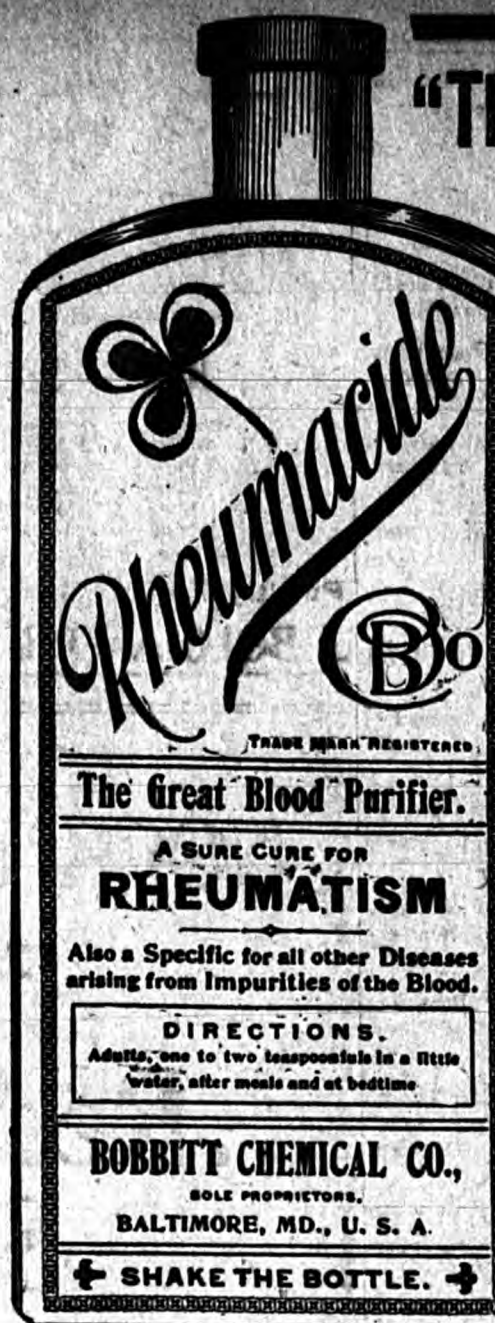

Don't fall to remember that the conversation at the family table should be general. Little pitchers have big ears, and little they are especially receptive at meal time.

"Dress for dinner." If only to change from one shirtwaist to another, make the change, but add a bow or a few flowers or something to show an attempt to "dress up." It has more of an effect than you think. It refreshes you and the others, and goes a long way toward creating a harmonious atmosphere.

Sex and Occupation.
It is curious, but true, that the two occupations longest identified with the female sex—cooking and dressmaking—should each of them be better performed by men.—Grand Magazine.

Rose water, eight ounces, and tincture of benzoic, two drams, make one of the best skin tonics and whiteners.

Age of Giant Trees.
California's giant trees, the sequoias, thousands of years old, have been preserved to this day because of their enormously thick bark. From time to time, in the course of ages, forest fires have swept through the big tree lands, destroying everything yet not scorching for a couple of inches' depth or so the almost fire-proof bark. The flames having carbonized that much of the bark, could not penetrate farther, for the carbonized portion formed an absolute fireproof covering for the remainder of the interior bark.

"THERE'S A CURE FOR RHEUMATISM!"

Not the mere temporary relief that the old "remedies" gave, not the little help that the doctor's prescriptions give; but ABSOLUTE AND COMPLETE CURE. That is what Rheumacide does. Rheumatism is caused by an excess of uric acid in the blood. It is an internal disease and requires a strong and vigorous internal remedy that will cleanse the blood of all its germs and yet act through such natural methods that it builds up the entire system.

Every vestige of the disease has been driven from my system.

TO AILING WOMEN.

A Little Sound Advice Will Help Many A Sufferer In Salisbury.

No woman can be healthy and well
if the kidneys are sick. Poisons that pass off when the kidneys are well
are retained in the body when the kidneys are sick. Kidneys and bladder get inflamed and swollen, crowding the delicate female organs nearby,
and sometimes displacing them. This is the true cause of many bearing down pains, lameness, backache, sideache, etc. Uric poisoning also causes headaches, dizziness, languor, nervi-ousness and rheumatic pain.

When suffering so, try Doan's Kidney Pills, the remedy that cures sick kidneys. You will not better as the kidneys get better, and health will return when the kidneys are well. Let
a neighboring woman tell you about Doan's Kidney Pills.

Mrs. J. W. Bassett, wife of J. W.
Bassett, retired farmer, residing at 313 Muir St., Cambridge, Md., says:
"I have always enjoyed very good health until recent years when I suffered more or less trouble with my kidneys. It was manifested in severe headaches and rheumatism. The troubles were always worse if I caught
cold or over exerted myself. I had terrible dizzy spells at times. Reading of Doan's Kidney Pills I asked
my husband to get me a box. I took them as directed, and when I had finished the one box I felt so much better that I have since recommended
them to a great many people. I know that they have done me a world of good and feel that they are a great
thing for kidney complaint."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50
cents. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, N. Y., sole agents for the United States.

Remember the name—Doan's—and take no other.

It has been proven beyond a doubt that incubators were in successful operation among the ancient Egyptians. These original hatching machines were about six feet high, and were arranged with galleries for holding the eggs, which were heated from a central oven. About 400 incubators have been discovered in Egypt.

Make Hay While The Sun Shines.

There is a lesson in the work of the thrifty farmer. He knows that the bright sunshine may last but a day
and he prepares for the showers which are so liable to follow. So it should be with every household. Dysentery, diarrhoea and cholera morbus may at tack some member of the home without warning. Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy, which is the best known medicine for these diseases, should always be kept at hand, as immediate treatment is necessary, and delay may prove fatal.
For sale by C. L. Dickerson and G.
Hearn.

Unslacked lime is useful in preventing rust because of its extraordinary capacity for absorbing moisture.

Some careful workmen who take pains that their tools shall always be in the best condition make a practice of keeping a piece of lime in their tool boxes to absorb any moisture which might otherwise cause rust.

Stomach Troubles And Constipation.

No one can reasonably hope for good digestion when the bowels are constipated. Mr. Chas. Baldwin, of Edwardsville, Ill., says, "I suffered from chronic constipation and stomach troubles for several years, but thanks to Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets am almost cured." Why not get a package of these tablets and get well and stay well? Price 25 cents. For sale by C. L. Dick-
erson and G. Hearn.

A building activity at Tsingtau, China, is reported by a German writer, who says that in 1905 there were erected 28 new European residences, ings, including a soap factory and three steam kilns, 13 new godowns, warehouses and 11 Chinese residential and business houses.

Summer Diarrhoea In Children.

During the hot weather of the summer months the first unnatural loose-ness of a child's bowels should have immediate attention, so as to check
the disease before it becomes serious.
All that is necessary is a few doses of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy followed by a dose
of castor oil to cleanse the system.
Rev. M. O. Brookland, pastor of the First M. E. Church, Little Falls,
Minn., writes: "We have used Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy for several years and
find it a very valuable remedy, especially for summer disorders in children." Sold by C. L. Dickerson and
G. Hearn.

THE GALLEON.

By Philip Wendell Crannell.

A treasure ship bears down upon our shores:
She brings a royal freight of God's good will,
No richer gems hath he in all his stores
Than those which her capacious coffers fill.
Nor ripen sweeter fruits in heaven's air,
Nor angel hosts more glorious raiment wear.
Than crowd her cabins. Yet intense,
alert,
We thrust out guards to fend her from our coast.
We shrink and cringe, as at impending hurt,
When she draws near, and to the utmost Resist her coming. Naught but bristling spears,
And frowning guns, and enginery of bane,
We see. This, richest galleon of the years,
Is God's strange, goodly treasure ship of pain.
—Kansas City, S. S. Times.

In late years men have made fortunes out of the tailings of gold mines.
The mills in which the ore formerly was crushed and the crude processes then in use allowed a large percentage of the precious metal to escape, and that loss amounted in some cases to a fortune. The stomach is just like a stamp mill in this respect, that when it is not in perfect order it allows the escape and waste of much of the precious nutriment contained in the food.
That loss when continuous means the loss of man's greatest fortune—health.
Science offers a remedy for this condition in Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. It corrects the "weakness" of the stomach, prevents waste and loss of nourishment, and puts the stomach and organs for digestion and nutrition into a condition of health which enables them to save and assimilate all the nutriment contained in the food which is eaten. In all cases of constipation the use of Dr.
Pierce's Pleasant Pellets will speedily and permanently cure the disease.

A Roosevelt Story.

One night in camp he told us the story of one of his Rough Riders who had just written him from some place in Arizona. The Rough Riders, wherever they are now, look to him in time of trouble. This one had come to grief in Arizona. He was in jail. So he wrote the President, and his letter ran something like this—
"Dear Colonel—I am in trouble. I shot a lady in the eye, but I did not intend to hit the lady; I was shooting at my wife."

And the presidential laughter rang out over the treetops. To another Rough Rider, who was in jail, accused of horse stealing, he had loaned two hundred dollars to pay counsel on his trial and, to his surprise, in due time, the money came back. The ex-Rough wrote that his trial never came off. "We elected our District Attorney," and the laughter again sounded, and drowned the noise of the brook nearby.—Atlantic Monthly.

—Little Sallie came home from school full of indignation, says the New Orleans Picayune. She is only 5 years old, but she was full of "mad" as her little body would hold.
"Mamma," she said, "I think the teacher was real rude to me."
"Why, what has she done?"
"She laughed at me—laughed right out loud."

"I guess you did something to make her laugh."
"No I didn't do anything."
"Well, how did it happen?"
"It was in the geography class, and she asked me what was the principal production of the Sandwich Islands, and I just said 'Sandwiches,' and she laughed."

Don't use harsh physics. The reac-

A Synopsis of The Food Bill As Finally Passed.

As this bill touches in a greater or less degree the great oyster industry of our land it may be well just to give an outline of its provisions. I. The penalty for selling any article of food, drugs, medicine or liquors, misbranded or adulterated or containing poison substances, is upon conviction for the first offense a fine not exceeding $500 or imprisonment for one year, or both at the discretion of the court. For each subsequent offense, a fine of not less than $1000 or imprisonment for one year, or both at the court's discretion.

II. The introduction into any part of the United States, from any State or Territory, or from any foreign country, or to any foreign country of any of the articles above described, or any person offering such articles for sale shall be guilty of a misdemeanor and shall be fined not exceeding $200 for the first offense, and a fine not exceeding $300 for each subsequent offense, or imprisoned not exceeding one year or both at the court's discretion.

III. The Secretary of the Treasury, the Secretary of Agriculture and the Secretary of Commerce and Labor shall make uniform rules for the carrying out of the act—they are to collect and examine specimens of food and drugs of home or foreign products.

IV. These examinations to be made in the Bureau of Agriculture and in any specimens are misbranded or adulterated notice is to be given the parties and they be allowed to be heard. If adulterated or misbranded articles are found and the parties selling them are shown to be guilty, the Secretary of Agriculture shall certify to the facts to the proper United States District Attorney by producing the results of such examination, under oath of such officer.

V. It shall be the duty of each District Attorney having such certificate of violation to proceed to prosecute the offender in the proper court without delay.

VI. The term "drug" as used in this act shall include all medicines and preparations recognized in the United States Pharmacopoeia or National Formulary as describing any cure for the ailments of man or beast. The term "food" is used herein to include all articles used for food or drink, confectionery or condiment, whether simple, mixed or compound.

VII. An article shall be deemed adulterated, 1. e., if when a drug is sold under a name in the National Formulary and is found to differ from the standard of strength, quality or purity, set by such National Formulary. 2. If the strength or purity of its professed standard for example in the case of confectionery if it contains terra alba, barytes, talc, chrome yellow or other material color, or substance deleterious to health, or any malt or spirituous liquor, or compound or narcotic drug.

In the case of food, if any substance has been substituted or packed with it so as to lower or reduce injuriously its quality or strength. Or if any substance has been substituted, wholly or in part, for the article as marked. Or if any valuable constituent of the article has been wholly or partly abstracted. Or if it has been mixed, or colored, powdered or coated, in any manner to damage, or make inferior its purity, or to conceal its real value.

It must not contain any ingredient which may render it deleterious to health. Except when the preservative is necessary and can be removed mechanically or by maceration in water and directions for such removal be printed on the package. If it consists of any filthy, decomposed, or putrid animal or vegetable substance. Or if it consists of an animal that has died otherwise than by a slaughter. The term "misbranded" as used in this act shall apply to all drugs, articles of food, or articles which enter into the composition of food, the package, or label of which, shall bear any statement, design or device regarding such articles, or the ingredients or substances contained therein, shall be false or misleading in any particular, and to any food or drug product as to the State, territory or country in which it is manufactured or produced.

The other sections refer to the disclosing of formulas and the deliverance of samples of imported goods. It will be seen that this bill has taken the bull by the horns and that the matter of food is worthy the serious attention of our National law makers. It is a truism: "Tell me what a Nation eats and I will tell you what the Nation is."

—A sermon may be written, if one were so disposed, on the rise and fall of young Halsey Corwin, who has been disinterested from obscurity by the recent theft of diamonds valued at $50,000, or thereabouts, from his wife. His father was one of the prominent men of Brooklyn, and when he died three years ago he left the youngster more than $1,000,000 in cash. He became known as the "angel of Coney Island." You may imagine what that means. No one wanted thirty who knew him. He married the young woman who now bears his name after a betrothal dinner at which $15,000 worth of wine was opened. He heaped rare jewels upon her and squandered his father's fortune as though it had no end. His wife no longer recognizes his existence. He is working for $25 a month as ticket taker in the very resort where he once spent money by the thousand dollars. If anyone refers to him it is with a laugh.

—It is reported that fishermen have been using dynamite for the purpose of capturing fish in Chester River, Md., and the State Game Warden is endeavoring to gain sufficient evidence to have the violators of the law arrested.

A Notable Improvement.

Little has been said in the papers about the improvements made in the Monumental Theatre in Baltimore, but work has been going on all summer and now that the work has been completed it is safe to say that there are few prettier theatres than this one.

As soon as the Empire circuit company acquired the property, architects and builders got to work and planned such a reconstruction of Baltimore's best known burlesque house as to make it practically a new theatre. The entire interior was torn out and not only was the seating plan changed, but all new seats added. Even the balcony seats are of the folding kind, while those on the lower floor of the house are of the latest and most comfortable pattern. In the way of decorations, no theatre in the country surpasses the New Monumental for the taste and the neutral kind that pleases the eye and are in harmony.

The boxes have been doubled in capacity and are in keeping with the general effect. On the stage scenery and appointments have been placed and the house is now perfect both in front and back of the curtain line. Those who have seen the house since the improvements have been completed have named it "The Theatre Beautiful," and it is all that the name implies.

It is safe, commodious and comfortable and will surprise even the patrons. Conveniently located, it has always been a favorite place of amusement with out of town patrons during the fifty years it has been an amusement resort, and now that it is thoroughly up to date in all its appointments, it will no doubt draw more people than ever.

During the season it will plan the best class of burlesque attractions, featuring many European novelties that will be seen at no other theatre in Baltimore, but at the New Monumental. The season opens Monday, August 27th.

TALES OF GREAT SHARKS

Hated, Worshipped, Useful Scavengers of the Sea.

HAWAIIAN ISLAND GODS

Thirty Footers Caught on the Pacific Coast—A Fourteen Footer Able to Swallow a Full Grown Man and Glad of Chance—After Mutilated and Set Adrift.

"One of the most interesting denizens of the water," said the natural history collector, "is the shark. It is found in all seas and occupies a folk lore, religion and domestic economy of all countries bordering on salt water."

"The shark is undoubtedly a dog with bad name, but it really does not deserve half the bad things said of it. While an unmitigated nuisance and expense in many ways, especially to fishermen, yet it subserves a most necessary purpose, namely, that of scavenger of the seas."

"Like the goat and the ostrich on land, the shark will swallow almost anything that comes its way, be it a man, a horse, feathered fowl, bottle, tin can, rope or pieces of wood. The species known as man eaters have been known to attack human beings, but they rarely do so unless driven to it by extreme hunger, or if the person be floating on the surface or slowly swimming along. A vigorous swimmer on the part of a swimmer is very apt to scare away any shark."

"A man was captured in Monterey Bay, California, a few years ago which measured thirty-two feet in length. Another caught near Goleta, California, was about thirty feet long, and had a young sea lion weighing about 100 pounds in its stomach."

"It helped to open up one in the Honolulu fish market a few years ago, and found in its stomach the body of a man, complete from the waist down with the exception of one leg, also some ducks, tin cans, etc. The body was identified later as that of a man who had disappeared about ten days before while bathing off Koko Head. The shark was twenty feet long."

"It is in the South Seas that the shark attains its greatest prominence. Here it was formerly worshipped as a god and even now it does not take much to drive many of the native converts back to shark worship, if they have ever really given it up, as the Christian religion sits easily on many of them."

"In Norway the shark fishery is of considerable importance. Small shoals are employed. As soon as a shark is caught it is hauled up just clear of the water. With a few quick slashes its liver is cut out and thrown into a tub. Then its eyes are put out and it is cut adrift to go and complete the very slow, in its case, process of dying where and how it pleases."

"In the Hawaiian Islands shark worship was at one time almost universal. This worship was not confined to an unseemly idolatry, but was often centered in some living specimen which frequented a certain range along shore. Most of the natives believed in the transmigration of souls and frequently cast bodies into the sea to be devoured by the sharks, believing that their souls would ever after animate those fishes and incline them to respect the bodies of the living members of the family. Each shark god had a special temple, or kahu, responsible for its care and worship."

"The largest and most celebrated of the shark gods of the islands was Kahaloana, a male, whose mouth was said to be as large as an ordinary grass house, and whose bulk was so great that it could not navigate the channels between the islands and was forced to remain in the open sea. Second in size and power was Kamohaili, elder brother of the terrible volcano god, Pele."

"The shark is put to many economic uses. The flesh is eaten in many countries. When fresh the meat is rather indigestible and unwholesome, but when dried it has a peculiar flavor by no means disagreeable. It is somewhat resembling old cheese."

"The fins are converted into jelly and canned soup, or dried and shipped in the rough to China, fine meaty and medicinal oil is made from the liver, and handsome leather from the skin, walking sticks from the backbone and many articles from the bones and teeth. Nearly all of the good grips worn by officers of the army are made from shark skin. They are beautiful in appearance and marked with dark figures."

"A shark is less fatiguing than a horse, and is estimated to be worth by a crank crank crank."

"The shark is estimated to be worth by a crank crank crank."

"The shark is estimated to be worth by a crank crank crank."

A MARK HANNA STORY.

The Englishman Who Tried to Use American Slang.

When the late Mark Hanna was running the Republican national campaign in 1896, in New York, he was bored by a politician who endeavored to make the chairman of the Ohio committee a rosy way by relating anecdotes without much point.

"You remind me of the Englishman," said the Senator, "who was walking up Fifth Avenue with an American girl with a vocabulary of slang. A handsomely dressed young woman passed and the American exclaimed, 'She is out of sight.' The Englishman was nonplussed, but when it was explained that 'out of sight' meant stunningly or beautifully dressed, he declared it was deceiving, don't you know. Soon afterwards the Englishman met a fellow-countryman, and they went up Broadway together. An elegantly attired woman passed them."

"By Jove! she is not there," exclaimed the Englishman who had been taught slang. "But she is there, old boy; where are your eyes?" asked the other. "Oh, I mean she cannot be seen."

"I see her all right; are you blind?"

"Strange," said the slang taught Englishman; when that American used a clever phrase it was funny and apropos, but when I use it I am thought stupid and blind."

Black Art in Another Form. A German gentleman and his young son, Fritz, were on an express train bound for the seashore. While Fritz was snoozing, his father, who occupied the window seat, snatched his cap and seemingly threw it out of the open window.

"Aha," the joking father said, "your cap has gone outside. Never mind, Fritz. I'll visit and it'll come on de inside again in quickness."

The father whistled and, at the same moment deftly placed the cap on his attentive son's head. Fritz was speechless. He pulled out of his covering and gazed at it in wonder and his paterfamilias in deep admiration for several minutes.

As the train neared a bridge the little chap was inspired. Leaning far out of the open window he dropped the cap and, turning to his father confidently, said, "Vistie, fadder."

Depends on the Location. "It isn't true," argued the passenger with the skull cap, "that studying for the ministry unfits a man for a business career. Sometimes it has just the opposite effect."

"How, for instance?" asked the passenger with the flashy waistcoat. "Well, a cousin of mine took a theological course several years ago, became a preacher, went straight into business, and made a success of it right from the start. Hadn't a cent of capital, either."

"What's his business?" "The marrying business."

WHAT THE PAPER READ

To the end of his day Ellithorpe will never forget his sensations when he read the simple, cold-blooded announcement in the society column of the newspaper.

The notice was to the effect that the engagement of Miss Rose Burlingame to Dovie Jenkins was announced. That was all, but it was the end of the world for Ellithorpe.

As he glared at the crumpled newspaper he admitted that he had dallied. For two years he had lived in the light of her presence and hadn't opened his mouth to tell her how he felt about it. He had always meant to do so, but he was shy. Never in his maddest dreams had he pictured any other girl wearing orange blossoms and a tulle veil for him. And now—

If it had been any other man than Jenkins! But he was honest enough to admit that he would have been just as enraged and upset no matter who had been his lucky rival.

Ellithorpe rushed his dinner away without a look at the tempting chop and left the club. He wanted to walk to think about—what a fool he had been, for instance. He might have known others admired her as well as himself. What a conceited chap he had been to fancy it didn't matter when he spoke! There were always plenty of callers hovering about Rose, but he had been so wrapped up in his own liking for her he had not thought about anything else. Now he was well paid for it.

Where on earth would he spend joyful evenings now? For he never could sit in the same room with the successful Jenkins without straining him, he was grimly certain. And Rose wouldn't care to have him call now that she had picked out Jenkins. Ellithorpe groaned aloud.

Suddenly an overpowering desire to see her again, to view her in the light of this stupendous change, came over him and he boarded a car. It was quite right he should call and offer his congratulations, he told himself miserably. All the way out there he was rehearsing different ways of doing this without giving her a hint of the anguish in his soul, for he had resolved never to let her know.

When he reached her street he had not decided whether to begin the conversation in a calm and everyday manner, gradually leading up in an incidental way to the news of her engagement as though he merely remembered to speak of it along with other pleasant news, or whether, in a sprightly and jesting manner, to plunge into the subject at once. He rather inclined toward the former, as more likely to give Rose's vanity a letting down and to show her if she had any lingering suspicions as to his caring deeply for her that she was wholly mistaken.

The maid had ushered him into the Burlingame library and at sight of the familiar room his heart dropped several more notches. Decidedly he would choose the first way; maybe he would even apparently forget to mention her engagement till he was ready to go home, just as though it had nearly slipped his memory.

"Good evening, Dick," she said just behind him. Ellithorpe sprang to his feet. She was looking perfectly natural, happy and placid, not at all important as he had fancied she would, and she walked over to a settee and sat down as though nothing had happened.

Ellithorpe's eyes blurred and he realized to his horror that he couldn't follow out his programme "I can't believe it, Rose," he heard himself saying, huskily.

"Believe what?" she asked in surprise, which grew as she noted his tragic attitude.

"This," said Ellithorpe dramatically, taking out the newspaper folded at the fatal notice and handing it to her. As the girl scanned it her face turned crimson. There was a sparkle of wrath in her eyes.

"How perfectly horrible!" she cried, vehemently. "It's a mistake. I can't imagine who put it in. And Dovie Jenkins of all people! As though I—why, I never heard of such a thing!"

"You aren't engaged to him?" Ellithorpe shouted.

"I should say not!" said Rose decidedly.

It was then Ellithorpe found his wife and his voice.—Chicago News.

Five Millions for a Tomb. The Empress Dowager of China is feeling the weight of her years, and is anxious to have her last resting place made ready before she is "deified to become a guest of heaven."

Something like one million pounds has already been spent on the proposed mausoleum, west of Peking, designated "the happy land of a married years."—North China Herald, Shanghai.

Death of Glass Snake. A glass snake owned by E. V. Windsor, of Barnet, England, recently died after a continuous fast of 387 days. The last time the snake was fed was on June 1, 1904, when it ate a small frog. From that time until its death, on February 2, 1905, although repeatedly offered food, it ate nothing. Until a week before death it appeared in good health and was at times lively. The body showed no signs of emaciation.

It is wonderful what a comfortable doctrine the survival of the fittest is to those who survive.

Are You Tired, Nervous and Sleepless?

Nervousness and sleeplessness are usually due to the fact that the nerves are not fed on properly nourished blood; they are starved nerves. Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery makes pure, rich blood, and thereby the nerves are properly nourished and all the organs of the body are run as smoothly as machinery which runs in oil. In this way you feel clean, strong and vigorous—you are toned up and invigorated, and you are good for a whole lot of physical or mental work. Best of all, the strength and increase in vitality and health are lasting.

The trouble with most tonics and medicines which have a large, booming sale for a short time, is that they are largely composed of alcohol holding the drugs in solution. This alcohol shrinks up the red blood corpuscles, and in the long run greatly injures the system. One may feel exhilarated and better for the time being, yet in the end weakened and with vitality decreased. Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery contains no alcohol. Every bottle of it bears upon its wrapper The Badge of Honesty, in a full list of all its several ingredients. For the druggist to offer you something he claims is "just as good" is to insult your intelligence.

Every ingredient entering into the world-famous "Golden Medical Discovery" has the unanimous approval and endorsement of the leading medical authorities. All the several schools of practice, no other medicine sold through druggists for like purposes has any such endorsement. The "Golden Medical Discovery" not only produces all the good effects to be obtained from the use of Golden Seal root, in all stomach, liver and bowel troubles, as in dyspepsia, indigestion, constipation, ulceration of stomach and bowels and kindred ailments, but the Golden Seal root used in its compound is greatly enhanced in its curative action by other ingredients such as Stone root, Black Cherrybark, Bloodroot, Mandrake root and chemically pure triple-refined glycerine.

"The Common Sense Medical Adviser," is sent free in paper covers on receipt of 10 cent stamps to pay the cost of mailing only. For 31 stamps the cloth-bound volume will be sent. Address Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y.
