WOMAN, ONCE WEALTHY, DISCLAIMED BY RELATIVES.

Papers Found In Trunk After Death Disclose Fact That Mrs. Simonson Had Been Swindled Out Of Comfortable Fortune.

Mrs. Katharine Simonson, aged 76 years, died of general debility at the Peninsula General early Sunday morning. Mrs. Simonson came to Salisbury some time ago and was admitted to the hospital when she had no other place to go.

After her death a trunk which she carried with her was opened and the contents examined by the officials of the hospital. In the trunk were letters from an attorney of Jersey City, N. J., showing that at one time Mrs.
Simonson had been quite wealthy.
After corresponding with the New Jersey attorney, however, the hospital authorities learned that the old lady had been swindled out of all of her possessions by a young lawyer who is now a refugee from justice. There was also some valuable jewelry in the trunk.

Since she came to this section Mrs.
Simonson's life has been more or less mysterious. Her relatives seemed to take no interest in her, and a nephew who lives at Crisfield, Md., when notified of her death made the statement that he didn't care to have anything to do with her. Her remains were interred in this city Monday.

Doings Of The Council.

Permits to build were granted as follows: To Elmer D. Bailey, residence on West William Street, adjoining the property of E. A. Toad vine; to Austin J. Pusey, dwelling on Smith Street.

Clerk was instructed to send out bills to all property owners on Park Street requesting to pay their assessments for curbing and guttering of said street.

The City Solicitor was instructed to prepare an ordinance for curbing and guttering Isabella Street from Division Street to West Railroad Avenue; also William Street from Division St. to Poplar Hill Avenue.

The Clerk was instructed to notify the property owners on Broad Street to lay cement sidewalks on both sides, within 30 days from date of serving of notice.

NOTED SPEAKERS WILL ADDRESS FARMERS' MEETING.

Next Wednesday Will Be A Gala Day In Salisbury. Governor Crothers And Staff Will Attend In Full Uniform—The Progr m.

Unless something unlooked for happens, next Wednesday, September 7th, will be the greatest day in the history of Salisbury. Never before have such complete arrangements been made to entertain visitors in this city, but then it is doubtful if ever such distinguished guests have visited this city and it is for this reason that the Farmers' Meeting to be held on the grounds of the Wicomico Fair Association next Wednesday promises to be a red letter day in Wicomico County.

While there will be addresses by speakers of national prominence on every branch of farming, good roads and kindred subjects, the gathering is to be in the nature of an all-day basket pic-nic, and a cordial invitation is extended to every one by the Farmers Commission of Maryland, under whose auspices the big meeting will be held.
Because of the noted speakers who will be present, the benefit to be derived by farmers particularly is beyond calculation, and in addition to this the meeting is given in furtherance of the Back-to-the-Farm movement in this State. The speaking is to be interspersed with delightful music furnished by one of the most noted bands of Baltimore, and Prof.
Thomas F. McNulty, Maryland's noted singer, will be present and render some excellent selections.

For Direct Legislation.

The Direct Legislation League of Maryland is sending out printed matter in furtherance of the movement in this State. The idea is to secure an Initiative and Referendum for Maryland. The Initiative provides that a proportion of voters can propose laws and submit them directly to the people at each election. The Referendum allows the people to veto any legislation passed by the council or legislature. It has been made a part of the organic law of six states and its adoption is now a live issue in about half of the remaining states in the union. A large number of the big cities have adopted the Initiative and Referendum.

Marriage Licenses.

The following licenses to marry were issued during the week by Clerk of the Court, Ernest A. Tinsdale:

co county.

son 29, and Eva O. Marriner 21, Worcester county.

pin 23, and Mary Bailey 27, Wicomico county.

REV. T. E. MARTINDALE ADDRESSES BIG MEETING.

Speaks By Special Request At Revival Services Being Held At Ocean Grove—Will Preach Here
As Usual Sunday.

Rev. T. E. Martindale, D. D., who has been assisting with the great platform meeting at Ocean Grove, N. J., expects to return to this city today and there will be services as usual in Asbury M. E. Church, of which he is pastor. Dr. Martindale, by the special request of Bishop Wilson who is in charge of the Ocean Grove Evangelistic meetings, addressed an audience of ten thousand people Sunday night. He said that God does not like uncleanness of any kind; that He registered His opinion in nature by creating amazing forces for purification. The sun, solar forces, cataracts, are all disinfectants; showers wash the city and town; the ocean is God's great laboratory; the storms and cyclones are the angels of God's white covenant, Dr. Martindale said.
"The Bible is for purity and against all uncleanness and impurity. What God and the Bible do not love men are also beginning to hate. We are doing away with adulterants in our foods and medicines, sterilizing our surgical instruments, driving out germs. Everywhere in the lower aspects is the cry for purity. Science says we must keep things pure to maintain them.

"Purity is the problem here tonight—moral and spiritual purity. Is there any relief? Yes; and it is not an intermittent remedy. It is always ready and always effective."

With The Commissioners

Daniel Parker, G. E. Jackson and others were before the board to ask that the board furnish shells to extend the work on the road from Pittsville to Powellville. The board stated that they could not promise definitely what they could do, as they were not yet in a position to say what quantity of shells could be obtained.

The board took up the report of the commission appointed to widen and straighten the road from E. T.
Jones to Whitton. Objection was made by Jno. T. Jones; action deferred.

The report of the commission on the section of road from Willards to J. J.
Layton's property, made by G. E.
Jackson, Jno. L. Powell and Warner L. Baker, was ratified.

The board ordered ratification notice of report on tax ditch in Dennis District made by G. E. Jackson, G.
W. Adkins and W. H. Brittingham.

Purchased By Salisburyans.

The Seaford planing mill, formerly owned and operated by L. W. Hurley & Son, has been purchased by Wm.
M. Day, Whitefield S. Lowe, Charles E. Day and Archibald Russell, all of Salisbury, who assumed control last Monday.

The new Company has been incorporated under the laws of the State of Delaware with a capital stock of $25,000.00. The officers are: President W. S. Lowe; Secretary and Treasurer, Charles E. Day; Superintendent, A.
Russell. The name of the new corporation is the Seaford Planing Mill Co.

This plant, which is equipped to turn out all kinds of building material, is located directly on the Nantiooke River, with a water front of 500 feet, and has always enjoyed a fine trade. The new company proposes to add more machinery so as to greatly increase the output of the factory.

Drowned At Ocean City.

Thaul Rownds, of Snow Hill, was drowned while bathing in the surf at Ocean City Tuesday afternoon. He was a waiter at the Mt. Pleasant Hotel and after dinner, with several others, went in bathing. The surf had been very rough for the past week and the current was running very strong.

Others in bathing at the time tried to get to the drowning man, but on account of the fast running current they could do nothing for him. The water was only about four feet deep where he went down. He was 26 years old and single.

MARYLAND HAPPENINGS.

Boys In The Counties—News Items Of Interest To The People All Over The State.

Impure blood runs you down—makes you an easy victim for organic diseases. Burdock Blood Bitters purifies the blood—cures the cause—builds you up.

Fruit Trees.

When moss is seen on fruit trees it may be taken as evidence of lack of thrift in the trees.

"Doan's Ointment cured me of eczema that had annoyed me a long time. The cure was permanent."—Hon. S.W. Matthews, Commissioner Labor Statistics, Augusta, Me.

Women and Food.

Women need on the average about nine-tenths the nourishment required by men.

Regulates the bowels, promotes easy natural movements, cures constipation. Doan's Regulator. Ask your druggist for them. 25c a box.

Coconut Pickers.

Coconut pickers in Trinidad get 90 cents per 1,000, or more if the trees are very tall.

Baby won't suffer five minutes with croup if you apply Dr. Thomas' Eucalypti Oil at once. It acts like magic.

He Wouldn't Stay Bought.

A guest was expected for dinner, and Bobby had received 5 cents as the price of his silence during the meal. He was as quiet as a mouse until, discovering that his favorite dessert was being served, he could no longer curb his enthusiasm. He drew the coin from his pocket and, rolling it across the table, exclaimed: "Here's your nickel, mamma. I'd rather talk."—Success Magazine.

A Man Of Iron Nerve.

Indomitable will and tremendous energy are never found where Stomach, Liver, Kidneys and Bowels are out of order. If you want these qualities and the success they bring, use Dr. King's New Life Pills, the matchless regulators, for keen brain and strong body. 15c at all druggists.

A Correction.

The habit of contradicting sometimes "overleaps itself" unwittingly.

"I've heard it said," remarked a loungee at the crossroads store, "that John Henderson over by Woodville was one of eighteen sons."

"That's what you heard wrong," contributed the chronic kicker. "It wasn't John Henderson at all. 'Twas a brother o' his'n."—Lippincott's.

It Saved His Leg.

"All thought I'd lose my leg," writes J. A. Swenson, of Watertown, Wis. "Ten years of eczema, that 15 doctors could not cure, had at last laid me up. Then Bucklen's Arnica Salve cured it, sound and well." Infallible for Skin Eruptions, Eczema, Salt Rheum, Boils, Fever Sores, Burns, Scalds, Cuts and Piles. 25c at all druggists.

Brass.

Brass is an alloy of tin and copper, and analysis of the earliest existing specimens demonstrates that it was formerly manufactured in the proportions of one part of tin to nine of copper. A notice in Genesis fixes the discovery and use of both these metals, according to the Bible, at between 4,000 and 1,000 years before the Christian era.

Don't Break Down.

Severe strains on the vital organs, like strains on machinery, cause breakdowns. You can't over-tax stomach, liver, kidneys, bowels or nerves without serious danger to yourself. If you are weak or run down, or under strain of any kind, take Electric Bitters, the matchless, tonic medicine. Mrs. J. B. Van de Sande, of Kirkland, Ill., writes: "That I did not break down, while enduring a most severe strain, for three months, is due wholly to Electric Bitters. Use them and enjoy health and strength. Satisfaction positively guaranteed. 50c at all druggists."

A Reunion Task.

The two old friends met after a separation of ten years. "I declare, you have kept your youthful looks to a surprising extent," said one.

"Thank you," said the other man. "You've done pretty well too. You know you expected to be absolutely bald long before this, like your father. Instead of which I really believe you have as much hair left as I have, if not more."

"Absurd!" said his friend. "It can't be. Let's count it!"—Youth's Companion.

The Lash of a Friend.

Would have been about as welcome to A. Cooper, of Oswego, N. Y., as a merciless lung-racking cough that defied all remedies for years. "It was most troublesome at night," he writes, "nothing helped me till I used Dr. King's New Discovery which cured me completely. I never cough at night now." Millions know its matchless merit for stubborn colds, obstinate coughs, sore lungs, legittips, asthma, hemorrhagic croup, whooping cough or croup. It relieves quickly and never fails to satisfy. A trial convinces. 50c, $1.00. Trial bottle free. It's positively guaranteed by all druggists.

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON.

Subject for Tomorrow, "Two Parables of Judgment." Also Discussed By A Local Writer.

GOLDEN TEXT:—"Therefore say I unto you, The Kingdom of God shall be taken from you."

After the incidents of our last lesson Jesus went to Bethany, from which place He returned to the city upon the following day. His entrance into the city, welcomed by the masses, the cleansing of the temple, and the healing of many, aroused the leaders of the people in the temple, so when Jesus appeared, the second day they questioned his authority. His teachings were not questioned so much as his acts. The people found solace in His teaching, but the open act against the orthodox way of doing things produced conflict, and they said, "By what authority do you do these things?" We can also note that the charges brought against Jesus from this time on are of this nature. Jesus, in reply, asked a question as to John's authority, whence was it, of heaven or of men? They knew that John was accredited a prophet, and they dared not, because of the people, gainsay it. Then to admit it at once admitted Christ's Messiahship, as foretold by John, so they evaded answering, and said that they knew not. Then said Christ, "Neither will I tell you of my authority," and they could not lay hold of Him on account of the people.

This action called forth judgment from Christ, as spoken in two parables. Two husbandmen are depicted in the parables, but very different are the circumstances from those of the sower and the laborers in the vineyard which were expressive of love and reward, while these are expressive of judgment, a close searching of the consciences of the leaders.

First was the parable of the two sons, one flatly refusing, and later doing what the father requested, the other promised to do, and later failing to comply.

This is easy of application. The first son represents the publican and sinner flatly refused. They were frank and open in the matter, but frankness to wrong doing is no excuse or commendation for disobedience, but the subsequent repentance of disobedience and conversion to good work is approved. The second son was amiable and respectful in outward bearing, but subsequently proved deceitful and disobedient.

The dispositions in these cases were different, and the disposition of either is neither condemned nor commended, but emphasis is laid upon duty. The outcome in obedient duty is commended, disposition must ripen into duty. This was applicable to the scribes and elders, and Jesus asked which of the two did the will of the father. There was but one answer and Jesus made the application, and rendered judgement.

The parable of the wicked husbandmen deals with the same subject. The householder is God, the vineyard represents the special privileges given to the Jewish people, for which they were to render account. The husbandmen are the Jewish leaders, teachers, and people as a whole, the servants of the householder are the prophets who came from time to time as God's representatives, and the son and heir is Christ. The conduct, as outlined, presents the action of the people, and thus the subject is forced to a final application.

This, to us, presents the fact that in our relation to God, privileges are granted to us, and we are responsible for them. We must give something for what we receive. The idea that we are not responsible to any higher power is erroneous. Privileges carry with them obligation, and we must answer for them. Again, privileges misused or rejected work to our detriment.

To know the Messiah and accept Him was the privilege of the Jews. Christ was the rejected stone. Many were injured by it, some on account of lowly estate, meekness, and apparent poverty were offered, the Christ did not appeal to them and they stumbled, a passive act, simply a failure to believe or accept.

Another class opposed, strove against the stone, and sought to destroy it, a determined hostility ending in final rejection. When God's law moves in judgment there is ruin of the rejecting soul, for the stone has fallen upon it.

Though the mills of God grind slowly, Yet they grind exceedingly small; Though with patience He stands waiting, With exactness grinds He all."

So, is the kingdom of God taken away from those who refuse opportunity, and in disobedience refuse to do righteousness.

Wanted:—Man to accept the Messiah and build up the kingdom of heaven. C. B.

In the Good Old Days.

"Ain't no hitting these days. Back in 1898 I played on a team that made seventeen runs in one game."

"We got that many occasionally nowadays." "These were home runs. I ain't counting other runs."—Hobson Post.

KEEP THE KIDNEYS WELL.

Health Is Worth Saving, And Some Salisbury People Know How To Save It.

Many Salisbury people take their lives in their hands by neglecting the kidneys when they know these organs need help. Sick kidneys are responsible for a vast amount of suffering and ill health, but there is no need to suffer nor to remain in danger when all diseases and aches and pains due to weak kidneys can be quickly and permanently cured by the use of Doan's Kidney Pills. Here is a Salisbury citizen's recommendation.

Mrs. John L. Baker, 313 Baker Street, Salisbury, Md., says: "A year or so ago I procured Doan's Kidney Pills at White & Leonard's Drug Store and after taking them a short time, I found relief from kidney complaint. I had been bothered a great deal by a lame back and a heavy, bearing-down sensation through my hips. No matter what I took, this misery clung to me and I was also bothered when I arose in the morning by a stiffness across my loins. I at last procured Doan's Kidney Pills at White & Leonard's Drug Store and in return, for the benefit they brought me, I consider them worthy of my endorsement."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, New York, sole agents for the United States.

Remember the name—Doan's—and take no other.

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials.

The Hurry Habit.

"The most exasperating citizen I encounter," says the retired professor, "is the chap who's always excusing himself for his neglect of you on the ground that he's too busy to pause a second. His days and nights are so full, the demands upon his time are so many and so urgent, that you must forgive him if he appears rude. You're willing to forgive him for anything if he'll only forget to apologize. There are thousands of such citizens, buzzing like tops, trotting around a circle as big as a silver dollar and getting from $15 to $20 a week out of life—if they have luck—while their deliberate neighbor next door'll sit down and think a few minutes and earn $100,000 a year."—Duluth Herald.

A Question of Ownership.

"Are you the man who advertises 'Own your own home'?" said the dejected looking caller.

"I am," answered the real estate dealer.

"Well, I'd like to get the recipe."

"The what?" "The recipe—the modus operandi. I want to know what to do to own my own home. Our cook has a temper like a raging lion and muscles like Hercules. If you can, tell me how to dispose her. Money's no object."—Washington Star.

A Cow's Milk.

Four hundred gallons of milk a year is about the average yield of a healthy cow.

Advice.

"Doctor," cried little Bingle over his telephone, "my wife has lost her voice. What the dickens shall I do?"

"Why," said the doctor gravely, "if I were you I'd remember the fact when Thanksgiving day comes around and act accordingly."

Whereupon the doctor chuckled as he charged little Bingle $2 for professional services.—Harper's Weekly.

Dr. Johnson's Fruit Appetite.

No man ever welcomed the return of the fruit season more heartily than did Dr. Johnson. Of strawberries and cream he declared that he could never have enough, though in his later years he devoured enormous quantities of them. A voracious eater at any time, Johnson's appetite for fruit was limitless. Mrs. Thrane says that he used to eat seven or eight peaches before he began his breakfast. Lucy Porter, at Litchfield, used always to keep the best roseberries on the bushes in her garden until Johnson came down to pick them.

His Composition.

"George, what is this Rockefeller foundation made of?" "Rocka, of course."—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

A Hopeless Case.

Winks—Nukes never sees the point of a joke. Blanks—No; he is usually the butt of it.—New York Herald.

Feeling Her Husband.

That there are more ways than one of "killing" a cat is a well known fact, but the newest of ways has been evolved from the fertile brain of a German woman who is blessed with a very handy husband. This husband is generous enough in one sense of the word. His wife may have the best of the stores afford charged to his account, but she may handle no money. Women in this man's opinion, know nothing of the value of a dollar. On leaving for his office in the morning he kisses her goodby and thrusts a quarter's worth of trolley tickets into her hand.

Now, mindy goes shopping, buys a few necessities and a fifty dollar wrap for which she has no use whatever. Next day she returns the latter, receives a credit slip for $50 and betakes herself to the handkerchief counter, where she spends 50 cents, receiving $49.50 change. Placing some small change in her purse and stowing the roll of greenbacks in what she considers a safer receptacle, she leaves the shop feeling that she has made the best of a bad bargain.—Philadelphia Record.

A Bald Fact.

It is common to deplore the lack of humor in a person. Yet the very want of wit may save a certain amount of embarrassment, as was the case on a certain occasion with President Johnson. "He was one day," says a writer in Harper's Magazine, "visiting my mother, and a friend, Mrs. Knox, a widow, came in. She had known Mr. Johnson some years before, when he was a member of the legislature, but they had not met since then."

"After mutual recognition Mr. Johnson said: 'How is Mr. Knox? I have not seen him lately.'"

"He has been dead six years," said Mrs. Knox.

"I thought I hadn't seen him on the street," said Mr. Johnson.

"When Mrs. Knox left my mother said, laughing, 'That was a funny mistake of yours about Mr. Knox.'"

"What mistake did I make?" said Johnson. "I said I hadn't seen him on the street, and I hadn't."

Owning Your Home.

"I have always felt that upon properly appointed and becoming dwellings depends more than anything else the improvement of mankind," said Benjamin Disraeli (Earl of Beaconsfield). To sit in the evening in your comfortable armchair, to look around you and know that everything you see there is your very own and that you have obtained it all so that you practically do not feel the cost; to know also that if you, the breadwinner, were suddenly called away your home would still be your wife's or your family's—that is one of the pleasures of life, indeed. It is a pleasure which gives you new heart to your work in the world. It sends you out every morning determined to get on and to earn more money, and because of that very determination you do become worth more money.—New York Press.

A Handy Snuffbox.

A curious story is told as to how the Rothschilds supported Carafa, the composer. The latter was far from rich. His principal income was derived from a snuffbox. And this was the way of it: The snuffbox was given to the author of "La Prison d'Edimbourg" by Baron James de Rothschild as a token of esteem. Carafa sold it twenty-four hours later for 75 napoleons to the same jeweler from whom it had been bought. This became known to Rothschild, who gave it again to the musician on the following year. The next day it returned to the jeweler. The traffic continued till the death of the banker and longer still, for his sons kept up the tradition, to the great satisfaction of Carafa.

Little Else.

A London attorney named Else, rather diminutive in his stature and not particularly respectable in his character, once met Jekyll. "Sir," said he, "I hear you have called me a pettifogging scoundrel. Have you done so, sir?"

"Sir," said Jekyll, with a look of contempt, "I never said you were a pettifogger or a scoundrel, but I said you were 'little Else.'"—Westminster Gazette.

They Felt Hungry.

She—Well, Clarence, dear, the situation is not quite as rosy as it was pictured to us before marriage, is it? He—Well, not all together so, love. She—I wish—er—I wish—He—What do you wish, dearest? She—I wish we had the rice and the old shoes they throw at us when we were married.

He Lumped It.

"My coffee is not quite sweet enough," remarked he. "Well, if you don't like it, I suppose you'll have to lump it," said she, with a smile, passing the loaf sugar his way.

Fixed For The Future.

Friend—Haven't you named the baby yet?

Proud Mother—No; we must be very careful to give him a nice one, because there will be so many named after him when he is president.

What Did He Mean?

Mrs. H.—I see there's a man in France who has murdered three of his wives in succession. I'd like to see the man who would murder me.

Mrs. H.—So would I, my dear. "Bless every wife with another's joy and having the excellence it cannot reach."—Thomson.

Where the Weather is Hot.

Bahrien, on the Persian gulf, is said to be one of the hottest places on earth. For six consecutive weeks there the thermometer has been known to stay above 100 in the shade. It varies the monotonous, however, by occasional climbs to 125 degrees or so. There is no rainfall, and no wells exist, for attempts to reach water even at a depth of 500 feet have failed. However, in the bed of the ocean, a mile from shore, copious springs of fresh water gush out. This water is caught and brought to land in goatskin bags by active divers, who sell their merchandise at good prices. These submarine fountains are said to be supplied from a mountain 600 miles away.

When the Japanese Advertise.

The Japanese have an original way of advertising, and they apply to the art all the poetry that their oriental imagination is capable of. They have recourse to the most varied and improvised methods, and their combinations are sometimes as picturesque as they are original. A Japanese merchant informs his customers that his goods are sent off with the rapidity of a shot. A stationer calls his knowledge of natural history to his aid thus: "Our wonderful paper is as durable as the hide of an elephant." A Tokyo grocer borrows from psychology and in mordant language announces that "our vinegar of extra quality is sharper than the bitterness of the most diabolical of mothers-in-law."

Golf Defined.

On the terrace of a country club overlooking a green dotted with sheep, a group of nongolfers were taking tea. A male nongolfer, who took his tea through a straw, said thoughtfully: "Golf might be defined as billiards gone to grass."

"Spleen on the green, I'd call it," said a female nongolfer.

"Or the last flicker in the dying fire of athletics," sneered a young football player.

"The misuse of land and language," suggested a tennis champion.

"No, no; you're all wrong," said a famous angler. "Golf is simply a game wherein the ball lies badly and the player well."—Washington Post.

THE HAIR THAT SHE WORE.

A Hirsute Tragedy in the House That Jack Built.

THIS is the hair that nature grew. This is the rat that was pinned to the hair that nature grew. This is the switch, antiseptically boiled, that about the rat was artistically coiled, that was pinned to the hair that nature grew.

This is the front that was frizzled and fluffed, that 'mongst nature's hair was skillfully stuffed, just next to the switch antiseptically boiled, that about the rat was artistically coiled, that was pinned to the hair that nature grew.

These are the puffs, just one dozen strong, made of near hair that's thick, thin, short and long, that are piled on the front that was frizzled and fluffed, that 'mongst nature's hair was skillfully stuffed, just next to the switch antiseptically boiled, that about the rat was artistically coiled, that was pinned to the hair that nature grew.

These are the fancy combs, pins and barrettes that a lady with much hair invariably gets, that are stuck in the puffs just one dozen strong, made of near hair that's thick, thin, short and long, that are piled on the front that was frizzled and fluffed, that 'mongst nature's hair was skillfully stuffed, just next to the switch antiseptically boiled, that about the rat was artistically coiled, that was pinned to the hair that nature grew.

This is the hat, many feet round its brim, that this hirsute tower did ponderously trim, that surmounted the fancy combs, pins and barrettes that a lady with much hair invariably gets, that are stuck in the puffs just one dozen strong, made of near hair that's thick, thin, short and long, that are piled on the front that was frizzled and fluffed, that 'mongst nature's hair was skillfully stuffed, just next to the switch antiseptically boiled, that about the rat was artistically coiled, that was pinned to the hair that nature grew.

This is the grave of the lady whose pride made her so heavy topped that she lay down and died, who wore the big hat, many feet round its brim, that this hirsute tower did ponderously trim, that surmounted the fancy combs, pins and barrettes that a lady with much hair invariably gets, that are stuck in the puffs just one dozen strong, made of near hair that's thick, thin, short and long, that are piled on the front that was frizzled and fluffed, that 'mongst nature's hair was skillfully stuffed, just next to the switch antiseptically boiled, that about the rat was artistically coiled, that was pinned to the hair that nature grew.

One little girl wrote as one of her reasons:

"Shylock hated Antonio because he was a Republican."

My Big Bird

It Flies Above Savages and Fills Them With Terror.

By F. A. MITCHELL.

Copyright, 1910, by American Press Association.

Having worked a couple of years on an improvement for a flying machine, keeping my models securely locked in my barn that my devices might not be stolen by other airplane inventors, and having perfected them, I desired to try them. Not having confidence either in my fellow inventors or the practicability of patents I determined to take my airship to some unexplored country, attach my new machinery and make the necessary tests where, if they were successful, I alone would know about it. From San Francisco I shipped on board a vessel bound for a certain island in the Pacific ocean, and after a few weeks' voyage landed where I might experiment to my heart's content without fear of losing the benefit of my inventions.

I brought with me such modern contrivances as might be useful to me and some that would enable me to conciliate the natives among other things. I had a phonograph machine, toy gyroscopes, an electric hand lamp, a fieldglass and some fireworks.

Having at my request been put ashore at a point where there was no human being to be seen, I spent the first day putting together the parts of my airplane and equipping it. My fuel oils, etc., I placed under a projecting rock, storing also my belongings, including meat and drink. That night I slept under the ledge mentioned, and the next morning wheeling my machine on to a declivity by which I expected to get my start I took my seat, let go, rolled down the incline and began to rise.

Having attained a height of 1,000 feet, I devoted myself for a few hours to my improvements to the exclusion of all other surroundings and had the satisfaction to find that without exception they worked beautifully. That which I set most store by, a "brake," acted to a charm. Perhaps such an implement worked in so thin a medium as the air may not be considered practicable in any form. This is not so. I produced an attachment that stopped my machine within four lengths. Another matter I had attended to was one for keeping the machine on keel. I had observed the maintenance of a fixed plane of revolution by the gyroscope and applied the principle to mine.

One thing I did that no other airplane constructor has ever done. I made it look like a bird. I used a single plane on each side shaped like a gull's wings, thus giving my machine the semblance of a bird. Fancy, then, suggested a pasteboard beak and the painting of the whole in varied colors. Having satisfied myself that my inventions were each and every one a success, I permitted myself to look beneath me. My eye at once struck large numbers of the natives of the island running about in wild commotion. By those looking up at me I could discern the cause. Evidently the bird monster was at the bottom of their excitement. Some of them were scampering away as fast as their legs would carry them, others were hiding in caves and under rocks, while some were vigorously digging holes to bury themselves in.

Thinking to take others unawares, I rose higher and sped over a matter of twenty miles. Seeing a number of natives about a fire, smoking, I watched them. I could see that some were bound, while others were heaping fuel on the fire. Feeling sure that cannibals were about to make a feast upon human beings, I drew near enough for them to discover my presence above them. They seemed to be paralyzed with astonishment. Sinking to a point about fifty feet above them, I shouted to them to unbind their prisoners. Not understanding my language, they were all the more frightened. I seized my phonograph and, pointing the horn at them, turned on the whoops of American Indians. Hearing such sounds from the throat of an enormous bird seemed to put vigor into their legs, and they ran in every direction.

Descending, I unbound the prisoners, who as soon as their limbs were loosed dropped on their knees before me and buried their faces in the dirt. I raised several of them, desiring to communicate with them, and in order to invite their confidence, gave them some trinkets. Then I took my phonograph from my airplane and set it going with a dark song. One of the natives pointed to himself, then to the phonograph, as much as to say, "There is a man in there." Going to the box, he looked down the horn to see him, then put his finger in, drawing it quickly out to prevent its being clutched. Not seeing or feeling anything, he looked at me and put his hand within a few inches of the ground to denote the height of the pygmy supposed to be in the box.

Having amused the simple creatures for a while with the phonograph, I took up a toy gyroscope and set the wheel going. This to them was far more wonderful than making a man sing in a box. They could conceive of a mite of a man being in the box, but they could not conceive of a wheel revolving with but one axis, supported at any angle I chose to put it. Every one of them dropped on their knees before me, and by the motion of their arms I knew they were worshipping me. I tried to stop them, but, finding it impossible to do so, I gave up the idea and, dragging my airplane to a slope favorable to getting a start, flew over their heads and flew away. Some of them gazed after me in wonder, while others kept their faces on the ground.

I circled about, the wonder of various groups of natives. Finally I discerned two lines of men engaged in combat. They were an intent on killing one another that they did not see me till I was nearly over them. Then one after another looked up at me, and, forgetting the human enemy in the monster bird, they took to their heels, gradually disappearing as they obtained cover.

It was now beginning to get dark. I sailed over different parties, but too high to attract their attention. Finally, seeing a dozen men tied to stakes, I descended to get a nearer view. They were evidently prisoners taken in battle, who were to be roasted alive and eaten afterward, for under each was a pile of wood, some of which was already lighted, a small flame curling up near their ankles. It was too dark for them to discover me, and the ground was not favorable to alighting, so, taking up a roman candle, I lighted it and bombarded them with the balls. Looking up and seeing the dim substance of a huge bird hovering over them vomiting fire balls, they fell on their faces.

I called to them till they looked up and made signs to them to unbind their prisoners, which they did, and as soon as the last man was loose I drove the would be devourers away at the point of another roman candle. Then I rose, firing rockets as I ascended with a view to striking terror into them, hoping that they would consider themselves forbidden by the god bird from further returning to their captives.

I then returned to where I had left my supplies and after partaking of a supper rolled myself in my blankets under the shelving rock and went to sleep.

The next morning after taking in fuel and oil I sailed away again. By this time some of the natives had got sufficiently accustomed to me to consider me amenable to attack and made attempts to bring me down. Suddenly while making some adjustments, which took my attention a great stone passed within a few feet of my airplane. Looking down, I saw a tribe who were working a machine that looked like a Roman catapult. They were directly beneath me and about to throw another stone. If it hit me it would break my airplane. Not daring to risk taking time to rise out of range, I picked up a stick of dynamite and dropped it on them. I saw dust, smoke and fragments, and after the two first had cleared away looked for the natives and their catapult. Where they had stood was a capacious hole in the ground.

Observing a native village beneath me, I determined to descend among them and remain with them till they had got used to me in order that I might commune with them. When yet some distance away I could see them standing together watching my approach. The first evidence of their solicitude was when I came near them and began to descend. Then they all ran away. But when I had alighted I waited patiently till they should come back. Presently I saw heads peeping at me through the long grass. The children came first, the women next and last the men. I worked with them some time in order to establish communication, showing them my wonders. Rigging a telephone, I told a man to go some distance away and I would make his wife talk to him. Having arranged matters for him, I placed a receiver at his ear and, going back to the woman, motioned her to talk through the transmitter. At the first words spoken the man dropped the receiver and looked about him as though he expected to see his wife near him.

Then I established a wireless and placed a man between the two extremes. He could hear the clicking at both, one in keeping with the other. He looked about for some connection, but, finding none, ran away from me and the machine.

To cap the climax I took a little child from its mother's arms and set it beside me in the machine. The mother was frantic, though by signs I endeavored to make her understand that I would bring her child back safely. I think she believed I was a supernatural being and was about to fly up to heaven with the little one. No one dared oppose me, and, rising in the air, I flew away. When ten minutes later I returned and placed the babe in its mother's arms she fainted for joy. Then I was sure she had expected not to see it again.

Confident as to the safety and docility of my mammoth bird having been established, I was besieged with requests for a ride in the clouds. But it would have been impossible to choose between the applicants, so I was obliged to refuse them all.

Returning to my landing point on the coast, I picked up what I desired to take away with me, then rising, looked out for a ship. Seeing one some forty miles distant, I flew for it. It happened to be an American steamer, and the captain called to me, inviting me to alight. I made a safe descent on to the roughest part of the deck and at once covered my recently tried device.

I am now waiting the result of applications. I have made for patients and so soon as it seems safe to do so will announce inventions to the world which will make aviation as easy as that it has been heretofore.

The Waste Paper Nuisance—A Detriment To The City.

The habit of throwing paper—circulars, posters and dodgers—of all kinds on the streets of this city is being carried to such an excess, especially on Saturday afternoon, as to amount to a common nuisance. The time usually selected for demonstration of this kind is on Saturday when large numbers of people from the surrounding country are in town on various matters of business or pleasure, and the result is that on Saturday evening the principal streets of the city are literally covered with all kinds of trash, including a most liberal supply of banana skins and peanut hulls.
Because Saturday is the last day of the week it is almost impossible for the street cleaning department to remove this filthy litter before the following day, and the consequence is that our streets are frequently, almost invariably, in a worse condition on Sunday than on any other day of the week.

A little more care and thought, exercised by those people who are responsible for this wholesale scattering of trash and litter upon the streets of the town, particularly as the city has no garbage system of any kind, would have the greatest tendency to do away with this nuisance. Even under the most favorable conditions it is hard enough for the city authorities to keep the streets clean, but when they are literally strewn from side to side with all kinds of trash, the task is made doubly difficult.

A little co-operation in the matter of keeping the streets clean on Saturday will cause the city to present a much neater and decidedly more attractive appearance on Sunday.

Another thing which should be given a little attention by the city authorities is the condition of the alleys in the different parts of Salisbury. It seems that the Mayor and Council are constantly on the alert and that the improvement of the principal thoroughfares is the only thing which is given consideration by them.
The improvement of the streets, curbing, draining and laying of cement sidewalks is of course absolutely necessary in many instances, but while this is being done, the alleys and by-ways of the town are being sadly neglected. We may safely state that there is not an alley in town that does not need attention at once.
They are invariably strewn with waste paper, sweepings from the stores, goods boxes and other trash. All of this is allowed to remain for weeks at a time. We believe that the city itself is largely responsible for this condition. About two years ago a garbage system, and it was only a pretense, was abolished by the Mayor and Council, and since then there has been no systematic effort to keep the alleys or even the streets free from disease breeding filth.

There is only one way to terminate the existing condition and that is the institution of a garbage system by the municipal authorities. A little more attention to the health of the community and a little less to the laying of cement side-walks would be appreciated by the tax payers of the city.

Editorial Jottings.

Once more the oyster has become the victim of the annual shell game.

If the West is still picturesque in Colonel Roosevelt's eyes, we wonder if the ex-president is not ditto in in the eyes of the Westerner.

Where is Salisbury's Board of Health, the organization of which was heralded with such vigorous gusto at the beginning of the recent session of the Maryland legislature?

It the popularity of an individual is to be judged by the amount of space he is given in the newspapers, Dr. Crippen is the most prominent American now visiting London.

Commander Peary has offered to sell his ship, the Roosevelt, which was used in his discovery of the North Pole, to the Government. It may be that Dr. Cook, if he could be located, would part with the galoshes with which he climbed Mt. McKinley.

Colonel Roosevelt is still leading the strenuous life. One day this week he delivered five speeches in which he criticised the Supreme Court, found two decisions against the public, scored all kinds of wrong doers and took a fling at the muckrakers. He praised the past and present men who live and work on the ranges made a speech to the legislature of Colorado and ate his meals in a chuck wagon. T. R. is certainly some strenuous.

Prohibition Pic-nic.

There will be a Prohibition Picnic at Fruitland next Thursday Evening, beginning at 6.30. Rev. C. W. Elder-dice, of Caroline County, candidate for Congress, 1st district, will speak and L. F. Messick, assisted by his sister, Mrs. Gilligan, of Ohio will sing.
Passengers from Salisbury can take the 7 o'clock train, returning by the 9.22 train after the speaking. Picnic near the station.

A Historic Spot.

"Uncover your head, Friend De Barn.
We're passing a historic spot."
"How's that?"
"Why, I, even I, while with the Smashup company did stumble for three nights in yon barn."

Why He Let Go.

Roger Cornell tells of an Irish friend of his who fell off a high building.
About twenty feet above the ground the Irishman grabbed a wire and held on for a bit, then let go of it and continued his sudden journey.
"What did you let go of that wire for?" asked a friend in the hospital.
"Sure, I was afraid the doomed wire would break," said Pat.—Louisville Times.

The Secret of It.

He—I wonder why a woman always lets out what she is told?
She—My dear fellow, we women have two views only of a secret.
Either it is not worth keeping or it is too good to keep.—Merry Thought.

The Wherefore.

"That fellow watches the clock a good deal."
"It's excusable in his case," explained the indulgent boss. "He's somewhat deaf and can't hear the whistle."—Washington Herald.

The Partisan

Being Captured, Death Stared Him and His Men in the Face.

By SARAH BRYCE VAUGHAN.
Copyright, 1910, by American Press Association.

During the American civil war there were three different classes of combatants on the southern side—the army, the partisan and the guerrilla. The army and the guerrilla lasted throughout the four years' fight; the partisan was rare except at the beginning of the war, and, though he kept up an irregular warfare to the end, he eventually became an enlisted soldier.

Young Carroll Bates of Tennessee was in the spring of 1862 a leader of one of these partisan bands. He had no commission from the Confederate government, nor were his men enlisted. The consequence was that if captured they were amenable to the same treatment as the guerrillas, which was to be hanged or shot. Bates' command numbered about thirty men, most of them of the better class, and the work they laid out for themselves was the annoyance of the Federal armies. They would interrupt communications, by cutting bridges, tearing up tracks, setting fire to storehouses containing army supplies—indeed, all such work as would harass the enemies of the Confederacy. Their acts would have been legitimate had they been mustered into the service, but as citizens they were engaged in an unlawful warfare.

Bates was of that type of man of whom General N. B. Forrest was the principal. No bridge guard knew when the young partisan would swoop down on them, make them prisoners or drive them away and set fire to the bridge that had been placed in their charge. Wagon trains unless under charge of a large guard, even far in rear of the Federal front, were never safe from capture, and if captured they and the supplies they contained were burned. So bold and so annoying were Bates' men that the general in command of the Federal troops in the district he was constantly raiding sent Captain Coleman with two companies of cavalry to capture or disperse his band.

One evening Bates stopped at the house of a Union farmer and demanded supplies for his men and forage for his horses. The southerners having been supplied had not long left the farm when Captain Coleman and his troops rode up from a different direction. Upon the captain asking for information of Bates' command the farmer said:

"They have just left here. If you are after them you'll find them near here tonight. Bates' girl lives a few miles down the road, and he's sure to go to see her this evening. I'll show you the roads by which you can approach the house from different directions and surround it."

The offer was gladly accepted, and when it was quite dark the farmer sent one of his boys to reconnoiter the partisans. It was learned that the band was bivouacked in the yard of the house of one Colonel Payton, commanding a Confederate regiment in east Tennessee, whose daughter Dolly was engaged to Carroll Bates. About 10 o'clock a hundred Federal cavalrymen, converging, encircled the house and captured the entire band. The men were in the yard, most of them asleep, but Bates was in the house with his fiancée.

At the time of the capture Dolly Payton was begging her lover to obtain a commission from the Confederate government and thus avoid certain death in case of capture. Bates agreed that by doing so he would become a very small part of a large army and could not be as useful as an army man. She was holding up to him the fact that she would experience in case he was captured when they were started by shots without. The door was thrown open, and Captain Coleman stepped in with a drawn revolver in each hand, confronting Bates, around whom the girl had thrown her arms.

Bates, seeing that he was caught, endeavored to unwind Dolly's arms, but she would not. Coleman, touched by the scene, stood waiting, waving back his men who had followed him into the house. Finally Bates unwound the arms that encircled him, and the girl fell to the floor in a faint. Coleman motioned Bates to take her up. He did so and placed her on the sofa on which the two had been sitting. By this time members of the family appeared, took charge of Dolly, and Bates was taken outside. The thirty partisans were in charge of three times their number of Union cavalrymen and escape was hopeless.

The next morning Captain Coleman entered the house and asked for writing material. He desired to send a courier to his general with a report of the capture and to ask for instructions. While he was writing Dolly Payton, white as a cloth, came in.

"What will you do with them?" she asked.

"That is for the general to decide. I know what he will decide. He will order you to shoot them all."

"There was no reply to this."

"And why will he shoot them?" the girl went on, striving to control herself with a view to saving them. "Because they are fighting as citizens and not as soldiers. On this account they must suffer the punishment of those bands of robbers who will murder and pillage our people as well as yours."

The captain was attentive, but he had nothing to say. How could he argue a matter of justice with a girl whose lover he expected to be ordered to shoot in cold blood?

"Guerrillas are monsters," she continued, "and should be shot whenever captured. At least I would not spare a hand to save them. But these boys are gentlemen's sons. They are fighting for a cause which they consider to be just. Their leader, Carroll Bates, comes of one of the oldest families in Tennessee."

"And a brave man," the captain put in.

"Yes, a brave man. Again and again with his handful of men he has ridden many miles in the rear of your lines and attacked guards much larger than his force. His only mistake has been that he is not a soldier in the army. Consider that these boys are full of zeal. They have not stopped to think that they should make war in a certain fashion. They love a life of freedom and dread the restraint of the military service."

"That's the kind for soldiers," added Coleman. "once they are trained."

"When you surprised us tonight what do you suppose I was doing? I was trying to persuade Carroll to take his men into the regular Confederate service. Ever since he has been a partisan leader I have feared this result. When I last saw him I resolved that when he came again I would not cease my efforts with him till I had secured his consent. Had you been an hour later I would have gained it before you arrived."

The girl's able pleading for her lover and his men, whom she never failed to include with him, had its effect on the captain. The strain on his heart was greater than the strain had been on his nerves on any field of battle. He wished that he were the general, that he might grant this girl's request, that he might spare the lives of these boys, some of whom were barely sixteen, many of whom were not twenty-one, and none but a few years past their majority. Doubtless many of them were loved by some girl. A case of boys and girls on the one hand and grim death on the other.

After the girl's last words, seeing that Coleman was thinking, Dolly refrained from speaking. It was a picture—the young man in blue; a girl whose lover's life hung in the balance, watching intently to catch a word of hope from the enemy. Finally Coleman rose:

"Sit here," he said, "and write your request, re-enforced with your argument, and I will send it with my report to the general."

With the light of a newborn hope in her eye Dolly obeyed. What she wrote was not expressed as the captain's report—indeed, it formed a marked contrast with that report—but there was plenty of reason for the request, and Dolly's heart was in her argument. It needed nothing to send it to the heart of the man it was intended for, inasmuch as it was that of a young girl asking for her lover's life.

When she had finished it she arose and handed it to the captain, who, without reading it, placed it in an envelope and, taking it outside, gave it to one of his men, with orders to take it to the general and bring an answer.

It was fifteen miles to camp, and the greater part of the day must be consumed before a reply could be received. Captain Coleman could form no opinion of what the answer would be, except that it would be either an order to shoot every man he had captured at once or that the boon was granted. He knew that the general was a kind hearted man, but he did not know whether he would consider himself at liberty to spare what the law of war condemned or if he saw justice in Dolly Peyton's request whether he would consider that the interests of the Union cause and the army defending it demanded the death of the partisans.

Dolly Peyton remained during the day in care of her mother and others of the family. Coleman, understanding the agony of suspense she suffered, went to Bates and told him that he was permitted to go to his betrothed. Bates thanked him, went to Dolly, but remained only a short while. The strain was great, and she was better able to bear it with her mother.

As the afternoon wore on Dolly, who was becoming uncontrollable, broke away and went to a window, where she could see a bit of road several miles distant. A cavalryman was coming leisurely. He was a machine to carry orders or be shot as the case demanded without knowledge, except that he was doing what was expected of him. Coleman, hearing Dolly wildly calling on the messenger to "Come, for heaven's sake come; I shall die!" mounted his horse and rode out to get the dispatch.

When the captain on his return galloped up to the house Dolly stood on the balcony, her lover beside her, her eyes wild with suspense. He waved the paper over his head to signal "life" instead of "death," and Dolly fell limp into the hands of the man whose life was all the world to her. Then Coleman ordered the captives to be brought up before the house, and he read aloud the general's order:

The request of Miss Dolly Payton that her lover and his men be not executed as guerrillas on condition that they fight no more against the United States except as regularly commissioned or enlisted men in the Confederate army is granted.

Several of the men thus reprieved fainted; a number staggered as if drunk; the rest broke into a wild cheer.

Later the partisans, having been paroled, went in a body to thank the girl who had turned a certain death into life. Then they scattered, most of them going to their homes.

AMERICA CENTER OF TOURMALINES

Gems That Orient Demands In Abundance Here.

MAINE HAS VALUABLE MINES.

Blue Variety of Stone That Chinese Value Above Diamonds Because of Lucky Qualities Also Found in California—Western States Supposed to Have Undiscovered Supplies.

"You saw the account in the papers of the remarkable demand for blue tourmalines in China," said Dr. William H. Choate of Detroit recently, "but do you know that this country is very rich in these gems and that the demand for them in the Orient is so great that the mines here cannot begin to supply the market?"

"To begin with, the Chinese believe that the blue tourmaline brings good luck, health and warns away evil spirits; also the gem is one of the most beautiful in the world, more beautiful, I think, than the rose tourmaline, the green or any other. There are a great many unworked ledges in Maine that are believed to have the gems. The tourmaline lies in a pocket in the ledge surrounded by decayed stone in the form of dust.

Maine's Mines Valuable.

"I have seen tourmalines worth thousands of dollars taken from the mines at Mount Apatite, Auburn, Me., and some of them have gone to decorate the crowns of such rulers as the emperor of Japan, the emperor of China and the petty kings of the Indian states, some of whom are richer than either of the emperors named. One company incorporated under the laws of Maine has mines at Auburn, Minot Corner and near Mechanic Falls.

"Apatite, one of the stones that are mined at these places, has averaged $15.30 a ton in tourmalines and $6 more in feldspar, various ores, beryls, aquamarines, etc. The cost of mining these gems is only $1.50 a ton. The vein is ten feet thick, with flat dip covering three acres, in one of the mines.

"Then there is the wonderful mine at Paris, Me., called Mount Mica, from which a steady stream of gems has come for years and not half of the territory has been scratched yet. I know a young lady in Boston, Miss Eleanor C. Hamlin, relative of the man who was vice president of the United States, who has a necklace which is the envy of all the crowned heads of Europe, and every one of the gems came from a mine owned by her family for a hundred years, situated two miles northeast of the little hilltop town of Paris, in Oxford county, Me., where Hannibal Hamlin was born.

"In the necklace are all the colors that are known to the tourmaline. Yellow, green, white, pink, blue, black and rose are shades that burn and smolder in this remarkable piece of jewelry, and I dare say that few people in America know that such priceless treasures are to be found here.

Western States Unexplored.

"It is my opinion that there are many hidden ledges in the middle and western states that contain equal deposits, but few of them have been discovered. There are mines in California that produce many tourmalines, and they are mostly shipped to China and Japan, where the average price prefers them to diamonds because of their supposed lucky qualities.

"In 1820 two boys who were interested in minerals had been hunting over the hills of northwestern Maine for gold signs. Late one day while they were on their way home they stopped to rest on the land belonging to the father of one of them, Elijah L. Hamlin. There had been a light fall of snow, and a windstorm had uprooted a tree. While they talked one of them saw a green tint in the fresh earth under the roots of the tree, and, looking more carefully, under the impression that it might be a sign of copper, he found a beautiful green tourmaline as large as a man's little finger.

"It was perfect, with the exception of a slight fracture on one end. Digging in the frozen earth, they found several others and took them home. The next spring the Hamlins began mining the gems and have kept at it off and on ever since. It is one of the most valuable gem mines in America."

PRUSSIAN CARS DISINFECTED.

Tube Invented For Quick Work on Railroads.

Disinfection of the coaches of the Prussian state railways has been an annoying the sanitation authorities with the result that the government, recently established a system of steel tubes, boiler riveted, into which coaches may be backed and exteriors and interiors rendered germless through a treatment of formalin.

DENATURED GRAND OPERA.

A protest has been lodged against the gloomy nature of the grand opera featured in the Covent Garden season.—Dispatch From London.

"Les Huguenots"—two people die.
One death in "Rigoletto."
La Traviata leaps from bastion high.
"Lucia" spells sedition.
Consumption wins in "La Boheme." In "Carmen" there's much slay-ing.

'Tis thus the operatic range Gives worth for what you're pay-

"Cavalleria" calls for knives And deaths that are most bloody.
While notes that are most lively Are cut in "Pagliacci."
In "Butterfly" the varied songs

From overture to closing drum
Grand opera is teary.

Oh, speed the day when warblers
Then,
Shall waste no art in dying.

When handkerchiefs of mounds and Shall call no more for drying.

Then shall the tired business man,
Who bears a burden weary,
No more demand the book, the can,
Which opera is teary.

WITCHCRAFT ENTHRALLS PHILIPPINE ISLANDERS.

Tender Portion of Victims Appears to Be the Neck.

That a firm belief in witchcraft persists in some parts of Pampanga province is the purport of a communication received in Manila from an investigator who has investigated the claims of Filipinos that they were being afflicted with various bodily ills by persons who are called Magacalums.

While the educated inhabitants scorn at the belief, it was found to be widespread throughout the towns as well as in the agricultural sections far from large centers of population. Extracts from the communication follow:

"The belief is an old one, probably coexistent with the tribes. It is not confined to one or two towns, but extends to a greater or less degree in all, though the idea probably is having a greater hold upon the people of Lubao, Macabebe and Masanlot than any of the other municipalities.

"The belief is that a person who has this power can create illness in another, provided the other is a believer in Magacalums. A careful and extended search has failed to produce a single Pampangan who impressed the investigator as being entirely free from the idea that people might have this power. Many laugh at the mention of such a power and in a general way say that they do not consider it possible, yet references to specific cases will usually elicit the fact that they can ascribe no other cause to certain effects.

"It would seem that the tender spot of these near divinities is the neck of the intended victim, the Magacalums causing an enlargement of that part of the body.

"Sometimes the infliction is related to a specific event. For instance, in Arayat a woman once told a prospective purchaser that she had no eggs, which the customer found out to be false. Later it was said a chicken grew inside the stomach of the woman.

"Another account is of a Magacalum who was bound and an attempt made to burn holes in her face. The instruments made no impression upon her, but the marks of burns appeared upon the face of the woman who had instigated the maltreatment."

ARMY TRIES MOTOR TRICYCLE

Considered Good Field Hospital Adjunct in Germany.

In this year's German army manuevers the sight will be witnessed of motor tricycles speeding about the battlefield. Hitherto it has been found that much time was lost in rendering medical assistance to the wounded.
To prevent such delay during the coming maneuvers field surgeons will be mounted upon specially constructed motor tricycles made on the lines of those now used by tradesmen, in which will be carried all the necessary medical material for first aid.

In the past a wounded man had to be carried on a stretcher to the nearest lazaret before help could be rendered. In future should be find it impossible to treat the case on the spot the surgeon can himself convey the man to the lazaret on his motor tricycle.

The machine will be built so that it can go over heavy ground, and it will owing to its speed, save many hours of weary waiting to the wounded.

Alps, and three prizes of $14,000, $4, 000 and $2,000 are offered to successful competitors.

Nominally the distance to be covered is only ninety-five miles, but the hero planes in the course of their journey will have to fly over mountains exceeding 6,000 feet in height.

No flying by night will be allowed and a maximum of twenty-four hours will be allowed for the journey. The

JUDGE HOKE'S LAW

Deal of Justice to the Tenderfoot Yearling.

PENALTY FOR USING NO GUN.

Tom Keene, Armed When Jim Harny Hits His Claim, Fails to Fire—Sandy Bend Orders Plaintiff to Be Dismissed and Booted.

By M. QUAD.
(Copyright, 1910, by Associated Literary Press.)

BEFORE proceeding to take up the only case on the docket," said Judge Hoke of Sandy Bend as he looked his audience over, "I want to make a few remarks and observations to this congregation. His honor, which is myself and no other erlter, is the sole owner and proprietor of the Red Dog saloon.
He is also the owner of a fighting dog and a race horse. He always takes a hand at poker with the boys and has been known to hold four straight flushes in one night. He's chuck-a-luck with everything that comes along and has the reputation of being a good feller. Some of you have taken advantage of this to be familiar with him in this court. One of the witnesses on the stand the other day referred to me as 'old hoss.'"

"Too much familiarity here in this temple of justice is a thing I won't

TOM KEENE SEES JUSTICE

stand for, and the sooner you find it out the better for all of us. I ain't growing the wings of an angel, but the law must and shall be respected. There is no 'old hoss' about the law. She is dignity from top to toe nail.

"The first case before us is that of Tom Keene versus Jim Harny. I observe that both of them has a chyter lawyer ready to plead his case, but just as soon as one of them shyters puts it to rest out he goes. I understand, and I'm right 'nuff, and I don't want any mixing in and tangling things up."

"Tom Keene sits yere on my right with two guns strapped around him and a big knife in his boot leg, and Jim Harny sits on my left, with nothing but a grin on his face.

"Tom is what might be called a yearling tenderfoot. Back home in the east about a year ago he disktvers that he has consumption, asthma, liver complaint and a dozen other things to make his hike for the other shore a short one.

"The doctor sends Tom out yere to recooperate. Tom is willing to die, but thinks it just as well to see a bit of the world before doing so. He foresees that if he don't come out yere with guns and knives and a ferocious aspect he will be looked upon as a laid in knokepunchers, and so he beads himself.

High Steps on Arrival.

"Then he arrives with his hat on his ear and splits over his shoulder and steps high.

"It ain't no record that Thomas Keene, Esq., ever killed a jack rabbit with his guns or used his big knife for anything more than to cut his corns with, but by rolling his eyes, chanking his teeth and frothing at the mouth he has given sartin people to understand that he is dangerous and mustn't be rubbed the wrong way.
Even this yere court, which is seldom mishaken, looked Tom over and shed him up as desperate and dangerous.

"Tom has a mining claim over on Cat creek, and when he ain't swelling around Sandy Bend and trying to sneak somebody into his he does a few hours' work for his consumption and his liver. He was sitting in his shanty the other evening, humming to himself and thinking of what a devil of a feller he was and how many thrilling yarns he would have laid up to spin when he got back to the land of corsets and cocktills, when Jim Harny walks in on him.

"'Deevoning,' says Tom.
"'Deevoning,' says Jim.
"'Might you be some rabbit which has lost his way?'"

"'I might, and then ag'in I mightn't.'"
"'Nice sort o' evening any way?'"

"'Powerful nice.'"

"'Nice evening for saying what I can do to oblige you?'"

"'Thanks. Any objection to turning out while I tarp in?'"

"'Whader yer mean?'"

"'Nothing, 'cept that I'm going to jump this claim, and ren'll have to move on.'" wasn't a single word that factious body could object to, just as smooth and gentle as a meeting on Sunday in Boston.

Enter Jim Harny.

"There sat Thomas Keene, Esq., with his two guns and knife and his reputation as a dangerous man. He there stood Jim Harny with a grin on his face and not so much as a star on his hands. Somebody order bars along with a kodak; but alas, he died, and the chance to get an old master's picture was lost.

"'Mebbe you are thinking that Tom worked up the froth and the cious expression he jumped to his feet, pulled his weapons and drove Jim far away. For the honor of old Wyoming I wish it was so, but it wasn't.
How was it, then? Why, Jim kept a-looking at him and blimey pints a finger at him and tells him to get Does the ferocious and desperate Tom depart? He doth!

"Yes, gentlemen, though this court hates to dwell on such scenes of sadness, he must dwell on this one long 'nuff to say that Thomas Keene, Esq., made a sneak without drawing a gun or flourishing a knife; just went like a good little Sunday school kiddie.
Where did he go? What was his program for the future? Did he withdraw to the hills to get his nerve and then come back for a regular slaughter?
Not quite!

"Knowing that I was a court, he appears at the Red Dog saloon just as I am holding a big hand at poker. He comes on a canter. He is out of breath.
His eyes are hanging out as he gasps:
"'Judge, I want justice!'"

"'What sort of justice?'"

"'The most monstrous kind of justice.'"

"'What's happened?'"

"'Jim Harny has jumped my claim.'"

"'How many guns did he have?'"

"'Nary one.'"

"'And how many shots did you fire?'"

"'None 'tall!'"

"The Court 'Upset.'"

"'You didn't fill Jim full of lead?'"

"'I'm no taker of human life. I'm for letting the law take its course. You are the law. Glimme a warrant and have Jim arrested.'"

"Gentlemen, if any one of you feel like weeping real tears at this juncture the court won't stop you. It's 'nuff to lift a dead kyote out of his unhallowed grave. No wonder that the mountings of old Wyoming are rock-ing to their base as they feel the disgrace! When a critter comes to me for law I must give it to him. That's what a court is for. In hopes to save the honor of the country I offered to send a man back with Tom to help shoot Jim off the claim, but not a step would he move. He jest sat there and hollered for justice, and I had to send a constable out to bring the jumper in."

"Yere's the complaint, and yere's the defendant, and it won't trouble the court much to reach a decision. Jim Harny is fined $2 and costs for going around scaring tenderfoots and appling my full house hand in a game of poker. However, I shall at the same time order the plaintiff to hand over one of his guns to him as a living memorial of the event.

"As for Thomas Keene, Esq., he will be removed from this temple of justice without much undue delay and booted across the creek. When across it will be safer for him to remain on that side and seek to mingle with us no more. Before his removal he will pay justice $5 in cash and hand over the other gun for safe keeping. He kin retain the bewie knife to cut butter with. Justice being satisfied and we having done our best to wipe the stain from our escutcheon, we will now proceed to adjourn and line up for the booting. Constable, take charge of the ferocious Thomas."

Uncle Jim's Cookbook Joke.

James Wilson, the secretary of agriculture, said in Washington, apropos of the cookbook issued by his department:

"The women will appreciate the book. As for the men—"

Mr. Wilson smiled and resumed:

"In a bookshop the other day I said to a salesman:

"'I suppose you sell a lot of cookbooks here?'"

"'Thousands, sir, thousands,' he replied.

"'Women appreciate a good cookbook, eh?'" said I.

"'Oh, it isn't the women that buy them,' said the salesman; 'it's their husbands.'—Minneapolis Journal.

Rather a Dull Sort.

"Yes," said Mrs. Wadsworth, "the family is most interesting. John dances divinely. Tom sings like an angel.
David is a famous footballer. Susanne paints with great taste."

"Oh, Henry? Well, he's rather a dull sort of fellow, you know. He only works and supports the others."—Sacramento Union.

TERRIBLE TRAGEDY ENDS LIFE OF TOBIAS HUDSON.

Estrangement Between Man And Wife Results In Murder—Wife Shoots Husband In Office Of State's Attorney Friday Morning.

Perhaps the most atrocious crime ever perpetrated in the criminal annals of the State of Maryland, was committed yesterday shortly before noon when Mrs. Annie E. Hudson shot and killed her husband, Tobias Hudson, in the office of State's Attorney Joseph L.
Bailey. The shooting is said to have been the result of differences between Hudson and his wife which date from the time they were married several years ago.

Hudson came to this city about two months ago, and it is reported that he has been frequently seen, and is said to have been living with Eva Workman.
Mrs. Hudson heard of this, and came to Salisbury a few days ago to verify, if possible, the information that had been given her. After watching her husband closely for several days, and having seen him in company with the Workman woman on several occasions, she consulted State's Attorney Joseph L.
Bailey and asked that a writ be issued for his arrest, charging him with desertion. Hudson was arrested and was given a trial on Wednesday before Justice of the Peace W. A. Tracer. He was found guilty and fined $250.00.
Hudson seemed to have plenty of cash at all times and immediately after the fine was imposed he pulled a roll of bank notes out of his pocket and handed the amount of the fine to the Justice.

Immediately after the hearing, he and his wife apparently effected a reconciliation and went about the town together all day Thursday and seemed to be in a happy mood. Friday morning, however, she entered the office of the State's Attorney at an early hour, shortly after the office was opened, and requested Mr. Bailey to send for her husband as she desired to have an interview with him before leaving for her home in Cambridge. Mr. Bailey sent a clerk in his office to the house where Hudson had been making his home while he waited in the office. A few minutes before 11 o'clock and his wife met each other in the waiting room of the State's Attorney's office. They gave evidence that they desired to be alone and accordingly stepped into a private office, which is one of Mr. Bailey's suite, and closed the door. They had been alone only a few minutes when a pistol shot was heard. Rushing into the room the State's Attorney found that Mrs. Hudson had shot her husband through the temple. Several physicians were immediately called, and a few minutes after the shooting, still alive, he was taken to the Peninsula General Hospital, where he died shortly after his arrival.

There were several persons in the office of the State's Attorney at the time of the shooting and Mrs. Hudson made no attempt to escape. She was immediately placed under arrest and lodged in the Wicomico County jail.

Registration of Voters.
The day for registration of voters this year will be Tuesday, Oct. 4th, and Tuesday, Oct. 11th. Revision day will be Tuesday October 18th. Persons who have moved into this County from another County, or who have moved from one District in the County to another District must appear at the Registration office in his present District and register on one of the two days, if he expects to vote this year.
Where he has moved from one District to another it is necessary to get a transfer certificate from his last voting District and take it in person to his present voting District and get registered.

An Epoch In Circusdom.
When Mr. E. Haag, proprietor of the Mighty Haag Shows which exhibits at Salisbury on Sept. 29th, decided to inaugurate his sixteenth season as a successful surveyor of all that is good in circusdom to the public, he decided to create a new departure, his idea being to combine a first class circus and wild west performance under one mammoth stretch of water-proof and sunproof canvas, and for one price of admission; something never attempted before by any showman; both circus and Wild West will be complete exhibitions in itself in every detail making the best exhibition ever offered to the public. While giving two distinct exhibitions the price will be the same as charged for either circus or Wild West by other managers.

There are a great many men down here who have been puzzling their heads over some of the bills passed by the last legislature, and I want to explain some of those things to you. You all know my earnest advocacy of good roads. You know that there can be no real progress in any community without the proper highways. Now the last legislature recognized that great principle and they cast about to find some means of securing funds to carry on the work. And they first decided on the collateral inheritance tax. That tax provides that if some distant relative should die and leave you a sum of money, the state will tax you 5 percent on that amount, one half of which will go to the good roads movement. After they passed that bill they devised a tax on automobile owners, who of all people in the world are the ones who pray for good roads. If a man can own an auto he can pay a tax on it, particularly when he received such direct benefit from the tax as good roads on which to run his car. and then, to secure further funds, they increased the liquor license in order to further their plan. Now, no one is injured by any one of those taxes, and yet their wonderful benefits have hardly begun to be manifest as yet.

A PROGRESSIVE COUNTY
"There was more enthusiasm in Wi-comico when I broached the good roads plans at the time of my inauguration than in any other county in Maryland. That was natural, because your community is a progressive one and a sentiment for such measures had already existed. The strongest letters of encouragement which I received at that time came from men in your county, not only from members of my own party, but from Republicans as well as Democrats.

"The time has come for the farmers of the nation to organize. They must meet together, discuss their problems

GOVERNOR CROTHERS EXPLAINS WORK OF THE LAST LEGISLATURE.

Five Thousand People And A Host Of School Children Greet Maryland's Chief Executive At Big Farmers' Meeting—Tells The Boys To Stick To The Farm And Inspects Roads In Wicomico County.
Gets Rousing Reception—Enjoys Trip.

If the farmers of Wicomico and neighboring counties had any doubts concerning the wisdom of the collateral inheritance tax, the automobile tax and the increase liquor license bills passed by the last legislature, they were set at rest by the explanation offered by Governor Crothers in his address before the second farmers' meeting at the fair grounds near Salisbury, Wednesday morning. Over 5,000 farmers with their wives and families, flocked into Salisbury, at the busiest time for farmers, to hear the addresses on technical agricultural topics, and, in the opinion of the Governor and the members of the Farmers' Commission the attendance was a wonderful exhibition of the interest felt among Maryland farmers in improved agricultural methods. The Governor who responded to the address of welcome, said, in part:

"There are a great many men down
here who have been puzzling their heads over some of the bills passed by the last legislature, and I want to explain
some of those things to you. You all know my earnest advocacy of good roads. You know that there can be no real progress in any community
without the proper highways. Now
the last legislature recognized that
great principle and they cast
about to find some means of securing funds to carry on the work. And they first decided on the collateral inheritance tax. That tax provides that if some distant relative should die and
leave you a sum of money, the state
one half of which will go to the good roads movement. After they passed that bill they devised a tax on automobile owners, who of all people in the world are the ones who pray for good roads. If a man can own an auto he can pay a tax on it, particularly when he received such direct
benefit from the tax as good roads on
which to run his car. and then, to secure further funds, they increased
the liquor license in order to further their plan. Now, no one is injured by any one of those taxes, and yet their wonderful benefits have hardly
begun to be manifest as yet.

"There was more enthusiasm in Wi-comico when I broached the good roads plans at the time of my inauguration than in any other county in Maryland. That was natural, because
your community is a progressive one
and a sentiment for such measures
had already existed. The strongest letters of encouragement which I received at that time came from men in
your county, not only from members of my own party, but from Republicans as well as Democrats.

"The time has come for the farmers of the nation to organize. They must meet together, discuss their problems and take counsel with one another.
The world must now focus its attention on the tillers of the soil. Do you know why the boy leaves the farm?
It is because he is possessed with the idea that there is no field for intellectual ability on the farm. That is a mistake and it must be corrected.
If we—you and I—had served the old farm as faithfully as we have served our taskmasters it would not leave us in grasp nairs to the charity of the world? I repeat, the time has arrived for the farmers' to organize to protect and improve all the interests that affect their occupation. That is the reason for the farmers' commission."

A HEARTY RECEPTION.
The delegation from Baltimore left that city on the steamer Cambridge at 6:30 in the morning. Governor Crothers was hardly a second too soon in getting to the boat, for the gangplank was hauled in immediately after he stepped on board. In addition to the speakers on the program the members of the "Farmers' Commission" and their families were in the party. After a delightful trip down the bay the party took a special train to Salisbury.
The Governor and members of the commission were seated in an observation car, and the way down was enhanced by a card game.

The train stopped at Byrdsiding, where the party was greeted by the reception committee, composed of Waiter B. Miller, Prof. W. F. Dish-aroon, Thomas Perry, E. A. Toadvine, M. V. Brewington, R. D. Grier, S.

P. Woodcock, J. Roscoe White and Prof. W. F. Massey.

A score of automobiles were waiting to escort the party to the Fair Grounds, the Governor being escorted in the car of Walter B. Miller, chairman of the reception committee. A big crowd was assembled in the Fair Grounds, and as the Governor's car appeared a great cheer went up.

"PARADISE OF AMERICA."
The meeting was called to order at 11:30 by Charles A. Councilman, who introduced W. F. Allen, who presided.
Mr. Allen then introduced Senator Jesse D. Price, who delivered the address of welcome.

"The farmers of the Eastern Shore will eventually make that section the finest in the world," he said, "and it will not be long before it will be known as the Paradise of America. What we need is the proper encouragement from the State, and it is a great fact that we are getting that help through our interested Chief Executive. We have sent some of the best blood that has helped to make the great city of Baltimore, but what we need is our boys to stay home and devote their efforts to making the Eastern Shore the garden spot of America."

Thomas F. McNulty sang "Farmer Boys." The meeting was then adjourned until 2 o'clock and the party taken to the Peninsula Hotel, where dinner was served. An interesting incident occurred near the Governor during the meal. The two congressional candidates, Abraham Lincoln Dryden and Harry Cavington, were dining in the room and the latter walked up to the table of his opponent and extending his hand, said, "Howdy," and the two chatted together for five minutes.

A PLEASANT SURPRISE.
As the Governor ascended the speakers' platform, after luncheon, a thousand schoolchildren of Wicomico county, bearing banners and shouting lustily, filed before him as he stood with bared head, bowing and smiling. It was a little surprise prepared for him. The Governor made a neat little speech, in which he thanked the children for their reception, and invited them into the grand stand. When he had finished, and when the long parade had filed past, he turned to a friend and said: "It's quite evident there is no race succide here."

MR. HAYS' ADDRESS.
After a solo by Mr. McNulty, Secretary Willett M. Hays, of the United States Department of Agriculture, was introduced to speak on "The Promotion of Agriculture." His remarks were illustrated by large charts.
The principal theme of discussion by Mr. Hays was the establishment of a consolidated school system in Maryland. He showed charts of places where it had been introduced, and showed the good results that followed its adoption. Governor Crothers liked the idea and said that it ought to be investigated.

The Governor then made a little farewell address to the crowd after which he left in his auto to inspect the new roads built by the state. He went as far as Mardela Springs, where he rejoined the party on its return trip.

Others who spoke were Prof. L. C.
Corbett, United States Department of Agriculture, "Small Fruit and Truck Crops"; Prof. N. Schmitz, Maryland Experiment Station, "Growing Alfalfa on the Eastern Shore"; Professor Sylvester, of the Maryland Agricultural College, "Agriculture," and Richard Vincent, Jr., president of the State Horticultural Society, who asked for co-operation in the exhibition to be held in the Fifth Regiment Armory in October. The party returned to Baltimore at night.

On the return trip a meeting of the executive committee of the Farmers' Commission was held, at which four members were present. Resolutions commending the reception committee at Salisbury for the arrangements provided for the entertainment of the visitors and commending the speakers and Mr. McNulty, were passed.

MORE HORSE RACING ON SEPTEMBER 15TH.

Julia Marlowe And Hannis Boy Matcheg For $300 Purse—There Will Be A Farmers' Race And A Motorcycle Race.

A race that is attracting a great deal of interest among those who like to see a close match, will be held on the Fair Grounds at Salisbury, Md., Sept. 15th between Hannis Boy and Julia Marlowe. Both of these horses are well known all over the State and as both have the same mark, it is expected to prove a very exciting match.
The race is for a side purse of $300 placed by the owners of the horses.

Hannis boy with a mark of 3:15-2 is owned by Mr. Geo. W. Messick of Wicomico County and is under the management of Capt. I. H. White.
Julia Marlowe with a mark the same as Hannis Boy is owned and controlled by Collins & Co. Both of these horses have enthusiastic supporters and it is stated that much money is being placed by people all through the section, no odds being given or asked.

The Fair Association, under whose auspices the race will be given, has also arranged to give the Farmers Race on the same day. There is a great deal of rivalry between the owners of fast horses in the County and much interest is being taken in this race. It was intended to pull this race off during the Fair this year but owing to the bad weather condition it was found to be impossible to arrange it. At this time there were 33 entries and an exciting time was looked for. It is believed that practically all of these horses will be entered in the race to be given on the 15th of this month and the question as to who owns the fastest horse will be settled. The purse is to be $50, divided as per the arrangement for the Fair.

In addition to these two races the Association is making arrangements for a good motorcycle race. In this race "Chic" Thomas, Champion of Maryland is expected to compete.
The motorcycle race proved to be one of the greatest attractions at the Salisbury Fair, and as the track was very heavy at the time, it is believed that much better time will be made at the coming race. At that time one mile was made in 1:30 and the five miles of the race was made in 7 minutes flat. Several seconds will be pulled off this record on the 15th, and probably a State record for 1 mile track made.

Beloved Resident Died.
Mrs. M. Augusta Rider, who was one of the few remaining members of the older families of this county died Sunday morning at 3 o'clock at the home of her sister Mrs. Mary D.
Ellegood, with whom she has resided for a number of years, after an illness covering a period of nearly two years.
She was the wife of Mr. Granville E.
Rider, who is one of Salisbury's oldest residents.

Mrs. Rider was a daughter of the late Charles and Martha Whitecock and was born in Baltimore in 1839.
When a young girl, her father moved to this city, and Mrs. Rider has been a resident of Salisbury since early childhood. Mr. and Mrs. Rider were married about forty years ago. Beside her husband, the deceased is survived by one sister, Mrs. Mary D. Elle-good of this city, and one son, Mr.
Chas. W. Rider, who holds a government position in Washington.

Although she was confined to her bed for more than a year, Mrs. Rider was a patient sufferer, and her death came without a struggle. Funeral services were conducted Tuesday afternoon at St. Peter's Protestant Episcopal Church, of which she was a lifelong member and earnest worker.
The services were conducted by Rev.
David Howard, rector of St. Peter's parish. The pallbearers, all of whom are old friends of Mr. and Mrs. Rider, were Messrs. Gustavus W. White, Oscar Freedy, H. Lee Powell, Jacob C. Phillips, James E. Ellegood and Judge E. Stanley Toadvin. Her remains were interred in the Rider lot in Parsons Cemetery.

Marriage Licenses.
The following licenses to marry
were issued during the week by Clerk of the Court, Ernest A. Toadvin: Leratus Bradley—Arthur M. Leratus 25, and Hattie T. Bradley 22, Wicomico County.

Donaway—Figgs—J. Calvin Donaway
24, Chambersburg, Pa. and Eva R. Figgs 20, Wicomico County.

Parsons—Austin—Allan B. Parsons 19, and Annie Austin 23, Wicomico County.

The Mosquito Family.

The mosquito family is a large one, as might be suspected. The experts have captured, identified and classified no less than 125 different species. In addition to the simon pure mosquito, there are any number of counterfeits. Scores of them are so closely allied to the real thing in looks, buzz and other characteristics as to be mistaken by the amateur for a member of the original family.

Don't Break Down.

Severe strains on the vital organs, like strains on machinery, cause breakdowns. You can't over-tax stomach, liver, kidneys, bowels or nerves without serious danger to yourself. If you are weak or run-down, or under strain of any kind, take Electric Bitters, the matchless, tonic medicine. Mrs. J. E. Van de Sande, of Kirkland, Ill., writes: "That I did not break down, while enduring a most severe strain, for three months, is due wholly to Electric Bitters." Use them and enjoy health and strength. Satisfaction positively guaranteed. 50c at all druggists.

Russia Leather.

When Marshall Jewell was minister to Russia he discovered the secret of making Russia leather by his sense of smell. The Russians use birch bark tar in dressing skins instead of tallow and grease. By literally following his nose one day on a visit to a large Russian leather tannery Jewell chanced upon the secret compound in a large kettle. He recognized the odor of the birch bark and reported the discovery to his government. As a result genuine Russia leather goods are now being made in this country.

Millions know its matchless merit for stubborn colds, obstinate coughs, sore lungs, lagrippe, asthma, hemorrhage, croup, whooping cough, or hayfever. It relieves quickly and never fails to satisfy. KEEP THE KIDNEYS WELL.

Health Is Worth Saving. And Some Salisbury People Know How To Save It.

Many Salisbury people take their lives in their hands by neglecting the kidneys when they know these organs need help. Sick kidneys are responsible for a vast amount of suffering and ill health, but there is no need to suffer nor to remain in danger when all diseases and aches and pains due to weak kidneys can be quickly and permanently cured by the use of Doan's Kidney Pills. Here is a Salisbury citizen's recommendation.

Mrs. John L. Baker, 813 Baker Street, Salisbury, Md., says: "A year or so ago I procured Doan's Kidney Pills at White & Leonard's Drug Store and after taking them a short time, I found relief from kidney complaint. I had been bothered a great deal by a lame back and a heavy, bearing-down sensation through my hips. No matter what I took, this misery clung to me and I was also bothered, when I arose in the morning, by a stiffness across my loins. I at last procured Doan's Kidney Pills at White & Leonard's Drug Store and in return for the benefit they brought me, I consider them worthy of my endorsement."

The Real Thing.

Fred, aged three, had been a naughty boy, and his mother had punished him. He felt very much hurt and complained to his auntie about mamma's spanking him. Auntie said, "It is not you that mamma spanks, but a little devil inside of you who makes you do naughty things." After sitting very still for five minutes he said, "It beats all how it hurts me when that devil gets spanked."—Delineator.

But Yet a Woman.

"We have been friends a long time," said she. "You would be very unhappy if we quarrelled for good, wouldn't you?"
"Certainly," said he.
"Would you be unhappy enough to kill yourself?" she asked eagerly.
"I'd be very unhappy," said he, "but I don't think I would kill myself."
She was silent a long while, looking at him sadly. "I hoped," she pointed then, "that you would be unhappy enough to kill yourself if we happened to quarrel."—New York Press.

"Home, Sweet Home."

John Howard Payne did not compose the music that has always gone along with his immortal song. The famous air is by Sir Henry Bishop, who introduced the song in "Clari, or The Maid of Milan," about the year 1823. It is not at all strange that the impression should prevail that both words and music are by Payne, for words and music, sentiment and air were never better suited to each other, the one seeming to be made for the other from the foundation of the world.—New York American.

Coral Reefs Inland.

Mention of coral reefs brings to one's mind a picture of palm dotted islets girt with white sands in a tropical sea, but geologists find coral reefs in the midst of great continents. These, of course, belong to a past age of the earth's history, but on that account they are the more interesting. Within late years several remarkable reefs of fossil coral have been explored near Bainbridge, on the Flint river, in Georgia. In one case a very large portion of the reef exposed consisted of coral heads, some of which were more than a foot in diameter. Between twenty-five and thirty species of coral have been recognized in these reefs. They are ascribed to the tertiary age.—Harper's Weekly.

MOTOR ENGINES TO ALTER OCEAN STEAMER TRAFFIC.

America, Britain and Germany Experiment With Petrol.

A ship of transatlantic dimensions is being equipped for regular service with motor engines. The familiar steam engines, with their boilers, furnaces and coal bunkers, have been replaced by a compact internal combustion engine.

In the marvelous progress in steamship building improvements have consisted for the most part in enlarging the ships and adding new luxuries to ocean travel. Increased speed has been obtained by merely enlarging the engines. Even the adoption of the turbine engines was less important than the present installation of the oil motors on large ships. The turbines saved valuable space by reducing the size of the engine, but the oil driven engines carry this economy of space much further.

A number of tests and much discussion have led up to the present experiment. The British navy has been carrying on similar experiments, but on a much smaller scale. The American navy has been carrying on similar experiments. Several naval authorities both in England and America have stated recently that oil was undoubtedly the fuel of the future. The motor liner has been equipped by a German line, and it will be tested both in European and American waters. The friends of the new fuel believe that within a few years the great liners will be driven by oil and that a new era in navigation will date from its adoption.

The motor liner will have 9,000 tons burden. The largest ship to be driven in this way hitherto has been less than half this size. The new liner will measure 400 feet in length and have a beam of 52 feet and a draft of 28 feet. A ship of this size will obviously give the new engines a complete test.

The petrol motors will be capable of developing 26,000 horsepower. The motor liner will have twin propellers. It is only a few years since the idea of driving a large boat with petrol motors was ridiculed by marine engineers, but now that a 400 foot boat is about to be put in commission with this system the day of the steam engine would seem to be menaced.

The coal bunkers, which take up so much space in the great ships today, will be replaced by tanks for holding the petroleum.

PANAMA HAS FINE THEATER.

With Official Palace It Occupies Entire Square.

The public theater is a conspicuous factor in the life of every Latin American city. Every important town owns its splendid municipal theater, of which it is justly proud. In many cases these theaters are buildings beautiful in design, having cost large sums of money to erect. One of the recent contributors in this respect is the city of Panama.

The new government palace and the National theater constitute one of the finest buildings in Panama, occupying an entire block between them. The theater is at one side, and the palace, in which are the different departments of the governing force of the republic, is at the other. The two make a fine edifice covering an area of nearly 11,000 square feet, having cost $800,000.

The auditorium of the theater will accommodate 1,300 persons and has splendid acoustic properties. The interior walls are formed of iron and cement blocks; the roof is of corrugated iron, and the stage is fitted with a fireproof metallic curtain. Light and ventilation are obtained from eight large windows, situated on each of the four sides.

It was erected during the administration of the late Dr. Amador Guerrero, having been commenced in November, 1905, and completed two and a half years later. It was inaugurated by an Italian opera company which had been expressly contracted for. Since that time it has given an uninterrupted series of performances of every kind.

RUSSIA IMPROVES WATERWAY

Plans Connection Between Baltic, Caspian and Black Seas.

The Russian government is considering a thorough improvement of the inland waterway system in its European provinces. This is to include direct communication between the Baltic sea and the Caspian and Black seas, which will revolutionize economic conditions and greatly benefit the Moscow district. Russia's most important commercial center.

The total estimated cost is $79,825,000, to be raised abroad. Annual maintenance and interest will call for $6,500,000. At an extra cost of $50,000,000 the Dvina rapids can be made to develop 100,000 horsepower and those of the Dnieper 150,000 horsepower. Revenue, including tolls, will be $10,600,000 a year.

UNCLE SAM PAYS DEBT OF $12 AFTER 43 YEARS.

Ex-Postmaster's Lawyer Gets One-third as Fee.

J. W. Range, an Alaska miner, recently received a check for $12 due him when he resigned a postmaster ship at Mill Village, Pa., in the fall of 1867. Although the government has had the use of this $12 for forty-two years, Range is allowed no interest.

At 6 per cent, an average legal rate of interest in the United States, the principal and compound interest would amount to $188.68. In other words, Uncle Sam made $124.68 on the $12 that belonged to Range.

Range was compelled to pay an attorney in Washington one-third of the amount he received after waiting more than forty-two years for collecting it. When the check was received Range sent $4 to the attorney in the national capital for his services.

"I served three years in the war," said Range, "and when I returned home my friends at Mill Village wanted to do something for me, so they had me appointed postmaster. I resigned in less than a year and went west."

"About five years ago I received a letter from an attorney in Washington, advising me that I had a good and just claim against the government for $12 and that he would collect it for one-third of the amount as his commission. I did not know the government owed me anything, but I told him if I had anything coming to me he might go after it. I think the claim was for overpayment of postage stamps. I got the check, signed by Secretary MacVeagh, and had to send the attorney $4 for collecting the claim."

CHASE'S DESK STILL IN USE.

Treasury Clerks Eager to Own Historic Furniture.

In the office of the auditor for the postoffice department, bureau of the treasury department at Washington there is a mahogany desk of historical interest. It is flat topped, plain and not a little marked and worn from constant use for over fifty years. It was at this desk that Salmon P. Chase as secretary of the treasury worked out his contribution to the financial system of the United States.

This desk was taken from the treasury building just after the civil war to the building at the corner of Eighth and E streets, where the sixth auditor's office (called in those days the colony) was housed for some years previous to its removal to the Busch building. It has taken the round with that branch of the treasury and is now in the custody of that bureau in the postoffice building.

Tradition has it that many clerks from time to time have asked the honor of sitting at the desk. In a recent purchase of more modern desks for the auditor's office, which made necessary the removal of all the old high desks, the Chase desk, which conforms in shape to the modern office desks, was just moved in line with others, thus escaping the ordinary fate of the annual junk sale of the treasury department.

The fine material of which the Chase desk is made and the fine finish mark it as a conspicuous piece of furniture even if it is not modern in its construction.

AIR WILL RING-UP FARES.

Hudson River Tunnel Has New Tab Keeping Scheme.

Aviators are not the only persons who can take a fall out of the air. W. G. McAdoo of Hudson tunnel fame is going them one better. He is making the air work for him. A young inventor gave him the idea, and he is following it up by having a compressed air device which registers the number of passengers using the "tubes" installed in the Hoboken terminal.

In the contrivance which Mr. McAdoo is using a constant flow of compressed air is directed toward a disk equipped with an electric registering apparatus. A person passing through the current of air interrupts the pressure against the disk, and this "rings up" the fare.

The device promises to prove practical.

STANFORD GETS COLLECTION

Jarboe Library on French Revolution Goes to University.

The famous Jarboe collection of rare volumes of the French revolution has been acquired by Stanford university. This extremely valuable addition to the library takes its name from the man who originally brought the books together, John R. Jarboe, a prominent lawyer of San Francisco, many years ago.

The value of the library does not lie in its size, but in the character of its contents. The collection contains approximately 2,500 pieces. These are from almost entirely original sources and materials, most of them being extremely rare. The collection of contemporary pamphlets alone comprises 1,500 titles, and memoirs are present in surprising numbers.

Educational Meeting.

A rousing educational meeting in the interest of the future of the children of Sharptown and vicinity was held at that place Thursday evening under the auspices of the Women's Christian Temperance Union of Sharptown. The big meeting was held at the Asbury Methodist Episcopal Church and the parents and friends of the school children heard some eloquent and able presentations of the subject of education.

The idea of the meeting was to establish permanently in the minds of parents the fact that in the past children have been taken out of school too early, before they were equipped to start out in the world in competition with educated young men and women.
The speakers, Mr. W. B. Miller, Prof.
William J. Holloway, Dr. S. A. Graham, Mr. H. L. Brewington and Prof.
J. F. McFee, principal of the Sharptown High School, went into the subject thoroughly and handled the following subjects in such a manner as to leave a beneficial impression in the minds of those who attended:

Should a trade, or an education, be the first object?

How long should our children remain in the public school?

Can parents of small means afford to educate their children?

The duty of parents respecting the education of their children.

The right standards of morals and education and why?

Which should be first, a trade, or morals and an education?

The advantages of an education.
The disadvantages of the uneducated.
Taken altogether the meeting was a splendid success and it is quite possible that other communities will follow the splendid example of the people of the thirty villages at Sharptown.

The Prayer That Hurt.

A member of a certain Massachusetts parish prominent for his thrift and personal consequence was also notorious for his overbearing assumptions and pompous airs. Under the distress and fright of a dangerous illness he "put up notes" on several successive Sundays, and after his recovery, according to usage, he offered a note to be read by the minister expressive of his thanks. The minister was somewhat "large" in this part of his prayer, recalling the danger and the previous petitions of the "squire" and returning his grateful acknowledgments with the prayer that the experience might be blessed to the spiritual welfare of the restored man. He closed with these words:

"And we pray: O Lord, that thy servant may be cured of that ungodly strut, so offensive in the sanctuary."

Law and Geography.

From the half timers' papers written at a recent term examination: "Some of the chief inventions of the last 150 years are having an act so that no person under fourteen years must go into the public house. Another act was so that no person under the age of sixteen years must smoke cigars, pipes and cigarettes, and no person under that age can be served with any. My brother Bill is now all right for this invention. He was sixteen last week." Here is a geography answer: "The river system of Canada is what you might call very good, but sometimes they shoot the rapids, and unless you are a red Indian this is very troublesome at times, especially when you get sucked under like Captain Webb." —Manchester Guardian.

The Earliest Cigars.

The earliest mention of cigars in English occurs in a book dated 1785.
A traveler in Spanish America named Cockburn, whose narrative was published in that year, describes how he met three friars at Nicaragua, who, he says, "gave us some seagars to smoke; these are leaves of Tobacco rolled up in such manner that they serve both for a Pipe and Tobacco itself; they know no other way here, for there is no such thing as a Tobacco Pipe throughout New Spain."

Sure Sign.

"What is the sign when a man parts his hair in the middle?" said the old fellow in the front row of the orchestra to a friend loud enough to be heard by the young man behind them.
"It's a sign that he's not baldheaded," replied the young man, leaning forward.—Yonkers Statesman.

Hard Luck.

"Poor man, your life must be full of hardships!"

"Ow true yer words are, lidy! Only t'other day I picked up a ticket for a ball an' couldn't use it cos I hadn't got a evenin' suit!"—London Ideas.

A Tragic Crisis.

Cholly had put on his necktie and was looking over his supply of hosiery.
"I wonder, now," he said, turning pale, "whether the socks have to match the tie or whether the tie has to match the socks."—Chicago Tribune.

Her Auto Ride

The Best Laid Plans Go Awry.

By CLARISSA MACKIE.
Copyright, 1910, by American Press Association.

Annabelle Dayton in her smart little motor car paused at the summit of the hill and drew a sharp breath of appreciation. A line of distant blue hills lay beyond the sea. In the foreground the green clad slopes running down to the beach. The roofs of the houses pointed up among the trees, and a church spire gleamed like fire in the distance. White sails beyond and a black drift of smoke from a passing steamer.

"This is lots better than going to Edith's party," sighed Annabelle mutinously. "Just fancy this glorious afternoon in a motor car drawing room listening to the Alvan Eldred, 'master of the house' and being disillusioned by long green grass and a pervading presence of garlic!" Annabelle's eyes were fixed scornfully at her own portrait of the great violinist, of whom her aunt had raved for years.

"Going down, down to the very edge of the sea."

As the machine sped downward Annabelle was suddenly conscious that something was wrong. The brakes did not respond to her frantic pressure, the wheels grated harshly without effect, and there was an unfamiliar grunting sound from beneath her feet.

She had been down this same hill many times before, slowly, cautiously, she knew that from the foot of the hill the street ran down to the water's edge, ending at the broad dock where the boats landed.

Nothing could stop her speed unless the color left her cheeks as she realized the almost certain death that confronted her. Her lips set in a straight line, and her eyes shone steadily. If one had to meet death at the close of a lovely August day when—why, one might as well meet it bravely.

Faster she went, her eyes, dark with dread, fixed on a wide opening on the right flanked by stone pillars. It seemed to mark the entrance to some estate. The few pedestrians turned and watched her with slight disapproval; a woman behind her with a warning hand; a woman behind her with a warning hand; a woman behind her with a warning hand.

Annabelle turned the steering wheel and a sign of relief appeared on her face as the machine responded, but there was no lessening of the mad speed. Wildly it sped through the open gateway, ground into the hard packed earth of the drive, skidded along a muddy spot under the trees, and the drive pounded along over green turf, miraculously avoiding tree trunks, making straight for the large brown house set in the midst of the grounds.

Another twist of the wheel and the house seemed to glide past. Before her was a distant blur of green and gold—a flower garden in the midst of which was a summer house. To the left was a white house. Her head dropped on her hands that clutched the wheel, and she closed her eyes and prayed.

"There was a low shout beside her: the machine jolted under additional weight; a pair of strong hands gripped the wheel from her; there was the pressure of brakes; the motor slowed suddenly, bumped into some obstruction and then tumbled back to a standstill.

"It's all over now," said a kindly voice.

Annabelle opened her eyes and looked fearfully forth on the summer house still creaking from the force of encounter, on the crushed flowers she had moved down and lastly into the consciousness of a man who sat beside her in the car.

It was then that Annabelle realized that she was holding the stranger in a frantic embrace, her hands tightly clasped about his neck, her fair head perched on his broad shoulder.

"Is your pardon?" Annabelle's face turned to deepest rose as she hastily withdrew from him, but her hair had caught in a button of his coat, holding it firmly by one long golden strand.

"Just a moment. There—I don't want to let you go now." He spoke in a matter of fact tone as if he was in the habit of embracing lovely maidens with coat buttons every day of his life. "I'm afraid you are pretty well shaken up with your ride. You had a narrow escape." He had slighted and helped Annabelle to the ground.

She leaned weakly against the summer house. "You must have saved my life. Did you—did you really leap on the step as I passed?" She was beginning to realize what had happened.

He nodded carelessly. "It was easy enough. You see, one gets practice in that sort of thing chasing the street cars." Then, observing her with concern in his gray eyes, he went on: "Come and sit down in the summer house; you ride so pretty well knocked under with the strain. After you have had a cordial perhaps you may feel like to tell me what happened that you landed me in your arms."

sent into it with a little sigh of relief. "I will send my housekeeper, Mrs. Larrup, to you; she may be of assistance."

Annabelle had time to rearrange her tangled hair, blushing at the recollection of its episode with the coat button, before her host returned, tray in hand.

"Mrs. Larrup has disappeared, and it seems to be the maid's half holiday, so you must be satisfied with my humble services. Here are current wine and some biscuits and a bottle of eau de cologne. Isn't that what ladies use when they are upset?" He placed the tray handsly at her elbow.

"Thanks to you, I wasn't upset," returned Annabelle merrily. She sniffed at the cut glass bottle more in gratitude for his thoughtfulness than because she needed its pungent aroma. "Thank you. I am afraid I've made you lots of trouble and ruined your garden. I hope you will allow me to have it put in order again."

She sipped the wine he poured for her and looked up at him from her dark blue eyes, frankly boyish in their direct glance.

"Really, you've given old Jackson something to do. He's been eating his head off lately and grumbling because I wouldn't let him dig up some of the beds and set out other plants. There he is now among the hollyhocks. See the grin on his face? He's tickled to death over it."

The man leaned against the doorpost and looked out into the garden, where an old negro was hobbling among the torn beds, a broad smile about his toothless lips.

"I say, Jackson, please ask Pierre to come here and get this car out into the drive." He turned to Annabelle, and his glance lingered long on her face, sweetly serious in the pale green light of the arbor. "I think my man can put your car right. There seems to be nothing serious the matter with it—probably some small matter of adjustment."

While the chauffeur tinkered over the car Annabelle related the story of her ride. She omitted nothing, not even the fact that she had deliberately run away from her aunt's musicale and the great violinist nor her terror at the last when her car sped down the hill.

The man listened without interruption. He smiled when she mentioned Alvan Eldred, and he winced when she described the terrible ride down the hill. When she had finished he told her that he had been sitting in the arbor and had seen her approach across the turf—had raced to meet her. It was nothing at all.

"So you did not want to see Alvan Eldred," he said a little later. "Have you ever heard him play?"

"Once," admitted Annabelle, "and it was so heavenly it made me cry. There was a big crowd, and I couldn't see him, and I didn't want to. I know what they look like and I am always distinguished after I see them, some are so—so scruffy, you know. This time he played an old thing, the intermezzo from 'Cavalleria,' you know, and I've wanted to hear it again just as he played it, only—"

"You're afraid of the garlic and the green coat collar, eh?" He was smiling down at her in the friendliest sort of way.

"I know you think I'm horrid about it and not a bit artistic, but—"

"I don't like garlic myself," he confessed cheerfully. "As for questions about the coat collar—well, nevertheless, I'm afraid you do indeed an injustice. He's an American, you know."

"You see how narrow and prejudiced and silly I am," said Annabelle, rising and moving toward the door. "I never even knew that. I thought he was a Pole—or something. It is growing late, and your man seems to have fixed my car."

"I'm going with you—with your permission—to see that you reach home safely. Pierre can follow with my car and bring me home. You have told me your name, but I have not yet introduced myself. Wait a moment, please; do not turn your head."

With a slight bow he left her standing in the doorway, her back to the interior of the arbor. He passed inside, and she heard a slight rattle, a whining twang as a string tightened, and then the strains of the intermezzo trembled on the air—played as only a master could play it—as Alvan Eldred had never played it before.

Annabelle stood spellbound, her blue eyes like stars, her red lips parted, wave after wave of rose color flushing her startled face. Before he had finished she had turned and was facing him, inspiring him to greater effort, and there passed between them at the moment a great understanding.

When he had finished Annabelle pressed her hands against her eyes. "I feel as if I had always been asleep—as though I had just awakened," she said softly.

OREGON TRAILERS TO BE GLORIFIED

Shaft to Commemorate Lewis and Clark Expedition.

BEACH ON PACIFIC IS SITE.

Salt Cairns Built by Portion of Party to Be Preserved as Relics of Northwestern Pioneer Days—Aged Clatsop Squaw Recalls Visit of Whites in 1806 For Historical Investigators.

On the broad beach facing the Pacific ocean, not far from Tillamook head, on the Oregon coast, is a spot that was made historic years ago by a little band of rugged explorers who camped there in 1806 for the sole purpose of making salt. These men were the members of the Lewis and Clark expedition, who, while their brother trail blazers remained further inland, were ordered to the edge of the ocean to secure that staple of life, salt, without which they were unable to subsist.

After reaching the Pacific the men found that they would be unable to camp at any place other than where there was a sufficiency of fresh water. So they followed the coast line to the mouth of Necanicum river, up which they went for twenty miles before making camp. Their stopping place was near the present site of the town of Seaside.

It was at this spot that the little band of men remained for about two months, manufacturing salt from sea water. Cairns were built, in which the kettles used for the purpose of boiling the water were placed. The kettles were of graduating sizes, made to fit one inside of the other, so they could be carried more easily.

Salt Cairns Still Standing. The cairns which were built are now standing almost intact and are the only tangible relics of the Lewis and Clark trail to the Pacific. It is now proposed that a monument be constructed at this place.

Toward this end Homer D. Sanborn, an Oregon pioneer, has been working for many years. After going over the greater part of the Lewis and Clark trail Mr. Sanborn became convinced that there was no place more fitting to commemorate in stone the deeds of these brave white men who first surveyed this western country.

There will be four bronze grills looking on the interior above which, on the outside, will be tablets with the names of the original party which camped on the spot. One interesting feature of the place is the fact that, standing near the site of the cairns and looking toward the mountains in the distance, one may see a perfect picture of George Washington's outline against the sky. The silhouette of the Father of His Country is formed by the tops of the mountains.

It was only after much research and labor on the part of Mr. Sanborn and members of the Oregon Historical society that the location of the exact site where stood the salt cairns was discovered. Old Indian men and women were called to give testimony on the subject.

Indians Identify Relics. On June 8, 1900, E. B. Cox and William Galloway, members of a research committee of the Oregon Historical society, in company with other persons, visited the site of Fort Clatsop, where Lewis and Clark were encamped in 1806. On the following day the committee visited the place where the old salt cairns were built and reported to the Historical society as follows:

"On June 9 your committee visited Clatsop beach for the purpose of identifying the remains of the salt cairns there erected by Lewis and Clark. They secured the attendance of Tat-nisquam, a full blooded Clatsop squaw, who is said to be eighty-six years of age and to be one of the three full blooded Clatsop Indians now living."

"She visited the remains of these salt works as they are now to be seen upon the ground and in an unqualified manner stated that she had frequently been on the spot with her mother and other Indians who were living in that locality at the time of Lewis and Clark's expedition and that they had told her this was the place where Lewis and Clark's men had made salt."

This is the place where it is proposed to erect a magnificent monument to stand as a lasting testimony of appreciation and love for the work of two great men. Pointing this the air there will be, if present calculations do not fail, a great stone pile, which will cover valuable relics of humble but necessary work done by the explorers—the salt cairns.

"She visited the remains of these salt works as they are now to be seen upon the ground and in an unqualified manner stated that she had frequently been on the spot with her mother and other Indians who were living in that locality at the time of Lewis and Clark's expedition and that they had told her this was the place where Lewis and Clark's men had made salt."

mestication in the United States of some 100 species of mammals from other parts of the world. The plan is urged as one that would relieve the prospective meat famine in this country.

Hippo Steak Succulent.

Hippopotamus steak is said to be fit for the epicure, and the plant experts say that the favorite food of the hip-popotamuses can be grown in enormous quantities in the low sections of Louisiana. Hippopotamuses dearly love hay made of the white hyacinth, and Louisiana's streams, properly seeded, will grow from thirty to fifty tons of hyacinth hay per acre. There are at present about 6,500,000 acres in the Gulf states that are of no use for any other purpose but that and would produce about 1,000,000 tons of good animal food that might be worth $100,000,000.

The native flowers, fruits and vegetables of America have been added to improved and enriched by the introduction of foreign plants, but efforts to utilize foreign food animals have been confined chiefly to the Angora goat.

Many Animals Available.

Among the food animals of foreign climes that might do well in the United States, according to the authorities, are:

The big porkers of Manchuria, which often weigh 400 pounds; the yak from Tibet, an animal of many uses, such as for draft work, as a saddle horse, for its milk and for its flesh; the llama from South America; the African buffalo, which furnishes not only food, but the finest leather; the white rhinoceros, gentle, fond of semidesert regions and furnishing a delicate meat food; the small antelopes of Africa and Manchuria, which could be used as an adjunct to the farmer's poultry yard in the central, southern and Pacific states; the little red and blue duckers, which weigh when grown about thirty pounds; the tiny dik-dik, or pah, weighing from six to ten pounds and good enough for a king's feast; the giraffe, which is said to give the purest flesh food of any animal in the world and which might be domesticated on the southwestern deserts.

Camels Once Tried.

Then there are the elephants, which could be raised in the United States, though they might prove a little too burdensome, and the camels (several years ago an attempt was made to acclimatize the camel in the southwest, but it was not persisted in) and the zebra and others.

If the law is passed the department of agriculture is likely to have its hands full, and it may eventually be in a position to outfit newly organized censuses.

GIRLS TO LEARN PLUMBING.

Aid to Housekeeping Planned For Chicago School Course.

A course in plumbing is an innovation announced for the approaching new school term by Superintendent Ella Flagg Young.

"So many girls know no more about the water and gas used in kitchens than turn the faucet and the water flows or the gas is ready to light," said Mrs. Young in telling of the new course. "We want them to know more about this matter from a sanitary viewpoint."

The course is to be known as the sanitary science. Pupils will be required to master such details as how the water and gas are distributed through mains to houses, then to kitchens, how connections are made,
and similar things.

With proper understanding of these matters, together with a knowledge of how the waste water is carried away, Mrs. Young says the students will be better equipped to keep kitchens over which they may rule in the future in a more sanitary condition. At the same time they will be armed with knowledge that may save them money by avoiding the necessity of calling in the plumber and by economy in the use of gas.

American Flour Holds Monopoly.
In Hongkong American flour still retains the market—688,692 barrels for $2,790,649 in 1910 fiscal year. Shipped direct to the Chinese empire were 21-248 barrels, worth $93,164. Shanghai mills have captured a good deal of Hongkong's trade in flour.

BOWSER'S DAY OFF

Diary Taken From His Pocket Tells One Story.

NOT WHAT HE TOLD AT HOME.

Sights and Drinks of Gay Old Boys Club on the River—Thinks He Fooled His Wife, but She Holds the Secret All the Same.

By M. QUAD.

(Copyright, 1910, by Associated Literary Press.)

THE other morning just as the first faint streaks of daylight were showing in the east Mrs.
Bowser was awakened and called downstairs by a vigorous ring at the bell. She went down to find a policeman and Mr. Bowser at the door.
The policeman could speak English.
Mr. Bowser couldn't. The policeman said:

"Found him down by the river, ma'am, and as I happened to know him I brought him home. As near as I can make out he has been on a steamboat excursion and had too much ginger ale to drink."

"Yes, and he went with a club called the Gay Old Boys yesterday. I thank you very much."

"Oh, don't mention it, ma'am."

Mr. Bowser was led into the sitting room and laid on the lounge. He was very quiet and reserved. In fact, he did not talk at all. After trying for five minutes he got a memorandum book out of his pocket and handed it to Mrs. Bowser and fell asleep and began to snore next minute. She put a pillow under his head, removed his shoes and then sat down to read, as follows:

BOWSER'S VIEW OF HOG ISLAND.

"Gay Old Boys going to have a steamboat excursion, and I shall go along."

"Have talked the matter over with Mrs. B., and she agrees that a day off will do me worlds of good. Wanted her to come along, but she said she was no gay old gal."

"Was at the wharf at 9 o'clock this morning. Most of the Gay Old Boys present."

"Ginger ale before we started. Object, to give us ginger."

"Beautiful steamboat, beautiful water, beautiful day. We haven't gone a hundred rods yet, but I feel a year younger. This is what I have needed —a day off. Some ginger ale. Object to add to the ginger of the occasion."

Lemonade.

"We are now passing Hog Island.
Beautiful island. Mrs. B. would appreciate it. Hog ought to be proud to have an island named after him. Feel two years younger. Feel like whooping. All the Old Boys drinking lemonade. Object to get the twang."

"Just passed Lonely Island. It is sad to meet with a lonely island and know that you can't help the case. Some philanthropist should buy other islands and plant them around Lonely."

"Have just sung a song for the Gay Old Boys. It was entitled 'The Old Oak Bucket.' Carried us all back to our childhood days. Applause tremendous. Wish Mrs. B. could have heard it. She thinks I'm no singer. Spruce beer to clear our throats."

"We are now passing Cat Island.
Beautiful island. I feel three years younger. Named after cats, I suppose, but I'm not worrying about it."

"Have just discovered that my scarfpin is gone. The captain of the boat may have picked it off, but I'm not going to say anything about it. He's a man with a large family and a small salary and needs all the scarfpins he can acquire."

"Beautiful day. Water limpid. Ozone delightful. Some more spruce beer."

"One of the Gay Old Boys has just made a speech. Very funny. Haven't laughed so much in ten years. Wish Mrs. B. could see me laughing. Feel four years younger. It's like a trip to Europe. We have just had another lemonade all around. The twang is delightful."

"We are approaching Skedunk island, our destination. Sits like a gem in the sea. One of the Gay Old Boys has just knocked my hat overboard, but nothing can mar the harmony of the occasion. Feel five years younger."

"Landed on the island. Ideal spot.
Gay Old Boys feel like a lot of colts.
Wish Mrs. B. could see me turning cart wheels. Luncheon and ginger ale.
Have lent one of the club $20 to pay his rent. Feel good. Feel liberal. Shan't say anything to Mrs. B." about lending the money. She's a liberal.

Hammer Throwing.

"Foot races, wrestling, boxing and throwing the hammer. Then we disport ourselves in the beryl deep. Was all of ten years younger. My disporting was greeted with loud and long continued applause."

"While I was disporting some one ashore took my watch. Probably some Gay Old Boy did it for a joke.
Shan't say anything to Mrs. B. about it until I know. She always worries about such things."

"On ceasing to disport in the beryl had some elderberry wine. Brought back the days of my childhood when mother used to make it. If elderberry wine wasn't good for folks mothers wouldn't make it."

"Had misunderstanding with Gay Old Boy about something, and we closed in a tempestuous struggle. No damage, however, and we kissed and made up. Think it was lemonade this time."

"None of the other Gay Old Boys is keeping a diary of the trip to show to the wife. This shows how much I appreciate Mrs. B."

"Have just made a speech to the assembled multitude. Can't say what it was about, but it was a corker. It fetched 'em. Tu-m-tu-m-tu-m-tu-m.
Cries of hurrah for Bowser. Wish the speech could have been taken down to read to Mrs. B. She thinks I'm no speechist."

"It was moved and seconded and unanimously passed that old Bowser was one of the gayest of the Old Boys.
Mrs. B. ought to know what kind of a husband she's got. There are times when she doesn't seem to appreciate me. Ginger ale this time."

"While engaged in the game of throwing the hammer I threw it half a mile and knocked two men down.
Tempestuous applause and no great damage done. Wish Mrs. B. could have seen that throw. She thinks I'm no throwist. Elderberry wine to celebrate the feat. Made me think of my mother."

Homeward Bound With a Head.

"We are on the voyage home. Home is a blessed word, and yet somehow I don't care to go home—that is, not this eve."

"Just sung 'mother song for Gay Old Boys.' It was either 'The Sweet By and By' or 'Annie Rooney,' but whichever it was it went with a bang. In their mad enthusiasm the crowd threw me down and took my ring and purse. Little too much enthusiasm, but let's have a good time. I will have to tell Mrs. B. something or other, but she's an unsuspicious, innocent soul."

"Just grounded on a sand bar. That called for the lemonade."

"Just got off. That called for ginger ale."

"We are drawing near home. Most of us have been asleep for the last two hours. A day to be remembered. May also be a night to be remembered."

"Mrs. Bowser will go to bed about ten. If I don't get home until midnight she ought to be sound asleep.
New cider from harvest applies this time."

"Steamer at wharf. Gay Old Boys bidding each other goodby. Elderberry wine all gone. City seems all turned around and on wrong side of river. City seems standing on its head.
If Mrs. B. has only gone to bed and I can get upstairs without waking her—Mrs. Bowser laid the little book aside."

"That was the last entry, and Bowser was sleeping like a lamb. The look on his face was trusting and innocent.
No, she could not take his life. She brought a shawl to throw over him, removed his collar and tie and then returned the diary to his pocket. The house was kept quiet until midafternoon. Then Mr. Bowser awoke and said:

"The steamer was late, and I didn't want to wake you up."

"No? Have a good time?"

"Now! Stupidest time you ever saw."

And he will keep right on thinking he fooled her.

One Better.

"When I was a young girl," titters the first old lady, "one of my beaux bugged me so hard he broke one of my ribs."

"Humph!" replies the second old lady, adjusting her glasses and smoothing back her hair in conscious pride.
"When I was a young girl one of my beaus bugged me so hard he broke one of his arms."—Life.

thing about baseball?

"So you are going to leave your flat and run a furnace in your own house."
"Yes. It'll be some trouble. But think of the glory of being looked up to as if you were the janitor."—Washington Star.

was a total failure?

To Celebrate Emancipation.

Preparations are being made by the leading colored citizens of Salisbury for a big celebration here on Thursday, October 6th, in honor of the Emancipation Proclamation. Colored organization all over the Eastern Shore are expected to take part, and fully 1,000 marchers will be in line. Fine bands of music have been engaged for the occasion. Several noted negro orators, among them Booker T. Washington, having accepted invitations to be present.

The committee having the arrangements in charge is composed of S. T. Houston, W. P. Parker, J. L. Birkhead, H. O. Pinkett, Emory L. Birkhead, U. G. Langston, Jas. F. Stewart.

Took Him at His Word.

In the year of 1083 the forces of King Alfonso VI. attacked the Moors and drove them out of Madrid. In this connection there is a legend that the Segovians, who were allies of Alfonso, had been checked by the snows in the mountain passes of Puenfria and were therefore late in overtaking the main body of the army, which had set down before Madrid. "Sire," they inquired of the king, "where shall we camp?" "Inside the city," returned Alfonso with a sneer, being angry with them because of their tardiness. They took the king at his word, carried the walls, and the next morning the banner of Segovia was floating from a turret of the gate of Guadalajara.

A thoughtful conclusion. "Pa," said Willie thoughtfully, "I think I know what the minister meant when he said, 'It is more blessed to give than to receive.'"

"Yes," replied his pa. "Well, what did he mean?"

"Castor oil."

aged by L. H. White, of this city, won the $500 purse in the match race which took place here Thursday afternoon on the track of the Wicomico Fair Association. Julia Marlowe, the other entrant, owned by W. H. Collins, of Bishopville, Md., was apparently in good condition but was either outclassed or the driver did not want to win as the judges had him removed in the third heat and placed Asbury Perdue in charge of the horse.

Notwithstanding the fact that Hannis Boy taken three straight heats the race was, however, closely contested and not during either heat was Julia Marlowe far behind when the other horse passed under the goal.

Thousands of spectators who had gathered at Salisbury from all sections of the Peninsula were apparently satisfied with the decision of the judges.
Most of the betting was placed on an even basis, occasionally odds being given in favor of Hannis Boy. The time 2:24, 2:24, 2:30.

Doings Of The Council.

Applications for building permits were granted as follows: To Claude C. Sermon, barn on Jackson Avenue; to Annie B. Burton, stables on Elizabeth Street, to S. E. Hayman, barn on Main Street. Extended: to Clarence West, dwelling on Booth Street, to Benjamin Davis, dwelling on East Locust Street.

The City Solicitor was authorized to prepare an ordinance regulating the removal of garbage from the streets and private residences by the city authorities.

The assessors submitted their books containing the assessment of all new property to be taxed for corporation purposes for the year 1910. The returns show an increase of about $150,000 over 1909.

Peninsula Produce Exchange.

The cantaloupe season which closed a few weeks ago was a busy one in this section. The Peninsula Produce Exchange handled a large portion of the crop raised in the vicinity of Salisbury, of course the exchange did not handle nearly all the crops much of it was shipped through the Agents, and the operations of the Exchange did not extend all over the County.

The report of the Exchange managers is to the effect that in Salisbury and the immediate vicinity the Exchange handled 45,800 crates of can-taloupes, including the different sizes, 30's, 45's and the culls. Taking the crop as handled by the Exchange for Salisbury and vicinity it netted the growers $29,750.27, making an average of 64 9-10 cents a crate.

From these figures it is estimated that in the whole county the can-taloupe crop netted the growers at least $100,000.00. As the crop was short this is considered a very good showing for the growers and gives an idea of what the growing of cantaloupes means to the truckers of Wicomico County.

There were many crates of can-taloupes shipped which would have brought more money had they been properly packed. The growers have not yet learned as a class the importance of properly packing their melons. It is always best to select the melons and mark the bad ones as culls. By this method the grower really gets more out of his entire shipment than he does where he mixes his melons, good ones and bad ones, in the same crates.

MORE LIGHT ON THE PAST OF THOMAS HUDSON.

Attorney For Mrs. Hudson Has Received Many Letters From People Who Knew Hudson In His Early Manhood.

Mr. V. Calvin Trice, counsel for Mrs. Tobias Hudson, who is incarcerated in the Wicomico county jail, at Salisbury, charged with the murder of her husband, Tobias Hudson, has received a number of letters from persons who claim to have known Hudson in early manhood and prior to the time that he went to Cambridge.
One of these which is from Moren, Pa., is as follows:

MR. V. CALVIN TRICE, Cambridge, Md.

My Dear Sir: Pardon me, a stranger, writing to you, but as I see by the public press that you are retained to defend Mrs. Tobias Hudson for killing her husband, and the name attracted my attention, I wish to tell you a short story.

In July or August, 1862, at Philadelphia, the 11th Regiment, Pennsylvania Volunteers, "Collins' Zouaves D'Afrique" was organized. There joined Co. D, a young boy, between sixteen and eighteen years of age, by the name of Tobias Hudson. He was a hard scum, dare devil sort of a chump, not amenable to discipline; claimed the credit of being the first one in the guard house; had to be tied up and even buckled and gagged to close his mouth to stop the profanity and obscenity that he was shouting out in the presence of the lady friends of officers and men who were visiting the camp. The regiment went to Washington in September and Hudson's (we had nicknamed him Jason) conduct was no better, and he suddenly disappeared.

In the winter of 1863-1864, while the regiment was lying at Brandy Station, Va., the company, as well as the members of the regiment, were surprised to have the provost guard turn Hudson over to the company to serve his time, he had been arrested for deserting. Camped near the 11th was the 3rd Penna. Cavalry. Hudson soon became intimate with a member of the Regiment named Mr. John Johnson (now a merchant and resident of the city of Hazelton, Pa.) and under some pretext he got Mr. Johnson to loan him his horse and equipment to take a ride. That was the last Mr.
Johnson ever saw of his horse, or anyone saw of Tobias Hudson in his Company or Regiment.

After the war, sometime in the 70's or 80's—I don't remember which—I read an account of the arrest of the notorious horse thief, Tobias Hudson, in one of the Western counties of Maryland. In the statement of his wife she says he told her he had trouble in a Western county of Maryland and shot a sheriff; also that she did not know where he came from or anything about his people. We never heard him speak of his people or where he came from.
He had a way by which he could make friends easily and yet he appeared to be a sort of an "Ishmaelite."

"Our" Tobias Hudson would be about from 65 to 65 years old. Perhaps you can trace your Tobias Hudson to be our horse thief and deserter and Western Maryland horse thief.

Yours respectfully,

Southern Circus King To Invade The North.

E. Haag, proprietor of the Mighty Haag show, which exhibits in Salisbury on Sept. 29th, is considered the Circus King below the Mason and Dixon line, has decided in his sixteenth transcontinental tour to come north of the Mason and Dixon line, being the first time the big southern circus has ever been out of its own territory.
The invasion will be watched by jealous eyes by the big northern king of circuses; and a big novelty is in store for the northern people as they will have a chance to see the south-erner as he really and truly is in all phases of his life, as the show is managed, directed, owned and all departments are peopled by southerners only.

There will be real southern beauties riding blue ribboned Kentucky bred horses; the southern colonels will be in evidence, with his wide brimmed white hat, together with the "yes sah," that has made the southerner famous.

Mr. Haag also claims to have the finest sixteen head of Kentucky mules which are world wide renowned, and will be of great interest to horsemen of this section. Taking it all in, a great treat is in store for public where-ever the Mighty Haag Shows exhibit.

PROCEEDINGS OF THE SCHOOL BOARD.

Enrollment Exceeds That of Last Year—Additional Teachers Required. Mr. A. Ellis Frampton Appointed Teacher.

The School Board had a busy session Friday. The following business was transacted:

The date for opening the colored schools outside of Salisbury was fixed for October 17, and the date for closing March 2. The Colored Industrial School in Salisbury will open on Oct. 2.

A large delegation of the patrons of English School, in Barren Creek District, was before the board and asked that the school be continued.
The board had considered closing this school and sending the pupils to the new Mardela Graded School, but in view of the fact that it was shown that most of the pupils of English School were too young to go the distance of two miles or more to Mar-dela, the board ordered the English School opened. Some minor repairs were ordered made to the building.

The following resignations of teachers were accepted: Miss Beulah Melson, assistant at Parsonsburg; Miss Berkeley Wright, assistant at Mardela; Miss Martha Huffington assistant at Delmar. The County Superintendent was instructed to get in conference with several applicants for schools and fill these vacancies.

County Superintendent Holloway reported to the board that the total enrollment in the schools of Salisbury the first week of opening was 869, divided in the various schools as follows:

Wicomico High School—8th grade, 88; 9th grade, 40; 10th grade, 10; 11th grade, 18; total 156.
Salisbury Grammar School, Bell Street—4th grade, 47; 5th grade, 60; 7th grade, 55; total 162.

Central Primary School, W. Chestnut Street—4th grade, 47; 5th grade, 47; 6th grade, 35; 7th grade, 35; 1st grade, 42; total 206.

East Salisbury Primary School—4th grade, 35; 5th grade, 33; 2nd grade, 35; 1st grade, 45; total 148.

Camden Primary School—4th grade, 28; 5th grade, 47; 2nd grade, 45; 1st grade, 66; total 186.

The board decided this year to devote entirely to the high school grades, (8th, 9th, 10th, 11th) the Wicom-ico High School Building, and to organize a Grammar School in the Bell Street building, housing nothing but the 5th, 6th, 7th grades in this building. Mr. A. Ellis Frampton, of Easton, was appointed teacher of the 7th grade.

In Memoriam.

Died Sunday Sept. 11th, Thomas Allen Smith, eldest son of the late Thomas B. and Margaret E. Smith, in the 33rd year of his life.

It is my desire here to pay a feeble tribute to his worth and character. Born and reared in Salisbury he has ever been a familiar figure in the city of his birth and his death was mourned by many of its citizens. This was attested by the large concourse of friends who attended his funeral and speaks more eloquently than any word of eulogy I might pen.

Possibly the most conspicuous trait in his character was his never varying devotion to his family—their comfort—their welfare and their happiness was the predominant study of his life. Everything beside was merely secondary. Next was his true loyalty to friends. No limit was reached in his service to them and its performance was characterized by a modesty which was unassuming.

He was gentle yet courageous fearless in the expression of any conviction but ever actuated by his high sense of duty and no man can point to a single act in his life that was tinctured with anything but high ideals.

These virtues were in his being during his tender years by a pious mother whose beautiful christian character we of her children can hear true testimony. A mother whose memory will ever be enshrined in our hearts.
This training is stamped on every son and daughter he has left behind and upon the bereaved widow and the fatherless children may Heaven's richest blessings rest.

His remains were carried to their last resting place amid a profusion of flowers and tears while our hearts went out for his stricken family.

May He who "tempereth the winds and who will not break the barred reed." Throw around them his strong arm of support and grant them that Peace which passeth all understanding.

DISASTROUS FIRE PLAYS HARROW AT HURLOCK.

Completely Devours Mill of C. A.
Thompson And Sons, Destroying Thursday Evening, Sept. 15th.

For the second time within the last few months Hurlock was visited by a disastrous fire Thursday morning, when the entire mill plant and office, together with thousands of feet of lumber, both dressed and undressed, doors, window sash and boxes for commercial uses, belonging to C. A.
Thompson & Sons, were destroyed.

The loss is estimated at from $10,000 to $15,000, partly insured. Near the mill plant is Neal's tin factory and Bell & Co.'s roller mills. By the most careful kind of work these were saved.

As Hurlock has no water plugs near the mill the firemen were greatly handicapped, and it was necessary to summon help from this city. An engine and hose were quickly sent to that town and did great service in preventing the flames from reaching the roller mill and tin factory. Before the Salisbury firemen arrived the water supply gave out and the Hurlock firemen were compelled to summon a railroad engine from Seaford to pump water into their standpipes.

During the excitement the railroad track and a freight car on the siding caught fire and were destroyed. The lumber yard, containing great piles of lumber, caught fire, but half of this was saved by hard work.

A few months ago Hurlock suffered a $25,000 loss from fire. The fire originated in the engine room of the mill.

The mill burned gave more regular employment than any other business at Hurlock.

Will Have Garbage System.

At the meeting of the Mayor and Council Monday night Mrs. Levin D.
Collier appeared before the body to press her arguments for the establishment of a garbage system for Salisbury. Mrs. Collier had been before the Council on several occasions relative to this matter and finally got their consent to give the matter a trial. The reason the Council has not established the system sooner was on account of the expense. It will cost the city considerable money to collect the garbage. Mrs. Collier was authorized by the Council to appoint a committee of ladies to aid in getting the town generally cleaned up. She named Mrs. Fannie Adams, Miss Irma Graham and Miss Shields. Superintendent of the Hospital to work with her in the effort to have a general cleaning up of the town in every section.
This committee of ladies will take up this matter at once and try and interest the women in all sections of the city to aid them in the first general clean up.

Keeping Poultry.

A very prominent poultryman says he never has any disease among his poultry because he makes it a practice to keep a good sharp ax always ready, and by killing and burning any bird showing symptoms of any other than a simple trouble and by maintaining strict cleanliness in and around the poultry quarters he has stamped out disease.

A Man Of Iron Nerve.

Prompting the Prompter.

Like all artists, Sir Henry Irving sometimes allowed the line he was to speak evade his memory for the moment, but so seldom his prompter grew careless. One night Sir Henry turned to the wings and said, "Line, please." The prompter was busy chatting, and Sir Henry repeated, "Line, line!" There was a rustling of leaves, and then a distressed voice murmured, "Which line, Sir Henry?"

The Lash of a Friend.

Would have been about as welcome to A. Cooper, of Oswego, N. Y., as a merciless lung-racking cough that defied all remedies for years. "It was most troublesome at night," he writes, "nothing helped me till I used Dr. King's New Discovery which cured me completely. I never cough at night now." Millions know its matchless merit for stubborn colds, croup, whooping cough, asthma, influenza, and all other lung troubles. It cures quickly and never fails to satisfy. A trial convinces. ## KEEP THE KIDNEYS WELL.

Buckley's Kidney Pills, And Some Salubrious People Know How To Save It.

Many Salisbury people take their lives in their hands by neglecting the kidneys when they know their organs need help. Sick kidneys are responsible for a vast amount of suffering and ill health, but there is no need to suffer nor to remain in danger when all diseases and pains due to weak kidneys can be quickly and permanently cured by the use of Doan's Kidney Pills. Here is a Salisbury citizen's recommendation.

Mrs. John L. Baker, 813 Baker Street, Salisbury, Md., says: "A year or so ago I procured Doan's Kidney Pills at White & Leonard's Drug Store and after taking them a short time, I found relief from kidney complaint. I had been bothered a great deal by a lame back and a heavy, bearing-down sensation through my hips. No matter what I took, this misery clung to me and I was also bothered, when I arose in the morning, by a stiffness across my loins. I at last procured Doan's Kidney Pills at White & Leonard's Drug Store and in return for the benefit they brought me, I consider them worthy of my endorsement."

$100 Reward, $100.

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials.

There Was No Other Course.

The New England boiled dinner and other dishes like pork and beans, baked codfish and pumpkin pie best appealed to the appetite of Chief Justice Melville W. Fuller. It was said in Washington that the Fuller Saturday night dinner was baked beans and nothing else, and this story is told: "One evening the chief justice, possibly forgetting that it was Saturday, asked a distinguished English jurist home to dinner with him. When the beans came on the Englishman promptly declined them. Mrs. Fuller showed some embarrassment, whereupon the Englishman amiably said: 'Never mind. I'll make it up in the next course.' But, good Lord, exclaimed the chief justice, 'there isn't any other course!' And there wasn't. In addition to being a very small eater the chief justice was a moderate smoker of modestly priced cigars. He was said to smoke the same kind of cigars, as far as they were obtainable, that he smoked when he was struggling hard to establish a living law business in Chicago in the old days. He said he was attached to these cheap cigars by ties of sentiment and tender recollection and that nothing else would taste so good to him."—Springfield Republican.

"Pins and Needles."

After being for a long time in a constrained attitude a peculiar numbness and pricking are often felt in the arm, leg or foot. This is caused by some interruption to the circulation and can usually be removed by rubbing or exercise. The reason of the sensation, which is decidedly uncomfortable while it lasts, is that pressure for a certain length of time deadens the sensibility of a nerve. When this pressure is suddenly removed, as straightening out the leg after sitting with it doubled underneath the body, sensibility gradually returns to the nerve, and as each nerve fiber composing the trunk regains its normal condition of sensibility a pricking sensation is felt, and these successive prickings from the successive awakenings of the numerous fibers have not infrequently been called "pins and needles."

Curved Bridges of Japan.

The curved bridges of Japan are of three kinds—first, those known as spectacle bridges, with an arch in the center suggesting a pair of spectacles; second, the camel back bridges, which go up very high indeed; third, the ordinary one arch, semicircular bridges. The reason the Japanese so often have curved bridges is because until modern times they could not build them flat, and even today there is no key stone to the Japanese arches. They are not generally familiar with the keystone. A great many of two classes of bridges—camels and spectacles—have been carried across the sea to the United States, where they are found in China, Japan, and elsewhere.

UNWRITTEN LAW AGAIN.

May Be Relied Upon to Clear Mrs. Hudson of Murder.

Seldom does a man earn the money to buy a pistol to be killed with. Tobias Hudson, who was shot by his wife in this city last Friday, gave his wife $5 on Thursday to pay her fare back to Cambridge, where she was to go that evening. She used the money to purchase the pistol and cartridges that she used to shoot him.

Every effort on the part of the local authorities, assisted by W. Irving Place, of Cambridge, the counsel for Hudson, to find out something of Hudson's past has met with failure. Yesterday Mr. Mace and State's Attorney Joseph L. Bailey, with others, visited the house where Hudson had been living with Mrs. Workman and made a thorough search. They located some old jewelry, such as watches, rings, etc., but nothing pertaining to Hudson's past was found.

Mr. Mace said this morning that he had made a will for Hudson about three months ago, and that from information obtained thought it would be located in a bank at Laurel, Del., where Hudson lived before moving to this city.

D. Calvin Trice, an attorney of Cambridge, has taken charge of the case for Mrs. Hudson, and will, no doubt, try to secure her freedom through the "unwritten law." Mrs. Hudson is in a nervous condition. It is now feared that she will break down before the trial will take place.

R. H. Patchett Dead.

R. Harry Patchett, aged 47 years, a member of the city council of Boston and the junior member of the furniture and undertaking firm of Samuel Patchett & Son, died this morning at the Emergency Hospital from concussion of the brain. He was thrown from his snail Saturday afternoon while, with John K. Canby, of Trappe, he was at the track speeding his trotting mare, Rosie Allerton. When the accident occurred he was on the track alone.

Dr. Arthur Shipley, of the Maryland University Hospital, Baltimore, arrived last night and operated upon Mr. Patchett, who did not regain consciousness after the accident. He leaves a wife and son, Powell Patchett, who was in business with his father and grandfather. Mr. Patchett was a prominent Mason and well-known in yachting and racing and adjacent states.

The death of Mr. Patchett will necessitate a special election for a city councilman from the First ward, he having been elected last May for two years.

"Follow the Leader."

A nervous commuter on his dark, lonely way home from the railroad station heard footsteps behind him. He had an uncomfortable feeling that he was being followed. He increased his speed. The footsteps quickened accordingly. The footsteps still pursued him, in desperation he vaulted over a fence and, rushing into a churchyard, threw himself panting on one of the graves.

"If he follows me here," he thought, fearfully, "there can be no doubt as to his intentions."

The man was following. He could hear him scrambling over the fence. Visions of highwaymen, mauls, garrotes and the like flashed through his brain. Quivering with fear, the nervous one arose and faced the pursuer.

"What do you want?" he demanded. "Why—why are you following me?" "Say," asked the stranger, mopping his brow, "do you always go home like that? I am going up to Mr. Brown's, and the man at the station told me to follow you, as you lived next door. Excuse my asking you, but is there much more to do before we get there?"—Ladies' Home Journal.

Respect In Uncouth Form.

Discussing the fact that kings never visit America, Frederick Townsend Martin, the author, said at a luncheon in New York:

"It is not because we wouldn't treat them respectfully that reigning monarchs never visit us. I am sure it is a reigning monarch came to our shores we would treat him with the greatest respect."

"But we are ignorant of the intricate etiquette, the forms and ceremonials whereby such respect is expressed. It is this ignorance which keeps the reigning monarch away."

"It would be bad for him and bad for us, you know. If our respect took some uncouth form—if it called to mind the new office boy who, observing that a disaster had befallen his master's apartment, slipped into the main hall a note saying:—

"Honored sir, you damns is tipped."—Philadelphia Record.

Of course, "What's the matter?" "Well, of something in my head."

"What's the matter?" "Well, of something in my head."

IN THE COUNTRY.

"E. Honorant said: 'You're ter de mean.' " "Gilt out wid de hayseeds an' rest." "An' you feelin' dopey, flat beat it. Bellerin' 'em all fur de best. So here's where I landed last We'n'sday, caught here wid de come-on an' 'Rube' an' 'Rube' around me but scenery 'an' 'Rube' fresh air t'rough me tubes. But rest? Jumpin' 'Rube'! Where is it? Well, maybe de 'Rube' is 'Rube'! But say, if de 'Rube' is 'Rube'! De class o' de trolley fur minet."

"I ain't sleep a wink on de level. I ain't closed a peeper at night. Say, listen, I'm can'ted be de racket. De 'Rube' binds 'Rube' when dey 'Rube'."

"Katie did!" yells one bird; den another.

He ups an' he tells him, "You lie!" Den dey's one a bunch o' wide party. "An' ches, how de lankers dey dey? Sympa boller shop simply ain't in it. Wild dat aggregation. Niti! Niti! It dese country noises is quiet. De slane o' de trolley fur minet."

Back, back to de civilization. I'm makin' de straighten' bee line. Rest up wid de Rube! If youse want ter. De class o' de trolley fur minet. T. A. Daly in Catholic Standard and Times.

Pity the Druggist. He came to town and wandered into the big drug emporium without removing the mud from his boots.

"Do you give four stamped envelopes for 3 cents, mister?"

"We generally charge 10, but I guess you can have them."

"Got any sample cough drops?"

"Here are a few."

"Any old cigar boxes you don't want?"

"Here's a couple."

"All the 1910 almanacs gone?"

"Long ago."

"But other drug stores keep a few on hand."

"We don't."

"That's funny. Let me see some of your fancy soap."

"Want to buy a box?"

"Nope; want to study the French games. Some of those city college gals are coming down on the farm to board, and I want to spring a few French words on them, that's all."—Chicago News.

When the Skies Rain Fire. The Navigating Officer—Admiral, the enemy's fighting atslip has been sighted above the western horizon.

The Admiral—Call all hands to quarters. Hoist the grenade proof netting over the quarterdeck. Raise the steel roof screens above the magazines. Spread the rubber sheathing aft. Get out the aeroplane destroyers. Fill the tubes with slugs and nails. Couple on the fire hose. He may drop nitroglycerin. Don't forget to have a crew of trusty men to work the shifting caps over the mouths of the smokestacks. And, Billings!"

"Aye, aye, sir."

"Order up my triple steel helmet and upholstered shoulder pads. That fellow may drop oranges."

"Aye, aye, sir."—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Art as It Is. "Among the students who did most to prevent my task being a success," says Mr. Beckwith, "was one young woman whose backwardness and total lack of interest finally roused my ire. While criticizing an unusually bad piece of her work I asked exasperatedly, 'Why do you come here anyway?'"

"Because," she answered, "my twin sister takes her ballet lesson at just this hour, and I have to do something, so I thought I would study art."—McDonald's Magazine.

Handing Her a Tip.

"Miss Freckle—Doctor, what is the secret of beauty?" "Be born pretty."

How the Quarrel Began. Young Husband (to wife)—Didn't I telegraph to you not to bring your mother with you?

Young Wife—I know. That's what she wants to see you about. She read the telegram—New York Journal.

A Prediction. "What are you going to be when you grow up, Tommy?" asked the clergyman while waiting for Tommy's mamma to come down into the parlor.

"An orphan," said Tommy proudly.—Harper's Weekly.

Plenty of Them. Boy—My pa's a skipper too! Skipper—Indeed! What craft does he command?

Boy—Aw, he don't command no craft. He skipped ter Canada.—Buffalo Times.

His Kick. "But why do you talk of getting a divorce?" You told me yourself that I make beauty just like your mother used to make."

"That's the reason,"—Houston Post.

An Extra In the Family.

Walter Williams tells this newspaper story: "When the first child arrived in the family of an editor friend of mine he and his wife named it Alpha. When the fourth came some years later they decided that was enough and called it Omega. But a year or two later No. 5 came along anyway. For a time it puzzled them to find a name which would not seem ridiculous for a child born after Omega, but the resourceful editor hit on a happy thought and named it Supplement."—Kansas City Star.

How Climate Has Changed.

In Switzerland a mean temperature equal to that of north Africa at the present time is shown by its fossil flora to have prevailed during the mi-ocene or middle tertiary epoch. Anthropoid apes lived in Germany and France; fig and cinnamon trees flourished at Danzig; in Greenland, up to 70 degrees of latitude, magnolias bloomed and vines ripened their fruit, while in Spitzbergen and even in Grinnell Land, within little more than 8 degrees of the pole, swamp cypresses and walnuts, cedars, limes, planes and poplars grew freely, water lilies covered over standing pools and fishes lifted their tall heads by the margins of streams and rivers.—Dundee Advertiser.

The Verdict.

When the time came for the renomination of a member of a southern legislature, the member sauntered down to the corner store one night to sound out the opinion of his townsmen as to whether he should be sent back to the capital of his state as a lawmaker.

"Well, boys," he said to the assembled politicians, "what about it?" There was an embarrassing pause.
"Speak right out, fellows," he encouraged the meeting.

"To tell the truth, Sam," said one of the crowd, "we've decided that, judging from what this hynd country got out of the legislature while you were there, we thought as well have writ a letter."—Argonaut.

Method in His Tipping.

Bank Director—I am surprised, sir, to learn that you drop into our bank every day and whisper tips to our cashier. Don't you know the information must be a great temptation to him to use the bank funds to speculate with?
Wealthy Broker—Yes.

"And yet you are a heavy stockholder in our bank."

"Just so."

"Then, in the name of common sense, what's your motive?"

"Well, the fact is, I don't know whether your cashier is honest or not, but if he isn't honest and if he does use the bank funds to speculate with I want him to keep on the right side of the market. See?"—New York Weekly.

Swiss English.

The charms of Babe English bid fair to be eclipsed by the men who write the advertisements of the Swiss hotels.
Travel and Exploration collects a few examples: "Artful executed Mauric dining saloon—light tower with sea and Alpine panorama." "A game parc with numerous beasts in the utmost idyllic small valley." "Carbonic acid baths, odoriferous baths and baths recommended by physicians." "Most ideal spring and autumn resort for those who seek recover and quietness. Un-rivaled stand-quarter for the most charming excursions." "Rooms provided almost with balconies." "Modern hotel in the place, directly into at the port railway station."

People Who Used to Eat Spiders.

The enjoyment of particular kinds of food is, after all, a matter of custom, and the African who revels in white ants is no more peculiar in his tastes than the European who eats cheese mites. A lady whom M. Reamur knew was accustomed to devour spiders as fast as she could catch them, and a German lady gave it as her opinion that these creatures resembled in taste the most delicious nuts. A fellow countryman of this lady was in the habit of regularly hunting spiders in his own and his friends' houses. He used to spread them on bread. Rosal tells us, and vowed that they were far pleasanter to the palate than butter.
—Cornhill Magazine.

Firmness.

Jones—Dear me! You say you often lay down the law to your wife. How do you go about it?

Bones—Why, all you need is firmness. I usually go into my study, lock the door and do it through the key hole.

"Yes, indeed, I do, and I'm waiting for this time to come when I can get even with them."

"But, mother, how are we to fix it up with Bart?"

"I don't know, Mame, unless you have the same power you used to have over him."

Mame cast a glance in a mirror. Art had done a great deal for her since she waited on the railroad men her mother fed in their days of poverty. Nothing that money could buy was now denied her. But she knew Bart Keith well. He had loved her in calico, and to love her in costly fabrics must excite an entirely new sensation. Besides, he was in the swim at Newport, where he would select the latest costumes in America, to any wedding of the women they incurred. To make matters worse, she had met him.

"Mother, she said, 'I believe I'll write him a line saying I've heard of his being in Newport and telling him were here. That'll look as if we hadn't seen him or the arrene.'

"Do you think he'd tumble to it?"

The girl pondered awhile, then admitted that she knew very well he would; their eyes had met and there had been a mutual recognition. She dare not write the note.

But one morning she received a note from Keith. He told her that, having heard she was at Newport, he had come on from the west to find her. But time had made great changes for both of them and he did not doubt she was following a course which seemed inviting to her in her new sphere. He shrank from parting with her without letting her know that he had kept the boyish promises made years ago. He refrained from mentioning the cut she had given him, but it was evident it was this that had turned him from her. He closed his epistle with the word "farewell," and she knew that he had passed beyond recall.

For a time the Murphys heard that Keith was being introduced under the wing of the Forbes. Then they began to hear his name mentioned among the people and in the society notes independently of his introducers, and it was not long before they learned that which travels on the wings of the wind. Keith was rich. He had become interested in certain western speculations with Mr. Forbes and the two had made money together. Then came a rumor that Keith was to marry Miss Alice Forbes.

Up to this time the Murphys had merely wondered. Now they were astonished. And ever Mary Murphy came a wave of regret. It was not for the loss of Barton Keith's wealth or position; it was for Keith himself. The times they sought for and for which she had snubbed the lover of her young girlhood every day, seemed farther from her grasp. Despite their millions, the Murphys found it impossible to effect an entrance into Newport society. Mary had become accustomed to wealth, and it failed to satisfy her. She was hungry for the boyish love that had been hers in poverty, but she had thrown it away.

The report that Keith was to marry Miss Alice Forbes proved true. When the engagement was formally announced the Murphys read in the society columns of a New York newspaper a story concerning the contracting parties that gave them the key to the situation. It told how Mr. and Mrs. Forbes and their daughter were traveling in the Rocky mountains, how a stage driver fell asleep, how a young man who had been formerly a handler of the ribbons saved the passengers from death, how Mr. Forbes had taken him up and enabled him to make a fortune. But the story did not tell the most important feature that had led to the union—a young girl seeing an act of cool bravery on the part of a young man.

The wedding of Barton Keith and Alice Forbes was not celebrated with that splendor usual to nuptials in the fashionable world. It was said 'that this was in deference to the wishes of the groom, who bore the reputation of being an extremely modest man. He devoted himself to business, his only recreation being driving four-in-hands, and this was supposed to be in memory of experiences of former days.

"Mother," said Mary Murphy one day, "I have a plan."

"What is it, Mame?"

"We can't break through the shell of this Newport egg. We must go else where."

"Where shall we go?"

"To London."

"Good gracious, daughter! If we can't succeed here, how can we do so among the British nobility?"

"Others who have failed here have succeeded there. Leave it to me. Money, dear mother, is the power that opens doors wherever money is needed. These British nobles are getting poor. Our people are getting rich. Many here have always been rich, and some care nothing about becoming richer. In England commoners have been getting rich, while the noble have been getting poor. Noblemen would prefer to marry an American than a commoner of their own country, there being no titles here. I shall go to London, marry a title and come back here for just long enough to snub those who have snubbed us."

Two years later Mary Murphy returned to Newport as the countess Munkemunden. Her advent was heralded, and when she arrived invitations were piled on her table. Before long for those she intended to accept.

It is not so much to say that the medical profession today no longer believes that any drug, with a few exceptions, like quinine, has a curative effect on the disease, as such. All that it will do is to modify conditions as to help the body in its fight against disease.

We are no longer content with the biting phrases of Voltaire, to "pour drugs of which we know little into bodies of which we know less." What will help one patient will harm another, and what may be beneficial in the early stage of a disease will be useless or even injurious in a later stage.

In the language of Captain Cuttle, the effect of a drug like "the beating of an observation," "depends on the application on it." It is neither rational nor safe blindly to swallow down a drug which is highly recommended in a certain disease and expect it to "do the rest." There is no such thing as a universal cure for a disease nor even a remedy which can be relied upon as "a good thing to take" at any and all stages of it.—Dr. Woods Hutchinson in Delineator.

Gagadig Gigadab.

There was a quaint old man in Manchester, England, who for many years went by the unique name of Gagadig Gigadab. His original name was John Smith, and for many years he brooded over the possibilities of mistaken identity involved in it. The name figured frequently in criminal records, and he became abnormally apprehensive lest he might be confused with some of the bad John Smiths. At last what he feared so much actually happened. One morning the papers reported the arrest of an accountant in a bank for embezzlement, and through the blunder of the reporter the identical name of the embezzler was confused with the subject of this article, who was also a bank accountant. Then and there he determined to assume a name like unto no other ever borne by mortal man. And in Gagadig Gigadab most people will agree that he succeeded in so doing.—New York Tribune.

Legally Better Off.

The creditors of the ancient king had become so unpleasantly insistent that he resolved to put them where they could trouble him no more. So he invited them to a great banquet, and when they had feasted and drunk of his prepared wine he instructed his servants to convey them to his deepest dungeons. And the next morning when he went down to learn whether his servants had done his bidding his creditors raised their voices and entreated to be set free. But he remonstrated with them, saying:

"My friends, you have no just cause for complaint. Are you not better off in the eye of the law than ever before? Any lawyer will tell you that a secured creditor has an exceptional claim." Then he left them and went on his gladsome way, happy in the knowledge that he could at last go through his dominions without being dunned.—Chicago News.

Showering Mugs.

The musical doctor stepped into the shop.

His hair stuck out like stiff straws, and his joy of life was under his arm; also two buttons on his waistcoat were undone. So there was no doubt about his being a genius.

"Aha, ahem, ahem," purred the musical doctor. "Earning for a violin, please?"

The man behind the counter looked flustered. He went to the shelf, took off a small packet, examined it carefully, examined it again and then hesitatingly returned to the customer.

"I beg your pardon sir," he began diffidently, "but this appears to be my first day in the shop, and yer might give me a little 'elp. The fact is these 'ere strings look all alike to me, an' I can't tell the 'es from the sheet"—London Globe.

Firearms in Russia.

As an illustration of how closely everything is watched in Russia, take its system of registering firearms. When a weapon of any kind is purchased a permit must be secured from the local authorities. The name of the man who makes the purchase will be the number of the weapon is recorded. If the purchaser ever wants to dispose of the weapon he must notify the authorities and cause the transfer to be recorded on the books of the arm which sold it.

An Anachronism.

When some celebrated pictures of Adam and Eve were seen on exhibition Mr. Michael was taken to see them. "I think no more things of the serpent," said the salesman. "Why man, tempting Adam was a pipkin of a variety that women known unto about twenty years ago."

---

Hindering the Process.

Doctor—Well, John, how are you to day?

John—Very bad; very bad. I wish Providence 'ud 'ave money on me and take me.

Wife—Ow can you expect it to if you won't take the doctor's physic?

London Mail.

Her Answer.

In inculcating the idea of truthfulness a teacher asked the question "What is the best thing in the world to do and sometimes the hardest?"

A little girl raised her hand timidly "Well, my child?" "To get married!"

---

Too Fond of Them.

"Is he fond of outdoor sports?"

"Yes. His wife complains that he spends more time with them than with her."

General Passenger Agent.

Trouble For the Tourists.
There is a story on record of three Irishmen rushing away from the race meeting at Punchestown to catch a train back to Dublin. At the moment a train from a long distance pulled up at the station, and the three men scrambled in. In the carriage was seated one other passenger. As soon as they had regained their breath one said:

"Pat, have you got th' tickets?"
"What tickets? I've got me loife!
I thought I'd have lost that gettin' in th' train. Have you got 'em, Molloy?"
"O! Begorrah, I haven't!"
"Oh, we're all done for, then!" said the third. They'll charge us right from th' other side of Ireland!" The old gentleman looked over his newspaper and said:

"You are quite safe, gentlemen. Wait till we get to th' next station." As soon as the train pulled up the little gentleman jumped out and came back with three first class tickets.
Handing them to the astonished strangers, he said: "Whist! I'll tell you how I did it! I went along th' train.
Tickets, please; tickets, please! I called and these looked up to three Saxon tourists in another carriage."

Banks on the Lookout.
A merchant in a large city allowed his name to be posted in his club three times for nonpayment of dues. A few days after the last posting he applied to his bank for a loan. When the application came up to the bank's credit man—that newest of a bank's important officials—he pulled out the customer's history card.

The latest entry was one typewritten sentence, "Does not pay his club dues; three times delinquent." The loan was refused. The merchant was either careless, near broke or unappreciative of his credit standing. Any of these reasons looked bad to the banker.

Business men do not realize how closely their banks watch them—how much the banks are bound to know about their affairs, how much seemingly small things in their daily lives affect credit, and big things that they sometimes want to conceal too.—System Magazine.

Eddystone Island.
The smallest inhabited island in the world is that on which the Eddystone lighthouse stands. At low water it is thirty feet in diameter. At high water the lighthouse, whose diameter at the base is eight and three-fourths feet, completely covers it. It is inhabited by three persons. It lies nine miles off the Cornish coast and fourteen miles southeast of Plymouth breakwater.
Batholme, an island in the British channel, is only a mile and a half in circumference, but, consisting mostly of rich pasture lands, supports a farmhouse besides the lighthouse, with a revolving light 150 feet above the sea.
There are about 100,000 islands, large and small, scattered over the oceans.
America alone has 5,500 around its coasts. There are 225 in the Bay of Rio Janeiro, 16,000 between Madagascar and India and some 1,200 off the eastern coast of Australia between its mainland and New Guinea.

Loosing His Senses.

A mischievous boy, having got possession of his grandfather's spectacles, privately took out the glasses. When the old gentleman put them on, finding he could not see, he exclaimed: "Mercy on me! I've lost my sight!" But, thinking the impediment to vision might be the dirt on the lenses, he took them out to wipe them, when, not feeling them, he still more frightened, cried out: "Why, what's come now?
I've lost my feeling, too!"—London Ideas.

An Ancient House.

The ancient Romans had a catapult that could hurl rocks more than a mile.
"Now I understand it."
"What?"
My landlord told me the house was a stone's throw from the depot. He must have had it on his hands since the time of the Caesars.

A Complex Nest Cure.

"Eligance is a very voliferous person."
"Yes," replied Miss Cayenne, "but I don't blame him. The way a man of his mentality rears his nerves is by talking so loud he can't hear himself

Center of Toughness.

Inquiring Tourist:—Would you call this a tough town? Stray Native: Tough? Say, stranger, when we have old home week here, detectives from all over the country come and pick out just who they want.—Puck.

Conscience.

Conscience is not an indicator of what is right. That is the province of wisdom based on knowledge. Conscience is the divine imperative impelling us to do what we believe to be right.

STORIES OF CROWS

Natural History For Youths About Three Birds.

AND SOME RARA AVIS VERSE.

One That Wanted to Be a Nightingale.
Good to Eat in Russia—Full of Mischief and Useless, but They Are Cats.

By M. QUAD.
(Copyright, 1910, by Associated Literary Press.)

A crow had a nest in an oak.
And his life went along with a poke.
He'd a wife to advise
And talk to him wise
And indulge now and then in a joke.

Up to thirty years ago the crow was to be found in thousands in every state east of the Mississippi river. Then the farmers began to thin him out, and there are many localities where he can no longer be found. Naturalists call him the most useless bird on earth. He isn't handsome to look at, he is destructive, and he is not food for man. It is a matter of wonder why he was created at all.

That crow had the pick of the land.
There was always plenty at hand.
From sunrise to set
He was eating, you bet,
And his way it was balm and bland.
The crow will eat most any kind of meat and any kind of seeds. He will

THE ONE THAT WILL IN THE SAND.

snag up a frog, oyster or clam. No matter how rank or rancid his food is, he enjoys it. Let a farmer plant an acre of corn and leave it unwatched for a day and a flock of crows will scratch up every kernel. It was to scare the crows away that old suits of clothes stuffed with straw were first placed in fields. The bird's appetite is so good he will gobble down a quack of shelled corn at one time. The agricultural bureau estimates that every crow damages the farmer $10 worth during the season. It's in the winter season that the bird has a hard time, and many freeze and starve to death.

No sport, was pointed at him As he sat on the fence or a limb.
No club broke his neck,
No stone did him wreck, But he suddenly took up a whim.

Funny End of Lawsuit.

A curious lawsuit took place in the state of Ohio some five years ago on account of the crows. The farmers of a certain county were pledged not to feed them during the winter, thus leaving them to die, but a certain man with a kind heart bought many bushels of corn and invited all crows to come and feast three times a day.
There were days when a thousand crows assembled and when their cawing could be heard for a mile or more.
They got through the winter all right, but the good man who made it possible had run lawsuits for damages.
The matter hung fire in the courts for a long time, but it was finally decided that as there was no law against killing a crow there could be none against saving his life.

His song was a far-reaching caw, Like a spike that is grated by saw.
'Twas a caw and a screech, And a mile it did reach,
And 'twas not forbidden by law.

A German naturalist named Breit-zie started out a few years ago to make a songster of the crow. He took young ones and all their tongues and put them in cages with canaries and other singing birds, and for a time he thought he would be successful. Then when the young crows got their voices it proved to be something more shrill and screechy than the notes of their fathers and mothers. The crow isn't born with the right kind of throat for a warbler.

The whirr that got into his head Was, instead of going to bed, To sing with all his Like the sweet nightingale, And tickle the old farmer's head.

Crows Can Caw, That's All.

It was believed for a long time by naturalists that the crow could be taught to talk as well as or better than a parrot. Men spent months acting as teachers, but all they ever got out of Jim Crow was his caw. He was keeping quiet and letting them do the talking. Many of them were put in cages with parrots, but the parrots did all the swearing.

"It never can be," said the wife, "You're no singer, you're just a crow."
The farmer will caw.
The gun will go off.
And there'll be a row and a strife."

Russia is the country of crows.
Some thirty years ago a duke offered a reward of $100 to each crow so that the peasants would like the most English, French and German crows common. They began to flock and made parties of ten or and they used all sorts of means to make him near the children in the key, but after experimenting for weeks he was still crow and would not eat him. A dog might get hungry enough to pick the bird's bones, but it is known that a fox keeps away from them with a wary face.

"I'm running this singing, my dear,
And don't you get on your case.
I've tried up my voice,
And I'll make him caw."
And bring out his wife for the best.

As bad as men, the crow they give him credit for his cunning.
In a locality where they have been shot at no sooner does a man appear with a gun than the crow is away at his best speed. The same man can walk out with a stick on his shoulder and the bird will give him no attention whatever. He knows what's bad for him, and in that he is ahead of most human beings. The noise of a brass band will drive every crow away within hearing. In that he has advantage over man. Man wants to get away from the noise, but has no wings to fly with.

And he went on the gloaming drew night,
And he sang from a maple tree high.
'Twas a screech and a caw,
'Twas a caw and a caw,
As it sounded up for the notes.

As to the longevity of the crow, he has been known to live twenty years, or as long as a goose, but in most cases crows die before the age of five years. They get tired of their own voices and want a change.

He was waiting away like a band When Jed, with a gun in his hand, Came out, and he fired.
Be-caw, be-caw, be-caw, And down came the crow in the mud.

The Horse and the Man.

(A fable that is no fable.)

Once upon a time an Employer bought a Horse and hired a Man.
The Man worked Twelve, sometimes Fourteen hours a Day.
The Man would Gladly have Worked only Eight hours a Day, but his Employer Kicked against such Short Hours.
The Horse Never Worked more than Eight Hours a Day.
The Man took Good care of the Horse—Fed him Regularly, Carried him every Day, furnished him a Good Bed of Straw and was Kind to him.
The Man got what was Left after his Employer had Eaten; he slept in the Attic, where the Snow blew through the Cracks.
The Man Raised his Hat every time he met the Horse.

"Gee wha," said the Man one Day,
"I Wish I Was a Horse!" Moral—You Must Buy a Horse, But You Can Hire a Man.—Boston Post.

Something Worth Weeping For.

The old gentleman who had seen better days picked the yelling arches out of the gutters.
"Come come!" he said. "What's all this trouble?"

An attendant youth volunteered the explanation:

"Please, sir, 'e's lost 'is glass alley a-playin' marbles."

"Well, don't cry," soothed the O. G.
W. H. B. D., patting the still sobbing youngster on the back. "Here's a penny for you to buy some more."

"The tears burst forth afresh."

"I wouldn't cry if I were you," urged the benefactor.

"Y-y-yes, yer would," gasped the weeping one, "if yerd b-b-bell 'er lost yer farder's glass eye."—Assayer.

Hooked!

"Fahaw!" exclaimed Miss Xerner.
"I'm sure we'll miss the opening number. We've waited a good many minutes for that mother of mine."
"Hours, I should say," Mr. Eloman retorted rather crossly.
"Ours? Oh, George!" she cried and laid her blushing cheek upon his shirt front.—Argonaut.

Of Course.

Benham—What did you suffergettes debate today?

Mrs. Benham—"Resolved. That mere man, has some rights that woman is bound to respect."

Benham—And the decision?

Mrs. Benham—Was in the negative.— New York Press.

Owing.

"Come into a fortune, didn't he?"

"Yes, a big one."

"What's he doing these days?"

"He has become interested in settlement work."

"Well, that ought to keep him occu-pled for awhile. He owed everybody."

—Houston Post.

Wanted Worship.

"Aw—will you give this note to Miss May de Sylphington, the aw-pretty little blood creature with the violet eyes, don't you know, who dances in the ballet?"

"That'll be all right, guv'nor. I ought to know her; I'm her son."—Tallar.

Not Yet.

"Really, now," said the young man struggling with a few hairs on his upper lip, "do you think a mustache becomes me?"

"I can't say," replied the girl, with a smile, "until it becomes a mustache!" —Tellers Magazine.

The Folly of Gambling.

Oh, it ain't no use to gamble, An' it ain't no use to cry, For dat never brings no money, An' it never cleans de city.
An' it never cleans de house, An' it never cleans de wife, So it's best to keep a-carryin'

FATAL ACCIDENT AT DEAL'S ISLAND THURSDAY.

Miss Della Dashiell, daughter of Prof. W. T. Dashiell, of this City, was drowned while sailing with friends.

One of the most shocking and dis-tressing accidents of the season oc-curred near Deal's Islands wharf on Thursday afternoon when Miss Della Dashiell of this city was drowned.
At the time of the fatality Miss Dashiell was a member of a small sailing party and they were cruising around in a skiff in the vicinity of Deal's Island. The boat was in charge of Mr. Aaron Tarlton while Miss Mame Tyler was the third and only other one of the party. They had been sailing for some time and were not far from the landing place when a sudden gust of wind struck the boat and caused it to suddenly swing about.
As the boom swept across the small craft Miss Dashiell was struck and thrown overboard and almost immedi-ately disappeared. Immediate efforts were made to rescue her not only by the remaining occupants of the boat but by persons on the shore who were witnesses of the occurrence.

It was, however, impossible to reach her before she had disappeared finally and more than an hour passed before the body was recovered. Just as soon as this was done, the local physician who had been sent for in the meantime, made heroic efforts at resuscitation, that at no time after the body was taken from the water was there the slightest evidence of life.

The first intimation of the unfortun-ate affair in Salisbury was a telephone message to Prof. Dashiell and he and his son promptly left for the scene of the accident in Mr. Irving Powell's automobile which had been kindly placed at their disposal. Upon their arrival at Deal's Island it was found that all hope had been abandoned and Undertaker George C. Hill was at once communicated with. He brought the body to Salisbury on Friday morning on the Steamer and funeral services took place from her late home on Newton Street at four o'clock the same afternoon conducted by Rev. T.
E. Martindale, D. D. Interment was made in Parsons cemetery.

Miss Dashiell who was an excellent musician was popular in Salisbury especially in church circles. She was a member of Asbury M. E. Church and took an active part in the young people's societies. The residents of Salisbury were greatly shocked when word was received here of her death and her parents and other members of the family have the profound sym-pathy of the entire community.

She is survived by her father and mother, Prof. and Mrs. W. T. Dash-iell, three sisters, Mrs. F. T. Rochester, Misses. Enla and Eugenia Dashiell, and one brother, Mr. Percy T. Dash-iell.

To Show Here.

Lovers of the out of ordinary amuse-ment will be interested in the an-nouncement that the Mighty Haag shows are coming Sept. 29th, after-noon and evening in Salisbury, pre-sented by the largest and great-est program of original, unique and -thrilling featured acts, known today to the show world. This vast tented amusement enterprise is alone in a class by itself, without a rival.

Nothing like the imperial perfor-mance provided by Ernest Haag was ever before dreamed or dared by the boldest managers.

Whatever your preference, you will find plenty to interest, astonish and edify you; there are thrilling aerial acts during every moment of which one expects to see the intrepid per-formers hurled into eternity. Artistic and sensational equestrianism, in-credible and bewildering athletic and acrobatic numbers, blood chilling jockey, hurdle and chariot races, amazingly venturesome bicyclists, and phenomenal exhibitions by fierce wild beasts. In fact, numerous and varied are the novelties offered in the rings and upon the elevated stages, and upon the mammoth hippodrome track by these shows. Lack of space will not permit each of these to be mentioned.
The quantity and quality of the fea-tures are such as to really stagger comprehension.

It matters not what shows you have seen or how big the Mighty Haag shows have been in years gone by, this season they completely over-whelm all past efforts.

For genuine push Mr. George W.
Fooks holds the latest agricultural record. In twenty-nine days he harrowed 125 acres, gathered from his "Jordan Farm" in Nutter's Dis-trict over 200 bushels of apples, sold 87 barrels and made over 500 gallons of cider.

AUTOMOBILE HITS VEHICLE, OCCUPANTS INJURED.

Machine Struck The Vehicle While Attempting To Pass On The Mid-dle Neck Road. The Car Was Driven By W. B. Miller.

A serious accident was narrowly averted last evening when Mr.
W. B. Miller's large Buick machine struck into the buggy of Mr. Harry G. Hayman in which he and Mr. John E. T. Wilcox were riding, injuring the occupants and almost demolishing the carriage. Mr. Hayman was driving along the Middle Neck Road from Delmar to Salisbury about a mile and a half from Delmar when Mr. Miller accompanied by Messrs. K. V. White, David J. Ward and Dean W. Perdue came up behind him at a fairly mo-derate speed. Mr. Hayman turned out so that the automobile could pass but as Mr. Miller attempted to do so the machine owing to the heavy and loaded quite a distance and struck the buggy a heavy blow throwing the occupants to the ground and practi-cally running the vehicle. Both Mr.
Hayman and Mr. Wilcox were badly hurt but not seriously and returned at once to their homes in Salisbury.

Prevention of Smuts in Wheat.

During the past few weeks many inquiries have been received by the Experiment Station regarding the treatment of smut in wheat and con-siderable damage is reported in many sections of the Eastern Shore. It has been estimated that in price alone, far-mers, this year in the smut district, have lost $300,000, some wheat selling as low as 65 cents per bushel on account of smut. This is an unnecessary loss as the smut which caused this loss can be easily prevented by treating the seed as described below:

There are two kinds of smut, the stinking smut and the loose smut. The two are easily distinguished from each other. The stinking smut, as the name indicates, has a characteristic odor and is usually not discovered until harvest or threshing time. The loose smut ap-pears at heading time, the whole head being almost a solid mass of smut.
Later it all disappears and only the stem of the head is left. The stinking smut is the most objectionable as it greatly deteriorates the value of the flour. Loose smut never lessens the selling value of wheat and the only damage is the decrease in yield which in Maryland the past two seasons, varied from a trace to ten per cent.

The stinking smut is distributed by the spores (the black smut dust which corresponds to seed in higher plants) adhering to the grain. And in order to prevent this smut, all that is neces-sary is to kill the adhering spores. It seems to be necessary for the smut spore and wheat grain to be planted in the same place or no infection results.
Infection by scattering in fields is very slight, if any at all takes place.

There are a number of substances with which the seed can be treated for stinking smut but the most simple as well as cheapest is formaline. This should be used at the rate of one pound one pint to 40 or 50 gallons of water.
Wet the seed with this solution thor-oughly either by immersing or by sprinkling. If the seed is immersed, it should be left in the solution for ten minutes then spread out to dry. If the solution is sprinkled on the seed should be raked over until every grain is thoroughly wet, after which the seed may be piled up and left for one-half hour or a little longer and then spread out to dry. After the seed is dry it may be sacked and used when needed.
It will take nearly a gallon of solution to one bushel of wheat.

The treatment for loose smut is much more difficult. The seed must be first soaked in cold water for five to seven hours, then immersed for ten minutes in hot water heated to 130 degrees F.
If the temperature goes above 132 de-grees F., the germination of the seed will be injured; and if the temperature falls below 124 degrees F., the treat-ment is not effective.

Nickolus Schmitz, Agronomist.

Civil Service Examinations.

The United States Civil Service Commission announces that the fol-lowing examinations will be held at the post office in this city on the day named:

-mal Industry, Department of Agric-ulture, November 2, 1910.

SEPTEMBER TERM OF COURT CONVENES ON MONDAY.

Few Important Cases To Be Tried, Although Docket Is A Long One.
Grand Jury Will Act In The Murder Case.

The September term of the Circuit Court will commence next Monday and it is expected that Judges John R.
Patterson and Associate Judge Rodney D. Jones and E. Stanley Toadvin will be on the bench.

The docket discloses twenty three appearances, ten appeals and 57 trials. Among the cases on this latter docket is one against the N. Y. P. & N. R. R. Co. brought by Frank E.
Lynch Administrator of Edward T.
West on account of the latter death in the Fruitland wreck in May 1909.

There is also an attachment case in-volving the ownership of the farmers race Julia Marlowe, which figured prominently in the races at the Fair grounds this year.

The suit brought by Mayor and Council of Salisbury against the Peoples National Bank is also again on the docket and will probably be disposed of at this term. There has been considerable interest mani-fested in this matter and as it has been some time since the suit was brought, no doubt an effort will be made to have it tried.

Among the transferred cases ap-pearing on the docket are those of the Marine Bank of Crisfield against J.
E. Tull & Co., William A. Sterling, Jr.
vs. the Marine Bank of Crisfield, Charles A. Babcock vs. James Jones and Isaac Saperstein vs. Annie Good-man trading as a Goodman.

The most prominent matter which is now known will come before the Grand Jury is the case in which Mrs.
Tobias Hudson recently killed her husband in the office of States At-torney Joseph L. Bailey. It is expected the Jury will return an indictment of Murder and should she be convicted of that crime in the first degree it would impose upon the Court the necessity of pronouncing the death sentence. This would be the first in-stance of the kind recorded in Wicoma-co and would be only the second ex-ecution to take place since the for-mation of the county.

Frank A. Robbin's Big Circus.

Frank A. Robbin's Big Circus ex-hibited at Millington on Tuesday, June 7th, 1910. They arrived here on scheduled time and quite a large crowd flocked to the railroad to witness the unloading of the circus from their special cars. Promptly at 11 o'clock they formed in line and paraded the principal streets all of which were pretty well filled with people from the country districts. The parade was fine and far more than expected by the people in this community. At 2 o'clock, p. m., when the performance began in the main show, the seats were all filled and many were com-pelled to stand, but that made no difference as the performance was of such an up-to-date character that all were more than satisfied. The fine actors, the trained horses and other animals and the whole circus through-out was counted to be the best that has pitched their tent in Juniata county for many years. It is estimated that the attendance was between 5000 and 6000 people.—Juniata Herald Mifflintown. Will exhibit in Salisbury Tuesday, Oct. 4th.

Funeral Of Mr. Hugh Ellingsworth.

Funeral service over the remains of Mr. Hugh Ellingsworth, formerly of this city, but late of Baltimore, were conducted from his late home, 2810 Cotton Ave., Sunday morning at nine o'clock. Interment was made in Lorraine Cemetery Baltimore.

Mr. Ellingsworth died suddenly Friday morning in that city after an illness of one week. His death was due to a stroke of paralysis. Ellingsworth was born February 8th, 1846 and was 64 years of age. He was a son of the late Josiah and Maria Ellings-worth, highly respected citizens of this country. He was well known in this community where he had many warm friends, having resided here until about ten years ago when he moved to Baltimore, where he has since made his home.

Mr. Ellingsworth was a member of the Presbyterian church from early boyhood and at one time had served in the eldership of that church. He was also an active member of the Order of Heptasophs, who which organiza-tion assisted in the funeral services, and were active pallbearers.

He is survived by a widow, Mrs.
Lucy E. Ellingsworth, who is a sister of Mr. Jay Williams of this city, six children, Messrs. Walter Ellingsworth of Alton, Maurice Ellingsworth, of St.
Louis, Mo.; Mervin Ellingsworth, of Baltimore; Mrs. F. B. Tinley, and Misses Margaret and Lulu Ellings-worth all of Baltimore. He is also sur-vived by one brother, Mr. Preston Ellingsworth of this city, and a sister Mrs. C. C. Fooks of near Salisbury.

NEGRO WHISKY SELLERS ARRESTED SUNDAY NIGHT.

Captured After Exciting Chase At Point of Guns—Were Selling Whiskey At Colored Camp.
Held For Grand Jury.

Officers Roy Smith, John F. Waller and Clayton Kelly, made the arrest of four desperate negro whiskey dol-lers Sunday night last, in this city under exciting circumstances. The officers had to look down the barrels of two big Colt's Army pistols before they landed their prisoners but Of-ficers Smith and Waller prepared for the emergency and with a double bar-rel gun and a rapid fire rifle handy succeeded in making the negroes throw up their hands and landed them in jail.

Sunday morning Neil Pryor, who lives on Water Street, George A. En-nis, a desperate negro from Dover, Delaware, Emma Messick a female offender and Perry Dorman, who lives in Jersey, with a double team and a surrey, loaded down with whiskey made the trip to the colored camp meeting at the head of the Creek.
They proceeded to open up shop and were soon caught by the managers of the camp who protested at the traffic and told the negroes they would have to stop selling whiskey. Pryor, it is said, struck the manager of the camp with a pair of brass knuckles in the forehead and wounded him severely.
He then pointed his big Colt's re-volver at the manager and told him he would "blow his head off if he winked his eye." By this time the camp was in an uproar and it looked like a free fight would be indulged in when, some of the campers slipped over to White Haven and telephoned here to Officer Smith.

Smith, with Sheriff Kelly and Officer Waller secured a double team and started to the scene of action pre-pared with a double barrel gun and a self-acting rifle to take the desperate negroes at all hazards. After arriving at the camp they found, however, that the negroes had left the camp and started for Salisbury. The officers doubled and came back to town, went out Water Street to the New York, Philadelphia & Norfolk depot and at Isabella street overtook the neg-roes. Pryor had his big Colt's re-volver in his hand all ready for action when Deputy Sheriff Smith and Of-ficer Waller jumped from their car-riage. Smith saw Pryor raise his pis-tol and at once covered him with his gun and told him to put his hands up, which he did. About this time Ennis had his pistol out but was covered by Officer Waller with a self acting rifle.
The negroes, finding themselves cov-ered, gave up and were brought down town to jail.

When the negroes were searched in jail they were found to have consid-erable money, two large Colt's Army revolvers fully loaded with extra shells, and the two suit cases they carried contained thirteen quarts of whiskey and a glass to deal out the drinks.

Pryor is an old offender it is said and a very desperate negro. Ennis is a desperado from Dover, Delaware, and a stranger to the police here.
Dorman is a new hand at the busi-ness so the police say, but they seem to know the Messick woman as a well known character in the negro haunts of the city.

These arrests are considered an im-portant round-up of whiskey sellers and they will probably be held for the action of the Grand Jury which meets next week. The three officers are to be congratulated on their fine work in this case. They showed nerve all right in taking these de-perate negroes who were armed with death dealing revolvers. Police work of this character is of great advan-tage to any community.

Make Out Your Own Schedules.

The city assessment will soon be made. This includes the revaluation of all property within the city limits, real and personal. The blank schedules have already been delivered to the prop-erty holders and it is the desire of the assessors that they be filled in promptly so that they will be ready when they are called for.

The lots in town are to be valued per front foot and the assessors de-sire all persons owning property with-in the city to measure the same along the street lines and place their own value upon it. The improvements should then be valued and listed sepa-rately. In addition to this all per-sonal property should be scheduled by listing each article individually, and in this way a satisfactory assessment can be made by the authorities.

PAST SORROWS.

Feeble natures live in their sorrows instead of converting those sorrows into apothegms of experience. They are saturated with them, and they consume themselves by singing back each day into the misfortunes of the past. To forget is the great secret of strong and creative existence—to forget after the manner of nature, which knows no past and begins again every hour the mysteries of her indefatigable productiveness.—Balzac.

Sex and Handwriting.

That it is possible to determine sex from handwriting in perhaps 90 cases out of 100 is a conclusion reached from an examination of the writing of 200 persons. The specimens were submitted to two "professional graphologists" as well as to fifteen persons ignorant of their art. The so-called sex signs are found to be largely influenced by the amount of writing done, by age and to a certain extent by practice and by professional requirements, as in the conventional writing of teachers and the rapid hand of bookkeepers.—New Orleans Times-Democrat.

The Heloderma.

The venomous lizard heloderma lives in the warm zone between the Cordillera of Central America and the Pacific ocean. It secretes a poisonous saliva and has the curious habit of throwing itself on its back when struck. Its bite is not always so dangerous as popular opinion makes it, and after severe pain it often rapidly heals. Recent observations show that the saliva is sometimes very poisonous and sometimes very inoffensive. The poison acts by coagulating the blood and first increasing, then diminishing, the irritability of the nerves.

English Brass.

The composition of English brass is about seventy parts copper and thirty of zinc. "Prince Rupert's metal" contains 75 to 80 per cent of copper and, on account of its golden color, is employed to some extent in jewelry. The kind of brass called tombac contains still more copper, nearly eighty-five parts in a hundred. It is the alloy used for the manufacture of what is called Dutch metal, an imitation of gold leaf. It can be rolled into sheets, and these can be beaten out till they are only fifty-three thousandths of an inch in thickness.—Chambers' Journal.

Single and Double Flowers.

The petals of a single flower fall sooner than those of a double one, for the reason that the inner petals are transformed more slowly and retain the power of adherence they need when performing their original function.

Give Others a Chance.

It's all right to get more than your share, but don't put your feet in the trough.—Kansas City Journal.

Wanted Particulars.

A little girl of about five was finding keen enjoyment in twirling the knob on the candy box on the seat in front of her at the theater.

"Don't do that, Ethel; it makes too much noise," said her mother.

Ethel paused, undecided, her hand outstretched for another twirl.

"I warn you," said her mother sternly.

Still Ethel hesitated. Finally she queried audibly, "With a hairbrush, mamma, or just your hand?"—New York Sun.

It cured the cough as well as the choking and gagging spells, and he got well in a short time. Foley's Honey and Tar has many times saved us much trouble and we are never without it in the house." ## The Spit of Ceremony.

Among the Akkuyu of East Africa, described by Mr. and Mrs. W. S. Routledge in "With a Prehistoric People," to spit upon a person of thing indicates good will. "The blacksmith spits upon the sword he has forged before handing it over to the owner. So, too, courtesy demands that a man should spit in his hand before offering it to a friend, and the female visitors spit upon the newly arrived youngster as a sign of welcome." Even in England there are relics of the same custom in the habit among the lower classes of spitting on a coin.

Imagination.

It is imagination rather than reason that distinguishes man from brute, and no person who is devoid of imagination can know extremes of happiness or misery. Happiness in a great measure depends on the faculty for forgetting.

FOLEY'S KIDNEY PILLS

YANKEE HUSTLE WASTE OF POWER.

Londoner Says Type Highest Working Efficiency

NOT AN ECONOMICAL MAN.

Too Much Breaking Down of Energy, Inlets Owner of Thousands of Restaurants and Cigar Stands in British Isles—Admits American Wealth in Record Time.

Joseph Lyons, one of the business men in London, head company that operates hundreds of restaurants and thousands of stores there and in the provinces, recently told a Manchester reporter he didn't believe in what Americans call hustling.

Like Oscar Hammerstein, Mr. Lyons is versatile, for he writes novels, pictures and is now writing the music to a comic opera. He visits New York every now and then.

"The American hustler," he said, "my opinion, does not represent the highest type of human efficiency, wastes a lot of nervous power and energy instead of accomplishing the greatest possible amount of work with the force expended."

Hustler Not Adaptive.

"Judging the American hustler from my observation of him in his own country, where he can best be studied, I should say the American hustler shows a lack of adaptation of means to ends, because he puts more mental, physical and nervous energy into his work at all times than his work at all times demands. He does not discriminate between the vitally important and the comparatively unimportant. He insists on always working at high pressure."

"Regarded as a machine, he is not an economical one. He breaks down too often, and has to be laid up for repairs too often. He tries to do everything too fast. He ruins his digestion by eating too fast, he plays havoc with his nerves by trying to work too fast. Then you don't believe in working at high pressure?" he asked.

"Not as that term is understood in America. The man who learns how to organize himself, as well as his business, has no need to be 'rushed,' as they say in America, all the time. Big things can be done more effectively and expeditiously when they are done quietly than when they are done hurriedly."

Too Much Work Done.

"Hustling in America too often means, I think, doing things that would be as well done, or better done, if left to some employee to do. No man succeeds in a big way unless he surrounds himself with men who can do many of the things that have to be done in his business better than he can do them himself. And he should let men do these things, and not meddle with them needlessly."

"Then you think that Americans would accomplish more of their business if they hustled less?"

"I would not go so far as to say that they would actually make more money if they hustled less. When it comes to making money Americans hold all the records. More colossal fortunes are made there than anywhere else. But I will say that if Americans hustled less they would probably make pretty near as much money as they do now—quite enough, anyhow—and would certainly get a much better time out of life."

CLOUDS HIDE WHITE ISLAND.

Sulphuric Steam Causes Strange Freak Near New Zealand.

White Island, thirty miles to the northeast of New Zealand, is perhaps the most extraordinary island in the world. It is an enormous mass of rock nearly three miles in circumference, rising 900 feet above the sea, and is perpetually enveloped in dark clouds, which are visible for nearly 100 miles.

The island consists almost entirely of sulphur, with a small percentage of gypsum. Some years ago an attempt was made to float a company to work the sulphur, which is of high quality, but sufficient capital was not subscribed. Therefore the export of sulphur from White Island is still very small.

In the interior is a lake fully fifty acres in extent, the water of which has a temperature of 110 degrees F., and it is strongly impregnated with acids. On one side of this lake are craters, from which steam escapes with great force and noise. This steam and the vapor from the lake form the dark cloud that envelops the island.

GOOD PROFIT IN IVORY.

African Hunter Cleans Up $50,000 in Eight Years.

Hunting elephants for their ivory is a profitable business. John Boyce, a noted African hunter and explorer, who gave Colonel Roosevelt the tip where to find the white rhinoceros, has returned to London after eight years in Africa. In the Congo in that period he obtained ivory worth $50,000. For several years Mr. Boyce was king of a tribe called the Kikuyu and commander of their army of 500 men. When the British arrived he was that he was king of the tribe.

Salisbury's Splendid Future.

Salisbury is beginning to feel the effects of judicious advertising. It has made an enviable record in the last ten years and the local papers have not failed to herald that fact broadcast. Its splendidly paved streets and progressive administration are facts now well known beyond the confines of the city and naturally attract persons who are looking for a hustling and live place in which to live. Salisbury might easily be the finest place in the world in which to stay but if it did not become known at a distance it could have no effect on its growth or general prosperity. It must have distinct and decided advantages and these advantages must become known and this can be done in a thousand and one ways.

One of the most effective methods apart from the general advertising given by local papers is an up-to-date system on the part of the City Chamber of Commerce or Board of Trade. The phenomenal growth attained in the last decade by many western cities and towns has been largely due to the constant work of these organizations. Many municipalities (especially in the far west) have made the marvelous gain of three and four hundred per cent in population in the last decade and it is largely because of the untiring efforts of municipal officers and trade societies. These latter associations rent whole floors in large buildings where complete exhibits can be seen showing the resources of the entire community. They are put up in the most attractive form and the exhibits make a veritable art garden. Handsome offices are maintained and the executive officer is always on hand with an accumulation of attractive figures and a batch of favorable statistics. He has a live office force and literature is daily sent out to all parts of the country showing the natural advantages of the city's location for manufacturing concerns as well as mercantile and other businesses.

Not only are all the favorable points of the city pointed out, but the entire rural section of the surrounding country is fully covered in the circulars sent broadcast and especially in the magnificent apple belt of the great North West the splendid climatic conditions and wonder results obtained by irrigation are set forth in forceful language. The first appeals are followed by others of a more insistent and optimistic nature and naturally interest is finally aroused which in many instances bring the desired result. Great cities in the west have been built by these methods and what can be accomplished there can be carried out here. There is no reason why the prosecution of the same methods in the east should not be followed by the same results.

The differences between the east and west today are largely those of methods rather than actual conditions. While the climate of the west in many instances is almost ideal there are any quantity of places in the East just as beneficial and except in the heart of gorgeous mountain scenery there can be found in the Eastern States as pretty sections for homes as any place in the country. Except for reasons of a personal or special nature or unusual conditions, there is no more reason why there should be a movement from the east to the west than from the west to the east. The whole western tendency has been developed by the wonderful activity of organizations whose sole business it was to hold out tempting inducements and make flattering offers. Some of the cities have even a "Booster's Club" and in one instance a prominent Ex-Mayor of the city is President of the organization. And it is not only the "official" boosters who are always improving every opportunity to build up the place but every citizen seems to feel it his first duty and brightest privilege to help swell the growing population and increase the city's reputation throughout the country.

Fortunately for Salisbury it is getting out of the rut into which most of the Eastern towns have fallen. It has awakened from its long slumber and is on the highway of progress and activity and there is no reason why a splendid future is not in store for it. It has natural advantages of a most pronounced character and with the introduction of modern methods and twentieth century ideas its future is more than assured.

Editorial Jottings.

A garbage system at last! THE COURIER always knew it would come sometime.

The Vice-President is surely a prophet without honor in his own country. But then he is in the land of Roosevelt!

The Wicomico officials are to be congratulated upon their use of the tar "Binder" on the Tony Tank Road which is a part of the State Road leading from Salisbury. This is the beginning of the work on the Eastern Shore South of Hurluck and it is understood that other roads in this County will be similarly treated within a short time.

Salisbury's business, population and reputation entitles it to a better station as the present one is undoubtedly a disgrace to the town. Just why towns of the size of Laurel can obtain a handsome $12,000 structure while Salisbury continues with its apology for a building is not entirely clear to the travelling public. But perhaps when the people least expect it the Railroad officials will present the surprised people of the Eastern Shore Metropolis with an up-to-date and modern station equipped with the latest appliances and commensurate with Salisbury's growing needs and requirements.

Oyster Season Opened.

One of Wicomico's greatest industries started on Tuesday the 15th of the month when the season opened with an unusually bright prospect for a splendid year's work. For years Wicomico was hardly thought of as a town of as a tide water county and little if any attention was paid to it in this respect. But for sometime past it has taken its place side by side with the other counties whose inhabitants are engaged in the oyster business and the catching and shipment of the luscious bivalves now afford employment for a large number in the lower portions of the county.

The houses which will be in operation in Wicomico this season are Messrs W. J. Catlin & Bro. who will operate at White Haven and Capt. Wm. K. Leatherbury, who will open his new place in Salisbury. The latter one is the first started in Salisbury and is equipped with all modern appliances and is an up-to-date packing house. Capt. Robert P. Water is also engaged in the business and is a large shipper of shelled oysters.

PO STEAK TO PLANT BEEF?

Mention Saddle of Yak and Rhino Roast.

AMERICA MAY SOON EAT 'EM.

Department of Agriculture Hopes to Introduce Exotic Mammals of Other Countries to Cultivate New Tastes and Meet in View of Prospective Famine Throughout the Country.

W. N. Irwin of the bureau of industry of the department of agriculture has his way it will not be before the American people are regularly upon such delicacies as hippopotamus steak, Manchurian saddle of yak, white rhinoceros steak.

Irwin is a firm supporter of the introduction in the house of representatives by Congressman Broussard of a bill for the introduction and domination in the United States of 100 species of mammals from all parts of the world. The plan is one that would relieve the famine in this country.

Hippo Steak Succulent.

Hippopotamus steak is said to be the epicure, and the plant experts that the favorite food of the hippopotamus can be grown in enormous quantities in the low sections of Louisiana. Hippopotamuses dearly love hay made of the white hyacinth, and Louisiana's streams, properly seeded, will grow from thirty to fifty tons of hyacinth hay per acre. There are at present about 6,000,000 acres in the gulf states that are of no use for any other purpose but that and would produce
about 1,000,000 tons of good animal feed that might be worth $100,000,000.

Many Animals Available.

Among the food animals of foreign climes that might do well in the United States, according to the authorities, are:

The big bison of Manchuria, which weighs 400 pounds; the yak from Tibet, an animal of many uses, such
as for draft work, as a saddle horse,
for its milk and for its flesh; the llama from South America; the African burro, which furnishes not only food, but the finest leather; the white rhinoceros, gentle, fond of semidesert regions and furnishing a delicate meat food; the small antelope of Africa and Manchuria, which could be used as an adjunct to the farmer's poultry
yard in the central, southern and Pacific states; the little red and blue antelope, which weigh when grown about thirty pounds; the tiny dik-dik or pika, weighing from six to ten pounds and good enough for a king's kitchen; the giraffe, which is said to give the purest flesh food of any animal in the world and which might be domesticated on the southwestern deserts.

Camels Once Tried.

When there are the elephants, which could be raised in the United States,
though they might prove a little too burdensome, and the camels (several years ago an attempt was made to ac-
climatize the camel in the southwest
but it was not persisted in and the camel and others.

If the law is passed the department of agriculture is likely to have its hands full, and it may eventually be in a position to outfit newly organized circuses.

GIRLS TO LEARN PLUMBING.

Aid to Housekeeping Planned For Chicago School Courses.

A course in plumbing is an innovation announced for the approaching
new school term by Superintendent Ella Flegg Young.

"So many girls know no more about the water and gas used in kitchens
than turn the faucet and the water flows or the gas is ready to light,"
said Mrs. Young in telling of the new course. "We want them to know more about this matter from a sanitary viewpoint."

The course is to be known as the sanitary science. Pupils will be required to master such details as how
the water and gas are distributed
through mains to houses, then to kitchens, how connections are made,
and similar things.

With proper understanding of these matters, together with a knowledge of how the waste water is carried away, Mrs. Young says the students will be better equipped to keep kitchens over
which they may rule in the future in a more sanitary condition. At the same time they will be armed with knowledge that may save them money by
avoiding the necessity of calling in the plumber and by economy in the use of gas.

American Flour Heavy Packaging.

In Hongkong American flour still retains the market—500,000 barrels, for $2,750,000 in 1910 fiscal year. Shipped direct to the Chinese empire were 21, 243 barrels, worth $1,194. Shanghai and Hongkong are the main ports of call.

The Symbolism Didn't Appeal.

"Charlie," sorrowfully sighed the young lady in the parlor of the concrete house on Washington avenue, "it is nearly 12 o'clock."

"Yes, Belinda," was the breathing response of her poetical companion, who was sitting on the sofa beside her, "the minute hand is drawing closer to the hour hand, and when the time of midnight is chimed the two hands will be even as one. Oh, darling Belinda," he continued as he literally simulated the action of the minute hand, "may not the coming together of those two hands be symbolical of us?"

She broke away and stood firmly on her feet. "No, Charles Henry Smith," she retorted angrily, "those two hands will remain as one but a single second, and then the minute hand will diverge itself and go on its way alone.
No, Mr. Smith, a minute hand that doesn't stick isn't the kind of symbolism I want!"—Chicago News.

Dividing a Long Sermon.

Dr. Samuel Buell of the last half of the nineteenth century, who used to preach two or three hours, like Isaac Barrows, was ingenious in detaining his congregation. On one occasion, after preaching nearly two hours—as long as he could feel secure in the presence of all his hearers—he remarked that he was done preaching to sinners and that they were at liberty to go; the rest of his discourse would be addressed to good people.

A gentleman who once went to hear him stated that when the hourglass was nearly ready to be turned a second time from the commencement of his sermon he said, much to the relief of the person who related it, "Once more." After going on some eight or ten minutes longer he said, "To conclude," and after another about equal interval he said, "Lastly."

He Came Down Light.

A Chicago board of trade man who was not in the habit of attending church was taking a walk one Sunday morning, and on coming to a church at the regular hour of service he decided to go in. As he entered the auditorium in which the pews were adjusted upon a sloping floor an usher stepped forward and, wishing to consult him as to location before conducting him to a sitting, politely inquired:

"Would you like to come down pretty well?"

Mistaking the inquiry to be an appeal for money, the board of trade man began to fumble through his pockets as he drawled:

"I'd like to, but I'm not prepared to come down very heavy, as 15 cents is all I have with me."—Harper's Magazine.

A Varnishing Tip.

When varnishing wood the work must be done in a warm room at a temperature of at least 75 degrees F.
At a lower temperature the moisture in the air will give a milky and cloudy appearance to the varnish. On the other hand, at the higher temperature the moisture is not precipitated with the alcohol of the varnish has sufficiently evaporated to leave a thin smooth film of shellac. The durability and gloss are dependent on this.

The Blind Man's Lantern.

A blind man in Khoota (a Caucasian village) came back from the river one night bringing a pitcher of water and carrying in his hand a lighted lantern.
Some one meeting him said: "You're blind. It's all the same to you whether it's day or night. Of what use to you is a lantern?" "I don't carry the lantern in order to see the road," replied the blind man, "but to keep some one like you from running against me and breaking my pitcher."

His Peers.

"Pa, what does it mean to be tried by a jury of one's peers?"
"It means, my son, that a man is to be tried by a jury composed of men who are his equals or on an equality with him; so that they will have no prejudice against him."

"Then, pa, I suppose you'd have to be tried by a jury of baldheaded men."

The Widow.

"In a town," said a life insurance official, "where life insurance was a rare thing a schoolteacher said to a little boy pupil:

"Tommy, define the word widow."

"A widow, Tommy answered, 'is a poor woman with a large family of children who takes boarders.'"

Painfully Frank.

Wedgeley—They say that a man and his wife grow to look alike after they have been married a few years. Now, my wife and I have been married ten years. Do you think we look alike?
Singleton—Yes, indeed. You both seem to have the same sad expression.

Might Have Been Worse.

Rheumatic Patient—Oh, doctor, I do suffer so with my hands and feet!
Cheery Doctor—My dear woman, only think what inconvenience you would have to suffer without them.

The Earth.

Tommy—Pop, does the earth go round? Tommy's Pop—Yes, my son.
But it wouldn't if it was divided among all the people who want it.
Philadelphia Record.

advice to women—not even to his own.

DENATURED GRAND OPERA

[A protest has been lodged against the gloomy nature of the grand opera featured in the Covent Garden season.—Dispatch From London.]

"Les Huguenots"—two people die.
One death in "Rigoletto."
La Tosca leaps from bastion high.
"Lucia" spells a pretty sight.
Consumption wins in "La Boheme." In "Carmen" there's much slay-ing.
Tis thus the operatic game Gives worth for what you're paying.

"Cavalleria" calls for knives
And deaths that are most Metchy.
While notches totaling three lives
Are cut in "Pagliacci." In "Butterfly" 'tis varied some By stunts of harakiri.
From overture to closing drum
Grand opera is teary.

Oh, speed the day when warblers,
then,
Shall waste no art in dying.
When handkerchiefs of maids and men

Shall call no more for drying!
Then shall the tired business man,
Who bears a burden weary,
No more demand the hook, the can,
When opera is cheery.

publican.

WITCHCRAFT ENTHRALLS PHILIPPINE ISLANDERS.

Tender Portion of Victims Appears to Be the Neck.

That a firm belief in witchcraft persists in some parts of Pampanga province is the purport of a communication received in Manila from an investigator who has investigated the claims of Filipinos that they were being afflicted with various bodily ills by persons who are called Magcalums.
While the educated inhabitants scorn
at the belief, it was found to be widespread throughout the towns as well as in the agricultural sections far from large centers of population. Extracts from the communication follow:

"The belief is an old one, probably coexistent with the tribes. It is not confined to one or two towns, but exists to a greater or less degree in all,
though the idea probably is having a greater hold upon the people of Lubao, Macabebe and Masantol than any of the other municipalities.

"The belief is that a person who has
this power can create illness in another,
provided the other is a believer in Magcalums. A careful and extended search has failed to produce a single Pampangan who impressed the investigator as being entirely free from the idea that people might have this power.

Many laugh at the mention of such a power and in a general way say that they do not consider it possible, yet references to specific cases will usually elicit the fact that they can ascribe
no other cause to certain effects.

"It would seem that the tender spot
of these near divinities is the neck of the intended victim, the Magcalums causing an enlargement of that part of the body.

"Sometimes the infliction is related to a specific event. For instance, in Arayat a woman once told a prospective purchaser that she had no eggs,
which the customer found out to be false. Later it was said a chicken grew inside the stomach of the woman.

"Another account is of a Magcalum who was bound and an attempt made
to burn holes in her face. The instruments made no impression upon
her, but the marks of burns appeared
upon the face of the woman who had instigated the maltreatment."

ARMY TRIES MOTOR TRICYCLE

Considered Good Field Hospital Adjunct in Germany.

In this year's German army maneuvers the sight will be witnessed of motor tricycles speeding about the battlefield. Hitherto it has been found that much time was lost in rendering medical assistance to the wounded.

To prevent such delay during the coming maneuvers field surgeons will
be mounted upon specially constructed motor tricycles made on the lines of
those now used by tradesmen, in which will be carried all the necessary material for first aid.

In the past a wounded man had to be carried on a stretcher to the nearest lazaret before help could be rendered. In future should be found it impossible to treat the case on the spot
the surgeon can himself convey the
cycle.

The machine will be built so that it can go over heavy ground, and it will
owing to its speed, save many hours
of weary waiting to the wounded.

BIG PRIZES FOR ALPS FLIGHT

First Aviator Offered $14,000—High Altitudes on Route.

What promises to provide the most sensational performance yet attempted by air men is the flight proposed in connection with the Milan aviation meeting, which opens on Sept. 18. It is the feat of making a trip across the Alps, and three prizes of $14,000, $4, 000 and $2,000 are offered to successful competitors.

Nominally the distance to be covered is only twenty-five miles, but the aeroplanes in the course of their journey
will have to fly over mountains exceeding 6,000 feet in height.

No flying by night will be allowed,
and a maximum of twenty-four hours
will be allowed for the journey. The race will start from Briancon, on the Swiss side of the Alps, and end at Milan.

THE HAIR THAT SHE WORE

A Hirsute Tragedy is the House That Jack Built.

THIS is the hair that nature grew.

This is the rat that was pinned to the hair that nature grew.

This is the switch, antiseptically boiled, that about the rat was artisi-tically coiled, that was pinned to the hair that nature grew.

This is the front that was frizzled and duffed, that 'mongst nature's hair was skillfully stuffed, just next to the switch antiseptically boiled, that about the rat was artistically coiled, that was pinned to the hair that nature grew.

These are the puffs, just one dozen strong, made of near hair that's thick, thin, short and long, that are piled on the front that was frizzled and duffed, that 'mongst nature's hair was skillfully stuffed, just next to the switch antiseptically boiled, that about the rat was artistically coiled, that was pinned to the hair that nature grew.

These are the fancy combs, pins and barrettes that a lady with much hair invariably gets, that are stuck in the puffs just one dozen strong, made of near hair that's thick, thin, short and long, that are piled on the front that was frizzled and duffed, that 'mongst nature's hair was skillfully stuffed, just next to the switch antiseptically boiled, that about the rat was artisi-tically coiled, that was pinned to the hair that nature grew.

This is the hat, many feet round its brim, that this hirsute tower did ponderously trim, that surmounted the fancy combs, pins and barrettes that a lady with much hair invariably gets, that are stuck in the puffs just one dozen strong, made of near hair that's thick, thin, short and long, that are piled on the front that was frizzled and duffed, that 'mongst nature's hair
was skillfully stuffed, just next to the
switch antiseptically boiled, that about the rat was artistically coiled, that was pinned to the hair that nature grew.

This is the grave of the lady whose pride made her so heavy topped that she lay down and died, who wore the big hat, many feet round its brim, that this hirsute tower did ponderously trim, that surmounted the fancy combs, pins and barrettes that a lady with much hair invariably gets, that are stuck in the puffs just one dozen strong, made of near hair that's thick, thin, short and long, that are piled on
the front that was frizzled and duffed,
that 'mongst nature's hair was skillfully stuffed, just next to the switch antiseptically boiled, that about the rat was artistically coiled, that was pinned to the hair that nature grew.—Harvey Peake in Puck.

Identified.

A question in a recent examination on "The Merchant of Venice" in the Evansville high school was:

"Give three reasons why Shylock hated Antonio."

One little girl wrote as one of her reasons:

"Shylock hated Antonio because he was a Republican."

The teacher was puzzled. Where could the child have got that idea?
Then she remembered that Shylock once said of Antonio, "How like a fawning publican he looks!"—National Monthly.

AMERICAN GEMS OF TOURMALINES

Gems That Orient Demands In Abundance Here.

MAINE HAS VALUABLE MINES.

Blue Variety of Stone That Chinese Value Above Diamonds Because of Lucky Qualities Also Found in California—Western States Supposed to Have Undiscovered Supplies.

"You saw the account in the papers of the remarkable demand for blue tourmalines in China," said Dr. William H. Choate of Detroit recently, "but do you know that this country is very rich in these gems and that the demand for them in the Orient is so great that the mines here cannot begin to supply the market?"

"To begin with, the Chinese believe that the blue tourmaline brings good luck, health and warns away evil spirits; also the gem is one of the most beautiful in the world, more beautiful, I think, than the rose tourmaline, the green or any other. There are a great many unworked ledges in Maine that are believed to have the gems.
The tourmaline lies in a pocket in the ledge surrounded by decayed stone in the form of dust.

Maine's Mines Valuable.

"I have seen tourmalines worth thousands of dollars taken from the mines at Mount Apatite, Auburn, Me., and some of them have gone to decorate the crowns of such rulers as the emperor of Japan, the emperor of China and the petty kings of the Indian states, some of whom are richer than either of the emperors named. One company incorporated under the laws of Maine has mines at Auburn, Mount Corner and near Mechanic Falls.

"Apatite, one of the stones that are mined at these places, has averaged $15.30 a ton in tourmalines and $6 more in feldspar, various ores, beryl, aquamarines, etc. The cost of mining these gems is only $1.50 a ton.
The vein is ten feet thick, with flat dip covering three acres, in one of the mines.

"Then there is the wonderful mine at Paris, Me., called Mount Mica, from which a steady stream of gems has come for years and not half of the territory has been scratched yet. I know a young lady in Boston, Miss Eleanor C. Hamlin, relative of the man who was vice president of the United States, who has a necklace which is the envy of all the crowned heads of Europe, and every one of the gems came from a mine owned by her family for a hundred years, situated two miles northeast of the little hilltop town of Paris, in Oxford county, Me., where Hannibal Hamlin was born.

"In the necklace are all the colors that are known to the tourmaline.
Yellow, green, white, pink, blue, black and rose are shades that burn and smolder in this remarkable piece of jewelry, and I dare say that few people in America know that such priceless treasures are to be found here.

Western States Unexplored.

"It is my opinion that there are many hidden ledges in the middle and western states that contain equal deposits, but few of them have been discovered. There are mines in California that produce many tourmalines, and they are mostly shipped to China and Japan, where the average prices prefer them to diamonds because of their supposed lucky qualities.

"In 1820 two boys who were interested in minerals had been hunting over the hills of northwestern Maine for gold signs. Late one day while they were on their way home they stopped to rest on the land belonging to the father of one of them, Elijah L. Hamlin. There had been a light fall of snow, and a windstorm had uprooted a tree. While they talked one of them saw a green tint in the fresh earth under the roots of the tree, and, looking more carefully, under the impression that it might be a sign of copper, he found a beautiful green tourmaline as large as a man's little finger.

"It was perfect, with the exception of a slight fracture on one end. Digging in the frozen earth, they found several others and took them home.
The next spring the Hamlins began mining the gems and have kept at it off and on ever since. It is one of the most valuable gem mines in America."

PRUSSIAN CARS DISINFECTED.

Tube Invented For Quick Work on Railroads.

Disinfection of the coaches of the Prussian state railways has been announcing the sanitation authorities with the result that the government recently established a system of steam tubes, boiler riveted, into which coaches may be backed and exteriors and interiors rendered germless through a treatment of formalin.

Cars are run into these tubes, one at a time, the end of the tube closed and its interior filled with formalin gas. The gas tank is set up as a connection with the metal tubing, leading the disinfecting gas into the cars.
