Dames Quarter District, No. 11—School No. 1, J. P. Kelley, Thomas Carow, Dan Rozman.

OYSTER WAR LOOKED FOR

Smith's Island Oystermen Pulling Up Stake Buoys In The Chesapeake Bay

Trouble developed Friday morning among the oystermen of Smith's Island and the oyster bed planters when the former pulled up the buoys marking the survey of the Shell Fish Commission and the stakes placed by the planters in the Chesapeake Bay.

During the last few days the oystermen of Smith's Island have been holding meetings, at which they voted their sentiments against the replanting of the oyster beds. The trouble is the outgrowth of resentment by the dredgers against the right of the State to control the oyster beds and to lease them to planters. The dredgers contend they should have the right to dredge in any and all beds in the Chesapeake Bay within the limits of the State lines.

Captain Edward P. Tyler, a former commander of the police schooner Helen Baughman, who lives on Smith's Island, went to Crisfield Friday morning and reported conditions as very bad. Tyler said that the stakes and buoys were being pulled up; that oystermen were getting out their rifles and preparing to "camp" off the bottoms, where they were destroying the stakes, in order to prohibit the restaking of this ground by the planters.

The situation is serious and one that the officials have never had to face before. It is probable that the oyster navy, under the command of Capt. T. C. B. Howard, will be called to the scene of trouble. This is the first open break brought about and the situation is alarming.

The same trouble occurred some years ago between the oystermen and the planters off the shores of Anne Arundel county. There was an adjustment of the matter and now, it is stated, the oystermen favor planting oysters and leasing the beds.

Funeral of Alan W. Tull

Last Thursday afternoon funeral services were held at Rehoboth Presbyterian Church over the remains of Mr. Alan W. Tull, deceased. The Rev. H. G. Martin, pastor of the church, after the religious services the Masonic rites followed. Mr. Tull being a member of Manokin Lodge, No. 106, A. F. & A. M., of Princess Anne, a number of members of that lodge—and other citizens—were present to pay their last tribute of respect. Interment was in the cemetery adjoining the church. The pallbearers were, Messrs. Henry J. Waters, Gordon Tull and Robert F. Maddox, of this town; Aden Davis, Jr., of Marion; Lewis M. Milbourne and A. T. Dashiell, of Kingston, all members of the Masonic order.

Last week we chronicled the death of Mr. Tull which occurred at Detroit, Michigan, where he was visiting. He was a senior member of the law class at the University of Michigan. His untimely death has cast a gloom over his home town and the vicinity where he was so favorably known and esteemed.

April Parcel Post Packages

Reports received at the Postoffice Department indicate that 59,500,000 parcel post packages were sent through the mails during April, approximately 54 per cent more than were handled in January, the first month of the system's operation.

Chicago, with 6,379,692 parcels, led all other cities in the amount of parcel post business done in April, while New York city, with 6,252,378 parcels, was second; Boston third, Philadelphia fourth, Cleveland fifth and St. Louis sixth.

Jacob Waters. School No. 2, J. Samuel Jefferson, John Winder, George King. Fairmount District, No. 6—School No. 1, Joshua F. Gilliss, Herbert S. Wilson, Alex. Bowser. School No. 2, Handy Carroll, Harvey Weatherley, Isaac Fontaine. School No. 3, Paul Jones E. D. Waters, Lemuel Johnson.

Crisfield District, No. 7—School No. 1, Charles E. Hearn, Charles Whittington, Harry Whittington.

Lawson's District, No. 8—School No. 1, John T. Logan, Charles M. Cottingham, Horace S. Cottman. School No. 2, James Mills, Addo R. Ward, Stephen Ward.

Tangier District, No. 9—School No. 1, James Teagle, John Teagle, Samuel McBride.

Dames Quarter District, No. 11—School No. 1, Asbury Jones, Henry Asbury Jones, Major L. White.

Asbury District, No. 12—School No. 1, Travis Byrd, Joseph Brinkingham, Samuel H. Sterling.

Westover District, No. 13—School No. 1, Noah Collins, Henry Milbourne, George Williams.

Deal's Island District, No. 14—School No. 1, James Ballard, Hamilton Jones, John Milbourne.

In Interest of the Public Library

An enthusiastic public meeting was held at the home of Mrs. Wm. H. Dashiell on Thursday to discuss the possibility of securing a building for the Princess Anne Public Library.

Miss Mary P. Farr, field secretary of the Maryland Public Library Commission was present. Owing to the short notice given for the meeting, the attendance was not large.

Several propositions were put forward. The one that was most popular, was to build a new building and move it to a desirable site. A committee composed of four ladies, Mrs. Wm. H. Dashiell, Mrs. J. D. Wallop, Mrs. Earle Polk and Mrs. Luther A. Oates, was appointed to canvass the town for the purpose of finding an available site.

On Friday the Board of Lady Managers and the Book Committee of the Library met at the home of Mrs. Cassius M. Dashiell.

Among other things Miss Farr suggested that the library should ask subscriptions for its support and give free use of the books to all. Instances were quoted of other libraries in the State, Berlin, Centerville, Laurel, Prince Georges county, and others, which allow free use of the books.

Will Inspect Roads Abroad

Chairman O. E. Weller and Walter B. Miller, of the State Roads Commission, will sail June 14th on the steamship Zealand, of the Red Star Line, for England in order to attend the International Roads Congress, which will be held in London from June 23d to June 28th.

After the sessions of the congress they will spend a week or 10 days in looking over the roads of England, Germany, France, Scotland and Wales and expect to get information of value to them in their work of building roads in Maryland.

It is likely that they will be called on to tell the congress something about the work Maryland is doing, particularly about the construction of concrete roads, with which they have been very successful. Messrs. Weller and Miller will go to the congress as delegates from the American Road Builders' Association.

Dynamite Wrecks a Town

The magazine of the Consolidation Coal Company, situated in a field along the upper edge of Eckhart, Allegany county, nine miles from Cumberland, exploded early Wednesday morning, killing two men and perhaps a third man.

The explosion was heard in a radius of 60 miles. It tore a hole in the ground 15 feet deep by 30 feet in circumference. The magazine contained 1,700 pounds of dynamite and 70 kegs of powder. The destroyed and the flames had scarcely a window pane left unbroken in Eckhart, a town of 3,000 inhabitants, and many doors were crushed in. Over 100 houses were badly damaged. The outbuildings of glass were broken in Froese Sturgis dwelling, near the burg. The crop of wheat in the field, which the magazine was located in, was practically destroyed.

$70,000,000 FROM INCOME TAX

Sums That the Various States and Territories Will Receive From 424,000 Individuals

The Ways and Means Committee estimates that the income tax will bring in $70,125,000 from 424,000 individuals.

Representative Cordell Hull, the income tax expert of the Committee, says that is a low estimate. He thinks there will be more individuals and more tax.

The income tax will cover all the States, Hawaii, Porto Rico, Alaska and the Philippines. The corporation tax, which was first collected for the fiscal year ending December 31, 1910, has resulted in the following collections:

For 1910, $28,000,000; for 1911, $33,511,525; and for 1912, $26,583,259.81.

The income tax will produce almost three times as much annually as the corporation tax. New York state will pay almost twice as much income tax as any other state. Pennsylvania will be next in rank, and then Illinois, Ohio, and Massachusetts will follow in the order named.

The following estimates of the sums that the various states and territories will pay are believed to be as near accurate as they can be made:

New York, $15,309,294; Pennsylvania, $9,079,574; Illinois, $7,443,041; Massachusetts, $3,652,298; Ohio, $4,545,593; Alabama, $324,500; Alaska, $12,617; Arizona, $100,023; Arkansas, $245,299; California, $3,232,591; Colorado, $733,854; Connecticut, $1,416,167; Delaware, $131,402; District of Columbia, $394,876; Florida, $268,590; Georgia, $696,724; Hawaii, $375,874; Idaho, $92,150; Indiana, $1,058,543; Iowa, $643,008; Kansas, $890,658; Kentucky, $620,874; Louisiana, $477,340; Maine, $438,910; Maryland, $933,508; Michigan, $1,760,000; Minnesota, $2,240,000; Mississippi, $160,000; Missouri, $2,103,760; Montana, $196,000; Nebraska, $378,180; Nevada, $120,260; New Hampshire, $125,900; New Jersey, $2,733,920; New Mexico, $56,680; North Carolina, $393,564; North Dakota, $123,816; Oklahoma, $271,328; Oregon, $159,535; Rhode Island, $598,168; South Carolina, $206,505; South Dakota, $102,978; Tennessee, $589,932; Texas, $1,256,734; Utah, $924,141; Vermont, $100,000; Virginia, $925; Washington, $641,830; Wisconsin, $1,120,760; Wyoming, $74,140.

This foots up $69,790,769, outside of Porto Rico and the Philippines.

Telephone Facilities Increased

Work of installing an addition to the switchboard in Salisbury central office the Chesapeake and Potomac Telephone Company has just been completed. With this addition the Salisbury switchboard has nine positions, and the largest in service on the Eastern Shore south of Wilmington.

April 13th, 1913, Salisbury's telephone system was changed from the old to the common battery system, which placed Salisbury on a telephone with Baltimore, Washington, and other large cities, and brought to citizens the highest grade of telephone service.

The Salisbury district includes nine counties on the Eastern Shore, seven counties in Maryland and one in Virginia. It has 34 exchanges and 5887 stations.

The present time the construction of more than 900 miles of copper wire on Eastern Shore is under way, will provide a separate additional circuit from Baltimore to the following points: Chester, Queenstown, Cambridge, Easton, and Salisbury.

Hurlock—Preston; Salisbury—Berlin; Salisbury—Pocomoke; Annapolis—Parksley; Belle Haven—Eastville—Cape Charles.

These lines are connected at the shore, the facilities will be of use to handle the increasing traffic on Western Shore.

Commercial Department is in charge of Mr. H. W. Carty, with the Local Manager.

Fire at Salisbury

Early Wednesday morning did a fire of Fooks and Locust streets, in Salisbury. About 3.30 o'clock a fire was discovered bursting through the roof of the store and house of Dora Hastings, and before the department could reach the building and its contents were destroyed.

The building was destroyed, the dwelling adjoining occupied by Heath and owned by F. P. This building was destroyed, the outbuildings, were partly burned, and the dwelling was on fire.

Resolved, That the Honorable Robley D. Jones and John W. Staton be, and they are hereby, completely vindicated.

JOHN S. WISE DEAD

Noted Lawyer, Author and Former Virginia Congressman and Confederate Soldier

Former Congressman John S. Wise, of Virginia, died at noon Monday of last week at the summer residence of his son, United States District Attorney Henry A. Wise, of New York, who recently purchased the Dr. Tull farm at the head of Wicomico Creek, about five miles from Princess Anne.

Mr. Wise had been an invalid for the last six years. He was in a hospital at Bryn Mawr, near Philadelphia, for six months. He left the hospital on May 6th for his home, Kiptopeake, in Northampton county, Virginia. He stopped at his son's home for a short visit and shortly after his arrival was stricken with pneumonia. Hemorrhages from the lungs set in on the Sunday following from which he did not recover.

Few Americans have had a more varied career than John S. Wise. He was born in Rio de Janeiro December 27, 1846, while his father was United States Minister to Brazil.

Several years of his boyhood were spent in the Executive Mansion at Richmond, his father being Governor of Virginia during the stormy period just previous to the Civil War. He was graduated in 1867 from the University of Virginia, with the degree of bachelor of Literature.

When the Readjuster movement swept through Virginia in the late seventies Wise followed Gen. "Billy" Mahone and was a leading figure in the bitter campaigns that divided the whole State. He was one of the Democrats who at this time went over to the Republican party. He was rewarded with the position of United States District Attorney during the Garfield-Arthur administration. He was elected to Congress in 1882 as a Readjuster Republican and in 1885 was selected to lead the last great fight of the Readjusters for State offices, being nominated as the candidate for Governor against Fitzhugh Lee. In the Cleveland tidal wave of that year the Readjusters caused intense feeling against those who had led the Readjusters, and Mr. Wise sought a more congenial field for his talents in New York. There he at once took a leading place at the bar and was soon known as one of the most successful attorneys in New York.

His son was made United States District Attorney by President Roosevelt and won considerable reputation by his prosecution of the sugar underweighting and undervaluation frauds.

While living in New York Mr. Wise engaged in literary work. Chief among his published books are "Diomed," published in 1898; "The End of an Era," in 1899; "The Lion's Skin," in 1905; "Recollections of Thirteen Presidents," in 1906, and "Citizenship," in 1906. Two years ago he removed to Virginia.

In November, 1865, Mr. Wise married Miss Evelyn Beverly Douglas, of Nashville, Tenn., who survives him. He also leaves the following children—Capt. Hugh Douglas Wise, U. S. A.; Henry A. Wise and John S. Wise, Jr., of New York; Mrs. Perrine Barney, of Cape Charles, Va.; Jennings C. Wise, of Virginia Military Institute; Miss Margaretta Wise and Byrd Douglas Wise.

One sister, Mrs. A. J. W. Hobson, of Williamsburg, Va., also survives him. The body of Mr. Wise was taken to Richmond, Va., Wednesday afternoon on the Pennsylvania railroad by way of Washington and services were held from Old St. Paul's Church in Richmond on Thursday and the interment was in Hollywood Cemetery. The members of Mr. Wise's family who were at United States District Attorney Wise's home, near Princess Anne, and accompanied Mrs. Evelyn Beverly Wise; his sons, Henry A. Wise and Byrd D. Wise, and his daughters, Mrs. Perrine Barney and Miss Margaretta Wise.

Judge and Lawyer Vindicated

A called meeting of the Worcester County Bar, at Snow Hill last Tuesday afternoon, condemned the recent publication relative to Judge Robley D. Jones and John W. Staton, attorney in connection with the recent municipal election in Snow Hill. The vindication was signed by the defeated candidates, John H. Handy, the oldest member of the Bar and an active practitioner for over 60 years, was chairman, and J. Shiles Crockett, of Pocomoke City, secretary. A resolution proposed by the chairman was unanimously adopted by a rising vote, declared:

"Resolved, That the Honorable Robley D. Jones and John W. Staton be, and they are hereby, completely vindicated."

TORNADO HITS NEBRASKA

Seventeen Dead and Forty Hurt—Three Towns Stricken—$250,000 Damage

For the second time in two months Nebraska has been swept by a devastating tornado that wrecked many homes and public buildings.

The tornado which formed in the southern part of Seward county Thursday night took a toll of 19 lives, injured 40 persons and destroyed property valued at $250,000. At least three towns, Seward, Tomaro and McCool Junction, suffered from the elements, the greatest destruction being at Seward, where 11 persons were killed and 30 injured. At Tomaro four lives were lost and much property was destroyed. At McCool Junction two deaths occurred. At Seward a much greater disaster was averted by the fact that the tornado crossed only a comparatively small part of the town, instead of sweeping across the more densely populated section, two blocks south. The property loss in that city is estimated at $100,000.

The tornado apparently originated southwest of McCool Junction and, gathering force as it moved to the northeast, struck with full force both at Tomaro and Seward. The storm crossed Omaha near the southern limits, but its strength had been so far spent that the damage done there was nominal. This fact, however, did not prevent many Omahans seeking refuge in cellars and other places considered tornado proof. The experience of Easter Sunday taught them to consider seriously the approach of ominous-looking clouds, and the appearance in the southwest Thursday evening's storm was sufficient to set everybody to looking for avenues of escape.

Maryland Delegates Call on Postmaster-General Burlesom

Maryland patronage seekers had a field day at the Postoffice Department at Washington, last Thursday. Four delegations, interested in the postmaster of Annapolis, Crisfield and Rising Sun, were in conference at different times.

Representative Covington presented the delegations from the Eastern Shore. First to arrive was former State Comptroller Gordon T. Atkinson and L. C. Quinn in behalf of Mr. Quinn's candidacy.

Later in the day Mr. Covington returned with A. B. Cochrane and Dr. Collins, who came to urge the appointment of Mr. Cochrane for postmaster at Crisfield. Each of these Marylanders was listened to attentively by the Postmaster-General, but no assurance was given them as to the course the Administration would pursue.

The delegation from Annapolis was to press the candidacy of State Senator J. H. Bellis for postmaster of that city. This delegation was introduced by Congressman Smith, who strongly endorsed Dr. Bellis. He was followed by Dr. Wells, the political leader of Anne Arundel county, who told the Postmaster-General that the Democrats present were all Wilson men, that he had himself led the fight in the county for Wilson and that the primary vote had been, for the President. He said that Dr. Bellis was a strong Wilson man.

A in the case of the Crisfield people, however, the Postmaster-General had no encouragement for the Bellis delegation. He merely told them that he would consider carefully all the facts laid before him.

Crisfield End of the State Road Progressing Rapidly

Work on the new State Road near Crisfield is going forward rapidly and this week the construction of the road will be well under way.

The road which is to be 27-10 miles in length, begins at the railroad crossing just above Hopewell station and runs in a southerly direction through Bedsworth, around by the Mason corner and down what is known as the "Rayfield Road" to the city limits of Crisfield. The road is to be of concrete with a 14 feet road bed and a dirt shoulder five feet wide on each side of the road, making the highway 24 feet in width. The concrete roadbed will be 5 inches deep on the sides and 7 inches deep in the centre.

It is estimated that the road will be completed about September 1st. The Hassam Paving Company has the contract for this road and the construction is being done under the supervision of Mr. J. T. Richards, Jr., the representative of that firm.

LOST EXPLORERS.

Pathos and Tragedy Fill the Pages of Their Diaries.

SOME FAMOUS LAST RECORDS.

The Journals of Captain Scott, De Long, Livingstone, Franklin and Others Are Mute Testimonies of Their Heroic Sacrifices For Science.

A peculiar and pathetic interest attaches to the last records of lost explorers, dying alone and unaided amid icy wildernesses or in the steaming depths of tropical jungles.

The diary kept by the gallant Captain Scott teems with tragic touches, but it also has its beautiful and its heroic side. No more splendid instance of magnificent self sacrifice has been recorded than the action of the disabled Captain Oates in seeking voluntary death in the blizzard so as not to be a burden on his surviving companions.

The world is richer in the possession of facts such as these, which is why the last diaries of men dying in similar circumstances have always been ardently sought and carefully treasured.

It was, for example, in order to try to recover the papers belonging to the lost arctic explorer Mylius Erichsen that Captain Mikkelsen recently spent two awful years among the icy solitudes of northeast Greenland. He failed in his quest, and he and his solitary companion came near to losing their own lives.

These journals of poor Erichsen, if they are ever found, will doubtless tell a similarly stirring story to that left behind by Scott. Until then there is only one record that closely parallels it, and that is the diary left by the American, De Long, who, with other survivors from the arctic exploring ship Jeannette, perished amid the frozen wastes of northeastern Siberia in the winter of 1881.

De Long's diary, which was recovered and has been published, might almost be a duplicate in parts of that kept by poor Scott.

Only in De Long's case the tragedy was even more appalling than in Scott's, for his party consisted of no fewer than thirteen men, and these all died from starvation and exposure. The last entry reads as follows: "One hundred and fortieth day—Boyd and Gortz died during the night. Mr. Collins dying."

The gallant De Long was then left with but one companion, Dr. Ambler, the medical officer to the expedition, for the deaths of the other men had been previously recorded, and doubtless the two last of the survivors died that day or the next. At all events, the journal ended abruptly at this point.

By far the most dreadful tragedy of arctic exploration was the loss of the Franklin expedition, when the ill-fated officers and men of the two exploring ships, Erebus and Terror, 130 in all, perished. Curiously enough, though many relics of the ill-fated commander Sir John Franklin were recovered by search parties and are now preserved in the museum attached to the Greenwich hospital, none of his diaries or personal papers were ever found.

One single written record of the lost expedition remains to us. It is in the form of a sheet torn from a small pocket diary, and these are the words it contains: "April 25, 1848—Terror and Erebus were abandoned. Sir John Franklin died on June 11, 1847, and the total loss by deaths up to this date nine officers and fifteen men."

This precious scrap of paper was discovered in a cairn on King William's Island in the year 1858. There was no signature, but the handwriting was afterward identified as that of Captain Fitzjames, one of Sir John's officers.

In the tragic history of exploration no briefer record than this exists of a disaster so appalling in its magnitude, although Burke and Wills, who first crossed Australia, left behind them only a few tattered leaves from an old pocketbook to tell the story of how they and their companions had lain down in the desert to die.

Of all the many valuable and interesting documents left behind by lost explorers, however, none can vie in importance with the last journals of David Livingstone, who died, worn out by hunger and privation, at Ilala, in central Africa, May 1, 1873. These were brought down to the coast, together with his body, by his faithful black "boys" and were published in December, 1874.

They told of vast and far-reaching discoveries and explorations undertaken under almost inconceivable conditions of hardship and privation. In fact, Livingstone literally laid down his life for his country since to his posterity his life is largely due to the fact that so great a part of Africa is today colored red upon the map.—London Advertiser.

Where the Benefit Was.
Widow's Daughter—Mamma, why did you tell Mrs. Lamode that I am only eighteen when I am really twenty-four?

Widow—Because eighteen is six years under twenty-four, my dear.

Daughter—Yes, I know, but surely I don't need the benefit of those six years at my age, do I?

Widow—Not at all, my child, but I do.

There are proper dignity and proportion to be observed in the performance of every act of life.—Marcus Aurelius

THE SENSE OF HEARING.

Range of Sound Waves That Impress the Human Ear.

In the sense of hearing numerous problems have interested the experimental psychologist. Among these may be mentioned the range of sounds that can be heard by an individual—that is, the limit both above and below which no sound can be heard. The solution of these two problems, the determination of the upper and lower limit of sound, has occasioned a great deal of careful work and the construction of many forms of apparatus.

For determining the upper limit of sound for any individual—and individuals differ considerably—the Galton whistle is generally used. It consists of a tiny pipe, which is lengthened or shortened by a piston adjusted by a micrometer screw. This little instrument can be regulated to make a tone which is too high for any human ear to hear and which will finally produce only a painful sensation.

The Galton whistle was devised by Francis Galton for his study of individual differences. He had one of the whistles built into the end of his cane, and as he walked through the zoological gardens he would blow it near the ears of the various animals. He adjusted the whistle too high for his own ear to hear and if the various animals responded to the sound he knew that their upper limit was greater than that of the human ear.

The ordinary human ear can detect a tone whose vibration rate is at least 25,000 vibrations per second, while the whistle will produce 50,000 per second. This upper limit varies with the age of the individual to such an extent that if the upper limit at sixteen years of age were 50,000 vibrations, at sixty years of age it would be about 25,000 per second.—Strand Magazine.

MUTUAL IGNORANCE.

Quaint Story of Dumas and Scribe, the Playwright.

Sardou had his eyes opened by the plays of Scribe. At that day it was the fashion among the younger literary men to sneer at Scribe—as it is today, by the way, to sneer at Sardou. Scribe was a man who wrote scenes to fit scenery and a maker of plots rather than of plays. Appalling tales were told of him by unsuccessful playwrights. It was whispered that he sucked the brains of other men, purchased ideas, revamped them and thus acquired the large fortune which he was then enjoying.

How they accounted for the fact that with the ideas of unsuccessful playwrights he made successful plays tradition does not tell. But all were agreed that Scribe was mediocre, that his success was accidental and that he was a miser. Albert Wolff gives these details of the opinions held with regard to Scribe in the fifties and adds this anecdote:

"The only influential man I knew in Paris," said Sardou, "was Dumas the elder. One day I said to him, 'Won't you give me a letter of introduction to Scribe, the playwright?' 'Scribe,' said the great romancer, 'who is Scribe? I never heard of him.' I sighed and determined to see Scribe without a letter. So I called at his house that very day and was at once received. 'Pardon my intrusion,' I said, 'but I had expected to bring a letter of introduction to you from M. Alexandre Dumas, the celebrated romancer.' 'Dumas? Interrupted Scribe. 'Never heard of him. Who is Dumas?'—From Jerome A. Hart's 'Sardou and the Sardou Plays.'

Potatoes and Power.

One foresees the triumph of the potato, not so much as a food, but as a means of motion. Coal is giving out; petrol is going up in price and down in production. The supply of both is limited and must come to an end, but there comes the cheer that alcohol will be the motive force of the future. Petrol and coal may give out, but the earth will always grow potatoes. Potatoes can produce alcohol, and alcohol can drive engines. In the potato we seem to have discovered the secret of perpetual motion.—London Chronicle.

Lessons in Mistakes.

When is it a mistake to take what seems the easiest way of doing a thing? Do you know of lives that have been wrecked by a lazy choice of "the path of least resistance"? It would be a good thing to pause long enough to ask ourselves most earnestly if we are making such a mistake just now.

Narrow Escape

Never Sleep Two In a Room at a Hotel

By ANDREW C. EWING

During a political convention in Chicago I was obliged to go there on business. The matter that engaged my attention was the settlement of a debt I owed about which there had been a quarrel. In order to be prepared to pay as soon as we should arrive at a stated amount I provided myself with $1,000 in bank bills. I arrived in Chicago at 9 o'clock and went to several hotels without being able to secure a room. Finally I was told at a second class house that I might have one of two beds in a room, the other bed being occupied by a man.

I was tired and sleepy, and I accepted the offer. I had to decide whether I would deposit my money with the landlord or take it to my room with me. Had the house been first class I would certainly have adopted the former course. As it was, I concluded to keep my money with me. It was 10 o'clock when I went to bed. My roommate was not there, so I had a choice of beds. The apartment was long and narrow. One bed was beside the door, which could be opened and shut by the person occupying the bed by reaching out an arm. The other bed was at the other end of the room, near a window.

I selected the bed by the door, which besides the lock was provided with a bolt. I left the door unlocked and unbolted so that my roommate could get in when he came. My pocketbook, containing my bills, I put directly under my pillow. I turned the gas low and lay down, hoping the occupant of the other bed would soon come in, for I was tired and wished to go to sleep. But despite my efforts to keep awake I failed.

I was awakened by his coming, or, rather, the turning up of the gas jet which shone in my eyes. I could see the man very plainly, and the moment I did so I wished I was anywhere but where I was. I did not like the man's appearance. He addressed himself without paying any attention to me, so far as I could see, and, turning out the gas, got into bed. I had expected that he would lock the door, but he didn't.

I tried to satisfy myself that I had imagined the man to look worse than he really was. It also seemed to me that he had any designs upon me he would have made them plain.

I fell asleep. I was awakened by a sound at the other end of the room. I could not tell what caused it, but thought that something had fallen. I listened, but all was still. Then I put my hand under my pillow to make sure that my purse was still there. It was not. Should I reach out and lock the door, thus confining myself with a robber, or leave him a free egress from the room?

My first impulse was to let him go. My life was worth more to me than the $1,000, but I did not feel like admitting to robbery. It was not money I was about to lose, but my suffering was. As I thought of the latter my courage began to fail and I reached out and locked the door.

I presumed the man to be armed, but he had no means of ascertaining whether the man were in bed or not. I had a weapon until I should attempt to use it upon him. My locking the door might act in several different ways. First, it might seem to that, having been awakened by a sound, I had heard, even without my pocketbook, I had reached out to learn if the door had been locked, and, not finding it so, I had jumped out of bed and bolted it; secondly, it might seem to him that I had missed my money, and had resolved to look him in the light for it. In the latter case the would be likely to infer that I was armed.

After throwing the bolts I lay feebly still. It occurred to me again whether the man were in bed or not. Where else in the room, he would make no movement until he had taken son to suppose I was at least not in the room. In order to him and brought in a dozen of champagne of this I began to breathe at the expense of myself and hard, like one asleep. Nevertheless, it was near daylight when did not change the direction of my enemy's looks I thought him a fellow of the room.

There was a faint light coming through the window, and presently saw a figure darken the latter. When it faced me or the window I could not tell, but I knew my enemy was not there. That he was near the window was evident from his apparent side, and was examining an escape from the end of the room?

The silhouette disappeared from the window, coming, it seems, before the window, when it stepped toward me. But except when it stepped out between me and the window, I could not tell where it was. I remember of the man getting ill of that bed. Indeed, for some time I could hear nothing.

Inaction took away my nerve. I began to regret having locked the door. Had I not done this the robber might have gone peacefully out without molesting me, which he could easily do, for he chose the next door to the apartment with a throbbing heart. Suddenly I saw the silhouette at the window, and between me and the window, and time the right arm was raised in an attitude as if to strike. I sprang out of bed.

A chair stood beyond the door against the wall, and I seized it with a view to raising it as a weapon for defense. I did not do so, for my clothes were on it, and, since I had not been struck, I contented myself with keeping the chair in my grip so that I could swing it at a moment's notice.

I stood there in the dark waiting. I saw nothing of my enemy nor did I hear anything. He must have heard me get out of bed and was doubtless waiting for an advantage. The advantage in one respect was with me. My end of the room was dark, while the window was at his end, and whenever he was between me and it I could see the silhouette of his figure.

I stood for some time with my hand grasping the back of the chair, expecting every moment either to feel cold steel in my vitals or a bullet crashing through me. That the man did not attack me I attributed to the fact that he could not see me. The gas fixture was midway between me and him, but if I had struck a match to light the gas I would have been exposed to any blow he chose to strike. I knew also that he would not so expose himself.

I had read of the old time duel in a dark room and fell into this one of my own nature. The only difference was that in the old time duel both parties were armed with the same kind of weapon, while I had no weapon at all and did not know how my enemy was armed. I felt sure that he was waiting to locate me, so I kept perfectly still. I even put my hand on my heart, for it beat so loud that it seemed it must give me away.

Suddenly I heard the tread of a shoe on the floor. The man had been putting on his clothes. If he were completely dressed he would feel better protected than I in bare feet and a nightshirt. One feels an advantage behind a defense even if it be clothing. I cowered into the corner.

The window sash went up like a shot. I saw something dark on the sill. It remained there a moment, then disappeared, and I heard something drop on a roof without. The man had escaped me after all.

I scratched a match so that I could see the bell button, pushed it violently and continued to do so till a boy came up to my room.

"I've been robbed," I cried. "The thief has gone out through the window with my pocketbook, containing $1,000. Go down and tell them at the office to call the police and give chase at once."

The boy stood staring at me out of a pair of sleepy eyes, then suddenly turned and ran downstairs. I hurried on my clothes and followed him. The night clerk had telephoned the police, and the patrol wagon was pulling up before the door with a great clatter. I was telling them to hurry after the thief when a man out of breath came

There's a lunatic or a robber or something in 49. I escaped by the window."

He was my roommate. "He's lying!" I exclaimed. "He's taken my pocketbook."

There was a babel of voices for awhile, when one of the policemen asked me some questions about the lost money, which led to the party going up to No. 49 to investigate, and a search was made for my pocketbook. It had slipped from under my pillow and fallen from the head of the bed to the floor. Every dollar it had contained was still in it. I didn't know whether my joy at finding my money or my mortification was the greater. "I beg your pardon," I said, shamefacedly to my late enemy. "I beg yours," he said, with equal abasement.

"What did you get out of bed for?" "My flask. I couldn't get to sleep and wanted something to quiet me. I dropped the flask."

Those surrounding us began to grin. "Well," I continued, "why didn't you go back to bed again?" "From your actions I got afraid of you. I was trying to dress when you jumped out of bed and I thought you were coming for me."

"I saw you raise your arm to strike," I said. "I was putting on my shirt when you saw the arm going into the door."

"Well, I'll be hanged!" I replied. "Gentlemen, would you like some champagne?"

"That's on me," said my roommate. "Mr. Night Clerk, can we get any more champagne?"

The clerk took us into the dining room and brought in a dozen of champagne at the expense of myself and my roommate. It was near daylight when I separated, and instead of my enemy's looks I thought him a fellow of the room.

Then, when I go to a hotel and propose to put me in the same room with another person, my remark is, "I'll sleep in a pigsty, or bed. That he was near the window was evident from his apparent side, and was examining an escape from the end of the room?"

hit when he ran away from that place. We found we were from the toward me. But except when it stepped out between me and the window, I could not tell where it was. I remember of the man getting ill of that bed. Indeed, for some time I could hear nothing.

Inaction took away my nerve. I began to regret having locked the door. Had I not done this the robber might have gone peacefully out without molesting me, which he could easily do, for he chose the next door to the apartment with a throbbing heart. ## HIS SELF CONTROL

He Proved It to His Own but Not His Family's Satisfaction.

Mr. Brown was excitable by nature but he often prided himself audibly upon his self control. One night while the family were gathered at the table the chimney began to roar. The furnace draft had been opened and forgotten. Straightway a panic ensued.

"Don't lose your heads—keep cool!" cried Mr. Brown. "It's nothing serious."

He dashed up the stairs, discovered that the metal cap over the only unused stovepipe hole was already red hot, and dashed down again faster than he went up.

"Keep cool!" he gasped as he passed through the room where the family had gathered in nervous apprehension. "I'll be back in a minute."

He was back in less than that time, having observed that the flames were spouting several feet high from the chimney and that a shower of sparks was falling upon the roof.

"Where's the stepladder?" he panted.

He was gone before any one could answer the question and presently was heard bellowing from the roof of the wood shed. He presented a heroic figure in the glare of the blazing chimney.

"I've got one end of the hose," he called. "Some one attach the other end and turn on the water—quick!"

Two long minutes passed.

"Why doesn't some one do as I ordered?" he thundered. "Do you want the place to burn up?"

"We can't, Henry," called Mrs. Brown tremblingly. "You haven't got the hose. You've got the cow rope. It was hanging next to the hose in the shed, and anyway the roof is covered with ice, and I don't think there's any great danger outside. You'd better go and watch the chimney from the inside."

A half hour later the family were again at the tea table.

"If this had happened in some homes," remarked Mr. Brown, "the family would have lost their heads completely and sent in an alarm. Self control is an excellent thing and far from common."

"Indeed, it is," agreed Mrs. Brown emphatically.—Youth's Companion.

FREAKS OF NATURE

A Tree That Throws Somersaults and a Waterfall Reversed.

A tree gone mad and a waterfall that falls up instead of down are among the strange things to be seen in Hawaii, as described by John Burroughs in the Century Magazine.

"Nature in the tropics, left to herself, is harsh, aggressive, savage; looks as though she wanted to hang you with her dangling ropes or impale you on her thorns or engulf you in her ranks of gigantic ferns. Her mood is never as placid and sane as in the north. There is a tree in the Hawaiian woods that suggests a tree gone mad. It is called the 'Hula tree' and it squirms and wriggles all over the ground like a wounded snake. It gets up and then takes to earth again. Now it wants to be a vine; now it wants to be a tree. It throws somersaults, it makes itself into loops and rings, it rolls, it reaches, it doubles upon itself. Altogether it is the craziest vegetable growth I ever saw."

"It was near Pali that I saw what I had never seen or heard of before—a waterfall reversed, going up instead of down. It suggested Stockton's story of negative gravity. A small brook comes down off the mountain and attempts to make the leap down a high precipice, but the winds catch it and carry it straight up in the air like smoke. It is translated; it becomes a mere wreath hovering above the beehive. Night and day this goes on, the wind snatching from the mountains in this summary way the water it has brought them."

Lucky Thirteenth.

A woman who sets particular store by the thirteenth superstition surprised her friends by accepting an invitation to a luncheon where there were to be thirteen guests.

"I will be late," she said, "for I shall make it a point to be the thirteenth person to enter the room. That is a funny thing about thirteen. Many accidents have happened to parties thirteen in number, but investigation has shown that while the other twelve persons suffered more or less the thirteenth person who joined the company always escaped unharmed."—Philadelphia Ledger.

Twentieth Century Definitions.

A witty judge of the municipal court of Boston stoutly declared that "a patriot was a man who refused to button his wife's lingerie waist."

"A martyr," he went on, "is one who attempts and fails, while a hero tries and succeeds."

"Then what is a coward?" asked a curious bystander.

"Oh, a coward," replied the judge, "is a man who remains single so he won't have to try."—Youth's Companion.

Not Unlikely.

"Well, my boy," said the visitor to Bobby, "I suppose some day you expect to step into your father's shoes?"

"Oh, I suppose so," said Bobby gloomily. "I been wearin' out everything else he wears since mother learned how to cut 'em down for me."—Harper's Weekly.

MAKING FARM

WHEN a man or woman has decided to own a little farm there are a few salient points that need careful consideration. These are cost, improvement, nearness to town, transportation facilities and neighborhood. The investment may not be of first importance. With many persons the tone of the neighborhood would be considered first, and rightly so.

The matter of location has to be carefully considered by any one who proposes to continue city employment. In such case the land will cost about $200 an acre. This would be the average price for a twenty-acre tract thirty to forty miles from a large city.

If farming is to be the sole vocation a person can afford to go to the more inland sections, where land is obtainable at from $50 to $100 an acre. In no case is it wise to go more than three or four miles from a good railway town. A fair estimate of the necessary investment is as follows:

Twenty acres of land	$2,000
Buildings	1,000
Six cows	300
Team of mares	200
Pigs and poultry	100
Vehicles and implements	200
Seed, feed and incidentals	100
	$3,900

There are nice little improved farms of forty, fifty or eighty acres to be picked up at $2,000 to $5,000, including good dwellings and other buildings. The location would not be suitable for a city man who had to go back and forth every day, but otherwise they would fill the bill.

In buying such a place as this one

Every well used day on the farm right now means many dollars in the fall. When the weather will not permit outdoor work, the planters, cultivators, etc., ought to have attention, putting them in condition for later work.

TO GET AT THE HEIGHT.

Simple Homemade Device That Is Used For the Calculation.

Having this simple device, you can ascertain the height to a limb or burl, often of advantage in taking out timber, or can find the height to a desired thickness of the trunk, which is often required in cutting telephone or telegraph poles of equal length and thickness of top, says the Orange Judd Farmer, from which picture and description are taken. Take two straight pieces of wood, A, A, fifteen inches long; fasten together at exact right angles and connect ends with the piece B, having a perfectly straight outer edge; fasten the horizontal stick with a bolt and thumb screw to a stake, C, three feet long.

Select a point at approximately same distance from tree that the limb or other point is from the ground, set the stake upright in ground and fasten the triangle with one arm perpendicular and the other horizontal and pointed to the tree. Sight across the diagonal stick at the height it is desired to measure: if the line of vision comes above more nearer the tree; if it falls below move back until the line of vision strikes the desired point. Then, making due allowance for irregularities of the ground, the distance from the stake to the tree will equal the height to the point sighted.

Good Garden Advice.
In many instances the yield of gardens can be increased by simply getting down a few inches deeper with fork or spade. The French gardeners can give Americans many lessons in this respect. The soil should be pulverized, but work should not be commenced too early. Plowing the ground while it is too wet will cause the soil to pack in solid lumps. Good land is often ruined in this manner.—Farm Progress.

Keep the Money Home.
If it pays Belgian truck gardeners to send without or chicory salad across the ocean and after paying freight and a duty of 25 per cent ad valorem to sell it for 9 cents a pound, why wouldn't it pay some of our growers here?—Rural New Yorker.

Don't Forget the Wrench.
A wrench is a good thing to have along with the plow in the spring. Before you forget fasten it to the beam with a short strap and buckle. A wire will answer the purpose, too, but is apt to rub the paint off the iron and invite rust.

THE LITTLE PAY

By C. C. BOWSFIELD

need not pay down more than one-quarter of the purchase price. If a debt is ever justifiable it is in a case where a man of moderate means is trying to do the best thing for his boys and girls and is determined to bring them up on a farm.

It is always possible to rent a farm, and that is the easiest way to get a start. Renting one is soon able to tell whether he is adapted to farm life or not. Nobody should begin this vocation with the idea that it is free from care and hard work. It does not call for drudgery, but the great essentials are industry, patience and intelligent management.

To city people who know what farm life is and who are determined to go to the country I wish to say that conditions are the most favorable that they have ever been for making money from the soil. This is because cities have grown and good markets developed at a faster rate than agriculture has advanced.

In these days a farmer who raises a diversity of articles such as town families have to buy for their tables has no trouble to sell all he can produce. Prices are high enough to afford satisfactory profits. It is only necessary to raise a variety of good products and to handle them with taste and skill. The cash is always ready. This is in reality a day of opportunity for the producer.

With such an equipment as I have outlined the earning capacity of a twenty-acre farm well situated and skillfully managed is from $1,500 to $2,500 a year.

Set aside an acre for experimental purposes this year. Then you can try out your new ideas and the likely suggestions you get from the papers and thus prove their fitness or unfitness for yourself.—Farm Journal.

DO YOU KNOW THIS BEAN?

It's the 'Broad or English Variety. May Be Worth a Trial Here.

The broad bean, known sometimes in this country as the English broad bean, is the common bean of Europe. Some authorities say it cannot succeed in the United States or continental Europe, being not well adapted to hot, dry summers, but it may be worth a trial. It grows well in England.

The broad bean requires a heavy, rich and well drained soil. The plant is erect, two to four feet high, has thick angular stems, leaves with two to five oval leaflets, flowers in clusters, generally white with black eyed wing.

Photograph by Long Island agricultural experiment station.

THE ENGLISH BROAD BEAN.
The pods are large and thick, and the beans are thick, flattened and generally angular.

The varieties and subvarieties in cultivation are numerous and variable. The beans are grown both in the garden and field for forage and as human food. The broad bean is an ancient plant, having been cultivated in Europe from remote times.

Makes a Dandy Knife.
Do your folks need a good butcher knife? Hunt up an old flat file and take it to a blacksmith who understands tempering steel and have him make you one. It will outlast any knife you ever had if made right.

COCK-A-DOODLE-DOO!

Shade must be provided for the fowls and the little chicks during the hot weather.

As soon as it can be had give the hens some good fresh loam. If the sods are with the earth so much the better.

One of the remedies for the pip used by Portuguese poultry raisers is raw onions cut up fine and forced down the throat, followed by a little water.

The Maine experiment station tonic for fowls: Pulverized gentian, one pound; pulverized ginger, one-quarter pound; pulverized saltpeter, one-quarter pound; iron sulphate, one-half pound. Mix thoroughly and use two or three tablespoonsfuls in ten quarts of dry mash.

Small flocks of chickens both in town and country have given greater profits per fowl than large flocks in tests made by the Ohio experiment station. Flocks with unlimited range have shown better profits than flocks that were partly or wholly confined. Farm flocks have been more profitable than village or city flocks.

—The bread and cake sale that has been held by the ladies of the Presbyterian Church each Saturday afternoon has been discontinued for the summer.

—Miss Annie E. Upshur, formerly of Princess Anne, has issued invitations for a reception to be held at her home near Nassawadox, Va., this (Tuesday) evening from 8 to 10 o'clock.

—The Pocomoke base ball team came to Princess Anne last Thursday afternoon and crossed bats with the home club on the campus of Washington High School. The visitors were victorious by a score of 15 to 9.

—Rev. J. Howard Gray, pastor of Antioch Methodist Episcopal Church, of this town, accompanied by Mrs. Gray, left last Wednesday for Madison, New Jersey, to attend the alumni anniversary of Drew Theological Seminary. They returned home Friday.

—Dixey, the fourteen-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. O. P. Dryden, in jumping over the porch railing at the home of Mr. Burton H. Dryden last Wednesday evening, fell and broke a small bone in his left arm. Dr. Lankford reduced the fracture and the young man is now carrying his arm in a sling.

—John Ward, the 11-year-old son of Samuel Ward, of Crisfield, was severely injured Monday of last week when he was run over by a heavy wagon. The boy attempted to cross the street and was struck by the team. His arm was broken in two places and hand and wrist so badly crushed that amputation of the arm at the shoulder was necessary.

—At the session of the School Board last Tuesday it was ordered that application be made to the County Commissioners for the amounts necessary to conduct the various high schools of the county next year, in order that the supplementary State aid may be secured. It was also ordered to have the requisition include a sufficient sum to place the Crisfield High School in the First Group. Princess Anne High School will remain in the Second Group as the attendance in the High School Department is not large enough to comply with the law for First Group schools. Steps were also taken looking to the establishment of a colored industrial school at the county seat which also will be entitled to State aid.

—Wise is the man who, knowing little, says less.

—An ounce of prevention is not only worth a pound of cure, but it cost less.

—Rev. Albert Norman Ward, vice-president of Western Maryland College, was a visitor to Princess Anne last Friday.

—Mr. and Mrs. B. Louis Lankford, of Philadelphia, arrived in Princess Anne yesterday (Monday) morning to spend a few days with relatives and friends.

—Mr. and Mrs. Wm. J. Holloway and children, of Salisbury, spent Sunday afternoon in Princess Anne with Mr. and Mrs. Wm. H. Dashiell, on Prince William street.

—Miss Lula Adams, of Princess Anne, represented Bridge Council, No. 66, at the State Council of the Daughters of America which was in session in Baltimore last week.

—Plans are being made for improvements at the General Marine Hospital, Crisfield. The plans include an enlarged operating room, a dressing room and sterilizing room, with a modern sterilizer.

—Miss Mary P. Farr, secretary of the State Library Commission, spent several days in Princess Anne last week. During her stay two meetings of the ladies connected with the Princess Anne Library were held, looking to various improvements of that institution.

—The Washington High (Grammar) School base ball club won a victory from the Westover team, in Princess Anne, last Friday afternoon, by a score of 3 to 2. Both teams played good ball. The batteries were: Princess Anne—Barnes and Polk; Westover—Ring and Leake.

—Mr. F. Stanley Porter, who a year ago was appointed to fill the position of instructor in mathematics and athletics at Washington College, Chestertown, Md., has received an invitation to return to the same work next year. Mr. Porter is a son of Mr. Twilley C. Porter, of Loretto.

—Small sympathy will be felt for the Philadelphia householder whose servant girl decamped with the family silver because her wages were not paid on time. The girl's act was lawless, of course, but so was the course of the employer in not paying her promptly. Labor is at all times entitled to its due, and to the regular and prompt payment thereof.

—The sewerage problem for Princess Anne is heading to a speedy solution. The section from the steamboat wharf has been completed as far as Beckford avenue and the north section from the corner of Prince William and Church streets will be completed this week. The work is being done under the skillful management of Engineer Maurice W. Adams.

—From the Pocomoke City Ledger-Enterprise: "We are glad to report that Mrs. Wm. E. Bounds, who has been quite sick at her home on Willow street, is now improving. Her mother, Mrs. Wm. T. Holland, who spent several days with her, has returned to her home at Mr. Vernon, Somerset county, but Mr. Bounds' mother, Mrs. George A. Bounds, also of Mt. Vernon, is now with her."

—Mr. and Mrs. Alonzo L. Miles, of Baltimore, have issued invitations to the marriage of their daughter, Miss Nesta Louise Miles, to Mr. Charles Henry Wier, Jr., which is to be solemnized on Wednesday evening, June 4th, at 6.30 o'clock, at Memorial Protestant Episcopal Church, Baltimore. Miss Miles is a niece of Hon. Joshua W. Miles, of Princess Anne, and Mr. S. Frank Miles, of Marion.

—State Bank Commissioner J. Dukes Downes has completed his report showing the fine condition of the 121 banks and trust companies at the close of business April 4th. According to the report submitted on April 18th, 1912, the resources of the State institutions aggregated $107,794,855.31. This year they amount to $114,348,506.24. Compared with those of last April the resources have increased $6,553,650.93. The increase in demand deposits amounts to over $700,000, and in time deposits over $4,000,000.

—Wintry weather visited this section on Saturday night, the 10th inst., when the mercury went down to twenty-eight and on Sunday night, when it dropped two degrees lower, and there were frosts which injured many vegetables, particularly tomatoes, butter beans, potatoes, etc. The strawberry crop sustained very little damage by the cold spell and the fruit was shipped in large quantities last week. Around Westover, King's Creek, Revell's Neck and the lower part of the county the loss to tomato growers will be great, as it will not be an easy matter to replant the tomatoes that were killed by the late freeze—as there are few plants set out after the 20th of June.

Constipation Cured.
Dr. King's New Life Pills will relieve constipation promptly and get your bowels in healthy condition again. John Supic, of Sanbury, Pa., says: "I advise everyone to use them for constipation, indigestion and liver complaint." Will help you. Price 25c. Recommended by Omar A. Jones, druggist. —A man never realizes how little he knows till a small boy begins to ask questions.

—Miss Josephine Porter, of Loretto, spent Sunday afternoon at the home of her grandfather, Mr. S. C. Long.

—Mr. S. Wilson Heaton, of Philadelphia, is visiting at the home of Mr. James R. Stewart, at "Linden Hill." Mr. Heaton is a son of the late Rev. A. C. Heaton, a former pastor of Manokin Presbyterian Church.

—We have received from the President of the Maryland Agricultural College a program of exercises for Farmers' Day, on May 30th. Those who pay the college a visit on this occasion will have the privilege of witnessing numerous important experiments and demonstrations. Among these will be experiments upon growing asparagus and strawberries, in matters of fertilization, in production of new varieties of apples and pears, in sowing crop for green feeding to cattle, with winter oats and barley, with lime, etc. Demonstration will be given of inoculating hogs to prevent cholera. Opportunity will also be given for inspection of land, orchards, vineyards and greenhouses, college buildings, laboratories and the Skinner Overhead System of Irrigation. Visitors will be welcome and will be conducted to various places of interest. All the railroad lines in the State will grant a reduced rate of travel to and from College Park, near Washington, where the college is located.

Additional Train Service

Official announcement is made by Superintendent R. V. Massey that the passenger service of the N. Y. P. & N. R. R. will be increased by two additional trains daily (except Sunday) on the twenty-fifth instant. The South-bound train will leave Delmar at 6.50 a. m., arriving at Cape Charles at 10.25 a. m. The North-bound train will leave Cape Charles at 8 a. m., arriving at Delmar at 11.40 a. m. These trains will be additional, as no trains now running will be taken off. The new schedule will be very much appreciated by the traveling public.

Death of William H. Ross

Mr. William H. Ross, one of the best known and most highly esteemed citizens of Fairmont, died at his home last Friday morning of the infirmities of old age. He was 86 years of age and his health had been impaired for some time. He is survived by his wife, who was the widow of Louis Lankford, and one daughter, Mrs. H. Clay Tull, of Upper Fairmont.

Funeral services were held on Sunday morning at Salem Methodist Protestant Church, of which Mr. Ross had long been an active member, conducted by Rev. James L. Elderdice. The pall bearers were: Albert Sudler, U. Lee Mitchell, George W. Maddox, B. K. Green, S. Frank Robertson and James T. Dougherty. Interment was in the cemetery adjoining the church.

No Oysters From Natural Beds

Last Thursday was the last day on which seed oysters could be taken from the natural beds for planting. After Thursday they can only be legally taken from private beds.

Members of the Shellfish Board are more and more encouraged over the outlook for the success of the State leasing plan. This month 2100 acres have been applied for, and over 36,000 acres in all taken.

Some strong objections to the leasing plan have been registered in Dorchester and Somerset counties. In Somerset the tongs have been banded together for protection against what they fear will be inroads of the planters on the natural oyster beds. It is alleged by some oystermen that when the survey of the natural beds was made several years ago there were left open to leasing many bars that were only temporarily depleted of their oyster supply, but which have now become well stocked with oysters. They are objecting to the taking up of any of these bottoms by planters, but they have no legal standing in their objections, because the time limit in which appeals from the survey could be made has long since expired. However, it is said to be the policy of the Commission not to grant leases for bottoms that are thus disputed, but to leave the question open for settlement by the next Legislature.

Letter to C. H. HAYMAN, Princess Anne, Md.

Dear Sir: You are agent for Devos lead-and-zinc for your town and country?

The whole doctrine of it turns on these three points:

(1) It is all paint and true paint;
(2) It is the strongest paint;
(3) It is full measure.
Because it is all paint, true paint, proportioned for strength and full-measure,
(1) It takes least for a job;
(2) Looks best all the time;
(3) Lasts longest;
(4) Gathers the trade, and holds customers.

There is no such argument for any other paint; there is no other such paint there is nothing but talk for any other paint. Devos is the paint, if you want the facts on your side.

The country is full of experiences; we bring these experiences to bear on your trade.

Yours truly
F. W. DEVOS & CO

State Daughters Elect Officers

The eighteenth annual meeting of the State Council of the Daughters of America, which was in session for two days in Odd Fellows' Temple, Baltimore, was brought to a close Wednesday night. The meeting was presided over by Mrs. Annie Tolson, of Baltimore, who, prior to the election Wednesday afternoon, was president of the society. In her annual address Mrs. Tolson complimented the council on its aggressive policies during the year and reported a large increase in the membership, stating that there are no less than 7,000 enrolled at the present time. Seventy councils were represented at the state meeting.

Resolutions were adopted in indorsement of the woman's suffrage bill, now pending before the congressional committee at Washington. The Daughters also unanimously indorsed the movement for the Star-spangled Banner celebration in Baltimore next year. The election of officers for the ensuing year occupied the entire session Wednesday afternoon, and much interest was manifested. Following the election the newly elected officers were the recipients of many handsome presents from their respective councils. Following are the officers elected:

State councilor, Mrs. S. Belle Wells; associate state councilor, Mrs. Johanna Canoles; state vice councilor, Mrs. Anna C. Clark; associate state vice councilor, Mrs. Kate Brown; assistant secretary, Mrs. Mabel Cox; state conductor, Mrs. Sadie West; state warden, Mrs. Margaret Roberts; state inside sentinel, Mrs. Sallie Dryden, of Princess Anne; state outside sentinel, Mrs. Alexine Webster; state judiciary, Mrs. Rose Falk; national representatives, Mrs. Mary Brady, Mrs. P. Collison, Mrs. Annie Tolson and Mrs. Mary Minnick.

Death of James C. Christopher

James Carstairs Christopher, 66 years old, died at his home, at Laytons-ville, Montgomery county, last Tuesday morning. He was a son of the late Capt. Nicholas Christopher and Eliza M. Harrington, of Baltimore, and leaves his wife (Henrietta Griffith) and two children (James C. Christopher and Mrs. Samuel Riggs, both of Montgomery county) and one sister (Mrs. Mary C. Henry, of Berlin, Md.). He was born in Baltimore, and lived there until about eight years ago, when he moved to his present home at Laytons-ville.

Health a Factor in Success

The largest factor contributing to a man's success is undoubtedly health. It has been observed that a man is seldom sick when his bowels are regular—he is never well when they are constipated. For constipation you will find nothing quite so good as Chamberlain's Tablets. They regulate the appetite and strengthen the digestion. They are sold by all Dealers.

BE A MAN OF ACTION.

Don't Fall into the "I'll Do It Some Day" Habit.

"Some day" is the one day of the 365 that has no place in the calendar and is still the most popular day for making disagreeable engagements. It is the day that every idle dreamer chooses to begin the monumental work that it is to make his fame and fortune.

Today is always huddled, crowded, too hot or too cold, too wet or too dry. Today is out of the question. But "some day" lies in the far golden haze of the future that seems to have in it the infinite leisure of eternity. And so we defer till the more convenient season that never comes what ought to be done instantly, without taking heed of our own feelings, our plausible objections, and permitting the creeping paralysis of overmuch debate that keeps the arm from striking while the iron is hot.

These prophecies that begin with "some day" and a good resolution are rarely converted into the tense present. The man of action makes his plans soberly and takes the facts where he can get them that will help him to decide what to do. But when his mind is once made up he goes ahead without telling you much about it. He does not boast. He is too conscious of his own fallibility to be cocksure of brilliant and secure results.—Philadelphia Ledger.

SAVED BY QUICK WIT.

A Reply That Won Napoleon and the Duke of Modena.

In the French campaign in Italy, in which Napoleon I. first began to win the laurels which subsequently so abundantly crowned his career, a young Italian cavalry officer was taken prisoner.

Having serious doubts about his safety, he occurred to the prisoner to pretend he was a great personage. So he promised rewards to his captors if they would insure his good treatment, adding confidentially that he was the Duke of Modena.

He was exceedingly well cared for and early next morning he called before Napoleon, who was somewhat puzzled at finding two Dukes of Modena among his prisoners, for the real duke was also a prisoner. The real duke angrily asked his counterpart by what authority he had assumed the title of Duke of Modena. The young officer answered:

"Your grace, the perils of my situation yesterday was such that had I known a more illustrious title I would not have assumed yours."

The reply so pleased both the duke and Napoleon that he was forgiven his deceit.

Britanny's Hair Harvest.

It is at Easter time that the curious "hair harvest" of Britanny is "reaped" by the traveling merchants, who go from village to village buying the beautiful hair for which the Breton belles are famous. This is later destined to be made up into "transformations," "fringes" and other mysterious arrangements with which ladies less abundantly endowed by nature make up their shortcomings in the matter of "woman's crowning glory." The clients of the hair buyers are chiefly country lasses in the remoter districts, who are only too pleased to sell their tresses in order to obtain a little money to spend at the Easter fairs. The "harvest," however, is said not to be so good as formerly, as with the spread of education and the love of display many girls prefer to keep their hair.

When the Waltz Was New.

I have a letter in my possession written by a friend to my great-grandmother in the year 1817, at Christmas time, in which the lady expresses her grave disapproval of the "modern" tendency toward rapid dancing. The paragraph runs as follows:

"I was yesterday at your Cousin Betty's, where I was much struck with the new fashioned dances, which seemed, to me at any rate, to be out of keeping with the propriety and modesty which we look for in young ladies of our class. I can only regret the disappearance of those 'mazurkas' and 'gavottes' as well as the 'minuets' and hope that these new dances or 'valses,' as I think they are named, will quickly disappear from respectable society."

Most Prompt and Effectual Cure for Bad Colds

When you have a bad cold you want a remedy that will not only give relief, but effect a prompt and permanent cure, a remedy that is pleasant to take, a remedy that contains nothing injurious. Chamberlain's Cough Remedy meets all these requirements. It acts on nature's plan, relieves the lungs, aids expectoration, opens the secretions, and restores the system to a healthy condition. This remedy has a world wide sale and use, and can always be depended upon. Sold by all dealers. [Advertisement]

Of just how much value, daily value, is your left hand to you aside from its being a natural appendage of your left wrist? It is estimated that hardly one person out of ten uses his left hand 5 per cent of the 100 per cent of its usefulness from getting up in the morning until going to bed at night. In this respect the left handed person, although often made the butt of the "lefty" stigma, is far superior to his right handed neighbor. There is hardly a left handed man or woman who cannot use the right hand much more freely and with stronger grip than the right handed man or woman can use the left. So weak is the left hand of many men and women that, although not crippled in any way and perfect as to shape and size, nevertheless it is held back and guarded and restricted as though it were an injured member. In lifting weights or grasping objects with the firmness necessary for moving or shifting the right handed person makes the right hand do three-fourths of the work.—New York Sun.

Historical.

"Children," asked the visitor who was addressing the school, "how many of you can tell me what it was that Napoleon's soldiers used to call him?" Nobody answered. "Think a moment 'Little'—Still nobody spoke up. 'Little Corp'—'A little corpulent' shouted the children.—Chicago Tribune.

"Have you ever noticed a governor when he was surrounded by the uniformed members of his staff?"—Chicago Record-Herald.

A BIT OF ADVICE

First—Don't Delay. Second—Don't Experiment

If you suffer from backache, headaches or dizzy spells; if you rest poorly and are languid in the morning; if the kidney secretions are irregular and unnatural in appearance, do not delay. In such cases the kidneys often need help.

Doan's Kidney Pills are especially prepared for kidney trouble. They are recommended by thousands. Can Princess Anne residents desire more convincing proof of their effectiveness than the statement of a Princess Anne citizen who has used them and willingly bears testimony?

Mrs. Oscar Long, Princess Anne, Md., says: "It is true that Doan's Kidney Pills have been used very successfully in my home and I hold them in high esteem. I seldom let a day go by without telling someone of the merit of Doan's Kidney Pills and I do not know of another remedy so certain to do good as Doan's Kidney Pills. It gives me pleasure to publicly endorse them."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, New York, sole agents for the United States.

Remember the name—Doan's—and take no other.

Morsepower of a Lightning Flash.

The "horsepower" of a bolt of lightning which struck a house in Hesse last summer has been calculated by a German scientist at no less than 50,000. The calculation was based upon the fact that the lightning instantly melted two large nails. An electric current of 200 amperes and 20,000 volts might, it is said, have accomplished the work in one second, but the lightning did it in a very small fraction of a second.

STORY OF A FAMOUS SONG.

A Dismal, Rainy Day Moved Dan Emmet to Write "Dixie."

"Dixie" was written by Dan Emmet, both words and music. It was sung for the first time Monday, Sept. 19, 1859, on the stage of Bryant's minstrels at 472 Broadway, New York. There has been much controversy over the question of authorship, and over the music. The known history of the song has been carefully compiled by Gustav Kobbe in his "Famous American Songs," as follows:

"On Saturday night, Sept. 17, 1859, after the performance one of the Bryants told Emmet that a new walk around was wanted in time for rehearsal on Monday. The minstrel replied that, while the time was very short, he would do his best. That night after he reached home he tried to hit upon some tune, but the music wouldn't come. His wife cheerfully told him to wait until morning. He should have the room to himself so that he could work undisturbed, and when he had finished the walk around he could play it for her as a sole audience. If she liked it the Bryants would and so would the average listener.

"Next day was rainy and dismal. Some years before Emmet had traveled with a circus as a drummer. In winter the warm southern circuit was a popular route with circus people, and those who were obliged to show north would say when the cold weather would make them shiver, 'I wish I was in Dixie.' The phrase was, in fact, a current circus expression. On that dismal September day, probably the beginning of the equinoctial, when Emmet stepped to the window and looked out the old longing for the pleasant south came over him, and involuntarily he thought to himself, 'I wish I was in Dixie.' 'Like a flash the thought suggested the first line for a walk around, and a little later the minstrel, fiddle in hand, was working out the melody which, coupled with the words, made 'Dixie' a genuine song of the people almost from the instant it was first sung."

LISZT AND HIS CIGARS.

Why the Great Musician Said He Would Quit Smoking.

Liszt was in the habit of smoking one cigar a day. But that one cigar was an exceedingly choice one. When he was starting on a journey he told his valet how many days he would be away, and his valet put into the valise a corresponding number of those cigars.

Once when Liszt was going to Italy the chief customs officer at the frontier post of Chiasso asked him if he had anything to declare. The musician, with his thoughts centered on his music rather than his cigars, made signs to the effect that he had nothing. The officer opened the valise without the traveler agitating himself over the search. Presently a number of cigars were brought to light. The whole lot was confiscated, and he was ordered to pay a fine.

When Liszt reached Milan he told his agent of his unpleasant adventure. Ricciardi laughed at the whole affair, took a stroll to the Italian treasury and recovered the cigars and the fine. On returning to the artist he offered him, with a smile, one of his own precious cigars.

"No, my dear friend," said Liszt. "I have taken a vow never to smoke again so as not to expose myself a second time to such a humiliation."

Ricciardi said he kept his vow. Cher authorities recall Reger's visit to the virtuoso in 1870.

Liszt smoked and offered me cigar," said Reger, "and while I toolily ease he walked up and down, sending out clouds of smoke in the direction of certain terra cotta figures."—New York Sun.

Superstitions on Crickets.

The cricket on the hearth is still a welcome guest in those English households that he deigns to visit. His singing is a harbinger of good fortune, while if he leaves the house that an infallible sign of imminent disaster.

A correspondent in Notes and Queries refers to a belief prevalent in Lashere, "that crickets are lucky to a house and will do no harm to a man who uses them well, but that they holes in the worsted stockings of the members of the family as kill the wife is assured of this," adds the writer, "on the experience of a respectable farmer's family."—London Spectator.

The Richest Street.

The Chandni Chowk, or Serai street, is the main bazaar of Delhi one of the richest streets in the world. Many of its shops are occupied by jewellers, whose hoards of precious stones are said to represent fabulous sums. Native princes enrich their collections of state jewels through the dealers the Chandni Chowk, and some of the diamond experts who live in its wooden buildings are known all over the world.

The Reply.

A woman of advanced age requested the services of a page boy and asked, "Youth wanted."

One of her dearest friends sent by the next post a bottle of Bile Celebrated wrinkle filler and skin tender, a pot of fairy bloom, a set of false teeth and a flaxen wig.—London Opinion.

Why It Was Flat.

"This story of yours is flat," pronounced the editor. "Well," explained the aspiring author, "I read a book called 'Advice to Writers' and the very thing it tells you is not to roll manuscript."—Judge.

Future of Yellowstone Park.

Yellowstone park, the oldest, largest and most wonderful national park in the world, may become a most valuable, indeed an invaluable, medium in preserving to future generations the old wild animal life of the plains and mountains. Properly managed, it may be the source of supply and propagation of these various animals, which otherwise would soon pass away and, fifty years hence, be known to our posterity and to history only in name and by pictured illustration.

The Baltimore Star

The Leading Evening Paper of the South.

The Baltimore Star, established August 17, 1903, by the publisher of The Baltimore American, has won its place as the representative evening paper of the South. It gives more news and more reading matter than any other afternoon paper in Maryland. It is especially rich in departments—financial, sporting, society, children, women, and to these departments the best writers of America are regular contributors. The Star is the great home paper, with something for every member of the family. It is a cheerful newspaper, with plenty of entertainment, those who try it keep on taking it.

The Star is elaborately illustrated. It has the first photographs of important events. Its portraits of leading men and women are unequalled.

The Star has two great news services, with wires direct to its offices from all parts of the world. It uses every modern invention and the best enterprise to get all the news.

COUNTY CORRESPONDENCE

Chance

May 17—The Y. P. A. Society met at the home of Mrs. S. P. Price Tuesday evening.

Mrs. G. R. Cooke and daughter, Evelyn, of Tangier, Va., are the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Wm. C. Todd.

Mrs. Etta Dashiell and Mrs. Susie Dashiell, of Mt. Vernon, spent Sunday at the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. Theodore Tarleton, Sr.

Mrs. Lella Morris and daughter, Elizabeth, of Baltimore, will spend the summer with the former's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Gustavus James.

Through the efforts of teachers and pupils of Chance school, enough money has been raised to purchase sixty choice books, which will be added to the school library within the next two weeks.

Mr. Rolan Dashiell, of Mt. Vernon, and Miss Doris Dashiell were quietly married at the home of the bride's parents on Monday evening by Rev. J. R. Cannon. Following the ceremony a reception was held, after which the bride and groom left for Mt. Vernon where they will live.

Deal's Island

May 17—Mrs. L. G. Webster is in Baltimore.

Mr. Frank Anderson was in Baltimore this week.

Miss Marie Bradshaw, who has been on the sick list, is much improved.

Messrs. L. B. and Samuel D. Wilson spent Sunday with their parents, Mr. and Mrs. S. D. Wilson.

Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Wilson and two children, of Philadelphia, are visiting Mr. Wilson's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Wilson.

Mr. Harold Bradshaw visited Allen on Friday last in his new automobile, and was accompanied by his sister, Miss Norma Bradshaw, who teaches there.

Mrs. May Anderson, accompanied by her little daughter, Edwina, left on Friday for a visit to her daughter, Mrs. Thomas White, at Shad Point, Wisconsin county.

Miss Mamie Schwartz and Mr. George W. Kelly were married in Baltimore on Thursday evening, May 8th. They stopped at Deal's Island enroute to Holland's Island where they will spend the summer.

Perryhawkin

May 17—Misses Mollie and Lillian Howard, of Pitts Creek, Worcester county, are visiting at the home of their uncle, Mr. F. W. Marriner.

Mr. and Mrs. William Gibbons, of Arden, visited relatives in this vicinity the first of the week.

Mrs. John T. E. Myers, of Baltimore, arrived Saturday of last week to spend some time at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. P. D. West.

Mr. and Mrs. F. W. Marriner and three children, spent Saturday and Sunday at the home of Mr. Marriner's brother, Mr. W. T. Marriner near New Church, Va.

The Ladies Aid, of Perryhawkin Christian Church met at the home of Mrs. P. D. West Tuesday evening of last week. The meeting was largely attended by members and friends and the evening was spent quite pleasantly and six new members were enrolled.

Mr. Emerson Dykes, who has a position in the Springfield State Hospital, at Sykesville, Md., and who because of the close confinement of the work had run down in health, was granted a leave by the Superintendent, Dr. J. C. Clark, for the purpose of taking some out of door exercise, arrived at the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. B. T. Dykes, Tuesday.

The Literary Society met in the public school house at Perryhawkin Wednesday evening. The meeting was called to order by Mr. Charlie Miller. The question, "Resolved, That the electric chair instead of the gallows should be used in each State for executing criminals," was debated by Messrs. L. R. Philpott and B. T. Dykes for the affirmative, B. C. Dryden and W. A. Riggan for the negative. The judges decided one for the affirmative and two for the negative.

Missing Bible Verses

Some long-missing verses of the New Testament are included in the manuscript of the Gospels discovered in Egypt six years ago and purchased by Charles L. Freer, of Detroit, Mich., according to a study made of the Freer manuscripts by the London Times. A fac simile of the manuscripts has been presented to the British Museum by the University of Michigan, to which Mr. Freer assigned the task of publication, and according to the London Times study there have been found in the Gospel of St. Mark several verses which could be no other than the missing verses of the New Testament, although they were known to St. Jerome, who quotes part of them.

In the Freer manuscript after the passage in which it is said that Jesus upbraided His disciples for their unbelief, the text continues as follows: "And they excused themselves, saying that this age of lawlessness and unbelief is under Satan, who through the agency of unclean spirits suffer not the true power of God to be apprehended. 'For the cause, said they unto Christ, reveal now at once Thy righteousness. And Christ said unto them, the limit of the years of the power of Satan is (not) fulfilled, but it draweth near. (The text here and elsewhere is corrupt). 'For the sake of those that have sinned was I given up unto death, that they may return unto the truth and sin no more, but may inherit the Spiritual and incorruptible glory of righteousness in heaven.'"

A large number of variations in other portions of the New Testament are also pointed out by the London Times in the Freer manuscripts.

Sanatorium For Negroes Needed?

Maryland has a sanatorium for its tubercular white residents, but no place in which the tubercular colored may be cared for and restrained from spreading disease. It is high time the public awakened to the extent to which one colored family in which there is tuberculosis can infect a whole community, and followed up such awakening by demanding that it be safeguarded against this wide-spread danger.

In this State, and particularly in country districts, house-keepers are largely dependent upon colored help. Yet how few inquire into the home surroundings of the domestics who come to the backdoor asking for a place. On the contrary, they are put right to work, doing the cooking, the housecleaning, the washing and ironing, minding the baby and the other children, and coming into close daily contact with the whole family. No one takes the trouble to see what sort of homes these domestics come from in the morning and return to at night.

The Maryland Children's Aid Society has come across a case in one county that is typical of conditions throughout the counties, conditions that will exist so long as the State is without a place where tubercular colored people may be placed for the protection of the community.

In this case, the tubercular patient is a small colored girl who lives in a little house with relatives. There are four adults in that house, two men and two women, three of them working in families, the other in a laundry. The child is in the last stages of tuberculosis, yet these four people are in contact with her every night. Two other members of the household have died of the disease, and the family seems to have no idea about taking precautions for their own protection and that of the people for whom they work.

Here is a danger right in our very midst. The only solution is a sanatorium for the tubercular colored people, for their shelter and the protection of the community. The matter should be urged upon the next Legislature, but the public will have to rouse out of its present apathy and work for their own protection or the tubercular colored will stay right in the congested neighborhoods in which they now live, infecting those who leave these neighborhoods to labor among the white.

Rheumatism Quickly Cured

"My sister's husband had an attack of rheumatism in his arm," writes a well known resident of Newton, Iowa. "I gave him a bottle of Chamberlain's Liniment which he applied to his arm and on the next morning the rheumatism was gone." For chronic muscular rheumatism you will find nothing better than Chamberlain's Liniment. Sold by all Dealers.

THE ANTI-SUFFRAGIST SAY

"Woman's Suffrage Will Break Up the Home"

The Rev. Francis Miner Moody, Secretary of the Western Commission to secure a uniform divorce law throughout the United States, said "Equal Suffrage is a bulwark to the purity and permanence of the home."

A recent canvass has been made of clergymen, Sunday-school superintendents and editors living in equal suffrage states. These men were asked if woman suffrage was a benefit to the home. Six hundred and twenty-four answers were received. Sixty-two were opposed, forty-six in doubt, five hundred and sixteen strongly favored woman's suffrage.

Maryland Suffragists say the sort of Suffrage that breaks up the Home is the Suffrage cast for Dishonest Business Interests and the Liquor and Vice Traffics through their allies, the Corrupt Politicians.

These forces of evil are united in their opposition to Woman's Suffrage.

If you do not believe this statement, ask a corrupt politician or a liquor dealer what he thinks of "votes for women." He will tell you!

These men know that when women vote, the mothers of the country will have to be reckoned with and that the "female of the species is more deadly than the male." Women, through agony and toil bear and prepare the children for the world!

Women with votes in their hands, will help good men prepare the world for the children!

Eastern Forest Reserves

The approval for purchase, by the National Forest Reservation Commission on Monday of last week, of 46 tracts of mountain forest, distributed along the Appalachian range in Virginia, West Virginia, North Carolina and Tennessee, bringing the total of the Appalachian reserve, thus far purchased by the government, up to 600,000 acres. This, however, is but barely a start in the layout of the forest reserve as contemplated in the congressional act passed in March, 1911.

The area from which selections may be made for the Appalachian reserve embraces more than 6,000,000 acres, and the United States Geological Survey has already examined and recommended for purchase over 2,000,000 acres. The purchases thus far made extend as far South as Georgia. The theoretic purpose of the bill, under which the Appalachian tracts are being acquired, is the protection of the headwaters of the streams having their rise in the Appalachian region.

The proposed purchase of forest lands lying between Washington and Baltimore for a National Capital Park, cannot be accomplished under the 1911 Appalachian reserve act, except upon a most liberal interpretation of the provisions of the act. Such a reservation—a forest reserve between Baltimore and Washington—would, however, subvert the same purpose for which the Appalachian reserve is intended. That is to say, it would protect the headwaters of two important rivers. Prongs of both the Patuxent and the Potomac penetrate the region over which the proposed capital city reserve would extend.

Antarctic Newspaper Published

Dr. Douglas Mawson, the Australian explorer and six members of his expedition to the South Polar regions, who have been forced to spend the winter on Adelie Island, send a wireless announcement of the establishment of the Blizzard, the first newspaper to be regularly printed in the Antarctic.

It promises its readers all the news of the South Polar Regions once a month and starts out with a 26-page number. The circulation is at present limited, however, to the members of the staff, the only human beings on this barren tract.

The members of the party are all reported well, although almost snowed up in their huts.

Enormous Run of Herring

Although the scant catch of shad is puzzling fishermen to such an extent that the Federal Bureau of Fisheries has sent experts to inquire into the cause, the run of herring in the Delaware & Chesapeake Canal has been so great that the progress of steamers through the locks has been materially impeded. Many of the vessels that pass through the canal on the way to and from Philadelphia and Baltimore are of such dimensions that their sides scrape the walls of the locks. As a result, thousands of herring are killed with the passage of each steamer, according to reports of the masters of the various vessels of the Ericsson Line.

Several establishments for salting and smoking the herring have risen overnight along the route of the canal and large sums of money have been put into the projects. The investors are confident of reaping splendid profits, predicting that the price of meats will go still higher and fish will come into much greater use as food. Other plants are working at full blast grinding the fish to produce oil and selling the residue to phosphate manufacturers.

Much speculation is current as to the reason for the scant catch of shad this season. For the first time in many years the Fish Hawk, the Government shad propagating steamer, failed to visit the Delaware river. The Fisheries Bureau experts are making observations along the Chesapeake Canal, and it is expected that the blame for the lack of shad will be placed upon the unprecedented number of herring in northern waters this year.

Public School Commencements

The public schools of this county will close on Friday, May 30th. The schools are now engaged in the annual examination of pupils for promotion. Most of the closing exercises will occur on Friday.

The commencement of the Washington High School, Princess Anne, will take place next Monday evening. Dr. Alfred P. Dennis will deliver the address of the occasion. The graduates are Margaret Elizabeth Beauchamp and Addie Geneva Leake.

The orator for the Crisfield High School, whose commencement will be held on Friday evening, is Mr. John S. McMaster, of Jersey City, N. J. The graduates are: Addie Belle Fruit, Audrey Lurey Goldsborough, Marie Stephens Davis, Olin Wesley Sterling, Helen Mae Daugherty, Pauline Ashmead, Commercial Course—Robert Julian Dougherty, Benson Vasco Riggins, Ada Jane Salts, Mildred Nicholson Stevenson, Neva Florence Ward, Una Jesse Ward, Lillian West Daugherty and Beulah Priscilla Burks.

At Fairmount there is but one graduate, Mary Elizabeth Ford. The Deal's Island and Marion High Schools have no graduates this year.

Gov. Goldsborough a Moose

Gov. Goldsborough became a Moose last Wednesday, being initiated into a lodge of that order that afternoon, at Annapolis. However, he wishes it to be distinctly understood that there is nothing of the Bull Moose about him. The initiation took place at the Executive Mansion and was conducted by George S. Swann, dictator, and Winson G. Gott, prelate of the local lodge.

BOARD MADE REPUBLICAN

Governor Seizes On Technicality To Name Election Supervisor For Worcester

By the appointment by Governor Goldsborough Friday of John H. Truitt, Republican, to succeed J. Samuel Price as election supervisor of Worcester county, the board is made Republican. It is understood that Mr. Price will not give up his office as supervisor without a legal battle and that proceedings will be commenced to prevent Mr. Truitt from taking over the office. Mr. Price, while serving as a supervisor, was elected to the Town Council of Snow Hill, a place which pays $15 a year. When this was brought to the attention of Governor Goldsborough he called on Mr. Price to resign as supervisor, but Mr. Price refused, although he did resign as Town Councilman. He called the attention of the Governor to the rulings in the case of Miles vs. Stevenson, 80 Md. 358, under which, he maintained, he was entitled to a hearing on formal charges before the Governor could remove him from office, and also stated that the Governor would find on investigation that State Senator Putzel and State Senator Hayes held at the same time offices as State Senator and municipal law officers of Baltimore.

Governor Goldsborough held, however, that the acceptance of the office of Town Councilman by Mr. Price operated automatically as a resignation of his office as supervisor of elections, and that, therefore, the office was vacant. He is upheld in this contention by Attorney-General Poe.

High School Happenings

On Thursday afternoon last the Junior Second Class had a very enjoyable little banquet of strawberries, cake and delicious candy; the first furnished by the boys of the class while the latter was given by the girls. The teachers of the High School were the guests of the class.

The banqueters afterward enjoyed a ball game between the High School team and the Pocomoke City High School boys. The latter were defeated in a very interesting game by a score of 16 to 8. The features of the game for the Washington High School were the good fielding of Wallop in center and the batting of Polk who made 4 hits—2 singles, a two-bagger and a three-bagger—out of 5 times at the bat. For Pocomoke, Richardson in center field broke up some good hits.

The editors of "The Scrap Basket" the school paper, their guests and the teachers of the High School left Dashiell's wharf on Friday afternoon at 3.30 on the "Juanita" for a trip down the river. The little crowd stopped at Maddox's Island where a picnic supper was served on the wharf. All then climbed aboard carriages which were in waiting and were driven to Fairmount. Their stay there was made most delightful by the hospitality of Miss Elsie Cox, who, assisted by Mrs. G. A. Cox, Mrs. Robert Jones and Miss Mildred Miles, entertained them at her home. After ice cream and cake had been served, the party left for Maddox's wharf and thence home.

In the party were: Nina Paxton, Besie Cahill, Addie Leake, Elizabeth Beauchamp, Jane Weaver, Martha Stanford, Anna Ring, Norman Holland, Milton Marriner, Walter Young, Laurensen Stanford, Arthur Jones, Robert Maddox, Franklin Lecates, and the following teachers: Miss Tempie Basford and Miss Elsie Cox and Messrs. H. T. Ruhl and H. L. Brittingham.

Election Officials Quit

Because of apparent conflict between the city of Annapolis and State election laws and the Federal Constitution, all of the six men appointed by the election supervisors as registration officials in connection with the municipal election in July have determined not to serve. They fear punishment, no matter what procedure they might follow. The matter will be referred to State's Attorney Green. The trouble is caused by the municipal law, which contains the "grandfather clause," through which negro voters were disfranchised four years ago. The law was declared unconstitutional by the United States District Court of Baltimore.

OYSTERS A SAFE FOOD

Fear of Them is One of Factors in High Cost of Living

Declaring the oysters to be not only a safe but also a valuable food, Dr. Carl L. Alaberg, successor of Dr. Wiley as the Government's pure food expert, warmly defended the innocent bivalve in an address made Wednesday night at a banquet given by the Oyster Growers and Dealers' Association of America at the Park Avenue Hotel, New York. Dr. Alaberg stated that from unwarranted prejudice this valuable food product was being shunned by many persons who feared that it carried disease.

"The widespread and growing fear that the oyster is a source of disease and is not a safe undoubtedly is one of the factors that add to the pressure of the high cost of living," he said. "Because in very rare cases oysters from a bad bed have caused sickness and because in many cases local authorities have sought to escape responsibility for a polluted water or milk supply by placing the blame upon the innocent oysters, the people are more and more shunning this valuable food."

"It follows that as people stop eating oysters they eat more meat, and the more meat eaten the greater the demand and the higher the price."

"The one way to restore oysters to favor is to make every oyster that is sold what is called 'safe.' Don't wait for the oyster to live down its reputation. Act and begin to act at once to make it impossible for any owner of a polluted supply to market his oysters. Take action to see that between the oyster bed and the dish of the housewife or the ice chest of the restaurant nothing happens to oysters to lessen their wholesomeness."

Hicks' Forecasts For June

A reactionary storm period extending over the 2nd, 3rd and 4th. Moon is in conjunction with Sun and Earth on the 4th. This, of course, gives us new Moon at high north declination. The new Moon is always at or near its greatest north point in the heavens in June. This, we hold, is one of the prime causes of maximum lightning, thunder and rain, in this solstitial month. The falling barometer, and storms of rain and wind, which will develop in the west about the 2nd, will reach different longitudes in their eastward progress, on and touching the 3rd and 4th. These storms will reach their greatest extent and strength on and next to the 4th. The barometer will rise, and cooler, westerly winds will follow the storms from two to three days—say about the 5th to the 7th. The first June seismic period covers the 1st to the 7th, having its center on the 4th.

A regular storm period involves the 6th to the 12th. This period is coincident with the annual magnetic and electrical crisis, which is at its center each year on and about June 11th. Its peculiar influence is noticeable from about the 5th to the 15th, notably on the 9th, 10th, 11th and 12th. Heavy storms of wind, rain and thunder will touch many sections in their eastward sweep over the country on and touching the 10th, 11th and 12th.

The Venus equinox, which is central in July, will add its disturbing energy to that of the Mercury period during the last week in June, calling for a prolonged spell of cloudy and threatening weather. Upon the whole, the general outlook for June is not abnormal, excepting the fact that the Jupiter influence will tend greatly to local downpours and cloudburst, with lack of diffused rains in wide sections of the country.

Dashiell—Williams Wedding

Cards are out announcing the marriage of Miss Jessie Harrison Williams, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. J. J. Williams, of Richmond, Va., but formerly of Baltimore, to Mr. Louis Dashiell, of Washington, D. C. The marriage was solemnized on Tuesday evening last at the home of the bride's sister, Mrs. R. O. Bell, Ginter Park, Richmond, Va., by Rev. W. W. Young, of Centenary M. E. Church of that city. The bride's attendants were two little nieces, Misses Lois and Catherine Bell. Immediately after the ceremony Mr. and Mrs. Dashiell left for a northern trip. They will be at home, after June 4th, at 3141 Mt. Pleasant street, Washington, D. C. The groom is well known in Princess Anne, his native town, and is a brother of Messrs. Cassius M. Hampden P. and Wm. Henry Dashiell. For many years he resided in Belair, but for some months past has been in Washington where he holds an important position with the National Cannery Association.

OYSTER PLANTING LAW

The Existing Conditions of the Oyster Industry as Viewed by Thomas B. Webster

The time has come for the people to awake to the sovereign right of the State of Maryland. For the last fifteen years an oyster planting law, known as the Haman Bill, has been agitated. The Haman advocates have at last accomplished their original intention, namely the taking up of natural oyster rocks and bars of the Chesapeake Bay and its tributaries for planting purposes.

At a rough estimate there are for lease 36,000 acres claimed by the Shell Fish Commissioners and surveyors to be barren bottoms. According to Surveyor Earle's statement to me, there are about 18,000 acres of leaseable bottoms in the Chesapeake Bay. Captains, who are familiar with every square acre of the Bay, and I have examined a map of the bottoms of the 18,000 acres claimed to be leaseable and there are about 10,000 acres of prolific oyster rocks and bars of the 18,000 claimed barren bottoms. For the last three decades the dredgers and scrapers have worked on these rocks and bars. During dredging season they have made, and are still making a living on these very bottoms. About 18,000 acres of the bottoms claimed leaseable are in the tributaries. Captains of all classes will be willing to swear before any court that at least half of the bottoms are natural oyster rocks and oyster bars. On these bottoms also, for the last three decades, the oystermen have made a living during the season.

I am not criticizing the foundation of the "Haman Bill," namely: "No natural oyster rock or bar shall be taken up under the provision of this bill, and where there is any doubt as to a natural oyster bar or barren bottom, give the natural bar the preference." The bill also calls for an accurate survey. Any experienced oysterman knows there has been no "accurate" survey, which would separate the natural oyster rocks and bars from the barren bottoms. This is a warning to all representatives of the tide water counties, if they would have their home industry protected, to come to the legislature unpledged and give their constituents a square deal. No tonger, scraper or dredger will object, or have ever objected, to every square inch of barren bottom being leased. The survey as it now is has cut the different natural oyster rocks and bars into halves, thirds, fourths, and fifths with a "chalk line." Can anybody show where the law, as it now exists, can operate harmless with only a chalk line to divide the barren bottoms from the oyster rocks and bars?

About eighteen years ago North Carolina passed a planting law to take up barren bottoms. To cause no friction the law demanded a distance of 800 yards from the natural oyster rocks and bars before a bottom could be leased. In Jersey the planting law calls for a mile between planting ground and natural oyster rocks. In Maryland, according to the survey, they have actually split oysters in half, so great is the distance between the planter's ground and oyster rocks. Before the last legislature convened, the Governor called a number of men together to discuss openly some means to better the oyster industry in this State. He said he approved of a planting law, but there must be some rigid protection so there would be no encroachment on any oyster bar or rock in this State. If he will listen to the protests in his own home county, Dorchester, he can readily see that there has been a wholesale encroachment on the natural bottoms.

In Baltimore City, it is being agitated by a few, who have taken up part of the 18,000 acres in the Chesapeake Bay, to send their delegates instructed to vote to stop dredging in the Bay, which will mean the annihilation of 115,000 acres of natural oyster rocks and bars. This means untold loss to the mass of people engaged in the oyster business in the State. It will fill the pockets of a few greedy ones. I was advised to join them until all of the Western shore was leased. I declined because I knew it was taking away the rights of the oystermen who make a living on such bottoms. Some one informed me later there were 250 acres in Cove Point Hollow to be leased. I sent my clerk, leased it in his name with the same intention I have now. If I pay my $250 to the State, I will give the oystermen the same right to operate there they have always had, without one cent cost. A party told me that Surveyor Earle told him, I was backing up two persons who were planting and had ground of my own. I have never been, and never will be, an advocate of taking up one foot of natural oyster rocks and bars. I do not approve of oppressing the poor man, as this survey does.

Everywhere we hear the cry for laws to better the oyster industry. For the last thirty years we have been reaping from the natural oyster rocks and bars and have never sown. The home of the oyster is the shell. Instead of building roads and filling up ravines, the State should provide a means to put those shells on the natural rocks and charge a sufficient tax to have a revenue to carry on this business. Around Pool's

WILL SEE STATE ROADS

Governor and Commission Will Make a Trip to the Eastern Shore This Week

Governor Goldsborough and all the members of the State Roads Commission will inspect the State roads on the Eastern Shore this week. Leaving Baltimore in automobiles on Wednesday afternoon, they will go to Havre de Grace via Belair and thence to Elkton, where they will spend the night. By easy stages they will traverse the Shore to Crisfield. On the return journey they will take a look at the roads in Worcester county. Their plans call for their return to Baltimore on Friday night either via Cambridge or Claborn.

During their journey they will pass over 112 miles of roads on the Eastern Shore which have been improved by the State and the work is still going on. They will inspect the older sections with a great deal of care to ascertain how they are enduring the wear and tear to which they are subjected. Information will be sought with a view to determining the cost of maintenance. One section of the road which will attract their attention is that between Perryville and Elkton. It is being improved with concrete construction, which if not too expensive, will be more generally employed in the future than in the past.

Another improvement to be inspected with critical care is the new drawbridge spanning the Nanticoke River at Sharptown. It connects Dorchester and Wicomico counties and was built by the State. The structure has been a source of worry and work to the commission since its completion, as has also been the approach on the Dorchester side. This approach is through swamp-land which has apparently been bottomless. At first the drawbridge would not work properly and a part of the stone construction on the shore had to be blasted. Then the bridge caisson had to be propped by piles to prevent its movement up stream.

Another and important part of the road improvement to be inspected is the surface oiling which is now under way. On the 112 miles of roads on the Eastern Shore crude oil will be spread at a total cost of $36,445.77 an average of $315 per mile. On the older sections, which were oiled last year, the average spread is one-third of a gallon per square yard. On new sections the average is one-half a gallon.

Island there are about 10,000 acres which yield only seed oysters. They come in spawning season by the hundreds of thousands of bushels. In the winter season the freshets kill them. Every year this happens. This same area was opened this season for tongers to catch seed. George Rogers who tonged there this year said there were 1,000,000 bushels there before the freshets. Now there is not one alive. Is this good legislation on part of our people, when nature gives us such wealth not to provide a law to have the dredger and tonger take the oysters away at the proper time, which would be October, and have the state plant them on the natural oyster rocks, or even sell them to planters?

I see an article published in the "Baltimore Sun" of May 3rd, where the first oysters were planted in Maryland under the provisions of the new planting law. The area referred to in this article has 1500 acres of bottom and lies between Bodkin and the Snake Rip at the mouth of the Patuxent River. It has been leased by Mr. H. R. Mayo Thom, of Baltimore, and others. The leasees say they are going to put 20,000 bushels of shells and a few thousand bushels of oysters on this area. I think Mr. Thom very conservative in putting 20,000 bushels of shells and a few thousand bushels of seed oysters on 1500 acres. I know positively there are 1000 acres of natural oyster rocks and bars and a natural growth of at least 100,000 bushels. He need never plant another oyster or shell there. Just keep the dredgers off and he has a small fortune. At least twenty captains have remarked since this area has been leased that 100,000 bushels of marketable oysters are on that bottom at the present time. About forty or fifty small boats work there now and have worked there for the last 20 years during the season when the waters are navigable and catch from 75 to 100 bushels a day of best oysters, known as "lumps." The conditions are similar on all the land that has been leased on the Western Shore.

I have had some experience in planting on barren bottoms. I have planted in Jersey, Maryland and Virginia. For the last eighteen years I have lost $15,000 principal. No 600 or 200 acre holder wants to plant on barren bottoms, if he wants to get his money back. This is only a small part of what I might say in regard to existing conditions. However, I feel this is warning enough for those who would have the industry saved and protected for the oystermen as a whole and not allow it to be monopolized by a few."

—The Washington County School Board has asked the County Commissioners to levy $129,193.03 to run the schools next year.

BIG INCREASE IN ACCIDENTS

More Persons Killed and Injured in 1912 Than Year Before

In July, August and September of 1912, according to a bulletin recently issued by the Inter-State Commerce Commission, 288 persons were killed and 4,598 injured on steam railways. The death list shows an increase of 87 and the accident roster an increase of 315 over the corresponding period of the year 1911.

Accidents of other kinds, including those to employees while at work, to trespassers and others, made the total number of casualties, not including industrial accidents, 2,995 killed and 22,447 injured, an increase of 237 in the number of persons killed and 3,340 in the number of persons injured over corresponding figures for 1911.

An increase of 935 in the number of train accidents is also noted. There were 1,537 collisions and 2,398 derailments. The damage done to cars, engines and roadway, including clearing of trackage, amounted to $3,366,401, which is a considerable increase over the total for the corresponding months of 1911.

In industrial accidents, the list covering accidents not connected with train operation, but occurring to railway employees other than trainmen on railway premises, the report shows that 114 persons were killed and 28,884 injured. This is a decrease of 17 in the number of killed, but an increase of 5,234 in the total of injured.

Col. Swann Is Postmaster

The United States Senate Thursday confirmed the appointment of Col. Sherlock Swann to be postmaster at Baltimore. The action of the Senate was not a surprise, as Senators W. P. Jackson and John Walter Smith had stated that they would interpose no opposition to confirmation, though they were not consulted by the President before he announced the appointment. Senator Jackson, as a Republican, had not expected to be consulted though Republican senators in other states were consulted.

Hardly had the Senate acted on the appointment of Colonel Swann before a batch of appointments of Maryland postmasters was received from the White House. These appointments were: Washington F. Collins, at Millington, Kent county.

Cecil E. Ewing, at Rising Sun, Cecil county.
 William M. Brown, at Chesapeake City, Cecil county.
 Mary W. Stewart, reappointed, Oxford, Talbot county.

Interest in the appointments of Messrs. Collins, Ewing and Brown, which were not endorsed by Congressman Covington, in whose district are the several postoffices to which the appointments were made, will arise later when their confirmation comes before the Senate. It is possible that they may be some interesting developments if Senator John Walter Smith takes sides with Mr. Covington. The immediate interest Thursday was in the confirmation of Colonel Swann. The Senate acted favorably on the appointment at the urgent request of Senator Smith.

The Millington postoffice, to which Washington F. Collins was appointed on the recommendation of W. L. Marbury, will probably be the test case on the Eastern Shore as to the relative supremacy at the White House of Representative Covington and Mr. Marbury.

Banker B. Sanders Walker Dead

After bravely facing for a week the inevitable result of his mistake in taking a tablet of bichloride of mercury, B. Sanders Walker, a young banker, died at 1.35 o'clock Thursday morning at his home in Macon, Ga. Members of the family had gathered at his bedside several days ago, when the end approached. Mr. Walker gave no sign of flinching, but went to his death with a resignation that rendered the case more than usually interesting throughout the country. During the last day, Mr. Walker was under the influence of opiates most of the time, but, in conscious intervals gave evidence that he was not suffering.

Scores of sympathetic messages were received by the family, and many of them were in the nature of inquiries as to the treatment being given Mr. Walker. It has been impossible to find out definitely what course the physicians took, as they have refused to talk, except to briefly trace the progress of the poison's slow but deadly effect.

—The new bank at Clayton, Del., opened its doors Tuesday morning and had quite a rush of depositors. The banking house officers are Abel Sevil, president; R. Y. Wallen, vice president; E. Crawford Graham, cashier; John W. Houston, Jr., paying teller.

FORCE OF GRAVITY.

It Makes You Fall Faster in Boston Than in Mexico City.

Did you know that you "drop" faster in Massachusetts than in Mexico? For instance, if you were to fall from a twenty-story building in Boston you would descend a lot faster than if you fell from the same height in the City of Mexico.

The principle of this is quite simple, even if it does seem a bit startling. It is merely that as one goes toward the equator the force of gravity gets less and less and the quickness of descent of a falling body slower; and, while doubtless you would feel just as uncomfortable falling that distance in one place as in another and the results would be just as disastrous, there are times and things in which the difference is not only perceptible, but worth a notice.

In Boston if you were to fire horizontally with a rifle and your gun were sixteen feet from the ground the bullet fired would reach the ground on second after it had left the rifle. But if you were to take that same rifle to the City of Mexico and fire it off the same distance from the earth it would take one and one-half seconds to reach the ground.

So it is easy to see how when hunting in different parts of the world it is necessary to calculate time from this same shifting standard of reckoning.—New York World.

NEUTRAL WATERS.

River Stretches Where Fishermen Only Waste Their Time.

According to old fishermen, there is what might be called neutral ground, or, rather, neutral water, in rivers where there is no use of trying to make a catch unless it be that some fool fish with a piscatorial brainstorm snatches bait as an insane human might grab a red-hot stove.

This neutral water is the part of the river where its flow encounters the saline impregnation of the salt water of the bay or ocean into which it finally empties. With the ebb and the flow of the tide the salt water of the bay runs up into the river for miles, and on the reverse the fresh water descends several miles again to the bay leading into the salt sea.

There is a midway between the salt and fresh water points, however, that very seldom shifts. Around this midway shad and blue and other salt water fish, if they visit at all, will hover on the ocean side. On the fresh water fringe will loiter such fish as inhabit currents that are devoid of the saline ingredient. If the fisherman happens to cast bait in this neutral zone he is not likely to get either one kind or the other.—New York Sun.

Obedied the Dream.

Life is sometimes saved by dream warnings. Take the case of Dr. Harvey, the celebrated discoverer of the circulation of the blood. When he was a young man he set out from London to go to Padua, in Italy, the seat of the famous university where he wished to study. When he got to Dover the governor refused to let him enter his packet to cross the channel, but declined to give any reason. The next day news arrived at Dover that the packet had been lost with every soul on board. Then the governor explained his strange conduct. He said that he had had a dream of overwhelming force, in which he was forbidden to allow a young man, whose face appeared to him, to enter the boat. When Harvey presented himself the governor recognized the face seen in his dream.

Daniel O'Connell.

After a dinner at Lord Dungarvan's Lady Morgan writes in her diary: I met the redoubtable Dan O'Connell. Dan is not brilliant in private life, not even agreeable. He is mild, silent, unassuming, apparently absorbed and a stranger to the give and take charm of good society. I said so to Lord Clanciarde, who replied: "If you knew how I found him this morning! His hall, the very steps of his door crowded with his clientele. He had a word or a written order for each, then hurried off to the law courts, thence to the improvement society and was the guest here today. Two hours before he was making that clever but violent speech to Mr. La Touche, and now no wonder that he looks like an extinct volcano."

A Literary Cynic.

"Some day," said the novelist, "I'm going to write something big—some thing that will make the world remember me."

"Ah, yes," his friend replied, "but when are you going to do it?"

"Just as soon as I have turned out enough trash to make me independent."—Chicago Record-Herald.

Primeval Reproaches.

Adam and Eve were leaving the garden of Eden.

"It's all your fault," said Adam.

"It isn't, either," replied Eve. "It's your fault. You ought to have had us put under civil service so we couldn't be turned out."—Washington Star.

Fellows (in tones of deep disgust)—No, sir. She works on it pounds on it, rakes it, scrapes it, jumps on it, rolls over on it, but there's no play about it, sir.—London Telegraph.

Java's Valley of Death.

The Valley of Death is on the island of Java. It is the most remarkable natural example of an atmosphere loaded with carbonic acid gas in existence. It has never been fully explored because of the danger of remaining more than a few minutes in its poisonous atmosphere. Approached through an opening between the hills, it is seen to be an oval shaped valley about half a mile across. It is about thirty-five feet deep. The bottom is hard and sandy, without vegetation and strewn with large stones. The surface is covered with the bones of animals, birds and human beings. Explorers seldom venture beyond the borders, though the deadly air does not immediately affect human beings. This is because the carbonic acid gas, being heavier than the atmosphere, settles to the bottom of the valley. Dogs and fowls thrown into it fall senseless instantly and die in a few minutes. No craters or fissures are visible on the floor of this valley, and it is thought that the openings are near the base of the hills.—Exchange.

A Floral Flirt.

The hollyhock is the worst flirt out. One never knows what to expect of it, except that it will always jauntily throw up its banner spikes of bloom and look brightly and smilingly at you. It is a stately coquette. It is pretty and willful. It won't grow in the place to which you carefully transplant it and positively refuses to allow its seeds to germinate in the spot of your choice, but wantonly throws them about in the most undesirable places and flourishes its coarse green leaves from the most impossible locations. Depend upon it? Not much! After you have carefully purchased or saved the seeds from the most double of blossoms and sowed them in fear and trembling, watched and protected them for a year, they will calmly open their flowers and stand there unblushingly and look you in the eyes, frowny with single petaled bloom. Of all the beautiful, coquettish, tantalizing flowers the double hollyhock is queen.—Suburban Life.

Their Lines Are Ended.

When one considers how many families there are which trace their ancestry in a direct line for many generations it is rather a surprising fact that there is not a single living descendant in the male line of some of the greatest men the world has ever produced. The following is a list of some of the illustrious men whose line never will be represented on the earth again as long as the world stands:

Chaucer, Shakespeare, Spencer, Milton, Cowley, Butler, Dryden, Pope, Cowper, Goldsmith, Byron, Moore, Sir Philip Sidney, Sir Walter Raleigh, Drake, Cromwell, Hampden, Monk, Peterborough, Nelson, Bolingbroke, Walpole, Chatham, Pitt, Fox, Burke, Washington, Canning, Bacon, Locke, Newton, Davy, Hume, Gibbon, Macaulay, Hogarth, Sir Joshua Reynolds, Sir Thomas Lawrence, David Garrick, John Kemble and Edmund Kean.

Why Memoirs Are Tame.

A professor at a Harvard tea was asked why books of recollections were always so tame.

"Let me tell you a story," he answered. "A great man once said to a friend: 'I think I'll write my recollections.'"

"Very good," said the friend. "But let me caution you not to recollect anything about celebrities that are living."

"Oh," said the great man, "living celebrities are just the ones I want to write about. They're the ones that will make my book sell."

"Very well," said the other. "But remember my warning."

"Why, what's the danger, anyway?"

"The danger," replied the other, "is that as soon as you begin to recollect things about living celebrities they will begin to recollect things about you."—New York Tribune.

Pretty Busy.

"Is he making good?"

"He must be. He never seems to have time to stop and tell anybody about it."—Detroit Free Press.

Disorders of the stomach may be avoided by the use of Chamberlain's Tablets. Many very remarkable cures have been effected by these tablets. Sold by all dealers.

Bright Brass.

A great time and labor saver, in keeping brass, copper and other metals bright and shining, either indoors or outdoors, in any kind of weather, is to clean and scour in the usual way, and give them a coat of negative varnish, to be obtained at a store. Many ornaments which lack luster are also improved by one application.

The Wise Fool

He Proved His Worth
His Own Way

By CLARISSA MACKIE

"There goes the fool of the family," growled old Simon Webb as he returned the salutation of a young man on the sidewalk.

Dorothy flushed deeply, and her pretty head turned a little aside. "Why do you call Bob Quincy that, father?" she asked.

"Because he is one," asserted Simon, with more asperity than the occasion demanded, for the Quincys were not related to him. The only bond between the two families was the long existing partnership between the respective heads. "Look at him, Dorothy! The eldest of four boys, every man jack of 'em has branched out in business for himself except Bob, and he's content to clerk in our office—clerk it, mind you, for he's too woolly headed to assume an executive position. What do you think of that, eh?"

"I think it must please Mr. Quincy to have one of his sons remain in the business," remarked Dorothy firmly. "Humph! The business has done mighty well so far without assistance from any of the youngsters. Tom and Dick have gone into the automobile business, as you know, and Frank is junior partner in the house of Heffer & Co. Here's Bob, who has been in our offices for twelve years, still pegging away as head bookkeeper. He ought to have pushed his way to the fore. If he'd had any ginger in him, by George, he'd have elbowed his father out of the place. It makes me nervous to see such a dead one around."

"Why, father," cried his daughter, with some indignation, "I don't think it's right to call Bob a fool just because he hasn't pushed his father out of business. It seems to me that he is very considerate and—"

"Bah!" roared Simon Webb rudely, and with a saucy upward tilt of her chin, Dorothy turned her face away and apparently became absorbed in the passing crowd as seen from the tannery of their handsome motorcar.

That evening after dinner Dorothy was called into her father's library. "Close the door, Dorothy," said Mr. Webb, with an austere smile.

"What is it, father?" asked the girl. "Sit down, my dear; here, close to my desk. I have had a singular experience today, Dorothy." He looked keenly at her over his spectacles.

Dorothy was fairly puzzled. "And you want to tell me about it, dad?"

"Yes, you recollect we were speaking about the Quincy boys today, eh?" She nodded carelessly. "What about them?"

"You've never told me they were attentive to you," he suddenly accused her. "For an instant she was disconcerted. 'You never asked me anything about it,' she answered quietly.

Simon Webb threw back his head and laughed heartily. "My own daughter!" he chuckled. "Glad you didn't slip over it; I detest a simpering miss. Then you knew the Quincy boys were in love with you?" He fired the question suddenly at her.

"No, I didn't," she replied honestly. "What did you think they were doing around here, then? Coming to see your mother—or me, eh?"

"I knew they came to see me. Why, father, you know we've always been friends with the Quincys, and the boys are more like cousins than anything else," said Dorothy warmly. "And now they crave a closer relationship, eh?"

"You are joking, father. What do you mean?" Her face was very pale and her voice was unsteady as she rose to her feet and stood beside him.

"I mean that three of the Quincy boys have each written me a letter asking permission to pay his addresses to you. What do you think of that in this land of the free and home of the brave, eh? I thought the present custom was to ask the girl first and then announce the result to her father."

"Well?" asked Dorothy. "It so happened that I found all three letters in this evening's mail. What started the boys off I don't know, unless you met them somewhere last night and flirted outrageously with all of them. Is that so?"

"I met all of them at the Teales, and I danced with each one," said Dorothy evenly.

"Well," said Mr. Webb, tapping the communications, "what shall I tell them? Suppose I say that here is a letter from Tom Quincy?"

"Tom!" repeated Dorothy, with an incredulous smile. "Why, dad, Tom Quincy is a mere baby."

"Ha! We won't rob the cradle, then. Exit Master Tom!" Simon Webb flung the letter aside and flipped a second one at his daughter. Dorothy grew pale again, as if smitten with suspense. As she made a gesture of impatience her father spoke once more: "Suppose I ask, How about Dick, eh? A likely young fellow, smart as a trap, inherits $25,000 from his godfather and bound to make a howling success of whatever he undertakes."

Dorothy shook her head. "I like Dick, but—"

"Skipdoo!" ejaculated her father, sending the second letter after the first. "I feel like an auctioneer, Dorothy, offering these chaps to you. Never mind, here goes. How about Frank?"

lips in a little gasp, and she leaned against the desk as if for support.

"Frank?" she asked after a little while. "I'm sorry, father, for I believe he is your favorite, but I think I like Frank least of all."

"Very well, my dear," he said gently, laying the third letter aside. "Shall I tell them that they may come to you for their answers or what?"

"I don't know what to say, father. I'll feel brighter in the morning. You know I was dancing all night."

"Plenty of time, dear. Run off to bed now and get some beauty sleep—not that you need any!"

She bent suddenly and kissed him ere she fled from the room, but she left something on his cheek which Simon Webb angrily brushed aside, and then he lifted his voice and called names for five straight minutes. At last he paused for breath and reached down the group photograph showing the office force of Quincy & Webb.

In the foreground was the form of a finely put together, good looking young man. Dark of feature, with clear, straightforward eyes, there was a purposeful look to the whole face. It lacked the strained expression begotten of the tearing, hurrying race for money. Bob Quincy might be the slowcoach of the family, but he was by no means the fool that Simon Webb had called him. There was a quiet, masterful air about him which Simon had never been able to overcome, and yet the younger man had never been lacking in respect to either of the heads of the house.

"The fool of the family," ejaculated Simon bitterly as he struck the picture a smart tap with his lean finger—"a blind fool. What is he thinking of? And she—I wish I could forget how my little girl looked when she found he wasn't one of the three!" He turned and flung the picture into the fire.

"Like a boy's love," said Simon bitterly. "Why couldn't it have been one of the others, eh?"

One morning a week later, when Mr. Webb reached his office, he was requested to step into the private room of the senior partner. There he found Mr. Quincy and his eldest son, Bob, was wearing his old alpaca office coat, and a pen was stuck behind his ear. He placed a chair for Mr. Webb and withdrew into the background.

"You'll be surprised at my news, Webb," began Mr. Quincy ponderously. "It's rather a sudden decision. You see, my doctor says if I don't get out of business of my own accord I'll drop out anyway, so I've concluded to withdraw and let Bob take my place."

"Bob?" ejaculated Simon Webb contemptuously. He turned around and cast a withering glance over the stalwart form of the new member of the firm. "What does Bob know about the business except to oversee the trial balances, eh?"

Mr. Quincy's huge bulk of flesh quivered with silent laughter. "You don't know Bob, Mr. Webb. Just give him a chance. I'll back him against any fellow I know, or you know either, to win out."

"What about the other three boys, Tom, Dick and Frank?" sputtered Webb tactlessly, but Quincy only smiled broadly at the suggestion.

"Skyrockets, all three of them," he said seriously. "Take my word, Webb, I know what I'm talking about. Bob's been holding back from taking an authoritative position because he feels that the old man's entitled to all the glory he has earned in the past. He has told me that if he had his way there'd be only one Quincy so long as I chose to remain in the business, but don't forget for one minute that Bob knows the business. Now, let's talk it over amicably."

"Let her go," said Webb grudgingly. Bob Quincy came forward and joined the conference. At the end of an hour Simon Webb had changed his mind regarding Bob Quincy. In fact, he had difficulty to keep out of his telltale eyes the admiration he felt for the clean cut, clever man of business this fool of the family had proved to be. "He's another kind of fool just the same," he told himself savagely, but he was doomed to change his opinion about this at once.

"I've got to go down and see my daughter off; she's sailing for Bermuda at 10 o'clock," he said, rising suddenly and jamming on his hat.

Bob Quincy was on his feet in an instant, tearing off the alpaca coat, digging aside the pen behind his ear, no longer a quiet, capable man of affairs, but a hot, tempestuous youth, awake to a great truth which has suddenly been revealed to him.

"What steamer?" he demanded authoritatively.

"The Annah," replied Simon meekly, grasping his cane and opening the door.

But Bob Quincy was ahead of him. He had dashed out and returned shrugging himself into his coat, his hat on wrong side before, his eyes blazing with excitement.

"I've got to see her before she goes," he said impatiently. "If you'll let me pass, sir!"

"See who?" asked his father and Simon mechanically.

"Why, Dorothy. I'll tell you about it when I come back." He tossed over his shoulder and was gone.

Simon Webb sank back in a chair and removed his hat. "They won't want me," he said smilingly. Then he added, with a twinkle in his eyes: "He didn't ask my permission, William. I suppose he'll ask it afterward, eh?"

"Surest thing," grinned back his partner. "I asked the girl first, and then told her father I wanted her. What did you do, Simon?"

"Same thing," confessed Simon Webb, "and I have a feeling that Bob Quincy's off the same place. You know, I've always called Bob a fool. Well, William, I've come to believe he's the wisest fool I ever met."

A Sad Case And Its Warning

The case of B. Sanders Walker, a Macon banker, who died last Thursday from the effects of a poison taken by mistake, has excited the interest and sympathy of the entire country. It is a well known fact that bichloride of mercury is a deadly poison. Its effects are quick and fatal. For a week Mr. Walker bravely faced death and his conduct during the entire period was heroic in the extreme. His final words to his wife, "I love you, Marie," are full of pathos. It takes a brave man to face the inevitable without flinching.

This touching case not only sets a fine example of heroism but in addition it sounds a solemn warning as to the disposition of drugs that are of a deadly character. The law requires such drugs to be labelled as such and usually in red to warn against mistake. The mistake made by Mr. Walker was a most natural one and one that anybody might make under similar circumstances. It is highly important that medicines changed to different receptacles or locations, should be carefully and legibly marked and no one should take that of which he has the least doubt. Equally important is it that old or disused remedies should be destroyed and not be permitted to lumber up medicine shelves or invite disaster.

It seems so simple, when one reads of such a mistake as wrecked the Macon home, to take proper precautions. The lesson, therefore, comes bearing the double significance of pathos and warning.

Building A New Money Digger

The persistence with which an element in Congress pushes along its plans for a liberal Federal appropriation for road building is interesting and deserves more attention, or, at least, a different kind of attention from that which is developed by the press-agent methods of the cause. The latest move is to secure the creation of a standing committee of the House on public roads, thus dignifying the grab measures, which heretofore have had only individual sponsorship, with the formal guardianship of a committee, and furnishing as well more convenient and commodious headquarters whence the campaign shall be directed.

There is no present necessity for the Federal Government entering on any scheme of road-building. The only pretext on which such an undertaking can be justified is that of necessity for postroads, and there is no suggestion that the proposed plan of expenditure is to be restricted to routes traversed by postal carriers, or that in any considerable degree the allotment of the money shall correspond or bear any relation to the needs of the postal service. Highway improvement is essentially a matter of State and local concern, and its necessities are within the resources of State governments. But the prospect of the erection of a new machine at Washington by which the process of shovelling funds out of the Federal treasury may be made the easier is a reminder that the necessities of the Congressmen, in the lack of the former supply of official pay, may be quite as effective a spur to action as any necessity of the States.—Philadelphia Evening Bulletin.

Bill to Protect The Fish.

Representative J. Charles Linthicum, of Maryland, intends to incorporate in the bill he is preparing for the Federal regulation of fisheries in navigable streams, a provision for the regulation of the use of nets and seines at the mouths of rivers leading to the spawning and breeding grounds of fish. This is intended to meet the situation in the lower Chesapeake Bay, where there are so many nets that the fish have a difficult time passing up to their spawning grounds. Dr. Smith, the new commissioner of Fish and Fisheries, who is furnishing Mr. Linthicum with suggestions in connection with the drafting of the bill, has informed him that this is a very important matter, and that unless something is done to prevent the interference of nets and seines with the fish during the seasons when they run toward their breeding grounds the supply of food fish in the Chesapeake will be greatly diminished.

Aviators Fly Across Bay

From Annapolis to Cambridge, 80 miles, in 87½ minutes was the achievement of navy aviators on duty at the aviation camp at Annapolis, in a test flight made last Tuesday in hydro-aeroplanes.

The experiment was a success from every standpoint, as the flight was made without the necessity of descending to the water at any time either going or returning from the Eastern Shore town. Three machines, each bearing the aviator and a passenger, participated in the test, and they maintained an average height of about 2,000 feet, during the trip.

The Curtiss flying boat, a new type of air craft, was operated alternately by Lieut. John H. Towers, head of the aviation school, and Ensign Godfrey de Chevalier, of the navy. This is the craft in which the same officers recently made the flight from Washington to Annapolis over an all-water course, covering 180 miles at an average speed of 55 miles an hour.

A Curtiss hydro-aeroplane was operated by Lieut. P. N. L. Bellinger, with Mechanician Bourden as a passenger, while the third machine was operated alternately by Ensigns Victor Herbster and William D. Billingsley. The navy bird-men contemplate flights to other seaport towns in Maryland during the summer season similar to that made Tuesday.

NOTICE OF HIGH SCHOOL LEVY

Office of School Board
PRINCESS ANNE, MD., May 18th, 1913.
To the County Commissioners of Somerset County:

In accordance with an Act of the Legislature, the School Board is required to submit a list of the High Schools of the county, together with the cost of maintaining same in order that your Honorable Board may make a special High School levy as required by law.

There are in this county five High Schools, located at Princess Anne, Oriskany, Marlton, Fairmount and Deal's Island, of which the first two are on the approved list of the State Board of Education, and are therefore entitled to State aid. These two schools are at present under group second of the said High School Act. Application is about to be made to the State Board to place the Oriskany High School under the first group.
The following schedule of salaries is provided for in said Act:
GROUP SECOND.
For principal, not less than $1,000
For assistant, not less than 500 each
For special teachers, not less than 500 each
GROUP FIRST.
For principal, not less than $1,200
For assistant, not less than 500 each
For special teachers, not less than 500 each
Under this grouping, the cost will be for Princess Anne school $2,725; that of the Oriskany school under the new grouping will be $4,525, or the sum of $7,250 for both schools, of which the State appropriates $3,500. For the principals of the three other High Schools the sum of $2,400 will be required, making the total cost of the High Schools of the county $9,650, thus leaving $5,500 to be provided by the County Commissioners.

Respectfully,
W. H. DASHIELL,
County Superintendent.

In compliance with the Act of General Assembly above referred to, it is hereby ordered that the above sum of $5,500 be included in the coming county levy.
By order of the Board.

Fire Sale by Geological Survey

As a result of the recent fire in the Geological Survey the director has announced a "fire sale" of geological folios. The entire basement, in which the folios were stored, was filled with dense smoke and many of the folios were burned, others scorched, and all more or less damaged by water. With the approval of Secretary Lane the director announces that he will sell the entire remaining stock of some 150,000 folios, four-fifths of which are probably as near perfect as goods usually offered in a smoke or fire sale, at the nominal price of 5 cents each. The regular retail price of the standard folios is 25 cents, but a few unusually large folios have sold for 50 cents, and the regular price of the "field edition" of the later folios, a more convenient form for use in the field, is 50 cents. All these are now to be had at 5 cents, but no whole-sale rate applies to this fire sale.

Now is the time for students, engineers and the public generally to order geological folios to complete their files or to become acquainted with this government publication, the 158 numbers of which describe the geology of some 175,000 square miles of the United States. The stock includes probably 50,000 to 100,000 copies on which the real damage is practically negligible. Application should be made to the director, U. S. Geological Survey, Washington, D. C., and remittance made by money order or in coin. Lists will be sent on application.

Motor vehicles for conservancy purposes, it is said, will be purchased by the municipality of Penang, in the Federated Malay States, during the course of this year.

Treasurer's Sale 1911 Taxes

By virtue of the power and authority vested in me as County Treasurer for Somerset County by the provisions of Chapter 10 of the Acts of 1906, 1908 and 1910, I will sell public auction for cash, all the lots or parcels of land hereinafter severally mentioned and described, to pay and satisfy the State and county taxes, levied against the said hereinafter described lots or parcels of land for the year 1911, or charged to and due from the several persons to whom the same are assessed, which said taxes are now due and in arrears, together with the interest and costs thereon and costs of sale.

Order Nisi.

In the matter of the tax sale of real estate in Dublin Election District of Somerset county, assessed to the Valley Realty Company, made and reported by Robert F. Maddox, County Treasurer for Somerset county for the year 1910. Milton L. Vessey, purchaser, ex parte.

No. 2820, Chancery. In the Circuit Court for Somerset County, in Equity.

Whereas a certain Robert F. Maddox, County Treasurer for Somerset county, in the State of Maryland, for the year 1910, has reported to the Circuit Court for Somerset County, a sale made by him to Milton L. Vessey, of all that lot or parcel of land in Dublin Election District, of said county, in the State of Maryland, containing 5 acres, more or less, with the improvements thereon, situated on the county road, known as the Scott Mill Lot, adjoining the land of S. A. Riley, it being the same land which is served in the deed to the said S. A. Riley from the Valley Realty Company dated the 31st day of December, 1910, and recorded among the land records of Somerset county in Liber S. F. D., No. 58, folio 488, etc., and assessed to the Valley Realty Company on the assessment books of said Election district for said year 1910, and sold for the payment of taxes due and in arrears together with all the proceedings had in relation thereto; and whereas upon examination it appears to the said Court that the said proceedings are regular and that the provisions of the law in relation thereto have been complied with; Now it is therefore ordered, by the Circuit Court for Somerset county, in Equity, this 21st day of May, 1913, that notice be given by the publication of this order once a week for three successive weeks in the MARYLANDER AND HERALD, a weekly newspaper published in Somerset county, before the 18th day of June, 1913, warning all persons interested in the said real estate to be and appear in this Court on or before the 21st day of June, 1913, to show cause, if any they have, why said sale should not be ratified and confirmed.

The report states the amount of sales to be $240.00.

Order of Publication
Lula Beauchamp, by Charles Barry, her next friend, vs. Florence A. Beauchamp, et al.

No. 2819, Chancery. In the Circuit Court for Somerset County.

The object of this suit is to procure a decree for the sale of certain real estate, owned as tenants in common, by the heirs at law of John Wesley Beauchamp, Sr., late of Somerset county, deceased.

The bill states that on the 15th day of November, 1883, a certain Benjamin Lankford and wife conveyed to said John Wesley Beauchamp, Sr., a certain farm, known as "The George L. Hickman Farm," situate in said Somerset county, for and during the period of the said Beauchamp's natural life, and after his death to such child or children, or descendant or descendants of such child or children to take per stirpes non per capita, as he the said Beauchamp, might leave surviving him at the time of his death; that the said John Wesley Beauchamp, Sr., departed this life about seven years ago, leaving surviving him the following named children: Florence A. Beauchamp, who married Robt. T. Beauchamp; Bessie Butler, who married Frank Butler; Emma Shell, who married Adolph Shell; Isaac Beauchamp, Lewis J. Beauchamp and John Wesley Beauchamp, Jr.; that the said John Wesley Beauchamp, Jr., has since died, intestate, leaving no widow, and leaving as his sole heir at law, an infant daughter, Lula Beauchamp; that all of the said descendants of the said John Wesley Beauchamp, Sr., are of full age, except a daughter, Bessie Butler and the said Lula Beauchamp, and all reside in said Somerset county, except Emma Shell and Adolph Shell, her husband, who are non-residents of this State, but residents of the State of California; that the said real estate is not susceptible of partition, without material loss and injury to the parties entitled to interest therein, as above stated, and that it is necessary that said land should be sold and the proceeds divided among the said parties, according to their respective interests.

It is thereupon this 17th day of May, 1913, ordered by the clerk of the Circuit Court for Somerset County, in Equity, that the plaintiffs, by causing a copy of this order to be inserted in some newspaper, published in said Somerset county, once in each of four successive weeks before the 17th day of June next, give notice to the said non-resident defendants of the object and substance of this bill, warning them to appear in this Court, in person or by solicitor, on or before the 5th day of July, to show cause, if any they have, why a decree ought not to be passed as prayed.

Lawyers to Meet at Cape May

The Maryland State Bar Association will go to Cape May, N. J., this year for its annual meeting, which will be held there on Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday, July 1st, 2nd and 3d. Cape May Hotel will be the Association's headquarters. It will be the third meeting of the Association at Cape May.

In a printed circular sent to members by James W. Chapman, Jr., secretary, mention is made of the fact that at the meeting last year, after a general discussion, the Association decided that the members had "neither conscientious scruples nor sentimental objections to leaving the State of Maryland for the purpose of the annual outing" and Cape May Hotel has been found a satisfactory place of meeting.

At a specially called meeting, the circular also states, the executive council had carefully considered the entire matter and found that Maryland had no ocean resort or town that could accommodate the Association, experience having shown that the membership at large would not attend a session in the mountains.

The following officers for the ensuing year have been nominated by the committee on nominations and will be voted for at the annual meeting: President, Judge Walter I. Dawkins; vice-presidents, Governor Goldsborough, Judge Frank I. Duncan, William Mason Shehan, William J. Witzensacker, Francis Neal Park, Robert B. Peter, James C. Rogers, J. C. France and Roger T. Gill; secretary, James W. Chapman, Jr.; treasurer, R. Bennett Darnall; Executive Council, Henry A. Warburton, Edw. C. Peter, W. Irvine Cross and Charles W. Field.

PAINT NOW

If your property needs it; don't wait. There are two parts of a job: the paint and the work; the work is more than the paint; and it never comes down.

The cost of paint is about two-fifths; the work three-fifths. Paint won't come down in a hurry; too many jobs put off.

Men are waiting for $2 or $3; they don't know it; they think they are waiting for $20 or $25.

Why don't men use their heads? DEVOE

STRAWBERRY GROWERS ATTENTION!

I will pay 6 cents per quart for Capped Strawberries delivered at my factory in Princess Anne, which price will yield better returns than are now being received by many growers. Crates and baskets returned. Berries now being received. The capping is easy when the berries are ripe—seize the cap with one hand and twist the berry off with the other, leaving the cap on the vine. Remittance upon request.

SYMPATHY THAT MAY BE EXCITED BY A PAROXYSM OF HYSTERIA.

Some persons derive pleasure from receiving sympathy, and this often causes them, especially if they are women who have suffered some affliction, to affect a very demonstrative grief, its paroxysms timed with shrewdly selfish cunning so as best to attract the attention and secure the sympathy of those about them. Often from being simulated or exaggerated these fits become real.

And there are other persons who derive a strange satisfaction from exciting the anxiety and even the distress of their friends. This is not uncommon among small children, who are, however, easily cured by ignoring their outbursts. Petting them makes them worse. Hysteria in young women is often simulated. In his work on "The Influence of Education on Diseases of the Nervous System" Dr. Carter says: "When once a young woman has discovered her power to produce a hysterical paroxysm at will and has exercised it for her own gratification without regard to the anxiety or annoyance it may entail on her friends a very remarkable effect is speedily produced upon the whole mental and moral nature. The pleasure of receiving unwelcome sympathy once tasted excites a desire for it that knows no bounds."—New York World.

ESCAPED THE MADHOUSE.

Daguerre's First Photograph Came Just in the Nick of Time.

If old Mme. Daguerre had been as quick to act as she was to suspect, Louis Jacques Daguerre might have ended his days in an insane asylum, and the world might have waited a century longer for a means of preserving family likenesses on bits of paper or glass.

Up to the early thirties of the last century M. Daguerre had behaved as any well balanced decorator and scene painter and steadygoing husband should have behaved, and then he began to experiment with liquids and attempted to fasten sun shadows on glass or copper sheets. He talked of a wonderful day when he could make portraits of his friends without either brush or pencil.

In great trepidation Mme. Daguerre hurried to a doctor and, weeping, told the medical man these symptoms. To the doctor's discerning mind they spelled nothing less than insanity, and in 1838 they sent about preparing M. Daguerre for a visit to the asylum at Bicetre.

But just then the unsuspecting victim of this plot succeeded in fastening the shadow on the copper plate, and the art of photography was born.—New York Sun.

The Oldest Book.

The oldest book in the world to which a positive date can be assigned is an assortment of proverbs somewhat after the style of the proverbs collected by Solomon. The work is accredited to Puth-hotep, an Egyptian king, and Egyptologists assign to it an antiquity of at least 300 B. C. Abraham was called to leave his home in Ur of the Chaldees 1921 B. C., so that this volume was written 1,000 years before the beginning of Jewish history. The deluge is placed by most chronologists at B. C. 2348, so the book, if its dating is correct, must have been written before the flood. Methuselah was born B. C. 3317, so that this papyrus was prepared and these proverbs were collected when the oldest man on record was a lively young fellow of 300 years.

Trousers Forbidden.

Strange though it may appear to the present generation, it seems that trousers when first introduced into England were regarded as anything but a mark of respectability. In the original trust deed, drawn up in 1820, of Bethel chapel, Cambrid. street, Sheffield, there was a clause containing the following prohibition: "Under no circumstances whatever shall any preacher be allowed to occupy the pulpit who wears trousers." It is scarcely necessary to add that knee breeches and gaiters were then the correct attire.—London Opinion.

Didn't Make a Hit.

Young Mr. Sissy (to his pretty cousin)—I say, Maude, how did my song, "Home Again From a Foreign Shore," seem to impress the company? Pretty Cousin—Well, some of them, Charley, looked as if they were sorry that you ever came back.—London Telegraph.

Most Prompt and Effectual Cure for Bad Colds

When you have a bad cold you want a remedy that will not only give relief, but effect a prompt and permanent cure, a remedy that is pleasant to take, a remedy that contains nothing injurious. Chamberlain's Cough Remedy meets all these requirements. It acts on nature's plan, relieves the lungs, and expectoration, opens the secretions and restores the system to a healthy condition. This remedy has a world wide sale and use, and can always be depended upon. Sold by all dealers. [Advertisement]

First—Don't Delay. Second—Don't Experiment

If you suffer from backache; headache or dizzy spells; if you rest poorly and are languid in the morning; if the kidney secretions are irregular and unnatural in appearance, do not delay. In such cases the kidneys often need help.

Doan's Kidney Pills are especially prepared for kidney trouble. They are recommended by thousands. Can Princess Anne residents desire more convincing proof of their effectiveness than the statement of a Princess Anne citizen who has used them and willingly testifies to their worth?

Mrs. Oscar Long, Princess Anne, Md., says: "It is true that Doan's Kidney Pills have been used very successfully in my home and I hold them in high esteem. I seldom let a day go by without telling someone of the merit of Doan's Kidney Pills and I do not know of another remedy so certain to do good as Doan's Kidney Pills. It gives me pleasure to publicly endorse them."

A FAMOUS INDIAN CHIEF.

Seattle, the Statesman, After Whom the City Was Named.

At Port Madison, on Puget sound, fifteen miles northwest of Seattle, Wash., stands a monument to Seattle, or Sealth, chief of the Squamish and allied tribes. This aborigine was regarded as among the greatest of the many Indian characters of the western country. He ruled his people for more than half a century with superior talent and was looked upon as a statesman who had no equal among the tribesmen.

At the time of his death, in 1866, he was the acknowledged head and chief sachem of all the tribes living on or near Puget sound. He had reached the age of eighty when he passed away and had made many warm friendships with the white pioneers in Washington. Over 100 white men were in attendance at his funeral.

In 1890 his friends erected a monument of Italian marble, seven feet high, with a base or pedestal surmounted by a cross bearing the letters "I. H. S." On one side of the monument is the following inscription:

SEATTLE
Chief of the Squamish and Allied Tribes,
Died June 7th, 1866.
The firm Friend of the Whites, and for Him the City of Seattle was Named by its Founders.

FATAL ELECTRIC SHOCKS.

They Kill by Attacking the Heart or Respiratory Organs.

While every one knows that an electric shock, if powerful enough, will cause death, there are very few who know exactly the cause, and from a description given in a recent English magazine, quoting an authority on the subject, the whole matter is simple.

Death produced from electric shock, says this magazine, usually is the result of contraction of the fibrils or muscular fibers of the heart or of paralysis of the respiratory organs.

While doctors have been unable to find any treatment that will cure the former, artificial respiration often overcomes the respiratory paralysis.

The effects of direct and alternating currents vary with the current strength, the duration of contact and the path through the body, and with alternating currents low frequency usually is more dangerous than high. The lower animals are more susceptible to electric shock than man, dogs often being killed by a direct current of seventy volts. In the average man a direct current of 100 volts is scarcely felt, 200 to 300 volts give rise to muscular cramps, while 520 volts will stop respiration suddenly.—New York Press.

Mistress and Maid.

"Be the friend of your house servant and let her realize that you are interested in her well being," was the advice of a lecturer before a housewives' meeting at Vienna. A woman who attended and listened to the servant problem discussion wrote a letter to the lecturer a few days later in the course of which she said: "I agree with you, but did you know that in this city a nursery maid, a mere child herself, threw the child entrusted to her care out of a window and then followed, intending to kill herself? And that on the same day another child servant attempted to take her life? And why? The first one had been denied a part of her earned wages because her lady wished to teach her thrift and the second was not allowed to leave the house after a certain hour at night. Our 'friendship' is often misinterpreted."

A Helpful Letter.

A letter that Rev. W. M. L. Evans, rector of Saxby, North Lincolnshire, wrote to the London Times added an amusing contribution to the discussion then going on in that newspaper concerning the alleged decay of handwriting. Mr. Evans says: "The name of Dean Stanley will occur to many of us as that of a celebrated calligraphist of the pretypewriter period. When Mrs. Kingsley was lying very ill her husband received a letter from the dean.

"He conned it carefully and slowly and then said: 'Here is a letter from dear Stanley. I am sure it is sympathetic and affectionate, but there are only two words that I can make anything of, and I don't think I can have got them quite right, for they seem to be "beastly" and "devil".'"

The Baltimore Star

The Leading Evening Paper of the South.

The Baltimore Star, established August 17 1908, by the publisher of The Baltimore News, has won its place as the representative evening paper of the South. It gives more news and more reading matter than any other afternoon paper in Maryland. It is especially rich in departments—financial, sporting, society, children, women, and to these departments the best writers of America are regular contributors. The Star is the great home paper, with something for every member of the family. It is a cheerful newspaper, with plenty of entertainment, those who try it keep on taking it. The Star is elaborately illustrated. It has the first photographs of important events. Its portraits of leading men and women are unequalled.

The Star has two great news services, with wires direct to its offices from all parts of the world. It uses every modern invention and the best enterprise to get all the news. The Star is different from other Southern papers. It has a quality of its own.

DARK, DEAD STARS

On Millions of Them Are Flying Through Space.

THE PERILS OF A COLLISION.

What Would Happen if One of the Largest of These Erratic Derelicts Should Whirl Into Our Solar System, The Birth of a Nebula.

Possibly it has never occurred to many people that there are such bodies as dark stars, but so great an authority as Sir Robert Ball has said that the dark stars are to the bright for numbers as the cold horseshoes in existence are to the red hot ones. For every such hot one there must be many hundreds of cold ones, so that if the simile is sound the heavens must contain an incredible number of these derelicts on the ocean of space, which, having lived their life, have grown cold and dead, but are still racing about at star speed until in their wanderings they meet some other heavenly body in terrific collision.

Such gigantic catastrophes as the clash of two suns, each perhaps millions of miles in diameter, rushing at each other at the rate of twenty or thirty or even more miles per second would result, so the mathematicians tell us, in a world splitting explosion exactly as if each were composed of billions of billions of tons of gunpowder, and as when gunpowder explodes nothing is left but gas and smoke, so in the clash of stars nothing would be left of the two great solid bodies which had collided but an immense whirling mass of incandescent gas called a nebula, of which, as most people know, there are quite a number dotted over the heavens. This maelstrom of gas would sail about among the stars for ages, in the course of which it would naturally cool down and condense into a star system much like our own, with probably a central sun, planets and moon.

Some of these would sooner or later arrive at a condition of temperature suitable for the support of life and as the centuries passed would become peopled with sentient beings. Gradually they would grow too cold for life to exist and finally become frigid, cold, dark stars once more. The number of stars visible to the naked eye is only a few thousands. With the best telescope and other instruments it is calculated we can detect about a hundred millions—not a large number (there are fifteen times as many people as that living on this globe); but, judging by Sir Robert Ball's horse-shoe simile and reckoning only a hundred dark ones to every bright one, we take it that there must be at least 150,000,000 dark stars chasing about in space, most of which we have never seen and probably never will see.

I say most of which, for perhaps it may come as a surprise to some that the earth we live in is a dark star. So are all the other planets and planets of our solar system, which with their moons, of which bodies, shining only by the reflected light of the sun, there are at least 600 known to astronomers. Nor must we forget to mention those bodies called shooting stars which may be seen almost any clear night if patiently watched for. These, though they look like stars, are hardly, as every one knows, to be dignified by the name, being mostly but very small masses of matter flying about in space. They are quite cold and dark until they enter our atmosphere, where they do at such a speed as raises them at once to a white heat by friction of their passage through it, and thus they are revealed to us.

For every one who there must be many thousands whose paths miss us entirely, and ships that pass in the night, silently and unknown. Some of these are of immense magnitude and are undoubtedly regular in their course. Others are doubtless flying about the heavens on haphazard paths, and it is conceivable that one might come along and collide with us or our sun. The result of such a collision would undoubtedly be the end of this earth and its inhabitants.

If the intruder were of any respectable size a collision with any of the larger members of the solar system would produce such a conflagration as would raise the temperature of all the rest above the point at which life as we know it could exist. "The earth and all the inhabitants thereof would be burnt up and the elements would melt with fervent heat." Even if such a star did not collide, but merely passed through our system, the effect of its attraction would altogether upset present conditions and almost certainly bring about the cessation of life on the earth.

Neither can we encourage ourselves with the hope that the collision would be too sudden for us to know much about it. No such thing. Our astronomers would see the star directly it got near enough for the sun to light it up, probably fifteen or twenty years before it arrived, according to its size and speed. They would be able to calculate its path and foretell to a few minutes the precise moment of the catastrophe, and we should have the added horror of the anticipation of our slowly advancing doom. Indeed, the passage of even a small star quite outside our system by many millions of miles would still have a sufficiently disturbing effect on us to draw us out of our path and alter entirely our climate and temperature.—Chambers' Journal.

Chambers and content are great beautifiers and famous preservers of beautiful locks.—Dickens.

Babies and Walking.
"While many mothers are proud of the child that can toddle around the room when ten months old," said a doctor, "they should do everything to keep it from walking at that age. It is too young, and the bones of the leg and back are weak. Bowlegs and in some cases spinal curvature always result to the lifelong regret of the mother. Many mothers take the child that is just beginning to walk and exhibit it to the neighbors and relatives. The occasion is one of rejoicing, but dire results are sure to follow if the child has been permitted to walk too soon."

Nero and Big Noses.
Nero never liked a person with a large nose. He flippantly told the sorrowing relatives of Plantus—whom it is alleged, he killed—that he was only inspecting the corpse that he discovered that Plantus had so large a nose and if it had been pointed out before he would have certainly spared his life. "Life with such a nose," coolly added Nero, "would have been ample punishment for any crime."

Her Opportunity.
Wife—I had better take that hat for 45 shillings. Husband—But I've only got £2 with me now. I'll have to wait the odd 5 shillings. Wife—Oh, then, I'll take this one for 8 guineas. Five shillings is too insignificant a sum to owe.—London Telegraph.

LONG ON SPECTACLES.

A Pierpont Morgan Took No Chances When Changing Waistcoats.

A story of J. Pierpont Morgan, illustrative of the scale of his domestic affairs, reaches me. My correspondent was in a London optician's shop when another customer entered and, striding up to the counter, brusquely inquired, "Can you make me another pair like that?" presenting spectacles of the "goggles" type in tortoise shell rims and gold frames. "Yes," said the optician. "I can." "Send them up to my place as soon as they're ready. You know who I am," were the laconic instructions given as the customer strode out of the shop as quickly as he had entered.

The optician explained that that was Pierpont Morgan. The spectacles were delivered, and my friend, making inquiries in the matter, heard that of the affair from the optician.

Pierpont Morgan returned to the shop and, speaking more effusively than on the first occasion, said: "Those spectacles were very good—very satisfactory indeed. I shall want some more of them. I always miss my 'specs' after a change of clothes. Let me see"—pausing and looking down on his waistcoat as if to interrogate it—"I've eleven waistcoats—yes, eleven. Better make me a dozen pairs."

So a dozen tortoise shell rimmed and gold framed spectacles were supplied to the millionaire, much to the satisfaction of the optician and rimmer, who between them pocketed 60 guineas.—Manchester Guardian.

MANY USES FOR EGGS.

They Are Valuable In Numerous Ways Apart From Cooking.

We know that eggs are almost indispensable for cooking, but they are just as valuable for other things as well. A mustard plaster made with the white of eggs will not blister the tenderest skin. The fragile white skin that lines the shell of an egg is a fine application for a boil. The white of egg beaten with loaf sugar and lemon juice relieves a cough and hoarseness. A teaspoonful every hour is the dose.

If a fish bone lodges in the throat beyond the reach of the fingers a raw egg swallowed (without being beaten) will in most instances carry the bone along. A good remedy for stomach and bowel trouble is a raw egg taken every six hours. The egg should be partly beaten, though not to froth. A little white of egg spread over a scald of burn will prevent the air from getting to it and hastens the healing. For preserving jelly in glasses paper should be cut to fit at the top and smeared with the raw white of eggs, the egg side down.

A little white of egg curdled with a bit of powdered alum will stop a sty if used as soon as the sty appears. Be careful not to get the mixture inside the eye. It will do no injury, but it stings and is unpleasant.—Journal of Agriculture.

A Thing to Be Dreaded.

In the capitol at Washington one day a California congressman got to talking about tuna fishing off the coast of California.

The tuna fishermen, he said, go out in small motorboats with a long line baited with flying fish, and to catch anything less than a hundred pound tuna was not considered good sport.

At this juncture he was approached by a colored messenger who had overheard him.

"Scuse me, sah," said he, with a large expression in his wondering eyes, "but did you say dey went fishin' for hunched poun' dey in a little motorboat?"

"Oh, yes," smiled the congressman. "They go out very frequently."

"Golly," exclaimed the messenger, as if picturing the scene, "ain't dey feared dey might ketch one?"—Philadelphia Telegraph.

Not Him.

"Has my husband been in here?" inquired a woman of the bartender.

"He's a tall, red faced man, no overcoat, soft hat."

"A man answering that description got a bottle of whisky here about ten minutes ago."

"How big a bottle?"

"Half a pint, ma'am."

"Some other man," said the woman.

—St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

His Limit.

"And before we were married you said you would be willing to die for me."

"I know it."

"And yet you refuse to beat the rugs."

"Sure! Dying is my limit."—Houston Post.

Silent Happiness.

Mother—Are you quite happy, Bertha? One of your neighbors said the other day he heard you and your husband quarrelling awfully. Bertha—Pure fabrication, mamma. We haven't spoken to each other for a fortnight.—Ellegende Blatter.

Best Medicine For Colds

When a druggist recommends a remedy for colds, throat and lung troubles, you can feel sure that he knows what he is talking about. C. Lower, druggist, of Marion, Ohio, writes of Dr. King's New Discovery: "I know Dr. King's New Discovery is the best throat and lung medicine I sell. It cured my wife of a severe bronchial cold after all other remedies failed." It will do the same for you if you are suffering with a cold or any bronchial, throat or lung cough. ## A Matrimonial Ad.

By ESTHER VANDEVEER

Anna Trowbridge was apparently destined to a life of toil. Her father had never got on in the world, and it was evident as she grew to womanhood that she would have to work for her living. When she was seventeen she had a love affair with a young fellow who was still in college and with three or four more years of study before attaining his profession. Both were too young for a serious affair, and the young man never spoke to his parents of the girl he fancied.

Anna studied stenography and type writing and at twenty went to work. But that kind of work did not please her. She pined for a home and all that a home brings. She was attractive and doubtless might have married, but every year she grew more particular as to the man she should choose.

There are persons who believe in going forward, even if one goes wrong instead of right, while their opposites are always fearful of striking into new paths. Anna belonged to the former class. The firm for which she worked was a large advertiser, and she had ample opportunity to observe the remarkable results that accrue from advertising. One day the subject of matrimonial advertisements occurred to her. She was aware that the results of such were not in keeping with those pertaining to business. Why should that not be available? She had read that in certain cities abroad marriage brokers are in constant requisition and the marriages they effect are as liable to turn out well as those made in other ways.

Some months after this idea occurred to her she came home one evening tired and sick at heart. In a fit of desperation she took an advertisement she had written long before from a writing desk, read it over, affixed in lieu of signature the three letters T O T, put it in an envelope addressed to a newspaper and, taking it to a letter box at the corner, dropped it in.

"There," she said on returning to her room, "it's done, and I can't undo it." She fortunately escaped answers from persons who look upon such advertisements as inserted from improper motives, but this was doubtless from the wording of her message to each editor. She received a number of replies from men who took her ad. In the spirit in which it was meant, but Anna could easily tell from their tone that they were written by men she would be willing to marry.

There was one that was very far above the rest. The writer was evidently a gentleman and educated. It seemed to Anna that he had read her heart. He said that he pitied her for being obliged to resort to a means evidently repulsive to her to obtain what was every woman's natural right, marriage, motherhood, home. He regretted the drift of the times which tended to separate the sexes and obliterate the home. He proposed a correspondence as a first step toward an acquaintance to be followed by whatever fate might have in store for them. The letter was full of feeling, of sympathy. Indeed, it seemed to Anna that it had been written by a lover instead of a stranger.

Anna was delighted. She wrote a reply which she kept for a few days, then read it again and, finding that she had written too much from the heart, wrote another better adapted to the occasion. This elicited a note that, while it was perfectly deferential, the writer seeming to try to write with the consciousness of addressing a stranger, evidently could not repress something akin to love. Anna interpreted this to mean that he was, as she expressed it, heart hungry.

In the correspondence that ensued Anna discovered in the writer's letters all that could be expressed in them. But she had not seen him. Her heart sank within her at remembering that he might write lovely letters and still be unattractive in appearance and might be the latter and a villain. She proposed an exchange of photographs. Her correspondent wrote that such likenesses often gave a very different impression from the real being and would prefer to see and hear the flesh.

Up to this point Anna had proceeded without any qualms or regrets. The number of emotions now came to her. She had never had but one love affair. That had ended long ago. She had not heard of the young student's five or six years. Nevertheless, she could not but contrast a love affair with an affair like the present one.

Shank from the ordeal of a love affair she had found by a matrimonial advertisement. Several times she determined to give the matter up. One day she decided to receive a letter from her correspondent and posted a letter as she had done in the first place that she might not have an opportunity to change her mind.

Not being willing to bring her correspondent to her boarding place, she appointed a meeting in a park at a certain place at seven and a half o'clock on a June evening. She went there a few minutes before the appointed time and sat on a bench.

A pair of arms was thrown around her neck from behind. She was at once released so that she could turn and saw her young lover, grown to manhood.

In their clandestine correspondence she had signed herself T O T, and when she wrote her ad, hunting for a name, it had occurred to her. The initials had happened to catch the eye of her girlhood lover.

RAVENOUS ESKIMOS.

They Eat and Digest Food That Would Kill an Ordinary Man.

We hear much of American dyspepsia, but there is one native race of America that is certainly not troubled in this respect. The Eskimo defies all the laws of hygiene and thrives. He eats until he is satisfied, but is said never to be satisfied while a shred of his feast remains unconsumed. His capacity is limited by the supply and by that only.

The Eskimo cannot make any mistake about the manner of cooking his food, since, as a rule, he does not cook it. Nor, so far as the blubber or fat of the Arctic animal is concerned, is the Eskimo concerned about his manner of eating it. Indeed, he may be said not to eat it at all. He cuts it into long strips an inch wide and an inch thick and then lowers the strip down his throat as one might lower a rope into a well.

Despite all this the Eskimo does not suffer from indigestion. He can make a good meal off the flesh and skin of the walrus, provision so hard and gritty that in cutting up the animal the knife must be continually sharpened.

The teeth of a little Eskimo child will, it is said by those in a position to know, meet in a slit of walrus skin as the teeth of an American child would meet in the flesh of an apple, although the hide of the walrus is from half an inch to an inch in thickness and bears considerable resemblance to the hide of an elephant. The Eskimo child will bite it and digest it and never know what dyspepsia means.—Harper's Weekly.

HIS FACIAL FOLIAGE.

Its Fate When Living Up to Its Dignity Was Suggested.

There is a comic artist on a New York paper who used to drink a little too much and a little too often. Also he wore a heavy brown beard of which he was very proud.

One morning he came to the office, showing signs of indiscretions the night before. His managing editor endeavored to appeal to his better judgment.

"Old man," he said seriously, "you're too old and too smart to be doing this sort of thing. It might be all right for a lot of smooth faced kids to spend the night over a bar, but you ought to remember that you're no longer a kid. You ought to try to live up to the dignity of that beard of yours."

This last suggestion seemed to throw the culprit into a brown study. He retired to his corner of the art room to think it over. In a few minutes he put on his hat and coat and slipped out, and he didn't come back for two weeks either. But within an hour after his departure the managing editor heard from him. A messenger boy brought in a pasteboard box such as florists use to pack flowers in. The managing editor cut the wrappings and opened the box.

There was nothing inside except a heavy brown beard, which had been newly shorn off, the owner's face, with one lone rosebud reposing in the center of it.—Philadelphia Saturday Evening Post.

An Old Time Playful Prisoner.

Over a century ago there occurred in London what the Annual Register called "a most unparalleled atrocity." It was only the theft of a pocket handkerchief from a pocket, but the circumstances of the deed explain the vehemence of this denunciation. Four men were on their trial for assaulting a man in his house at Ponder's End, putting him in fear and stealing from him, and one of them relieved the tedium of the trial, which lasted eight hours, by picking the pocket of one of the turnkeys as he stood in the dock. An official had the presence of mind to order the restoration of the handkerchief, and the prisoner had enough presence of mind to obey, "with the most careless indifference," but the court, we read, "were horror struck." Justice, however, pulled itself together sufficiently to sentence all four men to death.

The Changing Death Rate.

The last generation has progressed remarkably in saving the babies, but has let the middle aged people die. Below the age of ten the death rate has been diminishing. Above the age of forty the death rate has been increasing, at least in America. No increase is reported from Europe.

Intemperance in eating, drinking and working, especially working, is the most probable explanation of this peculiar and unfortunate mortality.

The nation has made great advances in community hygiene. It is time the people began to advance a little in personal hygiene.—Chicago Journal.

Looked Like It.

The small but observant son of a New York traveling salesman noticed when his father came home that he had had a front tooth filled with gold while he was away.

"Pop," said the boy, "you've got your tooth buttoned on with a collar button, haven't you?"—New York Sun.

Made Them Laugh.

"My friends," said a politician the other day, with a burst of ingenuous eloquence, "I will be honest."

The terrific outburst of applause which followed this remark entirely upset the point which the orator was about to introduce.—London Telegraph.

The Trouble.

Discontented Twin—Pretty rotten luck on me! I shouldn't so much mind having a face like mine if it wasn't so beastly like yours.—London Punch.

Empty men are the trumpets of their own deeds.—Massinger.

Mr. and Mrs. George A. Calhoun, of Bedford, Pa., announce the engagement of their daughter, Regina, to Mr. F. Elmo Beauchamp.

Maryland Leads Oyster States

Maryland and Virginia were well represented at the fifth annual convention of the Oyster Growers and Dealers' Association of North America, which was held in the Park Avenue Hotel, New York city.

From Baltimore, Wm. H. Killian first vice-president of the association; H. M. Somers and Edwin B. Wayman, directors; from Cambridge, John H. Phillips; from Crisfield, Isaac H. Taves; from Virginia, Alfred Von Nyvenheim, of Norfolk, D. R. Russell, of Chincoteague, and Matthew C. Armstrong and Frank W. Darling, of Hampton.

There were delegates present from the State of Washington and from states in the Far West that grow no oysters. The delegates from these states are dealers. There were also delegates from Canada. The convention continued until Thursday night. Maryland had the largest number of members of the association, Virginia second.

Twenty-four states in America are represented in the membership as well as Canada and British Columbia. The detailed report of membership is as follows:

Maryland, 102; Virginia, 34; New York, 70; Massachusetts, 40; New Jersey, 44; Connecticut, 39; Pennsylvania, 26; Rhode Island, 25; Canada, 4; Iowa, 4; Illinois, 3; Wisconsin, 2; Nebraska, 2; Louisiana, 2; Washington, 2; Ohio, 2; Indiana, 2; California, 2; Michigan, 2; Minnesota, 2; Oregon, 1; Texas, 1; Delaware, 1; Oklahoma, 1; Mississippi, 1; British Columbia, 1.

Vice President Killian, of Baltimore, reported that from 1,000 to 1,200 vessels were engaged in Maryland waters, dredging and freighting oyster cargoes to packing and shucking houses. About 90 per cent. of these boats disposed of their oysters at Baltimore, while the oyster packing-houses located along the tributaries of Chesapeake Bay took a large per cent. Said he:

"Maryland's condition is different from any other oyster state on the Atlantic seaboard. Her extensive natural area, which gives a livelihood to thousands of free fishermen, has been a bone of contention for many years and after years of legislation, it is now so subdivided that the dredging and tonging rocks are clearly defined.

"Through modern methods, sanitary shipping vessels and quick transportation the Maryland oyster packer has year by year been able to extend westward the zone of distribution. Shipments were made from Baltimore to Los Angeles, and it was pleasure for Easterners when visiting California to get some home-grown oysters.

"Maryland is awakening to her possibilities through development of both her land and water resources, and much can be expected from this state with the next season."

The annual banquet took place Wednesday night. Among the speakers were: Dr. Carl L. Alsberg, chief of the United States Bureau of Chemistry, Department of Agriculture; Hon. Stiles Judson, of Connecticut; Hon. Zenas W. Bliss, of Rhode Island; Hon. Samuel F. Bowdoin, commissioner of shell fisheries of Rhode Island; Hon. A. R. Round, clerk of shell fisheries of Rhode Island.

Moosers File Full Tickets

The "Bull Moose" Progressive party of Wilmington, Del., has filed with the Clerk of the Peace and the Department of Elections a certificate showing a complete ticket to be voted at the city elections on Saturday, June 7th. The party's city committee has decided to hold a series of public meetings to advance the cause and will make a heavy draft on the regular Republican ranks. Because of this Democratic leaders are confidently looking forward to a clean sweep of the city by their ticket.

Earth is "Wabbling."

In this steady old earth "wabbling" on its axis?

Prof. George A. Hill of the Naval Observatory at Washington has been studying this question for years, with the help of leading scientists all over the world. He has come to the conclusion that the earth is wabbling like a top that has begun to spin slowly, or that has a head too heavy.

"The poles of the earth," says Prof. Hill, "are wabbling about, apparently at random, but confine their travels within a circle of sixty feet diameter. Should Peary again take the trip to the North Pole he would find the flag which he planted there on his last trip nearly fifty feet from the spot which he would now point out as the true North Pole of the earth."

All this has been learned by the method of astronomy. The men of science test the movements of the earth by stars billions of miles away.

It has been suggested that the accumulation of ice and snow near the poles may cause the earth to become top-heavy, as it were. It has even been suspected that at some time in an age long past such an accumulation may have caused a sudden turn-over of the earth, bringing the poles where the tropics used to be. This would account for the well-preserved remains of tropical plants and animals sometimes found in the Arctic regions.

Auto Fiends Will Like This

Congressman Frank O. Smith, of Maryland, introduced a bill in the House Friday directing the Secretary of Agriculture to establish a laboratory for the purpose of developing the manufacture and use of denatured alcohol as a fuel for small engines.

"In Germany the people use denatured alcohol as a fuel for the small engines," said Mr. Smith. "The farmer knows how to make the alcohol which he uses to run the engines on his farm. The Germans have developed a system by which they can make this denatured alcohol at a small cost. My idea is that if this Government can make experiments in developing cheap methods of making alcohol for the use of small engines the price of gasoline, which has advanced 100 per cent. in the last few years, will come down. Denatured alcohol can be used as a substitute for gasoline."

Blow Up a Mountain

Military engineers blasted into fragments last week the loose peak of a mountain consisting of 86,000 cubic feet of rock, which had threatened to fall and destroy at any moment the village of Tormery, France. The village had been in danger from a slide ever since its foundation as a cluster of huts in the middle ages. A charge of 900 pounds of dynamite was used for the explosion. Before the fuse was fired the villagers removed all their portable property to the neighboring hills.

VOTES FOR WOMEN

and the

Negro Problem

The United States census of 1910 found the white population of Maryland, 1,062,645 and the negro population 232,249.

The total registered vote in Maryland in 1912 was 291,878.

Of these, 243,693 were cast by white men and 48,185 by colored men.

Woman's suffrage would not change the proportion of votes cast.

Men of Maryland, the white women of this state are today the political equals of colored women and the political subordinates of colored men.

Remember the Independent Voters of Maryland have defeated three amendments which sought to disfranchise colored men because their grandfathers were slaves.

Great Triangle Broken

"At last the great triangle is broken," said an officer of the Standard Oil Company last week in New York in speaking of the death at West Palm Beach, Florida, of Henry M. Flagler.

"Mr. Flagler was one of the three men who conceived and developed the organization through which this company has grown to its present proportions. The other two were John D. Rockefeller and his brother, William Rockefeller. While Mr. Flagler's official connection with the company was severed five years ago, still his wise counsel was always available and willingly given whenever we needed it."

John D. Rockefeller said Mr. Flagler was a very high compliment in his reminiscences that are now published in book form.

Mr. Flagler owned 30,000 shares of Standard Oil stock, as shown by the report made to the United States Circuit Court when the Supreme Court's decree of dissolution of the great trust was executed. What his holdings were in other great corporations is not known. Nor is the value of his immense properties in Florida approximately known. One of his former Standard Oil associates said he thought the dead magnate's estate would inventory at least $100,000,000.

The interesting statement was made by the same person that Mr. Flagler had never been to Europe, nor had he traveled far enough west in this country to see the Rocky Mountains. Although he owned a yacht sufficiently large to have carried him around the world, he confined his travels by water close to the Atlantic seaboard.

Your bank gives you 4% on your money in a year—and you think that's good.

We give you 20% per month on everything you eat!

That's five times better, because you must eat, and the groceries are "top of the market"—fresher than you can get at the small store, and sold the "satisfaction-or-money-back" way through our catalog.

20c out of every dollar is yours if you get our catalog and use it.

A Million For Missions

"A million dollars to missions," was the motto adopted last Tuesday by the quadrennial conference of the Seventh Day Adventists of the World at Takoma Park, Md. This sum is to be raised in the next four years by the Sabbath schools of the Adventist churches.

A report on Sabbath schools showed a gain of 574 schools and 25,170 members, the number in foreign countries having doubled in the last four years. Offerings for foreign missions from Sabbath schools aggregated $632,778, an increase of more than 50 per cent.

The report of the secretary of the North American Negro Department showed that the colored membership in the United States has more than doubled in the last four years.

The denomination is carrying forward its work in 68 non-Christian and non-Protestant countries, according to a special report of the statistical secretary. The total number of foreign missionaries is given at 599.

Rheumatism Quickly Cured

"My sister's husband had an attack of rheumatism in his arm," writes a well known resident of Newton, Iowa. "I gave him a bottle of Chamberlain's Liniment which he applied to his arm and on the next morning the rheumatism was gone." For chronic muscular rheumatism you will find nothing better than Chamberlain's Liniment. Sold by all Dealers.

NORFOLKS A PLENTY!

No boy in knee pants is quite correctly dressed without a Norfolk Suit these days. But he must have a real Norfolk, for it takes more than pleats and a belt to make a coat that is a Norfolk to the very end—the coat should be tailored into shape, not pressed, if the suit is to look smart and dressy until worn out.

These "Post Graduate" Norfolks are all that hand tailoring and expert workmanship can make them—shape retaining, stylish and durable.

Made in worsteds, homespuns, chevots and blue serges in sizes from 8 to 18. Modestly priced according to quality—

$3.00 to $7.50

Children's Shoes . . . .

Little girls and boys will find plenty of pretty low shoes here. One and two strap pumps in tan calf, gun metal, patent colt and white.

They are the long-wearing "Tess and Ted" make, with the star on every heel to guarantee that they are all leather.

They don't cost any more than a good many half-leather shoes and they last a great deal longer. $1.50 to $2.25, according to the size.

Cheaper all leather oxfords and pumps from $1 to $1.50

"Onyx" Hosiery for Men, Women and Children in black, tan and white.

Ladies' "ONYX" HOSIERY priced as follows: 25c, 35c, 50c, $1.00, silk and lisle. Children's "Onyx" 15c and 25c. Men's "Onyx" 25c and 50c.
