A meeting of the Princess Anne fans was held at the Firemen's Hall on Wednesday night of last week, at which time the proposition of entering a league next summer was fully discussed. It was the concensus of opinion of those present that Princess Anne should enter the league. It was agreed that if all the nearby towns have a team that fire companies in the State who, in our words, only one white woman is regis-Princess Anne would be at a great disad- hour of need, whenever that may be, tered for every two white men, and the vantage from a business standpoint if will be found ready and waiting to do white female registration is 2224 less we did not have a club and enter the their best. There will be fire practice on the first than the white male registration.

In entering the league it will of course be necessary to have an enclosed ball park and a grandstand. A committee is now negotiating a lease for land for that purpose.

All necessary expenses were carefully estimated, including the lease of land for the park, enclosing the same and the cost of erecting a granstand. It was decided that $4,000 would have to be raised to enable Princess Anne to ein the league. It was also decided to incorporate the association and issue sock at the par value of $10 per share. On Sunday, the 25th ulto., Herbert Hall, the husband, and Thomas and Allen Hall, his two sons, were made violently sick from eating a portion of a loaf of bread which the wife of Herbert had placed on a lower shelf in the sideboard. The man and his elder son sought a physician and were finally saved, but Allen Hall, aged 17 years, died as a result of the poisoning at an early hour Monday morning of last week. Judge Fred N. Holland, of Crisfield, was notified of the affair and went to Marion Monday morning and held coroner's inquest. At the inquest the Hall women admitted that she had prepared a portion of a loaf of bread with rat poisoning and placed it in the lower section of the sideboard, but she stated that her action was caused by her desire to kill a number of rate and mice which infested that section of the house. She placed the other portion of the bread, she said, in the upper part of the sideboard for her busband and children. SOUIRREL LAW NOT YET OUT

Open Season From November 10th Until January 1st

As there are numerous inquiries as the open season for shooting squirrels-November 10th to January 1st-we publish the following information from State Game Warden E. Lee LeCompte, who advocates opening the squirrel season in 1922 on September 1st. He says:

"At the session of the General Assembly of 1920 there was enacted a law prohibiting the killing of squirrels in any manner except between the dates of November 10th and January 1st. This law is State-wide in effect. During the season of 1920, this department Negress Accused Of Poisoning Family received very few complaints from persone who desired to hunt and kill squirrels. However, reports received from throughout the State confirm the fact that squirrels under the protection of the law during 1920 must have increased very rapidly."

Mr. LeCompte states that he will request the introduction of a bill at the coming session of the General Assembly merce and the Woman's Club. Later of 1922 to repeal the present law pro- the former Vice-President spoke at the tecting squirrels and request a law to local tabernacle on "Some Pending be enacted opening the season for the killing of squirrels September 1, 1922. instead of November 10th. We, the representatives of the Demcoratic party of Maryland, in convention assembled, reaffirm our loyalty to those great fundamental principles of free government upon which our State and nation are founded, and our adherence to the enduring faith of the Democratic party, with the equality of opportunity for the high and low, the rich and poor which that faith

ALL PLEDGES REDEEMED. We remind the people of the State of the redemption by the Democratic party, under Governor Ritchie's administration, of every pledge made by us in the platform of 1919. Our specific promises for economy and efficiency have each been fulfilled; the salaries of the Baltimore police force have been increased: the State roads system has been continued and maintained and the plan for lateral roads put into effect; the salaries of the public school teachers have been inpressed, facilities for teacher training have been extended and the public school system generally has been fostered and developed; the agricultural interests and activities of the State have been supported and advanced: malic work and construction have progressed as rapidly as practicable; the institutions for the sick, the needy and the afflicted have had our special case; a hospital for the oriminal insans and a country site for the Marylend Industrial School for Girls are being constructed and a hospital for the ored tubercular is about to be built; the work of every State departthat been performed in an efficient and businesslike manner.

We commend Governor Ritchie, his administration and the Democratic Legislature of 1920 for the industry, ability and undivided attention and fidelity to public service which have resulted in the above accomplishments and we commend the businesslike efficlency with which the present Democratic administration invariably discharges its duties.

We are deeply mindful of the in-creasing burdens which rest upon the taxpayers, and we recognize that no relief will be afforded in national taxatien or in Beltimore city staxation. Therefore, while determined that the State's business must not suffer, but must go shead, we are equally de-termined that the people of Maryland shalf not have any additional burdens invitate taxation placed upon them. On the contrary, they shall receive such a lightening thereof as honest intelligent public service and atrict consume may be able to give.

Through all means that are possible, we want to reduce the cost of living to the people of our State, greatful and Attering in the necessaries of the and bring the producer and the consumer closer together in the interest of both.

ADMINISTRATION CONSOLI-DATION.

We remind the people of Maryland that constructive progress and steady advance in political ideals have been the outstanding features of the Democratic administrations which have governed Maryland during the past two Beginning with pioneer work in the care of the tubercular the feeble-minded and the insane, and with the establishment of a system of free school books, there followed a long line of progressive measures, all passed by Democratic Legislatures, including: State roads system, Workmen's Compensation Law, Public Service Commission, State Tax Commission, Full Crew Law, Labor Laws, Ten-Hour Law for Women, health and sanitary legislation, New Educational Law, Conservation Commission, State Board of Agriculture, Maryland Agricultural College reorganized, State Law Department, State Board of Prison Control, Budget System, continuing appropriations abolished, uniform system of accounting, Annapolis-Claiborne Ferry, Baltimore and Rock Hall Ferry and Baltimore and Love Point Ferry, War Legislation of 1917, Police Comissioner for Baltimore City, Central Purchasing Bureau, State Merit System, University of Maryland and Lateral Road

These two decades have constituted a period of specific accomplishment. | aid for some months, and has delayed As each new condition arose, the Deniocratic State Administration has stepped forward with the means to meet it. As each new need developed, or else well under way. the Democratic State Administration has supplied the need. nevitably these new accomplish ments were not co-ordinated. From the nature of things they could not be. Achievement was the instant and the important thing. Not until the lapse of some years was co-ordination possible, and the time ripe to undertake the work of fitting each activity into State. its appropriate place in the general the constructive legislation of the ant 20 years has, therefore, resulted n'a State Government conducting its important functions through about 80 parate departments, commissions nd officials. These are too many They should be co-ordinated, both to prevent duplication of work and effort, and in the interest of economy, emeloncy and of an adequate, business like supervision over all State departments. The time for this has now

There is nothing peculiar to Marie lan ! a sout this situation. Exactly the same thing occurred and is bound to under Democratic administrations, has been among the first of the States to recognize it and to apply the remedy.

have a practical, working, well-balanced whole, capable of operating better than the present system and at less cost. To this end we pledge our party to legislation to promote co-ordination, efficiency and economy in the State government, based upon the plan which has been recommended by the reorganization commission, appointed by Governor Ritchie, of which Hon, N. Charles Burke is chairman.

The plan this commission has recommended has these outstanding fea-

1. It is distinctly a Maryland plan, drawn by no outside experts, but by Maryland men and women, who are familiar with the needs of our people and with the history, development and practical operations of the State government. The changes this plan makes are such as will give greater efficiency and greater economy, and they square with those State institu tions, usages and practices which experience has justified and which ought to endure.

2. This plan will give a more efficient State government. It reduces the 80 existing departments to 16 major departments and three minor ones by combining those whose work is related and by abolishing unnecessary offices.

3. It will give a more economical State government. The saving in officials' salaries and compensation alone will amount to nearly $150,000 a year, The savings from increased efficiency and system are sure to be many times

INCREASED REPRESENTATION.

The Democratic party takes just pride in Maryland's great city of Bal the General Assembly:

We declare for increased representation for the city of Baltimore by the addition of two (2) Senators and (12) Delegates, which is an increase of fifty (50) per cent., and pledge our party to the submission to the people of a constitutional amendment therefor. We urge our party to support this pledge our party to the passage of such Constitutional amendments and legislation as will accomplish this. The plan drafted by the subcommittee of the reorganisation commission, of which Hon Carville D. Benson is chairman, shows that this will mean a direct saving to the taxpayers of approximately $250,000 a year.

ROADS.

We take just pride in the splendid road system of the State, inaugurated and carried on by Democratic administrations. The lateral road plan, enacted by the last legislature, has proved a marked success. Every county of the State paid its share of the lateral road fund and availed itself of its allotment for 1920, and almost every county has done so for 1921.

We pledge our party to the construction of needed extensions of and additions to the State roads system from State funds and Federal aid, and to the continued building of lateral roads from State and county funds. We were deeply concerned over the terms of the Federal Aid bill fostered by the Republican National Administration, because it would have taken from the States the right to initiate their own road projects and it contained other provisions which would have deprived Maryland of Federal aid in the future. Federal aid was inaugurated by the Democratic National Administration several years ago, and any cessation or impairment of its benefits would be most unfortunate. We are gratified that it was largely due to the efforts of the present Democratic State Administration that the objectionable features of the Republican bill were shape satisfactory to the interests of this State. We deplore, however, the failure of the Republican Congress thus far to pass the bill, because this failure | % has deprived the State of all Federal the construction of roads which, had the Federal money been available, would now have been either completed

AGRICULTURE.

The prosperity of the agricultural industry is fundamental to the general prosperity of the State. During the reconstruction period this industry has passed through a most difficult experience. The prices for staple agricultural products have fallen much below the cost of production. Every effort has been made by the Democratic Administration to assist the State agencies, the University of Maryland and the farmers generally to tide over this trying period. Beneficial legislation in the interest of agriculture and as lib eral appropriations as the State

Twenty years ago Maryland ranked first among the eyeor producing States of the country. PRISON REFORM.

The present administration has gone as far as it can in carrying out the legislative direction to establish a system of prison labor which will supersede the contract-labor system. The existing contracts are now all terminable on short notice and plans for the new system have been drawn. We favor legislation for the establishment of appropriate industries at the prison for the making of articles for the State.

I have, sir, just purchased in the market a famous opossum"-so wroto Webster to Irving and the latter's guest, Dickens, in March, 1842-"and I have sent it home to Monica, my cook, who will stuff it with chestnuts and bake it with sweet potatoes in true Virginia style. It will be, sir, a dish fit for the gods. Come, with your friend, and partake."

National Capital.

Dickens and Irving did partake in Webster's house, on Connecticut avenue, Washington, and Dickens did not relish the 'possum as much as he relished Webster's company. In a paper on literary aspects of the capital in the Catholic World Margaret B. Downing recalls another British visiter's introduction to a new dainty in Washington. Thackeray, in 1851, ate his first ice cream with Irving at the home of Hamilton Fish, on H street. Not many people realize that Irving lived for nearly five years in Washington. Of course, every one knows George Bancroft long lived there, that Whitman and Burroughs were in the civil service during the same Civil war years. Probably most people know also that Mrs. Stowe resided in Washington while "Uncle Tem's Cabin" was appearing in the National Era. Charles Warren Stodthe author of the "South Sea Idylis," also lived in Washington for a time. But no city really has title to an author until he not only lives in it, but writes about it. The author of this paper omits all mention of Henry Adams and the most notable novel of Washington life, "Democ-

Island of Jersey Has Been Called a Wonderland-Really is an Interesting Place.

The island of Jersey is famed for many things, remarks the "Under the Clock" columnist of the London Daily News. . . . lilies, golfers, "wonders," potatoes and cabbages ten feet high, to mention only a few of its most obvious specialities. But its chief claim to fame is that it is the residuary legatee of the old Norman duchy, therefore the inheritor (and presumably the proprietor) of the British empire. Jerseymen undoubtedly fought in William's victorious army, at Hastings, and to this day the island has a constitution and laws which have been little altered since the reign of King John, and which, on occasions, have even dared to defy the thunders of the privy council.

The inhabitants are a most intensely loyal people, and the two greatest blows that can be offered to their pride are, first, to confuse their island with Guernsey, and second, to call them French. Fancy the joy of the Jersey contingent which was welcomed into Fermoy with the strains of the Marseillaise! Jersey has never been conquered; England has; the deducn is obvious.

Cypress Lumbering.

Not many years ago owners of cypress swamps regarded their property as practically worthless. Cypress imbering was attended with peculiar difficulties because of its swampy growth. The green logs could not be moved with oxen or mules because of their great weight and the softness of the soil. And often the logs were so saturated with moisture that they would not float. Sometimes only about 15 per cent of a cut could be gotten to market. Finally lumbermen began to girdle the trees six months or a year before cutting, which resulted in a great saving.

Now the lumbermen drain the swamps before cutting. Swamp drainage is an important part of modern cypress lumbering. Massive machinery also is used. In the overhead cable skid method the logs are brought in by a carrier traveling over a powerful cable suspended between two trees, usually about six hundred feet apart.

Color Blindness.

In total color blindness the eye distinguishes only light and dark, in the more common partial color blindness red is mistaken for green, or black for brown, and in a third form only primary colors can be made out, often with confusion of blue and violet. The new spectrometer of F. W. Eldridge-Green measures the portion of the spectrum appearing to be monochromatic and the limits of visibility at each end of the sectrum. The average eye sees six definite colors and 18 apparently monochromatic parts of the spectrum; another more or less imperfect color vision separates not fewer single color patches than 18. Exceptional eyesight detects seven distinct colors, with as many as 25 monochromatic patches.

Joke on Film

The bride and groom, followed by the usual shower of old shoes and rice, boarded the train. The traveling man across the alsle enjoyed the fun to his heart's content.

- After the train started, the groom tried to clean up the rubbish left by the merrymakers. He opened the window and threw out the old shoes and rubbish. The traveling man was so used that he forgot that he was string there in his stocking feet.

Later he came to his senses and then he found that the groom had mistaken the only pair of shoes the travelman had with him for some that e merrymakers had left.

Three Parties To A Telephone Call

T is always well to remember that good telephone serve ice does not depend entirely upon the operator.

There are two other persons involved—the person. calling and the person answering—and over their movements the operator has no control. She may do her part very efficiently, but unless the others co-operate, the best results will not be had.

It is not the fault of the operator, for instance, if the calling party, relying on his memory, calls for a wrong number or hangs up his receiver in the middle of a conversation. Neither is it the fault of the operator if the called party fails to answer promptly or is already engaged in conversation with another person.

Good telephone operating is brought about by cooperation on the part of the party calling, the operator and the party called.

WAVES OF GIGANTIC HEIGHT

Thousands of Tons of Water Not Infrequently Poured Upon Decks of Ocean Vessels.

Even in stormy weather the average beight of waves in mid-ecean does not as a rule exceed 30 or 40 feet. Sometimes, however, one enormous wave makes its appearance amidst the rest.

Why this should happen no one can say. All we know is that a mighty mass of water rushes suddenly toward a ship at the appalling speed of over 100 miles an hour.

If the ship can meet such a wave with her bows she will ride over it, though thousands of tons of water may sweep over her decks. But if the wave is following her and rushes at her from the stern, she may fail to rise. Many a good ship has gone to her doom in this way.

These vast mountains of water rise sometimes to a height of more than a hundred feet—as high as the spire of a church. They have been known to extinguish the mast-head lights of sailing ships. Sometimes on a perfectly calm day there will be a sudden troubling of the surface of the sea, and without the slightest warning a wave 150 feet high will appear.

Plant Societies.

It appears that the knowledge of botany has been greatly advanced by the development of what may be called the sociology of plants, that is, the study of their relations to one another, as well as their adjustments to surroundings. Botanists recognize that plants are not scattered haphazard over the globe, but are organized into definite communities. A pond has its plant society, all the members of which fall into their proper places. A swamp-forest consists of trees possessing a certain social relationship, and differing from those that form a forest on dry land. There is progression from one social organization of plants to another. A lily-pond may give place to a swamp-moor, this to a society of swamp shrubs, and this, again, to a swamp-forest of tamarack, pine and hemlock. So societies of plants on dry lands succeed one another as the conditions change.

Cause of Volcanic Explosions,

Volcanic explosions are commonly regarded as the release of stores of energy kept confined by external pressure, and boiled explosions and geyser eruptions are typical of this class of outbreaks. An expert of the United States geophysical laboratory finds that another class of explosions, that of explosive mixtures like gunpowder, are not likely to occur in volcanoes. But a third class, that of explosive compounds brought into contact with oxygen or water, is more probably the usual source of volcanic explosions, and is illustrated by aluminum sesquioxide - finely divided brought into such relation with water in the electric furnace that mechanical detonation causes violent explosion. The dust of Mont Pelee may have been analogous to the aluminum sesquiox-

NEWS CARRIED BY DRUMBEAT

African Natives Have a Really Wonderful Way of Communicating Over Long Distances

News is carried by drumbeat in Africa at a rate as fast as the telegraph, writes a correspondent. The natives of Central Africa have a wonderful system of signaling from village to village by drumbeat, he says. Generally the property of the chief, these official drums, which are many, forming a set of varying size, are, as a rule, of the species known as incision-drum. This is a long, narrow hollow cylinder, made from a tree trunk, with the ends closed. By relay a message may travel a thousand miles in little more than the velocity of sound. The drum telephone depends upon an elaborate code of sounds. European travelers often order their dinner and night's lodging at the next village by a drum message. The villagers use it as we use postal, telegraph and telephone service—and there are no charges. To a European the rhythm of a drum expresses nothing beyond a repetition of the same note at different intervals of time, but to a native it expresses much more. To him the drum can and does speak, the sounds produced from it forming words and the whole measure of rhythm a sense. Thus, at a dance of "companies," in one measure they abuse the men of another company . . . then the rhythm changes and the gallant deeds of their own company are extolled. All this, and much more, is conveyed by the beating of drums, and the native ear, trained to detect and interpret each beat, 18 never at fault.

SOMETHING MORE THAN GAME

Ingenious Pastime That is Designed to Give Participants an Idea of Character Reading.

Training in character analysis is made possible by a game just put on the market, says a New York Times writer. In playing it two contesting sides are respectively called "character readers" and "face builders," some one not taking part in the game being selected as the subject to be studied. The character readers write upon a slip of paper those characteristics which they think best fit the subject. The face builders then proceed to construct a likeness of the person from a number of cardboard pieces on which different types of features are stamped. These sectional blocks provide a map of the face studied, the blocks representing the three chief facial types, designated as convex, concave and plane, with many intermediate gradations.

When the representation is completed by putting the blocks together, a key number on each block gives a reference to a description of the characteristics revealed by that particular kind of feature. Each characteristic named by the character readers which agrees with the corresponding characteristics found by the face builders scores one point for the character readers. Instead of studying a person present, a photograph may be used with equally good results.

Chiefs of the Cherokee Nation. In the sixty-eight years of the existence of the Cherokee nation west of the Mississippi river, ten men were called, at various intervals, to fill the highest office in the gift of the Cherokees. When the constitution of the Cherokee nation was adopted September 12, 1839, it provided that the supreme executive power of the nation should be vested in an official whose title should be "The Principal Chief of the Cherokee Nation." The ten principal chiefs were: John Ross, Louis Downing, William P. Ross, Charles Thompson, D. W. Bushyhead, Joel B. Mayes, C. J. Harris, S. H. Mayes, T. M. Buffington and W. C. Rogers. Of these only two were fullbloods. All the chiefs, with the exception of Downing and Thompson were of mixed white and Indian blood. John Ross and Louis Downing were the only ones who had ever filled the office of assistant chief. John Ross had been principal chief of the old Cherokee nation east of the Mississippi river.

IRREGULAR WORK CONDITIONS

While the unemployment conference called by President Harding must give its first attention to temporary measures to set idle people to work it should try to initiate a permanent movement for the relief of the seasonal working conditions existing in many industries. With many industries operating only about 200 days in a year a great deal of poverty is created that could be prevented if these employments could continue more regularly.

The lack of work is a great menace that darkens the days of the worker. It introduces anxiety into millions of homes, it, creates unrest and makes many people feel that the present social system is radically wrong.

In the coal industry, which is usually slack in the spring and early summer, the most obvious means to stabilize this condition is to offer coal at a marked reduction if bought early in the season. That plan has sometimes been opposed An anti-silk dress movement has been on the ground that it would be unfair to the people who have no money ahead and who must buy it in a hand-to-mouth way. Yet it would so stimulate spring buying that it would help the mines to run with greater regularity and it ought to make coal cost much less for everybody. It would be an incentive to thrift on the part of everyone, and it would be a tremendous boon to the coal

> The community ought to do its utmost to assist industries to stabilize their operations. Some, perhaps, could run more regularly if they had better storage facilities, or if they had larger capital with which to manufacture reserve supplies in dull times.

> It is for the interest of the community to see that such industries are supplied with all the capital they need with which to keep working regularly. Seasonal operation causes a tremendous loss to production and is one of the greatest drains now existing on the prosperity of the country.

It is becoming increasingly apparent that along with the rapid strides production the farm owner is more than keeping pace with the times.

farm implement is absolutely forced by conditions on the individual farm owner, he is taking time by the forelock and discovering for himself just what a necessary part of his equipment it really is, and, in this way, materially increases his yield, at the same time reducing to a minimum the amount of labor required and the amount of land necessary for the raising of feed for team with which he can readily do without. It will probably always be necessary to have a certain number of horses and mules on the farm, but, with the advent of the tractor in general use, such as is becoming the case at present, this will be reduced to the point where only the minimum number will be kept, thus reducing the investment to an appreciable extent.

While the Tractor proposition is practically in its infancy as far as farm use is concerned, yet it has been discovered that the great number of its uses makes it a practically indispensible article. Besides preparing the ground by cultivation, the Fordson Tractor is designed to do any and all pulley work which might be encountered. The larger implement manufacturers throughout the country have realized the general use of the Fordson Tractor, and, with that thought in mind, are devoting their entire time to designing machinery for use with this very efficient farm necessity.

Anne, the superiority of the Fordson was very apparent to the farmers present, although in competition with tractors which cost considerably more. The manner in which the Fordson operated in comparison with the work done by the higher priced tractors was proof positive that this is the "Universal" Tractor. The Fordson is sold by

To Gain A Good Reputation

"The way to gain a good reputation is to endeavor to be what you appear." This is precisely the manner in which Chamberlain's Cough Remedy has gained its reputation as a cure for coughs, colds, croup and whooping cough. Every bottle that has ever been put out by the manufacturers has been fully up to the high standard of excellence claimed for it. People have found that it can be depended upon for the relief and cure of these ailments and that it is pleasant and safe to take.

Indictment Of Dairymen Denounced

The indictment of the president and secretary of the Maryland State Dairymen's Association by the grand jury of Baltimore City was discussed at the recent meeting of the Somerset County Agricultural Association and the following preamble and resolution were adop-

Whereas, The President and Secretary of the Maryland State Dairymen's Association have been indicted by the grand jury of the city of Baltimore on the charge of conspiring to create a monopoly in the sale and distribution of milk in that city, and

Whereas, the said Dairymen's Association is a corporate marketing organization of farmers of this State, whose and whose officers are farmers of the highest integrity, and

Whereas, by such indictment of the tion have been branded as criminals and a serious blow has been struck at the progress of the co-operative marketing by farmers of this State.

Be it Resolved, That the Somerset County Agricultural Association in annual meeting assembled do most solemnly and earnestly protest against the action of the said officials of Baltimore City in holding up this fine body of fel-low farmers before the public as criminals and we do hereby pledge to the larceny. Guilty. Sentence suspended Dairymen's Association our support in their efforts to combat these unjust charges and to establish the right of Maryland farmers to co-operate for their own good and for the welfare of the State.

"Burning Corn For Fuel"

This is the headline in the papers that causes a feeling of horror among workers of the Near East Relief organization in the Caucasus. There, where people are dying by the hundreds and the thousands, these relief workers read that corn is being burnt for fuel in the United States.

The Armenians, a nation of farmers, are dying for want of food-grain, the giving of which would save them, is being burnt in the United States. People too of other nations, among them Syrians and Assyrians, Persians and Greeks, are dying there, dying for lack · of food, while in America, corn, lifesaving corn, is burnt for fuel.

"A nation of farmers, dying for lack f. food, calls to the farmers of Maryland for help," says Harold F. Pellegrin, Maryland State Director, Near East Relief. "Maryland farmers are asked to give corn and wheat. Let us hope there will be no burning of corn in Maryland for fuel when thousands are dying for lack of it."

tery of What Was Known as the svil's Corkscrew" Has Been Considered Solved.

Of the many fossils which have come out of the mountains and plains of the West, few have excited wider interest than the "devil's corkscrew," found in rocks of the Miocene period, in northwestern Nebraska. They are usually white, and stand out clearly against the bluff background of the rock which incloses them, often attaining a length of 15 feet, with many twists and turns, ending at times in a large bulb, with occasional side passages. When first discovered it was thought that these gigantic "corkscrews" were huge petrified vines or roots of some strange plant. Study of the "corkscrews," however, failed to reveal any traces of plant structure. Later the skeleton of an animal like the badger was found in a large bulb near the end of the "corkscrew," and bones of a small camel and small deer contained bones of a small burrowing animal about the size of the western prairie dog. Excavation of actual recent prairie dog burrows, after filling them with thin plaster of paris, showed an interesting fact; the burrows of the prairie dog and the prehistoric "corkscrews" were closely similar. The mystery is considered

OLD MYSTERY OF THE SEA

Became of Fine Liner Presient Which Disappeared in the Year 1841?

Among the modern sea mysteries sone is more baffling than the vanishing of the liner President in 1841. The vessel was the latest word in luxerious ocean travel, having but lately been launched. And that day in March when she sailed from New York for Liverpool every vessel in the North river paid tribute to her size and superiority. She was 268 feet long and of 2.860 tons.

the days sped on far into the summer the agony of suspense on both sides the ocean grew. On her passenger list had been the names of many prominent persons, among whom were the celebrated comedian, Tyrone Powers, George G. Cookman and the duke of Devonshire. A few more than 100 passengers were aboard the President.

Whether the President foundered in some violent gale, was sunk or crushed by icebergs, or was destroyed by fire, no man to this day has been able to tell, for not even a splinter of wrockage was ever reported seen.

Paradise of the Hunter. Kamchatka forms a peninsula at the extreme southeastern termination of the great Siberian continent. Game is pursued by the inhabitants all the year round except in May, June and July. Sable trapping is a favorite pursuit of the native hunter, the skin of this little animal being accepted as the gold currency of the peninsula. The business of buying and selling is carried on with the natives through middlemen-Siberians, Chinese and well-to-do Kamehadals - who, while faithfully serving their masters, make a fat living out of it for themselves.

A veritable paradise for the biggame hunter, Kamchatka contains reindeer, caribou, big-horn mountain sheep (Ovis nivicola), the great gray wolf and many varieties of bear, all in quantities unknown, says an exchange, in any other quarter of the globe.

Antiquity of Porto Rico. Ethnologists have reason for thinking that Porto Rico and the adjoining islands may have been peopled from the valley of the Orinoco instead of from Yucatan. When first occupied by man Porto Rico may have been a part of a peninsula connected with South America. Its fauna and flora are of the South American type, and it contains relics of a forgotten race which show evidence of a high grade | area. of culture. Few traces of these aborigines are now to be found except in the interior of the island. Among the curious remains are stone-enclosed plazas, on which ceremonial dances were performed. The remains of carved idols and pottery show no small degree of skill and taste. No traces of stone buildings resembling those of the Mayas are found, but the houses are of the South American type.

The Apple of Eden,

From time immemorial the apple has been blamed for being the cause of man's downfall in the garden of Eden. We have even gone so far as to call our Adam's apple by that name in memory of the incident, a matter of fact, the word apple does not appear in that part of Genesis freating with the Garden of Eden, the "fruit of the tree" being the words always used. The fallacy arose from the fact that the word apple has in many languages the general meaning of fruit, and that before an Binglish translation of the Bible was permitted the story was incorrectly spread by Ignorant churchmen, and thus took root too deeply to be eradicated.

Stopping Fires Before They Start Means Big Economic Saving To All Citizens.

By Henry M. Warfield.

The Fire Prevention Campaign, organized for Baltimore and the State of Maryland, and which starts October 1, should be viewed by the citizens as one of the most important conservation measures ever presented for their consideration and co-operation. Few, believe, fully comprehend what the reduction of the fire waste really means. Property destroyed by fire, while in most instances were found in others. After that it paid for by the insurance comwas discovered that many of them panies, is, nevertheless, wiped out of existence and thereby constitutes a lessening of our resources by necessitating its replacement from our constantly diminishing sources of supply.

> These associations are supported by the stock fire insurance companies at no small cost, and any fair-minded citizen cannot but appreciate the great good their work has been to any community through the improved building laws, fire prevention devices and fire-fighting devices suggested by experts in the various lines. Reduction of the fire waste must result in reduction in the cost of insurance, for no class of business is under stricter supervision than insurance by the insurance commissioners of all the states. Should the reduction in fire waste be such as to show increased profits to the insurance companies, rates are just as certain to come down proportionately as night is to follow day.

We have in Baltimore an excellent example of the assistance the stock insurance companies are in bringing about better fire prevention in the area swept by the great fire of 1904. This area has been rebuilt to a great extent under the direction of the experts employed by the insurance companies with the result that, after paying out about $35,000,000 in losses to property owners, these property owners are now enjoying lower insurance rates than before the conflagration and the City of Baltimore can feel quite sure that a repetition of the conflagration will not occur in this

The Maryland Fire Prevention Campaign, which will teach many Marylanders many ways of preventing many fires, will also teach them the value of fire insurance. which, next to prevention of fires, is the best safeguard against heavy losses. Every person owning property should see to it that his insurance policy is in working order; that is, that it covers his possessions thoroughly and that it is adequate.

Catarrhal Deafness Cannot Be Cured by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure catarrhal deafness, and that is by a constitutional remedy. Catarrhal Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucoua lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, Deafness is the result. Unless the inflammation can be reduced and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever. Many cases of deafness are caused by catarrh, which is an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces. Hall's Catarrh Medicine acts thru the blood on the mucous surfaces of the system. Avoid Trees During Storm. It is generally conceded that to seek refuge under a tree during a thunder storm is more dangerous than to stay out in the open. Some trees are more often struck than others, and one scientist describes the sycamore tree as the most susceptible of all. But the man who considers himself safe under an oak, because there is a sycamore a few yards away, is putting a sublime faith in statistics. City dwellers are safer than country folk. HOW OUR REPRESENTATIVES MAKE THE NATION'S LAWS

What happens to the thousands of bills introduced in Congress, and how do those that are finally passed succeed in seeing the light of day?

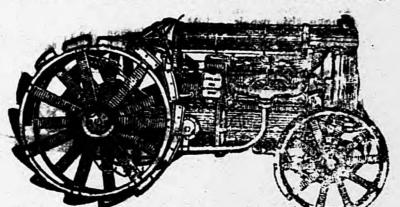

In our latest booklet of the series on Our Government we tell the story of just how Congress goes about its work, together with some interesting sidelights on the customs which have an important bearing on our legislation.

This booklet is the last of the stories of Our Government. We are contemplating a new series of articles that will be equally interesting and instructive. We shall be glad to put on our list the names of all those in this community who wish to receive them.

GLACIAL PERIOD IN DISPUTE

Ample Evidence That It Existed, but the Question Is, When Did It End?

When did the glacial period end? Was it, an American scientist pertinently asks, when the ice began to disappear, or had half disappeared, or had entirely disappeared?

If the last mentioned, then we are still in the ice age, for Europe has its glaciers, and so have Labrador, the Rockies, Alaska and islands in the arctic regions, and, as every schoolboy is aware, Greenland is nearly covered with an ice cap.

Can the question be settled by reference to climate? If so, then the glacial period ended for, say, the Ontario region at the beginning of Lake Iroquois, for its trees belonged to a cold, temperate climate.

Probably the point is best settled by making the glacial period a progressive event, regarding it as ending in one region perhaps thousands of years before it ends in another.

Without doubt, this far-off epoch of thick-ribbed ice constitutes one of the great mysteries of the world's history. It is absolutely hedged in with uncertainty.

Though it is generally believed that there was more than one ice age. 10 one can say with any degree of certainty whether there were three, four er six, or a dozen, for the matter of that.

And the deepest of all, mysteries connected with one or any of these icy periods is what was the cause of them. Both geologists and astronomers have, so far, failed to solve that problem. It is not yet even agreed as to what extent the ice cap covered the globe.

THINGS ONE WOULD FORGET

Among Them May Well Be Listed This, Told So Feelingly by Victim of Deaf Cashier.

When I was a young fellow, shy and self-conscious, I went to a church sociable. I escorted three charming girls with angelic countenances and human appetites out to the refreshment table. After they had eaten all they wanted I found that I had left my pocketbook at home. A deaf man, whom I had never seen before, was at the cashier's desk. My face aflame, I went down and said softly:

"I regret to say that I have, unfortunately, come away without any "Change two?" chirped the old man. Oh, yes, I can-five if you want it." A crowd of people was waiting impatiently to pay their bills and get

Finally I shouted: "I have no money," and I was ready to sink into the earth, while all the people, especially the three girls I had treated, were giggling and chuckling audibly. Some of the church members came up to see what the uproar was, and recornizing me, made it all right with the cashier.-Chicago Tribune.

Breeches Were Worn in Babylenia Breeches, a garment for the leg especially, as distinguished tro trousers, for covering the upper por tions of the legs, were formerly called hose in England. Breaches or hose were in use even among the ancient Babylonians. In Europe we find them first used among the Gauls, hence the Romans called a part of Gaul "breeched Gaul" (Gallia braccata). the Fifth century breeches had be come fashionable in Rome. In th time of Queen Elizabeth and James the breeches had assumed enormod dimensions, being stuffed out wit various materials, as wool, hair, et King James' partiality for such breeches is well known, and we find him represented in an old engraving with wide stuffed breeches tapering to the knee, slashed and adorned with lace. In the reign of Charles I they took the form of short trousers, loose at the knee and ornamented with ribbons and lace. In the time of William III the tight knee-breeches came in and were supplanted by trousers only in the Nineteenth century.

Traveling.

Ourselves are cosmic and capacious beyond conjecture and to experience some notion of the planetary perspective is the richest income from traveling. It takes all to inform and educate all. Sallies forth from our cramped firesides into other homes, other hearts, are wonderfully wholesome and enlarging. Travel opens prospects on all sides, widens our our horizon, liberates the mind from geographical and conventional limitations, from local prejudices and national showing the globe in its different climates, zones and institutes of intelligence. The traveled mind is the catholic mind educated from exclusiveness and egotism.—Exchange.

Types of Oranges.

The best known orange is the "sweet" or "round" type which comprises the bulk of the commercial crop. There are several other types, however. The manderin or "kid glove" type—the tangerine, in other words is common on the fruit stands, but it constitutes but a very small portion of the market supply. The Seville orange, known as the "sour" or "bitter" variety, rarely is grown for its fruit, but seedings are used extensively as root stocks on which to bud sweet oranges. The Bergamont orange, from the rind of which Bergamont oil is made, seldom is grown in the United States.

Husky Seattle Legion Member Was Wounded Twelve Times Within Half Minute.

The weathering of three years rough and tumble as a Walter Camp All

Paul, then a first lieutenant in the Three Hundred and Sixtyfourth infantry,

Ninety-first division, was wounded in 12 different spots in half a minute during the Argonne struggle. One high explosive shell burst near him, hurling him about 15 feet distant. He had just landed when a second shell exploded almost under him, tossing him back to where he started from. He thought it over for several months in army hospitals. Also a graduate of Harvard law school, Paul is junior partner in one of Seattle's legal corporations. He is commander of Rainier-Noble post of the American Legion, Seattle.

ALL KNOW JACK WILLIAT'S

Adjutant of North Dakota Legion De partment Acquired Popularity While Serving as Newsie.

Everybody in North Dakota, and not few in bordering states know Jack Williams, adjutant of the American Legion department, and his resonant voice. Williams acquired both his popularity and his voice by crying "Extra, extra, all about it" on the streets of Fargo, N. D., for six years. While newsie.

Williams conceived a monopoly on all the city's evening papers which brought all the other boys into his employ and made money for him. Later he branched out and worked in a newspaper press room. He worked up to pressman, a position he was holding when he enlisted in the Third Engineers for the war.

Forced to guit school while in the fourth grade, Williams obtained a good education on the streets and by night study. At twenty-one years old he was president of the Fargo Trades and Labor assembly, a post he resigned to enlist. He went into the army as a private and came out with the same rank. He was the first state adjutant of the American Legion department.

POST SELECTS THIS BEAUTY

Puget Sound Organization Chooses Miss Hazel Jordan as One of Their Prettiest.

A dip in refreshing ocean water every day during the summer and every week, at least, during the winter, makes for the sparkling eyes and exceptional beauty of Miss Hazel Jordan, recently selected by the American Legion of Seattle, Wash., as one of the three most beautiful girls in the great Northwest. Because of the cool, moist air which blows the year around, because they swim, skate, ski, float and fly and do everything else that a real live American girl is supposed to do, the beauties of the Northwest far surpass those of any other section of the United States, the Legion of Seattle holds. All these advantages obviate the use of rouge, powder, the lipstick and paint, too, they declare.

Miss Jordan lives in Everett, Wash., on the eastern shore of Puget sound. She was the only one of the three girls who would tell, willingly, her age. She admits eighteen years.

At least 11 bands from Missourt will attend the national convention of the American Legion at Kansas City, October 80, 31 and November 1. St. Louis will send a band of 100 pieces.

More than one-eighth of the population of Radcliffe, Ia., is enrolled in the American Legion. The town has 106 service men out of a population of 800, every one of whom belongs to the local post.

To teach children proper love and respect for Old Glory, state school leaders and a committee from the American Legion are writing a simple, impressive ceremony to be followed in every school room.

NEW LAWS GUT HUNTING SEASON

IRPLANE SHOOTING BARRED

Tendency to Tighten Restrictions on Hunting of Birds and Big Game is Shown in Federal and State Laws for 1921.

Washington.- A tendency to tighten the restrictions on the hunting of birds and big game is noted in the ame laws for 1921, a summary of which, both federal and state, has been compiled by the federal biological survey. Among the notable changes made daring the present year was the amending of the migratory bird treaty act regulations with respect to bag

This amendment provides that the daily bag limit of any person shall now include "all birds taken by any other person who for hire accompanies or assists him in taking migratory birds." This will put an end to the above of privileges under the regulatiens regarding the prescribed daily bag limits by persons who claim that birds were killed by guides accompanying them.

Waterfowi Season. The federal waterfowl season for California was fixed from October 1 to January 15, replacing the old season of October 16 to January 81, the season now being the same under both federal and state laws. Regulation 9, foverning the issuance of federal entific permits, was amended to trmit the issuance of limited and spe-del permits. tate legislation harmonized federal and state laws on waterfowl and shore birds in Kansas and Oregon, and on fowl in Pennsylvania and Rhode Island; Washington prescribed a statewide open season on all migratory game birds from October 1 to January 15 thus deviating from the federal regulations, which supersede the state law, east of the Cascade mountains, where it will now be possible to hunt migratory game birds only from October 1 to December 31, without violating either federal or state law; in Idaho the open season on migratory game birds has been shortened under state law two weeks by opening October 1, instead of September 16, and stending to December 31.

Bar Airplanes. Ideho. Kansas. Montana, braska, Oregon and Washington enacted legislation similar to the federal regulation prohibiting hunting from airplanes. Colorado reduced the bag limit on ducks from 20 to 15 a day, while Kansas increased the limit from 20 to 25. In New Jersey reedbirds were protected at all times by being laced in the nongame class. He will be tried on a charge of manslaughter.

Two manslaughter charges are pending against Arbuckle. One was entered late Friday when, at the end of the hearing before Sylvain J. Lazarus, Police Judge, a first degree murder charge was amended. The other was returned recently by a San Francisco county grand jury, which investigated the Labor Day party given by Arbuckle at the St. Francis Hotel, at which the State contends the young woman received injuries which caused her death.

Arbuckle regained his freedom shortly after the preliminary hearing ended. He already had on deposit $5,000 bail in connection with the indictment. This was transferred to cover the proceedings arising from Mrs. Bambina Maude Delmont's complaint. On the grand jury accusation he was placed "on his own recognizance" for arraignment October 9th.

HOLDS HEART, PATIENT DIES PICKS UP $20,000 IN GEMS

Surgeon at Clinio in Switzerland Criticized by Students for Unusual Act.

Geneva, Switzerland.-The cantonal government has ordered an inquiry into an extraordinary operation performed by the chief surgeon at a hospital, who extracted the heart from a man named Pasche.

Pasche shot himself, the bullet piercing his heart. The surgeon spoke for 20 minutes to the horrified students with the live heart in his hands.

At the end of the lecture, when the man was dead, the students protested to the surgeon, who dismissed their objections with the remark that the patient would have died anyhow within a few hours.

Authorities are not satisfied with this explanation, while the victim's relatives think of bringing a civil action for damages.

Brakeman Gives Sheriff Robbers' Logt Found in Handkerchief in Freight Car.

Dallas, Tex.-Diamonds valued at approximately $80,000 belonging to a local wholesale jewelry house, were taken from a drummer's trunk by robbers, who broke into the railroad depot at Royce City, near here, where the trunk was stored.

About $20,000 worth of the diamonds were turned ever to Sheriff Dan Harston the following day by a brakeman, who said he found them in a freight car, wrapped up in a soiled blue handkerchief.

THE Ford worm-driven, One-Ton Truck with demountable rims and pneumatic tires, are dependable, as well as serviceable. This, probably more than any other factor, accounts for their popularity. There is no evidence so convincing as that which comes from long practical experience. Like the Ford car, the Ford One-Ton Truck -Ford-built throughout—has proven itself. In it are combined the Ford principles of simplicity, with strength, lowest first cost, lowest operating cost, durability.

In the city, on the farm, carrying its loads between cities-everywhere you will find the Ford One-Ton Truck doing duty. Merchants, manufacturers, farmers, have come to know it as the truck of utmost service.

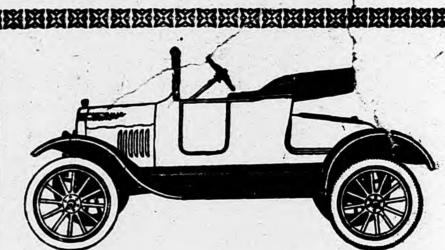

"Ford—A Business Utility" is a new booklet of solid facts and figures about Ford cars and the Ford One-Ton Truck in business service. Get a copy. They are free for the asking.

The most reliable after-service which is ever behind Ford cars, trucks and Fordson tractors is positive assurance to the owners of Ford cars of their constant use and service.

ORE and more every day the demand for Fordson Tractor increases because the Fordson has demonstrated so much usefulness, so much economy, so much labor saving, so much money saving, along so many lines of activity. The farmer has discovered that not only for plowing, harrowing, discing, seeding, mowing, reaping or threshing, but a multitude of other uses; cutting wood; feed; grinding feed; churning; washing; furnishing water in the house; making electric light possible in the house and around the barns. so that, as a matter of fact, there is hardly an hour in the day when the Tractor cannot be made a profitable servant. There is ditching to do; there are roads to fix; and so on all down along the line of the enormous calls that constantly face the farmer the Fordson steps in and does the work, shoulders the complete burden of the toil and the hard work, one might almost say "drudgery." "Holy Roller" Loses His Mind

It was a very sad sight to see Walter Ruark, aged 32 years, and his wife and three little children in the county jail here last Monday night says the Snow Hill Messenger. Ruark was a raving maniac and his wife was not much better-made so, neighbors say, by the fanaticism of a religious sect to which they both belong.

Mr. Ruark is a member of the Holy Roller Church and was an intense worshipper, so much so that he has lost his mind, and at times feeling that his wife had not attained that state of perfection expected by him, it is said he beat her that she might be better.

He was brought to Snow Hill and placed in jail. His wife and children came to visit him. He railed against everyone; stripped himself and cried little sanity. She became hysterical and muttered unintelligibly. She said she was talking in "an unknown tongue." On Tuesday the wife and children were sent back to their home in Atkinson's district, and Ruark was bundled into an automobile bound for the State Hospital at Cambridge. Two physicians examined him and declared him insane. The auto engine was groaning and the demented man exclaimed "I know what that is, that's old man Chatham groaning, I killed him."

It was the talk of an insane man, but it has started public gossip and public 'wonder," for the man who killed old man Chatham has never been found

The color scheme for these maps will be the same as for the direction signs—white letters on a black background. They will be oriented to read in the direction of travel, so that if the signboard were laid on the ground it would point in the right direction. $50,000 Fire At Crisfield

Old Knights of Pythias Castle, built some 40-odd years ago, and which had been the home of secret lodges in Crisfield up to a few years ago, was entirely destroyed by fire Sunday night. October 2nd.

The fire started in the dwelling of William Evans, next door to the castle, when an oil stove on which the family supper was being prepared exploded. No one was hurt in the explosion.

The old castle was used by Grief & Co., of Baltimore, as a clothing factory. Before help could be summoned Guy on the other side. All three buildings and their contents were destroyed. The building was owned by Webb Brothers, of Crisfield, and was two stories high, filled with machinery used

The loss is estimated at $50,000, but partially covered by insurance. Seventystory himself and is said to have put ordained minister, and had no legal five persons were employed in the fac-

SEEK MYSTERY OF CAROKIA MOUND

Prof. W. K. Moorehead to Open Illinois Relic of Prehistoric Inhabitants.

Exploration May Develop Information of Surpassing Interest to Archaeelogists-Greatest Structure of Kind in World.

Bast St. Louis, Ill.—Probing of the mysteries of the great Cahokia mound near this city has been begun by Prof. Warren K. Moorehead of Andover, Mass., upon the suggestion of the Smithsonian institution, universities and scientific associations. With a corps of experienced assistants he will open Cahokia and the chain of 72 other mounds in Madison and St. Clair counties which furnish the most remarkable memorials of North Americe. Exploration may develop information of surpassing interest and value to archaeologists.

Covering 16 acres, the Cahokia mound, which is 100 feet in height, is the greatest structure of its kind in the world. It was supposedly a religious temple. Archaeologists estisate that the settlement of the mound builders numbered not less than 150,-000 inhabitants at the height of its prosperity.

At First Agriculturists. The size of the settlement site, as it can be imagined from the ruins, the agricultural type of much of the work in flint, such as the great spades and hoes almost peculiar to that vicinity, and the rich alluvial bottomland combine to show that the Cahokiana were probably at first agriculturists. They probably fished and hunted to some extent, but they, doubtless. depended for their subsistence upor their labor in the field and their staple food was unquestionably corn.

is believed that the appearance of the bison resulted in the abandonment of agriculture and the development of the chase, with the result that the community became nomadic and gradually crumbled and dispersed to the four quarters of the continent.

Believed to Have Come From Mexico, The preponderance of evidence so far discovered is that the people of Canokia were worshipers of the sun. There is so much about Cahokia that is similar to the works of the Aztecs that the conviction is forced upon the states that it was from Mexico that these people came to the Mississippi valley, bringing, their religion, their priesthood, their corn, their mode of life and their middle order of primitive civilisation.

Even if the exploration of the Caho-kie mound is not followed by any im-persint discoveries, it is cortain that ontrol by the state will be given er momentum when the people of oté are brought to a realization of Its archaeological value.

Up to the present time the Cahokia and other table-like turmuil in the group have not been explored much more deeply than the plow and spade

FINDS COAL VEIN IN STREET

Property Owner Can't Mine It for Fear of Destroying Buildings of Great Value.

Pottsville, Pa .- A rich vein of coal, two feet thick, was found under the curbstone of Harry Lord of North Third street. There is no doubt that the vein contains thousands of tons of coal, but it cannot be mined, as such action would weaken buildings of great value.

The excavation made, by which the coal was discovered, was for the purpose of placing a gasoline tank under the pavement.

Mr. Lord took a ton of the vein and found it of good burning quality. The find is near the court house and shows, as has been believed, that large quantities of coal are immediately underneath the Schuykill county temple

The stock of creams, however, will not be allowed to die out altogether. for the king has presented them to the army council, and in future they will be used as cavalry drum horses.

Continuous Blasting in Dismantling Big German Fortress Sounds Like Celebration.

Helgoland, Germany.-Every day is Fourth of July celebration on this little rocky island. And not a "safe and sane" celebration at that.

At sunrise the 1,000 German workmen who are dynamiting the pet fortress and naval harbor of Kaiser William set off their blasts. The bombardment keeps up througout the day. Charges of TNT make the water in the harbor spout up like geysers in Yellowstone park and the big gun pits on the summit of the rocky cliff give an occasional roar like Vesuvius and belch great clouds of black smoke and pulverized concrete. For two years more the work of devastation will continue. It took the kaiser eight years to build the great fortress and harbor which defended the Kiel canal and afforded Germany's navy a base close to England. It cost Germany 50,000,000 marks ($12,-500,000). The cost of dismantling, which Germany also must bear in accordance with the terms of the Versailles treaty, will probably be about 4,000,000 gold marks ($1,000,000), Canada With Unrepresentative Ensign Seeks Ideas for Proper Heraldic Device.

Now in Use Unautherized and No Longer Represents Ganada as Five of its Provinces Are Not Included.

Toronto.—Canada is a "nation" but it has no flag. Herein it is unique this flag, by warrant dated Febnion." This limits its demain madian marchant ships, as no en-lightentian was given to fly it an laste. When it is flown on land, it is of its jurisdiction. In any case, it has not been formally adopted by he Canadian people and it now has ided limitations.

shield contains the devices of four of the nine provinces which new form the Dominion of Canada. The four coats of arms make an almost indecipherable emblem owing to the crowding of their devices into so small a space. If the emblem was brought up to date by adding the arms of the other five provinces, the result would be a hopeless confus orial bearings; the significance Md be destroyed and the flag be ing in distinction and beauty.

Australia's Flag Australia, when it organized its monwealth, chose a flag from 30,competing designs. It has the Union Jack in the upper left-hand corer, with the constellation of the outhern cross, white on a blue field. New Zealand also has a flag. It is also based on the southern cross contellation, red stars on a blue field. There are only four stars compared with Australia's six.

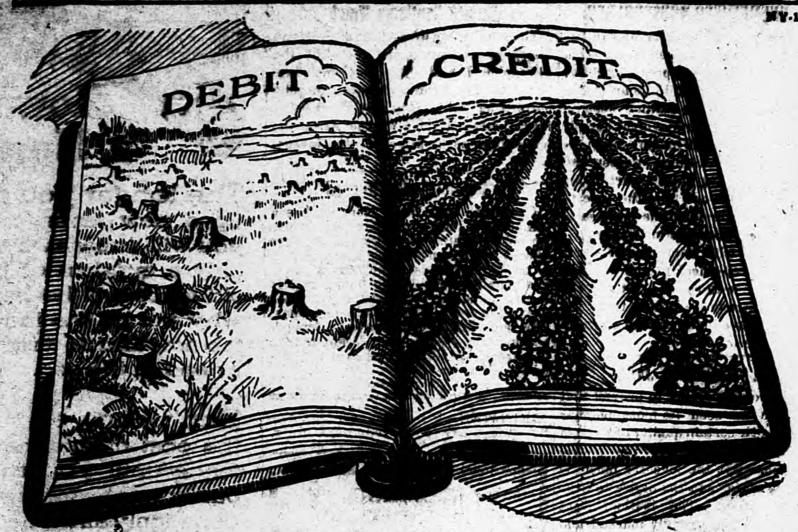

As for South Africa, Premier Smuts as declared that she, too, will have own national flag.

The Manitoba Free Press, speaking resent unofficial Canadian ensign, is ritating for a new Canadian flag and received hundreds of proposed deas. The Free Press itself puts forrd an adaption of the most promit feature of northern skies as an propriate design. Certainly the per" and the pole star are not out some symbolism to most Caians. The dipper, the Free Press , "is the conspicuous constellation our Canadian heavens, circling wly around the steadfast, polar f; it lights up the night sky over Atlantic provinces and over the the slopes of British Columbia; it es above the night silences of the stern prairies; it can be seen by trapper in the woods of the Northat territories, by the settler on his mestead, by the city dweller high above the glitter of his lamp-lit streets. the most distinctive constellation of the northern hemisphere." The dipper and the pole star, it thinks, look as though they were a great heraldic emblem on the dark field of the Canadian night sky, and it seems natural to take them down and emblazon them on the white field of a flag for the young Canadian nation. The only objection would come from those who objected to Kipling's "Our Lady of the of the maple leaf. Nationhood flowers in a flag, thinks the Free Press, which argues the case his way: . "Canada has one of the eat geographical surfaces of the world. Canada has a vigorous, thriving and enterprising people. Canada sent 600,000 men to the war, good soldiers who fought with distinction and put luster on the Canadian name; Canada has a rich tradition behind her; her laws and system of government are rooted in the principles of liberty and justice; the great highway of national expansion is opening before Canada, and as a nation she is preparing to walk in it; Canadian status and nationality have never been so universally admitted as they are today, and despite all this, Canada lacks distinctive badge of nationality possessed by even the smallest and humblest nation-a national flag. The national flag stands for something offet in the nation. National flags are emblems around which nations rally. crosses on the Union Jack, the lion of Scotland, the lion of England the Irish harp, the stars and bars of 'Old Glory' are of a piece with the national life out of which they merge."

Fewer Children in Austria, Vienna.-Ourious freaks of population are shown by the details of the latest Austrian census. For instance, there are 300,000 fewer children under 10 years of age in the country than in 1910, while the number of men between 40 and 60 has increased by 120,000. It is explained by the fact that adult men survived the privale children perished.

The Indiane "Pipe of Reace," The calumet, the "pipe of peace" of the American Indians, was used of all ceremonial occasions, but especially when treaties of peace were being ratified. Each warrior took a solemb puff from the pipe as it was passed around the circle. Native tobacco. with which willow bark or sumac leaves were mixed, was smoked. The bowl of the pipe was made of white stone in the East and Southeast. In the West it was made of a red clay obtained from the famous pipestone quarry of Minnesota, mentioned in Longfellow's "Hiawatha." The pipe had a very long stem, made sometimes of wood, sometimes of reed. Feathers, porcupine quills and women's hair were used as decorations on the stem. The name "calumet" orig-

FRANCE AGAIN ADMITS BOOZE

Lets Down Bars to Whisky and Gin to Satisfy Demands of the Tourists.

Paris.—The French government has been compelled to permit the importation into France of a limited amount of whisky and gin so as to satisfy the demands of the tourists here from foreign countries. Such imports had been prohibited since the war and, as a result, the prices of cocktails and highells soured in proportion as the supply of gin and whisky diminished.

Foreigners residing here have made desperate efforts to obtain good whisky from England and Scotland and have been compelled to pay extremely high prices for it. Reports of a great amount of smuggling indicate that the foreigners have about as much difficulty obtaining their favorite brand of whisky as they do in America.

Death Battle for Young. Maryville, Cal.-Finding of bodies of a huge eagle and a mountain ram on Table mountain in Butter county revealed a desperate battle to the death between the great bird and the mountain goat, in which each was actuated by love for their young. The eagle, according to mountaineers, three days ago seized a small kid from the ram's herd to feed her small eaglets in their nest high on top of the mountain. Returning on a similar mission the ram attacked the eagle and the pair battled to the death.

NOVEL Chinese Prescribe Regulations to Prevent Accidents.

Chauffeurs to Be Locked in Boom. With Wax Images of Victims to Make Them Sorry

Shanghal.-As a means of preventing automobile accidents the Health Precautionary association, an organization composed of leading Chinese of Shanghai, recently prepared a list of suggestions among which are several of engaging novelty. The suggestions which were adopted at a meeting after lengthy debate were submitted to the municipal council of the international settlement.

"All motorcars have rubber-tired wheels and run without noise. It is too late to blow a horn when a car has already collided with a pedestrian. A car should have a very small bell attached to one of the front wheels and this bell should be kept ringing all the time so that when pedestrians hear it they can get out of the way.

"This bell should be half the size of a bicycle bell. Each car should have a speed limit, but the fire brigade, doctors' and police motorcars should be exempted.

"A chauffeur should wear a brass badge on his breast. The badge should be three inches in diameter and should have his name and the number of his license in English and Chinese inscribed thereon. The badge should be issued by the municipal council at a few taels each. Then a man not "censed will not dare to drive a car.

"All motortrucks should have rails or iron chains around the cars to insure safety and in case of collision the cargo will be prevented from falling and injuring pedestrians. Cargo should not be piled too high to prevent danger when passing over bridges.

"There should be one licensed chauffeur and an assistant to take charge of each motorcar or truck. The alssistant should sit behind and keep lookout when the car turns around, goes backward, enters or leaves the garage. The owner of the car will not mind spending a little money th employing an assistant chauffeur.

"After a person is killed by a motorcar a wax image of the deceased should be made and placed in a room and any chauffeur who causes injuries to others should be locked up in this room so that he will see the image and feel sorry. This may cause him to repent. This has been introduced in America and has produced successful results."

BRAIN IMPRESSIONS STUDIED

Paris Technical Committee Would Learn If Eye or Ear Aids Pupils More.

Paris, France.-Whether children earn better written texts or eral lectures is a question under investigation in the schools of Paris. A technical committee of the League of Mental Hygiene has set to work in a boyb' school to study the processes of teaching and learning.

Pedagogical experts assert that some persons' brains receive deeper impres sions by the sense of sight. The committee proposes to seek some method of education that will take advantage of these faculties and possibly also try to find some way to develop the pupil's receptiveness.

Another question is the desirability of developing either the hearing or sight sense when found particularly keen in a pupil or whether it would be better to develop the dormant faculty in an effort to attain a certain standard of keenness in both sight and hearing in all pupils so they might all be taught by the same method.

It is unfair to state that the women voters are not reading the newspapers as they are carefully studying the recipes for skin bleach. Also our intelligent male citizens are deeply interested in the world news, particularly the dispatches from Paris in regard to the length of women's skirts.

Formerly the complaint against teachers was that they were too old-maidish and now they find fault because they cause vacancies in the schools by getting married so quickly. Anyway the teachers who get married should not feel that their long courses of educational study are wasted, as they will be very helpful in training their husbands.

A CONDITION, NOT A THEORY

It is a condition, not a theory, that women have been given the right to vote. They have the right. They will never lose it. Hence there is and will be responsibility to perform all the publiceduties this fall to them as citizens. To the waste basket must go all masculine ideas in opposition to women's participation in public affairs. They are full fledged citizens and must be accepted as such.

There is an important duty that rests upon women. They must consign to the waste basket at once and forever all echoes of by-gone and forgotten days. When men, expressing honest ambitions, disapproved the extension of the elective franchise to them, they were as honest in their views as were the men who advocated votes for women. If Democratic women expect to get anywhere in their party's councils, and emoluments, if they realize their responsibility in keeping this government out of the hands of white men, who thrive in the colored men's vote. they must not only vote, but they must vote for the candidates of that party which represents the bulk of the intelligence, education and wealth of the State of Maryland,

There need be no fear of the women of Somerset county. They want efficient schools. They want good roads. They want the wealth of the county safeguarded. They want their county government in the hands of capable and experienced officials. They are fully competent to do their own thinking and their own voting. They will think right and vote right if they vote the Democratic ticket.

$10,000,000 AID FOR VETERANS

Cross Provides Friendly Service of Many Kinds to Army of Disabled.

BULK OF WORK BY CHAPTERS

2,397 of These Are Helping Ex-Service Men Obtain Benefite U. S. Provides.

One field of Red Cross service alone, that of assisting disabled veterans of the World War, entails expenditures $4,000,000 greater than the aggregate receipts of the Annual Roll Call of 1920, the American Red Cross anneunces in a statement urging a widepread increase in membership at the Annual Roll Call, November 11 to 24. At the present time National Headquarters and the nation-wide chain of Chapters of the Red Cross is spending approximately $10,000,000 annually for the relief of disabled ex-service men and their families, while the agfregate receipts from last year's Roll Call were approximately $6,000,000. It is in the 2,289 of the 3,600 Red Cross Chapters Which still are helping olve the veteran's problem of adjusting himself to a normal civilian status hat the greater part of the cost of this pervice is borne. Of the total sum ipent for reterans' relief last year, National Headquarters expended a total of more than $2,600,000, while the remaining disbursement of approximately $7,000,000 represents the contribution of Chapters in this countrywide effort to assist the Government n providing the aid sorely needed by these men and their families.

An Ever Expanding Problem That the problem of the disabled service man is ever-expanding and fore 1925, is the assertion of well-informed Government officials and that 2.397 Red Cross Chapters regard it as their most important work is evidence that the expansion is in nowise confined to a particular section but is, on the contrary, nation-wide. At the end of the fiscal year, June 30, 1921, there were 26,300 disabled service men in the 1,692 United States Public Health Service. Contract and Government Hospitals and Soldiers Homes, and that number is increasing at a rate of 1,000 a month.

Thousands of these men receiving medical treatment, compensation and wocational training from the Governent today, started their efforts to obtain them through the Red Cross Chapter. The Chapter, acting as the disabled man's agent in claims against a total of 104,000 students enrolled. the Government, informs the man as to the procedure necessary to gain for hint that which is provided him by Federal statute. His applications for compensation, medical treatment and training are properly filed with the aid of the Red Cross Chapter.

Many Forms of Assistance If there is delay before the man's claim is acted upon, the Red Cross Chapter lends the man money to meet the imperative needs of himself and als dependents. Most vital to the man's gaining full benefit from the Government's care is keeping his mind free from worry about his home. Keeping the veteran's family from hardship of every kind and informing him of its welfare is an other province of the Chapter, Free from fear on this score, the man's recovery and advancement usually is Byery month during the last year, the American Red Gross has given service of one kind or another to an average of 129,215 former service men and their families. An indication of the extent of the faith reposed in the Red Cross Chapter is to be found in the fact that there were 856,544 requests for friendly aid in the solution of personal problems.

448 Workers in Hospitals

While the man prior to entering Government care deals largely with the Chapter, afterward he comes into contact with the service provided by National Heafquarters. There are 448 Red Cross workers in the United States Public Health Service and contract hospitals and other institutions in which these men are being cared for, whose duty is to provide for his respection, help him with his compenis family; in short, meeting his every send outside of that provided by the Severnment. Thousands Aided by Instruction in Care of the Sick, Food Selection and First Aid.

How the American Red Cross guides thousands of persons to health is shown in a summary of the society's activities in the health field based upon the annual report for the last fiscal year. Through its Nursing Service, its Home Hygiene and Care of the Sick courses, nutrition classes, First Air classes, Life-Saving classes and Health Centers and in numerous other ways designed to acquaint masses of citizens with proper methods of living, the Red Cross carried its message of health into all parts of the country.

The work of the Red Cross during the war in its traditional field of nursing, furnishing the military and naval establishments of the nation with 19,-877 nurses, is well known. And there are today 37,787 nurses registered with the American Red Cross and subject to call in emergency. During the fiscal year, 1,551 Red Cross nurses were accepted for assignment to Government service, 388 by the Army and Navy and 1,168 by the United States Public Health Service.

In addition to the nurses enrolled by the Red Cross for Government service, the Red Cross itself employed a total of 1,348 public health nurses in the United States and Europe. By far the greatest number was employed in the United States, 1,257, while 81 were in foreign service.

Home Hygiene and Care of the Sick classes, giving thorough instruction in the proper care of the sick in instances where the illness is not so serious as to require professional nursing care, during the fiscal year numbered 5,179. A statistical picture of the Red Cross operations in this field follows: New classes formed during Classes completed during year.. 186 New students enrolled 2,341 Students completing course.... 2,013 In addition to the above, a total of 22,006 children were given instruction in the proper selection and preparation of foods.

Through its 260 Health Centers, the Red Cross reached 90,252 persons. In these Health Centers, 4,015 health lectures were given and 780 health exhibits held.

In the United States last year, 75,-489 persons were killed and 8,500,000 injured in industrial accidents. To prevent this unormous waste the Red cross held 5,100 first aid classes with

To help overcome conditions of acute distress in five famine stricken provinces of Northern China, where millions of persons were affected by an unprecedented shortage of food, the American Red Cross during the last Ascal year spent more than $1,200,000, $1,000,000 of which was contributed di recty by National Headquarters and the remainder by various groups interested in the welfare of China.

Through the wide relief operations thus made possible it is estimated that more than 600,000 familie sufferers were saved from starvation.

To the end that similar prompt relief measures by the organization may always be possible the Red Cross is asking continued support by the American people by universal renewal of membership at the Annual Red Cross Roll Call, November 11 to 24.

The method of relief employed by the American Red Cross in its operations in China was particularly effective, for in addition to saving hundreds of thousands of lives it provided China with more than 900 miles of permanent roads that are sorely needed to prevent a recurrence of famine. At one time the Red Cross employed 74,000 Chinese workmen, paying them in food for themselves and dependents, this food being brought in from Manchuria and else where.

850 DISASTER DEATH TOLL FOR OME YEAR

Red Cross Gives $1,871,000 Relief When 65,000 Families Are Made Homeless.

Forty-three disasters, resulting in the death in the United States of persons and the injury of 2,500 called for emergency relief measures the expenditure of $1,871,000 by the American Red Cross during the fiscal year ending June 30, 1921, says an announcement based upon the forthcoming annual report of the Red Cross. These disasters caused property damage estimated at $30,000,000, affected sixty-seven communities and rendered 65,000 families homeless.

The year's disasters were of varying types, including several which previously had never been thought of as falling within that classification. The Red Cross furnished relief in seventeen fires of magnitude, five floods, seven tornadoes or cyclones, one devastating storm, three explosions, including the one in Wal street; one building accident, typhoid epidemics, the most serious be ing that at Salem, Ohio, which fected 9 per cent of the population one smallpox epidemic, in the republic of Haiti; one train wreck, the race right at Tulsa, Okla.; the famine in China. emergency relief in famine among the Indians of Alaska, the grasshops plague in North Dakota and an earthquake in Italy.

Pueblo Most Serious

By far the most severe of the disasters in the United States during the period covered by the Red Cross report was the Pueblo Sood early in June, 1921. The rehabilitation problem confronting the Bed Gross in Pueblo was one of the most difficult in recent years. When the first news of the horror was flashed throughout the country, the American Red Cross National Headquarters responded with a grant of $105,000 for relief work. Governor Shoup of Colorado, appear clating the long and successful experience of the Red Cross in organishing disaster relief work, placed the tire responsibility for the administration of relief in its hands.

In response to appeals from President Harding, Governor Shoup and other governors of western states and through local chapters of the Bed Cross and other community organizations, public-spirited citizens brought the total contributed for Pueblo's rehabilitation to more than $325,000.

The terrible havoc wrought by the flood waters is a matter of recogn.

More than 2,300 homes were affected and 7,801 persons were left homeless. Estimates of $500,000 as an absolute minimum for rehabilitation were made by Red Cross officials in charge of the ble in that relief workers of the R Cross were on the scene twenty m utes after the disaster occurred. race riot at Tulsa also was unique disaster relief annals in that outsit of a small emergency petter fund on tributed by the Red Cross, the on relief measures outside the city consisted of the service of social worders, nurses and a trained executive whose object was to assist local fores in directing their own efforts.

In decided contrast with the previous year, only one tornado assumed the proportions of a major disaster. This occurred on April 15, in the boyder sections of Texas and Arkansas with the city of Texarkana as the center. The significant feature of this disaster relief work was the fact that it covered so much rural territory to make necessary a large number of relief workers.

The famine in China, necessitating relief expenditures totalling more than $1,000,000 by the American Red Cross was by far the most serious of the foreign disasters in which the Red Cross gave aid.

Builds Up Its Machinery

In connection with the administration of disaster relief measures, an increasing effectiveness on the part the Red Cross to deal with emergencles was manifested during the past year. In 828 Chapters of the American Red Cross there have been formed special committees to survey the resources of their respective communities and to be prepared in case of disaster. In others of the 3,402 active Chapters, a network of communication has been formed through which instantaneous relief may be dispatched to any part of the United States.

That its work in this field may be continued with ever greater effectiveness, the American Red Cross is appealing for widespread renewal of membership during its Annual Roll Call, to be conducted this year from November 11 to 24.

LIFE SAVING CORPS ENROLLMENT 10,000

Growth of Red Cross Life Saving Corps throughout the country continued unabated during the last fiscal year, a summary of the year's achievements by that Red Cross Seryice shows. There are now 160 Corps with a total membership of more than 10,000 members, of which 1,276 are sufficiently skilled in the work to act as examiners. Among the outstanding achievements of the Red Cross in this field during the last year was the organization at the United States Naval Academy, Annapolis, of what is perhaps the largest life saving corps in Outstanding among the items of the mestic budget is the appropriation $8,669,256 for work in behalf of the disabled ex-service man and his family. This appropriation represents the amount alloted to this work from National Headquarters only and does not take into consideration the millions being spent in chapters for relief of the World War veteran. It is in the chapter that the greater amount is spent in meeting this obligation of the Red Cross, the announceint continues, as manifested by figes of the fiscal year 1920-1921 when res' approximately $9.000. 000, of which $2,692,094 represented the disbursement of National Headquarters while the remainder was the chapters' contribution to this field of Red Cross service.

For Red Cross participation in the joint effort to relieve famine conditions in Russia, for final work in the China famine, for Junior Red Cross and other overseas activities including the closing of the old general relief program in Europe $4,978,000 is made available.

In announcing the national budget, the Red Cross makes it clear that the figures do not include chapter expenditures or place any cash estimate on the invaluable service of volunteers in chapters.

Making Extraordinary Mileage a Certainty~

Car Owners want more rubber on the tread where the wear is hardest; more gum between cord plies to perfect a resilient and powerful carcass. And they want a scientifically constructed Non Skid tread with all angles and contacts to resist skidding and give sure traction. Firestone Cord Tires have met these demands of the car owners.

However, he gives his tires proper inflation. The tire in question is not yet out of service and has every indication of being audiciently strong for anevery indication or being audiciently strong for an-other retread. HE Ford worm-driven, One-Ton Truck with demountable rims and pneumatic tires, are dependable, as well as serviceable. This, probably more than any other factor, accounts for their popularity. There is no evidence so convincing as that which comes from long practical experience. Like the Ford car, the Ford One-Ton Truck -Ford-built throughout-has proven itself. In it are combined the Ford principles of simplicity, with strength, lowest first cost, lowest operating cost, durability.

In the city, on the farm, carrying its loads between cities everywhere you will find the Ford One-Ton Truck doing duty. Merchants, manufacturers, farmers, have come to know it as the truck of utmost service.

Funeral Of Marcus Jocelyn

The funeral services of Mr. Marcus Joselyn were held last Tuesday afternoon at his late home in Princess Anne conducted by the Rev. Dr. Walter Archbold. The remains were taken to Friendship Methodist Protestant Church where services were conducted by Rev. W. F. Dawson, paster of Antioch M. E. Church, of Princess Anne. Interment was in the churchyard ad-

Mr. Jocelyn was a native of the State of New York, and lived for a number of years in Vermont and Canada, where he was engaged in dairying. At the age of 16 years he joined the Union Army, being attached to a cavalry unit from New York. He came to Worcester county, Md., about 17 years ago. He came to Princess Anne three years ago. He is aurvived by a widow, Mrs. B. Jocelyn; and a daughter, Miss Hazel Jocelyn. He is also survived by a sister, Mrs. Julia C. Finch, of Sullivan county, New

Home Town Paper Week

November 7 to 12 has been set as "Subscribe for Your Home Town Paper Week." The purpose of the campaign is not only to induce residents of the small communities and the home town folks who are far from their native heath to subscribe for the home paper, but also to emphasize the important place the home newspaper plays in the life of its community.

Some persons, it is pointed out, have been inclined to belittle the place and function of the country newspaper. They have not realized that in reality school and all the rest to function better and more effectively. That it is a necessity if the town is to advance.

To Prevent Hog Cholera

A few suggestions at this time if carried out by the farmers will be of considerable value in preventing an outbreak of cholera. Should cholera or any other sickness which might be a suspected case of cholera make its appearance in your neighborhood or among your hoge, keep in mind the following:

1-Quarantine your farm, allowing no visitors to see your sick hogs. Treat this disease as any other contagious disease and use all means to prevent your neighbors obtaining cholera from your farm, or if it is in the neighborhood use all means to prevent this disease reach-

2-Have your hogs inoculated at once. at the first sign of sickness in your community or in your hogs. Do not delay, many hogs can be saved if treated in time. There are men in each community who will inoculate hogs. 3-Hogs dying from cholera or any other diseases must be burned or buried. It is against the law not to properly dispose of the bodies of hogs that have died. Hog pens, yards and runs having cholera hogs should be thoroughly dis-

4-The County Agent should be advised at once of any cases of sick hogs so that the farmers in the community ean be warned and proper measures taken to prevent the spread of this disease. The services of a government veterinarian can be obtained to assist in making a diagnosis and post mortem examination of hogs having cholera. Farmers by co-operating and keeping in mind these words—quarantine, sanitation and inoculation, will assist in preventing an outbreak of hog cholera, which is a preventable disease. Marriage Licenses

"Twasn't a happen-dead set purpose," from Tommy oracularly. "One grandpa, you see, was Leviticus, t'other one Andrew. The names were sort married to keep peace in the familles, as there was no chance of another Green boy. Leander came into the world fatherless, and the only son of an only son."

"H-m! Who wised you up so?" Helm demanded. It was Temmy who chuckled, replying: "Earned wisdom, doctor. Grandma Towle has been visiting us regularly all the year-what she hasn't told me of family matters could be written on your thumbnail and leave room for more."

"What meanness you two up to now?" Anne Saxton asked, coming behind them. "Talk of women gossips," she went on; "why, you beat a sewing circle without half trying. Always

"Shameful, I admit!" Anne said. with the least toss of a very nice head-one set well on handsome shoulders and massed all over with wavy Titian hair. Young looking for thirty, Tommy and the doctor, both highly eligible bachelors, had been rivals for her favor all of ten years. Hence the implication regarding Leander's widow. Anne understood it perfectly and laughed over it, inside. She was really fond of both men-so fond she sighed sometimes. "Why wasn't I born twins?" Nobody answering her, she decided it was part of the general grudge Fate bore all lone women with a pretty taste in mates. She

In the laugh that followed this sally she made a dignified retreat, her eyes withal twinkling wickedly, as she looked back at Tommy, and waved her hand to his fellow sinner. "What would you give to shake her hard? Hard as she deserves?" Helm demanded under breath. Tommy muttered something and walked away. In his heart he was saying: Almost as much as to kiss her. She is the very devil for aggravating youbut-we love her aggravations," "What struck you blind. Tommy known by the effects it produces.

Seasoned as he was Tommy started a little he had not meant so to lose his sense of everything Mrs. Taylorsometime Molly Dake had been a good pal, back in their remote youth. Sentiment had not touched them then nor ever. He had been the first to kiss the bride and wring Dan Taylor's hand at the wedding-moreover, he had sent the handsomest present of all, and been the favorite visitor throughout the five years of happy married life. So he was not loath to walk with her away from the dancing, find a cozy double seat, and after establishing her to her mind, and his own, say, patting her arm affectionately! "Molly-you were always a wise bird. Spill a little of it now for my benefit about-well, about-almost anything."

"Meaning Anne," Mrs. Taylor said with a roguish smile. "Tommy Barton, you are the blindest idiot livingalways excepting old Joe Helm. "Who's been telling you?" Tommy interrupted. She frowned, but merrily, answering: "Leander-of course." And-actually he prides himself on not running after her-told me tonight his wife could never have it thrown up to her that she was wearing Anne Saxton's old shoes."

"That reminds me to ask: What are your intentions regarding him?"-Tommy again interrupted.

"Only to tolerate him while my visit here lasts," Mrs. Taylor flung back. "You see unless I'm up to all the ins and outs of everybody, I'll be worse than a bull in a china shop. All the fools I know seem to be ready to stab each other in the back-or the front, or any old where. By help of Leander away safe."

"I see you want us to keep your memory green." Tommy giggled. Molly threatened him with her fan, then said, dropping her eyes: "Did you ever try making that wicked Anne jealous?"

Tommy shook his head, "Too dangerous!" to which the answer was, thoughts of inventive brains before "Fiddlesticks! Get busy and try itright now."

Poor Leander Green's nose was clean out of joint-to the delight of Grandma Green, who hated anything named Taylor, and to the disappointment of Grandma Towle, who had counted on the visiting widow to make Leander's fortune, as well as to put that foolish yellow-haired Sally Joyce clean out of his mind. Telephones, the extinguishers of countryside sociability, fell out of use-with so much doing one had to talk it over face to face. So there were dinings, and play parties, fish frys, and picnics galore, not to mention the big meeting at Harmony church, where an altar full of penitents yielded barely two converts. The rigidly plous said that was because of dancing-hops twice each week in Odd Fellows hall, to say nothing of smaller private performances. Altogether there had not been such stirrings about and excitement since Major Saxton, Anne's brother, ran for congress, and the district came within five hundred votes of making it unanimous.

This lasted a full month—then came a two days' lull. Just why, nobody knew. So the great news burst upon stunned ears when the local paper came out with the headline: "Matrimoney Rampant. All Victims Well Known and Highly Esteemed Residents of This and Neighboring Counties." Below, categorically, were names-Thomas Barton, Esq., of River Band, to Anne, only daughter of the late Gen. Therefore the business in which you would succeed is unimportant. The one thing to realize is that your motion along the right lines will make success a certainty.

You want success. It will be yours if you are willing to pay the price for it. And the price is hard work and the sacrifice of all your other wants.

All your habits have been formed by your mind. Most of these habits are waste habits which will never carry you anywhere. Your hard job will be to scrap them and form new habits.

It will be a task of severe discipline to get your mind to "work." But if you have the grit to tackle the job you will in a very short time be conscious of a sense of efficiency which will make easy the doing of the hardest things .- Chicago Herald and Examiner.

Pecularities of Human Body: A curious instance of the care and minuteness with which the human body is now studied, in the effort betmeeting of the Royal Society in London on "The Rapidity of the Nervous Impulse in Tall and Short Individuals." Even the difference in time required for a "nerve telegram" to Half those who read said: "Well! traverse the bodies of different persons is regarded as a matter of scientific importance. A series of observations has shown that the Jength of the nerves does affect the velocity with which an impulse passes between the brain and the extremities, and consequently that more time is needed if the path is long than if it is short. It follows that a short man should feel a step on his corns quicker than a tall man, but the difference is so slight that the offender has no better chance to escape in one case than

HAVE OLD CAVEMAN INSTINCT

Levers, in the Orient, Primitive in Their Methods of Demanstrating Affection.

There are all sorts of ways of expressing affection. The Mainichi, a Japanese journal, reports the case of a policeman at Hiroshima, who fell in love with a restaurant maid, and when she seemed cold endeavored to convince her of his passion, and mayhap light an answering flame by thrusting her in the calf of her leg. with his official sword. He might go further and issue a manual on how to make love, suggests our contemporary. The case of the policeman in question is doubtless a survival of atavism, being a relic of the good old days in the paleolithic age, when the cave man was wont to demonstrate his affection for his affinity by occasional raps on the damsel's head with a bludgeon, says the Shanghai Times.

The submagistrate of Chowghat in India has just disposed of an unusually interesting case in which two Nair women of Guruvuyur, mother and daughter, charged three Nair youths with having removed a portion of the roof of the complainants' house and dropped a carcass of a crocodile through the aperture into the room in which the younger woman slept. The motive alleged was revenge, because overtures of the accused had been rejected. An occidental would have taken laudanum or a Japanese swain would have committed harakiri. The Indian, however, showed an originality of conception worthy of a better object. Just imagine your feelings were you to see the dainty form of a hippopotamus issuing from your celling!

Genius and Success.

Genius is only the power of making continuous efforts. The line between failure and success is so fine that we scarcely know when we pass it; so fine that we are often on the line and do not know it. How many a man has thrown up his hands at a time when a little more effort, a little more patience, would have achieved success! As the tide goes clear out, so it comes clear in. In business sometimes prospets may seem darkest when really they are on the turn. A little more persistence, a little more effort, and what seemed hopeless failure may turn to glorious success. There is no failure except in no longer trying. There is no defeat except from within: no really insurmountable barrier save our own inherent weakness of purpose.-Elbert Hubbard.

Used Noah's Ark Plans.

No secret seems to have been made of the method of construction adopted by Noah in building his ark. On the contrary, the specifications are given mind is a machine which once set in | in detail in the Bible. Imitations of it have been attempted now and then in recent times. Thus, in the year 1609, a Dutch merchant named Peter Pansen built at Hoorn a ship on the same model, though not of corresponding size. It was 120 feet long, 20 feet broad and 12 feet deep. The vessel was found to be remarkably welladapted for freightage, and it is said would hold one-third more lading than other ships of like size without requiring more hands to work it. Much more recently several so-called "fleuten," or floats, were built after the model of the ark in Denmark.

Explains Cuckoo. Can the cuckoo justly be accused of that lack of parental duty which leads her to deposit her eggs in other birds nests? One is inclined to consider her less harshly when the circumstances are examined. Nature has ordained that to every hen cuckoo born there shall be five or six males. How is she to meet this dilemma, asks a writer in a contemporary? It would, he says, baffle the devices of the most domesticated wife to bring up a family while there are five or six husbands in the house. SELF-RELIANCE GOES BANKRUPT

Thin Blood Saps Energy Gude's Pepto-Mangan Rebuilds the Blood

Wrestling with a weakened condition of the blood is a desperate struggle. Thin, watery blood deprives the body of energy and causes a played out feeling not unlike utter exhuastion. A man with weak blood has not the full use of his powers. He lacks decision, and vacillates until he loses self-confidence. Some men, and women too, go fal-tering along for months scarcely realizing that they need Gude's Pepto-Mangan, the blood builder. But when they have taken it for a while, what a difference there is in the feelings! The old-time vigor and the red-blooded hue of good health return. The new rich blood gets to work, building, fortifying, lifting the spirit up to its normal standard. Physicians have prescribed Gude's Pepto-Mangan for years as a bloodbuilder. Druggists sell it in liquid and phere. The leaves break up the tablet form. Look for the name 'Gude's bon dioxide into its original elements, Pepto-Mangan" on the package. - Advertisement.

SAVE THE RACE FROM POISON

Work That Neture Has Ordained, for the Leaves Is Indiagonable to Humanity.

That we owe a big debt of gratitude to the old elm tree, and to the cinnamon rosebush, and even to the big pigweed that jeers at us from the corn rows, is driven home to us by Solita Solano in an article on the microscope in the American boy.

Every one learns, says the writer, that animals live through breathing in from the air pure oxygen and breathing out poisonous carbon dioxide. But how many ever stop to think where the poison goes after it is breathed out and where our fresh supply of oxygen comes from?

Leaves are four-fifths water and almost all the rest carbon. They get the carbon from the air, breathing it in through multitudes of tiny mouths. In one square inch of a lilac leaf there are 160,000 mouths. These origins take into the leaves of the world the 1.000,000 carloads of carbon dioxida that are passed daily into the atmoscarbon and oxygen. They retain the carbon and give us back pure oxygen in return. Thus they maintain a natural equilibrium; we owe our very existence to the trees and plants. Without the microscope we should never have known about the months of the leaves and what an all-impartant part they play in our lives.

WHEN THE FLESH "CREEPS"

Sensations of Fear and Horror Cause Progressive Contraction of the Erective Muscles.

When one is greatly frightened and impulses go out from the brain centers to the erector muscles the progressive contraction of the latter can be distinctly felt. This sensation commonly attends the emotions of fear and hot ror and is popularly described as a "creeping" of the flesh.

Impulses which pass out over the nerves from the brain affect various, muscles in addition to those attached to the roots of hairs. This fact accounts for the peculiar behavior of the the tenseness of the throat and the vocal cords and for the trembling of the hands, etc. A contraction of the muscular tissues controlling the blood vessels partly closes them and so shuts off the supply of blood to the skin.

This, of course, results in paleness. At the same time the numerous sweat glands in the skin are excited and pour forth an unusual amount of perspiration. This causes the often mentioned "cold sweat." In reality the skin is chilled, due to the coustriction of its arteries and capillaries. -Cleveland Plain Dealer.

What It Costs to Stop Train. An ordinary passenger locometive consumes a pound of fuel for every 52 feet it travels. Each unnecessary stop made with a heavy freight or passenger train represents a fuel loss of from 500 to 750 pounds of coal, depending on the weight of the train, the length of the stop and the grade conditions. A brakeline air leak on a train of 50 freight cars has been known to cause a loss of as much as 2,540 pounds of coal in a ten-hour period. The loss of coal each time a modern locomotive pops off for five minute's is about 75 pounds. If locomotive firemen were to save a little more than one shovelful of coal out of each ton used the total saving would be equal to nearly 1 per cent of all the coal handled. Floyd W. Parsons in the Bird Migration to Siberia.

World's Work,

With the autumn season comes the migration of birds. From Britain they migrate to Africa; in Australia the birds fly away to eastern Siberia. During the Australian winter the snow melts in Siberia and it becomes an elysium for birds from every country of the East. A few days after the snow has gone pansies, anemones, and dwarf roses appear in flower and the birds find a rich store of cranberries, crowberries, and Arctic strawberries for food. The inrush of birds into eastern Siberia at migration times is one of the most marvelous sights in the world; every pool left by the melting snow is black with them. The Australian birds have the longest journey to make of all, coming from S.COO miles away.

WHIPEN WAS JAPANESE NAME

Fortuguese Said to Have Been Respensible for the Medern Corrupted Spelling.

The English word "Japan" and the Japanese "Nihon" or "Nippon" are alike corruptions of "Yih-pen," the Chinese pronunciation of two characters literally meaning "sun origin"; that is, "the place the sun comes from," a name given to Japan by the Chinese on account of the position of the archipelago to the east of their own country.

From Chinese Yih-pen, says the Mast and West News, the Japanese derived the present name Nihon. which was officially adopted, according to the history, in A. D. 670. Bethat time the namel native des ignation of the country was Yamato, properly the name of one of the central provinces. Yamato is the name still preferred in poetry and belleslettres.

The English name Japan seems to have originated with the Portuguese, who spelled the Chinese Yih-pen Japon, the letter J being silent or simler to H according to their language. This is the way the Spanish and the Portuguese still pronounce Japan. From "Japon" came the English Ja-

Hindu Barber Kept Busy.

The Hindu haircutter is an individvial of immense importance in India, and as his duties are many, he is in constant demand. At a birth the Hindu barber is the man employed to carry the eventful news to the various family relatives, whilst at a funeral he shaves the heads of the livingand the dead.

The Hindu haircutter has no shop, and, unlike our barbers, he displays ne poles, signs or symbols. He can be seen strolling along near the bazars with a small bundle under his arm or carrying a little bag.

At all religious rites he is to be observed; he bores the girls' ears and noses for the various rings which are worn; and, in fact, the busy Hindu barber will undertake almost any surgical operation.

Besides births and deaths, he attends marriages. At a wedding this busy barber is "best man."

A discovery which, it is asserted, will form one of the fundamental sources for a history of the Roman empire under Augustus has been made by Dr. Oliverio, an Itaian savant, in Cyrene, the ancient Greek colony of Africa, founded in the Seventh century. A Lendon Morning Post correspondent writing from Cyrene, says that excavations at Bengasi (the ancient Berenice, which stood in the midst of the gardens of the Hesperides, near the mouth of the River Lethe) have unearthed a block of marble eight feet long, one face of which bears a flawless Greek inscription of more than 100 lines. It is the translation of a letter from Augustus on the government and administration of justice in Cyrenaica, giving a wonderful insight into the financial and judicial conditions of the country at that

Gold And Jewels Lie In Hidden Caves And In Hulks Of Sunken Galleons Beneath Ocean Billows.

There is at least a billion dollars lying around in various parts of the world in gold and silver and jewels waiting for the first comer to pick it up. But don't get excited. You gan't pick it up. Thousands of treasureseekers have tried and failed.

There is no secret about where this enormous fortune is located. For example, the Seaman's Journal prints a list of treasures trove which includes the Forentia, flag ship of the Spanish Armada, sunk off the west coast of Scotland with $15,000,000 in gold in

The Spanish galleons scuttled in Vigo Bay to avoid capture by the English in 1702 were loaded with gold, silver- and jewels valued at $120,-000,000. Benito Bonito, last of the great pirates, planted $60,000,000, looted from the west coast of South America, on Cocos Island 300 miles off Panama. Eighteen expeditions have fitted out openly and many more secretly to seek this treasure. Millions are believed to have been buried on the Bay Islands off Honduras by Francois Olonois, the French free-

Many More Listed

In addition to all the treasure aunk by German submarines in the great war, the Seaman's Journal lists the following: On Alboran Island, a rock in the Mediterranean, lies $5,000,000 in gold buried by a pirate crew of the "Young Constitution," when cornered by a British gunboat in 1831; the Black Prince," loaded with $3,000,000 in gold to pay the British soldiers, was sunk by Russian gunfire at Sebastopol; the East Indian "Grosvenor" went down off St. John's Cape Colony with $5,000,000 aboard.

On the island of Mauritius is buried $150,000,000 in gold, silver and precious stones, pirate loot from the French and English ships which in turn had looted India; and on a little island in the Spanish Main lies $1,200, 000 in gold hidden by the French pirate, Latrobe, one hundred years ago, and another treasure estimated at $6,000,000 is buried near by, while a pirate hoard of $5,000,000 lies on an island in the Gulf of St. Lawrence.

Seventy Turkish vessels sunk in the famous fight of Navarino in October, 1827, by the Anglo-French-Russian fleet carried $5,000,000. "Oom Paul" Kruger had something like $4,000,000 when he fled from South Africa. Some declare it was lost in the wreck of the "Zululand" in Delagoa bay; others say it is buried in the Transvaal mountains, Lying 110 feet below the surface of Lake Naomi are two galleys belonging to the Roman emperors Tiberius and Galigula, which contain gold, jewels and art treasures worth at least $5,000,000.

Lost Spanish Gold

Three Spanish ships sunk by Ad miral Blake off Cadiz, Spain, hold $5,000,000 in gold. The Spanish treas ure ships foundered in Santa Crus bay Canary Islands, contained $10,000,000 On West Indian islands lies $5,000,000 buried by the daring Captain Kid, most notorious of all pirates. The $2,000,000 hoard of Captain Melville, Australian bushwhacker, is hidden in the bush of Australia. The treasures and looi of Attila the Hun, $50,000,000 in all lie buried somewhere under the River Danube.

There can be no doubt that these treasures exist. But whether under thirty fathoms of water or as dry as an undertaker's eye, they are out of reach. However, there is treasure that can be picked up with little effort It is right at your hand; in fact, it is part of your own pay. All you have to do is save it by investing it in Government Savings Securities. The hundred you can have by saving and safe investment may not sound so in teresting as the million you cannot touch, but it is a lot more useful. You can get your hands on !t.

Bobbie's Preference.

Bobbie's mother had a terrible time trying to keep a satisfactory nurse for her small son. It was quite necessary that she have one, as she was a young author rapidly acquiring recognition throughout the country. One day when the nurse failed to come and Bobbie saw how perturbed his mother was over the situation, he went up to her, put his arms around her, and said: "Muvver, I wish you would play with me and hire a nurse to write your books."

Izaak Walton.

Izaak Walton is a name held in sweet remembrance by thousands who love the outdoor life, and he is so remembered by his book, "The Compleat Angler, or Contemplative Man's Recreation." Although angling, or fishing is the subject, the writer goes beyond it, and gives expression to many fine thoughts respecting streams and fields and flowers. It is the work of a kind and gentle soul alive to the beauties of nature.

Expression Traced to Gaelic.

The expression "son of a gun" is quite common in South Wales. It is thought by some that the word "gun" is derived from the original Gaelic "gunna" (modern Walsh "gwn"), meaning a bowl; if so, the expression "son of a gun" is a fragment of old Celtic mythology, the bowl or caldron in both Irish and Welsh mythology being the source of and origin of em-

THE MAN AND THE MACHINE

Modern industry, with highly developed machinery, develops many almost automatic tasks. People can learn to operate many factory machines in a few days or weeks. The only thing to do thereafter may be to put the material in and take it out and the only excellence to be gained is speed. Work of that kind is not so developing, either mentally or mechanically, as the labors of the old time factory worker who had to use his wits to operate his cruder tools.

The old time mechanic grew more intelligent and resourceful every day of his life. The modern automatic machine worker must have exceptional ambition to incite him to self improvement. His work frequently has so much sameness that he feels the necessity of more diversions and excitement in his leisure hours. Under conditions since the war many men doing that kind of work have had high pay and short hours

There is a tendency among such workers, if they have no families to support. to spend all their money in sporting life as a means of breaking the dull monotony of their machine tasks. THE PUBLIC'S LAVISH TASTE

The people still complain about the high price of meat, and at the same time the meat men report that the general public continues to demand the finest cuts from the carcass.

The old timers that built up this country lived in a time of cheap meat. Yet they knew how to use the cheaper portions. There were many days even in those inexpensive times when the family had soup or hash for dinner. It was good enough to enable them to work their laborious 10 or 12 hour days but our eight hour folks must have something more tasty. No wonder that business drags when there is so much lavish taste and so little economy.

THE ADVANCE IN LIBERTY BONDS

Liberty bonds today are worth on the market a total of $1,250,000,000 more than they were some months ago. This will do something to remove a sore spot from many people's minds.

When the plain man, who knows little of investments, went up to his bank a year or so ago and found he could only get around $85 for his $100 bond, he felt the ground caving in around him. It tended to upset his confidence in his country.

Many people felt that the government at all costs should have taken steps to bring those bonds back to par. But the natural course of events will bring them back all right. When they cross par it

FALLING LEAVES

Yet the philosopher can reply that the natural as the sinking of the body into slumber. Every bit of the substance of each leaf still exists just the same, After mingling with the earth, it again rises and enters into the composition of some useful plant and lives its life over again in some other form.

People who are less sensitive to impressions do not find the falling of the leaves melancholy. They see that the tree is stripping itself for the conflict ant and safe to take. with winter winds and cold, a period during which it will lay in reserves of strength and get ready for the growth of another year. WHAT THE TELEPHONE HAS DONE

There are now around 10,000,000 telephones in use in this-country, the increase for the past year having been Se 562,000. It does not seem many years ago when it was a sign of wealth and luxury for a man to have a telephone in his home. Many of the newspaper fel- D lows can remember the vast exercise in Sa leg muscle that took place during that | F: period when you had to walk all over a city to collect the news about a church

While the widespread use of the telephone promotes a good deal of idle gossip, yet it makes it infinitely easier to get business done and to organize co munity movements,

Formerly if you wanted to arouse terest in any public cause you had to trump around from store to store : nd house to house. The effort was so great that most people shrank back appall of and community movements languished. The marvelous development of civic progress during the past 10 years is due about as much to the telephone as any one thing. It has become 10 times easier through this means to secure the co-operation of a mass of people.

> By another freak, fruit crops, almost in a world-wide sense, met havoc from cold in a season which has set new records everywhere for solar heat. This paradox was occasioned by the fact that last February the sun got at its work of bringing spring weeks in advance of normal, and trees and shrubs responded by budding out and finally coming into flower and bloom by March in nearly all areas where fruit is grown. Frosts could not be averted on all the nights, however, and this year the United States will produce about 100, 000,000 bushels of apples, against 224,-000,000 bushels in 1920. Only the orchards of the Pacific Coast, Northern New England and Northern New York es-

Cotton, however, suffered greatly, and the Agricultural Department experts assign the weather as perhaps the principal cause for a 50 per cent. reduction in output.

Thanksgiving Day Observance

"Poverty is here, crime is here, but the glory of our land is that some one cares. Some one is trying to relieve their distress and remedy their cause." This, from the pen of Calvin Coolidge, Vice-President of the United States, is part of a brief Thanksgiving statement published under his name in the Delineator. As usual, Mr. Coolidge, having something to say, goes ahead and says it. The Vice-President adds:

"Not merely in these outward accomplishments is found the cause for Thanksgiving. There must be added the spirit of the Pilgrims, the spirit that caused them to rejoice in the midst star wears for breakfast and why; what they do in the navy and when, etc., 30 years his writings have been read more widely than those of perany American author, but his se has not been signed to them.

He is Wells Hawks of New York, formerly press agent of Ringling Brothers' circus; publicity representative of several of the leading motion picture corporations; personal representative for 12 years of Charles Frohman, the theatrical producer, and during the war in charge of publicity for the navy.

Mr. Hawks, a lieutenant commander in the naval reserve, organized and for three terms commanded the S. Rankin Drew post of the American Legion, composed of actors and actresses, movie and legitimate, publicity and newspaper men of New York city. He has been active in the formation of the American Legion film service of national headquarters, which is supplying projection machines and films to Legion posts of the country.

KNOWN AS FAIRY GODMOTHER

State President of Minnesota Women's Auxillary, Mrs. Sandy Hamilton, Is Warm Friend of Veterans.

With a post of the American Legion of Minnesota named in honor of her son who fell in France, Mrs. Sandy Hamilton, Maneapolis, who has just taken office as state president of the Women's Auxiliary of the Legion, has adopted all the wounded veterans of her state in memory

During the year that she was chairmen of the Legion Auxiliary hospitalization committee Mrs. Hamilton spent practically her entire time in visiting and ministering to disabled men in Asbury and Thomas hospitals. The unfortunate service men came to know her smile and her tenderness and to them she was "our fairy godmother." Reading the report of her work before the recent state convention of the auxiliary, Mrs. Hamilton told of the loneliness and suffering of the brave men who had sacrificed their health for their country. When she had finished there was not a dry eye. In the big meeting hall.

TO ATTEND LEGION MEETING

Marshal Foch, Noted Military Leader, Plans to Honor Convention With His Presence.

The governors of Missouri and Kaneas, the mayors of Kansas City, Kan., and Missouri, and a federation of the principal clubs and societies of those cities joined in a formal expression of the honor they feel on the occasion of the visit Marshal Foch will make to the United States in October to attend the opening of the third nationel convention of the American Legion at Kansas City.

A memorial to this effect was presented the marshal at the recent dedication of the Flirey monument in France by Charles W. Bartlett of Kansas City, chairman of the distinguished visitors committee of the convention. Mr. Bartlett accompanied the Legion pilgrimage to France for this purpose.

The marshal asked Mr. Bartlett to convey to the people of Missouri and Kansas how deeply he was touched by this honor and to assure them of

Carrying On With the American Legion

Despite the long trip, the Massachusetts department of the American Legion will send two large bands to the annual convention of the service organization at Kansas City, this fail.

A downtown rest room for the convenience of farmers' wives in the city for supplies and for city wives on shopping tours has been opened in Drumright, Okla., by the Women's Auxiliary of the American Legion post

Because they considered the post a community asset and worthy of recognition, citizens of the town of Waitsburg, Wash,, recently purchased a hotel building and presented it to Samuel W. Southard post of the American Legion for use as a clubhouse.

When heavy rains washed out the road to the village cemetery, the American Legion post of Natches, Wash., called upon its farmer members. Each man brought a team of etc. For the last horses, gave two days' work and a new road was constructed.

> Advocating a playground for the kiddles of the community members the Saylessville (Rhode Island) post of the American Legion brought the matter to completion by leveling the ground and putting the equipment in place with a saving of several hundred dollars to the city.

The athletic tastes of the young war veterans of Oklahoma were evidenced recently when the state department asked each post of the American Legion what games they wanted at a state athletic meet. Horse-shoe pitching contests led the list, with tennis and golf poor seconds.

Ex-service patients in hospitals of Oregon have been extended free membership in the American Legion of the state, the posts waiving post dues and the department paying state and national fees, that the disabled may receive copies of the official magazine out among Jean Paul's "Love increases and the benefits of membership.

John Broadhead Wallace, son of the secretary of agriculture, and Miss Margaret Powell, Cedar Rapids, Ia., recently married, have been receiving the official congratulations of Argonne post, the American Legion, Des Moines, of which Mr. Wallace is a vice commander.

By besting a walking record which had been undisturbed for years, George N. Brown, Endicott, N. Y., won a wager of $100 which he divided equally between two American Legion posts of his vicinity. Mr. Brown holds the world's championship pedestrian Chimes installed in every city and town of America, to play "The Star-Spangled Banner" each evening, would be a most fitting memorial to the war dead, according to a resolution introduced into the recent convention of the American Legion of North Carolina, seeking support of the state in the project.

After having achieved distinction in Pittsburg, Pa., by being the first sailor married in an American Legion post, P. C. Rose was stranded in Albany, N. Y., in the middle of his honeymoon because he couldn't collect his bonus money. Members of the Albany Legion helped him to complete the wedding trip.

Insurance against rain, high winds and liability to spectators, is being sought by the Kansas City Flying club in preparation for the annual convention of the American Legion there this fall. Applications for the "freak" policies have been made to American companies and to Lloyd's of London.

Catarrhal Deafness Cannot Be Cured by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure catarrhal deafness, and that is by a constitutional remedy. Catarrhal Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, Deafness is the result. Unless the inflammation can be reduced and this tube restored to—its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever. Many cases of deafness are caused by catarrh, which is an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces. Hall's Catarrh Medicine acts thru the blood on the mucous surfaces of the system.

Writer Points Out How Information of Great Value to Community Could Be Spread.

What are the "points" of cities? How shall we compare one with another, and, allowing for geographic, climatic and economic limitations, describe the curve of possible ascent for the one we love best? Here is where we must establish standards. Vaguely we recognize these types in our common reference to a 'factory town," a "mining town" or a "county, seat" and so on. But, as to a factory town or any other kind that we want to know about and improve, how does it compare with others?

We need a little book on "What Is a Oity?" It should be a cheap little book that everybody can buy, a simple little book that everybody can understand, a sort of civic primer.

Suppose we live, as so many of us do, in an ordinary, medium-sized town, Our "city book" should inform us that a normal town, with the number of inhabitants our town has, should have such and such functions, adding to the simple requirements of the small village those other and more varied functions which the larger population of our town requires and can support. Such a list, for our ordinary mediumsized town, might run somewhat as follows:

Smithy, store, postoffice, school, church, dressmaker, milliner, barber, drug store, moving pictures, court house, jail, fire company, hotel, hall.

These are not placed in any dogmatic order of importance, or arranged with great care.

A "pattern town" should be described suggesting the income that should be derived from legitimate taxation of its number of citizens, and showing just what advantages a town with such an income deserves and requires .- Oharlotte Perkins Gilman in the Century Magazine.

MAY BE PROUD OF RECORD

Massachusetts Town Has Shown What Can Be Done When Management is intelligent

In contrast with the situation, at Block Island, where the town came near bankruptcy, is that of Middleton, Mass.

The entire permanent debt of Middleton at the present time is $7,000, of which $1,600 is due in notes which will soon be paid, leaving a balance of $5,400. Here is what the town has to show for the amount and may be

First, and one of the most important, are excellent schools. There is also a fine, free public library, well equipped with the best of books. There is public water with good hydrant service and with which a large portion of the townspeople can be supplied. Electric lights are in all the central streets and a large number of homes are equipped with them. There are good railroad accommodations. Two new bridges have been built over the Ipswich river. The improvements, with the exception of the schools, have all been made during the last 20 years, and are all paid for with the exception of $5,400.

In addition to the above the state and county have expended on the streets in town, under the small town act, for macadam roads, $150,000.-Boston Globe.

City Library and Farmer. How pleasant relations are maintained between the farmers in the region of Stockton, Cal., and the attendants at the city library of that place, and how the farmers draw heavily upon the facilities of the library to their pleasure and profit, is told in a bulletin of the Department of Agriculture. The library sends out traveling libraries to communities, and it also encourages the country residents to make direct use of the main library. There are 30 communities and 22 school districts that are receiving county free library service from Stock. ton, and the main library has a direct country circulation of 6,281 volumes. -Rochester Democrat and Chronicle.

Photographing From Airplane. In view of the facility with which objects many feet under water can be photographed from an airplane it is possible that the navigation of such a river as the Mississippi, with its shifting bars, may hereafter be made safe by monthly or weekly mapping from the air. In earthquake regions, such as southern Italy and Japan, the changing coast lines, shallows and safe harbors can easily be photographed from the air after each fresh shock, thus keeping navigation open and safeguarding the lives of mariners.

Calgary Insures Employees.

Group insurance to the amount of $1,500,000 has been taken out by the city of Calgary to cover employees in case of death, sickness, accident, or any other cause. Calgary is at present the largest city in Canada providing this form of protection for employees. A feature of the group plan is that many otherwise uninsurable persons are thus included.

ightless From Shell, He Studies Mechanical Business Management. With Help of Wife.

Chicago.—To Corporal Christian. Poplsen of the United States marines his discharge from an army hospital in February, 1919, meant beginning life anew—the life of a blind man. In two years' time he has completed that readjustment and today Poulsen is in the fuel and feed business in Chicago, does a full day's work every day and, with the aid of his wife, is taking a correspondence course in business management.

Poulsen was with the Sixth regiment of the marines when a few thousand troops were chosen from the vanguard of the American army to help block the German advance on Paris is June, 1918. The Sixth marines gave their aid to the allies, but among these who were left on the battlefield was Corporal Poulsen, fully conscious, but bleeding and sightless from the burst of a high explosive shell, Poulsen was wounded just one year to a day from the date he enlisted. He has been totally blind ever since. Pollowing his discharge from the army hospital, Poulsen entered Evergreen, the Red Cross school for the blind, in Baltimere. There he took courses in typewriting, Braille, Engifsh, civics and learned to make small useful articles. He was getting $80 a month from his war risk insurance, but wanted to earn his own living in A year later his father offered to give him work in his feed store in Ohicago. Young Poulsen entered the office and began to learn to take orders and direct deliveries. Today he is a full partner in his father's business. Now he feels that he needs still further technical training in business and has begun a correspondence course under the federal board for vecational education. He is studying this course in his spare time, with the aid of his wife, whom he married last year and who now acts as his reader.

Commander of Department of New Mexico Knows About Professions Represented in Membership.

er, motion picture operator, bookkeeper and lawyer, J. W. Chapman, Gallup, New Mexico, came well qualified to his present post as commander of the state's department of the American Legion. He knows a little about every profession represented in the state's membership.

Covering all of the United States and most of Mexico in his travels. Mr. Chapman settled down to the practice of law in New Mexico just before America entered the World war. When she did, he volunteered as a mechanic and chauffeur and spent two months in an army motor shop. Then he was transferred to a balloon school, but before he could get acquainted with the blimps they moved him again, this time to the company's personnel headquarters. He was in an officers' training camp when the armistice came.

Entering Legion work early, Mr. Chapman was a member of the committee which wrote the non-political clause into the organization's constitution. He boils down his biography to this: "I am a member of the A. F. & A. M., B. P. O. E., and K. of P. I am an American by birth, training and inclination; an Episcopalian by faith and a prohibitionist by law. I sing, dance, play the piano and am married. What else could I ask?"

TITLES OF SOME NOTABLES

General Douglas Haig, "Earl and Field Marshal"; Beatty, "Amiral of the Fleet.

Decorations and titles won by distinguished British and Canadian guests at the third annual convention of the American Legion in Kansas City, October 31, November 1 and 2, are testimony of their notable records during the World war.

General Douglas Haig bears the titles of earl and field marshal and has the right to use the following letters, indicating decorations, after his name: "K. T., G. C. B., O. M., G. C. V. O., K. C. I. E."

Admiral Beatty's official designation is "Admiral of the Fleet, the Right Honorable Earl Beatty, G. C. B. O. M., G. C. V. O., D. S. O."

The correct manner to address the commander of the Canadian corps in France is "Gen. Sir William Currie, G. C. M. G., K. C. B., K. C. M. G., C. B., Principal of McGill university." The participation of Great Britain and her dominions in President Harding's world conference on disarmament is believed by national convention officials to remove all doubts in regard to the presence of the distinguished guests at the Legion national convention.

The Verb Salvage.

The verb "to salvage" did not pass out of existence with the disbanding of the A. E. F. Its synonym, "to manage," is still recognized as part of the language of Legionnaires. George R. Anderson post of the American Legion at Ardmore, Okla., recently "salvaged" a library of 2,000 volumes. As in the army days when anything from a mess kit to a five-ton truck might have been acquired mysteriously with the simple explanation "we managed for it" or the equally expressive "we salvaged it," the post acquired the library. During the war the people of Ardmore had collected a large number of books to be shipped to army camps for use of soldiers, But after the volumes were collected and boxed they were never shipped. They were discovered recently in a storeroom by a member of the Legion post and it did not take long to salvage

THE LEGION IS HIS HOBBY

Former National Vice Commander Also Devotes Much Attention to

Labor Affairs. Time does not hang heavily for George L. Berry, president since 1907 of the International Printing Pressmen and Assistants' Union of North America founder of Press men's Home Tenn., and until recently national vice commander of the American L'egion.

Mr. Berry has two hobbies: his union and his Legion. A veteran of the Spanish-American war, he served, overseas in the World war with the railroad transportation corps. He was in Paris, France, when the first caucus of service men, out of which grew the American Legion, was held, and he attended and was heard from. Being familiar with foreign industrial conditions, he represented the American Federation of Labor at foreign trade union conferences, and after the war was appointed to the government industrial commission sent to allied nations to co-ordinate industrial conditions with those of the United States. His Legion activities now concern themselves with his role as a national speaker for the service organization.

ALT WATER MORE BUOYANT

Post That Is Well Known to Mariners May Be News to Some of Our Readers.

A boy dropped a ball into a small hale and could not get it out, so he wed water into the hole, thinking the would float to the surface. As the hell was slightly heavier than the water it remained on the bottom. Then the boy thought of mixing salt with the water, since he knew salt water would fleat heavier objects than fresh water would. He tried this and was rewarded with the floating ball.

This particular fact is demonstrated at the mouths of rivers. Objects rolling along the bottom of a river, too beavy to come to the top, will rise when carried out to sea. The rule also applies to boats. A ship with a cargo on the sea will sink sometimes a foot or two on entering a fresh water port. If the leaves the port with her cargo, the will rise on entering the ocean. For that reason a ship may be loaded apparently too heavily at a pier and still be all right on the waves.

In building a dam, the fact of salt water's being heavier than fresh must be remembered.—Kansas City Star.

They Serve Humanity. The man or woman who sits all day before the microscope is serving humanity as truly as did any soldier in the trench. An article in The American Bey entitled "Sixteen-Cylinder Eyes" makes this pregnant comment on the work of the scientific laboratories:

"Science and the microscope are chiefly concerned now with the alteration of the serum of the human blood that renders a person immune from disease and the discovery and isolation of germs of other diseases as yet undiswered. All over the world there are men and women engaged in this research work in thousands of laboratories. Day after day they sit before their microscopes hoping to trace some sly microbes to their lairs and make their extermination possible. Through this wonderful instrument humanity has been freed from untold misery and an incalculable number of deaths and through its revelations of the future may come undreamed of secrets concerning the very nature of matter and even life itself.

MEN ALSO FOND OF GOSSIP

Masculine Tea Hounds Have Sharp Tengues, is Assertion Made by English Feminine Writer,

From time immemorial the word gossip has been associated with the feminine gender, writes Rosalie Neish in the London Standard. It is women who are supposed to take away characters, start rumors, and tear reputations into shreds. It may be true that women like talking about one another, and sometimes not over goodnaturedly, but are men entirely free from the gossip habit?

What about the club? Are the subjects always serious, and do not personalities form a large part of the conversation? I know a good many club men, and I have often heard with amazement what they have said about one another.

There was a time when men were supposed not only to condemn but actually to dislike a cup of afternoon tea. Perhaps there was a time when men did not gossip, and the tea and the talk have become popular together. But what about Pepys's diary? Here were really some choice bits of gossip! If, however, you do not believe that men gossip nowadays, ask one in to tea-we will say a barrister, for example. Begin to praise one or two K. C.'s and some of the judges, and see what he will say about them; or ask a politician what he thinks of another politician, or a soldier what he thinks of some of the generals-you can apply this test to all the trades and professions.

A very pretty marriage was solemn-Outten, of Walnut street, Pocomoke City, last Wednesday at 1.30 p. m., Outten, became the bride of Mr. Malcolm Dennis Walker, son of Mr. Theo. A. Walker, of Princess Anne.

The ceremony was performed by Rev. E. W. McDowell, pastor of the Methodist Episcopal Church. The wedding march was played by Mrs. Ida Smullen Lambden. Miss Ida Howard sang "At Dawning" and at the conclusion of the ceremony "I Love You Truly." The bride was attired in a traveling suit of midnight blue duvet de laine with hat and gloves to match and carried a bouquet of bride's roses and lilly of the valley.

The home was appropriately decorated with cut flowers and potted plants and lighted with shaded candles. The ring ceremony was performed before an improvised altar of potted plants and cut flowers. SUNDAY-SCHOOL WORKERS MEET SEVERAL PROPERTY TRANSFERS

Somerset Association Holds Sessions In Methodist Episcopal Church

Pastors and Sunday-School workers from all over the county were in attendance at Antioch Methodist Episcopal Church last Wednesday when an allday convention was held by the Somerset County Sunday School Association. The speakers included the State staff of the association and several others. Much interesting data in connection with Sunday School work in the county was made public by the speakers.

General Secretary Abner W. Brown cited that there is now one supervisor to 100 teachers in the day schools and that we spend $1 for Sunday Schools to Christy and others, land in Lawson's $172 for public schools and that while there are 4,000 officers and teachers in the Sunday Schools on the Eastern Shore, there is no supervision. Unemployment in Calvert county is estimated at 25 per cent. and in Washington county at 15 per cent., although in the latter county, the report from County Agent S. E. With the exception of Somerset, Calvert and Washington counties, where the figures are exceptionally high, unemployment throughout the State averages little more than 1921, by McClure Newspaper Syndicate. Elmer Harrows sat back in his armhis fat face wreathed with a the of self-satisfaction and triumph. He seemed in exceptional good humor this evening.

But his daughter Esther was afraid to approach him. She knew how quickly that bright smile could be transformed into a threatening frown, and she hesitated at the door of his

Mr. Harrows spied her and motioned for her to enter.

"Come on in, Es," he invited, "and let me tell you how I won five games straight from old Sidney Brown. I ten you it's getting so there's no one around here who can make it interesting for your old dad."

Esther entered and seated herself. Her father fondled the bright metalopped cribbage board and chuckled that What do you think of that?" I don't know much about it," Mather faltered, "I never could see anything in cribbage. It's just a jumble to me-fifteen two and fifteen four, and so on. I really don't know what it means."

Br. Harrows' broad smile became newhat modified.

"It's your own fault," he said. "I've urged you to learn, but you don't take any interest. I've explained that every time you can count the spots of the cards, so they'll make fifteen, considering each face card as ten, it makes you two points. Really, Es, you ought to learn the game, Maybe you could make it interesting for your

Esther looked out the window into a starlit sky and sighed and bit her lip. This was her opportunity to speak what was on her mind, yet she hesitated. She was afraid. "Father," she began, after a pause,

"I have something to tell you, and I'm afraid you won't like it. It's-it's about Earl."

Mr. Harrows smile vanished completely.

"You see," his daughter continued. "Earl loves me and I love him, and I've promised to marry him. I thought I'd better tell you, because-"

The threatening frown appeared.

"You thought right!" ejaculated the owner of the frown. "I'll have a few words to say about " Love! That's runny, Ks readly funny. Isn't it enough for you to love your poor old dad, who's made a home for you these twenty years? Esther obeyed him, forbearing to remind him that he had spotled her evening too. Mr. Harrows went about his real estate office with black frowns and irritable speech all the next day, but when evening came he donned a smile of expectation; for Sidney Brown had promised to stop in at seven o'clock for a three-game series on his way to lodge. Sidney came with blood in his eye, hungering for revenge, but when he left an hour later he was a sadder and a wiser man. Elmer Harrows had triumphed

While Esther's father sat gloating over his success there came a firm knock at the den door.

"Come in," he called, and a rather good-looking, slim, well-dressed young man entered—a young man with alert

Mr. Harrows grew red in the face. "You—you—" he stammered. "How dare you—what is the meaning—haps," interrupted the young man with a quiet smile. "I presume that takes brains." He nodded toward the cribbage board which Mr. Harrows had been using to emphasize his remarks. "Yes, one who can play cribbage!"

the latter blazed defiantly. "Maybe you think the game doesn't require any brains, but I tell you it does. I'll bet you don't know a thing about cribbage, and you never could learnnot in a thousand years."

"I know a little about it," the intruder replied, still smiling. "Perhaps if we should play a game we could argue better afterward."

This made Mr. Harrows smile. "It's ridiculous," he said, "but maybe it would serve as a good opportunity | Trevelyan that he had nearly got to to teach you your place. Come on, the end of his English poetry, and if we'll play-just once."

The visitor seemed reluctant. "You said one game only-" he beto bet something on it." The other's eyes narrowed, and he leaned forward and tapped the table with his fingers.

"I'll tell you what I'll do," he said quietly. "I'll play you a series of three for regular stakes. If you win the series I'll agree never to call on your daughter again, and if I am the victor you are to agree that I can marry Esther."

Mr. Harrows' face grew red again. "Oh, all right," he said, with a smile of plty." "It's an easy way out for me. We'll play the series-not counting that first game."

Out in the library Esther held a book before her and tried to make herself believe she was reading, but one foot beat a nervous tattoo on the floor. She listened for sound from the den, but all appeared quiet.

After hours, it seemed, there was a sound of chairs scraping over the floor in the den, and the door was opened. Out stalked her father, a smile on his face, but not a smile of triumph. Behind him appeared Earl.

"Es," said her father, "I give up. the Indians. He won the series by a measly two points-a fifteen-two. He just confessed, though, that he's the state guess, after all, it isn't such a bad halfbreed at Ticonderoga, N. Y. plan to have some one around the house who can make it interesting."

Ancient Use of Concrete.

A certain concrete arch bridge in the south of France, known as the Pont du Gard, was erected in the rather remote year, 56 B. C., and has. therefore, been in use for nearly 2,000 years. The concrete of this structure was not composed of crushed stone or other small aggregate of the variety now employed in bridge work, but was of the old style, consisting of alternate layers of large and small stones, gravel, etc., and of cementitious materials. Vitruvious describes the materials and methods in use before the Christian era, and many writers of the Middle ages go into minute details as to how "the ancients," as they called them, "used boards laid on edge, filling the space between them with cement and all sorts of large and small stones mingled together."

The World's Languages.

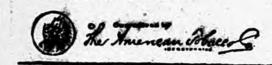

One authority gives the following list of languages: English, German, French, Russian, Italian, Spanish, Chinese, Arabic, Scandinavian, Dutch and Flemish, Minor European, Minor Asiatic, Minor African, Polynesian and Portuguese. The exact number must vary according to the authority, as it is difficult to determine first when a dialect ceases to be such and starts out as a distinct language. Opinion would also vary as to which is the most difficult to learn. It is claimed by some that English is difficult to master, owing to its grammar; by others that Ohinese is difficult, owing to its lack of grammar. Much also depends on the mother tongue of the person, as it is easier "Earl has brains," Esther protested to learn a related language than one

SUFFER WHILE ON SHIPBOARD

Many People Really in Agony During Trip Made on Comparatively Calm Waters.

Sir George Trevelyan tells of crossing the English channel once in bad weather and that during the whole passage his companion stood on deck slowly reciting poetry with emphasis and gesticulation. His companion had explained that this singular practice had been recommended to him as a preventive against seasickness. When they reached France he told the crossing had been longer he would have had to begin on other languages. Darwin suffered terribly from seasickness during the whole of his early voyage on the Beagle, and never quite recovered from the evil effects of this experience. His bad health during the rest of his life has been attributed to the shocks thus caused to his constitution.

Another distinguished victim of seasickness was General Gordon. During a voyage to Capetown from Mauritius in 1882 he described his suffering and misery as "far more severe than he had ever during his lifetime experienced, either at home or abroad." Very often he repeated his determination to go on shore at the very first port the vessel reached, and one morning, after a sleepless night of sickness, he called the captain to the side of his berth, and offered him £50 if he would make for land with all possible speed.

The American "dauphin" never attempted to gain official recognition, but his followers put out a flood of literature. Several new books on Williams and his claims have been published quite recently.

The question of the lost dauphin has had France guessing for more than 100 years, or from that day in 1795 when the mutilated body of a boy, 10, ostensibly the dauphin, was taken from the Temple prison in Paris. But half of France refused to believe. So every so often, in after years, when a claimant arose styling himself the heir to the throne, there were always plenty to welcome him. There are said to have been about 40 "lost dauphins" in the 50 years following the death of Louis and Marie

Every House Numbered in India.

Numbering houses is an important preliminary to consustaking in India Nearly 12 months in advance of the census date all the villages in the empire are scheduled, and every house is numbered. In some provinces the census authorities determine in advance the size of the number and specify the proportion of red ochre and oil, or other ingredients, forming the substance with which the number is to be painted.

Racial prejudices have to be considered. In Hyderabad objection is made to tar because of the color, while in other districts the natives consider red ochre unlucky, and if it is used they erase the figures. In the case of huts made of leaves, and also when objection is made on account of caste restrictions to the numbering of houses by enumerators, the numbers are painted on bits of tin, tiles, or pots, and are usually treated with great respect by the natives.

Words Have Changed Meaning.

The word "charity" is one which has come to be an awful cropper. It is used almost exclusively nowadays to mean dependence upon doles and gifts, while the word "imperfinent" has gone through a remarkable change. It now means "sassy." Originally it meant a remark that was not pertinent to the subject under discussion, and gradually got to mean a remark to be re-

To Give You Good Telephone Service

ELEPHONE employees have only one aim in their work-to give you good and continuous telephone service.

They are willing to make, and do make, sacrifices and suffer personal inconvenience that you might be satisfactorily served.

Every time a fire, storm or flood puts the service of a town in danger the telephone men are on the job, be it day or night, to keep the service going. And they don't object to long hours under disagreeable conditions.

The operators, too, are ever watchful to serve you at all hours and to give you prompt and accurate connections. They, too, do not hesitate to work hard and long when public service demands it.

Our engineering force is constantly studying ways and means to improve the service and equipment, while our office employees do everything in their power to make pleasant your transactions with the telephone com-

In short, all the telephone people—from the executives down to the newest clerks-have before them always the ideal of service.

We do not claim to be perfect, however, and probably there are times when you have some criticism to make of the service or equipment.

At such times we will consider it a favor if you will notify us immediately. It is our pleasure to serve you.

that kind of tree should one plant beside one's home? asks Good House-keeping. Obviously it should be a fast grower. Also it should be ornamental. Preferably it should give a shade that is lofty and not too dense. A productive tree will answer as well as one that is merely ornamental. If a grafted tree is planted rather than a seedling it will produce in a very few years. Mut trees are both ornamental and productive. The black walnut and the pecan seem to be well suited to this sert of planting. Why not try one or the other, or possibly both, one on each side of the house?

The black walnut is a rapid grower, reaches large size, and has foliage of creat beauty. A mature tree will proa great quantity of nuts. The pesan is also large and beautiful, as well as long-lived. Among the most beautiful and stately of the trees at Mount Vernon are pecan trees planted by George Washington and still in excellent condition. Commonly one thinks of the pecan as a tree for warm latitudes only. Both it and the Engitch walnut will thrive much farther north than is commonly supposed. For planting near the house, then, the black walnut, the pecan or a good shagbark tree would be an excellent choice. The foliage of the walnut is always beautiful and in the fall the leaves of both the hickory and the pecan are symphonies in brown.

CONOMIC VALUE OF PAINT

Only Use of the Brush is for Observation in most localities eves the impression that too many buildings suffer from lack of painting. A great many property owners seem to assume that the use of the paint brush is the special prerogative of the rich, that it holds no advantage for the average man, if he can forego the pleasure of having ornamentation about. But painting is not chiefly valable for ornamentation. It is chiefly valuable for sanitation, greater life, better service.

While paint does, of course, serve to improve the appearance of property, it is far more useful for protection than for ornament. A. small amount of money and work expended in keeping a valuable piece of mahinery painted will greatly add to its length of life. The same may be d of buildings. Another useful object which is accomplished by painting is the improved sanitary condition of buildings and outhouses. The cost of such work (painting) is small, the necessary emipment is not expensive, and with roper care this will last a lifetime.

Beacons for Motorists.

The flashing beacon used on the high seas by the leading nations of the world is now to be used as a highway guide for motorists.

Like the beacon at sea, the city traffic is an unwatched light, automatic in operation for months at a time. Fuel is supplied by an acetylene gas accumulator in the base.

To these beacons and highway lighthouses is applied the national system of colors approved by the committee of standards of the American Association of State Highway Officials, and by other national organizations and many cities in the United States. Red is used for first degree danger, yellow for second degree, and green for traffic danger only.

Two hundred cities are reported to have standardized on this national color signaling, which is that of the ratiroad systems, and almost as many have made installation of the flashing light traffic beacon as an effective warning for drivers who are partially, or wholly, color blind, and those who find it hard to distinguish the ordinary signal from other city lights.

The flashing beacon is the invention of Dr. Gustav Dalen, winner of the Nobel prize in physics in 1912.-From The Motor.

The great land-clearing movement that swept the country in 1920 is even stronger in 1921—farmers the country over are clearing more land this year than ever before.

The modern way is to use dynamite for blasting out stumps and boulders, for this method is very rapid, reasonable in cost and leaves the land in good condition for cultivation. The majority of farmers use

TARTS

Copyright, 1921, Western Newspaper Union.

John Hampton stopped his car at the side of the sun-baked road and leaned back, endeavoring to catch the breeze. This part of the country was not unfamiliar to him, for he had lived here as a boy, returning often in his young manhood to visit an old friend or two who remained. But many years had passed since John, busy in the building of a fortune, had traveled the roads of yesterday. Few landmarks still remained; he had almost forgotten them. His one impatient wish now was to find the shortest route back to the city. Important affairs awaited him there, and the possibility of having to spend a night in this hilly isolation was unbearable. Here and there, far back among the stately trees, some old decaying mansion showed ghost-like. These homes had for the most part been deserted long ago, or given over to the families of foreign field laborers, whose dusky children played up and down the long driveways of past grandeur. It was a surveying job which had called Hampton from his office in a big city building out to the forsaken byway-forsaken, except for the touring care which went rolling silently upon their various ways in various quests of pleasure. The hill route led on to fairer parts. John Hampton was not satisfied with the reports his engineers brought to him. He wanted, literally, to see "how the land lay." And now, as he leaned back in his coupe with the wind lifting the graying hair of his forehead, he noted, gratefully, neat little sign: It was fastened to a tree nearby, an artistic hewn beard itself.

"Tea served in the garden," he read, "sandwiches, lemonade and tarta" John Hampton-did not know that it was the tart suggestion which decided him. But he sprang lightly for all his increasing weight, down into the road and turned in at the gate, over which the sign flaunted. Beneath low-spreading trees, just beyond, was laid a tiny "us." The housewife said she didn't table, and as the hot tired man from the city sank into the rustic chair, before the table, a young woman came gracefully toward him. The effect of her short white ruffled frock was pleasing, her small white shoes stepped daintfly across the grass. And when she bent attentively to take his order, John Hampton liked the gravity of her gaze and the wave of her hair against a pink cheek.

> "Tarts?" questioned the young woman with a smile.

"Oh, yes, we have them, with red current jelly. They are considered very nice."

She looked back at him. "I make everything myself."

He sat after she had left him, gazing perplexedly up into the loft of green boughs above. What half-memory stirred him he could not determine. It seemed to be a pleasing memory, and yet- The arrival of an invitingly arranged tray disturbed his reverie. The attractive young woman silently left him to his refreshment. Boyishly John Hampton left the rest of Ms meal, to bite into a tart.

"Currant jelly!" It was delicious. Where and when had he tasted such a tart? Again the illusive memory. There had been nothing just like it in. all the years. He looked back toward the old crumbling veranda where the white-clad figure sat. An unusual sense of rest and satisfaction possessed

Lucy Lane had resembled this dainty ruffled young woman who made current tarts and sold them. But Lucy had been a decorous miss of twenty or more years ago. He recalled a picture that she had given him then, its long dark dress and high-twisted hair flashed before him. Yet Lucy had smiled in that grave sweet way. And Lucy's eyes had been as deep a blueveiled, too, by dark and sweeping lashes. Could it be possible that she had married and this was her daughter? He had quite forgotten Lucy Lane until the tarts stirred his memory. He had courted-or played at courting her in her mother's kitchen, when Lucy, always busily employed, had rolled out tarts for the young brothers and sisters and filled them with currant jam. The white-clad young woman came, humming her song, across the lawn. She stood looking down upon him with a smile.

"Is there anything else that you would like?" she asked him.

"Yes," John Hampton said impulsively. "I would like to know your name. You remind me of some one I once knew-"

"-And forgot," added the woman, quietly. "My name is still Lucy Lane." When my family married and scattered I came over to this old house of my uncle's and-began to sell tarts for

John Hampton leaned forward star-

"But," he stammered, "you are the same little Lucy. You-" he laughed, "look ever sweeter to me."

John Hampton paused, floundering. "The styles are better," Lucy answered him calmly.

But late that evening after he had bidden her a reluctant good-night, Lucy Lane went up to her moonlit room. She stood for a moment with a whimsical smile looking down on a boyish portrait, which through all the

AUTUMNAL WEDDINGS

The autumn is one of the most popular times for getting married and dressmakers, decorators and caterers must find the nuptial events this season an important item in their business. But the tendency to have elaborate wedding festivities is not so pronounced as formerly. Of course some generous brides can't be satisfied until they have invited all their friends and shipped for the sea of matrimony in a blaze of social fireworks.

But in these days when hired waiters and lavish spreads cost a lot the majority of girls would rather have the money to go to the furniture bill, which is the ominous skeleton at many wedding festivities.

So if you don't get invited to some friend's send off, you can feel that you have helped her buy the outfit for the little home that is to be. In the minds of many this will be a more satisfactory investment than filling up a housefull of guests with costly feed.

THE DISGRACE OF LABOR

A house painter who was working in city where the five-day week had been established for his craft remarked the other day that he would like to work ington, with all expenses paid. > The practical effect of a five-day working week is to make the work of such a trade cost just one-sixth more. The less people work the more jobless people there will be. One reason for the large amount of unemployment the past year is that work has cost so high that people could not afford to have it done. Some people must get a lot of false notions out of their heads before the country can get full prosperity.

How Better Than Pills?

The question has been asked-in what way are Chamberlain's Tablets superior to the ordinary cathartic and liver pills? Our answer is, they are easier and more pleasant to take and their effect is so gentle that one hardly realizes that it is produced by a medicine. Then, they not only move the bowels but im-prove the appetite and strengthen the digestion.

FARM, CURE FOR SHELLSHOCK

Thousands of Victims Have Recevered, According to Data Collected by American Legion.

The symphony of droning mowers, cultivators and threshers is a specific cure for shellshock. Of the thousands of World war veterans who turned to agriculture at the termination of hostilities, virtually all have rec from the effects of shellshock. This is bown by a recent survey which is being studied by the national organizetion of the American Legion. The re-port likewise indicates that shellshock victims, who settled in the cities have not yet regained their health.

The experiment of sending shellshock cases to the farms was tried with success in Canada, where more than 25,000 soldiers have taken farms under the soldiers' re-establishment act. The government has loaned more than $110,000,000 to these men, and their first year's crop was valued at approximately $14,000,000. Today the average soldier-farmer, the survey condades, is enjoying ruddy health and

SCENERY MARRED BY SIGNS

Public Justified in Taking Strict Mean ures to Put a Stop to Growing Nuisance.

Everywhere the motorist travels the natural beautiful scenery is marred by glaring signs, not only small boards but immense structures often a hundred feet or more in length and twenty or more feet in height.

Just at a bend in the road where the tourist expects to have a fine view sweeping over a broad valley the scene is completely cut off by a monstrous and offensive structure covered with a flaring advertisement. At some points both sides of the road will be lined with these unsightly and ugly advertising walls. In England the disfiguring of fences, buildings and other places with signs is prevented by law on the ground that the good taste of the people is offend-

The trustees of the city of Roseville, Calif., have clearly no eye for art. At first, it may seem as if they were justified in refusing permission to a certain advertising firm to erect billboards within the city limits. But then these were no ordinary billboards-at least, so the advertising firm declared. They were in fact, "beautiful panels, real works of art." Yet the city trustees refused. Worse and worse, the women of Placer county, in which Roseville is situated, have banded themselves together to prevent the erection of any more billboards in Placer county. whether in the form of "beautiful panels" or otherwise. Woman in Civic Affairs,

There is promise of betters things for Connecticut in the fact that the League of Women Voters of that state has sent out a questionnaire befitting the slogan, "Know Your Own Town." This should be well worth doing for the information to be obtained, intended for the local communities, and as a basis of future state legislation. But no doubt the most important factor in the activity is, as the workers seem to think, the awakening among women of an interest in civic affairs. The neighborhood is certain to hold interest for anyone, and so is a good starting point.-Christian Science Monitor.

My wife and I were giving a dinner to a few carefully selected guests. Everything was going on wenderful-ly well. The food was delicious, the wines excellent, since I had spared myself neither pains nor expense in procuring them. And old Judge Gruff, whose favor was particularly valuable to me, appeared in the best of humor.

And on this particular evening Cousin George decided to inflict his presence on me, after an absence of twenty years. I confess I was much annoved when the butler whispered that a person calling himself George Whiffletree was in the library and insisted on seeing me. With difficulty I concealed my irritation, excused myself to my guests, and walked into the next room, where I found George; a little grayer, a little more wrinkled than of yore he was, but, if possible, dreamier and shabbier than ever.

Of course I spoke a trifle sharply. And I didn't notice the hand he held

"Sorry, George, but I haven't time to do anything for you tonight. Have company to dinner. Cook will give you something to eat in the kitchen. If there's anything you want come around in the morning, and-" He looked at me with a steady stare

It was quite early when I was awakened the next day. My brother Al withed to speak to me over the 'phone. "Well what is it?" I asked crossly, for I was tired after the dinner of the previous evening. "Say, Jim," Al was saying, "George is back from California--

"Well, how would that interest me. He had the nerve to come here last night in the midst of a dinner I was giving to Judge Gruff, and-"

I could hear Al laugh before he answered. "Say, you bag- of wind, you pompous, empty-headed son-of-a-gun! Do you know Judge Gruff means precious little to George Whifflefree? The judge knows him and is going to call on him if George has time to see hien."

"I mean what I say. George is worth a couple of millions, and you'd better watch your step. He's a pretty important person where he comes from.

"But." I stammered, "he was dressed so shabbily and he didn't say a word about--"

"About being rich, hey? I should say not! But he's got the dough, just the same. It may interest you to know that I'm going back with him. He's giving me a real job, with real money attached to It."

Of course it is too late to mend matters now, and my wife is very angry with me. It seems that George accumulated a vast fortune through some invention or other, and that he is acquainted with some pretty good repeat that if I have made a mistake it is a very natural one, for which George's lack of tact is chiefly re-

TIBETAN MERU NOT VARIED

Majority of the Population Subsists Almost Exclusively on Barley Meal and "Butter Tea."

Tibetans live almost the year round on two things, parched barley meal, called "tsamba," and "butter tea," according to Dr. A. L. Shelton, writing in the National Geographic Magazine. Tsamba is made by parching barley and then grinding it into a very fine flour. It becomes a sort of emergency ration, for, being parched, it requires no cooking.

In preparing the other principal arcoarse Chinese tea, which they prize most highly. The concoction is strained into a churn and to it are added a lump of butter, more or less stale, and a handful of salt. The queer infiture is then churned into lumps and eaten. Knives, forks, and spoons are unknown in Tibet-all eating is done with fingers. The wooden bowl is carried in the sheepskin garment next to the skin, and each time after being used it is licked clean with the tongue and replaced in the garment.

The real meaning of the word "filibuster" is a lawless adventurer, especially one in quest of plunder. The term is derived from the original filibusters, who were West Indian pirates. The name is traceable to that of the

The Royal Fish,

The sturgeon is a strange looking creature, being almost covered with flattened bony plates, in the center of each of which is a conical spine. It is said to live to a great age-twe hundred years is one estimate, but we have no certain knowledge on the subject. Its air bladder is rich in isinglass, and caviar is prepared from its roe. Its flesh seems to combine the flavors of fish, flesh and fowl, and is really excellent. . BENEFIT OF "LIGHT BATHS"

Rheumatism and Neuritis Yield to Treatment in Which Purple Rays Play Big Part.

The usefulness of "sun baths" for health has long been recognized. Unlimited sunshine has much to do with the beneficial effect of a vacation at the seashore.

Nowadays this matter is better understood than it used to be, and it is known that the heat rays of the sun have nothing to do with the physical benefit obtained from such exposure, It is the chemical rays in the sunbeam-particularly the ultra-violet rays-that do the good work.

Electric light is rich in these rays, and many cures of rheumatism and neuritis have been accomplished by exposing the affected part of the body reflector. For curative purposes physicians have turned to useful account a sort of cabinet lined with such

The newest method employs quartz lamp containing mercury vapor, through which the electric current is passed. Quartz has the advantage of being extraordinarily transparent to ultra-violet rays.

Such a lamp, made in the shape of a tube of small diameter, can be introduced into the nasal passages for the treatment of catarrh or into the throat for the cure of infected tonsile, thus saving the patient an operation. -Philadelphia Ledger.

DON'T FAVOR WEDDING RINGS

Men Dislike Them, but Most Women Insist on the Gold Symbols of Matrimony.

"When I marry, I won't insist on my husband wearing a wedding ring, as people might think he was hennecked." sald a pretty miss to a friend recently. According to a jeweler, 80 out of 100 brides do insist, however,

"During the month of May most of the newly engaged drop in for their rings. Occasionally the young man, after selecting a ring for the girl, tells the clerk that he doesn't want any for himself.

"The girl will look at him quickly and say; 'Oh, yes, you do, John dear," and he buys one. In the majority of cases a plain gold band is selected, but lately a few carved and engraved rings have been sold,"

This, of course, does not prove that men wear the rings. A certain young man, on leaving the house in the morning, places his ring in his vest pocket. When leaving the car, on returning home, it is again slipped on his finger. In this way both wife and hubby are perfectly satisfied,

HE Ford worm-driven, One-Ton Truck with demountable rims and pneumatic tires, are dependable, as well as serviceable. This, probably more than any other factor, accounts for their popularity. There is no evidence so convincing as that which comes from long practical experience. Like the Ford car, the Ford One-Ton Truck -Ford-built throughout—has proven itself. In it are combined the Ford principles of simplicity, with strength, lowest first cost, lowest operating cost, durability.

In the city, on the farm, carrying its loads between cities—everywhere you will find the Ford One-Ton Truck doing duty. Merchants, manufacturers, farmers, have come to know it as the truck of utmost service.

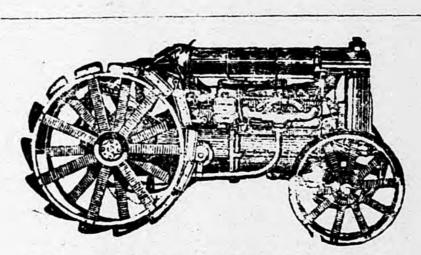

"Ford—A Business Utility" is a new booklet of solid facts and figures about Ford cars and the Ford One-Ton Truck in business service. Get a copy. They are free for the asking.

The most reliable after-service which is ever behind Ford cars, trucks and Fordson tractors is positive assurance to the owners of Ford cars of their constant use and service.

ORE and more every day the demand for Fordson Tractor increases Fordson has demonstrated so much usefulness, so much economy, so much labor saving, so much money saving, along so many lines of activity. The farmer has discovered that not only for plowing, harrowing, discing, seeding, mowing, reaping or threshing, but a multitude of other uses; cutting wood; feed; grinding feed; churning; washing; furnishing water in the house; making electric light possible in the house and around the barns, so that, as a matter of fact, there is hardly an hour in the day when the Tractor cannot be made a profitable servant. There is ditching to do; there are roads to fix; and so on all down along the line of the enormous calls that constantly face the farmer the Fordson steps in and does the work, shoulders the complete burden of the toil and the hard work, one might almost say "drudgery."
