HUNTING FOR TREASURE TROVE

Steam Trawler In Quest Of Gold Off Virginia Capes

Bounded on a quest for more than a million dollars in sunken treasure, the steam trawler Ripple left New York last Thursday for Cape Charles, Va., and the submerged wreck of the Ward Line steamer Merida.

The little trawler's decks were littered with equipment for the salvaging operations when she sailed from there late that afternoon and her crew included Frank Criley, one of the best known of deep-sea divers, and two assistants. George W. Nordstrom, chief officer of the Merida when she went down, also was aboard to aid in locating the wreck.

The Merida was sunk in about 33 fathoms of water on May 12th, 1911, in a collision with the steamship Admiral Farragut. Her cargo included gold and silver bullion valued at from $1,000,000 to $2,000,000 which she was transporting from Havana to New York.

The Ripple's salvaging expedition is the second undertaken. The first effort was made in 1916 and was reported to have been financed by James A. Stillman, banker, and Percy Rockefeller, of New York.

Converse D. West, broker, of New York, who is one of the backers of the present expedition, declared he believed the Ripple had a good chance of recovering the treasure. "It's a gamble, of course," he said, "but we believe the stake is well worth gambling for."

Co-Operation Brings Prosperity

Mr. Wm. B. Spiva of the Bank of Somerset in commenting upon the present situation has the following to say. "After all, prosperity is largely a matter of co-operation. If people want better times, good prices and favorable conditions in general they should realize that they must do their part."

"Any citizen of Somerset county can do his part by buying prudently, liquidating his indebtedness all or in part, and help the credit situation by keeping his money where credit comes from—the bank."

"Anybody who buys goods from sources outside of our county or carries his bank account in some neighboring town, can hardly expect that business here at home is going to be all that it should be."

"We can all co-operate by meeting our own, individual responsibility to the community and after we do this, there is absolutely no question but what we can look forward to a fall and winter which will compare favorably with the fall and winter season of other years."

Receives A Medal For Bravery

Mr. Preston Gordy, a member of Troop No. 1, Boy Scouts of America, of Princess Anne, received from the National Court of Honor, B. S. A., of New York City, a handsome bronze medal, last week. Medal was awarded him for assistance given in rescuing two girls from drowning at a picnic on July 4th, when Mr. Ellis Peacock lost his life from jumping from a launch on the Manokin river. From the letter accompanying the medal we note the following:

"The intrinsic value of this medal is small, but that which it stands for should mean so much to you now and in the future. It shows that you as a true boy scout were prepared to do your utmost even though it may have resulted in the loss of your own life."

Average Rainfall In Maryland

The average rainfall for Maryland, as computed from records of the Weather Bureau and extending over a period of 50 years, is 41.61 inches and for Delaware 43.25 inches. The local station, in co-operation with the Maryland State Weather service, has completed precipitation data for use in a bulletin soon to be published by the Federal Weather Bureau, the records of 69 co-operative stations in the two States forming a basis for conclusions reached.

The results, James H. Spencer, chief of the local weather service, says, show that the annual precipitation in Maryland and Delaware is remarkably uniform and well distributed throughout the year, and, except in St. Mary's county and the Cumberland Valley, is between 40 and 47 inches. The maximum monthly rainfall occurs in August the minimum in November. Meteorologists and agriculturists, Mr. Spencer said, agree that in sections where irrigation is not practiced the annual precipitation should be between 25 and 50 inches to get best results. In this respect, he said, Maryland and Delaware are in a very favored position, the precipitation being well distributed through the crop season.

Synopsis Of Crop Conditions

James H. Spencer, section director of U. S. Department of Agriculture, gives the following synopsis of weather and crop conditions in Maryland and Delaware for the week ending August 30th.

The week was characterized by clear, sunny days, with the exception of the 29th, when showery weather prevailed. The cool period which began on the 21st terminated on the 28th, and the 29th and 30th were warm.

Growing crops were affected unfavorably during the week by the dry weather, especially over those portions of the southern half of the section where rainfall was light during the first two decades of the month.

Corn continues in good to excellent condition, except in the southern counties, where it was injured somewhat during the maturing stage by the dry weather. It is maturing rapidly under the influence of sunny days, and cutting has begun in some localities of Charles and Sussex counties. Late corn is in need of rain.

Late potatoes continue in bloom, and are in fair condition. Sweet potatoes are good and are maturing. Truck crops and gardens are fair. Pastures have deteriorated and are poor to fair in southern and fair to good in northern counties.

Plowing for fall seeding was interrupted by the dry and hardened condition of the soil. Some wheat, winter rye, winter oats, alfalfa, crimson clover and vetch were sown in Wicomico county. Good, soaking rains are needed for growing crops.

State Convention Sept. 20th

Dr. J. Hubert Wade, chairman of the Democratic State Central Committee, issued a call last week for a meeting of the State Convention on Tuesday, September 20th, at the Auditorium Theatre, Baltimore. The convention is to assemble at noon. Dr. Wade would have preferred the Academy or Ford's Opera House, in both of which there are rooms in which committees may deliberate, but these theatres were not available. Arrangements will be made with Kernan's Hotel to provide quarters for the committees.

It is probable that Republicans will hold their State Convention on September 22nd or to days after the Democrats have launched their campaign. Only the State leaders appear to be interested in these meetings.

August Weather

The weather report for the month of August as compiled by Mr. James R. Stewart, co-operative observer of Princess Anne, follows:

Maximum temperature, 93 degrees on the 31st; minimum temperature, 50 degrees on the 23rd, and 24th; total precipitation, 3.60 inches. Clear days 10; partly cloudy, 16; cloudy, 5. Thunder storms on the 2nd, 8th, 13th and 14th. The prevailing wind was southwest.

Mrs. Samuel D. Buck, of Baltimore, is visiting Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Hart, at "Beechwood."

GOOD PLAYS AT AUDITORIUM

"Fatty" Arbuckle, Thomas Meighan and Douglas MacLean This Week

Roscoe "Fatty" Arbuckle in "The Dollar a Year Man," another of those screamingly funny five-reel comedies he is making for Paramount, will be the attraction at the Auditorium, Tuesday night. You might be interested to know that he plays one of those "dollar a year men" who loved to turn up German plots during the war and who really succeeds in saving the Prince from the Bolsheviks. Lots of fun is promised, so you don't want to miss it. Others in the cast are, Lila Lee, Winifred Greenwood, J. M. Dumont, Edward Sutherland, Edwin Stevens and Henry Johnson.

Thomas Meighan tells a fine human story filled with elements that will appeal to you in "The Easy Road" which will be shown on Thursday night. It is the story of a young and successful artist who has won over tremendous difficulties, but who is nearly spoiled by marriage to a wealthy girl. How she saves him from himself—and at the same time saves her own happiness is told in the fine human way that has endeared this star and his associates to countless friends on the screen. He is supported by Gladys George, Grace Goodall, Arthur Carew, Lila Lee, Lura Anson and Viora Daniel.

Every American doughboy will sympathize with Douglas MacLean when he sees him in his new comedy "The Rookie's Return" on Saturday night. The star, who falls heir to a large fortune, has his troubles when he is compelled to solve the great servant problem in his inherited home. But these worries ultimately bring him happiness in the love of a sweet girl. Doris May is his leading woman and heads an excellent supporting cast—Frank Currier, Leo White, Kathleen Kay, Elmor Hancock, Wm. Courtwright, Frank Clark, Aggie Herring and Wallace Beery.

Telephone Heroines

Dr. William E. Easton, who writes for the Newspaper Enterprise Association, Cleveland, Ohio, in a recent article said:

One of the incidental points which I have noticed in several stories of calamity is the heroism of the telephone girl. A fire broke out in a high office building. The girl at the switchboard calls up every office and tells the occupants to get out.

A dam breaks, and a flood rushes down the valley. The telephone girls sticks to their posts and send word ahead, and many lives are saved.

A burglar comes in the night; a frightened woman calls the police station, but before she gets in her call, the burglar strikes her senseless. The telephone girl intuitively knows the meaning of the interrupted call and tells the police where the trouble is, such things as this I remember to have read.

I do not know of a town where the people not to complain of the telephone service, in common with my fellow men, I, too, have reasons of impatience because the service is not better but every now and then I consider how wonderful it is that the service is as good as it is.

Let me suggest that we all try to be a little more patient and courteous toward the telephone girl. In the first place, I think she deserves it. In the next place, I think it will improve the service.

Col. Woodcock Chosen Legion Head

Col. A. W. W. Woodcock, of Salisbury, was elected commander of the American Legion, Department of Maryland, at the State Convention held in Baltimore last Wednesday.

In accepting the honor conferred upon him, Colonel Woodcock pledged that the program of the Legion for the coming year would be one of constructive work throughout.

On a vote of the committee of the whole, Ocean City was selected as the meeting place for next year's convention.

Colonel Woodcock served his country with great distinction during the late World War. He was formerly commander of Company I and arose successively from a captaincy to the ranks of major and lieutenant-colonel during the war. He participated in many of the most stirring battles in which the American Army engaged.

The season for taking oysters from the bars under the waters of the Chesapeake bay and its tributaries opened Thursday, September 1st and continues until April of next year, Tongers of all tidewater sections of Maryland were prepared for the opening of the season.

Miss Martha Stanford, of Baltimore, is visiting Mrs. H. P. Dashiell and other friends in Princess Anne.

PRINCESS ANNE TO PLAY FREDERICK FOR TITLE

Defeats Cambridge In Second Straight Game In Peninsula Series—Champions Left Yesterday For Western Shore

The Princess Anne base ball team left yesterday (Monday) morning for Frederick and reached that place in the afternoon of the same day. The party traveled by automobile and was accompanied by a delegation of prominent citizens of the town, including former Collector of Internal Revenue Joshua W. Miles, Judge Robert F. Duer, Omar J. Croswell, cashier of the Peoples Bank; George H. Myers, E. Herman Cohn, J. Thomas Taylor, Jr., the directors of the club of whom J. Douglass Wallop, proprietor of the Washington Hotel, is chairman, and others.

The contestants are Frederick, the Blue Ridge League pennant winner, and Princess Anne, winner of the elimination series, in the best four games out of seven. The dates of the games are: September 6 and 7—at Frederick. September 8 and 9—at Salisbury. September 10—at Oriole Park.

Monday afternoon of last week the Princess Anne base ball club went to Pocomoke City and before the largest crowd that ever witnessed a ball game in that place, Princess Anne won the right to play Cambridge for the Eastern Shore championship by defeating Pocomoke in a spectacular ninth-inning rally which netted them five runs and victory, 14 to 11.

The game was a slugging match from start to finish, each team using four pitchers. Batting honors were even, each team getting 15 hits.

Brookman umpired the game to the entire satisfaction of both teams and the fans. Score:

On Tuesday afternoon the home team went to Crisfield and crossed bats with Peck's Crisfield nine and were defeated by that team by a score of 8 to 1. This was not a Shore series game.

The finals in the Eastern Shore base ball series to determine the winner to meet Frederick for the championship of Maryland opened at 3.30 o'clock last Thursday on the Pocomoke City base ball diamond. The contesting clubs were Cambridge, representing the Northern tier, and Princess Anne, who shouldered the burden in the Southern tier of the peninsula. The Princess Anne team was the winner by a score of 8 to 7.

There was an enormous crowd present from towns within 100 miles of either Maryland or Virginia, the majority of whom were women.

The game was a most exciting one plenty of good free hitting and some excellent fielding. Both sides changed their pitchers when they tired out. Princess Anne got the edge on Cambridge in the first inning with three walks, a double to right field and an error by Robinson, scoring Williams, Sweeney and Moore. Minnow singled to second, scoring Schaeffer, netting Princess Anne four runs.

Cambridge scored two in the second inning and tied the count in the third on two walks and consecutive hits by Robinson and Melvin counted Ruark.

Princess Anne again took the lead in the fourth, scoring also in the fifth and sixth.

TUMULTUOUS RECEPTION TO HOME CLUB

After winning the game over Cambridge last Friday afternoon the Princess Anne base ball club was given a tumultuous reception upon their arrival home that evening as soon as the result of the game with Cambridge was known here Friday afternoon plans were made for the welcoming to the boys. The Washington Hotel, which has been headquarters for the club during the summer, was decorated with the national colors and plans were made for a parade.

A band was secured to furnish music and about eight o'clock in the evening accompanied by automobiles from town, a start was made for Loretto where the first of the automobiles returning from Cambridge were met. There all machines were halted and formed in line and about half an hour later the long procession consisting of about fifty automobiles headed by the machine with music started for town. The long line of automobiles with lights ablaze winding their way into Princess Anne was one of the most spectacular and beautiful sights ever witnessed on the Eastern Shore of Maryland.

Next in line after the machine with the band was the automobile of John B. Roberts, who had brought over from Cambridge the hero of the occasion; "Mike" Ward, who had pitched a part of the game on Monday against Pocomoke, on Thursday against Cambridge at Pocomoke and all of the game on Friday at Cambridge. He, therefore, participated in all three games of the series in which the home team won the Championship of the Eastern Shore and was wonderfully effective in all three games.

A large crowd of several hundred people were assembled at the Washington Hotel to meet the team and fans upon their return

PROBLEMS OF FAR EAST TO COME FIRST

Must Be Satisfactorily Adjusted if Disarmament Is to Be Success.

BIG STEP TOWARD PEACE

Once an Agreement Is Reached on These Important Questions Matter of Getting Together on Cutting Armaments Will Be Easy.

Washington.—Success or failure of the disarmament conference in Washington this fall depends primarily on a satisfactory adjustment of half a dozen "Far East problems."

Only with these major issues amicably adjusted would the irritants that might ultimately lead to a clash of arms be removed. And then only could the nations involved agree to a considerable reduction of armaments—at least a cessation of building new armaments—without feeling that safety was being jeopardized.

These problems are:
Mandates under the League of Nations, particularly that of Yap.

Shantung.
The open door in China.
The territorial integrity of China.

The territorial integrity of Asiatic Russia.

Communications.
Once an agreement on these is reached the matter of getting together on cutting down the size of armies and navies will be easy. But this first necessary agreement, officials recognized, will not be easy. That, rather than any actual disarmament compact, will be the big step toward peace, if it is achieved.

U. S. to Make Protest.
Yap and Shantung, Japan has indicated, she holds to have been disposed of by the treaty of Versailles.

The United States, however, on the basis that she, as one of the principal allied and associated powers, even though not a member of the League of Nations, was entitled to a voice in the distribution of the former German islands in the Pacific, has protested the granting of special rights in Yap to Japan. Because of Yap's importance as a Pacific cable center, this country has insisted that it be internationalized and equal rights assured to all.

With respect to Shantung, no official stand has been taken, although many senators have attacked the bestowal upon Japan of the German rights in that peninsula.

The unbiased view, however, has been that any dispute over sovereignty in Shantung should be the matter of negotiation between China and Japan.

There is indicated a considerable desire in several quarters that the Yap and Shantung questions be eliminated in advance of the Washington conference. That, it is recognized, would greatly simplify questions before the conference. This government will not, however, concede that the treaty of Versailles—in the absence of any acquiescence by this country—could dispose of Yap. The case has been stated so plainly that Japan has no illusions as to the basis on which our claims stand, and the vigor with which they will be presented.

China Demands Province.
As to Shantung, Japan has contended that title to the former German rights in that province was largely vested in her and cannot be disturbed so long as the Versailles treaty remains international law.

China, on the other hand, contends that her declaration of war against Germany restored to China all rights previously granted Germany. That being so, she claims, there were no German rights in China to be disposed of at the Versailles conference. China refused to sign the treaty because of the Shantung provision.

The open door in China and China's territorial integrity are, of course, old questions. They are the ones in which the real statesmanship of the members of the conference may best be displayed. On them depends whether China is to become an independent nation, or whether the special interests which virtually render China impotent and helpless are to continue their hold. In this is involved the abolition of all extra territorial jurisdiction, the control of maritime customs by the British, the French control of the Chinese post office and the Lansing-Ishih agreement recognizing Japan's "special interests." These are infinite ramifications.

The question of the territorial integrity of Asiatic Russia will bring to the front Japan's occupation of the maritime provinces of eastern Siberia and of Sakhalin Island, where Japan is operating extensive fisheries. Japanese colonization in Manchuria and her occupancy of Vladivostok are also involved.

Cables Cause Trouble.
In the matter of communications, the whole question of a friendly, equitable relationship in the establishing and maintenance of wireless and cable stations will be developed. This will bring in the development of Yap as an international cable distributing center, and the interests of the Netherlands, which now control important cable links in the western Pacific. Both Belgium and Holland in addition to the six powers primarily involved in the conference, will be permitted to make representations in connection with the Far East questions.

dition to the six powers primarily involved in the conference, will be permitted to make representations in connection with the Far East questions.

Belgium has extensive interests in China, Belgian capital owning the Lung Hai and the Kow Ching railways and the great Kai Ping mines.

Holland's whole life as a trading nation depends upon her rich island possessions in the Pacific—the Dutch East Indies. This comprises a huge territory with 50,000,000 population. Without these colonies and a free hand in developing their markets, Holland would be reduced to the status of a fifth-rate nation. Her interests are readily recognized as justifying a voice in any agreement involving Far Eastern affairs.

Dominions Raise Problems.

Along broad lines, those are the questions that must be ironed out before the conference can get down to brass tacks on the relative size of armies and navies.

Important, but secondary to these key questions, are the attitude of Australia, Canada and New Zealand, and the new position in which the Philippines may be placed as a result of the conference.

For it is generally admitted that with the other questions of expansion and colonization in the Far East settled on some agreeable basis, the chances for Philippine independence at an early date would be greatly increased.—Harry Hunt, in Chicago Post.

DRINK 'HARD LIQUORS' NOW

Germans Using More Whisky, Brandy and Gin—Draft New Law.

Berlin.—Consumption of wines and liquors has been increasing so rapidly in Germany since the war that the reichstag has directed the drafting of a bill to regulate the traffic. The law also is to check a growing increase in the number of saloons, in Berlin particularly.

The crime wave which has been sweeping the country for many months is attributed by many to the "drink-craze," and especially to the more general use of cheap cognacs, green whiskeys, gin and other "hard liquors." The Germans, in fact, are gradually losing their old reputation as beer drinkers.

Practically all the cafes and wine-rooms of Berlin are installing "American bars," against which the customer may lean, with his feet on a brass rail. There is no charge for a place at the bar, but to sit at the tables it is compulsory to drink champagne or some other wine of similar price. Consumption of champagne has outstripped all previous records the last twelve months, amounting to more than 12,000,000 bottles.

FIND ANCIENT ROMAN ROAD

Workmen Digging Manholes in England Unearth Highway Which Ran From London to Manchester.

London.—Discovery has been made in England of another old Roman road hitherto unknown.

Workmen who were digging manholes on the Alton road where the latter joins the roads to Bentley and Bordon, near Farnham, Surrey, unearthed, five feet below the surface, part of what appears to be an old Roman road that ran from London to Manchester. The road was in an excellent state of preservation, the surface layer being a foot in thickness and composed of flints. In order to penetrate the surface it was necessary to use drills and steel wedges.

Research has demonstrated that not only the Romans used bituminous materials, including asphalt, but the ancient Sumerians, Persians, Babylonians, Greeks and Egyptians as well. The road discovered in England, according to engineers, was capable of carrying traffic heavier than any to which modern roads are now put.

Man Tired of Living at Eighty-Six.
Chicago.—"Eighty-six years is long enough for any man to live. If he can't see enough of this world in that time there is something wrong with him and he should get out." This was what Andrew Larson of Chicago told police who picked him up in a dying condition. He had covered arteries in his wrist, and died a few hours after being removed to a hospital.

SHOWING HERANDO WAS SOME "TANK-BOLLY" GUY

Showed Gang Who Was Boss When Time Came To Go, But He Saved
Enough To Get Home.

Herando Cortez, the lad that took Montezuma's marbles and his country and his life away from him back in the sixteenth century, was a hard-balled guy. From the time he "crashed" his way into his first bull fight by carrying water for the horses, he was always inviting Old Man Trouble's youngest and brightest boy out to do four rounds before breakfast. The neighbors used to say: "That Herni Cortez is a reckless young feller. Mark my words, he'll come to no good end."

But Herni used to get by with it. His motto used to be: "I don't know where I'm goin' and I don't care when I get back." People used to wonder how he did it until they discovered that Cortez always had an ace in the hole. He always had something saved up and ready for use when necessity demanded.

While he was smothering around the Caribbean Sea in a steel vest and a tin hat, he and his gang dropped into Vera Cruz. Cortez had heard about Montezuma and his wonderful city up in the mountains and wanted to go. The gang refused. "I'll show you who is boss," said Cortez, and burned every one of his ships as they lay on the beach.

That left the gang no place to go but ahead which was what Cortez wanted. But he saved himself up something for the future. Secretly he saved every bit of iron about those ships, collected every nail from the ashes, talloved them and all the carpenter tools against rust and said to the gang "I've got it!"

When he came back to Vera Cruz, he cashed in on his savings. He resurged the nails, built new ships and took the gang and the money they had captured back to Spain. The moral is that it may be all right to burn your ships but save the nails. The only safe plan for any man to follow is to have a reserve fund in case of emergencies. There is only one safe and sure plan to accomplish that. It is to save a certain amount of money every pay day and invest it safely where it will be protected, where it will work for you and where you can get it when you need it.

ENOUGH TO GIVE EVERY PERSON EIGHTY DOLLARS

Nation Has Eight Billion Circulating—
Not Hard For Each One To Get His Full Share Of Coin.

The total amount of money in the United States a recent inventory showed to be $8,082,773,496. How much of it have you to your credit? This amounts to about $80 for every human being in the United States. Have you your $80? If you have not, it is easy to get. Save it! You can get 100 times $80 if you save.

But there is only one way to save it. That is, to lay down a rigid rule to save a certain amount each week or each month out of your pay check or income. As you save it, invest it, looking first to the safety of the principal and, secondly, to the interest return.

Invest it in United States Liberty Bonds or in Government Savings Securities, such as $5 War Savings Stamps, and Treasury Savings Certificates in denominations of $25, $100 and $1,000. These Stamps and Certificates pay 4 per cent interest, compounded quarterly. They are guaranteed by the government of the United States to increase in value from month to month and are not subject to market fluctuations.

You always know exactly what a War Savings Stamp or a Treasury Savings Certificate is worth and you can always sell it back, when necessary, to the government at that guaranteed price. Remember somebody is saving the money you waste. Why not do it yourself? Your postmaster sells Government Savings Securities. Ask him about them.

Three Parties To A Telephone Call

It is always well to remember that good telephone service does not depend entirely upon the operator.

There are two other persons involved—the person calling and the person answering—and over their movements the operator has no control. She may do her part very efficiently, but unless the others co-operate, the best results will not be had.

It is not the fault of the operator, for instance, if the calling party, relying on his memory, calls for a wrong number or hangs up his receiver in the middle of a conversation. Neither is it the fault of the operator if the called party fails to answer promptly or is already engaged in conversation with another person.

Good telephone operating is brought about by co-operation on the part of the party calling, the operator and the party called.

One of Ocean's Biggest Fishes.

The turbot is one of the largest of the flat fishes, and one of the species that is of most value commercially. It is seldom over two feet long, and weighs about 18 pounds, although 90-pound turbot have been caught. Its body is very flat and wide, with a long fin on the top and bottom ridges. Its upper surface is brown, and covered with hard, round knobs.

The turbot is a sea fish, and its eggs—five or 10,000,000 to a fish—float on the ocean surface, but the full-grown turbot prefers a sea bank, where it lies on its lighter side. Both the eyes are on the upper side of the body. The turbot abounds off the western coast of Europe, where it is caught for export.

Mazarin's Great Library.

At the beginning of the Fronde intrigues in Paris in 1648, when Anne of Austria, mother of Louis XIV, was queen regent of France, Cardinal Mazarin's library held 40,000 books, and was the most important collection of books then existing. Mazarin was compelled to retire from court, and the French parliament voted the confiscation and sale of his library. Louis sent Fouquet with unlimited power to bid it in, but the parliament, comprehending that it would in this way be returned to Mazarin, ordered its complete dispersion, by selling it in small lots. The librarian was so affected that he died of a broken heart. The sale of Mazarin's paintings was to have followed, but they were saved.

To Clean Window Shades.

To dry-clean a window shade, spread it full length on the kitchen table or on the floor and rub it thoroughly all over with dry salt and corn meal, renewing the mixture as it becomes soiled. Then dust well with a soft duster. The shade need not be removed from the roller, and this method does not pull it out of shape or cause it to crack.

Tulips Quickly Change Color.

Tulips are more responsive to dyes than carnations or callas, a Chicago florist found by experimenting. When dyes of various colors were dissolved in vases and the flowers placed therein, the colors progressed up into the blooms of the tulips in about thirty minutes.

Possibly.

The man who paid $400 for a special train to take him from Philadelphia to New York must either have a particular grudge against the Quaker city or else must have had money to burn; possibly both.—Boston Transcript.

New Form of Pumice Stone.

A form of pumice stone has been discovered in Japan which can be used in concrete for boat building, making a concrete as strong, but 60 per cent lighter, than the ordinary kind.

Kindling the Fire.

Cheap candles, cut into small bits and placed in the kindling in the kitchen stove, make an even better method of quickly starting the fire in the morning than using kerosene. And it is just as economical.

DANCING HELPS HEART PATIENTS

Medical Director Tells How Cardiac Convalescents Thrive on Exercise.

MENTAL EFFECT IS GOOD, TOO

Treatment in Force Two Years With Uniformly Beneficial Results—Most Joyous of Play Exercises—Physically and Socially Stimulant.

New York.—Dancing as part of the regular treatment of those convalescing from heart disease was prescribed two years ago by Dr. Frederic Brush, medical director of the Burke Foundation, the great institution for the care and treatment of convalescents at White Plains, to which many patients from New York city hospitals and other institutions are sent. The results of this treatment as shown by its effect upon thousands of patients has been amazing, and doubtless will elicit a gasp of astonishment from the uninitiated layman as well as from the physician of the older school.

Doctor Brush says, however, that there have not been any bad results, but on the contrary the exercise has been of great benefit. Modern dancing (ball, contra and folk types) is a valuable form of physical exercise in the reconstructive-convalescent stages of heart disease, he declares. It affords a high degree of needed manual therapy, and advances the patient notably toward social restoration. Experience indicates its safety. It gives an added and readily available test of the cardiac reserves and of progress.

The physician tells about his experience with dancing as a therapeutic agent in Hospital Social Service.

Applied exercises in the convalescent, constructive and preventive stages of heart disease have three main purposes, says Doctor Brush. To improve the general condition (nutritional, muscular and organic), increase the cardiac reserve power and lessen the introspective and neurotic tendencies. Gradual re-entry into normal occupational and social living is the end sought.

It is of assured advantage, says the physician, to have the exercises pleasantly anticipated and enjoyed; and particularly valuable to have them simulate or merge into everyday physical and social activities.

Formal Gymnastics.

Formal gymnastics aid by inspiring courage and further exercise, in getting hold of the mild slacker or neurasthenic, and serve well in bad weather times; but in six years' observation of some 3,000 heart convalescents, says Doctor Brush, no regime has given such all-round satisfaction, safety and success as did the old farm regime where a total of nearly 500 cardiacs, boys and young men, were given essential freedom in play and work over the place (under reasonable regulations of rest, etc.).

Dancing may be called an inherent activity—of all girls, of women up to fifty, and of most young and middle-aged men, says the physician; older persons are persistently happy in watching it; it is the most joyous of all play-exercises, and both physically and socially stimulant.

Convalescents with but a moderate degree of cardiac reserve may begin cautiously to dance, then go on to a considerable indulgence, with safety and benefit, he asserts. The heart patients early led the way in this. Women were found to be dancing in their cottages and boys exhibited various "jig stunts," etc.

The practice was checked, then carefully observed, encouraged and organized; and soon two or three formal dances per week were given, open to patients of all diagnoses and ages. For two seasons past a dancing class for cardiacs under eighteen years has been conducted, under medical and nurse watchfulness, the instruction being given principally by stronger patients of this group.

Class attendance is compulsory as soon as the heart strength is considered adequate. The weaker and more diffident are gradually inducted. Many cardiacs have given special fancy dances in entertainments. This highly diversional exercise is not stressed, but is included in the direction, "to begin to walk, coast, golf, dance, etc., as soon as you feel able." Resident physicians' orders are occasionally given for more or less or none of these various exercises.

How Patients Are Affected.

For six months the dancing is out of doors. The spectators, too, are strongly affected for good. Doctor Brush asserts. One hardly recognizes these patients at such functions; they show color, animation, strength, good posture; pains and neurotic depressions have actually disappeared—and are the less likely to return. "I can dance again!" is a valued expression by patients.

There have been about twenty collapses or partial faints among all the thousands of dancers (30,000 patients cared for). About half of these were in cardiacs and found to be mildly hysterical or neurotic. Some heart patients have complained of increased pain, etc., the day after, but no instance of decompensating has followed. (Decompensation means failure of the heart to increase in power sufficiently to overcome valvular disease.) The pulse rate rises moderately. Many patients express a feeling of benefit from the exercise.

TUESDAY MORNING, SEPT. 6, 1921

The only way of getting more work out of some people is to cut down their pay.

All you have to do to play jazz music is to come in with a bad noise at the wrong time.

The motor tourists do not seem to suffer so much from dusty roads as from dusty throats.

Most of the motorists of this community cheerfully obey the law when a traffic cop is looking at them.

Some people can't see how women could ever have gotten the ballot before they learned to throw a baseball.

The people who claim there is no freedom of speech in this country probably never attended a ball game refereed by an unpopular umpire.

The trouble with some of these small colleges is that they built the classroom buildings before they did the stadium and the athletic field.

Opportunity does not often knock on our door, but plenty of canvassers have done so in these times since the factories began to shut down.

Formerly people worked so hard through the week that they used to sleep in church. They ought to be well slept out by Sunday morning in these times.

Formerly the young men used humbly to ask the privilege of calling on the girls, but now they condescend to appear when urgently summoned on the telephone.

There is one desirable form of export trade that can be promoted without loaning money to anybody to purchase our goods and that is the export of bolshevists.

Twenty-one quarts of half per cent. beer are said to be necessary to produce intoxication, but some people will work awfully hard if they see a hope of getting results.

RAILROAD CROSSING ACCIDENTS
In former years the effort was made to protect the public use of railroad crossings by abolishing many of these grade crossings and substituting bridges and underpasses. At present costs this is tremendously expensive. It is also a large bill if these crossings have to be protected by flagmen and gatemen.

The recklessness shown by a great number of people is illustrated by the fact that a few years ago on Long Island, New York, motorists used to break about 200 gates each year, as the result of trying to slip through after the gates had closed down.

There is a question how far the public should be asked to go in protecting heedless people from their own folly. There should be an automatic signal that will ring continuously when a train approaches a crossing in which the track is concealed from the road and it needs constant inspection to see that it is working. But people must learn to take care of themselves and not to expect the public to pay a heavy charge to prevent fools from rushing to their death.

THE SERVICE OF CAPITAL
People with bolshevistic tendencies seem to think the time will come when workers of all industries will be able to dispense with the functions performed by capitalists and secure for themselves the profits now taken by the owners of business. But they do not fully realize all the service that capital performs.

To operate an industry, funds must be provided to build a plant, buy modern tools and machinery, advance the money for raw materials and wages until goods can be sold and the money for the same collected. The majority of people can never save much money, even though they have large pay. So capital must be supplied by people who have ability to earn it and also to save and keep it.

Furthermore, there is much risk in business. Many enterprises fail. If people are to venture their money in this uncertain field, where so much capital is all the time being lost, they will expect a fairly good return for it. If you limited them to the interest they could get in a bank or in government bonds, they would never put a dollar into business.

It would of course be possible for any group of workers to undertake to carry on a business of their own, and if they had a good manager they might make it pay. But most workers seem to prefer to take a fixed wage rather than take the chances of business for themselves.

Most of them seem to feel that their chance of good pay and regular work are better in a business run by capitalists. Those that feel that the capitalist profit is unnecessary should set up for themselves. If they have the ability to run a business, they can become independent of capitalists, or better still, graduate into that class themselves.

What Will Woman Look Like in 1950?

Once the cry was, "Votes for women!" Now, if we are to believe the dreadful story that comes from Paris, the female slogan will soon be "Bobbed hair and beards for women." The former has already come among us like the sinister advance guard of a new sex, but until now no special significance had been attached to it. It was simply regarded as one of the freakish fads of eccentric femininity; but its relation to beards is suggested by the revelations that come from France. It begins to look as if it is a deliberate part of the program of the new woman, and the fact that France, where suffrage has not yet been granted to her and where its connection with the assumption of manliness would not seem so evident, has been selected as the hirsute nursery, for this yet infant industry appears to reveal a cunning and baleful purpose that makes us shudder to the ends of our mustachios.

What is contemplated is clearly the transposition of the sexes. The advanced ladies have always claimed that they were the equals of men in every way, and many of them have frankly admitted that they would have preferred to be men. They have played the feminine role long enough. Why should not the ingrowing consciousness of superiority be reflected in an outgrowing demonstration of masculinity? Why should a woman wear long hair on her head and no hair on her face? Why should she suffer in public esteem because she denudes her poll and enriches her countenance? The logic of equality relentlessly condemns all such artificial distinctions.

To bobbed hair and beards for women should be added a Constitutional amendment requiring long hair and smooth faces for men. The decadence of the masculine sex has been evident for a generation. The conquering spirit of masculinity has passed from him into the feminine soul. Bobbed hair and the beard feminine are but outward and visible signs of the great change that has come upon us. In twenty years from now the feminine ruler of the world may be as bald as Mr. Bryan and as bearded as the patriarchs. The age of equal whiskers looms before us. Room for the queen of beards if not of hearts!—Baltimore Sun.

The Key That Unlocks The Door To Long Living

The men of eighty-five and ninety years of age are not the rotund, well-fed, but thin, spare men, who live on a slender diet. Be as careful as he will, however, a man past middle age will occasionally eat too much of some article of food not suited to his constitution, causing indigestion or constipation and will need a dose of Chamberlain's Tablets to move his bowels and invigorate his stomach. When this is done, there is no reason why the average man should not live to a ripe old age.

2900 Immigrants Arrive

Preliminary examination of 2,900 alien passengers on board six steamers which arrived last Thursday disclosed that fewer than 200 face possibility of being returned because of immigration restrictions. The number, immigration officials said, may be considerably reduced or entirely wiped out on further examination. Some of those in excess of the monthly quota may be entitled to former residence exemptions. Others it was said, may replace some now within the allocated number who will be denied entrance for physical and other reasons. All those on the possible restricted lists are Greeks and Turks.

Reports received at Ellis Island indicate that a systematic effort is now being made by steamship companies to hold arrivals to the monthly quotas from each country.

No Substitute Offered
Say what you will about druggists offering something "just as good" because it pays a better profit, the fact still stands that ninety nine out of a hundred druggists recommend Chamberlain's Colic and Diarrhoea Remedy, when the best medicine for diarrhoea is asked for, and do so because they know from what their customers say of it, that it can be depended upon.

Brown Dies On Gallows

Proclaiming innocence to the end, Henry A. Brown, colored, 19 years old, convicted murderer of Harriet M. Kavanaugh, Naval Academy Hospital nurse, was hanged Thursday morning in the wire shop at the Baltimore City Jail.

As officials were affixing straps about those assembled about him and said, "I thank the public, both black and white, for all they have done for me. I know how I got into this trouble, and the man who got me in knows. Some day you all will know. I am going to meet my God. I'm not afraid to die. I know God will take care of me and I ask you all to pray for me."

Not A Delegate To State Convention

Ed. Marylander and Herald
I desire through your paper to make known to the Democratic men and women of Somerset county the reason for my action in withdrawing my certificate heretofore filed with the Board of Supervisors of Election as a candidate to the approaching Democratic State Convention.

As is well known, I was nominated for this post of honor without solicitation on my part by the nominating committee selected by the Democratic mass-meeting held in Princess Anne recently. This nominating committee was chosen by the Democratic State Central Committee by authority of said mass-meeting unanimously given. Following up this nomination, I filed my certificate on the theory that the men and women chosen by this nominating committee would not be opposed in the primaries as candidates for delegates to the State Convention.

In other words, I understood that the plan of making nominations at the Democratic mass-meeting was adopted solely with a view to avoid a primary contest over local offices. Indeed, it was so stated in the call for this mass-meeting. I now learn that since the action of the nominating committee two gentlemen who were present at the mass-meeting, participated in its action and made no objection to the nominating committee selected by the State Central Committee, viz: Dr. Fuller and Mr. Aden Davis, have filed certificates as candidates to the Democratic State Convention and two ladies who were not present at the mass-meeting have filed with them. This means a contest unless those of us nominated under the authority of the mass-meeting withdraw. I am to anxious too and do not to injure the Democratic party to engage in such a contest. I trust the men and women who have filed opposing certificates will enjoy themselves at the State Convention. Very respectfully,
Mrs. W. C. GLADDEN.

Hope Of Preventing War Futile

Hope of entirely abolishing war is "perfectly futile," President Harding told officers of the Army War College at Washington last Thursday.

Armies and navies probably will always be necessary, he said, no matter how far aspirations toward world peace lead.

The President blamed a lack of understanding for the warfare in West Virginia, and declared that a policy of understanding at home and abroad would solve many ills.

Practically every high officer of the Army was present in the small lecture room of the War College when the President spoke. Secretary of War Weeks and General Pershing also spoke briefly.

"No matter where the best aspiration of the world may lead us, there may never be a time without the necessity for armed forces," President Harding said.

"I believe with all my heart that we are going to diminish the burdens of armament. I believe with all my heart that we will have lesser armies and navies, but there may never be a time when there won't be the requisite defense agencies."

"It is perfectly futile to think there will never be conflict when we stop to think that in the 2000 years of Christian civilization we have only lately come to a civilized state of warfare and even that does not apply to all nations."

"We ought to have no conflict like that which is now distressing us in West Virginia," he said. "The condition is due, I believe, to a lack of understanding."

There ought never be conflict between nations, if those in authority have understanding, and I want you to be the defenders of an Administration that believes in a fullness of understanding at home and a fullness of understanding among the people of the world."

FIND NEW CITIES OF ANCIENT MAYA

Carnegie Institution's Central American Expedition Makes Important Discoveries.

OLD CAPITAL IS EXCAVATED

Greatest Native Civilization Which America Produced Once Flourished
In What Is Now Desolate and Forgotten Region.

Washington.—After having discovered and unearthed ancient and forgotten cities that once were the center of America's civilization, and after having begun to recover the ancient learning for the Maya people from their Indian descendants, the Carnegie Institution Central American expedition for 1921, which penetrated the region of Guatemala, in the department of Peten, at the base of the Yucatan peninsula, has returned to this city.

The expedition, under the direction of Dr. Sylvanus G. Morley, associate in American archeology of the institution, left Washington early in January. The other investigators were Dr. C. A. Guthe and William Gates, both research associates of the institution.

The activities of the field season consisted of the exploration of the forests of northern Peten in search for new centers of this ancient civilization under the direction of Doctor Morley, the excavation of Tayasal, the last Itza (a Maya tribe) capital, located upon an island in the Lake of Peten Itza, in northern central Peten, by Doctor Guthe, and a first-hand study of the Maya language as spoken today in northern British Honduras, and also by the Quiche, a Maya tribe living in the highlands of Guatemala, by Mr. Gates.

Unearth Ancient Cities.
Following along the chicle (the substance from which chewing gum is made) trails which traverse this region, Doctor Morley's party discovered several new cities during the course of the field season, in what appears to have been the very heart of the old Maya empire.

Doctor Guthe's excavations at Tayasal proved equally fruitful. The principal plaza of that city was located, and the work of clearing away the earth and fallen masonry from the principal structures was commenced.

The peninsula of Yucatan juts up into the Gulf of Mexico like the great thumb of a giant hand, pointing northward. It is 250 miles wide, and before it finally takes root in the continental land mass far to the south, gradually merging into the foothills of the Cordillera, it is 400 miles long.

This region, a limestone formation of recent geological age, has gradually emerged from the floor of the Caribbean sea, and is now overgrown with a dense sub-tropical jungle. It supports, in fact, an almost continuous forest of mahogany, rubber, Santa Maria, ceiba, chicle-sapote (the "chewing gum" tree), and many other sub-tropical trees, which so completely covers the country that one may travel in this bush for days without seeing an open space large enough to accommodate a modern bungalow comfortably.

In this now desolate and forgotten region there developed during the first fifteen centuries of the Christian era the greatest native civilization which America produced, namely, that of the ancient Maya of southern Mexico and northern Central America.

Here great cities grew up, filled with temples, pyramids, palaces and monasteries, built of finely carved limestone, which were grouped around paved squares and courts.

Once Brilliant People.
In these spacious plazas beautifully sculptured monuments were erected, their sides inscribed with elaborate hieroglyphic writings, setting forth important historical and astronomical facts. A dense population, highly organized under strongly centralized governments, flourished in the region, the vanguard of civilization in the New World.

But in the course of centuries pestilence, drought, civil war and famine overtook the Maya, so that when the Spaniards landed on the east coast of Yucatan in 1517, under Francisco de Montejo, the last remnant of this once brilliant people fell an easy prey to the shock of foreign conquest, and they were speedily reduced to dependence and slavery. Their once magnificent cities were abandoned, vast sections being actually depopulated, and the tropical jungle again crept over the region, until today these former centers of life and human activity lie buried in the grip of a dense forest, and crumbling walls and piles of fallen masonry overgrown with giant trees alone bear melancholy witness to former pomp and glory.

Investigations in this remote and inaccessible region may only be carried on under enormous difficulties. It is only very slowly, with infinite pains and at high cost, that this region is being made to yield its archeological secrets and the truth about our forgotten native American civilization is gradually being made known.

Nickel Shine Back in Boston.

First Soldiers' Home.
The Soldiers' home at Washington, the first institution of the kind in the United States, was established in 1861. A tract of land for the purpose, 200 acres in extent, was purchased with a sum of money levied by Gen. Winfield Scott on the City of Mexico during the war with that country. There are now several branches of the national home and state homes in twenty-seven states.

Environment.
We are very much what others think us. The reception our observations meet with gives us courage to proceed or damps our efforts. A man is a wit and a philosopher in one place who dares not open his mouth and is considered a blockhead in another. In some companies nothing will go down but coarse, practical jests, while the finest remark or sarcasm would be disregarded.—Hazlett.

Attempt to Burn Out Snake-Caused Big Loss

A six-foot blacksnake refused to move from his den under a stump, and W. H. Winter, a farmer of Augusta, Ky., on whose property the snake had taken up a residence, decided to smoke out the reptile. Fire spread from the stump to a 20-acre hay field. Appeals were sent to the fire department and farmers hurried to the scene to help extinguish the flames. At one time it seemed as though the fire would spread to the city, but a timely shower helped extinguish the flames. The snake escaped.

DOG EATS WIRE MUZZLES

Owner Can't Give Him Away, Either—
He Always Comes Back He Tells Court.

New York.—George Lear of Brooklyn appeared in the Fifth Avenue court to answer a summons for allowing his dog to roam the street unmuzzled.

"Judge, as soon as I put a muzzle on him he eats it up," said the defendant.

"Do you mean to say he eats the wire ones, too?" asked the magistrate. "Yes, your honor. I have tried all kinds," replied Lear.

"Have you tried one made of reinforced concrete?" queried the magistrate. "If he ate his way through the concrete he would probably be too tired to tackle the steel."

Magistrate Geismar told Lear he would have to keep the dog muzzled or get rid of it.

"Judge, I have tried that, too. Several times I've tied him up and sent for the S. P. C. A., but somehow or other, by the time they arrived the dog was missing only to return after the dog catchers had left."

"One dollar fine," said the court. As Lear walked over to the clerk to pay his fine he remarked: "This is easy. I thought I was going to get life."

CAPTURED BY KINDNESS

This is Mrs. Alice J. Farrell and her kangaroo. The kangaroo was here only temporarily. Both were on the liner Sonoma, bound from Sydney for San Francisco, when two kangaroos in the cargo escaped. One was caught; the other all but bounded into the sea in a rage, before Mrs. Farrell smiled and coaxed it back into captivity.

That was after the kangaroo had sent one sailor flying with a left swing of the tail.

American Association Also Aids 1,300,000 Children in Polish Districts.

Warsaw.—Fifteen thousand university students in the main educational centers of Warsaw, Lemberg, Cracow, Lublin, Posen and Vilna, are being fed one meal a day by the American relief administration of the European children's fund this summer. Warsaw has five kitchens devoted to serving food to 3,224 students, the other towns having smaller numbers.

The Polish ministry of approvisionnement has been assisting in this work, having furnished the American relief workers with 180,000 pounds of potatoes at 50 per cent below market price. Government authorities of Posen made an out-and-out gift of 20,000 pounds of potatoes to be used locally in the student feeding.

The students benefiting by this special provision are over seventeen years old. In addition to this task the relief workers are feeding more than 1,300,000 children in Poland up to the age of seventeen years.

"Fresh" Eggs Hatch in Store.
Paducah, Ky.—Fourteen chicks hatched out of eggs in the bottom layer of a crate at a market house here, were discovered after the top layers had been sold as fresh eggs.

The chicks, which were several days old, apparently had been mothered by the heat wave and were in splendid health.

The owner sold them for several times the value of fresh eggs.

Citizens to Curb Speeders.
Greenville, S. C.—"Speed limit 25 miles per hour. Drive slow and see our country; drive fast and see our jails." This is the sign that Sheriff Rector posted on all the leading highways and a hundred citizens were secretly sworn in as policemen to help curb the speed demons.

When you come right down to reason, what is there to "discount" tires—

THE next time a friend comes to you all excited about some wonderful tire bargain—ask him how much value he ought to get for each dollar of tire money.

It's astonishing that any car owner today should not know all the tire service he is entitled to.

Nor how to check up between the economy of par quality on one hand—and big discounts, surplus stocks, discontinued lines and retreads on the other.

For two years U. S. Tire makers have been telling the American people all about tires.

They have laid open the tire business from every angle.

They have always led the fight for better tires.

They have consistently maintained quality first standards with certain economy for the tire buyer.

They have established 92 Factory Branches all over the country. Perfecting U. S. distribution so that you get a fresh, live tire every time you buy a U. S. Tire.

So when a man once decides on U. S. Tires he knows what he is getting in quality—service—economy.

In support of his own judgment he gets the pledged word and reputation of the largest and most successful tire concern in the world.

A sound reason for the fact that you see more U. S. Tires on more cars than ever this year.

"You get a fresh, live tire every time you buy a U. S. Tire."

Lettie Changes Her Mind

By MURIEL BLAIR

(© 1921, Western Newspaper Union.)

Lettie's voice rose high and clear above the accompaniment that she played upon the cracked old piano. When Lettie sang she lost herself in the ecstasy of the melody. It was a song from "Rigoletto," but she did not know that; she had found the music among a miscellany left by the last summer boarder.

"Dad that girl!" exclaimed Mrs. French, setting down her pans. She emerged from the kitchen into the parlor where Lettie sat.

"I wish you'd have a little consideration for the boarders, Lettie," she said querulously. "Didn't you know Miss Latham's gone to her room with a sick headache? And you must choose this time to screech like a sick owl in the woods."

Lettie came back to earth with a sigh. "I'm sorry, mother," she said and turned from the piano. Mrs. French went back into her kitchen again.

Just then the parlor door opened and Miss Latham entered. Nobody would have guessed that this was the famous singer of the opera house, who was proudly displayed upon the billboards nightly during the season.

"Don't stop for me, Lettie," she said. "Won't you sing that again? Who taught you to sing?"

"Oh, it just comes natural, I reckon," said Lettie, with an embarrassed laugh.

"But, my dear, that was wonderful. Don't you know that you have a remarkable voice?" Miss Latham asked. "If it were trained you might have a great future before you."

Lettie left the piano stool. "You mean that I might get to sing at concerts?" she asked breathlessly. "Do you really think I ever could?"

"Oh, Lettie, anybody can sing at concerts. I mean something really big. Wouldn't you like to?"

"Would you like me to speak to a friend of mine in the city?" Miss Latham asked. "When I go back, I mean. Something might come of it, you know. Of course you would have to mention the matter to your mother."

Lettie sighed. Yes, there would be the trouble. Her mother and William. What would he say?

The two impulses drew her in different ways. One way lay fame and joy and beauty; the other duty, but duty consecrated by love and wifehood.

She looked at William more critically than usual that evening.

"William, how would you like to go to town?" asked Lettie. "I mean, for a couple of years, maybe, before we get married."

William's brow clouded. He looked sullenly at her. "You mean that you want to put off our marriage?" he asked.

"Don't you want me to have a little happiness before we are married?" asked Lettie.

She spoke sharply, conscious of the intolerable struggle. William answered her thoughts.

"I know if you leave Stapleton you won't ever come back," he said.

"I reckon you're too mean to live!" cried Lettie angrily, and stood before him with flaming cheeks. "Take your ring back if you want to talk that way."

William took the ring clumsily.

"If you change your mind, Lettie," he began heavily. But Lettie had left him. She was in Miss Latham's room upon her knees, sobbing.

"You must take me with you," she wept. "I can't stay here—I can't. I want to live in the town, to see the faces of people, to cultivate myself—"

Miss Latham laid her hand on the girl's head.

"There is another side to the picture, my dear," she said. "Do you realize what you will have to go through—the days of labor, the nights of suffering, the loss of every ideal, the bruising of your heart, the shattered hopes of life and the promise of what might have been, vanishing with the passing years? Lettie," she said, earnestly, "if I could have the past ten years over again they would be much different. But I'll speak to the friend I told you of when I return—if you ask me again tomorrow."

Lettie went slowly down the stairs. Her mental pulse had come back to her. A sudden revulsion of feeling came over her. The tears ran down her cheeks.

A man stepped lightly out of the darkness.

"Lettie," he said, "I want to say—I don't want to stand in your light. I want you to go—I want you to be happy. Perhaps you'll think of me some time."

Lettie stretched out her arms and drew his head down to her own. "I'm going to stay, William," she said.

And Miss Latham, at her window above, heard and was glad.

Modern Dreadnaughts.

Victorio Caniberti, an Italian naval constructor, is said to have been the originator of the term "dreadnaught" as applied to naval vessels. This term is applied to a type of battleship which carried, besides a numerous battery of heavy guns, armament of light torpedo defense guns. The uniform strength of an armament in a dreadnaught supplies a unity of strength and protection and a higher speed than is obtained by other types of battleships. A dreadnaught has an unusual large displacement in proportion to the rest of her dimensions.

You'll enjoy the sport of rolling 'em with P. A.!

FIRST thing you do next—go get some makin' papers and some Prince Albert tobacco and puff away, on a home made cigarette that will hit on all your smoke cylinders!

No use sitting-by and saying maybe you'll cash this hunch tomorrow. Do it while the going's good, for man-o-man, you can't figure out what you're passing by! Such flavor, such coolness, such more-ish-ness—well, the only way to get the words emphatic enough is to go to it and know yourself!

And, besides Prince Albert's delightful flavor, there's its freedom from bite and parch which is cut out by our exclusive patented process! Certainly—you smoke P. A. from sun up till you slip between the sheets without a comeback.

Prince Albert is the tobacco that revolutionized pipe smoking. If you never could smoke a pipe—forget it! You can—AND YOU WILL—if you use Prince Albert for packing! It's a smoke revelation in a jimmy pipe or a cigarette!

Prince Albert is sold in heavy red bags, tidy red tins, hand-some pouches and half-pound tin containers, and in the pound crystal glass humidor with sponge moisture trap.

Pure, Fresh Candy

When you walk up to the door and SHE answers the bell—it's lucky you have the candy. You'd be speechless otherwise.

You hand it to her with, "Sweets to the sweet," (if you have the nerve) and she opens it. Gee! You're glad you bought it here 'cause you know it's fresh and pure!

It's pretty small, after you have won her with sweet food and sweeter words, to forget that she likes either after you're married.

Stop in today and get a box of chocolates or bon bons.

Haiti's Forest Wealth.

Large forests of pines are to be found in the mountains in the interior of Haiti, but lack of transportation makes it impossible to utilize this timber even for domestic needs. Large quantities of pine are imported from the United States. A few small saw-mills are located in various sections of the island, but these cannot begin to supply the local markets. Dyewoods are plentiful.

Apt Description.

Florence was told to sit on the front steps and not to go away. A neighbor of ours who wore heavy shell-rimmed glasses was very fond of her and happened to pass by while she was sitting there. He stopped and spoke to her—at the same time producing a bag of candy. Running into the house she exclaimed: "Oh, mamma, look what I got from the op'ra glasses man."—Chicago American.

RITCHIE'S PROGRAM PRESENTED

Graphic Report Of Commission's Subcommittee Is Adopted

Final adoption last Wednesday night of the report of the reorganization commission's subcommittee presents graphically, in concrete form, the principles on which, in the committee's opinion, economical and efficient government should be founded.

The presentation of these principles, designed to reflect Maryland history, Maryland traditions and Maryland conditions, is made in the preamble of the 107-page detailed report.

This preamble, with the great body of the detailed recommendations, is recognized as largely, if not wholly, the work of Governor Ritchie. It reviews the progress of governmental reform in Maryland, pointing to the successive changes in administrative agencies. It discusses the governmental reorganization of other States; but, for the Maryland plan, it advances basic principles formed from or formed to fit Maryland conditions.

The detailed recommendations of the report present nothing that the committee had not already announced publicly.

It provides for 16 major and three minor departments of State government. It recommends, too, a Governor's advisory council of the heads of 12 of the major departments and the Police Commissioner of Baltimore. It establishes no hard-and-fast rule of individual administrative heads as against administration by boards or commissions. It demonstrates an actual saving of $145,000 a year in officials' salaries and compensation alone. It provides for the retention of unpaid boards in the management of State institutions.

It declares that there is no need for further centralization of power in the Governor's hands, but recommends only a situation which will keep the Governor more closely in touch with his departmental heads.

The report points out that only two constitutional amendments will be necessary to accomplish the proposed changes. "All recommendations," it says, "can be put into effect through legislative enactments except two—(a) the increase in the Comptroller's salary and the extension of his and the Treasurer's term to four years, and (b) the abolishment of the office of State Librarian. These require two constitutional amendments."

Our Appreciation And Thanks

We appreciate the number of subscribers who have renewed their subscriptions during the past few weeks. We need the money to pay our bills as the cost of publishing a paper is high and there seems to be no tendency toward a reduction. We have not sent out any statements of subscription accounts for the past year and have not stopped the paper of any one when their subscription expired. If you will look on the label it will inform you if in arrears and if so please send $1.50. We know that $1.50 a year seems high to some and would be pleased if we could make a reduction in price at this time but it is impossible under the present high cost of paper and labor. We have some financial obligations that are coming due and if you can help us to stem the tide we will greatly appreciate your assistance. Come in and get your name on the roll of honor; you will feel better and we will be delighted.

Why The Teeth Chatter

The little muscles which close the jaw are acted upon by the cold in such a way that they pull the jaw up and let it fall by its own weight, says the Popular Science Monthly. This, repeated many times, causes the teeth to click together, and produce what is called "chattering."

"You think of it in connection with your teeth because it is the teeth which makes the sound, but the cause lies in the muscles used in chewing or in opening your mouth when you speak. The chattering occurs in spite of the will or brain. You have little control over it, and can stop it only by clenching the teeth."

It is really a mild variety of spasm caused by the cold, which acts on the jaw muscles in much the same way that some poisons produce muscular spasms which cannot be controlled."

THE Ford worm-driven, One-Ton Truck with demountable rims and pneumatic tires, are dependable, as well as serviceable. This, probably more than any other factor, accounts for their popularity. There is no evidence so convincing as that which comes from long practical experience. Like the Ford car, the Ford One-Ton Truck—Ford-built throughout—has proven itself. In it are combined the Ford principles of simplicity, with strength, lowest first cost, lowest operating cost, durability.

In the city, on the farm, carrying its loads between cities—everywhere you will find the Ford One-Ton Truck doing duty. Merchants, manufacturers, farmers, have come to know it as the truck of utmost service.

"Ford—A Business Utility" is a new booklet of solid facts and figures about Ford cars and the Ford One-Ton Truck in business service. Get a copy. They are free for the asking.

MORE and more every day the demand for Fordson Tractor increases because the Fordson has demonstrated so much usefulness, so much economy, so much labor saving, so much money saving, along so many lines of activity. The farmer has discovered that not only for plowing, harrowing, discing, seeding, mowing, reaping or threshing, but a multitude of other uses; cutting wood; feed; grinding feed; churning; washing; furnishing water in the house; making electric light possible in the house and around the barns, so that, as a matter of fact, there is hardly an hour in the day when the Tractor cannot be made a profitable servant. There is ditching to do; there are roads to fix; and so on all down along the line of the enormous calls that constantly face the farmer the Fordson steps in and does the work, shoulders the complete burden of the toil and the hard work, one might almost say "drudgery." A card to me will bring one to your door.

BANK NOTES TO BE SMALLER

Government Plans Radical Changes
In Form of Paper Money

The Government will soon radically change the form of its paper money, which has remained unaltered almost since the foundation of the Republic. Bills will be made smaller.

Several reasons dictate the change. First, is that of economy. The paper which is now used, because of a secret process, is only obtainable at a high cost. The process, perfected under the direction of the late Senator W. Murray Crane, is said to weave silk threads in the paper in such a manner as to defy successful imitation.

Another reason for the change as explained by a Treasury official is wholly practical. He said:

"The bills now are really adapted only to persons of large hands and long fingers. A shorter and smaller note will be more easily counted by tellers, cashiers and all who have to handle large sums of money."

Additional safeguards against counterfeiting constitute another reason for the decision to issue new notes. The suggestion is being considered that bills of different denominations be issued in varying sizes.

Such a scheme, it is pointed out, will make it impossible to raise a two-dollar note to a twenty.

Other changes contemplated are the use of distinctive backs for the same denomination of all issues and the placing of the legends required by law on the face of the notes and not on the back as at present.

Second Annual Field Meeting

The farmers of Somerset county have planned to hold their second annual field meeting the third week in September. An interesting program is being arranged for the morning and afternoon sessions. The program in the morning will include farm woodlot demonstration, showing proper thinning and handling of the pine. A poultry culling demonstration will also be given by the State Poultry Specialist.

It is expected that music will be furnished by a band during the lunch hour.

There will be a milk booth in charge of club girls to encourage the increased use of milk. Talks will be given for the ladies at the morning meeting. There will be a tractor and farm machinery exhibit and various games and sports will be held to occupy the morning.

The afternoon program will include short talks by several National and State leaders in agriculture and farmers organizations.

Newspaper Men To Meet

Governor Ritchie, of Maryland, will be the chief guest at the fall meeting of the Delmarva Press Association and the Maryland Press Association, at Dover, Del., on Monday and Tuesday, September 26th and 27th. Invitations have been extended by S. E. Shannahan, of Easton, who is president of the Delmarva Association and secretary of the Maryland Association. Indications are that it will be the best attended meeting yet held by these associations, which comprise representatives of all the newspapers in Delaware and the Eastern Shore of Maryland. The program includes an oyster roast, airplane trips over Maryland and Delaware and the Chesapeake Bay and many other features.

Mrs. F. W. Wilson and son, Frederick, of Pocomoke City, and Miss Anna Andrews and Miss Sherwood, of Newark, N. J., were visitors of Mr. and Mrs. Charles M. Dashiell, at Mt. Vernon, Monday of last week.

CHAUTAQUA HERE NEXT WEEK

Will Be Held In Auditorium Wednesday, Thursday And Friday

The Swarthmore Chautauqua is coming to Princess Anne September 21st, 1921, and will entertain you royally for three days, giving you varied programs in the afternoons as well as evenings. The program follows:

Wednesday Afternoon—Series Lecture, Chautauqua Superintendent; Concert, Cartwright Brothers Quartet; Junior Chautauqua. Evening—Concert, Cartwright Brothers Quartet; Lecture, Julius Caesar Nayphe, "An Oriental Pageant."

Thursday Afternoon—Series Lecture, Chautauqua Superintendent; Concert, The Artists Trio; Junior Chautauqua. Evening—Concert, The Artists Trio; Lecture, Harry R. McKee, "Your Community in Revolution."

Friday Afternoon—Series Lecture, Chautauqua Superintendent; Entertainment, Beatrice Weller, Cartoonist; Junior Chautauqua. Evening—Junior Chautauqua Stunt Party, by Junior Chautauquans; Full Concert, Irish Minstrels.

The guarantors realize that operating on a mutual partnership basis the Swarthmore Chautauqua can and does present the best program possible for the money involved. With the association performing those parts of the work which are technical and professional, and with the community doing those things which are local, the highest efficiency is reached.

Thus, it is evident that the success of Chautauqua depends upon each member of our community. Too, a certain number of season tickets must be sold before September 21st. Will you do your bit and buy one season ticket?—$1.50 each.

Remember, these tickets are interchangeable; if one member of the family can't come another can. Because of the above-mentioned advantage your ticket is sure to benefit somebody.

Auditorium Attractions This Week

Strong dramatic pictures are a vital force in American life today. One of the best is "The Kentuckians," a picture of the famous novel of the same name by John Fox, Jr., made by Charles Maigne for Paramount. It will be shown at the Auditorium tonight, Tuesday. This is a beautiful photoplay of life in the Blue Grass State, and Monte Blue is the featured player. The story deals with the feuds between the mountaineers and the aristocratic dwellers of the lower levels. There is a charming love story, and exceptionally dramatic situations abound. The leading feminine role is in the hands of Diana Allen, with the following cast: Wilfred Lytell, Frank Joyner, J. H. Gilmour, John Milner, Thomas S. Brown, J. W. Johnston, Russell Parker, John Carr, Albert Hewitt, Eugene Woodward, Wesley Jenkins and Grace Reals.

The mere announcement that Bryant Washburn is to be seen in a new comedy should be sufficient to pack any motion picture theatre with his admirers. It follows, therefore, when we inform you that he will be seen on Thursday night in "An Amateur Devil," his latest Paramount comedy. It is a delightful story and pretty Ann May is his leading woman. Others in the cast are Charles Wynette, Christine Gray, Norris Johnson, Sidney Bracey, Graham Petty, and Anna Hernandez.

Saturday night William Farnum will be the attraction in "The Greatest Sacrifice," and Fatty Arbuckle in "Moonshine."

Centreville Banker Shoots Self

William L. Holton, 61 years old, teller of the Centreville National Bank, shot himself in the head at the bank last Thursday afternoon.

No reason has been assigned for Mr. Holton's act. He was not involved in any way at the bank nor, so far as is known, was he in poor health. He had lost no time at the bank recently.

Going into a corridor of the bank, Mr. Holton locked the door. A moment later other persons in the bank heard a shot and tried to get into the corridor. The locked door was broken and Mr. Holton found with a bullet wound in his head and a pistol at his side. He was rushed to the Eastern Hospital where, it is said, he is in a critical condition.

G. O. P. Organization Wins In Primary

The organization ticket in the Republican primary last Friday won out. J. Arthur White, organization, leading Harry T. Phoebeus for County Commissioner.

Register of Wills—Lafayette Ruark, organization, leading Vernon C. Ward. Sheriff—Charles S. Dryden, organization, leading Charles C. Byrd and H. Frank Conner.

Central Committee—James I. Dennis, colored; Bernard C. Dryden, Isaac H. Tawes and William L. Whittington, leading George W. Lawson and John B. Robins, of the Robins faction.

PREVENTING FIRES IN SCHOOLS

Deputy State Fire Marshal Urges Precaution

Deputy State Fire Marshal George R. Percy has written a letter to the Marylander and Herald in which he sets forth the importance of school authorities and teachers doing everything within their power to see that school children are at all times properly safeguarded against fire. His letter in part follows:

"Those who are charged with the responsibility of the care of the school children should be sure that everything has been done to insure their safety. Be sure that every fire hazard has been removed; that the heating plant in each building is properly installed and in correct repair; that approved fire extinguishers have been installed when and where needed; that the installation of the electrical wiring has been thoroughly inspected and that same is in good condition, and that exits and fire escapes are in proper shape.

"Ten per cent. of all accidental deaths in this country result from fire. Each year a great many of our school houses in the United States burn. Do not let it be said that any school house burns, or a child loses its life, as a result of your neglect or inattention.

"Eighty-five per cent. of the fires of this country are caused by carelessness, a proportionate part of which fires are in schools, not thru the carelessness of children, but thru the carelessness of those charged with the legal obligation of safeguarding the limb and life of your child. This responsibility rests upon every school official, including teachers.

"Fire drills are extremely important and should be held at least twice a month, but perfection of drilling is of little value if fire exits are omitted or improperly designed, or if doors are locked or do not open outward. All doors to school buildings should open outward and should be equipped with panic release bar latches.

"Let each and every citizen of the state use their endeavors to reduce the awful fire waste which visits our state and nation each year."

Contracts Let For 160 Miles Of Road

The State Roads Commission has completed its year, so far as awarding contracts for road construction is concerned. There are several contracts to be awarded, but they are of minor importance.

Contracts awarded by the Commission this year involve the construction of 160 miles of road and the expenditure of $3,500,000. Concrete construction has cost not far below $35,000 a mile—regarded as a low figure, especially when compared with what it is costing the neighboring state of Pennsylvania—but the average has been brought down by the percentage of gravel roads which have been built or which are under contract.

While the passage of a Federal aid highway measure is anticipated upon the convening of Congress after the recess, Federal funds from such legislation will not be available until the expiration of six months from the date of its passage. The Federal aid measure, which was before Congress when that body took a recess, is agreeable to the Maryland authorities, those provisions in the Townsend bill which the Marylanders objected having been removed from the present measure, which is a compromise between the Townsend and the Dowell bills.

John N. Mackall, chairman of the State Roads Commission, and Philip B. Perleman, Secretary of State, fought hard against the Townsend bill.

Injured In Auto Accident

Mr. Alvin C. Blades, 30 years old, an automobile dealer, was seriously, if not fatally, injured Monday night of last week when struck by a machine driven by J. Joshua Johnson, colored, of Marumaco, Md. Blades had just closed his garage and was riding home on a bicycle when the collision occurred on Central Main street.

The car and Blades were traveling in opposite directions when the impact took place. Blades was thrown from his wheel and was picked up unconscious. It is alleged the driver stopped the car, went to the injured man, discovered no heart action was discernable and then made the remark to his companion that "this is no place for us."

Then, it is alleged, he jumped in the machine again, procured some gasoline at a garage and proceeded to Marumaco, about 10 miles from Crisfield, where Officer Powell, of the State police, later arrested them. Johnson is in jail awaiting developments of Blades' condition, who is suffering from concussion of the brain, broken ribs and possible internal injuries.

NEW TREASURY OFFERINGS

Include Three-Year Notes And Three And Six Months Certificates

A net deficit of $161,464,774 in the current expenses of the Government for the first two months of the present fiscal year was announced last Thursday by Secretary Mellon in a letter to banking institutions offering for subscription combined issues of Treasury obligations of about $600,000,000, dated September 15.

"With the payment of income and profits taxes in September, however," Mr. Mellon said, "there should be, according to the best information now available, a small net current surplus for the quarter."

The Treasury, he exclaimed, has maturities of principal and interest amounting to $635,000,000 falling due September 15 and similarly $527,000,000 due October 15. Against the payments, he said, the Treasury expects to receive during September about $525,000,000 from income and profits taxes, in addition to ordinary revenue from other sources. The Treasury was offering the new obligations, he continued, to provide for its further requirements, including current disbursements, and in furtherance of its announced plan of dealing with the short-dated debt.

The new issues consist of three-year 5 1/2 per cent. Treasury notes, six-month 5 per cent. Treasury certificates and one-year 5 1/2 per cent. Treasury certificates. This issue of Treasury notes is the second offering of these obligations which were adopted by Mr. Mellon as a means of distributing the short-dated debt over the period from 1923 to 1928.

The interest rate on the new notes and the one-year certificates is 1/2 per cent. less than on the initial offering last June. The interest rate on the six-month certificates is 1/2 per cent. less than on the previous issue for a similar maturity. The reductions in the interest rates on the Government paper, Treasury officials said, indicate an easier money market.

Important progress has been made, Mr. Mellon said, in the distribution of the Victory-Liberty Loan maturity, the amount of these notes outstanding being reduced from $4,022,116,555 on May 31 to $3,806,172,250 on August 31. The amount of Victory notes originally issued was $4,495,374,300, he added, so that this represents a total reduction of about $689,000,000.

Teachers' Salaries Must Not Be Cut

Teachers' salaries in the counties must not be cut by the county commissioners below the minimum prescribed at the last session of the State Legislature, no matter what else in the school budget may be pared down, according to an opinion given by Attorney-General Armstrong last Wednesday to George H. Reavis, Assistant State Superintendent of Education. Mr. Reavis asked for the ruling because of two apparently conflicting laws.

One law provides that the county commissioners must approve the budgets submitted by the County Board of Education, when the budgets do not make necessary a levy of more than 40 cents on every $100 of the tax assessment, but that they may insist that the budgets come within this limit. The other law provides minimum salaries for teachers. In the opinion Mr. Armstrong states:

"If it shall appear that the County Commissioners have levied in full for the amounts required to pay teachers' salaries and have disapproved only certain other items, no legal question will arise. If, however, the County Commissioners decline to exceed the 40-cent limit imposed upon them by law, and in order to remain within it disapprove in part the item of the budget relating to teachers' salaries, the difficulty submitted by your inquiry is definitely presented."

Further on the opinion states: "There can be no doubt . . . that the Legislature desired minimum salaries of teachers to be enlarged and did not intend that the purpose should be defeated by the technical construction of any other act passed at the same session. . . . It is my view that the County Commissioners are bound by the provision of section 60, which states that 'they shall levy sufficient funds to meet the scale of salaries provided for in this section.'"

Would Cut Oyster Season

Harrison W. Vickers, chairman of the Conservation Commission, is in favor of shortening the oyster season by one month. Mr. Vickers would eliminate September from the oyster calendar. It is not unlikely that legislation looking to this end will be introduced at Annapolis next year.

On account of the warm weather, oysters are usually not in the best of condition during September, it is explained; the demand for them is not heavy. On the other hand, the oyster fleet's maintenance during September is an expense which the Conservation Commission would gladly be rid of.

FREDERICK CLUB CAPTURES MARYLAND TITLE

Governor Ritchie And Nearly 4,000 Base Ball Fans See Blue Ridge Leagues Play Princess Anne In Twin Bill At Oriole Park

Frederick, the winner of the pennant in the Blue Ridge League, won more honors last Saturday at Oriole Park, Baltimore, when it beat Princess Anne, the contender for the Maryland base ball championship and which represented the Eastern Shore, 7 to 4 and 9 to 3. The State series was the best four out of seven games and the first victory was sufficient for the Frederickians to take home the bacon. Frederick captured five out of six games.

Governor Ritchie was the honored guest. The official paid attendance was 3,671. The gross receipts amounted to $2,303.50, which was the largest of the series, the first two games being played in Frederick and the second two at Salisbury.

The total paid attendance for the entire series was 9,567 and the net receipts $6,591.06. Each club's share amounted to $1,005.31. The Frederick players received $1,949.11 and those who wore Princess Anne's colors, $1,295.41.

In the opening game of the Maryland base ball series held at Frederick last Tuesday afternoon the Princess Anne team was defeated by the Frederick club by a score of 3 to 0.

The attendance was all that was expected, nearly 1,200 persons paying their way into the ball yard. Bill King, who pitched Frederick to this year's Blue Ridge League pennant, held the upper hand and the boys from Somerset county could not fathom his delivery. Score:

Hummer pitched a wonderful game of base ball for seven innings, but weakened in the eighth, although Frederick did not score. It was in the ninth that the Blue Riders crossed the plate.

Hummer's work for six and a third rounds was perfect. Not a man saw first base. He did not allow a hit or a pass. As fast as the Frederickians came to the bat they turned about and returned to the bench, except when the last man was retired.

Harold Tries Out a Love Test

By FREDERICK CLARKE

(© 1921, Western Newspaper Union.)

"It would take a wise girl to fool me," boasted Harold Mercer. "You have no idea how a fellow with money and position is beset with the traps and allurements of the coquette; and the average woman, in my experience, is a selfish, sordid creature."

"While I entirely disagree with you, and beg leave to remind you of your estimable sister, Lucy," retorted his friend, Dale Burton, "what is the special cause of this outbreak at the present time, may I ask?"

"Just this," explained Harold. "We are going to summer for two weeks at Pleasant Lake. Lucy insists that we shall seek out her friend, a Miss Etta Morris. I've seen her portrait, and I am going to determine if there is one woman in the world who really cares for a man for himself alone."

"As how, now?" propounded Dale, dubiously.

"I have a simple plan. It is an old one, I will admit, but it results I am after. Nothing would please Lucy better than to have this Miss Morris for a sister-in-law. Nothing would give me more delight than to find a real, genuine-hearted girl who thought more of love than dollars. Without letting either of them know it, we will exchange identities. You shall be Harold Mercer, the gentleman of leisure, the heir to the Mercer fortune. I will become Dale Burton."

When the two young men arrived at Pleasant Lake next day, Dale Burton was the brother of Miss Morris' dearest friend. They were introduced.

Then with a few words that made Harold wince, as to her pleasure at meeting "the fiancé of her dearest friend," Miss Morris turned to welcome the pretended brother of Lucy Mercer.

"Well," yawned Harold, dismally, as he and his friend reached their hotel later, "you seem to have made a hit."

"Think so?" smiled Dale, coolly. "I must say she's a delightful piece of perfect femininity. Of course, though, she wishes to make dear Lucy's brother the guest of honor!"

"Humph!" growled Harold, and went to bed wretched and jealous, and deciding that he had stumbled into an unpleasant pit of his own making.

Every time after that, whenever he met Miss Morris, Harold felt like a man who had lost a precious treasure.

"Yes, I'm going home tomorrow," declared Harold, a week later. "I've made a fool of myself and missed the chance of my life. I think you had better back out of the dilemma, too, Dale," he advised, anxiously.

"The girl has a beautiful confiding spirit, and may—may take a fancy to you," "Nonsense!" jeered Dale. "It's just her natural thoughtfulness for Lucy's brother, don't you see?"

Harold was returning from a solitary tramp down a country road, when he ran across Dale, rushing along in a great state of excitement.

"Hey, Harold!" he burst forth, "here's work for the friends of Miss Morris. Somebody broke into the house this afternoon and stole all her jewelry!"

Harold said he met three rough-looking strangers, one of them carrying a gun, an hour previous proceeding down a country road away from the village. He took up the trail.

Harold traced them to a campfire in the woods, surprised them and made a dash for a jewel case one of the thieves had dropped; next for the gun.

"March—to the town!" ordered Harold, extending the weapon, and an hour later he had safely caged his captives.

He was solemn as an owl as he returned the jewelry to Miss Morris. Her gratitude and friendliness warmed up his heart little. She insisted that he was thoughtful, valiant, and had done her a grateful service. Then he spoke of going away, and her lovely face fell. He could not help it—reserve to the winds! He was a forlorn human being, and he told his love.

"But what about Lucy," she began, and was interrupted by a violent start on the part of her visitor. His eye had fallen on an album open on her writing desk. Its first picture showed—himself! The light fairly blazed across his bewildered mind.

"Then—then—" gasped Harold, "you knew!"

"That you were really Lucy's brother?" questioned Etta, shyly. "Yes, from the first. From the very first, too," she continued, "I—"

She paused in faltering confusion Harold Mercer had learned his lesson. No more doubt, duplicity or analysis now! He had found his fate, he was sure of it, and he kissed the sweet hands away from the blushing face as he told Etta so.

1 Big Wild-Life Preserve.

The Rockefeller foundation has purchased a tract of country comprising 85,000 acres to the state of Louisiana. This tract is known as the Grand Chenier Wild-Life Refuge and was purchased in order to preserve the wild life of the country. Southern Baptists Send Missionaries To Practically Every Side of the World

From the larger proceeds of the Baptist 75 Million Campaign the Foreign Mission Board of the Southern Baptist Convention has been enabled to send out more than 160 new missionaries since that movement was launched. It is announced, and of that number sixty young men and women, representing fourteen states, have just sailed for China, Japan, Africa, Brazil, Argentina and Chile. In addition to these, Dr. and Mrs. Everett Gill of Kansas City will sail September 14 to become representatives of the Board in Europe, while Dr. and Mrs. W. A. Hamlett of Austin, Texas, have just sailed for Jerusalem, where they will maintain headquarters in acting as the Near East representatives of the Board.

The new missionaries to China and Japan sailed from Seattle, Saturday, August 27, on the Hawkeye State of the Admiral Line, while those for Brazil, Argentina, Chile and Africa sailed from New York on the Aeolus August 17. They will be engaged chiefly in evangelistic, educational, medical and agricultural work and will be stationed at various points in these fields. While a large number of new workers have been sent out by the Board since the beginning of the Campaign, at least 100 other capable young men and women could be employed to advantage if they were available, Secretary J. F. Love advises.

Mission Money Gets Results.

Of the more than $25,000,000 that has been collected in cash on the 75 Million Campaign to date, about $5,000,000 has gone to foreign missions. This has made it possible not only to strengthen the old work on all fields and employ a large number of new missionaries, but to do much other work, including building or making substantial additions to 15 boys' schools, 17 girls' schools, 37 mission residences, five hospitals and dispensaries, four light and power plants for mission compounds, 26 church buildings, four colleges, seven theological seminaries. In addition, assistance has been given seven church building loan associations, six new stations have been opened and equipped, land has been bought for the enlargement of several mission compounds, a home for orphans in Italy has been established, and a block of ground has been purchased in the heart of Rome for headquarters for the work in Italy, a theological seminary, publishing house, church and mission residence being provided on this property.

Enlarge European Field.

As a result of the Campaign, Southern Baptists have been enabled to greatly enlarge their work in Europe. They have carried on mission work in Italy since 1870, but now they have opened up new work in Jugoslavia, Hungary and Roumania, and have made a beginning, through the distribution of Bibles, in the Ukraine and Southern Russia and Siberia. To act as the European representatives of the Board in this enlarged program, Dr. and Mrs. Everett Gill of Kansas City were recently named. They will probably make their headquarters in Switzerland.

The first work Southern Baptists have ever done looking to the evangelization of Mohammedan lands has just been undertaken in Palestine and Syria, and Dr. and Mrs. W. A. Hamlett of Austin, Texas, have gone to Jerusalem, where they will superintend the work of the native evangelists. It is planned to establish a church, theological seminary and college, hospital and orphanage at Jerusalem as soon as practicable and thus seek to reach other points in Palestine and Syria from this center.

Minister to 900,000,000 People.

With the enlarged foreign mission program of Southern Baptists that denomination is now operating in 18 countries on every side of the globe, and has in its employ practically 500 foreign missionaries and twice that number of native workers trained in the mission schools. Through its present missionary operations the Board is seeking to minister to 475,000,000 yellow people, 4,000,000 brown people, 200,000,000 black people and 225,000,000 white people, making a total of 900,000,000 people, or more than half the population of the globe. Numbered among its workers already on the field are 21 foreign physicians and 8 foreign mission nurses who last year gave 154,070 treatments. There are now 631 mission churches on the foreign fields and of this number 184 are self-supporting. The average contributions of these mission churches last year to denominational causes was $5 per member, the Christians on the foreign fields responding more liberally as a result of the 75 Million Campaign.

The new missionaries sailing at this time were contributed by the following states: Alabama two, Arkansas one, Georgia five, Kentucky six, Louisiana two, Mississippi four, Missouri four, North Carolina three, South Carolina five, Tennessee five, Texas fifteen, Virginia six, Iowa one and Pennsylvania one.

GREAT GAME IS ADVERTISING

Has Developed Until Today It Only Was for the Service of Trained Experts.

Advertising is a game. Business is its stake. No other game has greater zest or importance. Too many business men play it carelessly.

Competition is the great instructor. Run your eyes over the advertisements of today and you will find them showing a skill and ingenuity well deserving the name of art. The titles read like news heads and have the appeal of news. The copy is terse and readable. It tells people unmistakably how they can economize; where they can buy the best goods for the least money and with the least inconvenience to themselves. Everyone wants to economize now. The advertisement which does not promise economy might as well not be written.

We see a judicious use of space and appropriateness of display that makes each modern good advertisement a classic. If one should compare them with those that were set a few years ago he would be surprised at the improvement.

And yet there are slovenly advertisements still, advertisements which merely take room and exhibit the backwardness of those who pay for them.

The best skill in any game is only attained by trained experts. Others may have good ideas and flashes of luck. But only the expert knows how to use good ideas for the maximum of result without relying on luck.—New York Mail.

TOOK THE KISS SERIOUSLY

According to French Scientist, the Romans Had Three Distinct Ways of Specifying It.

Dr. Emile Malespine, a scientist of Lyons, France, and a contributor on physiological subjects to leading French periodicals, has written an article for the Forum in which he traces the development of the kiss as a social custom from earliest history.

"The first manifestations of the kiss encountered in literature," says Doctor Malespine, "are those which are furthest removed from the kiss of homage, appear rather as ceremonies, than as natural and spontaneous expressions of sentiment. The Bible shows us pagans kissing their idols. The Greeks and Romans had a special veneration for statues; there was at Agrigento, according to Cicero, a marvelous statue of Hercules, of which the lips and the chin were completely worn away by the devotions of the faithful.

"The Romans, as well as the Greeks, knew the kiss in all its perfections. Their physiological wealth in this regard, is an added proof. Without counting the diminutives, they had three words specifying the kiss: The osculum corresponds to what we should call the kiss of friendship; the basium, more tender, was the kiss of relatives, and of husband and wife; finally, the savium applied to the kisses of lovers."

Turk as a "Goat Herder."

The famous goat herder of primitive countries who sells his milk by the jar or cup from the goat skin bag on his back has his modern prototype in the person of a chap who appeared on the Bowery said the New York Sun.

Slung over his shoulder was a large white metal container similar in shape to the goat skin bag and from one end of which protruded a spigot. The top of the container was gayly festooned with flowers and flags and for three cents the peddler would take a small paper cup from his pocket and draw a glass of milk for the thirsty youngster, or passerby. The carrier of the metal container wore a bright red turban on his head. His trousers were broad-beamed of the same color and his mustache of the kind figured in lithographs of the ferocious Turk.

GENIUSES IN POOR ABODES

Many of the World's Great Men Have Been Born in or Lived or Died in Squalid Attics.

A good many great men have lived in attics and some have died there. Attics, says the dictionary, are "places where lumber is stored," and the world has used them to store a good deal of its lumber in at one time or another. Its preachers and painters and poets, its deep-browed men who find out things, its fire-eyed men, who will tell truths that no one wants to hear—these are the lumber that the world hides away in its attics. Haydn grew up in an attic, Chatterton starved in one. Addison and Goldsmith wrote in garrets.

Faraday and De Quincey knew them well. Doctor Johnson camped cheerfully in them, sleeping soundly upon their trundle beds like the sturdy old soldier of fortune that he was, inured to hardships and careless of himself. Dickens passed his youth among them, Morland his old age. Hans Andersen, the fairy king, dreamed his sweet fancies beneath their sloping roofs. Poor, wayward-hearted Collins leaned his head upon their crazy tables. Benjamin Franklin, Savage, young Bloomfield, "Bobby" Burns, Hogarth, Watts—the roll is endless. Ever since the habitations of man were reared two stories high has the garret been the nursery of genius.—Pittsburgh Chronicle Telegraph.

Cuba's Varieties of Hardwood.

Cuba has about 367 varieties of excellent hardwoods. Besides mahogany and cedar, there are about thirty species of palm. The royal palm is probably the most useful tree on the island, every part from leaves to roots being utilized by natives.

For some years ultra-violet rays have been used for sterilizing water, milk and other fluids. The idea has now been applied to the disinfecting of barrels and casks.

Night in Battery Park.

Battery park at dusk is filled with people seeking relief from the city's heat. From the benches one may gaze upon the Statue of Liberty, Governor's and Ellis Islands. The harbor is filled with craft and now and then an ocean liner noses its way out to sea. It is one of the most picturesque spots in all New York. In the background is the New York skyline—a nest of cloud-pierced buildings. On the top of these buildings many rich men are building fine bungalows. One has a sleeping porch adjoining his bedroom, and by pushing a button his bed rolls out onto the porch. At nightfall the section has the peaceful quiet of the village churchyard, and the only noise is the soothing chimes of Old Trinity striking the hour. A visitor along Wall and Broad streets, so thick with jostling humanity during the day, is rare at night, and his very presence excites suspicion. He is shadowed from the time he arrives until he leaves.—New York Correspondence of the Indianapolis Star.

The Felks Next Door.

On what ocean is Callao? What language do they speak in Montevideo? What is the big port of Argentina? Where is Quifo? How does Rio de Janeiro compare in size with Richmond, Va.? Is La Pas a mountain or south of Buenos Ayres? Is there a law against automobiles in Peru? Do they have snow in Brazil? If so, when? Why do they speak French in Ecuador? Or do they? Try these questions on a business man.—From Collier's.

India's Fighting Sports.

In no other country has so much attention been given to the preparing and training of beasts and birds for fighting as in India. Rams, buffaloes, elephants, rhinoceroses, camels, stallions and even the gazelle, which, although famed for its gentle nature, is a pretty pugnacious little chap when aroused, have been matched against one another for the entertainment of rajahs and their subjects. And as novelties a crocodile would be matched against a tiger and a serpent against a boar.

She Had Simple Tastes.

A little girl, left in a room with a glass of tall daffodils, was discovered trying to communicate with the queen of the fairies. She was calling down the bell of one flower and listening at the other, a small dimpled hand, with a crease for the wrist, firmly grasping either green stalk. "Please send a cake and a big doll," she said, "to my house, and a new daddy and a taxi so I can go and spend my pennies."

Many Reasons Why Big Nations Should Disarm

Approximately $1,500,000,000 has been appropriated for extension of the naval program by the five countries which are expected to discuss disarmament in Washington next autumn. The United States leads with $500,000,000. Great Britain is second with $422,000,000. Japan is third with $250,000,000. France is fourth with $175,000,000, and Italy is fifth with $73,000,000.

Discussion of the building programs will show the five countries armed on the oceans as follows: Great Britain, 955 ships; United States, 608 ships; Japan, 221 ships; France, 253 ships, and Italy, 245 ships.

STUDY RED SLAYERS' SKULLS

Hungarian Phrenologists Report Bolshevik Terrorists Were Abnormal.

Budapest, Hungary. — Hungarian phrenologists made a careful study of the skulls of 30 notorious Red terrorists hanged after the fall of communism in this country and have just reported that "bolshevik terrorists, though exhibiting signs of abnormality, seem not to belong to the type of born degenerate criminal."

All the 30 were members of Bela Kun's bodyguard called the "Lenin boys," and all were found guilty of numerous murders and robberies.

"The skulls," runs the report, "when compared with the skulls of notorious common murderers preserved in the museum of the police, show signs of degeneracy in a much less degree. The only exception is Joseph Csorny, the leader of the group, whose skull is easily first among the most deformed specimens of human degeneracy. When examined during his trial the savage look of his small, evasive eyes startled even the professional doctors of crime. Small wonder that Bela Kun felt afraid of the man."

"The medical board holds the view that the bolshevik terrorists, though undoubtedly degenerate, would under ordinary circumstances never have committed murder. But their resistance to crime was much weaker than that of the civilized type, and when the solid body of law and morality was shaking with revolutionary fever their half-slumbering ferocious instincts aroused and they killed with the savage passion of the neolithic man."

Denver, Col.—Miss Mildred Curtis, eighteen, seminary girl from Benton Harbor, Mich., was arrested on a flat car on the end of a Union Pacific train that arrived here and is being held to await word from her father, H. J. Curtis of Benton Harbor.

The girl told the authorities she had started to "hike" to Colorado from her home, but when she reached Pierce, Ohi., she was tired and boarded the flat car.

Herod's Cloister Unearthed.

Jerusalem.—Excavations at Ascalon have resulted in the discovery of the famous cloister round the great court built by Herod the Great, which was described in the writings of Josephus as being admirable for its workmanship and grandeur. Statues of Apollo, Venus and Victory, and also a gigantic statue of Herod, have been found on the spot.

Nice Choice of Words.

Young James and the still younger William were engaged in a violent disagreement, during which blows had been exchanged, when their father appeared.

"Why, boys," he said, in a pained parental tone, "what does this mean?" "I don't care," sobbed William, a little conscious of superior virtue. "He started it! He said—he said—I was a liar!"

"Why, James! What a thing to say about your little brother!" James hung his head. "Well—I didn't say exactly that, father," he explained. And, in answer to a further question, "I just said that he didn't remind me any of George Washington."—Harpur's Magazine.

Duckbill Freak of Nature.

The duckbill, or platypus, is one of the strangest and most paradoxical of all the animals of nature. It is sometimes called nature's joke. It has a bill and webbed feet like a duck and can swim and dive like a fish. The most unexpected trait of the animal is that it actually lays eggs. He makes long tunnels in the banks of streams in his native home in Australia. These are made barely large enough for his body to pass through; so that if he desires to return at any time he simply backs out, which he is enabled to do, since his fur is like that of the common mole, set in such a way that no matter what direction he moves his fur neither hinders him nor gets full of dirt. The duckbill is all that is left of a large family.

Wild Elephants Against Horsemen.

In Burma wild elephants are pitted against horsemen and elephant riders, and often rout their trained relatives by the reckless fury of their attacks. The "corbac" has to stick to his seat, while his hutti quirts and careens around like an exploding locomotive or encounters his adversary with the force of a catapult. Fighting elephants guard their trunks by doubling them up like a clinched fist, while using their heads like battering rams or they stand shoulder to shoulder, after the manner of the fighting boars, and after a prelude of side-long pushes, suddenly hew away at each other with their tusks. During the process of the duel the hutti seems to forget or ignore his rider, but if he has received a fatal wound the corbac has to jump off and run for their lives, experience having shown that wounded elephants generally expire in a paroxysm of rage.—Detroit News.

Goethe's Superb Faust.

Christopher Marlowe, an English dramatic poet of the sixteenth century, was the first to use the old legend of Faustus, and he deals rather gently with the character of Mephistopheles, making him sadder and more dignified than he appears in Goethe's drama. It was the German poet who placed that diabolical being before the world for all time, who created that sneering, sardonic individual, powerful and exacting, who makes Faust sign their contract with blood; brimful of vanity, anxious to show his power by the magic creation of wine drawn from a wooden table, enjoying life as a man, yet retaining all his diabolical characteristics.

Dainties for the Invalid.

The most appetizing way to prepare oranges for the invalid is to peel the orange, then slice it in thin rounds, being careful not to break it; then lay these thin circles of the yellow, juicy fruit on a glass plate. You have no idea how inviting it looks, especially if you dust it lightly with pulverized sugar.

In making cocoa for the sick room, if you use three-fourths of a teaspoonful of malted milk to every teaspoonful of cocoa you will find you have discovered a new drink. It is much more nutritious and has a rich creamy taste that is truly delicious.

Campaign Emblems.

As far as known, the first campaign emblem was a finger ring of copper. It was worn by the adherents of John Quincy Adams in 1824, when he ran for President, and was inscribed "John Quincy Adams, 1825." Tintypes and medallions were among the insignia of the 1860 campaign when Lincoln was elected.

"Home," says a contemporary, "is the place for real courtship." It used to be, in the days of horsehair sofas built for two. We remember one beside a window outside which a big rosebush perfumed the air. The sweetness of the girl, the beauty of the roses, and the balmy air of spring were an irresistible combination. We swallowed the hook.—Chicago Journal of Commerce.

Salt and Ice.

Mixing pounded ice and salt has the effect of producing what is called a freezing mixture. The mixture has a tendency to become brine, the ice melting and the salt dissolving in the water formed. To melt, however, it must absorb heat and this is taken from bodies with which it is in contact, such as water, cream, etc. In this way ice cream can be made.

Capital's Famous Avenue.

For some years after Washington became the national capital, Pennsylvania avenue was an unkempt dirt roadway and at times well-nigh impassable, but when Thomas Jefferson became President he objected to the untidy road and the street was graded and put in fine condition at a cost of $14,000, for the expenditure of which Jefferson was roundly abused.

Austria's Hat Industry.

Of all the industries of Austria, there are few which are dependent to such a small extent on the importation of raw materials as the hat industry. The hair of rabbits and hares, which is used to such a great extent in certain lines, is produced almost entirely within Austrian frontiers.

Carrying On With the American Legion

Not to be outdone by the Women's Auxiliary of the American Legion and the various associations of war mothers, "Dad" is now forming an association of his own. The new father's organization is known as the "Order of Loyal Dads." It will co-operate with all patriotic orders, and will be especially affiliated with the American Legion. "Dad" Sheldon Foote, of Ft. Myers, Fla., is the founder of the paternal order. Its principles will encourage "clean, patriotic living, irrespective of party, politics, race or creed." Men whose sons served in the Spanish-American or World wars, or who served in the army or navy at any other time, will be eligible.

A sales system for the hundreds of practical articles and ornaments that are being made by disabled veterans, is being developed by the East Side post at St. Paul, Minn. The sale opened on Bastille day, July 14, with a carnival, the proceeds of which will aid their unfortunate comrades in civil re-establishment. The American Legion Welfare Bureau of St. Paul, is fighting for the unemployed ex-service men with financial handicaps in what it terms a determined effort to "keep the bread line and soup kitchen out of St. Paul."

Thomas J. Bannigan, the new vice commander of the American Legion, is well-known in New England for his record as chairman of the legislative committee of the Connecticut department of the Legion. He waged a fight against politicians who, he declared, were trying to "commercialize, federalize and politicize soldier legislation." As a result of this campaign the state of Connecticut turned over to the American Legion as disbursing agent, a fund of $2,500,000 for the relief of needy ex-service men and their dependent families.

Capt. Harry O. Brumbaugh, formerly executive officer of General Pershing's information force which kept track of every man in France and the movements of all troops and individuals, has been chosen executive secretary of the World war veterans' state aid of Oregon. Brumbaugh was formerly treasurer of the Legion Publishing corporation and assistant national treasurer of the American Legion.

After surviving several engagements of the World war in which he won a Croix de Guerre and was twice cited for bravery, Clifford A. Laffin, member of the American Legion, died at St. John's hospital, St. Paul, Minn., as the result of a pin scratch. Laffin was a first lieutenant in the Seventeenth field artillery. Infection from the scratch caused his death within a few days.

National Commander Emery of the American Legion placed a wreath on the casket of Private Gresham at memorial services which marked the return of the hero's body from France. Commander Emery and Private Gresham were members of the same brigade. The former was severely wounded and the latter killed in action. Private Gresham was one of the first three Americans killed in France.

A summer camp, conducted by the American Legion and the Disabled American Veterans of the World war, known as Camp Galbraith, in honor of Col. F. W. Galbraith, Jr., late commander of the Legion, has been opened in a $100,000 hotel near Port Townsend, Wash. The camp will continue until September 15, and will be open to all veterans and their families for whatever period they desire.

At the suggestion of Victor J. Miller, president of the St. Louis (Mo.) police board, the Frederick W. Stockham post, American Legion, voted to form a committee to co-operate with the police in ridding the city of crime. President Miller characterized their work as a thankless effort to see that Americanism starts at home.

Personal letters congratulating all aliens who receive their final citizenship papers, are sent out by F. M. Wood, commander of the American Legion post at Okmulgee, Okla. In the letters, Wood offers assistance of the Legion in steering a clear course in Americanism and pledges fellowship.

The site for Kansas City's $2,000,000 Liberty Memorial building will be dedicated October 1, the opening day of the national convention of the American Legion. The dedication will follow a parade of some 30,000 members of the American Legion from all parts of the world.

More than 6,000 former service men have been assisted financially and otherwise by the Connecticut department of the American Legion, according to a recent report. Approximately $250,000 from a fund appropriated by the state of Connecticut, has been spent in the soldier welfare work.

Among the cities that have tossed their hats in the ring as candidates for the 1922 national convention of the American Legion, are New Orleans, Baltimore, Houston and San Francisco.

Although bolshevism is the greatest danger this country faces, this government is spending 100 times more for its army and navy than for school books for aliens.

Solicitor General Beck says aversion to work is the world's worst trouble. It is not reported that such remarks have made him any more popular with the office holders.

The people who think that bolshevism Russia is such a wonderful country have not stopped to explain why it takes 35,000 Russian rubles to equal one honest American dollar.

THE UNEMPLOYMENT SITUATION
In times of quiet business some croakers are always representing things as far worse than they really are. It is much that way with the present unemployment situation, in which it is claimed that some 5,000,000 people are out of work. The truth is that there are very few periods when there are not a good many people who are in the course of transit from one job to another.

Furthermore, the number of unemployed may be computed in many cases by comparing the number now at work with the number employed at the height of the boom times. In that period great numbers of young people were tempted by high wages to leave school prematurely, also many women left their home work to take factory jobs. Conditions like these are not natural. The chances are that when a fair comparison is made with average times many less than 5,000,000 people are loafing.

The unemployed must co-operate by a willingness to work for fair prices. Much idleness has been caused directly and indirectly by strikes. Those who are not willing to work for wages that the public can afford to pay are not entitled to much sympathy.

However, everyone knows that the number of people out of work for no fault of their own is very large. Everything possible should be done to assist them. More public construction projects should be started in such times to take care of this surplus labor. Periods of unemployment are the most favorable for getting roads built and public buildings erected.

There should be public employment bureaus all over the country to find jobs for willing workers. The loss to the community by their non-production is a hundred times what it would cost to maintain an efficient system of such bureaus. Unemployment can never be wholly done away with as many popular follies help to create it, but watchful oversight by Federal and State governments can reduce it to a minimum.

THE PRICE OF REAL ESTATE

Roger Babson, the well-known statistician, issues the prediction that there will be a return of good times next spring and that one of the preliminaries to such a revival must be a decline in real estate values.

The people of Maryland who hold land and houses for sale at high prices are obstructing the return of prosperity. Lower priced houses and farm lands must help the cost of living to come down and thus improve the purchasing power of the people, which will assist to start up many idle factories. Those who hold property for high prices should remember how many folks have suffered heavy losses as the result of standing out too long. The psychological moment for high valuations passed a year ago.

SCHOOL SPIRIT

The youngsters who are now returning to their book work ought to be inspired this year to develop better school spirit. Colleges and private schools build up a tremendous prestige as a result of this sentiment. Every college student is incited to give his efforts and his enthusiasm to boosting the reputation and success of his institution in athletics, scholarship, and every student activity.

Many high schools develop this spirit, but in others there is little loyalty to the school and its undertakings. A school with a fine spirit of loyalty gives a town a wide-spread reputation and gets better support from its taxpayers and its pupils obtain greater advantages.

Every pupil in the Washington High School should realize that he is a partner in the enterprise of creating high class schools in this community. If he makes a record that will do credit to his school, if he throws himself with enthusiasm into all its undertakings, he has done a lot to improve the institution which is helping him shape his future.

THE MARCHING MINERS

The West Virginia miners who have been gathering in armed bands and threatening to settle their labor troubles by a show of force do not know much about the temper of this country. In their remote mountain regions many personal and family feuds have been settled by gun play. But the people will not permit industrial quarrels which affect the general prosperity of the country more closely to be determined in such a lawless way.

These armed miners may have grievances, but if so they are taking a very poor way to secure their demands. The more they parade with guns and try to create a reign of terror, the more the people of this country will feel that they have no particular reason for complaint, but have been misled by fanatical agitators.

If they want to get a fair consideration of the rights and wrongs of their case they will have to drop their guns and return quietly to their homes, and allow their grievances to be settled by reason, justice and peaceful conference.

LARGE FAMILIES

President Harding showed kindly feeling the other day when he wrote to the mother of 16 children in New York City offering his congratulations and best wishes on this liberal contribution to the population. A family of that size in these times suggests a certain heroic defiance of circumstances and indifference to the slings of fate that wins some admiration.

Our grandfathers tell of the times when many families had eight or ten or more children and somehow they seemed to get along comfortably. Living standards were of course very different then. The country home raised abundant food, clothing was largely produced at home, the children quit school early and worked, and household remedies took the place of doctor's bills. But there was a spirit of determination and achievement in those days that is often lacking now.

Newly arrived immigrants often show the same spirit now and bring great families into the world with full faith in their ability to care for them, showing a hopefulness not usually shared by more sophisticated people.

The unfortunate feature of the big family is the difficulty of providing the children with an education. The overburdened mother may be forced to let the overgrown flock run wild. As people become more accustomed to American life, the tendency is to raise smaller families, out of the feeling that a few carefully trained and educated children give more satisfaction than a large flock lacking such advantages.

The community should look with sympathetic interest on those who have faith enough in their powers sufficient to take the responsibility for big flocks of little ones. The child of the big family is apt to learn self reliance, he gets used to rough and tumble and he may accomplish a lot as the result of being taught to rely on his own efforts. If neighbors and friends look out to give them chances to work, the children of a large family often make a good showing in spite of many difficulties.

NOTICE

To The Tax Payers Of Somerset County
I will be at WESTOVER, at Long Brothers store, on Thursday morning, Sept. 22nd, and at CRISFIELD, at Bradshaw-Sneade Co.'s store on Friday morning, Sept. 23rd, 1921, for the purpose of receiving and collecting State and County Taxes.
R. MARK WHITE Treasurer.

"Clean-Up-Squad" To Bear War Claims

With orders from Washington and operating under the Veterans Bureau and the United States Public Health Service, a "Clean-Up-Squad" arrived in Crisfield yesterday (Monday) and remained until today (Tuesday) at noon to hear claims for compensation from service men who have been unable to get their claims settled by the War Risk Bureau. The "Clean-Up-Squad" is true to its name, its one and only object being to clean up all claims for compensation which have not yet been acted upon by the government.

The squad is composed of Louis M. Kines, publicity director; Charles E. Hummel, chairman; Dr. F. H. Clark, medical examiner; Chas. H. Thompson, rehabilitation, and J. W. Strong, representing the American Red Cross. The squad will be in Salisbury Tuesday night and Wednesday; Snow Hill on Thursday and Cambridge on Saturday. This squad is functioning under the "Sweet Bill," which was backed by the American Legion and all ex-service men. The duties of this squad will be to give the men immediate service. Any claim they may have against the government or any allotment that needs straightening out for them, or anything they want to know about government insurance can be adjusted by these men at once.

Nash Factories Oversold

Demand for Nash cars last month, immediately following the announcement of lowered prices, exceeded production by more than fifty per cent, and notwithstanding an appreciable increase in the factory schedule a similar condition confronts the Nash Motors Company for the period ending August 31st. A continuance of the heavy pressure for cars, according to all indications, will carry well over into September. Dealers stock at almost every point are depleted and orders are being booked for future delivery. The demand is divided almost equally between the Nash four and six cylinder models.

Nash production for July called for 2470 automobiles, the figures having been made on a basis that would permit the respective organizations at the Kenosha and Milwaukee plants to get back into the work of production to the best advantage. Records at the factory tell the story of the increasing demand for the Nash product day by day throughout the month; they show that orders called for three cars for every two that were built.

Any husband knows that when he is to be late for dinner, he'd better call up to keep from being called down.

The Key That Unlocks The Door To Long Living

The men of eighty-five and ninety years of age are not the rotund, well-fed, but thin, spare men, who live on a slender diet. Be as careful as he will, however, a man past middle age will occasionally eat too much of some article of food not suited to his constitution, causing indigestion or constipation and will need a dose of Chamberlain's Tablets to move his bowels and invigorate his stomach. When this is done, there is no reason why the average man should not live to a ripe old age.

Greater Corn Crop Forecast

The corn crop, which suffered a loss of about 91,000,000 bushels in prospective production in July, made a gain of 154,000,000 bushels during August over the forecast last month, the indicated reduction from the September 1 condition of the crop being 3,186,000,000 bushels.

The 1921 corn crop, as forecast, is only 48,000,000 bushels less than the crop of last year, which broke all records and is 388,000,000 bushels above the five-year average. The improvement made during August was ascribed by the Department to favorable temperatures and rains, which had been lacking throughout a good portion of the season.

No Substitute Offered

Say what you will about druggists offering something "just as good" because it pays a better profit, the fact still stands that ninety nine out of a hundred druggists recommend Chamberlain's Colic and Diarrhoea Remedy, when the best medicine for diarrhoea is asked for, and do so because they know from what their customers say of it, that it can be depended upon.

Clean Up Your Old Felt Hat

The hat shop proprietors and the busy sons of Plato who operate the hat cleaning shops never see the beauties of an Indian summer or a late fall, but are quick to spot a straw hat after the 15th and are there with a felt one when a friend feeds the straw to a horse.

For some unaccountable reason the custom of shaking the moth balls off the old felt kelly has been set for September 15th.

The straw hat, as March is said to do but never does, come in like a lamb; one by one they appear, as gentle and unobtrusive as may be.

But not so the derby that father used to wear. Like mother-in-laws, they announce they will be with us at a certain date and (another virtue of mother-in-laws) they never miss a train. On the 15th of September, through a practice started by some one, the straw hat, as March always does, goes out like a lion.

Yet women are supposed to be the slaves of fashion, while men are said to be as happy as a prohibitionist who has just told the police his neighbor is making home brew, all in the face of the fact that after the 15th felt hats, like cellar steps, will be much worn this year.

A Pronounced Success

The uniform success that has attended the use of Chamberlain's Colic and Diarrhoea Remedy in the relief and cure of bowel complaint, both for children and adults, has brought it into almost universal use, so that it is practically without a rival and as everyone who has used it knows, it is without an equal.

CUT DOWN LOSSES BY FIRE

Recommendations That Should Be Heeded by Every Dweller in City or Country.

Build all tall buildings, using standard equipment and see that it is properly installed. Inspect every inch of rodding at least once a year.

Put up "no smoking" signs about barns and outbuildings, and enforce them.

Ventilate the barn, but also see that tight doors and windows are provided against the invasion of sparks and blizzards.

If you have nothing to fight fire with, get something if only a bunch of buckets.

Do not put the well pump too close to the barn—you may need that water to save your property some night.

Get non-freezing pumps.

Know where the ax is, and have two ladders on hand long enough to reach over the eaves of the tallest buildings.

Talk over with the family just what each is to do in case of a fire in home, barn or field.

Keep oils out of the house and barn.

"Stagger" your buildings with reference to the prevailing winds. Do not let a fire in one building wipe out your entire place.

Watch for spontaneous combustion in the barn.

Out the weeds and do not "bank up" the house with dead herbage.

Keep matches in a metal box away from children, mice and rats.

Never leave an outdoor fire for the night nor leave an indoor fire without safeguarding your home from fire.

Do not stack crops close to buildings and see that your road from pike to house and barns is in good shape.

Conserve your water supply.

CARELESS DRIVER WARNED

Instructions to motorists who disregard signs merely calling attention to steep hills or railroad crossings must be explicit, according to the Travelers' Standard. Any novice should be able to make a safe crossing if he follows the advice set forth by this warning near Ithaca, N. Y.

Grow Flowers With Vegetables.

There is no reason why flowers and vegetables should not be grown together. It is difficult to draw the line, anyway. The dahlia, now one of the most popular flowers, was originally planted with the intention of using the tubers as a potato substitute. The scarlet runner bean, grown by the acre on the farms of England, is most often used in America as a climbing vine around the house; in fact, there are many persons not aware the beans are good to eat.

The ideal garden is one which combines flowers, vegetables and fruit. Such a garden should have a place on every farm and back of every suburban home. Oftentimes the vegetable plot can be surrounded with a border planted on two sides with small fruit like raspberries, currants, gooseberries and grapes, and on the other two sides with annual and perennial flowers.

May Restrict Billboards.

Many people, especially those that go down to the country in motorcars, will welcome the efforts that are being made in Maine to deal more faithfully than ever with the billboard. If an amendment to the state billboard regulations now before the senate is carried, no billboard or advertising sign may in future be erected at any point where it can obstruct the view of a curve or angle. It is a good amendment so far as it goes. A better one would be to abolish the billboard in the country, altogether.—Christian Science Monitor.

Four-Handed Twin-Grand Piano.

A twin-grand piano, the first of its kind ever constructed, was recently demonstrated at an orchestral concert, at Leipzig, Germany. This novel instrument, of which a photograph appears in Popular Mechanics Magazine, is like two grand pianos placed end to end and inclosed in one frame, excepting that it has only one soundboard. Consequently, the key-boards are at opposite ends, and the players face one another. The sound-board is constructed so that there is no intermingling of sound waves.

STOLE HER FLOCK OF CHICKS

How Leghorn Hen Procured a Large Family Without the Formality of Hatching Them.

The fox is no cleverer than a Leghorn hen. So at least thinks one reader of the Companion who has read the numerous stories that it has printed to illustrate the cleverness of foxes. To justify her opinion she tells a story of her own. Here it is:

In our flock of chickens we had only one brown Leghorn, but she was hard to beat. One day she stole her nest, and, though Leghorns do not, as a rule sit, some time later she came marching proudly into the yard followed by a dozen little brown balls. In a week she had following her 25 chicks of all ages and descriptions; she had stolen them from other hens. And besides attending to the needs of that large family she began shortly to have an egg in her coop every morning.

An interesting incident occurred on a neighboring farm. A persistent little hen that was repeatedly prevented from sitting finally disappeared and returned some days later with seven fluffy baby quail. She had evidently driven the mother quail from her nest and hatched the eggs herself. The baby quail obeyed her commands, and she was very proud of them; but, in the words of my small brother, won't she get the surprise of her life some day when these little quail learn to fly!—Youth's Companion.

Luxuries in Less Demand.

There's a vast difference between eating to live and living to eat. This is being discovered by a great many people. In a measure discovery accounts for lessening demand for luxuries yet doesn't supply the funds for necessities. One can't spend dollars and have them too—Grit.

COULD NOT RELY ON SUNDIAL

Garden "Clocks" Were Always More of an Ornament Than Kept for Any Practical Use.

The sundial became a popular garden ornament in the sunny parts of Europe in the Fifteenth century. There were older time recorders. There were hour-glasses, candles that marked the time by their burning. Lamps that indicated the hours by the amount of oil consumed, and the water clock, which was the most reliable of all these time-recording devices. When the sundials came into vogue they were bought by rich men who could well afford to have a clock, the cost of which was less than the cost of an ornamental sundial. The peasant who could not afford a clock did not need a sundial, because he could tell time, or nearly tell the time by looking at the sun, or by the slant of his own shadow.

The south of Europe fashion of the sundial spread to England with the fashion of the formal or Italian garden, and when English, Irish and Scotch gentry fled to the colonies, they took with them the idea that a garden was not a garden without a sundial, any more than it could be a garden without a box hedge, a border of jonquils, some arbor vitae trees, a gravel walk and a rustic bench.

In the older settlement portions of Maryland and Virginia and including the District of Columbia it is not unusual to find these sundials, or the "stump" or base on which the dial rested, in the gardens of old homes. Yet it is a fair assumption that on every place where there was a sundial a clock run by wheels and weights ticked away in the manor house, or in the mansion house, and that every land owner who could afford to have a sundial in his garden carried a gold watch or silver watch in the fob pocket of his "small clothes."

PLANTS GUARDED BY NATURE

As "Infants," the Saplings Are by No Means Defenseless Against In-Jury From Fire.

Young long-leaf plants protect themselves against forest fires in a most interesting and remarkable way. For four or five years the stems of the infant trees attain a height of only as many inches above the soil. During this time their bark is extraordinarily thick, and that alone gives some protection. But in addition the long needles spring up above the stem, and then bend over on all sides in a green cascade which falls to the ground in a circle about the seedling.

This green barrier can, with difficulty, be made to burn, while the shade that it casts prevents inflammable grass from growing near the protected stem.

It is thought that it is owing to this peculiar system of self-protection which the pine seedlings have developed that the growth of the evergreen oaks in Florida has been restricted in regions where fires have raged, while pure pine forests have taken their place.

Americans Have Prettiest Feet.

What country possesses women with the largest feet? This question arose from an inspection of women's feet in Bond street during the busiest hour of the morning. Women of many nationalities passed, displaying "understandings" that varied considerably in shape and size.

"Dutch and German women have the biggest feet in the world," said Robert Wortley, court chiropodist.

British women have the longest feet, but they are narrow; Japanese women have the smallest feet of all, and Americans the most beautiful, because they are well cared for from youth.

"After the American foot I award the beauty honor to the French woman, whose foot is a triumph of grace, while dancing has given a special attraction to the Spanish feminine foot."—London Daily Express.

Watch Would Be Useless.

Not long ago a number of masons left Scotland to settle in this country. One of them wrote to his wife shortly after his arrival and instructed her to sell their household property and to take passage out to him.

The good wife had a neighbor who came to help her with the packing. In the midst of it they fell upon Thomas' watch. The neighbor examined it closely and then said:

"It's a grand watch, Catherine. Ye'll be takin' it w' ye?"

"Na, na!" was the reply. "It wad be o' nae use oot there, for Thomas tells me in his letter that there is some 'oors o' difference between the time here and in California, so I need na' be takin' useless things."

Made Veil in Institution.

The women of Persia—like the Mohammedan women of every other country—go about their duties when called into the streets with veils which hide their faces from the eyes of passersby. Tradition tells us that one day when Mohammed was with his favorite wife, Ayesha, who was unveiled, as all women then were, a stranger happened to see her lovely face, became enamored of her, and offered to buy her at the price of one camel. It is said this so angered Mohammed that the prophet decreed that women, thereafter, should wear veils to hide their faces from the gaze of other men.

When you come right down to reason, what is there to "discount" tires—

THE next time a friend comes to you all excited about some wonderful tire bargain—ask him how much value he ought to get for each dollar of tire money.

It's astonishing that any car owner today should not know all the tire service he is entitled to.

Nor how to check up between the economy of par quality on one hand—and big discounts, surplus stocks, discontinued lines and retreads on the other.

For two years U. S. Tire makers have been telling the American people all about tires.

They have laid open the tire business from every angle.

They have always led the fight for better tires.

They have consist-

ently maintained quality first standards with certain economy for the tire buyer.

They have established 92 Factory Branches all over the country. Perfecting U. S. distribution so that you get a fresh, live tire every time you buy a U. S. Tire.

So when a man once decides on U. S. Tires he knows what he is getting in quality—service—economy.

In support of his own judgment he gets the pledged word and reputation of the largest and most successful tire concern in the world.

A sound reason for the fact that you see more U. S. Tires on more cars than ever this year.

"You get a fresh, live tire every time you buy a U. S. Tire."

One of the few tires of which it may be said that they deliver economy year in and year out and tire after tire.

LEGION MEN VISIT FRANCE

American Party on Tour of Former Battle Scenery at Filirey Monument Dedication.

The new "A. E. F." is in France—on a mission much unlike that of the A. E. F. of 1917-1918. The new forces are only 250 strong. They comprise members of the American Legion who are touring the former battle scenes this summer as guests of the French government.

Every state and every branch of service is represented in the peaceful new A. E. F. They sailed from New York on the George Washington. There was a noisy "bon voyage" at the docks as the former presidential ship started on its course. Flags of the United States and the American Legion flew from the mast.

Commanding or rather heading the pilgrimage was John G. Emery, the Legion's national commander. Former commanders Franklin D'Olier and Henry D. Lindsley were present.

Arriving at LeHavre, the citizen expedition was received with great eclat, after which it proceeded to Paris under tow of French officials. From Paris the party set out by special train for Blois to attend the dedication of the Joan of Arc statue presented to the French city by the Joan of Arc Committee of New York.

While at Blois, the veterans invaded the old headquarters of the army reclassification board, known better by the doughboys as the "benzene board." Here the Americans staged a burlesque of a benzene hearing during which a score of the pilgrims were "blooped" as they used to say in the days of the fighting A. E. F.

Every city visited by the former defenders has received them with arms wide-open. That France has not forgotten is everywhere evidenced by the cordiality of the receptions. At Bourges, the Legionnaires received the "freedom of the city" from the high officials. From there they went to Tarbes to visit the birthplace of General Foch. They placed a memorial tablet upon the house that first sheltered the famous generalissimo.

The former fighters were impressed by the rapidity with which many of the ruined towns have been rebuilt. Some Legionnaires have gone over the exact location where they fought the battle of liberty and where many of their buddies fell in action.

Probably the most impressive ceremony participated in by the Americans was the dedication of the Filirey monument. This memorial is a tribute to the valor of the doughboys who delivered the little town of German occupation. Filirey is familiar ground to many American soldiers. It is on the ridge which was the main line of resistance of the old Toul sector.

It was at Filirey that the Eighty-ninth, from Kansas and Missouri, went into conflict. Seventeen American divisions fought in the vicinity of the little town, which itself was occupied by regimental headquarters of troops holding the line.

At the close of their tour the Legion men will go to Paris where they will have three days A. W. O. L., after which they will sail on their return voyage. The party is expected to return about September 15.

the American Legion at Lewistown, Montana.

When the state department of the American Legion of Montana held its annual convention at Lewistown, Baby Thompson was unanimously selected to be the mascot. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. R. B. Thompson, of Lewistown.

On Honeymoon Hits.

Ernest J. Jackson, who served in the First division in France, and who was wounded 14 times, has started with his bride on a honeymoon hike across the continent from New York to San Francisco. The pair stopped at Indianapolis on the 29th day of their walk, and paid a visit to the national headquarters of the American Legion.

WORDS OF GERMANIC ORIGIN

Many of Today's Most Common Expressions Can Easily Be Traced to the "Angles."

Perhaps the saddest of English words—the word which brings up more thoughts of grief and fear than any other word—is "death." This word did not come to us from the classic lands of Greece and Rome. It was one of the words of the Germanic peoples and has been English ever since English was. The Angles, who came to Britain from what is now southeastern Schleswig, called the land that they invaded and helped to conquer "Angleland" and from that word "England." "Anglische" or a word something like it, came to be "English." These Angles, and all the other Germanic peoples, had this word "death" long before the English language was spoken, and in the earliest English we find the word spelled "deth" and sometimes "deeth" and no doubt from the spelling "deeth" we arrived at spelling "death."

"Skull" was another word of our Germanic forebears and it meant a cup, bowl, or drinking vessel, and from the shape of man's head, as it appeared long after death, the relic came to be called "skull," because its form suggested a "skull," a "skole," or a "skal," or drinking vessel. We often read of northern barbarians who drank out of "skulls," but it does not necessarily follow that they drank out of the skulls of the dead men, but merely from their household "skulls," "skols," or "skals," which were their bowls or cups of wood or stone.—Kansas City Star.

Ancient Egyptian Homes.

The walls of the courts and rooms in ancient Egyptian homes were painted with brilliant colors and the floors were covered with woven mats and skins of wild animals. As for household furniture, the inmates of Egyptian homes slept upon the floors, others reposed upon straight couches richly inlaid, which often were lion-shaped, the head, back and tail of the animal forming the body of the couch and its legs the supports.

Animals Fond of Fish.

The assertion by White of Selborne that all quadrupeds which feed on fish are amphibious is erroneous. No one would regard the dog as an amphibious animal, while as for the cat, it is well known to be the one quadruped above all others that hates even wetting its feet. Yet few, if any, quadrupeds are fonder of fish, though one that actually engages in fishing is no doubt a rarity among the feline tribe.—Exchange.

TOO MUCH FOR MRS. SMITH

She Couldn't Allow Her Old Friend, Mrs. Brown, to Keep Up Her Bragging Remarks.

Mrs. Brown and Mrs. Smith were neighbors, both were fat and both were extremely sensitive about it. Both tried every method they could hear of for losing weight, and, until this summer, both continued to gain. Mrs. Brown went West early in the spring and while there managed in some way to lose nearly thirty pounds. When she came back Mrs. Smith saw her step from the taxi and realized that her neighbor had accomplished what to her seemed unattainable. "Hello, dearie," called Mrs. Brown. "Don't you think my trip has agreed with me? Four months in the West certainly make a difference in one!" Jealousy seized Mrs. Smith. The idea of Mrs. Brown bragging that way just because she weighed a few pounds less!

"You have fallen off marvelously, dear," Mrs. Smith replied. "When you stepped out of the taxi I never would have known you, only for your hat!"

Conserve Heat From Sun's Rays.

Long years ago, a gentleman in India cooked a meal for some of his friends by reflecting the rays of the sun from a mirror on his cooking utensil, says Popular Mechanics Magazine. This was, of course, out of the question on rainy days and during the night. Now comes a mechanical harness for the heat of the sun's rays wherein it is preserved for night and cloudy-day use. At the Smithsonian solar observing station on Mount Wilson in California is such a device. A large 7 by 10-foot mirror, built semi-cylindrical in shape and made of aluminum-covered steel plates, focuses the rays of the sun on a 1½-inch pipe placed centrally in its frame. This pipe carries an oil of high boiling point, which, after heating from the reflected rays, rises to a reservoir that is insulated to retain the heat for a long time. Oven compartments are embedded in this reservoir in which the foods may be placed for cooking.

Credit May Belong to Aztecs.

The question whether Roger Bacon used a telescope and a microscope revives the contention as to whether it was not in the New World that both these instruments were first invented. For antiquarians who have studied extant hieroglyphic codices of the Aztecs say this race when overthrown by the Spanish conquerors was more advanced in astronomy and optics than Europe of that day.

Original "Water Wagon."

It seems that the phrase "water wagon" started from the large-tanked wagons of the northwest, used in the harvesting season to supply water for the steam engine which runs the threshing machine. No one is more in need of water to drink than laborers of the wheat fields, working under the scorching sun. The workers were prone to hop up on the water wagon to quench their thirst every time the wagon came in. This was obtained from a keg of water kept submerged in the tank to keep it cool.

Egg Dances.

The egg dance, now confined chiefly to Spain, among the people of Valencia, was a once popular diversion in England, Scotland, Holland and other parts of Europe. A number of eggs were arranged in a prescribed form upon the dancing floor, and among them a blind-folded dancer moved as best he might, to music, the object being to execute an intricate dance without breaking the eggs. The music, like the arrangement of the eggs, also was prescribed.

Great Desire for Understanding.

I believe that the greatest desire of every human heart in the world is just this: The desire to understand its own experience. That is a hunger that is at the root of all the great religions in the world—all great emotional activity whatever—the continual hunger of the human heart to get even with its own experience, so that it can understand instead of being bewildered.—John Drinkwater.

Insect Causes "Jumps."

Certain galls of the oak-tree that display a mysterious ability to "jump" or at least make sudden movements, have long been the subject of unscientific curiosity. It is explained that their motive power is, as in the case of the famous Mexican "jumping bean," a tiny worm—the larva of a gallfly, whose quick turns disturb the gall's center of gravity and cause it to "jump."

Many Native Negro Languages.

Native Negro languages are a marvel. There are about eight hundred, and more than one hundred have been reduced to writing, said a missionary who has just returned from three years' travel over Africa. We know not for how many generations these languages have been passed from lip to ear, from parent to child, and from tribe to tribe.

His Philosophy.

"I've never worn out the knees of my trousers prayin' for rain," says the Village Deacon, "an' what's more, I ain't a-goin' to. Rain an' shine'll come when they're good an' ready, an' if I can't run the world I'm in, I certainly can't give directions to the other one."—Atlanta Constitution.

Good Actions Bring Reward.

NIGHTS OF UNREST

No Sleep, No Rest, No Peace With a Lame or Aching Back

Wear the lot of many a kidney sufferer.

Pain and distress from morn to night. Get up with a lame back, Twinges of backache bother you all day.

Dull aching breaks your rest at night. Urinary disorders add to your misery.

If you have kidney trouble Reach the cause—the kidneys.

Doan's Kidney Pills are for the kidneys only—

Have made an enviable reputation in Princess Anne. Ask your neighbor.

Mrs. J. H. Smullen, 108 Backford avenue, Princess Anne, says: "My kidneys were always weak and if I over-worked or took cold it seemed to settle on them. My back ached awfully and I couldn't rest at night. I felt weak and tired out completely the next day. My sight blurred and I had spells of dizziness. My kidneys didn't act right either. I used Doan's Kidney Pills from Jones & Colborn's drug store and they removed the backaches and regulated my kidneys. The dizziness left and I felt better in every way."

Our Appreciation And Thanks

We appreciate the number of subscribers who have renewed their subscriptions during the past few weeks. We need the money to pay our bills as the cost of publishing a paper is high and there seems to be no tendency toward a reduction. We have not sent out any statements of subscription accounts for the past year and have not stopped the paper of any one when their subscription expired. If you will look on the label it will inform you if in arrears and if so please send $1.50. We know that $1.50 a year seems high to some and would be pleased if we could make a reduction in price at this time but it is impossible under the present high cost of paper and labor. We have some financial obligations that are coming due and if you can help us to stem the tide we will greatly appreciate your assistance. Come in and get your name on the roll of honor; you will feel better and we will be delighted.

Keep Bandages Handy.

A box of bandages should be kept handy in every household in case of accident. These can easily be made. Tear them from strong cotton cloth, unhemmed, and roll them tightly, making separate rolls of varying widths. Sterilize them by placing them in the oven, and then store them in a fruit jar.

MONEY GROWS FAST AT COMPOUNDED INTEREST

Now Possible For Everyone To Invest In Securities Guaranteed By The Treasury Department.

Government Savings Securities, which may be had at nearly all post offices, were issued to encourage regular saving and wise investment. Many millions of dollars in the United States have been put into these securities, and, as a result, tens of thousands of people have the satisfaction of knowing how steadily money increases at 4 per cent interest compounded quarterly.

The fundamental characteristics of Government Savings Securities are that they are safe beyond question, easily convertible into money, and not subject to market fluctuations. Such merits give these securities a distinctive investment value.

The securities are safe because they are guaranteed by the United States Treasury Department. They are easily convertible into cash, because they may be redeemed at local post offices or from the Treasury Department at Washington, and they are not subject to market fluctuations because the Treasury guarantees the price, which increases by a fixed amount—in the case of the interest-bearing securities—every month.

There are three kinds of Government Savings Securities: The 25-cent Thrift Stamp and the $1 Treasury Saving Stamp—neither bearing interest; the interest-bearing War Saving Stamp, and the interest-bearing $25, $100 and $1,000 Treasury Savings Certificates.

The 25-cent Thrift Stamps and the $1 Treasury Savings Stamps are issued to help people save enough to buy War Savings Stamps, and these latter, when enough have been bought, may be converted into registered Treasury Savings Certificates.

The $5 War Savings Stamps cost from $4.12 in January to $4.23 in December, increasing in value one cent each month. The value of the $25 Treasury Savings Certificate increases five cents a month, that of the $100 certificates twenty cents a month, that of the $1,000 certificates $2 a month. Like War Savings Stamps the certificates are redeemable at their full face value upon maturity; that is in five years from the year of purchase.

There is ditching to do; there are roads to fix; and so on all down along the line of the enormous calls that constantly face the farmer the Fordson steps in and does the work, shoulders the complete burden of the toil and the hard work, one might almost say "drudgery." AN OPPORTUNITY FOR YOUNG MEN

Senator Weller Will Make Two Appointments To Naval Academy

Senator O. E. Weller will have the appointment of two cadets to the Naval Academy, to fill two vacancies which will occur there in June, 1922. The Senator is a graduate of the Academy, and secured his appointment by competitive examination. He has determined to give the young men of Maryland the same opportunity he had himself. This gives every boy an equal chance without regard to race, and will also assure to the government the best material for making future naval officers.

A competitive examination for these two appointments will be held by the United States Civil Service Commission on October 29th, 1921, at Baltimore, Annapolis, Cumberland, Hagerstown, Easton and Salisbury. Any boy who will have passed his sixteenth birthday, and not his twentieth, on April 1, 1922, will be eligible to compete. Senator Weller will appoint the two who are certified by the Civil Service Commission as having passed the best examinations.

Sensor Weller will be glad to furnish any additional information desired, including a form showing the scope and character of the competitive examination, etc. Write him at Room 227, Senate Office Building, Washington, D. C.

More Food Stuff Needed

With the coming of cold weather refugees will be dying by thousands along the roads in Transcaucasia is the outlook as given to Maryland Headquarters, Near East Relief, by an American relief worker who has just returned to America after two years service in the Near East. This worker, Clayton M. Skinner, himself contracted trachoma, a bad eye disease, while in relief work. He says that the ravages of this disease are adding to the distress of the famine sufferers in Transcaucasia. Three thousand children in Erivan alone have become infected with it.

Food stuffs are urgently needed and it is for this reason that Maryland Headquarters, Near East Relief, has called upon the farmers of Maryland for corn and wheat. They are appealed to for 14,000 bushels each of corn and wheat and have until the harvest ends to give it.

Many sections of Maryland are busy at work in the grain campaign. The Cambridge Grange has passed a resolution supporting the appeal; Somerset promises both corn and wheat; Frederick county farmers have pledged support; Harford is shipping donations to the assembling point, and so it goes. "Maryland never has failed in such an appeal, it will not in this one," says Harold F. Pellegrin, Maryland State Director, Near East Relief.

Postoffice Tests October 8th

Complying with a request of the Postmaster-General, the United States Civil Service Commission announced last Tuesday that competitive examinations would be held on October 8th to fill the position of postmaster at 21 Maryland postoffices, as follows:

Cecilton, Clear Spring, Cordova, Deer Park, Forest Hill, Galena, Girdlestone, Hebron, Hillsboro, Kitzmiller, Marsdale Springs, Maryland, Mountain Lake Park, Overlea, Parkton, Polville, Queens-town, Sharpsburg, Stockton, Vienna and Westover. The postoffice at Westover pays a salary of $1,100 a year.

It is expected that appointments will be made as a result of this examination unless it is found in the interest of the service to fill any vacancy by reinstatement, transfer or promotion. This is not an examination under the Civil Service Act and rules, but is held under an Executive order of May 10, 1921, providing for such a procedure.

As Others See Us

Monday of last week Mr. J. Douglass Wallop received a telegram from the Frederick Base Ball Association, of Frederick, Md., extending their appreciation of the courtesies shown them on their trip to the Eastern Shore. The telegram follows:

"We wish to extend through you to the people of the Eastern Shore our sincerest appreciation and deepest gratitude for the courteous treatment and unstinted hospitality extended us during our recent sojourn, which shall always be a cherished memory and trust that the privilege and pleasure may again be ours to visit you under similar conditions."

Citizens Asked To Save Water

Due to the continued dry spell and the excessive street sprinkling the wells at the pumping station are getting very low on water supply. The commissioners request that the people use the water as sparingly as possible, adhering to the following: Keep all spigots closed, have your toilet fixed, cut off lawn sprinklers, soda fountain operators stop constant flow through wash basins.

To Our Base Ball Club Supporters

Mr. J. Douglass Wallop, chairman of the Princess Anne Base Ball Committee, takes this means of extending thanks to the loyal fans who supported the club through the season just closed; to Mr. Earle Morris for the time he has given to the club as manager, who has had his ups and downs and unjust criticism, but through it all has stuck right at the plate and played good ball; to the owners of automobiles who so generously drove the boys to the other towns where we were playing; to Mr. B. H. Dougherty for the free use of his Auditorium for the dance which was given for the benefit of the base ball club, also the young ladies who sold the tickets to the dance and sold tags on "tag day"; to the gate keepers, Messrs. Raymond Carey, Edwin Morris, William Wilson and Levin Adkins; to Mr. Philip Smith for managing the sale of soft drinks; to the Marylander and Herald for its many favors, for boosting us all through the season, for giving us tags and tickets and free advertising and co-operating in every way.

Finally, I wish to thank Mr. C. Edward Sparrow, sporting editor of the Baltimore Sun, who made the series possible, and Mr. J. Vincent Jamison, Jr., president of the Blue Ridge League, who co-operated with Mr. Sparrow and Mr. F. H. Schmidt, treasurer of Frederick ball club, and who extended such hearty hospitality to the Princess Anne club and its directors when they visited Frederick.

It looked almost impossible for a little town the size of this, less than a thousand people, to support such a good ball team, go through the season and stop playing ball with all debts paid. Now let's get together for a better season in 1922, join the league and maybe next year we will beat Frederick.

Report Of Crop Conditions

The synopsis of weather and crop conditions in Maryland and Delaware for the week ending Tuesday, September 13th, was as follows: The drought continues serious on the Eastern Shore, where little or no rain has fallen during the last four weeks.

In most sections growing crops and pastures were refreshed by the rains of the 6th and 7th and improved somewhat, except on the Eastern Shore, where late corn, late potatoes, truck gardens and pastures continue to suffer seriously from lack of rain. Cutting of early corn is in progress, with prospect of a good crop. Silos are being filled. The late crop, affected unfavorably by the recent hot wave and the dry weather, is maturing. Late potato vines are drying; the crop has been cut short by the dry weather. Sweet potatoes are also a short crop. Truck crops and gardens are fair, except poor on the Eastern Shore.

The police boat in Pocomoke Sound was commissioned last Thursday, September 16th, and immediately went into the service. Capt. George P. Tyler is in command again this year, assisted by Mr. James Sterling.

CHAUTAUQUA PROGRAM BEST YET

Don't Miss The Entertainers Wednesday, Thursday And Friday

You can not afford to miss a single session of the Chautauqua this year—which will be held in the Auditorium Wednesday, Thursday and Friday of this week—because this season promises the best program that has ever been presented in Princess Anne.

The musical fans have a rare treat when the curtain rises for a program by the Cartwright Brothers quartet. They know what you want, how you like it and when you wish it, and, what is better, they give it to you.

An oriental pageant will be given Wednesday evening. Julius Caesar Naylor tells the story of the Near East in such a way as to hold entranced the most blasé listener. There is nothing else like his pageant on the platform. It is unique as he is himself, a young Athenian born of the Grecian aristocracy and educated in Palestine and America.

The second day the Artists Trio occupy the stage. One has only to mention Miss Melicent Melrose to know the quality of the performance. She, with Miss Florence Dewey and Miss Helen Ballein, complete the personnel of this talented trio.

On the last day the Irish Minstrels perform. They seek to embody in a well chosen program some of the loved and immortal Irish tilts and ballads, combined with the best of the modern. A keen delight awaits all chautauquians on the third day when this company comes to visit you.

Now isn't a ticket worth $1.50? You answer yes. Then why not buy your ticket before September 21st and relieve the guarantors of all uncertainty, doubt and anxiety? No season tickets will be sold after the chautauqua opens on Wednesday.

Opening Of Dancing School

In another column of the Marylander and Herald the Misses Sommerkamp announce the opening of their dancing classes on Monday, September 19th, at 4 p. m., at the Scout's Hall, Princess Anne. Very interesting exercises and dancing will be enjoyed by all those who are present.

These young ladies will conduct several different classes, including classes in aesthetic and ball room dancing for children, as well as an evening class in ball room dancing for adults, which will be formed next week.

The Misses Sommerkamp have just returned from New York City where they studied all the latest approved steps in both aesthetic and ball room dancing under Kosloff, Kretlow and the Vestoff-Serova Russian School of Dancing. This new work should prove very interesting to the pupils this season. The splendid talent of these young ladies as dancers and dancing teachers is well known and appreciated in Princess Anne.

Marshall To Speak At Cambridge

The Cambridge Tabernacle Association has announced as its opening attraction Hon. Thomas R. Marshall, of Indiana, former Vice-President of the United States with Woodrow Wilson for eight years and twice Governor of the State of Indiana.

Mr. Marshall is coming to Cambridge September 29th direct from his summer home at Petoosky, Michigan, and will speak on "Some Pending Problems." Mr. Marshall for a number of years has been one of the outstanding figures in our national life and is a great speaker, and now that he has returned to private life, his message will no doubt be watched with interest and taken up by the press far and wide. Hundreds of people from nearby towns and counties will no doubt journey to Cambridge to hear him. Remember the date and hour, 8 p. m., at the large tabernacle on Race street, Thursday, September 29th.

Select Seed Corn In September

Seed corn for next season's planting should be selected in the field from the standing stalks in September. The disappointing search for good seed corn every spring should be a sufficient reason for following this practice, strongly advocated by the United States Department of Agriculture. Any intelligent farmer can go into his own cornfield when the corn is mature and select high-grade seed if he has planted suitable types of corn and cultivated properly. If he has joined a county movement to develop certain standard varieties of corn which grow in that locality, and if he has raised these strains on his own land, he may reasonably expect a market for any surplus seed.

The September term of the Circuit Court for Somerset County will convene in Princess Anne next Monday, September 26th.

WEDDING AT ST. ANDREW'S CHURCH

Miss Harriet Waters Murphy Bride Of William B. Spiva

Miss Harriet Waters Murphy, daughter of the Rev. and Mrs. Oliver H. Murphy, and Mr. William B. Spiva, cashier of the Bank of Somerset, were married in St. Andrew's Church last Tuesday evening at 8.30 o'clock.

The ceremony was performed by the bride's father, Rev. O. H. Murphy, D. D. The bride entered the church on the arm of her cousin, Mr. Harry H. Robertson, of Clairton, Pa., by whom she was given away in marriage. The groom was attended by Hon. Joshua W. Miles as his best man. The matron of honor was Mrs. Henry Pleasants, of Paoli, Pa. The bridesmaids were Misses Lola Richardson, Olive Dashiell and Eleanor Stanford, of Baltimore, and Margaret Dashiell, of Princess Anne. The ushers were Messrs. Albert D. Graham, of Baltimore; William B. Copper, of Chestertown; Charles C. Gelder and E. Herrman Cohn, of Princess Anne. The wedding march was played by Mr. Warfield Dashiell.

The bride wore a white satin gown and veil with orange blossoms and carried a shower bouquet of bride's roses.

Among the out-of-town guests were Mrs. Albert D. Graham, Mrs. Henry L. D. Stanford, Miss Martha Stanford, Miss Dorothy Alvord, Messrs. John Perry, Lawrence Stanford and Thomas S. Winder, of Baltimore; Mr. and Mrs. Clarence D. Perry of Salisbury, Mr. and Mrs. William Bratten of Snow Hill, and Mr. and Mrs. Charles Welsh of Washington.

A reception was held at the bride's home after the wedding and Mr. and Mrs. Spiva left on the midnight express for Atlantic City, N. J. After a sojourn in that city for a few days the newlyweds will go to Los Angeles, California, where Mr. Spiva will attend the American Bankers' Convention which meets in that city the first week in October.

Cole Bros. World-Toured Show

Unlike any show ever presented is Cole Bros. World-Toured Shows and Wild Animal Exhibition. It will be an event long to be remembered when on Wednesday, September 28th, the Cole Bros. Big World-Toured Shows arrive in Princess Anne.

Cole Bros. present a Real Wild and Domestic Trained Animal Show, educated horses, ponies, mules, zebras, lions, tigers, leopards, hyenas, elephants, seals and sea lions, dogs, pigs, in fact the animals of the earth. It is by the constant study of the natures and habits in the forests, jungles and at close range that the trainers of Cole Bros. shows have evolved a system of education, and after many years of hard labor take pride in offering an exhibition of this nature to the public for their approval. That the public enjoys and approves the exhibition is evident by the hearty welcome accorded each performance, on recurring visits and the pleasing comments from our audiences.

Colored Men Nominated In Baltimore

Baltimore Republicans have a new problem before them in the fact that the colored people asserted themselves and have forced on their party the nomination of two of their best and ablest men as candidates for the House of Delegates—one in the Third and one in the Fourth District. Both these colored men are well educated, and in many respects superior to the white Republicans who are their colleagues on the ticket, and it will be interesting to see how the Republicans of Baltimore, who have been securing offices for years through the votes of the colored members of their party, return the favors, now that they have an opportunity to do so. The chances are that a large proportion of them will pass the colored brethren by, as the only use they have for them is to get votes from them—not to give them votes in return.—Paul Winchester.

Reorganization Plan Adopted

After adopting the Democratic reorganization plan for State offices, Governor Ritchie's general committee, in the hearing room of the State Tax Commission last Wednesday afternoon recommended that the next Legislature change State election laws.

The resolution, submitted by a committee, of which Carville D. Benson is chairman, stated that the changes would effect a saving of $350,000 annually. Proposed is the holding of all State and county elections in even years after 1923 instead of odd years, so that national questions and those of State and counties will not be mixed.

The Governor will submit the reorganization plan to the Democratic State Convention which meets in Baltimore today, Tuesday.

WHITE MAN KILLS A NEGRO

Stephen Long Stabbed To Death By John Pilchard In Pocomoke City

John A. Pilchard, a farmer of Stockton, Md., while in Pocomoke City last Tuesday afternoon stabbed to death Stephen H. Long, a colored man of Pocomoke City.

It is said that John A. Pilchard and his brother, William, both farmers, went to Pocomoke City from their farms, about seven miles distant, driving a horse and carriage. After transacting several matters of business in town, they drove to the bicycle shop of Noah Gunby, negro. John A. Pilchard left the carriage and went into the bicycle shop to transact some business, leaving his brother, William, outside.

While John A. Pilchard was still in the store, it is reported that some pistol shots were fired by some unknown person in the rear of the store and that soon thereafter Long, accompanied by his daughter, came along the street. It is said he was accused by William Pilchard of "carrying a gun."

This charge was denied by Long and it is said an argument with Pilchard took place, whereupon William Pilchard is alleged to have attacked Long. The two, it is said, were clinched in a struggle when John A. Pilchard came out of the shop. It is reported that he immediately drew his pocketknife and rushed into the struggle, stabbing Long. The wounded negro was immediately rushed to the office of Dr. N. E. Sartorius, in Pocomoke City, who rendered first aid. He was then started for the Salisbury Hospital, but death took place when the automobile was scarcely two miles from Pocomoke City.

The dead man was perhaps the leading colored citizen of the town, having been principal of the colored school there for a number of years. He was recently made county superintendent of colored schools for Worcester county.

John A. Pilchard was arrested by Corporal Powell, of the State Motorcycle Police, and placed in the town lockup. At the direction of State's Attorney William G. Kerbin he was removed to the county jail at Snow Hill by Sheriff L. W. Onley, where he is being held.

The Pilchard brothers are both married men of middle age. Neither the Pilchard brothers or the negro were ever in trouble before.

"Star Spangled Banner" Anniversary

Last Wednesday was the 107th anniversary of the birth of "The Star Spangled Banner."

During the British bombardment of Fort M'Henry near Baltimore, in the War of 1812, Francis Scott Key was sent in a boat to carry a message to the British commander. When he reached the flagship he was imprisoned on it.

At dawn on September 14, 1814, Key, looking through a port-hole, saw the Stars and Stripes still waving in the glare of the rockets. This sight gave to America its national anthem.

Key set his words to an old tune—"Anacreon in Heaven," and his song won instant popularity.

The poet was thirty-four years old when he wrote "The Star Spangled Banner." Born in Frederick county, Maryland, in 1780, Key was brought up near Baltimore and was graduated from St. John's College at Annapolis. He achieved prominence as a lawyer no less than as a writer of verse, and at one time was District Attorney of Washington, D. C. He died in 1843, at the age of sixty-three.

Recruits From All Countries

While the majority of Marines are native born, recruits from almost every country in the world enlisted in the corps during the fiscal year ending June 30th, 1921, according to an official report compiled by Marine Corps Headquarters.

The total American born numbered 11,735, and of this number New York State contributed 1,096, Pennsylvania 916, Illinois 847 and Ohio 549, the remainder coming from every state in the Union. The alien born recruits, who are required to have either their first or full citizenship papers, numbered 1,126, and represented over fifty foreign nationalities. All the European countries are represented in the report, and there are recruits from Java, Madagascar, Egypt, Syria and from several of the Latin-American republics.

Gen. Pershing Sails For France

Cheered by hundreds, General Pershing sailed last Wednesday for France on the Paris to bestow posthumously on an unknown French poilu the Congressional Medal of Honor.

He found a throng of former comrades awaiting him when he reached his pier on the Hudson river. Shaking hands alike with private and officers, he slipped some on the back as he exchanged greetings.

PHOEBUS GAINED 40 BY RECOUNT

Election Supervisors Reject All The Votes Cast On Smith's Island

The Board of Election Supervisors—Messrs. A. B. Fitzgerald, James H. Cullen and George H. Ford—met in Princess Anne last Thursday at noon and organized as a board of canvassers to canvass the result of the Republican primary recently held in Somerset county.

The return from all the voting places in the county were added up and on the face of the returns J. Arthur White, the organization candidate for County Commissioner, received 863 votes and Harry T. Phoebus, the anti-organization candidate for the same office, received 834 votes, giving White a majority of 29 votes.

At the same time, however, the attorneys for Mr. Phoebus gave notice to the Board of Canvassers that Mr. Phoebus would file a petition asking for a recount of the votes in Smith's Island district and several other districts in the county. During the canvass of the returns Thursday Mr. Phoebus gained 15 votes over the unofficial figures and it was the expectation of Mr. Phoebus that a recount of the votes in Smith's Island and other districts would give him a majority over his opponent.

The Board of Canvassers met again Friday afternoon at 1 o'clock and began the recount. Mr. Phoebus is represented by Miles & Myers and H. Fillmore Lankford, of Princess Anne, and Senator John B. Robins, of Crisfield, and Mr. White is represented by F. Leonard Wailes, of Salisbury.

In addition to asking for a recount of the ballots in Westover, Dublin and East and West Princess Anne districts, Mr. Phoebus also claimed that the whole vote cast in Smith's Island district should be thrown out. In that district Mr. White received 82 votes and Mr. Phoebus received none.

Mr. Phoebus contended that the primary held there was absolutely void for the reasons that the primary was held at a home in Ewell, one of the villages on the island, instead of at Rhodes Point, another village on the island, where the Board of Supervisors had advertised that the primary would be held, and furthermore that no booths were provided at the place where the primary was held for the voters to retire to mark their ballots, but that instead the ballots were marked on a table sitting in the room where the primary was held.

The recounting of the votes on Friday resulted as follows: In the districts of Westover, Mt. Vernon, East and West Princess Anne Mr. Phoebus gained 20 votes, which, if the Smith's Island votes were counted, would have defeated him by only nine votes. However, as none of the ballots from the Smith's Island district bore the initials of the judge of election, as required by law, the entire 82 votes cast by the voters of that district for J. Arthur White were thrown out by the Supervisors of Election, the latter refusing to count them. This made Phoebus' majority 73.

The recount of all the districts were concluded on Saturday—Phoebus received 761 votes and White 721, giving Phoebus a majority of 40.

Set Of Relationship By Marriage

When Miss Sarah Elaine Atkins, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William R. Atkins, of Millsboro, Del., and David Brittingham, an electrician of Lewes, Del., were married in the Lewes Methodist Episcopal Church recently the family ties were bound more closely than at first appears.

By the marriage Mr. Brittingham becomes the stepfather of his daughter-in-law, a brother-in-law to his son, and his stepdaughter and daughter-in-law is his sister-in-law.

Mrs. Brittingham becomes the stepmother of her brother-in-law, the stepmother of her sister, and sister-in-law by marriage to her husband. The involved relationship is brought about by the fact that Mr. Brittingham and his son married sisters. Mr. Brittingham's wife is younger than his son's wife.

Postmasters Must Help Tourists

Postmasters throughout the country will have to post themselves on the best trout streams in their vicinity, the location of golf clubs and other information of interest to tourists, according to a recent order by Postmaster General Hays. So successful has the information bureau of the department proved that Postmaster General Hays contemplates extending the service. Either the local postmaster or some delegated employee would help the tourists, according to the order.

Mrs. William H. Richardson, who has been visiting her mother, Mrs. J. S. Bradley, of Westover, has returned to her home at Loretto.

Haggard Man

By MARIE BELDEN JAMES

(Copyright.)

Marshall Shane was old, but nobody would have guessed it. Age had not dulled his dark eyes nor silvered his dark hair nor bent his broad shoulders.

He had watched the world for seventy years, and he knew it so well that he was not afraid to love it.

Karl Kraft, the art critic was one of the many to whom Marshall Shane's word was law and light.

He walked into Shane's study one warm, late May afternoon.

"A strange thing, sir," he said, sitting down by the table and gazing out of the window at the fading sunlight; "a very strange thing."

Marshall Shane looked at him keenly.

"You're in trouble," he said.

"Well, not exactly," returned Kraft. "I've been through a strange experience, but if it really was the way it seemed it was worth the price I paid for it."

"A large price?" inquired Shane. "Rather—as the world considers things."

"That's good. Let's hear about it," said Kraft.

"I went to the bank this morning to cash my check for that series of articles I did for Kaledoscopes. The teller gave me eight one-hundred-dollar bills—there were eight articles, you know—and I put them into my vest pocket and went out. I started to walk home, and I had gone some distance before I noticed that a man was following me."

"When I did discover it I looked around at him, and I saw that he was a haggard, weary-looking man."

"I didn't pay much attention to him, even though I was carrying eight hundred, for I didn't think it would be easy to hold up a man on Counter street in the middle of the morning."

"I turned around and faced him sharply, but it did not seem to abash him in the least."

"You are Kraft?" he said. It was more like a simple statement than a question, and I told him he was right."

"I have the impertinence," he said, "to ask you to look at a picture."

"My terms are very high and in advance," I answered, briefly enough, for I thought if he were trying to put up some game on me that would settle him."

"I have only five dollars," he said calmly. "But you're welcome to that here and now if you'll look at my picture."

"Where's your studio?" I asked him.

"He pointed to the Lefevre, and that decided me."

"The elevator took us up—up—higher than I'd ever been before, to the very top floor; and when we got out the room he conducted me to was the smallest and poorest in the building."

"There wasn't much of anything in it—a couch, some canvases and paintboxes, and on an easel a picture covered with a cloth."

"About six feet in front of the easel an imitation Persian rug was spread on the floor, and to this he escorted me. He wanted me to sit on it."

"I haven't a chair," he said; "and you get just the right light on the picture from here. I've studied for days the placing of the rug, waiting for the time when you would come to see my picture."

Then he went softly over to the picture and took the cloth off it. He must have stepped back out of my sight then, for I remember no more of him."

"But the picture?"

"Mr. Shane," that was a picture—a wonderful one."

"The second my eyes fell on it it snatched my mind from everything else by its wonderful brightness—great masses of reds—scarlets and crimson and garnets so dazzling and blinding that it was a little time before I saw the face in the center of them. But when I did come to that clear, white face, everything softened and blurred."

"When, half-unconsciously, I wandered back to that mass of reds they were softer and clearer and I saw what they were—a great bed of heavy, nodding poppies growing in a sleepy breeze that rocked them, and among them a delicate-faced girl with great, dark eyes gently falling asleep. As I watched, her eyelids seemed to droop more and more, her eyes to grow more and more dreamy."

"I woke up peacefully and gazed around me dreamily, as I have waked and gazed a hundred times in my hammock at Beethrude on one of our long, rain-soaked July days."

"But when my eyes reached the easel it was like a cold shock of water in the face. The picture was gone."

"The canvas had been cut—hacked, the framed edges seemed to say—from the frame. An ugly hole like a gaping wound confronted me."

"I stood up suddenly."

"I felt cramped and uncomfortable, as though I had slept for a long time, and the sunlight on the floor looked more like that of the afternoon than of the morning. Unconsciously I put up my hand for my watch to see the time."

"But no watch was there. Then, quite consciously, I felt for my eight one-hundred-dollar notes. They also had left me."

"You can imagine that I pulled myself together then. It's bad enough to lose eight hundred dollars, but to lose eight hundred dollars and have to walk home as well is too much. I turned down Rand street and entered Doctor Quigley's office."

"I asked Quigley to look me over and tell me, if he could, how I had been drugged so quickly and so quietly."

"Do you want to see whether I know my profession, or what?" he asked. "There isn't the slightest symptom about you to indicate that you have been near any drug for years."

"He was rather offended, and I had to apologize quite humbly before I dared even to ask him to lend me car fare. When I got it I came straight up here. There's something very queer about the affair all around, Mr. Shane, and if anybody can explain it you can."

All through this story the old man's keen eyes had been watching his friend's face."

"You didn't even find out the name of the—the haggard man?" he asked.

"Yes, I did find that out—at the very last," said Kraft. "I asked the elevator man. Ramon, his name is, Royal Ramon."

"Ah!" Marshall Shane's eyes brightened. "That accounts for it. I didn't think there was but one man in the world who could—"

"Do you know him, then?" interrupted Kraft.

"No," said Marshall Shane, "but I knew his father, Royal Ramon, Sr. He was a moderately successful painter—in England. One day, in a moment of delicious greatness, he painted a picture of a man flinging himself off London bridge in a dense gray fog. When he had finished it, I suppose he was foolish enough to look at it until it thrilled him, for instead of selling it he put it on exhibition in his studio."

"His friends all came to see it, and they looked and looked and went away with queer, scared faces, and before the end of the week three of them—men who had been brave enough through every kind of trouble—had thrown themselves off London bridge."

"A great fuss was made about it and it ruined Ramon utterly as an artist, and the government even went so far as to forbid him exhibiting his picture. But they couldn't prevent him from looking at it himself, and one day when all London was hidden in a dense gray fog he stole away from his home, leaving his wife and his little boy, went up to London bridge and slipped off."

"Mrs. Ramon and the boy left England shortly afterward. I kept track of them for a while—the mother died nine or ten years ago. But I lost the boy, and now he turns up a haggard man, and a greater genius even than his father. And I don't think that you'll ever again see your watch of your eight hundred dollars."

"Do you really mean," demanded Kraft, "that you believe that any man could paint a picture that would put one to sleep like an opiate?"

"I do," said Marshall Shane, "but the police never would. If you don't wish to have your sanity doubted, I advise you not to try them."

"You really believe?" repeated Kraft. "It seems so improbable—such a strange thing."

"I've known stranger things than that," said Marshall Shane.

African and Asiatic Elephants.

Many persons have, no doubt, wondered why the African elephant, though quite as intelligent as the Indian or Asiatic animal, is less often found with circuses and at zoological parks. The reason is one which may be easily explained: The African elephant, it has been found, is less docile in captivity than the Asiatic elephant; his surroundings seem to have more effect upon his disposition. Then, too, his tastes are different from those of his cousin, the Asiatic elephant. Used to the jungles, where he roamed at will, crossing the forests and fording the rivers, he is not at all content with his enforced captivity. Although all this is generally true of the African elephant, yet "Jumbo," long the great pet of Barnum and Bailey's circus, was a full-grown African elephant, which came from the wildest part of Africa. Yet "Jumbo" never caused any trouble to his attendants, and never was there a more affectionate elephant.

Island of Mystery.

Mindoro, in the Philippine group, is something of a mystery. Other islands are rather thickly populated, but Mindoro is shrouded in uncertainty. There is a fringe of population around the shoreline, but the interior of the big island is practically unknown and unexplored. It is claimed that but one white man, Dean Worcester, ever has crossed the interior of Mindoro.

Why the island has remained thus for nearly three hundred years is something of a mystery. It is said that there is gold in abundance on this island, and where that is gold there usually can be found white men willing to go after it, whether in frozen waste or tropic heat, but Mindoro's secrets remain safely hidden. Bananas Should Be More Plentiful.

Big development has taken place in the banana industry in Kingston, Jamaica, due to the fact that there was no hurricane last year. The different trading companies are making arrangements to put on more ships and an attempt is being made to get the growers to co-operate with the district association, under the guidance of a large central association, to get better prices from the United States purchasing companies.

DANUBE IS OPEN TO ALL NATIONS

Internationalization of Famous River Completed by Action of Interested Allied Powers.

BARRIER AND BATTLEGROUND

Danube Has Long Been Chain Upon Which Romance and History Have Vied With Each Other to Hang Interesting Traditions.

Washington.—The completion of the internationalization of the Danube by the recent formal action of the interested allied powers, announced in Paris dispatches, is the occasion for the issuance from the Washington headquarters of the National Geographic society of the following bulletin, descriptive of the famous river.

"From the Black forest to the Black sea, over a course 1,800 miles in length, the Danube has long been a chain upon which romance and history have vied with each other to hang interesting traditions and occurrences. Geography, too, has done its share, and although the Volga exceeds its rival in length, and although the Rhine in Thackeray and Hood has had better press agents, the Danube is large enough and beautiful enough to rank in interest with the great rivers of the world."

Less a Highway and More a Barrier.

"There was a time when the Danube was symbolized by an old-fashioned waltz. But since the World war began, nothing but a hesitation typifies the pace the river has held in the economic life of the countries through which it runs. It has been less a highway and more the barrier than in prewar days. Not yet does it serve to bind the various nations through which it passes into a friendly and co-operating group. It has been officially open to ships of all nations since the forming of the Danube commission in 1856 and the various states interested long co-operated to improve the navigation facilities, especially in the lower reaches of the river; but political conditions have done much to weaken the economic link which once bound Linz and Vienna to the great grain shipping center of Braila, to which ocean-going vessels can steam, and to the Black sea ports themselves."

"Charming villages, beautiful meadows, picturesque hills crowned with ruined castles, princely palaces, ecclesiastical piles and two of the world's most fascinating capitals are strung along the lengthy and winding river. Thriving industries raise their smokestacks beside the stream whose legendary color is blue but whose true tint varies from a dirty green to a muddy yellow. More tragic than the encroachment of factory smoke has been in late years the sad sight of countless chimneys from which the life-breath of industry seemed to have expired forever."

Hohenkollern Castle on Banks.

"Near its source at Donaueschingen, the river passes between the castle which gave its name to the late ruling family in Germany and a war monument to the Hohenkollern men who fell in the Franco-Prussian war. Farther down it passes through the once-proud capital of Austria-Hungary, where the fine government buildings stand to the despairing inhabitants as a mocking reminder of better days, and beside the Prater, once a deer park and later a pleasure garden noted for its Viennese gayety."

The Danube.

"Still farther along its course just after entering Czechoslovakia, at its junction with the March, there is a towering cliff spired with a monument erected to celebrate 1,000 years of Hungarian nationality. This is Czechoslovakian territory now, and there last summer the Stars and Stripes were draped on the occasion of the visit of a large group of Czech-Americans to the newly freed land of their fathers."

"Bratislava, now Czechoslovakia's river port, was once the city in whose dignified cathedral the Hungarian kings were crowned. The boat station there reveals the changes which history has wrought. Over the center of the landing the present name is given, but to the left one can see most of the letters of the German name 'Pressburg' and to the right there is the Hungarian name, 'Pozsony'."

Budapest Not War-Torn.

"Vienna, brooding in its lovely parks, which lack the care that was once lavished on them, and contemplating with cynicism the motto 'Si Vis Pacem, Para Bellum,' whose golden letters decorate the walls of the ministry of war, is a sad sight. But Budapest, still militant, still haughty in the consciousness of its beauty, seems to have been less troubled by the passage of war."

"Food is the main reason, Hungary, reduced as it is, still contains some of the best land in Europe. Vienna, its industry stopped, can do little to earn the food it needs. During the summer of 1920 all traffic between the two capitals was stopped by mutual boycotts and although steamers plied the Danube from Linz to Budapest, no through passengers or freight were received."

"To the casual observer, Budapest is the same proud city as of old. The fine parliament building and the imposing palace on the heights across the river, where Admiral Horthy now rules, seem as attractive as before the war. The upper river is still crowded with bathers and with canoes and rowboats in which charming women and stalwart men do their best to attain a spacious coat of tan. Along Franz Josef quay, the promenade adds a lively touch of color to the drab scenes to which the beautiful blue Danube has become accustomed."

Celtic Fortress Still Stands.

"From Zemun, once the last Hungarian port on the Danube, a short trip between low banks brings one to Belgrade, the capital of the new kingdom of Serbs, Croats and Slovenes, where the steamer rounds the base of the ancient fortress which dates back to the time of the Celts, the Romans and the Franks, and comes to its dock a little way up the Save, which here enters the Danube from the south."

"About four hours sail below Belgrade the wide plains give way to hilly country where the Transylvanian Alps curve down toward the jumble of mountains which extend to Montenegro and Greece. It is in this region that the main obstructions of the river occur. But the most famous obstructions and the finest scenery come at the Kazan Dufila and the 'Iron Gates,' where the river has collected a gruesome toll."

"At Ruscuk, the railway traveler from Roumania ferries across a broad and sluggish stream to continue his journey to Sofia and Constantinople; and here the banks of the Danube are lined with huge barges, many of which are still idle. Below Sillistria, the river curves to the north and passes through Roumanian territory throughout the rest of its length. At Cerna Voda, it is crossed by one of the longest railway bridges in the world, the last of the many bridges which cross the stream, some of which are now destroyed as a result of the war and post-armistice fighting."

"Boila, 125 miles from the three main mouths of the Danube, is a port for the grain and produce of a rich agricultural region. In prewar days its wharves teemed with life and its huge grain elevators bulged with the rich products of Wallachia and Dobrudja, which has seen great development since the Russians gave it to Roumania instead of the more valuable and fertile tracts of Bessarabia. From Galatz to the sea the Danube has already been under the control of an international commission whose duty has been to tame the river and the many nationalities to whom the river is highway or barrier, according to the tides of human passion and national life."

BLAME BLISTERS ON KISSING

Health Board in Pennsylvania Town May Put Ban on Osculation to Stop Plague.

Uniontown, Pa.—Kissing is blamed by physicians of this city for the spread of an epidemic of blisters, which has now grown to such proportions that the board of health may be called on to place a ban on osculation until such time as the disease has abated or disappeared entirely.

Local physicians are authority for the statement that there are hundreds of cases of a skin disease here which spreads in a manner similar to noxious weed poisoning. The disease has the nature of an eczematous rash, and has been found very difficult to control and even more difficult to eradicate once it has taken hold on a person.

While not all the persons affected with the "blisters" are in their teens and early twenties, a great majority of them are at what is known as the "kissing age."

The hint dropped that the board of health might be asked to declare kissing taboo until such time as the "blisters epidemic" has subsided has aroused a strong protest from all over the city.

HOOD HOUND FINDS LIQUOR

Dry Agents Would Buy Terrier Named William Jennings Volstead, but Owner Refuses.

Huntington, W. Va.—Bernard Staley has a dog that is worth a million which he has refused to sell to the state prohibition department. His name is William Jennings Volstead, they call him Bone Dry for short, and he's a hood hound.

Bone Dry is a rat terrier and he has a red nose, and his nose got that way digging for liquor. The prohibition authorities want him, but they can't have him. In two days Bone Dry has uncached two quantities of buried hooch. His master, hearing him bark at a stump in a neighboring field, investigated and dug up several quart bottles of very fine moonshine. His other escapade of the 48 hours was the recovering of several gallons buried in a creek bed.

Staley has refused fabulous offers for the dog, it is said.

Big Feet No Help in Killing Rattlesnake

James Kiernan, Tusten, N. Y., nearly lost a battle with a four-foot rattlesnake because his feet were too big. Kiernan got both feet on the rattler, but was unable to club it to death as he could not hit the snake without bruising his own toes. He was nearly tired out before he managed to get in a blow which stunned the snake so that he could get off and finish the job.

MARK PRICES IN PLAIN FIGURES

Code System Disappearing Because of Abuses It Encouraged.

ABANDONED BY THE LEADERS

Change to Some Extent Forced by Buyers, Many Insisting on Plain Figures—Origin of Code System Not Clearly Known.

New York.—Among the less noticeable and important changes that have taken place in the business world in the last few years has been the gradual disappearance of codes in connection with price tickets and the marking of the values of the merchandise in plain figures. While many concerns still stick to pricing their lines in code, the trade leaders have very largely abandoned the practice. Smaller concerns have followed suit to some extent, but others have been loath to put plain figures on their goods.

The change from code to figures in marking prices, according to information gained in this market, has been forced to some extent by the buyers. There are many retailers and special buyers for the big stores who will not patronize a concern which hides its prices behind a code. The reason one such buyer gave recently for this is that the code does not mean the same to all buyers when translated into figures. In other words, he asserted that the use of a code is merely a subterfuge by means of which different buyers can be charged different prices for the same merchandise without their knowing it.

Origin Not Clear.

Just where and by whom the code system of marking prices was originated appears to be not clearly known. The reason why it was adopted is also something of a puzzle, although plausible solutions are offered. About the only thing regarding it that is at all definite is that it came into being years ago, when it was the custom of the manufacturers and wholesalers to build a kind of Chinese wall around their business and station a regiment of soldiers at every gate. In those days, according to trade veterans, commercial spying was a high art, and more than one man had his palm crossed with silver for posing as a buyer and thus obtaining price data of the competitors of the merchant who hired him. In those days anything approaching the open-price associations that had their being here during the war would have been looked upon as madness, for then, to all intents and purposes, every merchant regarded his competitors as personal enemies.

One of the favorite codes used in the early days, it is said, was the one based on the old motto, "In God We Trust." This had the advantage of containing but twelve letters, with no duplications in the first ten. Thus, by dropping the final "t," something like this was arrived at:

1234567890

With this arrangement worked out, the rest was easy. If a man were selling broadcloth at $4.50 a yard, on his price ticket would appear the more or less cryptic sign O D U. Were he selling an overcoat at $37.25, the mark on the ticket would be G E N D. Sometimes the code would be varied by placing the figure 1 under the U and numbering in sequence to the left instead of to the right. Thousands of codes and variations of original ones have since been devised.

Frequently Abused.

While there seems to be little doubt that the code system was adopted originally as a protective measure, it was not long before it began to be used for more ulterior purposes. What was there, somebody evidently argued, to prevent the use of the code to fool buyers as to the real price? In its early days, at least, wholesale business was no more conducted on a strictly one-price basis than was retail selling. Therefore, not only did a code price frequently mean different quotations to different buyers, but it often meant the minimum figure at which a yard of goods or a garment could be sold. The salesmen were permitted to get anything they could above the figure indicated by the code, and as they were paid in comparison with what they sold, they tried to get all the traffic would bear. That way of doing business prevailed in one of the biggest wholesale houses in the country for years, it is said, and the gentle art of buying there was rendered more difficult by the fact that practically every kind of merchandise sold by the concern had a different code.

Instances like those noted above have been paralleled many times, according to the buyers heretofore mentioned. In late years, however, salesmen have had less leeway, if any at all, in connection with fixing prices. Because of this the double-price system to different buyers is "worked" more in the salesrooms than on the road. Also, it is asserted, the practice referred to is now very largely confined to the garment trades. In the hands of a smooth worker, usually a member of the firm or the so-called general representative, the cryptic code letters can mean $37.50 to one buyer and $37.25 to another. To a really favored buyer it might mean even less.

IS OLD LONDON PLAYGROUND

Hyde Park Has for Centuries Been the Scene of Amusements Dear to Englishmen.

In Hyde park, London, nearly every game and sport known to the English has been practiced at one time or another. In 1550 the French ambassador hunted there with the king. In 1578 the Duke of Casimir "killed a barren doe with his piece in Hyde park from among 800 other deer." In the reign of Charles I the park became celebrated for its foot and horse races round the ring, the "dusty mill-horse drive," as Lady Malapert calls it. "Shall we make a fling to London," wrote Richard Brome, "and see how the spring appears there in the spring gardens; and in Hyde park, to see the races, horse and foot; to hear the jockies crack?"

Racing in the ring was one of the greatest attractions in the park, and some of the meetings were thought to be of great importance, as even among the state papers there is preserved the agreement for a race that took place there. Charles I mixed freely with his subjects on these occasions, but, looking on the royal park as his own possession, he once ordered the ejection of a Berkshire squire, whom he referred to as an "ugly rascal." The "ugly rascal" overheard the phrase. He went away quietly, but vowed vengeance, and gradually embittered the whole of his country against the king. He had, indeed, his revenge, for writ large on Charles I's death warrant was the name of the "ugly rascal."

"Cockles of the Heart."

Physiologists will tell one that there are no "cockles" in the heart, and yet people have asseverated for many years that certain incidents have "warmed the cockles of their hearts." Etymologists have been puzzled over the expression, and so far have sought in vain its derivation. The theory most favored lies in the general resemblance, more fancied perhaps than real, between the human heart and the cockleshell, the base of the heart being compared to the hinge of the bivalve.

Whether by coincidence or otherwise, the scientific name for the cockleshell family is cardium, meaning the heart, from the Latin, although originating in the Greek language. The cockleshell long ago, was the emblem of the pilgrim returning from the Holy land.

Something Wrong.

LONDON HAS DOG CEMETERY

Founded Nearly Twenty Years Ago, Ground Set Off Is Now Overcrowded With "Graves."

Comparatively few of London's visitors—or inhabitants either, for that matter—find their way to the dogs' cemetery in Hyde park, says a correspondent. Situated in a corner of the park it is so shut in by trees and thick hedges that the ordinary passer-by would hardly notice it, but it is well worth a visit. Nearly 20 years ago the favorite dog of an old gentleman living near the Victoria gate died. His master obtained permission to bury his canine friend in the garden belonging to the cottage occupied by the gatekeeper, and so the dogs' cemetery was started. Soon there were other applications from people who wanted to find a quiet resting-place for their pets, and now the cemetery is so crowded that more ground will have to be taken or the cemetery closed, and dogs' funerals things of the past. Not being reserved solely for dogs, cats and even one monkey are buried there. The cemetery is neatly and carefully kept. The graves are marked by miniature headstones, while on many, flowers are planted, and some are kept constantly bright with fresh wreaths. Some of the epitaphs are curious, while many are pathetic, and nearly all express a hope of meeting in some future world.

HAD IDEAL DEMOCRATIC RULE

In Early Years of the Republic, Roman Citizens in Mass Meeting Enacted Laws.

The constitution of the Roman republic, especially during the early centuries of its existence, was democratic beyond any constitution known today. The citizens of Rome assembled in a mass meeting called the comitia, and enacted the laws, and the people each year elected two chief executive officers, who were called consuls. Another important office was that of the tribune, who was also elected for a year. He possessed the veto power, that is, he could veto or annul laws passed by the comitia, and was held to be the special and powerful guardian of popular rights and the welfare of the commonwealth. The number was increased, and the body of tribunes became one of the most powerful parts of the government. According to the modern use of the word, a tribune is a champion of the rights and liberties of the people.

The word also had another meaning, being used as a name for a platform and especially the platform and pulpit-like structure in the French chamber of deputies from which a member addresses the assembly.

Stones That Absorb Water.

Stone is by no means impervious to water. Some kinds, notably coarse sandstones, hold a large percentage. Even marbles absorb quantities. The absorptive capacity of limestones ranges from 7 per cent or more down to practically zero. Porous limestones to which the pore space ranges from 10 to 15 per cent, will absorb from 4 to 6 per cent of water, according to the United States geological survey, Department of the Interior, whereas semicrystalline and crystalline limestones or marbles have lower percentages of pore space and absorption, such marbles as those from Vermont, Tennessee and Georgia being almost nonabsorbent. Pumice stone, which is usually lighter than water, owing to its great amount of pore space, will absorb large quantities of water; obsidian and volcanic glass which are of the same chemical composition as pumice stone, but several times heavier than water, will absorb none. Quartzite, granite and the numerous eruptive rocks are practically impervious to water.

One of Time's Changes.

Sick Horse Broke Down Door to Go to Doctor

William Selfken, a farmer of near Springfield, Ill., took his horse to a veterinarian a year ago when the animal was sick. The horse was taken sick again recently and Selfken called the veterinarian, Dr. A. E. Dickerson. When Dickerson arrived at the farm the barn door was found kicked off its hinges and the horse was gone. The animal was found later standing at the door of the "horse hospital" in Springfield, where it had been treated last year.

INVENTS "STEAM" AIRSHIP

British Naval Officer Produces Engine He Says Will Reach High Altitudes.

London.—Invention of a system of steam propulsion for airships is claimed by Capt. W. P. Durnall, who was a British naval officer during the war and up to a year ago staff captain in the chief mechanical and electrical engineers' department of the royal air force.

It is maintained that the new system will function at altitudes hitherto unattainable with the ordinary type of internal combustion engine.

The invention is said to do away completely with the ordinary boiler, the steam being generated by means of internal-combustion power or heat energy. The superheated steam heat energy is supplied to special steam motors which are reversible and can be controlled from a central control station. Only heavy oil is used as fuel and it is claimed that the driving machinery can be safely placed inside the frame of the airship instead of in separate gondolas outside, thus bringing about a great reduction in air resistance and consequently reducing the power required for propulsion.

WILL WED WAR HERO

Miss Alice Trubee Davison, daughter of Henry P. Davison of New York, whose engagement to Artemus B. Gates, war hero and former captain of the Yale football team, has just been announced. Miss Davison is twenty-two years old and during the war qualified as a wireless instructor. Her fiancé was a navy aviator. He won several decorations for valor while serving in Belgium.

CARVING IS WORTH $125,000

Mount Athos Artcraft Work of Five Monks Depicts the Life of Christ.

New York.—A wood carving valued at $125,000 placed on public view, has been in the window of a Fifth avenue firm of silversmiths. It is descriptive of the life of Christ.

Five monks of the Brotherhood of Nicodemus worked on it from 1899 until 1914 in their monastery on Mount Athos, Macedonia. Father Germanes Alegetes, one of the five makers, brought it here, together with documents attesting its origin and his right to dispose of it.

The base is a solid block of boxwood, weighing nearly 200 pounds, and the entire composition is 28 inches tall and 21 inches wide. Into this surface the monks have carved panel and picture designs, in high and low relief, involving hundreds of figures and scenes.

Lasso Delaware Sturgeon.

St. Georges, Del.—How William Beckett and William Bayer lassoed a sturgeon in the Delaware river at the upper end of Reddy Island, is one of the big items of conversation in lower New Castle county.

The men sighted the sturgeon and having no paraphernalia they decided as a joke to try to lasso it with a small rope. A lucky throw caught the huge fish behind the gills.

War Explosives for Farmers.

Washington.—The Department of Agriculture has 12,500,000 pounds of salvaged "comparatively safe" war explosives to give to farmers for land clearing. Farmers are advised "to treat it with respect, for the records are filled with stories of men who forgot this precaution in handling dynamite and other dangerous things."

TUESDAY MORNING, SEPT. 20, 1921

Summer has been very dry—just as was expected after adoption of prohibition.

In spite of the hard times the mills can't seem to turn out silk stockings fast enough.

Women's ears are to be exposed this season. The old ideas of modesty seem altogether dead.

Some people can't see what good it does them under prohibition to win a silver cup in an athletic contest.

Some of these girls that look as if they had been working in a flour mill have merely been powdering their faces.

The open season for game will soon be here but among motorists the open season for pedestrians lasts the year round.

Some of the people who were burning up money two years ago won't be able to burn much fuel to keep warm this winter.

It is claimed that ex-Kaiser Bill is lonely. But he has the ghosts of 15,000,000 people that he murdered to keep him company.

Women are reported to be buying knickerbockers for general wear. Good idea. No excuse then for not taking care of the garden.

The moving lips of the school children may not indicate so much the silent rehearsing of their lessons as the thorough mastication of chewing gum.

The American people claim to admire independence and then they poke fun at a fellow if he wears a straw hat on a warm day after the bell rings.

Another example of the "call of the wild" is found in the indignant citizen who visits the newspaper office to kick because his name was spelled wrong.

Encouraging reports are received from the schools of this county to the effect that the kids are working very hard while the teachers are looking at them.

The people who used to find fault because times were so quiet and there was nothing doing are now all upset because the world has a new crisis about every other week.

The fall bride's trousseau will not be complete unless it includes a working apron. Also it is highly essential that the fall bridegroom's outfit shall have a pair of overalls.

"Eat more bread," "eat more apples," "eat more raisins" campaigns, etc., are being put over, but so far it has not been necessary to start an "eat more candy" campaign.

The men find fault with the girls if they take a lot of time to prink their hair and they find fault with them if they have their hair cut off so that they won't have to bother with it.

Viewing the throng of speeding automobiles the philosophic mind wonders where they all are going. Considering prevailing rates of speed, the destination of a lot of them is underground at an early date.

The people who so tearfully sing "Tenting on the old Camp Ground," are not perhaps thinking so sentimentally about the war veterans as about their lovely time cooking ham and eggs on the fliver camp fields.

Shirts are now back down as low as 48 cents—which was the classic pre-war minimum price and which Russell Sage, the millionaire, once said was enough for any man to pay for a shirt. It would be interesting to know how Russell would have managed if he had lived till the war period.

THE RAILROAD STRIKE BALLOT

The country is anxious to see full justice done the railroad workers, but it watches with some anxiety to see how they vote as to the question of a strike on the wage decision of the Railroad Labor Board.

The railroad men are probably earning at this time from 50 to 100 per cent. more than the average farm laborer. They have regular employment, an advantage not shared by most classes of labor.

Furthermore, unless there is to be universal suffering and a complete prostration of industry the warring elements of labor and capital must submit to peaceful arbitration by constituted authorities. The Labor Board fixed a scale of wages that many people feel is very liberal to labor, reducing their wages less than the drop in the cost of living. There will be a widespread feeling that those who decline to accept this award should have a permanent vacation or go into some industry where stoppage would not create such suffering. The country will not tolerate having its most vital industry tied up as the refusal of either party to accept fair arbitration.

A TEST OF POPULAR HONESTY

A woman came into Boston on a train the other day and in the hurry of getting off the car left behind rings valued at $20,000. Such incidents suggest how difficult it is for the human mind to concentrate itself on the care of one's possessions.

Also it indicates what a test is given of the honesty of the folks who pick up all these lost articles that people are constantly dropping. There are multitudes of folks who would never steal anything but who will calmly appropriate any lost article they may find. If they found this woman's rings they might fear to keep them knowing what a careful search would be made for such valuable stuff. But if they picked up a purse with $25 they would make no effort to locate the owner.

Newspapers print many more "lost" ads than they do of "found" notices which shows that many people have loose ideas on this point.

BUSINESS PENETRATION

During 1919 and 1920 the country appeared to be on the top wave of prosperity. But actually business conditions were never more rotten in our history. Our people were dancing and joy leaping on the brink of a precipice. We were doing business on a vast and top heavy structure of inflated prices and loans and a collapse was as sure as the setting of the sun.

Some clear sighted prophets predicted trouble and made themselves vastly unpopular. But the great majority of business men looked ahead with unbounded confidence and predicted that prices were going to a still higher level. Those that showed conservatism were laughed at for their old foggy inability to see things in the terms of the present day.

In times of great expansion most people are unable to look below the surface and perceive the indications of coming contraction. And similarly when a period of collapse has run its course the same folks cannot look below the surface and observe the signs of coming expansion.

That is emphatically the case at the present moment. The indications of coming prosperity are so obvious that only a blind man should be oblivious of them. The month of August has been showing heavier car loadings and increased net earnings on the railroads. That means more business for railroad equipment factories. Building operations have increased over last year. Larger sales are being made at higher prices of basic stuff like scrapped material, canned goods, pig iron, etc. The movement of silk goods and shoes is more active. The people who on the top of the wave could not see the first movements of the buyer's strike are unable now to see the signs of the growing swell. But those who look ahead, who prepare for the coming activity, who advertise their goods and push their business are the ones who will gain the advantage of the returning wave when it reaches us.

The Semi-Pneumatic Truck Tire

It is not so many years since the first motor vehicle made its appearance on the roads of America, yet, in the short time that has elapsed since then, the development of the motor vehicle has been amazing and tremendous.

The rubber tire has played no small part in the development of the motor truck industry. Indeed, it may not be amiss to say that were it not for the invention of the solid rubber tire it is a question if the motor vehicle industry could have reached the proportions it has.

Be that as it may, with the continual growth of the motor truck industry and its adoption into the life of practically every town, village and hamlet in this country, the demands upon the motor vehicle became more and more numerous and more and more exacting. The inventive and progressive genius of the motor vehicle industry, however, kept pace with the needs of the moment, and step in step with the motor vehicle industry, the latest and newest in truck tires that has put in an appearance in the past five years is the semi-pneumatic truck tire.

Emerson said: "Hitch your wagon to a star." Were Emerson alive today, we'll venture that he would have added, and make sure that your wagon has a motor and four good tires."

The Key That Unlocks The Door To Long Living

The men of eighty-five and ninety years of age are not the rotund, well-fed, but thin, spare men, who live on a slender diet. Be as careful as he will, however, a man past middle age will occasionally eat too much of some article of food not suited to his constitution, causing indigestion or constipation and will need a dose of Chamberlain's Tablets to move his bowels and invigorate his stomach. When this is done, there is no reason why the average man should not live to a ripe old age.

No Substitute Offered

Say what you will about druggists offering something "just as good" because it pays a better profit, the fact still stands that ninety nine out of a hundred druggists recommend Chamberlain's Colic and Diarrhoea Remedy, when the best medicine for diarrhoea is asked for, and do so because they know from what their customers say of it, that it can be depended upon.

"Trains from all sections of the Maryland, Delaware and Virginia Peninsula carried thousands of colored men, women and children to Ocean City on these days and there were some doings. Boozing was evident in the attitude by many of the excursionists. Whether they brought it to Ocean City or got it there is unknown, but they had it all right. There were fights innumerable and pickpockets got in their work. For three days hundreds of automobiles from the lower section of Worcester county and the Eastern Shore of Virginia passed through Snow Hill to and from Ocean City, and it was some big event."

Peace Time Maneuvers By Marines
Over the same terrain where Grant and Lee fought the battles of the Wilderness, the U. S. Marine Corps will this month hold the largest peace-time maneuver in its history.

A column of infantry, artillery, engineers, signal corps and other auxiliary troops will leave Quantico, Va., on September 26th. Marine aviators will accompany them.

The mimic war will cover the historic territory around Fredericksburg, Chancellorsville and Wilderness. To add interest to the maneuvers the history of these famous Civil War battlefields will be studied by the men.

Before he returns to Quantico every buck private will have seen in action all the elaborate machinery of modern war, and special efforts will be made to make clear to him the meaning of the various movements of troops so that he will know "what it is all about."

The program calls for nine days in the field. The column will return to Quantico on October 4th.

Little Doubt About It

Mary and Bobby were playing on a picket fence when Mary accidentally slipped and her little dress caught on one of the pickets and held her suspended about a foot from the ground. Bobby tried and tugged, but in vain he could not release her, so he said, "Never mind, Mary, I'll go and call my mummy." And poor little Mary, hanging by the lone picket, replied earnestly: "All right, Bobby, and I'll wait for you here."

Heads Of Families May Make Wine

Internal Revenue Bureau officials frankly acknowledged last Thursday that heads of families may upon filing of notification with local revenue collectors manufacture 200 gallons of wine yearly for home use.

Treasury regulations making effective such a provision of the law were issued by Internal Revenue Commissioner Roper with the approval of Secretary McAdoo in October, 1918, and because of the general lack of public knowledge respecting the provision Congress never has enacted legislation nullifying it, officials said.

The law applies specifically to exemption from payment of tax, officials pointed out, but in its application makes manufacture of wine at home possible provided the manufacture is by the head of a family and the wine produced be not sold or otherwise removed from the place of manufacture.

Ford Prices Again Reduced

Announcement was made the first week in September that prices of Ford cars and trucks have again been reduced from $45 to $100 per car. The new factory price of Chassals is $295, a reduction of $50; the runabout is $325, or $45 lower; touring car, $355, or $50 lower; coupe, $595, a reduction of $100; sedan, $600, or $100 lower; truck, $445, or $50 lower, and tractor, $625, unchanged. This is the second price reduction of Ford products this year.

Daily retail sales of Ford cars and trucks increased 50 per cent. the first week of the latest price reductions, according to an announcement by the Company last week. The announcement also said that corresponding reductions in dealers' stocks had been noted, according to telegraphic advices from branches throughout the country.

A Pronounced Success

The uniform success that has attended the use of Chamberlain's Colic and Diarrhoea Remedy in the relief and cure of bowel complaint, both for children and adults, has brought it into almost universal use, so that it is practically without a rival and as everyone who has used it knows, it is without an equal.

The AMERICAN LEGION

WOULD GIVE LEG FOR LEGION

Colonel Miner Who Lost Limb in Service, Is Proud of Membership in Organization.

"The loss of my leg is more than justified by the privilege of being a member of the American Legion," declared Asher Miner, president of a large milling company at Wilkes-Barre, Pa., who suffered the loss of a leg in France as the result of a shrapnel wound received while leading his men. Mr. Miner was a colonel in the Twenty-eighth division and since has been appointed brigadier general of the Pennsylvania National guard.

Mr. Miner was among the guests of honor at a banquet tendered American Legion officials by the New York Shipbuilding Corporation upon the occasion of the first trip of the new liner "American Legion." He was one of the speakers. He did not tell, however, how after he had suffered the amputation of his leg he insisted upon being carried out to his men to inspire them in "carrying on." This was told by one of the other speakers, who know of the colonel's courageousness.

The military record of Mr. Miner begins with his enlistment in 1884 in a Pennsylvania militia company. He saw active service in the Spanish-American war and in 1907 was appointed colonel of the Ninth Infantry. At the expiration of his commission he was reappointed and commanded the Third Pennsylvania Field artillery on the Mexican border. He went to France in 1918. He was cited for bravery and awarded a Distinguished Service cross and later received a Distinguished Service medal.

THE GOOD "LITTLE MOTHER"

Wichita (Kan.) Woman Regular Visitor to Boys in Hospitals Who Served in World War.

The mother of six boys and three girls, Mrs. Grace I. Jackson, is qualified for her role as "little mother of Uncle Sam's boys" in the three hospitals of Wichita, Kan., where American soldiers still are suffering from their part in the World war.

As chairman of the welfare committee of the Women's Auxiliary to the American Legion, Mrs. Jackson has made 114 visits to the men in the wards. Each week she visits the three hospitals, taking fruit and flowers, candy and cakes to the boys, who are perforce motherless. Her's is the pleasant task of distributing to them the warm dressing gowns, the smokes and the magazines contributed by her committee; upon her the stricken heroes of the world's struggle bestow smiles for their reflection to the other good souls of her organization.

Eight of Mrs. Jackson's children live at home with her. One son served in France with the One Hundred and Thirtieth Field artillery of the Thirty-fifth division, his immediate junior was physically disqualified and the remainder were too young to be accepted.

SHE'S FRIEND OF THE LEGION

Mrs. Abby Howe Forest, Mayor of Thayer, Kansas, Booster for Ex-Servicemen.

"A post of the American Legion is a valuable asset to any community," says Mrs. Abby Howe Forest, mayor of Thayer, Kan., who holds the distinction of being the first woman in the United States to hold such an office.

"Mayor" Forest is a friend of the ex-service man and takes a deep interest in the affairs of the local Legion post. The project of the Thayer post is to erect a community house which would be the center of activities for the town and country adjacent. Mrs. Forest has been an untiring worker for this civic improvement, "and we can always count on her support," declares C. E. Adams, the post adjutant.

In addition to her interest in the American Legion, Mrs. Forest is an active member of the Daughters of the American Revolution and an officer of the Ladies of the Grand Army of the Republic.

ARMY OF YOUNGSTERS MARCHING RAPIDLY ON

With the reopening of schools, Uncle Sam's Army of Savers has stepped out to make new records for itself, and to enlist boys and girls who have not yet become members in the ranks of this wide-awake organization. Will it keep up the snappy pace with which it started last April? Many members have marched right on through vacation, and their example, together with that of an inspiring beginning, indicate that the motto will be "let's go!"

A feature of the school savings movement developed exclusively in this federal reserve district, Uncle Sam's Army of Savers was organized last spring, with youthful "officers" and "privates" whose insignia buttons and "commissions" were awarded by the Savings Division of the Treasury Department. Membership in the Army may be obtained by investment in one 25-cent Thrift Stamp, and future promotions in rank depend upon the number of additional stamps bought. The fact that before last session closed twenty-five General's "commissions" and buttons were awarded in this district to children owning 20 War Savings Stamps each, indicates the rapidity with which promotions are being earned, as this is the highest rank.

Summer banks are being opened, and summer savings counted with an eye to the coveted promotion they will bring—the Lieutenant's or it may be the Captain's button that will be awarded in recognition of patriotic service rendered through the purchase of savings securities. These banks were distributed at the beginning of vacation to members of Uncle Sam's Army of Savers desiring to save money during the summer in order to win promotions.

The activities of Uncle Sam's Army of Savers will be promoted to round out the thrift instruction to be given in the majority of schools in the district. Boys and girls will learn the principles and theory of thrift in their classrooms, and will then be encouraged to put what they have learned into practice by earning money and investing the right proportion of it in safe, interest-bearing government securities.

Famines in History.

The famines of the ancient world, usually confined to comparatively small countries, such as Egypt or Palestine, were largely due to the smallness of the area depended upon for food. Unfavorable conditions were general and failure in one part usually meant failure throughout the country. And only one or two crops were depended upon.

Another cause of those ancient famines and of some of the famines in Europe during the Middle ages, was want of means of transportation. The land where famine prevailed might not be more distant than a hundred miles from a district where there was plenty, but it was impossible to carry some of the abundance of the latter to the stricken country, or carry it in sufficient quantities and with sufficient dispatch to succor the needy.

One of the great assurances against want are our means of transportation—the steamship and the railway, which make available the whole world's supply of food.

Why Hate Cause Baldness.

It is necessary for the hair to have sufficient air and good circulation of the blood as it is for the body. Both must "breathe," and both must be supplied with blood to carry off impurities. In the case of hair, the blood is supplied through tiny veins situated around the roots and any tight band around the upper portion of the head will cause the hair to die and fall out.

The construction of men's hats is such that they press rather tightly upon the forehead and the bulging portion of the head at the back, thus impeding free circulation of the blood.

The connection between a man's hat and his baldness is clear from the fact that there are but few men who are entirely bald. Most of them have a fringe around the ears and the lower portion of the back of the head, parts which are not covered by their hats.

Antoinette—Mrs. Black 'as called to see you, madam.

Mrs. White—Oh! Run to the drug store now and get me some aspirin, Antoinette.

Antoinette—Your poor 'ead, does it ache then, madam?

Mrs. White—No! But it will when she has left.—London Mail.

MORE THAN MERELY ORATOR

Will Crooks, English Labor Leader, a Man of Most Remarkable Personality.

Although he had such a wonderful way with him when talking to an audience, the late Mr. Will Crooks was the despair of reporters.

It was impossible to transfer his spoken words into cold print without losing the very thing that captivated his audience—the personality of the man.

It was all personality with Mr. Crooks, and experienced reporters have been known to go to a meeting which Mr. Crooks kept in roars of laughter, and when they had written their report tear it up because it failed to convey any idea of what had happened.

Mr. Crooks was good at telling a story, but even better at repartee. At a recruiting meeting during the war a man tried to interrupt him, and provoked the withering retort, "Yes, I know you. You are one of those who could settle the whole thing in a barber's shop on a Saturday afternoon."

Mr. Crooks' favorite story concerned a woman who bought some flowers from a flower-girl at Piccadilly circus. She was so pleased with them that she promised to buy more on Wednesday. "When my daughter is coming out," "She shall have the best posy, ma'am, that I can make," was the reply. "What has she been in for?"—London Tit-Bits.

stateamen Guard Secrets.

Many of the rulers and statesmen of Europe use black blotting paper in order to guard against the possibility of prying eyes deciphering their correspondence by examining the reflection of the imprint of their writing in a mirror.

The "Sage of Monticello."

The "Sage of Monticello" was a sobriquet bestowed upon Thomas Jefferson, in allusion to the wisdom displayed by him in political affairs during his residence at Monticello, Va., after his retirement from the presidency.

Flowers.

Crushed and faded looking artificial flowers can be made new and fresh looking if held over the steam of a boiling kettle a few minutes. They should be pulled and shaken into shape while being steamed.

Disease Delayed.

One curious point which is shown in insurance tables is that those organic diseases which are so frequent in middle life develop at a period from five to ten years later than they did fifty years ago.

Indigestion

Many persons, otherwise vigorous and healthy, are bothered occasionally with indigestion. The effects of a disordered stomach on the system are dangerous, and prompt treatment of indigestion is important. "The only medicine I have needed has been something to aid digestion and clean the liver," writes Mr. Fred Ashby, a McKinney, Texas, farmer. "My medicine is

HOW OUR REPRESENTATIVES MAKE THE NATION'S LAWS

What happens to the thousands of bills introduced in Congress, and how do those that are finally passed succeed in seeing the light of day?

In our latest booklet of the series on Our Government we tell the story of just how Congress goes about its work, together with some interesting sidelights on the customs which have an important bearing on our legislation.

This booklet is the last of the stories of Our Government. We are contemplating a new series of articles that will be equally interesting and instructive. We shall be glad to put on our list the names of all those in this community who wish to receive them.

ACTIVE IN VIRGINIA LEGION

Kate Waller Barrett, an International Figure, is Chosen President of Women's Auxiliary.

Kate Waller Barrett, Alexandria, Va., one of the foremost women sociologists of this country, and an international figure in women's organizations, has been chosen president of the Women's Auxiliary of the American Legion for the department of Virginia. She has been called four times to serve as a special representative of the government on important missions, and has been national president of the National Congress of Mothers and Parent-Teacher associations.

While serving as president of the National Florence Crittenton mission, co-operating with the United States public health service, which position she still holds, Mrs. Barrett was a leading spirit in the conference on the care of delinquent children, called by President Roosevelt. She was a delegate to the international conference of women, a special representative of the government to investigate conditions in Europe surrounding alien women, delegate to the peace conference at Zurich in 1919, and special representative of the bureau of immigration in Europe the same year.

During the war Mrs. Barrett was the only woman appointed by the governor of Virginia to the committee on training camp activities. She is state regent of the Daughters of the American Revolution, a member of the Societe Académique Historique Internationale and an honorary member of the Argentine Council of Women of Buenos Aires. Mrs. Barrett is now devoting most of her time to the auxiliary of the American Legion.

WAS IN SERVICE ON ONE LEG

Nervy Member of Medical Corps Unit Was Not Discharged From Duty for Eleven Days.

Eleven days after being inducted into the service without claim of exemption, Logan E. Dillman was summarily discharged. The medical corps unit to which he was assigned had discovered that he had a wooden leg!

"Stumpy," as he is known by his comrades, registered at Trinidad, Colo., and when called was transferred to Fort Dodge, Ia. Evidently there was little ceremony about his introduction to the khaki. He made no complaint because of his desire to serve, if possible. But after five days of drilling, he said that the amputated limb became so sore that he couldn't make it work any longer.

"The sergeant did excuse me from play sometimes, but I drilled right along with the rest of them," Dillman said.

Even when discharged from the draft after his 11 days of service, Dillman's paper stipulated that the act "does not operate as a permanent bar to his subsequent entry into the military service" and "does not excuse the holder from obedience to the process of exemption boards." However, no subsequent call was made by the authorities.

Dillman is now a member of Harry E. Everist post No. 115, American Legion, at Mankato, Kan. The post claims to be the only one having a member "who entered the service on one 'pin'."

MANAGES TOUR TO WAR ZONE

Member of Legion Executive Committee in Charge of Party—Fooled Air Service Examiners.

When the American Legion accepted the invitation of the French government to send a party of former service men to France for a tour of the old war zone, John J. Wicker, Jr., a member of the Legion's national executive committee, was called to New York to manage the pilgrimage.

Wicker is especially qualified to conduct a tour to France or any foreign land.

Before going into the practice of law, Wicker spent some time in the organization and conduct of travel parties to Europe, Palestine, Egypt and the Orient as well as to all parts of the United States, Canada and Alaska. When the World war started he was in Rome with a travel party of 54 persons in his charge. After many thrilling experiences he succeeded in getting his party through France on military trains and finally back to the United States.

Wicker served in the aviation service in France. After being four times rejected because of defective vision, he memorized the letters on the eye-test chart and fooled the air service examiners, who were the keenest in the army.

IS LEGION LEADER IN PARIS

Famous New Orleans Ace Heads American Volunteers of French Foreign Organization.

Edgar John Bouigny of New Orleans, famous Ace of the Lafayette Esquadra and scion of an old French family, has been chosen to head an association of veterans organized at Paris and called "American Volunteers of the French Foreign Legion." When Germany announced its intention of meeting "all comers," Bouigny was one of the first Americans to volunteer his services for France and was decorated four times for bravery with the esquadra. He is a member of Alvin Candler post, American Legion.

Bouigny first served with the Second Regiment of the French Foreign Legion. When transferred to the Lafayette flyers, his intrepid maneuvering over the enemy lines, eagerness to engage any plane bearing the maltese cross, contributed many of the thrilling chapters which comprise the history of that heroic group. He was transferred to the American air forces when this country entered the fight and became an ace. He also secured numerous remarkable photographs, among them being one of enemy shells bursting over the Rheims cathedral during the first bombardment of this historic structure.

The organization of which Bouigny is president, includes American volunteers who enlisted in the early days of the war, while their country was still neutral, and is intended to include "the bonafide American citizens who served honorably at the front with the Legion, for the purpose of keeping fresh the memory of fallen comrades and furthering friendship among those surviving."

BUSY FOR THE LEGION CAUSE

Head of Washington Woman's Auxiliary Says Workers Will Not Be Found Wanting.

Mrs. John R. Neely has been chosen head of the Washington State Women's Auxiliary of the American Legion. Born in Washington, D. C., Mrs. Neely later moved to the state of Washington where she has been active in club work of Spokane and the entire state. She is, in addition to being president of the state Legion auxiliary, head of the strong National Guard auxiliary, the mother organization and president of St. John's guild. She is the mother of five children, four sons and a daughter. One son fought with the Ninety-first division, A. E. F. Another was with the Twenty-third engineers, A. E. F. A third was an aviation instructor at Kelly Field, Texas, and Issodun, France. The youngest fought with the embattled Second division A. E. F.

"My work in the auxiliary will be a legacy from our beloved sons, who, sleeping in the sacred soil of France, have passed it on to the women of the American Legion," said Mrs. Neely. "It belongs to us by ties of blood. It means a pledge of service to the service men in the name of those they left behind. In the holding of that legacy, God helping, we will not be found wanting."

MARYLAND TO STOP HEAVY FIRE LOSS

State Campaign To Reduce Economic Waste Will Start Oct. 1 And Last Ten Days.

All citizens of Maryland are called on to take part in the Maryland Fire Prevention Campaign, which starts October 1 and the purpose of which is to reduce the heavy economic waste caused by fires which, in most cases, could have been prevented. The annual property damage in the United States through fires is approximately $500,000,000, or more than a million dollars a day. This huge sum is not paid by the fire insurance companies. It is paid by the citizens of Maryland and the other states. The fire insurance companies simply collect from their policyholders and disburse this money to those who suffer fire losses.

Fire insurance companies do not make money by underwriting against loss. Their income is derived from profitable investment of the money paid in by policyholders and invested against the time it will have to be paid out to those policyholders who suffer a fire loss. The citizens of Maryland helped pay the losses sustained by the citizens of San Francisco when that city suffered its great conflagration.

But the greatest loss, the greatest economic waste, comes not solely through property destroyed, but through loss of income suffered by the workers thrown out of employment by fires; through loss of business sustained by retailers dependent on the purchasing power of those employees; through loss of trade sustained by firms and individuals whose manufacturing plants or business establishments are wiped out. These are the ones who suffer the real loss and it is to reduce this loss, this economic waste, that Governor Ritchie and Mayor Broening, with the co-operation of the mayors of other Maryland cities, sent out the call for war against fire.

B. S. Mace, former president of the National Railway Fire Prevention Association, is chairman of the state committee. The vice-chairmen in various parts of the state are:

- Bernard J. Wiegand, Annapolis, Maryland.
- Charles H. Reed, Bel Air, Md.

- W. A. Wallace, Takoma Park, Md.
- Frank I. Wheeler, Towson, Md.
- John Barnard, Westernport, Md.
- Herbert V. Anders Westminster, Maryland.
- Wm. H. Miller, Williamsport, Maryland.

These are assisted in each locality by the mayor of each town, a representative of the schools of that community, a state fire warden, a member of the Maryland Association of Insurance Agents and a member of the Federation of Women's Clubs.

The plans of the Fire Fighters

call for: Co-operation of the state superintendent of education with a promise to inaugurate in September, as a Department of Civics, a course of fire prevention study in each of the grades in the Maryland schools, thus obviating the necessity of a campaign for compulsory teaching before the next Maryland legislature; agreement to have the schools cleaned of all rubbish on Monday, October 10, by citizens' brigade called to action through the county newspapers.

Posting of the entire state with nearly 50,000 handsome posters in colors, and Fire Prevention placards.

Large parade being arranged for Baltimore city on Monday, October 10.

Action by the School Board of Baltimore city calling upon the superintendent of education to arrange for co-operation of school children in parade, demonstration of proper way to sound fire alarm, etc., and also to report upon advisability of incorporation of fire prevention course into the city public schools.

Arrangements by leading clubs to have speakers of national prominence to talk before members during the period from October 1 to 10.

CONSIDER THE FOREST FIRE

By J. A. Cope, Assistant State Forester.

The Red Plague which every year takes such an appalling toll of our homes, storehouses and factories, is indeed a curse that must be combatted at every turn. Always it is hovering in the background—ready to take instant advantage of human weakness to wreck a pleasant habitation or a thriving factory. The loss in the generality of these cases is individual. The owner, even when protected by insurance, sustains a real loss, and perhaps profits by the lesson, while the rest of us continue on in our careless way.

There is, however, another class of havoc wrought by this demon FIRE in which the loss is general as well as individual. I refer to the Forest Fire.

Timber is the great raw product of the forest, and each year we consume in these United States, fifty-one billion board feet. There is no line of human activity in which this great raw product does not come into use, so that its needless destruction by fire becomes a national calamity. In addition to this financial loss, are the gameless area, the shrunken stream beds, the desolate sun scorched stretches once the delight of hunters, fishermen and autoists. Literally and actually:

"Everybody Loses When Timber Burns."

And just as truly as the fires in the man-made towns result over half the time from carelessness and neglect, so the fire in the God-made country are attributable to the same cause. First, it is a hunter that leaves his camp fire unextinguished, then it is an autoist who flicks the butt of his tailor-made cigarette into the dry leaves along the roadside, or perhaps a farmer chooses a windy day to burn over his new ground, or again a saw-mill engine is run without a spark arrester. Bit by bit the items add up till we get the amazing total of 30,000 acres burned over each year by forest fires in Maryland alone, causing a direct financial loss to the property owners of the State of $85,000.

Two thousand years ago the great apostle wrote "Behold what a great matter a little fire kindleth." Today, it gets the same little start and works the same big havoc. Have you any little fires on your conscience?

Protecting The Farm.

The average farm property, according to fire insurance men, is what they call a poor risk. Many farm houses, barns and other outbuildings are annually destroyed by fire. In most of the cases the fires could have been prevented.

In the old days most farm fires were attributed to lightning, spontaneous ignition in the hay mow, an accident to the lantern or to some misanthropic tramp. But with our varied improvements have come new causes of fires, bringing with them new clauses in insurance policies and the necessity for new precautions.

Smoot vs. Harding

The main point of the President's letter is the claim that his administration is reducing expenses and that next year he believes taxation may be reduced to $3,500,000,000.

Five days before the President's letter was written, Senator Reed Smoot (Rep., Utah), one of the recognized financial authorities of the Republican Senate, made a speech at the Rotary Club in Washington, reported in part in the public press, as follows:

"Senator Smoot told how he predicted in 1918 that the expenses of the Government would never be less than $5,000,000,000 and stressed how the Treasury Department denied this statement at the time.

"I tell you now," said the Senator, "that within seven years from now the taxes of this country will be $5,000,000,000."

A PRINCESS ANNE MAN GIVES EVIDENCE

His Testimony Will Interest Every Princess Anne Reader

The value of local evidence is indisputable. It is the kind of evidence we accept as true because we know we can prove it for ourselves. There has been plenty of such evidence in the Princess Anne paper lately, and this straightforward testimony has established a confidence in the minds of Princess Anne people that will not be easily shaken.

Oscar Long, R. F. D., No. 1, Princess Anne, says: "Several years ago I had a severe case of backache. Whenever I did anything that caused me to stoop over, I would experience very sharp pains in the small of my back. I was forced to get up several times at night to pass the kidney secretions. After using several boxes of Doan's Kidney Pills I was cured of the trouble and have enjoyed good health ever since. I can heartily recommend Doan's to anyone who is suffering from kidney trouble or backache." (Statement given July 24, 1916.) On January 6, 1921, Mr. Long said: "I always recommend Doan's Kidney Pills. I have never found anything to take their place. THE Ford worm-driven, One-Ton Truck with demountable rims and pneumatic tires, are dependable, as well as serviceable. This, probably more than any other factor, accounts for their popularity. There is no evidence so convincing as that which comes from long practical experience. Like the Ford car, the Ford One-Ton Truck—Ford-built throughout—has proven itself. In it are combined the Ford principles of simplicity, with strength, lowest first cost, lowest operating cost, durability.

In the city, on the farm, carrying its loads between cities—everywhere you will find the Ford One-Ton Truck doing duty. Merchants, manufacturers, farmers, have come to know it as the truck of utmost service.

MORE and more every day the demand for Fordson Tractor increases because the Fordson has demonstrated so much usefulness, so much economy, so much labor saving, so much money saving, along so many lines of activity. The farmer has discovered that not only for plowing, harrowing, discing, seeding, mowing, reaping or threshing, but a multitude of other uses; cutting wood; feed; grinding feed; churning; washing; furnishing water in the house; making electric light possible in the house and around the barns, so that, as a matter of fact, there is hardly an hour in the day when the Tractor cannot be made a profitable servant. There is ditching to do; there are roads to fix; and so on all down along the line of the enormous calls that constantly face the farmer the Fordson steps in and does the work, shoulders the complete burden of the toil and the hard work, one might almost say "drudgery." Republican State Convention

A plan for greater representation for Baltimore city in the General Assembly, which would give the city a total of 9 Senators and 37 Delegates, featured the Republican platform adopted by the Republican State Convention in session at the Lyceum Theatre last Friday.

This plank offers one more delegate and three more senators than under the plan presented in the Democratic platform. The primary election law plank differs in words, but apparently not in meaning or intent, from that offered in the Democratic platform, and the plank advocating fewer elections was only slightly different from that in the Democratic program. As did the Democrats, the Republicans offered only general planks on roads and schools.

State Chairman Galen L. Tait opened the convention, and State Senator Oliver S. Metzger, who had been nominated formally for State Comptroller, closed it, each with a speech which praised the national Administration and condemned various features of the State administration.

SECOND ANNUAL FIELD MEETING

Farmers Have A Big Outing On The Farm Of Dr. E. E. Tull

The second annual field meeting of the Somerset County Agricultural Association was held last Thursday on the Dr. E. E. Tull farm, north of Princess Anne, and Somerset county farmers, their wives and children enjoyed a big outing, about 800 people being present. The meeting was arranged under the supervision of County Agent C. Z. Keller, and Mr. Charles C. Gelder acted as chairman of the occasion. Music was furnished during the day by the Tall Cedar Band, of Delmar.

The day's entertainment opened with a base ball game between farmer-boys' teams from Westover and Green Hill, which resulted in a victory for the Green Hill team by a score of 13 to 11. Tractor demonstrations were next on the program, and interesting exhibitions of work were given by representatives handling the Indiana, Fordson, Wallie and Samson tractors, also a Fordson with a new moving attachment, which created considerable interest.

A poultry culling demonstration in charge of H. W. Rickey, poultry expert of the Extension Service, University of Maryland, was a source of great interest to our poultry raisers.

The morning's entertainment closed with a farm woodlot inspection trip in charge of Assistant State Forester S. Corbin, who took the visitors to a section of Dr. Tull's woods and explained the method of making seed trees.

Following a picnic luncheon, Mr. E. B. Reid, representing the American Farm Bureau Federation, made an address in which he explained farm legislation in Congress, and also the organization of the Agricultural bloc in the Senate.

Mr. Reid was followed by Mr. D. G. Harry, President State Dairymen's Association and President of the Maryland Agricultural Society.

The last address of the day was delivered by Dr. F. B. Bomberger, Assistant Director of the Extension Service, University of Maryland, who made a timely discussion of the need of farm organizations.

Contributors To Near East Relief

During last week the Cohn & Bock Company made a shipment of over 2,500 pounds of flour to headquarters of the Near East Relief in New York. This flour will be sent abroad to the Near East Countries to help feed the starving.

The following farmers have contributed wheat and corn to this worthy cause:

Robt. Beauchamp, Geo. A. Somers, V. A. Kelley, Paul Gunby, Phil Layfield, J. B. Hill, W. T. Layfield, Mary E. Widdowson, R. L. Fitzgerald, L. T. Widdowson, S. A. Evans, G. A. Widdowson, C. A. Hoyer, Chas. A. Holland, C. W. Powell, C. W. Strickland, C. W. Fitzgerald, Saml. H. Robinson, F. E. Mills, J. E. Hartman, P. E. Twining, James S. Rue, A. J. Taylor, Ritzel Brothers

The Near East Relief officials wish to acknowledge with thanks receipt of grain from these farmers and to the Cohn & Bock Company for receiving grain, bagging and paying freight on shipment of flour to New York; also the Westover Mills for receiving grain from farmers in the lower section of the county.

Farmers who have not given a donation during the recent campaign will have another opportunity at corn harvest.

Girl As "Bait"

A beautiful shopgirl is accused of a crime she did not commit. On her way to jail she is rescued by a man, who afterward installs himself as her guardian, lavishing money and pretty clothes upon her. She meets and falls in love with a young millionaire. Then suddenly she discovers that her supposed guardian is a well known crook and that her alleged crime and subsequent meeting with the millionaire was all "framed," so that the crook might use her to extort money from her rich admirer. That is the situation in Maurice Tourneur's latest Paramount picture, "The Bait," in which Hope Hampton will play the leading role at the Auditorium next Thursday night. Romance and thrills are skillfully blended in the story, which includes the following cast: Harry Woodward, Jack McDonald, Joe Singleton, James Gordon, Rae Eberly, Poupee Andriot, Dan Crimmins, Jr.

Some of the girls complain they can't keep any face powder any longer as their brothers swipe it all.

The man who falls in his first attempt should take heart. He is better equipped to avoid the pitfalls of the next.

MEMORIAL BRIDGE OPENED

Spans The Manokin River—Will Be Dedicated To Memory of Soldiers

The formal opening of the Memorial Bridge for traffic over the Manokin river on north Main street last Tuesday afternoon by Engineer Burroughs, representing the State Roads Commission, was witnessed by quite a number of our citizens. The construction of the bridge makes a wonderful improvement in the highway system of Somerset county.

Among those who were present on this occasion were: The Board of Commissioners of Somerset County, Columbus Lankford, mayor, and the Commissioners of Princess Anne, County Treasurer R. Mark White, George W. Maslin, Joshua W. Miles, Col. Henry J. Waters, H. Fillmore Lankford, Archie M. Humphreys and other citizens of the town and county.

It was largely through the efforts of Mr. George W. Maslin that the bridge was constructed after its present design to be later dedicated as a memorial to all the men from Somerset county who were in the service during the World War. Mr. Maslin made a short address explaining that, although it was the original intention of the State Roads Commission to construct a concrete bridge with a 24-foot driveway over the river as a part of the mile of State road over Main street in Princess Anne, the Commission had adopted the suggestion that walkways eight feet in width be constructed on either side of the driveway with four concrete columns separating the walkways from the driveway. The cost of this addition to the bridge was $2,000, which amount had been raised by the people of the county and turned over to the State Roads Commission.

Mr. Maslin requested the Board of County Commissioners and the Town Commissioners to make an entry of the date of the opening of the bridge on their records. Mr. Maslin referred to the presence of Archie M. Humphreys, the oldest native of Princess Anne now residing in the town, and also the presence of the Hon. Joshua W. Miles, through whose efforts largely the State Roads Commission undertook the construction of the road and bridge.

A committee is now engaged in raising money to purchase bronze tablets, on which will be engraved the names of all Somerset county men who served in the World War. These tablets, 16 in number, will be placed on the columns of the bridge, at which time the dedication of the bridge as a memorial will take place.

Trees Ready For Distribution

In the interests of roadside and forest planting the State Board of Forestry is again offering at cost a large assortment of trees to the Maryland public.

These trees range in size from the 8 to 12 inch seedling conifers, such as pine and spruce for setting out on forest land, to vigorous specimens 10 to 12 feet in height, quite ready to start in on their life work of giving roadside shade.

Among stock to be found at the nursery at College Park worthy of special mention are well-rooted elms of the kind that has made New England towns famous—Oriental Planes, immune from disease and rapid of growth, and White Ash, the sturdiness and strength of which almost equals the oak.

An especially prepared nursery list gives all the necessary information about kinds, sizes and prices of stock offered this fall, and your copy of this list will be mailed you on application to the State Board of Forestry, 815 Calvert Building, Baltimore.

Brought Home For Burial

Funeral services over the remains of Frederick D. Pusey, who was killed in France October 9, 1918, and whose body was brought to Salisbury, were held in Friendship M. P. Church Sunday afternoon, the 18th instant. The services were conducted by the pastor of the church, and the American Legion assisted in the burial services. Interment was made in the churchyard, the body being laid to rest beside that of his father.

Deceased was 21 years of age and was the son of Mrs. Laurence Hastings, of Salisbury, and he was killed during the Meuse-Argonne offensive. He enlisted in Company "L," 115th Infantry, in May, 1917, and was married about three weeks previous to his leaving for Anniston, Ala., in September of that year. In May, 1918, he was sent overseas. At the time of his enlistment he was working with the Remington Arms Company, of Chester, Pa.

NEGRO ATTACKS A WHITE GIRL

Mattie Simpson Knocked Down And Beaten Near Oxford—Negro In Jail

Miss Mattie Simpson, 16 years old, sister of Bertha Simpson, who was criminally assaulted by Isaiah Fountain two years ago and subsequently hanged, was attacked by a negro on her way home from school last Wednesday afternoon, beaten, clubbed and bitten. The negro attempted criminal assault, but did not succeed.

According to the girl, she was coming home from school at Oxford. To do so she took a ferry that runs between Oxford and Bellevue and then started through a strip of woods for her home. According to her story, she was stopped by the negro, Jerry Castle, a man with one leg, who was brandishing a large knife. He knocked her down, she says, and then fell upon her, striking her with his fists, with a club, and finally biting her.

She continued to resist, she says, and he then told her that unless she submitted he would cut her throat. Pretending to acquiesce, she told him she would do anything he said if he would only not cut her throat.

The negro then prepared to put up his knife. It was so large that he had to take both hands to close it. As soon as his hands were off her, Miss Simpson says she jerked away from him, jumped to her feet and ran. As he had only one leg, he was unable to keep up with the fleeing girl. As she ran away, she says, he shouted after her that he would get her yet.

Miss Simpson was on the verge of collapse when she arrived at the farm house of Robert Newman. She was carried into the dwelling and Dr. W. N. Palmer, of Easton, was summoned. He gave the girl a sedative and had her conveyed to the Emergency Hospital at Easton. She has suffered a complete nervous breakdown.

Before the girl was taken to the hospital she revealed to the Newman family the identity of her assailant and the Simpson family and Sheriff Soulsby were notified. Soulsby immediately called his deputies, Leslie Chance, and his son, Earl Soulsby, and they organized a search party. They later were reinforced by several State policemen. The news of the assault spread rapidly.

Castle was arrested shortly before midnight by a posse headed by Sheriff Soulsby at the home of the negro's father. He was hurried to Easton jail and locked up. A heavy guard of sheriff's deputies was placed around the jail. Few persons there knew that the negro had been captured until he was safely lodged in jail.

Miss Simpson identified Perry Thomas, colored, alias Perry Castle, as the man who assaulted her last Wednesday afternoon. The girl, whose condition, due to the shock of her experience, is considered serious, accused the negro in the Emergency Hospital, Easton, where Thomas was brought by Sheriff Soulsby.

Fearing a mob demonstration, Sheriff Soulsby spirited Jerry Castle out of Easton Thursday night. The two left in an automobile for Baltimore, where the negro was placed in jail.

Wicomico Republican Ticket

One of the largest crowds that ever attended a Republican convention in Wicomico county was on hand at the First Regiment Armory, Salisbury, last Wednesday morning when the convention was called to order by Col. Marion A. Humphreys. Mr. Walter B. Miller was made chairman and Mr. Isaac L. Price was chosen as secretary. The following ticket was nominated:

Clerk of Court—Alan F. Benjamin, Salisbury.

Register of Wills—Miss Elizabeth Collier, Salisbury.

House of Delegates—John Harrington, Salisbury district; John G. Brittingham, Parson's district; Howard S. Bennett, Sharptown district; Peter Bounds, Camden district.

County Commissioners—Lora A. Richardson, Willards district; Dr. W. O. Daisy, Trappe district; E. W. Townsend, Camden district.

Sheriff—U. C. Wimbrow, Camden district.

The convention was the first one in the history of Wicomico county Republican politics that included among its representatives members of the fair sex, there being from 15 to 20 ladies present.

Marriage Licenses

The following is a list of marriage licenses issued by the Clerk of the Circuit Court for Somerset County:

White—William F. Culp, 21, and Sadie May Davis, 18, both of Westover. J. Leslie Venable, 21, of Pocomoke City, and Blanche Parks, 23, of Crisfield. Colored—Ernest Christopher, 21, and Eliza Wright, 21, both of Eden.

DEMOCRATS HELD STATE CONVENTION IN BALTIMORE TUESDAY

Dr. Wade Re-Elected Chairman—Positive Program, With Reorganization The Key, Adopted Unanimously—Baltimore Wins Partial Victory

A clearly defined position on every major issue and practically unanimous agreement on the party's entire program for this year's election marked the Democratic State Convention, which met at the Auditorium Theatre, Baltimore, last Tuesday.

In addition to the adoption of the platform, the convention ratified the nomination of William S. Gordy, Jr., of Wicomico county, for State Comptroller and it re-elected Dr. J. Hubert Wade, chairman of the State Central Committee for two more years. Former Representative Carville D. Benson, was the convention's temporary and permanent chairman, and William C. Walsh, of Cumberland, and Miss Lillian Forwood, of Harford county, its secretaries. Emory L. Coblentz, of Frederick, was chairman of the committee on resolutions. Miss Forwood's selection by Dr. Wade marked the elevation of a woman to a convention office for the first time in the history of the party in Maryland.

The plank relating to primary elections is as follows:

"We declare our confidence in the political judgment and capacity of the registered voters of the Democratic party and do again declare that the power and privilege of nominating party candidates by direct vote should remain with the people. We pledge our party to pass only such amendments to the primary election law as shall be consistent with its theory and principle, and to oppose any amendments thereto restricting the voters' opportunity to make all party nominations by direct vote."

The platform indorses the administration of Governor Ritchie as follows:

"We commend Governor Ritchie, his administration and the Democratic Legislature of 1920 for their industry, ability and undivided attention and fidelity to public service, and we commend the people and the State for the support of the present Democratic administration invariably discharges its duties."

Having recited the constructive achievements of the party during the last 20 years, the platform endorses the administration reorganization program in these words:

"Now the time is at hand to complete the work of co-ordination thus so well begun, and to recast the structure of the State government, so that we may have a practical, working, well-balanced whole, capable of operating better than the present system and at less cost."

"To this end we pledge our party to legislation to promote co-ordination, efficiency and economy in the State government, based upon the plan which has been recommended by the Reorganization Commission, appointed by Governor Ritchie, of which Hon. N. Charles Burke is chairman."

The plan this Commission has recommended has these outstanding features:

"(1.) It is distinctly a Maryland plan—drawn by no outside experts, but by Maryland men and women, who are familiar with the needs of our people and with the history, development and practical operations of the State government. The changes this plan makes are such as will give greater efficiency and greater economy, and they square with those State institutions, usages and practices which experience has justified and which ought to endure."

"(2.) This plan will give a more efficient State government. It reduces the 80 existing departments to 16 major departments and three minor ones by combining those whose work is related and by abolishing unnecessary offices."

"(3.) It will give a more economical State government. The saving in officials' salaries and compensation alone will amount to nearly $150,000 a year. The savings from increased efficiency and system are sure to be many times this."

The plank for fewer elections provides:

"We recognize that elections in this State are too many and too costly. We favor abolishing all State and county elections every second year, to the end that every other year may be free of elections. We pledge our party to the passage of such constitutional amendments and legislation as will accomplish this. The plan drafted by the subcommittee of the Reorganization Commission, of which Hon. Carville D. Benson is chairman, shows that this will mean a direct saving to the taxpayers of approximately $350,000 a year."

A plank of prison reform says: "The present administration has gone as far as it can in carrying out the legislative direction to establish a system of prison labor which will supersede the contract labor system. The existing contracts are now all terminable on short notice, and plans for the new system have been drawn. We favor legislation for the establishment of appropriate industries at the prison for the making of articles for the State. We believe that this, in connection with work on the roads and elsewhere out of doors, will enable the prison authorities

STATE LEADERS CENSURED

Dissatisfaction is general in Baltimore over the allowance to that city in the way of legislative representation by the Democratic State Convention. The Democratic Convention proposes an increase of two senators and 12 delegates, fixing the number arbitrarily.

What the city demands is 14 senators and 37 members of the House of Delegates. This representation is based on one senator for every 50,000 of the population and a delegate for every 20,000.

Baltimore City is now represented in the Legislature of Maryland by four senators and 24 members of the House of Delegates.

to give the prisoners work selected primarily in accordance with their own economic needs, will assure them a livelihood when released, and enable them to take their places then as law-abiding, producing members of society."

The "equality" of women is thus recognized:

"We believe that the extension of the suffrage to women carries with it a joint responsibility upon women and men for the administration of public affairs. We think that women should be appointed on State boards and commissions, particularly in those fields of work where woman's training, interest or experience especially qualifies her."

"We deplore the alarming business depression and unemployment which has followed the advent of the Republican National Administration, and which deprives millions of our citizens of their right to strive not only for success but for a living."

Regarding "labor and unemployment," the platform says in part:

"We deplore the alarming depression which has followed the advent of the Republican National Administration, and which deprives millions of our citizens of their right to strive not only for success, but for a living."

"We pledge our party to do everything possible to relieve the situation by the vigorous pushing of needed public works, such as roads, bridges and general construction, and in every other way in which the State, either alone or in co-operation with the Federal Government, can properly initiate or aid."

In its roads plank the platform pays a tribute to the successful efforts of the State officials to eliminate objectionable features from the Federal measure providing government aid for highway construction in the States and says:

"We pledge our party to the construction of needed extensions, of an addition to the State roads system from State funds and Federal aid and to the continued building of lateral roads from State and county funds."

Other planks deal with conservation, agriculture and the public schools.

NATIONAL RED CROSS MEETING

President Harding Asks Support At Convention In Columbus

President Harding, in a statement last week addressed to the American people, called attention to the national convention of the Red Cross, to be held at Columbus, Ohio, next month, and invites support for it. The statement follows:

"To the American People:

"The Executive committee of the American Red Cross has arranged for a national convention to be held at Columbus, Ohio, October 4th to 8th inclusive. Its particular object is the assembling of as many as possible of the great number of devoted men and women who undertook voluntary service in behalf of humanity during the World War. Many of them are still giving time and activity to the permanent program of the Red Cross, and the convention will concern itself with a discussion of those activities as they bear upon the present and future welfare of the nation."

"A series of public meetings will be addressed by distinguished speakers and the convention will be brought to a close by a pageant setting forth in attractive fashion the history of the American Red Cross and the program of service mapped out for the future."

"As president of the American National Red Cross, I request all who have at heart the continuation of the helpful and patriotic service of this organization to join in every consistent way all efforts to insure the success of this convention."

In order to acquaint the residents of Princess Anne and vicinity with the quality of Katz clothing, which will be advertised in this paper from time to time, representatives of K. Katz and Sons, of Baltimore, will give an exhibition of the latest models in men's clothing at the Washington Hotel on Friday, September 30th. At this exhibition there will be no attempt made to sell any of the clothing and everyone is invited to attend.

SIX YEARS IN FROZEN NORTH

Canadian Mounted Police Corporal Returns From Arctic With 2 Eskimo Murderers.

PATROLLED CORONATION GULF

Expects to Return to Solitude After Short Holiday at Home—Punishment of Criminals Makes Natives Respect White Man's Law.

Montreal.—In May, 1915, Corporal Cornelius of the Royal Northwest Mounted Police left Edmonton for Herschel Island. He departed quietly, without any flourish of trumpets. He returned the other day to civilization again for the first time, as silently as he had left it. Over six years of his life has been spent in the Arctic wilderness, four of them in the sole company of two Eskimo murderers, sentenced in 1914, and freed by order of the government later.

Two years were passed at Fort McPherson, where the big supply of provisions and building material were deposited, comfortable winter quarters established, and patrols of the surrounding country undertaken.

The two Eskimo murderers who were taken out by the corporal and offered their freedom, were so much taken with the ways of the white man that they asked permission to enter the service of the police, and were both engaged, much to their delight. They rendered great service as guides and interpreters, and the white man's law has never had a better advertisement in the Arctic circle than that given to it by these two men, tried, punished and released by its officials as a warning to others.

Two Years in Wilds.

In 1917 Corporal Cornelius was joined by Constable Brockie and the two set out for Herschel Island where they spent two years with frequent patrols in the far corners of the uncharted wilds. Their next move was along the shores of the Arctic to Coronation gulf, a dog-sled trip of some 800 miles, where another two years were passed in patrols to Bathurst Inlet, Kent peninsula. All points on the south and west sides of Victoria Island to Victoria Land and Prince Albert sound were made during that period.

The final trip was taken from Coronation gulf via Bear lake to Fort Norman, down the river to Fort McPherson, then north to Herschel Island, and back by the coast to Coronation gulf once more, with another return trip via Herschel Island through Fort McPherson up the Mackenzie river and home by the summer steamboat. This latter trip was taken by dog sled, a distance of 1,400 miles being covered. The total patrol by dog sled last winter ran around 2,500 miles.

Now headquarters were made at Fort Epworth, the patrol, accompanied by Staff Sergeant Clay, establishing this post. The party lived in snow huts for the greater part of this time, and subsisted on the simple diet of the wilds eked out by such rations as they were able to carry on sleds. They built a wooden hut at Fort Epworth, however, and enjoyed a mild taste of civilization.

Two Are Acquitted.

In 1918, two alleged Eskimo murderers were brought in by the coast route by Sergeant Conway. These two men, Kayugana and Komuk, had been tried by Inspector Phillips for the murder of an Eskimo woman, whom both of them claimed as wife. They were, however, acquitted, owing to lack of evidence, and Clay, Cornelius and Brockie took them back by way of Herschel Island and the Arctic to Coronation gulf, where the two were allowed to rejoin their tribes.

Corporal Cornelius says that the trial of the four Eskimos had had an excellent effect on the general conduct of the tribes as a whole, while conduct of the four principals has been most exemplary. Kayugana and Komuk were seen several times on later patrols, their bands being usually found on the ice at the head of the Coppermine river, and each time the patrol received a warm welcome.

Despite their years of isolation and hardships both Corporal Cornelius and Constable Brockie are looking forward to a return to the North in the near future. They will now enjoy a well earned holiday, and both are leaving at once for their respective homes, Cornelius going to Halifax and Brockie to Winnipeg.

Woman Bears Five Children in Two Weeks; All Are Well

From Budapest, Hungary, comes the official story of a woman who gave birth to five children recently, an event that occurs once in 700,000 times, according to physicians. The mother is forty-one years old, and at the time was the mother of ten children, including one pair of twins.

The mother was taken ill after alighting from a street car. She was removed to a hospital, where the five births occurred over a period of two weeks. The mother and the five babies left the hospital a month later in a healthy condition.

HER "FIANCE" A GIRL

Girls, what would you do if your classiest suitor turned out to be another girl? That is what befell Miss Mary Holdowanetz of New York, who asked a warrant for the arrest of her former "fiance" on the charge of masquerading as a man.

Miss Holdowanetz told the court that she had met "Jack Brown," her former fiance, two years ago at Monticello, N. Y., where both were employed. "Jack" was a fast worker apparently for the couple soon became engaged. After two years of idyllic bliss as "Jack's" fiancee, during which "Jack" acted a lover's part with fidelity to movie standards, Mary discovered that "Jack" was really Carolyn Shimick of Kingston, N. Y.

Mary said she discovered the terrible truth when she went to visit "Jack's" parents. They told her "he" was a girl.

CHINESE NOTION OF JUSTICE

Avenging a Murder by Wiping Out the Entire Family of the Slayer.

Peking, China.—Recently a soldier-servant of Gen. Wu Ching-tung, a former garrison commissioner at Nan-yang, Honan, and protégé of Gen. Chang Tso-lin, infuriated by his master's censure and maddened by drink, ran amuck and killed the general, his brother and his chauffeur. He then attempted to escape, but found himself trapped and jumped into the river from the ex-German band. He was shot dead when he rose to the surface, and when his body was recovered it is reported to have been dismembered with a view to burying fragments of it with each of his victims.

All this was bad enough, but the latest developments of the case seem to call for something more than censure. It appears that Gen. Chang Tso-lin intrusted the arrangements for the burial of General Wu, and the avenging of his murder, to Gen. Li Fangchen. The latter has ordered the arrest and transportation to Tientsin of all the murderer's family, which comprises his old mother, his widow and three children, and apparently the intention is to shoot them in cold blood, to placate the soul of the murdered general.

This is justice according to the ideas of the super-tuchuns. Their armed coolies may rob and murder and destroy to their heart's content, as long as they confine their activities to civilians. Their usual reward for such exploits is the prompt payment of arrears of salary, and complete immunity from punishment. Rarely is any attempt made to bring the looters and murderers to justice. But when one of the super-tuchun's protégés is murdered by a retainer, the crime must be dealt with in unrestrained savagery.

TO SAVE $1,000,000 ON AUTOS

Mexican Government to Refuse to Furnish Oil and Tires to Employees.

Mexico City.—The Mexican government, by refusing free gasoline, tires, repairs and garage service to its employees who use government automobiles, hopes to effect a saving of more than $1,000,000 annually. Several more hundreds of thousands will be saved to the government when army officers are forced to purchase their own gala uniforms, and there will be a still greater saving when all federal employees drawing more than five pesos ($2.50) daily suffer a wage reduction of 10 per cent. These economies which, it is understood, will be made effective shortly, are in line with a program of rigid thrift inaugurated by presidential decree.

Too Many Women in Europe.

Berlin.—Unless recently advocated plans of a Bulgarian solon and a Colorado farmer result in laws permitting farmers and others to have more than one wife are accepted in Germany, from 30 to 40 per cent of the German women are doomed never to have husbands, according to statistics gathered by Albin Michel, a German expert, who declares that Europe's surplus women have increased until they exceed men by 15,000,000.

How Love Retrieved a Fortune

By HAROLD SINCLAIRE

(© 1921, Western Newspaper Union.)

Melvin Warrington loved Myra Evans—he, poor and ambitious. So did Rolfe Daniels—rich, selfish and an idler. Myra's father had borrowed all the money he could to fit out an expedition to Australia to import a new breed of sheep. The Lovely Lass was purchased, sailed away with her young brother in charge, was wrecked in a terrible storm at sea, and Lisle Evans came home crippled, a pauper and his health broken.

The worst of it was that when all hands were forced to abandon the Lovely Lass 350 miles west of the South American coast, in the rush and peril of the occasion Lisle had left in a certain box in a certain part of its cabin over $20,000 in money to buy the ship with, and papers representing as much more. An abandoned derelict, the captain and crew gave her up for lost. The blow crushed the proud spirit of old Colonel Evans. He had mortgaged his home to fit out the venture. In some way Rolfe Daniels had secured the notes. He pressed payment. Rolfe stared the Evans family in the face. It was then that Daniels proposed to cancel the obligation if Myra would become his wife.

One day Lisle Evans called upon Myra. There were tears in his eyes as he spoke of Myra.

"Listen, Melvin," he said, "this marriage must never take place. I can do nothing in my condition, but you—if I show you a possible chance to save Myra, what would you say?"

"You know without asking," responded Melvin, with deep emotion. "I would give my life for her, for any member of her family."

"Then listen, my friend. I am satisfied that Lovely Lass is still afloat," declared Lisle. "I feel certain that somewhere on the bosom of the broad Pacific she is knocking about, with that treasure, which means the salvation of our family, aboard. Lloyd's Register has listed her 'foundered,' but this marine obit was later changed to 'abandoned at sea.' A tramp schooner sighted her 600 miles west of Chili."

For two days Melvin Warrington reflected over this interview. Two months later, the devoted lover found himself the inmate of a hotel at Valparaiso. He chartered a small yacht. From close investigation Melvin had decided that the Lovely Lass, if afloat, was grounded in some of the numerous inlets of the Djalml islands.

The day before the yacht sailed, a brisk, business appearing young man named Hudson sought out Melvin. "I learn you are going on a cruise to the Djalml islands," he observed. "I will pay you $500 to take me there and return."

Of course Melvin accepted the offer. When the yacht reached the Djalml islands, Melvin ordered that it land him on the barren eastern coast of the largest of the group. To his surprise, when he left the yacht, Hudson accompanied him.

Neither disclosed his purpose in the curious jaunt. That day shortly after noon, while lining an impassable ravine, they came to a rude bamboo bridge. They had just traversed it.

when a shower of darts rained about them, and half a hundred savages appeared in the distance.

"We are safe, so long as they cannot cross," observed Hudson. "I'll fix that."

He opened the satchel he carried, selected an oblong package, opened one end and gave it a fling. In an instant the bridge was shattered to atoms.

"Dynamite," explained Hudson, and Melvin marveled more than ever at the eccentric comrade who went about loaded with the deadly explosive.

They camped that night near the west shore. At daybreak Melvin was on the move. He went along the shore, came to an inlet, and there dismantled and lying on her beam ends, was—the Lovely Lass.

How his heart beat as he swam to the wreck and descended into the water-logged cabin, to find the hiding place, and with it—the precious tin box!

Melvin came back to the deck with a cheer, the box thrust in his bosom. He glanced to glance ashore. There stood Hudson. He had just fired at the wreck one of his sticks of dynamite.

Just in time Melvin dove. A frightful crash sounded out. He came ashore finally, to confront the astonished Hudson.

Then there were mutual explanations. Hudson was a special representative of Lloyds commissioned at any cost to destroy the derelict.

"One minute more inside that ship," shuddered Melvin, "and she would never have known my fate!"

"She?" questioned Hudson, with his usual quaint, challenging smile. "Yes, the sweetest, dearest, loveliest woman in the world!" replied Melvin, with fervor.

He knew that she was all his own three months later, when he handed to Colonel Evans the little tin box rescued from the Lovely Lass—derelict.

Marital Mixup.

"You said you would be at home at 11, and here I have been keeping awake these last two hours waiting for you to come in!" said an angry wife. The delinquent husband leaned against the wall and prepared to remove his shoes. "And I," he said softly and sorrowfully, "have been waiting outside for these last two hours so's you'd go to sleep."

Foods Affect Mental Senses.

It is not generally known that all food, whether vegetable or flesh, has an effect on us. Turnips, for example, depress. Peas exhilarate. Mutton allays irritation of temper. Pork excites the imagination. Not long since a well-known writer of exciting stories confessed that his inspiration came from pork chops.

PERFECT DIME-NOVEL HERO

Thomas Stukely Peer of Any of the Adventurers Who Flourished Under Good Queen Bess.

A career so lurid and impregnated with a dime novel atmosphere has scarcely ever been seen outside the covers of the penny dreadfuls as fell to the lot of Thomas Stukely as it ran the gamut from matrimony to piracy, interspersed with dashing, gallant and fearless bravery which has caused his name to be remembered when many a better man has sunk to oblivion. Stukely was an adventurer by nature. His mother was Irish and of a very good family, and it is said that he could claim as his father Henry VIII of England. Stukely acquired a great fortune by marrying a lady of wealth and proceeded immediately to spend it with the greatest dispatch. Sir Walter Scott says that gallant raffish it with Raleigh and the best of them at the court of Queen Elizabeth. His first chimerical scheme was to found a kingdom for himself in Florida. Then he went to Ireland and gained considerable influence over Shane O'Neill, the most powerful of the native chieftains, helping him to gain a decisive battle. Stukely never gave up his career as a merchant and still retained ships which, under the guise of peaceful traders, committed infamous piracies. On being discovered he went to Spain as a grandee and thence to Rome. At the great naval battle of Lepanto he commanded one of the papal ships.—Chicago Journal.

PIRATES' LAIR SCENE OF FIGHT

Spanish Battle on Scenes of Centuries of Conflict With Tribesmen.

NOTORIOUS BARBARY COAST

Made Famous in Present Generation by Operations of the Chieftain
Mula Ahmed Raisuli—Recalls
Famous Pericardis Case.

Madrid.—That part of Morocco called the Spanish zone, where Spain's troops have just suffered disastrous reverses at the hands of the Moors with the loss of thousands of men and thousands of square miles of territory, is part of the notorious Barbary coast whose pirates preyed on European commerce for many years and carried Europeans into slavery.

In the present generation it has been made famous by the operations of the chieftain, Mula Ahmed Raisuli, who captured and held for ransom Jon Perdicaris, an American citizen, in 1905. This was in the administration of President Roosevelt and evoked from Secretary Hay the historic phrase demanding "Perdicaris alive or Raisuli dead!" It resulted in the almost immediate release of Perdicaris.

Three Races in Land.

Three races inhabit Morocco, the original Berbers, or mountaineers, who conquered Spain on three different occasions; the mixed race of Arabs and Berbers known as Moors both of which races are generally Mohammedans; and the colonies of Jews which inhabit the coast cities and control the majority of the country's commerce.

The Spanish zone, where the fighting is now in progress, is a narrow strip of land along the northwestern coast fronting on the Mediterranean sea. It extends from Algeria, under control of the French, to the Atlantic ocean on the west. It does not, however, include the extreme northwestern tip of land on which is located the city of Tangier.

Spanish troops have fought the Moors for centuries, but it was only in 1912 that the northern littoral of Morocco was assigned to Spain under the terms of the Franco-Spanish treaty signed in that year. Since then Spain has been engaged at intervals in sporadic attempts to maintain her authority, with varying success and failure.

Want More Order.

Both the French and Spanish governments decided in January, 1920, to make military demonstrations in their respective zones for the purpose of preparing the way to more orderly government. The French zone was soon pacified. The Spanish territory, which is administered by Gen. Damae Berenguer as high commissioner, was not so submissive.

Spanish troops at first made their base on the Atlantic coast of Morocco at El-Arish, also known as Larache. From there they penetrated well into the interior and captured a number of Moorish strongholds, including the so-called secret city of Sheshawan. For some time little activity has been reported in that western district of Morocco.

The Spaniards, however, sent another expedition under the command of General Silvestre, who established a base at Melilla, midway on a promontory which extends from the eastern end of the Spanish zone northward into the Mediterranean. From that point, General Silvestre's troops attempted to penetrate southward into the interior. Early successes were reported, but last spring the Spaniards encountered strong native troops and hostile tribesmen, estimated to number 20,000 and said to be well armed and equipped with artillery. The present reverses of the Spanish forces had their beginning early in June.

Boy Captures Sharks After Two-Hour Battle

Cape May, N. J.—Emory Eyesman, thirteen-year-old son of Julian Eyesman, general traffic manager for the Pennsylvania railroad, ended a day's fishing trip with two eight-foot sharks to his credit. He fought with them for more than two hours, playing them along and insisting that other fishermen with him give him plenty of room. The sharks weighed a total of 940 pounds.

PRIEST KEEPS VIGIL OVER DEAD

Young Clergyman Dwells Amid Coffins of 300,000 Defenders of Verdun.

HUT GIVEN BY AMERICANS

Wooden Structure Used by Priest Until Permanent Monument Can Be Erected to Heroes of the Great War.

Paris.—A mile from Fort Douaumont, which looks down on the walled city of Verdun, France, and its ring of defenses, lives a priest who never smiles. He is young, clear-eyed, and does not need the ribbon of the Legion of Honor nor the Cross of War with the palm that he wears to tell that he has served. He lives today in a wooden hut with the bones of 300,000 of his countrymen, the defenders of Verdun.

Time has softened the sharper outlines of his surroundings, and from a distance seems to have given the 16-mile battle front a green carpet. In reality, trenches have slumped in. The rims of shell holes have been rounded by rains, and frosts and melting snows. Acres of tangled rusted barbed wire have been hidden under weeds and shrubbery.

Rifle Barrel Marks Grave. Some inches of rusted rifle barrel protrude from the soil to mark a grave the workmen have not reached. Fragments of leather and cloth equipment lie scattered about, and even along the more frequented paths one stumbles over bones.

The wooden hut where M. L'Abbe Noel lives is perhaps 20 feet wide and 40 feet long, the gift of an American committee. At the end opposite the entrance is the altar, and, forming an aisle, are tiers of coffin-shaped boxes, with the lids resting loosely upon them. Each box is placarded with the names of the sector along the Verdun front where the fragment was found.

Flowers Blanket Coffins. Many of the coffins are heaped high with flowers and wreaths, and on all are visiting cards put there by those whose memories center about the locality named on the box. Of the 400,000 French who died at Verdun, said the abbe, 800,000 will never be identified. An "ossuaire" is to be erected on this spot, and in it will be placed these "sacred bones" where they will

Each sector will have a tomb designated for it, where now there is a wooden box.

Four shrines, Catholic, Protestant, Jewish and Musselman, will be grouped about the ossuaire. Each day adds to the collection that is gathering in the temporary wooden hut which serves until the permanent structure is completed.

On the nearest hill is a wooden cross, built and erected by Marshal Pétain for the dead of his armies. A few yards away is the grave of a French commander, General Anselin, killed in action. Not far distant and over the crest of the hill is the massive concrete monument built over the "Trench of Bayonets" where an entire company died as they waited, rifles in their hands, the bugle call to charge. Their bodies have never been disinterred and the protruding rifles with bayonets fixed are still clutched by the soldiers whose graves they mark, as though waiting for the long-delayed command to go forward.

WHO FOUNDED ST. LOUIS?

Historical Society There Debates Question Before Erecting Monument Commemorating Event.

St. Louis.—The offer of the newly formed St. Louis Historical society to erect a group monument here to commemorate the founding of the city February 15, 1764, with the suggestion that the central figure be Rene Auguste Chouteau, surrounded by a group of pioneers, including Laclede, has reopened the old question as to who was the actual founder of this city.

Chouteau has been regarded by many historians as Laclede's lieutenant.

The society has had the inscription on Chouteau's tomb, showing the date of his birth at 1740, recut. Records show that if the date were correct, Chouteau's mother was only seven years old at the time of his birth.

Eggs Taken From Snake Hatched Chicks in Africa

A story of chicken eggs hatched after they had been salvaged from the interior of a python is told by the publicity department of the board of missions of the Methodist Episcopal church, in New York city.

Quoting Rev. Edwin H. Richards, for 31 years a missionary in Africa, the board said that a python had wriggled out of a jungle one night, entered a hen house and eaten eight chickens and nine eggs. Natives and missionaries killed the snake, which then was opened. The eggs, found intact, later hatched into perfectly normal missionary chickens.

TO DETECT CRIMINALS

French Detective Invents Two Sciences to Do Work.

Poroscopy and Graphometry Promise to Make Way of Transgressor Harder Than It Is.

Paris.—Poroscopy and graphometry are two new "sciences" intended to make the way of the transgressor harder than it is. Poroscopy is the science of measuring the pores of the body. Graphometry is the science of form and relative proportion of letters in handwriting.

Dr. Edmund Locard, head of the Lyons police laboratory of identification, has elaborated these new methods of crime detection to a point where the results have been accepted in the Lyons courts and are said to have been proved effective.

In poroscopy, Doctor Locard holds the number, form and position of body pores remain the same throughout life. The impression of the pores in Doctor Locard's system is colored by chemical vapors or very fine powders so they may be photographed under a microscope.

Doctor Locard tells of several successful prosecutions supported by his new sciences. In one case a burglar wore gloves, but left an impression of a small surface of forearm. That trace convicted him.—Another burglar, perspiring freely, left the impression of pore surfaces through his gloves and went to jail.

Graphometry, as termed by Doctor Locard, consists primarily in the theory that handwriting shows always a certain relation in size between letters and unmistakable characteristics in form, particularly in loops. In addition to these principles Doctor Locard, of course, utilizes generally accepted methods of detecting forgeries.

WHEN BAVARIAN GIRL WEDS

In Bavaria, when a girl marries, the whole world must know about it. That is, everyone in the village, town or city in which the bride lives must know or hear about it. Furthermore, it is not enough that everyone hears the happy tidings, but everyone must see all the gifts, and all the household effects that the bride is bringing her new husband. How and when this custom started no one in Bavaria seems to know. At any rate the custom has existed for generations.

Every bride must bring her husband a cow. The cow is the gift of the father of the bride. In the procession, which follows the wedding, the richly decorated cow walks with the bride as shown in the picture.

RESTORE OLD INDIAN CAMP

Bass Lake Colony Would Put Tecumseh Village in Indiana in Original Condition.

Winamac, Ind.—An effort to restore the old Indian camp of Tecumseh, near Winamac, is being made by the women of the summer colony at Bass Lake, near this city.

An application for incorporation of the village has been filed with the secretary of state. In the meanwhile a 50-foot roadway has been projected along the meandering shore line at Indian Point on Bass lake, with a 60-foot parkway at the side. Winamac business men have endorsed the plan.

With the organization of a forest preserve district it is hoped the old Indian camp can be completely restored.

The Bass Lake Boosters' association is headed by Mrs. Nora K. Spain of Chicago.

Vienna.—Alexander, the prince regent of Serbia, is surrounding himself with some of the second-hand regal panoply of the Hapsburgs. A commission from Belgrade has bought two of the many state carriages stored in the old royal stables here, one of semi-state vehicles for official calls and the other one of the splendid glass and gold coaches used on ceremonial occasions. The commission also takes back to Belgrade the complete furnishings of one of the Maria Theresa apartments in the Hofburg for installation in the Kara-george palace.

It is being urged to develop marksmanship, the colored sports go in for crap shooting.

The falling leaves are not so thick on the lawn as the autumnal bills on the desk of the householder.

The telephone becomes a universal household necessity as soon as the boys and girls become old enough to make dates.

Forget the unkind things that are said about you and your mentality will be greater than that of those who say them.

Why say that the heart of a maid is past understanding, when all the world knows that it has never been understood?

The people who were thrown out of the liquor business are convinced that the country is going to ruin as the result of prohibition.

Not many people nowadays can handle a hammer or saw efficiently but there are a lot who can pound on jazz instruments very skillfully.

Formerly people used their back yards to raise vegetables and save money. Now they use them to store an automobile in and spend money.

It is claimed that women's larger feet are due to so much dancing. Then they should be careful not to think too much, as it might enlarge their heads.

Mental work must be very exhausting from the enormous lunches it takes to repair the ravages of study in the stomachs of the school pupils of this town and vicinity.

A London insurance company comes to the front with a marvelous exhibition of superlative nerve. It has insured a citizen against injury at the hands of his mother-in-law.

The fact that a kid's ears have been carefully tested and his hearing found perfectly normal, does not prove that he can hear when his mother yells at the door for him to come in and get ready for school.

VISITING RELATIVES

Millions of people used to spend vacations in visiting relatives. Country folks went to see their city cousins and the city folks camped down on Uncle Reuben. In those days of free and easy times the latch string was always open, and people took care of unexpected guests without getting flustered.

If people could see a chance to get away, they wrote to their friends that they would be glad to come and visit them. The suggestion was rarely turned down. The visitors helped with the housework, everyone had a jolly time and family ties were kept close.

In these times people are not satisfied unless they entertain in a stylish way. The folks who used to spend weeks with relatives perhaps come and take a meal or make an afternoon call. Labor is saved for the housewife, but the old family intimacies are breaking up.

THAT DELICATE QUESTION

This is a "dry" country—at least in spots. We drink water—also in spots. Foreign countries are almost universally "wet." They drink wine, champagne and beer. To them water is good for ducks and baths.

The bringing of booze into this country is unlawful and is punishable by fine and imprisonment.

A conference of envoys from many nations is to be held in Washington in November by invitation of the President. This conference is expected to provide a means of preserving the world intact for future generations. These envoys are accustomed to their wine and liquors with their meals, just as we are to our tea, coffee or water. It is a habit bred into them from infancy. To dispense with it would be as great a hardship to them as the deprivation of coffee would be to us.

Are they to be allowed to bring their liquors in violation of our laws, or will they be politely advised in advance that water is good for them, as well as for ducks and baths?

And if they do bring it, will they further violate our laws by standing treat to thirsty multitudes of Washington? An envoy from another government is immune from arrest, and his baggage is not subject to search. Yet the bringing of contraband into this country constitutes an affront to the President of the United States.

It is a delicate question, yet it will undoubtedly be solved in some manner without undue embarrassment to our distinguished visitors. We fear, however, that when they reach Washington they will find themselves possessed of more friends than they ever dreamed of having before. There are times when that "awful thirst" respects neither law nor person.

LONG SKIRTS

Fashion magazines and writers have for some weeks been proclaiming that one of those sharp reversals for which feminine fashions are noted, is about to take place, in the direction of longer skirts for women.

The men, large numbers of whom undertake to exercise the supervision over women's clothes, have been diligently looking for evidences of such a change, but up to date have seen no tendency on the part of the women folks to lengthen out their abbreviated garments.

It has long been noted that women are taxed nearly double a normal expense for clothes as the result of style changes. At least those that follow these fashions have to pay. Millions of sensible mothers and wives dress about as they like and are independent enough to wear a garment even if it is not absolutely up to date. But those who have to throw away good clothes merely because they do not conform to the latest whim have to pay high for all these notions.

When the skirts were shortened, it was a very simple matter to take them up. But when it comes to lengthening, few clothing producers would be likely to provide for that. It was not probably considered an objection to the change, that it would make it necessary for many women to discard their old garments. This makes new business for the producers, but in the long run it is waste.

It is more than probable that women have found themselves so much freer in their short dresses that they will keep on wearing them regardless of what the style makers say. Like a patient and over-driven horse, they have a way of taking the bit in their teeth once in a while.

MODERN DANCING

Dancing is the natural expression of the human feeling for rhythm and music, and so is a diversion which all able bodied people will enjoy. But if it is made far more difficult for the ordinary person by the incessant changes in dance steps.

Up to the time the tango craze spread over the country eight or ten years ago, dancing was fairly well standardized. Anyone who did it the year before could do it the next year and a great many of the middle aged people enjoyed it. Then came the development of modern dancing, with thousands of dancing classes teaching a bewildering variety of new steps.

Just as soon as the crowd had learned one new figure then it went out of style and some new ones had to be acquired. This made business fine for dancing teachers but it spoiled the sport for all who could not afford time and money to follow these whims of the popular taste.

Dancing of recent years has seen some absurd extremes. There was the snake-like and wriggling "ahimmy," which could no more be called the poetry of motion than the contortions of the boneless man in the circus tent. On the opposite extreme, the fox trotting of the present day seems about like walking around the hall. But while these freaks and foibles come and go, the old standard waltz that our grandmothers loved still remains the favorite of those who dance for the sake of rhythm more than to exhibit their ability to copy the latest freak.

Married people frequently think, when they get a home of their own and a family of children, that their dancing days are over. The women of that age claim they get no invitations if they attend a dance. But if the married crowd find themselves neglected, they can have their own dancing groups and follow the fads of the day if they want to or dance the standard old figures that will always be good. People need not think their dancing days are over so long as they are able to walk to the dance hall.

A Pronounced Success

The uniform success that has attended the use of Chamberlain's Colic and Diarrhoea Remedy in the relief and cure of bowel complaint, both for children and adults, has brought it into almost universal use, so that it is practically without a rival and as everyone who has used it knows, it is without an equal.

The Folly Of The Strike Road To Prosperity

Selfishness, egotism, plain ignorance—such qualities as these constitute the weakness of a man or any group of men, who, in an organized society, are led by them to adopt an anti-social policy. The life of America and of each community in America depends on the proper functioning of innumerable economic units, which, co-operating with each other, perform the multifarious duties of the present industrial age. No group of men can arrogate to itself any special privileges without profoundly disturbing the orderly processes of industry and imposing on the other members of society corresponding hardships.

The railroad workers and the coal miners are two groups of Americans whose importance to the welfare of America can scarcely be overestimated. But their importance gives them no right, either moral or economic, to demand more wages—that is to say, more of the necessities and luxuries of life—than are available to other Americans. It is to be expected that the rest of America will bitterly resent any attempt or appearance of an attempt on the part of the railroad men and miners to secure higher wages than the country can properly afford, for it will be the rest of America that pays the bill.

And if the reported program of action of these special groups has any foundation in fact, an attempt to realize it will defeat its own purpose. Both the railroad men and the miners need more and steadier work. A prosperous country is their surest defense against individual poverty. They have everything to gain and nothing to lose by adjusting their wage demands to the general standard of wages throughout the country in order to avoid imposing arbitrary restrictions upon industry. An extra and abnormal charge for their services will inevitably react against them, since it will decrease the demand for the services which they have to supply.

Much has been said about the adoption of the Golden Rule in industry as a means of settling disagreements between employer and employee, but very little attention has been paid to the possibility of using it to determine relations between worker and worker. Those railroad workers and coal miners who feel inclined to enforce their power of securing high wages and special conditions of labor will do well to study its significance. Is it just for them to seek for an unfair advantage over their fellow-Americans merely because they are apparently strong enough to obtain it? And, knowing what they do of the laws of economics, are they sure that they would really benefit if they got it? True prosperity cannot return to America until each part of its economic structure is functioning smoothly and harmoniously for the benefit of the whole, and until true prosperity returns no individual group of Americans can hope to attain security and comfort.—Baltimore Sun.

The Key That Unlocks The Door To Long Living

The men of eighty-five and ninety years of age are not the rotund, well-fed, but thin, spare men, who live on a slender diet. Be as careful as he will, however, a man past middle age will occasionally eat too much of some article of food not suited to his constitution, causing indigestion or constipation and will need a dose of Chamberlain's Tablets to move his bowels and invigorate his stomach. When this is done, there is no reason why the average man should not live to a ripe old age.

Armistice Day—November 11th

In his purpose to proclaim the coming Armistice Day as a national holiday and to urge its general observance throughout the country, President Harding endeavors to bring home to the people of the United States and of the world an impress of what that day in 1918 meant to this generation.

Millions in the land will never forget how they sat up through that Sunday night, waiting for the whistles to blow, carrying from coast to coast the pregnant signal that the war which had been no more and that peace was coming. But less there may be other millions in the land who may have forgotten, or may have lost something of the thrill which came with that sound—ing steam, it will be well if each year, long as language shall be spoken in this quarter of the world, the story of that day and of the days that led to it shall be retold.

The conference of the nations for the limitation of armaments will meet in Washington that day. It is the purpose of President Harding that after that conference shall have been formally opened it shall adjourn immediately and then accompany him and the Cabinet to Arlington, where the body of an unknown American soldier, who fell on a battlefield overseas, shall be buried with all the humble reverence that a nation can pay to one who gave his life for it.

Senator Harrison Honored

Mr. Howard, President of the American Farm Bureau Federation, has appointed Hon. Orlando Harrison, of Worcester county, a member of the National Fruit Marketing Committee of 1921 for the purpose of working out a program which will meet with the approval of both the producer and consumer the nation over in selling fruit. Senator Harrison is recognized as one of 21 men in the United States on one of the most important committees named in this country.

No Substitute Offered

Say what you will about druggists offering something "just as good" because it pays a better profit, the fact still stands that ninety nine out of a hundred druggists recommend Chamberlain's Colic and Diarrhoea Remedy, when the best medicine for diarrhoea is asked for, and do so because they know from what their customers say of it, that it can be depended upon.

Now that the base ball season has closed, Republican primaries are over and the Chautauque gone, the community will have a chance to settle down to business and the November election.

The Swarthmore Chautauque brought the present year's session to a close last Friday evening, covering three days. The consensus of opinion expressed was that the Chautauque had been a success, the program up to the standard and well rendered, and that the whole effect should be an uplift to the community, infusing higher ideals and creating a greater interest in community welfare, uniting our people more firmly in the bonds of personal friendship and suggesting a strong-all-together pull for general betterment of everything that pertains to community life.

Robert P. Graham Dies Suddenly

Robert P. Graham, Secretary of State during Governor Goldsborough's administration, State Comptroller during the Lowndes administration and a former State tax collector, died suddenly last Wednesday night at his residence, 107 Ridgewood road, Roland Park. He was a native of Salisbury and was 54 years of age.

Mr. Graham had lived in Baltimore for 19 years, and while at one time prominent in Republican politics of the State, since the expiration of Governor Goldsborough's term of Governor he had not been politically active. He was a graduate of the law department of the University of Maryland and a member of several fraternal and social organizations.

Mr. Graham died about one hour from the time he was stricken. Dr. Porter stated that death was due to heart failure. Mr. Graham is survived by his wife, who was Miss Caroline Dorsey, of Baltimore; three daughters, Misses Margaret, Eleanor and Alice Graham, and one son, Robert P. Graham; three brothers, Levin A., of Minneapolis; Dr. Samuel A. and Donald, of Salisbury, and one sister, Miss Irma Graham, also of Salisbury.

Funeral services were held from his late home in Roland Park last Sunday afternoon.

First Soldiers' Home.

WHOLE WHEAT FLOUR

I have now on hand a Barrel of Whole Wheat Flour. NONE BETTER MADE

IN ordinary flour you only get the middle of the wheat, the rest go into bran and middlings to be fed to hogs. This bran and middlings, when fed to hogs, make them fat and healthy. If ordinary wheat flour was fed to them it would kill them. Therefore, without a doubt, white flour is doing us no good, because the food value that is in the wheat is fed to hogs, which are killed and eaten by us and does us more harm than good. When in the beginning if we eat whole wheat flour we would not need the meat. My advice is to eat nothing but the best. Don't buy cheap stuff because it is cheap. Let canned goods alone. We are all sick one-third of the time, feeling bad one-third and fairly well the rest of the time, and it is all caused by the food we eat. Yours for better health,

WILL SHOW PROPER CARE OF TREES

State Will Give Demonstrations in Use And Care Of Timber

Practical demonstrations in the use and care of standing timber, to be given during November in each county of the Eastern Shore through the co-operation of county agents, are planned by the State Board of Forestry. State Forester F. W. Besley, who is arranging the demonstrations, has returned from a trip through the territory to be covered, after arranging for showing the farmers how to cut and sell wood from their land and at the same time increase the value of that remaining.

Present timbering practices are in most cases needlessly wasteful of valuable trees, according to Mr. Besley. The best trees are generally cut out for firewood, despite the fact that they would be worth more as lumber. The Forestry Board hopes to show the owners that by using only the dead and stunted trees they can procure just as much firewood, and also allow the well-developed timber to grow properly, thus producing first-class timber.

Proper methods of thinning stands of pine, which are numerous on the Eastern Shore, and the newest modes of fire fighting will also be demonstrated.

RECORDS BROKEN BY HOT WEATHER

This Summer's Torrid Spell Surpassed All Others in the Length of Its Stay.

SCOUTS THEORY OF SUNSPOTS

Chief of the Weather Bureau Says Atmospheric Temperatures Are Not Perceptibly Affected by Spots on the Sun.

Washington.—The hot wave that this country experienced this summer has been of unprecedented duration, according to weather experts at the central office of the United States weather bureau here. There have been short durations of a month or less when the temperatures were higher than during the recent hot weather, but never before, the weather men believe, certainly not in the last fifty or sixty years whose temperature records have been dug into, have abnormal temperatures been so everlastingly on the job.

Even last winter, which we remember as an extremely mild one, was the beginning of the extended heat wave. In the eastern and central states, east of the Rockies, for the last 11 months, excepting only November, temperatures have been consistently higher than the average temperature over a long stretch of years, which is taken as standard.

The people of Boston have been living in Philadelphia during the first six months of this year, so far as temperature is concerned, Alfred J. Henry, meteorologist at the weather bureau has found. The average temperature of Boston has been abnormally high, and from January to June has equaled that usually experienced in Philadelphia.

Gets Virginia Weather.

New York, America's center of commerce, has been thermometrically located for the same period in Washington, the governmental center of the country, while Washington has been shifted southward and located on the boundary of Virginia and North Carolina.

Out in the middle West, the same southward climatic travel has occurred. Des Moines, if it were located on the map by its temperature would be set down in southwestern Missouri. Professor Henry has found. Chicago has, however, been the hot spot of the country this summer, an analysis of reports show. July was the hottest month that that city has had for 51 years. Its average temperature for the month was 2.5 degrees warmer than any other month, while it was 8.8 degrees higher than normal. That city has been so continually hot that the average temperature for July is higher than the average normal highest temperature, while the average minimum temperature for the month is 2.1 degrees higher than the normal monthly mean. Twelve July days of above 90 degrees weather broke all previous records, and 54 days when the temperature was continually above normal were other record breakers. The accumulated excess temperature at Chicago from the first of the year to the end of July has been the large total of 1,753 degrees. This means that since January 1, the average daily excess in temperature has been 8.3 degrees. The southwestern parts of the country and most of the Pacific coast have been fortunate enough to miss most of the present hot weather. During the past months, there have been deficiencies in temperature in those regions rather than excesses.

Europe Also Hit.

Western Europe has also experienced similar continued hot weather, according to data that have reached here, and it has been accompanied by lack of rain and is causing drought in England and France. How the rest of the world is affected, weather bureau officials do not know, as data from other sources have come in very slowly and are meager.

The theory that sunspots have anything to do with the hot spell is scouted by Prof. Charles F. Marvin, chief of the weather bureau. Some scientists in Europe and this country have declared that there is evidently some connection, but Professor Marvin, after examining the data that have been obtained on the intensity of the radiation during the presence and absence of sun spots, has come to the conclusion that atmospheric temperatures are not perceptibly affected by spots on the sun.

"We find that the temperatures and rainfall seem to vary with the pressures of the atmosphere, particularly in the so-called 'centers of action' which seem to be critical points for atmospheric changes," Professor Marvin states. "These large air movements caused by pressure changes seem to be real causes of temperature changes and precipitation, but we have yet to learn what causes them."

The long hot spell that we have been experiencing is no sure sign that it will continue and that we will have a late fall, according to Prof. J. Warren Smith who studies the weather and its influence on crops and outdoor operations.

The most recent hot spells that do not equal the present one in length but exceed it in temperature occurred during July, 1901, and August, 1918, according to P. C. Day, climatologist at the weather bureau.

LOOT OF 1900 BACK TO CHINA

Astronomical Instruments Carried Off by German Troops Restored to Peking.

Peking, China.—The astronomical instruments which were looted from Peking by the German army in 1900 and removed to Potsdam have been returned to China. They were sent back in accordance with the provisions of the treaty of Versailles, by which Germany undertakes to restore to China within 12 months from the coming into force of the present treaty all instruments which her troops in 1900-1901 carried away from China and to defray all expenses which may be incurred in effecting such restoration, including the expenses of dismounting, packing, transporting, insurance and installation in Peking.

The theft of these instruments was the subject of much adverse comment in Europe, America and China, at the time, and even in Germany a certain portion of the press vigorously denounced their "appropriation" and the project of erecting them in front of the Orangery in Sans Souci park, where Prince Chun resided during his penitential mission. Even the Berlin Neueste Nachrichten quoted with apparent approval the strong protests which had been made by other journals, and expressed the hope that a prompt official explanation would be forthcoming. The Cologne Gazette made a vigorous protest, so vigorous, indeed, that the German government, to quiet it, announced that the German minister in Peking had been instructed to "buy" the instruments after the offer of the Chinese government to make a present of them to the German emperor had been declined.

The instruments adorned the Potsdam Orangery until their restoration to China was ordered by the victors in the great war. Thousands of visitors to the world-famous observatory in Peking had noticed the empty plinths and had been reminded of the vandalism in 1900. Chinese newspapers here have remarked that the return of the looted instruments is the sole benefit that China has derived from participation in the war.

Fell Three Stories Child Was Uninjured

Anna McCafferty, seven years old, of New York city, was busy hanging out her doll family's washing when she lost her balance and fell from a third-floor fire-escape, 35 feet to the ground. Her mother saw her disappear and fainted. When neighbors rushed in they found Anna administering restoratives to her unconscious mother and explaining tearfully:

"I ain't dead, mummy. I hit the clothesline."

Musical "Performances."

The columnist of the London Daily Express adds a sequel to the story of the London violinist who, when the conductor announced at a Strauss rehearsal, "Tod und Verklärung" would be played next, observed: "Good heavens, I've just played that!"

When Strauss came over to conduct his "Sinfonia Domestica"—or was it "Heldenleben?"—with the London Symphony orchestra he finished a rehearsal by thanking the orchestra for what, he said, was the finest interpretation of his work he had yet heard.

Whereupon one of the horn players turned to a colleague and remarked casually: "Well, I've still got two pages to play, anyhow."

A World in Need.

A little boy was beating a rug in a back yard with all his might. After each stroke he gazed up into the sky. "What on earth are you doing?" asked his mother. "Sending some dust up to God," was the reply, "so's He can make some new people."

Chinese Widows Seldom Marry. In China the remarriage of widows is regarded as an impropriety, and in wealthy families is seldom practiced, but among the poorer classes necessity often compels a widow to seek another breadwinner.

Would Appeal to Youngsters.

Jud Tunkins says every boy would be keen for the classics if Hector and Achilles had put on the gloves and had the kind of a mixup that could be described on the sport page.

TO LIVE IN LUXURY

Life of Lumberjack Soon to Be One Long Vacation.

Private Rooms, Spring Beds, Choice Cuisine, Lights and Showers Are Camp Bait.

Duluth, Minn.—Idle lumberjacks who during the slack summer months parade Michigan street, Duluth's Bowery, rubbed their eyes and gazed in wonderment at the following advertisement placed in the window of an employment agency:

"Private rooms, spring beds, choice cuisine, steam heat, electric lights, bath and showers, and an electrically operated laundry."

The advertisement, which compares favorably with placards heralding facilities for vacationers at the many head-of-the-lakes summer resorts, was signed by a Chicago lumber firm with camps in the vicinity of Loretta, Wis.

According to the agency, the response would have been greater had the advertisement read "Three squares a day, warm bunks and reasonable hours."

"Many of the lumberjacks are foreigners and cannot yet read the English language extensively," said the agent, who declared only a part of the men reading the advertisement understood what "choice cuisine, spring beds and private rooms" meant.

"While many were stumped through inability to understand the meaning of the unusual notice, others," said the agent, "refused to be 'kidded' by such 'bunk.'" Despite the fact that not a few timber workers dropped in at the office to assure the agent that they "wouldn't fall for any such bait," many took the notice seriously and filed applications for positions with the company.

Whether the old-time lumber camps, with their assembly bunkhouses, kerosene-lamp lights, wood-stove heat, straw-mattress beds, old-fashioned cooking, "do it yourself when you need it" laundry, are to be replaced by the modern camps with private rooms, spring beds, choice cuisine, etc., could not be ascertained by the agent. However, he was of the opinion that few camps in the north woods this winter would be equipped with electric lights, steam heat, bath and showers and electrically operated laundries.

The agent admitted that "it is possible for this particular camp to have the described equipment."

CARDUI HELPED REGAIN STRENGTH

Alabama Lady Was Sick For Three Years, Suffering Pain, Nervous and Depressed—Read Her Own Story of Recovery.

Paint Rock, Ala.—Mrs. C. M. Stegall, of near here, recently related the following interesting account of her recovery: "I was in a weakened condition. I was sick three years in bed, suffering a great deal of pain, weak, nervous, depressed. I was so weak, I couldn't walk across the floor; just had to lay and my little ones do the work. I was almost dead. I tried every thing I heard of, and a number of doctors. Still I didn't get any relief. I couldn't eat, and slept poorly. I believe if I hadn't heard of and taken Cardui I would have died. I bought six bottles, after a neighbor told me what it did for her."

"I began to eat and sleep, began to gain my strength and am now well and strong. I haven't had any trouble since. I am sure can testify to the good that Cardui did me. I don't think there is a better tonic made and I believe it saved my life."

For over 40 years, thousands of women have used Cardui successfully, in the treatment of many womanly ailments.

If you suffer as these women did, take Cardui. It may help you, too.

HEALS SCARS OF WAR

Nature Doing Her Best to Wipe Out Marks of Conflict.

Forests Supposed to Have Been Completely Ruined Show Remarkable Recovery—Battle Lines Fade.

Soissons, France.—Nature is making such rapid progress in healing the scars of war in France that, outside of towns where ruins are still standing, it will soon be impossible to discover the famous front line of four years of war without close examination.

It has become evident that the abandoned project of maintaining intact, as it existed at the close of hostilities, the line from Nienport, in Belgium, to Belfort, as a lesson to future generations, could not have been carried out excepting at an enormous expense.

Forests that were supposed to have been annihilated have shown remarkable recovery. Positions that were upheaved repeatedly until the subsoil covered the surface almost completely, giving every appearance of hopeless aridity, have been slowly covered by vegetation.

Even the famous height along which runs the Chemin des Dames (the "Ladies' Way"), is covered with thick herbage, that remains green in spite of the drought. In order to preserve certain famous war scenes such as the Bayonet Trench at Verdun, it was necessary to erect a shelter and protect the trench from the slow but sure work of nature in order to preserve it as it was during the great battle.

LOST HEIRESS FOUND

Miss Charlotte Boyles, who fled from her magnificent home in New Castle, Pa., in the night and who has been found in London, determined to marry an American she met on the voyage and reject a French count who had called to marry.

Miss Boyles, who is twenty-one and recently inherited $250,000, is the daughter of David Boyles, a retired millionaire business man. She fled from her home at three o'clock in the morning of July 5 and private detectives have been searching throughout the United States and Europe for her.

It was thought Miss Boyles was en route to Paris to elope with Count Guy Trepanard who was recently guest at the Boyles home in New Castle and was one of Miss Boyles' numerous suitors.

When seen in London, Miss Boyles said the count is a "dandy chap," but her heart really belongs to an American she had met aboard the ship.

She said she left home because she was tired of the dull routine.

WIDOW'S DIP PROVES COSTLY

Woman Alleges Her Companion Stole $3,440 From Her in Brooklyn.

New York.—Mrs. Mary Lukosewicz, a widow of Brooklyn, appeared in the Flatbush court against Alexander Bukantis, 30, whom she accused of stealing her $3,440, her savings of ten years.

She alleged she accepted Bukantis' invitation to go bathing with him at Mill Island, Jamaica bay. She placed the money in a hand bag and, arriving at the bathing beach, Bukantis said he did not care to take a dip, but prevailed upon her to do so.

She left the hand bag in his custody, she alleges, and when it was again handed back to her the money was missing.

Bukantis pleaded not guilty and Magistrate O'Neill held him in $1,000 bail for further hearing later.

THE AMERICAN LEGION

FIRED FAST, HIT THE MARK

Auditor of Legion's National Finance Division Made Record With Field Artillery.

A record for fast firing and direct hits with field artillery, may be far removed from keeping records and accounting expenditures. But the American Legion considered this recommendation when it chose William N. Day, Great Falls, Mont., as auditor of national finance division. He is still scoring bulls-eyes.

Twenty-five minutes to one minute was the reduction Day's battery, "F" of the 148th Field artillery, made in the time experts required to train 6-inch rifles on a target. A German train, sighted on the St. Mihiel front, was hit by Day's guns on the third round and completely demolished on the eleventh. With shells of all calibers dropping on his battery every half-minute for more than two hours, the battery came through without a man wounded and with three guns in action.

Mr. Day says that he finds the addition of a column of figures almost as exciting at times as the bombardment of an enemy fleeing target.

THE SOLDIER AND STATESMAN

Texas Is Newly Appointed Director of the Legion's National Americanization Commission.

"He can tell you about an ordinary baseball game in such words and expression that you will be grief-stricken," is what they say of Alvin M. Owsley, Texas, newly appointed director of the American Legion's national Americanization commission. Mr. Owsley, who left off being assistant attorney general of the largest state in the Union to join the Legion organization, has become a "soldier and a statesman" of national prominence at the age of thirty years.

In the West, the Texan has long been known as a speaker of unusual ability. When he went East and had as his field Americanism, its origin and its purpose, Mr. Owsley began delivering addresses of such eloquence and inspirational context that he became in constant demand and his reputation as a master of diction naturally followed.

Overseas Mr. Owsley commanded a battalion of 86th Division Infantry until his promotion to division adjutant. As head of the Legion's legislative committee in Texas, he obtained a $2,000,000 hospital for service men at Kerrville, Tex.

BEAUTY AS "MISS LIBERTY"

Seattle Legion Selects Charming Miss to Serve in Recent Patriotic Exercises.

"Talk about the beautiful French girls and rave about the dark tresses and flashing eyes of the Italians and Spaniards—we've got them beaten to death with our own Americans," declared the American Legion of Seattle, Wash., in selecting Miss Helen Worthington of their city to represent "Miss Liberty" in patriotic exercises recently. Beauty experts with varied experience in the A. E. F. were called upon for their opinion and they held that "Miss Liberty" had even the heart-breakers of the Latin countries paled to the mast, not excepting the painted ones in the Louvre at Paris.

Miss Worthington is a home girl and was not a little embarrassed at the honors the Legion showered upon her as queen of the festival. She was unmarried at the last report, although her mail has greatly increased in volume with those who would alter her singular course.

Posts in Foreign Countries.

The ranks of the American Legion have been extended into the second enemy country with the recent formation of a post in Constantinople. Two posts are going in Germany. Service men with the Near East relief and the American Foreign Trade corporation are organizing the Stamboul post. A charter recently issued to a new post in Tela, Spanish Honduras, makes a total of 25 posts in 19 foreign countries.

Camels are made for Men who Think for Themselves

Such folks know real quality—and DEMAND it.

They prefer Camels because Camels give them the smoothest, mellowest smoke they can buy—because they love the mild, rich flavor of choicest tobaccos, perfectly blended—and because Camels leave NO CIGARETTY AFTERTASTE.

Like every man who does his own thinking, you want fine tobacco in your cigarettes. You'll find it in Camels.

And, mind you, no flashy package just for show. No extra wrappers! No costly frills! These things don't improve the smoke any more than premiums or coupons!

But QUALITY! Listen! That's CAMELS!

WHAT THE MARYLAND FIRE PREVENTION CAMPAIGN MEANS

By Franklin H. Wentworth,
Secretary National Fire Protection Association

It is an ambitious and comprehensive undertaking that the fire prevention forces in Maryland are attempting. Fire Prevention Day, October 10, is to be recognized in that State, but only as an incident in a larger struggle for permanent accomplishments. W. R. Hough, one of Baltimore's fire commissioners, and B. S. Mace, fire prevention engineer of the B. and O. Railroad, are the capable leaders in a campaign to which the Governor of Maryland and the Mayor of Baltimore have pledged their interest and support. It gives one a pleasant sensation to see two citizens of a State put their shoulders to the wheel in a work of this sort simply because they understand the importance of it to their fellow citizens and want to make a contribution of public service.

The comprehensive plan of organization which they have worked out, which has enlisted the co-operation of so many public bodies and so many distinguished men, recognizes the important fact the fire waste must become a matter of local concern if a vital attack is to be made upon it.

Every fire is local; it must start somewhere; therefore, it is where it may start that interest and attention must be focused.

There are really but two things that can be done to check out astounding fire losses. One is to correct the habits of our people; to inspire in them the habit of carefulness; the other is to do positive physical acts like cleaning up basements, attics and yards, and inspecting and correcting defects in school houses, stores, houses and other buildings.

The Maryland group is to do both of these things. From the Governor down it is to stimulate and inform the everyday people of the State what the fire waste means; and then, having done this, it is to point out the physical means for its abatement. This is a job that will require patience, energy and persistence, but if the public-spirited gentlemen who have launched this campaign attract to it the support and co-operation such an effort deserves the Maryland group will write their names into the history of their State.

TO SAVE SCHOOLS FROM FIRE PERIL

Citizens Of Maryland Towns Urged To Join In Movement To Protect Property.

By W. J. Holloway,
Supervisor Rural Schools, State Of Maryland Department Of Education.

An important step in the interest of fire prevention throughout the State has been taken by the State Department of Education in providing, through the new course of study for rural schools, that children in the elementary grades shall receive definite instruction in fire hazards and the various means of reducing the losses from fire to life and property. This is taken care of mainly in the course in civics. It is stated that one of the aims of the elementary school curriculum is citizenship. The child citizen is to be taught his relation to the various environmental agencies with which he comes in contact, what is provided by his local, State and National Governments for his protection and welfare, and what service he can in turn render in the efficient ordering of community life.

It is intended that there shall be developed in every school child a consciousness of his responsibility in the prevention of fire through the correct use of matches, kerosene and gasoline; the care of fires in stoves and fire places; the proper banking of fires at night, and by keeping the home and surroundings free from rubbish and all inflammable material.

The pupils will be taught what to do when an outbreak of fire occurs—how to give the alarm, how to get out of a burning building, how to get animals out of danger and what they can do to extinguish the fire. They are to learn also what to do in case of a personal injury, treat a burn, etc. How to apply first aid in all emergencies is fully treated in the course in hygiene.

The significant feature of this advance step of Maryland's public school system is, that the children will receive this instruction systematically, year after year. It will be as much a part of the required course of study as is reading, spelling, arithmetic, etc. It cannot but have a tremendous influence on the knowledge, attitude and practice of the whole people.

No less important a contribution to the State's efforts to lessen its losses from fire is the systematic campaign which has been conducted for several years by State and county school authorities to clean up and improve public school properties. To that end there has been stressed, in all schools, high and elementary, white and colored, the value of the annual observance, preferably in the early fall, of "Clean-Up and School Improvement Day." On this day the regular work of the school is suspended, for the afternoon at least, and the patrons and trustees are invited to meet at the school and bring their grass cutters, rakes, whitewash brushes and buckets, nails and hatchets, and whatever other tools may be necessary to put their schoolhouse and grounds in good condition. It is felt that the school should embody, in concrete form, the lessons in sanitation and health, in comfort, beauty and safety that it would impress upon the community, for it can never hope to promote any virtue which it does not itself exemplify. Teachers, children, patrons and friends have in scores of places assembled at the school and observed School Improvement Day in such a way to stimulate the pride of the entire people in making the most important agency in their midst a more positive factor in its influence and possibilities because of what was done.

All this tends to lessen the risk of fire. A clean school, like a clean home, is more likely to be a safe school. Teachers who are strong enough to lead their trustees and patrons to see that to spend money and time in making an inviting and cheerful school is one of the best investments possible, not only to insure a higher degree of success in their own work through the inspiration to attain a reasonable degree of education that pleasant surroundings give to children, even more than to older people, but they also render an inestimable service to the community by means of the example set by the school and the lessons given to the children in cleanliness and other virtues which constitute effective preventives of fire.

In relation to the suggestion for a general clean-up of the rural schools during the early fall, it is suggested that this work be done on Monday, October 10, National Fire Prevention Day, as set by the President of the United States, and on which day the Maryland Fire Prevention Committee has planned for demonstrations and clean-up movements in every city and town of the State. The residents of the towns and surrounding territory are, therefore, urged to gather at their respective school locations on that day and aid in not only cleaning the school buildings of all rubbish that tends to present a fire danger, but to remove all grass, undergrowth and leaves from around the school structures.

Help Fight Fire!

The Maryland Fire Prevention Campaign, which starts October 1, is for the purpose of preventing fires during 1921 and 1922. Help in this work by seeing to it that your furnaces and stoves are in good repair before lighting the fires for the winter.

Rain Insurance Valuable.

Rain insurance is a new thing to many Marylanders, but it is a good thing, especially for the managers of country fairs who, through a rain insurance policy, can protect the fair against loss caused by heavy rains keeping the expected crowds away.

A PRINCESS ANNE MAN GIVES EVIDENCE

His Testimony Will Interest Every Princess Anne Reader

The value of local evidence is indisputable. It is the kind of evidence we accept as true because we know we can prove it for ourselves. There has been plenty of such evidence in the Princess Anne paper lately, and this straightforward testimony has established a confidence in the minds of Princess Anne people that will not be easily shaken.

Oscar Long, R. F. D., No. 1, Princess Anne, says: "Several years ago I had a severe case of backache. Whenever I did anything that caused me to stoop over, I would experience very sharp pains in the small of my back. I was forced to get up several times at night to pass the kidney secretions. After using several boxes of Doan's Kidney Pills I was cured of the trouble and have enjoyed good health ever since. I can heartily recommend Doan's to anyone who is suffering from kidney trouble or backache." (Statement given July 24, 1918.) On January 6, 1921, Mr. Long said: "I always recommend Doan's Kidney Pills. I have never found anything to take their place. Whenever my kidneys get out of order Doan's is sure to correct the trouble."

PROPERTY BURNED IS PROPERTY LOST

Fire Insurance Replaces, But The Money Paid By Insurance Companies Is Not "Created."

Property burned is property lost, according to the Maryland Fire Prevention Campaign workers, whose slogan during the ten days beginning October 1 will be, "Stop a Fire Before It Starts!" During the campaign every citizen of Maryland is to be asked to do all he can to prevent fires in private homes, farm buildings and manufacturing plants, by using care and commonsense. Says Ira G. Hoagland, nationally known as a fire prevention engineer:

Fire is both a boon and a bane. Uncontrolled, it blights, burns, consumes, destroys, devastates, wreaks havoc, incinerates, kills and maims, and generally lays waste to the creations of nature and man.

The destructiveness of fire, the economic devastation of it, is generally thought of in terms of the material damage wrought, the value of buildings burned, contents consumed, property destroyed.

Fundamentally, the value of human life is economic, but the current destruction of it by fire is little thought of in that sense. It is felt as personal bereavement, not as society benefit of creative intelligences and producers of wealth.

And little thought is given—beforehand—to the economic havoc wrought by fire in business and industry; to the thousand and one things in the aftermath of a fire which try the souls of men.

It is fondly imagined, for the most part, that the insurance against loss by fire on the buildings of commerce and industry and their contents of merchandise and materials, "raw, wrought and in process of manufacture," will be full and complete recompense for loss by fire.

"I am insured to the limit. A fire won't cost me a cent. The insurance companies will suffer, not me!" is the familiar chatter of honest but unthinking men—we are not considering the unmentionable kind that make money out of fires and flourish like the proverbial green bay tree because of rotten politics.

Of course the insurance companies will pay for the losses to buildings, equipments, merchandise, and what not in the way of material things, and, sometimes to income and profits.

And the insurance companies while paying do not pay; the public pays the price. The insurance companies only collect and distribute money for indemnity. They do not suffer and are not expected to.

But who pays for the losses which are the inevitable consequence of the destruction of buildings, their contents and other things material; the impairment of prestige, the interruption of business, enterprise, contractual relations, dismemberment of organization and what not else?

A burned building is far more easily replaced than a burned business; and a wrecked works than an incinerated industrial enterprise.

That which makes business and industry are not buildings, merchandise, machinery and what else, but the organization of human intelligence.

A fire burns a business building, or a factory. These and their contents may be replaced. But far too often the business and the industry, as such, are burned beyond repair. And if not that bad the scars are deep and unforgettable.

Ask any honest man whose soul has been seared by fire.

There is not any insurance for the human distress, economic and otherwise, that follows a fire.

It has been estimated that the uninsured losses from fire equal the insurable losses. In other words, for every dollar of loss in property burned, which is insurable, there is a dollar of loss in business burned or industry incinerated, which is not insurable.

These uninsured losses are often referred to as interruption losses.

Who may suffer then, with impunity?

And for those who do, the future will deal with much more harshly than has the past.

There will be in the immediate future a fullsome renaissance of the ancient law of the survival of the fittest.

Our once profligate nation will have to think of saving what it has; not building to burn and burning, building again.

As a nation we have been profligate. But there are some particular exceptions.

The most signal exception to our national profligacy, and one which supplies a complete example in economic conservation of enterprise from the destruction and havoc of fire is the textile industry.

The torch of the fire fiend, which has been laying waste to resources of our fair country to the extent of a quarter of a billion dollars annually for a number of years, touches the modern textile industry very lightly.

How Successful Author Worked.

Speaking of his early writings, Coningsby Dawson says: "A mistake I made was that I did not see my story as a whole when I started; I had no idea when and how the last chapter would finish. Now of whatever else I am ignorant, I know my skeleton, my beginning, my middle and my end before ever I take up my pen."

Spaniards Brought the Orange.

The orange tree was brought to Florida by the early Spanish settlers, and to California during the last half of the Eighteenth century by the Jesuit missionaries, according to the best authorities. The orange originally came from India or southern China. The exact date of its introduction into America is not a matter of record.

Diligence Quaintly Advised.

Let every man that hath a calling be diligent in pursuance of its employment, so as not lightly or without reasonable occasion to neglect it in any of those times which are usually, and by the custom of the prudent persons and good husbands, employed in it—Jeremy Taylor.

The Manners of Women.

"Madam," said the man standing in the street car, "why do you persist in punching me with your umbrella?" "I want to make you look around so I can thank you for giving me your seat. Now, sir, don't go off and say that women haven't any manners."

Gowns for Both Sexes.

In the Fourteenth century men as well as women wore gowns, and until the end of the Seventeenth century it was not uncommon for men in certain callings to wear long robes, just as monks do to this day.

Hundreds Sign Chinese Lease.

Chinese property deeds or leases often have hundreds of signatures. The reason is that land is usually owned by syndicates, and agreements must be signed by every member of an organization.

Docility of Human Race.

Nothing appears more surprising to those who consider human affairs with a philosophical eye than the easiness with which the many are governed by the few.—Hume.
