NEWS FROM WORCESTER.

Everybody's Election. And All Urged To Get In The Fight Against The Saloon.

There is a great outpouring of the people to hear the Anti-Saloon lectures being held all over the County. It looks as though many will be spiritualized who have been heretofore soaked in spirits: those who only know of the church as a building that has a steeple are now getting acquainted with the inside of those sacred edifices and look upon the steeple as a holy finger pointing to heaven. The truth that they are their brother's keeper is being realized and they are out seeking help to reclaim and save their fellow man, who is in the coils of the serpent ruin. Every one knows it will be a personal vote, every man is going to vote for himself as well as for his boy. The temptation is to be removed, the foot fall closed and the door of hell bolted.

Get in earnest, get active, do something. There is no fence to sit upon; "you are either for me or against me," and we are, thank God, the big side. Our danger now is over-confidence, some get the idea that their help is not needed; now this is everybody's fight, the "Ochrah" in action against the saloon, the women to protect the home, the child for a fair opportunity to lead a clean life, the drunkard to regain his manhood, the brother because of brotherhood, the politician to clean his party of reproach, the tax payer to lessen county charges, the good citizen because he is a patriot, get out and hustle until election day, March 21st, then come out and go into the voting booth and vote as Christ would vote.

Revelation warns, history records, observation shows, and experience teaches that alcohol is the greatest curse of the human race, and the open saloon is the vehicle of its dissemination and the juggernaut car of our destruction. The saloon does not create a dollar of wealth, it is only a parasite that feeds on the wages of the toilers; it is unlike any other manufacture; it is not proud of its finished product, the drunkard; it is wasteful because it destroys and impoverishes its customers; but it has a damnable policy that feeds it, it sets snares for the boys and makes customers of them.—Press Dispatch from Worcester.

MAIN STREET STORES

Have Been Missing Goods Recently. Two Arrests Made.

Several of the merchants on Main Street have been surprised on entering their stores in the morning to find the doors unlocked, and as this occurred several times it aroused their suspicions that something was wrong.

Some nights ago Nook Brothers left some one in charge of the store to watch. While waiting in the store the watchman heard the door opened, but it is supposed that they made a noise and the man was frightened away. They however caught a glance of his face when he passed in front of the electric light. Saturday evening Deputy Sheriff Waller and chief of the Police Disharoon arrested Herman and Augustus Gullett, two brothers, who live on the Morris farm on the charge of entering stores on Main Street and taking goods therefrom. A search of the premises revealed considerable goods alleged to have been taken from various stores. The watchman in Nook Bros. store identified one of the men arrested as the party seen entering their store. In the lot on search of premises were found the following:

Two suits of clothes, two watches, several rings and other "jewels," jewelry, identified as goods from Nook Brothers store; two pairs of shoes taken from E. Homer White Shoe Co's store; and a lot of cigars from W. A. Eadie's store. The officers secured the keys which were upon the premises of these stores.

The Gullett boys were committed to jail for a hearing.

LANCIE AND RING

Tourney Will Be One Of The Attractions To-night At The Skating Rink. Large Crowd Last Saturday.

One of the all popular and ever entertaining Lancia and Ring Tournaments will be given at the Skating Rink to-night, Saturday about 8 o'clock. This tournament is not rough and tumble like those of yest olden days between Knight Seigneurs of the Nobility but requires quite an art as well as a steady hand and good skating to win out.

It will be wise for the public to go to the rink as soon as possible to procure seats. Last Saturday was a record breaker and the attendance larger at night than for many weeks. Great interest is manifested all around and many people are availing themselves of the advantages now offered under the auspices of the Tennis Association. There has been no raise of prices and this has been a popular move. New moving pictures are shown each night at 7.30, 8.30 and 9.30. A single admission entitles one to see all the fine bowling, moving pictures, and skaters. Make the rink your meeting place for the next three weeks. You and your friends are cordially invited.

Death Of Mrs. Mary Catlin.

Mrs. Mary W. Catlin, widow of Alexander W. Catlin, late of Worcester County, died at her home on Elizabeth Street this city, on Sunday last. She was born at Nantux, this county, February 13, 1837, and was the daughter of the late William J. L. Catlin. Funeral services were held at her late home on Elizabeth Street on Tuesday afternoon conducted by Dr. T. E. Martindale. Her remains were interred in Parsons Cemetery.

She is survived by the following children: Elmer H. and Llewellyn Catlin, of Washington, D.C.; Mrs. Robert G. Evans, Mrs. J. C. Wilson, Mrs. Jay Williams, Mrs. L. Atwood Bennett and Miss Eva Catlin, and two brothers, John W. and Chanley Catlin.

Her life needs no encomium. It stood out in bold relief, and was filled with deeds of kindness, and found its greatest pleasure in ministering to the wants of others. Its culmination was reached when it burst into full fruition, when a devoted, God-fearing and disinterested mother and wife passed peacefully to rest forever with its Giver.

MR. GUNBY MAKES STRONG ADDRESS

In Worcester County, Sets Forth In Clear And Convincing Words And Figures The Conditions With Liquor Saloons And Without Them In Salisbury And Wicomico County. Increase of 2,000,000 Taxable Bases. More Money Now For Schools. Pronounced Moral And Social Betterment. Message Of Cheer To Worcester.

Mr. L. W. Gunby, a highly respected man from Salisbury well known as an able man of business, and also as a Christian, at a recent popular meeting in Berlin in the interest of the local option bill now before the citizens of Worcester County, made an excellent address, from which we draw the following testimony as to the workings of local option in Wicomico County:

"Once we were blind but now we can see."

"What was the condition of Salisbury when wet? We were burdened with a municipal tax rate of 45 cents on $100.00; with bad streets; with a disabled fire engine; with new fire hose and additional fire horses to buy; and with multiplied evils."

"What is our condition today? Our disabled fire engine has been practically made new, the needed hose and horses have been procured and we have more than a mile of street paved with vitrified brick with other streets shelled at an expense of $7,000.00 a year. With these and many more improvements, drawing a large amount of money from the town treasury for them, the tax rate has reduced during the past year 5 cents on $100.00. The City Treasurer reports that there is in hand the sum of $1,600.00."

"What about the moral effect of local option? Fine improvement. No noisy, drinking crowds on our streets by day, and no such roystering at night. No danger at night for our wives and daughters. More enjoyment in our homes. Greater sociability among the people."

"What about the County at large? Well, in 1903, under license of saloons, the taxable basis was $6,000,000.00. In 1907, since local option went into effect, the taxable basis is $8,000,000.00. The population of the County has been largely augmented. Great demand for our farms. Five busy real estate agents. New blood coming from all quarters. Everything better than before. When we had saloons, with a taxable property to the amount of $6,000,000.00, the School Treasurer called on our County Treasurer for 30 cents on $100 to make the $1,800.00 needed for the support of the schools, which sum is in addition to the State appropriation. There has been no change from the 30 cent rate. But the increase in the taxable basis has fully met the increased demand of the School Board. In addition to this, the County Commissioners paid last year $3,000.00 on the High School Bonds. So that you see we are now far better conditioned than when we depended upon the saloons for revenue with which to run our schools. We have done away with educating our children with such ill gotten gains."

"What of the growth of the schools? They are now overflowing. There has been an increased number of pupils as high as 50 per cent, incident to the increase of our population since Salisbury became dry. We have larger school terms and better paid teachers. The children attend school more regularly. Also are they better clothed and fed."

"What concerning the churches. Many new agencies of Church work established. More spirituality among the people. The work of the Church is always more successful without saloons. We have found it so. Experience is a valuable teacher."

"But it may be asked by some, if we have attractions for men to make up for the loss of the saloon. In consequence of saloon closing, a number of moral societies, of social, literary and fraternal character, are in evidence. So have we morally conducted amusements of an athletic nature. We now contemplate the erection of a commodious building for the Young Men's Christian Association. Last, but not least, our Sabbath afternoon evangelistic gathering brings together 400 to 500 men. Are not these things good fruit in consequence of closed saloons?"

Have the whiskey drinkers left town? No. Many of them are now strong advocates of temperance. So, too, with the proprietors of saloons. We have helped them to honorable callings in life."

"Have our merchants and bankers complained of loss of business under local option? Personally speaking, being myself a merchant, I pledge you my word that, besides having more peace of mind, more joy in conducting my business affairs, the profits of my business have far exceeded those of the same period of time during the continuance of the saloons. Other business men in Salisbury have given similar testimony. So throughout the County."

As to hotels, we still have them, and in improved form, because of the absence of bars. They are well kept and highly prosperous. Also are they pleasant places to the most morally exacting of persons. Some families now take their meals at the hotels. One hotel averages 25 to 30 customers of that class each day. Righteousness exalts a community. It never crushes."

"What is the effect upon your criminal docket? Comparatively no cases of an alarming nature. But, sad to say, we have some men on the outskirts of Salisbury who get themselves into trouble by a too frequent imbibing of whiskey imported from Worcester County."

"Would Salisbury have saloons again? No. That is a most emphatic negative. It was doubly emphasized at a mass meeting recently held in the town, the assembled people voicing themselves as being perfectly satisfied with present conditions."

"What effect has Worcester County on Salisbury and the rest of Wicomico County? The petty crimes of Wicomico are largely due to the importation of rum from Worcester County. Friends of Worcester we cannot get the pinhole puncture in the map of the prohibition counties of the Eastern Shore, until Worcester county removes the whiskey jug from its neighbor's steps. With this help, along with the enactment of the pending State Local Option Bill with its inspecting clause prohibiting shipment of whiskey to dry districts, we shall still further increase our standing as Local Option territory. Friends, help us."

"I would say that it is much to our advantage that Sussex County is now dry. We hear of no deaths now on the railroad track from Delmar to Salisbury, such being of frequent occurrence when there were saloons open in Delmar. Many cases might be cited that would show the difference between having a whiskey neighbor and a sober neighbor."

"A word to those who expect to vote for the continuance of saloons. You may think that it is money in your pockets so to do. To the man behind the gun, the saloon keeper, and to the man who supports him, I would say, with all earnestness, born of conviction, that there is no real money in the saloon business for either of you. You, O saloon keeper, rightly claim that your business is a legal one. But you cannot claim that it is a good business. And you, O saloon supporter, become a party to all the ill that springs from such a business. Does it pay to be engaged in a business that harms both yourself and your fellow man?"

"Citizens of Worcester county, I come to you from your sister county in the spirit of comity, and with the love of a brother. We are akin, being of the same flesh and blood, the only division between us that which you have yourselves thus far allowed to remain, the prickly hedge of license for the saloon. Let this barrier be taken down at the coming election. Let the votes you cast be jug smashers, those votes making a great clatter as when Gideon's soldiers went into battle; the notes of their breaking pitchers putting the enemy to flight. After that will come happiness, prosperity, righteousness."

"Friends of Worcester, we simply ask for reciprocal relations of local option in behalf of each other's good. In such relationship we shall be the better able to preserve our children."

"Friends, you have my testimony. I humbly ask you to consider the facts that I have so imperfectly presented to you this night. They are important for you to weigh. Overwhelmingly important they are to you and yours."

(In justice to our friend, Mr. Gunby, it should be noted that the article above is a mere condensation of his fine address in Dirichson's Bldg.) on the evening of February 30. It does not do him the credit that he deserves. His address, however was of too great a length to be published in full. But the editor of it has endeavored to abstract out from the address its essential facts and points.—Editor.

NOW THE LENTEN SEASON.

Forty Days Fast Succeeds A Long Season Of Gayety Locally. Some Interesting Facts About This Period.

This week ushered in Lent, the forty day season of fasting and prayer. This began on Wednesday, and is forty days later than last year. The word Lent is derived from an old English word "Lencten" meaning spring or the spring fast, and the period commemorates the Lord's forty days fast in the wilderness, and lasts for forty days—with the exception of the Greek Church which lengthens it to forty-eight.

The first day of Lent which was Wednesday is called Ash Wednesday, so called from the old custom of sprinkling ashes on the heads of the penitents, which custom still prevails in the Catholic Church, and on Wednesday last the ashes were, blessed and marked with a cross on the forehead of the penitent in all the churches of this denomination throughout the world.

Now And Then.

The day preceding Lent now and then is given over to carnivals, feasting and pleasure. This is an old survival of ancient customs and Bacchus was the god of feast when almost all kind of merry making and graver indulgences were allowed. Masquerading was the order of the day, and men in women's attire and women in men's, laymen as monks others the King, and yet others wild beasts."

The greatest carnival of the year is given at Rome, where the young and old mix in the merry throngs and celebrate in goodly fashion. The Mardi Gras given each year at New Orleans is a survival of this season and is the greatest celebration of its kind in this country. It is also known as pancake day and according to Macaula the old bells at Westminster School rang out the call for the people to begin the frying of pancakes.

While the name of Ash Wednesday is given this day, yet in many countries it is given over to merry making and celebrations, the custom implying a day of good time instead of, as its name signifies, a confession of sins. The day is observed in the Catholic Church as a preparation for the austerities of Lent, and many were found around the confessional in all the churches confessing their sins to the priests and receiving forgiveness therefor.

Catholic Regulations.

The Catholic Church regulations for Lent are as follows:

1. All the faithful who have completed their twenty first year, unless exempt by dispensation or some other legitimate cause, are bound to observe the fast of Lent.

2. They are to make one meal, except Sundays.

3. A small refreshment, called collation is permitted in the evening.

4. The following persons are exempt from obligation of fasting: Persons under twenty one years of age; the sick; nursing women; those who are obliged to do hard labor; and those who through weakness, cannot fast without great prejudice to their health.

5. The faithful are reminded that besides the obligations of fasting imposed by the church this holy season of Lent should be, in an especial manner, a time of rest and prayer, of sorrow of seclusion from the world and its amusements and of generous alms giving.

In Salisbury.

In Salisbury the Lenten time will mean the shutting down to a certain extent of the social gayeties that have helped to enliven our town during the past season. While a great many do not participate in the observance of Lent to the extent of cutting out social pleasures, yet the season is one of more or less rest from social as well as other pleasures. St. Peter's Church of Salisbury has announced the following Lenten services:

Sundays.

Holy Communion, 7.30 a. m.
Morning Prayer and Sermon, 11.00 a. m.

Evening and Sermon, 7.30 p. m.

Week Days.

Mondays—Evening, 4.30 p. m.
Tuesdays—Evening with Reading, 4.30 p. m.

Wednesdays—Evening with Lecture, 7.30 p. m.
Thursdays—Holy Communion, 10.30 a. m.

Fridays—Lenten Service, 4.30 p. m.
Saturdays—Evening, 4.30 p. m.

Holy Week.

In addition to the above services, Holy Communion, Daily, 10.30 a. m.
Good Friday.

Morning Prayer and Sermon, 10.30 a. m.
Lenten Service, 4.30 p. m.

Easter Day.

Holy Communion, 6.00 a. m.
Morning Prayer, Sermon and Holy Communion, 11.00 a. m.
Evening and Sermon, 7.30 p. m.

DEMOCRATIC PLEDGES.

Not Yet Redeemed At Annapolis. Interested Party Men And Independents Watching Legislation Closely.

The fight on the Local-Option Bill grew warm this week, considerable feeling being shown on both sides. The question came up on Tuesday under the head of unfinished business under the motion of last week requesting the temperance committee of the House to report the bill to the House, amended by Mr. Jones, of Wicomico to March 11. This motion was lost by a large vote, and while it is regarded as a straw to show the feeling to a certain extent on this measure yet it is by no means indicative of the real sentiment. Mr. Stanford of Somerset and Mr. Jones, of Worcester supported the motion as did Mr. Timmons and of course Mr. Jones, of Wicomico. Mr. Willing, of Wicomico was not present.

Mr. Anderson of the Anti-Saloon League came out the next day in an advertisement in the Baltimore papers with some very caustic remarks on the attempt being made, as alleged by him, to kill the bill by the bosses. This advertisement stirred the chairman of the Temperance committee up and he made some hot remarks in the house on the subject of Mr. Anderson and the Anti-Saloon League. It would appear that all the time necessary for a fair and impartial hearing on the bill has been given, and any further delay in reporting the bill out of the committee will be but a palpable attempt to defeat the measure by the chairman and members of the Temperance Committee of the House.

Good Roads Bill.

Two road bills have made their appearance at Annapolis—one introduced by Mr. Benson, providing for a paid commission of six as outlined in our issue of last week, the other provides for the work of the commission to be done by the present geological survey commission or a commission without pay. It is understood that Gov. Crothers favors the idea of a paid commission. It is pointed out by those who are opposed to the bill of paid commission that other states have put work of a similar character under the supervision of one man in other cases in the hands of a much smaller number than is proposed under the Benson Bill—the cost in salaries alone of the six commissioners being about $14,300 per year, which will amount in the seven years in which the work is supposed to be done to over $100,000.

There seems to be the fear on the part of many that the appointment of a commission as outlined in the Benson Bill will throw the question of building good roads into politics and result in less efficiency in the improving of our highways. The advocates of the bill on the other hand point out that the members of the Geological Survey are very busy men and that it would be impossible for them to give the subject of roads the attention that ought to be given them, and that the result of placing in their hands would be the leaving of the entire matter with their engineers, while a paid commission would not thus be handicapped, and would produce better results.

Local Matters.

The new charter for the Salisbury City Council is asking for, it is understood, will soon be in shape for presenting. We are not familiar with the features of this new charter, but it is understood that it will give the Council much larger powers in taxation, condemnation and other regulations than they now have. Also that it will provide for the increase of the Mayor's salary to $200 per annum, and provide for the payment of the Councilmen who now serve for nothing, also for an increase in the Treasurer or Collector. There seemed to have been some talk of applying the Wilson Ballot Law to Wicomico County. That a move of this kind would be a mistake is believed by most. One thing Wicomico has been proud of and that is that a fair ballot has been given to the people to vote, and as this seems to meet the approval of all voters regardless of party, change the form so as to disfranchise a number of our citizens, white as well as colored, would be a very poor policy.

Mr. Timmons bill providing for the labeling of fruit packages shipped out of the County has been passed by the House.

The Corrupt Practices Bill as amended by the Senate has passed to reading in the Senate.

There does not seem to be any more in the carrying out of the plan of the party in regard to Primary Election Law.

A social will be held at Phillips School Friday evening, March 13th for the benefit of a school house. An address by Prof. H. H. H. is cordially invited.

LIPTON'S CHARITY.

He Took First One Hint Then Another.

Sir Thomas Lipton has committed many generous acts during his life, but which he can never be induced to talk.

He is fond, however, of telling of an incident which happened in his early days, concerning an astute mother who forced him to raise her son's wages because Sir Thomas had presented him with a brand-new suit of clothes.

Sir Thomas started business with one assistant, a boy of fourteen, who was willing and honest. One day the lad was overheard complaining that his clothes were so shabby he was unable to go to chapel.

Mr. Lipton, as he then was, was making every sacrifice to enlarge his little shop, but he took a small amount from his carefully hoarded savings and bought the boy a suit of blue cloth.

The next day the boy didn't come to work, and Mr. Lipton, meeting his mother in the street, asked her the reason.

"Why, Mr. Lipton," she said, curtly, "Jimmie looks so respectable, thanks to you, sir, that I thought I could send him round the town today, 'cause if he couldn't get a better job."

Sir Thomas meekly took the hint and offered an increased salary, which was accepted on behalf of Jimmie by his mother. —Detroit News-Tribune.

Always For Each Other.

Kenesaw Mountains Lands, federal land at Chicago, who fined the Standard Oil Company $29,240,000 is a picture of a man in the United States. A picture of a man, many stories are told of him and of his equally picturesque brothers. It is probable that no family of boys were ever more devotedly attached to one another than these Landis. Any one of them has been ready at any time to make any sort of sacrifice for any other of them. They hold their interests mutual, and all of them—number five—have prospered.

When Fred Landis decided that he wanted to come to Congress his brother, Charles, who already held a seat, the brightest sort of prospect of becoming the nomination for governor of Indiana. His friends knew, and so did he, no doubt, that Fred's entrance into politics would lead to the cry "too much Landis," and injuriously affect Charles's gubernatorial chances. But the congressman was for his brother, Fred, nevertheless. He was willing even to lose his own seat in Congress in order to see Fred get to the front. Fred got there, and served two terms, owing to a political appeal in his district, and is once more in private life. If Kenesaw Mountains Lands should develop as a political quantity—be put forward, for instance, for governor of Illinois, or for vice president, as has been suggested—you may depend upon it that the other Landis boys, every mother's son of them, will be for Kenesaw Mountains to the last ditch. That is the way they are built.

A Quaint Custom.

The annual historic "red hose" games have just been held on the village green at Carnwath. According to the conditions in the charter granting the lands of Lee and Carnwath to the Lockhart family, this game must be run annually at a stated period. The winner becomes the heir in succession to the estates should the Lockhart family die out without issue within the ensuing year, his name being proclaimed at the Cross of Edinburgh. —London Globe.

Britishers Eat More Sugar.

The annual per capita consumption of sugar in the United Kingdom has practically increased from 39½ pounds in 1871 to nearly 100 pounds at the present time. But the British refining industry has steadily declined relatively. Fifty years ago practically all of the sugar used in the kingdom was refined there, while now the proportion is only 45 per cent.

Any Electro-Technical Patents.

About 5,000 electro-technical patents were taken out in various countries in 1906. The United States is credited with 2,060, United Kingdom with 1,000, Germany 700, France 400, Austria 300, Italy 150, Hungary 120, and Switzerland with 100.

Bicycle Trade Bad in England.

Though the British automobile trade is prosperous beyond precedent this year the bicycle trade has been unusually depressed, chiefly because of the wet summer and partly because the new Australian tariff amounts to a prohibition of exports to that colony.

The False Orange.

In Kamchatka there grows a mushroom called the false orange, from which is made a liquor that produces delirium and convulsions. Nevertheless, it is a favorite beverage.

Defective Vision Makes Men Drink.

Bad sight is given as the reason for such going wrong. Defective vision has been proved to be the cause of lack of self-control, alcoholism and drug taking.

When there is too much outside speculation, the matrimonial bonds loosen in interest.

It says it is not how much money or how much knowledge a man possesses, but what is character, that counts.

How to Mend a Story.

The best way to mend a broken story or dream is to bind the end of the story where it is broken with a small piece of chamois skin. The end of the story, it will be found, will not piece through the chamois as frequently does through cloth.

To Clean Agate Ware.

To clean agate ware that has become stained take 1 tablespoonful of chloride of lime and a small piece of soda, then fill with cold water and let come to a boil. Rise well.

Better to Leave Them as far as Possible Masters of Their Fate, Equal to Life, to its Daily Routine and its Demands.

The best thing we can leave our children is freedom, and, whether parents realize it or not, it is to leave their children free that most parents aim.

We would not have them, as far as possible, the masters of their fate, equal to life, to its daily routine, to its daily demands, and to its emergencies, vicissitudes and opportunities.

We would qualify them to stand on their own legs and bear their own burdens; we would equip them to be worth their salt, and able to earn honorably, and save them from the temptation to be again-hunters, looking for ease at the cost of freedom and development.

The most obvious and prevalent way of realizing this natural parental desire to leave children free is to leave them more or less rich.

To guarantee them fortitude and ability is impossible, to develop in them sturdiness of character may be difficult, but dollars are tangible things that can be caught, held, and laid up, and many parents do lay up money for their children, and feel that by so doing they have done what they could to give them a better life.

And so a measure they have, if they have saved up enough, but only in a measure. They can have their children from the need of engaging in bread-winning occupations for the sake of the bread to be won in them.

They can save them from the need of having their education overmuch adapted and adjusted to bread-winning necessities. They can enable them to take full time for study and development before they set themselves to their life's work.

All these things may be advantageous, but it is not advantageous to anybody to be spared too much from the common discipline of life. Liberty to do what one will, when one will, is liberty to do nothing in particular, or even to do much worse.

When we dower our children with that kind of liberty, we deprive them of the stimulation of necessity, and leave to their ambition or their sense of duty to determine whether they will truly run the race or sit by and watch the efforts of the other contestants. —Harper's.

Peanut-Oil Manufacture.

Consul D. I. Murphy made the following report from Bordeaux on the French peanut-oil industry for the furtherance of that line of manufacture in the United States:

In a recent article in a Western newspaper on the growing of peanuts, it was stated that the annual value of the peanut crop in Virginia, South Carolina, and Georgia was between $3,000,000 and $10,000,000. How correct this statement may be, I have no means of determining, but it gave me the idea that a very profitable industry might be established in the manufacture of arachide oil. If such an industry is not already in existence in the States mentioned.

Arachide oil, when well clarified and fresh, is preferred to the best olive oil for table use by many people in this part of France. In Bordeaux the sales of arachide oil are of all other oils—in fact they are almost as large as the sales of all others combined. Over 50,000 tons of peanuts are brought to this port every year from the French possessions in Africa, the average annual value of the peanut (or arachide) oil manufactured in this city being over $2,000,000.

Not only is arachide a most excellent table oil, palatable, nutritious, and healthy, and very much cheaper than the olive oil, but it is employed almost exclusively in the manufacture of a high-class compound and for cooking sardines before packing in olive oil. I am told it is unsurpassed. The best quality of arachide oil is selling wholesale at about eighty or eighty-two cents per gallon at this time, and lower grades from fifty-five to sixty-five cents.

The process of manufacturing the oil is simple, the nuts being pressed in the same kinds of presses used for cotton seed. The oil is clarified in the same manner as olive oil, i. e., by filtering through layers of carded cotton, the quality depending largely upon the number of filterings and the degree of clarification attained.

The residuum is pressed into cakes, making an excellent and nutritious food for cattle. The cake is selling at from fifteen to eighteen francs per 100 kilos, or from $2.90 to $2.47 for every 220 pounds.

There is not a particle of waste in the manufacture. The shells are finely ground, mixed with molasses, pressed into cake and used as cattle food, not so good, it is true, as the cake made from the residuum of the nuts, but still nutritious, and selling for about one-third its price. To make a fuel which burns well and gives great heat, the powdered shells are mixed with coal dust and pressed into blocks.

Reading into the Telephone.

A young Philadelphia woman of good family but reduced means, who has retained an extensive acquaintance among her aristocratic associates, has hit upon a novel and original means of earning a livelihood by the use of her voice and excellent reading ability. She has combined some of her wealthy friends of advanced years into a reading circle, who listen to her over their telephones for about an hour a day and pay her generously by the week for her entertainment.

WORDS CAN NOT EXPRESS GRATITUDE TO CUTICURA

"Words are inadequate to express my gratitude to Cuticura Remedies. I had been troubled with eczema for five years on my ear and had begun to extend on my cheek. I had been doctoring with the best physicians, but could not get any relief whatever. When informing them that I could not bear itching, I was told by one of our best doctors, 'not to scratch.' As the medicine and salves did me no good I thought I would get the 'Magic Three,' Cuticura ointment, and Cuticura Pills, costing me one-half of one visit to my physician. After using as directed, with plenty of hot water, I can truthfully state that I found instant relief. When I had used three boxes of Cuticura ointment and two boxes of Cuticura Soap I found my skin as soft and fine as a baby's. My circle of friends is very large, and I am persuading them to use Cuticura Soap and give up the kinds they were using. I find no trouble as my case has proven to them that if Cuticura Ointment is good, Cuticura Soap must be likewise.

I hesitate to send you the enclosed picture as it has been lying around in my desk for two years and is very soiled. At the time it was taken my ears were scaly and you will find some remnants of Cuticura Ointment on it, and, to me, it is very precious, as I can now say when looking at it that Cuticura is a blessing, and that is why I have kept it even though it was soiled. ## SALISBURY UNDER DRY RULE.

A warm fight is now being waged in Worcester County by the advocates of Temperance and the saloon people. Since Salisbury voted on the subject several years ago, and voted it out, it has been more or less a target in the fight on this issue. When Delaware was carrying on its fight last fall the whiskey men sent an agent down here to get information as to its effect here on business, morals and general conditions. This agent instead of representing the true state of affairs garbled and manufactured some of the interviews, and spread through the entire state of Delaware this misrepresentation by means of paid advertisements in the papers of the state.

That Salisbury should be so grossly misrepresented by the whiskey men made our citizens so indignant that a public meeting was called by the business men of the town to protest against it. This call which was signed by nearly all of Salisbury's leading merchants and manufacturers, resulted in one of the biggest meetings ever held in the Court House, at which strong resolutions denying the statements published and strongly protesting against the misrepresentation that had been made by the whiskey people were adopted.

The "Every Evening" of Wilmington, Del., which had first published the interviews purporting to come from Salisbury's business men, sent a personal representative here to attend the meeting and in its issue of next day retracted, and denied any responsibility for the slanderous article on Salisbury. This attempt to use Salisbury by the saloon interests worked as a "boomerang" in Delaware, and it is believed the situation here when it became known was of great aid to the temperance advocates in their fight.

It is reported that Worcester County is making use of the same arguments and the statement is being circulated that "speaking easily" flourish and moral conditions are worse and that business has gone to the dogs. Every one of these statements are false and the contrary is true in every case, as a talk with any of our informed citizens will assure any one who wants to inquire into conditions. As far as illicit selling of whiskey is concerned this town is practically free of it and has always been since the saloons were closed—the few cases of sales which have occurred have been isolated and of little importance.

Our moral conditions have certainly improved, and while in former times under the old regime it was hardly safe for ladies to be on our streets—especially on Saturday nights—in certain portions of the town—now it is an unusual sight to see a drunken man on the streets, and most of what one does see is from those who go to our neighboring towns and tank up. Our merchants and business men will tell you that our financial standing has not been hurt, and that more business was done in our city after the closing of the saloons than ever before in the history of its existence.

Resolutions of Respect.

From Athol Council No. 8. O. U. A. M.

Whereas, It has pleased the Great Council above to remove from our midst on the thirteenth day of February 1908, Brother Thomas J. Elliott to join the Great Council above and feeling that a place has been made vacant in our Lodge his family and community that is hard to fill. Be it hereby

Resolved that we in Council assembled hereby extend to the family, brothers and sisters of the deceased our sincere sympathies in their loss, but commending them to the great Council above who doth all things well, and furthermore pledging them our sympathies and help in time of sore distress and need to the future.

Resolved, further, that a copy of these resolutions be spread on our minutes and a copy sent to the county paper for publication.

THE SALOON MUST GO

Writes Mr. R. J. Showell, President of Worcester's League.

There is a hot campaign now on in Worcester County upon the question of liquor license. The matter is flooded with literature, to read and clear the intellects of the waters. All the reputable papers are advocating the cause of the home and arranging the atrocities of the saloon. There are many public meetings held in various places each night, addressed by the best orators procurable and they are drawing overflow audiences that are vociferous with enthusiasm. It is developing into the greatest evangelizing thing that has ever passed over the land. All the churches stand shoulder to shoulder, sectarianism wiped out and the spiritual uplift of man alone considered. The Church furnishes a rostrum to fight her greatest foe—the saloon. The school houses and cross-road groceries are auditoriums ringing with the glad tidings "The Saloon must go!"

The saloonists are in despair, no one of reputation has a good word to say for them. Whether to hold on to the blood money now in the till, and keep it to enter more useful and beneficial fields, or use it to corrupt the voters in causing confusion among their members. $50,000 would be but a pittance before this tidal wave of public redemption. But many of the men would make success in any useful business and we shall turn them to good enterprises abolishing their parasitical traffic. There are brains in the business that are needed by mankind that will be turned from evil to good on the 21st of March.

Both political parties have practically washed their hands of responsibility for the traffic. The business stands without any creed but gold, without the covering of any party's robe, beyond the pale of morality or common sense, their record has forfeited even sympathy and they have closed Pandora's box too late even to retain hope.

The others are all preparing for a great wash day, each is determined to furnish a piece of clothes line to stretch over the length and breadth of the land, and the 21st of March will be the greatest drying day in our history.

Robert J. Showell,
President of the Anti-Saloon League,
of Worcester County.

ESTATE OF EX-GOV.

E. E. Jackson Filed At The Court House,
Personal Estate Of Over $300,000.
Total About $3,000,000.

Mrs. Nannie B. Jackson, executrix of the late ex-Gov. E. E. Jackson has filed an inventory of the personal estate of the deceased. The following items were listed and inventoried by Joseph L. Bailey and L. Atwood Bennett, appraisers:

10 shares common stock of Baltimore Header-Bond Concrete Co. no val.
10 shares preferred stock same. 100.00
255 shares American Bonding Co. 13,400.00
70 shares Third Nat. Bank, Baltimore. 1,250.00
40 shares Baltimore Nat. Bank-Security. 4,400.00
17 shares F. & M. Bank, Baltimore. 1,785.00
10 shares Hammond Ice Co. no val.
5,000 shares Iowa Mining Co. N. C. no val.
5 shares Salisbury Ice Co. 500.00
2,000 shares Pratt Consol. Coal Co. 100,000.00
200 gold bonds of same Co. 100,000.00
128,889 shares Baltimore Mining Co. no val.
3 shares Division St. Sewer Co. 45.00

Total. $3,001,985.00
The amount of debts due the estate is listed as follows: Separate (live) debts, $29,456.00; Doubtful debts, $11,500.00; Desperate debts, $150.00; total, $61,076.

The above schedule represents about one tenth of the estate of the late ex-Governor. During his lifetime he had divided among his wife and children more than $3,500,000 in stocks, bonds, real estate, etc. The executrix has petitioned the Orphans' Court for the privilege of selling the above mentioned personal property at private sale, as she thinks they would realize a better price disposed of in that way.

Letter From Worcester's Citizen's League.

We are beginning to have a "let her go Gallagher" sort of a feeling, swinging the axe of reform regardless of where the chips may fly, and are riding with a free rein because our motto is pure footed. The sparks are flying at every blow given to the Damascene steel of common sense and man's redemption is being forged out of the voters' consciences. Let the good work go on, it is a holy incense, to high heaven, a hearkening to "the voice crying in the wilderness," an enthronement of women's happiness and a smoothing of childhood's path. Man has enough infirmities of his own at the best; why add to them, those of drink; woman has enough other worries in the home to make a job dear, air, why give her a drunken husband; there are so many ailments to entangle our children's feet, why set a saloon snare to strangle them for life and eternity. Vote it out; Their cup is full, our patience exhausted, the time is ripe, the law is passed, the date set and the ballot is the means.

Sufferers who say they have tried everything without benefit are the people we are looking for. We want them to know from glad experience that Ely's Cream Balm will conquer Cold in the Head, Hay Fever and obstinate forms of Nasal Catarrh. This remedy acts directly on the inflamed, sensitive membrane. Cleansing, soothing and healing. One trial will convince you of its healing power. Price 50 cents. All druggists, or mailed by Ely Brothers, 23 Warren Street, New York.

TEMPERANCE IN SOUTH.

Booker Washington Says It Helps The Negro.

"The great temperance movement which has swept the South has been without parallel in history," said Booker T. Washington in an address which he made this afternoon before an audience of 8000 at the People's Forum. "You little realize how much it means to the colored race. Without an expenditure of money a mighty revolution has been accomplished. Today we find only 15 counties in Kentucky where whiskey is sold under license, in Tennessee in only four cities and two towns. In Florida there are only 14 counties where saloons and bar-rooms exist. They are almost extinct in North Carolina. After next Christmas every bar-room in Mississippi and Alabama will close up. Already every bar-room in Georgia has gone out of business and for the first time in 40 years the Atlanta Journal came out recently and said that not a single 'blotch' man was in the city jail.—Press Notice.

Seeking Buried Treasure.

So long as grass grows and water runs, and man toils for gold hidden treasure will hold a lure for the human heart, says the Boston Globe. It draws men to far and desert countries, over high mountain ranges, through sickly swamps, among the sand buried ruins of old cities, across tropic seas to uninhabited islands, to foreign coasts and roadsteads in which galleons may have swung at their anchors in old sea fights, to wild bays and lochs where the ships of the armada dove to their doom, around and up an down the world in a feverish quest for glittering wealth beyond the lot of him who toils day by day in prosaic labor near his own roof-tree.

Who has not read with eager interest the myth of Kidd's "buried" loot? All up and down the coast of America off beaches, islands, headlands are holes in the ground, where men have delved and sweated in search of that same treasure, which exists only in tradition and never was buried at all.

No more persistent illusion has been harbored by generation after generation than the Kidd buried great wealth in plunder along the New England coast. Some little inquiry reveals that when the free-booter lay in jail at Boston awaiting deportation to England, all the treasure he had brought north with him from the West Indies was turned over to the Government's representatives by the owner of Gardiner's Island, in Long Island Sound, to whom, an unwilling custodian, it had been instructed while the pirate came to Boston to make overtures for condonation of his crimes. In the State archives of Massachusetts may be found a inventory of all this treasure, very carefully drawn, accounting for ever shilling. Kidd brought no other treasure to this coast, and what he left with his ship "in a cove in Hispaniola," was afterward sold to a merchant in the Danish Island of St. Thomas.

Yet in the minds of millions Kidd's treasure and its varied burial places are as firmly entrenched as the legends of Mother Goose and the sacred myth of Santa Claus in the heads of children.

The treasure seeker, whether sitting in his library and speedily his quest on the storied page of history or romance, or actually voyaging to dive or dig, has always before him the tantalizing, uncertainty that makes treasure hunting, the exciting of all human occupations. Always the great question is before him: Where?

Where is the rich city of the Great Khan, of which Marco Polo left a map, where gold and silver were so common they were traded for flat money made from inner bark of the mulberry tree?

Where lies the great treasure Pope Innocent VII is said to have buried near the old papal palace of Avignon in the South of France?

Where is the treasure King John is supposed to have secreted in one of his castles?

Where is the wealth the Romans are supposed to have buried in the great wall in the North of England?

Where is the tomb of Alaric, the Goth, crammed with the richest spoils of the "first sack of Rome"?

Where did Generalie, the vandal, hide the five shiploads of gold, silver and jewels he gathered in Italy and took to Carthage?

Where are the treasures of Solomon's Temple and of Babylon?

Where is the Hungarian cave in which Attila stored his millions of plunder, and which he strove to tell as he died?

Where is the fabled lake of El Dorado in the South American highlands, where the Indians sank tons of gold in sacrificial ceremonies?

The treasure seeker never tires. No less than a score of fruitless expeditions, for example, have sailed to the Oopos Islands, off the coast of Peru, to hunt for pirates' treasure. Each has cost a moderate fortune. So eager has been the search that rival parties have met on the islands and blood has been spilled. Still the treasure remains hidden to lure on future generations.—Philadelphia Daily.

Sealed Proposals.

Addressed to the County Commissioners of Wicomico County, Salisbury, Md., indorsed "Proposals for Improving the Public Highway between Salisbury and Quantico," will be received up to 2 o'clock noon, TUESDAY, MARCH 17, 08, when they will be publicly opened and read.

All proposals must be made on the regular forms furnished by the State Geological Survey, to be obtained at the County Commissioners' office. Bids otherwise made out will not be received.

All contracts for State highway construction are subject by law to the approval of the State Geological Survey Commission, and must be so approved before they can be executed.

The work to be done includes grading and macadamizing of about two miles of road to be built under State supervision according to the plans and specifications on file at the office of the County Commissioners, Salisbury, Md.

All proposals must be accompanied by a certified check for two hundred dollars payable to the County Commissioners of Wicomico County, which will be returned unless the successful bidder fails to execute a contract in which case the check will become the property of the county. The County Commissioners reserve the right to reject any or all bids.

Sealed Proposals.

Addressed to the County Commissioners of Wicomico County, Salisbury, Md., indorsed "Proposals for Improving the Public Highway between Salisbury and Quantico," will be received up to 2 o'clock noon, TUESDAY, MARCH 17, 08, when they will be publicly opened and read.

All proposals must be made on the regular forms furnished by the State Geological Survey, to be obtained at the County Commissioners' office. Bids otherwise made out will not be received.

All contracts for State highway construction are subject by law to the approval of the State Geological Survey Commission, and must be so approved before they can be executed.

The work to be done includes grading and macadamizing of about two miles of road to be built under State supervision according to the plans and specifications on file at the office of the County Commissioners, Salisbury, Md.

All proposals must be accompanied by a certified check for two hundred dollars payable to the County Commissioners of Wicomico County, which will be returned unless the successful bidder fails to execute a contract in which case the check will become the property of the county. The County Commissioners reserve the right to reject any or all bids.

By order of the Board:

The New Dress Goods For Spring Are Here They Are Glorious

It is most remarkable to have an opportunity to select new Spring Dress Goods so early. The goods were made for this Spring's selling and are the very fabrics approved by Fashion. They are so pretty, so sensible that we wish to tell you a little about them.

The colors are all in the soft, low tones, blues probably leading in choice—not the bright French blues of old, but a softer blue known as the Copenhagen blue. But there is the new brown, tan and black as well, and what is really very attractive is the new shadow-checked effect. There is another lovely new color, between a purple and the darker tints, tones—perhaps you could call it a plum, but it is very soft in color.

You may choose from very many materials—Panama, French Batiste and French Challe, Fancy and Herringbone Serge, also the Voiles and Lansdowns—all in the many colors mentioned.

There's No Extra Charge Simply Because They Are New Goods

The prices are as attractive as the goods themselves. The 50c kind carries as much style and quality for its value as do those at $1.00 and $1.50 a yard. Each has its own worthiness.

The Butterick Patterns
Will give you the correct styles for the garments you wish to make and insure perfect satisfaction.
There is a special offer of the De-licator, New Style book and free Pattern we wish to tell you about. Ask about it when you come.

Spring Models in Corsets
We have a splendid selection for the woman who desires a graceful and well-proportioned figure.
There are several models at $1.00 including long hips with high bust, and short hips with high bust, very prettily trimmed.

MODES OF THE MOMENT.

Some Smart Hats; Butterfly Styles Prominent; Stripes Trimmed With Checks; Rough Silks; Styles For The Little Folks.

With the beginning of March makes and matrons alike begin to think longingly of the Easter hat and although it is full early to speak of these dainty creations still the millinery modes have already declared themselves and everywhere milliners are having openings and the "very latest fashions from Paris," are displayed. A good many small hats are shown and among these are some large toques and turban shapes that are very smart indeed.

Flowers are of course used for trimmings, as is always the case at this season of the year but a good many more feathers are seen than is usual in the spring and summer styles.

Some Smart Hats.

A medium sized hat of white chip has the brim sloping down a little towards the back in the modified mushroom style. It is trimmed around the rather high crown with large pink roses and about them is a graceful draping of mousseline-de-soie worked in eyelet embroidery effect.

Another stunning chapeau seen at an opening was a rather large shape of Copenhagen blue straw trimmed around the left side of the crown with a long ostrich plume that hung over the brim in the back. Across the front was one of the new broad bows made of inch and a half ribbon with two loops on each side of the knot. Then there was a large turban of soft brown straw, twisted and manipulated into artistic curves and folds. This was adorned on the left side with a soft bunch of ostrich plumes in dull shades of brown and tan that gave an indescribable softening touch to the face.

Jackets of Peculiar Cut.

A prominent feature of the spring fashions is the increasing number of suits with jackets in the butterfly style as it is called, or in other words with sleeves cut in one with the side portions of the garment. Every possible variation of this effect is shown, many models being distinctly tailored, the novel feature consisting of the sleeves and the arrangement of the side and back seams. In fact among the spring coats there seems to be literally no end to the peculiar cuts that have been brought out.

Stylish Costumes.

A novel spring suit is made of striped woolen with checked woolen in the same colors used as a trimming. Rough silks of all sorts of the usual and pongee varieties will be used to a great extent for costumes for the spring and summer. A very smart example of this style was in natural colored pongee made with a waist closing in surplice effect in the front and having sleeve caps in Japanese style cut in one with the body of the garment. This was trimmed with bands of the material embroidered in red and light green that came as a border on the fabric. The skirt was in one of the pretty triple styles.

Fashions for Children.

The large armhole and drooping shoulder effect are just as prominent in fashions for children this season as they are in adult modes. For spring wear many charming little frocks of mohair, panama, serge or flannel are displayed in the shops, also some what attractive little gingham dresses. These can be purchased in plaids, stripes, checks and plain colors. The skirts are in pleated effects, trimmed with folds, while the waists are in plain or fancy styles with lace trimmed yokes, or plain gingham trimmings that match the predominating color used in the plaid or check. The sleeves are either short or long, but the short kimono sleeve is extensively used. In more expensive frocks white is most in evidence and with these colored ribbons for sashes and trimmings are universal. Lucy Carter.

Field Syndicate, Station W.

Proceedings of Board of County Commissioners Tuesday.

The road engineer was instructed to advertise for bids to build Signific on Quantico road under the Shoemaker road law. This road will begin at the property of Stanford Colver and extend to old Rockwalkin mill and will be a first class macadam road. Work will begin as soon as material can be secured.

Mr. Clark, the road engineer, made report on the culvert just finished near Allen's farm: report was accepted and bills ordered paid.

Mr. Alfred Toedvine was before the board and asked for improvement of Union road. Referred to road engineer and Commissioner Johnson. Mr. Fryor reported that the grading of Snow Hill road was in progress, and asked for shells to cover the extension. Commissioner Cooper was ordered to purchase shells.

PITTSVILLE.

Mr. and Mrs. William E. Davis gave a party at their home last Saturday evening. Those present were: Miss Irma Wimbrow, Miss Moore, Mrs. Davis, Martha Bechtel, George Beaman, May Beaman, Bettie Beaman, Rozie Parsons, Ella Davis, Edith Baker, Mae Bowden, and Messrs. Chester Sheppard, Calvin Richard, James Davis, William Smith, Walter Smith, Ralph Parsons, James Brown, Willie Bringham, Lander Duke, Lloyd Dennis, Willie Parker, and Seabury Traitt.

Misses Irma Wimbrow, Miss Morris, Mrs. Davis and Mr. Chester Sheppard entertained the crowd with music. Refreshments were served at 10.30. All report a jolly time.

MOST INCREDIBLE MODESTY.

American Multi-Millionaire. Married a Jewess and Made no Fuss. America is the wonderland of the world. She has produced among other things, many remarkable men. But up to now her history holds no record of anything so rare as the unassuming, modest, retiring, silent multi-millionaire John F. Betz, of Philadelphia, who married a real German Countess ten years ago because he was in love with her, and who didn't mention it till the other day, because he did not like publicity.

Through the recording of a deed of transfer, by which a large Philadelphia brewery goes to one of the sons of Mr. Betz, it became known that he was married. Upon being covered by an inquisitive reporter he admitted that the marriage had taken place ten years ago, and that the present Mrs. Betz was a countess. The only explanation of his secrecy, according to the Philadelphia Inquirer, is that he is "habitually reticent concerning all things."

Mr. Betz met the Countess Anne Helena at a card party in Berlin. He was sixty, slightly deaf, lonely, enormously rich, and a widower. She was twenty-three, beautiful and alone in the world. They married, came to America to live, told the rest of the Betz family, and said nothing to the public. Mrs. Betz is described as a home-loving woman, who has no social inclinations that lead her beyond the home circle. After a while Miss Frances Betz, and then Johann, appeared in the home of the reticent Betzes, and in due time Frances became a school teacher and was sent to Temple College, but no one suspected that she was the daughter of the multi-millionaire and the countess. "We simply visit to be let alone," said Mrs. Betz sweetly, when the secret of the marriage became no longer a secret. "We are content to live quiet."

Modesty, even when it amounts to eccentricity, is a beautiful thing to behold. The average American millionaire is a bird much more closely resembling the peacock than the dove, and the American who marries a little usually grows blatant. It is satisfying to our national pride—often and grievously wounded by the shafts of derision sped by our cousins across the sea—to know that we have one multi-millionaire who was as modest as if he had owed money, and who did not seize a megalomaniac to blow it when he had made a distinguished match. The only fly in our ointment is the fact that Mr. Betz is merely a German-American, and perhaps it is because the German in him predominates that he is so radically different from other grossly rich Americans.—Louisville Courier-Journal.

"Peach" of a War Story.

Humor is not associated with the bloody days of Kentucky in revolutionary times. But a bit of fun of the gruesome kind is recited by Lynn Tew Sprague, in "Outing" in an article entitled, "General Isaac Shelby, First Governor of Kentucky."

"A patriot soldier named Culbertson, who was acting as a scout to Shelby's command, while gathering information before the action, came suddenly upon a British dragoon who was eating a peach."

"Both were startled by the meeting and the Britisher swallowed the fruit, stone and all, and reached for his gun. A shooting match ensued. The dragoon perished by the duel and was hastily buried by the scout in a shallow hole."

"Visiting the grave next year, Culbertson found a peach tree growing from it, and he boasted of living to enjoy fruit rooted in British soil, and fertilized by his adversary. The story we may add is Culbertson's very own."

Smokeless Coal.

A London inventor claims to have discovered a process for producing smokeless coal, apparently by distillation of coal at a low temperature. This, after filtration, would deposit a very brilliant substance, the heating properties of which are far greater than those of the original coal and which is absolutely free from smoke and dirt. The inventor claims that efforts to overcome the smoke plague have hitherto been unsuccessful because they have been made in the wrong direction, and that by the extracting of the smoke producing material in coal before being burned he has been successful in producing a smokeless coal. Sir W. L. Richmond, president of the Society for the Prevention of Smoke, has bought up this invention.

Shower Bath Apparatus.

Among recent inventions is a simple shower-bath attachment. It is an improvement over the hose and nozzle contrivance recently introduced, which is attached to the water fixture, the nozzle being arranged in the hand and the spray directed toward the body with the other hand. With the attachment shown here it is not necessary to hold the nozzle in the hand. Instead the spray is directed so as to strike a person in the bath tub, and any water passing beyond the body strikes the walls of the tub. The hands are thus not encumbered and are free to use for whatever purpose desired. A Chicago man is the inventor.

It requires a pound of candles to reduce as much light as 1,000 candles out of gas.

The Dreadnought's Peck. The British battleship Dreadnought proved herself remarkable in many ways on her experimental cruise. She can maintain an average speed of 17 knots without difficulty, and increase to full power with extraordinary promptitude.

One unexpected condition, however, has been revealed during her cruise in the Mediterranean. Being heavier than any war ship afloat, she retains her momentum longer. In carrying out evolutions, therefore, she is very sluggish.

CAUGHT BY THE GRIP-- RELEASED BY PE-RU-NA.

La Grippe Is Epidemic Catarrh.

THE disease now known as 'grip' used to be called 'influenza.' It very closely resembles a cold but is more 'tense' in its hold upon the system and produces more profound disturbances.

Grip is in reality epidemic catarrh. When it once begins it spreads over the country very rapidly.

People do not catch the grip from each other, but each one catches it from the atmosphere.

"Most Effective Medicine Ever Tried for La Grippe."

Robt. L. Madison, A. M., Principal of Oulowhee High School, Painter, N. C., is chairman of the Jackson County Board of Education.

He is a writer of occasional verse and has contributed to a number of leading papers and magazines, religious, educational and secular.

In speaking of Peru, Mr. Madison says: "I am hardly ever without Peru in my home. It is the most effective medicine that I have ever tried for la grippe."

"It also cured my wife of nasal catarrh. Her condition at one time was such that she could not at night breathe through her nostrils."

"In consequence, an inflamed condition of the throat was brought about, getting worse and worse and yielding to no remedy until Peru was tried."

Healthy Mucous Membranes. Those who are fortunate enough to have perfectly healthy mucous membranes ordinarily do not catch the grip.

The mucous membranes lining the nose, throat and lungs, when in a normal state, are an efficient barrier against the invasion of grip.

But, if there happens to be the slightest catarrhal derangement of the mucous membranes, then the victim becomes an easier prey to the grip.

This in part explains why some people get the grip, while others do not. The rational thing to do is to keep the system free from catarrh. In attempting to do this most people have found Peru to be invaluable.

Systemic Catarrh, the Result of La Grippe. For Present Good Health.

Mrs. Jennie W. Gilmore, Box 44, White Oak, Ind., formerly Housekeeper for Indiana Reform School for Boys, writes:

"Six years ago I had la grippe, which was followed by systemic catarrh."

"The only thing I used was Peru and Manlin, and I have been in better health the last three years than for years before."

"I give Peru all the credit for my good health."

Effects of La Grippe. Mr. Victor Patmeade, 328 Madison St., Topeka, Kan., member of Knights and Ladies of Security, writes:

"Twelve years ago I had a severe attack of la grippe and I never really recovered my health and strength—but grew weaker every year, until I was unable to work."

During an epidemic of grip Peru should be used. The doses recommended on the bottle are sufficient.

After the grip has once been acquired, Dr. Hartman recommends the use of Peru in teaspoonful doses every hour during the acute stage, after which the directions on the bottle should be followed.

Experience has shown that the people who use Peru as a remedy for grip generally recover sooner and are less liable to the distressing and long-continued after-effects of the grip.

When Peru has not been used during the course of the grip and the patient finds himself suffering from the after-effects of this disease, a course of Peru should be resorted to.

Suffered Twelve Years From After-Effects of La Grippe.

Mr. Victor Patmeade, 328 Madison St., Topeka, Kan., member of Knights and Ladies of Security, writes:

TO OUR FELLOW CITIZENS OF WORCESTER COUNTY.

Salisbury, Md., March 13d, 1908.

The undersigned citizens of Salisbury, Md., having been informed that the old story is being repeated in Worcester County which was used in Delaware, to wit, that the citizens of Salisbury are dissatisfied with the results of anti-liquor, and that there is more liquor now sold and consumed than under license, and that business has been materially injured. In justice to our Town and citizens, as well as in justice to our fellow citizens of Worcester County, and in the interest of sobriety and morality, we deem it proper to deny, in general and in detail, as briefly as we can, all those and like charges.

PERUNA EDITORIAL NO. 2.

Dr. Hartman has claimed for many years that Peruna is an EXCELLENT CATARRH REMEDY. Some of the doctor's critics have disputed the doctor's claim as to the efficacy of Peruna.

Since the ingredients of Peruna are no longer a secret, what do the medical authorities say concerning the remedies of which Peruna is composed? Take, for instance, the ingredient HYDRASTIS CANADENSIS, OR GOLDEN SEAL. The United States Dispensary says of this herb, "It is largely employed in the treatment of depraved mucous membranes, chronic rhinitis (nasal catarrh), atonic dyspepsia (catarrh of the stomach), chronic intestinal catarrh, catarrhal jaundice (catarrh of the liver), and in diseased mucous membranes of the pelvic organs. It is also recommended for the treatment of various forms of diseases peculiar to women."

Another ingredient of Peruna, CORYDALIS FORMOSA, is classed in the United States Dispensary as a tonic.

OEDEON SEEDS is another ingredient of Peruna, an excellent drug that has been very largely overlooked by the medical profession for the past fifty years. THE SEEDS ARE TO BE FOUND IN VERY FEW DRUG STORES. The United States Dispensary says of the action of oedon that it is used as a bitter tonic and in the treatment of dysentery, and in intermittent diseases as a SUBSTITUTE FOR QUININE.

OIL OF COPAIBA, another ingredient of Peruna, is classed by the United States Dispensary as a mild stimulant and diuretic. It acts on the stomach and intestinal tract. It acts as a stimulant on the genito-urinary membrane. Useful in chronic cystitis, chronic dysentery and diarrhoea, and some chronic diseases of the liver and kidneys.

These opinions as to the ingredients of Peruna are held by all writers on the subject, including Bartholow and Soudner.

OF HYDRASTIS, BARTHOLOW SAYS it is applicable to stomatitis (catarrh of the mucous surfaces of the mouth), follicular pharyngitis (catarrh of the pharynx), chronic coryza (catarrh of the head). This writer classifies hydrastis as a stomachic tonic, useful in atonic dyspepsia (chronic gastric catarrh), catarrh of the duodenum, catarrh of the gall duct, catarrh of the intestines, catarrh of the kidneys (chronic Bright's disease), catarrh of the bladder, and catarrh of other pelvic organs.

BARTHOLOW RECOMMENDS COPAIBA as an excellent remedy for chronic catarrh of the bladder, chronic bronchitis (catarrh of the bronchial tubes). BARTHOLOW STATES THAT CUREB, an ingredient of Peruna, promotes the appetite and digestion, increases the circulation of the blood. Useful in chronic nasal catarrh, follicular pharyngitis (catarrh of the pharynx), increasing the toricity of the mucous membranes of the throat. It also relieves hoarseness. Useful in atonic dyspepsia (catarrh of the stomach), and in chronic catarrh of the colon and rectum, catarrh of the bladder, prostaticorrhea, and chronic bronchial affections.

MILLSAUGH, MEDICINAL PLANTS, one of the most authoritative works on medicinal herbs in the English language, in commenting upon COLLINSIA CANADENSIS, says that it acts on the pneumogastric and vaso motor nerves. It increases the secretions of the mucous membranes in general. In the mountains of Virginia, Kentucky, Tennessee and Carolina, collinsia canadensis is considered a panacea for many disorders, including headache, colic, cramp, dropsy and indigestion. DR. SCUDDER regards it highly as a remedy in chronic diseases of the lungs, heart disease and asthma.

These citations ought to be sufficient to show to any candid mind that Peruna is a catarrh remedy. Surely, such herbal remedies, that command the enthusiastic confidence of the highest authorities obtainable, brought together in proper combination, ought to make a catarrh remedy of the highest efficacy. This is our claim, and we are able to substantiate this claim by ample quotations from the HIGHEST MEDICAL AUTHORITIES IN THE WORLD.

TEMPERANCE BILL

For Wicomico County Explained By Mr. Ellegood, Chairman Of The Committee.

At our request, Mr. Jas. E. Ellegood, Chairman of the Committee appointed at a public meeting to draft a Bill, has explained two of its sections most discussed and grossly misrepresented; these are the "Shipping" and the "Search and Seizure" clauses.

He says, "The former forbids any transportation Company within the State to accept and deliver to public places, but allows shipments from any place in or out of the State, to Doctors and Druggists for medicinal purposes, to Ministers of Church officials for sacramental purposes, and to private residences for its occupants only, the quantities being limited; that is, social, medicinal and religious purposes are all provided for, what more can be needed."

The Search and Seizure provision is as follows: "Upon the oath and information of a citizen that intoxicating liquors are being sold or kept for sale and describing the place, the Justice of the Peace or the Judge shall issue a search warrant to an officer. But it provides as follows: 'No warrant shall be issued to search a private residence, compiled as such, unless it is some part of it is used as a store, or shop, hotel, or boarding house, or unless such residence is a place of public resort; provided, if the Justice of the Peace or the Judge of the Court shall after an examination of the party making oath, or after taking such other proof as may be produced, deem it proper to issue such warrant, then the said Justice or the Judge may in their discretion issue such warrant for private residence.'"

This amply prevents the search of a private residence through spite. Indeed it is a safeguard that is not given to any citizen's residence against search warrant to find evidence of other crime, such as gambling, having stolen goods and the like; but some people get very squeamish about intoxicating liquors.

Now the purpose of these provisions are to prevent "Speak Easies," and to break them up, if there are any, as many of the opponents of Anti-Liquor are so fond of reporting in Worcester, and who so persistently circulated report of their existence, in the Delaware contest. These reports are industriously circulated to bring the law into disrepute, and it is quite natural that they do not want any provisions that will make the law more effective.

There have been no objections to the search of public places upon the production of proof to the Justice. Can any give a good reason why, upon sufficient proof, he should not be allowed to issue the warrant for the search for illicit whiskey as well as for the evidence of other crimes.

Politicians can become the rankest of radicals in party legislation and the very essence of conservatism on the liquor question.

LOCATING ADDRESSES.

County Treasurer Reminds Taxpayers Of Matters Relative To The Office.

The County Treasurer, Mr. Thomas Perry, has had considerable trouble in locating the address of some of the tax payers of this County. The law only makes it incumbent upon the Treasurer to send a notice to the last known address. When a person moves or changes his post office address he should notify the office, thus saving himself and the officers considerable trouble. There has also been some misunderstanding among those who have accounts against the County, in reference to payment on days that Commissioners are in session. Mr. Perry, the Treasurer, in speaking on these two subjects said:

"In reference to the mailing of tax notices: Many of the notices which the County Treasurer sent out to delinquent tax payers have been returned, unopened. This is the only method the Treasurer has of notifying persons of taxes due. He is unable to find out the proper post office address of some of these people as the rural delivery system has changed many of them. It is suggested that persons who are in arrears should not wait to receive statements, as requirements have been complied with when the notices have been mailed to the last known address."

As To Payment Of Claims. "The County Treasurer has had some difficulty in having the rate relative to the payment of accounts complied with. In January the Board asked that all accounts to be paid upon should be mailed to the Treasurer a few days in advance so they can be examined and passed upon officially before the Board meets and when they are passed the Treasurer will send checks for them immediately, less any taxes due by the party having the accounts. The Treasurer cannot pay bills on the days the Commissioners are in session."

NO PRIMARY LAW

Enacted At Annapolis, Yet Despite Demand Of The People. Local Option Measure And Roads.

The general Local Option Bill has occupied the attention of the House again this week. As expected the Committee on Temperance reported the bill unfavorably, and the fight was on to substitute the Bill for the report. This fight was led by Mr. Roscoe Jones, of Wicomico, who introduced and stood sponsor for the bill in the House. Mr. Robley D. Jones, of Worcester, and Mr. Stanford, of Somerset, also argued in favor of the bill. The vote resulted in a defeat of the measure by 56 to 43.

Mr. Jones, of Wicomico, was alone in his support of the bill from this county as Mr. Timmons and Mr. Willing both voted against the substituting of the bill for the unfavorable report. Worcester County delegation voted solidly in favor of the bill. Though Mr. Jones has lost his fight for the bill, yet he has made a good fight and he can have the satisfaction of knowing that his home County was with him in the fight, and that his course will be approved by at least seventy five per cent of the people that he is there to represent. Mr. Anderson, of the Anti-Saloon League is out in a statement that the bill is not dead and that it will be modified so as to meet some of the objections made by the legislators, and then introduced in the Senate. A big indignation meeting has been called by the League to be held in Baltimore City Sunday afternoon when the amendments will be discussed and the course of further action will be decided upon. Mr. Anderson has expressed the belief that the bill will pass this session by this means, and it is evident that the League means business.

Good Roads Bills.

Outside of the Local Option bill, and dividing with it the interest and attention of those whose eyes are on Annapolis, has been the question of good roads and the respective merits of the bills that have been introduced. Gov. Crothers came out in an interview favoring the idea of a paid commission, and other features of the Benson Bill, and advocating that it be amended so as to make two additional honorary members, and that the Geological Survey be called upon to help with the information at their command. No jurisdiction in the matters of road construction however is to be put in their hands. A great deal of opposition has developed to this bill on the grounds that it leaves too open a field for political manipulation—placing almost unlimited power in the hands of the commission, and making an open bid for the road to be built by political methods. It is not believed that the bill can pass the Senate in its present shape.

As to the merits of the bill, opinions are divided, some favoring a paid commission but of a much smaller body than at present, others feeling that the entire work should be placed in the hands of the Geological Survey as now constituted. What the people want is good roads and the knowledge that every dollar is made to count that way.

If the Benson Bill is likely to lead to the building up of the party or to the building up of an organization in the party that is not what the people are asking nor what they want. Paid or unpaid the commission should have all the possible safeguards thrown around it that it is possible to throw without tying their hands in such a shape as to make their work ineffective. The doing of this can be no reflection on the commission or Gov. Crothers who is to appoint same, but only precautionary measures that every business man would throw around an undertaking of his own involving the expenditure of a like amount of money—Results are what the people are looking for Roads and not politics.

The Primary Law.

Senator Gorman is to introduce a primary election law which is supposed to be for the purpose of carrying out the pledges of the party in this respect. The bill as outlined will be not much more than the reenactment of the present law on this subject, with some amendments, but as to principles it will be practically the same. The bill provides for the election of the candidates by the people direct or by the convention system as now in vogue. The understanding of the people as to the pledges of the party was that a Primary law would mean the nominating of the men for the various offices by direct vote. There is nothing in our present law that would prevent the State Central Committees in whose hands the conducting of the primaries is placed from holding a primary under the Crawford County system if they so desired, and as far as one can see this will be equally optimal under the proposed Primary law, to be introduced by Senator Gorman. As a matter of fact several counties in the State did so conduct their primaries last fall while the com-

UPHOLDS MORTGAGE TAX.

Court Of Appeals Decides Wicomico Act Constitutional. Of Large Interest To Our People.

The Court Appeals has decided that the mortgage tax law of Wicomico County is constitutional. The opinion of the court was delivered by Judge Briscoe, on Thursday. This is a suit that was brought by the County Commissioners against Walter B. Miller to test the act. As a number of persons were not paying the tax Mr. Miller, who had always met the tax hitherto, agreed with the County Board to enter into a friendly suit in order to test its validity and thus make it apply to all of none.

This decision means that under the present law taxes are amounting to about $8000, and will mean a continuous revenue to the county, as under the act all of the tax goes to the County.

Outside of the constitutionality of the act in question there has always been a difference of opinion as to the advisability of a mortgage tax. It being held by some that a tax of this kind only imposed additional burdens on our poor and unfortunate farmers who found it necessary to place a mortgage on their property. This may be done indirectly, although the law provides for a sworn statement that the party making the mortgage does not directly or indirectly pay the mortgage tax by the buying of a mortgage by the investor at a sufficient discount to reimburse himself for the tax he is compelled to pay, though it is not believed that there is much of this kind of work practiced in Wicomico County. It is also argued by those who doubt the wisdom of the law that if a man is willing to place a mortgage at six per cent and pay the taxes then he should and would be willing to loan the money to our farmers at six per cent rate, minus the tax—thus making it easier on those who have to raise money by this means. On the other hand some of those who are in favor of the law hold that if the tax was removed the people would not be able to borrow the money at any less rate than the one now paid, and therefore the tax does not come out of the mortgage.

If the money is to come out of the man making the loan then the burden of the tax is rightly placed, but if it comes out of the poor man who has to place the mortgage, then it is a grievous burden on a class that is little able to stand it and should be removed.

ducting of primaries under the Crawford County system, when so deemed wise by the Democratic State Central Committee, may be an improvement over the old system, yet it is open to objection that a law making it compulsory would not likely be. In the first place the same safeguard against fraud and corruption would not likely be thrown around it, and again by making changes in the form to suit conditions the whole process could be made a fraud and farce. A bill of the character of Mr. Gorman's would not be a redeeming of the pledges of the party but an attempt to fool them, with a bill that is not intended to carry out the spirit of the platform, but is intended only for a campaign argument that all pledges were redeemed.

Sen. Gorman's bill means nothing more or less than the changing our present custom and form of holding primaries to a statute—legislating them by a legislative enactment, without correcting their abuses—leaving the situation throughout the state in the same condition after its passage as before.

CARNIVAL AT RINK.

The Skating Auditorium Now The Amusement Centre Of The City. Great Lake Walk Tonight (Saturday), Polo Tuesday.

An unusual carnival is ahead for the Skating Rink goes. It will be under the auspices of the Young Men's Tennis Association for two weeks more.

Last Saturday was notable in having the largest number of people at the Rink this year, but there is a large available accommodation capacity and several hundred can be taken care of.

Tonight will probably find the largest crowd ever seen inside the Auditorium and many a skater will be on rollers. The special event will be a Lake Walk by about six couples fashionably and experienced colored folks, ladies and gents. This attraction has never before been produced at the Rink, nor in Salisbury for many years. The Lake Walk will not be on skates, but as in fashionable resorts, with appropriate costumes, and the festival accompaniments. The Salisbury Band will turn out and play during the evening at the Rink Auditorium. The affair will swing to the melody of the Georgia Camp-meeting. The Lake Walk will begin about nine o'clock.

Tuesday evening, March 17, the much talked of Polo game will take place at the Rink Auditorium beginning about 8:30. Much interest is centered in the outcome of this contest. In every game so far Boston has won out and it is now up to Salisbury to do something. Our polo players are confident that they can win. The public may expect a tight game with honors close and a good fighting show for Salisbury.

Bowling has been exceedingly popular this week and many ladies are participating. The Rink moving pictures that Mr. Shewell is furnishing are attracting favorable comment on all sides.

WILMINGTON CONFERENCE

In Be Invited To Hold Next Annual Session In Salisbury.

The Fourth Quarterly Conference of Asbury M. E. Church, after fully discussing the matter, by unanimous vote, invited the Wilmington Conference to hold its annual session here in 1909. It will have been fifteen years since the last annual gathering here, and our city and the church have grown rapidly during that time. We will give that important body a royal welcome, if it should decide to come.

The above Quarterly Conference was largely attended, and the affairs of the church were shown to be in a very prosperous condition. After settling the bills, the Treasurer reported a surplus of $160. All the benevolences are increased and the total for Missions of every kind is $775. The Martindale Chapter of the Wesleyan Brotherhood now numbers forty-four members and is already doing active service.

Making Good.

There is no way of making better than "Making Good" and Doctor Pierce's medicine will exemplify this, and their friends, after more than five decades of popularity, are numbered by the hundreds of thousands. "They have made good" and their friends have made good.

A good, honest, square-deal medicine of known composition is Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. It still enjoys an immense sale, while most of the preparations that have come into prominence in the earlier period of its popularity have "gone by the board" and are never heard of. There must be some reason for this long-time popularity and that is to be found in its superior merits. When once given a fair trial for weak stomach, or for liver and blood affections, its superior curative qualities are soon manifest; hence it has survived and grown in popular favor, while scores of less meritorious articles have suddenly flashed into vogue for a brief period and then been as soon forgotten.

For a torpid liver with its attendant indigestion, dyspepsia, headache, perhaps dizziness, faint breath, nasty coated tongue, with biliousness, loss of appetite, with distress after eating, nervousness and debility, nothing is so good as Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. It is a honest, square-deal medicine with all its ingredients printed on bottle-wrapper. No secret, no hocus-pocus humbug, therefore don't expect a substitute that the dealer may possibly make a little bigger profit. Insist on your right to have the real thing.

Don't buy Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription expecting it to prove a "cure-all." It is only advised for women's special ailments. It makes weak women strong and sick women well. Less advertised than some preparations sold for like purposes, its sterling curative virtues are well known in the position in the front ranks where it stood over two decades ago. As an invigorating tonic and strengthening nervine, it is unequalled. It is a "cure-all" for women who want "booster" for there is not a drop of alcohol in it.

Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets, the original Little Liver Pills, although the first pill of their kind in the market, still lead, and when once tried are ever afterwards in favor. Easy to take as candy—one to three a dose. Much imitated but never equaled.

Letter To S. P. Woodcock & Co. Salisbury, Md.

Dear Sir: A new word has come into use in paint; it is strong. Strong paint is paint as strong as paint can be. Weak paint is paint not so strong. If one paint takes 10 gallons to do a job and another 15, the 10 gallon paint is the stronger.

If one paint wears 10 years and another 5, the 10 year paint is the stronger. The strongest paint is the one that takes least gallons and wears longest. But do such differences exist? You and greater. Devos is the strongest of all. A job that takes 10 gallons Devos takes more than 20 of some. And a job of Devos wears several times as long as a job of some paints.

O. E. Perry, East 8th St., Erie, Pa., painted two houses same size; same time; with two paints, same price; took 3 gallons Devos to 4 of the other; and in three years Devos is the better looking job.

There are strong and weak paints; we all want the strongest; paint can't be too strong.

Yours truly,
F. W. DEVOS & Co.

Many theories have been advanced as to the exact origin of that very expensive jewel, the pearl. According to one theory, pearls result from secretions caused by the presence of some foreign object, such as a grain of sand within the shell of an oyster. It has, however, been proved that the finest pearls are not thus produced, but only partly concretions. Another common theory is that pearls are the result of disease in the oyster. M. Surtz, a very learned authority, states that the origin of pearls is to be ascribed to the presence of a parasite. The species of parasite differ with the species of the oyster, but this mode of origin is general with all a very fine pearl. Tarnished or "dead" pearls are sometimes restored to their original luster by causing a fowl to swallow them, the dissolvent action of the gastric juice in the fowl having the effect of restoring the pearl to its original luster. If you chance to be in New York you can go into the great Tiffany jewelry store and see single strands of pearls with tags on them on which are marked "$50,000," and they find purchasers even at this great price.—Sel.

Between the ages of fifteen and forty-five, the time when womanhood begins and motherhood ends, it is estimated that the aggregate term of woman's suffering is ten years. Ten years out of thirty! One third of the best part of a woman's life sacrificed! Think of the enormous loss of time. But time is not all that is lost. Those years of suffering steal the bloom from the cheeks, the brightness from the eyes, the fairness from the form. They write their record in many a crease and wrinkle. What a boon then to woman, is Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. It promotes regularity, dries up debilitating drains, heals ulceration, cures female weakness, and establishes the delicate womanly organs in vigorous and permanent health. No other medicine can do for woman what is done by Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription.

SAVE THIS ANYWAY.

Put it in Some Safe Place, For It May Come in Handy Some Day.

Here is a simple home made mixture as given by an eminent authority on Kidney diseases, who makes the statement in a New York daily newspaper, that it will relieve almost any case of Kidney trouble if taken before the stage of Bright's disease. He states that such symptoms as lame back, pain in the side, frequent desire to urinate, especially at night; painful and discolored urination, are readily overcome. Here is the recipe; try it:

Fluid Extract Dandelion, one half ounce; Compound Sarsaparilla, one ounce; Compound Syrup Sassafras, three ounces. Take a teaspoonful after each meal and at bedtime.

A well known druggist here in town is authority that these ingredients are all harmless and easily mixed at home by shaking well in a bottle. This mixture has a peculiar healing and soothing effect upon the entire Kidney and Urinary structures, and often overcomes the worst forms of Rheumatism in just a little while. This mixture is said to remove all blood disorders and cure the Rheumatism by forcing the kidneys to filter and strain from the blood and system all uric acid and foul, decomposed waste matter, which cause these afflictions. Try it if you aren't well. Save the prescription.

Aliens Take $110,000,000.

Up to the first of this year it is estimated that the out-going alien horde carried from this country $110,000,000, and by July 1, if the present stream is maintained, it will probably run to $125,000,000. The steamship authorities, who are pretty well versed in such computation, set $200 as the average amount for each of the 550,045 aliens, and it is agreed that this sum is not too large.

Unequaled As A Cure For Croup.

"Besides being an excellent remedy for colds and throat troubles, Chamberlain's Cough Remedy is unequaled as a cure for croup," says Harry Wilson, of Waynetown, Ind. When given as soon as the croupy cough appears, this remedy will prevent the attack. It is used successfully in many thousands of homes. For sale at Toulson's Drug Store.

ALL WERE PERFECTLY CURED BY CUTICURA

"My three children had eczema for five months. A little sore would appear on the head and seemed very itchy, increasing day after day. The baby took it very badly when the second boy took the disease and a few sores developed, then the third boy took it. For the first time I heard of Cuticura. I bought a box of Cuticura Remedies, and I thought I would write you about my case, and when I got the Cuticura Soap and Cuticura Ointment I bathed the children's heads with warm water and Cuticura Soap and then applied the Cuticura Ointment. In a few weeks they had improved, and when their heads were well you could see nothing of the sores. I should be very glad to let others know about the great Cuticura Remedies. ## WOMEN AND CONVENTIONS

The American and Continental Ideas Far Apart

SOME GERMAN VIEWS

Breaking Away From Accepted Boundaries Always Regarded As ance on Both Sides of the Ocean—Thoughts Suggested by New Year's Occurrences in New York.

The incoming of 1908 was marked in New York by one incident which the city at large and women in particular viewed with widely varying feelings. For it was on New Year's eve that for the first time certain restaurants permitted women to smoke in public.

For a long while we have been told that little by little, as our women traveled more extensively, or returned from residence abroad, we should find ways and manners of freer foreign social life creeping in to ever conservative American circles. When we shook their heads. Perilous consequences were stirred and uttered timely warnings. The ap- plet finger spoke of disapproval.

It is an interesting question, this matter of the tendency toward the breaking down of inherited traditions and long honored conventions. Who is ready to say that they are conventions more honored in the breach than the observance? On the whole it is possible to affirm definitely what attitude the women who stand for common sense and high ideals are taking to-day toward many new ideas imported from foreign shores?

Whatever I say and whatever I do Aunt Tabitha'll say that she never did so.

And so one is forced to conclude, like the same perplexed girl, "What a wonder Aunt Tabitha's aunt must have been, and her great-aunt!" Un- qualified disapproval of everything novel was the dictum of generations some. "We never did so," settled any vexatious question, and effectually blocked the way to changes in social forms.

Impossible as it is, to arrive at re- sults that can be tabulated after the fashion of modern psychology charts. It is interesting to watch, the Amer- ican woman in any situation which involves the breaking down of bar- riers.

Two women, after six weeks of England—cathedral towns and the far- district principally—found themselves the guest of an artist and his wife, themselves Americans, at an outdoor cafe on the Boulevard des Capucines. Interesting looking artists, students from all quarters of the globe, bearded Russians, swarthy Poles, slim Japanese, and globe-trot- ting Americans, were the patrons. There was an absence of restraint, a freedom of camaraderie, the manners and tone of the Latin quarter in evi- dence on every hand.

There would have been a time when the same type of American woman would have left hastily, for these two represented the conserva- tive element of modern femininity. The women of the present, however, watched with a critical interest, lis- tened to certain stories relative to those at the tables were told by their host and hostess, and left after three hours of observation with another pic- ture to add to their rapidly growing gallery of European scenes. The main feature evident in their pres- ence, was willingness to observe, an intelligent appreciation of differ- ences of conduct, but no yielding of their own ideas of propriety.

On a comment, made after two years' residence in Germany, by a keen- sighted American girl, was: "The majority of German women I knew were of the 'refra' type. They ranged socially from professors' wives to the daughters of lesser of- ficials or girls of the army circles. To those girls I was the unconventional American of whom they had read. I attended theatres and dances unchap- eroned; I walked on the streets or lunched at the restaurants with men friends, or, worse still, went alone to concerts."

Between the girls and women, with all their attention devoted to the Kaiser's four K's, and the women who were not admitted to desirable circles there seemed to be no mean. You were one or the other. The ex- istence of a well defined class of women, who were not primarily house- wives, nor the antithesis of these, was not even recognized.

I left to their own devices, the av- erage woman does not find conven- tions really irksome. Freedom to fol- low her own sweet will in matters social is not the most sought-after thing. In the main, woman is a convention being. She loves to do the correct thing, the thing counten- anced by the majority, the thing to be defended on the score of respect- able ancestry. When old-time ideas are laid aside, there has been some influence at work, to the will of which she bows.

Wires in the Sudan.

Telegraphic communication is be- ing rapidly opened up along the Su- dan part of the "Cape-to-Cairo" steamer railway route. Khartoum has di- rect connection with Egypt. There are now more than 4,000 miles of telegraph working wires in the Su- dan, and last year more than 230,000 private telegrams were sent over them.

Rapid changes of temperature are hard on the toughest constitution.

The conductor passing from the heated inside of a trolley car to the icy temperature of the platform—the canvasser spending an hour or so in a heated building and then walking against a biting wind—know the difficulty of avoiding cold.

Scott's Emulsion strengthens the body so that it can better withstand the danger of cold from changes of temperature.

It will help you to avoid taking cold.

Scheme to Prevent Hogs From "Hogging" the Swill.

J. G. T. Tippecanoe Co., Ind., furnishes us with a sketch of his plan of building individual troughs for feeding hogs.

The general plan is so clearly brought out in the accompanying illustration that very little additional description is necessary. The ordinary V-shaped trough is used, with a platform behind and stout 12 or 15-inch planks in front.

Planks 6 feet long are halved diagonally and used for partitions and

bottom. Each of these planks is cut as shown in the illustration, so that it will set down over the V-shaped trough and is then nailed to the platform in the rear.

A swill chute is built in the middle opening, as illustrated. The swill flows into the middle trough and then flows to each of the stalls as in any ordinary hog trough.

Our correspondent says this plan is a satisfactory one for any farmer who wishes to bar off his hog trough so that each animal has an equal chance with every other one.

Cod Liver Oil for Calves.

Experiments recently made in Wisconsin in the use of cod liver oil for calves, as a substitute for whole milk, in raising tend to confirm the results hitherto obtained, namely that calves to which whole milk is fed "do best," although the system of feeding cod liver oil is decidedly the more economical. The calves were given whole milk for the first six weeks of their existence.

They were then divided into two lots. One lot was given the same food before, namely whole milk; the other being given an increasing quantity of separated milk and cod liver oil, while the whole milk was continued. At the latter period the oil which was supplied reached a weight of two ounces per day per animal, and the separated milk amounted to ten pints, which was increased to 12 pints a month later, without any extra oil, though the other lot had the same quantity of whole milk as before. Without going fully into details, the whole milk was valued at 16 cents per gallon; therefore the daily cost of each of the calves works out about 24 cents.
When the maximum allowance of milk was given. If the separated milk is valued at four cents per gallon, the milk for the calves fed with it would be six cents per head per day, to which has to be added the cost of the cod liver oil, bringing it up to nine cents per day. The difference in the value of the calves was considerably in favor of the cod liver oil fed ones, after the cost of the feeding material is taken into account. It is very rightly pointed out by the experimentalists that the amount of fat present in the whole milk (1 1/2 gallons) and in the same quantity of separated milk, plus, in the latter case, two ounces of cod liver oil, was about the same. It therefore, follows that the cod liver oil calves might continue to get their two ounces of oil daily for about four months, the period during which the other lot received whole milk.
Then, if we assume that whole milk contains three per cent of butter fat then in 1 1/2 gallons, a calf gets something like 7 1/2 lbs. of fat daily, which is really four times the amount of fat supplied to a calf getting 1 1/2 gallons of separated milk and two ounces of cod liver oil. In order to determine, if possible, whether the oil might, with advantage, be continued after weaning, in these calves that were accustomed to it, a further experiment was conducted, which went to prove that the oil could be so given and the animals to which it was so given, rapidly increased in weight all they slightly exceeded those to which whole milk alone had been given through the same period.

When to Fatten Hogs.

The time to fatten hogs is when the season is mild and cool, and the food will then be required less than when warm than after winter settles. The largest profits from hogs is secured when the cost is reduced by warm and dry quarters and regular feeding. Corn is the best feed, but the great gain is made when a variety of food is given.

When the herring fishery opens is at its height something like 5,000 or 6,000 miles of nets are set along by in the North Sea.

THE PRIMARY LAW AND DISFRANCHISEMENT BILL

The legislative session of the legislature is growing to a close, and it now looks as though the pledge of the Democratic party made in its platform, as to the giving of a good Primary Election Law to the people of the state, will not be fulfilled.

Although the time is growing short and only a few more days will intervene before the final adjournment, yet if our Democratic members want to fulfill their promise, or the promise made by their party and reiterated and emphasized by themselves on the stump, there is yet time to pass one that will meet with the approval of the people. Outside of the benefits, that they so largely and eloquently dwell on during the campaign last fall there is a practical side for them to consider as well—the effect on the Disfranchising Bill of their failure to redeem their pledges.

The abuses of the present system of conventions controlled in many cases by politicians, who are only interested in promoting their own interests—either politically—or in some cases financially as well, have been often pointed out, and the people have demanded that a change be made. To meet this demand on the part of the people the Democratic party made a pledge in its platform, that if the people were good enough to trust them, they would see to it that a proper reform was made. The people trusted and elected the party to power and it is their duty to see that this trust was not misplaced.

The party has passed a bill whose whole intent is to disfranchise the negro. Whatever may be the right or wrong of that question, the practical effect of the ratification of this proposed amendment to our constitution, will be to strongly entrench the Democratic party in power in this state, for a time at least.

Mary, especially in Baltimore City, who are sincerely in sympathy with the idea of disfranchising the colored voter, will think gravely and deeply over the subject of putting the state under the domination of one party unless there are some safeguards thrown around it.

The good old political days when German and Irish held full sway in Maryland are of too recent a date to be forgotten, and a repetition will not be desired in any section thereof.

One of the greatest safeguards in the opinion of many who have studied the subject, is a fair Primary law that will allow the candidates for the various offices in the state to be nominated by the direct vote of the rank and file of the party. In our southern states, where a disfranchising bill has been passed, this system of primaries is being used, and while it is of course, like every thing else is abused, yet a southern boss is more rare, and indeed hard to find, in comparison with some of our northern convention ridden states.

It means that a change of opinion must be made by over 17,000 voters.

While it is undoubtedly true, that the form of the other bill was objectionable to a large number of voters, it is almost safe to say that the cause of this objection came from those who are, what are usually termed independent in politics, and it is from this class of people that the present disfranchisement bill is to be passed, if at all. All those who are known as strong party men, especially in the counties, voted for the amendment before, and the organization, so called, that was supposed to have pulled its tail vote.

Wicomico County for instance gave a majority for the amendment, which is not far from the county strength on the subject.

One mistake has been made before in this question; let not another be made and, if one is made then let it be shown fairly and squarely to the shoulders of those to whom it belongs—those who ignore party lines and promises, and throw into the party and its policies.

Let there be a primary election, and let it be fair and just, will make it harder to carry the bill and may cause its defeat.

WORCESTER TEMPERANCE FIGHT

The fight that is now going on in our sister county of Worcester, is creating a great deal of interest throughout our own County. The fight that we here have recently passed through, and the false tales of financial ruin, harder drinking through speakeasies, and moral degeneration that were prophesied, if the saloons were closed in Wicomico County, makes our citizens feel certain that the same old stock in trade is being presented to the people in Worcester in order to influence them to keep the saloon open. Added to these will be the cry of higher taxes, poorer schools and almost poorer everything that is worth having. The whiskey men have these arguments down pat, and attempt to get people who would normally be opposed to the traffic to accept it from a practical business standpoint, and a necessary evil. We have been through it all, and we are not ruined financially by its stoppage, our drinking through speakeasies amounts to practically nothing at all, our morals have not degenerated by the closing of the saloons, but are very much improved thereby; our taxes are not higher and our schools are run fully as well, and with as much money at their disposal as when they were getting license fees. After the vote is over in Worcester, for if appearances mean anything, it is going dry, they will have the same conditions there as exist here, and it will greatly surprise some of the people who are now fighting so hard to keep whiskey in the county, to hear themselves say, we would not have it back for anything. Yet that is what has happened here, and some of the most pronounced whiskey men will so state to whoever asks them.

FIRE PROTECTION.

Provisions Being Made in Salisbury's Public Places for Greater Safety. A Move in Right Direction.

The horrible accident at North Collinwood, a suburb of Cleveland, Ohio, in which so many school children lost their lives, has resulted in an inspection of our school and other public places, by Chas. E. Herring, the Deputy State Fire Marshal. This inspection of our schools and other places resulted in an order for additional means of escape being ordered to be provided in the next thirty days. This is a precaution badly needed in Salisbury, and parents and frequenters of our places of amusement and hotels will welcome the provision of additional means of safety.

The buildings inspected and ordered to be provided with fire escapes and extra means of exits were The Uman's Opera House, The Peninsula Hotel, The Davis House, The Maryland Hotel, The Shurt Factory, The Wicomico High School and the Intermediate department on Bell Street. These parties received official notices and are preparing to make the required changes within the time specified. While a fire in any of these places is not likely to occur, and the probabilities are that they never will occur as a time to do serious damage, yet the precautionary measure for safety in case they should ought to be taken. The sad story of the burning of the school children, when the parent of one child after trying in vain to pull her little one out, gave up in despair, holding the little one's hands, even brushing the flames off her hair when they reached it—until driven away by the heat, and who was rewarded by a "Thank you, Mama!" from the suffering child, is enough to strike fear and sorrow in any parent's heart, and the thought that any child might be placed in a like position by the neglect to take proper precautionary measures, is a dreadful one and every parent in this city should be given every assurance that everything possible to prevent a like disaster here has been done.—Expense is nothing; the people will bear it without a murmur. It is believed that the improvements ordered will make a like occurrence here an impossibility.

THE ISSUE BEFORE

The Voters Of Our Neighboring County. Determined To Get Out Of Run Business.

Again that old egg to the mare's nest, we thought it too stale even for the saloons people to handle with safety; but they are throwing it again. It is the poor drug-store and that panacea of life, the essence of lemon, to which we allude. Whiskey has inspired some mendacious pen to write an epitaph to the drug store, and publish it in the Baltimore Sun; but strange to say, the bar room crowd were speaking of it, and proclaiming it a cyclone in advance of the issue going to press. We had thought, even the least informed knew that the drug store business had a license of its own, naming what they could sell just as the merchants and saloons have others applicable to their business. The Local Option bill to be voted upon is just as liberal to drug stores as the liquor license which controls the sale of alcoholic liquors, so if they are satisfactory because of the saloon license, they will be equally satisfactory under the Local Option prohibition of alcoholic beverages because neither treats of the drug store in any way. We have been making our sister Counties come to Worcester to buy, see their dry goods; but their rum, and if the essence of lemon is needed, we could go to them for an occasional vial, if it could not be bought at home. We must try to rest in the overwhelming appetite for essence of lemon, even if that calamity should confront us. We are determined to get out of the rum business, even if it does bust bell wide open and the flavor of the demon shall forever be banished from the land. Look at the people, 400 marching, Mothers and children with banners and songs, and a thousand men standing in the streets of Berlin last Saturday for two hours to hear the reasons why the saloon must go, a boys election that had but two wet voters, and one of these was purchased and then in Drirkon's Hall next day an audience of 600.

There were fifty speakers in other parts of the County with an outpouring of the people, the like of which was never seen before. Show the people what is right and they will do it, and everybody now has his eyes open to the atrocities traceable to the saloon, except those few who have been bewitched by the serpent and have the chains of destruction fastened upon them.

Keep your heads and use your own brains: for the saloon treatment is as bad for judgement and reason as the yams emanating from their votaries are to the elucidation of truth. Don't let them divert you from the issue, there is but one question to be voted upon and it is in no sense the drug store, but is simply whether we shall continue to grant liquor licenses.

The clauses of the bill that will be upon the ballots show its whole intent and are a summary of the whole bill, viz: "Against the sale of intoxicating liquors" and "For the sale of intoxicating liquors."

Robert J. Shewell, Pres. of the Anti-Saloon League of Worcester County.

New Lodge Organized.

The following officers were elected by the local chapter of the Order of Eastern Star which was instituted here last week: Worthy Matron, Mrs. R. D. Grier; Patron, Rev. W. S. Phillips; Associate Worthy Matron, Mrs. O. E. Harper; Conductress, Mrs. W. U. Pelt; Associate Conductress, Mrs. E. A. Tisdale; Secretary, Mrs. J. McF. Dink; Treasurer, Mrs. S. A. Gahan. The following were elected assistant officers: Mrs. F. P. Adkins, Mrs. Wilmer Gullett, Mrs. W. S. Gedy, Mrs. H. Tall and Mr. Wm. M. Day. The other charter members of the organization are Mrs. Graham Gandy, Misses Nance Gedy, Ola Day, Maine Gillie, Carrie Peters, Mrs. E. O. Fulton, Mrs. Mary M. North, of Snow Hill, and Mr. W. U. Folk.

The membership is composed entirely of wives and daughters of Masons, and a few members of the Masonic Order. A banquet was given at the Masonic Hall immediately after the initiations in the order.

School Matters At White Haven.

The citizens of White Haven are asking for greater accommodations in their school rooms, and also that higher grades be added to their course. They are asking for the change to be made this summer, and a delegation was before the School Board this week, giving the situation there and showing that improvements in both respects were very much needed. The people are asking for the grade to be raised to the 9th and 10th, instead of as at present reaching only the 7th. Those in the delegation were: Sheriff W. W. Larmore, G. M. Catlin, L. J. Dashiell, W. H. Dolbey, J. F. Bloodsworth, Zack Travers, F. L. Denison, L. W. Holliday.

Fatal Accident.

Mr. Lee Disharoon, formerly of Salisbury, but recently employed at the Maryland Hospital of Insane was killed by a fall down a flight of stairs Thursday night. He was standing at the head of the stairs and it is supposed accidentally stepped backward, falling down the flight striking his head on the last step. He was rendered unconscious and did not recover. He was a son of Mr. Asbury Disharoon, at Allen.

FRUITLAND CIRCUIT

In The Battle. Part in Wicomico, Part in Worcester. Mostly Dry. Progress.

While two of our churches, Fruitland and Bloom, which are in Wicomico County, are on the "Victory Side," St. Luke's and Zion are in Worcester County, the only county south of New Castle, Del., that gives the Rum Rule half a chance for his Der. The captain of our host has visited these churches and given the signal to go up and possess the goodly land. They are doing so. Last Sunday 17 men and women stood by the altar and were received in full membership at St. Luke's Church, renewing their covenant to renounce the devil with all his works and to advance the Redeemer's kingdom. The church was crowded. The Hon. Wm. G. Kerbin, Esq. at law, of Snow Hill, and Rev. H. S. Dulany and his brother, John H. Dulany, addressed the people. Mr. Kerbin asked those who are going to vote Worcester County dry on the 31st day of March to stand up. Men stood, but the dear women sat still until he said every one that would vote it dry if they could stand. Then nearly everybody stood up. Then he asked those that intended to vote it wet, to stand and no one stood; so it looked as if the children of Israel are scores dry abed, and that Pharaoh and his host are drowned. The choir from Fruitland which includes two brothers and a sister of the Messiahs were in the front and gave such music that only a double quick forward march would do at all. The Rev. Alfred Smith is to drill the forces at St. Luke's Church tonight and at Zion tomorrow night; and on Saturday, March 31st, you may listen for the falling of the walls of Jericho and the echoes of rejoicing from the smallest child that has been crying for bread, to the oldest parents who have been praying for the deliverance of their children from the dens of destruction to their homes of safety and love. St. Luke's Church has paid 33½ per cent. more on pastor's salary this year than was appointed last year and has made good scores in advance on all lines. The circuit has paid eight times as much for improvements on churches and parsonage this year as it did last year and about 33½ per cent. more on Missions and other benevolences this year than last. Two hundred and six persons have professed faith in the saving power of Jesus and have given their names to be enrolled with the people of God.

Yours truly,
W. S. H. Williams.

The Cause of Many

Sudden Deaths.

There is a disease prevailing in this country most dangerous because of its deceptive nature. Many sudden deaths are caused by it—heart disease, pneumonia, heart failure, apoplexy are often the result of kidney disease. If kidney trouble is allowed to advance the kidney-poisoned blood will attack the vital organs, causing catarrh of the bladder, or the kidneys themselves break down and waste away cell by cell. Bladder troubles almost always result from a derangement of the kidneys and a cure is obtained quickest by a proper treatment of the kidneys. If you are feeling badly you can make no mistake by taking Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, the great kidney, liver and bladder remedy. It corrects inability to hold urine and scalding pain in passing it, and overcomes that unpleasant necessity of being compelled to go often through the day, and to get up many times during the night. The mild and the extraordinary effect of Swamp-Root is soon realized. It stands the highest for its wonderful cures of the most distressing cases. Swamp-Root is pleasant to take and is sold by all druggists in fifty-cent and one-dollar size bottles. You may have a sample bottle of this wonderful new discovery and a book that tells all about it, both sent free by mail. Address, Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y. When writing mention reading this generous offer in this paper. Don't make any mistake, but remember the name, Swamp-Root, Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, and the address, Binghamton, N. Y., on every bottle.

STEPHEN OTWAY'S SILENCE

Pin! The man working away for dear life in the fading twilight that June evening wrote the magic word, lay down his pen and looked about him for the first time in two solid hours. At last his wonderful symphony was written. Yes; not another note would he add, not a single bar revise; it should go before the judges in that big contest he was striving might and main to win just as it lay there—the crown of his life's toil, the best that was in him, the fair flower of his achievement that was surely destined to bring fame and fortune, maybe something still more precious in its train.

His chance, the golden opportunity of a lifetime! "Two hundred guineas and a gold medal for the best symphony by a British composer." All unexpectedly it had fallen into his glowing thoughts. Once let him win that, and everything was simplified. Old Farley Almsworth, most generous of benefactors, would laugh now at the bare idea of calling him son-in-law; such a possibility as the lad he had befriended daring to fall in love with his own daughter had never entered the head of the proud, music-loving old squire, or he would have taken speedy means to nip the romance in the bud. But afterward—

It seemed to Stephen Otway that all the face of Nature would be changed at that one stroke. Rising from the table at which he had been working, he went to the piano and began to play. The man who had softly opened the door and stepped inside halted involuntarily at the sound of that strange, sweet melody.

"Steve, you miracle, what's that? Not—the symphony? You don't mean it! Why, man, it's wonderful! no one else can ever hope to win!"

"You think so?" He had broken off abruptly. "I do not know what to think. Sometimes I am full of confidence; at others—Anyhow, it's finished; I am fagged out—want rest. I have even thought of going down home for a day or two to—"

"Yes; not a bad idea, old chap; it would do you good without a doubt. That hesitating pause—"I only wish mine had half such a chance! I say Steve, talking of home—"

"Yes!" Stephen Otway looked reproachfully; the change of tone was not to be mistaken.

"I—oh, look here, how am I to say it! The fact is, I've been a fool and got into a mess again. Will you lend me some money till my next check comes? I must have fifty pounds by to-morrow or else it's ruin, and I daren't go to the dear old governor again. It would break his heart."

"Fifty pounds?"

"Yes—yes, I know I've had a run of bad luck lately, but I'd no idea it was so much until to-day. I've scraped up seven from somewhere. Steve, you're my only hope. See me through this once, and I promise never to touch a card again as long as I live—yes, honor bright!"

"Fifty pounds!" Stephen Otway's face grew gray as he turned away. This was not the first time that Clive Almsworth had come to borrow from him. He paused a while before replying.

"Look here, Clive; I am a poor man as you know. I do not possess fifty pound in all the world, and if I lend you what I have it will be on condition only—that you never write me a card or sign, again. What guarantee can you give me?"

"Guarantee!" The other stared uncomprehendingly. "What the dickens are you hinting at, Otway? Have I not just given you my word?"

"Yes—for the third time! Twice before I have helped you out of a dollar's difficulty on similar terms. I have no use in going on like this—no reality."

"I see!" The sneer was obvious. "You do not mind my father spending a hundred pounds on you, and you come here to study, and all the rest of it, because he feared he was a spark of talent somewhere in you, but when it comes to lending me a fifty ton or twenty you hesitate? I will give you my word, your price, or perhaps you have forgotten?"

"I have forgotten nothing." That white set face would have moved any other man to pity, it did not shame Stephen Otway, who shall be sorry some day to have refused to help him. "I will make you regret it! You may think I've had my eyes closed lately, but you're mistaken. All that love-making with Sybil—oh, I know how to use your little game!"

"There it will do, Clive! No more, please. You are saying things that I will regret. If I thought it really meant them I too, should shudder. Come and see me some other time. We will talk over the matter when you are more composed."

"Not!" He had drawn himself a part, stood there, handsome and defiant, with a little smile on his cheek. "No, we will not! It's now or never—yes or no?" The other, half-impatient shrug, incoherent, beyond measure, he waited for no more. "Very well! That ends it, remember it's your own doing. Good night—and good-by!"

Yes; that was it. "Goodnight—and good-by!" Full five minutes after he had rung out of the room the elder man stood there in the gathering darkness trying to realize, to make himself believe that he had really gone. Clive could surely never mean it—never!

He sprang back to the carefully written sheets of manuscript. Just one more look to make sure that he had copied them correctly, then he would cross them and put them away safely till morning. All he could carry them with his own hands to the big college where their fate was to be decided. Too precious to be trusted to the post.

In the morning there was no letter. The hours passed, with no Clive, and he grew sadder, told himself that he had been harsh and ungenerous. In the afternoon, anxious to purchase a reconciliation at any price he went to the bank, withdrew his little stock of money—earned by playing at occasional concerts—and sent five £5 notes, with a few hasty words, to Clive's address. By night they were back at his own, with no word at all.

He had matched up hat and gloves, and was rushing round to Clive's lodgings at top speed.

"Mr. Almsworth," he panted, as he doorknocked on his knock. "Gone out!" the woman of the house had snapped, the sweeping sounds of the violin that came from the room above giving her words the life even as she spoke; and it was straightway closed in his face. Small wonder that afterward there was only silence, and a breath that widened with the days.

A time of strenuous work and hard waiting. None but the man himself could ever know the bitterness of those dragging weeks, the hopes of one day that were fears the next. When the fateful day had dawned at last his restlessness knew no restraint. The hours literally crawled toward night. He was in the crowd that thronged the big concert hall. To-night would either make or mar him, a few more minutes would decide.

To one man in that vast audience it seemed as if his heart had ceased to beat. Just a year since the hapless girl had looked up at him for that one instant of time with the strange, new, wonderful light in her eyes, and promised to wait. All dreams for the future, shattered irretrievably, and—irony of fate—it was Clive Almsworth who had beaten him!

"And then—Was it real, or only a trick of fancy, the plaything of his over-wrought imagination? That opening phrase, those first few bars of melody, that had floated softly across the waiting hall! Never Clive Almsworth's—never any one's but his own! There was some mistake, a ghastly blunder in the name, or else—"

Dazed, stunned, unable for a moment to realize the bitter truth, he sat there listening to the smooth andante, the tripping allegretto, that rushing, rhythmic scale with the world's chromatic scale passages for the violins—his own, every note! The priceless symphony on which he had spent so many hours—built so many hopes!

A dead, dead truth, that storm of cheers that broke from the audience at its close, all and all, and woodwork, those repeated cries of "Encore! Encore!" meant thing he knew he was outside in the cool fresh air, trying to think it all out—that bitter blindness, sense of treachery, dimming all else in his brain. What did it mean—that could it mean—save one thing? Stolen!

Three solid hours he tramped the streets, heaving out that grim tragedy of a lifetime, unforgettable, unthinkable, that the man who had been his friend, could have carried off his prize so far!

And then—He had reached his lodgings, gone up the creaky stairs with the heavy shuffling tread of one who is weary, and—dependently and thoroughly—the door of his room, and—

"Clive!"

That moment would surely live forever in his memory. There they stood a full minute, facing one another, neither seeking to break the staring silence. Then—

"Stephen, you were there! You heard?"

"Yes; I heard!" A world of bitter accusation in the tone. His lips had framed invective hot and angry; but he beat the impulse back and waited to hear more.

"I was mad—out of my senses! It was that night you refused to lend me the money. You had showed me the sheets and told me they were finished, and I saw the chance to be revenged. I came back here after you had gone out. They were in that drawer, made up into a parcel and addressed; and I took them out, put blank ones in their place—"

"You stole them!"

"Yes. I can never ask you to forgive me, never forgive myself. Ever since then I have lived in torture, hoping that some other might be so successful; but you see! Now my cup of bitterness is full; I am punished tenfold. My father—Here, look! I—I can't say it!"

A telegram had snatched from his hand. Otway picked it up mechanically, and read: "Father dangerously ill; come at once—Sybil."

Next moment he had faced back sharply.

"Well."

"I can't go, Stephen! I—I daren't now!" It was almost a scream. The dear old governor had set his heart on my winning this thing; and I couldn't—couldn't tell him—"The voice broke off into a convulsive sob; the man was shaking like an aspen. Otway looked at him pityingly; then crossed the room and began to finger a railway time table.

"Twelve fifteen from Euston!" He pulled out his watch; stood in thought a moment. "I'll go," he said, curtly. "You can stay here if you like!"

"You will? Heaven bless you for that, Stephen!" said the other, fervently. "You're a good fellow; I've ten times more than I deserve. Send word how—how things are going, won't you?"

Five minutes later Stephen Otway caught himself wondering for the second time that night if the whole of it was not a dream. No dream, however that midnight journey into Warwickshire; no dream the white-faced girl who crept softly down stairs in the early dawn to greet him, the startled question starting from her eyes before ever she spoke a word.

"Stephen! But where is Clive? He will be too late!" * * * His mumbled falsehood, and then: "Yes; very ill indeed! A sudden heart attack; the doctor has been with him half the night. You will not mind if I go back?"

Later she came to him again. He found himself following obediently up the stairs into the darkened room where old Farley Almsworth lay, very still and very feeble.

"Stephen, my boy, how are you?" The words were hard to catch; all but indistinct. "Clive is coming soon, they tell me! I want to see the lad once more, to tell him I am proud—he is all proud. He won the medal, Stephen, eh? Couldn't he but win it, could he?"

The wrinkled hand was quivering feebly in his own. Bending down to listen, Stephen Otway remembered the debt of gratitude he owed the old man lying there. He glanced across at the girl standing by the window.

"Yes, he won it," he said quietly. Later, walking away from that house with closed shutters and the drawn blinds, it seemed to him that either the world had grown different or he very old and weary. Nothing mattered now; all the days would be alike—a miserable, haunting drudgery. He recollected reaching Euston and walking to his lodgings; but nothing more was clear. His brain rocked stupidly; there was a dull ache, and a sense of heaviness that bore him steadily down—down—down at last there came a final blank.

Ten whole days that grim, snap of feverish, unconsciousness, remained; and life and death were playthings 'twixt which he hovered like a fretful child, uncertain which to choose. When the dark cloud lifted he knew that he was lying in bed; there was a little table holding medicines by his side. The dark-robed figure seated by the window, heard him move; it struck him that the figure was familiar; what could Sybil be doing here? He said her name, half expecting the vision to dissolve.

"Stephen! Oh, how glad I am!" She came to him with joy shining bravely in her face. "There, don't try to talk; lie still and get quite strong and well. I know everything—all the miserable story. Clive has told me what you have been."

"Afterwards? Nay, the story is too true," Stephen Otway and his wife are happy, and success has come to him in plenty since then.—W. Strutton Smith.

Five, Classes of Mules. Many persons do not know what constitutes the first class of mules, mules, known as cotton mules, lumber mules, railroad mules, sugar mules, and miners. Cotton mules are, most numerous. They range from 12 to 16 hands high, and may be various builds so long as they are smooth. They sell at $75 to $165 apiece.

Lumber mules are large, heavy bodied and rugged for use in big lumber camps. Their price ranges up to $250. The railroad mules are similar but need not have so much weight. They are $125 to $250 apiece. They are used in grading and hauling. Sugar mules are lighter. They must be smooth, with small head and neck and small bones. Their price is from $45 to $110.

Farm mules are the mules rejected from the other classes. They are used near steamboats and docks for the heavy work. The miners are the hardest class to supply. They must be either a dark bay or black color. White and sorrel mules are never used. Where the mines have coal regions especially, they are white mules resembling a ghost, and frighten the other mules beyond control.

The government buys all classes of Missouri mules, but never a cheap one, and the examination of mules for the public service is rigid.

A portrait of King Charles Stuart, by Dobson, which, at a sale in 1822, failed to realize more than $27.50, was sold by auction in London recently for $250.

THE PRIMARY LAW AND DISFRANCHISEMENT BILL

The legislative session of the legislature is growing to a close, and it now looks as though the pledge of the Democratic party made in its platform, as to the giving of a good Primary Election Law to the people of the state, will not be fulfilled.

Although the time is growing short and only a few more days will intervene before the final adjournment, yet if our Democratic members want to fulfill their promise, or the promise made by their party and reiterated and emphasized by themselves on the stump, there is yet time to pass one that will meet with the approval of the people. Outside of the benefits, that they so largely and eloquently dwell on during the campaign last fall, there is a practical side for them to consider as well—the effect on the Disfranchising Bill of their failure to redeem their pledges.

The abuses of the present system of conventions controlled in many cases by politicians, who are only interested in promoting their own interests—either politically—or in some cases financially as well, have been often pointed out, and the people have demanded that a change be made. To meet this demand on the part of the people the Democratic party made a pledge in its platform, that if the people were good enough to trust them, they would see to it that a proper reform was made. The people trusted and elected the party to power and it is their duty to see that this trust was not misplaced.

The party has passed a bill whose whole intent is to disfranchise the negro. Whatever may be the right or wrong of that question, the practical effect of the ratification of this proposed amendment to our constitution, will be to strongly entrench the Democratic party in power in this state, for a time at least.

Many, especially in Baltimore City, who are sincerely in sympathy with the idea of disfranchising the colored race, will think gravely and deeply over the subject of putting the state under the domination of one party unless there are some safeguards thrown around it.

The good old political days when Gorman and Reaugh held sway in Maryland are of too recent a date to be forgotten, and a repetition will not be desired in any section thereof.

One of the greatest safeguards in the opinion of many who have studied the subject, is a fair Primary law that will allow the candidates for the various offices in the state to be nominated by the direct vote of the rank and file of the party. In our southern states, where a disfranchising bill has been passed, this system of primaries is null and void, and while it is of course, like every thing else is abused, yet a southern law is more rare, and indeed hard to find, in comparison with some of our northern convention ridden states.

It means that a change of opinion must be made by over 17,000 voters.

While it is undoubtedly true, that the form of the other bill was objectionable to a large number of voters, it is almost safe to say that the heart of this objection came from those who are, what are usually termed independent in politics, and it is from this class of people that the present disfranchisement bill is to be passed.

At all. All those who are known as strong party men, especially in the Democratic camp, for the amendment before the legislature, and the organization, so called, that has been organized to have pulled its weight.

Wicomico County for instance gave a majority for the amendment, and it is not far from the county seat on the subject.

The mistake has been made before on this question, let not another one be made, and if one is made then let the voters be thrown fairly and squarely on the shoulders of those to whom the franchise—those who ignore party lines and promises, and throw into the scales the party and the policies of the party.

They were sent to Annapolis to vote on the subject, and the result was a primary also.

It is in fact and just, will make it harder to carry the bill, and may prove its defeat.

WORCESTER TEMPERANCE FIGHT.

The fight that is now going on in our sister county of Worcester, is creating a great deal of interest throughout our own County. The fight that we here have recently passed through, and the false tales of financial ruin, harder drinking through speakeasies, and moral degeneration that were prophesied, if the saloons were closed in Wicomico County, makes our citizens feel certain that the same old stock in trade is being presented to the people in Worcester in order to influence them to keep the saloon open. Added to these will be the cry of higher taxes, poorer schools and almost poorer everything that is worth having. The whiskey men have these arguments down pat, and attempt to get people who would normally be opposed to the traffic to accept it from a practical business standpoint, and a necessary evil. We have been through it all, and we are not ruined financially by its stoppage, our drinking through speakeasies amounts to practically nothing at all, our morals have not degenerated by the closing of the saloons, but are very much improved thereby; our taxes are not higher and our schools are run fully as well, and with as much money at their disposal as when they were getting license fees. After the vote is over in Worcester, for if appearances mean anything, it is going dry, they will have the same conditions there as exist here, and it will greatly surprise some of the people who are now fighting so hard to keep whiskey in the county, to hear themselves say, we would not have it back for any thing. Yet that is what has happened here, and some of the most pronounced whiskey men will so state to whoever asks them.

FIRE PROTECTION.

The horrible accident at North Collinwood, a suburb of Cleveland, Ohio, in which so many school children lost their lives, has resulted in an inspection of our school and other public places, by Chas. E. Herring, the Deputy State Fire Marshall. This inspection of our schools and other places resulted in an order for additional means of escape being ordered to be provided in the next thirty days. This is a precaution badly needed in Salisbury, and parents and frequenters of our places of amusement and hotels will welcome the provision of additional means of safety.

The buildings inspected and ordered to be provided with fire escapes and extra means of exits were: The Uman's Opera House, The Peninsula Hotel, The Davis House, The Maryland Hotel, The Shurtz Factory, The Wicomico High School and the Intermediate department on Ball Street. These parties received official notices and are preparing to make the required changes within the time specified. While a fire in any of these places is not likely to occur, and the probabilities are that they never will occur as a time to do serious damage, yet the precautionary measure for safety in case they should ought to be taken.

The sad story of the burning of the school children, when the parent of one child after trying in vain to pull her little one out, gave up in despair, stood holding the little one's hands, even brushing the flames off her hair when they reached it—until driven away by the heat, and who was rewarded by a "Thank you, Mama" from the suffering child, is enough to strike fear and sorrow in any parent's heart, and the thought that any one child might be placed in a like position by the neglect to take proper precautionary measures, is a dreadful one and every parent in this city should be given every assurance that everything possible to prevent a like disaster here has been done.—Expense is nothing; the people will bear it without a murmur. It is believed that the improvements ordered will make a like occurrence here an impossibility.

THE ISSUE BEFORE

The Voters Of Our Neighboring County, Determined To Get Out Of Rum Business.

Again that old egg in the mare's nest, we thought it too stale even for the saloon people to handle with safety; but they are throwing it again. It is the poor drug-store and that panacea of life, the essence of lemon, to which we allude. Whiskey has inspired some mendacious pen to write an epitaph to the drug store, and publish it in the Baltimore Sun; and strange to say, the bar room crowd were speaking of it, and proclaiming it a cyclone in advance of the issue going to press. We had thought, even the least informed knew that the drug store business had a license of its own, naming what they could sell just as the merchants and saloons have others applicable to their business. The Local Option bill to be voted upon is just as liberal to drug stores as the liquor license which controls the sale of alcoholic liquors, so if they are satisfactory because of the saloon license, they will be equally satisfactory under the Local Option prohibition of alcoholic beverages because neither treats of the drug store in any way. We have been making our sister Counties come to Worcester to buy, and their drug goods, but their rum, and if the essence of lemon is needed, we could go to them for an occasional vial. If it could not be bought at home. We must try to rest in the overwhelming appetite for the essence of lemon, even if that calamity should confront us. We are determined to get out of the rum business, even if it does cost hell wide open and the flavor of the lemon shall forever be banished from the land. Look at the people, 400 marching. Mothers and children with banners and songs, and a thousand men standing in the streets of Berlin last Saturday for two hours to hear the reasons why the saloon must go, a boys' election that had but two wet voters, and one of these was purchased and then in Dirlikson's Hall next day an audience of 600.

There were fifty speakings in other parts of the County with an outpouring of the people, the like of which was never seen before. Show the people what is right and they will do it, and everybody now has his eyes open to the atrocities traceable to the saloon, except those few who have been bewitched by the serpent and have the chains of destruction fastened upon them.

Keep your heads and use your own brains: for the saloon treatment is as bad for judgement and reason as the yams emanating from their votaries are to the elucidation of truth. Don't let them divert you from the issue, there is but one question to be voted upon and it is in no sense the drug store, but is simply whether we shall continue to grant liquor licenses. The clauses of the bill that will be upon the ballots show its whole intent and are a summary of the whole bill, viz: "Against the sale of intoxicating liquors" and "For the sale of intoxicating liquors."

Robert J. Shewell,
Pres. of the Anti-Saloon League

New Lodge Organized.

The following officers were elected by the local chapter of the Order of Eastern Star which was instituted here last week: Worthy Matron, Mrs. R. D. Grier; Patron, Rev. W. S. Phillips; Associate Worthy Matron, Mrs. O. E. Harper; Conductress, Mrs. W. U. Falk; Associate Conductress, Mrs. E. A. Tegedine; Secretary, Mrs. J. McF. Dick; Treasurer, Mrs. E. A. Gaham. The following were elected assistant officers: Mrs. F. P. Adkins, Mrs. Wilmer Gullett, Mrs. W. S. Gordy, Mrs. H. Tall and Mr. Wm. M. Day. The other charter members of the organization are Mrs. Graham Gunby, Misses Nancy Gordy, Ola Day, Maline Gillis, Carrie Peters, Mrs. E. C. Fulton, Mrs. Mary M. North, of Snow Hill, and Mr. W. U. Polk.

The membership is composed entirely of wives and daughters of Masons, and a few members of the Masonic Order. A banquet was given at the Masonic Hall immediately after the initiation in the order.

School Matters At White Haven.

The citizens of White Haven are asking for greater accommodations in their school rooms, and also that higher grades be added to their course. They are asking for the change to be made this summer, and a delegation was before the School Board this week, giving the situation there and showing that improvements in both respects were very much needed. The people are asking for the grade to be raised to the 9th and 10th, instead of as at present reaching only the 7th. Those in the delegation were: Sheriff W. W. Larmore, G. M. Catlin, L. J. Dashiell, W. B. Dolbey, J. F. Bloodworth, Zack Travers, F. L. Denson, L. W. Holliday.

Fatal Accident.

Mr. Lee Disharoon, formerly of Salisbury, but recently employed at the Maryland Hospital of Insane was killed by a fall down a flight of stairs Thursday night. He was standing at the head of the stairs and it is supposed accidentally stepped backward, falling down the flight striking his head on the last step. He was rendered unconscious and did not recover. He was a son of Mr. Ashby Disharoon, at Allen.

—LOST—A ladies gilt buckle, brown and gilt belting, between residence of Mrs. Wesley Hearn and Dr. Dick. Reward if returned to office of White and Travis, Main Street.

FRUITLAND CIRCUIT

In The Battle. Part in Wicomico, Part in Worcester. Mostly Dry. Progress.

While two of our churches, Fruitland and Silcom, which are in Wicomico County, are on the "Victory Side" St. Luke's and Zion are in Worcester County, the only county south of New Castle, Del., that gives the Run Rule half a chance for his Dec. The captain of our host has visited these churches and given the signal to go up and possess the goodly land. They are doing so. Last Sunday 17 men and women stood by the altar and were received in full membership at St. Luke's Church, renewing their covenant to renounce the devil with all his works and to advance the Redeemer's kingdom. The church was crowded. The Hon. Wm. G. Kerbin, atty at law, of Seaw Hill, and Rev. H. S. Dulany and his brother, John H. Dulany, addressed the people. Mr. Kerbin asked those who are going to vote Worcester County dry on the 21st day of March to stand up. Men stood, but the dear women sat still until he said every one that would vote it dry if they could, stand. Then nearly everybody stood up. Then he asked those that intended to vote it wet, to stand and no one stood; so it looked as if the children of Israel are across dry and that Pharaoh and his host are drowned. The choir from Fruitland which includes two brothers and a sister of the Messicks were in the front and gave such music that only a double quick forward march would do at all. The Rev. Alfred Smith is to drill the forces at St. Luke's Church tonight and at Zion tomorrow night; and on Saturday, March 21st, you may listen for the falling of the walls of Jerico and the echoes of rejoicing from the smallest child that has been crying for bread, to the oldest parents who have been playing for the deliverance of their children from the dens of destruction to their homes of safety and love. St. Luke's Church has paid 83½ per cent. more on pastor's salary this year than was appointed last year and has made good savings in advance on all lines. The circuit has paid eight times as much for improvements on churches and parsonage this year as it did last year and about 33½ per cent. more on Missions and other benevolences this year than it did last. Two hundred and six persons have professed faith in the saving power of Jesus and have given their names to be enrolled with the people of God.

Yours truly,
W. S. H. Williams.

Examiner's Notice.

Notice is hereby given to all parties interested that the undersigned has been appointed by the County Commissioners of Wicomico County to examine and report on a proposed new road from Melson road to B. B. Gordy's residence, that they will meet at John W. Hearn's on Monday, March 20th at 9:30 A. M. to execute the duty imposed on them by the commission, March 12, 1906.

Death Of Mrs. Elizabeth H. Stemons.

—Mrs. Elizabeth H. Stemons, widow of the late Dr. Albert R. Stemons, died at her home in Delmar Friday morning, aged 71 years. Deceased was a daughter of the late Dr. Samuel G. Ker, of Wicomico county. She is survived by three children, Mr. S. Ker, Stemons, cashier of the First National Bank of Delmar, Miss Marian and Mrs. Louise Stemons. She is also survived by two brothers, Elder H. Claude Ker of New York, and Mr. L. B. Ker, of Delmar. Mrs. Stemons was a consistent member of the Missionary Baptist Church and a woman of rare christian graces. Her death is sincerely mourned in the section in which she lived so long. Funeral services were held Sunday afternoon at her home, the interment being in Delmar cemetery.

Dog Laws.

The fact that a mad dog has been at large in Salisbury and vicinity, and was believed to have bit several others, aroused our local authorities to a more strict lookout for dogs on the streets. The City Council has issued orders to the Police to arrest the owner of any dog found on the streets without a license. As the orders are very strict and explicit, the Police will be compelled to arrest any owner found guilty of neglecting his duty, and if the owner is not found, the dog will be destroyed.

C. G. WALLER DEAD.

Was Native Of Salisbury. Engaged In Railroad Work. Relatives Here.

Mr. Clarence C. Waller died Tuesday afternoon at the home of his son-in-law, Mr. Henry L. D. Stanford, a member of the House of Delegates from Somerset county. Mr. Waller had been in poor health for some time, and his death resulted from paralysis. He was the son of the late William Waller, of Salisbury, and was born there in 1850. He engaged in railroad work in early life, serving as agent of the old Eastern Shore Railroad Company at Salisbury and Princess Anne, and of the Delaware Railroad at Kirkwood, Del., and after as solicitor for the New York, Philadelphia and Norfolk Railroad, which position he resigned to accept the position of general passenger agent for the Queen Anne's Railroad Company, and afterwards traffic manager for the Georgetown and Western Railroad Company of South Carolina. Four years ago he retired from active work on account of ill health.

He is survived by a widow—Mrs. Ellen W. Waller—two daughters—Mrs. Henry L. D. Stanford and Miss Ellen W. Waller, of Princess Anne—and two sons—Clarence C. Waller, Jr., and Wm. J. Waller, of Baltimore. Mrs. Thomas Perry and Mr. Frank G. Waller are sister and brother of the deceased. Mr. Waller was a member of St. Andrew's Protestant Episcopal Church, of Princess Anne, from which his funeral was held Friday morning.

The New Dress Goods For Spring Are Here They Are Glorious

It is most remarkable to have an opportunity to select new Spring Dress Goods so early. The goods were made for this Spring's selling and are the very fabrics approved by Fashion. They are so pretty, so sensible that we wish to tell you a little about them.

The colors are all in the soft, low tones, blues probably leading in choice—not the bright French blues of old, but a softer blue known as the Copenhagen blue. But there is the new brown, tan and black as well, and what is really very attractive is the new shadow-checked effect. There is another lovely new color, between a purple and the darker magenta tones—perhaps you could call it a plum, but it is very soft in color.

You may choose from very many materials—Panama, French Batiste and French Challe, Fancy and Herringbone Serge, also the Voiles and Lansdowns—all in the many colors mentioned.

There's No Extra Charge Simply Because They Are New Goods

The prices are as attractive as the goods themselves. The 50c kind carries as much style and quality for its value as do those at $1.00 and $1.50 a yard. Each has its own worthiness.

The Butterick Patterns—Will give you the correct styles for the garments you wish to make and insure perfect satisfaction.

There is a special offer of the Designer, New Style book and free Pattern we wish to tell you about. Ask about it when you come.

Spring Models in Corsets—We have a splendid selection for the woman who desires a graceful and well-proportioned figure. There are several models at $1, including long hips with high or low bust, and short hips with high bust, very prettily trimmed.

DO IT NOW.

By Nixon Waterman.
If you've found a task worth doing,
Do it now.
In delay there's danger brewing,
Do it now.
Don't you be a by and byer
And a singular patience tryer;
If there's aught you would acquire,
Do it now.

If you'd earn a prize worth owning,
Do it now.
Drop all waiting and postponing,
Do it now.
Say "I will," and then stick to it,
Choose your purpose and pursue it,
There's but one right way to do it,
Do it now.

All we have is just this minute,
Do it now.
Find your duty and begin it,
Do it now.
Sorely you're not always going
To be a gopher-to-be, and knowing
You must sometime make a showing,
Do it now.

—Success for March.

READ ALL THIS.

You Never Know the Moment When This Information May Prove Of Infinite Value
Now's This.

It is worth consideration to any citizen of Salisbury to know how to be cured of painful, annoying and itching piles. Know then that Doan's Ointment is a positive remedy for all itching of the skin, for piles, eczema, etc. One application relieves and soothes. Read this testimony of its merit:

Michael Schmitt, Bartley St., Salisbury, Md., says: "Doan's Ointment is the best preparation of its kind that I ever saw. I was all broken out with an eruption like eczema. Small water blisters would appear and itch and then scabs would form. The skin on my hands cracked, got rough and sore so that I could hardly use them.
Doan's Ointment was recommended to me by a friend who had been cured of a similar eruption of several years standing and I got a box at White and Leonard's Drug Store. I applied it several times and the eruption soon disappeared. I have had no return of the trouble since."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, New York, sole agents for the United States.

Remember the name—Doan's—and take no other.

At present there is but one breeding place of the elder duck in the United States. That is Old Man's Island, situated in the town of Ouster in Maine. It is one and one half miles east of the Ouster island life saving station and was leased by the state with the understanding that it was to be used for the protection protection and preservation of all wild birds. The state through the efforts of the Audubon society is trying to preserve three species of wild fowl—
the elder duck and the laughing gull from extermination in Maine.
Their eggs are large and very precious and highly prized by fishermen for food.—Kennebec Journal.

Prof. H. A. Howell, of Havana, Cuba, recommends Chamberlain's Cough Remedy.

"As long as I can remember my mother was a faithful user and friend of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy, but never in my life have I realized its true value until now," writes Prof.
H. A. Howell, of Havana, Cuba.

"On the night of February 3rd, our baby was taken sick with a very severe cold, the next day was worse, and the following night his condition was desperate. He could not lie down and it was necessary to have him in the arms every moment. Even then his breathing was difficult. It did not think he would live until morning.
At last I thought of my mother's remedy, Chamberlain's Cough Remedy, which we have, and it afforded prompt relief, and now, three days later, he has fully recovered. Under the circumstances I would not hesitate a moment in saying that Chamberlain's Cough Remedy, and that only, saved the life of our dear little boy." For sale at Toulson's Drug Store.

DISAPPEARING TULE LAKE.

The Water is Rapidly Falling and a Tremendous Whirlpool Has Formed.

The water of Tule Lake is rapidly falling, and a tremendous whirlpool has formed just off Scorpion Point, through which the water is passing with a deafening roar that can be heard a great distance. Below is apparently a great channel underground through which the waters did outlet beneath the Modoc lava beds and thence through the drainage of Fall River to Pitt, and finally on to the ocean through the Sacramento and San Francisco Bay.

It has long been held by geologists that Tule Lake has an underground outlet, and that Fall River which flows from a gushing spring in Modoc county, Cal., in the west, last spring the lake water reached a higher level than has ever been known since the country was settled, and bordering farms were inundated. For several days the water has been receding, and investigation revealed the new outlet. Should the vent ontinue to drain the body of the lake it will add 50,000 acres of fringing land to the project and at a saving of hundreds of thousands of dollars to the people of the Klamath Basin, as the intended diversion of Lost River will be rendered unnecessary.

Johannesburg

The fact becomes plain every day that Johannesburg is over-built and that its trade is no more a legitimate index of the prosperity of the Witwatersrand goldfields than is the gambling in gold shares in Europe a legitimate index of the prosperity of South Africa. The handsome town suffers from over-competition. Such trade as there is thoroughly sound, and quite worthy of the world's greatest gold industry—Special Commissioner of South Africa.

Nations' Debts.

The debts of the principal countries in Europe aggregate some $5,000,000,000, involving an annual charge of more than $240,000,000. France is at the head of the most indebted countries with $1,167,000,000, and there come next Russia with $920,000,000 of debt, Germany with $840,000,000, Great Britain with $789,000,000, Italy with $520,000,000, Austria with $400,000,000, Spain with $360,000,000, and Hungary with $240,000,000.
—L'Eclair, Paris.

A Widow's Mite.

Mrs. Catherine Hall, a highly respected woman of this city, known for her charity and good deeds, has voluntarily and without notice from any one, paid $120 back taxes into the county treasury on personal property which she had owned since 1901.
Mrs. Hall, who is a widow, was entirely overlooked by the assessor and her property was not listed for taxation. As her father, ex-Probate Judge Linzee, with whom she lives, paid taxes, Mrs. Hall thought nothing of it until a recent revival in this city so impressed her that she not only paid all the back taxes for six years on her $5,000 but had all her property listed for future taxation.

Tutor of the Kaiser.

George Hinsper, tutor of the German Emperor, celebrated his eightieth birthday recently at Bielefeld, his birthplace. A writer in a Berlin paper says that, although the world knows little of the modest man, he more than any other person, is responsible for the development of the qualities in the German monarch which make him the versatile man that he is.

Japanese Residents in Korea.

The Japanese residents in Korea now number 110,000, and the trade between the two countries is already worth more than $15,000,000 a year.
The work covers the reform of the local administration and police service, the development of education, mining and industries in general and road making and other public civil engineering works.

Preacher 100 Years Old.

The Rev. Thomas Lord, who will reach his one hundredth birthday in April, celebrated the seventy-third anniversary of his entrance into the ministry by preaching at the Horn-castle Congregational church, England, recently. He has preached over 5,000 sermons.

State Automobile Line.

The first state automobile line in Australia has been opened between Neumarket and Pledaxa, over a route forming the highest automobile line in Europe, the road in places crossing the mountains at an elevation of 4,000 feet.

New York Pays $70,000,000 in Salaries.

It costs nearly as much to pay the salaries of the municipal servants of New York City as it does to support the entire army of the United States.
The salaries amount to $70,000,000 annually.

Champion Hunters.

John B. Martin, who lives among the Conewago boulders near Beltsville, Lancaster county, Pa., has earned the belt as the champion hunter of small game. During the rabbit and squirrel season he, with his two little sons, killed 115 rabbits, 12 gray squirrels, a number of skunks, opossum and several foxes.

TEN LITTLE LOVERS.

Ten little lovers sighing, "Oh, be mine."
One met a girl; then there were nine.
Nine little lovers, questioning (thir fate).
One saw her frunkies; then there were eight.

Eight little lovers—one stayed till eleven.
Papa shouted down the stairs; then there were seven.

Seven little lovers—by some artful tricks
A grass widow caught one; then there were six.

Six little lovers—one upon a drive Used both hands to drive with then there were five.

Five little lovers—one began to snore
When she sang a love song; then there were four.

Four little lovers—on his bonded knee
One was told 'twas hopeless; then there were three.

Three little lovers came each week to woo;
One tried auto racing; then there were two.

Two little lovers with a thought to stun,
She showed one her dress bills; then there was one.

One little lover—and the tale is done,
She was married to him: now there are none.

DOCTORS PRESCRIBE SULPHUR.

But Sulphur Should Be Used in Liquid Form
Only.

"Hancock's Liquid Sulphur is the most wonderful remedy for Eczema I have ever known," writes Dr. W. W.
Leake, of Orlando, Fla., who was cured of a case of Eczema.

Dr. W. A. Hoard, of Maitland, Fla., was cured of Eczema after he had suffered for thirty years and says
"Hancock's Liquid Sulphur is the finest remedy for all skin troubles he has ever used or prescribed."

Doctors everywhere prescribe it, but they say Sulphur should be used in liquid form only, as it is in Hancock's Liquid Sulphur.

Druggists sell it. Booklet free, if you write Hancock Liquid Sulphur Co., Baltimore.

It cures all Skin and Scalp Diseases, if used in connection with the wonderful Hancock's Liquid Sulphur Ointment.

NEW COMMUNION CUP.

Flow of Wine Regulated as the Verbal is Passed.

A new communion cup is being introduced to regulate the amount of wine for each communicant. The cup is shown herewith and it is the subject of a recent patent. The cup has a double construction, being one cup within another. One contains the main supply, with a valve connection between the two receptacles.

COMMUNION CUP.

The discharge, from one to the other is regulated by a push rod extending to the upper portion near the handle.

For Women Who Work.

"Our conference this year is designed to bring us into closer touch with the women who, from choice or circumstances, are earning their own living. We are to discuss the economic position of women. We shall try to picture the conditions under which they work, and criticize the payment they receive."

With these words Mrs. George Cadbury, president of the National Union of Women Workers, opened the women's conference at Manchester.

Mrs. Cadbury prefaced her address by explaining why she had called the paper "The Riddle of Circumstances."

"I have been overwhelmed with thoughts of the 'riddle of life' and the riddle of circumstances," she said.

"It is that hundreds of thousands are born into circumstances where there seems no chance of leading either healthy, useful, or dear-able lives."

"I am afraid to trust myself to speak of the owners of stum property," she said. "In London alone $100,000 to $200,000 people have homes consisting of one room. Can it be surprising when we hear of physical deterioration, infant mortality, mental incapacity and drunken habits?"

"There are many evils to be contended with in factory life. Only those who know well the daily life of a factory girl know the temptations and dangers an influence that surrounds her. There are some three and a half millions of unmarried women who work for their living in England."

"The employer might alleviate the monotony of work by offering prizes for suggestions. Committees of men and women might be formed to discuss and share responsibilities of arrangements. Educational facilities, gardens and recreation grounds might be provided; classes for drill instituted among the younger girls; game tables could teach hockey, cricket and basketball during the summer evenings; and evening continuation classes might be started, and the attendance of boys and girls made a condition of employment."

Mrs. Beer deplored the fact that women tend to crowd into unskilled trades and lower the general standard of wages. There also was reason to believe, she said, that the number of children who enter a skilled trade on leaving school was steadily decreasing.

She contended that it was fatally easy for a child nowadays to enter employment, which the initial wages are high, but which offers no prospects for the future.—London

OUR SISTER COUNTY.

Have You Weighed The Reasons?

"It is not all of life to live, nor all of death to die;" just as it is not all success to make a great fortune. The best things in life cannot be bought with money. You can buy a house but you cannot buy a home; you can purchase honors, but not honor; wealth will bring you flatterers, but not friends; it will give you luxuries but not satisfaction; it will gratify vanity, but not self respect; it will command the world, but it has no influence with heaven. So why are men so wild in chasing the dollar, shutting their eyes to the more enduring blessings of life. We find men deluded on the moral issue now confronting us, and diverted from considering its real merit by the sordid desire and lust for money. The small amount of taxes, a few sales of provisions to saloons are heavy weights to overcome the real blessings that will accrue to our neighbors, homes and country, in the other side of the balance, folly holds for them. Why not let common sense hold the scales and do the weighing to see which is the heavier reasons, "right" or "wrong."

Real Freedom Has Not A Chained Will.

The 18th amendment of the Constitution of the United States attempted to abolish the custom of buying and selling human beings; and one of the strongest sections of the Constitution of the State of Maryland condemns the buying and selling of votes, which is really a trafficking of manhood, honor and loyalty—the best that human beings possess and is a selling into bondage of more than mere flesh. My father was the owner of some 75 slaves, acquired and held legally under the laws of the land, but for no fault of his, these were confiscated without any compensation whatever. But if these same slaves and their descendants could be given back, I would refuse them, because the institution of slavery was wrong in principle and bad practice, and it would be too great a responsibility to assume. Those who are capable of self government should be free; and those who cannot, in a measure, govern themselves are worthless to anybody. Beside the problem of a man fitting himself for the other world would be made doubly hard to solve, prone as we are to err and become autocratic and domineering when dressed with a little power over the wills and souls of others show us that absolute authority would brutalize the best of us. Such a system we naturally conclude would be worse for the masters than for the slaves.

But this election of the 31st of March on the question of liquor license is one of personal freedom. A man is inherently free to do right and inherently bound to refrain from doing evil. The open saloon is acknowledged by the great majority of men to be the greatest source and cause of evil, vice and crime, and those who patronize them too frequently become slaves in mind, will and action. Then to shut up this odious institution, that deals in shackles, is the work and duty of all who believe in morality, good citizenship, and freedom.

The reasons assigned to justify an open saloon cannot be justified or appreciated by good policy or sensible men and our motives we expect them to disparage; but all the same, it is now safe to prophesy that after May 1st, Worcester County will be the driest spot on the map of Maryland.

Drug Store And The Local Option Bill Of Worcester County.

The general rule is laid down, in "Black on Intoxicating Liquor," under the head of Medico-legal and Toilet Preparations, about as follows, with citation of many authorities which I have not had time to look up:

1. Whatever is generally and popularly known as intoxicating liquor is within the prohibition of the statute, and may be so declared as a matter of law by the Courts.

2. And I quote verbatim from Black: "Whatever is generally and popularly known as medicine or as an article for the toilet or purposes and which is recognized and the formula for its preparation prescribed in some standard authority, such as the United States Dispensatory, and is not among the liquors ordinarily used as intoxicating beverages, e. g., Tincture of Gentian, Paregoric, Bayrum, cologne, Essence of Lemon, is not within the statute and may be so declared as matter of law by the Courts, notwithstanding such articles contain alcohol and may produce intoxication."

3. As to articles intermediate between these two not known to standard authorities, compounds of intoxicating liquors with other ingredients, such as "bitters," the question whether they are within the prohibition of the statute is a question of fact for the jury.

Black further says in these cases the test is not the presence or amount of alcohol, but the adaptability to the substance of one use or the other as a medicine or as a beverage. He states that the subject is one of no little difficulty, but that the decisions are reasonably clear to the effect that the mere presence of alcohol does not bring the articles within the prohibition.

With this opinion Mr. Anderson wrote the following letter, to wit:

Mr. Orlando Harrison, Berlin, Maryland.

Dear Mr. Harrison:

Your letter received, and in reply to same I send you a copy of a statement involving the general prohibition on the question which you raise, which I think will answer your purpose. In addition to this, I am told by Mr. Jones that the matter was submitted to the attorney for the Druggists' Association and he pronounced it all right. I am very much interested in the outcome of your contest, and only wish I was free to get down there with you for awhile.

Yours very cordially,

William H. Anderson,

Superintendent.

Sudden Deaths.

There is a disease prevailing in this country most dangerous because so deceptive. It is called "Silence." Many sudden deaths are caused by it—heart disease, pneumonia, heart failure or apoplexy are often the result of kidney disease. It is kidney trouble that is allowed to advance the kidney-poisoned blood will attack the vital organs, causing catarrh of the bladder, or the kidneys themselves break down and waste away cell by cell. Bladder troubles almost always result from a derangement of the kidneys and a cure is obtained quickest by a proper treatment of the kidneys. If you are feeling badly you can make no mistake by taking Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, the great kidney, liver and bladder remedy. It corrects inability to hold urine and scalding pain in passing it, and overcomes that unpleasant necessity of being compelled to go often through the day, and to get up many times during the night. The mild and the extraordinary effect of Swamp-Root is soon realized. It stands the highest for its wonderful cures of the most distressing cases. Swamp-Root is pleasant to take and is sold by all druggists in fifty-cent and one-dollar size bottles. You may have a sample bottle of this wonderful new discovery and a book that tells all about it, both sent free by mail. Address, Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y. ## STEPHEN OTWAY'S SILENCE

Final! The man working away for dear life in the fading twilight that June evening wrote the magic word, lay down his pen and looked about him for the first time in two solid hours. At last his wonderful symphony was written. Yes, not another note would he add, not a single bar revise; it should go before the judges in that big contest he was striving might and main to win just as it lay there—the crown of six weeks' toil, the best that was in him, the fair flower of his achievement that was surely destined to bring fame and fortune, maybe something still more precious in its train. His chance, the golden opportunity of a lifetime! "Two hundred guineas and a gold medal for the best symphony by a British composer." All unexpectedly it had fallen out, bringing with it a golden vista to his glowing thoughts. Once let him win that, and everything was simplified. Old Farley Almsworth, most generous of benefactors, would laugh now at the bare idea of calling him son-in-law; such a possibility as the lad he had befriended daring to fall in love with his own daughter had never entered the head of the proud, music-loving old squire, or he would have taken speedy means to nip the romance in the bud. But afterward—

It seemed to Stephen Otway that all the face of Nature would be changed at that one stroke. Rising from the table at which he had been working, he went to the piano and began to play. The man who had softly opened the door and stepped inside halted involuntarily at the sound of that strange, sweet melody. "Steve, you miracle, what's that? Not—the symphony? You don't mean it! Why, man, it's wonderful! no one else can ever hope to win!"

"You think so?" He had broken off abruptly. "I do not know what to think. Sometimes I am full of confidence; at others—Anyhow, it's finished; I am fagged out—want rest. I have even thought of going down home for a day or two—"

"Yes; not a bad idea, old chap; it would do you good without a doubt. That hesitating pause, 'If I only wish mine had half such a change!' I say Steve, talking of home—"

"Yes!" Stephen Otway looked across inquiringly; the change of tone was not to be mistaken.

"I—I—oh, look here, how am I to say it? The fact is, I've been a fool and got into a mess again. Will you lend me some money till my next check comes? I must have fifty pounds by to-morrow or else it's ruin, and I don't go to the dear old governor again. It would break his heart."

"Fifty pounds?"

"Yes—yes, I know I've had a run of bad luck lately, but I'd no idea it was so much until to-day. I've scraped up seven from somewhere. Steve, you're my only hope. See me through this once, and I promise never to touch a card again as long as I live—yes, honor bright!"

Fifty pounds! Stephen Otway's face grew grave as he turned away. This was not the first time that Clive Almsworth had come to borrow from him. He paused a while before replying.

"Look here, Clive, I am a poor man, as you know. I do not possess fifty pounds in all the world; and if I lend you what I have it will be on one condition, only—that you never write me a card or line, again. What guarantee can you give me?"

"Guarantee!" The other stared at him in a moment. "What the devil do you mean, Clive?"

"I mean just this, Clive. I have not just given you my word?"

"Yes—for the third time. Twice before I have helped you out of a dollar's difficulty on similar terms. I am no use in going on like this—"

"I see!" The sneer was obvious. "Do not mind my father's spending a hundred pounds on you, and if I find you what I have it will be on one condition, only—that you never write me a card or line, again. What guarantee can you give me?"

"Guarantee!" The other stared at him in a moment. "What the devil do you mean, Clive?"

"I mean just this, Clive. I have not just given you my word?"

"Yes—for the third time. Twice before I have helped you out of a dollar's difficulty on similar terms. I am no use in going on like this—"

"I see!" The sneer was obvious. "Do not mind my father's spending a hundred pounds on you, and if I find you what I have it will be on one condition, only—that you never write me a card or line, again. What guarantee can you give me?"

"No!" He had drawn himself apart, stood there, handsome and defiant, with a little smile on his cheek. "No, we will not! It's now or never. Otway—I mean it! Choose—accept it or no!"

The other half-smiling shrug; incoherent, beyond measure, he waited for answers. "Yes, well! That ends it, remember it's your own doing—good night and good-by!"

Yes; that was it. "Goodnight—good-by!" Full five minutes after he had sung out of the room the older man stood there in the gathering darkness trying to realize, to make himself believe that he had really gone. Clive could surely never mean it—never!

He turned back to those carefully written sheets of manuscript. Just one more look to make sure that he had copied them correctly, then he would wrap them up and put them away safely till morning. Till he could carry them with his own hands to the big college where their fate was to be decided. Too precious to be trusted to the post.

In the morning there was no letter. The hours passed, with no Clive, and he grew sadder, told himself that he had been harsh and ungenerous. In the afternoon, anxious to purchase reconciliation at any price he went to the bank, withdrew his little stock of money—earned by playing at occasional concerts—and sent five £5 notes, with a few hasty words, to Clive's address. By night they were back at his own, with the word at all. He had snatched up hat and gloves, and was rushing round to Clive's lodgings at top speed.

"Mr. Almsworth?" he panted, as he knocked on the door. "Gone out!" the woman of the house had snapped, the sweeping sounds of the violin came from the room above giving her words the lie even as she spoke; and it was straightway closed in his face. Small wonder that afterward there was only silence, and a breach that widened with the days.

A time of strenuous work and hard waiting. None but the man himself could ever know the bitterness of those dragging weeks, the hopes of one day that were fears the next. When the fateful day had dawned at last his restlessness knew no restraint. The hours literally crawled toward night. He was in the crowd that thronged the big concert hall. To-night would either make or mar him, a few more minutes would decide.

To one man in that vast audience it seemed as if his heart had ceased to beat. Just a year since the happy-eyed girl had looked up at him for that one instant of time with her eyes, and promised to wait. All dreams for the future, shattered irretrievably, and—irony of fate—it was Clive Almsworth who had beaten him!

And then—Was it real, or only a trick of fancy, the plaything of his over-wrought imagination? That opening phrase, those first few bars of melody, that had floated softly across the waiting hall! Never Clive Almsworth's—never any one's but his own! There was some mistake, a ghastly blunder in the name, or else—

Dazed, stunned, unable for a moment to realize the bitter truth, he sat there, his lips to the smooth cadence, the tripping allegretto that was rushing rhythmically, finally, with the world chromatic scale passages for the violin—his own, every note! The priceless symphony on which he had spent so many hours—built so many hopes!

A dead sea-funk, that storm of cheers that broke from the audience at its close, gall and wormwood, those repeated cries of "Almsworth!" "Almsworth!"

What a thing he had done! He was outside in the cool fresh air, trying to think it all out—the bitter blindness, the sense of treachery, the "Almsworth!" "Almsworth!"

cup of bitterness is full; I am punished, tenfold. My father—Here, look! I—I can't say it!"

A telegram had fluttered from his hand. Otway picked it up mechanically, and read: "The dangerously ill; come at once—Sybil!"

Next moment he had faced back sharply. "Well."

"I can't go, Stephen! I—daren't now!" It was almost a scream. The dear old governor had set his heart on my winning this thing; and I couldn't—couldn't tell him—" The voice broke off into a convulsive sob; the man was shaking like an aspen. Otway looked at him pityingly; then crossed the room and began to finger a railway time table.

"Twelve fifteen from Euston!" He pulled out his watch; stood in thought a moment. "I'll go!" he said, curtly. "You can stay here if you like!"

"You will! Heaven bless you for that, Stephen! said the other fervently. "You're a good fellow; it's ten times more than I deserve. Send word how—how things are going, won't you?"

Five minutes later Stephen Otway caught himself wondering for the second time that night if the whole of it was not a dream. No dream, however; that midnight journey into Warwickshire; no dream the white-faced girl who crept softly down stairs in the early dawn to greet him, the startled question starting from her eyes before ever she spoke a word.

"Stephen! But where is Clive? He will be too late!" "He's humbled falsehood, and then: "Yes; very ill indeed! A sudden heart attack; the doctor has been with him half the night. You will not mind if I go back?"

Later she came to him again. He found himself following obediently up the stairs into the darkened room where old Farley Almsworth lay, very still and very feeble.

"Stephen, my boy, how are you?" The words were hard to catch; all but, instinctively, "Clive is coming soon, they tell me! I want to see the lad once more, to tell him I am proud—we are all proud. He won the medal, Stephen, eh? Couldn't help but win it, could he?"

The wrinkled hand was quivering feebly in his own. Bending down to listen, Stephen Otway remembered the debt of gratitude he owed the old man lying there. He glanced across at the girl standing by the window.

Yes, he won it," he said quietly. Later, walking away from that house with closed shutters and the drawn blinds, it seemed to him that either the world had grown different or he very old and weary. Nothing mattered now; all the days would be alike—a miserable, haunting drudgery. He recollected reaching Euston and walking to his lodgings; but nothing more was clear. His brain rocked stupidly; there was a dull ache, and a sense of heaviness that bore him steadily down—down—till at last there came a final blank.

Ten whole days that grim snap of feverish, unconsciousness remained; and life and death were playthings 'twixt which he hovered like a frail child, uncertain which to choose. When the dawn lighted his eyes, he knew that he was lying in bed; there was a little table holding medicines by his side. The dark-robed figure seated by the window, heard him move; it struck him that the figure was familiar; what could Sybil be doing here? He said her name, half expecting the vision to dissolve.

"Stephen! Oh, how glad I am! She came to him with joy shining bravely in her face. "There, don't try to talk; she's still and get quite strong and well. I know everything—all the miserable story. Clive has told me what a hero you have been."

Afterward, Nax, the story is too true. Stephen Otway and his wife are happy, and success has come to him in plenty since then—W. Stralton Smith.

Five Classes of Mules. Many persons do not know what constitutes the five classes of marketable mules—known as cotton mules, lumber mules, railroad mules, sugar mules, and miners. Cotton mules, etc., most numerous. They range from 12 to 18 hands high, and may be various builds so long as they are smooth. They sell at $75 to $145 apiece.

Lumber mules are large, heavy bodied and rugged for use in big lumber camps. Their price ranges up to $250. The railroad mules are similar, but need not have so much weight. They are $15 to $30 cheaper. They are used in grading and hauling. Sugar mules are lighter. They must be smooth, with small heads and necks, and smooth bones. Their price is from $45 to $110.

Miners are the mules rejected from the other classes. Some mules are used near steamboats and docks for the heavy work. The miners are the hardest class to supply. They must be either a dark bay or black color. White and sorrel mules are never used. Where the mines have coal regions especially, they say a white mule resembles a ghost, and frightens the other mules beyond control.

The government buys all classes of mules, but never a cheap one, and the examination of mules for the public service is rigid.

"Yes, I heard!" A world of bitter accusation in the tone. His lips had framed invective hot and angry; but he beat the impulse back and waited to hear more.

"I was mad—out of my senses! It was that night you refused to lend me the money. You had showed me the sheets and told me they were finished, and I saw the chance to—"

"I came back here after you had gone out. They were in that drawer, made up into a parcel and addressed; and I took them out, put blank ones in their place—"

Heavy Part. Bacon—I understand you are cast for a heavy part in Wright's new play. Eggbert—Yes; I am scheduled to catch the large leading lady when she faints in the last act.

Mary Would.

Dudeup—"Can't cross here, don't know. I'll spatter my new Easter suit." Miss Mary—"Really, that is too bad. If I had my cloak now, I would do the Raleigh act for you."

Best Reason in the World.

Cousin Jack—Yes, I'll put $5 on for you if you'll pay me back. You don't see the last time you know. Cousin Kate—Oh, well, the horse didn't win—Brooklyn Life.

Ethyl—So you are really engaged to Tom at last? Myra—Yes; I got tired of refusing him every day.

Worth Winning.

"Say, Harker," began Pemberton, counting a bunch of tobacco coupons, "did you ever win a prize by smoking cigarettes?"

"No," responded Harker, the sensible young man, "but I won a prize when I stopped smoking them."

"You did? Where is it?"

"In the hammock over there—my wife, you know."

Man Must Forget.

"No," he said, impatiently. "I never could dictate my work. To dictate one must be able to forget the presence of the stenographer, and that is beyond me."

Her eyes were full of earnest sympathy. "But couldn't you get a man stenographer?"—Turner Topics.

A TRUE DIAMOND FIELD

Farmer in Pike County, Ark.
Upset a Story Belief

PEBBLE WAS A DIAMOND

He Picked It Up While Walking Along a Country Road in the Summer of 1906—It Was a Shining Bit of Stone—Caused the Upsetting of Strongest Beliefs of Geologists.

When that farmer out in Murfreesboro, Pike County, Ark., picked up a shining bit of stone while walking along a country road in the summer of 1906, a pebble that later on was shown to be a diamond, he had little idea that he was the cause of the upsetting of one of the strongest beliefs of geologists. This was the opinion that diamonds never would be found in the North American continent in their natural surroundings, or "matrix," in a genuine diamond "field."

Murfreesboro is about 100 miles southwest from Little Rock and the "diamond field" is owned by two companies of local capitalists, who are working it under the usual secret conditions that attend labor of this sort. The country is particularly favorable to outdoor work, for the climate is mild all winter long, a river runs through the property, there is an abundance of timber and coal is cheap and easily obtained. Not all of the 600 acres in the two farms to which the "diamond field" is limited is of importance, for the area of peridotite rock that shows near the surface of the ground is only forty acres in extent. The "field," however, is still further extended, to an area of 100 acres, by the spread of the "decomposed peridotite," or portions of the original formation that has crumbled away by the action of the elements.

It over this small area that the two companies are at work now with drills and the usual accessories of diamond mining. Up to the time, in August last, when Dr. G. F. Kunz o. Tiffany's made his first scientific report of the discovery of the "field," about 140 diamonds had been picked up, but since then no report has been made of what further quantity has been found. It is known, however, that the operating companies have reached a depth of 200 feet, and the peridotite rock shows no signs of either change or giving out. It is also definitely known that a depth of 15 feet below the surface good-sized diamonds have been found in the rock, or "matrix."

Of the 140 diamonds that were found up to August last, they ranged in color from the purest white, like the so-called "river stones" of South Africa, to tinted brown, gray, others almost black and yellow, some of the latter being of a pure lemon color. The largest stone found thus far, weighed 6 1-4 carats, this being an absolute pure peridotite white, free from inclusions, while others weighed 6 carats, several 5, 4 and 3, while the smallest ranged down to 1-64 carat, the general average being about 1 carat.

As to just what commercial value this "field" has, no one whose opinion is of value, will hazard a guess now. It has already, however, caused Dr. Kunz to revise the opinion he expressed in his book on diamonds, published seventeen years ago, as to the lack of the probability of these precious stones ever being an important mineral product of this country. The future of this genuine diamond field, which is of the same formation precisely as the famous "blue ground" of the Kimberly mines, lies now in the hands of the companies who are operating them.

When a Little Rock jeweler came East a year ago with samples of the diamonds found in Murfreesboro he was surprised to learn that Dr. Kunz and the other Government gem experts knew far more about the Arkansas fields than the persons who lived there.

That this "field" of peridotite was not strange to Dr. Kunz is explained by the fact that it was first described as long ago as 1842 by the State Geologist of Arkansas, and was subsequently "mapped" by another geologist in that State's employ. But nothing was ever done to find if the precious stones were in the rock until the chance discovery in the summer of 1906. The diamonds were found from time to time in this country ever since 1830 on the eastern slopes of the Blue Ridge Mountains, or the western slopes of the Cascade and Sierra Nevada Ranges, and in Wisconsin, Michigan, Ohio and Indiana. It was known that those found on the mountain slopes came from their normal geological abiding place; but the actual source had never been discovered. Those picked up in the Middle Western States were also known to have been carried there by the flow of the glaciers from Canada in prehistoric times. One curious and practical effect of the finding of this curious bed of peridotite in Arkansas, is the starting out of several exploring parties along the line of the new Canadian railroad, that is to run from Quebec to Winnipeg, to search for the peridotite formations from which those glacier-borne diamonds found in these States came. In view of the remarkable development of mineral resources of the Ontario Province within the last few years no one will be surprised if diamond fields are found there too.

A Good Guide.

Governor Vardaman of Mississippi, in the course of an address in Jackson, repeated the story of the famous Bishop Wilberforce. "Bishop Wilberforce," he said, "was out driving one day when a man on horseback stopped him, and, thinking to have a joke, asked: 'Excuse me, bishop, but could you tell me the road to Heaven?' 'Certainly, sir,' the bishop answered. 'Turn to the right, and keep straight on.'"

COAT OF MOIRE AND BRAID.

A Dressy Garment Which is in Good Taste at the Year.

Fashion's disciples remain true to the little coat, and use lines vary from the semi-empire to hip length and we are told that with the approach of spring this dressy little garment will take up its tremendous volume where it was left off in the late autumn. A famous French design is responsible for the model pictured here: It is carried out in rich black moire silk and stitched handsomely with bands of black braid with the merest suggestion of white along either edge.

The rock is finished in collarless fashion, but revers of embroidered taffetas and cloth lend an elegant touch to the front of the jacket. The sides are left unstitched over the hips, for the sake of novelty most likely, and sometimes, the little chasm is bridged with loops of passementerie braid and appropriate pendants.

French dressmakers have no set rules for finishing the lower edges of coats of any kind. Pointed effects seem to be liked better than the cut-away lines for short jackets and the latest models are so contrived that the points are sufficiently long to emphasize the smart curves of the underarm seams.

Salary to Club Treasurers. There is a strong movement on foot just now to pay a salary to treasurers of women's clubs. At two, at least, of the largest of women's clubs and organizations in New York City, this subject is to come up for careful and definite consideration at the first fall meeting next month.

At one of the annual elections last year the treasurer's office was offered to ten women before a candidate was finally found who would accept the position. The treasurer's work entailed by office in one of the large New York clubs is terrific. It takes practically all of a woman's time, and in addition requires absolute accuracy and care, and some business training.

The move to give a salary to the treasurer is a wise one, born of necessity, it is true, but a wise and sound one, nevertheless.

Household Suggestions. To clean a frying-pan, rub with a hard crust of bread and wash with hot water and washing soda. Never scrub it or the next food fried in it will be likely to stick.

To clean enameled or granite utensils whose contents have been allowed to burn, fill with cold water, add a piece of washing soda the size of an egg, and heat to boiling point. Wash at once, as the burned parts will then be more easily cleaned.

Tinware should be washed in soapy water, rinsed, then dried with a towel. Drying tinware on the stove darkens and sometimes melts it. If desired bright first wash and then clean with either whiting or some mild soap; not sand, as this will cut through the soft metal and soon wear it out.

To clean woodenware, wash in hot, soapy water and dry thoroughly. Never dry near the fire, as excessive heat will crack the wood. Tables, bread and pastry boards, may be scrubbed the way of the grain with fine sand, being careful to thoroughly rinse it all away afterwards.

The Tea Kettle—Never use water which has been standing over night in the tea kettle. In the morning fill with fresh water, boil and use at once.

Rusted iron ware or sinks may be cleaned by smearing thickly with fat or grease, and then covered with powdered quicklime and left for several hours. Wash off with hot water and washing soda, using a cloth tied to the sink broom for the purpose, so as to avoid touching it with the hands.

"Shadow" of a Queen. Queen Alexandra of England has been served by the same lady of the bodice for forty-four years. She is the Hon. Charlotte Knollys, and in the royal household she is known as "The Shadow" because of her unflinching faithfulness to the Queen.

On one occasion when there was a fire at Sandringham she saved the Queen's life by unconsciously dragging her from her bed. It was shortly after this incident that she parted from the man to whom she had been engaged to be married for several years. She said that the choice was between her lover and the Queen and as she loved the Queen the more she was sure she did not care enough for her lover to make him a good wife. She draws a salary of $3,500 from the Government and $1,500 from the Queen's privy purse.

Henry in War.

A recent fight with brigands in China resulted in the death of a soldier. The brigands sent $2,500 to his widow. Bush-rangers who held up a favorite Australian official, discovered later the identity of their victim. They returned his horse, with his wallet tied about his neck, and his money and watch inside. Even the Chinese pirates have some honor, a comical report, and will pay for the loss of vessels which they commandeered for their capture.

HOW JUDY GIRLS

By an Experienced Bachelor.

I am afraid I am not much of a believer in character-reading from the features remarked the Bachelor to his room mate. When I am told that white spots on the finger-nails indicate sickness, and thick eyebrows are a sign of constancy, I have my doubts. There are some rules, in this world of queerisms, which seem chockfull of exceptions.

That the hero on the stage invariably is clean-shaven, or wears a blonde moustache, and the villain has raven locks and smokes nothing but cigarettes, teaches us very little, I fear. One of the horriddest cads I ever ran across owned a countenance like a cherub.

But with the opposite sex, I do feel tempted to admit that features to some extent match character. A man can be anything, whatever his face; but a girl tends to show her character in her face. At least, it's the other way round. Her face influences her character. She lives up to her face, so to speak. And thus it is often said that a face indicates character, when in reality, it is character indicating the face, if one can put it that way.

You see, the face is—we may as well confess it frankly—a far more valuable item in life's equipment to a girl than to a man. I don't see anything to be ashamed about in admitting this. Quite early in life a girl child realizes that her face is far more important to her than her brother's face is to him. It may be a pity that she should, but the fact remains that she does, and the realization influences her conduct. She begins to think a good deal about her face and her appearance. Not unnaturally she starts, as I say, to live

FACE CAME BEFORE CHARACTER up to it. If she is pretty, she begins to have manners which are of the same species of prettiness. For example, if she is petite and doll-like, I do not see why we should be surprised that she avoids growing up with large, heavy, impressive manners. Something tells her that that type of manner would be out of key with her appearance.

And suppose she finds herself not pretty at all, but ugly! Is it compulsory on her to cultivate ugly manners? No. That's carrying my argument unreasonably, and that men will admit her because plain girls generally set the most out of her plainness, and in so far as it is possible, lives up to it. The plain girl often has clever features. In a word, she looks sharp. And you will find that she is sharp. Perhaps she has a mannish face. Well, you will find that her mind has been trained correspondingly, and that men will admire her because she can hold her own with them in arguing. Or perhaps she is plain, but not clever. Then you will find that she is strong in athletics. Or maybe she has short sight and has to wear eyeglasses. Then she becomes bookish and learned.

The eye-glassed girl proves my point about all. You have met, I am sure, dozens of girls who use eyeglasses; and you have noticed that they not only look learned, but are learned. It is one of the sure signs of the college girl—or it not the college girl, the girl who reads a lot. Well, according to some people, her appearance is due to her character. Yet what on earth have eyeglasses to do with character? Nothing. They are necessitated by bad sight; and in nine cases out of ten that bad sight is either hereditary, or else has, at any rate, been there from childhood. Almost all the eye-glassed brigade have worn spectacles since they were in short frocks—long before their character was formed. Finding themselves doomed to glasses, they have automatically lived up to the eyes nature gave them—just as the pretty girl with the doll-like complexion and the flaxen tresses has lived up to hers.

That's how it is that character-reading from the face is not often oddly correct in the case of girls and women, while hopelessly unreliable in men. There is no mystery about it. Except when great sorrow, or illness, or tremendous joy, affects a face, you may be certain that, to put it rudely, the face came before the character not the character before the face. If you bear this in mind you can become the cleverest character-driver in the world. All kinds of girls are interesting and all kinds are pleasing, so much so that I never could pick out one special one.

LEGISLATIVE EMPLOYEES

Saving in House Expenses Indicated. But Senate Likely To Be In Excess Of Last Session.

The Baltimore Sun of last Saturday published a list of the employees of the House and Senate at Annapolis. According to this list a large number of men are now engaged in the work of keeping things straight at the capitol. In its comments on the list The Sun states that Speaker Ray has kept the list down in the House to such an extent as to indicate a saving to the state of from $10,000 to $15,000, but that the Senate list of President Smith would overrun that of the previous year and would probably counter-balance the saving in the House. It further states that while Speaker Ray willingly gave access to the Honorable Book, that of the Senate had to be obtained through the State Comptroller. It would appear from the list that Wisconsin has not suffered in the number of appointments, having ten on the list. The appointments from Wisconsin with date of appointment follows:

House.

Engraving Clerk, William B. Justice, appointed January 1st.

The Tennis Aspects of the Skating Rink continue next week, after which they cease. During the remaining days the large auditorium will be the scene of much entertainment and merriment. Not during this year has there been such interest shown and such large daily attendance as has marked the term of the Tennis Association's connection with this State and Bowling Emporium.

Last Saturday broke all records in the number of persons inside the Rink, during 1908, about eight hundred being present to witness the entertainment advertised for Saturday night. The special weekly tickets good for admission and skating the whole week can be bought at Dr. Tolson's drug store by anyone, without reserve.

Coming Attractions.

To-night, Saturday March 21st, there will be an interesting feature, that will be something to hold the attention of all and keep things on the quiver until the curtain falls. You want to see it. The crowd will be at the Rink, tonight, Saturday, March 21st.

For next week a number of attractions are planned—something special every night. It is hoped to have a Salisbury (local) Basket Ball game as well as Polo and Basket Ball with Eastern. A masquerade carnival and a game of Lawn Tennis on Skates are also being considered. The public may remember that this is the last week of entertaining under the Tennis Aspects. A Oake Walk will probably be held the latter part of the week.

It is difficult to get convictions for illicit liquor traffic in wet territory, but easy to reach a verdict of "guilty" in local option fields. This is demonstrated in Worcester and Wisconsin. The reason seems to be that public opinion does not expect the saloon to be law-abiding, because of the nature of the business; while it seems natural that an evil should be prohibited. The law seems to be in good health when it says liquor shall not be sold and sold when it permits its sale.

SEE "THE GLANSMAN"

Greatest Of Historical Dramas Returns For Farewell Engagement.

"The Glansman," will return for its farewell engagement at the Academy of Music Baltimore, the week beginning Monday, March 30th, with Wednesday and Saturday matinees.

Of all the many offerings at this theatre this is undoubtedly the greatest and grandest of the whole season. Crowded audiences and enormous enthusiasm have marked the progress of "The Glansman."

"The Glansman," set in fierce white light the exact truth about the doings of the Ku Klux Klan and the Reconstruction struggle of forty years ago. It opened the eyes of both the North and the South. It showed that what the Southern people really did was to save white civilization from barbarism and anarchy; that the South would have been waiting in negroid mongrelism but for the heroic work of the Ku Klux Klan.

Aside from its political features, "The Glansman," is a most beautiful and thrilling drama. The ladies enjoy it as much as, or even more than, the men, because of its engrossing love story. The hero of the play is a South Carolinian and a Ku Klux Klan leader. He falls in love with the pretty daughter of a Northern man who has come south to organize the so-called Black League. Ben Cameron courts the daughter and firmly opposes every move of the father. In the end he wins the girl's hand and saves them both from the clutches of the Malatto Lieutenant Governor of the State. Under Ben's leadership the Ku Klux drive the carpetbaggers and had measure out of the State and restored the old regime. The prices of seats range from 50 cents to $1.50 for the evening performance, and are 25 cents, 75 cents and $1.00 at the matinees.

The Marine Railway Wharf Property and Oyster House, owned by the late Capt. W. R. Adams, Seaford, Del., is offered for sale to close the estate. The Railway is in good condition and capable of handling boats of 75 tons or under. The adjoining wharf property is also valuable as a manufacturing location. Located in the heart of the town. Full particulars and price will be furnished by E. J. Nichols, 21 Dey Street, New York.

NEWS AT ANNAPOLIS.

U. S. Senator To Succeed Mr. Whyte. Local Option Bill In Senate. Primary Bills. Local Measures.

The grid that always sets in during the last days of the legislature has begun to set in, and bills will be rushed through both houses for the next few days as rats that will make it likely that much ill-considered and ill-advised legislation will be enacted. This is the favorite season for the lobbyist and those who are desirous of getting through legislation that would not stand the light of publicity, for in the mass of legislation that is usually rushed through at the last hours it is practically impossible for members to give their attention to every bill that is taken up. The rule that no new legislation can be introduced in the last ten days was intended to a certain extent to correct this evil as well as to keep down the mass of legislation, but "snakes" and "fake" clauses are often rushed through at this season.

U. S. Senator.

The death of Sen. William Pickney Whyte bids fair to add additional burden at this time, as the legislature will be called upon to elect his successor. There was some talk of its being necessary to call an extra session of the legislature for this purpose, but Gov. Crothers has expressed himself as being opposed to one, and the question of the legality of the election of his successor by this legislature will be put up to the United States Senate. It is generally understood Sen. Elton John Walter Smith will be elected to fill out the unexpired term.

Local Option Bill.

The Anti-Saloon League, after the defeat of the Local Option Bill in the house last week is making an effort to bring the issue to the front through an amended bill in the Senate, and it is said that an effort will be made to compel the Temperance Committee of the Senate to report the Bill. They claim that the amended bill will go through the House if the Senate will not upon it first. They are evidently going to put the members of the Senate on record as favorable or opposed to the bill at any rate.

Primary's Bills.

In addition to the state primary bills introduced by Sen. Gorman last week, the Sen. has introduced a Senatorial Primary Bill, which provides for the election of United States Senators by a primary system, the features being that each legislative district is to elect its own representatives as to the men they are to vote for, as was the case in last fall's primary election. This bill as well as the State Primary Bill introduced by Sen. Gorman has aroused considerable opposition on the ground that they are simply evading the promises made by the Democrats in their platform, and do not afford any real relief from the present conditions—especially in this case in the General Primary Bill, introduced, which is nothing more than perpetuating our present convention system, and does not give the people the right of direct voting for the candidates, as was certainly the meaning of the Platform of the Democratic Party. Attorney General Isaac Lohr Strauss' bill, drawn on the line of promises made and providing for a real primary reform has not as yet been introduced.

Local Measures.

Senator Price has introduced a bill providing for a new charter for the city of Salisbury. It is believed that the intention of the charter is to give our Council much more latitude and power in handling the affairs of our city, and that our councilman will be placed on a salary basis instead of as at present giving their services.

The bill to change our present liquor law as outlined in our last week's issue has been introduced in the Senate by Sen. Price. The clause forbidding intra-state shipments of alcoholic beverages was omitted, but the Search and Seizure clause was retained. It is believed that the bill as introduced will prove an effective remedy against the dangers of Spurious, and will make the detection of the sale of liquor so easy of exposure that few will care to risk it. The bill is regarded as a very fair one as provisions are made for the use of alcohol for private consumption, religious and medicinal purposes, headed in of course with sufficient restrictions and forms to render the abuse of any of these unlikely, and only intends to prohibit its sale, which is forbidden, either on the ground directly or in directly through an agent. In other words, the saloons, speak-easies, and walking agents are what the law is intended to abolish.

A mason has been engaged to brick the grave of the saloon on May 1st in Worcester, 20,000 hard bricks will be used and two car loads of Portland cement to make a lasting job and over the grave will be erected a stone. On the tomb will be inscribed "Victory to home, womanhood, childhood and good citizenship; for the devil is dead and this is his tomb."

WILMINGTON CONFERENCE

In Session. Partial Report Of Presiding Elder Of Salisbury District.

The Wilmington M. E. Conference is now in session at Wilmington. In his annual report for Salisbury District Rev. Adam Stengle, presiding elder says:

Reva. C. A. Grise and F. E. Bolton, faithful members of the district died during the year. The following changes on the district increased the salaries of their pastors: Somerset, $200; Sharptown $140; Orisfield, Mt. Pleasant, Laurel and Powellville, $100 each; Fruitland $75; Marion and Newark, $50 each. The Ladies Aid Societies of the district raised $4,500. Orisfield having the banner society with $500 to its credit. The churches paid off $9,000 of their $14,000 indebtedness. In addition to this expenditure $9,500 was spent on church repairs.

A new church has been built at Millville at a cost of $6,000 and others will be erected at Stockton and Orisfield. In no part of the vast field of Christian activity was there manifested more enthusiasm than in the effort to down the saloon, believing it to be the greatest of evils of modern times. The temperance tide is still in the flood and it will soon be high water when these hell traps will be swept from every part of this fair Peninsula.

I am sorry that I cannot say that this fight for God and humanity was cordially supported by all preachers of the gospel, for some did not give their unqualified endorsement; some did not even feel interested enough to become registered in order to vote against license. I am sorry that some of our members, even official members, were so disloyal to God and the church that they gave their influence and it is alleged, even their votes for license. Like Judas they betrayed their Lord, but unlike that traitor they did not hang themselves, but continue to live a reproach to the church and an obstruction of the gospel's course. But while the gospel lamp holds out to burn, the vilest sinners may return. One Methodist preacher on the district was found on the side of license.

After making some of the men who aided the temperance cause Mr. Stengle said, "God will surely reward such unselfish devotion, and surely such devotion will soon usher in the glorious millenium. And thank God we have many men of this class. Brothers, the hand writing is on the wall proclaiming the speedy overthrow of King Alcohol and the coronation of our King Jesus."

The number of conversions on the district totalled 1,500. The church is on higher ground with broader views, clearer faith, stronger purpose and brighter hope. Good work has been accomplished by the young peoples societies of the district during the year.

Salisbury Wants Conference.

Another city has appeared as an applicant for the next session of the conference. Rev. T. E. Marindale is prepared to present to the conference an urgent invitation from the citizens of Salisbury, Md. Milford is also prominently mentioned.

The Kenerly and Mitchell store is ablaze with new Spring styles for young men and boys; come in and look.

Attractive at Skating Rink.

THE OCEAN CITY

Of Today And What It Might Be Without Liquor Saloons.

So Ocean City is threatening to secede from Worcester County? I wonder how far they propose to go. The farms near it are not now as productive as they were twenty years ago, and the citizens near it have had many a heart ache because of its contaminating influence upon their boys and girls. A cancer makes the whole body sick and Ocean City has proved to be as bad as one to the Eastern Shore. There has a theory grown up under the present management of Ocean City that to be a successful watering place, vice must be pandered to and that virtue will not go to the seaside. Now they have nearly accomplished this. Year ago most of the Sunday School excursions went there on their picnics, now they have ceased to do so, because of the revolting spectacle of drunkenness. It is boasted that Sunday never crosses the bridge, at any rate you cannot find it there. The Sunday trains have to be policed to protect the public from rowdiness. The church is not able to run successfully a Sunday School there in summer. Even the present Mayor of Ocean City is in favor of abolishing the liquor business two years ago and he must be misquoted when it is said he favors it. No man is safe in the lower end of the town from robbery or assault and battery after nine o'clock at night in the season, if he appears to possess a watch or a ten dollar bill. This has been the fate of many.

Why has the town grown to be disreputable, and the honest men unable to walk upon it, who they are made to so upon it? Nearly half the property on the Island is in the hands of a Receiver. Why has the grade of visitors gone down and only a poor class of people now visit there or invalids seeking health as a cheap resort?

Take ram out of the place and in five years with men in charge who respect responsibility instead of running a little tinner denunciations as a vice class hall, then you will see the beach covered with cottages. The natural advantage of the place will not induce people to live there at the cost of having their children corrupted.

Now all the citizens at the beach are not of the opinion that liquor is a benefit to our resort. Some of our best people of our County live there and are anxious to see a change of policy and at least half of the vote from them will be dry and it is very possible to leave them in the corruptible limits to settle the question. We believe the majority would vote to abolish the saloon.

The Ram business in Worcester has made conditions intolerable and we are determined to abolish it.

Copied.

MRS. MARY MEYER.

Mrs. Mary Meyer, Thomson Avenue, near Shell Road, Win. N. Y. writes:

"I have suffered from weak lungs and catarrhal troubles for four years, brought on by many neglected colds, but on the recommendation of a friend I gave Peruna an honest trial and I am pleased to state that it restored me to perfect health. There is not the slightest trace of catarrh in my system and my lungs are perfectly sound."

"Unhesitatingly give this testimony."

Mrs. William Hohmann, 509 N. Paulina St., Chicago, Ill., writes:

"I suffered with catarrh of the bronchial tubes and had a terrible cough ever since a child. After a while it got so bad I had to cough both winter and summer. Finally, I burst a blood vessel in my throat from the strain of coughing, next a blood vessel in my stomach, so I kept getting worse and doctoring, and even then could get no relief. I thought, and everybody else, that I had consumption."

"Reading the papers about Peruna I decided to try it, without the least bit of hope that it would do me any good. But after taking three bottles I noticed a change. My appetite got better, so I kept on, never got discouraged."

"Finally I seemed not to cough so much, and the pain in my chest got better. I am well now. I cannot tell you how grateful I am, and I cannot thank Peruna enough. It has cured what doctors have failed. People who think they have consumption better try Peruna."

MRS. BEULAH R. BROOME.

Mrs. Beulah R. Broome, 409 12th St., N. E., Washington, D. C., writes:

MRS. JOSE SCHAEFFER.

Mrs. Jose Schaeffer, General Delivery, Appleton, Wisconsin, writes:

"I contracted a severe cold which settled on my lungs in very short order, and it was not long until it developed into a serious case of catarrh. Every morning I would raise a lot of phlegm, which was very disagreeable. My digestion was poor and my lungs sore."

"After a few doses of Peruna I began to mend, and felt that if I kept on taking it it would not be long until I would be well. I was right, for in four weeks I was well again."

"I think Peruna is a grand medicine, and wish to add my testimony to the many others you have."

The fight against consumption is becoming a national problem. Everywhere we hear of sanitariums established at the expense of the state for the treatment of the vast army of consumptives.

The open air treatment, fresh air and sunlight, are recognized by the medical profession generally as being the greatest necessities in the treatment of consumption in all its stages.

Dr. Hartman has for many years advocated the fresh air treatment for consumption. At the same time he has recognized Peruna as a useful palliative for the many distressing symptoms which accompany the white plague.

The promptness with which Peruna relieves a fresh cold, and even removes chronic colds, is well known. This explains Peruna's popularity as a reliable pulmonary remedy.

CLOSING OF WORCESTER COUNTY'S CAMPAIGN INDICATES BIG VICTORY FOR DRY.

Such a fight as has been waged against the liquor saloon over the line in our neighboring county of Worcester by its awakened citizens was probably never before seen on this Peninsula.

Hemmed in on all sides by dry territory where the saloon has been abolished by popular vote except that part occasionally washed by the healthy Atlantic and its fertile tributaries, the situation of the liquor license has been a lingering one to the reform element of afflicted Worcester as well as a menace and an injury to its neighbors, particularly adjacent sections including our own County of Wicomico which rejoices in the absence of the saloon, Sussex County, Delaware and Accomac County, Virginia. These counties have been suffering from the saloons of Worcester and well may they go over the line and tell the voters of neighboring Worcester how much better they are in every respect, morally, socially, and commercially, without the liquor saloon than with it.

Wicomico is interested in this Saturday's election because Wicomico has a right to be interested in Worcester. It wants Worcester to share the benefits of being 'dry' so far as the selling of intoxicating drinks there are concerned.

Every voter in Worcester County may rest assured that Wicomico people are better off in every respect as prominent and leading business men over ready, oral and written testimony.

We are reliably informed from authentic sources that the election Saturday will give a majority against the saloons of from 1000 to 1200, while some are estimating as high as 1500. This is as it ought to be and every voter should get in line to make the victory all the greater; well it up again is possible. It can't be too true. You have waited a long while for the chance but now you have it and you will never have cause to regret registering a vote against the sale of intoxicating liquors.

AN OFFICE HOLDER IS A PUBLIC SERVANT.

Judging from the action of some men after they are elected to represent a community in our law making bodies, they forget the citizens at home. Their new influence and aspirations make them think but little of the people they were sent to represent, and their wishes apparently have but little weight in deciding what course they shall take on any given subject. That this is true in so many cases is a matter of regret, and that this class of legislators so often escapes through the easy going nature of his constituents is a matter of equal regret.

Some legislators think, or rather calculate on the foolish mind of the public, and feel sure that though they may do hundreds of things that are not in accord with the wishes of the part of their citizens, yet they expect by one fall blow to fall in with the public view and by one act conciliate all the other things they had previously done. That a man has some individual rights as a representative of the people will readily be admitted by all but on any issue that has been decided upon by his constituents, or on any issue that there can not be any reasonable doubt as to what they want, it is undoubtedly his duty to carry out their wishes.

If he thinks that the people are wrong, then he should not attempt to thwart their will by misrepresenting them, but if he can not conscientiously support the majority's wishes then let him not out and allow some one else, who will, take his place.

Let him try, if he wishes, to persuade the public that his side is correct, let him lead the sentiment in favor of his views, indeed let it be his duty to attempt to turn public sentiment in what he regards the right channels, but it is never his duty to defeat their will openly, or by any under hand trick, and threaten that does this one is not a safe man to represent any community, and though he may attempt by some future action to rehabilitate himself in the confidence of the people, he is a dangerous man who should not be listened to for any only makes him more so. Let the people, who will be willing to admit that they are wrong, and who think he does, let them do so, and let the community have no more of him.

WORCESTER ELECTION.

The campaign being waged in Worcester County, as to whether or not saloons shall be allowed to exist is drawing to a close and Saturday will decide the question. Those opposed to the sale of intoxicants claim that the fight has been won, and that Worcester will give a large majority for the "Dry," and reports from all over the County would seem to justify this prediction. There seems to be some fear that the saloon people will flood the County with money, and attempt to stem the tide of public sentiment by this means. In connection with this it might be interesting to review the fight in Salisbury that resulted in the wiping out of this traffic. Here, as is well known, money was so plentiful that it could not be all used up. On election day the saloon men claimed when the polls were closed, that they had a majority in the ballot boxes of close to two hundred. The "Dry" admitted this claim, if all the persons that were bought voted according to their instructions. One of the most prominent leaders of the Anti-Saloon forces practically threw up his hands and said, "we are beat, our own men tell us that if the liquor men get the votes they have paid for they will carry the election by from 125 to 300. The result showed that these claims were reversed, for when the votes were counted the "Dry" had won by about the estimated majority.

The lesson in this may be that it is impossible to buy men to vote against a moral issue when their consciences are aroused and their opinion unbiased by the influence of money, would be strongly against the sale of intoxicating beverages. Even if money is used in Worcester County, it is probable that the men there would adopt the same course as was done here—take the money and then vote as they would have voted anyway.

On questions of this kind there is always an attempt to mislead the people as to the intention of those who are against the sale of liquor, one of the commonest is the one that an attempt is being made to curb the individual rights of mankind and forbid his use of alcohol in any form. This is an entirely erroneous view and is only given out with the intention to mislead and deceive. There is many a man opposed to the sale of liquor on the grounds that the saloons are a public nuisance and as such ought to be abolished. Men who will not question the rights of anyone to keep liquor in his home and to take a drink of it whenever he feels like it, but who seriously object to the streets and public highways being made a place of carousal and unseemly conduct—men who object to the streets being made unsafe on account of drunken men, and unfit for wife, daughter or children to traverse. These men believe that the license system is the chief cause for this condition and they want a change made so that they or their families can walk in any and all places without the danger of being insulted by those who have been filled up at some public house. These men have no intention of infringing upon the private rights of any man as to his use, but are opposed to its sale on the grounds of public policy, public safety and public morals.

Wicomico County is deeply interested in the results of the fight in Worcester outside of the ethical idea of doing away with its use—For like all other men who have a good thing themselves they naturally desire that the rest of their fellow-beings should be allowed to likewise enjoy the bettered and changed conditions that exist here; but Worcester County adjoining us naturally tends to influence our community for good or bad. As it now exists most of the drunkenness in Wicomico County is due to the fact that our citizens, who are in the above class avail themselves of the passages of the saloons and go over and "tank up," and then come back and make our streets and highways the scenes of their degrading and demoralizing conduct. In other words though not in the same degree, we are in the position of a man who came to the conclusion that the keeping of chickens was a nuisance, so disposed of his, but as his next door neighbor had a good healthy flock, he soon found that selling his chickens had not entirely rid him of the evil of nuisance.

Outside of our desire to see Worcester County rejoice in the improved conditions that will exist if the saloon is done away, Wicomico for its own sake is interested in the fight on Saturday and its citizens feel that it is their duty to point out to Worcester, our neighbor and friend, the advantages resulting here—That our taxes are not raised that our public schools have not suffered, that our business has steadily increased, that our moral condition is much bettered—in fact none of the dreadful things of the Whiskey Co's army Howlers have come to pass, but that after several years of trial we find ourselves benefited in every way.

Our good wishes are with those who are fighting the traffic, and our hope is that the citizens of Worcester will stand steady on Saturday, shoulder to shoulder, and vote out the liquor traffic and its attendant evils regardless of the arguments made only to deceive, tricks intended only to cheat and deprive the people of their right, or money used only to corrupt.

DOWN SOUTH IN DIXIE

Moral Transformation And Improvement
Reported From Georgia From
New Prohibition Law.

Rev. Junius W. Millard, pastor of Ponce de Leon Avenue Baptist Church of Atlanta, Georgia, who was for nine years in charge of the Eastway Place Baptist Church of Baltimore, has written the following letter to The Baltimore News concerning the operation of prohibition in Georgia:

My attention has been called to a letter in a recent issue of The News, written from Douglasville, Ga., and signed by Dr. C. Waldkoenig of Baltimore, in which he makes certain observations as to the workings of the prohibition law in Georgia, declaring that it does not prohibit in the case of the rich whites, but "it seems to deprive only the poorer class of whites and negroes" of their liquor.

As a former Baltimorean, now living in Atlanta, I am interested in this thing too, and want to say in passing that if the law succeeds only in keeping whiskey from the poor and the vicious it has gone a tremendous way toward being a splendid success. It is the poor that can least afford drink, and their families who suffer most from its effects, and I, for one, am glad that the temptation of the open saloon has at length been removed from before them.

As a result of prohibition among the poor whites, I know of a man whose little lame boy used to ride to Sunday School in a goat cart, who now drives in a new wagon drawn by a good horse, and both horse and wagon are paid for, since prohibition went into effect.

Dr. Waldkoenig is right, too, when he says that the new law deprives the negroes of drink. A perfect transformation has been wrought in Atlanta since the first of January. The vicious negro that was a menace to every home in the State, a perfect firebrand of evil when inflamed by mean whiskey, has either left the State or toned down under the new order of things. Decatur street where the Atlanta riot started, the result of whiskey, "is hardly recognizable. It has been cleaned up, and is now as respectable and quiet a thoroughfare as is to be found in all the city. All retail shops that cater to the negroes report better business, prompt payments and larger sales.

But I must take friendly issue with him when he says that there is much going on in the way of "blind-tiger" business. There is some, of course, in Georgia, for the trade in whiskey is in its very nature an outlaw. There is illicit trade in whiskey carried on right there in Baltimore where you have the open saloon as well as constant selling to minors and on Sundays. You can't put a law against liquor on the statute books that will not be constantly broken. But the records of our police courts show that the blind-tiger business is practically infinitesimal; just a little here and a little there. (And the people would rather have the tiger blind than open-eyed and active.) The law is being executed as well as any law can be just as well as the law against murder or theft. And we are not going to repeal the law because it is sometimes broken any more than we are going to repeal those laws because they are sometimes broken.

All the old saloon property that is worth using is being changed into stores and offices for legitimate trade. Real estate is higher now than ever before in the history of Atlanta. All our banks are increasing their capital stock, and the city is on a boom. Georgia will never return to the open saloon. Our people breathe easier today than at any time since the Civil War. Junius W. Millard, Atlanta, March 14.

That the leading medical writers and teachers of all the several schools of practice endorse and recommend, in the strongest terms, each and every ingredient entering into the composition of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery for the cure of weak stomach, dyspepsia, catarrh of stomach, "liver complaint," torpid liver, or biliousness, chronic bowel affections, and all catarrhal diseases of whatever region name or nature. It is also a specific remedy for all such chronic or long standing cases of catarrhal affections and their results, as bronchitis, throat and lung disease, except consumption, accompanied with severe coughs. It is not good for acute colds and coughs, but for lingering, or chronic cases it is especially efficacious in producing perfect cures. It contains Black Cherry bark, Golden Seal root, Bloodroot, Stone root, Mandrake root and Queen's root—all of which are highly praised as remedies for all the above mentioned affections by such eminent medical writers and teachers as Prof. Bartholow, of Jefferson Med. College, Chicago; Prof. John King, M. D. late of Cincinnati; Prof. John M. Souder, late of Cincinnati; Prof. Edwin M. Hale of Hahnemann Med. College, Chicago, and scores of others eminent in their several schools of practice.

—The author of "Seventy Years Young," Mrs. Emily P. Bishop, declares that it is as easy to do as to wish to do, and quotes this incident:—

"A little girl's brother got a trap to catch birds. She knew it was wrong. She went at first, then a little later her mother noticed that she had become cheerful once more, and inquired as to the cause.

"What did you do?" asked the mother.

"I prayed for my brother to be made a better boy."

"I prayed that the trap would not catch any little birds."

"What else?"

"Then I went out and kicked the old trap all to pieces."

Does Your Heart Beat

Yes, 100,000 times each day. Does it send out good blood or bad blood? You know, for good blood is good health; bad blood, bad health! And you know precisely what to take for bad blood—Ayer's Sarsaparilla. Doctors have endorsed it for 60 years.

One frequent cause of bad blood is a sluggish liver. This produces constipation. Poisonous substances are then absorbed into the blood. Keep the bowels open with Ayer's Sarsaparilla.

Geo. W. Truitt, Plaintiff, vs. Elizabeth B. Nelson, Sophie C. Down, Jos. ph Down, her husband; Annie M. Hall, William B. Hall, her husband; Lydia J. Johnson, her husband; John M. Souder, her husband; Maud G. Hall, Philip P. Hall, her husband; Defendants.

No. 1795 Chancery. In the Circuit Court for Wicomico County and State of Maryland. January term, 1906.

The object of this suit is to procure a decree for the sale of certain real estate in Wicomico County and State of Maryland, of which Thos. J. Nelson, late of Wicomico died, seized and possessed, for the payment of the debts of the said deceased.

The bill states that the said Thomas J. Nelson was, in his lifetime, indebted unto George W. Truitt in the sum of fifty-four dollars ($54.00) for sundry matters and things for medical attention, properly chargeable in an account, and unto other persons; that the said Thomas J. Nelson being so indebted unto the said plaintiff, departed this life on or about August fifth, nineteen hundred and six, devising by his last will and testament all his real estate to be sold, and after the payment of all expenses incurred in making said sale and the payment of all his debts, excepting his burial expenses, the balance of the proceeds therefrom to be divided one-third thereof to his wife, Elizabeth B. Nelson, and the remaining two-thirds thereof to be divided equally between Sophie C. Down, his daughter, Lydia J. Johnson, his daughter, Annie M. Hall, his daughter, and Maud G. Hall, his grand-daughter, and leaving real estate of great value, but not personal estate of value, surviving him, his wife, the said Elizabeth B. Nelson, who resides in said Wicomico County, and Sophie C. Down, a daughter, who is married to Joseph Down; Annie M. Hall, a daughter, who has been married to William B. Hall, Lydia J. Johnson, a daughter, who has been married to William B. Johnson, as his only children and sole heirs at law, and that the said Lydia J. Johnson, William B. Johnson, her husband, Maud G. Hall and Philip P. Hall, her husband, are non-residents of the State of Maryland, and so much thereof as may be necessary, to pay the claim of the plaintiff and other unpaid creditors.

IT IS, THEREFORE, this twenty-ninth day of February in the year nineteen hundred and eight, ordered by the Circuit Court for said Wicomico County in Equity, that the plaintiff, by causing a copy of this order to be inserted in some newspaper published in said Wicomico County once in each of four successive weeks before the fifteenth day of April next, give notice to the said absent defendants of the object and nature of the said bill, warning them to be and appear in this Court in person or by solicitor on or before the first day of May next to show cause, if any they have, why a decree ought not to be passed as aforesaid.

EYES DON'T SEE ALONE

Not All Living Beings See Precisely As Humans Do.

SOME ARE ALMOST BLIND

Others Can Tell the Direction of a Source of Light But Nothing More—Still Others Capable of Forming Large Number of Separate Images.

Those who have given no particular attention to the subject are apt to assume that all living beings that have organs called "eyes" see precisely as we do, and are able, as we are, to form images of objects in their field of vision. This is not the case. The eyes of some creatures resemble the eyes of a person in almost total blindness, in that they form no images, but merely distinguish between light and darkness. Others can tell the direction of a source of light but nothing else; and others still, the so-called compound eyes, appear to be capable of forming a large number of separate small images whose uses are still doubtful. The functions of organs for the perception of light in various creatures have generally been studied by observation of the optical properties of these organs. A new and interesting method has been devised and used by Leon J. Cole, of the Museum of Comparative Zoology at Harvard, who has tried to make the insects and reptiles answer questions about their own visual abilities, by means of their behavior in the face of certain conditions.

"Mr. Cole devised an arrangement by which two sources of illumination were so placed as to cause one or other to illuminate the eyes. Suppose an animal positive in its reactions to direct light is so placed as to be midway between two luminous areas of the same shape, size, and intensity, the one acting on the right eye and the other on the left. Thus simultaneously stimulated on each side, the animal might go straight ahead without turning, or in might turn at random toward one light more than the other, and as the animal is positively phototropic it would continue to crawl toward this light. But the chance of random movement, in one direction is as great as in the other, in a large number of trials we should find the number of times that the animal would go toward each light would be practically equal."

If the total amount of light should remain the same on each side, but one luminous area should be enlarged to one hundred times its original size, the animal would still be indifferent if it had cells sensory to light distributed all over its skin. There being no apparatus for concentrating the light, the amount received at any point of the skin on either side would be equal to that received by any other. In an animal having eyes that form a good image the case is different. Says the writer: "The small light would form on the retina an image half as large as the larger one, but the light would have considerable intensity. On the retina of the other eye there would be an image covering a larger area, but each area would receive a (very small) light intensity. In all probability we should expect an animal to react more strongly to that stimulus which fell upon the larger number of visual elements, that an animal normally positive attracted. With the earthworm the intensity of the light is the controlling factor in its movements, since it has no eyes, but only a skin sensitive to light. The largest of the land planarians has small direction eyes. It turned away from the larger luminous area more often than from the smaller. The larva of the mealworm has two or three ocelli on each side of the head, but no images. It treats alike lights of different areas, the responses showing that ability to form distinctive images is lacking. The sow-bug has a group of about thirty ocelli on the side of the head, but its responses were even less definite than those of the mealworm. The cockroach has a well-developed compound eyes, and is keenly sensitive to differences of light and shade. But Mr. Cole does not think that the eyes form better images than those already mentioned. The mountain-dew beetle crawls and flies toward a source of light, and can discriminate between lights of different area but equal intensity. The cricket for distinguishes between luminous areas of different size but equal intensity. When its optic nerve is cut, it still moves toward the light, but without making this distinction, so that light is not perceived by the skin as well as by the eyes. To quote further: "Mr. Cole concludes: 'A query which Romanes found among Darwin's manuscript notes shows careful observation and puts the question of light-attraction of insects very clearly. It is as follows: 'Query: Why do moths and certain gnats fly toward candles, and why are they not all driven away to the moon—at least when the moon is on the horizon?' I formerly observed that they fly very much less at candles on a moonlight night. Let a cloud pass over, and they are again attracted to the candle."

A Good Guide.

Governor Vandeman of Mississippi, in the course of an address in Jackson, repeated a pithy saying of the famous Bishop Wilberforce. "Bishop Wilberforce," he said, "was once driving one day when a man on horseback stopped him, and thinking to have a joke, asked: 'Excuse me, bishop, but could you tell me the road to Heaven?' 'Certainly, sir,' the bishop answered. 'Turn to the right, and keep straight on.'"

GROWTH OF CHURCHES IN 1907.

Roman Catholics Made Largest Net Gain, Episcopalians Highest Rate. Some figures on the relative strength and growth of the various Churches of the United States are given by Dr. Carroll in the Christian Advocate.

In the year 1907 total number of communicants was 21,148,445; a net gain for that year of 619,155. This membership was distributed as follows: Roman Catholics first, with 10,785,496, net gain 193,122; Methodists second, with 6,429,815, gain 101,892; Baptists come third, with 4,974,047, gain 72,687; Lutherans fourth, with 3,413,346, gain 51,580; Presbyterians fifth, with 1,732,871, gain 26,174; Disciples of Christ sixth, with 1,235,294, gain of 1,428; Episcopalians seventh, with 837,137, gain of 19,203; Congregationalists eighth, with 687,042, gain 13,321; Reformed (Dutch and German) ninth, with 405,022, gain 4,021.

The percentage of gain is interesting, for the largest denominations are not, except in the case of the Methodists, enjoying the same rate of growth as some of the smaller ones. In their percentage of increase they stand in this order: Lutheran, 0.28; Episcopalians, 0.23; Congregationalists, 0.18; Roman Catholics, 0.17; Methodists, 0.15; Presbyterians, 0.15; Baptists, 0.14; Reformed, 0.08; Disciples of Christ, 0.01.

The large rate of increase of the Lutheran denomination may be partly accounted for by immigration. Methodists and Baptists are doing most for the negro of the South and are very strong in that section. The Baptist growth in the North, where they number 1,075,838, was 4,864; but the Methodist Episcopal Church North, 2,916,779 strong, had a growth of 52,547.

The First Stove.

The most important uses of fire were taught by fire itself. As the primitive man stood near the flames of the burning tree, and felt their pleasant glow he learned that fire may add to bodily comfort; and when the flames went through a forest and overtook a deer, and baked it, he learned that fire might be used to improve the quality of his food. The hint was not lost. He took a burning torch to his cave or hut and kindled him a fire on his floor of earth. His dwelling filled with smoke, but he could endure the discomfort for the sake of the toasty comfort of the cooked meats. After a time a hole was made in the roof of the hut, and through this hole the smoke passed out. Here was the first stove. The primitive stove was the entire house; the floor was the fireplace and the hole in the roof was the chimney. The word "stove" originally meant "a heated room."

ITEMS OF INTEREST.

Of British birds' eggs a complete set is worth about $290.
Great Britain spends on tobacco and pipes about $14,000,000 every year.

About 3,500,000 people are on the sea, either as passengers or seamen, every day in the year.

Herat, in Afghanistan, is the city which has been most often destroyed. Fifty-six times have its walls been laid in ruins, and fifty-seven times have they been built.

Plate-layers are more liable to accident than any other railway workmen. On an average, they have every thirty-five hours in the United Kingdom.

No one has yet been able to construct a vessel which can resist the force of freezing water. Twenty-pound steel shells have been rent as if they were glass.

Obsolete Foods.

In Great Britain we have left off eating many wild creatures that formerly were accounted delicacies. For example, the young gulls—we mean the black-headed, inland nesting variety—used to be collected and sold for pies and puddings. There is still a tradition in favor of rock pike, but the number of rooks that come on the market is a decreasing quantity every year. Squirrels used to be eaten quite commonly too.—Country Life.

Census Taking in China.

In China an odd way of taking the census prevails. The cities and towns are arranged in groups of ten houses. The oldest man in each group visits the oldest houses, which, by his own, makes up the group, counts the members of every family, and sends his report to the Imperial Census Bureau.

Discovery of Champagne.

Champagne was discovered in the seventeenth century by a monk named Perignon. The inmates of the abbey kept the secret, and the enjoyment of the sparkling fluid for many years. In its old age Perignon once invented a peculiar cork which is used to the present day.

Fuller's Earth in Industries. Fuller's earth is now being put to various uses, for filling wood, clarifying lard and cottonseed oil, and as a bleacher and cleanser it is invaluable. Nearly 40,000 tons are used yearly, of which Florida produces three-fourths.

Cost of Individual Fingers.

The thumb and fingers have their own industrial value. Two French experts consider that the loss of the right thumb lessens the value of the hand 30 per cent, and the left thumb 20 per cent; the index finger, 10 to 20 per cent and middle finger, 8 to 12 per cent.

Honesty in War.

A recent fight with brigands in Chalchula resulted in the death of a soldier. The brigands sent $5,000 to his widow. Brigand-killers who hold up a favorite Australian official, discovered later the identity of their victim. They returned his horse, with his wallet tied about his neck, and his money and watch inside. Even the Chinese pirates have some honor, a naval reviewer, and will pay for the life of vessels which they have captured for their captivities.

OUR BOYS AND GIRLS*Boundin' Billy's Fall From Grace.

Uncle Rufus came up the drive in his usual style. His vehicle was a dilapidated bob-sled. One runner lacked a shoe and a stick of cord-wood did duty as a seat.

Uncle Rufus stretched his legs at a wide angle on the two runners and he had to look around "Boundin' Billy" to see the road ahead of him, for the old horse loomed tall and stately on his stiff legs.

"Boundin' Billy" received his name "foh de Wah," when he was young and handsome and graceful. He had carried a young and handsome captain through many battles, and in his old age it had fallen to him to look peacefully toward the grave, hand in hand (so to speak) with Uncle Rufus.

Uncle Rufus had been the body guard of the young and handsome captain, and he was justly proud of his comrade of the road.

"He's a powerful heart horse yit," Uncle Rufus remarked to Dan and Tom, who stopped to pass the time of day with him. "Ag, cildy! He ain't nutter shied since I owned him."

"Don't you think it could scare him," Uncle Rufus said, stroking the thing that "Boundin' Billy" called his name.

"Hah, hah!" chuckled Uncle Rufus. "Yeh-alls might scare him, but yeh couldn't make him run away. He got too much confidence in me, Boundin' Billy has, an' I got confidence in him, I has."

"I bet we can do it," said Tom. "Yeh-alls better not try it. Yeh gwine git hit of yeh, dan."

Wills' Kidney Salve
For Kidney, Bladder, Rheum.

Often The Kidneys Are Weakened By Over-Work.

Unhealthy Kidneys Make Impure Blood.
It used to be considered that only urinary and bladder troubles were to be traced to the kidneys, but now modern science proves that nearly all diseases have their beginning in the disorder of these most important organs.

The kidneys filter and purify the blood—
that is their work.

Therefore, when your kidneys are weak or out of order, you can understand how quickly your entire body is affected and how every organ seems to fail to do its duty.

If you are sick or "feel badly," begin taking the great kidney remedy, Dr.
Kilmer's Swamp-Root, because as soon as your kidneys are well they will help all the other organs to health. A trial will convince anyone.

If you are sick you can make no mistake by first doctoring your kidneys.
The mild and extraordinary effect of Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, the great kidney remedy, is soon realized. It stands the highest for its wonderful cures of the most distressing cases, and is sold on its merits by all druggists in fifty-cent and one-dollar size bottles. You may have a sample bottle

of this great kidney remedy, also a pamphlet telling you how to find out if you have kidney or bladder trouble. Mention this paper when writing to Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y. Don't make any mistake, but remember the name, Swamp-Root, Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, and the address, Binghamton, N. Y., on every bottle.

"No!" He had drawn himself apart; stood there, handsome and distant with a hectic little spot on his cheek. "No, we will not!" It was now or never, Otway—I mean it!
Choose quickly—yes or no. The other's half-impulsive shrug indicated him beyond measure; he waited for no more. "Very well!" That said it; remember it's your own doing. Good night—and good-by!

Yes; that was it. "Goodnight—and good-by!" Full five minutes after he had sung out of the room the older man stood there in the gathering darkness trying to realize, to make himself believe that he had really done it. Otway could surely never mean it—never!

He turned back to those carefully written sheets of manuscript. Just one more look to make sure that he had copied them correctly, then he would wrap them up and put them away safely till morning. Till he could carry them with his own hands to the big college where their fate was to be decided. Too precious to be trusted to the post.

In the morning there was no letter.
The hours passed, with no Clive, and he grew fidgety; told himself that he had been harsh and ungenerous.
In the afternoon, anxious to purchase reconciliation at any price he went to the bank, withdrew his little stock of money—earned by playing at occasional concerts—and sent five at once, with a few hasty words, to Clive's address. By night they were back at his own, with no word at all.
He had snatched up hat and gloves, and was rushing round to Clive's lodgings at top speed.

"Mr. Almsworth!" he panted, as the door opened to his knock. "Come out!" the woman of the house had snapped, the sweeping sounds of the violin that came from the room above giving her words the lie even as she spoke; and it was straightway closed in his face. Small wonder that afterward there was only silence, and a breath that widened with the day.

A time of strenuous work and harder waiting. None but the man himself could ever know the bitterness of those dragging weeks, the hopes of one day that were fears the next.
When the fateful day had dawned at last his restlessness knew no restraint. The hours literally crawled toward night. He was in the crowd that thronged the big concert hall.
To-night would either make or mar him, a few more minutes would decide.

Ladies and gentlemen—After very careful consideration, the judges in this interesting contest have awarded the palm to the composition submitted by Mr. Clive Almsworth—

To one man in that vast audience it seemed as if his heart had beaten to beat. Just a year since the haired girl had looked up at him for that one instant of time with the strange, new, wonderful light in her eyes, and promised to wait. All dreams for the future shattered irre-trievably, and—irony of fate—it was Clive Almsworth who had beaten him.

And then—Was it real, or only a trick of fancy, the plaything of his over-wrought imagination? That opening phrase, those first few bars of melody that had floated softly across the waiting hall! Never Clive Almsworth's—never any one's but his own! There was some mistake, a ghastly blunder in the name, or else—

Dazed, stunned, unable for a moment to realize the bitter truth, he sat there listening to the smooth andante, the tripping allegretto, that rushing rhythmic melody with the world chromatic scale passages for the violins—his own, every note!
The priceless symphony on which he had spent so many hours, built so many hopes!

Dead sea fruit that storm of cheers that broke from the audience at its close; gall and wormwood.
Those repeated cries of "Encore! Encore!" Next thing he knew he was outside in the cool, fresh air, trying to think it all out—that bitter, blinding sense of treachery dimming all else in his brain. What did it mean —what could it mean—save one thing? Stolen!

Three solid hours he tramped the streets, beating out that grim tragedy of a lifetime. Incredible, unthinkable, that the man who had been his friend could have carried palmistry rage so far!

And then—He had reached his lodgings, gone up the creaky stairs with the heavy shuffling tread of one foot-weary and dejected, and thrown open the door of his room, and—

"Clive!"

That moment would surely live forever in his memory. There they stood a full minute, facing one another, neither seeking to break the straining silence. Then—

"Stephen, you were there! You heard—"

"Yes; I heard!" A world of bitter accusation in the tone. His lips had framed the words hot and angry; but he beat the impulse back and waited to hear more.

"I was mad—out of my senses!
It was that night you refused to lend me the money. You had showed me the sheets and told me they were finished, and I saw the chance to be revenged. I came back here after you had gone out. They were in that drawer, made up into a parcel and addressed; and I took them out, put blank ones in their place—"

"You stole them!"

"Yes, I can never say you to forgive me, never forgive myself.
Ever since then I have lived in torture, hoping that some other night
I would be successful; but you can't hear me

sun of bitterness is full; I am punished tenfold. My father—Here, look! I—I can't say it!"

A telegram had fluttered from his hand. Otway picked it up mechanically, and read: "Father dangerously ill; come at once.—Sybil."

Next moment he had faced back sharply.

"Well."

"I can't go, Stephen! I—Idaren't now!" It was almost a scream. The dear old governor had set his heart on my winning this thing; and I couldn't—couldn't tell him—The voice broke off into a convulsive sob;
the man was shaking like an aspen.
Otway looked at him pityingly; then crossed the room and began to finger a railway time table.

"Twelve fifteen from Boston!" He pulled out his watch; stood in thought a moment. "I'll go!" he said, curtly. "You can stay here if you like!"

"You will! Heaven bless you for that, Stephen!" said the other, fervently. "You're a good fellow! It's ten times more than I deserve. Send word how—how things are going, won't you?"

Five minutes later Stephen Otway caught himself wondering for the second time that night if the whole of it was not a dream. No dream, however, that midnight journey into Warrickshire; no dream that white-faced girl who crept softly down stairs in the early dawn to greet him, the startled confusion starting from her eyes before ever she spoke a word.

"Stephen! But where is Clive? He will be too late!" His mumbled falsetto, and then: "Yes; very ill indeed! A sudden heart attack; the doctor has been with him half the night. You will not mind if I go back!"

Later she came to him again. He found himself following obediently up the stairs into the darkened room where old Farley Almsworth lay, very still and very feeble.

"Stephen, my boy, how are you?"
The words were hard to catch, all but indistinct. "Clive is coming soon, they tell me! I want to see the lad once more, to tell him I am proud—we are all proud. He won the medal, Stephen, eh? Couldn't help but win it, could he?"

The wrinkled hand was quivering feebly in his own. Bending down to listen, Stephen Otway remembered the debt of gratitude he owed the old man lying there. He glanced across at the girl standing by the window.

"Yes, he won it," he said quietly.

Later, walking away from that house with closed shutters and the drawn blinds, it seemed to him that either the world had grown different or he very old and weary. Nothing mattered now; all the days would be alike—a miserable, haunting drudgery. He recollected reaching Boston and walking to his lodgings; but nothing more was clear. His brain rocked stupidly; there was a dull ache, and a sense of heaviness that bore him steadily down—down
—till at last there came a final blank.

Ten whole days that grim snap of feverish unconsciousness remained;
and life and death were playthings twixt which he hovered like a trea-ful child, uncertain which to choose.
When the dark cloud lifted he knew that he was lying in bed; there was a little table holding medicines by his side. The dark-robed figure seated by the window heard him move;
it struck him that the figure was familiar; what could Sybil be doing here? He said her name, half expecting the vision to dissolve.

"Stephen! Oh, how glad I am!"
She came to him with joy shining bravely in her face. "There, don't try to talk; lie still and get quite strong and well. I know everything all the miserable story. Clive has told me what a hero you have been."

Afterward! Nay, the story is too trite. Stephen Otway and his wife are happy, and success has come to him in plenty since then.—W. Stron-ton Spalding.

Five Classes of Mules.

Many persons do not know what constitutes the five classes of marketable mules known as cotton mules, lumber mules, railroad mules, sugar mules and miners. Cotton mules are most numerous. They range from 13 to 16 hands high and may be various builds so long as they are strong. They sell at $75 to $100 apiece.

Lumber mules are large, heavy boned and dugged for use in big lumber camps. Their price ranges up to $250. The railroad mules are similar, but need not have so much weight. They are $15 to $30 cheaper.
They are used in grading and excavating. Sugar mules are lighter. They must be smooth, with small heads and neck and smaller bones. Their price is from $65 to $110.

Farm mules are the class rejected from the other classes. Lumber mules are used near steamboats and docks for the heavy work. The miners are the hardest class to supply. They must be either a dark bay or black color. While and sorrel mules are never used. Where the mules have cold region especially, they say a white mule resembles a ghost and frightens the other mules beyond control.

The government buys all classes of Missouri mules, but never a cheap one, and the examination of mules for the public service is rigid.

A Portrait of King Charles Stuart, by Dobson, which, at a sale in 1833, failed to realize more than $37.50, was sold by auction in London recently for $1,365.

MANUFACTURER OF

Fertilizers FOR ALL CROPS.

For STRAWBERRIES—A fertilizer that is said to prevent frosts from injuring blossoms to a great extent; also make nice berries and make the size hold up well in case of long drouths. I have experimented on this particular kind for the past six years.

WHITE POTATOES—A fertilizer that will make a good crop (season permitting) without being too expensive.

CORN Fertilizer, for best results, must contain ingredients that will not burn the crop under the worst weather conditions.

TOMATO and CANTALOUPE Fertilizer is another study of mine.
To get best results with smallest outlay consistent with what is expected out of the crop, the plants must grow fast from the start and have a fertilizer that contains all necessary elements.

Any kind of goods mixed to order on short notice. It is to my best interest to study the needs of the farmer in this line.

Mortgage Tax Accounts.

The County Treasurer is engaged this week in making out accounts for taxes due on mortgages. With these accounts he is sending out the following circular letter. In the mean time he requests persons owing the county on these accounts to call and settle at once.

Notice.

Enclosed you will find bill for Mortgage Tax due to September 1st, 1907, the date when the last year ended for the collection of these taxes. The legality of this tax was questioned some time ago and a friendly suit instituted for the purpose of settling the validity of the law. The Court has just rendered a decision sustaining the law valid, so the County Treasurer will proceed at once to collect all back taxes due on these accounts. No bill for these taxes were rendered while the subject was in litigation. The Treasurer asks, now that the law has been declared Constitutional, that these taxes be paid at once. Very truly,

Thos. Perry, Treas.
Salisbury, Md., Wicomico County.
March 14, 1906.

as Second Class matter.CLOSING OF WORCESTER COUNTY'S CAM-PAIGN INDICATES BIG VICTORY FOR DRY.

Such a fight as has been waged against the liquor saloon over the line in our neighboring county of Worcester by its awakened citizens was probably never before seen on this Peninsula.

Hemmed in on all sides by dry territory where the saloon has been abolished by popular vote except that part miserably washed by the healthy Atlantic and its fertile tributaries, the attention of the liquor license law has been a lingering sore to the reform element of afflicted Worcester as well as a menace and an injury to its neighbors, particularly adjacent sections including our own County of Wicomico which rejoices in the absence of the saloon, Sussex County, Delaware and Accomac County, Virginia. These counties have been suffering from the saloon of Worcester and well may they go over the line and tell the voters of neighboring Worcester how much better they are in every respect, morally, socially, and commercially, without the liquor saloon than with it.

Wicomico is interested in this Saturday's election because Wicomico has a right to be interested in Worcester. It wants Worcester to share benefits of being "dry" so far as the selling of intoxicating drinks there are concerned.

Every voter in Worcester County may rest assured that Wicomico people are better off in every respect as prominent and leading business bear over ready, oral and written testimony.

We are reliably informed from authentic sources that the election Saturday will give a majority against the saloon of from 1000 to 1200, while some are estimating as high as 1800.

This is as it ought to be and every voter should be in line to make the victory all the greater; swell it up as high as possible. It can't be too high. You have waited a long while for the chance but now you have it and you will never have cause to regret registering a vote against the sale of intoxicating liquors.

AN OFFICE HOLDER IS A PUBLIC SERVANT.

Judging from the action of some men after they are elected to represent a community in our law making bodies, they forget the citizens at home. Their new influence and associations make them think but little of the people they were sent to represent, and their wishes apparently have but little weight in deciding what course they shall take on any given subject. That this is true in so many cases is a matter of regret, and that this class of legislator so often escapes through the easy going nature of his constituents is a matter of equal regret.

Some legislators think, or rather calculate on the folk mind of the public, and feel sure that though they may do hundreds of things that are not in accord with the wishes of the part of their citizens, yet they expect by one fall blow to fall in with the public view and by one act contradict all the other things they had previously done. That a man has some individual rights as a representative of the people will readily be admitted by all but on any issue that has been decided upon by his constituency, or on any issue that there can not be any reasonable doubt as to what they want, it is undoubtedly his duty to carry out their wishes.

If he thinks that the people are wrong, then he should not attempt to thwart their will by misrepresenting them, but if he can not conscientiously support the majority's wishes then let him get out and allow some one else, who will, take his place.

Let him try, if he wishes, to persuade the public that his side is correct, let him lead the sentiment in favor of his views, indeed it is his duty to attempt to turn public sentiment in what he regards the right channel, but it is never his duty to defeat their will openly, or by any underhand trick, and then man that does this once is not a safe man to represent any community, and though he may attempt by some future action to rehabilitate himself in the confidence of the people, he is a dangerous man and should not be listened to for any only make him adopt this course and he will be willing to admit, whenever he thinks he does, that he has committed an error.

WORCESTER ELECTION.

The campaign being waged in Worcester County, as to whether or not saloons shall be allowed to exist in drawing to a close and Saturday will decide the question. Those opposed to the sale of intoxicants claim that the fight has been won, and that Worcester will give a large majority for the "Drys," and reports from all over the County would seem to justify this prediction. There seems to be some fear that the saloon people will flood the County with money, and attempt to stem the tide of public sentiment by this means. In connection with this it might be interesting to review the fight in Salisbury that resulted in the wiping out of this traffic. Here, as is well known, money was so plentiful that it could not be all used up. On election day the saloon men claimed when the polls were closed, that they had a majority in the ballot boxes of close to two hundred. The "Drys" admitted this claim, if all the persons that were bought voted according to their instructions. One of the most prominent leaders of the Anti-Saloon forces practically threw up his hands and said, "we are beat, our own men tell us that if the liquor men get the votes they have paid for they will carry the election by from 125 to 300. The result showed that these claims were reversed, for when the votes were counted the "Drys" had won by about the estimated wet majority.

The lesson in this may be that it is impossible to buy men to vote against a moral issue when their consciences are aroused and their opinion unbiased by the influence of money, would be strongly against the sale of intoxicating beverages. Even if money is used in Worcester County, it is probable that the men there would adopt the same course as was done here—take the money and then vote as they would have voted anyway.

On questions of this kind there is always an attempt to mislead the people as to the intention of those who are against the sale of liquor, one of the commonest is the one, that an attempt is being made to curb the individual rights of mankind and forbid his use of alcohol in any form. This is an entirely erroneous view and is only given out with the intention to mislead and deceive. There is many a man opposed to the sale of liquor on the grounds that the saloons are a public nuisance and as such ought to be abolished. Men who will not question the rights of anyone to keep liquor in his home and to take a drink of it whenever he feels like it, but who seriously object to the streets being made unsafe on account of drunken men, and unfit for wife, daughter or children to traverse. These men believe that the license saloon is the chief cause for this condition and they want a change made so that they or their families can walk in any and all places without the danger of being insulted by those who have been filled up at some public house. These men have no intention of intruding upon the private rights of any man as to his use, but are opposed to its sale on the grounds of public policy, public safety and public morals.

Wicomico County is deeply interested in the results of the fight in Worcester outside of the ethical idea of doing away with its use. For like all other men who have a good thing themselves they naturally desire that the rest of their fellow-beings should be allowed to likewise enjoy the bettered and changed conditions that exist here; but Worcester County adjoining us naturally tends to influence our community for good or bad. As it now exists most of the drunkenness in Wicomico County is due to the fact that our citizens, who are in the above class avail themselves of the weakness of the saloons and go over and "tank up," and then come back and make our streets and highways the scenes of their degrading and demoralizing conduct. In other words though not in the same degree, we are in the position of a man who came to the conclusion that the keeping of chickens was a nuisance, so disposed of his, but as his next door neighbor had a good healthy flock, he soon found that selling his chickens had not entirely rid him of the evil of nuisance.

Outside of our desire to see Worcester County rejoice in the improved conditions that will exist if the saloon is done away, Wicomico for its own sake is interested in the fight on Saturday and its citizens feel that it is their duty to point out to Worcester, our neighbor and friend, the advantages resulting here. That our taxes are not raised that our public schools have not suffered, that our business has steadily increased, that our moral condition is much bettered in fact none of the dreadful things of the Whiskey On Amity Howlers have come to pass, but that after several years of trial we find ourselves benighted in every way.

Our good wishes are with those who are fighting the traffic, and our hope is that the citizens of Worcester will stand steady on Saturday, shoulder to shoulder, and vote out the liquor traffic and its attendant evils regardless of the arguments made only to deceive, tricks intended only to cheat and deprive the people of their right, or money used only to corrupt.

DOWN SOUTH IN DIXIE

Reported From Georgia From
New Prohibition Law.

Rev. Julius W. Millard, pastor of Ponce de Leon Avenue Baptist Church of Atlanta, Georgia, who was for nine years in charge of the Betsey Place Baptist Church of Baltimore, has written the following letter to The Baltimore News concerning the operation of prohibition in Georgia:

My attention has been called to a letter in a recent issue of The News, written from Douglasville, Ga., and signed by Dr. C. Walden of Baltimore, in which he makes certain observations as to the workings of the prohibition law in Georgia, declaring that it does not prohibit in the case of the rich whites, but "it seems to deprive only the poorer classes of whites and negroes" of their liquor.

As a former Baltimorean, now living in Atlanta, I am interested in this thing too, and want to say in passing that if the law succeeds only in keeping whiskey from the poor and the vicious it has gone a tremendous way toward being a splendid success. It is the proof that can least afford drink, and their families who suffer most from its effects, and I, for one, am glad that the temptation of the open saloon has at length been removed from before them.

As a result of prohibition among the poor whites. I know of a man whose little lame boy used to ride to Sunday School in a goat cart, who now drives in a neat wagon drawn by a good horse, and both horse and wagon are paid for, since prohibition went into effect.

Dr. Walden is right, too, when he says that the new law deprives the negroes of drink. A perfect transformation has been wrought in Atlanta since the first of January. The vicious negro that was a menace to every home in the State, a perfect freeman of evil, when inflamed by mean whiskey, has either left the State or toned down under the new order of things. Decatur street where the Atlanta riot started, the result of whiskey, "is hardly recognizable. It has been cleaned up, and is now as respectable and quiet a thoroughfare as is to be found in all the city. All retail shops that cater to the negroes report better business, prompter payments and larger sales.

Fine Effect On Crime.

All this has had a wonderful effect on crime. For the first time in the history of the City Jail there was not a single prisoner in the big prison on January 25. In this the effect of prohibition is clearly to be seen. In January of last year there were before the Police Court 1868 prisoners, of whom 94 were charged with drunkenness. During January of this year there were 768 prisoners, of whom only 94 were charged with intoxication. Often nowadays the court adjourns by 9 o'clock in the morning. Yes, indeed, the Doctor is right. The poor whites, the negroes and the vicious classes, who suffered most by the unlimited sale of whiskey, have been enormously benefited.

But I must take friendly leave with him when he says that there is much going on in the way of "blind-liger" business. There is some, of course, in Georgia, for the trade in whiskey is in its very nature an outlaw. There is illicit trade in whiskey carried on right there in Baltimore where you have the open saloon as well as constant selling to minors and on Sundays. You can't put a law against liquor on the statute books that will not be constantly broken. But the records of our police courts show that the blind-liger business is practically infinitesimal; just a little here and a little there. (And the people would rather have the tiger blind than open eyed and active.) The law is being executed as well as any law can be just as well as the law against murder or theft. And we are not going to repeal the law because it is sometimes broken any more than we are going to repeal those laws because they are sometimes broken.

All the old saloon property that is worth using is being changed into stores and offices for legitimate trade. Real estate is higher now than ever before in the history of Atlanta. All our banks are increasing their capital stock, and the city is on a boom. Georgia will never return to the open saloon. Our people breathe easier today than at any time since the Civil War. Julius W. Millard, Atlanta, March 14.

That the leading medical writers and teachers of all the several schools of practice endorse and recommend, in the strongest terms, each and every ingredient entering into the composition of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery for the cure of weak stomach, dyspepsia, catarrh of stomach, "liver complaint," torpid liver, or biliousness, chronic bowel affections, and all catarrhal diseases of whatever region name or nature. It is also a specific remedy for all such chronic or long standing cases of catarrhal affections and their results, as bronchitis, throat and lung disease, except consumption, accompanied with severe coughs. It is not good for acute, colds and coughs, but for lingering, or chronic cases it is especially efficacious in producing perfect cures. It contains Black Cherry bark, Golden Seal root, Bloodroot, Stone root, Mandrake root and Queen's root—all of which are highly praised as remedies for all the above mentioned affections by such eminent medical writers and teachers as Prof. Bartholow, of Jefferson Med. College, Chicago; Prof. John King, M. D., late of Cincinnati; Prof. John M. Souder, late of Cincinnati; Prof. Edwin M. Hale of Hahnemann Med. College, Chicago, and scores of others eminent in their several schools of practice.

The author of "Seventy Years Young," Mrs. Emily P. Bishop, declares that it is as easy to do as to wish to do, and quotes this incident:—
"A little girl's brother set a trap to catch birds. She knew it was wrong. She wept at first, then a little later her mother noticed that she had become cheerful once more, and inquired as to the cause.

"What did you do?" asked the mother.

"I prayed for my brother to be made a better boy."

"I prayed that the trap would not catch any little birds."

"What else?"

ORDER OF PUBLICATION.

Geo. W. Truitt, Plaintiff, vs. Elizabeth B. McLean, Sophia C. Down, Jos. B. Hall, her husband; Annie M. Hall, William B. Hall, her husband; Lydia F. Johnson, William F. Johnson, her husband; Maud G. Hall, Philip F. Hall, her husband; Defendants.

No. 1705 Chancery. In the Circuit Court for Wicomico County and State of Maryland, January term, 1908.

The object of this suit is to procure a decree for the sale of certain real estate in Wicomico County and State of Maryland, of which Thos. I. S. Nelson, late of Wicomico County, died, seized and possessed, for the payment of the debts of the said deceased.

The bill alleges that the said Thos. I. S. Nelson was, in his lifetime, indebted unto George W. Truitt in the sum of fifty-four dollars ($54.00) for sundry matters and things for medical attention, properly chargeable in an account, and unto divers other persons; that the said Thos. I. S. Nelson being so indebted unto the said plaintiff, departed, this life on or about August 17th, nineteen hundred and six, leaving by his last will and testament all his real estate to be sold, and the payment of all expenses incurred in making said sale and the payment of all his debts, excepting his burial expenses, the balance of the proceeds therefrom to be divided one-third thereof to his wife, Elizabeth B. Nelson, and the remaining two-thirds thereof to be divided equally between Sophia C. Down, his daughter, Lydia F. Johnson, his daughter, Annie M. Hall, his daughter, and Maud G. Hall, his grand-daughter, and leaving real estate of great value, but not personal estate of value, and leaving surviving him his widow, Elizabeth B. Nelson, who resides in said Wicomico County, and Sophia C. Down, a daughter, who has intermarried with Joseph Down, Annie M. Hall, his daughter, who has intermarried with William B. Hall, Lydia F. Johnson, a daughter, who has intermarried with William F. Johnson, as his only children and sole heirs at law; that the said Lydia F. Johnson, William F. Johnson, her husband, Maud G. Hall and Philip F. Hall, her husband, are non-residents of the State of Maryland, residing in the State of Delaware, and prays for a decree for the sale of real estate, or so much thereof as may be necessary to pay the claims of the plaintiff, and other unsatisfied creditors.

It is THEREUPON, this twenty-ninth day of February in the year nineteen hundred and eight, ordered by the Circuit Court for said Wicomico County in Equity, that the plaintiff, by causing a copy of this order to be inserted in some newspaper published in said Wicomico County once in each of four successive weeks before the fifth day of April next, give notice to the said absent defendants of the object and substance of this bill, warning them to be and appear in this Court in person or by solicitor on or before the first day of May next, to show cause, if any they have, why a decree ought not to be granted. Mortgage Tax Accounts.

The County Treasurer is engaged this week in making out accounts for taxes due on mortgages. With these accounts he is sending out the following circular letter. In the mean time he requests persons owing the county on these accounts to call and settle at once.

Notice.

Enclosed you will find bill for Mortgage Tax due to September 1st, 1907, the date when the last year ended for the collection of these taxes. The legality of this tax was questioned some time ago and a friendly suit instituted for the purpose of settling the validity of the law. The Court Appeals has just rendered a decision upholding the law valid, so the County Treasurer will proceed at once to collect all back taxes due on these accounts. No bill for these taxes were rendered while the subject was in litigation. The Treasurer asks, now that the law has been declared Constitutional, that these taxes be paid at once. Very truly,

Thos. Perry, Treas.

Lacy Thoroughgood Guarantees to Fit You with as Swell a Suit as You Ever Saw.

Lacy Thoroughgood sells just as fine clothing as there is sold in the United States. Thoroughgood sells just as stylish clothing for well dressed as there is worn. Thoroughgood frequently has men say to him: "Oh, you're all right; you sell probably the best ready-made clothing made, but I can't get anything to fit me." Rate! That's the kind of men that make a high-priced store possible. Lacy Thoroughgood guarantees to fit you with as swell a suit of clothes as you ever saw. NO FIT-TEE, NO TAKEE.

Bear in mind that Thoroughgood's finest suits are made by B. Kuppenheimer, of Chicago; Michaels-Stern & Co., of Rochester; A. B. Kirschbaum & Co., of Philadelphia, and Alfred Benjamin & Co., of New York, and sell from $15 to $24, and you save from $8 to $10 on a suit. Don't get these suits mixed in your mind with suits from anywhere else at the same prices.

Thoroughgood sells elegant suits at $10 to $14. They are as good as anybody else in Salisbury sells for $5 more money. Say, why don't you come and see what Thoroughgood is doing? This is the place to find out whether we do as we say we do or not.

All our New Spring Clothes and John B. Stetson's Hats are ready.

Mrs. Augustus S. Brown, of Brooklyn, N. Y., is visiting Mr. and Mrs. J. M. English, Mr. and Mrs. Geo. T. Owens, Mr. and Mrs. Thos. E. Taylor and other friends near here this week.

John Wilson, of Washington, D. C., is visiting his brother Levin J. Wilson, near town.

E. B. Bennett, successor to Mack Gordy, opened his new dairy here last week and is supplying many daily customers with milk.

Mrs. Grace Brodway arrived home this week with a large stock of Millinery, and will hold her spring and summer opening of pattern hats and bonnets Wednesday and Thursday March 26th and 27th.

The Sharptown Yacht Building Company is moving up in good earnest here and the erection of a new ship was begun this week, 40x72 feet on S. J. Cooper's wharf, N. W. Owens, architect. A yacht to be used as a demonstration for the company is nearing completion; her length is 36 feet and beam 7 feet. She resembles a submarine and is quite a novelty. This enterprise is growing as a number of contracts have been secured and J. S. Smith the builder, has already commenced drafting and moulding for the new boats.

Miss Lula Wilson of Salisbury was the guest of Miss Lydia Cault Sunday last.

Deater Windsor of Salisbury visited his parents here last Sunday, Mr. and Mrs. Geo. C. Windsor.

Mr. Victor Hitchens, of Hitchens and Phillips, Laurel, Del., was in town on Thursday looking after the interest of their Branch Store here.

Home Smoot and family who have been occupying rooms at Reelins Terrace left last week for Toledo, O. Mr. Smoot is a member of the Toledo Blue Ball Team of the National B. B. Association.

MARDELA.

Miss Stella Kerns, of Danville, Va., spent a part of this week as the guest of Misses Mary and Emma Brattan.

Don't forget to come to "The District School at Blue Berry Corner," at Orange Hall to-night. Price of admission adults, 25 cents children 15 cents, doors open at 7:30.

Grand Lecturer, Graham Dukhart of Baltimore, and Grand Inspector, E. D. Grice of Salisbury, were entertained here last week.

tained by the Temple Lodge No. 170 A. F. and A. M., of this town Wednesday evening.

Mr. C. E. Robertson of Pocomoke City visited his parents, Mr. and Mrs. R. G. Robertson on Sunday last.

Dr. Louis N. Wilson of Baltimore was in town last week, but returned home last Tuesday.

Mrs. B. F. Kennerly and daughter, Ruth, of Salisbury were the guests of Capt. and Mrs. Eversman last week.

The many friends of Mr. and Mrs. I. N. Cooper gave them a surprise one evening last week with a display of tin ware the celebration was due to ten years of happy bliss, we trust they will enjoy many more periods of equal length.

Rev. and Mrs. Connaway left Tuesday for Wilmington to attend the conference now in session there. Mr. C. G. Jackson, lay delegate, also went.

Mr. Eugene Venables of Baltimore, is visiting friends and relatives in town.

HEBRON.

Mrs. E. W. White will have her Spring Opening of Millinery, Wednesday and Thursday, March 26th and 27th.

Attention.

I am now contracting for tomatoes for my factory at Hebron. If you desire to deliver tomatoes at this factory during the coming season, it would be well for you to see me as early as convenient as I shall only contract for a limited acreage.

J. CLEVELAND WHITE,

Salisbury, Md.

Through some error it was announced in this week's Wicomico News that the three act comedy "Miss Topsy Turvy, or the Oursurship of a Deacon," was rendered here last Saturday evening; but the play will not be given until Saturday evening, March 21. This is given for the benefit of the M. P. church, and the public generally is invited.

Sufferers who say they have tried everything without benefit are the people we are looking for. We want them to know from glad experience that Ely's Cream Balm will conquer Cold in the Head, Hay Fever, and obstinate forms of Nasal Catarrh. This remedy acts directly on the inflamed, sensitive membranes. Cleansing, soothing and healing. One trial will convince you of its healing power. Price 50c. All druggists, or mailed by Ely Bros., 24 Warren St., New York.

MAKE IT YOURSELF.

Says Many Persons Here Can Be Made Happy Again By Using This.

There is so much Rheumatism here in our neighborhood now that the following advice by an eminent authority, who writes for readers of a large Eastern daily paper, will be highly appreciated by those who suffer:

Get from any good pharmacy one-half ounce Fluid Extract Dandelion, one ounce Compound Kargon, three ounces of Compound Syrup Sarsaparilla. Shake these well in a bottle and take in teaspoonful doses after each meal and at bedtime; also drink plenty of good water.

It is claimed that there are few victims of this dread and tortuous disease who will fail to find ready relief in this simple home-made mixture, and in most cases a permanent cure is the result.

This simple recipe is said to strengthen and cleanse the eliminative tissues of the kidneys so that they can filter and strain from the blood and system the poisons, acids and waste matter, which cause not only Rheumatism, but numerous other diseases. Every man or woman here who feels that their kidneys are not healthy and active, or who suffers from any urinary trouble whatever, should not hesitate to make up this mixture, as it is certain to do much good, and may save you from much misery and suffering after while.

Or home druggists may they will either supply the ingredients or mix the prescription ready to take if our readers ask them.

One of the Essentials of the happy homes of to-day is a vast fund of information as to the best methods of promoting health and happiness and right living and knowledge of the world's best products.

Products of actual excellence and reasonable claims truthfully presented and which have attained to world-wide acceptance through the approval of the Well-Informed of the World; not of individuals only, but of the many who have the happy faculty of selecting and obtaining the best the world affords.

One of the products of that class, of known component parts, an Ethical remedy, approved by physicians and commended by the Well-Informed of the World as a valuable and wholesome family laxative is the well-known Syrup of Figs and Elixir of Senna. To get its beneficial effects always buy the genuine, manufactured by the California Fig Syrup Co., only, and for sale by all leading druggists.

Our New Corset News.

"W. B. REDUSO" puts every stout woman on the same style basis as her slender sister. It is the last word in corset-making—radical in its idea, and in its results a scientific, logical, simple corset, which, by forcing its wearer to hold herself properly, encourages deep breathing that nature itself reduces excess of flesh. The "REDUSO" is so planned that the hips are graded into a longer and more slender proportion. Price $3.00; other grades $1.00 up. Satisfactory wear guaranteed.

Often The Kidneys Are

Weakened by Over-Work.

Unhealthy Kidneys Make Impure Blood. It used to be considered that only urinary and bladder troubles were to be traced to the kidneys, but now modern science proves that nearly all diseases have their beginning in the disorder of these most important organs.

The kidneys filter and purify the blood—that is their work. Therefore, when your kidneys are weak or out of order, you can understand how quickly your entire body is affected and how every organ seems to fail to do its duty.

If you are sick or "feel badly," begin taking the great kidney remedy, Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, because as soon as your kidneys are well they will help all the other organs to health. A trial will convince anyone.

If you are sick you can make no mistake by first doctoring your kidneys. The mild and the extraordinary effect of Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, the great kidney remedy, is soon realized. It stands the highest for its wonderful cures of the most distressing cases, and is sold on its merits by all druggists in fifty-cent and one-dollar size bottles. You may have a sample bottle by mail free, also a pamphlet telling you how to find out if you have kidney or bladder trouble. Mention this paper when writing to Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y. Don't make any mistake, but remember the name, Swamp-Root, Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, and the address, Binghamton, N. Y., on every bottle.

STEPHEN OTWAY'S SILENCE

Finis! The man working away for dear life in the fading twilight that June evening wrote the magic word, lay down his pen and looked about him for the first time in two solid hours. At last his wonderful symphony was written. Yes; not another note would he add, not a single bar revise; it should go before the judges in that big contest he was striving might and main to win just as it lay there—the crown of six weeks' toil, the best that was in him, the fair flower of his achievement that was surely destined to bring fame and fortune, maybe something still more precious in its train.

His chance: the golden opportunity of a lifetime! "Two hundred guineas and a gold medal for the best symphony by a British composer." All unexpectedly it had fallen out, bringing with it a golden vista to his glowing thoughts. Once let him win that, and everything was simplified. Old Farley Almsworth, most generous of benefactors, would laugh now at the hard idea of calling him son-in-law; such a possibility as the lad he had befriended daring to fall in love with his own daughter had never entered the head of the proud, music-loving old squire, or he would have taken speedy means to nip the romance in the bud. But afterward—

It seemed to Stephen Otway that all the face of Nature would be changed at that one stroke. Rising from the table at which he had been working, he went to the piano and began to play. The man who had softly opened the door and stepped inside halted involuntarily at the sound of that strange, sweet melody.

"Steve, you miracle, what's that? Not—the symphony? You don't mean it? Why, man, it's wonderful; no one else can ever hope to win it."

"You think so?" He had broken off abruptly. "I do not know what to think. Sometimes I am full of confidence; at others—Anyhow, it's finished. I am fagged out—want rest. I have even thought of going down home for a day or two to—"

"Yes; not a bad idea, old chap; it would do you good without a doubt. That hesitating pause. 'I only wish mine had half such a chance! I say Steve, talking of home—'"

"Yes!" Stephen Otway looked across inquiringly; the change of tone was not to be mistaken.

"I—oh, look here, how am I to say it? The fact is, I've been a fool and got into a mess again. Will you lend me some money till my next check comes? I must have fifty pounds by to-morrow or else it's ruin, and I don't go to the dear old governor again. It would break his heart."

"Fifty pounds?"

"Yes. I know I've had a run of bad luck lately, but I'd no idea it was so much until to-day. I've scraped up seven from somewhere. Steve, you're my only hope. See me through this once, and I promise never to touch a card again as long as I live—yes, honor bright!"

Fifty pounds! Stephen Otway's face grew grave as he turned away. This was not the first time that Clive Almsworth had come to borrow from him. He paused a while before replying.

"Look here, Clive; I am a poor man, as you know. I do not possess fifty pounds in all the world; and if I lend you what I have it will be on one condition only—that you never handle card or dice again. What guarantee can you give me?"

"Guarantee!" The other stared up only in a moment. "What the dickens are you hinting at Otway? Have I not just given you my word?"

"For the third time. Twice before I have helped you out of a similar difficulty on similar terms. I see no use in going on like this—no faith!"

"I see!" The answer was obvious. "You do not mind my father spending a hundred pounds on you, sending you here to study and all the rest of it, because he fancied he saw a spark of talent somewhere in you; but when it comes to lending me a paltry ten or twenty you hesitate? I admire your generosity, your pride; or perhaps you have forgotten—"

"I have forgotten nothing." That white set face would have moved as other men to pity, if not shame. "Your father has been the kindest, most generous of men to me; and I can never by any chance forget his goodness. I would do anything to save him pain, and if only I could think that you—"

"Oh, don't commence to preach! I've heard the tale until I'm tired of it. I know I'm no saint—I never was—but I've never let a friend go to the wall yet; and mark my words, Stephen Otway, you shall be sorry some day that you refused to help me! I'll make you regret it! You may think I've had my eyes closed lately, but you're mistaken. All that love-making with Sybil—oh, I know how to upset your little game!"

"Things that will do, Clive! No more, please!"

"You are saying things that labor you will regret. If I thought you really meant them I, too, should be sorry. Come and see me again to-morrow; we will talk it over when you are more composed."

"Not!" He had drawn himself apart; stood there, handsome and defiant with a hectic little spot on either cheek. "No, we will not! It's now or never, Otway—I mean it! Choose quickly—yes or no." The other's half-impetuous shrug incensed him beyond measure; he waited for no more. "Very well! That ends it; remember it's your own going. Good night—and good-by!"

Yes; that was it. "Goodnight—and good-by!" Full five minutes after he had rung out of the room the older man stood there in the gathering darkness, trying to realize, to make himself believe that he had really gone. Clive could surely never mean it—never!

He turned back to those carefully written sheets of manuscript. Just one more look to make sure that he had copied them correctly, then he would wrap them up and put them away safely till morning. Till he could carry them with his own hands to the big college where their fate was to be decided. Too precious to be trusted to the post.

In the morning there was no letter. The hours passed, with no Clive, and he grew fidgety; told himself that he had been harsh and ungenerous. In the afternoon, anxious to purchase reconciliation at any price he went to the bank, withdrew his little stock of money—earned by playing at occasional concerts—and sent five £5 notes, with a few heavy words, to Clive's address. By night they were back at his own, with no word at all. He had snatched up hat and gloves, and was rushing round to Clive's lodgings at top speed.

"Mr. Almsworth!" he panted, as the door opened to his knock. "Gone out!" the woman of the house had snapped, the sweeping sounds of the violin that came from the room above giving her words the lie even as she spoke; and it was straightway closed in his face. Small wonder that afterward there was only silence, and a breach that widened with the days.

A time of strenuous work and hard waiting. None but the man himself could ever know the bitterness of those dragging weeks, the hopes of day that were fears the next. When the fateful day had dawned at last his restlessness knew no restraint. The hours literally crawled toward night. He was in the crowd that thronged the big concert hall. To-night would either make or mar him, a few more minutes would decide.

To one man in that vast audience it seemed as if his heart had ceased to beat. Just a year since the hapless girl had looked up at him for that one instant of time with the strange, new, wonderful light in her eyes, and promised to wait. All dreams for the future shattered irretrievably, and—irony of fate—it was Clive Almsworth who had beaten him!

And then—Was it real, or only a trick of fancy, the plaything of his over-wrought imagination? That opening phrase, those first few bars of melody that had floated softly across the waiting hall! Never Clive Almsworth's—never any one's but his own! There was some mistake, a ghastly blunder in the name, or else—

Dazed, stunned, unable for a moment to realize the bitter truth, he sat there listening to the smooth cadence, the tripping allegretto, that rushing rhythmic finale with the weird chromatic scale passages for the violins—his own, every note! The priceless symphony on which he had spent so many hours, built so many hopes!

Dead sea fruit that storm of cheers that broke from the audience at its close; gall and wormwood, those repeated cries of "Encore! Encore!" Next thing he knew he was outside in the cool, fresh air, trying to think it all out—that bitter, blinding sense of treachery dimming all else in his brain. What did it mean—that could it mean—save one thing? Stolen!

Three solid hours he tramped the streets, beating out that grim tragedy of a lifetime. Incredible, unthinkable, that the man who had been his friend could have carried paltry rage so far!

And then—He had reached his lodgings, gone up the creaky stairs with the heavy shuffling tread of one foot-weary and despondent, and thrown open the door of his room, and—

"Clive!"

That moment would surely live forever in his memory. There they stood a full minute, facing one another, neither seeking to break the straining silence. Then—

"Yes! I heard!" A world of bitter accusation in the tone. His lips had framed invective hot and angry; but he beat the impulse back and waited to hear more.

"I was mad—out of my senses! It was that night you refused to lend me the money. You had showed me the sheets and told me they were finished, and I saw the chance to—"

to be revenged. I came back here after you had gone out. They were in that drawer, made up into a parcel and addressed; and I took them out, put blank ones in their places—"

"You stole them?"

"Yes. I can never ask you to forgive me, never forgive myself. Ever since then I have lived in torture, hoping that some other might be successful; but you see! Now my sun of bitterness is full; I am pained tenfold. My father—Here, look!—I—I can't say it!"

A telegram had fluttered from his hand. Otway picked it up mechanically, and read: "Father dangerously ill; come at once—Sybil."

Next moment he had faced back sharply.

"I can't go, Stephen! I—I dare not now!" It was almost a scream. "Tap" dear old governor had set his heart on my winning this thing; and I couldn't—couldn't tell him—" The voice broke off into a convulsive sob; the man was shaking like an aspen. Otway looked at him pityingly; then crossed the room and began to finger a railway time table.

"Twelve-fifteen from Euston!" He pulled out his watch; stood in thought a moment. "I'll go!" he said, curtly. "You can stay here if you like!"

"You will! Heaven bless you for that, Stephen!" said the other fervently. "You're a good fellow; it's ten times more than I deserve. Send word how—how things are going, won't you?"

Five minutes later Stephen Otway caught himself wondering for the second time that night if the whole of it was not a dream. No dream, however, that midnight journey into Warwickshire; no dream the white-faced girl who crept softly down stairs in the early dawn to greet him, the startled question starting from her eyes before ever she spoke a word.

"Stephen! But where is Clive? He will be too late!" . . . His mumbled falshood, and then: "Yes; very ill indeed! A sudden heart attack; the doctor has been with him half the night. You will not mind if I go back?"

Later she came to him again. He found himself following obediently up the stairs into the darkened room where old Farley Almsworth lay, very still and very feeble.

"Stephen, my boy, how are you?" The words were hard to whisper, all but indistinct. "Clive is coming soon, they tell me! I want to see the lad once more, to tell him I am proud—we are all proud. He won the medal, Stephen, eh? Couldn't help but win it, could he?"

The wrinkled hand was quivering feebly in his own. Bending down to listen, Stephen Otway remembered the debt of gratitude he owed the old man lying there. He glanced across at the girl standing by the window.

"Yes, he won it," he said quietly. Later, walking away from that house with closed shutters and the drawn blinds, it seemed to him that either the world had grown different or he very old and weary. Nothing mattered now; all the days would be alike—a miserable, haunting drudgery. He recollected reaching Euston and walking to his lodgings; but nothing more was clear. His brain rocked stupidly; there was a dull ache, and a sense of heaviness that bore him steadily down—down—till at last there came a final blank.

Ten whole days that grim snap of feverish unconsciousness remained; a life and death scene played like a faint child, uncertain which to choose. When the dark cloud lifted he knew that he was lying in bed; there was a little table holding medicines by his side. The dark-robed figure seated by the window heard him move; it struck him that the figure was familiar; what could Sybil be doing here? He said her name, half expecting the vision to dissolve.

"Stephen! Oh, how glad I am!" She came to him with joy shining bravely in her face. "Try, don't try to talk; he still asks for you, strong and well. I know everything—all the miserable story. Clive has told me what a hero you have been."

Afterward? Nay, the story is too true. Stephen Otway and his wife are happy, and success has come to him in plenty since then.—W. Stratton Smith.

Five Classes of Mules.

Many persons do not know what constitutes the five classes of marketable mules known as cotton mules, lumber mules, railroad mules, sugar mules and miners. Cotton mules are most numerous. They range from 13 to 16 hands high and may be various builds so long as they are smooth. They sell at $75 to $100 apiece.

Lumber mules are large, heavy boned and dugged for use in big lumber camps. Their price ranges up to $250. The railroad mules are similar, but need not have so much weight. They are $15 to $30 cheaper than the sugar mules.

Sugar mules are lighter. They must be smooth, with small head and neck and smaller bones. Their price is from $55 to $110.

Farm mules are the culls rejected from the other classes. Lumber mules are used near steamboats and docks for the heavy work. The miners are the hardest class to supply. They must be either a dark bay or black color. White and sorrel mules are never used. Where the mines have coal regions, especially, they say a white mule resembles a ghost and frightens the other mules beyond control.

The government buys all classes of Missouri mules, but never a cheap one, and the examination of mules for the public service is rigid.

A Portrait of King Charles' dwarf, by Dobson, which, at a sale in 1835, failed to realize more than $37.50. Was sold by auction in London recently for $1,200.

TO OUR FELLOW CITIZENS OF BENEFITS OF LOCAL OPTION WORCESTER COUNTY.

Salisbury, Md., March 20, 1908.

The undersigned citizens of Salisbury, Md., having been informed that the old story is being repeated in Worcester County, which was used in Delaware, to wit, that the citizens of Salisbury are dissatisfied with the results of anti-liquor, and that there is more liquor now sold and consumed than under license, and that business has been materially injured. In justice to our Town and citizens, as well as in justice to our fellow citizens of Worcester County, and in the interest of sobriety and morality, we deem it proper to deny in general and in detail, as briefly as we can, all those and like charges.

PERUNA EDITORIAL NO. 2.

Dr. Hartman has claimed for many years that Peruna is an EXCELLENT CATARRH REMEDY. Some of the doctor's critics have disputed the doctor's claim as to the efficacy of Peruna.

Since the ingredients of Peruna are no longer a secret, what do the medical authorities say concerning the remedies of which Peruna is composed? Take, for instance, the ingredient HYDRASTIS CANADENSIS, OR GOLDEN SEAL. The United States Dispensary says of this herbal remedy, that it is largely employed in the treatment of depraved mucous membranes, chronic rhinitis (nasal catarrh), atonic dyspepsia (catarrh of the stomach), chronic intestinal catarrh, catarrhal jaundice (catarrh of the liver), and in diseased mucous membranes of the pelvic organs. It is also recommended for the treatment of various forms of diseases peculiar to women.

Another ingredient of Peruna, CORYDALIS FORMOSA, is classed in the United States Dispensary as a tonic.

CELEBRATED SEEDS is another ingredient of Peruna, an excellent drug that has been very largely overlooked by the medical profession for the past fifty years. THE SEEDS ARE TO BE FOUND IN VERY FEW DRUG STORES. The United States Dispensary says of the action of cedar that it is used as a bitter tonic and in the treatment of dysentery, and in intermittent diseases as a SUBSTITUTE FOR QUININE.

OIL OF COPAIBA, another ingredient of Peruna, is classed by the United States Dispensary as a mild stimulant and diuretic. It acts on the stomach and intestinal tract. It acts as a stimulant on the genito-urinary membranes.

Useful in chronic cystitis, chronic dysentery and diarrhea, and some genito-urinary diseases of the liver and kidney.

These opinions as to the ingredients of Peruna are held by all writers on the subject, including Bartholow and Sudder.

OF HYDRASTIS, BARTHOLOW SAYS it is applicable to stomatitis (catarrh of the mucous surfaces of the mouth), follicular pharyngitis (catarrh of the pharynx), chronic coryza (catarrh of the head). This writer classifies hydrastris as a stomachic tonic, useful in atonic dyspepsia (chronic gastric catarrh), catarrh of the duodenum, catarrh of the gall duct, catarrh of the intestines, catarrh of the kidneys (chronic Bright's disease), catarrh of the bladder, and catarrh of other pelvic organs.

BARTHOLOW REGARDS COPAIBA as an excellent remedy for chronic catarrh of the bladder, chronic bronchitis (catarrh of the bronchial tubes).

BARTHOLOW STATES THAT CUREX, an ingredient of Peruna, promotes the appetite and digestion, increases the circulation of the blood. Useful in chronic nasal catarrh, follicular pharyngitis (catarrh of the pharynx), increasing the tonicity of the mucous membranes of the throat. It also relieves hoarseness. Useful in atonic dyspepsia (catarrh of the stomach), and in chronic catarrh of the colon and rectum, catarrh of the bladder, prostatic disease, and chronic bronchial affections.

MILLSAUGH, MEDICINAL PLANTS, one of the most authoritative works on medicinal herbs in the English language, in commenting upon CORYDALIS CANADENSIS, says that it acts on the pneumogastric and vaso motor nerves. It increases the secretions of the mucous membranes in general. In the mountains of Virginia, Kentucky, Tennessee and Carolina, corydalidis canadensis is considered a panacea for many disorders, including headache, colic, cramp, dropsy and indigestion. DR. BOUDDER regards it highly as a remedy in chronic diseases of the lungs, heart disease and asthma.

These citations ought to be sufficient to show to any candid mind that Peruna is a catarrh remedy. Surely, such herbal remedies, that command the enthusiastic confidence of the highest authorities obtainable, brought together in proper combination, ought to make a catarrh remedy of the highest efficacy.

This is our claim, and we are able to substantiate the claim by using Peruna from the UNITED STATES DISPENSARY IN THE WORLD.

Address By Col. A. W. Sisk Of Caroline County At Berlin, Md.

I come to you tonight with a message born of facts and experience; and while it is not clothed in eloquence, or beautiful hyperbole and climaxes, as the same time it is freighted with an eloquence which speaks more potently on this particular theme than any other argument I know.

The question of the promiscuous sale and use of alcoholic liquors is the most prodigious and momentous subject that occupies the public conscience of the people of these United States today.

It is especially of my native County, of Caroline, that I desire to speak tonight. Born and reared in this good old County of the Eastern Shore, I am more than proud of her industrial and commercial progress, of her educational and social advancement, and of her high moral standard as expressed by her high ideals; but I am prouder still of her record on the liquor question, because all these things have been accomplished largely as a result of her firm stand on this question a generation ago. Caroline County holds the palm as the first in the State to discover the baneful effects of the sale of liquor upon her people and to discard it forever from her borders.

The result of the first special election held in July, 1874, was that every District in the county went dry, but one, and two years later, 1876, that, too, was taken in the field. The fourth district in which my parents resided was the last, and though, but a boy, I shall never forget the hallowed glow of peaceful victory that shone on my father's face on his return home from the polls the evening of that eventful day; and I am persuaded that it required more courage a generation ago, to stand in the front ranks and fight this demon even than it does today. "All glory and honor to the men and women of the past generation, for to them we owe our precious heritage of today;" and I haven't the least doubt but that the next generation of Worcester County will remember and revere the names of all who are leading the battling hosts of her best citizenship to the greatest and most notable victory ever recorded in the annals of her history.

A generation ago it was the Church against the Saloon, and was regarded purely as a moral question. This made the fight extremely hard because, then, as now, more men are outside than inside the church. The next important step added the "Home" to the Anti-Saloon force, and it then came to be the "Church" and "Home" against the Saloon. This was a great acquisition to the fighting power, because, even though, men were not members of the Church, they had a home and loved one, boys and girls who must be protected. Then our public schools took up the study of alcohol and its effects upon the human system, and this influence upon the present generation, is by no means small, and, no doubt, aided the next and great step in teaching and powerful influence, yet brought to bear upon this evil.

Today there is simply a corporate or commercial industry in the County that has put its hand on the use of liquor. They say to their employees, "Don't get drunk, don't get drunk, don't get drunk," and those who do this are promptly dismissed. They say to all applicants for positions, "Do you use alcoholic liquor?" and those who admit its use, even to the smallest extent, are not employed. Why? Because it has become a recognized fact every where that the use of alcohol saps men physically, mentally and morally, from giving the best that is in them to the work assigned them. This act on the part of the Commercial world has done more to popularize the use of liquor than any other one influence as yet.

If not already done, great injury will come to the industrial interests of Worcester County by the continued use and sale of liquor in your midst. Your sons are brought in close touch with it, are too frequently tempted and too frequently yield, and are, in consequence, placed at a disadvantage, when they go out in this big critical world to make their way. As hinted previously, there is no question, but that the great progress made by Caroline County is due largely to the fact that thirty four years ago, it rid itself of this character destroyer, this physical and mental wrecker, this demoralizer of morals, and left her youth to grow up from under the poisonous influence of this stillifier of human life and energy.

Forty years ago Caroline was the poorest County in the State, and her humble citizens were often the victims of sandy sarcasm, and were unable to parry the thrust because of the truth in it. Today the situation is entirely different. Industrial statistics show Caroline to be in the lead in some lines. In the canning industry, she leads the world. The value of farm land has quadrupled, and kept pace with the intelligence of the farmers. We are spending more money in proportion to our area for education, than any County in the State, and on the same basis of comparison, I think I can safely say we have sent out more teachers in the public schools of the State, than any other County. Even the soil has changed its color and brings forth luscious crops. Baltimore City is this week holding a "Prosperity Convention," the first one in its history. Caroline can hold a Prosperity Convention every year. When liquor was sold in this County, there wasn't a bank in it. About ten years after "Local Option" was adopted, the Denton National was started with fear and trepidation; today, we have five banks, all flourishing. We are proud of this, and all our industrial progress, and are no longer ashamed to hail from Caroline, but we are especially proud of our boys and girls, whom we are sending out free from habits of vice and shame with moral stamina strong and vigorous, ready for the world's work and burdens which the duties of a well spent life bring to us all. If for no other reason, I would urge you, mothers and fathers, to get rid of this accursed business for the sake of your boys, and your girls, as well as your boys.

In the acorn, lies the tree; branch, leaf, trunk, root, folded and as rest. There is possibility and promise; yet we may hold it in our hands, or crack its shell in our teeth. This potency of fifteen centuries, this impressive hope, this grounded energy that grapples with the soil and defies the winds, which if started upward in its growth, may be diverted and dwarfed, or pruned to beauty, power, strength and greatness, stretching its mighty branches to the great source of its life. This acorn is a true but a lowly type of the youth of our land, who have been given in our care to prune and protect, with the positive injunction to "lead them not into temptation" and "to deliver them from evil," that by the God given, energizing potency of the life that is in them, their every aspiration, hope, promise and possibility may develop into that strong type of beautiful manhood that, like the oak will always uplift its mighty arms in recognition of, and yearning after God. The moral pointed here is your personal responsibility in this great crisis. It is for you to decide, every man for himself, what type of manhood shall inherit this land of yours; for you to decide whether the next generation shall be weaker or stronger. If you permit this debasing, stultifying, dwarfing influence to continue over the rising generation when you have been given the power to remove it, God will not hold you guiltless.

The social warp and woof of this community is of your making; every man is a shuttle plying back and forth, leaving a string of life behind that gives tint and tone to the whole fabric, and whatever that fabric may be, you and your children must wear it. In the fabric woven in this and the past generations, I can see many beautiful tints and hues of noble grandeur, the great length of particles of the warp indicating its strength and stability. But alas, observe here and there blotches black and hellish, that not only mar the beauty but largely destroy its value.

For God's sake weave three spots no more, and let the great loom of time wind them on the cylinder of oblivion, out of sight of this and all future generations.

WAYS OF ALCOHOL.

Insidious Grasp Which It Gradually Obtains In Its Victims.

A man that has contracted the liquor habit is often condemned for what he cannot help. It is said of him, "I do not play him one bit; for he has not drunk anything for a month, and if he could stop for a month, there is no reason why he should not stop forever." Now this shows that the craving is not understood by those who have had no personal experience in this matter, or else have not properly informed themselves of its nature. The liquor and tobacco habit are contracted in one way and broken in another. No man has a natural taste or desire for either and it is only by constant use and overcoming a positive distaste at first, that a desire for the poison is developed. It grows step by step, from repugnance to a strong desire, gradually but progressively to a knowing, craving passion. In this the public understand it, but what is not understood is the disease and danger of relapse in convalescence. A man may stop smoking for a month and when he has a desire at all to smoke he craves tobacco just as badly then, as he did next day after quitting, but the longer he refrains from indulgence, the less frequently will he desire to smoke, until after a year or two, perhaps he may have recovered his normal and original condition altogether, so then he may be considered cured. After ceasing to smoke for a full year occasionally to look at a fine display of cigars in a window or to inhale the fragrant fumes of tobacco, all his desire would be aroused in full vigor and he would have another fight on hand and another victory to attain or another defeat to sustain.

As with the smoker, so with the drinker; he may believe he is entirely cured of his infirmity, but when the temptation is suddenly put before him and he is off his guard, then is a betrayal of his common sense by the lust of strong drink and something whippers. "I will keep it," which is but the beginning of a "drunk," and the result is the same as the result of the first relapse.

There have been more deaths from violence, murder and suicide in the army of drinkers than the history of all the battles of conquest and peace. So pity the poor delinquent, he is a slave, when he says, "I will never take another drink and would rather loose his arms than take a drink." He believes it and hopes it is so. Take the convenient saloon of the corner and the glass of the person may relax before he has time to find poison for its stimulation. There is but little hope of reclaiming drunkards with the temptation before them. The drinkers themselves are beseeching our people to take temptation out of their way; and shall we deny relief to these great sufferers of the world? Every man who casts a dry vote on March 31st will help defray for years the digging of many graves in Worcester County and will make rejoicing possible not alone in this world, but acclaims of "halloo!" in the angel choir over souls redeemed from everlasting woe.

THE OCEAN CITY

Of Today And What It Might Be Without Liquor Saloons.

So Ocean City is threatening to secede from Worcester County? I wonder how far they propose to go. The farms near it are not now as productive as they were twenty years ago, and the citizens near it have had many a heart ache because of its contaminating influence upon their boys and girls. A cancer makes the whole body sick and Ocean City has proved to be as bad as one to the Eastern Shore. There has a theory grown up under the present management of Ocean City that to be a successful watering place, vice must be pandored to and that virtue will not go to the seaside. Now they have nearly accomplished this. Years ago most of the Sunday School exercises went there on their picnic, now they have ceased to do so, because of the revolting spectacle of drunkenness. It is boasted that Sunday never crosses the bridge, at any rate you cannot find it there. The Sunday trains have to be policed to protect the public from rowdiness. The church is not able to run successfully a Sunday School there in Summer. Even the present Mayor of Ocean City was in favor of abolishing the liquor business two years ago and he must be misquoted when it is said he favors it. No man is safe in the lower end of the town from robbery or assault and battery after nine o'clock at night in the season, if he appears to possess a watch or a ten dollar bill. This has been the fate of many.

Why has the town grown to be dilapidated, and the boardwalks usually to walk upon, if whiskey has made it so prosperous? Nearly half the property on the island is in the hands of a Receiver. Why has the grade of violence gone down and only a poor class of people ever visit there or in the vicinity of the beach?

Take run out of the place and in five years with men to abate the present responsibility of the town, a magnificent destination, a place where the people will come with all their families, and the town will be a different place.

Now all the citizens in the town are not of the opinion that liquor is a benefit to our town. Some of the best people of our County live there and are anxious to see a change of policy and at least half of the vote from them will be dry and if it were possible to leave them in the corporate limits to settle the question, we believe the majority would vote to abolish the saloons.

The Rum business in Worcester has made conditions intolerable and we are determined to clean house.

Empty Pleasures

By Alva M. Patterson.

Emmy sat in the third pew of the church. Anyone behind could just see a large straw hat and two tiny protruding peep-eyes; also that "the little girl belonging to them" was very restless. In fact, the sermon did not interest her—it was much better fun to look at the new styles in ladies' hats. Almost everybody had a new one. "Let's see which one I like best." Her glance shifted from one to the other, and then finally rested on Miss Phelps'.

"If ever I grow big," she told herself, "I'm going to have one like that. It's a beauty! Just see those—"

There was a loud slap on the pulpit, and a terrible climax of "empty pleasures" thundered through the church, causing Emmy to start. In her seat and lift her guilty eyes from the hat to the minister. He looked right at her. She dropped her eyes and whispered nervously to herself: "Could he mean me? How did he know I was looking at Miss Phelps' hat 'stead of listening to him?"

"We will now receive the benediction," said the minister. Emmy bent her head but she did not hear the blessing. One question was dominant in her mind: "Could he have meant me?" But it wasn't empty, really. It was lots of fun to look at all the new hats—was it empty?

Really. This she repeated over and over. When papa stopped to shake hands with the minister, she darted through the crowd and waited for him at the door.

"Mamma," she asked on the way home, "what does 'empty pleasures' mean?"

"My dear, you're too young to understand yet."

Emmy looked perplexed. No sooner had she entered the house than she scampered to the library, pulled out a dictionary and mumbled: "Empty—containing nothing—vacant—that's best. Now p. p-p-p-l—"

"Empty—pleasures—means 'enjoyment, full of gladness.' Well, that means 'full.' Now, let's see—"

How can there be vacant full? Vacant? Gladness? Not that won't do either. Gladness can't be vacant because it's full. Her white brow wrinkled up. "I'll try again—let's see—nothing enjoyments, no! That won't do either; not even the dictionary will tell me."

"Mamma," she coaxed that evening, "won't you tell me what 'empty pleasures' mean?"

"When you're a little older, my dear," said mamma; but Emmy was not satisfied. She was almost ten; she knew some things.

"I'll ask teacher to-morrow." The all-wise Miss Graham would certainly know.

"Good morning, Emmy," said Miss Graham. "You're early this morning. Do you want anything dear?"

"Could you please tell me what 'empty pleasures' mean, Miss Graham?"

"Why, my dear child, what makes you ask such a question? It means 'pleasure that is empty.'"

"But 'pleasure isn't empty, Miss Graham."

"No, child, so 'tisn't. Let's see, it's—my dear child, I don't believe I can give you a definition."

The week passed pleasantly; only once or twice did Emmy think of Sunday's experience. Saturday came. The whole day was hers. She would have hours of fun up at High Rock. Emmy tripped down the gravel path and p the white road until she came to a high rock with moss-grown sides. Digging her toes in the crevices, she climbed to a little plateau. Here she rested a moment. "Guess I can stay up to-day. It isn't much farther and I can pick flowers up there and watch the river below."

At last she reached the top, but who were those people? Was it the minister? "Oh, empty pleasures!"

He'll see me and scold 'cause I look at Miss Phelps' hat."

Emmy stood still. The minister's back was toward her. Miss Phelps stood beside him. She had her new hat on, too.

"I'd like to ask him about 'empty pleasures,' but just see how they stand there holding each other's hands and saying nothing. I shouldn't think that was much fun."

Just then the minister picked up a daisy and handed it to Miss Phelps. She smiled, then looked down the river beneath.

"This is a beautiful spot," said the minister.

"Yes," said Miss Phelps.

"Empty pleasures," thought Emmy. "Surely, this must be 'empty pleasures.' Here they stand looking at each other, smiling once in a while, hardly ever speaking, yet they seem to enjoy it. They are truly having pleasure; they are full of gladness. Still they stand there, empty like."

"Evelyn," said the minister, turning half-way round.

"Oh, he'll see me," thought Emmy. She clutched down the rock, heedless of the wet moss, till she reached the white road; then she scampered away home—victorious, to tell mamma the news.

"I've found it! I've found it!" she cried.

"Found what, child?"

"Empty pleasures," and Emmy told mamma the story.

"Perhaps it was empty, my daughter, for you. And Emmy wondered why she felt a sort of 'empty pleasure' ache round her heart when mamma pressed her hand.

WOMAN'S RANCH LIFE

SERVANTS VS. HIRED HELP—THE RANCH COURTESY.

No. Sincere for the Young Matron with a Small Encumbrance or Two to Mind, as well as Housework to Do.

Ranch life for a woman, writes a delicately nurtured English woman from a Wyoming horse ranch, unless the ranch is a rich husband's plaything, is no sinecure, and for the young matron with a small encumbrance or two to mind, as well as housework to do, it is almost unbearable. Servants are not easy to hire; help is a totally different thing, and unless one is prepared to pay out some $15 or $25 a month it is impossible to induce a Western woman (the girls all prefer being school ma'ams) to condescend to help you, and then you must suggest your wishes, not orders.

For, unlike the English small farmer's daughter, who knows her eldest brother will inherit the lion's share of their parents' death and she will be left, if she does not marry, without a real home, probably even without a penny of her own if the family are not well-to-do, all of Uncle Sam's boys and girls, including the stranger within his gates, who choose to sacrifice, even at 21 years of age, entitled to "take up" 160 acres of land, as long as there exists this free land. The preliminary fees are but a few shillings. A wooden "shack" is run up, a stove and bed installed; every six months, the would-be owner must sleep at least two nights on the claim or else it is liable to be contested or forfeited. The land must also be fenced and improved to show bona fides. At the expiration of five years comes the final "proving up," and if the law is as strict, the property is yours forever, providing the annual taxes are promptly paid—a mere trifle. So the American girl can hold up her head loftily; is not she too, equally with the boy, a landed proprietor? If hard up, she can sell her ranch. Therefore, if she hires out to domestic service, it is either because school ma'aming is not her line, and she wants the variety of a strange ranch, or she requires pocket money. If she remains at home she will be expected to work to help with outside "chores," too, if the men folk are busy or away, and no remuneration for it either.

There are points of etiquette better learned by the newcomer; husband as a wiser expert to sit close by side at the table and you must at once request lady visitors to remove their hats, even though you know they only intend a visit of a few minutes' duration. But this is a pretty hospitality, and intimates you wish them to remain as long as possible.

For Slender Figures.

The circular skirt retains its popularity because it adapts itself to so many stylish adaptations. Not entirely new, yet extremely graceful in the model shown above, depicted in pale blue chiffon cloth with medallions of blue and white embroidery. The four tiers of the skirts are hemmed with fine broadcloth and the close fitting girdle is made from the same material.

The bodice looks charming with the low Dutch berth of chiffon cloth embroidered with medallions and matching into one piece with the sleeves. The vest is formed of irregular bands of lace stitched over pale blue and white checked silk gauze and the stock has touches of silver in the band of lace that runs along its upper edge.

Elbow sleeves to match the vest are pretty finished with bands of silver lace.

The use of a heavier fabric to weigh down the lower parts of flared skirts and give the fashionable graceful clinging effect is an idea frequently encountered in the modern modes. Chiffon and net skirts not only have facings of silk, muslin and parré velvet, but the latest idea for elegance finds expression in bands of soft, satin finished cloth that reproduces the leading tone in the color scheme of the toilette.

For "at home" or dinner wear, the above is a bewitching model, capable of development in any of the season's soft fabrics.

Loose Shoulder.

Whether resulting from a sprain or from rheumatic pains, there is nothing so good for a lame shoulder as Chamberlain's Pain Balm. Apply it freely and rub the parts vigorously at each application and a quick cure is certain. For sale at Toulson's Drug Store.

"Had dyspepsia or indigestion years. No appetite, and when I ate I was distressed and hardly able to sleep. I used Chamberlain's Stomach and Bowls Balm and in a few days I was cured."

WORCESTER ELECTION.

The campaign being waged in Worcester County, as to whether or not saloons shall be allowed to exist in the county, is a close and Saturday will decide the question. Those opposed to the sale of intoxicants claim that the fight has been won, and that Worcester will give a large majority for the "Dry's," and reports from all over the County would seem to justify this prediction. There seems to be some fear that the saloon people will flood the County with money, and attempt to stem the tide of public sentiment by this means. In connection with this it might be interesting to review the fight in Salisbury that resulted in the wiping out of this traffic. Here, as is well known, money was so plentiful that it could not be all used up. On election day the saloon men claimed when the polls were closed, that they had a majority in the ballot boxes of close to two hundred. The "Dry's" admitted this claim, if all the persons that were bought voted according to their instructions. One of the most prominent leaders of the Anti-Saloon forces practically threw up his hands and said, "we are beat, our own men tell us that if the liquor men get the votes they have paid for they will carry the election by from 125 to 300. The result showed that these claims were reversed, for when the votes were counted the "Dry's" had won by about the estimated majority.

Questions of this kind there is always an attempt to mislead the people as to the intention of those who are against the sale of liquor, one of the commonest is the one that an attempt is being made to curb the individual rights of mankind and forbid his use of alcohol in any form. This is an entirely erroneous view and is only given out with the intention to mislead and deceive. There is many a man opposed to the sale of liquor on the grounds that the saloons are a public nuisance and as such ought to be abolished. Men who will not question the rights of anyone to keep liquor in his home and to take a drink of it whenever he feels like it, but who seriously object to the streets being made unsafe on account of drunken men, and unfit for wife, daughter or children to traverse. These men believe that the license saloon is the chief cause for this condition and they want a change made so that they or their families can walk in any and all places without the danger of being insulted by those who have been filled up at some public house. These men have no intention of intruding upon the private rights of any man as to his use, but are opposed to its sale on the grounds of public policy, public safety and public morals.

Wicomico County is deeply interested in the results of the fight in Worcester outside of the ethical idea of doing away with it. For like all other men who have a good thing themselves they naturally desire that the rest of their fellow-beings should be allowed to likewise enjoy the betwixt and changed conditions that exist here; but Worcester County adjoining us naturally tends to influence our community for good or bad. As we now exist most of the drunkenness in Wicomico County is due to the fact that our citizens, who are in the above class avail themselves of the services of the saloons and go over and "knock up," and then come back and make our streets and highways the scenes of their degrading and demoralizing conduct. In other words, though not in the same degree, we are in the same position of a man who came to the conclusion that the keeping of saloons was a nuisance, so disposed of his, but as his next door neighbor was a good healthy drink, he soon found himself selling his children had not even steadily rid him of the evil of intemperance. Outside of our desire to see Worcester County rejoice in the improved conditions that will exist if the saloon is done away, Wicomico for its own sake is interested in the fight on Saturday and its citizens feel that it is their duty to point out to Worcester, our neighbor and friend, the advantages resulting here—That our taxes are not raised, that our public schools have not suffered, that our business has steadily increased, that our moral condition is much bettered—in fact none of the dreadful things of the Whiskey Camellies Howlers have come to pass, but that after several years of trial we find ourselves benefited in every way.

Our good wishes are with those who are fighting the traffic, and our hope is that the citizens of Worcester will stand steady on Saturday, shoulder to shoulder, and vote out the liquor traffic and its attendant evils regardless of the arguments made only to deceive, tricks intended only to cheat and deprive the people of their right, or money used only to corrupt.

CLOSING OF WORCESTER COUNTY'S CAMPAIGN INDICATES BIG VICTORY FOR DRY.

Such a fight as has been waged against the liquor saloon over the line in our neighboring county of Worcester by its awakened citizens was probably never before seen on this Peninsula.

Heemed in on all sides by dry territory where the saloon has been abolished by popular vote except that part coarsely washed by the healthy Atlantic and its fertile tributaries, the retention of the liquor license has been a lingering sore to the reform element of afflicted Worcester as well as a menace and an injury to its neighbors, particularly adjacent sections including our own County of Wicomico which rejoices in the absence of the saloon, Sussex County, Delaware and Accomac County, Virginia. These counties have been suffering from the saloons of Worcester and well may they go over the line and tell the voters of neighboring Worcester how much better they are in every respect, morally, socially, and commercially, without the liquor saloon than with it.

Wicomico is interested in this Saturday's election because Wicomico has a right to be interested in Worcester. It wants Worcester to share benefits of being "dry" so far as the selling of intoxicating drinks there are concerned.

Every voter in Worcester County may rest assured that Wicomico people are better off in every respect as prominent and leading business bear over ready, oral and written testimony.

We are reliably informed from authentic sources that the election Saturday will give a majority against the saloon of from 1000 to 1200, while some are estimating as high as 1600. This is as it ought to be and every voter should get in line to make the victory all the greater; swell it up all that is possible. It can't be too large. You have waited a long while for the change but now you have it and you will never have cause to regret registering a vote against the sale of intoxicating liquors.

CHURCH VS SALOON

All Denominations United To Fight The Evil.

All the denominations have resolved rock bottom at last. They have dropped the "license" and are applying Christianity. The froth of the ages have been blown off. The regeneration of man alone is their aim. A spirit of emulation, not competition is animating all. Methodists, Presbyterians, Baptists and Episcopalians, all have a shoulder to the wheel and are pushing the car of temperance right up to the station of victory. Let everybody get in harness, no matter whether you get in the lead or at the tongue. "Even a door keeper in the house of the Lord is honorable," and in this fight there are many parts to be filled by those seeking to abolish the saloon and vice.

We cannot afford to support the Church and keep the saloons to counteract its precepts. You will either vote to close the saloon or else counteract the influence of the church.

A color changing paint for use upon machinery has recently been introduced on the New York market. This paint will be useful as an indicator of hot boxes or hot bearings. Red when cool, it will change to black at whatever temperature is too high for the machine it guards. Then when the machine cools it will change back to red again. The paint is made by mixing mercuric iodide and cupric iodide with distilled water in proportions that vary according to the degree of heat where it is desirable for the color change to occur.

DEATH IN A NEW GUISE.

Scheme That Landed a Hungarian Judge in Town Jail.

In a little village on the Hungarian frontier, not far from Pressburg, a peasant woman recently received 400 kronen ($17) from her husband in America.

She promptly deposited it in the local branch of the Post Office Savings Bank, and then the next day went to withdraw the whole amount. The bank official was somewhat surprised, and asked for an explanation, when she said that Death had appeared to her during the night and threatened to take her away with him unless she had the 400 kronen ready for him the next night.

The gendarmes were communicated with, and when "Death" made his promised appearance he was found to be very much alive, in the person of the local Judge.

The woman's money, adds a Vienna correspondent who sends the story, is still in the bank, and the Judge is in jail.

How London Was Hoaxed.

In 1880 one of the most successful and perhaps the least harmful of all fools' hoaxes was perpetrated. A complimentary card was sent out inviting the public to an entertainment at the Tower of London.

ADMIT THE BEARER TO VIEW THE WASHINGTON OF THE WHITE LIONS. On the 1st APRIL, at Twelve precisely.

Admitted only at the WHITE GATE. So ran the cards. London was in an uproar, and then the next day went to the Tower. "The better the day the better the deed." Doubtless it was because the trick was played on a Sunday that it proved the most successful of any on a large scale. Many went away convinced of the reality of the spectacle but that they had missed it through failing to find the White Gate.

At the Marriage Fair.

An annual marriage fair at Ecausinas, Belgium, resulted in twenty-seven matrimonial engagements, and it is probable that about a dozen more bachelors will shortly make up their minds to enter the state of wedlock. Every year this fair is held, so that instead of emigrating the young men may settle down at home. Maidens and bachelors lunch together and opportunities are thus afforded for forming acquaintances. The young women wear their best dresses and the bachelors are encouraged by mottoes posted in the market place such as "A bachelor is only half a man."

Explaining the Motive.

The motive of these people," said Bishop Doane, discussing married people who quarrel "is like the motive of a Scot who was found weeping one day. 'Th, Saunders, mon,' said a neighbor, peeping in at the open door, attracted by the sounds of woe which came from the fire-side, 'what's ailing ye?' 'Oh, dear—oh, dear!' sobbed Saunders. 'Donald Mackintosh's wife is dead. 'Aweel,' said the neighbor, 'what o' that?' 'She's no relation o' yours, ye ken.' 'I know she's not, but it just seems as if everybody's gettin' a change but me.'"

Work of Sand Dunes.

It is stated that along the Lincolnshire Coast the sand dunes which there fringe the shore are moving steadily inland. This, says the London Globe, is due to the wind from the sea blowing the sand from the face of the hills over to the back. At Mablethorpe it is said that two acres of the property of individual have thus been buried in sand. And at Anderby what used to be a field behind the dunes is now a sandy waste 40 yards in front.

Hibernation of Bats.

Nearly all bats have the faculty of hibernation. Their hibernation, however, is not perfect—that is to say, that when the winter days occur in the middle of the month which are together with the insects which are their food. Still, theirs is a true sleep, with very low rate of pulse, heart action and respiration. Probably they would endure immersion in water for an hour or two without drowning, as other hibernators have been found to do.

Conditions in Bulgaria.

From the latest published statistics Bulgaria does not seem to be a workingman's paradise. The number of town workpeople, men, women and children, is only 6,149. The average wages are exceedingly low, about 20 cents for a 12-hour day for men and women and 10 cents for children. Scarcely 15 per cent of them earn 35 cents a day, and these are all skilled mechanics.

First Mint Julep.

Common mint is in Greece and Italy so old that Ovid derived its name from Menthe, a young Greek woman who, by the emity of a harum-scarum goddess, was converted into the plant whose oil is now an essential part of the stock of the druggist, the candy-maker and the cafe impresario.

Hold the Tobacco Record.

Germany once held the record for the consumption of tobacco per head, but it is now held by the Belgian who consumes 6.21 pounds yearly. United States comes next with 5.40 pounds; Germany, 5.44, and Great Britain, 1.95 pounds.

How to Mend a Stay.

The nicest way to mend a broken corset or dress stay is to bind the top of the stay or where it is broken with a small piece of camels skin. The end of the stay, it will be found, will not pierce through the camels as it frequently does through cloth.

To Clean Agate Ware.

To clean agate ware that has become stained take a tablespoonful of chloride of lime and a small piece of soda, then fill with water and let some to a boil. Rinse well.

MAKE IT YOURSELF.

Says Many Persons Here Can Be Made Happy Again By Using This.

There is so much Rheumatism here in our neighborhood now that the following advice by an eminent authority, who writes for readers of a large Eastern daily paper, will be highly appreciated by those who suffer:

Get from any good pharmacy one-half ounce Field Extract Dandelion, one ounce Compound Kargon, three ounces of Compound Syrup Sarsaparilla. Shake these well in a bottle and take in teaspoonful doses after each meal and at bedtime; also drink plenty of good water.

It is claimed that there are few victims of this dread and tortuous disease who will fail to find ready relief in this simple home-made mixture, and in most cases a permanent cure is the result.

This simple recipe is said to strengthen and cleanse the eliminative system of the kidneys so that they can filter and strain from the blood and system the poisons, acids and waste matter, which cause not only Rheumatism, but numerous other diseases. Every man or woman here who feels that their kidneys are not healthy and active, or who suffers from any arthritic trouble whatever, should not hesitate to make up this mixture, as it is certain to do much good, and may save you from much misery and suffering after while.

Or home druggists say they will either supply the ingredients or mix the prescription ready to take if our readers ask them.

That the leading medical writers and teachers of all the several schools of practice endorse and recommend, in the strongest terms, each and every ingredient entering into the composition of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery for the cure of weak stomach, dyspepsia, catarrh of stomach, "liver complaint," torpid liver, or biliousness, chronic bowel affections, and all catarrhal diseases of whatever region name or nature. It is also a specific remedy for all such chronic or long standing cases of catarrhal affections and their results, as bronchial, throat and lung disease, except consumption, accompanied with severe coughs. It is not good for acute colds and coughs, but for lingering, or chronic cases it is especially efficacious in producing perfect cures. It contains Black Cherrybark, Golden Seal root, Bloodroot, Stone root, Mandrake root and Queen's root—all of which are highly praised as remedies for all the above mentioned affections by such eminent medical writers and teachers as Prof. Bartholow, of Jefferson Med. College, Ohio; Prof. John King, M. D. late of Cincinnati; Prof. John M. Souder, late of Cincinnati; Prof. Edwin M. Hale of Hahemann Med. College, Chicago, and scores of others eminent in their several schools of practice.

"What did you do?" asked the mother. "I prayed for my brother to be made a better boy."

"I prayed that the trap would not catch any little birds."

"What else?" "Then I went out and kicked the old trap to bits!"

Does Your Heart Beat

Yes. 100,000 times each day. Does it send out good blood or bad blood? You know, for good blood is good health; bad blood, bad health. And you know precisely what to take for bad blood—Ayer's Sarsaparilla. Doctors have endorsed it for 60 years.

One frequent cause of bad blood is a sluggish liver. This produces constipation. Purgative substances are then absorbed into the blood. Keep the bowels open with Ayer's Pills.

Made by J. C. Ayer & Co., Lowell, Mass. Also manufactured at HAIR VEGOR, AUSTIN, CURE, CHERRY PICTORAL. We have no secret. We publish the formulae of all our medicines.

It is difficult to get convictions for illicit liquor traffic in was territory, but easy to reach a verdict of "guilty" in local option fields. This is demonstrated in Worcester and Wilmington. The reason seems to be that public opinion does not expect the saloon to be law abiding, because of the nature of the business; while it seems natural that an evil should be prohibited. The law seems to be in good health when it says liquor shall not be sold and sold when it permits its sale.

SENATOR WHITE DEAD.

Faithful Public Servant Passes Away Peacefully. Smith Likely To Be Chosen His Successor.

"United States Senator William Pinkney Whyte died at 7:05 P. M. yesterday at his home, 9 East Chase street, following a sudden sinking spell. Erysipelas, which had confined him to his bed since Saturday, was the direct cause of his death."

The Senator passed away peacefully and without the slightest apparent pain. He was conscious to the last, with all his family gathered around his bedside. The erysipelas had spread so fast and his life was so swollen that he was unable to speak clearly, and an effort to do so would have caused him pain. He died silently.

The sinking spell which marked the end came at 8:30 o'clock. Dr. William M. Dabney, his attending physician, had appeared quite accidentally only a few minutes before and was in the house when the Senator's heart seemed to give way. So weak did his heart action become that no beats of the pulse could be felt, and Dr. Dabney realized that the Senator was dying.

Family At His Bedside.

Simulants were immediately administered and the Senator rallied. Knowing, though, that death was only a matter of an hour or two, Dr. Dabney advised that all the family be summoned to the house. All the Senator's relatives were sent for and arrived in time to see him before he died.

Dr. Dabney said last night that even though it was apparent that the Senator was suffering his last illness, he had not expected that death would have come so soon or so suddenly. The sudden sinking spell, with the rapid weakening that followed it, was a surprise to him, Dr. Dabney said, for he had firmly believed that the Senator would have lived at least until today or tomorrow.

Dr. Hugh H. Young also expressed surprise that the Senator had died so soon, for his general condition had warranted the belief that he would live for several days.

Yesterday morning the Senator appeared to be in particularly good condition, having apparently regained a part of his vigor and strength. The erysipelas, though, had spread more over his face and had reached his neck, the glands of which later in the day swelled.

All the morning his temperature was normal, with not a trace of the fever which usually accompanies the malady. His pulse beat at 109 but this was not thought to be unusual in view of his illness. His lips had not swollen so much, and he was able to speak, his voice having been as strong as ever. He was in a cheerful mood and his general condition, outside of the erysipelas, seemed to have improved.

Blood Poisoning The Cause.

The death of Senator Whyte was caused by the blood poisoning resulting from the erysipelas, as the germ of that disease, when it infects the blood, is one of the most dangerous ones feared by medical men. It is the same germ that caused Dr. Trimble's death. Usually the erysipelas confines itself to the skin, coming usually in the face and spreading.

Sometimes, however, it sets below the skin and into the blood and this is what, Dr. Dabney and other physicians think, was the cause of the Senator's death. Once the blood is infected with the germ death may be quick, and this was probably the case with the Senator.

The physical condition of the Senator was not in any condition to fight illness, as he had overworked himself almost to the point of breakdown all through the winter. In addition, he was suffering from slight bladder trouble, which, although it was not responsible for his death, contributed to his worn-down physical condition.

The pressure of work which the Senator was confronted with, both in his Senatorial work and his law practice was so heavy and unremitting that in the last three months or more he had lost nearly 35 pounds. This loss of flesh to a man of his age was especially weakening, but his indomitable spirit would not permit him to let up, and up to the time he was compelled to take his bed he kept at his work.

Smith Likely To Be Chosen.

Under these circumstances it seems to be generally conceded that the present Legislature will choose a man to succeed Senator Whyte. While there are a number of names mentioned in passing the general belief seems to be that it will choose for the vacancy Senator-elect Smith, who begins his term of six years on the day when Senator Whyte's term expires.

The reason for this belief is that, in the first place, Senator Smith's friends are in the ascendancy in both houses of the General Assembly and can control the caucuses of the party if one is held. In the second place it is claimed he is the logical man for the place at this time, as he has already been designated in the Democratic primaries as the choice of his party for Senator. Furthermore, it is contended, the logic of the situation is that to place another man in the Senate for the brief year of the unexpired term would be of no advantage to the State, as the time is so short for him to be able to more than find his place and become accustomed to his duties, whereas that year would give to Senator Smith an opportunity to acquire that knowledge and familiarity with the Senate and its proceedings necessary to successful work and would enable him to begin his full term of six years with a far better equipment than he could otherwise obtain and be in a position to be of greater value to the State.

Lacy Thoroughgood Guarantees to Fit You with as Swell a Suit as You Ever Saw.

Lacy Thoroughgood sells just as fine clothing as there is sold in the United States. Thoroughgood sells just as stylish clothing for well dressers as there is worn. Thoroughgood frequently has men say to him: "Oh, you're all right; you sell probably the best ready-made clothing made, but I can't get anything to fit me." Rate! That's the kind of men that make a high-priced store possible. Lacy Thoroughgood guarantees to fit you with as swell a suit of clothes as you ever saw. NO FIT-TEE, NO TAKEE.

Bear in mind that Thoroughgood's finest suits are made by B. Kuppenheimer, of Chicago; Michaels-Stern & Co., of Rochester; A. B. Kirschbaum & Co., of Philadelphia, and Alfred Benjamin & Co., of New York, and sell from $15 to $24, and you save from $8 to $10 on a suit. Don't get these suits mixed in your mind with suits from anywhere else at the same prices.

Thoroughgood sells elegant suits at $10 to $14. They are as good as anybody else in Salisbury sells for $5 more money. Say, why don't you come and see what Thoroughgood is doing? This is the place to find out whether we do as we say we do or not.

All our New Spring Clothes and John B. Stetson's Hats are ready.

The New Dress Goods

For Spring Are Here

They Are Glorious

It is most remarkable to have an opportunity to select new Spring Dress Goods so early. The goods were made for this Spring's selling and are the very fabrics approved by Fashion. They are so pretty, so sensible that we wish to tell you a little about them.

The colors are all in the soft, low tones, blues probably leading in choice—not the bright French blues of old, but a softer blue known as the Copenhagen blue. But there is the new brown, tan and black as well, and what is really very attractive is the new shadow-checked effect. There is another lovely new color, between a purple and the darker magenta tones—perhaps you could call it a plum, but it is very soft in color.

You may choose from very many materials—Panama, French Batiste and French Challe, Fancy and Herringbone Serge, also the Voiles and Lansdowns—all in the many colors mentioned.

LIFE'S RACE.

Life is a race, and earth the place
Where we are put to run it.
A precious prize before us lies,
And many too, have won it.

It may be health, or fame, or wealth,
Or joy, whatever be it.
Tis there for those who run, and Those who do not run.

To look ahead and see it,
However much we feel it,
Tho' dim, obscure, if we endure,
The future will reveal it.

It is our part to make the start,
To face the task and do it,
Upon the prize to fix our eyes,
Then ardently pursue it.

And if with grace we take our place
And earnestly begin it,
Strength for our need will come,
Indeed.

To run the race and win it.
—Frank Leon Beeby.

No Use To Me.

"I have found out that there is no use to die of lung trouble as long as you can get Dr. King's New Discovery," says Mrs. J. P. White, of Rushbro, Pa. "I would not be alive today for that wonderful medicine. It loosens up a cough quicker than anything else, and cures lung disease even after the case is pronounced hopeless." This most reliable remedy for coughs and colds, lagrippe, asthma, bronchitis and hoarseness, is sold under guarantee at Dr. Toulson's Drug Store, 50 a. and 51.00 Trial bottle free.

Tetter, Salt Rheum and Eczema.

These are diseases for which Chamberlain's Salve is especially valuable. It quickly allays the itching and smarting and soon effects a cure. Price, 25 cents. For sale at Toulson's Drug Store.

Kittory, Me., Harrison J. Philbrick has fitted up a reading room in the tomb of his ancestors on the lawn of his Colonial estate here. A table of magazines, a comfortable armchair, vases of flowers and cases of books are included in the furnishings, as well as couch and rug, with a reading lamp.

"I think it's a shame that wine should be used at luncheons. We temperance women are going to try to stop it."

"After all, instead of kicking about it, why not use the custom to point a moral?"

Why, simply by drawing attention to the fact that after her first taste of wine the ship immediately takes to water and sticks to it over after."—Boston Transcript.

Billie—"Is Jones such a cheerful giver at the church?"

Willie—"Yes, when they ask for advice."

"No one would guess that 'Uncle' had so illustrious an ancestor as a right reverend prelate, yet this seems to be so. For pawnbroking was first introduced into England by Michael de Northburg, Bishop of London, in Edward III's reign.

He set up an establishment for lending money to the poorer Londoners on portable property, and according to Durdale, if any sum so borrowed was not paid at the expiration of a year, the preacher at St. Paul's Cross would be sold in 14 days, unless previously redeemed.—Sci.

READ ALL THIS.

You Never Know the Moment When This Information May Prove Of Infinite Value Now This.

It is worth consideration to any citizen of Salisbury to know how to be cured of painful, annoying and itching piles. Know then that Doan's Ointment is a positive remedy for all itching of the skin; for piles, eczema, etc. One application relieves and soothes. Read this testimony of its merit:

Michael Scholts, Barkley St., Salisbury, Md., says: "Doan's Ointment is the best preparation of its kind that I ever saw. I was all broken out with an eruption like eczema. Small water blisters would appear and itch and then scabs would form. The skin on my hands cracked, got rough and sore so that I could hardly use them. Doan's Ointment was recommended to me by a friend who had been cured of a similar eruption of several years standing and I got a box at White and Leonard's Drug Store. I applied it several times and the eruption soon disappeared. I have had no return of the trouble since."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster—Milburn Co., Buffalo, New York, sole agents for the United States. Remember the name—Doan's—and take no other.

Prof. H. A. Howell, of Havana, Cuba, Recommends Chamberlain's Cough Remedy.

"As long as I can remember my mother was a faithful user and friend of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy, but never in my life have I realized its true value until now," writes Prof. H. A. Howell of Howell's American School, Havana, Cuba.

"On the night of February 2nd, our baby was taken sick with a very severe cold, the next day was worse, and the following night his condition was desperate. He could not lie down and it was necessary to have him in the arms every moment. Even then his breathing was difficult. I did not think he would live until morning. At last I thought of my mother's remedy, Chamberlain's Cough Remedy, which we have, and it afforded prompt relief, and now, three days later, he has fully recovered. Under the circumstances I would not hesitate a moment in saying that Chamberlain's Cough Remedy, and that only, saved the life of our dear little boy." For sale at Toulson's Drug Store.

Constipation causes headache, nausea, dizziness, languor, heart palpitation. Drastic physics gripes, sicken, weaken the bowels and don't cure. Doan's Regulator acts gently and cures constipation. 25 cents. Ask your druggist.

Flint Island, from which the recent eclipse of the sun was observed, is a mere dot on the Pacific 400 miles north of Tahiti.

Nasal catarrh, an inflammation of the delicate membrane lining the air passages, is not cured by any nostrils taken into the stomach. Don't waste time on them. Take Ely's Cream Balm through the nostrils, so that the fevered, swollen tissues are reached at once. Never mind how long you have suffered nor how often you have been disappointed, we know Ely's Cream Balm is the remedy you should use. All druggists, 50c. Mailed by Ely Bros., 15 Warren Street, New York.

TEN LITTLE LOVERS.

Ten little lovers sighing, "Oh, be mine." One met a girl; then there were nine.

Nine little lovers, questioning "thier fate," One saw her freckles; then there were eight.

Eight little lovers—one stayed till eleven; Papa shouted down the stairs; then there were seven.

Seven little lovers—by some artful tricks A grass widow caught one; then there were six.

Six little lovers—one upon a drive Used both hands to drive with then there were five.

Five little lovers—one began to snore When she sang a love song; then there were four.

Four little lovers—on his bended knee One was told 'twas hopeless; then there were three.

Three little lovers came each week to woo; One tried auto racing; then there were two.

Two little lovers with a thought to stunt She showed one her dress bills; then there was one.

One little lover—and the tale is done, She was married to him; now there are none.

DOCTORS PRESCRIBE SULPHUR.

But Sulphur Should Be Used In Liquid Form Only.

"Hancock's Liquid Sulphur is the most wonderful remedy for Eczema I have ever known," writes Dr. W. W. Leake, of Orlando, Fla., who was cured of a case of y a standing.

Dr. W. A. Heard, of Maitland, Fla., was cured of Eczema after he had suffered for thirty years and says "Hancock's Liquid Sulphur is the finest remedy for all skin troubles he has ever used or prescribed."

Doctors everywhere prescribe it, but they say Sulphur should be used in liquid form only, as it is in Hancock's Liquid Sulphur.

Druggists sell it. Booklet free, if you write Hancock Liquid Sulphur Co., Baltimore.

It cures all Skin and Scalp Diseases, if used in connection with the wonderful Hancock's Liquid Sulphur Ointment.

A scientist of the Public Health and Marine Hospital Service, while examining the Potomac River, has made an interesting observation on the effect of rain in increasing the number of microbes in that stream.

After a hard rain, lasting several days, it was found that the microbes were about six times as numerous in Potomac water as they were before the rain, and when the weather set in again the number of microbes rapidly decreased. The increase it is believed, came from both the air and the land, but in this case, fortunately, the microbes were all of harmless species.—Ex.

Westminster, Md., March 6.—The mammoth oak tree, about seven feet in diameter, under which Robert Strawbridge, the founder of Methodism in America, preached his first sermons in this country, has been felled and is being reduced to lumber of proper size for shipment.

On account of its immense size and the toughness of the wood it was found impossible to employ saws in the work until the trunk had been dynamited. This accomplished it, and it is now being sawed into slabs to be forwarded to the order of the Methodist Historical Society, which will have it manufactured into collection plates and other souvenirs.

IN THE NAME OF CHARITY.

The Young Men Were On Time As Was the Owner of the Glove.

Nearly at the glory youth of the neighborhood avenue, the charity bazaar, and one of one they drifted to a stall where a tiny, shapely, scented gray kid glove reposed on a satin cushion, says the Popular M. G.azine. Attached to the cushion was a notice written in a delicate feminine hand, which ran:

"The owner of this glove will, at 7:30 this evening be pleased to kiss any person who purchases a twenty-five cent ticket beforehand."

Tickets were purchased by the score, and at 7:30 a long row of sheepish, not to say dorkish young bloods, assembled outside the stall.

Then, punctual to the moment, old Tom Porson, the local pork-butcher, who weighs two hundred and twenty pounds, and is almost as beautiful as a side of bacon, stepped to the front of the stall.

"Now, young gent," he said, in his best "Buy, buy, buy, tones," "this glove belongs to me. I bought it this morning. Now I'm ready for you. Come on! Don't be bashful! One at a time!"

But nobody came on.

A Hint.

He—"Our ball club won the game with a 'squeeze' play."

She—"That sounds awful interesting. Can't you demonstrate it to me?"

New Kind of Trouser.

Captain DeForest Chandler of the United States Signal Corps was lamenting in Washington the numerous balloon accidents that have recently occurred.

Captain Chandler, himself an expert aeronaut, concluded:

"But inexperience is usually to be blamed for these accidents. The aeronaut goes up alone before he has thoroughly learned his business. Indeed, I have seen some aeronauts so untired that they remind me of an episode that befell my tailor."

"A young man visited my tailor the other day and said:

"I'm a rover, and I want to be measured for two pairs of roving pants—the kind with the slitting seats."

Hannay and Huxley.

James Hannay, once a member of the staff of the Pall Mall Gazette, was a typical man of letters. And Huxley, as everybody knows was a typical scientific man.

Hannay had been a midshipman when Huxley was a naval surgeon. Years after the two met each other on the steps of the British Museum.

"Huxley," said Hannay, "I care nothing for man except as a creature of historical tradition."

"Nor," answered Huxley, "for him except as a compound of gas and water."

"But," he added, "if we were each of us better educated men than we are, we should know how to respect each other's studies more."—Youth's Companion.

One on the Boarder.

According to the Sunday Magazine a New Yorker, who is accustomed each year to pass a few weeks with a farmer in Dutchess County, says that once, in notifying the latter of his intention to make the usual visit, he wrote as follows:

"There are several little matters that I should like to see changed if my family and I decide to spend our vacation at your house. We don't like the girl Martha. And in the second place, we do not think that it is sanitary to have a pig-sty so near the house."

In reply the farmer said: "Martha went last week. We ain't had no hogs since you were here last September."

SESSION OF COURT.

Spring Term Commences in Salisbury. Judges Holland and Lloyd Presiding. Proceedings To Date.

The Public Green has been an busy highway as any in town this week with men on Circuit Court affairs. The March Term for Wicomico County, convened Monday morning with Judges Holland and Lloyd on the bench. The calling of the docket disclosed the following number of cases: Trials, 52; Appearances, 17; Appeals, 8; Criminal Appearances, 8; Criminal Continuances, 2.

The Grand Jury is composed of the following gentlemen: E. J. Adkins, foreman, J. W. Parker, of L. J. E. Lowe, W. D. English, Chas. E. Hearn, Jno. Gill Truitt, S. S. Smyth, J. A. Waller, W. C. Mitchell, clerk, J. F. Hutton, Fred Crockett, Turpin H. Bennett, J. Oadams Messick, W. O. Brady, John E. Truitt, Peter J. B. Hobbs, Urie Oliphant, Isaac S. Williams, Hartwell Malone, W. R. Laws, J. R. Farlow, Dean Mills and M. Edw. Tindle.

Judge Holland delivered the charge to the Grand Jury, calling special attention to violations of the local option law, and charging the jury to closely investigate this and other infractions of the criminal laws.

Monday's Proceedings.

No. 1, Appeals, L. P. Oulbourn vs. State of Maryland. Plea of guilty and traversed before Court. Guilty and fined $50 and costs.

No. 7, 8, 9, 10, 11, and 27 Trials, were removed to Somerset county for trial. These are suits by various berry shippers of Pittsville against the Pennsylvania Railroad Co., and the damages asked for amount to about $10,000.

No. 8, Criminal Appearances, State vs. F. Woodland Bradley and H. Pete Bradley. Charged with selling goods on Sunday. Plea of guilty and submitted to Court. Fined $30 and costs. On motion the slander suit of Howeth vs. Brinsfield, which was recently remanded back for trial by the Court of Appeals, was continued until the September Term.

Monday night there was a session of Court to hear arguments in the town paving suit. The city was represented by L. Atwood Bennett and Ellegood, Freney & Wallis; the objectors by Alonzo L. Miles, of Baltimore, who is contesting the constitutionality of the act under which the

There being no cases ready for trial, the Court entered up a batch of judgments and at 8.30 p.m. adjourned until Wednesday morning.

Up To Friday.

William Hearn vs. State of Maryland. Charged with larceny, was tried before Petit Jury and acquitted. Jos. L. Bailey for State, Ellegood, Freney and Wallis, for Defendant.

No. 14, A. E. Wohler vs. Annie B. Johnson, removed to Somerset by Plaintiff.

Agnes Shookley vs. Somerset County, removed to Worcester by Defendant.

The Court adjourned until Monday, waiting on report from grand jury.

STRONG STRAIGHT TALK

From Governor Crothers. Wants Proper Primary Law. Pledge Redeemed By Democrats.

In a talk before the Democratic members of the Senate Thursday Gov. Crothers told the Senators that rather than have the State Primary Law pledge violated or evaded or dodged he would prefer to resign his position as Governor and go back to Cecil County. He said that failure to carry out that pledge in its fullest sense would be to convict the Democratic party of having gained the election and elected their Governor and their Legislature under false pretenses, and that he would rather not have the office than remain in it under any such stigma.

"I am a Democrat," declared the Governor in ringing tones, "and no man will go farther or do more to serve his party than I, but I serve notice that I am steering by this chart and that I do not intend to deviate."

With this he held forth the Democratic platform for the inspection of the Senators.

If Good Enough To Make—It's Good Enough To Keep.

"I have no friends to serve and I dread no enemies," he continued. "I have been elected and I want no other office. I want to serve my term out and have the satisfaction of feeling that in that term the Democratic party has kept faith with the people, and has done the square and right thing. If these promises in our platform were good enough to make, they are good enough to keep. The whole responsibility is on us, and I appeal to you not to let this bugaboo and sorrow of economy scare you. Why talk about economy and the expense to the counties of a primary election law of the right sort. I tell you that no man is more enthusiastic for economy in the management of State affairs than I, and I will also tell you that I will save enough money to pay the expenses of State primaries for two years."

—Dr. Clinton Brotemarkle, Eye, Ear, Nose and Throat Specialist, who has had offices in the Masonic Temple has secured the office of the late Dr. Humphreys, where he can be found after February 2nd.

WORCESTER WINS A GLORIOUS VICTORY.

Goes Against The Saloon By Majority of 2059. Every District In The County Voted Dry. Great Day For Temperance Forces.

The Vote By Districts.

	Dry.	Wet.
Newark.....	172	25
Bishopville.....	183	91
Stockton.....	407	97
Colbourn.....	138	26
Snow Hill.....	597	71
East Berlin.....	840	315
West Berlin.....	838	116
Coston.....	451	159
Atkinson's.....	145	46
Totals.....	2,905	846

Coston's district includes Pocomoke City.

The election in Worcester County settled the question of selling liquor in that County, and the outlook for majority of the "Dry" of over 2900 precludes any idea of the people of that County wanting it sold in their midst. It cannot even be claimed by the whiskey men that their vote remained home, for if every man who did not vote on Saturday had come to the polls and cast his vote in favor of the saloon, the county would still have gone dry by 800 majority.

This election ends one of the most interesting fights that has ever been held in this section. Although only five weeks notice was given of the election, yet so well were the workers organized by the anti-saloon men that enthusiasm reached fever heat long before the election and having reached it continued to get more and more enthusiastic until on election day last Saturday, it could no longer be controlled, but burst out in such a deluge of dry votes that it looked like the county was almost unanimous on the question.

Every District Dry.

The "Wets" did not carry a single district—nor come any where near carrying one. Mr. Orlando Harrison was in charge of the Anti-saloon forces, and it is to his credit that the organization was so quickly perfected, and it is considered one of the best managed and cleanest campaigns ever conducted in Worcester County. More than two hundred meetings were held in the five weeks—an average of about six a day including Sundays, speakers from neighboring counties and states gave their assistance, and men, women and children were enrolled among the temperance forces.

The part the women and children played in the fight was unusually effective and did much to bring about the result.

Hard Work of Ladies.

They under the leadership of Mrs. Elizabeth Whaley Keas, of Berlin, and her co-workers, Mrs. Ella Beauchamp Powell as Secretary, and Mrs. Gaijyn B. Taylor as Treasurer, organized the ladies, boys and girls in a way that was a credit to any Association.

The young generation will never forget Election Day in Old Worcester County on March 21st, when they had an opportunity to stand for their rights.

The ladies provided food for the hungry, both wet and dry. More than eight thousand people in the county were fed during the day. Free lunch was a great feature on their part and it was managed to the satisfaction of all.

Much credit is due the ladies of Worcester County for their noble stand to assist in downing the Saloon. All denominations have been united as one great church for good. During the day the church bells rang, the women prayed, the boys and girls marched, and the men voted dry.

Much good has been done by the ladies to help the moral conditions of the county.

Wicomico Contributed.

Salisbury and Wicomico County contributed much to the cause in Worcester. Feeling the great benefits that have come to their own community from the closing of the Saloon, many of Salisbury's most prominent business men gave much of their time to the cause over in their sister county, and it is admitted that they exerted a vast influence on the voters in that county.

Mr. L. W. Gundy's address on the conditions here before and after was printed in pamphlet form and distributed all over the county. Mr. Miller, who urged the negroes of Worcester to vote dry and show that they were not a danger and menace to the community, but could stand up for the moral side of a question is believed to have had great effect in solidifying the negroes of Worcester against the saloon. They are reported as voting almost to a man against the saloon. Many other Salisburyans participated in the fight and did good work for the cause.

That this was recognized and appreciated is shown by the following letter which we received from Mr. Harrison chairman of the Campaign Committee:

Worcester's Appreciation.

Editors Salisbury Advertiser,
Salisbury, Md.

I want to express to the people of Wicomico County, through your columns, our appreciation of what the good people of Wicomico County have done for Worcester during our campaign. You have been of great service to us in downing the Saloon, which will be for the benefit of all the people. The representative men of your county who left their business and comforts at home and worked with us day and night will long be remembered in the hearts of our good people of our county.

When a man could not decide just whether he was right or not, all he needed was to have him visit Salisbury, he returned a better man, enthused with the real truth on his lips.

Your citizens had much to do with putting the colored man straight on the question of right or wrong and they voted almost solid-Dry in many of the districts.

The good people join me in thanking you for your noble stand.
Very respectfully,
ORLANDO HARRISON,
Chairman of Citizens' Campaign Committee.

SHAKE IN A BOTTLE.

Advice Of Noted Authority. Also Gives A Simple Home Prescription.

Now is the time when the doctor gets busy, and the patent medicine manufacturers reap the harvest, unless great care is taken to keep the feet dry. This is the advice of an old eminent authority who says that Rheumatism and Kidney trouble weather is here, and also tells what to do in case of an attack.

Get from any good prescription pharmacy one half ounce Field Extract Dandelion one ounce Compound Kargon three ounces Compound Syrup Sarsaparilla. Mix by shaking in a bottle and take a teaspoonful after meals and at bedtime.

Just try this simple home made mixture at the first sign of Rheumatism or if your back aches or you feel that the kidneys are not acting just right. This is said to be a splendid kidney regulator and almost certain remedy for all forms of Rheumatism, which is caused by uric acid in the blood, which the kidneys fail to filter out. Anyone can easily prepare this at home and at small cost.

Druggists in this town and vicinity when shown the prescription, stated that they can either supply these ingredients, or if one readers prefer, they will compound the mixture for them.

Yetter—Messick.

The home of Mr. and Mrs. H. James Messick was the scene of a very pretty marriage on Friday afternoon at four o'clock when their daughter Helen E. Yetter was quietly married to Mr. James E. Yetter of Metal, Pa., by Rev. J. Dorsey Blake. The wedding march was played by Mrs. Wilbur Turner. The ceremony was witnessed only by the immediate family and a few friends.

The bride was becomingly attired in a Copenhagen blue Panama traveling costume with hat and gloves to match and carried ornaments.

A wedding supper was served at which Mr. and Mrs. Yetter left for a northern trip. They will reside in Metal, Pa.

FAIR WARNING.

Failure To Pass An Honest Primary Election Bill Will Be Disastrous To Democratic Party.

In adopting Senator Harper's amendment to the Gorman bill the Senate indicated that it understands the necessity of keeping the pledge of the Democratic party to enact a proper and sufficient primary law. No pledge in the platform was more clear and explicit than this one, and it is poor politics for Democratic Senators to be relying on Republican Senators to keep Democratic promises. Ten Democratic Senators voted against the Harper amendment, and without the votes of the Republican Senators it could not have been adopted. This is the poorest kind of politics. This action was in striking contrast to the attitude of Hon. John Prentiss Post, one of the ablest most experienced and wisest members of the Democratic party in the State. At a conference of party men on Tuesday afternoon Mr. Post urged with great force and earnestness the necessity of the proper fulfillment of the party pledge to pass a primary election law. This pledge, Mr. Post justly declared, can only be redeemed by the enactment of a law which will command the assent of the great body of the people and satisfy them that the voters will have the right and the full opportunity to vote directly for the nomination of their candidates, and that their votes will be counted and declared as they were cast. Mr. Post warned the meeting that the Democratic party cannot afford to trifle with this matter. The fundamental principle upon which the great and historic Democratic party rests is popular government. The great founder of the party, Thomas Jefferson, always trusted the people, and the event almost invariably justified that trust. The question that now confronts the party is whether it will permit the people to nominate their own candidates, or whether candidates are to be nominated for them by managers, by logrolling and trucking and trading and wirepulling. Jefferson believed in letting the people govern themselves. Mr. Post believes in it, and he warns his fellow Democrats that the primary election pledge is too serious a matter to trifle with.

The fact that a satisfactory primary election law will involve a measure of expense is being used as an argument against it by those who never seem to consider expense except when real reform is in question. The same objection might be urged against putting the cost of general elections upon the taxpayers. Why not let the party committees collect the cost of the general election from the candidates or those interested in them? Why is it any more extravagant for the public to pay the cost of nominating candidates that it is for the public to pay the cost of electing candidates after they are nominated? In point of fact, the nomination is the more important. In the South the general election is regarded as a mere necessary legal formality to confirm the results of the primary elections. In this State, if bad candidates are nominated, bad officials will be elected. The nomination is the initial step and the controlling one, and it should be hedged about with every safeguard which a good law, faithfully enforced, can give. What is needed and what the people demand is a primary election bill that will redeem absolutely, in letter and in spirit, the pledge of the Democratic platform on this subject. The Democratic leaders at Annapolis know what that pledge was, and the people will be satisfied with nothing less than its full redemption. Whatever the form of the bill that may be agreed upon, it must measure up to the platform pledge in every particular if the party is to avoid discredit and disaster.—Editorial, Baltimore Sun.

TEMPERANCE RESORT

To Be Made Out Of Ocean City. Project Changes Hands. Proprietor of The Atlantic Hotel Sends Congratulations.

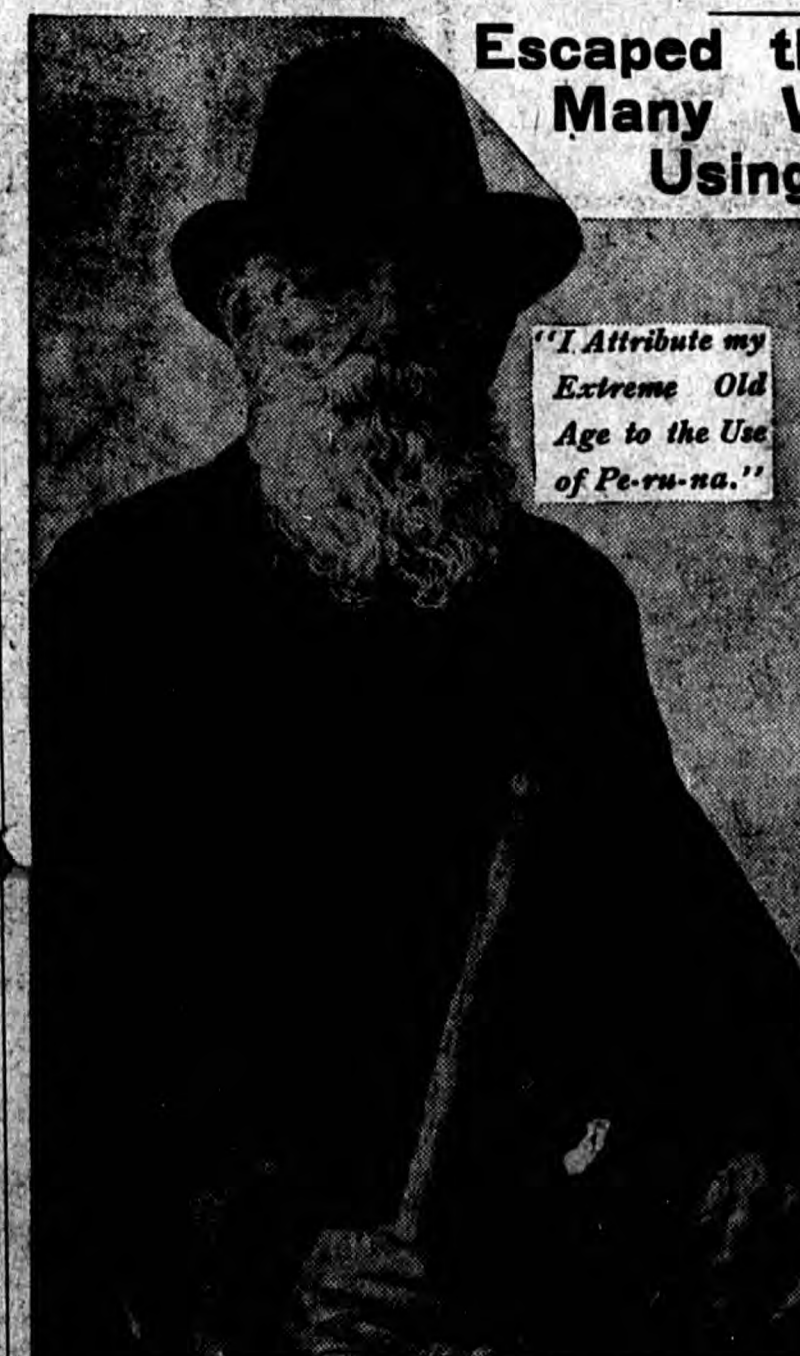

Mr. Taylor, the new President and General Manager of the Atlantic Hotel at Ocean City called on Mr. Orlando Harrison, Chairman of the Citizens' Campaign Committee of Worcester County from Philadelphia, Monday morning and congratulated him on his victory now in Worcester County. He said as President of the new company, he was entirely satisfied with the result and was glad the saloon was wiped out of Ocean City.

With their four thousand hotel lots for sale, they propose to open Ocean City one of the greatest summer sea-shore resorts on the Atlantic Coast.

—FOR SALE—One Hand Elevator, also 125 feet pump three stories high. Pump for Hand or Foot. Box Bowline also can be done. Will sell and take orders. Call on Mr. Taylor.

THE OLDEST MAN IN AMERICA

Escaped the Terrors of Many Winters By Using Pe-ru-na.

"I Attribute my Extreme Old Age to the Use of Pe-ru-na."

In speaking of his good health and extreme old age, Mr. Brock says: "After a man has lived in the world as long as I have, he ought to have found out a great many things by experience. I think I have done so."

"One of the things I have found out to my entire satisfaction is the proper thing for ailments that are due directly to the effects of the climate. For 119 years I have withstood the changeable climate of the United States."

"I have always been a very healthy man, but, of course, subject to the affections which are due to sudden changes in the climate and temperature."

"As for Dr. Hartman's remedy, Pe-ru-na, I have found it to be the best, if not the only reliable remedy for these affections. It has been my standby for many years, and I attribute my good health and extreme old age to this remedy."

"It exactly meets all my requirements. It protects me from the evil effects of sudden changes; it gives me strength; it keeps my blood in good circulation. I have come to rely upon it almost entirely for the many little things for which I need medicine."

"When epidemics of the grippe first began to make their appearance in this country I was a sufferer from this disease."

"I had several long stages with the grip. At first I did not know that Pe-ru-na was a remedy for this disease. When I heard that the grippe was epidemic I tried Pe-ru-na for the grippe and found it to be just the thing."

In a later letter, Mr. Brock writes: "I am well and feeling as well as I have for years. I would not be without Pe-ru-na."

Yours truly,
Isaac Brock.

A letter dated July 5, 1905, written for Mr. Brock by his wife, Sarah J. Brock, states:

"Last winter I had just gotten up out of a spell of sickness, when I commenced taking Pe-ru-na. I think it improved my health very much."

In a postscript, Mrs. Brock adds: "He receives a great many letters inquiring about what Pe-ru-na will do. I do not answer them all, as I think they can get a bottle and try it."

Mr. Isaac Brock, 119 Years Old Last Birthday.
BORN before the United States was formed. Saw 22 presidents elected. Pe-ru-na has protected him from all sudden changes. Veteran of four wars. Shed a horse when 55 years old. Always conquered the grip with Pe-ru-na. Witness in a land suit at the age of 118 years. Believes Pe-ru-na the greatest remedy of the age for internal troubles.

Do You Open Your Mouth

Like a young bird and gaily down what food or medicine may be offered you? Or, do you want to know something of the composition and character of that which you take into your stomach whether as food or medicine?

Most intelligent and sensible people now-a-days insist on knowing what they employ whether as food or as medicine. Dr. Pierce believes they have a perfect right to insist upon such knowledge. So he publishes, broadcast and on each bottle of his medicines, what they are made of and what they do. This he feels he can well afford to do because the more the ingredients of which his medicines are made are studied and understood the more will their superior curative virtues be appreciated.

For the cure of woman's peculiar weaknesses, irregularities and derangements, giving rise to frequent headaches, backache, dragging-down pain or distress in lower abdominal or pelvic region, accompanied, oftentimes, with a debilitating, pelvic, catarrhal drain and kindred symptoms of weakness, Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription is a most efficient remedy. It is equally effective in curing painful periods, in giving strength to nursing mothers and in preparing the system of the expectant mother for baby's coming, thus rendering childbirth safe and comparatively painless. The Favorite Prescription is a most potent, strengthening tonic to the general system and to the organs distinctly feminine in particular. It is also a soothing and invigorating nerve and nerve-cure, exhaustion, nervous prostration, neuritis, hysteria, spasms, chorea or St. Vitus's dance, and other distressing nervous symptoms all tendent upon functional and organic diseases of the distinctly feminine organs.

A host of medical authorities of all the several schools of practice, recommend each of the several ingredients of which "Favorite Prescription" is made for the cure of the diseases for which it is claimed to be a cure. You may read what they say for yourself by sending a postal card request for a free booklet of extracts from the leading authorities, to Dr. R. V. Pierce, Lavaline Hotel and Surgical Institute, Buffalo, N. Y., and it will come to you by return post.

Saturday Night Talks

By T. F. DAYTON — RUTLAND, VT.

RUM DID IT.

March 29, '08—(Prov. 23:29-35.)

The book of Proverbs is full of conundrums. Solomon was a professional in thinking up "nuts for people to crack." The Queen of Sheba came across the known world to prove him with riddles and was appalled at the sharpness of his wit. She came, full of pride at her own ability in that direction; she went home, chagrined and defeated. As an originator of proverbs, quotations, sayings, epigrams, and crisp utterances, the King of Israel easily stands at the head of the ages.

But the "conundrum" of this lesson is "easy." The smallest child in the primary class can answer it and not half try. "Who hath woe? Who hath sorrow? Who hath contentions? Who hath babbling? Who hath need of eyes?" Any one who has lived in a license town, or in a town where prohibition is not enforced, can reply without looking in the book for the answer. Solomon seems to imply that the trouble comes largely from "mixing drinks," for he speaks of those who "go to seek mixed wine." In other words, we suppose he had observed that all wine would get people drunk, but mixed wine would do it more expeditiously. If the alcohol in one kind of wine is the devil, that in several kinds is a whole legion of imps encamped upon the territory of the soul. "Who hath woe?" The margin reads "Who hath oh?" Or in plain Anglo-Saxon, "Who hath ouch?" The cry of one who is hurt. Ah, Solomon, that is easy!

The cry of the hurt! No one will dispute the statement that the cry of the hurt is the cry of the drunkard. Sober people get hurt, of course. Those who never took a drink of liquor in their lives suffer in this world of trouble, but if all the accidents and casualties of every day were traced back to their source, in all cases out of ten the investigation would find a whiskey bottle somewhere in the wreckage. Notwithstanding the well-known fact that a drunk man will tumble all over things and receive little injury, on account of his relaxed muscles and no attempt to save himself, it is yet true that of the vast majority of accidental deaths throughout the country it may truthfully be said, rum did it.

Untold lakes of tears have been shed, uncounted groans have been uttered, innumerable pangs have been felt, unnumbered bones have been fractured, multitudes of bodies have been crushed, or decapitated, or incinerated, or drowned, or hung from great heights because of rum. Multitudes of human beings are in eternity to-day because a drunken man had a trembling hand on the lever of a locomotive or cooked with bleared eyes at a chart, or was impelled to action by the fancies of a muddled brain. Sober men make mistakes, commit blunders, perpetrate outrages, perform acts which result disastrously; we grant all that without argument. But if the troubles resulting from the sober could be put on one side of a sheet, and the disasters attributable to rum could be put on the other, the ponderance of evil on the rum side.

Read the daily story in the newspapers—the story of murder, of suicide, of assault and battery, of incendiarism, or wife-beating, of the slaughter of the innocents, of highway robbery, of railway collisions, of ships pounding on the rocks, of the exposure of crime in life-life and low-life, and ask yourself the question if you can, "Who hath woe?" It is not a question now as to whether this groan that rends the heavens can be stopped, it is not a question as to ways and means of living up the lava tide of alcoholism that is sweeping over every green thing. Whether intemperance can be wholly blotted out or not, is not the question now. We are simply calling attention to a great, over-narrowing, stunning, unmistakable fact. So long as the rum is the cause of crime, the demon of demoralization, the blight of blights, the anarchist of anarchists, the deadly foe of everything that is pure in the soul, peaceful in the family, prosperous in the state that nothing can be named in connection with it that is worthy of consideration.

It is no argument to say that some men live it all their lives and are never harmed by it. Some men work in powder factories all their lives and never get blown up. Some men deal in rattlesnakes, hunt them, trade in them, and never feel their fangs; some men put their heads in lions' mouths as a profession, and never get decapitated, but that does not make the business any the less risky. It is only here and there a man can be found that is able to hold this demon at bay. Possibly he is allowed to do it in order to tempt a multitude of fools to try the same experiment and go down to endless ruin. The text rings like a tocsin of alarm in its awful reverberation. Who hath woe? woe! woe!

Thousands Have Kidney Trouble and Never Suspect It.

Thousands of people do not realize the alarming increase and remarkable prevalence of kidney disease. While kidney disorders are the most common diseases that prevail, they are almost the last recognized by patient and physician, who content themselves with doctoring the effects, while the original disease undermines the system.

There is comfort in the knowledge so often expressed, that Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, the great kidney remedy, fulfills every wish in curing rheumatism, pain in the back, kidneys, liver, bladder and every part of the urinary passage. It corrects inability to hold water and scalding pain in passing it, or bad effects following use of liquor, wine or beer, and overcomes that unpleasant necessity of being compelled to go often during the day, and to get up many times during the night. The mild and extraordinary effect of Swamp-Root is soon realized. It stands the highest for its wonderful cures of the most distressing cases. If you need a medicine you should have the best. Sold by druggists in fifty-cent and one-dollar sizes. You may have a sample bottle and a book that tells all about it, both sent free by mail. Address Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y. When writing mention this paper and don't make any mistake, but remember the name, Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, and the address, Binghamton, N. Y.

USE OF FARM ENGINES

Both the Alcohol and Gasoline Type Described.

The determination of the position of the alcohol engine today involves a forecast of the future, and should it be shown to be able to compete now it must inevitably reach a stronger and more important industrial position as time goes on. This is the fact that has led governments to take up the question, and among them the United States is the latest. Exploding engines operating on crude oil will average about 25,000 heat units per brake horsepower hour, which is equivalent to about 10 per cent. thermal efficiency; engines using gasoline should operate at a thermal efficiency of a year 19 per cent. under similar operating conditions.

The efficiency of an alcohol engine may be assumed at this time to be unknown, but as alcohol can be burned in engines designed for gasoline, it may be assumed that such an engine will have with alcohol fuel the same thermal efficiency as with gasoline.

The first serious attempt to examine into the possibility of alcohol as a fuel in competition with petroleum seems to have been made in 1894 in Linz, Germany, by Professor Hartmann. The engine used was built to operate on kerosene, and used 435 grams of kerosene per hour per brake horsepower, which is equivalent to 0.935 pounds, or 1.1 pint, approximately. This indicates for kerosene a thermal efficiency of 13.6 per cent. When operating on alcohol the engine used about twice as much, or 839 grams, which with this kind of alcohol was equivalent to a thermal efficiency of 12.2 per cent., or a little less than with kerosene. The experiment would seem to indicate that, compared with kerosene, alcohol, as a fuel, offered very little chance for successful competition. In spite of this, investigations were continued and the results of this development may be summed up by stating that the thermal efficiency has been raised to something over thirty per cent., quite a remarkable showing, in comparison with the original figure. This indicates that with a motor specially constructed for alcohol, the price per gallon might be twice as much as for the latter as for petroleum, and still produce power for less money, assuming all other conditions, such as cost of attendance, lubrication, etc., being the same.

The Office of Experiment Stations of this Department, in connection with its Irrigation and Drainage investigations, has tested a number of different types of gasoline engines with alcohol and obtained figures which show the comparative consumption of gasoline and alcohol in the same engine. The first tests were made without any particular attempt at obtaining the best adjustment of the engine for each fuel, and showed a consumption of alcohol two or three times as great by weight per horsepower hour as was necessary with gasoline or kerosene. These figures indicate the necessity of determining the proper conditions of adjustment, because these were found to have a serious influence on the amount of fuel consumed. With care in adjusting the engine so as to secure the most economical use of the alcohol, it was found that, under like conditions, a small engine consumed 1.33 pounds of alcohol to 0.99 pound of gasoline per brake horsepower hour—that is, with the best adjustment of the engine for each fuel there was required 1.8 times as much alcohol by weight as gasoline per brake horsepower hour. It was also shown in making this adjustment that it was possible to burn more than twice as much alcohol at stated by improper adjustments, and still have the engine working in an apparently satisfactory way. The range of excess gasoline which might be burned without interfering seriously with the working of the engine was not so great, being a little less than twice as much as the minimum.

There is on the American market a class of engines having a vaporizer which forms part of the cylinder head and which is heated by the explosion taking place inside the exploding chamber. One of these is shown in Fig. 2. On the figure, A is the vaporizer proper. Under it is seen a lamp (B), the burner or vaporizer being surrounded by a casing (D). This vaporizer is bolted to the cylinder head (E), and contains on its inner head a lip projecting into the exploding chamber. A little pump injects a small stream of oil at every stroke and drops it on this lip from the pipe (F). This lip is very hot from previous explosions and from the lamp, which is turned off when the engine begins work. The compression stroke forces the air in the cylinder over the lip and through the neck into the vaporizer bulb, thus mixing more or less completely the vapor which forms on the lip with the air that is forced over the lip into the bulb. Such hot-bulb vaporizers as this will work with practically all of the fuels—crude oils, gasoline, kerosene, and alcohol—with proper adjustment of the pump and of the temperature of the receiving bulb.

Another vaporizer of a similar order, but designed especially for alcohol, illustrated in Fig. 3, is known as the Brouhot, a French type. Exhaust gas enters at the bottom as shown by the arrow and lettering on the cut, and rises through the iron chamber, which is corrugated to increase the surface. Alcohol is admitted near the bottom of these ribs, and flows upward on the side opposite to that headed by the exhaust gases. The regulating valve is attached to permit some exhaust gases to pass around the heating chamber and so vary its temperature, but the regulation must be done by hand. Vapor rising from the surface of the alcohol in the top of the chamber meets air, which passes first through the regulating valve intended for the adjustment of proportions. The corrugations are such as to form a screw thread of a helix passage, and the exhaust entering first at the bottom, passes directly to the top of the chamber and downward in the helical groove to the bottom, so that the top of the helix will be the hottest part. Alcohol enters the bottom of the opposite helix, flows upward and vaporizes somewhere in its upward course discharging into the air current at the hot top of the helix as superheated alcohol vapor. This vaporized alcohol, therefore, of the boiling type, but the boiling takes place on the surface of the liquid which is at the pressure in the suction pipe and the rate of boiling is regulated by hand by admitting more or less exhaust gases to the vaporizing helix.

Should Live to 100 or 120 Years.

Is there a natural law which governs longevity in man or animal? There is a scientific law, which regulates and governs the normal round of human life. The law was discovered by Buffon, demonstrated by Vi-chat and made an exact science by Flourens. While the law has been frequently assailed it has never been overthrown, nor disturbed in its force. Animals increase in the direction of growth, bulk and vitality; the duration of the time of growth determines the duration of life.

The law may be briefly stated thus: An animal grows as long as the bones are not united in their epiphyses. The duration of life is five times that of this growth. In man this growth ends at twenty; the bones are then united with their epiphyses, and the normal duration of life would be five times this, or one hundred. The growth of the camel ends at eight; according to the duration of life it should be forty. The growth of the horse ends at five, and his round of life should be twenty-five. The epiphyses of the bones of the ox ends at four; his round of life should be twenty. The lion, singularly enough, has the same duration of growth, and the same normal life as the ox. The dog reaches the end of growth at two and the round of life is ten; so that it is seen that the human life unless cut short by accident or disease, ends its round at from ninety to one hundred years; and that, whether a man be a negro, a Chinaman, a European, an American, or whether he be savage or civilized, whether he be a dweller of the city, or in the country; that the variable round does not depend upon race, climate, food, or other conditions. Mr. Flourens, who is perhaps the highest authority and who has studied it more in scientific details, is of the opinion "that every man has the power to fill this round, if he does not violate the natural law."

Vi-chat makes the round of life six times that of growth, instead of five times, which would make the round of life in man one hundred and twenty years. Other writers are of the opinion that the round should be extended to one hundred and fifty years, notably Dr. Compton, who gives a similar ground, claims that this age has been occasionally reached in human life in various countries during the last two centuries.

A Good Guide

Governor Vardaman of Mississippi, in the course of an address in Jackson, repeated a witty saying of the famous Bishop Wilberforce. "Bishop Wilberforce," he said, "was out driving one day when a man on horseback stopped him and, thinking to have a joke, asked: 'Excuse me, bishop, but could you tell me the road to Heaven?'" "Certainly, sir," the bishop answered. "Turn to the right, and keep straight on."

RE-ASSESSMENT.

The introduction in the Senate of a bill providing for a general assessment in the counties, has brought the question prominently before the people. It is argued that the assessment in this county before, was full of faults and that the property was not put on an equitable basis, and that this together with the change of values in the various parts of the county make a new assessment advisable.

There does not seem to be much doubt but what the old assessment was faulty, whether or not to the extent of requiring a new assessment may be a debatable question, neither is there much doubt but what the "sale" value of property has changed very materially in some sections of the county.

The new bill seems to provide for a board of assessors composed of three to act as a general board, two of whom shall be appointed by the Governor of the state and the third by the County Commissioners of the various counties, these to appoint local assessors of the various districts, the board of Commissioners acting as a board of review.

As to the advisability of a new law to provide for a general assessment there seems to be some doubt as to it is argued that if a new assessment is needed the Board of County Commissioners have ample power under the present law to conduct one, and that in the case then a new law making an assessment compulsory is not needed, and its passage would be unwise.

If a new assessment is needed then it should be entirely free from any political taint, and should be under the authority and absolute control of the various Boards of Commissioners throughout the state as they are in a position to know what the conditions are and will be able to conduct the work in a better way than any new board which may be appointed. If politics are to enter into an assessment then we are all better off without one no matter how badly it may be needed. To say that those who were in some capacity served the party—or some leaders of the party—in the past is sufficient qualification to place on the value of property in the county is absurd, and if followed out will result in an unfair and unequal assessment. Professional office seekers are as a rule unfit to pass on the value of property anywhere, and no one should be appointed to do this work but those whom a good business man would be willing to trust to fix a value on something he had to sell or something he wanted to buy.

It is not meant by this that the property in the county is to be valued for taxable purposes at its real or supposed real value but that it be put on an equal basis—if a property worth $5000 and is assessed at $8000 the property of some other man worth $1000 is valued at $1000 only he is assessed at $600. As to the advisability of having a high assessment there is considerable doubt as to that of course it would mean a corresponding low tax, but the revenue remained the same, but there is always the danger that a low assessment will be raised whether necessary or not, if we get a wrong kind of assessment of men as Commissioners. The law will stand a fair tax per hundred but above a certain point no assessment will dare to go regardless of the assessment. In other words with a valuation of $5,000,000 the tax rate would be, let us assume, be $1 per hundred, now with a valuation of $10,000,000, the same income would be obtained with a 50 cent rate, now with the first valuation and rate of $1 the board would not care to risk a higher rate and the expenditures of the county would be so arranged as to keep within it, but with the second valuation and rate of 50 cents, the board might be willing to raise such a high valuation and low rate, but the result would be the same, the county would be assessed at a low rate.

Commissioner it is not believed that a low rate would be abused but who can tell what may be the results in future boards.

That our property should be put on a fair and equitable basis there can be no question, and if we have to have a new assessment let us have one that will put the burden of taxation on all shoulders alike. And to do this will require that the men appointed to value the property throughout the county adopt the same line of fixing values—either at their actual value or a certain per cent of their value—and in order to ascertain their real value it is necessary to have men appointed, who are competent to judge of this value, and not men whose chief ability lies in the line of getting men to the polls neither can men who have little at stake, and who have had but little experience with land and personal values do this but let us have men of acknowledged judgment and considerable experience. Although men of this class are not generally willing to ask or even accept an office of this kind, yet if the matter is put before them in the proper light and the importance of the work shown them, it ought not be hard to obtain men of the right calibre.

If the County Commissioners have this power already as was generally understood, then this bill is improper and bad and should not be passed, since the manner of selecting the boards and officials for carrying the law into effect, give too good a chance to turn it into a political measure, wherever those in authority choose, so to do.

Open Publicity the Best Guaranty of Merit.

When the maker of medicine, sold through druggists for family use, takes his patients fully into his confidence by frankly and fearlessly publishing broadcast as well as on his bottle wrappers a full list of all the ingredients in plain English, this action on his part is the best possible evidence that he is not afraid to have the search light of investigation turned full on his formula and that it will bear the most thorough investigation. Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription for the cure of weaknesses, periodical pains and functional derangements of the organs distinctly feminine, is a medicine put up for sale through druggists for woman's special use, the maker of which takes his patients into his full confidence by open and honest publicity.

A glance at the published ingredients on each bottle wrapper will show that it is made wholly from native, American, medicinal roots, that it contains no poisonous or habit forming drugs, no narcotics and no alcohol—pure, triple refined glycerine of proper strength being used instead of the commonly employed alcohol, both for extracting and preserving the active medicinal properties found in the roots of the American forest plants employed. If interested send name and address to Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y. for his little book of extracts from the works of eminent medical writers and teachers, endorsing the several ingredients and telling just what Dr. Pierce's medicine are made of. It's free for the asking.

Letter to D. C. Holloway,
Salisbury, Md.

Dear Sir: Ten years ago there was one pure paint and 300 adulterated; there are now eight pure, 300 adulterated, about half of the latter short measure besides.

There is still but one best, and the difference is ten gallons Devco goes as far as eleven next best—$5—in every ten gallons.

A new word has come up in paint; it is strong. Strong paint goes further and wears longer; weak paint takes more gallons and wears out sooner. The proper cost of a 10 gallon job is $50. Paint that takes 11 gallons makes it $55. Paint that takes 12 gallons makes it $60. Paint that takes 13 gallons makes it $65. Paint that takes 14 gallons makes it $70. The $50 job wears twice as long as the $100. These figures are not precise; they are round. The 10 gallon paint is Devco. Yours truly
F. S. L. W. Ounby, Co. sells our paint.

The General Demand

of the Well-Informed of the World has always been for a simple, pleasant and efficient liquid laxative remedy of known value; a laxative which physicians could sanction for family use because its component parts are known to them to be wholesome and truly beneficial in effect, acceptable to the system and gentle, yet prompt, in action.

In supplying that demand with its excellent combination of Syrup of Figs and Elixir of Senna, the California Fig Syrup Co. proceeds along ethical lines and relies on the merits of the laxative for its remarkable success.

That is one of many reasons why Syrup of Figs and Elixir of Senna is given the preference by the Well-Informed. To get its beneficial effects always buy the genuine—manufactured by the California Fig Syrup Co., only, and for sale by all leading druggists. Price fifty cents per bottle.

WEEK AT ANNAPOLIS.

Session Nearing Its Close. Primary Law Pledge Not Yet Redeemed. Local Option Bill Killed in Senate.

Other News.

Local Option Bill.

The general Local Option Bill was finally killed for this session last Saturday, when the Senate by a vote of 11 to 13 refused to order the Temperance Committee to report the bill. The debate leading up to the vote was one of the warmest and most interesting of the session. Sen. Blair Lee was one of the strongest advocates of the bill and in a forceful and striking speech he spoke of the power wielded by the "special interests" in the Legislature and of the temptations offered by these interests to turn members false to their trust.

"The question is one greater than the selling or not selling of liquor," said Senator Lee. "It shows the power of special interests on the agents of the people in the Legislature, and this power really makes of them Benedict Arnolds. The people are becoming restless over the falseness of legislators to the trusts reposed in them. They have a right to know how their agents stand in all such public questions, the bill should be reported and acted upon by this house."

The vote was as follows:

For—Senators Andrews, Baker, of Harford, Baker, of Washington, Brashers, Francis, Goldsborough, Griffith, Harper, Jones, Lancaster, Lee, Matthews—12.

Against—President Seth, Senators Beaman, Biddison, Brown, Campbell, Claggett, Condy, Gorman, Greenwell, Linthicum, Milbourn, Moore, Price, Shannon and Sly—13.

Good Roads Bill.

The Good Roads Bill as finally agreed upon provides for a commission of five with the Governor of the State an ex-officio member making the commission a body of six. Two of these must come from the Geological Survey and the Governor is to appoint the other three from the State at large. The bill carries with it an appropriation of $5,000,000 to be used in building good roads. This bill has passed both houses and has been issued by the Governor; so is now a law.

Corrupt Practice Act.

The Corrupt Practice Act as agreed upon by the Democratic Caucus has passed both; signed and is now a law, Gov. Crothers having signed the bill on Thursday.

Primary Bills.

Sen. Gorman's State Primary Bill was brought up in the Senate on Tuesday and after a fight was amended—or rather the Primary law now in effect in Baltimore City was substituted for his. It is believed now that the outlook at Annapolis for a genuine Primary Law is much brighter than ever before. It is understood that Gov. Crothers is taking a hand in the matter and insisting that the pledges made by the Democratic Party previous to the election be fulfilled in spirit as well as in letter.

The fight in the Senate on Tuesday is said to be the result of a conference held with the Governor. Sen. Harper offered the amendments to the Gorman Bill and led in the fight to have them adopted, which was successful by a vote of 14 to 21. This shows that a majority in the Senate are in favor of a fair primary law, and though it is hard to outline at present just what the outcome will be, yet it looked as tho a better bill than the one Sen. Gorman introduced will be passed. Mr. Stanford's bill in the house which provides for a genuine carrying out of the promises made by the party has not yet been reported out of the Committee. As the Legislature adjourns finally on Monday night it is feared that in the rush some ill-considered classes may get in—either by intention—or some—or by mistake.

John Walter Smith—Senator.

The Legislature elected Ex-Gov. John Walter Smith to fill out the unexpired term of Sen. Whyte. Sen. Smith presented his credentials to the United States Senate on Thursday and Sen. Burrows of the Election Committee of the Senate objected to his being sworn in as the prescribed time had not intervened between the notification of the vacancy to the Legislature and its election of a successor by it.

Silver Service For Mr. Ker.

Clerks in the Senate engrossing room presented the chief clerk, Mr. L. B. Ker of Wicomico, a handsome silver service set Thursday morning. This is the third term for Mr. Ker as chief clerk of the Senate engrossing room, and his services have always been highly commended by the lawmakers.

Status of some of the important bills at Annapolis:

Gorman's general primary election bill; second-reading file of Senate, awaiting amendment.

Stanford's general primary election bill; in House Committee on Elections.

Amended oyster bill; passed Senate; now in House Committee on Chesapeake Bay.

General corporation bill; passed House; now on Senate third-reading file, with amendment.

Banking bill; passed House; now in Senate Finance Committee.

Gorman's Senatorial primary bill; in Senate Elections Committee.

Amendment to Wilson ballot law, cutting out publication of sample ballot; passed House; now in Senate Elections Committee.

Harper's general educational bill;

passed Senate; on third-reading file of the House.

Shenbrooks' Annex tax bill; passed House; now on Senate third-reading file.

City dock loan bill; passed House; now on third-reading file of Senate.

Gorman's Court of Appeals salary-increase bill; passed Senate; on second-reading file of House.

Easement tax bill; in Senate Finance Committee; has not passed the House.

Public utilities commission bill; in House Corporations Committee; has not passed Senate; not likely to pass.

Lehmayer election bill; passed House; in Senate Elections Committee.

RINK ATTRACTIONS NEXT WEEK.

Next Week will be One of the Best of The Season.

SOMETHING DOING EVERY NIGHT.

MONDAY night, there will be an indoor game of baseball of three innings. There has been a great deal of rivalry between the two teams and this promises to be an interesting event.

TUESDAY night, there will be a "Hunt for the Black Arrow." Four Prizes will be given to the lucky ones. Anyone in the audience can and are invited to participate.

WEDNESDAY night, there will be a Grand March and Tournament. Prizes will be given.

THURSDAY night there will be a Masked Carnival. Last week there were some fine costumes, but the masks are determined to improve on them.

FRIDAY night, a Polo Game will be played between Crisfield or Eastern and Salisbury. Something that never fails to be snappy and exciting.

SATURDAY night, the skaters will catch the Greased Pig, the pig becoming the property of the skater capturing him. Come and have some fun.

We are expecting a fancy skater during the latter part of the week.

Moving pictures every night.

Admission 10c Every Night.

REMEMBER—4 prizes each week for the highest scores made in Ten Pins and Duck Pins.

Noah Was The First Man To Advertise.

It was he who advertised the flood, and it came and it came all right. The fellows who laughed at the advertisement got drowned, and it served them right.

Lacy Thoroughgood has been advertising his Clothing and Hat business for twenty odd years. Has Thoroughgood made a success? Everybody concedes that he sells more clothing and hats than any two merchants on the Peninsula. He sells the finest goods sold on the Peninsula. Does any other merchant sell B. Kuppenheimer & Co.'s clothing? Does any of them sell John B. Stetson Co.'s hats? Does any of them sell Manhattan shirts? Merit—that's Lacy Thoroughgood's success. Merit is the trade-mark of success. Where the former goes the latter is almost sure to follow. There must be merit not only in what Thoroughgood does, but in the way he does it. The goodness of Thoroughgood's clothing and hats is beyond question, and that his prices are no higher than others is certainly not within range of discussion.

Thoroughgood would not have you believe, however, that he is the best man solely for his wealth. He is not. Thoroughgood most generally makes a small profit on his goods. The reason Thoroughgood is daily saving his customers money on their clothing and hats is because he pays spot cash for every dollar's worth of goods he buys. In Lacy Thoroughgood's Clothing, Hats, Shirts, Collars, Cuffs, Suspenders, Hosiery? If not, please stop and think a moment. Thoroughgood is counted the biggest firm in his line in Salisbury. Got two stores—no lie.

Our New Corset News.

"W. B. REDUSO" puts every stout woman on the same style basis as her slender sister. It is the last word in corset-making—radical in its idea, and in its results a scientific, logical, simple corset, which, by forcing its wearer to hold herself properly, so encourages deep breathing that nature itself reduces excess of flesh. The "REDUSO" is so planned that the hips are graded into a longer and more slender proportion. Price $3.00; other grades $1.00 up. Satisfactory wear guaranteed.
