To-Day "Clean-Up" Day

Today (Tuesday) has been set aside as "Clean-Up" Day by the Town Commissioners and the Civic Club and everybody should enter into the spirit of "Clean-Up" Day.

Wonders can undoubtedly be accomplished if everybody will co-operate. Clean up all the back yards; clean up the gardens and lawns; clean up the front yards; clean up the business houses. In fact, clean up everything that needs cleaning. In this way great credit can be gained.

enter into the spirit of cleaning up. A tasteful home is quite as much dependent upon the outer surroundings as upon the inner furnishings, and a tasteful town or village is but one aggregation of tasteful homes. The right sort of civic pride should not stop at making the home beautiful, it should aim to make the town beautiful. This the Civic Club is now trying to accomplish and it has, by its good taste and civic spirit, transformed the appearance of many sections of the town in the past.

Mr. W. H. Dashiell on Tuesday last received intelligence that his sister, Mrs. Margaret Irving Birch, wife of Mr. Joseph F. Birch, had died after a brief illness of Bright's disease, at her home 1630 P street, Washington, D. C. Mrs. Birch was 60 years old. She was a daughter of the late Rev. Dr. John H. Dashiell and was well known in Princess Anne. She is survived by five sisters, Mrs. John Ireland, Mrs. Louis S. Clayton and Mrs. Grafton D. Ridout, of Annapolis; Mrs. George M. Myers and Miss Annie F. Dashiell, of Washington, D. C., and one brother, Mr. W. H. Dashiell, of Princess Anne.

Funeral services were held at her home on Thursday morning last and interment was in Oak Hill Cemetery.

"Can You Beat It?"

A county editor received a card which stated the following: "Please send me a few copies of the paper containing the obituary of my aunt. Also publish the enclosed clipping of the marriage of my niece, who lives in Lebanon. And I wish you would mention in your local column, if it does not cost anything, that I have two bull calves for sale. As my subscription is out, please stop my paper. Times are too bad to waste money on newspapers."

SAVINGS ACCOUNTS NOT TAXABLE

Representatives Of State Tax Commission Visit Princess Anne

Messrs. Allan C. Girdwood, secretary, and E. Stanton Bosley, Chief of Supervisors, representing the State Tax Commission, conferred with the County Commissioners of Somerset county on Friday afternoon last regarding the returns which have been made to the schedules which have been sent out for the purpose of assessing intangible personal property, such as bonds and foreign stocks.

Some time ago the County Commissioners sent out a number of schedules of which a part have been returned with property listed to the estimated value of $366,000.

These schedules contemplated the assessment of savings deposits and as soon as they were circulated the question of the legality of the assessment of this form of property arose all over the county.

It was ascertained that the same question had been argued in a case in Carroll county in 1911 and in that case Judge Brashears of the Circuit Court for that county handed down an opinion in which he held that savings accounts were not legally assessable. It appeared that the return of this class of property would be very incomplete and the County Commissioners directed a letter to the State Tax Commission explaining the situation and asking for a final ruling on the question. Mr. Girdwood stated Friday that he had been directed by the State Tax Commission to advise the County Commissioners not to assess savings accounts.

R. D. Lankford's Executors Win Suit

The suit by the executors of the estate of the late Richard D. Lankford against the General Accident, Fire and Life Insurance Corporation for $15,000 represented in an accident policy taken out three months before Mr. Lankford's death, was tried in the Supreme Court of New York city last week and resulted in a verdict for the executors for the amount of $15,000.

Mr. Lankford was vice-president and secretary of the Southern Railway at the time of his death, January 15th, 1914, when his body was found on the floor of the bathroom in the bachelor apartment he occupied in New York, with gas flowing from a jet turned on full. After a week of investigation the coroner ruled that death had been due to accident, but the way the accident occurred has always been a mystery.

The company's persistent refusal to pay the face of the policy caused suit to be filed by George B. Covington, of New York, in behalf of the executor, James U. Dennis, of Baltimore.

Mr. Lankford was a son of Mrs. Elizabeth Lankford and a brother of Mr. Columbus Lankford, of Princess Anne. Mr. Lankford attended the trial and returned home last Wednesday night.

Judge Theodore S. Garnett Dead

Judge Theodore S. Garnett died last Tuesday at his home in Norfolk, Va., in the seventy-first year of his age.

Judge Garnett was a distinguished lawyer and had practiced for many years in Norfolk. He was commander of the Department of the Army of Northern Virginia of Confederate Veterans and served with distinction during the war as aide-de-camp on the staff of Gen. J. E. B. Stuart. Judge Garnett is survived by a widow and two children, Theodore S. Garnett, Jr., of Norfolk, and Mrs. Leila B. Burdett, of Charleston, S. C., and by a brother, Dr. James M. Garnett, of Baltimore, and a sister, Miss Ella I. Garnett, of Washington.

Mrs. Garnett is an aunt of Mrs. Hampden P. Dashiell and Dr. T. J. Smith, of Princess Anne, and Judge and Mrs. Garnett are well known to many of our citizens.

Big Catch Of Fish At Ocean City.

Saturday, the 24th ult., was the biggest day in fishing Ocean City has ever known. During the day 1475 barrels of fine trout were taken from the nets on the ocean front, and the Baltimore, Chesapeake and Atlantic Railway made up a special train to get the fish to Salisbury for shipment north. This marks the banner day in fishing at this popular resort. Twelve hundred barrels was the former record for one day's fishing. These fish were most all fine sized trout which are selling in the city markets at from $5.00 to $7.50 per barrel at this time. Taking an average of $5.00 per barrel for the catch it will be seen that a sum equal to about $7,500.00 was realized for the day's catch.

The giraffe is said to be the only animal in nature that is entirely dumb, not being able to express itself by any sound whatever.

LIVERY STABLE DESTROYED BY FIRE

Nine Horses, Fourteen Carriages, Harness, Corn and Hay Burned

Between 12 and 1 o'clock last Friday morning the alarm of fire was sounded, and only upon the prompt arrival of the local fire department a large conflagration was averted in the section of Main and Water streets, when Mr. Rufus Dashiell's livery stable was destroyed by fire.

The building was a large frame structure, owned by Miss Roxie Colgan, and was all ablaze before the alarm was given and was totally destroyed, together with seven horses, fourteen carriages and buggies, harness, 50 bushels of corn, hay, etc., belonging to Mr. Dashiell; the horse and delivery wagon owned by Mr. Oscar F. Jones, and a horse and wagon belonging to Mr. Podell, of Pocomoke City.

When the fire department arrived on the scene the two-story frame dwelling on Water street, east of the stable, tenanted by Wilson Tilghman, colored, and the large house occupied by Mr. Charles A. Young on the corner of Water and Main streets, were both afire. The Tilghman house was nearly destroyed and the one occupied by Mr. Young damaged to the extent of about $500 before the fire was extinguished. Both of these houses are owned by Miss Colgan and, as well as the livery stable, are covered by insurance.

Mr. Dashiell's loss is about $2,500, covered by an insurance of $1,700.

The origin of the fire is unknown, as the stable was in charge of Zack Spence, a small colored boy, who was asleep in the office and had to be awakened and taken out of the office window when the fire was discovered.

Mr. Young saved the greater part of his household effects, but a large part of his furniture and bedding was damaged by water. His chicken house was burned with about 25 fowls. Tilghman saved the most of his furniture.

John Bunney's Life Ends

John Bunney, whose article appeared in the issue of May 1st, died at his home in Brooklyn, N. Y., on Monday of last week. He had been ill three weeks of a complication of diseases. Members of his family were with him when he died. For a week he had apparently been on the mend. A strenuous month of work, it is believed, caused the breakdown which resulted in his death.

John Bunney was 52 years old. For 29 years he had been before the footlights before he entered the moving picture field, four years ago. During his career as an actor he had leading roles with many old-time stars, among them being Annie Russell. He had attained country-wide popularity before he achieved his greatest success on the screen.

Mr. Bunney was born in New York city, of English parents, was educated in the Brooklyn public schools and was a clerk in a general store until he went on the stage at the age of 19. In the moving picture world he was regarded for a time as the country's leading comedian. He was said to have received more than the President of the United States in salary and royalties. The amount of his compensation was never divulged to the public. He was buried in Brooklyn.

Good Homes Wanted For Orphans

Nathaniel G. Grasty, secretary municipal department, supervisors of City Charities, Court House, Baltimore, asks aid in a good cause, which will be seen by the following letter:

"May we in the interest of children ask your sympathy and co-operation in securing a good, free private home for an orphan?"

"The Supervisors of City Charities have under their care at all times a few bright, attractive and interesting children that they are ready to place on trial in respectable private homes, with a view to their remaining permanently if the little one is congenial. At this time we are especially desirous of homes for Catholic boys and girls."

"During the past few years the Supervisors of City Charities have been instrumental in brightening many a lonely home by the cheery voice and sweet companionship of a little child, and they believe the homes of some of your esteemed readers offer safe nooks into which one of more of such little one would fit. Will you not kindly give the matter publicity and thus help the good cause."

Longest Drought In Forty Years

The longest early spring drought in more than 40 years now exists over the more Eastern portions of the country, the National Weekly Weather and Crop Bulletin announced last Wednesday. Cotton and truck crops in the eastern part of the South are suffering for lack of rain, but in the great wheat and corn sections of the Middle West the weather of the last week has been unusually favorable. In the Far West the outlook for fruits of all kinds continues promising.

LEADS BULLY, SENATOR LEE SAYS

Declares There's Not a Break Among Former Supporters.

Senator Blair Lee, upon his return to Washington from a week's campaign on the Eastern Shore of Maryland, declared that the forces who supported his gubernatorial aspirations in 1911 are standing solidly behind his candidacy for Governor this year. The Senator expressed delight with the reception accorded him.

"Everything looks bully for my candidacy for Governor on the Eastern Shore," said Senator Lee in telling of his visit to Cecil, Caroline, Kent and Wicomico counties, and found them in a very satisfactory shape for my gubernatorial campaign. I did not find a break in anything which gave me such loyal support as I have received. Every man and every woman who backed me in 1911 is standing behind my candidacy this year, and I am delighted many others who did not support me four years ago will line up with me this year. I was told of a number of men who opposed me in the last campaign who will back me in this year."

"I have been much encouraged by my trip to the counties at this time. I shall get more support from the Eastern Shore this year than in 1911. I have been in Cecil, Maryland also and found there everything in good shape. The nature of a canvass of the counties. The organizing work will come later. I wanted to sound the bugle as to my candidacy, and to get the word to me from my friends and from personal talks with the rank and file of the voters was very encouraging."

Senator Lee was asked in regard to the present among the rank and file of the voters toward President Wilson.

"The people hold a feeling of confidence in the administration," was his reply. "I was particularly struck with this sentiment. They feel that President Wilson safely will guide the country through the present international situation. This feeling is greatly fostered by the fact that the President has managed the affairs of the country and is keeping this country out of the European situation. I am holding my firm stand for the United States. I am not a European. I am not a European. I am not a European."

The Fly And The Garbage Pail

About the extermination of the fly there is room for a difference of opinion. It may not be possible to get rid of man's ancient companion, musca domestica, who has a persistent habit of perpetuating his species and can increase and multiply fast enough to keep the most diligent swatter working over time. If the very last fly was swatted too, nobody knows what might rise up to vex humanity in its place. It seems to be taking a chance to campaign against the pesky insect, but folks are eager to chance new conditions in this age and since the only way to find out what will happen if the flies are all dead is to kill all the flies. Let's set about the experiment and trust that we shall be happy when it is over.

One feature of the anti-fly crusade, however, is to be commended without reservation and that is providing sanitary garbage receptacles and to use nothing else to hold the kitchen waste. It strikes to the bottom of the inexcusable garbage troubles and corrects the first of all evils that have grown up in handling of the by-products of our collective living.

Because your neighbor throws garbage in the alley is no reason why you should follow his example—it's a reason why you should set him a good example.

New Bus Line For Dorchester County

Mr. W. P. Lawson, who recently resigned as president and general manager of the Peninsula Rapid Transit Company, with headquarters at Salisbury, has been invited by the business men of Cambridge to organize a similar company there. The Cambridge Record last Wednesday says:

"It is understood that the company has rented the vacant property on High street which will be fitted up as an up-to-date office and waiting room. The company will use White motor cars, built in Cleveland, Ohio, which are considered the most reliable in operation in this country. Over two hundred lines are operating successfully with this equipment. The cars are light in weight, so built to meet conditions as found in some parts of the country, are speedy, and as comfortable as a touring car."

"The first two lines to be established out of Cambridge will run from this city to Taylor's Island, and to Bishop's Head, touching Crapo, Church Creek, Hooper's Island, Hurley's Neck, Lakesville, Wingate and points along these two routes."

If one had predicted twenty-five years ago that electric cars and the automobile would do what they have done people would have laughed at him or passed him by as a fit subject for the madhouse.

FIELD DAY WILL BE BEST EVER

Two Bands Of Music—Thousands Of People Expected In Town

Next Friday, May 7th, is expected to be one of the greatest public school days in this county. It will be observed as Field and Exhibit Day and if the weather is favorable thousands of people will be in Princess Anne.

The exhibits prepared by the various schools throughout the county will be open to examination at the Washington High School building from 9 o'clock a. m. to 5 o'clock p. m. Arrangements have been made for a special train to leave Crisfield (Pine Street Station) at 8.40 a. m. This train will stop at all stations between Crisfield and Princess Anne and will reach the latter place about 9.30. Returning, the train will leave Princess Anne at 5.15 p. m.

The exercises of the day will open with a parade of school children accompanied by their teachers and trustees about 9.30 a. m., upon the arrival of the train from Crisfield. The parade will be accompanied by the Crisfield Cornet Band and the Laurel Citizens' Band. The line of parade will be as follows: Depot to Main street, to Prince William street, to Depot street, to Broad, to Main, to Prince William, to Church, to Beechwood, to Main and thence to the High School. Several thousand children are expected to be in line.

At 10.30 addresses will be delivered from a stand in front of the High School building by State Superintendent Dr. M. Bates Stephens and Dr. J. L. McBrien, of the United States Bureau of Education. County Superintendent Wm. H. Dashiell will preside over this meeting. At 11.30 there will be several basket ball games. At 12.30 there will be an interval of one hour for luncheon. At 1.30 athletic contests will begin which are expected to be of a very spirited nature. At the conclusion of these sports a base ball game will be played, beginning at 3.30 p. m., between the teams of the Crisfield High School and the Washington High School.

Marching in procession and the greatest ingenuity in decoration. Prizes will also be given for the greatest skill in penmanship, map drawing, domestic science and manual training.

The citizens of Princess Anne are requested to decorate their homes and places of business for this gala occasion.

Pilgrimage Of Just Government League

The Just Government League of Maryland is bearing out the saying of the cartoonist "that the approach of summer is heralded by the open-air campaign." Miss Lola C. Trax, organizer of the League, announces that a Pilgrimage will be made to the home of Margaret Brent, at St. Mary's City, southern Maryland. A prairie schooner expedition will leave Baltimore Monday morning, May 31, with St. Mary's City, the objective point. The route will take in Annapolis, Chesapeake Beach, Prince Frederickstown, Solomon's Millstone, and St. Mary's City will be reached by June 10, when a monster celebration will be held. Here the caravan will be met by a party of "pilgrims" from all over the state, who have made the trip by river steamer.

Five caravanners will comprise the schooner expedition—Mr. F. F. Ramey, prominent lawyer and suffragist; Mrs. F. F. Ramey, a descendant of Dr. John Briscoe, one of the Cavaliers of 1633; Mrs. Frank H. Snell, who is in National Suffrage circles, and who did admirable work in Missouri when the suffrage amendment was before the voters for ratification; Miss Mary O'Toole, woman lawyer of Washington, D. C., and secretary of the District of Columbia Branch of the College Equal Suffrage League; Miss L. C. Trax, a Marylander, who has been identified with suffrage work in the State for a number of years. Miss Trax organized the now famous Garrett county hike, and assisted with the Kansas campaign for the Bristow-Mondell woman suffrage resolution, which resulted in the defeat of Mr. George A. Neeley for the United States Senatorship. The caravanners will stop at every town along the way, to hold meetings and distribute literature. The story of the votes-for-women movement, and the first suffragist, Margaret Brent, will be told many times.

Sophomore Entertainment

The young men of the sophomore class of the Washington High School of Princess Anne paid their compliments to the young ladies of the same class last Thursday evening by taking them to a moving picture entertainment at the Auditorium. Mr. and Mrs. H. T. Ruhl and Mr. J. R. Gentry accompanied the young folks. After the entertainment, the party invaded the ice cream saloon below the Auditorium, where cooling drinks were absorbed in unusual quantities. The young men were thanked for their courtesy and many wishes were made for a return of such a happy occasion.

HIS BEST CHUM

By EUNICE BLAKE

Johnny Hoxey, aged fourteen, went to bed one night with a splitting headache. The next morning he remained in slumber, and no effort to awaken him availed. He did not seem to be in pain, sleeping tranquilly. He remained asleep week after week, month after month and year after year. He needed very little food, and that was given him by various methods devised by the doctors. He slept seven years in the same room, in which no change was made during that time.

When Johnny went to sleep a little girl thirteen years old was his "best chum," as he called her. They were in the same class in the same school and used to study their lessons together, for Lucy Treadwell lived directly across the street from Johnny, and they had not far to go to reach each other. Lucy grew from childhood to womanhood, seeing almost daily a person of the opposite sex who was in a perpetual slumber.

One day Johnny showed signs of waking. For a week there was hope that he would do so, but those about him had been so often disappointed that they had lost confidence in his recovery. But he did awaken, and when he came to himself he was alone.

He lay for some time, after becoming conscious, with closed eyes, thinking of his sufferings "the night before," as he supposed it was, and feeling much relieved to be out of pain. Then he attempted to turn on his other side. He was surprised to find himself very weak. Lying in bed without using his muscles had taken his strength. While on his back he opened his eyes, still seeing nothing but the ceiling. Hearing a step in the room, he turned so that he could see a young woman sitting beside a window reading. She was unknown to him. When Johnny as a boy had awakened in the morning and did not have to go to school he usually lay in bed reading.

"Is this Saturday?" he asked. The girl started, and Johnny was astonished at the sound of his voice. The girl rose excitedly, came to his bedside, then ran immediately out of the room. Johnny in his amazement thrashed about and while doing so put his hand to his face. It was covered with hair.

"What in the world?" he began. And, sitting up in bed, he saw in a mirror the reflection of a man. He was dumfounded. He moved, and the reflection moved. After it had followed several of his movements he covered his face with the bedclothes and gave way to a nervous chill.

Hearing persons hurrying into the room, he threw off the clothes. His mother, looking much older than "the night before," ran into the room, followed by the young woman, who had gone out of it, and, taking him in her arms, sobbed.

"My dear boy! Heaven be thanked!" "What is it, mother?" cried the frightened John. "Something strange has happened! How big I am! How rough my voice! I seem to have grown to be a man overnight!"

"You have grown to be a man, dear, but not overnight. You went to bed one night when you were a boy and have slept continuously ever since."

There was silence for some time while a realization of this singular announcement was working its way into John's brain. Then he asked a dozen questions so rapidly that his mother found difficulty in answering one before another came forth. Finally he pointed to the girl, who seemed as much affected by his recovery as his mother, and asked who she was.

"She is—was—your best chum, Lucy Treadwell."

"Good gracious," exclaimed John wonderingly, "is that Lucy?"

"Yes, I'm Lucy. I've prayed for your waking ever since your long sleep began."

"She has been here nearly every day since your slumber began," said John's mother. "And happened to be here when I woke," said John, and he put out both hands to her. "What a woman you've grown to be! How old are you—I mean how old am I?"

"You're twenty-one, and you know that I'm a year younger than you. That makes me twenty. Can you see any trace of your 'best chum' in me?"

"A trace only," replied John. "You were a pretty little girl then; you are a beautiful woman now."

Mrs. Hoxey said she must go and call the doctor at once. John must not get excited and take no action whatever till the doctor had seen him and given directions concerning him.

John obeyed the first injunction, but soon forgot all about the last. His mother had no sooner left the room than he reached for Lucy's hand and drew her to a seat beside him.

"So you have been here constantly since I have been in slumberland. Why did you come so regularly?" Lucy turned away her head.

"You were my 'best chum,' and you have proved yourself worthy of the name. I don't seem to know whether I'm boy or man. I remember the kiss I gave you yesterday—I mean before I went to sleep. I wonder, should I kiss you now, would it taste the same?"

"I don't know," was the reply, the face still averted. John put his arms about her, drew her down to him and kissed her. "It's worth a thousand of the others," he said.

Her Knowledge of Music.
The names of musical compositions do not always convey the impression that is intended by their composers, as one listener discovered recently at a San Francisco concert. One woman was much interested in the music and sat as close to the orchestra as possible, attentively listening to every note. A popular air had just been played. It was a catchy, melodious bit of music and was received with warm applause. Immediately following it on the program was Dvorak's "Humoresque," and the attentive listener drew back in disgust. "Just think," she said in tones loud enough to be heard by those near by—"just imagine playing something humorous after that other beautiful piece. It ought not to be allowed."—Argonaut.

Amateur Truce Makers.
Toward the end of the last siege of Paris by the Germans in 1870-71, the custom grew up of observing an informal armistice of about an hour's duration at sundown, when the hungry citizens, or some of them at all events, used to come out and purchase sausages from the Prussians and Bavarians in the advanced trenches at about ten times their normal price. After awhile, however, the custom came to the knowledge of Von Moltke, who effectually and promptly put a stop to it by shooting some half dozen or more of the amateur truce makers. —Pearson's Weekly.

An Easier Task.
"Mamma, do you think it is true, as papa says, that teachers do not have to work as hard now as they did when he went to school?"
"I expect it is."
"What do you suppose the reason is?"
"The teachers of today don't have to teach your father."—Buffalo News.

Now Mrs. Harrod Got Rid Of Her Stomach Trouble

"I suffered with stomach trouble for years and tried everything I heard of, but the only relief I got was temporary until last spring I saw Chamberlain's Tablets advertised and procured a bottle of them at our drug store. I got immediate relief from that dreadful heaviness after eating and from pain in the stomach," writes Mrs. Linda Harrod, Fort Wayne, Ind. Obtainable everywhere.

Poaching an Egg.
The food value of an egg is enormous, but an invalid tires of eggs served in the ordinary way. Here is a method involving some trouble, but worth it for the sick person's sake. Break an egg into a flat dish of cold water and let it remain covered with muslin for twelve hours. Then pour the water off very gently indeed, so as to prevent the egg going with it. Now poach the latter in boiling water, adding just a tiny pinch of salt. This, nicely served, can be eaten by any one, for it melts in the mouth literally. Two might be cooked, for done in this way one egg is not much.—Buffalo News.

Devilfish.
Devilfish weighing up to 200 pounds are sometimes caught in Japan. These fish are amphibious. They are often seen wabbling on their tentacles like giant spiders in search of patches of sweet potatoes. The natives kill them with clubs. In the water they are caught in jars lowered to the bottom, which the octopus enters, thinking them a good retreat from which to catch its food.

Proverb Didn't Apply.
Mrs. Brown was in the kitchen helping Nora, the cook, prepare supper. "It's an old saying," she remarked to Nora, "that 'too many cooks spoil the broth.' What do you think?"
"Sure, mum," she replied, "there's nothing to worry about. There's only one cook here."—National Monthly.

One Way Only.
"I always pay as I go," remarked the careful individual.
"Lots of fellows do that who don't save enough to pay their way back," added the mere man.—Judge.

Appropriate Place.
"Have you a history of this century's battles?"
"Yes. I keep it in my scrapbook."—Baltimore American.

VALUE OF CROP ROTATION.
No real friend of agriculture advocates the heedless raising of things. That has ruined too much good land in this country in the past. It is wasting the fertility of many acres now. But raising things by good farming is a different proposition, because it requires the maintenance of the means of raising them. The first essential to a good system of farming is a crop rotation, the next proper and profitable use of the products. A prevailing crop rotation is usually the result of the past experience of the farmers of the locality, and it should not be lightly discarded. But it may have become a sort of habit. It might be much improved. This is worth thinking about. Is the rotation followed the best possible one? Could it be changed with benefit to the farm and farmer? What have been the effects of the past system on the land and on its present capacity to produce good crops?—National Stockman and Farmer.

ADVICE FOR PEACH GROWER

Federal Bulletin Tells Him About Location of Orchard, Soil, Etc.
In at least thirty-nine of our forty-eight states there are peach interests of commercial importance, according to a recent United States farmers' bulletin, No. 631, of the department on growing peaches. This bulletin is the first of three on the general subject of peach growing, which will treat of fundamental orchard operations. It gives much valuable information to the fruit grower. The questions of site, propagation, planting, tillage and soil fertility are treated in the first bulletin.
In locating a peach as well as any other orchard other advantages must be considered besides the natural ones of climate and soil. If an orchard is too remote from a shipping station, too far away from a suitable market, or located where ice for refrigerator cars cannot be conveniently supplied, it may not be possible to grow peaches there profitably.
Peaches may do well on a wide range of soil types, including even some of the moderately heavy clay loams and clays. But, whatever the type, a soil must be thoroughly well drained to be suitable for peaches. They will not succeed on poorly drained soils. It follows that the heavy clay types which are so hard and impervious that water does not percolate through them readily are to be avoided as a rule. Moreover, a soil should be moderately fertile. One very rich in nitrogen is not to be desired as a general rule, since it is likely to induce an excessive growth of foliage. On the other hand, the impression which is somewhat common that a poor, unfertile soil is "good enough for peaches" is erroneous.
In districts in which alkali soils occur sites should be selected with a view to avoiding them. While the peach tree can be grown where there is a limited amount of alkali salts, they cause disaster if present in large quantities. It is safer therefore to avoid them as far as possible.
As a general proposition a site that is elevated considerably above the surrounding area is to be preferred for a peach orchard. Relative elevation is generally of greater importance than actual elevation above sea level.

Egg Collector.
Hens need a dark place to lay in, so it is convenient to build a small house for them within a barn or shed. But it is always difficult to get the eggs out of such a laying coop, if it is built economically. To overcome this obstacle a series of chutes, all leading to the same padded pan, has been arranged. Each nest is connected to the main shoot and each has a hole in the bottom of it and when an egg is laid it rolls down to the "egg room" of the laying coop. A small door into the "egg room" can be opened and the eggs taken out without trouble. If the chutes are carefully made there need be no danger of the eggs breaking on the way.—Technical World.

To Grow Head Lettuce.
A successful grower says a liberal quantity of sand in the garden helps greatly with head lettuce. If the soil is clay or silt it is entirely practicable to board in an area of a few square yards and then haul a load of sand to mix with the soil in this plot. The same ground may be used year after year for head lettuce. Decayed manure should also be used with freedom on this ground.

Grazing a Tonic For Horses.
Don't confine the work horses in the stable stalls at night. Early in the season provide for a good sized lot into which to turn them after they receive their grain and small amount of roughage. There's nothing in the world to equal grazing as a tonic and general conditioner.

TUESDAY MORNING, MAY 4, 1915

Senator Lee On Governorship Fight
Senator Blair Lee, on a recent visit to Wicomico county, and while in Salisbury, appealed to the Democrats to come out and help him and he received most gratifying responses. Senator Lee made a great fight four years ago, and he is better qualified today than then to carry the fight forward to a successful culmination. He lost the Democratic nomination for Governor by just one county—Wicomico, in his last fight and he hopes to hold on to what he had before and gain a few votes in several of the other sections of the State. Speaking of the Governorship fight Senator Lee said:

"The objects in this campaign are much the same as in 1911. The people of this State have unusual political talent, but for a long period of years they left their political affairs in the hands of the few and there seemed to be so much mystery about politics that the average man, though he felt his own material interests were not being attended to as they should, plodded along the same old road, hoping that somebody at sometime would mend it."

"The primary laws came at the same time with the road laws and both from the Democratic party. All sorts of improvements depend upon the people taking an active and continued interest in public affairs and keeping their political leaders and public servants alive and active for public progress. The primary laws are the way, the means by which the people can freely select their public servants. This method of selection and critical improvement must exist some where in a popular government, and our situation in Maryland is such that the primary election is the place and the time, the great occasion upon which all of our political progress must depend. We had this system in Montgomery county for many years, but without a legal form to say who could vote or to make sure that the votes were accurately counted."

"I had the honor to give this Democratic instinct of our people legal form when I was first elected to the State Senate at the session of 1906. In Montgomery county independence in the primary is usual, hot fights are regular, but the people support the ticket that they choose, knowing that loyalty to the result of the primary is loyalty to themselves. In less than ten years our party has so grown there that the Democratic majority is about 1,000, more than twice and nearly three times what it was in the election of 1905. Our county government is better administered and the Democracy has grown. This movement came from the people. It has been moulded and developed and is now applicable throughout the State because of a leadership that sympathized with and respected the people of this State."

"In portions of this State Democratic majorities have dwindled and the present primary contest seems to be a struggle between leadership that has favored popular power and secures popular majority and a leadership that has resisted popular power and popular primaries and is answered by dwindling majorities and vanishing Democratic results. The fight is to show the people the wisdom of using their power in the primary election to maintain their own control over their agents and servants in the betterment of the counties and the State."

Kind of Men to Elect

When Senator Blair Lee was a member of the Maryland Senate he was always fighting for improved methods in making appropriations and safeguarding the State Treasury. His plan was through "publicity." He was opposed to the old method of gum shoeing things through the Legislature and of wasting thousands of dollars at every session by useless legislative orders. He always contended that the Democratic party had nothing to fear by fighting in the open and giving the people a reason for passing each piece of legislation.

Blair Lee and W. B. Copper are the kind of big, brainy men the State of Maryland needs at this time to take charge of the people's work at Annapolis. With Lee in the Executive Chair and Copper at the head of the State Finance, the tax-payers of Maryland would be in more sound and safe position than for many, many years past. In supporting these two Democrats the rank and file of the party throughout the State can feel that they are protecting themselves from the ravages of antiquated methods and gum shoe politics which have no place in this enlightened age of progress and intelligent statecraft.

It is all right to swat the fly, but it is much better to destroy his breeding place.

"Civilized" Savagery

Thrilling, indeed, are some of the pen pictures of the war operations in Europe, especially those on the western line of battle, where the Germans and the Allies are in the savage grip of desperate conflict. But also, they seem more like the doings of ignorant, brutal savages than of rational, Christian men.

Vivid is the description given by one writer of a desperate assault by British soldiers on the front line of German trenches. The latter were first destroyed by the mine explosions, "nothing was left" of the defending Germans, but in the neighboring trenches the assailants "witnessed an extraordinary scene." Many of the German soldiers, not expecting an attack, were in their shirt sleeves and without equipment. "Stunned by the violence of the explosions, bewildered and subjected to a rain of hand grenades thrown by our bombarding parties, they gave way to panic. Cursing and shouting, they were falling over one another and fighting in their hurry to gain the exits leading into the communication trenches. Some of those in the rear, maddened by terror, were driving their bayonets into the bodies of their comrades in front of them."

This is what war means. Brutal slaughter following attack, a subversion of all feelings of humanity in order to gain advantage and drive back the opposing forces. And this picture but an incident of the entire horrible procedure. The sanguinary conflict so vividly presented by this writer covered only a few hundred yards of a battle line several hundred miles long. Multiply this attack to the extent of the entire line, and the brutal slaughter of combat is multiplied correspondingly.

And so-called Christian nations are engaged in this terrible butchery. What horrible mockery to call them such.—Wilmingtton Every Evening.

New "Bloody Angles"

Details published in the Paris Matin show how the French, British and Belgian battle fronts compare in miles. The French front is given at 543 miles, the British at 31 miles and the Belgian at 17 miles.

The British Government has announced in the Commons that the war casualties reported up to April 11 were 139,347. This, of course, included losses on sea as well as on land, but all except a few thousand of that number are of the army and on the battle front in France and Flanders.

If 120,000 of the total 139,347 casualties is about the share of the army, then that present front of 31 miles represents, as the price of getting it and holding it, some 4,000 killed, wounded and missing per mile.

Unless the British lines in France and Flanders have been what the "Bloody Angle" was at Gettysburg, the ratio of losses sustained by them would show for the French line casualties of perhaps two and a quarter million men.

If that does not give an idea of the vast human cost of this war in its western theatre alone, think what it means to have it announced by the British Government that its successful action at Neuve Chapelle, scarcely more than a skirmish, a mere incident of the whole battling, cost more men in a few minutes than the whole Boer war in years.

So by the new standards are they all to be "bloody angles"?—Balto. News.

Barnes-Roosevelt Libel Suit

The trial of the Barnes-Roosevelt libel suit at Syracuse, N. Y., has attracted nationwide attention. William Barnes, chairman of the Republican State Committee, sues the former President of the United States for $50,000, for alleged false statements damaging to Mr. Barnes' reputation.

During the heated political campaign last year Col. Roosevelt charged that Mr. Barnes, the Republican "boss," worked in harmony with Mr. Murphy, the Tammany "boss," and that the two together represented a corrupt "invisible government" in New York State. Col. Roosevelt does not deny that he said what he is charged with saying. He does deny that it damaged Mr. Barnes to the extent of $50,000 or any other sum. And he claims his words were privileged, because free discussion of politicians' acts and character is necessary to good government.

The evidence is bringing out much of the secret history of New York State politics.

Last Saturday, May 1st, has been known for many years as Straw Hat Day and several gentlemen were seen on the street with new straw hats, although the weather the past week forced a number of persons to force the season a bit.

Mrs. W. H. Jesse and son, Dashiell, of Nuttsville, Va., spent the week-end at the home of Mrs. H. L. Brittingham, on Main street. Mr. Jesse has purchased valuable lumber interests at St. Michaels, Talbot county, Md., and he and his family are about to change their residence to that town.

The prisoners which were convicted and sentenced at the April term of the Circuit Court for Somerset County were taken away last Tuesday by Sheriff Sterling and Deputy Sheriff S. M. Pusey. The following went to the penitentiary: Charles U. Elliott, for 10 years; John Furber and Harry White, both colored, sentenced for larceny, each two years.

House cleaning time is at hand and many of our housewives have been taking advantage of the fine weather of the past week in taking down lace curtains, removing stoves and doing other little stunts around the home, which reminds us of the following lines: "Housecleaning days are here again the mad-dog of the year, when all the house is side down and everything seems queer, with carpets up and pictures down things seem a bit upset, but that's just the beginning, the worst is coming yet. The front porch, filled with furniture, looks like it's moving day. Such horrors with fright mere man, who strives to keep away."

While Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Wingate, of White Haven, were out driving Sunday afternoon, the 25th ult., their horse became frightened at a tent in the woods near the road, throwing them both out and breaking Mrs. Wingate's collar bone and bruising her very badly. Mr. Wingate escaped with few bruises and scratches.

In millinery it is impossible to find one predominating feature. Hats are large or small, with wide or narrow brims, and are trimmed low with flowers and ribbon or the plumes towering plumes, wings or bows ornamenting the front or side. Even the pokebonnet has made its appearance with its facing of chiffon or silk and dainty trimmings of lace, flowers or ribbons.

The April term of the Circuit Court for Dorchester County convened Monday morning of last week with Chief Judge John R. Pattison and Associate Judge Henry L. D. Stanford on the bench. The call of the docket revealed the fact that there were 30 cases of Civil Appearances, 25 cases of Criminal Appearances, 9 cases of Civil Appeals, 25 cases of Civil Trials, 8 Criminal Continuances, 21 recognizances. There was no Criminal Appeals, which is said to be a very unusual condition at a term of the Court.

Duer, are associated with the heirs, while Messrs. Curtis W. Long and Alonzo L. Miles will defend the will.—Wicomico News.

St. Michaels is soon to be lighted by electricity. An agreement between the Commissioners of that town and Mr. Murray L. Goldsborough of Easton was reached last Wednesday afternoon by which the Talbot Manufacturing Company receives a franchise to furnish electric current to the town for lighting and power purposes. Under the terms of this franchise which runs for twenty years the Manufacturing Company will provide fifty street lights and will also pump the town water. They will receive for this a consideration of $1,500 per year and one-half of the water rents for taps that are made in the future.

Paint?

There are two good reasons for painting often-enough or even too-often. One, to look prosperous; two, to be so. Nothing does one more credit or gives one more credit than paint, supplemented of course by what goes with it; and paint costs nothing.

True, the first cost is $5 or $6 a gallon put-on; but it saves more than that in the property; saves it from slow going-down—not always slow—it drops with a jump when water gets in on wood and iron.

Dry wood and iron cost nothing, kept dry by paint. Better paint when it needs it. Paint never goes-down in the sense of being more profitable next year.

Telephone Property To Be Sold

After several years of inefficient management and very unsatisfactory service the property of the Pocomoke Telephone Company will be sold Wednesday, May 19, 1915, at 3 o'clock p. m. in front of its home office in Pocomoke City. It is confidently expected that the Chesapeake & Potomac Telephone Company will be the purchasers of this property, and if they are, extensive improvement will be made at once and first-class service will be instituted in the territory now covered by that Company. For several years the Pocomoke Company has been embarrassed financially so that it could not keep up its properties or give the kind of service that would make the business profitable.

Big Income Tax Returns

Complete preliminary estimates from all internal revenue collection districts received at the Treasury Department indicate that the individual and corporate income tax this year will not only come up to the original estimates of $80,000,000, but probably will exceed that sum.

This is the most welcome bit of information that has come to the ears of Treasury officials in many months. If the estimate is borne out the prospective issue of Panama Canal bonds to swell the slowly sinking general fund of the Treasury may be delayed longer than many students of the government's financial condition have thought possible.

It was said that the estimate put the amount to be collected at $80,035,000, but officials are confident that results will show several millions more. This prospect is especially pleasing to the administration in view of predictions that the war in Europe and the new tariff would combine to prevent a large return.

Whooping Cough

"When my daughter had whooping cough she coughed so hard at one time that she had hemorrhage of the lungs. I was terribly alarmed about her condition. Seeing Chamberlain's Cough Remedy so highly recommended, I got her a bottle and it relieved the cough at once. Before she had finished two bottles of this remedy she was entirely well." writes Mrs. S. F. Grimes, Crooksville, Ohio. Obtainable everywhere. (Advertisement)

NEWPORT IS UNIQUE.

As a Watering Place It Is in a Class All by Itself.

Newport is our greatest invention in watering places. There is nothing at all like it anywhere else in the world. At first glance Coney Island would appear to many people more characteristically American, and Newport, indeed, a mere snobbish imitation of Europe. But if there is anything like Newport in Europe it has escaped at least the present writer's notice, whereas something very like the admirable Coney he could duplicate in several quarters of the globe.

Newport is the only watering place in the world where there are no hotels and no hotel life, no fashionable promenade, no scene of gayety accessible to the stranger for an admission fee. On ordinary mornings the tourist penetrating the Casino might see a few young people in flannels playing tennis and a scant dozen of their elders dropping in for a moment to say good morning or to deliver some message. He might with extra good luck observe one of the queens of fashion drinking an orangeade. That would be, with the single exception of tennis week, about all he would observe.

He would, of course, be free to walk the weary length of Bellevue avenue between clipped green hedges and see the pleasant Newport homes—only a few of them "palaces." But nobody would be stirring in the houses and no one walking in the avenue. An occasional motor would roll by, that is all. He could also take that pretty walk along the cliffs and see more pleasant houses—still only a few of them "palaces." He might, if the fates so incline, perhaps see a fashionable footman at the window; he could scarcely hope for the butler. He could see the avenue whirling at half past 8, the dinner hour. And strolling through the night he might here and there observe lines of motors waiting under the shadowy trees, and even hear dance music beating in the calm, soft darkness.

Newport presents, in fact, a singular impression of quietness, of distinction, of an existence not wholly in the public eye.—Harper's Magazine.

BLUFFED THE LION.

A Big Game Hunter Who Tested His Theory and Won.

In the American Magazine Stewart Edward White tells how in South Africa he bluffed a wounded lion and made him run away.

"Now, I am perfectly aware that a wounded lion always charges. Exceptions are so rare as only to prove the rule. But I have always cherished a theory that even a wounded lion can be bluffed out, provided the man does the charging first before the beast can gather his faculties. Here was a heaven given opportunity to try that out."

"So I took the 405, stepped out from our sapling, walked steadily toward him."

"If I had stood still in his sight for the instant necessary for him to see what I was he would have come in, for he was hurt and hungry. But he had not that instant. Holding my rifle ready for immediate action, I advanced on him at an even gait. He saw me at once and fixed on me his great yellow eyes."

"He sat thus absolutely still while I covered about half the distance between us. In my mind I had fixed upon a certain little bush twenty yards or so from the lion as the point at which I should begin to shoot. When I still had half a dozen yards to go the intensity of his gaze broke. He began to act exactly as a dog does when he is embarrassed, glancing down, right and left. At twenty-five yards the pressure became too great. He suddenly turned and bolted. And I missed a hasty shot at him as he ran."

When Chest Thumping Began.
For fifteen years Dr. Jean Nicolas de Corvisart practiced chest tapping in diagnosing disease, getting little but abuse from his fellow practitioners. Along came Napoleon and made Dr. Corvisart his physician. Dr. Corvisart somewhat surprised Napoleon when he thumped his chest by way of examination. Napoleon, with his characteristic shrewdness, recognized the advantage of a scientific test over guesswork and engaged Corvisart to be his regular adviser. The method of chest tapping now came into immediate vogue.—Kansas City Star.

The Wings of Time.
"Mamma," said little Tommy as he closed the big book, "what are the 'wings of time'?"

"The 'wings of time,' my son," replied his mother in loud tones, "are the faded wings I have been wearing on my hat for three seasons."

And then he coughed uneasily and told Tommy if he did not stop asking foolish questions he would send him to bed.

Curious.
"Curious thing about human vanity," said the costumer.
"To what do you refer?"
"The more knock-kneed a man is the more he wants to appear at a mask ball as a Scottish highlander."—Washington Star.

Only Imaginary.
Married men don't really have half the trouble they let on they have, and bachelors don't have half the fun married men think they have.—Detroit Free Press.

NORTH HOLLAND IN WINTER.

Skating is Business There, and the Skaters Wear No Shoes.

In the north of Holland, writes Temple Manning in the Indianapolis Star, I saw the serious side of skating, the side that is not an idle art, but a practical business.

The very first thing the tiny Frisian learns after he acquires the ability to toddle around is how to skate. If he wasn't an expert he would be seriously handicapped all the rest of his life, for the country is a network of waterways, and when they freeze over all business is done on their slippery bosoms. To the Frisian it is second nature to skate. To him it is a delight as well as a necessity, and he is more at home on skates than he is on a good earth road.

If you ask a Frisian which season he likes best, summer or winter, he will answer "winter." In summer he finds it harder to pole or pull his boat through the waters of the canals than in winter to push a sledge along while he follows on his skates. To him the canal is his road.

The first oddity that struck me when I came into this land of skating delights was that the skaters did not wear shoes. They strapped their skates to their feet over very heavy socks that kept out the cold. They laughed at me when I went skating with my skates clamped to leather boots. They could not understand how on earth I could skate freely and gracefully. As a matter of fact I am far from being a graceful skater, but the Frisians were too polite to laugh at my clumsiness, attributing it entirely to my shoes.

Of course I went to Friesland with preconceived notions of what the country would look like, but the charm of the reality was far beyond my imagination. It seemed to be a land of ice and snow that was not unhappily cold—rather the frigid element seemed to be a completing touch of perfection. I have never seen Friesland in summer, but I cannot imagine it separated from its frozen waterways and its picturesque skaters.

Were I to epitomize Friesland in a single description I would picture it as a sheet of ice flowing between two banks that glitter with snow, and in the center I would place a milkman pushing a sledge filled with cans before him, as he skated whistling merrily behind. And behind him I would draw a bevy of boys and girls skylarking on skates.

HUMAN CREDULITY.

Millions Are Taken Every Year From the Gullible by Sharpers.

Human credulity passes all limitations. Before me lies a newspaper story from Chicago: A man was on the way to a savings bank to deposit $145. Two smiling strangers met him, fooled him with the story that they had a "magic handkerchief" which would double the stranger's money if he would fold his bank bills within it. After the operation the strangers told him to watch the handkerchief and see his money grow. They disappeared. They had his money and the handkerchief contained waste paper. Does this sound impossible?

Here is another story, even more improbable, but true. In New York a company appropriating the name of a well known corporation advertised to sell its shares at a bargain, and fixed a price that was just twice the stock market price. A circular was sent to the Italian quarter intimating that a great opportunity was presented for workingmen to secure an interest in a wonderfully prosperous railway, that only a few shares could be had and that they must be bought at once. A rush was made for the stock, although every daily paper printed the quotation of the same security at half the price at which the swindlers were offering it. The police put an end to the game.

If people are so credulous it is surprising that the postoffice authorities report that $150,000,000 a year is taken from the gullible by dealers in fake securities. If Wall street did this kind of wretched business it would deserve reprobation.—Leslie's Weekly.

On the Safe Side.
McTavish and a brother Scot, McPherson, entered the tram and took their seats near the door. Sitting up in the corner was a nice young Hielan' lassie, and McTavish was always nudging his friend.

"Hoots, man," said McPherson, "I ken her fine."
"Hoo are ye no gaun up aside her then?" asked McTavish.

"Och," said McPherson, "she haena payed her fare yet."—London Tit-Bits.

HE KNEW ALL ABOUT SIAM.

Had Even Heard of the Famous Twins From That Country.

One day President Cleveland sent for John Barrett, now director of the bureau of American republics, and said:

"Mr. Barrett, I am looking for some young man who is not afraid of hard work and who wants to make a reputation for himself, to go as minister to Siam to settle the claim of Dr. M. A. Cheek involving several million dollars, and also involving some delicate matters in connection with the interpretation of our treaties with oriental countries. This particular case is one of the most important we now have in the orient. You have received strong endorsements from the Pacific coast as consul general to Yokohama, but the office was filled when your recommendations arrived. Will you accept the position as minister to Siam? But first, what do you know about Siam?"

Mr. Barrett couldn't remember whether Siam was in Asia or Africa, but a little thing like this didn't bother him so he said, "Mr. President, I know all about Siam."

"Well, what do you know about Siam?" said Mr. Cleveland.

Mr. Barrett was stumped for a second, and then said, "Why, Siam is the country that produced the famous Siamese twins."

Mr. Cleveland, with a twinkle in his eye, arose gravely and said, as he shook hands with Mr. Barrett: "Mr. Barrett, I am happy, indeed, to get hold of a man with such profound knowledge and abundant information about Siam. As a matter of fact, I am glad you know nothing about it, as you will not be prejudiced one way or the other in regard to the questions to be settled there."

Mr. Barrett went to Siam, where he stayed for four years. At the time of his appointment he was twenty-six years old and was the youngest minister plenipotentiary that the United States had ever appointed.—Portland Journal.

It has assumed as many shapes and sizes. It has been long and short, wide and narrow, curved and straight, heavy and light, pointed, round and square, sharp on one side, on both sides and on neither side.

The Maltese.

The Maltese are mainly the last surviving remnant of the Carthaginian branch of the old Phoenician people. Malta was the halfway station between Carthage and Sicily, long held by the Carthaginians and of which Hamilcar, the father of Hannibal, was at one time governor.

Why He Laughed.

The man who had failed for $137,833.98 laughed uproariously. "Those fool papers," he chuckled, "put my failure under 'Business Troubles.'"

For he had managed to fall without the slightest trouble to himself.—Philadelphia Ledger.

Doing His Share.

"Are you doing anything for the preservation of our antiques?"

"You bet I am. I sell cosmetics."

DON'T EXPERIMENT

You Will Make No Mistake If You Follow This Princess Anne Citizen's Advice

Never neglect your kidneys. If you have pain in the back, urinary disorders, dizziness and nervousness, it's time to act and no time to experiment. These are frequently symptoms of kidney trouble, and a remedy which is recommended for the kidneys should be taken in time.

Doan's Kidney Pills is a good remedy to use. No need to experiment. It has acted effectively in many cases in Princess Anne. Follow the advice of a Princess Anne citizen.

Mrs. Oscar Long, Princess Anne, says: "It is true that Doan's Kidney Pills have been used very successfully in my home and I hold them in high esteem. I seldom let a day go by without telling someone of the merit of Doan's Kidney Pills, and I don't know of another medicine so certain to do good as Doan's Kidney Pills. It gives me pleasure to publicly endorse them."

Price 50c, at all dealers. Don't simply ask for kidney remedy—get Doan's Kidney Pills—the same that Mrs. Long recommends. Foster-Milburn Co., Props., Buffalo, N. Y. (Advertisement)

Bolgiano's "Greater Baltimore" Tomato

Just Doubles the Yield

Better Than Stone Ever Was

Bolgiano's "Greater Baltimore" Tomato just doubles the yield of many of the best eating tomatoes you have ever grown. Smooth, well-formed and deep red when ripe. Brought evenly to the stem and is entirely free from ridges, cracks and blemishes. Unsurpassed for its size, color and flavor. Fruits in large clusters at every second joint. Unusually short and sturdy. Vigorous, compact, healthy vines. Brilliant red color, one of the handsomest tomatoes you have ever seen.

THE NEW STANDARD

"It is the EARLIEST and UNIFORM. IT is the one which the plants bear a LARGE NUMBER OF LARGE, SMOOTH FRUIT throughout the ripening season, that makes Bolgiano's 'Greater Baltimore' superior to Stone which has been the Standard coming variety for many years."

During our Picking Season from July 25th to October 1st, Bolgiano's "Greater Baltimore" yielded nearly 23 Tons Per Acre.

PROF. J. G. BOYLE, Dept. Hort. Purdue University, Lafayette, Indiana.

TREMENDOUS CROPS YEAR AFTER YEAR

T. A. SNYDER PRESERVING CO., Chicago, writes: "We have been so busy with our Big Tomato Crop, we have neglected writing you in regard to our Thousand Pound Bolgiano's Greater Baltimore Seed for 1915 crop."

We had a lot of orders this year from the farmers of Greater Baltimore, because they have seen the fields of Greater Baltimore growing so well.

TWO TONS PER ACRE MORE

On January 30th, Mr. Wm. E. Plummer, of Kent Co., Md., writes as follows: "I have planted many acres of Tomatoes, but have not found any other to do as well for me as the Greater Baltimore. The past season the Greater Baltimore has produced more than any other variety. It is one of the best varieties that can be planted for coming purposes on account of firmness, standing drought or wet weather. They are the first to ripen and continue firm and good stand until frost."

JAPANESE BAIT DIGGERS.

As Many Women as Men Work at the Disease Breeding Trade.

An extraordinary occupation that many of the very poor follow in Japan is that of the esator, or bait digger, who spends his days gathering angleworms. We say "his," continues the account in the Japan Magazine, but the bait diggers are as often women as men. The Japanese angleworm is not taken from the soil, as is the case in occidental countries, but from the black mud of the rivers and canals.

Tokyo is a great place for this calling. The city has numerous streams and canals connected with tidewater, and as soon as the tide begins to ebb you can see women with their baskets and their mud forks climbing down the stone facings of the canals, plunging their legs into the deep mud and picking up the wriggling red angleworms that they dig out of the mud.

These worms are a somewhat different species from the earthworm. They are slightly stouter, with jointed bodies and peculiar mustachoid mouths. The receptacles for the captured worms are baskets or tubs with covers that contain small square openings through which the women drop the worms as they pick them up. As soon as the bait baskets or tubs are full the women take them to the shop and sell them. The bait shop deals in bait only, and from these establishments the fishermen buy worms for their hooks.

The amount that the angleworm catchers can make daily is very small, not more than 40 sen for each worker, but it helps out in the household expenses. In the summer weather the work is not hard, although it is certainly hot, with the sun beating down on the stooping form and reflected from the wet mud and water. In the colder weather, however, it is more trying, for the bait catcher has to stand for hours in the freezing mud.

Diseases that are the result of the calling are frequent among the bait women, especially beriberi and dropsy. The Japanese regard bait digging as the most miserable way of getting a living known to mortal man.

Heiland's Water Line.

The famous "water line" of Heiland is really the final line of defense which Heiland would make use of should the "water line" be invaded.

The "water line" is a line about seventy miles long by seven to eight miles wide. It is flooded by means of special sluices and dykes so constructed that the whole of the line can be covered to a depth of a foot and a half in two days.

In the ordinary way this water is drawn from the Rhine. In a case of great emergency, however, the sluices will also let free the waters of the Zuider Zee. These waters, however, would only be let loose in the last extremity because, being salt, they would do an immense amount of damage to the land over which they flowed—damage which would take years to repair.—London Globe.

William L. Cugler vs. Elsie Cugler.

No. 268, Chancery. In the Circuit Court for Somerset County.

The object of this suit is to procure a divorce a vinculo matrimonii for the plaintiff from the defendant, and for the custody of the infant child of the plaintiff and defendant.

The bill states that the plaintiff and defendant were married on or about the 18th day of September, 1907, at Delmar, Maryland.

The bill states that the defendant, Elsie Cugler, has committed the crime of adultery with men whose names are unknown to the plaintiff in Wisconsin county, Maryland, and elsewhere; that the plaintiff has notified or cohabited with the defendant since he discovered her said adultery; that one child has been born to the plaintiff and defendant from said marriage, a daughter, Thelma Cugler, now aged six years; that the plaintiff for more than four years last past resided in the State of Maryland, and that the defendant is a non-resident of the State of Maryland, and is supposed to reside in the State of Delaware.

It is thereupon this 28th day of March, 1915, ordered by the Circuit Court for Somerset County, in Equity, that the plaintiff by causing a copy of this order to be inserted in some newspaper published in Somerset County, once in each of four successive weeks before the 6th day of May next, give notice to the said non-resident defendant, Elsie Cugler, of the object and substance of this bill, warning her to appear in this Court, in person or by Solicitor on or before the 15th day of May next to show cause, if any she has, why a decree ought not to pass as prayed.

SUBSTITUTES FOR POTASH.

There seems to be no real substitute for commercial potash that will be available this year at reasonable prices, says Hoard's Dairyman.

It is generally recommended that sulphate of potash is the desirable form of use in potash to culture, while wood ashes, because they seem to create conditions favorable to the growth of scab, do not make a good form of potash.

In view of the above facts we suggest the use of well rotted manure this spring or of a field that was manured last fall. If this is not available and the land needs re-enforcement nitrate of soda, tankage and acid phosphate may be used. We would omit the use of potash entirely this year unless it can be procured at a reasonable price.

It is quite possible that deeper plowing will bring up to the surface an additional supply of potash that will be sufficient for the next few years.

SMALL FARMER'S TRADING.

He is Under Serious Handicap Compared With His Bigger Competitor.

[Prepared by the United States department of agriculture.]

A matter which threatens the prosperity and even the existence of the small farmer is the handicap under which he finds himself in buying and selling. The big farmer who can buy and sell in large quantities and also employ expert talent in buying and selling and in securing credit has an advantage over the small farmer who must buy and sell in small quantities and give his time and attention mainly to the growing of crops rather than to selling them.

Much of the supposed economy of large scale production, even in merchandising and manufacturing, is found upon examination to consist wholly in an advantage in bargaining—that is, buying and selling. When it comes to the work of growing farm crops, as distinct from selling them and buying raw materials, the one family farm is the most efficient unit that has yet been found.

But the big farmer can beat the individual small farmer in buying and selling. It would seem desirable, from the standpoint of national efficiency, to preserve the small farm as the productive unit, but to organize a number of small farms into larger units for buying and selling. This we should have the most efficient units both in producing and in buying and selling.

If this is not done the only farmers who can enter successfully into the production of agricultural specialties, where the problem of marketing is greater than the problem of producing, will be the big, capitalistic farmers. The small farmer may hold his own in the growing of staple crops, in which field the problem of efficient production is perhaps greater than that of successful marketing.

The reason for this is that there is a well organized market for staple crops and the problem of marketing is therefore somewhat less difficult than in the case of agricultural specialties. But even in the growing of staple crops the small farmer will have a hard time of it if he is forced to compete with the big farm when it is cultivated by gangs of cheap laborers.

The two worst enemies of the small farmer are the opponents of co-operative buying and selling on the one hand and the advocates of enlarged immigration to the rural districts on the other. The latter would help the big farmer in the buying of labor for his farm and reduce the price of the small farmer's own labor when he undertook to sell it in the form of produce.

Chain-Propeller Grindstones.

I took three sprocket wheels, one smaller than the other, off an old binder. I put the smaller wheel on the shaft of the grindstone where I took the crank off, says a writer in Farm and Fireside. Then I put the larger wheel at one end of the frame. To make boxes for the shaft of the larger wheel I took two pieces of sheet iron and bent them (A) and drilled holes in each side (B). I then took the crank and placed it on the end of the shaft of the large wheel. A chain from the binder was placed over both wheels. This device is very handy for grinding mowing machine knives, as the person turning it out of the way.

Spare the Birds; Save the Crops.

Bird hunting if carried on under restraint may be legitimate sport, but bird slaughter is merely a means of inviting calamity. Take as one little instance, the "scalp" of Pennsylvania, which paid in bounties $90,000 for the extermination of hawks and owls. These "pests" were destroyed, but the small rodents upon which they fed turned on the farmer and did almost $4,000,000 worth of damage. Our bird friends possess infinitely more than sentimental and food values. Let us not for their intervention the insect hordes would blot mankind from the face of nature.—Country Gentleman.

A TIMELY GIFT.

It Wasn't Much, but It Meant a Great Deal to Dr. Anna Shaw.

When Dr. Anna Howard Shaw was very poor and had to depend on the little preaching she did to pay her expenses. After a week's hard work at a revival, for which she received no money, she was heart sick and discouraged. She tells the story thus in the Metropolitan Magazine:

I was friendless, penniless and starving, but it was not of these conditions that I thought then. The one overwhelming fact was that I had been weighed and found wanting. I was not worthy.

I stumbled along, passing blindly a woman who stood near the church entrance. She stopped me suddenly and held out her hand. Then timidly she put her arms around me and wept. She was an old lady, and I did not know her, but it seemed fitting that she should cry just then, as it would have seemed fitting to me if at that black moment all

County Agent Aids Farmers

One of the most interesting lines of work being carried on by a local agent is that of G. F. Wathen, of St. Mary's county, in aiding the farmers in the co-operative buying of fertilizers and lime. He is finding little or no opposition from local dealers and a result of the demonstrations that have been carried on in lime, the use of lime has grown, since it has done much to secure better grass yields, as well as to improve the fertility of soils in that section. The co-operative buying of supplies has led to the organization of a number of farmers' clubs in St. Mary's county, which have become quite a feature in the country life in that section. In consequence, the farmers are rapidly taking up more progressive methods of handling their crops.

Flowers That Yield Soap

English countryfolk on occasion, still find substitutes for soap among the wild flowers of the hedgerow. The best of these is the soapwort, which contains a mucilaginous juice which lathers freely, but almost equally good for washing purposes are the corn cockle, the wild lychnis, the scarlet pimpernel, and the familiar clove. The fruit of the horse chestnut, also, has saponine qualities, and is largely used in place of soap in rural districts on the continent.

PLANS FOR REVIEW OF ATLANTIC FLEET

Elaborate Ceremonies To Mark The Event On May 17th and 18th

The tentative program for elaborate ceremonies in New York, May 17th and 18th, in connection with the review of the Atlantic fleet by President Wilson was made public last Wednesday at the White House.

At 10 o'clock Monday morning, May 17th, President Wilson and Secretary Daniels will proceed to the reviewing stand to watch a land parade. The same afternoon at 3 o'clock the President will go aboard the presidential yacht Mayflower and hoist his flag, after which the flag officers, staffs and captains of the ships of the fleet will pay official calls on him. At 3.30 o'clock the Mayflower, followed by the Secretary of the Navy on the Dolphin, will review the fleet at anchor, passing between the battleships and shore, thence around the end of the fleet and back between the battleships and destroyer flotilla, returning to the anchorage.

Monday night at 7.30 o'clock the President will dine on board the battleship Wyoming with Secretary Daniels and other cabinet members; Secretary Tamm, Assistant Secretary Roosevelt, Admiral Fletcher, commanding the fleet; commanders of the four divisions, 17 captains of battleships, rear Admiral Usher, commandant of the New York Navy Yard, and other naval officers.

From 8.30 to 9.30 o'clock that night, there will be races between ships' crews. The President and members of his party will see the races from the deck of the Wyoming, later returning to the Mayflower for the night.

The review of the fleet will begin at 9 o'clock Tuesday morning. The Mayflower, carrying the President, and the Dolphin will proceed to a point near the Statue of Liberty and the fleet will pass, proceeding to sea.

Philadelphia Record A Favorite Paper

If you live within one hundred miles of Philadelphia you live in "Philadelphia Record" territory just as surely as if you resided within reach of the shadow of Billy Penn on top of the City Hall. That is to say that "The Philadelphia Record" has its eye on what is going on in all the communities in which you are particularly interested. You can get a circumscribed view of your immediate surroundings from a neighboring hilltop. You can see a little farther from a captive balloon. Through the columns of "The Philadelphia Record" however, you can get a bird's-eye view of a thousand or more cities, towns and villages in four thickly populated States.

Of course, the city newspaper reaches out all over the world for the news. But in the sifting of news in "The Record" office its value to people in "Record" territory is kept constantly in mind. The handling of Pennsylvania, New Jersey, Delaware and Maryland news in "The Record" is an important factor in making that paper the favorite in those States. Another factor is the ability with which its feature departments are conducted and their value in the suburban and rural home. Still another—and not the least important—is the accuracy, fairness, cleanliness and wholesomeness of "The Philadelphia Record" from the first page to the last.

"The Sunday Record" is a bigger and better daily "Record," with magazine and comic supplements and a still greater volume and variety of reading matter for leisure hours. The daily and Sunday issues of "The Philadelphia Record" ought to be in every home in their territory, not to supplant, but to supplement, the excellent local papers with which this part of the country abounds.

Maryland A Place For Settlers

The beautifully illustrated souvenir folio issued by the bureau of immigration, Baltimore, to show the particular advantages of the State of Maryland for prospective settlers, is a handsome and valuable publication. Typical photographs of at least five farms in a county are shown, and in virtue of its varied soil, topography and climate, Maryland really should suit practically every class of immigrant. It would be a pleasure and an education to all our citizens to see and make a study of this wonderful booklet.

SUGGESTIONS ON CORN GROWING

By The United States Department Of Agriculture

Corn is capital, and when rightly invested in food for man or beast, returns greater dividends than any other farm crop. Practically one-third of the area of farm crops, and one-fifth of the improved farm lands of the United States is devoted to corn. Except in a few localities in the United States, a man's standing in the community as a farmer is rated by his ability and achievements in corn production. It is the greatest and surest source of food on the farm. Increased production is easily secured by increasing the acreage or growing more corn per acre. The latter means is the most economical, when obtained by improved soil or soil conditions, good seed, proper fertilization and cultivation. The greatest increase in yield must be expected from improved soil conditions.

Ideal soil for corn is a well drained, deep, loose loam, well supplied with decayed organic matter to hold moisture and possible plant food. This soil is seldom found. Corn is being grown on a greater variety of agricultural soils than any other crop. Many of these soils are too poor to grow corn profitably, but should first be built up. This building up cannot be permanently or profitably done by the use of commercial fertilizers alone, but when rightly combined with manure and legumes, this insures real, legitimate profit. After the condition of the soil, water is the determining factor in corn production, 150 to 700 pounds being required to make one pound of dry matter.

The kind and quantity of fertilizers varies with soil characteristics and conditions. Stable manure and turned-under legumes stand first in value, and should be the source of nitrogen. Phosphoric acid pays on almost all soils, and potash on many, especially those that are light colored, sandy or thin. Three hundred pounds of 16% acid phosphate and 40 pounds of muriate of potash should give good results. If the potash is not needed, it should not be applied. If soil is deficient in nitrogen and no manure or legumes are used, apply 100 pounds of nitrate of soda broadcast in the row when the corn is 12 to 13 inches high. All fertilizers except nitrate of soda should be applied broadcast and harrowed into the soil when the seed bed is being prepared.

Any pure variety that yields and matures well in the locality should be planted. Use only live, tested seed. Nub and tip all ears before shelling, otherwise the seed can not be evenly dropped by the planter. Never import seed corn for the main crop. If a new seed is necessary, get it from some neighbor. When starting with a new variety, get only enough for a small plot. If the variety proves successful, seed can be selected for next year's planting.

Plant as soon as the ground is warm enough for prompt germination, and not before. Early planting generally gives best results. Aim to finish by May 10th. Local conditions, such as late seasons, rainfall, cold soils, or the presence of a cover crop, sometimes delay the time of planting.

The difference in yield between planting in checks or in the drill is slightly in favor of the latter, but generally, the difference is not great enough to pay for the extra labor required to destroy the weeds in the drill. A good rule to follow is: If the land is foul with weed seed, or labor is scarce, check the corn; if the land is clean, either method can be employed; if it is rolling land, drill the corn, by all means. Planting on the level is easiest and best, except in wet, stiff bottoms, where ridging is likely to prove most successful. On certain loose, dry, sandy soil or late in a dry spring, planting in a shovel furrow gives good results.

Yield is closely related to the rate of planting. If maximum results are expected, plant as thick as the land will bear. Generally thicker planting than is customary will give greater yield. Always plant enough corn to insure a stand, as replanting seldom pays. The rate of planting depends upon the fertility and preparation of the land. On soils three stalks per hill, in 3 1/2 foot checks, or 14 inches apart in 3 1/2 foot rows, is about the right thickness. On average soils 2 1/2 stalks per hill, or 18 inches in the drill, is advised. On poor soils such as should not be planted to corn, thin rather than heavy planting gives the best yields. For maximum yields on highly prepared and fertilized soil, 12,000 to 15,000 stalks per acre are necessary. Plant only deep enough to insure moisture for good germination. Early in the spring on a well prepared seed bed, one inch is deep enough. Later, two or three inches deep may be necessary.

Cultivation should be shallow, to conserve moisture, liberate plant food, kill weeds and allow roots to feed in the rich top soil. Harrowing corn a few days after planting destroys weeds just sprouting, and allows the first cultivation to be delayed a few days. After the corn is up cultivate with a smoothing harrow or a weeder at least once. This can be done until the corn is six to eight inches high. The first cultivation other than the above may be deep, but before the corn is six inches high. All other cultivation should be shallow, not over two inches deep, unless after a hard, packing rain, when a little deeper cultivation is permissible if the corn is not over 12 inches high. Cultivation should be every 8 or 10 days, or often if a crust is formed, and should be continued until corn is five feet high. In case of dry weather dust mulch should be maintained until silking time.

Printer's "Psalm Of Life"

Tell me not in mournful numbers that our merchants are unwise. 'Tis the business man that slumbers, who will never advertise. Life is real, life is earnest and if biz is on the blink, see that you return to the use of printer's ink. Keen enjoyment and not sorrow will be galloping your way, if you wait not till the morrow, but will advertise today. Art is long and time is fleeting; just be nifty and keep brave, if your rivals you'd be beating, make the "ad" your silent slave. In the world's broad field of battle, be a "big gun" midst the strife; advertise and make things rattle; it will pay, you betcher your life! Trust not future, howe'er pleasant, do not trust to luck ahead; with no advertisement present how can business be but dead? Lives of business men remind us, we can have the luck they had, if we have our nerve behind us and we place at once an "ad." ## STATE CAMPAIGN SOON TO BEGIN

Blair Lee, Harrington and Linthicum Out To Head Democratic Ticket

Now for the State political campaign. It is expected to begin in earnest within the next few days, and once it is fairly under way there will be no let-up until after the election in November unless perhaps a short respite follows the September primaries.

Three candidates have entered for the Democratic nomination for Governor, and one has entered for the Republican nomination. The Democrats are Senator Blair Lee, State Comptroller Emerson C. Harrington and Congressman J. Charles Linthicum. William T. Warburton is the lone Republican in the field, but others are threatening to jump in any minute.

In addition, two candidates have announced themselves for the Democratic nomination for State Comptroller. They are Hugh A. McMullen, of Cumberland, and William B. Copper, of Kent county. Several Republican possibilities have been mentioned, but there is nothing definite about the G. O. P. situation.

One Democrat has announced his candidacy for the nomination for Attorney-General. He is Albert C. Ritchie, of Baltimore city, and State Senator William Milnes Maloy is contemplating giving him a contest.

All of the gubernatorial candidates have been feeling out conditions in the counties, but were considerate enough to let the city alone until after the Mayoralty election. Now that it is out of the way, they are expected to start right in and whoop things up.

All three of the Democrats and the one Republican mentioned are expected to open headquarters in Baltimore as soon as possible and start sending out literature. This, if all reports are true, will be a campaign not only of speech-making, but of much letter writing and circularization.

Senator Lee is said to have provided himself with an up-to-date multigraphing outfit that he expects to keep going at a rapid rate. There is a story that Mr. Harrington contemplates sending out 250,000 letters, and Congressman Linthicum can be depended upon to distribute his share of the literature.

And if Senator Maloy goes in for the Attorney-Generalship it won't be long before every voter in the State knows what he is after. Mr. Maloy is one of those fellows who believes in going after what he wants. Mr. Ritchie also is not backward and can be depended upon to put up a fight.

G. H. Alford Visits Princess Anne

Mr. G. H. Alford, state agent in charge of Demonstration, was in Princess Anne last Friday relative to the Farm Demonstration campaign to be held in Somerset on Thursday, May 20th. He conferred with County Agent H. S. Lippincott and members of the various committees and went over the organization work that has been done. He expressed himself as being very well pleased. The chief point he made was the necessity for everybody to get behind this move. It is the first campaign of this kind ever pulled off in the East. This seems sufficient reason for all getting busy to let the country know that Princess Anne town and farmers are alive and awake to the possibilities of this move.

Mr. Alford assured those present that we are going to have as strong a corps of speakers as it is possible to get from our State Agricultural College and the United States Department of Agriculture.

Mr. Oscar R. Hayman Dead

Mr. Oscar R. Hayman died at the home of his father-in-law, Mr. H. K. Carrow, in Princess Anne last Friday, in his 44th year. Mr. Hayman had been in ill health several years and whilst his death was not immediately expected, as he had been able to be on the front porch the day before, it was known not to be far away. His disease was tuberculosis. He is survived by his wife, Mrs. Addie Carrow Hayman. He also was survived by a brother, Mr. J. S. Hayman, of Princess Anne.

The funeral services were held from the home of Mr. H. K. Carrow on Sunday afternoon last at 3 o'clock. Rev. D. J. Givan conducted the services and interment was in the cemetery of Antioch Methodist Episcopal Church.

Ascension Day At St. Andrew's Church

Thursday of this week will be Ascension or Holy Thursday. Therefore, as it is one of the high days of the church and also one of the days of obligation, there will be a celebration of the Holy Communion in St. Andrew's Church at 10 o'clock. The offering will be for the "Emergency Fund" of General Missions.

The only way to tell good advice from bad is to act upon it.

GOVERNOR'S SPECIAL OFF FOR FRISCO

Mr. and Mrs. Robert F. Duer Accompany The Tourists

On a special train of six cars Governor Goldsborough and the members of the Maryland Panama-Pacific Exposition Commission left Baltimore at 3 o'clock last Thursday afternoon for San Francisco, San Diego, Los Angeles, and the sights by the way on the trip to the Exposition, where Maryland Day will be celebrated on May 19th.

The special train, which includes three compartment cars, one regular sleeper, a diner and a baggage car, is one of the finest that was ever sent out of Baltimore. The Governor's car, the Stoneleigh, which is a drawing-room observation car, is at the rear, that being the point of vantage in a sightseeing trip. On May 21st the return journey will begin. Governor Goldsborough, members of his staff, the commissioners and several other members of the party will journey homeward via the Canadian Pacific, arriving in Baltimore on June 4th. Other tourists will return by more direct route.

Among those who accompanied the Governor and Mrs. Goldsborough on the trip were: P. L. Goldsborough, Jr., Master Brice Goldsborough, Annapolis; Chairman R. A. McCormick, W. H. McCormick, Miss H. Cornelia McCormick, Miss Katharine B. McCormick, Judge T. J. C. Williams, Commissioner William B. Clarke, Commissioner Henry F. Baker and Mrs. Baker, Commissioner and Mrs. E. S. Delegates to National Charities Governor Goldsborough announced Wednesday last the appointment of about 200 delegates to represent Baltimore and the counties to the National Conference on Charities and Correction, which will hold its annual meeting in Baltimore next Wednesday, and also about 75 delegates on the State-wide tuberculosis committee.

In connection with the Conference on Charities and Correction the Governor wrote to the executives of the various States and from some of them he received replies signifying their intention of attending the conference, as well as naming delegates.

The naming of delegates to co-operate in their respective sections in connection with the State-wide fight against tuberculosis is the sequel to the public meeting held at Annapolis a few months ago.

The State-wide tuberculosis committee consists of the following from Somerset county: E. Samuel Gunby, Crisfield, and Mrs. J. Douglass Wallop, Princess Anne.

Street Sprinkling

Mr. E. C. Cannon, of the electric lighting plant, placed a sprinkling wagon on the streets of Princess Anne the middle of last week. His plan is to collect from property owners a sufficient compensation for doing this work. The dusty weather conditions make such a class of work a necessity, especially as many objections have been urged to it, to say nothing of its expense. Mr. Cannon will have his wagon make at least two trips a day over the principal streets. It is to be hoped that he will receive cheerful responses from owners of homes and business places who have heretofore been annoyed by the dust with its serious consequences.

The scarcity of good fish stories this season seems to indicate an improvement in public morals.

EXHIBIT AND FIELD DAY WAS A GREAT EVENT

Several Thousand People Crowded Princess Anne Last Friday to Witness and Participate in the Exercises

Bands of Music Enlivened The Occasion—Program of Events and List of Contestants—Prizes Awarded To The Winners

The second annual Exhibit and Field Day of the Somerset public schools was observed in Princess Anne last Friday, and was a more pronounced success than the one on May 1st last year.

As early as 8 o'clock in the morning children and parents, teachers and trustees, began pouring into Princess Anne from many sections of the county until the streets were literally jammed with a mass of humanity. The crowd was conservatively estimated at from 4,000 to 5,000.

Immediately upon arriving the various schools assembled on Main Broad and Depot streets at spots placarded for them. Upon the arrival of the train from Crisfield, which was one hour late, the line of march was formed, headed by the Boy Scouts of Princess Anne and Crisfield, and the Camp Fire Girls of Crisfield, followed by the Crisfield Cornet Band and the teachers and scholars of the Crisfield High School. Each school following in the parade was designated by a banner borne in front.

The line of march was from the Depot to Main street, to Prince William, to Depot, to Broad, to Main, to Prince William, to Beechwood, to Main, to Antioch avenue and thence to the High School where the various schools disbanded. All along the route the places of business and private residences were tastefully decorated with flags and bunting.

As the large column of marchers passed the corner of Main and Prince William streets it was reviewed by School Superintendent W. H. Dashiell and the visiting superintendents from other counties and a number of ladies from a large and gaily decorated stand. Behind Superintendent and Mrs. Dashiell the following were among the reviewers: Mr. James E. Carroll, of Kent county, Del.; Mr. E. J. Hardesty, of Sussex county, Del.; Mr. Charles Van Leer, president of the School Board, of Seaford, Del.; Mr. and Mrs. E. W. McMaster, of Worcester county; Mr. and Mrs. Wm. J. Holloway, of Wicomico county; Mr. I. L. Price and Mr. and Mrs. Morris A. Walton, of the Wicomico School Board; Dr. J. L. McBrien, of Washington, D. C.; Dr. G. T. Atkinson, of Crisfield, and Mr. L. A. Chamberlin, of Kingston, of the Somerset County School Board.

It would be an almost endless task to attempt a description of the costumes worn by the pupils from the various schools, but each had something special which aroused cheers as it passed along the route and it was truly an inspiring sight to see the hundreds of children, with their bright eager faces, proudly displaying their banners, and giving voice to their youthful enthusiasm in stirring school yells. The marching was fine, showing that much attention had been paid to training the pupils. The Washington High School, led by the Laurel Citizens Band, attracted much attention and showed that it had gone to great trouble to prepare for the event.

At the High School building a vast crowd had assembled. Supt. W. H. Dashiell, as chairman, introduced Supt. James E. Carroll and Supt. E. J. Hardesty, both of whom made brief but impressive addresses. Dr. J. L. McBrien, of the United States Department of Education, followed in one of his best efforts and thoroughly impressed his attentive hearers with a logical and rhetorical address. After the addresses luncheon was served to the visiting and home officials by the Parent-Teachers Association of the Washington High School.

Athletic sports then followed for the remainder of the afternoon, including basket and tennis ball games and a most beautiful May pole dance by the young ladies of the Crisfield High School, accompanied by the Crisfield band.

The following is the program of events with a list of the contestants and the districts in which the schools are located. The number indicates the event that the contestant took part in.

James H. Preston, Democrat, last Tuesday was re-elected mayor of Baltimore for four years, by a majority of 16,000, defeating Charles Heintzman, Republican. James Thrift and John Hubert were re-elected respectively City Comptroller and president of the First Branch City Council, and the Council will be Democratic. Party lines were not closely drawn in the mayoralty vote.

Charles Heintzman, who is a German and a Councilman from the southern part of the city, claims that the "blue blood" of the rich and fashionable residential sections had drawn the dead line against him. He made a campaign especially to catch the labor vote, and the working classes, although there also was a Socialist candidate running. The Republican organization leaders apparently gave him very little support, but the negro vote was for him.

Many Republicans in the 22 wards voted for Preston, who has made a splendid record for city improvements.

Mayor Preston is a rich man, and devotes his entire time to the mayoralty office. He is ambitious to become United States Senator, which will likely be his next play in Maryland politics.

Monday night of last week Miss Ruth Tawes, Isabella Godman, of Crisfield; Miss Eleanor McAllen, of Crisfield; and Miss Robert Davis, of Crisfield, were in the city.

with an accident, which might have proved fatal, when the car, owned by Miss Tawes, plunged into the deep railroad ditches near the crossing just above Westmore station. The machine was being driven at the rate of speed which did not permit a turn being made when the crossing was reached, and plunged head-long into the drain. The occupants of the car were thrown a considerable distance, but escaped with no worse injury than a little shaking up and bruising.

The weather for the occasion was fine, and the party was brought to Princess Anne by Mr. Julian Daugherty.

Dr. Cain To Stay At Head Of College

Dr. James W. Cain, president of Washington College, Chestertown, Md., has reconsidered his resignation as the head of the college, which he tendered to the board of directors and governors of the college some months ago, and has notified the board that he will remain at the college. Dr. Cain's action is the result of an amicable settlement of some differences between the president and the board relative to disciplinary methods at the college and also to very strong demand on the part of the patrons and friends of the college for his retention.

Dr. Cain has been at the head of Washington College since 1905. During that time the college has not only grown in the number of students, but more than one hundred thousand dollars has been expended in the erection of a handsome auditorium and gymnasium, and plans are already being made to utilize the Garrett Foxwell endowment for additional buildings.

It is unlikely to "eat" much in the weather. It is also very expensive.

AIRSHIP SCOUTING

The Aeroplane as a Range Finder in Modern Warfare.

AIDING THE MAN AT THE GUN.

How the Enemy Target is Located and the Information Conveyed to the Artillery Officers—A Code System That is Simplicity Itself.

Range finding by aviators is a recognized part of modern warfare, as carefully worked out as any other branch of the service.

The big gun's range is estimated in miles nowadays instead of in yards, as formerly. More often than not the gunners do not see the target at which they are aiming, and the men in the target do not see the spot whence destruction is being pumped at them. High hills and broad valleys probably intervene. But circling about in the air is the busy aeroplane which is establishing contact between the gun and its objective point.

It is essential, of course, that the man in the airship and the man at the gun have a constant system of communication. Seemingly difficult, this is a feat that is simplicity itself. The airship carries certain lights or smoke bombs with which it can convey information to the watchers on the ground. The gunners have great strips of white material which can be formed into letters of the alphabet and can be seen from the airship.

The rest is merely a matter of codes and mechanics. If the letter X means "observe for range" and the letter V means "observe for effect of fire" the airman can convey to the marksman whatever information they may desire.

The first thing, of course, is to locate the target. The airman goes up to a prearranged altitude and scouts about until he finds it. When he is directly over it he drops various lights in some understood combination of numbers or colors. The aviator's height is known, and the distance at which the lights are dropped can be ascertained by instruments. The distance then between the gun and the target becomes a simple problem of triangulation.

The location and distance being known, as well as the proper direction, the aviator gets the signal, "Observe for line of fire." A shell or so is thrown in the general direction of the target. As soon as the correct line is found the aviator gives the proper signal and then gets the signal to "observe for range." The first shell falls short. The second perhaps overshoots. The third perhaps reaches its mark. The aviator signals "Range," and the real bombardment is on.

If the gunner wishes to know whether his shells are timed to explode at the right place he signals to the aviator, "Observe for fuse." If he wishes to learn the effect of the cannonade he signals, "Observe for effect of fire." In this way a complete check of all that is going on is obtained.

Rarely, except on the preliminary scouting expedition, does the aviator attempt to fly over the enemy's position. Once he has located the target that part of his work is done. It is naturally the riskiest part, for his appearance is certain to make him the target for defensive aeroplane batteries and probably for a duel with a hostile aeroplane. So he flies back into a safer zone.

His subsequent position is decided largely by weather conditions. When the sun is shining he tries to keep from being between his battery and the sun, because if the gunners have to face the sun to find him it is hard for them to read the signals accurately. If the sun is shining toward the target the aviator gets behind his battery. If the sun is behind the battery the aviator gets between it and the target.

In the early maneuvers, when he is signaling the line of fire, he tries to fly in a regular ellipse at a stated altitude. When "observing for range" he flies in an elongated figure 8. The purpose of this is to enable him to move toward the target in his turns. In this way fire can be observed at every moment.

It is obvious that to insure the effectiveness of all this scientific and mechanical knowledge must be required. Modern shells are so constructed that they can be exploded at any desired height or distance. A shell that bursts too soon is practically useless, while one that bursts too late loses much of its efficacy. An error of a few feet in the calculation of the aeroplane's height or in the target's distance would seriously impair the effectiveness of the fire.

The captive balloon is used for similar observation purposes, but it is not nearly so valuable as the aeroplane because of the latter's greater mobility and its ability to get right over the target and then get away again.—St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

BEAUTIFUL EYES

A Case of Mistaken Identity.

By C. S. THOMPSON

Copyright by Frank A. Munsey Co.

"Say, Mr. Van Norden, there's a girl been coming here the last two days." Young Van Norden looked up with boyish blue eyes, rather annoyed by the loud voice in the quiet of his private office. He was further struck by the man's ugliness—a florid cheek, with smallish, keen eyes and a square set jaw.

"I beg your pardon," said young Van Norden, pointing to a chair. "Your name?" he went on with emphasis.

"Me? Oh, it's all right, Mr. Van Norden," answered the caller, placing his derby hat on the floor. "I'm from the central office. Murdock's my name. This girl—she's been looking for you, as I get it. Missed you both days. So I take it she'll be on hand this afternoon."

"Well, what of it, Mr. Murdock?" "If I ain't mistaken, Mr. Van Norden, she's coming for money. Just hear what she has to say. She'll tell a sob story if I have my guess. We'll be waiting outside, in case you happen to need us."

Mr. Van Norden let his caller out by way of the front office—a room with a blackboard on which a boy was chalking up stock quotations.

He returned to his private office, where about an hour later he found himself staring down into a pair of beautiful dark eyes, very soft and feminine. Her cheeks were pale, but without powder. Her gown had simple yet pleasing lines, with a satisfying harmony of color, a shade of tan with trimmings of fine white lace.

"I beg your pardon," he said when the office boy had gone. "But I didn't get the name."

"Miss Summerton," she answered, holding aside a small hand bag. "Miss Summerton," he went on when she had become seated. "The boy said you wished to see me on a personal matter, I believe."

"I'm coming on rather an odd mission," she began with a touch of color. "I want to interest you, Mr. Van Norden, in a case of charity."

"What is odd about it?" "Well, nothing—that is, excepting the fact that he once traded with your firm."

"Who is the man?" "His name is Wentworth—James Wentworth."

"Wentworth," he said, wheeling in his chair so that he faced the other way. "Yes, father once did business with a man named Wentworth—a James Wentworth. A tall, handsome man with black hair. A regular athlete, if I'm not mistaken. Always in the top of fashion."

"He isn't anything like that now," she answered slowly. "He's an old man with snow white hair, and altogether he's quite a pathetic figure."

He caught a tremulous note. "Did Mr. Wentworth send you?" he asked.

He turned around not too suddenly, yet in time to see her withdrawing her handkerchief from her cheeks.

"No; he didn't send me," she answered, staring at him. "Yet you come for him," he said almost harshly.

"Yes; I come to you. The truth is Mr. Wentworth is dying in poverty. He may live a week, maybe not that long. Three days ago he expressed a wish—a simple wish that he might see the green fields again. Mr. Van Norden, I didn't know but you might have the money. It would only be a loan."

He slowly took up his pen and after a moment reached for his check book.

"Will $100 be enough?" he asked.

"Yes, indeed," she quickly answered.

"I'm glad to be able to do it for you, Miss Summerton," he said.

She seemed to be avoiding his gaze. "Miss Summerton," he said, seeing the color in her cheeks, "not that it makes any difference, tell me how did you come to know of Mr. Wentworth and of his dealings with our firm?"

"I know his daughter very well," she answered, squarely facing him. The telephone rang.

He took up the receiver.

"Miss Summerton," he said the next moment, putting down the telephone and getting up. "It seems that I have an urgent caller outside. Would you mind waiting—just a moment? There was something else I wished to say, just a word."

She followed him to an inner room, the door of which he opened for her. Then he softly closed the door and, taking out a cigarette, struck a light and went idly smoking to the front office, where he stood facing his caller. His caller was the ugly man of square jaw and florid cheek, who was nervously holding his derby hat.

"She in there?" asked the central office man.

"I let her out by the side hall," said young Van Norden, indicating the door.

"No; you didn't, did you?" "Look here, Murdock," spoke up young Van Norden, "that girl isn't a crook."

"That being the case," came the sneering answer, "why didn't you call us in?"

"I thought I'd save her the annoyance of a third degree examination."

"You gave her a check?" "Yes."

"She told you a sob tale?"

"A rather pathetic story, yes."

"Say, Mr. Van Norden, pardon my saying it, but you've done a fine trick. Why, say, that girl's a well known crook."

Murdock went on staring at him, at first with a pitying smile; then he threw down on the desk a police photograph, with a card which read:

Martha Benjamin, swindler, aged twenty-four, height five feet four inches, of American parentage, large brownish eyes, very fine teeth, never more than plainly dressed. Her game usually played in the financial district.

"The eyes," said young Van Norden nervously. "I can see a difference in the eyes."

"Let me see; you say she went down by the back elevators?" "I simply said she went out by this side hall door."

Young Van Norden went as far as the front office and stood a moment, with a sense of unrest, listening to the staccato writing of a market ticker. He then returned, lit another cigarette, and after he had smoked awhile he went to the inner room.

"I beg your pardon, Miss Summerton," he said. "I didn't mean to be quite so long."

He found himself gazing into her eyes again—eyes of wondrous beauty.

"Mr. Van Norden," she said, without spirit, "I couldn't help but hear just now. The transom was wide open."

"Yes, I wanted you to hear," he said, facing her.

"Mr. Van Norden," she said. "I couldn't bring myself to tell you before. But there seems to be no help for it. My name isn't Summerton. I'm Mr. Wentworth's daughter."

He stood staring at her suddenly, with hardness in his eyes; then after a while he gave himself up to a sense of relief.

"My dear girl," he said. "I can hardly believe that any one of Mr. Wentworth's family should come to us. The last we heard of him, some fifteen years ago, he accused my father of being a crook, a thief."

He came to a sudden stop. "Just a moment, if you please," he went on, going to the front office.

"Tommy," said he to the boy at the door, "have Mr. Murdock come right up, and don't wait to knock."

He turned to the girl. "Perhaps you aren't familiar with the details of their quarrel," he said, seating himself again. "The trouble was over a notification. Mr. Wentworth said he gave orders to sell. My father said not. Later on it developed Mr. Wentworth was in the right. The mistake was due to the reading of a telegram. My father immediately drew his check for the full amount, but the check came back. Mr. Wentworth said he wouldn't be an object of charity."

"Yes, I know," she quickly answered. "But I thought if you were only human, in a time like this—"

"My dear girl," he said, playing with his unlit cigarette, "when Mr. Wentworth returned my father's check, torn up, some fifteen years ago, this money was then put to his credit, and that amount, together with the interest at 6 per cent up to date, now makes in all, I believe, some $40,000."

"My father never spoke of this. Mr. Van Norden," she remarked, "you believe me, don't you, when I tell you I'm Mr. Wentworth's daughter?"

He found her eyes uplifting him again, and yet he purposely hid his feeling.

"I see—you still have your doubts," she said.

"There's only one thing I want to clear up," he answered uneasily. "Can't you wait—just a moment?"

He returned to the window, awaiting his man, and presently the office boy ushered him in without knocking.

Murdock looked first at the girl, then at young Van Norden, with a puzzled air.

"Beg your pardon, Mr. Van Norden," he began.

"No; it's all right," answered young Van Norden. "I want you to meet this young woman, whom you've been following here for two days."

Young Van Norden turned to her. "Miss Summerton," he said to her. "Mr. Murdock is from the detective bureau at police headquarters. He has a photograph—a rather good likeness—I want him to show you."

Murdock slowly took out his police picture, handing it to the girl, at the same time regarding her with keen eyes.

"Mr. Murdock," said young Van Norden, speaking to him, "I called you in because, it may be, you'll be running into her more or less from now on. Miss Summerton has an account with us."

Young Van Norden then turned to the girl, who had made her examination of the photograph.

"Miss Summerton," he said. "Mr. Murdock is detailed in Wall street to scare off any crooks who may show a desire to operate below what he calls the dead line."

Murdock took the picture from the girl, saying: "You look something like her, don't you think? But you ain't as tall, and as your friend here was saying, Miss Summerton, there's real beauty in your eyes."

"A clear case of mistaken identity," said the detective in the front office.

Young Van Norden smiled to himself and immediately returned to the girl.

"Mr. Van Norden," she began, "now almost at the point of tears, 'you believe me now?'"

"My dear little girl," he said, unable to control his feeling any longer, "yes, indeed, I believe you. But that isn't the point. Half an hour ago I gave you a check, which, I believe, you accepted. It's yours by right. Come, hadn't you better see what it says?"

She took out her check, unfolding it and read. "Pay to the order of Mary Wentworth $40,000."

SUBLIME SIMPLICITY.

The Epitaph Over Sir Henry Lawrence, the Lucknow Hero.

There is a simple tomb in Lucknow, in India, that cost no more than many a plain farmer's gravestone in our rural burying places, but Clarence Poe declares that it impressed him more than anything else he saw in India except the Himalayas, the Taj Mahal and the view of Benares from the river.

It is the tomb of the heroic Sir Henry Lawrence, who died so glorious a death in the great mutiny of 1857. No commander in all India had planned more wisely for the defense of the men and women under his care, but the siege had only begun when he was mortally wounded. He called his successor and his associates to him, and at last, having omitted no detail of counsel or information that might enable them to carry out his far-reaching plans, he roused himself to dictate his own immortal epitaph:

Here Lies Henry Lawrence, Who Tried to Do His Duty. May the Lord Have Mercy on His Soul. And so today these lines, sublime in their simplicity, mark his last resting place, and you feel that not even the great Akbar in Secundra or Napoleon in Paris has a worthier monument—Youth's Companion.

Napier's One Word Dispatch.

Very few commanders have revealed any sense of humor in their campaigning exploits, and it was reserved for the witty Sir Charles Napier to become pre-eminent in this rare accomplishment. His crowning achievement in the realms of humor was coincident with his most brilliant feat of arms.

He was deputed to essay the conquest of Scinde, and, after a series of fine exploits in the face of innumerable difficulties, he accomplished his mission. But the authorities at home waited anxiously for his dispatch announcing this momentous event. The days passed, and it added to the tension. At last the long expected missive arrived and it contained one word, "Pecavi!" A man who knew Latin was sought and he translated it: "I have sinned (Scinde)."—London Mail.

GERMS IN THE MOUTH.

Using Paper as a Toothpick Is a Dangerous Practice.

One of the most dangerous little tricks that men and women do is to take a bit of paper, torn from an envelope or newspaper, and try to run it between the teeth to remove some little particle of food that the tongue feels. If you want to be sure of trouble with your gums continue this practice, and sooner or later—rather sooner than later—you will secure a splendid case of infection of the gums that will send you to the dentist in a hurry, and may cause more than one sleepless night.

The bit of paper used in this way, introduced edgewise between the teeth, is worse than any toothpick, or other instrument, for many reasons. In the first place the sharp edge of the paper is most apt to make a cut in the gum, and in so doing it is almost sure to carry into the circulation at least some of the many germs clinging to it. Again, the chemicals used in the making of paper are far from edible, but in addition to these the newspaper may have picked up a variety of germs from those who have handled it or from the dust that has blown upon it while exposed for sale.

The flap of the envelope, which is so "handy" a bit to use for the teeth, may have touched the lips of some one with tonsillitis, or even with tuberculosis.—New York American.

ROMANCE OF FLOWERS.

A Blossom Changed the Roving Camp Into a Permanent Home.

The difference between a home and a camp is a blossom. Until flowers were planted about the abode of men, until blooms were cultivated, there were no permanent homes, no fixed places of abode. Tents were struck and a new location sought. Attachments were not formed for localities. We were a wandering, shiftless, comfortless lot until a woman trudged in from the thicket and planted a vine or shrub or flower about the tent, and called it home.

It was a woman, of course. Man, in his coarseness, never thought of sticking a stem into the earth and nurturing a plant that he might have color and fragrance forever in his presence. Only the woman could have thought of that.

And since the first good day when the woman planted a flower and loved it into blossoming, the home has been a fixity. It has been a center of the affections. The building may be destroyed, the individual members of the family may be scattered to the four winds, but the home remains a fixture in the memory—and the blossoms do not fade or wither in the mind.—Columbus Dispatch.

A Clever Bird.

People who feed the wild birds in winter find that the birds soon come to know them. A friend of mine used every morning to rap an English walnut on the sill of his open window. A white breasted nuthatch knew the signal and would fly to his hand and take the nut meat from between his fingers. Sometimes my friend used to hold the nut meat tightly and make the bird work to get it. One morning the nuthatch, hammering at the tightly held morsel, struck the holder's thumb at the base of the nail. The blow hurt, and involuntarily the fingers parted and released the meat. The next morning, without any preliminaries, the nuthatch hammered at the same place. He knew, and he had learned his lesson in one session too. It is a smart boy that does as well.—Winthrop Packard in Our Dumb Animals.

Marital Diplomacy.

Plunger—I felt awfully sorry for a poor guy down at the exchange today. He lost $5,000 on cotton, and all the boys were giving him, and as he started off home they taunted him with the prediction that his wife would land on him roughshod. The poor chap acted as though he felt pretty badly about it. Mrs. Plunger (sympathetically)—Poor fellow! No doubt he used his best judgment, and if his wife turns on him because of his reverses she is not worthy to be called wife. But who was the man? Plunger—Why—er—it was me.—Woman's Home Companion.

A Trouble Escape.

"You'll escape much trouble in this here world, my boy," said the Billville parent, "if you'll turn down all contracts for rain." The place where the devil lives at. Wherever it is, it's right where it ought to be, an' if it needs any rain, the devil himself is more competent to 'tend to that business than what you'll ever be.—Atlanta Constitution.

BAFFLED THE OFFICIALS.

A French Paper That Printed All the Government Secrets.

Some years before the great French Revolution a printed newspaper used to be distributed in Paris disclosing the most secret events and doings of the authorities.

Nobody knew who the editor of the paper was or where it was printed, but men highest in rank or office were constantly afraid they might read in the sheet accounts of conversations had with members of their households in the private rooms of their own houses the day before. The police were incessant in employing all their facilities for the discovery of the whereabouts of the plant.

After many efforts they did succeed in unearthing the fact that the paper was being printed by night on board a ship in the Seine, but it was not always the same ship.

This discovery was made about 8 o'clock in the evening. In a secret and highly guarded conference held at once the authorities decided to raid all vessels in the river during the night at the same time and in this way to capture the mysterious printers. Time was lacking to make the necessary arrangements for carrying the decision into effect that same night. Action was therefore postponed for a day.

The next morning the paper came out as usual. But it contained as its last lines the following announcement: "As the secret service resolved last night to raid our little printing office tonight, this paper will not be published tomorrow."—New York Post.

WHERE BLUE BLOOD RULES.

More Money Cuts a Very Poor Figure in the German Empire.

Miss Wylie says in her "Eight Years in Germany" that contempt for mere money is a striking characteristic of the German people. Wealth alone does not entitle its possessor to any special deference or consideration.

"The German's indifference to money," she declares, "amounts very nearly to contempt. I am not speaking only of the aristocracy. The very shopkeepers themselves have the same feeling, and it has often amused me during the Christmas shopping to watch how poverty stricken Baroness von X. is surrounded by courteous, deferential attendants, eager to sell her the sixpenny knickknack she has come to buy, where the wealthy Frau Rosenkrantz, making her expensive purchases, receives no particular attention.

"In Germany you can be poor and live poorly without reproach. You can live in a garret and dress as your means allow, but you will not be judged by your garret and your shabbiness, but by yourself. If you have an honored name or a spark of genius the doors of the most exclusive circles are opened to you. Talent and birth are the only passports that German society understands, and wealth, unless its owner is very tactful or is himself indifferent to it, is not welcomed. Ostentation of any sort is an unpardonable offense."

The Dark Continent.

In the light of history it seems strange to call Africa a dark continent. When northern Europe was a howling wilderness and America utterly unknown to the civilized world Africa was a famous place for great cities. Egypt was the seat of riches and learning, and all the countries bordering on the Mediterranean figure largely in the pages of sacred and profane history. But a blight fell upon Africa, and all the work of the past has had to be done over again. Indeed, it is only within the past quarter century that we have known anything about this wonderful country except a narrow strip around the coast. Yet Africa contains over 8,000,000 miles in area and has more than 200,000,000 inhabitants.—St. Louis Republic.

Woolner's Tip.

The little tip or point that often appears on the inwardly folded margin of the human ear near the top has received the name of "Woolner's tip," from the sculptor Woolner, who first reproduced it in his bust of Darwin. Other sculptors, though they must have noticed the tip, never reproduced it. Darwin held that this tip was a remnant of a wrinkle left by the coiling up of the ear and hence a proof of man's descent from lower animals.—New York World.

The Last Word.

A Lifelong Regret

By F. A. MITCHEL

When the big European war broke out on the 30th of July, 1914, I was in Berlin. My parents being Germans, though born in America myself, I thought it would please my father if I volunteered to fight the allies. So I went off to Belgium with a company of uhlans and got into the thick of it at once.

My chief delight was scouting. While the German army was reducing the forts about Liege there was work to do in a different way, and I was much better pleased at doing it than hanging about camp, though even the cavalry was pretty busy. I would ride out in neutral ground with a small camera and take pictures of fortifications—that is, when I could get near enough to do so without being discovered.

One day I had been unusually successful and on my way back to my command stopped at a farmhouse for refreshment. A pretty Belgian girl served me, but evidently with a very poor grace, regarding me as an enemy of her country. Between the sexes there is always a special interest in making a conquest where the party to be conquered resists the would be conqueror. I said so many pleasant things to the girl that it was not long before I congratulated myself upon having quite won her over.

Having rested for some time, I was about to mount and ride away when she made an excuse to detain me. I was not unwilling to be detained and spent an hour longer with her, during which period I did more lovelorn making than I had ever done before. I made several efforts to tear myself away, but my little girl looked so reproachful at my going that I consented to remain just a little longer.

I stayed just a little too long. Suddenly hearing the beating of horses' hoofs, I started up with a view to getting away, but before I could mount my horse a squadron of Belgian cavalry came down on me and made me a prisoner. With them was a boy of fourteen whom I had seen about the place when I had first arrived. It was evident that the girl had detained me while she sent him to inform the soldiers of my presence.

I heard the officer in command thank her for the information she had sent him, and she seemed quite proud of what she had done. I was searched, and the photographs I had taken were found on me, to say nothing of my camera. Upon this the officer turned to the girl and said:

"Mademoiselle, you have helped us to quite a prize. While the captive you have given us is in uniform, he has been taking photographs of our works and will be treated accordingly."

"How is that?" asked the girl, paling.

"He will be shot."

If any blood remained in the girl's face it vanished, and I thought she would swoon. It occurred to me that she had not considered the importance to herself in the part she was playing.

But there came another turn in the affair. I had gone so long on my scout that my captain, fearing I had got into trouble, galloped out on the road I had taken to look after me. Suddenly while the Belgians were off their guard he appeared at the head of his troops, dashing around a bend in the road from behind trees. The Belgians took to flight, and I was rescued. They were pursued for some distance while I was pulling myself together and getting the arms and accouterments that had been taken from me. When I had collected everything I could find I turned to the girl who had betrayed me.

I have never in my life seen such a perfect example of sudden change. Cringing before me, she looked up into my face with a supplication for forgiveness. I returned it with a stony stare, in which I threw all the contempt I could express. She covered beneath it, and, turning my back upon her, I stalked out of the house, mounted my horse and rode away with my comrades.

We advanced on Paris, were driven back in the battle of the Marne, and six months after the episode I have related I one day found myself fighting again in Belgium. Upon a temporary cessation of the fight I looked about me, and the region seemed familiar to me. I was near a house that I recognized as the one in which I had been betrayed.

I had always regretted having, under the strain of narrowly escaping death, dealt so harshly with the girl who had betrayed me. I went to the house and called for her, intending to speak a kindly word to her, but when I asked for her I was told that she was dead.

I winced. She was beyond either my contempt or my forgiveness.

"Did she die of an injury?" I asked.

"No. A young uhlans came by here one day, and she detained him while she sent her brother to inform some Belgian cavalry of his presence. They came and captured him, but he was rescued by his own men. The girl never forgave herself for having betrayed him and pined away and died. It's likely that she fell in love with him without knowing it."

I turned away with a pang. It is not long since the end of the story, but somehow I feel that there will always be a sore spot in my heart, a lasting regret that I was unable to forgive her, possibly to save her from a premature death.

PATCHING IN PUBLIC.

Street Sewers in China Mend Torn Garments While You Wait.

In many towns of China one may have his garments mended on the street and "while he waits." Native sewing women are to be seen on low stools perhaps on the sidewalks mending articles of masculine attire.

The accomplishments of these street seamstresses are somewhat limited, their efforts with the needle being for the most part confined to "running." Other branches of needlework are practically unknown to them. As a consequence their efforts are better appreciated by native workmen than by foreign travelers.

They are never short of patrons among the former, for these are often natives of other districts and, having come to the city to engage in business, have no one to mend a rent for them. Their wives being left at home, they are glad to avail themselves of the services of the street needlewomen. For this class of customers the skill of the itinerant sewing women answers every purpose.

Generally speaking, these women are wives of boatmen and laborers who live in the houseboats which line the creeks of many Chinese cities and towns, and their needles are a great help toward the solution of the problem of maintenance in a crowded city or town.—Washington Star.

ELECTRIC LIGHTED MINES.

Where Modern Methods Have Driven Out the Safety Lamp.

In some of the more progressive and larger mines, the miner's lamp has become a thing of the past. In its stead the dark passages and work chambers are illuminated by electricity. The mines are wired and lighted with all the luxurious effectiveness of the modern home. Besides making their underground employment less oppressive to the miners, the illuminated mine offers considerable advantage in the way of better work and less exposure to danger.

With motor operated coal cars, a telephone system and instruments for the detection of gas danger, the up to date mine is decidedly a more pleasurable place to work in than of old. In order to make the lighting more thorough the walls of the permanent passages, of the offices, of the entries and, where mules are used, of the mule stables, are frequently whitewashed. Only tungsten filament lamps are used. Weather proof enameled reflectors are employed for the distribution of light.

The problem of lighting the mines, however, is difficult, presenting all the conditions upon which the illuminating engineer looks upon with disfavor—low black ceilings, black walls, dust, smoke and dampness.—Chicago News.

Baseball Slang Beaten.

Baseball fans are slangy in their baseball talk. Their slang is picturesque and finely descriptive, but for real unadorned slang you must give the trapeze artists the palm. Listen to this from a well known punner:

"Yes, sir, I toed the firing line, put the iron to my shoulder, drew a humdinger from the box and killed it. The second saucer was a lazy boy, flying straight away, but I went to sleep and the pigeon nested in the grass. The next mud pie sailed to left quarter, but the old pea shooter simply knocked the fuzz off. The fourth dicky bird was smothered as soon as it was hatched. Then a cripple flattered out and died. Next came a right wheeling streaker, and I pulverized it."

Fair Warning.

A farmer engaged Pat to mow a small field of hay, and on giving him a new scythe told him it was such a good one that he need only put the point of it in the hay and it would cut by itself. Pat set off to his work, and about midday, when the farmer came to see how Pat was getting on, he found him sitting in a corner of the field with one end of the scythe in the hay. This enraged the farmer that he went for Pat, who, on seeing him, immediately shouted:

"Keep back, keep back! Ye don't know the minute she's going to start!"—Exchange.

United States Laws.

An act when passed by both houses of congress and signed by the president becomes a law. If at any time thereafter questions of its constitutionality arise the matter is settled by the supreme court. The court has more than once declared acts of congress unconstitutional, as, for instance, the "civil rights" bill.—New York American.

After the Assay.

"I understand you got several hundred wedding gifts." "We did. At first I thought I'd have to hire a safe deposit vault, but after going over the stuff we simply stored 'em in a barrel in the cellar."—Louisville Courier-Journal.

The Only Chance.

"Hurry, George, or we will be late to the picture show." "Oh, we don't want to get there before it starts." "Yes, we do, too—if we don't I can't see what the other women are wearing."—Exchange.

Things That Are Just About to Happen

Italy is still just about to enter the war; Roumania, Greece and Bulgaria are just about to do the same; the Allies are just about to break through the Dardanelles; the Russians are just about to capture the Caucasian passes and pour into the plains of Hungary; the French and English are just about to set Belgium free and bind up its wounds; the Germans are just about to smash the earth and inaugurate a new universe; the British are just about to swear off from drinking; the peace congresses are just about to abolish war; the suffragists are just about to clean up the world; Billy Sunday and the other uplifters are just about to electrocute the devil and bury sin; the Mexican revolution is just about to stop; Mr. Roosevelt is just about to "come back"; "General Prosperity" is just about to put poverty to rout; human nature is just about to turn over a new leaf; the millennium is just about to dawn.

Meanwhile life is war and war is hell, and the things just about to happen are postponed until tomorrow on account of the weather.

State's Suit Against R.R.

The suit of the State against the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad, in which Judge Ambler, Wednesday, in the Superior Court rendered decision adverse to the claims of the State, is to go to the Court of Appeals for final consideration. This case is of great importance for two reasons. The amount involved in the suit, $2,000,000, is a sum of such magnitude that the establishment of the State's contention would be a matter of very considerable importance to the State finances. And by the same token, the payment of a lump sum of $2,000,000 in back taxes would make a dent in the current year's net balance of the railroad company. The final determination of the suit will be determined because it will settle finally whether the railroad, by availing itself of certain legislation passed after 1891, automatically deprived itself of the immunity from taxation which was conferred upon it by charter in 1836.

Bound To Have An Argument

Republican party organs are bound to have their protective tariff argument ready for the next election, no matter what conditions may be throughout the country in respect to business next year. They hope, of course, that times will be very bad in order to give effect to their contentions that a return to the protective tariff will mean a return of prosperity, but even if times should be of the best—as is now promised—they will not be dismayed. They will be ready, even though the country hum with industry and revel in the wealth that comes from prosperity.

Replying to Democratic

Contemporary references to a "large increase in building activity during April," as attested by official figures in Philadelphia and other cities, the Republican tariff organ said, "are not only untrue, but they are also misleading." The organ said that, in the meantime, there have been some significant Republican majorities which have given the people confidence in the future. The more Republican majorities in the more progressive States and the more progressive party organs, if good things prevail next year, it will be because of the confidence imparted by Republican majorities in a few cities at this year's election, and the assurance of Republican victory at the Presidential election, to be followed by a return of the protective tariff, which will prevent the price of goods from falling to the present Democratic level. These organs, however, are basing more largely on good times than on bad times, and are fortifying themselves accordingly.

So, come what may, the tariff organ says, the tariff will be maintained. The tariff organ says, they have, however, the right to catch the country's attention and gain.

Wilmington Every Evening

The County Commissioners of Harford county have held the rate of $1.15, which is the highest rate the taxpayers have ever been called on to pay. The new furniture exemption law has reduced the county's assessable basis $1,250,000, and the rate of $1.15, which is the highest rate the taxpayers have ever been called on to pay, has been reduced to $1.00.

Hughes Not A Candidate

In view of recent references to the name of Associate Justice Hughes of the Supreme Court at Washington, as a candidate for the Presidency the following statement was made last Tuesday in his behalf and with his approval: "Justice Hughes wholly disapproves the use of his name in connection with the Presidential campaign. Not only has he no desire to re-enter politics, but as a member of the Supreme Court he is not available. He is not a candidate in any sense and cannot permit his name to be used."

Ends Saturday

PAY $1.00 ONLY

Nearly all are sold—End may be to-morrow

The great sale of "WHITE BEAUTY" Hoosier Cabinets will end Saturday, May 15th at the latest, perhaps to-morrow. If each of the 1000 towns where the Hoosier Company has permitted this sale does as well as we have here, there will be no trouble about the quick doubling of "White Beauty" Sales. There is every indication that the limited number allotted us for this sale will not last till Saturday night. We can obtain no more to sell at the present low price. Most likely you will see these cabinets in the homes of some of your nearest and dearest friends. Why wait until then and regret that you missed the opportunity that is offered to you as freely as to them?

To-morrow Pay Only $1.00—Try the "White Beauty" in Your Own Kitchen

This chance of a lifetime to secure a real Hoosier Cabinet at a $2.50 reduction from the low cash price, on terms of only $1.00 down and $1.00 weekly, may never occur again. The Hoosier Club plan of payment has proved amazingly popular with the foremost women in this community. Some of them tell us it is the same way that they have bought fine editions of rare books. Yet it costs you nothing extra to enroll in the Hoosier Club if you come to-morrow. No interest. No fees of any kind.

Exclusive Features

See the wonderful Shaker flour sifter; the Hoosier accounting system; the cook-book holder; the food guide; the want list; the pencil holder; the money tray; the emergency shelf; and dozens of other labor-saving devices, 17 of which are entirely new.

Saturday, May 15th, May Be Too Late

Other women are making up their minds to-night to come to-morrow and select a Hoosier Cabinet while they can save $2.50. It won't take five minutes to decide when you see it.

By 5 o'clock the school grounds were clear of people and those from Crisfield and vicinity returned on the train which left at 5.15 o'clock.

Paint And Not

Paint was so high the last few years the market was flooded with trash.

What is trash?

It looks like paint and pretends to be paint, but isn't worth painting. It costs a painter's day's work to put on a gallon of paint, good or bad; and a painter's day's work is $3 or $4.

Add to that the price of a gallon. That is the cost of a gallon. Devoe is $5 or $6 a gallon; and trash a half-dollar less.

But Devoe is all paint and more too; you add oil to it; a gallon is 5 or 6 quarts of perfect paint for the painter's pot. But trash is three-quarters two-thirds or half paint; you pay a half-dollar less for nobody-knows-what-it-is.

10 gallons Devoe is enough for the average job; it takes 15 to 20 gallons of trash. And the wear, same way. Unfortunately, they look alike when first put on.

DEVOE

C. H. Hayman sells it.

LINER LUSITANIA TORPEDOED

1,250 Lives Lost—80 Of the 188 Americans Aboard Safe

The latest estimate of lives lost as a result of the torpedoing of the Cunard liner Lusitania by a German submarine off the Irish coast last Friday is 1,256. It is believed that almost all, if not all, the survivors have been brought ashore, and there is little hope of recovering any other passengers alive.

There were 188 Americans on board the Cunard liner. So far as could be ascertained, 88 Americans were saved. Latest estimates indicate that at least 1000 bodies are still in the sea and hundreds probably will never be recovered.

Mr. William E. Cluff, senior member of the firm of W. E. Cluff & Company, died at his home in Snow Hill on Sunday, the 2nd instant. He leaves a widow, formerly Miss Delia Burbage. Mr. Cluff was a member of the City Council and one of the leading business men of Snow Hill. He was born in Somerset county, but went to Snow Hill about 22 years ago. He was about 45 years old.

Whooping Cough

"When my daughter had whooping cough she coughed so hard at one time that she had hemorrhage of the lungs. I was terribly alarmed about her condition. Seeing Chamberlain's Cough Remedy so highly recommended, I got her a bottle and it relieved the cough at once. Before she had finished two bottles of this remedy she was entirely well," writes Mrs. S. F. Grimes, Crooksville, Ohio. Obtainable everywhere.

A STORY ABOUT A LECTURE.

It Ought to Have Been Funny and Seemed at the Time to Be Funny and Yet Afterward There Was Grave Doubt as to Whether It Was or Not.

"What's your book?" Squire Dumont asked of a neighbor as they sat waiting their turn in the village barber shop.

"Innocents Abroad," by Mark Twain," was the reply. "I just got it out of the library. I suppose you would call it pretty light reading."

"You needn't be a bit ashamed of it, Mr. Pinkham," said the squire, heartily. "It's a book that has done a lot of good. It has made thousands of people laugh, and a good laugh is often better than a dose of medicine."

"I've seen that proved," said Mr. Pinkham. "I went to hear Mark Twain lecture once," he added, with a reminiscent chuckle.

"You don't say so?" exclaimed the squire. "I never had that pleasure myself. It must have been a great treat."

"Yes, it was. I'm a great admirer of Mark Twain and have been for years. I had always wanted to see and hear him, and when I saw in a Portland paper that he was to lecture there on a certain evening it came over me that that was my time to go and hear him."

"I had just lost a lawsuit, and my wife was away from home with a sick sister. I was pretty blue and lonesome and felt the need of being cheered up."

"I took the afternoon train, calculating to get to my cousin Jim's in time for supper and then go to the lecture. But, as luck would have it, a freight train had been wrecked near Brunswick, and we never got into Portland until 8 o'clock. However, I hurried to the hall and paid my way in and got a good seat right up in front. I had missed some of the lecture, but I was thankful to get what was left. It wasn't so much what he said, though, as the way he said it that tickled me. I laughed more that night than I had for a year."

"Well, after the lecture was over I made my way to my cousin Jim's. He has means, and they live in some style, but I got a cordial welcome. Clara, his wife, told me that I couldn't see Jim that night. He was poorly, and she was a good deal worried about him. But while we were talking he found out I was there and sent for me to come to his room. I never saw any one more in the dumps than he was. I guess he complained steady for as much as half an hour. He was a very sick man. He didn't relish his victuals, and what he did eat distressed him. Night after night he got hardly a wink of sleep, and nothing interested him any more. Moreover, what the doctor gave him didn't do a mite of good. It was pitiful to hear him go on. Finally he asked me how I happened to be in Portland."

"So you came up to hear Mark Twain?" says he, and his face brightened up. "Did you like him?" says he, and I said, "Of course I did."

"Well," says I, "it was funny, of course, and I guess when I have had a chance to think it over it will seem funnier. But there were parts of it that didn't seem so dreadful funny."

"Then all at once Jim fell back in his chair and began to choke, and for a minute I was scared. As soon as he could speak he says: 'That wasn't Mark Twain that you heard. He lectured here last week. What you heard,' says he, 'was a lecture on the poetry of Robert Browning by Professor—' I forget now what Jim called his name. Then he took to laughing again, and I thought he'd never stop."

"After that Jim wanted to know how the people near me took my laughing so much at the lecture, and when I remembered that some of 'em did scowl a little he went off again."

"Well, naturally I felt a little cheap, but afterward I wasn't sorry. The next morning Jim said he had had his first good night's rest for a month, and he really didn't get out of bed. About a fortnight after that I got a letter from him saying that he was feeling quite like himself again."

"I don't know as my visit had a thing to do with it, but I've always felt as if it did. In that case it goes to prove what you said, squire, that a good laugh is sometimes better than a dose of medicine."—Youth's Companion.

Hard to Keep Up.
"Fond of reading, are you?"
"Yes."

"Read all Shakespeare's works, I suppose?"
"I don't know whether I've read his latest or not. So much stuff coming out these days!"—Louisville Courier-Journal.

Keeping Wifely Dressed.
"Money isn't everything."
"No; there are ways of getting along. Take my case, for instance. I married into a family where there is a dressmaker. You have no idea what a help she is!"—Kansas City Journal.

It's a good thing to know when to stop, but quite another thing to take advantage of your knowledge.—New York Times.

HAVE YOU BEEN SICK?

Then you realize the utter weakness that robs ambition, destroys appetite, and makes work a burden.

To restore that strength and stamina that is so essential, nothing has ever equalled or compared with Scott's Emulsion, because its strength-sustaining nourishment invigorates the blood to distribute energy throughout the body while its tonic value sharpens the appetite and restores health in a natural, permanent way.

If you are run down, tired, nervous, overworked or lack strength, get Scott's Emulsion to-day. It is free from alcohol. Scott & Bowne, Bloomfield, N. J.

FIRING A TORPEDO.

How a Submarine Flings Forth the Deadly Projectile.

When a submarine sights a hostile vessel a group of sailors quickly cluster round the torpedo tube. This is loaded with its instrument of destruction, and behind it a powder charge is inserted in a receptacle and the trigger controlling the firing mechanism cocked ready.

A gunner proceeds to estimate the speed of the target and its course through glasses. He then adjusts a device known as the "director," which by means of dials tells him when the tube is pointing in the right direction to launch the torpedo true to its mark. At a distance of about 3,000 yards the gunner presses a button, the powder charge explodes and a pressure of fifty pounds per square inch is put upon the rear end of the torpedo.

The well greased projectile is forced through the open end of the tube at a rate of thirty-five feet per second, and as it takes the water in a long flat dive the twin propellers in the rear set to work. They are driven by an air pressure of 2,250 pounds, which sets the driving machinery in motion as the torpedo leaps from its tube.

A gyroscope steering gear prevents the torpedo from deviating from a straight path, and unless it is carelessly fired or its target quickly maneuvers out of the way the 5,500 projectile seldom misses its mark.—London Answers.

STUCK IN THE MUD.

That Was the Normal Condition in Chicago Village in 1833.

An elaborate series of descriptions of middle western road conditions is contained in Charles Cleaver's "History of Chicago From 1833 to 1892, Illustrating the Difficulties of the Route From New York to Chicago." In the village of Chicago in 1833, Cleaver tells us:

"Parties informed us that in the spring we would find it almost impossible to get around for the mud, a truth forcibly illustrated when a few months later I got into a wagon to go about one and a half miles northwest. It was with the greatest difficulty that two good horses could pull the empty wagon through the two feet of mud and water across the prairie. . . . A year or two later I saw many teams stuck fast in the streets of the village."

"I remember once a stagecoach got mired in Clark street opposite the Sherman House, where it remained several days, with a board driven into the mud bearing this inscription: 'No bottom here.' I once saw a lady stuck in the mud in the middle of Randolph street. She was evidently in need of help, as every time she moved she sank deeper and deeper. An old gentleman from the country offered to help her, which had such an effect upon her modesty that with one desperate effort she drew her feet out minus her shoes."

Why You Sneeze.

There is more than one cause for sneezing, and persons may differ in their susceptibility to them. A bright light will cause some persons to sneeze, the pollen of certain plants will affect others, and most people are likely to sneeze in the presence of dust. Such sneezing is due to superficial irritation.

The sneeze caused by the effect of cold is different. It is an attempt of nature to cure you. She makes you sneeze for the same reason that she makes you shiver—to generate heat for warming the blood and preventing you from taking more cold—to help relieve the cold you have.

The sneezing from cold is not an act of the nose alone, this being merely the part of the body where it explodes. It is an act of the entire body during which every muscle gives a jump. The body is affected by a spasmodic effort to warm the entire system and throw off the cold.—Boston Herald.

Destiny.

Destiny is either the excuse men give for their errors or a humble supplement to their successes. Destiny reconciles a man to unpaid bills, the abuse of the proletariat, ingratitude and relatives, especially if they are his own.

A man who is making progress is thought by himself to control his own destiny. When he isn't making progress his destiny controls him.

Destiny is always at work. When it is not doing it is undoing. It has a star for a trademark which is recognized in every country in the world. It has made a great many see double.

Not everybody has a destiny. Some are comparatively happy.—Life.

A Natural Defect.

"Do you find much change in the old town?" asked an interested friend of Colonel Sellemquik, the eminent promoter.

"Well, no," replied the colonel thoughtfully. "But then I scarcely expected any. You see, I got most of the local supply before I went away."—Richmond Times-Dispatch.

Children Cry FOR FLETCHER'S CASTORIA

GOOD NATURED ELEPHANTS.

Peculiarities of Some of the Herds of West Africa.

In 1905 I found myself near the Inza river, an important affluent of the Kwilu, flowing through a fertile region which is infested by herds of elephants, a source of constant anxiety and frequent losses to the inhabitants.

In a country like this, where he is not hunted by man in the ordinary way and the only means for his destruction are cruel but easily avoided pitfalls, the elephant is decidedly good natured. We were told by the mission boys at Pana that in the rainless season, when their usual haunts are dried up, the elephants frequently wander near the river and attack the plantations. The natives try to drive them away with sticks!

"But it is no good hitting them or throwing stones at them," I was told. "They generally refuse to take any notice. Sometimes a mother with a calf will turn on us and chase us for a hundred yards or so, but no real harm is meant and the animal is not really angry, for all the signs of fury—spread ears and raised trunk—are absent. All the same, we do run away, although we know there is no danger. One day a boy fell when thus pursued, but the elephant only threw sand on him."

As I have myself seen a man just pushed out of the way by one of these good natured monsters, when the animal had more than enough provocation to kill him, I was inclined to accept this account as true.—Wide World Magazine.

Bull Baiting.

Although bull baiting was a cruel pastime, it was also a fulfilling of the law, for formerly no butcher was allowed to offer for sale the flesh of any bull that had not been baited. The goading of the animal in a fury was supposed to have some influence on the flesh. In a similar belief the flesh of a hunted hare was thought to be superior in flavor to that of one that had been shot, and a present of "a hunted hare" was considered to be a special compliment. In the records of the corporation of Leicester, England, the following order appears: "At a common hall, held on Thursday before St. Simon and St. Jude, 1467, 'no butcher to kill a bull till baited.' At Winchester it was ordered (reign of Henry VIII.) 'that from henceforth there shall be no bulstake set before any mayor's door to baite any bull, but onle at the bull-rings within the said cytie.'"

Her Only Course.

Lady Anne Lindsay, the author of the old poem "Auld Robin Gray," was not only a delightful conversationalist, but she was a great story teller.

This gift made her not only a welcome guest abroad, but a valuable member of the home circle, for it is related in "A Group of Scottish Women" that at a dinner party which she was giving to some friends an old manservant caused some amusement by saying in a perfectly audible undertone:

"My lady, you must tell another story. The second course won't be ready for five minutes."

DON'T EXPERIMENT

You Will Make No Mistake If You Follow This Princess Anne Citizen's Advice

Never neglect your kidneys. If you have pain in the back, urinary disorders, dizziness and nervousness, it's time to act and no time to experiment. These are frequently symptoms of kidney trouble, and a remedy which is recommended for the kidneys should be taken in time.

Doan's Kidney Pills is a good remedy to use. No need to experiment. It has acted effectively in many cases in Princess Anne. Follow the advice of a Princess Anne citizen.

Mrs. Oscar Long, Princess Anne, says: "It is true that Doan's Kidney Pills have been used very successfully in my home and I hold them in high esteem. I seldom let a day go by without telling someone of the merit of Doan's Kidney Pills, and I don't know of another medicine so certain to do good as Doan's Kidney Pills. It gives me pleasure to publicly endorse them."

Price 50c, at all dealers. Don't simply ask for a kidney remedy—get Doan's Kidney Pills—the same that Mrs. Long recommends. Foster-Milburn Co., Props., Buffalo, N. Y. (Advertisement)

BLUNDERS IN BATTLE.

Cases Where Troops Have Fired Upon Their Own People.

It was at Beacon hill during the Boer war that there happened one of the saddest incidents in the history of the British army. The East Surrey were in a hollow between two hills creeping up the valley. The West Surrey regiment, half a mile away, caught sight of the crawling figures and took them for Boers.

In a moment a heavy volley rang out, and it was not until an officer, realizing the mistake, rushed out in front of the West Surreys that the firing ceased.

A nurse, writing afterward from the Estcourt hospital, said it was pitiful to see the West Surreys coming in one after another, bringing cigarettes, dainties, any present they could find, for the wounded men, then, hearing their groans, turn away, saying: "God forgive us! This is our work!"

One of the strangest cases of troops firing upon their own people occurred in Rumania in the year 1885. At that time Rumania was in a very disturbed condition, and bands of robbers—regular banditti—prowled over the country, raiding the villages and farms. The largest of these bands made its headquarters in the forest of Rhodope and gradually increased until it became 300 strong. It spread through the whole countryside, and at last the government sent a body of troops to hunt it down.

The robber band was located on top of a mountain, and the colonel in command of the troops split his forces and sent half up each side so as to attack from two points simultaneously.

A thick fog fell, and the robbers took advantage of it to sneak away quietly by a path known only to themselves. The troops, unaware of this maneuver, continued their ascent, and the two bodies, each crawling along under cover of rocks and brushwood, met at the top. They at once opened fire and fought desperately for a whole hour before the mistake was discovered. Eighty were killed and 300 wounded.—Philadelphia Ledger.

The Weight of Crowds.
In the building of theater galleries and grand stands the supporting strength of the structure has to be carefully worked out. This is done by multiplying the area in square feet by the pressure which it is estimated a crowd exerts per square foot and making the supports proportionately strong. At one time the weight of a crowd was determined at between 82 and 102 pounds per square foot, but experiments have shown this to be a great underestimation and that the weight exerted is now calculated at from 123 to 133 pounds.—Exchange.

Bright Suggestion.
She—But if I can't live on my income and you can't live on yours, where would be the advantage of my marrying? He (thoughtfully)—Well, by putting our incomes together one of us would be able to live, at any rate.—Boston Transcript.

Looking Ahead.
"Do you think you could learn to love me?" asked the old millionaire. "Perhaps," said the girl coyly. "Do I get a title to a fine house as a diploma?"—Louisville Courier-Journal.

Rheumatism Yields Quickly to Sloan's
You can't prevent an attack of Rheumatism from coming on, but you can stop it almost immediately. Sloan's Liniment gently applied to the sore joint or muscle penetrates in a few minutes to the inflamed spot that causes the pain. It soothes the hot, tender, swollen feeling, and in a very short time brings a relief that is almost unbelievable until you experience it. Get a bottle of Sloan's Liniment for 25c. of any Druggist and have it in the house—against Colds, Sore and Swollen Joints, Lumbago, Sciatica and like ailments. Your money back if not satisfied, but it does give almost instant relief.

Education.
Education is the whole effect of environment. The individual is in some way affected by everything with which he comes in contact, from the first moment of life until the end. Teaching is therefore a factor in evolution. It is a means of carrying on the development of the individual. Man is as yet incomplete; it is likely that all his best exercises still lie before him. He must be ready for what is to come.

WOODS THAT SINK.

There Are Many Varieties That Will Not Float in Water.

That wood floats is such a commonplace fact in our lives that we hardly give it any thought. If we lived in tropical climates we would learn to distinguish between woods that float and woods that do not float. Many of the woods of Mexico and South America are so heavy even when perfectly dry that they will sink in water, notably lignum vitae, which is the wood commonly used for bowling balls.

Among our common native woods there are several that will not float when green. The cypress of the south is often girdled a year before it is cut so that it will die and dry while standing, thus making it possible to float the logs to the mill.

The reason why some woods float is not because the substance of which they are made is lighter than water, but because the cavities in the cells are so large that the air in them buoys up the wood. The material (cellulose) which composes the greater part of the cell wall is heavier than water, so that if the air in the cells is replaced by water the wood will sink. This is just what happens to wood which has been in water for a long time and has become "waterlogged."

It is the large water content of the heartwood of freshly felled oaks and hickories and of the sapwood of certain conifers that causes these woods to sink, for when dry they will float.

Lignum vitae and other heavy tropical woods, even when dry, sink because most of the cell cavities are so small compared to the thick cell walls that the air in the cavities is not enough to float the wood.

CULTIVATE RELIABILITY.

It is Always in Demand and Adds to a Man's Worth.

The demand for reliability never ceases. If you buy a piece of machinery you want it to be dependable. When you purchase new clothes you desire them to be durable. If you elect an official you require that he shall be trustworthy. When you take on an employee you inquire whether he can be relied on, as to his word, his loyalty. It is so in all the relations of life. While there is much unreliability, you never hear of anybody seeking it or placing a premium upon it.

The reliable man is always spoken of in terms of praise. His friends boast that he can be depended upon to do a certain thing under a certain set of circumstances without variableness or shadow of turning. They say they can find him in the dark and can trust him then with the same faith as in the broad light of day. They refer to him as one whom you can tie to. They have no fears that he will either default or betray. He has all the steadiness and solidity of a well trained plow horse. He may lack brilliance and finish. He may not be a genius. But as far as his abilities go he is as reliable as time itself, and thus he becomes more or less of an institution in the circle within which he moves and an anchorage for those dependent upon him in any way whatever.—Pittsburgh Gazette-Times.

"Oh, I must give you a penny for this!" exclaimed Emmie, as she prepared to leave the car.
"Don't bother, dear," cooed Angie. "Give it to me next time I see you."
"But you mayn't see me for a long time," protested Emmie.
"Oh, well, the loss wouldn't be great," cooed Angie, more sweetly than ever.—London Answers.

Making the Little Farm Pay

By C. C. BOWSFIELD

Numerous inquiries are made by city people who intend to take land and by progressive farmers regarding the most profitable crops.

Mixed farming is the most profitable system either for small or large places. This means a variety of crops and other farm interests instead of a single crop such as corn, or a single interest such as dairying, poultry keeping or pork production.

I would organize any farm with eight or ten sources of income so that the failure of one or more products would not be ruinous. I offer these general suggestions: Use a tenth of the land for fruit, a tenth for garden truck, a twentieth for poultry yard and range, a fifth for grain, a fifth for cattle and horse pasture, a tenth for hog pasture, a tenth for alfalfa, a tenth for root crops and a twentieth for buildings and yards.

In a farm of forty acres there would be, according to this schedule, eight acres of pasture, eight acres of grain, four acres of tree and bush fruits, capable also of raising some flowers and vegetables; four acres for hog pasture, four acres for alfalfa, four acres for root crops, four acres for garden truck, two acres for poultry range and two acres for dwelling, lawn, barns and yards. Have several brood mares to furnish farm power and raise colts, keep a few cows to produce butter, cream or milk; raise 500 ducks and 1,000 chickens for market; keep about 500 laying hens, or enough to produce twenty dozen eggs per day on an average; arrange the grainfield, the hog pasture, the alfalfa field, the plot devoted to root crops and the four acres assigned to garden truck so that they would be interchangeable, and thus the crops could be grown in rotation. On a farm of twenty acres or even larger this proportion could be maintained. Six cows, forty hogs and three mares together with a few head of young stock, could easily be provided for under this plan. The income should be about as follows:

Earnings from six cows.....	$600
One team of horses.....	400
Forty hogs.....	400
Five hundred ducks.....	500
One thousand chickens.....	800
Egg production.....	1,500
Four acres fruit.....	800
Four acres vegetables.....	600
	$5,500

Allowing for labor $600, mill feed $300, household expenses $400, interest on investment $500, upkeep of equipment $300 and incidentals $100, we have an outlay of $2,200. This amount subtracted from the gross income of $5,500 leaves $3,300 net as compensation for the farmer and his family. Not all farmers can accomplish this but such results are being attained in a great many cases.

Not only must agricultural study and education point the way toward the successful culture of corn, wheat, cotton and rice, but must point the way toward the most profitable selection of crops for particular soils, climates and markets. As land values increase farmers must acquire the capacity of adjusting themselves to these changing values, else they will find themselves trying to raise crops that can no longer be produced at a profit.

There is a multitude of interests which every progressive farmer will acquire, and these should be developed as early as possible. Good roads, farm credit, sanitary precaution about the home, the use of the latest conveniences and an alert community spirit are among these interests.

Agricultural education in the public schools must make of the boy an experimenter for truth. His investigations must proceed with unabated zeal when his school days proper are finished, and his farm must ever continue to be his school.

Fight Against Chinch Bugs.
To fence against chinch bugs 1.50 miles of barriers were laid down to protect cornfields last year, says the Farm and Fireside. This cost $40,500 including labor. The average yield of the protected fields was twenty-five bushels to the acre, and it is estimated that the barriers added to the yield of corn the value of $714,730. This sort of work has to be done by co-operation.

RADIUM AND THE FARM.

Reports of the so called "discovery" that certain minerals containing radium are of great value as fertilizers have been attracting a lot of attention in the newspapers. A report just issued by the Illinois experiment station on a series of field tests covering two seasons summarizes the results in the following positive terms:

"The trustworthy results from two years of field trials by the Illinois experiment station show that radium applied at a cost of $1, $10 or $100 per acre produced no effect upon the crop yields either the first or the second season."

Though earlier investigations have shown that radium may have an influence upon the growth of plants, it appears that the results secured by using uranium-radium ore in growing crops are so slight as to be of negligible importance. Variations in yields due to season, rainfall and the like were much greater than could possibly be traced to the radium.—Country Gentleman.

DESTROY CATTLE GRUBS.

Farmers Lose Millions Annually From This Destructive Pest.

Thousands of dollars may be saved if cattle growers will this spring remove and destroy the grubs in the backs of cattle.

T. J. Talbert, specialist in entomology in the Kansas Agricultural college extension division, says that the season when grubs are prevalent extends from January to June, when about half the cattle that go to market are infested.

The damage amounts to between $35,000,000 and $50,000,000 a year. The grub weakens the cattle, causes them to fall off in flesh and milk and decreases the value of the hides.

The characteristic lumps or swellings which may be found under the skin on the backs of many cattle at this time contain grubs. The grubs may be pressed out through the opening at the top of the swelling. A sharp knife and a pair of tweezers will often facilitate the work. Care should be taken to crush all the grubs removed, so as to prevent their further development and transformation into flies. It is advisable to examine the cattle for lumps or swellings over the back every two or three weeks during late winter and early spring.

Various oils are often used, the lotion being smeared over the infested region or applied to the mouth of the breathing hole of the grub. Kerosene emulsion, fish oil and train oil are often used with good results. One or two applications are usually sufficient. The objection to this method is that the wounds do not heal readily unless the grubs are removed.

These measures may not be practicable in the case of large herds of half wild cattle, as it is necessary to bring the animals into close quarters in small pens or chutes. In the case of small herds the removal and destruction of the grubs are an easy task. The flies do not migrate far and often the cleaning up of individual herds and the care of animals brought to the premises will control the pest.

The Christmas Rose.
Helleborus, or Christmas rose, is a valuable, hardy plant, flowering freely in the early spring, when flowers are scarce. The flowers are two or three inches across. Helleborus thrive in almost any garden soil, but a rich loam, with a moist, rather shady, perfectly drained situation, suits them best. Protected by cold frames, the plants will flower at Christmas time, from which fact their common name is derived. The roots may be lifted from the garden in the early winter or late autumn, potted and placed in gentle heat, under glass, but they should not be forced much. The best flowers will be obtained by giving the plants in the open ground the protection of a hand glass or cold frame.

Best Way to Plant Trees.
When setting out fruit trees, if the best possible results are desired dig the holes fully three feet deep and twice the diameter required by the roots. Mix the dirt that was removed thoroughly with manure, using half as much manure as soil. Fill up the hole with this compound so that the trees will not be planted deeper than they were in the nursery. Over this mixture spread a little soil so the roots will not come in direct contact with manure. Set the tree and cover the roots with soil that has not been mixed with fertilizer. After the roots are covered fill the space with the mixture. Before setting the tree a pailful or two of water should be used, and a pailful or two after the tree is set will settle the soil and keep it moist so the tree will be sure to start. Stamp the dirt well about the roots before applying the last pail of water.

This is considerable work, but it will be forgotten very soon. Trees planted like this will thrive and be a lifelong satisfaction, a reminder that what is worth doing is worth doing well.

Farm Homes Of The Chesapeake

Architect William H. Brinkloe, of Easton, Md., has an interesting article in the Craftsman on "Old Farm Homes of the Chesapeake."
"The Eastern Shore folks call it that flat, fertile stretch of land spread a hundred odd miles along the eastern side of the Chesapeake from Havre de Grace, on the Susquehanna, to Tangier Island, off the Pocomoke. Oysters and crabs for the catching, razorbacks, canvasbacks, diamond-backs, corn, and red ripe tomatoes by the "bugeye" load! But better than these grosser joys is the wondrous beauty of the fronts, where the little salt fields and creeks wander up into the pastures and woodlands. No malarious marshes or dreary sand-dunes but fields and old forest trees sweeping down to the very touch of the tides.
"Back in the seventeenth century Lord Baltimore brought out his Catholic Englishmen to settle these shores, but a stream of Quakers and Church of England folk soon overflooded the first immigrants. The land was fat and good, the Indians friendly, the climate mild."
He then tells the message of colonial country architecture:
"Colonial farm life on the Eastern Shore of Maryland was far softer, smoother than in the northern colonies, with ironies, witticisms, and bitter winters to make life hard and dull!
"And so, scattered all along the eastern waters of the Chesapeake, we find the little farm homes of these early Marylanders; homes that reflect the simple, pleasant life of the builders. Wonderfully interesting and suggestive are these low-set, farm cottages, and they have a very definite message to us if we will heed it; for they are simple, straightforward, and free from all affectation, depending for their effect solely on proportion, symmetry and balance.
"So far we have been dealing with seventeenth century cottages, but along in the eighteenth a new type was developed—the gambrel roof. A purely American development, this, it seems to have been worked out simultaneously by the Puritans of New England, the Dutchmen of New York and New Jersey, the Swedes of Delaware, and Lord Baltimore's English colonist of Maryland. A half-dozen more or less fanciful reasons have been given for its birth, but the real reason seems just this: The colonists needed bigger, better, and cooler bedrooms to their story-and-a-half homes, and the gambrel roof was the only practical solution.
"A gambrel roof is a most pleasing thing when skillfully designed, but if an amateur meddles with it the result is quite apt to be horrible beyond words!"

Editorial Announcement

From the Every Evening, May 1st.
Beginning today, Mr. Frederick K. Reybold, until this time connected with the Philadelphia North American, will become associated with Every Evening as managing editor. Mr. Reybold is a native Delawarean, born in Delaware City, and has had ample experience in newspaper work. He was with the Philadelphia Record for nine years, and then went to the North American.
The arrangement with Mr. Reybold was entered into by Samuel Bancroft, Jr., late president of Every Evening Printing Co., about a month before the illness, which ended fatally, compelled him to go to a hospital for treatment. Mr. Reybold was permitted to become financially interested as a stockholder in the Every Evening Printing Co., and Mr. William F. Metten, who has been associated with the newspaper for the past twenty years, and for the past five years as business manager and treasurer, was also taken into the company in like manner.

These changes, however, will not in any manner affect the policy of Every Evening. Mr. Merris Taylor will continue as editor, and Mr. A. O. H. Grier as city editor. Mr. Joseph Bancroft, who has been vice-president of the company for six years, will represent the estate of Mr. Samuel Bancroft, Jr., in the company.

Prospect For Good Peach Crop

Reports from all sections of the peninsula are to the effect that the peach crop is safe and there is also a good prospect for the other crops. Factories which manufacture baskets and carriers for fruits are already busy and this is a pretty good indication that the outlook for a crop is good. Delaware and the Eastern Shore of Maryland are rapidly regaining their prestige as peach growing sections. Much of this is due to the excellent work of the agricultural experiment stations of Delaware and Maryland, and to the work of certain nurseries that have shown the growers that it is still possible to grow good peaches here.

GERMS IN THE MOUTH.

Using Paper as a Toothpick is a Dangerous Practice.

One of the most dangerous little tricks that men and women do is to take a bit of paper, torn from an envelope or newspaper, and try to run it between the teeth to remove some little particle of food that the tongue feels. If you want to be sure of trouble with your gums continue this practice, and sooner or later—rather sooner than later—you will secure a splendid case of infection of the gums that will send you to the dentist in a hurry, and may cause more than one sleepless night.

The bit of paper used in this way, introduced edgewise between the teeth, is worse than any toothpick, or other instrument, for many reasons. In the first place the sharp edge of the paper is most apt to make a cut in the gum, and in so doing it is almost sure to carry into the circulation at least some of the many germs clinging to it. Again, the chemicals used in the making of paper are far from edible, but in addition to these the newspaper may have picked up a variety of germs from those who have handled it or from the dust that has blown upon it while exposed for sale.

The flap of the envelope, which is so "handy" a bit to use for the teeth, may have touched the lips of some one with tonsillitis, or even with tuberculosis.—New York American.

ROMANCE OF FLOWERS.

A Blossom Changed the Roving Camp into a Permanent Home.

The difference between a home and a camp is a blossom. Until flowers were planted about the abode of men, until blooms were cultivated, there were no permanent homes, no fixed places of abode. Tents were struck and a new location sought. Attachments were not formed for localities. We were wandering, shiftless, comfortless lot until a woman trudged in from the thicket and planted a pine or shrub or flower about the tent, and called it home.

It was a woman, of course. Man, in his coarseness, never thought of sticking a stem into the earth and nurturing a plant that he might have color and fragrance forever in his presence. Only the woman could have thought of that.

And since the first good day when the woman planted a flower and loved it into blossoming, the home has been a fixity. It has been a center of the affections. The building may be destroyed, the individual members of the family may be scattered to the four winds, but the home remains a fixture in the memory—and the blossoms do not fade or wither in the mind.—Columbus Dispatch.

A Clever Bird.

People who feed the wild birds in winter find that the birds soon come to know them. A friend of mine used every morning to rap an English walnut on the sill of his open window. A white breasted nuthatch knew the signal and would fly to his hand and take the nut meat from between his fingers. Sometimes my friend used to hold the nut meat tightly and make the bird work to get it. One morning the nuthatch, hammering at the tightly held morsel, struck the holder's thumb at the base of the nail. The blow hurt, and involuntarily the fingers parted and released the meat. The next morning, without any preliminaries, the nuthatch hammered at the same place. He knew, and he had learned his lesson in one session too. It is a smart boy that does as well.—Winthrop Packard in Our Dumb Animals.

Marital Diplomacy.

Plunger—I felt awfully sorry for a poor guy down at the exchange today. He lost $5,000 on cotton, and all the boys were guying him, and as he started off home they taunted him with the prediction that his wife would land on him roughshod. The poor chap acted as though he felt pretty badly about it. Mrs. Plunger (sympathetically)—Poor fellow! No doubt he used his best judgment, and if his wife turns on him because of his reverses she is not worthy to be called wife. But who was the man? Plunger—Why—er—it was me—Woman's Home Companion.

A Trouble Escape.

"You'll escape much trouble in this here world, my boy," said the Billville parent. "If you'll turn down all contracts for rain' of the place where the devil lives at. Wherever it is, it's right where it oter be, an' if it needs any rain' the devil himself is more competent to 'tend to that business than what you'll ever be."—Atlanta Constitution.

BAFFLED THE OFFICIALS.

A French Paper That Printed All the Government Secrets.

Some years before the great French Revolution a printed newspaper used to be distributed in Paris disclosing the most secret events and doings of the authorities.

Nobody knew who the editor of the paper was or where it was printed, but men highest in rank or office were constantly afraid they might read in the sheet accounts of conversations had with members of their households in the private rooms of their own houses the day before. The police were incessant in employing all their facilities for the discovery of the whereabouts of the plant.

After many efforts they did succeed in unearthing the fact that the paper was being printed by night on board a ship in the Seine, but it was not always the same ship.

This discovery was made about 8 o'clock in the evening. In a secret and highly guarded conference held at once the authorities decided to raid all vessels in the river during the night at the same time and in this way to capture the mysterious printers. Time was lacking to make the necessary arrangements for carrying the decision into effect that same night. Action was therefore postponed for a day.

The next morning the paper came out as usual. But it contained as its last lines the following announcement: "As the secret service resolved last night to raid our little printing office tonight, this paper will not be published tomorrow."—New York Post.

WHERE BLUE BLOOD RULES.

More Money Cuts a Very Poor Figure in the German Empire.

Miss Wylie says in her "Eight Years in Germany" that contempt for mere money is a striking characteristic of the German people. Wealth alone does not entitle its possessor to any special deference or consideration.

"The German's indifference to money," she declares, "amounts very nearly to contempt. I am not speaking only of the aristocracy. The very shopkeepers themselves have the same feeling. And it has often amused me during the Christmas shopping to watch how poverty stricken Baroness von X is surrounded by courteous, deferential attendants, eager to sell her the sixpenny knickknack she has come to buy, where the wealthy Frau Rosenkrantz, making her expensive purchases, receives no particular attention.

"In Germany you can be poor and live poorly without reproach. You can live in a garret and dress as your means allow, but you will not be judged by your garret and your shabbiness, but by yourself. If you have an honored name or a spark of genius the doors of the most exclusive circles are opened to you. Talent and birth are the only passwords that German society understands, and wealth, unless its owner is very tactful or is himself indifferent to it, is not welcomed. Ostentation of any sort is an unpardonable offense."

The Dark Continent.

In the light of history it seems strange to call Africa a dark continent. When northern Europe was a howling wilderness and America utterly unknown to the civilized world Africa was a famous place for great cities. Egypt was the seat of riches and learning, and all the countries bordering on the Mediterranean figure largely in the pages of sacred and profane history. But a blight fell upon Africa, and all the work of the past has had to be done over again. Indeed, it is only within the past quarter century that we have known anything about this wonderful country except a narrow strip around the coast. Yet Africa contains over 8,000,000 miles in area and has more than 200,000,000 inhabitants.—St. Louis Republic.

Woolner's Tip.

The little tip or point that often appears on the inwardly folded margin of the human ear near the top has received the name of "Woolner's tip," from the sculptor Woolner, who first reproduced it in his bust of Darwin. Other sculptors, though they must have noticed the tip, never reproduced it. Darwin held that this tip was a remnant of a wrinkle left by the coiling up of the ear and hence a proof of man's descent from lower animals.—New York World.

The Last Word.

Bix—What nonsense to say that one can't get the last word with a woman; I found it easy enough today. Dix—You don't say! How did it happen? Bix—Why, I said to a woman in the car, "Madam, have my seat."—Boston Transcript.

The Flag Pledge.

The pledge to the flag, as taken by the children of the public schools, runs as follows: "I pledge allegiance to my flag and to the country for which it stands; one nation, indivisible, with liberty and justice for all."—New York American.

The Surprising Part.

"I was surprised to learn that Bonehead had lost his mind." "What was there surprising about it?" "Why, that his friends found it out. That's what surprises me."—Houston Post.

The Largest Painting.

"Rembrandt," by Tintoretto, is the largest painting in the world. It is eighty-four feet wide, thirty-three and one-half feet high and is now in the doge's palace, Venice.

A Lifelong Regret

By F. A. MITCHEL

When the big European war broke out on the 30th of July, 1914, I was in Berlin. My parents being Germans, though born in America myself, I thought it would please my father if I volunteered to fight the allies. So I went off to Belgium with a company of uhlans and got into the thick of it at once.

My chief delight was scouting. While the German army was reducing the forts about Liege there was work to do in a different way, and I was much better pleased at doing it than hanging about camp, though even the cavalry was pretty busy. I would ride out in neutral ground with a small camera and take pictures of fortifications—that is, when I could get near enough to do so without being discovered.

One day I had been unusually successful and on my way back to my command stopped at a farmhouse for refreshment. A pretty Belgian girl served me, but evidently with a very poor grace, regarding me as an enemy of her country. Between the sexes there is always a special interest in making a conquest where the party to be conquered resists the would be conqueror. I said so many pleasant things to the girl that it was not long before I congratulated myself upon having quite won her over.

Having rested for some time, I was about to mount and ride away when she made an excuse to detain me. I was not unwilling to be detained and spent an hour longer with her, during which period I did more lovemaking than I had ever done before. I made several efforts to tear myself away, but my little girl looked so reproachful at my going that I consented to remain just a little longer.

I stayed just a little too long. Suddenly hearing the beating of horses' hoofs, I started up with a view to getting away, but before I could mount my horse a squadron of Belgian cavalry came down on me and made me a prisoner. With them was a boy of fourteen whom I had seen about the place when I had first arrived. It was evident that the girl had detained me while she sent him to inform the soldiers of my presence.

I heard the officer in command thank her for the information she had sent him, and she seemed quite proud of what she had done. I was searched, and the photographs I had taken were found on me, to say nothing of my camera. Upon this the officer turned to the girl and said:

"Mademoiselle, you have helped us to quite a prize. While the captive you have given us is in uniform, he has been taking photographs of our works and will be treated accordingly."

"How is that?" asked the girl, paling.

"He will be shot." "If any blood remained in the girl's face it vanished, and I thought she would swoon. It occurred to me that she had not considered the importance to herself in the part she was playing.

But there came another turn in the affair. I had gone so long on my scout that my captain, fearing I had got into trouble, galloped out on the road I had taken to look after me. Suddenly while the Belgians were off their guard he appeared at the head of his troops, dashing around a bend in the road from behind trees. The Belgians took to flight, and I was rescued. They were pursued for some distance while I was pulling myself together and getting the arms and accoutrements that had been taken from me. When I had collected everything I could find I turned to the girl who had betrayed me.

I have never in my life seen such a perfect example of sudden change. Crying before me, she looked up into my face with a supplication for forgiveness. I returned it with a stony stare, in which I threw all the contempt I could express. She cowered beneath it, and, turning my back upon her, I stalked out of the house, mounted my horse and rode away with my comrades.

We advanced on Paris, were driven back in the battle of the Marne, and six months after the episode I have related I one day found myself fighting again in Belgium. Upon a temporary cessation of the fight I looked about me, and the region seemed familiar to me. I was near a house that I recognized as the one in which I had been betrayed.

I had always regretted having, under the strain of narrowly escaping death, dealt so harshly with the girl who had betrayed me. I went to the house and called for her, intending to speak a kindly word to her, but when I asked for her I was told that she was dead.

I weened. She was beyond either my contempt or my forgiveness. "Did she die of an injury?" I asked. "No. A young uhlans came by here one day, and she detained him while she sent her brother to inform some Belgian cavalry of his presence. They came and captured him, but he was rescued by his own men. The girl never forgave herself for having betrayed him and pined away and died. It's likely that she fell in love with him without knowing it."

I turned away with a pang. It is not long since the end of the story, but somehow I feel that there will always be a sore spot in my heart, a lasting regret that I was unable to forgive her, possibly to save her from a premature death.

PATCHING IN PUBLIC.

Street Sewers in China Mend Torn Garments While You Wait.

In many towns of China one may have his garments mended on the street and "while he waits." Native sewing women are to be seen on low stools perhaps on the sidewalks mending articles of masculine attire.

The accomplishments of these street seamstresses are somewhat limited, their efforts with the needle being for the most part confined to "running." Other branches of needlework are practically unknown to them. As a consequence their efforts are better appreciated by native workmen than by foreign travelers.

They are never short of patrons among the former, for these are often natives of other districts and, having come to the city to engage in business, have no one to mend a rent for them. Their wives being left at home, they are glad to avail themselves of the services of the street needlewomen. For this class of customers the skill of the itinerant sewing women answers every purpose.

Generally speaking, these women are wives of boatmen and laborers who live in the houseboats which line the creeks of many Chinese cities and towns, and their needles are a great help toward the solution of the problem of maintenance in a crowded city or town.—Washington Star.

ELECTRIC LIGHTED MINES.

Where Modern Methods Have Driven Out the Safety Lamp.

In some of the more progressive and larger mines, the miner's lamp has become a thing of the past. In its stead the dark passages and work chambers are illuminated by electricity. The mines are wired and lighted with all the luxurious effectiveness of the modern home. Besides making their underground employment less oppressive to the miners, the illuminated mine offers considerable advantage in the way of better work and less exposure to danger.

With motor operated coal cars, a telephone system and instruments for the detection of gas danger, the up to date mine is decidedly a more pleasurable place to work in than of old. In order to make the lighting more thorough the walls of the permanent passages, of the offices, of the entries and, where mules are used, of the mule stables, are frequently whitewashed. Only tungsten filament lamps are used. Weather proof enameled reflectors are employed for the distribution of light.

The problem of lighting the mines, however, is difficult, presenting all the conditions which the illuminating engineer looks upon with disfavor—low black ceilings, black walls, dust, smoke and dampness.—Chicago News.

Baseball Slang Began.

Baseball fans are slangy in their baseball talk. Their slang is picturesque and finely descriptive, but for real unadulterated slang you must give the trapeze artists the palm. Listen to this from a well known gunner:

"Yes, sir, I toed the firing line, put the iron to my shoulder, drew a humdinger from the box and killed it. The second saucer was a lazy boy, dying straight away, but I went to sleep and the pigeon nested in the grass. The next mud pie sailed to left quarter, but the old pea shooter simply knocked the fuzz off. The fourth dicky bird was smothered as soon as it was hatched. Then a cripple flutered out and died. Next came a right wheeling streaker, and I pulverized it."

Fair Warning.

A farmer engaged Pat to mow a small field of hay, and on giving him a new scythe told him it was such a good one that he need only put the point of it in the hay and it would cut by itself. Pat set off to his work, and about midday, when the farmer came to see how Pat was getting on, he found him sitting in a corner of the field with one end of the scythe in the hay. This so enraged the farmer that he went for Pat, who, on seeing him, immediately shouted:

United States Laws.

An act when passed by both houses of congress and signed by the president becomes a law. If at any time thereafter questions of its constitutionality arise the matter is settled by the supreme court. The court has more than once declared acts of congress unconstitutional, as, for instance, the "civil rights" bill.—New York American.

"I understand you got several hundred wedding gifts." "We did. At first I thought I'd have to hire a safe deposit vault, but after going over the stuff we simply stored 'em in a barrel in the cellar."—Louisville Courier-Journal.

The Only Chance.

"Hurry, George, or we will be late to the picture show." "Oh, we don't want to get there before it starts." "Yes, we do, too—if we don't I can't see what the other women are wearing."—Exchange.

Pa's Definition.

Things That Are Just About to Happen

Italy is still "just about" to enter the war; Roumania, Greece and Bulgaria are just about to do the same; the Allies are just about to break through the Dardanelles; the Russians are just about to capture the Carpathian passes and pour into the plains of Hungary; the French and English are just about to set Belgium free and bind up its wounds; the Germans are just about to smash the earth and inaugurate a new universe; the British are just about to swear off from drinking; the peace congresses are just about to abolish war; the suffragists are just about to clean up the world; Billy Sunday and the other uplifters are just about to electrocute the devil and bury sin; the Mexican revolution is just about to stop; Mr. Roosevelt is just about to "come back"; "General Prosperity" is just about to put poverty to rout; human nature is just about to turn over a new leaf; the millennium is just about to dawn.

Meanwhile life is war and war is hell, and the things "just about to happen" are postponed until tomorrow on account of the weather. — Baltimore Evening Sun.

State's Suit Against B. & O.

The suit of the State against the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad, in which Judge Ambler Wednesday, in the Superior Court rendered decision adverse to the claims of the State, is to go now to the Court of Appeals for final consideration. This case is of great importance for two reasons.

The amount involved in the suit, $2,000,000, is a sum of such magnitude that the establishment of the State's contention would be a matter of very considerable importance to State finances. And by the same token, the payment of a lump sum of $2,000,000 in back tax claims, would make a dent in the current year net balance of the railroad company. The final determination of the suit is also important because it will settle finally whether the railroad by availing itself of certain legislation passed after 1891, automatically deprived itself of the immunity from taxation which was conferred upon it by charter in 1826.

Under the original charter granted the railroad company by the State in 1826 a capitation tax of one-fifth of the gross receipts on passenger traffic between Baltimore and Washington was made payable to the State. This arrangement was changed by statutory enactment in 1878, and was changed again in 1896 and changed for the third time in 1906. The amount for which the State is suing involves back taxes for the years extending from 1896 to 1906. — Baltimore Star.

Bound To Have An Argument

Republican party organs are bound to have their protective tariff argument ready for the next election, no matter what conditions may be throughout the country in respect to business next year. They hope, of course, that times will be very bad, in order to give effect to their contentions that a return to the protective tariff will mean a return of prosperity, but even if times should be of the best—as is now promised—they will not be dismayed. They will be ready, even though the country hum with industry and revel in the wealth that comes from prosperity.

Replying to a Democratic contemporary's reference to a large increase in building activity during April, as attested by official figures in Philadelphia and other cities, one Republican tariff organ said: "There has been such increase. Also, in the meantime, there have been some significant Republican majorities which have given the people confidence in the future. The more Republican majorities the more prosperity."

So here we have the scheme of the Republican party organs. If good times prevail next year, it will be because of the confidence imparted by Republican majorities in a few cities at this year's election, and the assurance of Republican victory at the Presidential election, to be followed by a return of the protective tariff. If bad times prevail, they will be attributed to the present Democratic tariff. These organs, however, are basing more largely on good times than on bad times, and are fortifying themselves accordingly.

So, come what may, they are ready for the fray. Like the old negro hunter who knew his business, they have "set the trap to catch the coon, a coon or a goat." — Wilmington Evening.

The County Commissioners of Harford county have fixed the tax rate of $1.15, which is the highest rate the taxpayers have ever been called on to pay. The new furniture exemption law has reduced the county's assessable basis $1,250,000, while new assessments of about $400,000 have been added to the basis. The assessable property is $14,331,304.

Hughes Not A Candidate

In view of recent references to the name of Associate Justice Hughes of the Supreme Court at Washington, as a candidate for the Presidency the following statement was made last Tuesday in his behalf and with his approval: "Justice Hughes wholly disapproves the use of his name in connection with the Presidential campaign. Not only has he no desire to re-enter politics, but as a member of the Supreme Court he is not available. He is not a candidate in any sense and cannot permit his name to be used."

Great Sale of White Beauty Hoosier Cabinets Ends Saturday

Nearly all are sold—End may be to-morrow

The great sale of "WHITE BEAUTY" Hoosier Cabinets will end Saturday, May 15th at the latest, perhaps to-morrow. If each of the 1000 towns where the Hoosier Company has permitted this sale does as well as we have here, there will be no trouble about the quick doubling of "White Beauty" Sales. There is every indication that the limited number allotted us for this sale will not last till Saturday night. We can obtain no more to sell at the present low price. Most likely you will see these cabinets in the homes of some of your nearest and dearest friends. Why wait until then and regret that you missed the opportunity that is offered to you as freely as to them?

To-morrow Pay Only $1.00—Try the "White Beauty" in Your Own Kitchen

This chance of a lifetime to secure a real Hoosier Cabinet at a $2.50 reduction from the low cash price, on terms of only $1.00 down and $1.00 weekly, may never occur again. The Hoosier Club plan of payment has proved amazingly popular with the foremost women in this community. Some of them tell us it is the same way that they have bought fine editions of rare books. Yet it costs you nothing extra to enroll in the Hoosier Club if you come to-morrow. No interest. No fees of any kind.

Exclusive Features

See the wonderful Shaker flour sifter; the Hoosier accounting system; the cook-book holder; the food guide; the want list; the pencil holder; the money tray; the emergency shelf; and dozens of other labor-saving devices, 17 of which are entirely new.

Saturday, May 15th, May Be Too Late

Other women are making up their minds to-night to come to-morrow and select a Hoosier Cabinet while they can save $2.50. It won't take five minutes to decide when you see it.

LINER LUSITANIA TORPEDOED

1,250 Lives Lost—80 Of the 188 Americans Aboard Safe

The latest estimate of lives lost as a result of the torpedoing of the Cunard liner Lusitania by a German submarine off the Irish coast last Friday is 1,256. It is believed that almost all, if not all, the survivors have been brought ashore, and there is little hope of recovering any other passengers alive.

There were 188 Americans on board the Cunard liner. So far as could be ascertained, 88 Americans were saved. Latest estimates indicate that at least 1000 bodies are still in the sea and hundreds probably will never be recovered.

Mr. William E. Cluff, senior member of the firm of W. E. Cluff & Company, died at his home in Snow Hill on Sunday, the 2nd instant. He leaves a widow, formerly Miss Della Burbage. Mr. Cluff was a member of the City Council and one of the leading business men of Snow Hill. He was born in Somerset county, but went to Snow Hill about 22 years ago. He was about 45 years old.

CURED BY A LAUGH

It Was a Hearty One and Better Than a Dose of Medicine.

A STORY ABOUT A LECTURE.

It Ought to Have Been Funny and Seemed at the Time to Be Funny and Yet Afterward There Was Grave Doubt as to Whether It Was or Not.

"What's your book?" Squire Dumont asked of a neighbor as they sat waiting their turn in the village barber shop.

"Innocents Abroad," by Mark Twain," was the reply. "I just got it out of the library. I suppose you would call it pretty light reading."

"You needn't be a bit ashamed of it. Mr. Pinkham," said the squire, heartily. "It's a book that has done a lot of good. It has made thousands of people laugh, and a good laugh is often better than a dose of medicine."

"I've seen that proved," said Mr. Pinkham. "I went to hear Mark Twain lecture once," he added, with a reminiscent chuckle.

"You don't say so?" exclaimed the squire. "I never had that pleasure myself. It must have been a great treat."

"Yes, it was. I'm a great admirer of Mark Twain and have been for years. I had always wanted to see and hear him, and when I saw in a Portland paper that he was to lecture there on a certain evening it came over me that that was my time to go and hear him."

"I took the afternoon train, calculating to get to my cousin Jim's in time for supper and then go to the lecture. But, as luck would have it, a freight train had been wrecked near Brunswick, and we never got into Portland until 8 o'clock. However, I hurried to the hall and paid my way in and got a good seat right up in front. I had missed some of the lecture, but I was thankful to get what was left. It wasn't so much what he said, though, as the way he said it that tickled me. I laughed more that night than I had for a year."

"Well, after the lecture was over I made my way to my cousin Jim's. He has means, and they live in some style, but I got a cordial welcome. Clara, his wife, told me that I couldn't see Jim that night. He was poorly, and she was a good deal worried about him. But while we were talking he found out I was there and sent for me to come to his room. I never saw any one more in the dumps than he was. I guess he complained steadily for as much as half an hour. He was a very sick man. He didn't relish his victuals, and what he did eat distressed him. Night after night he got hardly a wink of sleep, and nothing interested him any more. Moreover, what the doctor gave him didn't do a mile of good. It was pitiful to hear him go on. Finally he asked me how I happened to be in Portland."

"So you came up to hear Mark Twain?" says he, and his face brightened up. "Did you like him?" says he, and I said, "Of course I did."

"Well," says I, "it was funny, of course, and I guess when I have had a chance to think it over it will seem funnier. But there were parts of it that didn't seem so dreadful funny."

"Then all at once Jim fell back in his chair and began to choke, and for a minute I was scared. As soon as he could speak he says: 'That wasn't Mark Twain that you heard. He lectured here last week. What you heard, says he, was a lecture on the poetry of Robert Browning by Professor—' I forget now what Jim called his name. Then he took to laughing again, and I thought he'd never stop."

"After that Jim wanted to know how the people near me took my laughing so much at the lecture, and when I remembered that some of 'em did scowl a little he went off again."

"Well, naturally I felt a little cheap, but afterward I wasn't sorry. The next morning Jim said he had had his first good night's rest for a month, and he really made out quite a breakfast. About a fortnight after that I got a letter from him saying that he was feeling quite like himself again."

"I don't know as my visit had a thing to do with it, but I've always felt as if it did. In that case it goes to prove what you said, squire, that a good laugh is sometimes better than a dose of medicine."—Youth's Companion.

FIRING A TORPEDO.

How a Submarine Flings Forth the Deadly Projectile.

When a submarine sights a hostile vessel a group of sailors quickly cluster round the torpedo tube. This is loaded with its instrument of destruction, and behind it a powder charge is inserted in a receptacle and the trigger controlling the firing mechanism cocked ready.

A gunner proceeds to estimate the speed of the target and its course through glasses. He then adjusts a device known as the "director," which by means of dials tells him when the tube is pointing in the right direction to launch the torpedo true to its mark.

At a distance of about 3,000 yards the gunner presses a button, the powder charge explodes and a pressure of fifty pounds per square inch is put upon the rear end of the torpedo.

The well greased projectile is forced through the open end of the tube at a rate of thirty-five feet per second, and as it takes the water in a long fast dive the twin propellers in the rear set to work. They are driven by an air pressure of 2,250 pounds, which sets the driving machinery in motion as the torpedo leaps from its tube.

A gyroscope steering gear prevents the torpedo from deviating from a straight path, and unless it is carelessly fired or its target quickly maneuvers out of the way the projectile seldom misses its mark.—London Answers.

STUCK IN THE MUD.

That Was the Normal Condition in Chicago Village in 1833.

An elaborate series of descriptions of middle western road conditions is contained in Charles Cleaver's "History of Chicago From 1832 to 1892, Illustrating the Difficulties of the Route From New York to Chicago." In the village of Chicago in 1833, Cleaver tells us:

"Farties informed us that in the spring we would find it almost impossible to get around for the mud, a truth forcibly illustrated when a few months later I got into a wagon to go about one and a half miles northwest. It was with the greatest difficulty that two good horses could pull the empty wagon through the two feet of mud and water across the prairie."

A year or two later I saw many teams stuck fast in the streets of the village.

"I remember once a stagecoach got mired in Clark street opposite the Sherman House, where it remained several days, with a board driven into the mud bearing this inscription: 'No bottom here.' I once saw a lady stuck in the mud in the middle of Randolph street. She was evidently in need of help, as every time she moved she sank deeper and deeper. An old gentleman from the country offered to help her, which had such an effect upon her modesty that with one desperate effort she drew her feet out minus her shoes."

Why You Sneeze.
There is more than one cause for sneezing, and persons may differ in their susceptibility to them. A bright light will cause some persons to sneeze, the pollen of certain plants will affect others, and most people are likely to sneeze in the presence of dust. Such sneezing is due to superficial irritation.

The sneeze caused by the effect of cold is different. It is an attempt of nature to cure you. She makes you sneeze for the same reason that she makes you shiver—to generate heat for warming the blood and preventing you from taking more cold—to help relieve the cold you have.

The sneezing from cold is not an act of the nose alone, this being merely the part of the body where it explodes. It is an act of the entire body during which every muscle gives a jump. The body is affected by a spasmodic effort to warm the entire system and throw off the cold.—Boston Herald.

Destiny.
Destiny is either the excuse men give for their errors or a humble supplement to their successes. Destiny reconciles a man to his lot, the abuse of the proletariat, ingratitude and relatives, especially if they are his own.

A man who is making progress is thought—by himself—to control his own destiny. When he isn't making progress his destiny controls him.

Destiny is always at work. When it is not doing its undoing, it has a star for a trademark which is recognized in every country in the world. It has made a great many men double.

Not everybody has a destiny. Some are comparatively happy.—Life.

A Natural Defense.
"Do you find much change in the old town?" asked an interested friend of Colonel Ballenquich, the central provoker.

"Well, no," replied the colonel thoughtfully. "But then I scarcely expected any. You see, I got most of the local supply before I went away."—Richmond Times-Dispatch.

GOOD NATURED ELEPHANTS.

Peculiarities of Some of the Herds of West Africa.

In 1905 I found myself near the Inza river, an important affluent of the Kwilu, flowing through a fertile region which is infested by herds of elephants, a source of constant anxiety and frequent losses to the inhabitants.

In a country like this, where he is not hunted by man in the ordinary way and the only means for his destruction are cruel but easily avoided pitfalls, the elephant is decidedly good natured. We were told by the mission boys at Pana that in the rainless season, when their usual haunts are dried up, the elephants frequently wander near the river and attack the plantations. The natives try to drive them away with sticks!

"But it is no good hitting them or throwing stones at them," I was told. "They generally refuse to take any notice. Sometimes a mother with a calf will turn on us and chase us for a hundred yards or so, but no real harm is meant and the animal is not really angry, for all the signs of fury—spread ears and raised trunk—are absent. All the same, we do run away, although we know there is no danger. One day a boy fell when thus pursued, but the elephant only threw sand on him."

As I have myself seen a man just pushed out of the way by one of these good natured monsters, when the animal had more than enough provocation to kill him, I was inclined to accept this account as true.—Wide World Magazine.

Bull Baiting.
Although bull baiting was a cruel pastime, it was also a fulfilling of the law, for formerly no butcher was allowed to offer for sale the flesh of any bull that had not been baited. The goading of the animal in a fury was supposed to have some influence on the flesh. In a similar belief the flesh of a hunted hare was thought to be superior in flavor to that of one that had been shot, and a present of "a hunted hare" was considered to be a special compliment. In the records of the corporation of Leicester, England, the following order appears: "At a common hall, held on Thursday before St. Simon and St. Jude, 1467, 'no butcher to kill a bull till baited.' " At Winchester it was ordered (reign of Henry VIII.) "that from henceforth there shall be no bull stake set before any mayor's door to bait any bull, but only at the bull-rings within the city walls."

Her Only Course.
Lady Anne Lindsay, the author of the old poem "Auld Robin Gray," was not only a delightful conversationalist, but she was a great story teller.

This gift made her not only a welcome guest abroad, but a valuable member of the home circle, for it is related in "A Group of Scottish Women," that at a dinner party which was giving to some friends an old maid-servant caused some amusement by saying in a perfectly audible undertone:

"My lady, you must tell another story. The second course won't be ready for five minutes."

DON'T EXPERIMENT

You Will Make No Mistake If You Follow This Princess Anne Citizen's Advice.

Never neglect your kidneys. If you have pain in the back, urinary disorders, dizziness and nervousness, it's time to act and no time to experiment. These are frequently symptoms of kidney trouble, and a remedy which is recommended for the kidneys should be taken at once.

Doan's Kidney Pills is a good remedy to use. No need to experiment. It has acted effectively in many cases in Princess Anne. Follow the advice of a Princess Anne citizen:

Mrs. Oscar Long, Princess Anne, says: "It is true that Doan's Kidney Pills have been used very successfully in my home and I hold them in high esteem. I seldom let a day go by without taking someone of the merit of Doan's Kidney Pills, and I don't know of another medicine so certain to do good as Doan's Kidney Pills. It gives me pleasure to publicly endorse them."

Price 50c at all dealers. Don't simply ask for kidney remedy—get Doan's Kidney Pills—the same that Mrs. Long recommends. Foster-Milburn Co., Props., Buffalo, N. Y. (Advertisement)

Besides her husband she is survived by the following children: Messrs. Harry, Lloyd and Paul Brown; Mrs. Sidney Causey, Mrs. Ardie Long and Miss Nellie Brown.

Farm Homes Of The Chesapeake
Architect William H. Brinklee, of Easton, Md., has an interesting article in the Craftsman on "Old Farm Homes of the Chesapeake."

"The Eastern Shore folks call it that flat, fertile, stretch of land spread a hundred odd miles along the eastern side of the Chesapeake from Havre de Grace, on the Susquehanna, to Tangier Island, off the Pocomoke. Oysters and crabs for the catching, razorbacks, canvasbacks, diamond-backs, corn, and red ripe tomatoes by the 'bugeye' load! But better than these grosser joys is the wondrous beauty of the fronts, where the little salt fords and creeks wander up into the pastures and woodlands. No malarious marshes or dreary sand-dunes but fields and old forest trees sweeping down to the very touch of the tides."

"Back in the seventeenth century Lord Baltimore brought out his Catholic Englishmen to settle these shores, but a stream of Quakers and Church of England folk soon overflew the first immigrants. The land was fat and good, the Indians friendly, the climate mild."

He then tells the message of colonial country architecture:

"Colonial farm life on the Eastern Shore of Maryland was far softer, smoother than in the northern colonies with ironworks, witches, and bitter winters to make life hard and dull!"

"And so, scattered all along the eastern waters of the Chesapeake, we find the little farm homes of these early Marylanders; homes that reflect the simple, pleasant life of the builders. Wonderfully interesting and suggestive are these low-set farm cottages, and they have a very definite message to us if we will heed it; for they are simple, straightforward, and free from all affectation, depending for their effect solely on proportion, symmetry and balance."

"So far we have been dealing with seventeenth century cottages, but along in the eighteenth a new type was developed—the gambrel roof. A purely American development this; it seems to have been worked out simultaneously by the Puritans of New England, the Dutchmen of New York and New Jersey, the Swedes of Delaware, and Lord Baltimore's English colonist of Maryland. A half-dozen more or less fanciful reasons have been given for its birth, but the real reason seems just this: The colonists needed bigger, better, and cooler bedrooms to their story-and-a-half homes, and the gambrel roof was the only practical solution."

"A gambrel roof is a most pleasing thing when skillfully designed, but if an amateur meddles with it the result is quite apt to be horrible beyond words!"

Editorial Announcement

From the Every Evening, May 1st.
Beginning today, Mr. Frederick K. Reybold, until this time connected with the Philadelphia North American, will become associated with Every Evening as managing editor. Mr. Reybold is a native Delawarean, born in Delaware City, and has had ample experience in newspaper work. He was with the Philadelphia Record for nine years, and then went to the North American.

The arrangement with Mr. Reybold was entered into by Samuel Bancroft, Jr., late president of Every Evening Printing Co., about a month before the illness, which ended fatally, compelled him to go to a hospital for treatment. Mr. Reybold was permitted to become financially interested as a stockholder in the Every Evening Printing Co., and Mr. William F. Metten, who has been associated with the newspaper for the past twenty years, and for the past five years as business manager and treasurer, was also taken into the company in like manner.

These changes, however, will not in any manner affect the policy of Every Evening. Mr. Merris Taylor will continue as editor, and Mr. A. O. H. Grier as city editor. Mr. Joseph Bancroft, who has been vice-president of the company for six years, will represent the estate of Mr. Samuel Bancroft, Jr., in the company.

Prospect For Good Peach Crop

Reports from all sections of the peninsula are to the effect that the peach crop is safe and there is also a good prospect for the other crops. Factories which manufacture baskets and carriers for fruits are already busy and this is a pretty good indication that the outlook for a crop is good. Delaware and the Eastern Shore of Maryland are rapidly regaining their prestige as peach growing sections. Much of this is due to the excellent work of the agricultural experiment stations of Delaware and Maryland, and to the work of certain nurseries that have shown the growers that it is still possible to grow good peaches here.

Remarkable Record.

CONTRACT AWARDED FOR NEW CHURCH

Congregation of Antioch M.E. Church Will Build A $25,000 Edifice

At a meeting of the trustees of Antioch Methodist Episcopal Church last Wednesday night, they awarded the contract for the construction of their new church to Messrs. W. P. Pusey, of Snow Hill, and L. L. Pusey, of Princess Anne. It is estimated that the church will cost $25,000 when completed.

The building will be constructed of Beaver Dam marble. The auditorium will have a seating capacity of 300 and the Sunday School room, opening into the auditorium, will have an additional seating capacity of 200. Arranged around the Sunday School room will be seven smaller rooms. The social room, with a seating capacity of 200, is located over the Sunday School room.

Demonstrations On Spraying Trees

County Agent H. S. Lippincott held five demonstrations on farms in this county to co-operate with farmers in spraying apple trees for codling moth and blights, and peach trees for brown rot and curculio. Any farmer not knowing about these diseases and pests should get in touch with the county agent, for many dollars worth of fruit are ruined each year by not spraying.

Saturday, the 8th instant, Professor Temple, of College Park, was with Mr. Lippincott in this demonstration spraying. Prof. Temple is State Pathologist. The first demonstration was held that morning on Mr. John Page's most attractive farm on the Manokin river, at Oriole. Mr. Page, through his hard work, was able to have a very large attendance present.

Another demonstration was held at Dr. Chas. T. Fisher's farm at 2 o'clock the same afternoon.

$45,000 Estate In Court

Last Tuesday it was agreed by attorneys for both parties that the issues raised by the caveat filed to the will of the S. Quinton Parker should be heard by the Orphans' Court of Somerset County on June 8th.

Mr. Parker died about two months ago, leaving an estate valued at about $45,000. By his will he devised all of his property to his four nieces and nephews, making one of his nephews, Daniel B. Cannon, county treasurer of Wicomico county, and Curtis W. Long, of Salisbury, as executors.

The caveat alleges both testamentary incapacity and undue influence, the purpose of the caveators being to oust Mr. Long as executor. After the filing of the caveat and answer thereto, Mr. Long filed a petition asking for the appointment of an administrator.

High School Commencement

Guernsey Breeders' Association

On Saturday, the 22d instant, there will be organized an Eastern Shore Guernsey Breeders' Association at Easton, Talbot county.

The Guernsey Club of America will be adequately represented with illustrated lecture of the Guernsey industry. ## Senator Lee's Good Works

Mr. W. H. Deen, of Fowling Creek, Caroline county, Maryland, requests us to publish the following communication on Senator Lee's popularity:

Caroline county democrats who gave Lee such a heavy majority in the primary election four years ago, when he missed the nomination for Governor by just one vote in the State Convention, are still for him and strongly urge his nomination. Lee's popularity rests upon the very substantial foundation of real service performed for the material welfare and honor of Maryland and all Marylanders. Here is a list of some of his good works as pointed out in the Denton Journal. Can any one be surprised at the substantial character of the demand for Lee to lead after such valuable service? Can there be any one who will be uncertain as to the result of the election in November with Lee leading the fight? Note these measures:

"He handled or closely co-operated in all the initial legislation of the Crothers administration, which distinguished our State in recent years, particularly the State highway measure, which has resulted in a splendid means of development throughout the State; the public utilities law, which at once took the volume of corporate legislative bills out of the way and from under the ban and influence of a mercenary lobby, and has about killed the business of lobbying at the State capital; framed the direct primary law, which, while objected to at first in a few counties, is now accepted generally as the one measure which for the first time surely gives each voter the right to have a voice in the choosing of candidates of his party for public positions; the corrupt practices act, which killed vote buying in Maryland, both in the primaries and general election; first introduced an order in 1906, which was subsequently adopted, to have bills in the legislature printed, a measure sure to prevent the sharp practice, by some resorted to years ago, whereby things were written into the laws that the people could learn nothing about until too late; first of the advocates of the law requiring that appropriation measures should be brought out before the legislative body to be considered thirty days before adjournment, to prevent extravagances of the last days' rush, which law, unfortunately, has been disregarded; was the constant advocate of the measure to limit the number of legislative employees, where extravagances in expenditures have been so rampant; one of the first advocates of the publicity of caucus vote, to enable the people to know the action of their representative, and properly place responsibility; resuscitated and secured the passage of the eight hour telegraphers' law, when it had been about killed, so that there can now be no overworked and sleepy telegraphers at the keys when passenger train orders are being sent and received, and many other such measures, enacted because of the far-seeing, earnest man of Montgomery."

And where could be found a more ardent democrat?

Princess Anne Defeats Fruitland

In the first game of the season for the Princess Anne home team Fruitland was defeated at Fruitland by the score of 1 to 0. This was one of the best games ever played by the local boys. The features of the game were the pitching of the two Huffington's for Princess Anne and of Long for Fruitland, also the all around fielding work of Princess Anne. Batteries, Princess Anne, N. and H. Huffington and Polk; Fruitland, C. Long and Busells.

OYSTERMEN AGAIN WIN SUITS

Twenty-five Separate Leases Upset By The Circuit Court

Judge H. L. D. Stanford, sitting in the Circuit Court last Wednesday decided that 900 acres of oyster bottoms in the waters of Somerset county, heretofore classified as barren bottoms, were natural beds. Twenty-five separate leases were disposed of, the petitioners, representing the oystermen, succeeding in every case with one exception.

The finding of the court reclassifies as natural beds much area in this county, which, under surveys made by the Shellfish Commission, was designated as barren bottoms.

The cases tried involved two classes of protests—the one to set aside leases already issued, and the other to reject applications for leases pending with the Board of Shellfish Commissioners. When the cases were called the attorneys stated that no defense would be made and asked that the petitioners should be required to offer proof showing that the area in dispute was a natural bed. The petitioners then offered the evidence of several oystermen in each case.

The witnesses testified that they had resorted to the oyster grounds in dispute either continuously or at intervals for five years prior to the application for the lease in each case, and had caught during this period from 5 to 25 bushels of oysters daily. Swenson Earle, chief engineer of the Board of Shellfish Commissioners, was called as a witness to locate the lots in each case.

The areas involved include the Gibson holdings, containing 400 acres in Tangier Sound, the Tull & Company and Crockett lots, in the Annemessex river, and the Richardson leases, in the Pocomoke Sound. The court previously had set aside the leases held by Virginia Harwood and others covering the 1,700 acres on Harris Rock and the lots claimed by George A. Cox and his family on Carmel Bar in the Manokin river.

The vacating of the leases on all these areas is hailed in Somerset county as a complete victory for the oystermen and a vindication of the hard fight which they have waged to regain possession of the beds taken from their control.

The oystermen were represented by Henry J. Waters, C. John Beuwkes, attorney for the Board of Shellfish Commissioners, appeared for the commission and Clarence P. Lankford and H. Fillmore Lankford represented the lessees.

Would-Be Governors In Baltimore

Three of the four Democrats whose names figure in gubernatorial gossip were in Baltimore last Thursday, and singularly enough all of them were at the Hotel Remont at the same time. They did not come together by appointment. Their appearance under one roof was a coincidence.

Senator Lee arrived Wednesday night and Comptroller Harrington and Johnnie Beasman came Thursday morning. Beasman is not an avowed candidate as yet. Whether he will be depends upon circumstances. If he sees an opening he will be right there. Lee and Harrington, who are out in the open, stated they were very well satisfied with the condition of their respective fences. Senator Lee was particularly pleased. He said he went there to attend the Charities Convention, to which he is a delegate.

Congressman Linticum did not appear on the scene, but he issued a statement in which he announced his purpose to open headquarters in the city, and that he has now under advisement the formation of a Young Men's Linticum League. He said he was in this fight to stick to the finish.

Deputy Sheriff Tankersley Robbed.

Last Friday Deputy Sheriff William Tankersley, of Deal's Island, went to Baltimore on business and went to the Gayety Rathskeller, where he met two young men, who made themselves very agreeable. Inquiring as to the location of an acquaintance who lives in the northwestern section of the city, the two young men told Tankersley that the friend he had inquired for was also a friend of theirs and offered to pilot him to the house.

The three took an Ellicott City car and reached the neighborhood of Bonnie Brae cemetery shortly after 8 o'clock. As they passed through the stretch of woodland, Tankersley was struck over the head with a black-jack and became unconscious. When he regained consciousness his money and watch and chain were gone. The Deputy Sheriff made his way to the Northwestern Police Station, where he reported the assault and robbery. One of the men was subsequently arrested.

Mr. Tankersley is now nursing a very sore head and is also minus $15 in cash and a gold watch and chain valued at $25.00.

CITY ORGANIZATION SWINGING TO LEE

Indications Are That Junior Senator Has Strong Support In Baltimore

All the signs point to United States Senator Blair Lee as the choice of men regarded as very influential in city politics for the Democratic nomination for Governor of Maryland. The swing of the city politicians to Senator Lee began two months ago. Now it seems practically sure that the majority of them are safely anchored in the Lee camp. Few can see it any other way.

Absolute confidence on the part of the Lee people in the counties on the position that the city would take has been a conspicuous feature of the campaign for the junior Senator. This confidence seems to be justified.

State Senator William Milnes Maloy seems to be the city's choice for Attorney General.

The shift to Lee marks an epoch in State politics. It means a break with United States Senator Smith, regarded for several years now as the State leader. Smith is supporting State Comptroller Harrington for the Gubernatorial nomination.

In the counties of Maryland support of Lee will, no doubt, be accepted as proof of a Preston-Lee combination. Both men are much younger than Senator Smith; both, in the natural order of things, have many years left to devote to political activity. This will prove a factor in influencing the result.

Coupled with this is the prestige that comes from support by the Mayor. His administration of city affairs and the endorsement of it given by the city voters puts him well to the front. Many believe he is the strongest individual factor in politics in Maryland. He bolsters up the cause of Senator Lee where it is weakest. He helps materially in bringing to the Senator the confidence of the business element not only in Baltimore city but in some of the counties of Maryland.

Few believe that Senator Lee, supported by the Mayor and the city, can be beaten.

However, trouble is predicted in Baltimore, and a fight may follow. Congressman Linticum has taken the position that he, as a city man, is entitled to the city's support. He shows no disposition to quit the race. No doubt the Congressman's candidacy has proved embarrassing. Those who are swinging to Senator Lee say that the city's vote can nominate no one; that the Congressman has not developed strength in the counties; and that the city choice is limited to State Comptroller Harrington and Senator Lee. Mr. Harrington, they say, is difficult to nominate, and, if nominated with the bruising fight that is necessary, he would be very hard to elect. They prefer the easy thing. They are going to Senator Lee.

No doubt the Eastern Shore situation enters into the city's stand to some extent. In Baltimore what is termed Eastern Shore dictation is resented. The reference is generally to the lower Eastern Shore counties. Mayor Preston is trying to look after the interests of Baltimore city. He believes it has been harshly treated and that the Smith people are largely responsible for the situation. Probably he, more than any other, wants to see a change in political conditions.

It is the impression that former State Senator Gorman, of Howard, the chairman of the Tax Commission, will either go with Mayor Preston or let the political situation take care of itself. In the latter event Howard would, it is said, go with Lee because sentiment seems strongest for him; but active support from Gorman would, of course, help out in other counties.

Mr. Matthews' New Strawberry

The new strawberry which Mr. Frank E. Matthews, County Commissioner for Somerset county, propagated a few years ago, has attracted much attention this season and has so won public favor as to be reckoned as the best early berry that has ever been seen in this section. Mr. Matthews has quite a nice patch of them on his farm on the Pocomoke river this year, and during the past week many farmers, as well as others interested in strawberry culture, have visited his farm to witness the results obtained. The fact is that the results obtained from this berry have to be seen to be appreciated. It is the earliest of the early berries and very prolific. It is beautiful in color, handsome in size and delicious in taste. Mr. Matthews has had samples of the berries growing in pots in the window of the Peninsula Produce Exchange, on Main street, the past week, which have been admired by the truckers of this section.

Anneke Van Winkle's Wit

A Story of an Old Dutch Town.

By F. A. MITCHEL

The city of Schenectady, N. Y., until the latter part of the nineteenth century was a sleepy Dutch village.

In the early days, when the Indians used to come into Schenectady to dispose of their pelts in exchange for various articles, the principal of which was firewater, there lived in the town a young man named Heleger Van Tromp. He was in love with Anneke Van Winkle, a fine specimen of a Dutch girl, who, when wearing all the petticoats she possessed, looked very much like a humming top.

Some twenty miles from Schenectady the remains of a historical mansion that was occupied by Sir William Johnson, prominent in colonial times, still stand. A fur trader named Martin Smith lived in that region and made frequent trips to Schenectady in the way of business. On one of his trips he caught sight of Anneke Van Winkle and fell violently in love with her. A neighbor of Heleger's told him that he had better look out for his sweetheart, for the Englishman was then at her house begging her to go back with him to the Long house, as the residence of Sir William Johnson was called.

This is the only recorded case of Heleger showing any animation. He got up from his chair, dropping his pipe, which was shattered, and triangled to Anneke's house. Smith saw him coming, his eyes afixe, and with discretion withdrew. Heleger chased him out of the town, and when the former returned his shirt was bloody.

It was supposed that the Dutchman had given the Englishman nothing more than a good trouncing until a man came in from Johnson's to learn what had become of Smith, for he had come to Schenectady for a day only, and though a week had passed he had not returned. The fact that when Heleger had come back from chasing his would be rival blood was on his clothing was proof to the Dutchmen that he had killed Smith. A search was made for the body, but it was not found. But this had little weight, for it was supposed that the murderer had buried it.

Heleger was tried and convicted. The fact that Smith had disappeared after having been chased, that blood was on the shirt of the man who had chased him, was quite enough for those who tried Van Tromp without wasting words over any possible explanation. The Dutchman of that period was not imaginative or ingenious. What was before his eyes he saw; of what might be behind his back he took no note. That Heleger had killed the man who sought to take his sweetheart from him they did not doubt. Some were inclined to leniency on account of the provocation, but these were overruled by the wise heads who declared that murder was murder and that was all there was about it. So Heleger was condemned to be hanged one month from the day on which he was convicted.

Anneke received the verdict stolidly. At least she appeared to do so, though her face was so fat that it is not probable any change of expression could appear in her lineaments. Nevertheless she loved Heleger, and her love for him had been much enhanced on seeing him chase away the man who had thrust his attention upon her. She went to her home, sat down in the living room and, taking up her knitting, began to think, for Anneke could never think unless her fingers were working the needles.

It would be a mistake to suppose that because Anneke's face was as there was anything wrong with the clock. They would have attributed the fact that so many of them had lain awake an hour in the morning to coincidence.

The next morning when the people awoke they discovered that the clock instead of registering 6 or 5, as it had done the morning before, registered 4. This circumstance created a greater disturbance in the village than anything that had ever occurred there since the great Indian massacre. It was evident that the clock had lost considerable time, for two days before the sun had risen at 6, and now when the clock struck that hour the sun was high in the heavens.

Had the clock been a few minutes too slow or too fast, even had the burghers known it, they would not have wondered. As it was they did not know what to make of it. So great was their faith in their timepiece that instead of thinking it wrong they laid the blame on the sun, though many of them preferred to believe that the devil had got into the belfry and had interfered with the mechanism. A committee of three was appointed to sit up and watch the hands to see when the change took place. The dial was lighted by a full moon, and they could see it distinctly. By 10 o'clock they had drunk so much schnapps that they saw a marvelous sight. The hands spun round like the spokes of a rapidly revolving wagon wheel, first forward and then backward, stopping at 9. This settled the matter. The devil was at work in the belfry.

When twelve days had passed the burghers began to notice that each morning the clock was getting nearer their rising hour, though now it seemed to be gaining instead of losing, and before four weeks had passed it had come right again. Then they concluded that the devil had tired of fooling with it and had let it alone, for it went on steadily for twenty-four days after it had commenced its antics.

Meanwhile the date of Heleger Van Tromp's execution approached. The morning of the execution Anneke Van Winkle went to the judge of the court and said:

"Your worship, I have a confession to make."

"What is it, Anneke?" asked the judge.

"It is in connection with the hanging of Heleger Van Tromp. What day was he sentenced to be hanged?"

"Friday; that is today."

"This is not Friday, your worship; it is Saturday."

"What is the matter with you, Anneke? Has the loss of your lover made you mad?"

"No, your worship, I say it is Saturday, because we have lost a day. Every night for twenty-four days I have climbed to the belfry of the church and turned the hands of the clock back an hour."

"Did you do that, Anneke?"

"Yes."

The judge began to puzzle his brain over the question as to whether a day had been lost or not by the setting back of the clock. But, not reaching any conclusion, he sent word to the sheriff not to execute the prisoner until further orders. Then he called in the most prominent citizens and stated the case to them, asking their opinion whether, Anneke having set back the hands of the clock twenty-four hours, the day on which Heleger Van Tromp was to be executed had passed.

The question struck those to whom it was propounded as the most difficult they had ever been called upon to solve. After an hour's babel, during which some maintained one side and some another and frequent shifting from one side to the other, it was decided that the matter was too important to be decided in a hurry, and they all adjourned to a place where they could procure schnapps and tobacco.

When the hour of noon came—the time the hanging had been ordered—the debate was still going on and had extended to every person in the village. Never had there been such excitement in the sleepy old town since the day of the great Indian fight in 1690. A man would be of one opinion, while his wife took the opposite view. They quarreled. Fathers and sons, mothers and daughters contended, and afore nightfall all the lovers in town were estranged.

The next morning, there being doubt whether the day was Saturday or Sunday, the trouble broke out afresh. Some called on the dominie to hold service; others declared that the church would not be opened. This caused a lot of the door of the sanctuary, those ying to get in being attacked by those ying to keep the church shut.

During the afternoon a man was seen crossing the Mohawk river in a boat. It was agreed that this person, no doubtless came from the Long use, be asked whether the day was Saturday or Sunday. When he came far enough for the people to distinguish his features he was seen to be Martin Smith, the "murdered" man. Every man and woman and child, being more interested in the date than in legal aspects involved in Smith's case, met him with the question, "What day is this?" He was so startled that he could not tell them till he had examined memoranda he had in his pocket; then he declared that it was Saturday.

The question of the hanging was settled not only by the return of the supposed victim, but from the fact that a day set for the execution had passed. The people were beside themselves with joy that they had not hung Heleger and took Anneke, whose wit had saved him, on their shoulders and carried her to the jail, where her lover as set free, and they insisted that a wedding service be performed immediately. So the dominie was called, and the air was married.

A LIVING TORPEDO.

That Odd Fish, the Electric Ray, is a Terror in His Own Way.

There is a queer fish, bearing the name torpedo, that in its own peculiar way is a good deal of a terror. This is the torpedo, or electric ray, a dweller in the southern seas, which grows to a large size, sometimes weighing seventy or eighty pounds. This peculiar fish has a nearly circular body, a short tail and a very small mouth.

The back is brownish in color, and the underneath parts are white. The torpedo obtains its name from its power of giving a violent shock, similar to an electric shock, to anything with which it comes in contact. Whenever an enemy approaches the fish emits from its body a kind of electricity, which incapacitates the attacker immediately.

In capturing its food the torpedo finds this power of use. Being very inactive, it cannot pursue the small fish which form its diet, so it lies in wait until they swim close by and then throws out its powerful shock, which instantly renders them helpless.

If a person touches this strange fish he is attacked by cramp, which affects the stomach, producing a kind of convulsion. For this reason the torpedo is sometimes known as the "cramp fish."—London Answers.

THE YELLOW FLAG.

A Ruse That Once Saved a British Ship From Capture.

An effective ruse de guerre in the way of flag flying was that practiced in the Mediterranean at the beginning of the last century by Lord Dundonald while cruising in the British ship Speedy. This little brig had captured so many of the enemy's merchantmen that a Spanish frigate was specially fitted out, disguised as a merchantman, to bring her to book.

Dundonald, in order to deceive the merchant craft of the enemy, adopted similar tactics and disguised the Speedy as a Danish merchant brig. The two disguised boats soon sighted each other. Dundonald at once gave chase and discovered his mistake when the Spaniard suddenly revealed her true nature and started lowering a boat to examine the Speedy's papers.

But Dundonald was equal to the occasion. He hoisted the yellow flag—signal of sickness. And when the Spanish boat was within hail an English officer in Danish uniform shouted that they were only two days out of Algiers. As the plague was raging in Algiers, the ruse was completely successful.—London Chronicle.

Oldest Chess Problem.

The oldest chess problem on record is thought to be that contained in an ancient Persian manuscript attributed to Caliph Kaifan Mutasin Billah, who reigned in Bagdad A. D. 833 to 842. But the reader would have to learn the old rules before it was intelligible. For example, the queen could make a move of only one square at a time and that on a diagonal, but a queen promoted from a pawn was allowed to make a move of two squares diagonally. The bishop had no power over any square except the third from which it stood on its own diagonal line, but it was allowed to vault over any piece that happened to be between. In short, it was a totally different game. Chess in the precise form in which we know it and play it today is a comparatively modern game.—London Strand Magazine.

Misnomers of Chemistry.

One of the strangest features of chemistry is the fact that many of the chemical names are misleading and do not describe the articles. Here are a few examples: Oil of vitriol is no oil, neither are oils of turpentine and kerosene. Copperas is an iron compound and contains no copper.

Salts of lemon is the exceedingly poisonous oxalic acid. Carbolic acid is not an acid, but an alcohol. Cobalt contains none of that metal, but arsenic. Soda water has no trace of soda, nor has sulphuric acid of sulphur. Sugar of lead has no sugar, cream of tartar has nothing of cream, nor milk of lime any milk. German silver has no silver and black lead no lead. Mosaic gold is only a sulphide of tin.—Philadelphia Inquirer.

"I suffered with stomach trouble for years and tried everything I heard of, but the only relief I got was temporary until last spring I saw Chamberlain's Tablets advertised and procured a bottle of them at our drug store. ## Talked the Bill to Death.

One of the most dramatic holdups in congress was made in 1901 by Senator Thomas H. Carter of Montana, who talked to death a $60,000,000 rivers and harbors bill chiefly because the house had refused to appropriate money to irrigate the dry lands of the west.

"I shall do what lies in my power to prevent this bill from passing," the senator shouted. "It will not pass if my strength does not fail to such an extent that I can no longer occupy this floor, and I am in a pretty fair state of health."

To the laughter of the senate and the galleries Carter then described the clam flats and the mud banks of unhardened places for which large appropriations had been made in the present bill. He discussed the draft and tonnage of the scows and the lobster pots. He lasted for more than thirteen hours. When he was through the congress was dead, the senator's own term was ended, and it was time to inaugurate Vice President Roosevelt.—New York Herald.

Boxing With the Feet.

The form of boxing known as "la savate," in which the feet are used as well as the fists and kicks are as legitimate as blows, has for a long time been a popular exercise in French gymnasia and schools of arms. The first principle is that the whole weight of the body shall be placed on one leg and that the farthest from the adversary. The disengaged leg is used as an adjunct to the fists and flies out with astonishing swiftness and accuracy of aim. The "coup de savate," proper is the "chasse" off the right foot or "shin hit," a dangerous blow, but one that is easily avoided by raising the left knee to the level of the waist. Formidable as this method of assault and others, such as the "coup d'arret," or straight stop hit, and the "coup de figure," or swinging face kick, may be and undoubtedly are with an expert, the parries and guards are simple and sure if properly used.—Washington Star.

Commas.

The French do not as a rule employ inverted commas to indicate a dialogue, but they employ the dash to indicate a change of speakers which is just as bad. Certainly many punctuation marks are sadly misused or overused. Dickens flung unnecessary commas all over his pages—whole battalions of them. Walter Pater also employed them with extraordinary prodigality, frequently before the word "and" where the conjunction rendered them superfluous. Pater was also overfond of the mark of exclamation, so that when he drops a "Yes" into his measured style it must needs appear as "Yes!" But, though the Bible does without inverted commas, there is real art in its punctuation. How admirably it marks the cadence and helps the drama in that great story of the prodigal son!—London Tit-Bits.

Wash All Fruit.

Incoming cargoes of fruits should be closely observed for traces of poisonous insecticides. Growers are not always careful to remove all traces of sprays before marketing their fruit. Housekeepers can protect themselves from danger from this source by washing all fruit in several waters before serving it. It would be advisable and insure greater safety to wash the fruit before placing it in the storeroom or ice chest. Sprays and powders of sufficient strength to kill insects which feed upon and destroy fruit trees and fruit would prove fatal to life if taken off by human beings.

INSIDE A VOLCANO

Looking Down Into Kilauea's
Lake of Boiling Lava.

LIKE A PIT OF LIQUID FIRE.

A Play of Flaming Colors So Dazzling
In the Darkness of the Vast Crater
That It Terrifies the Spectator—A Veritable Fountain of Fire.

According to all the rules of school geographies, a volcano ought to be situated on top of a mountain; it ought to throw out stones and ashes and molten lava; its crater should be in the shape of an inverted cone, and should emit terrifying noises; periodically it should overwhelm a village or two.
Kilauea, on the island of Hawaii, conforms to none of these specifications.
It has, thrown out neither stones nor ashes since it annihilated the army that was marching against Kamehameha,
almost a hundred and fifty years ago.
It retains its lava within its own crater, which is not shaped like an inverted cone. The sides are from 100 to 700 feet high and 7.85 miles in circumference, and the floor covers 2,650
acres. The volcano seldom makes terrifying noises—at least of the kind
heard in imagination by a schoolboy.
Thousands of people descend into the crater annually, and not one has ever been injured.

The walk across the floor of the crater, about two and one-half miles, is over a hard lava bed, more or less up and down, since lava hardens quickly
and remains as it flowed, in great ropes
and ripples. A few yards from shore
—one comes naturally to call the bank
"shore"—a ragged crack is crossed by a wooden bridge. At the time this crack opened, a large party was in the crater. They stayed long because they were delighted with the unusual activity of the lake and had no idea that this activity extended beyond the pit of fire until at last they started to go back to the hotel.

It was night, and as they approached the northern bank of the crater their lanterns suddenly revealed a huge fissure directly across their path. Already molten lava was bubbling up at the bottom. They followed the edge of the crack, keenly conscious, undoubtedly, as they turned to keep parallel with the crater wall, that they were on the inner edge. At last they found a spot where the lava had split unevenly, leaving a projecting ledge on which it was possible to stand, and so to jump to the other side. The whole experience, with the thought of sinking to the fires beneath or of being overwhelmed by the lava slowly rising in the fissure and the utter helplessness of their situation, was enough to test the most fearless.

Kilauea is really an enormous quietescent crater with an active inner pit.
This cavity is, perhaps, 1,000 feet
across, and its precipitous sides lead down to a lake of molten lava several acres in extent, sometimes higher, sometimes lower in the pit. This is Halemaumau, which is commonly translated (although incorrectly), "the house of everlasting fire." It is certainly the house of the goddess Pele.

By daylight the lake of fire is a greenish yellow, cut with ragged cracks of red that look like pale streaks
of stationary lightning across its surface. It is restless, breathing rapidly, bubbling up at one point and sinking down at another; throwing up sudden fountains of scarlet molten lava that play a few minutes and subside, leaving shimmering mounds that gradually settle to the level surface of the lake.
Turning brown and yellow as they sink, the lake grows so intense that they almost hurt the eyes. The fire is not only red;
it is blue and purple and orange and green. Blue flames shimmer and dart about the edges of the pit, back and forth across the surface of the restless mass. Sudden fountains paint blood red the great plume of sulphur smoke
that rises constantly.

Sometimes the spurts of lava are so violent, so exaggerated by the night,
that one draws back terrified lest some atom of their molten substance should spatter over the edge of the precipice.
Sometimes the whole lake is in motion.
Waves of fire toss and battle with each other and dash in clouds of bright ver-million spray against the black sides of the pit. Sometimes one of these sides falls in with a roar, that echoes back and forth, and mighty rocks are swallowed in the liquid mass of fire that closes over them in a whirlpool, like water over a sinking ship.

Again everything is quiet; a thick
scum forms over the surface of the lake, dead, like the scum on the surface of a lonely forest pool. Then it shivers. Flashes of fire dart from side to side. The center bursts open, and a huge fountain of lava twenty feet thick and fifty feet high streams into the air and plays for several minutes, waves of blinding fire flowing out from it, dashing against the sides until the black rocks are starred all over with bits of scarlet. All sensations are submerged in a sense of awe. This vision of the earth building forces at work is a picture so overpowering that it is burned into the memory for all time.—Hawaii, Past and Present.

BRYANT'S POETIC CAREER.

Two Facts About His Greatest Work,
"Thanatopsis."

Bryant was nearly twenty-three years old when "Thanatopsis" was first printed in the North American Review.
So much has been said about the astounding precocity of this poet and so many errors have accumulated around the publication of his masterpiece that it may be well to state the facts.

We know just two facts about this work. First, it was published when Bryant was almost twenty-three—not young for a poetic genius; second, that in its original published form in the North American Review it is not a remarkable poem.

It was in the 1821 edition of Bryant's poems, when the author was twenty-six or twenty-seven, that the work first appeared in its universally known form. Only a few minor changes were made after that date. This disposes of the generally accepted statement that "Thanatopsis" is a juvenile masterpiece.

Bryant was, however, a precocious poet, although his precocity is not displayed in his greatest work. One of the most extraordinary facts about his poetical career is that he actually published verse during the administration of Thomas Jefferson and during the administration of Rutherford B. Hayes.
So long a period and so slender an output speak well for his fastidious taste.

ARMS OF ANTWERP.

They Recall the Queer Custom That Gave the City Its Name.

Historians relate that Antwerp takes its name from a castle which in Frankish times marked the site of the city.
This castle was built to protect the entrance to the Scheldt and to prevent foreign traders introducing goods into the country without paying toll to the sovereign lord.

The penalty for theft and smuggling was in those days the cutting off of a hand, and as in this case the severed members were thrown into the Scheldt, the castle came to be known as Antwerpen—or, in Flemish, Antwerpen—
"the place of hand throwing." The castle and two severed hands appear on the city arms to this day.

Antwerp cathedral's tapering spire was once compared by Charles V. to mechlin lace. The towers of the old Steen castle, the fortress palace of the former counts of Antwerp, break the center of the line of docks and look as stolid and formidable as in the days when the castle was necessary to guard the shipping. Here were held those great fairs which during the middle ages served to attract merchants from all parts of the civilized world.—London Standard.

Trial by Jury.

The New York Law Journal says on the subject of trial by jury:

"While we do not think that trial by jury ought to be abolished or that there is any increasing sentiment in that direction, we do believe that the system should be modified by dispensing with the requirement for unanimous verdicts.
This would obviate the element of individual eccentricity as an impediment to the administration of justice. Mental idiosyncrasy on the part of judges is constantly exhibited and scarcely excites comment. An eminent and very able judge will dissent from the ruling of his associates when it is extremely difficult to understand how so gifted a mind could have gone off on that particular tangent. By permitting affirmances or reversals, notwithstanding dissent, the personal equation is eliminated."

Modeled After an Ancient Tomb.

The temple of the Scottish rite in Washington is a handsome white marble structure about 150 feet square and rises to a height of 150 feet above the street level. At either side of the main entrance is an immense marble sphinx.
A row of tall Ionic columns surrounds the second story. The architects followed closely the design of the ancient tomb of King Mausolus, which stood in Halicarnassus and was one of the seven wonders of the world. It was built by the wife of the king and was decorated with hundreds of wonderful statues. This old tomb became so famous that many buildings were modeled after it, but this is the only structure in America in which the design has been used.

In Biology.

dogwood tree?

John—By its bark.

And his answer was correct, even if it did cause a laugh.

Another bright answer captured in biology:

with ham?

John—The butcher.—Chicago Herald.

Two Models.

Mrs. Toggerblossom—Vain man! Did you never observe that designers take a woman's head to adorn many of their coins? Mr. Toggerblossom—No, but I have observed that designers take many of my coins to adorn a woman's head.—National Monthly.

Easy Money.

ery week to spend on the housekeeping and herself."

"And what do you do with the other half of your salary?"

"Oh, my wife borrows that."—Hous-

well as uncharitable who believes there is no virtue but on his own side.—Addi-

Hunted Down

By M. QUAD

Copyright, 1915, by the McClure Newspaper Syndicate.

I was putting in a month in a Swiss town, and as I was strolling along the highway in the suburbs one day a vehicle containing a single traveler appeared.

The driver pulled up that the traveler might ask if he could find accommodation at some chalet instead of the hotel, as he was not in good health and wanted quietness. I was lodging at a private house, and there was room for another guest. The stranger was driven on, and I sat down on a rock to sum him up. Having come from the west in a country vehicle, he must have come from beyond the railroad station. The horse looked weary, and the hour was 4 in the afternoon, and I settled it that he must have come from Thalia, fifteen miles away. The man wore a hat that did not fit him and had the collar of his coat turned up. He had goggles, though it was a dark day. A person who wears goggles for weak eyes will carry a finger to one of the glasses, every two or three minutes, even if he does not move them occasionally. On this man's face was a newly grown beard about an inch long. Every thirty seconds up went his hand to scratch.
He was not used to a beard, but had grown it for an object. He thickened his voice when he spoke to me, and it was easy to detect the unnatural intonation. Why did he do it? Travelers searching for health are seldom to be met with in the mountain except in early summer, and this was late in the season. He might explain, however.

Mr. Bracey, as he had given his name, probably had more reasons for seclusion than he had stated, and I had a curiosity to observe him further.

He was taken in at the chalet, and that night we ate supper together. I saw by his table manners that he was used to the quick lunches of a restaurant. He claimed to be an Englishman, but his American idioms would have given him away to a child.

In the course of four or five days
I had the stranger sized up to a dot and would have bet five to one that my diagnosis was positively correct.
He was a straight haired American.
He was a public official. It was his first time abroad. He was in disguise and a fugitive. Whatever trouble he had with him he had in his under-shirt pocket. I knew this because he was constantly raising his hand to the spot.

I am no man hunter. I did not go to the police or drop a hint to any one.
Of whatever crime he was guilty he was safe from me. I knew it wasn't murder, unless done in the trial of passion, for he was sentimental and tender hearted. I think it was on the fifth day of his stay that he became feverish and called in a doctor and went to bed—mental worry, you see.
I had finished my supper and was smoking my pipe when I saw a stranger coming up the path from the hotel. From his gait I judged him to be an American. From the way he furtively eyed the chalet and its surroundings I reasoned that he had other business than looking for lodgings.
As he came to a halt and looked me over he gave himself away as a detective. He had taken me for the man he wanted, and chagrin showed clearly on his face. He was from a western state and on the trail of a defaulting city treasurer.

It was queer enough that he didn't ask if there was another traveler in the house. He took it for granted that I was the only one, and he told me the whole story of Bracey's theft and flight. He talked for two hours and then went away, saying that he should hang around for a few days. Half an hour after his going it was discovered that Bracey was missing. His bedroom window was over the veranda, and he had heard all.

When three days had passed and no trace of the missing man had been had he was given away to the detective by one of the town officials. He had left the chalet lightly clad, without food or baggage and in a fever, and the idea was that he had lost himself on the mountains and would perish if not found. Parties were sent out in search, and it was not long before evidence was found.

Being ill and without food and thinly clad, he could not keep his life over two or three days. In the gloom of that first night he had traveled nearly two miles, making up the mountains by a path. Then he had wandered from the path and fallen into a stream from a thirty foot bank. The rushing waters had carried him down a mile or more, and they found his body wedged between two great rocks.

When the coroner overhauled the effects found on the body there came to light $5,000 in English money and drafts for nearly $200,000 more. His name was not Bracey, of course, but as the city treasurer of a town in the west he had gobbled its last dollar and fled with his ill gotten gains to the other side of the ocean to enjoy himself. He had not spent a thousand dollars as yet or had a moment's comfort. He had too much conscience and not enough nerve. If he had got safely away he would never have enjoyed himself. As I looked down at his dead body and thought of his disgraceful life, I felt something more than a passing sorrow. As I helped carry the bruised and battered corpse down to the town house for inquest and burial
I found tears in my eyes and pity in my heart.

AVOID CONTAGION.

Get the Health History of a House Before You Move Into It.

To those intending to buy or move into a house that has been occupied the following advice is offered by the Woman's Home Companion:

"Guard your family from contagious disease germs in the new house. It has been proved that thousands of tuberculosis and scarlet fever cases annually are the result of moving into houses which have not been disinfected.

"Secure the 'health history' of the house you expect to buy or rent. It will be supplied by your board of health, your health officer or any physician who practices in your town. If it has housed a tuberculosis patient don't take that house; find another.

"No matter what the 'health history' of the house, have the plumbing examined, the drains flushed and the entire house disinfected.

"If the walls are to be repapered have the old paper removed.
"Do not move into any house where the cellar has been flooded and is moldy.

"In towns where there is neither city water nor sewerage system make sure that the well and the cesspool are widely separated."

REPORTING FROM MEMORY.

When Note Taking Was Forbidden In the House of Commons.

Holcroft's feat in memorizing the whole play of "Figaro" after hearing it ten times could probably have been easily outdone by "Memory" Woodfall, who in the days when note taking was forbidden in the house of commons acquired fame by the extraordinary power of reporting from memory the speeches he heard in that august assembly.

His usual attitude during a debate, says the London Chronicle, was to close his eyes and lean forward with both hands upon his stick, being so well acquainted with the tone and manner of the several speakers that he seldom changed his attitude save to catch the name of a new member.

The speeches thus memorized he printed in his journal, and so wonderful was his memory that he could recall full recollection of a debate a fortnight after, though having listened to many long nights of speaking in the interval. He used to say he could put any speech away on a corner shelf of his mind for future reference.

The Fastest Colors.

It is said that the fastest colors on the market are what are known among dyers as hydrosulphite-colors that are dyed with hydrosulphite in a caustic bath. These colors are as nearly fast as any can be made and have been adopted by our government to be used in army uniforms.

The dyeing of these colors on cotton yarn is simple, especially when the Scotch tub system is employed. The proper way to dye these colors is to use the vacuum type of dye machine, as the dyestuff experts hold that all air should be eliminated from the cotton before the dyestuff is applied, and this type of machine is best suited for that purpose, because in this system the cotton is stationary and the dye liquor is forced through the cotton by means of pumps.—St. Paul Pioneer Press.

Traditions of Sandwich.

Sandwich is the hub of the universe —of golf. In times medieval it was one of England's five gates, through which passed heroes and saints, priests and kings. Here it was that King Arthur set out to play the emperor of Rome with Excalibur, and here on his return Guinevere welcomed him. St.
Paul, says tradition, landed at Sandwich, but it is history that marks it as the landing place of St. Augustine.
Picts and Scots were here beaten back by the army of the eastern Julian, and Theodosius landed to repel the Saxons.
Becket escaped from England via Sandwich to France. Here Richard I. landed after his Austrian imprisonment and John, king of France, came as a prisoner of the black prince.— London Chronicle.

Tart Retort.

Of Lord Jeffrey, noted for his heartless cruelty, it is recorded when he was chief justice he had a witness before him whose evasive answers aroused the judge's ire. The witness were an exceedingly long and bushy beard. Said Jeffrey, "If your conscience is as large as your beard you'll swear anything." Unabashed, the witness retorted, "If your lordship measures consciences by beards your lordship has none at all."

Your Chances.

The little chances linger and return, but the great chances come and go and never come again. If we could look back over the lives of the people by whom we are surrounded how many great and rich opportunities would we see that they have permitted to drift by them unimproved!

Food and Fresh Air.

You can live forty days without food, but you cannot live four minutes without air. These things being true, is it wise to stuff ourselves with food and starve ourselves for want of air?

No Difference.

Jinks—Which women have the worst tempers, blonds or brunettes? Blake—
My wife has been both, and I could not see any difference.—New York Times.

FARMERS' DAY

Next Thursday will be Farmers' Day in Somerset county. County Demonstrator H. S. Lippincott has arranged a series of meetings of an important character, to which the public are cordially invited. Twelve prominent agricultural speakers will address the various meetings, a list of which appeared last week in this paper.

Farmers' Day is to be one of the great days in Somerset and every effort should be made to make it a successful occasion. Farming is the leading occupation of the world. Upon it depends the life and prosperity of the nation. Success in such an occupation depends upon the amount of vim put into it by individual workers. Study of methods and system is also essential.

Farmers' Day will give our agriculturists a fine opportunity to discover new plans and policies and the day should be specially celebrated by them and the public generally.

IT LOOKS LIKE LEE

Indications at this time look most favorable to the nomination of Hon. Blair Lee for the Governorship of Maryland. The swing in Baltimore is towards him, and judging from his former vote-getting qualities, many of the counties will also be his.

The situation in Baltimore seems to indicate that Mr. Harrington is not looked upon with favor, and that Mr. Linthicum has not yet developed sufficient strength in the counties to command the city's vote. The choice is, therefore, limited to Mr. Harrington and Senator Lee, with the odds strongly in favor of the latter. Mr. Harrington, the city people seem to think, would be hard to nominate and still harder to elect. The preference is, accordingly, for Senator Lee. Few believe that Mr. Lee, supported by Mayor Preston, who is now well to the front in Maryland politics, can be defeated.

In former editorials we have commended the course of Senator Lee four years ago. It is still our belief that his turn has come, and indications seem to point sharply in his direction.

The Voice Of The Nation

The feelings of the American people have been more deeply stirred by the tragic destruction of the Lusitania and her passengers than by any other event of international significance since the Maine was blown up in Havana harbor. The national spirit aroused by the wholesale sacrifice of innocent lives to the lust of war has found expression here and there, in irresponsible quarters, in reckless and passionate utterances. But it is a remarkable manifestation of the confidence of the vast majority of American citizens in the ability of the President fittingly to voice their patriotism in a great crisis that there is a general tendency, the country over, to leave the momentous decision to his sound judgment, and to stand behind him as one man in support of the course he may elect to pursue.

National solidarity is a tremendous asset in dealing with such a situation as now confronts us. The willingness of the big men of the country to put the national honor in President Wilson's hands and abide by the result is apparent in published interviews. The same sentiment is heard from the man on the street, and is voiced in all but a few of the influential newspapers. Such practical unanimity is a rare but deserved compliment to the President's sagacity, capability and rectitude. Complete confidence could not be reposed, in a matter so momentous, in an untried man. The President's dealing with lesser complications has been so wise, so firm and so just as to convince the country that he may be absolutely trusted to steer the Ship of State through the narrow and dangerous channel ahead of it without the deviation of a hair's breadth from the course dictated by national morality and national self-respect.

The outside world will not fail to take note of the patriotic determination of the United States of America to stand behind President Wilson. When he speaks, it will be with the voice of the nation. Whatever he may determine to do will be backed up by the nation. This much is apparent to every observer who has his ear to the ground, and must be equally obvious to those who listen across the seas. An appreciation of these facts, as seen abroad as it is at home, should contribute to safe guidance through troubled waters. —Philadelphia Record.

Mayor Preston's Great Vote

The following is from a recent issue of the Washington Times:

"Considered from a national standpoint, the victory in Baltimore of Mayor Preston, Democrat, who was re-elected by the largest majority ever given any candidate for the office, will offer little consolation to those who have been reading a Republican landslide next year in the results of scattered municipal and State elections this year. Following the upset in Chicago when the Republican candidate for mayor was successful, the political prophets announced it was all over for the Democrats next year, and the same prophecies have followed other minor Republican successes. Now comes the Baltimore election to upset all these prophecies and leave the political calculators high and dry. As a matter of fact, if the trend had been as heavily Republican as the prophets contended, the situation in Baltimore was an ideal one for favoring it. Mayor Preston in his four years in office had made many strong enemies and was so vulnerable that with the tide drifting strongly against his party, even a weak candidate against him ought to have gotten a majority. But the result shows not only that Preston, a Democrat, got the biggest majority given a mayor in Baltimore in recent years, but also that his total vote was many thousands larger than the biggest previous vote for any Democrat in Baltimore city, including the Democratic vote for President in 1912."

The Times says the local aspect of the Baltimore election is very significant; that the city Democrats, opposed to Mr. Lee for Governor four years ago, will aid in his nomination, and that Mr. Preston will succeed Mr. Lee in the Senate, where the latter's term will soon expire.

No Unsinkable Ship

As in the case of the Titanic disaster, the sinking of the Lusitania has brought forth again the positive word of the leading ship builders that to build an unsinkable ship is an impossibility. The chief disadvantage of the great liners is the time it takes to get the people off in case of disaster. The other disadvantage is the rapidity with which these so-called unsinkable ships dive beneath the waves in case of accident.

The fact should be borne in upon the minds of all travelers by sea that there is no such thing as a ship that cannot be sunk and that the big ship has proven itself peculiarly susceptible to collapse. The Cunard line and the British Admiralty office are alike under fire because of the claim set forth that the Lusitania presented no elements of positive danger. The reverse has been shown in terrific fashion. Thus the controversy that raged over the losses upon the Titanic is again being waged over the losses sustained by those who went down with the great ship—the survivors who are very bitter and the friends of those who were lost.

Entirely aside from the war aspects of the catastrophe the question of liability for the occurrence is one of acute accusation against the British. This includes as well a measure of the moral liability. Whatever may be the outcome, the fact has again been set forth and should interest all future travelers upon the sea. The fact needs to be emphasized—that there is and there can be no unsinkable ship. In normal times the one great reliance of the ship at sea that meets with accident is the wireless call for aid. It is impossible for the big ships to carry enough boats to take off all, and unlikely that this extraordinary feat can ever be accomplished under conditions of acute peril and excitement.—Baltimore American.

Completion of State Roads

If Chairman Weller's expectations as to the time limit for the roundup are realized, the system of State roads, in so far as provided for by the appropriations of the last three legislatures, will be completed before the middle of August. The final contracts were but recently given out; but these, almost without exception, are for short stretches and involve construction work in every instance, that can be finished within ninety days.

The State road system, as it will be turned over to the State Roads Commission this year, will consist of about 1,000 miles of modern, hard surfaced roads. This road system, which focuses at Baltimore more than at any other point in the State, extends in connected lines through all of the counties on each side of the Chesapeake Bay. Starting from Baltimore as a central point in the system it is possible to journey westward through six counties to the West Virginia boundary line, or, by traveling northeastward and crossing the Susquehanna and then turning southward the tourist will find a linked up chain of roads leading down through the nine Eastern Shore counties. Likewise he may journey over hard roads through Southern Maryland to where the Potomac turns into the Bay.

The construction cost, when the work now under contract shall have been completed, will be something over $17,500,000. The building of this chain of roads has created a large bonded debt for the State; but there are more people now than there were at the beginning who believe that this costly improvement is a wise investment; that the State has or will have in the ultimate results, full value for the outlay. The farming communities of the State will benefit directly and the cities and towns will benefit indirectly ultimately.—Baltimore American.

Frank Sentenced to Die June 22

Leo. M. Frank, convicted of the murder of Mary Phagan, was sentenced to be hanged June 22d by Judge Ben Hill in the Criminal Court at Atlanta, Ga., on Monday of last week.

If there is any further action in this case, it must come from Governor Slayton, of Georgia, who is now being flooded with petitions to commute the sentence of Frank to life imprisonment. Governor Slayton will retire from office June 26th.

It was Frank's fourth sentence to death following his conviction on the charge of murdering Mary Phagan.

His lawyers said they would push his appeal for a commutation to life imprisonment as rapidly as possible, but the belief was the prison board would not hear his petition until June.

The long continued drouth which had prevailed in this section was broken on Wednesday last when we were visited by a gentle rain which fell from early morning until sundown. The showers during last week were gratefully received and they will add thousands of dollars to the receipts of our farmers on their early crops.

Last Tuesday a delegation of citizens from Deal's Island appeared before the Board of County Commissioners in reference to a new school building for that place. ## State's Prettiest Girl is Selected

Miss Clara M. McAbee, of Frederick county, has been selected from among nearly 900 pretty girls of the State as the prettiest in Maryland.

Her photograph was among the large number submitted to the Baltimore Evening News in a Beauty Contest, the prize for which is to be a trip to the Panama-Pacific Exposition and other points in the great West.

The photographs were of young ladies from throughout Baltimore city and from all over the State. The News secured the services of five prominent citizens of Baltimore as judges. The judges inspected all the photographs and eliminated all but 20. Invitations were sent by The News to the young ladies so determined upon to a tea at the Hotel Stafford, where they met the judges. The latter, after much deliberation, decided upon Miss McAbee.

She will leave for California June 3rd.

Germany's Move Next

The Government and people of the United States are looking expectantly toward Berlin, where Ambassador Gerard has been instructed to present to the German Foreign Office a note calling the attention of the Imperial Government to the "unlawful and inhuman" destruction of the Lusitania and other violations of American rights on the high seas.

Germany is asked in the note to disavow the acts of her submarine commanders in the torpedoing without warning of the Lusitania, a British ship, with a loss of more than 100 American lives and the American steamer Gulfight, "as a result of which two or more American citizens met their death." Reparation, "so far as reparation is possible," is asked, and the United States declares, it "confidently expects that the Imperial German Government will take immediate steps to prevent the recurrence" of such acts and practices.

The note was delayed in passage and a reply is not expected for a week.

Paint Put-On

Think of paint put-on and not by the gallon.

A gallon of paint in the can is of no account to anybody. Put it on. Now reckon its cost and value.

The secret is: one paint goes twice as far as another. A good one goes twice as far as a bad one.

You have a job, say an average job. It'll take 10 gallons Devco and 12 or 15 or 18 or 20 of middling poor very-poor and trash. You know painter's wages in your town. Put the price of a gallon of paint and the painter's day-wage together. You can, we can't.

Devco costs less than any inferior paint; there are hundreds of them.

One paint is as good as another, so long as it lasts good; one lasts months and another years; and the one that goes furthest lasts longest.

DEVCO

C. H. Hayman sells it.

Best Thing For A Bilious Attack

"On account of my confinement in the printing office I have for years been a chronic sufferer from indigestion and liver trouble. A few weeks ago I had an attack that was so severe that I was not able to go to the case for two days. Failing to get any relief from any other treatment, I took three of Chamberlain's Tablets and the next day I felt like a new man," writes H. C. Bailey, Editor Carolina News, Chapin, S. C. ## For State Care Of Poor

That the State should care for the poor of the several counties instead of each county maintaining a home for paupers is the opinion of the Anne Arundel county grand jury, and a recommendation to that effect is made in the report submitted last Tuesday to the Circuit Court at Annapolis.

The report recommends that the County Commissioners prepare a bill for the next Legislature providing for construction by the State of two institutions for the poor, one to be located on the Eastern Shore and the other on the Western Shore.

Whooping Cough

"When my daughter had whooping cough she coughed so hard at one time that she had hemorrhage of the lungs. I was terribly alarmed about her condition. Before she had finished two bottles of this remedy she was entirely well," writes Mrs. S. F. Grimes, Crooksville, Ohio. Obtainable everywhere. [Advertisement.]

HISTORY IN RELICS

There's a Wonderful Exhibit in the National Museum.

A FAMOUS COSTUME DISPLAY.

Besides Uniforms of National Heroes, There Are Nineteen Gowns of the Wives of Our Presidents, Beginning With One of Martha Washington.

A recent report on the United States National Museum gives an account of the origin and development of the division of history which will appeal to every American. The first building expressly erected for the National Museum was not opened to the public until October, 1881, and from that date until the occupation of the new building, in June, 1911, it contained the greater part of the exhibits. Since the opening of the new building, however, the natural history collections have been removed there, leaving more space in the older building for the extension of the divisions of American history and arts and industries.

The division was originally organized to illustrate the history of the United States from colonial times by exhibiting such relics and memorials of noteworthy personages and events and the domestic life of the country as could be brought together into groups of objects representing the different periods. One striking feature in this connection is the unique American period costume collection of nineteen dresses belonging to the successive hostesses of the White House from the time of Martha Washington to that of a recent administration. These costumes are so exhibited on lay figures as to bring out the full effects of the gowns, although no effort has been made to reproduce the faces of the individuals. Several other dresses and a great number of accessories of apparel, including shawls, shoes, hats and bonnets, gloves, handkerchiefs, combs, fans and jewelry, are also on display.

Among the costumes and uniforms of American men shown are uniform and dress suit of George Washington, a court suit of General Thomas Pinckney, the court dress and other attire of James Monroe and the uniform coat of General Andrew Jackson, worn at the battle of New Orleans.

Many memorials and relics of George Washington were purchased from the Lewis heirs and deposited in the museum in 1878, which, with sundry additions, now include some 400 objects.

Historical furniture, which at one time or another was the property of men of national importance—Lafayette, Jefferson, Putnam, Hamilton, Gansevoort, Cooper and others—is displayed.

Colonial relics deposited by the national society of the Colonial Dames of America fill two large cases.

The printing press used in 1725-26 by Benjamin Franklin when a printer in London is specially interesting on account of its connection with this noted statesman, as well as of its historical importance as regards the development of the science of printing.

Models of five sailing vessels connected with the discovery and early history of the United States represent a viking ship, such as the Norsemen used in their supposed early visits to this continent in about 1000 A. D.; the Santa Maria, flagship of Columbus; the Susan Constant, which brought the first permanent English colony to America; the Mayflower of the pilgrims and the United States frigate Constitution.

The war of 1812 and the Mexican war are represented by many swords, pistols, guns, medals, flags, uniforms and accoutrements belonging to military and naval officers, among whom are Generals Brown, Ripley, Shields, Magruder, Paul, Morgan, Browne of the United States Army, and Captain Lawrence, U. S. N. One of the most valued possessions of the museum is the star spangled banner of Fort McHenry, the inspiration of Key's immortal verses. This historic flag has been backed and repaired by an elaborate process, which insures its permanent preservation.

Associated with the civil war are memorials and mementos of many well known Americans—Lincoln, Grant, Lee, Sherman, Custer, Foote and many others prominent in that great struggle. The extensive Grant collection, occupying four cases, is especially interesting.

Among other prominent officers recalled by various mementos are McDowell, Hancock, Decatur, Perry, Biddle, Porter, Farragut, Wilkes, Phillips, Newcomb, Maury, Rogers and Meigs. The historical development in science is shown by several individual exhibits illustrating the work of Henry, Morse, Field, Langley, Francis, Bache, Morton, Wharton and Baird, but most of the scientific apparatus is included in the division of mechanical technology.

A Difference.
"I thought they didn't allow waiters to take tips in this restaurant?" said the lawyer at the table.
"We don't, sir," replied the waiter.
"I saw that man at the next table give you a tip just now."
"No, sir, that was not a tip, sir; that was a retainer."—Yonkers Statesman.

The Key Ring.
The key ring symbolizes the old custom of handing over the keys of the house to the woman. This was more often a design used for the wedding ring and occasionally for the betrothal.

Porgiveness is better than revenge.—Pittacus.

WHY YOU ARE NERVOUS

The nervous system is the alarm system of the human body.

In perfect health we hardly realize that we have a network of nerves, but when health is ebbing, when strength is declining, the same nervous system gives the alarm in headaches, tiredness, dreamful sleep, irritability and unless corrected, leads straight to a breakdown.

To correct nervousness, Scott's Emulsion is exactly what you should take; its rich nutrient gets into the blood and rich blood feeds the tiny nerve-cells while the whole system responds to its refreshing tonic force. It is free from alcohol. Scott & Bowne, Bloomfield, N. J.

Kilowatt Formula.
Here is what a kilowatt is and the formula for computing it:

First, multiply the current by the resistance of the circuit, and divide the result by the number of watts. The answer will come in dollars and cents. Just divide these by the price you pay per kilowatt and multiply again to find out what a kilowatt is. It is something you can feel, but can't see; something that you pay for according to what some one tells you who doesn't know what he is talking about, and he proves it by the meter that runs by guess and by thunder and is attached to a wall by a hired man with machine grease on his nose. You know just how many kilowatts you have had. Just what they cost you a piece, but you don't know what they are, what they look like, who made them or what shape they are. — St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

The Curious Pelican.

The pelican is as large as a swan, has white feathers tinged with red, while the breasts of the old ones are yellow. The breast feathers end in narrow points, and all the plumage is very coarse. But the remarkable point about the pelican is its beak. The upper jaw is long, large and flat and has a hook at the end, which curves over the lower jaw. The lower jaw has attached to it a great pouch, which the pelican can make small when empty or can expand so as to carry all the fish which it catches in a hunt. This pouch is the pelican's game bag. When the pelican goes into the water of a stream or lake it catches all the fish it can, but does not swallow them. It carries them in its pouch. When it reaches the land it can eat the fish at its leisure. But more important is the fact that from the pouch the pelican can feed its young ones. — Kansas City Star.

Hymns and Longevity.

The practice of hymn writing appears to be conducive to longevity. Charlotte Elliott, who wrote "Just as I Am," was eighty-two at the time of her death; Bishop Bickersteth, who wrote "Peace, Perfect Peace," was eighty-one, as also was Charles Wesley. Bishop Walsham How, author of some of the most popular of the hymns, ancient and modern; John Keble and Bishop Kerr, the writer of the famous "Evening Hymn," were seventy-four. Fanny Crosby, the famous blind hymn writer, was ninety-four. And in compiling such a list as this, one ought not to forget the name of W. E. Gladstone, who narrowly escaped becoming a nonagenarian. One of Mr. Gladstone's hymns—"Oh, Lead My Blindness by the Hand"—is to be found in the English Hymnal.—London Chronicle.

Perilous Experiments.

Even fungi collectors seem generally agreed that there is really no trustworthy test for distinguishing wholesome from dangerous mushrooms beyond the old Baconian method of observation and experiment. Toward the end of the eighteenth century Curtis, the original compiler of "Flora Londinensis," adopted an ingenious device for determining whether fungi were edible or poisonous. He tried every suspected fungus, not "on the dog," but upon his gardeners! What happened to those unhappy horticulturists is not recorded.—London Family Herald.

Not to Be Desired.

"How artificial we have grown since the good old days!"
"Maybe," replied Mr. Growcher, "but no argument is going to get me longing very seriously for the good old days when the women used to come down to breakfast with their hair in curl papers."—Washington Star.

Sandstone.

All rocks contain some water, but some, such as the granites, carry only an inappreciable amount. Sandstone, on the other hand, has an absorptive capacity of a gallon or more of water to the cubic foot of rock and is the best water bearer of the solid rocks.

Decided to Stay.

"Oh, hubby, I'm happy!"
"What's the good news? Somebody left you a fortune?"
"Oh, better! The new cook has sent for her trunk."—Philadelphia Ledger.

Color Change.

"Your new assistant is blue over his work."
"I guess that is because he is so green about it."—Exchange.

Guns save lives as well as take them. In desert countries, where it is difficult to collect water out of a mere dampness of sand, gun barrels are often sunk into the ground. By this means moisture is collected in the bore and many lives have been preserved by a timely draw at the muzzle.

A slaver, captured with a crew of slaves in the tropics, was once put in charge of a prize crew. During the voyage water ran out and slaves, slavers and prize crew were all dying of thirst. Then a sergeant hit on a brilliant idea. Taking all the available gun barrels, he plugged up the breach ends of a few of them, filled their bores with sea water and set them end up among the coals of the galley fire. Then as the steam rose he ran it through the other gun barrels till it cooled. The cooling steam collected in the shape of excellent fresh water and by this means scores of lives were saved.—Pearson's Weekly.

A Nick Point in Law.

Of Sir Thomas Egerton, who was gifted with quick perception, this story is told: "A poor woman had been entrusted with the care of a large sum of money by three farmers who told her to keep it safely until they appeared together to claim it. Shortly afterward one of them went to her and, representing that he came at the direction of the other two, he received the money and forthwith disappeared. The other two brought action to recover the whole deposit. Egerton happened to be an intimate friend of the woman. Seeing that the case was going against his friend, Egerton volunteered to speak as amicus curiae. Permission was granted. Emphasizing the condition on which the money was left in the woman's care, Egerton said: 'It is clear that the plaintiff cannot recover because it is to the three appearing together that the defendant agreed to deliver the money. Where is the third? Let him be produced.' Thus Egerton saved the day for his friend."

Manganese Steel.

A remarkable peculiarity of manganese steel is its almost complete lack of magnetic properties. A bar of this steel balanced on a knife edge was not drawn out of balance by a powerful electromagnet, but when hammered into very thin foil the steel was lifted by the magnet.

JUDGE FOR YOURSELF

Which Is Better—Try An Experiment Or Print By A Princess Anne Citizen's Experience

Something new is an experiment. Must be proved to be as represented. The statement of a manufacturer is not convincing proof of merit. But the endorsement of friends is. Now supposing you had a bad back, a lame, weak, or aching one. Would you experiment on it? You will read of many so-called cures. Endorsed by strangers from far-away places. It's different when the endorsement comes from home. Easy to prove local testimony. Read this Princess Anne case: Thomas H. Heath, Beckford Avenue, Princess Anne, Md., says: "I suffered from severe pains in the small of my back and was restless. In the morning I felt tired and worn out. I also had dizzy spells which were so severe, I could hardly stand. Doan's Kidney Pills helped me in every way and I was soon cured of kidney complaint."

Price 50c, at all dealers. Don't simply ask for a kidney remedy—get Doan's Kidney Pills—the same that Mr. Heath recommends.—Foster-Milburn Co., Props., Buffalo, N. Y. (Advertisement)

ANCIENT MEDICAL SKILL.

Peru Had Clever Physicians and Surgeons Ages Ago.

Both cocaine and quinine were first discovered and used by the prehistoric inhabitants of Peru, Ecuador and Bolivia. A cup made from the wood of the tree yielding quinine was filled with water and allowed to stand overnight. In the morning the liquid had become saturated with the medicinal properties possessed by the wood and its bitter contents were drunk. The quassia cups sold in drug stores in this country during the past century were the early method used to administer quinine.

The leaf from the tree giving cocaine is chewed today by the Indians living in the mountainous districts of Peru, Ecuador and Bolivia. It acts as a heart stimulant in those high altitudes and deadens the pangs of hunger so frequently felt by the half starved natives.

The Chinaman, who lived in Peru, according to some authorities, 2500 years before Christ and whose dominions extended into Bolivia, Ecuador and parts of Brazil and Colombia, had a pharmacopoeia of their own. Most of the articles used by them as medicines are used by the physician of today. Their surgeons were highly skilled. I have seen skulls dug up in their old cemeteries that showed their owners during life had been injured many times in battle by blunt instruments, presumably clubs, and their lives had been saved by trephining. I recall one skull with four silver plates, several with three, very many with two and hundreds with one.

SKILL OF THE BEAVER.

As a Canal Digger He Is an Engineer of Rare Ability.

According to a legend, the beaver is supposed to be a reincarnation of man, put back on earth to expiate past offenses by work, and in some of the early drawings it is depicted with the face of a man. And when we consider its extraordinary intelligence and skill as woodcutter, engineer (dam and canal maker), house builder and food storer the notion does not seem at all far-fetched. Describing the canals which the animals make by scooping out the earth with their hands, A. R. Dugmore in the "Romance of the Beaver" remarks:

"It might be presumed that these animals are only run through level country, but here is the greatest evidence of the engineering ability of the beaver: They build their canals uphill by means of weirs or dams, the distance between them varying according to the gradient. Yet they never work uphill unless it is made absolutely necessary by the contour of the land. The width of these canals is usually about three feet, with a depth from one to three feet, seldom deeper except when small pools are made, evidently with the idea of providing a hiding place in the event of danger. The direction of the canals must necessarily be variable. Wherever conditions are favorable they are as straight as though laid out by human engineers, but when there is any advantage to be gained by curves they make curves."

The Almanac Trust.

The sale of almanacs was once a lucrative monopoly. Queen Elizabeth granted the sole right to publish "almanacs and prognostications" to the Stationers' company, and James I. extended the privilege to the universities of Oxford and Cambridge, but for centuries only these three bodies were permitted to issue printed almanacs. The monopoly ended when the claim of the universities to the privileges of granting or withholding permission to issue almanacs—a survival, perhaps, from days when kings asserted their right to regulate all things, including even the times and seasons—was definitely disproved and proclaimed nonexistent. Now anybody can say who's who anywhere. —London Spectator.

Munchausen.

"The Travels of Baron Munchausen," as we have them, are a compound from a great variety of sources. The first installment, which professes to be based on the real baron's own tales, is scarcely a quarter of the whole, and even this has been traced in great part to various German, Italian and Portuguese origins. Afterward the author cribbed awfully from Lucian and added a second volume intended as a satire on Bruce's "Travels." Most of the early editions were entitled "Gulliver Revived; or, the Vice of Lying Properly Exposed." —London Tatler.

Some Forms of Rheumatism Curable

Rheumatism is a disease characterized by pains in the joints and in the muscles. The most common forms are: Acute and Chronic Rheumatism, Rheumatic Headaches, Sciatic Rheumatism and Lumbago. All of these types can be helped absolutely by applying some good liniment that penetrates. An application of Sloan's Liniment two or three times a day to the affected part will give instant relief. Sloan's Liniment is good for pain and especially Rheumatic Pain, because it penetrates to the seat of the trouble, soothes the afflicted part and draws the pain out. "Sloan's Liniment is all medicine." Get a 25c bottle now. Keep it handy in case of emergency.

TIME TO BALK.

The Chinaman Thought the Missionary Was Going Too Far.

Dr. Frank Garrett, who has been a missionary to China for the last seven years, says that the first thing you have to do is to get the Chinese viewpoint. Like many of their customs, it seems to us upside down. In the United States if you call a man a liar you are likely to get into serious trouble. In China the man would be rather complimented than insulted.

A missionary had established a little church somewhere in the interior and put a native preacher in charge while he visited some other mission points. When he returned he missed one young man from the congregation. The native preacher said they had put him out of the church.

"Why, what was the matter? What did he do?" asked the missionary.

"He stole a bamboo rod," returned the preacher.

"Why," answered the missionary, "a bamboo rod is worth only about 10 cents. Don't you think you were a little severe?"

"No, no," and he shook his head indignantly. "We can't have a thief in the church. The Bible says a thief can't go to heaven, and we couldn't have any one in the church who couldn't go to heaven. Besides, it would give us a bad name in the community."

"Well," returned the missionary, "the Bible says a liar can't go to heaven. Are you going to turn the liars out too?"

"Oh," cried the preacher, "that's different! Entirely different! We all lie." —Youth's Companion.

OLD TIME MANNERS.

Rules of Good Behavior in the Early Eighteenth Century.

In a work entitled "Youth's Behavior," published in 1706, there is this injunction to young gentlemen, "Put off thy Cap or Hat to persons of Desert as are Churchmen, Justices and the like, turning the Cap or Hat to thyself; making a Reverence, bowing thyself more or less according to the custom of the better bred."

In the midst of remarks which indicate the utmost refinement we come suddenly upon such directions as this:

"Tis not manners as soon as you are set at Table to bawl out, 'I care none of this, I eat none of that, I care for no Rabbit; I love nothing that tastes of Pepper, Nutmeg, Onions,' etc."

After stating that "some have been so refined in Foreign parts that they will neither be covered, nor sit with their backs to the picture of an eminent Person," the writer goes on to remark that "there are some who eat with that eagerness and impatience, they eat themselves out of breath and will pant like a broken winded Horse, but these are not to be endured."

He also warns his pupil thus: "When you are talking to any one do not continually punch him in the side, as some people do; who, after every sentence keep asking the person they are conversing with, 'Did I not tell you so?' 'What say you, sir?' and in the meantime they are every moment jogging and thrusting him with their elbows, which cannot be considered as a mark of respect."

Lincoln Among Other Men.

Some years ago a series of pictures was printed showing Lincoln in many attitudes, either alone or in company with statesmen or military men in Washington or in camp. Attention was called by the writer, who had assembled the pictures, to the singular isolation and dignity of Lincoln when taken with any group of men. They almost without exception, showed that they were conscious of observation, attitudes were studied, and the effort to look well in the picture was often evident. No matter in what company he was, the president seemed not to be conscious either of the artist, or himself or of the men who surrounded him. He stood or sat alone, as if he were an impersonal figure representing native strength and unique sublimity of character. —Christian Register.

A Cautious Reply.

At West Point they tell a story of a man known as Ginger, on account of the peculiar color of his hair, who graduated at the foot of his class after six years at the Point.

Ginger distinguished himself while reciting to an instructor in ordnance by a remarkable answer to the question "How many places will a twelve pound shell burst into?" the average number having been determined well by experiment. After due reflection Ginger lifted his eyes to those of the instructor and replied:

"Not less than two." —New York Times.

"Children have no kick when it comes to being hard hearted. When parents want to marry they almost never succeed in getting the children's consent."

SEEDING RED CLOVER.

Eight to Ten Pounds of Seed Are Usually Sown to the Acre.

[Prepared by the United States department of agriculture.]

Red clover has been justly ranked as the principal foundation of a permanent system of agriculture in the northern and eastern parts of the United States.

In the greater part of the clover belt clover is seeded in the spring on winter wheat or with spring grain. In the southern part of the clover belt seeding in corn at the last cultivation has been successful. When red clover is seeded on winter grain it is sown broadcast early in the spring when the ground is honeycombed by freezing and thawing. If sown later when the ground can be worked it is broadcast and harrowed in or seeded as shallow as possible with a disk drill. In the spring grain sections red clover is sown at the same time the grain is drilled. It is the practice in some locations to attach a grass seeding attachment to the grain drill and drop the clover seed either in front or behind the grain hose. If dropped in front of the grain hose the drill will cover it, but if dropped behind it should be harrowed in. Care should be taken to see that the seed is covered about an inch in loam soils and half an inch in clay soils. It is important that the seed be well covered so that the young plants will have sufficient moisture to become established. It is recommended on soils which are poor in humus to apply a dressing of straw or manure to the winter wheat. This will help to control washing and packing as well as the loss of moisture. It may be the means of establishing a stand which would otherwise fail. Eight to ten pounds of seed are usually sown to the acre.

Red clover should be cut for hay when just past full bloom. At this stage the maximum protein and dry matter are present, the leaves are still intact and the stems green. The hay should be so handled that it will reach the barn or stack with the least possible exposure to the weather and loss of leaves. It should not be allowed to become too dry in the windrow and should be cured in the shock. The second crop of clover may be cut for hay, pastured or allowed to mature for seed. If a seed crop is to be harvested it should be cut when nearly all of the heads have turned brown or black. The mower, self rake reaper or binder may be used to cut the crop. When the mower is used the hay should be raked and bunched while damp to prevent shattering. It should not be tied in bundles when the binder is used.

Convenient Silage Truck.

The silage truck shown by the accompanying drawing has paid for its cost in one month, saving steps and the carrying of heavy baskets, says a correspondent of the Farm Home. I made it myself. The cash outlay was for lumber, wheels and axle. One inch yellow pine was used for the body, as this does not absorb moisture and is smooth, permitting the scoop to slide easily when removing the silage.

The body is seventy inches on top and thirty-four inches long at the bottom; the long or front end is thirty-three inches high and rear end twenty-four inches high. The truck is twenty-six inches high and twenty-eight inches wide, all outside measurements. Sides and ends are bound with 1 by 4 inch strips, and the top corners are reinforced, with two inch iron. The frame on which the box rests is made of 2 by 4 lumber. The rear wheels are fourteen inches in diameter and were cast at a local foundry. A one and one-eighth inch axle thirty-six inches long is used, and a six inch swivel wheel is used in front. This permits the truck to be turned easily in any direction. The truck holds enough silage for twenty-five to thirty head of stock and is very easily moved about on a moderately smooth floor while loaded.

Meat Production On National Forests

Receipts from grazing permits on the national forests for the season of 1915 will contribute to the public revenues approximately $1,200,000, or about $200,000 more than last year, according to an estimate made from the allowances just authorized by the Secretary of Agriculture. The forests this year will furnish forage for 1,988,775 cattle and horses, 8,747,025 sheep and goats, and 64,040 swine, the figures indicating a material increase of meat production on the government-regulated ranges.

The increase of 92,656 cattle and horses over the allowances for 1914 is accompanied by a decrease of 120,881 sheep and goats, showing that in many parts of the West sheep are giving way to cattle. It is thought that the recent high price of beef has been encouraging many farmers and former sheepmen to go into the cattle business, though it will be the first time in the last five years that the allowance of sheep has not increased over that of the previous season. There are localities, however, where the demand for sheep range is far in excess of the supply.

The grazing charges are slightly higher this year. In the West the rates have been fixed at 43 to 90 cents per head per year for cattle and horses, and 12 to 18 cents for sheep and goats; in the East the rates are from 85 cents to $1.50 for cattle, $1.10 to $2.00 for horses, and 25 to 40 cents for sheep and goats. Pigs pay from 20 to 43 cents in the West and 50 to 90 cents in the East.

The grazing allowances indicate the relative importance of the stock business in the various parts of the West in which the National Forests are situated. The Forests in District 2, which embraces Colorado, Wyoming, South Dakota, Nebraska, western Kansas, northern Michigan, and northern Minnesota, are allowed the largest number of cattle, 522,550 head, and next to the largest number of sheep, 1,397,500; District 4, comprising Utah, southern Idaho, western Wyoming, eastern and central Nevada, and northern Arizona, the second largest number of cattle, 431,150, and the largest number of sheep, 3,335,860; District 1, comprising Montana, northwestern Washington, northern Idaho, northwestern South Dakota, and southwestern North Dakota, 193,510 head of cattle, and 1,304,500 head of sheep; District 3, comprising Arizona and New Mexico, 418,900 cattle, and 905,800 sheep; District 5, embracing California and southwestern Nevada, 212,280 cattle, and 505,050 sheep; District 6, comprising Washington, Oregon and Alaska, 159,250 cattle, and 1,280,500 sheep; District 7, which includes Arkansas, Florida, Oklahoma, and the states in New England and the Southern Appalachian region, where forest reservations have been purchased by the government, 46,135 cattle, and 14,850 sheep.

Remodeling Of Fort McHenry

The plans for the remodeling of Fort McHenry, in so far as they have been definitely determined, lead to the expectation that the old fortress is going to be transformed into one of the most beautiful waterfront parks to be found anywhere on this side of the Atlantic. The approach plans prepared by City Engineer McCay and Chief Engineer Shirley, of the Topographic Survey Commission, which were submitted to the Mayor yesterday, suggest that the entrance to the old fort which is to be made over into a city park will be inspiringly beautiful.

The widening of Fort avenue from the railroad bridge to the entrance with a paved circle just fronting the entrance constitutes the most definitely worked-out detail in the scheme of beautification, in so far as the plans have as yet been given out. Nearly all of the buildings scattered over the reservation, including the barracks down near the waterfront, will probably be removed in carrying out the interior improvement plans. The placing of the proposed Key Memorial, whatever may be its model design, will naturally dominate the layout of the interior of the fort. The removal of the buildings will open the view of the interior space and render the work of the landscape artists much easier of satisfactory accomplishment. It is not to be forgotten that the buildings to be used as an immigrant station will occupy the northwest waterfront corner of the fort. These can be and doubtless will be made to harmonize with the beautification plans.—Baltimore Star.

Bridge Slides Into Place

Less than five minutes were required Tuesday last to set the climax to a work that has extended over two months on the Biddle street bridge of the Pennsylvania Railroad, at Gay street, Baltimore.

The old overhead bridge was derricked out of position and a few minutes later a new bridge, larger and more substantial than the old one, was hauled into place.

Practically no delay was caused to traffic, for within less than an hour after the old bridge had been cut loose from the approach tracks on either side the new bridge had been slid into place and new track connections made.

The new bridge is about 75 feet long and carries double tracks. It is of concrete and steel, with steel piers and concrete bases. Its weight is more than 100 tons.

THE VERY BEST WAY

One of the great conveniences of paying with bank checks lies in the fact that it is as easy to write a check for a large sum as for a lesser amount.

Also, the check for the larger amount is as safe in the mails as the smaller one, and costs no more in postage.

All checks, when finally paid by this bank, are cancelled and returned to the maker with an itemized statement.

Best of all—the cost is nothing.

INSIDE A VOLCANO

Looking Down Into Kilauea's
Lake of Boiling Lava.

LIKE A PIT OF LIQUID FIRE.

A Play of Flaming Colors So Dazzling
In the Darkness of the Vast Crater
That It Terrifies the Spectator—A Veritable Fountain of Fire.

According to all the rules of school
geographies, a volcano ought to be situated on top of a mountain; it ought to throw out stones and ashes and molten lava; its crater should be in the shape of an inverted cone, and should emit terrifying noises; periodically it should overwhelm a village or two.
Kilauea, on the island of Hawaii, con-
forms to none of these specifications.
It has thrown out neither stones nor ashes since it annihilated the army that was marching against Kamehameha,
almost a hundred and fifty years ago.
It retains its lava within its own crater, which is not shaped like an inverted cone. The sides are from 100 to 700 feet high and 7.85 miles in circumference, and the floor covers 2,050
acres. The volcano seldom makes terrifying noises—at least of the kind
heard in imagination by a schoolboy.
Thousands of people descend into the crater annually, and not one has ever been injured.

The walk across the floor of the crater, about two and one-half miles, is over a hard lava bed, more or less up
and down, since lava hardens quickly
and remains as it flowed, in great ropes
and ripples. A few yards from shore
—one comes naturally to call the bank
"shore"—a ragged crack is crossed by a wooden bridge. At the time this crack opened, a large party was in the crater. They stayed long because they were delighted with the unusual activity of the lake and had no idea that this activity extended beyond the pit of fire until at last they started to go back to the hotel.

It was night, and as they approached the northern bank of the crater their lanterns suddenly revealed a huge dis-cure directly across their path. Already molten lava was bubbling up at the bottom. They followed the edge of the crack, keenly conscious, undoubtedly, as they turned to keep parallel with the crater wall, that they were on the inner edge. At last they found a spot where the lava had split unevenly, leaving a projecting ledge on which it was possible to stand, and so to jump to the other side. The whole experience, with the thought of sinking to the fires beneath or of being overwhelmed by the lava slowly rising in the fissure and the utter helplesness of their situation, was enough to test the most fearless.

Kilauea is really an enormous quiet-
escent crater with an active inner pit.
This cavity is, perhaps, 1,000 feet
across, and its precipitous sides lead down to a lake of molten lava several acres in extent, sometimes higher,
sometimes lower in the pit. This is Halemaumau, which is commonly translated (although incorrectly), "the house of everlasting fire." It is certainly the house of the goddess Pele.

By daylight the lake of fire is a greenish yellow, cut with ragged
cracks of red that look like pale streaks
of stationary lightning across its surface. It is restless, breathing rapidly, bubbling up at one point and sinking down at another; throwing up sudden fountains of scarlet molten lava that play a few minutes and subside, leaving shimmering mounds that gradually settle to the level surface of the lake.
As darkness comes, the colors on the lake grow so intense that they almost hurt the eyes. The fire is not only red;
it is blue and purple and orange and
green. Blue flames shimmer and dart
about the edges of the pit, back and forth across the surface of the restless
mass. Sudden fountains paint blood
red the great plume of sulphur smoke
that rises constantly.

Sometimes the spurts of lava are so violent, so exaggerated by the night,
that one draws back terrified lest some
atom of their molten substance should spatter over the edge of the precipice.
Sometimes the whole lake is in motion.
Waves of fire toss and battle with each other and dash in clouds of bright ver-million spray against the black sides of the pit. Sometimes one of these sides
falls in, with a roar that echoes back
and forth, and mighty rocks are swallowed in the liquid mass of fire that closes over them in a whirlpool, like
water over a sinking ship.

Again everything is quiet; a thick
scum forms over the surface of the lake, dead, like the scum on the surface of a lonely forest pool. Then it shiv-
ers. Flashes of fire dart from side to side. The center bursts open, and a huge fountain of lava twenty feet thick and fifty feet high streams into
the air and plays for several minutes,
waves of blinding fire flowing out
from it, dashing against the sides until
the black rocks are starred all over with bits of scarlet. All sensations are submerged in a sense of awe. This vision of the earth building forces at work is a picture so overpowering that it is burned into the memory for all

BRYANT'S POETIC CAREER.

Two Facts About His Greatest Work,
"Thanatopsis."

Bryant was nearly twenty-three years old when "Thanatopsis" was first printed in the North American Review. So much has been said about the astounding precocity of this poet and so many errors have accumulated around the publication of his masterpiece that it may be well to state the facts.

We know just two facts about this work. First, it was published when Bryant was almost twenty-three—not young for a poetic genius; second, that in its original published form in the North American Review it is not a remarkable poem.

It was in the 1821 edition of Bryant's poems, when the author was twenty-six or twenty-seven, that the work first appeared in its universally known form. Only a few minor changes were made after that date. This disposes of the generally accepted statement that "Thanatopsis" is a juvenile masterpiece.

Bryant was, however, a precocious poet, although his precocity is not displayed in his greatest work. One of the most extraordinary facts about his poetical career is that he actually published verse during the administration of Thomas Jefferson and during the administration of Rufus B. Hayes. So long a period and so slender an output speak well for his fastidious taste.—North American Review.

ARMS OF ANTWERP.

Gave the City Its Name.

Historians relate that Antwerp takes its name from a castle which in Frankish times marked the site of the city. This castle was built to protect the entrance to the Scheldt and to prevent foreign traders introducing goods into the country without paying toll to the sovereign lord.

The penalty for theft and smuggling was in those days the cutting off of a hand, and, as in this case the severed members were thrown into the Scheldt, the castle came to be known as Antwerp—the place of hand throwing. The castle and two severed hands appear on the city arms to this day.

Antwerp cathedral's tapering spire was once compared by Charles V. to mechin lace. The towers of the old Steen castle, the fortress palace of the former counts of Antwerp, break the center of the line of docks and look as stolid and formidable as in the days when the castle was necessary to guard the shipping. Here were held those great fairs which during the middle ages served to attract merchants from all parts of the civilized world.—London Standard.

Trial by Jury.

The New York Law Journal says on the subject of trial by jury:

"While we do not think that trial by jury ought to be abolished or that there is any increasing sentiment in that direction, we do believe that the system should be modified by dispensing with the requirement for unanimous verdicts. This would obviate the element of individual eccentricity as an impediment to the administration of justice. Mental idiosyncrasy on the part of judges is constantly exhibited and scarcely excites comment. An eminent and very able judge will dissent from the ruling of his associates when it is extremely difficult to understand how so gifted a mind could have gone off on that particular tangent. By permitting affirmances or reversals, notwithstanding dissent, the personal equation is eliminated."

Modeled After an Ancient Tomb.

The temple of the Scottish rite in Washington is a handsome white marble structure about 150 feet square and rises to a height of 150 feet above the street level. At either side of the main entrance is an immense marble sphinx. A row of tall Ionic columns surrounds the second story. The architects followed closely the design of the ancient tomb of King Mausolus, which stood in Halicarnassus and was one of the seven wonders of the world. It was built by the wife of the king and was decorated with hundreds of wonderful statues. This old tomb became so famous that many buildings were modeled after it, but this is the only structure in America in which the design has been used.

In Biology.

Teacher—John, how can you tell the dogwood tree?

John—By its bark.

And his answer was correct, even if it did cause a laugh.

Another bright answer captured in biology:

Teacher—What animal supplies us with ham?

John—The butcher.—Chicago Herald.

Two Models.

Mrs. Toggerblossom—Vain man! Did you never observe that designers take a woman's head to adorn many of your coins? Mr. Toggerblossom—No, but I have observed that designers take many of my coins to adorn a woman's head.—National Monthly.

Easy Money.

"I give my wife half my salary every week to spend on the housekeeping and herself."

"And what do you do with the other half of your salary?"

"Oh, my wife borrows that."—Houston Post.

A man must be excessively stupid as well as uncharitable who believes there is no virtue but on his own side.—Addison.

Hunted Down

By M. QUAD

Copyright, 1915, by the McClure Newspaper Syndicate.

I was putting in a month in a Swiss town, and as I was strolling along the highway in the suburbs one day a vehicle containing a single traveler appeared.

The driver pulled up that the traveler might ask if he could find accommodation at some chalet instead of the hotel, as he was not in good health and wanted quietness. I was lodging at a private house, and there was room for another guest. The stranger was driven on, and I sat down on a rock to sun him up. Having come from the west in a country vehicle, he must have come from beyond the railroad station. The horse looked weary, and the hour was 4 in the afternoon, and I settled it that he must have come from Thalla, fifteen miles away. The man wore a hat that did not fit him and had the collar of his coat turned up. He had goggles, though it was a dark day. A person who wears goggles for weak eyes will carry a finger to one of the glasses every two or three minutes, even if he does not move them occasionally. On this man's face was a newly grown beard about an inch long. Every thirty seconds up went his hand to scratch. He was not used to a beard, but had grown it for an object. He thickened his voice when he spoke to me, and it was easy to detect the unnatural intonation. Why did he do it? Travelers searching for health are seldom to be met with in the mountain except in early summer, and this was late in the season. He might explain, however. Mr. Braceby, as he had given his name, probably had more reasons for seclusion than he had stated, and I had a curiosity to observe him further.

He was taken in at the chalet, and that night we ate supper together. I saw by his table manners that he was used to the quick lunches of a restaurant. He claimed to be an Englishman, but his American idioms would have given him away to a child.

In the course of four or five days I had the stranger sized up to a dot, and would have bet five to one that my diagnosis was positively correct. He was a straight haired American. He was a public official. It was his first time abroad. He was in disguise and a fugitive. Whatever boodle he had with him he had in his undershirt pocket. I knew this because he was constantly raising his hand to the spot.

I am no man hunter. I did not go to the police or drop a hint to any one. Of whatever crime he was guilty he was safe from me. I knew it wasn't murder, unless done in the trial of passion, for he was sentimental and tender hearted. I think it was on the fifth day of his stay that he became feverish and called in a doctor and went to bed—mental worry, you see. I had finished my supper and was smoking my pipe when I saw a stranger coming up the path from the hotel. From his gait I judged him to be an American. From the way he furtively eyed the chalet and its surroundings I reasoned that he had other business than looking for lodgings. As he came to a halt and looked me over he gave himself away as a detective. He had taken me for the man he wanted, and chagrin showed clearly on his face. He was from a western state and on the trail of a defaulting city treasurer.

It was queer enough that he didn't ask if there was another traveler in the house. He took it for granted that I was the only one, and he told me the whole story of Braceby's theft and flight. He talked for two hours and then went away, saying that he should hang around for a few days. Half an hour after his going it was discovered that Braceby was missing. His bedroom window was over the veranda, and he had heard all.

When three days had passed and no trace of the missing man had been had he was given away to the detective by one of the town officials. He had left the chalet lightly clad, without food or baggage and in a fever, and the idea was that he had lost himself on the mountains and would perish if not found. Parties were sent out in search, and it was not long before evidence was found.

Being ill and without food and thinly clad, he could not keep his life over two or three days. In the gloom of that first night he had traveled nearly two miles, making up the mountains by a path. Then he had wandered from the path and fallen into a stream from a thirty foot bank. The rushing waters had carried him down a mile or more, and they found his body wedged between two great rocks.

When the coroner overhauled the effects found on the body there came to light $5,000 in English money and drafts for nearly $200,000 more. His name was not Braceby, of course, but as the city treasurer of a town in the west he had gobbled its last dollar and fled with his ill gotten gains to the other side of the ocean to enjoy himself. He had not spent a thousand dollars as yet or had a moment's comfort. He had too much conscience and not enough nerve. If he had got safely away he would never have enjoyed himself. As I looked down at his dead body and thought of his disgraceful life, I felt something more than a passing sorrow. As I helped carry the bruised and battered corpse down to the town house for inquest and burial I found tears in my eyes and pity in my heart.

AVOID CONTAGION.

Get the Health History of a House Before You Move Into It.

To those intending to buy or move into a house that has been occupied the following advice is offered by the Woman's Home Companion:

"Guard your family from contagious disease germs in the new house. It has been proved that thousands of tuberculosis and scarlet fever cases annually are the result of moving into houses which have not been disinfected."

"Secure the 'health history' of the house you expect to buy or rent. It will be supplied by your board of health, your health officer or any physician who practices in your town. If it has housed a tuberculosis patient don't take that house; find another."

"No matter what the 'health history' of the house, have the plumbing examined, the drains flushed and the entire house disinfected."

"If the walls are to be repapered have the old paper removed."

"Do not move into any house where the cellar has been flooded and is moldy."

"In towns where there is neither city water nor sewerage system make sure that the well and the cesspool are widely separated."

REPORTING FROM MEMORY.

When Note Taking Was Forbidden In the House of Commons.

Holcroft's feat in memorizing the whole play of "Figaro" after hearing it ten times could probably have been easily outdone by "Memory" Woodfall, who in the days when note taking was forbidden in the house of commons acquired fame by the extraordinary power of reporting from memory the speeches he heard in that august assembly.

His usual attitude during a debate, says the London Chronicle, was to close his eyes and lean forward with both hands upon his stick, being so well acquainted with the tone and manner of the several speakers that he seldom changed his attitude save to catch the name of a new member.

The speeches thus memorized he printed in his journal, and so wonderful was his memory that he could retain full recollection of a debate a fortnight after, though having listened to many long nights, of speaking in the interval. He used to say he could put any speech away on a corner shelf of his mind for future reference.

The Fastest Colors.

It is said that the fastest colors on the market are what are known among dyers as hydrosulphite colors that are dyed with hydrosulphite in a caustic bath. These colors are as nearly fast as any can be made and have been adopted by our government to be used in army uniforms.

The dyeing of these colors on cotton yarn is simple, especially when the Scotch tub system is employed. The proper way to dye these colors is to use the vacuum type of dye machine, as the dyestuff experts hold that all air should be eliminated from the cotton before the dyestuff is applied, and this type of machine is best suited for that purpose, because in this system the cotton is stationary and the dye liquor is forced through the cotton by means of pumps.—St. Paul Pioneer Press.

Traditions of Sandwich.

Sandwich is the hub of the universe of golf. In times medieval it was one of England's five gates, through which passed heroes and saints, priests and kings. Here it was that King Arthur set out to play the emperor of Rome with Excalibur, and here on his return Guinevere welcomed him. St. Paul, says tradition, landed at Sandwich, but it is history that marks it as the landing place of St. Augustine. Picts and Scots were here beaten back by the army of the eastern Julian, and Theodosius landed to repel the Saxons. Becket escaped from England via Sandwich to France. Here Richard I. landed after his Austrian imprisonment and John, king of France, came as a prisoner of the black prince.—London Chronicle.

Tart Retort.

Of Lord Jeffreys, noted for his heartless cruelty, it is recorded when he was chief justice he had a witness before him whose evasive answers aroused the judge's ire. The witness wore an exceedingly long and bushy beard. Said Jeffreys, "If your conscience is as large as your beard you'll swear anything." Unabashed, the witness retorted, "If your lordship means consciences by beards your lordship has none at all."

Your Chances.

The little chances linger and return, but the great chances come and go and never come again. If we could look back over the lives of the people by whom we are surrounded how many great and rich opportunities would we see that they have permitted to drift by them unimproved!

Food and Fresh Air.

You can live forty days without food, but you cannot live four minutes without air. These things being true, is it wise to stuff ourselves with food and starve ourselves for want of air?

No Differences.

Jinks—Which women have the worst tempers, blonds or brunettes? Binks—My wife has been both, and I could not see any difference.—New York Times.

FARMERS' DAY

Next Thursday will be Farmers' Day in Somerset county. County Demonstrator H. S. Lippincott has arranged a series of meetings of an important character, to which the public are cordially invited. Twelve prominent agricultural speakers will address the various meetings, a list of which appeared last week in this paper.

Farmers' Day is to be one of the great days in Somerset and every effort should be made to make it a successful occasion. Farming is the leading occupation of the world. Upon it depends the life and prosperity of the nation. Success in such an occupation depends upon the amount of vim put into it by individual workers. Study of methods and system is also essential.

Farmers' Day will give our agriculturists a fine opportunity to discover new plans and policies and the day should be specially celebrated by them and the public generally.

IT LOOKS LIKE LEE

Indications at this time look most favorable to the nomination of Hon. Blair Lee for the Governorship of Maryland. The swing in Baltimore is towards him, and judging from his former vote-getting qualities, many of the counties will also be his.

The situation in Baltimore seems to indicate that Mr. Harrington is not looked upon with favor, and that Mr. Linthicum has not yet developed sufficient strength in the counties to command the city's vote. The choice is, therefore, limited to Mr. Harrington and Senator Lee, with the odds strongly in favor of the latter. Mr. Harrington, the city people seem to think, would be hard to nominate and still harder to elect. The preference is, accordingly, for Senator Lee. Few believe that Mr. Lee, supported by Mayor Preston, who is now well to the front in Maryland politics, can be defeated.

In former editorials we have commended the course of Senator Lee four years ago. It is still our belief that his turn has come, and indications seem to point sharply in his direction.

The feelings of the American people have been more deeply stirred by the tragic destruction of the Lusitania and her passengers than by any other event of international significance since the Maine was blown up in Havana harbor. The national spirit aroused by the wholesale sacrifice of innocent lives to the lust of war has found expression here and there, in irresponsible quarters, in reckless and passionate utterances. But it is a remarkable manifestation of the confidence of the vast majority of American citizens in the ability of the President fittingly to voice their patriotism in a great crisis that there is a general tendency, the country over, to leave the momentous decision to his sound judgment, and to stand behind him as one man in support of the course he may elect to pursue.

National solidarity is a tremendous asset in dealing with such a situation as now confronts us. The willingness of the big men of the country to put the national honor in President Wilson's hands and abide by the result is apparent in published interviews. The same sentiment is heard from the man on the street, and is voiced in all but a few of the influential newspapers. Such practical unanimity is a rare but deserved compliment to the President's sagacity, capability and rectitude. Complete confidence could not be reposed, in a matter so momentous, in an untried man. The President's dealing with lesser complications has been so wise, so firm and so just as to convince the country that he may be absolutely trusted to steer the Ship of State through the narrow and dangerous channel ahead of it without the deviation of a hair's breadth from the course dictated by national morality and national self-respect.

The outside world will not fail to take note of the patriotic determination of the United States of America to stand behind President Wilson. When he speaks, it will be with the voice of the nation. Whatever he may determine to do will be backed up by the nation. This much is apparent to every observer who has his ear to the ground, and must be equally obvious to those who listen across the seas. An appreciation of these facts, as keen as it is at home, should contribute to safe guidance through troubled waters. —Philadelphia Record.

Mayor Preston's Great Vote

The following is from a recent issue of the Washington Times:

"Considered from a national standpoint, the victory in Baltimore of Mayor Preston, Democrat, who was re-elected by the largest majority ever given any candidate for the office, will offer little consolation to those who have been reading a Republican landslide next year in the results of scattered municipal and State elections this year. Following the upset in Chicago when the Republican candidate for mayor was successful, the political prophets announced it was all over for the Democrats next year, and the same prophecies have followed other minor Republican successes. Now comes the Baltimore election to upset all these prophecies and leave the political calculators high and dry. As a matter of fact, if the trend had been as heavily Republican as the prophets contended, the situation in Baltimore was an ideal one for favoring it. Mayor Preston in his four years in office had made many strong enemies and was so vulnerable that with the tide drifting 'strongly' against his party, even a weak candidate against him ought to have gotten a majority. But the result shows not only that Preston, a Democrat, got the biggest majority given a mayor in Baltimore in recent years, but also that his total vote was many thousands larger than the biggest previous vote for any Democrat in Baltimore city, including the Democratic vote for President in 1912."

The Times says the local aspect of the Baltimore election is very significant; that the city Democrats, opposed to Mr. Lee for Governor four years ago, will aid in his nomination, and that Mr. Preston will succeed Mr. Lee in the Senate, where the latter's term will soon expire.

No Unsinkable Ship

As in the case of the Titanic disaster, the sinking of the Lusitania has brought forth again the positive word of the leading ship builders that to build an unsinkable ship is an impossibility. The chief disadvantage of the great liners is the time it takes to get the people off in case of disaster. The other disadvantage is the rapidity with which these so-called unsinkable ships dive beneath the waves in case of accident.

The fact should be borne in upon the minds of all travelers by sea that there is no such thing as a ship that cannot be sunk and that the big ship has proven itself peculiarly susceptible to collapse. The Cunard line and the British Admiralty office are alike under fire because of the claim set forth that the Lusitania presented no elements of positive danger. The reverse has been shown in terrific fashion. Thus the controversy that raged over the losses upon the Titanic is again being waged over the losses sustained by those who went down with the great ship—the survivors who are very bitter and the friends of those who were lost.

Entirely aside from the war aspects of the catastrophe the question of liability for the occurrence is one of acute accusation against the British. This includes as well a measure of the moral liability. Whatever may be the outcome, the fact has again been set forth and should interest all future travelers upon the sea—the fact needs to be emphasized—that there is and there can be no unsinkable ship. In normal times the one great reliance of the ship at sea that meets with accident is the wireless call for aid. It is impossible for the big ships to carry enough boats to take off all, and unlikely to have this extraordinary feat can ever be accomplished under conditions of acute peril and excitement. —Baltimore American.

In the matter of the tax sale of real estate in West Princess Anne Election District of Somerset county, assessed to Levin P. Phoebus, made and reported by John E. Holland, County Treasurer for Somerset county, Beverly T. Hitch, purchaser, ex parte.

No. 3004, Chancery. In the Circuit Court for Somerset County, in Equity.
Whereas, a certain John E. Holland, County Treasurer for Somerset county, in the State of Maryland, has reported to the Circuit Court for Somerset County, a sale made by him to Beverly T. Hitch, of all that lot and parcel of land in West Princess Anne Election District, Somerset county, Maryland, viz: Lot No. 6—Being all that lot of land in said West Princess Anne Election District, county and state aforesaid, containing 2½ acres, more or less, with the improvements thereon, situated on a road leading from the main county road to Trappe Mills and opposite the said Trappe Mills, adjoining the land of John W. Jones, conveyed to Levin P. Phoebus by William A. Wallace and wife, by deed recorded in Liber O. T. B. No. 39, folio 385, and assessed to the said Levin P. Phoebus on the assessment books of said election district, for the said year 1913, and sold for the payment of taxes due in and arrears, together with all the proceedings had in relation thereto; and whereas upon examination it appears to the said Court that the said proceedings are regular and that the provisions of the law in relation thereto have been complied with.

Now therefore, it is hereby ordered, by the Circuit Court for Somerset County, in Equity, this 15th day of May, 1915, that notice be given by the publication of this order once a week for four successive weeks in the Marylander and Herald, a weekly newspaper published in Somerset county, before the 16th day of June, 1915, warning all persons interested in the said real estate to be and appear in this Court on or before the 21st day of June, 1915, to show cause, if any they have, why said sale should not be ratified and confirmed.

Completion of State Roads

If Chairman Weller's expectations as to the time limit for the roundup are realized, the system of State roads, in so far as provided for by the appropriations of the last three legislatures, will be completed before the middle of August. The final contracts were but recently given out; but these, almost without exception, are for short stretches and involve construction work in every instance, that can be finished within ninety days.

The State road system, as it will be turned over to the State Roads Commission this year, will consist of about 1,000 miles of modern, hard surfaced roads. This road system, which focuses at Baltimore more than at any other point in the State, extends in connected lines through all of the counties on each side of the Chesapeake Bay. Starting from Baltimore as a central point in the system it is possible to journey westward through six counties to the West Virginia boundary line, or by traveling northeastward and crossing the Susquehanna and then turning southward the tourist will find a linked up chain of roads leading down through the nine Eastern Shore counties. Likewise he may journey over hard roads through Southern Maryland to where the Potomac turns into the Bay.

The construction cost, when the work now under contract shall have been completed, the sum of $2,100,000, over $17,500,000. The building of the chain of good roads has created a large bonded debt for the State; but there are more people now than there were at the beginning who believe that this costly improvement is a wise investment; that the State has or will have in the ultimate results, full value for the outlay. The farming communities of the State will benefit directly and the cities and towns will benefit indirectly ultimately. —Baltimore American.

Frank Sentenced to Die June 22

Leo M. Frank, convicted of the murder of Mary Phagan, was sentenced to be hanged June 22d by Judge Ben Hill in the Criminal Court at Atlanta, Ga., on Monday of last week.

If there is any further action in this case, it must come from Governor Slayton, of Georgia, who is now being flooded with petitions to commute the sentence of Frank to life imprisonment. Governor Slayton will retire from office June 26th.

It was Frank's fourth sentence to death following his conviction on the charge of murdering Mary Phagan.

His lawyers said they would push his appeal for a commutation to life imprisonment as rapidly as possible, but the belief was the prison board would not hear his petition until June.

A band of gypsies on their way northward last Saturday, stopped in Princess Anne for a few hours. They said they were from Brazil and had come through the Panama Canal and landed in Norfolk, Va., where they purchased their outfit of wagons and horses. There were several women and children in the band.

The long continued drouth which had prevailed in this section was broken on Wednesday last when we were visited by a gentle rain which fell from early morning until sundown. The showers during last week were gratefully received and they will add thousands of dollars to the receipts of our farmers on their early crops.

Last Tuesday a delegation of citizens from Deal's Island appeared before the Board of County Commissioners in reference to a new school building for that place. ## State's Prettiest Girl is Selected

Miss Clara M. McAbee, of Frederick county, has been selected from among nearly 900 pretty girls of the State as the prettiest in Maryland.

Her photograph was among the large number submitted to the Baltimore Evening News in a Beauty Contest, the prize for which is to be a trip to the Panama-Pacific Exposition and other points in the great West.

The photographs were of young ladies from throughout Baltimore city and from all over the State. The News secured the services of five prominent citizens of Baltimore as judges. The judges inspected all the photographs and eliminated all but 20. Invitations were sent by The News to the young ladies so determined upon to a tea at the Hotel Stafford, where they met the judges. The latter, after much deliberation, decided upon Miss McAbee. She will leave for California June 3rd.

Germany's Move Next

The Government and people of the United States are looking expectantly toward Berlin, where Ambassador Gerard has been instructed to present to the German Foreign Office a note calling the attention of the Imperial Government to the "unlawful and inhuman" destruction of the Lusitania and other violations of American rights on the high seas.

Germany is asked in the note to disavow the acts of her submarine commanders in the torpedoing without warning of the Lusitania, a British ship, with a loss of more than 100 American lives and the American steamer Guilford, "as a result of which two or more American citizens met their death." Reparation, "so far as reparation is possible," is asked, and the United States declares it "confidently expects that the Imperial German Government will take immediate steps to prevent the recurrence of such acts and practices."

The note was delayed in passage and a reply is not expected for a week.

Paint Put-On

Think of paint put-on and not by the gallon. A gallon of paint in the can is of no account to anybody. Put it on. Now reckon its cost and value.

The secret is: one paint goes twice as far as another. A good one goes twice as far as a bad one.

You have a job, say an average job. It'll take 10 gallons Devco and 12 or 15 or 18 or 20 of middling poor very-poor and trash. You know painter's wages in your town. Put the price of a gallon of paint and the painter's day-wage together. You can't.

Devco costs less than any inferior paint; there are hundreds of them. One paint is as good as another, so long as it lasts good; one lasts months and another years; and the one that goes furthest lasts longest.

For State Care Of Poor

That the State should care for the poor of the several counties instead of each county maintaining a home for paupers is the opinion of the Anne Arundel county grand jury, and a recommendation to that effect is made in the report submitted last Tuesday to the Circuit Court at Annapolis.

The report recommends that the County Commissioners prepare a bill for the next Legislature providing for construction by the State of two institutions for the poor, one to be located on the Eastern Shore and the other on the Western Shore.

HISTORY IN RELICS

A FAMOUS COSTUME DISPLAY.

Besides Uniforms of National Heroes, There Are Nineteen Gowns of the Wives of Our Presidents, Beginning With One of Martha Washington.

A recent report on the United States National museum gives an account of the origin and development of the division of history which will appeal to every American. The first building expressly erected for the National museum was not opened to the public until October, 1881, and from that date until the occupation of the new building, in June, 1911, it contained the greater part of the exhibits. Since the opening of the new building, however, the natural history collections have been removed there, leaving more space in the older building for the extension of the divisions of American history and arts and industries.

The division was originally organized to illustrate the history of the United States from colonial times by exhibiting such relics and memorials of noteworthy persons and events and the domestic life of the country as could be brought together into groups of objects representing the different periods. One striking feature in this connection is the unique American period costume collection of nineteen dresses belonging to the successive hostesses of the White House from the time of Martha Washington to that of a recent administration. These costumes are so exhibited on lay figures as to bring out the full effects of the gowns, although no effort has been made to reproduce the faces of the individuals. Several other dresses and a great number of accessories of apparel, including shawls, shoes, hats and bonnets, gloves, handkerchiefs, combs, fans and jewelry, are also on display.

Among the costumes and uniforms of American men shown are a uniform and dress suit of George Washington, a court suit of General Thomas Pinckney, the court dress and other attire of James Monroe and the uniform coat of General Andrew Jackson, worn at the battle of New Orleans.

Many memorials and relics of George Washington were purchased from the Lewis heirs and deposited in the museum in 1873, which, with sundry additions, now include some 400 objects.

Historical furniture which at one time or another was the property of men of national importance—Lafayette, Jefferson, Putnam, Hamilton, Gansevoort, Cooper and others—is displayed. Colonial relics deposited by the national society of the Colonial Dames of America fill two large cases.

The printing press used in 1725-26 by Benjamin Franklin when a printer in London is specially interesting on account of its connection with this noted statesman, as well as its historical importance as regards the development of the science of printing.

Models of five sailing vessels connected with the discovery and early history of the United States represent a viking ship, such as the Norsemen used in their supposed early visits to this continent in about 1000 A. D.; the Santa Maria, flagship of Columbus; the Susan Constant, which brought the first permanent English colony to America; the Mayflower of the pilgrims; and the United States frigate Constitution.

The war of 1812 and the Mexican war are represented by many swords, pistols, guns, medals, flags, uniforms and accoutrements belonging to military and naval officers, among whom are Generals Brown, Ripley, Shields, Magruder, Paul, Morgan, Browne of the United States army, and Captain Lawrence, U. S. N. One of the most valued possessions of the museum is the star spangled banner of Fort Mifflin, the inspiration of Key's immortal verses. This historic flag has been backed and repaired by an elaborate process, which insures its permanent preservation.

Associated with the civil war are memorials and mementos of many well known Americans—Lincoln, Grant, Lee, Sherman, Custer, Foote and many others prominent in that great struggle. The extensive Grant collection, occupying four cases, is especially interesting.

Among other prominent officers recalled by various mementos are Macomb, Hancock, Decatur, Perry, Bidle, Porter, Farragut, Wilkes, Phillips, Newcomb, Maury, Rogers and Meigs. The historical development in science is shown by several individual exhibits illustrating the work of Henry, Morse, Field, Langley, Francis, Bache, Morton, Wharton and Baird, but most of the scientific apparatus is included in the division of mechanical technology.

A Difference.
"I thought they didn't allow waiters to take tips in this restaurant," said the lawyer at the table.
"We don't, sir," replied the waiter.
"I saw that man at the next table give you a tip just now."
"No, sir, that was not a tip, sir; that was a retainer."—Yonkers Statesman.

The Key Ring.
The key ring symbolizes the old custom of handing over the keys of the house to the woman. This was more than a design used for the wedding ring and occasionally for the betrothal.

Forgiveness is better than revenge.—Proverbs.

WHY YOU ARE NERVOUS

The nervous system is the alarm system of the human body.

In perfect health we hardly realize that we have a network of nerves, but when health is ebbing, when strength is declining, the same nervous system gives the alarm in headaches, tiredness, dreamful sleep, irritability and unless corrected, leads straight to a breakdown.

To correct nervousness, Scott's Emulsion is exactly what you should take; its rich nutrient gets into the blood and rich blood feeds the tiny nerve-cells while the whole system responds to its refreshing tonic force. It is free from alcohol. Scott & Bowne, Bloomfield, N. J.

Kilowatt Formula.
Here is what a kilowatt is and the formula for computing it:

First, multiply the current by the resistance of the propeller of the electric light plant; divide this by the meter on the wall and add whatever you can't multiply. The answer will come in dollars and cents. Just divide these by the price you pay per kilowatt and multiply again to find out what a kilowatt is. It is something you can feel, but can't see; something that you pay for according to what some one tells you who doesn't know what he is talking about, and he proves it by the meter that runs by guess and by thunder and is attached to a wall by a hired man with machine grease on his nose. You know just how many kilowatts you have had, just what they cost you a piece, but you don't know what they are, what they look like, who made them or what shape they are.—St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

The Curious Pelican.

The pelican is as large as a swan, has white feathers tinged with red, while the breasts of the old ones are yellow. The breast feathers end in narrow points, and all the plumage is very coarse. But the remarkable point about the pelican is its beak. The upper jaw is long, large and flat and has a hook at the end, which curves over the lower jaw. The lower jaw has attached to it a great pouch, which the pelican can make small when empty or can expand so as to carry all the fish which it catches in a hunt. This pouch is the pelican's game bag. When the pelican goes into the water of a stream or lake it catches all the fish it can, but does not swallow them. It carries them in its pouch. When it reaches the land it can eat the fish at its leisure. But more important is the fact that from the pouch the pelican can feed its young ones.—Kansas City Star.

Hymns and Longevity.

The practice of hymn writing appears to be conducive to longevity. Charlotte Elliott, who wrote "Just as I Am," was eighty-two at the time of her death; Bishop Bickersteth, who wrote "Peace, Perfect Peace," was eighty-one, as also was Charles Wesley. Bishop Walsham How, author of some of the most popular of the hymns, ancient and modern; John Keble and Bishop Kerr, the writer of the famous "Evening Hymn," were seventy-four. Fanny Crosby, the famous blind hymn writer, was ninety-four. And in compiling such a list as this, one ought not to forget the name of W. E. Gladstone, who narrowly escaped becoming a nonagenarian. One of Mr. Gladstone's hymns—"Oh, Lead My Blindness by the Hand"—is to be found in the English Hymnal—London Chronicle.

Poisonous Experiments.

Even fungi collectors seem generally agreed that there is really no trustworthy test for distinguishing wholesome from dangerous mushrooms beyond the old Baconian method of observation and experiment. Toward the end of the eighteenth century Curtis, the original compiler of "Flora Londinensis," adopted an ingenious device for determining whether fungi were edible or poisonous. He tried every suspected fungus, not "on the dog," but upon his gardeners! What happened to those unhappy horticulturists is not recorded.—London Family Herald.

Not to Be Desired.

"How artificial we have grown since the good old days!"
"Maybe," replied Mr. Growcher, "but no argument is going to get me longing very seriously for the good old days when the women used to come down to breakfast with their hair in curl papers."—Washington Star.

Sandstone.

All rocks contain some water, but some, such as the granites, carry only an inappreciable amount. Sandstone, on the other hand, has an absorptive capacity of a gallon or more of water to the cubic foot of rock, and is the best water bearer of the solid rocks.

Decided to Stay.

"Oh, hubby, I'm happy!"
"What's the good news? Somebody left you a fortune?"
"Oh, better! The new cook has sent for her trunk!"—Philadelphia Ledger.

Color Change.

"Your new assistant is blue over his work."

MANY USES FOR GUNS.

They Have Even Been the Means at Times of Saving Lives.

Guns would not go even if warfare were abolished. For example, the signal gun of a ship is used to announce her arrival on a coast. It would be difficult to find an equally effective substitute. The 1 o'clock gun, too, which is fired by electricity from Greenwich observatory, is the most effective means possible of announcing the exact time to surrounding towns, while nothing more impressive could be found than the minute guns fired for public mourning and the salute given on occasions of public rejoicings.

Guns save lives as well as take them. In desert countries, where it is difficult to collect water out of a mere dampness of sand, gun barrels are often sunk into the ground. By this means moisture is collected in the bore and many lives have been preserved by a timely draw at the muzzle.

A slaver, captured with a crew of slaves in the tropics, was once put in charge of a prize crew. During the voyage water ran out and slaves, slavers and prize crew were all dying of thirst. Then a sergeant hit on a brilliant idea. Taking all the available gun barrels, he plugged up the breach ends of a few of them, filled their bores with sea water and set them end up among the coals of the galley fire. Then as the steam rose he ran it through the other gun barrels till it cooled. The cooling steam collected in the shape of excellent fresh water and by this means scores of lives were saved.—Pearson's Weekly.

A Nice Point in Law.

Of Sir Thomas Egerton, who was gifted with poor perception, this story is told: "A poor woman had been entrusted with the care of a large sum of money by three farmers who told her to keep it safely until they appeared together to claim it. Shortly afterward one of them went to her and, representing that he came at the direction of the other two, he received the money and forthwith disappeared. The other two brought action to recover the whole deposit. Egerton happened to be in court during the trial, in which an intimate friend defended the woman. Seeing that the case was going against his friend, Egerton volunteered to speak as amicus curiae. Permission was granted. Emphasizing the condition on which the money was left in the woman's care, Egerton said: 'It is clear that the plaintiffs cannot recover because it is to the three appearing together that the defendant agreed to deliver the money. Where is the third? Let him be produced.' Thus Egerton saved the day for his friend."

Manganese Steel.

A remarkable peculiarity of manganese steel is its almost complete lack of magnetic properties. A bar of this steel balanced on a knife edge was not drawn out of balance by a powerful electromagnet, but when hammered into very thin foil the steel was lifted by the magnet.

JUDGE FOR YOURSELF

Which Is Better—Try An Experiment Or Print By A Princess Anne Citizen's Experience

Something new is an experiment. Must be proved to be as represented. The statement of a manufacturer is not convincing proof of merit. But the endorsement of friends is. Now supposing you had a bad back, a lame, weak, or aching one. Would you experiment on it? You will read of many so-called cures. Endorsed by strangers from far-away places.

It's different when the endorsement comes from home.

Easy to prove local testimony. Read this Princess Anne case: Thomas H. Heath, Beckford avenue, Princess Anne, Md., says: "I suffered from severe pains in the small of my back and was restless. In the morning I felt tired and worn out. I also had dizzy spells which were so severe, I could hardly stand. Doan's Kidney Pills helped me in every way and I was soon cured of kidney complaint."

Summer School For Teachers

The following notice by State Superintendent M. Bates, Stephens will explain itself. The summer school at Ocean City, Md., is for teachers who have not had pedagogical training. The idea of the State Board of Education is to supply such persons with the facilities which the law requires. There is, therefore, no charge for tuition.

"Under provision of a law passed by the General Assembly of 1914, no person without teaching experience and who has not had the equivalent of a five weeks' summer school course for teachers can be employed as a public school teacher in the State of Maryland after June 1915. To supply this minimum pedagogic qualification a summer school term, to last at least five weeks, will be conducted in the new Education Building at Ocean City—to begin July 6, under the direction of Prof. H. H. Murphy, head of the department of pedagogy of the Maryland State Normal School. Only persons who are without experience and special training for teaching are eligible to take the course. No charge for tuition.

Mrs. Margaret Weekes Dead

Mrs. Margaret Weekes died at the house of her son, Mr. David Weekes, near Mt. Vernon, this county, last Wednesday, aged 83 years.

Mrs. Weekes was born in Radnorshire, Wales, on July 16th, 1835. She resided in Ohio for 48 years before moving to Somerset county.

Funeral services were held at her late home on Wednesday, after which her remains were sent to North Baltimore, Ohio, for burial. She is survived by four sons—Messrs. William and John Weekes, of Colorado, and David and Albert Weekes, of Somerset county.

Deal's Island High School

The County Commissioners last week ordered a levy of $2500 to be made for the Deal's Island High School building. This amount, with $2000 levied last year, makes a total of $4500. This information will be most gratifying to the people of Deal's Island. The present school building is a poor affair, and there is great need of a new one that will be a credit to themselves as well as the county. The School Board will meet this (Tuesday) afternoon to take steps looking to the immediate erection of the new school house.

Capt. Horace G. Ford, of Fairmount, who was arrested two weeks ago for perjury, was tried before the United States District Court in Baltimore and sentenced to one year in the Federal prison at Atlanta, Ga. When arraigned for trial, Capt. Ford pled guilty. His arrest grew out of his attempt to withhold certain dredging equipment from a U. S. Marshal's sale, by giving untrue testimony concerning its ownership.

HARRINGTON OR LEE FOR GOVERNOR

Smith Refuses To Support Lintinicum And Later Eliminated From Race

The alignments in the approaching Democratic gubernatorial primary fight have been made and the fight will be a straight out two-man affair between United States Senator Blair Lee, backed by Mayor Preston, the Baltimore Democratic organization and the Lee forces in the counties; and State Comptroller Emerson Harrington, backed by the old line county forces led by United States Senator John Walter Smith.

Congressman J. Charles Lintinicum was automatically eliminated from the contest last Thursday morning, when, according to reports, Senator Smith served notice upon him that he (Smith) would stand or fall with Harrington and that under no condition would he leave the latter for another gubernatorial candidate. Mayor Preston is expected to declare for Lee in a few days.

After the conference with Senator Smith Congressman Lintinicum said:

"I had a conference with Senator Smith today concerning the gubernatorial nomination. Of course, everybody recognizes that Senator Smith has for weeks been favorable to the candidacy of his friend and fellow-Eastern shoreman, Mr. Harrington.

"I, however, had a very nice talk with Senator Smith and I would like several days—say until Wednesday of next week—to take up with a number of friends the situation before I make the announcement of my position and outline my plans.

"I will say, however, that whatever attitude I take I will be for what I believe to be the best interests of this city and State and the Democratic party, which has honored me and which I have endeavored at all times to faithfully serve."

The Congressman is understood to have asked the Senator if his support would be forthcoming if he (Lintinicum) could corral the support of the city organization. The Senator stood "pat" for Harrington.

What course Congressman Lintinicum will take no one knows, but his political friends say that under the circumstances there is only one thing for him to do. They expect him to retire from the race and line up with the Harrington nomination. Ex-State Senator Gorman is counted on to follow suit.

Sensor Smith's claim that the State Comptroller can be nominated over Blair Lee with the support of the city supplementing the strength of the Montgomery man is believed by scarcely anyone. Lee men, estimating the results, gives Mr. Harrington Worcester, Dorchester, Baltimore and Alleghany counties, with Talbot in doubt, and places all the other votes, a total of 99, in the Lee column.

Tri-County Institute Instructors

Superintendents E. W. McMaster, of Worcester county; W. J. Holloway, of Wicomico, and W. H. Dashiell, of Somerset, have secured the following well known instructors for the Tri-County Teachers' Institute, which will meet in the new Summer Normal School at Ocean City on the 25th of August, and remain in session for a week:

F. S. Lunt, of the Horace Mann School, Teachers' College, Columbia University, "Reading" and "English."

Dr. Charles F. Keyes, President of Skidmore School of Arts, Saratoga Springs, "General Education."

Prof. Thomas D. Eason, Department of Biology, State Normal School, Farmville, Va., "Science."

Dr. Julius M. Winslow, Principal of the Normal and Training School of Elizabeth, N. J., "Methods," and "Pedagogy."

Tankersley's Assailants Indicted

On the charge of assaulting and robbing William J. Tankersley, of Deal's Island, a deputy sheriff of Somerset county, James W. McRae, 24 years old, of Norfolk, Va., and William Meredith, 409 South Robinson street, Baltimore, were indicted last Tuesday by the grand jury in Baltimore city.

Earlier in the day the men were given a hearing before Justice Supplee, at the Central Police Station, Baltimore, and held in default of $3,000 bail.

Both men confessed to Detectives Dunn and Davis that they assaulted and robbed Tankersley and made known the place where they had pawned his watch.

Tankersley said the two men lured him to a lonely strip of woods on Edmondson avenue near Nineteenth street, in Baltimore, and, after beating him over the head with a blackjack, robbed him.

The final meeting of the Parent-Teachers' Association of the Washington High School, at Princess Anne, for the present year, was held last Friday afternoon. The session was short and after the reading of the minutes and adjustment of accounts, an adjournment was taken until the fall.

TRANSFER OF 250 INSANE PERSONS

Taken To The New Hospital Near Cambridge Last Tuesday

About 250 insane persons were transferred last Tuesday to the new Eastern Shore State Hospital for the Insane, which is located near Cambridge, from the Springfield State Hospital for the Insane, at Sykesville; the Spring Grove State Hospital, at Catonsville, and the Cecil County Almshouse, at Cherry Hill. The transfer of the latter marks the end of the county almshouse system of caring for insane.

Those from Sykesville were taken to Baltimore on special cars; the others were taken to the city on regular trains. As soon as they reached the city all of the patients were taken in automobiles and ambulances to the city pier, Pratt street near Light, and put aboard the iceboat Latrobe, which transported them directly to the hospital. The institution is situated on the Choptank river.

It was said that it was one of the largest, if not the largest, transfer of insane persons ever made, and the utmost precautions were taken by Dr. Arthur P. Herring, secretary of the State Lunacy Commission, who was in charge, to insure safety. Numerous physicians and nurses were in attendance. Policemen met the trains and were at the boat and even a band was on hand to give music at the moments when excitement was expected, the insane being easily soothed, it is said, in that way.

In addition to Dr. Herring, the following physicians superintended the transfer: J. Clement Clark, Harry D. Purdum and John M. Morris, of Springfield; J. Percy Wade, of Spring Grove; W. R. Dunton, of the Sheppard and Enoch Pratt, and Jesse C. Coggins, of the Laurel Sanatorium.

As the iceboat Latrobe was nearing the pier upon the arrival at Cambridge B. P. Bowen, 60 years old, of Somerset county, a former inmate of Springfield Hospital, took advantage of the attention of his guard being drawn to scenes on the pier and jumped from the rail of the steamer into the water. The greatest excitement prevailed for a while as the boat stopped and they were rescued by the other guards.

The desperate jump of the insane man was noticed by William Riley and Reginald Johnson, of Cambridge, who were in their motor-boat. They at once made for the man, who was wildly paddling in the water in the wake of the steamer, and finally succeeded in hauling him into their boat. He resisted at first, saying he had intended to take this jump ever since the steamer started from Baltimore, but had been too closely watched. When brought ashore, seemingly none the worse for his cold bath; he was taken to the hospital in a buggy.

Two Victims of Cambridge Tragedy

J. Ennalls Beckwith on Monday night of last week shot and killed his wife, Mrs. Sadie Beckwith, at their home, in the Neck district, Dorchester county, Md., and then committed suicide, it is believed. Both are dead and this is the most plausible explanation.

Mrs. Beckwith went to her room early in the evening, leaving Mr. Beckwith down stairs. About 11 o'clock Mr. Beckwith went upstairs, and, shortly after, Ernest Adams, who sleeps in a third-story room, heard a scuffle in Mr. Beckwith's room, but as it was a very frequent occurrence for Mr. Beckwith and his wife to quarrel and fight, he thought nothing of it at the time. He did not hear any shot fired.

When Mr. Beckwith and his wife failed to appear at breakfast, George Ward, an elderly colored man, who is the cook, and has lived with the family for 20 years or more, began to think that there was something wrong. He waited until about 10 o'clock Tuesday morning and then went to Mr. Beckwith's room and found the door bolted on the inside, and he immediately telephoned to Daniel L. Moore, a justice of the peace. Mr. Moore communicated with State's Attorney Trice and he took Sheriff Sherman and Deputy Sheriff Bruce C. Deen and Dr. Brice W. Goldsborough to the Beckwith home.

There was another bullet hole in a picture which hung over the bed. Mrs. Beckwith's body bore marks of a severe struggle. There were finger nail marks on her arms, face and neck, and her arms and body were badly bruised. A revolver with one empty chamber and four bullets was found on the bed.

Subsequently, Beckwith's body was found in the Choptank river. A large bullet hole was in the head. The ball had entered the right side and gone entirely through, passing out the left side at the top. The shot was evidently fired while Beckwith was standing on the edge of the wharf.

The Baltimore News last Saturday says: "Strong indications to-day pointed to the nomination of O. E. Weller as the Republican candidate for Governor."

"It was said that the Republican forces in the city and State are rapidly lining up for Mr. Weller and that an announcement of his candidacy can be expected next week."

"Mr. Weller is chairman of the State Roads Commission and is a resident of Baltimore county."

"Special Motion Picture Attractions"

Next Friday night the 28th, a special attraction at the Auditorium will be "Salisbury Field Day" in addition to the regular three reels of motion pictures—four reels at the regular price of 5 cents. Go and see if Wicomico Field Day was as good as ours recently held in Princess Anne. You will see people you know on the screen.

ROAD SYSTEM NEARING COMPLETION

Maryland Now Has Thousand Miles Of Modern Highways

Chairman Weller of the Road Commission recently said that the State road system would be completed within 90 days, all the contracts having been awarded and the work of closing the gaps is well under way.

When completed Maryland will have 1000 miles of modern roads, the finest in the world, Mr. Weller believes, for which $17,564,465 has been spent.

"In Maryland," he said, "and especially on the Eastern Shore, I can show you something that can be seen nowhere else in the country. Their macadam roads completed two, three and four years ago are better roads—smoother with greater thickness of stone—than they were on the day they were built. That has been done by applying to the surface with the oil stone chips, the quality of which has been increased from 4 3/4 tons a mile in 1914. This stone can be made to mingle with the roadbed, becoming as much a part of it as the oil, the quantity of which, we find, can be gradually reduced after the first application. The whole proposition means this: Gradual improvement instead of gradual, even rapid, deterioration of the road system at a decreasing expense."

For road maintenance the State appropriates 1 cent on the tax rate. This nets about $95,000. A portion of the automobile tax is devoted to the same purpose, giving a total of $275,000. Mr. Weller does not regard it sufficient for the present. Originally the maintenance charges were about $466 a mile. That has been gradually reduced to $329. Next year the completion of so many miles of roads requiring their first oiling will raise the initial cost, but in time the chairman believes the average maintenance can be made very reasonable.

Maryland was the first State, and is even now, possibly, the only State that submits specifications and asks for bids on the oil used on the roads. Last year the stone used on the roads aggregated 26,553 tons, and the oil 1,393,000 gallons.

As laid out, a trip can be made over the new roads from Baltimore to Ocean City or Snow Hill in Worcester. Going in the opposite direction they will find the road in better condition than when they started.

Baltimore a run can be made to Drum Point in Calvert and through Washington to Point Lookout in St. Mary's. In Somerset county work on the road from Marion to Harold's Corner is progressing rapidly, while the contract for the cut between Hopewell and Marion will be awarded sometime this month. Here and there links could be built that would facilitate travel, but the system will practically be a completed thing by September.

It includes about 200 miles of concrete, 650 of macadam and 150 miles of gravel, vitrified brick and other materials. Gravel was used in some parts of Southern Maryland, and the vitrified brick and other materials suited to heavy and continuous travel in Baltimore city.

Joseph A. Wickes Dead

Joseph A. Wickes, 88 years old, a former judge of the Southern Judicial Circuit on the Eastern Shore, and former president of Washington College, died last Tuesday afternoon at his home in Chestertown, Kent county. Death resulted from the infirmities of age.

Mr. Wickes was a brother of Pere L. Wickes, of Baltimore. Lewis L. Wickes, of the State Tax Commission, is a nephew.

Mr. Wickes was a prominent Democrat and was a member of the Constitutional Convention in 1867. He was also a member of the State Legislature from Alleghany county, elected in 1856. He was elected a judge in 1868 and was re-elected at the end of his term. He served for 30 years on the bench and retired in 1897. He remained president of Washington College until about 10 years ago, when his failing health forced him to resign.

Mrs. Gladys Robinson Wickes, his widow, and two children—Miss Gladys Wickes and Joseph A. Wickes, Jr., a student at Princeton—survive.

Western Maryland College

The forty-fifth commencement of Western Maryland College will be held June 11th to 16th. The graduating class numbers 38. Miss Margaret Tull, of Marion, is the only member from Somerset county. On Friday, June 11th, the Freshmen and Sophomore contests in elocution will be held. On Saturday, June 12th, a class window will be unveiled and the president's reception to faculty and students will occur. On Sunday, June 13th, President Lewis will deliver the baccalaureate sermon. On June 14th, 15th and 16th miscellaneous exercises will take place, and on the 16th commencement exercises will be held.

We learn by doing. Also by being done.

HIS SUMMER OUTING

How He Saved a Girl From Drowning.

By ESTHER VANDEVEER

On Lake Winnepesaukee in New England is a camp where in summer several hundred girls of all ages from twelve to twenty are congregated. They are housed in bungalows and eat on a long, broad portico, an extension of the central building, and dance in a hall built expressly for that purpose and for sundry exhibitions. There are riding masters and swimming masters— which of course involves horses and paraphernalia for both—and canoes ad libitum. A number of tennis courts complete the equipment for summer exercises.

Camp Wocomoc is located on one end of the lake, which is several miles long and from a half to a mile wide. A newcomer is not allowed to go out in a canoe until she can swim continuously a certain distance and keep afloat for fifteen minutes. Having passed this test, she may thereafter go canoeing at her pleasure. She is not hampered with skirts, for every girl must wear the camp uniform—a blouse, bloomer knickerbockers and stockings to the knees. This dress is also worn by the ladies in charge, and when they are short and fleshy it gives them an appearance of a waddling fat hen. As to the young ladies in camp costume, they all look about the same age—that is, anywhere between twelve and fifteen.

Nicholas Brewerton, a young lawyer of promise, having worked very hard during the winter till late into the spring, inquired of friends in New England for a place to spend a few weeks where he could be quiet. There must be no hotels, no casinos, nobody, in fact, except himself. The best that could be done for him was Lake Winnepesaukee. The person who recommended it—a Miss Webster—forgot to say anything about the girls' camp. It may be that she left it out of her description of the location intentionally, thinking that the sight of young girls paddling about in picturesque costumes would be a pleasant sight for the young man. She may have had a sinister intention. Be this as it may, the young man was recommended to go to Lake Winnepesaukee, but to the other end from the girls' camp.

Brewerton went to Lake Winnepesaukee and found at the end where he had been advised to settle several cottages, one of which was to rent. After learning that the occupants of the others were couples with small children who desired quietude he took the vacant cottage, getting his meals at a farm house near by. There was a rowboat in an outhouse which was rented with the house. Being uneventful, Brewerton prepared to live an uneventful life and rest.

But "man proposes, God disposes." One morning, the next after his arrival—Brewerton got out his rowboat and started out to row lazily on the lake. It was a beautiful summer morning, and the hills on one side were reflected in the water. Light clouds floated above as indolently as Brewerton floated on the lake. He was much pleased that this was the only boat within sight. Truly this was just what he had come for. He thanked in his heart the lady who had recommended it.

Hark! Brewerton had pulled up near the shore where there were overhanging trees. From under the branches came an exclamation of dissatisfaction. The voice was feminine and seemed to be that of a child. From a disturbance of the branches he inferred that some one in a boat had become entangled in them. A few strokes brought him to where he could see what was going on. First, there was a canoe with the word "Wocomoc" painted on the bow; second, there was a girl in the boat, who might have been twelve, thirteen and perhaps fourteen, dressed in a costume Brewerton had never seen before. The navy blue material of her apparel from her waist to her knees might have been a skirt or something else, he could not tell what. Judging from its length, she should be about six years old, but Brewerton was sure she was not as young as that.

"Can I do anything for you, little girl?" he asked.

"I'm not quite as familiar with canoeing as I should be. I came under the shade of these branches, and in getting out I am afraid I shall upset the canoe."

Brewerton reached forth his hand, took hold of an end of the unsteady shell and withdrew it from under the branches.

"Can you manage it now?" he asked. The girl put her paddle in the water, and the canoe careened on one side. She gave a little shriek.

"Your mother should not have let you come out in such a topply boat without your being accustomed to such sport. Look out! You'll go over."

"Oh, dear, I'm afraid I'll be drowned!" Brewerton was perplexed. He did not like to leave the child in her perilous position and did not know what to do with her. Finally he told her that if she would get into his boat he would take her home with her canoe in tow. She gladly accepted the invitation, taking a seat in the stern facing him and holding a line attached to her canoe.

"Where do you live?" asked Brewerton.

The girl looked in several directions, then pointed to a house on the opposite side of the lake. But half the distance had not been traversed when she pointed to a house in another direction. Brewerton looked at her in surprise, and she said she had "got turned around." But she soon confessed herself mistaken again and said she thought she would go to the camp.

"What camp?"

"Camp Wocomoc."

Then for the first time Brewerton learned that around a bend in the lake there was a girls' camp.

"For kids?" he asked.

"Most of us are kids, but there are some older girls."

For a kid she was quite entertaining. Brewerton was amused to hear her at times talk like a grown person. She had a sweet smile, a pair of dimples in her cheeks and pretty eyes. Brewerton was inclined to think that when she became a woman she would be quite an attractive one.

Presently they turned the bend, and the oarsman, turning, caught sight of the camp. He was much astonished. There on the margin of the lake was a congregation of boats about a large float for swimming purposes, equipped with diving apparatus. Brewerton pulled up to a landing where stood a number of girls, all in camp costume. His passenger got out of his boat, thanked him and, having tethered her canoe, went up to the camp.

Brewerton pulled back to his cottage not knowing whether to be dissatisfied or not with his discovery. He rather thought that he would like to have the little girl go boating with him occasionally. Her prattle rested him. Indeed during the next few days he found himself wishing he would meet her again on the lake. If he should be would inquire her name and address and ask her mother if she would not let her little girl go out with him.

One afternoon Brewerton got into his boat for a pull to explore the lake from end to end. He pulled up past Camp Wocomoc till he could go no farther by water, then turned and pulled back. Noticing that the swimming float was covered with girls, while others were splashing in the water, he concluded to go to it and watch the aquatic performances. At a point about a hundred feet from the float he paused. Some of the girls were diving from a springboard. One girl climbed a ladder and stood on a platform about twenty feet above the lake. Presently she gave a jump and plunged headforemost. The water closed over her, and she did not appear again for half a minute, and when she did she popped up within a few yards of Brewerton's boat and facing him.

Great heavens! She was the kid he had rescued from under the branches of a tree and had taken into his boat to save from drowning!

The water was cool, but not cool enough to keep the blood from rushing in a torrent to her cheeks. Though out of breath, she ducked and came up with her face the other way and swimming lustily for the float.

Brewerton's eyes were opened to the fact that he had been fooled. Indeed, he had been fooled in more than one respect. He had by this time seen a number of the girls of the camp and had learned that he could not judge of their age when in camp costume. But why should this girl have deceived him, feigning to be afraid of the water? Quite likely she was one of the most expert canoeists on the lake. Doubtless she was one of the denizens of the camp. All this was unintelligible to Brewerton, and, being unintelligible, it occupied his mind during the rest of his sojourn at Lake Winnepesaukee.

One day in September, after the fall began back to the city, Brewerton received a message from his friend Mrs. Webster, asking if it would be convenient for him to dine with her the next evening. She was anxious to hear how he liked Lake Winnepesaukee. He replied that it would be convenient, and he was desirous of learning why she had not told him that there was a girls' camp on the lake.

Brewerton had been admitted to his hostess' house and was telling her about how he liked the lake when the doorbell rang and another guest was admitted. Mrs. Webster left him to receive the newcomer and presently returned with a stately young woman in dinner dress. Brewerton's eyes were fixed on her for a few moments before he recognized in her altered costume the girl he had saved from drowning.

There was on the young lady's face an expression of mingling emotions. There was some blushing, some shrinking, some sign of a guilty conscience, the whole topped with a dash of amusement. On Mrs. Webster's face it was all amusement. On Brewerton's face—Brewerton's face was indescribable.

"This is my friend Nick Brewerton," said the hostess, "and this is also my friend Miss Eleanor Tibbits. I believe you two have met before. Be seated."

It was not till long after this, when Brewerton had become the husband of Miss Tibbits, that he learned what a nefarious conspiracy had been concocted against him. Miss Tibbits had been with Mrs. Webster when he asked to be recommended to a restful summer spot where there were no women. Miss Tibbits—she was twenty years of age—thought it would be a good scheme to impose herself on the gentleman in camp costume as a little girl. She had engaged to go to Camp Wocomoc and when Brewerton arrived was posted as to the fact. She had "laid" for him and caught him the first day after his arrival. Her husband referring to her popping up before him after having taken a twenty foot dive, declared that it was more surprising than if he had seen a veritable mermaid with a fish's tail.

MYSTERY OF THE MIND.

One of the Great Riddles That Science Cannot Solve.

Mind is the great unsolved mystery of science. No clue has been discovered as to what mind is, and yet scientists are ever striving to find some clue that will enable them to solve this greatest of all mysteries.

A San Francisco correspondent asks me the question:

"Since our state of temperament is subject to change from normal into several different conditions, as sad, glad, angry, happy, excited, etc., is it the body that controls the mind or mind that controls the body?"

This is an important question. In mental laboratories there have been made in recent years extensive researches. People have been tested by delicate recording electrical instruments. Questions have been asked and statements made to these persons and the action of mind on body detected by the apparatus. Increased heart action or decreased nervous tension change in bodily temperature, pulse, respiration, aspects of the face, eyes, lips—these and many more effects have been studied and results recorded in many books.

These are of great interest to detectives, courts and physicians.

Conversely, stimulation of nerves by electricity, by irritating drugs, mechanical impacts and the like have been made in all manner of ways.

The facts are that mind has a decided influence on brain, nerves, heart and vital organs through the nerves. Any manipulation of the body, nerves and circulatory systems really produces a reflex action on the mind.

The whole subject is obscure at present. So inconceivably complex is the human organization that it may be a number of years before all connections between the personality and body are discovered, if, indeed, they ever will be detected. But no clue has been discovered as to what mind is. This is an impenetrable mystery in the present state of mental science.—Edgar Lucien Larkin in New York American.

HOW TO SHAKE HANDS.

Get the Grip First, According to a Mercantile Recipe.

We have found that when you approach the person to shake hands if you will get the grip on their hand before they have time to grip yours you have gained an advantage. The hand should be slipped well into or over the hand of the person you want to shake with—that is, push the thumb and forefinger of your hand well into the thumb and forefinger of the person with whom you are shaking. Do it rather quickly, and the instant you feel that your hand is in place bring the grip into play instantly. Don't grip the hand hard enough to cause pain to the person with whom you are shaking, but yet give him a good, firm grip. After you have practiced a little you can tell just about how hard you can squeeze without hurting the other person.

Before your hands touch be sure that you are looking the other person square in the eye. Don't wait until you have hold of his hand, but watch his eye instantly, and if you will watch the eye of the other one very closely you will notice that when you bring the grip into play you can see a response in the features of the other person.

Then it is a good idea immediately when you feel your hand touch the other person to place your left hand on his elbow, not below the elbow, but back of it, so as to be able to pull his arm, as it were, toward yours. Don't pull very hard, but just be firm about it. Take hold of the elbow joint with just a little firmness. Of course these things are all done practically at the same time, and it will take a little practice for you to be able to do this and get the best results.—Merchants' Trade Review.

The Changing Sky.

One of the most surprising results of the cross motion of the fixed stars, as projected on the background of the sky, is the gradual falling to pieces of the familiar constellations. The stars are moving in all sorts of directions, some faster and some slower, and the inevitable consequence must be that in a few centuries the whole face of the heavens will be so changed that if we could come back again to our earthly life we should not recognize them. Of course a very long period of time will be required to produce a very great transformation.

Buried With Dolls.

In the Chinese morgue one of the strange sights is a number of life size dolls which are buried to accompany the corpses as their servants to the next world. They are doubtless a relic of the time when human beings were thus buried as companions of the deceased.—Exchange.

The Seven Seas.

The seven seas are the north and the south Atlantic, the north and the south Pacific and the Indian, Arctic and Antarctic oceans.

The Fire Bag.

The "fire bag" is a relic of the old days of wooden ships. Every whaler and sealer used to carry such a bag. It was of tarpaulin, about one foot in length and six inches in width. It was lined with waterproof material, with interlinings of oilcloth and thick flannel. In this was placed the flint and tinderbox for kindling fire. The bag was then securely fastened with double daps and tied in such a manner as to keep its contents dry.

It was the duty of the second mate to look after the fire bag, and in case of shipwreck to attach it at once to his person by means of stout straps provided for the purpose. So, if officers and crew were cast away on some deserted shore, the means of obtaining a fire were not wanting so long as the precious fire bag was safe.

The modern steam whalers and sealers carry a fire bag stowed in the lifeboats with the bread and water, but it is of rubber, and contains half a dozen water tight tin boxes of matches.—Philadelphia Press.

How a Siphon Acts.

The main principle of the siphon is the same as that of a suction pump, viz., that if a vacuum be created in a tube inserted in water the normal pressure of the atmosphere will cause the water to rise in the vacuum to a height of about thirty-three feet. The siphon is a bent tube, one side or leg of which is longer than the other, and the conditions of its successful operation are, first, that the shorter side or leg be placed in the water; second, the longer side or leg to hang freely over the edge of the vessel; third, a vacuum to be created throughout the length of the tube by sucking the air from the longer side. This will be immediately followed by a flow of water, which will continue as long as the mouth of the shorter side or leg of the tube remains under the surface of the water. In transferring water from a lower level care should be taken not to remove the short side from the water, as that would destroy the vacuum and cause the flow to stop.

English Conservatism.

Day and night, winter and summer, in all weathers, a tug with steam up is stationed on the Thames at the Tower bridge. It is a floating illustration of the fact that parliament is sometimes—only sometimes, of course—needlessly fussy. When the bill empowering the corporation of London to build the bridge was passing through the house of commons a provision was inserted requiring the stationing of a tug as aforesaid, so as to be handy "in case of wreck." The promoters protested that the cost of the tug would far exceed any benefit to be derived from it. The commons thought they knew better and insisted. The bridge was opened about sixteen years ago, and the tug has cost the city of London £31 per week ever since. Yet its services "in case of wreck" are not other emergency have never once been required.—London Express.

Earthquake Shocks.

There are such things as earth waves as well as ether waves. But while the ether waves have, by the genius of a Marconi, been harnessed into the service of mankind, no scientist has yet discovered any uses for earth waves or even any means of utilizing them. The shock of a seismic disturbance travels in waves at the rate of two miles a second in the actual vicinity of the disturbance, and this rate rapidly diminishes as the distance traveled by the earth waves increases. The deeper the originating movement happens to be the further the shock travels, but the deeper the movement, on the other hand, the less extensive and usually the less serious, from the point of view of loss of life, is the visible effect on the earth's surface.

A Retiary.

A retiary was the name of a Roman gladiator armed in a peculiar way. He was furnished with a trident and net, with no more covering than a short tunic, and with these implements he endeavored to entangle and dispatch his adversary, who was called a secutor (from sequi, to follow) and was armed with a helmet, a shield and a sword. The name of the first is pronounced as if spelled re-shia-ry, the accent on the first syllable.

Tactful Man.

"I must say these are fine biscuits!" exclaimed the young husband.

"How could you say those are fine biscuits?" inquired the young wife's mother in a private interview.

"I didn't say they were fine. I merely said I must say so."—Washington Star.

A Mother's Mistake

By MARGARET C. DEVEREAUX

Farmer Perks called his son Thomas to him one bright spring morning and said to him, "Thomas, I wish you to go to town and sell the calf." Thomas got himself ready to go to town, putting on his store clothes and brushing himself up so that he looked very well. He was a handsome youth, and his mother dreaded that some girl on the way might fancy him and get away with him. It occurred to her to so handicap him that he would be in no condition to respond to such advances. So she said to him:

"Tom, dear, since you are going to the city to sell the calf I think you had better take some other farm produce."

Tom expressed a willingness to do as his mother said, and when he had taken the calf from the barn he led it by the rope about its neck to the house, where she was waiting for him. She gave him a basketful of eggs and a live turkey. Since he must use one hand to lead the calf and could not carry the turkey and the eggs in the other his mother made a sort of turban of a towel for his head and balanced the basket of eggs on it. Then she placed the turkey under the arm not in use for leading the calf.

"Mother," said Tom, "I fear that if I stumble the eggs will fall and be broken."

"The distance to the city is short," was the reply. "You may walk slowly and carefully and yet reach the market in half an hour. And, Tom," she added, "if a girl offers to relieve you of a part of your burden refuse her."

Tom, who was a very obliging youth, suffered his mother to kiss him good-by, for he could not kiss her loaded as he was, and set forth on his journey. The calf did not lead easily, and the turkey tried to get away, so that between the two difficulties he was in constant dread lest he drop the eggs. He had made but half the journey when Annie Pixley came out of a wood and, seeing Tom trying to balance the eggs on his head while hampered by the calf and the turkey, began to laugh at him. Annie was just fifteen years old, a very attractive age with girls, and had a little figure that showed to advantage in her scant costume. Moreover, her eyes were full of mischief, and her lips were a rosy red. Tom cast a reproachful glance at her, whereupon her heart softened to him, and she said:

"Poor fellow! You are surely having a hard time of it with so much to attend to. Let me carry some portion of your burden."

Tom remembered his mother's warning and declined the offer, telling Annie the reason for his refusal.

"And why did your mother do that?" asked Annie, who jumped at the true cause at once.

"I don't know," replied Tom. "She simply warned me. Then she kissed me good-by and sent me off."

"And did you not kiss her good-by?" asked the girl.

"How could I, loaded as I am?"

"I see," said Annie. "You can't kiss any one. If there is any kissing between you and a girl she must do it all."

"Certainly!" said Tom.

"But you might set down a part of your load if you won't let me carry it."

"What can I set down? If I release the turkey he will not come back to me; if the calf he will scamper back to the farm. As for the eggs, I must use one hand or the other to remove them from my head, and I have shown you that is impossible without losing either the turkey or the calf."

"I might take the eggs off your head and set them on the ground. That would not be carrying them for you."

"That would not help matters. I would still have my hands full."

"I see. You can't kiss any one. If you are kissed one must kiss you. Your mother has arranged that she is the only one to kiss you."

"How is that?"

"It would not be modest for a girl to kiss you."

Tom stood still in order that he might do some thinking. Something was denied him. Had he been at liberty to take it he would not have thought of doing so. But now that he was prevented he pined for it. Annie stood before him, looking up into his eyes with hers, and her red lips were very tantalizing. The longer he thought the nearer she drew to him. Presently her lips were so close to his that he bent his head and kissed her. Down came the basket of eggs and every one was broken. Tom let go the calf and the turkey to catch it, and the calf ran back to the farm, while the turkey scurried off into the woods.

"There," said Tom. "See what you have done!"

"I have done! I have done nothing. I offered to carry a part of your load, and you would not let me do so. You attempted to take a kiss without my consent. It seems to me that you are alone to blame."

Later Tom appeared at home without any of his load, but with Annie Pixley. When his mother asked him what it all meant he said:

"Dear mother, you made a terrible mistake. You filled my hands and put a burden on my head so that I could kiss no one. The girl was so modest that she would not kiss me, so I was obliged to kiss her. I dropped the eggs, and to catch them I let go the turkey and the calf."

"I see," said his mother.

HISTORY IN WAX FIGURES.

London's Famous Tussaud Show, With a Word About Its Founder.

At an average rate of one model per fortnight I must have turned a round thousand in my time, some in haste to be up to date, others at comparative leisure, being less meteoric and of more abiding interest—royalties, for example, and men of letters, or great soldiers like Gordon, Wolseley and Roberts. Each stays as long as his fame endures. Nobody remembers when Shakespeare was not in the exhibition. Voltaire is its oldest inhabitant, and five generations have now passed before the figure of this revolutionary. The most notorious leaders of the French revolution are there, as of course the exhibition was transferred from Paris to London over 100 years ago.

It was in 1802 that Madame Tussaud came to London, having lived in Paris through the whole of the French revolution. Frequently had her art been requisitioned to mold the head of some sanguinary monster or other, Robespierre, Danton and Marat among the number. The cast of the last mentioned of this trio, still in the exhibition, was taken by Mme. Tussaud at the scene of his murder, and later she made a cast of the once beautiful face of his assassin, Charlotte Corday. Madame came to London alone, leaving her husband, Francois Tussaud, in Paris. After nearly half a century of peaceful and prosperous years in England, she died in 1850, in her ninety-first year.—John Theodore Tussaud in London Strand Magazine.

THE LACE OF VENICE.

An Ancient Industry That Was Revived by Queen Margherita.

The lace of Venice has been celebrated for many centuries. It was made originally by nuns within the walls of convents for ecclesiastical garments. Then, with the fall of the Venetian republic, the convents were closed and the lace industry ceased to exist for an entire century.

In 1870 the Princess Margherita, afterward queen of Italy, took measures to revive it, especially as a means of providing employment for Venetian women. At present there are several schools, subsidized by the government, in which the art is taught.

The pupils are women of all ages. Each sits on a low stool and holds a plump, square cushion in her lap. On this cushion is pinned a strip of paper marked with the pattern to be followed, and into this pattern the nimble fingered worker sticks glass headed pins, about which she twists her threads. From twenty to fifty shuttles depend from all sides of the cushion, and these are thrown across and back with the rapidity of a cricket ball.

The process looks so simple that it looks like play, but the lace produced represents thousands of dollars. The simple laces grow rapidly under the dexterous fingers of the women, but the exquisite rose point and other similar sorts are evolved much more slowly.—Harper's Weekly.

Tantalizing Ownership.

In a French village a citizen had upon his land a part of an old building containing two very beautiful windows. He was in debt and embarrassed and eagerly closed with the offer of a rich archaeologist, who bought them. Thereupon the government inspector, hearing of the bargain, arrived just in time to stop the masons from dislodging the windows. "You cannot," he said to the villager, "sell antiquities, my man." "But, excellency, I have used the money and paid my creditors." The villager was in despair, but the official was untouchable. "That's all right," he said. "The money is safe. The windows are no longer yours. But the buyer can't move a stone of them. He can, however, come with a camp stool and sit down and look at his property as much as he likes."

Man and Labor.

Lady Russell in her volume "Swallowfield and Its Owners" points out that in 1820 the Berkshire estate came into the hands of Sir Henry Russell, who had been a friend of Dr. Johnson. It was at Russell's table that one day the doctor maintained that "no man loved labor, no man would work if he could help it." Reynolds objected and gave Pope for instance. But Pope's inspiration, said the doctor, "was the love of fame and not the love of labor. Leander swam the Hellespont, but that doesn't prove that he loved swimming."

Nervous?

"So he took you out motor riding the other evening?"

"Yes, what of it?"

"Do you think he is in love with you?"

"I think so. I know that every time I spoke to him the motor tried to climb a tree or jump a fence."—Stray Stories.

A Scoop.

TRENCHES IN WARFARE.

Tools the Soldiers Use to Burrow Into the Ground.

Trenches are imperative in land warfare, and so consequently are tools for digging. Therefore every soldier carries his own tools, with which he can throw up some sort of defense, if it is only six inches of earth, and which can be enlarged, if necessary, into a regular trench.

Curiously enough, the trenching tool was the invention of an American engineer, Brigadier General H. W. Benham of the Army of the Potomac. It was twenty-two inches long and weighed a pound and a half, and it is practically the same tool that is used today, although, of course, with modifications. The present model is usually lighter, the best design being that used by the Austrians. It is less than twenty inches in length, the blade being eight inches long by six inches wide, one side having a cutting edge and the other a saw edge. A tool of this kind can be used by the soldier while lying down, and a few vigorous strokes are enough to throw up some sort of temporary protection, which can easily be enlarged if the position is to be held.

Trenching drill is hated more than anything else by the soldier in time of peace, but that same soldier acquires a positive love for his little spade after he has once been under fire and discovered for himself the salutary qualities of a little mound of earth in front of him.

The soldier in a good trench is almost safe except from well aimed shrapnel or from shells that happen to burst in the trench itself, which, of course, is a rare happening. Perhaps it is worth noting that the advantages of the trench were discovered by Alexander the Great.—New York Post.

THE COURT OF CLAIMS.

Various Kinds of Cases Over Which It Has Jurisdiction.

The court of claims of the United States was established by act of congress Feb. 24, 1855, and it was provided that it should have jurisdiction of all "claims founded upon the constitution of the United States or any law of congress, except for pensions, or upon any regulations of an executive department, or upon any contract, express or implied, with the government of the United States, or for damages liquidated or unliquidated, in cases not sounding in tort, in respect of which the claims of the party would be entitled to redress against the United States, either in a court of law, equity or admiralty, if the United States were suable, except claims growing out of the late civil war and commonly known as war claims," and certain other claims.

It has jurisdiction also of claims of like character which may be referred to it by any executive department involving disputed facts or controverted questions of law, where the amount in controversy exceeds $3,000, etc., and there is no appeal except on questions of law which may be sent up to the supreme court on the part of the defendants when the amount in controversy exceeds $3,000. The findings of fact by the court of claims is final.

There are provisions as to the statute of limitations after six years and many rules and modifications of the judicial code.

The court is located at Washington in the old Corcoran Gallery of Art, corner of Pennsylvania avenue and Seventeenth street. The term begins the first Monday in December each year, and cases may be entered at any time, whether the court is or is not in session.—Pittsburgh Dispatch.

A Woman and Her Signature.

One of the difficulties experienced by banks concerns the signatures of women depositors. In starting an account the specimen signature, for use of the bank, will read "Mary Emory." And Mary Emory is instructed that all of her checks must bear exactly that signature; no other and no additional initials. The first few checks are correctly signed, and then they begin to drift in "Mary E. Emory," "Mary Elizabeth Emory," "Mary Elizabeth Smith Emory," or with her husband's initials, "Mrs. M. F. Emory." Naturally, trouble results.—New York Sun.

Where Maple Sugar Comes From.

Little wonder that first class maple sugar and sirup are scarce. Only one tree is tapped for every five people in our population. Counting both sugar and sirup, New York is the leading state for the values of its maple products, Ohio is second and Vermont third. But Vermont is far in the lead for maple sugar alone. The maple products of the country are worth over $5,000,000 a year.—Farm and Fireside.

Prank of an Earthquake.

There was one curious effect of a seismic shock in 1888. The cables connecting Australia with the outer world were suddenly broken by a distant earthquake, and the government, under the impression that an enemy had cut the lines, mobilized the naval and military forces in readiness to repel attack.—Pall Mall Gazette.

A Safeguard.

"Even if it does make you dizzy to go near the water you wouldn't be in danger if you fell in."

"How do you make that?"

"Didn't you say the motion of the waves always makes your head swim?"—Baltimore American.

Clean your finger before you point at my spot.—Benjamin Franklin.

A LAND OF MURDERS.

Papua, a Cold Blooded Country, Where Life Is Held Cheap.

Papua has long been known as a bloody land. It is a bloody land still. But the blood of white men is rarely let, and the wanton slaughter of natives, the one by the other—at least in those fast widening regions which are within the sphere of the law—is fast diminishing. All this being so in one year, nevertheless, when there were 215 prisoners committed for trial, 118 of them were charged with murder, nine with manslaughter and five with attempted murder.

To the civilized mind the motives to murder, shocking enough, to be sure, nor wanting an aspect of grewsome humor, are upon occasion incredible. As they are matters of record, however, disclosed on painstaking investigation, they are to be accepted, not as irrepressible tales, such as wander about the eastern seas, but as substantial facts, however singular and incomprehensible they may appear.

It is a matter of court record, for example, that certain natives of what is called the coast range, being upon trial for the murder of two carriers, whose throats they had cut, admitted the deed without the least hesitation and sought to justify the ghastly business upon the ground that the carrier had appeared to be "cold and hungry"—dejected fellows, far away from their village. The prisoners had not eaten the carriers. They had merely—with the most considerate expedition—cut the throats of the carriers, who were strangers, at any rate, and therefore of no great consequence, and no ingenuity of cross questioning could elicit a motive ulterior to the one so ingeniously advanced—that the carriers, appearing to be "cold and hungry," were, in the opinion of the gentlemen who had incontinently cut their throats, much better dead.

A similar case of merciful extermination concerned a young native employed to shoot game for a white planter, who encountered a sick man (Papuan) on the road near a river and strangled him to death. Upon trial he explained that the sick man had created annoyance and a considerable embarrassment as well by insistently requesting to be carried across the river to the other side, whence his way lay, forward to his village.

"Quite so," said the presiding officer. "Why, then, didn't you carry him across the river?"

"He was too heavy," replied the native. "It would have put me to a great deal of trouble."

"Why did you kill him?"

"What else could I do? The man was sick."

It was out of the question to endure the labor of carrying the sick man across the river. It was equally out of the question to abandon the valuable fowl he had strangled him—the most obvious way out of a dilemma which bade fair to distress his feelings.—Harper's Magazine.

A Sailor's Compliment.

Through all the years they were together Mrs. Jessie Benton Fremont lived for her husband, as before her marriage she had lived for her father. Her brilliant mind, her heart and her hands were constantly busy in her husband's service, and a gallant sailor's compliment shows that her devotion was widely recognized. During the war, when Admiral Porter had command of the Federal fleet on the Mississippi, his flagship was the steamer Benton, named after Mrs. Fremont's father. The admiral named the little tender of the flagship Jessie Benton Fremont, and he wrote to Mrs. Fremont his explanation: "You have always sailed close to your husband and your father."

Did Their Best.

Judge Robert O. Harris tells of a rather embarrassing introduction which former Ambassador Curtis Guild once received when he went to speak at a political rally in the western part of Massachusetts. According to Judge Harris, it went something after this fashion: "The voters decided that the town committee ought to have a rally, with the best speaker it could get. We couldn't get Governor Robinson; we couldn't get Senator Hoar nor Tom Reed, but we did the best we could, and I now have the honor of introducing Mr. Curtis Guild of Boston."—Indianapolis News.

Genuine Art.

"That man says he wants his picture to look perfectly natural," said the photographer's assistant.

"Make it as handsome as possible," replied the proprietor.

"But he insists that he doesn't want the picture to flatter him."

"He won't think it flatters him. He'll think that at last somebody has managed to catch the way he really looks."—Washington Star.

Much Needed Assistance.

"Here's a man suing for divorce because his wife goes through his pockets," said Mrs. Smith, reading from the newspaper. "What would you do if you woke up and found me going through your pockets?"

"I?" said Mr. Smith sadly. "I would get up and help you look."—Exchange.

Yielding the Place.

"I'll show you who's boss." "My dear," responded Mr. Especk, "these continual demonstrations are unnecessary. I do not dispute the title."—Louisville Courier-Journal.

It is a peculiar quality of a fool to perceive the faults of others and to forget his own.—Cicero.

FARMERS' DAY

Last Thursday was a great day for the farmers of Somerset county. It is a new plan to have a county agent and have his efforts supplemented by the experiences and instruction of experts from the Government and the Maryland Agricultural College.

Mr. Lippincott, as county agent, has accomplished much in the short time he has been in Somerset county. His knowledge of men and conditions has wonderfully increased. His work, therefore, in distributing the list of demonstrators to various farms, with the large attendance upon the meetings, is to be highly complimented.

As we have often said before, in connection with Farmers' Institutes, there is a progressive method and there is the old time one. It takes men of energy and great activity to be advanced in real farming. The less determined men are apt to pursue the ways of their forefathers and to be satisfied, be the results what they may. Farming, like other occupations, is now on an advanced scale and to bring the results, soil, crops and conditions, all have to be studied.

It is to be hoped that the great agricultural day of last week will be but an omen of future days of a like character and that the soil of Somerset may prove to be one of the most productive in Maryland. All depends upon who is the farmer and how much real thought he puts into his work.

THE COMMENCEMENT SEASON

This week closes the public school work of Somerset county. The final examinations have been held and a large majority of the pupils have been advanced to higher grades and about forty will graduate from our various High Schools. To all these young people our best wishes are extended.

The great question now before the graduating classes is that of attendance at higher schools of learning or the adjustment of themselves to social or active business life. As one of the speakers at the Farmers' Meeting last Thursday evening said, what our boys and girls want, after graduating from school or college, is to accomplish something. It is to be hoped that the instruction received by the Somerset young folks will enable them to heed this advice. It is our belief that none of the boys or girls of this county are too indolent to make a place for their energies or to seize upon suitable opportunity. The life of the graduates is before them. With health and determination much can be accomplished.

No doubt there are some young people whose efforts have not yet been crowned with success. Their failure to be promoted or to graduate, should not deter them from making other efforts of a more determined character. The plodder usually gets where the more brilliant often fails. Our advice to them is not to be discouraged but to plod on, but to have a distinct aim in their plodding. Success is bound to meet them.

A recent survey of the production and marketing of strawberries in the United States, made by the Department, indicates that the eight most important commercial strawberry districts are central California, Tennessee, Maryland, Delaware, southern Louisiana, North and South Carolina, Virginia and the Ozarks. Maryland stands third in importance in the production of the strawberry. In connection with this work the Department is conducting a telegraphic market news service of the daily movement of strawberries to the various large markets during the current season, together with the prices received. Reports of the movements and prices are telegraphed daily to producing areas and consuming centers in order to assist in the profitable distribution of the crop.

The Lee forces throughout the State are "mobilizing," to use a borrowed expression. There has been an acquisition of a powerful company of heavy artillery in Baltimore city this week, and when the guns of political war begin to boom over the plains and hills of Maryland, the sharpshooters of the Lee army will put so many "minnie balls" into the "home" candidate for Governor that his guns will be spiked and they will unfurl the white flag on every rampart from Worcester to the mountains of Alleghany. The Chestertown Transcript.

The Woman Suffrage Question

Woman's rights and woman suffrage were the subjects for many years of the jokers. The discussion began in Jefferson's time, but the situation then was not acute, and that statesman dismissed the subject as scarcely worthy of serious attention. For many years the agitation was continued, but it was continued mainly by the class known as the short-haired women and long-haired men. This is no longer the case. Many excellent, womanly women are now advocating female suffrage, and in many of the States of the Union it has been given to them. Whether this innovation has been of public advantage is by no means certain. It certainly was an advantage to the Republican party in the recent election in Chicago.

A campaign is now in progress by the advocates of woman suffrage for the submission to the States of an amendment to the Federal Constitution prohibiting any State from withholding the ballot from any citizen on account of sex. Recently a delegation of ladies visited Mr. Linthicum, the Congressman from the Fourth Maryland district, to urge him to support the resolution submitting the woman suffrage amendment to the States. Mr. Linthicum very properly declined to pledge his support to that measure, and his reasons for declining are unassailable. According to the reports of the interview, the spokeswoman of the delegation told Mr. Linthicum that his support of the resolution would not be a declaration in favor of woman suffrage, "but would simply mean that he believed in letting the people decide for themselves whether they wanted to enfranchise women." It was pointed out to this lady that even if the amendment were submitted to the people, but to the Legislatures of the States. Even if States which contain a majority of the people of the United States, through their Legislatures, should vote to reject the amendment, it might still be put upon them by the vote of a majority of the representatives of a minority of the people. The little State of Nevada, with a population a little more than half as great as that of Baltimore county, would have the same power in adopting the amendment as New York, with more than 9,000,000 people. The 82,000 people of Nevada, combined with the 146,000 of Wyoming, or 228,000 people in these two States, could outvote 9,000,000 people in New York. Such a method as this can hardly be called a method of "letting the people decide." If the people of New York or Maryland want female suffrage, let them say so through their own Legislatures. If they do not want it, it surely would be unjust and contrary to all democratic doctrine to have it imposed upon them by the will of the Legislatures of Arizona or Nevada or any other State or all the other States. The women realize the fact that it is not altogether a question of right, but of policy. The 20-year-old taxpayer has just as great an equity for the ballot as the taxpayer of 21. If it would improve the condition of society for women to vote; if it would be of advantage to the State or the country; if it would improve the homes and make better citizens of the coming generation, then it would be good public policy for women to vote. But as to the question of right, that is another story. —Baltimore Sun.

Scientific Methods in Maryland

The lecture tour on the Eastern Shore of experts from the United States Department of Agriculture and the Maryland Agricultural College teaching efficient farming, the sanitary survey made in Dorchester county last summer, and the one now in progress in Anne Arundel county, preaching the gospel of health and hygiene in the country districts; the survey being made of the rural schools of the State to find their defects, and the deep interest taken in these events by the people are among the things that go to show that Maryland is keeping abreast of the movement for more scientific methods and higher efficiency. Lectures and demonstrations on scientific farming are not new, and Maryland has had much less of this instruction than many of the Southern and Western States, perhaps because it needed it less. In a number of States "Farmers' Institutes" are regularly held at the county seats, and they not only attract large crowds of interested listeners, but they have proved of great value not only in increasing the productivity and value of the land, but have made the lives of the farmers pleasanter socially. They have also resulted in the corn clubs and the canning clubs among the young people, and in every way made the life of the farmer more attractive. Maryland cannot have too many of these lectures by experts, nor too many intelligent sanitarians making surveys and teaching everybody how to prevent disease and waste. —Baltimore Evening Sun.

Hicks' Forecasts for June

The first regular storm period is central on the 2nd, extending from May 31st to June 5th. The Moon is on the celestial equator and at last quarter on the 4th. The period is still covered by the Venus influence, the Mercury period is central on the 3rd, and the summer solstice period of the Earth is beginning to make itself felt. Rising barometer and change to cooler will wind up this period.

Reactionary storm period will fall on and touching the 8th and 9th. This, it must be remembered, is at the crisis of magnetic and electrical excitation, which falls annually on and about the 10th to the 15th of June. Return of falling barometer, warmer weather, and storms of wind, thunder and rain, may be expected to center on the 8th and 9th.

Regular storm period is central on the 13th, reaching from the 12th to the 17th inclusive. This period is in the center of Earth's solstice period, with the Moon in conjunction with Earth and Sun on the 12th. The north pole of the Earth makes its least angle with the Sun's equator about this period, causing our planet to take on an overwhelmingly stock of electrical energy.

Reactionary storm period is central on 19th, 20th and 21st. The Moon is on the celestial equator and at first quarter on the 20th, and the Earth is at its turning point in its orbit on the 21st. Many electrical storms, with increase of rain fall, will pass eastwardly over the country on and touching the 19th, 20th and 21st. Very warm, humid weather on and about the 20th and 21st, should be regarded as danger signals.

Regular storm period is central on the 25th, covering the 23rd to the 28th, inclusive. The Moon is in perigee on the 25th, the central day of this Vulcan period, in opposition to the Earth and Sun, at greatest declination south, on the 26th. On the same day Mercury is at inferior conjunction with Earth and Sun, while Saturn is in conjunction with Earth and Sun on the 28th. Meantime Earth is nearing its aphelion, or greatest distance from the Sun, which point it reaches on July 5th. The culminating crisis of this period will fall on the 25th, 26th and 27th, about which days barometric depressions will be at their lowest, and storms of rain, wind and thunder will be sweeping eastward through the central region of the country.

Ocean City As A Summer Resort

Mr. T. T. Cook, Editor of "The Transmitter," published by the Chesapeake & Potomac Telephone Company, in Baltimore, has addressed letters to the District Superintendents of the Company asking for information relative to desirable places for the employees of the Company to spend their summer vacations. Mr. H. W. Carty, local manager of the company in Salisbury, in answering this inquiry said, in part, the following regarding Ocean City as a desirable place to spend a summer's vacation:

"I consider Ocean City, Maryland, which is an ideal summer resort, just the place to spend a vacation. It has been said of Ocean City that when a person once gets its sand in his shoes he is sure to come again, and so it seems.

"Ocean City is situated on the Maryland Coast of the Sinepuxent Bay and is almost entirely surrounded by water, the Atlantic Ocean being on the East and the Sinepuxent Bay on the West.

"The distance from Baltimore to Ocean City by the State stone road is approximately 180 miles and with a good car Ocean City can be reached in seven hours. It can also be reached by way of the Baltimore, Chesapeake & Atlantic Railway Company. Their steamers leave Pier 8, Light street, daily, and the fare one way is $3.95. Season tickets may be purchased for $4.50 each. A round-trip ticket good from Saturday to Monday costs $5.00, and a round-trip ticket from Friday to Tuesday may be had for $3.50.

Stand By Your Home Town

Patronize home where your interests are and help maintain and support those interests—your interests, your neighbor's interests. Get that selfishness out of your heart that is envious of every success; that wants to pull down interest that seems to reach beyond yours, and is in reality an advantage to it and the town.

Neither imagine when a few shekels accumulate in your wallet you must go out of town to spend, thinking it would never do to distribute a little cash to your home merchants, since you can stand them off for six months in a year. Mistaken idea. They will appreciate your cash and give just as good bargains as any merchant in neighboring towns or cities that may get your cash. Encourage home dealers and manufacturers in everything, not only by your patronage, but by words of encouragement and commendation.

Baccalaureate Sermon

The baccalaureate sermon to the graduating class of the Washington High School was preached last Sunday evening by Rev. D. J. Givan. The court room was crowded. The class and the school faculty sat in front. The text was from Phil. III 15, "I press toward the mark for the prize of the high calling of God in Christ Jesus." The sermon was an able one and was enjoyed by all present.

KILLING FROST AND SNOW IN WEST

Fruit Belts Hard Hit By Cold Weather—Thousands Of Dollars Damage

Killing frosts last Tuesday were reported from nine states in the Middle West on Wednesday. Seven states in the same territory had snow. In Michigan, Minnesota, part of Wisconsin, the Dakotas and Colorado temperatures reached the freezing point. Immense damage has been done to fruit and vegetable crops. Frost that was highly destructive was reported from Michigan, Wisconsin, Iowa, Nebraska, Minnesota, North Dakota, South Dakota, Colorado, and Wyoming.

Snow was reported from Colorado, Wyoming, Michigan, Minnesota, Nebraska, Wisconsin and even parts of Kansas. In Nebraska, Colorado, Wyoming and South Dakota the snow ranged from two to eight inches deep. This will be of vast benefit to all vegetation, as the roots will be protected from freezing and the snow when the weather becomes warm enough to melt it, will provide much needed moisture. Dispatches from various Nebraska points Wednesday night says the storm continued in that state, heavy snow in the western region and equally heavy rain in the eastern half.

Dispatches from the fruit belts of Michigan, Wisconsin and the northern part of Illinois, Indiana and Ohio reports the loss of thousands of dollars through frost and cold weather. Other crops were only saved because of the heavy rains preceding the cold wave. Heavy snow saved much of the vegetable crop in Wisconsin and Michigan. It formed a blanket over the plants and saved them from frost.

Snow over such a wide area at this season is unprecedented. The last May snow in Wisconsin fell in 1896, but did not compare with the present storm. Minnesota's last May Snow was in 1906, but it was merely a scurry and not accompanied by cold weather.

SPEED OF BULLETS.

Ingenious Method For Measuring It Used by the Experts.

The method used by experts to ascertain the velocity of a projectile or bullet at the moment it leaves the muzzle of the weapon is as follows:

There is a drumlike cylinder of fixed diameter and of sufficiently stiff paper to stand being rapidly revolved on a spindle. As the cylinder is of small circumference it is necessary that the speed approach 2,000 revolutions a minute. These revolutions are produced by electric power, and the count is made by an exact mechanical register.

The gun is placed securely at the required distance from the drum and is sighted directly at the center of the cylinder, which is spinning at so many rods—often miles—a minute, as its circumference determines. With the drum's speed adjusted, an electric current discharges the weapon, the bullet striking the center of the drum as measured from top to bottom.

It must be borne in mind that with the drum stationary the bullet would pass directly through it on a line of its diameter, coming out on the other side, with scarcely a "shade of impediment." With the drum's periphery whirling at the rate of 2,000 revolutions a minute and its diameter only a fraction more than a foot, this would mean a rate of 2,000 yards in sixty seconds. Thus in the fraction of a second necessary for the bullet to enter one side of the paper drum, cross it and pass out at the other side the opposite side of the drum would show a considerable deviation from an exact diameter of line of passage.

It is this space of deflection, shown inside the farther rim of the drum, that is used for computing the velocity of the missile. The speed of the cylinder may be computed to the ten-thousandth part of a second if necessary, and the lineal distance run in that time may be charted in perpendicular lines on the inner side of the paper. At whatever line the bullet penetrates outward it registers its time in crossing the diameter of the cylinder. If it has required the ten-thousandth part of a second for the bullet to proceed one foot from its muzzle, velocity in yards or miles may be computed by anybody.—Pearson's Weekly.

TODAY IS YOUR DAY.

Yesterday Is Only a Record and Tomorrow Is a Secret.

While walking in the streets one is often greeted with the cheerful remark, "It's a nice day!" Good days and bad days exist only in the mind. The weather has nothing to do with it. Each day is what we make it.

Suppose you get the word that your salary has been doubled or that a fortune has been left you. What do you care about the weather then? Or suppose the person you love is dying. Unexpectedly a turn for the better comes. The doctor says your dear one will live. What if it is hotter than Tophet? It is a good day, a great day, a happy day. It is what we think and feel about it that makes each day what it is.

Put down in the notebook of your soul the poet Rimeberg's thought, "Each day is a life." When you get up in the morning throw back your shoulders, take a deep breath and meet the new day like a man. Say to yourself, "Another day, another life!" For all we know it may be the only day we shall ever have. Let us make it the best day we can. Let us strive to make it a day worth while, to move a step forward in our work, do all the good we can, get all the happiness we can today.

Right now is the only time you can control. Yesterday is a record. Tomorrow is a secret. Today is yours and mine.—Philadelphia Press.

Egypt's Famous Mosque.
Egypt was long ruled by sultans, one of whom has given his name to what some consider the finest specimen of Saracenic architecture in the world. This is the mosque of Sultan Hassan, the pride of modern Cairo, which was built about 1380, partly with stone taken from the pyramids. So delighted was the sultan with the beauty of the design that he cut off the right hand of the architect to prevent him building a rival edifice. In the walls there are, or were, some cannon balls fired from the neighboring citadel during the French invasion of Egypt.

Transposing the Alphabet.
The twenty-six letters of the alphabet may be transposed in many millions of different ways. All the inhabitants of the globe could not in a thousand million years write out all the possible transpositions of the twenty-six letters, even supposing that each wrote forty pages daily, each page containing forty different transpositions.—Pearson's Weekly.

HAVE YOU WEAK LUNGS?

Do colds settle on your chest or in your bronchial tubes? Do coughs hang on, or are you subject to throat troubles?

Such troubles should have immediate treatment with the strengthening powers of Scott's Emulsion to guard against consumption which so easily follows.

Scott's Emulsion contains pure cod liver oil which peculiarly strengthens the respiratory tract and improves the quality of the blood; the glycerine in it soothes and heals the tender membranes of the throat. ## HOW SAVINGS GROW.

Ben Franklin's Proof That "Money is of a Prolific Nature."

After publishing his "Poor Richard's Almanac" for twenty-five years and giving thirty-two years more as thrifty teacher of his country Benjamin Franklin put into his will a provision to demonstrate the power of accumulated savings.

To the cities of Boston and Philadelphia he left $5,000 each. The money was to be put out at interest and allowed to accumulate for a hundred years. At the end of that time, he figured, each city ought to have $650,000. He directed that at the end of the hundred years $500,000 should be invested by each city "in public works which may be of most general utility to the inhabitants." The rest should then be put at interest for another hundred years, when the accumulation should be divided, one-quarter to the city and three-quarters to the state.

When the first hundred years were past Boston found that she had $663,923 to her credit from the Franklin fund. Taking $300,000, Boston established a training school for mechanics. The remaining $363,923 was put out at interest again.

Philadelphia's experience with the original fund of $5,000 was about the same as Boston's. Now, Franklin figured that at the end of the second hundred years, when the fund is to be distributed, each fund ought to amount to about $20,000,000. But Boston's fund at the end of the first hundred years exceeded Franklin's estimate by $13,923. So here's a problem:

If Boston handles the fund as successfully in the second hundred years as she did in the first how much in excess of $20,000,000 will it be?

Franklin's demonstration was impressive; $5,000 will go into $663,923 how many times? Nearly 133 times. Wasn't he amply justified when he said, "Money is of a prolific nature?"

What sort of a demonstration can you make?—John Oakison in Chicago News.

THE LAWYER'S FABLE

It Took the Sting Out of His Opponent's Florid Oratory.

A barrister who was possessed of an abnormally loud voice was making an eloquent address to a jury. His case was fairly strong; he was much in earnest, and his trumpet tones made the rafters ring. In a hurricane of sound he closed his argument and sat down. The jury looked serious and thoughtful and were evidently much impressed. The opposing barrister had a face like a hatchet and a thin low voice—the exact opposite of his learned friend. When it became his turn to address the jury he began:

"As I listened to the rather thunderous appeals of my learned friend I recalled a fable which I heard in my youth. A lion and an ass entered into a compact to slay the beasts of the field and share the spoil. They divided the work; the ass was to go into the thicket and bray and frighten the animals out, while the lion was to lie in wait and kill the fugitives as fast as they appeared. Well, the ass sought the darkest part of the jungle and, lifting up his awful voice, brayed and brayed and brayed. There never was heard such a fearful din.

"The ass was quite intoxicated with his own uproar and thought he'd return to see what the lion thought of it. With a light heart he went back and found the lion looking doubtfully about him, pale in the face and trembling in every limb. 'What do you think of that for braying?' said the exultant ass. 'Don't you think I scared them?' 'Scared them?' repeated the lion in an agitated tone. 'Why, you'd have scared me if I didn't know you were a jack-ass.'—London Graphic.

An Economy.
"No money, no trunks," said the frugal landlord. "If you don't pay your board bill we hold your trunks till you do."
"Splendid!" said Dedrick. "That'll save me the expense of storage on these things of mine until next season. By-by, old man!"—Judge.

Evening Things Up.
"Going to stretch your legs?" we asked the man who supports thirteen relatives.
"Only the other one," he replied in explanation.—Exchange.

"Until now, sir, I have never been forced to refuse you."—Philadelphia Ledger.

OLD LIBERTY BELL.

It Is Not Only Cracked, but Is Suffering From Metal Sickness.

"The Liberty bell is suffering from the disease of metals," says the Iron Age. This is due to several causes. The famous bell was badly cast in the first instance and was recast thrice by amateurs, who changed the composition of the metal with each recasting. The first crack appeared when the bell was tolling on the occasion of the funeral of Chief Justice John Marshall. In 1800 it was discovered that the crack had extended to double its original length.

The bell has been transported to a distance on six occasions and has been clipped by many vandal souvenir hunters. Its trips did it no good, as more or less rough handling was scarcely avoidable.

When the new crack appeared Alexander E. Outerbridge, Jr., an expert metallurgist, was called in to examine it. When it was planned to ship it to San Francisco for the Panama exhibition Mr. Outerbridge was again summoned, and on his report it was determined to keep it henceforth in Independence hall. In his latest report Mr. Outerbridge says:

"It is no hyperbolic figure of speech to say that the venerable Liberty bell is affected with a serious disease. Metallurgists have adopted into technical phraseology the term 'diseases of metals' and recognize several such maladies. I myself have no hesitation in saying that the bell has a distemper, which should insure its most careful preservation from all shocks such as it would be subject to in a long journey."

The Iron Age says that with each of the remeltings to which the bell was subjected it lost largely in tensile strength, resilience, etc. Mr. Outerbridge's experiments show that pure copper loses 50 per cent of its tensile strength by three remeltings. The Liberty bell was recast three times, and perhaps even at that time it had already been attacked by the disease that has been eating into its copper and tin vitals ever since.

Necessitarians.
The philosophic term "necessitarians" is used to denote those persons that deny the freedom of will and assert that in human conduct all volitions are determined by motives that obey the law of causation as invariably as do the forces of nature. The word "determinists" was suggested as a substitute by John Stuart Mill and has been very generally adopted.—New York American.

Appreciated.
Tabb—Old boy, I want to congratulate you on your speech at the banquet last night. O'Sullivan (after waiting a moment)—I know you do, and you're awfully sorry you can't do it truthfully. I appreciate it.

Fishing de Luxe.
"Come on and go fishing with me."
"Aw, fishing is too rough sport. There's mud and briars and rocks and damp boots."
"I see. Your idea of fishing is to sit in a hotel lobby and angle for goldfish in a fountain."—Louisville Courier-Journal.

Horried.
"Oh, let me tell you the scandal about the first secretary's wife, Mrs. Leitchinger."
"I've already been told of it by the comptroller's wife, Mrs. Zanglein."
"What! You associate with that old gossip!"—Monich-Fliegende Blaetter.

Wind and Rain.
The wind blows in a circle around a storm, and when it blows from the north the heaviest rain is east of you; from the south, the heaviest rain is west; from the east, the heaviest rain is south; from the west, the heaviest rain is north of you.

JUDGE FOR YOURSELF

Something new is an experiment. Must be proved to be as represented. The statement of a manufacturer is not convincing proof of merit. But the endorsement of friends is. Now supposing you had a bad back, a lame, weak, or aching one. Would you experiment on it? You will read of many so-called cures. Endorsed by strangers from far-away places.

It's different when the endorsement comes from home. Easy to prove local testimony. Read this Princess Anne case: Thomas H. Heath, Beckford avenue, Princess Anne, Md., says: "I suffered from severe pains in the small of my back and was restless. In the morning I felt tired and worn out. I also had dizzy spells which were so severe, I could hardly stand. Doan's Kidney Pills helped me in every way and I was soon cured of kidney complaint."

Roosevelt Wins Libel Case

Theodore Roosevelt last Saturday won the $50,000 libel suit brought against him by William Barnes, Jr., the Albany county leader.

Colonel Roosevelt left Syracuse, N. Y., at 12.45 o'clock for Oyster Bay. He said:

"I am going home. I shall do my best to keep out of the limelight for some time to come. I do not expect to be interviewed or make any public statement on any subject for some time to come."

The jury, after being out more than 40 hours, came into court at 10.07 Saturday morning.

"Gentlemen of the jury, have you agreed upon a verdict?" asked Clerk Charles J. Clarke.

"We have," said Foreman Somers.

"What is your verdict, Mr. Foreman," asked Clarke.

"We find for the defendant," said Somers.

The poll being completed, Justice Andrews accepted the verdict for Colonel Roosevelt and thanked the jurors for their five weeks of service.
