ULTRAIISM—The "besetting sin" of the present day is the spirit of ultraism on every subject and topic, which has apparently taken hold of the people. This spirit is pushed to the most ridiculous extremes. A joke cannot even be started but it is run to death—and Davy Crockett and Jack Downing were made before they had time to show off half their humors. In religion, morals, politics, science, every thing, the same disposition for exaggeration and excess seems to prevail. The most salutary movements are converted into mad and fanatical schemes, and a really good man is now almost afraid to embark in a benevolent design lest he may find himself in the end, leagued with persons engaged in some unprincipled, or, at least, wild and visionary undertaking. No more striking example of this can be given, than the efforts that are now making to carry the cause of Temperance to the extent of forbidding the use of wine at the Communion service in our churches! This, however, is but a solitary instance of the mischievous tendency of the disposition of which we complain, and which has indeed become a general law to call for the notice and disapprobation of all those who are concerned in maintaining a sound and healthy state of public morals, and in upholding the cause of true benevolence as distinguished from false philanthropy.

Might not our citizens derive a profitable hint from the example of the people of Salem?

There is a "fire club" in Salem, consisting of 50 or 60 men, who when the house of any member is in danger, remove & guard the property within. During the recent fire there, a house occupied by two of the members was thought to be in danger, the club took possession of it, & removed all the furniture, & escaped injury, and as soon as the danger was past, the club restored every article of furniture to its appropriate place without a particle of loss, and with such coolness and precision did they proceed, that even a bowl of milk, with a silver spoon in it, was restored to the shelf from which it was taken, without a drop of milk being spilled.

YET ANOTHER.—The Lynch-burg Va. Democrat of September 14, contains the following letter.

"KANAWHA SALINES, Sept. 6, 1835.

"Our village was thrown into a considerable commotion on Friday morning last in consequence of the arrival of Judge Lynch among us. His business was soon ascertained, and by his authority 4 white men from Ohio, bearing the names of Joe Gill, Drake, and

Drake, and Ross, were soon arrested and tried before 12 intelligent persons of our country, for endeavouring to persuade several slaves to leave their masters, for some free state, with an assurance on their part that they would render them, all the necessary aid for the accomplishment for such an attempt.

These congenial spirits of Garrison, Teppan & Co. were arrested in the neighborhood of our village, tried, condemned, and received the sentence pronounced on them by the jury.

That is to say, Joe Gill, and the elder Drake, to receive nine and thirty lashes each, and leave the county in 24 hours; the younger Drake, with Ross, to be discharged for want of evidence, but with a promise from them that they would also quit the county in 24 hours. The evidence against these men (I heard it) was of such a character as left no doubt of their guilt, which produced an unanimous verdict on the part of the jury, that two should be Lynch'd and the other two excused, provided they would leave this part of the country.

GAMBLING, OR RAIN AND SUNSHINE.

"Why do you keep me for so long a time at the door?" said Edward F. passionately to his wife. The night had passed, but his cold wind entered the house as Mrs. F., with a sorrowful heart, undid the lock.

"It is late, Edward, and I could not keep from slumbering."

He said nothing in return to this, but flung himself in a chair, and gazed intently on the fire. His son climbed upon his knee, and putting his arms round the father's neck, whispered, "Papa, what has mama been crying for?" Mr. F. started, shook off his boy, and said with violence, "Get to bed, sir: what business has your mother to let you be up at this hour?" The poor child's lower lip pouted, but he was at the time too much frightened to cry. His sister silently took him up, and when he reached his cot, his warm heart discharged itself of its noisy grief. The mother heard his crying, and went to him; but she soon returned to the parlor. She leaned upon her husband and thus addressed him:—

"Edward, I will not upbraid you on account of your harshness to me, but I implore you not to act in this manner before our children—You are not, Edward, as you used to be! Those heavy eyes tell of wretchedness, as well as of bad hours. You wrong me, you wrong yourself, thus to let my hand show I am your wife, but at the same time let your heart know singleness in matters of moment. I am aware of the kind of society in which you have lately indulged."

"Tell me, Edward—for heaven's sake tell me we are poor—we are reduced—we are ruined: is it not so?"

Edward had not a word to say for his wife, but a man's tears are more awful than his words. "Well, be it to, Edward!" Our children may suffer from our fall, but it will redouble my exertion for them. And as for myself, you do not know me if you think that circumstances can lessen my feelings for them. A woman's love is like the plant which shows its strength the more it is trodden on. Arouse yourself my husband: it is true your father has cast you off, and you are indebted to him in a serious sum; but he is not all the world—only consider your wife in that light!"

A slight tap was now heard at the door, and Mrs. F. went to ascertain the cause. She returned to her husband—Mary is at the door; she says you always kissed her before she went to bed."

"My child—my child," said the father: "God bless you! I am not well, Mary. Nay, do not speak to me to night. Go to rest now: give me one of your pretty smiles in the morning, and your father will be happy again."

Mr. F. was persuaded by his affectionate partner to retire; but sleep and rest were not for him—his wife and children had once given him happy dreams; but now, the ruin he had brought upon them was an awakening reality. When the light of the morning faintly appeared above the line of the opposite houses, Mr. F. arose.

"Where are you going, Edward?" said his watchful wife.

"I have been considering," he replied calmly; "and I am determined to try my father. He loved me when I was a boy."

He was not alone by him, and should no doubt have ruined him. Yesterday I spoke harshly of him, but I did not then know myself. My deep affection, my wife, has completely altered me. I can never forget my ill temper towards you. But I will make up for it—I will indeed I will. Nay—do not do me to grieve in this way—this is worse to me than all. I will be back soon."

The children appeared in the breakfast room. Mary was ready with her smile, the boy was anxious for the notice of his father. In a short time Mr. F. returned.

"Why so pale, my husband? Will your parent not assist you?"

"We must sink, my love! He will not assist me. He unbraided me—I did not, I could not answer him a word. He spoke kindly of you and our little ones, but he casts us off forever!"

The distressed man had scarcely said this when a person rudely came in. The purpose of his visit was soon perceived. In the name of F's father he took possession of the property, and had the power to make F. a prisoner.

"You shall not take papa away," said the little son, at the same time kicking at the officer.

"Mama," whispered Mary, "must my father go to prison? Won't they let us go too?"

"Here comes my authority," said the deputy-sheriff. The elder Mr. F. doggedly placed himself in a chair.

"You shall not take my papa away," cried out the boy to his grandfather.

"Whatever may have been my conduct, sir," said the miserable Edward, "this is unkind of you. I have not a single feeling for myself; but my wife, my children—you have no right to harass them with your presence."

"Nay, husband," responded Mrs. F. "think not of me. Your father cannot distress me. I have not known you from your childhood as he has done; but he shall see how I can cling to you—can be proud of you in poverty. He has forgotten your youthful days—he has lost sight of his own thoughtless years."

The old gentleman directed the lawyer to leave the room. He then slowly yet nervously answered thus:—

"Madam, I have not forgotten my own thoughtless days, I have never forgotten that I once had a wife as amiable and noble minded as yourself, and I have not forgotten that your husband was her favorite child. An old man hides his sorrows; but let not the world, therefore, think him offending, especially as that world taught him to do so. The distress I have this moment caused was premeditated on my part. It has had its full effect. A moral gets vice by single steps, and may think the victim must return by degrees. I know Edward's disposition, and that with him a single leap is sufficient. That leap he has taken."

just aken. He is again in my memory as the favorite of his poor mother, the laughing-eyed young pet of a—pshaw!—of an old fool!—for why am I crying?"

Little Mary had insensitively drawn herself towards the old philosopher, and without uttering a word, pressed his hand and put her handkerchief to his eyes. The boy also now left his parent, walked to his grandfather, and leaning his elbow on the old man's knee, & turning up his round cheek, said, "Then you won't take papa away?"

"No, you little impudent rascal; but I'll take you away, and when your mother comes for you, I will treat her so well that I'll make your father follow after."

Thus came happiness at the heel of ruin. If husband's oftener appreciated the exquisite and heaven-like affection of their wives, many happier firesides would be seen. "One in love and one in mind" ought to be the motto of every married pair. And fathers would many times check improvidence, if they were to make use of reflection and kindness, rather than prejudice and strictness.

THINGS IN ENGLAND.

YORK, June 11, 1835.

I am now in that was once the North Metropolis of England, where the Barbarian and the Roman standard have been planted, and the Roman Emperor has lived, and where the feudal Lord has summoned his vassals and his vassals for watchful contest. The death of many centuries here lie commingled, Britain, Roman, Saxon, Dane, Pict, Scot, and Norman have had here divided sway. The blood that has been spilt in battle around its walls for their possession now runs through the city. Who would have thought, that this now at best but an ugly town, with many shabby houses and narrow streets, could ever have been thus erected, thus made a Roman capital, as it was, vying so much in splendor with the lone mother of Empires on the Tiber, as to be titled Altera Roma! A Roman Palatine was here—here yet are Roman tumuli that even time cannot tumble down, and the ruins of Roman Towers and Roman Walls;—and here too, were temples for Roman Idols; and Bellona, and Vesta; and there, were worshipped long before the Christian God was known in the aisles of the towering and many Colosseum.

I was right glad to be free from the smoke & heat of London, so smoky, the smoke of the morning was thick, and in so heavy an atmosphere, that the soot of the chimneys will blacken your shirt collar as if you had been living in a coal-pen, so hot too, that New Orleans would almost lose her patent right for hot weather, a very unusual circumstance however, and one which the inhabitants so mourned over as to show they had never felt much of the like.

At last we were off in the German ocean, and incident was over, save that in one of the thick fogs for which the English coast is so remarkable, we passed a large English frigate in tow, of a large Steam ship bound for some southern port. In thirty four hours from London we were in the Humber, passing up a not very interesting shore toward Hull, or Kingston on Hull—uninteresting, save the wind mills, which stretched in lines all along the banks of the river, and the steam boats which were numerous even here. But Hull was soon out of our sight, and by dark we were at a place in the river Ouse called Goole, which the next morning we left. Soon we came to Selby, whence there is a Rail Road from the Ouse to Leeds, whence there is a canal to Liverpool, thus connecting the North sea with the Irish sea—Hull with Liverpool. By and by a Rail Road will be completed—now under way—to connect New Castle with Carlisle—the Tyne with the Solway Frith. In the way of Rail Roads, the English are "progressing"—but we probably have ten miles or more to one already made, and fifty miles to their one under way. The scenery all along the banks of this little river is very beautiful.

We met parties of pleasure in other Steam boats, with music and flags, as happy on this little rivulet as if they were on the magnificent Hudson. Some miles below York, there is a lock on the Ouse to keep the water in, so as to make it navigable for boats and little steamers. Upon the lofty towers of the far-famed York Minster were in view starting, as it were, from the earth to the heavens. Soon we passed the Bishop's Palace, which is on the banks of the Ouse. A fine edifice built about the year 1230, now belonging to the see of York, with pleasure grounds, and all the other accompaniments of a palace. In a few minutes the beautiful promenade on the banks of the Ouse near the city, was at the side of our steamer.

What a prize worthy taste this is of the English, this love of trees, and flowers, and walks! Here are long rows of lofty elms trained over a walk, and with their luxuriant foliage forming an avenue that much resembles the long vista of a Cathedral, open to all the people, planted by their ancestors for them, now century ago. We passed Clifford's tower, the work of William the Conqueror in 1068, standing upon a mound thought to be the artificial work of the Roman. Here is an idea of antiquity for Clifford's Tower is naught but an interesting ruin. Well I could think of, however, was the Cathedral whose colossal towers, had long been in my eye—the far-famed York Minister, as I have called it before the wish to see which was one of the earliest of my youth,—for if any one has a hunger & thirst after such sights, it is an American, who can never appease such a hunger at home. I left the steamer with my friend, baggage and all, and we rushed toward the Tavern that had so much captivated our eyes far down the Ouse. I can describe no such thing as this. I can tell you how long, how wide, and how high—but such an overpowering mountain of rock thus regularly heaved out, thus regularly piled up, thus sculptured and carved, the eye must see to the mind ever to feel the magnitude of the undertaking. The first question of the reveler of the spectator is, who have put together on this plain such a mountain for a church—it must be the work of centuries. It must take the work of worlds. And then a long train of questions arises—of the power of the human mind to exert such labor in such ages from the rule and poverty of the peasant obedient to his conqueror or not from him, from the refusal of a king who feared a God that he could not. Such a work now, it could not be erected without a power as large as the whole annual produce of the government of the four United States, nor in less than four or even a hundred years.

The expense of merely repairing the lunatic Martin destroyed the carved oak wood by setting fire to it in 1830, was nearly $25 thousand. We could not tarry long to look at the outside of the majestic pile, for it is but a narrow one at its base, and around as there do, so many of the buildings in narrow streets, and the majority too was rapidly urging us forward and inward.

The door was open and I pushed by the crowd. By heavens, it seemed to me as if I was not made—but as if the vessel had grown up in trees, and the arches in the sky, and the stones in the walls, and the floor in the earth, and the roof in the clouds, and the walls in the air, and the floor in the water, and the roof in the fire, and the walls in the lightning, and the floor in the earthquake, and the roof in the storm, and the walls in the tempest, and the floor in the whirlwind, and the roof in the hail, and the walls in the snow, and the floor in the rain, and the roof in the sun, and the walls in the moon, and the floor in the stars, and the roof in the universe.

My first impression was, that I was in a dream, and that I was not made—but as if the vessel had grown up in trees, and the arches in the sky, and the stones in the walls, and the floor in the earth, and the roof in the clouds, and the walls in the lightning, and the floor in the earthquake, and the roof in the storm, and the walls in the tempest, and the floor in the whirlwind, and the roof in the hail, and the walls in the snow, and the floor in the rain, and the roof in the sun, and the walls in the moon, and the floor in the stars, and the roof in the universe.

The service of the day was about commencing in the Cathedral, and one of the officers delivered us to the care of a guide, who after we had listened a while to the sounds of the organ as they swelled and rolled from aisle to aisle, and from pillar to pillar, renewing yet more warmly the solemnity of such a scene is calculated to inspire—began his operations of guidance. Our guide, though of the Cathedral, was one of those men who have but a single knowledge; a single idea, and this so magnified, so ever effective, that he bursts whenever he delivers it. "You must admire," he commenced, "you must admire gentlemen; with all the gravity of an owl while I was oppressed with admiration, which from that moment was turned to ridicule; you must admire, with a yet louder voice, the more he repeated it; that incomparable vista of 524 feet in length."

"You must admire," he went on, "that majestic window 75 feet high and 82 broad—the grandest object of admiration in the world! Whew!—for this was said with a flourish unequalled even by Mr. McDuff's best; even in his greatest oratorical spasms."

And by this time as my companion was in convulsions of laughter; I can assure you I was in no condition to admire anything at all. But he continued aroused by the importance of his office; you must admire, gentlemen, the amazing solitary of these clustered piers, and the vastness of the span of the arches, and all this too, with a redundancy of enunciation that made me roar out with laughter. The honest guide believed that the greater the spasms into which he threw himself, the greater would be ours and so he continued to have these spasmodic oratorical affections till the whole Cathedral was served up in regular order. In the same tone he gave us the measurement of the organ, which it appears, has 4500 pipes. One can judge then what glorious musical festivals there are at times within the walls of the Cathedral, with 600 vocal choruses this must make; and what melodious long drawn notes of softness through such a space! Our guide too us into many other parts of the Cathedral among the mountains; into the crypts, and showed us the wonderful reflection of the stained windows over its entrance; but I will not weary you with more particulars after I have spoken of heaving.

There in this antique room, he showed us a silver Crosier that the queen Dowager of Charles II. brought from Portugal—then a large ivory vessel called Ulphus horn, a drinking horn belonging to this prince by drinking wine from which before the altar of God, he enclosed this church with all his lands and revenues—by which relic the church holds valuable lands to this day. Then he set forth a wooden head found in the grave of an Archbishop—silver chalice also found in Archbishop's graves—a canopy of state carved over the head of James I. when he visited York, but which was the most interesting—an antique chair that used to stand within the rails of the altar, in which several of the Saxon kings were crowned, and which Richard III. and James I. were also crowned—a chair that bears about it all the marks of time for it was not fastened together by bars of iron it would have tumbled to pieces long ago.

After this display of antique relics, we dismissed our grandiloquent guide, and ascending 273 steps, came to the summit of what is called the Lantern Tower, on which in 1666 a turret of wood was erected to serve as a beacon to alarm the country, if the Hollanders or French should attempt a landing. The turret is gone now—and hence we had the whole range of the summit—a view of the grand pile under our feet, the red tiles of the dwellings of York—and a prospect as far as the eye could reach over a plain of highly cultivated country with tasteful country seats in the distance on the long stretch of the Ouse and the Fosse. And then what a rush of history in one's mind, for over this now fertile plain Britain here shed rivers of blood. Upon almost every spot some man has bit the ground in death. But now a sweet peace reigns over this former scene of desolation. All is as a garden. No hostile Scot threatens to plunder the crops luxuriantly growing. The cattle graze in peace. Men wander abroad fearless & unarmed, with no war armor on, no spear nor arrow in his hand. Such are the fruits of religious civilization.

I left the Cathedral to look at other things in the city of York,—but all is tame after such a sight. I told about the ruins of St. Mary's abbey, a fabric founded by William Rufus. I moved along the walls and the walks about it. I peeped into the windows of the old churches of which York is full,—and the old, the narrow, and antique fashioned lanes of the city but as this was the first Cathedral I was ever in. I could think of but little else. At eleven o'clock at night, in company with my friend, in the then yet luminous twilight (mark what a contrast in time with ours), we took a survey a gain of its outward proportions, for a misty light looms up the more, even such a prodigious pile. We met the watchman of the Cathedral with a lantern in his hand, (for a watch has been kept ever since the incendiarian of 1829; just entering the door upon his round. We solicited permission to enter, and he gave it. The dark lantern was kept closed and the least whisper of ours could be heard all along the arches.

My softest footsteps seemed like heavy tramping of some huge beast. I clung to my friend, if not in terror at least in awe. There was a shivering of horror in the whole frame. We went among the tombs and monuments overgrown. A little misty twilight entered the stained window. My fancy was wrought up. I thought I saw the lords spring to life, with all their armor on. The mitted Bishop, with the crozier, seemed to stand before me, as did his statue. The sculptured images were ghosts. The stony angels seemed to stretch their wings and blow their trumpets with a real life. I never before felt such a terrible illusion, such an awful sense of loneliness. I would not take the watchman's office for a Cathedral, and yet I have no fear of grave yards nor of ghosts; but I fear the antiquity there is here; I dread these hideous forms of sculptured stone. I could not forget the thousand superstitions of the days in which they lived, and which I half believe, philosophy in spite. I went home to a troubled bed, dreaming all night of Mitted Bishops and ugly Barons.

THINGS IN ENGLAND.

June 18, 1835.

I write you from a place called Pailley Bridge—a little English village enough to the eyes as almost all these villages are—on the river Nidd,—a river with something more than a thimble full of water in it. It was quite dark, made to by a Scotch mist, when we reached here on foot,—and made for a little Public House, in which there was a collection of Yorkshiremen discussing something or other over their mugs of beer, but in a tongue, which was all Greek to me, for I could not even guess out one word in forty, as they rattled off together word after word in amazing volubility. This is England then, thought I; this the place where such pure English is spoken, that English travellers come over to us, and ridicule the maxims of our country men who do not speak by line and rule, not one of whom, however, cannot be easily understood. This is the boasted English language of an Englishman's home—this is the English; this broad mouthed jargon, that an Englishman himself cannot understand at all! I listened with astonishment. I had no idea that there was a race of men on earth, who pretended to speak English, that spoke such English as this. Upon my word I could not even guess what was the topic of their earnest conversation, for the rattling of their "clog-shone" as they call them (shoes with wooden soles) was as intelligible to me as the music of their throats. But more of this by and by.

At York I resolved upon a new way of travelling. In coaches and Steam-boats, every body travels—but I came to England to see the people of England and I mean to see them cost whatever of labor it may. I therefore sent my portmanau to Edinburgh, (a portmanau or valise is all I ever take in travelling, and that holds twice as many things as are necessary to go over the world with one has a depot in some principal places—the top of ones hat is quite large enough,—and a portmanau will hold an entire change of clothes, Sunday dress and all)—and then I made up a coach, and made for the bye ways, and crooked ways, with only my sword under my arm—and my little writing materials to one of its pockets, holding paper, pen, ink, sealing wax, wafers, seals, pencil, rule and line, pins, needles, silk, false collars and other notions. Thus armed and equipped, I sallied forth for the heart of Yorkshire.

Pague on a coach—we had not walked two miles before one passing by tempted us in, for we had not philosophically enough as yet to resist such a temptation. We lieve; over a very good road, passing one place where a few poor retired gentlemen lived on an estate which had been devoted by bequest for such a purpose, with other funds to keep up the establishment, and observing nothing very remarkable unless it was some herds of fresh laborers coming over in search of work, begging, and chasing after our coach, crying for "pennies" with broods of children in their train; or patches of ground close on the road, outside of an estate, given to the poor of the parish to cultivate. By the way, the poor of England considering their number, are wonderfully taken care of. An English beggar is seldom seen; Mendicity is often forbid by law and mendicants are taken up as vagabonds. In the streets of London, placards are carried about all over the city, cautioning the public not to give & stating that all the poor are provided for with work and food and clothing. Thus beggary is put down; and but few pretend to beg in England unless they invent some quid pro quo in the way of a song; some little mineral or some pretty flower, which almost always opens one's heart.

I did not tarry long to look at the Cathedral or Minster, as it is called, for after having seen that of York my curiosity was not very sharp,—and this was up on a much smaller scale. I gave the town of Ripon but a glance and started for Studley Park some two or three miles ahead. The first view we had of this well known Park was after our emerging from some ugly villages, when all at once we came upon a beautiful green, stretching as far as the eye could reach, studded here in irregular beauty, with wide spreads of luxuriant foliage, and dotted all over with groups of deer and sheep grazing upon the matted grass. The spectator at first, fancies, he has stepped into another sphere; so beautiful is every thing he sees about him. Here are gravel walks; and under the shade of the trees, are circular seats where one can read in peace for hours. Over your head is the music of sweet toned birds, and by your feet is the sparkling and babbling little river Skell. In yonder view, far down the vista of trees, are the Gothic pinnacles of the stately Minster, and above and beyond you on a little hill is a work of art. I wandered in the little woods. I surveyed the mansion, the chapel and its lodges. I took another view of the stately Minster, to obtain which the branches of the interesting trees have been lopped off; and the Minster then seemed to spring up as from the wood. But all this I left as but trifling in comparison with the more delicious view that soon opened upon us. We passed the ledge of the pleasure grounds; (in England almost all estates have grounds laid out in walks highly adorned, and cultivated as pleasure grounds)—and after entering

I did not tarry long to look at the Cathedral or Minster, as it is called, for after having seen that of York my curiosity was not very sharp,—and this was up on a much smaller scale. I gave the town of Ripon but a glance and started for Studley Park some two or three miles ahead. The first view we had of this well known Park was after our emerging from some ugly villages, when all at once we came upon a beautiful green, stretching as far as the eye could reach, studded here in irregular beauty, with wide spreads of luxuriant foliage, and dotted all over with groups of deer and sheep grazing upon the matted grass. The spectator at first, fancies, he has stepped into another sphere; so beautiful is every thing he sees about him. Here are gravel walks; and under the shade of the trees, are circular seats where one can read in peace for hours. Over your head is the music of sweet toned birds, and by your feet is the sparkling and babbling little river Skell. In yonder view, far down the vista of trees, are the Gothic pinnacles of the stately Minster, and above and beyond you on a little hill is a work of art. I wandered in the little woods. I surveyed the mansion, the chapel and its lodges. I took another view of the stately Minster, to obtain which the branches of the interesting trees have been lopped off; and the Minster then seemed to spring up as from the wood. But all this I left as but trifling in comparison with the more delicious view that soon opened upon us. We passed the ledge of the pleasure grounds; (in England almost all estates have grounds laid out in walks highly adorned, and cultivated as pleasure grounds)—and after entering

OF A NEW PUBLICATION

TO BE CALLED

The Catholic Periodical

LIBRARY

Which is designed to be a reprint of all the best Catholic Works in the English Language, in weekly numbers, at 8 cents each.

The dearth and scarcity of the best Catholic works must long have been a source of regret to every intelligent and observing Catholic in America. So limited has been the sale, and so great the expense of printing these books, that but few individuals in the country have been sufficiently enterprising to undertake their publication; and their price, in consequence, has been more than proportionally high. In fact, so dear have Catholic books in general been, that it has been entirely impossible for the poorer members of the Catholic community, who stand most in need of instruction, and for whom the books have in general been compiled, to obtain copies, even of those works which are nearly essential to the practice of religion.

The subscriber has long since observed this fact with the utmost regret, and may certainly say, that up to this time, he has at least done something to reduce the price of the most necessary Catholic works. Our religious are books still however, extremely dear; and the subscriber, depending on the support of a liberal and enlightened Catholic community, has determined to issue a Periodical publication, which, by its cheapness, will place all the best Catholic works within the reach of the poorest individuals; and from the neatness and elegance of its execution will be found worthy of a place in the libraries of the rich. Such a Publication as that which the Subscriber proposes to issue, has long been called for by the exigencies of the Catholic community; and the rapidly increasing number of the members of our Holy Church seems fully to justify him in the expectation that it will meet with sufficient encouragement to enable him to conduct it successfully. He therefore, notwithstanding the expense and risk attending it, and confiding entirely in the liberality and generosity of his fellow Catholics of the United States and the Canada, has resolved to put it to press forthwith, and he therefore throws himself on his Catholic brethren, and calls on them for their support and patronage.

In this undertaking he is principally encouraged by the hope that it will meet with cordial approbation of the clergy in general, and that he will be aided by the powerful assistance of that learned and devoted body of men. The undertaking is one which is eminently calculated to disseminate the principles of our holy religion widely throughout the community, and to assist the clergy in the discharge of their parochial duties by affording, at an uncommonly low rate, all the necessary knowledge and instruction. The Subscriber, therefore, earnestly requests that the Bishops and Clergy in general will exert their powerful influence in order to increase the popularity of the work and to obtain a sufficient number of subscribers to enable him to carry it on with success. By these means they will augment the spiritual comforts of their charges, and contribute, in a great measure, to dispel the prejudices by which our brethren of other denominations are unfortunately blinded.

TERMS.—The Catholic Periodical Library will be published in Weekly numbers, of fifty pages each, duodecimo size, on fine royal paper and beautiful new type, stitched in handsome wrappers, and will embrace the whole of the most celebrated Controversial and Devotional works, together with a large fund of ecclesiastical history. The first Number will be issued on Wednesday, September 26th. Terms of Subscription $4 Per Annum, or Eight Cents per Number, payable in advance. Liberal commissions will be allowed to Agents. Any persons, who may live at a distance, remitting a twenty dollar note, may have six copies of the work sent them for one year.

N. B. Postmasters throughout the country are requested to act as Agents.

The following is a list of a few of the works which will be issued in this publication, and which will follow each other in rapid succession.

Moore's Travels of an Irish Gentleman in search of a religion, Bossuet's History of the Variations of the Protestant Churches, The Faith of Catholics by Kirk and Berington, Hayward's True Church of Christ shown, Hayward's Charity and Truth, Moore's Catholicism, or Ages of Faith, Mumford's Question of Questions, Mumford's Catholic Scriptures, Lingard's History of the Anglo-Saxon Church, Perpetuity of the Faith, Dr. Milne's Evidence of the Catholic Church, Fleury's Manners of the Catholics, Fleury's Manners of the Catholics, Languet's Ecclesiastical History of Ireland, Bishop Hay's Works, Prince Galitzin's Controversial Writing, Manning's Works, O'Leary's Treatise on Bonaventura's Life of Christ, Chaulmon's Meditations, Butler's Book of the Catholic Church, Butler's Festivals and Fasts, Butler's Lives of Saints, Dr. Lingard's edition of Ward's Errata.

The above is a Collection of Standard Catholic Works, which could not be purchased for less than seventy dollars; and it would be at most impossible to obtain many of the works included in it at any price whatever. The collection can now be obtained in this cheap and elegant Periodical for the uncommonly low price of about Twenty Dollars.

All new Catholic Works will be published in the Periodical Library as soon as received; and able translators will be provided for all the European publications of peculiar excellence.

JOHN DOYLE, Bookseller, N. Y. Editors of Papers in the country by giving the above a few insertions, and sending the papers containing it to the publisher, will entitle themselves to a copy of the work for one year.

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN,

POETRY.

For the Easton Gazette.
IN MEMORY OF THE LATE
MISS H. M. G.

The flower is wither'd, and faded and gone,
And they that fondly watch'd it, sad and lonesome,
And melody no more their bosom's thrill,
For Oh! the Peri's song is hush'd and still.

The "Myrtles" that flourish'd, now droop,
For lo!
The songster on their boughs, vain, lists
The "Echo!"
He waits till the sun tinges the far West,
And oh! the song of the Peri's at rest.

The voice that tunelessly fell on the ear,
And harmony's sweetest touch, soft, loud,
clear,
No more may breathe beguiling minstrelsy,
For oh! the Peri's song is lost to thee!

Oh! who shall tell her, now cold in the grave,
The murmuring lullaby that over her wavel
'Tis the lorn warbler, unanswered his woe,
For the Peri's song is hush'd in repose.

Thy youth and beauty sleep under the sod,
Near to the "Grove" where thy footsteps
have trod;
Now Music's true shrine will burn far away,
The Peri has sung her last fairy lay!

Then strew her o'er with white roses that bloom,
Pure emblem of her slumbering in the tomb,
Come twine her a wreath of friendship and
love,
The Peri's song is hush'd in the "Grove."

From Moore's New Series of Melodies.
LET'S TAKE THIS WORLD AS SOME WIDE SCENE.

Let's take this world as some wide scene,
Through which in frail but buoyant boat,
With skies now dark and now serene,
Together thou and I must float,

Beholding oft, on either shore,
Bright spots where we should love to stay,
But Time flies swift his flying oar,
And on we speed, far, far away.

Should chilling winds and rains come on,
We'll rise our awning 'gainst the shower,
Sit closer till the storm is gone,
And sunning wait a sunnier hour,
And if that sunnier hour should shine,
We'll know its brightness cannot stay,
But happy while 'tis shining and mine,
Complain not when it fades away.

So reach we both, at last, that fall
Down which life's currents must go;
The dark, the brilliant, destined all
To sink into the void below.
Nor ev'n that hour shall want its charms,
It waxes by side, still fond me keep,
And, calmly in each other's arms,
Together linked go down the steep.

TO THE PUBLIC, AND HAT-
MANUFACTURERS IN PARTIC-ULAR.

WILLIAM CLAYTON
Takes this method to inform them that he has, at a very considerable expense, erected, & has now in full operation an improved plan,
an establishment for the manufacturing of HAT
BODIES in a superior manner to any thing
now in use in the United States, as his work will abundantly show—this establishment is within ten miles of Baltimore, near Ely's Ville, on the Baltimore and Ohio Rail Road, a place of easy access—where hat makers by forwarding their wool and orders, will receive immediate attention, and at prices which will be accommodating—Or if the wool is left in Baltimore with Jacob Rogers, in South street, it will meet with like attention.

REWARD.

Ranaway from Jacob C. Wilson one of the subscribers, living near Upper Hunting Creek,
Caroline County, (Md.) on Saturday the 5th
September, 1835, a negro woman who calls
herself

MILLY PINKETT,
The above negro is apparently from 35 to 40 years of age, and of a dark color. She is very large and fat with an erect walk and forbidding appearance. No particular marks upon her person recollected, except that one lock of
her hair in front, is grey, the rest has not changed its hue. The clothing she had on when she went off, is not recollected, but she looked a good supply with her. It is supposed
she has made her way through Delaware, intending to reach New Jersey or Pennsylvania.
The above reward will be given, if she is apprehended without the limits of the State, or $500 if taken in the State. To be entitled to the reward, she must be delivered in the East-

THRASHING MACHINE.

THE SUBSCRIBERS having purchased the right of the Eastern Shore of Maryland of S. S. Allen's Improved Thrashing Machine, respectfully ask the public to suspend the purchase of any machine until they shall have an opportunity of seeing them, as they think it will give more general satisfaction than any thing of the sort yet offered to the public.
As regards its thrashing, cheapness and convenience. It thrashes rapidly with one horse, and requires but two for any speed, and so completely portable that the whole ready for use may be easily taken from barn to barn in a light wagon with one horse, and with the improved Concave Hopper and Wind Mill is an excellent machine for getting out clover seed.

Machines can be seen at their shop in Elkton, where they are now building them.

intends conducting it in its several Branches.

He has just received from Baltimore, a supply of the necessary materials of the very best, and is prepared to manufacture them to order and in a workman-like manner, and on very accommodating terms. Horses shod at short notice. He intends keeping on hand

herself

MILLY PINKETT,
The above negro is apparently from 35 to 40 years of age, and of a dark color. She is very large and fat with an erect walk and forbid-

her person recollected, except that one lock of
her hair in front, is grey, the rest has not changed its hue. The clothing she had on
when she went off, is not recollected, but she looked a good supply with her. It is supposed
she has made her way through Delaware, intending to reach New Jersey or Pennsylvania.

The undersigned having made arrangements for disposing of the valuable SUELL
MARL which exists on her estate in Talbot county, informs the agriculturists on and near the navigable waters of the Chesapeake Bay that her agent, Mr. Thomas Martin, is prepared to deliver the above article, in any quantities that may be required.

A platform or stage has been run out into deep water, where vessels of 12 feet draft of water may lie in safety. The Marl may be taken from the banks at the price of one cent per bushel cash.

The fertilizing properties of calcareous
marl are now so well known, that it is unnecessary to advert to the subject—in reference to this deposit it may be stated that it consists of Sea shells, with very little admix-ture of earth, and contains from 2 to 4 times the quantity of lime that is contained in the best English Marl. Those wishing to purchase will please address Mr. Thomas Martin,
Talbot county, Easton, Md. or the undersigned,
Baltimore.—Vessels going for it will pass up the Great Choptank until the Dover bridge appears in sight—they will then come to Barkers landing where they will find the lands of the undersigned on the west bank of the river
Samples of the marl can be seen at Messrs.
Fyson & Fishers, Market street

ISAELLA SMYTH
Baltimore, May 30

The following is an extract from the report of the Geologist appointed by the state of Maryland to make a minute geological survey of the State.

"But perhaps the most valuable beds of shell marl in this part of Talbot county, inasmuch as they may be made extensively available to the public demands for the article, are those which were fully described in the preceding report. They occur three miles from the Dover bridge, forming the high bank from fifteen to twenty feet above tide, being one compact mass of fossil shells, and extending nearly a mile along the river, on the farms of the late Col. Smyth and Mr. Atkinson. These beds are in contiguous strata, apparently successive, and consist of vast accumulations principally, in the ascending order, of oyster shells succeeded by clam shells intermixed with other marine shells, scollap, clams, scollap, and uppermost principally of scollap. Endeavor was made to bring these beds into view, with a view of embanking them into the public service, by giving to their proprietors what was deemed proper directions for extracting the materials, and salutary advice as to a just estimate of its value. In order to secure a constant and permanent disposal of
it. The subject is now in progress of examination. South of these banks, on the Choptank, no other deposit of marl is known to occur."

The crime of which this man is accused, is one of the most atrocious ever read of in the annals of depravity. #### From Badger's Weekly Messenger. THE HABITS OF A MAN OF BUSINESS.

A sacred regard to the principles of justice, forms the basis of every transaction, and regulates the conduct of the upright man of business. He is strict in keeping his engagements—does nothing carelessly or in a hurry—employs nobody to do what he can easily do himself—leaves every thing in its proper place—leaves nothing undone which ought to be done, and which circumstances permitted him to do—keeps his designs and business from the view of others—is prompt and decisive with his customers, and does not overtrade for his capital—prefers short credits to long ones, and cash to credit transactions at all times, when they can be advantageously made, either in buying or selling—and small profits in credit cases, with little risk, to the chance of better gains with more hazard. He is clear and explicit in all his bargains—leaves nothing of consequence to memory which he can and ought to commit to writing—keeps copies of all his important letters which he sends away, and his every letter, in voice, &c. belonging to his business, is filed and put away. Never suffers his desk to be confused with many papers lying upon it—it is always at the head of his business, well knowing, that if he leaves it, it will leave him—holds it as a maxim, that he whose credit is suspected, is not safe to be trusted—is constantly examining his books, and sees through all his affairs as by a card and attention enable him to do so—dances regularly at stated times, and then makes out his customers and constituents, both at home and abroad—avoids as much as possible, all sorts of accommodation in money matters and law suits, where there is the least hazard—is economical in his expenditure, always living within his income—keeps a memorandum book with a pencil in his pocket, in which he notes every little particular, relative to appointments, addresses, and petty cash matters—is cautious how he becomes security for any person, and is generous only when urged by motives of humanity.

Extraordinary Case of Abduction.

On Tuesday morning last a case of assault was brought before the magistrates of this borough, arising out of one of the most singular cases of abduction, it has been our lot to record. It appears that a Mr. Ade holding a highly respectable situation in the Customs house at Liverpool, had placed his only daughter, a child about ten years of age, in the man of Bristol, residing in Somers street, King-down. Mrs. Ade, who is separated from her husband, had been forbidden all access to the child, but latterly this restriction had been partially removed, though it would seem her visits were not altogether sanctioned. On Monday evening Mr. Tripp had retired to rest very early and about eight o'clock the child was observed to go into the street, having been beckoned by her mother. She was immediately seized by three men, who hurried her into a carriage, pushed down some of Mr. T's family who attempted a rescue, and drove off. Mr. Tripp immediately arose, partly dressed himself, and followed the party into Bristol. They were considerably in advance of him, and made good use of their time by engaging a chaise and post-horses with which Mrs. Ade, her daughter, and a Mr. Penkivil, a Bristol attorney, set off in the direction of London. Mr. Tripp obtained the assistance of three Bristol policemen, and followed. On his arrival at Reading, on Tuesday morning, he found that the fugitives had taken breakfast at the Bear, and had just left for London. About half a mile on the road he overtook them, stopped the chaise, and going to the chaise door demanded the child. Mr. Penkivil presented a loaded pistol at Mr. Tripp, and threatened destruction to any person who attempted to take the child from him. Some altercation ensued, which ended in sending to the police, and Mr. Golding, the senior officer, brought all the parties before the Magistrate. The Magistrate called upon Mr. Penkivil either to find bail for the assault, or to return in custody of the officers to Bristol, where the abduction case might be entered into. Mr. Penkivil preferring the latter alternative, a person from the office was despatched as an escort, and all parties set off on their return. It was past midnight when they reached their destination, and of course too early to proceed to the hearing. In the morning the Bristol magistrates refused to enter into the case—declared they had nothing to do with it, as Kingsdown is without the city jurisdiction; and ordered the child back to the inn, there to remain, under the care of the Reading officer, until the arrival of a county magistrate. While waiting for this event, about noon on Wednesday, six or seven fellows entered the room, forcibly seized and carried off the child once more, and departed, leaving no traces of their flight. It is said that the child will come into possession of considerable property, and that the object of her mother is to obtain an increased allowance—but this we can not of course, positively assert. Her allowance is already 150£ per annum. She is a tall and elegant woman, of pleasing manners and plausible address. Penkivil practices as an attorney in the city of Bristol.—Berkshire Chronicle.

Declaration of Independence.—Every one who has seen the original draft of the Declaration of Independence, or the facsimile copy of the signatures published some years ago, must have been struck with the remarkable distinctness with which the names are written. There are to be seen no illegible scrawls that nobody can decipher nor substitution of a mere initial leaving doubtful the christian name. Every one put his hand to the document as if he meant that nobody should be hanged for treason by mistaking a name. Eleven of the fifty six have flourishes or dashes under their signatures, but none of them of a character to disgrace them. Some of them are written beautifully, all of them well, and where an abbreviation of the christian name is employed, enough is left to show what the name is. We doubt if any assemblage of distinguished men could now be brought together, who could write their names as well as John Hancock & Co. We wish that some letter writers would take a lesson from this document, and have a care, when they tax people with postage, not to tax them also with the trouble of deciphering their names.—Phil. Gaz.

The Money Recovered and Robbers Apprehended.—The money contained in the trunk of the conductor of the Boston and Providence Rail Road, which was stolen on Friday has been recovered, and three of the four persons suspected as confederates in the robbery have been apprehended. We learn that on Friday night, at 10 o'clock, a passenger in the mail coach for Worcester, having heard of the robbery, had his suspicions excited against two men, fellow travellers, one of whom was taken up at the post office lobby, and the other at the street. As the coach was proceeding out of town, it stopped at the Tremont House, when the gentleman alluded to, ran across the street to the Theatre, and narrated his suspicions to a police officer, who examined the passengers in the coach, and finding no cause to detain any of them, they proceeded on their journey. On arriving at Brighton, whilst the coach stopped, two other men, who had taken passage there, made their appearance, and seemed intoxicated. One of them went to the bar and asked for a piece of wine, and as he did so, it was observed that he slipped his hand, which contained something, behind him, & under his cloak.

On receiving the wine, he went into a room occupied by himself and confederates, when the bar keeper, whose curiosity was roused, on passing round the house and peeping in at a window, discovered him tying up what appeared to be bundles of bills. When the driver was starting, he asked, as is customary, if all was ready, and was answered by one of the gang 'yes,' but they were not then all in, as one of them took his seat afterwards, who, it was remarked, approached the coach from the barn. On arriving at Farmington, the four were noticed portering about the house until the time of starting again, and when about two miles from the town, one of them called to the driver to stop.

He had lost his pocket book, containing $300 and more. He left the coach, returned to Farmington, and on entering the bar room picked up a piece of paper, and remarked 'Ah, there it is—all right now,' or words to that effect, and that is the last that has been seen of him. The rest proceeded to Worcester, where two of them stopped, and owing to their suspicious conduct were arrested on Saturday, examined, and committed. The other went to Sturbridge, (Conn.) where he has since been arrested by constable Clapp. The driver of the mail coach having communicated his suspicions to the keeper of the hotel at Farmington, search was made around the premises, & a package containing $24,000 was found yesterday morning in a drain covered with wood. The only money found on the men examined at Worcester, was $90 in notes of the U. S. Bank.

The trunk contained one package addressed to E. Bement, Boston, containing $9,034, in notes of various New England Banks. A package addressed to M. S. Parker, Cashier of the Suffolk Bank, Boston, containing $5,000 in bank notes of Eastern Banks; a sealed package addressed to E. P. Clark, Cashier, contents not known; and a package addressed K. W. Clark & Brother, Boston, containing about $6,000 in notes of Eastern Banks and checks. There were other sealed packages and letters in the trunk; one apparently containing money, addressed Charles Sprague, Cashier of the Globe Bank, Boston.—Boston Trans.

POLICE OFFICE, Sept. 30.

STRANGE INCIDENT.—Yesterday afternoon a genteel looking young man who was walking up Broadway, very deliberately shattered to pieces some of the glass in the windows of three stores in succession, as he passed by them. He was immediately taken into custody and brought to the police office, and one of the persons whose windows he broke, lodged a complaint against him. The young man's excited appearance at first led to the conclusion that he had been drinking, and that the outrage had arisen from that cause. But when he was asked his name, he very quietly and methodically took out his note book, and handed it to the clerk, and then laying his hand on the table, and resting his head on his elbow, he remained for about a minute seemingly absorbed in deep meditation, until Mr. Hopson asked him to account for his conduct, when he stood up and calmly replied—"I am mad, and applied to be taken into the Lunatic asylum in Philadelphia, but they refused to receive me. I want to be shut up." Mr. Hopson put several questions to him as to his place of birth, residence and business, to all which he gave rational answers, but still persisted in saying that he was mad. Mr. Hopson asked him if he had any money about him, and he replied "Yes, $250." Mr. Hopson then asked him to show it, and he took out a small pocket book containing some bank bills, which Mr. Hopson reckoned, & finding that they did not amount to $250, asked him where was the remainder of the sum he said he had. "Here," said he, opening the bosom of his coat, and pulling out a small flannel bag, which was suspended round his body by a string, and which contained some more bank bills. To some more questions put to him he replied that his name, as appeared by his card, was Alfred Fitzhugh; that he was born in London, and lately lived in the Arcade in Philadelphia, where he carried on the business of a pocket book maker and that he had closed up his shop, which contained his stock in trade, and come here to get himself shut up in a madhouse. As it seemed evident that his mind was affected with some sort of insanity, Mr. Hopson had him detained until further enquiries can be made about him. He is apparently about twenty five years of age, black hair, strongly marked cast of countenance, and was dressed in a fashionable suit of black clothes, which he had apparently just got from the tailor.

It has been decided, we learn, that the Lunatic department of the Pennsylvania Hospital shall be removed to some suitable location in the neighbourhood of our city. There are disadvantages in the present situation and location, which may thus be removed, and the funds of the institution are ample for the erection of a noble building, upon an enlarged and improved plan, a spacious lot, with rural conveniences and embellishments. Less noise, more free air, greater space for exercise, are important for patients labouring under mental derangement. The city Hospital will remain as is, a receptacle for the merely sick, those who experience accidents, and so forth. The administration of its lunatic department has been justly famed. We may anticipate even a better for the new establishment, which cannot fail to become an additional honor to Philadelphia, and a benefit for the whole country.—Nat. Gaz.

The French are getting up a new gag-law for the press.—Almost as bad as the principle adopted lately by our own worthy Post Master General. Almost, we say, for really it has some redeeming qualities. There, where a paper has passed the ordeal of the law, and has received the sanction of one half dozen censors, it is permitted to pass to any quarter of the nation, unimpeded, as far as their diligences can carry it. While with us, according to the creed adopted, getting a paper into the mail is but a small part of the matter. It has then to undergo the inspection and receive the sanction of any or all of the 6 or 8,000 post masters—or is to be checked in its course, and perhaps thrown aside, or burnt, and no one but the conscientious P. M. who does the duty is any the wiser. The publisher has none of his duty, and imagines that all bright, until informed by the complaint of distant patrons that something is wrong. He looks around for the rogue, not at all the movements of the Post Office department are conducted with the secrecy of a cloister he is compelled to give up the chase as hopeless. Thus with all its odiousness, we look upon the system adopted in France, as infinitely superior to that originated in republican America. The evil of the one is seen in the delay the other is unseen.

LEGISLATIVE MISERY.

The editor of the Nantucket Inquirer, who is now settling as a member of the writes about the 'bum drum,' of the first and second Senate of Massachusetts thus readings of a long draft of a law.

Soon as one's dinner is bolted, to be seated on a stuffed easy chair resting on wheels, accommodated to the latest attitudes of the human frame—and there to remain for hours, during the first readings of Chapters, catching now and then a word from the drowsy recitations of the clerk or reader—and all without dropping irretrievably into the clutches of Somnus! Buz, buz, aforesaid, buz, buz, any two or more, buz, deem it expedient hum, buz, from time to time, buz, powers and privileges, buz, buz, duties and liabilities, buz, buz, kept up and maintained to the end thereof. It is like the continual dropping that weareth a way stone—like the trough of the sea and surf upon the shores of Siasconset, in a clam summer's night, with the solitary moon, swimming slowly in the cloudless zenith, every croak or chirp or frog or cricket hushed in quiet awe!

JOHN Q. ADAMS'S LETTER.

The Newport (R. I.) Republican of Wednesday contains the following letter from J. Q. Adams addressed to Daniel J. Pearce, which has so frequently been alluded to in the newspapers during the last two weeks.

QUINCY, Sept. 7th, 1835.

"DUTIE J. PEARCE, Esq. Newport, R. I."

"Dear Sir: I enclose a copy of the proceedings of the town of Quincy upon the evil report of the Rev. William M. Cornell, to the Massachusetts Missionary Society, and as further evidence that the inhabitants of Quincy are not so graceless as I am Mr. Cornell represents them to be. I ask your acceptance also of a pamphlet containing the proceedings of the first congregational church and society in the town, upon the recent settlement of a colleague to their Pastor, after thirty five years of faithful service by him in this land of desolations."

I heartily congratulate you upon your reputation to Congress—although upon many important public measures, I differed widely in opinion from you in the last Congress, and although I do not flatter myself that we shall agree much better in the next, I am yet convinced that the party which has been these two years struggling to break you down, the base compound of Hartford Convention Federalism and Royal Arch Masonry, is so rotten with the corruption of both its elements, that I hail with joy the victory which you have achieved over it; rejoice also that the people have repudiated the injustice done by the same party to Mr. Sprague, and have returned him to Congress as your colleague. Of that party, treachery is so favorite an instrument, that I have heard Mr. Burgess complain that they have used it even with him. It is their nature and their vocation—I welcome the result of your election as a pledge that their chalice is returning to their own lips. They betrayed Mr. Burgess by not electing him to the Senate of the United States. Their own organ in Providence charges the loss of his election to the House upon their treachery—So will it and so mote it always be.—They have no honest principle to keep them together.—Their only cement is a sympathy of hatred to every man of pure principle than themselves. Towards Mr. Burgess himself I cherished a friendly feeling; for, governed as he is by impulses, and bitter as he is in the indulgence of his sarcastic humor, he has brilliant parts, a classical taste, occasional flights of eloquence, and too much honesty for his party—I deeply regretted the division between him and you, and lamented still more his open electioneering speeches against you—in my humble opinion public men debate themselves by personal electioneering against each other. The depostories of public trusts should be ashamed to make themselves the scavengers of a party; Mr. Burgess suffered himself to be so used by the party to which he belonged; Verily, he has his reward; They have paid him in kind. I have taken as much interest in the Rhode Island elections, as in those of my own State, since the excitement on the Masonic controversy has had so much influence upon them. What the politics of the State may be hereafter, or what yours in Congress will be, I do not conjecture, but I hope they may be such as to promote the cause of sound principles, good morals, and the Union.

I am, with great regard,
Your friend and servant,
J. Q. ADAMS

The Newport Herald of the Times, in commenting on the above letter, remarks,—"We cannot refrain from adding, in reference to the letter, that this same Whig party of Rhode Island, is the identical party, almost to a man, who in 1828, gave Mr. Adams, then a candidate for the Presidency, a triumphant majority—at a period too, when it was well known to them that Jackson would inevitably beat him. His letter to the 'leaky vessel' shows what return is made."

The comments which such a letter deserves, we leave to those who, having acted against Mr. Adams and foretold such a result, have occasion to exult in their foresight. Those who have borne the name of Federalist, and sustained the writer of that letter, have only to say that accustomed to sacrifice their personal and party predilections for what they deem the good of their country, they are not mistaking their man, have not compromised their principles, nor are their motives to be impugned.—U. S. Gaz.

VICTORY—VICTORY.

We congratulate the whigs of this district on the glorious result of the election on Monday last. Four Whig Delegates have been elected from this county, 4 from Caroline, 3 from Queen Anne's; & from Kent—Cecil is Van Buren of course.—Mr. PEARCE, the Whig candidate for Congress, is elected by a majority, in the District of 23 votes over Mr. Grason the Van Buren Candidate, for which majority in part, we may thank our neighbour over the way." Our good friend, Sir Richard, left us nothing to do.—We acknowledge we were a little dependent as to the event, until we saw in the Whig of the 29th ult. the sudden change in the politics of that paper. How can we so confidently thank the editor for publishing the private letter of his friend for the good of his adopted cause?

FARMERS.

Brine your Seed Wheat—practical men of good authority recommend it.—It cleanses your wheat from all filth and bad grains—the brine absorbed by the grains of wheat causes them to rise stronger—and if there are any eggs of any insect deposited upon the grains of wheat, as some suppose, the stirring the wheat in brine kills you of them.

The process is easy—Take two common pork barrels, and have a bushel basket—fill one tub half full of brine, that will bear an egg & pour a bushel of seed wheat into it—then with a spade or paddle stir it briskly and thoroughly until all that will float rises to the surface—skin all that off—put the basket in the mouth of the empty tub and pour the brine off into the basket which lets it through into the empty tub and catches all the wheat—then remove the basket of wheat to the mouth of the tub thus emptied to drain, and go on brining a second bushel—by the time you have skinned the second bushel the first will have drained completely—then empty that wheat from the basket on a barn floor and spread it an inch or two thick—and so proceed with the rest. The wheat being suffered to lie a whole night upon the barn floor gets sufficiently dry to be seeded easily.—The brined wheat will swell somewhat and for this you must provide in seeding, by sowing a little matter thicker.

Try it and judge for yourselves—the expense and labour are unimportant compared with the promised advantages.

A FARMER.

*Six pounds of salt to four gallons of water will make good brine—which is about a quart of salt to a gallon of water—be careful not to waste the brine.

ACCIDENT TO GEN. HARRISON.

A correspondent of the New York Sun writes: "As the venerable W. H. Harrison, one of the candidates for the presidential chair, was returning from this city to his residence, having been here several days attending the agricultural fair held in Carthage, 12 miles upon the Dayton Canal, his horse took fright and threw his rider with violence upon the turnpike. The General received a severe contusion upon the head. It was feared for a short time that the injury was very serious, but most fortunately Dr. Banks, being close at hand, dressed the wound, pronounced it serious but not dangerous. Dr. B. entertains no doubt but the General will be able to pursue his journey in a few days.

PROSPECTUS OF A NEW PUBLICATION TO BE CALLED

The Catholic Periodical LIBRARY

Which is designed to be a reprint of all the best Catholic Works in the English Language, in weekly numbers, at 8 cents each.

The dearth and scarcity of the best Catholic works must long have been a source of regret to every intelligent and observing Catholic in America. So limited has been the sale, and so great the expense of printing these books, that but few individuals in the country have been sufficiently enterprising to undertake their publication; and their price, in consequence, has been more than proportionally high. In fact, so dear have Catholic books in general been, that it has been entirely impossible for the poorer members of the Catholic community, who stand most in need of instruction, and for whom the books have in general been compiled, to obtain copies, even of those works which are nearly essential to the practice of religion.

The subscriber has long since observed this fact with the utmost regret, and may certainly say, that up to this time, he has at least done something to reduce the prices of the most necessary Catholic works. Our religious are books still however, extremely dear; and the Subscriber, depending on the support of a liberal and enlightened Catholic community, has determined to issue a Periodical publication, which, by its cheapness, will place all the best Catholic works within the reach of the poorest individual; and from the neatness and elegance of its execution will be found worthy of a place in the libraries of the rich. Such a Publication as this, which the Subscriber proposes to issue, has long been called for by the exigencies of the Catholic community; and the rapidly increasing number of the members of our Holy Church seems fully to justify him in the expectation that it will meet with sufficient encouragement to enable him to conduct it successfully. He, therefore, notwithstanding the expense and risk attending it, and confiding entirely in the liberality and generosity of his fellow Catholics of the United States and the Canadas, has resolved to put it to press forthwith; and he therefore throws himself on his Catholic brethren, and calls on them for their support and patronage.

In this undertaking he is principally encouraged by the hope that it will meet with cordial approbation of the clergy in general, and that he will be aided by the powerful assistance of that learned and devoted body of men. The undertaking is one which is eminently calculated to disseminate the principles of our holy religion widely throughout the community, and to assist the clergy in the discharge of their parochial duties by affording, at an uncommonly low rate, all the necessary knowledge and instruction. The Subscriber, therefore, earnestly requests that the Bishops and Clergy in general will exert their powerful influence in order to increase the popularity of the work and to obtain a sufficient number of subscribers to enable him to carry it on with success. By these means they will augment the spiritual comforts of their charges, and contribute, in a great measure, to dispel the prejudices by which our brethren of other denominations are unfortunately blinded.

TERMS.—The Catholic Periodical Library will be published in Weekly numbers, of fifty pages each, duodecimo size, on fine royal paper, and beautiful new type, stitched in handsome wrappers, and will embrace the whole of the most celebrated Controversial and Devotional works, together with a large fund of ecclesiastical history. The first Number will be issued on Saturday November 7th.—Terms of Subscription $4 Per Annum, or Eight Cents per Number, payable in advance.—Liberal commissions will be allowed to Agents. Any six persons, who may live at a distance, remitting a twenty cent note, may have six copies of the work sent them for one year.

N. B. Postmasters throughout the country are requested to act as Agents.

The following is a list of a few of the works which will be issued in this publication, and which will follow each other in rapid succession.

More's Travels of an Irish Gentleman in search of a religion, Bossuet's History of the Variations of the Protestant Churches, The Faith of Catholics, by Kirk and Berrington, Hayward's True Church of Christ shown, Hayward's Charity and Truth, Mores Catechism, or Ages of Faith, Munford's Question of Questions, Munford's Catholic Sermonary, Lingard's History of the Anglo-Saxon Church, Perpetuity of the Faith, Dr. McHale's Evidence of the Catholic Church, Fleury's Manners of the Israelites, Fleury's Manners of Christians, Lannegan's Ecclesiastical History of Ireland, Bishop Hay's Works, Prince Galitzin's Controversial Writings, Manning's Works, O'Leary's Tracts, St. Bodaverture's Life of Christ, Challoner's Meditations, Butler's Book of the Catholic Church, Butler's Festivals and Fasts, Butler's Lives of Saints, Dr. Lingard's edition of Ward's Errata.

The above is a Collection of Standard Catholic Works, which could not be purchased for less than seventy dollars; and it would be almost impossible to obtain many of the works included in it at any price whatever. The collection can now be obtained in this cheap and elegant Periodical for the uncommonly low price of about Twenty Dollars.

All new Catholic Works will be published in the Periodical Library as soon as received; and able translators will be provided for all the European publications of peculiar excellence.

Collector's Second Notice for 1834.

The subscriber being desirous of completing his collections for the year 1834, earnestly requests all persons who stand indebted to him for county taxes to come forward and settle their accounts without delay; as he must if possible settle with all those who have claims upon the County in the time specified by law which will expire on or about the 1st of March next, and it is impossible for him to pay them unless he is first paid; therefore all those that do not comply with this notice on or before that time may certainly expect the letter of the law enforced against them, without respect to persons; as his duty as an officer will compel him to this course. Persons holding property in the county and residing out it will please pay attention to this notice and save themselves trouble.

THE SILK CULTURIST.

THE Executive Committee of the Hartford County Silk Society, have commenced a monthly publication, called the Silk Cultivist and Farmers Manual.

The object of the publication is to disseminate a thorough knowledge of the cultivation of the Mulberry Tree, in all its varieties. The rearing of Silk Worms.—The production of Coccons and the Reeling of Silk, in the most approved method. The importance of this knowledge will appear from the fact that the net profit of land devoted to the culture of Silk, is double, if not triple, to that derived from any other crop which can be put upon it. It is also a fact, that every moderate farmer can raise several hundred dollars worth of Silk without interfering with his ordinary agricultural operations. But in order to avail himself of this facility to obtain competency and wealth, which our soil and climate have given him, he must possess himself of information on the subject—for without it his attempts will be fruitless. It is, therefore, the object of the Committee to diffuse this information as extensively as possible, and at the cheapest rate. The publication will contain a complete manual or directory from sowing the seed to reeling the Silk, together with such facts and experiments, as will enable farmers to raise Silk and prepare it for market, without further knowledge or assistance. It will also contain interesting matter on agricultural subjects in general.

TERMS.—The Cultivist will be published in monthly numbers of Eight Quarto Pages, at FIFTY CENTS a year. No subscription will be received unless paid in advance, and for not less than a year.

Subscriptions received by F. G. COMSTOCK, Secretary, Hartford, Conn., to whom also, Communications may be addressed, which, if post paid, will be attended to.

Editors who will copy the above, shall receive the publication for one year. Hartford, April, 1835—may 2

POETRY.

NEW-ENGLAND FARMER'S ALMANAC—Mr. Fessenden, of the New-England Farmer, has just published his Almanac for 1836. It is filled, as might be expected, with lots of matter concerning the farm, the dairy and the garden, useful and amusing. The poetry at the head of the calendar pages, is original and bears the genuine stamp of the poet. As a specimen take that from the next three months:

OCTOBER.

May is the poetaster's pet,
But we prefer October
Because she's worth the most and is
Most dignified and sober.

We like her ladyship so well,
We should rejoice to have her
Stay and be sociable and take
Pot luck with us forever.

October is no giddy flirt,
But staid, sedate and sensible,
And yields the treasures of the year
From her great indisposible—

For all good cultivators makes
Most capital deposits,
Establishing the best of banks
In cellars, barns and closets.

Blind Fortune with her golden horn,
And swagging petences,
Makes no donations half so rich
As autumn's queen dispenses.

NOVEMBER.

Now clouds of frost sear'd shrivell'd
leaves
By howling north winds started,
Seem shadowy ghosts, which hover near
The scenes of joys departed.

Gigantic trees their naked arms
Now wave like signposts, craving
The passing traveller for aid
Against the tempest raving.

The foolish lass wears out her nights
In poring over novels,
In which no sentence can be found
Which neither struts nor grovels.

Thus imperceptibly imbibes
Poison for soul and body,
Then falls outrageously in love
With some vile dashing noddy.

The sins and miseries of the sex
Are commonly proceeding
From first impressions, such as are Derived from novel-reading.

DECEMBER.

While earth is steel, and water rock,
The types of desolation,
Let our best energies be bent
To mental cultivation.

Each farmer his own fireside make
A little school of knowledge,
Of greater use, if less refined,
Than lore that's learn'd in college.

Reader, may't please your ladyship,
Provided you're a lady,
Put on a good, warm winter suit,
If you have not already.

With all the vast respect I owe
To such a genteel body,
I'd have your elegancy know
That every nudge is noddy.

Your trap is set to catch a bear,
Its bait is female vanity,
But when you've caught your death of cold
Your pride will seem insanity.

New Improved Patent

THRASHING MACHINE.

THE SUBSCRIBERS having purchased the right of the Eastern Shore of Maryland of S. S. Allen's Improved Thrashing Machine, respectfully ask the public to suspend the purchase of any machine until they shall have an opportunity of seeing theirs, as they think it will give more general satisfaction than any thing of the sort yet offered to the public, as regards its thrashing, cheapness and convenience. It thrashes rapidly with one horse, and requires but two for any speed, and so completely portable that the whole ready for use may be easily taken from barn to barn in a light wagon with one horse, and with the improved Concave Hopper and Wind Mill is an excellent machine for getting out clover seed.

These Machines can be seen at their shop in Elkton, where they are now building them.

To the Farmers and Gardeners.

The undersigned having made arrangements for disposing of the valuable SHELL MARL which exists on his estate in Talbot county, informs the agriculturists on and near the navigable waters of the Chesapeake Bay that his agent, Mr. Thomas Martin, is prepared to deliver the above article, in any quantities that may be required.

A platform or stage has been run out into deep water, where vessels of 12 feet draft of water may lie in safety. The Marl may be taken from the banks at the price of one cent per bushel cash.

The fertilizing properties of calcareous marl are now so well known, that it is unnecessary to advert to the subject—in reference to this deposit it may be stated that it consists of Sea shells, with very little admixture of earth, and contains from 2 to 4 times the quantity of lime that is contained in the best English Marl.—Those wishing to purchase will please address Mr. Thomas Martin, Trappo near Easton, Md. or the undersigned, Baltimore.—Vessels going for it will pass up the Great Choptank until the Dover bridge appears in sight—they will then come to Barkers landing where they will find the lands of the undersigned on the west bank of the river. Samples of the marl can be seen at Messrs. Lyson & Fisher's, Market street

ISABELLA SMYTH.

Baltimore, May 30

The following is an extract from the report of the Geologist appointed by the state of Maryland to make a minute geological survey of the State.

"But perhaps the most valuable beds of shell marl in this part of Talbot county, inasmuch as they may be made extensively available to the public demands for the article, are those which were fully described in the preceding report. They occur three miles below Dover bridge, forming the high bank from fifteen to twenty feet above tide, being one compact mass of fossil shells, and extending nearly a mile along the river, on the farms of the late Col. Smyth and Mr. Atkinson. These beds are in contiguous strata, apparently successive, and consist of vast accumulations principally, in the ascending order, of oyster shells succeeded by clam shells intermixed with other marine shells, scollup, clam and scollup, and uppermost principally of scollup. Endeavor was made to bring these beds into notice, with a view of enlisting them into the public service, by giving to their proprietors what was deemed proper directions for extracting the materials, and salutary advice as

THE U. STATES AND FRANCE.
Baltimore October 13.—It was rumoured in this city yesterday that accounts were received at Washington on Saturday, brought by the last Havre packet, stating that the French King had positively declined paying the five millions due this country under the indemnity treaty, until a direct apology should be made by our Executive. The Washington papers of today will probably settle the question of the truth of the rumor.—American.

DEATH OF THE HON. WM. T. BARRY.
We understand that letters have been received by the packet from England, which arrived at N. York on the 9th, containing intelligence of the death of the Hon. Wm. T. Barry, our Minister to Spain, and late Post Master General. His death occurred in England.

From the N. Y. Jour. of Com. of Saturday.
LATEST FROM SPAIN.
Captain Hartshorn, of ship Emperess, which arrived this morning from Malaga and Gibraltar, in 28 days from the latter place, informs us that a revolution broke out in the provinces of Andalusia, Seville, Malaga and Grenada, on the 23d and 24th of August, and that the constitution of 1812 was proclaimed. All the Priests at Malaga were imprisoned on the 23d, and a number of them killed or wounded. The troops were put down, and all that were not in favor of the new Constitution were either shot or imprisoned. There were great joy and illuminations throughout the place when Capt. H. left, and things were getting quiet.

From the New York Transcript.
LORDS IN LIMBO.
Mag.—Marquis of Waterford, Lord John Beresford, Viscount Jocelyn, and the Right Honorable Colonel Dundas! Come up here all of you. What did you get drunk and carry on so far; did you want a bit of a spree?—Watchman, what were these men doing?

Appeared by the testimony of Charles Thompson, a watch, that between three and four in the morning, he was on duty in Washington street near the battery, and heard some one breaking the city lamps. Afterwards the alarm rap was given for assistance, and on hastening to the spot he found the four watchmen a-bore mentioned, fighting furiously with two watchmen, that he then seized hold of the Marquis of Waterford, with the intention of taking him to the watch-house, when then Right Honorable Colonel Dundas knocked him down and that then they tore the watchman's clothes nearly off his back, & continued to fight like good fellows until they were surrounded by a reinforcement, & taken prisoners. "Don't touch me with your dirty hands," said one of these sprigs of nobility, "I'll blow your republican brains out." "D—n your shooting," said the Charles, "who cares for such customers as you; I'll coin the old hickory tooth over you & teach you what the toughness of your countrymen at N. Orleans, to sing small & lie low; and down he knocked this son of a duke and hereditary legislator flat on his face in the middle of the gutter." "Right honorable, I'm best for this heat; come to my aid, my boon companion—bring me a horse—bind up my bleeding wounds!" But both Beresford and his brother, with Lord Jocelyn, had their hands full of employment, in contending with the Charles who came up to the scratch like lions, until each and every lord was ultimately laid low, and then taken to the watch house. On their road thither, they cursed and swore like most troopers Lord John—d—d all the watchmen for a scurvy set of republicans—swore that he could fog fifty of them, but that he had broken his leg in Philadelphia, and could not stand up long enough to accomplish the task. Lord Jocelyn d—d the Yankees for a pack of polluted patriots, and swore he would shoot the first fellow that dared to disgrace his august personage, by fixing his fingers on him.

The Right Honorable Col. Dundas endeavored to seduce the watchman into accepting a bribe, as he had previously seduced the daughter of Mr. Adams; while the mighty Marquis sought to scare the surly guardians of the slumbers of our citizens, and to "fright the life from its property," but it was all of no avail—their lordships were taken to the watch house where they drew out handfuls of sovereigns, and showed them to the captain and his assistant, Mr. Noble who not only refused to relax his rigorous treatment of disorderly delinquents, and without any distinction of persons he clapped them into one of the cells. "Look here you d—d Yankees," said the Marquis, thrusting his hand full of sovereigns through the bars of the cell, "you can't show any thing to compete with these!" "No, thank God and Gen. Washington always," said the watchman, "we ain't bathed with a great many of them ere stupid sovereigns; however, I guess you'd better sing small, Mister Marquis, for if you don't feel foolish, I can tell you that you look confoundedly flat."

At four o'clock they were taken before Justice Hopson, as above stated, when he asked one of the tallest to tell his right name.

Mag.—I am Henry De-la-Poer, Marquis of Waterford, Earl and Viscount of Beresford, Viscount Jocelyn, and the Right Honorable Colonel Dundas! Come up here all of you. What did you get drunk and carry on so far; did you want a bit of a spree?—Watchman, what were these men doing?

ly taken away by this string of titles)—Who e-w! Well, now, my Marquis, you're stag's head or calf's head is between the horns of a dilemma, and instead of your jaw being pierced with a broken spear, it has been done by a watchman's club, an equally honorable weapon, though not accounted so in heraldry, and I am afraid that the only angels you'll get for your supporters are Lyons and John the jailer.

The others were then asked for their names, which had we the conferring of titles, should stand thus: Marquis of Mischievous, Duke of Delinquency, Viscount Vagabond, and Lord Love-liquor. They carried on most outrageously in the office—swore at the magistrate—menaced all around them, and finally the Marquis squared off at Lyons, who laid him low in a brace of shakes, by a blow commonly called 'a clip under the ear.' 'I'm Lord John Beresford, and be d—d to you,' said the younger brother of the Marquis, who was only 21 years of age; and I'm the son of the late Marquis of Waterford, by his wife Susanna, only daughter of George, the second Earl of Tyrconnel.

Mag.—Then you should keep sober, Mr. Beresford, and not break the city lamps and the watchman's heads. They behaved so outrageously at last, that they were all committed to Bridewell, and shut up in a cell there till nine o'clock, when they sent for the British Consul, who, with the Mayor, came to the police office and obtained their discharge, after paying handsomely for all expenses.

THE SILK CULTURIST
THE Executive Committee of the Hartford County Silk Society, have commenced a monthly publication, called the Silk Culturist and Farmers Manual.
The object of the publication is to disseminate a thorough knowledge of the cultivation of the Mulberry Tree, in all its varieties. The rearing of Silk Worms. The production of Cocoons and the Reeling of Silk, in the most approved method. The importance of this new profit of land devoted to the culture of Silk, is doubly, if not triple, that derived from any other crop which can be put upon it. It is also a fact, that every moderate farmer can raise several hundred dollars worth of Silk, without interfering with his ordinary agricultural operations. But in order to avail himself of this facility to obtain competency and wealth, which our soil and climate have given him, he must possess himself of information on the subject—for without it, his attempts will be fruitless. It is, therefore, the object of the Committee to diffuse this information as extensively as possible, and at the cheapest rates. The publication will contain a complete manual or directory from sowing the seed to reeling the Silk, together with such facts and experiments, as will enable farmers to raise Silk and prepare it for market, without further knowledge or assistance. It will also contain interesting matter on agricultural subjects in general.

TERMS.—The Culturist will be published in monthly numbers of Eight Quarto Pages, at FIFTY CENTS a year. No subscription will be received unless paid in advance, and for not less than a year.
Subscriptions received by F. G. COMSTOCK, Secretary, Hartford, Conn., to whom all Communications may be addressed, which, if not paid, will be attended to.
Editors who will copy the above, shall receive the publication for one year.

The Catholic Periodical

LIBRARY

Which is designed to be a reprint of all the best Catholic Works in the English Language, in weekly numbers, at 8 cents each.

The dearth and scarcity of the best Catholic works must long have been a source of regret to every intelligent and observing Catholic in America. So limited has been the sale, and so great the expense of printing these books, that but few individuals in the country have been sufficiently enterprising to undertake their publication; and their price in consequence, has been more than proportionally high. In fact, so dear have Catholic books in general been, that it has been entirely impossible for the poorer members of the Catholic community, who stand most in need of instruction, and for whom the books have in general been compiled, to obtain copies, even of those works which are nearly essential to the practice of religion.

The subscriber has long since observed this fact with the utmost regret, and may certainly say, that up to this time, he has at least done something to reduce the prices of the most necessary Catholic works. Our religious are books still, however, extremely dear; and the subscriber, depending on the support of a liberal and enlightened Catholic community, has determined to issue a Periodical publication, which, by its cheapness, will place all the best Catholic works within the reach of the poorest individual; and from the neatness and elegance of its execution will be found worthy of a place in the libraries of the rich. Such a Publication as that which the Subscriber proposes to issue, has long been called for by the exigencies of the Catholic community; and the rapidly increasing number of the members of our Holy Church seems fully to justify him in the expectation that it will meet with sufficient encouragement to enable him to conduct it successfully. He, therefore, notwithstanding the expense and risk attending it, and confiding entirely in the liberality and generosity of his fellow Catholics of the United States and the Canada, has resolved to put it to press forthwith; and he therefore throws himself on his Catholic brethren, and calls on them for their support and patronage.

In this undertaking he is principally encouraged by the hope that it will meet with cordial approbation of the clergy in general, and that he will be aided by the powerful assistance of that learned and devoted body of men. The undertaking is one which is eminently calculated to disseminate the principles of our holy religion widely throughout the community, and to assist the clergy in the discharge of their parochial duties by affording, at an uncommonly low rate, all the necessary knowledge and instruction. The Subscriber, therefore, earnestly requests that the Bishops and Clergy in general will exert their powerful influence in order to increase the popularity of the work and to obtain a sufficient number of Subscribers to enable him to carry it on with success. By these means they will augment the spiritual comforts of their charges, and contribute, in a great measure, to dispel the prejudices by which our brethren of other denominations are unfortunately blinded.

TERMS.—The Catholic Periodical Library will be published in Weekly numbers, of 500 pages each, duodecimo size, on fine moral paper, and beautiful new type, stitched in wrappers, and will embrace the most celebrated Controversial and practical history. The first number will appear on Saturday November 7th.—For a subscription $4 Per Annum, or Eight Dollars, payable in advance.—Larger numbers will be allowed to Agents, and persons, who may live at a distance, sending a twenty dollar note, may have six copies of the work sent them for one year.

N. B. Postmasters throughout the country are requested to act as Agents for the work. The following is a list of a few of the works which will be issued in this publication, and which will follow each other in rapid succession.

Moore's Travels of an Irish Gentleman in search of a religion. Broderick's History of the Variations of the Protestant Churches. The Faith of Catholics, by Kirk and Boringdon. Hayward's True Church of Christ shown. Hayward's Charity and Truth. Moore's Catholicism, or Ages of Faith. Mumford's Question of Questions. Mumford's Catholic Scripture. The above is a Collection of Standard Catholic Works, which could not be purchased for less than seventy dollars; and it would be almost impossible to obtain many of the works included in it at any price whatever. The collection can now be obtained in this cheap and elegant Periodical for the uncommonly low price of about Twenty Dollars. All new Catholic Works will be published in the Periodical LIBRARY as soon as received, and able translations will be provided for the European publications of peculiar interest.

THE DEATH SHIP.

One morning in the month of August 1829, His Majesty's Brig R— was becalmed in the narrow strait that divides the beautiful Isle of Scio from the main land of Asia; being pretty near the shore, I went up into the main-top, whence the Island presented one unbroken line of verdure, from the shingly beach to the summit of the vine clad hills that stretch from end to end. Ravage and destruction, had, however, done its work here during the preceding year. From my station in the top, I had a bird's-eye view of the town; but such a picture of desolation I never before witnessed. The batteries, that had once been pretty strong, were now in ruins. The prostrated disposition of the Turks prevented their adopting any measure of defence against the yet ill-equipped and ill-manned squadrons of Greece. The red flag, in the midst of which shone the red crescent, waved over the ruins, and at the peaks two or three small armed Turkish vessels that lay in the bay. Not a human being was visible, and the town for the most part appeared uninhabited, if it might be judged of by the demolished houses and grass growing streets that met the eye in every direction. The hills rose with a gradual ascent behind the ruined city, which contrasted sadly with the luxuriant appearance.

It was a delightful morning—the sun had just risen, and shone forth in all the brilliancy of an eastern climate—the azure sky was reflected from the clear and placid water, unmoved by the slightest ripple. While gazing on the lovely scene before me, I insensibly fell into a train of reflections, heedless of the twitches of a hungry stomach, that appeared at intervals for breakfast. We were cruising on classic ground. Every port we touched at on this delightful station was replete with interest; we had visited Malta, and Cyprus, and the sister tenants of the middle deep, had bathed in St. Paul's bay the spot as legends tell, where that eminent apostle was shipwrecked; we had had Patmos under our lee; but this isolated rock still bore the palm of greatest attraction. Here the beloved of our Saviour, Christ, the prophetic book of the Revelations. The City before me, now in ruins, was one of those claiming the honor of being the birth-place of the prince of poets. While ruminating on these events, my attention was arrested by the appearance of a sail of a peculiar and strange character, at the entrance of the strait. She had just rounded a small point of land, and seemed to be a fore-and-aft-rigged vessel of small size, but under no command; her boom jibed every roll she took with the gentle swell—her gall hung down as if the peak halliards had been cut, and her fore-trysail sheet was evidently drifting by the flapping of the canvass. "Well, cried I, addressing the man at the mast head, do you see that schooner rigging craft out yonder there; she seems to be adrift somehow or other?"

"Where? Oh, aye, I see her now; she's a square looking gignaree sort of a thing," and the next moment he hailed the deck to report her.

The attention of the entire deck was now attracted towards the strange vessel, the officers reconnoitred her with the glasses—the Jacks had to employ their own eyes, but this did not prevent them from passing their various opinions on what she was likely to prove. Descending from aloft, I joined the latter, and listened to the following dialogue of those unopinionated sons of the sea.

"I'll tell you what it is my mates," said an old fore-castle man of the name of Benton, "I think as how that 'ere craft has been robbed by pirates; and I'm blest if we shouldn't root them out as clean's a leak."

"I'll bet any man a week's grog to a lot that all her crew's been made to walk the plank."

"For my part," said a fore-topman, "I like to have nothing to do with 'em; if it's always sure to be boat work, and that's the mischief for knocking a poor fellow up—you know that. Why, we was a ter, and took a pole-axe rigged craft once when I was in the Seringapatam; and after chasing her a whole day, we lost eight as brave fellows as ever s'p'ed a ship's deck, in boarding the culprits; hang me if I wouldn't sooner be in action a whole watch, yard-arm & yard-arm, with a slashing frigate than be on a wild-goose-chase for a day or two in an open boat, on what is but at the best a thief-taking job. 'Sides, where's the honor a fellow gets if even he does take 'em—what are they but a parcel of thieves? It's enough to make a fellow that has served with Nelson and Collingwood quit the service altogether; what do you think, old Joe?"

"Just the 'identical thing ho," said Joe Benton; "if they had seen the old Victory alongside of the Santa's'ma Trinidad, the 21st October, they might ha' talked about honour, and such-like; but," added Joe, with a significant shake of the head, "the Navy, a'n't the same now as when you and I were shipmates last; they've got patent lids, patent capsterns patent locks to big-guns, and tuck me if we won't soon have patent Captains!"

The strange vessel was about two miles distant, and still rolled as if not under command; a boat, which I accompanied, was therefore despatched to overhaul her. The beauty of the morning, and calmness of the sea, enlivened by the dash of the oars, had an exhilarating effect; but all eyes were suspiciously directed to the schooner. Joe Benton showed any thing but satisfaction; he sat with the tiller in his hand, growling something about ghost-hunting expeditions; and after fidgeting about on his seat some time he said to the midshipman, "I'll tell you what it is, Mr. Murphy, somehow or other I don't like to go on board of her at all."

"Why not, Benton what's your reason?"

"Ah, Sir, listen, Sir; many's the quare things I've heard of them craft a cruising without ever a hand on board; they go about just waiting, Sir to allude poor Jacks. Did you never hear of the flying Dutchman, or Dan Dow's double? 'kase they're as true as the sun is shining on the water, Sir."

"I've certainly heard of the flying Dutchman, and I've seen some pretty rough bits of breezes on the Cape station, said the Midship, "but as for seeing old tough breeches, I must say I never had the pleasure; and as for Dan Dow, I never heard of him in my life."

"Och sowl, Mister Murphy, an' it's nigh time you heard of it; it was the most mirac'uloust thing as never you heard before; sure you've seen the old Diadem bulk lying in Hamozee, just off the range of North Corner? Well, Dan Dow had been bo'n of her a long time, and now him and Sam Stud the gunner, and old Rosewood the carpenter, were kept in ordinary on board of her, with the whole range of the bulk's deck to wallop about in, that is, if they could, for two was lame, and Sam the gunner was a smarter, active old chap than the other two, and did all the active duty, you know, such as going ashore for provisions with the boy in their boat, and hanging on to a stern, after coming aboard. But Dan Dow was blind of an eye, d'ye see, Sir, and he'd got a real taken in his starboard leg, an' account of a splinter as was knocked out of it at Copenhagen Roads, and he'd a kink in his neck by something of the same kind, and a handle to his face for all the world like a salamander; there he would hop about the spacious decks of the old Diadem, and into every deserted cabin and store room in her; and when he got groggy, he'd get down to the horlop deck, and never budge a foot till he was sober. One night Dan, as usual, was down there, and not a soul on board but Rosewood the carpenter, 'kase Sam Stud & the boy was ash'ed, and he's rather dry so he wakes, you know, & who does he see standing over him with a lantern, but—

"Oh J—! Mary! holy Paul! who's yon looking over the bulwark—now on'y look, Sir—if you ben't the devil, I'm blest!"

We turned our heads to see the devil that had interrupted old Joe's story. I looked but saw nothing till after a minute or two, when a large black Newfoundland dog popped his head and two fore-paws over the gangway netting.

The superstition of sailors is proverbial, and it is well known that a black dog holds a very prominent part of their yarns and twisters, as an agent of Beelzebub; and this occurrence happening at the time, together with the deserted appearance of the vessel, had such an effect on the feelings of most of the boat's crew, that they actually refused to pull a stroke; till threatened by Mr. Murphy with being reported to the Captain, they reluctantly commenced again, and with many a suspicious glance backward pulled towards the schooner.

We were now within a short distance of the stranger, when Joe, who had fidgeted about on the taffrail of the boat said, "I'm blest, Mr. Murphy, if I like's to have ought to do with them 'ere kind o' craft—she's not lucky—she's clinker built."

"I'll tell you what it is, Sir, Mr. Murphy," said one Bill Dennis, an Irishman; "is it you that's a county Cork man, and don't know the natural consequence of going on board a vessel commanded by the devil? Och, musha grah! I always thought an Irishman was careful of his honor; and bless my sowl, Sir, where's the honour in having a set-to with such an old soot bag, when its may be you won't get a good malavadering, and he'll beat black and blue, and as many colors as the rainbow, and never see the fist as does it."

"Hold your jaw, Dennis, or I'll hit you."

"Joe here does not mean that animal the Yankee Captain fished for in Africa with burning coals, in a lake of molten lead; but a surface of the water that he cannot recover it, and he is consequently thrown back by the loom of the war acting as a lever against his breast."

clip with the tiller," said the Midship, in a tone that silenced further discussion. So forward he went, rather reluctantly, to be sure, when the man next the bow-oar, on looking round with a suspicious glance caught a crab, and he was thrown back on the thwart, bellowing like a bull; he was soon relieved, and giving the boat a sheer alongside, it was "In bow, and hook on by the main chains."

"Follow me," said Mr. Murphy to Benton and some others, "and let's see who is in her?"

If old Joe had got a pistol snapped in his teeth he would not have been more chop-fallen than at this salutation; for although a brave old fellow in every other respect, he had the heart of a chicken when he thought he had to deal with any thing supernatural.

"Can't you come along, Benton?" said Mr. Murphy, laughing, "what are you a-fraid of man?" This made Joe start, and drawing a pistol from his belt, he followed up the side saying, "Oh I wish I was in the old Macedonian again, and out of this infernal ghost-hunting nook-er!"

A solemn silence was preserved during the few minutes occupied in ascending the side, and we found ourselves standing on the gangway, gazing about us at one another, a're struck by the death like stillness that reigned throughout the vessel even the black dog had disappeared which made Benton ten degrees worse than he was before; all the quarter-deck was strewn with canvass and straw as if a number of gales had been unpacked, and here and there were marks of bare feet of a dark colour.

"It's blood!" exclaimed Joe, as he started back, after examining it, and casting a look to our own ship, that was now rapidly approaching by the help of her long sweeps, "the vessel's been boarded by pirates and robbed, and all her crew murdered!"

On descending to examine the cabin, we were stopped at the foot of the ladder by a bale of silk that had been ransacked; this we hauled from the door, and Mr. Murphy knocking waited to listen if any one would speak; but not a sound was heard save the creaking of the bulk-heads, & the clattering of the blocks overhead; it was at length determined to force open the door. This done, such a sight! such a scene of horror presented itself as I shall never forget, and is still before my mind's eye as vivid as at that moment. Round the table in the cabin sat blind every day to a chair the bodies of three men, and a woman, who were, their pockets were turned inside out, every pocket and drawer, as well as the hold had been broken open, & every thing of value carried off. I looked at the books, but could not discover either frame or writing by which we might form a conjecture respecting the vessel or to what port she belonged.

At length the disgusting job was finished. Having bound them in pairs and rolled them up in the canvass, we carried them on deck and slipped them over the gangway. When all was over, the Captain prepared to get into the boat with his steward, and calling Mr. Murphy, directed him to take the vessel to Malta, retaining the boat's crew on board, and promising to send provisions on board, he shoved off with two hands only in the boat.

We now turned off, to splice the gear and wash the decks—this was done in a couple of hours: a cask of beef, one of pork, a small breaker of rum, and two bags of bread, with a small cask of vinegar, having come on board, we in part washed out the cabin, and with the vinegar rinsed it so as to give it a fresh smell, and the schooner was under sail, and already leaving the brig far astern ere we recollected that old Joe must be keeping company with some dead bodies in the fore-castle; and there, sure enough, we found him lying on his face in fits, and it was not until after a smart shaking that he recovered and got on deck, when, seeing the vessel with a fine breeze leaving the brig astern, he was like to run distracted at the thoughts of running to Malta on board this craft.

"O, Lord! O, Lord!" he cried; "what shall we do? what shall we do?"

"Drink grog, to be sure!" said Dennis, handing Joe a potful of brandy, a small keg of which he had found in the fore-castle; Joe took a long, deep, and hearty draught, and became partially relieved; he was still in the craft, and that he only waited his opportunity to come out and cut all our throats as he had done to the others, & he'd be blest if he'd shut a pan till he was sarlin he was out of her. This was after settled by the appearance of the black dog, who limping and wagging his tail, was forced from his retreat by hunger; Joe was now satisfied that it was not the devil, for he had wounded him in the shoulder when he fired his pistol, and the ball still stuck in the poor animal's flesh. Mr. Murphy extracted it, and the dog gratefully licked our hands; and tried by every means in its power to show its gratitude.

The only clue that could be found to the schooner was on the leather collar on the dog's neck. On a brass plate was engraved, "M. d'Almeida, Cherbourg." We arrived at Malta in four days, soon joined our own ship again, but I never heard any more of the vessel.

sel, the black dog however, still followed us, and became a great favorite in the R—; we named him 'Cheyboag,' after what we supposed to be his native place, and the brig set off again up the Straits on a cruise.

Extraordinary presence of mind.—Yesterday afternoon, as Mr. John Coombs was engaged in repairing the apex of the conical spire of the church in this village under the pastoral care of the Rev. Mr. Carmichael, which was injured by lightning during the storm that occurred in the latter part of August last, Mr. Z. A. Shomb, having a curiosity to view the town from so elevated a position as this occasion presented, applied for and obtained permission from Mr. C. to ascend the steeple for that purpose; & while heedlessly & carelessly gazing around upon the beautiful prospect before him, the plank upon which he stood tilted—he lost his balance—and in the act of falling had the presence of mind to draw from his side pocket a large Spanish clasp knife, which, when about one third of the way down he struck into the steeple with such violence, and skill that he was enabled to have hung dangling in the air for the space of twenty minutes before any assistance could be rendered him. We are happy to add that the only injury sustained by Mr. S. was a small contusion in the leg, and a slight injury to the muscles of the arm. Probably not one in a thousand under similar circumstances, would have had the presence of mind to resort to the expedient by which he was enabled to escape from threatened annihilation, almost unharmed. This is not the first accident that has occurred in our village, occasioned by the inefficient or careless construction of stagings used in the erection and repair of buildings, and we trust it will be remedied in future.

NEW HOTELS.
We understand that Mr. Swaim, who purchased the Masonic Hall some time since, and who owns the two adjoining lots in Chesnut street below the Hall, intends erecting a large building on the two lots, which, with the upper part of the Hall will form a spacious and commodious Hotel; the beautiful front of the Hall to be preserved.

The five gentlemen who purchased the Walnut prison lot, it is stated, propose to form a company for the erection of a Hotel on that lot to cost $350,000, a design of which has been prepared, and for the stock of which subscription books will be opened.

ANOTHER LARGE HOTEL.
A number of wealthy individuals in this city contemplate forming themselves into a company for the purpose of erecting a Hotel in Broadway, on a scale as large and magnificent as that of Astor's. The site of the American Hotel, at the corner of Barclay street, is spoken of as being the location proposed for the projected mansion.

The following paragraph from the Cincinnati Gazette of the 3d instant confirms the account by private letters, which we noticed a few days ago, of the injurious effects of the recent premature frost in Ohio:

Effect of the Frost.—An excursion some forty miles North, on the Great Miami, has afforded me an opportunity to note the effect of the recent frost, upon vegetation. In many places, the corn and buck wheat are quite injuriously touched, and all other herbage subject to frost prostrated. Having met with gentlemen from other parts of the State, north to Peoria, east to Lancaster, the information received from them warrants the conclusion, that the injury has been greater farther north and farther east, than in this vicinity. The tobacco cultivators here, it is believed suffered severely.

We learn that shortly after the steam-boat Swan left the wharf at New York on Saturday, with her passengers for Philadelphia, there was a demand for a medical gentleman, and before the boat arrived at Elizabethtown point, the ladies' cabin showed an increased vote, as he politicians say.—Phil. as his purpose, to present, at an early day, a brief review of his editorial course, in which he promises to speak of the things which he has seen and known. If the proposed work shall be fully accomplished, it will form a chapter full of interest and full of moral.

Balt. Pat.

The Van Buren papers at the east are becoming more and more furious at the exposure of col. Johnson's moral transgressions. They talk of retaliation.—The editor of the N. H. Patriot, in particular, threatens to carry the war into Africa! Isn't he afraid of killing some of the colonel's relations?

That the Whigs of New York are arousing in earnest to the great approaching contest, is proved by a vast variety of items which crowd on us from that direction. We adduce the following.

CIRCULAR.

New York, Aug. 21, 1835.

Sir:—The Harrison correspondent committee of the city of New York, feel confident, that with proper exertions Gen. Wm. H. Harrison can be elected President of the United States. It is six months since his name was first proposed for that distinguished office; and already he has more ardent and enthusiastic supporters than any other candidate. When we take into consideration his important services to our country, both as a statesman and soldier, we can easily account for the spontaneous movements among the people in his favour. Forty years, he has been engaged in the councils of the nation, or as the gallant leader of our armies in defence of our country. His splendid achievements during the last war, have conferred upon him a popular name, and the character of the United States.

There is no doubt that he will get the electoral votes of Pennsylvania, Ohio, Indiana, Kentucky, Illinois, Louisiana, South Carolina, Maryland, Delaware, and Vermont. So that if there should be more than two candidates, he will go with the highest number of votes into House, which will be equivalent to an election. There are, however, strong reasons for believing that all who are not in favor of the nomination made by the Baltimore Convention, will finally unite upon Gen. Harrison. Should this be the case, his election by the people, by an overwhelming majority, is beyond all doubt.

We also feel confident that with proper exertion, we can give him the electoral vote of New York. Mr. Van Buren certainly has no hold upon the affections of the people, and has no claims whatever, to the high office to which he is ambitiously aspiring. We therefore respectfully request, that you make use of your personal influence in your county, to effect a speedy organization in favor of the Republican Candidate Gen. Wm. H. Harrison. The Republican party should be immediately re-organized, and every patriot in the land, every lover of his country should unite with zeal and a full determination to place the power and patronage of this government in the hands of men whose character and principles are known to the American people, and who can be relied upon in the hour of peril.

You are particularly invited to attend our meeting on the 5th of October, in this city. Should you think proper to call a public meeting in your county, prior to that time, we should be pleased to have a committee, or delegates appointed with us.

There will shortly be published in this city, 'The Banner,' a paper which will, with zeal and ability, advocate the election of Gen. Harrison. If you can promote its circulation among the people of your county, you will essentially aid the cause we are engaged in. We are respectfully, &c.

Robert Bogardus, John S. Barrow, John Woodward, John A. Bunting, Sylvanus Miller, Henry B. Hoister, Cornelius Hansen, Joseph Sharratt, W. W. Thompson, Charles C. Collins, Silas M. Stilwell, Thos. C. Pinkney, Corresponding Committee.

The Covington Ken Inquirer says:—We have declared our determination to advocate the claims of W. H. Harrison in the next Presidential contest, and that determination we now reiterate. We do not support Gen. Harrison—because he has not fought in defence of his country, and driven the invaders from her soil, not because he was the Hero of Tippecanoe, and the Thames, or the Hero of any other battles, but because we believe him to be honest, capable and faithful to the Constitution. We believe him to be a true patriot, and an ardent lover of his country, her institutions and laws, and we also believe, that if elected, he would administer the affairs of the Government on a liberal and enlightened scale. The circumstances of his having been engaged in the military services of his country can certainly not be urged as an objection to him.

Of itself it urges no disqualification for civil functions. We have never thought so, and were never opposed to Gen. Jackson because of his military achievements.

A Van Buren man of Baltimore City, addressing another from the county, exclaimed, "How come you to behave so bad in Baltimore County? We done the best we could; was the royal—Why did not you do as we did in the city?" "Because you had all we thought we could spare from the county to help you, and it fell out that we wanted them more than you did."—Md. Repub.

U. S. TELEGRAPH.—We learn from the last Telegraph that General Duff Green, its founder and proprietor, is about to remove from Washington city, with a view to engage in other pursuits; and that the Telegraph will henceforth be under the editorial charge of Dr. Edward R. Gibson—a gentleman who has been for several years past connected with that paper as an associate editor. The proprietary interest yet remains in Gen. Green, and will do so until the 1st of December, when it is expected a new arrangement will take place. Gen. Green, the veteran editor, announces it.

"I'll bet any man a week's grog to a lot that all her crew's been made to walk the plank."

"For my part," said a fore-topman, "I like to have nothing to do with 'em; if it's always sure to be boat work, and that's the mischief for knocking a poor fellow up—you know that. Why, we was a ter, and took a pole-axe rigged craft once when I was in the Seringapatam; and after chasing her a whole day, we lost eight as brave fellows as ever s'p'ed a ship's deck, in boarding the culprits; hang me if I wouldn't sooner be in action a whole watch, yard-arm & yard-arm, with a slashing frigate than be on a wild-goose-chase for a day or two in an open boat, on what is but at the best a thief-taking job. 'Sides, where's the honor a fellow gets if even he does take 'em—what are they but a parcel of thieves? It's enough to make a fellow that has served with Nelson and Collingwood quit the service altogether; what do you think, old Joe?"

"Where? Oh, aye, I see her now; she's a square looking gignaree sort of a thing," and the next moment he hailed the deck to report her.

The attention of the entire deck was now attracted towards the strange vessel, the officers reconnoitred her with the glasses—the Jacks had to employ their own eyes, but this did not prevent them from passing their various opinions on what she was likely to prove. Descending from aloft, I joined the latter, and listened to the following dialogue of those unopinionated sons of the sea.

"I'll tell you what it is my mates," said an old fore-castle man of the name of Benton, "I think as how that 'ere craft has been robbed by pirates; and I'm blest if we shouldn't root them out as clean's a leak."

PRESENTATION OF THE VASE TO DANIEL WEBSTER.

Francis C. Gray acted as the organ of the committee on this interesting occasion. He addressed Mr. Webster for about half an hour, in a truly animated and eloquent speech. Mr. Webster's reply was listened to with deep attention and interest by the numerous body of citizens present. They evidently expected an extraordinary effort on his part, and they were not disappointed. He spoke for an hour and a half, in his happiest manner—and was frequently interrupted by long and reiterated manifestations of applause.

Mr. Webster acknowledged with gratitude the testimonial of their favor which his fellow citizens had offered him. After a few preliminary observations, he alluded to the public relations in which he stood to the honors of the Vase, and the common relations to the Constitution under which we live. He spoke of the dangers which threaten the Constitution from sectional jealousies—local prejudices—and party strife: from the usurpation of undelimited power by any branch of the Government, and particularly from its absorption and concentration in the Chief Executive of the Union. He dilated with fervor and mainly eloquence on this last peril; and on the system which had been for so many years so successfully pursued, expressly tending to vest in the President, none, all the influence and authority of the government. He spoke of the power of removal, and repeated with eloquent distinctness the opinion which he last winter established so conclusively on the floor of the Senate, that the power of removal does not belong to the President—but that it is naturally incident to the power of appointment—and is consequently shared with the Senate. He spoke of the system of spoils—the distribution of offices as party rewards—and intimated that a Government sustained by such a system could only be considered as encamped upon the country.

His oration was singularly powerful. He said that his opinions on all constitutional questions were known; that he had no views which he desired to conceal. To those opinions he pledged his faithful adherence. He was bound—restrained—led in—committed. He was committed to the constitution committed to the States, that their right should not be infringed by the general government; to the general government, that its rights should not be infringed by the States. He was committed to the restraint of Executive Power—to the reduction of Executive Patronage. He was committed to the Union of the States—from a principle and feeling founded in an expanded attachment, and shrinking from every thing that had a tendency to narrow and confine that attachment. He knew no local loyalties—no sectional partialities or jealousies. To the principles which he had maintained he pledged an eternal fidelity; for he believed them to be conservative to our government and its institutions. He should never abandon them; and he conjured all who heard him—if he ever faltered or failed in their support—to brand him as a recreant to the cause of civil liberty—and to follow him onward—straight onward—in the path which their duty to the Constitution and the Union pointed out to them.

Mr. Webster spoke nearly an hour—and with a sustained vigor and eloquence throughout. His address was levelled chiefly at the system, which it is now attempted to fasten upon the country; the system of strengthening the Executive at the expense of the people. It was a conclusive answer for all those individuals who flatter themselves that Mr. Webster can be forced by any combination of circumstances into the support of men who have lent themselves to this disastrous policy. We hope that a full report of the speech will be published. It will be highly honorable to Mr. Webster, and in the present situation of affairs, highly useful and important to the country.

THE COMMERCIAL BANK AT ALBANY.—The Directors of this institution offer a reward of Five Thousand Dollars for the arrest, with the no way, of Mr. Bartow, the late Cashier of that institution, or Two Thousand Dollars for the arrest of Mr. Bartow alone. The following article on the subject is copied from the New York Transcript.

The Late Embezzlement at Albany.—The Directors of the Commercial Bank at Albany have discovered in the progress of their inquiries in reference to the defalcations of their Cashier, that the full amount of which they have been defrauded will not exceed thirty thousand dollars. Mr. Bartow having made certain arrangements in this city previous to his absconding, which make this reduction on the large sum that it was at first apprehended he had embezzled.

It is stated that the misguided man was led into the commission of the crime which has left such a stigma upon his reputation by gambling in the stocks in this city—he furnished the funds, while the "knowing ones" operated and pocketed the money.

Latest from Europe.—Liverpool dates to the 16th Sept are received by the Packet ship Orpheus, at New York. The corporation reform has passed in the House of Lords, the Commons having acceded to them at the recommendation of Lord John Russell.

The Irish title bill was read a third time and passed by the House of Lords. The royal assent was given to both bills by commission, on the 9th of September.

The Orange lodges excite increased attention. Some astounding developments are said to have been made. Parliament was prorogued on the 10th.

The King in his speech, thanks them most graciously for their attention and zeal in his service—mentions his amicable relations with all the European powers—laments the continuance of war in Spain.

On the subject of Slavery, he says:—
I have concluded with Denmark, Sardinia and Sweden, fresh conventions calculated to prevent the traffic in African slaves; I hope soon to receive the ratification of a similar treaty, which has been signed with Spain.

I am engaged in negotiations with other powers in Europe and in South America for the same purpose, and I trust that ere long the united efforts of all civilized nations will suppress and extinguish this traffic.

I perceive, with entire approbation, that you have directed your attention to the regulation of municipal corporations in England and Wales, I have cheerfully given my assent to the bill which you have passed for that purpose. I cordially concur in this important measure, which is calculated to allay discontent, to promote peace and union, and to procure for those communities the advantages of responsible government.

I greatly rejoice that the internal condition of Ireland has been such as to have permitted you to substitute for the necessary severity of a law which has been suffered to expire, enactments of a milder character. No part of my duty is more grateful to my feelings than the mitigation of a penal statute in any case in which it can be effected consistently with the maintenance of order and tranquility.

Gentlemen of the House of Commons.
I thank you for the readiness with which you have voted the supplies.

You have provided not only for the expenses of the year, and for the interest upon the large sum awarded to the owners of slaves in my colonial possessions, but also for several unexpected and peculiar claims upon the justice and liberality of the nation.

It is most gratifying to observe that not only have these demands been met without additional taxation, but that you have made some further progress in reducing the burthens of my people.

I am enabled to congratulate you, that the terms upon which the loan for the compensation to the proprietors of slaves has been obtained, afford conclusive evidence of the flourishing state of public credit, and of that general confidence which is the result of a determination to fulfil the national engagements, and to maintain inviolable the public faith.

From the Cincinnati Post Oct. 10.
Most Horrible Murder.—It is our painful duty to record one of the most horrible enormities ever consummated by the hand of man. This morning about 5 o'clock the wife of John Coven, a cabinet maker, living on Walnut street, a few doors above Columbia street, returned from market, and a quarrel ensued between her and her husband, concerning some change, and he becoming enraged, seized an axe and struck her on the head, and completely crushed one side of it; seeing the effect of his blow upon his wife, the wretch assaulted his two children, who were shrieking at her side and almost entirely severed the head of one from its body, and with a blow despatched the other. The elder was about 4 years of age, and the younger probably two. The murderer instantly fled, and had proceeded over Mill creek bridge, about three and a half miles from the scene of his crime, when he was overtaken by the officers and conducted to the jail, followed by an immense crowd, who were so exasperated, that they would not doubt have killed him, had he not been hurried off on horseback to the prison. On his arrest, he stated that he had murdered his wife, and he knew he should be hung for it, and he killed his children, because he was determined to leave no offspring to be disgraced by his crime. We have never seen our community in a state of greater excitement, than that occasioned by the horrors we have described. The murderer is a man about 25 years of age, medium height, dark hair and eyes, high cheek bones, aquiline nose, narrow chin, a red scar on his left cheek, and a countenance of the whole, unmarked by any expression of evil, but on the contrary of rather amiable appearance.

P. S. Cowan was first overhauled by Mr. S. Lippincott, and drew a knife from his pocket, but immediately gave it up and surrendered himself, on being threatened with a blow from a stick, by Mr. L.—the officers Messrs. Madison and Brooks, accompanied by another person, arrived at the instant, and he was secured.

THE BOAT RACE.
The fine sturdy fellows who ply the oar from Whitehall, and who are known throughout the world by the title of Whitehall boatmen, whose pre-eminence on their element and in their own craft, has been almost undisputed since they so nobly upheld the character of their country and this city, in the contest with the barge of the British frigate Hussar, have been beaten, woefully beaten at their own weapons, by a kind of amphibious vessel, called the Jersey City boatmen; and as we have a community of feeling, through our news boats establishment, with the Jersey party, besides the sympathy we ever feel for the unfortunate, it is with a heavy heart we set down to chronicle the particulars of this melancholy event.

The match was for $1,000 a side the distance to be rowed five miles, to start from the Platted Cottage Garden, Jersey City, and round a boat station below Bedloe's Island, about two miles and a half distant, and return to the place of starting. The boats 21 feet 11.34 inches in length, were built by the conditions of the bet they were not to exceed 32 feet. They were extremely light—not weighing 100 lbs. each. The Jersey skiff built boat was pulled by two men with two pair of oars. The Whitehall boat by two men with two oars.

The conditions of the match were not settled without great difficulty. The negotiations concerning it have been almost as long pending as those which terminated in the celebrated treaty of Utrecht. The Whitehallers did not seek it. They were taunted into it by the repeated challenges in the public newspapers of the Jersey boys. The Whitehallers did not like the petty craft in which only the Jerseymen would row, they were accustomed to a larger boat, neither did they like the shallow sluggish waters of the Jersey shore. Their home was on a rougher water, but irritated by the continued notes of defiance sent forth by the Jerseymen, they let them have it all their own way. Flushed with their repeated triumphs, the Whitehallers thought they could beat them and give them all they asked.

Shortly after the time appointed, the report of a cannon boomed along the waters and instantly the boats darted from the starting place, the rowers stripped to the buff. At once the advantage was seen to be with the Jerseymen. They were immediately offered at any odds in their favor, but few were taken and those only by such as relied on the well known bottom of the Whitehall men, this bottom, however, proved of no avail. The Jerseymen took the lead from the start, and kept it all the way, indeed the distance between the competitors seemed like that in Pryor's Harms, to be lengthening as they go, and we took it, the winners came in near half a mile ahead. The boats started at twenty minutes before four, and the winner reached the goal sixteen and a half minutes after that hour, giving the five miles in 36 minutes, 30 seconds.

It is but justice to give the names of the winning boatmen; they are Isaac Seaman, and Stephen Seaman, of Jersey City, and the men who they are. Let him who has observed the public races, say.

THE UNEXPECTED.
E. W. de Bussche, Esq., of Jersey.
The defeat of the Whitehall men was evidently owing to the selection made by them of oars instead of sculls, the short quick stroke of the four sculls told wonderfully, compared with the long and necessarily slower one of the two oars, the latter are evidently unfit for such extremely light craft. The Jersey boat was built by the men who rowed it, and such were the exertions made by them, that they built no less than three boats of different calibres, in order to take such an one as would best suit the weather.

Besides the strokes, large sums of money were expended on the event of this race. Since the race with the boat of the Hussar, so much interest has not been felt here on any occasion of aquatic sport. The garden at Jersey City was crowded to excess, the river was swarming with craft of all descriptions, steam boats loaded with spectators, and last not least, our beautiful and numerous club boat.

But one word more. We, of Whitehall are not going to give up the championship of the United States so easily. We shall not allow the Jerseymen to retain the momentary superiority they now possess, without many a long pull and strong pull yet.

SINGULAR.
There have been many circumstances related of our revolution and the great men who projected and carried it through, which were they not so well attested, would almost induce a suspicion of their truth, but the following striking coincidence, is one of which we do not recollect, ever before to have seen a notice.

Washington born Feb. 22, 1732, inaugurated 1779; term of service expired in the 66th year of his age.
John Adams born Oct. 19, 1735, inaugurated 1797, term of service expired in the 66th year of his age.

Jefferson born April 2, 1743, inaugurated 1801; term of service expired in the 66th year of his age.
Madison born March 5, 1751, inaugurated 1809, term of service expired in the 66th year of his age.

Monroe born April 2, 1759, inaugurated 1817; term of service expired in the 66th year of his age.
The above is a list of five of the Presidents of the United States (all men of the revolution) who ended their terms of service in the 66th year of their age. J. Q. Adams' term of service, had he been elected a second time, would have also expired in the 66th year of his age.

Mr. Ritchie of the Richmond Enquirer says:
"Mr. John Q. Adams has laid himself open to the attacks of the sharpshooters, on account of his late letter to Mr. Pearce of Rhode Island. We have never known such a will-o'-wisp politician. He surpasses every thing that was ever said by Burke of Townsend, or by Canning of Baring. There is really no telling where you are to find him. The N. Y. Times, (the Van Buren paper) lashes him for his eccentricity—while the Boston Atlas chastises him on the other side. It charges him with ungovernable passion, disappointed ambition, and a rankling hatred towards Mr. Webster. It asks what man can read his letter to Mr. Pearce, and not turn away with disgust and loathing at such an exhibition of gross, vindictive and unavailing passion? All that we have to beg of Mr. Adams is not to join the friends of Mr. Van Buren."

A TRUE PORTRAIT.
The editor of the Richmond Whig says, a country contemporary says, "can the editor of the Whig suppose a contingency in which he would support Martin Van Buren?" The editor of the Whig in reply gives the following correct portrait of the Magician.

"We have never set our wits to work on the speculation, but our inquiry is that no such contingency can or could possibly occur. We believe him in point of capacity, a clever elector, completely at the point of honesty, in point of principle in proportion to his interest—in point of Republicanism, an Aristocrat at heart, assuming for popularity, the external forms of a virtue he has not—in point of Southern interests, opposed to them at every point but yet affecting as great a show of zeal as may not compromise him with the North. In our sincere belief, he is selfish, cold blooded, intriguing, smart and faithless—without true ability, warm hearted patriotism or personal magnanimity. Were we to throw the reins on the neck of fancy, we believe we can suppose our imagination a contingency in which we would support such a man as President of the United States."

CONSUMPTION OF BEER AND SPIRITS IN GREAT BRITAIN.—According to an account lately laid before Parliament it appears that there were consumed in the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland, during the year ending on the 5th July last, for the brewing of Beer, 32,139,656 bushels of Malt. Of this immense quantity, 28,969,963 bushels were consumed in England, it being equal to two bushels of malt for each person in the kingdom, or four bushels for each grown up person. The consumption in Scotland was 1,139,801 bushels and in Ireland 9,055,326, being about half a bushel for each person grown up.

The consumption of home made spirits in the same period was 23,408,000 gallons, of which 7,644,000 were consumed in England, 9,707,000 in Ireland, and 6,056,000 in Scotland. Supposing one third of the population to be consumers of spirits, this quantity gives sixteen of a gallon to each consumer in England, two and a half gallons to each in Ireland, and seven gallons to each in Scotland.

The quantity of foreign spirits which paid duty in 1854, was 4,765,000 gallons, of which the greater part was consumed in England.

In announcing the great and most important Whig victory in Pennsylvania, the editor of the Alexandria Gazette very justly remarks—
"The next move now, therefore, in the 'Key Stone State,' should be to unite and cement all the elements of the opposition party upon an Electoral Ticket, to secure the vote of Pennsylvania to a Whig candidate for the Presidency."

Scarcity of Hay.—The crops of hay the past summer have been light in almost every section of New England. "The Concord, N. H. Courier, says that good hay is bringing $20 a ton in that place with some prospect of its being higher.

A Fair Hit.—It is said that Old Hickory hit his horse at the bare sight of the Louisville Journal. "Prentice the Editor of the Journal, notices the remark and adds,—if the old gentleman should get tired of holding his own nose, perhaps he might get Lieutenant Randolph to hold it for him.

EASTON GAZETTE.
EASTON, (Md.)
Saturday Morning, Oct. 24.

PENNSYLVANIA ELECTION.
There has so often been a great disparity between the first and the last returns from Pennsylvania that it is difficult to form a true estimate of the result until the final returns are received.

From present appearances, things are greatly in favor of Ritner, the Whig Candidate, as he now stands about thirty thousand majority over Wolf, and nearly fifty thousand majority over Muhlenberg.

Should the final result correspond with this, then the nomination of Pennsylvania of a Presidential candidate, in opposition to M. V. Buren will be of great avail. The two favorites in Pennsylvania, among the Anti-Van Buren party, are Mr. Webster and General Harrison, which of these will be taken up we cannot at present determine; but be it either Mr. Webster or General Harrison, it will go far to ensure him an election by the people.

The influence of the nomination in Pennsylvania will be great; it will extend against M. V. Buren to the States of Louisiana, Virginia, Kentucky, Ohio, Indiana, Maryland, Delaware, New Jersey and probably Illinois, and it will shake Van Burenism even in New York.

MISSISSIPPI SENATOR.
The Louisville Journal says, "Letters from gentlemen of extensive information in Mississippi lead us to believe, that either Mr. Pindecker or Mr. Plimner, who is now a warm friend of Judge White and an uncompromising opponent of Van Buren, will be elected to the U. S. Senate over Mr. Walker, who is the Van Buren candidate."

New Jersey.—The Jackson majority is somewhat increased, since last year. In Essex County the Whig majority is reduced from 1370 to about 600. Whig majority in Newark, 187; last year 387. In Bergen County the Jackson majority is increased from 35 to about 250. In Middlesex County the Whig majority is 153;—last year 940. In Somerset, Morris, Sussex, and Warren Counties, the Jackson ticket is known to have succeeded, (as last year)—precise majorities not ascertained.

Georgia elections.—Sufficient returns are received, to ascertain the election of William Schley, the Jackson candidate for Governor, and Jabez Jackson, Jesse F. Cleveland, Thomas Gascock, and Hopkins Holsey, the Jackson candidates for Congress.

Collector's Second Notice for 1834.
The subscriber being desirous of completing his collections for the year 1834, earnestly requests all persons who are indebted to him for county taxes to come forward and settle them without delay; as he must if possible settle with all those who have claims upon the County in the time specified by law which will expire on or about the 1st of March next, and it is impossible for him to pay them unless he is first paid; therefore all those that do not comply with this notice on or before that time may certainly expect the letter of the law enforced against them, without respect to persons; as his duty as an officer will compel him to this course. THE SILK CULTURIST
THE Executive Committee of the Hartford county Silk Society, have commenced a monthly publication, called the Silk Culturist and Farmer's Manual.
The object of the publication is to disseminate a thorough knowledge of the cultivation of the Mulberry Tree, in all its varieties. The raising of Silk Worms.—The production of Cocoons and the Reeling of Silk, in the most approved method. The importance of this knowledge will appear from the fact that the net profit of land devoted to the culture of Silk, is double, if not triple, to that derived from any other crop which can be put upon it. It is also a fact, that every moderate farmer can raise several hundred dollars worth of Silk without interfering with his ordinary agricultural operations. But in order to avail himself of this facility to obtain competency and wealth, which our soil and climate have given him, he must possess himself of information on the subject—for without it his attempts will be fruitless. It is, therefore, the object of the Committee to diffuse this information as extensively as possible, and at the cheapest rate. The publication will contain a complete manual or directory from sowing the seed to reeling the Silks, together with such facts and experience, as will enable farmers to raise Silk and prepare it for market, without further knowledge or assistance. It will also contain interesting matter on agricultural subjects in general.
TRADES.—The Culturist will be published in monthly numbers of Eight Quarto Pages, at FIFTY CENTS a year. No subscription will be received unless paid in advance, and for not less than a year.
Subscriptions received by F. G. COMSTOCK, Secretary, Hartford, Conn., to whom all Communications may be addressed, which, if post paid, will be attended to.
Editors who will copy the above, shall receive the publication for one year.

PROSPECTUS
OF A NEW PUBLICATION
TO BE CALLED
The Catholic Periodical LIBRARY
Which is designed to be a reprint of all the best Catholic Works in the English Language, in weekly numbers, at 8 cents each.

The dearth and scarcity of the best Catholic works must have been a source of regret to every intelligent and observing Catholic in America. So limited has been the sale, and so great the expense of printing these books, that but few individuals in the country have been sufficiently enterprising to undertake their publication; and their price, in consequence, has been more than proportionally high. In fact, so dear have Catholic books in general been, that it has been entirely impossible for the poorer members of the Catholic community, who stand most in need of instruction, and for whom the books have in general been compiled, to obtain copies, even of those works which are nearly essential to the practice of religion.
The subscriber has long since observed this fact with the utmost regret, and has certainly say, that up to this time, he has at least done something to reduce the prices of the most necessary Catholic works. But religious are books still however, extremely dear; and the Subscriber, depending on the support of a liberal and enlightened Catholic community, has determined to issue a Periodical publication which, by its cheapness, will place all the best Catholic works within the reach of the poorest individual; and from the neatness and elegance of its execution will be a credit and worth of a place in the libraries of the rich. Such a publication as that which the Subscriber proposes to issue has long been called for by the exigencies of the Catholic community; and the rapidly increasing number of the members of our Holy Church seems fully to justify him of the expectation that it will meet with sufficient encouragement to enable him to conduct it successfully. He, therefore, in twitting the expense and risk attending it, and confiding entirely in the liberality and generosity of his fellow Catholics of the United States and the Canadas, has resolved to put it to press forthwith; and he therefore throws himself on his Catholic brethren, and calls on them for their support and patronage.
In this undertaking he is principally encouraged by the hope that it will meet with cordial approbation of the clergy in general, and that he will be aided by the powerful assistance of that learned and devoted body of men (The undertaking is one which is eminently calculated to disseminate the principles of holy religion widely throughout the community, and to assist the clergy in the discharge of their parochial duties by affording, at an uncommonly low rate, all the necessary knowledge and instruction. The Subscriber, therefore earnestly requests that the Bishops and Clergy in general will exert their powerful influence in order to increase the popularity of the work and to obtain a sufficient number of subscribers to enable him to carry it on with success. By these means they will augment the spiritual comforts of their charges, and contribute, in a great measure, to dispel the prejudices by which our brethren of other denominations are unfortunately blinded.

QUIT-CLAIM.

The sun of a soft, clear September day, had just gone down. The thoughtful twilight was beginning to breathe its quiet influence over the settled features of one of the sweetest landscapes in the world! The day had been one of bustle and noisy cares, and the calm of this hour was grateful to my wearied senses. I sat in my office window, my eye roving careless and inattentive, over the shadowed and rapidly changing features of the scene, that lay like a living picture before me. I had given a loose rein to fancy, and was indulging in one of those refreshing reveries, which are to the careworn, harassed mind what short excursions into the country, in the balmy month of June, are to the body, exhausted by the weary labors of winter, & depressed by the enervating changes of Spring. My mind was among its own creations—busy in deciphering the shadowed limbs of its own dim future, which ever, at such seasons, are flitting before it. It was a day dream of life, and now began to assume the visibleness and distinctness of a picture, to the inward eye. The past, and with it my boyhood and youth, were like the waters of a swift stream gone by. The future was rolling brightly down through the fairy fields of an imaginary paradise, rich with all the golden promises of hope—and just obscure enough in the distance, to be left wholly to her and Fairy. My morning of life had flown by—the forenoon fast hastening to its close—the broad, sober tones of manhood just within my reach—the warm fancies, the glowing, fiery ardor of my younger days sensibly and steadily waning, and giving place to that cautious & tempered evenness of spirit, which, while it fits us for the purer, holier duties of domestic life, the hollowed repose, the secure tranquillity, of a retreat one can call his own. At the same time to demand a full view of the offering—the all, with their minute shades of circumstance, the nice and delicate degrees of the fitting and the appropriate, the needful and the indispensable; were up before me; not like the flitting shadows of a mere evening dream, but in all the vivid distinctness of things that have an existence. I thought of my solitary bachelorship; of the rareness and (must I say it?) the insipidity, of those little familiar incidents, which, in warmer days, had often led me into downright flirtation, and sometimes, almost to a declaration of love. I thought of the temperate flow of the blood in my veins, and the slow, but perceptibly cooling process of years upon that flow. I gazed upon the world; upon myself; and felt the dreariness of being alone; felt an indescribable shudder that came over me at the thought of possibly being so, in the solitary, chill, hopeless, down-hill of age—felt—felt—that I must have a wife!

Matrimony, blessed, holy bond! it was there, like a girdle of gold beaming in the sky of my hope, and promising to bind me in an indissoluble union with happiness. "Home, sweet home," with its cheerful door thrown ever open with welcoming smiles, and its blessed inner sanctuary ever warmed and brightened with the undying fires of love's holy altar! it was a vision of perfect bliss, and idly my then mood, contained all that was wanting, to make me a completely happy man. I gazed, and gazed, and gazed; examined the picture, fancy had called up feature by feature, line by line, till my soul was on fire, and every feeling kindling with something like the rapture of my earlier days.

But I was in a wandering reverie still; and a change came over my thoughts. The law, (for once,) I cursed its influence came in, and threw a cold, dark shadow over the sketch that was beginning to glow, with the coloring, not of truth only, but of life, and of life for me too. Cold, icy recollections of scene in the court room, and tales of the Reporter, came over me. I thought of the many, many suits for breaches of that holiest of promises; the hollow motives, the shameless infidelity, the deliberate falsehood, and calculating cruelty, I had had occasion to witness. The law of divorce, the sundering of those sacred ties which heaven made everlasting, the consequent division, scattering; wandering, and wretchedness of families; came up in my mind. Then rushed in the memory of a thousand unhappy breeches, occasioned by the possession or the want of property—the jealousies, the bickerings, the irreconcilable divisions, & the irreparable wounds in domestic peace, consequent upon the miserably lame and inconsistent provisions of conveyance; and I was well nigh doubting the reality, and the possibility of the vision I had seen.

But the bright, golden, sunny vision was there still, and I did believe it. I yielded a full assent and was just resolving on the last desperate step; the irrevocable dash into the Rubicon, when a gentle tap on the door dissipated the bright vision, banished the bold resolve, half uttered, from my lips, and recalled my scattered senses to the comparatively dull scenes around me, the unpoetic drudgery of a lawyer's office. It was not however, till the delicate tap was repeated, that I was sufficiently myself to articulate the professional "come in." The door moved slowly on its hinges, and with a soft, half-fearful step, a stranger entered, and approached the table near which I was sitting. It was one of the softer sex; and her downcast eye and changing color indicated that the business she had to accomplish, was a delicate and difficult one. I arose, and, with becoming civility, handed her a chair, and begged her to be seated. An embarrassing silence ensued. I was about to break upon it, by some of those conventional truisms about the weather or the times which are always at hand to relieve the diffident and the ungifted, when a gentle movement of my fair visitor's feet, accompanied with a sudden hectic all over the visible parts of her face and neck, gave warning that she was about to announce her business. I drew back my half-formed remark, and yielded the floor to her. The effort to unburthen herself was a difficult one. She wriggled painfully in her chair, made strange figures with her feet on the sandal floor; twisted her handkerchief into a thousand untoward knots, and thoved her head in unison with all these motions. The color went and came in her cheeks, in rapid succession.

Liko light and shade upon a summer field. Coursing each other as the flying clouds. Now hide and now reveal the sun.

My bowels of compassion were moved within me, but I had resigned, and dared not speak. At length in a faint and rather confused voice the agitated fair one began.

"I—I came in to ask you, Sir, can you please to tell me, Sir—what way—two persons who are married—can—can get unmarried—kind of dissolve partnership—say—as they can marry somebody else, if they please. A—a friend of mine wanted me—just to ask you, Sir—I—I don't ask—I don't ask for myself a retreat one can call his own."

On the heels of the speech, a perturbed vision of bliss I had seen!

Death, or a bill of divorce! Ma'am I replied, with some ill-restrained feelings of a no very pleasant nature, can dissolve the holy union. The sacred obligations of the matrimonial vows admit of no other release.

Whether it was the stiffness of my weary constrained manner, or the appalling character of the two paths I had pointed out, as affording the only possible retreat from matrimony to a state of single blessedness, that disconcerted her, I know not; but my fair client was extremely uneasy for a few moments.

But—'aunt there, Sir—no other way; when both the parties are perfectly willing to separate? 'Aunt there no way of—getting rid of each other—when they get tired of—living together?—and—"

None at all, Ma'am, but by a regular divorce; unless, indeed, one of the party chooses to run away. But that would not unmarry them; neither of them could legally marry again.

—None at all; eh!

A considerable pause followed this interrogatory exclamation.

But what is your case Ma'am? who are the persons concerned? and what the circumstances which induce a wish to separate? It is possible some remedy may be suggested, when the case is fully known.

—No way at all—to get unmarried! It's hard I'm sure; ain't there such things as—the husband giving the wife—a—paper—that he gives her up—a—deed-like—giving up all his right to her—and let her go?

Certainly not, Ma'am, said I, (with a kind of half-laugh which at first discomposed my fair client, but afterwards seemed rather to give her new courage to proceed,) there is no such a thing in law.

—No? it's very strange! isn't there a—kind of—"

If you'll tell me your story, Ma'am perhaps I can help you to some advice which shall be to the purpose.

But a'unt there now such a thing as—a quit-claim deed, like—which a man can give to his wife; that he gives her up—to—to herself again? that is, you know, when both of them are willing to part.

Domine Sampson! what an instrument of law! It was with extreme difficulty that I restrained a torrent of laughter and fun, that rushed to my throat to get vent, at this ludicrous, business-like suggestion. I could have roared for the whole village to hear. But with much exertion, I retained my self-command, and replied with becoming dignity—

The thing is impossible, Ma'am. Husband and wives are not regarded by the laws of our country as things to be bought and sold, bargained and conveyed away, like houses and lands. There is no process, but that of a regular divorce, that can possibly untie the marriage knot; and a divorce, you perhaps know, could not be obtained without evidence of very ill-treatment, or other improper conduct, on the one part or the other. A mere wish to separate, or the being weary of each other, could not be admitted as a sufficient cause for a divorce.

But—persisted my desperate client—if the husband should be perfectly willing—and if—he should give her a—kind of quit-claim deed—that he gives up all his right to her?—I'm sure it used to be so in old Massachusetts.—They gave each other—when they got tired—or any thing, a quit-claim deed of each other; their right, you know—and then they went where they pleased—and married any body else, just as if they had never been married afore—you sure there a'nt no such thing here?—"

Certainly not, Ma'am. It's utterly absurd and impossible.

But—

But, Ma'am, it's altogether useless to talk further on this subject, until I am made acquainted with the particulars of the case in hand. I must know your story, and the object of these enquiries.

Here followed a pause of a few moments, somewhat similar to that which preceded the introduction of our strange dialogue; during which, I was busy with conjectures upon the probable explanation of this odd visit and conversation—while my client seemed to be inwardly struggling with some great difficulty, as doubtful whether to give up her cause in despair, or pursue it a little further, by letting me into her whole secret. The latter thought gained the victory, and at length our dialogue was resumed.

Well—I—I didn't mean—to tell—I—didn't want to let you know—but—Mr. Slow is a great deal older than me—and he's very lame—and rheumatizy—and—I don't want to live with him no longer—he's so old and rheumatizy.

Then it is for you, Mrs. Slow, that you ask these questions?

Why, Mr. Slow is so old and rheumatizy.

It seems to me, Ma'am, that with a woman of feeling, that would be rather a poor reason for wishing to leave her husband, who, on this very account, should claim all the kindness and attention of a wife.

But Mr. Slow is so lame and rheumatizy—he can't stand upon his feet—he can't bear it any longer. And—perhaps—I suppose—"

But what will the poor man do, when you leave him, if he's so old and helpless?

Oh! he's as willing as can be. He'll board out, or—something—he's just as willing, as can be.

Willing, or not willing, Mrs. Slow, you can't be unmarried. Nor will the law bear you out in leaving your husband, unless for the best of reasons. Did Mr. Slow ever treat you ill? Can you make out any reasons to justify a divorce, from any improper conduct on his part?

Why—no—nothing to speak of now—to be sure, he did rather handle me some rough—once—a good while ago—but then we made that all up long ago; and I s'pose, can't say anything about it now.

Then, Ma'am, there's no reason why you should not remain the wife of Mr. Slow, and his wife you must remain, till death cuts asunder the tie. And it is your plainest duty, go home, live quietly with your husband, and take care of him kindly. The law can never decree a divorce, in circumstances like yours.

Are you sure he can't just give a quit-claim deed, and let me go? He's just as willing as can be.

Impossible, Ma'am—it would be good for nothing in law, if he should give it to you. A thousand of them would serve the purpose no better, than any piece of blank paper.

Pertinacious and resolute as this admirable piece of constancy and conjugal affection was, she now seemed a little puzzled how to proceed; and there was a short pause in the dialogue. Meanwhile, the ludicrous began to gain the ascendancy over the sterner impressions of the scene. I was strongly tempted to follow up the odd notion of my fair client, and wait the catastrophe. It would be a fine joke, thought I—but the sacredness of the marriage tie forbade it.

A regular divorce!—my client at length articulated in a low murmur, as if half afraid the words were cabalistic—how long would it take, to get a regular divorce, s'posing we should agree—and—kind of make up some stories; and Mr. Slow should agree to let em go for his just as willing as can be.

Why, if you both should be perfectly agreed about the matter and willing to swear to false stories, made up for the purpose, and could persuade others, as witnesses, to perjure themselves too.

Oh! dreadful! we could not do such awful things as them; but how long did you say it will take? We should tell the truth, you know; only just they would be old stories; and kind of make up a little strong story, you know; and he wouldn't say nothing again if he's just as willing as can be. How long afore it could all be done, Sir, if we should agree?

Why, Ma'am, if your husband should make me trouble, and no one else interfere, not any circumstance in your fabricated evidence delay the proceedings of the court, I suppose you might get through the business about a year.

Oh! mere nonsense!—that wouldn't never do in the court—we couldn't wait so long, no way. I expect him right home very soon.

Whom?

The secret was out; it was a sudden unintended confession, and it was too late to mend it. Flushing blushed crimsoned her whole face and neck. She hung her head, laughed and bit her lips, by turns, wriggled to and fro as if sitting on thorns, and tamed wholly at a loss what to do next.

Of whom do you speak?—Mr. Slow?

Why—ur—body—that is—ur—why I s'pose—I—could get married again—if I was only free—she contrived to articulate, with a kind of convulsive giggle, and a lot of mingled pleasure, fear, and shame; expect him home very soon.

Prepared I was, by the previous conversation for almost any catastrophe, I was quite unfounded by the boldness and completeness of the woman's singular design. I was about to expostulate with her on the extreme folly and wickedness of her wicked scheme of adultery, when she somewhat impudently interrupted me.

Oh! no—that would never do; we couldn't wait so long, possibly. He'll be home I s'pose, to-morrow.

Now that whole secret was out, the "gude wife" felt evidently much more at ease than before. She had wholly unburdened herself, and as she was no longer fearful of revealing too much, or anxious about careless allusions, the remainder of the conference on her part, was as voluble and free, as if she had been talking of her last shopping expedition, or regarding the common scandals of her neighborhood.

No—impossible—we couldn't wait a year, no way in the world—I'm sure we couldn't. He's coming right home now; looking for him every day.

Who is Mr. Slow?

Why—I—s'pose now I must tell you—so much; it's George Long—he's been one way to sea a good while, but he's coming home soon. He said he'd stay me, if I could contrive to get rid of old Mr. Slow; and he's so old and rheumatizy; and then he's

What Mr. Slow, I can only repeat to you what he's already said so many times; that you cannot cease to be the wife of Mr. Slow, he he ever so old and ugly and rheumatizy, but by a regular divorce. And, as you have no reasons to justify an application to the law for this purpose, let me advise you to go quietly home, take care of your poor old husband, as becomes a good and honest wife, and tell George Long to beware how he disturbs the peace of the domestic altar, or in any way interferes with this sacred bond, as that which binds man and wife together in holy wedlock.

I reasoned long with her in this manner, pointing out the absurdity, the folly and criminality, of the course she seemed bent upon pursuing. But, desperate inamorata! it was all to no purpose. My logic and my eloquence were wholly lost upon her. She still insisted upon having the deed.

Just write me a quit-claim deed; I'll risk the consequences. Old Mr. Slow will sign it, right off; and never make any trouble about it afterwards. He's just as willing as can be.

I should think he would be, Ma'am; pity he's so slow to die, since he's so much in this way. But, I repeat, there is no such thing in law.

Oh! I'll risk the law; you only write me the deed; Mr. Slow'll sign it right off. He's just as willing as can be. You just write the deed now; he'll sign it, never fear—and we expect him home to-morrow.

The thing is utterly impossible. Mrs. Slow, never heard of such a deed in my life, or of any instrument like it; there is no form or rule for it in any of the Books of Precedents. Well, any how, you just write me a quit-claim deed, in the common way; just as you would write any other quit-claim; only put in that it's a wife; I'll risk it—Mr. Slow is so willing, I'm sure they used to have such things in old Massachusetts, before I came down, and I know'd some of the lawyers that did 'em long, and they know, as much, I guess as any of your new-lawed folks, down east. Come now, you just write me the deed; I'll pay you for it well.

I'd as lief write you a quit-claim deed, Mrs. Slow, as anything else; and am willing to put into it, any thing you may please to direct. But I tell you again, it will do you no good whatever. If you had a thousand of them, and poor old Mr. Slow would sign them all, they wouldn't be worth a straw to you—a mere string of sand. You would be just as much his wife then, as now; and your marriage with any other person would be as truly, both in the eye of the law, and common sense, a breach of the seventh commandment, then, as it would now. And you would be subject to all the penalties consequent upon such a breach of the law.

Well, somehow I can't believe it so. I guess you don't know so much about these er kind o' things, as the old Massachusetts lawyers do. I'll risk it; Mr. Slow's so willing; and then he's so old and rheumatizy; I can't bear it any longer; I must have a quit-claim deed wrote, afore I go home, if I can get it any how—He's just as willing as can be. But you will still be his wife, in the eye of the law, though you should marry forty times. If he ever should choose to claim your services or your property, he can do it. And if you find any body so foolish and so wicked as to marry you; he will not be your lawful husband, nor will he be obliged to support you a moment longer than he pleases. He may leave you at any time, and the law would allow you no claim upon him whatever.

Oh! never mind—I'll look out for all that—only just write me a deed now for Mr. Slow to sign—He'll sign it right off, he's just as willing as can be, I must have a deed somehow.

My feelings were now considerably excited by the invincible pertinacity and heroic zeal of my fair client. Though the affair looked so serious, at first—the joke now seemed too good to be lost.—The humour of the moment was irresistible, and overcame the sterner scruples which had kept me back till now, so taking up a pen, I hastily wrote, as follows.

Know all men by the presents, that I Simon Slow, of —, in the county of — and state of Maine, yeoman, for and in consideration of the sum of one dollar to me in hand paid by Elizabeth Slow, of said —, the receipt whereof I do hereby acknowledge, do by these presents, give, grant, bargain, sell, and convey, unto said Elizabeth Slow, all the right, title, and interest, which I have in and to the person and services of the said Elizabeth Slow—and I do further remise, release, and forever quit-claim, to the said Elizabeth Slow, all, and all manner of right title, and interest, which I have in and to the said Elizabeth Slow, as my lawful and wedded wife, forever discharging her from all services or duties which might reasonably or legally accrue to me, as her husband—and do, by these presents, consent, that the said Elizabeth Slow may join in wedlock with any person whom she may deem proper, without any let or hindrance whatsoever from me—meaning to convey to the said Elizabeth Slow, all the rights, immunities, privileges and franchises, which she lawfully and rightfully may have, before her marriage with me.

In testimony whereof, I have hereto set my hand and seal, this — day of September, in the year of our Lord, one thousand eight hundred and —

Signed, Sealed and delivered: L. S. in the presence of us.

There, Mrs. Slow, is the paper you wished me to write. It is just as good, for your purpose, as any piece of waste paper you could pick up in the street, and no better. Mr. Slow may sign it—perhaps he'll feel himself quite fortunate, that he can so easily get rid of so worthless a companion.

Apparently unmoved by my compliment she took the paper from my hand, & ran over it with great satisfaction—Oh! that's just the thing—thank you sir, thank you a thousand times—just the thing exactly—I know'd you was only humbugging me; now you just sign it, Sir, and then 'twill do nicely.

Sign it? what should I sign it for?

Why, just as a witness, you know.

Sign, as a witness, before the giver has put his signature to it? in his absence too? You learn that in old Massachusetts? I wouldn't have my name on such a paper as that, for ten thousand guineas.

Bless me, how you scare me now—Why—the old Massachusetts folks did so—but I ain't afraid to risk it. Mr. Slow's as willing as can be—Thank you, Sir—I guess George'll be home to-morrow—thank you, Sir.

So saying, the "gude wife," deposited the precious scrip carefully in her bosom, bade me a smiling "good eve;" and never recollecting her promise of a large fee, tripped lightly away.

Shades of Hymen! where was now my vision of matrimonial bliss!—I closed my office with all despatch, hastened home with a quick step, swallowed my tea without stopping to speak or breathe, went immediately to bed, dreamed of Sorcerers and Zantippe, and woke in the morning with a desperate determination, to which I have faithfully adhered, to be a perpetual invincible Coelebs.

N. B. Worthy reader, charge not my fancy with begotting so foul a thought, as that which forms the basis of the above story. I assure you, on the word of a gentleman, it is a sober fact, the poor rheumatizy old cripple, who was so ready, with his own hand, to make himself a widower, actually, called, the next day on Justice Oliver, and acknowledged the instrument and the signing thereof, to be his own free act and deed.

A Good Natured Stage Driver.

The editor of the Boston Post, tells the following story, vouching for its authenticity upon his honour.

A short time ago, the driver of a Needham stage, (in which myself was a passenger,) was directed to call for a lady in Avery street. It was rather late in the afternoon, and he was in a great hurry, as the clouds mustering in the West indicated an approaching storm; but after all his other passengers were taken in, he drove round to the appointed house, and, light as a fairy, in leaped Mrs. Quade, and to make room for her, out jumped myself, and took a seat on Whip's left. Just as every thing was ready for a fair start for the Mill Dam, Mrs. Quade, in a voice of energetic command; directed Whip to drive back to Norfolk Avenue, for her trunk, it having been left there she said by a Lowell stage. He demurred, and she demanded; he scanned the darkening clouds, and she declared she could do nothing in Needham without her trunk. Still he hesitated, till she supplicated; 'twas all over with him then; he yielded the moment she stooped to conquer, and, in about ten minutes, and after doubling corners to the number of a baker's dozen, or less, we drew up in front of Norfolk Avenue. A messenger being sent up for the trunk, he returned with an assurance that the trunk was not, and never had been there, but the driver, might possibly find it in Milk street. At this information, Whip's ruddy cheeks assumed a deeper dye; but he had undertaken to do the gallant thing for a lady, and, thinking he might as well go through with it, he cracked away for the Mansion House, without uttering an impatient syllable. Here again the trunk was not, but he was told it was probably left at the Washington Coffee House! This was stretching the reins of Whip's temper to their utmost limit of tension, one might have supposed; and, he evidently found it difficult to breathe without bursting; but a faint blip of—What in the name of the Old Harry did the woman mean, by not finding out where her trunk was left?—was all that escaped his lips, as he drove down to Congress street, up Water into Washington street. After wriggling and dodging his devious way, through landmarks, hacks, trucks, stages and omnibuses, Whip halted at the Coffee House, where, in truth, the long sought trunk was; but could not be delivered until a quarter of a dollar freight from Lowell was paid for it, & which being demanded, of Mrs. Quade, she coolly popped her head out of the stage, & with the most inimitable sang froid, observed; that she had not a quarter in the world, but expected to get some money as soon as she got to Boston!!! So by this unexpected, but unequivocal information, which she cheerfully gave, my friend Whip discovered that he might whistle at a mark for Mrs. Quade's stage fire after she reached Needham, and not being willing to let her under any further obligations, he permitted her to get out, without troubling her to dismount, and made her a respectful present of her nice little round trolley. We then resumed the seat she had occupied with so much honor to herself, and gratification to the driver. The preceding facts so nearly incredible as they are, don't hardly hold a candle to another in the case—a truly marvelous fact it is; and to gain any its marvelousness, no traveller will attempt!—Witness, therefore, ye who deem stage drivers no better than the wicked, Listened Our Whip swore neither loud nor low; nor in his looks, nor between his teeth; and right firmly do we believe he swore not even in his heart; and most certainly he did not utter one unkind word to the lady rough, respecting the vexatious delay she had so dishonestly occasioned to him.

A few days after, we had the curiosity to inquire of our Whip, if he had seen anything more of Mrs. Quade, and he told us that two days before she borrowed money enough to redeem her trunk, and pay her fare; that he took her trunk up at the Coffee House, but as she happened to be out when he called for her in Avery street he was obliged to leave her again. The next day feeling the necessity of following her trunk, she secured a passage in the Rail Road car; but as they were not expected to start for half an hour, to fill up the time pleasantly, she made a call upon an acquaintance, and returned to the Depot just exactly in time to see the cars fairly under way, a hundred rods from the starting point. She now abandoned all hope of ever riding to Needham, and started off on foot on the railroad!

SMALL COINS.

The sixteenths of a dollar have nearly all disappeared from Philadelphia since their being cried down to five cents each, their true intrinsic value. Their places have been supplied by five cent pieces, which are emitted at the banks in amounts sufficiently large to meet the demand. We have not ourselves individually, experienced in market the slightest inconvenience from the want of the old coins, nor do we hear of any body that has. We got clear of them, just as we did a few years ago, of one dollar notes, without the slightest effort, and the public will feel the benefit of having no silver in circulation, so worn as to occasion a loss of time in examining it every time it changes hands, to ascertain whether it is a five penny bit or a groat. The value of the time gained by this change in the currency, in the course of a year, would amount to an enormous sum, and that was the great evil intended to be remedied. We understand that a considerable amount of the old coins have to resort to

with Harry, which like all the rest of the charges, is in his own proper handwriting. This is certainly the best kind of evidence I can offer to the public to sustain the fact of my having paid money for him at different periods.

The eighth item is the sum of $12, paid Mr. Harrison for the stallion, as appears by the following certificate.

This will certify, that in May 1827 I attended a bay stallion for Capt. Thomas Coward, Jr. for which Medical attendance he paid me $12.

JOHN HASLEM.

Nov. 15, 1833.

The ninth and last item, in the account is the sum of $20 charged by myself for keeping the stallion above alluded to, two months. This was the usual charge in the City—I have then only to remark that my Father allowed it without any hesitation at the time of our settlement.

It will be perceived by every intelligent and impartial reader, that the several items stated in the foregoing account, together with the interest charged, constitute the exact amount of my Father's obligation to me. The several items therein stated, show clearly and conclusively, that the bill obligatory in question, was founded entirely on a valuable consideration. The obligor had received value as the note purports.

In the months of April and May in the year 1817 and in September 1821 as I have already shown—he obtained from me the sum of $2,320, which sums were no doubt procured to aid him in the payment of heavy claims awarded against him in the year 1817 by a decree of the high court of Chancery.

The points in controversy between the complainants and my Father were referred out of Chancery to John Edmondson and James Goldsborough, Esqs. who finally decided the case against the defendant (my late Father) who was then compelled to pay the respective creditors and representatives of Amasa Robinson, the full sum of $3,023 14.

This decision is incontrovertibly the fact of my Father's liability to me, and that too in the year of 1817, when he borrowed from me the first and second items mentioned in the account, which make the aggregate of $3020, it is most probable that for the same purpose, he obtained from me, the further sum of $300 in the year of 1821—and I will here add, that if he had applied to me for the whole sum mentioned in the award, he should have had it.

But it may be doubted perhaps, by some, that I had the ability to loan the sum of $2,320, either to my father or any other person—to prove this ability I need only refer the reader to the following certificate of Jacob Bier, Esq. now President of the Marine Bank of Baltimore, which I have just recently obtained from him.

Baltimore, Oct. 2nd, 1835.

Captain Thomas Coward (now of Talbot county) having requested me to certify what was the statement of his account with the Marine Bank of Baltimore from the 12th March 1817 to the close of his account at Bank which was the 11th June 1823. In compliance I do hereby state that by the books of this Bank it appears that Captain Coward deposited in said Bank between the before mentioned periods and the first date inclusive—the sum of Fifty thousand seven hundred and nine dollars and seventy three cents which latter date viz. 11th June 1823 his account was closed at Bank.

JACOB BIER, President.

After reading the certificate of Mr. Bier, I flatter myself no person, nay not even the most incredulous, will deny that he possessed the means to have assisted my Father, if he had required it, to a much greater extent than appears by the account between us—No one can I suppose be so ignorant as to deny that examining the account, sustained as it is throughout by the most cogent evidence, will doubt its existence at the time it purports to have originated—Neither can I believe that any unprejudiced mind will resist the conviction that the amount of the account in question, was fairly and honestly due me from my late Father, and that he did, on a final settlement between us, pass to me his note or bill obligatory.

Having given to the public the account as it existed between my late Father and myself, with such plain remarks as I have thought proper to make in relation to the vouchers produced, I now beg leave to introduce to their notice another subject, of less moment, though of sufficient importance to require some explanation from me.

Some years ago, I think it was in the year 1825, some time in December, I purchased a new Schooner of Wm. Harrison, Esq. which, when fitted for sea; cost me upwards of $10,000 John Craig of Baltimore, at whose wharf the vessel lay, persuaded me to buy the Schooner of Mr. Harrison—observing to me, that if he had the money—as he knew I had—that he would not hesitate a moment to purchase her—Before the vessel was completed, I had several offers for her—and finally sold her to Messrs. Myer & Brant, for a Commercial House in Philadelphia—after the sale, Mr. Craig called upon me and said, he thought, that I ought to give him part of the profits of the Schooner. I asked him why he thought so? he observed, that if he had not persuaded me I would not have bought the Schooner, and for his persuasion he set up a claim for one half of the profits of the vessel. Two years after or thereabouts, a summons was issued against me to appear to the complaint of the said John Craig, but it was not served on me, for on the 11th day of February 1826 I cleared at the Custom House of Baltimore for the West Indies; as will appear by reference to their books, mailed on the twelfth, and on the 15th the day after I departed, the summons came out as appears from the date thereof, Craig obtained a decree against me by default, in consequence of my absence. The matter lay dormant nearly three years before I was ever apprized of it—and the first intimation I had, either of summons or decree, was from John Glenn, Esq. I immediately repaired to the Clerk's office in company with my Attorney; there we saw the decree, but the summons could not be found—However after making repeated searches, several weeks after, it came to light, and as I was not allowed to have the matter investigated before a Court of Justice, I was induced by a sense of duty to resort to the only course that could enable me to avoid the payment of a claim so unfounded, so inequitable and so unjust. The course here alluded to, the public can have no difficulty in ascertaining. Having experienced a sad reverse of fortune, I appealed to the law, in due time appeared before the commissioners of insolvent debtors—the result is a matter of record, and therefore it is unnecessary for me to say more on that point. The course was a painful one—though certainly under the peculiar circumstances of the case not only justifiable, but essential to save my just credit from a participation with a claim which had not a shadow of truth, justice, or law to sustain it.

In compliance with the requisites of the Act of Assembly, I was constrained to render a correct list of my creditors, this I did, amounting to the sum of $3545 76, as soon as I got my final hearing, which was in May, 1830, in the same month of that year, with the aid of my friends, Jas. Corner and Hall Harrison, Esqs. I paid on the 11th day May, 1830, $2667 93 as pr. receipts, and on the 18th November, same year, $570 as pr. receipt, making a sum of $3237 93, and $235 at different periods in small sums.

The foregoing sums form an aggregate nearly equal to the whole amount of my list of creditors; and these payments manifestly show that it could not have been either my wish or intention to avoid the settlement of any just claim against me, stronger evidence than this, I believe, cannot be produced by any individual.

Having thus appealed to an intelligent community, through the medium of the press, I have now only to request, that every individual, who may read this, my communication, will give it, his unbiased and impartial attention, and then say, whether I am guilty of the charges exhibited against me or not—my own conscience acquies in me, and I cannot but feel assured, that every candid and unprejudiced reader, will also acquit me.

THOMAS COWARD.

THE SILK CULTURIST

The Executive Committee of the Hartford County Silk Society, have commenced a monthly publication, called the SILK CULTURIST and Farmers Manual.

The object of the publication is to disseminate a thorough knowledge of the cultivation of the Mulberry Tree, in all its varieties. The reading of Silk Worms. The production of Cocoons and the Reeling of Silk, in the most approved method. The importance of this knowledge will appear from the fact that the next profit of land devoted to the culture of Silk, is double, if not triple, to that derived from any other crop which can be put upon it. It is also a fact, that every moderate farmer can raise several hundred dollars worth of Silk, without interfering with his other agricultural operations. But in order to succeed in the cultivation of this facility to obtain competency and wealth, he must possess himself of information on the subject—for without it his attempts will be fruitless. It is, therefore, the object of the Committee to diffuse this information as extensively as possible, and at the cheapest rate. The publication will contain a complete manual or directory from sowing the seed to reeling the Silk, together with such facts and experiments, as will enable farmers to raise Silk and prepare it for market, without further knowledge or assistance. It will also contain interesting matter on agricultural subjects in general.

Terms—The Cultivist will be published in monthly numbers of Eight Quarto Pages, at Five Cents a year. No subscription will be received unless paid in advance, and for not less than a year.

Subscriptions received by F. G. COMSTOCK, Secretary, Hartford, Conn., to whom all communications may be addressed, which, if post paid, will be attended to.

Editors, who will copy the above, shall receive the publication for one year.

PROSPECTUS

OF A NEW PUBLICATION

TO BE CALLED

The Catholic Periodical

LIBRARY

Which is designed to be a reprint of all the best Catholic Works in the English Language, in weekly numbers, at 8 cents each.

The death and scarcity of the best Catholic works must long have been a source of regret to every intelligent and observing Catholic in America. So limited has been the sale, and so great the expense of printing these books, that but few individuals in the country have been sufficiently enterprising to undertake their publication; and their price, in consequence, has been more than proportionally high. In fact, so dear have Catholic books in general been, that it has been entirely impossible for the poor members of the Catholic community, who stand in need of instruction, and for whom the books have in general been supplied, to obtain copies, even of those works which are nearly essential to the practice of Religion.

The subscriber has long since observed this fact with the utmost regret, and has at length done something to rectify the prices of the most necessary Catholic works. Our religious are books still however, extremely dear; and the Subscriber, depending on the support of liberal and enlightened Catholic contributors, has determined to issue a Periodical publication, which, by its cheapness, will place all the best Catholic works within the reach of the poorest individual; and from the neatness and elegance of its execution will be found worthy of a place in the libraries of the rich. Such Publication as that which the Subscriber proposes to issue, has long been called for by the exigencies of the Catholic community; and the rapidly increasing number of the members of our Holy Church seems fully to justify the expectation that it will meet with abundant encouragement to enable him to continue it successfully. He, therefore, notwithstanding the expense and risk attending it, and adding entirely to the liberality and generosity of his fellow Catholics of the United States and the Canada, has resolved to put it to the press forthwith, and he therefore throws himself on his Catholic brethren, and calls on them for their support and patronage.

In this undertaking he is principally encouraged by the hope that it will meet with cordial approbation of the clergy in general, and that he will be aided by the powerful assistance of that learned and devoted body of men. The undertaking is one which is eminently calculated to disseminate the principles of holy religion widely throughout the community, and to assist the clergy in the discharge of their parochial duties by affording, at an uncommonly low rate, all the necessary knowledge and instruction. The Subscriber, therefore, earnestly requests that the Bishops and Clergy in general, will exert their powerful influence in order to increase the popularity of the work and to obtain a sufficient number of subscribers to enable him to carry it on with success. My best wishes they will augment the spiritual comforts of their charges, and contribute, in a great measure, to dispel the prejudices by which our brethren of other denominations are unfortunately blinded.

Terms.—The Catholic Periodical Library will be published in Weekly numbers, of fifty pages each, duodecimo size, on fine royal paper and beautiful new type, stitched in handsome wrappers, and will embrace the whole of the most celebrated Controversial and Devotional works, together with a large fund of ecclesiastical history. The first Number will be issued on Saturday November 7th.—Terms of subscription $4 per Annum, or Eight Cents per Number, payable in advance.—Liberal contributions will be allowed to Agents. Any persons, who may live at a distance, remitting a twenty dollar note, may have five copies of the work sent them for one year.

been sent to Cuba, but we presume that the large portion have gone to New York and Massachusetts, where there seems to exist a prodigious fondness for little bank notes, and their worthy companions defaced coins.

Scenes in Boston—Proceedings in the case of

WILLIAM L. GARRISON.

The Boston papers of Thursday enable us to give a full account of the disturbances in that city, of which we were in possession of but a brief notice yesterday. The immediate cause of the disturbance is thus stated in one of the papers:

After the appearance of a succession of inflammatory articles in the Liberator, highly insulting to the feelings of a great majority of our fellow-citizens, attacking with a frantic maliciousness their character and motives, manifesting an insolent defiance of public opinion, and a determination to persist in bravely it—a notice was yesterday issued, that the female antislavery society would hold a meeting that afternoon, when it would be addressed by several gentlemen—among whom it was said Thompson and Garrison were to speak.

At about two o'clock, P. M. a hand-bill was thrown into circulation, of which the following is a copy:

"THOMPSON—THE ABOLITIONIST.—That infamous foreign scoundrel, THOMPSON, will hold forth this afternoon, at the Liberator office, No. 15 Washington street. The present is a fair opportunity for the friends of the Union to snake Thompson out! It will be a contest between the abolitionists and the friends of the Union. A purse of $100 has been raised by a number of patriotic citizens to reward the individual who shall first lay violent hands on Thompson, so that he may be brought to the bar-kettle before dark! Friends of the Union, be vigilant!"

Boston, Wednesday, 12 o'clock.

In consequence of this notice, and of the general suspicion that the notorious Thompson would be present on the occasion, a large assemblage of citizens collected in front of the building No. 15 Washington street, with the determination of intercepting the foreign felon as he entered the door. Soon afterward several individuals among the crowd, went up into the hall of the abolitionists, and threw out of the window all the tracts and papers of the society which were speedily destroyed by those in the street.

About 3 o'clock the people crowded the stairway to the hall, and some thirty women, black and white, were observed within. Garrison was the only male character among the women, and he soon decamped, and withdrew to another room. The mayor of the city, Mr. Lyman, soon entered, and recommended the women to withdraw, and thus extricate themselves from the tumult. They complied, and marched down stairs in a body, and were followed by the crowd. They appeared as if they could be imagined, and were hissed by the crowd. The people shouted "Thompson!"

"Thompson, Garrison, and Thompson; where is Garrison, &c. But neither was to be seen. The mayor addressed the people, and stated emphatically that Thompson was not in the city, and requested the people to disperse peacefully. The general expression then was, to take down a large sign on the third story, on which was painted "Female Abolition Society Room." Some of our most respectable citizens then went deliberately, and in a peaceable manner, and drew out the books that supported the sign, and were about to take it into the window. The people below then demanded that the sign should be lowered. It was then lowered down, and the people immediately broke it to pieces. This was at about half past 3 o'clock, and most of the spectators amounting to some 2000, departed in peace.

Mean time Garrison passed through the building to the rear, and got out of a window twenty-five feet from the ground, on a couple of boxes, placed on a small back building. In stepping on the boxes they gave way, and he fell on the roof of the small building, and was like to have been precipitated to the ground, twelve or fifteen feet below. He recovered himself, however, and descended hastily to the yard, and thence into a carpenter's shop, where he encountered himself under round boards and shavings.

The Atlas says: he was found crouched under a pile of boards in the second story of a carpenter's shop, and here he surrendered at discretion. A rope was fastened under his arms and about his neck, and he was let down by means of a ladder to the ground. His countenance was pale and convulsed with terror, and he made no attempt to speak or to resist. There was a general exclamation of "don't hurt him;" and two individuals seizing him on each side by the collar, he was conducted through the lane into State street, and from thence hurried into the mayor's office in the city hall. The crowd remained outside, at one time we should think that from four to five thousand persons were assembled in the street. The mayor made his appearance at the portico, and addressed the multitude in a brief and judicious speech. He called upon the people to sustain him in the preservation of good order, and in maintaining the supremacy of the laws. His address was calculated to exercise a good effect, and was received with applause. The crowd, however, did not disperse; and on the approach of a carriage toward the opposite door, for the purpose of removing Garrison, the agitation of the multitude evidently increased.

Here the management of our city police and the devotion of our citizens to the supremacy of the laws were put to the test. Decidedly as our best citizens abhorred the "principles of Garrison, and much as they detested the continued agitation kept up by him and those whom he misleads, they were determined to aid the police in sustaining the laws, and in preserving Garrison from violence. When the carriage was at the door of the city hall, they formed double line for the protection of his person, and succeeded in placing him in the vehicle.

The doors of the vehicle were thrown open, and such was the press upon the horses and the coach, that it was several times nearly upset. By the exertions of the mayor, Garrison was securely placed on the coach, which was driven at some speed up Court street, followed by a large concourse. The coachman was directed to drive to the jail in Leverett street, a warrant of commitment having been issued against Garrison, as a public agitator and disturber of the peace. He was committed by sheriff Parkman. In order to elude pursuit, the coachman drove at a rapid rate, and took a circuitous route, so as to approach the jail from the bottom of Leverett street. He was hardly a moment in advance of the crowd, and Garrison had barely time to give one leap from the coach toward the door of the jail to escape the shock of the opposing crowds, which were rushing toward him from different ends of the street. He sank exhausted upon a seat, exclaiming, that "never was a man so rejoiced to get into a jail before." The door being closed upon him, the immense assemblage in front gradually dispersed.

We cannot but deplore, in common with every good citizen that our city should be the stage for such tumultuous scenes. But in what terms of indignation can we speak of the man, who by his rancorous denunciations, and his brawling, ferocious abuse, together with the disorganizing tendency of his doctrines, has excited the people to such an ebullition of their deeply exasperated feelings.

One circumstance in relation to the capture of Garrison is worth recording. The very men who dragged him forth from his skulking place and led him into State street, on seeing that the popular vengeance might be directed against him in a more popular and summary manner, than they wished to behold, hurried him themselves into the mayor's office for protection.

The scene around the carriage to which the sheriff had committed Garrison was intensely exciting. At one moment, it seemed that the rash of the vast crowd would overwhelm the coach while the prancing of the terrified horse threatened danger from another quarter. At another time the doors were forcibly opened, and as forcibly shut. Finally the coachman succeeded in making his way without any accident through the multitude, that encompassed the carriage which was followed with shouts to the jail.

We should not omit to state that the occupants of the stores in the vicinity of the anti-slavery rooms, exhibited no meeting, setting forth that their property was in danger in consequence of a riot, and praying for protection.

Thus (says the Centinel) have the people of this city expressed their decisive reprobation of the outrageous perseverance of fanatics, in disturbing the public peace by public barangues on abolition, and we hope that this will be the last attempt of agitators to continue their practices under the shelter of females.

The mayor and other officers deserve great credit, for their efforts to preserve the peace of the city. When Garrison was passing toward the back window to escape in the early part of the scene he had the folly to repeat for theatrical effect—"hail Columbia, happy land." The tendency of the labors of such men is to convert this "happy land" into scenes of blood and carnage, and to induce the blacks to cut the throats of the whites. Away with such canting hypocrisy.

The Boston Gazette says: "We never before saw so gentlemanly a rabble—if a rabble it may be called—as that assembled yesterday. They opened to the right and left in the greatest possible order, when a female attempted to pass in or out; not only so but when a procession of some ten or a dozen black ladies made known their wish to be admitted the same was done for them without the slightest token of ill-disposition being manifested. It was, in fact, a meeting of gentlemen of property and standing from all parts of the city, who are disposed, and still are determined, at all hazards, and 'come what may,' to preserve the peace of the city from all domestic facinoraries as well as to protect the Union against foreign interference."

LATEST.—The Boston Transcript of Thursday evening contains the following: Constables were placed last night in the vicinity of Garrison's house, and at the office of the Liberator, Cornhill, but their was no attempt made to destroy his property, nor was there symptoms of farther riot after eight o'clock, although there were assemblages of people in small squads, until nearly midnight, anticipating excesses, which for the honor of the city, we are happy did not occur. Mr. Garrison was released from imprisonment this morning, and has left the city.

General Harrison.—We place on record for future reference the following article copied for the Cincinnati Whig: One Term.—Numerous enquiries by private letters and otherwise have been made of us whether Gen. Harrison's intention to suffer himself to be made a candidate for re-election should be successful in the ensuing Presidential contest. Repeated conversations with General Harrison, upon the subject, enable us to say without equivocation, that no circumstances whatever would induce him to serve for a longer period than a single term; and we pledge ourselves to our contemporaries and the public, that should the people confer the honor upon the General of placing him in the Presidential Chair he will never be found recreant to the principles on which he is elected.

Saturday Morning, Oct. 31.

The crop of Potatoes this year is remarkably productive and excellent quality. We received a few days since, from Robert Banning, Esq. a sample of his crop of Red Skin potatoes, and thought them to be of all conscience—a day or two after we received a sample of Dr. Barnett's crop of White Skin—and must say we have never seen a finer sample, none of them, (about two dozen) weighing less than a pound each, and some as high as upwards. Then came Thomas C. Nipals Esq. sample of his crop of Maine potatoes, equal, if not superior to those we have been importing from Baltimore for the last few years.

Our neighbors, Dr. Dawson & Son, have on their counter a potato weighing 1 lb. 10 oz. and radishes weighing 5 lb. Our citizens contemplate living well this winter, as our beef market has much improved.

We had written the above when we received our last night's mail from the Slow and Easy, where we find that a notice has been published in the Worcester Palladium, says: "The negro-stealer takes the negro to the lower county, sells him for $800 or $1000 cash, then tells the negro to run away and meet him at a place appointed, where they divide the money. He takes him to another section of the county and sells him again, the negro runs away and they again divide the money. After having sold the negro in this way several times over he takes him into the woods, murders him, and takes the whole of the money."

TO THE PUBLIC.

Influenced by a sense of duty to myself, as well as a regard for the opinion of my friends and the world; I am induced, in consequence of a recent decision had against me, in Talbot County Court, to undertake to lay before the public a plain, distinct, and detailed statement, of all the money transaction, between my late Father and myself, from the year of eighteen hundred and seventeen, to the year of eighteen hundred and twenty seven inclusive.

On the 24th day of July in the last named year, all our accounts were closed, and my late father, Thomas Coward, passed his note or bill obligatory to me, for the sum of three thousand seven hundred and sixty three dollars and fifty three cents.

It is to the authenticity of this obligation that exception has been taken, & it now becomes my duty to sustain that obligation by all the testimony and circumstances in my possession. This note or bill obligatory was founded entirely on the following account current between us:—to wit:—

1817 To cash lent you $1500 00
Interest for 10 yrs. 9m. 50c. 323 25
May 17th To cash lent you 520 00

1822 Aug. 29th Paid Dr. John Singleton per your order 30 00
Interest 4 yrs. 10mo. 25d 8 84

1823 Dec. 5th A piece of Irish linen $15 75 bought by Mrs. Coward to make you shirts 15 75
1 yard cambric linen furnished by Mrs. Coward at $3 per yard 5 00

1827 March 2nd Clothing for your negro Lydia, while at my house for sale 2 78
April 2nd Cash to negro Henry Moore $5 agreeably to your request on the delivery of your horse 5 00

May Paid Mr. Haslem the Farmer $12 for curing your Horse of the distemper 12 00
Keeping your horse 2mo. at $10 per mo. 20 00

Errors and omissions excepted $3,769 63
Having given above an exact transcript of the account as made out by myself, presented to my late father, and by him closed as before stated, it is necessary for me, to subjoin a few remarks in relation to, and explanatory of, the several items charged in that account, and not only to produce to the public such original vouchers as have been preserved, but to give as a material part of this statement, true copies of those vouchers the originals of which together with other important papers are left at the Office of the Easton Gazette to an examination of which any and every individual is invited that may think proper to satisfy himself.

In relation to the first item charged in the account alluded to, I have only to say, that on the 17th day of April in the year 1817, the same year that the decree in Chancery was given against him, my Father applied to me, in the name of the said John Coward, for a bill of $1500 which was given him by me.

The second item was a further loan of $520 made to my father on the 17th May in the same year of 1817 for this sum, he gave me as he did before, his acknowledgment, which last was also given up to him at the time of our settlement.

The third item was also a loan of $500, this sum he obtained on the 21st day of September in the year 1821, by virtue of a check on the Marine Bank of Baltimore, drawn by him in his favour, the receipt of this sum he acknowledged, which receipt was returned to him with the two acknowledgments previously given and at the same time.

I have however obtained from Jacob Bier, Esq. the Cashier (now President) of that institution, the following evidence, which I now submit to the public, as a proper voucher, for the last named item.

Marine Bank of Baltimore, 26th Oct. 1835.
On the 21st September 1821, Thomas Coward's account was charged with his check on this Bank, in favor of Thomas Coward, for three hundred dollars.

JACOB BIER, Cashier.

The fourth item in the account is the sum of $30 paid to Dr. John Singleton, as per my Father's order, the order presented to me by Dr. John Singleton is in the proper hand of my Father, and in the following words:—to wit:—Sir:—Pay the bearer hereof Mr. John Singleton the sum of thirty dollars—and place the same to account of your ob't. serv't.

THOMAS COWARD.
Capt. Thomas Coward.
Aug. 29th, 1823.

This order I retained, but gave up to my Father at the time of the settlement referred to, Dr. Singleton's receipt to me, for the money I then paid him.

I beg leave to call the attention of the public particularly to this order; it is material in a two fold point of view; first it is material, to prove that the order itself was given by him, and duly presented to me, and secondly, it furnishes, the strongest and most conclusive evidence of the existence of an account current between us.

This point then of the existence of an account current, so important in itself, being established beyond the possibility of a doubt, by an order to a third person in the proper hand writing of my Father, more than three years after the commencement of the account in question, it certainly cannot be necessary for me, to add a single other remark on this subject.

The fifth item is a piece of Irish linen, and one yard of Cambric linen, this piece of linen was made up into shirts for my father, & ruffled with the Cambric linen, this fact can be proved by Mrs. Sarah McGinniss (now of Baltimore) who then resided in my family; the purchase is established by Mr. Davis' bill and receipt dated 5th Dec. 1823.

The sixth article is for clothing furnished my negro girl Lydia, who was sent to Baltimore in 1827 and who offered for sale by me. The seventh item is the sum of $5 paid negro Henry Moore on the 2nd of April 1827 by my Father's request—this negro man lived with my Father, as well known and recollected by several gentlemen, still residing in this neighborhood—consequently he kept an account against him. In that account Henry is charged with the sum of five dollars in the following words:—to wit:—"To cash $5 of Capt. Thomas Coward, Junior" this is the express language of the account in his book account with Henry, who charges, in his book, in this. This is certainly an offer to the public having paid him. The eighth item is a bill of $12 for curing your horse of the distemper, which was given by me to the Farmer, as per your order, the receipt of this sum he acknowledged, which receipt was returned to him with the two acknowledgments previously given and at the same time.

Nov. 15, 1835
The ninth and last item of the account is the sum of $20 paid to Dr. John Singleton, as per my Father's order, the order presented to me by Dr. John Singleton is in the proper hand of my Father, and in the following words:—to wit:—Sir:—Pay the bearer hereof Mr. John Singleton the sum of twenty dollars—and place the same to account of your ob't. serv't.

THOMAS COWARD.
Capt. Thomas Coward.
Aug. 29th, 1823.

with Henry, who charges, in his book, in this. This is certainly an offer to the public having paid him. The eighth item is with Harry, which like all the rest of the charges, is in his own proper hand writing. This is certainly the best kind of evidence that can be given to the public to sustain the fact of my having paid money for him at different periods. The eighth item is the sum of $12, paid Mr. Haslem for caring his Stallion, as appears by the following certificate.

This will certify, that in May 1827 I attended a bay stallion for Capt. Thomas Coward, Jr. for which Medical attendance he paid me $12.

JOHN HASLEM.

Nov. 15, 1835. The ninth and last item, in the account is the sum of $20 charged by myself for keeping the stallion above alluded to, two months. This was the usual charge in the City—I have then only to remark that my Father allowed it without any hesitation at the time of our settlement.

It will be perceived by every intelligent and impartial reader, that the several items stated in the foregoing account, together with the interest charged, constitute the exact amount of my Father's obligation to me. The several items therein specified show clearly and conclusively, that the bill obligatory in question, was founded entirely on a valuable consideration. The obligor had received value as the note purports.

In the months of April and May in the year of 1817 and in September 1821 as I have already shown—he obtained from me the sum of $2,930, which sums were no doubt procured to aid him in the payment of heavy claims awarded against him in the year 1817 by a decree of the high court of Chancery. The pupils in controversy between the complainants and my Father were referred out of Chancery to John Edmondson and James Goldsborough, Esqs. who finally decided in favor of the defendant (my late Father) who was then compelled to pay the respective creditors and representatives of Amasa Robinson, the full sum of $3,023 14. This decision is now, as it has long since been, a matter of record and therefore cannot be controverted. The following is truly copied from the award of those gentlemen as can be seen by referring to the record "We do thereupon award and adjudge and determine by these presents, that there is on this first day of February, in the year of our Lord eighteen hundred and seventeen due and owing from the said Thomas Coward to the creditors and representatives of Amasa Robinson in the said proceedings named, the sum of three thousand six hundred and twenty five dollars and fourteen cents current money of Maryland."

This decision established incontrovertibly the fact of my Father's liability to the creditors and that in the year of 1817, when he borrowed from me the first and second items mentioned in the account, which make the aggregate of $2030, it is most probable that for the same purpose, he obtained from me, the further sum of $300 in the year of 1821—and I will here add, that if he had applied to me for the whole sum mentioned in the award, he should have had it.

But it may be doubted perhaps, by some, that I had the ability to loan the sum of $2,320, either to my Father or any other person—to prove this ability I need only refer the reader to the following certificate of Jacob Bier, Esq. now President of the Marine Bank of Baltimore, which I have but recently obtained from him.

Baltimore, Oct. 2nd 1835. Captain Thomas Coward (now of Talbot County) having requested me to certify what was the statement of his account with the Marine Bank of Baltimore from the 12th March 1817 to the close of his account at Baltimore which was the 11th June 1825. In compliance I do hereby state that by the books of the Bank it appears that Captain Coward deposited in said Bank between the before mentioned periods and the first date inclusive—the sum of Fifty two thousand seven hundred and ninety seven dollars and seventy three cents which latter date viz. 11th June 1825 his account was closed at Bank.

JACOB BIER, President. After reading the certificate of Mr. Bier, I flatter myself no person, nay not even the most incredulous, will deny that I possessed the means to have assisted my Father, if he had required it, to a much greater extent than appears by the account between us—Nor can I suppose that any intelligent person, after examining the account, sustained as it is throughout by the most cogent evidence, will doubt its existence at the time it purports to have originated—Neither can I believe that any unprejudiced mind will resist the conviction that the amount of the account in question, was fairly and honestly due me from my late Father, and that he did, on a final settlement between us, pass to me his note or bill obligatory.

Having given to the public the account as it existed between my late Father and myself, with such plain remarks as I have thought proper to make in relation to the vouchers produced, I now beg leave to introduce to their notice another subject, of less moment, though of sufficient importance to require some explanation from me.

Some years ago, I think it was in the year 1835, some time in December, I purchased a new Schooner of Wm. Harrison, Esq. which when fitted for sea; cost me upwards of $10,000 John Craig of Baltimore, at whose wharf the vessel lay, persuaded me to buy the Schooner of Mr. Harrison—observing to me, that if he had the money—as he knew I had—that he would not hesitate a moment to purchase her for me. I was at first inclined to do so, but I had several offers for her—and for a Commercial House in Philadelphia—after the sale, Mr. Craig called upon me and said, he thought, that I ought to give him part of the profits of the Schooner. I asked him why he thought so? he observed, that if he had not persuaded me I would not have bought the Schooner, and for his persuasion he set up a claim for one half of the profits of the vessel. Two years after or thereabouts, a summons was issued against me to appear to the complaint of the said John Craig, but it was not served on me, for on the 11th day of February 1839 I cleared at the Custom House of Baltimore for the West Indies, as will appear by reference to their books, called on the twelfth, and on the 13th the day after I departed, the summons came out as appears from the date thereof, in consequence of my absence. The matter lay dormant nearly three years before I was ever apprized of it—and the first intimation I had, either of summons or decree, was from John Glenn, Esq. I immediately repaired to the Clerk's office in company with my Attorney; there we saw the decree, but the summons could not be found—However after making repeated searches, several weeks after, it came to light, and as I was not allowed to have the matter investigated before a Court of Justice, I was induced by a sense of duty to my family, as well as to my just creditors, to resort to the only course that could enable me to avoid the payment of a claim so unfounded, so inequitable and so unjust. The course here alluded to, the public can have no difficulty in ascertaining. Having experienced a sad reverse of fortune, I applied to the law, in due time appeared before the commission-ers of insolvent debtors—the result is a matter to record, and therefore it is unnecessary for me to record more on that point. The course was a painful one—though certainly under the peculiar circumstances of the case not only justifiable, but essential to save my just creditors from a participation with a claim which had not a shadow of truth, justice, or law to sustain it.

In compliance with the requisites of the Act of Assembly, I was constrained to render a correct list of my creditors, this I did, amounting to the sum of $3645 76, as soon as I got my final hearing, which was in May, 1830, in the same month of that year, with the aid of my friends, Jas. Corner and Hall Harrison, Esqs. I paid on the 11th day May, 1830, $2007 93 as pr. receipts, and on the 18th November, same year, $570 as pr. receipt, making a sum of $3277 93, and $325 at different periods in small sums.

The foregoing sums form an aggregate nearly equal to the whole amount of my list of creditors; and these payments manifestly show that it could not have been either my wish or intention to avoid the settlement of any just claim against me, stronger evidence than this, I believe, cannot be produced by any individual.

THOMAS COWARD.

THE SILK CULTURIST

The Executive Committee of the Hartford County Silk Society, have commenced a monthly publication, called the SILK CULTURIST and Farmers Manual.

The object of the publication is to disseminate a thorough knowledge of the cultivation of the Mulberry Tree, in all its varieties.

The reading of Silk Worms—The production of Cocoons and the Reeling of Silk, in the most approved method. The importance of this knowledge will appear from the fact that the net profit of land devoted to the culture of Silk, is double, if not triple, to that derived from any other crop which can be put upon it.

It is also a fact, that every moderate farmer can raise several hundred dollars worth of Silk without interfering with his ordinary agricultural operations. But in order to avail himself of this facility to obtain competency and wealth, which our soil and climate have given him, he must possess himself of information on the subject—for without it his attempts will be fruitless. It is, therefore, the object of the Committee to diffuse this information as extensively as possible, and at the cheapest rate. The publication will contain a complete manual or directory from sowing the seed to reeling the Silk, together with such facts and experiments, as will enable farmers to raise Silk and prepare it for market, without further knowledge or assistance. It will also contain interesting matter on agricultural subjects in general.

TERMS—The Cultivist will be published in monthly numbers of Eight Quarto Pages, at Fifty CENTS a year. No subscription will be received unless paid in advance, and for not less than a year.

Subscriptions received by F. G. COMSTOCK, Secretary, Hartford, Conn., to whom all Communications may be addressed, which, if post paid, will be attended to.

Editors who will copy the above, shall receive the publication for one year.

PROSPECTUS

OF A NEW PUBLICATION

TO BE CALLED

The Catholic Periodical

LIBRARY

Which is designed to be a reprint of all the best Catholic Works in the English Language, in weekly numbers, at 8 cents each.

The dearth and scarcity of the best Catholic works must long have been a source of regret to every intelligent and observing Catholic in America. So limited has been the sale, and so great the expense of printing these books, that but few individuals in the United States have been sufficiently enterprising to undertake their publication; and their price, in consequence, has been more than proportionally high. In fact, so dear have Catholic books in general been, that it has been entirely impossible for the poor members of the Catholic community, who stand in need of instruction, and for whom the books have in general been compiled, to obtain copies, even of those works which are nearly essential to the practice of Religion.

TEMPERANCE Convention.

At a meeting of the Officers and Managers of the Queen Ann's county Temperance Society, convened at Centerville on the 10th of October instant, it was thought that great advantage would result to the Temperance cause from a union of effort by the different societies on the Eastern Shore of Maryland, and the State of Delaware.

It was therefore unanimously Resolved; by the members present, that the temperance societies of the Eastern Shore of Maryland, and of the State of Delaware, be invited to send five members from each county, to meet in Centerville, Queen Ann's county, Maryland, on the first Tuesday of next December. It is also so most respectfully suggested, that where there are no county societies, that the different neighborhood societies, be requested to confer and agree on five persons from each county, to represent said societies in said Convention.

Resolved also, That the Editors of newspapers on the Eastern Shore, and in the State of Delaware, be requested to publish this notice for three weeks in their respective papers, and that the ministers of the Gospel, of the different denominations, be also requested to read this notice a few times in their several congregations.

By order of the board,
P. B. HOPPER, President. of Q. A. C. T. Society.

New Improved Patent THRESHING MACHINE.

THE SUBSCRIBERS having purchased the right of the Eastern Shore of Maryland of S. S. Allen's Improved Threshing Machine, respectfully ask the public to suspend the purchase of any machine until they shall have an opportunity of seeing them, as they think it will give more general satisfaction than any thing of the sort yet offered to the public, as regards its thrashing, cheapness and convenience. It thrashes rapidly with one horse, and requires but two for any speed, and is completely portable, that the whole ready for use may be easily taken from barn to barn in a light wagon with one horse, and with the improved Crave and Hopper, and Wind Mill is an excellent machine for getting out chaff seed.

$500 REWARD.

Alexander Larimore, a tenant of mine, lost a new house which has not been built more than three months past, on account of the death of his wife, and by and with my consent, on the 19th inst. which was on Saturday. On the next day, I visited the house late in the evening, and could not discover any fire in the house. On Monday, late in the evening the house was discovered to be on fire, and soon consumed, with a large portion of the poor man, Larimore's moveables in it. I have made every inquiry of the people who left the house on Saturday morning, say five in number, and they all declare that previous to leaving the house, Mrs. Betsey Larimore put water on the fire in the hearth and extinguished every spark.

Now taking all the circumstances connected with the case into consideration, viz: the fact of there being scarcely any fire on the hearth, and no wood at the time of pouring water on it. Also, the fact of its raining all that day, and night after leaving the house, with the fact of my visiting the house, and making an examination on the evening of the following day, and finding no fire in or about the house. I say taking all these circumstances connected together, it is manifest without the least shadow of doubt, that my house was set on fire by some incendiary or incendiaries. I will give the above reward to any person or persons who will detect the villainous incendiary or incendiaries, with such proof as may lead to their conviction in any court of justice. I will only add, that I suffered a severe loss in the month of April last on this same farm, by having several of my best work oxen drowned, and killed otherwise by some villain or villains. It was then reported that my oxen jumped into a deep creek and drowned themselves. I may now be reported with the same propriety that my house has jumped into the fire and consumed itself, and poor Larimore's household goods.
