Under this the couple stood during the marriage ceremony. A wedding chorus was sung by a quartet composed of Mrs. Edward C. Fulton, Miss Maria Louise Ellegood, Mr. Edgar C. Laws and Mr. Raymond K. Truitt. Miss Clara Walton played Mendelssohn's "Spring Song."

OF VITAL INTEREST TO EVERY CITIZEN.

MR. C. D. TAYLOR,
CLERK BOARD OF HEALTH SAYS
PE-RE-NA HAS BECOME THE FAMILY MEDICINE OF THE WORKING PEOPLE IN HIS CITY.

Mr. C. D. Taylor has been Clerk of the City Board of Health, Jacksonville, Fla., for ten years, which position has afforded him ample opportunity for noting the best means of preventing and curing disease.

He expresses his approval of the use of Peruna as the most effective means of solving a problem of such vital interest to the community in the following letter:

"The health of the poor of a large city is always a question of vital interest, not only to the city officials but to every citizen. It has been a source of much satisfaction to me to find that so large a number of working people in moderate circumstances have accepted Peruna as their family medicine. It has cured a large number of cases especially of catarrh of the head, lungs and stomach and building up the general health it cannot fail but prove a help and blessing to any community where it is generally adopted and used. I have found it an honest, reliable remedy and am pleased to endorse it."—C. D. Taylor.

LOVELY—BEAUTIFUL.

Charming, And Many Like Expressive And Appreciative Remarks Encircle The Fall Exhibition At Representative Salisbury Millinery Stores This Season.

Those lovely top creations for which Salisbury is famous over a large area, are now in full bloom at the large millinery establishments in this city.

Every variety of the most charming styles, fresh from the choicest supply houses in the country, selected after weeks of expert connoisseurship over the acknowledged Fashion Empires, now bunched plentifully and lavishly in all the millinery stores of Salisbury, conceding the fashion emporium of the Eastern Shore. No need to look elsewhere for your hat. The best, most pleasingly and artistically trimmed feminine head gear can be obtained quickly and conveniently here now in ample time for your fall requirements. Among some of the feature hats exhibited were as:

R. E. Powell & Co.

Child's white hat made of felt, silk and applique, felt and applique forming the top trim, shirred silk facing with a large taupe crown of silk trimmed in a large bow of white ribbon.

Lavender hat made of velvet and silk braid facing and trimmed high from the back with roses and ribbon filling in through the back making a very pretty hat.

Another very nobby little hat, a black beaver trimmed from the side with three tips and a large shell buckle forming the side trimmings, gold braid around crown with a large bow at side.

Mrs. G. W. Taylor.

A sailor shape hat, made of green plaid silk, trimmed in velvet and quills, steel dagger extending from front to back, large bow on side, back band, completed a very striking model.

A turban made and trimmed entirely of Peacock breasts with the owl head to match made a charming and effective hat.

A plum beaver in the continental shape trimmed in shaded plumes to match with cut steel ornaments and trimmed high in back.

A silver grey hat, made from the soft finish beaver and running into gun metal tones and put in many kinks and turns, trimmed stylish in the two toned wings with large chiffon bow across back, makes the leading hat of the season both in shape and color.

At Lowenthal's.

Lowenthal's display of hats and bonnets was a brilliant display. Every color imaginable was shown in hats, this being what is called, in millinery, a colored season. Plum and Olive greens, in varied hues predominate whilst greys, Alice blues and black follow.

Among the most notable hats was a plum colored chiffon velvet, backed with plum shaded dahlias and foliage, and a long white plume gracefully sweeping over the side.

Another was a hat entirely made of shaded feathers, shading from the Alice Blue to the navy, finished with a large blue velvet bow and steel ornaments.

A child's light blue silk poke attracted much attention. It was an elaborate affair, made of small ruffles of the silk, with blue chiffon facing, and blue Paille ribbon.

Birkhead—Shockey Co.

Birkhead—Shockey Co., while they had no millinery to display, made a great showing on dress goods, silk and fancy goods. Fashion found some favorable fabrics, some of the most stunning weaves of shadow checks in green and blue, green and black, green and red and etc. Plain cloths, blue myrtle and black were most favored.

The west window was beautifully decorated with shoes of the finest type, including the famous Walk-over for men, the Mary Stewart and American Girl, the shoe as good as its name, for ladies. The resources of their immense stock merits your investigation.

It will be too late to propose some other remedy for the evil after the opposition to any remedy is augmented by thousands of additional negroes.

Report Of Grand Jury On County Property.

The report of the Grand Jury for the September Term on the condition of the county's public institutions says:—
"We made a thorough inspection of the jail and found it in good condition with the exception of two of the windows, which need attention. We think the present keeper deserving of praise for the manner in which the building is kept. We found the court house in good condition after undergoing the recent needed repairs."

Report on Almshouse as follows:—
"Found the premises and buildings in satisfactory condition, and the inmates properly cared for. There are 14 inmates, 6 white men and 4 white women, one colored man and 3 colored women, all of whom seem to be having proper care and attention."

TELLING AMENDMENT ARGUMENTS FOR WHITE PEOPLE

No Hope Of Negro Aid Or Of Those Holding Office Through Negro Votes In Passing Suffrage Act. White Men Should Be Up And Doing To Win.

We respectfully submit for your candid consideration the following reasons why you should adopt the proposed amendment to the Constitution. We cannot, by any means, hope to convince the black voters, nor those who are holding or seeking office by the aid of negro votes; but we appeal to all who are interested in the peace, order and good government of our State, in the material interests of our people and in the safety of our families, to unite in this effort to elevate the electorate of Maryland.

White Mechanics And Laborers Should Support The Amendment.

States south of us having deprived negroes of the right to vote, the negroes are moving to States where they can vote as rapidly as they can find employment. Our registration books show that they are already moving into our State. If we adopt this amendment this moving horde of Southern blacks will cross Maryland into Ohio or Pennsylvania; but if we defeat it and thereby offer negroes political equality with whites as well as offer them the hope of employment, we shall attract such swarms of Southern negroes, who have been accustomed to work for low wages, as will prove a serious menace to the peace and good order of the State, as well as to the welfare of our laborers and mechanics.

Business Men Should Support The Amendment.

The prosperity of our merchants and manufacturers and other business men depends largely upon our Southern trade. It is to the South that we look, and must look, for purchasers for the products of our factories and the goods of our merchants.

The Southern people buy in Baltimore largely because they look upon Maryland as a Southern State. The entire South, from Texas to Virginia, has declared for white supremacy. If we declare against white supremacy and thereby ally ourselves with the radical element of the North on this question; if we arrogate to ourselves, a political wisdom superior to our Southern customers, and by our action condemn their position, we may to a great extent destroy that friendly feeling upon which our Southern trade so largely depends.

Adoption Of The Amendment Conductive To Good Order.

Experience shows that the negro grows more insolent and lawless when a party is in power by means of negro votes; he feels his importance and, in some extent, feels that he will be protected in doing as he pleases.

The adoption of this amendment will not only check the influx of blacks from the South, but, by establishing white supremacy, will make the negroes who are here less insolent and render our homes and firesides more secure.

Objections To The Amendment Answered.

It has been objected that a provision of the amendment gives the officers of registration a discretion which they may abuse. It is claimed that they may arbitrarily refuse registration to persons entitled to vote. It ought to be a sufficient answer to state that the officers of registration who are to exercise this discretion, will be elected by Supervisors of Election appointed by Governor Warfield.

The result of the actual working of this identical provision in our sister State of Virginia is also valuable on this point. Paragraph 4 of Section 19 of Article 11 of the Constitution of Virginia is as follows:

"Fourth—A person able to read any section of this Constitution submitted to him by the officers of registration and to give a reasonable explanation of the same; or, if unable to read such section, able to understand and give a reasonable explanation thereof when read to him by the officers."

A general registration has taken place under this provision, under which the bulk of the negroes failed to register; but there was no complaint from any white man that the officers of registration abused the discretion reposed in them.

Again it has been objected that the adoption of this amendment, by cutting off the ignorant negro vote, would interpose the present leaders of the Democratic party in power.

This objection is completely answered by the result of the recent primaries in Baltimore, which proves that the primaries are controlled by the rank and file of the party.

Every voter now has a fair show in the primary, and no leader can exist longer than his course is approved by a majority of the voters. Moreover, with white supremacy established and the fear of negro domination removed, voters will more readily vote against their party when they disapprove its course.

The Democratic party has proposed this amendment, but its adoption will not benefit that party any longer than its course is approved by a majority of the white people of Maryland.

Adoption Of The Amendment Our Only Relief From The Evil.

Let no one fail to vote for this amendment upon the idea that we can hereafter disfranchise the negroes by some other provision. Those who say, "Let us defeat this amendment and afterward adopt a better," are, consciously or unconsciously, playing into the hands of those who do not want any restriction of the negro vote.

No one expects the Republican party to propose any measure to restrict negro suffrage. The proposed amendment is the most effective remedy which the wisdom of the Democratic party could suggest that would stand the test of the Federal courts, and is proposed in fulfillment of the promise made by that party two years ago.

We have no choice now between this measure and some other. Anyone who votes against this amendment will be voting in favor of unrestricted negro suffrage, with all its evil consequences. This is the only opportunity we now have to remedy the evil. If we fail to adopt this amendment we may never be able to adopt any; and, with the vast amount of work on the sewers and other public improvements in Baltimore to attract swarms of Southern negroes, we shall soon see Maryland, like West Virginia, hopelessly in the control of the black man's party.

Then the negroes will hold the balance of power—not the independents. It will be too late to propose some other remedy for the evil after the opposition to any remedy is augmented by thousands of additional negroes.

A FOOTBALL SEASON

To Be Inaugurated At Salisbury This Fall By Eastern Shore College. First Game Friday With Wilmington Conference Academy.

Realizing that in the Wilmington Conference Academy Football Team that they will have opponents of no small ability the management of the Eastern Shore College Football Team are doing everything possible to put the team in shape for the opening contest of the season. Friday, October 13th. Under the efficient management of Coach Jackson great progress is being made and the defenders of the Blue and Gold are looked to to put up a contest that will make Captain Banks and his men "hustle from kick off to touch down. Captain Banks of the W. C. A. football team is a Wilcox county boy and his prowess as a football player is well known in this section. The team is very swift and is also several pounds on the average heavier than the Eastern Shore team, but notwithstanding, the Salisbury boys expect to put up a game that will not be soon forgotten in the local sporting world. Much to the chagrin of the supporters of the team, it was definitely announced Monday that Trussell would be out of the game the entire season, thus robbing the E. S. C. of a very swift and valuable man. At left end, Robertson, the veteran half back of last year, will be in his accustomed place back of the line as will be Ward at center and Winbrow at right end. The boys are working hard and a very swift eleven is assured. A squad of about 30 men now report for work daily on the Athletic grounds in South Salisbury and the practice is satisfactory.

The squad now includes, Simms, Winbrow, Waller, Smith, Hastings, Robertson, Taylor, C. Hill, Bethke, Ward, G. Hill, Fooks, Phillip, Disharoon and several others.

The schedule now has three open dates, but before the end of the week Coach Jackson expects to fill them. The largest game of the season will be played in Salisbury, Thanksgiving Day with Washington College of Chestertown, Md.

REPUBLICANS TO BLAME

For-Over-More. If Amendment Should Fail And Maryland Remain In Political Paralysis Thralldom. Gov. Jackson's Speech Endorsed.

Messrs. Editors Advertiser:—
A word or two. If you please, relative to the very sensible and impressive speech of Ex-Gov. E. E. Jackson, as we have it in last week's issue.

The history of the world proves that every people, tribe, race and nation that has ever appeared upon the earth has had to win, by force of virtue and merit, political and social position and prestige and that the accidental, unwon and unmerited attainment of high and responsible positions and privileges proved disastrous and temporary, resulting in a precarious and demoralized return of the unprepared, incapable and unfit to their normal and legitimate position in the world.

Will any one come forward and assert that the colored race won by merit, the right to the privileges of the franchise, or was in any respect, prepared for them? Hardly. It is now the consensus of opinion that the adoption of the fifteenth amendment was premature and a great mistake. The Poe amendment is simply an effort to neutralize, as far as possible the evil effects of the error. Please step forward, ye wise sages, statesmen, philosophers, theologians and assert that it is wrong to try to undo a mistake, correct an error.

Should we trust the safety of the old "Ship of State" with these who acknowledge the error, but refuse to correct it, or manifest any desire or interest in, to correct it, but on the contrary, boldly and defiantly defend it? To what shall we attribute the apparently a pathetic indifference of Maryland, face to face with an issue, fraught with the gravest and most vital significance touching the future welfare and happiness of the State.

We believe that, under this apparently calm and unperturbed exterior, there are active celebration and cogitation, processes that will exhibit at the proper time that Maryland is not dead nor indifferent to the importance of the situation, nor the dearest interests of the State. We cannot believe that Maryland will let pass, unheeded, the opportunity to make it plain to the world, that she is alive to the fact that lowering the standard of citizenship is not the most effective way to promote the interests and advance the cause of the Caucasian race.

History further proves that superior and inferior races cannot be mixed without lowering the moral, intellectual and spiritual status of the nation. Common sense teaches that, it is irrefutable and undeniable. This being granted, what shall be said of the champions of the fifteenth amendment? Are they the real friends of the State and the white man's child? The colored man is not to be blamed for taking all that legitimately belongs to him, but I can see no reason why he should be bound to the wheels of the chariot of progress neither can I see that the individual who thus binds him, and insists upon keeping him there, is the safest individual to trust with the helm of the ship of the State. It seems to us he exhibits too great a degree of myopia to be trusted to steer us safely through the storms and fogs of threatening disasters to the haven of rest. The individual who suffers partisanship to blind him to the importance of the issue and opportunity to assist in raising the standard of the citizenship of the state, cannot be regarded as the true friend of the best interests of the State. This is cold logic that cannot be brushed aside. All the talk we hear about cutting off the vote of the white man, the handling the state over to thieves and thugs, is so much bomb and buncombe, and a reflection upon the fair escutcheon of the state.

FREE TRAINING OF NURSES

Young Women of Small Towns and Country Districts To Be Favored.

By the terms of a fund to be administered in connection with the Philadelphia School for Nurses. Witherspoon Building, Philadelphia, a number of young women from every county will receive free training in Nursing. It is planned to ultimately reach and help in this way every village and township.

The young women will be provided with room, board, nurse uniforms and the refinements of a well appointed Christian home. At graduation the diploma of the School and the Order of the Red Cross will be conferred, qualifying for practice in any State or country; the railroad fare will then be paid back home.

Those applying and chosen to receive the benefits of this fund will be given two years' training, with a rich experience in nursing the sick poor of the city under skilled leaders. The term may be shortened to eighteen months by taking a preliminary course of six months' reading and study at home. A special short course enables young women to quickly qualify themselves for self support and a substantial income.

In addition to regular nursing, the young women are taught how to preserve their own health; how to recognize, avoid and destroy contagion;
how to establish and maintain perfect sanitary conditions about the home;
they are prepared for positions as office nurse and physician's assistant;
they get a practical knowledge of City Mission movements, Deaconess training, College settlement work, and are trained for special positions of trust in institutions.

The School is ten years old and is endorsed by physicians, leading educators and prominent men throughout the country.

25 YEARS OF AGONY ENDED

Boston Business Man Cured By Cuticure of Awful Humor Covering Head, Neck, and Shoulders After Hospital and Doctors Failed.

Under date of September 9, 1904,
Mr. S. P. Keyes, a well-known business man of No. 149 Congress Street, Boston, Mass., says: "Cuticura did wonders for me. For twenty-five years I suffered agony from a terrible humor, completely covering my head, neck and shoulders, discharging matter of such offensiveness to sight and smell, that to my friends, and even to my wife, I became an object of dread. At large expense I considered the most able doctors far and near.
Their treatment was of no avail, nor was that of the hospital, during six months' efforts. I suffered on and concluded there was no help for me this side of the grave. Then I heard of some one who had been cured by Cuticura, and thought that a trial could do no harm. In a surprisingly short time I was completely cured."

itching, irritation, and inflammation, and soothe and heal; and, lastly, take

REPUBLICANS TO BLAME.

With the removal of the disturbing element from politics, there will be more independent and intelligent voting in this state than has ever been known. There will be a closer and more critical scrutiny of the record and character of the candidate and what he represents than ever before.
In this state. Will this not mean purer men, purer politics, purer homes and a purer political atmosphere throughout the state? Undoubtedly.
Who will dare to stand in the way of a realization of results so bright, so gratifying, so desirable, and so replete and buoyant with hope for the future?
The true friends of the state and progress will surely require of him who thus dares, a full reckoning.

But we doubt not for a moment, as to results. We can't believe Maryland capable of so egregious an error, as that of failing to seize the opportunity to exhibit to the world an intelligent appreciation of the true interests of the state and her obligations to posterity.

We don't believe for a moment, that apart from blind and heedless carterism that the champions of the fifteenth amendment would have the ghost of a chance. Shall it be said of Maryland that blighting, blasting, blatant carterism reigns supreme?
God forbid!

Mr. Jackson has put himself before the people on this question in a strong, plain, sensible and effective manner.
No one doubts his sincerity; he means what he says, and has spoken in the interests of the state and posterity, and, we believe, voices the sentiments of a large majority of the people.

In conclusion, we would ask, in all sincerity, the opponents of the Pse-amendment to inform us in what respect they even pretend to be promoting or advancing the interests of their State? We confess, after looking at the matter from every conceivable standpoint, an inability to find anything in their talk but buncombe.

What evolution will do for the colored race in the dim and distant vistas of the future, remains to be seen. We cannot foresee. But that the pseudo friends of the colored man have encouraged him to aspire to regions and spheres for which he is neither fitted by nature, nor intended by God, to occupy, not, at most, till evolution has prepared him for the assumption of greater things, if, perchance, extinction is not his doom, there is unanimity of opinion. The true friend of the colored man will advise him to remain in his God assigned sphere, until merit and superior place him in a higher one. His true friend will remind him that his wings are merely fastened to his body with wax and that, if he attempts to fly too high,
the sun will surely melt the wax, and that the fate of Icarus will fit athwart his vision.

When the colored man gets his eyes wide open to the fact that these pseudo friends: those individuals who sow the seeds of discord and discontent in his bosom and incite him to strife and contention with environment, superiors and neighbors, are his greatest enemies, he will quickly turn from them and will not be long in discovering the path that leads to plenty, content, harmony and true progress. He will see with unclouded vision his true position in the world, he will clearly see that the blighting hand of parasitism is upon him, and using him as the monkey uses the cat's paw.

In the ever upward, onward and ceaseless movement of evolution, may be read the destiny of all the races.
The worthy will prevail: the unfit will disappear. And this must needs be in obedience to the inexorable behests of nature.

A Helpless Child.

A weak and puny child is badly handicapped in the battle of life. It is isolated from the healthy enjoyments of its little fellow-beings. It cannot partake either of their play or their sturdy work and progress in the world: its whole life is embittered by incapacity and weakness.

Any woman who expects to become a mother ought to know what Dr.
Pierce's Favorite Prescription will do both for her own health and safety during her time of trial and also to insure her in bequeathing a fair measure of health and strength to the prospective little one.

LOCAL NEWS

Mrs. A. J. Connolly is in Baltimore
this week purchasing fall goods.

The gasoline steamer Worcester, has been on the railway several days and made some changes and improvements, by which it is expected to increase her speed and power. The location of the engine has been changed and other things done with a view of making her better in every way.

Work on the rebuilding of the M.
E. Church is progressing very rapidly. Contractor W. D. Gravenor & Bro. are pushing the work forward with a large force of mechanics.

B. H. Phillips is spending this week in Salisbury as Juror on Pettit Jury.

The steamer, Titavia, is now on the Nanticoke in place of the Enoch Pratt.

Miss Myra Wilson, of Newport News is visiting Rev. and Mrs. J. H. Wilson.

More phosphate for wheat is going in the country from here than for some time.

Dr. F. J. Townsend is again circulating among his many friends here.

New corn is now on our market at a bringing fifty cents per bushel.

Very few squirrels in this section.

Dogs have been quite annoying in town at night. They bark, yelp, howl, growl and indulge in many other modulations. They have made several attacks, but fortunately for the dogs
the pistols had been left at home.
Some time in the near future these nocturnal peace breakers will come to a premature departure.

The schooner, Capt. George Higgins collided with the schooner N. H. Burrow, up York river last week and had one mast carried away and her hull damaged. It is reported that the Burrows was at anchor with sails up, which hid the lights. The Walter is controlled by S. J. Cooper & Co., managing owners and largest owners
here.

TIME SAVED BY TELEPHONE.

Means A Great Saving Of Time To The Progressive Farmer.

Perhaps the most serious problem which confronts the American farmer today is the saving of time, the crowding of more than ever into a given period. It is with a view of solving this problem that every up to date farmer is continually buying the latest improved farm implements and labor saving devices for tilling the soil.

As a means of saving time, we ask you, if you are a farmer, if you could employ any quicker or cheaper method that to install a telephone in your farm house? Have you ever stopped to consider how much time you could save by the use of the telephone?
Do you know that you could transact your business with your shipping agent, your bank, your lawyer, and keep in touch with the latest market quotations on farm products generally if you had a telephone in your home?

a trip to your shipping point would take you at least a half a day. If the market was poor when you got there and you did not make the shipment you would lose a half day's time. A telephone would have done the job in a few seconds and saved you an unnecessary trip.

The hurry call for the doctor or veterinary, the purchase and repair of farm implements, the employment of help, the social chats with your neighbor and the protection to your wife and family while you are away from home should be sufficient reason to impress every farmer with the need of a telephone. The telephone in the farm house offers the most perfect combination of life, fire, accident and health insurance, and a telephone in your farm house is a better protection against danger from lightning than the best lightning rod manufactured.

The reduced rates of the Diamond
State Telephone Company bring this service easily within your reach and if you will write the Contract Department, Salisbury, Md., our representative will call and quote a rate to suit your conditions. No matter where you live, we are prepared to bring this service to you at a nominal cost.

Deafness Cannot Be Cured.

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear.
There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing and when it is entirely closed Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation cause can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever;
nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars catarrh, that cannot be cured by

A few doses of this remedy will invariably cure an ordinary attack of diarrhea. It has been used in nine epidemics of dysentery with perfect success. It can always be depended upon, even in the more severe attacks of cramp colic and cholera morbus. It is equally successful for summer diarrhea and cholera infantum in children, and is the means of saving the lives of many children each year. When reduced with water and sweetened it is pleasant to take. Every member of a family should keep this remedy in his home. Buy it now. It may save life.

The Cause of Many Sudden Deaths.

There is a disease prevailing in this country most dangerous because so deceptive. Many sudden deaths are caused by it—heart disease, pneumonia, heart failure or apoplexy are often the result of kidney disease. If kidney trouble is allowed to advance the kidney-poisoned blood will attack the vital organs, causing catarrh of the bladder, or the kidneys themselves break down and waste away cell by cell. Bladder troubles almost always result from a derangement of the kidneys and a cure is obtained quickest by a proper treatment of the kidneys. If you are feeling badly you can make no mistake in taking Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, the great kidney and bladder remedy. It corrects inability to hold urine and scalding pain in passing it, and overcomes that unpleasant necessity of being compelled to go often through the day, and to get up many times during the night. The mild and the extraordinary effect of Swamp-Root is soon realized. It stands the highest for its wonderful cures of the most distressing cases. Swamp-Root is pleasant to take and is sold by all druggists in fifty-cent and one-dollar size bottles. You may have a sample bottle of this wonderful new discovery and a book that tells all about it, both sent free by mail. Address, Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y. When writing mention reading this generous offer in this paper. Don't make any mistake, but remember the name, Swamp-Root, Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, and the address, Binghamton, N. Y., on every bottle.

What Does It Mean

to let Dividends "accumulate" on a Life Insurance Policy? In many companies it means nothing more than an agreement on the part of the policy-holder, to do without dividends for fifteen or twenty years, and then take whatever dividend the company will be willing to give. Dividends are declared every year in the Mutual Benefit, and the policyholders use them either to help pay premiums or to buy increased insurance. The policies of the

PLANTING TREES.

Best Results When Soil, Location and Drainage Are Considered.
First in importance in planting trees is the right selection of the soil best adapted to the kinds to be planted. For apple, pear and plum trees the clay or heavy loams are desirable and preferable, but they will thrive and produce excellent fruit on higher or sandy loams.
For grapes, a shade composed of rock that readily disintegrates is ideal. An abundance of potash is necessary for fruit trees, and the clay or heavy loam soils are generally better supplied with this element of plant food than the lighter or sandy soils.
Then, too, these soils, being of a finer formation of grains, carry more moisture, and hence stand drought better. The lighter or sandy soils however, may be made to produce excellent fruit by a somewhat different system of management, as by the frequent plowing in of green crops, such as clover and peas, and by extra fertilization.

Methods of Propagating Trees.

1. To conserve moisture.
2. In location, orchards select elevated positions. On level land little choice may be had, but in selections that are hilly or rolling, choose the higher places. For this there are several reasons.
3. Natural drainage is generally good, and the expense of under-draining is avoided. The temperature on an elevation is several degrees higher in cold or frosty weather than in a valley sometimes as many as ten or fifteen degrees.
4. During late spring and early autumn frosts the blossoms and tender young fruits are less liable to injury on the higher land. Cold air, being heavier than warm, will roll off and down from the hillside and settle in the valleys, as water will seek the lower levels.
5. Again, insects are less troublesome on high situations. They seek sheltered places. For these reasons, the selection of orchard sites need to be carefully studied and considered.
6. In planting orchards, the land should be prepared by a year of previous cultivation of a crop of corn or potatoes, which require thorough tillage. This puts the soil in good condition for trees, so that their roots may be able to push out readily in all directions, and advances growth materially the first year.
7. No. 1 is the illustration shows a seedling tree with a bud of the desired variety inserted in August at the cross line. The top of the tree is cut off the following spring when the bud grows and makes the tree.
8. The cross lines in tree No. 2 indicate where the branches should be pruned when the tree is planted. No. 3 represents the same tree at two years of age and where it should be pruned when planted.
9. The lines at the base of the trees show the depth to which they should be planted.
10. No. 4 shows a peach tree one year old as received from the nursery, and No. 5 the tree properly pruned for planting.
11. Grafting is done by cutting off the top of the tree and inserting scions, as illustrated in No. 6. This process may be used in grafting trees at two or more years of age as indicated by the cross line in No. 3.
12. The soil should be frequently stirred about the trees to keep them growing. When they are planted in sod and are left to a contest with grass and weeds for existence, many fail to grow or to produce any fruit.

Care in Manuring.

It is easier to spoil a hot bed by the use of too much manure than with not enough. One must also judge the condition of the manure at the time it goes into the bed. As a rule it is best to pile it into a heap and when it becomes good and hot, work it all over into another pile and a day or two repeat the operation. When treated in this way, so as to be thoroughly hot all the way through, about fifteen inches tramped down is sufficient. On this should be placed from four to six inches of rich mellow earth free from weed seeds.

A Good Strawberry.

A very good and promising medium early strawberry is the Louis Hubach. The fruit is above medium size, flattened occasionally but usually conical and dark crimson color. The flesh is red, firm, acid but good. The plants are good growers, clean, strong and healthy. The flowers are imperfect.

PROPERTIES OF LIQUID AIR.

Ultimate Developments May Not Be Safely Predicted—in its Infancy. Any one who has ever attended a popular lecture in chemistry or physics knows how entertaining and all of surprise the disclosures may be made by a few simple and ingenious experiments. It is under such conditions that liquid air is introduced to a surprising throng of people. This much discussed scientific marvel of the age is used to perform a series of most attractive experiments, even the most extraordinary. To see a glass ball dipped into it and thrown to the floor only to crash like glass, or a small fragment to see a liquid air experiment, is a most interesting sight. ## Prisoner in His Own House.

A French count was kept prisoner in his own house in Paris for three years. His jailers were his two servants, who wanted his property. The nobleman is Count de Sancerre, a servant was an old man and his wife, who had been in the count's service for 20 years. When the police broke into the house a few days ago they found the count and the two servants. The count declared that the couple had kept him in a constant state of terror and had prevented him from leaving the place. They had further compelled him to take doses of ether and make out a will leaving to them the whole of his property, the estimated value of which is over $300,000.

Napoleon's Stuffed Horse.

The stuffed horse of Napoleon I, formerly preserved in the Imperial Museum, but long since lost sight of, has been found hidden away in the national storerooms. The coat is white, with brown spots here and there, and on the thigh is branded the letter "N." surrounded with the Imperial crown. This most interesting relic was presented to the government of the Second Empire by the Natural History Society of Manchester.

FERRET THAT LIKES MUSIC.

Entertaining House Pet that Dances and Plays to Music. Warren Sholey, a young son of Dr. O. C. Sholey, of Independence, is the possessor of a full grown ferret, a present from some one in Kansas. The animal has the appearance of an elongated white rat with a kitten's tail, and is not only thoroughly domesticated, but is about the most entertaining house pet imaginable. It plays with a string like a kitten and is very fond of music, dancing in a kangaroo sort of fashion when its young master whistles a lively tune. It seems especially fond of a zither owned by Master Sholey, and never seems quite as well satisfied when resting its long, pinkish body across this instrument and scratching with its claws. In addition to being a tame pet, the ferret is sure death to rats and mice, and is able to kill any dog that attacks it. Its method of protecting itself being to fasten its needle-like teeth in the dog's throat and then to cling there until it has sucked away the animal's life blood. Master Sholey's pet, however, seems friendly enough to his big shepherd dog, the two playing together in perfect comradeship.—Kansas City Journal.

Cost of King Edward's Coronation.

The cost of the coronation of King Edward VII, details of which were recently published, establishes a record for modern times. It was considered, until recently, a lordly and magnificent thing for the subjects of George IV, to spend £238,238 in putting a crown on his head, but we have eclipsed their lavishness by £121,000. William IV, and Queen Adelaide were content with a modest £50,000. It is not easy, says the London Chronicle, to understand in what King Edward's £359,000 was sunk, not so easy, at least, as in the case of George IV.—a sumptuous record of whose coronation proved too costly to finish. The part which did appear contained seventy-three colored drawings, "finished like enamels, on velvet and white satin." Each portrait cost fifty guineas. A different spirit animated Earl Grey, when defending the ministry from a charge of unseemly mutilations in regard to King William's coronation. "It was the hope of the king and the ministers," he said, "to prevent a heavy burden from falling on the people."

Destiny of a Waitcoat.

The easy-going Harvard undergraduate, left to himself on questions of dress, will understand the misery of his counterpart at Oxford. When the exam period approached a week or so ago, those in power issued an edict prescribing the dress to be worn in the examination room to include a black coat and a black waistcoat, in addition to the white tie and the gown. The British public itself was appalled at such Puritan severity. It was the black waistcoat, a thing that all civilization is allowed to doff in summer, that incited rebellion. Why, a man's chances in life might be impaired because the warmth of a waistcoat, gratuitously imposed upon him, preventing him from doing full justice to his views on the synthetic unity of appreciation? It might ruin a state.—Boston Transcript.

Nervous Women

Their Sufferings Are Usually Due to Uterine Disorders Perhaps Unsuspected

A MEDICINE THAT CURES

Can we dispute the well-known fact that American women are nervous? How often do we hear the expression, "I am so nervous, it seems as if I should fly," or, "I don't speak to me." Little things annoy you and make you irritable; you can't sleep, you are unable to quietly and calmly perform your daily tasks or care for your children.

The relation of the nerves and generative organs in women is so close that nine-tenths of the nervous prostration, nervous debility, the blues, sleeplessness and nervous irritability arise from some derangement of the organs which places her woman in a state of depression or restlessness and irritability. Spirits easily affected, so that one minute she laughs, the next minute weeps. Pain in the ovaries and between the shoulders. Loss of voice, nervous dyspepsia. A tendency to cry at the least provocation. All this points to nervous prostration.

Nothing will relieve this distressing condition and prevent months of prostration and suffering so surely as Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Mrs. M. E. Rowell, of 109 Flatbush Avenue, Brooklyn, N. Y., writes: "I have experienced the wonderful relief I have obtained by taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I suffered for a long time from nervous prostration, headache, loss of appetite, I could not sleep and would walk the floor almost every night."

"I had three doctors and got no better, and life was a burden. I was advised to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and it has worked wonders for me. I am a well woman, my nervousness is gone and my friends say I look ten years younger."

Will not the volumes of letters from women made strong by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound convince all women of its virtues? Surely you cannot wish to remain sick and weak, and discouraged, exhausted each day, when you can be so easily cured as other women.

There Is Money In Growing GINSENG

PROF. W. L. HOWARD, of the Missouri State Agricultural College, says: "I advise American farmers to cultivate Ginseng. Big profits may be realized. It is a hearty plant and is easily grown." A recent bulletin issued by the Pennsylvania State Agricultural College in part says: "The supply of native Ginseng root is continually diminishing, and the price per pound is correspondingly increasing, while the demand for the drug in China stands as a guarantee of a steady market for Ginseng in the future. The market for our cultivated root will exist as long as the Chinese exist." Consul-General W. A. Rublee, of Hong Kong, says, in the U. S. Consular reports: "The sale of Ginseng root grown in America is very large here, and the demand is so great that much more could be disposed of advantageously. The root is as indispensable to the 400,000,000 Chinese as is their rice."

Ginseng is a staple on the market the same as corn, wheat and cotton. The present market price varies from $5 to $8 per pound, according to quality, while the cost of production does not exceed $1.50 per pound. There is room in an ordinary garden for several hundred dollars' worth each year. The plant is hardy and thrives in all parts of the United States and Canada, except in the arid regions. We are successful growers and can show you how to make money growing Ginseng. You can get a good start in the business for a small outlay, and soon have a comfortable home. We have several choice roots for sale for fall delivery. The planting season begins in August and continues till the ground is frozen. Write us today for further particulars.

FOOD VALUE OF MILK.

Contains Much Digestive Nutrients and is Cheaper Than Beef.
There are scores of users of milk who do not consider its comparative value as food. Touching this matter the American Dairyman gives some facts that will interest many. He says:

"Comparatively few use whole milk as a regular diet. If we use it, we do not do so as freely as its nutritive values and its cheapness warrant. We are content that the infant and the sick shall have it freely; but we are prone to look upon milk as a luxury for the well. This is a great mistake. It is the cheapest food found for pound that can be used.

It contains all of the nutritive ingredients needed for food, and they are about in the right proportions for proper nutrition. These nutrients are easily and completely digested. If these facts were properly appreciated, the consumption of milk would be doubled; for it is a complete and perfect food and is very economical.

It will surprise the majority of people when they are told, that one quart of milk contains as much digestible nutrients as are contained in any one of the following:

In 1 pound of beef chuck,
In 1 pound of fowl,
In 1 pound of veal shoulder,
In 1/2 pound of beef loin,
In 1/2 pound of beef ribs,
In 1/2 pound of mutton leg,
In 9 ounces of beef round,
In 9 ounces of veal cutlets,
In 9 ounces of veal loin,
In 2 pounds five ounces of solid oysters.

It takes 2 pounds 5 ounces of bluefish, or 1 pound 5 ounces of potatoes to equal 1 quart of whole milk in digestible nutrient value.

Cream Hard to Churn.
An experienced dairyman in the London Dairy refers to the trouble experienced often in churning.

In many cheese and butter dairies there are at the present time a few staid cows—animals which have been in milk for a long time, and have not dried off in early winter at the end of the milking season. After supplying the household with milk, the making of butter naturally suggests itself as a means of utilizing the surplus. Unfortunately this kind of milk and cream at this time of the year is particularly difficult to handle. One may churn for hours without getting the butter to come, and the dairy maid is at her wits' end to know what to do.

There are several ways of meeting the difficulty. One of the best is to see that the cream is properly ripened (at the kitchen fire if no other place is available); that the churning is done at least twice a week, and that probably a "starter" will be required, and would help. Another matter is to introduce one or two freshly calved cows into the herd, if this can be conveniently done. The putting of fresh cream from those along with the other assists in breaking and gathering of the butter, and sometimes cures the difficulty.

The cream from newly calved cows always seem to be more easily made into butter, possibly because the fat globules are larger and more easily "broken" than the smaller ones from cows which have been a long time in use.

Growing Currants.
In the propagation of the currant the writer has succeeded in getting plants that have increased the yield from an average of three quarts to sixteen quarts to the bush.

The birth of Niagara occurred at the close of the last glacial period. This ice invasion marks the close of the tertiary and the opening of the quaternary era of geologic time. For years it has been a matter of controversy whether primitive man existed on this continent in pre-glacial times. The advocates of tertiary man have hoped to find human remains or paleolithic implements beneath the till (rock debris deposited by the ice), but up to the present such relics have not been found in this position. Paleolithic implements have, however, been discovered in glacial gravels (till, later worked over by water). These deposits would be approximately of the same age as Niagara's gorge.

Man thus seems to have existed on this continent at least as long ago as the birth of Niagara falls. This, by an average estimate, we may put at some 20,000 or 25,000 years.

The present rate of waste of the banks he measured as over one-fourth of an inch a year, or a total of 610 cubic yards per mile. From this he estimated that 10,000 years would be required for the entire change of the banks since they were first left exposed to the action of the atmosphere by the recession of the falls.

In shooting, as in other sports, thorough luxuriousness is now regarded by modern shooters as a prime necessity of enjoyment. They have their leading dogs for them, their birds are driven to them and in greatly increased numbers, their luncheon hours are devoted to the best in many courses of food and wine, and they get home by motor as quickly as possible after shooting is over.

Coloring Used in Butter.
The substance called anatto, so extensively used by dairymen in coloring butter, is derived from the seeds of a Mexican plant. It is a purely vegetable product and does no harm nor does it do any good or add a whit to the value of the butter except as to looks and so far as this is concerned it might just as well be tinted with the juice of the table beet so as to look like pink ice cream and still be quite as acceptable to the palate.

NIAGARA'S PAST AND FUTURE.

What Geology Proves as to the Life of the Falls.

Str. Charles Lyell roughly estimated the time required to cut the seven-mile gorge at about 36,000 years. A survey was first made in 1842, and the exact position of the falls at that time was mapped. Later surveys were made at intervals down to 1890. The position of the Horseshoe Falls at the time of the different surveys is shown in the following sketch:

The average yearly recession for the American falls is 64 feet, that of the Horseshoe 2.18 feet. Thus we may assume that the mean recession of a cataract combining the volumes of both falls, such as existed throughout most of the period of excavation, would be at least three feet a year, and perhaps as much as four or five, says Prof. C. J. Maury in the New York Post.

The way in which the cataract recedes can be seen in both the American and Horseshoe falls today. This is shown in the accompanying sectional view of the Horseshoe falls taken from G. K. Gilbert's work.

The resistant Lockport or Niagara limestone (a) forms the cap. This is underlain by the softer Rochester or Niagara shale (b) which rests upon the harder Clinton limestones and shales (c). These overlie the soft Medina sandstones and shales (d) and (e). The pounding and rebound of the falling waters wear away the comparatively soft sandstone and shale from under the hard limestone cap and result in the formation of temporary caves of which the "Cave of the Winds" is an example. In the course of time the undermining progresses so far that the roof breaks down from lack of support. The crest line of the falls is then suddenly changed and the cave is in ruins. The fallen blocks are subsequently broken up by abrasion and the debris is carried away by the stream. Table Rock, which fell in June, 1850, was a striking example of the falling masses of rock.

After such a downfall the undermining process begins anew, and other caves are made and obliterated as the gorge grows upstream.

The difficulty. One of the best is to see that the cream is properly ripened (at the kitchen fire if no other place is available); that the churning is done at least twice a week, and that probably a "starter" will be required, and would help. Another matter is to introduce one or two freshly calved cows into the herd, if this can be conveniently done. ## THE LEVERIDGES.

"Three of a kind," said Mona Leveridge, gazing after her husband as he drove away from the doorway on his way to the station, to fetch Alina Register, her dearest friend, whom she had invited on a visit with a purpose.

She would have preferred her husband driving something quieter than those fiery chestnuts, but they were three of a kind, and perhaps the brutes understood their fiery master as well as he understood them.

For her own sake, as well as Alina's she wanted to "patch up that old affair." With Rafe Stillman at the other end of the globe it had mattered little. But with Rafe back home, her next door neighbor.

She had not married the last of the Leveridges unwarned. Prophecy had held up its ghastly finger, she would regret it. "The Leveridges were not as other men."

Across the long, sloping approach to his own outer gate, above the dusty gray highway, with its vivid border of bushes; into the twilight gloom of the forest growth that marked the boundary line between the Leveridge and the Stillman places, Leveridge guided his high-mettled team, pleasantly exhilarated by the spirited resistance to control manifested by his beautiful brutes.

Suddenly, with snorts of terror, they swerved, carrying the vehicle well out of the road. They had taken fright at a thoroughly commonplace object—an old man standing on the roadside innocently engaged in winding bits of twine about the saddle girth that had treacherously broken, leaving him dismounted from the horse that improved his opportunities by grazing. It was his own stableman. A fact which Leveridge recognized with a heavy outflow of temper.

"You infernal old idler, why are you not at work?"

The old man doffed his ragged hat deferentially.

"I told missus I didn't think I had time to go, but she say I must."

Leveridge leaned toward the old man with darkening eyes: "Go where?"

"Over to Miss Stillman's."

"For what?"

"To carry a letter."

"To Mrs. Stillman?"

"I don't know sir. Missus jus' give me this an' she say I won't wait for no answer."

With confiding frankness the old man extracted a note from the crown of his brimless hat, and put it into the hand eagerly stretched out for it.

It was addressed to Mr. Rafe Stillman. Leveridge turned it over with unsteady fingers. It was sealed with a looseness that invited treachery.

"I used to be accounted a gentleman," he snarled in an undertone—faltering a second, and in another one was in full possession of the contents of the hastily sealed envelope.

"Mr. Leveridge goes out this morning. You had better come over early if you want a good day with the snipe."

The address and the signature were brief to the point. "Mr. Stillman," and "M. T. Leveridge." Horace replaced the intercepted note in its envelope, and sat staring at it so long that his wife's messenger ventured to ask:

"Is you going to deliver it to Mr. Horace?"

"No." The man in the drag handed back the note. "You are to deliver it according to your mistress's orders. And, Munson—his voice was tense in its enforced composure—"you will go as fast as if the devil was pursuing your beast. Deliver that note and come back here to me. I, too, have a note for you to deliver. It's only a mile by the Cypress Walk. Five shillings if you are back here in half an hour; dismissal from the place if you are not."

"I'll be here, sir."

Leveridge straightened himself in the drag as the old man cantered out of sight. He had some few preparations to make. Of course, he should have to kill Stillman. As well then and there as at any other time. He laughed unpleasantly. It was odd he should have his gun under the seat of the drag. He had meant to leave it with the smith in town to be cleaned.

He tore a page from his pocket diary and wrote his courteous regrets that circumstances rendered it inconvenient for him to fetch Miss Register from the station.

"I have a little matter to settle with Mr. Stillman," he wrote, "that may interfere with his snipe shooting. Sorry to have spoiled your little plan for a pleasant day. Your pardon for a rather free interpretation of marital rights."

As old Munson reappeared, flushed and heated, but punctual, his master sprang from the drag and shook the reins impatiently toward him.

"You delivered the note to Mr. Stillman himself?"

"Yes, sir."

"Good. Here, you are to drive the beasts home. Let them cool off before watering them. After you have stabled them and rubbed them down, take this note up to the house and deliver it to Mrs. Leveridge."

The old man recoiled in terror. "Me drive thim devils home, sir?"

"You." The answer dropped like a stone, cold, hard, resolute.

Something was wrong. He could not puzzle it out. Something had put Mr. Horace into one of his "ways," and he would as soon be out of range of his fierce temper as not. But "if the good Lord spared him to get home with them four-footed devils," he was going right straight to his mistress and make a clean breast of it.

On one of her numerous trips to the terrace, Mona restlessly watchful for the coming of Rafe in time for her to prepare him for Alina's advent, saw the old man driving at a rate that bespoke something wrong. Every drop of blood had deserted her cheeks by the time the old man was near enough to be questioned.

"Where is Mr. Leveridge, Munson? Why are you driving the chestnut?"

"I left him back yonder at the cross roads, missus, and—"

"Doing what?"

"Just waitin', seemed like."

"Waiting for what?"

"I don't know missus. This poor old head of mine is all awirling with it. The Leveridge men-folks is surely hard to keep up with. Mebbe this will clear it up."

Mona seized the envelope he extended. In another moment Horace's biting words had scorched themselves upon her brain. She made a step forward, stopped and pressed her hands over her eyes in a paroxysm of physical terror. Could she do it? She must.

All bareheaded and ungloved as she was, she sprang into the drag and gathered the long reins in her slight, untrained hands. Munson, who had dismounted to deliver the note, sprang to the brutes' heads and laid a detaining grasp on their bridles.

"Missus, missus, what are you thinking of doing? They'll kill you, my sweet mistress. They is all froed out with excitement now. Don't leave the old man behind, missus."

She planted her little feet rigidly against the dashboard. Her dinner gown of shimmering silk glistened in the sunshine.

Doubtless they would kill her. She rather expected it, but she must reach the cross-roads first—before Rafe Stillman got there.

Horace Leveridge, standing face to face with the man whom he had pitilessly lashed into an agreement to settle the matters there and then, saw a glittering spectacle advancing upon them with the speed of a well-aimed arrow.

"Horace, my husband, are you mad? stop. Let me explain."

As she drew rein or tried to curb the excited animals he cast a bitter look at her.

"The time for explanations has gone, Mrs. Leveridge. Perhaps you may as well witness the consummation of your own work."

He lifted his gun resolutely to his shoulder. Stillman, resolutely grounded his. Murder was about to be committed before her eyes. With a strenuous turn of her delicate wrists, which left them powerless to further action, Mona brought the horses' heads about just in time to intercept the bullet aimed at Stillman's heart. It went crashing through the back of the vehicle. Leveridge had never once loosed his touch upon the trigger.

With wild snorts of terror the maddened chestnuts swerved and dashed out of sight. The reins fell from Mona's helpless hands. She sank to the bottom of the drag. Her destruction was a matter of mere minutes. Perhaps seconds. She felt strangely indifferent to everything. Only she wanted not to suffer very long.

Rescue was impossible, and she knew it. She opened her eyes and gazed heavenward, prayerfully. There was so much she would like to undo if she had time. She was not praying. There was no time left for prayer. A black-winged bird in a turquoise sky was the one object her falling senses grasped.

Perhaps, after all, she was escaping long, weary years of a hopeless struggle to adjust the unadjustable. How little it all mattered now! How far away, how small, how unreal the world, trouble, hope, disappointment. It was something like getting to the end of a tiresome story which presently she would forget all about.

The chestnuts paused for a second on the brook side. A violent downward plunge—space seemed suddenly to envelop their rushing feet. The world recoiled. The busy brain stopped like a rudely jarred watch spring. Two small, white hands were stretched desperately to grasp at something—anything.

The ashen tints of November enwrapped the woods where Horace Leveridge had invited his doom. Alina Register still lingered at Leveridge Hall a loving ministrant to its widowed mistress. But Rafe was waxing impatient. His must tell Nona that her wedding day was fixed. She knelt by her friend's bedside.

"Mona, you once said you had wronged me because Rafe's fancy strayed toward you, small blame to him, dear. How can I ever ask your pardon for all I have innocently brought upon you?"

Mona laid a silencing finger upon the girl's lips.

"It was not your fault. It was not mine. My poor Horace! I am glad he knew the truth before he turned his gun upon himself. My granite refused to be chiseled, Alina, although love held the chisel in a firm grasp. Perhaps, if I had not wearied in well doing it might all have come right in the end."

There were those who said—on hearing that in a paroxysm of remorse Horace Leveridge had taken his own life, supposing Mona dead—that the Lord must surely have repented him of ever creating the Leveridges, and the woman who thought she could mold them was either very presumptuous or very silly.

"But she is young," the kindly gossip said, "and heart-wounds heal quickly. Very quickly. Praise be to an all-wise Dispensation."—Illustrated Bita.

CURIOS LAUNDRY MARKS.

Methods Employed in Different Lands to Trace Washed Linen.

Strange and wonderful are the methods adopted by foreigners for identifying the contents of the wash-tub. In parts of eastern France the linen is defaced with the whole name and address of the laundry stamped upon it, says the St. Louis Globe-Democrat, and an additional geometrical design to indicate the owner. Complaint is useless, as in France the laundries have all-powerful unions which dictate to the residents.

In Bavaria every patron of the wash-tub has a number stamped in large characters on his linen. This system was devised by old-established laundries to prevent persons removing their customers to rival firms. In other parts of Germany a small cotton label is attached by a hot water proof adhesive.

In Bulgaria each laundry has a large number of stamps engraved with designs, such as triangles, crosses and so forth. These signs are stamped first on each article to be washed, and then in a book opposite the owner's name.

In Russia the laundries mark linen with threads worked in arrow shapes. By arranging each of half a dozen arrows horizontally, vertically, diagonally, and so on, hundreds of different combinations may be obtained.

Names marked on Russian linen are never written in the Russian alphabet, but almost invariably in Latin characters. This is a survival of the time when Russian dandies sent their linen for washing to Holland.

In some Russian towns the police periodically issue regulations for laundries. In Odessa books of marks are furnished annually to the laundry proprietors, and these marks and no others may be used. By this system criminals and revolutionary agitators are often traced.

In Greece small safety pins, each bearing a little plaque stamped with a number, are attached before, and removed after washing. The owner's mark is generally written in red indelible ink.

Country laundries in Austria mark each article in a patent ink which defies soap and water, but is removed by a bleaching powder before the goods are sent home.

Austrians of rank have their crests and coronets worked on their undergarments. A case was tried in the Viennese courts not long ago in which a swindling self-styled count had his linen marked with the initials and coronet of the Austrian premier, Count Goluchowski.

In Finland the laundry mark is made with light brown ink, leading strangers to believe that the mark has been scorched in with a heated stamp.

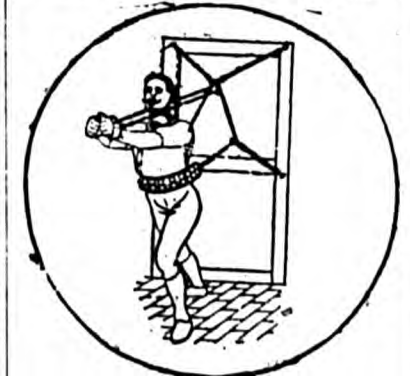

In Portugal each article washed bears three signs, the owner's name, his laundry mark and the laundry's own monogram, which appears most prominently. The laundry mark is a certain definite number of stitches which are left in after washing. Towels are marked with stencilled figures, often an inch long.

Servians have carried linen marks into the domain of high politics. After the murder of King Alexander the Obrenovitch party put black crosses after their names on their linen, whereupon the adherents of the new king retorted with his majesty's cipher.

In Egypt all Mohammedan laundries use a secret mark to distinguish the linen of "believers" and "infidel" garments. This mark is carefully removed before the linen is returned.—New York Sun.

Exercise and Massage.

An improvement in the exercising devices which are more or less familiar to all has been made by a French enthusiast and is being introduced into this country. It combines the functions of the exerciser and the masseur and is especially designed for those men who take up athletics with the idea of retaining their youthful proportions. Massage treatment has been recommended for recuperation, but it is not every one who cares to take the time and undergo the expense of a treatment of this kind. For these it will be seen at once how this apparatus, if persistently used, will not only be the means of calling into violent play the muscles of the arms, chest and legs, but at the same time, with every motion of the arms, the massage band will be drawn to and fro across the abdomen and will materially keep down the girth measurement and waist line.

Wash Your Ink Wells.

Keep your ink wells clean. Pour out the ink once a week and thoroughly wash the bottle in hot water. Then rub perfectly dry. If this is carefully attended to, the pens will wipe with a bit of camels after being used, you will cease to be peevish at your desk when you have a hurried note to write and find no worthy material to use.

than they've been for some time. To many dealers it means the selling of cheaper made clothing at regular prices, or the selling of their regular clothing at advanced prices. Lacy Thoroughgood is doing neither; he's selling his regular standard grades at regular prices, which means a smaller profit for him. That don't phase Thoroughgood, as he is not in business for a day, but for as long as he can carry it on by giving his customers honest value for their money. It's easy to dress well if money's no object, but it's not so easy to dress well at little cost. Realizing that most men want to dress well, in strictly high-class Fall and Winter garments, at moderate prices, Thoroughgood has given much thought to obtaining such apparel. My smart Sack Suits of single and double-breasted design leave nothing to be desired. Prices range from $10.00 to $18.00, with a large assortment of patterns in both single and double breasted styles at $15.00. ## HEBRON.

Messrs. G. C. Bonds, G. W. Holliday and L. P. Nelson made a business trip to Baltimore last week. They were also accompanied by a large number of their friends.

We are very glad to report Misses Willie Locates and Howard Gambrell much improved.

The Ladies Aid Society of the M. E. Church met at Mrs. S. J. Nelson's Tuesday night and it was largely attended.

We are very sorry to report Mr. Addison Lloyd, of Mardela, who works for the stove mill Company, got his hand badly sawed last Saturday.

Our school is very well attended this year and we hope our teachers may have a good success.

Our town is on the boom at the present time. There are lots of new buildings going up which will make our town look very much better.

A certain young man of this place got up a surprise party this week and when some of the gentlemen went to look for the party that got it up he was gone to bed so that wound up the surprise party. It was a very good joke indeed.

Mrs. Ella Nelson returned home Wednesday, after being away for some time at the mountains.

THE TOPIC OF THE DAY.

The Terrific Chasm-Vaulting Feet Of Alpha And Omega.

According to all accounts, The Frank A. Robbins Co. All New Great Feature Shows, which are to appear at Salisbury, Saturday, October 14th, are coming with a big special trainload of new strange and amazing breeding features, including, as one of the world's most marvelous, electrifying and hair raising novelties, the simultaneous rival feat of Alpha and Omega, in making a flying cycle leap of fifty feet across a broken thread like bicycle track. Some idea of the supreme sensation in store for all may be gained from the New York Evening Journal summary of this marvelous and daring performance, as follows:

Mounted upon bicycles of the ordinary safety pattern, and grasping the handle bars with a grip of steel, Alpha and Omega start from a platform forty five feet from the ground. Before them lies, at an incline of forty five degrees, a board path, less than three feet wide and a hundred feet in length, which at the bottom ends in a sharp upward curve, directly in line with and separated by a break of some fifty feet from another platform ten feet above the ground. A gentle shove from an attendant and they are off on a brief but fearsome journey, the ending of which no man, not even themselves, can foretell. Should their wheels swerve a single inch from the required direction, or they for the fraction of a second lose unflinching coolness, absolute perfection of control, concentration of instantaneous observation and supreme self-possession, deadly disaster rides with them. So rapidly do they gather speed in their furiously fleet descent that they flash like a misty streak across the sight, and almost in the twinkling of an eye have reached the summit of the curve referred to, and they and their wheels soar upward and headlong high in air. The momentum decreases until they seem to hover in space, then the bicycles dive downward and, directed by an instantaneous delicateness of manipulation, imperceptible to the dazed and dund-founded onlookers, land on the receiving platform, which their two wheels must strike at practically the same moment, as otherwise there would be a dreadful finish, right then and there. But seemingly superhuman nerve and skill have triumphed, and Alpha and Omega ride placidly down a gentle incline, after what might not inappropriately be termed a race with death.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR

Echoes Reported From Mardela. Very Joyous Occasion.

For some time the readers have seen the notice of the Christian Endeavor Institute which was held at Mardela, Methodist Protestant Church under the auspices of the members of the Christian Endeavor society of that church on last Wednesday, Thursday and Friday, October 4th, 5th and 6th. When the times had come for the institute the weather was perfect and continued so during the entire session.

Many meetings of a religious character have been held in and through the community of Mardela, but nothing has ever equaled the recent convention. A most interesting program had been arranged for the occasion and a great number participated in the services. The pastor of the church had made perfect arrangements for everything; homes for 150 delegates had been provided and also lunch and supper for all who attended. The dining room presented a most beautiful sight being very tastefully decorated in C. E. colors and the tables all neatly arranged. The church was also beautifully decorated and was admired by all who attended. Excellent congregations attended all the services and especially the night services, when the church was filled to its utmost capacity.

A very impressive service was held on Friday afternoon under the auspices of the Junior Endeavorers. Mr. Perry had made arrangements to have a special train run from Salisbury to Mardela to bring the Juniors of the Presbyterian and Methodist Protestant Churches also the Juniors of Hebron M. P. Church to Mardela and including those of Mardela and Riverton 166 were in line and marched into the church and presented a most interesting sight.

Most of the speakers were from Baltimore, including Rev. O. E. B. Ward, Messrs. Fred Ohrenschildt, A. S. Day and W. M. Robinson. Also the Rev. F. B. Adkins, pastor of the Protestant Episcopal church attended one service and made a short address and also Rev. B. G. Parker, pastor of the Baptist church attended one service and gave words of greeting to the Endeavorers and friends.

Most excellent music was furnished by the choir consisting of the musical talents from the different churches of Salisbury under the efficient leadership

HANDSOME NEW OFFICE

Building Being Erected At Their Plant By The E. S. Adkins Co. A Complete Modern Structure.

Last week the foundation was laid at the E. S. & A. junction by the E. S. Adkins Lumber Co., for their new office, to be ready for occupancy, December 1st. The office they use at present is the temporary building erected immediately after the burning of their mill about one year ago.

The new structure which will contain four rooms and accessory apartments, will be 39 feet square, plus an annex of 19x16 feet in the rear for the firm's office. At the entrance will be a public space, 10x15 situated at the front center; on the left the estimating room, 15 feet square; in the rear of this will be a toilet room, and adjoining this at the rear the private office. On the right of the public space will be a room, 15x24 for the book-keeper and clerks, and adjoining this a small apartment for stationery, etc. In the center of the building will be the vault, and alongside the vault a hall through which there will be easy access from one part of the office to another. The estimating room, waiting room and the clerks' apartment, which comprises the front, will be in one room, but separated by railings; while all of the private rooms will be shut off from the front by a partition extending from floor to ceiling.

The building will be patterned after the Spanish Colonial style; ceiling will be of panel work, and shingles to cover the sides as well as roof.

—Mr. R. Frank Williams has on exhibition at his office five pairs weighing five and three quarter pounds grown by Mr. Clayton W. Gordy. Also a hill of sweet potatoes which weigh fourteen pounds grown by Mr. Alfred Smith, near Mt. Hermon.

of Prof. W. T. Dashiell.

As a member of the church I must say this Convention was a great benefit to our church and for the last three years under the pastorate of Rev. E. P. Perry the church has been steadily growing until now we have a grand live church and great interest being manifested, good congregations at all the services and we feel now with the present pastor as an earthly leader, great success is in store for us.

MANUFACTURING GROWTH

Of Salisbury On The Increase. Industrial Establishments Find Favorable Conditions. Cement Operations.

As you enter Mill Street, from Iacobs Street, you are attracted by the hum of machinery, and the busy hustle of the forces engaged in the various factories.

First, you see the W. A. Crow Concrete Works engaged in the manufacturing of vaults for graves. These vaults are made in large sheds, reinforced by a network of wire, making each case indestructible. When placed in the grave and cemented, they are both water and air proof. They have obtained a patent upon the moulds, from which these vaults are made.

They have just completed and moved in their new office, and contemplate adding a large portion of their plant, which will enable them to work all seasons of the year.

Brittingham & Parsons.

Next to them Brittingham and Parsons are laying a foundation, 10x40 feet, as an addition to their grain mill, adding one stor in height to their entire structure. They are going to add four stands of rolls, with the long system, for the manufacturing of flour. This will make them an up to date mill, with a 50 barrel capacity per day.

Their machinery was bought of Wolf Bros., Chambersburg, Pa., and is of the most modern make. The building when completed will have three stories, the first for flour rolls, corn mills and packing purposes, the second and third for machinery and storage bin. They will manufacture two principal grades of flour, several kinds of feed—bran, chops, meal, table hominy and buckwheat.

The firm members are Mr. J. W. Brittingham, who will have charge of the producing end and Mr. E. J. C. Parsons, who will look after the disposition of the product and attend to the office work.

F. C. Todd Co.

Adjoining them is the F. C. Todd Brick Plant, for manufacturing concrete, ornamental and face bricks. Their machinery is installed in a building two stories high, 36x50 feet, which is well filled on both floors, with up to date machinery, much of which was originally designed and made for them. The second floor is arranged with a triple mixer, which prepares the material, and automatically feeds the large press on the first floor, which produces the bricks, and pushes them upon a board, when they are placed upon an endless chain, which carries them to the part of the building where they are cured.

These bricks are all press bricks, suitable for facing buildings, or any other purpose. Each brick is uniform in size, and they are made any color to suit the taste of the builder. They are indestructible from fire, ice or frost. The construction of this plant seems to have been original.

Mr. Showalter, of Indiana, having visited our city a short time ago, became interested in the value of our sand and gravel banks, for the manufacture of hollow concrete blocks, for building purposes. After a careful examination of the same, he decided to install a building block machine, which is now in operation, in connection with the F. C. Todd Brick Co.

This is one of the latest improved machines, making each block face down, so with a rock face, it becomes impervious to water, or change of temperature.

The blocks are made any size from 12 to 24 inches in length, with face from 8 to 12 inches with thickness 8 to 14 inches.

Mr. Showalter, having had the experience of several years in operating concrete machinery in the west, has thorough knowledge as to the production of these blocks perfectly.

Little was known of the value of cement years ago, and its consumption was limited, on account of the expense of importing the same to this country. But when it was discovered in this country, its use became more general, and the price being within the reach of consumers, it has now become one of the necessary materials for all the large manufacturing interests, as well as giving strength to the ware house and beauty to the residence.

Truly this can be said to be the concrete age, and its use is yet in its infancy.

—The Remington Machine Co., of Wilmington, Del., have received the machinery order for the ice manufacturing plant, being engineered by Messrs. J. H. Tomlinson and E. O. Williams. They guarantee to have the plant in running order within four months provided the building is completed within sixty days. The machinery purchased has a capacity of 37 tons per day and of 30 tons of extra refrigeration. The company will be incorporated in a few days and it is understood that Hon. W. H. Jackson will be President. Mr. W. F. Jackson, Vice-President, Mr. Williams, Secretary and Treasurer, and Mr. Tomlinson, General Manager.

QUESTIONS YOU WOULD LIKE ANSWERED.

A Home To Home Talk With Every White Voter. Time To Get Together.

Q. What are the issues involved in this campaign?

A. There is only one issue—Negro Suffrage.

Q. Who gave the negro the right to vote?

A. It was given him by the Fifteenth Amendment to the Federal Constitution.

Q. Was this Amendment adopted by the State of Maryland?

A. The Maryland Legislature voted against it unanimously but one-third of the other States, which had but few negro voters, forced this Amendment upon the Southern States, and turned loose a horde of ignorant negroes to rule over their former masters.

Q. Did this result in good or evil?

A. The result of this action was that in all the Southern States there was for years the worst kind of Government. Carpet baggers with negro allies ruled the States and bankrupted their Treasurers.

Q. What was done to remedy their conditions?

A. Some States resorted to one expedient, some another.

A. Some formed secret societies to overawe the negro and keep him from the polls. But the only real relief found was in amending their constitutions as to prevent the negro from registering and voting.

Q. What has been the result in those States?

A. The State Governments are in the control of the white people, the negroes are better citizens and good order and prosperity takes the place of disorder and crime.

Q. Which States have adopted the Amendment?

A. Every Southern State in which there are any appreciable numbers of negroes, except Maryland.

Q. Why should Maryland adopt such a measure?

A. For the same reason that urged other Southern States to secure relief. To make certain our State Government will always be in the hands of a majority of the white people.

Q. Why should anyone object to the rule of a majority of white electors?

A. There can be no objection except from individuals who desire to see the negro to vote to advance their own political futures, and who know they cannot secure a majority of the white vote.

Q. What would be the result of negro disfranchisement?

A. Any party would be compelled to secure the endorsement of a majority of the white race.

Q. Would this result be in good or evil?

A. Every Southern State that has followed this policy will unquestionably say, it results in good.

Q. In the thirty-five years the negro has been allowed to vote has he given any evidence of his ability to use the ballot properly?

A. No, he is voting today just as he did thirty-five years ago for Abraham Lincoln's nose and the Republican Party regardless alike of party principles or the fitness of candidates.

Q. Is there any danger from the negro vote in Maryland?

A. By a combination of fewer than 10,000 white men with the negro vote in seventeen counties of the State they can elect a majority of the members of our Legislature.

Q. Why are we justified in trying to eliminate the negro as a political factor?

A. In violation of every principle of home rule, he was forced upon us as a voter by the Republican party of other States. At every election the Democrats are compelled to place in the ballot boxes of this State thousands of ballots from the hands of white men before we can begin to count in our effort to secure a majority of the white vote in this State.

Q. Will the pending Amendment disfranchise the negro?

A. On a large measure, yes.

Q. Is any white man's right to vote involved?

A. Not at all. The Democratic party platform is so distinctively and clearly committed to the registration of every white man as it is against the registration of the negro.

Q. If the pending Amendment is passed, what will be its practical operation?

A. A white man, whether native or foreign born, Democrat or Republican, would be allowed to register without objection both Democrats and Republicans being committed to this policy.

Q. In what does the pending Amendment differ from other Amendments that were proposed?

A. The pending Amendment will permit the registration of every white man in the State, no matter what his politics, or where he was born.

Q. Who should favor the pending Amendment?

A. Every man who believes a majority of the white people should control the State Government.

Re-opening Of Rockwalking M. E. Church—Clear Of Debt.

Rockwalking M. E. Church, closed about two months for repairs and improvements, was reopened with special exercises last Sunday as stated in last week's issue of this paper. The improvements consist of ceiling altered and wainscoted, walls papered and choir room erected, pews reglained and rearranged, new pulpit set, a new green carpet for all over the floor and painting the outside of the building, all of which cost $800.00. Of this amount more than $380.00 had been raised before reopening day leaving over $420 to be secured during that day, but the people came with such liberality that the amount needed was soon obtained. Several of the friends from Salisbury, Hon. W. H. Jackson, Messrs. Jay Williams, Wm. H. Humphreys and others attended the services and contributed toward paying off the indebtedness. At 7.30 p. m., Rev. G. C. Williams, pastor of Berlin M. E. Church, preached the 3rd, 4th, 5th and 6th chapters of the 1st, 2nd, 3rd, 4th and 5th chapters of the 10th verse, a strong, eloquent sermon that will doubtless produce much good to all. The Rev. Mr. Williams sang at both services and the services closed with members of the church dedicating themselves anew to the Lord and his service.

Revival services are going on at the church this week. Preaching tomorrow, Sunday, 10.30 a. m. and 7.30 p. m. by the pastor.

And Winter Styles: The Redingote; The Eton Frocks; of Broadcloth; Mixed Wools; Plaid; Winter Coverings.

The absence of pronounced changes in the general style of Fall and Winter suits and outer garments, is welcome intelligence to the economically inclined. Last winter's plaided skirts holds good for ordinary occasions, and the long redingote is still the long redingote. The newest skirts however are circular, and much wider around the lower edge, the extreme measuring six yards. The Eton loses nothing in popularity, and for imperfect figures, is of inestimable value.

The medium length jacket is even more potent than the Eton, in concealing defects, but is not so stylish as the short or long garment. An additional under covering, such as a quilted jacket or wool sweater, renders any of these three styles sufficiently warm for winter use, with the addition of a furboa.

The Long Redingote

is shown with or without, velvet collars and cuffs, and of course many variations are happy, as here, the skill of the amateur dressmaker is so at defiance. The Eton comes with the sphere of domestic ingenuity, and with the aid of wide broadcloth trimmings, edged with fancy braid and tiny buttons, artistic results are often attained. Then too, the Eton admits of many changes in regard to blouse or chemisette. The "three piece" suit is in high esteem below; a plaided skirt, a fancy waist and short jacket, all matching in color, tone, and it is supposed that by using a very heavy lining, and a wool sweater beneath the waist, that a fancy jacket will be warm enough for winter use.

Other Wool Dress Goods

seem insignificant when compared with broadcloths, to which fashion has accorded the first position, due certainly from its beauty of finish and wonderful variety of coloring. The window display, made by Lord & Taylor for a week, has scarcely, if even equaled in this city. One window was devoted to the purple shades from the darkest plum to the pale heliotrope. The next window included all the green shades, the next the browns, in succession the grays, a wine shades, then the white and pinks shades, with an intermixture of crossed strawberry hues, and various tints by way of contrast.

Although Second To Broadcloth

mixed wools and plaids command considerable share of attention. In proportion of the latter fabric being in effective combinations of gay colors. In silks, all soft varieties are stylish and moires are in special favor, coming in exquisite shades, of all the regular greens, reds, blues and pinks, as well as in pale colors for evening wear. The chameleon silks, showing soft tones over which are satin color or small designs, are really beautiful.

The Genuine Winter Coverings

are either in Empire style, or loose three-quarter coat, the former however is more stylish. Folds of the shoulders and across back front often finished by braid, handsome trimming, and apocoramentation is a small white shawl collar studded with black velvet and passementerie buttons. collar is not unfrequently of velvet edged by a fall ribbon trim. The again, a stitched band outlines the Empire shape and large metal buttons are the sole trimming. Placed three at each side, six at the center of the back, six under each arm and the same number in front. Skirts are large, with broad cuffs, and is the rage for elbow sleeves, some few cloaks with elbow sleeves are shown.

The jacket with lapped seams either black or tan remains standard as the long cloaks are both heavy expensive.

BOOKER T. WASHINGTON AND THE NEGRO.

issue, holding steadily the good-will of the southern white man and the northern philanthropist. He is the greatest diplomat his race has ever produced. Yet he who reads between the lines of his written and spoken words will find the same purpose and the same faith which his more blunt and fearless brethren have honestly and boldly proclaimed. He shows this in his worship of Frederick Douglass. In his book, "The Future of the American Negro," we find this careful sentence:

"To state in detail just what place the black man will occupy in the south as a citizen when he has developed in the direction named is beyond the wisdom of any one."

Yet on page 8 he says: "The surest way for the negro to reach the highest position is to prepare himself to fill well at the present the basic occupations—Independent industries, of course—not, mark you, 'Tuckers Institute' is not a servant-training school!"

Again on pages 83 and 85 we are told: "There is an unmistakable influence that comes over a white man when he sees a black man living in a two-story house that has been paid for. I need not stop to explain. Just in so far as we can place rich negroes in the south who can loan money to white men, this race question will disappear."

Why? The conclusion is obvious: The negro who holds a mortgage on a white man's house will ultimately demand and receive social recognition from him.

On page 86 of his "Future of the American Negro" he says: "The Jew, who was once in about the same position as the negro is today, has now recognition because he has entwined himself about America in a business and industrial way."

Again his conclusion is obvious. The absurdity of the comparison, however, is the important point in this sentence, not only for the pathetic ignorance of history it displays, but for the revelation of the writer's secret hopes and dreams.

The Jew has not been assimilated into our civil and social life because of his money—but for a very different reason. The Jew belongs to our race, the same great division of humanity. The Semitic group of the white race is, all in all, the greatest evolved in history. Their children have ever led the vanguard of human progress and achievement.

Again his conclusion is obvious. The absurdity of the comparison, however, is the important point in this sentence, not only for the pathetic ignorance of history it displays, but for the revelation of the writer's secret hopes and dreams.

cannot be in the hands of the negro. It is a common observation that the negro crop is raised by negro labor. Even now the relations of the races, with the negro as an integral part of the white man's industrial scheme, become more and more difficult.

A Gulf That Grows Wide.
Professor Kelly Miller says: "It is a matter of common observation that the races are growing further and further apart."

Mr. Washington says on this point: "For the sake of the negro and the southern white man there are many things in the relations of the two races that must soon be changed" (page 65). The point I raise is that education necessarily drives the races further and further apart, and Mr. Washington's brand of education makes the gulf between them if anything a little deeper. If there is one thing a southern white man cannot endure it is an educated negro. What's to be the end of it if the two races are to live forever side by side in the south?

Mr. Washington says: "Give the black man so much skill and brains that he can cut oats like the white man—then he can compete with him." And then the real tragedy will begin. Does any sane man believe that when the negro comes to work under the direction of the southern white man, this "arrogant," "rascalous" and "intolerant" race will allow the negro to master his industrial system, take the bread from his mouth, crowd him to the wall and place a mortgage on his house? Competition is war—the most ferocious and brutal of all its forms. Could we reach a sublime height in the idea that the white man will stand idly by and see this performance? What will he do when put to the test? He will do exactly what his white neighbor in the north does when the negro threatens his bread—kill him!

Abraham Lincoln foresaw this tragedy when he wrote his Emancipation Proclamation, and he asked congress for an appropriation of a billion dollars to colonize the whole negro race. He never believed it possible to assimilate the negro into our national life. This nation will yet come back to Lincoln's plan, still so eloquently advocated by the Negro Bishop, Henry M. Turner.

It is curious how the baldheaded assertion of a lie can be repeated and repeated until millions of sane people will accept the bare assertion as an established fact. At the close of the war, Mr. Lincoln, brooding over the insoluble problem of the negro's future, which his proclamation had created, asked General Benjamin F. Butler to devise and report to him immediately a plan to colonize the negroes. General Butler, naturally hostile to the idea, made at once his famous, false and factious report, "that ships could not be found to carry the negro babies to Africa as fast as they are born!"

The president was assassinated a few days later. This lie is now forty years old, and Mr. Booker T. Washington actually repeats it as a verbal inspiration, though entirely unconscious of its historic crime.

We have spent about $200,000,000 on negro education since the war. One-half of this sum would have been sufficient to have made Liberia a rich and powerful negro state. Liberia is capable of supporting every negro in America. Why not face this question squarely? We are temporizing and playing with it. All our educational schemes are compromises and temporary makeshifts. Mr. Booker T. Washington's work is one of noble aims. A branch of it should be immediately established in Monrovia, the capital of Liberia. A gift of ten millions would do this, and establish a colony of half a million negroes within two years.

They could lay the foundations of a free black republic which within twenty-five years would move our race problem on the only rational basis within human power. Colonization is not a failure. It has never been tried.

We owe this to the negro. At present we are deceiving him and allowing him to deceive himself. He hopes and dreams of assimilation, forgetting that self-preservation is the first law of nature. Our present attitude of hypocrisy is inhuman toward a weaker race brought to our shores by the sins of our fathers. We owe him a square deal, and we will never give it to him on this continent.

Letter to G. E. Sorman, Salisbury, Md.
Dear Sir: You buy your horsehoes and nails; your grandfather, if he was a blacksmith, made 'em. You can't afford to hammer them out by hand, when you can buy as good, or better perhaps, ready-made to your hand, for a little more than the cost of the iron.

What do you think of a painter who goes on buying his linseed oil and white-lead, and mixing, and tinting by hand, and charging his time for work that is far better done than he can do it, done by machinery, done at your horsehoes and nails are made.

Mistake isn't it? He is wasting his chance in the world. There is no better stuff to do business with than good horsehoes and paint; and no better work than putting them on. Good horsehoes will put on; it's the painting 'em on that makes you a blacksmith; no matter who makes 'em.

Who wants to go back to old times, and make his own horsehoes? Between us two that painter don't know how to make good paint—the used to; but paint has run away from him.

Yours truly

FRIDAY NIGHT TALKS
BY F. E. DAVISON
A NEW BEGINNING.

Oct. 16, '08.—(Evens 7:15-11.)

To those who saw the children of Israel carried away into captivity, their city in ruins, their temple destroyed, nothing could be more hopeless. But their resurrection and return was as certain as the promise of God. The weeping captives were consoled with the belief of their restoration, and the prophets assured them that at the end of 70 years their bondage should be lifted.

Promptly at the moment, Cyrus, who had ascended the Persian throne, announced that all who chose to do so might return to their own land in peace, and 50,000 people started on the long pilgrimage back to Jerusalem, singing songs of deliverance as they marched.

A governing council of ten of the principal elders was chosen. There were 8,000 camels, horses and other beasts of burden in the procession. And, most wonderful of all, the sacred vessels of the temple worship, 5,400 of them, which had been for more than fifty years in the royal treasury of Persia, the spoils of the war, which culminated in the destruction of Jerusalem, were surrendered to the colonists and borne back to the altar of their God. For four long months that caravan moved across the continent, and encamped at Last amid the ruins of their holy city in the land of their fathers, every foot of which was hallowed by sacred memories.

The history of the Jewish nation is a miniature of life. It took an awful disaster to cure and rectify and perfect them. The fires of trouble burned out their unnatural disorders, and destroyed idolatry utterly, so that when these captives finally came home they were united and the worship of idols was never heard of more.

That method of cementing broken nations has often been repeated. Take our own nation. Every forward movement of society seems to be preceded by seasons of trial, whose hot fires are needed to fuse the heart and will of the people into one. The three great periods of our history can be summed up in three words—the Rock, the Revolution, the Rebellion. And each of them was preceded by captivity in which the hearts of men were knit together by cords of common suffering, and out of which we emerged, fitted by the discipline, to repossess the land.

How many an individual has come to a place where he has been obliged to make a new beginning. Many a man has repeated the folly of the founders of the race and been turned out of his paradise. Adam and Eve amid the delights of Eden lost their garden home. They went out into the midnight into a world that cursed and blazed and bit and stung. Instead of ease they found hardship, instead of life, death; instead of luscious fruits, thorns and thistles. No soft breezes to fan them, in the sweat of their faces they ate their bread.

What did they do? Sit down and repine and curse their lot? No. They went to work to make a new beginning, and though they never got Eden back they got something better, a far more excellent and eternal weight of glory.

Here is the lesson. The man who allows himself to be crushed to earth by his circumstances is a weak man. He who spends his time in useless regrets or recriminations is foolish. Make a new beginning! Wipe the slate clean and start all over. No man, no set of men can keep a person down who resolves to stand up. Evil is always cowardly; look it straight in the face and it will skulk out of sight. Every dog in town will bark at the heels of the man who runs; go along as if you had a right to exist and they will pay no attention to you.

Men come out of prison and places of punishment, and too often they feel that the world is against them and that they have no chance. And to the shame of society it must be said that Phariseism draws its self-righteous robes as hateful in God's sight as grosser sin—around it, and passes by on the other side.

Let no man be discouraged because he has been overrun, beaten down, exiled, ostracized. Bide your time. Recognize fully the causes, cut loose from entangling associations, and as sure as the sun rises your chance will come. Through the dark night of the Babylonian captivity the Jews waited and watched for the morning. They knew it would appear. And though the bondage lasted 70 years, the clock of destiny struck at length, and they turned their happy faces toward the promised land. The enemy which had oppressed them perished from the earth, but the chosen people of God still live in Palestine.

A new beginning! He who starts all over again stands a better chance than he who has never been disturbed. Starting all over again you can plan your life on broader, richer, grander dimensions. Paradise Restored is a vast improvement over Paradise Lost. "Watchman! What of the night? The morning cometh!"

Foley's Kidney Cure was recommended and the first bottle gave me great relief, and after taking the second bottle I was entirely cured."

Do You Know The Moment When This Information May Prove Of Infinite Value?

It is worth considerable to any citizen of Salisbury to know how to be cured of painful, annoying and itching piles. Know then that Doan's Ointment is a positive remedy for all itches of the skin, for piles, eczema, etc. One application relieves and cures. Read this testimony of its merit:

Henry C. Anderson, farmer residing one mile north of Salisbury says: "Doan's Ointment is without any exception the best preparation of the kind I ever used. I have used it myself and also in my family for cuts, bruises, burns and in fact for all purposes for which the use of an ointment is indicated. I think it has no equal. I cheerfully give it my endorsement and advise others to go to White and Leonard's drug store, procure a box and give it a fair trial. If in need of such preparation."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, New York. Sole agents for the United States. Remember the name, Doan's and take no other.

The committee for the State O. E. Convention which convened in Mar-de-la, Oct. 4th, 5th, and 6th, was delightfully entertained on Tuesday evening at the home of Rev. and Mrs. E. P. Ferry. The program consisted of music and readings. First a duet, after which a selection, entitled "Somebody's Boy". Mr. Ferry read a selection composed by himself entitled "Convention's Echoes" which was thoroughly enjoyed by all present; another song and then games indulged in of an innocent character. About ten o'clock we were invited to the dining room to partake of refreshments, which consisted of different kinds of fruit, ice cream and cake, after which we all retired to our homes feeling that the evening was spent very profitably both spiritually and socially.

Continued. Present And Future Possibilities That Are Manifest.

As we noted in our first chapter, the Springs were at first known as "Boiling Springs." then afterwards called "Barren Creek" Springs. But in 1894 Mr. Thomas Bacon engaged in bottling the water and he invented a new name, largely as it is thought for the sake of euphony. He took the first syllable of each of the two states, Maryland and Delaware and combined them thus forming the beautiful name—Mardela. The name of the Postoffice was then changed to Mardela, and the town followed suit. Some of the old folks never became reconciled to the change and still call it Barren Creek Springs. But Barren Springs is a back number, and we must keep up with the pace set for us, as they say in bicycle riding. The name Barren savors too much of unproductiveness, and this will not do for our fertile soil. It would be as a libel upon our prosperous truckers. No, no, this would never do, the old squeaking stage-coach is gone, it has been superseded by iron horse with its limbs and sinews of polished steel. Salisbury now claims to be the largest city on the Eastern Shore, but just wait ten or a dozen years and see if we do not come in as a close second in the race. All we need is to tempt some manufacturer here. As an inducement, let us form a Board of Trade and give land for manufacturing purposes. Labor can be had here in an abundance. The trucking facilities are sufficient to support a large population. Make it pleasant for Northerners, and we can tempt lots of capital here. The writer knows of just such men, who have large means and are looking for a place to invest their money. The splendid water and salubrious climate are tempting baits for those living in more northern climates.

Is all this visionary? I say not! Our creek could be dredged by little expense and this give water-way for smaller vessels. There is a feeling among some northern capitalists, that they are not wanted here, and they have gone farther south and invested large sums of money. They have gone into some places not near so desirable as this, and farther removed from market. Some of our large city dailies have misrepresented the feelings of the people on the Eastern Shore, they have created the impression that the war is not over in our section, but this is a serious mistake, and no doubt made for political purposes. It certainly would have a tendency of injuring us commercially. We are a loyal law abiding people. The very name of our town, Mardela, is tempting. Some time ago, a very prominent northern man was visiting at the home of the writer, and he asked if I had any letter heads with the name of "Mardela Springs," he wanted to write some letters up north, and gave as his reason "the name sounds big." And so it does. There is something in a name, say what we may.

Our oldest citizens cannot remember distinctly any farther back than 1840. Some things occurred about that time which have made an indelible impression upon their minds. The oldest person now living in the town is Mr. Wm. Venables, who was born in 1835. Mr. Venables is still quite hale for an old man, and he has several stalwart children who are among our prominent citizens. He married a Miss Nancy P. Wilson and to them were born the following: Thomas W., James A., Wm. R., Sallie, wife of Samuel W. Bennett, Joseph, Martha C., who married John Phillips, Lottie V., who married John E. Lloyd, Lillie W., and Lizzie, who married John Cooper.

Another of our oldest citizens is Mr. J. B. Armstrong, who came here from Pennsylvania in 1838. Mr. Armstrong was liberally educated, and taught school in this community for several years. He married Miss Elizabeth J. Bounds and to them was born Andrew B., who is one of our successful builders. Mr. Armstrong has always taken great interest in anything that is for the good of the town. His fellow citizens at a public meeting, by vote, put him at the head of civic affairs of our town; associated with him in this relation are the names of two other prominent men, George Phillips and George Sewell.

HOW SHE WON OUT.

Matt Sloan was a self-made man—very well made in his own estimation. In the estimation of the world, too, Matt was an admitted success. Not all the world approved his methods nor desired his acquaintance, but he was accorded the reputation of a high order of common-sense, shrewdness, industry and personal honesty by all men.

He had been newboy, bootblack, barman, publican, contractor, speculator and parochial politician—always a politician, and had succeeded in everything.

He had ideals, too, of a rough sort. For instance, he had dropped the public house business at a considerable personal loss before he married. "I ain't goin' to keep Mary on money got by makin' other men drunk," he announced.

Matt Sloan was thinking of all these things as he sat in his "den" in the handsome new home he had fitted up the year before when Mary had left school and come home—Mary, the idolized daughter, who so strongly resembled his dead wife.

He had loved his wife with all the strength of his nature, and had resolved that little Mary should have every advantage that his wife and he had missed, and that all good things of the world should be hers. To this end he had kept her in all the formative years of her growth in the best schools and seminaries.

So before she had come home he had bought a big house and fitted it up in lavish style, and for some months they had lived there happily.

He was thinking over all these things and feeling greatly at peace with himself and the world—except for a secret confided to him recently by the girl, that she had given her heart to young Arthur Vincent, and that presently the lover would call on him and ask for her hand.

He did not dislike young Vincent. He was a manly young fellow and well conducted. His father, Malcolm Vincent, was a power in the financial world, and the head of one of the biggest firms in the city.

While engaged in these reflections the door opened and Mary entered. She fell upon her knees and buried her face in her father's knees, the tears gushing from her eyes.

Sloan's heart stopped beating, and that terror possessed him which all strong men feel at a woman's tears.

"What's the matter?" he gasped.

"Oh, father, father!" moaned the girl. "It isn't true, is it?"

"What?" replied Sloan, wishing wildly for something to do to help the girl.

"Mr. Vincent, Arthur's father came here to see me," the girl went on, weeping to and fro in her distress, "and he asked me to give up Arthur. He said we were not a fit family for a gentleman to marry into. He said that our money came from public houses; that we were low born; that mamma was a woman of doubtful origin and character."

"Stop!" cried Sloan, hoarsely, leaping to his feet and nearly throwing the girl to the floor. His face was purple and the veins stood out in his neck like whipcords. "Did he say that?"

"Those were the very words," sobbed the girl, clinging to the arm of the chair. "They are burning in my memory!"

His face assumed a livid white. His great, square jaw was set like a vise, while his eyes blazed in a manner she had never seen before.

"Father, dear," she said, rising and going to him, "you must do nothing rash—nothing to indicate we are low born."

"You are right child," the man replied, slowly. "We must do nothing to hurt ourselves—only him. What else did he say?" He sat down heavily.

"He said that Arthur had told him about our engagement, and when he forbade it, and threatened to disinherit him, Arthur told his father that he would marry me if I would have him," she answered. "He said he had come to me to save Arthur from an alliance which would not only ruin his prospects and life, but could not fail to result in misery all around. That such a marriage would break his mother's heart, and disgrace the family name. He appealed to me to save the boy from his own folly, and refuse him, and so prevent all this wretchedness—and oh! father, I love him, I love him."

"Poor, motherless girl!" he muttered. "Nobody to help you but an ignorant, coarse-grained old ruffian."

Then bitterness filled his cup to the brim as she sobbed in his arms, and he reflected that all his success, all his power could not save from unhappiness the one object he loved. All his life had been a mistake, and his money could not buy the one thing

There was no prosecution of Vincent, and there was a beautiful wedding some weeks later, at which Matt Sloan cut a most noticeable figure in a new dress suit, which he wore but indifferently well, and a gorgeous array of diamonds, which he wore as to the manner born.

Among the wedding presents was the certificate for 3,000 shares of G. P. and T. stock. "If it would sell for what it cost me it would be a pretty penny," Matt Sloan remarked.

What it did cost him nobody ever learned; but it is known that he dropped all luxuries and extravagances after the wedding and moved into modest quarters, where he lived for many years.—Illustrated Bits.

Her Answer.

He—"And why do you think I am a poor judge of human nature?"

She—"Because you have such a good opinion of yourself."

He—"What did you say to Vincent?" he asked.

"I declined to discuss the matter," she replied. "I was so upset I did not know what to do."

"Do you want to marry this young fellow?" he asked.

"I love him," she replied; "but I don't want to pull him down, nor do I wish to go where I'm not wanted."

He rose suddenly, setting her on her feet and standing straight, with his head thrown back and his chest out.

"They shall all beg you to marry him," he said. "I'll prove to you and them that they are not as good as I, and he abruptly left the house."

Malcolm Vincent sat at his desk in his luxuriant private office with a troubled expression on his face. A sheet of marked quotations was on his desk.

"Strange, strange," he muttered to himself. "I cannot understand it. With no normal condition to send G. P. and T. up, and our house selling it for a week, it has advanced steadily. I can see no indication of any defensive movement, but every offer of the stock is snapped up and a higher price quoted every day. If the price does not drop tomorrow night my priand the company badly crippled—perhaps ruined.

A card was handed him, and two men entered.

"Mr. Vincent," said one, "this is a client of mine, Mr. Michael Stone. He has a considerable fortune invested in G. P. and T. stock—£50,000. Part of this he holds in trust for other members of his family. He is about to go abroad for some time—possibly for years. He desires to place this stock in the care of your company, and wishes you to collect the dividends and place them to his credit so that he can draw on you for them. At the same time he desires to have the stock kept so that he can secure it or have it sold at any moment should the necessities of his trust demand."

The details of the trust were speedily arranged, and the visitors departed.

"Singular coincidence," remarked Vincent to himself, "placing £50,000 in G. P. and T. stock with us when we are so short of it. And he is to be abroad for months—"

Vincent looked frightened at the very thought.

The next morning Malcolm Vincent settled his shortage in G. P. and T. by turning over 2,000 shares and a considerable sum in cash. The price still advanced.

Two days later Mr. Michael Stone walked into Mr. Vincent's office in company with Matt Sloan. Malcolm Vincent turned deathly pale. The papers were made out and all that remained was the delivering of the stock. Stone, pleading an engagement departed.

"Well," remarked Sloan, "where is the stock?"

"Mr. Sloan," said he, "I am unable to deliver you the stock today. The truth is, in an effort to break the price for certain reorganization purposes, I was caught short, and to save myself and the Universal Trust Company, I used the stock yesterday in settlement. I supposed that it was to be held for months, and that Stone had gone abroad. It will be but a few days before I can buy it back at a figure that will not cripple us. I will see that you get handsome interest if you defer this demand for a week."

"You mean that you are a thief and an embezzler?" remarked Matt Sloan, blindingly lighting a big black cigar.

Vincent sprang to his feet, his face flushed.

"Sir!" he said.

"Oh! sit down," replied Sloan. "I'm just calling things by their right name. You'll see it in the newspapers tomorrow."

"Good God!" gasped Vincent, sinking into his chair. "You don't mean that?"

"I mean that I propose to put you behind the prison bars," replied Sloan. "It's a solemn duty I owe to society."

The banker groaned in despair.

"In Heaven's name, man, have you no mercy?" he said. "Everybody says you are a big-hearted fellow. It's only for a few days."

"I reckon I am as big-hearted as a thin-lipped old thief who makes it his business to break a girl's heart, throw mud at her father, and lie about his dead mother." And Sloan brought his heavy fist down on the desk with a bang.

"Now, if that affair had gone on, of course I would have felt a bit chary about prosecuting my girl's father-in-law; but it's a good thing it was stopped. We never had any gasbills in our family. It'd been an awful disgrace."

The banker, red with humiliation, saw a ray of hope. He grasped it. "Couldn't the affair between the young folks go on?" he asked timidly.

"It might," replied Sloan, coolly. "If the girl wants your son, she can have him for all I care; but I tell you, she is very proud. After what has happened she wouldn't go into any family that didn't want her."

"I will see her myself," ventured Vincent.

"Yes, and maybe your wife has better go round and assure my girl that the marriage won't break your heart," replied Sloan. "I'll give the stock to her for a wedding present."

He wanted.

"What did you say to Vincent?" he asked.

"I declined to discuss the matter," she replied. "I was so upset I did not know what to do."

"Singular coincidence," remarked Vincent to himself, "placing £50,000 in G. P. and T. stock with us when we are so short of it. And he is to be abroad for months—"

Vincent looked frightened at the very thought.

The next morning Malcolm Vincent settled his shortage in G. P. and T. by turning over 2,000 shares and a considerable sum in cash. The price still advanced.

Two days later Mr. Michael Stone walked into Mr. Vincent's office in company with Matt Sloan. Malcolm Vincent turned deathly pale. The papers were made out and all that remained was the delivering of the stock. Stone, pleading an engagement departed.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Henry Nock celebrated their fifth wedding anniversary at their home on Maryland Avenue, Tuesday evening October 17. A number of friends were present. Their home was prettily decorated with potted plants, and the color scheme in the parlor was red while pale blue prevailed in the dining room.

During the evening an interesting guessing contest, entitled "Snap Shots at Anatomy," was indulged in, and a prize awarded for the best paper. At 10.30 the guests were invited to the dining room, where refreshments, consisting of ices, cake and fruits, were served in abundance.

Mr. and Mrs. Nock received a number of appropriate and useful gifts.

Assemblyman Tighe's letter should be read by every brain worker leading a strenuous life.

Hon. John Tighe, No. 98 Remsen St., Cohoes, N. Y., Member of Assembly from the Fourth district, Albany county, N. Y., writes as follows:

"Peruna has my hearty indorsement as a restorative tonic of superior merit. At times when I have been completely broken down from excess of work, so that my faculties seemed actually at a standstill, Peruna has acted as a healing restorer, starting the machinery of mind and body afresh with new life and energy."

"I recommend it to a man tired in mind and body as a tonic superior to anything I know of and well worthy serious consideration."—J. Tighe.

Excess of work so common in our country causes impaired nerves, leading to catarrh and catarrhal nervousness—a disease that is responsible for half of all nervous troubles.

Peruna cures this trouble because it cures catarrh wherever located.

If you do not derive prompt and satisfactory results from the use of Peruna, write at once to Dr. Hartman, giving full statement of your case, and he will be pleased to give you his valuable advice gratis.

HISTORY OF MARDELA

Continued. Interesting Local Events Reviewed From The Days Of Yore. Chapter 3.

As we stated in our last chapter that Mr. Wm. Venable is our oldest citizen, but Mr. Clement M. Wright, who lives not far from town is older than he. Hoping that Mr. Wright could give us some facts about the early history of Mardela, we drove out to his home and interviewed him. It proved to be on the day of his eighty sixth anniversary. He is truly a courtly old gentleman, and seated by his side were two vivacious grand daughters, who seem to have the tenderest affection for him. He told many interesting and amusing stories of the early days. He bears the weight of eighty six years without a murmur. He said he had lived in two counties, and yet had never moved. Let the young people work this out if they can. It may not prove as vexing as that problem in Algebra, over which you shed so many tears.

Mr. Wright married Miss Elizabeth Weatherly and to them were born, Isaac J., Ellen W., Wilson W., Lizzie A., Wm. P. and Maggie L. The grand daughters tried to get the old man to tell about his courtship, but they could not inveigle him into it. It no doubt would have been interesting, but to him it was too sacred to make merry over. He said in the early days he was a Whig but now he is a Democrat. He put a good deal of flavor in the mere pronunciation of the word Democrat. Some of the stories that Mr. Wright told, he cautioned me not to use the names of the parties, for some of their relatives are yet living in these parts and it might offend them. I had to promise, or else not get the story. He told an amusing story of a colored man in the days of slavery, who had received so many lashes and a white gentleman standing by said— "If you will not put it on any harder than that, and will give me a dollar, you may whip me." The bargain was closed on these terms, and after the flogging, the dollar was given to him. He immediately went up to the bar to celebrate the evening, and called up all the loafers to drink at his expense. And when he threw down his hard earned dollar to pay for the drinks, the bar-keeper pronounced it a counterfeit. Imagine his surprise when he was compelled to pay the bill with other money. Now I have told the incident without mentioning the names. My friend, if you know, don't tell. But I suppose, that even the relatives now living, would be willing to at least crack one smile over such a good story.

The stirring events at the springs in 1840 very much interested Mr. Wright and another aged gentleman, who visited his home on the very day your scribe called. They talked as gleefully as two boys just let out from College walls. It was truly an animating thing to watch their countenances as they recalled some humorous or pathetic event. The political campaign of that year brought the Giants to the Hastings. From Baltimore to Cape Charles, they came. The Springs were crowded; such a motley mass of humanity, the oldest citizens had never seen before. It seemed like the Legislature, alma house and penitentiary had all broken loose at the same time and dumped their inmates right in our little village. All the farmers for miles around had to come to see the sights. The great Reverend Johnson was here with his puffed shirt front and high silk hat. O, the celebrities, the celebrities! There were two stands erected for the public speeches. The Democrats had theirs in the grove near where the Presbyterian church now stands. The Whigs had theirs where Sherman English now lives, in a locust grove. In the morning hours each party with all of their adherents occupied their own grounds, but in the afternoon they all repaired to the Democratic quarters and had a joint discussion. It is claimed that Dr. Cathell Humphreys, a Democrat defended the democracy against Johnson and Preston. It is said, that many of the visitors drank something stronger than the Spring water. That night they camped on the ground around the hotel, and the next morning they turned their faces towards home. They were wiser, if not better. The country was saved and they could now afford to rest easy another year, until it was necessary to save the country again. And every year since then, our men meet on one special day to save the country. It is strange how many times the country never gets saved. Wonder if it will really ever get saved and stay saved. In a few more days, the descendants of these same men, will meet in the same old town, and in the same old way, save the country again. But this time, it is to be hoped that they will not drink anything stronger than the Spring water.

—Mrs. Mary A. Dawson, who has been spending several months with friends and relatives in Salisbury and vicinity, returned to her home in Moore's, Pa., last Monday.

LOOKING FORWARD

To Larger Developments At Ocean City. More Hotels And The Projected Pier. Camp And Regatta.

The past season very positively demonstrated the need of more hotels and boarding houses at Ocean City. With one possible exception every house was compelled to turn away from its doors quite as many as were entertained. More visitors were registered and more inquiries made from far distant cities than ever before, and a great part of these from a social and financial circle able and willing to pay for the very highest grade of accommodations. The Ocean City Development Company proposes to take very decided steps in the direction of increased hotel and boarding house accommodations, and offer especially attractive inducements to all who will build for next season.

Camp and Regatta.

The projectors of the oarsmen's camp and regatta for next summer are receiving much encouragement, and it is probable that before long the positive announcement will be made that the project will become a reality. If so, it is also proposed to follow the camp and regatta with a general athletic event, covering a period of at least two weeks. The active support of some of the leaders in amateur athletic sport is assured.

Arrangements are being made for a visit to Ocean City of prominent members of the National Association of Amateur Oarsmen, who go there to satisfy themselves as to the feasibility of having the national regatta on Sinepuxent bay next year.

The Ocean Pier.

All the money necessary for the building of the proposed pier has been guaranteed and work is about to commence. Numerous "privileges" have already been disposed of, and if all the plans of the projectors are carried out visitors to Ocean City hereafter will have many creditable diversions offered to them on the pier.

The recent purchasers of the Atlantic Casino contemplate some improvements to the building, among these a first-class lunch room for excursionists.

It seems reasonably sure that a new hotel will be seen next season on the old Congress Hall site. Plans and specifications are being prepared with this end in view.

Conclusions will soon be reached as to the best method of improving Baltimore Ave. Among other changes the street is to be raised fully 18 inches, which will greatly add to its general appearance. This will be the beginning of raising other streets. The development company contemplates straightening the lines of its property along Sinepuxent bay and general building up of ground levels.

Livingston—Gordy.

Mr. and Mrs. John H. Livingston received a message last Monday telling them of the marriage of their eldest son, William Irvine to Miss Clara Lee Gordy, first daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Clayton Gordy, of Wilmington. They were quietly married at the home of the bride's parents last Saturday, Oct. 14th, at noon, after a courtship of about six years. They left for the northern cities to spend their honeymoon. The groom is a prominent young man of Philadelphia, and has been engaged in the Baldwin Locomotive Works for the past several years. They will make their future home in Philadelphia.

NEGRO SUFFRAGE

And Attendant Evils. No Good Citizen But What Should Carefully Consider.

There is little end to all evil resulting from negro suffrage. Their privilege of voting here invites other negroes from the States where the voting privilege has been restricted or denied to the race. This was the case in the District of Columbia and in Washington city until a Republican Congress felt compelled to abolish suffrage to all—in order to get rid of the negro.

Ex-Governor Jackson has said that the Amendment question is a social and a business proposition. So it is, primarily. But it is not inconsistent to say that it goes beyond the home and beyond the farm and the factory, into politics, and eliminating the negro from politics settles all the other relations.

Take the negro out of politics, where he does not belong, and he will find his proper place. He is no equal of the white man for the exercise of the franchise, and it is unjust to him and to the white man to force him into the electorate of this State as is done by the Fifteenth Amendment to the Constitution of the United States.

White People To The Rescue.

The Suffrage Amendment proposed for the Constitution of Maryland is not a partisan measure. It is the result of the people of the State, who in 1903 elected a Legislature to lay the groundwork of this electoral reform. This was done by the necessary three fifths vote of the General Assembly. And now the ratification or rejection of the Amendment is before the people.

Nowhere else has an amendment of this kind been submitted to the popular verdict, and yet in all the Southern States, negro suffrage has been restricted or eliminated by their promulgated constitutions or other methods. In Maryland, foreign born citizens, native born citizens and negroes will vote on the Suffrage Amendment next November.

The article is so worded that it renders measurably inoperative in Maryland the Fifteenth Amendment, which since 1870 has nullified the first section of the first article of the Maryland Constitution of 1867, placing the electoral power in the hands of white men. In other words, if the Maryland Amendment is adopted, the State practically restores the elective franchise to the basis on which it rested before the high-handed partisan scheme of the Fortieth Congress and some of the States placed the suffrage in 1870.

Many methods have been suggested to overcome this invasion of our rights and enable the State to resume control of the elective franchise, but none of them could meet the case successfully except by the indirect method proposed, which has stood the test in other States.

Force Measure To Be Forced Out.

The Fifteenth Amendment was a force measure, imposed upon the Southern States while they were under "carpetbag" rule and when negroes predominated in their legislatures. That the act was a blunder as well as a crime is generally conceded by all conservative men. The Legislature of this State refused to ratify it.

The franchise, the privilege to vote, to select our own rulers, to designate those who shall make the laws and those who will construe them, lies at the bottom of our political, our social and our economic structure. If the electorate is venal the taint is bound to affect the whole body corporate and disintegrate our civilization.

The negro voter is corrupt and nothing else. We want to get rid of him and place the franchise in the hands of those capable of using it properly—to place it where the Constitution of Maryland placed it until superseded by the Fifteenth Amendment and the authority conferred by it upon Congress for its enforcement.

The Fifteenth Amendment to the Constitution of the United States was proposed to the legislatures of the several States by the Fortieth Congress on the 27th of February, 1869, and was declared in a proclamation of the Secretary of State, dated March 30, 1870, to have been ratified by the legislatures of twenty-nine of the thirty-seven States.

Mr. Edward M. Smith was given a very delightful surprise party on Saturday evening, Oct. 14th, at his home near Spring Hill in honor of his 42nd birthday. Those present were Mr. and Mrs. W. F. Twilley and family, Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Richardson and family, Mr. and Mrs. Benj. Davis and family, Mr. and Mrs. Ira Elsey and son, Mr. and Mrs. Marion Hearn and family, Mr. and Mrs. Harvey Hearn, Mrs. Susie Taylor and son. Refreshments were served at 10 o'clock, consisting of ice cream, cake, candies and fruits. All departed at a late hour, wishing their host many more happy birthdays.

—Mrs. Joseph Ruess, of Baltimore, is visiting Mr. William Kelly.

Grand Rally Of White People Here October 28th.

The Democratic State Central Committee are arranging for a big time in Salisbury on Saturday, October 28th, at the big Democratic gatherings to be held here on that date. There will be two meetings, one in the afternoon and one in the evening. These meetings will be held in the Ulman Grand Opera House. The Salisbury Concert Band has been engaged for the occasion to furnish music, and Professor Kennerly assures us that he will be ready to give some fine music. The Committee is arranging to have some of the most prominent speakers in Maryland on this occasion, and probably some outside speakers. Those who have already promised to be present are: Hon. Alouzo L. Miles and Hon. A. S. Goldsborough, of Baltimore; Dr. Gordon T. Atkinson, candidate for comptroller; Ex-Congressman Joshua W. Miles, of Somerset; and Hon. George Byrne, of West Virginia.

It is arranged to have a certain number of seats reserved for the ladies at the night meeting, in the hope that many of them will come out and grace the occasion with their presence. It is the purpose to get speakers who will speak out strongly for the Amendment and will give a convincing argument.

Large Meeting Of Old School Baptists Held Here.

Beautiful weather combined to make the Salisbury Re-union of Old School Baptists one of the most enjoyable in the confines of the Association.

Able sermons were listened to by large congregations, morning, afternoon and evening, Wednesday, Thursday and Friday, at the Church Street, Old School Baptist Meeting House and routine business of a general nature transacted. The many prominent Elders and out of town visitors from Virginia, Delaware, Pennsylvania and New York were made to feel entirely at home among their brethren and sisters in this city, who entertained them in the good old style, dear to the Eastern Shore.

Large dinners were spread on tables in the church yard and many made welcome in this manner.

From the pulpit were Elders: Darand, Southampton, Pa.; E. V. White, Leesburg, Va.; McConnell, New York City; J. T. Rowe, Baltimore, Md.; H. C. Kerr, Middletown, N. Y.; Cabbage, Delaware; Francis, Delmar; Poulson, Virginia.

Special Trains To Salisbury For Political Meeting.

Superintendent A. J. Benjamin has arranged to run two special trains for the big Democratic mass-meetings to be held at Salisbury on Saturday, October 28. A special train will leave Berlin about noon on Saturday and arrive at Salisbury about 1.30 p. m. in time for the afternoon meeting at the Opera House. Passengers can come on the regular morning train, or on the special train, as suits them. The passengers will return home on the regular evening train.

Passengers from Vienna and points to Salisbury will come in on the regular noon train, and a special train will leave Salisbury at 10.00 o'clock at night, after the night meeting. This will give all persons from Vienna to Salisbury an opportunity to stay to the night meeting and get home on the special train.

There will be no extra charge for these trains. The regular fare will be the only charge.

The same special service will be given the Republican meeting in Salisbury, October 25; except that of the Vienna train which will return at 6 o'clock in the evening instead of ten.

W. C. A. And E. S. B. C. Football Contest.

The Wilmington Conference Academy defeated the Eastern Shore Business College here Friday by a score of 36—0. The W. C. A. boys were heavier than the Salisbury eleven and outplayed them in speed and accuracy. The home team put up a fine game and fought hard in every play.

About four hundred witnessed the game. Captain Hill of the Salisbury eleven, played a star game, also C. A. Hill, Jr., and Fields starred for Salisbury.

Capt. Banks made the most sensational runs with the ball and backing up the line on defense was always in the play. Parks and L. Long the other backs were also in fine shape and never failed to make long gains when called on to take the ball. Cooper played a fine game at end. Mumford, the W. C. A. quarterback back, was a great help to his team by his level head work, good judgement and speed.

Coach Jackson deserves lots of credit for the strong team he has developed out of such raw and inexperienced material as that which has reported on Salisbury grid-iron this year.

Touch downs, Parks 2, Andrews 3, L. Long 2. Goals from touch downs Mumford 6. Referee Banks. Umpire Jackson. Timer, Sloop. Time of halves 20 and 15 minutes.

Caveat To Wilbur Johnson Will.

In the Orphan's Court for Somerset county, last Tuesday Mary Johnson, mother and next friend of Leland J. Johnson and Oliver C. Johnson, infants, by her attorneys, Gordon Tull and Robert Moss, filed a petition and caveat praying that the paper writing purporting to be the last will and testament of the said deceased, be annulled and set aside and that the letters of administration with the will annexed heretofore granted in the personal estate of the said deceased, be revoked whereupon it was ordered that the defendants mentioned in the said petition be and they are hereby required on or before the 14th day of November, 1905 to show cause, if any they have, why the said petition should not be granted, as prayed.

Wilbur Johnson was a former resident of Wicomico county, and owned considerable property in this county at the time of his demise.

PROTECTOR FOR COUNTRY HOMES

Makes Them Safe As Town Houses And Puts Them in Touch With The World.

The approach of winter suggests various methods for making the country home more cheerful and convenient. Standing, by right of superiority, at the head of all devices that make life more livable is the telephone. A telephone in the home, be it ever so isolated, is conclusive to the joy, pleasure and happiness of the mother, wife, sister and daughter, and is at the same time the greatest emergency helper for the father, husband, brother and son.

There are emergencies that come to every household that cannot be anticipated, but in almost all cases the telephone saves time, money and worry. As a lady remarked the other day referring to the telephone, "there is my little helper, it calls the grocer, doctor and my acquaintances. But more, and better than all is my protector. I am often left alone but feel safe because I know that should I be disturbed a ring and a call will summon assistance. And the knowledge that one has a telephone in the house deters many vicious persons. It is more protection than an arsenal of revolvers and every time I look at it I feel a sense of security, which of itself more than repays the cost."

These statements will apply to every home that has a telephone and the householder who fails to install a telephone is guilty of criminal negligence in failing to provide protection to his home. Every farm house on the Eastern Shore should have a telephone and the security that it gives the home folk is pay ten thousand times over for the small cost.

WHITE MAN'S ISSUE

Amendment Will Insure The Privilege Of Voting To All White Men, But Will Restrict The Votes Of The Negroes.

The passage of the Poe Amendment will accomplish what has been the great desire of the white people of Maryland for several years—THE ELIMINATION OF THOUSANDS OF NEGRO VOTERS.

Under the Amendment

Every White Man Can Register.

This is assured by the second section of the Amendment, which reads as follows:

"A person who on the first day of January, 1889, or prior thereto, was entitled to vote under the laws of this State, or of any other State wherein he then resided; or any lineal male descendant of such last named person who may be 21 year of age or over in the year 1890."

The above means: That if YOU WERE TOO YOUNG to be entitled to register in 1889, but YOUR FATHER was entitled to be registered that year YOU can register without any questions being asked; and if your FATHER was not old enough to be entitled to register in 1889 but your GRANDFATHER was, then YOU AND YOUR FATHER come under the same ruling and both will be entitled to register without question.

No White Man Will Be Barred Out.

Under the above section EVERY WHITE MAN who has ever voted or had his name on the registration books since 1869, his children and grand children can REGISTER BY SIMPLY SWEARING TO THE FACT.

The passage of the Amendment will compel EVERY NEGRO to read and explain a section of the Constitution. This will mean that thousands of negroes will be out of registering. This is not a political question—it is a WHITE MAN'S question, and should receive the earnest support of the white people of every party. It's passage will be the means of correcting a great evil and will prevent future trouble between the races.

What Gov. Glenn Says:

Governor Glenn of North Carolina has the following to say of the workings of the Amendment in his State:

"In response to your inquiry as to how the Amendment has worked in our State, I cannot emphasize my views of its benefits stronger than to say that I do not think there is a white man of any standing in the State, whether he be Democrat or Republican, who would like to see the present amendment of the Constitution repealed. Before the Amendment there were constant clashes between the races; disturbances and riots on the day of election, recriminations in regard to how the elections were held. Since the Amendment went into effect, we have had no trouble. The negroes who are qualified to vote, vote; those who are not, do not vote. In fact, the negro seems to have lost all interest in politics and has gone to work and is becoming a better citizen. Peace reigns at the polls: there are no disturbances of any kind. Election day is as quiet as Sunday and our people are prospering more than they have ever done in the history of the State. These are facts that cannot be denied by any conscientious man."

Deafness Cannot Be Cured.

By local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation cause can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness, caused by Catarrh, that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars free. F. J. CHENEY & CO., Toledo, O.

Millinery Display At Sharptown. Fall And Winter Opening.

Mrs. B. P. Gravenor held her fall and winter opening of millinery and fancy goods on Friday and Saturday of last week, October 13th and 14th. The large millinery parlors were tastefully decorated with holly and potted palms, presenting a pleasing hint of the autumn days. Throngs of the gentle sex invaded these domains to see and examine the season's styles and pass their opinions which were very satisfactory.

Among the many hats on display were a black French felt, faced with black chiffon velvet, with black trim and thrown over crown, with heavy black plumes, thrown from either side of back toward the front finished by a chone of the soft velvet. Another was a flat Resedagreen felt with high box plaited back faced with velvet a shade darker, side front of brim was caught by a pair of wings. Shading from reseda to white, finished by a rosette of ribbon, while the back bandeau was a solid mass of roses.

Then a child's white scratch felt, with brim slashed and light blue ribbon drawn through, which reminded one of basket weave, while three small blue tips were caught in front by the narrow ribbon, which was carried to side back where an immense bunch of it fell over the drooping brim.

Besides these, many of the new shades of blue and green were predominant. The visitors and purchasers were numerous and since the opening days the millinery establishment has been a very busy place.

MARYLAND ELECTORAL BASIS.

For the elective franchise in this State the Constitution of Maryland of 1867 provides as follows:

Article I—Elective Franchise.

SECTION 1. All elections shall be by ballot, and every white male citizen of the United States of the age of twenty one years or upwards shall be entitled to vote, etc.

The word "white" became inoperative under the Fifteenth Amendment to the Constitution of the United States.

The adoption of the proposed Amendment will virtually restore it.

Negro Suffrage Restriction Beneficial.

It is the general testimony of the most reliable persons that in those Southern States where negro suffrage has been restricted the result has been quite as beneficial to the negro as to the whites. Diverted from politics, the temptation to idleness and dissolute habits of life have been removed, and a great safe guard has been provided for the black man who has never understood the duties and obligations placed upon him by having the suffrage.

This paper sets forth by object lessons some of the manifold evils resulting from negro suffrage. It is convincingly shown how the negro presumes upon a divided white electorate for protection, and is encouraged in the commission of crime. For this reason alone, if there were no other, all well-thinking conscientious men should untiringly support the Amendment. Let no one be deterred from doing so by frivolous objections to the form of the Amendment. It is the only way by which the negro can be disfranchised with the sanction of the highest tribunal in the land. The disfranchisement of the negro is its sole object and not the disfranchisement of white men. Then if you favor its object do not hizzle at its form. To lessen crime, to render the sanctity of your homes more secure, to make outrageous assault upon your wives and daughters less likely to occur, to remove the incentive for association upon equal terms of both races, which leads to mixed marriages and mixed schools, should command the united effort of all white men everywhere.

The Golden Opportunity.

This generation may never have another opportunity to vote upon this question. Remember that its submission required a three-fifths vote of the Legislature, and the Democrats may never again have so large a majority in that body. The Republican party with its large negro electorate, would never dare to submit such a proposition.

Therefore, we conjure you, in the interest of Christianity and civilization, not to throw away this chance to rid yourself of a venal and corrupt negro electorate, together with all the evil consequences that flow therefrom. This is much too serious a question to be disposed of upon factional grounds; as to how it may affect this man's or the other man's interests should not be set off against the public good. It is more a moral than a political question, and the proper disposition of it will elevate the negro and save the white man from degradation.

RAYNER'S HIGH SOUNDING WORDS.

The expected has happened. The lion of orators has rushed forth from his den of silence, where he has been sulking ever since the adjournment of the Legislature of 1904. With a mighty roar of defiance he has shaken the political skies of Maryland to their very foundation. With all the bravado of a "Knight of Old" he has thrown his gauntlet at the feet of his foe, and hurled his defiance in their faces. The Democratic Party, its issues declared in the State Convention, its leaders—especially the leaders—are the causes for this outbreak. Every man admires a bold man, and a man that is bold enough to defy his party for his country's sake will always have the support of the American people. Any man that puts his party above his country is a traitor. If a careful study of Mr. Rayner and his letter of defiance to the Democratic party would show that he was acting from the high motive of his country's good—that he was opposed to the amendment from principles sake, every man in the state would respect his opinions even if they did not agree with him in his deductions. But the reader will be impressed with the idea that his opposition to principle is caused by personal animosity to certain of the leaders of the Democratic party. When a man opposes a principle because it is backed up by people for whom he has a grudge against, then his opposition is unworthy of consideration by any man. And despite Mr. Rayner's fervid offering of himself, his hopes, his bright dreams of future power and glory, on the altar of Public Weal, we cannot help but feel that the animosity and jealousy of heart more than the head is responsible for his opposition to the Poe Amendment.

GET RID OF NEGRO INCUBUS NOW.

Ever since reconstruction days the South has been trying to rid itself of the evils of negro suffrage. Maryland has been no exception to this rule, and for more than thirty years the cry of negro domination has been heard from every hustling in the state. This cry has been the most effective weapon of the Democratic party, and many a man has supported the party year after year because it was recognized as the "White Man's Party." Time and time again have the white men of this state rallied to the support of the Democratic party on this issue. Now a chance has come to rid ourselves forever of the negro vote. Is it possible that any man who in the past has rallied to the support of the party that has always been opposed to negro suffrage, should hesitate now that the chance is at last come when by our votes this issue can be settled and the ignorant negro kept from sharing in the councils of the white. An attempt is being made by the party which has always stood for negro suffrage, aided by some of the independents of the state—some of whom no doubt are sincere, but the vast majority led to do so by their hatred to certain leaders of the Democratic party—to discredit the Amendment. They argue that in getting clear of the negro vote the people of the state will fasten upon themselves forever the baneful rule of a gang of political leeches. Does any student of the times believe that the white men of this state will stand for any set of men who attempt to control the public affairs of Maryland for their own selfish purposes? The time has passed when such a thing is possible. Let it be only attempted and the men who do so will find themselves retired to private life so quickly that they will hardly know what hit them. The amendment is not perfect. It would practically be impossible to draw one that would meet with the approval of all. But the voters must bear in mind that—no matter how much he thinks the amendment might be improved—this is likely to be the last chance to rid the state from the negro vote. Do not let the opposition talk about the imperfection of the amendment blind your eyes to the main issue—the disfranchising of the negro. Remember that they are not only opposed to the manner in which this is to be done, but that they are opposed to the principle itself. When person or party is opposed to a thing itself it is not hard to find fault with the way that it is to be carried out. Remember that all the discussion that you hear from opposition sources will deal only with the way that the disfranchising of the negro is to be carried out. The arguments against the principle itself will only be used with the negro himself. Remember that next year you will not have this chance—it is probable that if the opportunity is not taken advantage of this year the citizens of Maryland will never have another chance to rid themselves of the negro. If there is any doubt in the mind of any white voter as to whether or not he should support the Amendment let him weigh this well before he casts his vote. Now or never! To live forever on a political equality with the black race, or by our votes this fall to forever rid ourselves of it and its degrading influence.

East Lynn, Wednesday, Oct. 25.

The J. L. Tempest Dramatic Co. will appear tonight in the old favorite, East Lynne. No company can compete with this one, as no pains have been spared in the selection of talent, scenery or mechanical effects. Jennie Tempest will appear in the character of Lady Isabel and Madam Vine in which she has appeared in all the leading theatres; it is the old story of a wife and mother goaded to infidelity by the falsehoods of an interloper and villain of the deepest dye who flies from her family but after months of torture of soul and body she returns in disguise to find her child dying. The piece is very pathetic and is sure to appeal to the better nature. The specialties are new and up to date. Don't fail to see this company's production of East Lynne on Wednesday night, Oct. 25th. Seats on sale at Box office. Prices 15, 25 and 35 cents.

Maryland Prospects.

The outlook for the present oyster season is much brighter than for some years past, according to dealers.

Oysters give promise of being prime and in sufficient quantities to make the business pay. The glut of last year will not be repeated, if it is possible to prevent it, and the mussels that inflicted such damage last year have not made their appearance on a large scale.

The oyster this year is large and firm, but so far continues thin. All of the tonging is being done up the bay, no oysters having been taken south of Herring bay and Poplar Island.

The dredging season begins on October 15th, and it is hardly probable that there will be a drop in prices until then.

Reports of large "sets" of small oysters in the Chesapeake Bay and tributaries are now supplying food for hopeful gossip by the oyster interest.

It is reported that many small oysters have been found on beds supposed to have been depleted, and experienced men in this important industry are taking an optimistic view of the future of the business in this state.

Captain William L. Slowter, of the oyster schooner, William H. Finney, was sailing out of the mouth of Chester River last week when he thought he would try an experiment. With a hand dredge he caught a bushel of oysters off Buoy Rock, a bed reported as depleted. He found that the oysters had clinging to them an immense quantity of seed oysters. When the vessel reached Baltimore the bushel of oysters was measured on the retail wharf, Boston Street, and he counted the small oysters clinging to those of marketable size. He counted just 2,290 of these small oysters, all of which would, in time, have matured. This special experiment, coupled with similar reports that have been made, lead to the belief that there is in the Bay and tributaries a better "set" than for years.—Centerville Observer, Md.

If The Baby Is Cutting Teeth,

Be sure and use that old and well-tried remedy, Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup, for children teething. It soothes the child, softens the gums, allays all pain, cures wind colic and is the best remedy for diarrhoea. Twenty-five cents a bottle.

Many remarkable curiosities appertaining to the formation and growth of oysters have been taken from the bottom of the Chesapeake Bay and tributaries, but the greatest curiosity is, no doubt, that of a crab caught a few days ago by a boy named Thomas Leonard, living in Cambridge, Md.

Upon the top or back shell of the crab seven oysters about the size of a nickel are growing. This is regarded as very remarkable, but it clearly proves that the spat of the oyster will cling to and grow upon almost anything with which it comes in contact. Young Leonard is keeping the crab alive, that all who wish may see it. Of course, if given its liberty the crab would die as a result of being overburdened by the growth of oysters, but the latter would thrive on until full grown and ready for the market.—Baltimore Sun.

He was a tall, raw boned Westerner, generously decorated with badges of the Order of Odd Fellows, which made him conspicuous as he entered a Market-street restaurant last night. "Give me a plate of raw oysters," he said to the pretty, dark eyed waitress. The plate of raws was placed before the lanky individual and before he could say "thunderation" they had disappeared. The order was duplicated several times over and as the Westerner walked up to the cashier with his check he told him that that was the best investment he had made for some years. "For" said he, "those things don't grow out my way."—Philadelphia Daily.

A JUDGE'S WIFE CURED OF PELVIC CATARRH

MRS. MINNIE E. McALLISTER.

She Suffered For Years and Doctors Failed to Give Relief—Cured by Pe-ru-na.

MRS. MINNIE E. McALLISTER, wife of Judge McAllister of Minneapolis, Minn., and Chaplain Loyal Mystic Legion of America, writes:

"I suffered for years with a pain in the small of my back and right side. It interfered often with my domestic and social duties and I never supposed that I would be cured, as the doctor's medicine did not seem to help me any."

"Fortunately a member of our Order advised me to try Peruna and gave it such high praise that I decided to try it. Although I started in with little faith, I felt so much better in a week that I felt encouraged."

"I took it faithfully for seven weeks and am happy indeed to be able to say that I am entirely cured. Words fail to express my gratitude. Perfect health once more is the best thing I could wish for, and thanks to Peruna I enjoy that now."—Minnie E. McAllister.

Mrs. Esther M. Milner, DeGraff, Ohio, writes:

"I was a terrible sufferer from female weakness and had the headache continually. I was not able to do my housework for myself and husband. I wrote you and described my condition as near as possible. You recommended Peruna. I took four bottles and was completely cured. I think Peruna a wonderful medicine."—Mrs. Esther M. Milner.

Congressman Thad. M. Mahon, of Chambersburg, Pa., writes:

"I take pleasure in commending your Peruna as a substantial tonic and a good catarrh remedy."—T. M. Mahon.

Pe-ru-na Contains No Narcotics.

One reason why Peruna has found permanent use in so many homes is that it contains no narcotics of any kind. Peruna is perfectly harmless. It can be used any length of time without acquiring a drug habit. Peruna does not produce temporary results. It is permanent in its effect.

As a tonic and nerve invigorator Peruna has no equal.

It has no bad effect upon the system, and gradually eliminates catarrh by removing the cause of catarrh. There are a multitude of homes where Peruna has been used off and on for twenty years. Such a thing could not be possible if Peruna contained any drugs of a narcotic nature.

IMPORTANT TO THE DEMOCRATS OF MARYLAND.

Instructions How To Mark And Vote The Ballot At Tuesday's Election, November 7. Note Carefully So Your Vote Will Count Truly For The Amendment And The Democratic Candidates.

Election day will be Tuesday, November 7th. The polls open at 8 o'clock A. M. in the counties, and close at 6 o'clock P. M.

In Baltimore city they open at 6 o'clock A. M., and close at 5 o'clock P. M.

Let every registered Democrat go the polls as early as he can and vote. See that the ballot given you contains the initials of the Judge who gave it out.

Vote the ticket by marking a cross (X) mark in the space provided therefor to the right of and opposite the name of every person or persons for whom you intend to vote; and by making a cross (X) mark in the space provided therefor to the right of the words "For the Constitutional Amendment."

Remember one mark at the head of the ticket will NOT vote the entire ballot as it used to do.

You must make a cross (X) mark opposite the name of EVERY person for whom you wish to vote; and also a cross (X) mark in the space provided therefor to the right of the words "For the Constitutional Amendment."

Do not let the (X) extend beyond the square. Make it entirely inside the square.

Do not make any other mark whatever on the ballot.

Any mark whatever on the ballot except the cross marks, whether in the square or out of it, will cause the ballot to be thrown out.

Do not make a dot or a circle or any other mark in the square but a cross mark.

If you mark your ballot with an X wholly in the square it will be counted.

If you make any mark of any kind with your pencil outside of the square, your ballot will NOT be counted.

Be sure not to deface or tear your ballot in any way.

If your pencil happens to make a hole through the ballot, return the ballot and get a new one. If you make a mistake in marking it, do not attempt to make a correction; return it to the Judge and get a new one. You are entitled to a third ballot if the first two have been spoiled and returned, but you must not consume more than seven minutes in marking it.

Be sure not to mark more names than there are persons to be elected to an office.

If you do, your ENTIRE ballot will not be counted.

For example, if you mark the names of FIVE candidates for the House of Delegates, and there are but FOUR candidates to be elected, your ENTIRE ballot, and not merely that part relating to the House of Delegates, will be thrown out.

This is most important to be remembered.

Find out before you vote the exact number of Democratic candidates and the number of Constitutional Amendments to be voted for.

Be sure to vote for all of these candidates and amendments. Count the cross marks made by you and be sure that you put no more cross marks than there are Democratic candidates and amendments on the ballot.

Mark your ballot with the INDELIBLE pencil which you will find in the election booth.

Do not use your own pencil; your ballot will not be counted if you do.

Fold your ballot exactly as it was folded when handed to you and give it to the ballot Judge, without permitting anyone to see how you have marked it.

See that the Judge tears off the coupon and deposits the ballot in the ballot box.

MURRAY VANDIVER,
Chairman State Central Committee.

MR. L. P. HUMPHREYS

Dies At The Age Of 61 At The Peninsula General Hospital.

Mr. Lafayette P. Humphreys died Tuesday afternoon at the Peninsula General Hospital, aged 61 years. His remains were removed to the home of his brother, Dr. E. W. Humphreys, where funeral services were held Thursday afternoon by Rev. Mr. Howard. The interment was made in Parsons Cemetery, Levin W. Dorman, J. C. Freney, G. W. White, Thos. H. Williams, G. S. Toadvine and W. B. Gordy were pall bearers.

Mr. Humphreys came from one of the oldest and most prominent families of Salisbury. He was a son of the late Gen. Humphrey Humphreys, one of the pioneers in business in Salisbury and one of the wealthiest men in this portion of the State. Mr. Humphreys was born in May, 1844, was graduated from Princeton College in 1866 and several years later was assistant principal of the Salisbury Academy under the late E. G. Polk.

He was school examiner of Wicomico county for four years and in April 1870, was appointed deputy under S. P. Toadvine, Clerk of the Circuit Court for Wicomico County. This position he held until January 1, 1881. For the last eight or ten years Mr. Humphreys had been one of the bookkeepers in the Salisbury National Bank, a position he held at the time of his death.

Mr. Humphreys was twice married. His first wife was Miss Lizzie Miles, sister of the late Ebenezer Miles, who died in January, 1873. In July 1873, he married Miss Annie Hooper, who died in September, 1902. From this last union one son survives, Mr. E. Gordon Hooper. He is also survived by two brothers, Dr. Eugene W. Humphreys, of Salisbury, and Randolph Humphreys, of Portsmouth, Va.

There are 881 midshipmen at the Naval Academy.

CONFIRMS STATEMENT

Of Hon. Joshua W. Miles, Senator Robinson, of Harford, Expresses Himself Strongly On Rayner's Ante Election Utterances.

Belair, Md., Oct. 24 1905.

Hon. Joshua W. Miles:

My Dear Sir—I read with great interest your communication published in The Sun of this date, and I note that you refer to the statement made by Mr. Rayner in your presence, in the early part of the session of the General Assembly of 1904, in which you state that Mr. Rayner voluntarily offered to enter into a written agreement to take the stump in advocacy of the Constitutional Amendment and further to favor the nomination of a gentleman for the Presidency whom he now denounces as a party dictator, seeking unlimited power by means of the proposed Amendment, provided that gentleman would lend his aid in securing Rayner's election as United States Senator.

The conversation with Mr. Rayner to which you refer was a conversation between that gentleman, yourself and myself. It occurred at Carvel Hall, in the city of Annapolis and I remember distinctly the incident and substantially all that occurred as clearly as if it had happened yesterday. You will recall that you and I were walking down the hall of the hotel together, and that Mr. Rayner approached us and sought an interview on the question then uppermost in his mind, viz. his election to the United States Senate. He started the conversation by saying that he was anxious to secure the support of Senator Gorman in his contest for the Senate, and could not understand why that gentleman did not support him. He stated with considerable emphasis, that he considered Mr. Gorman the strongest man the Democratic party could nominate for President in 1904; that he, Mr. Rayner, favored the nomination of Mr. Gorman, and that if the latter would support him in his candidacy for the Senate he was willing to go as a delegate to the National Convention and place him in nomination for the Presidency. He further stated that he would make a speech in the National Convention that would thrill that convention as much as William Jennings Bryan thrilled the convention of 1896, and that he would stump the country for Mr. Gorman on an issue dear to the people of Maryland, to wit, the unjust treatment of Admiral Schley by the President of the United States, the assured candidate of the Republican party, Mr. Roosevelt.

The Written Agreement.

The "offer" on the part of Mr. Rayner did not appeal particularly to either you or myself, and at this juncture one of us suggested that there was a matter of Legislation then pending that was of much greater importance to us than the election of a Senator or the choice of a President, and that was the passage by the Legislature of the proposed Constitutional Amendment to eliminate the negro vote in Maryland, in conformity with the pledge made by the Democratic party in its platform.

Thereupon Mr. Rayner, with great earnestness, said that no man in the State had gone further in advocating that measure than he had and that no amendment could be too strong for him; that he would enter into a written agreement to support it, and we might write the agreement to suit ourselves and make it as strong as we pleased. He urged us to communicate this "offer" to Senator Gorman as well as the other assurances he made and insisted that we should do so at once. It was well understood at the time of this conversation by every one then in Annapolis that the Amendment

SALISBURY ATHLETIC

Club. New Organization To Equip An Up-To-Date Gymnasium By Dec 1. 1906 Location Accepted. 63 Charter Members.

For many months the need of a gymnasium, reading and game room for the men of Salisbury has been keenly felt. Good, clean, athletic sport has received poor attention for a long time. Also physical training and exercise have been impossible except as taken by a few, individually.

To fill these voids and also to supply a source of social and intellectual benefit the Salisbury Athletic Club was formally organized Tuesday night with a membership of sixty three. All the leading young men assisted in the organization and became enthusiastic members.

Plans of procedure also location, were discussed with the result that Mr. William Phillips was appointed to select a location, Messrs. B. Ulman, Ray Truitt and Charles Wilkins appointed as a committee to collect and solicit funds, Messrs. Walter Huntington, William Phillips and P. A. Brown appointed as a committee to draft constitution and by laws.

On Thursday evening in the rooms of the Eastern Shore College, another meeting was held and more decided action was taken. The name, Salisbury Athletic Club, was agreed upon. Constitution and By Laws were adopted. Also the following officers elected: President, Ray Truitt; Vice-President, William Phillips; Secretary, Paul A. Brown. The report of the finance committee to the effect that considerable money was already in the Treasury was received by hearty applause. The rooms now occupied by Undertaker Hill on Dock Street were accepted as a location.

Another meeting has been called for next Tuesday evening in the rooms of the Eastern Shore College.

It is the firm intention of the club to keep the membership at a high standard by allowing only men of good character to enter it; a decision which speaks strongly for its welfare.

The club plans to at once equip a gymnasium, organize classes and be in running order by December. It has also been proposed to arrange afternoon classes for ladies to be in the charge of a lady who can give the necessary training.

—Mr. John H. Dulany, of Fruitland, was in Newark, N. J., this week attending a law suit there of the firm of J. H. A. Dulany Sons, against H. Koch & Co., of Newark. The Messrs. Dulany & Sons sold H. Koch & Co., two cars of canned tomatoes, 1905 pack. These were rejected on a declining market and the Messrs. Dulany allowed their claim of 2 1/2 cents per dozen, when they gave their notes in payment. These afterwards went to protest, because it is stated the defendants, H. Koch & Co., wanted still further rebate. The Messrs. Dulany sued on these notes, and on Thursday a verdict was rendered in their favor, giving them judgement in full with interest and costs.

ment now before the people had been before the party caucus and that if it had not been passed upon in bill form its present features had been agreed upon and approved.

I certainly understood at the time that the Constitutional Amendment which you, Mr. Rayner and myself were talking about and the one referred to in Mr. Rayner's "offer" was the one now pending before the people for adoption.

Very truly yours,

Thomas H. Robinson.
Respectfully submitted, Joshua W. Miles.

THE MISSIONARY CAUSE.

By Rev. J. T. Ward, D. D., F. S. S. Co.

When we were wandering far from God,
In paths of darkness and of sin,
He sent the preachers of His word
To show the danger we were in.

They told us of the Saviour kind,
Who came from heaven our souls to save,
And how the blessings we might find,
Which He to all believers gave.

We heard the precious Gospel-sound,
That offered peace to penitents,
And, trusting in the Saviour, found
True happiness, and joy intense.

Our hearts were changed, and filled with love
To God, and to our fellow-men;
And all who from His way do rove,
We long to bring to Him again.

Grateful for what He did for us,
And what He wills to do for all,
We bid them come to Him, and thus
Like blessings upon them may fall.

We see in our own happy land,
In churches, schools and charities,
The good results, on every hand,
Of Gospel-work, where'er it is.

These visions inspire our hearts with zeal
For Mission-work in every land,
And for this cause we can but feel Desire to see it wide expand.

Our Saviour to His followers said:
"Go preach My Gospel every where;"
And to His church that soul is dead,
Who for His cause feels not a care.

Thus by His preachers to us sent,
That we first learned His holy will;
And we now rest at all content,
Unless we His command fulfil!

If not in person, by our means,
We may the Gospel widely spread;
Though sea or mountain intervenes,
The tidings may be forwarded.

Then let us rally to His cause,
And save the needy perishing;
Toil in the work, and never pause,
While one to Jesus we can bring.

Give thought, and time, and money too,
To send the Gospel all abroad;
While prayers ascend, and praises due,
To Jesus, our victorious Lord.

WOULD KICK AND SCREAM

Baby's Awful Suffering from Eczema —Could Not Hold Her—Tore Face and Arms Almost to Pieces—Grateful Mother Says:

"CUTICURA REMEDIES SAVED HER LIFE"

"When my little girl was six months old, she had eczema. We had used cold creams and all kinds of remedies, but nothing did her any good; in fact, she kept getting worse. I used to wrap her hands up, and when I would dress her, I had to put her on the table, for I could not hold her. She would kick and scream, and when she could,
she would tear her face and arms almost to pieces. I used four boxes of Cuticura Ointment, two cakes of Cuticura Soap, and gave her the Cuticura Resolvent, and she was cured, and I see no traces of the humor left. I can truly say that they have saved her life, and I should advise any one suffering as she did, to give Cuticura a fair trial. Mrs. J. C. Conrad, Lisbon, N. H., Feb. 7, 1898."

FIVE YEARS LATER

Mrs. Conrad Writes

"It is with pleasure that I can inform you that the cure has been permanent. It is now six years since she was cured, and there has been no return of the disease since. I have advised a lot of friends to use Cuticura in all diseases of the skin.
Instant relief and refreshing sleep for skin-tormented babies, and rest for tired, fretted mothers, in warm baths with Cuticura Soap and gentle anoint-ings with Cuticura Ointment, the great skin cure. This is the purest, sweetest, most speedy, permanent, and economical treatment for torturing, disfiguring, itching, burning, scaly, crusty and pimply skin and scalp humors.
Sold throughout the world. Beware of cheap imitations. Cuticura Soap, 25c per box. Cuticura Ointment, 10c per box. Cuticura Resolvent, 50c per bottle.
In form of Chocolate Coated Pills, 50c per box. Sold by Dr. J. C. Conrad, Lisbon, N. H., Feb. 7, 1898."

DOMESTIC CLOUDS OR HASTY WORDS.

By Rev. J. T. Lassell, D. D.

(Written specially for The Church Herald.)

PART FIRST.

"O I wish I never had seen him!"
Were the hasty words she spoke.
As he stepped beyond the door-way:
And they shot, with fearful stroke,
Far into the inmost chamber
Of his noble soul, where dwelt His domestic joys and prospects—
Idol-gods, to which he knelt!

Heaven wrought in human temple
By that mystic lightning-flash,
Was terrible, though the thunder
Sounded low—without a crash:
Cherished idols, all, were broken;
Memory's sacred paintings, blurred;
Naught save whirling sighs was heard!

Thus stood temple till it tottered (Which it did soon) and fell To the earth a perfect ruin!
None was wise enough to tell
What the cause was of its falling.
—She, indeed, who dealt the blow
Had suspicion that the lightning
Of her ire had laid it low.

"O, I wish that I could see him!"
Was the burden of a sigh,
Whispering in another temple,
And, as weary days went by,
Sigh grew into wail, loud clamant,
Which a groaning woe oft met
"Mid the evening temple arches:
"I with aching heart regret
Every word I spoke in anger, Every chilling look I gave
To the father of my children."
Gone untimely to his grave!

"Wail" and "woe," soon full-grown giants,
Tore that temple to the ground:
And around it now, reigns silence;
And above its ruins, mount
Both those mortal faces have fallen,
Where love, earthly, had its shines,
In full splendor, pure love's radiance
From the face of the Adored!

"They have met as long forgiven
By each other and the Lord."
Now, their voices sweetly mingle
In rich songs of joy; while love
That is far beyond expression
—Only known to those above—Joins their hearts in blessed union.
—Rather seals their hearts, joined here:
And they find a bliss in heaven
Which on earth did not exist:
There no angry words are spoken:
There no angry flashes fire:
There no heart is ever broken,
Nor does life or love expire!

PART SECOND.

"I rue the day I met you!"
He said, with a sigh,
He said, "More trifles fret you,
Why don't you laugh or cry?
For then you are real pretty;
But when you're mad, Oh—say!
Come, take that back now, Kitty,
And they find a bliss in heaven
Which on earth did not exist:
There no angry words are spoken:
There no angry flashes fire:
There no heart is ever broken,
Nor does life or love expire!"

Women as Well as Men Are Made Miserable by Kidney and Bladder Trouble.

Kidney trouble preys upon the mind, discourages and lessens ambition; beauty, vigor and cheerfulness soon disappear when the kidneys are out of order or diseased.

Kidney trouble has become so prevalent that it is not uncommon for a child to be born afflicted with weak kidneys. If the child urinates too often, if the urine scalds the flesh, or if, when the child reaches an age when it should be able to control the passages, it is yet afflicted with bed-wetting, depend upon it, the cause of the difficulty is kidney trouble, and the first step should be towards the treatment of these important organs. This unpleasant trouble is due to a diseased condition of the kidneys and bladder and not to a habit as most people suppose.

Women as well as men are made miserable with kidney and bladder trouble, and both need the same great remedy. The mild and the immediate effect of Swamp-Root is soon realized. It is sold by druggists, in fifty-cent and one-dollar size bottles. You may have a sample bottle by mail free, also a

What Does It Mean

to let Dividends "accumulate" on a Life Insurance Policy? In many companies it means nothing more than an agreement on the part of the policy-holder, to do without dividends for fifteen or twenty years, and then take whatever dividend the company will be willing to give. Dividends are declared every year in the Mutual Benefit, and the policyholders use them either to help pay premiums or to buy increased insurance. The policies of the

THE NEW SHEEP BUSINESS.
Breeder's Giving More Attention to Type, Quality and Better Wool.
Until recent years the tendency of nearly all large breeders has been to change the character of their flocks with the times says Field & Farm. When wool commanded good prices and the size of the sheep was a secondary matter, they bred to the small, greasy merino, with the view of getting more pounds of wool. When wool prices declined the sheep breeders with one accord turned towards the large mutton breeds, such as Cotswolds, Lincolnshires, Leicester, and Shropshire. This indiscriminate crossing has brought about a condition in many parts of the west which the sheep men themselves can hardly explain. They have not fine wool, the fine medium, medium, of course, but a conglomerate which a buyer who has been sixty years in the wool business can scarcely tell into which class a fleece should go. This condition, however, in the past few years is being steadily remedied, until at the present time many of the largest breeders have so improved their flocks that their wool grades as fine medium, medium, or in some instances fine. Sheep breeders should breed more to type and quality, with some definite end in view. This old haphazard method should be relegated to the days of the past, when the range was wild and woolly.

Alfalfa and Live Stock.
The bulletin on alfalfa just issued by Purdue University No. 1011 is a very valuable one. It states that this plant can be successfully grown "As a nearly all well drained soils. As a food for all kinds of live stock alfalfa is the king for forage crops. It is especially rich in protein, or flesh forming material, and is well adapted for use in a ration with corn, which is relatively low in protein contents. It makes excellent hay and is more digestible than most forms of rough feed. As a pasture and soiling crop it has few, if any, equals, and one of the most highly is its rapid growth. For soiling purposes it can be cut four or five times in a season and for hay it will usually yield 3 good crops in Indiana, and sometimes four. As a pasture for hogs it is unequaled. It helps to keep the animals in a healthy condition. Hogs running on good alfalfa pasture are much less liable to cholera and other germs diseases. It also makes excellent pasture for cattle, sheep and horses. In pasturing ruminating animals on alfalfa it is, of course necessary to take the same precautions to prevent bloating as are necessary when pasturing clover."

Cost of Making Pork.
The State Experiment Station is doing a great amount of good in the work of feeding live stock, and showing the comparative cost with various feed stuffs. Here it is in brief. Experiments in Missouri agricultural college and station show that with corn at 30 cents per bushel it costs $2.79 to make 100 pounds of pork, where blue grass is fed with corn, with rape and corn the cost is $2.50 per hundred weight, with clover and corn it is $2.30 per hundred weight, and with alfalfa and corn the cost of 100 pounds of pork is but $2.13.

Wire Fences and Cattle.
The number of cattle killed each year by lightning has become considerably larger since wire fences have come into use in the west. Many cattle are killed in open fields surrounded by fences where there is not a tree or anything else to attract the lightning. The remedy is to run wires into the ground every few yards but in doing this the lower end must reach the moist earth in order to become an effective ground wire.

Pays to Buy Mares.
Good stallions as a rule are paying investments but a few good mares will in the long run be more profitable and less expensive. When the foals from the brood mares begin to come, the country at large is short on good brood mares and the number of high-class horses will not increase until more well-bred brood mares and fillies are used for breeding purposes.

Scours in Calves.
The latest remedy suggested for scours in calves is as follows which is said to be effectual even after they have become too weak to get up. A teaspoonful of alpsice simmered in a cup of boiling water a few minutes and given with a drenching bottle is perhaps the best method. It should be given three times daily and a few doses are usually sufficient.

Prof. Henry Myers, in lecturing to a London audience recently, said that there was no knowledge of the depth to which the South African diamond mines could be worked. The deeper they go the richer they become. Work can be carried on now to a depth of 2,500 feet. It is thought that it might be continued to a depth of 5,000 or even 10,000 feet, if the engineering difficulties could be overcome.

Prohibiting Corset Wearing.
A circular lately issued by the Prussian Minister of Public Instruction requests the provincial school boards and the federal governments in the German Empire to prohibit the wearing of corsets by the pupils of girls' schools and colleges.

ON THE VERGE.

Plenty of time behind us. Little before, but Wicomico County is now awake and alive to a momentous campaign. More than that there has been a constant activity among the leaders and within the ranks.

Stump speeches are being made all over the county and the provisions of the amendment are being explained and strongly advocated. Youth, middle age and old age are up in arms and almost every white hearted man is at work preparing to do his all on November 7th, for his race and fellow Democrats. No one can reasonably expect idle hours now until after Tuesday week. Wicomico should show her color true by giving the Democratic candidates a large victory and the amendment a majority of over 1000.

WHEN ANOTHER OPPORTUNITY? PROBABLY NEVER.

If the Poe Amendment is defeated when will the voters of Maryland get another chance to vote on the Question of negro suffrage? Those who are opposed to some of the provisions of the amendment should ask themselves this question before finally making up their minds to vote against the amendment. If the question of whether or not the negro should vote could be put before the people of our state, without any other qualifications, there is not a doubt but what a large per cent of the white people would say no. But there may be some who while they are in favor of disfranchising the negro do not like some of the provisions of the amendment put before them this fall. To these the question as to when another chance will come to rid the state of the negro politically is an important one, and should be fully weighed before election day. It is the object of those who from partisan reasons are opposed to the amendment, and of those who believe that the negro should have equal rights with the white race, to lead the voters to believe that they will have a chance later of voting for an amendment without the clauses that they now object to. The voters must not allow themselves to be fooled by any such argument. If the question is ever again to come before the people it must come through the democratic party—the republicans will never put it before the voters. The Democratic party must have a constitutional majority in the legislature before it can do it again. If the amendment is defeated this fall the democratic party will not be strong enough to pass another amendment, this year, and the probabilities are that it will be a good many years before three fifths of all the members of both houses are democrats and probably that will never come in the life time of those who have the chance this fall of voting on an amendment that will put the negro forever out of politics in this state. Think over this matter carefully and make up your minds whether or not you want an ignorant negro's vote to count as much as yours. The talk about a future amendment amounts to nothing. There is hardly the remotest chance of any future amendment. It is now or never. Free yourself now or forever endure the evils that now exist and will forever exist as long as the negro is given equal rights with the white man.

BRING THE AMENDMENT AND THE DEMOCRATIC TICKET HOME TO EVERY FIRE-SIDE.

One week from next Tuesday is election day. The candidates on the Democratic ticket should be actively at work, not each for his individual self, but for the whole ticket and the amendment. Every member of the County Central Committee should be at work, and every Democrat should consider himself a special delegate to see and talk with his neighbors about the importance of this campaign. Every man on the ticket should be elected to insure good, safe and economical government in the county and to assist in maintaining good government through the Legislature at Annapolis.

In canvassing go to see the women. They do not have votes, but many of them are taxpayers, and all have influence. Call their attention to the general good order and peace within our borders.

Tell them that they have been well secured from insult and assault, but that if the amendment limiting negro suffrage is not carried, hordes of Southern negroes will pour into the State, where they can indulge in primary elections and vote at general elections. Tell them that the better class of negroes will be strong competitors with white men in the field of labor. Tell them that with the better class of negroes will come a considerable number of the lawless and vicious class—the ignorant, lazy and worthless class—who live by stealing, politics, odd jobs and crap. This is the brutal class that are insolent, insult and assault women and children, pile up criminal costs and fill the jails and penitentiary. Tell the women they should be personally interested in keeping this class of negroes out of Maryland. They are frequently left alone in their houses and often have to walk or drive alone. For their own protection they should desire to keep the lawless negroes out of Maryland, and to keep them out they should get their husbands, sons, brothers and sweethearts to vote for the amendment.

No good reason can be advanced to change the control of county affairs. No good reason can be given why there should be a change in control of State affairs. No good reason can be given why the amendment should not be adopted. All sound argument and reason is for a continuation of the present county and State governments and the adoption of the amendment.

The remains of Asbury Parsons, corporal, M. 17th Infantry, who died May 18th in the Philippines, are expected by his relatives here about Nov. 2, via San Francisco.

The Allegany Supervisors of Elections decided not to place on the ballot the proposition to repeal the local road law. The petitions filed in the matter were not in proper form.

A New Boat.

The fact that a stone can skim the water if its flat surface strikes squarely has recently been put in practice in the construction of a sliding boat by French inventor. This invention, by M. de Lambert, is described in a recent number of La Nature of Paris by M. Daniel Bellet, who says that "to understand the theoretical advantages of the De Lambert invention we must consider the disadvantages of ordinary navigation. First, we have the resistance caused by the water in front of the boat. Then there is the friction of the water on the bottom of the boat. The first resistance, however, is the greater; it is in direct relation to the size of the submerged portion of the boat at its largest point, and it is only possible to modify this condition by giving the boat a form which facilitates the dispersion of the liquid mass. But this form has certain prescribed limits which must not be passed. The only way out of the difficulty is to build a boat which slides on the water." The friction which is present when the De Lambert boat slides over the water is very slight, and the power which is necessary in order to make the boat slide is not high. When the boat is at rest it is supported by floats.

The boat constructed by M. de Lambert has a total length of twenty feet, with a width of ten feet between the inclined planes upon which it slides. The boat has parallel floats resembling certain Asiatic canoes. The two floats are very narrow and are united by cross pieces partly of wood and partly of aluminum, a metal which has been used to a large extent in the construction of the boat because of its slight weight. The motor used is a De Dion-Bouton of twelve horsepower, but the essential parts of the boat are fixed sliding planes adjusted under the boat at carefully regulated distances from each other. These planes, which are made of wood, are immersed to a depth of several centimeters when the boat is at rest, and they are inclined at an angle which has been decided upon after wide experimentation. The total weight of the boat is about 1,200 pounds, but in order to move this weight it requires a motor of only twelve horsepower, while in the case of automobile boats the motors required are sixty, eighty and even one hundred horsepower.

M. Bellet says that M. de Lambert's boat has been timed by official chronometers, and that the results have been surprising. When the motor is started the boat commences to move with the planes still submerged, cutting the water horizontally. But this lasts only a short time; the planes show an instantaneous tendency to rise, and they are practically on the water at the end of a few meters. Then the speed quickly increases because of the immense diminution in resistance, and soon the boat is sliding on the water, or, more exactly, on a layer of air resting between the planes and the water. At a speed of fourteen fifteen, twenty five miles per hour.

Dr. Remsen On Self Made Man.

President of Johns Hopkins University says "We do not make ourselves, and for that reason I think the term is a fallacy." College degrees do not necessarily indicate a man is superior to another who does not possess one.

The statement made recently by Prof. Nathaniel Butler, principal of the School of Education of the University of Chicago, at the annual convention of the Brotherhood of St. Andrew held in Chicago, that "the term 'self made man' is a mere fallacy" has aroused considerable comment. Professor Butler, continuing, said: "The 'self made' man's success is due only to unusual ability. Efficient manhood—the manhood that ought to be offered to the world—no longer can be home made. In this time of competition the world is willing to pay the highest price for the efficient just as for articles of commercial use."

Dr. Ira Remsen, president of the Johns Hopkins University, was yesterday asked for an opinion on this subject: "It seems to me that the first point to settle is 'What is a self made man?' he said. 'Is the self made man one who has no education and yet succeeds in his life's work, or is he a man who has had only an elementary education, and not a college man? It depends entirely how this term is applied. It does not seem to me that any man is 'self made,' in the strict sense of the word; we do not make ourselves, and for that reason I think the term is a fallacy."

"The importance of education, every one I believe, will acknowledge is great, and ability, intelligence and other things being equal the man who has had the advantages of the higher education will naturally be more efficient. But the point should be emphasized that the fact that a man has attended a college does not imply that he is fully educated man, or superior to a man who has not had this advantage. There are many men who have gone through the routine of college and yet who cannot be called educated as they have not the ability in themselves to reach the standard of the educated man."

"At the same time there are many men to whom circumstances and conditions have forbidden a college career, and whose determination and force of character have prompted them to educate themselves. There are a large number of the latter class of men in the world—men who perhaps have been forced to go out into the world to earn their own living early in life, and whose successes have been marked. These men win the respect of everyone through their ability and certainly should not be counted inferior to the man who simply has a college course to his credit."

"However, education, while not everything, is a powerful factor in success and when to the ability and intellect is added the training given at the colleges and universities, the chances for success are increased and the results will naturally be more satisfactory. I never heard that an educated man regretted his education—rightly used, it will always be an assistance to him. This is the point which it seems to me Professor Butler intended to bring out and in this I believe everybody will agree with him. No sensible person will underrate the value of education or training."

—Dr. E. J. Dirickson, of Berlin, says: "In my candid judgement there is, according to population, more malaria in the cities of Washington, Baltimore and Philadelphia than there is upon the Eastern Shore. Even 25 years ago, when there was a general outbreak of malaria from Maine to Florida, I doubt if we suffered more than other localities. For the last 30 years I have been familiar with this subject, and during that time there have been two cumulative periods, the last one being less violent than the former, until at this time the cases of malaria that are met with are so rare that they attract attention. In my practice 25 years ago I used fully a thousand grains of quinine daily. I do not now use so many during an entire year. This is the experience of physicians generally on the Eastern Shore."

—There is a movement on foot among the members of the Baptist church for the establishment of a national seaside resort for members of that denomination. The suggestion took on very positive form at a meeting of the Baptist ministers of Philadelphia held recently, and a resolution was adopted giving encouragement to the establishment of such a resort. In a few days a committee consisting of the more progressive residents of Ocean City, along with one or two officers of Ocean City Development Company will visit Philadelphia to attend the weekly conference of Baptist ministers in the Crozier Building, and urge the claim of Sinepuxent Beach as an ideal place for the location of the proposed resort. An effort is also to be made to have the Baptists of the Eastern Shore take an interest in behalf of this movement, and add their active support to the proposed committee.

AUSTRALIAN'S VIEWS

HEAPS OF WEALTH BUT LITTLE HAPPINESS AMONG US.

Accompanied in Her Travels by Her Three Year Old Daughter—Says American Men are Admirable Husbands.

"Heaps of wealth and heaps of progress, but, to judge by the faces in the streets, very little happiness," is one of the impressions which Mrs. Helen Jerome, a clever newspaper woman from Australia, received of Americans.

Mrs. Jerome recently arrived here on a tour of the world. She has been commissioned by the Melbourne Age to study the conditions of women and labor in the United States, England, Germany and Russia.

Of American women she speaks with great enthusiasm, declaring them to be the best natured, most cultured and by far the best dressed women she ever met.

"They are spontaneous, natural and whole hearted with brains like electric sparks and I do not wonder that your men are proud of them and that foreigners seek them out," she said to-day.

"I find that it is impossible to bring up a subject upon which they are not quite at home. It is something."

What puzzles her in Australia, though, about the position of your women is their lack of the franchise, which the women in Australia already enjoy. We expect many more to have women seated in Parliament.

American men, she says, are "They are polite, affable, intelligent when they meet you," she said to-day "but they plainly impress you with the feeling that it is quite immaterial to them whether they ever see you or not again. One can see at a glance that they must make admirable husbands, for any five minute conversation with an American married man reveals the fact that there is only one woman on earth—his wife."

"I wonder, though, that they ever took time to propose, they are so evidently absorbed in a rush for the almighty dollar."

Although requested especially to study the color problem, Mrs. Jerome "doesn't find any color problem to study." The chief danger to be feared from the colored people, thinks Mrs. Jerome, is from the fact that they have the right to vote without the ability to do so intelligently.

Pongee is Stylish.

The handsome silks, including pongee, in all its variations, are in high favor as the season advances, and the smoother surface pongees are regaining the prestige they lost last year. One model is in natural color pongee and the full skirt is in small tucks over the hips. The bottom is trimmed with three bands of almond green velvet ribbon in graduated widths. On the bodice, a yoke pointed in front, is made of all-over lace; a circular collar of two deep ruffles of lace is joined to same by a band of velvet ribbon matching that used on skirt and which also edges the collar. A jacket effect is given by draped pieces of the material drawn from each side to bust line over a vest of pongee and held in place by a bow of velvet ribbon. An odd but artistic sleeve is made with a puff pongee from shoulder to elbow and finished there with two flounces of lace and a strap band of material edged with lace.

Big Post Office Business.
 We have 75,000 post offices and 500,000 miles of postal routes, with a yearly travel over them amounting to 500,000,000 miles. The service costs over $150,000,000 a year. The receipts now almost equal the expenditures and have doubled in the last ten years.

Strawberry Short Cake.
 Steam two quarts of hulled berries. Sweeten them to taste and mash slightly with a wooden spoon. To make the cake, rub into a quart of flour two ounces of butter, a teaspoonful of salt and two teaspoonfuls of baking powder. Then add sufficient milk to make a soft dough. Mix quickly, roll out about one and a half inches in thickness, put in a greased large square baking tin, and bake in a very quick oven for over twenty minutes.

Split in half when taken from the oven and spread each half with butter. Place the lower half on a large meat plate; put half the berries on this, then the other half of the short cake and put the remainder of the berries on top. Whipped cream may either be poured over the whole cake or served with it in a separate dish.

This cake will serve eight persons.

UNLUCKY BOOK AGENT.

Talked to No Purpose to a Woman Who Was Deaf.

"I'll admit there are drawbacks in every business," said the garrulous book agent in the Philadelphia Record, "but when it comes to ups and downs, book canvassing carries off the palm. Yesterday I blew into a house of which I had ascertained the occupants' name, and after asking for Mrs. So-and-So, I was ushered into the parlor. In a moment a delightful old lady entered, and, greeting me with a pleasant smile, said, 'Good morning.' I explained that I was selling a set of travel books on easy terms, and without waiting for her reply began to show her one of the books. It happened to deal with India, and was filled with pictures of famine stricken natives and mission churches. She took a deep interest in these, examining them intently, and, sure of a sale, I didn't give her a chance to talk. For a quarter of an hour I got off my stereotyped 'spiel,' and then, producing contracts, began to urge business. The old lady seemed puzzled and pushed a button. To my surprise, the young woman who responded began to talk to her with the deaf and dumb finger method. Then she turned to me, and explained that there had been a mistake. It appeared that the old lady was deeply interested in foreign missions and her minister had promised to send his assistant with some striking pictures of the Indian famine. The old lady was stone deaf, and all my talk had been wasted."

Justly Indignant.

A Scottish minister was expounding the miracles, and considered the swallowing of Jonah by the whale. He was one of those gentlemen who take a very long way round for a short cut, and was proving first of all that it could not be this or that, or the other fish. "It couldn't have been the shark," he was going on, when an old lady from a pew cried out, "Moonster! Moonster, wassa the beast a whale?" The good man was speechless with indignation for an instant, then in tones of thunder he retorted, "A whale? A whale? Ye bletherin' aul deevil, what dae you ken about it? What d'ye mean by takin' the word o' God out o' my mouth?"—Kansas City Independent.

Uncle Had a Reason.

Rev. Silas Swallow tells that when he was a student at the Wyoming Seminary, a farmer came to Kingston to visit his nephew, a student there. The uncle had some decidedly urban customs, including the habit of pouring his tea into his saucer. This greatly annoyed the nephew, who at last said: "Uncle, why do you pour your tea into the saucer?"

"The old farmer looked up in surprise. Then he said, in a loud, hearty voice: 'To cool it, to be sure. The more air surface you give it the quicker it cools. These here modern seminarians don't teach much science, do they?'—Argonaut.

THE Viewpoint.

She (Intellectual)—I have found Harold Scribner Pendall's latest novel to be sadly lacking in an intelligent grasp of life and character, without a psychological insight into the temperamental distinctions of sex, wanting all familiarity with the euphonious juxtaposition of words, and therefore foolish and futile as an exposition of human probabilities. He (athletic)—Yes, that's just what I told 'em all! "It's on the blink!" says I. "Strictly on the blink!"—Woman's Home Companion.

Logical.

Bridget—I'll hov to be lavin' ye, ma'am, unless ye give me more wages.

Mrs. Hiram Offen—More wages? Why, you don't know how to cook and you don't even know how to wash dishes properly.

Bridget—That's jist it, ma'am. The work's harder fur me bekaas I don't know how to do it.—Philadelphia Press.

Beautiful Language.

"Gracious! such language from a baby!"

"Awful, isn't it? You see her nurse has been taking her to her sister's every day or so for a visit."

"Her sister must have a parrot!"

"No; she has a husband."—Houston Post.

To Whiten Linen.

A little piece of dissolved in the water used in washing linen saves a great deal of labor and soap and cleanses the dirtiest linen thoroughly. This method is especially useful in towns where outdoor bleaching is generally an impossibility.

RHEUMACIDE has cured thousands of cases of Rheumatism after all the doctors and all other means had failed. Rheumacide cured John F. Elme and others, of Baltimore, after the famous specialists of Johns Hopkins Hospital, the greatest hospital in the world, had failed. Rheumacide cured Austin Percelle, of Salem, Va., and D. H. Olmstead, the Norfolk, Va., contractor, after they had spent large sums on other remedies and the doctors had given up hope. Rheumacide cured Mrs. Mary Welborn, of High Point, N. C., of rheumatism she had endured for 20 years. Rheumacide cured W. R. Hughes, of Atkins, Va., after the most famous New York specialists failed. There is a reason why it cures: Rheumacide is the latest discovery of medical science, and while powerful enough to sweep all germs and poisons out of the blood, it operates by purely natural methods, does not injure the most delicate stomach, and builds up the entire system.

MARDELA.

The concluding chapters of the History of our town will be given in a few weeks. For the present the writer is otherwise engaged. In the last chapter for some unaccountable reason, the periods and commas got badly mixed. The periods would persist in occupying the places of the commas. They surely must have been to an Irish Wake the night before, or the printer's devil had pied the form. Possibly it was the commas that were to blame, they may have gotten into a row and had their caudal appendages torn off, and then they began to masquerade as periods. They are little things, but when they get in the wrong place, they can play havoc with carefully prepared articles.

Rev. B. G. Parker and wife, are attending the meeting of the Maryland Baptist Union Association. It is being held in the Fulton Avenue Baptist Church of Baltimore. Mr. Parker will speak at one of the sessions, and also occupy one of the city pulpits on Sunday.

Mr. Parker last Sunday made a brief statement of his work during the year. He has preached 141 sermons; made 608 visits; travelled 2184 miles and baptized 19 candidates and received three others upon experience of faith. He also mentioned the fact that besides the general prosperity of the church, they are also building a house for their Athel mission. The Maryland Baptist Union Association, to which our local Baptist church belongs, has sixty ministers. Last year there were 10333 members. The value of the church property is $755,203.

On Saturday last, there came very near being two fires in our town. At Dr. Wilson's a lamp took fire and was thrown out of the window. Just across the street, at Mr. J. E. Bacon's the chimney caught fire and for awhile the whole house was threatened. These are warnings, and will our citizens take the hint? This scribe has pleaded with the people to organize a Fire Department of some kind, but so far the suggestion has not been acted upon. We have absolutely no way of extinguishing fires should they occur. Remember the old adage of "Looking the stable door after the horse is stolen." After we have had a fearful fire, then there will be a Fire Department, but why not organize one before the fire gets in its terrible work?

There will be regular preaching in Hebron M. P. Church on Sunday, October 31st, at 10.30 o'clock, also a special service will be held on Sunday afternoon in Mardele M. P. Church at which service the members of Temple Lodge No. 170 Ancient Free and Accepted Masons will be in attendance and a special sermon for that occasion will be preached. Every one is cordially invited to come. Services will be at 3.30 o'clock also preaching in the same church in the evening at 7.30 o'clock; subject, "Abuse of Divine Blessings."

Captain Chas. Stanley, of Baltimore will give his famous seriocomic entertainments in the different churches of Mardele circuit as follows: Monday, November 15th, 7.30 p. m., at St. Stephen church; Tuesday, November 16th, at 7.30 p. m., at Hebron church; Wednesday and Thursday, November 17th and 18th at 7.30 in Mardele church. Admission 15 cents. Mr. Stanley has thousands of life motion pictures which are wonderful, thrilling, realistic and amusing. Two hours entertainment each evening and also different scenes. It is said of Capt. Stanley that he has the finest entertainment of its kind in Baltimore.

Walter Stouffer has been awarded the contract by the Washington County Commissioners to build a model road from Hancock to the Pennsylvania line for $9354.55. The distance is about a mile and a half.

Section 1. Be it enacted by the General Assembly of Maryland (three-fifths of all the members of the two houses concurring). That the following section be and the same is hereby proposed as an amendment to the Constitution of this State, and if adopted by the legal and qualified voters thereof, as herein provided, it shall supersede and stand in place and stead of Section 34 of Article 3 of said Constitution.

Section 34. No debt shall be hereafter contracted by the General Assembly unless such debt shall be authorized by a law providing for the collection of an annual tax or taxes sufficient to pay the interest on such debt as it falls due, and also to discharge the principal thereof within fifteen years from the time of contracting the same, and the taxes laid for this purpose shall not be repealed or applied to any other object until the said debt and interest thereon shall be discharged. The credit of the State shall not in any manner be given or loaned to, or in aid of any individual, association or corporation; nor shall the General Assembly have the power in any mode to involve the State in the construction of works of internal improvement, nor in granting any aid thereto which shall involve the faith or credit of the State; nor make any appropriation of the State's funds for the construction of works of internal improvement in the counties of St. Mary's, Charles and Calvert, which had no direct advantage from such works as have been heretofore aided by the State; and provided that such aid, advances or appropriations shall not exceed in the aggregate the sum of five hundred thousand dollars, and they shall not use or appropriate the proceeds or the internal improvement companies, or of the State tax now levied or which may hereafter be levied to pay off the public debt, to any other purpose until the interest and debt are fully paid, or the sinking fund shall be equal to the amount of outstanding debt; but the General Assembly may, without laying a tax, borrow an amount never to exceed fifty thousand dollars to meet temporary deficiencies in the treasury, and may contract debts to any amount that may be necessary for the defence of the State.

But nothing in this section or in this Constitution shall deprive the General Assembly of the power to appropriate money to the city of Baltimore and to appropriate to the city of Baltimore and the counties of the State out of any funds in the Treasury not otherwise appropriated, a sum of money not exceeding four hundred thousand dollars each year, to be expended only in the construction and maintenance of public roads and highways under and in accordance with such regulations as the General Assembly may from time to time prescribe.

Section 2. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, that the foregoing section hereby proposed as an amendment to the Constitution shall be, at the next general election held in this State, submitted to the legal and qualified voters thereof for their adoption and rejection, in pursuance of the directions contained in Article 14 of the Constitution of this State, and at the said general election the vote on said proposed amendment to the Constitution shall be by ballot, and upon each ballot shall be printed the words: "For Constitutional Amendment" and "Against Constitutional Amendment," as now prescribed by law, and immediately after said election due return shall be made to the Governor of the vote for and against said proposed amendment, as directed by the said fourteenth article of the Constitution.

THE HIGHER LIFE.

Selected Gems of Thought from Press and Pulpit of All Sects.

Think of what favor Jesus has done for you in bearing your sins and their just punishment, and you refuse to acknowledge him. Can you think of anything more unnatural, more unreasonable?

When a man believes on Christ, he is justified and becomes a child of God. His salvation is assured from that time; but he has to be made holy, to be trained and disciplined and made fit for the Master's service. This blessing does not always come at once, but is often a process of shining through life.—Christian Herald.

Military and Church Duty.

If in some way the church could make it felt by its own people that moral courage is as honorable as military courage, we should see in the church more cases to parallel the fearless Japanese spies, who asked and got their request—that when they were shot, it should be with human unbound and eyes unbanded.—Christian Herald.

Waiting God's Time.

Eljah had to wait how long to wait God's time; he let the foolish prophet go on, hour after hour, with their senseless appeals to a god who was not, until the evening drew near; and then he who had come near to the people, called them, now that they were disillusioned, to come near to him. As he had taken command of the king, he now takes command of the people; and they obeyed. In the presence of king and priests, false prophets and people, he "repaired the altar of the Lord, which was broken down." He took twelve stones, for every tribe must have its representative stone, and thus repaired the altar, building it in the name of his God and Israel's.—Christian Herald.

The Incomparable Book.

"No other book, let us be sure of it, can equally avail to prepare us for that which lies before us; for the unknown anxieties and sorrows which are sooner or later the portion of most men and women; for the gradual approach of death; for the passage into the unseen world; for the sight and sounds which then will burst upon us; for the period, be it long or short, of waiting and preparation; for the Throne and Face of the Eternal Judge. Looking back from that world, how shall we desire to have made the most of our best guide to it? 'O Lord Thy Word endureth for ever in heaven; Thy Truth also remaineth from one generation to another.'—Christian Herald.

Finding Time for Duty.

An overburdened minister in a manufacturing town went in succession to six different leading members of his church and asked for a simple service in the mission work which he was carrying on, and each man in turn declined the opportunity for service, on the ground that he could not give the time to study the Sunday School lesson on account of pressing business engagements. It is the busiest men of our churches have been found to be among the most earnest Sunday School teachers, mission workers and city missionaries, while other business men who belong to churches never for one moment think they can give any time to such work. The fact is, the soul that is not fired with the thought of the needs of dying humanity, and the needs of living humanity as well, can always find excuses enough to shirk the most necessary work of the world.—Christian Herald.

Father and Warden.

In a recent article on prison discipline, a magazine writer tells a pathetic story. He says that the warden of a prison in Connecticut employed his son, a bright young man, as his clerk. It was his duty to keep the prison accounts and draw the checks for expenses. Notwithstanding the many examples he witnessed of the consequences of dishonesty, the young man became a defaulter. His system was to raise the amount on the various checks passing through his hands and keep the difference between the sums for which the checks were originally drawn, and the sums to which he raised them. He was detected, and sentenced to four years' imprisonment. As he entered the gates of the prison with the other prisoners, he looked anxiously into his father's face, but the father, who, as warden, was waiting to receive the prisoners, did not show that he recognized his son. To him the young man was only one of the prisoners committed to his custody. With the customary signal of a wave of his hand, the warden turned the file of handcuffed men over to the deputy, who led them away to shave and bathe them, and measure them by the Berrillon system. Within an hour the young man was learning the lock-step with the other prisoners. It is said that he is bitterly disappointed. His father had been a loving and indulgent parent, and the son had unbounded faith in the continuance of his affection. He forgot that his crime had placed him in a new relation to his father, whose duty to the State required him to treat him as a convict and not as a son. There is reason to fear that many people are cherishing similar hopes for their eternal future. Will it be true that God is love, it should not be forgotten that he is also just.—Christian Herald.

Morning Suits.

The morning suits for street wear will be severely plain, especially so in the linen suits, which are finished with a deep hem and stitching. Rusty shoes will be a feature of the street attire, but they differ from those of former years, not only in being of much darker shade, but also in having the flat bow to the instep. With the tailor suit a soft leather belt is usually selected, which may be ornate or plain, according to the taste of the wearer.

SATURDAY NIGHT TALKS

By F. E. DAVISON

A CURE FOR THE BLUES.

Oct. 29, '05—(Zech. 4: 1-10.)

Great truths are often flashed into the mind through the window of the eye. In the galleries of Versailles the history of France is written in color. The canvas that lines the walls records the varying phases of the national life.

When we look into the Scriptures the same thing meets us. The pages sparkle and glow with life. The truth is not taught in dry formula, but it is flashed upon the mind from parable or symbol or pictures. God paints marvellous lessons in burning bush, pillar of fire and cloud, visions of patriarchs and prophets, splendors of transfiguration mount flaming canvas of the Apocalypse.

The vision which Zechariah saw is a case in point. The Jew returning from captivity had made an enthusiastic beginning at rebuilding Jerusalem. They began with the Temple, and laid the foundations in a few months. Then, surrounded by enemies, hated by rivals, discouraged by difficulties, put back by false reports, they ceased their work, and for 12 or 14 years the bare foundations of the house were allowed to remain, a Temple abandoned.

Then came forth Haggai and Zechariah and stirred up the people to finish what they had begun. To inspire them with confidence Zechariah tells them the vision of the Golden Candlestick. The candlestick or lamp stand naturally had to be filled with oil daily. But in the vision of Zechariah the olive trees are tapped, and the oil, without any human help flows in a continuous stream that the lights may never go out. "Now," in effect said Zechariah, to the Jewish people, "you are the lamp stand and you will be kept bright and shining because you are supernaturally helped. No one can adulterate your life, and no one can cut it short, and no one can check its flow. Let your light shine among the nations for no human power can hinder it." Cheered by such a prospect the people roused themselves to a new trial, and in a few years the marvellous Temple stood complete.

You see how one man with a message of hope and good cheer revolutionized a nation. They had all been saying, "It is no use! We never can hope to accomplish anything here; the odds are too great against us!" But Zechariah's vision of the golden candlestick, sustained by the trees of oil, put new heart into them, they saw things in a different light, and they rose up to build.

Encouragement! We all need it. There are very few people who do not at some time in their lives have the "black agonies." It is all very well to philosophize about it, and learnedly explain the cause, but that doesn't help the victim. The thing to do is to get him out. And the only way to do that is to show him the lampstand, glowing with supernatural radiance.

He has been looking to the dark side; show him the bright side. He has seen the oil magnates monopolizing the illuminating product; show him olive trees that he can tap himself and get up a little corner in oil on his own account. He has been listening to the groans of the luxurious despondents around him; sing the song of the victors in his ears. He has looked in vain for human helpers; teach him that he can get along without them who has supernatural forces at his command.

There is no man more to be pitied than the constitutionally pessimistic. It is worse and more to be dreaded than fever and ague, rheumatism and gout. Knowing it to be two-thirds imaginary, yet the trouble is as real to the victim as the snakes are to the man in a desert tremens. All such people should cultivate the brightest society, the cheerfulness surroundings, the most digestible food, the best-dispositioned associates.

If he is a laboring man let him take small doses of labor troubles in the newspapers, but large doses of philanthropic movements, of which the world is full. If the victim is a hard-worked mother with six children, let her rejoice that she has a sober husband. If he is a teacher, let him be thankful that he is not a layman; and if he is a layman, let him rejoice that he dodged the ministry.

Every man who looks for them will find lamps of illumination on the darkest problems, and exhaustless sources of supply where he least expected them. The world needs more Zechariahs to point out golden candlesticks to weeping eyes.

Let it be ours to act the part of optimistic seers. One weeping Jeremiah is enough. There is only one Book of Lamentations in the sixty-six books of the Bible. While from cover to cover it sings and dances, and laughs, and claps its hands and thunders its hallelujah chorus. He who is on his way to thrones, and palaces, and crowns, and bannered processions has no right to be gloomy. The owl, bird of the night, hooting its melancholy notes in the thicket was booed from the mansion of the Jews but there was no objection to the lark and the nightingale. Drive out the owl. Let him not roost and croak in your soul. Look on the bright side of things.
