UTAH IS ON THE WAY

And Will Be Produced in Uman's Grand Opera House Next Wednesday Evening. Deals Of Mormon Life And Customs From The Real, At Salt Lake City.

Wednesday August 26th, marks the opening of the local theatrical season and as the first attraction Mr. Edward Schnurber Jr., begs to present his big pastoral comedy, "Utah."

"Utah" is somewhat of a peculiar play as it deals with the Mormon race. The leading role is portrayed by Mr. George Sprague the great emotional actor, who is reputed to be able to move an audience to tears in one minute and the next have them screaming with laughter.

"Utah" comes direct from its long run at the Bowdoin Square theatre Boston, Mass., with a car load of special scenery and electrical effects which are so necessary now days in the proper production of a play of this kind.

"Utah" deals with a class of people which we in the east here know very little about as they have never before been successfully represented on the American stage.

The author of the piece, Mr. Levin B. Parker, prides himself with the production as it is taken from real life. All of the scenes of the play are laid in and around Salt Lake City.

The second act shows a typical Mormon cattle ranch, situated in San Pedro Valley in spring time. "Utah" explains the term polygamy and illustrates it. It has been endorsed by both Press and Pulpit as a great moral lesson.

The characters are all well drawn, true descriptions of Mormon life, embracing many things that make a play of this nature a success.

It is a play that will leave a lasting impression which is conveyed by these moral dramas. The climaxes are all well drawn and in keeping with nature. "Utah" will be produced at Uman's Grand Opera House Wednesday Aug. 26th.

Whaley—Dale.

The marriage of Miss Josephine M. Dale, sister of Mr. Harry P. Dale, and Mr. Walter P. Whaley, son of Mr. Peter Whaley, took place at half past six o'clock Thursday morning at the M. P. Church, Whaleyville, Rev. Mr. Moore officiating. Mr. Wm. Whaley acted as best man, and Mr. Ford Hopkins and Mr. Edward Whaley as ushers. Miss Fannie Condon and Miss May Collins as bridesmaids. The wedded couple took the first train north and will visit Niagara Falls on their trip. The bride entertained her friends the evening before the wedding, and on their return will make Whaleyville their home.

UNDER THE OAK.

Five Generations Will Meet. Reunion Of The Walston Family.

On Sunday, August 30, 1903, representatives of five generations will meet beneath the long, spreading branches of a large oak, on the Walston homestead, in Little Creek, Sussex County, Del.

There will be preaching by aged ministers and the service will be held especially for old people. The occasion will be one of great interest and hundreds of people will meet to hear the gospel preached and hear the retrospections of many years. A general invitation has been and is hereby extended to all and special invitations have been given several aged people to take part in the exercises of the day.

Farmers & Merchants Arranging For A New Bank Building.

Simons & Bounds have been awarded the contract for building the new banking house of the Farmers and Merchants Bank. Its location will be on south Main Street, on the west side of the lot bought of Ex-Gov. Jackson by R. E. Powell & Co. It is expected to cost about $12,000 exclusive of fixtures and heating facilities.

The main floor will have a large directors' room in the rear of the vault, which will be finished in quartered oak. The wainscoting in the lobby will also be of quartered oak. The lobby will have tile floor. The desks, counters and other fixtures will be in harmony with the interior finish.

The building will be 25x63 feet, with 30 foot elevation, with a front almost entirely of terra cotta. The building will have a basement, in which will be located the steam heating plant and a large vault for the storage of old books and papers.

Death Of Mr. Levi Purnell.

Levi Purnell, of Snow Hill, who has been in failing health for the last few months and who was taken to the Johns Hopkins Hospital on Tuesday last week, died there Thursday. His daughter, Mrs. Thomas M. Purnell, of Snow Hill, was with him when he died. Mr. Purnell was 62 years of age, and leaves many friends to mourn his death. His business interests were many and he was always interested in new enterprises in the town. He was a director of the Pocomoke City Ice Company, ex-president of the Snow Hill Building and Loan Association and vice president of the national bank in Snow Hill. His wife, Mrs. Sarah Messick Purnell, survives, with two sons, Matthew and Wallace Purnell, and one daughter, Mrs. Thomas M. Purnell, of Snow Hill.

A TRUE STORY.

How a Young Wife Regained Her Health and Beauty.

W. E. Birch, Afton, Va., an extensive fruit grower of that place, writes the following letter to the Peruna Medicine Co., of Columbus, Ohio. We print the letter in full:

Afton, Va., June 4, 1900. The Peruna Medicine Co., Columbus, O. Gentlemen:—The country is so flooded with patent medicines of every kind that is worthless and a humbug, that I for one, am glad to be able to say I have found one that is everything and more than is claimed for it.

"My wife was very much run down and out of sorts in every way. She had a pelvic disorder which left her very weak, nervous and no appetite at all. One day I happened to be at my father's store, B. A. Birch, Corvallis, Alb. county, Va., and noticed your medicine had been there for sale.

"I thought it might help my wife, so I brought a bottle of it home and within a week she commenced to eat and now she is hungry all the time and not half the medicine has been taken. We both agree that it beats any medicine to bring on an appetite and to put the nerves in good shape that we have ever had anything to do with. We had our family doctor to give her medicine and he did all he could, but she did not improve the least. She has consumption in her family and she was in such bad shape; so run down, nervous, weak, and could not eat, that I had begun to get very uneasy, but your medicine made an entirely new woman of her. I believe she eats and feels better now than she has for years.

"I have not the slightest doubt but that your medicine has saved her from a long spell of sickness, if nothing more. All my family had begun to get uneasy, but, of course, she did not know it and I have only just told her of it since she has improved so much. I had no idea it would do half what it has and don't think there is another medicine made that will begin to compare with it."—W. E. Birch, Fruit Grower, Afton, Alb. county, Va.

If you do not derive prompt and satisfactory results from the use of Peruna, write at once to Dr. Hartman, giving a full statement of your case and he will be pleased to give you his valuable advice gratis. Address Dr. Hartman, President of The Hartman Sanitarium, Columbus, O.

COUNTY REPUBLICANS

Nominated A Ticket At The Court House Last Tuesday. Passed Resolutions And Named Delegates To State Convention. Conspicuous Presence Of Negroes.

Following the selection of District delegates at the Republican primaries of last Saturday, the County Convention, was assembled on Tuesday at noon and nominated a County ticket, passed resolutions, elected their State Central Committee and named delegates to the Republican State Convention. As usual with the Republican Convention gatherings many black spots were seated among delegations in the Courthouse.

Mr. A. J. Benjamin presided over the Convention as chairman with Mr. Virgil Bailey for secretary. Mr. D. H. Foskey, of Delmar, was made chairman of the Committee of Resolutions and Mr. A. K. Parsons, chairman of the Committee on Permanent Organization.

The District Delegates.

Baron Creek, No. 1—James T. Waller, Levin R. Wilson, Samuel W. Bennett, Quantico, No. 2—W. Roy Wilson, Joseph H. Cordery, Washington Watson, John E. Townsend, Ira Disharoon, Ezra S. Boston.

Delmar, No. 11—D. H. Foskey, B. W. Parker, J. Edwin Waller, Nanticoke, No. 12—E. S. S. Turner, F. M. Travers, F. A. Willing.

In the election of the State Central Committee there was a fight against the re-appointment of Capt. E. S. S. Turner. Of Nanticoke District, but the opposition were unable to oust him and he was re-elected by a substantial majority. The other members of the old Board, Wm. H. Jackson, E. S. Adkins and Wm. H. Knowles were re-elected.

County Ticket.

State Senator—E. S. Adkins, of Parsons District.

House of Delegates—Dr. Lewis N. Wilson, Baron Creek; W. H. Knowles, Sharptown; John W. Messick, Nanticoke.

Clerk Circuit Court—Dr. S. A. Graham Parsons District.

Register of Wills—Captain Levin A. Parsons, Parsons District.

State's Attorney—Elmer H. Walton, Salisbury District.

County Treasurer—Thomas H. Williams, Salisbury District.

Sheriff—E. H. Riley, Pittsburg District.

County Commissioners—L. B. Duncan, Pittsburg; W. H. H. Cooper, Trappe; Herbert H. Williams, Salisbury.

Judges Orphans' Court—J. O. Wilson, Quantico; W. S. Riggan, Tyaskin; Affria Fooks, Nuttars.

The delegates to the State Convention were selected by Congressman Jackson, as follows: W. H. Jackson, Jesse Hillary Brittain, Woodland C. Bradley, Albert Wingate, Alan F. Benjamin, Marion A. Humphreys, M. H. Bennett, E. S. Turner.

The Resolutions.

The following resolutions were adopted:

The Republicans of Wicomico County and State of Maryland, through their duly chosen representatives in the County Convention assembled, make the following declarations:

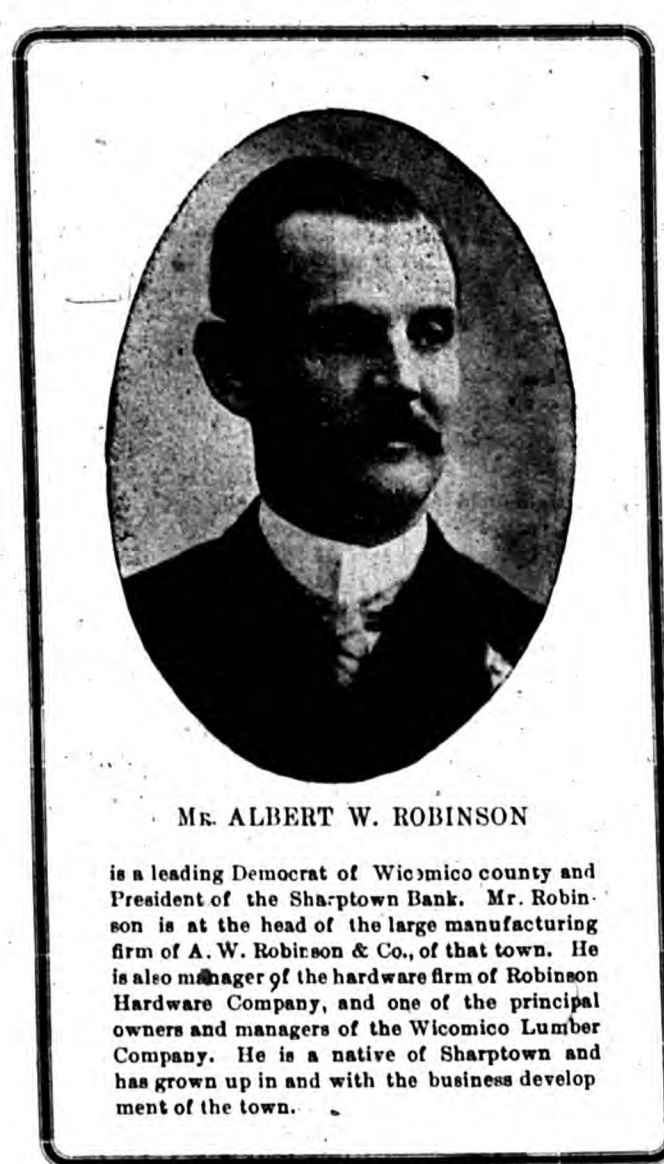

We heartily endorse the wise and patriotic administration of President Roosevelt, and favor his re-nomination for the Presidency in 1904.

The administration of the Hon. Lloyd Lowndes as Governor of Maryland was one of the strongest and most progressive ever given to this State, and we desire to record our unqualified approval of the record made by him and the republican party during his administration.

We take great pleasure in endorsing the record of the Hon. Wm. H. Jackson as Representative from this District, in the Congress of the United States and tender him the loyal and unwavering support of the Republicans of this County for United States Senator. Should he be a candidate before the Maryland Legislature for that high office.

We favor the submitting to the people of all the Districts of the County not now under prohibitory law, the question of granting or not granting licenses to sell intoxicating liquors, in such Districts, and hereby instruct and pledge the nominees for the Senate and House of Delegates, in case of their election, to use all honorable means to secure the passage of a prohibitory law for any District that shall present to the representatives of Wicomico County in the Legislature a petition signed by a majority of the qualified voters of such District.

We believe the present Road Law for Wicomico County to be entirely inadequate and favor the passage of laws providing for liberal appropriations from the State and County and the

He is also manager of the hardware firm of Robinson Hardware Company, and one of the principal owners and managers of the Wicomico Lumber Company. He is a native of Sharptown and has grown up in and with the business development of the town.

COST OF A CIRCUS.

Many Estimate How Much A Show Makes But Few Know What It Takes To Run Some Inside Points.

Few people have any idea of the vast amount of money it takes to run a big circus. An illustration of this can be given by a hasty summary of the amount of money that will be spent by Hargreaves' Big Railroad Shows when it exhibits here on Thursday, Aug. 27th. In the first place there are about two hundred men and women connected with the circus in all its departments including artists, workmen and officials. These all have to be fed and as the work of every person connected with a circus is strenuous their appetites are always good. So the bread, meat, vegetables, tea, coffee, etc., all of which is purchased fresh daily in the town where they exhibit runs into many dollars. Then there is the wood required for the fires, the sawdust for the rings, the oil for illumination and the hundred and one other things. Though the expense of feeding the men and women with the shows is great the animals cost much more. Columbus, the big elephant eats more for one meal than the average person does in a month and as his value is very high care has to be taken to see that the food he gets is the freshest and best. If the hay furnished to this ponderous beast is the least bit muzzed up he will spurn it like you would a stale egg. Twice a week he craves dainties in the shape of apples or carrots. A barrel of apples or three bushels of carrots makes a light lunch for him. The wild lions, panthers, hyenas, and other denizens of the jungles require fresh meat and lots of it. It has to be purchased daily for they must be kept in the best of condition. For the two hundred horses and ponies with these monster Shows an enormous amount of corn, hay and oats is required and as the twenty railroad cars with these shows are filled to their capacity with the paraphernalia required for them no room is left for feed so it all has to be bought in the town where they exhibit.

Easton Has Successful Fair But Fake Base Ball.

It was from a financial standpoint, a success and reflects much credit upon the new secretary and treasurer, Mr. M. B. Nichols, who had left nothing undone to accomplish this end.

Thursday morning a game of baseball was to have been played between the crack team of St. Michaels and the Ridgely club for a purse of $50 offered by the association. The game was begun and had an abrupt ending by members of both clubs playing the baby act in the last half of the first inning.

The Ridgely club went to bat first and succeeded in scoring two runs. The St. Michaels club in its half had two men out, one on second and Parkerson on third base. The pitcher for Ridgely threw a ball to the batter, which passed over his head and struck some boards used as a backdrop for the catcher.

On this wild pitch Parkerson made an attempt to reach home and was touched with the ball, which had rebounded back to the catcher. The umpire called Parkerson out, while the St. Michaels club contended that it was a blocked ball.

The decision remained unchanged and the game ended. The fair association refused to pay the money offered for a game that was not played.

Coulbourn Makes Great Record At Shooting Tournament.

Thursday, the third day of the Ocean City shoot was devoted to live-bird shooting, three events being on the program. The principal one was the Ocean City handicap, at 20 birds, for a handsome silver cup. Hawkins, 33 yards; Malone, 31 yards, and Captain L. P. Coulbourn, 29 yards, of Salisbury, Md., shot a great race and killed them all. Hawkins and Malone withdrew and presented Captain Coulbourn with the cup after dividing the sweep. Hawkins and Coulbourn killed the entire program straight. Friday, the last day, was devoted to target.

GOOD BASE BALL.

By The Salisbury Team. Under The Able Management Of Mr. Geo. Bell, Characterizing Recent Games. Interesting Match With G. O. N. P. A. R., Thursday.

The game played between the Salisbury and the G. O. N. P. A. R. of Baltimore on Thursday was one of the best played on these grounds this year. The visitors were all good ball players, and Graff pitched a good game having perfect control. Haas for home team pitched well. Starr and Ward got all flies in their territory. Truitt, Ward, Kellogg and Russell lead the batting. It was a great game and those who failed to attend lost a treat. No one gave a correct solution of the riddle proposed by Manager Bell. Marvin Holloway No. 1, B. F. Lambdin No. 2, and many others came close, all putting in this solution, "Gorman our next President after Roosevelt," the correct solution was "Gorman our next President Adieu Roosevelt."

Schuchts, the old Salisbury pitcher who brought down the visitors was presented with a gold locket by his many friends in Salisbury. The locket was inscribed with his monogram on one side, on the other Salisbury, Md., Aug. 20, 1903. Manager Bell made the presentation which was suitably acknowledged. Below we give official score.

Run Down on Ocean City Bridge By Train.

Riley Purnell, colored, intending to drive across Ocean City Bridge last Saturday night met and was run down by the late train from Baltimore, and strange to relate, though the carriage was a total wreck he and horse escaped, the animal with a few bruises but no limbs broken. Riley who has been employed at Cropper's bath rooms all summer saved himself by leaping from his wagon before the engine struck him. The next one more than likely will not be so fortunate.

BIDS FOR SCHOOL BUILDING.

Proposals for the erection of a new school building, in School District, No. 13, known as Truitts School will be received at the office of the School Board until 10 o'clock Tuesday, August 25. For further information, plans and specifications apply at office of the School Board in the Court House, Salisbury, Md. Right reserved to reject any or all bids. By order of Board.

Miss Toadvine Entertains At Her Home On Isabella Street.

Miss Dora Toadvine entertained a number of friends in a very delightful manner on Tuesday evening last at a "Baby Party." Photographs of each of the guests taken at a tender age were passed around for inspection, which occasioned much merriment, and were later held up to view and the identity of each one guessed by the party, after a few witty remarks on their attractions and beauties by Mr. J. D. Williams. Mrs. J. D. Wallop being the fortunate guesser of the greatest number received the prize, a pretty picture.

During the evening some very fine music was rendered, Mrs. Spring, Mrs. J. D. Williams, Mrs. Fowler, and Mrs. Wallop singing a quartette which was much enjoyed, as was also the quartette "The Vikings" by Mrs. Williams and Mrs. Dr. Spring, Mrs. Vaughn Gordy, Dr. Spring and Mrs. John H. Waller sang several beautiful soprano solos. Refreshments were served at 11 o'clock, consisting of ices, cakes and candies.

—Miss Elsie Gormly who has been most beautifully entertained at the home of Miss Rydie Savage, and who has experienced the time of her life for the past few weeks, with many regrets returned to Philadelphia Thursday. Miss Elsie will leave more than one young friend to regret her absence in Berlin.

—Mr. William R. Flemming with wife and sister, Miss Katie Hammond, and other friends who are camping in Ontario, Canada, has not only proven himself a skillful fisherman but a marksman as well having brought to earth a fine large buck. Mr. Flemming can now well afford to wear very long horns when he returns to his home in Harrisburg, Pa.

—Mr. Thomas Dirickson left New York in the morning—reached Berlin on an hour and half belated train last Saturday night. His daughter, Miss Gypsy Dirickson, who was always a great favorite with both relatives and friends accompanied him and will make a visit. A perfect ovation greeted them at the station and they were escorted home in high glee. Hope they will have a good old summer time.

—Mr. Eugene Marshall, after being in our midst over a month left to our regret, for Alabama Monday. Mr. Marshall has had the pleasure of meeting and renewing the acquaintance of many old friends who were delighted to see him. Of course he perceives many changes, but most of them we hope for the better. Our town at first was a curiosity, not having viewed it since the two fires—then wood now brick—which he acknowledged was a decided improvement. He expects to reach his Southern home Thursday and once more enter upon his duties and take up the thread of life laid down upon leaving home. We wish him much success, and a safe return.

Mr. and Mrs. Godfrey Entertain.

At their attractive country seat, Inglefield, Mr. and Mrs. Henry A. Godfrey entertained a number of friends who were guests at the Atlantic Hotel last Thursday evening. They reached Berlin from Ocean City on the afternoon train, were met at the depot and driven at once to the house and given a most cordial reception by their hosts. The evening being a beautiful one the first inclination was a stroll through the grounds enjoying the vivid greenery after the glaring sands of Ocean City. The evening passed most pleasantly with chat and music. Later were gathered around a table laden with Maryland delicacies of every description which were partaken of and enjoyed by the guests thoroughly. Every one had a royal good time. Miss Jennie their interesting young daughter, assisted most pleasantly in the entertainment. Those present were Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Thomas and son, Mrs. Francis Redmond, Mrs. Cook, Mr. G. A. Marshall, Miss Ellen Thomas, Master William Redmond, Master William Thomas.

—Miss Catherine Massey left early Tuesday morning and hopes to spend several weeks in Philadelphia with relatives and friends.

—Mrs. Lee Buffington and sons, Lee and Charlie Buffington and Douglas Seabole, of Buffington Heights, were visitors in our city Wednesday.

—Mrs. John Scott, Miss Margaret and Howard Scott, also Mrs. John Davis and son, Ewell, all of Philadelphia, are visitors at the home of Mr. George E. Scott.

Our little friend, Miss Sarah Chandler of Scranton left Berlin for Milford Tuesday. Little Sarah is a sweet, lovable child and bound to have a good time wherever she goes.

—Mr. and Mrs. Thos. McNeely spent several days this week at Newport with Mr. and Mrs. Harry Purnell. Mr. McNeely expects to return to Pittsburg, Ill., next Monday.

—Mr. James Gordy, near Snow Hill, under the care of Dr. Straughn was taken on the train to Salisbury Hospital Monday and was treated by Dr. Dick for appendicitis.

—The older ladies desire to express their appreciation of the pleasant hospitality extended by Mrs. Lizzie Dirickson and Miss Clara when they were invited to meet Mrs. McNeely on Tuesday of last week.

—Mrs. Irving Lyndsay and family who visited the Pocomoke fair and friends, are again guests of Mr. and Mrs. L. T. Hearn on Main Street, Mrs. Washington Pilchard, of that city, accompanied them.

—Mrs. Frances Redmond who was a guest of the Atlantic for several weeks and made hosts of friend during her sojourn, left Ocean City Saturday morning. Stopped long enough in Berlin to say Au-Revoir accompanied by her mother Mrs. Cook and little tot, proceeded to New York her home. Many best wishes attend her.

Niagara Falls Excursions.
The Pennsylvania Railroad Company has selected the following dates for popular ten-day excursions to Niagara Falls from Philadelphia, Baltimore, and Washington: July 24, August 7 and 21, September 4 and 18, and October 5 and 19.

The excursions from Philadelphia will be run by two routes. Those on July 24, August 7 and 21, September 4 and 18, and October 19, going via Harrisburg and the picturesque valley of the Susquehanna, a special train leaving Philadelphia at 8:10 A. M., excursion of October 2 running via Trenton, Manunka Chunk, and the Delaware Valley, leaving Philadelphia on special train at 8:06 A. M.

Excursion tickets, good for return passage on any regular train, exclusive of limited express trains, within ten days, will be sold at $10.00 from Philadelphia and all points on the Delaware Division; $11.35 from Atlantic City; $9.60 from Lancaster; and at proportionate rates from other points, including Trenton, Bordentown, Mt. Holly, Cape May, Salem, Wilmington, West Chester, Reading, and principal intermediate stations. A stop over will be allowed at Buffalo within the limit of ticket returning.

An experienced tourist agent and chaperon will accompany each excursion.

For descriptive pamphlet, time of connecting trains and further information apply to nearest ticket agent, or address Geo. W. Boyd, General Passenger Agent, Broad Street Station, Philadelphia.

A Free Scholarship.

Any young man or woman who is a bona-fide patron of this paper may secure free instruction in Music or Elocution.

The Ithaca Conservatory of Music, with the desire to stimulate the study of these arts, offers one free and one partial scholarship in each State. Each scholarship is valued at $100 and is good for a term of twenty weeks, beginning with the opening of the school year, September 10, 1903, in any of the following departments: Voice, Violin, Piano, Organ and Elocution. These scholarships are awarded upon competition, which is open to anyone desiring a musical or literary education. Any one wishing to make application or desiring information should write to Mr. George C. Williams, the General Manager of the Ithaca Conservatory of Music, Ithaca, N. Y., before Sept. 1, 1903.

The public roads throughout Charles county were badly damaged by the heavy rain last Monday. Two large bridges on the road between Dentville and Trinity Church were swept away by the swollen stream.

If The Baby Is Cutting Teeth.

Be sure and use that old and well-tried remedy, Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup, for children teething. It soothes the child, softens the gums, allays all pain, cures wind colic and is the best remedy for diarrhoea. Twenty-five cents a bottle.

In the Circuit Court of

AN AMBASSADOR'S TRIALS.

Some Experiences of the Hon. Andrew D. White in Germany.

It has sometimes seemed to me while doing duty at the German capital in those days of a minister, and at a more recent period as ambassador, that I could not enter my office without meeting some vexatious case. One day it was an American who, having thought that patriotism required him in a crowded railway carriage loudly to denounce Germany, the German people and the Imperial government, had passed the night in a guard house; another day it was one who, feeling called upon, in a restaurant, to proclaim very loudly and grossly his unfavorable opinion of the emperor, was arrested; on still another occasion it was one of our fellow citizens who, having thought that he ought to be married in Berlin as easily as in New York, had found himself entangled in a network of regulations, prescriptions and prohibitions.

Of this latter sort there were in my time several curious cases. One morning a man came rushing into the legation in high excitement, exclaiming: "Mr. Minister, I am in the worst fix that any decent man was ever in. I want you to help me out of it." And he went on with a bitter tirade against everybody and everything in the German empire. When his wrath had subsided somewhat he stated his case as follows: "Last year, while traveling through Germany, I fell in love with a young German lady, and after my return to America became engaged to her. I have now come to my bride. The wedding is fixed for next Thursday; our steamer passages are taken a day or two later, and I find that the authorities will not allow me to marry unless I present a multitude of papers such as I never dreamed of! Some of them it will take months to get and some I can never get. My intended bride is in distress; her family evidently distrust me, the wedding is postponed indefinitely, and my business partner is calling me to come back to America as soon as possible. I am asked for a baptismal certificate—a Taufschein. Now, so far as I know, I was never baptized. I am required to present a certificate showing the consent of my parents to my marriage—I, a man thirty years old and in a large business of my own! I am asked to give bonds for the payment of my debts in Germany. I owe no such debts, but I know no one who will give such a bond. I am notified that the banns must be published a certain number of times before the wedding. What kind of a country is this, anyhow?"

We did the best we could. In an interview with the minister of public worship I was able to secure a dispensation from the publishing of the banns; then a bond was drawn up, which I signed and thus settled the question regarding possible debts in Germany. As to the baptismal certificate, I ordered inscribed, on the largest possible sheet of official paper, the gentleman's affidavit that, in the state of Ohio, where he was born, no Taufschein, or baptismal certificate, was required at the time of his birth, and to this was affixed with plenty of wax the largest seal of the legation. The form of the affidavit was judged peculiar; but it was thought best not to startle the authorities with the admission that the man had not been baptized at all. They could easily believe that a state like Ohio, which some of them doubtless regarded as still in the backwoods and mainly tenanted by the aborigines, might have omitted, in days gone by, to require a Taufschein; but that an unbaptized Christian should offer himself to be married in Germany would perhaps have paralyzed their powers of belief that permission for the marriage might never have been secured.—From "Chapters From My Diplomatic Life" in Century.

A Minister's Labors.
Apart from the labors that fruit into pulp ministry and pastoral and public service, is no accounting to be made of the mental strain and the spiritual travail which are an inalienable part of the ministerial calling? Not only does the minister carry in his heart the sorrows of a great many persons who look to him for succor, but there are hours when the tide of his own faith ebbs. Is a minister's fight with his doubts worth anything to the world? Because he always seems so sure of his hold on the eternal verities it is to be thought that he is content to pass on to others a merely traditional faith instead of one that has been wrought out in long hours of painful questioning and wrought at last triumphantly into the very texture of his own life? The effort which a minister makes to keep and broaden, to intensify and make real, his own faith, to adjust it to the growing light of science, is as necessary and as noble a part of his work as anything that he does.—An Open Letter in Century.

Street Hawkers in Verse.
Few householders who buy from street hawkers know what the man with lustrous lips is saying, as he trails along behind his wagon, but they do know that almost to a certainty on a specified day, almost to the hour, the hawkers from whom they buy their vegetables or their fish will be coming their way, and they know the peculiar intonation of his voice just as women who frequent auction rooms can follow the auctioneer in a jargon unintelligible to the casual visitor. On the upper West side is a hawk who has no speaking voice, but who can sing a mellifluous baritone. He sells herbs. Here is his song, which persons who want to buy of him can hear half a block away:

Time is money.
Money is sense.
My thyme for your money.
Three bunches for five cents.
—New York Times.

Country Churches Starving.
G. T. Nesmith, in the American Journal of Sociology, published at Chicago, asserts that in the rural districts of the country the tendency is toward idleness, vulgarity and animality for lack of social, intellectual and political aspirations developed by community of action. He finds that on this account the country church is kept alive without thought or hope of increase, a mere beggar of the parsonage for support. Among the chief causes are denominationalism, with its petty strife and jealousies, and the tendency of the ambitious elements to migrate.

WHAT IS SUCCESS?

Wrong Standard Raised by Stories of Great Business Men.

What a noisy gospel is that of "success" and how many self-satisfied evangelists are enlisted in its service! Pulpits, books, pamphlets and periodicals overflow with its catchwords, its aphorisms, its modern instances. In shops and offices, inspired by the propaganda of this glittering lore, the young men are brooding. Bank clerks join the American Institute, diligently read the Bulletin and procure instruction from the correspondence school in quest of this elusive, precious, enigmatic thing—success. The literary hack mimics the careers of conspicuous personages for the secret and method of success. He finds the exceptional and striking incident, extracts it from the commonplace by which it is surrounded and sets it in a dramatic relief. The successful man is a player strutting upon a stage. He moves to a triumphant climax. At a given conjuncture he will exhibit a supernatural power of decision, of preternatural judgment, of clairvoyant vision, of titanic industry, and thenceforth his ultimate triumph becomes inevitable.

In other words, the successful man as he is portrayed in current literature is an optical illusion, a chimera of the literary faddist. But all of us, unless we are poor trash indeed, have moments of unusual power, acuteness and diligence. This is the common lot. Yet only a few of us that share the common lot are destined to accumulate great wealth or achieve conspicuous stations. The number of such stations and the chances for such accumulations never did correspond, and never will, to the number of energetic, ambitious and capable men who are hopeful of achieving them. This unpalatable truth the literature of success abhors.

The normal service of an able and faithful man has no place in the literature of success. Why? Because such a service has nothing picturesque about it—it is too common; is wanting in the melodramatic pitch. Besides, it is so common, in fact, that we may identify it with countless individuals whose achievements, measured by these line light standards, are of no account whatsoever. The successful man has never made a mistake, never taken a drink, never missed a cue, never told a lie, is never weary, plans and plots incessantly, and probably never sleeps at all. All the above all things he always reaches the top and invariably possesses a heavy bank account. The greater this bank account the more wonderful the business and professional power of this astonishing individual seems to be. He is always more faithful, more vigilant, more industrious, more efficient, than other men. But this confuses the issue and debases the standard of success. Browning said that the emphasis of success should be laid upon endeavor.

The man who is true to himself, faithful to the trust reposed in him, employing his resources to the fullest, allowing for a human endurance as well as weakness, is a successful man. His material reward may be modest, but he is doing a part of the indispensable work of the world, doing it steadily and well. Is not this also success and success of a high order? To the literary pervers who write pithy and snappy articles on how success is achieved in this dull world such a man is a mere lumber of the ground. Because some one stands higher, this man is held to be outclassed and outqualified. He is simply not in the race.—American Banker.

An Interrupted Organ Recital.
The Italian had just unstrapped his organ and was preparing to play. His wife, a tiny, brown, shriveled up speck of humanity, was at his side, cup in hand. At that moment an open conveyance filled with flowers, followed by a white hearse and an almost endless line of carriages, turned slowly into the avenue. As the notes of a ragtime air broke the silence the wife saw the hearse, and her hand fell upon the crank of the organ. The ragtime air was suddenly shut off. The wife pointed to the hearse. The husband uncovered his head, and man and woman fell into the pose of the figures in Millet's "Angels."

Not until the last coach had turned out of sight at a corner was the organ recital resumed.

And then it was not ragtime. The little brown woman had switched the keyboard and her selection was "The Palms."—New York Press.

Is This the Country?
A little band of east side children was waiting in the Grand Central station for the train that was to bear them to the country home of one of the settlements. They were clad in their most brilliant finery for this gala occasion, and the small faces shone with the joy of anticipation. One solemn looking little chap of seven, however, stood out in oddly grave relief against the radiant background. He gazed about him with wide eyes at the marble magnificence of the great depot, at the throng of well-dressed men and women, at the little gayly attired aristocrats. Then slowly he relaxed into an attitude of happy contentment, and two small hands were folded in demure satisfaction as he asked softly, "Is this the country?"—Everybody's Magazine.

Ignored the Condition.
The result of the Liverpool cathedral competition has been most unfortunate. "It is," says the British Architect, "a setback to all faith and trust in competitions, committees and assessors." It appears that the committee made it a condition that 3,000 people could be seated near the pulpit without a pier intervening. Four competitors complied with this condition, and the fifth, who disregarded it, got the commission.

LAST OF THE HUGUENOTS

Few Traces of the Community in the East End of London.

When Princess Charlotte entered London for her marriage with King George and the coronation revels which followed it, she passed from White-chapel to Islington through a prosperous French section known as Spitalfields. It was the settlement of the Huguenot refugees, who carried their industries as well as their religion from France and planted mulberry trees in large gardens where silkworms could be fed on home grown leaves.

The descendants of these weavers were rich and prosperous in the days of George III., and they lived in fine old houses, with oak paneled rooms and high latticed windows close under the eaves, where they could have light for working their looms. There were as many as a dozen Huguenot churches in the east end of London during the Georgian reigns, and when the beautiful Spitalfields church was built, with its lofty spire, its bell early after sunrise and again at curfew was the signal for thousands of industrious weavers to begin or end their labors for the day. The industry has disappeared; the houses have fallen into decay and the gardens are neglected. Spitalfields has lost its French aspect and been converted into a swarming ghetto.

In order to find a distinct trace of the Huguenot community, which had so honorable a history in the east end, one must now go farther out in Hackney and visit the French Protestant hospital near Victoria park. It is a beautiful modern structure designed in imitation of an old time French chateau, and it stands in spacious, well kept grounds which offer a marked contrast to the ordinary east end environment. The institution owes its origin to a bequest made by a French Huguenot refugee two centuries ago and to liberal contributions from weavers and merchants in London. Work was begun near Perceps Pool, in the northern suburbs, where a hospital for poor French Protestants and their descendants was opened and was long known affectionately among the refugees as La Providence. When the growth of suburban London rendered the old site infelicitous, the second building was constructed forty years ago and is now the refuge of about sixty aged pensioners of Huguenot descent.—Detroit Free Press.

Venezuelan Hospitality.
During a recent visit to Caracas a member of parliament says that he was accompanied by several of the leading members of the Venezuelan government, who showed him every courtesy and gave a dinner in his honor. That night, shortly after he retired at a late hour, he was awakened from his sleep by a noise in his room and saw, as he thought, one of his hosts disappear through the bedroom window leading to the veranda. Concluding that this was a polite custom of the country, the visitor returned to sleep, but in the morning he found that he had been robbed. The Englishman went straight to the seat of government and complained to one of the ministers, who expressed his dismay and was thereupon informed that the person seen in the room bore a resemblance to himself. "Very strange," replied the minister, "for there is no one alive who resembles me." "In that case," rejoined his visitor dryly, "you should have no difficulty in securing the restoration of my property." Later in the day the Englishman discovered an anonymous package upon his room table. Opening the cover, he found all the missing articles save his gold edged cigar case and one of his fob chains, a little goddess in diamonds and emeralds.

It Might Have Been.
"I have lived in boarding houses all my life," said the man with the grizzly gray hair, "but not until last summer did the chance ever come to me to even up things with the landlady."
"And how did you do it then?" was asked.
"Well, when the price of beef began to go up she fed us on codfish. We had had it for breakfast, dinner and supper about 150 times, and 'protests' had been unavailing when an idea occurred to me."
"A bright idea, of course."
"Yes; rather bright. I got up a corner in codfish, covered the whole supply of the United States and raised the price to 60 cents a pound. Since then I have been kept busy eating rib roasts and porterhouse steak as tender as spring chicken."

Winning a Meal.
An English paper tells how a young man who had been suffering from want of food employed an ingenious plan to secure it. For some time he stationed himself in a city square and shared his bread with the sparrows. It was not long before the birds got to know him and surrounded him by hundreds when he made his appearance. One of the most observant residents watched him closely and observed that every now and then one of the sparrows was transferred to his pockets. He lodged a complaint, and the young fellow was arrested. He said he had been unable to get work and that not wishing to beg he had got his food by catching sparrows and cooking them.

Deserves All the Credit.
See a prattling, laughing, healthy baby in a home and you find sunshine there—papa, mamma, grandmother, all are happy. "I take pleasure in recommending Victor Infant Relief, for it helped our baby very much—brought health and then kept her well. When only eleven months old she weighed 35 pounds. Victor Infant Relief alone, I think, has made her so hearty. It is a remedy that deserves much praise and is invaluable to the mother." 25 cents will buy this wonderful Baby Medicine from your Druggist.

Miss Alice M. Smith, of Minneapolis, Minn., tells how woman's monthly suffering may be quickly and permanently relieved by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:—I have never before given my endorsement for any medicine, but Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has added so much to my life and happiness that I feel like making an exception in this case. For two years every month I would have two days of severe pain and could find no relief, but one day when visiting a friend I ran across Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound,—she had used it with the best results and advised me to try it. I found that it worked wonders with me; I now experience no pain and only had to use a few bottles to bring about this wonderful change. I use it occasionally now when I am exceptionally tired or worn out."—Miss Alice M. Smith, 804 Third Ave., South Minneapolis, Minn., Chairman Executive Committee Minneapolis Study Club.

Beauty and strength in women vanish early in life because of monthly pain or some menstrual irregularity. Many suffer silently and see their best gifts fade away. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound helps women preserve roundness of form and freshness of face because it makes their entire female organism healthy. It carries women safely through the various natural crises and is the safeguard of woman's health.

The truth about this great medicine is told in the letters from women being published in this paper constantly.

Mrs. C. Kleinschrodt, Morrison, Ill., says:—

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:—I have suffered ever since I was thirteen years of age with my menses. They were irregular and very painful. I do not feel a great deal but received no benefit. A friend advised me to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, which I did, and after taking a few bottles of it, I found great relief. Menstruation is now regular and without pain. I am enjoying better health than I have for some time."

How is it possible for us to make it plainer that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound will positively help all sick women? All women are constituted alike, rich and poor, high and low,—all suffer from the same organic troubles. Surely, no one can wish to remain weak and discouraged with life and no hope for the future when proof is so unmistakable that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound will cure monthly suffering,—all womb and ovarian troubles, and all the ills peculiar to women.

Over-Work Weakens Your Kidneys.

Unhealthy Kidneys Make Impure Blood.

All the blood in your body passes through your kidneys once every three minutes. The kidneys are your blood purifiers, they filter out the waste or impurities in the blood. If they are sick or out of order, they fail to do their work. Pains, aches and rheumatism come from excess of waste in the blood, due to neglected kidney trouble.

Kidney trouble causes quick or uneasy heart beats, and makes one feel as though they had heart trouble, because the heart is over-working in pumping thick, kidney-poisoned blood through veins and arteries. It used to be considered that only urinary troubles were to be traced to the kidneys, but now modern science proves that nearly all constitutional diseases have their beginning in kidney trouble. If you are sick you can make no mistake by first doctoring your kidneys. The mild and extraordinary effect of Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Koot, the great kidney remedy, is soon realized. It stands the highest for its wonderful cures of the most distressing cases and is sold on its merits by all druggists in fifty-cent and one-dollar sizes. You may have a sample bottle by mail. Home of Swamp-Koot, free, also pamphlet telling you how to find out if you have kidney or bladder trouble. Mention this paper when writing Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y.

Don't make any mistake, but remember the name, Swamp-Koot, Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Koot, and the address, Binghamton, N. Y., on every bottle.

THE REPUBLICAN TICKET.

Republicans of Wicomico have been working hard for many weeks thinking out a ticket that would bear public inspection. Much timber was discussed and many declarations received. At last, on Tuesday, they assembled in convention and nominated candidates for county offices, securing some good sacrifice bids; for sacrifices they are bound to be, inasmuch as the people of Wicomico have no intention of inviting public disaster by entrusting their government to a party whose large majority is composed of ignorant negroes. However hard the Republicans may sweat, there is no encouragement for them. Wicomico is a Democratic, intelligent, white man's county, and such it is going to remain.

HON. EDWIN WARFIELD, OF MARYLAND.

If mixing with the people and making himself generally pleasant count, Edwin Warfield stands a most excellent chance of being the Democratic nominee for Governor of Maryland. And when ever he goes Mr. Warfield appears to be making friends and supporters by the hundred. He does not hesitate to say that he means business in making a tour of the State, and does not regard it as being beneath his or any other man's dignity in letting the voters of Maryland know that his greatest ambition is to be the Governor of the State. It goes without saying that Mr. Warfield is very strong in the city of Baltimore, where he is at the head of one of the strongest financial institutions of that prosperous city—the Fidelity and Deposit Company. He is also well known in most of the western counties of the State, but just now this able financier is cultivating the people in the counties known as the Eastern Shore. There was a regatta on the 8th of August in the neighborhood of Oxford, Talbot county, on the beautiful Treadon river. It was an ideal day, and hundreds of craft could be seen in the river carrying from point to point the flower and chivalry of that section. Not only the men and women were most agreeably impressed with Mr. Warfield, but even the children, as he was conveyed from one large vessel to another to be introduced to the people. It was a great time for electioneering, and if Candidate Warfield did not score many points that day over his rivals, then the writer, who was in attendance also, does not know what he is talking about.

DuPont de Nemours & Co., of Wilmington now employs twenty seven W. B. S. graduates.

IN THE SURF.

The rail trains and steamboats are loaded with passengers for the seashore. Some of the traveling throngs of the summer season go to the mountains; but the most of them seek the ocean. There they find rest in looking out over the crystal pathway of the waters, and fill their lungs with tonic air. A great number gain strength and health in sporting with the waves. There is no more interesting sight than that of a long line of bathers. We never tire of watching those who thus disport themselves. They make a living picture.

But from gazing at the crowds in the surf in a general way, we sometimes turn our attention to individuals, narrowing and concentrating our glance, like a set of lenses gathering a scene into a focus. Yonder is a city exquisite cutting an ungraceful figure along the strand. The form that is usually arrayed in garments cut according to the latest fashion plate is clad in ill fitting garments that are calculated to subdue all pride. Along with him is a belle, her hair disheveled, her skirt dripping water, and her whole physical appearance a caricature of the loveliness usually displayed in the parlor of her home or the saloon of the hotel. They have both just emerged from the surf. Had they never met before, there is but little danger that they will fall in love with each other. Bathing suits are not intended to set off personal charms, especially when they are wet. Indeed, there have been times when we have almost concluded that Darwin's theory about the monkey relationship of mankind is correct. We have frequently looked out into the surf as though it were an aquatic zoological garden.

Yonder, again, is a stout gentleman with a bay-window abdomen and a shining bald head. As he goes down into the water we expect to see the tide rise. He plunges into a wave like a porpoise, afterwards floating, the blubber of his corpulent frame keeping him from sinking. Perhaps he is a judge of the Court of Appeals. But he takes his place with all the less distinguished bathers. The surf is as much of a leveler as death. Learning, literary excellence, fame and wealth are all broken by the billows that toss and upset the bathers. In the breakers capital and labor are united; knowledge and ignorance join hands; fastidiousness and vulgarity look into each other's faces. Even King Canute was no longer a king when he attempted to command the sea. It was in the presence of a greater royalty than his.

But here comes a Miss whose features border rusticity. She has never seen the ocean before. The greatest body of water that ever met her eyes is the brooklet that sings hard by the farm. But she gains confidence as she advances, and presently she is in the midst of tons of rapture, the water that played with her brown feet rising to her waist, then curling all around her, and filling her heart with an experience that will long linger in memory. Tomorrow evening, in the glow of the sunset, while milking the cows back of the barn, she will live over again the joys of her bath, and for many days thereafter.

So they come and go, various types of humanity too numerous to mention; and we study them, and think about them, and give our selves to fancies in regard to them, thus indulging in day-dreams that are a relief to a weary brain.

But it is now time for us to bathe. First comes the work of preparation. The disrobing is accomplished and the proper garments put on. Then we rush for the shore, the contact of the feet with the sand sending a thrill along the nerves, and the kiss of the waters inviting us farther into the depths. Whew! It is a cold embrace that the ocean gives us. The teeth, if you have not left them, as some do, in your room, begin to chatter, and your frame quakes; but after you have boldly waded in, you find that the water is comfortable, and you and the sea are good friends for an hour or more.

It is at this point that the delights of bathing begin. The world is behind you, and your plunge into the arms of the snow-headed breakers has washed away all your cares. They have also dismissed all dignity. You are no longer a minister, or lawyer, or bank president, or school teacher. You have suddenly gone back into boyhood. You leap and shout and clap your hands, saying to the billows, "Come on, ye giant waves!" and in the exuberance of your glee speaking to persons that you do not know, and acting so wildly that you might be taken for a lunatic escaped from an insane asylum, if it were not for the fact that there is a whole line of men and women giving way to the same freedom of spirit. But never mind. Your dignity will return after you have left the surf. Alas! If your cares should also return. Better to leave those things in the waters. Let the currents carry them the whole three thousand miles of the ocean's width and fling them high and dry upon a foreign shore. That would be finer than owning an "air castle in Spain."

But you should not remain in the surf too long. Some persons lose their sense when they go in bathing. They do not seem to know when they have had enough of a good thing. But an abuse of ocean bathing is like all other abuses. It is capable of stinging. Humanity in general disregards that law of Nature. There is no commandment, whether physical or moral, that can be broken without penalty. When bathing begins to make you feel tired, or when you are becoming chilled by it, then is the time to heed a warning that is meant to be kind. You should at once return to your room, and with plenty of Turkish towels put your skin in a glow, at the same time rubbing in the benefit of a dip in the surf.

It is after our bath that we like to sit down in the dry sand and look out over the great waters. With a clear mind, and with a meditative heart, no weight dragging upon it, we gaze at the ocean, and often it is like an apocalyptic vision. The blue sky reflected in its depths of crystal, the sunbeams walking with feet of fire over its far-reaching pathways, the breakers thundering shoreward, each one capped with foam, afterwards dissolving in blinding tones upon the strand, the ocean brings to mind Him who holds the winds in His fist, and who makes the sea a highway for His chariot, and whose praise is unendingly sung along every coast of the world by the rolling, tossing, bounding billows that rush to land, falling in a crash of sound that wakes the echoes of the air.

WEAR American Lady CORSETS

Saturday's Sensational Suit Selling.

Any time this week you can come into Lacy Thoroughgood's down-town store, select any suit in the entire stock, pay Lacy Thoroughgood or any of his clerks a ten-dollar note for it and go on your way rejoicing, knowing at the same time that you never in all your life bought so much value for a ten-dollar note in a Clothing store. Lacy Thoroughgood wants to impress you with these facts: that he wants to sell every suit he owns; that he don't intend to carry a summer suit over until next summer; that he don't care what they cost, they're paid for; that there are as good suits in this store as there are in any clothing store in Salisbury; that Lacy Thoroughgood has put nothing on the tables but the highest grades of suits, marked to sell at $13.50, $15.00, $15.50, $18.00 and $20.00, that you can buy any of them for and if you are not satisfied that it is the biggest ten dollars' worth you ever bought, you can bring it back and get your ten dollars. At the same time Lacy Thoroughgood will sell any child's suit in the house at cost or under. This is a great Clothing sale, and a chance like this doesn't happen often. These suits at $10.00 are a good deal better suits than you have any idea can be bought for $10.00 anywhere else. They're better made suits than anybody else in Salisbury sells; they're better trimmed suits than $10.00 ever bought before, and are better fitting suits than any $10.00 suits ever shown before.

Reward
For Women
Who

Backed up by over a third of a century of remarkable and uniform cures, a remedy such as no other remedy for the diseases and weaknesses peculiar to women ever attained, the proprietors of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription now feel fully warranted in offering to pay $500 in legal money of the United States, for any case of Leucorrhoea, Female Weakness, Profluvium, or Falling of Womb which they cannot cure. All they ask is a fair and reasonable trial of their means of cure.

I used four bottles of your Favorite Prescription, and one of Golden Medical Discovery," writes Mrs. Elmer D. Shearer, of Mount Hope, Lancaster Co., Pa., "and can say that I am cured of that dreaded disease, uterine trouble. Am in better health than ever before. Every one who knows me is surprised to see me look so well. In June I was so poor in health that at times I could not walk today I am cured. I tell everybody that Dr. Pierce's medicine cured me."

Dr. Pierce's Common Sense Medical Adviser is sent free on receipt of stamps to pay expense of mailing only. Send 31 one-cent stamps for the cloth-bound volume. Address: World's Dispensary Medical Association, Proprietors, Buffalo, N. Y.

Mrs. Fred Unrath,
President Country Club, Benton Harbor, Mich.

"After my first baby was born I did not seem to gain my strength although the doctor gave me a tonic which he considered very superior, but instead of getting better I grew weaker every day. My husband insisted that I take Wine of Cardui for a week and see what it would do for me. I did take the medicine and was very grateful to find my strength and health slowly returning. In two weeks I was out of bed and in a month I was able to take up my usual duties. I am very enthusiastic in its praise."

Wine of Cardui reinforces the organs of generation for the ordeal of pregnancy and childbirth. It prevents miscarriage. No woman who takes Wine of Cardui need fear the coming of her child. If Mrs. Unrath had taken Wine of Cardui before her baby came she would not have been weakened as she was. Her rapid recovery should commend this great remedy to every expectant mother. Wine of Cardui regulates the menstrual flow.

TALMAGE SERMON

By Rev. FRANK DE WITT TALMAGE, D.D.,
Pastor of Jefferson Park Presbyterian Church, Chicago

Chicago, Aug. 16.—In his sermon the preacher points out the key to a successful life and the secret whereby even seeming reverses may be transformed into triumphs. The text is Joshua 1: 8, "As I was with Moses, so I will be with thee."

One of the greatest novels ever written, so considered by many of our best critics, is Victor Hugo's masterpiece, "Les Misérables." Amid all the art gallery of that treasured book the most wonderful description is the word painting by which the denunciations of "Napoleon the Little" pictures the downfall of "Napoleon the Great" at the battle field of Waterloo. When this great master of literature topples over the French colossus, the earth trembles and the dead centuries come forth out of their dusty tombs and look on in perpetual wonderment.

In that marvelous record you can hear the booming of the artillery's guns and the crack of the infantry's muskets and the groans of the dying and the cheers of the charging cavalry, and the tramp of the British lines forming themselves into the unbreakable squares against which the Old Guard flung itself in vain. In it you can see the flushed cheeks and the flashing eyes of a conquering host and the pale, wan, haggard faces of a dying army.

Yet after all in reading the thrilling story I am impressed not so much by what happened as what did not happen. For many hours the eagle of victory seemed undelivered upon which standard to alight. She flutters this way and that, awaiting some one's expected advent to help her to decide. Napoleon himself was waiting, anxiously waiting, for the same helper. Every little while he would take his fine glass and scan the surrounding hills and valleys. Every little while he would turn to his staff officers and say: "Do you see him? Have you heard any news from Grouchy? We must have reinforcements or we are lost." In the meantime over the hills marched a host of reinforcements. To Napoleon's army they were the reinforcements. That was the decisive event. Victory hesitated no longer. She flew to the standard of Wellington and perched there. The Napoleonic star set in gloom to rise no more in this world. It was the lack of reinforcements at a critical moment which destroyed the French army. It is the lack of divine reinforcements which may destroy us in the battle of life.

"I Will Be With Thee," said the Lord. The text tells us of another general who also needed reinforcements. To Joshua was committed the task of conquering a country held by warlike people. To him at the supreme moment comes the assurance of the Lord of Hosts, "I will be with thee." Now, my friends, the same kind of divine reinforcement which came to Joshua when he took command of the Israelitish forces may also be given to us. When God gave to him his commission he said, "Joshua, if you will be true to me and fight under my standard I will be with thee, as I was with thy predecessor." That divine power which God gave to Joshua he gave to our Christian fathers; that divine help he will give to us if we will trust him and believe on him and live for him. Therefore I would inspire every Christian to prayerfully go forth and do what God wants him to do. I would inspire all Christians to live and work with a brave heart, because the results of our future conflicts are as sure as God's promises are sure.

First, God will be with the Christian workers of this present generation. We fight under this glorious banner. David had proved it by experience when he wrote, "Thou hast given a banner to them that fear thee, that it may be displayed because of the truth." Under that banner the church of God has won victories in all ages. Solomon saw it on its march and pronounced it "terrible as an army with banners." He saw it later, triumphant over all evil, entering like a bride into the home of a bridegroom and her lord leading her into the banquet hall and placing over her the banner of love.

Now, a banner is not merely a piece of a rag or a flaring bit of fluttering bunting or a dress parade ensign. The banner of God is a flag or a standard. It is the symbol of supernatural authority. Whoever therefore strikes at God's banner strikes at the divine heart. When, some years ago, an American citizen was arrested by the Spanish authorities in Cuba and sentenced to die, the American consul at first protested in vain. But on the day set for the execution the Cuban authorities dared not shoot because that counsel wrapped an American flag about the condemned man, saying: "He is an American citizen. Now shoot him through the folds of that flag if you dare!" Today, in symbol, God wraps about every Christian worker his banner. It is the symbol of protection. It is the symbol of omnipotence. It is the symbol of the atonement. It is the symbol of divine forgiveness. It is the symbol of a glorious and never ending life.

Symbols in the Gospel Banner. We all can see the beautiful symbols in the American flag. Is there none for us in the gospel banner? We have never had a national flag so glorious as ours. When George Washington and Robert Morris and Colonel Ross, the committee appointed by the Second Continental Congress, visited Betsy Ross in her Philadelphia home, they accomplished a great work. That flag symbolized thirteen different governments in one, and still that one government kept its thirteen distinct individualities. The thirteen bars and the thirteen stars represented the thirteen colonies which afterward became the thirteen states. Then, after Vermont and Kentucky, the first of the new states, were added to the Union, the thirteen bars and thirteen stars were changed into fifteen bars and fifteen stars, but now, by law, there are still the original thirteen bars, but every state has a star. Thus today the American flag has forty-five different states in one government—one great government with forty-five different, distinct states. Beautiful is the symbolism! But is not the gospel banner just as beautiful in symbol? Does it not make us one with God? Like a chameleon, it continually changes its colors. One day it is all red, reminding us that we are one with God, through the blood of the cross. Another day it is all white, suggesting purity, as Christ is pure. Another day it is all blue. That signifies our sufficiency of divine resources, as space itself is filled with blue. Oh, the glorious, the transcending, the inspiring thought that we are fighting under God's banner!

The Gospel Worker Never Dies. God is with living Christian workers in the continuity of their work. He will never allow the gospel work of past generations to die. Christian work is immortality. Like the government of England it goes on unintermittently from generation to generation. When King William IV. breathed his last the archbishop of Canterbury immediately hurried to the home of a young girl. He knocked at the door of her palace until it was opened. Then he summoned this young girl to arise and come down and meet him. When she entered the parlor her head bowed low, saying, "The king is dead! Long live the queen!" When that young girl, after she had grown to be an old woman of eighty-six, lay dying the watchmen stood anxiously about her bed. As soon as she had breathed her last, and the attending physician pronounced her dead, her eldest son, Edward, was greeted with the acclamation, "Long live the king!" Rulers may come and rulers may go, but the government goes on, no matter what human hand may grasp the scepter. When our first martyred president fell in Ford's theater, James A. Garfield, who twenty years later dropped under an assassin's bullet, powerfully said, "Abraham Lincoln may be shot, but the government at Washington still lives." Like a true government, the gospel work of the past generations shall never die. It must live on in the world. It is for us to continue it in our gospel faith and in our Christian lives.

In the fourth chapter of Mark, Christ compares Christian work to a sower going forth to sow. Some of that seed will surely fall upon good ground, which will yield some thirty, some sixty, some a hundred fold. It must reproduce itself multifoldly in the human lives of the succeeding generations. When Dwight L. Moody died did his work die? Without doubt Mr. Moody was the greatest evangelist of the past century. His personality not only appealed to sinners, but also to the greatest Christian workers of his day. His voice and pen raised vast sums of money for Christian work. He was a gospel messenger who stirred England and America on his evangelistic tours. He built the famous Moody Institute at Chicago. He built the famous institutes at Northfield. He gathered among the Massachusetts hills college men as well as ministers in annual conference for prayer and communion with God and for the study of the Bible. Suddenly, as a flash, Mr. Moody was struck down by the death angel. One day on his way to hold great evangelistic services in Kansas City, the next day upon his death bed. What was the result of Mr. Moody's death? Has any great evangelist been found to take his place? "Ah, no," you answer; "not one!" Well, my friend, if no one has been able to take Mr. Moody's place I can tell you this one truth—Mr. Moody when living was never as powerful as Mr. Moody when dead. The Chicago Institute and Moody church have never been so great as they are today. The institutions at Northfield were never doing better work than at the present time. And, what is more, the very summer after Mr. Moody died the mightiest Northfield conference ever known up to that time was held, in spite of the fact that the most eloquent tongue and the best poised brain and the biggest heart Northfield ever produced were lying silent in the grave. Mr. Moody's gospel seed planting yielded forth some thirty, some sixty and some a hundred fold. It was God's work, and God's work alone.

God Will Bless Our Work. When Charles H. Spurgeon died did his work die? Oh, no. God is still blessing the mission of the Metropolitan tabernacle and of the London Pastors' college. He is still blessing the work of Charles H. Spurgeon because it was intrinsically inspired by the Holy Spirit. He is blessing it through Spurgeon's successors. God will raise up a modern Joshua if we only live for him. He will bless our lives the work of the Christian man and women with whom we have come into contact in the past. He will make us an essential link in a great chain of Christian influences which shall reach through all eternity.

God will bless the lives of modern Christian workers even through the death of their servants. Death is often a spiritual pruning hook. It lops off certain branches of the great tree of the human race in order that other branches may better develop and grow. We are all ready to recognize the usefulness of a pruning hook in a temporal sense. Why can we not do this in a spiritual sense?

To the spiritual weeding the death of the strong Christian is not always a misfortune, but a blessing. Let me illustrate this truth in a single way: some years ago there lived in your town a noble true man, who was the father of a large family. Suddenly he died. The friends who came into the bereft home not only sympathized with the widow because she had lost her husband, but because she seemed to have no visible means of support. Her eldest son was a nothing. He was a hothouse plant. He had depended in the past entirely upon his father. Mentally and morally he seemed to be entirely unfit to assume the responsibilities of the home. But hard by had the father died when a change came over the boy. Instead of being a clinging vine he stiffened into a stalwart oak. He went to work to supply the place of his father. It was the death of his father that developed him. It was the bludgeoning of a paternal gale by which the son was able to find his stepping stones to a throne. God, I believe, often uses the sharp pruning hook of death to spiritually develop his undeveloped children. He takes away his Moses in order to throw the spiritual responsibilities upon his Joshua. He says to us one and all: "It is not right for you, oh, young man, to learn to lean upon your father's and mother's spiritual life! You must learn to lean upon my divine arm, and mine alone. And in the leaning I will protect thee and care for thee, as I did for your Christian parents."

The Sweetest Notes of God. The sweetest gospel music is more often found to be the echo of a dirge than to come from a fantasia or a serenade or a dithyramb. Mozart's "Last Requiem," composed for his own obsequies, was his masterpiece. A beautiful legend teaches this: Many years ago a German knight wanted to change the towers of his castle into a great organ harp. When the strings were first strung from the towers no sound came therefrom. No note was struck, because the slender fingers of the spirits of the summer winds were not strong enough to bend the strings, although they were able to lightly touch them. But when winter came, then the blizzards had whistled with their muscles. With the strong touch of musical masters they began to run the gamut of every scale. Accompanied by the shriekings of the tornadoes, the strings of the castle towers began to vibrate and send forth the sweetest of melodies. God sounds his sweetest notes upon the harp strings of our spiritual hearts when we seem to be the most weak and helpless. He often develops his children by the pruning hook of trouble. He makes us lean heavily upon the divine hand when our own hearts have been gnashed open by the gravelly spade, and when the dark nights of sorrow have obliterated all constellations save the one star which gleamed over the Bethlehem crib on the night that Jesus was born.

God will bless the Christian workers of the present generation because Christ has emphatically and distinctly promised that by the weak things of this world God shall confound the mighty. That means that no child of God is too young a sinner to do great things. No Christian's arm is too weak to wield a stick in God's harvest field; no lip is too dumb to utter a far-reaching prayer; if that lip only belongs to a true disciple of Jesus Christ.

When Eloquence Meant Silence. We can prove this statement by recounting the history of the famous revival services held among the students of Edinburgh a few years ago. Henry Drummond of blessed memory! Henry Drummond, whose chief mission was given to the redemption for Christ of student life, gave an account of this movement on his last visit to this country. A couple of athletes of the University of Edinburgh were about to sail as foreign missionaries. Their classmates wanted to give them a big farewell. They hired one of the largest halls in the city. As those athletes were about to go forth as missionaries they prepared a big religious service. After these young men had departed a few of the Christian students left in the college came together and decided that they ought to hold such a religious service every week. These services were to be addressed by the most part by the students themselves. A committee was selected and arrangements made. Every student who was asked to address that meeting had to have two characteristics—the one, a pure, noble life; the other, he had to be a man of plain speech. The only bar to an invitation to address that meeting was eloquence. If a man was known to have the "silver tongue" of speech he was compelled to keep a "golden silence." What was the result of these series of meetings? Well, Sunday after Sunday in old Edinburgh, by plain, unassuming and, in most cases, by "unsung" students? Not only did crowds of students weekly fill the hall, but scores and hundreds of young men were brought to confess Christ. The like of that religious influence had never before been seen in old Scotland, although Edinburgh had been blessed with pulpits whose names were famous all around the world.

Then the result of these meetings began to be seen. These humble, one-fourth century, one hundred and four and five were sent to other colleges and universities and also to villages and towns. These plain young men, by consecrated Christian lives, not only moved Edinburgh, but also Scotland and all England and all Wales and, to some extent, religiously influenced the whole world. Mark you, my brother, that religious influence was not started by a Jonathan Edwards or a Robert McJannet or a Frederick Robertson, but by plain, humble students, who were consecrating their lives to Jesus Christ. If God can and did bless those modern Joshuas who do not bless us as individuals if we here and now consecrate our lives to his service and pray and plead and work as we ought to pray and plead and work? He will, my Christian brother. He will, he will, even though we may be physically and mentally weaklings. He will if we will only throw ourselves upon his divine and omnipotent strength.

God will bless the old as well as the young. Oh, how often in religious work I have heard this excuse given: "I believe that I ought to give myself up to religious work, but the trouble is I am too old. I have wasted the best part of my life. I am too old to start life over again." Some people may think you are right in your decision; I do not. Even now there may be a glorious time for you, oh, man, oh, woman, if you will start in Christian work just at the present time. I do not believe it is too late for you to start to serve Jesus Christ; not too late even though for you the hour hand of the clock of time may be pointing to the twelfth hour and the minute hand to five minutes of 12 o'clock.

Never Too Old For the Lord's Work. How old was Moses when he began to lead forth the children of Israel into the wilderness? Was he a young man? No. His hair must have been white. His skin must have been wrinkled. Michael Angelo's wonderful chisel has cut him in stone as a giant. There Moses sits in the Roman capital today, with arms and back knotted in muscles, with beard tossed of a tempest, with features swarthy enough to frown down any mob and with feet like a sledge hammer. But with all of Michael Angelo's genius he could not change the facts. His chisel had to make Moses an old man. He had almost passed his eightieth milestone of life when he went forth to liberate the children of Israel from Egyptian slavery. How old was Joshua when the mantle of the dead Moses fell upon his shoulders? He had already passed his fourscore years and five. He was already pressing on toward his ninetieth milestone. So God has for you and me, if we only throw ourselves upon his mercy, a mission of Christian usefulness. He has it even though we may be old men and women, with many years of wasted opportunities to our discredit.

By an ex-member of my church I can prove how God can bless a redeemed life which has been cursed by many years of sin. Some time ago a poor woman attended the services of the church of which I was pastor. She wished to join, but the members of the session were very much in doubt about letting her in. She had been for fifteen years a dissolute character. Her face was scarred and seamed with her past debaucheries. She had by her side a drunken husband and two dithyramb children. The session talked with her and at last decided to place her on probation for six months. At the end of six months she again wanted to join the church, and of course we admitted her. A couple of years ago that woman moved away and left our church. A couple of years ago that woman called upon me. At first I did not know her. Not only had the grace of God cleansed her face, but the marks of dissipation had almost entirely left her countenance. Though she had not the average artist might call a beautiful face, she certainly had a good, honest, noble, Holy Spirit inspired face. Her whole life was changed. It was now a Christian life of consecrated usefulness. Oh, my brother and sister, no matter how old you may be and how many wasted years are behind you, shall not God inspire you and lift you up as he changed that woman's life? Shall not the divine power guard your remaining days as Moses' and Joshua's lives were protected?

Nearly every royal order has the royal insignia in Germany one of the most honorable of orders was that started by King William called "The Order of the Iron Cross." Would that today the Heavenly King, instead of an earthly potentate, might place over your heart "the sign of the Iron Cross." May it prove that in his name you have worked and will continue to work divine wonders. Saved by grace, may you always continue to spiritually bless the lives of your fellow men.

Justice Harlan's Long Walks. Although Justice Harlan of the United States supreme court has reached what some have been pleased to call the "dead line" of actual life, being now just threescore and ten, he does not propose to recognize that arbitrary limitation, but will continue his duties on the bench for an indefinite time. He shows no apparent reason why he should retire, since he enjoys excellent health and is apparently no older than he was twenty years ago. He walks from Washington to the Chevy club, a good seven miles, to play his frequent game of golf, and he seldom rides to or from the sessions of the court. Probably his fine physical condition is due to his excellent habits.

A Modern Indian Wedding. A modern Indian wedding contains a grotesque combination of civilization and barbarism, as will be seen from the following account of a marriage ceremony which recently occurred in Oklahoma: "The bride was 'handsome' in pink and white, with a long pink silk ribbon sash, blue collar and cuffs, black hat with yellow and lavender trimmings, a green veil and black gloves. The bridegroom wore the conventional black, except his coat, which, it being a warm day, he had left at home. He carried an immense eagle wing."

A FACT ABOUT THE "BLUES" What is known as the "Blues" is seldom occasioned by actual existing external conditions, but in the great majority of cases by a disordered liver.

THIS IS A FACT which may be demonstrated by trying a course of

Tutt's Pills
They control and regulate the LIVER. They bring hope and buoyancy to the mind. They bring health and elasticity to the body.

Grip

Shattered My Nervous System.

Stomach Deranged, Liver Dormant.

Dr. Miles' Nervine Cured Me Completely.

A light cold in the winter with fever, headache, backache; when the nose runs and the eyes water and a soreness seems to permeate the marrow of the bones; this is the beginning of Grip's deadly grasp. The danger follows in the shattered nervous system and the derangement of the heart or the digestive organs as in the following case: "The last week in January I contracted LaGrippe and was confined to my bed for five weeks. My nervous system was completely shattered, stomach badly deranged and liver in an almost dormant condition. I took treatment daily from my family physician, but could get no relief. My condition continued to grow worse and as I had often heard of Dr. Miles' Nervine and Liver Pills, I began taking the medicine. I had no appetite, couldn't sleep and was scarcely able to get around. At this time I was one hundred and twenty-four pounds. At the end of the second week I was a changed man, my appetite was beyond control, my sleep was refreshing, my strength renewed and my weight was one hundred and forty-two pounds. I never felt better in my life than I do now. I take great pleasure in recommending Dr. Miles' Remedies to the afflicted. If anyone doubts the above statement I am ready to confirm it."—D. C. Mr. G. M. Myers, the well-known shoemaker of Winchester avenue and 14th street, Ashland, Ky., says: "Doan's Kidney Pills are like true friends, the longer you know them the better they are appreciated. I can add nothing to the statement I first made in 1896 after I procured the remedy at the Ventura Drug Co. and took a course of the treatment, which cured me. I was absolutely free from all backache for nearly three years, then I noticed a slight ache, as the result of a cold, in my back. A box of Doan's Kidney Pills disposed of it. I have recommended this remedy to many, and have never heard of one who did not endorse the claims made for it."

Nearly Forfeits His Life.

A runaway almost ending fatally, started a horrible ulcer on the leg of J. B. Orner, Franklin Grove, Ill. For four years it defied all doctors and all remedies. But Bucklen's Arnica Salve had no trouble to cure him. Equally good for Burns, Bruises, Skin Eruptions and Piles. 25c at all Drug Stores.

The North East Star has started a movement to have the town lighted with electricity. The town has shown many signs of advancement recently. New church, better streets, new bridge. Next—electric lights.

Mr. J. L. Fowle, of Baltimore county shows a sample of second growth clover that measured three feet in length. He has a field of four acres, from which he cut a wheat crop in July and since then the grass has made this extraordinary growth.

Mrs. Mollie Allen, of South Fork, Ky., says she has prevented attacks of cholera morbus by taking Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets when she felt an attack coming on. Such attacks are usually caused by indigestion and these Tablets are just what is needed to cleanse the stomach and ward off the approaching attack. Attacks of bilious colic may be prevented in the same way. For sale by all dealers.

William T. Scott killed a copperhead snake on his farm, near Rising Sun, which measured within one inch of three feet in length. Mr. Scott nearly stepped on the reptile, and lost little time jumping out of harm's way when he made the discovery.

A Sure Cure For Diarrhoea.

Coming as it does, in the busiest season, when a man can least afford to lose time, a sure and quick cure for diarrhoea is very desirable. Anyone who has given it a trial will tell you that the quickest, surest and most pleasant remedy in use for this disease is Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy. There is no loss of time when it is used, as one or two doses of it will cure any ordinary attack. It never fails, not even in the most severe and dangerous cases. For sale by all dealers.

Clayton Richardson was dangerously wounded in a fight on the streets of Berlin on Sunday between whites and negroes. The trouble was caused by negroes on their way to camp-meeting.

Shouting Christians.

Some Christians, who formerly shouted, no longer do so. Some never shouted. Some do not approve of it; others are never well, never in buoyant, hopeful spirits, so don't feel like it. Rev. Jno. S. Knab, Yellow Creek, Pa., says: "Victor Liver Syrup is still healing the sick. It seems as if God's blessing is upon it. Listen, women that have been sick for years are now at work and singing God's praises, and men are living a new and happier life. Good reports from the Victor Remedies everywhere." All live Druggists and Merchants keep them.

Paine's Celery Compound

Cures

DYSPEPSIA, INDIGESTION, AND STOMACH TROUBLES.

The tortures and evils of dyspepsia and indigestion are experienced by thousands at this time. The dyspeptic train of evils may be enumerated as follows: feelings of dizziness, languor, nervousness, sleeplessness, headache, distention of the stomach, loss of flesh, difficult breathing, and the action of the heart is seriously affected.

All forms of dyspepsia are quickly banished by the use of Paine's Celery Compound. The use of this marvelous medicine allays the inflammation of the nerves centered about the stomach; it opens up the sewers of the body and removes all waste matter; it cleanses the blood; it makes new nerve fibers; it restores digestive power, and promotes bodily strength and activity. Mr. Fred. Ross, Clarendon, Iowa, briefly writes about his happy experience with Paine's Celery Compound as follows:

"It gives me great pleasure to testify to the merits of Paine's Celery Compound. I can candidly and honestly say it is the best medicine in the world. Two years ago I was suffering from indigestion and nervousness, and was so run down that I could hardly walk without help. I used two bottles of Paine's Celery Compound and got better almost from the first dose, and have had no use for medicine since. I was completely cured."

Escaped An Awful Fate.

Mr. H. Haggins of Melbourne, Fla., writes: "My doctor told me I had Consumption and nothing could be done for me. I was given up to die. The offer of a free trial bottle of Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption, induced me to try it. Results were startling. I am now on the road to recovery and owe all to Dr. King's New Discovery. It surely saved my life." This great cure is guaranteed for all throat and lung diseases by all druggists. Price 50c & $1.00. Trial Bottles free.

The new national bank building at Cookeville will be 80 by 48 feet and will be faced with red brick and marble, the roof to be of red tiles. The main floor will be fireproof and the finishings of the interior will be of oak and marble. Outside, on the south side, there will be a marble terrace.

Boy Cured of Colic After Physician's Treatment Had Failed.

My boy when four years old was taken with colic and cramps in his stomach. I sent for the doctor and he injected morphine, but the child kept getting worse. I then gave him half a teaspoonful of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy, and in half an hour he was sleeping and soon recovered.—F. L. WILKINS, Shell Lake, Wis. Mr. Wilkins is book-keeper for the Shell Lake Lumber Co. For sale by all dealers.

While drilling a blast in the Potomac Cement Works, at Pinto, near Cumberland, Tuesday, a blast prematurely exploded. Joseph Rosso lost his hand and both of his eyes and Thomas McBee was severely injured.

Better Than Gold.

"I was troubled for several years with chronic indigestion and nervous debility," writes F. J. Green, of Lancaster, N. H. "No remedy helped me until I began using Electric Bitters, which did me more good than all the medicines I ever used. They have also kept my wife in excellent health for years. She says Electric Bitters are just splendid for female troubles; that they are a grand tonic and invigorator for weak, run down women. No other medicine can take its place in our family." Try them. Only 50c. Satisfaction guaranteed by all druggists.

A large traction engine broke through a bridge on the road from Senator Gorman's home to Laurel a few days ago. The Senator came along shortly afterward and could not get across. He sent his carriage back and walked home.

Dysentery Cured Without the Aid of a Doctor.

"I am just up from a hard spell of the 'flux' (dysentery) as Mr. T. A. Pinner, a well known merchant of Drummond, Tenn., 'I used one small bottle of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy and was cured without having a doctor. I consider it the best cholera medicine in the world.' There is no need of employing a doctor when this remedy is used, for no doctor can prescribe a better medicine for bowel complaint in any form either for children or adults. It never fails and is pleasant to take. For sale by all dealers.

The Middletown Hall Association proposed that the town corporation pay them $100 a year for 10 years for a burgess office, hose room and lockup, to be provided in the new opera house which they propose building. At a meeting of the taxpayers the proposition was carried by a big majority. The proposed opera house will seat over 400 and will have a large modern stage.

Not Over-Wise.

There is an old allegorical picture of a girl scared at a grass hopper, but in the act of heedlessly treading on a snake. This is paralleled by the man who spends a large sum of money building a cyclone cellar, but neglects to provide his family with a bottle of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy as a safeguard against bowel complaints, whose victims outnumbered those of the cyclone a hundred to one. This remedy is everywhere recognized as the most prompt and reliable medicine in use for these diseases. For sale by all druggists.

The Grand Jury of Allegany county will be convened next Monday, and a special term of court will follow. The judges have decided on this step on account of a recent epidemic of crime in the county.

Thoughts From The Town Of Allen.

Editors Advertiser: I sit in my study wondering, thinking. On my right lies an open treatise on geology; on my left, the pages of chemistry face me; in front of me a work on astronomy; in my hand I hold a paper containing an account of a sermon of Talmage. I have just read a paragraph of the sermon and it is this paragraph that has put me to wondering and thinking. I have to confess, of course, that I've been guilty of this offense before. Other matters have heretofore provoked me to wonder and think. In fact, it appears that I came into the world with a natural inclination that way. Excuse the digression and all excess of egotism that here exhibits itself.

To resume the thread where I dropped it I take up geology, the unerring pages of the rocks of the earth by the infallible hand of omnipotence written and read: All results are brought about by established methods. The same effects are always produced by the same causes, etc. I turn to chemistry and there learn the same truth. Astronomy, Natural philosophy. All teach the same lessons. The scientist and student of Nature believe in the unchangeableness of God's laws: believe that Nature is consistent; that the God of Nature is consistent; that whether revealed upon the face of the tiny leaf that dances in the gladsome sunlight of the mountain's highest peak, or locked within the silent and speechless rocks of the earth, where it awaits in patience the key of the geologist, truth, immutable, infallible, eternal, possesses the pages.

But what is it in the paragraph that put me to wondering and thinking? Let us see. Talmage there states that a man contemplating a trip for a change and a rest was busily engaged with his tasks working hard trying to get through in time to catch the desired train but failed and was left. A day later he reads in the paper that the train he had striven so hard to catch had been wrecked by a collision and that a great many passengers had been killed.

Well, you ask what of this? It is not a usual occurrence. The what of it, is just this: Talmage tells his audience that this man's failure to catch the ill-fated train was the work of the Lord; that the Lord in order to save him, hindered him in his work till it was too late that he might be preserved to his family. This is it at this time that has put me to wondering and thinking. With Talmage's opportunities and advantages for outlook, introspection, observation and reflection I wonder that he should at this enlightened age of the world in the face of all that science has done to free man from the mists and fogs of tradition and superstition, face an intelligent audience with a doctrine born of the superstition of the shadowy and uncertain ages of antiquity.

He (Talmage) seems blind to the fact that all the passengers on that train were not killed; blind to the fact that there were other families left by the wreck without a husband and father; blind to the fact that there were good mothers and innocent babies on that doomed car; blind to the fact that men, women, and children, the world over, are being left by boat and train, weekly—daily.

This man the only person of all the persons that boarded the train, for whom God had respect; whom God deemed worthy of His notice and care. Jupiter! Strange that, if the author of the universe and our being, exercise such care over any of the inhabitants of these sublimity regions, that He did not direct this favored one to a safe seat on the train, instead of keeping him at home, by hindering him in his work. Alas! for such logic; Alas! for such doctrine.

Strange, if the God of nature interfered with the laws of nature and the affairs of man, that he should permit a wicked and perverse brother to strike down, and without cause, a sinless and righteous brother, as in the case of Cain and Abel, the first born; and this is only an instance of the very many that might be needlessly mentioned, of similar import.

I stand not alone in these views; but on the contrary, find myself in the company of the profoundest and most brilliant minds of the century. Am proud of my company.

The winds have been howling into the ears of man, for ages and centuries, we know no mercy. Man is his own Providence. All heaven and earth are governed by inexorable law.

The fishes of the sea; the fowls of the air; the beasts of forest and field, have been saying to man, from the beginning, we know no mercy. Man is his own Providence. All heaven and earth are governed by inexorable law.

The mighty, mysterious, restless, convulsions, and insatiable old ocean, roaring, sighing, heaving—mouning a requiem over the countless thousands of silent and speechless bones that lie in her mud—has been saying to man, synchronously with the winds of the hills; the fowls of the sea; the fowls of the air; and the beasts of the forests, we know no mercy. Man is his own Providence. All heaven and earth are governed by inexorable law.

All nature, with a thousand tongues, and a thousand ways, for eons and cycles, has been preaching to man; trying to show him the oneness of nature, the hand, and the voice of the God. How long, O Lord! shall man continue deaf to thy voice; blind to thy presence; and insensible of thy touch? GNOL.

A Good Business Proposition

is something that everybody who looks out for their own interest will take time to consider. We have to make you, and

Several Good Business Propositions

Here's the Point

We do business on business principles. When we sell you a pair of shoes they are as good as can be manufactured for the money. People spend most of their time in their shoes, and this fact makes the quality of footwear a question of prime importance. Our proposition to you is to sell you good honest shoes at a price as low as is consistent with good values. We make this proposition to all prospective shoe buyers, fully believing that it is to your interest to do business with us. We have many advantages to offer you as a reason why you should do your shoe buying of us, the first of which is, we are exclusive Shoe dealers and also the largest buyers of Shoes on the Peninsula. We can offer you the largest and most complete stock to select from. We do not have to give you one size when your foot needs another. Our large stock enables us to carry all sizes and widths in stock. We take pains to see that every foot is properly fitted and also to select the proper kind of Shoe to meet the requirement for which it is intended. We have the exclusive sale in this city of all the best known and most popular makes of Shoes.

A person is often judged by the company they keep, so is a merchant by the merchandise he handles, and while we stand behind every pair of fair priced Shoes we sell, whether made under some pet name or not. To those who want special lines we can offer such well known ones as the following:

FOR MEN: The Walk-Over, W. L. Douglas, Crossett's Long Life.

FOR BOYS AND GIRLS: The Rice & Hutchins, Burley Stevens & Co., Excelsior.

FOR LADIES: Queen Quality, Zeigler Bros., Cinderella, Allnut Moody, Drew, Selby & Co.

GREAT GAMES OF BALL.

Salisbury Takes A Game From Dover 6-4 And The Delawareans Return The Compliment Pro Rata On Thursday, 4-2. How They Did It.

The Salisbury Club went to Dover on Tuesday and played an interesting game. "Lefty" Lewis pitched for Dover and Bobby Russell for the visitors. It was a pitchers battle, the short stop work of Kellogg and a home run by Davis were the features. Salisbury won, score 6 to 4.

The game scheduled for Wednesday was called off on account of condition of grounds.

On Thursday the same clubs met on the home ground, and the prettiest game of the season was witnessed by those who attended. Truitt pitched three innings for home team when his arm being sore Haas went in the box. Only two hits were made off of Haas during remainder of game. The fielding of both clubs was up to date in nearly every respect. Watson a. s. putting up the game of his life. The Dovers are a gentlemanly set of ball players, and their victory was well received by the crowd, although the rooters rooted hard for the home team and tried to put Williams up in the air, but he kept cool and pitched a good game.

Below we give score and summary.

PE-RU-NA NECESSARY TO THE HOME.

A Letter From Congressman White, of North Carolina.

HON. GEORGE H. WHITE.

Congressman George Henry White, of Tarboro, N. C., writes the following letter to Dr. Hartman in regard to the merits of the great stomach cure, Peruna:

"I am more than satisfied with Peruna, and find it to be an excellent remedy for the grip and catarrh. I have used it in my family and they all like me in recommending it as an excellent remedy."

Very respectfully,
George H. White.
Mrs. Nannie Wallace, Tulsa, Cal., President of the Western Baptist Missionary Society, writes:
"I consider Peruna an indispensable article in my medicine chest. It is twenty medicines in one, and has so far cured every sickness that has been in my home for five years. I consider it of special value to weakly women, as it builds up the general health, drives out disease and keeps you in the best of health."

—Mrs. Nannie Wallace.
If you do not derive prompt and satisfactory results from the use of Peruna, write at once to Dr. Hartman, giving a full statement of your case and he will be pleased to give you his valuable advice gratis.
Address Dr. Hartman, President of The Hartman Sanatorium, Columbus, Ohio.

ENTERTAIN AT QUANTICO.

Mr. and Mrs. O. W. Taylor Have A Large Number Of Guests At Their Country Home At A Lawn Fete Given Monday Evening.

A most enjoyable lawn fete was given at the beautiful country home of Mr. and Mrs. O. W. Taylor, of Quantico, on Monday evening of this week in honor of their guests, Mr. Ernest Prunty and sister, Miss Ora, of Cairo, W. Va.

The large grove about the house was beautifully lighted by lanterns of many colors and a pleasing spectacle indeed, was presented as the guests enjoying the hospitality of the host and hostess, moved to and fro about the house and among the trees of the grove.

Mr. and Mrs. Taylor with the Misses Kate and Nannie Taylor constituted the reception committee and by their easy and affable manner made every guest to feel quite at ease and to enjoy the occasion. Various entertainments consisting of select recitations, vocal and instrumental music were rendered during the evening.

At 10.30 the company was invited to the dining hall where refreshments consisting of ice, cakes, fruits, etc., were served. Over this hall, which was handsomely decorated, Mrs. Agnes Crawford, assisted by the Misses Jessie and Rosalie Taylor, presided.

Those present were: the Misses Wagner from Wilmington, Miss Ora Prunty from Cairo, W. Va., Miss Nina Brewington from Allen, Miss Marie Collier from Washington, Miss Christie Crawford from Baltimore, Miss Mabel Waller from Salisbury, Miss Agnes Law from Wingo, Mrs. Insley from Bivalve and the Misses Mae and Nellie Graham, Emma Harris, Florence, Jennie, Lillie and Stella Bounds, Ella Brady, Lillian and Daisy Doston, Mabel Bailey, Blanche and Marie Tainter, Lulu and Eunice Phillips, Rubie Crawford, E. —There is much activity in all lines of canned goods at present and the market generally is strong and in some lines, such as corn, advances are reported. The advance in the price of canned corn has been gradual since the opening of the season and at present is from 10 to 15 cents a dozen higher for fall delivery.

THE TOMATO INDUSTRY.

Canneries in Wicomico Present A Busy Appearance—Good Crop of Tomatoes Assured—Packers and Growers Pleased With The Outlook.

Much interest is now manifest along tomato lines, and the Wicomico canneries, which have already a fair start, will by next week be in the thick of the 1903 crop. The weather of the past few days has been exactly what has been needed for the crop, and a marked improvement. While a more rapid maturing of the fully formed fruit is practically certain, this feature will likely give the canneries a good run during the coming week, even if full time is not maintained later.

Unusual activity has been displayed among the tomato growers and canneries of this vicinity the past week in getting ready for a busy canning season.

The growing and the canning season of tomatoes in Wicomico county is an industry that engages the attention of a large number of people, and there is general interest over the outcome. The crop here and in adjoining counties is very promising on a general average.

Estimates are various, and it is impossible to form an intelligent opinion as to what the harvest will be. Some growers claim there will be a full crop while others estimate the yield at one-half the usual crop. Some contractors however, claim that the crop will be 50 per cent larger than that actually harvested last year. The vines are big and healthy and the fruit large and wholesome. The acreage in this county is nearly double that of last year, and for this reason it is thought the difference will be more than made up.

The price of canned tomatoes during the coming winter will likely be high on account of failure of Western, and if this peninsula turns out more of the fruit than last year, which it ought to do with increased acreage, it should be profitable to both growers and canners.

Elsewhere on the Peninsula.

In many localities on the peninsula canneries have been established and the farmers find it more profitable to sell their product to them, or to pack the tomatoes themselves, rather than send them to the city. Instead of shipping tomatoes to the packers in larger cities the steamboat companies are carrying cans, supplies and Bohemian laborers to the fields where tomatoes are grown. This means a decrease in the freight received from the tomato trade, as the fresh, perishable vegetables command a higher freight than the canned goods. When the farmers found they would have few or no peaches, they turned their attention to tomatoes. Another cause accounting for the large acreage this year is the fact that large profits were made out of tomatoes last year, and particularly by those who canned them before they were hauled to the city.

FROM A WICOMICO MOTHER.

Mr. Editor:—Won't you publish the following verses, the sentiments of a distressed and heart broken Wicomico Mother.

Mother—
O Mr. Saloonkeeper, Saloonkeeper, I beg you don't sell

The stuff to my boy that will send him to hell.

Remember how dear to my heart he must be,

And let him to night return sober to me.

Saloonkeeper—
They licensed me, madam, to sell him the stuff.

The fool ought to know when he's taken enough.

You can't expect me to refuse all who come, My business is to sell all drinkers their rum.

Mother—
O Saloonman, Saloonman, I beg you to think,

How much it may mean if you sell him the drink.

His soul is in peril don't wreck it for gain, Don't make it another young life you have slain.

Saloonkeeper—
Go to the Commissioners, and talk there to the men who have said

I may sell, to the voter who stands at the head

Of the church where you pray, don't be whining away

In this place I have license, go to the Commissioners, I say;

Mother—
O Mr. Saloonman, they say you may sell,

But whose is the sin, if you send him to hell; He buys at your bar that will bring him to shame,

For all that may follow God holds you to blame.

Saloonkeeper—
No, madam, the sin is not mine at the first,

Nor for it shall I be the only man cured; The men who signed my license to sell are the ones

To settle with God if I ruin your son.

Wicomico Mother.

—The shooting tournament held at Ocean City last week was well attended and in various ways thoroughly enjoyed. The general public were given a chance to view the display of marksmanship the birds were rather more tame than usual and were seemingly more inclined to cling to the outedge of their trap than give the gunners a chance to kill them on the wing. There was really more genuine sport in the breaking of clay targets than live pigeons. They had their little fling however and made the return home no doubt happy.

ON THE DEMOCRATIC TICKET THIS FALL

Sketch Of One Of The Candidates For Election, Now Before The Voters Of Wicomico County. Who The Democratic Party Has Chosen For Public Trust And Duty. A Touch Of Personal History.

MARION V. BREWINGTON.

Nominee on the Democratic ticket for State Senator, was born in Salisbury, at the Brewington home on Main Street, December 26th, 1866. He received his education at the public schools in this city, and at the age of fifteen entered the office of the Salisbury Advertiser as an apprentice. In 1887 Mr. Brewington in company with his brother established the Wicomico News. The subject of this sketch has been connected with politics from his early youth, and in 1897 assumed the management of the County Campaign for Clerk James T. Truitt. Two years later Mr. Brewington was nominated by the Democrats for State Senator, and made the memorable fight against Congressman Wm. H. Jackson, defeating him by a good majority. During the two terms Mr. Brewington has served in the Senate, he has been instrumental in passing much legislation which has proven of a material benefit to Wicomico County. His efforts in behalf of the oystermen of this section will no doubt be appreciated by them at the coming election.

Mr. Brewington is a Director in the Farmers & Merchants Bank, the Salisbury Ice Company and is Secretary of the Peninsula General Hospital, and during his term in the Senate, he has had the appropriation increased from $1,300 per year up to $5,000 per year. He is a member of all the Masonic bodies including the Myrtle Shrine; is a Red Man, a Knight Pythias, and a Royal Arcanum. Mr. Brewington married a daughter of the late Dr. Wm. Fulton, for many years Rector of St. Peter's Church, this city. They have one child.

Westerners Beginning To Realize Attractions Of The Eastern Shore.

Real Estate Agencies are busily engaged just now settling Western farmers over the Eastern Shore, particularly in Wicomico, Somerset and Worcester counties.

Mr. Tyler, from Nebraska, who has lately settled near Pocomoke, being asked how he liked the Eastern Shore of Maryland, said:

"It is simply impossible for one to write of the many advantages and opportunities to be had here for making a nice home and a good livelihood. If the great army of home seekers could only know of the fine farms for sale, what an advantage and help it would be to them. I wish that I were able to let some of them who are toiling and half way living on some of the Western prairies know that for less than it costs to improve the land and make a home in that cold, dry, barren and desolate country they can come here and buy a nice home, where they can enjoy all the comforts and delicacies to be had by the richest people of any land. The great abundance of fruits and vegetables we have here are something they know absolutely nothing about. It is a fact that I have had more of such delicacies and good wholesome living in the few months I have been here than I had all the time I lived in the West."

The natives of the Peninsula are always ready to welcome these enterprising Northern and Western farmers, and all energetic, go-ahead settlers are taken by the hand and given a place at the hearthstones of the people, whose hospitality is as far-famed as the products of their beautiful and productive country.

—Mr. Oregon Milton Dennis, secretary of the Maryland State Game and Fish Protective Association, states that there is less violation of the laws this season than there has been during the entire time. The Association is greatly aided in the enforcement of the law by many of the members of the clubs along the shore, and Mr. Dennis says that he believes that the people are now beginning to realize that the laws are not made to further the interests of the members of the Association, but for the benefit of the people at large.

Big Snake Enjoyed Hen Eggs.

For several weeks past Mrs. Alexander Freeman, who resides on a farm near Easton, has been missing eggs from her henry. She at first supposed they were being stolen by some bad boys in the neighborhood, but was convinced the other morning that such was not the case, when she entered her poultry yard and discovered a large black snake coiled up in a hen's nest.

The enormous size of the reptile at first frightened Mrs. Freeman, but she soon got over her scare and had the snake killed. It measured six and one-half feet and was about as thick around the body as an ordinary man's arm, which was caused by the numerous eggs it had swallowed.

An Enjoyable Porch Party.

The Misses Coughlin entertained quite a number of their friends Friday evening in honor of their guests Misses Martha and Carrie Hurlington of Allen. Music and games being the chief entertainment.

Miss Grace Neely of Baltimore, the accomplished pianist, rendered several selections. Those in attendance were Misses Alma and Nellie Lankford, Alice Carey, Mildred Wright, of Cambridge, Laura Elliott, Grace Neely of Baltimore, Katie Anderson, of Rockwalking, Leola Nelson, Grace Darby, Mary Crew, Martha and Carrie Hurlington of Allen, and Miss Nellie Lancaster of Philadelphia. Messrs. Lynn Perry, Knox Insley of Bivalve, Harry Snow of Baltimore, Charlie Bennett, Willie Sheppard, Arthur Phillips, Sewell McCoughlin, Prof. Walter Hurlington and Emory Coughlin.

A bountiful collation consisting of ices, cakes and fruits was served at eleven o'clock.

—Snow Hill contributed her tribe of Red Men who alighted on the platform at Berlin Tuesday morning accompanied by their squaws, in all their paints and feathers ready for any emergency and bound for the sands of Ocean City. The tribe presented a healthy appearance and being in good standing were freely admitted to all live places of interest and reported a huge day all around. Fortunately each one

OLD TIME MIDSHIPMAN.

A Sample Examination Before the Advent of Our Naval Academy.

The midshipmen, who were of tender years when appointed, and without preparation, were sent on board ships either fitting out or about to sail in search of the enemy. Yet the need of mental education for the young men was great, and the attempts were made to provide it. Congress having refused to establish a naval school, the navy department in 1802 prescribed in regulations the duties of schoolmasters, but schoolmasters were not appointed, writes ex-Secretary John D. Long in Outlook. When, in 1810, the navy department decreed that midshipmen must pass a professional examination in order to receive promotion to the grade of lieutenant, the country greeted the reform with gratification; the youths were affected with consternation. It was the thing for a "middy" during the greater period of his apprenticeship to apply himself to doing what he was told, and doing it quick—a process which was frequently accelerated by a rope's end—and to devote as much time as he could spare in the six months prior to examination to the study of the theory of seamanship. This theoretical education was gained from a few books on mathematics and navigation, and sometimes from the kindly help of a superior. In "The United States Naval Academy," written by Park Benjamin, whose full and excellent history of the Naval Academy I have followed, the author thus describes the examination of Midshipman Joseph Tatnall:

Commodore—Mr. Tatnall, what would be your course, supposing you were off a lee shore, the wind blowing a gale, both anchors and your rudder gone, all your canvas carried away, and your ship scudding rapidly toward the breakers?

Tatnall—I cannot conceive, sir, that such a combination of disasters could possibly befall a ship in one voyage.

Commodore—Tut, tut, young gentleman! We must have your opinion supposing such a case to have actually occurred.

Tatnall—Well, sir, sails all carried away, do you say, sir?

Commodore—Aye, all—every rag.

Tatnall—Anchor gone, too, sir?

Commodore—Aye, not an uncommon case.

Tatnall—No rudder either?

Commodore—Aye, rudder unshipped. (Tatnall drops his head despondingly in deep thought.) Come, sir, come, bear a hand about it. What would you do?

Tatnall (at last and despatch)—Well, I'd let the infernal tub go to the deuce, where she ought to go!

Commodore (Joyously)—Right, sir; perfectly right! That will do, sir. The clerk will note that Mr. Tatnall has passed.

Roseberry's Efforts to Woo Sleep.

T. P. O'Connor writes in M. A. P. thus: "It is well known that Lord Roseberry has been cursed—that is the word—by recurrent insomnia all through his life. I know no malady which is more calculated to sap the energy and destroy the nerve of man than sleeplessness, and I believe that much of what is apparently erratic in the career of Lord Roseberry is to be attributed to the want of sequence which the domination of sleeplessness amounts sometimes almost to despair, has produced in his mind. Of the many remedies which have been tried by Lord Roseberry for this distressing malady, the most original is that which, according to one paper, I find he now resorts to at Dalmeny. It is to order a carriage with four horses to be ready for him at 10 o'clock at night, long after he has had dinner. In this equipage, preceded by an outrider, Lord Roseberry rides for hours. It is one of the many ways in which he hopes to get sleep."

The Era of the Waterfalls.

One of the most notable things in the rapid march of mechanical science is the increasing use of waterfalls for the production of electric power. This is going on in all parts of the world and has resulted in an enormous increase in the money value of the falls. Some one has estimated that Niagara falls, as a producer of power, is worth $1,000,000. Waterfalls are now driving trams, lighting cities, running factories, irrigating farms and performing innumerable other services, often at a distance of many miles from the source of power. Italy, abounding with waterfalls on the slopes of the Alps and the Apennines, is among the leaders in this advance. In India it is proposed to derive 50,000 horsepower from the Dooch Sagar river, at a point where its waters descend about 2,500 feet.

The Alderman's Advice.

Archdeacon Sinclair told a story at the lord mayor's banquet in London of the days when he was a young vicar in Westminster, and, together with a number of other young men, many of them clergymen, he dined with a distinguished alderman. After the ladies had left the gentlemen to their cigars, the distinguished alderman fixed the young men with a stony glare and expressed a desire to offer them one word of good advice. An expectant pause followed, the young clergymen expecting some words of exhortation. The alderman solemnly proceeded, "Young men, if ever any of you are brought up before me, don't pretend to know me, and then I can let you off."

American Unity.

A foreign diplomat is credited with the remark that there is nothing in history like our American forgetfulness of the civil feud of forty years ago. A statue of General Lee at Gettysburg, built by the joint action of Pennsylvania and Virginia, would be new evidence.—Elmira Gazette.

The Wesley Bicentenary.

The bicentenary of the birth of John Wesley is to be elaborately celebrated at the beginning of the next commencement week of Wesleyan university, at Middletown, Conn., the last three days in June being devoted to it. It is confidently expected that the occasion will bring together the largest assemblage of the alumni of the university ever gathered there, and the faculty urges that every class plan to have a reunion at some time during the week.

AN INGENUOUS ROBBERY.

How $100,000 Was Stolen From an Irish Stagecoach.

In the first quarter of the past century it became necessary for the Bank of Ireland, at Belfast, to send a large sum of money in notes to its branch at Armagh to meet a special requirement there, the amount to be remitted being almost £20,000.

Only two courses were open to the management to effect this, one being to send a special messenger in a post-chaise and the other to send the consignment by the mailcoach. The latter was the mode of transportation chosen. The coach left Belfast on Monday, Wednesday and Friday at 12 o'clock noon, returning from the archdiocese city each Tuesday, Thursday and Saturday.

On the previous afternoon of the day in question a stranger called at the coach office and booked four inside seats to Armagh, paying for them in advance. Just prior to the starting of the coach two men only put in an appearance, explaining that the other two passengers would join them en route at a place beyond Lisburn. The mailcoach was in charge of John Byers, an old and trusted servant of his employer and the premier "whip" on that coach line.

The leatheren wallet containing the notes was handed to him by an official at the bank, who instructed him under no circumstances to lose sight of it till it reached its destination. He duly gave effect to his instructions, placing the wallet in the front boot, as it was called, underneath the driving seat and where the coach "dined," having his dinner brought out and eating it on the box.

When the coach arrived at the rendezvous beyond Lisburn, the two inside passengers' confederates were not to be seen. After waiting a few moments both guard and driver said it was impossible to wait longer, and the two inside must either continue their journey or remain behind. After some demur they chose the latter alternative and retraced their steps toward Lisburn.

When the coach arrived at Armagh, to the horror and consternation of those in charge it was discovered that the wallet containing the consignment was missing. The cloth in the inside had been cut, the hair stuffing removed, and the dividing panel between it and the boot had been saved through and the wallet abstracted.

The whole robbery had been carefully planned. After abstracting the wallet the thieves replaced the panel and stuffing and sewed up the cloth again, so that should any one go inside en route no disturbance would be perceptible. It was ascertained that the thieves obtained a conveyance in Lisburn, drove to Belfast, where they negotiated the notes for a draft on Glasgow, made their way to Donaghadee, thence to Portpatrick and eventually to Glasgow.

They were never captured, and to the present day it has remained a profound mystery how the information was obtained that the remittance was to be forwarded.—London Tit-Bits.

Famous Picture Is Danger.

Art circles are much perturbed over the prospective fate of the famous picture by Tintoretto representing "The Glory of the Blessed in Paradise," which occupies the whole of the east wall of the hall of great council in the palace of the doges. This enormous painting, said to be the largest in the world, extends over a space of about 2,140 square feet and covers a fresco painted by Guariento in 1400. The wall and of course the fresco were much damaged by the fire which broke out in the palace in 1577. The defects in the building, which have now been discovered, have aroused some fear lest the wall covered by Tintoretto's "Paradise" may be seriously cracked. Orders were given for the picture to be removed, and a committee of Venetian artists began the difficult task. They were, however, soon compelled to desist and reported that owing to the very bad condition of the painting its removal was almost impossible. The choice is offered either of spoiling the picture in order to examine and repair the wall or of sparing the Tintoretto and risking further danger to the fabric of the palace of the doges.

Expensive London.

The ordinary price for dinner at a London hotel is 6 shillings; at a French hotel 6 francs, or 4s. 9d. Yet the Paris dinner is at least as good, and, in my opinion, it is generally better, though it costs 20 per cent less. Look at the prices at Doney's restaurant at Florence—4 francs for lunch, 5 francs for dinner. There is no place in the United Kingdom where such good and well cooked food can be obtained for double the money. Yet everything in France is heavily taxed, even down to the salad.

At the same time English innkeepers and restaurateurs tell me that if it were not for the profits on wine their business would not pay. So far does this go that I, who am a teetotaler, have often been charged 1 shilling extra in lieu of wine at a London restaurant. On the other hand, foreign restaurants, generally speaking, make a very moderate profit on wine. I have often discussed with Americans the cost of living in various parts of Europe. They are unanimous in saying that for a visitor—not necessarily for a resident—London is far and away the most expensive city in Europe.—London Truth.

Not Enough Faith For Funeral.

The Rev. Sanford Olmsted, the new Episcopal bishop of Colorado, is noted for the skill with which he can collect money for charity. St. Asaph's church, at Bala, Pa., was Bishop Olmsted's last charge, and this church under his pastorate actually had more money than it could spend.

Here is an instance of Bishop Olmsted's address as a collector:

He called on a man one day who was well to do, but somewhat close. He asked for money for a worthy charity, and the man said:

"I'd give something gladly, but the fact is I've only $300 by me in cash—$300 that I've put aside for my funeral."

"You trust God with your soul," said Bishop Olmsted, "but you're afraid to trust him with your funeral, eh?"

This comment gained the bishop a generous contribution.—New York Tribune.

BIG PICTURE AND

Painting Them Requires Little Skill, but Laps into Obscurity.

When a man walking along the sidewalk sees another man suspended fifty feet above him painting a model of his feet long or as geylsh five feet long, the chances are ten to one that the pedestrian will stop a moment to wonder how the painter, with his face as close to the picture as get the exact proportions of the human face, says the New York Times. If any one should tell the spectator that never in his life until today had the man up there tried to paint a human face, the information would be received with a laugh of scorn. Yet it is no uncommon thing for an ordinary sign painter to be employed to paint a picture of Jim Dumps or William Penn or any other face used for advertising purposes.

Why is this? Simply because it is merely a matter of measurements and accuracy and requires no artist's skill. The pedestrian on the pavement doesn't see it, but the whole wall on which the picture is being painted is laid off into a number of squares, made by intersecting chalk lines. The exact spot in each of these lines where the tip of the nose or the toe of the foot shall be is as fixed as is the day for the next eclipse of the sun.

A visitor asked the head designer in an outdoor advertising firm if it wasn't hard to get men skillful enough to paint these exaggerated pictures.

"The other day," replied the designer, "I got a man who had never painted anything but letters in his life to put a face twenty feet high on a wall, and he did it as well as it could be done."

Then he showed how the only part that took any skill was done in his own office. First he or some other designer drew a small picture, about quarter life size, on a piece of square cardboard. When this was done, the piece of cardboard was divided by pencil lines into sixty-four squares, so that its form was just like that of a checkerboard. This was given to a painter, and it was told him that each square on the paper meant one fifteen feet square on the wall.

Then it was easy for the painter to lay off with colored chalk squares of the required size on the wall. When he began to paint, he took the designer's drawing with him. There were explicit directions as to colors and the kinds of brushes to be used. Then it was only a matter of proportion. If the nose occupied half a square on the paper, it occupied half the corresponding square on the wall, and if the but of the coat was at the intersection of two pencil lines, it must be at the same intersection of the chalk lines.

The designer said that it was a very common occurrence for him to send one man to finish a picture that another man had begun. Once he had three men painting the same figure, taking turn about until the job was complete.

"It's purely mechanical," he said. "If we catch a man using his own ideas or trying to display any originality, we get rid of him immediately. I have seen a man took a notion into his head to try a few fancy strokes and we had to put another man at it the next day. Wouldn't that picture be a pretty mess?"

The average painter of large pictures earns about $30 a week. A larger salary is very rare. It is never hard to get the man you want, the designer says, because anybody that is used to a paint brush and can make measurements is able to do the work.

Facts About the Bible.

Twenty-eight huge volumes of the British museum catalogue contain nothing but titles of different editions of the Bible and commentaries upon it. Two Bible societies, one in London, one in New York, have printed 250,000,000 copies of the whole book or part of it in a hundred years. There are similar societies in other cities and countries, and many private firms have printed Bibles for commercial profit.

But for the work of these societies we might never dream that more than 333 languages or dialects are spoken and read in the world. The London society alone has used that number. Only about one-third of all the Bibles printed in London are in English. In the east dialects are especially numerous. Dr. Riggs, the missionary, has heard twenty different tongues in one crossing of the footbridge over the Golden Horn at Constantinople.

For Armenians alone the Bible must be printed in various fashions. Armenian in Turkish script, Armenian in Greek script, Armenian in what is called the Armenian character, besides that for Armenians who no longer speak their own language.

Publishing Poetry.

The New York Mail and Express points out the fact that in a list of twenty volumes of poems reviewed in a recent number of a literary paper four were published by the authors themselves and nine by houses that merely act as publishing agents for authors. The inference is that the great mass of poetry goes begging for a publisher, with the author so convinced of the importance of his message to the world that he would rather be his own publisher than leave his pipings unprinted.

Deserves All the Credit.

See a prattling, laughing, healthy baby in a home and you find sunshine there—pepe, mamma, grandmother, all are happy. "I take pleasure in recommending Victor Infants Relief, for it helped our baby very much—brought health and sleep. When only eleven months old she weighed 25 pounds. Victor Infants Relief alone, I think, has made her so hearty. It is a remedy that deserves much praise and is invaluable to the mother." 25 cents will buy this wonderful Baby Medicine from your Druggist.

Miss Alice M. Smith, of Minneapolis, Minn., tells how woman's monthly suffering may be quickly and permanently relieved by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:—I have never before given my endorsement for any medicine, but Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has added so much to my life and happiness that I feel like making an exception in this case. For two years every month I would have two days of severe pain and could find no relief, but one day when visiting a friend I ran across Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and she had used it with the best results and advised me to try it. I did, and that it worked wonders with me; I now experience no pain and only feel to use a few bottles to bring about this wonderful change. I mention this now when I am exceptionally tired or worn out."

—Miss Alice M. Smith, 804 Third Ave., South Minneapolis, Minn., Chairman of the Committee Minneapolis Study Club.

Beauty and strength in women vanish early in life because of monthly pain or some menstrual irregularity. Many suffer silently and see their best gifts fade away. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound helps women preserve roundness of form and freshness of face because it makes their entire female organism healthy. It carries women safely through the various natural crises and is the safeguard of woman's health.

The fact about this great medicine is told in the letters from women being published in this paper constantly.

Mrs. C. Kleinschrodt, Morrison, Ill., says:—"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:—I have suffered ever since I was thirteen years of age with my menses. They were irregular and very painful. I doctored a great deal but received no benefit. A friend advised me to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, which I did, and after taking a few bottles of it, I found great relief. Menstruation is now regular and without pain. I am enjoying better health than I have for sometime."

How is it possible for us to make it plainer that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound will positively help all sick women? All women are constituted alike, rich and poor, high and low, all suffer from the same organic troubles. Surely, no one can wish to remain weak and sickly, discouraged with life and no hope for the future, when proof is so unambiguously that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound will cure monthly suffering—all womb and ovarian troubles, and all the ills peculiar to women.

DO YOU GET UP

WITH A LAME BACK?

Kidney Trouble Makes You Miserable.

Almost everybody who reads the newspapers is sure to know of the wonderful cures made by Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, the great kidney, liver and bladder remedy. It is the great medical triumph of the nineteenth century; discovered after years of scientific research by Dr. Kilmer, the eminent kidney and bladder specialist, and is wonderfully successful in promptly curing lame back, kidney, bladder, uric acid troubles and Bright's Disease, which is the worst form of kidney trouble.

Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root is not recommended for everything but if you have kidney, liver or bladder trouble it will be found just the remedy you need. It has been tested in many ways, in hospital work, in private practice, among the helpless too poor to purchase relief and has proved so successful in every case that a special arrangement has been made by which all readers of this paper who have not already tried it, may have a sample bottle sent free by mail, also a book telling more about Swamp-Root and how to find out if you have kidney or bladder trouble. When writing mention reading this generous offer in this paper and send your address to Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y. The regular fifty cent and one dollar bottles are sold by all good druggists. Don't make any mistake, but remember the name, Swamp-Root, Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, and the address, Binghamton, N. Y. on every bottle.

THE GREAT VITAL ISSUE IN OUR COUNTY AND STATE ELECTION.

The Republicans may formulate, announce and promulgate political issues and platforms that may seem timely and plausible, but for the party of the "White people"—the Democratic party—their faces it the vital issue of White rule versus Negro supremacy. This question indeed not alone confronts Wicomico County, the Eastern Shore, the Southern Counties, but every other county in the State and every other State in the Union, particularly those of a warmer climate and the border neighbors. The Democratic party is looked upon as the hope of the white race and the exponent of white domination, whereas the Republican party must bear the burden and odium of the negro's company and depend on the colored man's vote and labor to elect him to a once honored public office and place of trust. Of an officer thus elected what could be expected? His honesty may be golden and his principles above reproach, but is he not bound in accepting his office to represent those who elected him. If such a far away happening could come to pass as the election of a Republican on that ticket in Wicomico County, to whom would he owe his election and to whom would he be responsible—to the 1899, black voters who make about three fourths of the Republican vote in Wicomico County, and form their main strength and right power. To them would he owe his office of public trust. What a condition of affairs this would create in a white man's county, a white man's state and country! Those who were erstwhile slaves the power behind the Republican throne! For who in the soaring heights of their imagination could conceive of a Republican elected by negroes and then not protecting and serving those whom he has been elected to represent and serve. It would be unnatural to suppose other and a Republican officer would betray his trust, did he not look after the interest of his colored "brother" and co-political laborer. Would he not owe it to the negro who composes an estimated 3/4 of his vote? Would not his obligations be to the negro? Certainly. There is no other view, because he virtually accepts these obligations in accepting the nomination for office on the Republican ticket, knowing full well—or at least ought to—who composes it.

No one will soon forget what a wave of crime broke out and spread all over Maryland during Lowndes' administration—1898-1899 and especially how in Baltimore City crime ran riot. Why? Because the Republican party then in power owed ponderous obligations to the chief lawless element—to the 1899 black voters, combining many thousands of worthless, shiftless, ignorant southern negro scum, who had poured into our state to become the "white man's burden" and the Republican back bone. These under a Republican administration which they had elected and formed an under part of, felt themselves little confined by law, order or sobriety and gave vent in many fearful instances to their horrible and beastly passions, which caused reign of terror to white women and children, while the Republicans remained in power entrenched in a negro fortress. We want white men, regardless of politics, on the white man's side, for the conservation of an intelligent progressive statehood, and the preservation through a wise, efficient government of that most sacred of human possessions—the sanctity of the home, and all that it cherishes. Here's to the Democratic party and its candidates:

May it and they live long in noble ideals and prosper in unlimited white votes.

FLYING-KITES.

With its crossed sticks covered with paper, with its balancing tail of rags, with its length of cord to hold it suspended in the air, the kite is a familiar object in these days. But it was just as familiar an object in ancient days, it having been used as a plaything since four hundred years before the Christian Era. It is a toy that has delighted a multitude of boyish hearts during twenty-three centuries of time. In China kite flying is the pastime of men. Kites there are made into various shapes, dragons, birds and animals, the overhead heavens often appearing like an elevated zoological garden.

Not long ago we renewed our youth by making a kite and sending it upward to the clouds. Ponce De Leon ought to have done this instead of exploring Florida for a fabled fountain in which to wash away his accumulation of years. Flying a kite made us young, temporarily at least. How beautifully it soared away as we swiftly let out the cord! How gracefully it poised itself in the upper atmosphere! How it spoke to our sense of pride from its lofty height! A creation of our own fingers, and capable of flying without wings! Alone beneath the blue vault at a distance of more than half a mile, but held firmly to its place by our hand! A thing for the breezes to sport with, and yet in obedience to our will! We had unconsciously slipped backward over a greater number of years than we care to tell, and had become a boy again. It was an hour's dream from which we did not wish to be rudely awakened. Benjamin Franklin's kite was lifted in the interest of science, sending back to the philosopher messages of fire that revealed the secrets of electricity; ours was caught by the upper currents of the air to serve the pleasure of a lad who calls us "Papa." But we do not know who enjoyed the flight of the toy the more, the son or the father.

We learned some bits of wisdom that day. When the duties of life begin to grow irksome, send them off upon a figurative kite. Ours were carried beyond reach by a real kite. But an imaginary kite will answer as well. As when we are sick we need medicine, so when physical or mental labor becomes oppressive we need a season of relaxation. Nerves that are ever strained are apt to rebel and cause trouble. "It is better to wear out than to rust out," says the proverb. But it is better still, neither to wear out nor rust out. Sometimes rest the eyes by offering them a wider range of vision than is habitual to them. Let the brain occasionally have other than its accustomed employment. "All work and no play makes Jack a dull boy." More than that. All work and no play makes larger Jacks dull men and Jills duller women. Be take yourself, therefore, to kite flying. We also lost the cares of life that day, forgetting that we had two sermons to make ready for the coming Sabbath. Our thoughts went up with the kite. If the cord had been long enough, that kite would have gone clear to the ocean, the wind blowing that way. It would have taken our anxieties along with it, perhaps dropping them into the waves, though it is more than likely that afterwards we should have tried to fish them up. It would be embarrassing to enter the pulpit with an empty basket, the day of miracles being past.

But why not get rid of all trouble in that way? Instead of brooding over the manifold annoyances of life, making yourself sick and nauseating every one around you, why not send them flying off upon a fanciful kite? It is a practice of ours, when unable to sleep for a long time after going to bed, to court slumber by imagining that the thoughts keeping us awake are birds, mentally picturing that we are driving them away with waving hands. The same experiment might be made with the things that distress us, pretending that we are flying a kite high in the air, and letting that kite bear them towards heaven. That would turn us to prayer. It is a custom of boys, when flying kites, to send a message to the swaying object above them. A piece of paper is slipped upon the cord, and the breath of the wind moves it along until it reaches the kite. So in flying these brain-kites, upon which we have fastened our trials, we may waft upward a petition to Him who dwells on high, asking for help, and thus accepting His invitation to cast on Him all our care.

We have seen kites, however, come to grief because of an insufficiency of tail. The tail of a kite is like the governor of a steam engine. It is a restraining agent. If that appendage is not proportioned to the size of the kite and the strength of the winds, the kite will bob to and fro, turn somersaults, and descend wildly to earth with a crash that means ill to its delicate skin of paper and its brittle bones of wood.

So have we seen moral kites ruined by a lack of balancing power. Mr. Easy-liver sends up a financial kite. For a time it flies in a most majestic manner, the admiration of the town. But it is covered with debts; and its tail is made of promissory notes. Presently a high wind catches it afool, and it comes ingloriously to the ground. Such kites cannot fly very long. Better not attempt to make a great show, if you have to do it with other persons' money. Make your own financial kites, and tail them with honesty.

Young Pretender delivered a graduating address that brought him scores of compliments. His kite went almost out of sight. But it was afterwards learned that his brilliant oration was stolen. The tail of his kite was plagiarism. Under the winds of discovery that kite tossed from side to side, lost its equilibrium, then came rushing from under the blue sky with the speed of a meteor. It was humiliating, but it served Mr. Pretender right. Literary theft is a poor tail for the kite of a graduating address, or for any kind of an address, for that matter, whether sermon, lecture, political speech, or essay. Give your kites plenty of tail.

That was what ailed King Saul the first monarch of Israel. The kite that he sought to fly did not have enough ballasting power to keep it steady in the air. It came down in a awful defeat upon the battlefield of Gilboa. His sudden lift into prominence mentally unbalanced him. He thought that he knew more than God. It takes a clear head to fly the kite of propriety. So with the young man of the world, wishing to see and know the world for himself. He was not strong in virtue. Temptation mastered him. There was too light a tail on his kite. It came rushing through the air like an eagle wounded to death, falling beside a swine pen, and trampled of muddy feet. One cannot expect to fly a right-winged kite unless fortified by stability of character. We have seen telegraph wires with broken kites entangled in them. So have we seen many a moral kite caught in the trap of devilish obstructions.

On the other hand, it is useless to attempt the flying of a kite when it has too much weight hanging to its body. It will not go up. But there are men who seek to get on in life with the hindrance of bad habits. It cannot be done. Beer glasses attached to the career of a man will keep it down. So will the gambler's dice and cards. So will the heavy prices of lust. Take those things off from your kite, if you would see it sailing to the skies. But we hauled in our kite that day. We had enough of the sport. It was time to go back home. So did we also haul in the thoughts we have written. We now send them flying again by means of the types of the printing press. It is our hope that many eyes will behold them and many hearts be helped by what they suggest. There are more lessons than some would suppose in flying kites.

Ayer's Hair Vigor

Why is it that Ayer's Hair Vigor does so many remarkable things? Because it is a hair food. It feeds the hair, puts new life into it. The hair cannot keep from growing. And gradually all the dark, rich color of early life comes back to gray hair.

"When I first used Ayer's Hair Vigor my hair was about all gray. But now it is a rich black, and as thick as I could wish."

Narrow Chests.

The old theory that consumption was inherited is utterly discredited by modern medical science. The germ of consumption must be received from without. These germs are everywhere. They are constantly being received and cast out by the healthy system. It is the narrow chest, the weak lungs, the weakness of the system, which fall a prey to consumption because they are too weak of lung to resist and throw off disease.

Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery makes weak lungs strong. It cures obstinate deep-seated coughs, bleeding lungs, consumption, emphysema, catarrh of the throat and other conditions which if neglected or unskillfully treated find a fatal termination in consumption.

$3,000 FORFEIT will be paid by the World's Dispensary Medical Association, Proprietors, Buffalo, N. Y., if they cannot show the original signature of the individual volunteering the testimonial below, and also of the writers of every testimonial among the thousands which they are constantly publishing, thus proving their genuineness.

"In the spring of 1901 I was taken with hemorrhage of the lungs, and became weak and short of breath, lost flesh and had no appetite," writes Mr. E. L. Robinson of Kansas, Tenn. "I was personally cured by Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. The first few bottles seemed to do me but little good. I thought I was a victim of the dreaded disease, consumption. Had almost given up in despair when my friends persuaded me to give another bottle. I commenced its use. I weigh ten pounds now and when I commenced I only weighed ten pounds. If any one doubts this statement I will be pleased to answer to it.

Accept no substitute for 'Golden Medical Discovery.' Nothing is 'just as good.' Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets cleanse the clogged system from impurities.

TALMAGE SERMON

By Rev. FRANK DE WITT TALMAGE, D.D.,
Pastor of Jefferson Park Presbyterian Church, Chicago

Chicago, Aug. 23.—From the glitter and fascination of worldly pleasures and enjoyments the preacher in this sermon directs us to the contemplation of the greater joys of the "better land."

The text is I Corinthians xiv, 40, "We shall also have the image of the heavenly."

What is heaven? Some people think that we do not know much about it. I remember how my father, who loved to preach about the "celestial city," used to say he felt when he described it—"I was looking through a glass darkly." Some years ago one of his dear friends, Judge Nelson, was dying. He was Brooklyn's most honored jurist. The last time my father visited him the judge asked, "What did you preach upon last Sabbath?" "Upon heaven," "Upon heaven?" exclaimed the old judge. "Will you send me the sermon? I would like to read it."

"Certainly," said my father. But after his face was a sad smile as he came into the house. I asked, "What is the matter, father?" "Why," said he, "I have been down to visit Judge Nelson, who is dying. He asked me to send him my last Sunday's sermon on heaven. I was just thinking of a few days the old judge will be in heaven. He will go there just after reading my description of it. Then all the grandeur and glories of that celestial city will so eclipse anything that I have ever dreamed of that he will laugh at me and my sermon and say what a poor idea Talmage had of what Christ has prepared for us. For since the beginning of the world men have not heard nor perceived by the senses the things which God, O God, besides thee, what he hath prepared for him that waiteth for him. I guess I will not send Nelson my sermon on heaven. It would make me a laughing-stock for him the whole eternity."

That is true. No human mind can conceive, no human voice or pen can depict, the beauties of the celestial kingdom. There are, however, passages in God's word which open the pearls that are a little way, so that we can catch a glimpse of the supernatural grandeur of that city of celestial glory. We can, as it were, pick a rose of Sharon or a lily of the valley and learn in miniature what the fragrance of the heavenly gardens shall be, where every hillside and meadowland is covered with perpetual dora. Through the crucible of that open gate we can, as it were, for a moment catch a sight of the redeemed, whose garments are as white as the driven snow and whose joys are limited only by their own capacity to enjoy the happiness provided for them by their almighty and all-loving Father. It is for such a glimpse of this heaven, to which all Christians are heading, that I would open my Bible today and speak from the text, "As we have borne the image of the earthy we shall also bear the image of the heavenly."

Heaven is a place of immortal residence. What does that imply? "Why," answers some one, "that means we shall live on millions upon millions of years." It means that time after this earth as a burning star shall flicker and go out our spiritual existence shall continue. It means a conscious life extending to ages which dwarf into brevity the longest term even of the immortalities of the most remote past. "Immortal!" exclaimed Napoleon Bonaparte, turning to one of his generals who had applied the epithet to a statue of vast antiquity which had been found in Egypt by the Louvre in Paris. "Immortal! That is not immortal. What are the three or four thousand years which that statue has existed in comparison with the immortality which goes on for ever and ever?"

But the immortality of heaven is not to be measured in years alone. It is the immortality of eternal youth. Old age implies weakness of body and of mind. In heaven there will be such a perfect renewal of our powers day by day that the passage of years leaves no trace of decay.

No Need of Rest in Heaven. Perfect adjustment of the resurrected body to its celestial surroundings proves there is to be no fight for an immortal existence. Why does the physical body grow tired? Because it is not in perfect accord with its physical surroundings. In order to make the heart pump I must breathe. Yet every time I inhale the air that oxygen burns up part of my physical being, which must be replaced by food and physical nourishment. Why do the great clouds of smoke ascend from the funnels of the locomotive and the chimneys of the factories? Because those clouds form component parts of wasted energies. Imperfect consumption of fuel implies that the coal must be continually shoveled into the furnaces or else the machinery will stop. But in that heavenly land there shall be no need of sleep, because the redeemed body, perfectly adjusted to its celestial surroundings, will never know fatigue. There shall be no need of physicians, because pain, which is the warning signal of infinity, shall never have any of our joints in its twist. There shall be no need of recreation, because then all things shall be, once for all, perfectly adjusted.

We marvel at the perfect adjustment of the natural world. We wonder at the vast resources of power which can swing the stars in their courses and make whirling constellations marshal themselves upon the heavenly plains and yet have no confusion in passing reviews. Once in awhile we are horror-struck when some of the elements seem to balk and the lightnings, as fractious colts, kick over the traces and start to smash things. We stand aghast when the dark garb of a tornado sweeps past us, or two storm clouds collide and the heavy rain comes with electricity and the ear is startled with the crashing of the thunder and the freshets come and the bridges are swept away. But all the time when these elements are at war we think of the greater power which holds the moon and the sun off from the earth at arm's length. We think of the greater power of the law of evaporation, which with golden pulleys lifted those water into the clouds. We think of the law of cohesion or of specific gravity, which holds this old earth together in a compact sphere. We think of the power inherent in vegetable and animal life of sucking up the waters which flow by their sides. We marvel at the great adjustment of nature—marvel not only because it works like the wheels of a perfect automaton, but because it seems to work without friction.

The Attainment of Perfection. Now, my friends, if we wonder at the seemingly perfect adjustment of the mundane elements, can we not the more marvel at the perfect adjustment of the redeemed body with its heavenly surroundings? Shall we not rejoice over the thought that all our faculties shall be enlarged and developed and yet keep on enlarging and developing and never grow tired? We have read that for over fifty years John Wesley preached on an average sixteen sermons per week, or nearly three sermons per day. How vigorous must have been the constitution that could perform that task! But in heaven we shall all have vigorous constitutions.

Oh, the rapture of that better land in which the services we render will never produce weariness nor the infinite subjects that will engage our attention ever cause satiety! Our hands will be in well doing. But in that "beauty of well doing," we shall never be weary of well doing. Then our redeemed bodies shall have a perfect eye, a perfect ear, a perfect tongue, a perfect foot, a perfect hand clasp. Then all our faculties shall not only have the resilience of youth, but the alertness and perfect adjustment of immortality. We shall live and continue to live, because decay and corruption shall flee away when "death, the last enemy, shall be destroyed."

Heaven is to be a place of progressive enjoyments. If the resurrected brain is to be alert it must have something to feed upon. So some writers have predicted that in the "heavenly city" we shall have our music halls and libraries and museums and art galleries, places for intellectual as well as spiritual development. I personally take no exception to this thought. I believe the musical desire is a God given desire. The celestial harp or the celestial organ, or the celestial violin, is not a degradation of the word celestial. But, though there may be some intellectual enjoyments of heaven, I believe there shall be two which will most appeal to the citizens of the skies. The first is in studying the wonderful construction of the celestial city. "Oh," answers some one, "I know now what is the formation of heaven. It is a great walled town. And the length and breadth and the height of it are all equal. And the city is made of pure gold, and the streets are paved with gold, and the walls of the city are a collection of precious stones, and the twelve gates of the city are twelve massive pearls. Why, the book of Revelation describes the city to its minutest detail."

Do you truly mean what you say? Do you affirm that the streets of heaven are to be literally made out of yellow bricks and the city to be a walled town with a lot of precious stones for foundations? Why, the apostle in the book of Revelation is merely talking in figurative language or in the language of poetry. The glowing description of heaven in figures which we can comprehend. He does not mean that heaven is to have streets of gold any more than he literally means that hell is to be a place of fire. Fire is a symbol of torture. Gold and precious stones are the symbols of unlimited luxuries. Thus the apostle piles together a great mass of diamonds and topazes and amethysts and says: "Heaven is to be like that. Heaven is to be like pearls, like muslin, like white, like golden bangles. Picture to yourself the brightest place you possibly can, and heaven is to be multiplicatively, infinitely, transcendently more beautiful." Yet when at last we reach heaven all will be so new, so strange, that our minds through all eternity will never tire of exploring the grandeur. We shall take wings of the morning and fly away as a bird, and every place our eye lights upon shall offer inexhaustible fields of investigation.

But infinitesimal will be the enjoyment of studying the physical construction of heaven compared with that of studying the beautiful characters of those immortals who will everywhere live about us. Old Samuel Johnson, I think it was, once said: "The grandest of cathedrals or the most wonderful poem in stone never impressed me so much as the sight of a human being. The reason I am loath to leave London is not an account of its St. Paul's and Westminster abbey, but because of the endless sea of humanity, every human being of which has a face of a strange fascination." The study of the human character is the most interesting of all studies.

Heaven a Place of Surprises. Now, the more you live with some people the more you appreciate their love and devotion and realize their true worth. When you were a little child you thought you loved your mother, but every year you grew older the more beauty and tenderness you found in her life. When she was old and her hair silvered, and when she was weak and enervated, you thought that her work was done and wondered why God did not come and get her. But she became dearer to you then every day. You said to her just before her death: "Mother, mother, I cannot get along without you. I am just now beginning to appreciate what your love means." Yes, it takes some of us, twenty, forty, sixty, years to fully appreciate the beautiful characters of those who have lived by our side. Each month reveals some new sweetness or gentleness, each year some new worth. So our heaven is to be a place of continual surprises. We shall be hourly and daily discovering some new manifestation of purity and love in the lives of those with whom we are spending eternity. We shall be continually surprised by their thoughtfulness and sweetness and tender attentions. When they do us the unexpected kindnesses which only heaven can offer we shall delightedly exclaim, "Why, mother, though I have been living with you now in heaven for a thousand years I never realized before how thoroughly kind you could be." Their spiritual beauties, their noble deeds, their self-sacrificing attentions, shall be as a changing kaleidoscope, ever revealing to us new natures and wonderfully new developments of love.

Heaven is to be a place of manifested gratitude, a place where we can thank those whose self-sacrifices helped save us when we were upon the earth. It will be a place where we can lay at the feet of our benefactors the rich golden sheaves of our lives which came as a result of their seed planting. It shall be a place where others may rejoice in our gospel conquests because their words of advice and their prayers and their examples were the means of first leading us to the foot of the cross and starting us forth as gospel messengers.

Heaven must be such a place. Why? Because most Christians never have enough on earth to see the full results of their services for the Master. But few gospel workers can say, as the Simon of old, "Lord, now lettest thou thy servant depart in peace, according to thy word, for mine eyes have seen thy salvation which thou hast prepared before the face of all people." When my father was born he was the youngest of thirteen children. My grandmother was well advanced in years. Soon after his birth she turned to her husband and said, "What do I care for that we will not see in all probability live long enough to see little De Witt, our baby, grow into strong manhood and consecrate himself as a laborer in the vineyard of the Lord Jesus Christ." As with my grandmother, the regret which nearly all Christians have is that in an earthly sense we shall not live long enough to see the harvestings of our gospel seed planting. We shall not live long enough to see our boys and girls, for whom we have labored and worked and prayed, grow up into Christian men and women, and see them as teachers in Christian Sunday schools and leaders in evangelistic meetings and perhaps elders and ministers about the communion table of the Lord's supper. But in heaven we shall know about the glorious results of our Christian labors. In heaven the redeemed mother shall not only see her children, but her children's children, who have been saved through her prayers and consecration. In heaven there shall be rejoicing every year, because we shall then know that through the results of our labors the "dead are alive again and the lost are found."

With the Saints Men of Old. And, oh, how many redeemed immortals we shall have to thank in that heavenly kingdom! John the Baptist, who died thirty years before I was born, but I shall in heaven thank thee for the yellow leaves of that old book I found in my father's library of which you were the author. That book was one of the means used by the Holy Spirit of turning my thoughts toward the Christian ministry. William H. Milburn, twenty years blind chaplain of the United States senate, thou didst not, in all probability, ever hear of my name. With thy slightest eyes thou didst make me turn my grateful glance toward the Christ who in heaven is today watching thy prayers and holy face. I wish to thank thee, O redeemed spirit, thou who years ago as a Sunday school teacher in the old Brooklyn tabernacle didst shed many an anxious tear over thy scholars. I would tell thee that today in the sacred ministry I feel the touch of thy sainted hand and hear the earnest tone of thy pleading voice. Yes, there are many spirits in heaven we would thank for what they did for us when upon the earth. We would thank them that they may rejoice, as we all rejoice, and that their hosannas of gratitude might be augmented with our hallos.

But if heaven is to be a place of manifested gratitude it is also to be a place of glorious reminiscences. At the camp fires of the Grand Army reunions we have heard the old veterans talking over the struggles, the defeats and triumphs of the civil war. We have heard what comrades at Shiloh did, and what comrades at Atlanta did, and what comrades at Petersburg did. To the old veterans the struggle of the civil war is never an old story. So in the heavenly reunions the gospel veterans will love to talk over the Christian struggles of the past.

As Christian comrades we say: "Do you remember that time when we started those cottage prayer meetings? As a result of those prayer meetings what a glorious revival we had—a hundred and twenty souls for Christ!" "Yes," says another, "that reminds me of what a hard time we had in starting that mission school down in the slums. Cynics said it would do no good, but it did, it did." "Yes," will answer many voices, "we were converted and saved through those little meetings." Then the pastors and the different congregations will get together, and they will have their reminiscences. And the parents and the children will get together, and they will talk over again the blessings which came from their fathers. And the Bible distributors will tell how they were scoffed at and yet blessed as they distributed their tracts and sacred leaves. And Francis E. Clark and the Christian Endeavorers will have their separate reunions. We shall be in that "better land" living over and over again the Christian joys which we passed through when serving Christ upon the earth. Oh, my friends, if this idea is true, that heaven is to be a place of glorious reminiscences, ought we not all to double and treble our energies in the service of Jesus Christ? Shall we not use the power of the Holy Spirit to move and more for our Saviour, who has done so much for us, in order to be able to drink deep out of this golden chalice of celestial pleasures?

Face to Face With Christ. But the greatest celestial joy of all I have reserved until last. Heaven is to be a place of personal contact. "Does that mean," asks some one, "heaven is to be a great cathedral or church in which all the inhabitants of the New Jerusalem shall assemble and pray to him—and pray to him and never cease to pray to him? In which there shall be a service with no doxology and no benediction, for that service shall be without beginning and without end?"

No, my brother, I do not believe you have caught the right idea of the worship of the celestial city. Heaven is not to be a church, where we shall have stated times for prayers and hymns. St. John distinctly says in his Apocalypse: "And I saw no temple therein. For the Lord God Almighty and the Lamb and the temple are of it." That means, as I take it, instead of having buildings especially dedicated for the worship of the Trinity we shall feel, wherever we may be, that we are standing face to face with Christ. And then our hearts shall be so full of gratitude to him for what he has done for us that our eyes and lips and tongues and hearts will never cease to praise him. It will not be the worship of intercession or of pleading for the pardon of sin, but the worship of adoration and of eternal homage.

Perhaps my thought may be simply illustrated by a conversation I had with a very dear friend some time ago. This noble Christian man turned to me one day and said: "Do you know that my ideas of prayer and worship have greatly changed within the last few years? When I used to pray I would make out a long list of petitions for which I would ask God. But now I have begun to see that he loves me better than I love myself. Therefore, instead of saying, 'O God, give me this or that,' I simply say, 'O Christ, thou art so good and pure; suit thyself in reference to my life and thou wilt suit me.' Thy will, O Lord, not mine, be done." So in that heavenly land we shall have but one prayer and one song. "Thy will, O Lord, not mine, be done." We shall sing it on the street. We shall sing it in the green pastures beside the still waters. We shall sing it in chorus with our loved ones. We shall sing it when we are alone. "Thy will, O God, thy will be done!" In that one song, and that alone, we shall find the perpetual and never ending worship of heaven.

Thus, my dear Christian friends, I have tried to open for you a little way the gates of the glorious "city of the redeemed." I have tried to eternally bind our lives with the immortal lives of our dead. Like Christian in Bunyan's "Pilgrim's Progress," may you strive to enter into the "strait gate." And like the Christian Queen Victoria may you hopefully and triumphantly be able to write the same kind of an epitaph upon the tombstones of your loved ones as she chiseled upon the mausoleum of the departed prince consort: "Farewell, beloved. Here at last I will rest with thee. With thee in Christ shall I rise again." Such is the gospel prophecy for all who love him. Heaven! Heaven! Glorious heaven! Heaven of the living Christians! Heaven of the Christians who are resurrected! Heaven, eternal and never ending heaven!

Mr. Howells in England: Of the sensitiveness, the delicacy, the chivalry of the best type of American Mr. Howells is an admirably sympathetic delineator. His personages are often of a highly strung and emotional temperament, but Mr. Howells reveals them to us not with the cool detachment of a scientific "researcher," but with the kindness of a compassionate teacher keen-eyed student of humanity. Kindness and equanimity are of the essence of his method. Again, it is impossible not to admire his refusal to yield to the denationalizing or cosmopolitanizing influence to which so many of his compatriots have succumbed. Mr. Howells prefers to write for Americans about Americans in the American manner, and that, paradoxically enough, is one of the chief secrets of the charm he exerts upon English readers.—London Spectator.

Salaries of Presbyterian Ministers. The Rev. Dr. W. H. Roberts, stated clerk of the general assembly, furnishes the following estimates of salaries of ministers so far as the Presbyterian church is concerned. One hundred ministers receive a salary of $3,000 or more, 900 receive from $3,500 to $5,000, and 700 receive between $2,000 and $3,500. In other words, of the 7,500 ministers less than 1 1/2 in 100 are paid $5,000 or more, and about 14 in 100 receive $2,000 or more.—Church Economist.

Nails

Had Turned Blue—Limbs Bloated. Lay in a Stupor From Heart Disease. Dr. Miles' Heart Cure Cured Me.

The nails turning blue is a sign of defective circulation as is the bloating of the arms and legs. Other common symptoms of heart disease are shortness of breath from slight exertion, pain in or near heart, smothering spells, palpitation or fluttering, weak, tired and hungry spells, dreaming and nightmare, sudden starting in sleep. In severe cases the brain, stomach, lungs, etc., may become so disordered as to mislead the physicians as to the nature of the disease. If you suffer from any or all of these symptoms your heart is diseased and treatment should not be postponed a single day. Dr. Miles' Heart Cure is guaranteed to help you as it has helped thousands of others.

"I owe my life to Dr. Miles' Heart Cure. After four doctors met in consultation on my case, their verdict was that I had suffered from heart disease so long that they could do nothing for me and I would surely die. My brother said, 'Why there is life there, hope, we will try Dr. Miles' New Heart Cure.' When I began taking it my nails had turned blue and my arms and legs were bloated to twice their natural size, and I lay in a stupor most of the time. After the first few doses the dizziness went away and after three bottles I was able to go around the house and do my work. Both my family and my nurse think I would have been in my grave had it not been for Dr. Miles' Heart Cure."—MRS. ROBERT MORRIS, Sackett Harbor, N. Y.

—John T. Melson's new residence on Railway street near the residence of Capt. J. W. Robinson, adds much to that part of the town. It has an octagonal front and porch.

—James and Charles Mooney have gone into the pump driving business. They are experienced men and understand their work. Persons needing work of that kind will do well to call on them.

—Quite a large number went from here to Deal's Island on Sunday last and report a fine trip. The D. C. & A. Railroad Company ran two boats on the river, the "Tanger" and "Tred Avon," thus giving ample accommodations to all that wanted to go.

—A few days ago, six Oregon masts, valued at one hundred dollars each, and a bowsprit, floated from the wharf of the Marine Railway, during a high tide. Two of the masts have been found, but the searching parties have failed to locate the others.

—S. J. Cooper & Son have the material about ready to erect a two-story building twenty by forty feet, near their large granary to be used as a potato house, in which to keep sweet potatoes during the winter. The building will hold a great many potatoes.

—E. C. Hazen, Ex-Treasurer of Beaver County, Pa., and wife, who have been visiting the latter's sister, Mrs. J. E. Taylor, of Riverton, Md., have left for Baltimore and Washington, where they will spend some time, before leaving for their home in New Brighton, Pa. They were very much pleased with Maryland.

DEATH OF MARY F. PARSONS.

Entered into rest on Wednesday morning the 26 inst. about 9.30 o'clock. Miss Mary F. Parsons, only daughter of Thomas A. and Julia A. Parsons. Miss Parsons was about nineteen years of age. She had been in delicate health for some months, but was not considered dangerously ill until Tuesday last when she was attacked with heart failure and grew rapidly worse till her death Wednesday morning. The funeral services which were largely attended, were conducted by the Rev. G. A. Morris, Thursday afternoon, at the M. P. Church of which she was a member. The casket was covered with beautiful floral designs as tributes of respect from her church and school. Six of her school mates; Misses Elva Farlow, Edna Dennis, Mayme Truitt, Virgie Parsons, Ella Davis, and Flora Farlow served as pall bearers.

Mary was a girl of pleasant and winning manners and popular with all. She will be greatly missed in her home, at church and school. A father, mother, and four brothers are left to mourn their loss. The oldest of the brothers is the Rev. E. E. Parsons, of Maryland Conference. To these and her many relatives and friends we extend our heart felt sympathy.

Mr. Charles Gordy, of New York City, visited his son, Joe, of our town last week.

A SAD DROWNING

Willie Allen Robinson Loses His Life in The Waters Of The Nanticoke.

On Thursday evening Willie A. Robinson, son of Capt. and Mrs. F. C. Robinson of this town, fell from the gasoline boat, Iva, about three miles below Seaford and was drowned.

He was eleven years old and was a very bright boy. His intelligence was far ahead of his years. He had good business ideas and endeavored to express them whenever he had an opportunity. He was industrious and had great confidence as well as willingness to do. Instead of playing he wanted to be about his father's work and lend a helping hand whenever he could. His father is engaged in running a gasoline boat from this town to Seaford and Willie did a great deal of work and business in this line and could steer the boat and dock it with the care and skill of a man. He was a bright boy in school and an interesting member of the M. P. Sunday School. He was a boy of splendid talents and had a bright prospect for usefulness in manhood. He was the joy and delight of the family and a general favorite wherever known. His early death is greatly lamented by all who knew him. Great sympathy exists for the bereaved family.

The report of his drowning was received with sadness and sorrow in the town and community.

On Sunday morning the funeral services were held at the home of his parents. Rev. G. H. W. D. Johnson assisted by Rev. Eugene A. Robinson conducted the services. After the solemn services the remains were taken to the Taylor cemetery.

The pallbearers were: Charley Fletcher, Walter Twiford, Lewis Eaton and Al Wheatley. He was a member of Mr. Joseph W. Phillips' Sunday School Class of the Methodist Protestant Church. The Sunday School presented a beautiful floral pillow. The other floral tributes were fine and consisted of wreaths, bunch bouquets, pillows, crosses and crescents; showing the high regard in which the boy was held. The body was found about three hours after drowning and every effort made to resuscitate him but of no avail.

A few days before the drowning the boy asked his mother if he were to die would his relative, his cousin, who died a few years ago, know him and would they be with each other. For several nights just prior to his drowning he dreamed that he was on a boat and it capsized and in this part of the dream he would arouse.

Thus a young prosperous and hopeful life went suddenly out leaving sad hearts to mourn the early death of a bright, cheerful member of the family. —Sharptown Herald.

A Good Business Proposition

is something that everybody who looks out for their own interest will take time to consider. We have to make you, and

Several Good Business Propositions

Here's the Point

We do business on business principles. When we sell you a pair of shoes they are as good as can be manufactured for the money. People spend most of their time in their shoes, and this fact makes the quality of footwear a question of prime importance. Our proposition to you is to sell you good honest shoes at a price as low as is consistent with good values. We make this proposition to all prospective shoe buyers, fully believing that it is to your interest to do business with us. We have many advantages to offer you as a reason why you should do your shoe buying of us, the first of which is, we are exclusive Shoe dealers and also the largest buyers of Shoes on the Peninsula. We can offer you the largest and most complete stock to select from. We do not have to give you one size when your foot needs another. Our large stock enables us to carry all sizes and widths in stock. We take pains to see that every foot is properly fitted and also to select the proper kind of Shoe to meet the requirement for which it is intended. We have the exclusive sale in this city of all the best known and most popular makes of Shoes.

A person is often judged by the company they keep, so is a merchant by the merchandise he handles, and while we stand behind every pair of fair priced Shoes we sell, whether made under some pet name or not. To those who want special lines we can offer such well known ones as the following:

FOR MEN: The Walk-Over, W. L. Douglas, Crossett's Long Life.

FOR BOYS AND GIRLS: The Rice & Hutchins, Burley Stevens & Co., Excelsior.

FOR LADIES: Queen Quality, Zeigler Bros., Cinderella, Allnutt Moody, Drew, Selby & Co.

All of these are good ones in their class and have reputations established on merit, but the burden of our story is simply Shoes, and not the maker—trust us for that and we will always give you full value for your money or cheerfully refund you the same. Think over our proposition, come and see us and let us more fully explain and show you that we mean business and we feel sure that you will find that our interests are mutual. Yours for Shoes,
