STRONG COUNTY TICKET NAMED AT REPUBLICAN CONVENTION TUESDAY.

Stirring Address Of Chairman Walton Enthusiastically Applauded -Resolutions Adopted Call For Better Roads, Condemn The Early Closing Ot Public Schools, And Demand Better Pay For Teachers—Roosevelt's Administration Endorsed.

Perhaps the strongest ticket ever placed before the voters of Wicomico county was nominated Tuesday when the Republicans, in a perfectly harmon- thusiastic. They were regular in atious assemblage, selected Mr. Walter B. Miller as their standard-bearer and tendance at the Institute there being completed the ticket by the nomination of representative Republicans, each less tardiness and absence than any nominee thoroughly equipped for the office for which he is a candidate. Not a previous year since the meeting has discordant note was struck during the entire convention. Every element of been held at Ocean City. Wicomico the Republican party seemed to be entirely at rest and the meeting was pre- had only one absentee and she was ill. sided over with a spirit of enthusiasm which seemed to foretell a Republican victory at the coming election.

The Ticket.

State Senator-Walter B. Miller, Salisbury district.

House of Delegates-William M. Day, Parsons district, E. S. S. Turner, Nanticoke district, William B. Tilghman, Camden district.

County Treasurer-Samuel A. Graham, Parsons district. State's Attorney-Elmer H. Walton, Salisbury district.

Sheriff-Thomas M. Truitt, Pittsburg district.

County Commissioners-B. H. Cordrey, Barren Creek; Joseph P. Cooper Sharptown; William G. Dennis, Willards.

Judges Orphans' Court-Charles F. Wimbrow, Dennis; Benjamin W. Parker, Delmar; W. A. Crew, Salisbury.

Surveyor Thomas W. English, Barren Creek district.

Mr. Walton's Address.

The convention was called to order by Mr. Elmer II. Walton, chairman, who made a stirring address which rang with the spirit of Republicanism. He dealt at some length upon the political situation as it is today in Wicomico county and the state of Maryland. He recalled the historic incidents which lead to the political revolution of 1895 which gave to the independents the opportunity to rid the commonwealth of the Democratic leaders of the day and encompass their overthrow. For years the state had been under controll of Senator Gorman and Mr. Raisin, and in that year Mr. Gorman and his dictatorship was the issue of the campaign. The dissatisfaction of years broke tout and swept everything before it, electing Hon. Lloyd Lowndes, the Republican nominee to the office of Governor, carrying with him Republican state officers and a Republican House of Delegates. Mr. Walton spoke with fervor in regards to that memorable administration and the honest and fair election laws which were made during Gov. Lowndes' term of office. He recalled the fact that two years later, at a special session of the legislature, called by Gov. John Walter fessional organizations of the county, Smith, these laws were adroitly stricken from the statutes and in their place the Principal's Club and the District were inserted laws which abolished emblem voting and again brought the Democrats into power. Chairman Walton eloquently reviewed the manner in which this same John Walter Smith dominated the recent convention of the Democratic party in Baltimore and, amid outbursts of applause, Mr. Walton stated ready held a meeting at Ocean City that the dictatorship of Ex-Gov. Smith would be the issue of the present cam- and decided to continue its work of paign, and that the same influences which caused the revolution of 1895 were last year. So great is the professional at work in the Democratic party, and that the people of Maryland, as they did twelve years ago, were again crying out for a change.

Mr. Truitt For Sheriff,

nominations were made. When the nomination for sheriff was in order, Mr. Hillary Brattan took the floor and placed before the convention the name of Mr. Edward E. Brittingham, of Willards district. Mr. William R. Bomberger, of Salisbury district was also a nominee, but withdrew his name rather than cause a contest in the convention. Mr. Brittingham also offered to withdraw when an adjournment of five minutes was ordered. When the convention was again called to order another candidate was nominated and a vote was taken resulting in the nomination of Mr. Thomas M. Truitt, of Pittsburg district.

The Resolutions.

The committee on resolutions, consisting of one delegate from each dis trict, submitted the following resolutions which were unanimously adopted by the convention.

We, the Republicans of Wicomico County, in convention assembled here-by renew our allegiance to the principles of the Republican party as laid down in the State and National platforms of 1907 and 1904, respectively.

We endorse the administration of President Roosevelt, and the wise and patriotic course he has pursued in dealing with an unusually large number of momentous propositions which have confronted the nation during his tenure of shot and instantly killed on Delaware office. A policy which has given to the farmers a market at all times for their street Saturday night, Edward Daproducts at prices far in excess of those prevailing under Democratic Admin-istrations, and one which has enhanced the property values from forty to two hundred per cent over the values which prevailed prior to 1896, and at the same time has provided for every man who desired to work, an opportunity to do so at prices which secure for him not only the necessities, but many of the lux- and Dick Blewey, the Tennessee negro uries of life. We desire to place ourselves on record as favoring a broad and liberal policy, with reference to the question of good roads. The building and maintenance of an up-to-date system of highways is one of the most progressive steps which can be taken by the local authorities, and does more to enhance been apprehended, will be held on the the value of farm lands than any other method of public improvement. While this is true, we believe, however, that the improvement should be carried on with due regard to the revenues of the county so that its finances will always be in the best possible condition. In other words, we favor retrenchment along other lines whenever it can be done without detriment to the interests witnesses as it was the belief of the of- sonable. It will advantage of the people. But we do not believe in a retrenchment which means the closing of a large number of district schools many weeks before the time for closing, nor in the wholesale reduction of the salaries of the teachers, such as has recently taken were brought out at the inquest Wedness for this manner was alies of the teachers, such as has recently taken place; for this reason, we are distinctly opposed to the present policy of the nesday, before Justice of the Peace county authorities in this respect.

The public schools system is one which touches more vitally than any other, the general welfare of the entire people, and greater liberality and a broader spirit should characterize the officials in dealing with this question. We favor therefore, at least a return to the old schedule of pay for teachers, and, if possible, an increase, and at the same time favor a continuance of all schools of the county for the full term, throughout the scholastic year. In con- Blewey, Robbins or Dashiell. nection with the public road system, we desire to record ourselves as favoring a liberal National and State appropriation and believe that greater benefit is secured to the people in general through a policy of this character than by any argument over a game of craps beother form of public appropriations except for the direct maintenance of the cause Purnell refused to divide the Government itself.

We are opposed to present Haman Oyster Law, in the State, and challenge either the ability or the willingness of the Democratic party to deal with this question in the interest of those engaged in the oyster traffic. Without equivocation, we pledge ourselves to the enactment of such legislation as will be favorable to the oystermen and secure to them the full natural rights and privileges which they have ever enjoyed.

We condemn the slow, hestitating unfair and unjust policy of the County authorities in relation to the proposed river road from Salisbury to Shad Point. The road should have been completed years ago, and the people who have invested their money in having the highway graded are entitled to more consideration than has been shown them by the County Commissioners. The people who have the county commissioners and the county commissioners. ple have long since carried out their part of the agreement while the Commisstoners have constantly refused to build the necessary bridge and fulfil the cancy. By a vote of the councilmen solemn promise made years ago. We favor the immediate completion of the road, and pledge the nominees of this convention for County Commissioners to take such official action in case of their election as will bring about the desired result promotly.

Believing in the time-honored doctrine of majority rule, and the rights of as City Treasurer caused by the death the people themselves to select their own candidates for public office, we desire to place durselves on record as favoring the Crawford County system of primary nominations. This is the most direct and complete method of selecting for public office the choice of the people themselves, and has been peculiarly successful in every locality where it has been given a fair and honest done at the next meeting, Monday

TRI-COUNTY INSTITUTE INSTRUCTIVE TO TEACHERS.

Annual Session Adjourned Yesterday And Teachers Are In Readiness To Open Schools Monday In Wicomico County.

Decidedly the best Institute in which Wicomico county public school teachers ever participated adjourned yesterday at 11.30 at Ocean City. The teachers from the three counties were en-

With very few exceptions, the whole body expressed themselves as having been much benefitted academically and professionally by the work just concluded. The instructors were the best that ever appeared before the teachers. They were men and women that evidenced a grasp of their subject and displayed great ability in Institute work. To Superintendent Bounds of Wicomico, who arranged the programme, great credit is due for the selection of such a faculty for the course of two weeks instruction.

Schools in the three counties, Somerset, Wicomico and Worcester open next Monday.

The course of study, against which some criticism has been directed, has been changed somewhat by the State Board of Education, which is the only official body that has a right to modify it. The revised curriculum will go into effect in Wicomico's schools this year. In this course more time will be spent on science, literature and history than formerly and less on some other subjects.

While attendance upon the two professional organizations of the county, Association will not be obligatory this year, yet the Principal's Club has alspirit created in and fastened among the teachers, by Supt. Bounds, it is expected that they will attend these

Despite the cut in teachers salaries in Wicomico, for which the School Board is in no way blamed by the teachers, this body placed in control of Wicomico's boys and girls are entering upon their work in a way quite satisfactory to the school officials.

Negroes Held For Murder.

As the result of a verdict found by the coroner's jury regarding the death of Bruce Purnell, colored, who was ored, are confined in the county jail to await the action of the grand jury, who, it was thought, committed the crime up to the time of the hearing Wednesday, and who as yet has not same charge when taken into custody.

Immediately after the shooting, Robbins and Dashiell were locked up as ficials that Blewey was the guilty party, but later developments which Trader by States Attorney Joseph L. Bailey, were sufficient to cause the jury to render a verdict to the effect that Purnell came to his death at the hands of one of the three negroes-

The murder, it is said, followed an spoils of the game with one of the negroes implicated.

DAIRYMEN DISSATISFIED.

Their Claim is That Feed And Labor Are Higher. - But Price Of Milk Remains The Same.

Many of the farmers living along the line of the Maryland and Pennsylvania C. Hayman, lot in Camden district. Con-Railroad, in Harford county, are much sideration $5.00. dissatisfied with the dairy branch of their business, claiming that the price Carey to Samuel L. Others were appointed to look after Frank Powell farm in Parsons district. the interests of the organization in their respective localities.

The situation was thoroughly discuscussed, and the farmers displayed concern as to the future of dairy business-They contend that the price of feed of all kinds has advanced in price; that labor is scarce and wages high-in fact, practically everything connected with the business is far more expensive than price of milk remains about the same, and as a consequence the production is at a loss.

Thousands of gallons of milk are shipped from Harford daily, and it varies in grade, boys and girls; N. Price Turuer, price from 15 to 18 cents a gallon, delivered in Baltimore. The average net 7th grade, boys and girls; Miss Julia U. price to the farmer averages 12 cents a Waller, 6th grade, boys and gtrls; Miss gallon, during the year. At this price, the farmers claim, it is impossible to conduct a dairy business profitably, and | Miss Christine A. Richards, Music Super efforts will be made to make the city visor. dairymen fully realize conditions and to grant an increase in price.

A, meeting awaited with no little interest will be held in Belair on next Monday, when the various committees will make their reports.

Tomato Crop Injured.

Reports from tomato growers covering all sections of Dorchester county are to the effect that the dry weather and cool nights have seriously injured the crop, cutting it short at least one half. In many instances the plant in large fields have dropped all foliage and the vines, or main stems, look lifeless. This means that the fruit which has begun to mature will ripen, but that the green fruit will be a loss.

Dorchester is no doubt the largest tomato-growing county in the state, and packing houses are to be found in nearly every village. The average yield per acre is about six tons. This year, however, it will probably not exceed three tons. For the next 10 days the packinghouses will have a rush, but following this the receipts of tomatoes will be light and the season will be short.

The loss will fall heavily not only upon the farmers, but upon the laboring classes as well.

SEPT. 12 IS ALSO DEFENDERS' DAY AND "STAR SPANGLED BANNER" DAY-HISTORIC ANNIVERSARIES.

Author of "Maryland, My Maryland," to Be a Guest at the State Building-Reproduction of Charles Carroll's Famous Home Is Maryland's Edifice at the Fair. Rich Collection of Historical Paintings and Photographs Attractively Displayed.

ARYLAND DAY at the Jamestown exposition, Sept. 12, is also Defenders' day, the ninetythird anniversary of the bombardment of Fort McHenry, Sept. 12, Point to attack Baltimore. The story they hope to persuade him to leave

The author, James R. Randall, who now lives in New Orleans, is to be the guest of the state of Maryland at the exposition for several weeks, including Old Home week and Maryland day, Sept. 12. It was while temporarily detained by the British on a vessel wrote "The Star Spangled Banner." Thus Maryland day is "Star Spangled Banner" day as well as Defenders'

Maryland Day Programme.

The officials of the exposition and the Maryland commission have arranged a most elaborate programme to include addresses by distinguished men and the participation of the army and navy. The details were completed by Major Mallory and Lieutenant Bagby, in charge of military affairs at the exposition; Lynn R. Meekins and J. William Baughman of the Maryland commission and R. H. Sexton, director of special events.

On Maryland day, in connection with the celebration, exercises will be held in the Auditorium, at which time there will be addresses by Governor Warfield, James R. Randall of New Orleans, author of "Maryland, My Maryland;" Governor Swanson of Virginia, President Tucker and Director General Barr of the exposition and Captain Frederick M. Colton, who will also be the presiding officer.

Senator William Pinkney Whyte and Attorney General Bonaparte are also expected to be present to make short addresses. Senator Whyte will make the speech introducing Mr. Randall.

An effort is being made with some assurance of success to secure the presence on that day of Admiral Winfield Scott Schley, hero of the battle of Santiago. His old flagship, the Brooklyn, now lies at anchor off the exposition grounds.

The programme will include a number of special events for the day, including the presence of a larger number of bands than usual, a magnificent fireworks display in the evening and several free attractions on the War The railroad and steamship authorities are co-operating in arranging special rates and making preparations to handle the increased traffic.

Sept. 12 will be the biggest day at the exposition thus far.

Maryland may well be proud of having given to the nation the splendid "Star Spangled Banner," but her laurels as a song producing state do not rest upon this one grand national air alone. One of the sweetest oarols of the present or past is "Maryland, My Maryland," and the whole world war-

Maryland! My Maryland! Virginia should not call in vain, Maryland! My Maryland! She meets her sisters on the plain. "Sie semper!" 'tis the proud refrain That baffles minions back amain, Maryland! My Maryland!

abode in "Maryland, My Maryland."

The Maryland Commission. The fact that Maryland has made such a splendid showing at the Jamestown exposition is due to the energy in the river that Francis Scott Key and public spiritedness of the gentle-field, Baltimore; J. William Baughman, This list includes the names of men following the various pursuits of life, agriculture, business and the profesions, and all are representative citizens of this great state.

There is an auxiliary committee of leading women of the state, some of them wives of former chief executives, and they have taken a deep and active interest in their state's participation at the exposition.

Mrs. John Ridgely of "Hampton," Towson, is the chairman; Mrs. Henry W. Rogers of 1416 Park avenue, Baltimore, is the secretary; Mrs. Jesse Tyson of Baltimore is the treasurer, and Mrs. Lloyd Lowndes and Mrs. E. E. Jackson complete the list.

Charles Carroll's Mansion.

After Virginia no state plays a more important part at the exposition than Maryland, and no state building can surpass hers in the plentiful and accurate reminders contained therein of her history and traditions. Contrary to the general impression, it is not Doughoregan Manor, the home of the first Lord Baltimore, which is still in a splendld state of preservation near Ellicott City, that is reproduced, but Homewood, the stately residence of Charles Carroll of Carrollton, built in 1803 on what is now Charles street, Baltimore, and belonging at present to Johns Hopkins university.

There is such a wealth of local and distorical interest in this building that it leaves one undecided as to what to describe. The house furnishings are in perfect keeping with its style of architecture, and there is an agreeable bsence of anything glaring or bizarre. The stenciled curtains and hangings are all the work of Baltimore women, and numerous creditable specimens of their handiwork are in a cabinet in the hall. Over the two broad mantels in the reception hall hangs the Maryland state flag, which is taken from the coat of arms of the Calverts. There are portraits of the six Baltimores, all of them fine copies, and another picture of great interest, which is one of the originals of James Barry's allegorical engravings, representing Cecilius Calvert, second Lord Baltimore and founder of Maryland, exhibiting the laws of Maryland to Lycurgus, the Spartan lawgiver. Another imposing figure of a famous lawgiver, perhaps intended for Moses, stands in the same group, while about them are gathered the great legislators of all times and na-William Penn, A should be said, is also a prominent figure in the central group.

Photographs of many noted Maryland houses adorn the walls of a side hall whence a stairway leads to the upper floor. Noticeable among them is Wye House, the home of the Lloyds, men composing the Maryland commis- in Talbot county, which was built in the Maryland commission composed of | A number of the photographs shown are from the famous Mount Airy collection of the Calvert family, sold a few years ago. Some of them have never been placed on public exhibition. Others have been in the possession of the society for some years, although they have been little known to the general public.

So complete is the collection of the photographs of the portraits of members of the Calvert family that there is scarcely one extant but has its photographic reproduction on exhibition in the Maryland building.

The feature, however, that will prove most attractive to visitors at the state building is a large room in the rear which is an exact reproduction of the old senate chamber in the statehouse at Annapolis. In it are a mahogany table more than a hundred years of age which belonged to Governor Ridgely, and a harpsichord, made in London in 1789 for Charles Carroll, of itself a temptation to make one break the commandment "Thou shalt not covet thy neighbor's goods,' for what lover of artiques can see it without longing to pessess it? There are also in this apartment two cases of Indian remains, arrowheads, stone hatchets, etc., collected in Maryland by William H. Love.

Miss Mary Lynn Robbins of Cumberland, the gracious and intelligent hostess of Homewood, is ready and able to give the history of any of these exhibits and is admirably fitted for the duties she has assumed. She is assisted by J. William Baughman of Frederick.

The Maryland State building is of permanent construction and occupies a prominent position in the group of state buildings along Willoughby Boulevard, having Virginia for a neighbor on the one hand and Missouri on the other.

Exposition Rates Reasonable.

District l'assenger Agent J. H. Wood of the Southern Railway company at Asheville has returned from a several days' trip to the Jamestown exposition and declares that he was favorably impressed with the excellence of the exposition. He said that there was no reason for complaint, that the transportation facilities were entirely adequate, that hotel facilities were ample and that rates were reasonable. The exposition itself, Mr. Wood said, was interesting and instructive, and sightseers could very pleasantly and profitably spend several days in and around Norfolk and the exposition grounds.-Citizen, Asheville, N. C.

The Exposition Completed Director General Barr of the Jamestown exposition has issued the following statement:

"The lamestown Tercentential exposition is completed. It fittingly commemorates the great historical event which it was designed to celebrate, and it reflects credit on the state of Virginia, the south and the nation. In the character of its buildings, the excellence of its exhibits and the beauty of location on historical Hampton Roads it compares favorably with any exposition held in this country and fully justifies its management in asking the united support of the people of the country."

Parents Are Judged By The Appearance Of Their CHILDREN

This is the time to buy your boy his Fall and Winter Outfit at Lacy Thoroughgood's—the best boys' store in town. Parents are judged by the appearance of their children. When one sees an unbecoming, ill-fitting suit on a boy, one's mind unconsciously pictures a careless mother.

To all parents, Lacy Thoroughgood would say - buy the boy's Fall and Winter outfit at Thoroughgood's store "lest ye be judged." You will have a very much larger stock to choose from-yet a greater advantage even than this is the exclusive, thoroughbred character of the clothes themselves. Thoroughgood's styles are always a season or so ahead of the ordinary clothes. Half the merit in my boys' clothing lies in just this cleverness; but the biggest consideration of all is the price. In making there is no comparison. I have my New Fall Clothing for boys and children ready-I have just received $200.00 worth of Children's Odd Short Pants.

To be sure that you have an approved standard style, you should buy a

MARYLAND AT JAMESTOWN.

Striking and Attractive Displays of State Products at Exposition.

The Maryland exhibit in the States Exhibit Palace at the Jamestown ex- mous Middletown valley and near position, which Marylanders will see on Maryland day, Sept. 12, will long be remembered as one of the finest and different times by the State Horticulmost carefully selected horticultural displays ever shown in this country, not for the number of specimens, but for the actual quality of the exhibits themselves

Decorated profusely with the Maryland colors, old gold and black, the booth occupies just a thousand square feet of floor space. The ceiling and the pillars supporting the ceiling are likewise gold and black, while near the center of the booth are two large colored paintings of the oriole, the emblematic bird of the city of Baltimore.

But the most pleasing and striking features of the decorations are the flowers. There are flowers everywhere. Roses, crotons and peonies in tall green vases adorn the tables and exhibit cases. Palms and box woods and arbor vitae plants border the exhibit, while within are dwarf cedars planted in

In the center of the booth is the office of the superintendent. Professor Thomas B. Symons; Mrs. Symons, the hostess of the exhibit, with Mr. Symons' assistants, E. I. Oswall and E. W. Myers. This office is ten feet from the floor and is eighteen feet long by eight

Along the front of the booth and in it are twenty-one extension tables, white with gold trimmings, on which are the Maryland apples, rated by horticulturists as among the finest in the world. Thirty-five varieties of this fruit are shown. To see these alone is well worth a visit to the building.

On each plate of fruit and, in fact, on every exhibit in the booth is a card on which are printed a map of Mary land and the variety of the exhibit, together with the name and address of the exhibitor. The locality from which the specimen was sent is designated on the top of the map by a red cross. Thus one is enabled to tell at a glance all about the specimen in question. In addition to their individual use, these cards constitute a valuable horticultural collection, inasmuch as they assign to each section of the state the fruits for which it is best known.

State Agricultural College.

At the right end of the booth is shown the exhibit from the Maryland Agricultural college. This consists of a large case containing about fifty specimens of steel, fron and woodwork, an equal number of original mechanical drawings and a large assortment of photographs showing the students, with their instructors, engaged in active experiment and test work in the laboratory and in the field.

Next there is an interesting entomorogy exhibit, consisting of about twenty-five specimens of the beneficial inects, with several large models devised for the study of the internal anatomy of the insects.

The college collection contains 20,000 specimens. Those sent to the exposition are to show the method of mounting and preserving, the system of classification and arrangement.

Canning Industry.

In the canning and preserving of oysters, tomatoes, peas and strawberries the state of Maryland leads the United States. In the canning of fruits and vegetables, all kinds being considered, tt stands second. It packs 30 per cent of the tomatoes canned in the United States and 25 per cent of the total amount of peas.

In exploitation of this industry there are on exhibit in the Maryland booth two pyramids eight feet in diameter and fifteen feet high composed of thou-sands of caus of all kinds of vegetables and fruits. Then there are quantities of preserves and pickles, good to Jook upon and pleasant to the taste,

Professor Symons is a member of the faculty of the Maryland Agricultural college, being in charge of the department of entomology. He is the state entomologist and is secretary of the Maryland Horticultural society. Being thus versatile, he has known exactly how to arrange the various exhibits to the best advantage of the whole. He personally supervised the placing of everything in the booth and has greatly added to its beauty by weaving ropes of ivy around the windows, over the tables and through the balcony rails of the office

Oyster Industry.

The Maryland oyster industry is represented by an exhibit sent by the state shellfish commission. It consists of numerous specimens of oysters, the exhibits being arranged according to the ages of the specimens and again according to the variety and size.

The shellfish commission was organized by Dr. Caswell Graves about one year ago, but since that time it has been the means of developing oyster beds worth millions of dollars.

In addition to the specimen exhibits, a number of pictures and maps are displayed, showing how the beds are located and developed. The whole wall at the upper end of the booth is covered with these pictures and charts.

In a recent report of the Maryland State Horticultural society it is shown that the annual crop of potatoes in the state is worth about $1,500,000, some 33,000 acres being grown.

The exhibits of this vegetable occupy several large tables near the oyster display. These potatoes are unusually large and firm. Fifteen varieties of the Irish potato are represented and two varieties or sweet potatoes.

. Pictures and Decorations.

In addition to the pictures and charts mentioned above, there are a number of views taken in various sections of Maryland, notably in the fa-Chesapeake bay, and several interesting photographs of exhibits made at tural society.

On the wall directly over the office are certificates for a gold medal awarded at St. Louis for the corn and canning displays and a St. Louis grand prize for tobacco.

Hanging from the front posts before the booth are six banners, won by the State Agricultural school in intercolleglate contests. In addition there are several photographs of the school with

The nut exhibit shown in this booth by W. McBrown of Oakland, Md., is one of the few displays of this kind at the exposition. It includes a number of very fine specimens of the English, black and Japanese walnut, the bickory nut, chestnut, beechnut and butternut. These are neatly arranged on tables, each plate being carefully labeled.

Racing at Ascot. Racing at Ascot dates back a great number of years, and it is recorded that Queen Anne was the first royal personage to patronize the fixture, in 1711. The first and second Georges were not great patrons of the turf, but they bred race horses on a large scale in order to encourage their subjects, and George III. gave a plate of 100 guineas to be competed for. Ever since those times the great annual festival on the famous Berkshire heath has met with royal favor.

No More Sunshades.

The latest society fashion is a sort of orgnette without glasses, known as the Maisette eye shade, says London P. T. O. The Maisette, which made its first appearance on the lawn at Ascot, has sprung widely into popularity among ladies who are constantly at tending outdoor functions, as it not only shields the eyes from the rays of the sun, but enables women to do away with their parasols. The new eye shade is supported by a long handle in the same manner as the lor gnette and comes out horizontally from the forehead for three inches, being fined with a delicate shade of green silk underneath. It is finding great favor also among the men, as it can be folded into a convenient size for the vest pocket. The shade used by Queen Alexandra is made of pure tortoise

Old Kentucky Home Hymn. A new hymn composed by the Rev. W. H. Smith of Louisville, Ky., and sung to the air of "My Old Kentucky Home," was given a trial at the Walnut Street Baptist church, Third ave nue and St. Catherine street. in Louis ville, says the New York World. The idea worked in the words is that the gospel should be carried to every corner of the Kentucky home and thence into all the world. Though the song was sung as a solo, the congregation joined enthusiastically in the chorus.

Oldest Artificial Leg.

What is said by the British Medical Journal to be the oldest arfificial leg in existence is in the museum of the Royal College of Surgeous of England. It was found in the tomb of Capua and is described in the catalogue as follows: "Roman artificial leg. The artificial limb accurately represents the form of the leg. It is made of pieces of thin bronze, fastened by bronze nalls to a wooden core. Two iron bars, having holes at their free ends, are at tached to the upper extremity of the bronze. A quadrilateral plece of iron, found near the position of the foot, is thought to have given strength to it. There is no trace of the foot, and the wooden core had nearly crumbled away. . ust skeleton had its waist surrounded by a belt of sheet bronze edged with small rivets, probably used to fasten a leather lining. Three painted vases (red figures on a black ground) lay at the feet of the skeleton. The vases belong to a rather advanced period in the decline of art (about 300

Bascom and His Students

John Bascom, once president of the University of Wisconsin, always had a keen insight into men, and for much of his life college students constituted mankind for him. Once when he was a class officer the names of two men were read by him as absent from morning prayers. One of them, a pietist, stopped at his desk and said:

"Professor, when the chapel bell was ringing I was engaged in prayer and did not hear it."

"You're not excused," responded John, with contempt in his eye and in his voice.

Then, calling back the other man, who was about at the door on his way out of the room, he said to him:

"What's your excuse?" "I haven't any, sir."

"You're excused." He used to have debates in his class room. At one of them a student, whon Bascom subsequently described as a "floriating fellow," in the heat of his eloquence said, "I wish that I had the ability and the time to exhaust this subject."

"You have the time," said Bascom. Harper's Weekly.

Smart Boy Wins.

The visitor was examining the class of small boys. He held the chalk in "What number shall I draw on the board?" he asked of one boy. The boy replied, "Thirty-two."

The visitor drew the number backward, which made twenty-three.

"Is that right?" asked the visitor. "Yes, sir; yes, str," answered the boy in a timid way.

"What number shall I take now?" asked of another. The boy answered, "Sixty-two," whereupon the visitor drew the number backward, as before-twenty-six. "Is that right?" he asked. "Yes, sir," replied the boy. A long way back a bright eyed boy held up a wavering hand.

As Japanese See It.

It is said the Japanese think our grown women most alarmingly over grown, very shocking in their costume and quite dreadful as regards their teeth and their feet-in a word, outrageous. They consider the kimono preferable to western habiliments because it so completely obliterates the lines of the figure. They teach girls to talk with their lips almost closed, concealing the teeth, and to walk with the feet parallel in tiny steps or even toeing in.-Kansas City Journal.

"What time is it, my lad?" asked a traveler of a small boy who was driving a couple of cows home from the "Almost 12 o'clock, sir," replied the

"I though? it was more."

"It's never any more here," returned the lad, in surprise. "It just begins at 1 again."-Lustige Blatter.

And the Boy Was Right. "If one quart of berries cost 71/4 cents, how much would three quarts cost?" asked a Brooklyn teacher in an oral test the other day.

"They would cost you 22 cents," promptly responded a little boy. "We have nothing less than 1 cent in our money, and the man would just make It 22 cents."-New York i'ress.

What Would You Do

If three good physicians should pronounce your case hopeless. If they should decide that you could not live longer than six weeks. And if you should get well, after using only $12.00 worth of Dr. Miles' Heart Cure and Nervine, what would you advise a friend in like condition to do?

"I have to thank you for saving my wife's life two years ago. We had continued with the doctor until the third doctor, like the two previous ones, said that nothing could be done for her; that she had better be taken home from the hospital to quietly wait her time, which would not be over 6 weeks at the most. I brought her home, and then I thought probably Dr. Miles' Heart Cure and Nervine might help her, so I got a bottle of each and some Nerve and Liver Pills and commenced to give them to her. We soon seen an improvement, and encouraged by this we continued giving the medicine. We gave her eleven bottles in all of the medicine. She takes it occasionally now if she feels the need. I am in the ministry, and have been for 44 years."

exposition announced that history sized and full justice done her first great nation. settlers by exhibiting there the memorial collection which he was making for the statehouse at Annapolis.

Realizing that a collection of this kind could be made most quickly and reflect honor on Maryland, Governor Warfield issued a commission to Mrs. Hester Dorsey Richardson as special executive historian to collect and put in shape Maryland's historic data and documents.

Mrs. Richardson has faithfully disharged this duty, and as a result the Mary and building at the exposition contains the most interesting and in- for the welfare of the inmates that structive demonstrations of Maryland history ever collected.

The exhibit includes the following the incurables." object, lessons in Maryland history and many others:

Facsimile of original letter sent back on the Ark's return trip to England giving an account of the voyage over; also one of the receipts for the two Indian arrows paid at Windsor castle each Tuesday in Easter week by the proprietary as fealty to the king, illustrating Maryland's exemption from taxation by king or parliament as her chartered right.

The part of the "act concerning religion," insuring freedom of conscience, passed by the assembly of Maryland in the year 1649, records the fact that Maryland was at that time the only place in the known world where persons of all faiths were at liberty to worship God according to their own consciences. The autographs of those who passed the act are attached to it and are shown for the first time.

Many names of the earliest settlers for whom lands were surveyed in the twelve oldest counties, giving the name of their first surveys. This roll of honor includes over a thousand names of the progenitors of Maryland's oldest familles, in many of which these original lands have descended to the present generation.

Under the head "Lords of the Manor In Maryland" are given the names of forty-six to whom were granted manors, with all the privileges of lords of the manor in England, giving the names of the manors and the acreage. These have never before been collect-

The "act against the importation of convicted persons into this province," passed 1676, is displayed to prove that Maryland had no convicts among her first settlers, as this act imposes a heavy fine on "some captains of merchant vessels" who smuggled in "sew eral" felons and sold them for their own profit.

The act for "the founding and erect ing of a school or college within this province for the education of youth in learning and virtue." April, 1671, and the act establishing King William's school, 1696, are displayed to show that Maryland passed the first act for a free school in this country and per

For Shakespeare's Sake.

There is something remarkably at tractive for an actress in the rolling cadences of the Bard of Avon, and I do not wonder that so many players dream of playing his work. I think it was in Los Angeles some years ago that a young actor who was then becoming popular decided that the time was ripe for him to do Hamlet. What his mental process was in arriving at this decision I have of course no By local applications, as they cannot means of knowing, but an apocryphal anecdote was told of him the morning after his first appearance as the melancholy Dane. It seems a friend ap proached him and said:

"How do you feel this morning?" "I have failed to get my whole mean ing into the character. I shall never play Hamlet again," was the reply.

"Oh, but you must play the part once gain," remonstrated the friend. "And why?" asked the young acto despondently. "Shakespeare turned over in his coffin last night. You will have to do it once again, for you can't leave the poor chap in that position," said the friend. -Eleanor Robson in Bohemian.

Shy on Smelts.

"Great Scott, what do you call these, Helen?" asked Dan Foss. He was gazing at an elaborately garnished platter which held two tiny fish.

"You wanted smelts. I didn't know how big they were. I never heard of smelts in the west. You know I got two mackerel last week, and they made a nice little meal, so I thought two smelts would be enough. Our fish man's been sarcastic since that day I phoned for a halibut and be explained a halibut was too large for two people-it occasionally weighs 100 pounds. Today he began to be funny about the two smelts. I got freezingly dignified and hung up the receiver. The boy had gone before I looked at miah Riley's scheme for destroying them. I knew right away, Dan, I had made a miserable blunder, only I bolled eggs, you see, to make out a meal.

"All right, little woman," laughed Dan. "They're a nice appetizer. Only next time order twenty anyway. Fifteen's about my limit on smelts."-Success Magazine.

A Widow Who Was Calm. A lawyer was entertaining dinner guests recently with stories from his torney Alexander R. Hagner. personal experiences.

"A woman came into my office one afternoon and said she wanted to see a lawyer on a rather important matter," he said. "She was very prim and self possessed." "'What can I do for you? I asked.

my husband was hurt in the wreck the other day.' "I noticed she was dressed in mourhwith her husband's accident.

"'Well,' she said in an easy tone,

"'Was your husband badly injured?" asked. "'Yes,' she answered in the same oplet voice. 'He got his head cut off."-Kansas City Times.

Toads' Hatching Places.

Every tiny toad lays a stupendous number of eggs. A scientist received 11.545 eggs from one toad, a necessary fertility, since the chances of an egg developing into a toad are less than one in a thousand. Within two weeks after the eggs are laid the young tadpoles begin to appear and feed first on their gelatinous envelope. Next the slimy deposits common to ponds and swamps are attacked. Steadily grow the young wrigglers until their bodies enlarge to the size of thumb natis by the end of June. The long tail now is absorbed and the legs develop. They begin to hop on the bank and disperse, never to return save in the breeding season. It is at the spring of the year that the toads awake from their winter sleep below the rocks and scrub. They often have been literally frozen stiff, but they return to life as healthy as ever and on the first balmy night migrate toward the nearest breeding pond. Usually this is the old home stead where they were born, for the toad is a domestic animal and will hands, childlains, cuts, bruises, and travel a mile or more for the sake of always with good results. I made a returning to the place of its hatching. -Chicago Tribune.

"Trying on" Furniture. When you go to buy a suit of furniture nowadays in one of our department stores you don't have to speculate as to how it will look in your room nor whether it will fit in or not. As soon as the salesman sees that a particular suit has met your fancy he calls for a porter or two and turns them loose in one of several rooms fitted up around the main showroom, setting them at work removing all the furniture in it. Then the suit that you seem to be hankering after is placed in appropriate positions in this room, and you can see at a glance just how the bedroom or parlor or dining room will look if you buy that particular suit.

There are a dozen of these smaller rooms around the main showroom, and as each one is decorated in a different manner it is easy to pick one out that approximates the scheme of your room skin cisease, take Botanic Blood Balm at home. Like many modern ways of selling goods it is expensive in the beginning, but it pays in the end, for this plan of showing goods seldom fails of its intended effect.—New York Press.

Model Boat On Exhibition.

An eighteen foot model of a modern ocean liner is being exhibited in the vacant lot on the corner of Camden avenue and Dock streets. It is a model of the twin screw steamship the "City of Paris", which was built at Belfast a number of years ago for one of the trans-Atlantic transportation companies. At the time she was built, the "City of Paris" was the largest steamer afloat,

The steamer was later used as an auxiliary cruiser by the United States Government during the Spanish-American war. She was 600 feet in length with a 62 foot beam and had a depth of 50 feet. Her speed was 25 miles an hour. The model was built at Berlin, Maryland, by the exhibitor, Mr. James F. Selby. It is built according to an accurate scale of three eights of an inch to the foot. It is equipped with sixteen life-boats, thirteen ten-inch guns, and 400 lifelike figures are carved out of wood to represent the crew and passengers. This exhibit was awarded a prize at the Pocomoke fair. Mr. Selby stated yesterday that he was four years in building the model.

FOR TEMPERANCE LEGISLATIO

Church Members Adopt Practical Method in Movement Against Liquer Traffic.

Rev. J. W. Kirk preached a sermon on "Drink" at Alluutt Memorial Methodist Protestant Church in Baltimore Sunday morning. It had such and effect that nearly every man present signed an agreement to vote only for the caudidates for the Legislature from the First accomplished at the Methodist Protestant Preachers' Meeting this morning. After hearing him, the members unanimously voted to adopt the plan and to use it in their respective churches. This agreement is as fotlows:

"We who are voters in the First Legislative district of the city of Baltimore, do hereby agree that in the election for the representatives to the Legislature of the State of Maryland we will vote for only those men who will favorably consider temperance legislation."

A short conference was held after the service, and it was decided to bring the plan to the attention of all the churches of the First district, which includes the first six wards, and to ask for their cooperation. The plan to be followed is to have the pastor of each church appoint a committee to secure signers to the agreement. The right will only be made against caudidates for the Legislature. No attempt will be made to influence the primary elections. The promoters of the nations are made, will notify the mananominees on both tickets refuse to give Prohibition ticket.

Mr. Kirk said today: "Not a single stop shipping milk or have a sheriff's representative of the First district in sale" with them. ## An Independent Candidate With A Striking Platform.

William G. Kerbin, Esq., Worcester county fame, and somewhat notorious as having been connected with the "Jim Crow Law," has cut loose from the Democratic Party, and all hidebound political connections, and, with a rattle of heavy artillery, has launched an independent can didacy for the State's Attorney ship of Worcester. He refuses to enter any primary fight, and appeals directly to the local voters, and his campaign will be watched with a great deal of interest, even outside of the precincts of his own county.

His platform in general is a rattling good one, the principal objection to it being the bombastic style he has essayed, the selfassumed importance he constantly manifests, and his treatment of subjects entirely removed from the by James E. Ellegood, Esq., and scope of the office for which he published in this issue of THE becomes a candidate. For instance, he is opposed to the increase of salaries of local officers, at a time when some practical states that "politics should be steps should be taken to put a taken out of our school system, and that not in word, but in deed" and declares the people of Worcester "should have the right to vote upon the liquor question, which privilege has been refused combination of the best element them in the past." It is this phase of his manifesto which will put him upon his mettle and give him ample opportunity for explaining himself and making as vigorous a personal campaign as it is possible for one to make. Already the Democratic politicians of Worcester are after the scalp of this independent chieftain and he will be kept on the war-path until the November election.

Mr. Kerbin has no doubt given and will make a live, hustling campaign, and we can only say, as we did with relation to the Democratic primary fight in Parsons district, "And may the best man win."

Parents Are Judged By The Appearance Of Their CHILDREN

This is the time to buy your boy his Fall and Winter Outfit at Lacy Thoroughgood's—the best boye' store in town. Parents are judged by the appearance of their children. When one sees an unbecoming, ill-fitting suit on a boy, one's mind unconsciously pictures a careless mother.

To all parents, Lacy Thoroughgood would say — buy the boy's Fall and Winter outfit at Thoroughgood's store "lest ye be judged." You will have a very much larger stock to choose from—yet a greater advantage even than this is the exclusive, thoroughbred character of the clothes themselves. Thoroughgood's styles are always a season or so ahead of the ordinary ciothes. Half the merit in my boys' clothing lies in just this cleverness; but the biggest consideration of all is the price. In making there is no com-parison. I have my NewFall Clothing for boys and children ready-I have just received $200.00 worth of Children's Odd Short Pants.

A TRUSTWORTHY CANDIDATE FOR STATE SENATOR.

Sketch Of The Life Of Mr. Walter B. Miller, Choice Of The Republican Party—Has Had Successful Business Career.

When any one man, by his written thoughts, spoken words and public actions has so endeared himself to the people of a community as to cause the highest office of a county to be unanimously indered him by his party—such a man's place in local history is secure.

The Republicans of Wicomico are indeed fortunate at this particular time, the beginning of a revolution, the crisis of the political history of the county, that the services of such a man has not been denied them, to have such a man to take the helm-a man who, by his pleasing personality, straightforward, honest manner and zealous advocacy of his own convictions is admired not only by those of his own political belief, but by those who are his political enemies. He has no others.

Such a man is Walter B. Miller.

His large association with men, his recognized ability to successfully cope with the political issues of the day, his unblemished business career, his domestic life and his out-spoken advocacy of a higher plane of moral life in the county all tend to make Mr. Miller an ideal candidate for the office for which he has been nominated.

While a most prominent and successful business man of Salisbury, Mr. Miller was born in Baltimore on the 27th of February, 1860. He was a son of the late William D. Miller, of Baltimore, and Mattie H. Edwards Miller, who was a native of Cape Cod, Mass. His education was obtained in the public schools of Baltimore, and in the Baltimore City College, and after his graduation at the last named institution, he left for Philadelphia where he engaged in the wood and lumber business. It was here that at the first beginning of his career that he laid the foundations for the busi ness success which has attended him the present time.

To Raise Price Of Milk.

About 75 milk shippers along the main line and brances of the Western Maryland Railroad, in Carroll and Baltimore counties, met at Odd Fellow's Hall, Westminster. Tuesday afternoon for the purpose of taking some action by which to secure an advance in the price of milk from Baltimore dealers. James W. Beachman, of Avondale, was elected chairman, and Samuel Pfoutz, of Union Bridge, secretary.

An appeal to the dealers, setting forth the increased cost of producing milk and requesting an advance in price, was exhibited with the signatures of 160 shippers, representing a daily shipment of 3.500 gallons from the shipping points all along the Western Maryland lines in the two counties.

A committee, consisting of Nicholas Walsh, of Hampstead; Randolph Slade, of Woodensburg; E. J. Rupp, of Maple Grove; James W. Beacham, of Avondale; Henry R. Fuss, of Union Bridge; Robert Gist, of Westminster; and Frank Reese, of Gmynnbrook; was appointed to confer with a similar committee from shippers on the line of the Maryland and campaign. Pennsylvania Railroad, and then to seek a joint meeting with the dealers in Baltimorefor thepurpose of demonstrating the necessity for an advance in the price of milk. Later a permanent organiza tion of the shippers is contemplated.

Suesifor Heavy Damages.

A suit for $50,000 damages against the County Commissioners of Howard County, Md., was taken up for trial in the Circuit Court at Frederick Tuesday, having been removed from the Howard County Court. The plaintiffis Mrs. Agnes Hill, widow of Dr. Alexander Scott Hill, late of Catonsville, Md. Dr. Hill, was vetermarian, was returning from a trip to Howard county on January 22, 1906, when the horse he was driving became frightened as he was crossing a bridge over the Patapsco River at Ilchester and jumped from the bridge.

In the fall Dr. Hill had his skull and five ribs fractured and sustained other injuries. He died shortly afterwards.

Mrs. Hill's suit is based on the allegation that her husband's death was due to the County Commissioners' negligence in failing to have the bridge provided with walls or other safeguards sufficient to protect travelers from injury.

She is represented by the following counsel: J. A. C. Bond, C. Ross Mace, Laben Sparks and Urner & Urner. The County Commissioners are represented by Lewis F. Clark, Frank L. Stover and any other paint. Leo Wineberg.

FOR BETTER MILK SUPPLY.

Rules Governing Sanitary Dairy Conditions

New and much stricter regulations milk question always becomes acute, it gers. Wesley D. Cow stables must be kept in thorough ly good repair and well painted and

All cow stables must be thoroughly cleaned as often as necessary.

Milk must be moved without delay from the rooms in which cows are kept Receptacles of non-absorbent material must be provided for the milk.

No open drains shall be allowed to run through any cow stables or milkstorage room.

These rules give a good deal of diseretionary power to the Live Stock Sanitary Board, but they are not considered specific enough. In addition, the Board has little money to spen d in seeing that they are obeyed. and, acting in conjunction with the Baltimore Health Department, the State Health Board hopes to make the milk crusade effective. The sources of Baltimore's milk supply will be located and every dairyman sending milk to Baltimore will be communicated with.

It is the nope of the local Health Deparment to be able to send milk experts around among the shippers of milk, not to report violations of the law, but to show the dairymen how to improve the quality of their milk at small expense. Such an educational campaign would 7th day of May, 1907, and recorded have to be worked in conjunction with the State Board, and the latter's adoption of more specific rules is the first step toward making a success of the dwelling nearly complete.

STORY OF LOVE.

Graphic Recital of Part She Played In Earle Separation.

TRIED HARD TO MAKE PEACE.

Artist's Soul Affinity Says She Would Have Considered It Crowning Glory of Her Life to Have Reconciled Earle and His Wife-Latter Would Not Consent and Urged Marriage.

Found in her retreat in the mountains of Orange county, N. Y., and in he protection of her brother Alfred, Miss Julia Kuttner, the "soul affinity" of Ferdinand Pinney Earle, the artist who sent his wife back to France that he might marry Miss Kuttner, told to a correspondent of the New York American a remarkable story of love, suffering, sacrifice and exalted idealism, declaring she had tried to reunite Earle and his wife and would gladly give him up, though she loves him, if his wife would consent.

"I am not an interloper," Miss Kuttner said. "I have not come between this man and his wife. Mrs. Earle is not a martyr. This day I would gladly give him up for duty's sake, although he is the only man I have ever loved, if the wife would consent, but she will not. It was she who urged me to fill the need in his life which she admits she has been unable to

"I tell you honestly and in all earnestness that when I went to the home of the Earles, when I accepted the hospitality of this man's wife, my object was absolutely this-to effect a reconciliation between the two. I knew they had not been happy. He had told me so. He had revealed the situation to me in its every aspect. I came over here from Europe with the express purpose of accomplishing a reconciliation. I changed my plans-came over a month earlier than I had intendedsimply to bring them together.

"In spite of the fact that this man is so dear to me I would have considered it the crowning glory of my life had I been able to bring these two into a perfect understanding. The highest orm of love is unselfishness. I would have gloried in performing this highest of all love's offices."

Miss Kuttner was utterly overwhelmed by the notoriety that had

"Why." she said, with a gasp, "it seems incredible that all this storm purely private and absolutely no one's mountain that lay veiled in mist. concern but our own. To think that I, "It was a wonderful understanding." who always have shunned publicity she said. and who dreaded notoriety as a most deadly thing, should be compelled to face the public in this way! Oh, it piness in her hands, Miss Kuttner is unfair! Why, no one knows the true story-no one really guesses the real facts. Come out under the trees, where we can talk freely. I want to tell you the truth-I want you to give the real situation just as I tell it."

She turned and led the way to a large flat rock under a big spreading tree. Motioning me to sit there, she flung herself on the grass, schoolgirl fashion, with her hands clasped about her knees, and faced me with straightforward, candid eyes. Her brother, following, threw himself down beside her. Here is a picture of this young girl about whose strange beliefs and unconventional attitude the whole world is talking as she looked when she told her story:

face, losing none of its feminine charm because of its intellectuality. The eyes-clear, unflinching, absolutely candid in their gaze-are gray blue in color, with lashes of brown. The brows are darker than her hair, which is of that indefinite brown which defies exact classification. She wears it brushed back from her forehead in a low pompadour that escapes severity because of its loose waves. Her forehead is one of her most attractive features. It is peculiarly expressive and bespeaks temperament as well as earnestness of thought. Miss Kuttner's face is a long oval, the cheeks round and girlish, the chin sensitive, the nose straight and comely, the mouth pretty and turned up at the corners. She has even white teeth that gleam delightfully when she smiles. Her plump figure, girlish in was attired for mountain outline. tramping.

Her physical characteristics are not noticed so much as her manner, her facial expression and her voice, which is exceedingly lovely-soft, well modulated and cultured. She is twenty-two years of age, but she has the mentality and poise of a much older woman. Continuing, Miss Kuttner said:

"I would never come between any man and his wife. This proceeding is something to which Mrs. Earle not only agrees, but of which she is glad. She regards my friendship for Mr. Earle as a blessing to them both, as the means by which she shall secure freedom from in unhappy alliance and a chance for happiness for herself in the future.

"You mean Mrs. Earle intends to marry again?" "She certainly will marry again is she finds an opportunity to win the do-

"In the first place, there has been no deception of any sort about this entire affair. I knew from the first than Mr. Earle was a married man. I knew it, and the friendship that sprang up at the very beginning was not a friendship that violated the knowledge of his marriage to another woman."

"Then the friendship was a matter of your first meeting?"

"Yes, I will confess that a mutual GRAND SPECTACLE OF COLOR understanding sprang to life at our first meeting. As soon as we had talked with each other this bond of sympathy was established."

"It was love at first sight, then, was it not?"

"No, no-I should not call it that The real understanding came after ward. This immediate comprehension or sympathy, or whatever you choose to call it, was not of a romantic nature-not then. Speaking of the time when the decision was made that left Earle's hapsaid:

"It was one week after I had been in the Earle home. I had made every effort to reconcile the two. I begged them to make one last trial-to see earnestly if they could not adjust their differences. I did everything in my power to this end. I talked to each separately, and I talked to them together. I urged and pleaded. But one night-it was Saturday night, or rather Sunday morning, for it was 2 o'clock or after-Mrs. Earle left her room and came upstairs to mine. She sat down by the bedside. "'Julia, it is no use,' she said. can't do it. It is impossible. We can not be happy-we cannot. Why should we try any longer? Love cannot be A clean cut, high bred, attractive forced. It must come of itself. We are hopelessly out of sympathy. Listen. Julia. You understand him. You can make him happy. I want you to promise me you will."

"We sat there in the dark talking it all over, as women talk in the silence of the night, and that hour decided it There was no longer any battle, any doubt. There were not two paths any longer. She had taken the choice from

She reverted to the psychological moment in Paris when she and the artist realized they loved each other. "Just so soon as we realized it we wrote a joint letter to Mrs. Earle explaining the entire matter." she said. "We wished above everything to do honest things. Then we went to the parents of Mrs. Earle and told them everything. They were perfectly satisfied and happy to think their daugh ter would be free at last and would return to them. I had become acquainted with Mrs. Earle's parents and they were lovely to me. My brother and I lived on the same street in Paris where they resided. We were all very congenial.

"I really do not quite understand Mrs. Earle myself. She is, I confess, an enigina to me. No matter how felt toward a man, I do not believe I could bring myself to be as happy as she is. She was absolutely radiant over it.

"I wish to be perfectly honest and to state the plain facts. I must confess that Mrs. Earle has the artistic temperament. She can sympathize with her husband's artistic aspirations -and yet she cannot inspire him. She frankly admits her inability to inspire and help him in his work."

Self conquest is the greatest victory.

Famous Falls Ablaze With Countless Hues by Night.

Electric Plant Illumines a Scene Hitherto Shrouded After Sunset. Huge Searchlights of Many Colors Enhance Beauty of Nature's Great

All the folks of Niagara Falls crossed the river into Canada the other night to see their great water falls illuminated by 1,115,000,000 candle power. The figures sound big, but they are accurate and in keeping with all the other statistics concerning Niagara, says a Niagara Falls correspondent of many hues. The batteries are mounted below the falls on the Canadian side. Those on the low ground near the river's edge throw their beams up to meet the falling foam, while the batteries on the heights plunge their rays into the crests of the two cascades, so that, all told, half a million square feet of tumbling, roaring water is flluminated.

The sensational feature of the night light is that it is concentrated on the foaming waters of the American and Canadian falls, making cliffs between and on the outer sides.

At 8 o'clock, the hour set for turning on the lights, the balconies and verandas of the Clifton House, on the Canadian side of the river, and all the walks and terraces of Queen Victoria park were crowded with onlookers, who numbered well up into the tens of thousands. As many more thronged all the vantage places on the American

Perhaps the most complimentary thing that can be said of the spectacle is that it was witnessed in dead silence. From all those thousands there was no acclaim, no suggestion of a cheer. They simply gazed and wondered and admired, speechless. The roar of the falls was the only accompaniment for the show.

In the beginning all the power of the fifty searchlights was concentrated upon the American falls and the Bridal Vell. No color showed at first, and nothing could be a purer white than that huge wall of foam plunging 157 feet down the face of rock. Between the big falls and the smaller cascade to the right, known as the Bridal Veil, the naked rock stood out gray and grim. with every crevice revealed by the fearful glare to the watchers across

Then a broad band of the white foam suddenly turned to red, with a rose tinted cloud of mist above it mingling with the white vapor. Gradually the red rays suffused the whirtpool below, and then their light made its way up the river against the rush of water and climbed into the smoother water of the Horseshoe.

Somebody said "a river of blood." but the remark wasn't as obvious as it might seem to have been. The effeet was too beautiful to suggest anything horrible.

Green, orange, blue and violet tints followed, and then all were blended. A score of rainbows spanned the river at the same time, shifting their arcs and changing their combinations of color as the rays were furned from one cloud of vilst to another.

And, finally, when the batteries were turned from the American to the Canadian falls, huge vertical prisms of light stalked along the heights, illuminating a dense growth of woodland and appearing as so many ghosts among the trees.

Why He Felt Happy.

"Vernon told me this morning," related the lady with the cold blue eye, "that he passed the tree where two years ago he carved your initials and his own and encircled them with a heart. He says he felt so glad he almost danced for joy!"

"Ah," said the tall brunette anxiously, "then he must still hove me, after all! Did he tell you why he felt so

"Yes, dear. He said some men were cutting the tree down!"

Took It Literally.

It is told of the late Chauncey Shafer, who bears the same relation to New York's "anecdotage" that Sydney Smith does to London's, that he employed in his law office a stunted youth of very tractable temperament.

One day Mr. Shafer returned from moned Billy into his private office.

"Boy," he said carelessly, "go over to the special term and see what in

The late Judge Brady was presiding over the trial of an action involving many interesting questions of substantive law; hence the courtroom was empty save for the litigants, their counthing. He evidently anticipated ob- sel and the necessary witnesses. From Out the Grave.

In the little village of Tewin, Hertfordshire, England, there are five large trees growing out of a single grave, and thereby hangs a curious story. On the slab that marks the grave was carved the inscription; "Here lyeth inter'd the body of the Right Honorable Lady Anne Grimestone, wife of Sir Samuel Grimestone. Bart, of Gohambury, in Hertfordshire. daughter of the late Right Honorable the Earl of Thanet, who departed this life Nov. 22, 1713, in the sixtieth year of her age." The village story says that Lady Grimestone, persisting in a lifelong denial of the existence of a God, on her exhortations of her friends that if was indeed a God five trees would grow out of her grave. The woman died and was buried. Shortly after the interment the five little shoots began to appear, growing constantly until they split the masonry and wrecked the railing about the tomb.-New York Tribune.

Animal Peculiarities. A herd of wild Asian buffaloes will charge any foe, even a tiger, to save the life of one of their number that has been wounded. Elephants, baboons and other animals will do the same thing in a wild state. On the other hand, monkeys have been known to fall upon one of their. number that is ill and drown him, possibly as an act of mercy. Similarly wolves destroy one of the pack that becomes helpless. If an otter is trapped, his brother otters will run around him all night, showing the utmost concern. A writer in the London Spectator. states that he has seen sparrows in groups discussing and lamenting when one of their number had fallen into a trap. Next day, when a robin was caught, the sparrows paid no attention. He adds that he had seen a big pig try to help a smaller one through a hole in the fence paling by pulling at its head.

Faithful to the End.

The tlames crackled ominously, the water bubbled in the great pot, and seated in the shade of a palm the naked savages began to sharpen their cruel knives.

"Is there no hope?" murmured the doomed commercial traveler.

"None," hissed the ebon chief. "Then," said the young man, point ing to his sample case, "if you are determined to cat me, at least let me ask you, as a last favor, to try our brand of mustard with the feast. Eddowes scowled at the clock as he let himself into the office. A freight train on the branch line over which he commuted to town had blocked the tracks and he had been forced to tramp two miles across country to reach the trolley. Arriving after a series of transfers, he found Benton's card on the floor beneath the letter drop with the penciled legend that he was going out of town. The deal Eddowes had been working on would not hold out until Benton's return, and he gritted his teeth as he thought of all the commission on the transaction would have meant to him.

It would have made up the sum dents ever since I rose." needed to complete the purchase of the little house he wanted to offer Edna Conant as a home, and it might mean lunch, and we'll tell each other our a year now before another such brilliant opportunity would offer.

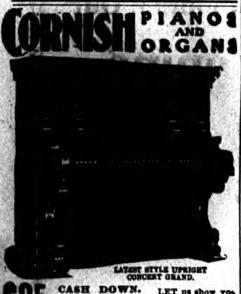

He glanced out of the window through the light, driving rain, at the the prices moderate. Here, at a little sodden vista of wet roof tops and smoke stained buildings, and thought chapter of accidents, while he in turn how well the weather matched his own gave a whimsical account of his own feelings. For months he had been working to close the real estate transaction. Benton was to be at the office at 10 to put the final details through, and now he had sailed for Europe and would not be back for several months. It was the final happening of a chain of accidents that had begun with his stubbing his toe as he got out of bed, followed by the loss of his last collar button under the bureau, the burning of half his breakfast by a green servant girl and then the wreck and its attendant discomforts.

He turned from the window with a

"This is a fine beginning for the week," he said to himself. "If it keeps up this way until Saturday I shall land in the lunatic asylum."

He took his seat before the desk and busied himself with the papers in the Benton matter. Four signatures and the exchange of a check would have made the set complete and would have brought him a commission of $10,000. Everything had been arranged to expedite matters. Benton had waited half an hour in the hall until he had just time to make the steamer upon which he was to sail.

Eddowes carefully clipped the papers to a file board and caught up his umbrella. The streets were filled with the usual hurrying throng, and, raising his umbrella, he fell in with the procession of moist and steaming mortals. The wind had freshened, and the rain was driving in sheets now. At the corner by the trust company building the air currents were unusually strong, and just as he passed the curb a girl ahead made a clutch at her umbrella as it turned inside out, while the torn silk fluttered from the bent ribs. Eddowes covered the dainty hat with his own umbrella and steered her to the protection of the entrance.

"Let it drop in the gutter," he said. "There is no hope of saving any part

"Harry!" gasped the girl. "Where did you come from?"

"From the office," he laughed. "What brings you downtown, Edna?"

"I was to meet father for lunch." she explained. "He was called to an important conference and left word for me to go to lunch alone. I was able. Everything has gone wrong today. It has been a chapter of acci-

"It meant a great deal to me," he said mournfully. "I was going to purchase the Gordon place.'

"For investment?" she asked, though she knew well enough she had said once when she had visited his sister how much she would enjoy a place like that for her home.

"An investment in happiness," he said meaningly. "I suppose that the place will be sold long before I am able to get another deal like this through."

"Is your happiness entirely dependent upon that one place?" she asked. 'Is happiness a matter of real estate?' "Real estate contributes materially to happiness," he said, with an uneasy laugh. "I should not want to offer an unworthy home to the woman I want to marry.'

"Home is what you make it," she re minded him. "There is Jessie Bruce. They have only four rooms in an was certain that he could make both ends meet in a small way. He did not walt to build a palace. If a woman loves a man she does not marry him because he is able to offer a pretentious home."

"Would you marry me with the little have to offer?" he asked. "It was you I thought of, dear."

Her hand crept across the table and stole into his own. "Of course I would-if you asked me," she assented, with a happy little laugh, "but I am afraid that you are going to let pride keep you from happiness.'

"I was going to," he admitted, "but this little visit has done so much ! give me fresh courage that I read a more than ever how much I need you. Will you marry me, dear, take me for better or worse, with the chances that it may be worse for awhile?"

The "Yes" was whispered so softly that he guessed rather than heard the answer, and his face grew radiant at the thought that this great happiness was to be his.

"I don't care now about the loss of the deal or the wreck or even the rain," he cried. "I have you, and with you it will always be sunshine and good fortune."

As though in answer, a beam of sunlight stole through the windows and feil across the table. Eddowes looked

"There is the omen," he cried. "That last burst of rain must have been the final gasp of the storm. The sun is coming through the clouds."

"And it's always going to shine," she answered.

"Let's pay the check and go and get the ring," he suggested. "I want to have you sealed and signed. I-hello!" His face was blank with amazement as Benton threaded his way toward them between the rows of tables. "I thought I should find you here," explained the newcomer when greetngs had been exchanged. In the meantime I thought I would come back to town on one of the tugs and close up that deal." "Everything is all ready," exclaimed Eddowes, rising. "We'll go right over to the office. It will be a fortunate investment, I am sure. We have just found out that bad beginnings make good endings." Perhaps Benton understood why Eddowes pressed Edna's hand as he helped her into her coat. At any rate he smiled in sympathy as they went out into the sunlight.

Revels In Buttons and Patches While Looking Upon Himself as a Greatly Abused Man-Leaves His Home For the Street to Drown His Sorrows.

[Copyright, 1907, by Homer Sprague.] Mrs. Bowser needed but one look into Mr. Bowser's face as he reached home the other evening to show that something was out of gear with him. His shoulders humped up, his under lip stuck out, and he had the sulkiness of a boy going to a licking. In reply going home. I am so perfectly miser- to her statement that he was fifteen minutes late he took from his pocket a ball of red twine and three darning needles and muttered that he had to stop at a store and buy them. "But what on earth are they for?

she asked. "You will see after dinner."

He grunted in reply. "Have you got a cold or one of your headaches? "Never mind me. I am of no account in this world." "But if you had a chill or anything of that sort I want to know it and send for the doctor. "Never mind if I have a dozen chilis the same."

Felt That He Was a Martyr. Mrs. Bowser realized that the time had come around for Mr. Bowser to feel that he was a martyr. All husbands get that feeling two or three times a year. No one exactly knows what brings it on, but it is sure to come, and no dandellon tonic will ward it off. She wanted to laugh and gossip, and she did to some extent, but he ate his dinner in solemn silence. Even when she told him that a tramp had entered the yard and was smoldering the terra cotta stone dog and bearing it off on his shoulder when she caught him Mr. Bowser maintained his sad and solemn expression. When dinner was over and they went upstairs he made a great show of the twine and the needles and presently threaded the latter and sat down and pulled off his shoe and sock. The latter had a hole about as big as a dime in the heel. The hole had not worn there, but had been made as the sock was pulled on.

"If you want that sock darned hand it to me." said Mrs. Bowser as she reached for it. "How you could get a hole like, that in a new sock puzzles me. I paid 50 cents a pair for them." "I won't trouble you," was the reply. "I was told years ago that the time would come when I'd have to darn my own socks, and now it is here."

"But you aren't going to darn them with red string, are you?"

"Anything is good enough for me. I can go around all day in perfect agony and what is it to you? Yes, I am going to darn them with this red twine. and if I fall dead tomorrow and am taken to the morgue the keeper will see what a wife I had and how I must have suffered."

He thereupon began darning the same as if mending a fishnet, and after ten minutes' work he had a wudgel that would have rubbed the heel off an ox. He held the sock up to view and turned it around and viewed it from all sides and then, with a sigh, laid it aside and produced a loose pants button from his pocket. One of his sustrying to pull our nose out of the mud pender buttons had snapped off, and

> "Just let that alone till you go to bed, and I will sew it on in a lifty." said Mrs. Bowser. "You didn't say anything about a loose button this morning or it would have been fixed

"What's wrong with that shirt?"

asked Mrs. Bowser. "Button off, of course." was the reply. "It's been off for the past four weeks, and that is what brought this case of bronchitis on me. I haven't said anything because it's no use." "Look here now, but when that shirt came home from the laundry three days ago the buttons were all there olutions and things.—Brooklyn Eagle.

and all tight. I looked them over, as I always do. When you took the shirt off you gave it a pull and sent the button flying. It must have been the one found on the floor yesterday."

Mr. Bowser sighed and drew his hand across his eyes as he placed the big horn button opposite the small buttonhole and prepared to sew it on. "For the land's sake, but don't do that!" exclaimed Mrs. Bowser. "Can't you see that the button is forty times too large?" "I' am only too thankful to get any kind of button," was the reply, accompanied by several sad and solemn shakes of the head. Button Was Too Big.

"That's all nonsense! Hand that shirt over to me. You have three or four more and don't need to put this

But Mr. Bowser stuck to his tailor job and sewed on the button. He knew that it would never go into the buttonhole, but he would have it there for an ornament anyway. The effect of the red twine on the white background was picturesque, to say the least. When the work was finished he departed upstairs again. This time he rummaged around for a quarter of an hour before he descended, but he had put in his time to good advantage. He had found an old pair of trousers and had cut a patch out of an old vest.

"Well, what is it now?" asked Mrs.

"These trousers have needed patching for the last five years, but you haven't had time to do it. I shall now do it myself." "But they are an old pair that you keep to work around in." "The principle of the thing is just

"There's no principle about it. If you use a blue patch on a green ground all the boys in the neighborhood will be guying you the first time you step outdoors.'

"Then the boys will be informed that I have to do my own sewing or there wouldn't be any done. Don't bother, Mrs. Bowser. Just keep your nose in that novel and never mind me. Blue patches on green grounds are good enough for your husband. He hasn't long to live anyhow, and what's the odds whether the patches are blue or black or green?"

Wiped a Tear Away.

Mr. Bowser snuffed and sniffed and wiped a tear away, and as he began to fit a patch eight inches square to a hole not over two inches in diameter and sew it fast with the red twine Mrs. Bowser could control her feelings no longer. She burst out laughing, and it was three or four minutes before she could control herself. Then Mr. Bowser was looking at her with a cold glare. He kept it up for two long minutes and then laid the half patched trousers aside and said:

"I am not only neglected, but insulted in my own house, and human nature can stand no more.

"But I had to laugh. I think that patch is the funniest thing I ever saw. Why, even the cat"-

"Mrs. Bowser, I am going out. I am a homeless man, and where I shall go heaven only knows. Perhaps when I am brought home dead and you gaze into my white face you will cease your merriment and realize that you are responsible for the death of a good man. Good night, Mrs. Bowser-woman, good night." She tried to stay him, but in vain. He left the house for the street with tears in his eyes and wandered up one street and down another, and the south winds sighed and moaned, and the crickets called to each other that all was lost, and the policeman on his lonely beat stopped him to say:

"Look here, old man, I've got my eyes on you, and if you try any monkey work in this neighborhood I'll make your heels break your neck. What's an old coon like you doing on the street at this hour of the night anyway? Move on with you!"

Held For Federal Jury.

John L. King, the Williamsport stock broker who operated in Baltimore and Hagerstown and who was arrested on a charge of fraudulently using the mails, was held for the action of the Federal grand jury in Baltimore by United States Commissioner Hagner at a hearing in Hagerstown Tuesday.

The hearing was begun last Friday; but it adjourned until Tuesday to allow the Government to produce additional witnesses. John W. Feldman, of Hagerstown, testified he bought 100 shares of stock of a lead mining company from what he supposed was the Molson Bank, of Baltimore, it being alleged that King was operating as the Mo'son Bank.

Stock Broker Arthur C. Gruber and C. E. Rickard, of Williamsport, testified as to certain stocks handled by King. King's counsel declined to put King on the stand.

Postoffice Inspector Samuel Hooton, of Baltimose, attending the hearing in the interest of the Government.

THEORY AND PRACTICE

In M. O. the Latter Generally Exposes

the Falsity of the Former. for Wicomico County, having appoint. The theory of municipal ownership ed Judges and Clerks for the several is that municipal corporations can do for the public at cost the ecvice now done by private corporations at a profit, saving to the public the amount of the profit in reduced charges. In the common practice of municipal ownership the city does for the public at increased expense, but for a lower ferred to them in writing against the price, what private corporations have fitness or qualifications of any person so been doing for a profit. Usually not appointed, and to remove any such only the profit is absorbed in the increased expense, but a continual an nual deficiency is covered up by increase of the municipal debt and failure to provide out of earnings for depreciation of plant

By the time the plant first installed is worn out the city, unless very rich and strong, is apt to be at the end of its credit. In many cases, like that of the Philadelphia gas works, a private corporation gets the city plant for a song and makes money out of it faster than ever The fundamental idea of it, therefore, is to take the money of taxpayers to render service to nontaxpayers for less than the service costs.-Editorial in Minneapolis Trib-

M. O. IN MILWAUKEE.

Unwarranted Action of the City Council In the Wisconsin Metropolis. If you authorize an agent to purchase a piece of property for you at $5,000 and he finds that it will cost $13,000 and goes ahead and buys it without consulting you on the ground that you had said that you wanted the property, your words would probably not look well in print. This is prac tically what has just been done in Milwaukee, the first party being the taxpayers of that city and their agent being the city council. Some time ago the people of Milwaukee voted to authorize a bond issue of $500,000 to install a municipal lighting plant.

The city fathers found that the estimate was $800,000 too low and passed a resolution to issue bonds to the extent of $1,300,000 The city comptroller at first refused to sign the necessary papers on the ground that in view of the great difference in cost the matter should be again submitted to the people This point was, however, overruled by the city attorney. If his for it permits the agents of the people to abuse their powers with impunity.

Why Kirkwood Shut Down.

Some time ago the city of Kirkwood Mo., was reported to have shut down light plant and made a contract for faith. The mayor gives the further frank statement in regard to the municipal plant:

"Our plant was built about the year 1901, and on account of its being a tion of the mucous surfaces. municipal matter the city did not get an up to date plant and is today suffering from having a plant that does not meet the requirements, and the cost of production is too high; consequently it does not pay the city it we take into consideration depreciation and the interest on our invest-

the cost would be $33 000

In 1898 Greenwood, S. C. Issued 5 per cen' bonds to the amoun! of $57. 358 for a water and light plant. The last report available shows that none Board of Election Supervisors of the bonds has been paid, but the generating plant has been shut down as it was found to be cheaper to buy current A contract has been made for ten years, at the end of which period the plant will in all probability catarrh, rheumatism, or any blood or be too antiquated for effective service | skin cisease, take Botanic Blood Balm so that it might as well be written off the books-but the interest on the bonds keeps right on Sentiment Not Enough.

The mere sentiment for ownership is not enough. It must be accompanied C. LEE GILLIS. Clerk. by the cold figures to demonstrate its fails. practical lity under a strictly business test Unfortunately the sentimentality of the case is too often induiged first and to the excusion of the necessary facts and figures - B'comington (III.)

The beauties of the English language ganization is this time interested in a paid. LEAMON G. TINGLE, are again evident in the case of that Lock Box 4, Pittsville, Md., western man who had skipped with the town funds and was described as "six feet tall and $10.000 short."-Ex-

> The city council of Pine Bluff, Ark., has rejected the municipal ownership scheme and has renewed the contract for lighting for five years.

Washington College Opens.

The one hundred and twenty-sixth session of Washington College began Tuesday with the largest enrollment of new students in its history. Marticulation examinations were held on Thursday and Friday of last week, and those who were admitted Tuesday were assigned to their proper classes. Normal Hall, the young ladies' department, 18 crowded, and nearly all of the rooms at the disposal of the male students are taken. During the past summer many improvements have been made to the buildings. Baths and lockers have been installed in the dormitories, and Middle Hall, heretofore used as recitation hall, has been remodeled and divided into 29 rooms-a bedroom and sitting-room for two students each The building has been painted and the rooms nicely papered and altogether the improvements make the institution second to none in the State for convenience and adaptability for study.

Beside The Gate Of Dreams.

An idle youth one Summer day Went wandering afield-

Nor East nor West on any quest That eye or thought revealed. But on and on through bloom and shine

And down by shady streams. Through lane and wood, until he stood Beside the Gate of Dreams.

What saw he there? Nay rather ask What saw he not and heard. Hath mind perceived? Hath heart received? Hath soul been deeply stirred By radiant things, by whisperings From better lands, it seems? All these he saw and heard in awe Beside the Gate of Dreams. What brought he back that Summerday From wandering afield?

Naught he can show or tell. I know Of things on earth revealed, But more than gold a million fold

And all the world esteems He holds the day he straved away Beside the Gate of Dreams. Clarence Ousley in UNCLE REMUS'S MAGAZINE for October.

The Anti-Bribery Proposal Of The Republicans.

In the last two issues of THE COURIER we have stated clearly our position in relation to the Central Committee in an open let - of a standing army? ter emphatically puts the issue up to the Democrats and it will be in-taken should have been taken by the Gas Company, the Isabella years ago, and there has been a street nuisance would have been growing and insistent demand abated months ago.

that the practice be stopped, so that it now becomes the clear and to see law and order maintained and upheld in the community that leaders of the two parties.

We are of course assuming that the Democratic Party will accept the offer which is now being made, and which is published in this issue of THE COURIER. If the proposal should not be accepted that the Democratic Party and only the Democrats will be solely responsible for any infraction of the law which will occur at the coming election, and they must den of the blame in the matter. The proposition which is made is clean and clear -cut and there must be either an acceptance or the party must acknowledge itself out of all sympathy with the move ment and opposed to the enforcement of law. The time for pretty speeches and beautifully coined phraseologies has passed, and absolute and binding action on the part of the State Central Com mittees, the candidates, and all district leaders and workers is absolutely demanded, with a positive guarantee that not one cent shall be spent at the coming election for corrupt purposes. The issue is fairly and squarely up to the Democrats. Let them accept it or reject it, and thus will the people of Wicomico know where the party stands upon this important issue.

The Reply Of The News.

We regret that the necessity of our continued presence in Court has made it utterly impossible to answer the extended comments of our brothers of The News upon last year our eight reasons set forth in THE COURIER last week why numbers the Republican ticket.

In law-and our friends have come over in our bailiwick to a considerable extent-we would upon such evidence respectfully legally sufficient evidence to entitle the plaintiffs ( The News ) to recover.

The replies fail in every material point to answer our allegations and we apprehend that the jury-(the Wicomico electorate) on election day will so declare by their House Friday, October 1st. verdict. We may, however, at some future time have something further to say with relation to certain of the propositions laid down by The News.

It has been they should heartily cooperate the belief of a great many people in in the present movement with the the county that he would take this action since the day he was nominated. Governor Jackson made known his withdrawal yesterday in the following

> Salisbury, Md., Sept. 27, 1907. To the Chairman and Members of the Democratic County Convention of Wicomico County:

DEAR SIRS: -Owing to the fact that the people will know of course I may be a candidate before the people of Maryland and Wicomico County in the primaries for the nomination of United States Senator, I deem it unwise to ask my friends in this county to vote for me twice the same day for different positions, therefore I most respectfully tender my resignation as the candidate for State Senator, which nomination you so kindly and generously bestowed upon me.

I am not unmindful of the high honor which this nomination carries with it, but under the circumstances I believe it but justice both to the party and myself to resign from the county ticket. I also recognize the fact that the party has much good material from which to select my successor. hope the Convention will accept my resignation with the full assurance of my hearty and active support not only to the gentleman selected to take my place, but for the entire Democratic ticket, and I take this occasion to call upon all the Democrats in the county to get actively into this campaign and elp us roll up an old time Democratic majority in Wicomico county.

With kind regards to you all, I am. Yours for Democratic success,

E. E. Jackson. A call has been sent out and the lelegates will reassemble at the Court House on Wednesday for the purpose of nominating a candidate for head of the Democratic County ticket, made vacant by the resignation of Ex-Governor Jackson.

MAGIC CURE IN A RIVER.

Ten Minutes In the Delaware Freed Van Etten of Rheumatism. The Delaware river, which has thrived on its reputation as a sure cure for rattlesnake bite to all who bathe in its waters back of the wheat distillery, now possesses a hole which OTHER FOWLS ARE INCLUDED is said to be a sure cure for rheumatism. The hole whose waters have worked this new magic is up back of Sparrowbush, two miles from Port Jervis, N. Y., as the crow flies and eight miles from the distillery in a dry country, says a Port Jervis special dispatch to the New York World. Alvah Van Etten, who has been pointed out as the pitiful example of rheumatism, is the Ponce de Leon of this wonderful fountain. Alvah had the rheumatism so bad his friends used to say he rattled when he walked and when he cried the tears ran down the back of his neck. Alvah, for all his troubles, is a great fisherman for eels. He has been constructing an eel weir in the river west of the Eddy

Lately he has been building two stone wall wings half a mile long and six feet high. Having caught all the rheumatism it was possible for a mortal to absorb, Alvah wasn't afraid of the wet, so he worked in the water up to his waist.

The other day he walked into the Delaware river, rattling as he has rattled for ten years. When he walked out his tread was springy, aches and pains were gone from his bones, and when he cried he cried for joy, just as normal beings do.

He was completely cured. It took just ten minutes of soaking in the water, and at the end of that time he could turn handsprings. No one knows just why it happened, but all of Sparrowbush has inspected Alvah and pronounced the cure perfect.

Walt Tisdell says the river is working, which is usual this time of year. and that the carbonic acid gas has done the trick.

Fred Wilkins says: "It's rattlesnake grease. A lot of rattlers started across the Delaware into Pennsylvania the other day near Mongaup. They got stuck in the moss at the shoal, and the heat killed them and tried out the caught it just as it was coming."

Jim Hayes says: "It's fle. Kerosene ile cures rheumatism. The ile oozes out of the Mahony ile wells in the rift, and Alvah soaked it up. Alvah wants to be mighty keerful about smoking or he'll ketch fire for some time to come.' Whatever the secret of it. Alvah is cured, and all the neighborhood is taking baths in the weir hole.

AUTOMATIC HERDING.

Ohio Farmer's Novel Way to Drive Cattle Along a Road.

In Rudolph, the garden of Portage county. O., the days of troublesome cattle driving are over, says a Ravenna (O.) correspondent of the Columbus Dispatch. A genius has solved the problem of bovine chasing, and, while his contrivance is of rude architecture. It does the business of automatic herding all right.

Sardis Loomis is the genius who braved the laughter of his neighbors. appearing on the highways with his queer contrivance, and he is again about to demonstrate the utility of his Invention by taking a herd of premium stock to the Portage county fair in the new war.

The affair is literally a fence on wheels, er a "bottomless wagon," as his neighbors call it. Driven inside the movable inclosure, everything from a calf to a two ton Ducham bull has to keep moving forward and must keep up with the horses ahead. They cannot turn back or display a contrary disposition by running off in some other direction from the way the driver wants them to go.

The farmers around about who at first laughed at Loomis' contrivance are now looking over their lumber for material with which to construct one I

Music and dancing are not pense is being horne by James T. usually the means adopted of keeping up enthusiasm and loyalty to the cause, yet the telegraphers have found that the plan works admirably. At the strikers' headquarters members of the Telegraphers' union with musical talent gather dally and provide music free of charge for dancing. The young women are a self appointed committee of the whole on enthusiasm and they devote their spare time to dancing with the young men so us to keep them in line. Their influence has had much to do with the peaceful manner in which the strike has so far been conducted.

Suddenly the countess' brown eves grew dreamy, and a faint blush stole into her cheek "Do you remember, Hero, when we were sitting here just a year ago? It was the day we thought he was coming to the house, and we ran off to keep him from seeing us. And we were just sitting here like this when Robert came along. And we never knew any more than just each other's name-Evelyne and Robert. And we laughed and said we'd meet here again some day, but he never came back. I guess he has forgotten."

A splendld example of the mechanical workings of the mind was offered in the office of one of the big telegraph offices the other night, says the New York Times Two operators were side by side, separated only by the glass partition running the width of the table. One had charge of a line over which news dispatches were received from certain sections of the south The other's territory embraced a part of the west. Business was dull, and the two operators, leaning back in their chairs, were discussing the news of the day when the sounder of the southern wire began to click. The operater exchanged the few necessary preliminaries, then began to typewrite the message. The man on the western wire listened idly at first; then his attention was riveted, as it was a news dispatch from his native town in the south, and the first words concerned an intimate friend. Just then his own wire got busy, and he was speedily immersed in a message from Cleveland. Both operators finished almost at the same time. The man with the western wire leaned over the partition and said

A continual gentle tapping will finally crack the shell of the nut all around; not in a line exactly on the circle perhaps, but pretty near it. Sometimes it cracks shell and meat of the nut, too, so that both can be lifted off together; sometimes it cracks out only a shell cap at the top, which is lifted off, and the cap of meat underneath is then cut out around with a knife. And then there you are with the white lined cocoanut cup to drink from.

Miss Taylor's Recital.

The presentation of "Lovey Mary' arranged and presented at the Masonic Temple Tuesday evening by Miss Jessie Rae Taylor, was a decided success. Miss Taylor proved herself to be an elocutionist of more than average ability and her character sketches were greatly appreciated by the large audience.

She was assisted by Mr. Warner Ham, a young violinist of Palatka, Florida, and his two numbers-Wagner's "March from Tannhauser" and Depret's "Sourire de Arvil" were ren-Mr. E. W. dent Harrison's administration and was Commander of the State Fishing Force during the administration of Governor Lloyd Lowndes.

He has been a life-long Republican and an active worker for the party's interest.

WILLIAM B. TILGHMAN. Although he is a young man, William B. Tilghman Jr., is peculiarly well fitted for the House of Delegates. His long association with his father, William B. Tilghman, founder of the Wm. B. Tilghman Company, combined with his own original astute business methods has given him an experience that renders him the equal, in ability, with the older Republicans in the county.

He was born in Salisbury in October, 1884 and is the son of the late William Beauchamp and Annie E. Bell Tilghman, both of Wicomico county. He attended the public schools of Salisbury and later studied for two years at the Randolph-Macon Academy at Bedford City, Virginia. He is also a graduate of the Eastman Business College, Poughkeepsie, New York. He received his early business training under his father in the latters office in this city. He is a director in the William B. Tilghman Company. The Tilghman Cypress Company, Turner Brothers Company and the W. J. Staton Company. He is secretary of the Wm. B. Tilghman Company and Vice-President of Turner Brothers Company. He also holds large interests in eight other concerns.
