Union Campmeeting August 4th. To 14th. List of Ministers And Tentholders.

The Union Methodist Protestant Campmeeting in Owen's Grove held by Rev. H. W. Johnson, pastor of Union Church began yesterday and will continue until Monday, August 14th. The following preachers will be present during the camp as per their date of assignment. First week, Revs. J. M. Holmes, C. E. Dryden, C. M. Compher and W. C. Stone; second week, F. W. Lewis, D. W. Austine, P. W. Crosby and J. L. Nichols. Rev. F. T. Little, D. D., president of the Maryland Annual Conference will be there on Thursday and Rev. T. H. Lewis, D. D., president of Western Maryland College will be there during the camp as will also other visiting members of the conference.

The confectionary and boarding tent are in the hands of Oscar T. Smith of this town and all may expect plenty to eat at his table. He is making ample provision to accommodate all who may go. He also has provided well for the patrons of the ice cream and confectionary. The music will be a special feature as usual of this camp. Rev. W. C. Stone, who has a fine reputation as a soloist will be in attendance during the camp and assist the choir. Much interest is being taken in the camp this season and a good time is expected, and also a large attendance. The many friends and admirers of Rev. J. M. Holmes can have the pleasure of hearing him twice on Sunday next and also during the week.

The following are the tentholders: O. T. Smith, Thos. H. Bennett, John Beach, S. J. Cooper, C. J. Mooney, Julia A. Ellis, Geo. L. Bennett, Joseph Elliott, Wm. J. Kenney, L. S. Knowles, Jas. W. DISFIGURED WITH ECZEMA

Under Physicians Five Months. Went from Bad to Worse.

CURED BY CUTICURA

Wonderful Change in One Night. In a Month Face Was Clean as Ever.

"I was troubled with eczema on the face for five months, during which time I was in the care of physicians. My face was in such a condition that I could not go out. It was going from bad to worse and I gave up all hope, when a friend of mine highly recommended Cuticura remedies. The first night after I washed my face with Cuticura Soap and used Cuticura Ointment and Cuticura Resolvent it changed wonderfully, and continuing the treatment it removed all scales and scabs. From that day I was able to go out, and in a month my face was as clean as ever."

THOMAS J. SOTH, 317 Stagg St., Brooklyn, N. Y.

THE AGONIZING

Itching and Burning of the Skin As in eczema; the frightful scaling, as in psoriasis; the loss of hair and crusting of scalp, as in scalded head; the facial disfigurement, as in pimples and ringworm; the awful suffering of infants, and anxiety of worried parents, as in milk crust, tetter and all rheum—all demand a remedy of almost superhuman virtues to successfully cope with them. That Cuticura Soap, Ointment and Resolvent are such stands proven beyond all doubt. The purity and sweetness, the power to afford immediate relief, the certainty of speedy and permanent cure, the absolute safety and great economy have made them the standard skin cures of the civilized world. Absolutely pure.

Sharptown News, Aug. 5th, 1905.

JOHN R. TWILLEY.

John R. Twilley.

The subject of this sketch was born at the Twilley homestead about three miles from Sharptown on the Salisbury road, in Sussex county, Delaware on August 28, 1846. His boyhood and early manhood were spent on the farm, but when he attained his majority, he left the farm and opened a mercantile business in Sharptown. In this he found work congenial to his ambition and his talent developed in the business, which proved to be his life work. He had an unbroken record of thirty eight years in the mercantile business with only slight intermissions occasioned by changes and improvements which he made. As a merchant he had a clear record of fair dealing and honesty of purpose, which was shown and evidenced by the many customers who gave him their trade regularly and whose beginning as customers began with his beginning business. He had a great many friends who were endeared to him by reason of the very pleasant business relations and transactions.

In 1875 he married Miss Hattie Riggin who died in 1895, leaving three children, who are left to mourn the loss of both father and mother. They are Vernon, Charles and Miss Hattie. This was a happy cheerful home until broken by the death of the wife and mother. Since her death the family has been kept together, by Miss Dollie Twilley, sister of Mr. Twilley. To his family Mr. Twilley was kind, indulgent and devoted. His highest ambition seemed to be the pleasure and comfort of his family and he leaves a record of unbroken fidelity to his family.

As a friend, he was true and obliging. He was always ready and willing to accommodate his friends. His kindness will long be remembered.

For more than a year he had been in declining health, though able to be up most of the time. He bore his affliction with great patience and resignation and as his strength and vitality ebbed out he still retained that quiet, patient disposition that characterized his life in health. He was a man of high moral character from youth up and stuck close to his business through all the years of his life. The end came as he had lived—calmly and quietly and very unexpectedly. He had been suffering more than usual it appeared on Friday July 28th but no one thought the end so near. He passed quietly out of this life as though he had fallen asleep. He will be greatly missed by his bereaved family and a host of friends who mourn the loss of one who will long be remembered. His remains were interred on Sunday afternoon in the Taylor Cemetery. After funeral services at the late residence by Revs. J. H. Wilson and H. W. D. Johnson. He was a member of the I. O. R. M. and was buried with the honors of the Idaho Tribe No. 128 of Sharptown of which he was a member assisted by members from Seaford, Bethel and Laurel tribes. The remains of his wife will be exhumed from the M. P. cemetery and re-interred in the Taylor cemetery beside those of her husband. The floral tributes, a vacant chair, wreathes and other designs, were very fine. The funeral was largely attended. He leaves besides his children a brother, E. W. Twilley, of Laurel, Del., and three sisters, Mrs. Mary Marshall, Mrs. M. Ellis, of Laurel, Del., and Miss Dollie Twilley, of this town.

A Card Of Thanks.

We take this method of thanking the people for their kindness and assistance on the occasion of the death of our father.

ROAD IMPROVEMENT SALE.

That the roads of Wicomico county need improving, has long been recognized, but only recently have the people of the county generally been aroused to the necessity of making permanent improvements. Now, however, the demand from all classes has become so strong that action cannot be much longer delayed. The Democratic party could not have made better selections in the men it chose as the nominees for County Commissioners. Outside of the declaration in its platform for better roads, the men nominated are those known to have very pronounced views on the question of better roads. Whether the macadamized roads as tried in the various counties throughout the State, be decided upon as meeting the requirements, or slag or some other material be found to suit the requirements of our county, the people can rest assured that, if they elect the men nominated on the Democratic ticket, steps of some kind will be taken to make our roads more passable.

WHERE CAROLINE STANDS.

In an interview with a reporter for The Sun relative to the action taken by the Caroline County Democratic Convention, Congressman Thos. H. Smith says, "Caroline county is the very stronghold of the suffrage amendment, and the failure to embody an endorsement of it in the county convention resolutions was not because of any objection to the amendment itself by any member of the convention or Democrat of Caroline county. Every loyal Democrat in the county, together with the great majority of independent intelligent citizens, regardless of former party affiliations, will heartily support and vote for the amendment at the coming election. They firmly believe that the best interests of the county and State demand the adoption of this constitutional amendment. The reason it was not made a part of the resolutions was because we are a modest and conservative people, and are satisfied to know and support a good thing when the opportunity offers, without any ostentatious flaunting of the red flag in the faces of people who are not always with us on party lines, but whom we know to be with us along the line of negro disfranchisement."

—After a thorough investigation of the plant of the Salisbury Light, Heat & Power Co. the board of County Commissioners decided to fix the assessment on the property of the company as follows: Land and water rights $7,000; buildings $6,000; total $13,000. Clerk was instructed to send certificate of assessment to the State Tax Commissioner. Besides the assessment on the real estate the Company is also taxed on its one hundred thousand dollars of stock issue, at the rate of $2.90 per share, making a total tax on the basis of about $44,000. They decided to make an official visit to the Alms House on Tuesday, August 5th, for the purpose of inspecting the property. On August 15th, they meet again.

—Miss Olive Mitchell gave a delightful strawdole to Hebron camp on Thursday evening. Although the start was delayed by the rain, the crowd reached the camp grounds at nine o'clock—supper on route. After a stay of about two hours the merry party started home having had a very pleasant time. Along were: Misses Lola and Elsie Smith, Olive Mitchell, May Powell and May and Alice Hill, Messrs. Wm. Fooks, George Hill, Thomas and Horace Mitchell and Harry Mook.

Death Of Mrs. Insley From Lightning Shock.

Mrs. James Polk Insley of Tyaskin district died Sunday afternoon from a severe shock received while at the supper table Saturday night. She was rendered unconscious and paralysis followed. Funeral services were held in the M. P. Church at Bivalve Tuesday. Mrs. Insley was 62 years old. A husband and six children survive her: Mr. Herman Insley, of Philadelphia, Messrs. Fred and Walter Insley, of Tyaskin, Mrs. Dayton McLain, of Salisbury, Mrs. Wm. Elliott, of Washington, D. C., and a daughter at Benning's, Md.

—Miss Louise Perry gave a garden party Thursday morning at 10.30 in honor of her guests, Misses Florence Kusche, of New York, Nellie Waller, of Princess Anne, and Helen Brady of Middletown, Del. Various selections were rendered throughout the morning, about one hundred guests being present. On Thursday night Miss Perry gave a cobweb party to the town visitors and their friends. The evening was spent in music and cards, refreshments being served afterwards.

—The delicate coloring and the fuzzy down of the juicy Maryland peach will not be so conspicuous this year in the Baltimore markets, say the commission men and the farmers who make the peach a specialty. Long stretches of devastated trees, they say, bear witness to this fact. Some attribute the scarcity of peaches to the late frosts in April which nipped young fruit. Others say the ruin can be blamed on the worms and scales that have of late years become so prolific in Maryland.

—On Wednesday evening Miss Jean Leonard gave a launch party to Green Hill in Mr. Miller's launch, in honor of her guest, Miss Ruth Street, of Fallston. After a delightful trip the party returned to the Leonard residence where refreshments were served. Those in the company were Misses Clara Tilghman, Mary Collier, Ruth Street, Jean Leonard, Lettie and Nellie Leathbury, Miss Kennerly and Mrs. A. F. Benjamin. Messrs. Oscar Grier, Walter Brewington, Percy Trussell, Frank Adams, Randolph Brewington and A. F. Benjamin.

—Worcester County School Commissioners have decided that the $4,500 appropriated by extra act of the legislature over the annual appropriation for public schools should be used in the erection of an additional school building at Pocomoke City, the second story of the building to be used as an assembly hall. The city council of Ocean City has granted a charter for the iron pier which has been projected for Ocean City for many years. It will begin at a point midway between the Atlantic Hotel and the Myers Cottage, which is now occupied as a restaurant by William McKew.

THE EX-MARRIED.

It appears, according to the replies given to the census enumerators and reported by them to Washington, that in 1900 there were only 51,538 persons in the United States divorced and not remarried. Of these there is a state of ex-marriage, 32,205 were women and 18,334 were men. Chicago leads the cities of the country in the number of ex-married with 2,468 women and 1,873 men. New York is next with 1,262 women and 784 men. Philadelphia is third, with 1,027 women and 745 men.

According to accepted estimates, the divorces annually granted in the United States number 50,000. This means 100,000 persons are released from wedlock. If the census figures are correct, ill-success in one matrimonial venture so little discourages that the total number of once married remaining single is equal only to a six months' divorce crop. We have thus most striking inferential confirmation.—New York Mail.

COAL CONSUMPTION.

England uses 32,000,000 tons a year for household purposes, 13,000,000 tons on her railroads, 53,000,000 tons in factories, 18,000,000 tons in mining processes, 28,000,000 tons in iron and steel industries, and 15,000,000 tons in gas works.

In a third of a century England has doubled her coal output. Germany has increased hers more than fourfold, while the United States has multiplied its production by ten. In 1870 the wholesale price of bituminous coal in the American market ranged from $6.25 to $7.25 per ton. Anthracite ranged from $5.25 to $6.25. Consumers of each may institute their own comparison with present rates.—New York Globe.

FRENZIED MAGAZINE WORK.

As a result of this "frenzied" magazine work, millions of people are getting wrong impressions. Hastily constructed articles, written by men who have only a superficial knowledge of actual conditions, and who do not care to tell the exact truth if they get it, all tend to make a form of magazine literature that has infinite capabilities for mischief. Unless the sensation-hunting editors curb themselves, yellow journalism will soon be an anemic institution beset by yellow magazines.—Denver Re.

JAPAN'S HELP TO RUSSIA.

If the Japanese can continue to win victories, it will be the means of giving to scores of millions of Russian people religious, civil, and political liberty, and this gain will be one which would fully justify those representing, not the Russian autocracy and bureaucracy, but the Russian people, in entertaining, when the war is over, the warmest feelings of friendliness, founded upon a recognition of services performed, for those who are now their Japanese enemies, since these later are doing the work which the reformers in Russia without aid could not have accomplished.—Boston Herald.

MAN'S STRATEGY.

Palmer's new suit fitted beautifully, but he was short $10 of the price. He needed the suit badly, but his tailor was decidedly disinclined to part with it till it was paid for. After lying at the all night revolving in his mind various schemes, old and new, to get possession of the coveted attire, Palmer evolved a brilliant idea. He put on a high collar two sizes too large for him, went to his tailor and tried on the coat again. Of course it did not fit around the collar, and would have to be let out. The next day he put on a collar a half size too small and tried on the coat again. The collar of the coat bulged out in the back as if it had been constructed for the neck of a pugilist.

"I can't wear that thing," declared Palmer. "It does not fit at all."
"No, it does not seem to," admitted the tailor.
"You've tinkered with it now till you have ruined it. I guess I don't want it."
"Well, I'll tell you what I'll do," proposed the tailor, who did not want a misfit left on his hands. "I'll knock off $5 on the price."
"Don't want a suit that doesn't fit," declared Palmer.
"Well, I'll make it $10."
"Make it $12.50 and I'll take it."
"All right, but I lose money on it at that."
Palmer paid another tailor $1 to have the collar altered, paid for his suit and had $1.50 with which to take his girl to a baseball game.—New York Press.

THAT CAT.

"I'm getting used to that cat now, Mrs. Emmons," remarked the house guest as he watched the Angora taking a leisurely stroll among the bric-a-brac on the mantel. "At first I thought she'd break things, but I see she never does."

"Miss Fanning, I wish somebody would tell me what's the mystery about that cat," pursued the guest, plaintively. "Every time I speak of her I feel a chill in the atmosphere."

Miss Fanning closed the sliding door impressively before she replied: "Mr. Gregor, we don't talk about that cat. She is supposed to be my fault, but she isn't. I was out in the country two years ago and there was a Mrs. Jordan who kept an Angora cat that she was willing to part with at $5 each. Though I can't bear cats myself it seemed such a bargain that I just mentioned it in a letter to my sister. She instantly wrote me to send her one. Do you call that my fault?"

"Then, when spring came, my sister and her husband were going to travel and didn't know what to do with Beauty. I simply mentioned that Mrs. Jordan boarded cats for $1 a month. I didn't urge it, but they thought it would be a fine plan. It wasn't my fault that they let the cat remain there all summer and then went to boarding in the fall so that they had no place for a cat. Well, the thing ran along all winter. In the spring, just after I had gone out in the country again, I got a letter from Mr. Emmons telling me to see Mrs. Jordan at once and arrange to sell that everlasting cat at any price. It seemed that Mrs. Jordan had just sent him a bill for Beauty's board—$18—and he was excited. He said life was expensive enough without running a boarding-house for cats, and so on—all in a tone, too, as if I were responsible for the whole thing!

"I went straight over to Mrs. Jordan and there, if you'll believe it, was Beauty with six little brand-new kittens. Mrs. Jordan insisted that the owner of the mother was responsible for the support of the family. You ought to have seen the letter I got back from Mr. Emmons when I told him! He was wild. The gist of it was that I was to give all those cats away as quick as I could.

"For one whole week I went from house to house trying to present cats to people. It was a time of sudden showers, remember, so that on three different occasions while I was out giving away cats I was caught in the rain and spoiled everything I had on. It's one thing to have over an Angora cat as if it were your heart's desire, and it's another to take it into the family—I found that out. At first people would be delighted with the idea, but by the time I got there with the cat almost invariably they had changed their minds about having it. I believe it was the hardest week's work I ever did, but by Saturday night I had given away every one of the kittens and the mother cat, too.

"I was just about to write a glowing account of my success to Mr. Emmons when I got a telegram from him telling me to send two kittens and the mother cat to his office immediately. He had just discovered, I found afterward, that the wife of a man he was trying to interest in a big deal was crazy over Angora cats, and he thought it would be a good thing to make her a present. In the same hour with that message came a telegram from my sister, who was visiting Claribel, asking me to send all the cats down there at once. Claribel wanted them.

"Well, I've always been considered meek and mild, but I took my pen and told them that I had spent one whole week placing cats and that, as far as I was concerned, they would have to stay placed! I never got a word back. I came home after awhile, but those cats were never mentioned by any of us. Then, just as we were beginning to forget about it and treat each other naturally again, an expressman drove up one day and deposited Beauty with a note from her owner saying that, as they were about to move, she was going to return our valuable cat with many thanks.

"I expected the thing would be talked out soon but it wasn't. That cat came and here it stays, like an unmentioned, walking sp. etc. She had simply spoiled our house. Isn't it awful?"

The visitor looked his sympathy. "But surely you would have no trouble giving her away," he protested. "Anybody with sense would jump at getting a cat like that for nothing."

Miss Fanning dropped her embroidery and clasped her hands. "Oh, Mr. Gregor, would you?" she entreated.

"Well, really—that is—I haven't any suitable place for a cat, you know," was the halting response.—Chicago News.

JOLLY JOKES.

WHAT OF THE WOODEN INDIAN?
 The years, the swiftly passing years.
 Bring changes that we scarcely see;
 The child becomes a man, all me!
 The downy softness disappears
 From where his cheeks were wet with tears.
 Put yester morn, it seems, and we
 That lately gambled carelessly
 Have grizzled locks above our ears.

So, as we change, the all too brief
 And fleeting years leave little more Than change to mark what was before.

Where is the wooden Indian child
 That used to hold Virginia leaf
 In front of each tobacco store?
 —Chicago Record-Herald.

TOO GOOD.
 Tramp—My wife was spoilt by my wife's cooking.
 Lady—Was it so very bad?
 Tramp—No, mum, it was good. So good that my friends ate me out of house and home.—Jester.

Summer Reading Guide.
 The following carefully selected list of books suitable for summer reading is confidently recommended as the coolest thus far offered. Take no other.

Fiction—"The Snow Image," by Nathaniel Hawthorne; "The Frozen Deep," by Wilkie Collins; "Snowbound at Eagle's," by Bret Harte; "Snowflakes and Sunbeams," by R. M. Ballantyne.

Poetry—"Snowbound: A Winter Idyll," by John G. Whittier; "Mint Juleps I Have Known," by Henry Watters.

Scientific and General—"The Cause of an Ice Age," by R. Ball; "How the Railroad Came," by Fr. Lynce; "Farthest North," by Fridtjof Nansen; "Greenland Icefields and Life in the North Atlantic," by G. Upham;—B. L. Taylor, in Puck.

A Distinction of Terms.
 No orator," said the astetic Boston delegate with the petrified jaw, "should so lose himself amid the 'agaries' of his own ratiocinations as to obscure the trend of his remarks to his audience. He should either elucidate or preserve silence."

"Right you are, stranger, right you are," agreed the Kansas delegate in the duster, with the straw in his mouth. "When you've chewed your capsize, spit it out or swallow it."

And when the astetic delegate received his signed articles of agreement.—Cincinnati Commercial-Tribune.

A Postmortem Feat.
 "You are not in it with me," said the Nightingale, with a superior air. "You can't touch a high note at all."

"No!" replied the Bird of Paradise. "Why, even when I'm dead and embalmed on a bonnet, I'll come pretty near touching a $50 note all right!"—Philadelphia Press.

Pretty Blue Prospect.
 "Are you so long that men will build a monument to you when you die?" asked the moralist.

"I hope not," replied the man who knew art when he saw it. "Unless they are going to get some new monument builders in this country."—Chicago Record-Herald.

For over a third of a century Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery has sold more largely than any other blood purifier or stomach tonic.

Bigger sales today than ever before. Is that not the true test? Cures other ailments, such as skin eruptions, pimples, and other eruptions that mar and sord the skin. Pure blood is essential to good health. The weak, run-down, debilitated condition which so many people experience is commonly the effect of impure blood. Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery not only cleanses the blood of impurities, but it increases the activity of the blood-making glands, and it enriches the body with an abundant supply of pure, rich blood.

No matter how powerful the intellect or the resources of intellectual power, it must be backed up by physical force. Every day the youth or man must manufacture a pint of rich, arterial blood, that is pure, stimulating to the brain, and that can rebuild the tissues that were destroyed in yesterday's work.

Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery

FOLEY'S KIDNEY CURE

HOW TO FIND OUT.
 It is the function of the kidneys to filter and purify the blood which is constantly passing through them.

When the kidneys are out of order the other organs are affected immediately and you may have symptoms of heart trouble, stomach and liver trouble, and other ailments, which are all owing to the kidneys being weak and out of order.

If you are sick Foley's Kidney Cure will strengthen and build up the worn out tissues of the kidneys so they will act properly and the symptoms of weakness, heart, stomach and liver trouble will disappear and you will be restored to perfect health.

New to Tell If You Have Kidney Trouble.
 You can easily determine if your kidneys are out of order by setting aside for 24 hours a bottle of the urine passed upon arising. If upon examination it is cloudy or milky or has a brick-dust sediment or small particles float about in it, your kidneys are diseased and Foley's Kidney Cure should be taken at once.

Foley's Kidney Cure is pleasant to take and acts directly upon the parts affected and you begin to feel better at once.

It corrects slight disorders in a few days and it has cured many obstinate cases after other treatment had failed.

Doctors Said He Would Not Live.
 Peter Frey, of Woodruff, Pa., writes: "After doctoring for two years with the best physicians in Waynesburg, and still getting worse, the doctors advised me if I had any business to attend to I had better attend to it at once, as I could not possibly live another month, as there was no cure for me. Foley's Kidney Cure was recommended to me by a friend, and I immediately sent my son to the store for it and after taking three bottles I began to get better and continued to improve until I was entirely well."

Easy Pill
 Easy to take and easy to get is that famous little pill DeWitt's Little Early Risers. This is due to the fact that they tonic the liver instead of purging it. They never gripe nor sicken, not even the most delicate lady, and yet they are so certain in results that no one who uses them is disappointed. They cure torpid liver, constipation, biliousness, jaundice, headache, malaria and ward off pneumonia and fevers.

TO BOOM PERSIAN TRADE.

Intent of Gen. Morteza Khan, Envoy Extraordinary.

General Morteza Khan, envoy extraordinary and minister plenipotentiary from Persia to the United States. The new minister succeeds General Isaac Khan, who was promoted to the Belgian embassy.

Khan, who is wealthy and lives in Terheran, is enthusiastic on the subject of increasing the trade between this country and Persia. He declares that there are articles manufactured in this country which could find a ready market in Persia, and at the same time Persia exports many things which would be welcome in the United States.

He was met by the chief secretary of the Persian embassy, Newton Khan, Harat Mirkestan, Persian consul at New York; H. Kelesian, A. Z. M. Rayajlan, and Herant Kiroci. Through an interpreter the general said:

"The feeling in Persia for the United States is good, and we look on her as a great and powerful nation with whom we desire an increase of trade. In Persia it is felt that the friendship of this country for our own is sincere and that she, unlike some other countries, does not cast covetous eyes on our land. We want to see opened up between the two countries a great trade. Every year we send to this country several million dollars' worth of rugs and carpets, but outside of this there is but little export. Persia is a great and growing country. Our export trade is growing, and at the same time the demand for imported goods is on the increase.

"Most of our demands are supplied by Russia and England. Now, with our growth there is a greater demand, and for goods which this country could supply. So we desire to see better trade relations between the two countries. The wares, art works, and fabrics are practically unknown in this country. It is the desire of Gen. Morteza Khan, through the Persian consuls, to make known the different articles which Persia can supply, and so create demands and divert some of the trade which has been going to other countries. At the same time we want Persia to know more of American goods and gain an appreciation of their merit and worth."

The new minister is a bachelor and comes of a noble line. His father, the late Hadji Mirza Dejadrad Khan, was the first to introduce European ideas into the empire. He was also the owner of the first newspaper published there. Gen. Morteza has been for years in the Persian diplomatic service.

The Mexican Navy.

In these strenuous days, when the American navy is advancing by leaps and bounds towards the head of the list of the navies of the world, it is interesting to note the progress that is being made along naval lines by the sister republic of Mexico.

A. L. Roy, the United States consul at Durango, in a recent report to this government, says:

Recently two modern gunboats were added to the fleet, which for the present serves Mexico as a navy. These gunboats were built in the United States, at Elizabethtown, N. J., and two similar gunboats are now in process of construction at Genoa, Italy. Mexico has so far not acquired men-of-war, though she has in recent years devoted some attention to fortifying her coasts. Her fleet of gunboats is designed, however, principally for purposes of patrol along her coasts, and to carry small bodies of troops quickly to those regions in the northern provinces of Sonora and in the southernmost territories of the republic, where uncivilized tribes still, from time to time, create disturbances.

According to an article recently printed in the Mexican Herald of Mexico City—the Mexican navy at present consists of four small boats in the Gulf of Mexico and two in the Pacific, besides small patrol boats in southern waters. The Democratic, the first boat bought by Mexico, of 450 tons displacement, is on the Pacific coast, and with her is the Oaxaca, an old sloop-rigged boat of steel about 100 tons, but of only seven knots speed.

The two gunboats bought in the United States named the Vera Cruz and the Tepic, are in the Gulf; they have 200 hulls, are 200 feet long, displacement, have shown a speed of 20 knots, and have two four-inch guns each. The Zaragosa and Yucatan, 1,225 and 1,650 tons, respectively, the former having six 4.8-inch Canet guns, are also in the Gulf, and are used as training ships for the naval school, which was established at Vera Cruz in 1879.

The Bravo and Morelos, being built in Italy, will displace 1,200 tons. There are sixty-five cadets at Vera Cruz, also an arsenal and small floating dry-dock. There is a small wooden dock at Guaymas on the Gulf of California—Washington Star.

Chinese on American Education.

This is the opinion of a highly educated Chinese official held of educational standards:

"The schoolhouse and college in America, where the rising generation ought to be taught and trained in human conduct and manners, have now become mere Smithsonian workshops, where the pupils are taught to make money, or, as it is called, how to get on, by learning the coarse jugglery of the hand called 'modern mechanical arts,' or the fine jugglery of the head, called 'law and theology.' In many American universities dentistry and chiropody, or the science of toenail peeling, are put on the same level with Plato and Virgil."—Prof. J. W. Jenks.

When He Has To.

Doesn't Spomer ever buy a drink?" "Oh, yes, upon occasions." "What occasions?" "Upon occasions when he's alone and there's no one else to buy for him."—Philadelphia Ledger.

It Disagreed With Her.

"I told you it wouldn't do to invite Willie's teacher to dinner as long as I have to do my own cooking." "Why, what happened?" "She whipped Willie this morning."—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Menentuous.

"I proposed to that girl by letter." "Did she accept you?" "Yes, and her letter of acceptance was almost as long as if she was running for president."

NOTES IN GOOD FORM.

Those of Invitation, Congratulation or Condolence Brief and Courteous.

A common error in note writing is to try to say too much. The word itself implies shortness, and the thing to be written must be concise.

Whether it is an invitation to be given or refused, a note of condolence or congratulation, keep to the main point and then finish it.

For instance, if an invitation is to be given a note may read:—

My Dear Miss So-and-So:—Will you lunch with me most informally on Tuesday, January the twenty-first, at one-thirty, when I shall have a few other friends? Cordially, JANET SMITH.

January the tenth.

"Cordially," or "Most cordially," are the two most formal ways of signing oneself to a social equal. "Sincerely" denotes an older acquaintance, and "Faithfully," "Devotedly," and "Affectionately" are used to intimate friends. "Yours truly" is distinctively a business form, and should never be used with social matters.

Everything in a note must be written out. That is to say that not even the day of the month should be put in figures, nor the hour at which one is expected. Abbreviation, too, is bad form, so that the month of the year should be written in full. If the invitation is to a married woman, and is for dinner instead of luncheon, the form of the note may be the same, but the husband's name follows the "you."

The acceptance should be equally brief; indeed a safe rule is always to answer in the way it was given.

A formal answer to an invitation might read:—

My Dear Miss Smith:—It will give me the greatest pleasure to lunch with you on Tuesday, January the twenty-first, at half-after one, and to meet your other friends. Most cordially, MARY SO AND SO.

January the eleventh.

Or, if the invitation is to be refused, it can be done by writing:—

My Dear Miss Smith:—Unfortunately I am unable to accept your attractive invitation for Tuesday, the twenty-first, as a previous engagement prevents my being with you at the time. It was charming of you to think of me. Cordially, MARY SO AND SO.

January the twelfth.

In refusing an invitation it is a gracious thing to add a sentence of appreciation, as Miss So and So does in saying, "It was charming of you to think of me," for it softens any curtness or brusqueness of refusal.

In replying to an invitation always in your note repeat the hour, day and date given, so that there shall be no mistake in the time.

In notes of congratulation the same brief form may be observed. If an engagement has been announced one may write:—

Dear Miss Brown:—I cannot let the announcement of your engagement go by without sending most sincere felicitations to Mr. Smith on the good fortune that is his, and to you in your great happiness. May all the good things of life be ever yours. Cordially, LOUISE MAY.

March the fifteenth.

Answer goes like this:—

Thank you so much for your congratulations and good wishes on my engagement. Mr. Smith and I are of course very happy, and the good wishes of our friends aid. We both hope to see you before long. Cordially, FRANCES BROWN.

March the twentieth.

The birth of the first baby is such an important event in a family that acknowledging the news by a note is a graceful thing to do. It is easily done by writing:—

Dear Mrs. Johnson:—The news of the advent of a son and heir has just reached me, and I hasten to send a line of congratulations to the proud mother and father. Believe me I rejoice with you, and shall hope to see you and the baby when you are able. Cordially, ANNA GREEN.

January the second.

And Mrs. Johnson may later reply:—

My Dear Mrs. Green:—The cordial greetings of our friends to the new baby is an added happiness at this time, and both Mr. Johnson and myself are delighted. The baby grows stronger daily, and before long he and I will be able to see our friends. Cordially, MARY JOHNSON.

June the twenty-third.

A note of condolence should always follow the news of a death in the family of a friend, and that note above all others should be brief. One appreciates the thought, but does not wish her feelings to be harrowed, a distinction which is very broad. Something like this is good form:—

Dear Mrs. Blake:—You are so in my thoughts in your great sorrow that I cannot refrain from expressing sincere sympathy in the loss that has befallen. Believe me, my heart goes out to you, and I wish it were in my power to aid. Sincerely, LOUISE WHITE.

April twenty-third.

Later Mrs. Blake may write:—

My Dear Mrs. White:—The sympathy of our friends in our great sorrow is kind, and believe me, we appreciate it. If anything could help it would be that. Sincerely, ELIZABETH BLAKE.

April thirtieth.

It is equally good form, and much more simple to take a visiting card and write across the top the words "Sincere condolences."

Sure Way.

The meeting of the Suffrage club was on in earnest. "How can we keep man at a distance?" screamed the woman in the derby hat. "By wearing crystalline," responded the one in the raglan.

WHY IS IT?

You can buy horses, mares and mules at King's for less money than elsewhere. The reason is, he sells more horses than all the dealers in Baltimore combined. Another reason is, while our horse and mule business is the largest of any in Baltimore City, (established seventy years ago and constantly increasing), we are the only branch of this immense business. We carry in stock 100 vehicles of every kind, of which a large selection is suitable for country use, at lowest factory prices. The final reason is, we are the largest combined horse and mule dealer, wagon and harness manufacturer in the world.

HORTICULTURISTS OUT

On Rich Chesapeake Territory, Guests Of General Seth, Who Feeds Them With Table Delicacies. Farm Scenes and History.

Gen. Joseph B. Seth, of Easton, Wednesday entertained a large delegation of members of the Maryland State Horticultural Society at Claiborne. The subject of the profit to farmers in sending only the best grades of farm products to market occupied a great portion of the time of the members who came. Two commission men became interested in the talk and gave their views, declaring too many farmers were indifferent in regard to selecting and sorting farm products, which caused low prices, and then the commission men were blamed. It was the consensus of opinion that it paid well to carefully sort or grade all fruits and farm products and never send a poor quality of products to market.

Bountiful Luncheon.

Two long tables were set in the pavilion and a bounteous repast was spread, which included hot fried chicken and deviled crabs, oysters, cold meats, hot coffee, etc. An overabundance of watermelons, cantaloupes, peaches and plums topped off the enjoyable dinner. Shortly after one o'clock the rain ceased and sunshine dispelled all gloom. Soon the guests were en route by omnibus and naphtha launches to Rich Neck Manor, the 450-acre plantation owned by General Seth. The mansion is three quarters of a mile from the boat landing, but by water nearly a five mile course has to be gone over. There are over seven miles of shore line on the farm. An unusually favorable growing season has brightened up all verdure with an early June freshness. The immense corn fields have a most remarkable ear development, some stalks having as many as four ears, indicating a prospective harvest greatly beyond the average.

The old Colonial mansion, brick, with its massive proportions, 22 rooms, and thick walls, 24 inches, was an object of unusual interest. The shore, with its numerous coves, bays and landings lined with trees, and the wealth of large bloom of hibiscus, both white and pink and tangle of wild morning glories, rushes, etc., is picturesque beyond description. The land of the plantation joins the five acres General Seth gave the railroad company at the boat landing and the whole acreage presents a picture of intelligent, thrifty farming seldom excelled anywhere. The land intended for wheat next year has already been plowed.

Graveyard Literature.

Near the Colonial barn is an old stone walled-in graveyard, containing some gravestones that were viewed with interest. One is over the remains of "Capt. James Murphy, died 1807, who was justice of the county from 1806 to the time of his death. Another, Matthew Tillman Ward, member of Governor's Council 1716 to 1740.

Matthew Tillman, president of Assembly, delegate to Continental Congress, president of first constitutional convention 1776, chairman of committee of safety of Eastern Shore, died in 1790.

Matthew Tillman's wife's tombstone contains the following dedication by her husband:

This was the second partner of my bed, With whom a long and happy life I've led. Not without children to assist in years, Yet free from parent's cares and parent's fears In love and friendship all our years were spent.

In moderate wealth and free from all content: Our pious souls with pious thoughts inspired, To worship God, profit mankind, Religious laws and customs to pursue, Not slighting old ones, nor too fond of new, But choosing such as since they first began But served ye praising God. Common good of man.

Among those entertained were Prof. J. B. S. Norton, Thomas H. Spence, A. B. Gaban, Agricultural College Park; Orlando Harrison, H. Long Harrison and G. Gale Harrison, Berlin; George O. Brown, Parkville; N. F. Flitton; George Talbot, A. W. Wallace, Baltimore; W. F. Allen, Salisbury; H. C. Dorsey, Mutual; Arthur G. Hathaway, J. Frank Turner, A. G. Wilson, W. Oscar Collier and E. J. Joseph Sanderson, Milwaukee, Wis.; R. C. and L. P. Slingluff, New Windsor.

Among the ladies present were Mrs. W. F. Allen, Salisbury; Mrs. J. B. Seth, Easton; Miss Viola Norton, College Park and Miss Lizzie Adams, Salisbury.

Persons knowing of lost children not in school are earnestly requested to put the parents in communication with us. Chas. W. Ely, Principal, Frederick, Md.

NEWPORT NEWS.

Fashionable Life Outdoors: Tennis: Yachting: Driving: Volaries Of Bathing And Golf At Narragansett Pier: Evening Dress: es: Coiffures.

Fashionable life is now in full swing, and gaiety of all sorts keep the sojourners at this beautiful summer capital busy. Fashions worn by the elect at Newport set the modes for general autumn wear. Not only are the designs seen now in any Summer fabrics and coalitions, copied in more substantial materials by the purveyors of smart styles, but the cool days that frequently come in August in this fortunate spot, and the cool evenings that almost invariably bring out French creations in materials that will be the highest fashion during the coming season. Henriettas are making their appearance in long wraps for driving or evening wear, and in dainty cape suits for early fall apparel.

Garb For Auto-Tours.

For wear on the Auto-cart here is an unusual variety of fabrics and colors, but whatever style is chosen it is essential that the material be dust proof and water-proof if the wear is to be satisfactory and the smart, new look of the garment is to be retained. Cravattes of all kinds are the preferred choice for auto-costumes and as the cravatte is a process applied to all sorts of fabrics one can indulge in silk, mohair, broadcloth or serge and be proof against dust or rain.

Bathing, Tennis And Golf.

Tennis is the favorite sport at Newport but the younger set frequently go down to the "Pier" at Narragansett is termed, for a dip in the sea, and then also golf is a fashionable amusement. Newport is more stately, but the Pier at the bathing hour is a joy to the beholder. Pretty women in well cut costumes of materials that neither cling nor stand out stiffly—water-proofed silk in many cases. Men well built and bronzed becomingly—children picturesque and happy, great tumbling waves, wide beach and blue sky combine to make a fascinating picture that lingers in the memory.

MORE ROOM REQUIRED

To Accommodate The Proper Operations Of The Hospital. Home For Nurses Would Clear The Situation.

Five thousand dollars is needed now at the Peninsula General Hospital for enlargement. Mr. Thos. H. Mitchell submitted a plan which would cost about this sum to the Board of Directors at their Friday meeting. It is proposed to use the present quarters of the nurses for patients and erect an additional building to be used for the Nurses Home. This is needed expansion and with the great work being done by the Institution the proposition should meet with favorable consideration.

The patients at the Hospital are averaging about thirty and the demand for more room is almost imperative. The wards are not crowded as they have been, but they are well filled and the demand for private rooms is nearly always up to the supply. The Directors have also determined that it is important to have a maternity ward in the Hospital. The third floor of the building which would make admirable maternity ward, is at present occupied as the sleeping quarters for the graduate and pupil nurses, and it is to get the rooms on this floor that the new house will have to be erected.

The purpose is to build a house on the hill West of the present building, which will contain about eight or ten rooms, with accommodations for at least fifteen nurses. The training school at the Hospital is doing good work, but the trouble is the cramped quarters in the present building will not permit the admission of a sufficient number of pupil nurses from which to draw the supply needed for the Hospital. This school can be made of great advantage to a large number of young women on the Peninsula who want to study and train as nurses.

—Mr. G. W. Gibbons & Son, of Baltimore and Washington, are in Salisbury, working on a Post Office Blotter for this section. The blotter is a very neat affair, containing matter of general information as to postal rates and cards of the leading business houses and industries. The distribution is free.

SCHEDULE OF SALARIES

Of Wicomico Teachers—Assistant Teachers Of The Various Schools.

The Wicomico County School Board has arranged the schedule of salaries for principals of district schools and assistants as follows:

"The holder of a Second Grade Certificate, whether an assistant or principal of a school, whose term average is 15 or more, if it be her first or second year in teaching, shall receive $88.33; a term of two and one-half months; if it be her third year or more in teaching, $85 a term. If the average attendance of either is less than 15 but is 13 or more, the salary shall be $75 a term; and if the average attendance is less than 13 but is 10 or more, the salary shall be $65 a term. "The holder of a First Grade Certificate, whether an assistant or principal of a district school, whose term average is 15 or more, if it be her first or second year in teaching, unless she be a professional graduate, shall receive $90 a term; if it be her third year or more in teaching, or if she be a professional graduate, she shall receive $95 a term. If the average attendance of either is less than 15 but is 13 or more, the salary shall be $80 a term; and if the average attendance is less than 13 but is 10 or more, the salary shall be $70 a term."

Salaries Of Principals Of Grammar And Graded Schools.

"The trustees of grammar or graded schools having more than one teacher, should make their appointments of principals from persons holding a first grade certificate. Any principal of such school, holding a first grade certificate, in whose room there is an average attendance of 15 or more shall receive as a basis salary, if it be her first year in teaching $100 a term; if the average attendance is less than 15 but is 13 or more, the basis salary shall be $95 a term; if the average attendance is less than 13 but is 10 or more, the basis salary shall be $90 a term. If it be her second year in teaching, add $10, or if it be her third year or more in teaching add $20 to the above figures. For each assistant add $5 each term to the above. "If the holder of a second grade certificate is selected principal of such a school and the contract is approved, the School Board will fix the salary. When teachers have attended a Summer School approved by the County Superintendent $5 a term for the year immediately following such attendance may be added to the term salary above scheduled if the summer school attended is within this State, and $10 a term if without the State."

The following have been appointed assistant teachers in the county:
Riverton—Miss Myra Bennett.
Mardela—Miss Mary Brattant.
Athol—Miss Blanche Elzey.
Quantico—Miss Jennie L. Bounds.
Hebron—Miss Mary C. Toadvice and Miss Daisy M. Elliott.

Outdoor Life Trying.

There is no doubt that all this outdoor life, however delightful, is trying to the complexion and the thickened skin and wrinkles that result from the exposure to hot summer suns, wind and dust are woeful souvenirs of happy days. A little care and attention to the proper treatment of the skin will prevent these ill effects, and make for both comfort and beauty. On returning after such exposures, bathe the face in water as hot as can be borne; dry with a soft towel, dabbing not rubbing the skin, then apply Ponds Extract freely, letting it dry in, and renew the application several times where the burn is deep and the skin irritated. Dust on a little good powder and not only will you be at once made comfortable, but all future evil results will be avoided. The use of a good face cream before going out helps to prevent sunburn.

Evening Entertainments.

are as fascinating in their way as the outdoor sports. The flash of costly jewelry, the froth of elegant silks or of lace over silk gives an unwonted brilliancy to assemblages of the beau monde. Princess dresses are now assumed by those possessing fine figures, and one of Renaissance lace, with narrow white satin ribbon run through the interstices of the lace of the skirt, and in tiny bows on the waist and sleeves, was no unique as to attract attention even here.

Low Coiffures.

are now quite as fashionable as high ones, and of course jeweled combs add to the general effect. The old-fashioned band bracelet has been revived, and safe as any jewelry of all kinds is more worn than has been the case for many seasons past. Lucy Carter.

Death Of Mrs. Venables.

Mrs. Nancy Venables, wife of Mr. William Venables died at her home in Mardela Sunday afternoon at the advanced age of seventy six years. She was a good Christian woman and had been a consistent member of the M. E. Church for sixty years. Funeral services were held Monday afternoon conducted by Rev. W. F. Atkinson, assisted by Rev. P. P. Truitt. Her remains were interred in cemetery. She leaves besides her husband, nine children, thirty two grand children, and five great grand children. She had been married fifty eight years.

Niagara Falls Excursions.

The Pennsylvania Railroad Company has selected the following dates for its popular ten day excursions to Niagara Falls from Philadelphia, Baltimore and Washington: July 7 and 21, August 11 and 25, September 8 and 22 and October 18.

The excursions from Philadelphia will be run by two routes. Those on July 7 and 21, August 11 and 25, September 8 and 22, going via Harrisburg and the picturesque valley of the Susquehanna, special train leaving Philadelphia at 8.10 a. m., excursion of October 13 running via Trenton, Manunka Chunk, and the Delaware Valley, leaving Philadelphia on special train at 8.07 a. m.

Excursion tickets, good for return passage on any regular train, exclusive of limited express trains, within ten days, will be sold at $10.00 from Philadelphia and all points on the Delaware Division; $1.25 from Atlantic City; $9.00 from Lancaster; and at proportionate rates from other points, including Trenton, Bordentown, Mt. Holly, Cape May, Salem, Wilmington, West Chester, Reading and principal intermediate stations. A stop over will be allowed at Buffalo within the limit of ticket returning.

The special trains of Pullman parlor cars and day coaches will be run with each excursion running through to Niagara Falls. An extra charge will be made for parlor car seats.

An experienced tour agent and chaperon will accompany each excursion. For descriptive pamphlet, time of connecting trains, and further information apply to nearest ticket agent, or address Geo. W. Boyd, General Passenger Agent, Broad Street Station, Philadelphia.

CUTICURA SOAP

The World's Greatest Skin Soap.The World's Sweetest Toilet Soap.Sale Greater than the World's Product of Other Skin SoapsSold Wherever Civilization Has Penetrated.

Millions of the world's best people use Cuticura Soap, assisted by Cuticura Ointment, the great skin cure, for preserving, purifying, and beautifying the skin, for cleansing the scalp of crusts, scales, and dandruff, and the stopping of falling hair, for softening, whitening, and soothing red, rough, and sore hands, for baby rashes, itching, and chafings, for annoying irritations, or too free or offensive perspiration, for ulcerative weaknesses, and many sanative, antiseptic purposes which readily suggest themselves to women, especially mothers, as well as for all the purposes of the toilet, bath, and nursery.

Cuticura Soap combines delicate emollient properties derived from Cuticura, the great skin cure, with the most refreshing of flower odors. No other medicated soap ever compounded is to be compared with it for preserving, purifying, and beautifying the skin, scalp, hair, and hands. No other foreign or domestic toilet soap, however expensive, is to be compared with it for all the purposes of the toilet, bath, and nursery. Thus it combines in one soap at one price the most effective skin and complexion soap, and the purest and sweetest toilet, bath, and nursery soap.

Resolutions Of Respect.

Idaho Tribe No. 128 I. O. R. M., Sharptown, Md.

Resolved: That we express our affectionate tribute to the memory and our profound sense of loss at the death of our beloved Brother, John Nelson on June 6, 1905. Bro. Nelson was a bright and shining light in our tribe. His fidelity to duty, his sterling integrity, his masterly arguments on important questions in Council matters and the zeal shown by him for the welfare of order and each brother Red Man individually during his long term of office as financial secretary, makes his loss felt keenly by every brother of his tribe.

Resolved: That we herewith extend our heartfelt sympathy to his loved wife and children whom God in his infinite wisdom has seen fit to bereave by taking from them their natural protector, a loving husband and a kind father, a faithful friend.

Forcible Facts.

One-sixth of the deaths from disease are due to consumption. Ninety-eight per cent. of all those who have used Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery for "weak lungs," have been perfectly and permanently cured. Cornelius McGawley, of Leechburg, Armstrong Co., Pa., had in all eighty-one hemorrhages. He said: "My doctor did all he could for me but could not stop the hemorrhages, and all gave me up to die with consumption." What doctors could not do "Golden Medical Discovery" did. It stopped the hemorrhages and cured their cause. This is one case out of thousands. Investigate the facts.

Free. Dr. Pierce's great work, The People's Common Sense Medical Adviser is sent free on receipt of stamps to pay cost of mailing only. Send 21 one-cent stamps for paper covered book, or 31 stamps for cloth binding. Address Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y.

Resolved: That we express our affectionate tribute to the memory of our beloved brother, John R. Twilley and our profound sense of loss at his death July 28, 1905. Bro. Twilley has for years been a faithful Redman. While his duties as a merchant of this town have necessarily kept him from active participation in the work of the order, nevertheless his influence for good was manifest. His upright honorable life, free from contaminating influences leaves us an example worthy of emulation.

also convincing proof that the kidneys and bladder are out of order.

There is comfort in the knowledge so often expressed, that Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, the great kidney remedy, fulfills every wish in curing rheumatism, pain in the back, kidneys, liver, bladder and every part of the urinary passage. It corrects inability to hold water and scalding pain in passing it, or bad effects following use of liquor, wine or beer, and overcomes that unpleasant necessity of being compelled to go often during the day, and to get up many times during the night. The mild and extraordinary effect of Swamp-Root is soon realized. It stands the highest for its wonderful cures of the most distressing cases. If you need a medicine you should have the best. Sold by druggists in fifty-cent and one-dollar sizes. You may have a sample bottle and a book that tells all about it, both sent free by mail. Address Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y. CALIFORNIA WILD GESE.

Men Employed to Keep Them Moving—Not Allowed to Shoot.

Wild geese are still so abundant in California that they are an actual pest to the wheat growers of the great interior valleys. During the winter season they are so numerous on the largest ranches of the Sacramento valley that men are hired to ride over the fields with rifles and shoot at them frequently from daylight until dark, in order to keep them moving and prevent them from grazing upon the tender young grain.

The birds at times congregate in such immense flocks as to seem to cover closely areas of ground. Their destructive powers are so great that in less than an hour, and sometimes, it is said, in a few minutes, they completely strip the field upon which they rest all the shoot of grain above ground.

The men employed to keep the geese moving are called "geese herders." They are not expected or required to shoot the birds, but to keep firing at them, and so, as much as possible, drive them from the grain lands.

The occupation of the goose herder is far from exciting or agreeable, and is one of the most despised of all rural employments in California, says the Los Angeles Times. The herder must sally forth when daylight appears, for at dawn the geese begin to feed in the grain fields. Some of the wheat ranches are many square miles in extent, and on upon the west side of the Sacramento River, in Glenn county, embraces over 4,000 acres.

The herder must ride many miles in a day, and pursue his calling in all sorts of weather. Upon the largest ranches half a dozen or more herders find steady employment during the winter season. It may happen that in the course of months of steady work a herder will not shoot even one goose, although perhaps firing 50 or 100 shots a day.

The geese are wary, and do not allow any one to approach them within a few hundred yards. For this reason it is necessary for the herders to use rifles, so that the bullets may strike the ground where the geese are feeding and put them to flight.

It is a fine sight to see the wild geese upon the wing at certain hours of the day, when they are flying to or from the river or some body of water where they drink. The sky at times seems filled with long, waving lines, where the birds are flying in their peculiar V-shaped flocks, and the air is laden with their discordant calls.

FAILURE OF JURIES TO AGREE.

The failure of juries to agree upon a verdict is a frequent cause of the miscarriage of justice under the British and American jury systems. In Germany, in criminal cases, the agreement of two-thirds of the jury is all that is necessary to support a verdict. The system has been inherited from England is more merciful to the accused, and a unanimous verdict is more likely to be convincing than a mere majority finding. In practice when unanimity is required, an ethical question arises which has troubled some hyper-sensitive minds. Is the verdict to which the jury agrees derived from a conscientious weighing of the evidence heard, or is it the result of the persuasive powers of his fellows? In other words, is a jury justified morally in yielding his judgment to that of another jury upon whom the evidence has made a different impression?—Philadelphia Ledger.

DEALING WITH CRIMINALS.

The state should take charge of all detective work which cannot well be done by the local authorities because the great majority of cases the criminals are professionals and visit one city after another, and their apprehension and conviction are of moment to the people of the whole state.—Newburgh News.

INCREASE OF WAGES.

Most of the men employed at the Carnegie Steel Works, near Pittsburgh, have had their wages increased from 5 to 20 cents a day, the increase dating from the 1st of April. News of this kind is even better than reports of generous donations to libraries.—Scranton Truth.

TROLLEY SLEEPING CARS.

At last the trolley sleeping car has arrived. Upon the long distance electric lines in Indiana and Ohio, a sleeping car service has been introduced. So many electric roads are as yet so extended, however, as to warrant the introduction of sleeping facilities. There are a few electric runs of six or seven hours' duration, and it is on such routes that the sleeping special has come into demand.—Baltimore American.

OUR WARSHIPS IN HAVANA.

Our warships are received in Havana with cheers and blessings for the American friends of the island, isn't that better than having them greeted with muttered curses in an alien dependency held at great and unrequited cost by the sword?

Minute Measurements.

Because the balance wheels of watches expand and contract with changes of temperature, they run slower or faster, according to circumstances. By making them of different kinds of metals having different degrees of expansion with increase of temperature, the effect of these changes on the running of watches may be almost entirely eliminated. But in dealing with such a problem it is necessary to know the expansibility of the metal employed. A means of measuring it is furnished by an instrument called a dilatometer, in which a system of delicate levers, or a chain of gear wheels magnifies the motion of a pointer over a graduated scale hundreds of times. At a meeting of the Physical Society in London lately a dilatometer was exhibited which had a magnification of 1,500 times, so that the change in the length of a piece of steel caused by a single degree of rise or fall of temperature was clearly measured by it.

SUSAN'S BUTTERFLY.

Blue-Eyed Susan lived on the edge of a deep forest that was a black and gloomy and back that of all the bright days of the year there was nothing except twilight to be seen in it. So when it was the darkest days you can imagine.

Blue-Eyed Susan often longed to go into the forest and see what might be hidden in it, but her father and brothers, who were hunters to the king, warned her that it was full of monsters and witches and evil spirits, and that not even the deer would go into it.

However, Blue-Eyed Susan, although she dared not go in, still walked along its margin every day and peered, half frightened and half curious, into the mysterious green darkness.

One day when she was thus strolling along she saw a strange thing hanging to a tree. It was black and soiled and as big as she was herself. At first she thought that it was a bag with some precious things in it. But when she approached she discovered that it was not a bag, but something else.

Of course Blue-Eyed Susan was familiar with all sorts of things that are found in the woods and fields, so she saw immediately that this great bag was nothing except a cocoon, but such a great cocoon as was never seen in the world before.

She examined it for a long while, and then ran home to tell her father and brothers all about it. They went with her, and when they saw the vast cocoon they were for hurling their spears into it at once. "For," said they, "there can be no doubt that this enormous cocoon is the cocoon of a dragon, or other terrible monster that dwells in the woods."

"No, no!" cried Blue-Eyed Susan, "I don't believe that dragons grow in cocoons. I am sure that some dear, beautiful butterfly is hidden in that, and I imagine what a sin it would be if you were to destroy it!"

"Well, all right," said the old hunters, who could refuse it a daughter nothing. "We will let it hang there and see what comes of it."

Blue-Eyed Susan was so interested in the cocoon that she went to see it every day. Once, when the winds blew it and threatened to tear it down, she built a shelter for it of twigs. And once when the sun threatened to burn it up she made a thatched roof of moist grasses for it.

She was fortunate enough to be present on the day when the cocoon began to burst. She was not a bit afraid of what might come out for she was sure that only beautiful things were born in cocoons. To be sure she was surprised at all when she saw a wonderful butterfly creep out—a butterfly with wings big enough to cover Susan, and with colors so splendid that it shone as if all the gems of the deepest earth had been fused in it.

The great butterfly, rocking from side to side in the air like a ship, fluttered softly around her head, brushed her face with its silk wings, and then flew away into the forest.

Blue-Eyed Susan was sorry to see it go, and for weeks thereafter she watched eagerly to see if it would not reappear. But it did not.

One day when she was standing near the dark entrance to the forest she heard a voice calling—calling far in the wood. The voice was too far distant for Susan to be able to understand the words, but she could tell from the manner that it was somebody who was lost in the forest calling for help.

At first she thought that she would run home and get her father and brothers. But she noticed that the voice was getting farther and farther away each time it called, so she knew that by the time she returned with help the lost person would be far in the middle of the forest where he could not be found.

Then she called out with all her might, but her voice was too weak. So she plunged into the secret wilderness to try and approach the lost person closely enough to make him hear. But by the time she had achieved this, Blue-Eyed Susan was lost herself.

However, she had found the lost person and it turned out to be no other than the king himself. He had followed in pursuit of a black bear, and without noticing it, he had been lost into the wild forest.

You may imagine that the king was glad to see Blue-Eyed Susan. And Susan, who may be sure, was glad enough to think that it was the king whom she had come to help.

But king's can't find their way out of magic forests any more than common persons can. And Blue-Eyed Susan and the king stumbled and scrambled and tore through briars and thorns, and fell in and out of deep holes and slipped over mossy rocks in vain. The more they tried the less path they did find.

Just when they were going to give it up and sit down in the forest to die, a large butterfly floated down from the tops of the trees. It came fearlessly toward Susan, and she saw that it was the very same butterfly that had come out of the mighty cocoon.

It rocked itself for a moment on its glorious wings. Then it began to flutter away slowly.

Susan and the king looked after it sadly. They were surprised to see the butterfly return, float up and down once more in front of Susan, and then flutter away slowly as before.

"I wonder can it want to show us the way out of the forest?" said Blue-Eyed Susan.

"Let us see," said the king.

So they followed it and, sure enough, it led them straight out of the forest and right to the king's palace.

Susan bowed to the king in front of his palace and tried to leave him.

"No, indeed," said the king. "You saved my life and I wish you to live in the palace henceforth. I will send for your father and brothers and then, my dearest Blue-Eyed Susan, I want you to marry me if you will."

So they were married. And at the wedding feast a mighty butterfly floated through one of the windows. It flew straight to Blue-Eyed Susan and shook its wings over her till she was all covered with the real kind of real sapphires and rubies and emeralds and diamonds.

Then all at once the butterfly vanished and a beautiful fairy princess appeared in its place.

"You saved my life," she said to Blue-Eyed Susan, "when you begged your father and brothers not to hurl their spears into the cocoon. I was put into it by enchantment, but now the spell is broken, and in gratitude to you I shall make the black forest safe for all."

And that is just what she did. Blue-Eyed Susan and the king built a hunting lodge in the middle of the forest, and if you ever happen to go that way, just turn to the left when you see three giant oak trees. Follow a gravelly path with a brook by its side till you reach a sign that says "Automobiles and peddlers not admitted." Following the path and mentioning this paper, the king and his Blue-Eyed Susan will come to meet you and make you stay over night, and entertain you with ginger ale and marshmallows and chocolate cream drops.—Pittsburg Leader.

Coupon Collector's Runabout.

Edward E. Lee of Baltimore, manager of a well known wickerware house, is a fiend after coupon collecting.

He had been collecting all kinds of tags and coupons bearing premiums for some time, when he one day noticed an advertisement of a New Jersey firm that upon receipt of fifteen of their tags they would forward one chance for a series of prizes, the first prize being a horse and a runabout.

Mr. Lee began industriously to get all the tags he could find until he had the requisite number, which he forwarded. A few days later he was notified that he had won the first prize. Immediately following this letter came a tiny rocking horse.

He sat down and wrote a sarcastic letter to the firm: "I beg to acknowledge receipt of the horse, he wrote, 'but you failed to enclose the runabout.'"

In an early mail he received this letter: "Dear Sir—We have your letter acknowledging receipt of the horse. As for the runabout, go chase yourself. Yours truly, ————Lippincott's Magazine."

Gerrymander.

Gerrymander is a word meaning to divide a state into districts for the choice of representatives in such a way as to give the political party in power an advantage over the other, even though the latter have a majority of votes in the state. The term originated in Massachusetts in 1812, when the democratic-republicans so arranged the senatorial districts as to control most of them, and thus secure the election of a U. S. Senator. The word is derived from Elbridge Gerry, who was governor of the state at the time, and approved of the plan. The senatorial districts were so located in shape as to resemble a salamander, whereupon the federalists called it a "gerrymander," from the governor's name.

Doctor Brigham Says

MANY PHYSICIANS PRESCRIBE

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

The wonderful power of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound over the diseases of womanhood is not because it is a stimulant, not because it is a cathartic, but simply because it is the most wonderful tonic and reconstructive ever discovered to act directly upon the generative organs, positively curing disease and restoring health and vigor.

Marvelous cures are reported from all parts of the country by women who have been cured, trained nurses who have witnessed cures and physicians who have recognized the virtue of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound in severe cases of female illness, as they know by experience it can be relied upon to effect a cure. The following letter proves it.

Dr. N. H. Brigham, of 4 Brigham Park, Fitchburg, Mass., writes: "It gives me great pleasure to say that I have found Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound very efficacious, and often prescribe it for my patients."

"I freely advocate it as a most reliable specific in all cases of female weakness, and give it honest endorsement."

Women who are troubled with painful or irregular menstruation, bloating (or flatulence), leucorrhoea, falling, inflammation or ulceration of the uterus, ovarian trouble, that bearing-down feeling, dizziness, faintness, indigestion, nervous prostration or the blues, should take immediate action to ward off the serious consequences, and be restored to perfect health and strength by using Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and then write to Mrs. Pinkham, at Lynn, Mass., for further free advice. No living person has had the benefit of a wider experience in treating women's diseases than Lydia E. Pinkham. Every suffering woman should ask for and follow her advice if she wants to be strong and well.

PROCLAMATION.

WHEREAS, at the January Session of the General Assembly of Maryland, held in the year of our Lord one thousand nine hundred and four, two bills were passed, one proposing an amendment to Section 31 of Article 3 of the Constitution of the State, the other proposing an amendment to Section 31 of Article 3 of the Constitution of the State, which said bills are in the words following, to wit:

SECTION 31. Be it enacted by the General Assembly of Maryland, that the power to elect members of the House of Delegates shall be vested in the qualified voters of the State for adoption or rejection.

SECTION 32. Be it enacted by the General Assembly of Maryland, that the power to elect members of the House of Delegates shall be vested in the qualified voters of the State for adoption or rejection.

SECTION 33. Be it enacted by the General Assembly of Maryland, that the power to elect members of the House of Delegates shall be vested in the qualified voters of the State for adoption or rejection.

SECTION 34. Be it enacted by the General Assembly of Maryland, that the power to elect members of the House of Delegates shall be vested in the qualified voters of the State for adoption or rejection.

SECTION 35. Be it enacted by the General Assembly of Maryland, that the power to elect members of the House of Delegates shall be vested in the qualified voters of the State for adoption or rejection.

SECTION 36. Be it enacted by the General Assembly of Maryland, that the power to elect members of the House of Delegates shall be vested in the qualified voters of the State for adoption or rejection.

SECTION 37. Be it enacted by the General Assembly of Maryland, that the power to elect members of the House of Delegates shall be vested in the qualified voters of the State for adoption or rejection.

SECTION 38. Be it enacted by the General Assembly of Maryland, that the power to elect members of the House of Delegates shall be vested in the qualified voters of the State for adoption or rejection.

SECTION 39. Be it enacted by the General Assembly of Maryland, that the power to elect members of the House of Delegates shall be vested in the qualified voters of the State for adoption or rejection.

In the place and stead of Section 34 of Article 3 of said Constitution, the following shall be substituted: "The power to elect members of the House of Delegates shall be vested in the qualified voters of the State for adoption or rejection."

—If the franchise amendment is ratified it will do more for constitutional government than all public education, costing millions of dollars, has done in forty years. Nearly 2000 judges of election will be studying the Constitution next year, who have given little thought to it heretofore, and 30,000 negroes will be trying to read it so as to be able to explain its meaning when applying to register in 1906 and thereafter. And hundreds and hundreds of white men will be reading it, too. It is the best scheme in the interest of constitutional government ever devised. With an understanding of the Constitution, knowledge of government will be attained.

ORIENTAL PEACE NEGOTIATIONS.

At the meeting of the Russian and Japanese peace plenipotentiaries in Portsmouth, N. H., Baron Komura, the chief plenipotentiary for Japan, delivered to M. Witte, the chief plenipotentiary for Russia, a document setting forth the conditions on which Japan is willing to make peace. It is intimated in the dispatches that these conditions include the payment of $1,000,000,000 indemnity, the surrender of the Island of Sanhalin, the cession of Vladivostok and the evacuation of Manchuria. In the absence of an authoritative statement from the parties to the negotiations it must be assumed that the alleged conditions are based largely upon speculation. In the main however they are the terms which more than two weeks ago it was said Japan would propose.

Unless the Japanese envoys have set all precedents to naught, the conditions which they have submitted to the czar's representatives are not the "irreducible minimum" of the Government at Tokio. They represent, probably the basis on which the final settlement, if there is to be one, will be founded. The Japanese plenipotentiaries, after receiving M. Witte's answer—and that answer will be dictated from St. Petersburg—will doubtless present an alternative or modified proposition, unless their first offer embodies the only terms on which peace can be concluded.

Snake In A Bedroom.

Tuesday morning Mrs. Jas. B. Parrott, of Trappe, Talbot county, while dressing in her room, discovered a large black runner snake coiled around the post of the bed from which she and her husband had arisen a short while before. Mr. Parrott had already gone to the stable to feed his stock, but was recalled by the cries of his wife. He soon dispatched the snake with a club. The reptile measured between three and four feet. There was but one possible way by which the snake could have gotten into the house and that was by crawling down the chimney and coming into the bed chamber through a stove pipe hole, as all the windows had screens, which had not been removed since they were put in early in the summer.

RUSSIAN OFFICERS.

A report of the retreat from Mukden given to the Associated Press by an unnamed trader might be regarded as exaggerated were not the details substantiated by comparison with letters previously received from correspondents stationed at other points of concentration. The trader tells of officers drinking themselves into unconsciousness on the eve of the retreat and being thrown in this condition into carts, which carried them beyond the grip of the Japanese pursuit. Whatever may be the qualifications of the more prominent officers in the Russian army, it is undeniable that the subordinates or company commanders average pretty badly. They seem to be a corrupt, hard drinking, gambling and generally profligate lot. Added to that, their indifference to the theoretical and scientific side of their profession has become notorious by comparison with the transcendent ability of their Japanese rivals. The examples set by the younger officers in the contending armies must have an appreciable effect upon the men who fight directly under their supervision. Is it any wonder that the Japanese pride themselves on the morale of their army when they are made aware of the licentiousness and demoralization existing among their opponents?

AMERICANS AND CANADIAN NORTHWEST.

Canada is somewhat troubled over the diminished American immigration into the Canadian Northwest in 1907, compared with that of the year immediately preceding. In 1901-02 the number of Americans who sought homes in Canada was 26,000; in 1902-1903 the number rose to 49,000, while in 1903-1904 it dropped to 45,000. W. J. White, chief Canadian inspector of immigration agencies, has just returned to Ottawa from an extended tour in the United States, and, as a result of his observations, predicts that fully 50,000 Americans this year will cross over the border and become settlers in Canada.—New York Tribune.

THE HAUGE COURT.

There may come a day when the world powers will consent to submit their differences to such a body as The Hague court and abide by the decision rendered, but the warlike spirit and the strife for supremacy, on land and sea, indicate that this time is still far distant. However, the constant agitation in behalf of such a policy keeps it before the public and gives added impetus to a movement which, however short it may fall of the ideal results, exerts a beneficial influence.—Detroit Free Press.

ANOTHER RUSSIAN ADMISSION.

The world was appalled when the Russian war office, guided by the assertions that it had been slothful, gave out the information that it had forwarded 775,000 soldiers to Manchuria since the war began. As there were at least 75,000 there at the outbreak of hostilities, and only 250,000 effectives after the battle of Mukden, this implies that 500,000 Russians have been killed, wounded, captured or victims of disease.—New York Mail.

MR. CLEVELAND AND CLUB WOMEN.

Much that Grover Cleveland says in the current number of the Ladies' Home Journal about woman's mission is quite true, while a great deal that he says of the harmfulness of women's clubs we think he may wish to amend ten or fifteen years hence. It is undoubtedly true that many club women do neglect their families to attend their clubs, but it is equally true that if there were no women's clubs on the face of the earth these women would be forgetful of their home duties.—Boston Transcript.

WORLD'S LARGEST HOSPITAL.

The consumption sanitarium which is to be established near Las Vegas, New Mexico, through the joint generosity of the Santa Fe railroad and the fraternal organizations, will represent the most ambitious attempt yet made to starve the "white plague." The undertaking is of national importance. A more outline of the plan can be hoped to thousands and is a real assurance against future misdeeds.

NOTHING KEEPS THEM OUT.

Thirty thousand immigrants arrived in seven days! That is at the rate of more than a million and a half a year. It means a larger immigration in one week than came to the country in any one whole year prior to 1832. It means that more would-be immigrants (though they are a very small proportion) will be refused and sent back to Europe than were admitted in any year prior to 1825. It means that all our feeble attempts to restrict immigration have been utterly futile.—New York Mail.

PRAISE DUE BALTIMORE.

The determination of Baltimore to expend more than $25,000,000 for improvements in the very face of a disaster that cost citizens anywhere from $150,000,000 to $200,000,000, naturally wins golden opinions from everybody.—Baltimore American.

THE CZAR'S WEALTH.

The czar of Russia, it is said, has $25,000,000 invested in English securities, and it is also declared that he would in an extreme crisis fly and live in England, as other troubled monarchs have done before him. Then he has a second string to his bow in the $6,000,000 invested in American railroads, iron and coal.

THE JUDICIAL MIND.

A traveler stopped at the gate of a fine country mansion, and said to a grave-looking person smoking on the porch:
"Sir, will you be good enough to tell me if this is the road to Cow-burg?"
"It is," was the reply.
"And may I inquire the distance?"
"Ten miles."
The traveler thanked him and passed on. Several hours later he returned and the grave-looking person was still there, smoking.
"Sir," said the traveler, "you must be aware that eight miles from here on the Cowburg road is a river, which it is impossible to swim, and which has neither ford, ferry nor bridge. Why did you not tell me?"
"The matter was not before me," returned the other. "As to your ability to cross a river of that kind I was entirely willing to hear argument."
The grave-looking man was a Judge.—Philadelphia Record.

Not Wasting Time.

The Teacher—There is one of the brightest boys sitting over there on that rock writing, while his companions are wasting their time in idle play. No doubt, he is writing his lessons out for to-morrow. Here, Jimmy, let me see what you are writing.
Jimmy—No'm; I don't want to.
Teacher—Ah, see his modesty? Come, I want to read it.
This is what she read: "Please excuse my son James from school to-day as he is needed at home."
London Tit-Bits.

A Rapid Calculator.

"Tobin has a great head for figures, hasn't he?"
"I understand so."
"He hasn't," somebody says that the steamship Baltic was 725 feet long, and immediately he retired to a window seat and wasn't heard from again for half an hour. Then he came out and calmly remarked: "It would only take about 21,848 steamships like the Baltic to bridge the Atlantic from Liverpool to New York."
Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Conscientious.

Mrs. Greene—You had your husband's slaver at dinner last Sunday, as usual. I should think she'd be ashamed of herself, allowing you to slave all day Sunday for her.
Mrs. Black—Oh, she is very conscientious about it. After she has eaten her dinner and is ready to go she always lectures me upon my disregard of the Lord's Day.—Boston Transcript.

Out at First.

"I suppose," remarked the young man who was feeling his way, "that you know how to bake bread?"
"Your supposition is correct," replied the fair maid in a tone that savored of the refrigerator, "and I may also add that the man I marry will be rich enough to patronize a bakery."

FOLEY'S KIDNEY CURE
Makes Kidneys and Bladder Right

MORE EVIDENCE.

It is Coming In Rapidly in Salisbury. Evidence on the following subject will prove of interest to every Salisbury reader. So many people go through the same experience daily. This public statement should be proof positive to every wavering doubter. Read it carefully.

J. C. Coulbourn farmer living two miles south of Salisbury, says: "My first attack of kidney trouble was felt about four years ago. At that time I was laid up for three weeks. I recovered from it but later on had two more similar attacks and since then there has been no time when I could say that I was wholly free from the distressing pain across my back. I doctored a great deal and I believe tried every known remedy on the market which was recommended to me which came to my notice from reading but all failed to cure me. When I saw Doan's Kidney Pills advertised I concluded to try them and procured a box at White & Leonard's drug store. Had the first box not brought about some relief I never could have been induced to get the second nor the third. I have used several boxes and can say that they have given me undoubted benefit."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster Milburn Co. Buffalo, New York, sole agents for the United States.

Remember the name Doan's and take no other.

September 7 has been set for argument of the mandamus proceedings to compel Queen Anne's county election officers to place the independent Democratic candidates for county commissioners on the official ballot.

GREAT TEST OF ENGINEERING.

Simple Tunnel Twelve and a Half Miles Long—Lives Lost in Work. The joining of the two ends of Simple Tunnel marked the completion of one of the greatest engineering feats of the time. The boring of a tunnel 12½ miles long is in itself a large undertaking, but the engineers in charge of this work have had to contend with many extremely difficult problems, among the worst being the springs of hot water, which usually become so troublesome as to necessitate the abandonment of one end of the work. Now the tunnel is complete; in a few months the trains will be running through it, and a most important link furnished in the line of communication between Italy and Central Europe.

The Simple Tunnel pierces Mont Leone, in the Alps, making a straight line from Brig, in Switzerland, to Iselle, in Italy. The boring was carried on from both sides of the mountain, the work beginning in August, 1898. The work consists of two tunnels, a main and an auxiliary, parallel, with 50 feet from axis to axis, and at one point the borings are one and a half miles below the surface, so that great heat had to be contended with. The tunnels are heavily arched from end to end, to prevent the blocking of the way by fragments of rock. From the Swiss side the borings rise at a grade of one metro in 500, and from the Italian side 1 in 143. The summit is 9,572 kilometres from the Swiss portal and 10,197 from the Italian end. By last November the main Swiss boring was carried over the summit, and when it had reached a point about 300 yards from the Italian end it had to be stopped because of the difficulty encountered in the springs of hot water.

The Swiss boring was carried to the summit without much trouble, as the grade naturally carried off the filtration of water, which amounted to over 100 gallons a minute. When the turn was made the trouble began. In a distance of 1,000 yards between the summit and the face of the boring, the inflow of water was 1,608 gallons per minute, and with the water brought in artificially for refrigeration, rock boring and other appliances, the inflow was 3,672 gallons a minute, which had, of course, to be carried off by pumps. Then, in the last 600 feet of the main Swiss bore, thirteen signs of hot water were encountered, varying in temperature from 108 degrees to 117. In the Italian heading there was a grade to carry away the water and no hot springs were being encountered, though the men worked in waterpools, knee deep in water, with cascades playing over them. The Swiss had a hard problem. The hot rock and water made the temperature unbearable for the workers. It was necessary to cool the water issuing from the hot springs by playing jets of cold water into them, and also to keep up a continual spraying of the hot rocks. This water had to be piped into the tunnel, and a great distance to the works, and to keep it cool the pipes had to be covered with broken charcoal and cased in sheet metal. As the face of the heading was carried on, the problem of getting cold water became more difficult, and naturally there came a time when the capacity of the boring became insufficient for the piped water needed to carry on the work. Last May the engineers in the Swiss heading opened two hot springs yielding 400 gallons a minute. At the same time an Alpine storm and landslide cut off the water supply at the entrance. The Swiss boring was stopped after heavy iron gates had been erected at the lowest point of the work on the Italian slope to confine the water and protect the tunnels approaching from Iselle.

The Italian borings, having the advantage of gravitational drainage continued rapidly without special difficulty until they reached last fall a point about 300 yards from the abandoned Swiss workings. Here the hot springs were encountered. The first of these discharged 960 gallons a minute and had a temperature of 114 degrees. The drainage problem was not so difficult as in the last part of the Swiss work, but in the same system of cooling the rock, water and air had to be introduced, and, consequently, the boring proceeded very slowly.

When a thin diaphragm of rock remained between the two main tunnels, the great volume of hot water which had accumulated in the abandoned Swiss workings between the summit and the Italian headway was drained off and the mountain was pierced. The dispatches show that the last blast that joined the two was followed by a rush of hot water in which several workmen lost their lives—New York Sun.

Rivers as Factors in War. Aside from the siege operations at Port Arthur, a large part of the heavy fighting has been along river banks—at the Yalu, the Ai, the Taitse, the Sha, the Hun or the Liao. The positions defended have been either parallel to rivers or upon sites which owed their strategic value to their proximity to rivers.

The facts suggest in a striking way one of the reasons why the boundaries of states and nations from the earliest times have been determined so often by river courses, without regard to other considerations. The rivers, by affording natural advantages for defense, have fixed the limit upon what conquering nations wanted to possess, but upon what they were able to take.—Chicago News.

Mexican mines turn out more silver money than those of any other country in the world.

Navigation of the Colorado. The problem of navigating the tortuous waters of the upper Colorado river and the lower Green and Grand rivers and so opening up to exploitation a district of great mineral and prospective agricultural wealth has long baffled Coloradoans. It is now claimed at Denver that a specially designed gasoline motor boat has proved equal to the task, and that a new empire will be opened up in which possibly a second Cripple Creek will be found.

THE SABBATH BELLS

I love to hear the Sabbath bells, As on my ear the music swells— Ding-dong, ding-dong— Calling to pray and sing.

Sweet Sabbath bells, may you ring on; You will be heard when I am gone. In claron notes of ding-dong dell, Ring on, sweet Sabbath bells.

Calling to praise, calling to prayer— Send out your message everywhere— Of rock and reef, of hill and dell, Call on, sweet Sabbath bells.

For vesper songs, send forth your chime In notes so simple, grand, sublime, To save the world from death and hell Chime on, sweet Sabbath bells.

For Sunday School we hear your call Where children meet, both great and small, O, may fond memory ever dwell On thee, sweet Sabbath bells.

And when from earth we're called away, May still your tones be heard to say, All is well, All is well, Sing on, sweet Sabbath bells.

And when we reach the early gate, May welcome for us there await; Of may there be no sad farewell— Ring up, sweet Sabbath bells.

No such thing as "summer complaint" where Dr. Fowler's Extract of Wild Strawberry is kept handy. Nature's remedy for every looseness of the bowels.

John Early, of Sharpsburg, while moving in a field near the town on Monday morning, ran into a nest of skunks. There were seven full grown skunks, all of which were killed by Mr. Early after much trouble. Along with them was a mink, which he also dispatched.

Shipping boxes of bricks from Baltimore to New York, marked "hardware," and then stealing them and putting in a bill for "shortage," is the latest game of car thieves on the Philadelphia, Baltimore and Washington Railroad, between Perryville and Wilmington. The plot was discovered Wednesday by the railroad police.

They Appeal To Our Sympathies. The bilious and dyspeptic are constant sufferers and appeal to our sympathies. There is not one of them, however, who may not be brought back to health and happiness by the use of Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets. These tablets invigorate the stomach and liver and strengthen the digestion. They also regulate the bowels. For sale by all dealers.

Asbury Park Booklet. The Pennsylvania Railroad Company has just issued an attractive booklet descriptive of Asbury Park. The publication is designed to present the attractions and claims of Asbury Park as a summer seaside resort.

Persons desiring information concerning this popular resort may obtain a copy of the booklet by enclosing two cents in postage stamps to Geo. W. Boyd, General Passenger Agent, Pennsylvania Railroad, Philadelphia, Pa.

NEWS FROM ALL SECTIONS OF WICOMICO SENT IN BY THE ADVERTISER'S REPRESENTATIVES.

MARDELA.

Rev. B. G. Parker has returned from his vacation and is into the harness again. He has been supplying for the Grace Baptist Church, of Baltimore during the absence of its pastor in London. He spoke for his son, Rev. Wm. Hammond Parker, last Thursday night in Frederick City. The son is doing a fine work and held in great esteem by the citizens at large. Among the younger preachers it is thought that he has not his equal in all those parts.

Our street lamps are surely a great addition to our pretty little town, but there will have to be some way devised to keep the boys from tampering with them. They climb the poles and then turn the wicks up and down. A little strap-oil, carefully rubbed in by the parents would do such boys lots of good. But if the parents will not do something, they will be required by law to pay something. These boys seem to have a childish delight in the destruction of property. Their names are now known and prosecutions will certainly follow. During the absence of some of our prominent citizens these boys indulged themselves in breaking out window lights. Fortunately they are all known and some of them belong to good families. But this ought no longer to shield them from the consequences of their wrong doing. Stealing watermelons, may by these youngsters be considered fun, but the destruction of property is not so funny by any means.

Our fellow townsmen, Mr. Jay Truitt is certainly doing some very artistic work in his marble works.

There are large shipments of watermelons this week and good prices are being realized.

It is rumored that Mr. W. A. Ramey has sold his farm to a man from Pennsylvania. It is to be hoped that Mr. Ramey will not leave our community. He has had considerable experience in the timber business. Other properties in town are about to change hands.

On Sunday at four o'clock Rev. B. G. Parker will preach in the Old Presbyterian church building.

POWELLVILLE.

Dr. C. A. Holland left Monday for Milford Del., to attend his father's funeral.

Miss Bertha Richardson is spending a few days at Ocean City.

Mrs. Will Morris and little daughter, Helen, of Baltimore and Miss Bertie Tilghman, of Whiton spent the day with Mrs. Geo. S. Johnson last Wednesday.

Miss Abbie White accompanied by her friend, Miss Besie Crenney, of Baltimore are spending this week at Ocean City.

Mrs. Avery Donovan and daughter, Miss Rachael, of Snow Hill, were guests at Mr. King V. White's Saturday and called on Rev. and Mrs. Geo. H. Stockdale.

Mrs. Howard Davis is visiting with relatives in Baltimore.

Mr. Emory Davis, after spending several weeks with relatives in Philadelphia returned last week much improved in health.

Mr. and Mrs. William Henman and Miss Viola and Sadie spent Sunday at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Peter Adkins.

Master George Stokes is visiting at the home of his uncle, Mr. K. V. White.

Rev. Howard Davis received news Monday night that his father was quite ill, and left Tuesday for Baltimore, his father's home.

DELMAR.

Mr. Claud R. Phillips has been transferred from the yard master office to the position of assistant Car Inspector. Mr. Lewis Hastings succeeds to the vacancy in the office occasioned by the transfer.

Peaches sold here this week at $1.50 and $1.75 per basket.

Mr. Arthur O. German returned from his sojourn at Saranac Lake, improved in health.

Mrs. Wm. S. Hitchens and Miss Luella Hitchens, of Philadelphia are visiting relatives in town.

A basket supper will be given in Hastings Grove under the auspices of the M. P. Church on Saturday evening, Aug. 12th.

Mr. William A. Parsons and Miss Georgia Barr were married on Thursday afternoon about one o'clock and left on the N. Y. Express for a trip to Atlantic City. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. E. S. Fooks.

KELLY.

Mr. Herbert Fooks is visiting his brother at Tuley, Va., and while there intends to take in the fair.

Mr. Larry Davis' baby was buried beside its father in Wango burying-ground last Saturday morning. It was but a weeks' difference in the child's death and its father's.

Mr. Fred spent last Wednesday evening with Mr. and Mrs. M. D. Collins.

Several people of Kelly attended the picnic at Wango, Saturday.

About three hundred people went over to public landing last Thursday and reported a good time.

The Farmer And The Telephone—Why He Should Avail Himself Of This Modern Utility.

In these days of close competition between the growers of farm produce, it has become essential that every farmer adopt some method of increasing the producing power of his farm, decreasing the expense of the production, and minimizing the work. He must also realize that on the farm time limits everything, and that there is no other business in which so much depends upon things being done quickly and at the right time.

The simple fact that the farmer lives in the country and has no direct connection with the nearest town, or his shipping point, should be sufficient reason to impress every farmer with the need of telephone service.

The delay in the development of country telephone service has been due to the high rate which has heretofore been charged for country lines. But a recent reduction in the rates of farmers' telephones gives the service at so low a cost that it brings this modern necessity within reach of every farmer, irrespective of distance or location.

The Diamond State Telephone Company is completing arrangements to give every farmer who has a telephone the Government weather forecast for his particular district each day at a certain time. This is absolutely essential to the farmer; because it often means a saving of his crops, while in every other business the condition of the weather makes but little difference.

It places the farmer in direct connection with the markets everywhere and a good market at the right time determines the amount of profit. A dozen trips to a poor market by wagon would take as many days. A telephone would do the job in a dozen minutes, and save twelve days time—and time is money to the farmer. It makes traveling unnecessary and the saving of traveling expenses alone often pays for the telephone rental over and over again.

The purchase and repair of farm implements and the employment of help, the hurry call to the doctor or veterinarian are but a few of the emergency-meeting qualities of the service. The telephone flashes the call for help over the wires in a few seconds (the distance makes no difference and the reply comes back with the same swift-ness).

The new rate for this up-to-date service will interest you, Mr. Farmer, and the Diamond State Telephone Company will be glad to quote you rates to suit your conditions.

By virtue of a power of sale contained in a mortgage dated the 6th day of November 1901, from Wm. H. Palmer and wife to Jno. M. Dashiell, I will offer at public sale at the front door of the Court House, in Salisbury, Maryland, on Saturday, August 12th,

1905, at 1 o'clock p. m. the following real estate: All that tract of land in Dennis Election District, Wicomico County, State of Maryland on the north side of and bounded on the county road from Powellville to Salisbury, and bounded on the North and East by the run of a branch and mill pond, and adjoining the lands of Elisha P. Morris and others, and containing 70 acres more or less. For a more particular description of the said land reference is made to the said mortgage.

It is improved with a new two story dwelling and necessary out houses. This farm adjoins Powellville and is a valuable truck farm.

THE TERMS OF SALE—Cash. Title papers at the expense of the purchaser.

JAS. E. ELLEGOOD,
Attorney named in this mortgage.

Washington College

CHESTERTOWN, MD.

The One Hundred and Twenty-Fourth Session Begins September 20th, 1905.

The College offers three courses of study—Classical, Latin Scientific, Scientific—each leading to the degree of Bachelor of Arts.

The elective system enables each student to select the studies suited to his particular needs. Two sub-freshmen classes are maintained for the benefit of those who desire a thorough preparation for college.

THE NORMAL DEPARTMENT is recognized by the State as a part of the system of public education. A diploma entitles the holder to teach in any county of the State without examination.

Students are provided with good board, and comfortable, well furnished quarters. The buildings are equipped with every modern convenience—steam heat, electric lights, baths.

Here students may pursue their work in a highly moral community, amid beautiful and healthful surroundings, under careful supervision of health and habits, at very low rates.

VEGETABLE BEAUTY

Cucumbers Will Give the Desired White Neck—Lemons, Lettuce, Tomatoes Also Help.

"Three things are necessary to the woman who wants a nice throat," says a woman who treats necks as a specialty. "These are plenty of air, a little sunshine and nothing at all around the neck."

A neck whitener is cream of cucumber, made at home and in a few minutes. Take a cucumber, cut it up in a pint of water, let it simmer three minutes, strain and bottle. Into this shake ten drops of benzoin. Use it three times a week.

In Paris they are whitening the neck with a cucumber. Cut the cucumber in slices and rub it on the neck well. Let it remain on for five minutes. Then wash it off with very hot water and plenty of soap.

In the water use a teaspoonful of powdered borax to a quart of water. This will whiten the neck, it is said. The lettuce lotion is also good. Cut up a heart of lettuce. Stew it in a quart of water until it has simmered down to a pint. Then strain and add half a teaspoonful of powdered borax and five drops of benzoin.

All the fruit acids are good for removing stains from the neck. One of the best is the strawberry. But it must be used very carefully or it will discolor the skin.

For the neck it must be diluted with an equal quantity of water and made soft by the addition of a little borax. For the cheeks it can be used pure.

A neck that is yellow requires a different treatment. It must be bleached.

Carbolized vaseline is good for the neck that is chapped and rough. If the skin is in very bad shape it can be subjected to a treatment which resembles the bleaching process upon the hands.

Make a good hand paste and apply it to the neck. Let it remain on for fifteen minutes or half an hour, and take off with good soap.

"The best shoulder and neck whitener," says she, "is sour milk. Sour milk applied to the face, the neck and the shoulders will bleach them. Let it dry on. Don't wash it off for an hour. You cannot use it too often. It is the best known bleach for the skin."

"The sweet milk bath is pleasant and sometimes more available. Wash the pure sweet milk, creamy and about a day old is the best. Wash the face and neck in it."

"Women who have access to a buttermilk tub, as they call it in a country can have a nice skin. Take a cup of the buttermilk, put it in a shallow basin and hold the hands in it."

"Buttermilk stirred thick with bran makes a nice whitener for the neck, and it is very fine indeed for the hands, used as a glove paste."—New York Sun.

A Useful New Utensil.

A Food Protector is the latest novelty in the line of kitchen utensils. It is made of enameled metal and looks like a sort of perforated shelf. Inserted in the cooking pot it positively prevents the food from burning. It is particularly valuable in the making of puddings and cooking vegetables, etc. The protector comes in various sizes.

A DOWN EAST TRADE.

Two old fellows in New Hampshire were the sharpest things in the way of bargaining. Cy Pettigill made brooms for a living and Ezra Perkins kept a store. One day Cy came in with a load of brooms and was dickering began.

Cy was a man who could see a bargain through a six-inch plank on a dark night, and Ezra could hear a cat's purr in a bag of feathers a mile off. Well, they began, and their conversation was something like this:

"Ezra I want to sell you these brooms."

"All right, Cy, I'll take them."

Cy said: "I don't want any store bargains; I want cash for them."

They talked and gadded a while, and then Ezra said: "I tell you what I'll do, Cy. I'll give you half cash and half trade."

Cy took a fresh chew of tobacco, pulled a straw out of one of the brooms, and said:

"That'll be all right, Ezra."

After he had put the brooms in the store, Ezra said: "Here's your money, Cy; now what do you want in trade?"

Cy looked around for a spell, cocked his eye up to the ceiling, stuck his cud in his cheek, and said:

"Well, if it is all the same for you, Ezra, I'll take brooms"—Columbia Record.

This Commercial Life.

"I understand, Mr. Jones," began the college man who was looking for a job, "that your firm turn out many first-class men, who are eagerly sought after by Eastern syndicates."

"Yes," replied Mr. Jones, "and if you go to work here, it is with the understanding that we'll turn you out in about a week if you don't deliver the goods."

The young man had just left the office, when the junior partner entered.

"I intend to discharge our new driver on wagon No. 3," he announced.

"Why?" asked Mr. Jones.

"Because when we send him out to take a cart load of things anywhere, he gets lost and can't deliver the goods."—Cleveland Leader.

LEFT OUT.

I was waiting for Annie—or perhaps I should say Miss Hicks—new at Portland road station at 4 o'clock. I was wearing what was, practically, a Panama hat, though I do not mean to say I gave a fever for it, and a pink tie she was always rather a girl for. I stuck a cigarette in my mouth and mooned up and down waiting. Her manner had been a bit queer when I asked her to come; she seemed to think it over a good deal before she said she would. I shouldn't have been surprised if she had never turned up at all, but at 4.30 there she was, looking like a duchess as usual. What ever I may have against her, it's no good saying so. 'Annie' got style, because she has. When I'm serving anybody in the shop I'm never taken in; I know if they are the right thing or the imitation fast enough.

She stared rather disagreeably, I thought, by saying that she thought those big hats did no suit little men; there was not a word about her being late. Considering that I had only been in the hat because she said she liked Panamas I thought it a bit hard. But I said nothing. I mean I said nothing about the hat. And she said she supposed it was as good there as anywhere. "Or as bad," she added in rather a nasty way.

Presently she said to me: "What chance is there of your ever being able to make £3 a week?"

"Well," I said, "it may come, Annie, I think Mr. Parkinson's satisfied with me."

"Do you?" she said. "I had tea with him last Sunday."

"My aunt," I said. "You're getting on. You never told me anything about it. All the same, you know the reputation he's got; he isn't the man to do anybody a good turn without expecting something for it."

"Don't be such a silly. It's like telling me I can't take care of myself. No, I'm not going off there. I'm going to stick to the walk. I like to see people."

Women change a good deal. A few Sundays before it was all. "Oh take me out of this beauty crowd, George." And I did take her right out of it, and a very nice, quiet time we had.

"Any way you like," I said. "Of course, with regard to Parkinson, I did not mean to imply anything. Let's say no more about it. Still I hope you'll give me the honor and pleasure of taking tea with me to-day."

"I can't," she said. "It's very kind of you, but I've promised Mr. Parkinson for to-day. I shall have to be in at half an hour, too. It doesn't do to keep him waiting. You see, we've had to talk of it again, and I suppose you see which way the wind blows."

A cold shudder seemed to run down my back. "Look here, Annie," I said, "tell us straight out what you mean. We're engaged, aren't we?"

"No," she said. "I'm very sorry, George. I'm sure you're as nice as a man could be in many ways, but of course, you aren't Mr. Parkinson. I've thought it all over and decided it couldn't be. Mr. Parkinson has £3 a week and occasional commissions. Call it £300 a year altogether, and you're inside the mark. Well, there you are. Of course, I want to keep friends with you, but—"

"Tell me straight," I said. "Do you mean to say that you're engaged to this Mr. Parkinson?"

"Of course I do. That's what I've been telling you all this time."

"Ho! Very well! Very well, indeed! Then Mr. Parkinson will get his blooming head broken off."

"If you're going to use language like that I shan't stop. Suppose you had a row with Parkinson, what would be the good? You'd be into the police court, and my name be brought in. And that's a nice thing to do to a lady you pretend to love. Also you'd get the boot. Last time you were out of a berth you were out for a long time if I remember right."

She did remember right. I'm not likely to forget it as long as I live either. It weighed with me a good deal, that.

"Can't you see which side your bread's buttered?" she said.

"What do you mean? Do you think it would do me any good if I went to Parkinson and told him that I resigned my claim?"

"How can you be so silly. Supposing he thought you had ever pretended to have any claims, it wouldn't hurt me but you would be out in the street on the first excuse. I know Mr. Parkinson, and he's not one to stand any thing of that kind. What I meant was that you should be sensible and remember that I'm your friend."

"You think that perhaps you might be able to put in a word for me with him. There will be Williamson's berth vacant after Christmas, and if you could say that from what you had noticed you thought—"

"I wouldn't do you that injury, George; I wouldn't indeed. Why, it would be as good as telling him that there was something between us, and that you hadn't been able to act like a man and give me up properly."

"I can act like a man fast enough if that's all you want. I'll soon show—"

"Great Scott!" she said, looking at the watch strapped on her wrist. "I've got to cut and run. Do believe it's all for the best, George. Look at it the right way. See you again one of these days."

So I'm left out of everything, as usual.—Barry Pain, in London Sphere.

Some people know too much to believe anything.

A man would rather overlook his sins than overbear them.

Quick Lunch Habit.

Every time you swallow a quick lunch or go without your lunch or eat a cold sandwich while working or reeling you are adding so many years to your looks. It is the careless lunch habit which is spoiling the American girl's complexion.

A course embroidered white or light-colored linen, resembling a stamped leather effect, is a pretty material, and will be used as a note of originality in the way of vests, collars and cuffs on many of the light gowns and cashmere trunks this coming spring.—Chicago News.

WHY IS IT?

You can buy horses, mares and mules at King's for less money than elsewhere. The reason is, he sells more horses than all the dealers in Baltimore combined. Another reason is, while our horse and mule business is the largest of any in Baltimore City, (established capacity 50 head and continuous receiving consignments from the breeders all over America.) It is only one branch of this immense business. We carry in stock 100 vehicles of every kind, of which a large selection is suitable for country use, at lowest factory prices. The final reason is, we are THE LARGEST COMBINED HORSE AND MULE DEALERS IN BALTIMORE, CARROLL, MARYLAND, AND WASHINGTON, D. C. FACTORIES IN THE WORLD.

PROPER WAY—TO REMOVE BALLOT.

That the idea of white Republicans inducing negroes through public meetings or otherwise to renounce public office will bear any practical fruit there is no hope. Little indeed has this to do with the present situation which the Democratic party of Maryland is attempting to better. Can it be possible that white republicans see but a visionary shadow of betterment in having the thoroughly affrighted negro lay aside what his ignorance lead by his fostering political chief, has made his most cherished ambition. To foist this on the public is idle and vain. The real danger of the white man's burden is not the present possibility of his holding office. Even the white republicans of the State have not yet reached that point where they would dare this. The danger is the pollution to civic government which the casting of the negro vote threatens and makes. It renders local government more corrupt. It tends to degrade and lower society at large, because the possession of the ballot takes the negro, urged on, abetted and coddled by unscrupulous politicians, out of his proper useful sphere and by toying into the white man's world of life, thought and action renders him unfit for his daily toil, and a continuous menace to the peace and good order of a community.

The negro is a cancer in politics—and should be cut out forthwith and forever from all say or vote in white man's council and government. When this is done there will come again the quiet and tranquility of the olden days in public life, the negro will become a useful citizen and a more thrifty laborer.

That the claimed storm of opposition to the amendment has failed to develop is now manifest no great enthusiasm being apparent even in Republican ranks, while many and many are the true white republicans who will vote for the unaltered rule of the white man in Maryland, knowing that in doing this they best serve their home, their country and their party.

HOWARD COUNTY, HOME OF GOV. WARFIELD, ENDORSES AMENDMENT.

"We reaffirm the unanimous declaration of our party made in the State convention of 1903, which declared that—

"We believe that the political destinies of Maryland should be shaped and controlled by the white people of the State, and while we disclaim any purpose to do any injustice whatever to our colored population, we declare without reserve, our resolute purpose to preserve in every conservative and constitutional way the political ascendancy of our race.

"Upon the clear, courageous and patriotic declaration the memorable campaign of 1903 was conducted, which resulted in the election of our candidate for Governor and other State offices, together with more than three fifths of both houses of the General Assembly.

"The duty thus imposed by the party on its representatives in the Legislature was alike most important, difficult and delicate. That there were differences of opinion as to the form and scope of the amendment was but a repetition of that which occurred in every State that has dealt with this question. Yet every Democrat in this Senate and House of Delegates voted for it. Why?

"First—Because the United States Supreme Court has affirmed its constitutionality and no other adequate provision has been devised that is not more objectionable.

"Second—Because the practical operation of similar provisions in the constitutions of Virginia and North Carolina, where the conditions were nearly identical with ours, has demonstrated its effectiveness and fairness.
"We therefore, indorse and commend it to all who favor intelligent manhood suffrage and the elimination from the registration books of the colored ignorant voters who were injected into our body politic against the solemn protest of the people of Maryland. The adoption of this amendment will right this grievous wrong."

MALARIA DISAPPEARING.

Comparatively Little Reported in Maryland Now. Improved Condition is Attributed to Better Water Supply.

"Malaria, which at one time prevailed throughout almost the entire State, has markedly and generally subsided."

This statement is made in a paper written for the August number of the Maryland Medical Journal by Dr. William T. Watson, and reprinted in pamphlet form. Dr. Watson bases his conclusions on reports received from physicians in localities where malaria was formerly most prevalent, and from the different hospitals in Baltimore city.

The physicians of Maryland attribute the decline of malaria to the substitution of artesian for ordinary well water, the better drainage of land, the extensive use of quinine, and the screening of houses. Dr. Watson, however does not believe that drinking water has anything to do with the decline of the disease.

"It has been demonstrated," he says "the only way in which malaria can be contracted is by the bite of a certain kind of mosquito—the anopheles—which has itself become infected by sucking the blood of a person who is infected with the malaria parasite. The drainage of pools, by exterminating the breeding place of malaria-carrying mosquitoes; the use of quinine by killing the parasites in the human body, the screening of houses by keeping infected mosquitoes from inoculating healthy individuals, if carried far enough would suffice to exterminate malaria from the world."

It is believed, however, that the use of quinine is one of the chief factors in the decline of malaria, although this is probably secondary to some unexplainable natural causes. In localities where the sanitary conditions have shown no improvement during the last decade the disease has, nevertheless, showed a marked diminution. Twenty years ago malaria was a scourge in Maryland. The cases are now so rare that patients suffering from the malady are in demand in hospital clinics. The disease was prolific on the Eastern Shore of Maryland and in the lowlands around Baltimore city. It is now almost extinct on the Eastern Shore, and the physicians in the low country near the city have only a few cases to look after during the fall and summer months when it was formerly most prevalent. Dr. Watson quotes Defoe to show the disastrous effects of malaria in marshy countries several centuries ago. It was in 1722 of which he wrote the following:

"The men, being bred in the marshes and being seasoned to the place, did pretty well with it, but they always went into uplands for a wife, and that, the women coming from these parts into the fogs and damp, presently changed their complexion, got an ague or two, and seldom held it more than a year, and then the men go to the uplands again and fetch another, so that it was very frequent to meet with men who had from five to six to fourteen or fifteen wives."

In conclusion, Dr. Watson says: "The decline has been due to natural causes rather than to anything man has intentionally or unintentionally done.

"The present decline may go on to the extinction of the disease, as in England, or after a time there may be another rise in the malarial curve, as has happened before in Maryland and elsewhere. "If, however, while the disease is at its present low ebb, the people of the malarious districts thoroughly screen their houses against mosquitoes, and cases of malaria are promptly treated with quinine there will be no rise, but rather a decline, which will go on to its extermination. "There are still a few physicians in Baltimore who are treating many cases of malaria annually. The foregoing statistics should suggest to them that they change their diagnosis and treat their patients for what they've got."

Death of Young Barton Freeny At Hebron.

On Saturday morning last at 9 o'clock, the soul of Barton Freeny passed over the level of time to that undiscovered country into that bourne whence no traveler returns. Taken with a fever last October, which was followed by other diseases, after a painful fight he was compelled to yield his frail body to the king of terror; but his gentle spirit has gone to the God who gave it. He was "a member of Christ, a child of God and an inheritor to the Kingdom of Heaven." On Monday we laid his body to rest in old St. Mark's Church yard, in Sussex county Delaware, and commended his soul unto Him who gave it. May he rest in peace! F. B. A.

Fright And Excitement Over Child's Danger Causes Death Of Mrs. Tracy, Of Carroll.

A special dispatch from Westminster, Md., Tuesday says: Heart failure, brought on by fright and excitement, caused the sudden death of Mrs. Margaret Rinehart Tracy, of this city, on a public highway a mile from the city limits, shortly after 6 o'clock this afternoon.

Mrs. Tracy had driven to her mother's farm, taking the little daughter of her deceased brother with her, and while returning she found it necessary to leave the vehicle to close the gate to a private road leading from the Uniontown turnpike. As she was in the act of doing so the horse started to run away. She made a desperate effort to get the lines, but failed. The horse was caught after running a short distance and the child was found unharmed.

At this juncture Dr. Charles R. Foutz, of this city, happened on the scene and went to Mrs. Tracy's assistance, but found her dying.

Mrs. Tracy was the widow of Frank Tracy, a member of the Carroll county bar, who died nearly 18 years ago. One son, Frank Tracy, survives her, in his eighteenth year. She was a daughter of the late William G. Rinehart, a prominent and wealthy business man of this city, who died about a year ago. Her mother, Mrs. Caroline Rinehart, and one sister, Mrs. J. Pearce Wantz, survive her. She was about 45 years old. For many years she had been leader of the choir of Grace Lutheran Church, this city.

Mrs. Tracy was a sister-in-law to Dr. Wm. H. White, now residing at Whiton, this county.

Prohibition County Convention.

The Wicomico County Prohibition Convention met in the Court house here Wednesday. Rev. Z. H. Webster was chosen chairman and J. W. T. Robertson, secretary. Every district in the county was represented. The following county ticket was nominated:

House of Delegates—James T. Malone, Jerry R. Travers and R. S. Winbrow.

County Commissioners—John R. Robertson, James Elzey and L. S. Melson.

Sheriff—W. J. Graham.
Surveyor—George W. Parsons.
Delegates to the State Convention—J. U. Dolby, John H. Dulany, John G. Sheppard, James T. Malone, U. C. Phillips and J. H. Webster. Alternates—J. T. Price, J. W. T. Robertson, James Elzey, Z. W. Richardson, C. W. Carman and Benjamin Davis.

John H. Dulany was elected county chairman; James T. Malone, county secretary, and U. C. Phillips, county treasurer.

The convention took no action in the way of resolutions either on the suffrage amendment or the Haman Oyster bill.

Notice!

The Anniversary Celebration will be held at old Green Hill Church, Stepeny Parish, on St. Bartholomew's Day, August 24th, next. All friends and persons interested in these annual gatherings are invited to attend.

THE LOVE CHASE

"There's the church!" cried Monica. "Where?" said Jack, a little indifferently. "There! Can't you see the spire just peeping up through the trees? Put your head out of the window." "No, thank you. I might get a spark or something in my eye." Monica sighed deeply. "I think you might try," she protested. "I am trying. I've been trying ever since we left Baker street. I am bound to admit, however, that up to the present—"

"That'll do. If I'd known you weren't going to play the game I—"

"I shall call it something worse than that in a minute." "I'm so sorry! It was my fault. Let me see if I can get it out." She sat down beside him, took the handkerchief, wetted one corner and screwed it into a point.

"Now open your eye. Is it at the top or the bottom?" "I dunno. It's hurting most comically, wherever it is." "Poor boy! Try to keep quite still. Look down!" "I am looking down. Don't keep on jabbing like that."

"I am not jabbing, Jack. It's no use getting in a temper about it. I'm doing my best." "Better leave it alone and let it come out by itself."

"Then it may go on hurting you all day. Keep still a moment! I see it!" "Look out!" "Got 'im! It's only a tiny little speck, after all."

"You wouldn't think it so tiny if it had been in your eye, I'll bet." "I expect not. Hallo! Here we are!" "That's a new porter," whispered Monica, as they descended the steps. "Very likely. They don't generally keep them at stations like this for five years, you know."

"Five years isn't so very long." "Isn't it?" Jack's tone was significant. Monica said nothing. "I wonder if any one will remember us?" said Monica. "I hope not."

"Oh, I don't know! Only we used to be so frightfully—what do you call it?" "I didn't know you objected so strongly to being in love."

"I don't. I mean, I didn't. No, I don't." They were outside the village now, and a few minutes would bring them to the lane that led to the world of many memories. Monica stopped, and looked her husband squarely in the face.

"Here we go any further," she began. "I should like to." "A drink? We've passed all the pubs."

"I shan't go. I shall go back to the station and take the next train to town. I was a fool ever to come. I might have known that a man like you—"

"It's no use struggling," said Jack. And he kissed her. Half way up the lane they came to a cottage. Five years ago, they had been wont to take tea at that cottage. The old lady who made the tea was still making it, and they stayed there for quite an hour.

PARISIAN SECRET POLICE

Most of Them Are Old Soldiers, Honorable Men.

INVESTIGATING BRIGADE

Strangers in the City Constantly Watched and Acts Recorded So Close Are the Meshes of This Police—Not Even a Casual Visitor Slips Through.

About the words "the secret police" there is a pretty air of mystery. They summon up pictures of cloaked figures, of men waiting in dark hallways and of stealthy steps behind curtains of corridors. They are woven into nine-tenths of popular French fiction. The woman concealer, sunning herself in what Parisian doorway you please, feeds her imagination on tales of multiple disguises. As a matter of fact, this branch of the police, though disguised in plain clothes, is not at all occult. It has to do with plain and simple crimes. Most of the agents of the surete are old soldiers, honorable men. They are supplemented, however, by a band of quasi-police, known as Indicateurs. These people, who are permanent auxiliaries of the service, are recruited among the street fakirs and and masterless rogues who are to be found in Paris.

But behind the humdrum agents and these gloomy outcasts, there is a mighty "secret police," about which not one Parisian in a hundred has definite knowledge. The real secret police—today, as under the empire—is that which is known as the brigade des recherches—that is, the brigade of investigation. The members of this force are recruited in a far higher rank of society than the fellows of the surete. Indeed, there is no class—from the old nobility to the new feudality of finance—which does not contribute this occult system of espionage. It is not my purpose here to describe in detail the many ramifications of this ancient and potent order of spies.

A foreigner in France, if he associates frequently with people of importance, comes in time to know them well. They follow him in his comings and goings, report upon his acts and opinions, and sift his life with a care unknown in our careless republic. One of those who was sent out on my trail I came to know very well. What I was suspected of I know not, though during the troublous days of the Dreyfus case I fraternized with many men—one of whom, the Comte du Temple, an ex-deputy, was an aggressive royalist. Anyway, my spy and I came to know each other very well. He played a good game of billiards and was a companionable gentleman.

A little later Dr. W. J. O'Sullivan, visited me in Paris. He was greatly interested in the secret police. I could hardly persuade him that from the moment we met and shook hands in the Gare du Nord until his departure from the Gare St. Lazare every act of his had been noted. I got the evidence from my friend (my own pet spy) in the brigades des recherches. The doctor's record was singularly complete. He had not spoken with a man, he had not chatted with a woman, he had not dined out or breakfasted in my garden, he had not bought a pair of yellow gloves unseen by some ubiquitous spy. The amazed gentleman, when he learned how close had been the watch upon him, shuddered as if he had walked in hell, and went back to New York with a shudder. So close are the meshes of this police net that not even a casual visitor slips through—Success.

Money Makes the Mexican Go.
In "American millionaire" a term has been found whose magic potency dispels effectively for the moment that peculiar procrastination in Mexican business methods so tersely characterized by the word "manana." People of this city, resident here but one year, have seen in the last week a hurrying Mexican servant for the first time. Those who have lived here for a longer time have seen it before—when a millionaire from America was here.

At the utterance of this term, as it passes from mouth to mouth, for a millionaire from the States must needs be advertised, every knee will bend or bow, hotel managers will take an actual or pretended interest in the management of the hostelry's affairs, cocheros will race their steeds that they may not be more than an hour behind the time, carriages will accelerate their tortoise pace, waiters move as if more than half awake and the "bell-hops" even have been known to hop.

So great is the magic of this potent phrase that no vendor of dulces on the street, no seller in the shops nor curio merchant within the corporation limits of the capital, but has out his brightest sign, wears his blindest smile, adds to his usual insistent persistence a certain amount of alacrity, and one or two of the more eager have been known to postpone their feet of the lozenges, as though each should be a latter day Mercury, the visitor has made of the rejuvenated Aztec a delectable tonic, shattering by his moment of hurry all the Mols and traditions of the ages.—Mexican Herald.

The Iowa experiment station made some investigations last year as to the best time for watering horses—before or after feeding. The results show no particular difference.

If a man is a coward he always claims to be conservative.

Pearl Fishing in Ceylon.
The use of X-rays has proved a valuable adjunct to pearl fishing on the coast of Ceylon. By this application it is possible to discriminate between valuable oysters and those containing no pearls. Oysters useless for commercial purposes are thrown back into the sea.

It is easier for a married man to pack his trunk than it is for a bachelor—because he has less to pack. The fool never puts off until tomorrow what he shouldn't do at all.

DULY AUTHORIZED.

Old Lady—Here, little boy, what makes you let your dog worry that cat?

Small Boy—Aw, he's got a license and kin do anything he wants.

Paul's Fate.

"Suppose Paul Revere should have waited and made his famous ride now," said the professor, "what would be his reward?" "He'd be arrested for fast driving," promptly responded the bright student.

At the Shore.

Edith—When I accepted Jack he said he was in the seventh heaven of happiness.

Edith—Quite likely—he's been engaged to six other girls this season.—Puck.

Ten Inches to the Foot.

Prof. W. Le Conte Stevens, acting on the theory that the metric system can only be made popular in this country by adopting its decimal plan while changing the present names of familiar weights and measures as little as possible, suggests the following changes: Let the yard be made equal to the metre; let the foot be made the fourth instead of the third part of a yard, and let it have ten instead of twelve inches; let the pound be made equal to half a kilogram; let the quart equal the litre; let the ton be 1,000 kilograms; let the pint, gallon, peck, and bushel be defined in terms of the quart. Prof. Stevens points out that in this way the inch would be shortened less than 2 per cent, but he admits that even this slight change would inconvenience mechanical engineers and machine manufacturers.

Decrease of Consumption.

General statements as to the progress made in checking the ravages of consumption are always interesting, but it is much better to have specific statistical information upon the subject. Vital statistics have been taken in Massachusetts since 1842. In all the years before 1857 the annual death rate from consumption was nearly or quite four thousand to a million inhabitants. The rate had declined almost steadily ever since. It was about thirty-two hundred to a million in 1892, and less than sixteen hundred in 1902—the lowest point reached up to that time. Corresponding figures for England show a similar decrease. The system of keeping vital statistics has not been general enough to make sure that all states can present as good a record of progress as Massachusetts, but all the facts that are available are encouraging.

London's Champion Bootblack.

Among the little known but keenly contested honors is that of being the champion shoeblack of London. Since the title was created two years ago it has been held by W. Coutts, but recently at the annual competition at the headquarters of the Central (Reds) Shoeblack Society in Great Saffron hill, the honor was won by C. Smith, who for a year will have the right to wear a gold medal and bar. At a given signal the six competitors attacked the boots of six members of the committee, and the rapidity with which the transformation from dirty to clean was effected was marvellous. Lord Kinnaird, who was present, distributed prizes won.—London Express.

ACROSS COUNTRY.

The signs of the times point to an enormous increase of intelligent public interest in health: to a new generation with purer, stronger blood and therefore more active, braver brains and bodies.

Our stomachs are disordered, or our liver is torpid—in either case our blood does not contain the proper nourishment. A torpid liver means a healthy person, a healthy person means a healthy blood, and a healthy blood means a healthy body which will throw off the germs of disease which lurk everywhere. Get as near nature's way as you can. A medicine made entirely from botanical extracts and which does not contain alcohol is the safest. Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery contains neither alcohol nor narcotics.

BRIGHT'S DISEASE

Many people who are neglecting symptoms of kidney trouble, hoping "it will wear away," are drifting towards Bright's Disease, which is kidney trouble in one of its worst forms.

FOLEY'S KIDNEY CURE

stops irregularities, strengthens the urinary organs and builds up the worn-out tissues of the kidneys so they will perform their functions properly. Healthy kidneys strain out the impurities from the blood as it passes through them. Diseased kidneys do not, and the poisonous waste matter is carried by the circulation to every part of the body, causing dizziness, backache, stomach trouble, sluggish liver, irregular heart action, etc.

If you have any signs of Kidney or Bladder trouble commence taking FOLEY'S KIDNEY CURE at once, as it will cure a slight disorder in a few days and prevent a fatal malady. It is pleasant to take and benefits the whole system.

How to Find Out.

You can easily determine if your kidneys are out of order by setting aside for 24 hours a bottle of the urine passed upon arising. If upon examination it is cloudy or milky or has a brick-dust sediment or small particles float about in it, your kidneys are diseased, and FOLEY'S KIDNEY CURE should be taken at once.

G. B. Burkhans Testifies After Four Years.

G. B. Burkhans of Carlisle Center, N. Y., writes: "About four years ago I wrote you stating that I had been entirely cured of a severe kidney trouble by taking less than two bottles of Foley's Kidney Cure. It entirely stopped the brick-dust sediment and pain and symptoms of kidney disease disappeared. I am glad to say that I have never had a return of any of these symptoms during the four years that have elapsed, and I am evidently cured to stay cured, and heartily recommend Foley's Kidney Cure to any one suffering from kidney or bladder trouble."

WEST.

There will be services on Pocomoke Circuit next Sunday as follows: Friendship, Sunday School at 9.00 and preaching at 10.00 a. m. Christian Endeavor at 8.00 p. m.; Union, Sunday School at 9.00 and preaching at 3.00 p. m.

Mr. and Mrs. Austin J. Pusey and little son, Glenmore, are visiting relatives in Baltimore.

Mrs. Ethel Jones and little Gladys, of Baltimore, returned home Wednesday from a visit to her parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Pusey and her husband's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Perry Jones.

Rev. F. J. Phillips and wife visited Salisbury on Monday. Mrs. Phillips who has been in delicate health for a year or more has greatly improved under the efficient treatment of Dr. Gardner Spring, and is now enjoying good health.

Mr. and Mrs. Palmer Shockley, Mr. and Mrs. B. P. Taylor and two sons, Ralph and Mark, Rev. F. J. Phillips and wife were the guests of Mr. W. J. Shockley and family, who are beautifully located on a luxuriant farm about five miles below Princess Anne, on the upper banks of the Manokin River. Surely a lovely location, and whilst the day proved unfit for fishing or crabbing, a trip on their gasoline yacht was greatly enjoyed. It is needless to say that the day was pleasantly spent, and another trip looked forward to for a similar event.

FRUITLAND.

Mr. John H. Dulaney and family are sojourning at Rehoboth for a few weeks.

The store of I. H. A. Dulaney & Sons has recently become the property of Rev. H. S. Dulaney in whose name it will be conducted in the future.

Siloam camp meeting closed on the 14th. It was largely attended. There was excellent preaching and there were several converts.

The meeting was in charge of Rev. W. W. White, pastor of Fruitland charge.

Mrs. J. S. Taylor spent last week at Ocean City, while Mr. Taylor paid a visit to his mother in Virginia.

Rev. W. W. White will preach on tomorrow, Sunday, as follows: Fruitland, 10.30 a. m.; Zion, 3 p. m. and Siloam 8 p. m.

POWELLVILLE.

Mrs. Geo. H. Stockdale and daughter, Miss Emily, are visiting with relatives in Delaware this week.

The festival given last Saturday for the benefit of the M. P. Church was very successful.

Mrs. James White of Princess Anne, is the guest of her sister, Mrs. Margaret W. Speed this week.

Rev. G. H. Stockdale, Dr. C. A. Holland and Misses Bosie Crenney and Abbie White spent Tuesday at the home of Mr. Geo. S. Johnson.

Miss Annie Jones of Philadelphia is home on her vacation at present.

Mrs. John G. Adkins and children of Norfolk, Va., are visiting with relatives here.

Mr. Stanton Davis has been quite sick for the past few days of a severe pain in his chest, resulting from being hit with a board at the team mill.

Mrs. Samuel Shockley and Miss Mame Shockley spent Thursday with Mrs. Maria Adkins.

To Whom It May Concern.

For some weeks past there has appeared in this paper some items from Mardela which have been brought to my attention by parties here, such as "the young men leaving the homes of young ladies in the morning, young ladies kissing their beaux and also young ladies spooning on the street." I have read these articles with no interest but with great criticism and was not much interested as to who was writing them until I was charged with writing the same. I wish to state that in no way am I responsible for any such writings. It would be far beneath the dignity of any person to write such articles and especially a minister of the Gospel. I would further state that in the three years I have lived in Mardela I have found the ladies of that town of very moral character and by no means are they deserving such statements made either privately or publicly about them. I wish further to state that all items written by me will always have my name beneath them; they will be articles of importance and of no trifling character. Edw. P. Perry, Pastor of Mardela M. P. Church.

Colic And Diarrhoea—A Remedy That Is Prompt And Pleasant.

The prompt results produced by Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy together with its pleasant taste have won for it a place in many households. Mr. W. T. Taylor, a merchant of Winslow, Ala., writes: "I have used Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy many and also with men on my place, for diarrhoea and colic and it always gives relief promptly and pleasantly." MORE TELEPHONE TALK.

There Are Farmers and Farmers—The Difference in Business Methods.

There is the farmer who keeps no books who does not believe that a good, sound, business training, is necessary to his success and who always has a heavy mortgage hanging over his head. This man would welcome back the good old days when farming by the improved agricultural implements was unknown. He ships his crops without the least knowledge of market conditions and were any one to suggest to him that he could use the telephone and ascertain the best markets, before shipping the produce he would laugh at the idea. This is the man who complains that farming does not pay. On the other hand there is the man who runs his farm on strict business principles and who knows as much about the profit and loss account as anyone else. He knows the value of his land and what to do with it. He welcomes every labor saving device and he sends his boy to an Agricultural College so he may be best prepared to run the "old place" when it passes on to him. This is the man who uses the telephone to such good advantage that he hesitates to tell just how much money it has saved for him for fear the Telephone Company will hear about it and raise his rate. To this man the Telephone is a necessity. It brings to him the latest market quotations, the Government Weather Forecasts; his agents in the city call him up advise him regarding the movement of his crops. He summons the Doctor, calls for aid in case of fire or disorder and makes appointments in town. All this without loss of time, and without leaving his hands to do as they please while he is away from the farm. Will the Telephone pay you? Yes, this means YOU.

We have a new system to present to the farmers, and we want one and all of you to begin talking telephone among yourselves, and then come and let us talk to you about it. Whether our lines pass your farm or not, it makes no difference. We are ready and willing to consider any conditions, and if you do not take advantage of the superb service we are prepared to offer you, it will not be our fault, but because you do not believe that your farm is an up-to-date business investment, which will pay you good dividends, if you work it for what it is worth.

Come and see us, the first time you are in town. If you are too busy to come to town, you need the telephone all the more, and we will come out and see you, if you will drop a line to the Contract Department, Diamond State Telephone Company.

A TRIP TO CHINA.

Marian Wilbur dipped her fingers lazily into the water as the canoe drifted idly down stream. The music of violins and the sound of laughter and voices came to her from the brightly lighted clubhouse she had just left.

Opposite to her, in the stern, sat Howard Mann. She did not look at his face, because he was looking at her. He was always looking at her,
"for all the world like a St. Bernard puppy," she said once, a little vic-tiously.

If Marian could have seen herself as Howard Mann saw her, she would not have blamed him for looking at her so eagerly. The moonlight made her ash-colored hair gleam like silver threads, and in the flickering shadows her eyes were deep, and her fair skin fairer. Presently she hummed the refrain the violins were throbbing.

Tell me, tell me again, as you did of yore—

"That's just what I'm going to do, Marian," said Howard.

"That's only a song," laughed Marian nervously. Then she changed the subject abruptly. "Is it true that you are going to China in the fall? Tom Merritt said you were going on military service; that they had appealed to us for help in reorganizing the army, and that you were to be one of the men."

"I don't know how Merritt got hold of it, but some of it's true. I've got the chance to go; the rest of it depends on other things."

"I suppose it's a great opportunity," she broke in, "since you have chosen to be a military man by profession. How long would you be away?"

"Several years probably. One soon gets to liking a new country unless there are strings to pull a fellow home."

He picked up the paddle and shoved the canoe out from the dark shadows where it had drifted.

"I wanted to tell you before anyone else did," he resumed, "because it's you who will have to decide the question."

"I don't see how I can do that," she said. "You certainly know whether or not you want to go."

"That's just what I don't know," he answered, leaning forward and looking at her.

"You see, if I go it will be because a certain girl whom we both know has decided that she does not love me. And that's another thing I wanted to speak to you about before anyone else did."

The boat had again drifted into the shadows, and this time he let it stay.
He lit a cigarette, and when the match flared up she saw that his face was pale.

She drew her hand from the water and pressed it, cool and wet, against her burning cheek. To think that she had imagined him in love with her all this time!

"She's one of our own set," he went on. "Her father's a wealthy man, and you know I haven't a thing but my prospects. If she married me she'd have to give up most of her present luxuries, and I'm not sure she loves me enough for that."

He stopped, and she knew she should say something, but her will failed her.

"The China affair is a good chance for me," he resumed; "am I boring you?" he broke off to ask.

"No, no; go on," she said quickly.
"You see the pay is good, and it gives me a chance of quick promotion if I should come back here again.
But it's like asking a girl to go to the land of nowhere with a fellow, or asking her to wait an indefinite period with him at the other end of the world."

"If she loved you she would do either."

Surely, she thought, it was Lulu Coast; and she hated the dark-eyed, gypsy-like girl whom, she knew, was in love with Howard.

"But your advice I want it," he said suddenly. "Would you tell her about it and run the risk, or go away and trust to find her single when you came back?"

Marian realized that here was her opportunity to keep from the other girl what she could not have herself.
"Why, I hardly know," she gasped;
"let me think."

Her face was in the moonlight now, and he wondered at its curious, set expression. His heart sank. They were silent a long time, until someone up on the clubhouse dock shouted:

"Dot! Dot! Howard! Where are you two?"

"Shall we go back, Marian?" asked Howard; and she assented, glad of the chance to get out of his sight, yet unwilling to do so. He took up the paddle and the boat shot out into the middle of the river.

"Advice ready yet?" said Howard.
She answered slowly: "Yes, I've thought it out, and—and I believe I wouldn't tell her until I came back if I were you."

She saw his face pale, and she hated herself for the false advice she was giving. But she hardened her heart.
"Here we are," said Howard, "and thanks awfully for the good advice.
I shall follow it because I know I can trust to what you say. Easy there!"

Marian jumped to her feet before the canoe stopped.

"Hold on! I'll get out first."

But Marian had already stepped from the boat onto what she supposed was the wet plank. It was only a shadow, and she went straight into the water, capsizing the canoe as she went.

Howard had hold of her in a moment, and, swinging her up on the landing, climbed out after her and drew her into his arms. She had been too frightened to scream, and now she could only gasp. But in a moment she pushed him away.

"Howard!" she cried. "I want to know what I told you; she loves you.
You must go and let her tell you so.
Go now, she's up there waiting for you!"

PIGEON POSTMEN IN WAR.

Bird Which Carried 800,000 Words on Its Tail Feather.

It is a curious link with long-gone centuries that the beleaguered people of Fort Arthur have been using carrier pigeons to keep in touch with the outside world, just as the good folk of Modena did not much less than 2,000 years ago.

The most interesting use of pigeons in war was undoubtedly when they did such excellent service during the siege of Paris a generation ago. The pigeons, it may be remembered, were sent out of the doomed city by balloons—363 of them; of these, 302 were liberated, but only seventy-three set foot again in Paris. It is amazing, even in this age of miracles, to think that a single one of these pigeon postmen carried no fewer than 40,000 messages, each containing on an average 20 words. This means a grand total of 800,000 words, or the equivalent of half a dozen fairly long novels.

How was it done? Part of the mystery vanishes when we say that the weight of all these dispatches was actually less than a gramme, about one-twenty-eighth of an ounce, and that they were contained within a goose quill one and three-quarter inches long, which was attached by a silk thread to one of the bird's tail feathers. The puzzle, however, remains how it was possible to get over three-quarters of a million words within this tiny compass.

The secret of this seemingly impossible feat was microscopic photography. The messages were first printed in ordinary type, and then reduced by photography several hundred times. The photographs were taken on thin films or pellicles of collor, each of which, though it was less than two inches square, could thus contain 50,000 words. Of these pellicles a pigeon could easily carry a dozen without interfering with its comfort or speed, and, as we have seen, one bird alone conveyed 40,000 messages.

But a pigeon has carried as much as three-quarters of an ounce for a short distance. This weight would represent something like 800,000 messages, or 16,000,000 words; so that under these conditions, it would be quite possible for a pigeon to carry a small library of 120 volumes on its tail.

So impressed were army men generally with the usefulness of the pigeon as demonstrated in the Franco-German war that it was not long before practically every nation in Europe had its trained military pigeons; and today there are more than 60 military pigeon stations in Europe.

We were among the last to adopt this simple and efficient method of carrying messages in time of war; but now we have excellent lofts at Portsmouth, Dartmouth and elsewhere, where birds are kept and trained in a most scientific manner.

In the Portsmouth lofts, which are in the Royal Clarence Victualling Yard at Gosport, is an office where the official log-books are kept with the utmost detail and precision. There are also registers and report books in which the doings of every pigeon are chronicled; one volume is devoted to a record of times of liberation, another to pigeons homing at the lofts, and in another volume the various messages carried by the birds are pasted.

Among these it is interesting to notice many that have been sent to the lofts by members of our royal family when crossing the channel. The moment a bird enters the loft it is automatically shut into a box by the Poisons in Vegetables.

In preserving foods the natural colors of food products tend to fade and diminish with time. In order that this fault be remedied, the use of coloring matters has become almost universal in some forms of food products. For instance, some time ago
I was unable to find in the city of Washington a single pound of uncolored butter. Tomatoes and other red vegetables and fruits are often colored with eosin; preserved peas and beans, as is well known, have the green fixed and accentuated by the use of a very objectionable substance, namely, sulphate of copper. Added red coloring matters are often found in wines. Preserved cherries are first bleached so as to become white, then colored a beautiful red, and many other objectionable practices of similar kind are indulged in.

It is probably true that the palatability of foods is increased by having them presented in attractive forms, and to this end the natural colors which food products have and which are regarded as indexes of purity and excellence should be retained as carefully as possible. This, however, does not seem to justify the practice of any deception by the use of artificial colors for the purpose of making attractive and more pronounced colors which characterize the better kinds of food of that character.—Doctor Wiley in Pearson's.

NOBODY WAS LOOKING

Above us shone the mournful moon —before us gleamed the ice. And attentively we skated along by the side of Dorothea, our arms crossing her dear arms, and hand in hand.

"George," said Dorothea, "I could skate like this all night!"
We sighed.
"Couldn't you?" she asked.
We merely sighed again and skated on.

Above us shone the steadfast moon and past us rushed the trees, leaves, dependent and pointing a treacherous accusation with their skeleton fingers to the cold and wintry sky.

"George," said Dorothea, "you shouldn't have tried, you know!"
"Tried what?" we cried. "What did I try?"

"You know what you tried!"
"Don't neither!" we grumbled.
"Do, too! Look!"
We looked at her. She puckered her rosy little mouth and chirped:
"That's what you tried!" she gaily replied us.

Then brazenly we laughed, and still we skated on.
Above us shone the watchful moon and at us leaped the breeze, whirling around us, dashing past us, snatching, brisk, sharp; and off again as quickly as it came.

"Isn't it fine?" shouted Dorothea.
"Your cheeks are just like two red roses!" we cried (looking).
"Such a lovely night!"
"Two red and rosy roses!" we sharply cried again.

"And your mouth?"—we shouted and then (with malice) pouted.
"Yes, George?" she asked.
And silently we skated on.

"George," she repeated, "What about my mouth?"
"Look!" we cried.

She looked at us. And behold! then we pouted our lips and chin.
"Oh, George!" she cried, and the roses grew full-blown.

Above us shone the kindly moon and before us gleamed the ice. And we still we skated on by the side of Dorothea, our arms crossing her dear arms, and hand in hand.

"George," she said, "Do you remember how you tried a little while ago?"
"Yes, Dorothea!" and over we both careened to the right, our feet in exultant elevation.

"Do you think anybody is looking?"
"No, Dorothea!" and over we careened to the left, our right foot with uplifted nose and scornful of the ice.
"I am so glad!"

"Why, Dorothea?" and over to the right again.
"—And over we went to the left. "If anybody had been looking—(to the right)—it would have been a pity—(to the left)—that you made such a failure of it!"

And then quite suddenly we stopped.
Above us shone the smiling moon.
From the bank the leafless trees looked down at us and waved a gentle encouragement as they peered the news in soft and rushing waters.

"Dorothea!"
"Keep away!"
"Ah, Dorothea!"
"George, you just stay right where you are!"

"Why?" we asked.
"I'm going to show you how to make a figure 8!"

"You don't know how!" we cried, indignant at the pretext.
"But I do!"

"All right!" she murmured, "what do you want to be, George?"
"Well," we considered, "if you win we'll go to the matinee Saturday and if I win—and her we looked her in the eye and sheepishly we chirped:

"George," she warned us (and referring to the figure 8.) "I really did learn how to do this afternoon."
"I don't mind saying," we hastily remarked, "that I'm going to take you to a matinee on Saturday anyhow."

And then it was that Dorothea tried to make a figure 8, but failed. Indeed, she would have fallen if we had not been there to catch her.

"Now!" we whispered.
"Is anybody looking?" she whispered back.

Above us shone the moon, tenderly, caressingly, gleefully and—well,
there was nobody looking.

The Russian Volunteer.
It is often said that Russians are soldiers "born;" occasionally, however, one is made to order. An English visitor to Moscow was in one of the side streets recently when his attention was attracted by the scuffling of feet, the swish of a whip and the sound of loud words.

Looking across the way, he saw a stocky fellow in a blouse that ran to the ground and stoutly resisting the efforts of two soldiers to set him on his feet and make him go along.

The Englishman turned to a man in official uniform at his side, who also was watching the struggle, but without excitement or interest.

"What's the trouble?" asked the Englishman.
The official shrugged his shoulders.
"There's no trouble," he replied. "It's only a peasant turning volunteer."—

The Eye of the Submarine.
The periscope, which is the eye of the submerged boat, such as the underwater torpedo craft now being built by nearly all the leading maritime powers, is a combination of lenses and reflectors which throw upon a small screen of ground glass, at the bottom of a tube leading down into the vessel, a view of whatever would come within the range of a human eye where the periscope is fixed, which is usually about three feet above the water. This covers the sea quite well for a distance of three miles, and to get a view in any other direction than straight ahead the tube at the end of which the periscope is fixed can be turned, at the will of the officer in charge.

NEW MACHINE SHOPS

Of R. D. Grier Completed and Now Occupied. Comprises An Equipment and Arrangement Perfected By Experience.

The new machine shops of Mr. R. D. Grier are now completed and the machinery is being gradually moved in, work going on in both the new and the old buildings. The new building which was commenced in March of last year, the main part being 80x40 feet, with an octagon front forming the offices. On the left is Mr. Grier's private office while the right is fitted up as the general office, a telephone booth and lavatory being connected. The lower floor of the main building is the machine shop which is fitted up with a new boiler and new engine of larger capacity manufactured by A. B. Farquhar Co., of York, Pa. This engine, which is of the Ajax pattern runs almost noiselessly. Hoisting cranes, elevator, drills and lathes of the most approved style are aids to the best work. The building which was designed from 31 years experience by Mr. Grier himself is one of the best arranged in the country. The light which is plentiful, falls directly on the point of work, the machines being so placed that this is possible. Electric lights illuminate the building when needed, the current being obtained as in the past two years from a private dynamo in the shops.

The upper floor is a storage room with a pattern room partitioned off. An ell from the main building furnishes space for blacksmith shop and boiler room.

The building formerly occupied by the shops is to be used principally as a ware house but a portion of the machine work will be done there, the foundry remaining in the same place.

Steam will be carried from the new boiler to the engine in the old building by an underground pipe thus furnishing power for such machinery as will remain, among which is the large nine ton lathe for turning off steel tires of locomotive driving wheels.

Since 1888 Mr. Grier has increased his business from $3,000 a year to about $100,000 a year and with the greatly enlarged storage space and new shop he expects to still further increase this already large output. He will carry a larger stock of mill supplies besides gasoline engines, Ajax engines and the P. Hoe Circular saws. The offices and shops with their latest improvements and improved facilities leave little to

NEGROES IN WASHINGTON

May Only Illustrate What Conditions May Be in Baltimore And Other Maryland Cities Unless Suffrage Amendment Is Passed.

There is no place on this earth quite so sweet to the average negro as the City of Washington. It is a negro paradise, a promised land to those who long to come and those who arrive have to admit its land of fulfillment. The negro has all his rights here and some more. He generally manages to occupy rather more than the space a passenger is expected to take in a street car, and he needs more room on the sidewalk than is taken by the Anglo Saxon. I have frequently seen every white man standing in a car in order that the women may have seats, and at the same time several women hanging to straps, while big, strong negroes had comfortable seats. I have often seen negro men in Washington keep their seats when white women entered a crowded car, and allow them to stand though every white man was on his feet.

But when a negro woman entered the car she would rise at once and offer her seat to their dusky femininity. The regular visitor to the departments, where the corridors are crowded with sleek, well fed negro messengers, not one of whom aggregates one day's work in the course of a month, comes to feel contempt for the negro who is constantly on the lookout for such positions where the pay is good and the duties are light. But the negro is not so much to blame as the party that puts him on the Government payroll without requiring services in return.

Negro men with white wives are not so very rare in the District of Columbia. It is said that a negro who has a good position in one of the departments is the husband of a white woman. This couple recently created a sensation by taking a house in a portion of the city occupied solely by whites, and the lease had to be canceled because of the opposition. Fred Douglass and his wife used to be seen on the streets of Washington every day. It is a remarkable fact that nobody can be found in Washington who ever saw a white man with a negro wife.—Washington Correspondence of Richmond Times Dispatch.

PERICULUM IN MORA.

Literature Of Exposure And Its Critic—Publicity The Cure For Public Evils—Turn On The Light—Newspaper Criticism The Terror Of Evil Doers.

But few subjects are attracting more attention from the secular press, magazines and the great dailies, than corruption; and that is because corruption in politics is the most insidious and dangerous form of tyranny. Crimes in high places have become so prevalent, that a writer in the ATLANTIC MONTHLY has raised a protest against what he calls the "Literature of Exposure." He complains that "so few of the writers who cleverly point out the social ills seem to have any kind of sense in their heads." In his remarks on "social reform" he says: "They seem to have gone back to the old time Theology. They seek to apply to society, as a whole, the methods which failed with the individual. They expose in countless pages of magazines and newspapers, the sordid and depressing rottenness of our politics; the remorseless corruption of our great financiers and business men, who are bribing legislatures—who are breaking laws, and who are bribing Judges and juries. They show us the growth of business graft, the gangrene of dishonesty among honorable people, the depressing increase in the number of bribe givers and bribe takers."

His ground of protest seems to be that this "Literature of Exposure" gives no remedy. He says, "It exposes defects in the social system, but humanity itself, by the denunciation of countless number of individuals, who do real or fancied wrongs. It takes the whole burden of responsibility from the shoulders of society, and throws it all on the individual, instead of making a just apportionment of the load. The inherent defect with much of the Literature of Exposure, is that it exists merely for the shocks it gives, and is of no further profit to the community."

His Argument May Mislead.

This writer, after criticizing the newspaper exposure, and repeating a summary of the exposures, which though correct, sometimes exaggerated in form, for the sake of the shock to the community, seems to leave "the social sores" as he found them, without "salve" or lotion. Carried too far his position means too much—that crimes and criminals should not be exposed, lest the community be "shocked." The condition that begets crime is bad; but concealment is worse than exposure, as a hidden sore is worse than an eruption. It is the Divine order: "Your sins shall find you out." It is the "secret sin" of the politician that the people should fear. His, is not the prayer of the Psalmist "Cleanse Thou me of secret faults." But he prays, "Expose me not to public gaze, and I will dwell in the tabernacles of the mighty all the days of my life, and verily I shall fool the people and they shall call me smart and I shall be great in their sight."

Newspaper criticism is the dread of the politicians as of other evil doers. Cardinal Gibbons in a recent interview referred to this, and while he admitted that it was not the highest influence, and the fear of it did not beget in men the best of motives, its deterrent effect was wholesome. No doubt the corruptionist will admit that exposure is altogether bad and dangerous, for him.

Publicity A Remedy.

This writer seems to offer no adequate remedy, but we submit that exposure itself is a remedy preventive more than curative, probably. The public trial of the criminal exposes him to himself and to the community, and if it fails to reform him, it becomes a warning to others and is educational in teaching the people what the criminal law is, and its object: "Ignorance of the law excuses no one," is a legal maxim, and therefore the laws should not be written at the top of a monument where the people can not see them, as Nero did, nor hidden away.

Newspaper exposure is a form of agitation which is essential to reform. Let them tell the community, and the community can apply the "salve." If the leading citizen is disposed to reform, let by gones be forgotten; but if the people find him unworthy of further public confidence, they can consign him to the limbo of private life. Publicity is the recognized remedy for corporate evils; why not for other public evils? If it fails as a corrective for wrong doers, it is a healthy preventative for others not yet gone wrong.

We doubt not that Senator Depew, though he has committed no crime against the civil law, would gladly give up his place in the U. S. Senate for the place he held in the public esteem, six months ago. Yet some of our most prominent and influential citizens have committed crimes in politics, in comparison with which the offenses of Senators Depew and Mitchell seem insignificant. The people are not "shocked" because so little exposure is given of their offenses and so much publicity is given to their influence. Concealment is the friend of vice and the foe of virtue.

The Writer's Attitude Not Altogether Philosophical.

He is a philosophical in making a distinction between "the community" and the "individual," that constitutes the community; between "society" and the individual who are its constituent parts; between "the social system" and "humanity" that makes and manages the system.

A community or society is not conceivable aside from its individual units; a social system is not workable except by individuals; and humanity is purely abstract without human beings.

Sir Thomas More created an imaginary social system, invented an island in which to apply it, and peopled it with imaginary beings, who worked his system according to his altruistic principles. The Golden Rule is a rule of conduct between single individuals. "Return good for evil," is a rule for private wrongs; but a public wrong is one committed against a community or commonwealth; and experience has taught mankind, that society can only be preserved by applying a public remedy; that is a rule of enforced restraint, or the law of force for the public wrong doers.

As the writer referred to, says, "It is important to the community as it is to the individual, that its capacity for being shocked with itself should remain unimpaired." But that is no reason for withholding the shock when necessity requires it; but it is a reason for eternal vigilance on the part of individuals and the whole community.

DELIGHTFUL RAILWAY TRIP

To Claiborne Via B. C. & A. Given By Superintendent Benjamin. As Seen By One Who Was There.

Tuesday, August 15th, was the time appointed for the annual picnic given by Mr. A. J. Benjamin for the choir of the Presbyterian church, their families and a few outside friends. At the appointed time the merry party assembled at the station and at the suggestion of the host boarded the special coach awaiting them, arranged themselves in happy groups and strolled upon the anticipated pleasure of the day all due to the liberality of our genial host.

At Easton the party was joined by General and Mrs. Seth, her two sisters, Mrs. Murphy and Miss Walker, Miss Goldborough, Miss Crane and Mr. Higgin. Every hand was extended in cordial greeting to the friends so pleasantly associated with the party in the two previous years.

At Royal Oak, Talbot county, made a noble effort to add dignity to the occasion in sending a representative of justice, Judge Martin. He was accompanied by Mrs. Martin, his son and daughter, Mrs. John Martin and family, Miss Easter of Washington, and Miss Wright.

The objective point, Claiborne, was reached as we were aware of the fact due to rapid transit that has become a very pronounced feature of this road. We found awaiting us a most delightful and invigorating breeze from the bay and we enjoyed it to the full extent.

Then came the feature of the day, the dinner! Words fail, space forbids a detailed account—give imagination full sway and then feast.

General Seth had provided a yacht for those who cared for a sail, and a number took advantage of the stiff breeze and had a delightful trip on the bay. The remainder, not such enthusiastic sailors, remained at the pavilion where they were pleasantly entertained by two musicians with violins and cello and when there was a call for Lancers, Quadrille and even old fashioned Virginia Reel if you imagine there was no response you mistake, the opportunity was seized and there was balancing of partners on every hand. The limited time called for an early and short supper after which we boarded the train for home, and when there was a call for a vote of thanks to be given our host and his wife and their worthy aides, General and Mrs. Seth, the car rang with our cheers of response.

From Salisbury we were:—
Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Benjamin, Mr. and Mrs. Vaughn Gordy and son, Mr. and Mrs. J. D. Wallop and family, Mr. and Mrs. W. U. Polk, Mr. and Mrs. Alex Toadvine, Mr. and Mrs. A. G. Smith and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. R. D. Grier and family, Dr. and Mrs. F. M. Stemons, Dr. and Mrs. Gardiner Spring and family, Mrs. J. D. Williams, Mrs. E. T. Fowler, Miss Nellie and Carrie Fish, Nannie Fulton, Mary Toadvine, Carrie Adkins, Nannie Kelley, Marian Vessey, and her guests, Mrs. M. V. Alderman of Tampa, Florida and Miss Scott, Philadelphia.

COUNTY REPUBLICANS

Hold Their Convention In The Court House Tuesday, Change Personnel Of Central Committee And Nominate A Ticket.

The Wicomico Republican county convention, held here Tuesday furnished excitement and action a plenty for the occasion and some party surprises. The delegates as they arrived reported at the office of Hon. William H. Jackson, where a preliminary talk ensued.

A party caucus was held in Parson's Opera House at 11 o'clock, when the real fight of the day was taken up, that of altering the State Central Committee. The faction of the party led by Postmaster M. A. Humphreys wanted a change in the committee. They were after the retirement of ex-postmaster E. S. Adkins and ex-commander of the Oyster Navy, E. S. Turner. The caucus could not come to terms, so it adjourned to the Court-house green, where a half hour was given over to some pulling and hauling.

The convention convened at 12 o'clock with nothing definite fixed as to the committee. Mr. Adkins called the convention to order and Capt. L. A. Parsons was made chairman. Mr. A. F. Benjamin was chosen secretary. A committee of one from each district reported resolutions condemning the Poe amendment and the Haman Oyster Bill, but in favor of good roads. The Miller plank on the Negro Re-nouement office Resolutions was laid aside it being deemed ill advised at present. The following ticket was nominated:

House of Delegates—L. B. Duncan, of Pittsburg; Elmer H. Walton, of Salisbury; and Samuel A. Langrall, of Nantuxco.

County Commissioners—Alonso Williams, of Salisbury; Frank J. Willing, of Nantuxco, and Jesse Fooks of Camden.

Sheriff—Capt. L. P. Coulbourn, of Parsons.

Surveyor—Thomas W. English, of Mardela Springs.

The fight for members of the State Central Committee was then taken up. The first ballot elected Hon. William H. Jackson, W. H. Knowles, James O. Wilson and tied E. S. Adkins and John H. Tomlinson. Mr. Adkins withdrew his name, and the election of Mr. Tomlinson was declared. This removes Mr. Adkins and E. S. Turner from the committee, of which they have been members for a number of years. The committee as it stands will no doubt be favorable to the re-appointment of Postmaster Humphreys at Salisbury.

Many old line Republicans of many years regularity in their allegiance to the party were greatly dissatisfied by the retirement of Messrs. Adkins and Turner who are regarded as two of their strongest men, from the Central Committee.

There was not a colored delegate present. Heretofore there have always been a few colored delegates.

The following delegates were elected to the State convention:

T. W. English, B. J. D. Phillips, A. L. Winagte, E. S. Adkins, John H. Tomlinson, Archibald, A. Jones, J. H. Hayman, W. B. Miller, F. O. Robinson, W. H. Jackson, William M. Day, William J. White, W. R. Bomberger and M. A. Humphreys.

FARM AND GARDEN

NOTES ON THE RASPBERRY

Attention to Details Brings Big Crops and Fine Fruit.

After many years' experience in growing raspberries, I find no soil more satisfactory than a good mellow loam with a clay subsoil. If the clay subsoil has a little mixture of gravel with it, so much the better.

The Gregg black raspberry is an old timer that I find gives best results when a good coat of barnyard manure is scattered around the hills early in the spring. If you are rushed with work in early spring the winter is just as well on level ground.

The London red raspberry would be all right if it were not subject to root gall, and on this account I wish that it could be discarded from the list of good sorts. It undoubtedly would have been discarded before this had it not been profitable for nurserymen to offer the plants for sale, as much money was back of the variety to boom it.

If your raspberries are not doing as well for you as in past seasons possibly you are not keeping watch for the anthracnose sort of coppery looking spots and slight dents in the bark of the fruiting canes. If the hills are young I cut out the canes that are diseased, if old plants then I find the best plan is to dig them out and burn the brush.

A mistake that many growers make is to plant out too large an acreage of raspberries. Raspberries as well as any of the other bush fruits, need better care than generally is given them. A certain grower reasoned this way: "I will put out a good big lot of them and cultivate three or four times and then let them take care of themselves." The fruits of this man's labor was just about what one might expect—a berry inferior in size, 25 per cent of a crop and a class of berries that generally causes a glut in the market.

If the large acreage man would set out one-half the acreage he had in mind then scatter plenty of manure around the hills and work it into the soil thoroughly he would realize more clear profit.

The best results in manuring the raspberry are secured by applying the manure each season. Don't think it will do to let the first season's application do for three or four years, but apply it liberally, each season, and it will surprise you to find out how much you can grow even on a small plot of ground of this fruit.

It is unwise to cultivate raspberries late in the season. Plenty of time should be given for the new fruiting canes to ripen up before winter sets in thus enabling the plants to be hardy enough to stand a very cold winter.

Plenty of humus or vegetable mold in the soil is congenial to the raspberries as it grows a strong healthy cane early in the season.

As easy as it is to start a new patch of raspberries I would have a new one coming on so that I could dig up the old one after it had given me three or four crops.

CHARLES G. NASH.Prevention of Chlorosis in Trees.

The use of sulphate of iron for the prevention of chlorosis is commented upon, this chemical being used not only to water about the roots, but also as a spray to the leaves. When used in too strong a solution; it frequently injures the foliage to a very considerable extent.

A treatment is described which consists of thoroughly spraying the trees in autumn with a concentrated solution of copper sulphate. This treatment has been successfully applied in a number of instances, and it is further recommended for the horizontal branches of the trees that, cutting through the bark at intervals of about a foot, will aid in admitting the iron salt to the tree and obtain more rapid results. Another method mentioned is that of boring small holes into the affected trees and putting from 4 to 12 gm. of sulphate of iron into the tree trunk.

Apple and Cherry Trees.

Apple and cherry trees should ordinarily be sprayed three times each season: (1) Just before the blossoms open; (2) immediately after the blossoms fall; (3) seven to ten days after the second application. The best material to use is the combined mixture of Bordeaux and Paris green, consisting of four pounds copper sulphate, four pounds lime, and four ounces Paris green to fifty gallons of water. The lime is slaked in water and diluted to twenty-five gallons. The copper sulphate is dissolved and likewise diluted to twenty-five gallons. The Paris green, previously mixed with a small quantity of water, is added to the diluted lime mixture. Then the diluted lime and the diluted copper sulphate are poured together and thoroughly stirred.

Indian Superstitions.

The Indian believes there are boa constrictors in the streams of North America, also that the South American tapir lives in North America. He calls the boa constrictor the ite-ach-wan-yer, and calls the tapir nee-ach-wan-yer.

The Indian believes he has a cure and preventive for rabies or hydrophobia. He also believes he can cure any snake bite on earth, from a ground rattler to a velvet tail or diamond rattler. An Indian never was known to go mad from a dog bite or die from a rattler's bite, while other races succumb to the venom of a snake or go mad from the bite of a rabid dog.

The Indian, when in battle and fatally wounded, believes that if his medicine man can reach him with his bitter medicine before he dies it will give him instant relief and he will be able to escape from the battle-field. He thinks every man is honest until he finds him out, in which event he loses all confidence in him, and never gets over it.

The Indian never makes up after falling out with any one. He may speak to an enemy as he passes, but dies with the hatred in his heart.

JAPANESE FINE ARMY SURGERY.

Effective Discipline Better Maintained When Surgeon Is An Officer.

Major Seaman said that the Surgeon General of the army should be at least a major general. Without rank and prestige he said the medical officers of the army would be unable to enforce the respect and discipline necessary for effective service. A lack of such rank and prestige was the curse of the British medical service, which, in his opinion, is as far behind the Japanese as is the American.

Major Seaman relates his observations of the medical service of the Japanese army during the Manchurian campaign. He said:—

"We are not to be compared with the Japanese in medical and sanitary organization. They have a medical director of their army who ranks as a lieutenant general. They have six officers who rank as major generals. They have one who ranks as a brigadier general with every 20,000 men in the line, and they have the power to enforce their orders. I was at Hiroshima last summer when 9,860 men were brought from the front. Of that number only 34 died. The vast majority of them got well and were returned to the front.

There were 1,106 brought to Tokio—a great many stretcher cases—and of that number not a single man died, although they were shot in almost every possible way. Six of them had bullets through the brain in front of the chest. Nine had bullets through their chests. Six had bullets through their abdomens, the point of exit and entrance being discernible in all cases. And they all got well. That was because they were fed on a ration that is a rational ration, and they did not have their systems loaded with uric acid and other elements that excite inflammation after injury and cause death.

"It is much too early to submit statistical proof, but from careful observation I venture to predict the records of the Japanese hospitals will show a large reduction in the percentage of mortality from casualties, especially in penetrating wounds of the skull, chest and abdomen, and injuries to osseous structures. Indeed, of every variety of wounds except perhaps those of the spinal cord, when compared with the statistics of former wars.—New York Herald.

Origin of the Deadly Yellow Fever.

The discovery of yellow fever, according to a student of the disease in this city, dates back to the first years of the discovery of America, when the disease broke out among the sailors of Columbus in San Domingo. But the first authentic account is of an epidemic which occurred in the Barbados in 1647. Since then innumerable epidemics have ravaged the cities of North and South America, Central America, and even Europe. During the Napoleonic wars the most extensive epidemics occurred. In 1800 Cadiz was visited by this scourge, which attacked 48,000 out of 57,000, 8,000 dying in a few months. One of the worst epidemics which has ever ravaged the United States occurred in 1853 and extended along the Atlantic coast through all the Southern states and as far north as Rhode Island. One hundred and twenty-five thousand persons were stricken, more than 20,000 dying of the disease.

A peculiarity of the germ of yellow fever is that it may be carried long distances and preserve its vitality for months. During the epidemic of 1800 in Cadiz there was an instance of this. A native fleeing from the infected city went to his villa in Medina Sidonia, and there died of the disease on his arrival. The house was immediately closed and the following year the articles of clothing and furniture were sold to a dealer in junk. He died of yellow fever in a few days and the epidemic which followed was directly traced to this case.

The infected trunk of a man who had died in the Barbados of the disease was the beginning of the outbreak in Philadelphia in 1741.

The effects of this man, a Mr. Bingham, were sent out from the place where he died and the germs had enough vitality in them when the trunk was unpacked to lead to a disastrous outbreak. Individuals of all ages and races are attacked. It was at one time thought that the creole was immune, but this is found to be a mistake. The negro is not as susceptible as the white man, but he is by no means exempt. One attack, as a rule, seems to render the victim immune for life, though the immunity may be lost by a prolonged stay in a northern climate. Yellow fever is a hot-weather disease, being most prevalent in June, July and August. One or two frosts may arrest an epidemic, though it may reappear on the return of warm weather.

A workman on the Siberian railway was accidentally locked in a refrigerator car and was afterward found dead. Imagining that he was being slowly frozen to death, he had recorded his sufferings with a piece of chalk on the floor. The temperature in the car had not fallen below 50 degrees Fahrenheit throughout the journey.

There is an establishment in Brussels where grave-digging is taught, and it has been decided that all sections in Belgium must be graduates of this academy.

Banana skins are in demand in England, particularly at hotels, for the cleaning of boots.

A man who is satisfied with his job never reaches the top of the ladder.

Grafting the Apple Root.

Prof. Troop of Purdue, says: To ascertain the relative influence on the growth and longevity of the tree resulting from grafting the scion on a whole piece of root. Some of these trees are now in bearing, and while it is too early to draw any conclusions concerning the relative longevity of the trees, it would be a difficult matter to detect any difference in the size which could result from either method. It seems to be practically settled that each variety will form its own root system regardless of the length of root used as a starter.

NEW MACHINE SHOPS

Of R. D. Grier Completed And Now Occupied. Comprises An Equipment And Arrangement Perfected By Experience.

The new machine shops of Mr. R. D. Grier are now completed and the machinery is being gradually moved in, work going on in both the new and the old buildings. The new building which was commenced in March is of brick, two story, the main part being 80x40 feet, with an octagon front forming the offices. On the left is Mr. Grier's private office while the right is fitted up as the general office, a telephone booth and lavatory being connected. The lower floor of the main building is the machine shop which is fitted up with a new boiler and new engine of larger capacity manufactured by A. B. Farquhar Co., of York, Pa. This engine, which is of the Ajax pattern runs almost noiselessly. Hoisting cranes, elevator, drills and lathes of the most approved style are aids to the best work. The building which was designed from 81 years experience by Mr. Grier himself is one of the best arranged in the country. The light which is plentiful, falls directly on the point of work, the machines being so placed that this is possible. Electric lights illuminate the building when needed, the current being obtained as in the past two years from a private dynamo in the shops.

The upper floor is a storage room with a pattern room partitioned off. An ell from the main building furnishes space for blacksmith shop and boiler room.

The building formerly occupied by the shops is to be used principally as a warehouse but a portion of the machine work will be done there, the foundry remaining in the same place.

Steam will be carried from the new boiler to the engine in the old building by an underground pipe thus furnishing power for such machinery as will remain, among which is the large nine ton lathe for turning of steel tires of locomotive driving wheels.

Since 1888 Mr. Grier has increased his business from $3,000 a year to about $90,000 a year and with the greatly enlarged storage space and new shop he expects to still further increase this already large output. He will carry a large stock of mill supplies besides gasoline engines, Ajax engines and the P. Hoe Circular saws. The offices and shops with their late improvements and improved facilities leave little to

May Only Illustrate What Conditions May Be In Baltimore And Other Maryland Cities Unless Suffrage Amendment Is Passed.

There is no place on this earth quite so sweet to the average negro as the City of Washington. It is a negro paradise, a promised land to those who long to come and those who arrive have to admit its land of fulfillment. The negro has all his rights here and some more. He generally manages to occupy rather more than the space a passenger is expected to take in a street car, and he needs more room on the sidewalk than is taken by the Anglo Saxon. I have frequently seen every white man standing in a car in order that the women may have seats, and at the same time several women hanging to straps, while big, strong negroes had comfortable seats. I have often seen negro men in Washington keep their seats when white women entered a crowded car, and allow them to stand though every white man was on his feet.

But when a negro woman entered the darkest would rise at once and offer their seats to their dusky fellow. The regular visitor to the departments, where the corridors are crowded with sleek, well fed negro messengers, not one of whom aggregates one day's work in the course of a month, comes to feel contempt for the negro who is constantly on the lookout for such positions where the pay is good and the duties are light. But the negro is not so much to blame as the party that puts him on the Government payroll without requiring services in return.

Negro men with white wives are not so very rare in the District of Columbia. It is said that a negro who has a good position in one of the departments is the husband of a white woman. This couple recently created a sensation by taking a house in a portion of the city occupied solely by whites, and the house had to be canceled because of the opposition. Fred Douglass and his wife used to be seen on the streets of Washington every day. It is a remarkable fact that nobody can be found in Washington who ever saw a white man with a negro wife.—Washington Correspondence Richmond Times Dispatch.

PERICULUM IN MORA.

Literature Of Exposure And Its Critic—Publicity The Cure For Public Evils—Turn On The Light—Newspaper Criticism The Terror Of Evil Doers.

But few subjects are attracting more attention from the secular press, magazines and the great dailies, than corruption; and that is because corruption in politics is the most insidious and dangerous form of tyranny. Crimes in high places have become so prevalent, that a writer in the ATLANTIC MONTHLY has raised a protest against what he calls the "Literature of Exposure." He complains that "so few of the writers who cleverly point out the social ills seem to have any kind of salve in their hands." In his remarks on "social reforms" he says: "They seem to have gone back to the old time Theology. They seek to apply to society, as a whole, the methods which failed with the individual. They expose in countless pages of magazines and newspapers, the sordid and depressing rottenness of our politics; the remorseless corruption of our great financiers and business men, who are bribing legislatures—who are breaking laws, and who are bribing judges and juries. They show us the growth of business graft, the gangrene of dishonesty among honorable people, the depressing increase in the number of bribe givers and bribe takers."

His ground of protest seems to be that this "Literature of Exposure" gives no remedy. He says, "It exposes not defects in the social system, but humanity itself, by the denunciation of countless number of individuals, who do real or fancied wrongs. It takes the whole burden of responsibility from the shoulders of society, and throws it all on the individual, instead of making a just apportionment of the load. The inherent defect with much of the Literature of Exposure, is that it exists merely for the shocks it gives, and is of no further profit to the community."

His Argument May Mislead.

This writer, after criticizing the newspaper exposure, and repeating a summary of the exposures, which though correct, sometimes exaggerated in form, for the sake of the shock to the community, seems to leave "the social sordid" as he found them, without "salve" or lotion. Carried too far his position means too much—that crimes and criminals should not be exposed, lest the community be "shocked." The condition that begets crime is bad; but concealment is worse than exposure, as a hidden sore is worse than an eruption. It is the Divine order: "Your sins shall find you out." It is the "secret sin" of the politician that the people should fear. His, is not the prayer of the Psalmist "Cleanse Thou me of secret faults." But he prays, "Expose me not to public gaze, and I will dwell in the tabernacles of the mighty all the days of my life, and verily I shall fool the people and they shall call me smart and I shall be great in their sight."

Newspaper criticism is the dread of the politicians as of other evil doers. Cardinal Gibbons in a recent interview referred to this, and while he admitted that it was not the highest influence, and the fear of it did not beget in men the best of motives, its deterrent effect was wholesome. No doubt the corruptionist will admit that exposure is altogether bad and dangerous, for him.

Publicity A Remedy.

This writer seems to offer no adequate remedy, but we submit that exposure itself is a remedy preventive more than curative, probably. The public trial of the criminal exposes him to himself and to the community, and if it fails to reform him, it becomes a warning to others and is educational in teaching the people what the criminal law is, and its object. "Ignorance of the law excuses no one," is a legal maxim, and therefore the laws should not be written at the top of a monument where the people can not see them, as Nero did, nor hidden away.

Newspaper exposure is a form of agitation which is essential to reform. Let them tell the community, and the community can apply the "salve." If the leading citizen is disposed to reform, let by gone be forgotten; but if the people find him unworthy of further public confidence, they can consign him to the limbo of private life. Publicity is the recognized remedy for corporate evils; why not for other public evils? If it fails as a corrective for wrong doers, it is a healthy preventative for others not yet gone wrong.

We doubt not that Senator Depew, though he has committed no crime against the civil law, would gladly give up his place in the U. S. Senate for the place he held in the public esteem, six months ago. Yet some of our most prominent and influential citizens have committed crimes in politics, in comparison with which the offenses of Senators Depew and Mitchell seem insignificant. The people are not "shocked" because so little exposure is given of their offenses and so much publicity is given to their influence. Concealment is the friend of vice and the foe of virtue.

The Writer's Attitude Not Altogether Philosophical.

He is a philosophical in making a distinction between "the community" and "the individual," that constitutes the community; between "society" and the individual who are its constituents parts; between "the social system" and "humanity" that makes and manages the system.

A community or society is not conceivable aside from its individual units; a social system is not workable except by individuals; and humanity is purely abstract without human beings.

Sir Thomas More created an imaginary social system, invented an island in which to apply it, and peopled it with imaginary beings, who worked his system according to his altruistic principles. The Golden Rule is a rule of conduct between single individuals. "Return good for evil," is a rule for private wrongs; but a public wrong is one committed against a community or commonwealth; and experience has taught mankind, that society can only be preserved by applying a public remedy; that is a rule of enforced restraint, or the law of force for the public wrong doers.

As the writer referred to, says, "It is important to the community as it is to the individual, that its capacity for being shocked with itself should remain unimpaired." But that is no reason for withholding the shock when necessity requires it; but it is a reason for eternal vigilance on the part of individuals and the whole community.

DELIGHTFUL RAILWAY TRIP

To Claiborne Via B. C. & A. Given By Superintendent Benjamin. As Seen By One Who Was There.

Tuesday, August 15th, was the time appointed for the annual picnic given by Mr. A. J. Benjamin for the choir of the Presbyterian church, their families and a few outside friends. At the appointed time the merry party assembled at the station and at the suggestion of the host boarded the special coach awaiting them, arranged themselves in happy groups and strolled upon the anticipated pleasure of the day all due to the liberality of our genial host.

At Easton the party was joined by General and Mrs. Beth, her two sisters, Mrs. Murphy and Miss Walker, Mrs. Goldborough, Miss Craze and Mr. Higgin. Every hand was extended in cordial greeting to the friends so pleasantly associated with the party in the two previous years.

At Royal Oak, Talbot county, made a noble effort to add dignity to the occasion in sending a representative of justice, Judge Martin. He was accompanied by Mrs. Martin, his son and daughter, Mrs. John Martin and family, Miss Easter of Washington, and Miss Wright.

The objective point, Claiborne, was reached ere we were aware of the fact due to rapid transit that has become a very pronounced feature of this road. We found awaiting us a most delightful and invigorating breeze from the bay and we enjoyed it to the full extent.

COUNTY REPUBLICANS

Hold Their Convention In The Court House Tuesday, Change Personnel Of Central Committee And Nominate A Ticket.

The Wicomico Republican county convention, held here Tuesday furnished excitement and action a plenty for the occasion and some party surprises. The delegates as they arrived reported at the office of Hon. William H. Jackson, where a preliminary talk ensued.

A party caucus was held in Parson's Opera House at 11 o'clock, when the real fight of the day was taken up, that of altering the State Central Committee. The faction of the party led by Postmaster M. A. Humphreys wanted a change in the committee. They were after the retirement of ex-postmaster E. S. Adkins and ex-commander of the Oyster Navy, E. S. Turner. The caucus could not come to terms, so it adjourned to the Court-house green, where a half hour was given over to some pulling and hauling.

The convention convened at 12 o'clock with nothing definite fixed as to the committee. Mr. Adkins called the convention to order and Capt. L. A. Parsons was made chairman. Mr. A. F. Benjamin was chosen secretary. A committee of one from each district reported resolutions condemning the Poe amendment and the Haman Oyster Bill, but in favor of good roads. The Miller plank on the Negro Renunciation office Resolutions was laid aside it being deemed ill advised at present. The following ticket was nominated:

House of Delegates—L. B. Duncan, of Pittsburg; Elmer H. Walton, of Salisbury; and Samuel A. Langrill, of Nantux.

County Commissioners—Alonzo Williams, of Salisbury; Frank A. Willing, of Nantux; and Alfred Fooks of Camden.

Sheriff—Capt. L. P. Conibear, of Parsons.

Surveyor—Thomas W. English, of Mardela Springs.

The fight for members of the State Central Committee was then taken up. The first ballot elected Hon. William H. Jackson, W. H. Knowles, James O. Wilson and tied E. S. Adkins and John H. Tomlinson. Mr. Adkins withdrew his name, and the election of Mr. Tomlinson was declared. This removes Mr. Adkins and E. S. Turner from the committee, of which they have been members for a number of years. The committee as it stands will no doubt be favorable to the reappointment of Postmaster Humphreys at Salisbury.

Many old line Republicans of many years regularity in their allegiance to the party were greatly dissatisfied by the retirement of Messrs. Adkins and Turner who are regarded as two of their strongest men, from the Central Committee.

There was not a colored delegate present. Heretofore there have always been a few colored delegates.

The following delegates were elected to the State convention:

T. W. English, B. J. D. Phillips, A. L. Winante, E. S. Adkins, John H. Tomlinson, Archibald, A. Jones, J. H. Hayman, W. B. Miller, P. O. Robinson, W. H. Jackson, William M. Day, William J. White, W. R. Bomberger and M. A. Humphreys.

JUDGE OF THE SUPREME COURT

Was Alarmingly Afflicted With La Grippe.

Cured by Pe-ru-na.

HON. W. H. PARSONS.

Pe-ru-na cures more cases of la grippe than all other remedies combined.

reaches the source of all diseases of the mucous membranes by its action on the vaso-motor system of nerves. Every person who has had la grippe during the last year should take a course of Peru-na. No one need expect perfect recovery unless they do so. The grippe has produced catarrhal inflammation of the whole mucous membrane, and good health is impossible until these are restored to a normal condition. This Peru-na will do. A great many remedies have been suggested for this condition from time to time, but Peru-na appears to be the only remedy that has any substantial value in these cases. It has never failed to give satisfaction during forty years' experience and still occupies the unique position of being the leading (if not the only) specific remedy for the after-effects of la grippe.

Henry Distin, the inventor and maker of all the hand instruments for the Henry Distin Manufacturing Co., writes the following from 1441 South Ninth Street, Philadelphia, Pa.:

"I had a bad attack of la grippe last December which lasted more than three months, and which left me with catarrh, and several of my friends advised me to try Peru-na. I began with a bottle the first week in March and it certainly did me a great deal of good. I was so well satisfied that I purchased another bottle and followed the directions, and can say that it has cured me."—Henry Distin.

If you do not derive prompt and satisfactory results from the use of Peru-na, write at once to Dr. Hartman, giving a full statement of your case and he will be pleased to give you his valuable advice gratis.

Address Dr. Hartman, President of The Hartman Sanitarium, Columbus, O.

W. H. Parsons is Ex-State Senator and Ex-Special Judge of the Supreme Court of Texas, also Brigadier-General in Confederate Army. In a recent letter from 925 11 Street, N. W., Washington, D. C., this prominent gentleman says:

"Upon the recommendation of personal friends and many strong testimonials as to the efficacy of Peru-na in the treatment of the numerous symptoms of the grippe with which I have been afflicted for four months past, I have been induced to undergo a treatment with this justly celebrated formula. I feel a decided change for the better after using it only one week. It is especially good in toning up the stomach and has had a decided effect upon my appetite. I therefore feel much encouraged that I am on the road to complete restoration."

"My numerous friends in Texas, where I have had the honor to command a brigade of her Veterans Cavalry in a four years' war, may accept this voluntary testimonial to the merits of Peru-na as a sense of obligation on my part for its wonderful efficacy."—W. H. Parsons.

There is no remedy in the world that soothes while it stimulates, heals as it expurgates. Peru-na is not a purgative, or cathartic, or sedative, or stimulant. Peru-na strengthens as it renovates. It is a vegetable or mineral poison. It

BALTIMORE'S BEST STORE.
Hochschild, Kohn & Co.
 HOWARD AND LEXINGTON STREETS.
 We Prepay Freight Charges to all points within 125 miles of Baltimore on all Purchases Amounting to $5.00 or more.

WE ARE HOLDING A SALE OF THE ENTIRE STOCK OF THE CHAS. SIMON'S SONS COMPANY.
 208 N. HOWARD STREET

We have acquired the building and the entire stock of the Chas. Simon's Sons Co., 208 North Howard Street—next door to us.

This is not news to most of you—the papers told of the acquisition at the time it was made—some weeks ago.

The Simon business is the oldest retail dry goods business in Baltimore. It has an honorable past of 90 years—three generations.

It has always been a high-grade business—never an element of the sensational or the shoddy has entered into it. By reason of the decision of the members of the firm of the Chas. Simon's Sons Co. to retire from business, there are opportunities to buy the fine goods for which the store is famous at much less than former prices.

Every course of action that has earned for The Chas. Simon's Sons Co. the goodwill and respect of the public will be continued for time to come; every tradition that has endeared the store to its patrons will be preserved.

The sale will continue until the entire stock is sold—possibly a month.

The child of seven makes obeisance to the patriarch of ninety—hand-in-hand they will go into the broad future together.

MAKES BABIES GROW HEALTHY

POULTRY
 KEEP POULTRY FOR PROFIT.
 Money in Proper Care and Feeding for Farmers.

One of the main reasons that more money is not made out of poultry is the careless way in which the chickens are treated. They are looked upon as scavengers, and as a rule, they go hungry. When the young chicks are fed it is too often the case that instead of placing their feed on clean boards where the chicks can easily get at it, the feed is dumped down amid the dirt and refuse of the coop. This can easily be rectified by the use of old plates, pie dishes or other cooking utensils which are unfit for use in the kitchen. These should be thoroughly rinsed out before the feed is put in them, and it will be surprising at the rapid development the dainty little chicks make when thus treated.

The poultry should be treated as if it were profitable and not as a nuisance. Instead of giving the poultry any kind of an old house for shelter, care should be taken that the house is kept warm and has nearly a summer condition as is possible without using artificial heat.

The perches should be regularly and thoroughly cleaned and oiled, the nests renewed and the house white-washed inside and out. Instead of a board floor on which trash is allowed to accumulate week after week, several inches of the earth should be removed and replaced with sand, topped with gravel. Plenty of cut green bone, charcoal or pounded glass or china dishes should be kept where it is accessible to the poultry at all times.

The most successful poultrymen prefer to feed grain at intervals throughout the day. The grain is fed in a litter of straw in order that the chickens may get the needed exercise in scratching for the grain. Skim milk should be given in abundance, as it contains one of the best protein foods. Chickens should be fed as regularly as a work horse, the dog, or the ranchman himself. If the proper care is exercised with the poultry it will soon be found that in proportion to the cost of keeping, the poultry will yield as much or more revenue as is realized from any other industry on the ranch.

Good Housing Necessary.
 Good housing adds to the comfort and cheerfulness of the fowls; it conditions them bodily and subsequently stimulates the production of eggs at a time when eggs are in demand at a premium. Hot, highly seasoned, stimulating foods may contribute something toward the production of bodily heat; which, is, of course, essential to the growth and development of the egg; but the natural, steady, even bodily warmth is no longer present when the hot, stimulating mash is brought on. We must look to resources other than the pepper box if we would induce activity in the action of the egg functions; it is the healthy action induced by scratching and exercising that properly diffuses bodily heat and causes the egg organs to perform their natural work.

Don't Start Too Large.
 A great many failures result from starting on too large a scale; it is better to be sure you can make it profitable in a small way before you attempt large things. After you are sure that you understand the business in its details, you are ready to make a larger business profitable. There is much in every industry that can be learned only by experience, and this is especially true of poultry culture.

Scratching Shed.
 The scratching shed is not an absolute necessity in connection with the roosting room, provided the poultry keeper numbers his flock proportionately to the size or capacity of the roosting apartment. It is well to arrange curtains that can be dropped about the roost platform at night which protects the birds from draughts that are sure to exist at times. The poultry house need not be elaborate in design, nor expensive in construction; it should be built in a manner that will insure warmth without artificial heat.

THEATRE TICKETS.

"Will you be at home to-night?" asked one young man of another as they stepped out of an office building at the close of business hours.

"Home every night," muttered the other young man, darkly.

"Well, that's something new, isn't it? I thought you spent nearly every evening at Mildred Basset's."

"Did you to a few nights ago?"

"Quarrelled, eh?"

"It's this way. Last Monday evening I was going to take her to the theatre—determined at the last minute, you know. I swallowed my dinner as quickly as I could, jumped into my clothes and hurried to Mildred's house. Just as I was running up the steps I remembered that I had left the theatre tickets in my office coat. There was nothing to do but fly back home and get them. Maybe you think I wasn't hot by the time I had reached Mildred's to our house and back again. My collar was a wreck and I'm sure my color was a deep shade of tomato red."

"I was almost breathless, but I went up the stairs four steps at a time and rang the doorbell violently for I was dreadfully late. To my dismay and horror I found when the door was swung open that I had comed those pesky gray-stone houses wrong. Instead of being in the vestibule of Mildred Basset's house I was in the reception hall at the Wynnes' and pretty little Ethel Wynne, whom I hadn't called on for three months, was standing beside me, extending her hand and saying in her sweet, frank way that she was very glad to see me, and it was such a pleasant surprise.

"Pleasant surprise, indeed! I felt like a brute and a hypocrite. I could only respond that it was good to see her again. I remembered all at once how abruptly I had stopped going there, for no reason at all except that I had fallen into the way of spending most of my time at Mildred's. Ethel was so cordial and forgiving of my unmanly conduct that I felt myself a cad. I stammered some excuse about how busy I had been all summer and she said she knew it and her eyes twinkled. Of course I felt more uncomfortable than then ever, for I realized that she had seen me going to Mildred's night after night."

"Then I told her that I must be going."

"So soon?" she asked. "Why you have just come. You haven't been here a minute."

"It seems an hour to me," I blurted out. I was thinking of Mildred waiting next door.

"Well, then, don't let me keep you," said Ethel with a quiet dignity which brought me back to the situation and added enormously to my discomfort.

"I tried to say something polite and lucid about having an important engagement, but Ethel merely smiled in a distant way as I backed awkwardly out of the door. Perhaps she saw me go up Mildred's steps; but it doesn't matter, for I'll never have the face to go to her house again."

"But what about the other?"

"Oh, she was pretty difficult. She had observed my going from her house and returning wildly to Ethel's. She couldn't see, she said, with just the faintest lifting of those arched eyebrows of course I could go there, but she wouldn't let me go there, a mistake in the houses after the manner of times I had been able to find her before. Of course I was subject to my apologies, but Mildred is not easily appeased. She declined to go to the theatre, not having, as she declared, a special taste for last acts. "I think that we had extremely little to talk about, I left in a few minutes. As I walked down the steps I tore up the theatre tickets."

"Quite a dramatic finale to an interesting evening," said the other young man.

"Can't say that I'm proud of the performance. I haven't been around there since, and somehow her house has lost its charm for me. I should like to have Ethel Wynne know, however, that I'm ashamed of myself. I haven't the courage to go there, though. Say, old fellow, would you mind dropping in at the Wynnes' and explaining what a pickle I was in? I hate to have Ethel think too badly of me."

"You haven't forgotten about Miles Standish, have you? You'd better go yourself."

"By Jove, I will. Something might come of it, I believe."

Many Names.
 "Well," said the pro-Jap, triumphant, "I guess you'll agree now that the Russians won't stop short of Mukden."

"Oh, I don't know," replied the pro-Russian. "I'm sure they'll make a stand at Shenyang."

"At Shenyang. If not there—certainly at Shenyang."

"They'll go right to Mukden."

"Well," insisted the pro-Russian. "I'll wager they make a stand at Fentienfu, anyway."

These names were all new to the pro-Jap, so he didn't take the wager.

"And it was well he didn't, for when he went to the library and consulted a map of Manchuria he found that Fentienfu, Shenyang, Shengking and Mukden were all one and the same place.—Philadelphia Press.

Direct Evidence.
 The lawyer shook his finger warningly at the witness and said: "Now we want to hear just what you know, not what some one else knows, or what you think, or anything of that kind, but what you know. Do you understand?"

"Well, I know," said the witness, with emphasis, as he lifted one limber leg and placed it across the other. "I know that Clay Grubb said that Bill Thomson told him that he heard John Thomas's wife tell Sid Snuford's gal that her husband was there when the fight took place, and that he said that they slung each other around in the bushes in a right considerable."—Youth's Companion.

He Found it.
 In one of the neighboring cities a family was seated at dinner, when the doorbell was rung. The servant went to the door. It was noticed that she held long parrying, and it was surmised, consequently, that there was some element of uncertainty in the interview. On her return, the master of the house inquired:

"Well, Bridget, who was it?"

"It was a gentleman, sir, looking for the wrong house."—Philadelphia Public Ledger.

"Did he hold up a beggar?" asked the friend.

In After Years.
 Mrs. Green—"William, what objection have you to that young man who is calling on our daughter?"

Green—"He is silly, Mary."

Mrs. Green—"Oh, that because he's in love. I remember when you were a very silly young man."

Green—"Silly isn't the proper name for it, Mary. I was a meanly idiot—that's what I was."

Other Side of It.
 "But," protested the prospective tenant, "the house is awfully damp."

"My dear sir," replied the agent, "that is one of its many advantages. In case of fire it isn't likely to burn."

"And there is no water in the well," continued the would-be renter.

"Why, another advantage," said the agent. "In case your children happen to fall in it they won't drown."

Next Thing to It?
 "I heard you had quite a religious awakenin' in your church last Sunday."

The crown of womanhood is motherhood. But uneasy lies the head that wears the crown or anticipates this coronation, when the burdens of maternal duty and duty. The reason why so many women sink under the strain of motherhood is because they are unprepared.

"I unhesitatingly advise expectant mothers to use Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription," writes Mrs. J. W. Stephens, of Mill, Northumberland Co., Pa. "The reason for this advice is that Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription is the best preparative for the material function. No matter how healthy and strong a woman may be, she cannot use 'Favorite Prescription' as a preparative for maternity without gain of health and comfort. But it is the women who are not strong who best appreciate the great benefits received from the use of 'Favorite Prescription.' For one thing it makes the baby's advent practically painless. It has many cases reduced days of suffering to a few brief hours. It has changed the period of anxiety and struggle into a time of ease and comfort."

The proprietors and makers of Doctor Pierce's Favorite Prescription now feel fully warranted in offering to pay $500 for any case of Leucorrhea, Female Weakness, Prolapsus of Uterus or Vagina, which they cannot cure. All the World's Dispensary, Medical Association, Proprietors, of Buffalo, N. Y., ask in a fair and reasonable trial of their means of cure.

HOW TO FIND OUT.
 It is the function of the kidneys to filter and purify the blood which is constantly passing through them.

When the kidneys are out of order the other organs are affected immediately and you may have symptoms of heart trouble, stomach and liver trouble, and other ailments, which are all owing to the kidneys being weak and out of order.

If you are sick Foley's Kidney Cure will strengthen and build up the worn out tissues of the kidneys so they will act properly and the symptoms of weakness, heart, stomach and liver trouble will disappear and you will be restored to perfect health.

How to Tell if You Have Kidney Trouble.
 You can easily determine if your kidneys are out of order by setting aside for 24 hours a bottle of the urine passed upon arising. If upon examination it is cloudy or milky or has a brick-dust sediment or small particles float about in it, your kidneys are diseased and Foley's Kidney Cure should be taken at once.

Foley's Kidney Cure is pleasant to take and acts directly upon the parts affected and you begin to feel better at once.

It corrects slight disorders in a few days and it has cured many obstinate cases after other treatment had failed.

Doctors Said He Would Not Live.
 Peter Frey, of Woodruff, Pa., writes: "After doctoring for two years with the best physicians in Waynesburg, and still getting worse, the doctors advised me if I had any business to attend to I had better attend to it at once, as I could not possibly live another month, as there was no cure for me. Foley's Kidney Cure was recommended to me by a friend, and I immediately sent my son to the store for it and after taking three bottles I began to get better and continued to improve until I was entirely well."

The crown of womanhood is motherhood. But uneasy lies the head that wears the crown or anticipates this coronation, when the burdens of maternal duty and duty. The reason why so many women sink under the strain of motherhood is because they are unprepared.

"I unhesitatingly advise expectant mothers to use Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription," writes Mrs. J. W. Stephens, of Mill, Northumberland Co., Pa. "The reason for this advice is that Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription is the best preparative for the material function. No matter how healthy and strong a woman may be, she cannot use 'Favorite Prescription' as a preparative for maternity without gain of health and comfort. But it is the women who are not strong who best appreciate the great benefits received from the use of 'Favorite Prescription.' For one thing it makes the baby's advent practically painless. It has many cases reduced days of suffering to a few brief hours. It has changed the period of anxiety and struggle into a time of ease and comfort."

The proprietors and makers of Doctor Pierce's Favorite Prescription now feel fully warranted in offering to pay $500 for any case of Leucorrhea, Female Weakness, Prolapsus of Uterus or Vagina, which they cannot cure. All the World's Dispensary, Medical Association, Proprietors, of Buffalo, N. Y., ask in a fair and reasonable trial of their means of cure.

DELMAR.

Mr. George W. Long, aged 44 years, died at his home in this town on Friday, 18th inst., after a sickness of about ten days. Mr. Long was a conductor on the N. Y. & N. road and was a member of the Order of Railway Conductors and of the Ancient Order of United Workmen. Funeral services were held at the home by Rev. Z. H. Webster on Sunday afternoon, after which the body was conveyed by special train, furnished by Supt. Rogers of the N. Y. P. & N. road to Pocomoke City for the accommodation of the family and friends who desired to show this tribute of respect. Interment was made in the Cemetery at Pocomoke. The A. O. U. W. attended the funeral. Mr. Long is survived by his wife and a son, George S. Long, a lad about twelve years of age. They will continue to reside in Delmar.

Mrs. C. E. Acworth and Miss Agnes Riall from Mardela Springs are guests of Mrs. E. H. Slemons, on Tuesday and Wednesday.

Mr. S. N. Culver has rented the new building of T. A. Tenney on Railroad Avenue and will occupy it next week with his line of clothing, gents furnishings etc. He will occupy the upper stories as a residence.

New paving sidewalk about half a square on Railroad Avenue between State and Grove Street is a great improvement to that part of town.

Rev. E. S. Fooks of the M. P. Church is taking his annual vacation. Hitchens and Lowe, milliners, are closing out their business. They will be succeeded in their present location by Mrs. George of Milford, Del., on September 4th.

Mrs. Patterson, of Philadelphia, is visiting Mr. Frank Lynch.

Miss Elizabeth Tenney, of Naasan, Del., is visiting Mr. and Mrs. T. A. Tenney.

Miss Conway and Miss Shane of Georgetown are visiting Mrs. Warren Lear.

Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Matthews of Philadelphia are at Mr. W. S. Marvels.

J. Howard Ellis who recently began work in railroad yard at Cape Charles was seriously injured on Monday and taken to the hospital at Salisbury. His injuries are internal and his lower limbs paralyzed.

The barn on the farm owned by Irving Culver, occupied by Joseph Hearn near town was struck by lightning and consumed during the severe electrical storm on Wednesday afternoon. Several of the electric lights failed to burn Wednesday night, owing to damage by the storm.

Mimes Hattie and Annie West are visiting relatives in Hurlock.

Mr. Daniel Foskey of Philadelphia is visiting his parents, Mr. and Mrs. D. H. Foskey.

POWELLVILLE.

Mr. Elijah Adkins is visiting at the home of Mr. I. S. Williams.

Master George Stokes after spending several weeks here returned to Ocean City, where he with his mother expects to spend the remainder of August.

Mrs. James White returned to her home in Princess Anne Sunday.

Mrs. Henry Jones and children spent Tuesday at the home of Mr. Eli C. Jones.

Mr. Claud Powell of Salisbury spent a day here last week.

A few of our people attended Parsonsburg camp Sunday, but found the roads so dry and heavy the drive was very unpleasant.

Mr. and Mrs. Elisha Powell visited with Mr. and Mrs. John L. Powell Sunday.

The Powellville Manufacturing Company and Southern Manufacturing Co., are making things lively for Powellville. All we lack is a railroad, if one would just send us a railroad our town would be one of the first.

MARDELA.

The patrons of our school are getting anxious to know who will be the principal this coming season. Of course, the Directors know, but some who are not Directors want to know. We can at least express the desire as interested parties, that Miss Mary Bounds will be the one. She certainly did well last year. She proved herself to be competent to teach and a good disciplinarian. The parents have a great deal to do with making the teachers work a success. There must be co-operation of parents and teachers. To have discipline in the school room, there must of necessity be discipline in the home. We are glad that the services of Miss Mary Brattan have been secured as assistant. She is a good teacher and knows how to gain the respect of the scholars and the appreciation of the parents.

Our fellow townsman, Mr. W. J. Graham, has been nominated for sheriff, by the Prohibition party. It would be hard to find a man of purer character than Mr. Graham.

Last Sunday, the Branch Hill Baptist church granted a license to preach to Mr. Isaac J. Kennerly. He preached his trial sermon before the church and mission and gave satisfaction to the large congregations drawn together to hear him.

By request, Rev. Mr. Parker spoke for the M. E. Church last Friday night. The pastor in a very pleasing way introduced him not as a stranger but as a well known friend of the Methodist people. Mr. Parker in responding said, that while he and the pastor differed in doctrinal views, yet there was strong christian feeling between them. A Methodist preacher sent a very strong tract on baptism to Mr. Parker and he read it very carefully and thanked the brother for his kindness in giving him the last word on this subject. Send some more, Brother!

One of the young lady visitors to our town this summer, we regret to say, is lying sick with the typhoid fever in the home of Mr. Irving Cooper. Dr. John M. Elderdee is the attending physician. At this writing she is improving. While we do not know her personally, yet we feel that one so young and happy should be deprived of her joyous vacation.

There have been several young ladies visiting the home of Mr. Albert Bounds during vacation days and they have made the whole community brighter because of their presence. Their merry laughter and fun have cheered up other homes in the neighborhood.

Miss Marian Parker, after an absence of five weeks, has returned home. She spent the most of the time in visiting in Jersey and Pennsylvania where her father had been pastor years ago.

One would have to go far, and hunt long, before he could find a more gentlemanly and lady-like set of young people than we have in this community. The great majority of them are related by blood and they have a jolly, good time in their innocent pastimes, both on the streets, at the spring, and in their homes. Let the fun go on, for as a rule, we age too soon.

Do you know the next? Next what? Why the next couple to get married. The news is out. See how they both blush when you speak to them. It's a very pretty ring; tell her so. How did we get the news? Why a little scarlet bird in her cheeks whispered it to us last week.

Rev. Mr. Green of the Episcopal church, preached an exceptionally fine sermon one night last week in the Presbyterian church. He truly is a "Father in Israel." His rich Christian experience was plainly depicted in his very countenance.

Rev. B. G. Parker will preach in the Presbyterian church building on Sunday night. Subject—"Christ and His Critics, both ancient and modern."

THE GOLDEN SNAKESKIN.

He lived on the slope of Pedrolagalla, in the depths of the forest far from the habitations of man. To protect himself from prowling wild beasts he had built his hut in the top of a leafy, moss covered tree. Many years before he had owned a large piece of land, which yielded him his daily bread. One fine day, however, a British merchant bought his property as an addition to a tea plantation, and paid the purchase money in sparkling new rupees.

What was Mahindo to do? Should he go and live as a rich man? Should he venture into one of the black iron snakes of the Europeans and be carried off, or board one of their floating houses and go far, far away, to the place where the sun rises and where the most beautiful countries of the earth must be? No, he dared not do it! He had a wife, a son and a daughter whom he could not desert. The weeks passed in half blissful, half uneasy hesitation. For fear of losing the money, he finally buried it in the forest, under a tree, which he marked.

Soon afterward he was taken ill. Some time passed before his recovery, but as soon as his strength permitted, he dragged himself to the place where he had hidden his treasure. He did not find it. Several trees had been felled, and the one with the mark on it lay on the ground among the others. To his despair he did not know where to look for his treasure.

He nearly lost his reason through grief and rage. His son died at this time of cholera; he also lost his wife, but he did not care. His soul was full of misery and sorrow, but it was all on account of the lost rupees. At last he fled from people and their malicious joy, and went to live at Pedrolagalla.

He had lived there for years with his daughter Sarawamu. They led a miserable, joyless existence on spring water and wild fruit. He roamed the forest for hours at a time searching for his lost treasure, and paid no attention to Sarawamu. His only thought was his misfortune, and he did not notice how beautiful his daughter grew, how her eyes glowed like the tropic sun, how slender and supple she was, and how her skin shone like a warm topaz.

Others saw it, however. Laborers from the coffee and tea plantations, roaming about in the forest, discovered the beautiful girl, and without many preliminaries, several of them asked the father to give her to them in marriage; but Mahindo indignantly answered, "My child will not marry until I find the money, but then we will have a fine wedding."

They would curse him for a fool and go away. Sarawamu smiled. She did not care for any man. The life in the woods, among bracken and rhododendrons, pleased her. At last, however, her time came. An intrepid elephant hunter saw the beautiful wild thing, and she was caught by the sparkling eyes of the youth, as surely as the birds by his snare. When he spoke to her father he at once received the same answer as the rest.

Tiszu smiled. "Mahindo, don't be a fool," he said. "Give me your daughter, and come with me to the valley among the people. Leave the rupees to the evil spirits and let us live!"

But Mahindo was obstinate. "Then the money must be found, old man. By the head of Buddha, why don't you seek help from others, when your own wisdom is not sufficient?" In the village there is a wizard of a good reputation, by the name of Loano. Go to him."

Mahindo liked the idea, and departed with Sarawamu for the village. Loano was a short, thickset man, with projecting eyes and matted beard and hair.

The wizard shook some powder into a brass dish, and soon a blue smoke enveloped him. He murmured incantations, took a palm leaf and an iron style, and began to dance. At last he fell to the ground in convulsions, while his hand was scratching with the point of the leaf. Rising, he said, "Here are the mysterious words. What will you give for them?"

Mahindo turned pale; he had no money. Seeing how the wizard's eyes hung on the girl, he shouted: "I promise you my daughter, if you will have her; but give me the leaf!"

The wizard smiled contentedly, and handed him the leaf, saying, "Before next moon I expect my pay—money out of your treasure, or the girl."

Outside the hut, Mahindo devoured the writing on the leaf.

"Let him die the skin of a golden snake about his neck, and he will find the forest where his money is hidden. The spirit of the snake will steal into its old home, and with a light pressure lead him to the place where the treasure lies buried. If the pressure ceases, let him stop and begin to dig."

From that day Mahindo spent his days in hunting for a golden snakeskin, but in vain. Tired to death and ill, he came home one evening and was unable to climb the tree. Thus Tiszu found him.

"Bring me a golden snakeskin, and Sarawamu will be yours," Mahindo called out to the young man.

Tiszu had learned with consternation the agreement with Loano; but this promise gave him new courage, and he went out to hunt for snakes. All in vain. When, a few days before the next moon, he came to see Sarawamu, he was in despair.

But Sarawamu smiled, and took from a hollow tree an object which she handed to him. A snakeskin—golden, shining.

"I found it on an ant hill. Go to father and say that you found it."

It is not easy to say who was maddest with joy. Tiszu or the old man. But the girl was quite calm, and only said: "You have promised me to Tiszu, I am his."

The old man agreed to everything, and the hunter carried him to that part of the forest where the money was hidden. With the golden skin tied about his foot, he waited full of expectation—but the wonder did not happen. He felt no pressure from the skin. Then he was seized with

One fine day, however, a British merchant bought his property as an addition to a tea plantation, and paid the purchase money in sparkling new rupees.

What was Mahindo to do? Should he go and live as a rich man? Should he venture into one of the black iron snakes of the Europeans and be carried off, or board one of their floating houses and go far, far away, to the place where the sun rises and where the most beautiful countries of the earth must be? No, he dared not do it! He had a wife, a son and a daughter whom he could not desert. The weeks passed in half blissful, half uneasy hesitation. For fear of losing the money, he finally buried it in the forest, under a tree, which he marked.

Soon afterward he was taken ill. Some time passed before his recovery, but as soon as his strength permitted, he dragged himself to the place where he had hidden his treasure. He did not find it. Several trees had been felled, and the one with the mark on it lay on the ground among the others. To his despair he did not know where to look for his treasure.

He nearly lost his reason through grief and rage. His son died at this time of cholera; he also lost his wife, but he did not care. His soul was full of misery and sorrow, but it was all on account of the lost rupees. At last he fled from people and their malicious joy, and went to live at Pedrolagalla.

He had lived there for years with his daughter Sarawamu. They led a miserable, joyless existence on spring water and wild fruit. He roamed the forest for hours at a time searching for his lost treasure, and paid no attention to Sarawamu. His only thought was his misfortune, and he did not notice how beautiful his daughter grew, how her eyes glowed like the tropic sun, how slender and supple she was, and how her skin shone like a warm topaz.

Others saw it, however. Laborers from the coffee and tea plantations, roaming about in the forest, discovered the beautiful girl, and without many preliminaries, several of them asked the father to give her to them in marriage; but Mahindo indignantly answered, "My child will not marry until I find the money, but then we will have a fine wedding."

They would curse him for a fool and go away. Sarawamu smiled. She did not care for any man. The life in the woods, among bracken and rhododendrons, pleased her. At last, however, her time came. An intrepid elephant hunter saw the beautiful wild thing, and she was caught by the sparkling eyes of the youth, as surely as the birds by his snare. When he spoke to her father he at once received the same answer as the rest.

Tiszu smiled. "Mahindo, don't be a fool," he said. "Give me your daughter, and come with me to the valley among the people. Leave the rupees to the evil spirits and let us live!"

But Mahindo was obstinate. "Then the money must be found, old man. By the head of Buddha, why don't you seek help from others, when your own wisdom is not sufficient?" In the village there is a wizard of a good reputation, by the name of Loano. Go to him."

Mahindo liked the idea, and departed with Sarawamu for the village. Loano was a short, thickset man, with projecting eyes and matted beard and hair.

The wizard shook some powder into a brass dish, and soon a blue smoke enveloped him. He murmured incantations, took a palm leaf and an iron style, and began to dance. At last he fell to the ground in convulsions, while his hand was scratching with the point of the leaf. Rising, he said, "Here are the mysterious words. What will you give for them?"

Mahindo turned pale; he had no money. Seeing how the wizard's eyes hung on the girl, he shouted: "I promise you my daughter, if you will have her; but give me the leaf!"

The wizard smiled contentedly, and handed him the leaf, saying, "Before next moon I expect my pay—money out of your treasure, or the girl."

Outside the hut, Mahindo devoured the writing on the leaf.

"Let him die the skin of a golden snake about his neck, and he will find the forest where his money is hidden. The spirit of the snake will steal into its old home, and with a light pressure lead him to the place where the treasure lies buried. If the pressure ceases, let him stop and begin to dig."

From that day Mahindo spent his days in hunting for a golden snakeskin, but in vain. Tired to death and ill, he came home one evening and was unable to climb the tree. Thus Tiszu found him.

"Bring me a golden snakeskin, and Sarawamu will be yours," Mahindo called out to the young man.

Tiszu had learned with consternation the agreement with Loano; but this promise gave him new courage, and he went out to hunt for snakes. All in vain. When, a few days before the next moon, he came to see Sarawamu, he was in despair.

But Sarawamu smiled, and took from a hollow tree an object which she handed to him. A snakeskin—golden, shining.

"I found it on an ant hill. Go to father and say that you found it."

It is not easy to say who was maddest with joy. Tiszu or the old man. But the girl was quite calm, and only said: "You have promised me to Tiszu, I am his."

The old man agreed to everything, and the hunter carried him to that part of the forest where the money was hidden. With the golden skin tied about his foot, he waited full of expectation—but the wonder did not happen. He felt no pressure from the skin. Then he was seized with fury, and, as if all sickness had gone from him, he rushed to Loano's hut.

"Your wisdom did no good, old villain! Your writing was a lie, your treasure a fraud!" he cried flinging the snakeskin in the face of the wizard, who could scarcely believe his eyes when he saw the skin.

"You have not done as I said," Loano replied, shrugging his shoulders, "go your way. It is not my fault."

Mahindo was foaming with rage. Just then Sarawamu, Tiszu and a brown policeman, brought by the hunter, came into the hut. The policeman heard both parties, and decided the case in favor of Mahindo.

In the valley, on the other side of Pedrolagalla, Tiszu and Sarawamu soon built their hut, and Mahindo came to live with them.

One evening, when the young couple were sitting in the moonlight before their hut, Tiszu remarked: "Strange that the wizard's formula did not help your father."

His young wife smiled. "It was not a real snakeskin, beloved. I suspected Loano, and feared that there was no such skin to be found. So I dyed the skins you brought me in the juices of plants until I got the right color."

Tiszu shook his head and said, smiling: "Love is and ever will be the greatest wizard!"—N. Y. Sun.

Had Substitute.

The late Dr. Ode Avery, of Honesdale, Pa., was the oldest dentist in America, and he was also the first American ever to receive a dentist's certificate.

Dr. Avery was talking one afternoon to a reporter about the earlier, unlighted days of Honesdale.

"We had not then," he said, "as much religious feeling as we have now. I remember a revival service, very poorly attended, that was held during a certain winter. The revival, since the people would not come to him, went to them, and on the street corners he would halt and question them concerning their religious beliefs."

"I haven't seen you at our revival," he said to one very old, bent man.

"What would I be doing there?" the other answered.

"Don't you ever pray?" said the revivalist.

The old man shook his head.

"No," he said; "I carry a rabbit's foot!"—Chicago Record-Herald.

Chief of the Ukiah.

Charles Penio, the oldest chief of the Ukiah tribe, died at Cox Rancher recently, and the Indians are now celebrating a death feast. Penio was 107 years old and ruled the Ukiah long before the white settlers arrived, and the death of many whites lies at his door. He was judge and jury for the tribe, but was deposed about twenty-five years ago for killing Sam Warden. Warden and another Indian had quarreled over a game of cards and the other Indian was killed.

Penio was sent for and had Warden tied to a tree to be shot. He dodged the first bullet, which so infuriated the chief that he seized an axe and chopped off Warden's head. Penio was held in jail for several months, but none of the Indians could be induced to testify against him. Penio had always resented the encroachment of the whites and was considered dangerous. He was buried in Indian style, with his pony and war implements.—Sacramento Bee.

How Two Missouri Towns Got Their Names.

Nearly eighty years ago, when the Presidential struggle between Clay and Jackson was at its height, it is related that a band of emigrants from Kentucky, and the then other Western States, commenced to settle on the north side of the Missouri River and called their county Clay and the county seat Liberty.

At the same time another lot of emigrants from Virginia and other Southern States pitched their tents on the south side of the Big Muddy and called their county Jackson and the capital Independence. And so it remains to this day, Clay stood for liberty and Jackson for independence.

The Cost of Mining Shafter.

Even as far back as seventy-five years the cost of sinking coal mine shafts in England varied from $50,000 to $75,000. With the greater depth required as the upper veins of coal were worked out, the cost increased. In 1857 $200,000 was spent in sinking a shaft at the Haswell Colliery in Durham, and a quicksand that could not be conquered with the appliances and methods of that day, finally caused the abandonment of the bore. At Murton Colliery, not far from Haswell, $1,500,000 was spent in sinking three shafts, which were completed when 1,488 feet deep.

Improved methods of dealing with water-bearing strata have made more modern shafts less costly than those of the middle of the last century—less costly both actually and proportionately.

Indian Superstitions.

The Indian believes there are boa constrictors in the streams of North America, also that the South American tapir lives in North America. He calls the boa constrictor the late-ach-war-nayer, and calls the tapir noca-shom-ner.

The Indian believes he has a cure and preventive for rabies or hydrophobia. He also believes he can cure any snake bite on earth, from a ground rattler to a velvet tail or diamond snake.

An Indian never was known to go mad from a dog bite or die from a snake's bite, while other races succumb to the venom of a snake or go mad from the bite of a rabid dog.

The Indian, when in battle and fatally wounded, believes that if his medicine man can reach him with his bitter medicine before he dies it will give him instant relief and he will be able to escape from the battlefield. He thinks every man is honest until he finds him out, in which event he loses all confidence in him, and never goes over it.

The Indian makes up after falling out with any one. He may speak to an enemy as he passes, but dies with the hatred in his heart.

BRIDEGROOM IN HANDCUFFS.

Victim of Practical Joke Starts on Wedding Trip Like Criminal.

Omaha.—Never was a bridegroom more miserably conscious of the bonds of matrimony than W. J. Downey, of Sioux City, who arrived here recently. It was his wedding tour, but when the train pulled in he was in iron and his young wife was on the verge of hysterics. His marriage was his offense, and to emphasize his crime a party of friends who had come down to the station in Sioux City to see him off had snapped the handcuffs on his wrist just as the train started. It was not until he was getting off the train here to find a blacksmith to release him that conductor stepped forward and unlocked the handcuffs. The key had been given to him in a package at Sioux City, with strict instructions it was not to be opened until Omaha was reached.

Downey is a prominent figure in the society of Sioux City, and as both his and the bride's families are known well there their wedding was a big affair. No hint of the plot against his happiness was allowed to escape the conspirators, and up to the last minute Downey stood chatting and laughing with them on the platform. He shook hands with his groomsmen for the last time, and if the pressure with which the other grasped both his hands was somewhat firmer than usual he only put it down to a warmth of kindly feeling. Suddenly there was a clash of steel and as he turned round to clamber on to the moving train he found a pair of handcuffs securely on his wrists.

"You will find a first-class blacksmith in Omaha!" shouted a voice, and Downey, hiding his hands under his coat as best he could, had to march down the car and rejoin his wife fettered like a criminal.

For a few minutes it seemed quite funny, and the young couple laughed consumedly at the joke that had been played on him. The handcuffs were a beautiful pair, bright and new, and shiny, but presently the conviction bore in on the man that they were the real thing and that, twist and turn as he would, he could not get them off. After all, it was rather a stupid joke, but still—

"Tickets, please," said the conductor.

Downey turned white and looked at his wife, who turned red. He groped around so clumsily for several minutes that the conductor grew impatient and the attention of half the car was centered on him. Wonder was expressed openly that such a nice looking pair should be trying to beat their way. At last Downey gave it up.

"They are in the inside pocket of my waistcoat," he whispered to his bride. And would you mind taking my handkerchief and wiping my face? It seems warm here."

Mrs. Downey, who was just as warm followed his instructions, but by this time all the passengers were alive to the unusual situation and wonder gave way to more pointed speculation. To wit: peaches and cream. This was in the dining car, where Mrs. Downey, to soothe his ruffled nerves, fed him escape it all the pair sought refuge more than tolerable, and the bridegroom was beginning to recover his temper when some

DAIRY and CREAMERY

SOME THINGS I HAVE LEARNED.

Address Before Nebraska Dairymen's Association by J. A. Harris.

That the dairy business can not be learned in one day, one month, or one year, even if one does read all he can about the business. There are things we must practice, before we will learn them. Milking is one of the things; we become expert only by practice. One who can start and milk a steady gait, will have better results than the one that milks fast, then slow, then fast again. We must learn a steady gait and as fast as it is possible for us to keep it up, till the cow is milked dry. Feeding is another thing we must experience, before we can feed successfully. Each cow wants and the quantity she wants, we must learn by actual practice.

It is almost impossible to buy a number one dairy cow; she is seldom, if ever, for sale, and if she is for sale, a friend or neighbor will get her. We can not tell the value of a dairy cow until we have milked her through one period of lactation and used the scales and tester in determining the quantity and quality of milk. She may have a perfect shaped body and udder, and yet be defective in some way. She may have the self-milking habit, a kicker, a broody cow, or hold her milk and not let it come down as she should, or some other habit that would make her an unprofitable cow. The safest way is to raise the dairy herd by careful selection of dam and sire and using only the very best milk strain to be had.

I have learned that a cow will fail to yield her owner a profit on an empty stomach and the shady side of a barb wire fence for shelter. She must be satisfied with both feed and shelter for twenty-four hours a day, seven days a week and fifty-two weeks in a year, in order to be profitable.

I have learned in the past season that my cows, running in the pasture, would fall off gradually for four or five weeks, then after a good shower they go back to their former yield per day. If I had supplied them with feed during that time, my profit would have been much greater.

That it pays to get a good milk breed. They are generally of a kinder disposition and when you feed a dairy cow, she will show it in the milk part and not in laying on of flesh; with the half bred it is just the reverse.

That it pays better to run a dairy without a dog. The cows are quieter. A dog, that will nip their heels, will cause kicky cows.

That it pays to keep the cows clean, and also the stable by having a floor of some kind and a gutter about six or eight inches deep and sixteen or eighteen inches wide behind the cows; it is an easy matter to keep the cow and stable clean. The barn should be cleaned both morning and night.—Ranch and Range.

French Milk Production.
From a description from a well known farm near Paris it is interesting to note the care employed in all the details of milk production. Rather high-priced cows are kept, costing sometimes $200 each. Every cow is groomed daily and the udder washed. The cows are subjected to the tuberculin test but the disease does not seem to be common in that region or in any part of the principal dairy sections of France. The milking cows receive daily from sixty-five to ninety pounds of mangels, or some green forage, with 4½ pounds of gluten meal and about two pounds each of bran and flaxseed oil cake. In winter the quantity of oil cake is doubled and clover hay is fed liberally. Besides this ration the cows are fed out straw twice daily. Spring water, which is warmed in winter, is supplied twice a day.—Farm and Field.

Water Calves.
Calves can swim down a lot of water when a person has to carry it to them, as I have to do. Alfalfa hay seems to give them greater thirst than any other kind of feed. When feeding it altogether each calf gets away with about twenty-four quarts of water daily but we do not have to carry it over a big barn intervening and thus it is not convenient to pipe the water.

New York Milk Market.
In order to secure certification of his milk by the milk commission of New York City the dairymen must have a clean cement floor stable, with whitewashed walls and abundant windows. Cows must be sponged and their tails scrubbed before each milking. White suits must be worn by attendants, bottles and utensils scalded and filled bottles kept on ice and shipped only in refrigerator cars.

Census returns published shows that Berlin's population reached the two million limit on December 18. The girl baby who completed the total will be christened Beroline.

The twenty-fifth anniversary of the introduction of electric traction into Germany will soon be celebrated in Berlin.

Grafting the Apple Root.
Prof. Troop of Purdue, says: "To ascertain the relative influence on the growth and longevity of the tree resulting from grafting the scion on a whole piece of root. Some of these trees are now in bearing, and while it is too early to draw any conclusions concerning the relative longevity of the trees, it would be a difficult matter to detect any difference in the size which could result from either method. It seems to be practically settled that each variety will form its own root system regardless of the length of root used as a starter."

WONDERINGS.
I'm oft inclined to wonder if An angleworm, when frozen stiff, Would meet with any luck at all, Supposing that it tried to crawl.

Then, too, I often wonder whether A man who set about to tether Ten tigers in a field like cows, Could make the striped creatures browse.

And then again, I wonder which Is stickiest—tar, glue or pitch, Perhaps each, all or either are, But I should say pitch, glue or tar.

And, furthermore, I wonder why A normal person suc. as I Can't walk about upon one hand— Some things we never understand.

But most of all, I wonder how A man can tell just when is Now For Now keeps going back to Then, While Soon is straightway Now Again.

'Tis useless, though, to wonder what Is meant by this impressive rot.—P. B., in Life.

HE WAS A HERO.
But He didn't know it was Bullets Buz-zing round Him.

Speaking of great civil war stories, Miss Ada Sweet, when in Denver recently, told the following:

Her father, Gen. Sweet, of Chicago, was taking his regiment into action. He sent forward a detail of men to make gaps in a rail fence to avoid the heavy loss sure to result if the whole body of men paused to tear it down.

The coolest and finest man in the detail was a young soldier who had never been under fire before. When he began pulling down the fence he flustered a host of hornets, and they sang fiercely about his ears. But the lad was not going to run from hornets when there was more serious business ahead.

Ignoring the angry insects, he opened the fence and rejoined the regiment without being stung.

After a time he was appointed second lieutenant and called on Gen. Sweet to thank him.

"But," he said, modestly, "I don't think I deserve promotion over the others."

"My boy," replied the general "I saw you pull down that fence. You were the coolest man under fire I ever saw!"

The man gasped, stared and turned pale.

"Good God!" he exclaimed, losing all caution and grammar. "Was them bullets?"—Denver Post.

Glad of It.
An out-of-town visitor stepped into an auction room the other day to see what sort of knickknacks were being sold. He did not know that the attendance was composed mostly of professional buyers, and noted that it looked shabby.

"Now, I'll give your pocketbooks a rest," said the auctioneer. "Here is a simple little vase with China designs. What am I bid?"

He held up a dusty, diminutive piece of porcelain, which looked rather pretty through the dust.

"Five," said some one.

"Ten," said a second.

"Fifteen," said the interested on-looker, jingling his valuable 35 cents in his pocket.

The vase was bid up until the man from out of town reluctantly bid his 35 cents.

"I'll have to walk home," he reflected, "but it isn't far to the hotel. I don't see how these people make any money."

But the price soared up till the vase was finally knocked down to the last bidder at 80.

Then the out of town man's knees were loosened and his tongue cleaved to the roof of his mouth when he saw the purchaser nonchalantly hand over four $20 bills.—Chicago Inter-Ocean.

Irishman's Cant Hook.
A farmer, accompanied by several of his hired men, went into the woods one morning in the fall of the year to cut down some trees. When about to begin work it was discovered that the cant hook had been left behind. Turning to one of the men, an Irishman not very long over, the farmer instructed him to drive back to the farm for the missing tool. The Irishman did not know what a cant hook looked like, but was averse to exposing his ignorance, so drove off on his errand, trusting to find someone at the farm who would enlighten him.

At the barn, however, there was no one to help him out of his dilemma. Casting his eyes about the place for the thing which would be most likely to bear the name of "cant hook," he saw a mooley cow with never a sign of a horn upon its head, and concluded it was that he had been sent for.

Procuring a rope, he fastened the cow to the rear end of his vehicle and exultantly drove back to the woods.

"What in Sam Hill have you there?" shouted the farmer on seeing his messenger and the cow. "I sent you for a cant hook to use in moving the logs; what have you brought that cow for?"

"Be jabers!" boomed, divil another thing could I see around the barn that cant hook but this."—Star of Hope.
