TELEPHONE SITUATION

In Salisbury. Increased Rates. Call For Public Meeting Should Be Largely Attended.

The City Council at the meeting held Monday night issued a call for a Public meeting of the citizens to discuss the telephone situation. This call was the direct result of a request made by the Salisbury Business Men's Association, which at its last meeting had passed resolutions asking the Council to call the citizens together to discuss the recent rise in telephone rates. The meeting will be held in the Court House on Tuesday evening May 18th, at 8 o'clock. Recently the telephone company has increased the rates of phones to all new subscribers. This increase was not made to apply to those who were already subscribers to phones. It is recognized by all that the rates for all phone services will be increased as soon as the company sees its way to do so without too much protest on the part of the subscribers. As a matter of fact the way the phone people are going about the matter is considered as a shrewd piece of work as they expect to keep the old subscribers satisfied by not changing their rates and thus the protest will not be as vigorous as it would be if an increase was made in all phone service at the same time. Probably the old subscribers will be brought under the new rate gradually and never in sufficiently large numbers to make a protest effective. A small number of subscribers can be handled and not mention paid to their protest. Whether or not the users of the phones will sit still and let the phone rates be increased in this manner or not is the question to be decided and decided now. There is talk of organizing the subscribers to make a determined fight at this time against the rate.

There seems now no effective way to prevent an arbitrary increase in the rates here but by all the users or a sufficient number of them, uniting and taking a firm stand against the raise. The Council is apparently helpless in the matter. There is no use of talking about what might have been but the big mistake in the matter was made when the Council gave the company a new franchise without limiting the rental price of the phones.

BOY ARRESTED, CHARGED

With incendiarism. Suspicious Fires Have Kept Officers On The Lookout.

Woodland Bates, 15 years old was arrested by Dept. Sheriff J. Frank Waller Friday on a warrant charging him with setting the shop close to his father's home on fire. The fire which originated in Mr. Bates' workshop on Sunday some weeks back, was regarded as a very suspicious fire by the authorities, and they have been keeping close watch upon the premises. A fire occurred this week on the same lot in the shop used as a shoe shop which was fortunately discovered before much damage was done. An investigation showed that at one of the corners where the boards had been ripped off some one had placed a cup which from the odor must have contained coal oil. Young Bates was arrested charged with setting the shop on fire, and confessed to Dept. Waller that he had set fire to the shop and also the one which was burned the Sunday before. It is said that young Bates has never been allowed to attend school a day in his life.

BALTIMORE COUNTY ADOPTS CRAWFORD COUNTY PLAN.

"Will Place The Power In The Hands Of The People," Says Gov. Crothers, And Redeem To The Letter The Democratic Platform Of The Last Election. Direct Nominations And The Suffrage Amendment Should Go Hand In Hand.

The State Central Committee of Baltimore County has decided to hold the primaries this year under the Crawford County plan, thus putting itself strongly in favor of rule by the people. The progressive members of the party all over the state are strongly in favor of the direct plan of primaries, and the plan is for the most part only being opposed by those who have their own axes to grind and think that they can get what they want easier by the old dictatorial system of convention nominations. The voters are receiving very little consideration at the hands of these parties who have always been in the habit of naming the party nominees and do not look to the return of the voters to a say in party affairs with favor. Cecil Kent, Talbot, Queen Anne and Caroline counties on the Eastern Shore will give the people a chance this year to name the tickets in their counties. It is believed that "the fight for the Amendment will be greatly strengthened if the counties adopt the Crawford County system for the primaries," said Governor Crothers. "It will place the power in the hands of the people. It will show that Democrats are not afraid to trust them. From what I learn, the Republicans will make all local nominations in the counties by convention, which shows that they are afraid to trust the negro voters."

"The adoption of this plan will also redeem to the letter the Democratic platform of the last election. While the primary law does not make its adoption compulsory on the local committees they will, nevertheless, win public commendation if they voluntarily give it to the people."

"Direct nominations and the suffrage amendment should go together hand in hand. In the southern states where the negroes have been disfranchised the nominations are made direct by the people and that is the condition that we should have in Maryland."

Governor Crothers and other leading Democrats hope that the other counties will adopt the direct system of making nominations. It is generally believed that the Republicans will adhere to the convention plan, except in counties where the nominations under the law are made by the Crawford County system. By giving the people the choice of making all nominations Democrats say that the cause of the suffrage amendment will be strengthened. The other local county committees will meet within the next few days and select the dates and methods of conducting the primaries.

Will the leaders in Wicomico place themselves on record as being favorable to the people's wishes being considered in this year's primaries or will they still adhere to the discredited system of convention made candidates?

CRAWFORD COUNTY PLAN—HOW IT WORKS.

There seems to be some who do not understand just what the Crawford County plan of holding primaries means or the way that candidates are selected by that method. Primaries held under the Crawford County plan simply means an election held by the party adopting it, similar in general principles to the election now held by all parties. Suppose the democratic party of Wicomico County should decide to hold this year's primaries under this plan; then an election at which every democrat in the county would have the right to participate in and a chance to cast his vote for the man he thought would best fill each and every office to be filled this year, would result.

The first step in this election would be the filing of the candidacy for the office to which anyone aspired—(anyone would have the right to have his name placed on the primary ballots by conforming with the provisions of the law which are simple and easy to comply with.) The Board of Election Supervisors would then have ballots printed with the name of every man who filed his application, and the office for which he is asking.

On the day of the primaries every democrat would be given one of these ballots as he went into the voting booth and he would vote for the man he wanted nominated by running a line through the names of those he did not care to vote for—these votes would be counted as is done in general elections and the man receiving the largest vote in the county would be declared the nominee of the democratic party. Each district in the county would vote the same ballots and for the same men. Suppose John Smith, Henry Williams, William Jones, were all candidates for sheriff, then the ballot would bear their names and the office, perhaps somewhat as follows. (taken from a ballot used in one of the other counties under the Crawford County plan.)

For Sheriff—Vote For One—
JOHN SMITH.
HENRY WILLIAMS.
WILLIAM JONES.

Suppose the voter wanted to cast his vote for Henry Williams then he would run a line through the names of John Smith and William Jones and his vote would be counted for Henry Williams.

Suppose all those whose names have been mentioned in connection with the sheriff's office should under the Crawford County plan file their candidacy for this office then this part of the ticket would probably be something as follows:

For Sheriff—Vote For One—
J. C. KELLEY.
J. FRANK WALLER.
W. C. BRADY.
G. ERNEST HEARN.

On taking this ballot the voter would select the man he wanted to vote for and run his pencil through the other names.

How would you, Mr. Voter, like to have a chance to vote for the men who are to be the representatives of your party on the ticket at this fall election?

The expense in Convention System will be practically the same as under the Crawford County plan. The only difference is whether the cost of printing the ballots for delegates to the convention, or candidates for the offices will be more—a mere trifle in either case.

Mr. William H. Anderson, the Maryland State Superintendent, will speak in the Presbyterian Church here on Sunday morning and address the congregation of the Methodist Protestant Church, this city, in the evening. Mr. Anderson's reputation as a platform speaker and his well known efforts on behalf of the State-Wide Local Option will doubtless draw large audiences to hear him.

Rev. Andrew B. Wood, lately appointed Assistant Superintendent for Maryland, will be the speaker in Trinity Methodist Episcopal Church, South, in the morning, and in the evening will speak to the congregation of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, at Allen.

Rev. John M. These services will be conducted on behalf of the State-Wide Local Option plan of the League and the experienced speakers who are announced will give full information concerning the work of that organization in this State and elsewhere. Doubtless this day will be marked by large congregations and will result favorably to the Cause of Temperance.

DEATH OF QUANTICO

District Man, Prominent In That Section Of Wicomico, Leonidas T. Acworth.

Mr. Leonidas T. Acworth, a life-long resident of Quantico District, died at his home in Quantico, on Thursday morning, May 6th, in the 62nd year of his age. The funeral took place Friday afternoon, conducted by Rev. F. B. Adkins. Interment was in the family burying ground on the old home place in Nutter's Neck. A large concourse of relatives and friends attended the funeral.

Mr. Acworth was one of Quantico's most honored and respected citizens. He had followed almost his entire life the occupation of farming, in which he was quite successful. In politics he was a true democrat, and nothing could swerve him from his convictions. Though never holding an office and never aspiring to one, he was often urged by his friends to do so.

The chief characteristic of his life was honor, which he carried into all the details of his life.

In 1886, Mr. Acworth married Miss May Kennedy, daughter of the late Irving Kennedy, who survives him. Four children were born to them, Marcus W. Acworth, Mrs. Ruth Gordy, William Irving and Naomi Acworth. One brother and three sisters remain and a large number of nephews and nieces; Mr. Samuel T. Acworth, Mrs. May Amelia Waters, of Somerset County, Mrs. Annie Langdale, of Washington, D. C., and Rev. Mrs. J. L. Strangh, of Baltimore. He was a son of the late Capt. William H. Acworth, who, in his day, was one of the most prominent citizens of Somerset County.

The ADVERTISER has gone for many years to Mr. Acworth's home.

—The Rockwalking Country Club wish to thank the people of Hebron for the hospitable reception extended to them while in their midst, and trust to reciprocate should the opportunity present itself.

Long Lost Crew May Be Alive.

Kingston, St. Vincent, B. W. L. May 8—It may be that Capt. Collins Stephenson and the crew of the American whaling ship Carrie D. Knowles, long since thought to have been lost at sea, are still alive in a Venezuelan prison. An American seaman, who gives the name of Payne, an escaped prisoner from Venezuela, has made his way to Kingston, where he laid before the authorities an astounding story of the seizure of the Carrie D. Knowles at a Venezuelan port, where she arrived five years ago in distress, and the incarceration by the Venezuelans of the captain and his men.

good health, with its blessings, must understand, quite clearly, that it involves the question of right living with all the term implies. With proper knowledge of what is best, each hour of recreation, of enjoyment, of contemplation and of effort may be made to contribute to living aright. Then the use of medicines may be dispensed with to advantage, but under ordinary conditions in many instances a simple, wholesome remedy may be invaluable if taken at the proper time and the California Fig Syrup Co. holds that it is alike important to present the subject truthfully and to supply the one perfect laxative to those desiring it.

A more than passing significance was an incident, yesterday at Brenau College Conservatory, Gainesville, Ga. Participating in the "States Day" exercises were members of the student body representing twenty six states. State flags, state colors, state songs, bits of state history were features of a program which was fittingly combined with the formation by the entire student body, dress to suit, of the flag of the United States, while from this human flag came the swelling chorus of the national anthem, "My Country 'Tis of Thee."

Of the instructive and inspiring elements of such an occasion there can be no question, and the example of Brenau might well be followed by every school in the country, from the little log school house at the cross road to the broad city institution with its many grades and teachers.

It is so in the north, in the east, and in the west. There the lesson of the flag, the instilling of national pride, the seedings of patriotism, while apparently incidental, are in reality, a part of the curriculum. From Maine to Oregon there is no school house too humble or too great to make the flag an essential element of its teaching.

We can conceive of no good reason for neglect of the flag in the schools of the South. It is the South's flag as it is that of the North, the East, and the West; it is the flag of all the nation.

Overlashed sentiment, far from wanting, would be but firmly fixed and lastingly implanted by the inspiring thoughts which come from out its folds.

Upon impressionable youth the sentiment that surrounds the flag—state and national—and its meaning may be fixed in firm and enduring thought and recollection. It germinates a love of country in the young that ripens with the years in the truest type of patriotism.

Let every school, therefore, teach the lesson of the flag. Brenau has set an example that should be followed by every educational institution in the South.—Editorial, Atlanta Constitution.

WOMEN'S WOES.

Salisbury Women Are Finding Relief At Last.

It does seem that women have more than a fair share of the aches and pains that afflict humanity; they must "keep up," must attend to duties in spite of constantly aching backs, or headaches, dizzy spells, bearing down pains; they must stoop over when to stoop means torture. They must walk and bend and work with racking pains and many aches from kidneys. Kidneys cause more suffering than any other organ of the body. Keep the kidneys well and health is easily maintained. Read of a remedy for kidneys only that helps and cures the kidneys and is endorsed by people you know.

Mrs. John L. Baker, 318 Baker Street, Salisbury, Md., says: "A year or so ago I procured Doan's Kidney Pills at White &amp; Leonard's drug store and after taking them a short time, I found relief from kidney complaint. I had been bothered a great deal by a lame back and a heavy bearing down sensation through my hips. No matter what I did or took, this misery clung to me and I was also bothered when I arose in the morning by a stiffness across my loins. I procured Doan's Kidney Pills at White &amp; Leonard's drug store and in return for the benefit they brought me, I consider them worthy of my recommendation." For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, N. Y., sole agents for the United States. Remember the name—Doan's—and take no other.

The Messina seismograph records a slight shock 10 minutes before the destructive earthquake. An efficient alarm system could have saved many people in that time.

Everybody is likely to have kidney and bladder trouble. In fact nearly everybody has some trouble of this kind. That is the reason why you so often have pains in the back and groin, scalding sensation, urinary disorders, etc.—that's your kidneys. The best thing to do is to get some of Doan's Kidney and Bladder Pills right away. Take them for a few days or a week or so and you will feel all right. In this way, too, you will ward off dangerous and possibly serious ailments. They are perfectly harmless, and are not only antiseptic, but they pain quickly by their healing properties. Send your name to E. C. DeWitt Co., Chicago for a free trial box. They are sold here by all Druggists.

The Crab Industry.

Orisfield is the crab centre of the world, furnishing more than 95 per cent of the soft crabs used throughout the country. About April 1st a large number of Orisfield packers took up their headquarters at Morehead City, Marshall's burg and other points in North Carolina, with the beginning of the season in those waters. From there, the trade is furnished until the opening of the season at Orisfield, about May 10th to 15th. However shipping from Orisfield began about April 20th, the bay boats purchasing the catch from the Rappahannock. The Rappahannock will probably continue to furnish the Orisfield shippers until May 12th, at which time it is expected that the season will have fairly begun. For several weeks the people of Orisfield have been preparing for the great industry. The Crab Packers, who number hundreds of Orisfield's leading business men, have been repairing their pounds, building new floats and making the regular arrangements for the season. The box factories in and around Orisfield, have been running with full forces, making up thousands of crab shipping boxes for this season.

Lived 152 Years.

Wm. Parr—England's oldest man—married the third time at 130, worked in the fields till 132 and lived 30 years longer. People should be youthful at 80. James Wright, of Spurlink, Ky., shows how to remain young. "I feel just like a 16 year old boy," he writes, "after taking six bottles of Electric Bitters. For thirty years kidney trouble made life a burden, but the first bottle of this wonderful medicine convinced me I had found the greatest cure on earth." They're a godsend to weak, slothly randown or old people. Try them, 50c at Toulson's Drug Store, Salisbury, Md.

Extra Steamers For Eastern Shore.

Mr. T. Murdoch general freight and passenger agent of the Maryland, Delaware and Virginia and Baltimore, Chesapeake and Atlantic Railway Companies has announced that additional steamers would be placed on the Potomac and Oconeehannock River Lines commencing May 4. This will give a boat from Orisfield every day in the week but Sunday.

A New Spring Fabric
Fast Color—Launders Perfectly

This is an extra fine quality wash fabric for children grown-ups; the colors, absolutely fast, are woven in the fabric, sides of which are alike.

Made from the highest quality of cotton yarn especially prepared and brilliantized by a new process, giving a beautiful appearance and a permanent finish heretofore unequalled.

It is used extensively throughout the British Isles for women's, young girls' and children's suits or dresses, boys' kilts and all Spring or Summer costumes where durability is to be combined with a chic, attractive appearance; an admirable material for embroidery.

It comes in most attractive plain colors and stripes; material sufficiently light to be comfortable, but very strong and durable. Made in Glasgow, it has all the sturdiness the Scottish Highlander could weave into it.

It's Ours.

We believe that right buying and selling is simply being as fair with each other as we both know how to be—and sharing profits.

We believe that our part is to look to the honesty of the goods we sell you, even more closely than you look when you buy.

To make only promises that we can keep, and, having made them, to keep them at all costs—under all conditions.

To avoid the unreliable. To sell only goods that we can back with our word and our money.

It's easy to live up to that creed with clothes made by

The House of Kuppenheimer.

Because their quality, their style, their fit and workmanship back up the best we can say for them, and the makers back up our money-back agreement.

So there's safety, satisfaction all around.

A New Hosiery For Men--Strength Where Strength Is Most Needed!

Interwoven TOE AND HEEL

A way has been discovered to make a sock so it won't wear out at the toe and heel before the rest of the sock wears out. Think of the darning this is going to save. Imagine a fine lisle sock that will far outwear any heavyweight hosiery you have ever used, and then come buy a trial pair of these at 25c, wear them and come back and thank us for "putting you wise." The ordinary toe and heel are not strong enough to prevent puncture. The peculiar construction of this toe and heel makes them several times as durable as those made in the old way. Give up the holes and patches by using this new hosiery. It will save darning, give you comfort, and save you money. If you are troubled with holes in the toes of your socks, we have the article you want. A fine texture, close fitting, silk finish sock for only 25 cents. Wear socks which won't wear out. PUBLISHED WEEKLY AT SALISBURY, WICOMICO CO., MD.
OFFICE OPPOSITE COURT HOUSE.J. K. WHITE. J. R. WHITE.
WHITE & WHITE, EDITORS AND PROPRIETORS.HAS THE DEMOCRATIC TICKET
BEEN MADE OUT?Strong Rumors Are Rife That A Self-Assuming Few Have Attempted This Thing. Subject To The Confirmation Of A Farical-Disreputable Convention. No One But The People Have The Right To Name The Candidate To Represent Them.

There is a strong impression in the County that the personnel of the ticket to be nominated this year has already been decided upon, by those who have in the past, been in the habit of naming men for the party, through their manipulations of the conventions, if the State Central Committee should decide to hold the primaries under the old discredited convention system.

According to report a gentle intimation has been given to some that it was useless for them to make a fight in the primaries for if they succeeded in bringing up a delegation, there was no chance for them to get on the ticket either because some other man was wanted for their section, or that their district was not entitled to the office this time. On the other hand rumor has it that others have been told to bring their delegation and the nomination should be theirs. There may be or may not be any truth in these rumors, but if it has not been done this year it is probably the first time under the convention system that the nominations have not been practically made long before the convention was called to order, and in most cases before the call for the primaries had been issued.

It is easy to understand how those candidates feel who have been assured either directly or indirectly, of the nominations; but how about those who most discouragement, or plainly told they have no chance? To tamely submit to the dictum of a few is pretty hard and although smoothed with promises of future preferment gives rise to much dissatisfaction in the party ranks. There can be no reason for hard feeling when a man has a fair chance before the people and they decide against him, but to have a few say, you shall or you shall not go on the ticket does not set very well and a would-be candidate does not see why because a few are unfavorable to him—or as they put it "more favorable" to some one else for the party's sake—his political ambitions should be blighted.

The necessity of having time to harmonize the party after the Convention so often emphasized in political circles, arises from the feeling that there has been unfair play and partiality shown by the candidate makers to their party or their tools. "Be good and help us elect the ticket" is one of the harmonious intonations rubbed in these sore spots, "and you will be served later on," just to fool you.

In Wicomico County there are a large number of candidates in the field—many more than there are offices to be filled—and it is time for these candidates to give the question of how the primaries are to be held serious consideration. Whether they want their candidacy passed upon by the voters of their party or left in the hands of a few—whether, if they succeed in getting the nomination, they had rather face the voters with the approval of the majority of their party or with the O. K. of a few stamped upon their back.

Some of those who think they have the inside track will of course selfishly prefer the O. K. of the few, to the endorsement of the many—and some of those who think they are sure of the nomination will wake up on the day of the convention and learn from bitter experience that "Thinks" and "Promises" are not always given in good faith in the game of politics. The nominators will however apply a good coat of harmony rubbed in with time-worn promises of future preferment.

Candidates do not want to think they stand in with the nominators, they want to know it, and if they do not know some one else probably does—or they think they do. And when one "knows" he stands alright he is likely to learn on convention day that his knowledge was acquired from text books out of date, and things which he read therefrom and accepted as facts, were taught but fallacies and delusions instead of truths as he thought.

How about it candidates, do you want the People or the self constituted Nominators to say whether or not you shall serve the people?

TELEPHONE RATES—PUBLIC MEETING CALLED.

The calling of a meeting of the citizens to discuss the situation in reference to the raise in rates on the part of the Telephone Company, by the council is a move in the right direction. The plan of the Company that only new subscribers are affected by the new rates should not fool the people for a moment, as there can be hardly anyone who does not know that sooner or later every user of phones in Salisbury must pay the same rate.

That a telephone company will have several rates in the same town for the same services rendered for any great length of time is absurd, and unfair besides, to those who have to pay the higher rate. How long will any business firm or corporation attempt to run a business and charge their customers different prices for the same goods?

If no protest is made—and a very strong one at that—the Telephone Company will see to it that every subscriber to the phone who is now paying the old rate will have to pay the higher one now imposed upon new subscribers. The people of Salisbury can as well afford to do without phone service as the Company can afford to do without their patronage and afford it much better at that.

The time for the users of the phones to take action is now and not wait until their own rates are changed. If they wait for this to occur they will probably find that the Company has already raised the rates of a few at a time and at no time sufficient number will be affected to make an effective protest.

The only safety lies in standing together and insisting that the rates remain as they are, not only to themselves but to everyone else who uses the service. Orfield has made a successful fight against a raise in rates there, and if the people here stand together the Telephone Company will in the end listen to reason. No one wants any company or corporation to do business at a loss, but neither do they want to have to pay dividends on inflated capital.

"Back To The People," The True Democratic Slogan.

The Democratic committee of the counties of Baltimore, Kent Caroline and Talbot have adopted the plan of direct nominations by the voters of their party. This is a wise determination, and the committee are to be congratulated for their good judgment in making this decision. We do not recall that in any place where the Crawford County system had once been used that it was abandoned. The county convention method was long ago discarded, and it is time that all democratic "joined in the cry," "Back to the people." It is to be regretted that the Democratic committee of one George's county was not progressive and sufficiently clear-sighted in this procession of progress. Any alliance is placed upon the people really makes a right response, and the counties where the nomination is to be made direct we look for a superior class of candidates and a stronger interest in their election among the rank and file of the party.

The Republican organization seem determined to hold on to the conventions. This seems somewhat ludicrous in itself the party of progress. Why should it be afraid of the popular vote? Is it afraid to trust its voters to nominate the candidates they will be asked to elect?—Ed. Baltimore Sun.

The point that takes least gallons, wears longest? Always.
Here's an instance:

WICOMICO PROMINENTLY

Represented in The State Prohibition Convention in Baltimore.

The Prohibition State Convention, which was in session all day Friday in Hopton's Hall, Baltimore, unanimously nominated Mr. John H. Dulany, of Wicomico county, for State comptroller. He declined the honor, though it was twice pressed upon him, and suggested that the new Executive Committee be authorized to select the candidate, a Baltimore business man preferred. Mr. Dulany's suggestion was agreed to.

Mr. Finley C. Hendrickson, of Allegheny, would not permit the presentation of his name because his candidacy would interfere with his work for prohibition in the national field.

After the afternoon recess of the committee the State Convention met, organized and referred to the Executive Committee the proposition of Mr. Luther F. Messick, to act as State organizer of the party. The proposition was commended by State committee. Mr. Messick is a native of White Haven, Wicomico county, and is a Chautauque singer who has visited almost every city in the Union. He is aided in his work by his sister. They excel in singing temperance songs. They will be aided by Dr. George H. Vibbert, of Boston, who is one of the most effective prohibition orators in the country, if his services can be secured.

Mr. John H. Dulany was re-elected State Committeeman for Wicomico county.

Tribute To Our Classmate.

Isabel Turpin entered our class September 1906. She was from the first popular with both teachers and pupils. Miss Turpin ranked among the highest in the class for ability, conscientiousness and duty well performed. She entered into school work and class duties with vigor, enthusiasm and love.

On Wednesday April 27 we missed our classmate from her accustomed place and heard that she was not well. No one felt any apprehensions however because our friend had had several similar attacks before.

To some of her classmates who visited her on Friday, she showed the same brightness and cheerfulness as she had always shown when well.

When we returned to school on Monday we heard that she had been taken to the hospital but we still had no fear of the results. We even planned to send her a postal card from each member of the class.

On Tuesday morning the news of her death so shocked and distressed us that it was a difficult burden to take up our school duties. A gloom was cast over the whole school. We felt and knew that one of the sweetest and best of our classmates had left us to cross the river from whence come no sound, no token whatever.

We know that our friend is happy now. We are the unhappy ones.

Eat What

You want of the food you need
Kodol will digest it.

You need a sufficient amount of good wholesome food and more than this you need to fully digest it. Else you can't gain strength, nor can you strengthen your stomach if it is weak.

You must eat in order to live and maintain strength. You must not diet, because the body requires that you eat a sufficient amount of food regularly.

But this food must be digested, and it must be digested thoroughly. When the stomach can't do it, you must take something that will help the stomach.

The proper way to do is to eat what you want, and let Kodol digest the food.

Nothing else can do this. When the stomach is weak it needs help; you must help it by giving it rest, and Kodol will do that.

Our Guarantee

Go to your druggist today, and purchase a dollar bottle, and if you can honestly say, that you did not receive any benefits from it, after using the entire bottle, the druggist will refund your money to you without question or delay.

We could not afford to make such an offer, unless we positively knew what Kodol will do for you. It would bankrupt us. The dollar bottle contains 2 1/2 times as much as the fifty cent bottle.

A WORD

To Those About To Buy Furniture, Or Carpets, Or Rugs.

Before you actually place your orders for anything for your home, you surely want to see just as many different styles at just as wide a price-range as possible, don't you?

Well, we can show you more styles than any other store in Baltimore.

Now, please don't think this is a "just newspaper claim." We really can show you more different styles of furniture, carpets, rugs, etc., and at a wider price-range than any other local establishment.

Most newspaper advertising is, unfortunately, like campaign claims before an election—mere verbosity, to which no one pays much heed—but the FACTS in the present case are certainly of great importance and special interest to all who intend making any purchases for their home, and merit investigation.

And not only do we excel in the diversity of our stocks, but we give our customers the fullest protection in the matter of price, guaranteeing all our prices to be the lowest for which the same goods can be bought anywhere.

And further, we extend all who so desire the courtesy of a credit arrangement that is simple, dignified and convenient.

A Gentleman From Mississippi

By Thomas A. Wise

Novelized From the Play by Frederick R. Toombs

Copyright, 1905, by Thomas A. Wise.

CHAPTER XVII.

THE CONSPIRATORS OUTWITTED SENATOR LANGDON'S dinner had well won popularity in Washington. Invitations to them were rarely answered by the sending of "regrets." He had brought his old Mississippi cook from the plantation, whose southern dishes had caused the secretary of state himself to make the senator an offer for the chef's services. "No use bidding for old General Washington," said the senator on that notable occasion. "He wouldn't leave my kitchen, sir, even to accept the presidency itself. Why, I couldn't even discharge him if I wanted to. I tried to let him go once, sir, and the old general made me feel so ashamed of myself that I actually cried, sir."

Penbody and Stevens were the dinner guests tonight, as they were to confer afterward with Langdon and settle on the action of the naval affairs committee regarding the naval base. The three, being a majority, could control the action of the committee.

Senator Penbody had finally postponed leaving for Philadelphia until the midnight train in order to be present, he assured Langdon as the trio entered the library. The girls, Norton and Randolph, were left to oversee preparations for the prominent Washingtonians invited to attend the musicale to be given later in the evening. Carolina and Hope Georgia were in distinctly different moods—the elder vivacious, elated over the bright outlook for her future; the younger, cast down and wearing a worried expression. Norton and Randolph in jubilant spirit tried to cheer her and, failing, resorted to taunts about some imaginary love affair.

The courage of the afternoon, which had enabled her to speak to Haines as she had, was gone; girls' fears now swept over her as to the outcome of the evening. Haines had not come! Was he really guilty and had promised to come merely to get rid of her? Why was he late? If he did come, would she be able to have her father see him, as she had promised? If she failed, and she might, she would never see this young man again.

"If I looked as unhappy as you, Hope, I'd go to bed and not discourage our guests as they arrive," Carolina suggested. "Our floral decorations alone for tonight cost $700, and the musical program cost over $3,000. The most fashionable folks in Washington coming—what more could you want, Hope? Isn't it perfectly glorious?"

"Mr. Haines is below, asking to see Senator Langdon," announced a servant, entering.

"Oh, I knew he'd come! I knew it! I knew it!" cried Hope Georgia in pure ecstasy, clapping her hands.

The three plotters turned on the girl in amazement; then they stared at each other.

"Mr. Haines" ejaculated Carolina. "Haines!" exclaimed Randolph, hurriedly leaving the room.

"Haines!" sneered Norton. "We can take care of him. The senator won't see him."

Carolina caught the suggestion. "Tell Mr. Haines that Senator Langdon is below."

"Oh, I knew he'd come! I knew it! I knew it!" cried Hope Georgia in pure ecstasy, clapping her hands.

The three plotters turned on the girl in amazement; then they stared at each other.

also that I recognize no right of yours to interfere in any affair between me and the Langdon family."

"Perhaps I can explain my right, Mr. Haines," Norton said coolly, stepping beside Carolina. "I have just had the pleasure of announcing to Miss Hope Georgia Langdon my engagement to Miss Carolina Langdon."

Haines, entirely unprepared for such a denunciation, shot a searching glance at Carolina. She bowed her head in affirmation.

"So that's why you tried to ruin me," he cried. "You're both from the same mold," turning from Carolina Langdon to Congressman Norton, then back to the girl.

They stood facing each other when Randolph Langdon returned. At sight of Bud Haines he started, stopped short a second, then came forward quickly.

"Mr. Haines, my father has declared that he will not see you, and either you leave this house at once or I shall call the servants."

Bud looked at young Langdon contemptuously.

"Yes, I think you would need some help," he sneered, feeling in his veins the rush of red blood; the determination in his heart that had a few years back carried him through eighty yards of struggling Yale football players to a touchdown.

The senator's son drew back his arm, but the alert, confident look of the New Yorker restrained him.

"Mr. Haines, in the south gentlemen do not make scenes of violence before ladies."

The cold rebuke of Carolina cut into the silence.

Haines stood in perplexity. He did not know what to do, how to get to the senator. He was Hope who came to his rescue.

"I'll tell father you are here. I'll make him come, Mr. Haines. He shall see you."

With the air of a defiant little princess she started for the door.

"Hope, I forbid you doing anything," Haines cried.

Hope Georgia struggled and pulled her arm free.

"I reckon I just got to do what seems right to me, Randolph," she exclaimed. "I reckon I've grown up tonight, and I tell you—I tell all of you—she whirled and faced them—here's something wrong here, and father is going to see Mr. Haines tonight, and they are going to settle it."

Norton alone was equal to the situation, temporarily at least.

"I'll be fair with you, Hope," he said reassuringly, and she stopped in her flight to the hall door. "I'll take Carolina and Randolph in to see the senator, and we'll tell him Mr. Haines is here. Perhaps we had better tell the senator," Norton suggested, beckoning to Carolina and her brother. "Let Mr. Haines wait here, and we will make the situation clear to the senator."

"You'd better make it very clear," exclaimed the younger girl, "for I'm going to stay here with Mr. Haines until he has seen father."

The guilty trio, fearful of this new and unexplainable activity of Hope Georgia, slowly departed in search of Senator Langdon to make a last desperate attempt to prevent him from meeting this pestilential secretary that was—and might be again.

When the door closed after them Hope came down to the table where Bud Haines was standing.

"Won't you sit down, Mr. Haines?" she said. "I'll try to entertain you until father comes," she said weakly, realizing that again she was alone with the man she loved.

Spaniards' Taste in Reading. The librarian selected a book entitled "Farming in the Ohio Valley."

"Will you give this to that young man waiting at the desk?" she said to an assistant. "He is a Spanish student learning to read English, and I think he will suit him."

"That sounds like a very unpromising subject for a student in English to tackle," a friend remarked.

"It would be uninteresting to anybody but a Spanish student," said the librarian, "but the Spaniards run to farming literature. When traveling beginners in English of any other nationality something brightly in the way of fiction or travel usually is recommended. But not to the Spaniards. Nine times out of ten it is a work on agriculture that he will make the best progress in."—New York Press.

The Quipus. The quipus, upon which the ancient Peruvians kept their records and accounts, consisted of a thick main cord, with smaller cords tied to it at certain distances. Upon these smaller cords the knots were tied by means of which the reckoning was kept. The length of the main rope varied from a foot to several yards. The cords were of various colors, each with its own proper meaning—as red for soldiers, yellow for gold, white for silver, green for corn, and so on. The reckoning seems to have been largely regulated by the distances of the knots from the main cord and the sequence of the branches.

—New York American.

Same Effect. "Cyrl," said his mother as they sat down to the breakfast table, "did you wash your face this morning?"

"Well, no, mamma," said he slowly, evidently casting in his mind for an excuse, "but," he added reassuringly, "I cried a little before I came down stairs."—Delineator.

A Word of Holiday Caution. "Little Grace—I don't think my new doll is quite as nice as your new doll."

"Little Ethel—Well, I don't think you ought to say much about it, 'cause it might hurt Santa Claus' feelings."—Brookline Life.

The Cause of Many Sudden Deaths.

There is a disease prevailing in this country most dangerous because so deceptive. Many sudden deaths are caused by it—heart disease, pneumonia, heart failure, or apoplexy are often the result of kidney disease. If kidney trouble is allowed to advance the kidney-poisoned blood will attack the vital organs, causing catarrh of the bladder, brick-dust or sediment in the urine, head ache, back ache, lame back, dizziness, sleeplessness, nervousness, or the kidneys themselves break down and waste away cell by cell.

Bladder troubles almost always result from a derangement of the kidneys and better health in that organ is obtained quickly by a proper treatment of the kidneys. Swamp-Root corrects inability to hold urine and scalding pain in passing it, and overcomes that unpleasant necessity of being compelled to go often through the night, and to get up many times during the day. The mild and immediate effect of Swamp-Root, the great kidney remedy is soon realized. It stands the highest because of its remarkable health restoring properties. A trial will convince anyone.

MARDELA SPRINGS.

Mr. Holland Cooper, of Laurel, Del., spent Sunday at the Springs as the guest of Miss Edna Beach.

Mr. S. B. Sudler spent Saturday and Sunday in Salisbury.

Mr. Harry Lawson and Mr. Bacon Bailey spent part of the week in Baltimore.

Messrs. Roy Bears of Salisbury was in town this week visiting friends.

Mr. Rodney Lee Austin spent Sunday at Bivalve.

Mrs. Percy Gilbert and daughter, Sara of Delmar spent Tuesday as the guests of Mrs. S. W. Bounds.

Miss Hettie Twilley of Athol, spent Tuesday evening as the guest of Misses Ada and Dora Austin.

Mr. Wallace Parker was the guest of his parents, Rev. and Mrs. B. G. Parker last week.

Mrs. Curtis Russell spent Sunday with her daughter, Mrs. Edward R. Bradley School Street.

Miss Essie Deane of Vienna was the guest of Miss Mary Brattan Saturday and Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. E. L. Austin entertained a few friends at their home Sunday.

The new road leading from Mardela Springs to Athol is now completed, and we are delighted with it. The convenience is beyond all computation. There is some pleasure now in driving out in that direction. There is strong talk of making a new Bridge spanning Barren Creek. It will be of cement. Judging by the many small boats anchored just below the bridge, one would think that we are quite an enterprising people. Our pleasant afternoons and moonlight nights there can be seen many pleasure seekers on our beautiful water.

Work has begun on the new road lately laid out and condemned by the County. It is the continuation of the street running along side of Mr. Calhoun's store, and thence bounded by the lands of Messrs. Twilley, Venables, Wilson Cooper and Parker. This will be a great convenience to people living out in that direction. The road was in a bad and dangerous condition before, though much used. Now there has been placed a large boiler in the drain, and the roadway filled up considerably above its old level.

The boys of the town made quite a racket on Wednesday night celebrating the marriage of Miss Grace Wilkinson. But of course it was only fun and mischief.

The farmers around here have been exceedingly busy this week cutting their scarlet clover. There was a great deal sown this past season, but the cold spring has made it quite short. Everybody seems to have a little, and this will stop the buying of so much hay. For farmers to be compelled to buy so much feed is a bad sign. It is thought by the wise ones that should they raise more corn and grass, and less berries, we would be better off. What do you think. The berry crop is an uncertain crop, but when it does hit there is money in it.

Our enterprising fellow citizen Mr. Thad Langdale is busy making crates for the berry shippers. He has had large orders for crates from a distance.

Rev. B. G. Parker, will on Sunday afternoon at 3.30 preach a special sermon in the Presbyterian Church. The plot of the sermon will be a beautiful Oriental story illustrative to the true character of God's people today.

Ring the Curtain Down

By M. CARPENTERS

Ring up the curtain!

A little room on the top floor of a house—a tall, dirt-beamed, many-windowed house—in a dingy street lying between Hobson and the Strand.

A bed, a table, two chairs, a fire-place and a battered-looking wardrobe. On the mantelpiece a second-hand revolver. By the bed a young man of perhaps 30 years of age. So much for the scene.

The actor! The young man by the bed, Tempest—Richard Tempest—one time "Dicky," though he had long since forgotten the fact.

"I think I'll clear up everything first," he muttered, standing irresolute in the middle of the room.

"I wouldn't bring this final disgrace on my highly respectable relations," he laughed bitterly, "for the world! If I burnt all my papers and things no one will know who I am—or was; and no one will be 'downed' for my funeral." He knew that.

He lit the fire, watched it achieve a vigorous blaze, and then deliberately, methodically, and with no sort of compunction commenced throwing into it letters, photographs, the little pages of one or two books—everything, in fact, that might in any way lead to his identification after death.

For to the fact that he was not only a fool but a weak fool there he put one escape from the fierce-biting trouble, and Richard Tempest had elected for it.

"That's done," said Richard, as he emptied the last drawer, "and I consider it uncommon thoughtful of me. Nothing more, I think."

He looked around.

"May be something on top of that cupboard," he thought.

He brought forward a chair, and mounting it, pushed his arm forward into a pile of old newspapers.

"There is something," he said, and stepped down with a small tin case in his hands.

"Mother's dispatch box," he said hoarsely. "It's mother's letter case!"

There was a reverence, a softness in his tones, which had been foreign to them for years—since he had been turned out from his mother's home by a stepfather, aggravated to desperation by his continual shortcomings and failures—since he had broken her heart since she had died.

Practically he had stolen the box, when he was passing his few possessions on the night of the last will and testament. He had had for the first time a mother's love; he had for the first time a mother's devotion to that time when her little ones were her little ones—not yet grown to self-government, and self-will, and distaste for home. It came to him, as he recalled these things, that he would take her box with him.

Ten years had elapsed, and he had knocked about all over the world, and had failed, and failed, and failed, yet, in some inextinguishable way, the little case had accompanied him, and here it was.

It fastened, he remembered, with a spring lock, a wonderful patent catch, the "sesame" of which mother always forgot or said she forgot, and so had always to call the assistance of her four little boys and girls when she wished to open it.

Richard saw the picture again. Something fell with a little thud on the tin lid.

"A tear! What on earth am I doing!" said Richard, and tumbled nervously with the lock. "There! That was it! You put your little finger there, and your thumb here—how difficult it was to stretch the distance in those days! Then you pressed sharply—there! It was open. He had not forgotten."

The box was full of old letters, yellow, torn, heavily stained. Some tied in bundles with faded blue ribbon, others scattered loose; he must burn them all.

He ran his fingers through the heap. What was that? Something soft, wrapped in tissue paper. Curiosity prompted him to open it. A look of golden hair, soft as down. He fingered it wonderingly. Some writing? What was it? Mother's hand, he could see. He took it to the lamp and peered closely.

"Dicky! Five years old!"

The tears came with a blinding rush. He pulled himself together with an effort, and wiped the little stream of tears from his eyes.

This was terrible, he thought. He had never suffered like this before. He must not read; if he valued his self-control, if he had any desire to spare himself, he must not read—must not—must not.

Availing his eyes, therefore, he looked and felt for a bundle, found it, and tossed it across to the fire. The rough usage caused the ribbon to break. The contents of the letters reached the glowing flames, a few letters to the floor.

With an impatient exclamation Richard stepped to gather them. His eyes fell on a little piece of pink tissue paper, such as children love to use. "Your little son, Dicky," he saw in huge, sprawling letters.

He felt he must read it through. There was a quantity of material here and there scattered about the room. "These letters," he thought, "they are yours, no matter how many years ago you wrote them."

pleas his Joan with your shilling I bought a gun and I hung and a up and I hung for Jackey and marjorie I have broken the gun good-by mother your little son Dicky these crosses are kisses for you p. s. I have been a good boy to-day eliza says.

He remembered the occasions now. His mother was Joan to Scott and land, leaving him and Jack and little marjorie in charge of Eliza, their old nurse. His father—his own father—was in India then.

Richard Tempest reached out for another letter and read it, and another, and yet another. Something impelled him thereto. Some were from himself, some from his brothers and sisters, and these often contained references to him.

For the moment Richard was Dicky once more, living in that joyous past—when he was a child, and his sentences recalled some memory which was at once sweet and bitter—which soothed him, and which burned him like hot iron.

"Dicky chose plum jam this week, we wish he wouldn't, we don't like it. Please may we have another pot, mother?"

He remembered that choice quite well. That was one of his mother's rules. Each child in turn might choose the jam for the coming week. Something came to grip him by the throat. He felt suffocated, choked; he must stop the perusal of those letters. They were torturing him, burning him. He must stop—once.

"I have spent all my money, mother, but don't think me extravagant cause I paid the man who took your box this was a kindness from me mother so don't send me back it."

Another savage fit of passion swept over him.

"Hateful bog!" he cried wildly, and leaping to his feet, he snatched the contents of the box with both hands and thrust them on the fire. There was nothing left now; the box was empty. But yes! There was one letter in a huge round hat from Joan to him.

Joan's sprawling hand occupied three sides of the sheet; on the fourth were some lines in another hand—his mother's.

He read the words half aloud, curiously, tremulously, with very nervous emotion he frame trembled to breaking point. A kind of laugh escaped him—tender, broken laughter, at his mother's little letters—then he sobbed aloud.

"I am used, Dicky, dear," the note ran, "to see that you are not writing on lines. I left a lot of paper, ready for you, you know, and you must use it for you are ruining your hand. Also, dear Dicky, you tell me you have been bathing a lot with the Yarnes. You must never go into the water until you have had a meal, at least, before you go. I am so glad to hear you are so well. Thank you very much for the roses. You mustn't spend your pennies on me! It is such a pretty one. Mother will always keep it. Don't forget to write on my lines."

Richard Tempest leaned over the box, the letter pressed to his lips and his face buried in his hands.

"Mother! Mother! If I had only always kept your lines," he groaned. "Mother, I would to Heaven I had died when I was your little Dicky!"

Ten years had elapsed, and he had knocked about all over the world, and had failed, and failed, and failed, yet, in some inextinguishable way, the little case had accompanied him, and here it was.

It fastened, he remembered, with a spring lock, a wonderful patent catch, the "sesame" of which mother always forgot or said she forgot, and so had always to call the assistance of her four little boys and girls when she wished to open it.

The Snapshot

By ANTHONY NICHOLS

Morrison absorbed in the evening paper, was conscious of everything going on about him, and not until he received a hearty slap on the back did he realize that he was not alone in the restaurant.

"Saunders, for all that's good!" he exclaimed, springing to his feet. "Where did you come from?"

"Through the door," laughed the young man addressed as Saunders. He reached for the other's hand and shook it vigorously. "I was sure that I should find you here. It seems good to see you again."

"Sit down, and we'll have dinner together, the same as we used to," broke in Morrison. "I'm still waiting for my order."

"But I've already dined. It's a little early to be sure, but I'm going to make a call later. But I was bound to see you tonight. I tell you I'm glad to see back again."

"You're no gladder to get back than I am to have you," said Morrison. "Well, what kind of a time did you have while you were gone? Tell me all about it. I'd follow you."

Saunders proceeded to relate to his friend everything that he thought would interest him concerning his stay abroad. When he mentioned the Gilberts, Morrison started slightly, but the other did not notice it.

Morrison was wondering if they were the Gilberts whom he knew. They probably were, for the family with whom he was acquainted had sailed for Europe about the same time as Saunders. He started to say that they were friends of his, but somehow he choked his words.

"And Miss Gilbert is the most beautiful girl I ever met," Saunders went on enthusiastically, "and the sweetest."

Morrison forced himself to make some commonplace remark. It was very plain that his friend had fallen a victim of Claire Gilbert's charms. And it was not strange. But what if she had been attracted in turn? Saunders was a fine looking fellow, while he was plainly aware that he was not. But he had hopes, nevertheless.

"When you see her, you will say that she is all I have said, and even more," Saunders paused a moment. "Why, I can show you her picture now. It's only a snapshot, and the day was cloudy, but you can get some idea how beautiful she is." From the notebook which he took from his pocket he carefully removed a small picture and handed it to his friend.

Morrison schooled himself to look at it calmly. The face was handsome, but any hope that he might have had that he would meet Claire Gilbert's picture disappeared when he looked at it carefully. It was certainly hers, and a pain crept into his heart as he handed the picture back to his friend.

"Yes, she is very beautiful," he said after a moment.

"And she is as good as she is beautiful," declared Saunders. "After tonight I hope to have something to tell you, old chap." He paused a moment. "Why don't you tell me to stop talking about her?" he asked, laughing.

"I forget I might have said that," said Morrison. "I must be going along."

In the days that followed he met Saunders very often—sometimes business brought them together, and frequently they dined at the restaurant. Saunders at every opportunity talked of his fiancée; for a few days after his return he had told Morrison that they were engaged. He would often urge his friend to accompany him to the Gilberts for an evening, but he always declined, offering some excuse for not accepting the invitation. But there was a night when he allowed himself to be persuaded to go; and in a very uncomfortable state of mind he found himself with Saunders on the way to their home.

The carriage stopped before a house which was unfamiliar to him; and as they alighted his first thought was that they had probably moved since their return from Europe. But when they were ushered into the drawing room and Saunders with a proprietary air introduced the young lady who came forward to greet them as Miss Gilbert, Morrison found himself looking into a face he had never seen before. His brain was in a whirl. But when he recovered a little, it was very plain that he had made a mistake; that these were not the Gilberts he knew. For the first time in weeks a genuine smile appeared on Morrison's face, and he could very easily have shouted so happy was he.

At that moment he did not think of how strange it was that this young lady should resemble Claire so strongly. Only one thought filled his mind. He would call on her the very next evening and the important question should not be delayed any longer. But he did not have to wait until the following night to see her, for a little later Miss Gilbert said that she expected her cousin Claire that evening.

It was about half an hour later when Claire Gilbert came, and as Morrison stepped forward to greet her something in the way her eyes fell under his gaze told him that she had not been mistaken when he had imagined that she cared for him just a little. He had no opportunity that night to say what he wanted so much to say; but before Saunders and he took their leave, he asked her if he might call the following night, and only she could hear that he intended to ask her something.

The blush which crimsoned her cheeks made him very happy; for he knew that his words were true. He had no doubt that she was the same girl who had been his friend for so long.

WANTS CRAWFORD PLAN

In Dorchester. Judge Laird Henry Earnestly Advocating Direct Nominations By The People.

Chief Judge W. Laird Henry addressed letters to John R. Pattison and Frederick H. Fletcher, candidates for the Democratic nomination for Chief Judge suggesting that the judicial primaries be held under the Crawford county system. The letters are as follows:

John R. Pattison, Cambridge, Md. Dear Sir:—In the formal announcement of your candidacy for the office of Chief Judge of the First Judicial Circuit of Maryland, published some months ago in the county newspapers, you make an appeal to the people from the decision of Governor Crothers in selecting me for the above mentioned office. The fairest method known to me of ascertaining the will of the people on this subject in Dorchester county is to have the State Central Committee call the primaries by what is known as the Crawford county system whereby the Democratic voters may directly express their preference.

Pattison's Friends in Control.

It is a fact well known to you and your friends as well as to me and my friends that a majority of the State Central Committee for Dorchester county as at present constituted is supporting our candidacy and would doubtless be willing to gratify any request you might make in the matter. Therefore the question of submitting the determination of the contest for the judgeship directly to the people is in your hands, and not in mine, and you have it in your power to carry out the wish expressed in your letter of announcement.

No one can be more sensible than myself of the fact that the people should have in the judicial office the person of their choice, and further that it is desirable to free the expression of the choice from the political manipulations. There is no legal obstacle in the plan which I suggest, and for myself if such plan is adopted I shall be content if the people so order to return to the practice of my profession or willing, if they so desire, to continue in the office to which I was appointed by the Governor of Maryland. Yours truly, W. LAIRD HENRY.

Letter To Fletcher.

Frederick H. Fletcher, Cambridge, Md.;

Dear Sir:—I write to propose to you a candidate for the office of Chief Judge of the First Judicial Circuit that we unite in our efforts to have the judicial primaries in Dorchester county held under what is known as the Crawford county system, believing that the people prefer to express themselves in a direct manner on this question. If you concur in this view, permit me to express the hope that you will make known your wishes in some public manner to the State Central Committee for Dorchester County. I have just addressed a letter to Mr. Pattison on this subject and trust that we, as well as other candidates who may aspire to the judgeship, can unite in some way to have a direct expression of the choice of the people for said office free and unfettered by other considerations. Yours truly, W. LAIRD HENRY.

Graduation Day At County Schools.

Commencement exercises are scheduled for the schools of Wicomico county on the following dates: Riverton Central School, Friday evening, May 21. Three graduates. Sivalve Central School, Monday evening, May 24. Four graduates. Sharptown High School, Tuesday evening, May 25. Five graduates. Wicomico High School, Salisbury, Wednesday evening, May 26. Seventeen graduates. The banquet will be held on Thursday evening, 27th. Willard Central School, May 21. One graduate. White Haven Central School, May 21. Two graduates. Fruitland Central School, May 21. One graduate.

Mail Train Restored.

The N. Y. P. & N. on Monday restored the noon mail train by running the train on from Delmar to Salisbury. This will give the people of Salisbury their mail between 12 and 1 o'clock instead of having to wait until after 2 p. m. as has been the case since the train was taken off. This action of the Railroad Co., is due to the demands on the part of the citizens for better mail facilities.

The schedule also makes a change in the Delmar-Cape Charles accommodation, which now leaves Salisbury at 7:15 a. m., instead of 8:15 as formerly. This train going north leaves Salisbury at 7:35 p. m.

There is no change in the day and night express trains.

—Kennedy and Mitchell are selling straw hats cheaper than last season. See window.

GROWING POPULARITY OF THE CRAWFORD PLAN

Of Holding Primaries. Chief Judge Henry Favors It For Dorchester. The Democratic Voters Vote Directly For Their Choice Of Candidate To Fill Each Office.

Indications are plentiful and impressive of the growing popularity of the Crawford County plan of holding Primaries. Five or all of the upper counties on the Eastern Shore, have decided for the plan of direct nominations by the people.

Chief Judge Laird Henry of this Judicial Circuit, is one of the latest public advocates. He wants it for his home county, good old Dorset, and his declarations and advocacy of this plan should make him hosts of friends and recruits in his judicial contest. It is now up to Messrs. Pattison and Fletcher, the two other avowed candidates, to say whether they are willing for the people to decide—as Judge Henry has done, or whether they prefer a game of barter and bargain such as the present unpopular convention system encourages. The high office of Judge starting with the nomination should be free from taint of wrong influences or odor of political trade.

Whatever the outcome in Dorchester, Judge Henry's actions in submitting his case to the people of his county for their decision is worthy the emulation of his opponents, and shows that he is well worthy to win—in his willingness to let the people say.

The Democratic voters of Wicomico are in open rebellion and justly so. They are tired of a few politicians attempting to run the Democratic Party in this county.

In each District, on every hand you find true democrats—good loyal democrats who are tired of following self constituted politicians in the cloak of Democrats—for their own personal profit and aggrandizement.

If democrats are to vote a democratic ticket it should be named in a democratic way by the majority of democrats in the County; that is by the Crawford County Plan. If candidates are named by a few under the unpopular convention system as has been in the past and called the democratic ticket, why should the democratic voters support such an Un-Democratic ticket that they had no part in making.

The Crawford County Plan gives every voter a vote as to who shall go on his Party's ticket. The people of Wicomico County want this. The responsibility lies with the Wicomico Central Committee.

SAYS MAYOR AND CITY COUNCIL HAVE THE POWER TO REGULATE TELEPHONE CHARGES.

As there seems to be a good deal of uncertainty in the public mind about the powers of the City Council and about some legal phases of the telephone controversy, Mr. Ellegood at our request, permits the ADVERTISER to publish the following interview:

"Free law, right off the reel, if not bad law, may demand further consideration. Therefore, I will not give a legal opinion as such but will make some suggestive remarks. (1) Can the Mayor and Council of Salisbury pass an ordinance regulating telephone rates? This was answered at the citizens meeting by the Mayor and City Attorney that the City had such power, and this seems to be fully confirmed by the City Charter of 1908, Chapter 310, Section 158 E, which is in part as follows: 'The Mayor and Council of Salisbury shall have power to grant and regulate franchises to Electric Light Companies, Telegraph Companies, and other corporations,' and to regulate the charges for service of such Companies, as now possess, or may hereafter obtain franchises in said city; and the said Mayor and Council shall not have the power to divest itself of the right to regulate and control the use of any rights under the franchises granted and to fix and regulate the charges for service whenever they may deem the public interests may require it.' It seems from this that the POWER, the DISCRETION, and the DUTY are all imposed upon the Mayor and Council to fix and regulate both the use and the charges 'whenever public interests may require it.'"

(2) Does the public interest require it? The Mayor and Council can answer this question.

(3) Has the Legislature of a State the power to confer upon a municipal corporation the legislative power to fix and regulate rates? Of this, I will speak not so much as a lawyer, as a citizen, and still in a suggestive way. It can be best answered by decisions of the Courts.

There is a decision rendered last November on an appeal to the Supreme Court of the United States from the Circuit Court of United States for the Southern District of California. It is the case of the Home Telephone and Telegraph Co., vs. Los Angeles in which Mr. Justice Moody, speaking for the Court, says: "The power to fix, subject to constitutional limits, the charges of such a business as furnishing to the public of telephone service, is among the powers of government, is legislative in its character, continuing in its nature and CAPABLE OF BEING VESTED IN A MUNICIPAL CORPORATION." This seems quite plain and is supported by numerous decisions.

There are other important points decided in that case, involving the application of the general principle just stated, but they are not involved in this controversy.

The next step is to apply the principle just stated to the facts which we understand to be conceded. The Diamond State Telephone Company in the year 1901 bought out and took over the franchisees of the Salisbury Telephone Company, and entered into a written contract to establish and keep the rates at $12.00 for home, $15.00 if used for long distance, and $25.00 for business or commercial phones. This contract, though not signed by the Mayor and Council, was entered into with its consent and acquiescence.

Next the Diamond State Telephone Co., did establish these rates and has held to them ever since, with the few exceptions of written contracts entered into, we are informed, for a year with its new patrons. Eliminating these special contracts, the result is that the Telephone Co., by its AGREEMENT, and its CONDUCT, has declared to the people and city authorities that $12.00, $15.00, and $25.00 are reasonable and just charges, under which it was willing both to buy out the old Company, and also to take a new franchise from the City for twenty five years.

This looks very like what lawyers call an ESTOPPEL on the Company, to say nothing of its breach of good faith and forfeiture of the good will of the people. At any event, it has put into the hands of the City authorities the strongest possible weapon for a legal battle.

Now, suppose the Telephone Co., should undertake to restrain the City in the enforcement of the ordinance, would not the burden be upon it to convince the Court that ITS OWN RATES are unjust and unreasonable, and if it took them any number of years to get a decision setting aside the ordinance, what harm would be done the people if the status quo, that is, the present rates, can be maintained in the meantime, as seems probable.

The ground on which these public service corporations ask the Court to restrain the execution of such ordinances is that they are unreasonable, unjust, confiscatory, and therefore, in violation of the 4th Amendment of the Constitution of the United States which forbids legislation depriving a person of his property without due process of law. But having, as we have said, solemnly declared and agreed to these rates, and is working under them, it seems reasonable to conclude that the Company did not fix confiscatory rates; and that the burden would be upon the Company to convince the Court that they were unreasonable and unjust and would effect the confiscation of their property. Inasmuch as there are said to be 500 phones here and the proposed increase is $1.00 per year, it means $500.00 to the 'phone takers of Salisbury, which they would probably 'need in their business' quite as well as the Diamond State Telephone Co.

At any rate, it seems worth as speedy an effort as the City authorities can take to get in the first blow in the battle.

Remember that I am only talking suggestively for the consideration of the City Council and the people, for it does seem unfair to compel the people to resort to practically, a boycott, and injure themselves in order to bring the Diamond State Telephone Co., to a realization of the situation.

If the boycott or strike becomes necessary, it ought to be the least remedy to be resorted to, especially in a well ordered and well regulated community like that of Salisbury.

THE PEOPLE AROUSED HOLD LARGE MEETING

Crawford County Plan Primaries In Wicomico And Telephone Situation In Salisbury. Subjects Of Interest. Ready For Action.

Seldom has the city of Salisbury witnessed a more spirited and determined meeting of its citizens on any public question than was the one held in the Court House this week, when a number of subscribers to the Telephone Company met to discuss what should be done in regard to the raise in prices for Telephone services. This meeting was called by the Mayor and City Council at the request and suggestion of the Salisbury Business Men's Association for the purpose of ascertaining how the public felt in regard to the increased rates that the Diamond State Telephone Company had imposed upon new subscribers for phones.

The meeting was called to order by Mayor Charles E. Harper, who in a few words stated the object of the assemblage. Mr. L. Atwood Bennett was chosen chairman and John D. Williams, secretary. Mr. Bennett stated the object of the meeting and then at the request of the Mayor and City Council went into the history of the telephone controversy and the part the Mayor and City Council had taken in the matter, going into the history of telephone services in this city from the time the old Salisbury Telephone Company first established phones to the present date. The sale of this original company to the Diamond State Company and the acquiring of this company by the Bell monopoly. The question was then thrown open to the house for general discussion. Mr. Sen. E. Stanley Towdvin took the floor and so went into the history of the telephone business and pointed out that but little friction had existed here between the companies and the subscribers until the line was acquired by the Bell Telephone Company, and after the Mayor and City Council had granted this company a new franchise for 25 years, and since that time there has been nothing but "conflictual strife between the subscribers and the management." Mr. Towdvin advocated the appointment of a committee by the President of the Business Men's Association to confer with the Mayor and City Council and report the result of same to an adjourned meeting of the Association. The resolution as offered was as follows:

"That the President of the Business Men's Association of Salisbury be, and is hereby directed, to appoint a committee to consult with the Mayor and Council of Salisbury and the Diamond State Telephone Company as to the proper rate of telephone charges that would be equitable to subscribers and the telephone company, and also consider other matters in connection with the telephone service in Salisbury and vicinity as may be considered necessary and report at an adjourned meeting of the Business Men's Association, May 25th, 1909."

It was very evident from the manner in which this resolution and solution of the matter was received by the large number present that this method was not in sympathy with those present. It looked however for a time as though this resolution would go through without question merely for the lack of some one to advocate something different. At this stage Prof. W. J. Holloway arose and stated that it seemed to him that now was the time to take some definite action in regard to this matter. "If," he said, "the people were satisfied, it was time to let things alone, if not some definite action should be taken at once." He stated that as far as matters had gone at the meeting that no progress was being made to solve the question, and suggested that instead of appointing a committee to again report on the matter that those present reach some conclusion as to what should be done in the matter. He suggested that a committee be appointed to see the subscribers of the Phone Company and have them sign an agreement to cut out their phones unless the Telephone Company would agree to establish uniform and reasonable rates to all subscribers. It was at once evident that Prof. Holloway had struck a responsive chord in those present, his remarks being received with applause and enthusiasm. Mr. E. H. Walton followed Mr. Holloway and advocated the same course and moved as a substitute to Mr. Towdvin's resolution one on this line. This action was the one finally passed. Mr. B. D. Grier advocated the establishing of a local telephone company, so as to give the people of Salisbury the benefit of this service, and Mr. T. H. Mitchell followed this with suggestion that a company be organized at once. A subscription blank to the stock of such a company was at once prepared and close to $4,000 was subscribed to organize a local company if the present company will not make reasonable and equitable rates here.

If necessary to establish such a company here there will certainly not be any trouble about capital as it is believed that twice the required amount can be raised in a very short time.

A committee consisting of the following:—Messrs. Thos. H. Mitchell, A. M. Jackson, Elmer H. Walton, Jno. M. Toulson and Rev. W. A. Cooper, was appointed to see the subscribers and get them to sign an agreement to cut out all of their phones on the first day of July if the Diamond State Telephone Company did not on or before that date establish a uniform rate of $15 per year for resident phones and $25 per year for business phones, and at the same time agree to subscribe to a phone from a new company to be organized if the present Company refused to establish these rates. This committee has been hustling and most of the subscribers have been seen, and it is believed that close to 90 per cent of the subscribers have agreed to cut out their phones on that date unless these rates are established.

Besides the ones mentioned a number of others present at the meeting addressed it and at times the remarks were hot and spirited. The Mayor and Council came in for some hot shots because of their inaction in the matter, and at the close of the meeting Mayor Harper made a short explanatory address as to what the Council had done and tried to do.

The subscription blank for stock in a new company prepared by Mr. A. M. Jackson was as follows:

"The undersigned citizens of Salisbury subscribe the amount opposite our names for the purpose of purchasing stock in local telephone company, the par value of the capital stock to be decided upon at a meeting of organization to be called for that purpose; it is understood that the undersigned will be released from this pledge provided the Diamond State Telephone Company accedes to the rates of $15.00 and $25.00 for service to the Salisbury exchange, not later than July 1st, otherwise the same to remain in full force." The paper was signed by the following with the subscriptions amounting to over $3,000. T. H. Mitchell, Affria Fooks, P. S. Shockley, A. F. Benjamin, E. A. Towdvin, W. F. Bounds, Thos. M. Slemmons, White & Bio., Augustus Towdvin, Geo. C. Hill, C. E. Bennett, F. L. Smith, L. A. Bennett, U. W. Dickerson, Thos. Tilghman, J. McFadden Dick, D. J. Elliott, J. E. Moore, Towdvin & Bell, George T. Houston, C. E. Williams, John H. Waller, B. D. Grier and Elmer H. Walton.

Remember that I am only talking suggestively for the consideration of the City Council and the people, for it does seem unfair to compel the people to resort to practically, a boycott, and injure themselves in order to bring the Diamond State Telephone Co., to a realization of the situation.

If the boycott or strike becomes necessary, it ought to be the least remedy to be resorted to, especially in a well ordered and well regulated community like that of Salisbury.

At any rate, it seems worth as speedy an effort as the City authorities can take to get in the first blow in the battle.

Kingston, St. Vincent, B. W. L. May 6.—It may be that Capt. Collin Stephenson and the crew of the American whaling ship Carrie D. Knowles, long since thought to have been lost at sea, are still alive in a Venezuelan prison. An American seaman, who gives the name of Payne, an escaped prisoner from Venezuela, has made his way to Kingston, where he laid before the authorities an astounding story of the seizure of the Carrie D. Knowles at a Venezuelan port, where she arrived five years ago in distress, and the incarceration by the Venezuelans of the captain and his men.

So convinced are the authorities here that there is truth in Payne's story that they have taken down his full statement and have already taken steps looking to a speedy and thorough investigation of the case.

NOT TRUST PEOPLE.

Bad Politics And Bad Policy. Crawford County Plan Is Not Afraid To Trust Them.

The Democratic party organization of Frederick county, like that of Prince George's, has decided to hold on to the old convention system of making its nominations for office this year, rather than to trust the people to select their own candidates. This is to be regretted. We believe it is a bad policy and bad politics. It is just possible that if the party leaders in that great county would pursue a more popular and progressive course the Democratic party might gradually become the majority party, instead of wandering forty years in the wilderness.

The mass of the Democratic party in Frederick county is not an ignorant mass. The Democratic people up there are intelligent, well informed people and entirely competent to select their own candidates. There is no danger to be apprehended from trusting them. On the contrary, it has been the common experience that in places where the Crawford county system has prevailed the party people are much more enthusiastic in supporting the ticket nominated by themselves than they are in supporting a machine made ticket. After a convention there are always heart burning and sore places to be healed, and it is seldom that the soreness all disappears before election day. On the other hand, when nominations are made by the direct vote in fair primaries, honestly conducted, those who are defeated or disappointed nearly always acquiesce in the result, which is the voice of the majority. It is a characteristic feature of our system of government that the minority will almost invariably acquiesce quietly in the will of the majority honestly and legally expressed.

Let us hope that the Democrats of both Frederick and Prince George's will reconsider their decision and show that they are not afraid to trust the people. It will strengthen the party in both counties to do so.—Baltimore Sun Editorial.

WOMEN'S WOES.

Salisbury Women Are Finding Relief At Last.

It does seem that women have more than a fair share of the aches and pains that afflict humanity; they must "keep up," must attend to duties in spite of constantly aching backs, or headaches, dizzy spells, bearing down pains; they must stoop over when to stoop means torture. They must walk and bend and work with aching pains and many aches from kidney ills. Kidneys cause more suffering than any other organ of the body. Keep the kidneys well and health is easily maintained. Read of a remedy for kidneys only that helps and cures the kidneys and is endorsed by people you know.

Mrs. John L. Baker, 313 Baker Street, Salisbury, Md., says: "A year or so ago I procured Doan's Kidney Pills at White & Leonard's drug store and after taking them a short time, I found relief from kidney complaint. I had been bothered a great deal by a lame back and a heavy bearing down sensation through my hips. No matter what I did or took, this misery clung to me and I was also bothered when I arose in the morning by a stiffness across my loins. I procured Doan's Kidney Pills at White & Leonard's drug store and in return for the benefit they brought me, I consider them worthy of my recommendation."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, N. Y., sole agents for the United States. Remember the name—Doan's—and take no other.

That is the reason why you so often have pains in the back and groin, aching sensation, urinary disorders, etc.—that's your kidneys. The best thing to do is to get some of DeWitt's Kidney and Bladder Pills right away. Take them for a few days or a week or so and you will feel all right. In this way, too, you will ward off dangerous and possibly serious ailments. They are perfectly harmless, and are not only antiseptic, but they pain quickly by their healing properties. ## HEAD TO THE NORTH

Foot To South, Is The Proper Position For Sleeping, Says French Doctor.

The French doctors claim to have discovered that the proper position in which to sleep is to have the head to the north and the feet pointing south. Any other position, such as east and west, is contrary to the laws of nature, says the correspondent of the London Telegraph. Persons whose heads are placed east and west, therefore, lie in the wrong position at night, and instead of getting rest and comfort, they only wear themselves out in sleep. It was by means what they call the "neuro-psychological currents" in man that the two savants came to this conclusion. When awake, they farther state, another position, namely east to west, is the best for any prolonged activity. Owners of factories and offices where a large number of persons are regularly employed would, they add, find it to their advantage to have their establishments facing east and west. More work can be got out of a man in this position with much less fatigue. If literary men want to write a good composition they should sit at their desks facing the east. How simple, after all, it will be hereafter to write better than Homer or Shakespeare, or to paint a masterpiece which would fill Michael Angelo with envy!

To the Man Who Won't be Driven In a Clothes Purchase

Your trade—above all others—is what we're seeking.

The determined man is the man who knows; and the more a man knows about clothes-quality, the more surely his trade belongs here.

We'll help you make a particular inspection of clothes made by The House of Kuppenheimer.

We'll join in the flaw-hunt.

Our time is all yours till you're satisfied. And it's yours after you're satisfied, if you get dissatisfied.

We stand back of every garment through its whole life.

Isn't that your way to clothes satisfaction?

Lacy Thoroughgood
SALISBURY, MD.

If you wanted to buy a Locomotive, where would you go? Why, to Baldwin's, of course; because Baldwin's is Headquarters for such things.

THE SAME REASON should take you to Lacy Thoroughgood's when you want Clothing, Hats, Shirts, or anything to wear; for in Salisbury Lacy Thoroughgood is headquarters for clothing just as Baldwin is headquarters for locomotives. Do you realize what it means to be able to buy Thoroughgood Clothes? Do prices mean anything? All stores, big and little, advertise Suits for $12.50, $15, $18.50 and $20. All praise them to the skies. Might think there was a chain of clothing stores selling suits at fixed prices like Cut-rate Grocer or United Cigar Stores. Such not being the case, there must be a best suit at each price grade to be had at some one of the stores. Which store has it? THAT'S THE PUZZLE. If you would follow a woman's method, you would shop around and find out. BUT YOU WON'T—that's not the average man's way. You'll likely buy at the first store you go to, if you find a suit there that pleases you fairly well and fits you half decently; and then, as the summer rolls by and the defects of the clothes become more and more apparent, you'll fairly hate that suit and feel uncomfortable every time you are in a gathering of well-dressed men. After all, isn't it what you get for your $12.50, $15.00, $18.50 or $20.00, rather than the price, that spells value—real, actual, fair-deal value? You all know Lacy Thoroughgood sells GOOD CLOTHING CHEAP. Why take chances when you have a sure thing at Thoroughgood's? Every article is guaranteed.

WHAT'S THE SECRET?

Having Good Clothes, in Great Variety,
At Fair Prices? Telling The Truth About Them.

IT APPEARS to be a very simple formula, plain and business-like, but thousands of men have learned that not many clothing stores have been able to follow Lacy Thoroughgood's course. Some stores have cheap clothing at cheap prices, and if men think it pays to buy that kind, no one can say nay. But Lacy Thoroughgood's is a progressive clothing store—the store of constant activity—which has built up a great business by searching out the best makers in Chicago, New York City, Rochester, and bringing to you these several well-known lines, guaranteed to be the very best in the world. We sell B. Kuppenheimer & Co., Alfred Benjamin & Co., Michaels, Stern & Co. These great manufacturers are style creators, employing designers, draughtsmen and fashion experts of the very highest class, and their clothes are worn by men of the most exacting requirements.

Suits at $12.50, $15, $18.50, $20.

At each of these four prices Thoroughgood has hundreds and hundreds of suits. Thoroughgood's $12.50 Suits, for example, are not equaled in value anywhere else—and certainly not equaled in selection of styles. We believe no other store anywhere shows such a variety of suits at $15 and $18.50. And so it goes. Beautiful, exclusive fabrics, stylishly cut, perfectly tailored, and sizes for men and young men of all proportions. It always pays to come to Lacy Thoroughgood when you want anything good to wear.

Men's $24.00 Suits, Kuppenheimer's, . . .	$20.00
Men's $22.50 Suits, Kuppenheimer's, . . .	$18.50
Men's $18.50 Suits, Kuppenheimer's, . . .	$15.00
Men's $16.50 Suits, Kuppenheimer's, . . .	$14.00
Men's $15.00 Suits, Kuppenheimer's, . . .	$12.50
Men's $12.50 Suits, Michaels, Stern & Co., . . .	$10.00

All sizes at each price—hundreds and hundreds of suits. Lacy Thoroughgood is running a Clothing Store now; you ought to see it. Come and look.

A good many people have the idea that because of the recognized high quality of Kuppenheimer Clothes, the price is up in proportion. It isn't.

Come here—run your eye over the models, look for quality first; satisfy your taste on style; then inquire the price.

It's economy will surprise you every time.

You've a safe feeling from the first—a satisfied feeling to the last—when you buy clothes made by

The House of Kuppenheimer.

Because the thing of real importance—with the makers who create them; and with us who sell them—is your getting the clothes that will serve you best.

That's just good business on the maker's part and on ours.

Because your good will and good patronage mean continued success for us—through all the years we mean to be in business.

AS WICOMICO DEMOCRATIC VOTERS SEE IT.

Deplorable And Disgusting Conditions In The Party—Self Constituted Democratic Nominators (Democratic In Name Only) Making Republicans Out Of Democrats.

In talking of the Convention one of the most prominent democrats in the County said that while he did not know just how the Crawford County plan would work but one thing he did know and that was that the present way of nominating the ticket was wrong and unfair, and that the people were thoroughly disgusted with the present method. He spoke of the conditions in his district at present and compared them with those of the past, and stated that the Republican Party had been steadily gaining and what used to be a mere democratic district was now Republican.

Asked how he accounted for the change in sentiment in a district that used to number two democratic votes for every republican vote, he said that a number of the young men had realized that the democratic party as now run opened to them no chance of political preferment, and older democrats had become disgusted with the out and dried way of porting out offices to those who were the favorites of those who usually decided upon the make up of the ticket.

He also spoke of the effect of a memorable Congressional Campaign several years ago when the general voters had become disgusted with those who were using the party for their own interest, and who in that campaign had found that the convention system had nominated a man who was not personally acceptable to the powers that be, and as a result a number of the so-called organization leaders were out soliciting and buying votes for the Republican nominee. As there could be no reasonable objection to the man nominated, either personally or politically many of the voters had become disgusted with this action.

Also that many who were for the first time persuaded to vote the republican ticket by these leaders had never returned to the democratic fold. He further stated that in his opinion unless something was done to interest the general voter in his party and ticket, the steady process of making republican votes that has been going on for several years would continue until this County, once the stronghold of democracy, would be captured by the republican party.

This is the condition not of this district alone but can be heard all over the county, and no out and dried ticket made out by a few self constituted nominators is going to check the discontent of the voters. If the State Central Committee is wise and wants to aid the party rather than play in the hands of a few self interested politicians it will give the people this year a right to nominate the ticket, and hold the primaries under the Crawford County plan.

THE TELEPHONE SITUATION.

To anyone present at the meeting held in the Court House this week, there can be no question as to what the real sentiment of this community is, in regard to the attempt of the Diamond State Telephone Company to raise the rates for phone service in this city. It was very evident that the determination reached to cut out all phones on the first of July and subscribe to a new company, was not a bluff on the part of those present but meant just what was said. This was further emphasized by the fact that over $3,000 was subscribed then and there for a new company if the present one did not make an equitable and just rate before the date mentioned, and it would have been very easy to have raised several times this amount if it had been deemed necessary at this time. In addition to this the committee appointed to canvass the subscribers has met with a response, it is stated, from close to 95 per cent of the subscribers, who have signed an agreement to cut out their phones on the date mentioned and to subscribe for a like number of phones in a new company to be organized if the Diamond State will not establish the rates asked for. While it is to be hoped that it will not be found necessary to organize a new company, since better service and more satisfactory results can be obtained from one than from two companies, yet the people are not to be blamed if they protect themselves from the exaction of the present company by the forming of an independent line.

The action of the citizens in taking a hand in the fight for just rates should not be construed as relieving the Mayor and Council from their responsibility in the matter or from performing their plain duty of protecting the citizens from the extortion of a Company whose idea of reasonable rates would seem to be, the highest possible rate for which the people would stand. The present trouble could all have been avoided if the Council and Mayor had seen to it that when the new franchise for 25 years was given to the Telephone Company, it contained a clause fixing the maximum rate to be charged during the life of the franchise. This, however, while a big blunder on the part of the Mayor and Council, is all past now and can not be recalled. But the attorney for the City, as well as other attorneys, seems to hold the view, that under the charter the city has the right to establish the rates for phone service. If such is the case the Council should take action as soon as by an ordinance fix a legal rate for phone services within the corporate limits of Salisbury. This should be done regardless of any action taken by the citizens, and would supplement their efforts and help them in their fight.

The only reason for taking the drastic course of cutting out the phones decided upon at the meeting, was fear that legal action ALONE would result in long delays, and was not intended to take the responsibility off from the Mayor and Council. The chances for success will be greatly increased, if the City will act in conjunction with the subscribers and establish by ordinance a legal rate for Salisbury. With the people determined to cut out their phones and establish a new company, and the Council doing its part by showing it does not intend to sit still and allow a corporation to impose upon the citizens the Diamond State Telephone Company would realize that it was up against a pretty stiff proposition and would be more likely to accede to the demands for just and reasonable rates. Let us have co-operation between the City and the citizens—the citizens are doing their part—let the Council and Mayor help them out and do theirs.

DEATH IN THE CITY

Mrs. Virginia Gordy At 57 Years. Of Age.
Mrs. Rebecca Downing At 95.

Mrs. W. S. Gordy.

In the death of Mrs. Virginia Browning Gordy, Salisbury loses one of her most respected and esteemed ladies. Mrs. Gordy had been in poor health for some time and her death, which occurred Monday morning at her home on Walnut Street, was not unexpected. Mrs. Gordy was prominently connected with the social and church work of the city. Possessed of a fine contralto voice, she was a leader in our musical circles, where she will be greatly missed. She was a member of the Trinity M. E. Church, South, choir and a hard worker in the church work. Mrs. Gordy had a charming personality and a bright, cheerful disposition which made her a favorite wherever she was known. She was the daughter of the late Henry J. Browning and a sister of H. L. and M. V. Browning, of this city. Her 57 years had been spent in Salisbury. She leaves besides her husband, three children: W. S. Gordy, Jr., assistant cashier of the Salisbury National Bank, Mrs. Graham Gunby and Miss Nancy M. Gordy.

Funeral services were held from her late home Wednesday afternoon at 4 o'clock, conducted by Rev. W. A. Cooper, of Trinity M. E. Church, South. The pallbearers were her brothers, Messrs H. L. Browning, A. C. Browning, M. V. Browning, and Messrs S. E. Gordy, William H. McCoskey and W. U. Folk. Interment was in the family plot in Parsons Cemetery. Beautiful floral tributes sent by loving friends and relatives covered her grave in the cemetery.

Mrs. Rebecca Downing.

Mrs. Rebecca Downing, perhaps the oldest person in Wicomico County died Sunday morning at the home of her daughter, Mrs. John H. White, in this city. Deceased was 95 years, 1 month and 31 days old, and until a short time ago was active for a person of her age. It is seldom we are called upon to record the demise of one who has attained unto such an advanced age, but Mrs. Downing came from a long-lived family.

Funeral services were held Tuesday afternoon.

THE TRAVELERS CLUB

And Its Return To America. Delightful Re-Union On Camden Road.

"The Travelers Club" the long away, Have now returned to U. S. A. And to their friends send greeting; On Wednesday eve, nineteenth of May, 'Tis hoped that you will wend your way

To Mistress Humphrey's quaint abode Situate on Camden road. Over the tea cup to chatter awhile And exchange the pleasure of jest and smile.

This was the greeting sent out to their friends by The Travelers Club, on invitation cards decorated with a teapot and tea cups.

The programme for the evening entertainment was a monologue "A Bill from the Milliner" Miss Emma Powell, Mrs. Durham and Dr. S. A. Graham.

"Over the Teacups," a play rewritten and changed to suit the occasion was given. This is a play where several ladies representing different sections were gathered around the "Tea Cups," and in the course of the conversation (not gossip) each one of the girls tell about a love letter they have received without giving any name. Finally the French girl comes in and reads her letter and all find they have received the same letter from the same man. An indignation meeting is held at once and they proceed to map out plans for vengeance.

The letters are all tied together and a letter signed by all is written and the bundle is thrown at the indiscreet man as he passes.

The cast was as follows:—The Hostess, A German Girl, Miss Letitia Houston.

New England Girl Mrs. H. S. Todd. Bostonian Girl, Miss Elizabeth Wallis.

Southern Girl, Mrs. M. A. Humphreys.

New York Girl, Miss Mary Lee White.

French Girl, Miss Maria Ellingood.

The "Travelers Club" has long been famous for unique and delightful entertainment and the one given last night was fully up to the usual standard. The characters were all well taken and the monologue and play a complete success.

And then the quicker you take Kodol—the better. Eat what you want, let Kodol digest it. ### CHAPTER XVIII.

HOPE LANGDON'S HOUR OF TRIUMPH

HAINEs sat at a table in the reception room, across from Hope Georgia, and his gratitude for her battle in his favor mingled with a realization of qualities in this young lady that he had never before noticed. Probably he did not know that what he had really seen in her that day and that evening was the sudden transition from girlhood to womanhood, her casting aside of thoughtless, irresponsible youth and the shouldering of the responsibilities of the grown woman who would do her share in the world's work.

He started across in astonishment at this slip of a girl who had outwitted two resourceful men and an older sister of unquestioned abilities.

"I do not recognize you, Miss Hope," he said finally.

"Perhaps you never looked at me before," she suggested archly, feeling instinctively that this was her hour; that the man she loved was at this moment thinking more about her than of anything else in the world.

Haines made a gesture of regret. "That must be it," he agreed. Then he leaned forward eagerly. "But I'm looking at you now, and I like looking at you. I like what you've done for me."

"Oh, that was nothing, Mr. Haines," she exclaimed, shrilly, her intuition telling her of her away over the man.

"Nothing?" he exclaimed. "Well, it's more than any one ever did for me before. I've known lots of girls."

"I don't doubt that, Mr. Haines," Hope interjected, with a light laugh. "Yes, I say, I've known lots of girls, but there's never been one who showed herself such a true friend as you have been. There's never been any one who believed in me this way when I was practically down and out."

"Perhaps you've never been down and out before, Mr. Haines, so they never had a chance to show whether they believed in you or not."

"That may be one reason," he answered. "I wonder why?" he paused. "I wonder why your sister Carolina did not believe in me?"

"You were quite fond of her, weren't you?" the girl began, then stopped and turned away her head.

Haines gazed curiously at Hope. "I was, yes. I even thought I loved her, but I soon saw my mistake. It wasn't love. It was only a kind of—"

Suddenly pausing, Bud Haines shot a swift glance at the girl. "What wonderful hair you have, Miss Hope."

The girl smiled invitingly. "Think so?"

"Yes," he declared earnestly. "I know so. I never noticed it before, but I guess lots of fellows down in Mississippi have."

Hope's tantalizing smile worried him. "I hope you are not secretly engaged too," he exclaimed.

"No, oh, no," she answered quickly before she thought.

"Or in love?" he asked seriously. Haines had stood up and was now leaning intently over the table. He realized the difference between the feeling he had had for Carolina and the tender emotion that thrilled him as he thought of the sweet girl before him. This time he knew he was not mistaken. He knew that he truly loved Hope Langdon.

"Or in love?" he asked again, anxious at her silence.

Hope looked at him slowly. A faint blush illumined her face.

"Oh, don't let's talk about me," she exclaimed.

"But I want to talk about you," he cried. "I don't want to talk about anything else. I must talk about you, and "No one has believed in me but you." I'm going to talk whether you want to hear or not. You've believed in me when nobody else believed. You've fought for me when everybody else was fighting against me. You've shown that you think I am honest and worthy of a woman's faith. You fought your own family for me. Nobody has ever done for me what you have, and—"

He filtered, full of what he was about to say.

"And you're grateful," she ended. He looked her squarely in the eyes as though to fasten her thoughts. Then he reached toward the girl and seized both her hands.

"Grateful nothing," he cried. "I'm not grateful. I'm in love—in love with you. I want you—want you as I never wanted anything or anybody before, and I tell you I'm going to have you. Do you hear?"

Hope could not hide her agitation. The light in her eyes showed she was all a woman.

"It's not so quickly as that, Mr. Haines!" she protested, with her last attempt at archness.

"Nothing could," he threatened. "I'll show you."

He advanced quickly around the table, but the girl darted just beyond his grasp. Then she paused—and her lover gathered her in his arms.

"Hope, my dear, you are my own." He would have said more, but he was so full of the kiss that he was not refused to him.

Hope released herself from his fervent grasp.

"I love you, I do love you," she said fondly. "I believe in you, and father must too. You've got to straighten this tangle out now, for my sake as well as your own. Father will listen."

"It's all so strange, so wonderful, that I can hardly understand it," began Haines slowly as he held the girl's hands.

Unknown to both, the door leading from the hall had opened to admit Senator Langdon into the lower end of the room. Surprised at the sight of the couple, so seriously intent on each other, he made a sudden gesture of anger, then, apparently changing his mind, advanced toward them.

"I believe you want to see me, sir," he said to Haines. "I hope you'll be brief. I have very little time to spare from my guests."

Hope's bosom fluttered timorously at the interruption. The man nervous, stepped forward.

"I shan't take much of your time, Senator Langdon," he said. "There has been a misunderstanding, a terrible mistake. I am sure I can convince you."

Senator Langdon hesitated doubtfully, half turned toward Carolina, Randolph and Norton, who had followed him, and again faced Haines.

Hope pressed her father's arm and looked up into his face entreatingly. Randolph, observing this, quickly stepped close to the senator's side, saying, "I can settle with this Mr. Haines for you."

Waving his son aside, the senator said, "I reckon there's been too many attending to my business and settling my affairs, Randolph," he said. "I think for a change I'll settle a few of my own. All of you children go out and leave me here with Mr. Haines."

THE RUSSIAN PEASANT.

Stupid and Poor, a Good Fellow Who Merely Exists.

The Russian peasant does not live; he merely exists. "Nitchev" ("It is nothing"), he merely says when anything happens to him. Nothing is his, nothing could be his, and "Nitchev" is his panacea for all evils.

And yet the Russian peasant is really a fine fellow. Ordinarily, if P. Kennard tells us in his book, "The Russian Peasant," he is a splendid, well built man, large limbed, large headed and healthy. He is equally unaffected by 20 degrees of frost or twenty glasses of vodka. He is clothed in unadorned sheepskins and carries in winter more clothes than the average Englishman could stand up in.

He is unspokeably stupid, however, and his dream of happiness is to gorge, to sleep as much as possible through the winter and dance and sing in the summer. But the stranger's first objection to the moujik is that he smells—not because he does not wash himself. As a matter of fact, in every village there are public baths—baths and the peasants wash themselves there unflinchingly every Saturday in order to be allowed to go to church on Sunday, for the Orthodox church enjoins cleanliness.

The Russian peasant is always poor and generally in debt. He plows the land in the same way that his father plowed it and gets as little for his labor. His main worry in life is how to pay the governor's taxes. If he says he cannot pay he is dogged, or perhaps he will be determined to meet the power of work—a work for nothing for several months—to raise a loan, and of course he is worse off than ever the following year.

On Christmas night at dusk the marriageable village girls go out into the streets and meet their young men, and one says, "What is your name?" The young man answers, "Foma," and she replies, "My husband's name is Foma."

Sometime later the girl's home relations are gathered together. There comes a knock at the door. The starosta and the young man enter, carrying loaves of bread. The starosta says something like this:

"We are German people, come from Turkey. We are hunters, good fellows. There was a time once in our country when we saw strange footprints in the snow, and my friend the prince here saw them, and we thought they might be a fox's or marten's footprints or it might be those of a beautiful girl. We hunted, we good fellows, and we determined to meet them. We have found the animal. We have been in all cities from Germany to Turkey and have sought for this foot, this marten or this prince, and at last we have seen the same strange footprints in the snow again, here by your court. And we have come in. Come, let us take her, the beautiful princess, for we see her in front of us, or else it be that you would keep her till she grows a little older."

Thus does the moujik ask for a wife.

Had to Bow to Custom. The late King Oscar of Sweden was the least conventional of monarchs, but he had to courtesy to custom nevertheless. The king and M. Bonnier the botanist, met as strangers while out in search of flowers near Stockholm. They were soon the best of friends, and Bonnier suggested lunch at his inn.

"Come home with me instead," said the other.

When the way led to the palace gates Bonnier hesitated.

Do You Get Up With a Lame Back?

Kilmer's Kidney Pills Make You Miserable.

Almost everyone knows of Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, the great kidney, liver and bladder remedy, because of its remarkable health restoring properties. Swamp-Root fulfills almost every wish in overcoming rheumatism, pain in the back, kidneys, liver, bladder and every part of the urinary passage. It corrects inability to hold water and scalding pain in passing it, and effects following use of liquor, wine or beer, and overcomes that unpleasant necessity of being compelled to go often through the day, and to get up many times during the night.

Swamp-Root is not recommended for everything but if you have kidney, liver or bladder trouble, it will be found just the remedy you need. It has been thoroughly tested in private practice, and has proved so successful that a special arrangement has been made by which all readers of this paper, who have not already tried it, may have a sample bottle sent free by mail, also a book telling more about Swamp-Root, and how to find out if you have kidney or bladder trouble.

When writing mention reading this generous offer in this paper and send your address to Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N.Y. The regular fifty-cent and one-dollar size bottles are sold by all druggists. Don't make any mistake. Remember the name—Swamp-Root, Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, and the address, Binghamton, N.Y., on every bottle.

EX-MAYOR HUMPHREYS

Of Salisbury, Dies At His Portsmouth Home. Fragment Here in the '80's And Early '90's.

News reached here on Thursday of the death of Mr. Randolph Humphreys at his home in Portsmouth, Virginia. His body was brought up on Friday and was carried to St. Peter's Episcopal Church, where the funeral services will be conducted this Saturday morning at 10.30. Mr. Humphreys was the son of Gen. Humphrey Humphreys and was born in Salisbury on April 7th 1833, the youngest of seven children, among whom were the late Lafayette Humphreys and Dr. E. W. Humphreys. At the death of his father he bought out his interest in the firm of Humphrey Tilghman, which was one of the largest business houses here, and of which firm, the present one of W. B. Tilghman Co., is the successor. He was also engaged extensively in the timber business in the South. In 1894 he was elected Mayor of Salisbury and re-elected in 1896. During his term as Mayor the present City Hall was built and many improvements made. Politically he was a staunch democrat. His sterling qualities of head and heart brought him the friendship of the people and made his intimate associates hold him in high esteem.

In 1889 he married Elizabeth, daughter of John Buckner Dehman, who died about eleven years ago. Mr. Humphreys met with financial reverses and soon after the death of his wife removed from Salisbury and made his home in Virginia, where he was engaged in the lumber business. He is survived by two daughters, Miss Iva and Miss Mary.

Funeral services were interred in Parson's Cemetery. The funeral services were conducted by the Rev. David Howard. The pall bearers were, L. Williams, A. C. Smith, W. M. Cooper, Naman Turner, S. E. Gordy and F. A. Grier.

Wicomico B. and L. Shows Prosperous Year.

The fifteenth annual meeting of the stockholders of the Wicomico Building and Loan Association was held Monday evening when a statement, showing the operations of the association for the fiscal year ending April 30, 1909, was presented. The report showed a prosperous year's business, enabling the directors to declare a dividend of 6 per cent, clear of taxes, amounting to $6,580.00, and carry forward a balance to the undivided profits account, increasing this to $5,560.16.

The statement presented by Auditor Price and Disharon showed that the association has loaned on mortgages the sum of $174,028.91, and on temporary loans, $4,890.00. A gratifying part of the report to the stockholders was the real estate item, which showed that the association has only $800.00 in real estate. The common stock of the association is $108,900.00 and the preferred stock, $88,200.00.

After the reading of the Auditors and Secretary's reports, dividend checks were handed out to the stockholders present.

Then followed the election of a board of directors for the ensuing year. The old board was re-elected by a unanimous vote, as follows: Thomas Perry, J. Cleveland White, Charles R. Disharon, Jesse D. Price, A. A. Gillis, H. B. Freeny and W. M. Cooper. This closed the stockholders meeting and the meeting adjourned.

The newly elected officers organized at once by re-electing the old officers; President, Thos. Perry, Secretary, W. M. Cooper; Treasurer, J. Cleveland White; Auditors, Chas. R. Disharon and J. D. Price; Examiners, A. A. Gillis and H. B. Freeny. Miss Mary E. Hearn was elected Assistant Secretary of the Association.

Tribute To Mrs. Virginia Brewington Gordy.

At Salisbury, Md., May 17th, entered into rest Mrs. Virginia Brewington Gordy, in the fifty-seventh year of her age.

Earth has been brighter for her stay among us. Gentle, loving, and charitable, she has "let her light shine" so that lady and Christian were written upon her. Her sweet influence will still live, and tender memories of her will comfort us. Death came and took her from our midst, but the Divine healer will also come to heal the broken hearted, and give them "Peace, sweet peace". God grant we may meet her again in that "Land of pure delight Where angels immortal reign." Gone, but not forgotten, she Who loved God's service here Gone, but to be translated To his service over there.

She lives, and in choirs celestial sings Songs to the "One in Three". Her voice amid the angel throngs, Will ring throughout eternity.

On the altar of our kinship, and friendship, I beg to lay this tribute.

The Keeper's Daughter

For days the thermometer had been soaring at almost midsummer heat, softening the ice of the Great South Bay, until nearly all its cohesive power was gone. Now the ice was a thick, spongy mass, so rotten that even the foot of a life-saver pressing upon it firmly would break through at many places. It was impossible for either foot passage or for a boat to be forced through. And to increase the seriousness of the case the last two days had brought a fog so gray and dense as to shut Fire Island from every object a dozen yards away.

Out in midchannel toward the Long Island shore, and on the ocean side, currents had kept the ice from freezing thickly and had hastened the decomposition. Already the delayed shipping was seeking passage toward New York or the open sea, and in the fog and the narrow channels that were free from ice were meeting with disaster, from time to time signals of distress came from one direction or another, and so far as they were able the life-saving stations of Fire Island responded.

Perhaps at no other place in the world could assistance have been rendered across that barrier of slush ice, in which spaces of open water were beginning to appear, but then at no other place in the world perhaps were there amphibious scooters.

Several of these unique distinctions of Fire Island were lying on the edge of the ice, with pike and scooting iron and oars across the thwarts ready for instant use while their owners leaned forward listening, peering and for the most part shaking their heads. The wind was rising, blowing straight from the sea. In another hour it was likely to freshen into a gale. Before it the great fog was being awirled and tossed and eddied, but still encompassing and dense—a huge wet blanket that seemed writhing in the agonies of pain.

On all sides were the sounds of fog and danger, bell buoys, boat whistles, occasional fog horns, the pounding and crushing ice where some vessel was forcing its way through, and now and then the ominous signal of distress and call for help. Among these came a sudden dull booming toward the sea, and evidently at considerable distance. The men who were in looked at each other, their faces paling.

"A big ship," one of them said, "and on the bar."

"Yes," assented the man nearest him, "nothing can get to 'em that far out, not even scooters."

There was a peculiar grinding sound near them. A scooter slid up to the beach and a man sprang out.

"The other fellows in yet?" he asked.

"Only Carey. He brought a man ashore and sent him up to the station, and then hurried back. He said it was a coal barge, with two men and a boy and a dog, and the other scooters will bring them in. The keeper ordered us to watch here for other work. What was yours?"

"Just a sailboat, with two young men. They called for help because they didn't know their surroundings. When I explained they decided to remain on board until the ice let them out. They have plenty of provisions and a snug little cabin. I heard the ship's call from outside and hurried back. I couldn't quite make out the location in the fog. Anybody gone?"

"Gone!" derisively. "Why, man alive! That's on the bar three miles away. No scooter could ever get there, across the open channel. Besides the ice has been piled up by the waves. She'll have to wait until the sea opens so we can use a lifeboat, or the fog lifts so we can scooter out. No one—where are you going?"

For the man had swung the bow of his craft into the fog and was again hoisting the sails.

"Out to the vessel, of course!" quietly.

"But it's sure death, Jack," remonstrated the life-saver sharply. "Don't be a fool. You couldn't pick your way through the fog with that scooter and get back alive."

"Maybe not. But that signal sounds like a big boat, and if so there are a good many folks out there waiting for help. I'm only one."

"Oh, Mr. Bowman!" The call was clear, and peremptory. Jack Bowman paused, with one foot in the scooter, his face growing set. The owner of the voice was the keeper's daughter, and only the day before she had closed the door into a future which he had begun to believe would be his. The sentence, "I shall never marry a man whose future is bounded by a clam hoe and a fish trawl," the world has used for brave deeds, still rang in his ears.

"Faster say for no one to answer that call just yet. He thinks that wind will soon break up the ice so that the lifeboat can go out. He says it will be suicide to attempt scooting through this fog. Mr. Bowman!" her voice rising in sudden displeasure, for the scooterist had stepped into his craft and thrown out his pike to shove her into the wind.

"The sorry, Miss Blanche," over his shoulder, "but the keeper's orders are for his own men, and not for a poor outside fisherman like me. Besides, the boat may be in sore need and though a little scooter cannot do much, it may at least carry intelligence and perhaps save one or two—people I can reach them."

The girl's face underwent a sudden change, and she took an impetuous step forward, but already the scooter had slipped away into the fog.

As they waited there, listening, peering while the hours dragged by, the faces of the men showed something of what they knew to be taking place within the fearsome, shifting pall of mist. The scooter was rushing on, dropping into open spaces of water, slipping up again upon patches of rotten ice, swiftly, with scarcely any checking of speed, its owner knowing that time was of more importance than caution. Any moment its nose was liable to strike some obstruction and throw out its occupant; the wind, at that speed, might overturn the scooter, or a sudden jilting wreck it without an instant's warning, either of which on the waste of rotten ice held but one possible fate for the owner.

Two hours and there came another signal of distress close in shore. The waiting life-saver, dropped into their scooters, and slid out into the fog. The girl was still there watching, her face white. Ten minutes more, and a scooter's nose suddenly slipped from the darkness, almost at her feet, and Jack Bowman sprang out. Bending over, he lifted a recumbent figure from the scooter to the sand.

"Will you call someone from the station to carry this man up, Miss Blanche?" He said hurriedly, as he swung his craft back into the wind. "I haven't time. There are others waiting for me."

The girl moved forward swiftly, placing her hand upon his shoulder. "I'll be waiting, too, Jack," she said in a low voice. "You must come back to me."

A tremor went through the man's frame, but he did not pause for an instant in his work. As the craft disappeared in the fog his voice rose strong and resolute above the wind. "Yes, Blanche, I will come back to you."

And he did.—New Orleans Times-Democrat.

Slaves of the Harem.

The members of the harem are all young slaves, brought in from Georgia, Armenia, and other places, and practically educated in the harem itself on the chance that the Sultan may one day notice them, writes a Constantinople correspondent of a London paper. It appears also that civilization has not made great strides in the management of the royal harem, and that corporal punishments are still frequent, ennuuchs, called "beating ennuuchs," still being kept for refractory persons. Poisoned coffee is also not entirely out of fashion, while grimaces, still, the terrible sack hung into the Bosphorus even now does its sinister work. It is pitious to learn that, notwithstanding all this, many parents willingly sell children to supply the enormous colony which constitutes the harem.

Before the Time of Matches.

Sixty years ago the use of flint and steel to produce a fire was not wholly unknown. The late William H. Stone of Eboria lived at Beaver, Pa. His father one warm August night was stricken with apoplexy.

The fire was out in the kitchen hearth and his mother, in her distress, unable to find the tinder box, was obliged to send his brother March two miles and a half to a neighbor. She gave him a handful of tow, which he put in his pocket. Arousing a neighbor with some difficulty, she gave him a live coal, which he wrapped in the tow, and putting it back in his pocket, ran home.

When he arrived there he swung the tow around his head, thus fanned the coal and produced a flame which lighted a candle. In the meantime relief had been so long coming that the father was past all surgery.

Tibetan Trade in Musk.

A number of Tibetan traders who visited Calcutta in March, 1908, brought with them, among other articles, a large quantity of musk, which is held in high esteem by the high-caste Indians. The little deer from which the musk is obtained ranges in the Himalayas and Tibetan mountains, 2,000 feet above sea level. The male deer yields the finest and greatest quantity of musk. The deer are shy and alert, and difficult to capture.

Parisian Horse Markets.

The famous old horse market in the Boulevard de l'Hopital in Paris, where Rosa Bonheur used to plod about in man's attire with pencil and sketch book, has ceased to exist. No one who loves horses will regret it, for it represented the same of equine discomfort. The new horse market, in the Rue Brancion, is a model of its kind. It comprises stables and sheds sufficient to shelter 800 horses.

What is Whiskey?

The trial of a case that involved the important question, "What is whiskey?" greatly interested the British. It presents many problems. "Suppose," asked one of the counsel, "that a merchant has a blend of spirits three months old and spirit ten years old, what is the age of that whiskey?" "Five years and a half," replied the witness.

Dives or Barroom.

Where are drunkards made? Does high license "cut out" the dangerous drams, or are prohibition "dives" worse than $1,000 buffets? B. C. Jordan in a recent issue of the Portland Evening Express, one of the leading daily papers of Maine, says:

"Where are drunkards made? No man, beast, bird, or fish has a natural appetite for intoxicants. This taste has to be acquired by practice, and sometimes by long practice. Why and where is this unnatural appetite learned? The young man learns it that he may be like his companions; that he may be social; that he may not be odd."

"He never learns it alone. He does not learn it about his work or on the street."

"He does not take his first drink in some low, dirty kitchen dive or from some pocket peddler."

"The present saloon, with its attractive surroundings, its lively and jovial company, is where he learns it. He would never think of going into some dark alley alone or with others to find a drink, for he doesn't want to drink."

"He doesn't go to the pleasant saloon to get a drink. He goes for a lively and jovial company, the stories, jokes, songs, etc. Being there and enjoying the pleasant surroundings, he feels compelled to do as the others do. He doesn't want to be called odd. He would feel mean to receive all this from the saloon without any return."

"His friends treat him, and he treats his friends. Here, for these reasons and not for the love of it, he takes his first drink. And this, repeated month after month and year after year, forms the fatal 'appetite' and habit."

"Then he graduates from the saloon and patronizes the low-dives."

"One first-class saloon—the more respectable the more dangerous—will educate more drunkards than a hundred dives. The devil cares more for the open saloon than for all his other agencies on earth."

"Please remember there are more low dives under license than under prohibition."

Coming Home from Market.

The other day we noticed him as he came across the bridge, with his wagon full of cotton, chickens, and eggs. He found ready market for his product, and we thought how happy his little ones would be when he returned home in the evening with toys and dresses, and shoes, and food for the morrow, and some clear money in his purse.

We thought we could see his wife in the doorway to give him a cordial greeting on his return, so desirous were we that he should make home ones happy and contented. We could almost see his cheerful face as he returned to his family after a day's absence. So we thought and returned to our work.

But even then came, and he passed by our window again. He had nothing we thought he would have. The bed of the wagon was bare. No little shoes, nor toys, nor dresses, nor food for the morrow, nor money in his purse—we dare say. The man was drunk. He had changed, and this changed our thoughts of his home. We could see the children shrinking from his approach, and his wife, so careworn and sorrowful. She could not meet him with a pleasant smile with which she had intended greeting him. He was breaking her heart and preparing to make paupers of his children.—Alabama Baptist.

Right to the Point.

Joseph Chamberlain, the eminent British statesman, sets an example of outspokenness on the part of public men in the following:

"No statistics are needed to show our people that temperance reform lies at the bottom of political, social and moral progress of England. Drink is the curse of the country; it ruins the fortunes, it injures the health, it destroys the lives of one out of every twenty of our population. If I could destroy to-morrow the desire for strong drink in the people of England what changes should we see? We should see our taxes reduced by millions sterling; we should see our jails and work-houses empty; we should see more lives saved in twelve months than are consumed in a century of bitter and savage war."

A Funny Mist.

The brewers are thinking of suing us for damages for closing up their hell-broth manufactories in so many places. This is with the liquor man's usual obnoxiousness to the fact that the matter has long ago been carried to the court of last resort; and that that court has ratified the opinion of the commonest common sense that men who are using their property for the damage of the community have no room to complain if the community puts a stop to their work.—The People.

WICOMICO HIGH SCHOOL

Commencement, Class Day Exercises Tuesday Evening, Banquet Thursday Evening. A Large Class Of Graduates.

The exercises of the Wicomico High School were brought to a glorious finale beginning Sunday evening with the baccalaureate sermon, preached in the M. P. Church by Rev. W. R. Graham, D. D., and closing Wednesday evening with the regular commencement exercises.

The subject taken by Dr. Graham was "Personal Honor and True Prosperity." It was an eloquent discourse and studded with many jewels of advice, and counsel to the young graduates, about to enter into a new sphere of life and to take upon their youthful shoulders greater responsibilities. The church auditorium and Sunday School room were filled to overflowing with an appreciative audience.

Tuesday evening the Class Day exercises were held in Ullman's Opera House. The address was delivered by the president of the class, Miss Sadie Atkins. Miss Mary C. Butler read the Class Will and Mr. Lee Allen read the history of the Class. Miss May Smith presented the mantle to the Tenth Grade which was received by Miss Miriam Trader. A very interesting and delightful musical comedy was presented by the Class entitled, "The Worst Man," under the supervision of Miss Richards, Supervisor of Music.

Last, but not least, came the Commencement exercises Wednesday evening. This was one of the prettiest of the season and much credit is due to the untiring energy and efforts of principal, Prof. F. Hutchinson Dye, and the Music Supervisor, Miss Christine Richards.

A large number of the friends of the graduates, as well as those interested in school matters filled the large Opera House to overflowing.

On Thursday evening the annual

HUMPHREYS DAM BREAKS

Emptying Lake Humphreys. Many Persons View The Unusual Spectacle.

The bridge crossing Humphreys' Dam broke about 2 P. M. Friday, and swept away, with it a considerable portion of the surrounding dam. Lake Humphreys was completely emptied. The lake was quite full and a regular torrent of water and mud swept into the river carrying some of the smaller boats with it. The tide, owned by Capt. Wildy was thrown into another boat on the other side of the river, slightly damaging it, and then swept down the river. A negro was in charge and the only person on board. The bridges along the river stood the shock of the rushing water without heavy damage. A large number of people gathered to see the rushing water and the police were occupied keeping the crowd back into what they considered the safety zone.

It was feared for a while that the heavy stone foundation surrounding the broken bridge would be undermined causing a cave-in that would catch some of the people who persisted in going as near the break as possible.

A force of men were put to work at once on the Gas Main which were broken.

The second fatal accident at Wyoming, Del., within two weeks, occurred Thursday afternoon when the Norfolk express ran down and instantly killed Mrs. Edward W. Evans, while returning from a call at a neighbor's. Mrs. Evans had occasion to cross the track and, in stepping from behind a freight train on a siding, failed to see the approaching passenger train. The crossing used by Mrs. Evans is unprotected by either flagman or signals, as is the crossing where two children were killed two weeks ago, just south of the Wyoming station. Mrs. Evans' husband, a rural mail carrier, had just returned from his route, when informed of his wife's death.

CRAWFORD COUNTY PLAN WINS IN WICOMICO

Democrats To Have Direct Nominations. Every Democrat Has The Opportunity Of Voting For The Men Who Will Go On The Democratic Ticket—This Should Produce Good Men And Healthy Results If Properly Conducted. Large Sentiment Over The County For A Change. How It Operates.

At the meeting of the State Central or Wicomico held on Wednesday, it was decided to let the people nominate the democratic ticket this year. The sentiment for nominations made by the people has been growing stronger all the time and the State Central Committee some time back made a semi-official announcement that the question was up to the people and whatever they wanted would be given to them. The decision of the members of the Committee will meet with the approval of the voters of the party whether it pleases all of the professional politicians or not. This decision of the committee means that all of those who aspire to office this year in the Democratic party must make their fight before the people who will decide upon the qualifications of the various candidates. It will also mean that it is the duty of all democrats to make themselves familiar with the record and qualifications of the various men who are asking office at their hands so that when primary day comes around they will be able to go to the polls and vote intelligently for the men who they think will best serve their interest and carry out their idea and wishes. There will be no convention manipulations and out and dried proceedings this year, and every man who wants to serve the people and believes that he can do so efficiently has the chance to go before his fellow democrats and ask for their support. The fact that a man will have no string tied to him and has only to all the promises made to the people regardless of the wishes of some who under the convention system would feel they had more right to consideration at his hands than the people, ought to bring good men out.

The ticket under the Crawford County plan will contain a list of all the candidates and is voted by drawing a line through the name of those who he does not wish to vote for and will be far simpler to vote than is the ticket voted at the general election. Every man who is affiliated with the democratic party will have the right to cast a vote for the men he wishes to see in office. The men after they are elected will know that they owe their nomination and election to the people and if they have any further political ambition they will see to it that their actions meet with the approval of the people, as a man who has not proved faithful to his trust will stand but little chance next time, but will be relegated back to private life where he belongs and which he should never have left.

The ADVERTISER has believed for some time that the convention as run and managed was neither democratic nor to the true interest of the public or party and has advocated a change for some time and believes that now, since the people are to have some say in who shall be their standard bearers, we will have better men nominated, and that the party will be better and stronger by its adoption. And further that the people will find that after the election that the holders of offices will be more responsive to their wishes than they have been in the past. The smaller districts in the County need not be afraid that if they will get good strong men to file their candidacy but what they will get fair treatment all over the county. If however men who are manifestly unqualified to fill the office to which they aspire are the sole representatives of a district then the people can not be expected to give them their vote, this will apply to all districts alike. Those who want representation should make an effort to get their best men in the field and keep out those who are unqualified, and who, if by chance should get in, would be a disgrace to party and district.

We publish below a synopsis of the Primary Law for the information of the voters and prospective candidates. It is understood that the primaries will be held on July 10th.

The County State Central Committee provides the ballots. These are to be printed on opaque white paper, of uniform size and in quantities double the number of registered voters in the precinct. The names of the candidates, to be arranged in groups, alphabetically; ballots must be furnished return judges three days before the primaries. The ballots must contain names of all candidates for nomination and for delegates to convention, as the case may be, who have complied with requirements for filing certificate of candidacy and paying assessment. Candidates may procure ballots from Committee.

As far as practicable, primaries to be held in vicinity of places of polls at General Election.

A glass ballot box must be furnished each return judge by election Supervisors.

The local committee provides for each precinct ballot as above set forth, two poll books, two tally sheets, sufficient blank oaths and plain white gummed envelopes in number 25 per cent greater than the estimated party vote in each precinct.

The candidates collectively are entitled to have five watchers in each polling room. These to be preferred according to the number of candidates authorizing such watchers.

The election supervisors representing each party appoint the judges and clerks in each precinct. One of the judges must be a registration officer and is also to act as return judge. The compensation of the return judges is to be $9 each. The compensation for the other judges and clerks is to be $3 each. The county commissioners pay these officers.

Every candidate for county nomination shall file a certificate in writing, with the local State Central Committee (said certificate to give name, residence, age and office for which he seeks to be nominated) at least fifteen days before the date of the primaries; five days later he shall pay the assessment of his proportional part of the expenses which are to be estimated and apportioned by the County State Central Committee.

No person shall be permitted to vote in any primary election to be held hereunder unless he shall be a registered voter in the election district in which he desires to vote and a member of the party at whose primary election he tenders his ballot and no person shall vote in the primary election of more than one party and not more than once in any primary and any registered voter who at the last preceding election voted for the electors for President or Vice President of the United States, or Governor of Maryland, or Comptroller or other State candidates, or the county candidates of the party at whose primaries he tenders his ballot, or registered voter who shall attain the age of twenty-one years prior to the next election, or who having failed to vote at such last election, declares his intention to vote at the next succeeding election for the candidates named by the party at whose election he tenders his ballot shall be deemed a member of such party and entitled to vote at such primary election. The voter shall prepare his ballot by cancelling, using a black pencil, the names of those for whom he does not desire to vote by running or making a pencil line or lines through said names; and the names of those voted for are to be indicated by the absence of any cancellation of their names. Each ballot cast at any primary election shall be handed by the voter to one of the judges of the election, folded so that the contents thereof can not be seen, and the judge of election so receiving such ballot shall place same in a plain, white opaque envelope, to be therefor provided, and seal the name and deposit such envelope so sealed in the ballot box in the presence of the voter and the other judge of election, after a majority of the judges are satisfied that he is qualified to vote at such primary election. And the return judge of such election immediately upon the deposit of any ballot in the ballot box, as therein provided, shall with an indelible pencil make the letter "V" in the appropriate column in said primary election registration book or list opposite the name of the party casting such ballot, and simultaneously therewith the clerk of such election shall enter the name of the person so voting in a poll book to be provided each of them by the governing body of the party holding such election.

As the primaries will be held on Saturday, July 10th, the nomination declarations must be in by the 25th day of June, and the money deposits made five days later.

State Road Bids High.
The result of the bids for the State road asked for by the Commission resulted in much higher bids for roads on the Eastern Shore, than was expected. The bids ranged in price from $10,000 to $18,000 per mile, and at this rate the number of miles will be much less than the allotment of each county as given for a cheaper material than macadam. The bid for the five and three quarter miles as per specification for Wicomico was made by the Board of County Commissioners and was as follows:—
Wicomico county, two bids, County Commissioners of Wicomico County, $26,977.90; Salisbury toward Mandala Springs, five and three quarter miles.

DEATH IN CUTTING

Affray At Pocomoke. Hiram Truitt The Victim.

A very serious cutting affair took place at Pocomoke on Saturday night when Hiram Truitt was badly cut in the abdomen. The fight and cutting took place in the barber shop of Thos. Donaway. Benton Kelley, Edward Dennis, Thos. Donaway, Hiram Truitt and Joe Bodley, according to report, were all in Donaway's shop and had all been heavily drinking and it is supposed some difference arose resulting in a quarrel and a free for all mix up. Friday afternoon, (yesterday) Truitt was reported as being in a dying condition, and State's Attorney Bailey hurried to the scene in order, it is supposed, to get his dying deposition. It is alleged that Truitt has accused one of the party and identified him as the one who cut him.

A phone message just received from Mr. Bailey at 7 o'clock to the Advertiser says Mr. Truitt is now dead.

FORMAL NOTICE SERVED

On Bell Telephone Company To Retain Old Rates Or Have 'Phones Taken Out.

The Committee, composed of Messrs. E. H. Walton, Jno. M. Toulson, A. M. Jackson, T. H. Mitchell and Rev. Mr. W. A. Cooper, who were appointed to see the subscribers, and ask them to sign an agreement to cut out their phones on July 1st, unless the Diamond State Telephone Co. would agree to fix the uniform rate of $15 for home phones and $25 for business places on or before that date has succeeded in getting the signatures of about 95 per cent of all the subscribers to phones in this city. At the same time the subscribers have agreed to subscribe to phones at these rates from a local Company should it become necessary to build one.

The committee held an informal conference with Mr. Wainwright, the Bell Company representative for Delaware and Maryland, but nothing definite was decided so the committee served notice upon the Bell Company that "if they did not re-establish the former rate for service in this city every 'phone would be torn out on July 1st, and gave the Bell Company until June 7 to answer. If the company does not favorably consider the matter by that date the committee will go before the Mayor and City Council, asking for a charter for the new company."

At the meeting of the City Council the Mayor recommended the Council to pass a resolution notifying the company and others of their intention to fix a legal rate for Salisbury on certain fixed date, and it is understood that the members of the Council were in favor of this action, but that their attorney made a plea against such action at this time. It is believed by many that the policy of delay is but playing the cards that the Telephone Company wants. What the people want is action in co-operation with their efforts.

Brinsfield—Howeth Case Decided.

Judge Burke, of the Courts of Appeals, delivering the opinion, affirmed the judgment of the Circuit Court of Wicomico County in the Brinsfield—Howeth case with costs. This noted case has been before the courts of the First Judicial Circuit for the last three years.

Miss Nannie B. Howeth, a school teacher in Dorchester county, brought suit against Zora H. Brinsfield, a prominent citizen of Dorchester county, for slander. The defendant asked for a removal of the case to Wicomico county, and it came up for a trial at the March term, 1908. After the case had gotten fairly started it was thrown out of court. The plaintiff at once brought a new suit, which was tried at the September term, 1908. Judgment was awarded the plaintiff in the sum of $4000. An appeal was taken by the defendant and the Court of Appeals set aside judgment and ordered a new trial. At the March term, 1909, the case came up again, and Miss Howeth was given judgment for $4500. The case was again appealed, and now the highest court in the State has affirmed the judgment of the lower court, which finally settles the case.

Not To Nominate.

The meeting of the Republican State Central Committee was held in Baltimore this week. The surprise of the meeting was the decision not to put up any candidates for Judges in the First Judicial District.

Various reasons have been given for this action, one of which was that the Republicans look with favor upon Chief Judge W. Laird Henry, and believe that he should be re-elected without opposition. Another reason is believed to be the desire of the national party to make the election in the State as easy as possible, so as not to confuse the voters, and order that they can hold their efforts in the election of the State and the defense of the Amendment.

WRECK ON N. Y., P. & N.

North Bound Express Side Wipes A Freight Tuesday Afternoon, Near Salisbury. Engineer West Killed.

The train which rescues Salisbury at 12:53 P. M., was wrecked on Tuesday, a short distance north of Fruitland, at about 12:30. News of the accident was at once phoned to Salisbury with a request to rush doctors and nurses to the scene. It was at first reported that a large number of passengers as well as trainmen were killed. The doctors were notified to report to the N. Y. P. and N. station where a special would rush them to the place of accident, on reaching the station however no train was waiting and several owners of automobiles volunteered to carry them at once. Drs. Dick, Todd, Morris, Tull and Potter were rushed to the place in record time—it is said that several of the automobiles made the run from the station in two and one half minutes, covering a distance of about three miles.

On reaching the wreck it was found that the first report had magnified the accident and that instead of some twenty five being killed and injured as was reported, the engineer was the only one to lose his life and the injured were the fireman, baggage master and express messenger.

Engineer West, who was running the express had jumped from the car after it was evident that a collision could not be avoided and was caught by the overturning car crushing the life out at once. The fireman, Lee Cox, who had jumped off before West, managed to escape with slight injuries. Baggage master William Guthrie, of Delmar was severely cut on the right hand and William W. Wright, the express messenger was slightly injured.

The accident was caused by the express train running into a freight which was just entering the main track from a switch at the point of accident. The freight engine had not got on the main track but its engine projected over it enough to give the express train a side swipe which tore up the engine and pushed it, the tender, baggage car, and express car off the track and threw them on their side upon the embankment. Engineer West had evidently seen what was coming and had applied the brakes some distance back in the attempt to bring the train to a stop; when he found that he could not do this he told the fireman to jump first and followed him as soon as the way was clear. By his sacrifice for his fireman, he lost his life which might have been saved had he not waited for him. The cause of the wreck has not been ascertained yet, but it looks as though it was caused either by wrong orders being given or disobedience to orders by one of the engineers. It is said that the freight had orders to precede the express train to Delmar and that similar orders were given the express train. According to report the express was reported to be five minutes late at Fruitland and had made up four minutes at the time of the accident. Whether there was unnecessary delay in getting the orders to the freight which was on the siding waiting, or a too close calculation of the connection was made by the train dispatcher, which was upset by the express making up lost time, cannot be told. It is only evident that some one blundered and caused the frightful wreck which came close to resulting in a much greater disaster. A coroner's jury was empaneled and after viewing the body adjourned until they could get witnesses and evidence before them.

Engineer West, who sacrificed his life by allowing his fireman to jump first, was about 50 years of age and lived in Delmar. He leaves a wife and several children.

Traffic on the road was suspended for some time until the wreck could be cleared away, and passengers were transferred at the point of wreck to special trains sent to the point from Delmar and Cape Charles. The engine torn up was the same one in the wreck at Delmar some time back and had only been in commission about two weeks.

WOMEN'S WOES.

Salisbury Women Are Finding Relief At Last.

It does seem that women have more than a fair share of the aches and pains that afflict humanity; they must "keep up," most attend to duties in spite of constantly aching backs, or headaches, dizzy spells, bearing down pains; they must stoop over when to stoop means torture. They must walk and bend and work with aching pains and many aches from kidneys ill. Kidneys cause more suffering than any other organ of the body. Keep the kidneys well and health is easily maintained. Read of a remedy for kidneys only that helps and cures the kidneys and is endorsed by people you know.

Mrs. John L. Baker, 313 Baker Street, Salisbury, Md., says: "A year or so ago I procured Doan's Kidney Pills at White & Leonard's drug store and after taking them a short time, I found relief from kidney complaint. I have been bothered a great deal by a lame back and a heavy bearing down sensation through my hips. No matter what I did or took, this misery clung to me and I was also bothered when I arose in the morning by stiffness across my loins. I procured Doan's Kidney Pills at White & Leonard's drug store and in return for the benefit they brought me, I consider them worthy of my recommendation." For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. ## DIRECT PRIMARIES.

For the first time in the history of Wicomico County the people this year will have a chance to have a say as to who will be nominated on the democratic ticket. The action of the State Central Committee in deciding to hold primaries under the Crawford County plan places the burden and responsibility of making the nomination fairly upon the voters of the party where it properly belongs.

It is now up to the voters to show that they are fully as competent to select our office-holders and more so than were the select few who managed this for them under the old regime.

As this is a new departure in the politics of the County, every voter should make himself familiar with its provisions and find out just what it means. The people are on trial and they should use every effort to find out all about the character and qualifications of those who ask for their support in the primaries. The candidates should not be backward in letting the people know just where they stand on any public question and what they propose to do if the people are fit to trust them with the high office of serving them in public positions.

There is no disgrace attached to the casting of the people, nor none attached to the desire to fill public offices of trust. No man need be afraid of having his motives misconstrued if he shall seek a nomination at the hands of his fellow democrats. In all countries and in almost all ages the filling of public offices has called forth the best talent, and the most honorable men. The early history of our country will show that men who stood highest in their communities did not hesitate to seek for the honor of helping and serving the people, on the contrary it was an honor eagerly sought and closely contested. The ensue of machine politics and corruption control, with its wholesale accompaniment of corruption and general political "rottenness" has driven many of our best men out of politics.

The knowledge that no matter how independent a man might be, he would still have to be considered the lieutenant of those who had placed him in his position and to whom he was under obligations for his nomination, was irksome and irritating to many whose services would be valuable to the general public, and thus kept them out of the active political world.

While many a man might hesitate to accept office or be a candidate when he knew he was placing himself under heavy obligations to a few, no man can have any objection to the holding of elections or becoming a candidate when his obligations begin and end with the people to whom he has to render the only account of his stewardship.

It is hoped that the Direct plan of making nominations will bring many of those who are by temperament, training and character, fitted for public life, actively in the field when the fact that their nominations are made by the people and that to the people they are alone accountable is fully understood.

The ADVERTISER extends to the voters of the Democratic party its kindest congratulations upon their action in having a say as to whom shall be their standard bearers. The AD-VERTISER has long advocated the return of the power to the people because it believed it better for the public welfare as well as the party's. As since the fight has seemed to be an uphill one but we have never wavered in our advocacy of a change from the convention system. The members of the Democratic State Central Committee are to be highly commended upon their decision to let the people nominate the ticket, and by so doing have greatly strengthened the party in the County—and we believe the adoption of the Crawford County plan by the various counties has strengthened the entire party in the State.

PAY FOR RESULTS

Or Services Says Writer On Local Telephone Situation.

Messrs. Editors:
In view of the discussion now going on as to the proper charge for Telephone Service would it not be well to take into consideration the method,
I believe now generally adopted in the cities, of paying for SERVICES RENDERED, that is the ACTUAL USE, or calls, instead of flat rate without regard to the use. Without attempting to decide from the limited knowledge we have, it is perhaps not unreasonable to suggest that those who use the phones should pay for THEIR USE and according to the use.

Among other reasons given by those who advocate the call system of rates are: The tendency of modern employments of labor of all kinds is to pay for RESULTS or SERVICES as opposed to mere time or opportunity.
Why should a different rule obtain, they say, in Telephone Rates than other public utilities of a like nature.
For instance, gas, electric light, telegraph, etc. We should think it very unjust if everybody was required to pay the same gas bills, light bills, or telegraph bills, and yet the difference in principle is not so apparent, except indeed the calls on the phone are worthless unless how, and no matter how much you call you cost the company nothing—a proposition the Telephone Company would not be likely to admit.
It will hardly be denied that call charges would have the tendency to more generally diffuse the use of phones, thus making them more valuable to patrons, for persons would more likely have a phone installed if he knew the costs depended upon the use. The advocates of the call system also say, it would have a deterrent effect upon those who use the instrument for mere pleasure or gossip holding the line from those who have serious business. Of course if persons who want to use the phones for any purpose, they have the right to do so and they would pay for it and the payment would fall upon those best able to enjoy the luxuries of life. The process of thus weeding out unnecessary calls would have a salutary effect upon the business community as well as a relief to the congested state of business at the central office. As to what would be a proper charge for calls could be learned from other places where the system is in vogue, but in no case need it hinder those who wish to make a special contract if they choose to do so, to pay a lump sum as houses with large order business etc.

Believing that all phases of the matter should be gone into, there is no attempt to criticize any action that may be taken but it is to be hoped that a right principle will be adopted and that the subject may be considered from every possible view point.

HOME FOR AGED

Formal Opening of Home for Aged. History of Home. An interesting Programme.

The Salisbury Home for the Aged will celebrate the opening of the new home Tuesday at 1 p. m. June 1st, with an elaborate programme. It seems to be a very remarkable coincidence that this day marks the Sixth Anniversary of the Home for the Aged as its organization was made on June 1, 1903. It is stated that the opening could not possibly be arranged before this date on account of the very extensive improvements which the new home has undergone.

Much credit is due to the President of the Home who negotiated and secured of Mr. J. B. Parsons, of Philadelphia the old home in West Salisbury. A great interest has been taken by the people of Salisbury in the support of the Home from its infancy up to the present time. The State last year appropriated $7500 for repairing and renovating the new Home and also $1200 for the maintenance of it.

The Board of Trustees with a large assembly to be present at the Opening, as a very interesting program will be furnished. Everyone who can possibly be present are most cordially invited to attend the Opening of this new Home for the Aged.

Several donations have been made by several of the citizens of this city and by some out of town people as well.

Among the donations are the following: Dining Room furnished complete by President of the Board of Trustees, W. B. Miller; one bed room furnished by the Young Men's Club of the Methodist Protestant Church; one by Miss Laura Bresler; one by Mrs. Wm. H. Jackson; one by Pocomoke City. The total cost for Home and repairs is estimated at $15,000.

Wise Eastern Shore Democrats.

It has often been said that the Eastern Shore folk excel in political wisdom—that they are as wise as serpents and as harmless as doves. The Democrats of the Shore are now showing their political wisdom by calling on the people to make the nominations for office. On Wednesday the Democratic committee of the Eastern Shore decided that the party primary this year shall be held by the Crawford county system, under the State primary election law. This is, of course, good politics, besides being right. The people who are called upon to elect candidates should have the fullest opportunity of selecting the men they are asked to vote for. They can express their choice more effectively by their direct votes than by the intervention of delegates to a convention. And if they name their own candidates the voters will take a far deeper interest in electing them than they would if the candidates were selected for them. While the majority is a Democratic county, the majority is not so large that the party need not be strengthened. Talbot, Cecil, Kent and Queen Anne have done the same thing, and Democrats in other parts of the State may well profit by their example.—Ed. Balto. Sun.

Eat What

You want of the food you need
Kodol will digest it.

You need a sufficient amount of good wholesome food and more than this you need to fully digest it. Else you can't gain strength, nor can you strengthen your stomach if it is weak.

You must eat in order to live and maintain strength.

You must not diet, because the body requires that you eat a sufficient amount of food regularly.

But this food must be digested, and it must be digested thoroughly. When the stomach can't do it, you must take something that will help the stomach.

The proper way to do is to eat what you want, and let Kodol digest the food.

Nothing else can do this. When the stomach is weak it needs help; you must help it by giving it rest, and Kodol will do that.

Our Guarantee

Go to your druggist today, and purchase a dollar bottle, and if you can honestly say, "that you did not receive any benefits from it, after using the entire bottle, the druggist will refund your money to you without question or delay."

We will pay the druggist the price of the bottle purchased by you. This offer applies to the large bottle only and to but one in a family.

We could not afford to make such an offer, unless we positively knew what Kodol will do for you. It would bankrupt us. The dollar bottle contains 2½ times as much as the fifty cent bottle.

Kodol is made at the laboratories of E. C. DeWitt & Co., Chicago.

CHAPTER XIX.

SENATOR LANGDON LEARNS THE TRUTH.

WHEN they were alone Haines faced the senator and spoke determinedly.

"They told you I was not running straight," he said.

The senator nodded, and the lines about his mouth deepened.

"Yes."

But Haines stiffened at the word.

Every muscle in his body seemed to become rigid as he mentally vowed that he would retaliate against his traducer. If it cost him his life to do it. Hope had informed him only too accurately, he now realized. Little did the senator know that what he was now about to hear would give him one of the severest shocks of his life.

"They told me you weren't running straight," said Haines deliberately.

"Now, neither one of us has been crooked, but somebody else has been, and this was the plan to keep us apart."

"Norton told me you were speculating in Altacoola lands," said Langdon.

"And Norton told me the same of you," retorted Bud.

The senator's face grew very serious.

"But my daughter, Miss Carolina Langdon, confirmed Norton's story."

Haines here faced the most difficult part of his interview. He hardly knew how to answer. His manhood rebelled against placing any blame on a woman. He revolted at the thought of ruining a father's faith in his daughter's honesty, especially when that father was the man he most admired, a man for whom he had genuine, deep rooted affection. But it was necessary that the words be spoken.

"I hate to tell you, sir," he said in a low, uncertain voice, "that it was your daughter Carolina who made me believe this story told about you and vouched for by your son Randolph."

Langdon started back aghast. He stared at Haines and knew that he spoke the truth. Then his white head sank pathetically. Tears welled into the eyes of the planter, and this sturdy old fighting man dropped weakly into a chair, sobbing convulsively, broken in spirit and wearied in body.

At length Haines spoke to his stricken chief.

"I know it hurts," he said. "It hurt me to have to say it. Don't believe it until you get it out of Norton, but then you must do something."

Langdon came to his feet, mopping his cheeks. But there was no weakness in him now. Yes, he would do something. He would go after the thieves that had turned his own flesh and blood against him and root them all out. "I know it hurts," he said grimly. "I'm going to make up for lost time. Of course Norton is speculating. Who's behind him?"

"Stevens and Peabody, I'm positive," answered Haines, "and behind them is Standard Steel."

"What?" exclaimed Langdon. "Stevens in a swindle like this? Are you sure? How do you know?"

"A Gulf City man who couldn't carry his liquor gave me some clues, and I worked Norton into telling some more," answered the secretary. "Where is Peabody?"

"He's here now."

"Then he hasn't got my letter yet. I sent him a note and signed your name, senator, to the effect that the Gulf City claims have been brought before you so strongly that you might vote for Gulf City."

Langdon was amazed.

"You sent that note," he exclaimed, "when you know Altacoola is the only proper place and Gulf City is a mud bank?"

The newspaper man smiled.

"Of course," he agreed, "but I had to get a rise out of Peabody. This will show where he stands."

"Oh," said Langdon, "I understand. Thanks, boy."

A servant entered with a note.

"For Senator Peabody, sir," marked "Urgent."

The messenger's been hunting him for some hours," Langdon looked shrewdly at Bud, then turned to the servant.

"You keep that note until I ring for you, then bring it to Senator Peabody. Understand? No matter how urgent it's marked."

The man bowed.

"Yes, sir."

"Now tell Mr. Norton, Miss Langdon and Mr. Randolph to come here."

The senator turned back to his secretary.

"I expect I'm going to be pretty busy the rest of the evening, Bud, so in case I forget to mention it again, remember to show up at your old desk in the morning."

"I will, Thank you, sir."

"You sent for us, senator," said Norton, appearing with his two dupes, "and we have been waiting at Altacoola lands," the senator sharply charged.

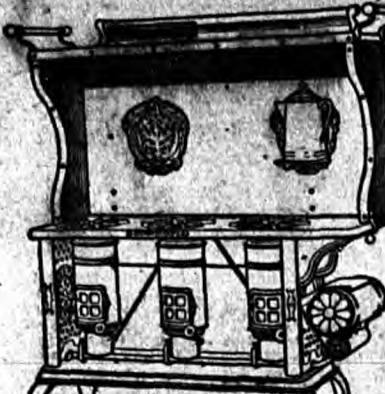

"I am, sir," he said.

"And you told Mr. Haines that I was interested in Altacoola lands?"

The schemer hesitated, and the senator broke in on him in rage.

"Speak out, man! Tell the truth, if you can."

"I did," admitted the congressman finally.

"Was there any particular reason for your not telling the truth?" demanded the Mississippi plan in threatening tone.

"I told the truth," replied Norton.

"You are interested in them."

For an instant Langdon seemed about to step toward him, then he controlled himself.

"I didn't know it," he said.

"You have several things to learn, senator," declared the congressman.

"I have things to learn and things to teach," he said. "But go on. Why am I interested?"

"You are interested, senator," replied the trickster, making his big play.

"Through your son Randolph, who invested $50,000 of your money in Altacoola, and also through your daughter, Miss Carolina, who, acting on my advice, has put her own money—$25,000—in Altacoola land also."

For a moment Langdon was speechless. It was too much at first for the honest old southerner to comprehend.

"You mean," he gasped at last, "that you induced a boy to put $50,000 in Altacoola land when you knew I had to vote on the bill? And you even let my daughter put her money in the same scheme?"

"Of course I did. It was a splendid chance, and I let your son in for friendship and your daughter because she has done me the honor to promise to become my wife."

"What! You have my daughter's promise to marry you, you?"

"She admits it herself."

"Then I reckon here's where I lose a prospective son-in-law," sneered Langdon. "But that's unimportant. Now, Norton, who's behind you?"

"I must decline to answer that."

Langdon looked at him sternly.

"Very well," he said. "You are too small to count. I'll find out for myself. Now you go to my study and wait there until I send for you. I must be alone with my children."

When Norton and Haines had left them, Langdon turned sadly to the two children who had disgraced him.

"Can you understand?" he said. "Do you know what you've done to me?"

"What father? We've done nothing wrong?" protested Carolina.

"They told me I was perfectly legitimate," urged Randolph. "They said everybody—Peabody and Stevens and the rest—were in it, and Peabody is the boss of the senate."

"Yes, my boy," assented the old planter, "he's the leader in the senate, and that's the shameful part of all this—that a man of his high standing should set you so miserable an example."

Langdon was amazed.

"You sent that note," he exclaimed, "when you know Altacoola is the only proper place and Gulf City is a mud bank?"

The newspaper man smiled.

"Of course," he agreed, "but I had to get a rise out of Peabody. This will show where he stands."

"Oh," said Langdon, "I understand. Thanks, boy."

A servant entered with a note.

"For Senator Peabody, sir," marked "Urgent."

The man bowed.

"Yes, sir."

"Now tell Mr. Norton, Miss Langdon and Mr. Randolph to come here."

The senator turned back to his secretary.

"I expect I'm going to be pretty busy the rest of the evening, Bud, so in case I forget to mention it again, remember to show up at your old desk in the morning."

MARDELA SPRINGS.

A very pretty wedding was quietly solemnized Wednesday evening May 13th at 8.30 in our town, when Miss Grace Wilkinson, daughter of Mrs. Annie Wilkinson was given in marriage to Mr. Albert Wilkinson, son of Mr. Isaac Wilkinson, Delmar, Del. The wedding took place at the home of the bride's parents, which was very prettily decorated with palms and cut flowers. The bride was attired in a handsome London Smoke traveling suit, with hat and gloves to match, while the groom was apparelled in a handsome black suit.

The brides maid, Miss Willie Dismore, of Salisbury wore a very pretty Alice blue silk, while the groom's man, Mr. Orlando C. Wilkinson, brother of the bride wore a black suit. Only near relatives and a few friends were present. Mr. Wilkinson is one of Delmar's most respected citizens, having a very responsible position with the Pennsylvania Railroad Company in that town. The happy couple after spending their honeymoon in Philadelphia, Wilmington and New Jersey will return to Delmar where they will reside in the future. We wish to congratulate them and wish them a happy and successful life together.

MOODS OF THE CHAUFFEUR.

His Attitude Tells You What His Type Is.
The art of the chauffeur has its moods expressed not alone in the lines that mark the face of the automobile driver, but in the curves of his clothing, as well. Watch the shoulders of the chauffeur and you can tell what he is thinking of.

When you see at the wheel of an 8 horse power wheeler that rattles and bangs so that you'd think every moment is its last as a whole machine, a man all crumpled up within himself and sitting on his spine, you may be sure that in fancy he is slipping down the Jericho turnpike at the steering post of a 120 horse-power road devil and eating up mile after mile of oiled road.

In his mind's eye he is the hero of a thousand narrow escapes from terrible mauling in his imaginary race, although his rattleybang car maybe isn't going so fast that a bicycle policeman would think of even cautioning him.

If he has the stump of an unlighted cigar in his mouth and can chew on it as the thought miles are put far behind him wonders if the folk on the sidewalk aren't thinking he is Barney Oldfield. He is sure that they must think from the cap he wears that he is a racing driver.

So he crouches forward to offer less resistance to the breeze that his terrific mental speed brings against him and gazes anxiously to see how the oil is running. If there is a car through a hole and get ahead of some truck covering his carload and himself with dust.

He belongs to the dust eating class, only he doesn't do it because he is sticking in behind some high powered car. No, he always gets up just so far and then as he is about to take a chance and plunge through an opening he loses his nerve, checks and ties up traffic in his neighborhood for about twenty minutes.

Devil May Care.
The nervous man delights to drive past a school house when it is letting out. If he misses having heart disease it isn't his fault. When he gets home and goes to bed after such an experience he dreams of riding over a corduroy road with children's bodies for logs and wakes up in a cold sweat after he has been sentenced to the electric chair for puerility.

Contentment.

When he sees a policeman a few blocks away he shuts off in such a hurry that the policeman becomes suspicious. He goes by the policeman at two miles an hour. Then when he gets a safe distance away he turns on the juice again, but he is not sure enough of the way he ought to do it and generally wakes up the car and its load of passengers by taking a leap from two miles an hour up to twenty-two within the space of a few yards. He is a fine mechanic, in the uncertain driver. He can take the car apart by means of these sudden starts in much less time than the spare parts he will soon need can be sent from the factory.

Mule Committed Suicide.

A case of mule suicide is reported from the Morel district of Switzerland, and the Kansas City Journal tells the story in this way: "The beast had received rough usage and was being driven daily with a heavy load back and forth from Blum Valley to Morel. The other evening as the muleteer had added, as usual, his own weight to the tired mule's already heavy load the beast plunged and reared so violently that the man was thrown and explained his action by telling the following story: "The minister said just before the contribution that any one who put 50 cents or more into the contribution box was entitled and expected to whistle. As the collectors were on their way the whistling came from all parts of the room and was not far from universal. When it came down to me it was up to me to dig down and content myself with a whistle."

Permitted to Whistle in Church.

Harry P. Bosson of Reading, as his friends in Worcester say, whistled in church while attending divine worship in that city recently. When asked about it Mr. Bosson said he was not asleep and explained his action by telling the following story: "The minister said just before the contribution that any one who put 50 cents or more into the contribution box was entitled and expected to whistle. As the collectors were on their way the whistling came from all parts of the room and was not far from universal. When it came down to me it was up to me to dig down and content myself with a whistle."

This is the latest way of raising money for churches.

Need of a New Animal.

"What we need most in my business," said the butcher, "is some sort of new animal. One of my best customers comes in this morning, a man that's well able to pay for anything he wants, and says he's tired of having beef, lamb, mutton and pork, and why he wants to know, why can't we have something different and new? And I've got other customers that feel just the same way; they're tired of the old things and want something new. Can't somebody give us a new animal for butchers' meat? He'd be a benefactor to others and he wouldn't lose anything by it himself."

"The Needle."

"The needle is a saving tool. It is composed of two parts—the point and the eye. The eye is made of silk, and is what you stick the thread through. The point is made of steel, and is what you stick through the

THE HAT IN THE WINDOW

It was a wonderful hat. Such a wonderful hat that Filmy & Co., who owned it, gave it a whole show window to itself—a whole window with only a few of those distracting little lace caps some ladies wear in the morning placed around to finish off the picture, rather than to display themselves. It was pink with a great bow of pink ribbon on one side and a huge and bewitchingly curved brim on all sides. And it was as fresh and as exquisitely tinted as if it were a big ripe fruit on its stem.

Even men passing by stopped to look at it. Some of them, too, probably framed a particular face beneath the broad tilted brim, and passed on with a smile for the bewitching vision. But the passerby of the other sex! It was for them the picture was made.

One very great lady coming out of the store on her way to her carriage caught sight of it and went mad. She didn't buy it, thank Heaven! Imagine that dream of pink young loveliness shadowing any such rough-treasured, powder-softened world-hardened visage as that very great lady's with its keen hard eyes and its thin tight lips. No madam, not all the skill of the fairy-fingered Agnes can give you the right to wear that coronet of maidenhood. What a grotesque figure you would cut if you did! How I should love to see you try it. How discreetly I would smile—behind your back—how—wittily—I would draw Mrs. So-and-So's attention to you. But try it, madam; it might shame you into visiting the son you have not seen since your second marriage. That was ten years ago. He is an undergraduate now. But no, you are too wise. "Home, James." Hold, madam, before you go, let me show you those lace caps. Come now, madam; lay aside the hair wash for a season, let the gray at the roots creep on and up; let a few of those, oh so badly hidden wrinkles peep out and don one of these, the finest Mechlin. But no, you have gone—Home!

How dare you call any place home, you wretched, wrinkled, wisened old woman? What an "air" you have! And for what reason? None. The Sacred Apes of Benares, some one called you and your like. Well named thou Gloomy Teuton!

Ah, but surely here comes the right owner. "Timid and stepping fast," from that very next electric at the curb, young Miss Bowyer, 19 and two years "out" in society. She, too, looks up at the window and—merciful Heavens—she sighs. What! Is there anything on earth you can't have if you really want it?

Down past the window they come, slowly stepping with downcast eyes, and amid all the sparkle of silk and broadcloth and silver and gold and stamped-leather and waving feathers. What a contrast is made by their black robes and hoods and white neckerchiefs.

Surely not for these two sisters of St. Mary's could the window have a message? No kin are they to the very great lady or poor little Miss Bowyer. Perhaps something they have in common with Mag and Lou but the others—never.

And yet—it was the crowd that first drew her eyes—drew them away from the monotonously regular black surface of the pavement, whence they should never wander. And there above the heads of the crowd she saw the first radiance of the milliner's inspiration.

When Sister Therese—Sister Therese was thirty years the senior—missed Sister Margaret from her side she found her two feet away staring at the window, too. It was a moment only, the length of time it takes to go two feet.

"Sister Margaret!" The tone was loud but insistent, and so the touch upon her arm.

Sister Margaret turned quickly, flushing furiously under the white and black hood.

When the window was safely passed, Sister Therese looked down and under the hood. The dress was still there and there came to her ears the soft sibilant of a sigh.

"Oh, Sister Therese," said Sister Margaret.

But who knows whether Sister Therese should not have sighed also and said, "Oh, Sister Margaret!" What were her eyes doing before she found Sister Margaret smiling?

Well, perhaps so. Else why did Father Ambrose receive next day two confessions of the identical sin and impose two penances of identical lightness—for Father Ambrose is a kind man, and besides he buys a new costume himself every now and then.

And as for the hat! Why, it wasn't a real hat after all. Only an affair of ribbons and wire twisted and tied to show what may be next year. So you could sign for it and sin for it and be very unhappy about it, but if you touched it, it would fall in pieces beneath your fingers.

The Value of Books.

A young girl once asked Mary Train if he liked books for New-Year gifts.

"Well, that depends," drawled the humorist. "If a book has a leather cover, it is really valuable as a razor-strop; if it is a book, it is useful to put under the short leg of a wobbly table. An old-fashioned book, with a cheap, can't be best as a memento to hurt at a dog and a large book, like a good one, is a good one."
