Map Made By Capt. John Smith Found

Chief Engineer Earle, of the Conservation Commission, who, with Engineer Reudiger, of Virginia, made a joint recommendation to the Governors of Maryland and Virginia relative to placing permanent markers and ranges on the Maryland and Virginia boundary line in Tangier and Pocomoke Sounds, has discovered an old map made in 1607 by Captain John Smith, which was used by Lord Baltimore, when he requested of Charles II a grant for the territory now the State of Maryland.

From this old map can be traced the boundary as described in the Charter of Maryland. Chairman W. Thomas Kemp and Engineer Earle are making some research into the changes of the line by the commissions of 1877 and 1898, as there is still some contention in the vicinity of the boundary by some old residents.

By authority of the two governors, Engineers Earle and Reudiger will re-establish the old ranges some time during this month and will also place permanent ranges on the line where it crosses the Chesapeake Bay between Franklin City and the Atlantic Ocean.

Death of Mrs. Sarah E. Lankford

Mrs. Sarah E. Lankford, wife of the late O. P. Lankford, died in Baltimore last Thursday afternoon and her remains were brought to her home in Princess Anne last Friday night.

Mrs. Lankford was 64 years of age and had been an invalid for the past three years, having been in a hospital in Baltimore during that time for treatment.

She is survived by two children, Miss Mary E. Lankford, of Princess Anne, and Mr. George E. Lankford, of Mobile, Alabama. She is also survived by two brothers and one sister, Messrs. William J. Pusey, of Fruitland; A. T. Pusey, of near Princess Anne, and Mrs. William J. Bounds, of Weldon, N. C.

Funeral services were held at her late home last Saturday afternoon at 3:30 o'clock, conducted by the Rev. D. J. Givan, and interment was in Antioch Methodist Episcopal Church cemetery. The pallbearers were: Messrs. L. James Wilson, Wm. H. Powell, Oscar F. Jones, Wm. T. Waller, George W. Brown and Wm. J. Brown.

Big Shark Seen At Crisfield

A shark, eight feet long, believed to be of the hatchet fin species, said to be man eaters, swam leisurely, Tuesday, into the middle harbor at Crisfield, where the Baltimore, Chesapeake and Atlantic steamers dock, and for several minutes fed on a number of dead fish in the river.

It was well up in the water and its body was in plain view. The hatchet fin was about 18 inches long. Several persons went for rifles with which to shoot the fish, but it had gone when they returned.

DuPont Road Is Finished

The Du Pont concrete boulevard from Georgetown to the Maryland line is finished. It is not yet thrown open to public travel, because the builders are anxious for the concrete to dry slowly for two or three weeks. When completed it will be the finest road in the United States. Engineers from other States have inspected it, and all agree that there can be no better road built.

Explosion In New York

An explosion early Sunday of ammunition intended for the Entente allies and stored on Black Tom Island, in New York Bay off Jersey City, rocked that city and the terrain for miles around, causing a property loss which may be estimated in millions. About 60 persons are in hospitals, several of whom may die.

The shock was plainly heard by residents of Princess Anne.

THE BALTZ-POLK WEDDING

A Bride Well-Known In Somerset Married Last Wednesday

Doe Run Presbyterian Church, near Coatesville, Pa., was the scene of a very pretty wedding last Wednesday afternoon, when Miss Lyde Wilson Polk and the Rev. M. William Baltz, of Atglen, Pa., were married by the bride's brother, Rev. Samuel Polk and Rev. Mr. Keenan, pastor of the church.

The maid of honor, Miss Josephine Prickett, of Wilmington, Del., and the bridesmaids, Miss Imogene McClellan and Miss Rebecca Polk, of Lawrenceville, N. J., niece of the bride, wore white organdie gowns and carried bouquets of lilies and maiden hair ferns. The bride wore white crepe de chine and a veil of tulle and lace and also carried a bouquet of lilies and ferns. She was given away by her brother-in-law, Mr. William S. Prickett, of Wilmington, Del.

The groom and best man, Rev. Mr. Brown, of Atglen, Pa., met the bride at the altar. The ushers were: Messrs. Charles Cook, William McClellan, William Polk and Jerome Tingley.

A musical program was rendered before the wedding ceremony. Mrs. Wm. S. Prickett, sister of the bride, played the wedding marches. A reception followed at the home of the bride's mother. Among the out-of-town guests were: Rev. and Mrs. Samuel Polk, Miss Rebecca Polk and Master James Polk, Lawrenceville, N. J.; Mrs. Annie Polk, Philadelphia, Pa.; Mr. and Mrs. Baltz, Mrs. Foltz, Germantown, Pa.; Miss Grace Hackett, Wilkesbarre, Pa.; Mr. and Mrs. Wm. S. Prickett, Misses Josephine and Florence Prickett and Isabelle Tughton, of Wilmington, Del.; Mr. George H. Myers, Princess Anne; Md.; Messrs. William S. Taggart and Charles Steele, Westfield, N. Y.

The bride is a daughter of the late Rev. Dr. Joseph L. Polk, formerly of Princess Anne, and is well known in this county.

County Commissioners Visit Almshouse

Last Tuesday County Commissioners, Dr. C. C. Ward, F. E. Matthews and George Somers, accompanied by Dr. C. E. Collins, county health officer, paid the county almshouse a special visit.

While the commissioners were examining the records and otherwise looking after the business management of the institution the health officer made a thorough inspection of the grounds and buildings. In speaking of the sanitary condition of the premises, Dr. Collins said that he was much pleased to find the grounds entirely free from garbage and other waste. The sewerage installed by Mr. Samuel Young, assistant superintendent, while inexpensive, is quite satisfactory, the drainage being natural and efficient.

The inmates, nineteen in number, while very plainly dressed, were all clean and in fair health, three of whom are able to do light work at short intervals.

In speaking of the county almshouse the Doctor said he did not believe one-third of the people in Somerset county really knew anything about their own institution. The property is located on the main road leading from Princess Anne to Mount Vernon, a distance of about four miles from the county seat. The buildings are situated on a hill with an altitude of 12 feet, and a distance of 350 feet from the main road. The lawn is well set in grass and has a beautiful decline on the eastern side extending to the creek, a body of water which ebbs and flows and provides natural drainage so essential to the healthy condition of the institution and the farm lands connected with it.

There are five buildings in all. The main building is of brick and was constructed more than 120 years ago. The inside wood work is beautifully hand carved, much of it being of walnut. The design of the hall, though more than a century back, is in keeping with the most modern halls of the day.

Paul Armstrong Dies A Poor Man

Mr. Paul Armstrong, playwright, who formerly resided near Annapolis, and some years ago was a resident of Somerset county, and who died on August 30, 1915, left an estate of less than $500. His widow, Catherine Calvert Armstrong, was called upon Tuesday in the Surrogate's Court, New York City, to pay a judgment of the Kirke-La Shelle Company against Armstrong for $19,000, but she said he left no assets to settle the bill.

According to her statement, he died possessed of a $200 automobile, $217 in cash and about $50 worth of wearing apparel.

The attorney for the judgment creditors told the court that he wanted the finances of the estate investigated, as he thought it strange such a successful playwright left so little of value.

NEW ASSESSMENT STRIKING SNAGS

Somerset, With Other Counties, Refuses To Appoint Assessors.

Falling in line with Frederick, Washington and other counties in the State, the county commissioners of Somerset county, at their meeting last Tuesday, refused to appoint assessors to make a reassessment of property in Somerset county. The board was directed several weeks ago by the State Tax Commissioners to name the assessors on or before July 25, but when the matter was taken up Tuesday the commissioners determined that they would stand pat until the question had been passed upon by the court in some of the counties where litigation is about to be commenced.

The Anne Arundel County Commissioners, in session at Annapolis last Tuesday, also declined to obey the mandate of the State Tax Commission to appoint tax assessors for the several districts of the county, in accordance with the provisions of an act of the last Legislature, which provides for a revaluation and assessment of real estate throughout the State.

The Anne Arundel Commissioners took the stand that as mandamus proceedings are pending in the courts, in view of the action of commissioners of other counties, they would await the outcome of the legal move.

The Commissioners of Harford county, at a meeting in Belair last Tuesday, failed to comply with the order of the State Tax Commission. The board has been flooded with letters from the taxpayers protesting against the reassessment program, and Tuesday several delegations appeared in person and lodged vigorous protests. In fact, it has been said that injunction proceedings will be instituted there to restrain the State Tax Commission from ordering a reassessment of the real estate of Harford county.

Bishop Eveland Electrocuted

The Rev. William Perry Eveland, missionary bishop of the Methodist Episcopal Church for the Philippine Islands, who had been missing since Monday of last week, when he started on a fishing trip, was found dead on Tuesday at Mt. Holly Springs, near Carlisle, Penna., having been electrocuted when his steel fishing rod came in contact with a high tension electric wire. He was passing under a railroad bridge when the accident occurred. At first it was believed that he had been killed by lightning.

Bishop Eveland had been spending his vacation at Mount Holly Springs with relatives, and Monday afternoon started out on a fishing trip with the intention of returning in a few hours. Relatives became alarmed on Monday night when he did not return and about 100 men searched the mountain and streams near Carlisle all night. Tuesday his body was found under the bridge near a swollen stream.

Bishop Eveland was 62 years old. He was a graduate of Dickinson College, a native of Harrisburg, Pa., and had been a bishop for four years, prior to that time preaching in various parts of Pennsylvania. He was former president of Dickinson Seminary at Williamsport, Pa., and a trustee of Tom Institute, Port Deposit, Md.

Cecil Farmers To Meet

The third annual meeting of the allied farming interests of Cecil county will be held at the Tome School, Port Deposit, Md., August 5th. Elaborate preparations are being made to make this a big day. The following speakers have accepted invitations to be present:

Governor Emerson C. Harrington, Hon. Oliver Wilson, Master of National Grange; Hon. P. P. Claxton, United States Commissioner of Education; Miss Katherine A. Pritchett, State Home Demonstration Agent; Hon. David J. Lewis, candidate for United States Senate; Dr. Joseph I. France, candidate for United States Senate; Hon. B. John Black, Master of Maryland State Grange. Hon. Jesse D. Price and Mr. Robert F. Duer have also accepted invitations to be present.

Exercises will commence at 10 a. m. These meetings have in the past been largely attended by farmers from all over the State, and speakers of national reputation as above have always been on the program.

For Maryland Roads

The State of Maryland will receive $44,047 from the federal government for good roads, according to an announcement from the Secretary of Agriculture last Wednesday. This appropriation is made under the Good Roads Act, which passed Congress and has been signed by the President. In all $5,000,000 will be apportioned to the states for good roads this year and an additional appropriation will be made next and succeeding years.

THE NATION'S EYES ON MARYLAND

The State Is In The Limelight In The Coming Election

Thirty-three senators are to be elected, of whom 18 are Democrats and 15 are Republicans. The United States Senate now stands 56 Democrats and 40 Republicans, and therefore to win control of this branch of Congress the Republicans must hold all their present seats and gain at least eight.

The senators whose terms will expire on March 3, 1917, and whose successors are to be elected this fall are:

Democrats—Ashurst, of Arizona; Bryan, of Florida; Chilton, of West Virginia; Colburn, of Texas; Hitchcock, of Nebraska; Johnson, of Maine; Lea, of Tennessee; Lee, of Maryland; Martin, of New Jersey; Myers, of Montana; O'Gorman, of New York; Pittman, of Nevada; Pomerene, of Ohio; Reed, of Missouri; Swanson, of Virginia; Taggart, of Indiana, and Williams, of Mississippi.

Republicans—Catron, of New Mexico; Clapp, of Minnesota; Clark, of Wyoming; du Pont, of Delaware; La Follette, of Wisconsin; Lippitt, of Rhode Island; Lodge, of Massachusetts; McCumber, of North Dakota; McLean, of Connecticut; Oliver, of Pennsylvania; Page, of Vermont; Poindexter, of Washington; Sutherland, of Utah; Townsend, of Michigan, and Works, of California.

So evenly balanced are the several states in which senators are to be elected that Maryland's vote may determine the political complexion of the next Senate, whether it shall be Republican or Democratic. Maryland, therefore, has a political standpoint, assumes an unusual importance in the galaxy of states. Hence, the eyes of the nation will be directed toward Maryland during the campaign just opening and the result here may be awaited with breathless interest on the night of November 7th.

That Maryland is a close state when national issues are involved has been demonstrated time and time again. Because of wide diversity of view of the administration of President Wilson in dealing with the Mexican and foreign situations and with financial problems, there may be a shifting of votes at the next election. So serious and far-reaching are the problems constantly arising because of the world-wide disturbance the political situation in Maryland and elsewhere will be apt, and doubtless will undergo many changes before the ideas of November are here, indeed, the situation may change overnight, but if public sentiment may be accepted as a guide to the future, the scales are in favor of the Democrats.

State Horticultural Society Meeting

The summer meeting of the Maryland State Horticultural Society will be held at Hancock, Md., August 29th to 30th.

This will afford a splendid opportunity for the members from all parts of the State to see the great progress and development of the fruit industry of that section of Washington county. Within a radius of a few miles around Hancock there are growing about 300,000 fruit trees, both peach and apple, the majority of which are bearing. The principal object of the summer meetings is to permit the members to not only acquaint themselves with the great development of the horticultural industry in various parts of Maryland, but to also study methods practiced by the growers in the culture of trees and handling of the fruit.

The members of the Society, and all others interested in the industry, are invited to assemble in Hancock on the evening of August 29th. A meeting will be held in the town hall, which will be addressed by prominent speakers. On Wednesday, August 30th, at 9 a. m., the visitors will be conducted through the orchards of the vicinity in automobiles, as guests of the citizens and fruit growers of Hancock.

County Charities To Be Organized

A survey of all Maryland counties, with a view to bringing under one head all the county social work, is to be made by the Alliance of Charitable and Social Agencies of Baltimore within the next few weeks.

The work is of special importance at this time because of the new laws going into effect requiring the appointment of a school attendance officer. Many of these are now undergoing training at the summer school of the Johns Hopkins University by means of a course prepared by the alliance. It is hoped to have the new head of the county work take charge in time to consult with the members of this class before the close of the summer school.

The alliance has been in communication with a number of prominent men of the counties and these have endorsed the work which it proposes to do.

TO ENFORCE LAWS IN POTOMAC RIVER

Agreement Prepared By The States Of Maryland and Virginia

The final act of the Conservation Commission of Maryland, after their recent two weeks inspection trip of the various oyster, crab and fish industries along the Chesapeake Bay and its tributaries, was a joint session with the Virginia State Fisheries Committee for the purpose of securing concurrent action between the two states in enforcing the oyster culture law in the Potomac river, as well as to the measurement of oyster tubs and to make and enforce uniform penalties for violating these laws.

The joint conference resulted in the adoption of all the suggestions made by the representatives of Maryland, and, for the first time, both states have made an agreement on all questions at issue. This agreement was endorsed by both Governor Harrington, of Maryland, and Governor Stuart, of Virginia, who pledged themselves to see that its terms were lived up to.

The conference took place on the state steamer Governor McLane. Governor Harrington welcomed Governor Stuart and the Virginia committee on board and both governors jointly presided over the deliberations.

The Conservation Commission of Maryland is proud of the result and expressed itself as determined to conduct this office in such a manner as will make it indispensable to the state.

The following committee was appointed to represent the two states in drawing up the following agreement to be followed by the officials of the two states as to the enforcement of the concurrent law in the Potomac river:

On the part of Virginia, John S. Parsons and Senator G. B. Keezell.

On the part of Maryland, W. H. Killian and Capt. T. C. B. Howard.

Federal government, Dr. H. F. Moore.

1. The "Cull Law" will be strictly enforced, and to that end, all oyster police and inspectors shall overhaul vessels engaged in catching or loading oysters; such overhauling shall be done whenever possible on the beds or bars where oysters are caught or loaded. At least four tubs shall be culled in different parts of the cargo in order to ascertain whether same contains more than 5 per cent. unmerchantable oysters.

2. All oysters shall be measured in standard tubs lawfully stamped. This law shall be enforced with the same vigor as the cull law.

3. All oyster police and inspectors are forbidden to impose or collect any fines or to accept any moneys as such; but they are directed to arrest violators and take them before a magistrate or court having jurisdiction.

4. No boat catching oysters on seed areas of the Potomac shall be allowed to carry any part of the equipment of a dredge, drag, scoop or winder with which to operate patent tongs; and officials must see that this rule is observed before issuing permits for working on seed areas.

5. Permits as per copy approved shall be issued by officials to captains desiring to catch or load oysters on seed areas; such permits to be issued in quadruplicate, one copy for official, one for captain, and one to be mailed to office of each commission.

6. Violators of the concurrent laws will be presumed to have taken place in the Potomac river, regardless of place of loading of cargo, or place of arrest of violator.

7. Oyster police and inspectors of both states shall co-operate in apprehending violators and securing convictions.

The Governors of Maryland and Virginia will direct all magistrates and prosecuting attorneys to co-operate in the execution of the laws in accordance with the foregoing rules, and that they be particularly directed to impose, in the two states, a uniform minimum penalty for the violation of the "cull law," and that they order all undersized oysters to be returned to the bed or bar where taken.

Safety In Travel Over P. R. R. System

Reports which have just been received from all parts of the Pennsylvania system show that in the first six months of the present year 92,380,164 passengers were carried without loss of the life of a single one of them in a train accident.

This completes two and one-half years in which no passenger has been killed in a train accident on any part of the Pennsylvania system, either east or west of Pittsburgh. In that time 453, 952,298 passengers have been safely carried, in more than 3,000,000 trains, for a total distance of over ten billions of miles or 400,000 times around the world. Upward of 3,500,000 freight trains were operated in the same period over the 12,000 miles of line and 26,000 miles of track which make up the Pennsylvania system.

On the lines east of Pittsburgh, no passenger has been killed in a train accident for more than three and one-half years, and 896,000 persons have been carried in safety over these lines alone, during that period.

ENTHUSIASTIC DEMOCRATS MEET

Lewis Heralds Democratic Victory—Dr. Wade Named Chairman

Congressman David J. Lewis was notified of his nomination for United States Senator and Dr. J. Hubert Wade, of Washington county, was elected chairman of the State Central Committee for the unexpired term of the late Gen. Murray Vandiver at an unusually large and enthusiastic gathering of Democrats last Tuesday at the Hotel Renner, Baltimore. Considering the season and the weather, this meeting was remarkable.

Senator John Walter Smith was unable to attend. He was kept in Washington because the District of Columbia bill, of which he has charge, was pending and needed constant attention to keep its place on the calendar. Governor Harrington, Comptroller McMullen, State Treasurer Dennis and other State organization leaders were about the hotel several hours. The party people were confident of victory. They seemed to think there was no question about the result in this State, so far as Wilson and Marshall are concerned. And while they recognized that Mr. Lewis is in danger of some "cutting," they seemed unaffectedly confident that he has a personal strength which will more than overbalance the amount of whatever "cut" may develop.

The principal speech of the notification of Mr. Lewis was delivered by Congressman Jesse D. Price, chairman of the notification committee and also chairman of the last Democratic State Convention.

Other speeches were by Governor Harrington, Gen. Joseph B. Seth, of Talbot county, and former Senator Curran.

Mr. Lewis, in his speech of acceptance, enthused the party people greatly and brought forth repeated cheers as he graphically and succinctly recounted the triumphs of the Democratic party during President Wilson's administration—in both domestic and international affairs. He told of the Federal Reserve act, the modernization of the anti-trust laws, the equitable readjustment of the tariff and the swift-moving plans to place it in the hands of a semi-judicial commission, the passage of the Parcel Post and the remarkable development of the transportation agency it created and of other achievements of Mr. Wilson's administration. He also said:

"No wonder the opposing party is without a platform worthy of the name! They had nothing to promise, nothing they dared denounce. No wonder they are seeking to recapture the government through appeals to prejudice, and by combining all the heterogeneous elements in the Republic. No wonder they invaded the silent chamber of the Supreme Court to secure a leader without a record to offend their motley following. Can they win this way? Is the absence of a record a recommendation? And should the Democratic party, of realized promises and achievements—should it be rejected without argument; is it to be condemned, rather than rewarded, for its devotion, and, like Aristides, be banished for its service to the people?"

Mr. Lewis said he had been working upon a manufacturers and merchants' parcel post which he believed could be used in developing trade with South America. He said his plan contemplates the shipment of packages, such as a case of shoes, at a rate sufficient to pay the ocean and railway traffic costs at both ends, plus the postal costs, and that these rates from the Atlantic States to South American ports ought to mean, in normal times, not more than 3 or 4 cents a pound.

The meeting of the State Central Committee, at which Dr. Wade was elected chairman, immediately followed the notification and was very brief. A committee on resolutions—composed of Carville D. Benson, J. Enos Ray, Dr. Lewis C. Carrio, Alban M. Wood, John E. George and Marion T. Hargis—was named, and soon reported a resolution recommending the election of Dr. Wade for General Vandiver's unexpired term. The resolution was adopted without discussion, and, in very business-like fashion, Dr. Wade was called to the chair and took charge.

Taylor Hanged At Towson

Mumbling protests of his innocence, John M. Taylor (colored), who was sentenced to be hanged for the murder of Lucy Meyers, also colored, on April 24, walked at the break of day last Friday morning to the scaffold in the rear of the Towson jail.

Preceded by three spiritual advisers, he mounted the wooden structure, fell to his knees and uttered a prayer asking a blessing for Warden E. M. Price and his assistant, Clinton O. Bosley. Then the trap was sprung, and in five minutes' time Taylor was pronounced dead.

Only a small crowd witnessed the hanging, as Sheriff Mahle feared there might be another demonstration such as took place when Deems was executed. This is the third hanging in the Towson jail in the last eight months.

BURNED LIME vs. LIME CARBONATE
The greatest authority on lime in the United States, Dr. Cyril G. Hopkins, of the University of Illinois, under date of December 1, 1915, says:
"No trustworthy investigations support the use of burned lime in preference to natural lime carbonate, such as ground pulverized shells, limestone or marl. On many soils a moderate use of burned lime, in connection with the liberal use of farm manures, yields profitable returns, which, no doubt, would be still more profitable if the burned lime were replaced with carbonate in equivalent amount and of proper fineness."

TIME AND THE CLOCKS.

Curious Contradictions That Spring From Our Present Methods.

The paradox of time, reckoned as we have come into the habit of reckoning it, by which a cablegram that leaves England at noon is received instantly in India at 5:30 p. m. and in New York at 7 a. m., has long since been discarded by astronomers and mariners. To these the time is always Greenwich time, and it is on Greenwich time that the wireless signals of all the world are based since the international time conference which met in Paris in 1912 declared that "the universal time shall be that of Greenwich." The Scientific American analyzes the paradox and prophesies that the day will come when all the world will have but one standard time. We should then abandon our time zones, with their strangely irregular boundaries based upon the exigencies of railroad systems and political frontiers and the "curious fiction of the international date line could be given up."

"It would at first seem strange to the New Yorker to begin work at 4 a. m. instead of 9 a. m. and dine at 2 p. m. instead of 7 p. m.," says the Scientific American, "but as these changes would be merely nominal and involve no dislocation of his habits with respect to daylight and darkness he would soon become accustomed to them."

As things are now we are so familiar with such contradictions as receiving a telegram four or five hours earlier than it was sent and finding it 7 o'clock on one side of a street when it is 8 o'clock on the other that they do not strike us as strange. Yet now is always and everywhere now, no matter what we may call it. When it is now in New York it is now in Calcutta and in London. "Call it what you like, the time remains identical."

We have inherited our ideas of time from ancestors whose only clock was the sun and who divided the day into twelve hours between sunrise and sunset. In summer these were very long hours and in winter very short. How perplexed a Greek or Roman horologist would have been near one of the poles where his "hours" would have been as long as many modern days! With clocks numbered from 1 to 24 we could abolish "a. m." and "p. m." as several countries have already done. "Noon" at any place would be when the sun was at the meridian, and it would not matter in the least what clock time coincided with it. Today in the United States the only places at which noon and 12 o'clock exactly coincide are those precisely on the meridian. For example, when it is "noon" in Florida it is 1 p. m. just across the border in Georgia and when it is "noon" in Georgia it is only 11 a. m. in Florida. Similar conditions exist in many places.

Garlic in the Milk.

As to milk diluted by the light diet of the cow, what is this compared with the garlic to which any one at breakfast in Italy in spring is subject without warning? The mere tourist is no doubt guarded by a taster in the hotel keeper's service, but the resident may any morning find his milk or his butter or both made impossible by a flavor more rank than any onion. The Italian cow evidently loves the garlic plant and inconsiderately feasts upon it, with consequences overpowering to the senses of man.—London Mirror.

Von Der Goltz a Novelist.

A good deal of the late Field Marshal von der Goltz's reputation rested upon his military text books, and it is interesting to recall that he first won literary fame by writings of a very different character. When a poor cadet at Grosslichterfelde with a widowed mother to support he turned his hand to novel writing and gained a considerable reputation by a series of sentimental romances.—London Chronicle.

Heard on the Highway.

Troubles are so far scattered it takes a lifetime to get around all of them. Mighty few rest places on the road to the promised land. The motto is, "Keep a-going till you get there." Sometimes a cabin may be roomy enough to hold all the happiness one needs in a lifetime.

Heaven is all the time near us, while we're flying from star to star to find it.—Atlanta Constitution.

Rejuvenating Your Pipe.

To make an old tobacco pipe as good as new plug the stem with a bit of match, fill the bowl with alcohol, light and let burn. Do this three or four times and the pipe will be as clean and as sweet as when new without the bother of breaking it in.—Popular Science Monthly.

Yes, She Could.

"I don't see why mothers can't see the faults in their children," said Mrs. Smith to Mrs. Jones.
"Do you think you can?" asked Mrs. Jones.
"Why, I would in a minute if my children had any."—New York American.

Quite Natural.

Proud Mother—This is a toy tea set my little girl has for afternoon parties. She likes to serve make believe tea and make believe sandwiches. It's a harmless fancy. Guest—Perfectly. I've been to grownup affairs where they did it.

Tied.

"They say he's tied to his wife's apron strings."
"His wife is far too rich to wear aprons. Purse strings is the term."—Kansas City Journal.

It is estimated that there are 170,000, 000 real negroes in the world.

CLOTHES AND THE MAN.

How to Be Well Dressed and Not Look Like a Cloudy Winter Day.

In the American Magazine is an account of one of the most successful insurance solicitors in the country, who attributes a large part of his success to the fact that he always looks well dressed and prosperous.

"If you have only one suit of clothes keep that one suit clean and pressed all the time," he says. "Press your trousers yourself every day if necessary. I have pressed my trousers lots of times. Keep your shoes shined."

"If you can afford several suits change off from one suit to another frequently and keep all of them spotless and well pressed. I never wear a suit longer than the second day at a time. To change every day is better. It gives the clothes a chance to 'rest.' I always hang my clothes on hangers the minute I take them off. It gives them a chance to 'come back' into shape and the nap to come up again."

"It is a great economy to have lots of good clothes. A suit will last twice and three times as long and always look well if you keep changing off from one to another. Besides, people get tired of seeing a man in the same suit day after day for a whole season."

"When I started in the insurance business years ago I realized that to make a good appearance was to look prosperous, and I paid much attention to my dress. I avoided solid colors and always selected clothes with some life in them. A dash of color about your person, whether it be in the plaid of the suit, the shirt, tie, hat or handkerchief protruding from the coat pocket, will take away the monotony of one's appearance and is sure to please. But, in adding this 'life' and 'pep' to one's appearance, avoid, above all things, the colors that clash. Get clothes with 'snap' and 'life' and those which make the wearer look like a cloudy winter day."

WON THE AUDIENCE.

Bernhardt's Clever Trick Turned Coldness to Enthusiasm.

Once when Sarah Bernhardt was acting in Italy the audience was rather unfriendly, owing to the fact that the prices of the seats had been considerably increased.

After the first act Mme. Bernhardt called her maid and gave her some directions in an undertone. The maid left the theater, but speedily returned and just before her mistress went on the stage again she handed her some thing as she stood in the wings. The scene progressed. "The Divine Sarah" seemed hoarse. She tried to clear her throat, passed her handkerchief across her mouth, and suddenly a stream of blood poured from her lips, and she fell into the arms of the actor with whom she was playing.

The curtain was promptly rung down, and the audience waited breathlessly to hear the worst. All their previous vexation was turned to sympathy, and when it was announced that the great actress would shortly resume her part rather than disappoint them the cheering was deafening. When madame came on again the people applauded her as loudly as formerly they had shown their disapproval, and the rest of the play was one long triumph.

But that audience never knew the truth, for when madame had sent her maid out of the theater it was to get her a small bladder of red ink, which she kept in her handkerchief and which she bit through with her teeth so as to produce the alarming effect that had transformed her audience.—Pearson's Weekly.

An Eskimo Dinner.

Admiral Peary was talking in Washington about the hardships of polar exploration.

"The white north is the country of hardships," he said—"hardships that are borne cheerfully and gayly, in the spirit of the Eskimo woman."

"An Eskimo woman at the dinner hour served out to her family half a candle piece."

"Light refreshments," she said, smiling.—Philadelphia Bulletin.

His Mistake.

A long standing creditor resolutely climbed the steps, rang the bell and asked if Mr. Spender was at home.

"Yes, sir. Walk right in, sir," said the footman cordially. "Mr. Spender is at home, sir."
"Thank goodness," said the creditor. "I'm going to see my money at last."
"Oh, don't make that mistake, sir," said the footman. "If Mr. Spender had any money he wouldn't be at home."—Washington Star.

Shakespeare in France.

Shakespeare now has a host of admirers in France, but his works were absolutely unknown in that country until nearly a century after his death. The first mention of Shakespeare in a French book occurs in a translation of Sir William Temple's essays, published 1693, and his plays were not translated until 1776. Bacon, on the other hand, was widely read in France during his lifetime. His essays were translated into French almost as soon as they appeared in England, and three editions of the translation were rapidly exhausted.—London Opinion.

Why He Preferred It.

"Well, how do you like my new gown?"
"Not nearly so well as your old one, my dear."
"What is there about the old gown you like better than this?"
"The old one is paid for, my dear."—Detroit Free Press.

Mrs. Goodsole—Why, Johnny, are you just coming home now? Your mother's been looking for you all afternoon.
Johnny—Yes'm, I know. Mrs. Goodsole—Just think how worried she must be! Johnny—Oh, she's near the end of her worrying. I'm just beginning mine.

THE MATTER OF A NEW ASSESSMENT

The doctrine of an assessment of the real estate of the counties of Maryland, excluding Baltimore city, is meeting with serious objection in various parts of the State. Five or six counties have already declined to obey the order of the State Tax Commission to appoint assessors. Last Tuesday when the question came before the Somerset County Board its members also declined to yield to that requirement and postponed further action until the suit projected by the Commissioners of Frederick county shall have been heard.

One of the chief objections to the new assessment is that of the omission of Baltimore city. The officials of that place assert that they are continually obliged to assess and are at it from year to year. The counties do not believe that the city should have been omitted, and that a State act with such an omission is unconstitutional. In addition to this argument is the effective one that it has been but a very few years since a reassessment, and its provisions called for great expense. To attempt such work again after such a short interval is regarded as an unnecessary and unwise matter.

The tax rate in Somerset county is already a very high one. The county and State rate combined give one of $1.57 on the hundred dollars. It is bad enough to have to stand such local expenses without having added to them a large sum for another assessment. In addition to this, the wisdom of the policy proposed by the State Tax Commission is not well thought of. The appointment of seventeen men for the fifteen districts and the towns of Crisfield and Princess Anne, to go each upon his respective rounds, is also regarded as a poor method of securing anything like uniformity in rating real estate.

The Somerset Commissioners believe it is better to wait until the suit already begun shall have been adjusted before committing themselves to an act that means unreliable rating and extra burdens for an already oppressed set of taxpayers.

Progress In Oyster Conservation

Lack of enforcement of the oyster cull law and the law regulating the catching of small oysters for restocking depleted waters have long been bones of contention between Maryland and Virginia. The laws themselves have been generally recognized as excellent. The trouble has been in getting anyone to obey them. Maryland oystermen blamed Virginia and the oystermen of Virginia were equally positive that the oystermen of Maryland were in fault. No small part of the trouble was due to the joint interest of the two States in fishing rights in the Potomac river.

Now an agreement has been reached. It is not a haphazard affair, but a written document to which officials of the two States having to do with the fisheries in each have attached their names. It has the support of the Governors of the two States, who pledge themselves to see to it that its terms are observed. At last it seems as though the two States have actually done something real looking to the welfare of the oyster interests.

Maryland can thank the State Conservation Commission for this forward step. The law creating the Commission is a reasonably good one, but unless the men named by Governor Harrington to put it into operation measure up to its requirements its potentialities would have little force. It is gratifying to note that the Commission is starting to work vigorously and intelligently. Chairman Kemp has pledged the Commission to demand of its employees real service. The Oyster Navy is the Commission's right arm. Its inspectors and weighers are no less important to the successful operation of the new law. These positions have been so long associated with politics that Mr. Kemp will do the State and the men themselves a real service if he can succeed in having them regarded from a different point of view.—Baltimore News.

Decline In Fruit Crop

The 1916 fruit crop will be below that of 1915 in practically every class, it was predicted by the United States Bureau of Crop Estimates last Wednesday.

Especially marked will be the decline in the peach crop, if present indications hold good. In this line the output, it is estimated, will fall off 11,000,000 bushels for the year, the government experts placing the probable figures at 42,123,000 bushels.

The national yield in apples, the foremost fruit crop, will decline, says the department, from a total of 76,670,000 barrels in the 1915 season to 72,531,000 for the present season.

Little loss is expected in the pear crop, the estimate being 10,703,000 bushels, a loss of a half million bushels.

Hopkins School Has Wide Scope

At the beginning of the fourth week of the Johns Hopkins Summer School, with half of the six weeks' course completed, many of the students are expressing themselves as being well pleased with the results of their studies during the first half of the course. Some of them have informed Dr. Edward F. Buchner, who is directing the work of the summer school, that the course far exceeds that of other schools which they have attended, including some of the best-known summer schools in the country.

Wise Action

The Democratic State Central Committee behaved most sensibly in naming for State Chairman another man than the State Treasurer.

There had been so much criticism, and just criticism, over the combination of these two offices in the past that it would have been utter foolishness to invite the public resentment that must inevitably have followed a continuation of the practice.

Now the party can go into the campaign with clean hands and a clear conscience and make the kind of vigorous fight for Wilson and Lewis and the Congressional candidates that ought to be made.

Here's luck to the new State Chairman!—Baltimore Sun.

Norris, who is one of Crisfield's most prominent physicians, and a well known member of the Smith-Harrington wing of the Somerset democracy, has been appointed to a lucrative position in the State Land Office. It is understood that the duties of his position will not require his absence from Crisfield.

The Woman's Parish Aid of St. Andrew's P. E. Church, will hold a festival on Wednesday evening, August 2nd, on the Rectory lawn. The public is cordially invited. If the weather is inclement it will be held on Thursday evening instead. Mr. Cannon has very generously donated the electric lighting for the evening.

From the Ledger-Enterprise, Pocomoke City: Johnson & Dryden began operations at their cannery in this city on Thursday, making a run on early tomatoes. The firm is now paying 20 cents a basket for tomatoes and this price, the growers agree, is a very satisfactory figure. The heavy rains which fell during the early part of the week have done considerable damage to the tomato crop which only a few days ago looked as though it would be a record breaker.

The annual picnic held at Makemie Park, Virginia, on the 26th of July, to perpetuate the memory of Francis Makemie, the father of organized Presbyterianism in America, was not largely attended on account of the inclement weather. Rev. Henry G. Martin, pastor of Rehoboth Church, presided. H. P. Ford, representing the Presbyterian Historical Society, of Philadelphia, made a brief address, and Dr. L. P. Bowen read an original poem. Miss Fannie Taylor, of Onancock, and Rev. Mr. Martin recited several selections.

Postmaster Harper Kills Himself.

The body of W. Jasper Harper, postmaster at Hurlock, Md., was found last Friday afternoon in Cabin creek, three miles from Hurlock, with a bullet wound in his temple.

Mr. Harper had been missing since 3 o'clock Thursday afternoon when he left Hurlock to go to a farm along the creek he recently sold. He stopped at the home of Herman Hurlock, near Cabin creek, leaving there about 9 o'clock Thursday night.

When Mr. Harper left home, his 14-year-old daughter wanted to accompany him, but he told her she couldn't go this time. State's Attorney A. Stengle Marine is quoted as saying that suicide was so thoroughly established he did not deem it necessary to hold an inquest.

His disappearance followed the completion of the work of two postoffice inspectors who had just gone over his accounts. Whether there is any shortage in his accounts is not known. He was about 35 years old and a widow and daughter survive him.

Fined Under Clam Law

Both of the men had a number of clams in their cargo of less than an inch and a half in length, which is the limit prescribed by law.—Crisfield Times.

Hoosier Poet's Funeral

The funeral of James Whitcomb Riley, the Indiana poet, was held at his home on Lockport street, Indianapolis, last Tuesday. The simple services were attended by relatives and a few of his most intimate friends only. The funeral was private, but the placing of the body in a vault in Crown Hill Cemetery was public. Large crowds assembled near the vault to see the last ceremonies.

The services at the house were conducted by Rev. Joseph A. Milburn, of Sewanee, Tenn., former pastor of the Second Presbyterian Church here, and a close friend of the poet for many years. Rev. Frederick E. Taylor, pastor of the First Baptist Church, assisted.

The body was placed in the vault pending arrangements for its final disposition. The vault was decorated with flowers of brilliant colors which the poet liked best. Beautiful rugs were spread on the floor. A short prayer at the cemetery concluded the services.

OUR MILITARY ACADEMY.

West Point, Where Uncle Sam's Army Officers Are Made.

It was in 1802 that congress established the United States Military Academy, the training school for officers, at West Point, on the banks of the Hudson, fifty-two miles north of New York City.

Although the school for educating and training young men in the theory and practice of military science, to fit them for duty as officers of the United States army, was not established until after Washington's death, he was in a way the real founder. In 1793 and again in 1796 he urged upon congress the necessity of such an institution. The Continental congress as early as 1776 had also suggested the desirability of "a military school for the army."

Authorized in 1802, the Military academy was opened on the Fourth of July with a class of ten cadets. Prior to that time a number of students had been enrolled at the forts at West Point, where a corps of artillerymen and engineers was stationed and informal instruction had been given in the arts of war.

The first decade of the academy's existence was marked by many vicissitudes. Although congress had created the institution, the lawmakers apparently soon forgot all about it, and lacking sufficient funds for its proper conduct, the academy authorities were hard pressed to keep it alive. At one time the school was without a single instructor. In its first ten years only seventy-five students graduated. In 1812 President Madison brought about a reorganization of West Point. Soon 260 students were enrolled, and the institution began to assume something of its present form. It was not until 1817, however, that West Point began to receive serious consideration in the military world. Colonel Sylvanus Thayer, who has been called "the Father of West Point," was appointed to command, and it was he who introduced the uniform, the organization and rules of study. Under his control the academy gained prestige and renown. In 1833, when he resigned the command, West Point had won the respect of the military men of Europe and was counted among the world's most famous institutions of its kind.—Exchange

"DO YOU FOLLOW ME?"

You See the Point, of Course, if You Get the Idea.

No person who values his self respect and who doesn't want to be lied to will ever say "Do you follow me?" when expounding a subject to a friend or acquaintance. There are so many reasons against the use of this interrogatory that only two or three of the best ones need be mentioned.

If you are enunciating words of wisdom the chances are nine hundred and ninety-eight out of nine hundred and ninety-nine that you are not being followed. On the other hand, if you are enunciating foolish words it makes no difference whether you are being followed or not. A still more important reason, however, is embodied in the simple but inescapable fact that no man can ever be quite sure that he understands what the other fellow is trying to express.

Therefore the proper answer to the question "Do you follow me?" is always, "I don't know." That, of course, makes the question itself absurd, and it is made still more absurd by the fact that few are honest enough to answer, "I don't know," but insist upon lying and saying, "Oh, yes; I follow you all right enough."

It is clear, therefore, that the effort is quite hopeless. If you have something to express all you can do is to pick out the most intelligent person or persons you can find, express your idea as well as you can and let it go at that. Do you get the idea?—Life.

First Footpaths in 1762.

The student of old London, noticing the whitened curbs in the streets to-day, is inevitably reminded that the institution of the footway is really of quite recent date. It was not indeed until after the Westminster paving act of 1762 that footways became at all general. Before that time man and beast took the same road. Many of the old iron posts, which are still to be seen in Regent street and elsewhere, showing the crown and the monogram of the Georges indicate the corners of these first footways.—Christian Science Monitor.

Curiosities of Etymology.

It is extraordinary how words for the same thing differ in even so small a country as England. Take "left handed," for example. In Gloucestershire such a person is described as "scrammy," in Staffordshire he becomes "craggy." The phrase for a left handed Yorkshireman is "gawkrodger" or "callick handed," and in the next county, Durham, he is "cuddy paw."—London Telegraph.

Phrenologist (enthusiastically)—Why, sir, the bump of veneration is the largest I have ever seen. Such a bump should make you a bishop. Subject (delighted)—Is that so? Well, I'll get Paddy Nolan to give me another whack in the same place, and I'll be an archbishop at once.—Exchange.

Mean Tempered.

"Your teeth are in pretty bad shape," remarked the dentist. "It isn't their shape that bothers me," said his patient. "It's their disposition."—St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

Knots.

Mrs. Dearborn—What is the length of a knot? Mrs. Wabash—Well, do you mean a nautical knot or a marriage knot?—Yonkers Statesman.

HAVE YOU BEEN SICK?

Then you realize the utter weakness that robs ambition, destroys appetite, and makes work a burden.

To restore that strength and stamina that is so essential, nothing has ever equaled or compared with Scott's Emulsion, because its strength-sustaining nourishment invigorates the blood to distribute energy throughout the body while its tonic value sharpens the appetite and restores health in a natural, permanent way. If you are run down, tired, nervous, overworked or lack strength, get Scott's Emulsion to-day. It is free from alcohol. Scott & Bowne, Bloomfield, N. J.

DELAYED INAUGURATION.

Why Washington Had to Wait Until April 30 In 1789.

Although March 4 is the date set by law for the inauguration of our presidents, there was one occasion when the rule was not observed, for George Washington was inaugurated on April 30, 1789, instead of March 4.

When the constitution had been ratified by the requisite number of states the Continental congress by resolution of Sept. 13, 1788, set the first Wednesday of the following March (March 4, 1789) as the "time for commencing proceedings" under the new form of government.

Owing to delays of various kinds, such as difficulties of travel, etc., members of the first congress were very slow to assemble in New York, and a quorum of both houses was not obtained until April 6. The counting of Washington and his journey from Mount Vernon to New York took until April 23, and his inauguration was set for April 30.

His term of office was, however, construed as having commenced on March 4, the date set by the Continental congress for the inauguration of the new government, and so it came to an end on March 4, 1793, although it lacked nearly two months of the four years provided for by the constitution.—New York Times.

CATCH THEM AND KILL THEM.

Don't Keep Fish Alive After You Get Them Out of the Water.

Probably nine-tenths of the fishermen hereabouts make the mistake of trying to keep their fish alive after they are caught on the theory that the fish will taste better after they get home and prepare them for the pan for cooking. They string them and keep them in the water or let them die in the creel.

The custom is a mistake, according to the experts. They declare the best way is to kill the fish the moment it is landed by pushing its head back and thus breaking the neck or giving it a hard blow on the head. Then take a knife and "bleed" them by running the knife blade around the bottom of the gills.

"In order to get your fish home without any discoloration," declares a veteran angler, "take along a yard or two of white cheesecloth, and as soon as the fish is caught kill it and bleed it. Then dampen the cloth and wrap up each fish separately, taking care that no two fish touch each other."

"By doing this you will find that the fish will retain all the color marking just as clear and bright as when it was first taken from the water and the fish will be sweet and palatable."—Philadelphia Ledger.

Napoleon's Custodian at St. Helena.

Sir Hudson Lowe, the man appointed by England to be the custodian of the emperor, arrived at St. Helena on April 14, 1816. His appearance was not prepossessing. He was extraordinarily thin, with a stiff carriage. He had a long, bony face, blotched with red and scanty hair of a dirty-yellow color. His hollow eyes gleamed under thick, reddish eyebrows, but were furtive and restless, never looking straight at any one save by stealth. "That is a bad man," declared Napoleon when he had seen him. "His eyes as he examined me was like a hyena's caught in a trap."

He really resembled this horrid, sly animal in its walk as well as in hair and eyes. He never sat down when he was talking, but swung about hesitatingly and with abrupt jerks.—"With Napoleon at St. Helena."

Life's Little Tragedies.

A youth dashed into the florist's shop.

"There was something wrong about those red roses you sent the lady on Lincoln avenue," he declared. "I'm sure they were sent," replied the florist. "I remember the order. You said you wanted the very cheapest ones, a dozen and a quarter. Here, Joe."

The new boy came forward. "You remember those roses you took to Lincoln avenue. Sure you got the address right?"

"Yes, sir. I took it off the bill for 'em, sir."

"Bring the bill here."

DENMARK ONCE A POWER.

When the Tiny Kingdom Conquered and Ruled Great Britain.

Among the little nations of Europe there is one that is seldom mentioned, except when some vessel contrives to thread its dangerous way through the Skagerrack and Cattegat. Then Denmark comes into the daily news. Did you know that Great Britain was once ruled from the capital of this tiny and remote kingdom?

It has been almost 900 years since the stalwart Canute completed the conquest of England, expelling both the Celtic and the Saxon rulers of the British Isles. When he had completed his conquest and soothed the feelings of his new subjects by marrying the widow of their former king he added Norway to his crown possessions. One of his successors ruled over the whole of the Scandinavian peninsula and a large section of what is now German and Russian territory, surrounding the Baltic sea.

Today Denmark dips one hand in the icy waters of the north and the other in the blue gulf stream, for she rules not only Iceland and Greenland, but Santa Cruz, St. Thomas and St. John, known as the Danish West Indies. From the earliest times, when Charlemagne established the buffer state, known as the Danish Mark, on his northern frontier, the Danes have been a powerful seafaring people, emerging from piracy into legitimate commerce.

When the old princely line died out a prince of Schleswig-Holstein was invited to the Danish throne, and in 1661 the clergy combined with the common people against the nobility and in behalf of the king. A constitution was not granted until the year 1806.—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

THE KING'S COURIERS.

England's "Silver Greyhounds" Have Hard Work and Poor Pay.

The most exciting job that can be held in the United Kingdom is that of king's messenger. He is charged with the delicate and in war time dangerous duty of carrying important state papers in cases when it would be either unwise or impossible to use the telegraph or the postal service.

During war the king's messenger has nearly as difficult a task as has the dispatch rider, who is actually at the front. He must be continually on the lookout for spies, and it is quite within the probabilities that the steamer on which he is traveling may be stopped by an enemy vessel and his valuable papers taken from him.

Owing to the fact that they wear a badge consisting of a silver greyhound surmounted by a crown, king's messengers are nicknamed "silver greyhounds," and indeed they often have to imitate that breed of dog in swiftness and sureness of scent. To qualify for a messengership many things are needed. The candidate must be a man of first rate education, of excellent family and a good linguist.

Considering the qualifications required, the salaries of the "silver greyhounds" are by no means large. The foreign service messengers receive remuneration ranging from $1,250 to $2,000 a year, while those employed on home service get from $650 to $1,225 a year.—Philadelphia Ledger.

A Callous Letter Carrier.

A woman from up state, who recently returned from a visit to friends in Brooklyn, remarked:

"I'm glad to get back home among my own kin and friends, where people ain't too busy or too unfeeling or too stuck up to take some interest in one another."

"Now, there's them postoffice folks down in Brooklyn! I found 'em actually hard hearted. Would you believe it, the man that brings round the letters to Mary's he's so queer and standoffish that when he handed me my husband's postal card telling me how mother had fell and broke her arm, he never so much as opened his lips to give me one word of sympathy! No, sir, not even enough to say, 'Too bad!'—Exchange.

SUMMER LIGHTNING.

Summer lightning is beginning to take its toll from the farm houses and barns. Farm fires usually show a marked increase with the coming of summer, due to the lightning from thunderstorms. There are two ways of meeting the danger—the fire protection in the way of fire extinguishers and farm water systems can be made adequate or the right type of a lightning rod system can be installed. There are reputable firms making lightning rods that will give protection, and most insurance companies make a lower rate for farm buildings protected in this way. —Farm Progress.

JOHNSON GRASS A WEED.

Pest Should Be Destroyed During the Summer and Fall.

Kansas farmers who planted oats containing Johnson grass, an undesirable weed, should destroy the pest this summer or in the fall, according to G. E. Thompson, specialist in crops, division of extension, Kansas State Agricultural college.

"Definite records show that 50,000 bushels of oats containing Johnson grass seed were planted in the state last spring," says Mr. Thompson.

"Johnson grass is a weed pest because of the large underground root stalks which cause the plant to spread rapidly and enable it to live over from year to year. Yet it is hard to get and maintain a stand sufficiently good to make a satisfactory meadow, and in Kansas Johnson grass is worth little for pasture. The large bunches or clumps of Johnson grass as they appear in the fields interfere with cultivation, prevent getting uniform stands, sap moisture and plant food from the cultivated crop and are a nuisance at harvest time.

"If during the early and mid part of summer the Johnson grass can be kept short enough to keep the plants in a weak condition comparatively few root stalks that penetrate deep into the ground will be formed. An oat or a wheat crop serves this purpose quite well. When the Johnson grass is in this weakened condition, plowing in July or early August will further weaken the plants and will entirely kill many of them. If the ground then is given clean cultivation until fall nearly all of the grass that is not killed by the cultivation will freeze out during the winter. In case a good deal of the grass shows up after this mid-summer plowing it may be advisable to late fall plow in order to further expose the roots to freezing."

For Hoghouse Door.

Here is a very handy device for fastening doors where hogs are kept. It is impossible for them to break out by pushing on the bottom of the door. The latches are made of wood and are bolted to the door. They are connected by an iron rod with eyes in each end. This rod is bolted to each latch, so that when you raise the top latch it pulls the lower one up. A small chain is stapled to the upper latch and to the door. This prevents the latches dropping when the door is unlatched.

TIMELY SPRAYING HINTS.

There are three troubles of the peach which can be controlled by spraying: First.—Curculio, an insect which punctures the fruit and causes wormy peaches and plums. Second.—Peach scab or spot. This is a fungous disease which causes dark spots, black blotches or even causes the fruit to crack open. Third.—Brown rot. The two diseases may be controlled by lime sulphur spray. Either use a very dilute commercial lime-sulphur, one quart to fifty gallons of water, or Scott's formula of uncooked lime-sulphur. Scott's formula is prepared as follows: Use eight pounds of sulphur and eight pounds of lime. Slake the lime and add the sulphur sifted. Allow it to slake and boil for five minutes and then cool by adding cold water. Strain this into a fifty gallon spray barrel and add water to make fifty gallons of spray material. For the insect enemies two pounds of arsenate of lead should be added to the lime-sulphur solution. Spray just after the shucks or calyxes fall. Spray again in ten days or two weeks and once or twice more at intervals of ten days, using the poison only in the first two sprayings. Plums and cherries may be sprayed with the same materials that are used on the peach, but care should be taken not to use the uncooked lime-sulphur spray when the fruit is nearly grown, or it will be stained. Do not neglect to spray the gooseberries with dilute lime-sulphur and arsenate of lead for mildew and currant worm.

A FLOWER GARDEN FOR EVERY HOME

What To Plant And How To Plant It. B. W. ANSPON

Maryland State College of Agriculture.

There is a certain delight one secures when showing ones friends around the garden, pointing out those plants that are truly our own, those that we have grown from seed. Many of the perennials left alone and their seed allowed to drop around them, will produce seedlings in great numbers. Such plants are usually so small and come up so late in the season that they are of little use to the amateur. A much better way is to sow the seed now in prepared frames or beds, transplant them and give them the best attention in order to grow strong plants quickly.

First of all, prepare a cold frame in a well drained place. Fill in good soil and see that it is well pulverized. If the soil is not rich, add well rotted manure and a little sharp sand. Spade up and work thoroughly, so as to have a good seedbed. Rake and smooth the soil, then firm lightly by pressing down with a board. Sow the seeds in rows four inches apart. To keep the varieties separate, use small plant labels. Insert a label on which the variety is written, then sow the seed thinly. After sowing, cover the seeds according to the size of the seed. Large seed, like Hollyhock, can be covered to a depth of half an inch. Do this by shifting light soil over the seeds. Fine seeds, like those of Oriental poppies, want no covering whatever. Merely press these down into the soil. Water with a fine hose, so as not to wash out the seeds. Now place the sash over the frame. To give shade, cover glass with a thin coat of white wash. A still simpler method is to wet the glass and throw fine dry clay over the glass. This will stick on the wet places, giving a good shade. It has the added advantage of being easy to wash off. Give the frame a little air on bright days. Do this by lifting one end of the sash and placing a four-inch strip under the sash. Water carefully every morning. When the seedlings appear, which is usually in about a week's time, give more air. Keep weeds pulled and cultivate the soil between the plants frequently. As soon as the plants are large enough they should be transplanted. Three to six inches apart will be sufficient room for most of them. Remove the sash altogether, so as to harden the plants. It is well to shade the newly set plants. This can be done by driving down stakes three feet long at each of the four corners of the bed and stretch a sheet of burlap or similar material over them. Keep the plants growing by frequent watering and stirring of the soil. By September, the plants will be large enough to set out to their permanent places.

A few of the perennials that can be sown now are:

Aconitum (Monkshood). Alyssum (Goldentuft or Madwort). Aquilegia (Columbines). Asters Hardy (Michaelmas Daisies). Bellis Perennials (English Daisy). Boltonia (False Chamomile). Callirhoe (Poppy Mallow). Campanulas (Bell Flowers). Centaurea (Hardy Corn Flower). Chrysanthemum (Sbasta Daisy). Coreopsis. Dianthus Barbatus (Sweet William). Delphiniums (Lark Spurs). Digitalis (Fox Glove). Eallardia (Blanket Flower). Gypsophila (Baby's Breath). Helianthus (Sunflower). Hibiscus (Mallows). Liatris (Blazing Star). Lupinus Polyphyllus (Hardy Lupines). Myosotis (Forget-Me-Nots). Papaver Medicinale (Iceland Poppies). Papaver (Oriental Poppies). Platycodon (Balloon Flower). Pyrethrum Roseum (Colored Daisy). Rudbeckia (Cone Flower). Salvia (Hardy Sage). Seabiosa (Pincushion).

GUARD AGAINST POOR CLOVER SEED.

Crimson clover seed loses its vitality very rapidly, so that seed which is two years old is worthless. When buying, therefore, seed of guaranteed germination should be purchased. First class crimson clover seed weighs 60 pounds to the bushel. Complete failure, due to lack of inoculation, is quite common, even though the field may have a perfect stand. For inoculation take soil, spade deep, from a field which has grown crimson clover and broadcast it, about 2 bushels per acre, over the land which is to be seeded to crimson clover and harrow in immediately, in order to prevent killing of the bacteria by sunlight.

GARDENS.

Keep up a succession of garden crops. Continue to plant beans, tomatoes and sweet corn. Tomatoes should be staked and pruned. The shoots appearing in the axils of the leaves should be removed as rapidly as they appear. All garden crops should be cultivated often and shallow. Horse cultivation is best. If this is not practicable, wheel hoes should be secured. A small outlay in good garden tools saves much time and labor.

HOW TO SECURE A GOOD STAND

Proper Seeding Of Crimson Clover Is Essential To Successful Production.

NICKOLAS SCHMITZ

Maryland Agricultural Experiment Station.

The lack of rain in late summer and early fall is responsible for many failures of crimson clover, because the young seedlings are very easily killed by lack of moisture or hot sunshine. The seedbed, then, should be firm, moist and finely pulverized. Where sown in cultivated crops, such as corn and tomatoes, the cultivation necessary for these crops is usually sufficient for the clover; where following small grain the stubble should be plowed down as soon after harvest as possible, and the land well worked-up. Then, after one or two good rains and a light surface-working, the field is ready for crimson clover seeding.

Of late years, preparing stubble land for crimson clover by discing thoroughly has been practiced, and under favorable conditions has given good results. This saves labor, but can not be recommended for hard clay soils.

Method Of Seeding.

The seed may be broadcasted by hand, or sown with one of the broadcasting machines found on the market, of which the wheel-barrow seeder is about the most satisfactory. In cultivated crops the seed may also be sown with one of the special single row horse-seeders, made for seeding intertilled crops; but, generally, the machine is best.

When sown in corn a rotary hand-seeder may be used on horse-back. This seeder should be supported a foot or so above the saddle horn, and the horse's ears covered to prevent the seed entering.

Time And Rate Of Seeding.

It is best to seed some time between the middle of July and the middle of September. Along the water-fronts in Southern Maryland and in the southern part of the Eastern Shore it may be safe to sow as late as the middle of September or a little later, but by far the best results are obtained if seeded a month or six weeks earlier. In the northern part of the Eastern Shore and in the crimson clover section of Harford, Baltimore, Howard and Montgomery counties, it should not be seeded later than September 1st, and preferably 4 or 5 weeks earlier. In Carroll county and in almost all of the lower altitudes of Frederick and Washington counties and in the Mountain Section it is seldom safe to sow after August 25th, and it may be seeded as early as July 15th.

The most common rate of seeding is 15 pounds per acre. A few use 20 pounds, while others use only 10 pounds per acre. If the weather and soil conditions are just right, 12 pounds is enough.

SHRUBS FOR HOME GROUNDS.

B. W. ANSPON

Maryland State College Of Agriculture.

According to their flowering habit, shrubs are divided into two groups. One group of shrubs produces flowers from buds that were formed the previous season. The other group produces flowers from buds that are formed on the new wood of the current season. It is the first group in which the flower buds are prepared before hand, that we especially are interested in at this time. Among this group are the following shrubs:

Azaleas	Golden Bell
Calycanthus	Japan Quince
Daphne	Mock Orange
Deutzias	Mountain Laurel
Dogwoods	Privets
Dwarf Almond	Rhododendrons
Flowering Currant	Spiraeas (Spring)
Flowering Crab	Flowering
Flowering Peach	Viburnums

The growth of these shrubs can be controlled by pruning now. As soon as the flowers fade, shorten back the old wood. Old shoots that tend to crowd should be removed. Those growing out of the bounds should be cut back to conform to the general outline of the plant. By this method of pruning, strong shoots will develop, on which the flower-buds for the ensuing year will form. Where the growth of such shoots becomes too vigorous, pinch them back.

On Rhododendrons and Azaleas cut out the old flower heads as soon as they fade.

Climbing roses need little pruning, save cutting off the flower clusters after they are through flowering.

Evergreen trees, to develop into good specimens, should have the lowest limbs extending the greatest distance out from the trunks. When upper limbs are allowed to grow out beyond the lower limbs, serious injury results. The longer branches will shade the lower and also throw off the rain from them. Soon the lower limbs will drop their needles or leaves and die. All upper branches that extend beyond the lower limbs should be cut back until they are shorter than the ones directly beneath them. Always cut back to a strong bud, so as to leave no stub. Pinching out the terminal bud will check growth in that direction, when the branch tends to grow out of bounds.

MILLIONS FOR NATION'S DEFENSE

Largest Budget Ever Adopted In Time Of Peace

Nearly $700,000,000 for national defense in the fiscal year 1917 is the aggregate of proposed appropriations reached in the Senate last Thursday with passage of the Army Appropriation Bill, carrying in round numbers $314,000,000.

This grand total for preparedness still is subject to revision, however, because the army bill will follow the naval bill into conference where reductions are probably, despite the firm attitude of President Wilson in supporting the liberal response of the Senate to the call for adequate defense.

The appropriations for preparedness as they now stand are as follows: Army, $313,970,447.10; Navy, $315,826,943.56; fortifications (law) $25,748,050; Military Academy, $2,238,328.57; Army and Navy deficiency, $27,559,348.05; total, $685,343,117.27.

As it passed the Senate the army bill exceeded the appropriations made by the House by more than $131,000,000.

In the final hours of debate on the measure the Senate agreed to an appropriation of $2,000,000 for relief of dependent families of national guardsmen and regular army soldiers in service in the Mexican emergency. Distribution of the fund is left to the discretion of the Secretary of War, but in no case shall any dependent family receive more than $50 a month.

HUGHES IS NOTIFIED OF NOMINATION

Wilson Is All Wrong, He Says, But Offers No Other Plans

Charles E. Hughes, who resigned as an associate justice of the United States Supreme Court to become the candidate of the Republican party for President, was formally notified Monday night, July 31st, of his nomination.

The speech of notification was delivered in Carnegie Hall, New York, by United States Senator Warren G. Harding, of Ohio. In his reply, in which he announced his acceptance of the nomination, Mr. Hughes assailed President Wilson's administration generally and declared that new policies were needed, but stated only in general terms the policies he proposed to follow if elected.

Mr. Hughes criticized the Administration for the course it had pursued with reference to Mexico, maintenance of American rights during the European war, preparedness and other great questions of the day. He declared for a new policy of "firmness and consistency" toward Mexico, for "the unflinching maintenance of all American rights on land and sea," and for "adequate national defense; adequate protection on both our western and eastern coasts."

"We denounce all plots and conspiracies in the interest of any foreign nation," Mr. Hughes said. "Utterly intolerable is the use of our soil for alien intrigues. Every American must unreservedly condemn them and support every effort for their suppression."

The nominee assailed the Administration for its "direction of diplomatic intercourse" from the beginning, declaring that where there should have been conspicuous strength and expertise there had been weakness and inexperience. He cited San Domingo as an instance where appointments had gone to "deserving Democrats" and the failure to continue Ambassador Herrick at his post in Paris after the war had started as "a lamentable sacrifice for international repute."

Shark Killed In Choptank

A man-eating shark, between eight and ten feet long, and weighing over 305 pounds, was caught by fishermen in a small seine near Castle Haven, on Long Point, on the Dorchester side of the Choptank River Tuesday morning.

Captain Lee Thompson and son, Harry Thompson, of Oxford, were out in their gasoline launch attending to their trot crab lines when they were called by the fishermen to come and help them haul in their seine as a shark was in it. They left their crab lines and ran to shore to help the fishermen land the shark, which they had succeeded in hauling into shallow water. The shark was fighting hard to get out of the seine and would have succeeded had not one of the crabbers grabbed his large knife, which he used in cutting up crab bait, and rushed into the water as the shark turned on its back and stabbed it several times in the throat, killing it.

The shark was taken to Oxford, where many people from the surrounding country came to see it.

Governor Thinks Compromise Possible

Governor Harrington believes that within a short while it will be possible to compromise the oyster condemnation cases, tried some time ago under the Shepherd Oyster law, with the result that judgments totaling approximately $250,000 were awarded against the State.

The Governor, State Treasurer John M. Dennis and Secretary of State Thomas W. Simmons last Tuesday afternoon had a conference with Alonzo L. Miles, attorney for several of the Somerset county lessees who obtained judgments against the State, after which the Governor expressed the opinion above referred to.

He said that a proposition had been made that Mr. Miles wished to submit to his clients and that a definite answer would be expected from him in a few days. Until the proposition is acted upon the terms will not be made public.

The last Legislature, in its closing days, passed a bill appropriating $75,000 to be used in compromising the judgments awarded against the State on account of the oyster condemnation cases. The Governor said last Tuesday that if the proposition that has been made is accepted the amount mentioned will be sufficient to take care of all of the claims. Judgments were obtained against the State in Somerset and Calvert counties. The Somerset county judgments were regarded as excessive, and for a while last winter there was talk of enacting a law authorizing the State to abandon the condemnation cases.

Mrs. Ann Brock Church and little daughter, of Newbern, N. C., visited at the home of Mrs. Z. W. Townsend last week.

TERRITORY LOST BY ARBITRATION

30,000 Acres Of Land Awarded To The State Of Virginia

W. Thomas Kemp, chairman of the State Conservation Commission received from Attorney General Ritchie on Monday of last week an opinion that Maryland is pledged to the Black-Jenkins award of 1876. The Conservation Commission is authorized under an act of the last legislature "to mark and maintain with buoys, placed at intervals of not more than one mile apart, the line between the waters of the State of Maryland and the waters of the State of Virginia, from Cedar Straits, on Pocomoke Sound, to Williams Point, in Pocomoke River."

Under this act the Maryland commission took up with the Virginia authorities during the recent conference between Governor Harrington, of Maryland, and Governor Stuart, of Virginia, the restoration of buoys along the boundary. In seeking the old locations Swenson Earle, engineer to the Maryland commission, discovered that under the original lines and under the Maryland charter, Maryland was entitled to 30,000 acres which had been awarded to Virginia under the Black-Jenkins arbitration. Attorney General Ritchie was asked to ascertain if there existed any legal steps by which Maryland could recover this lost territory.

In his opinion Mr. Ritchie says: By the Act of 1874 "the settlement and determination of the true line of boundary" between Maryland and Virginia was referred to arbitrators, and the act provided that Maryland "thereby pledges its faith to accept and abide by the award of said arbitrators as final and conclusive." The State of Virginia passed concurrent legislation.

The arbitrators filed their award, determining the boundary line between the two states, in January, 1877, and the State of Virginia, by Act of 1878, accepted and confirmed the boundary line so established, and provided that the same should be "forever faithfully and inviolably observed and kept by Virginia and her citizens."

Maryland had already pledged her assent by the acts of 1874 and 1876 and by the act of 1878 she provided for commissioners to survey and mark the line. Congress gave its consent to the award.

The boundary line established by the arbitrators is the true boundary line between Maryland and Virginia. The faith of Maryland was expressly pledged to accept and abide by it. It was confirmed by both states and by Congress, and, moreover, the Supreme Court of the United States has recently recognized it.

Fish Hatching Stations Closed

The Conservation Commission, after a visit to the various fish hatching stations, has decided to close them up. By so doing Chairman Kemp and the Commissioners will save the State some $13,000 per annum. This decision on the part of the Commission was arrived at after their visit to these various hatching stations and carefully investigating the work done by them and comparing it with the annual outlay made by the State. The closing of these plants will prove somewhat of a shock to 20 or more employees. The offices of fish commissioner for the Eastern Shore and the Western Shore, respectively, were abolished at the last session of the General Assembly, this branch of the State government being turned over to the Conservation Commission, who do not hesitate to say that the results obtained from these fisheries do not warrant the continued outlay of this large sum of money. By the closing of these seven places the Conservation Commission does not intend to abandon fish culture, but on the contrary to continue it on a different plan which, in their judgment, will produce better results and at a far less cost.

The Commission proposes to establish two experimental stations, one on the Eastern Shore, to be located on the Little Choptank River, where it will be in close proximity to the necessary spawn which is required to be obtained in order to hatch out the various classes of the finny tribe which are most desirable for the salt waters of this State.

The one to be established on the Western Shore will probably be located on the property of the State Forestry Division in Garrett county, where fish can be raised and distributed in the fresh-water courses throughout Western Maryland and which will save a large outlay in transportation charges in distribution of the young fish.

Nobody likes a quitter, but many a man who wants the earth has to take water.

Just because your blood is impoverished, don't attribute it to the high cost of living.

$85,000,000 FOR ROADS

Department Of Agriculture Explains How Appropriation Will Be Spent

The Department of Agriculture issued a statement last week explaining the recent legislation for Federal aid for good roads. The statement, in part, is as follows:

"The sum of $85,000,000 of Federal funds is made available for the construction of rural roads by the passage of the Federal Aid Roads bill, which became a law on July 11, 1916. Of this sum $75,000,000 is to be expended for the construction of rural post roads under cooperative arrangements with the highway departments of the various states, and $10,000,000 is to be expended for roads and trails within or partly within the national forests."

"The act limits the Federal Government's share in road work in co-operation with the states to 50 per cent. of the estimated cost of construction. Federal aid may be extended to the construction of any rural post road, excluding all streets or roads in towns having a population of 2,500 or more, except the portions of such streets or roads on which the houses are, on an average, more than 200 feet apart."

"Five million dollars is made available for expenditure during the fiscal year ending June 30, 1917, and thereafter the appropriation is increased at the rate of $5,000,000 a year until 1921, when the sum provided is $25,000,000, or a total of $75,000,000. In addition, $10,000 a year for 10 years, a total of $100,000, is made available for roads and trails wholly or partly within national forests."

"The class of roads to be built and the method of construction are to be mutually agreed upon by the Secretary of Agriculture and the state highway department."

"The act provides that after making necessary deductions for administering its provisions—not to exceed 3 per cent. of the appropriation of any one fiscal year—the Secretary of Agriculture shall appropriate the remainder of each year's appropriation in the following manner:

"One-third in the ratio which the area of each state bears to the total area of all the states;

"One-third in the ratio which the population of each state bears to the total population of all the states, and

"One-third in the ratio which the mileage of rural delivery routes and star routes in each state bears to the total mileage of rural delivery routes and star routes in all the states."

State Tax Commission Waiting

The State Tax Commission is awaiting a decision by the Circuit Court for Frederick County in the suit instituted by the commissioners of that county to determine the constitutionality of the act under which it is proposed to reassess the real estate in all the counties. The decision by the Frederick court will not enable the commission to begin its work. Whatever that decision may be, there will likely be an appeal to the Court of Appeals, a special sitting and an early ruling by which it will be necessary to pave the way for the start of the work. It looks, therefore, as though the commission will not be in position to begin until September 1 the revaluations which had been set for about August 1.

The Deutschland Is Gone

The Deutschland is off. After so many delays and disappointments that many had come to believe she would not go at all, the German submarine left her barricaded slip in Baltimore at 5:38 Tuesday afternoon. On Wednesday she proceeded cautiously down the bay, hugging the eastern Virginia shore until the final dash through the Capes Wednesday night.

One of the last acts of Captain Koenig and his crew was to stand on the deck of the submersible and give three rousing cheers for America and the American people.

The final dash was virtually without incident. Eighteen miles up the Chesapeake bay, at the crossing of the Old Point and Cape Henry channels, the submarine began to gather speed and soon was hurrying toward the Atlantic. With only a slight delay after reaching the Capes she dashed into the sea and submerged.

If the Deutschland runs afoul of a British warship and tries to dive she will be treated as any escaping ship. As the British do not recognize her as a merchantman she is hardly likely to get gentle treatment. The Admiralty admits the odds are in favor of her eluding their navy, but the British always welcome a good sporting proposition.

Officially, all the Admiralty says is that if the Deutschland is met the navy will try to arrest her. It is left to the naval officers on the scene to decide how to handle the situation.

BERLIN GUN CLUB TOURNAMENT

Princess Anne Trapshooters Make Excellent Scores

The Berlin Gun Club held a clay bird tournament on Friday, the 28th ult., at its club grounds, and the Princess Anne Trapshooting Club sent a delegation of eleven members to attend. Messrs. Omar Reading and Frank Layfield both won prizes, while Mr. B. H. Dougherty led the Princess Anne team with a score of 90 out of a possible 100. The winner of the shoot was a Berlin man and his score was 94. Mr. Dougherty may well be proud of his performance, when it is taken into consideration that such shooters as Richardson, the champion of Delaware, made only 93; German, the crack Baltimore professional, made only 92; Gill, the champion of Maryland, made only 89; and Worthington made only 90. Mr. Earle B. Polk was second on the Princess Anne team with a score of 89. Mr. Omar Reading's score was 85, and the others ran from that down. Besides the ones mentioned, those who attended were Dr. Barnes, C. C. Waller, Dr. T. J. Smith, R. F. Duer, Edwin Hayman, E. C. Cannon and Herbert Holland. The Princess Anne Club expects to hold a tournament here in October.

For Revival of Shad Industry

So evident was the failure of the shad "catch" during the spring in Maryland waters that Dr. H. F. Moore, deputy United States Fish Commissioner, has informed the Maryland Conservation Commission that the fish hatchery in the Susquehanna River will have to be abandoned and a new site, probably in the Choptank River, will have to be selected. The cause of this proposed shift is the scarcity of roe of shad and of other fish in the Susquehanna River. Dr. Moore complains that during the past spring he was unable to secure sufficient shad roe to keep the propagating plant going. It is claimed that this scarcity can be avoided by removal to a point down the Chesapeake Bay, Choptank River, it is said, offering the best site.

The Conservation Commission has great expectations of the protection of Maryland fish and crabs through co-operation with the Virginia authorities. It is claimed that by this co-operation shad and other fish will be able to reach the Maryland tributaries of the Chesapeake. For years there has been a complaint by Maryland fishermen that nets in the Virginia section of the Bay ensnared the shad and other fish, thus barring them from the upper Bay.

The scarcity of shad is proving to be a serious menace in Maryland.

There is no species of fish more important to the residents of the entire Atlantic seaboard than the shad, and none whose capture immediately concerns a larger number of persons. The yield of cod is greater and of more value, but the fishery for that species is confined to one section of the coast.

P. R. R. Helps Employees' Families

Distribution of the funds needed for the relief of the families and dependents of Pennsylvania Railroad employees who have been called into military service on the Mexican border commenced on July 31st. Vouchers covering the initial payments issued from the office of the Treasurer were in the hands of each General Superintendent in time to reach the beneficiaries the early part of last week. The first installment of the relief money covered the month of July. In the future payments will be made semi-monthly, as in the case of wages, and in all instances will be placed directly in the hands of the wife, mother or other beneficiary. This duty will be performed by employees designated by the various Superintendents. The payments will be made out of the fund of $100,000, set aside by the Board of Directors for this purpose.

Inquiry showed that about 300 of the Pennsylvania Railroad men under arms have families or other dependents who will require relief during the absence of their employees from their regular work. The needs of all of these are being met. In addition, the Railroad is paying the dues of every member of the Voluntary Relief Fund who is at the front, thus fully protecting his disablement and death benefit, in his absence.

July Weather Report

Mr. James R. Stewart, Co-operative Observer, at Princess Anne, Md., gives the following report of the weather for the month of July: Minimum temperature, 67 degrees, on the 13th; total precipitation, 5.62 inches; clear days, 3; partly cloudy, 16; cloudy, 12; thunder storms on the 11th, 22nd and 23rd; prevailing wind, southwest; fog on the 30th.

To say that figures never lie may be a mere figure of speech.

TROOPS CAN'T VOTE

Marylanders Disfranchised If Congress Doesn't Act

The 2500 Maryland Guardsmen now on the Texas border will not be able to participate in the general election for President and Congressmen if they remain on duty until election time unless Congress passes an act granting them that privilege, said attorney General Ritchie in discussing the subject.

Mr. Ritchie recalled that New Jersey and some other States have made provision whether National Guardsmen can have their votes recorded, though they are not able to cast their ballots in their home State on election day, but that no such provision has been made by the Legislature in this State.

"However, I understand that a measure is before Congress," said Mr. Ritchie, "providing that the votes of the guardsmen be recorded, should they still be at the border at election time. In that event, of course, the Maryland troops would have a voice in the selection of President and Congressmen; otherwise they will be disfranchised for the time being."

The Wicomico Fair

Great interest is now centered in the Wicomico Fair which is scheduled for Tuesday, Wednesday, Thursday and Friday, August 15th, 16th, 17th and 18th, and which it is believed will be visited by record-breaking crowds.

The members of the Wicomico Fair Association have made gigantic efforts to have this year's fair the best ever, and there is every indication that their efforts have not been in vain.

Arrangements have been made for special attractions at the fair grounds and of course there will be the usual exhibits with handsome prizes awarded to the winning entrants.

Wednesday and Thursday as usual will be the big days of the fair, and it is on these days that the biggest crowds are expected.

Donald Whaley Dead

Donald Whaley, aged 21 years, of Belhaven, Va., a fireman on the New York, Philadelphia and Norfolk Railroad, died at the Peninsula General Hospital, Salisbury, from internal injuries sustained at Bloxom Station Monday morning of last week, where he attempted to mount his engine while in motion.

In jumping the engine his ankle turned on a piece of the stone ballast, causing him to lose his hold and he was thrown under the engine when one of his kidneys was mashed and other internal injuries sustained. The young man was rushed to the hospital at Salisbury on a special train and Dr. H. S. Wailes, the railroad's surgeon, was summoned, but the injured man was so weak that he died from shock. The body was taken to his late home Tuesday evening.

Would Whitewash Road Culverts

E. Austin Baughman, State Automobile Commissioner, has a proposition to submit to Governor Harrington, by which the State Roads Commission shall have all the culverts on all the state roads whitewashed.

Colonel Baughman said: "I am convinced that accidents which are daily occurring along the state highways will be reduced to a minimum, by the outlay of a very small sum of money and little labor. From my observation I have found that these culverts by reason of weather conditions and the action of the oil which is used on the State roads, have caused these concrete bridges to assume a color so closely resembling the roads that it is next to an impossibility for autoists to distinguish them at night."

"If these were white-washed all autoists lights would quickly pick up the white objects where now it is next to impossible to do so. I will also call the Road Commission's attention to the appearance of high weeds and grass which have, in many cases, entirely obscured these culverts. Recently I witnessed an accident in Frederick county, where a driver of a machine in attempting to pass another car, ran into a culvert which was entirely hidden by weeds and the heavy undergrowth."

Worcester's Big Wheat Shipment

The steamer Tangier made an extra trip to Snow Hill Tuesday morning in order to take away the consignment of wheat which she was unable to carry on her return trip to Baltimore Sunday. There were 3,000 bushels of wheat in the shipment, which reached Baltimore in time to strike the market on a rise, wheat being quoted on Wednesday at 80 cents per bushel to $1.16, according to quality and grade.

Mrs. Fannie Sudler and Mrs. William Brown and daughter, are visiting Mrs. Walter Brewington, in Salisbury.

First Shakespeare Festival.
The vandal act of Parson Castrell in cutting down a mulberry tree believed to have been planted in Shakespeare's garden by Shakespeare's own hand led directly to the first Shakespeare festival. The mulberry tree, felled by an "act of Gothic barbarity," as Boswell termed it, was bought by a carpenter, who cut it up into "Shakespeare relics" in the form of caskets and tea caddies, snuff boxes and standishes. One of these mulberry tree boxes, inclosing the freedom of the borough, was sent by the corporation of Stratford on Avon to David Garrick with the request that he should in turn forward his own portrait to be "placed near that of his favorite author, in perpetual remembrance of both."

Garrick was immensely flattered by this homage from Shakespeare's town and acknowledged the compliment by undertaking the arrangement of a grand jubilee in honor of the poet. This, the first Stratford commemoration, was held on three September days in 1769. To prepare for it at least 100 fine old trees were cut down "in order to enlarge the prospect."

Palo Alto.
The battle of Palo Alto, fought on May 8, 1846, on a Texas prairie about eight miles northeast of Matamoros, was the first important struggle in the war between the United States and Mexico. General Taylor, marching with less than 2,800 American troops from Point Isabel toward Fort Brown, encountered a Mexican army of about 6,000, commanded by General Arista. Shortly after noon the battle was opened by the Mexican artillery and cavalry. After fighting five hours the Mexicans gave way and retreated in great disorder, their losses being 102 killed, 127 wounded and many more missing. The Americans lost four killed and 127 wounded. During the battle Major Ringgold of the American flying artillery, which had much to do with winning the victory, was mortally wounded by a small cannon ball which passed through both of his thighs. He died four days later at Point Isabel.

He Owned Up.
"Young man," said the stern parent, with the accent on the "young," "do you intend to stay here all night holding my daughter's hand and looking her in the face like a sick calf?"
"No, sir."
"What do you intend to do, then?"
"Well, I had thought when you did us the kindness to retire I would put my arm around her waist, and if she did not object too forcibly I might risk a kiss."—London Mail.

Then Something Happened.
The hobo from the city has different ideas from the farmer as to working hours. The Country Gentleman says that a hobo got a job from a farmer in the busy season. He worked till 9:30, then had his supper. At 4 the next morning he was called to get up. He ate a hearty breakfast, then started upstairs again, saying, "This is the best place I ever worked—two sleepers in one night and back to bed again."

Those Funny Minstrel Men.
Sambo—Say, you know Artie?
Jumbo—Sure, I know Artie.
Sambo—Well, you know Artie eats awful fast.
Jumbo—Yes? Does Artie strangle?
Sambo—No; Artie chokes.
Mr. Ump, our shiver tongued tenor, will now sing that touching ballad "Oh, the Dog Disliked the Baby, So They Gave the Child Away."—Brunonian.

Robin Redbreast.
The familiar name of "robin redbreast" is now borne in North America by a large red breasted thrush, in the island of Jamaica by a tiny crimson throated kingfisher and in British Guiana by a ground starling which presents the suggestive coloring.

PRACTICAL HEALTH HINT.
Flexner on Infantile Paralysis.
Dr. Simon Flexner of the Rockefeller Institute, speaking on infantile paralysis, says:
"The virus of infantile paralysis is a micro-organism causing it is termed, exists constantly in the central nervous organs and upon the mucous membrane of the nose and throat and of the intestines in persons suffering from the disease. The virus enters the body as a rule, if not exclusively, by way of the mucous membrane of the nose and throat."
"The survival of the virus in the secretions is favored by weak daylight and darkness and hindered by bright daylight and sunshine. It is readily destroyed by exposure to sunlight."
"There exists at present no safe method of preventive inoculation or vaccination and no practical method of specific treatment. The prevention of the disease must be accomplished through general sanitary means. Recovery from the disease is a spontaneous process, which can be greatly assisted by proper medical and surgical care."
Dr. Flexner recommends great care in keeping persons and foods absolutely clean and free from flies and other insects and the utmost care in kissing, coughing and sneezing, as those acts are potent factors in distributing the germs of the disease.

BURNED LIME vs. LIME CARBONATE
The greatest authority on lime in the United States, Dr. Cyril G. Hopkins, of the University of Illinois, under date of December 1, 1915, says:
"No trustworthy investigations support the use of burned lime in preference to natural lime carbonate, such as ground pulverized shells, limestone or marl. On many soils a moderate use of burned lime, in connection with the liberal use of farm manures, yields profitable returns, which, no doubt, would be still more profitable if the burned lime were replaced with carbonate in equivalent amount and of proper fineness."

MARVELS OF SCIENCE.

In Wondering at the New Ones Don't Forget the Railroad.

The most recent mysteries of science are the ones that receive most attention. The air is full of talk nowadays about the thrilling wonders of wireless telegraph and aviation and subterranean transportation and submarine navigation. And very rightly, for these are marvels. But for that matter so are some of the things which we have gradually grown so used to that we never see them at all.

There is the railroad. Plenty of romantic mystery is to be found in the railroad yard of a great terminal. It is, first of all, a network of steel pathways which seems unbreakable. Trains come and go by devious ways; semaphore arms rise or fall in that one rectangular gesture of theirs. The providence that shapes the ends of all this takes the form of men tugging at some very prosaic looking levers in switch towers.

To get still another effect look at the yard by night, when great limiteds come surging through the dark, when the only guides are pieces of multi-colored switch and signal lamps. The cars of night freights being made up trundle about, and the yard never sleeps. In its way it is as full of life as the jungle. Every locomotive is a dragon harnessed to man's service.

The marvels of science are all about us, and the ones we have grown used to are just as remarkable as those of today and tomorrow.—Collier's.

MARK TWAIN STORIES.

Humorist's Wit.

England fairly reveled in Mark Twain. At one of the great banquets a roll of the distinguished guests was called and the names properly applauded. Mark Twain, busily engaged in low conversation with his neighbor, applauded without listening, vigorously or mildly as the others led. Finally a name was followed by a great burst of long and vehement clapping. This must be some very great person indeed, and Mark Twain, not to be outdone in his approval, stoutly kept his hands going until all the others had finished.

"Whose name was that we were just applauding?" he asked of his neighbor.

"Mark Twain's."

But it was no matter—they took it all as one of his jokes. He was a wonder and a delight to them. Whatever he did or said was to them supremely amusing. When on one occasion a speaker humorously referred to his American habit of carrying a cotton umbrella, his reply that he did so because it was the only kind of an umbrella that an Englishman wouldn't steal was repeated all over England next day as one of the finest examples of wit since the days of Swift.—Paine's "Boys' Life of Mark Twain" in St. Nicholas.

USE OF THE TOOTHBRUSH.

It Was Unknown In England In Lord Chesterfield's Time.

When did the English first adopt the toothbrush habit, which in recent times has been denounced by certain medical authorities? In "Esmond" Thackeray makes Lord Castlewood spend "a tenth part of his day in the brushing of his teeth and the oiling of his hair," and in doing so the novelist commits a double anachronism.

During the first half of the eighteenth century all fine gentlemen wore wigs and had no use for oil on their hair, while the toothbrush was so late as 1734 unknown to Lord Chesterfield. Writing to his son, Chesterfield says:

"I hope you take great care of your mouth and teeth and that you clean them well every morning with a sponge and tepid water, with a few drops of argemone water dropped into it. I do insist upon your never using those sticks or any hard substance whatever, which always rub away the gums and destroy the varnish of the teeth."—London Saturday Review.

Poisoning as a Diversion.

Poisoning is never likely again to become a fashionable diversion, as it was from time to time in ancient Rome. In B. C. 331, for instance, there was a mysterious pestilence which seemed to be particularly fatal to leading men. At last a slave girl gave information to the authorities, and a consequent police raid resulted in the discovery of about twenty matrons, some of them of high patrician families, busily preparing drugs over a fire. They insisted that the drugs were not poisonous, but, being compelled to drink them publicly in the forum as a guarantee of good faith, perished miserably. Further information followed, and 170 matrons in all were condemned. But this record was soundly beaten in B. C. 184, when a four months' inquiry by the praetor is said to have led to the condemnation of 2,000 persons.

A Resourceful Badger.

An English artist while painting a sea piece discovered a badger's lair and thought to play the animal a practical joke. Gathering together a bundle of grass and weeds, he placed it inside the mouth of the hole and, lighting it with a match, waited for the ignominious flight of the astonished householder. But Master Badger was a resourceful animal and not disposed to be made a butt of practical jokers. He came up from the depths of his hole as soon as the penetrating smoke told him that there was a fire on the premises and deliberately scratched earth on the burning grass with his strong claws until all danger was past. No human being could have grasped the situation more quickly or displayed greater skill in dealing with an unfamiliar event.

The First Stock Exchange.

The Stock Exchange did not call itself by that name till nearly the end of the eighteenth century. A newspaper of July 15, 1773, tells us how the name of their place of business was altered by resolution from "New Jonathan's" to "The Stock Exchange" which is to be wrote over the door. The brokers then collected sixpence each and christened the house with punch.—London Chronicle.

His Begging Letter.

Poet—There goes a notorious and confirmed begging letter writer. Friend—What! Why, I thought that chap was an editor. Poet—Well, he has written me at least a dozen letters begging me not to send him any more of my stuff.—Puck.

Helping the Diagnosis.

Doctor—My dear lady, you are in perfect health. I can't find a thing the matter with you. Patient—I wish you'd try again, doctor. I do so want to go away to recuperate.—Century.

Mysterious.

First Flapper—I can't imagine how that secret leaked out. Second Ditto—Nor I. I am sure every one I told promised to say nothing about it.—London Passing Show.

THE JOYS OF A RIOT

By M. QUAD

Copyright, 1915, by the McClure Newspaper Syndicate.

The cop and I had been driven into a doorway by a shower when he said: "I am going home in about an hour, now, and I'll be one thankful man. I said home, but it was a misnomer. What sort of a home has a patrolman got? Well, it's a place where you go to when you can't go anywhere else. Your wife and children are almost strangers to you."

"I thought it was a pretty good job," I replied. "There's a pretty good salary and your pension when you have reached a certain age."

"Pretty good job!" he exclaimed in contempt. "Why, man, a longshoreman or a ditch digger is not as tired when his hours of labor have passed and he is not so bungled up at the end of a year. It's walk, walk, walk until there is no more feeling in your feet. It's watch, watch, watch until your eyes need spectacles. It's worry and trouble every hour you're on duty."

"But I have seen a patrolman smile and laugh," I protested.

"So have I, and I smile and laugh myself, but the occasions have been few and far between. I have come into the station house when relieved at my post so exhausted that a man could have pushed me over with his fingers. I have piled into bed and shut my eyes and just got a dream running through my head when the call came. It was a call for us to turn out and be mighty prompt about it. There was a riot going on half a mile away. The waiters in a certain restaurant were on a strike and they were smashing things up in a beautiful manner. A crowd of outsiders was collected and encouraging them and taking part in the smashing. Then, my son, is when you have seen the patrolman smile and laugh. His chance was coming to get even. We smiled and laughed as we tumbled into the wagon and all weariness and all desire for sleep vanished away."

"I said our chance had come to get even. The strikers had made it hard for us, but we want a show at something or somebody to pay off old scores. When you can't strike a man who has buffeted and humiliated you you turn and kick his dog or somebody else's dog to get even. The horses go away at a gallop."

"We jump out and form in line, and the crowd laughs and hoots at us. We get the word to advance in line, and we select the biggest men and those who are hooting the loudest. The rioters give way for a moment and then hold their ground. Every man of them is armed with a brickbat, cobblestone or stick, and they are just as anxious for a fight as we are. We do not seek to kill, but they are ready to take life."

"Crash! And we are into them. We strike for their heads, their arms, their hands, their knees and any other part which will take the fight out of them. They grapple with us. They seize us by the arms, the legs, and try to grasp our nightsticks. Sometimes there is only one opposing you, sometimes there are five or six climbing over you like a pack of wolves. Even if you were a coward you cannot get away. You have got to stand up and face it and take your medicine."

"There is a joy in it, my son, more joy than a soldier feels in battle. The best man is going to win in that row. You are hit with brickbats a dozen times a minute, but you don't feel the hurts until afterward. You are knocked down by some missile striking you in the face, but you don't stop to wipe away the blood—you keep facing on. From your prone position you strike out with your club at the knees and shins around you, and many a man will limp for the next month."

"Up comes more wagons and more men from other stations, and we begin to drive that crowd. Some run away; some seek refuge in doorways; some mount to the roofs and from those vantage points continue to hurl brickbats down upon us. The row lasts half an hour. At the end of that time some rioter raises a call, and the street is cleared in a minute—no, not cleared. There are fifty men down and in need of a surgeon's care. They are the wounded of the battle. Every one has shed his blood for what he deems is the principle of the thing. If you could see those fifty laid out side by side, with three or four surgeons rendering first aid, you would be shocked."

"And how about us? Some have to be carried to the wagon and bundled in most any way, and those who have escaped the lightest have a bad limp at least. There is hardly a uniform that is not ripped and torn and tattered. The men have bruised faces, bleeding hands and bruised bodies. Every one of us needs the surgeon's care as soon as we reach the station. There is no boasting about what this man or that man has done, but there is victory in the eyes of every one. We have paid off old scores. We get even for fifty humiliations. We get leave of absence for three days, and then we are to be back and as good as new. I tell you, my son, curious as it may seem to you and others, that the greatest joy in a patrolman's life is to be one in a riot like that."

There was a silence of two or three minutes, and the shower passed away, and the cop added:

"Well, I must be tramping the old beat again or the roundsman will sneak up on me. Oh, there are a few joys in a patrolman's life, and one of them is when he has to fight for his life and when he knows he is putting up a scrap which the bravest man on the force could feel proud of."

London's Backward Suburb.

Wimbledon proved itself in one respect the most backward of London suburbs. Until 1902 the streets of Wimbledon were still lit by oil, and the lamplighter could be seen every evening making his rounds, with his ladder on his shoulder. The Wimbledon lamplighter used matches instead of tinder and steel, but otherwise his methods were the same as those pursued by his predecessors in the days of Queen Anne.—London Mail.

Penalty of Laziness.

Head of Department—What's this lying on my desk? The last dunning letter received from my tailor, duly initiated by all my clerks. Oh, dear! What have I done? Actually sent it around to be duly noted by the whole staff without taking the trouble to look at it!—Fliegende Blätter.

The Fruit of Search.

"Smifkins went hunting for a peach for a wife."
"Well, what happened?"

HOW WILL HE WORK IT OUT?

Judge Charles E. Hughes, who is the Republican candidate for President, last week delivered his reply of acceptance. The reply shows long consideration. His reflections upon the Wilson administration operate as an appeal to the Republican party, whose forces are far from anything like a happy union. It is true that Colonel Roosevelt was present, but the Progressive Republicans are far from assenting to Judge Hughes' asseverations; on the contrary there is considerable talk of an alliance with the Democratic party in favor of the retention of President Wilson.

Judge Hughes, after years of weighing and balancing in legal matters, has drifted into the ways of the average politician. His address is absolutely one-sided and whilst overhauling the Wilson policies it fails to state specifically how, if elected President, he expects to improve matters. There is a strong spice of generality in his address that savors but little of real special pleading. America is to be efficient, he exclaims, but he fails to tell how that efficiency is to be accomplished. How does he expect to work out his problem?

Republican papers state that such questions as "What would you have done if you had been in his place?" are to be absolutely disregarded. Such questions, however, will come up and Democratic and independent voters will not disregard them. We might even go further and inquire of Judge Hughes, "What do you expect to do, if elected President?" This question he has glossed over and it remains unanswered except in the general way that Republicanism is to make America efficient. The present prosperous condition of the United States today is a sufficient reply to such a proposition and it has been wrought out by Democrats.

There never was a period when affairs, domestic and foreign, were in worse shape than when President Wilson assumed office. During his term he has been beset by conditions that would have driven Roosevelt to war. In their midst President Wilson has shown a coolness that is wonderful. We have been kept from war and our honor is spotless. Peace loving people will remember these things. Judge Hughes' efficiency might mean war and bloodshed.

President Wilson need have little fears of an address couched in terms that show little of the judge but much of the politician. Our country is already efficient. It has shown its determination to remain efficient. No Republican President is needed to swerve it from its efficient course.

Is Wealth Really Increasing?

What, after all, does it signify when we say that we are ninety-nine billion dollars richer than we were 12 years ago? Does it mean that we have proportionately more lands and mines and homes and railroads and automobiles? Does it mean that we have saved all these billions from our income and reinvested them in our national business? So stupendous a saving has never been known in any country or in any age. It would mean that during these last 12 years we had accumulated at a rate almost four times as rapid as was our rate of accumulation during the previous 20 years. We should be saving more in one year than the total estimated wealth of the entire nation in 1850. It is not at all probable that this new increment in our wealth represents saving. Perhaps one-quarter or one-third—no one knows how much—does take the form of new and improved farms, railways, factories, houses. A greater part, however, is not new investment at all, but mere revaluation. It represents a higher price which we place upon a property which itself has not changed.—New Republic.

Mr. Hughes' Speech

Mr. Hughes' long address of acceptance contains but one-half pennyworth of the bread of definite statement and proposed action to an intolerable deal of the sack of generalities that do not even glitter. His definition of dominant Americanism and his demand for the unflinching maintenance of our rights recall Mr. Roosevelt's sneer that the difference between Mr. Wilson and Mr. Hughes could be removed with a razor.

There are very few statements of fact, and some of these are errors, and some are intentionally misleading. Among the latter is the statement that all the mobile regulars and all the State troops are assembled on the frontier to guard against raids by bandits. Mr. Hughes knows perfectly well that the National Guard was called out because the de facto Government of Mexico demanded that our punitive expedition be withdrawn, and threatened to attack it if it were not. The President called out the National Guard to reinforce the regular army in view of Carranza's threat, a threat which he promptly withdrew as soon as he saw the State troops appearing on the border.

We have read this speech carefully for some plain statement of what the President ought to have done, or ought not to have done. The only one we can find is that the President ought to have recognized Huerta. That the Government of the United States pledged to the maintenance of a Government by the people, of the people and for the people, should have given its moral support to this blood-stained military despot in opposition to a revolution aimed at the establishment of popular government is a monstrous proposition. We gather from the diffuse remarks of the Republican candidate that the Democratic party is responsible for the disorders in Mexico which began two and a half years before Mr. Taft retired from office. Apparently, also, Mr. Hughes thinks that if a country is without a strong and settled Government under which life and property are safe, it is the duty of the United States to conquer that country and establish a better Government.

"What does it avail," asks the Republican candidate, to use some of the strongest words used in diplomacy if Ambassadors can receive the impression that the words are not to be taken seriously?" If any such incident occurred Mr. Hughes ought in honesty to have added that the Secretary of State and the Ambassador referred to had to retire from office a long time ago. Mr. Hughes' notion that if something else had been done "there would have been no destruction of American lives by the sinking of the Lusitania," is either dishonest or childish. Germany would not have been deterred from embarking on the submarine campaign by anything we could have said, no matter how it was said, but in the end the President won a notable diplomatic triumph in the German concessions in reply to our demands after the attack on the Sussex, since which time the submarine campaign has been largely in abeyance. In the language of an English writer, "Mr. Wilson's note did the trick."

We learn furthermore that Mr. Hughes is in favor of a protective tariff and woman suffrage. His promise of a rural credits measure is a little superfluous, as the Democrats have already enacted that. The greater part of the speech is an effort to begot the political issues by describing a millennial state that will result from electing him President. Everybody is in favor of the millennium. Political issues relate to the means of attaining it. Except for the tariff, Mr. Hughes is exceedingly careful not to disclose his means of attaining that blessed state of universal virtue and happiness.—Philadelphia Record.

Minnie Thornton vs. Samuel Thornton.
In the Circuit Court for Somerset County, No. 3105 Chancery.

The object of this suit is to procure a decree divorcing the plaintiff from the defendant, a vinculo matrimonii.

The bill states that the plaintiff and the defendant were married on the tenth day of February, 1909, and lived together in Somerset county until the thirtieth day of June, 1912; that though the conduct of the plaintiff towards the defendant was always kind and affectionate and above reproach, the said defendant, without any just cause or reason, abandoned and deserted the plaintiff and declared his intention to live with her no longer, and that such abandonment has continued uninterrupted for at least three years, and is deliberate and final, and the separation of the parties beyond any reasonable expectation of reconciliation; that one child was born to the said parties from said marriage; that the plaintiff has been a resident of Somerset county, continuously, since February, 1910, and that the defendant is a resident of the city of Philadelphia, in the State of Pennsylvania.

It is thereupon, this 20th day of July, 1916, ordered by the Circuit Court for Somerset county, in equity, that the plaintiff, by causing a copy of this order to be inserted in some newspaper published in Somerset county once in each of four successive weeks before the 18th day of August next, give notice to the said non-resident defendant of the object and substance of this bill, warning him to be and appear in this court in person, or by solicitor, on or before the first day of September next, to show cause, if any he has, why a decree ought not to pass as prayed.

IT AFFORDS ME GREAT PLEASURE to testify to the merits of the Salisbury College of business. The instruction I received at the hands of the excellent teachers of this institution has enabled me to perform all duties assigned me with an ease that is a pleasure. Fortunately, I had the opportunity to take both the Shorthand and the Commercial courses, and the time and money spent while doing this could not have been used to a better advantage. I feel that every young man, no matter what vocation he expects to pursue, should by all means be equipped with the training received in the Commercial Course. I recommend very strongly the Salisbury College of Business to any one desiring a thorough and practical business education.

OUR ABUSED FEET

Many Ills Come From Wearing the Wrong Kind of Shoes.

THEN, TOO, WE SHOULD TOE IN

That is the Natural Way to Walk or Run, as It Puts the Strain Where It Belongs, While Toeing Out Impairs the Bones and Breeds Trouble.

Corns, ingrowing nails, crooked toes, bunions, spreading feet, arch trouble, aching feet are all caused by toeing out while walking. It is not natural for those who start with normal feet to toe out.

It is natural to toe in, not far in, but just inside of a line straight ahead. All children toe in, nearly all youths toe in. Some people toe in all their lives, but they are few. All barefooted people toe in. All moccasined Indians toe in. No one can run without toeing in. No speed can be made without doing so. By toeing in the spring of the foot comes from all the small bones of the front part of the foot. When one toes out he is trying to walk on the inner side of the foot.

Why does toeing out cause trouble? Because the strain upon the foot in walking is greater than it should be. It inclines the first two bones of the big toe toward the smaller toes by degrees, until the spring finally comes from the inner side of the big toe and its second joint. This undue strain on the second joint is constantly pulling it inward and away from the smaller bones. As the strain continues the tissues and ligaments that bind the bones in the forefoot together stretch and give way, and finally it becomes separated somewhat and bulges out into what is called a bunion. A bunion is a partial dislocation.

At this stage of impairment the bones connecting with the smaller toes across the ball of the foot settle down, and what is called the transverse arch is impaired. There are two arches in the foot—a longitudinal arch, with which every one is familiar, and the transverse arch across the ball of the foot from side to side. It is the transverse arch that is first affected, and it is at this stage of foot trouble that most people begin to complain and look for help.

Why did those who toe out do so in the first place when it is natural to toe in? The real reason was because they wore shoes. Barefooted people do not toe out, so the shoe is the cause. Shoes are habitually too short and too narrow across the end of the toes, and the long, pointed toe of the shoe helps to prevent toeing naturally. The big toe is strong and monopolizes the limited space; the small toes, being weaker, are crushed in narrowed quarters until their natural symmetry is gone. They are crowded backward by a shoe too short until the ends are curled under and their nails point toward the ground instead of straight ahead. The first two joints of the third and fourth toes are forced upward, and the third joint is pushed down farther and farther as the tissues supporting it become more and more stretched by the pressure from above and the forced spreading of the bones of the foot.

The third bone of the third toe at this stage stands almost straight up and down in the shoe. The result is a corn on top and pain in the foot from the pressure and sometimes a corn or thickening on the bottom of the foot just under the third joint of the third toe. At this stage there are ingrowing nails, due to the sidewise pressure of the shoe, that also are painful, so the sufferer begins to toe out to prevent the pressure pain that would occur from the sore and otherwise impaired small toes if he toed in as he should.

The most sensible covering ever made for the feet is the moccasin of the American Indian, worn without a stocking. Sandals also are good. The sneakers of children and tennis shoes with pliable rubber soles are next best. Shoes should be so constructed that it will be difficult, if not impossible, to toe out. A line drawn through the length of the big toe of a normal foot backward will strike the heel near the inner edge. Shoes should not compress the toes to alter this line in children. However the toes may have been pressed out of shape, the shoes of adults when made of leather with an unyielding sole should extend straight forward well past the end of the big toe and outward past the third toe and then slope backward past the little toe to the outer ball of the foot. In a shoe so shaped the wearer will find it difficult to toe out; the big toe will have its share of room. The sole should be flat, both from side to side and from end to end, so the arch has room to settle down as required with each step to furnish the necessary spring. The heel may be made snug and provision made for a snug fit across the instep to prevent the heel from slipping. There should be no lift on the heel except just enough to raise it level with the sole, and this lift should be of rubber.

The right kind of a shoe will be a queer looking thing as we now see things, for in place of the offending pointed toe it will look more like the blade of a paddle. It will not be stiff and unyielding. It will be from three to five inches across the ball of the foot. Fashion is whimsical, and such a shoe when it becomes regular may be considered beautiful.—Dr. Arthur R. Reynolds in American Magazine.

The only thing many a man has done in the past is to dream of the future.—New York Times.

WHY YOU ARE NERVOUS

The nervous system is the alarm system of the human body. In perfect health we hardly realize that we have a network of nerves, but when health is ebbing, when strength is declining, the same nervous system gives the alarm in headaches, tiredness, dreamful sleep, irritability and unless corrected, leads straight to a breakdown.

To correct nervousness, Scott's Emulsion is exactly what you should take; its rich nutriment gets into the blood and rich blood feeds the tiny nerve-cells while the whole system responds to its refreshing tonic force. It is free from alcohol. Scott & Bowne, Bloomfield, N. J.

Mexico's Tiny Church. Mexico, for a country that is so poor, boasts some wonderful big and fine churches, and it also has what is claimed to be the smallest church in the world.

It is situated at Penon, near the City of Mexico, and is a rude affair, yet it serves all purposes, as the local population is small. It has a "seating capacity" of about ten, though there are in fact no seats. The place is a favorite one for wedding ceremonies, though the altar is so small that only the couple to be married can stand in front of it.

The average person has to stoop in entering the door, but that encourages humility and is a good thing. The little edifice is crowned with two miniature towers with a bell in each, and these bells are rung as ceremoniously as those of the famous cathedral in the capital city.—Pathfinder.

Ice Mine Freezes Only in Summer. At Coudersport, Pa., is the strangest mine in the world. It is an ice mine, which freezes in summer and thaws in winter. Charles Arthur Vandermuelen says in the Scientific American that it is a pit forty feet deep and from ten to twelve feet in diameter, up which pours a peculiar cold mist which comes from openings found all the way from the top to the bottom.

"As soon as warm weather arrives frost appears on the walls of the shaft and soon tiny icicles form rapidly, until in the warmest weather huge icicles, often two feet thick, reach from the top to the bottom of the mine." Geologists can offer no explanation. The owner built a shed over the mine, but had to tear it down because as soon as the sun's rays were cut off the ice melted. Its normal thaw sets in in October.

Orange Peel Oil is Explosive. Everybody knows the danger of an orange peel, but not everybody knows what causes that danger. It is due to the oil contained in little cells in the rind. If the peel is bent so as to strain these oil laden cells the oil bursts out often as a visible spray and usually perceptible to our sense of smell and often as a greasy film on the fingers. The peel may be so bent as to rupture a large number of these cells at one time and to fill the air with an oily mist. If at the moment of bending a lighted match is applied by an assistant a decided explosion will follow. This experiment is most successfully performed in a darkened room or in a room wholly dark except for the light from the match.—Popular Science Monthly.

Model Man. "I once knew an eccentric man," stated old Festus Pester, "who when he had got the desired number on the telephone did not demand fiercely, 'Whizz ziss?' Instead he invariably said civilly, 'This is John J. Poppendick wishing to speak to Mr. Buckover.' His funeral was the largest ever held in the neighborhood where he had resided, and thereat strong men broke down and wept like children, being convinced that they would never again see his like."—Judge.

Against Additional Expense. Young Mrs. Green (to neighbor)—"I'm having such trouble keeping our food. I bought a real nice looking refrigerator, but it doesn't seem to work well at all. Neighbor—Do you keep ice enough in it? Mrs. Green—Yes, I hope you don't think, after spending all that money on a refrigerator, we'd go to the additional expense of buying ice.—Boston Transcript.

Avoiding Discussion. "You must give your wife credit for knowing as much about the political situation as you do." "That's what I want to do," replied Mr. Growcher. "I want to give her credit for about everything without putting her to the trouble of explaining a single word."—Washington Star.

Girls and Giggles. "Beware of the girl who giggles," says a social settlement worker. Social settlement workers, who have exceptional opportunities for meeting many kinds of people, may actually know of girls who don't giggle.—New York Sun.

Somewhere. "Ah!" chorled the bore. "I thought I should find you somewhere, and—" "Yes," smiled old Festus Pester; "I am always there."—Judge.

TOLD IN FEW WORDS.

Some Famous Nominating Speeches in Presidential Campaigns.

On the third day of the 1860 convention when other business had been disposed of and nominations were in order Mr. Evans of New York in fewer than thirty words presented William H. Seward for the nomination. Mr. Judd of Illinois was equally brief in presenting Abraham Lincoln.

The names of William L. Dayton of New Jersey, of Simon Cameron of Pennsylvania, of Salmon P. Chase of Ohio, of Edward Bates of Missouri and of John McLean of Ohio were presented, but fewer than two dozen words were used in any instance.

It is not by elaborate and eloquent nominating speeches that the choice of presidential candidates is determined. The reasons influencing delegates are of a different character. But if speeches must be made a reasonable brevity will make them all the more effective.

Two of the best remembered nominating speeches ever made in a national convention were by Robert G. Ingersoll for Blaine in 1876 and by Daniel Dougherty nominating Hancock in 1880—one a Republican, the other a Democrat—and neither speech occupied more than ten minutes in delivery.—Philadelphia Telegraph.

BURIED IN SECRET.

Two Famous Kings Whose Last Resting Places Are Unknown.

Two ancient kings were buried in secret. Attila, king of the Huns, after his siege of Rome, died in Hungary A. D. 453. His soldiers, desirous of giving their great leader a royal burial, inclosed his body first in a casket of gold, this in one of silver and this in one of lead, and transported it into a desert. There slaves were selected, and under the direction of men who were sworn to secrecy they dug the grave of the dead monarch. When this was accomplished no traces of the spot were left. The slaves were all cruelly slain.

Alaric, king of the Goths, the celebrated conqueror of Rome, died when with his army at Cozenza, south Italy. His men turned the course of a river, interred the body of their sovereign, with much treasure, in its bed and restored the stream to its channel.

No man has ever lighted on the resting place of either of these kings, who in this respect resemble Moses, of whom it is written, "No man knoweth of his sepulchre unto this day."—London Standard.

Poor Thackeray! Sir William Howard Russell's diary for April, 1852, has this amusing glimpse of Thackeray:

"The sportsman among whom I had the honor to be numbered was of the Winkle order. Thackeray, Dickens, John Beech, Jerrold, Lemon, Ibbotson, were invited, and carriages were reserved to Watford. As we were starting a written excuse was brought from Dickens to be conveyed to Mr. X. by Thackeray. The party drove up to the house, and after compliments Thackeray delivered the billet. The effect was unpleasant. Mr. X. fled along the hall, and the guests heard her calling to the cook: 'Martin, don't roast the ortolans. Mr. Dickens isn't coming.'"

"Thackeray said he never felt so small. 'There's a test of popularity for you! No ortolans for Penderennis!'"

Protection From Lightning. Sir Oliver Lodge stated that the problem of securing protection from lightning consisted in finding the best method of dissipating the enormous energy of the flash, but that it was not wise to get rid of the energy too quickly. A thin iron wire is considered the best lightning conductor from the electrical point of view, but it is almost impossible to protect a building from lightning unless it is completely enveloped in a metal cage. It is by no means true that a building is safe when provided with a conductor reaching up to the highest part of the building.

Contradictory. "Brevity is the soul of wit," observed the sage. "Maybe," replied the fool, "but I never feel very witty when I am short."—Milwaukee Sentinel.

The Frog Industry

Swenson Earle, Chief Engineer of the Conservation Commission of Maryland, is making an investigation as to the possibilities of creating a new industry in the state by catching bullfrogs and marketing same.

"In Maryland," said Mr. Earle recently, according to the Baltimore American, "there are many streams and fresh water ponds where the bullfrog thrives and where they can be caught in paying quantities."

"As the outlay necessary to take these frogs from the waters is practically little or nothing, while the return in the way of profit is many hundred fold, thousands of dollars could be made by the citizens of the state from this undeveloped industry. That frog-catching will pay here one has only to look at the recent report of the Conservation Commission of the State of Louisiana."

"While in Louisiana in 1914 my attention was called to the frog industry, which had developed to large proportions. The following is taken from a recent report from the State of Louisiana:

"The frog industry was worth approximately $110,000 to this state for the calendar year ending December 31, 1915, a gain of $10,000 over the year 1913."

"According to the most reliable and available information that we have regarding this product, there were 1,000,000 frogs shipped out of the state in the year 1915, 100,000 used in New Orleans and about as many consumed elsewhere in the state. Early in the season Louisiana frogs sold at from $1 to $1.50 per dozen; in midsummer from 50 to 75 cents per dozen."

Hughes For Woman Suffrage

Charles E. Hughes, Republican nominee for President, in answer to a telegram from Senator George Sutherland, of Utah, asking the nominee to define his personal position in regard to the equal suffrage Federal amendment, replied as follows:

"Your telegram has been received. In my answer to the notification I did not refer to the proposed Federal amendment relating to woman suffrage, as this was not mentioned in the platform. I have no objection, however, to stating my personal views. As I said in my speech, I think it to be most desirable that the question of woman suffrage should be settled promptly. The question is of such a nature that it should be settled for the entire country."

"My view is that the proposed amendment should be submitted and ratified and the subject removed from political discussion."

The Best Laxative

When a medicine is needed take Chamberlain's Tablets. They are pleasant to take and mild and gentle in effect. Obtainable everywhere.

The Outlook

There are just 13 states which are as certain as events political can be to cast their electoral votes for Mr. Wilson. These are Alabama, Arkansas, Florida, Georgia, Kentucky, Louisiana, Mississippi, North Carolina, Oklahoma, South Carolina, Tennessee, Texas and Virginia. Their total electoral vote amounts to 149, 117 short of an electoral college majority.

Other states which are practically as safe to the President as those above named are Arizona, New Jersey, Indiana, Colorado, Nevada, Missouri, California, Montana, Maryland and West Virginia, or a total of 88. Of these, all except California, Maryland and West Virginia, have each, at present, two United States Senators. Those last mentioned have divided senatorial representation.

The following, by all the logic of conditions, considering the vote as distributed in 1912 amongst the three leading presidential candidates, may be regarded as at worst doubtful, but really leaning heavily in the direction of the Democratic candidates: Maine, Illinois, Ohio, Delaware, Connecticut, Idaho, Iowa, Kansas, Massachusetts, Michigan, Minnesota, Nebraska, New Mexico, New York, North Dakota, Oregon, South Dakota, even Utah, Washington, Wisconsin and Wyoming.

In other words, with anything like a fair share of the breaks of the game, there will occur in November, the second of a series of landslides for national Democratic nominees.

Just The Thing For Diarrhoea

"About two years ago I had a severe attack of diarrhoea which lasted over a week," writes W. C. Jones, Buford, N. D. "I became so weak that I could not stand upright. A druggist recommended Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy. The first dose relieved me and within two days I was as well as ever." Many druggists recommended this remedy because they know that it is reliable. Obtainable everywhere.

THE GREAT SALISBURY FAIR

AUGUST 15, 16, 17, 18

There is no form of entertainment older or more interesting than that of the "big country fair." Other feats and fancies may come and go, but this holds its place in the affections of the people. Here those who have been separated during the past year gather in the grounds and renew old friendships and acquaintances. One meets almost everyone that one most wishes to see. The Great Salisbury Fair, owing to its large attendance, is especially the gathering grounds of friends, relatives and acquaintances.

The season is again here and with it comes attractive midways and the daring feats of performers in various kinds of thrilling scenes. The attractive shows, the race track filled with spirited horses all a-quiver with the spirit of the race; the motorcycle men going at a speed which makes one hold their breath, these with the exhibits of fancy work; the delicacies of the household, the flowers, its livestock and all the things that go to make up a big and successful Fair will be found, as usual, here. The attractions will be found to be of the same high-grade that the Association has ever endeavored to give to its patrons, and are among the best in their respective lines that are engaged in work of this character.

HUMAN SPIRAL ACT

This is a thrilling act performed by two men at the top of a tall pole suspended some thirty feet in the air. The men are balanced on two big double circular loops and while thus suspended perform feats of whirling and balancing that are both very thrilling and sensational. Arranged in the form of a see-saw, one perched at each end, these men will revolve with lightning rapidity in the circular disc, placing themselves in all kinds of apparently impossible positions. This is no imitation act performed by cheap actors, but is the original one shown at the New York Hippodrome where it met with great success.

DUFFIN REDCAY TROUPE

Feats of agility are always amusing and entertaining, and the acrobatic stunts performed by the celebrated Duffin Redcay Troupe will be found among the best in this country. It is the only act in the world today that has succeeded in throwing a complete triple somersault landing upon the feet. This is a death-courting feat, yet this troupe guarantees to perform it once every act. It also introduces a double half and double full twisting somersault, both unusual and hard to perform. It is a wonderful flying and casting act and, as an additional feature, shows the sensational feat of looping the loop. This act alone would cost more to see than the admission to the Fair Grounds.

SKATING BEAR

Bears have been the favorite companion of men wandering through the country for many generations. There are few of the older people who do not recall in their boyhood days coming to their section a Man with a bear that danced and performed various tricks. The world has progressed since then and with it the training and education of the bear has kept pace. This year we have been able to secure a bear that performs wonderful feats on roller skates. It is said to be one of the most marvelous acts in the country. Interspersed with this act is all kinds of comedy, making it one of rollicking good humor fitted to amuse alike the young and the old.

OUR MIDWAY

Those who attended our Fair last year will vouch for the success of our new policy in regard to our Midway Shows. In common with other Fairs of this Section, we have in years past depended for our Midway Shows upon such as had made the habit of following the Circuit, and as a result obtained shows of a second or third quality. Recognizing that this was a handicap to the success of our Fair, the management decided last year to enter into a contract with one of the leading booking concerns of New York City for shows to place upon our Midway. As a result the people who visited our Fair last year were able to see shows refined, decent and of first-class quality as to their character and performance. This year this policy has been continued, and we have engaged the services of a New York firm and placed in their hands the question of providing shows for our Midway, and we feel certain that we can assure the people who visit us this season that in our Midway alone will be found attractions enough to amuse all who come.

MOTORCYCLE RACES

Of all the speed kings, the motorcycle takes the lead. Going at a pace that makes the steadiest head swim, these riders swing around in record-making time. It is unnecessary to call attention to the interest all take in seeing first-class men drive the motorcycle side by side. The Association has made special efforts to bring to the Fair the fastest riders that this country has. This year the entries for motorcycle races will be composed of men whose reputations are country-wide. Speed can be expected of such a quality as will thrill even the hardest to move.

HORSE RACING

Whatever may come and whatever may go, the horse remains as ever has been, the king of sports. The usual racing program will be carried out at this year's Fair, and there is every reason to believe that the entries this year will be up to the usual standard. Those loving close and exciting races cannot afford to miss the Fair this year.

SEASON TICKETS on sale at all Drug Stores in Salisbury, also at Paul Watson's Smoke House. PRICE: Season Ticket, good for one admission each day of Fair at Main Gates - - - - $1.00

NOTICE TO EXHIBITORS: Anyone wishing to exhibit in the various departments will please make their entry before Thursday, August 10th, as our books positively close on that date. All exhibits must be delivered on the Fair Grounds Monday, Aug. 14th.

In Session At Ocean City August 30 To September 7.

The twelfth annual Tri-County Institute will be held at Ocean City, Maryland, August 30th to September 7th. The opening session on Wednesday afternoon, August 30th, will be at the new Public School Building at 3 o'clock, and will be devoted to organization, grouping, etc. This session will count as a full day and every teacher is expected to be present.

The regular institute work will begin on Thursday morning and will continue through the week, Saturday included, from 9.30 a. m. to 12.30 p. m. The institute will close on Thursday, September 7th, at 11.30 a. m. Teachers will thus have two days to reach their homes and prepare for regular school work, which will begin on Monday morning, September 11th.

Ten-day excursion tickets can be purchased at all stations on the New York, Philadelphia and Norfolk Railroad. The Baltimore, Chesapeake and Atlantic Railway also sells excursion tickets in various forms. Teachers residing in Worcester county can also obtain the usual Summer excursion rates over the Pennsylvania Railroad. Trains on the N. Y., P. and N. Railroad leaving Princess Anne at 1.27 p. m. and Crisfield at 12.20 p. m. do not connect for Ocean City. The best trains are the early morning one from Crisfield and the 10.55 a. m. from Princess Anne.

The following instructors have been employed:

Prof. Thomas D. Eason, State Normal School, Farmville, Va.—Subjects, "Hygiene" and "Introduction to Science."

Miss Abby Porter Leland, Ph. D., Principal Elementary School, New York City—Subject, "Management and Methods from a Social Point of View."

Miss Margaret T. McGuire, Supervisor of Schools, Philadelphia, Pa.—Subject, "Principles and Methods in Elementary and High Schools."

Negro Suspected of Arson, Confesses
Detective Kratz, of Baltimore, went to Chestertown Tuesday night and accompanied by State's Attorney Harrison W. Vickers, put Arthur Johnson, colored, suspected of setting fire to the American Strawboard Stables early Tuesday morning, through a severe examination. As a result of the ordeal, Johnson confessed to having started three of the fires. He admitted discovering the blaze in J. Edward Loud's outbuildings and in W. Frank Jarrell's large straw rick, both near Chestertown, and the fire of the strawboard mill Tuesday morning. He denied having fired William Smith Hall, the new gymnasium and middle hall at Washington college.

Asked about the Washington College fire, Johnson said that he could not have set fire to these buildings because the doors were locked. Asked how he knew the doors were locked, Johnson said: "Now, don't ask me any more about that."

From the confession secured from Johnson, Detective Kratz and Attorney Vickers are convinced that Johnson is the man who has fired every building that has been mysteriously burned in Kent County within the past year and a half. Johnson has been held for court.

Oyster Cull Law Must Be Enforced
The Conservation Commission announces that when the oyster season opens in September the cull law will be strictly and rigidly enforced. Members of the commission frankly say that to enforce the law politics must be eliminated; that when the officers of the law enter one door the politicians must take an exit by another.

Those acquainted with the oyster industry in Maryland, its political ramifications and the solidity with which oystermen stand at elections for candidates endorsed by them hail from Missouri. They must be shown. The oysterman proceeds on the theory that if he does not today scoop up and sell undersized oysters some other fellow will catch those oysters tomorrow.

The Conservation Commission has expressed a determination that through the commander and deputy commanders of the oyster police force the cull law shall be most rigidly enforced.

All the deputy commanders were appointed among whom is Mr. Zakariah W. Webster, Jr., of Deal's Island, who has been put in command of the schooner Helen Baughman.

The new appointees have been requested to attend a meeting at the office of the commission on Wednesday August 23, at 11 a. m. in order to receive instructions.

TO INCREASE THE OYSTER SUPPLY

Conservation Commission To Survey Depleted Areas For This Purpose

The Conservation Commission of Maryland has been impressed with the need of increasing the supply of good oysters in tongs' areas, particularly where a congested condition has kept stock small, poor and of little marketable value.

Accordingly, it proposes to survey and mark off areas now depleted, but which are known to be good growing grounds and permit to be transplanted there in proper quantity and under its supervision, oysters to be tonged from certain congested areas.

For the purpose of demonstrating the value of this experiment and upon which to base future policies of conservation, it wishes the tongs to interest themselves in the matter and proposes that each tonger give a day to tonging from the prescribed area and transplanting to designated area the maximum number of bushels he can tong, without cost to the State, and to abstain from taking any oysters from the transplanted beds until the experiment shall have had time to demonstrate itself and notice be given by the Commission.

Tongers in every section where these conditions exist should get together and discuss it and if they desire action to be taken in their section to communicate with the Conservation Commission which will be glad to visit their section early in September and meet with them relative to putting it into effect.

Public School Notes

The following changes in public school teachers were made by the School Board last Tuesday, as recommended by the county superintendent: St. Peter's Creek School, Miss Rae M. Cox, to succeed Miss Olive Dashiell, who has resigned; School No. 2, at Crisfield, Miss Ada B. Cochran to succeed Miss Naomi B. Tawes, resigned; Tylerton School, Smith's Island, Mrs. Arintha Marsh to be continued; Ewell School, Smith's Island, Miss Alice E. Venable to succeed Miss Vera Dennis, resigned; Curtis Chapel School, Miss Maude Cannon to succeed Miss Elizabeth T. Sudler, who declined the position; Cedar Grove School, Miss Ada White to succeed Miss Ada Phillips, who declined the school to enter the State Normal School.

The School Board elected Mr. E. B. Lyons as attendance officer for the county and Mrs. Addie E. Bond as elementary supervisor. The latter withdrew her application for the supervisorship and in case Mr. Lyons is not approved as attendance officer, she will accept an appointment suggested by State Superintendent Stephens, who has recommended that the attendance officer's place and that of supervisor be combined. In case of such an emergency the School Board elected her to the position. If Mr. Lyons is approved, Mrs. Bond will retain her position as clerk to the School Board.

The secretary was directed to advertise for bids for the erection of the new Deal's Island School Building.

The following scholarships were awarded and the appointment blanks for the same were prepared:

Western Maryland College—Miss Lurline Gibbons, of Princess Anne, and Mr. Milton Somers, of Crisfield.

Maryland Institute of Art and Design—Miss Mabel Brown and Mr. Joseph C. Suter, of Baltimore, there being no appointments from this county.

Blue Ridge College—Miss Myrtle Stewart, of Crisfield.

Maryland State Normal School—Misses Ada Phillips and Mary S. Fitzgerald, of Princess Anne; Miss Mildred Hickman, of Crisfield; Miss Thelma Rulein, of Mt. Vernon; Miss Emma Ent, of Westover, and Miss Emma Holland, of Fairmount.

The application of Robert H. King to the State Board of Education for a pension was signed and approved by the board. King has taught in the colored schools of the county since 1878. He is now over 60 years of age and is in infirm health.

William T. Wheatley Killed In Fall
Falling about 85 feet from a scaffold in front of a new building that is being erected at the plant of the Davidson Chemical Company, Curtis Bay, William Wheatley, 14 years old, 3128 Fair avenue, Baltimore, received injuries Wednesday afternoon about 5 o'clock, that resulted in his death at the Maryland General Hospital about six o'clock the same day.

Young Wheatley was carrying water to some men working on the building and while walking on the scaffold he slipped and fell to the ground below.

The young man was a son of Mr. Wm. A. Wheatley, formerly of Oriole, this county.

Funeral services were held at the residence of his parents in Baltimore, and interment was in All Saint's Church cemetery, at Venton, on Saturday morning.

NEW ASSESSMENT HELD UP

Frederick County Court Holds Authorizing Act Unconstitutional

The act of the Maryland Assembly delegating the power for a reassessment in Maryland, on which the State Tax Commission based its action for a State reassessment was declared unconstitutional Tuesday afternoon in an opinion handed down to the Frederick County Circuit Court, overruling the demurrer to the bill of complaint filed on July 19 by David Lowenstein and Charles Wertheimer, Frederick merchants, against the State Tax Commission. Alfred W. Gaver, supervisor of assessments, and the board of county commissioners.

The defendants have 15 days in which to file an answer to the bill of complaint. The Tax Commission, it is stated, will take the case to the Court of Appeals.

The contention of the complainants that the act was invalid because the proposed reassessment did not apply equally throughout the State, was overruled. The contention that Baltimore city was not included in the reassessment plan was referred to by the court.

The court complained that there are separate enactments by which property in Baltimore city is subject to a continuing process of revision in order that it may be assessed for state and municipal taxes according to its real value.

"If the Legislature," says the court in its opinion, "was convinced that this standard has been uniformly observed in the assessment of Baltimore city property, but that a lower measure of taxable value has been applied elsewhere in the State, it was not, in our opinion, constitutionally necessary to subject the city to the expense of a superfluous reassessment merely because the county valuation may need readjustment."

The court was unanimous in its opinion, being signed by Chief Justice Hamard and Uner and Associate Judges Glenn A. Worthington and Edward C. Peters.

The situation in Frederick county has attracted State-wide attention. Officials of several counties have held up action on the orders of the State Tax Commission during the arguments on the demurrer. Leo Weinberg represented the local merchants.

Crops Badly Damaged

Falling off in crop prospects, amounting to a loss of many millions of dollars to the farmers of the country was indicated Tuesday in the Department of Agriculture's August report, which forecast declines in indicated production in almost every important crop from the forecasts reported in July.

Wheat showed a loss of 105,000,000 bushels, corn 89,000,000 bushels, oats 43,000,000 bushels, barley 11,000,000 bushels, and there were decreases in rye, white and sweet potatoes, flax, apples and peaches.

Corn, the nation's greatest crop, is in a serious condition from drought, and if rain does not come soon the yield will be smaller than the forecast announced Tuesday, which was 2,777,000,000 bushels.

The falling off in crop prospects was attributed to weather, plant disease and insects.

Death Of George Hayward, Sr.

Mr. George Hayward, Sr., died on Thursday morning about five o'clock at his home in Snow Hill, at the advanced age of eighty-six.

Mr. Hayward was born, reared and spent all his life, except the past two years when he moved to Snow Hill on the well known Hayward farm in Indian town. When a young man he attended and graduated from Washington and Jefferson College, Pennsylvania.

In 1863 he married Miss Annie Crosdale, of Princess Anne. To them were born twenty-two children, eight of whom are still living. These are George, who resides on the Hayward farm; Thomas, of Snow Hill; Henry, of Wisconsin; Preston, of Vermont; Barton, who is a sailor and who is reported to have been captured by the British while bound for New York from San Francisco; John, of Newark; Mrs. Charles K. Reid, of Philadelphia and Florence, who made her home with her father.

Funeral services were held in the Protestant Episcopal church in Snow Hill on Saturday morning at 11 o'clock.

Will Vote For Wilson

Mr. S. S. D. Thompson, of Mount Vernon district, under date of August 10th, writes the following letter to the Marylander and Herald:

"Although a life-long Republican, I am for Wilson. Coming from Pennsylvania 22 years ago and locating among your people I would like to have the opportunity of saying just why I have changed my views. If I live until the 4th of next September I will be 77 years old. This fact should entitle me, if I am not in my dotage, to some little consideration. But of what I may have to say let the people judge."

A SABBATH MORNING AT MANOKIN

Observations of a Recent Visitor. A Bit of Church History

Upon a recent visit to Princess Anne, and after attending a Sabbath morning service at the Manokin Presbyterian Church, Mr. Harry Pringle Ford, of Philadelphia, writes the following:

Crossing the bridge over "the Head of the Manokin" river, at the upper end of the interesting and very attractive town of Princess Anne, Maryland, and proceeding a short distance along the famous state road that passes directly through the town, our eyes were greeted on a recent Sabbath morning by a scene that it would be well-nigh impossible to duplicate for restful and quiet beauty. The peace of God was about us, and the air was drenched with the southern sunlight. Just before us was the ancient Manokin Presbyterian church, embowered in its fine grove of trees and surrounded by its graves, some of them centuries old. In such a spot, hallowed by the memory of those who so nobly "kept the faith," one instinctively recalled the lines of Gray:

Thoughts that breathe and words that burn.

We had just enjoyed an interesting and largely attended session of the Sabbath school, under the direction of the devoted superintendent, Mr. Wilmer O. Lankford. We were not surprised to find a large and worshipful congregation in the church. The acting pastor, Rev. William L. Freund, is very popular with his people. His lesson for the morning was from the first chapter of Ruth. In his excellent sermon that followed, he outlined the beautiful story and emphasized the important lesson that we, like Ruth, should be quietly faithful in our friendships and in our service. We have seldom heard Watt's fine hymn, "Jesus shall reign where'er the sun does his successive journeys run," and Matherson's "O love that will not let me go," sung with more intensive feeling or finer effect.

Few churches are blessed with a more devoted and intelligent membership. In the surrounding graveyard sleep many who were once foremost in the county and state; men whose sturdy strength conquered the wilderness; men who fought their country's battles, and men who at all times stood for sterling manhood in civic and religious affairs. Apathetic interest attaches to a stone which marks the resting place of four brothers, aged, respectively, 10, 12, 14, and 15 years, who on a fateful July day in 1892 were drowned in the Manokin river.

A "meeting house" stood on the site of the Manokin church at least as early as 1680, according to Rev. Alfred Nevins, D. D. Rev. Thomas Wilson labored here from 1686 to 1698. He was doubtless the ancestor of the prominent Wilson family whose fine country homes known as "Arcadia," "Westover" and "Arlington," not far from Princess Anne, are still standing in an excellent state of preservation, although no longer in possession of the family. In this connection it may be interesting to state that a descendant of this family, one who is a most useful member of the Manokin church, seems to have satisfactorily solved the perplexing "cook" problem, as her cook, now ninety-four years of age, was born a slave in the family and has never known any other home.

The first mention of the Manokin church in the official records of the Presbyterian Church, is in the minutes of the Presbytery, which met in Philadelphia in 1708. Its oldest records extant date from 1747. The present edifice was erected in 1765 and is on the site of the original "meeting house." The building has been remodeled and in its fine appointments compares favorably with modern churches. The handsome silver communion service, which has been in the church for generations, is still in use. The modern individual communion set is unknown. The quaint old arm chair, so long used by the Rev. Jacob Ker, who was the distinguished pastor of the church from 1764 to the time of his death in 1795, and who is said to have "lived exemplarily, preached warmly and prayed fervently," is still reverently preserved in the home of one of his descendants who is one of the most devoted and helpful workers in the church at the present time.

The Manokin is claimed as one of the five famous churches organized by Francis Makemie, but the work here seems to have been well established before Makemie came to America from Ireland in 1683.

Mr. G. Lemuel Waller and son, Charles, of Philadelphia, spent a few days with the family of Mr. H. C. Waller last week.

ALFALFA DAY BIG SUCCESS

Two Hundred Farmers Travel Miles To Attend The Meeting

County Agent H. S. Lippincott Friday afternoon held a very interesting meeting on the farm of Mr. C. C. Gelder, where Mr. Gelder and Mr. Lippincott have been carrying on work along agricultural lines which should prove interesting to every farmer in the county. Mr. Gelder made the statement at this meeting that he would be glad, at any time, to have visitors inspect his crops.

He has on his farm one of the finest fields of alfalfa in the United States and it is to be regretted that every farmer in Somerset county was not at the meeting to inspect this field and gather other information. Mr. Gelder has alfalfa growing in all stages and it is a sight worth going miles to see.

County Agent Lippincott, through his efforts, had about 500 acres of alfalfa planted in Somerset county last year and from all indications 1000 acres will be reached this year. Does county agent work pay? Yes, it does, and at the rate dear old Somerset county is traveling it will stand out in the future as one of the great agricultural counties of Maryland, if not of the United States. Let us stand by our County Agent and co-operate with him for more meetings along all agricultural lines.

Now that we have alfalfa growing let us begin to talk livestock and arrange meetings in this line later.

Mr. Gelder gave a very interesting talk on what alfalfa was to his farm and what he expected it to be, and from what he said we all know that in the near future he will be Somerset's most successful farmer.

Prof. Nicholas Schmitz, State Agronomist, gave a practical talk on the growing of alfalfa from the seed to matured hay. Prof. Schmitz is the best authority in the United States on this subject, and all who heard him may consider themselves fortunate.

Dr. S. S. Buckley, who has been in the county two days with Mr. Lippincott going over livestock demonstration work, stayed over for this meeting to give a talk on hog cholera. He gave a very practical talk on this disease and how to prevent it.

County Agent Lippincott has arranged for another alfalfa meeting Thursday, August 17th, at 2 p. m., on the farm of Mr. Myron Mordoff, on Monie Creek, near the county almshouse. Mr. Sidney Haskell, Agronomist Soil Improvement Committee, of Baltimore, Md., will talk about alfalfa. Go and take your friends and arrange with the county agent to plant at least one acre of alfalfa.

How Crisfield Cashed In

Down below the central region of the Eastern Shore there are several towns that are blossoming into cities. It would be understating the fact to say that the Eastern Shore has a seaport—there are at least a dozen seaports. But there is one seaport that harbors a fleet of shipping that counts up into hundreds. Of course we refer to Crisfield, the metropolis of the two big sounds—Pocomoke and Tangier. Crisfield is not a courthouse town and its growth in wealth, population and importance is, therefore, the more remarkable.

In the "suburbs and counties" section of the Star of Tuesday appeared a statement about the growth of the Bank of Crisfield. This institution, though founded less than a quarter of a century ago—it is barely twenty-three years old—has resources in excess of $1,000,000. A recently published statement indicated deposits in excess of $838,000. It is needless to say that its stock is quoted way above par. Crisfield has been steadily cashing in, during the past quarter of a century, on the waterfood products of the Chesapeake Bay and its tributaries. Crisfield is no land-lubber town; its prosperity comes almost entirely out of the water. That million dollar bank even more than the 5,000 population count indicates that Crisfield has been shunting a good many hard shells, soft shells, diamond back terrapins, oysters and clams to the big consuming centers.

Baltimore does a considerable turn in the handling of water foods, but there is no jealousy up at this end of Crisfield's prosperity, not a little bit—none at all. But what a lovely thing it would be for both Baltimore and Crisfield if, somehow, that dream of multiplying the annual oyster yield of the big sounds and of the whole Chesapeake system to ten times the present marketable yield could be brought about. Crisfield even more than Baltimore is interested in developing the waterfood yield of the Bay reservoir to the potential limit.—Baltimore Star.

Miss Dora M. Fisher, of Philadelphia, is visiting Mrs. C. T. Fisher, on Main street.

Watch With Three Cases.

One repeater watch that strikes the hours automatically was made by the Englishman, Thomas Mudge, about 1765, upon order from Ferdinand VI. of Spain, who always listened to a song by his favorite court singer, Farinelli, before he undertook serious state business, and who finally became insane after the death of his consort, Barbara, daughter of John V. of Portugal.

Like many watches of the time this was made with three cases, so that the owner might use the same timepiece for many occasions by taking off case after case. The outer case of this watch was made of snakeskin ornamented with gold.

It was believed that the owner wore this outer case when he rode in the chase or went to battle, so that the works and inner cases might be protected from chance blows. In ordinary life around the castle he would wear the second case of simple gold, while on state occasions he would strip the cases down to the last, since it was jeweled and highly ornate.—New York Times.

Children and Baby Talk.

Do you encourage baby talk in your children? If you do you are making a great mistake, according to V. M. Hilley, the well known educator. Here is what Mr. Hilley has to say on the subject in his book, "Child Training": "The mispronunciation of words, due to inability to articulate or more usually to incorrect hearing, may be amusing and delightful on account of its simple nature, but it should be corrected and, above all, should not be imitated by the parent or teacher. 'Oo' and 'tittle' may be cunning in a three-year-old, but it is silly for a grownup to use such expressions in addressing the three-year-old, like talking 'pigeon' English to a Chinaman, but what is worse, it gives an incorrect model for the child and thus prolongs the time he will take to speak correctly. Precision in the pronunciation of one's native tongue is always delightful at any age and an earmark of the well bred."

Loyalists in the Revolution.

John Adams estimated that one-third of all the people in the colonies were Loyalists—that is, opposed to the war with England. A minority of these favored obedience to the English laws, but the great majority opposed the English methods with the colonies but wanted a peaceable settlement. War drove the Loyalists to armed resistance, and in New York state alone more than 20,000 colonists took up arms for the British. Out of a total population of less than 4,000,000 more than 60,000 Loyalists left the colonies during the revolutionary period because of their political position.

The Cat and the Tail.

Once upon a time a cat who prided herself on her wit and wisdom was prowling about the barn in search of food and saw a tail protruding from a hole.

"There is the conclusion of a rat," she said.

Then she crept stealthily toward it until within striking distance, when she made a jump and reached it with her claws. Alas, it was not the appendage of a rat, but the tail of a snake, who immediately turned and gave her a mortal bite.

Moral—It is dangerous to jump at conclusions.

A Remarkable Man.

John Ziska, the great Hussite leader of the fifteenth century, was one of the most remarkable men that ever lived. His life story reads like a romance. "Nothing in history is more interesting, more thrilling, than the account of his heroic deeds. Though blind and always greatly outnumbered, Ziska invariably beat his enemies and established for himself a fame that will last forever. He was never beaten in a battle. His very name was a terror to his enemies. He died in 1424, while besieging Prazabslaw, at the age of sixty-four.

Grapes and Wine.

Most people think white grapes make white wine and dark grapes make red wine. It is a popular error. Red wine is made by fermenting grape juice and grape skins together, and white wine is made by fermenting grape juice alone.

Not Manlike.

Patience—Women seem to be doing everything that men do nowadays. Patience—Nonsense! You never saw a man powdering his nose fifty times a day, did you?—Yonkers Statesman.

Kings of Jerusalem.

At least four sovereigns lay claim to the title of "king of Jerusalem"—namely, the sultan of Turkey, the emperor of Austria, the king of Spain and the former king of Portugal.

PRACTICAL HEALTH HINT.

Meltzer on Infantile Paralysis.

Dr. S. J. Meltzer of the Rockefeller Institute in a recent address in New York before a body of physicians recommended as a possible cure for infantile paralysis the use of intraspinal injections of adrenalin. He said:

"On the basis of experiments conducted by our researchers I would advocate the treatment of all cases of infantile paralysis by intraspinal injections of a solution of adrenalin. Clinical experiments conducted at the Institute by Dr. Clark and myself on monkeys artificially infected with infantile paralysis have produced encouraging results."

BURNED LIME vs. LIME CARBONATE

The greatest authority on lime in the United States, Dr. Cyril G. Hopkins, of the University of Illinois, under date of December 1, 1915, says: "No trustworthy investigations support the use of burned lime in preference to natural lime carbonate, such as ground pulverized shells, limestone or marl. On many soils a moderate use of burned lime, in connection with the liberal use of farm manures, yields profitable returns, which, no doubt, would be still more profitable if the burned lime were replaced with carbonate in equivalent amount and of proper fineness."

Curious Raincoats.

When rain falls in tropical countries there is no mistake about it. The rain comes as if it meant to sweep away all such trifles as trees and bushes. A man who goes out in this deluge must protect himself, but he finds that a mackintosh of the lightest kind has its disadvantages, for if it keeps the rain out it also keeps the heat in.

The raincoat devised by the Mexicans is called a "chino" and is so porous that the heat of the body readily escapes, while, owing to its construction, it keeps the wearer dry. The chino is made of numberless long, narrow strips of dried palm leaf, one end of each strip being woven into a light fabric and the rest falling loose. The wearer of this garment rustles as he walks, and the rain pattering upon it makes a pleasant sound. Arrived at the house, he takes off his palm leaf hat, shakes it and hangs it up to dry. Then he slips off his chino, shakes that also and hangs it up. He himself is untouched by the rain, but the chino as it hangs up looks like a huge, damp brown cassock.

Healthful Whipping.

It is considered beneficial to be whipped or spanked provided it is done mechanically. In the mechano therapy departments of up to date institutions the whipping post, a mechanical device for therapeutic paddling, is an accredited healing machine. You are whipped by straps of heavy cloth or leather attached to two rapidly revolving posts. When you take the treatment you step backward into the flying whips and receive their blows upon your legs, back, abdomen or chest, depending upon the malady from which you are suffering. The impact of the straps is just sufficient to set the blood in free circulation. There is no smarting, stinging sensation because the straps are broad enough to eliminate any possibility of a cutting blow. You are paddled rather than lashed. The whipping post is valuable in many types of nervousness.—Popular Science Monthly.

Using Up Energy.

"A calory is the amount of heat required to raise the temperature of one pint of water 4 degrees Fahrenheit. If a man rises from his chair and walks about eight feet, then returns, he uses up one of these units," writes Dr. Edwin F. Bowers in "Slidesteping Ill Health."

"Yet the body, even while resting or quiet in sleep, is constantly using up energy. It is also giving off heat about as rapidly as a sixteen candle power electric lamp."

To make up for this constant loss of heat and energy from 2,000 to 3,000 calories are needed every twenty-four hours. This is why we eat, and it behooves us to see that our food furnishes about the right number of calories.

Statuary Hall.

The national statuary hall was formerly the old hall of the house of representatives in Washington. It was established by act of congress on July 2, 1864. The president was authorized to invite each state to contribute to the collection to be formed with two statues, in either marble or bronze, of deceased citizens of the state whom, "for historic renown or for civil or military services," the state would consider as worthy of commemoration in this national hall of statuary. About twenty-five states have contributed statues to the hall, some of them only one.

Cure For Cholera Morbus

"When our little boy, now seven years old, was a baby he was cured of cholera morbus by Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy," writes Mrs. Sidney Simmons, Fair Haven, N. Y. "Since then other members of my family have used this valuable medicine for colic and bowel troubles with good satisfaction and I gladly endorse it as a remedy of exceptional merit." Obtainable everywhere.

The End of a Lawsuit

A Lawyer Paved the Way; a Woman Did the Rest

By F. A. MITCHEL

My friend Jernegan came into my law office one morning and said to me: "Tom, my affairs have been in the hands of Turner & Swift ever since my dad died, and they have got them into a frightful snarl. They now tell me that I'm likely to lose everything. I've concluded to take the management of the estate out of their hands and put it in yours."

This seemed to me like a doctor called in to save a patient that had been given up by another doctor, but Jim Jernegan and I had long been chums, and I couldn't refuse him. A tin box full of papers arrived at my office, the box being marked in gilt letters "Estate of James R. Jernegan." Jim's father, and I proceeded to an investigation.

The deceased had made a fortune by a land speculation in which he had had a partner named Hausman. The two had quarreled, each claiming the lion's share of the property. This had started a lawsuit which had been inherited with the property by the heirs. The value of the land had increased, but the costs of the suit had increased proportionately. Hausman before his death had transferred his interest to a man named Starkweather, and Starkweather had died, leaving it to his only child, a daughter.

I found my client absolutely ignorant of the condition of his interests in the property. "Don't talk to me about it," he said. "I know nothing of law. That's what I hire you for." So I was obliged to work out the puzzle unaided. I found that there were just two interests in the property—Jim's and Starkweather's daughter's. The lawyers had been playing these two interests off the one against the other to make business for themselves. I would have brought about a settlement, but the rascals had got the matter so tangled that this was impossible. There was but one way to effect such a result, and that was by a union of the two opposing interests. Since one of the parties was a man and the other a woman this might be effected by marriage.

But I saw no hope in such a solution. The woman might be old; she might be homely; she might be a virago. And even though she were young and attractive I knew that Jim would never marry. When twenty-two or twenty-three years old he had been jilted by a girl he loved, and this had made him a confirmed woman hater. He was now thirty, frequented clubs and had no home. I think that he would have liked a home, but could not have one without a wife, and he had no confidence in any woman.

However, I determined to have a look at the person who was fighting Jim for the estate and ask her if she would accede to something of no real importance as an excuse to call upon her. I found a woman of about twenty-seven, handsome and apparently otherwise attractive, except that her disposition did not seem especially amiable. But whether this was natural to her or had been engendered by her fight for affluence in lieu of poverty or some other cause I was ignorant. Beyond this defect, which I was obliged to admit was serious, there was no reason why she should not make a husband happy.

I determined to broach my plan to her. Beginning with a statement of how her lawyer had played off her interests against those of her opponent, I entered into a detailed explanation of the tangle into which the two interests had been brought and finally ended by saying:

"There is but one way in which the property can be saved. The two interests should be united in one person."

"How can that be?" she asked in wonderment.

"By marriage."

"Then all I have to say is that the property will be sunk."

I made no rejoinder, but gathering up some papers I had brought with me, took my leave. Any attempt to bring two such persons together would be evidently futile. The lady was as much in the hands of her lawyers as Jim had been in the hands of his. She knew nothing about the condition of affairs until I made my statement to her. She did not even know who was her opponent. Until I informed her she had no idea how she had been used by her lawyers or that she was in danger of poverty, for they had kept her supplied with an income taken from the principal.

I was not surprised, then, when in a few weeks I received a call from her at my office.

"Would a legal marriage," she asked, "with this man who is endeavoring to cheat me out of my property, without my living with him, bring about a settlement of this suit?"

After some thought I told her that it would help matters very much. I told her this not because I would approve such a marriage, for I would not and felt sure that it would bring about added difficulties, but I hoped by fostering the idea a union of hearts might be effected. I added, however, that I would think over what she had said and advise her more definitely.

I next tackled Jim. I went through the same explanations as with the lady, ending in the same way.

"Not on your life!" was the decided response.

Neither of my two clients asked a question as to the age or condition of the other. Miss Starkweather cared nothing about it because a marriage with her opponent was to be a mere legal function. Jim did not care because, having once been jilted, he would not marry any woman. However, besides my friendship for Jim, there was a big fee for me.

Months passed, during which there was no change in the situation except that the property was going from bad to worse. Miss Starkweather had meanwhile transferred her affairs to an honest lawyer who gave her a true view of the situation and refused to keep up his income on an expectation of securing a slice of the property for himself. He also confirmed what I had said about a settlement by marriage, though he pointed out grave consequences that might result from this plan. Nevertheless he showed her how it would render available funds for present use, and she determined to adopt it provided the party of the other part would consent. I broached the plan to Jim, who was also cramped for funds, and assured him that, besides releasing certain moneys, possibly it might end in a settlement of the suit. He took the matter under consideration and, when posted at his club for dues and supplies that he could not pay for, concluded to adopt the marriage plan. I tried to interest him in the lady by sounding her praises, but he wouldn't listen to me. "She may be a Medusa for all I care," he said.

I was obliged by the contracting parties to draw up a paper stating the conditions of the marriage, one of which was that when it became of no use financially to either party no opposition would be raised to an annulment or divorce. This was to be signed just before the marriage ceremony.

The day before the wedding Miss Starkweather's attorney came to my office to protest against what he called my method of settling the suit, averring that not only was it unprofessional, but he believed it would result in a worse bangle than ever. I denied that it was my plan, but had been suggested to me by Miss Starkweather. I had partly assented to it at first, hoping to make an amicable match, but since this plan had failed I declined to approve the plan. Jernegan had assented to it on account of an immediate pressure for funds.

The lawyer begged me to go to his client with him and dissuade him from making a marriage that was contracted in enmity. I consented to do so, and when we met her I confirmed what he said about the probable evil effects of such a marriage.

"I relieve you gentlemen," she said, "of all responsibility in this affair, and I beg that you will give yourselves no concern about it whatever. My mind is made up. Good morning."

That ended the matter so far as we lawyers were concerned. But I took the precaution to tell Jim that the woman had relieved me of all responsibility in the matter and asked him to do the same. He said that something must be done to procure funds, for he was on the border of disgrace. No matter what resulted from the marriage he would not blame me.

The marriage—it could scarcely be called a wedding—was appointed for 11 o'clock in the morning. I went with Jim to the house. He didn't wear different clothes from his usual daily apparel. On the way he seemed rather melancholy. I fancied that he was thinking of the girl who had jilted him. When we reached the house we were shown into the drawing room. In a few minutes a clergyman entered. It seemed more to me as if we were to take part in a funeral instead of a wedding. We three sat without speaking till a rear door was thrown open, and the bride, in ordinary apparel, attended by an elderly lady, entered. She was evidently much excited and kept her eyes on the floor.

The parson and I rose, but Jim sat still. Turning to look at him, I saw on his face an expression of astonishment and wonder mixed. He seemed glued to his chair. Then, suddenly starting up, he made several strides to the bride and stopped before her. She raised her eyes to his, but there was no surprise in them.

"Mildred," he cried passionately, "what means this? Why did you?"

"I didn't."

"Did you consent to this legal union knowing me to be the groom?"

There was no reply to this. Again she dropped her eyes to the floor. Jim looked at her steadily for a time without speaking, then, turning to the clergyman, motioned him to proceed with the ceremony.

All these months I had been working up the climax of a romance without knowing it. Had Jim permitted me to tell him anything about his legal opponent it would have come out that she was the girl who he considered had jilted him. Perhaps it is well he did not, for the unreasonableness of lovers is proverbial, and had he known the facts it is quite likely the climax might have been different.

After my visit to Miss Starkweather she had investigated her affairs and learned that her father had come into possession of the interest in land owned by Hausman, who had been part owner of the land bought by him and Jim's father. In this way she learned that her lover, with whom she had quarreled, was her opponent in the lawsuit. She had then taken her own peculiar way to effect a reconciliation.

I confess I was tickled to death at the result of my initiative, worked out by the marvelous method of a woman. Two estranged lovers were brought together, their estate was saved to them, and I pocketed a $10,000 fee.

THE DUST SHOULD BE SUPPRESSED

In the early summer we wrote an article upon the necessity of getting rid of the dust upon the streets of Princess Anne. We understand that a plan was being evolved to put oil on Main street, if no other, and that the Civic Club would provide for it. The matter seems to have been lost sight of and the dust continues to impregnate every crevice of stores, offices and residences. It may be that the cost of oil is the difficulty. If that be so, can not some water system be secured?

It is true that a considerable part of the summer is gone. The fall, however, with the dry spells that are apt to come with it, will soon confront us. With that possibility the dust will have a still longer time to continue its ravages. Some course certainly ought to be pursued to get rid of it. Private subscriptions, of course, will have to be provided for any plan that may be adopted.

Residents of Princess Anne are already heavily taxed and for this reason the private subscriptions may not be readily obtained. The effort ought to be made in any event. The dust is a source, not only of dirt and consequent annoyance but also of possible disease.

STRUCK ON MEXICO

Mr. Hughes seems to be struck on the subject of Mexico. That is one of his special theories, and he loves to discuss it more than any other. He persists, however, in not stating what his course toward that country will be in case he shall be elected President.

One of the pet parts of his theme is the matter of soldiers who have had to be sent to the border. His idea is that soldiers ought not to be taken from the civil list. This is a peculiar doctrine, and the people of the United States would be glad to have him explain from what other source our soldiers should come.

The Republicans have never believed in a large standing army or they would have had one. Such a doctrine has always been a matter of aversion to the American people. In its absence, there was no other method known but to indoctrinate the militia of the various states into the spirit of what war may really mean. The hiring system practiced by Great Britain with the Hessians who were sent to America to attempt the subjugation of this country during the Revolution could hardly be countenanced now, and besides, if such were possible, whence could the men be found when the whole world is practically at war?

Mr. Hughes' position on Mexico is a most peculiar one. He talks of an efficient America, but fails to tell how to make it more efficient than it is and at the same time he thinks that "We are entitled to a standing army without taking men out of civil life." On the other hand, Mr. Wilson is doing all that is possible to prevent further strife with Mexico and is simply using the men at his command to offset unwholesome influences on the part of Mexico at the border.

This is but one of Mr. Hughes' peculiarities, but at the same time it is but an instance of his many others. Mr. Hughes' doctrine might mean war if he had the men; Mr. Wilson's doctrine is to prevent war by utilizing the few that are at his disposal.

Hughes On Experience

We are very much impressed by the argument of Mr. Hughes in favor of retaining experienced men in office. We see many indications that the country also is pretty well convinced that Mr. Hughes is right in this, and that the present is the most opportune moment for putting his teachings into practice.

Mr. Hughes thinks that a Republican who has held office four years has become a specialist, or an expert in the performance of his duties, and ought not to be displaced. But we presume that the capacity of a Democrat to learn is equal to that of a Republican, and that the entire hierarchy of Democratic officials, from President down, is now approaching that stage of professional education at which it would be a genuine crime against the country to deprive it of their services.

What folly it would be to discharge Woodrow Wilson, who has had a greater amount of experience in the Presidency than any of his predecessors, and put in his place a man who never was President, who wasn't a very good Governor, and was thankful to get out of that office into a tranquil life job in the Supreme Court. Mr. Wilson has been President at the most critical period in the history of the country since Washington, excepting only the civil war. He is a scholar, a writer of authority on politics and Constitutional Government and the work of Congress, and to his scholastic study of the problems he has now added the unlimited amount of experience which nearly four years in the White House has given him.

If Mr. Hughes should be elected he would not only oust the learned and experienced incumbent of the Presidency, but he would turn all the Democratic Ambassadors and Ministers and Consuls, and Postmasters and Collectors, out of the service and replace them with Republicans who would know nothing whatever about their duties. Mr. Hughes convinces us that this would be a great calamity. The present officials have been in office nearly four years. They have learned a lot. They have become experts, according to Mr. Hughes. They ought to be regarded with veneration. Mr. Hughes has no set of Republicans with greater, or even with equal experience, and if he will only read his Detroit speech he will realize how shocking it would be to deprive the country of all these functionaries and install in their places a lot of men who know nothing of their duties and whose only claim to appointment is that they helped elect Mr. Hughes.

The country is going to adopt the principle Mr. Hughes enunciated at Detroit and apply it throughout the service, beginning with the President. It is going to hold fast to an experienced man, who has gone creditably through ordeals such as no previous President was ever subjected to, and will not put into the Presidency a green man whose chatter about the office is not making a favorable impression.—Philadelphia Record.

Minnie Thornton vs. Samuel Thornton.

In the Circuit Court for Somerset County, No. 3105 Chancery.

The object of this suit is to procure a decree divorcing the plaintiff from the defendant, a vinculo matrimonii.
The bill states that the plaintiff and the defendant were married on the tenth day of February, 1909, and lived together in Somerset county, Maryland, until the first day of June, 1912; that though the conduct of the plaintiff towards the defendant was always kind and affectionate and above reproach, the defendant, without any just cause or reason, abandoned and deserted the plaintiff, and declared his intention to live with her no longer, and that such abandonment has continued uninterruptedly for at least three years, and is deliberate and final, and the separation of the parties beyond any reasonable expectation of reconciliation; that one child was born to the said parties from said marriage; that the plaintiff has been a resident of Somerset county, continuously, since February, 1909, and that the defendant is a resident of the city of Philadelphia, in the State of Pennsylvania.

It is thereupon this 20th day of July, 1916, ordered by the Circuit Court for Somerset county, in Equity, that the plaintiff, by causing a copy of this order to be inserted in some newspaper published in Somerset county once in each of four successive weeks before the 18th day of August next, give notice to the said non-resident defendant of the object and substance of this bill, warning him to be and appear in said court in person, or by solicitor, on or before the first day of September next, to show cause, if any he has, why a decree ought not to pass as prayed.

PLANT BLACK WALNUT.

Very Desirable on the Farm Because of Lasting Qualities.

Because of the very high, lasting qualities of its wood and the moderately rapid rate of growth of the tree in good locations black walnut is one of the few most desirable trees to plant on the farm. Small patches of rough, gullied or unused land about the farm and narrow strips along fence rows and highways or corners of barnyards and stock lots make ideal places for planting the valuable tree. The method is simple, and the present heavy crop of nuts makes this year a most favorable time to begin work along this line. The region where walnut growing is practicable extends from southern New England west to the central states and south to South Carolina and along the northern portions of the gulf states to Oklahoma.

The black walnut tree is comparatively free from insect attack, particularly the wood. The price of black walnut lumber in recent years has been consistently high. Another factor to be considered is the rapidly diminishing supply of walnut trees over practically its entire range in the United States, due to recent cutting in order to meet the demand for gunstock material. The tree yields durable wood, which may be used for posts and for a wide variety of purposes about the farm in case it is not sold in the lumber market.

To plant the nuts make a small hole with a mattock or hoe, drop one or two nuts in each hole and cover them with about two inches of fresh, firm packed soil. For the larger areas a good spacing in forest plantations is to dig the holes eight feet apart each way or 8 by 10 feet, which amounts to 630 and 545 holes per acre for the two spacings. For small areas or along fence rows and highways the spacing should be about eight feet in the row unless permanent shade is desired, in which case the distance should be twenty feet during the early period of growth and subsequently increased to forty feet by removing the alternate trees. For purposes of nut production the trees should be spaced at distances of from forty to sixty feet apart and should be given a due amount of cultivation. Requests for information along this line should be addressed to the bureau of plant industry of the department of agriculture at Washington. The number of nuts required can easily be found by knowing approximately their quality, the area of ground to be treated and the spacing. Care should be taken not to plant under shade. Where the trees in the old wood lot are to be cut during the next year or two and are moderately open planting may be done in the winter, so as to get a start in advance of the removal later of the overhead protection against early frosts and excessive drying of the soil in mid-summer.

While the best results are usually obtained by completely preparing the soil and cultivating it for a few years after planting, farm owners should be aware of the possibility of starting hundreds of young walnuts in their wood lots and elsewhere at the expense of only a little labor. This will be a good step in the process of securing useful and money making trees on parts of the farm which would otherwise be waste land, which is making no return at all to its owner.

A Handy Garden Marker.

A handy garden marker can be made of the scrap material found on nearly every farm, and it will prove a time saver during the planting time season and more efficient than using two stakes and a long cord for every row that must be marked. The marking pieces should be placed at distances apart depending on the width of the rows. Twelve or fifteen inches will usually be the best distance, which will make the marker either four feet or six feet in width.

An old pair of buggy wheels will be satisfactory handles if they can be obtained, or strong, slender branches from trees will do fully as well if they are straight and six or eight feet in length. If the soil has been finely pulverized in readiness for the garden seed this marker will make straight lines by simply pulling it over the soil. If the ground is not smooth and rather stony it will be necessary to weight down the marker, and this can be done by placing stones in a sack and tying them to the frame.—Michigan Farmer.

Fresh Water For Chickens.

Chickens need a constant supply of fresh water, according to W. A. Lippincott, professor of poultry husbandry in the Kansas State Agricultural college. "Running water is best," says Professor Lippincott, "but if this is not available keep the water fresh. Add enough permanganate of potash to make it a wine red. This amount will act as an antiseptic in preventing the transmission of disease through the water and also aid in keeping down intestinal parasites."

HAVE YOU WEAK LUNGS?

Do colds settle on your chest or in your bronchial tubes? Do coughs hang on, or are you subject to throat troubles? Such troubles should have immediate treatment with the strengthening powers of Scott's Emulsion, to guard against consumption which so easily follows.

Scott's Emulsion contains pure cod liver oil which peculiarly strengthens the respiratory tract and improves the quality of the blood; the glycerine in it soothes and heals the tender membranes of the throat.

Scott's is prescribed by the best specialists. You can get it at any drug store.

Scott & Bowae, Bloomfield, N. J.

DISASTERS RUN IN SERIES.

Long Periods of Security Lead to a Relaxation of Vigilance.

The careful observer long ago noted that disasters run in series and that intervals of considerable length frequently occur between the series. Thus three or four railway smashups happen within a few days, to be followed by several months in which not a jar is recorded. Or several cities are within a few days visited by big fires, after which there usually lapses a long period in which only minor fires are recorded.

Why this peculiar condition should exist is puzzling only to those who do not seek the reason in their own habits and experiences. The individual who will keep close watch on himself will discover that he performs his duties accurately and well for long periods, followed by short seasons when blunders are frequent and exasperating. This is due to a sense of security created by the long period of accuracy, leading to a relaxation of vigilance. The instant tension is relaxed and duty is performed automatically rather than with concentrated intelligence blunders multiply.

So when railroad men go long periods without disasters there is somewhere along the line a relaxation productive of trouble. Fires break out because vigilance lets down from a sense of security.

The lesson is, of course, almost too obvious to require statement. Don't be lulled by long stretches of perfect work or security into thinking you never can err, never can be plunged by a mismove into danger.—Detroit Free Press.

THE MOUNTAIN SPOKE.

How an Old Yankee Woman Told of the Coming of a Storm.

I once knew an old woman who lived under the shadow of the White mountains and whose instinct for weather changes was almost uncanny. She did not have barometrical bones either, as so many old people maintain they have. Her deductions were all based on observation.

Once, I recall, she was taking in some clothes from the line at 10 o'clock at night—a still, starlit night without a cloud. I saw her shadow bobbing about, huge and fantastic on the barn wall, thrown from the lantern she carried in her left hand, and went out to ask her why she took the clothes in.

"There wasn't a cloud in the sky all day," she said, "and tonight the mountain's talkin'."

I listened carefully, and, sure enough, in the silence I could hear, 3,000 feet above us, the steady rush of wind through the stunted spruce forest at timber line. Up there the wind was roaring then!

I thought of Martineau's words, that the noisy hurricane rushes silently through the upper spaces where there is nothing to oppose it—that force by itself is silent. There seemed to me something almost Celtic, too, in this old Yankee's woman's imagery. And her prediction proved correct. The next day came a deluge.—Walter Prichard Eaton in Harper's Magazine.

Why Not Say "Woman?"

Whenever one has occasion to mention the most remarkable sex of the human species one is confronted by the pertinacious fact that there is no general term to describe the subject of one's dissertations except the unlovely and almost meaningless term "female." That term is altogether too general. It includes cows, hens and all other beings of that gender. Some word is needed that will express the female of the human species and nothing else. She who orders the universe and makes planets and stars and stars worth while ought to have a name of her own and one worthy of her. We call upon the nations of the world to devote themselves for a time to this really important task.—Chicago News.

Tentative.

Their teacher had lately become engaged, and all the girls were tremendously interested—naturally. Everybody wanted to see the ring, and more than one was grievously disappointed in the size and splendor of the token. One ten-year-old maiden considered it critically and then remarked:

"It's mighty small, ain't it? Does that mean that you haven't really quite made up your mind to take him?"—New York Post.

Should Sloan's Liniment Go Along?

Of course it should! For after a strenuous day when your muscles have been exercised to the limit an application of Sloan's Liniment will take the soreness and stiffness away and get you in fine shape for the morrow. You should also use it for a sudden attack of toothache, stiff neck, backache, stings, bites and the many accidents that are incidental to a vacation. "We would as soon leave our baggage as to go on a vacation or camp out without Sloan's Liniment." Writes one vacationist: "We use it for everything from cramps to toothache." Put a bottle in your bag, be prepared and have no regrets.

When Cats Were Sacred.

Scientists consider that the cat was introduced originally into Egypt from the south and that the credit of domesticating it belongs entirely to the inhabitants of that country. It is fortunate that the cat found its way into Europe at the time of the Roman supremacy, which, like other polytheistic systems, was in religious matters at least tolerant. Had it been confined to Egypt till the iconoclastic intrusion of the Moslems it might have been extirpated as a pagan object of worship. The Egyptians seem to have kept their cats in vast inclosures, and it is perhaps a trait of hereditary which causes them to remain so faithful to a house in which they are domesticated. Whenever a house caught fire the chief care of the neighbors was to save the cats. The men and women might be burned in the ruins, but the cats were to be saved at all risks. When a cat died a natural death every inmate of the house shaved his eyebrows, and when a dog died they shaved all over.—Chambers' Journal.

Tennis as an American Game.

Tennis is as old as the hills, basically, though it has undergone many changes for the better. It was played by the Greeks and Romans under the names of "sphairistikos" and "pila." As "paume" it is mentioned in the Arthurian romances and in the earlier records of the dark ages. In the fifteenth century it enjoyed great favor in France, and in England from the sixteenth century to the present time. As it seems to be more or less mixed up with about every sort of race, it may be called truly American, especially as we have poured it into our melting pot to boil and simmer and have seasoned it to our liking. But as an adopted pastime we can hardly call it our national game, as national seems to imply home grown or native. Yet we have developed tennis, speeded it up, perfected it, Americanized it so successfully that the game as we play it today typifies the restlessness, energy and competition of our national spirit.—Norman Harsell in Countryside Magazine.

Korea's Diamond Mountain.

Kongosan, known among foreigners by the name of Diamond mountain, is an extraordinary cluster of innumerable peaks in the east-central part of Korea. It is part of a great mountain range forming the backbone of the Korean peninsula and stands in the northeastern part of Kangwon province. The system is about fifty miles in circumference, occupying an area of more than twenty-five square miles. The peaks, reputed to number 12,000, are entirely formed of granite and tower high in the air, with dense forests on their sides and at their base. All the peaks are extremely rugged and grotesque in form, and it is impossible to scale many of them, as they rise nearly straight into the sky, while their slippery sides furnish no foothold.

A Mixed Metaphor.

A professor of English in a Western college was once criticizing the following lines from Campbell's "Ye Mariners of England":

The star of England
Shall yet terrific burn.
Till danger's troubled night depart
And the star of peace return.

"The star of peace," he pointed out, "could not 'return' after night had departed," for stars, as a general rule, do not shine during the day.

"If you were struck hard enough between the eyes you would see stars any old time," suggested the witty member of the class.

"That is quite true," replied the professor, "but it would not be the 'star of peace.'"

Mending Amber.

To mend amber requires a certain amount of care, though the process is a simple one. Apply some linseed oil to the broken edges and then hold the oiled parts over a gas jet, covering the rest of the amber meanwhile with a cloth. As soon as the oiled parts become sticky with the heat press the edges which are to be united together and hold them very carefully till cold.—Exchange.

An Accent That Survives.

The cockney has survived for many centuries in the midst of speech that is decimated more cultured. It is a curious fact that in the Bahama islands, which were settled more than 200 years ago by Londoners, the cockney speech is as strong as it is in Cheap-side.

AN ACT OF KINDNESS

A Princess Anne Resident Speaks Publicly For The Benefit Of Princess Anne People

Delaware's Distinction

An interesting item, quoting an incident of note from Miss Elizabeth Montgomery's "Reminiscences of Wilmington," serves to show the eminent position held by Delaware in the history of our country. The story is told as pertinent in connection with the purchase of the Danish West Indies, now being negotiated for by our government.

At St. Thomas, one of the Danish West Indies, was raised for the first time, according to Miss Montgomery, the flag of the United States. It was the hand-made production of one of the crew of the brig Nancy, a Delaware vessel, commanded by a Delaware man, Captain Hugh Montgomery. It was made to order from information received about the flag that had been adopted by the Continental Congress.

At Cooch's Bridge, in the State of Delaware, in September, 1777, the formally adopted American flag was first raised in battle. It was during an engagement to restrain the March of General Howe's forces into Pennsylvania.

And finally, Delaware was the first of the American colonies to ratify the Constitution of the United States, and thereby became the first State in the Federal Union.

These are notable distinguishments. The latter secures for all time to the little State of Delaware the front rank in all parades held in celebration of national events. The other two impart to her a prominent place in the history of the country.—Wilmington Every Evening.

State Game Warden E. Lee LeCompte Issues Statement

E. Lee LeCompte, State Game Warden, has issued the following statement regarding changes in the game laws of the State for 1916:

Calvert, Charles, Dorchester, Prince George's, St. Mary's and Talbot counties are exempt from this law and have local laws which affect each. The open season on quail, pheasant, wild turkey, woodcock, rabbit and ruffed grouse is November 10th to December 24th, which is state-wide. Shooting and hunting on Sunday is positively prohibited. Water-rail or reedbird, railbird or ricebird can be shot from September 1st to November 1st.

The Richest Woman

The papers announced on their first pages a few days ago that the richest woman in the world had died. What did they mean? Simply that a woman who possessed more dollars than any other had passed away and left all that she had, all that she loved, behind. After reading a short history of her life and possessions we deny that she was the richest woman in the world. Comparing her life with countless others we know, it seems cold and barren. The women whose lives are spent in loving service for others; whose arms know the loving embrace of little children, and whose ears are attuned to the prattle and laughter of their little ones experience a happiness that never can be inspired by the click of the stock-ticker. Real riches are possessions which fill the cup of life full of happiness and joy and our land is full of such homes, although material wealth is a stranger to them. The "richest woman" was consistent in that she never pretended to be happy.—Pennsylvania Farmer.

The Deutschland Is Sighted

According to a dispatch received in Baltimore Thursday night from Philadelphia the German submarine Deutschland, which sailed from Baltimore for Bremen, was sighted Sunday night, August 6th, off the Grand Banks by the Norwegian steamer Meteor, which arrived in Philadelphia Thursday.

Captain Johnson of the Meteor, on his last trip out from Baltimore bound for England, encountered the Deutschland going into Baltimore. What he saw of the vessel at that time makes him positive of his identification of the submarine sighted off the Grand Banks.

The Meteor was in the regular steamship lane making for Philadelphia when she sighted the undersea boat and it was getting dark. The submersible circled around the Norwegian steamer and then resumed her eastern course.

Just The Thing For Diarrhoea

"About two years ago I had a severe attack of diarrhoea which lasted over a week," writes W. C. Jones, Buford, N. D. "I became so weak that I could not stand upright. A druggist recommended Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy. The first dose relieved me and within two days I was as well as ever." Many druggists recommended this remedy because they know that it is reliable. Obtainable everywhere. (Advertisement.)

THE GREAT SALISBURY FAIR

AUGUST 15, 16, 17, 18

There is no form of entertainment older or more interesting than that of the "big country fair." Other feats and fancies may come and go, but this holds its place in the affections of the people. Here those who have been separated during the past year gather in the grounds and renew old friendships and acquaintances. One meets almost everyone that one most wishes to see. The Great Salisbury Fair, owing to its large attendance, is especially the gathering grounds of friends, relatives and acquaintances.

The season is again here and with it comes attractive midways and the daring feats of performers in various kinds of thrilling scenes. The attractive shows, the race track filled with spirited horses all a-quiver with the spirit of the race; the motorcycle men going at a speed which makes one hold their breath, these with the exhibits of fancy work; the delicacies of the household, the flowers, its livestock and all the things that go to make up a big and successful Fair will be found, as usual, here. The attractions will be found to be of the same high-grade that the Association has ever endeavored to give to its patrons, and are among the best in their respective lines that are engaged in work of this character.

HUMAN SPIRAL ACT

This is a thrilling act performed by two men at the top of a tall pole suspended some thirty feet in the air. The men are balanced on two big double circular loops and while thus suspended perform feats of whirling and balancing that are both very thrilling and sensational. Arranged in the form of a see-saw, one perched at each end, these men will revolve with lightning rapidity in the circular disc, placing themselves in all kinds of apparently impossible positions. This is no imitation act performed by cheap actors, but is the original one shown at the New York Hippodrome where it met with great success.

DUFFIN REDCAY TROUPE

Feats of agility are always amusing and entertaining, and the acrobatic stunts performed by the celebrated Duffin Redcay Troupe will be found among the best in this country. It is the only act in the world today that has succeeded in throwing a complete triple somersault landing upon the feet. This is a death-courting feat, yet this troupe guarantees to perform it once every act. It also introduces a double half and double full twisting somersault, both unusual and hard to perform. It is a wonderful flying and casting act and, as an additional feature, shows the sensational feat of looping the loop. This act alone would cost more to see than the admission to the Fair Grounds.

SKATING BEAR

Bears have been the favorite companion of men wandering through the country for many generations. There are few of the older people who do not recall in their boyhood days coming to their section a Man with a bear that danced and performed various tricks. The world has progressed since then and with it the training and education of the bear has kept pace. This year we have been able to secure a bear that performs wonderful feats on roller skates. It is said to be one of the most marvelous acts in the country. Interspersed with this act is all kinds of comedy, making it one of rollicking good humor fitted to amuse alike the young and the old.

OUR MIDWAY

Those who attended our Fair last year will vouch for the success of our new policy in regard to our Midway Shows. In common with other Fairs of this Section, we have in years past depended for our Midway Shows upon such as had made the habit of following the Circuit, and as a result obtained shows of a second or third quality. Recognizing that this was a handicap to the success of our Fair, the management decided last year to enter into a contract with one of the leading booking concerns of New York City for shows to place upon our Midway. As a result the people who visited our Fair last year were able to see shows refined, decent and of first-class quality as to their character and performances. This year this policy has been continued, and we have engaged the services of a New York firm and placed in their hands the question of providing shows for our Midway, and we feel certain that we can assure the people who visit us this season that in our Midway alone will be found attractions enough to amuse all who come.

MOTORCYCLE RACES

Of all the speed kings, the motorcycle takes the lead. Going at a pace that makes the steepest head swim, these riders swing around in record-making time. It is unnecessary to call attention to the interest all take in seeing first-class men drive the motorcycle side by side. The Association has made special efforts to bring to the Fair the fastest riders that this country has. This year the entries for motorcycle races will be composed of men whose reputations are country-wide. Speed can be expected of such a quality as will thrill even the hardest to move.

HORSE RACING

Whatever may come and whatever may go, the horse remains as ever has been, the king of sports. The usual racing program will be carried out at this year's Fair, and there is every reason to believe that the entries this year will be up to the usual standard. Those loving close and exciting races cannot afford to miss the Fair this year.

SEASON TICKETS on sale at all Drug Stores in Salisbury, also at Paul Watson's Smoke House. PRICE:—Season Ticket, good for one admission each day of Fair at Main Gates - - - - $1.00

NOTICE TO EXHIBITORS: Anyone wishing to exhibit in the various departments will please make their entry before Thursday, August 10th, as our books positively close on that date. All exhibits must be delivered on the Fair Grounds Monday, Aug. 14th.

Raw Oysters And Raw Milk

The assuring assertion that "raw oysters are safer than raw milk" is advanced editorially by the New York Sun, with very good reasons for in support of the proposition. Recently, the oyster has been coming in for condemnation on the ground that it is a promoter of typhoid fever, but the facts seem to be against this accusation.

That impurities coming from impure conditions in the water will effect oysters is undoubted, but it has been shown that these impurities in the oyster may be corrected in a very short time. The rapid disappearance of impurities from the oyster is accounted for by the fact that at feeding temperatures twenty-five to fifty gallons of water may pass through the gills in one day, and that in less than half an hour particles touching the gills had moved to the mouth and were entirely cast off in five hours.

In France filtered sea water was used as a purifying medium; but being too costly in this country, purification in plain water containing minute quantities of calcium chlorite, as used in the purification of large quantities of drinking water, has been found equally successful. A tank six feet wide and four feet deep was filled with water from Chesapeake Bay. In this forty oysters were suspended in iron wire baskets; the tank water was inoculated with disease bacilli producing more intense pollution than is ever encountered in the natural waters.

After the oysters had become thoroughly infected, as ascertained by microscopic and other tests, the water was disinfected with twenty-five to 150 cubic centimeters of a ten per cent. suspension of commercial chloride of lime. Within twenty-four hours a remarkable purification was evident. The addition of the disinfected did not seem to interfere with the normal activity of the oysters, which appeared to close immediately for a short time. A second dose was used to insure the destruction of all bacilli. No change in the flavor could be detected, no difference being perceptible between the treated and untreated oysters. Considering the small quantities of the chemical and its harmlessness in drinking water, no undesirable effect need be feared.—Wilmington Evening.

Mr. Joseph W. Reid Injured

Mr. Joseph W. Reid, who resides about two miles out of Princess Anne, met with an accident last Thursday which will temporarily interfere with his farming operations. He was hauling straw and was thrown from the cart by the quick movement of his team and fell upon his head and shoulders. Dr. Lankford, who was summoned, found no bones broken. Mr. Reid was very badly bruised and he will probably be confined to his home for some time.

SALE OF TELEPHONE PLANT

Chesapeake and Potomac Takes Over Farmers Telephone Line

At a special meeting of the stockholders of the Farmers Telephone Company, held in Princess Anne on Saturday, August 19th, it was unanimously decided to sell their Telephone Plant to the Chesapeake and Potomac Telephone Company. We understand the latter company will rebuild the Farmers line, making the system a metallic one; will arrange their subscribers in groups not to exceed eight and will give night, day and long distance service.

The success and extension of the Farmers Telephone in this county has been remarkable. Commencing as they did a few years back with less than a dozen phones they have extended their Telephone system over Fairmount, Revell's Neck, East Princess Anne and Wicomico Creek sections. The Company was incorporated and had seventy-two stockholders, mostly farmers; has declared good dividends yearly, given fair service to the one hundred and twenty subscribers and covers a territory not wired by any other company. The Chesapeake and Potomac Company is to be congratulated on having acquired so valuable a property.

Professor Handy's Recital

Professor Sidney S. Handy, of the Department of English of St. John's College, at Annapolis, who is well known on the Eastern Shore, recently gave a literary recital at Columbia University in New York City. The Daily Spectator, published at Columbia, commends the recital as follows:

"The play recital of 'The Servant of the House' by Professor Sidney Handy of St. John's College. Tuesday afternoon, was one of the best interpretations of this strong drama before the public today. Professor Handy is admirably adapted in voice, manner and training to represent all the various characters of the play and especially that of the servant himself. Earl Hall Auditorium was crowded to overflowing and more than one hundred auditors were interested enough to remain standing through the entire reading of over an hour."

The recital will be given Friday evening, September 1st, at Ocean City, under the auspices of the Tri-County Institute.

Son Succeeds Father

At a congregational meeting of the Peoples Christian Church, at Dover, Del., last Tuesday evening, for the purpose of selecting a pastor to succeed the late Rev. A. W. Lightbourne, a unanimous call was extended to Rev. A. Victor Lightbourne, eldest son of the late pastor, who about two years ago entered upon evangelistic work and has successfully labored in many parts of the United States.

Rev. Lightbourne accepted the invitation, saying he would do all in his power to perpetuate the work started by his father, although he felt his inability to fully measure up to the latter's high standards.

At the close of the service, the right hand of fellowship was extended to Rev. Lightbourne by all present, with the pledge of greater energy in the upbuilding of the church and its mission.

Mrs. Mary Porter Dead

Mrs. Mary Porter, aged 60 years, died August 16, 1916, after a long and painful illness, at her late home, Loretto, Md. She is survived by her husband, William T. Porter, two daughters, Mrs. R. W. Pollitt and Mrs. O. A. Carter, of Loretto, and three sons, W. H. Porter, of Coan, Va., L. H. Porter, of Loretto, and Grover C. Porter, of California. The deceased was a sister of Sidney F. Miller, of King's Creek, Md., the late Charles A. Miller, of Westover, and Mrs. Sarah P. Leckie, of Baltimore. Funeral and interment took place at 10.30 a. m. last Friday morning at Asbury M. E. Church, Allen, Md.

Waste Paper Soaring

The paper famine was reflected Tuesday in an auction sale in New York of old paper, ordered by David Ferguson, supervisor of the City Record. One lot of 9,000 pounds, composed of the unsold copies of the City Record, brought $1.65 per hundred pounds. Another lot of unsold paper, weighing 6,000 pounds, brought $2.60 per hundred. Normally sales of such paper bring from 20 cents to 50 cents a hundred.

An all-day Grange picnic will be held at the farm of Mr. Pendleton, "Clifton Point," on Thursday, August 24th. A large power boat will start from Dashiell's wharf, Princess Anne, at 8.30 a. m., stopping at farms along the river for passengers. Addresses will be delivered by prominent speakers, and ice cream and cake will be served. A cordial welcome is extended to all.

TO HEAR REASSESSMENT CASE

Court of Appeals Sets September 7th As Date of Hearing

The Court of Appeals has set September 7 as the date of hearing for the state's appeal against the decision of the Frederick County Circuit Court on the state-wide reassessment fight. Attorney General Ritchie will participate with Senator Edward M. Hammond, counsel for the State Tax Commission, in arguments for the state, while Lee Weinberg and several other attorneys will represent the Frederick City property holders who instituted the action to block reassessment of their property by the State.

Only by a reversal by the Court of Appeals of the Circuit Court's decision can the way be immediately cleared for the reassessment authorized by the last legislature.

The Appeals Court will not meet in regular session until later in the fall, but Chief Judge Boyd arranged the special session in compliance with requests from the Tax Commission and Governor Harrington, who are anxious that the case be settled at once to clear the path one way or another for the reassessment. The possibility still stands out of a special session of the legislature to handle the reassessment if the Appeals Court should uphold the decision of the lower court. The arguments in the case will be concluded in a single day and the tribunal will probably hand down its decision within a week after the hearing.

The Ocean City Bridge

The plans for an additional bridge to cross the Synepuxent Bay at Ocean City, as prepared by the State Roads Commission of Maryland, were approved Wednesday by Major J. C. Oakes, United States government engineer, who journeyed over from Washington to give the advocates of the proposed bridge a hearing. Major Oakes, however, stated at the conclusion of the meeting, which was well attended and held at the Atlantic Hotel, that before a permit should be granted by the United States government a demand would probably be made that the span be increased 30 feet on either side, making it one of 180 feet, instead of 120 feet, as originally intended.

Many people prominent in the State were present and addressed the meeting in favor of the bridge. Only one objection was heard, that from a cottage owner, who disapproved of the location. The proposed bridge, a concrete one, and for which the last legislature appropriated $50,000, will be constructed a little to the north of the present one.

Baptist Tent Meetings

Under the auspices of the Baptist State Mission Board of Maryland, Rev. W. E. West will conduct two tent meetings in the early future. One will be conducted at Venton from August 27th to September 10th. The other will be at Princess Anne from September 27th to October 1st. In these meetings Dr. West will be assisted by Dr. A. J. Frisbie, of Baltimore, who is the State evangelist for the Maryland Baptists. Dr. Frisbie is well known throughout the State and has the strong endorsement of the denomination. He has held successful meetings at Crisfield, Marion and Rehoboth, this county. During the services at Crisfield on Sunday nights it was impossible to seat the people who desired to hear him.

The people of Venton and Princess Anne should avail themselves of the opportunity to hear Dr. Frisbie in these meetings.

Fruitland Has New Physician

Dr. W. O. Daisey, physician and surgeon, has located at Fruitland for the practice of his profession. Dr. Daisey was a graduate of the medical department of the University of Maryland in the class of 1911. He immediately began practice on Tangier Island, Va., and soon built up quite a good practice. He continued at Tangier until about two weeks ago, when he located at Fruitland. Dr. Daisey has been highly recommended as a physician and surgeon.

Maryland Gave Eight Millions

Maryland contributed $8,789,495.35 in internal revenue to the federal government for the fiscal year which ended June 30, 1916, according to the preliminary report of the Commissioner of Internal Revenue.

This total is made up of $6,178,812.76 of ordinary revenue; $1,248,778.67 emergency revenue, $555,687.34 corporation income tax, and $806,216.58 individual income tax.

The total receipts by the government of internal revenue amounted to $612,723,237.77 for the fiscal year, as against $416,681,032.86 for the fiscal year which ended June 30, 1915.

REV. JULIUS A. HEROLD DEAD

Passes Away At Ocean City, After Lingering Illness

Rev. Julius A. Herold, pastor of Wicomico Presbyterian Church, Salisbury, died last Tuesday afternoon at Ocean City, after an illness of several months of Bright's disease. Deceased was compelled to give up his pastoral work early in the summer and went to Ocean City, hoping the change would benefit him.

Dr. Herold was born in Germany about 55 years ago, and came to this country with his parents when a lad. He entered Princeton College and graduated with honors, afterwards entering the Theological Seminary, where he prepared himself for the ministry.

His first charge was at Williamsport, Pa. Later he filled the pulpits of two large churches in Philadelphia, at various times, spending most of his lifetime in that city. Nearly two years ago, on account of his first wife's declining health, Dr. Herold accepted a call to the Lewes (Del.) Church and filled that pulpit for eight years with great success.

Early in January, 1915, Dr. Herold accepted a call to the Wicomico Presbyterian Church, Salisbury, and was installed January 13th, succeeding Rev. W. T. M. Beale, who had accepted a call to Paterson, N. J.

Dr. Herold's ministerial labors in Salisbury were eminently successful. He was a very scholarly man, a profound theologian, and a forceful speaker. His sermons showed research and careful preparation, and never failed to hold the closest attention of his hearers. The deceased is survived by a widow, who was Miss Elizabeth Long, of Lewes, Del., two sons and a daughter by the first marriage.

Funeral services were held in the Wicomico Presbyterian Church, Friday morning at 10 o'clock, conducted by Rev. Mr. Beale, a former pastor. The remains were then taken by automobile to Lewes, Del., for interment.

Would Divide Florida Into Two States

Because of differences of climate and the character of the people between North and South Florida, agitation has been started to divide the State by a line running along the twenty-ninth parallel. Another suggested division line is the Suwanee River, some 25 miles north of the twenty-ninth parallel. The northern portion would contain about 27,000 square miles, a little larger than West Virginia and larger than Vermont, New Hampshire and New Jersey together. South of the twenty-ninth parallel there is something like 41,000 square miles, slightly more than Ohio and a little less than Tennessee.

It has been proposed to name the new state, the northern half of Florida, Jefferson, in honor of Thomas Jefferson, while the south half would retain the name of Florida.

The suggestion for the division of the state into two states was made as early as 1914, but the matter was dropped. Recently the state has been thrown into a turmoil over the selection of a Democratic candidate for governor. The northern part of the State is pulling in one direction and the other part in another. The northern part of the state is inclined to prohibition, while the southern part, with Key West and Tampa, would apparently prefer to retain the old order of things.

While no formal campaign has been launched looking to creating sentiment for a division of the state, the prospects are that one will be under way before many months.

Public School Statistics

The annual report of W. H. Dashiell, superintendent of the public schools for Somerset county, contains the following interesting statistics:

Number of school houses in county, 79—frame, 76; brick, 3. Number of rooms occupied, 143. Number of teachers, white, 103; colored, 37. Terms schools were open, white, 3 3-5; colored, 2 2-5. Number of pupils enrolled, white, 3,732; colored, 2,123; total, 5,851; average attendance, white, 2,452; colored, 1,304; total, 3,756; over 16 years, white, 85; colored, 49; total, 134. Visits by county superintendent, 233. Number of pupils in grades, 1st, 1,698; 2nd, 867; 3rd, 842; 4th, 646; 5th, 531; 6th, 406; 7th, 326; 8th, 211; 9th, 102; 10th, 53; 11th, 63.

These figures show an improvement over those of last year, the enrollment exceeding last years by 305, and the average attendance by 163. The various grades also show similar improvements. The high school grades exceed those of 1915 by 31. The cost of running the schools was $76,060.96. A statement of the items of expense will be published in full in November.

SOIL FERTILITY DISCUSSED

Many Farmers Present at County Agent's Meeting.

County Demonstrator H. S. Lippincott held a very interesting meeting on the farm of Mr. Myron Mordoff last Thursday afternoon. At this meeting the subject of all leguminous crops was gone over thoroughly and the farmer was told how to use them in crop rotation for soil fertility.

Mr. Sidney Haskell, one of the best agronomists in the East, was one of the speakers. Mr. Haskell told what a very important thing it was to drain land, and how much easier it was to farm soil well drained. He also stated that a well limed soil was a better drained soil, and that by heavy liming permanent fertility of the soil was more easily reached.

Mr. Haskell condemned deep cultivation of corn, as deep cultivating pruned several feet of roots; that the roots were supplied to run out into the soil in search of plant food, and that if the farmer cut many of the roots off by cultivating deep he was robbing the plant of food that the roots would have taken in. Deep cultivating of corn, or rather root pruning of corn, causes it to turn yellow in dry weather, as much of its power to drink and eat has been cut off.

Mr. Haskell also went into the use of fertilizers on various soils. During these talks he used well arranged charts explaining all in a very practical way to the farmer.

All who were present considered it a great treat to hear Mr. Haskell and expressed the hope that County Agent Lippincott would have him with them again in the near future.

While going through this county Mr. Haskell made the remark that he had seen more soy beans and cow peas than in any other county he had visited in his travels this summer. This speaks well for Somerset and the work done by our County Agent. When county agent work started in Somerset county very little alfalfa was grown, and by next spring about 1,500 acres will be planted in this crop. More alfalfa and live stock will add more rich farmers to our county, and more rich farmers mean better homes, schools, roads and everything that goes to make life richer.

Father And Son Form Partnership

Mr. Hooper S. Miles, a well-known young lawyer, of Salisbury, announces that after August 20th he will be associated with his father, Hon. Alonzo L. Miles, in the practice of law, under the firm name of Miles & Miles, with offices at 105 Water street, Salisbury.

Mr. Miles recently passed the examination before the State Board, and a few days ago was admitted before the Court of Appeals.

Mr. Miles has been for the past three months filling a very responsible position in the Internal Revenue Service in Washington, D. C.

Wilson Not To Make Speaking Tour

After a conference Tuesday between President Wilson and the members of the Democratic Campaign Committee, Vance C. McCormick, chairman of the National Committee, announced that the President would make no speaking tour, but probably would accept invitations to speak at different places.

Mr. McCormick explained the President's decision by saying Mr. Wilson considered a stumping tour incompatible with the dignity of the office of President.

Last week Congressional callers at the White House gained the distinct impression that Mr. Wilson would make a trip to the Pacific Coast. So far the President's only speaking engagements are Hodgenville, Ky., September 4th, and St. Louis September 20th. He probably will speak before a suffrage meeting at Atlantic City September 8th and in Boston October 12th.

Mr. McCormick said that after the adjournment of Congress the President expected to spend most of his time at Long Branch, N. J., and would receive political delegations there after the notification ceremonies September 2nd. The formal notification of Vice-President Marshall will be at Indianapolis about a week after the Presidential notification. Mr. McCormick will see the Vice-President later and arrange a definite date.

Members of the campaign committee who lunched with the President Tuesday later met Secretaries Lansing, McAdoo and Daniels, Postmaster-General Burleson and Attorney-General Gregory, the only members of the Cabinet in Washington, at Mr. McAdoo's office for a general discussion on political subjects.

Mr. J. F. Fluhearty, of Niles, O., is visiting Mr. Frank Lano and family, on Beckford avenue.

MARYLAND TUBERCULOSIS ASSOCIATION

Will Hold Meeting In Princess Anne To-morrow (Wednesday)

The "Better Health Car" of the Maryland Association for the Prevention and Relief of Tuberculosis arrived in Princess Anne Saturday morning. Mr. Alden Anderson, the Field Secretary of Association, and his Boy Scout assistant are encamped on the High School grounds. They live in the open, thus demonstrating one of the main phases in the prevention and cure of tuberculosis.

A week or ten days will be spent in the county. Meetings will be held here and at Crisfield, at which moving pictures will be shown and illustrated lectures on tuberculosis given. The meeting in Princess Anne will be held at the Court House, Wednesday evening, August 23rd. Mr. Anderson will travel at least two days throughout the country sections, distributing educational literature on tuberculosis. Every section of the county will be reached.

While in the County Mr. Anderson will endeavor to organize a committee, which will act as a branch of the Maryland Tuberculosis Association. Committees are being organized in all the counties in order that the propaganda started by this campaign may be perpetuated, and a more co-ordinated fight against tuberculosis throughout the State effected.

The car and its crew will leave for Crisfield on Thursday, and after a few days' stay there will begin operations on the Western Shore.

Hall-Tawes Wedding

Mr. William J. Hall, the prominent lumberman of Marion and owner of the Glendale Stock Farm, and Miss Naomi Tawes, the accomplished daughter of Capt. and Mrs. L. S. Tawes, of Crisfield, were married in Philadelphia at high noon on Saturday, Aug. 5th. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Louis Randall, formerly pastor of Mt. Pleasant M. P. church, Crisfield, in the presence of the bride's father and a few intimate friends.

After the ceremony Mr. and Mrs. Hall left for a wedding tour to Atlantic City and Atlantic coast resorts, where they spent several days. They returned by way of steamer from Baltimore to Salisbury, where they were met by the bride's brother, Dr. P. H. Tawes, who motored with them to Marion, where they will reside.

Public School Notes

At a meeting of the School Board on August 8th, Mr. E. B. Lyons was elected attendance officer for Somerset county. Last week Dr. M. Bates Stephens, State Superintendent, declined to certify Mr. Lyons for the position and Mrs. Addie E. Bond, who was elected, in case of this event, to the combined position of attendance office and elementary supervisor, as announced in last week's Marylander and Herald, will be ready to assume her duties when schools open. Mr. Lyons' appointment by the School Board, as announced in the Marylander and Herald, was a tentative one and was subject entirely to the approval of the State Superintendent.

Mrs. Bond was for years a school teacher in Somerset county and she has been clerk to the School Board for ten years past. She is thoroughly acquainted with school matters. She also recently attended lectures at Johns Hopkins University with the view of equipping herself for the important work of her new office. State Superintendent Stephens has approved Mrs. Bond's appointment.

The many friends of Mr. Lyons regret that he can not be certified for his office. His appointment was made because of his fearless character and the fact that this office would not have any financial bearing, his duties being only to look after non-attending pupils. The examination of colored teachers will be held in the grand jury room of the Court House on September 20th and 21st.

A Pleasant Outing

Dr. J. McFadden Dick entertained a number of his friends at his handsome home in Fairmount on Wednesday, August 9th. The party embarked on a boat for a fishing trip down the sound and spent a very enjoyable day. Although there were thirteen in the party, it was not an unlucky number for their host, who was the champion of the party with a catch of 36 fine fish to his credit. Mr. A. M. Walls took the "booby" prize with his catch of four fish. Some of the others of the party also made good catches, and some of the party blamed "Harry" Dennis, of Salisbury, for their bad luck and charged him with "stealing" all the pealers and using them himself and leaving them with nothing but "hard shells" for their bait. The party included Messrs. A. M. Walls, E. Homer White, J. Waller Williams, Dr. Toulson, of Chestertown; R. Toulson, of Baltimore; John M. Toulson, D. B. Cannon, Harry Dennis, Mr. McAllister, of Baltimore; Masters Harry Dennis and Mack Dick, and Dr. J. McFadden Dick.

BURNED LIME vs. LIME CARBONATE

The greatest authority on lime in the United States, Dr. Cyril G. Hopkins, of the University of Illinois, under date of December 1, 1915, says:
"No trustworthy investigations support the use of burned lime in preference to natural lime carbonate, such as ground pulverized shells, limestone or marl. On many soils a moderate use of burned lime, in connection with the liberal use of farm manures, yields profitable returns, which, no doubt, would be still more profitable if the burned lime were replaced with carbonate in equivalent amount and of proper fineness."

Patmos and John the Apostle.

The little island called Patmos has an entirely Greek population of 4,000, mostly sponge fishers, and although in close proximity to Turkey, no Turks dwell on the island and no mosque has ever been erected where John the Apostle was in the spirit on the Lord's day. The only export from Patmos, according to an old geographer who visited the island a hundred years ago, was at that time cotton stockings, which were sent to Venice.

The same authority adds that there were 300 churches on the island, which, seeing that the number of dwelling houses was only 700, suggests a rather handsome surplus of places of worship. The monastery in which the name of John the Divine is perpetuated is a massive building flanked by towers like a fortress, and the visitor is shown inevitably the grotto on the mountain in which it is claimed that John wrote his book. Over the grotto a small church has been erected. The isolation of the island gives a pathetic interest to John's description of the heavenly Jerusalem when there should be "no more sea."

Where Things Happen.

No wonder that people like the west. They move towns around, move banks and business enterprises. One never knows when he meets an automobile but what it is carrying a whole city to be laid out and constructed and boomed, all from that one car—a real city, too, which in a year or two produces a governor, a cattle king, an oil gusher, and no one can tell what all. One day the prairie is bare and bleak, and the next it is covered with tents. Within a week tar paper shacks have replaced the tents, and then come painted houses and rows of trees.

Very rapidly the rich old grazing lands of the prairie are being turned into farms. The plows are cutting through right out to the edges of the bad lands. The new country is growing up and becoming old and settled and wealthy.—Outing.

A Burning Glass in the Eye.

In the front part of each of our eyes is a convex lens of great power and clarity. It acts exactly like a burning glass. If a person was made to look at the sun, say, for half a minute, his eye would actually start to burn up. The lens would focus the rays of the sun on the retina, and that part of the eye would immediately scorch and later would burn to a crisp. This can happen, however, only when one looks at the sun directly or in a mirror. If one holds a pin between the sun and the eye and looks at the pin, although the sun is in a direct line with the eye and although its rays are entering the eye, the eye is not hurt, because the rays are not focused inside the eyeball. This is the wonderful property the lens has, that of focusing objects at different distances. The means by which it does this are its power to change its curvature.

Riding a Colt.

If a young colt is ridden or driven several miles over cobblestones or even over a pike or gravel road he may be stove up for life. A colt's legs and feet are filled with soft and tender bones, and his muscles and sinews are easily stretched and torn. Bones are not iron, and they easily crumble under strain and pressure, and tendons often pull loose from where they are grown to young bones, and they cannot be grown back again. It takes a colt of almost iron legs even at two years old to carry the lightest boy and run fast as far as a mile.

Cure For Cholera Morbus

"When our little boy, now seven years old, was a baby he was cured of cholera morbus by Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy," writes Mrs. Sidney Simmons, Fair Haven, N. Y. "Since then other members of my family have used this valuable medicine for colic and bowel troubles with good satisfaction and I gladly endorse it as a remedy of exceptional merit." Obtainable everywhere.

A Man Hater

How She Was Converted From Her Antagonism

By ESTHER VANDEVEER

There are all sorts of persons in the world, both men and women. Those who have an abnormal development of some kind are usually called cranks. Miss Clara Bedford was one of these. There was no ism too radical for her. One of her idiosyncrasies was antagonism to man. Man had kept woman under his heel for centuries, making her what she is, or, rather, what she was, for, thank heaven, she is now every day asserting herself.

"How about children?" she was asked. "There must be fathers as well as mothers. If women hate men, where will the babies come in?"

Miss Bedford had no reply for this. Unreasonable persons don't seem to need a reply to questions that tumble their theories about their heads; their confidence in what they believe is not a whit lessened from the want of reason. They go right on just as if they had an answer and a perfectly satisfactory one.

Nevertheless, Miss Bedford was a very human being. Down in the bottom of her heart she loved an imaginary man and yearned for a child.

However, acting upon her prejudices, she arranged for her summer to get away from men. She was wealthy and bought a tract of land in New Hampshire upon which she built a cottage. There she went with servants and a few companions of her own sex, resolved that if any man trespassed on her property she would call upon the law to eject him.

She used to get up in the morning early and take long walks. One morning on one of these walks she saw on the border of her domain a tent. What was worse than the tent was a man walking away from it. Miss Bedford started at once for the trespasser, but before she reached him he had disappeared among the trees. Reaching the tent, she pulled back the canvas in front and peeped in.

What was her astonishment to see lying on a bed of boughs a child—a little girl about two years old—asleep. One chubby arm was thrown back upon the pillow—for there was some bedding—the other was under the cover. The fine hair was tumbled, the cheeks were round and rosy, in the chin was a dimple. The lips were parted and showed a few little white teeth set in pink gums.

Miss Bedford went into the tent and approached the sleeping child. The cover at the foot of the bed was disarranged and showed five little toes. Miss Bedford could not resist a temptation to take them in her fingers. The child gave a little kick, opened its eyes and frowned at the trespasser. Then, its brow smoothing, it said:

"Mamma." Miss Bedford bent over the little girl, who put out both arms to her to be taken up. She lifted the infantile burden of flesh from the rude couch, kissing it as she did so, and, pulling its clothes about it, took a wicker chair, the only article in the tent on which to sit, and hugged the baby to her breast. "Dindin," said the little one.

"Dindin," repeated Miss Bedford. "How am I to get you, dear little child, any dindin?" She looked about her and went on, "There's nothing here for a grown person to eat, much less for a child." There were a cup and a saucer and a spoon, but not a morsel to eat. "Dindin," repeated the child.

"I'd like to know where that horrid man is who left you here to starve," said Miss Bedford. "I am here," said a voice, and a man, with a cup of milk in his hand, threw back the tent flap. Miss Bedford saw that he had gone for the baby's breakfast and forgave him.

"Where did you get the milk?" she asked. "From one of your cows. I presume you are the owner of the cow I milked."

"That's not enough. You'd better get some more." The man poured the milk into another cup and without a word went away. While he was gone Miss Bedford gave the little girl milk to drink, which, being warm from the cow, did not need to be heated. As she sat holding the white milk to the vermilion lips she was wondering how the man came to bring a baby on to her property and feed it with milk from her cows. Had it not been for the innocent little baby she might have upbraided him, though he wore a sad countenance. She remembered her principles and resolved to give him a piece of her mind as soon as he returned.

But by this time the child had drunk the milk and was ready for more. "Is there not a morsel of bread in the tent?" asked Miss Bedford.

"Not a crust," replied the man sadly. "Go to my house and tell the cook to give you some of the cereal she is preparing for breakfast and such other food as she can find that will do for a baby's food."

"You are very kind. I am surprised. I was told that you would permit no trespassing on your property, so I did not camp on it. I am just beyond your border."

"What do you mean by keeping this child in a tent with nothing to eat except what you can get by foraging?" "Poverty," was the laconic reply.

"Where is the child's mother?" "Dead."

"What are you going to do?"

"God knows."

There was something woeful in the words.

"I think," Miss Bedford went on, "that you had better let me take the baby to my house."

"I don't care to part with all that is left which I and my wife loved together."

A tender cord was touched in Miss Bedford's breast. She forgot her notion of hating all men in this union of a living man with a dead woman, cemented by their child. She said in a kindly voice:

"It need be only a temporary sojourn if you prefer it, till you can make other provision. You can come if you like. Have you had a breakfast?"

"No."

"Do you know where to get one?"

"No."

"I can give you one."

"You are very kind, but I can manage without your help, I think. The baby!"

"Yes, the baby. You will not let your pride stand in the way of your baby. Certainly you will carry her to my home."

"Of course."

He took the child from her arms and together they started for the house. On the way he gave her a brief explanation of the situation. He was an artist and, like most artists who have not made a name, very poor. Not being able to keep up a home, he and his wife and their child started on a sketching tour, camping here and there, the husband painting landscapes. The wife had died, and the husband, not having any other abode, stuck to his tent. It was a pathetic story, and Miss Bedford's horror for man—at any rate this particular man—melted before it. When they reached the house she said to him:

"It is in your power to do me a kindness. Sit down to the same breakfast table with me and your child. I shall enjoy every mouthful you eat more than you can conceive."

He gave in to this way of putting it. Miss Bedford placed herself between him and his child, and it is questionable which she the most enjoyed helping, the man or the child. He had managed to get the simple food required for his little girl. For her he would take what did not belong to him or accept it from strangers, but not for himself. He was very hungry and ate a great deal, his hostess pressing him to do so. After he had finished she said to him:

"You have done me one favor; now I wish you to do me another. Leave the child here with me while you make your sketches. You are welcome to come here to see her whenever you like, and you may feel privileged to take her away when you can provide for her."

The artist could scarcely conceal the relief this offer brought him. "Since I have only a tent for her," he said, "I have no right to deprive her of the comfort you can give her."

"And you have no right to deprive me of the happiness I shall have in taking care of her."

An hour later the artist kissed his child and took his departure. The tent disappeared, and nothing was seen of man or tent for several weeks. Then he came to Miss Bedford's home with a number of sketches. One of them, a water vista, the original being on her own ground, Miss Bedford very much fancied. She offered the artist a good price for it. He declined it on the ground that through charity she would pay him more than it was worth. But when she proposed that he should send it to a dealer in New York to fix its value he accepted the proposition. Miss Bedford privately wrote the dealer to fix a price she named herself, and this she paid the artist.

Now and again he came in from his sketching tours to see his child, and every time he came he offered to relieve Miss Bedford of her charge. She invariably declined to be relieved unless he insisted on his right to take his baby to himself, and the longer the removal was put off the more difficult it would be for Miss Bedford to give up the child. But the father would not accept of the lady's hospitality, and this made it awkward. If he would have made his headquarters at the house when not out painting it would have been much pleasanter, for the child was constantly fretting for him.

Finally when he began to get some return for his pictures Miss Bedford proposed that if he would make her house his lodging place when not out sketching she would permit him to pay a nominal board. After much haggling as to the amount, the lady declaring what he proposed to pay nothing less than robbing him, a compromise was made, and for the rest of the summer a room in a wing of the house was at his disposal whenever he chose to use it.

The truth is nature was working in Miss Bedford, the artist and the little girl to make the three one. They were becoming necessary to one another, and a time arrived when the woman found it out. One would suppose that her antipathy to men in general would have at least troubled her at finding herself in a position to succumb. But it did not. The child stepped in to render that a thing of the past. One day when Miss Bedford was on one side of the baby's crib and the father on the other, he trying to unwind the little one's arms from his neck that he might go forth to sketch, Miss Bedford said:

"There's no use in our making ourselves uncomfortable and troubling the child any longer. You won't propose to me, that I know. If the mountain will not go to Mohammed, Mohammed must go to the mountain." You can marry me whenever you like."

After that when he went on sketching tours he usually took his wife and the child with him.

OUR LOCAL TRADE

The doctrine of local trade is not a new one. Home merchants naturally expect home people to patronize them. They complain if outside merchants intrude upon their territory. There are times, it is true, when home merchants have not the stock and can not supply what is needed. In such a case the public has no relief but to purchase where goods can be obtained. The question is thus invited as to whether home merchants make a sufficient investigation as to the class of goods that are desired in a community and make a suitable display in their advertising as to the materials they are carrying.

The complaint that has been made lately in Princess Anne is that dealers from other towns have obtruded upon the opportunities of home dealers. The town has in it men who make specialties of certain articles and these dealers can not see the propriety of outside towns' selling the same class of articles to persons who ought to patronize home merchants. A town to become properly prosperous should cater to its home trade.

Some years ago a board of trade was organized for the town of Princess Anne. Like many other confederations it seems to have gone to pieces. Would it not be advisable to reconstruct such a board? It could appoint its committees to look into home conditions and investigate such complaints as some of our merchants are making. A town can not build upon any selfish principle. "Every man for himself and the Lord for us all," may be unique as a proposition, but it has little of public sentiment to its credit. The idea is to get together and to stay together. A board of trade should not be permitted to languish, much less perish.

The home trade doctrine is one that should appeal to our home people. Every effort should, therefore, be made to see that Princess Anne merchants who put their money into enterprises should receive the support to which they are entitled. To make such an appeal involves the idea of correct displaying and advertising. We do not mean the latter to be more specific than it is intended to be, nor to be used as a special phrase because a local newspaper is publishing this article. Advertising should be of a general type and people should be accustomed to seeing goods or else seeing suitable advertising to show where and what goods can be obtained. Let our town merchants take heart and not get too discouraged. Let them do their own part first and the proper results will follow.

Explorer Stefansson's Discovery

Six members of the Vilhjalmur Stefansson Arctic expedition who arrived at Nome, Alaska, on the 7th instant on the power schooner Alaska, last Tuesday related their experiences in the Polar regions during the last three years. They said Stefansson, who remained in the Arctic to continue his work of exploring newly discovered land north of Prince Patrick Land, probably would not return to civilization during the present season.

The party aboard the Alaska was under Dr. Rudolph Anderson, Stefansson's chief subordinate, who had been exploring and charting the coast line bordering Union and Dolphin straits and the Coronation gulf region, far east of the mouth of the Mackenzie River. The entire party was in good physical condition.

New land which Stefansson discovered is described as a second Greenland. The explorer traced about 200 miles of its shore line, and found high mountains upon it.

The Alaska brought about 30 tons of specimens gathered during the years spent in the north, in addition to a mass of data of great value from a scientific standpoint.

The Newspaper Crisis

The publishers of newspapers all over the country, those particularly, who have been compelled to sign up contracts for print paper during the past few months have charged that the exorbitantly high price of that commodity has been forced to its present skyscraper altitude by a combination of manufacturers.

The latter have denied the charges and declare the present prices are simply the result of working out of the old law of supply and demand and that they are using their best endeavors to meet the situation, although they are not enjoying war-time profits. The Federal Trade Commission has been called upon to investigate the charges and the conditions and that tribunal has already taken considerable evidence. Whatever may be the cause—whether it is a combination of the manufacturers to force this country to inflated prices, or whether it is due to a shortage of raw material, the fact remains that the white paper upon which the newspapers of the present time are printed has soared to a financial elevation never known before in the history of the printing business.

Retrenchment on the part of the publishers is now an absolute necessity. An appeal has been made to the circulation departments of all members of the Associated Press service, asking that they help in the present paper crisis by eliminating the return privileges of dealers. The city dailies are contemplating reducing the size of their papers and advancing their advertising rates, as well as condensing their news stories and dispensing with many special features they have heretofore provided their readers.

Just now the flimsy white printpaper is a czar and is making demands on its subjects which they must obey. Already many of the smaller papers have been forced to suspend publication, and many other plants are on the verge of bankruptcy. It is claimed by the manufacturers that the scarcity of wood pulp used in the manufacture of this grade of paper and the unprecedented demand for the finished product on account of the European war—demands coming from quarters hitherto silent in the paper market—have been the causes of the crisis.

Publishers all over the country are alarmed at the outlook, and the reading public may well concern themselves with probabilities of the future regards their newspaper. Unless relief is soon found the newspaper of 1917 is liable to be a prototype of those printed in the days of Benjamin Franklin and his contemporaries, so far as size is concerned. Optimism as to the outcome has not been wholly snuffed out by the publishers' association, and while they are hoping for relief they are nevertheless making all the necessary arrangements to meet the crisis and preserve to the largest extent possible the interests of their patrons.—Ex.

Is The Charge True?

In one of his speeches, last week, Mr. Hughes declared: "We stand alone among the nations of the earth in financial incompetency."

As we are accustomed to boasting of standing alone in respect of various elements of national greatness—alone at the top of the roll—this accusation of standing alone in an uncomplimentary and discreditable position will not be relished by many citizens. They will incline to ask Mr. Hughes for specifications.

That we are a rich country is not doubted. We spend a great deal of money for the purposes of administration. We also spend this money recklessly at times, but it is hardly true that we are, as a government, "financially incompetent."

For many years our government suffered from lack of a competent system of banking and currency, but Mr. Hughes' party was responsible for this shortcoming, not the present administration. The latter collected the long-standing evil in a very effective manner. And it has not been any more incompetent in respect of extravagance than its predecessors. Mr. Hughes will have to be more explicit.—Wilmington Every Evening.

Speed Worship A Disease

The reckless speeder responsible for the San Bruno motor car tragedy in which four persons were killed has gone to his account. Having paid his penalty in full, it is not fitting to add anything in the way of rebuking criticism, and yet the incident serves to raise the question as to whether the law should prohibit confirmed speed maniacs from taking charge of a machine.

It is certainly not enough to fine men guilty of furious driving. In most cases they are in a position to pay the assessment and give the matter no further thought. Speed worship is as much a disease as alcoholomania, with which it is very often linked, and just as the confirmed drunkard cannot be cured by fines, so is the confirmed speeder as little affected by similar punishment.

The only thing to be done with the habitual racer is to make it a criminal offense for him to drive a car.

If the speeders only killed themselves the law should endeavor to prevent their suicide, but when, as so often happens, they kill the innocent, it is the duty of society to see that they are suitably restrained.

Instead of being a pleasure to drive out on a Sunday, it has become a hazardous adventure from which the cautious are inclined to withdraw.

One would imagine that the ever increasing list of tragedies would serve as a warning to the reckless, but when the speed fiend is at the wheel away go experience, common sense and every other restraint. Like excessive drinking the speed craving grows by what it feeds on, and from the mania for passing other motor cars it extends to madness of challenging locomotives even on their own rails.—San Francisco Chronicle.

Great Also Is Pocomoke

Quite recently The Star remarked editorially upon the success of Crisfield in cashing-in on the waterfood yield of the big sounds that spread northward and southward from her gateways.

And lo! Here is the editor of the Pocomoke Ledger-Enterprise charging that the Crisfield press agents have "put one over on the big city desks."

Also the editor of the Ledger-Enterprise remarks: "We believe Pocomoke to be the agricultural and business center of the Eastern Shore."

The Pocomoke editor explains how Baltimore, Philadelphia and Washington are dependent upon the Pocomoke region for their potato supplies and how train loads and ship loads of watermelons and cantaloupes go every day of the season from round about Pocomoke to the hungry hordes of the big cities.

These and other facts are stated to sustain the claim that Pocomoke is the business center of the Eastern Shore and The Star accepts the whole summary without disputing a single item in the bill of particulars.

If Salisbury or Easton or Chestertown or Cambridge or Centerville or Denton or Elkton or Crisfield or Snow Hill or Princess Anne can show cause why Pocomoke should not be regarded as "the agricultural and business center of the Eastern Shore," now's the time to speak out. It's a large question and fraught with dynamic possibilities and The Star will insist upon maintaining a neutral attitude. But as we have said in the headline so here we repeat, Great also is Pocomoke! But we are open minded and can easily be convinced that great also is Easton or Denton or Ridgeley or Berlin! Great is the East'n Sho' whether taken as one sublime whole or considered about in spots!

For one thing sustaining the Pocomoke claim the editorial column of The Star can speak knowingly. Strange and wonderful is the steamboat journey from Pocomoke Sound up the Pocomoke River to Pocomoke City. Black as the River Styx, the river that washes the front of Pocomoke City winds for fifty miles through a tangled forest. If the distance is not fifty miles it seems that long. The river narrows so that in places the bows of the overhanging cypresses almost touch the upper deck of the steamer. It is a long journey from the sound up, but at last Pocomoke, glorious Pocomoke, bursts upon the view. It is always a joy to the upstream traveler when the boat toots for Pocomoke.—Baltimore Star.

To Stump For Wilson

Governor Harrington, United States Senator Blair Lee and State Insurance Commissioner W. Mason Shehan will be assigned to stump various states in the interest of President Wilson and the national ticket, according to a dispatch from New York. The dispatch states that Homer S. Cummings, chairman of the speakers' bureau at Democratic national headquarters, is fast getting his plans in shape for the campaign and that he has already compiled a partial list of prominent speakers from Eastern and Southern states who will stump for Wilson.

Further the dispatch says: "Following President Wilson's notification ceremonies at Shadow Lawn, Long Beach, September 2, the democratic national campaign will be launched in earnest. Speakers will stump every state in the Union and the women in states where they have the vote will be especially active."

Making the Little Farm Pay

By C. C. BOWSFIELD

Owners of small farms have taken up the question of beef production. There is a decided movement in favor of meat animals in the central west, and the educational effort now going forward is bound to have a good effect.

This is a profitable branch of farming in more ways than one. Meat values are on such a high basis that farmers can more than double their money on beef where they raise their own stock. Beef raising disposes of fodder and grain to the best advantage, keeps up soil fertility and adds a large cash income to the revenues of the farm.

"I saved $7 on every calf I raised for the baby beef feed lot last year," said L. D. White of Union county, Ia. "Besides, they had more quality, more ability to lay on fat and more feeding capacity than any I could buy."

The owner of a small farm who has equipped his place with a silo and established a field of alfalfa can profitably handle a carload of beef cattle every year. If he cannot breed so many on the place he is always able to buy calves from dairy farmers in the neighborhood. The aim at first should be to produce a carload of marketable stock. Where the farm is 100 to 200 acres there is nothing to hinder the owner raising two or three carloads in a year, but it is best to set the mark at one load for the first season. This branch of business requires a little experience, just as everything else does.

With this program adopted a farmer starting out in beef production should try to prepare a lot of top notch animals that will average 1,000 pounds at the age of twelve to fifteen months. If the right kind of stock is used and there is good success in fattening, top figures in the market will be secured. The careful manager will soon find that he can produce the first 1,000 pounds of beef much more cheaply than he can add to this weight. My observation shows that the real profits are in marketing beef animals at an age not exceeding two years. This is turning over the money pretty fast and by making it a rule to market the stock at an early age one can afford to govern the selling by the tone of the market.

As farmers gain in skill they will find it an easy matter to furnish a fine quality of baby beef. This is accomplished by the selection of suitable calves and a wise system of feeding. No point in the business is more important than that of starting with the right kind of young stock. Then it is only a question of forcing growth by skillful handling. Men who have dairies are able to secure a uniform bunch of young animals, as a rule, but if they fall short of the required number in starting a beef herd with uniformity they will always be able to find native stock to meet their needs. Generally speaking, it is unwise to bring in feeders. Young stock shipped from remote points cost more than they are worth these days, and the transportation units them for maturing rapidly. They don't begin to measure up with stock that gets its start in the neighborhood. A little observation of the market will astonish many farmers who do not know the demand for high quality baby beef and the profit there is in supplying it.

The small farmers of the central west only need to look into the matter of concentrated feeding to realize that they are able to take advantage of the high prices for meat animals. It will pay to restrict the pastures and depend more on alfalfa, silage, roots and concentrated feeds. More can be accomplished on a farm of 50 to 100 acres than is generally understood. The problem is one of management. The opportunity is one of the most attractive that American farmers have ever had presented to them. If they believe in diversity and in business farming one of the first steps they should take is to engage in beef production up to the full capacity of their land.

OLDER BUT STRONGER

To be healthy at seventy, prepare at forty, is sound advice, because in the strength of middle life we too often forget that neglected colds, or careless treatment of slight aches and pains, simply undermine strength and bring chronic weakness for later years.

To be stronger when older, keep your blood pure and rich and active with the strength-building and blood-nourishing properties of Scott's Emulsion which is a food, a tonic and a medicine to keep your blood rich, alleviate rheumatism and avoid sickness. No alcohol in Scott's.

Scott & Bowne, Bloomfield, N. J.

Family Relations.

"Who is that man you were just talking with?"

"That's my brother-in-law."

"He looks enough like you to be your own brother."

"He is my own brother. We are twins."

"Twins? Then why did you say he was your brother-in-law?"

"Because he is. I have three brothers—one in law, one in medicine and one in the army."

Different Views.

"What do you think of married life?"

"The henpecked man, addressing the youthful bridegroom."

"Bliss is no name for it!" said the young husband enthusiastically.

"You are right," said the henpecked one gloomily. "Bliss is no name for it."—London Mail.

Tobacco in France.

The government tobacco monopoly in France was established by Emperor Napoleon Bonaparte in a decree issued Dec. 29, 1810. This decree reserved to the government a monopoly of the importation, manufacture and sale of tobacco in all its forms.

Proper Place.

"Where did the police question the suspected waiter they arrested for thefts at the clubhouse?"

"I guess it was in the grill room."—Baltimore American.

Immune From Suggestions.

"People don't bother Wombat with remedies for his ailment."

"What's his ailment?"

"He's deaf."—Kansas City Journal.

So You Can.

Miss Green—Of course you can't believe everything you hear. Miss Gadleigh—Oh, no, but you can repeat it.—Boston Transcript.

His Invitation.

"I'm digging a well for exercise."

"How are you getting on?"

"Fine! Drop in on me some day."—Life.

The milk of human kindness would be much richer if it wasn't skimmed so often.—Chicago News.

How Margarine is Made.

Oleomargarine when first introduced in England was called "bosh." As this name repelled business, it was changed to "margarine," a word derived from the Greek word for a pearl, because of the pearly appearance of margarine acid.

There has been a great improvement in its manufacture in recent years, so great that the London Lancet says "the product of the present day is a triumph of the art of the refined blending of various fats, vegetable and animal, with milk." It was originally made from the fluid part of beef fat with a trifling proportion of vegetable oil. Today some of its forms contain nothing but nut oils blended with pasteurized skim milk. These are perfectly wholesome.

Varied Duties.

"You advertised as a chauffeur."

"Yes, madam."

"What were your duties at your last place?"

"I drove and cleaned the cars single handed."

"And as maid?"

"I took down my lady at night and assembled her in the morning, madam."—London Punch.

A Double Barreled Grievance.

"What is Smith's grievance against the railway company?"

"He has two grievances. One of them is that some of the trains don't stop at his station and the other that after he gets in the trains they lose time by stopping at other stations."—London Telegraph.

Approximately.

"They say you can't square the circle."

"Well, you can do it after a fashion," said the mathematician, "just as when you go out for a walk you circle the square."—Louisville Courier-Journal.

Varied the Program.

Her Father—Can you support my daughter in the style to which she has been accustomed? Lover—No-o, sir.

Her Father—Then take her, young man. I was afraid you thought you could.—Puck.

When You Have A Cold

Give it attention, avoid exposure, be regular and careful of your diet, also commence taking Dr. King's New Discovery. It contains Pine-Tar, Antiseptic Oils and Balsams. Is slightly laxative. Dr. King's New Discovery eases your cough, soothes your throat and bronchial tubes, checks your cold, starts to clear your head. In a short time you know your cough is better. Its the standard family cold syrup in use over 40 years. Get a bottle at once. Keep it in the house as a cold insurance. Sold at your druggist.

The Clock of Death.

The clock at Hampton Court palace, London, derived its unpleasant title of "the clock of death" by reason of a superstition that whenever any one long resident in the palace dies the clock immediately stops. It is on record that when Anne of Denmark, the queen of James I., died the old timepiece was striking 4 and that it stopped almost before the last stroke sounded. Since that time it is said to have repeated this grisly proceeding each time a royal personage within its jurisdiction died.

At any rate, the clock has an interesting history quite aside from this. It was the first astronomical timepiece made in England, being constructed in 1540 for Henry VIII. Thirty-two years ago it was brought out of a shed wherein it had lain neglected for nearly half a century, and by order of the then secretary of the office of works it was re-erected in the courtyard opposite the entrance to the state apartments.—Pearson's.

England's First Savings Bank.

Writing of women's work and thrift, one is reminded that the first savings bank was instituted by a woman—Mrs. Priscilla Wakefield—who inaugurated a bank scheme for the encouragement of thrift among the children of Tottenham toward the end of the eighteenth century. This proved so successful that in 1804 she extended her plan of a charitable bank to include adults, and similar institutions were set up elsewhere, generally by ladies.

In 1808 Whitbread proposed a national savings bank, but parliament would have none of it. It was not until a Scotch minister, the Rev. Henry Duncan of Ruthwell, established one on a self supporting basis in his parish and set an example copied in almost every other district of Scotland that parliament at last recognized the savings bank as a national concern.—London Mirror.

Magna Charta.

One date, the 19th of June, 1215, will remain an ever memorable one to the people of the Anglo-Saxon race, as on that day Magna Charta was signed. The wickedness and tyranny of King John had raised nearly the whole body of his subjects in rebellion against him, and almost the sole support that he had was a band of foreign mercenaries.

Appalled by the condition in which he found himself the king agreed to meet the army of the barons under their elected general, Fitzwalter, on Runnymede, by the Thames, near Windsor, in order to make terms with them. The barons prepared a charter assuring the rights and privileges of the various sections of the community, and this King John felt compelled to sign. Magna Charta is held to be the basis of British and also of American law and liberty.—Indianapolis News.

A Giant Flag.

At the reunion of the Grand Army held in Washington in 1915 what is believed to be the largest flag in the world was carried in the parade by the delegation from Canton, O. It measured 133 feet in length by 80 feet in width. The stripes were over six feet wide, while the stars in the union measured five feet across from point to point. The weight of the flag was over half a ton, while 117 men were required to carry it along the line of march. More than 20,000 hands set into the stars are the names of over 16,000 patriotic men and women of Canton who contributed either money or labor to the construction of this giant emblem.—A. B. Neiss in St. Nicholas.

The Licorice Plant.

The licorice plant resembles a rose with a single green stem, reaches a height of about three feet and bears a small purple star shaped flower. The first year's root growth resembles a loosely twisted string of tow and may run to twenty feet in length. The second year it assumes a woody substance when dry, and the third year it acquires its commercial value. The time for digging the root is the winter, when it is dried and crushed under heavy stones drawn around on it by mules, much as olives are crushed to extract their oil.

The Result of a Friendly Game

By EDWARD J. STEWART

One night a number of men in a mining camp sat around a table playing cards for money. A man in a white cravat and other clerical indications entered and said:

"My friends, you're making a great mistake."

"How do you make that out, parson?"

"Drop your game for a few minutes and I will tell you."

The players assented, and the clergyman told the following story:

"Do you see this white necktie? Well, the reason I'm wearing it is because of playing for money with a friend. What occurred turned my attention to using what gifts I possess to fighting evil."

"Young fellows from eighteen to twenty-one are apt to play these little games with each other to pass the time. At that age they have to learn by experience that since no one of them wishes to quit loser the game is endless. When they get older they find it doesn't pay and usually give it up."

"When I was twenty years old I was one of a set of young fellows who played poker in one another's rooms. At first none of us was ever out more than a few dollars at a sitting. But our sittings grew longer and longer. There was always some one of the gang that was loser, and he would invariably oppose breaking up, no matter how late the hour. Not only did our sittings grow longer, but our stakes, our winnings, our losses grew larger."

"On one occasion we came together at 8 o'clock in the evening, and at 6 in the morning we adjourned till 9 o'clock the same evening. One of the party, Dick Collins, was out $30. He seemed quite upset over the loss, for he was a bank clerk on a thousand dollars a year, and his mother needed most of his salary. I was the principal winner and readily assented to giving him a chance to recoup as soon as the day was done. We played all the next night, and though I gave Dick every chance to get even, my cards ran so strong and he bet so high that instead of winning he lost. At 6 o'clock in the morning he owed me about $900."

"I didn't want his money, and I didn't wish to spend my nights giving him a chance to win it back. I offered to give back all I had won. This made him very angry, and he asked me if I thought him a child to make such a proposition. So I consented that after one night's sleep I would continue the game. I was getting anxious to have him regain what he had lost, for he seemed to be very badly shaken up. So I made up my mind when we came together again to bet high on my low hands and low on my high hands."

"The next time we sat down to play the rest of the party had dropped out. They seemed to think that the game was getting too stiff for them. Dick produced a lot of bills and insisted on playing for cash instead of on tab, as we had been playing thus far. I was surprised, but had enough money to start in with, so I assented. Somehow the cash on the table seemed more tangible than I O U's, and, though I didn't try to win, I didn't try to lose. The luck continued with me, and Dick was so anxious to win that whenever he had a fair hand he would bet very high, and I was sure to overtop him by one or two points. Once he held three nines to my three tens. Another time I held a pair of queens on three fours, he a pair of kings on three deuces."

"At 3 o'clock in the morning I had won all the cash he had brought with him. He was the worst broken up man I ever saw. His nerves were all on edge."

"Go home, Dick," I said, "and go to sleep. Tomorrow evening we'll dine together, and we'll fix this matter up somehow to your satisfaction. I don't want your money, and I only wish to find out how I can return it to you without trying to lose it to you through the cards."

"Oh, that's what you have been doing—trying to lose?" he said angrily. "If you don't want my money I don't want your generosity."

"He was so hot that I feared he would strike me. I endeavored to soothe him, but failed."

"Generosity be damned!" he kept on bitterly. "More likely the reason I've lost so heavily to you is that you've been manipulating!"

"If I hadn't been so young I suppose I might have endured the insult that was coming. I certainly should have done so without resentment, for he and I were intimate friends, and it was the devil speaking through the cards and not Dick. My right arm went out, and Dick went over."

"No sooner had I struck him than I was sorry for what I had done. He rose and was coming for me like a fury when I slipped out through a door behind me and, darting into my bedroom, locked the door. He followed me and after calling me coward and other names went downstairs, and I heard the house door close behind him."

"I went to bed and tried to sleep, but failed. At 6 o'clock I heard the telephone bell ring and on answering the call was informed by Dick's mother that he had shot himself through the heart."

"It turned out that the cash I had won from him he had taken from the bank where he was employed."

The clergyman stepped to the table, took the cards from it and threw them into the fire. Not a hand was raised to prevent him.

PROCLAMATION

PROPOSED AMENDMENT TO THE CONSTITUTION OF MARYLAND CREATING A BUDGET SYSTEM.

WHEREAS, at the January Session of the General Assembly of Maryland, held in the year 1916, an Act was passed, to-wit: Chapter 139 of said Act, being an Act to propose an amendment to Section 52 of Article III, title, "Legislative Department," of the Constitution of this State; and which said Act is in words and figures following:

"CHAPTER 159.

AN ACT to propose an amendment to Section 52 of Article III, title, "Legislative Department," of the Constitution of this State, regulating the making of appropriations by the General Assembly of Maryland in regular session, and to provide for the submission of said amendment to the qualified voters of this State for adoption or rejection.

Section 1. Be it enacted by the General Assembly of Maryland (three-fifths of all the members of each of the two Houses concurring), That the following be, and the same is hereby proposed as an amendment to Section 52 of Article III, title, "Legislative Department," of the Constitution of this State, the same, if adopted by the legally qualified voters of the State, as herein provided, to become Section 52 of Article III of the Constitution of Maryland.

Sec. 52. The General Assembly shall not appropriate any money out of the Treasury except in accordance with the following provisions:

Sub-Section A: Every appropriation Bill shall be either a Budget Bill, or a Supplementary Appropriation Bill, as hereinafter mentioned.

Sub-Section B:

First. Within twenty days after the convening of the General Assembly (except in the case of a newly elected Governor, and then within thirty days after his inauguration), unless such time shall be extended by the General Assembly for the session at which the Budget is to be submitted, the Governor shall submit to the General Assembly two budgets, one for each of the ensuing fiscal years. Each budget shall contain a complete plan of proposed expenditures and estimated revenues for the particular fiscal year to which it relates; and shall show the estimated surplus or deficit of revenues at the end of such year. Accompanying each budget shall be a statement showing: (1) the revenues and expenditures for each of the two fiscal years next preceding; (2) the current assets, liabilities, reserves and surplus or deficit of the State; (3) the debts and funds of the State; (4) an estimate of the State's financial condition as of the end of each of the fiscal years covered by the two budgets above provided; (5) any explanation the Governor may desire to make as to the important features of any budget and any proposed changes in methods for the reduction or increase of the State's revenue.

Second. Each budget shall be divided into two parts, and the first part shall be designated "Governmental Appropriations" and shall embrace an itemized estimate of the appropriations to be made by the General Assembly as certified to the Governor in the manner hereinafter provided; (2) for the Executive Department; (3) for the Judiciary Department, as provided by law, certified to the Governor by the Controller; (4) to pay and discharge the principal and interest of the debt of the State of Maryland in conformity with Section 34 of Article III of the Constitution, and all laws enacted pursuant thereto; (5) for the salaries payable by the State under the Constitution and laws of the State; (6) for the establishment and maintenance throughout the State of a thorough and efficient system of public schools in conformity with Article VII of the Constitution and with the laws of the State; (7) for such other purposes as are set forth in the Constitution of the State.

Third. The second part shall be designated "General Appropriations," and shall include all other estimates of appropriations.

The Governor shall deliver to the presiding officer of each house the budgets and a bill for all the proposed appropriations of the budgets clearly itemized and classified; and the presiding officer of each house shall promptly cause said budgets and bill to be printed, and such bill shall be known as the "Budget Bill."

The Governor may, before final action thereon by the General Assembly, amend or supplement either of said budgets to correct an oversight or in case of an emergency, with the consent of the General Assembly by delivering such an amendment or supplement to the presiding officers of both houses; and such amendment or supplement shall thereby become a part of said budget bill as an amendment to the items of said bill or as a modification of or a substitute for any item of said bill such amendment or supplement may affect.

The General Assembly shall not amend the budget bill so as to affect either the obligations of the State under Section 34 of Article III of the Constitution, or the provisions made by the laws of the State for the establishment and maintenance of a system of public schools, or the payment of any salaries required by Article VII of the Constitution, or the Constitution, thereof, and the General Assembly may amend the bill by increasing or diminishing the items therein relating to the judiciary, but except as hereinafter specified, may not alter the said bill except to strike out or reduce items therein, provided, however, that the salary or compensation of any public officer shall not be increased or reduced by such amendment; and such bill when and as passed by both houses shall be a law immediately without further action by the Governor.

Fourth. The Governor and such representatives of the executive departments, boards, officers, and commissions of the State as he may designate for the purpose, shall have the right, and when requested by either house of the legislature, it shall be his duty to appear and be heard with respect to any budget bill during the consideration thereof, and to answer inquiries relative thereto.

Sub-Section C: Supplementary Appropriation Bills:

Neither house shall consider other appropriations until the Budget Bill has been finally acted upon by both houses, and no such other appropriation shall be valid except in accordance with the provisions following: (1) Every such appropriation shall be embodied in a separate bill limited to some single work, object or purpose thereto stated and called herein a Supplementary Appropriation Bill; (2) Each Supplementary Appropriation Bill shall provide the revenue necessary to pay the appropriation thereby made by a direct or indirect tax to be laid and collected as shall be directed in said Bill; (3) No Supplementary Appropriation Bill shall become a law unless it be passed in each house by a vote of a majority of the whole number of the members elected; and the year and days recorded on its final passage; (4) Each Supplementary Appropriation Bill shall be presented to the Governor of the State as provided in Section 17 of Article II of the Constitution and thereafter all the provisions of said Section shall apply.

Nothing in this amendment shall be construed as preventing the Legislature from passing at any time in accordance with the provisions of Section 28 of Article III of the Constitution and subject to the Governor's power of approval as provided in Section 17 of Article II of the Constitution as appropriation bill to provide for the payment of any obligation of the State of Maryland within the protection of Section 30 of Article I of the Constitution of the United States.

Sub-Section D: General Provisions:

First. If the Budget Bill shall not have been finally acted upon by the Legislature three days before the expiration of its regular session, the Governor may, and it shall be his duty to issue a proclamation extending the session for such further period as may, in his judgment, be necessary for the passage of such Bill; but no other matter than such Bill shall be considered during such extended session except a provision for the cost thereof.

Second. The Governor for the purpose of making up his budgets shall have the power, and it shall be his duty, to require from the proper State Officials, including all executive departments, all executive and administrative offices, bureaus, boards, commissions and agencies expending or supervising the expenditure of, and all institutions applying for State moneys and appropriations, such itemized estimates and other information, in such form and at such times as he shall direct. The estimates for the Legislative Department, certified by the presiding officer of each house, of the Judiciary, as provided by law, certified by the Controller, and for the public schools, as provided by law, shall be transmitted to the Governor, in such form and at such times as he shall direct, and shall be included in the budget without revision.

The Governor may provide for public hearings on all estimates and may require the attendance at such hearings of representatives of all agencies, and of all institutions applying for State moneys. After such public hearings he may, in his discretion, revise all estimates except those for the legislative and judiciary departments, and for the public schools as provided by law.

Third. The Legislature may, from time to time, enact such laws, not inconsistent with this Section, as may be necessary and proper to carry out its provisions.

Fourth. In the event of any inconsistency between any of the provisions of this Section and any of the other provisions of the Constitution, the provisions of this Section shall prevail. But nothing herein shall in any manner affect the provisions of Section 34 of Article III of the Constitution or of any laws heretofore or hereafter passed in pursuance thereof, or be construed as preventing the Governor from calling extraordinary sessions of the Legislature, as provided by Section 16 of Article II, or as preventing the Legislature at such extraordinary sessions from considering any emergency appropriation or appropriations.

If any item of any appropriation bill passed under the provisions of this Section shall be held invalid upon any ground, such invalidity shall not affect the legality of the Bill or of any other item of such Bill or Bills.

Section 2. And be it enacted by the authority aforesaid, That the said foregoing section hereby proposed as an amendment to the Constitution shall at the next ensuing general election, being the Presidential and Congressional election, to be held on the Tuesday next after the first Monday of November, nineteen hundred and sixteen, be submitted to the legal and qualified voters of the State for their adoption or rejection in conformity with the directions contained in article XIV of the Constitution of this State, and at said election the vote on said proposed amendment to the Constitution shall be by ballot, and upon each ballot there shall be placed the following synopsis of said amendment under the caption of

"CONSTITUTIONAL AMENDMENT PROVIDING FOR A BUDGET."

This amendment provides that the Governor shall present to the Legislature soon after it is convened a Budget, giving a complete plan of proposed expenditures and estimated revenues for the two succeeding fiscal years showing clearly any surplus or deficit in State funds. In these estimates he shall make provision for the interest and sinking funds of all State debts, for all salaries as fixed by law. With regard to most other matters he may revise the estimates presented to him either by State Officers or State-aided institutions. The Legislature may not increase the estimates presented by the Governor or pass any additional appropriation act except by a majority vote and must make provision by tax for such increase or additional appropriation. The Legislature may not alter in an appropriation act the provision made by law for the State debt, or for the judiciary, but may reduce all other items in the Governor's estimates; and the words for the Constitutional Amendment and against the Constitutional Amendment as now provided by law, and immediately after said election due returns shall be made to the Governor of the vote for and against the proposed amendment, and further proceedings had in accordance with Article XIV of the Constitution.

Approved March 28, 1916.

Now, therefore, I, Emerson C. Harrington, Governor of the State of Maryland, in pursuance of the direction contained in Section 1 of Article II of the Constitution of Maryland, do hereby order and direct a copy of this Proclamation, containing a full, true and correct copy of the text of said Chapter 159 of the Acts of Maryland of 1916, be published in at least two newspapers in each of the counties of the State and in three newspapers published in the City of Baltimore, one of which said newspaper in the City of Baltimore to be printed in the German language, once a week for three months next preceding the General Election to be held in this State on November 7th, 1916, and at which election the said proposed amendment to the Constitution shall be submitted, in form and manner prescribed by the General Assembly, to the legal and qualified voters of the State for their adoption or rejection.

Price Of Books Goes Up

Book lovers will have to pay from 10 to 25 cents more for current publications. Publishers and retailers already have increased the price. Books formerly selling from 50 cents to $1.00 are now rated 10 cents higher. Those in the past priced from $1.00 to $2.00 are sold at an increase of 25 cents each.

The publishers claim that there has been an increase in the price of paper, leather, cloth and ink amounting to from 50 to 100 per cent. during the past 12 months, and it is impossible to purchase books at old prices.

The consensus of opinion among them is that under the present strong conditions a further increase of from 10 to 20 per cent. may be necessary. They say their only hope is in the ending of the European war. It is claimed there is also a shortage of chemicals which must be obtained from Europe for the manufacture of their particular grade of paper. The surplus supply of this class of material is exhausted and the publishers will have to depend upon a new supply.

The charge now on new publications which formerly wholesaled from 50 cents to $1 is an increase of 5 cents; books recently selling from $1 to $2, an increase of ten cents.

Publishers dealing in school books only will not accept any new contracts for some time to come. They claim that their contracts are of long standing and that they will have all they can do to meet the demand on their output to carry out the old orders.

Wilson And The Farmers

America is, first and foremost, a corn and cotton country. Its chief products are its farm products. It stands at the forefront among the self-sufficient nations who feed themselves and contribute largely to the sustenance of other nations. It follows as a matter of course that in America the best possible basis of credit should be the ownership in fee of a paid-for and productive part of the planet on which we walk about. Our farms are the main source of our wealth; but from the outstart of our colonial existence down to the present day there has been no proper or adequate provision for the establishment of such a system of rural credits as would enable the farmers of the country to borrow money needed for the necessary improving outlay at fair rates of interest. We have so framed our laws and so arranged our tax rates and financial policies as to build up our trading and manufacturing industries while leaving the farmer to shift for himself.

At last we have reached a turning point in our economic development. It is beginning to be recognized that fair play is the soundest governmental policy. To help the farmer to help himself is the very best way to put cheaper bread and meat within reach of all. For a hundred years the farmers have borne, without complaint and without collective aggressive political effort to right their wrongs, the burden of unfair taxation. They are now on the eve of better days. The farmer is soon to be put in a position to fight his way to his proper position at the front of our national affairs without the hindrance of legislative pull-backs.

The repeal of unfair taxes, the firm establishment of the national credit upon a sound Federal banking system, and the initiation of a system of rural credits that will eventually put the farmers of the country in a position to control their own lending and borrowing to their own best advantage, are the great domestic achievements of the Wilson Administration. What other administrations have promised the Wilson Administration has performed.

The farmers of the United States will make a great mistake if they do not go to the polls in November and keep Woodrow Wilson for another four years in the White House. They have the power if they choose to exert it. They have the incentive to push them forward. No other President of the United States has ever done so much for the farmers as a class. One good turn deserves another. Why should not the farmers stand fast by the man who has so staunchly stood forth for them? Philadelphia Record.

A Fisherman's Warning

An old fisherman, writing to the Baltimore Sun, says:

"Most folks plan for their vacation with the fondest expectation, a day to fish upon the briny deep, and with 47 wishes that they'll catch up all the fishes. They vow that's one appointment that they'll keep. Right away they start to tinker with the hook and line and sinker, and they get an outfit swell enough for kings—reel and rod and spreader and stringing line and thread, six dozen hooks and other useless things. Gum boots and slicked jacket, and they make a lot of racket with a washing boiler crammed right full of bait; and with all kinds of commotion they launch out on the ocean, east anchor, drop their lines and start to wait. The sun shines in its splendor upon every spot that's tender and the flies and gnats add glory to the day. But still they keep on baiting through those hours of long waiting, thinking that some stray shad might come by their way. But they're filled with disappointment, and they wish they'd brought some ointment, to ease the pain of scorching on their necks, and by the shades of Hector they don't realize the spectre that they're 'gonna' make when people view their wrecks. The sunburn starts a stinging and the 'skeeters' commence singing and still no bites upon their lines they feel; then say they just think of their folly and they say things worse than 'golly' when the skin upon their necks begins to peel. So after all this watchful waiting, they all commence relating how their luck is always running on the blink, and they give vent to their feeling when they see their faces peeling and they wonder what their friends are going to think. But these people really treasure in calling it a pleasure to go a-fishing upon the deep blue brine; but you can bet your granny that these folks have got my nunny, and I'll take that age-old Simon stout to mine."

The Morning After.

Guest (of the previous evening's bachelor party)—"I say, old man, what's the matter with your pictures this morning?" Festive Host—"Can't make it out, old chappie. I put them all straight after you fellows left last night."

Just The Thing For Diarrhoea

"About two years ago I had a severe attack of diarrhoea which lasted over a week," writes W. C. Jones, Buford, N. D. "I became so weak that I could not stand upright. A druggist recommended Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy. The first dose relieved me and within two days I was as well as ever." Many druggists recommended this remedy because they know that it is reliable. Obtainable everywhere.

Why The Scarcity Of Fish And Crabs?

This question has oft times been asked this summer. Now comes the query: "Why have there been no stinging nettles or jelly fish about Annapolis this season?"

Neither of these questions have as yet been answered satisfactorily. Two or three theories have been advanced, either of which may be a plausible one to apply. Certain it is, however, that there has been a great scarcity of both the soft and hard shell crab, and while the season for fishing with the hook and line should be almost at its height at this time in August, yet few of the finny tribe are being caught through that means.

And the nettles—those horrible ugly creatures, with long, milky covered tails—are what are commonly called stingers, and which have been, for years, a great menace to bathers in the waters about Annapolis should have made their annual visitation some two or three weeks ago. But so far none has as yet been seen. No one has been stung, therefore, and bathers hope they will stay away.

Shell fish experts of the State, who have made quite a study of the matter, advance the claim that the shortage of the supply of crabs is due to persistency on the part of the crabbers in taking the female crustaceans. Others claim that the waters are so charged with oils or some form of alkali or other fluid as to cause the crabs to take to the much deeper habitat. The same theory is advanced as pertaining to the scarcity of fish.

Whatever the cause may be, crabs have been so scarce, that few have been the occasions this season that the local dealers have been able to meet the demands of their customers. And by this time of the year there is generally good sport in fishing in the waters of Severn river and particularly off Toley's reefs. Many local anglers have been out on several occasions. Little has been their luck.

Going back to the nettles, the bathers are not registering any kick, for the devotees of this great sport and exercises are enabled to take their dips morning and afternoon. But there is another complaint in this regard. A number of bathers, who frequent the bathing shores have been affected by a form of sore throat and they are inclined to blame it on the supposed bad condition of the water.—Annapolis Capital.

Mrs. Walker Undergoes An Operation

Theo. A. Walker, manager of the Marylander and Herald, of Princess Anne, on the eastern shore of Maryland, here recently for a visit to Mrs. M. S. Dilworth, a sister of the latter. Mrs. Walker was taken quite ill several weeks ago, and after a consultation between Drs. D. C. Casto, B. S. Hudkins and R. J. Nutter, she was removed to St. Joseph's Hospital, where an operation was performed on Wednesday for the removal of fibroid glands in the throat. She has rallied nicely and the case is very promising. Mrs. Walker is a daughter of J. F. Bowen, on Depot street, and has a number of other near relatives in this city.—The Parkersburg Sentinel.

It is everlastingly too late to pick the winner after the race is over.

Application for Scholarships in the Department of Engineering, established under the provisions of the Laws of Maryland, Chapter 90, 1912, may now be made. If there is more than one applicant for a particular scholarship, a competitive examination must be taken in the Academic Building, Homewood, on September 22, 1916, beginning at 9 a. m.

Each County of the State and each Legislative District of Baltimore City, with the exception of Charles, Harford and Queen Anne's Counties, will be entitled to one or more scholarships for the year 1916-17, in addition to those which have already been assigned. In the three counties mentioned above all the available scholarships have been awarded.

Under the provisions of the Act of Assembly, the County and City scholarships are awarded only to deserving students whose financial circumstances are such that they are unable to obtain an education in Engineering unless free tuition be granted to them. The scholarships entitle the holders to free tuition, free use of text books, and exemption from all regular fees. THE EXPENSE OF ATTENDANCE FOR THOSE WHO DO NOT RECEIVE SCHOLARSHIPS IS NO GREATER THAN AT OTHER MARYLAND INSTITUTIONS.

Scholarships may be awarded to graduates of Loyola College, Maryland Agricultural College, Mt. St. Mary's College, Rock Hill College, St. John's College, Washington College and Western Maryland College; and one scholarship will be awarded "At Large."

Applicants should address the Registrar, The Johns Hopkins University, for blank forms of application and for further information as to examinations, award of scholarships, and courses of instruction.

Must Reduce Paper Consumption

As a result of a series of meetings of the newspaper publishers of Philadelphia to consider what are practically famine conditions in the newspaper market, the following agreement was unanimously reached:

"All morning, evening and Sunday newspapers will immediately reduce the size of their issues to the extent of a total in excess of 80 pages weekly. That beginning September 1 next the accepting from wholesale purchasers of unsold copies of all morning, evening and Sunday newspapers will be discontinued. Heretofore the privilege has been granted to newsboys, newsstands, news agents and carriers."

Facts and figures were submitted showing that the mills were unable to supply the enormous increased demand for white paper. So serious was the situation become, it was pointed out, that, unless drastic reduction of consumption is enforced, some papers throughout the country will be confronted with possible suspension of publication.

Storm Sweeps Somerset

Somerset county was visited Monday night of last week by the worst thunderstorm of the season. It continued from 8 o'clock in the evening until 4 o'clock Tuesday morning. The storm was general throughout the county, but the principal damage done was along the water courses, where the rain was heaviest and the wind the hardest.

At Deal's Island the rainfall was accompanied by a strong gust of wind and vivid lightning. The B. C. & A. steamer Virginia, which was at the wharf, was torn from her moorings and drifted into the Sound, where she anchored until the storm abated. A house was struck by the lightning and considerable damage done to the dwelling, although no one was injured. Considerable damage was done to boats.

The storm reached its greatest height along the Pocomoke river, around Rehoboth. A torrent of rain fell in that vicinity. At Marion Station, a negro, Samuel Lewis was struck by lightning and killed. Heavy damage was done to corn and tomato crops. The corn was beaten to the ground in many places. The rain was not so heavy around Princess Anne, and no great damage was reported.

During the storm lightning struck the residence of Charles L. Byrd, about a mile from Pocomoke City, and the building was destroyed by fire. The loss is estimated at $4,000.

Design Of 1917 Auto Tag

The design for the 1917 automobile tag has been selected by Automobile Commissioner E. Austin Baughman, and the contract for their manufacture has been let. The new tags will have green figures mounted on a cream background and the figures will be four inches in height instead of five inches as formerly. The new tags will also bear a hyphen between the thousands and hundreds in order to make the numerals more distinctive from a distance. For instance the tag number 57938 will appear as 57-938. The first contract is for 50,000 pairs of tags, two for each motor, but Col. Baughman expects the 1917 licensees to exceed this number.

MR. THOMAS DIXON DEAD

Was a Central Figure In Local Democratic Politics In Somerset

Mr. Thomas Dixon, one of our best known and most highly respected citizens, died at the Jefferson Hospital in Philadelphia last Thursday morning, aged 67 years. He was first taken ill in Baltimore about eight months ago, but seemed to improve for a while and after spending several weeks in Princess Anne went to Ocean City to recuperate. He came back to Princess Anne where he grew rapidly worse until about 10 days ago, when he was taken to Philadelphia for treatment. The early part of last week he was reported to be better but his improvement proved to be but temporary.

Mr. Dixon was the oldest son of the late Dr. George C. and Virginia White Dixon, and was born July 29, 1849. His father died many years ago and his mother later married the late Edward F. Duer, of Princess Anne. She died in Baltimore two years ago.

During his entire life Mr. Dixon was prominent in the business, political and social life of Somerset county. For a number of years he was engaged in the mercantile business here, conducting a store at the corner of Main and Prince William streets. He was director and one of the largest stockholders of the Bank of Somerset and always took an active interest in the affairs of the institution. He was also a large owner of real estate in Princess Anne, Crisfield and Marion, this county. He was a vestryman of St. Andrew's Protestant Episcopal Church, of this town.

Mr. Dixon was a Democrat and always took an active part in local party politics. In 1895 and for several years thereafter he was a member of the Democratic State Central Committee for Somerset county. In 1903 he was elected Register of Wills for the county and served until November, 1907, when he resigned and was succeeded by Sidney Waller. This was the only public office that he ever held, but he was for years a central figure in local Democratic conventions, and was often selected as a county delegate to the State Congressional and judicial conventions before the advent of direct primaries.

In 1874 he married Laura V. Brittingham, daughter of the late William J. Brittingham, who was one of the leading business men of the Eastern Shore. Mrs. Dixon died about 12 years ago.

Mr. Dixon is survived by one daughter, Mrs. Margaret Spiva, wife of William B. Spiva, cashier of the Bank of Somerset, and the following brothers and sisters: Former Judge John R. Dixon, Riverside, Cal.; former Judge R. Walter Dixon, Denver, Col.; Mrs. Fred L. Pitts, Philadelphia; Mrs. R. A. McCormick, Timonium, Md.; Bruce W. Duer, traffic agent of the Public Service Commission; Col. Henry Lay Duer and Edward P. Duer, Baltimore; Howard S. Duer, New York, and Robert F. Duer, of this town, the Republican candidate for Congress in the First Congressional district.

The funeral services were held on Saturday morning at 10.30 o'clock, at St. Andrew's P. E. Church, conducted by the rector, Rev. Henry E. Spears, after which the remains were interred by the side of his wife in the churchyard adjoining. The pallbearers were Mr. Dixon's five brothers: Messrs. E. P. Duer, Bruce W. Duer, Robert F. Duer, Henry L. Duer and Howard S. Duer, and his brother-in-law, Fred L. Pitts.

Car Plunges From Bridge

While attempting to make a short curve over the bridge across the Government Canal at Rehoboth Beach, Delaware, Mrs. Edward Riley, of Wilmington, driving a high-powered car, broke through the guard rail and the car, turning over twice in the air, landed upside down in the water. Misses Kathryn Duffy and Beatrice Magee, of New York city, and Miss Helen Holder and John Ludwig, of Pittsburgh, who were in the car, were injured. Mrs. Riley suffered broken ribs and what is feared to be a broken back, and Miss Duffy has an arm, a leg and a shoulder broken. The others suffered serious cuts and bruises, and the two ladies are seriously ill from shock.

Mrs. Riley was driving to Lewes, Del., and despite the fact that the present bridge is old and unsafe and slow signs are posted, took the curve at high speed, it is averred. The car was buried in mud and water and it seems incredible that any one could have escaped alive.

Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Ford, of Marion Station, have announced the approaching marriage of their daughter, Annie Virginia, to Mr. Marion Elwood Pope, of near Pocomoke. The ceremony will occur on Tuesday evening, September the fifth, at seven o'clock, at the home of the bride.

SALE NOT YET CONSUMMATED

Farmers Line Not Taken Over By The C. & P. Telephone Company

The article published in our issue of last Tuesday in which it was represented that the Farmers' Telephone Company had sold its line to the Chesapeake & Potomac Telephone Company appears to have been premature. It seems, after a consultation with the latter's representative, Mr. H. W. Carty, of Salisbury, that we ought to have had a consultation with the Chesapeake and Potomac Telephone Company before publishing any action of the Farmers' line. The idea of our reporter was, to simply gratify local interest and to publish only matters that concerned the Farmers' line. We do not know just whether the civilities between the two companies may lead. Possibly they may mean a sale; but in any event, a great many additional steps will have to be taken before such a sale is accomplished.

Must Enforce Oyster Cull Law

"The oyster cull laws were wisely designed and contemplate conserving the supply by prohibiting the waste. To produce results in this conservation work the cull law must be carried out strictly in accordance with the acts of the General Assembly," said Chairman W. Thomas Kemp, of the conservation committee, to the deputy commanders of the oyster police navy at a heart-to-heart conference Wednesday between the Commissioner and the deputies in the office of the commission, in the Murray Building, Baltimore. It was the first meeting of the commissioners and the deputies since the appointment of the latter, in July.

Mr. Kemp quoted the cull law and endeavored to impress upon the deputy commanders the importance of enforcing it. He said the appointments of deputy commanders were made to a view of fitness and not to political influence.

All of the recently appointed deputies were present, among whom was Mr. Z. W. Webster, Jr., of the schooner "Helen Baughman."

Auto Has Wheel Torn Off

Last Wednesday afternoon as A. H. Martin, the county demonstrator of industrial work, with headquarters at the Princess Anne Academy, on the outskirts of this town, was driving his car from the Academy to catch the 1.27 train north on the N. Y. P. & N. Railroad, he and the boy who was in the car with him came close to a fatal accident. Fortunately no one was hurt but the forward wheel of his car was torn off by the steps of a caboose of a work train. Martin, as he ascended the hill, could not see clearly because of the growth of corn and as his car was speeded to get up the incline he heard the train and stopped his car, but it was so close to the tracks that the steps of the caboose struck the wheel and tore it off. Martin is the county demonstrator of the colored industrial work in Somerset county, but his duties also include work in Dorchester, Wicomico and Worcester counties.

Wilson To Be Notified On Saturday

Maryland Democrats will help to carry the news on September 2nd to President Wilson that he was renominated by the national convention of their party, in St. Louis, in June. The notification ceremony will take place at the President's summer home, near Long Branch.

As the Maryland member of the national notification committee, Hon. W. Cabell Bruce will head the Maryland delegation. The speech of notification will be delivered by Senator Ollie James, of Kentucky, who was chairman of the national committee.

The plans now forming for the attendance of Maryland Democrats call for a large delegation, to be composed of representative men of the party throughout the State. It is proposed that Congressman David J. Lewis, candidate for United States Senate, and the several candidates for Congress shall be members of the party.

The President's speech accepting the nomination as the standard-bearer of his party will mark the opening of the campaign in Maryland in earnest. The speech is supposed to furnish the keynote of the speeches of the Democratic candidates and spellbinders.

Publishers Meet At Salisbury

A meeting of the publishers of papers in Somerset, Worcester, Dorchester and Wicomico Counties was held in Salisbury last Tuesday and there was a general discussion of the situation. The consensus of opinion was that there is but one course to pursue—advance subscription rates to at least $1.25 and advertising rates at least 25 per cent., and to insist upon payment of all subscriptions in advance, the same as the city papers demand.

KILLED WHEN TRAIN STRIKES AUTO

Family Almost Wiped Out—Colored Chauffeur Also Dead

John Quillen, his wife, an 8-year-old and 10-year-old son, were killed and four others injured when his automobile was struck by a train on the Pennsylvania Division of the Pennsylvania Railroad, at 9 o'clock Tuesday night, about a half-mile from Berlin, Md. The colored chauffeur, Henry Pride, was also killed. The injured were taken to the Salisbury Hospital.

The injured are the oldest daughter of the family, with a broken thigh and internal injuries; a daughter of about 10, with about the same injuries; a son of 6 and daughter of 4 years, both with fractured skulls and serious internal injuries. Since being taken to the hospital three have died.

The car had stopped at a soda fountain ten minutes before the accident. They then turned on the Ocean City road toward home. The distance to the railroad crossing was about 200 yards. Dr. H. S. Purnell, of Berlin, was following the Quillen car about 50 yards.

Dr. Purnell says: "I heard the train coming before I noticed that the Quillen car was in danger. The car slowed down and I did so, too, because I knew that the train must pass before I crossed the tracks. I supposed that the car ahead of me had crossed the track and slowed down. It stopped suddenly and at that moment the train rushed upon it. The car was swept upon the pilot and carried down the tracks."

"At the point where the accident happened the concrete State road crosses the tracks nearly at right angles. There is no obstruction to have prevented the driver from seeing the train approach. The engineer stated that the bell was ringing and that the whistle was sounded for the crossing."

Dr. Purnell and the passengers in his car were the only eye-witnesses to the accident.

Maryland's Good Roads

It used to be said that all roads led to Rome. Now it is getting to be said that all roadmakers came to Maryland to learn how. In the last few days we have been entertaining the representatives of two States widely removed from each other, who have come here to study our road system. It means a good deal when members of the Alabama Good Roads Association and the State Highway Commissioner of Michigan meet in Maryland on the same errand and when they all unite in unqualified praise of what we have done in this direction.

Three thoughts suggest themselves in this connection. One is that the best way for a State to advertise is to do something that advertises itself. The material thing that is making Maryland famous just now is her good roads.

The second thought is, that while a reputation may be easily gained, it may be easily lost. We are getting a reputation through having constructed a good system of roads. Let us take care that we do not lose it by failure to maintain it at par. During the last four years a Republican Road Commissioner completed it and kept it in good condition. We cannot afford to let it deteriorate in the next four. It must be our ambition steadily to develop it and to keep the older sections from running down. Our State road system is a public asset of the first importance as well as a public pride.

The third thought that these road pilgrimages from other States suggests is the man who put Maryland on the good roads map. His name was Crothers, and he did a service in this way which few of us have fully appreciated and of which no sufficient recognition has ever been made. No other man in the last generation has rendered such a permanent service to Maryland. Ought there not to be some public memorial to Governor Crothers as the inspirer and founder of our State roads system? Verily, monuments have been put up to many smaller men in this and other States.—Baltimore Sun.

Wilson Names Joint Commission

Secretary Lansing Announced Tuesday that the American members of the joint commission to undertake settlement of differences between the United States and Mexico would be Franklin K. Lane, secretary of the interior, Judge George Gray, of Wilmington, Del., and Dr. John R. Mott, of New York city.

All of the commissioners have accepted their appointments. The Mexican members were named some time ago and arrangements for their meeting will be made immediately by Secretary Lansing and Elison Arredondo, General Carranza's ambassador-designate. Virtually the only question to be decided is where the sessions shall be held. The Mexicans are understood to prefer some resort on the New Jersey Coast.

PRINCESS ANNE GRANGE HOLDS PICNIC

Lay Aside Cares And Enjoy A Day On The Manokin River

The Princess Anne Grange held its annual picnic on the Clifton Farm, on the Manokin river, Thursday. Farmers from all parts of the county assembled to hear lectures, play games and forget their farms for a few hours. During the morning Mr. C. B. Smith, seed specialist from the Maryland Agricultural College, spoke on the subject of pure seeds and what they mean to the farmers. During Mr. Smith's talk he quoted the scripture by saying, "Whatsoever a man soweth that shall he also reap." His talk was enjoyed by all.

County Agent Lippincott was present and talked about wild flowers and alfalfa.

After the morning program a delightful luncheon was served by the ladies of the grange, consisting of fried chicken, home-made pies, ice cream and cake and many other delicacies. After the ball game played between the married and single men, during which Mr. Frank Widdowson knocked a home-run and won the game for the married men, all hands were warm enough to enjoy the ice cream, of which they ate largely. It is to be hoped by next year that many farmers will become grangers and join the ranks for a better Somerset county along agricultural lines.

Anti-Tuberculosis Lecture

Mr. Alden Anderson, Field Secretary of the Maryland Association for the Prevention and Relief of Tuberculosis, delivered a fine lecture in the Court House last Wednesday evening. Moving pictures illustrating his work and entertaining in many other respects were shown. The snow and ice scenes were most thoroughly enjoyed as in happy keeping with the exceedingly hot weather prevailing. Fresh air, rest and nourishing food were prescribed as the real preventives of tubercular disease. Mr. Anderson also believes strongly in sleeping in the open and his encampment demonstrates his faith in that belief.

New Enterprises For Pocomoke City

Pocomoke City is to have two new enterprises which will add materially to the business interests of the town. A few weeks ago Messrs. Julius J. Smullin, John T. Smullin and J. Edward Powell, trading as W. S. Dickinson & Son, dissolved partnership and since then rumors have been rife as to what business these gentlemen would engage in. It is now definitely known that two firms have grown out of the old Dickinson firm and that two businesses, entirely different from that formerly transacted by these gentlemen, will be the result.

The Smullin Brothers will open a furniture store and J. E. Powell will open a firm for the sale of groceries, to be known as J. E. Powell & Co.

Kills Self With Shotgun

Irving Robinson, 21 years old, of Marion Station, committed suicide Wednesday night by shooting himself in the head with a shotgun at the home of Mr. Harry Coulbourne, a farmer of Brinkley's district, where Robinson was staying.

Mr. Robinson had been engaged to a young woman of Crisfield, until a few days ago, when, owing to a misunderstanding the engagement was broken. Robinson became despondent and, it is said, this led to the suicide.

The shotgun was tied by Robinson to a bedpost, with the muzzle against his head, and was discharged by a string which was attached to the trigger.

Robinson is the second man to commit suicide in the same room in the past eighteen months.

To Seek Typhoid's Source

Officials of the State Department of Health are investigating typhoid fever in several sections of the State to ascertain whether there is any general cause and whether there is any danger of a spread of the disease.

Reports have been received that two persons who recently visited a farm in Carroll county have been stricken. About a year ago a man who had been on the farm died of typhoid and another was ill of it.

An unusual number of cases also have been reported from Wicomico and Somerset counties, there having been 12 cases from the former and 23 from the latter since August 1. It is possible that the number of cases in the counties has been augmented by others brought from Delaware and Virginia. In Salisbury, the county seat of Wicomico, there is a large hospital, which is used to some extent by persons from Delaware. In Crisfield, there is another hospital, used more or less by persons on the Eastern Shore of Virginia.

BUSINESS MEN'S ASSOCIATION

The Business Men of Princess Anne Effect Permanent Organization

The business men of Princess Anne met at the Auditorium on Friday evening, August 25th, and effected a permanent organization which will be known as the Business Mens' Association of Princess Anne. S. Frank Dashiell was appointed President, J. Earl Morris, Secretary, and W. O. Lankford, Jr., Treasurer. The Association adopted the national pay-up-week plan, which will be put into execution October 2nd to 7th inclusive. George W. Colborn, Jr., J. Earl Morris and W. O. Lankford, Jr., were appointed an advertising committee. C. H. Hayman, Dr. T. J. Smith, Oscar F. Jones, Wm. P. Todd and W. H. Dashiell were appointed a committee of five to draft by-laws.

The meeting adjourned to meet at the Washington Hotel on Friday evening, September 8th. Those present were as follows: W. O. Lankford, S. F. Dashiell, J. T. Taylor, Jr., C. H. Hayman, J. A. McAllen, George W. Brown, W. O. Lankford, Jr., A. Causey, Oscar F. Jones, C. R. Porter, Paul Walker, Geo. W. Colborn, Jr., Omar A. Jones, W. P. Todd, J. E. Morris, B. H. Dougherty, Dr. T. J. Smith, Frank D. Layfield, Roger B. White and W. H. Dashiell.

The above meeting was a most enthusiastic one and every man present entered fully into the spirit of the occasion. Several merchants were not present but it is thought that they will enter the list a little later along. The idea is one mapped out by the National Trade Journal and it appeals most strongly to the Princess Anne business men as a most desirable plan to improve business as well as for mutual assistance in the problem of bill settlements.

Death of Mrs. Carroll

Mrs. Margaret Alice Carroll died at the home of her niece, Mrs. C. C. Waller, last Friday night, in her 63rd year. Mrs. Carroll had been in ill health for a number of years. Her death was the result of paralysis and cancer.

Mrs. Carroll was the widow of Dr. William Kennedy Carroll, of Queen Anne's county, who died in 1905, and a daughter of the late Jacob and Sarah Frederick, of Baltimore. She was an aunt by marriage of former Mayor E. Clay Timanus, of Baltimore.

BURNED LIME vs. LIME CARBONATE
The greatest authority on lime in the United States, Dr. Cyril G. Hopkins, of the University of Illinois, under date of December 1, 1915, says:
"No trustworthy investigations support the use of burned lime in preference to natural lime carbonate, such as ground pulverized shells, limestone or marl. On many soils a moderate use of burned lime, in connection with the liberal use of farm manures, yields profitable returns, which, no doubt, would be still more profitable if the burned lime were replaced with carbonate in equivalent amount and of proper fineness."

THE HASTINGS DIAMOND.

It involved a King of England in a Bribery Scandal.

Nearly every great diamond has a history. These histories are always romantic, embodying numerous adventures, some of which are tragic.

In the history of the Hastings tragedy of England is a charge of bribery against a king, George III., which gave the gentle art of caricature an opportunity such as had never come to it before and showed the power that caricature could wield upon a people.

At a levee of the king held on June 14, 1789, a very valuable diamond of unusual size and brilliancy was presented to George III., ostensibly as a gift from the nizam or native ruler of Deccan, India.

At the period when this magnificent piece offering was given to the king the impeachment of Warren Hastings was advancing in parliament, and it was current rumor that this and several lesser diamonds were the purchase price of Hastings' acquittal.

Caricatures appeared in the windows of the printshops. One represented Hastings wheeling the king to market in a barrow and saying, "What a man buys he may sell again." In another the king was exhibited kneeling, with his mouth open and Hastings throwing diamonds into it.

An Italian juggler then in London pretending to eat paving stones placarded the walls with bills describing himself as "The Greatest Stone Eater."
Improving upon this, the caricaturists represented the king in the character of the Greatest Stone Eater.—Indianapolis News.

They Relighted a Flame of Love

By CLARISSA MACKIE

Paula Featherston was a creature of impulse. She had accepted her husband on impulse and married him on impulse. Before the honeymoon had waxed she decided that she had made a mistake. Dick Featherston was a serious, matter of fact fellow with a strong will. He never allowed his heart to run away with his head. If his wife was in error and he was sure she was in error he refused to condone the error.

Then, too, Dick was a different man socially from those to whom Paula had been accustomed. He was not a dancing man; he was not a social leader;
he was just plain Dick Featherston, with not a ray of glitter in his make-up. When Paula had introduced him to one of her society friends the young woman said to her, "Not at all the kind of person I supposed you would marry."

Within a few years after the marriage of Dick and Paula there came a definite result to Paula's dissatisfaction with her husband. Denis Brown was exactly the kind of man her friends supposed she would marry. He was a cottillion leader, a club man, a lady killer. Denis saw that all was not right between Paula and her husband.
He began by feeling a pride in being favored by a married woman. But he did not stop here. He persuaded Paula to leave her husband and child and go away with him.

The elopers were to meet near Dick Featherston's summer cottage by the sea. Paula started with a wildly beating heart. The journey seemed too short. When the train drew into the little station she paused for an instant on the platform and then ran down the steps to the highway which curved sharply away toward the sea.

Down a vista of golden hued maples she saw the blue water and the curling white crested waves. It was October, and all of the summer cottages were closed. There was an air of desolation in the boarded windows and the bare verandas. The wind was keen and there was a pungent smell of bayberries from the sandy bluffs that ran down to the beach.

Mrs. Featherston passed beyond the last small cottage and rounded a jutting point of land to turn into a cobblestone gateway that led to a more pretentious house. There were grassy lawns dappled with brilliant autumn leaves, and back of the house was a garage, but there was evidence that the place had been long untenanted.

Paula Featherston inserted a key in the front door and rather hesitated at the gust of musty air that rushed out as the sea breeze swept in.

When she had closed the door and stood within the silent house she hesi-tated again.

The dear familiarity of the hall struck some answering cord in her heart. She winced as she turned away and passed through the various rooms where the furniture was swathed in ghostly linen. Before one closed door she paused and then passed on.

It was her husband's library.
It was useless to enter there. What she had come after was upstairs in her own boudoir. If she was to meet Denis Brown at the end of the beach road she must hasten.

In her boudoir she sat down before the little satinwood writing desk and unlocked it. It was growing late, and the room was quite dark. She went to the window and unfastened a shutter. It banged in the wind, and her fair hair was tossed into disorder before she finally fixed the catch and closed the sash.

She went back to the desk and opened a secret drawer which was stuffed full of letters. These she carried to the hearth and heaped into a little pyre and touched a match to it. The blue smoke curled spirally upward; then the papers burst into sudden flame.

Words stood out clearly here and there, brief messages out of the past written in letters of fire.

"The moments have been hours and the hours days. My dearest sweetheart, be careful of yourself. If anything should happen—Tomorrow I shall call you wife—my darling wife!"

With a flurry the last letter shot up the chimney, a black, charred thing, dead, like their happiness. That was always the way when one expected too much of life, and Dick had been disappointing. He had curbed her in everything. No wonder she had rebelled.

She tried to laugh as she remembered her absurd happiness that evening when they arrived at Seaways to spend their honeymoon. They had made much ceremony about lighting the hearth fire in the library, and Dick had replied "Hanging of the Crane" as they sat on the settle and watched the flames. Every year after that they had spent a few months at Seaways until last year, when the break came. Since then she had traveled the world over, the gayest of the gay in every fashionable resort, while Dick pegged away in the Street, and baby Polly was spoiled by a doting grandmother.

Suddenly her face grew tense, and she closed her eyes. Things would be better after this, for she had made up her mind to go away with Denis

Brown. Then—then Dick would have no excuse for withholding her freedom.
As for Polly, why, Grandmother
Featherston had undoubtedly weaned the baby away from her mother.

Paula's heart hardened, and she laughed unpleasantly. The feather-stons were all that way—proud and stiff necked and conventional to a fault. She could safely say that there was no ache in her heart for any one—Dick, baby Polly or any one!
She walked defiantly to the mirror and, removing her hat, looked closely at her fair face. She was as lovely as ever. The two years of strain and worry had not marred her beauty. She must keep herself lovely for Denis' sake. Denis was an artist, a dreamer, a lover of beauty, and if she had disappointed Dick, who was not a beauty worshiper, she must not fail to hold Denis' love forever.

A little terror took possession of her for the moment, but she shrugged impatiently and turned away from the glass.

Denis was to meet her at the end of the road, and they were to go in his car to Boston. She had wanted this hour to herself before she left Seaways forever.

Gently she closed the door and went toward the stairs. Halfway down the flight she stopped short.

From somewhere in the house came the smell of burning wood—it was cedar, perhaps driftwood—but, no; it couldn't be that. She was quite alone in the house.

It was merely her fancy. Something in the hour had brought back the past too vividly. How many times she had come down the stairs at twilight sensing that same pungent odor from the hearth fire in the library!

She must visit the library too. She wanted that dear picture of Polly from Dick's desk. He could have as many more taken as he chose, she thought bitterly, and he would have Polly too.
Of course the Featherstons would teach Polly to despise her mother. But she must hasten; Denis would be waiting.

She turned the knob of the library door and entered.

Before the warm coziness of the room she stood in dazed wonderment.
There was a great, roaring fire of driftwood on the hearth, and somewhere a gnarled bit of cedar was sending out fragrant blue smoke.

A red shaded lamp illuminated the room softly.

Dick was writing at his desk, something big and splashing, in his dashing way.

Curled among the cushions on the settee was Polly, fast asleep.

A low table was drawn close to the fire, and on it were a singing kettle and some clumsily arranged tiny cups and saucers. Paula recognized them as Polly's cherished toys. There were other things—a pot of jam and some stale looking sweet biscuits. They might have been hurriedly rummaged from the chimney cupboard.

Paula saw these things in one swift glance. She also saw Dick's broad back as he bent over the desk. He did not turn his head at her entrance.

"I must go!" she told herself in wild alarm, but still she stood there, afraid to move.

Dick did not turn his head, but presently he spoke, carelessly:

"We've been waiting ages for you, dear. The kettle's boiling over. I've promised Polly that she shall pour the tea."

Paula leaned against the door and closed her eyes.
"Coming, Paula?" asked Dick after awhile.

She came forward and, resting her hands for support on the desk, leaned toward him.

"I—came here tonight—to—to—run away with Denis Brown!" she said.

"Yes?"
"Well, you cannot want me to pour tea for you now?" she laughed bitterly.

"Polly is to pour tea," he reminded her gently. "Besides, you will want to say goodby to her."
"Ah!" she cried sharply. "You are cruel!"

He was silent. His pen ceased to write, and she knew that he was staring into the fire.

He must have suffered. His dark hair was almost white.

Polly stirred, opened her eyes, yawned like a white kitten and stared at her mother with unbelieving joy.

"Oh, mudder, mudder!" she shrieked at last, and, tumbling off the settee, she came to Paula's outstretched arms.
For a long time Paula held her there, feeling her numbed heart slowly melting under the touch of the warm little body. Baby kisses smothered her face and throat, and little baby chuckles of endearment fell on her hungry ears.

At last Paula lifted wet eyes and looked straight at her husband. "I came after some letters of mine," she said honestly. "I must go now. This is the end."

Dick arose and went to the hearth fire. He stood there with an arm on the mantelpiece, his grave eyes searching her face.

"I'm sorry to spoil your plans, Paula," he said slowly, "but I can't allow any man to run away with my wife, you know. You've had a year or two of freedom, and when I heard—oh, well, he talked a little at the club about this, Polly, and I came down to stop it. I met Denis at the end of the road,
I came around the other way by motor, and I thrashed him and sent him home."

A glad look came into Paula's face.
"Dick!" she said softly, and she knew then that the hearth fire had never been dead. Something had blown the embers into the warm flame of love again.

"Come and make the tea, mudder," pleaded Polly.

SCHOOLS AND HOME TRAINING

The public school year will begin with the Tri-County Institute at Ocean City tomorrow. The schools have all been supplied with excellent teachers. These teachers will have their hands full to carry out the law as to the literary work of their pupils. The public school was never intended to be a police station. The conduct of the children in the school room is accordingly a subject that should appeal directly to parents. Good discipline is an essential element. This discipline should begin at home.

It is true that teachers take the parents' place during school hours. During those hours pupils should be obedient and should preserve order. It is better if they feel such a pride in their own schools that the government becomes their own. The best schools are those where the discipline is a self-enforced one. Pupils love to feel that their own honor is a matter to be considered. They obey because they feel it is their personal duty to do so.

Many troubles in the public schools come from the lack of home discipline. The fathers go to their work and the mothers are too much occupied to hold check upon their children. The children go to school and grow in badness because in many instances the parents do not enforce respect for home and school. The teacher therefore is often blamed for what is the parents' fault. A pupil whose parents insist upon proper obedience at home will have little trouble in the school. This is a most important point for the parents to consider and it is the parents' duty to help the teacher in the matter of good order.

The same doctrine will apply to the behavior of children in public assemblies. Our attention has been called to improper conduct of children on such occasions. The parents should either accompany their children or insist upon a proper amount of respect on the part of the latter.

It is difficult to expect a school teacher to attempt to do what parents neglect. Home training is a most important qualification for children, either in the school room or on public occasions. Teachers have all that they can do to apply their attention to the mental discipline of their pupils. Parents should assist the teachers by properly instructing their children upon the necessity of obedience and order.

AUTO ACCIDENTS

The many accidents that are occurring in auto driving are calculated to make one stop and reflect. Many persons undertake to drive cars who are inexperienced and some are under the age necessary for a license. The wonder is that more accidents, many as there are, do not occur. It is seldom that one reads a paper without encountering the details of auto accidents.

It is seldom that one hears of a railway accident or a loss of life by reason of such travel. Care and careful observance of schedules, skill and skilled men in control of railway traffic, prevent accidents. The automobile is run by any one and every one and goes its own way that with the least carelessness may mean injury or loss of life.

This is true not only upon the state highways but also upon the streets of our towns. Many cars fail to sound their alarms near crossings and are driven with total disregard for other vehicles and pedestrians. A few days ago a motorcycle passed through Main street, blew no warning and barely escaped collision with a team of mules approaching a crossing. The wonder is that more accidents do not occur. An ounce of prevention is worth a pound of cure. Will auto drivers wait for the solemn warning of some terrible occurrence?

One policeman in a town can not be everywhere at once. We believe that Mr. Waller does all that is possible to prevent illegal or careless driving. The rights of pedestrians and teams must not be actually disregarded by those who drive cars. The speed mania is a growing one and it takes but a short time for formerly careful persons to drop into the speed habit.

This article is written with the idea of preventing accidents. Every part of the law bearing upon auto driving should be thoroughly enforced. Of course there are people who obey no law and their own lives and those of others are subject to their illegal procedures. The warning is against all classes of law violators. They should be forced to respect the rights of others if they have no regard for their own.

$100 Reward, $100

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is catarrh. Catarrh being greatly influenced by constitutional conditions requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally and acts thru the Blood on the Mucous Surfaces of the System thereby destroying the foundation of the disease giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in the curative powers of Hall's Catarrh Cure that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials. Address: F. J. ## The Great Record

The American people do not want war. Mr. Wilson has kept them out of war. The American people approve a policy of extensive preparedness to guarantee their safety as a nation and the non-interference of foreign powers with their rights and their commerce. In the great international crisis which came all unexpectedly upon him to demand so much of his patience and attention, he has handled with wisdom and at no sacrifice of the national honor. At the same time, in the conduct of the domestic affairs of the country he and his administration and the Democratic Congress have been tireless in the enactment of constructive legislation for the country's benefit, which in volume and beneficence has never been equaled. As L. Ames Brown in the Review of Reviews puts it:

"The chief legislative measures for which the President stands personally are the Underwood Tariff Act, the Federal Reserve Act, the Trade Commission Act, the Rural Credits Act and the Tariff Commission Act. There is an imposing number of business, labor and public welfare enactments besides, which I have not space to discuss here. It is the greatest achievement of any American President of modern times. All of the measures named with the exception of the tariff act, have received or are to receive the support of substantial bodies of Republicans in Congress. The Republican platform criticizes the Rural Credits Act, but a majority of Republican members of Congress voted for the measure. The Republican platform declared for a Tariff Commission, and its authors refused to consider any declaration in criticism of the Currency Act, knowing too well the heartiness of the country's appreciation of that measure."

The Best Laxative

To keep the bowels regular the best laxative is outdoor exercise. Drink a full glass of water half an hour before breakfast and eat an abundance of fruit and vegetables, also establish a regular habit and be sure that your bowels move once each day. When a medicine is needed take Chamberlain's Tablets. They are pleasant to take and mild and gentle in effect. Obtainable everywhere.

What Will Maine Do?

The State election in Maine will take place on Monday, September 11th, less than two weeks from today. This year the result will be regarded as of unusual significance, because of the Presidential campaign.

At the Presidential election of 1912 the Wilson vote in Maine was 51,113, the Taft vote 26,545 and the Roosevelt vote 48,493. The combined Taft-Roosevelt vote was 75,038, which exceeded the Wilson vote by 23,925. In 1914 there were 62,039 votes cast for the Democratic candidate for governor, 58,862 for the Republican candidate and 18,225 for the Progressive candidate. The total vote in 1914 was nearly 12,000 over 1912, and the combined Republican-Progressive vote exceeded the Democratic vote by 15,048.

In order to carry Maine this year, the Democrats will have to win 12,000 of the votes cast for Taft and Roosevelt in 1912. That would mean approximately 25 per cent. of the total Roosevelt vote. On the basis of the 1914 vote, a change of 8,000 would be enough.

But such estimates count for nothing. Something that does count, however, is the evident uneasiness of the Republican campaign managers. They fear Maine will go Democratic at the September election, and that would be most ominous. It would mean a sweeping Democratic victory throughout the country in November.

On the other hand, a Republican victory in Maine next month, which is very probable, the State having long been surely Republican, would have little significance unless the majority should be very large. A small Republican majority would prove almost as depressing as a defeat.—Wilmington Every Evening.

The Philadelphia Record

"The Philadelphia Record" has hundreds of regular readers who live far beyond the bounds of the wide territory which it particularly aims to serve. Not long ago the management of "The Record" addressed an inquiry to some of these distant readers asking them why they prefer "The Record" to other prominent newspapers published nearer to their homes. Here is a typical reply:

"Because I regard your admirable journal as a fit newspaper for all the members of the home and domestic circle. It is comprehensive in its scope, educational, non-sensational, judicious, fair, and, what is most commendable, clear and intelligible to the average as well as the most cultured mind. Moreover, in its arrangement of news topics, foreign, domestic, state and local, religious and secular, every item or topic may be so easily located. I have often observed in handing my copy to a friend how quickly the attention of the reader has been fixed, showing that "The Record" is not merely a provincial or local life scope, but satisfying to the needs of the general reader."

The qualities which give "The Philadelphia Record" precedence over other big city dailies in their own fields make it doubly attractive to readers in the territory to which its news columns devote especial attention. The intelligent public demands character and backbone as well as enterprise and alertness of journalism, and it finds these indispensable in the daily and Sunday issues of Philadelphia's leading newspaper.

The average Sunday newspaper consists of about 10 per cent. of meat, and 90 per cent. of fat, bone and gristle. "The Sunday Record" is all meat—a fact which obviously accounts for its enormous strides in circulation.

THE "HUMAN MIRACLE."
Laughter a Blessing No Bird, Beast, Fish or Reptile Possesses.
In the London Opinion the sage James Douglas, speculating on that pleasurable emotion which is accompanied by face cracking movements of the muscles of the physiognomy and a brightness of the eyes and is known as "the human miracle" and says:
"No bird or beast or fish or reptile can laugh. You can teach an ape to do almost anything, but you cannot teach him to laugh. The awful solemnity of animals is the one really intolerable thing on this earth. They are cut off from the abiding miracle of humor."
"A wise man has warned us to interrogate ourselves when we laugh. I totally and entirely repudiate that diabolical doctrine. Never interrogate yourself when you laugh. You should never look a laugh in the mouth."
"There are many kinds of laughter, but they are all good. Interrogate yourself if you like when you weep. But if you value the well being of your soul never interrogate yourself when you laugh. Laughter is a good thing in itself and an end by itself. The quality of laughter, like the quality of mercy, ought never to be strained. Laugh before you look."—New York Times.

OUR PLACE IN THE SUN.
Human Beings, Like Plants, Need Much of the Outdoor Life.
A home without windows was built for the blind in a certain English community. Scientific heating and ventilation were provided. But architects and trustees reasoned that light was not necessary in a house of sightless people.
Then they discovered that human beings, like plants, dwindle and die when deprived of the light of the sun. And they had to remodel their building and let in the sun's rays to keep the blind alive.
Since the invention of the electric light we have all treated sunlight with amazing indifference. In summer especially we spend much time, thought, energy and money protecting ourselves from the sun.
And in so doing we often are acting not much more wisely than the committee that built a house without light for the blind. In summer, for instance, we try to escape the sun when we actually need its services in the cause of good health.
So take your work and play out of doors when possible. Don't fear sunstroke. Don't be afraid of sweat and tan.—Tolento News-Bea.

Grinned Into Matrimony.
That grinning matches were an accepted form of sport in early English days is shown by an advertisement announcing a gold ring to be grinned for by men on Oct. 9 at the Swan, Colehill Heath, Warwickshire, which appeared in the Post Boy of Sept. 17, 1711. Addison gives a detailed account of one of these "controversies of faces," telling us that the audience unanimously bestowed the ring on a cobbler who "produced several new grins of his own invention, having been used to cut faces for many years together over his last."
His performance was something like this: "At the very first grin he cast every human feature out of his countenance, at the second he simulated the face of a spout, at the third that of a baboon, at the fourth the head of a bass viol and at the fifth a pair of nut crackers." Addison adds that a comely wench whom he had wooed in vain for more than five years was so charmed with his grins that she married him the following week.

Bites as Required.
He was trying to sell a dog, a bandy legged brute, with features calculated to stop a motorcar, and the old lady did not seem averse to buying one. Their ideas as to the brute's value scarcely corresponded, however, and there was little prospect of agreement, when suddenly the lady demanded:
"Will he bite?"
"Only his meat, mum," responded the fancier.
"Oh, but I wanted one for tramps."
"Tramps is his meat, mum," was the artful reply, and there was a deal, after all.—Exchange.

Disorder.
I distrust both the intellect and morality of people to whom disorder is of no consequence. What surrounds us reflects more or less that which is within us. The mind is like one of those dark lanterns which in spite of everything still throw some light around. If our tastes did not reveal our character they would be no longer tastes, but instincts.—Emile Souvestre.

The Lesser of Two Evils.
"I'll be mighty glad when I start to school," announced Willie one day.
"Why will you be glad, dear?" asked his mother in surprise.
"Well, then you an' papa will have to cut out this spellin' of words that you don't want me to hear."—Ladies Home Journal.

When a Man Makes His Will.
It is a morbid superstition that a man dies when he makes his will. More often he lives happily and long after he has done so. It relieves his anxieties.—London Saturday Review.

Safety First.
"Do you know why the little chickens come out of the eggs, dear?"
"Course I do. They know they'd get belted if they stayed in."—Boston Transcript.

WHAT CATARRH IS
It has been said that every third person has catarrh in some form.
Science has shown that nasal catarrh often indicates a general weakness of the body; and local treatments in the form of snuffs and vapors do little, if any good.
To correct catarrh you should treat its cause by enriching your blood with the oil-food in Scott's Emulsion which is a medicinal food and a building-tonic, free from alcohol or any harmful drugs. Try it.
Scott & Bowne, Bloomfield, N. Y.

Try Taking to the Woods and Being Natural For Awhile.
The art of being alone is worth cultivating. Unless you have really tried it you have no idea how unusual and refreshing it is. City life and even modern country life are not conducive to its practice. It is very different from being lonesome and quite another matter from being ill. It is found at its full flower only in the woods, and its best development requires some adjustment and practice.
The first experience is apt to leave one somewhat baffled if not frightened. We live so much with other men and with the evidences of their activity that we hardly know how much is ourselves and how much some one else. In the woods—and it need not be the remote wilderness—we can divest ourselves of all that is not really a part of us. We can learn how small—or perhaps how large—we are. We can soak up impressions with time to taste them and consider them. We can learn the true value of wind and clouds and sun and shade. If we feel like it we can talk out loud to ourselves, and there will be no one to think us crazy. We can sing and no one will tell us we are off the tune.
In short, we can be natural for once in our lives—free from the warping effect of what other people think. That is surely an experience worth while.—Outing.

OUR FIRST FOREIGN WAR.
When Tripoli Tried to Wring Tribute From Our New Republic.
The first foreign war in which the United States was engaged began in 1801, when Tripoli issued a declaration of war against the new world republic. The ruler of the piratical African state had learned that the United States had paid larger sums to Algiers than to himself and demanded a greater annual tribute. This was refused, and on June 10, 1801, he declared war.
An American squadron under Commodore Richard Dale was dispatched to the Mediterranean and was followed by squadrons commanded by Commodore Morris and Commodore Preble.
The war continued until 1805 and was characterized by several feats of valor performed by American sailors. The bay of Tripoli and the other Barbary rulers, who had long preyed upon the commerce of America and Europe, were brought up with a short tour.
Prior to the Tripolitan war the United States and France fought several sea engagements, but war was not officially declared, and the difficulties were settled without recourse to open and avowed hostilities.—New York World.

Painfully Explicit.
The proprietor of a certain hotel in Europe posted up the following warning to his clients:
"Gentlemen who come in this hotel not say anything about their meals they will be charged for, and if they should say beforehand that they are going out to breakfast or dinner, and if they say that they not have anything to eat they will be charged, or unless they bring it to the notice of the manager, and should they want not to say anything, they must order the manager for, and not any one else, and unless they not bring it to the notice of the manager, they will be charged for the least things not, according to hotel rate. And no fuss will be allowed afterward about it, and nothing will be allowed to deduct anything out of it."
After this explicit information there surely could be no excuse for misunderstanding.

Antiquity of the Senate.
The senate is historically much older than the lower house, or house of representatives, as it is called in our country and time. In the remote time, while as yet there was no such thing as a science of government, the tribe was wont to look to its old men, on account of their wisdom and experience, for advice in all matters pertaining to the tribe, and those old men were the first senators. The word senator comes from "senes," meaning old. As civilization advanced and seated government became a fact the senate continued to be composed of the old men, and when by and by the second chamber, or council, was added the senate continued to receive the largest measure of reverence and respect.

FEEDING THE BOY.
Give Every Healthy Youngster the Diet His System Craves.
The growing boy—the active, healthy, normal boy—is a better judge of his diet than mother or father or doctor. He needs every kind of food, plenty of it, and his system will naturally crave for just those foods that are best for him.
Such, in substance, is the theme of an article in the National Food Magazine by Dr. H. E. Barnard.
There are two kinds of food—proteins, with which the body is built up, and the growing boy needs as much of these as the full grown man, often more; carbohydrates, which are the fats and sugars and starches that supply heat and energy.
The boy's protein food need not all be meat. Dr. Barnard says "It is better that no small part of this nitrogenous food come from milk and eggs, cheese, beans and peas. If he has plenty of these rich and relatively cheap foods he will not crave meat so inordinately as some growing boys do." Dr. Barnard continues:
"The boy needs a large quantity of carbohydrates. That is why his demand for bread and butter is limited only by the supply at hand; and when he uses almost as much butter as bread, do not stint him. By the pound butter is expensive, but it is pure, wholesome food, and he can use it readily. It will not make him ill; quite the contrary.
"And do not be afraid of sugar and sweet foods. Sugar is a true concentrated food. Give him candy for dessert. He craves it and his craving is natural, not abnormal.
"The boy's instincts will lead him to choose the all around diet he needs."

Value of White Oak.
The white oak has served for more useful purposes than perhaps any other tree, and its wood today is worth as much as mahogany. Furniture of "solid oak" is now a rarity, for the wood has become so expensive that it is used in the form of a veneer over baser woods. So used it loses none of its beauty, and even the thin veneer resists wear for an incredibly long time. This wood was a useful one to the early agriculturists as well as to those of the present day. It was durable when exposed to the elements and was also durable in contact with the soil. It was and is still used in fencing, and much of the second growth white oak timber in America is now being cut for railroad cross-ties.—Outing.

Story of a Bakeshop.
In Braunschweig, a quaint old German town, is pointed out the building—still used as a bakeshop—where Till Eulenspiegel, famous as a jester in the fourteenth century, worked as a boy. Many persons who have listened to the musical composition, "Till Eulenspiegel's Merry Pranks," which enshrines his name, have never associated this with the merry baker boy of Braunschweig. He is credited with having made many little gingerbread ovals and monkeys, which he gave away to children. The shop at 11 Backerint still does a thriving business.

A Step Further.

"And we used to make hasty pudding," said she.
"We have instantaneous pudding nowadays, grandma. Comes in a can."—Philadelphia Bulletin.
