OCEAN PIER COMPLETED.

New Building Is Great Improvement To Ocean City.

One of the greatest improvements Ocean City has ever had is the big ocean pier which is now completed and open to visitors. The new building compares favorably with structures of this class at any of the larger seaside resorts and is a credit to the promoters and builders who had the courage and energy necessary to organize and complete an enterprise of this magnitude. In planning the interior arrangements of the pier all has not been sacrificed to commercial interest but due care has been exercised to provide for the comfort, convenience and safety of patrons particularly those accompanied by small children as the entire building is not only enclosed by a waist-high railing, but is rendered doubly secure by the addition of stout wiring, making it practically impossible for children to pass through. Large space has also been reserved for the use of the general public and free tables and chairs are also provided for families or parties who wish to take their lunch with them and enjoy the cool sea breezes and good music which is also furnished by the management. Besides the attraction which the Ocean naturally affords excellent fishing is found from off the pier and is much indulged in, some record catchers being made. A dancing pavilion, skating rink, bowling alleys, pool room and refreshments booths are also provided and will no doubt be liberally patronized. The project promises to be a success.

Death of Mrs. Roberts.

Mrs. Laura Roberts, wife of Mr. Augustus Roberts died at her home on Poplar Hill Ave., early Monday morning. Mrs. Roberts was a Miss Majors before her marriage being a daughter of the late Kendall and Henrietta Majors. Mrs. Roberts had a large circle of friends and acquaintances throughout the county among whom she was deservedly very popular and was noted for her industry and exceptional good judgment. She was a sister of James Majors of near Salisbury, Noah Majors, a prominent farmer of Delmar district and Llewellyn Majors, of Baltimore. Mrs. Marcellus Wilson, of Salisbury, was also a sister of the deceased. Mrs. Roberts leaves a husband and three children all grown. Miss May Roberts, of Salisbury; Mr. Linwood Roberts, of Philadelphia, and Harry Roberts, of Love Point. Deceased was a member of the Asbury M. E. Church. Her funeral was held at her late home Wednesday afternoon, conducted by the Rev. Mr. Martindale. Interment was made in Parsons Cemetery.

—Miss Grace Lindale, of Wilmington, is visiting her aunt, Mrs. Jno. W. Dashiell, of Fruitland.

ALL HAIL PE-RU-NA.

Miss Mary O'Brien, 808 Myrtle Ave., Brooklyn, N. Y., writes:
"Peru-Ru-Na cured me in five weeks of catarrh of the stomach, after suffering for four years and doctoring without effect. In common with other grateful ones who have been benefited by your discovery, I say, All hail to Peru-Ru-Na."

Mr. H. J. Henneman, Oakland, Neb., writes:
"I waited before writing to you about my sickness, catarrh of the stomach, which I had over a year ago."

"There were people who told me it would not stay cured, but I am sure that I am cured, for I do not feel any more ill effects, have a good appetite and am getting fat."

"So I am, and will say to all, I am cured for good."

"I thank you for your kindness. Peru-Ru-Na will be our house medicine hereafter."

Catarrh of the stomach is also known in common parlance as dyspepsia, gastritis and indigestion. No medicine will be of any permanent benefit except it removes the catarrhal condition.

Nervous Debility.
Miss Irene Smith, 10 Minnesota Ave., Randle Highlands, Washington, D. C., writes:
"Peru-Ru-Na cured me of catarrh of the head and stomach and nervous debility from which I suffered for two years."

ORGANIZATION 'IN KENT

County Heavily Scored In Democratic Primaries. Allowed Republicans To Help Them, It Is Charged.

A movement has been started in Kent looking to the defeat in primaries of all candidates who use money in Democratic primaries. It is proposed to form an association throughout the county, by districts and to pledge themselves to vote against every candidate who shall in any wise countenance the use of money in the primary election. A number of citizens of character have expressed their approval of this plan and many others will join. Every good citizen should aid in this most excellent movement and it is hoped that it will not be allowed to drop. There is no sense or reason in Democrats using money in a family fight and if the end has come to this disgraceful custom then Kent county will have made a long stride toward the goal of success.—Kent News.

The above suggestion is a most excellent one, and should be encouraged by all those who have the best interests of the Democratic party at heart. We are more than sure that the People's wing of the party will co-operate with all those citizens in the county regardless of faction, who really desire to see honest politics and to have fair and peaceful Democratic primaries. But there is another evil being practiced in our democratic primaries that is equally as demoralizing and detrimental to the success of the Democratic party as is the use of actual cash in primary contests. It is that Republicans are permitted to vote in Democratic primaries. It is safe to say that at least 250 Republicans, people never recognized as Democrats, were allowed to vote in the recent primaries, and nearly every one of these votes was thrown to the organization. It is just as demoralizing for a man to perjure himself to be what every one recognizes him not to be, and it is equally as demoralizing and corrupting for men of standing and reputation in the community to lend their assistance to these Republicans in their efforts to vote as it is to purchase a man's franchise with money. We do not have to go far to prove our statement that Republicans assisted the organization to win in the recent primaries. In the Seventh District, the smallest in the county with a straight Democratic vote of only 88,144 votes were polled in the recent contest, 25 more than were polled by Governor Warfield when he was a candidate for Governor. In the First District, upon the testimony of one of the most reliable Republicans, whole wads of Republicans were permitted to vote in the primaries, and he was really disgusted at the way things were going. It was so in every district in the county, and aside from the votes that were purchased and the number of extra men who were given employment on the roads by the organization, for the purpose of securing their votes, enough Republicans were allowed to vote by the organization judges to have defeated the People's wing candidates. This thing of spending actual money in primary contests is demoralizing and disgraceful. It should be stopped, and the People's wing of the party will gladly cooperate with any body to prevent it. But we want this association to go a step farther. We want them to pledge themselves to vote for no man whose nomination is purchased either with actual cash, with the assistance of Republican votes, or in any manner except by the untrammelled franchise of the qualified Democratic votes of this county.

This thing of Republicans being allowed to vote in Democratic primaries tends more to produce discord and dissatisfaction in elections than anything else, and if the practice is continued, there will be created a condition of affairs such as exists in Queen Anne's county. Enough Republicans were allowed to vote in two districts in the county to defeat the majority of the candidates of the People's wing of the party, and now that the organization has won, it is poor policy to talk about spending money in the primaries when Republican votes won their fight for them. The People's wing of the party stands for honesty and square dealing in politics. It is its mission to prevent corruption in politics and to give a square deal to its opponents. But the time is coming when their patience will cease to be a virtue in matters pertaining to the conduct of politics in this county, and if they cannot get a square deal in one way, they will take some other means to secure it. We trust that the association will be formed, but we hope that their pledges will be broad enough and rigid enough to break up forever the disastrous practice which is tending to defeat the Democratic party in elections. We make the statement that the organization cannot possibly win a primary contest in this county except with the assistance of Republican votes, and they are attempting to moralize on the use of money in primaries when in every contest they sanction an equally bad if not more demoralizing practice of allowing Republicans to vote where they have no legal or moral right to participate. Let's get at the bottom of things.

ORGANIZATION DECIDES AGAINST THE PEOPLE

And The Old System Of Holding Democratic Primaries Is Announced. Crawford County System Of Direct Vote By The People For Candidates Not Favored By Self-Seeking, Self-Nominating Men. Danger To The Party In Un-Democratic Action.

Again the "self constituted leaders," or ring, of the Democratic party in Wicomico County see fit to ignore the just demand of the people of this county for the Crawford County System of holding primaries which gives each Democratic voter a chance to have a say in the naming of each candidate whose name goes on the Democratic ticket.

This system of direct voting is not thought well of by a few—a very few, who are now in office and who want to continue holding office indefinitely—whose rejection of it against the people's expressed wish for it stamps them as pretending Democrats and untrue to those great principles of genuine Democracy enunciated by Jefferson, and promulgated by Jackson, which declare for equal rights and the rule of the majority.

Now unless the so-called leaders can have support by petting, patting and cajoling the people to help them out in un-democratic methods they stand well to windward to wreck the party in Wicomico County this fall, and yet they talk harmony. Yes, that is their game—to do what they condemn as Republican acts, themselves, to adopt the old ring system of holding what should be Democratic Primaries that they may continue their own selves in office, and then, hark! What do they do? What do they say? Much about nothing. They become very sociable, they want to be considered good fellows, if they are poor Democrats; they hit his and thither, they are very busy working up interest, stirring up enthusiasm. In what and whom? In themselves, for themselves, and if they are not careful, it will be by themselves with their un-Democratic methods. And, if, perchance, they feel it absolutely necessary to have good men—on, one or so, goes to pull themselves through.

The people are wide awake this year. They know true Democracy as well and apparently much better than the so-called leaders seem to, and they are honest and fearless enough to stand by its true principles.

The so-called leaders have made a very grievous error in their attitude on the Primary System in holding pat—Republican fashion on the present ring-delegate-convention—pick out those who will be with you—plan.

The people should have had a fair chance and if they are expected to help elect a ticket they should be given an opportunity to help select the candidates.

All fair minded men may well deplore the presence of the closed door system here. Three counties on the Eastern Shore alone declared for the Crawford County System of direct vote by the people for candidates, but Wicomico, in its unfortunateness, in its possession of those who have been permitted to be at the head of the party is apparently to be at the mercy of daily scheming, self-interested politicians, if the organization here have their own way.

The Advertiser desires to give fair warning to the self constituted leaders. One blunder has been made. The people need not be expected, neither can they be worked into enthusiasm to again support a ticket they have no direct voice or vote in selecting.

In the expressions on the Crawford County system of direct vote recently received and published through the Advertiser there was scarcely a dissenting note. The people will now wait to see if the retention of the old ring method is a fore runner of the old candidates, who want to be seen on the platform and on the ticket again.

The main spring and foundation stone of true Democracy, outside of rule by the majority is rotation in office. The people who have not been given a direct chance to take part will now wait to see if those who have been well served are again put up. And if they are and then the Democratic party is split in this county, lay it not to the innocent people's door but place the guilt fearlessly in the face of the so-called leaders in their un-democratic policy—for shut door mushroom politics. The responsibility of ruining the Democratic party will be their's and not the people's, whom, by the rejection of the Crawford System, they show their fear to trust.

NEW SCHOOL BUILDINGS MEETS POPULAR DEMAND

School Board Awards Contracts for Two. One At Willards, To Cost $768—One At Double Mills To Cost $442.55 Other Business Before The Board.

The School Board held a meeting last Friday to receive bids from contractors for the erection of two new school houses—one at Willards and one at Double Mills. There were two bidders for the Double Mills School—Albert M. Bonds, $442.55; and A. J. Dashiell and S. E. Downing, $576.00. The contract was awarded to Mr. Bonds. One of the patrons of Double Mills school will, it is understood, give a lot for the erection of this building, which will be a better location than that of the present building.

The contract for the Willard school, which will be a two story building, was awarded to Mr. H. A. Dunn, for $768. This building will be much more modern than the usual class of two room buildings in this county. The members of the School Board will visit Willards within a few days to consult the patrons of the school in regard to the location of the new building. It is the intention of the Board to locate it in a position most accessible to the majority of the scholars.

The question of repairs to old school buildings was taken up. Estimates received from trustees of schools needing repairs were submitted to the Board. These footed up about $1,000. Orders were given to proceed with the work on several buildings. The remainder will be decided upon at the next meeting of the board.

Vouchers for May teachers' salaries were approved and ordered paid. Superintendent Bonds immediately began drawing checks for payment of salaries. The salaries for June will be paid as soon as all the vouchers are all in and approved.

THE RATES ADVANCED.

Higher Rates Charged. Excursionists of Sunday Schools May Discontinue Their Annual Custom.

The people, of Salisbury who are interested in Sunday School work and that means a goodly portion of our population are much exercised over the new schedule of excursion rates made by the Baltimore, Chesapeake and Atlantic Railroad Company for this season. It has come to be an established custom among the different churches to give sometime during each summer an excursion for the benefit of their Sunday School scholars, and this annual event is always looked forward to with much pleasure by the children of the different churches. For some unexplained reason the officials of the above mentioned road have taken it into their heads to advance the rates and this action on the part of the Company is being much commented on as entirely unreasonable and uncalled for and there is being a disposition manifested by those who have such matters in charge to ask for concerted action by the different denominations in which all would agree to forego this annual outing. The new rate, which is now demanded by the Railroad is 90 cents for adults and 45 for children under twelve years of age as against 70 and 35 charged heretofore. On the new rate 30 per cent discount is allowed or all tickets sold for the excursion, while under the previous rate 15 per cent was allowed. Looking at the proposition in one way it would seem that the new rates would be equally as advantageous as the old one and this would be the case were it not for the fact that each Sunday School has to give away each season a certain number of adult tickets in addition to those always furnished free to the scholars which usually brings each school debt. It is to be presumed that the railroad Company feels itself justified in making this increase which if it does not entirely prohibit will certainly make it extremely difficult for all of the churches to give their children this delightful outing, which will be a very great disappointment to them.

It certainly does look as though the churches are being discriminated against who are so unfortunate as to live on the line of this road and have no other means of access to the Ocean. When this same Company can afford to run Sunday excursions from Baltimore for $1.50 round trip.

He is also interested in the introduction of alfalfa and will be glad to advise farmers with reference to the preparation of the soil for its growth. Any communication addressed to Mr. Nelson at the Bureau of Soils, Wash. D. C., will receive prompt attention.

FOURTH IN SALISBURY.

The Day Attractively Celebrated. Parade, Base Ball, Athletic Contests, Music And Glorious Fireworks.

The Fourth in Salisbury was a great day. Hundreds of visitors thronged our streets to witness the parade and things went through successful as advertised. The committees on various duties are so surprised and exultant over the success of this undertaking, which went so far beyond their wildest hopes that they hardly know where to begin to thank the people, the newspapers and the business men of Salisbury for their liberal support and co-operation which they gave.

They wish to thank the newspapers, viz., The Advertiser, The News and The Courier for their support as they realize that the grand success of this undertaking would never have been had it not been for the manner in which they assisted.

They wish to thank those citizens who so liberally came forward in response to the request for contributions to the fireworks fund.

Birthday Dinner At Sharptown.

One of the most fashionable and unique dinners ever given in this town was a birthday dinner given Branch H. Phillips on Thursday night of last week by S. J. Cooper and his daughter, Miss Lena.

The decorations were roses, ferns and cactus. A large bunch of ferns adorned the centre piece. Two large palms gave beauty and progress to the dining hall. The menu cards were of wood, the veneering from the crate and basket factory of Marvill Pkg. Co., and the toast was to all of Sharptown. Between the courses a very unique dish was Twiddle Winks, which represented floating islands. Mr. Phillips and party failed to guess who was honored by the surprise dinner until the arrival of the last dish in the menu which was Branch-on-Casserole. This was like drawing the curtain aside, because the dish consisted of Mr. Phillips' photograph immersed in jellyatin. All enjoyed the surprise.

After repairing to the parlors the evening was passed very pleasantly in playing games, two of which were strictly western in character.

One was the driving of nails into blocks of wood and the other was sewing buttons on maulin. When the time expired which was set for the work, a halt was called and count made. Quite a number of prizes were won. The amusement closed with the popular game of fruit basket.

Those present were Mr. and Mrs. J. P. Cooper, Mrs. Victoria Phillips, Misses Indiana Wheaton, of Chincoteague, Laura Gansaway, of Washington, Lillian and Beale Ellis, Ada Walker, Alice Robinson and Bertha Wright and Messrs. B. E. Phillips, Myrtle Graveson, P. T. White, A. G. Mills and James C. Adams.

Marked Fish in The Sea.

Catching fish, measuring and marking them, and then returning them to the sea with the chance of retaking them later is part of the work carried on by the Marine Biological Association of Great Britain.

By means of a steam trawler the fish are caught in the usual way. Each haul is carefully recorded, the fish are counted and measured and all details of locality, time, number, services, sex and size are put down, together with accurate observations on the water the depth and bottom of the sea, the kinds and quantity of food available, etc. These data are subsequently tabulated and charted.

The method of marking the fish is interesting and has been attended with valuable results. The fish chiefly used during the few years the experiment has been in progress have been plaice, because the proposals have been made to interfere with the catching of them were based on inadequate knowledge.

The fish are marked on the dorsal surface with a very thin convex metal disk bearing a number. This is attached to a fine silver wire which is passed through the thinner part of the fish near the fin and secured on the under side by a small bone button. The fish do not appear to suffer inconvenience and their growth is not interfered with in any way.

The thoroughness with which the North Sea is swept by the nets of the fishing fleets is demonstrated every day. Discovery, by the fact that out of 5,089 marked plaice of all sizes 993 were recaptured within a year. This represents 19.7 per cent, or nearly one fifth; but for the medium sized fish the figures are far higher, ranging from 38.4 to 39 per cent. In the more northern for the whole of the North Sea and to 3 per cent in the more northern portions.

The men of the regular fishing fleet co-operate by forwarding to the laboratory of the association at Lowestoft all the marked fish they catch. At the laboratory reference the record is easily established how much the fish has gained in size and weight since the previous catch. Moreover, the distance between the spot where it was released and the place where it was again caught gives an idea as to its movements.—Sci.

There is more Catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure with local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Science has proven catarrh to be a constitutional disease and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is the only constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally in doses from 10 drops to a teaspoonful. It acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. They offer one hundred dollars for any case it fails to cure. Send for circulars and testimonials.

SCALY ERUPTIONS COVERED HIS BODY

Itched Constantly—Scratched Until Blood Flowed—Suffered 10 Years—Doctors and Medicines Were Fruitless—Tries Cuticura and is Completely Cured

BY THREE BOXES OF CUTICURA OINTMENT

"When I was about nine years old small sores appeared on each of my lower limbs. I scratched them with my nails, and the sores began to bleed. I could scarcely walk. When I had been suffering for about a month the sores began to heal, but small scaly eruptions appeared where the sores had been. From that time onward I was troubled by such severe itching that, until I became accustomed to it, I would scratch the sores until the blood began to flow. This would stop the itching for a few days; but each place would appear again and the itching would accompany them. After I suffered about ten years I made a renewed effort to effect a cure. The best doctor in my native country advised me to use arsenic in small doses and a salve. I then used to bathe the sores in a mixture which gave almost intolerable pain. In addition I used other remedies, such as iodine, sulphur, zinc oxide, and in fact I was continually giving some remedy a fair trial, never using less than one or two boxes or bottles. All this was fruitless. Finally my hair began to fall out and I was rapidly becoming bald. I used Cuticura Ointment, and in fact I was completely cured, and my hair was restored, after fourteen years of suffering and an expenditure of at least $50 to $60 in vainly endeavoring to find a cure. I shall be glad to write to any one who may be interested in my cure. B. Brian Matthews, Watlington, S. Dak., Aug. 18, 1906."

If The Baby is Cutting Teeth.

Be sure and use that old and well-tried remedy, Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup, for children teething. It soothes the child, cures the gums, allays all pain, cures wind colic and is the best remedy for diarrhoea. Twenty-five cents a bottle.

—Bishop Brewster of Connecticut says the Argonaut, tells of an old reprobate who decided to repent and announced to everyone that whatever wrong he had done should be made right. So a man whom he had cheated out of a large sum of money went around at midnight to demand it. "But what did you come at this hour for and wake me up? Why not wait till tomorrow?" said the old sinner, crossly. "I came now," replied the man, "to avoid the rash."

The Potter's Child.

I once knew a workman, a potter by business, who had one small invalid child at home. He wrought at his trade with exemplary fidelity, being always in the shop with the opening of the day. He managed, however, to bear each evening to the bedside of the "wee lad," as he called him, a flower, a bit of ribbon, or a fragment of crimson glass, indeed anything that would lie out on the white counterpane, and give a color in the room. He was a quiet, unassuming Scotchman; but never went home at nightfall without some toy or trinket, showing he had remembered the wee lad that lit up so when he came in. I presume he never said to a living soul that he loved that boy so much. Still he went on patiently loving him. And by and by he moved that whole shop into positively real but unconscious fellow ship with him. The workmen made curious little jars and teacups upon their wheels, and painted diminutive pictures down the sides before they stuck them in the corners of the kiln at burning time. One brought some fruit in the bulge of his apron and another some engravings in a rude scrap book. Not one of them whispered a word, for his solemn thing was not to be talked about. They put them in the old man's hat, where he found them; so he understood all about it. And I tell you, seriously, that entire pottery full of men, of rather coarse fibre by nature, grew quiet as the months drifted, becoming gentle and kind, and some of the unconverted ones stopped swearing, as the weary look on the patient fellow worker's face told them beyond any mistake that the inevitable shadow was drawing nearer. Every day now somebody did a piece of his work for him, and put it on the sanded plank to dry; thus he could come later and go earlier. So when the bell tolled, and the little coffin came out of the door of the lowly house, right around the corner, out of sight, there stood a hundred stalwart workmen from the pottery with their clean clothes on, most of whom gave a half day of time for the privilege of taking off their hats to the simple procession, filing in behind it, and following across the village green to its grave that small burden of a child, which probably not one of them had ever seen with his own eyes.—Unknown.

Sable Island Wild Horses.

Sable Island, which lies about eighty miles to the eastward of Nova Scotia, consists of an accumulation of loose sand, forming a pair of ridges united at the two ends and inclosing a shallow lake; tracts of grass are to be met with in places, as well as pools of fresh water. The droves of wild horses, or ponies, and herds of seals appear to be the chief mammalian inhabitants of the island. It is generally supposed that the original stock was landed from a Spanish wreck early in the sixteenth century, although some writers make the introduction much later. Twenty-five years ago the number of ponies was estimated 600; at the present day there are less than 200, divided into five troops. Not more than two thirds of these are pure bred, the remainder being the offspring of mares crossed with introduced stallions. The author comments on the striking likeness of these wild ponies to the horses of the Parthenon frieze and to the now exterminated tarpan of Tartary. They also seem to resemble the wild horses of Mexico, although their coat is doubtless longer.

The "Fourth" That Were

I remember, I remember.
At the house where I was born,
How the popping of torpedoes
Ushered in the early morn.
And a smell of burning powder
Wafted up the winding stair,
And the scraps of firecrackers
Strewn the garden everywhere.I remember, I remember.
How the cannon made me jump,
And Old Glory proudly waving
Caused my little heart to thump,
As I viewed the tall drum major
As he strutted in the van,
And resolved to twirl a baton
When I got to be a man.I remember, I remember.
When the glorious Fourth was o'er,
How my hands were burned and blistered,
And my head was hot and sore,
And I wore the flannelled poultice
That my mother used to make
Feeling like a gallant soldier
Wounded for my country's sake.I remember, I remember.
All the Fourth that used to be,
Days of wildest excitement,
Noise and cheers and jubilee,
And I'd give the sea and honors
And the wealth I now enjoy
When I hear the cannon crashers
Just to be again a boy.WE WANT THEM SEPARATE.
Dr. Wyllie's report on salicylic acid indicates that as steady article of diet, as a seasoning for meats, it is not conducive to general health and nourishment. The public had arrived at that conclusion before the experiment, says the Pittsburg Dispatch. Indeed, the guidance for the national dietary, while of some practical value, does not change the public judgment on the doctrine of food.

People have the right to consume salicylic acid if they wish, and they also have the right to eat meat if they wish. The public principle on which legislation is founded is that if a man desires meat he should not be misled into taking cumulative doses of salicylic acid without his knowledge; and if he wants salicylic acid he should exhibit it to himself in such doses as he may deem necessary to his case. The method suggested by the fabled citizen who ordered a glass of lemonade and suggested that something stronger might be slipped in "unbeknownst to me" is not adapted to the administration of the salicylates.

The Cross Patch Man

THE Crosspatch Man

T-again and this time it must be pretty bad, for all the morning Meredith had been watching the servants spread straw before the house and muffle the big, shiny doorbell.

"Poor man!" mamma said, pitifully. "He is sick so often!"

"But he's a Crosspatch Man!" muttered Meredith stiffly. Then he repented and looked as shamefaced as a very little boy with a very round, dimpled face could look.

"I'm so sorry he's very sick," he said slowly, "I hope it hurts even Crosspatch Man."

Mamma did not notice. She was having her little noon "gossip" with papa, and they were still talking about their invalid neighbor.

"It isn't quite so bad as it seems, you know," papa was saying. "He always has the straw laid down and things muffled when he has one of his worse nervous attacks. It doesn't mean all that it does in most cases. He is terribly afflicted by noise at almost any time."

"Noises! I should think so!" That was from Meredith, who pricked up his ears at the word. Didn't he know how the Crosspatch Man felt 'bout a noise? Didn't he belong to the Rudd Street Second?

Wasn't he captain? And oh, my, the times he'd seen the Crosspatch Man a-scooting and a-fuming when they marched past his window!

"But Fourth of July will be a terrible day to him—poor man!" went on mamma's gentle voice. That made Meredith start a little. He had been thinking about Fourth of July, too. (Did he think of much of anything else nowadays?) he had been going over in his mind all the glorious program of the day. For the Rudd Street Second was going to celebrate in a worthy manner. They were going to even outdo themselves this year—and hadn't they had the proud honor of being the noisiest street in the city for two Fourth of Julys a-running? Let 'em just wait till they heard this Fourth of July!

It was three days off. That would give the Crosspatch Man time to have the straw taken up and the bell muffled, for his worst "times" never lasted more than two or three days. "Then he'll have to cotton up his man close the window. He was a little chap himself, once, the Crosspatch Man was! And how kind his voice had sounded, too. It made him sorry for the Crosspatch Man—sorry that he had ever been before."

"He's a dreamin' it like sixty. He's 'spectin' to perish," Meredith said aloud. "It's goin' to make him sick, of course—that's what he said to the turban-man. An' he was a little chap once, an' his voice was kind an' tired out."

Then Meredith went home and perched himself up on the banister post in the hall, to think. That was where he always thought things—big things, you know. This was, oh my, such a big thing!

"I'm cap'n," mused Meredith, knitting his little fair brows. "I can say, 'Go, an' thou ghost,' like the man in the Bible; but they'll be dreadful disappointed, the Rudd Street Seconds will be. Still—well, he's sick an' he had a kind spot in his voice, an' used to be a little chap too, so of course he used to bang things an' make noises. I don't think he sounded much like a Crosspatch Man."

In a little while, after a little more tough thinking, Meredith slipped down and out of the door, up the street. He got together the Rudd Street Seconds and made a little speech, as a captain may, to his men.

The next day the city and all America celebrated Fourth of July, and Rudd Street was famous again, but this time for being the very quietest street in all the city! There were just as many boys in it, too, as ever.

The Crosspatch Man's white, nervous face smoothed and calmed as the day wore on, and at last it actually smiled in a gentle way, as if he was thinking about something pleasant.

And the captain of the Rudd Street Seconds and his brave men, dilling and popping and banging in a distant street, were happy, too.—Annie Hamilton Donnell.

MEREDITH STOOD IN SHEER

saw," mused Meredith, philosophically, watching the big foreign servant that wore a turban go back and forth past the Crosspatch Man's window. The house Meredith lived in and the Crosspatch Man's house were quite close together, so it was easy to watch things.

Unfortunately for an invalid with the terrible affliction called "nerves," Rudd Street was a regular nest of boys. There were boys everywhere on it. You ran against boys when you went east, and boys ran against you when you went west. Boys sprang up in the most unexpected places. The houses seemed to be running over with boys. And really, there was at least one boy—and on an average two or three—in every house on Meredith's side, except in the Crosspatch Man's house. Oh, dear me, no, there weren't any boys there!

One the other side of the street you had to skip the "middlest" house and Miss Quillhot and Miss Eromathea—oh, yes, and the minister's house, of which Miss Quillhot and Eromathea were old maids, and the minister—oh, yes, he wasn't an old maid, but you couldn't expect him to have boys in the house, for how could he ever write his sermons?

So it was, as I said, and unfortunately street to have "nerves" on. And the Crosspatch Man had so many!

The three days between soon went away, and it was the night—the very night—before it! There were only a few hours more, for, of course, you didn't have to wait till the sun rose on Fourth of July.

Meredith had drilled the Rudd Street Second for the last time and dispersed his men. He was on his way home to supper. Going by the Crosspatch Man's house, he heard voices distinctly issuing from an open window. He couldn't help hearing; it was so quiet in the street. Perhaps it was the "hull before the storm."

"The sahib cannot bear it," a gentle, soothing voice was saying. But Meredith recognized the indignant mixed with the pity in it. "The sahib will be again sick."

Then came Meredith's astonishment, for the Crosspatch Man's voice was answering, and it was quite calm and gentle; and it said:

"Of course I shall be sick again. Har! I've made all my plans to perish. But what can you expect? The little chap must have a Fourth of July. I'll be a little myself—once. Say, I'll be a Har! There's a suspicion of a draught."

Meredith stood still in sheer amazement, and watched the turban-

man close the window. He was a little chap himself, once, the Crosspatch Man was! And how kind his voice had sounded, too. It made him sorry for the Crosspatch Man—sorry that he had ever been before."

"He's a dreamin' it like sixty. He's 'spectin' to perish," Meredith said aloud. "It's goin' to make him sick, of course—that's what he said to the turban-man. An' he was a little chap once, an' his voice was kind an' tired out."

Then Meredith went home and perched himself up on the banister post in the hall, to think. That was where he always thought things—big things, you know. This was, oh my, such a big thing!

"I'm cap'n," mused Meredith, knitting his little fair brows. "I can say, 'Go, an' thou ghost,' like the man in the Bible; but they'll be dreadful disappointed, the Rudd Street Seconds will be. Still—well, he's sick an' he had a kind spot in his voice, an' used to be a little chap too, so of course he used to bang things an' make noises. I don't think he sounded much like a Crosspatch Man."

In a little while, after a little more tough thinking, Meredith slipped down and out of the door, up the street. He got together the Rudd Street Seconds and made a little speech, as a captain may, to his men.

The next day the city and all America celebrated Fourth of July, and Rudd Street was famous again, but this time for being the very quietest street in all the city! There were just as many boys in it, too, as ever.

The Crosspatch Man's white, nervous face smoothed and calmed as the day wore on, and at last it actually smiled in a gentle way, as if he was thinking about something pleasant.

And the captain of the Rudd Street Seconds and his brave men, dilling and popping and banging in a distant street, were happy, too.—Annie Hamilton Donnell.

Facts About Firecrackers.

The greater part of the almost $2,000,000 worth of firecrackers annually exported by China comes to New York. And the United States stand next to China in its use of them.

Thousands of Chinese men, women and children work at the making of firecrackers for these are no manufactures there, the work being done by hand. They receive only $1.40 for making 10,000 firecrackers, laboring from 6 in the morning until 11 at night seven days a week.

So a Chinese woman or child works like a slave for two days to earn what is spent on a few bunches of firecrackers by the urchin bent on doing justice to the glorious Fourth.

"The Minute Man"

In 1797 a small monument was erected on the Green at Lexington to mark the spot where the first blood was shed in the Revolutionary War. In 1860 a movement was started in Boston, under the leadership of Edward Everett as president, to erect at Lexington a commemorative monument in the form of a gigantic statue of the "Minute Man." The statue of the "Minute Man" was erected, but at the town of Concord.

A Fourth of July Peril.

"What's the matter with Jimmy?" "Oh, he swallowed a torpedo, and now he's afraid to move for fear it will explode."

Ineffusive Bedspread.

Your extra pair of net curtains will make a charming spread for the bed in the guestroom. Join the curtains along the plain side with a strip of insertion to match that along the borders; this goes down the center of the bed, leaving the ruffled and trimmed sides and ends to hang over the sides and foot of the bed. White satin will be pretty under this, but a color is in quite good taste if preference lies that way.

OLD PRIMARY SYSTEM AGAINST THE PEOPLE.

The Democratic State Central Committee has called the primaries for Wicomico County.

This call has been made under the old convention system of nominating a ticket, and is notice to the advocates of the Crawford County System that the old way of nominating a ticket is entirely satisfactory to the powers that be. It is very much to be regretted, in spite of the manifest desire on the part of most of the voters for the adoption of a system whereby the people at large would have had a say as to who was to be placed on the ticket this fall, that the organization could not or would not see the wisdom of giving the people what they wanted. There has never been a time in the history of our County, when any innovation of a political character could have been made so politically profitable as at this time. Not only would the adoption of the "People's Method" "bore fruits of a sentimental character but of the practical kind as well.

In adopting this course notice has been given that the "Organization" expects to name the ticket this year, as they have done in the past. Since they have assumed this attitude, it is up to them to see that a good ticket is nominated—one that will bring to its support democrats of all classes. If they fail to do this the blame for disaster at the polls next November will rest on their shoulders, as they will be held to strict account therefor. To say Wicomico County is not a debatable ground, and that the Democratic Party can elect whomever is nominated, is but the idle talk of those who either can not or will not see the political situation.

Party lines are much less tightly drawn now than they have been in the past—Party leaders have themselves—here in this County—shown the way to support others than the party nominees—Independent thought is growing and is today strong enough to beat a weak, dishonest, or incompetent man at the polls. The people no longer consider themselves bound to support the ticket nominated under the present system, as they have at last come to realize they have absolutely nothing to do with making it out. Year by year men have strayed from the party fold, because they had lost all interest in it, until today from the old time majority it has dwindled down so low that even with the best of tickets nominated, it has all it can do to win, and even has been carried by the Republicans on several occasions—last year for one. Whenever a party is run in the interest of any man or any set of men for their personal, selfish interests it at once ceases to be a Democratic or Republican party, and should be compelled to drop the name of respectability under the title of which these selfish men attempt to fool and enslave the people to support its ancient tenets and principles, when they mean—ME or US all the time.

There are a great number of men in the Democratic party of this county today, who have no axe of their own to grind, who desire not ask for nothing in the way of power or office, but who are actuated solely by the interest they feel in the success of their party, and the public good, who are asking this year for men to be nominated whom they can conscientiously support. They are not asking for any one man or any set of men, but only for those who can rally around their standard all true Democrats. These are men who have always stuck by their party and who sincerely still wish to do so, and only ask that the party lives up to its high ideals and principles, and nominates men who are worthy of the name of Democrats, with honesty and ability to fill the office. A parent who has the best interest of his child at heart will not blindly follow whosoever the child may lead, but will criticize, correct, and even apply the rod if necessary; and so there are Democrats who do not believe their party should be led astray by the selfish designs of men who have no other interest in their party than what they can get out of it, and who when once they have tasted the sweets of office, think the party was created for them and them alone.

The so-named leaders of the county have passed on the question as to whether or not the people at large were competent to name their own ticket. They have decided in the negative, and since they have assumed the task let them not prove themselves incompetent by nominating a ticket the people will not ratify; if it shows defeat this Fall, the results will mean them also lacking in judgment. A ticket can be nominated that will win, but if they choose to oblige those to whom they are under political obligations, or those they wish to put under political obligations in the future, or those whom the people do not want—if these or any similar reasons are allowed to dictate the ticket this Fall, the result, to give it its best phase, will be doubtful.

The county is close. What has brought about this condition? We leave that question for the present unanswered; the fact that it exists is sufficient at the present time. The self-constituted leaders who have the making out of the ticket this Fall will do well to fully weigh this condition and let all personal interest drop for once, in the interest of the party which has in most cases served them so well. No man should be nominated who will not be able to rally around his standard the enthusiastic support of all. The masses of the party have been showing, year after year, their love for their party and their devotion to its principles, by voting and working for the ticket, and it is now time the so-called leaders themselves show something of the same spirit and prove they are broad-minded enough to forget self and competent enough to size up properly the growing public sentiment for clean men and clean methods.

Eventful Date.

To the American, of course, the Fourth of July means one thing and only one—it is the national anniversary, and as such is celebrated with fitting enthusiasm. The Declaration of Independence however, though by far the most important, is not the only important event of which that day is the anniversary. On July 4, 1754, George Washington, then colonel in command of the Virginia troops sent by Governor Dinwiddie to oppose the French at Fort du Queneau—now Pittsburgh—met with his first defeat at Great Meadows. On the very same day Benjamin Franklin outlined to the Albany Congress his plan for a more harmonious and concerted action of the colonies for defense against the Indians. Even at that date there was a vague sentiment in favor of a confederation of the American colonies and Franklin's plan promoted this idea, but the entirely separate colonies were mutually jealous and the plan was not favored. Many students of history believe that the adoption of his ideas would have given the colonies strength to have mastered the Indian question unaided by England, and therefore given the mother country no pretext for quartering troops here or for enacting and trying to enforce the odious stamp tax—two leading grievances that brought on the American Revolution.

The Civil War began in April and Congress met to devise ways and means for its vigorous prosecution on July 4, 1861. Andrew Johnson, then Senator from Tennessee and afterward President, was the only Senator present from the seceding States, and only two members of the House from that section attended. It was upon that day that Lincoln, seeing the impossibility of closing the struggle in three months, as had been anticipated, asked Congress to vote $400,000,000 and 400,000 men for that purpose. While Congress was in session the Battle of Bull Run was fought and the defeat of the Union forces stirred Congress to vigorous action.

Lee invaded Pennsylvania and upon the first three days of July, 1863, the battle of Gettysburg was fought. This was the only fighting of any importance on Union soil, and on July 4, 1863, Lee retreated into Maryland. After this date Union successes were constant. On the same day another decisive victory was gained by General Grant, to whom General Pemberton surrendered Vicksburg and his army, after severe fighting during a long siege.

Many other event, interesting in themselves, but of no great historical moment, transpired on this day, not only in America, but the rest of the world. The year 1849 was probably the darkest in the history of modern Italy. Her strength had waned. France and Austria inter-meddled with her affairs and seized her territory. The people were discontented and under Mazzini and Garibaldi formed a provisional republic. When the king died the French forcibly entered Rome, re-instated Victor Emmanuel and crushed the republic Mazzini and Garibaldi were trying to establish. The assembly of this republic was dissolved July 4, 1849.

On July 4, 1866, Austria ceded Venice to France. Venice had frequently been handed to and fro by Italy, France and Austria, and in that same year belonged in turn to each and for a very brief time was independent. She is now a part of Italy.

On this day, 1889, the first omnibuses were run to carry passengers in London. They created much amusement, but, in their way, were the forerunners of the present city rapid transit systems. In this connection it is worthy of mention that the first railroad in Norway, was opened July 4, 1853.

On July 4, 1870, the Spanish government issued its edict abolishing hereditary slavery in Cuba. Prior to that time the children of women in bondage remained in slavery. The decree also gave freedom to slaves who had helped Spain against Cuban insurgents.

On July 4, 1888, Tammany held its first meeting in the present—then the new—Tammany Hall. On this day, 1889, Lord Devonshire made a 15 per cent. reduction of rent upon all his vast landed estates in Ireland. On July 4, 1893, the Hawaiian Republic was proclaimed and the reign and power of Queen Liliuokalani ended.

On July 4, 1898, the American soldiers in Cuba were suffering so severely from fevers of one sort and another that a few days before an abandonment of the Santiago campaign was discussed. During the three days preceding, San Juan and El Canay were taken, and the day before Cervera's fleet was destroyed, and though the American strength was reduced by disease, the Spanish were even less well prepared for resistance; and though on the fourth General Toral firmly refused to surrender the city and province, the Stars and Stripes floated over the official palace on the 17.

Several famous men were born on this day among them Nathaniel Hawthorne, in 1804; Alexandre Dumas, pere, in 1802; and Garibaldi, the Italian patriot, in 1807.

Advantages of Thinning Fruit.
A fruit-grower, who believes in thinning fruit, as practiced by his forefathers, removed one-half of an extremely heavy setting of Kuller pears and allowed it to go to waste on the ground. The portion that matured was fine and sold at high prices. In the grower's opinion the yield was larger than if all the fruit had remained on the tree.TIRED AND SICK
YET MUST WORK

"Man may work from sun to sun but woman's work is never done." In the home neat and pretty, the children well dressed and tidy, women overdo and often suffer in silence, drifting along from bad to worse, knowing well that they ought to have help to overcome the pains and aches which daily make life a burden.

It is to these women that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, made from native roots and herbs, comes as a blessing. When the spleen is depressed, the head and back aches, there are dragging-down pains, nervousness, sleeplessness, and reluctance to go anywhere, these are only symptoms which unless heeded, are soon followed by the worst forms of Female Complaints.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound keeps the feminine organism in a strong and healthy condition. It cures inflammation, ulceration, and organic troubles. In preparing for child-birth and to carry women safely through the Change of Life it is most efficient.

Mrs. Augustus Lyon, of East Earl, Pa., writes:—Dear Mrs. Pinkham:—"For a long time I suffered from female troubles and had all kinds of sores and pains to the lower part of back and sides. I could not sleep and had no appetite. Since taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and following the advice which you gave me I feel like a new woman and I cannot praise your medicine too highly."

Mrs. Pinkham's Invitation to Women
Women suffering from any form of female weakness are invited to write Mrs. Pinkham, at Lynn, Mass. Out of her vast volume of experience she probably has the very knowledge that will help your case. Her advice is free and always helpful.

Irving Hastings.

On Tuesday morning, July 24, the death angel visited the bedside of Irving, the only child of Mr. and Mrs. Quincy E. Hastings, of near Salisbury, and took his spirit to the God who gave it. He died at the Peninsula Hospital, Salisbury, where he had been removed for treatment of appendicitis and peritonitis.

His death was but a closing up of a brief life of twelve years—a life full of promise and of unconscious influence for good—and the introduction to an existence beyond this vale of tears.

The funeral service was held at the home on Wednesday afternoon, conducted by the Baptist minister, Elder Francis, of Delmar. The large attendance and abundance of beautiful flowers were only in expression of the heartfelt sympathy of the neighborhood.

We cannot understand the doings of our Heavenly Father in all His dark and mysterious providences, for "It is hard to break the tender cords When love has bound the heart."

But while the earthly side is thus dark and gloomy, yet the heavenly side is radiant with the precious promises given for our encouragement. "What I do, thou knowest not now, but thou shalt know hereafter," said the Saviour.

Among his last words to his heart-broken mother, who watched by his side, were: "Mama, don't cry, it is all for the best. All things work together for good." These words are only a demonstration of his unusually loving and thoughtful disposition. To his parents and grandparents he was always devoted and obedient. In their bereavement they will accept the following stanza:

"Dearest son, you have left us,
We thy loss most keenly feel,
But 'tis God who hath bereft us,
He can call our sorrows heel."

To his teachers Irving was highly respectful and faithful, and to his schoolmates and friends remarkably kind and agreeable.

"Farewell dear schoolmate, but not forever,
There will be a glorious dawn,
We shall meet to part no never,
On the resurrection morn."

Mr. Adkins will return to Panama next month.

—Now that the Fourth is past, all the principal stores in Salisbury will be closed at 6 o'clock instead of 7, as heretofore. The reason for closing one hour earlier was brought about by the fact that the time between 6 and 7 o'clock was mostly consumed by the merchants and their employees in getting their supper. Now that the hour for closing has been made 6 o'clock, supper will be deferred until after closing time, giving all an opportunity to spend their evenings as may suit their inclinations.

—The Elks reunion which is scheduled to take place the week beginning July 15th., promises to be one of the largest in the history of this organization. Indications are that large delegations from all parts of the country will be present and take part in the exercises. The Badge of Honesty

In an every wrapper of Doctor Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery because a full list of the ingredients composing it is printed there in plain English. Forty years of experience has proven its superior worth as a blood purifier and invigorating tonic for the cure of stomach disorders and all liver ills. It builds up the run-down system as no other tonic can, in which alcohol is used. The active medicinal principles of native roots such as Golden Seal and Queen's root, Stone and Mandrake root, Bloodroot and Black Cherry bark are extracted and preserved by the use of chemically pure, triple-refined glycerine. Send to Dr. R. V. Pierce at Buffalo, N. Y., for free booklet which quotes extracts from well-recognized medical authorities such as Dr. Bartholow, King, Scudder, Coe, Ellingwood and a host of others, showing that these roots can be depended upon for their curative action in all weak states of the stomach, accompanied by indigestion or dyspepsia as well as in all bilious or liver complaints and in all "wasting diseases" where there is loss of flesh and gradual running down of the strength and system.

The "Golden Medical Discovery" makes rich, pure blood and so invigorates and regulates the stomach, liver and bowels, and through them the whole system. Thus all skin affections, blotches, pimples and eruptions as well as scrofulous swellings and old open running sores or ulcers are cured and healed. In treating old running sores, or ulcers, it is well to insure their healing by applying to them Dr. Pierce's All-Healing Salve. If your drug store don't happen to have this Salve in stock, send fifty-four cents in postage stamps to Dr. R. V. Pierce, Invalids' Hotel and Surgical Institute, Buffalo, N. Y., and a large box of the "All-Healing Salve" will reach you by return post.

You can't afford to accept a secret nostrum as a substitute for this Salve. It is a medicine of known composition, not even though the urgent dealer may thereby make a little bigger profit.

Dr. Pierce's Pleasant "Pellea" regulates and invigorates stomach, liver and bowels. Sugar-coated, tiny granules, easy to take and easy.

VALUE OF SOBRIETY.

June 30, '07. (1 Cev. 10:23-23.)

As a cold-blooded, elementary business proposition, it is getting to be well-understood that sobriety is an asset. Particularly do railroad corporations and other large public service agencies more and more demand that those who are in their employment must be temperate men. The Chicago and Alton railroad company together with several others has issued rules to its employees forbidding them to visit saloons, race tracks, dance halls or other resorts where liquor is sold, or gambling permitted. The reason is obvious. The railroad management is not composed of crooks or fanatics, Puritans or prohibitionists. They are not promoting a crusade to influence public opinion, nor running a reform movement for reforms' sake. They are simply and solely protecting their business and property as practical business men.

A man may pooh pooh sentiments about temperance and morality. He may say he will drink what he pleases and go where he pleases. He may say the company is interfering with his personal liberty. It matters not. Everywhere he goes the necessity for sobriety and steadiness of habit confronts him. The employee is free to do as he pleases so long as he pleases to be decent. Which is, after all, the true measure of personal liberty. Anyone, however obtuse, can grasp the significance of ethical principles when expressed in terms of dollars and cents.

Aside from the vast property interests involved, a railroad corporation is responsible for the safe transportation of thousands of human beings, and it cannot grant its employees the "personal liberty" to get drunk and wreck a train. Personal liberty ends when it imperils the lives of other people. It is a pretty difficult thing in this complex life of ours for any man to ruin himself, become the bond slave of his vices and appetites; a pathetic derelict, old and worthless before his time, without inflicting a measure of calamity upon others about him the innocent victims of his "personal liberty." But the railroads are refusing to become the instrument of his disgrace.

Altogether apart from the question of morals it is coming to be understood that sobriety is an asset in the furnishing of any young man. Other things being equal he stands a better chance in the business world. Cool heads, clear brains, bright eyes, clean manners are at a premium everywhere, and are becoming more so. Business men look deeper into the habits of those seeking places of responsibility than is generally suspected, and many an otherwise capable and promising employee has been kept from advancement "because of his convivial habits." The young man who expects to succeed in life should bear this in mind.

One of the first and all important questions asked of young men seeking employment or advancement is in regard to his habits. Many a young man's breath, bloodshot eyes, or well-known companions has barred him from employment he was about to receive. This does not mean that he can not earn his bread. There is a vast deal of work to be done in this world and he can find some place in the army of employed, but there are scores of places waiting for the sober young man, places of advancement, of honor, of influence, of profit that he can never fill. Honorable toll he may perform; but when there is a vacancy in a bank, in a railroad office, in an ever increasing number of occupations, the man who spends his evening looking through the bottom of beer glasses goes to the rear while the sober young man gets the job. And then the beer-guzzler whines about the inequalities of life, and the favorites of fortune. No favoritism about it. It is business, pure and simple. It is absolutely essential in many lines of business that the hand shall be steady, that the eye shall be clear, the brain shall be normal, and that no remains of last night's debauch, shall render the man, who holds possibly the lives of thousands in his hands, or the funds of widows and orphans in his trust, incapable of correct judgment, and instant action when necessary.

The pack horse does its work, and is worth a few dollars, the thoroughbred prances in pride before admiring crowds, and is worth a king's ransom. The burning question for every young man to consider is, Shall I be all my life a "hewer of wood and drawer of water," never rising above mediocrity plodding on in a treadmill existence, a bound slave to my appetites and passions, or shall I be a Man. The world is looking for men. There is room at the top for men. There are always work for men. There are rewards for men. Simply as a matter of looking out for Number One, young men should early realize the value of sobriety.

OUR FORMER CAPITALS.

First Meeting Places of Congress.

Chased Out of Philadelphia, the Nation-builders Sat in Baltimore—Many Houses Were So Used—Sprightly Reminiscences of Some Exciting Sessions.

From the Hall of the "Company of Carpenters," where the nation makers first met in Philadelphia, to the present magnificent marble pile at Washington, is truly a far cry. "Let us forget," in the pride of our Americanism, it will be good for us to recall the days when our Congressmen were sent scurrying from one town to another by hostile British, by bugaboo stories and by the antics of rowdy soldiers. Like the temple which grew from the "covering of skins" to that splendid creation of Solomon's time, the capitol of our country, had also an humble origin—and the puzzle once was to find the place!

During four of the years of its existence, the Continental Congress shipped about at a lively gallop Philadelphia, Princeton, Annapolis, Trenton, New York, and then, after an interval of four years, Philadelphia again were visited by these "birds of passage." One man said of it: "Verily, the Lord shall make this government like unto a wheel, and keep it rolling back and forth between Dan and Beersheba, and grant it no rest this side of Jordan."

But, before this, when, late in 1776, Howe's army was marching across New Jersey and the invasion of Pennsylvania seemed imminent, Congress fled from Philadelphia and went to Baltimore. The members met there for the first time in a building which stood at Baltimore and Liberty streets. Their sittings there lasted from December 20, 1776, until February 27, 1777. Then Congress returned to Philadelphia, and on the 2nd of the following month sat in the State House, where it remained until the British actually did get into Pennsylvania.

Upon the evacuation of Philadelphia by the British, Congress occupied for a short time, it is said, one of the buildings on the State House, now the University of Pennsylvania, then located on Fourth street, below Arch. The red-coats who had crowded the delegates from this state building on Chestnut street, during that fall and winter of 1777-78, it seems, had left the Congressional halls in such deplorable condition that other quarters had to be found temporarily. Congress resumed its sessions in the State House July 2, 1778, and one of the earliest pieces of work attended to in the old headquarters was the Articles of Confederation. For several years thereafter it continued to meet in the same place.

Finally, in 1790, Congress then sitting in New York, decided after a most bitter struggle to locate the capitol in the year 1800 on the banks of the Potomac; at the same time Philadelphia was selected as the temporary home of the government for the decade that intervened. The third session of the first Congress accordingly met in Philadelphia on December 6th, 1790, in the building which still stands at the corner of Sixth and Chestnut streets. Judge Pennypacker has gathered many sprightly reminiscences of this historic building into a pamphlet volume prepared as a souvenir of the last session of the Court of Common Pleas No. 2, that was held there prior to the removal of our County Courts to the City Hall.

He tells an incident that was related by an old Philadelphian, who, as a small boy, drifted into the gallery of the Senate with a companion to watch the proceedings; the two were the only spectators. Presently, Thomas Jefferson arose and announced: "The Senate is about to go into executive session. The gentlemen in the gallery will please withdraw." Whereupon the two boys took their hats and departed. "Then there were a couple of fiery members from New England who kept up an interest in legislative affairs by spitting in each other's faces, chasing each other around the room with clubs, stove-tongs, etc. Congress must have enjoyed their little pleasures, for it is not recorded that the House ever severely disciplined them."

Congress adjourned to meet (no more in Philadelphia, May 14, 1800. Thereafter it met in Washington.

Strikes Without Killing. A bullet that hits the mark but does not kill has just been invented by Dr. Delinger of Paris. The details of its construction are not mentioned, but it is said to be hollow, and can be used several times. In a test for duel practice pistols were used with steel guards resembling a bullet. It will wound naked flesh. Both men were gored. Out of 272 shots 247 struck some part of the bodies of the strikers.

THE FOURTH OF JULY.
Though contented we roam all the rest of the year
Amid palaces over the foam,
Oh, there is one day when American hearts
Turn fondly to country and home.
The ivy-clad abbey, and castles, and tombs
Are seen through a tear in the eye.
When the calendar points to that glorious date,
The Fourth of July.
We know from the pines on the Kennebec's banks
To the live-oaks, in mantles of gray,
On the Indian River, the land of the free
Is everywhere keeping the day.
From the walls of the mansion and cottage alike
In the breezes of summer-time fly
The star-studded folds of the red, white, and blue,
On the Fourth of July.
So let cannons, and crackers, and pistols, and drums,
And pinwheels, and rockets that soar,
With booming and bursting, and rattle and bang,
And sputter and whiz and uproar
Proclaim we are glad we were born in a land
The best that is under the sky,
And are proud of that truly American day.

"THERE'S A CURE FOR RHEUMATISM!"

Not the mere temporary relief that the old "remedies" gave, not the little help that the doctor's prescriptions give; but ABSOLUTE AND COMPLETE CURE. That is what Rheumacide does. Rheumatism is caused by an excess of uric acid in the blood. It is an internal disease and requires a strong and vigorous internal remedy that will cleanse the blood of all its germs and yet act through such natural methods that it builds up the entire system.

SWEEPS ALL POISONS OUT OF THE BLOOD.

For 16 years I have suffered terribly with Rheumatism. I was treated by leading physicians but got no relief. Long since I despaired of ever being well again. But hearing of RHEUMACIDE, I decided to give it a trial. I have taken two bottles, and, thanks to this wonderful medicine, I now feel that I have gotten a "new lease on life." Every vestige of the disease has been driven from my system.

Origin of The Postage Stamp.

Quite recently there has been more or less discussion as to the origin of the postage stamp.

Perhaps the most authentic story is that which comes from the Postoffice Department at Washington.

It appears that about sixty five years ago Rowland Hill was traveling through one of the northern districts of England, and for a time was sojourning at an inn where the postman came with a letter for a young daughter of the inn-keeper. The young man turned the letter over and over in her hand, and after examining the envelope minutely inquired the price of the postage, which was a shilling. She sighed sadly and returned the letter to the postman, saying that it was from her brother, but that she had no money.

Mr. Hill was an onlooker and was touched with pity. He paid the postage, and his action seemed to embarrass the girl. When the postman had gone she stated to Mr. Hill that some signs made on the envelope conveyed to her all she wanted to know, and that as a fact there was no writing enclosed. In explanation she said that she and her brother had contrived a code system of communicating, as neither of them were able to pay post charges.

Mr. Hill thought of the results of a system which made such frauds possible. Before another day he had planned a postal system upon the present basis.—Harper's Weekly.

POSITIVE PROOF

Should Convince The Greatest Skeptic in Salisbury.

Because it's the evidence of a Salisbury citizen.

Testimony easily investigated.

The strongest endorsement of merit.

Mrs. R. L. Redden, living on Tiltman St., Salisbury, Md., says: I still think well of Doan's Kidney Pills.

I made a statement for publication in 1903, and it gives me pleasure at this time, May 9th, 1907, to reiterate all I said in favor of them in my former statement. I suffered from abnormal kidneys for four years or more. My kidneys failed to perform their functions and the poison which should have passed off with the secretions, passed again into the blood and affected my whole system, causing not only excruciating backache and misery through my loins, but my back became so weak at times as to prevent me from attending to my ordinary household duties. I spent sleepless and restless nights, and weary, languid days, and there seemed to be no help for me. I was told about Doan's Kidney Pills and got a box at White and Leonard's drug store. It is the only medicine that ever gave me any real lasting benefit. They cured me and I have not had any return of the complaint since. My blood was purified, and my general condition was wonderfully improved. I also want to say a word in favor of Doan's Ointment as I think it has no equal, and I would not be without it in the house. It will cure itching piles, eczema or any skin eruption, and any sufferer should try Doan's Ointment.

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster Milburn Co., Buffalo, New York, sole agents for the United States.

Remember the name, Doan's, and take no other.

—A railroad man declared in Upton Sinclair's hearing that freight rebates were sometimes granted purely but of generosity.

Mr. Sinclair, laughing, exclaimed: "Admit that to be true, and then your generosity is no better than than Alkali Ike's."

"A traveler arrived late one night at the Palace Hotel in Tin Can, and being tired, he ordered his dinner to be served in his room."

"As he was peacefully eating his bear steak he heard a loud noise down stairs, a bang, an oath, two quick crashes and then a bullet shot up through the door and wounded the traveler in the leg."

"Putting down his knife and fork he rose and began to hop about the room with loud groans. Suddenly the landlord burst in on him."

"What did that bullet go to?" the landlord exclaimed, laughing.

"Oh, sir, ye hurt, stranger? Well, now, that's too bad? Ye see, Alkali Ike and Redface Leary had an argument over their liquor down in the bar, and it fit out fair and square. Redface fired first and missed, and Ike—the all-fired generous one!—he fired in the air."

Shake off the grip of your old enemy, Nasal Catarrh, by using Ely's Cream Balm. Then will all the swelling and soreness be driven out of the tender, inflamed membranes. The use of sneezing will cease and the discharge, as offensive to others as to yourself, will be cured when the causes that produce it are removed. Cleanliness, comfort and health renewed by the use of Cream Balm. Sold by all druggists for 50 cents, or mailed by Ely Bros., 56 Warren Street, New York.

A healthy man is a king in his own right; an unhealthy man is an unhappy slave. Burdock's Blood Bitters builds up sound health—keeps you well.

BEYOND THE TIMBER LINE.

By Will D. Muse

Beyond the sunset's path of gold upon the river's breast,
Across the sands, where curlews sing their weird song of rest:
Beyond the wharf beyond boats that drift from where to where,
Beyond it all, where stars sing to a coral coffin'd grave

Beyond the town, beyond the wharf, across the murky stream,
Beyond the noise, the toll and strife—past boats and sunset gleam,
Low, long and black, from north to south where flickering starlights shine—

Stretches the boundary of my dreams—the far off timber line. Ah who can say what lies beyond its twilight tinted rim?
Who knows where paths may lead into the unknown dim?
A whisper tells me God is there—at each long day's decline,

GOOD NEWS FOR SALISBURY.

Science At Last Discovers A Real Cure For Rheumatism.

After years of experiment a new scientific remedy has been found that not only relieves, but absolutely cures Rheumatism and kindred diseases, to stay cured. Rheumatism is caused by an excess of poisonous acids in the blood. The new discovery Rheumacide though purely vegetable, and acting through nature's channels, neutralizes these acids and sweeps all poisons and harmful germs out of the blood. At the same time it tones up the stomach and regulates the liver and kidneys.

Rheumacide therefore, cures the disease permanently, because it removes the cause. It has cured hundreds of cases after the most noted doctors and hospitals have failed. Rheumacide cured James Wilkes, of Dilton, S. C., after he had been held in bed by rheumatism for three years and his feet were drawn up almost to his back. This is only one of the many marvelous cures Rheumacide has already performed. Rheumacide is curing many cases of Rheumatism, Sciatica, lumbago, gout, kidney trouble, indigestion and constipation.

Editors of Salisbury Advertiser.

Gentlemen:—When you construe my opinion as given in your issue of June 28th, etc., on the merits of the Crawford County System of nominating an attack on the Democratic party, or a want of faith in it, you reach a conclusion, I did not intend it to bear, and which I think is spider spin.

I said in that letter an objection to that system was "that a shrewd politician, with more money than brains, by combining a little of both could nominate a ticket from beginning to end."

That is a fact, that is self apparent to anyone who is, or has been in touch with politics for any length of time. I have trusted and still trust the Democratic Party, its flag, is my flag and whatever it wants, I want for it is the party of the people.

The rank and file of the Democratic Party, and of the Republican Party, also, are trustworthy, but there are men in each party, who, when they have anything they wish to accomplish, either to punish an enemy, or reward a friend, are not to be trusted politically.

In regard to bribery at primaries, I will say that I want no nominations for any office except as the free choice of the people. That I would not buy a nomination, even if I could, and shall spend no money at the coming primaries, nor ask any friend to do so.

If nominated I shall do my best to be elected, and if elected, will fill the office to the best of my ability, as the servant of the whole people. If not nominated, I will do as I have done for nearly forty years, help elect the lucky ones.

Yours,

Geo. W. Bell.

To the editors of the Salisbury Advertiser.

Gentlemen:—Your article in the editorial column of your paper of June 28th about the State Senatorship was so excellent and timely that I as a reader of your paper feel constrained to offer my hearty congratulations.

So, the present Senator is a candidate for a third term because of the attitude of the Advertiser. How interesting and how childishly innocent indeed! But what have the people to say about such a proposition? I don't mean the politicians and officeholders. I mean the people who do the voting. What has the late Senator done to entitle him to a third term? What has he done to entitle him even to a second term?

Has he not been conspicuously instrumental in the enactment of measures that make additional taxation and hardship to the taxpayers of Salisbury, many of whom are unable to meet these extra burdens? What has become of the rotation in office idea—has it become obsolete and a thing of the past? Is there no other material at our disposal?

I cannot believe it and for one I decline to accept this view of the situation. As a party we are poor indeed if we have but one man fit to represent us in the state senate of our Commonwealth. No Sir! the present Senator may be the choice of certain officeholders, but he is certainly not the choice of the rank and file of the Democracy, and if they will just bear in mind the power they possess they will combine en masse and stamp out this dragon of selfishness at the primaries.

The power is with the people. Let them get together and do some thinking and talking and hustling on their own account and they will be agreeably surprised at what can be accomplished. The question has been asked who can we nominate for a good man. The question is a simple one. There are a plenty of suitable men, and men who can be trusted to serve their constituents FIRST; men who are absolutely on the square and this is just the kind of a man who is needed.

H. Lee Powell.

The Road To Fortune.

"The best boy I ever hired," said the store manager to a New York Sun reporter, "was one I chanced to see once, sweeping off a sidewalk."

"You know how many boys, and many men, for that matter, sweep a sidewalk. They leave a streak of dirt here and there, make a poor job of it generally, and pay no attention to the passerby. They are slosh and indifferent and they do whatever other work they have to do, you can make up your mind, in just the same way. But this boy that I'm speaking of was making another sort of a job of it."

"He dug into the corners up by the building and made it nice and trim there, and then working quickly, too, without losing a minute's time, he swept the sidewalk absolutely clean and at the same time, as he worked, he kept his eyes open, had some thought for other people beside himself and some sense of responsibility. He was a worker and a good worker. You know he'd do whatever else he had to do in just the same way."

"About three months after that we had occasion to hire another boy and seriously enough, as it seemed to me, the best boy applied for the job. He didn't need any other recommendation than the work I'd seen him doing, sweeping that sidewalk, and we hired him on the spot, and he's been with us ever since, advancing steadily."

What? No, he isn't a partner yet, he's getting on; and you can set down as a simple fact that any boy who makes a good square job of sweeping off a sidewalk will do well in any other line."

SHARPTOWN

Miss Eva Wilson, of Laurel, Del., is visiting Miss Ruth Gravenor, this week.

Thos. Phillips and wife have moved to Wilmington, Del.

Mrs. Carrie Bennett and daughter, Edna, is visiting at Camden, N. J.

Mr. and Mrs. E. A. Brodey entertained a number of friends at their home "Roelma Terrace," on Friday evening of last week. Music and games were the leading feature, the vocal solos of Mr. Ely and piano solos of Miss Gassaway were fine. Among the guests were Miss Laura Gassaway, of Washington, D. C., Mrs. W. N. Gassaway, Misses Berkeley Wright, Emma, Lydia and Bertie Oaulk, Messrs. A. C. Mills, Oland Phillips, Myrl Gravenor and Frank Ely.

On the Fourth Wm. H. Knowles and party went on a crabbing expedition on his yacht, "Lisole" to Sandy Hill, the famous summer resort on the Nanticoke. The party consisted of Mr. and Mrs. Wm. H. Knowles, Misses Eva Wilson, Ruth Gravenor, Pearl Bailey, Mary Wheatley, Mary Bennett, Mary Bailey and Messrs. A. J. Howard and Wallace Wheatley.

Miss Vernon Twilley of Camden, N. J., J. W. Phillips, and Eva Wright, of Wilmington, Del., spent the Fourth at their homes here.

Judge Holland and a yachting party from Salisbury, honored our town with a visit on the Fourth for which we feel highly complimented. While many of us were unable to have the pleasure of meeting the distinguished visitors we are glad to know that you have not entirely forgotten us. Come again, we may decide to vote for some of you.

PARSONSBURG.

Many of our folks enjoyed the Fourth of July at Salisbury.

The committee promises an enjoyable time to all who will attend the picnic here next Saturday, July 13th. At three o'clock the privileges of the Parsonsburg camp which takes place August 16th, will be sold to the highest bidder. Don't forget the hour, 3 p. m.

Mr. Humphreys Denson on N. Main Street has beautified his home with a fresh coat of paint.

A number of the young folks spent the Fourth of July at Ocean City.

The folks here have been doing much shopping at Salisbury this week.

Mr. Virgil Wilkins on Main Street, has completed his new home with the last coat of paint and etc. All members of Parsonsburg Council No. 184 are requested to be present Monday night. Business of importance.

—There is a point on the coast of France where not only the men, but the women and donkeys, too, wear trousers, says the New York Tribune. At Ile de Re the peasant women work in the salt and the oyster beds, catch shrimps and take their turn in the fields. They don't draggle around in petticoats, however, but wear baggy knee-breeches, loose waist and light-colored smocklets. The sabots of the feet are left bare, although the legs of old stockings are often drawn up as far as the knee as a protection from the heat and insects. It is, indeed, a country of trousers. Nor does it stop with human beings, for many of the donkeys as well wear long striped red and white or blue and white coverings on their legs, which look very much like the remnants of Uncle Sam's wardrobe. These are put on the stubborn little animals to keep off flies and mosquitoes.

YOUNG AMERICANS FOURTH.

M. Phelps Denson.

We put him to bed in his little night-gown. The worst battered youngster there was in the town; Yet he yelled as he opened his only well eye.

"Rah! Rah for the jolly old Fourth of July!"

Two thumbs and eight fingers with cloths were tied up. On his head was a bump, like an upside down cup!

And he smiled as he beat could with nose all awry.

"I've had just the bonnet Fourth of July!"

We were glad for we had been up with the sun, Right into the midst of the powder and fun.

Where the cannon's loud boom sent its smoke to the sky, Young-America-like was his Fourth of July.

I said we were glad. All the pieces were there, So we plastered and bound them with tenderest care;

But out of the creek came the words with a sigh, "If to-morrow was only the Fourth of July!"

He will grow all together again, never fear, And be ready to celebrate freedom next year.

But though it is selfish we're thankful there lies, A crackleless twelvemonth twist Fourth of July.

We kissed him good-night on his powder-speckled face, We laid his bruised hands softly down in their place;

And he murmured, as sleep closed his one open eye, "I wish every day was the Fourth of July!"

How Fireworks are Made.

That fireworks in general are hardly more than highly differentiated firecrackers might be said with almost literal truthfulness, inasmuch as practically all of the pyrotechnic toys employed for the purposes of celebration on the Fourth of July depend primarily upon the paper tube loaded with combustibles of one sort or another, as the fundamental element, so to speak, in their construction.

Even the great "set pieces" which might be called fire pictures, and which are erected upon scaffolding sometimes as much as 100 feet in length, depend for their effects wholly upon such paper cylinders no bigger than good-sized firecrackers, stuck all over the lattice work of the skeleton structure employed by the fire-painter in lieu, as one might say, of canvas.

The Making of a Bomb.

The method of their construction is always the same, and is at once simple and ingenious. The paper-maché shell is filled with "stars"—that is to say, with little pieces of cylindrical paper tubing packed with different chemical compositions. Beneath the shell thus loaded is attached and firmly glued a paper receptacle containing a slow-burning composition similar to gunpowder. When a fuse is so fixed that being ignited at the instant of the bomb's discharge it will burn just long enough to explode the shell at the moment when the projectile has reached its greatest height in the air. When this happens the paper shell is blown to pieces, and the stars, faintly ignited, are thrown far and wide. Being light, they fall slowly, and the effect produced is very beautiful.

The Wonders of the "Mine." What is called a "mine" is a big cylinder of pasteboard, which may be four feet high, and which is attached to a square wooden base, in order that it may be stood up. Inside of the cylinder is put a propelling charge of the slow explosive, and on top of it a paper bag filled with stars. At the top is an ordinary Roman candle, which serves as a sort of spout. When the Roman candle is lighted, it shoots a few fiery balls successively in the customary manner, and then, the explosive inside having been reached, the whole affair explodes, throwing a multitude of stars in all directions.

A Fourth I Remember. Col. William Jennings Bryan in speaking of the Fourth of July says: "As a boy, of course, like all others, I looked forward to this holiday with the keenest pleasure, although I never escaped the small boy's mishaps, burned fingers, and often burned clothes; but the happiest Fourth I ever spent I recollect distinctly because of a moral lesson received upon that occasion which has certainly been effective, for I have never gambled since."

"At that time I was very proud of a jackknife which had been given to me by an old friend of the family as a mark of merit for good conduct. I had thought nothing could induce me to part with that precious gift, and yet before the day was out I had bet the knife upon some foolish game of chance and lost it."

"Strange to say, I was not punished for my loss when I came home and told of it, and this was a surprise to me. I lay awake that night with a bad conscience. I had not been punished, and I deserved it; the fact seized me and from that time on I had a perfect horror of gambling in any form. I never recovered the jackknife, and I never gambled after that experience."

Unsinkable Steamboats. Five steamboats are being built for a Kiel shipping company which are said to be wholly unsinkable. A recent trial of one of the boats was carried out in the presence of representatives of the imperial navy and many shipping firms. The vessel was fully laden to represent 200 passengers and it was assumed that, in consequence of a leak caused by a collision, the entire engine-room division, into which water was pumped, had filled, while a hole was made to the exterior to admit water freely. The ship accordingly sank, but when it was full of water it had still about a foot of free board above the surface, thus satisfying the conditions imposed.—Consular Reports.

When Locks Were First Used. Locks were used in the time of the Pharaohs. At Karnak the visitor is shown the sculptured representation of a lock which is almost exactly like the kind of lock used in Egypt at the present day. Homer says that Penelope used a brass key to open her wardrobe. He adds that it was very crooked and had an ivory handle. A Greek writer who lived in the last half of the twelfth century explains that such keys were undoubtedly very ancient, although still to be seen in Constantinople and elsewhere. Roman locks, like the Egyptian, required a partial sliding of the key. They were, however, more intricate.

Complies with all requirements of the National Pure Food Law, Guarantee No. 2041, filed at Washington.

A CUP OF GOOD COFFEE LIKE MOTHER USED TO MAKE

"Fresh Roasted Coffee?—bah! Mother didn't use fresh roasted coffee, she had Arbuckles."

The way to get a good cup of coffee that tastes like Coffee with all the delicious flavor and aroma intact, is to buy a package of the old original Arbuckles' ARIOSA Coffee, and grind it as you want to use it, first warming it a little to develop the flavor and make the grinding easy. Coffee loses its identity as Coffee after being ground or exposed to the air and is easily contaminated by handling.

Arbuckles' was the first roasted packaged coffee.

The pores of each coffee berry are sealed after roasting with fresh eggs and granulated sugar to hold the goodness in and make the coffee settle clear and quickly; an actual application by machinery, of "Mother's" method—as patented by this firm.

Sold only in packages, sealed for the consumer's protection, containing one pound full weight. Sales for 37 years exceed the combined sales of all the other packaged coffees. The best coffee for you to drink, and save your money besides. Same old firm, same old coffee. If your dealer won't supply, write to ARBUCKLE BROS., New York City.

TRIUMPH OF LOVE.

"You refuse!" cried "Yaller Pete," the half breed cow puncher, renegade and all around bandit and villain, his beady eyes snapping viciously. "You refuse?"

"I not go to your wigwam; not be your squaw; no good white man, no good buck, nobow," answered the most beautiful maiden on the reservation, turning away scornfully, displaying a wild grace as she moved.

"You love saloons Dick Morley; he has a finer wigwam, he tells you big lies, he likes white squaw best. Bime-by he'll get tired of you, kick you out, then you'll come to me."

"Uh, I hate you," replied the dusky one; "go."

"All right; I go, but listen to me—I'll have his heart's blood if he gets you away from me. I say it."

This was six months before the dashing cattle puncher, Dick Morley, had won his brown sweetheart and taken her to his wigwam, which was a comfortable house of logs, containing two rooms, with skins fantastically adorning the walls and furniture, the result of tasks he had accomplished in times of leisure, in a not unskillful manner.

Outside were growing the hardy vines and flowers they had together planted, which Lolita had lovingly tended during his frequent absences, when it was not convenient for her to accompany him from home.

Happy as the robins in spring were they, this primitive pair. She was beautiful and loving and childlike; he was stalwart, brave and kind, with a child's heart, too. He never tired of teaching his dusky bride the secrets of love, and during the long evenings he tried from his own rather limited store to teach her the A B C's of his language, and she being smart as a cholar, they waxed merry over the lessons every time for it was amusing to her. She could not see the use; they were like the birds of the air, and with as little heed of the morrow as they.

There was seemingly not a cloud in their rosy horizon. In the mind of Lolita there was nothing save a passing recollection of Yaller Pete and his threats. Who, indeed, could harm her Dick?

Yaller Pete's whereabouts were made known from time to time by his almost periodical raids upon the cattle, carrying them off to his camp, to be rebranded in the canyon some miles away. Yaller Pete's so called because he had, as a half breed, inherited all the vices of both white and Indian parent, and none of the virtues, had long been a menace to the legitimate cattle men in that section, and innumerable traps had been set to catch him, but his gang almost invariably escaped and his dug out was always inaccessible. The boys were now contemplating a serious attack on Pete at an early date, meaning in good earnest to run him to earth, as his depredations had well nigh exhausted their patience. Meanwhile the busy season was closing, and they were trying to get through branding as soon as possible.

The 14th of February dawned brightly over the still snow-covered plains, and Morley, looking out, felt a thrill of the coming spring through his rich veins. Bidding Lolita a fond goodbye, he jumped on his broncho and started off to his work a few miles distant, intending to be back before nightfall, as usual. Lolita gazed long and wistfully after the departing form of her husband, and unaccountably felt a little sad, but, resolutely throwing the feeling off she proceeded with her household duties, which, being simple, were soon finished. She then passed into her little patch of garden, which was her special pride.

Meanwhile Dick Morley had passed a busy day, and at dusk started homeward, mind and heart intent upon the coming meeting. Cantering up to the door he was somewhat surprised and a little disappointed at not seeing the beloved form running to meet him, but thinking she had playfully hidden as was her wont at times, childishly surprising him, after a pretended search for her, he quickly entered and called to her, and receiving no reply entered the inner room. Still hearing no sound, the silence struck him alarmingly. He called loudly and rushed out and around the small inclosure, hunting now with a desperation born of fear. No one answered, and he returned to the house, now frantic with fear. He then noticed what in his haste he had previously overlooked, a piece of common brown paper, pinned to the door knob.

Quickly seizing it, he saw on it what appeared to be a rough sketch of a heart, daubed in with red earth of some kind, from which drops of red were scattered, evidently representing blood. Through the center of the heart was a piece of wood, that was intended for an arrow. Underneath all were roughly written the words: "This is your valentine—I got mine."

A dozen or more cowboys sitting around the camp fire that evening discussing the morrow's riddance of Yaller Pete's outfit, were startled at hearing the rapid approach of a horse, and the immediate appearance of Dick Morley on his almost exhausted broncho. Without waiting for inquiries, Dick exclaimed: "Boys, Lolita gone; Yaller Pete has taken her. If you would help me save her, come at once." He showed the paper and told how he found the cabin deserted on his return home, and how Pete had in the past threatened his wife.

There was a rush for bronchos, and all were soon under way, galloping with blood at fever heat, all eager to avenge Dick's loss, as well as their own loss of cattle. Dick was popular with these rough fellows, and could command their lives if needed.

There were a good thirty miles of plain to cover before they could hope to reach the foothills, and they fully knew their danger, for Pete would be prepared with scouts. He commanded over twenty men, collected at different times from the Indian camps and from the off-scourings of the nearby cities—fugitives from justice, most of them, a most villainous lot.

It was nearly dawn when fourteen resolute cowpunchers, headed by a desperate, heart-broken leader, approached the fastnesses of the hills.

A shot from the enemy from ambush went wild, and then followed a shout and rush from the punchers, who, though in the open, unhesitatingly crowded into the thicket through a hall of bullets. Dick, while his companions were bravely fighting hand to hand with the renegades in the bushes struck a side path, and, working his way through the underbrush, came upon a clearing in which stood a large tent, which he approached cautiously.

As he neared the open flap which served as a door he heard the sob of Lolita, accompanied by the demoniac laughter of Yaller Pete.

Dick suddenly darted to the door, but Pete, who was quicker, seized the girl in his arms and placed her between them, sneering: "Well, don't you want your wife? Why don't you take her?"

"Out of the way, mongrel; I'll kill you!" was the frantic answer. "I guess not," said Pete. "If you do, you will shoot her, you see."

It was a moment of terrible indecision, for Dick, with the big drops of sweat pouring down his face, knew he was powerless while that brute held her in his arms to protect himself.

Relief came in an unexpected way. During the fighting in the brush outside, the cowboys, disturbed the fair of a wildcat, which, deeming itself attacked, and thoroughly frightened, made a mad rush over the high ground toward the tent, and seeing the opening in the tent which served as a hole and landed fair and square upon the shoulders of Yaller Pete, who, startled for the moment, loosened his hold, involuntarily, and in that second Lolita sprang into her husband's arms.

Leaving Pete struggling with the unexpected enemy, Dick, carried his fainting burden into the air, and almost collided with his men coming in search of him, having settled the renegades, the latter having made a run for it when they found their leader missing.

At that juncture they were greeted with sounds of curses, intermingled with snarls and screeches. The tent flap opened, and out rolled man and cat, a bloody mass, Pete fighting for his life with a dirk, and trying to overcome the animal. One of the boys immediately finished the latter, but Pete was done for. He lay panting on the ground in horrible agony, and in a few seconds all was over. With a last curse and venomous look at Dick and the woman he had wickedly coveted he expired.

Slowly rode the punchers homeward, driving their recovered cattle before them and helping along their wounded.

Dick Morley, happy in the restoration of his Lolita, holding her tightly in front of him on the faithful broncho, breathed a silent prayer. — San Francisco News Letter.

The Japanese prince drew in his breath with a hissing sound, as he overtook the young girl's hand.

"Prince" said she, "I have been up against a lot of Japs, and they all hiss like that when they meet you. What's the reason anyway?"

"The reason is politeness," the prince answered. "I hiss—like this—I draw in my breath—I keep on drawing it in as long as I remain near you. For if I blow out, some of it might be blown in your fair face. What an offense! Shocking! And so we Japanese always hiss in exchanging greetings. Out of politeness we hold our breath." — Chicago Chronicle.

MISS NORTON'S DAIR

Paul Whitehead, one of the boarders at that fashionable boarding house, "The Pines," believes that every unmarried man should keep a diary. In his humble opinion it is an aid to matrimony that double discounts the efforts of the shrewdest and most experienced matchmaker ever known. If it had not been for the diary, kept by Miss Norton, whose presence for a long time was more of an ornament to "The Pines" than his own, he insists that he might still be a bachelor. He will tell you if you can get him to talk—and he is a singularly reticent and uncommunicative sort of fellow—that for a long while he was in love with Miss Norton and didn't have the courage to tell her so.

Miss Norton's fears were the other way around, for she dreaded that Paul, who was so bashful that he wouldn't take his own shadow into his confidence, should neglect to ask her at all. She did all in her power—which was as various as it was great—to encourage him.

During those trying days Miss Norton's sole comfort was her diary, to the secretive pages of which she confided not only every movement of her uneventful life but also every thought that agitated her active mind and every emotion that stirred her tender heart. There are in this world some men, more or less bigoted, whose claim it is that women can't think at all. To confound these men "with an indisputable argument we quote a few lines from Miss Norton's diary:

"Wednesday, June 18.—Cable broke again. In office fifteen minutes late. Boss said, with a sarcastic smile, that it's about time that I make allowance for cable and get up fifteen minutes earlier. Consider him too mean for anything! He might learn manners from Paul Whitehead. Spent 15 cents for luncheon, 50 cents for ribbon—the ribbon was a bargain. Must be more economical with lunch money. I don't know just what to do with the ribbon, but there will come a time. Paul not home for dinner; moped all evening. Mr. Dresser asked me out for a row in the park; turned him down.

"Friday, June 20.—Cable broke. Twenty minutes late. Boss says if this keeps up he will install a new car system at his own expense. Twenty cents for luncheon. Fifteen cents for dipped caramels. Only boy 5 cents for taking back the ribbon bought on Wednesday. Cost of living keeps going up. Walked home to save car fare. Glass of ice-cream soda, 10 cents. Out for a row in park with Paul. Moonlight. He didn't say anything. Suppose I shall have to tell him I am in love with him or else he won't find it out.

"Thursday, June 26.—Cable stuck in tunnel. Boss mad. Made six mistakes in taking dictation. Boss says sarcastically I must get my mind off that young man and get it on business. Wonder how he knew I was thinking of Paul? Did not go out to luncheon to-day; wanted to be economical. Twenty cents for candy and soda. Five cents to office boy to buy ribbon I sent back last week. Out with Paul. Moonlight. Nothing doing. Thought he might ask me.

"Monday, July 6.—Cable—

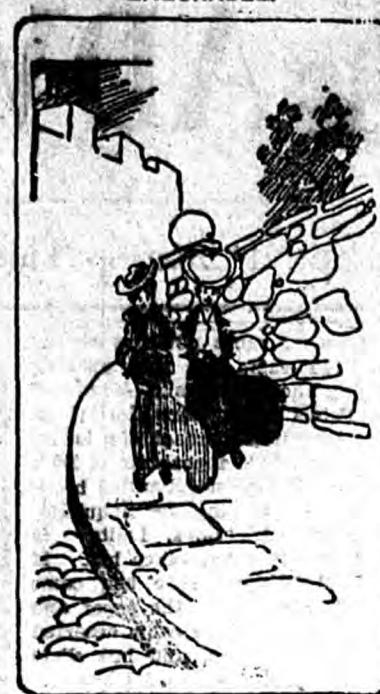

"But why should we longer obtrude on the privacy and the intimacy of Miss Norton's diary who we have learned enough from it to confound those skeptics who sneer at the intellectuality of woman and who rail at her inability to think profoundly?

At any rate the important point is not so much just what the diary happened to contain as that it happened to be lost. It dropped accidentally one morning out of Miss Norton's purse, fell on the dining-room floor of "The Pines" and Paul Whitehead happened to be its lucky finder. There are those who hint that the whole thing was not so accidental as—well, the cynical are never willing to allow for accidents, anyway, unless they happen to be of the sort that supports their benighted philosophy.—Chicago News.

What Does It Mean

to let Dividends "accumulate" on a Life Insurance Policy? In many companies it means nothing more than an agreement on the part of the policy-holder, to do without dividends for fifteen or twenty years, and then take what ever dividend the company will be willing to give. Dividends are declared every year in the Mutual Benefit, and the policyholders use them either to help pay premiums or to buy increased insurance. The policies of the contain special and peculiar advantages which are not combined in the policies of any other company. Examine these advantages before placing your insurance. You owe it to your family to have the best.

FORTUNES FROM IDEAS

Some Valuable Inventions Hit Upon Accidentally.

ANIMALS LEND IDEAS

A Men Discovered How to Make Sugar White and a Dog Gave Us the Art of Dyeing—Women Prominent as Inventors—Eccentricities of the Patent Office.

Whenever a new patent comes out, especially some little thing that anybody might have made, you will always hear the remark: "Why couldn't I have thought of that?" Fortunes are made from even the most trivial contrivances. A man walked from Philadelphia to Washington to patent the ginnet pointed screw, and the simple idea eventually earned him more than a million dollars. The rubber tip on the end of lead pencils made its inventor rich. The metal point on the end of your shoe-string earned a fortune for the woman who thought of it, and the copper cap that so long adorned the toes of children's shoes earned $2,000,000 for the lucky person who patented it.

Many valuable inventions were hit upon in a most accidental way. The art of making sugar white was discovered by a harmless old speckled hen. This feathered matron one day went for a walk through a field of clay and later without taking the precaution to wipe her feet walked through a sugar mill on the same plantation, scattering clay over the loose mounds of sugar as she passed. Afterward it was discovered that wherever her tracks had fallen on the moist sugar the clay had whitened it. Scientists took up the matter and from this incident introduced the method of bleaching sugar by the clay process.

A dog gave us the art of dyeing cloth. One afternoon so many years ago, that the date is of small consequence a noted man and his sweet-heart went for a walk along the sands of the seashore in a far off country.

A little dog trailed along at their heels and becoming weary of man love making finally ran ahead and went fishing among the rocks. One particular shell fish which he captured and devoured exuded a fluid which dyed the hair about the mouth a pretty purple. Investigation of this incident founded the science of dyeing cloth.

A man from Michigan was told by the doctors to take his wife South for her health. He purchased a big wagon and team for the trip, and thought to make some profit by carrying a sack of feather dusters to sell along the way. One day he went to the factory where his dusters were being made, and while standing in the yard talking to one of the employees picked up from the ground one of the "strutters" or tall feathers from a turkey—the refuse from the duster factory. He began idly twisting a thread back and forth through its broken edges, and the idea of the featherbone came to him. The featherbone is the successor of whalebone, and is indispensable to the attire of the modern woman. He patented the idea and received so much money from it that he will never have to travel overland in a wagon again unless he wants to.

It is interesting to note how man has borrowed many of his ideas from the animal world. Wasps made paper from wood long before man did. The folding scissors and folding pocket compass are only copies of the folding lower jaw of the dragon fly. The flying squid, a species of cuttlefish, has a way of projecting itself as high as twelve feet above the surface of the water by forcibly expelling water from its body. Man saw this and invented the skyrocket. The rope making machine used in the United States navy yards follows almost the precise lines that a spider does when making his own frail cable.

Women have been prominent in the field of invention and there are more than 3,500 different devices credited to their ingenuity. Of the list of things invented by women about 90 per cent. are devoted to the home, the kitchen and to dress. The first patent given a woman in the nineteenth century was granted to Mary Kite in 1809 for "straw weaving with silk thread"—the probable forerunner of American knitting. One of the most recent inventions by woman is a shoestring that won't come untied.

Thomas Jefferson may be termed the "Father of the Patent Office," for it was he who saw to the passing of the act creating the office and the copyright system. For a number of years he was one of the committee who passed on the merits of all designs submitted to the office. One Dr. Thornton, a rather eccentric man, was the only department clerk the office had for a long period. In the War of 1812, when the British soldiers had a cannon trained on the patent office to destroy it the doctor rushed out and placed his body before the mouth of the cannon, exclaiming that if Gotha and Vandals would destroy a building containing models that would benefit all the world the ball must first go through his body. It was spared, but in 1836 the office was burned and the only thing saved was a book of no particular value.—New York Sun.

RULE OR RUIN POLITICS MEAN DISASTER

Some Observations About Present Political Procedures. Fair Warning Given To Those Responsible. Will Be Held Accountable For Any Disaster At The Polls.

The rule or ruin policy which is now being pursued by some is sufficient to cause the blush of shame to mantle the brow of those, who from unselfish motives and in the firm conviction of the righteousness of the basic principles on which Democracy is founded have always given to that party their earnest allegiance. No warning, however plain; no protest, however strong seems sufficient to cause those who have captured the control of the party machinery, simply and solely that they may exploit that party for their own selfish and mercenary purposes. There is no need to mince matters; there is no use trying to disguise the fact that the Ring-ridden Democracy, of Wicomico is becoming pretty thoroughly disgusted with the situation. You don't have to go look for evidence to prove this assertion. You can hear expressions from people every day. People, who at all times and at all seasons have supported the ticket from top to bottom express themselves as opposed to third term in office and who are anxious to see substituted therefor the old foundation principle of Democracy, rotation in office. Then why should these political manipulators be allowed to jeopardize the success of that party which others wise would have no trouble in maintaining its supremacy in this county. Have the people resigned their rights and liberties and abdicated in favor of a political Trust whose interests are pooled and are inimical to men or methods which are open and above board, but who work and plan in secret always and at all times with one object in view that of keeping themselves in office. It would indeed seem that they had been delegated this right by the people themselves were one, to judge from the arrogant way assumed by those self constituted leaders but investigation will prove that such is not the case. The fact will be learned that the people have not abdicated and are not willing to be forever dominated in the interest of one man. The voters of this county as well as the country at large are now and always have been intensely opposed to third term nominations. This sentiment is so strongly worked that it may be termed the unwritten law of both parties and when violated, has in every case been the cause of disaster. Then why incur this unnecessary risk? Why take such long chances on success? Does anyone pretend to say that the Democratic party is so short of material that it has been found necessary to violate common sense and to break time honored party principles and precedents in order that one man may have his ambition gratified and remain in the State Senate for twelve years. The beneficiary of this senseless policy himself dare not make this assertion. He knows that there are a number of good men and Democrats, who are both able and willing to serve their county in this capacity and who cannot help but feel that consistency at all times is not a jewel but rather a delusion and a snare.

People have been known at times to walk when asleep along dangerous precipices, which would have been impossible when awake. This may be taken to indicate the position of the Democratic party today. They have in the past walked among some dangerous places, while at least unconscious, but now they are awake and fully aware of the odium which attaches to third term nominations, and are not willing to take the chances thereby incurred.

Those who are really anxious for the success of their party are always ready and willing to sacrifice much in the interest of that which they deem to be essential to the interest and well being of the people at large even when this calls for their own effacement, but they are not willing to sacrifice the very basic principles on which that party is founded nor are they willing to concede that the interest of any one man is paramount to the will of the people. The question at issue is not one of personalities; it is much larger than the personality of any one man. It begins at the foundation and is based on the fundamental principles of representative government whereby the governing authority is gained by the consent of the governed and the very life of free institutions depends upon the co-existence of this idea coupled with the free franchise. Then how dangerous and utterly absurd it is at this time to go out of our way and to take unto ourselves and be compelled to defend even against our better judgment, these strange doctrines of the third term advocates, and who are these advocates? Only those who are the recipients of these favors or are the personal followers of such. The will of the people is and should be at all times the supreme law of the land and any subversion of this doctrine is sure to bring disaster. The people have had no say in the proceedings which it is now generally understood to be the programme mapped out by the politicians. The only way to prevent the consummation of the deals and counter deals which have and are now being made, is for the people to at once assert themselves and serve notice upon those who have usurped their rights and privileges, that they no longer will be permitted to baffle the people into believing that they and they only have the divine right to rule. When the people take charge of what is really their own then it will begin to be seen on what flimsy foundations this seeming greatness hangs. It is to be hoped that the convention which is called to nominate a ticket for the Democratic party Tuesday July 30th will be composed of men who are not dominated and sent here in the interest of any one man and that they will have the judgment and good sense to recognize what is the best interest of the party from the people's standpoint and that they will take due cognizance of the fact that the people are opposed to and will not stand for third term nominations.

The politicians have had fair warning if they bring disaster let them and not those who are seeking better methods be held responsible.

Great Historical Exhibit.

Norfolk, Va.—John P. Kennedy, Virginia State Librarian, has announced that the portraits and historic documents from the Library will be placed in the Historic Arts building at the Jamestown Exposition in a few days.

These exhibits are estimated as worth $51,000 and the general assembly consists of one hundred portraits and something like a thousand historic documents.

Mr. Kennedy and the assistant Librarian, Edward S. Evans, have been at the Exposition several days arranging the cases for the exhibit. These cases represent the finest possible workmanship. Are of mahogany and contain large glass doors, fitted with locks for the protection of the exhibits.

The building in which these exhibits will be housed is absolutely fireproof, costing between $125,000 and $140,000. In addition to this protection, expert caretakers will be on hand throughout the Exposition period, while a number of competent guards will be detailed to the building.

The Virginia State exhibit, more than any other, is of the greatest historic significance, since it unfolds in unbroken record the eventful history of the settlement and growth of the United States. The collection for any other states are also very complete and of great value.

Beginning many years before the western countries were discovered, strange documents are shown, which portray the social and political condition in Europe which led to the discovery of America. These are accompanied with colonial relics, etc., and thus the complete history of the country is given.

The exhibit constitutes the largest one of its kind ever assembled in this country at any exposition and to the student and layman alike it is intensely interesting.

Among the other states which will have special representation in this building are North Carolina, South Carolina, Georgia, New York, Ohio, Vermont, New Jersey, Delaware, Massachusetts, Louisiana and Pennsylvania, while several others will be represented in the exhibits shown by the Daughters of the American Revolution and the Colonial Dames, Cor.

Her Idea.

"This is so sudden!" As he heard these words the astonished lover, gazed to his left in strange bewilderment.

"Sudden," he repeated. "Darling, did I hear right? Two years ago I, believe it was, that I first looked into your lovely eyes. For several months after that I only saw you occasionally; then gradually—very gradually—I increased my visits. It took six months to get a formal calling basis; it took six months more to be a regular visitor; six months more to call you by your first name; and it is only during the last few months that I have ventured, with many misgivings, even to hold your hand. And now, after all this gradual development of my burning and measureless love, you tell me that my declaration of this evening is so sudden. Do you indeed call this sudden?"

"I do indeed," she replied calmly. "But what can your reason be?"

The lovely creature he gazed at so feelingly rose with some degree of ill concealed hauteur.

"Simply this," she replied. "On your present salary I didn't see how you could possibly have the nerve to propose to me for at least two years yet."—Sail

SEN. BREWINGTON NEEDED IN DEMOCRATIC

Ranks. Third Term Office-Holding in Opposition to Wholesome Democratic Principle of Rotation in Office, and Distasteful To The People Who Believe in Maintaining A Healthy Democracy. Wicomico Wants An Open-Door, United Democratic Ticket Nominated, Through Well-Established Democratic Principles.

Despite the sinister political situation which threatens such a course, there is still talk of Mr. M. V. Brewington, present retiring Senator, being again placed on the Democratic ticket of Wicomico county, by some of his friends and political allies.

Has Served And Been Served.

Mr. Brewington has served the party for eight years, or nearly half a man's prime in life. He has held the office of Senator from this county for two terms, and we respectfully submit that he has been well served, whatever he has rendered to our party, whether good or bad, even if it had been all good, and the most he could do is the least that he or any man elected to this high office, or any public office, could be expected to do. This is their sworn duty and trust. How well or how ill Mr. Brewington has fulfilled this sworn duty, we will not enter into at the present. That he has done any better or worse than some one else, is another question apart from the immediate one.

If Mr. Brewington is a candidate again for State Senate at the Democratic County Convention which assembles in the Court House in Salisbury on July 30, will he be a Democrat or Un-Democrat, will he be loyal to the party which has served him or for self. He has been served eight years or two terms. Democratic principles compose the Democratic Party, not mere men. And principles which are everlasting are above men.

One of the strongest and most vital principles that underlies, founds, preserves and protects the Democratic party is Rotation in Office, change of office holders. There is the strongest kind of sentiment for this principle in Wicomico County. There is the most bitter opposition against a Third Term Candidate, with good reason, and just cause. Who constitutes the Democratic party in Wicomico county?

There are about 2500 registered Democratic voters. Does it look just, for one man to hold the highest office in the gift of the county indefinitely, when there are out of the 2500, many as capable, many as honest, many as deserving.

Say there are 2500 registered voters, what are the other 2499 voters going to do? Are they going to stand for it?

A Third Term Candidate is Undemocratic and in opposition to the healthy Democratic doctrine of rotation in office, otherwise how is a party to be kept together, how can there be harmony among the people when one man, no more deserving than many others holds office year after year, and reaps the harvest and fruits of the people's suffrage. Where does the main body of the people come in?

We submit that Senator Brewington has been well served. The people have granted him two terms.

Time To Halt On Office Monopoly.

There is a time in public affairs to call a halt on office monopoly. The Democratic ring in Wicomico County has had full warning of the demand for Democratic principles. They have ignored true majority rule by refusing to give the people the Crawford County System of direct vote for the candidates by each Democratic voter.

The political line up in votes of the Democratic and Republican parties close in this county and has been for several years now, owing largely to the people growing tired of "nominations in the ring" alone methods.

We respectfully submit that Senator Brewington is today the most served man by the Democratic party holding office in Wicomico County. His patronage from the party, started in the early years of the News in Salisbury about twenty years ago.

For the past eight years or for two terms he has held the highest office in the gift of the people of Wicomico County.

Responsibility For Unsatisfactory School Conditions.

In addition to his holding of office, his brother, Harry L. Brewington holds one of the most responsible positions in the county being a member of the School Board. And just here it might not be amiss for the self constituted leaders in the Democratic party to remember how intensely and unspeakable the parents are opposed to the present management of school affairs in the county. The people are up in arms over the system and control of the public schools by the School Board of Wicomico County. They cannot overlook the fact that the appointment of the members of the School Board is made by Governor Warfield through the recommendation and endorsement of the Senator from this county. And they will doubtless hold Senator Brewington responsible for the present situation of the schools, for wasn't Mr. Cooper recommended by Senator Brewington as the Republican member of the Board against (so the Republicans affirm) the protest of the Republican organization? Were not the Republicans entitled to a representative member of their own choosing, by law.

Was not Senator Brewington instrumental in placing his brother on the School Board?

On whom lies the responsibility, if not Mr. M. V. Brewington the favor or disfavor of the School Board in the Public mind?

Long Office Holding Wears Public Patience.

No man—in this day of imperfect clay—can expect to hold office, particularly that of State Senator, which carries with it the power to recommend and make appointments, without making bitter enemies as well as close friends.

There are enough scores already in the Democratic ranks in Wicomico county and the suggestion made in the News, Messrs. Brewington's paper of the past Thursday, editorially, is so fitting that we print it below:

"Harmony is essential to Democratic success next November, and the way to have harmony is for the party to stand as a unit in support of the ticket; and the way to secure such unanimity is to nominate men acceptable to all factions when it is possible to get the right material. The delegates to the Convention should bear this in mind and act accordingly. Party success is paramount to individual preference, and there should be a willingness to lay aside personal ambitions for the sake of retaining Democratic control in Wicomico county."

"The Democratic party must be in a position to meet a united, concentrated Republican organization in the contest next November. There is no use trying to belittle this fact. The supreme effort of the Republican leaders will be made to wrest control of this county from the hands of the Democratic party which has wisely managed the county's affairs for more than thirty years. To meet this united effort on the part of our opponents, the Democrats must nominate a ticket that will merit and command the hearty and undivided support of every man who calls himself a Democrat."

"It is a fact that Democratic success or failure this year will depend chiefly upon the character and fitness of the candidates placed before the people. Such being the situation, we urge the careful selection of delegates to the County Convention, and counsel wise deliberation in that body when it assembles to make the nominations."

We presume that the above editorial emanates from Senator Brewington. It will naturally strike the public that here is opportunity for self application and a beautiful opening for Senator Brewington to set the example.

Party Success Paramount To Individual Preference.

He says: "Party success is paramount to individual preference, and there should be a willingness to lay aside personal ambitions for the sake of retaining Democratic control in Wicomico county."

Why not Senator Brewington set this laudable example and his position in public opinion would then be such as to be ample reward.

The Republicans United.

Again he says: "The Democratic party must be in a position to meet a united, concentrated Republican organization in the contest next November. There is no use trying to belittle this fact."

How true! The parties are close in Wicomico County today, and men should be selected to run on the Democratic ticket who have not been in a position to make many enemies. The offices should be distributed so as to attract the united support of all believers in true Democratic doctrine.

High sounding phrases will not count in the election this fall, the negro bugaboo will not be sufficient, nor churned up fealty to the Democratic party mean anything unless the Democratic party puts up a Democratic ticket after Democratic principles. The nomination of a man for a third term office will not be Democratic but in opposition to Democratic principles.

Healthy Democratic Doctrine.

Again Mr. Brewington's editorial says: "The Democrats must nominate a ticket that will merit and command the hearty and undivided support of every man who calls himself a Democrat."

This is true. And it is equally true that the Democratic party must nominate a DEMOCRATIC ticket not in name alone but in the representative part of it, the Democratic principle of rotation in office against third term

POLITICIANS DO MOVE

How "Medicine" Is Made in Wicomico. Formula Given.

The moves and counter moves which are now being made with lightning like rapidity in the political arena keeps the scribe who attempts to be anywhere near the firing line continually on the move with pencil sharpened and eraser ready for any new development. "There is nothing new under the sun" is a text dear to the heart of every Ring politician and they always try scrupulously to live up to and verify its truth by never willingly giving the people anything new in candidates. New conditions may arise and old methods be deemed obsolete, but the same old men in their adaptiveness may be depended on as were ready to trim their sails to catch any breeze. And how true the old adage "Politics make strange bed fellows," which when given its proper interpretation means now, say it is to fool some of the people all the time. Those who are wise today may be ignorant tomorrow. The cards may be shuffled over night, conferences held and new alignments made. Another kicking steer may have been found loose on the prairie of politics and must be leashed. Some one may have managed to get close to the hearts of the people and be in their minds as fit timber to represent them for some particular office. This may be contrary to the pre-arranged policies of the Ring then heroic measures must be resorted to. The plume a spot must be pacified, compromise and color are resorted to and if this fails the big chiefs begin to mix "Medicine" and don their war paint. The mixing of this Medicine can only be participated in by the big chiefs. Those who have proved their prowess and maintained their positions against all comers in several campaigns. The medicine men of Wicomico enjoy quite a reputation and much Medicine is made here for use throughout the State. The formulae used here are considered very valuable and on account of their skill and long practice the Medicine men of Wicomico have often been called on to mix medicine for other localities. At their dispensary here medicine is constantly kept in stock.

This medicine is put up in large bottles and labelled "Harmony" and is said to be composed of the following ingredients:

To one pint of sweet spirits-ferment add three ounces of the best bluff, two ounces of don't bother my job, three ounces of don't disrupt the party, four ounces of bring me a delegation, six ounces of your wait awhile, seven ounces of your time will come, add sufficient honey to sweeten to taste, shake well, put in quart bottles and keep in cool place until needed. A wingglass given at frequent intervals will sometime cure a very obstinate case. If however this fails to reach the case the following should be given in large doses without delay. Take the mixture as above, go to the News Building and get some of their old papers tear out one dozen of their Editorials on negro domination together with white supremacy; they could probably also furnish you with a little look of the negro's hair. Add these to the other mixture and you will then have a medicine that is claimed has never been known to fail in bringing the desired result.

George W. Bell.

Owing to lack of space last week we failed to comment on the letter sent to us by Geo. W. Bell. In answer to our editorial on his position together with that of Mr. Brewington and J. D. Price, on the use of money in Democratic primaries. While Mr. Bell does not remove the stigma put upon the Democratic party as to the use of money, he makes his position clear. We wish to commend Mr. Bell for this attitude on bribery and say to him if every member of the party would act and feel as he evidently does on this question there would be no doubt as to where the democratic party stands as to bribery.

Declines Judgeship.

Judge Anstin L. Crothers, of Elkton, Md., has declined to accept the nomination for Associate Judge in the Second Judicial Circuit. His friends have started to boom him for attorney-general, which he will accept if offered him by the State convention.

Miss Mary Russell of Galveston died on Sunday at the age of seventy eight years. She was an invalid from childhood and never walked. Her life was spent in the chair or in bed. For more than fifty years she was under the constant care of her younger sister, Miss Ollie Russell. Her remains were interred on Monday. Her burial clothes were made more than forty years ago as she then directed: Her dress was made of Irish linen and was somewhat changed in color, but her wishes were fully complied with and interment made in the old burial ground.

FOR COMPTROLLER

Mr. Thomas Perry, Of Salisbury, Is A Candidate For This State Office.

The convention which meets in Salisbury, July 30, will be asked to name a delegation to the State Convention in the interest of Mr. Thomas Perry, who has announced his candidacy for the Comptrollership. Mr. Perry's candidacy will no doubt be well received throughout the State as he is peculiarly well adapted to fill with credit an office of this character having spent most of his life in connection with large financial enterprises and would bring to bear ripe judgment and exceptional capacity as an executor and administrator. His many years experience as school examiner brought him in contact with all classes of people and demonstrated his fitness for public office and was the means of drawing unto himself a host of friends. This is the only public office he ever held. Mr. Perry was for many years owner and Editor of the Salisbury Advertiser under whose management the paper occupied a leading place among the country journals of the State. He is now President of the Wicomico Building and Loan Association and largely engaged in the lumber business.

BALTIMORE'S BEST STORE

Hochschild, Kohn & Co.

HOWARD AND LEXINGTON STREETS.

We prepay Freight Charges to all points within 300 Miles of Baltimore on all Purchases Amounting to 5.00 or More.

Interesting Facts About The Store

The continual as well as rapid growth of this store is a conspicuous fact in the history of Baltimore's retail merchandising—the cause for which is plain to every patron of the store.

In every department—each a complete store in itself—we show at all times the newest, the best and most dependable merchandise, carrying complete assortments in each and every line—yet these goods are to be had for less than you can buy same styles and qualities elsewhere. That's part of our policy—to offer

The Best For The Very Least Money

Then, again, you get the most efficient service, from the buying of the goods right through to the selling and delivering at your home.

To this is added the fact that every purchase made here is guaranteed satisfactory; we make it so if it is not either by refunding your money or exchanging the goods, just as you prefer.

Then there is the additional advantage that whenever we secure goods below prevailing market prices (as we frequently do, because of our enormous outlet and our willingness to take the largest lots), we share the full benefits with our patrons, selling them these goods at the same proportionate savings as we bought them.

Is there not reason enough, then, for the fact that we have become Maryland's economic center in the supplying of almost everything the family requires for wear and use?

Our Mail Order Department is equipped to give prompt and accurate service. The Mail Order of Fashions will be mailed free every month on request. Samples of Silks, Dress Goods, Wash Fabrics and so on, will be cheerfully sent on a trial basis.

Aguinado's Acquaintance.

A correspondent writing to a post meridian contemporary, asked what has become of Aguinado, the once conspicuous Tagal "Son of Destiny," but who seems to have dropped so completely out of public notice that the ear to which the inquiry was addressed replied by saying that "patient and painstaking search of the records discloses the fact that the famous Filipino chieftain, who for many long months was chased from one end of the Philippines to the other by practically all the armed forces of the United States and who was finally surprised and captured by strategists of General Funston, the daredevil of the American army, has dropped out of sight as completely as if the earth had opened and swallowed him at a single gulp."

It is true that this distinguished trouble maker, who once commanded the first column, of the first page, has dropped out of the notice of the reading world. But he is still very much alive, and—would you never guess it—a well-to-do ship builder, has a shipyard on the Nemes River, at Cavite Vayo, a village near Cavite; is thoroughly recognized to American rule, has taken the oath of allegiance; the surveillance upon his movements, once so keen though unobtrusive, has been withdrawn, and the "Son of Destiny" is now engaged in leading so much of the simple life as goes with the building of coastwise craft and the patching up of those that are in need of repair.

This information about the Filipino leader who gave so much trouble in Spain and America was furnished yesterday by James H. Doyle, chief boatswain United States Navy, who has just returned from Manila, where he has been stationed for two years. It was immediately prior to his departure from Manila that the chief boatswain paid a visit to Aguinado, at his shipyard. Aguinado, he says, employs about 150 men, is doing a thriving business, accumulating many of this world's goods and getting fat. Let me have men about me that are fat, sleek-headed men, such as sleep of nights.

This Aguinado no longer wears a lean and hungry look and is no more of that dangerous class, who think too much. A much-changed Emilio, he is according to his recent visitor. No more does he issue proclamations whose poignancy of style has rivaled only by that of Manila's bombastic Captain General Augustin, and no more does he send forth evil communications to corrupt good Filipinos.

Aguinado, who is now about thirty-eight years old, first came to fame in 1896, when he led the revolt of his countrymen against Spanish rule. Thereafter he was constantly active as an insurgent until America conquered Spain, whereupon he took up arms against the conquerors and caused this country far more trouble than Montezuma caused Dewey until he was finally captured by Fanston. Aguinado, it is said, had been a close student of the life of Napoleon and was credited with an ambition to be a military leader such as was the "Little Corsican."—New York Times.

Trust Your Wife.

Many wives, perhaps a majority of wives, make a grievance of the fact that their husbands do not converse as freely or animatedly with them as with intimate friends.

Night after night, a wife will say to some confidant, my husband sits almost speechless at the dinner table. When I inquire what has happened during the day he merely says, "Nothing of any importance." He seldom talks to me of his business, or of politics, or of any of the matters in which I know him to be interested. But when two or three men are here to dinner, especially if they be his closest friends, my husband's conversation is very lively and interesting. He always has much to tell, and they sit talking keenly for many hours. Why does he not talk that way when we are alone together? Why does he parry my questions rather than take the trouble to answer them? Why does he never ask my opinion, as he asks the opinion of his men friends, about his business, or politics, or affairs of the day? I'm sure my brain is as good as that of most of his friends and my advice ought to be worth as much as theirs. Before we were married he told me everything and always invited me to counsel.

Thus, with plaints and tears, the wife throws the blame for the situation upon her husband. It is his fault that he does not take her into his confidence his fault that he does not seek her advice. But if the husband were to have a hearing, and if he were frank enough to plead the true reasons for his conduct, instead of making, as he probably would, a mendacious plea more complimentary, to his fearful spouse, he would reply, in nine cases out of ten:

"My dear wife, does it ever occur to you that a man looks for something more in a confidant than a pair of ears?"

"You wish me to tell you everything not because you take the slightest interest in the details of my business, or in politics, or in the things that concern men of the world, but because my confidences would flatter you. I would please you to be able to tell other men's wives that your husband regards you as a valuable confidant. But you do not read the papers closely or the serious magazines. You do not keep yourself informed about the times. Your reading is limited to current novels and your interest to household matters, social affairs, and who calls on whom. When I undertake to tell you about the political situation, for instance I must commence with the very primer of civil government. You have no knowledge except what I give you; and between conversations you forget all former instructions, for your mind is never on such matters."

"My men friends have a background of information about politics; you have not. When I tell them the fact they perceive its bearings on the general situation; you do not. Their opinion is worth hearing, for they know what they are talking about; yours, to speak plainly, is worth nothing, for you have no knowledge, no experience of your own. What you have you get at second-hand from me; and even while I am giving it to you your mind wanders off to the kitchen, or to the nursery, or to a dance or tea. On your own ground you are admirable, but in the matters which chiefly interest me you are not equipped to hear intelligently or to counsel prudently. For this defect in you I am not responsible; nor are you responsible. We are all as God and civilization has made us and the difference between men and women goes to the very roots of character and the depths of the mind."—San Francisco Bulletin.

GIRL BABY'S AWFUL ECZEMA

Sight of Eye Destroyed by Disease—Tried Five Doctors But Grew Worse—In Agony Eight Months—Parents Discouraged, Until They Tried Cuticura Remedies

IN ONE WEEK ALL SORES DISAPPEARED

"Our little girl, one year and a half old, was taken with eczema of that was what the doctor said it was. We called in the family doctor and he gave some tablets and said she would be all right in a few days. The eczema grew worse and we called in doctor No. 2. He said she was teething, as soon as the teeth were through she would be all right. But she still grew worse. Doctor No. 3 said it was eczema. By this time she was nothing but a yellow, greenish sore. Well, he said he could help her, so we let him try it about a week. One morning we discovered a little yellow pimple on one of her eyes. Of course we phoned for doctor No. 4. He came over and looked her over and said that he could not do anything more for her, that we had better take her to some eye specialist, since it was an ulcer. So we went to Oswego to doctor No. 5, and he said the eye-sight was gone, but that he would help us. We thought we would try doctor No. 6. Well, that proved the same, only he charged $10 more than doctor No. 4. We were nearly discouraged. I saw one of the Cuticura advertisements in the paper and thought we would try the Cuticura treatment, so I went and purchased a set of Cuticura Remedies, which cost me $1, and in three days our daughter, who had been sick about eight months, showed great improvement, and in one week all sores had disappeared. Of course it could not restore the eyesight, but if we had not taken her to some eye specialist, it would have saved the eye. We think there is no remedy so good for any skin trouble or impurity of the blood as Cuticura. Mr. and Mrs. Frank Abbott, P. O. No. 5, Fulton, Oswego Co., N. Y., August 17, 1906.

FREAKS OF THE TRADE RAT.

He May Steal, but Is Very Careful to Leave Something in Exchange.

One of the oddest little animals in existence is the California wood rat; better known as the "trade rat." It owes the latter name, says the Strand, to the fact that, though it is a great thief, it never steals anything without putting something else in its place.

The story is told of a paste pot which had been left over night in the assay office at the Silver Queen Mine, and which was found in the morning filled with the oddest collection of rubbish.

A description is given of a trade rat's nest found in an unoccupied house. The nest was composed entirely of iron spikes laid in perfect symmetry, with the points outward. Interlaced with the spikes were about two dozen forks and spoons and three large butcher knives.

There were also a large carrying fork, knife and steel, several plugs of tobacco, an old purse, a quantity of small carpenter tools, including several saws and a watch, of which the outside casing, the glass, and the works were all distributed separately, so as to make the best show possible. Altogether the oddest collection. None of these things was of any earthly use to the rat. They must have collected them just in the same way that a child hoards up odds and ends to play with.

Mrs. Marston Consents

Mrs. Marston looked up from her sewing with a frown as her daughter entered the room.

"The girl's hair was blown in curling tangles beneath her sailor hat, and her dark brown eyes were sparkling with happiness."

"Where have you been, Dora?" asked Mrs. Marston.

"Oh, just for a little walk," Dora replied.

"No need to ask you who you went with," said her mother. "Your looks tell me that. But this thing has gone far enough, and I want it stopped. I told you the other night not to have anything more to say to Earl Garland. You know he's poor, Dora, and I want you to do well."

"In other words," interposed Dora, bitterly, "you want me to encourage a man I don't like, nor even respect, just because he has money. You're always been good to me, mother, and I don't see how you can want me to marry a man like Horace Carleton. Why, he's old enough to be my father in the first place. You know he is."

"Just think of all the beautiful things you could have if you married him," returned her mother, eagerly, "but if you marry Earl Garland, you'll always be poor."

"I'd much rather be poor, then," retorted Dora, a firm look settling upon her face.

"I shall never give my consent to your marrying Earl," declared Mrs. Marston, emphatically; "and I forbid you to ever speak to him again. Mr. Carleton is coming here to-night, and I want you to be nice to him. You're my daughter and must obey me."

The girl made no reply. A few moments afterward she quietly left the room. Dora did not mind her mother's reprimand as much as usual, for she was thinking of what Earl had said: "Don't worry, little girl; everything will be all right. We'll have our own way yet, and you won't have to disobey your mother. I'll not tell you my plan, but you see if I'm not a true prophet."

"Whatever did Earl mean?" she asked herself. "And how strange it is that he's going to Trenton just now when he's so busy on the farm. I don't understand it. I shan't be nice to Mr. Carleton if he comes to-night," her thoughts ran on. "Mother will probably be angry, but I can't help it if she is. I'm going to be true to Earl anyway."

When Horace Carleton arrived that evening Dora was in her room, and as she heard her mother coming up the stairs to call her she suddenly resolved that she would not see Mr. Carleton. Although Mrs. Marston first coaxed her, and threatened her, she would not go down. So the former, in a very uncomfortable state of mind, was obliged to make excuses for her to Mr. Carleton.

Now and then Dora caught snatches of the conversation below, which caused her not a little dismay. Her mother never seemed to lose sight of the fact that she was talking to a man with a large income.

After Mr. Carleton had taken his leave a stormy scene was enacted between the girl and mother; but when it was all over Mrs. Marston had to acknowledge to herself that she had not been able to change her daughter one particle.

A week wore away. Dora began to be a little anxious about Earl, for she had heard nothing from him during this time. She wondered what was detaining him so long in the city. That evening, Mr. Carleton called again, and it was only a few moments after his arrival that Dora heard her mother exclaim in great excitement: "I can't believe it! Let me read it again!"

"What can it be?" the girl asked herself. "Dora, come down here," called Mrs. Marston. "Something wonderful has happened."

The girl by this time was somewhat curious and did not wait for a second invitation.

"Here! Read that," cried Mr. Carleton, thrusting a Trenton item into her hand and pointing to a certain column. This headline met her eye: "Marchville Farmer Is Left a Large Fortune."

For several moments after Dora had finished reading about Earl Garland's being left a million dollars of money by some rich uncle, in Scotland, she was much astounded and in the dark as her mother or Mr. Carleton.

Then all at once a light broke in her mind and she understood Earl's plan. She felt as though she should shout for joy, but she suppressed that feeling and tried to appear as astonished as possible.

Later, in the evening, when Mrs. Marston and Dora were alone, the former declared, with much earnestness: "I always thought Earl was a likely young man; and if you want to speak to him again, Dora, I shan't object. Why, come to think of it, he's worth three times as much as Horace Carleton."

When Earl Garland asked Mrs. Marston if she was willing to give Dora to him, she said she had rather give her to him than to any other man in the world.

But Dora married a poor man after all, for Earl's fortune never materialized.

THE IMAGINATIVE PIPER.

By His Secretiveness Placed His Master in an Awkward Position.

A certain duke was dining in full kilt dress at a highland anniversary dinner, his piper standing behind his chair. At dessert a very handsome and valuable snuff-box belonging to one of the guests was handed round. When the time came to return it to its owner the snuff-box could not be found anywhere. A search was made but with no result, the duke being especially anxious about it.

On the next anniversary he again donned the kilt—which he had not worn in the interval—for the annual dinner. As he was dressing he happened to put his hand in his apron, and there, to his astonishment, found the box which had been lost at the last year's dinner. He sent for his piper, and said:

"Why, this is the snuff-box we were looking for. Did you not see me put it away in my apron?"

"Yes, your grace."

"Then why did you not tell me?" demanded the duke.

"Because I thought your grace required the little matter kept quiet," responded the piper, with a knowing wink.—Illustrated Bits.

No Place for Strangers.

J. Edward Addicks was condemning a certain politician.

"The man has no experience," he said, "and he has not sense enough to conceal his lack of experience. He reminds me of an incident that took place in a barber shop the other day."

"In this quiet, busy shop a man who was getting shaved suddenly uttered a loud oath."

"Hang you!" he exclaimed. "You've cut my chin twice now. If you can't shave better than this, every regular customer will leave you."

"But the young barber pushed the man's head back on the velvet rest, and laughed."

"Oh, no," he said. "No fear of that! I'm not allowed to shave regular customers yet. I only shave strangers."

Most people entertain the delusion that their opinions are arguments. They do not bolster "I think" with "because."

Not being able to find an appropriate likeness of his satanic majesty, an old colored parson tore a picture of a racing automobile from a newspaper and held it before his congregation. "Gracious!" exclaimed the shocked old lady as she adjusted her spectacles. "If you big boys don't stop pummeling that little lad he will have to go to the hospital. I hope you don't call that playing soldier!"

THIRD TERM OFFICE-HOLDERS.

The policy of the Democratic Party in this county has undoubtedly been against the holding of office by any man for three consecutive terms. As a mere party doctrine this principle has enough in it to commend it to those who are sincerely interested in the success of their party more than they are interested in their own or some one close to them. The putting of new men on the ticket tends to create enthusiasm in the ranks of that party, and moreover shows that there is no intention on the part of any one to subvert the great interests of the party to selfish ends and personal aggrandizement. To say to the rank and file of any party year after year to take off their coats and help elect the ticket nominated, when the ticket bears the same names year after year, makes the voter think they mean take off the coat and help elect annuals all the time. In other words that the party has been swallowed up into the individual, who is constantly and eternally yelling party fealty when he means personal advancement.

We may have too much of a good thing. It is human nature to grow weary even of the beauties of nature if we are thrown too much and too constantly in contact with them. The enthusiasm first aroused, dies away and in its place indifference is seen. Such especially is true of men. And the voters who grow enthusiastic over a man when first nominated, feel their ardor and enthusiasm cool when he is again placed upon the ticket, and when this process is again repeated, indifference and apathy results. Besides there is nothing democratic or fair in giving to any one man a monopoly of any office. There are always other men who are usually competent to serve and it is due to these men that a chance should be given them.

There is, however, a deeper and stronger reason for the principle of "Rotation in office" than that of mere party expediency. This principle was recognized by the framers of our constitution. Benj. Franklin on the floor of the convention argued that the long tenure of office and the power to limit the salaries of the officers would tend to corrupt the government and that the principle of rotation in office was essential to the preservation of the republic.

—Lost—On Main Street between Hotel and Gamby's store or in the store on June 21st, a pair of gold rimless nose glasses. If found return to Advertiser Office for owner, and reward.

Power, were the two greatest forces that guided and ruled mankind, and as it was impossible to take away ambition they could do the next best thing—take away the monetary inducement to hold office. When men have been long in office they are fair to think the office and the party belong to them, and use it to further their own selfish desires and aims, forgetful of their true duty—the interests of the public whose servants they are. By manipulation and throwing the plums belonging to their official position, and the influence obtained from it judiciously among their constituents they succeed in building up an organization whose only aim is to advance their own personal ambitions.

Mr. James T. Trutt, the former clerk of the court of this county, recognized this principle, when he declined to be a candidate for the third time. Mr. Trutt then was and is now one of the strongest men in the organization ranks, and was then in a position, if he had been so inclined to force his nomination on the party. To his credit, however, he declined to do so, and by his action then and his statements since, he is what is known as a two-term man. The only two exceptions we can see why the principle of "Rotation in office" should not be made rigid and binding, are when a man has shown so marked an ability to fill his office that no one else in the party ranks can so well serve the people, and the recognition of this by the people with a voice too strong to be mis-understood demand his re-election. This demand of course should come from the people themselves and not from his political associates, whose main interest in seeing him re-nominated arises from the bearing same will have on their own political fortunes. Another case might be when no one else would under any circumstances have the office.

It is stated that it is the intention of some of the Democratic leaders in this county to break this time honored custom of the Democratic party and re-nominate Sen. Brewington for a third term. Do either of the above reasons apply to Sen. Brewington? Is there, on the grounds of his service, an overwhelming demand on the part of the PEOPLE for his re-nomination? Is there no one in the Democratic party who has the ability to serve the people in this capacity, who will have it? What is the reason for stretching out his term of office from eight years to twelve? Why should an exception be made in Sen. Brewington's case, and the principle of serving all alike be done away with? We want Sen. Brewington to give the people freely and frankly his reasons for being a candidate this year, and let them judge whether or not they are sufficient to justify his desire to be again served by the people. If he has no other reason than the selfish desire to again enjoy the emoluments and honors attached to the office, we want to ask him if he does not think his candidacy is ill-timed, and if these reasons are strong enough for him to jeopardize the success of the ticket at the polls this fall? Or is he acting in a self sacrificing spirit, convinced that he is laying aside his own desires and wishes and is asking for the nomination, not that he wishes it, but because he believes that the Democratic party is so used to seeing his name upon the ballot that without its being there it would be impossible to pull it through. Would it not be better, Senator, to show the appreciation you undoubtedly feel for the honors the party has already thrust upon you, and say "I have been served and well-served by my party, for which I am deeply grateful." "I recognize the principle that the offices of my party belong to no one man." "For the past eight years I have enjoyed the fruits and honors of office, and I feel now that it is my turn to serve in the ranks." Nominate "Gentlemen, nominate whom you please, so he is honest and capable, and my coat is off and I will do everything I can to show you how deeply I appreciate your past favors."

Notice.

The undersigned having been appointed by the County Commissioners to lay out and condemn the old Conolly Mill Dam in Delmar District, hereby give notice that they will meet at the end of said Dam on Monday, 26th inst at three o'clock to perform the duties assigned them.

EVIL OF THE TIPPING SYSTEM.

What We Pay Annually to Porters, Waiters and Others.

The manner in which the people of the United States are borrowing the tipping habit from Europe is a matter for grave concern, says the Pittsburgh Gazette-Times. Take the case of your smiling friend, the Pullman porter. Do you know that the dimes and quarters and half dollars given him by our traveling public every year amount to more than $2,000,000 and that we present him with $8,000 every morning before breakfast?

Let's figure it out. There are about 8,000 porters in the employ of the Pullman company, says the New York Sun. If the total amount received by each of them was a dollar a day, that would be $8,000. But in order to make allowance for time off and for stingy or frugal travelers who give little or nothing, suppose we knock off a couple of thousand dollars every morning. That would make $6,000 a day, or $2,190,000 for the year.

This generosity on the part of the traveling public would be all right if the porters got the benefit of it. But they do not. Under present conditions the tips are merely another source of profit for the Pullman company, and would suppose that all the time of a group of men, in most instances with a family to support, would at least be worth $10 a week, or $40 a month, to a concern earning millions of dividends. But the porter gets only $25 a month, and is left to get the remainder from the public. Therefore the Pullman company, on account of tips given to its employees, makes a saving of $15 per month on each of them, amounting to $120,000, or $1,440,000 a year.

After the thousands of passengers arriving at their destinations in this country every morning turn over $6,000 to the Pullman porters, they give away another thousand to station boys who carry their bags out to the trains. Before they get comfortably settled down to the breakfast table another donation of $2,000 or so is made to hack drivers. Then the waiters proceed to "get theirs." After the porters no other class of servants depends so much upon tips as the waiters.

In many of the large establishments in the cities the attendants have a perfectly organized system for securing and sharing the proceeds they get from the public. One way of working it thus: When you enter the dining room for a first meal at a table and then watch carefully when you leave to see if you fee the waiter. If you leave some change, the head waiter claims part of it. If the one who attended you should refuse to divide, the next time you enter the dining room you will be put at some other table, presided over by a "square man."

Sometimes the only way a waiter can get prompt service in the kitchen for a favored guest is to "see" the server. Thus, when you leave a quarter under the edge of your plate it does not always go into the pocket of the man who attended you, as you might suppose, but is distributed among a number of employees with whom you do not come in contact. If you fail to leave any change under your plate and remain at that hotel for any length of time, you will be likely to receive scant consideration for the servants will be busy looking after those people who are not absent-minded when they finish their meal.

One hotel proprietor tells this experience he had with a new waiter who came to his place. The new man came on at the breakfast hour, and in the course of time was sent to wait upon the manager without knowing who he was. Instead of serving a small cup of cream for the coffee he brought milk with it. The manager said to him: "Here, take this milk back and bring me some cream." "We have no cream," said the newcomer. The surprised manager looked up at him quickly and said: "Like thunder you haven't. I am the manager of this place, and I just checked in a hundred gallons of cream under the table 20 minutes ago." With genuine embarrassment the new recruit replied: "Oh, I didn't know you were the manager; I'll bring it at once, sir." The motive was to please certain regular customers of the dining room, who made a practice of tipping, by keeping a liberal quantity of cream in reserve for them, giving ordinary patrons milk with their coffee.

Value of Royal Fur. The Tartaria of Russia, who is renowned for her beautiful jewels and extensive wardrobe, has one of the handsomest sable coats in the world; in United States coin it is valued at from $250,000 to $400,000.

The Queen of Norway also has a magnificent sable coat, which, although not as valuable as that of the Tartaria, is worth a small fortune, being valued at between $150,000 and $200,000.

Sables are becoming very scarce, and proportionately the demand for them increases yearly.

The New Spanish Minister. Ramon Pina, the new Spanish Minister to the United States, is 47 years old and has been in the Spanish diplomatic service since he was 22 years old. It is understood that his appointment to Washington is a reward for his services to the Government as secretary to the Algerias conference.

To Relieve Deafness. The St. Petersburg correspondent of the London Mail says that ear drums made of thin leaves of silver are being used in the Russian military hospitals for cures of the ear to replace defective organs.

Large Cheese Consumption. About 450 tons of Dutch cheese are consumed annually in Barcelona and the provinces of Catalonia and Valencia. Every Thursday evening a cartload of about 800 cases leaves Amsterdam for Barcelona.

BACK TO HOME

Back to the farm! That's where you get good coffee.

None of that "fresh roasted loose by the pound" store stuff from nobody knows where, full of dust, atmosphere and soiled hands, but the real old, genuine egg and sugar coated Arbuckles' ARIOSA Coffee, which the folks keep in the original package and grind in the kitchen.

That's Coffee!

Complies with all requirements of the National Pure Food Law, Guarantee No. 2041, filed at Washington.

MR. LEVIN M. DASHIELL

Passes Away Suddenly At The Age Of 85, Led An Active Life. A Man Of Sound Integrity.

Mr. Levin M. Dashiell, deputy Register of Wills for Wicomico County, was found dead in his yard on Camden Avenue Tuesday morning about 6:30 o'clock. Mr. Dashiell, who had been in failing health for some time arose early and went to his garden to attend his fowl. One of the ladies of the house found his body lying in the yard somewhere near seven o'clock. It is supposed he expired suddenly from his enfeebled condition.

Mr. Dashiell was one of the best known citizens of Wicomico county. He was a son of the late William Dashiell, who for many years was a well known citizen of Quantico District. He was born in April 1822, being 85 years old last April. As a young man he was engaged in clerking with the late Wm. J. Gunby at Forktown. In 1854 Mr. Dashiell purchased "Tony Tank" from the late Farnell Towdine, paying for the property $16,000. Tony Tank was then the chief business center between Salisbury and Princess Anne. Mr. Dashiell did a big business there for years, owning a fleet of three large vessels, being engaged in the milling, grain and mercantile business. He continued in business there until 1878 when he sold the property to the late S. Frank Towdine.

He then came to Salisbury in the mercantile business and continued until he accepted a position in the State Tobacco Warehouse under Governor Jackson. In 1893 he entered the office of Register of Wills as a deputy under Levin J. Gale, and has since continued in that position.

Mr. Dashiell was twice married. By his first wife he had three children, Charles, his eldest son, who is dead; Theresa, a daughter, also dead and Register of Wills, John W. Dashiell. His second wife was Mrs. Sarah Ellen Powell, who survives him. Mr. Dashiell and his present wife were charter members of the M. E. Church South of this city. He was always an outspoken, honest citizen, who led a consistent life, and who counted his friends by the score all over the county.

His funeral was held Thursday afternoon at four o'clock in Trinity M. E. Church, South. The remains were taken to Fruitland and buried in the church yard at that place. The following gentlemen were the pall bearers, Dr. F. M. Slemmons, L. W. Gunby, Geo. W. Phillips, Levin J. Gale, J. Ernest Moore, Jas. T. Traitt.

Miss Elsey Wright is visiting at Wilmington, Del.

Levin Cooper, of Columbia, Del., made the first shipment of new Irish potatoes of the season from here on Thursday. The stock is fine. He is one of those men who know how to produce fine stock.

Mr. and Mrs. E. A. Brodey and Mr. Ely, of Baltimore spent Sunday at the home of Miss Nellie Darby in Riverton.

Miss Emeline Phillips died at the home of her son, Emory Phillips, of Mt. Pleasant, Del., in the eightieth year of her age. She leaves three sons and one daughter, Mrs. A. B. Traitt of near Galesburg, Md., Emory Phillips, of Mt. Pleasant, Del., Columbus Phillips, of Portville, Md., and Isaac Phillips, of Wilmington, Del.

On Tuesday evening of this week, Mr. and Mrs. E. A. Brodey entertained a few friends in honor of their guests, Miss Nellie Darby of Riverton and the Misses Bennett of Baltimore. A very enjoyable evening was spent with piano solos by Miss Bennett, Miss Gasaway, of Washington and Mrs. Brodey, and several vocal selections by Miss Ella Bennett and Mr. Ely. Among others present were Miss Blanche Elzey and the Misses Caulk.

Miss Mate Russell died in Galesburg, Md., at the age of seventy-eight. She was a cripple all her life never having walked a single step. She always sat in a low chair made for the purpose and had to be handled like a baby, put to bed at night and taken up in the morning and put in her chair. A marvelous subject on life. She has been attended to by her sister, Miss Alafair Russell, who is four years her junior for the last fifty years. We love sometimes according to the cost, if this should be her case how great indeed the love for her must be.

As a Catarrh Remedy.

As An Excellent Tonic.

"I have such confidence in prominent personal friends who have used and endorsed Peruna that I feel justified in assuming that it is a valuable remedy for catarrh and an excellent general tonic."

Responsible People.

PEOPLE occupying positions of high responsibility and trust are always very busy people.

They have little or no time to devote to side issues.

It is therefore very rare that such people are willing to write testimonials for anything.

Then again there is a natural diffidence in giving public endorsement to any commercial enterprise on the part of people who are much before the public.

Rare Endorsements.

It is thus that it is very rare that public officials, like governors, congressmen, senators, etc., give public endorsement to a proprietary medicine.

It is therefore a great triumph that Peruna has the unqualified endorsement of so many men in official position.

Scores of public officials of national reputation have enthusiastically declared in favor of Peruna in public print over and over again.

A Startling Fact.

There is no way to account for such a startling fact as this except that Peruna has extraordinary unusual merit.

After all, people high and low, are constituted very much alike.

Natural Enthusiasm.

When a person has been really helped in getting rid of some chronic malady, after other things have failed, it is quite natural for enthusiasm to lead people to make a statement of the fact.

For great services, gratitude is natural. This is the only way that it can possibly be explained why it is that so many persons prominent in public, diplomatic and social life give testimony for Peruna.

Actual Benefit.

Peruna promptly relieves. This is the explanation. Catarrh is a disease difficult to relieve. A great many of the doctors fail to relieve it.

Gratitude Results.

A few bottles of Peruna cure a chronic malady of many years standing and it is almost impossible to repress the natural feelings of gratitude which spring up.

Catarrh of Head and Throat.

Mr. Joseph Reiss, 3424 N. 14th street, St. Louis, Mo., writes: "I had catarrh of the head and throat, but through the use of five bottles of Peruna and two bottles of Manalin I was cured."

"I think that Peruna is the best tonic that I have ever used and I would advise all catarrhal sufferers to use Peruna."

Catarrhal Fever.

Mrs. W. K. Good, Broadway, Va., writes: "When I was fifteen years old I had catarrhal fever and for nine years I have had catarrh of the head."

"Through neglect it went to my throat and nose. After consulting you I used Peruna for four months as directed, and I am entirely well and have my natural health."

"I cannot praise Peruna too highly. It will do all that it is recommended to do."

Pe-ru-na Relieves Catarrh.

Mr. L. Clifford Figg, Jr., 2929 E. Marshall St., Richmond, Va., writes: "As soon as I get a cold I send for a bottle of Peruna, and it soon drives it out of my system."

Despaired of Being Cured.

"For several years I was not entirely well, and despaired of ever being cured, as I had used numerous remedies that my friends advised. I doctored for two years without any improvement."

A Last Resort.

"As a last resort I tried Peruna, and am pleased to say that in a short time I was completely cured."

"I have not been troubled for over a year. I am pleased to endorse Peruna as it saved me a world of suffering."

CRADLEY'S WIFE AND OTHER WOMEN

There had been a little discussion the night before. Mrs. Cradley had presented estimates relating to the dress appropriation—simply extravagant estimates, it seemed to Cradley. Material ran up to somewhere about $15, and the making—well, from $10 to $12. Then the trimming—

"Trimming!" exclaimed Cradley. "Isn't trimming material? What are you springing that on me twice over for?"

"Material is goods," explained his wife, lucidly. "I've got to have lace and a little silk and then the findings will come to something extra."

"What do you mean?" demanded Cradley, irritably. "You were saying just now that the making would cost only about $10 or $12."

"That's the dressmaking. I said 'findings,' the thread and buttons, sewing silk and lining. You see—"

"Never mind," said the man. "I don't care about the details. Tell me what it will cost altogether."

What's the least you can get along with? I don't see why you couldn't do without a new dress for a while longer anyway. How much altogether?"

"Mrs. Cradley looked worried. After a little consideration she said that she might get the dress made for $20—or a few dollars more."

"What!" shouted Cradley. "Perhaps it might come to a little less," said Mrs. Cradley, nervously. "If I can find some white alpaca—"

"I guess it will come to a little less," snorted her husband. "Thirty dollars for something you'll wear about half a dozen times!"

"I expect to wear it for a year, at least, as it is, and then I expect I shall have to get it made over two or three times. You know, the last—"

"We won't get into all that again," Cradley declared. "I'll let you have $25 and that's a good deal more than I can afford. My mother had a black silk dress that she wore—"

When the matter was settled on the $25 basis Cradley spoke of going to the Gunter's.

"Didn't you tell Mr. Gunter that we couldn't go?" asked his wife.

"Why, of course I didn't. Why should I? There isn't any reason we can't go that I can see. You're always complaining that you don't go out enough, and when you are asked you act as if you didn't want to."

"You know very well that I told you we couldn't go," replied Mrs. Cradley, almost tearfully. "I haven't a thing decent to wear. I wouldn't dream of going."

"Nonsense!" said Cradley. "You're just talking that way because you know you've got a closet full of dresses. What kind of dress do you want, anyway? It isn't going to be a charity ball. You've got waists enough. Why don't you wear that blue one?"

"It wouldn't be suitable—"

"I tell you it's just an informal affair—a few of her friends may drop in; it isn't at all likely they'll be dressed up, and if they were, what would it matter? That blue waist, it seems to me, would be suitable for any occasion."

"It's a cheap bought waist, and I wouldn't want to wear it to the Gunter's if it were new, but it's frayed at the seams, anyway, and it

"I hate to go looking this way," said Mrs. Cradley as they started.

"What are you talking about?" said Cradley. "You look all right."

It is quite likely that he thought she did. She had fixed up the brown silk waist and had sewed fresh ruckings in the neck and sleeves, and with her string of real coral beads and her hair fluffed up she presented a more than ordinary smart appearance. But Cradley had his first misgivings when the Gunter's maid opened the door and Mrs. Gunter came forward to welcome them. She was a handsome woman and there was something in the creamy richness of her light gown—something—well, Cradley couldn't say exactly what it was, but there was something about it and about her marcelled coiffure and her diamonds. He was not all together satisfied with Mrs. Cradley. He rather pitied himself.

There were four or five other women in the company. No one of them wore a silk waist, Cradley noticed. There was a general gauzy effect about most of them and they were bare armed. Why the dickens couldn't Laura have cut off her sleeves at the elbow? When she came down he surveyed her furtively, but critically, and his dissatisfaction increased. She might have known better than to put on those coral beads.

The woman he was talking to wore a light golden chain with topaz pendants set in a sort of filigree. It looked particularly dainty and pretty against the filmy white of her dress. Her fingers were white and the nails rosy and polished; she exhaled a delicate perfume—very faint and delicate. Something very feminine about the woman, something attractive just in the way she got herself up—about all of them, in fact. Why is it, Cradley mused, that some women never seem to understand how to make themselves attractive to men?

"You seemed to enjoy yourself," remarked Mrs. Cradley on the way home.

"That's more than I can say for you," said Cradley. "I never saw you more glum and mum-chance in my life. And, do you know there was a safety pin showing under your belt?"

"I had to pin the skirt," explained Mrs. Cradley. "It was made all wrong in the first place and the girdle was too narrow. It was that cheap dressmaker."

"I don't see other women going about all falling to pieces," said Cradley. "Why in the name of common sense don't you get a good dressmaker? I should think you would have something to wear for evenings, too. Why don't you notice what's being worn a little? You looked like a pig in that waist."

"I know I did," sighed Mrs. Cradley, "and that's what made me feel so awkward. I just wanted to get away. Do you suppose I wouldn't get some pretty things if you'd let me?"

"Let you!" echoed Cradley, stung by the injustice of the implied accusation. "Can't you get anything you want? Didn't I give you $25 yesterday for another dress?"

"If I had had that dress I would have looked a little better, perhaps," said Mrs. Cradley, "but, of course, I couldn't get a gown like Mrs. Giddington's or Mrs. Gunter's."

"Do you suppose they cost $25?" asked Cradley, incredulously.

"I don't," replied his wife. "If they paid less than $80 for them without the lace they got wonderful bargains, but they probably cost a great deal more, and that duchesse lace Mrs. Giddington wore must have cost more than the dress."

"You can't make me believe that," said Cradley.

"I know I can't," agreed Mrs. Cradley, sighing again.

"The trouble is, you haven't the knack."

"The trouble is, I haven't the money," retorted Mrs. Cradley.

"You know well enough you can get all you want for the asking—if it's reasonable."

"I asked you for $20 for that dress, and—"

"That wasn't reasonable," said Cradley.

"Twenty-five's plenty."

It is a simple, safe, and effective treatment, and is the only one that has been proven to cure all diseases of the blood, skin, and internal organs. The Success of Mrs. Yancey

When Mrs. Yancey came to at Bibberley Heights she brought with her a girl with her. When the door was opened by the new mistress and the old mistress saw and—would you believe it—one who wore not only an apron but a bib apron with regular shoulder straps? That wasn't all. She wore a cap, too! Bibberley Heights talked about nothing else for weeks.

It was hard to get a girl at all to begin with; harder still to keep one. The kind you got usually went to the front door just as they were, reserving aprons for only the most formal occasions. How did Mrs. Yancey manage to keep her?

Some delicacy was felt about asking her at first, but naturally that soon wore off. Mrs. Yancey was not at all offended by the question, on the contrary, she seemed glad to answer it.

"Tact, my dear, tact; tact and common sense." That was all there was to it.

"It's really the simplest thing in the world," she said. "I never have the least trouble with my servants. I admit that I am rather particular in selecting them (selecting them?), but we have a fair and businesslike understanding, and I keep to my part of the agreement and I insist (insist?) that she carry out her part. Then I make it a point to treat her with consideration. I don't demand unreasonable things of her. I assume that she is flesh and blood and that she needs both rest and relaxation. I do my best to let her have both."

"You just wait and see," said Mrs. Gruber to Mrs. Meers. "She's been living in the city and that girl hasn't had time to get tired yet, but I'll give her just about two weeks and then we'll see."

"I don't believe she stay as long as that, myself," said Mrs. Meers. "She'll get acquainted with the other girls and it won't take them long to spoil her. Tact, indeed! She'll be hunting for Mariah, you'll see. In a little while."

Mariah was a colored woman, the wife of the schoolhouse janitor, who would occasionally consent to cook for housewives suddenly bereft of help, for a short time, and if the offers of compensation were sufficiently large. She was otherwise known as "the stop-gap."

"But I don't see that she's so very considerate," said Mrs. Keach in one of the discussions. "The girl only has her Thursday and Sunday afternoons, and she has that whole house to take care of. She sends out the washing, of course, but I send mine out and I do most of the cooking, and my daughter Kate takes care of her own room. Want that a nice little lunch she served to us the other day?"

"It certainly was," admitted Mrs. Cotter. "I only wish I could get a girl like her. But they don't seem to want to work."

They made noble efforts to avoid the subject when Mrs. Yancey was around, but it is a subject that really cannot be avoided altogether in Bibberley Heights. One might as well try not to mention the weather.

Well, then, of course, Mrs. Yancey would smile and begin to tell them what she did and what she did not do in her management of her household.

"You know, I don't object to my servants receiving their company in the kitchen."

"It wouldn't be of any use objecting here," said Mrs. Cotter. "We all allow that."

That was about the way it went, usually. But beyond question Mrs. Yancey's house was always in perfect order and when she entertained her little lunches or suppers were admirably cooked and beautifully served—and the girl certainly stayed.

This mystery was solved at last. Mrs. Gruber's Ellen came in to her mistress one morning in great excitement. "Mrs. Yancey's guri has quit," she announced.

"What?" exclaimed Mrs. Gruber. "That's what," said Ellen. "They had a grand fare-up yesterday afternoon as Maud's got her trunk packed and is going to be the 10:30."

"Why, what on earth could have been the trouble?" asked Mrs. Gruber.

"Troubles enough," said Ellen. "It was trouble all the time because Maud's tell of it! She's an odd devil, no less, as Maud. 'Nig-naggin' from morn' till night an' bootlin' in an' thyrin' to put on me,' she said. 'She's raised me wages twice since I've been wid her,' she said, 'but $12 a week isn't no injuncin' for a decent guri to stand for her.'"

Twelve dollars a week! said Mrs. Gruber. "You're joking, Ellen."

"Niver a joke," said the girl. "That's what she was gittin' an' she offered her fourteen to stay."

"That's nonsense!" said Mrs. Gruber. "Fourteen dollars is nearly three times as much as anybody is paying. It can't be true."

"If it's all three Maud told me about her it's little enough," persisted Ellen. "Anyways, I'll not be after shakin' for it' place."

Mrs. Yancey went to town that afternoon and the next morning another treasure appeared in Maud's place, but although she too wears cap and apron and has been with Mrs. Yancey for six months, the Bibberley Heights housewives no longer wonder how it can be and Mrs. Yancey's prestige has declined. The Cause of Many Sudden Deaths.

There is a disease prevailing in this country most dangerous because it is so insidious. Many sudden deaths are caused by it—heart disease, pneumonia, heart failure, or apoplexy are often the result of kidney disease. If kidney trouble is allowed to advance the kidney-poisoned blood will attack the vital organs, causing catarrh of the bladder, or the kidneys themselves break down and waste away till by cell. Bladder troubles always result from a derangement of the kidneys and a cure is obtained quickest by a proper treatment of the kidneys. If you are feeling badly you can make no mistake by taking Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, the great kidney, liver and bladder remedy.

It corrects inability to hold urine and scalding pain in passing it, and overcomes that unpleasant necessity of being compelled to go often through the day, and to get up many times during the night. The mild and extraordinary effect of Swamp-Root is soon realized. It stands the highest for its wonderful cures of the most distressing cases.

Swamp-Root is pleasant to take and is sold by all druggists in fifty-cent and one-dollar size bottles. You may have a sample bottle of this wonderful new discovery and a book that tells all about it, without cost, by mailing to Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y. When writing mention reading this generous offer in this paper. Don't make any mistake, but remember the name, Swamp-Root, Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, and the address, Binghamton, N. Y., on every bottle.

What Does It Mean

to let Dividends "accumulate" on a Life Insurance Policy? In many companies it means nothing more than an agreement on the part of the policy-holder to do without dividends for fifteen or twenty years, and then take what ever dividend the company will be willing to give. Dividends are declared every year in the Mutual Benefit, and the policyholders use them either to help pay premiums or to buy increased insurance. The policies of the contain special and peculiar advantages which are not combined in the policies of any other company. Examine these advantages before placing your insurance. You owe it to your family to have the best.

ROADS AND ROAD MAKING

GOOD ROADS OF FRANCE.

How Economy and Profit Are Considered in Maintaining Highways.

With a territory about five times that of the State of Ohio, France has more than 22,000 miles of improved highways upon which the government expends $37,500,000 annually. This seems an enormous amount, but it must be borne in mind that French statesmen are without superiors in financing and French taxpayers are not excused for thrift, and that such a burden must be a good investment or it would not be tolerated. The French highway system dates from the time of Napoleon I., and was one of the many public improvements that he instituted, and which would have perpetuated this fame as one of the first statesmen in history and his military glory not eclipsed his peaceful triumphs.

This system divides the territory into departments and classifies the roads according to their importance. There are the national roads but maintained entirely by the government; the department roads are maintained at government expense; the general local roads consist of two or more villages—these are subdivided into three classes, which are maintained by the localities with a fixed amount of government aid, and the rural roads.

The macadam construction is almost universal and grades are limited to three per cent. on the national roads, four per cent. on the department and five per cent. on the others except in very hilly country. This gives a smooth and almost level roadway, which is very attractive to motorists, whom it is estimated expend $30,000,000 annually along good roads of Europe. But the utilitarian advantage is of greater importance to the people than the dollars disbursed by visitors.

As has been so often stated, the cost of hauling on these roads is but from one-third to one-half per cent. of what it is on American country roads. And, then, there is another saving of an immense amount to the farmer in the fact that he uses his team and time in his work at home during bright weather and does his hauling when it is too wet or too cold to work in the field.

Wagons for heavy draughting are equipped with wide tires, and the rear axle is enough wider than that in front, so that the hind wheels track just outside of the front wheels, making a road roller twice the width of the tire. This helps preserve the road instead of cutting it up as is the case with narrow tires.

The thrifty Frenchman has a so learned that there is economy and profit in setting trees beside the road. They not only give beauty to the landscape, but serve to hold the moisture necessary to keep stone roads from ravelling in dry weather. These roadside trees also constitute a forest, from which a number of trees may be cut each year, and sold to create a revenue for maintenance. Trees so cut are replaced by new ones, and there is a constant succession of new trees being planted and old ones cut.

There is much in economy and in method that Americans may learn from France in the matter of good roads, and not the least important point is the suggestion of supplying the place of our denuded forests with roadside trees. The whole French system, in fact, is well worth careful study.

Keeping Roads in Order.

In maintaining the surface of any road, filling depressions and ruts, material like that composing the surface should be used in order that a perfect union or bond between the old material and the new may be obtained, and the resulting surface be uniform.

No one would think of repairing a macadam or crushed stone road with clay; neither should surface depressions or ruts in a clay or other earth road be filled with stone. In the latter case a depression, if filled with stone, will become a hard spot, on either side of which the gravel will make a new depression, thus giving two depressions or mud holes in place of the original one.

Using Road Machines.

In repairing roads by use of the road machine all sods brought to the center of the road from the shoulders and sides should be raked out and carried away. The old, worn-out material, too, that has been washed from the center or surface of the road upon the shoulders and into the ditches is not fit to surface or grade a good road with; properly, it should be scraped up and hauled away and put on the slope of some embankment. There is more or less waste in the road washings, and it will be good fertilizer to use whenever it is desired to encourage the growth of sods to prevent washing of slopes.

New Hampshire's Roads.

New Hampshire's system of good roads includes "three magnificent gateways to the highlands of the north." One follows the sea coast and the eastern side of the State, while the others follow the valleys of the Merrimack and Connecticut rivers. The sea coast section of the road, extending from Seabrook on the Massachusetts line to Odiorne's Point, a distance of sixteen miles, was begun six years ago and has progressed until it is now almost practically completed.

TO ENLARGE RESIDENCE.

Ex-Governor Jackson To Improve His Baltimore City Home.

Ex Governor E. E. Jackson will make a number of improvements and build an addition to his Baltimore house, at the southwest corner of Cathedral and Richmond streets, which he will occupy this winter. Ex-Governor and Mrs. Jackson have been making their residence at "The Oaks" in Salisbury for some time past. The city residence has been occupied by the ex-Governor's son, Mr. Hugh W. Jackson and family. Mr. Hugh W. Jackson recently purchased the Dieter residence, on Charles street, near Chase, which he will occupy.

The addition and improvements to be made to Ex-Governor Jackson's residence were designed by Architects Chas. E. Cassell & Son, and plans and specifications were distributed among the builders Tuesday for estimates. The addition will be built on the west side of the house. It will be three stories high. The first will contain a kitchen, a pantry and a breakfast room. On the second floor will be two bed chambers, a bathroom and wardrobes. The third floor will contain two bed chambers and wardrobes.

The alteration consists of the installation of a passenger elevator from the first to the fourth floor of the present residence. Two additional bathrooms will be installed on the third floor of the present building.

The Jackson residence is one of the interesting houses in Baltimore. It originally belonged to a branch of the MacTavish family. Some years ago the property was purchased by Mr. A. C. Meyer, who had the structure entirely renovated and improved, although practically all of the original house is still standing. After occupying it for some years Mr. Meyer sold it to Ex-Governor Jackson, about ten years ago.

The builders who are estimating on the improvements and addition are John Downan, R. H. Frazier & Son, B. F. Bennett and Morrow Bros. Bids are to be submitted to the architects on Saturday.

Patents A New Ice Machine.

Mr. Robert J. Berryman, manager of the Annapolis Ice Manufacturing Company, has procured a patent for a new invention devised by him for the making of ice.

The new system, he says, will mean a great saving to ice factories and also turn out artificial ice in far less time. His new invention is combination of can and plate ice. It makes plate ice in cans and it is said take only 55 hours to freeze block 10 feet long, and 40 inches deep.

A PRETTY MILKMAID

Thinks Peruna Is a Wonderful Medicine.

MISS ANNIE HENDREN.

MISS ANNIE HENDREN, Rocklyn, Wash., writes:
"I feel better than I have for over four years. I have taken several bottles of Peruna and one bottle of Manalin. I can now do all my work in the house, milk the cows, take care of the milk, and so forth. I think Peruna is a most wonderful medicine."

"I believe I would be in bed to-day if I had not written to you for advice. I had taken all kinds of medicine, but none did me any good."

"Peruna has made me a well and happy girl. I can never say too much for Peruna."

Not only women of rank and leisure praise Peruna, but the industrious, useful women engaged in honest toil would not be without Dr. Hartman's world renowned remedy.

The Doctor has prescribed it for many thousands of women every year and he never fails to receive a multitude of letters like the above, thanking him for his advice, and especially for the wonderful benefits received from Peruna.

SEN. BREWINGTON RECEIVED ABOUT $25,000

In Conjunction With His Brother, Representing The Messrs. Brewington Brothers, Through Their Newspaper, The "News," In Democratic Patronage. In Addition To This, Mr. M. V. Brewington Has Had The Office Of State Senator For Two Terms, Or Eight Years, And Mr. Harry L. Brewington The Office Of School Commissioner, From The Democratic Party In This County. They Receive Now, And Will Probably Continue To Receive, About $2,500 Printing Patronage Yearly From Democratic Office-Holders. People Strongly Against 3d Term. Gov. Jackson And Sen. Toadvine Retired After 2 Terms.

The ranks of the Democratic Party in Wicomico have enough room for every man in the county, but the number of candidates to be elected by whatever party, number only 14, of, in round numbers, about 8000 voters or one to every 807, and this is the one year in every two where there is a full ticket to be placed in the field.

Principal Office—State Senate.

The leading office to be filled in this county this fall is that in the State Senate.

Who is to be the chief nominee on the Democratic ticket at the county convention when it meets on Tuesday, July 30th, at the portentous hour of 12 o'clock? The convention assembles at that hour when the day is at its fullness and the night gathers on.

Darkness Or Light.

Will there come a temporary, or maybe lasting, darkness to that party whose principles are held so dear to every honest Democrat in the land, or will there be a bright dawn of renewed lustre for the Democratic party. Without doubt this is the most critical juncture in the history of the party in this county for many years. A time when the party will be strengthened, or lastingly weakened under its present management. A time when the self constituted leaders can show their wisdom or display their folly.

Hurts Or Benefits Ticket.

The head of the county ticket which this year is that of State Senator is bound, more or less, to color the rest of the ticket. That there should be a fresh name at the head of the ticket entitled "the Democratic ticket" of Wicomico County is generally conceded outside of Mr. Brewington's close friends and attaches. Is this not wisely so? What are the circumstances?

Have Received About $25,000 In Democratic Patronage, Besides Offices Of State Senator—Two Terms—And School Commissioner.

Early in the history of the News published by Messrs. Brewington Bros. of this town, one of whom, Mr. Marion V. Brewington, is now—and has been for two terms or eight years State Senator from this county, the other Mr. Harry L. Brewington has been since the resignation of Mr. W. J. Stanton, a member of the School Board of Wicomico County, through the recommendation of his brother, the present State Senator, the Messrs. Brewington Bros. have been recipients of Democratic patronage. The News is in its 22nd year. So far about 30 years they have been receiving through their paper, from the Democratic party a large amount of patronage in the way of Democratic County, State and City of Salisbury printing and advertising, the value of which is hard to estimate but runs now in dollars, about $2500 from the Democratic party every year, or a total of about $25,000, from the party since they began business.

If the Senator has worked for the party doesn't it look like he has been abundantly rewarded. Wouldn't $1000 a year be rather satisfying to the average Democratic voter?

Will not Mr. Brewington continue to receive party patronage, if not on the Democratic ticket, through the News, year in and year out?

State Senator For Eight Years.

In addition to this annual income from the Democratic party, Mr. M. V. Brewington was placed on the ticket for State Senate in 1899 and elected for four years; and again in 1903 the duties, emoluments and whatever of honor may be attached to it were given him, despite a well-founded opposition which developed in prominent quarters. How he has served the party, need not be taken up at this time. Let each individual voter decide this for himself.

The opposition to Mr. Brewington again taking upon himself the fruits of the honest toil of all the other worthy and deserving Democrats who number about 2,600 in this county, is impracticable and unyielding, because founded on party principles. Then there are many others who are worthy and exceptionally qualified to represent this county (acceptably to the majority of the people, if not at present to the majority of those few now in office or looking to Senator Brewington for office in self's interests), who would be glad to have the office of State Senator, and would serve with honor to their constituents and to the good of the county.

Reports Not Consistent.

In the face of having had the rewards that he has received—it is hard to believe the persistent rumors that it is stated have been made by some of Senator Brewington's close friends, that he might be a third term candidate and it is difficult from a party standpoint to believe the Senator responsible for these reports. They are not consistent with the attitude that is assumed every Democrat should take as published in his newspaper organ—the News. He says:—

"Harmony is essential to Democratic success next November, and the way to have harmony is for the party to stand as a unit in support of the ticket; and the way to secure such unanimity is to nominate men acceptable to all factions when it is possible to get the right material. The delegates to the Convention should bear this in mind and act accordingly. Party success is paramount to individual preference, and there should be a willingness to lay aside personal ambitions for the sake of retaining Democratic control in Wicomico county."

"The Democratic party must be in a position to meet a united, concentrated Republican organization in the contest next November. There is no use trying to belittle this fact. The supreme effort of the Republican leaders will be made to wrest control of this county from the hands of the Democratic party, which has wisely managed the county's affairs for more than thirty years. To meet this united effort on the part of our opponents, the Democrats must nominate a ticket that will merit and command the hearty and undivided support of every man who calls himself a Democrat."

"It is a fact that Democratic success or failure this year will depend chiefly upon the character and fitness of the candidates placed before the people. Such being the situation, we urge the careful selection of delegates to the County Convention, and counsel wise deliberation in that body when it assembles to make the nominations."

Harmony Should Not Be A-Sham.

There is no ambiguity here. The words are well chosen and the vital points extremely well taken. The editorial is Democratic throughout and in the absence of another in this week's News touching on the approaching primaries, or County Convention we presume it was intended, as it certainly does do, to cover the entire situation.

It says:—

"The way to have harmony is for the party to stand as a unit in support of the ticket; and the way to secure such unanimity is to nominate men acceptable to all factions when it is possible to get the right material. The delegates to the Convention should bear this in mind and act accordingly."

To have harmony in any party, it is necessary for those responsible in the party to stand by the principles upon which the party stands. There has never been a third term Senator in the entire annals of this county. To nominate a man to this office and establish a precedent in the first office in the gift of the people of this county would be to openly flaunt the red shadow and pretense of harmony in the face of the voters.

Ex-Governor Jackson And Senator Toadvine Only Had Two Terms.

Ex-Gov. E. E. Jackson and Sen. E. Stanley Toadvine saw the grave danger of such a precedent to the health and welfare of the Democratic party and gracefully withdrew after two terms service in the State Senate. Were they not the proper men to return for third term if this time honored principle was to be broken. Would it be fair to them and the principle they represented for another to be served the injury of the party when they would not? Why not have given Gov. Jackson or Senator Toadvine a third term if any one?

Republicans Watching Closely.

Sen. Brewington says:—
"The Democratic organization must be in a position to meet a united, concentrated Republican organization in the contest next November. * * * To meet this united effort on the part of our opponents, the Democrats must nominate a ticket that will merit and command the hearty and undivided support of every man who calls himself a Democrat."

The Republicans are on the fence and are watching with eagle eyes, with the practical wisdom of many years' experience, the drift of the Democratic party, in nominating their ticket on July 30, 1907.

There is every reason why they should wish to see a Democratic principle and precedent broken, and Mr. Brewington—re-nominated, Nor do the people attach any weight to anything personal against Mr. Brewington. In

ELKS HAVE BIG MEETING.

Philadelphia Gives Warm Welcome. Many From Salisbury Attend.

The Elks' Convention, which was held in Philadelphia this week, was well attended by the local Elks of Salisbury Lodge, and from newspaper accounts and those who attended from here, the meeting was one of the largest and most elaborate affairs ever held by this organization. M. A. Humphreys, Exalted Ruler of Salisbury Lodge, left Salisbury for Philadelphia Sunday in his touring car, accompanied by Ray Truitt, F. A. Grier and Don Graham. The party took quarters at the Bellevue-Stratford.

Monday afternoon the following members of Salisbury Lodge left for the convention in a special Pullman car: Dr. E. W. Smith, Huston H. Ruark, Carl Daugherty, Wm. E. Booth, John Nelson, Wm. J. Collins, Wm. F. Bonds, Capt. R. B. White, Capt. Wm. K. Leatherbury, O. Lee Gillie, Ernest A. Toadvine, H. Winther Owens, E. Dale Adkins, Walter J. Brewington, Louis J. Baus, Charles Dashiell, J. Winfield Corkran, Elmer H. Walton, Capt. H. O. Ludlam, William R. Rayne, Paul T. Scott, John Hagan, Chas. Ludlam and Capt. Hagan.

Tuesday and Wednesday several other members left for Philadelphia, including Messrs. Chas. R. Disharoon, R. Harry Phillips, Oscar Grier, Walter S. Sheppard, Harry Ruark and Francis M. Ulman.

Among other Salisburyans, not Elks, who were in Philadelphia this week, were Messrs. W. B. Miller, Thomas Perry, Jesse D. Price and Isaac L. Price.

SOMERSET GOOD ROADS.

Commissioners Employ Engineer. Move In Right Direction.

Somerset County seems to be alive to the needs of a good Roads System and has taken steps looking towards placing itself in an advanced position in this important matter. The Commissioners of Somerset County have employed a competent road Engineer in the person of Mr. L. M. Witcraft of Baltimore who together with the Commissioners has already begun to formulate plans whereby the roads of the county will be put in first class condition. It is to be hoped that our people will keep in mind this very important policy of road improvement and miss no opportunity of profit or practice which can be gained by observing what our sister counties are doing along this line. There can be no division of sentiment about the advisability of using every effort both to learn and put in practice any measure which will be of benefit to our county roads as an improvement made to our roads is not a benefit to one person alone nor to those who live directly on their line, but any improvement made to our public highways is a direct benefit to the public at large.

Dragged From Beneath The Wheels.

Conductor William J. Thoroughgood and brakeman Howard Taylor, of the Delaware railroad, are being congratulated on their thrilling rescue of a young man from beneath the wheels of their train at Canal Bridge station.

It was due to the prompt action of the two trainmen that the man was dragged from beneath the wheels of the moving train.

The train of which Conductor Thoroughgood had charge was slowing down preparing to stop at Canal Bridge, the other evening, when the young man carrying a suit case tried to board it before it came to a stand still. With one hand he grasped the railing of the platform, but he was jerked from his feet and was dragged along. His suit case went flying from his left hand and was cut in two by the wheels of the car.

The young man, who gave the name of Green, and said he was from Philadelphia, was dragged along with his feet directly in front of the wheels, when Thoroughgood and brakeman Taylor saw him. They leaped from the train and both grabbed Green and pulled him from his perilous position.

Death of Col. Norris.

Col. James O. Norris the best known hotel man on the Peninsula died a few days ago in Easton aged 73 years. Col. Norris entered the hotel business in Easton in 1885 and continued it with the exception of a few years until his death. He was known to thousands of the traveling men who came down the Peninsula, and was liked by all.

Col. Norris was never actively engaged in politics and never held an elective office. He was a regular Democrat and his counsel was eagerly sought by the leaders. He represented the county in numerous State, Congressional and Judicial conventions and was a member of the staff of Gov. E. E. Jackson where he received his Colonelcy.

MR. BAKER APPROVED

Baltimore News Has Editorial Strongly In Favor Of Frederick Man For Governor.

It cannot be too distinctly understood by those who desire the election of a Democratic Governor for Maryland next November that what is needed for that purpose is a really strong man for candidate. It is not a question of the reconciling of interests, the smoothing out of conflicts, or the presenting of a fairly respectable front to the public. It is a question of stiffening up the backbone of the party of infusing genuine spirit and morale into the Democratic situation. You can't do that by putting up a man to catch the "business vote," neither can you do it by putting up a slick politician; and you can do it no better by nominating a merely colorless respectability. You have got to put up a man who will be recognized as an independent personality, a factor in the case standing on its own merits, and, above all, a man of whom there will be no question that if he is elected Governor he, and nobody else, will be Governor.

It is not because Mr. Joseph D. Baker is a successful banker, business man or organizer of industry that so many keen-sighted and fair minded men in various parts of the State find in him the ideal man for the post. It is because he thoroughly fulfills the requirements above set forth. He is a man of forceful and weighty personality, a man who has made an extraordinary impression on the people of his own part of the State and apparently on every individual who has come into personal relations with him. He is a man who, without ostentation or obtrusiveness, manifests in all the relations of life a sturdy and unflinching independence. If elected Governor, nobody doubts that he would have the ambition, the ability and the energy to make every year of his four years' term count for the substantial benefit of the State, for the remedying of political and governmental abuses, for the State's progress in point of material welfare and in point of political soundness. He would command the confidence of the people of the State, without distinction of party or section. And this confidence would precede him into the office. It would be his throughout the campaign. From the outset it would be known of all men that his election would not mean the subjection of the State's government, either with or without his knowledge, to any obnoxious or insidious influences. A Democratic campaign with Mr. Baker as the standard bearer would mean a campaign for the kind of Governor that everybody knows Mr. Baker would be. And such a campaign would mean victory.

There is no other man whose name has been put forward for the Democratic nomination of whom this kind of thing can be said. Of no other of the men is anything of the kind said, as a matter of fact. The claims advanced in favor of the other gentlemen spoken of are of a vitally different character. The most that can be said for them is that they are good men or that they have a following in this or that direction. It is not on their absolute merit, on their conspicuous fitness, on the exceptional regard in which they are held, that the argument for their selection is based. There are other men being discussed of whom it would be quite impossible to deny that they have fair qualifications for the office; but of none of them can it be said that their claim to it would be of such a character as to command that confidence and enthusiasm which the Democratic party at the present time should feel a special anxiety to arouse. No man who would be looked upon either as a representative of the "Old Guard" or as a possible instrument in its hands can command the support of the great independent vote on which the result of the election depends; neither can the time-honored device of putting up a "business men's candidate" serve the turn. Experience has taught us too thoroughly what kind of candidate means to the professional politicians. What is needed is a man big enough to fill the bill, a man whose candidacy will require no explanation except what his own personality will spontaneously and abundantly supply.

Good Times Along The Creek.

What a treasure-trove the old creek is! What riches of nature's stores are hid beneath its rippling surface, or displayed along its banks.

The creek itself is wonderful, always surprising you with its wayward fancies and restlessness. Here it runs along smoothly, in seeming content; there it broadens out and its waters ripple and rustle and swirl over and around rocks without number; then it divides and shows you in its middle as pretty a little island as you might wish for your pirate's cave; often it bends and curves in a way that keeps you in the height of expectancy, wondering what new view will stretch before you.

What comfortable places the banks of the creek afford! There, to give grateful shade, are the fringes of oak, dogwood, birch, beech and witch hazel trees—the last variety so called because in the early days of our country old men and women thought to be wishes gathered the roots and used the juices as a cure for all ills.

Here, too, you see the beautiful swamp cabbage, standing in place where the mud has collected, with its purple folds rolled up in pointed bundles. Near it wave the tassels of the swamp alder, and close by you see the spotted leaves and stalks of the yellow adders' tongue. "Snake feeders" glide here and there, and without thinking, you look eagerly around for the snake, but nothing but wee toads and grasshoppers greet your eye.

Where the thorny greenbriers cluster the hardy robins winter and the pheasants and quail eat the seeds and hide there from their enemies.

Over the water the bank-swallow skips, sometimes touching the surface just as the stones you skip across to the other side. The kingfisher dives after his meal and the green heron, too, darts after minnow or pollywog. Right above you the catbird scolds or laughs mockingly.

Along the bank the muskrat has his home. Just under the water's edge he digs his hole. It slants upward for quite a distance, and at the end of it is his neat, nice and dry. The muskrat and the raccoon both like muskrats, which they dig from beds in the muddy shallow. Beside some stone or tree near the water, you will see piles of these shells, where the animal has eaten their contents.

If you care to fish, the sunfish provides just as good sport as the mountain trout. Among the sand and pebbles it builds its nest and secretly drives away its enemies. Even a chub, red fin, or a catfish may come to your hook. Of course you'll catch lots of minnows, but who wants minnows?

Frog eggs swing from the branches of plants under water. The stupid-looking tadpoles you see frisking about. From a log or stone near the bank yellow and speckled throated frogs, propped up on their bowlegs, watch you solemnly.

Tortoises and turtles plunk into the water and are lost sight of. You know, the ribs of the tortoise are united their whole length, while those of the turtle are separate at the ends. Oh yes, there are lots to be seen. After you've had a refreshing swim and lie there under a shady tree you don't feel like ever moving—even to go home for something to eat.—North American, Phila.

PHILIPPINE ARMY "DOBBIE ITCH"

Disease Contracted in the Philippine Service—Itching Pimples Covered Body—Army Surgeons Failed to Cure—Discharged for Disability—Cured by Cuticura, Now

A FIRM BELIEVER IN CUTICURA REMEDIES

"I enlisted in the Corps of Engineers as a telegraph operator, and, while stationed in the Philippines, I became afflicted with the 'Dobbie Itch,' as the natives call it. In this disease small, white, itching pimples form under the skin, generally between the toes, on the limbs, between the fingers, and under the arms. I never knew of a case originating outside the Philippine Islands, but have known of many cases where it has returned in this country and invariably at the same time of the year as the original attack. The cause, so far as I could learn, was some tropical parasite or germ peculiar to that region.

"I got so bad that I was confined to my quarters a week at a time. The Army Surgeons applied some carbolic solution, and it would disappear for a time when it would break out again. By reason of disability contracted in line of duty, and when I had the trouble again, my druggist, Mr. Z., of Brooklyn, recommended Cuticura Remedies. The immediate relief was manifest with my first purchase, and the malady quickly yielded to the Remedies. It has never returned or bothered me since I began to use and continued to use the Cuticura Remedies. You may quote me as a believer in Cuticura Remedies from personal experience. John S. Woods, 221 Sands St., Brooklyn, N. Y., Oct. 21 and 26, 1906."

Traditions Of St. Swithin's Day.

St. Swithin's Day occurs annually on the 16th of July. That there may be some cosmical connection between it and Groundhog Day, which occurs on the 2d of February, is more than probable. St. Swithin's Day is near midsummer and Groundhog Day is near midwinter. Both days have to do with the matter of humidity and cloudiness in the atmosphere.

If the 2d of February is cloudy the fact is supposed to betoken an early spring. If St. Swithin's Day is rainy, similar weather, according to tradition, is indicated for six weeks or, to be especially accurate 40 days afterward. The tradition was long ago put in verse:

St. Swithin's Day, 'gin it be fair,
For forty days 'twill rain nae mair.
St. Swithin's Day, 'gin it shall rain,
For forty days it will remain.

If a tradition is utterly without foundation it weakens in time and finally fades away. But if there is the least possible physical cause for it the fact keeps recurring and the tradition is kept alive. It is not necessary to support a tradition that the fact upon which it is based shall always prove invariable. The slightest preponderance in its favor in the long run is sufficient to keep it going. If it has facts in its favor, and science is unable to account for the exceptions to its rule, that is simply the misfortune of science, if not its fault as a result of its ignorance.

St. Swithin's name has been associated with humidity and the fifteenth of July for many years—probably ever since the ninth century of the Christian era. He was an English ecclesiastic who was a chaplain to King Ebert and tutor to his son, Ethelwulf. In 852 he was consecrated Bishop of Winchester. He originated the tribute of "Peter-pence," and procured the passage of an act requiring all the English to pay tithes. At his own request he was buried where the rain might fall upon his grave. To make this sure he was buried under the eaves of his church. When it was proposed on July 15, to place his body on the inside of the church, the elements protested and prevented it by raining on that day and every day after it for forty days, and hence the tradition.

No rain fell in this locality on Monday.

The First Coffee.

Near the middle of the fifteenth century a poor Arab was traveling through Abyssinia, and, finding himself weary and weak from fatigue, he stopped near a grove. Then being in want of fuel to cook his rice, he cut down a tree which happened to be covered with dead berries. His meal being cooked and eaten, the traveler discovered that the half-burned berries were very fragrant. He collected a number of them, and on crushing them with a stone he found that their aroma increased to a great extent. While wondering at this he accidentally let fall the substance into the can which contained his scanty supply of water. Lo, what a miracle! The nearly putrid water was almost instantly purified. He raised it to his lips. It was fresh, agreeable, and in a moment the traveler had so far recovered his strength and energy as to be able to resume his journey. The lucky Arab gathered as many berries as he could, and, having arrived at Aden, in Arabia, he informed the mufti of his discovery. That worthy divine was an inveterate opium smoker and had suffered for years from the influence of that poisonous drug. He tried an infusion of the roasted berries and was so delighted at the recovery of his own vigor that in gratitude to the tree he called it cahneh, which in Arabic signifies "force."

There is more Catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure with local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Science has proven Catarrh to be a constitutional disease and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is the only constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally in doses from 10 drops to a teaspoonful. It acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. They offer one hundred dollars for any case it fails to cure. Send for circulars and testimonials.

DYE TAKES PLACE OF SAP.

Fresh Out Wood Given Permanent Hue by New Process.
A considerable industry has recently been developed in Sweden on the basis of an invention made by Joseph Phister, an Austrian, whereby coloring matter is forced into fresh cut wood. It takes the place of the sap, and gives to the wood a brilliant color, which does not fade after the wood has become seasoned. Birch, beech, alder, maple, elm and basswood are the varieties most successfully treated. The dye can be forced through lengths of wood as great as thirteen feet. When seasoned and polished the colored wood presents a beautiful appearance, and is used for making turnings, and also for the fittings of ships and street cars.History of the Dime.
That neat and lovely little coin, the dime, has had a most useful history. As far as we are aware it is unique among the world's coins, having no nearer equivalent than the English shilling, which is worth two cents more. It is one of the handiest of coins, being about as small as a silver piece can conveniently be. Being less in size and weight than the nickel, which is worth only half as much, it is vastly more convenient to keep and handle, and that is one reason why it is becoming extraordinarily scarce in spite of the fact that more dimes are now turned out of the mints than ever before in the country's history. There is a rage for "dime banks," and some of these mechanical contrivances are so pretty, so ingenious and so alluring that they force people to save dimes who have no earthly occasion to do so.—New York Mail.Plants and Fishes.
The aquatic plants of a pond have an important influence upon the fishes in the water. The investigations of R. H. Pearl, the American botanist, prove that most rooted water plants extract mineral food from the ground, and such vegetation as the pondweed (Potamogeton) aids fishes by adding mineral substances to the water. On the other hand, the hornwort (Ceratophyllum) unites a lake for fish life, as it takes its own food from the salts in the water.

Property of the Legal Heir

Horace Wood was one of those young men, so numerous in New York, who had been brought up without regard for money except as a means of obtaining amusement. The only son of well-to-do parents, he had been denied nothing during their lifetime and at their death was left with a fortune of fair size. He was about to begin the study of medicine when he was left an orphan, and he continued in his course. But he was naturally extravagant, and now, ten years later, he had tapped his principal so often that his fortune had dwindled to figures he did not like to think about.

Disappointment was growing upon him rapidly. He had reached the age of 30 and knew that the best he was capable of was still unrealized. To work meant self-denial, foregoing his clubs, all the amusements that his accustomed life offered. Although he had as yet made no change in his

HE ASKED WAY TO FAIRVIEW. Life he was dissatisfied with himself, with those about him, with everything. He felt that he ought to leave the city and buy a country practice, while he had funds sufficient to do so. But the idea of leaving New York was a hard one to face.

While Dr. Wood was in this self-torturing state an extraordinary thing happened. Arriving at his home one evening, he found a letter from a lawyer in a small Connecticut town, which contained astounding news. It said:

"Dear Sir: It is my duty to inform you that Mrs. Henry Wood, who died recently, has left you the legal heir to her property in this town. If you care to sell Fairview I have a purchaser from whom I think you could get $20,000. But I should advise you to come as soon as possible and look at the property. The place will be ready for you after the 14th of the month. Yours truly, GEORGE BROOKS."

"And I didn't know I had a relative in the world!" exclaimed the legal heir to Fairview. His father had told him long ago that he came to New York as a boy after a quarrel at home, and had made his own way. More than that he never said, and Horace did not know that any of his race existed. He had never given them a thought.

"Sell it! Of course I want to sell it! It's all to good to be true. But why should I wait until the 14th? This is only the 10th. I'll go and have a look at my property tomorrow."

Horace Wood was the only passenger to leave the train at the little station. He asked the way to Fairview, and after a long walk through the shaded streets of the old New England town, he reached his property.

It was a beautiful place, he saw at once. The drive swept around a lawn of green velvet under spreading elms. To the white colored houses Dr. Wood felt strange sensations as he approached the old mansion. "This is the home of my forebears, and therefore my home," he thought. He had not counted on this emotion. How beautiful it was, so calm and restful, with the air of being long-established and venerable.

The door was opened, much to his astonishment, by a young and extremely pretty girl. He named himself, and the girl blushed painfully as she stepped back to admit him.

"You were not expected so soon," she said, regaining her composure. "Had you given me time, you would have found your house empty. I will have Anna show you everything."

She left him, and presently Anna, in cap and apron, appeared. He was taken over the house, but could hardly put his mind on it, so occupied was he in wondering who the young woman might be, and why both she and Anna treated him with cold, almost bitter disapproval. Anna answered his questions, but was so uncommunicative as possible. He felt like an impostor.

"That is the library," said Anna, pausing before a closed door. "Please excuse me a moment. You can be looking at the books." It had suddenly occurred to Anna that perhaps this man was not the one he pretended to be, and while he was in the library, she sped away to find Mr. Brooks.

Dr. Wood opened the door and found himself face to face with the pretty girl who had opened the door to him in the first place. She looked now as if she would like to run away.

She was dressed in deep black which set off her golden hair wonderfully, and her skin, which was of an exquisite pallor. She was very slender, and stood like some wild creature, trapped, but poised ready for escape. "I beg your pardon," said Horace, "for disturbing you."

"You have a perfect right to disturb me," the girl said coldly. "I should not be here at all. I shall be gone this evening, and leave you in un molested possession of your property."

Who on earth could she be? And why did she and Anna hate him so? "Will you tell me, please, who you are?" he asked.

"Do you mean to pretend you do not know?" Then, with a scornful look, she swept from the room.

As he stood in utter dismay where she had left him, the door opened and Anna appeared, followed by an elderly man. It was Mr. Brooks, the lawyer, and Horace Wood established his identity beyond a doubt.

"I had no difficulty in finding you, for I have kept track of you through New York lawyers always. Your father refused every overture of peace that was made, and your grandfather left everything to your uncle. He died years ago, leaving everything to his wife, on the condition that at her death the estate should go to his brother's son, whom he had never seen."

"But this young lady, who despises me, who is she?" "She is Margaret Leslie, the daughter of Mrs. Wood by a former marriage. She has been brought up here and loves the place dearly. She believes you will sell it and it seems sacrilege to her. You must not blame her on. She is being turned out of the place that is home to her and it is very hard. She did not know of your existence until after the sudden death of her mother."

"Where will she go?" "To some distant cousin, who live in New York. She dislikes the city, but what can she do? She has not enough money to be entirely independent and she is too young and too pretty to live alone. The other property in the town that falls to you has yielded a good income and without that she has very little."

"It ought to be hers," said Horace. "It is a great injustice."

When Mr. Brooks had gone Horace paced up and down the library for an hour, deep in thought. Then, with an air of determination he went to look for Anna, and asked her if she would beg Miss Leslie to grant him a short interview before he left.

She came to the library with apparent reluctance. "Miss Leslie," Horace began at once, "I have just learned who you are. This place is yours by every moral right and I intend to deed it over to you."

"You—you don't know what you are saying. I could never accept such a thing. And even if I could I have no money to keep the place up."

"Then you can sell it." "Sell it? Never! I love it too much." Then she added, more kindly: "It is yours, you are the legal heir. I am saying good-by to it all here. Her voice broke."

"There is one way left," said Horace, speaking rapidly. "Miss Leslie, you are alone in the world and so am I. I have enough to maintain this place, which is yours. Marry me and let us share it. I cannot suppose that in this short time I have made such an impression on you as you have on me. I will be very kind and considerate to you. I want to stay here and work and build up a practice. I am sick of my life in New York. But I can't turn you out. I know this is unusual, but so are the circumstances. Say you will make it possible for us both to stay."

"You are carried away by your kindness," said Margaret Leslie. "It is quite impossible."

But Horace saw that her eyes were full of tears, and it gave him courage. "Tell me, do you love any one else?"

She shook her head. "Then let me go away and we will both think it over."

"I can't stay here. I must go to my cousin's to-night."

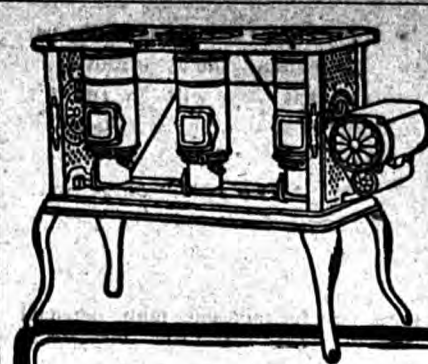

"But may I come to see you there and will you think it over?" "Yet you must come and I will think it over. She held out her hand. "Good-by. Don't think I do not appreciate your offer, only I am afraid."

"Don't be afraid," Horace said, earnestly. And the eyes she raised to his grew trustful, and he read in their depths a promise, shy and sweet.

DUTIES OF DELEGATES.

In one week from today the men to whom will be delegated the serious duty of naming the nominees who are to make the fight and be the standard bearers on the Democratic ticket will be chosen. Never perhaps in the history of the party have duties requiring more painstaking effort, serious consideration and unbiased judgment been delegated to any set of men than will be to those selected on this occasion, as on the just deliberation, wise counsel and freedom from personal or private aggrandizement very much depends the weal or woe of that party which they are supposed to serve and not to sacrifice. Any attempt on the part of this convention to serve the interest or ambition of any individual which would be subversive of those time honored Democratic doctrines, is he capable? Is he honest? Is sure to be resented on the part of the people and the candidates held to strict account according to time honored principles.

To meet the requirements of the people the candidates must not only be able to answer the above questions in the affirmative, but there are others of equal importance to which a negative answer must be given. If already an office holder has he always shown that fervency and zeal in the interest of the people as against personal or special interest, which is demanded by the people on the part of their public servants, or has he used his official position to build around himself a barriade bolstered up by the selfish interest of a few fellow craftsmen whose interests are identical and whose domination is dangerous. And further has he worn this badge of office so long that its age is an advantage with the people and its rust needs rubbing with reason. If these questions are not asked and satisfactorily answered in the convention, they are sure to be asked at a more inconvenient time, where no feigned fealty will successfully silence those who have the final say as to whom their rights shall be delegated, and too late it will be found that a miserable mistake has been made if party principles have been subverted that persons may survive. No one that is sane or is not blinded by party prejudice doubts that under normal conditions Wicomico is a Democratic County.

No one doubts that should wise counsel prevail and the success of the party be paramount, the needs and necessities of that party will be the first and only issues to be considered by the delegates to this convention and any deviation from this course would be a serious dereliction of duty on the part of any delegate, for they must recognize that when they cast their vote for any one man personal preferences are not to be considered, but to them has been delegated the rights and privileges at large and in their deliberations they must take into consideration the wishes of the entire people. That the people are long suffering and tenacious to the party of their adoption even when the leaders of that party have trailed in the dust of dishonor the principles on which the party rest, by the adoption of its livery to cover their apostasy as was the case when they convened at the election to Congress on one memorable occasion of one other than their regular nominated candidate is beyond question. "But a constant dripping will wear away stone". A constant strain on the vital parts of any piece of mechanism however strong it may be at first will eventually weaken it beyond the point of safety and the danger signal must be used.

The condition of the Democratic party in Wicomico today may be likened to an overwrought machine whose capacity has been taxed beyond the limits of its endurance and has been put to uses and been made to serve purposes for which it was never intended. And through the misplaced zeal of those whose duty it has been to watch and care for its welfare by keeping the various parts of its intricate mechanism well oiled and cleansed so that it might easily accomplish the work for which it was intended, its working parts have become corroded by carelessness, ruined with rust and rendered worse than worthless to perform its duties, while in this condition. What then would be the only and natural remedy to adopt? Not to buy a new machine, but simply to overhaul, cleanse and lubricate and add new bearings where the old ones are found to be much worn and the old machine would be as good as new. This is the remedy which needs to be applied to the Democratic party today. It needs overhauling, cleansing and repairs made, and unless such is done and done soon there will be a general "Smash up" and well meant advice will be too late.

Of Interest To Horsemen. Company
Buys High-Grade Stallion.

That the horse is not likely to be superseded is evidenced by the action of a company composed of a dozen or more of our most substantial farmers and business men who recently had imported and brought to Wicomico the German Stallion Parrot. This action is one of the most notable horse events that ever occurred in this community as it necessitated the outlay of a sum of money which at one time would have been considered marvelous. The necessity of taking some steps to improve the stock of horses now in use in this section has long been recognized by those whose business or pleasure calls for the use of a good horse.

The tendency of the past several years has been to breed with the object of speed in view and all other considerations have been sacrificed to this one requirement with the result we have been compelled to look elsewhere for our general service horses. Parrot is intended to meet this demand, an all around service horse both to work and to drive. Those who have seen him say he is a perfect specimen of horse flesh.

He is a beautiful seal brown, four years old and weighs 1800. He is now at the farm of Mr. Alonso Williams in Rockwalkin, who is the managing owner and who takes great pride in showing him to persons who are lovers of a nice horse.

Eastern Shore Odd fellows.

Maryland Odd Fellows had their annual reunion at Cambridge Thursday and Friday, with the Grand Lodge and Grand Encampment members as special guests.

Dorchester Lodge of Cambridge arranged a series of entertainments for the visitors among which were two games of base ball between the Seafoam and Cambridge teams, carriage and launch rides, etc.

The committee issued an attractive booklet giving the programme in full for the two days. Among the features are a history of Cambridge; birth and growth of the Independent Order of Odd Fellows; the encampment branch and Patriotic militant degree. It is embellished with excellent half tone engravings of Grand Sire Conway, Grand Master, Moberly, Grand Patriarch Groom, Sovereign Grand Secretary Groom, Major Godman and Grand Secretary Jones. The committee in charge of the programme consisted of William H. Hofmeister, Jr., chairman; Francis W. Stansbury, Charles A. Hearn, William A. Jones, Fred A. Groom.

STATE BOARD MEETS.

Institutions Ask For AM. Will Be Presented To Legislature.

At the meeting of the Board of State Aid and Charities held Thursday of last week the requests that have been made by the various institutions and organizations throughout the State for financial aid from the Legislature were taken up and discussed. The request must be submitted to the board by July 1. A table has been completed showing the amount asked for and what was given by the State for the last two years. After going over these figures and making a thorough investigation the board will prepare its report and present same to the Legislature at the end of the year.

Charitable institutions on the Eastern Shore have asked for the following amounts for 1906 and 1910: Peninsula General Hospital, Salisbury, $10,000; Salisbury Home for the Aged, $3,000; United Charities Hospital, Cambridge, $10,000; Home for Aged Women, Easton, $4,000; Home for Friendless Children, Easton, $1,500; General and Marine Hospital, Oxford, $5,000; Union Hospital of Cecil County, $5,000.

Obituary.

Mrs. Marie E. Lowe, widow of the late Joseph Lowe, died Sunday morning at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Evelyn Kent, on Poplar Hill Avenue. Deceased was one of the oldest residents of Salisbury, having entered her 79th year last November. She is survived by four children—Messrs. James E. John C. and Emory Lowe, and Mrs. Kent. Funeral services were held Tuesday afternoon, conducted by Rev. Dr. Martinale and Rev. Mr. Howard. Interment was in the Parsons Cemetery.

Captain Marion Kibble died at the home of his mother in Shad Point, Friday evening. He was 48 years old and was the ninth child to die of consumption in the same family. Capt. Kibble was in business on the Western Shore and had been successful. His funeral took place from Shad Point Sunday morning at 10 o'clock. The deceased was unmarried and is survived by his mother, two sisters and one brother.

Mrs. Martha S. Kelley died Monday afternoon at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Martha Davis, in Fruitland. Deceased was 82 years of age, and came of a long lived family. Her mother lived to be 94 years old; a brother died at the age of 89, and two sisters 85 and 78 years respectively. Deceased is survived by five children—Messrs. J. Clayton Kelly, D. J. Kelly and E. M. Kelly; Mrs. Sarah Freney and Mrs. Martha Davis. Funeral services took place in Fruitland M. E. Church Wednesday, afternoon. Interment was in Parsons Cemetery.

The Expenditures Of Candidates.

New York now has a law, enacted by the Legislature at its recent session and just approved by Governor Hughes, limiting the expenses of candidates for public office in that State. Under this law, candidates for the governorship are limited to $10,000 in expenses; for other State offices to $5,000; for Congress or Presidential election, $4,000; for State Senator, $3,000; for Assemblyman, $1,000. A sliding scale of expenses based on the number of voters applies to candidates for county, city, town or village places. Violation of this act is made a misdemeanor by the code, though the gaining of office by purchase has ever been a high crime in effect.

It remains to be seen how this law will operate. Maryland has a stringent provision against bribery and vote buying at elections, yet this great evil has flourished shamelessly. We have no law limiting the expenditures of those who seek office, but we have the situation of a large sum of money, estimated at something around $60,000, contributed for the purchase of votes in the Eastern Shore counties, the consideration involved being the office of United States Congressman.

It is hoped the New York law will prove more effective, as a means of preventing election corruption, than the Maryland law thus far has proved to be.

—It is said that the freight traffic over the New York, Philadelphia and Norfolk is the heaviest this season of any in the road. It is with much difficulty that they manage this immense volume of freight over one single track and the capacity of the road is taxed even when the double track extends. The double tracking of the entire road bed to Cape Charles is being pushed as rapidly as possible.

—The Salisbury Hardware Company held their semi annual meeting on the 9th of this month. The officers and directors of this Company are E. S. Adkins, president; E. Dale Adkins, vice president; John W. Humphreys, Secretary; F. P. Adkins, Treasurer; T. M. Livingston, general manager; Affric Fooks, James E. Betts, E. M. Walston, V. S. Gordy and W. O. Mitchell. The reports of business done for the past six months were very satisfactory.

—Plans and specifications for building the long talked of bridge across Tony Tank Creek have been filed by Contractor Otis Lloyd. The plan adopted by the Commissioners call for a sliding draw and the presence of a keeper at the bridge will not be necessary. The plans as adopted have been forwarded to the War Department by County Treasurer Price and as soon as they are approved work will be begun by Mr. Lloyd and the bridge pushed to completion.

—Bids for the new metal filing cases for records in the Land Office at Annapolis were opened Wednesday of last week by Land Commissioner E. Stanley Toadvin. The authority for installing new cases was approved by an act of the last legislature. Bids were offered by the following parties: Clark & Baker $5,850, Van Dome Iron Works Company $4,615.75, Wm. J. C. Dulany Company, $3,675.50, Art Metal Construction Co., $3,910. All bids were laid over for further consideration.

—Eugene Todd, son of Mr. Harry S. Todd, was painfully injured last Friday while on a visit to the home of his uncle, Mr. Joseph Phelps, near Airy's, Dorchester county. Eugene had climbed to the top of a tall tree, and in descending fell out. When picked up he was unconscious, and it was at first thought his injuries were very serious. A physician was hastily summoned, but found that no bones were broken. The boy is suffering much pain, and it is feared he is internally injured. Mr. and Mrs. Todd went to Airy's as soon as notified of the accident.

—Wm. S. McCabe, formerly of Worcester county, died last week at Selbyville. He moved there seventy years ago from Worcester county, and lived with his grandfather, Arthur McCabe, who then owned all the present town of Selbyville. At that time there were only a few acres of the tract of land cleared, and the remainder was covered by a dense pine forest. In early life he engaged in the mercantile business, continuing for fifty years. Mr. McCabe leaves an estate valued at from $25,000 to $40,000. He was a life long Democrat and a few years ago he was Levy Court Commissioner.

It's Good Corn Weather Now, And The Man Who Doesn't Get Into A Lightweight Suit Is Going To Be His Own Worst Enemy For Ninety Days.

It's an offence against the whole family for any man to sweat himself into a summer of ill nature when he might be sweet-tempered three months for a few dollars. Merchants the country over have united lately in an almost universal cry that the man who manipulates the weather was bent upon working their destruction. Not a word of complaint from Lacy Thoroughgood. Never did a bigger business. But, it's true enough, I would have sold more clothes if it had gotten hot in May and stayed hot. I bought the suits believing my sales this Spring would exceed my sales last Spring more than they have exceeded them. I have got a grand stock left yet, and now's your chance to get good clothes cheap. Plenty of people have not bought yet and I know it. Here are your opportunities. $25.00 Suits now $20.00. $30.00 Suits now $15.00. $15.00 Suits now $12.50. $12.50 Suits now $10.00. Children's Suits almost at cost. Straw Hats plenty of 'em.

Without A Parallel.

Norfolk, Va.,—Statesman, soldier and philosopher who have visited all the great Expositions of the world unite in the opinion that in architectural and natural beauty the Jamestown show has never had its parallel. But it remained for Governor Edwin Warfield of Maryland to gracefully state the truth and nothing but the truth on the occasion of the Baltimore Day celebration at the Exposition June 27. The Governor's remarks along this line were as follows:

"I visited the Centennial in Philadelphia in 1876, the Columbia Exposition in Chicago in 1893, and the St. Louis Fair in 1904, and I can say without exaggeration that the Jamestown Exposition is superior to them all, from any standpoint. The architecture and natural beauty of the Exposition is without a parallel."

"As far as the charges of extortion that have been made against the restaurants and other interests here are concerned, I will say that they are without truth, for I have investigated for myself. I had a party of friends to dinner here and the bill surprised me. I would have willingly paid that much for the music which went with the dinner."

"Because the Government pier is not finished you should not blame these patriotic people for it. In a few weeks this spot will mark the most beautiful Exposition that America has ever known."

POSITIVE PROOF

Should Convince The Greatest Skeptic in Salisbury.

Because it's the evidence of a Salisbury citizen.

Testimony easily investigated.

The strongest endorsement of merit.

The best proof. Read it:

Mrs. R. L. Redden, living on Tillman St., Salisbury, Md., says: I still think well of Doan's Kidney pills.

I made a statement for publication in 1903, and it gives me pleasure at this time, May 9th, 1907, to reiterate all I said in favor of them in my former statement. I suffered from abnormal kidneys for four years or more. My kidneys failed to perform their functions and the poison which should have passed off with the secretions, passed again into the blood and affected my whole system, causing not only excruciating backache and misery through my limbs, but my back became so weak at times as to prevent me from attending to my ordinary household duties. I spent sleepless and restless nights, and weary, languid days, and there seemed to be no help for me. I was told about Doan's Kidney Pills and got a box at White and Leonard's drug store. It is the only medicine that ever gave me any real lasting benefit. They cured me and I have not had any return of the complaint since. My blood was purified, and my general condition was wonderfully improved. I also want to say a word in favor of Doan's Ointment as I think it has no equal, and I would not be without it in the house. It will cure itching piles, eczema or any skin eruption, and any sufferer should try Doan's Ointment."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, New York, sole agents for the United States.

Remember the name, Doan's, and take no other.

—It happened in Sunday School. None of the children had studied their lessons, apparently and as for Johnny, the new boy, he wasn't supposed to know much about it anyhow.

"Now, Willie, said the teacher, 'who was it that swallowed Jonah?'

"I dun no," giggled Willie.

"Bobbie, can you tell me who swallowed Jonah?" continued the teacher.

"You can search me," said Bobbie.

"Tommy, who swallowed Jonah?" asked the teacher a little severely this time.

"Please, ma'am," whimpered Tommy. "I can't tell."

"Well, I declare!" ejaculated the teacher. Then turning to the new boy, she asked, "Johnny who swallowed Jonah?"

"I'll bite," said Johnny. "What's the answer?"—Harper's Weekly.

Where Say-So Is Best.

With nearly all medicines put up for sale through druggists, one has to take the maker's say-so alone as to their curative value. Of course, such testimony is not that of a disinterested party and accordingly is not to be given the same credit as if written from disinterested motives. Dr. Pierce's medicine, however, form a striking exception to this rule. Their claims to the confidence of invalids does not rest solely upon their makers' say-so or praise. Their ingredients are matters of public knowledge, being printed on each separate bottle wrapper. Thus invalid sufferers are taken into Dr. Pierce's full confidence. Scores of leading medical men have written enough to fill volumes in praise of the curative value of the several ingredients entering into these well known medicines.

Amongst these writers we find such medical lights as Prof. Finley Ellingwood, M. D., of Benet Medical College, Chicago; Prof. Hale, of the same city; Prof. John M. Souder, M. D., late of Cincinnati, Ohio; Prof. John King, M. D., late of Cincinnati, Ohio; Dr. Grover Ooe, of New York; Dr. Bartholow, of Jefferson Medical College, of Pa., and scores of others equally eminent.

Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription cures the worst cases of female weakness, prostrates, anorexia and retroversion and corrects irregularities, cures painful periods, dries up disagreeable and weakening drains, sometimes known as pelvic catarrh and a multitude of other diseases peculiar to women.

ROCKED IN THE CRADLE OF THE DEEP.

Rocked in the cradle of the deep. I lay me down in peace to sleep. Secure I rest upon the wave. For Thon, O Lord, hath power to save. I know Thon wilt not slight my call. For Thon dost mark the sparrows fall. And calm and peaceful in my sleep, Rocked in the cradle of the deep; And calm and peaceful in my sleep, Rocked in the cradle of the deep.

And such the trust that still were mine. Though blasting winds swept o'er the brine. And though the tempest's fiery breath Roused me from sleep to wreck and death.

In ocean waves still safe with Thee, The germ of immortality; And calm and peaceful in my sleep, Rocked in the cradle of the deep; And calm and peaceful in my sleep, Rocked in the cradle of the deep.

—Emma H. Willard.

GOOD NEWS FOR SALISBURY.

Science At Last Discovers A Real Cure For Rheumatism.

After years of experiment a new scientific remedy has been found that not only relieves, but absolutely cures Rheumatism and kindred diseases, to stay cured. Rheumatism is caused by an excess of poisonous acids in the blood. The new discovery Rheumacide though purely vegetable, and acting through nature's channels, neutralizes these acids and sweeps all poisons and harmful germs out of the blood. At the same time it tones up the stomach and regulates the liver and kidneys.

Rheumacide therefore, cures the disease permanently, because it removes the cause. It has cured hundreds of cases after the most noted doctors and hospitals have failed. Rheumacide cured James Wilkes, of Dilton, S. C., after he had been held in bed by rheumatism for three years and his feet were drawn up almost to his back. This is only one of the many marvelous cures Rheumacide has already performed. Rheumacide is curing many cases of Rheumatism, Sciatica, lumbago, gout, kidney trouble, indigestion and constipation.

The Largest Statue.

It has been stated that the Statue of Liberty New York harbor is the largest in the world, but really the largest statue is that of the Sphinx sculptured out of a spur of rock at Gizeh. It is 173 feet 6 inches long, and 56 feet high.

One hundred and thirty seven feet six inches is the height assigned to the Statue of Liberty presented by the people of France to his country, but this is only obtained by measuring from the feet to the upper end of the torch which the right hand of the statue holds above its head. The Colossus of Rhodes, which, while it existed, was the largest statue in the world, and one of its seven wonders, was about 123 feet in height. Its legs spanned the harbor of Rhodes, and allowed a ship under full sail to pass beneath them. The Saracens, who captured Rhodes in the year 672, sold the metal of which it was composed to a Jewish merchant for a sum equivalent to $180,000 of our money.

MOVE ON MOSQUITOS

Dr. Hill Up Against Them. To Convert Swamps And Dry Up Stagnant Ponds.

To have every swamp in Maryland drained and converted into good tillable land, to have every stagnant pond and puddle dried up and to have every mosquito in the State dead and harmless—these things constitute the ruling ambition of Dr. William N. Hill, the Health Department's bulwark against the mosquito pest.

Like every other big undertaking he has had anything to do with, Dr. Hill has thrown his heart and soul into the project. Once he ran for the office of Governor of Maryland, and it was probably only because it was the Union Reform party, and not one of the big parties, that he didn't get it.

Dr. Hill returned Wednesday from the swamp lands and mosquito grounds of New Jersey, where he has been making an exhaustive study of the "skeets." He has come back with this great, big idea in his mind, and on this idea he expects to spend his time and effort.

When Dr. Hill started out to do up the mosquitoes that have been pestering Baltimore for countless generations he had no idea of trying to extend the work of extermination and annihilation beyond the confines of Baltimore. He did right well, though, in reducing the number of the pests, and many grateful Baltimoreans have Dr. Hill to thank for their unbroken and untroubled slumbers.

But the Doctor soon saw that mosquito extermination was not a mere municipal problem. It takes the extermination of the insects throughout the entire State to insure peace to any locality, for the mosquito myriads are countless and the places of the departed are speedily filled.

Knowing that in New Jersey the State authorities were waging war scientifically against the mosquito, Dr. Hill journeyed hither to learn. He found that already many miles of swamp land, heretofore only dank and worthless wastes, have been reclaimed and that the places where the mosquito was wont to breed have vanished.

He found that the drainage of these swamps was gone about in a thoroughly systematic way and that the results attained were far reaching. Where land was once valueless, because of the mosquitoes, he said, their riddance has caused property values to increase. Between Long Branch and Sandy Hook was one instance that the Doctor pointed out.

Dr. Hill was shown over the work by Dr. John B. Smith, State entomologist of New Jersey, who is in charge of the extermination of the mosquitoes and the reclamation of the land. The method of draining off the swamps by a system of ditches. As all the big swamps that are being reclaimed are tidal marshes, one ditch is dug through the swamp to tidewater. Radiating from the central ditch is a series of smaller ditches, from six to eight inches wide, which are dug in the places most advantageous to draining.

The work was first started on Staten Island, but to dig trenches and ditches there it cost $75 a mile. It costs in New Jersey only $30. With the ditches draining off all the stagnant water many mosquito breeding places have been eradicated, and in addition, all the water in the ditches swarm with little killie fish, something like minnows, whose natural food is the mosquito larvae.

To have Maryland do what New Jersey is doing is what the Doctor desires. The Bureau of Irrigation of the Department of Agriculture has already under contemplation a plan to reclaim the swamp and marshland of the country along the Gulf and Atlantic Coasts, and Dr. Hill hopes that the swamps of the lower Eastern Shore and of Charles county will be included. Then, he thinks, with the State helping out with the rest of the swamps in the State, the mosquitoes that bother us now will soon be nothing but memories.

Dr. Hill has had a consultation with the Governor, who, he said, was interested in the project.

WILFRED BATEMAN DIES

Of Bright's Disease. Was Secretary Of State Under Ex-Governor Smith.

Ex-Secretary of State Wilfred Bateman, one of the most prominent men in Talbot county, and well known throughout the State, died Wednesday morning at the Emergency Hospital, on South Washington street, Easton, where he had been for the past two months undergoing treatment for Bright's disease. Mr. Bateman was the son of the late Col. Henry E. Bateman, of Easton, who was the first Comptroller of the State Treasury, and was born in Washington, D. C., January 17, 1850. Although a native of Washington, he practically spent his entire life in Easton. He received his early education in the public schools of Easton, and after leaving the Easton High School entered the private academy on South Harrison street conducted by the late Bishop Henry Chaplain Lay, of the Diocese of Easton, Protestant Episcopal Church.

After leaving there he went to Bethel Academy, West Virginia, where he finished his education, graduating with high honors. He then returned to Easton and at 18 years of age began to teach school at Bally's Neck, about three miles from Easton, which position he held for two years. He then gave up school teaching and took up the study of law under the preceptorship of the late Gov. Philip Francis Thomas, in Easton, and in 1881 was admitted to the Talbot county bar.

Mr. Bateman was one of the most prominent and influential Democrats in Talbot county, and his opinion was sought after and taken by leaders. He was appointed commissioner in chancery in 1883 and held the position until 1896, when, upon the death of Col. Thomas Hughlett, he was appointed for Talbot county, to fill the vacancy; which position he filled until December 1, 1897, when F. G. Wrightman, who had been elected at the general election in November, took charge of the office. He also held the position at one time as chairman of the Democratic State Central Committee for Talbot county, and served for several years as counsel to the Board of Election Supervisors for the county. His last political office was Secretary of State under Governor John Walker Smith, from January, 1900, to January, 1904. Since that time he led a retired life.

A WOMAN'S EXERCISE

DANCING TAKES FIRST PLACE
SAYS AN EXPERT.

Physical Reasons Why Exercises Suited for Men Are Not Adapted to Women—Grace Should Be Woman's Aim in Exercise.

"Should women be encouraged to take part in competitive athletics and sports?" Dr. Luther H. Gulick, president of the American Physical Education Association and head of the department of physical education in the public school of New York, repeated the question thoughtfully. "There is a woman's problem in exercise as there is in many other things," he went on. "Fortunately, with reference to exercise the differences between men and women are more tangible and we know the facts upon which those differences rest better than we know those in connection with political organization, for example."

"Years ago when I was beginning this work I believed that the difference between men and women was caused by the difference in their training. I no longer have any such idea. I know that the physique of men and of women differed in the beginning—man to be the fighter, the protector, woman for motherhood."

"But this is only the beginning of the argument. Women are shaped differently from men. At an equal height and weight, a man's shoulders are broader than a woman's. So that in every form of gymnastics or athletics which depends on leverage and strength of shoulders the man will excel, even if he is not muscularly stronger than the woman."

"A further handicap is placed on woman in the size of her hips. Her trunk also is longer. Therefore, in all gymnastic work in which the weight of the body is held by the arms such as work on the parallel and horizontal bars, a woman has to support the bulk of her weight further from the bar than does a man. Her center of gravity is lower."

"These physical facts do not differentiate all men from all women, because there are exceptional men who have shoulders and hips such as are usually seen on women; and vice versa, we occasionally find women who are muscularly stronger than most men, women whose bones have the leverage that belongs to men. But I am speaking of the average. "When we come to severe tests of endurance we find that woman is not less handicapped. In proportion she has decidedly smaller lungs. The red corpuscles in her blood are also smaller than those of the man, so their carrying capacity of oxygen is less."

"The weight of a woman's body in proportion to her breathing power, is much greater than that of a man's. For this reason she cannot compare with him in running, any more than she can compete with him in feats of muscular strength."

"The athletic exercises and games best suited to women are those that are graceful, not those involving competition and strain—all forms of calisthenics and light gymnastics, archery, lawn tennis, swimming, field hockey, lacrosse, bicycling, rowing, canoeing, golf, skating, fencing, and basketball. In all athletic exercises in which women engage good form should be required rather than records."

Women may be excused for not being as strong and enduring as men, but they cannot be excused for not being more finished and graceful. Good carriage, perfect poise, self-command and exquisite grace and refinement should enter into women's athletic performances."

"But, as I said before, for physical development I prefer moderate and graceful exercise without the spirit of competition and strain. Women need vigorous exercise less than men, and she profits by it less. Woman stands continuous work far better than man, and she profits more than man by mild exercise extended over long periods."

"Walking means more to women than to men. Dancing above all forms of exercise is best suited to women."

Wives Who Help.
Hundreds of thousands of men have had a lifelong weary struggle, and their brilliant talents have yielded only a tithe of the harvest they were entitled to and many have come to the bankruptcy court. "able to get on," in the place and with the people among whom his business and professional lines are cast. "Happy the man who marries a wife gifted with that large charity which covers up a multitude of her neighbors' transgressions!"

A kind heart, a tactful tongue, and a determination to play a true partner's part in avoiding cliques, quarrels, and sets—a woman of these qualities is, a "gain" to any man."

WHERE COSTUMES COUNT.

Mohammedan Parents Object to Sons Wearing Trousers.

Many of the chiefs in the protectorate of Gambia wish to have their sons educated in the new Mohammedan school of that region; but there was a bar to their full enjoyment of the education they were likely to receive. The pious Mohammedan fathers were afraid that the wearing of modern trousers was part of the school curriculum, and therefore they viewed the school with peculiar suspicion. The Governor of Gambia now reports that the parents have been assured that their children will not be converted into "trouser men," and the prospects of the school are now very bright.

Death Penalty in Austria.
Austria has a peculiar law as to the death penalty. Generally a premeditated murder is punished with death, but in cases where between the time of the murder and the arrest, the prisoner has been punished for some other crime, a sentence of death cannot be passed upon him. In a recent case a murderer had served a week's imprisonment for petty theft before his arrest for the murder, and that saved him. His sentence was twenty years.

Teach Rifle Shooting in School.
Rifle shooting will hereafter be included in the curriculum of the elementary schools of Great Britain. Mr. Birrell, the president of the Board of Education, who made the announcement in the House of Commons, said that the educational authorities had been given permission, under certain restrictions, to allow children of certain ages to be taught to shoot at miniature ranges, the instruction to be paid out of the public funds.

Salt in Epilepsy.
The suppression of alimentary salt in the diet of epileptics has a favorable effect on epileptic seizures, inasmuch as it reduces their frequency and their severity. It is of the same value in the treatment of epilepsy as the strict observance of dietetic and hygienic rules. Both factors, combined, aid considerably in reducing and controlling the seizure.

French Millionaires.
There are only ten persons in France whose fortunes aggregate more than $25,000,000; there are 100 who have $2,000,000 or over; 6,000 who possess $350,000 and less than 10,000 who own property valued at $200,000.

Substituting American Frogs.
A man has been doing a good business in London peddling "bright green American tree frogs" at 65 cents each. When the color wears off they are found to be ordinary English frogs.

Asylum for Infirm Animals.
There is an asylum for infirm animals and birds at Sodepur station, about ten miles from Calcutta, which at present houses 978 paupers, including cows, horses, buffalo, dogs, cats, chickens, monkeys, goats, etc.

Ownership in Japan.
Government ownership of utilities prevails to a great extent in Japan, where the Government controls most of the railroads, telegraph and telephone lines, the salt works and tobacco monopoly.

Fined for Overweight.
A coal company at Aberdare, South Wales, was fined recently for selling overweight coal. The fact that the error in the scales made the company lose money was not considered by the Court in passing judgment.

Largest Baby Farm.
"Fourteen thousand babies comprise the annual crop of the biggest baby farm in the world. It is located at Moscow, and has a branch in St. Petersburg that produces 8,000 babies a year."

Fads for Engagement Buttons.
In the East End of London it is now the fashion for men to wear an engagement button in coat lapel bearing a portrait of the lady. They are called "love buttons."

Finest Private Tomb.
"The finest private tomb in the world," said an undertaker, "cost $900,000. It is in England—the tomb of the Duke of Hamilton, in the park of Hamilton palace."

When Chinese Work.
The Chinese in the mines of South Africa exert themselves as little as possible when on salary, but show great activity when put on piece work.

The Women of Lhasa.
Women comprise two-thirds of the population of Lhasa, the forbidden city of Tibet, and they conduct practically all the business of the city.

DAIRY and CREAMERY

DUTCH DAIRY CONTROL.

Product Inspected by the Government Stamped as Pure.

The dairy produce of Holland forms one of the principal sources of income of its inhabitants. Indeed, of late years cattle have been bred more with a view to increase the production of milk than for fattening purposes, as it has been found that dairy produce gives a surer and better return. Especially has this been the case since the introduction of the co-operative dairy some seventy years ago. This enabled the farmers to provide themselves with the latest improvements in machinery and to establish the most modern and hygienic dairies. There are now over 700 of such co-operative dairies in Holland and they are increasing.

There was a time when Dutch butter and Dutch cheese held the most important place in the market of foreign countries. They were exported to England, Australia and America. Gradually the demand for Dutch butter became less and less, until it was almost completely extinct in Australia and America, while in England it had lost its good reputation and most dealers forsook it for the rival product from Denmark. The cause was not difficult to find. In every community there are persons who are not content with a reasonable profit gained by honest means. They try to increase it by all means, whether honest or dishonest, in the mistaken belief that "their sin will not find them out."

This was the case in Holland. Not only was the export butter adulterated, but also that intended for home consumption, and it became extremely difficult to find any butter about which one could be perfectly certain that it was pure. There is no article easier to adulterate and in none is the detection of the substitutes used more difficult. The adulteration is carried on largely by means of the addition of margarine. There are many margarine factories in Holland and all are flourishing. It is not to be wondered at. Many people declare they would rather use good, honest margarine that does not purport to be something else than the butter, which is only margarine in disguise and is sold at a much higher price.

Such a wide margin for abuse existed that the support of the government was asked. The government readily acceded to the demand and the present reliable government control was instituted. Every dairyman or butter dealer who wishes his product to bear the government-control mark must conform to the following rules: The government inspector must have free access to the dairies and shops at all times. He cannot buy butter from any person or dairy not under government control. The butter must be stamped with the trade mark of the firm in addition to that of the government. The firm has to render account to the government of the receipts and expenditures of the firm, of the persons in its service and the changes in the personnel. Book account must be kept of the butter made by themselves and of that which they buy and sell, with the names of their customers. If these conditions are not complied with a heavy fine is imposed and the firm is excluded from the bond.

Only those firms that are of good repute and are not connected in any way with margarine factories are admitted and supplied with books of government control marks. These marks or checks are printed in blue ink on Indian paper. They are very intricate of design and are printed by the Netherlands bank and bear consecutive numbers, the same as bank notes. This is the origin of the nickname "bank-note butter." All this is to avoid forgery.

Another difficult matter, that of determining what butter is really pure, and what is not, has also been overcome. Every dairyman and farmer knows how butter changes in quality at different times of the year, on account of the different food supplied to the cattle. These variations are really quite great and affect the flavor as well as the amount of fatty substances contained. An inspector is sent to a certain dairy, say in the spring, and he orders a sample of butter to be made under his supervision. He attends the whole process and afterward a scientific chemical analysis is made of it. Every other specimen of butter made in the spring by the same dairy is afterward compared with this and the elements have to be exactly the same as in the first sample. At regular intervals and at various times of the year this same perfectly pure and reliable product and in reliable test for the purity of the butter has been obtained.

Advantage in Glass Bottles.

The introduction of the glass milk bottle into the retail trade was a step of marked importance in improving the keeping quality of milk. Their use, however, on an extensive scale has been considerably hampered by the fact that they have had to be cleaned mainly by hand labor, but a machine has been invented which with the aid of two men will cleanse 4,000 bottles in an hour.

Butter making, formerly one of the chief industries of Holland, is revived on an extensive scale.

AMERICAN WASTEFULNESS.

We Act as if We Thought Our Resources Were Inexhaustible.

Instances of American wastefulness abound on every hand, but there is no better example than is afforded by the devastation of the forests, says the Colorado Springs Gazette. Untold millions of board feet of timber are left every year by lumbermen to rot on the ground or in stumps, and quantities almost as vast are destroyed by forest fires.

It was scarcely a decade ago that the forests of the United States were believed to be inexhaustible, but now everybody who knows anything of the subject is aware that they are going so rapidly that their complete extinction is a matter of only a few years.

This fact is realized by the railroads, the great lumbering concerns and other extensive users of timber, and some of them are taking steps to replace the forests already destroyed. But from the planting of the seed to the cutting of the matured tree is a long time to wait—from twenty to thirty years—and in the meantime where is the country to look for its lumber supply?

The deposits of minerals and metals are going the same way. In an address to the Columbia University graduates in science the other day Dr. James Douglas said that the "monstrous wastefulness" of the mining methods in vogue in this country would soon bring about the exhaustion of those resources which we have fondly regarded as inexhaustible.

Range Compared With Cotton. Range, a species of gigantic nettle which produces, directly beneath its outer bark, a fiber that can be woven alone or in conjunction with either wool or cotton, and gives to the cloth into which it is woven a beautiful silky finish, is being produced in China at the present time to an extent that promises to make it an important element in the world's commerce. Unlike cotton, it is not an annual crop; once planted it will produce for a dozen years. It does not ripen evenly, and as soon as one crop is pulled the plant goes on producing again; occasionally, in tropical countries—and it is only a very warm climate that it can grow—one plant will give four crops in a year. A good stand of plants will run from two to three tons of fiber per acre.

They Used the Tub.

Douglas Watson believes that it is the environment of a man that makes him clean or unclean, as the case may be.

"It is all very well," he said, "to say that people don't take a bath because they don't like to. The reason they don't use the tub is because there are none in the house. Now I am building small cottages for poor people and each one has a bathtub. Now we will call on those people one day and see that I am right."

Mr. Watson went to one of these cottages and found that the bathtub had been carefully packed with earth, and a lovely garden was abloom with fuchsias and geraniums.—San Francisco Chronicle.

Invention of Bells.

Paulinus, Bishop of Nola in Campania, invented bells about the year 400. Originally they were used in churches as a defense against thunder and lightning. The first bell in England was hung in Croyland Abbey at Lincolnshire in 945.

About the eleventh century it became a peculiar custom to baptize bells in churches before they were used. Musical bells and chimes were invented in Belgium in 1407. The curfew bell was established in 1063.

Moving Pictures.

Moving pictures are considered a modern invention; but at the beginning of the eighteenth century an English engineer invented an arrangement of figures painted on thin strips of wood which were put on a canvas background, so that by the aid of wires they could be made to move and go through various actions in a lifelike way.

This was considered a marvel at that time, and the engineer exhibited his invention all over England.

Poland's Subterranean City.

In Galicia, Austria, Poland there is a subterranean city with a population of over one thousand men, women and children. It is called the City of the Salt Mines, and has a town hall and a church. This latter has several statues, all of which are carved from rock salt.

Wireless System in Bavaria.

It is reported, says the Electrical Engineer, that the Bavarian Ministry of State Railways has decided to install the Marconi system of wireless telegraphy on some of its trains to transmit signals and orders. The system will be tried experimentally on a single-track line.

Worms Woven by Spiders.

Spiders have four pairs for spinning their threads, each pair having 1,000 holes, and the fine web itself is the union of 4,000 threads. No spider spins more than four webs, and when the fourth is destroyed they seize on the webs of others.

France's National Debt.

France, with her population of less than 40,000,000, has a national indebtedness of more than $6,000,000,000, or about $156 per capita. The debt charges alone entail a burden of more than $6 a year on every man, woman and child.

Often The Kidneys Are Weakened by Over-Work.

Unhealthy Kidneys Make Impure Blood. It used to be considered that only urinary and bladder troubles were to be traced to the kidneys.

but now modern science proves that nearly all diseases have their beginning in the disorder of these most important organs.

The kidneys filter and purify the blood—that is their work. Therefore, when your kidneys are weak or out of order, you can understand how quickly your entire body is affected and how every organ seems to fail to do its duty.

If you are sick or "feel badly," begin taking the great kidney remedy, Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, because as soon as your kidneys are well they will help all the other organs to health. A trial will convince anyone.

If you are sick you can make no mistake by first doctoring your kidneys. The mild and extraordinary effect of Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, the great kidney remedy, is soon realized. It stands the highest for its wonderful cures of the most distressing cases, and is sold on its merits by all druggists in fifty-cent and one-dollar sizes.

You may have a sample bottle of Swamp-Root by mail free, also a pamphlet telling you how to find out if you have kidney or bladder trouble. Mention this paper when writing to Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y. Don't make any mistake, but remember the name, Swamp-Root, Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, and the address, Binghamton, N. Y., on every bottle.

ARIZONA'S FOREST LAND

DAMAGE DONE BY SHEEP

These Form the Largest Unbroken Forest Outside of Africa—About 250 Years Old—5,000,000 Acres Reserved—Certain Grazing and Logging Allowed.

The largest unbroken forest in the world outside of Africa, is believed to be the one which covers 10,000 square miles of northern Arizona. Other forests have larger trees, and other sections have more square miles of trees; but this great stretch of yellow pine, bordered with juniper and cedar, has few rivals anywhere.

As great forests go, this one is not old. The average tree is reckoned to be about 250 years old and the bulk of the forest is counted "ripe," that is, mature and ready to decline in vigor.

The Western yellow pine forms 90 per cent. of the growth. They are from 80 to 135 feet high, but they do not interfere; so the sunlight falls freely on the brown needle-strewn ground. Here and there are open parks, often hiding little lakes in some depression.

There seems no reason for this sudden halt in the march of the trees—unless, as the lumber jacks say, the yellow pine will not grow on the richest soil; or, as observant foresters believe, these open glades mark the trail of long past fires of extreme violence. Such fire made parks are found in the cedar and juniper forests where their origin is positively known and of comparatively recent date.

Taking the forest from end to end, it contains the most beautiful scenery and most of the natural wonders of Arizona. There are numerous caves, some of them of unknown extent; bottomless pits into which the flood waters of sudden showers pour and are lost, and where a stone dropped falls with no sound of stopping. Other caves are filled with ice that never melts and whose extent is undetermined.

In 1898 several tracts of forest land around the San Francisco mountains were set aside in reserves, and in 1902 these, with intervening tracts, were consolidated into the San Francisco Mountains Forest Reserve of 1,975,310 acres.

Fire, grazing and lumbering, the three great elements in forest destruction, have all had their way, but only the second has gone across his danger line. Strangely enough, says a writer in Out West, the destruction from fire was largely before the coming of the whites, a very unusual tale in forest history. Many of the fires of the present time are due to lightning strokes. In some localities fully half of the mature pines show the long ragged scars of the devastating bolts.

All through the forest empty cabins mark abandoned stock ranches. Every little spring has its old camp, with forgotten brands and the names of cowboys cut in the bark of the quaking aspens.

The forest region has always been the best grazing land in Arizona. For years it teemed with cattle and sheep, contending back and forth for right of range and water holes. Overstocking and years of drought settled the feud at last with scant arbitration. The cattle died—the sheep died—their owners turned lumber jacks or sand pickers, that is, farmers.

The forest never had a severer enemy than the unlimited bands of sheep that yearly grazed from mountains to desert, and left a hard beaten track with broken and uprooted seedling trees to mark their passage through the forest.

In 1905 there were grazing in the forest reserves of Arizona 71,915 head of cattle, 11,462 head of horses and 218,000 head of sheep, at a price of twenty and twenty-five cents a head for the cattle and horses and five cents each for the sheep.

The same year, 931,849 feet of lumber were sold, with 16,649 cords of fuel wood and 2,200 posts and poles. In 1906 Arizona received $7,976.63 revenue from her reserved lands, that being 10 per cent. of their gross return to the Government.

The rules of forestry insist that all trees must be cut within eighteen inches of the ground, and that the trunk of the tree must be used down to eight inches in diameter. The branches left must be gathered and put in small piles away from all living trees, and later burned by the forest officers as a guard against fires.

The trees to be cut are selected and marked by an officer of the service and trees under fourteen inches in diameter, together with a sufficient number of vigorous mature trees to roset the cut area, are left standing.

It is estimated that at the present rate of logging the Arizona forest will last about fifty years, after which time the areas now cut under the regulations of the Forest Service will be ready to log again. More than half the logging is on land within the reserves, and the private holdings of the Arizona Timber and Lumber Company are logged along the general rules of the reserved land.

DEATH OF MRS. LEONARD

Was Highly Esteemed in Salisbury. Survived By Six Children, Two Sons And Four Daughters.

A gloom was cast over the entire community of Salisbury Wednesday morning of this week, when it was learned that Mrs. Isabella Stapleton White Leonard had passed away during the night at her home on North Division street. Although it had been known for some time that Mrs. Leonard was in poor health, it was not generally known that her condition was so serious.

Mrs. Leonard was a daughter of the late James and Adeline White, was born and grew to womanhood in Salisbury, and from her earliest childhood gave evidence of a sweetness of disposition and a manner which was kind and affectionate toward all, which early won for her the sincere love and esteem of all who came within the circle of her acquaintance, which love and esteem she held until the sad day of her death. To meet her was to know a lady with all that name implies. To know her was to admire and respect her and to feel the beneficent influence that lovely characters always impart upon those with whom they come in contact.

In 1874, when only twenty-two, deceased became the bride of the late Col. William J. Leonard, who during his life was one of the largest land owners in Wilcomico county and one of its most prominent citizens, and at his death, which occurred in 1901, left his widow in comfortable circumstances.

After his marriage Col. Leonard took his young bride on an extended European tour, and after their return made their home in Salisbury. From this union there were several children, of whom the following survive: Mrs. Alan F. Benjamin, Mrs. Everett Jackson, Miss Mary and Jean Leonard, Messrs. William Wirt and James Leonard. Mrs. Leonard is also survived by the following brothers and sisters: Mrs. W. L. Brewington, Mrs. Jas. Kennedy, Mrs. John S. Fulton, Miss Laura White, Messrs. Gustavus and William White, of Duluth, Minn. The funeral services were held yesterday afternoon in St. Peter's Protestant Episcopal Church, of which the deceased was a life-long and consistent member. After the services the remains were taken to Parson's Cemetery and buried beside those of her husband. The pall bearers were Thomas Perry, Dr. S. A. Graham, Dr. George W. Todd, John D. Williams, Jonathan Waller and W. M. Cooper.

In order to secure sufficient help to keep their factory going the management of the Salisbury Shirt Co., Messrs. Jackson & Weisbach are compelled to advertise in Eastern, Cambridge and other towns on the Peninsula. The demand for women help in Salisbury has considerably increased in the last few years. Besides the Salisbury Shirt Co., the Wilcomico Shirt Company employ a great many women in their large shirt factory near the N. Y. P. & N. depot. No man, woman, nor child need go unemployed in Salisbury who really wants to work.

MOTHER AND DAUGHTER PRAISING PERUNA.

MRS. GERTRUDE MCKIERMAN,
216 Noesho street, Emporia, Kas., writes:

"I suffered very much with a severe cold in the head and was always complaining of feeling tired and drowsy. When my mother suggested and insisted on my taking a few bottles of Peruna, I did so, and in a short time I felt like a new person. My mother praises it very highly and so do I."

Confidence in Peruna.

Mrs. M. P. Jones, Burning Springs, Ky., writes:

"We have been using Peruna for some time and have no hesitancy in recommending it for the thousand and one ailments of humanity."

"From a personal test I shall not hesitate to recommend it, especially to all suffering women."

"Peruna has gained full confidence and a permanent stay in our home."

A Great Test.

Mrs. Anna Linder, R. R. 5, Dassel, Minn., writes: "I took Peruna and am well. I would not be without that great tonic for ten times its cost."

HEAVY RESPONSIBILITY OF CONVENTION

Tuesday, Of Wilcomico County Democrats. Scores Who Endorse The Examples Of Governor Jackson And Hon. E. Stanley Toadvin, Who Retired After Two Terms In The State Senate. Third Term In State Senate Against All Precedents In This County. Would Be Strongly Opposed By Hosts Of Democrats First And Last, And Be A Lasting Injury To The Party.

That Wilcomico is in one of the most acute stages, politically, possible, from a Democratic standpoint today, there is no gainsaying. The spirits of unrest and dissatisfaction are broadcast and exist in every district in the county. There is a wholesome revolt against selfish party politics and a healthy independent demand for the more ennobling, more material Democratic Principles of Majority Rule by the People, not minority rule by a few self-seeking politicians. The grandeur of "Rotation in office" which makes Democrats and retains Democrats, is paramount to the service of any one or more individuals.

Democratic Principles Endangered.

Men, prominent and influential in Wilcomico county today recognized this great Principle and bowed to it. The lowly in the Democratic party have loved it and regarded it as their safeguard against selfish monopoly. The most dangerous possible invasion of this sacred right of the people; the great masses of the People of our county who have trusted the Democratic Party is menaced. There seems to be a small conspiracy among some of State Senator M. V. Brewington's close associates to have him run again on a so-called Democratic ticket. It is not authoritatively stated that Mr. M. V. Brewington desires to succeed himself. Mr. Brewington has had the office of State Senator for two terms or eight years, with all the emoluments, the pay and whatever of honor goes with it. This is the longest the office has ever been held in this county.

Governor Jackson And Senator Toadvin.

Ex-Governor E. E. Jackson and State Land Commissioner, Hon. E. Stanley Toadvin only recently set the example by retiring after two terms' service in the Senate. They recognized the Rights of the People and the health-inspiring principle of the DEMOCRATIC party, Rotation in Office. There is in this county a well-defined, an insurmountable public sentiment against long-term office-holding, and particularly against the third-term candidate. The Democratic party in Wilcomico county has never stood for a third term candidate, since its establishment as an independent county, in the State Senate.

Main Office in County.

There is every good, sane reason for this opposition to the third term in this office. It is the first or leading office in a county under our present government; and any attempt to break a life-long precedent established here through years of wise party foresight and sound judgment; any move to overturn the People's Rights here; any desire to undermine and pervert the great Democratic principle of Rotation in Office, particularly in the first office—should be throttled and hurled back on the gully offender, to his own undoing, by indignant and outraged Democrats.

Would Invite Defeat Of Party.

Despite a few who may be classed with the present "ring" in having a "job," and some with "overweening expectations," who by the wily, adroit ways of the "ring," feel that they "stand in line," there are in every district of the fourteen in this county bold and avowed Democratic patriots who are unchangeably and avowedly opposed to Senator Brewington or any other man holding a third term in the State Senate. These Democrats are in numbers sufficiently strong to prevent a third-term candidate, if nominated for this office, from accomplishing his own purpose.

Requires Principle To Hold Democratic Votes.

They will vote for Democratic Principle this year rather than any man who stands in the light of the party and if Senator Brewington should go on the ticket again for a third term where there has never been more than a second term given even to such strong men as Gov. Jackson and Hon. E. S. Toadvin it will invite present defeat to the Democratic party in this county, as surely as Night comes on, at the November polls, and will inflict a lasting injury from which it will be impossible to fully recover. To the Party in our home county, because the Party is not to be held together any longer by merely name now, in a crisis like the present. It requires the preservation and respectful holding fast to the "Rotation in office" Principle, without which the Democratic Party would be Democratic in name alone, a mocking shadow for the real thing. There would be nothing to hold the voters together on.

Time To Help The Party.

There are strong expressions from all parts of the county that Mr. Brewington should in justice and fairness to the Democratic Party, that has given him so much, feel that he has had his fill in long office holding. Is there a DEMOCRATIC voter in this county who would not now be content to jump into the ranks and help elect some one else who is properly qualified, if they had been as well served as Mr. Brewington, concededly has.

Real Test Of A Democratic Fighter For Party—Not For Self.

It is said by his close friends that Mr. Brewington is a great fighter. There are plenty of others as great or probably greater fighters under like incentives.

Now can anyone tell how Mr. Brewington would be if he were not in the fight personally. We hear nothing of his fighting qualities until he was put on the ticket. He was on the ticket over men who had fought long years for Democratic principles.

Did he work for Mr. Wm. Jennings Bryan as much as he does for himself.

The test of Democracy is in the National Elections when Democratic Principles are ever at stake. In "off years," the election of Congressman and the President is the true test of lasting fighting qualities. Not merely a "big pompous plunge" every time a man is on the ticket. There are men in this county who have fought hard and strong for democratic principles when Mr. Brewington was in swaddling clothes who have not had half the recognition that he has and said nothing about it. Yes, the Senator is a good worker for himself and if he would turn any fighting qualities that he made possible, to fighting for principles and for the good of his country and others besides himself they would be put to a better use. If he was an honest fighter for morals, party fairness and patriotism he would answer some of the questions that have been propounded to him in these columns.

Action in Accordance With Expressed Sentiments.

In the News published by Messrs. Brewington Bros., this week is noted the paragraph printed below from their editorial which it is presumed is from Mr. M. V. Brewington, present Senator. It says—

"If the delegates to the County Convention next Tuesday will close their eyes to individual advancement and look straight ahead to the making of a ticket which will have the support, confidence and active help of all elements of the Democratic party, there will be no regrets in November. If in doing this there has to be some good material selected not now spoken of, all well and good. It is often more healthy for the office to seek the man than for the man to seek the office."

This covers the situation admirably and if Mr. Brewington is honest in his expression and sincere it can readily be seen that there is no danger of his being on next Tuesday's ticket. If taken on a liberal interpretation it means that he is not a candidate, and would not ask to be again served. For the good of the party present and future it is to be sincerely hoped that the the warning for it is known beyond the question of a doubt that he will not "have the support, confidence and active help of all elements of the Democratic party."

There are elements in the party who have been "good" in the strictest meaning of the word as used by the organization and who have supported Mr. Brewington as party men for the last eight years, who cannot be induced to support or vote for him again. Men, who four years ago, were opposed to his return for a second term yet to help the Party win, did both work and vote for him.

No Republican scare crew or negro kangaroo can influence them this year. They demand the Democratic Principle of Rotation in office and no inroads on established precedents. Otherwise they stand prepared to rebuke those responsible in due season with all the power that knowledge of right gives them and the desire for the real good of a genuine Democratic Party inspires, "with malice toward none, with charity toward all."

DON'T BE DELUDED

Says Governor Warfield At U. S. Senator Whyte's Party Conference Tuesday. Says Those Who Have Been Served Should Help Others.

"I am here today through the invitation of a man for whom I have the greatest respect and whom I honor most highly, a Democrat whom we delight to term 'the noblest Roman of them all'—our loved and honored Governor Whyte.

"You must not delude yourselves with the idea that the Democratic party in this State is in a condition that will make it easy to win a victory at the next election. You will find it difficult to carry the election unless you go down to the rank and file of the Democracy and ascertain whom they want as their candidates."

"Democratic sentiment has not crystallized around any one man. There is a chaotic condition so far as the candidates for Governor is concerned, and you would have to be very careful in the selection of your standard bearer."

"The matter for us to consider here today is how to ascertain the sentiment of the masses of the Democratic party. Can you in any way obtain a direct expression of the wish and the hope of the masses of your party."

"Howard county has had its convention. It has chosen three men as delegates to the State convention, but will assert without fear of contradiction that, notwithstanding all of their political experience and astuteness, not one of them can estimate or properly gauge the sentiment in Howard county today as to the choice of the Democrats for a candidate for Governor."

Back To The Ranks.

When I wrote my letter stating that under no circumstances would I be a candidate for a Governor, I meant every word I said. I have been honored beyond my merits by the Democratic party, and I am grateful to my party and the people for the great distinction and honor they have bestowed upon me.

"As I said in that letter, I consider it my duty, having held the high office of Governor, to go back now to my place as a plain citizen and fight as I want to fight in the ranks for the success of the Democracy of Maryland."

"But I insist that the party shall give just the very best candidate it can secure, and that it will advise some means by which it can secure an expression from the masses of the party as to their choice for Governor. Then, let him be who he may, he will get my undivided and earnest support."

"Mr. Mahool would never have been elected Mayor of Baltimore if the Democratic masses of this city had not first chosen him as their candidate. [Applause.]

Give New Men A Chance.

"This is the time, my friend, for Democrats to put behind them selfish motives. I am willing to stand aside for some other man, in order that he may have the honor of being Governor of this magnificent Commonwealth."

"I have had my day in public life, and I think it would be a good thing for the Democracy of our State if some other party men would realize that they also have had their day and their share of the honors and emoluments of public office, and would step aside and let new men come to the front and have a chance. Let them put aside selfishness and show a patriotic spirit."

"You cannot impugn my Democracy. I love my party and have supported its nominees for 36 years, and I hope I may never have to scratch a Democratic ballot. I want to see chosen as the Democratic standard-bearers men around whom all of us can rally."

Would Choose By Direct Vote.

"I believe that the Democratic convention on August 8 will not be so informed as to the Democratic sentiment as to be able to act intelligently in the selection of a candidate. If that convention acts wisely and patriotically it will adjourn over until, say, the 18th day of September, after it has by resolution instructed the county committees to ascertain the sentiment of the Democracy of their respective counties. They can very easily devise some way by which this can be done through a direct vote."

"Is not this a good suggestion? You may reply that some of the delegates have already been selected. They could still be instructed as to whom they should vote for at the convention, and they could not refuse to obey those instructions."

There are plenty of patriotism and love of party, and pride and proper spirit in the Democracy of this State to induce the Democrats of Maryland upon some day in the early part of September to assemble at the polls in their respective districts and, without manipulation on the part of the politicians, without the use of money, to give expression to their free choice as to the nominee for Governor and the other State officers."

"The Democrats who are not willing

WARFIELD TO DEMOCRATS

Says It Is Better To Change Leaders. Sins Of Omission Or Commission.

In a speech before the conference of Democrats held in Baltimore Tuesday of this week to discuss the general condition of the party and to determine upon the most available candidate to nominate this fall, Gov. Warfield gave forcible utterance to some truths which not only apply to state conditions, but are equally as applicable to local conditions.

Gov. Warfield in his speech said:

"This is the time, my friends, for Democrats to put behind them selfish motives. I am willing to stand aside for some other man, in order that he may have the honor of being Governor of this magnificent Commonwealth."

"I have had my day in public life, and I think it would be a good thing for the Democracy of our State if some other party men would realize that they also have had their day and their share of the honors and emoluments of public office, and would step aside and let new men come to the front and have a chance. Let them put aside selfishness and show a patriotic spirit. Let us have new men and new blood to lead Democracy in this fight."

These are true words and spoken in an honest way at the right time and coming as they do from such a high source are worthy of emulation by some of our local politicians. Who can doubt for one moment that it would be for the best interest of our party and the people, should such expressions as the above be taken to heart by persons who have had their day in Wilcomico politics and its teachings be put in practice. How much better it always is to face conditions as they actually are and to apply the needed remedies in time than it is to wait until after disaster has occurred and then to attempt to remedy that which should never have occurred. The opportunity to apply the proper treatment to the local Democratic conditions still exist and it is not yet too late for those who have been honored by their party to now do that party honor by gracefully declaring their willingness and intention to withdraw from public office and be a patriot and not a parasite. How quickly the clouds of doubt would disappear and the pulse of Democracy begin to throb with all its old time vigor under the rejuvenating impulse of that Democratic doctrine "rotation in office."

Instead of discord and danger party health and harmony would appear. The people would awake to the fact that personal politics had ceased and that the day of their freedom had come. But if on the other hand such wise counsel goes unheeded and the delegates, which are to be selected to Tuesday next declare for persons instead of policies, then look for the frost that will follow this fawning. It will then be found that it is too late to use the remedies for a cure which should have been used as a preventative. Let their sins be upon their own heads.

Festival At Friendship.

The Ladies of Friendship M. P. Church are preparing to serve a spread supper and festival on Wednesday, August 7. If the weather is unfavorable on Wednesday, the supper will be served on Thursday. The general public is invited.

to trust the masses of his party to make the choice is not the man we want as nominee. It is very much better for a candidate to know how the masses of his party feel toward him before than after he is nominated. It is rather unpleasant after nomination for a candidate to find out that a majority of his party does not want him.

For Any Good Democrat.

"I do not care who is the candidate for Governor, provided he is a good man. I believe it is for the best interests of this State that it should have a Democratic Governor. If Governor Brown, Mr. Williams and Mr. Baker want to be the Democratic nominees for Governor let them all announce their candidacies to the people and let the candidate be decided upon at the primary election, provided for as above suggested."

"How much better would it be if such a plan as this had been followed in Baltimore county. Nobody knows what the sentiment on the Governorship is there today. No man can tell who is the choice of the Baltimore county Democrats for Governor. If on some given day the sentiment of the people of that county could be obtained at a fair and open primary, how much better would it be for the party and how much more enthusiastic would be the campaign."

I wanted to be Governor again I should certainly have adopted this plan of going direct to the people. I am willing to treat them. Let us ask them to solve this matter of candidates for us and victory will crown our efforts and Maryland will remain in the Democratic ranks. [Applause.]

In what I have said here today I want it understood that I am not speaking as a representative of Anne Arundel county or as a Governor, but simply as a plain member of the Democratic party and one who is anxious for its success. [Applause.]

Arrested, Charged With Selling Intoxicating Liquors. After Sentence, Appeal Is Taken To Court. Much Interest Manifested.

A great deal of interest was manifested in Salisbury Friday of last week when it became known that Louis P. Coulbourn had been arrested charged with selling intoxicating drinks at his place of business on E. Church Street. Rumors have been rife for a good many months that something besides fresh meat and soft drinks were being sold at this place but for some reason—perhaps their inability to secure proper evidence—the local authorities did nothing in the matter. It remained for an entire stranger to furnish evidence upon which the arrest was made. It seems that Mr. Royal W. Raymond, Field Secretary of the Anti-Saloon League, of Delaware had heard some months ago that Salisbury was a good place from which to get information and secure some data, which would be of benefit to his Society in the anti-whiskey fight they are now making in Delaware. With this object in view he came to Salisbury and conceived the idea of taking photographs of the places in Salisbury formerly occupied as drinking saloons. He secured some fine pictures of Ulman's old place, showing how the place had been converted into a busy carpet and furniture store and went out to Mr. Coulbourn's place to get pictures to show how the people were now purchasing meat and provisions at this place instead of whiskey as formerly.

While engaged in this work he noticed that a great many persons entered and purchased something to drink which looked remarkably like beer. He also made a purchase and according to his testimony found it to be the "real stuff." Mr. Raymond had occasion to be in this vicinity last week and came to Salisbury Friday and made the remark to some gentlemen that he could purchase beer in Salisbury as easy as he could in Wilmington. This was disputed whereupon Mr. Raymond volunteered to make the purchase and furnish the evidence that the article purchased was beer. Arrangements were made with Deputy Sheriff Waller to be on hand. Securing a bottle Mr. Raymond proceeded to Mr. Coulbourn's place of business in company with another gentleman named Anderson. Entering the store Mr. Raymond held up two fingers whereupon he alleged Mr. Coulbourn produced two glasses of liquid, which after tasting and pronouncing it beer. Mr. Raymond poured the liquor into the bottle which he had carried in his pocket for that purpose. Mr. Coulbourn made strenuous objections to this saying to Mr. Raymond that he could not carry the liquor out of his place. But Mr. Raymond just as strenuously contended that he could and going outside met Mr. Waller, who likewise pronounced the article the real goods. This being considered expert testimony a warrant was at once secured and Mr. Coulbourn placed under arrest. The accused gave bail and hearing was set for eight o'clock Friday evening before Justice Trader. When the time set for the hearing arrived it was found that the crowd there was large to be accommodated in the small quarters of the justice office and permission was granted by Judge Holland to hold the trial in the Court House.

At the trial Mr. Raymond was called and testified to the facts as stated above. Mr. Coulbourn was called to the stand and given an opportunity to state his side of the case which he did by denying that the goods purchased was the real beer, but was what is known as "Beering," a harmless concoction of his own manufacture. This explanation evidently failed to convince the Justice. Nothing but the evidence was gone into at this hearing and the case was adjourned until Saturday in order to allow Counsel time for argument. At the conclusion of argument Justice Trader imposed fine of $50 with cost and ninety days in county jail. Counsel for Mr. Coulbourn at once made motion for appeal which was objected to by State's Attorney Bailey who had charge of the prosecution and held that no appeal could be taken in cases of this character. On argument Mr. Trader decided to raise his sentence and take further time to consider the question of appeal and the case was adjourned until Monday.

In the meantime great pressure was brought to bear on Justice Trader to get him to reverse his decision, but to his credit be it said he refused to do so. When the case was again called Monday the Counsel for defense not being ready the case was again adjourned until Tuesday at which time, owing to the doubts in Mr. Trader's mind he decided to admit the plea for an appeal and send the case up to the Circuit Court for final settlement. In order to establish a precedent, Mr. Coulbourn was then put under $1000.00 bail for his appearance in Court.

The final action of Mr. Trader seems to have given pretty general satisfaction and is deemed to have been the wisest course he could have taken.

A Strand Of Stones.

California may truthfully boast of many natural wonders and curiosities, but one of the most remarkable and beautiful spectacles may be witnessed at which is known as Pescadero Beach. This beach is some 40 miles south of San Francisco, on the Pacific Ocean and near the mouth of Pescadero Creek.

The beach is of considerable extent, covering several acres. It is thickly strewn with countless—literally millions—of pebbles. These pebbles are all small, the largest not exceeding an inch in diameter. But what is remarkable about these little rounded pieces of stone is their wonderful brilliancy, says the Technical World Magazine. They are rich—dazzling in all the prismatic tints of the rainbow.

Nowhere else along the Pacific coast are these pebbles found. They are geologically fragments of primary rocks broken and rounded and polished by the ceaseless and restless action of the waves beating and rolling upon them decade after decade, century after century.

When wet, as the tide recedes, they are beautiful beyond description—glittering and scintillating like a vast bed of diamonds. The onyx, emerald, Jasper, sardonyx, beryl, corneal and other precious gems find no unworthy rivals in these Pescadero Beach pebbles. Under a bright moonlight, when the beach is wet, the scene is one of incomparable beauty and brilliancy.

One peculiarity about these "gem" pebbles is that when removed from their native beach they seem to lose to a great extent their brilliancy, and even under a strong light possess only a subdued glow.—Sci.

Mexican Imperial Band.

Norfolk, Va.—The Mexican band, assigned by President Diaz of Mexico, to represent that country at the Jamestown Exposition, arrived June 28th and went into camp on the military reservation.

The band consisting of forty-one pieces, attached to the general staff of the Mexican army, and stands next in importance to the Presidential Band. At home it is stationed in the City of Mexico and twice a week plays in the park or plaza for the enjoyment of the people.

The band is under the leadership of Lieut. Nabor Varquez and is one of fine quality in its musical make-up, and promises to be an attractive feature of the Exposition during the three months it will remain. On the day of arrival at the Jamestown Exposition the band gave a concert in the Auditorium and then, going to the grand stand on Lee's Parade it played during the dress parade of the 38th Infantry which followed the parade in honor of South Carolina Day. Those who heard the selections given were delighted and great enthusiasm is felt at the pleasant prospect attending the long stay of this celebrated band of musicians, which was secured for the Exposition through the earnest endeavor of Senor Veloz, Jamestown Commissioner to Latin-American countries.—Cor.

"I wish to inform you that your wonderful Cuticura has put a stop to twelve years' misery and itching with my son. As an infant I noticed on his body a red spot and treated same with different remedies for about five years, but when the spot began to get larger I put him under the care of doctors. Under their treatment the disease spread to four different parts of his body. The longer the doctors treated him the worse it grew. During the day it would get rough and form like scales. At night it would be cracked, inflamed, and badly swollen, with terrible burning and itching. When I think of his suffering, it nearly breaks my heart. His screams could be heard down stairs. The suffering of my son made me feel of misery, had no ambition to work, to eat, nor could I sleep.

"One doctor told me that my son's eczema was incurable, and gave it up for a bad job. One evening I saw an article in the paper about the wonderful Cuticura and decided to give it a trial. I tell you that Cuticura Ointment is worth its weight in gold, and when I had used the first box of Ointment there was a great improvement, and by the time I had used the second set of Cuticura Soap, Cuticura Ointment, and Cuticura Cure, my child was cured. He is now twelve years old, and his skin is as fine and smooth as silk. Michael Steinman, 7 Sursum Avenue, Brooklyn, N. Y., April 16, 1905."

Fishing for Grease.

Skimming a river for a living may be said to be one of the most striking examples of the utilization of waste, says the Chicago Tribune. This is done in Paris. There is one individual, at least, in the French capital who makes it his daily business to skim the Seine. He is out at early morning in an old flat-bottomed boat, armed with a skimming pan. With this he skims off the surface of the river the grease which collects there during the night, and which he disposes of to a soap factory. Generally he makes a quarter or so by his morning's work, which enables him to live.

In Paris also there are a number of people who make a living out of waste corks, which they fish from the Seine. They collect on the river bank at daylight, each with a short pole, at the end of which is a small improvised net. They set to work to gather in the floating corks, subsequently selling them to the cork merchants in the neighborhood.

There are about a score or so of these cork fishermen, who have formed themselves into a sort of craft and who guard their interests jealously. If they catch sight of a stranger netting corks they fall on him in a body. Only recently the police rescued one of these novices barely in time to save his life.

The sweepings of a floor might well be considered as so much waste, yet, through a fire in London the other day, which consumed a quantity of sweepings stored in the basement, a certain firm lost several thousand dollars. The heap of dust and rubbish contained silver filings, which it was intended to extract later on.

This is done regularly at all works where silver or gold is used. In gold refiners' premises even the soot in the chimneys is not allowed to be treated as waste. It is found to contain minute particles of the precious metal, which are far too valuable to be lost.

In places where sheep are bred extensively one frequently sees little bits of wool adhering to briars and hedges. These are no longer regarded as waste. From such wool rubbish, whether coming from sheep or goats, valuable oil is now extracted.

An Alligator Nursery.

It was not so very many years ago that our southern swamps and rivers were fairly infested with alligators, and though they were hunted it was almost entirely for sport. In the state of Florida alone, 3,000,000 alligators were killed in 10 years, and although the reptile is unusually prolific in propagating its species it can not long resist so heavy a tax on its numbers; so that unless something is done for its protection there will be no alligators in America except the farm-bred reptile, and not enough of him.

The alligator is long-lived and his growth is of the slowest. An alligator two feet long is at least 15 years old, while a twelve foot specimen may be anywhere from 75 to 150 years old, and as it is only the larger specimens that have any commercial value, their need of protection against wholesale slaughter will be readily seen.

Realizing the above conditions, H. L. Campbell, who is widely known as "Alligator Joe," conceived the idea of establishing an alligator farm for the purpose of breeding the reptile. His life has been spent among alligators and crocodiles in our own southern swamps, and he is thoroughly familiar with the habits and characteristics of the reptile, its nesting places and the best manner of trapping it that the skin may not be injured.

The farm is not far from Hot Springs, Ark., the famous health resort. A small mountain stream runs through it, forming numerous little ponds and lakes, which is just what is needed for the various breeding and stock grounds of the farm. Here the alligators are distributed according to size, ranging from the huge, old monsters of twelve feet in length to the babies no larger than lizards, just hatched from the shells. The separating of the reptiles according to size is made necessary by the fact that the alligator is a cannibalistic amphibian with a weakness for devouring his own young. But when they are pretty nearly equal in size and strength they live together in comparative peace.—Sci.

Grow Your Own Tea.

Any housewife who would like to grow her own tea in her kitchen garden, instead of going to the corner grocery for it, will be shown how to do it by the Agricultural Department, which is about to publish a pamphlet on the subject. The pamphlet not only will give the necessary directions for raising the tea plants, but will tell how to dry and cure the leaves and the best way to make tea of them afterward. No special apparatus is required in carrying out the operations. Copies of the pamphlet can be secured without charge by applying to the Secretary of Agriculture.

There is more Catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure with local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Science has proven Catarrh to be a constitutional disease and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is the only constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally in doses from 10 drops to a teaspoonful. It acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. They offer one hundred dollars for any case it fails to cure. Send for circulars and testimonials.

Address: F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio. Sold by Druggists, 15c. Take Hall's Family Pills for constipation.

Fresh Out Wood Given Permanent Hue by New Process.

A considerable industry has recently been developed in Sweden on the basis of an invention made by Joseph Phister, an Austrian, whereby coloring matter is forced into fresh cut wood. It takes the place of the sap, and gives to the wood a brilliant color, which does not fade after the wood has become seasoned.

Birch, beech, alder, maple, elm and hickory are the varieties most successfully treated. The dye can be forced through lengths of wood as great as thirteen feet. When seasoned and polished the colored wood presents a beautiful appearance, and is used for making furniture, and also for the fittings of ships and street cars.

History of the Dime.

That neat and lovely little coin, the dime, has had a most useful history. As far as we are aware it is unique among the world's coins, having no nearer equivalent than the English shilling, which is worth two cents more. It is one of the handiest of coins, being about as small as a silver piece can conveniently be. Being less in size and weight than the nickel, which is worth only half as much, it is vastly more convenient to keep and handle, and that is one reason why it is becoming extraordinarily scarce in spite of the fact that more dimes are now turned out of the mints than ever before in the country's history. There is a rage for "dime banks," and some of these mechanical contrivances are so pretty, so ingenious and so alluring that they force people to save dimes who have no earthly occasion to do so.

New York Mail.

Plants and Fishes.

The aquatic plants of a pond have an important influence upon the fishes in the water. The investigations of R. H. Pearl, the American botanist, prove that most rooted water plants extract mineral food from the ground, and such vegetation as the pondweed (Potamogeton) aids fishes by adding mineral substances to the water. On the other hand, the hornwort (Ceratophyllum) unites a lake for fish life, as it takes its own food from the salts in the water.

Ceratophyllum gives protective coatings for iron much superior to zinc. The coat has the same aspect as zinc but is much more adhesive and harder.

THY NEIGHBOR AS THYSELF.

July 21, '07. (Exodus 20, 12-17)

There have been numberless attempts to interpret the moral law. Not content with their unmistakable meaning, men have sought for advice and instruction as to what is permitted, and what is forbidden by the Ten Commandments.

The most complete and satisfactory answer was given by Jesus himself, who, in reply to such a query said the whole law was summed up in one word—Love. The first table means:—Thou shalt love the Lord thy God with all thy heart. And the second is like unto it:—Thou shalt love thy neighbor as thyself. One word of four letters is big enough to enclose the world.—L-O-V-E.

If society was based on this foundation practically as well as theoretically, what a revolution would result. There would be no business for lawyers, and they would all enter some useful occupation. Doctors would have small practice, and ministers would all be out of a job. There would be few broken hearts and no broken heads. The dogs might still delight to bark and bite, for Dr. Watts says, "It is their nature to," but the gossip would no longer stab reputations with the tongue's stiletto, and the neighbor-hoods would not be all torn up with scandal.

Children would have a proper reverence and care of their parents, and no old people would have to go "over the hill to the poor house," because they were in the way in their children's houses. They would not kill their fellows in private brawls nor in public war. The assassin would not be hanged for shooting one man, while other men were crowned with laurel for moving down whole battalions on the battle field. It would no longer be necessary to nail down everything of value to keep it from the fingers of the thief. People would be content with their own, and would not be running after their neighbor's wives, their neighbor's cattle, their neighbor's land, their neighbor's business of any kind.

That would be a wonderful change from the present state of society. Everybody would like to see it brought about. And everybody is hoping that his neighbor will read this, and begin to practice it right away. That is the chief reason why 'it' has not been already realized on this earth—we are all waiting for other people to set the example.

This is the solution of all the problems of the human race. If for this rule should be put in practice, just as it reads without prejudice or dodging, the millennium would be here. There would be no need of Hague conferences, of divorce courts, of jails and penitentiaries, of almshouses and houses of correction. There would not be a hungry person, nor a ragged person, nor a wounded person by the roadside of life. The homeless would get shelter, the heartless would get comfort, the oppressed would get instruction, the weary and heavy-laden would get rest.

People talk sometimes as if the Ten Commandments were oppressive, as if they shut up men to a narrow, restricted, circumscribed life. On the contrary they are exceedingly broad.

Their fulfillment would make the earth bloom and blossom as the rose. They pre-suppose for every human being the ambitious, hopes, plans, realizations of your fondest dreams for yourself and your loved ones. Anything narrow about that? Put yourself in his place—that is the idea. What you would like, he will like he should have. Instead of climbing over him, take him along with you. A pleasure divided is a pleasure doubled. You would find it if you went out of your way once to help your neighbor. The misanthrope who crawls away by himself to enjoy his luxury alone, loses all the sweetness and satisfaction of it. He is akin to the dog, who sneaks into the thicket with his bone and growls at every passer-by. It took a nightmare horror to thaw out the frozen heart of Scrooge, but when it was once liberated from its icy fetters, the very dogs in the street recognized the change.

So the brute creation waits, as well as the human race, for the millennium to be put in practice. Crack reins and docked tails would vanish with the in-coming of the law of love. Vivisection would put up its torturing scalpel, freight trains, bearing their sweltering loads of cattle for the market would no longer be horrible with neglect and exposure, song birds would no more be torn from their nests and stripped alive of their beautiful plumage to deck fair women for the house of God. All around the earth peace, beauty and order would universally rule.

With such a time ever dawn for the old earth? The churches and Sunday schools must answer. It would be a good way to find out if each really would stand up in front of the mirror, and ask himself this question: Do you love your neighbor as yourself?

Harsh physics react, weaken the bowels, cause chronic constipation. Doan's Regulatore operate easily, tone the stomach, cure constipation. 25 cents. Ask your druggist for them.

Accidents will happen but the best regulated families keep Dr. Thomas' Electric Oil for such emergencies. It subdues the pain and heals the hurt.

CLEVER MAIL ROBBERIES.

Big Chances Taken by Men Who Tamper With Britain's Post Bags.

Some years ago an enterprising and elaborate mail robbery was attempted on the Great Western Railway, but was only partially successful, says P. T. O. The robbers had conceived the double masterstroke of robbing on the same night both the up and down mail, and in their efforts curiously overreached themselves. The up mail left Plymouth at 8:25 and Exeter at 9, arriving at Bridgewater at 10:30, there being no stop between Bridgewater and Bristol. At the latter place the mail bags were found to have been tampered with, being cut open and some of the contents removed. The down mail left London at 8:55, and when it arrived at Bridgewater it was found that the mail bags in that train also had been tampered with. By a curious coincidence, the same two clerks—postoffice clerks—travelled with the down mail from Bristol to Bridgewater as with the up mail from Bridgewater to Bristol, and therefore knew of the other robbery. It happened that a director was travelling in the former, and when the two robberies were reported to him he concluded that the robbers were still on the train, and at once ordered the doors of all carriages to be fastened and nobody allowed to depart. This being done, a system of searching and overhauling of passengers was commenced, when, sure enough, the robbers, two in number, were found in a first-class carriage.

Another such robbery of a remarkable character was that of the mail which left Cannon street station on the night of April 8, 1886. The bag containing the registered letters, which included a package of 100-rouble notes, was placed inside another bag, which held ordinary letters and packages. The van had doors each side, was divided in the middle, being secured outside by a hasp and pin, and on the inside by a bolt. It was also lighted by two lamps, but was not in charge of anybody. There was no stop between London and Dover, and after a delay of but a minute at the latter place the bags were put on trolleys and run alongside the mailboat Louise Marie. The boat arrived at Ostend at 3 in the morning of April 9, the mails were transferred to a postoffice van, being sealed with leaden seals both by the custom house and railway officials. At Cologne the bags were transferred to another post van, and so, via Hanover and Elberfeld, Berlin was eventually reached. Then a surprising thing was discovered. The bag containing the registered letters had been tampered with! A slit had clearly been made in the bag and sewn up again.

This daring robbery had a curious sequel. Shortly afterward a man presented some of the rouble notes which had been stolen to the firm in London who had posted them! When he was questioned as to how he became possessed of them he made evasive replies, so he was taken into custody. He was subsequently put upon his trial, charged with being in possession of stolen property. The trial was interesting from several points of view. The defense, for instance, questioned the jurisdiction of the court, maintaining that the robbery was committed on the high seas, but the prosecution demonstrated to the satisfaction of the court that the robbery was undoubtedly committed near Chislehurst. After a lengthy trial the prisoner was found guilty and sentenced to eight years' penal servitude.

This soap is especially made with the good trial for the materials and it will be used long because it is very hard. If you once use it, it has the peculiarity of imparting its desirable Violet and at least for the five days, and be used to some clothing, gloves, towel, handkerchief, summer-garment, and bed. Also, if you always used, it has a great economic, effective point, not to be used perfumes, artificial musks, waters, etc. It's style is no adornment and the materials are made with great attention, therefore it is far superior than foreign made and its price is very lower.

Snow and Rain

The first man to whom it ever occurred to find out how much rain was represented by a given fall of snow was Alexander Brice of Kirknewton, who in March, 1765, made a simple experiment with the contents of a stone jug driven face downward into over six inches of snow. What he learned was that a greater or less degree of cold, or of wind, when the snow falls, and its "lying a longer or shorter time on the ground," will occasion a difference in the weight and in the quantity of water produced; "but if," he added, "I may trust to the above trials, which I endeavor to perform with care, snow, newly fallen, with a moderate gale of wind, freezing cold will produce a quantity of water equal to one-tenth part of its bulk." So that a fall of snow of 10 inches represents a rainfall of one inch.—London Chronicle.

TUESDAY'S CONVENTION.

Men will be selected in the various districts of the county today to represent the Democratic party in the convention to be held in Salisbury next Tuesday. Upon the shoulders of these men will rest the burden of making out a ticket for the party to support in the election this fall. How will these gentlemen live up to the responsibility of the duties of their position? It will be well for all to remember that the Republican party has become more and more aggressive each year, and has little by little reduced the Democratic majority in this county to such a figure that the fight this fall bids fair to be any one's. Under the conditions as they exist today, the successful party in this fall's election will depend upon the fulfillment of Party Principles and the personnel of the tickets nominated.

Let the Democratic party put men on the ticket who for any reason whatsoever cannot receive the full support of their party, and the Republicans exercise good judgment in the men they select, and the victory will be with the Republican party. That the leaders of the Democratic party made a big blunder when they refused to allow the people the right to decide who their standard-bearers should be this fall, is generally recognized. The only way now for the party to, in a certain sense, remedy this mistake is for the delegates to the County Convention to exercise good judgment in selecting the men whom they will ask the rank and file to support. In selecting men, care should be exercised in getting the men that the masses want. Sometimes politicians get together and support a man, and it would seem to one who has not taken the time and trouble to find out the sentiment among the people, that there is a real demand on the part of the people for the nomination of some whose only strength lies in the pull he has among those who are in the habit of supporting a man for their own selfish reasons—either for past favors or the hope of future support from his hands.

It must be borne in mind that the politicians' man is not always the people's man; the contrary may almost be said to be the general rule, for the average politician is only looking forward as to how a certain man's nomination will fall in with his own ambitions. Selfishness seldom brings forth the best men.

The desires of the people are seldom considered unless it appears that their wishes must be represented—if the ticket is to get their support—in other words the wishes of the people are never taken into account until the politicians fear the effect of their resentment. There has been a time in Wicomico county when the politicians felt they could afford to ignore the people in the making out of their ticket—when the name "democrat" would elect anyone provided he was nominated on the democratic ticket. This time has passed.

The people have been "shooed" and "shooed" back in the party ranks so many times in the past by the cry of "Negro Domination" that it has now lost its old time effect, and like the oft repeated "bugaboo" of our childhood days fails to terrify as of old. Sentiment alone keeps the issue alive, for the thinking people of this County know that here at least there is no danger of negro domination.

Independent thought is growing all the time and in local issues it is becoming more and more recognized that the principle actuating the conscientious voter should be good government and that alone. The people have further learned this lesson from the attitude assumed by our leaders themselves. Do those in charge of our party affairs think that it has been overlooked by the masses of the people that in elections in which they themselves have not been directly interested the fight has been carried on in such a lukewarm manner that success several times has failed to light on the democratic flag? If party fealty is ever to be appealed to it is in our National elections, and yet these have several times been allowed to go by default, and on one occasion at least the regularly nominated ticket for Congress was openly opposed by those who claim the right to leadership.

The members of the convention when they meet here on Tuesday should carefully weigh the situation, and should remember if they size it up wrong the result will be disastrous for the party they represent. Before coming here they should talk with their friends and neighbors and find out how they think.

The sentiment of the party can not be ascertained by coming to Salisbury and getting the personal opinion of a few who make the business of politics a profession, they should find out the sentiment of the people at home, and having found it out stick to it, regardless of the arguments of those who will attempt to mould them into willing tools in the interest of some favored friend of their own selection. Promises given on the courthouse green for future favors should be received in about as much faith as they are given—for they are given by professional politicians to get support with no intention of being kept.

The delegate should not come to the convention in the interest of any one man or in the interest of any set of men, and if after the convention it is apparent that the convention has been manipulated in the interest of any man or any set of men, who seem to think they have the God given right to all the offices in the county, then too late will it be realized that a mistake has been made. The ticket should not be loaded down with old, dead, and decayed timber. Every place on the ticket should be carefully considered, as one weak point will endanger all the nominees. Let men be nominated who are honest, capable and who can win.

The delegates should be the tools of no man, who will boast that all he has to do is to crook his little finger and the delegates will grovel like dogs at his feet. No sentiments should be represented but those of the people. No man should allow himself, to be coerced into voting for a man he does not think is the strongest and best man for the place. The eyes of the voters are turned upon the convention and the leaders as never before, and they are closely watching to see whether they will measure up to the requirements of the party or not.

You can not make sweet butter in a foul, unclean churn. The stomach serves a churn in which to agitate, work up and disintegrate our food as it is being digested. If it be weak, sluggish and feel the result will be torpid, sluggish liver and bad impure blood.

The ingredients of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery are just such as best serve to correct and cure all such derangements. It is made up without a drop of alcohol in its composition; chemically pure, triple-refined glycerine being used instead of the commonly employed alcohol. Now this glycerine is of itself a valuable medicine, instead of a deleterious agent like alcohol, especially in the cure of weak stomach, dyspepsia and the various forms of indigestion.

Prof. Finley Ellingwood, M. D. of Bennett Medical College, says of it: "In dyspepsia it serves an excellent purpose. * * * It is one of the best manufactured products of the present time in its action upon enfeebled disordered stomachs."

—The members of Zion M. E. Church, Fruitland charge will hold a picnic in the grove adjoining the church Wednesday, July 31. Basket supper will be served. Everybody invited to come and have a good time at Old Zion.

ANOTHER AMENDMENT

Proposed By Hon. Joshua Miles. One To Satisfy Democratic Voters.

While the idea of another amendment following so close upon the overwhelming defeat of the Poe plan will probably cause something of a commotion, the arguments advanced by Mr. Miles and others who favor the plan are earnest. In the first place, they want an amendment that will solidify the Democratic party instead of splitting it in the unfortunate manner that was seen before. It is pointed out that while a large element of the party violently opposed the Poe amendment because of its form, nearly all the Democrats who did so committed themselves thoroughly to the idea of negro disfranchisement.

Objection Was To Form.

The most bitter of the opponents of the Poe amendment opposed it, not because it would deprive the negro voting, but because they held that its form endangered the suffrage of the white man as well. There was not a single one of the leading Democrats who fought the amendment who would not publicly declare that he would have supported a less drastic and more acceptable form of amendment. Governor Warfield, Attorney General Bryan, Mr. William L. Marbury, Mr. Leigh Bonal, Senators Rayner and Whyte are all in favor of restricting the right of the negro to vote if it can be done legally and without disfranchising white men or placing the State in the hands of a machine.

Mr. Miles asserts that the negro issue is an exceedingly live one on the Eastern Shore and in Southern Maryland, notwithstanding the defeat of the amendment. He points out that more counties in that section were carried than by any candidate for Governor. The people there still look to the Democratic party for relief from the political conditions which the negro has brought about, said Mr. Miles, and the gubernatorial candidate who would receive the most votes in the counties of that section would be the one most in sympathy with their ideas on the question of negro suffrage.

If Mr. Marbury Drew It.

Mr. Miles' suggestion live in that as the amendment campaign of two years ago showed, in his opinion, that the Democratic party can be united on the proposition of eliminating the negro from politics and was divided merely on the form of the proposed elimination, an amendment be drawn up dealing with the subject by some of those who took a leading part in opposing the Poe plan. He thinks that an amendment drawn, for instance, by Mr. William L. Marbury would be of such a kind as to command the support of Governor Warfield, Mr. Bryan, Mr. Bonal and, in fact, the entire element that fought the amendment before.

"The leaders of that element," said Mr. Miles, "are on record as favoring the elimination of the negro from politics and they objected only to the method. I am in favor of not quarreling about methods. I would like to see an amendment drawn by such a man as Mr. Marbury along the lines of either the Bryan or the Worthington amendment that would suit the men who fought us before."

Declares It Would Win.

"Then let the measure be incorporated in our State platform and we can go before the people of this State with an issue that would win. We would have with us all the men who stand against us two years ago, in addition, we would have something to talk about on the stump. Our people in Southern Maryland and on the Eastern Shore would flock to the support of the ticket with enthusiasm and we would get a better showing of white Republican votes."

"To suggest another amendment so soon after the defeat of the first one may strike some persons as being too bold, but in politics it is the bold plan that wins, provided it is a righteous one. Any amendment that will eliminate the negro or even half eliminate him from politics will be acceptable to the regular party people in a large section of the State. If therefore, an amendment can be prepared that will receive the support of the independents and others who kicked over the traces in the last fight, I think it is a measure originated by some representative man who was against us then. I believe that the party can be harmonized and united behind such a measure if properly drawn."

WOMEN WHO CHARM

Health is the First Essential Toward Making a Woman Attractive.

MISS HULDA KUGLER

MISS ELIZABETH WYNN

There is a beauty and attractiveness in health which is far greater than mere regularity of feature.

A sickly, irritable, and complaining woman always carries a cloud of depression with her; she is not only unhappy herself but is a damper to all joy and happiness when with her family and friends.

It is the bright, healthy, vivacious woman who always charms and carries sunshine wherever she goes. If a woman finds that her energies are flagging and that everything tires her; if her feminine system fails to perform its allotted duties, there is nervousness, sleeplessness, faintness, headache, dizziness, indigestion, constipation, and irregularities, causing constant misery and melancholia, she should remember that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound made from native roots and herbs will dispel all these troubles. By correcting the cause of the trouble it cures where other treatment may have failed.

Miss Elizabeth Wynn, of No. 205 8th Avenue, New York City, writes:

Dear Mrs. Pinkham—For months I suffered with dreadful headaches, pain in the back and severe hemorrhages. I was weak and out of sorts all the time. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound helped me when all other medicine had failed. It seemed to be just what I needed and quickly restored my health.

Miss Hulda Kugler, of No. 25, West 16th Street, New York City, writes:

Dear Mrs. Pinkham—For months I was ill with an internal trouble. I suffered terrible agony, was nervous, irritable, and sick all the time. I took different medicines without benefit. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound was recommended and within six months I was completely restored to health and I want to recommend it to every suffering woman.

Women who are troubled with painful or irregular functions, backache, bloating (or flatulence), displacements, inflammation or ulceration, that bearing-down feeling, dizziness, indigestion, or nervous prostration may be restored to perfect health and strength by taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Mrs. Pinkham's Invitation to Women.

Women suffering from any form of female weakness are invited to promptly communicate with Mrs. Pinkham, at Lynn, Mass. From the symptoms given, the trouble may be located and the quickest and surest way of recovery advised. Out of her vast volume of experience in treating female ills Mrs. Pinkham probably has the very knowledge that will help your case. Her advice is free and always helpful.

Bryan's Candidacy Is Officially Announced by Campaign Manager.

A dispatch to the Philadelphia North American from Washington says that Willis J. Abbot, personal representative of William Jennings Bryan, Wednesday night made the official announcement that the Nebraska will be a candidate for the Democratic nomination for the Presidency next year. He came to Washington authorized by Mr. Bryan to make this announcement, and it is understood that he will remain in the East and assume charge of organizing the Bryan forces.

Mr. Abbot would not discuss Mr. Bryan's plans further than the positive announcement of his desire to secure the nomination. He said, however, that Bryan will make a statement soon, in which he will define his position on all issues expected to arise next year.

It is the plan of the Bryan managers to begin at once the reorganization of clubs that worked for his election.

She has been leaking badly and had to keep two steam pumps going all the time to keep her afloat.

Al Bayne spent several days in New York and Atlantic City last week.

The M. E. Sunday School gave an excursion to Ocean City on Wednesday of this week to the children, numbering about 200 including the parents and friends. The day was fine and all reported as having a good time.

Our town has been visited by a number of excursion parties this week. One of the most lively and attractive was from Seaford, Del., on Wednesday evening. It consisted of about twenty five ladies. They seemed to own the town for a while and captured everything in sight. From the amount of fun they had stored away, we supposed they were a part of the intended Ocean City excursion that got left. Well, we are glad they remembered our town as the next best thing. Send them along Seaford, we enjoy life too.

Spend Billion More in Viciousness Annually Than Our Wealth Increases.

"This country spends $6,000,000,000 annually on the criminal, pauper and vicious classes, and the annual increase of wealth is only $5,000,000,000. Does that not look as if the public were bankrupt? Is it not a question worthy of consideration and one to make thinking citizens stop and take notice?"

This statement, so startling in the way in which the proposition is put, was made by Dr. Charles J. Bushnell, now conducting a model playground at the national capital, a graduate of Heidelberg University and an authority on civic matters. Dr. Bushnell's figures are taken, he said in a lecture, from authoritative sources and represent years of careful study. Among his other sensational statements Dr. Bushnell said:

"Why, the $6,000,000,000 that this nation spends every year on its criminal cases equals the amount spent on all churches, public libraries, the Young Men's Christian Association, the Salvation Army, public hospitals, asylums for the insane and all benevolent institutions. Prostitution consumes more of the public's money than is paid our public school teachers—four times as much. The average factory hand earns $440 a year, while it is estimated that the average criminal costs the public at least $1,200 a year."

"Disease as a result of vicious habits is on the increase; suicides are increasing six times as fast as the population, and murders three times as fast; insanity is also increasing faster than the population. We are maiming and killing in accidents resulting from our industrial enterprises as many persons as were killed in an average year of the Civil war, the Philippine war and the Japanese-Russian war combined. And these deaths by accidents, due to our fast commercial spirits, are from two to nine times as numerous as similar deaths in Europe."

LIVE STOCK

SAVING THE HORSE.

Some Forethought Will Do Much to Prolong His Usefulness.

Many things may be done, each little in itself, which in the aggregate amount to a great deal in prolonging the life and usefulness of the horse, be he farm horse or driver.

To begin with, most people are entirely too careless about working him and then stopping out in the wind or even rain when he is tired and wet with sweat. Anything but the most rugged constitution must quickly succumb to this kind of treatment, and none will stand it long. In cold weather one should always try to stable the sweaty horse or keep him moving about until fairly well cooled off, to avoid taking cold and stiffening of the joints.

The cheap side saddle is a regular horse eater and when it must be used, blankets and pads, sufficient to prevent injury to the back and withers invariably should be used. With saddles or harness, have everything snug fitting and comfortable, that chafing and kindred troubles may be avoided.

Long continued hard pulling will wind a horse and thoroughly wear him out, when two or three little rests of three to five minutes would go a long way in helping to regain strength, and bring new vitality to play in the task.

Where unusually heavy work is to be done, a little forethought often will make it much easier on the team, as for instance, where a few new logs have to be hauled, do not put on the heaviest one the first load, but begin with lighter ones and gradually accustom them to the strain. Worked in this way, they will warm up to business and after a trip or two gain dexterity and confidence in themselves so that really heavy loads may be taken with an ease really surprising, and which probably would have thoroughly discouraged them at the beginning. For a horse is much like a human being in that he can do much greater things when encouraged by the confidence of success.

Cattle and Grass.

Careful observation and experience have shown that pasture grass as a rule has never been properly estimated. Blue grass is about as near a perfectly balanced food as any that can be given. It is likely that in the future more land will be put to grass by cattle growers. One who has observed its value says that summer feeding of grain with grass to animals of proper age is coming into popular favor, and our best farmers are beginning to appreciate the grass lands as never before. Year-old cattle can be fattened more quickly than yearlings, yearlings more quickly than calves. This indicates that there is more need of holding cattle in the dry lot than of feeding yearlings under the same condition, because the latter will not bear so much forcing to finish. And there is a greater difference between yearlings and calves. Grass is one of nature's own foods, and every year worth better prices. The fattening of calves and yearlings is increasing each year. This practice should be encouraged, and is one to be taken up guarded by inexperienced feeders.

Calves and yearlings will make as large gains on grass alone in summer as on roughage and grain in winter. In feeding calves between eight and fourteen months of age, with and without grain, it has been found that the extra gain in fat and labor will rarely pay the extra cost of feed and labor. Where stock is fed grain with grass, darkened sheds should be provided during fly time. Such feed should be given as will keep individuals gaining steadily.

New Horse Parasite.

Several outbreaks of a trouble in horses in different parts of the West has been caused by parasites described as the Palisade worm, Strongylus armatus. From the fact that the trouble does not always manifest itself in the same way it frequently puzzles veterinarians. This worm may be found in any part of the body. Its natural habitat, however, when full grown is in the intestinal canal, usually the large bowel. In its immature state it migrates into the blood vessels, sometimes causing rupture of a large vessel or an obstruction of the flow of blood and in this way has lodged in the arteries of the brain, causing the animal to show brain trouble. Again it has obstructed an artery leading to the intestines causing some of the most serious cases of colic, impaction, paralysis of the bowels and frequently death.

VEGETATION AND SUNLIGHT.

Experiments Conducted Comparing Action of Chemicals and Sun.

Experiments are being actively pursued on both sides of the Atlantic to see whether it is not possible to discover some light which would have the same effect on vegetation as has the sun. Science is familiar with the composition of the solar rays to a large extent and it is not regarded as unreasonable to seek for an artificial substitute. As a matter of fact, the rays from an acetylene lamp have been found to approximate very closely to sunlight. So much is this so that fairly well-developed plants have been produced which have never known the daylight, the whole course of their existence having been spent under the influence of acetylene light.

Capacity of Great Dams.

At McCall Ferry, Pa., forty miles from Baltimore and sixty miles from Philadelphia, there is in course of construction one of the greatest dams in the country, intended to develop from the waters of the Susquehanna river electric power to the delivered capacity of from 75,000 to 100,000 horse power. When completed the electricity generated there will be supplied to Baltimore, Philadelphia, New York, Lancaster, Harrisburg, York and a number of other cities.

Painting on Metal.

Carl Lunde, a Norwegian artist, has made himself famous by painting on metal, an art even the Japanese have failed in, great as they are as metal workers. Lunde decorates ordinary tin with characteristic designs in colors and illuminates an ordinary tray or plate that would otherwise be cheaply japanned. The method is his secret and only one of many clevernesses he employs to render utility artistic and decorative.

"One by One" Working Band.

The movement carried on by the "One by One" Working Band, started by Thomas Higgin in England in 1878, has spread into the colonies, the European countries and even to Russia and Japan, and now numbers nearly 10,000 members. More than 20,000 cases of conversion have been reported in the "praise notes" since the beginning. It is perfectly adapted to any place or person.

Popularity of Dahlias.

The dahlia that fine and large flower which adorns our autumn gardens, is reconquering the place which has been usurped for some years by its Japanese sister, the chrysanthemum. The gardeners have given to it what it formerly lacked, variety, and its shades now rival those of the more popular flower.

Czar's Private Railroad.

Between St. Petersburg and Tsarskoe Selo there is a special line, with a private station at each end, for the use of the Imperial family. Every yard of it is constantly guarded, and the Czar himself often drives the locomotive—of course, under the superintendence of the driver proper.

Remarkable Haven of Refuge.

German papers are commenting on the sagacity of a swallow which was being pursued by a hawk, and flew through the window of a law court. Flying about the court, it at last rested on the head of a figure of justice, and there it remained until the hawk went away.

Exporting Honey Vinegar.

One of the latest food products coming from Holland, that land of agricultural industry, is honey vinegar, which is now manufactured there on a commercial scale. The particular characteristics of vinegar made from honey are its agreeable aroma and pleasant taste.

Length of Herring's Life.

A herring lives the shortest time of any fish when taken out of water: carp and eels the greatest length of time.

South Africa's Industry.

South Africa has a new and profitable industry—the manufacture of hemp from olive and banana fibers. It realizes from $100 to $147 a ton in London.

Telling Her Age.

Waiting Room in Sweden.
