

Can an Honest Man Die Unnoticed?

No!—except under two conditions: First, that he is broken down in health and therefore unenergetic; second, that he cannot spare a few cents a week for police. An honest man's duty to his family compels him to provide for them (as well as he can) not only while he lives, but while they live. He bargains his word for it—and he follows up his promise by the bond of a good life insurance company. Thus he assures their protection—by himself while living; by his insurance when he is gone. The "word" is good and the "bond" is good; but the word and the bond together are better."

"A Little Honey-cake."

A small girl—a very small one—who did not shine particularly in the way of goodness, was attended by a nurse—woman who was simple, honest, religious girl, always mindful of her duty; and this duty, she felt quite sure, pointed to the reforming of the little heathen committed to her charge.

On Sunday afternoons she often took Miss Nellie to a meeting that was held in the basement of some place of worship, and the surroundings were very plain and doleful, but the preacher was an earnest man, and, to Hannah's great delight, her young lady listened to him with much attention. The words, "Now my dear friend, I have a great deal to tell you," were frequently repeated, and the young woman followed him incident by way of illustration. Nellie always looked so expectant at this announcement, and she was so much interested in what he said, that she followed, that Hannah's heart beat so fast for joy to find that the troublesome child was so seriously impressed. Her eyes filled with tears, and she failed to notice the expression of attention that spread itself over the small maiden's face at each anecdote.

Finally the pent-up feelings came to the surface, and one afternoon, as they were sitting on the porch, she suddenly exclaimed, "That man's an awful story teller, and I shan't go there any more!"

"Tut-tut!" said the horrified Hannah. "That's a very wicked, Miss Nellie. What a naughty girl!"

"'Cause he's. He's been saying ever so many times, 'Now, my dears, I'll give you a little naughty-god; and he never gave anybody one! I don't believe he's got any.'—Hogues's Young People —The rule now is, with some, that when they fall to carry their district, they seek a nomination from the opposite party. The old fashion rule was bad enough but what shall be said of the new rule.

—Is it any wonder that people call politics a "dirty pool" when men will use means both fair and foul to secure a nomination and afterward, when defeated, accept a nomination from a party they have spent all their lives in denouncing and opposing and which they still denounce and oppose.

—As to our platform, that will be given to the people in proper time" [Times Paper September 18, 1891].

Really that is very kind in the Boss committee of Plunketts that is about equivalent to saying to the people, "you must keep quiet." In proper time you will get the platform. It is no part of your business to be demanding our platform. That's one of our little secrets that's to be divulged in "proper time," that is when we please. This old fog notion that platforms ought to be adopted by the people in "mass-meeting to reduce grievances," or in delegated conventions from the people, is no part of our political methods.

If you keep your eyes open you can see shadows of our platform fitting around after twilight. If you keep your ears open you can hear it in whispered rumors and insinuations affecting men's character who are not with us. The broadest plank in our platform is office, but we have it reneered with Ross Rule, so that you can't see the real thing.

Our platform will read about like this when formulated.

Resolved, that we are practical politicians and declare that the chief end of man is to hold office; that the chief duty of a citizen is to seek office and secure it by any means in his power and that the cohesive force of party is office and that government is organized for the election and distribution of office.

Resolved, that we are opposed to Ross Rule, that we are opposed to Ross Rule and we will do anything to break the Ross Rule.

Resolved, that we are opposed to Ross Rule, that we are opposed to Ross Rule and we will do anything to break the Ross Rule.

Resolved, that we are opposed to Ross Rule, that we are opposed to Ross Rule and we will do anything to break the Ross Rule.

THAT MANIFESTO.

Well, some one among the opponents of the democratic party has issued the republican manifesto. This is it.

"Running Wisconsin county on business principles. That our laws must be enforced. That there shall be a yearly showing of the receipts and disbursements of all public money. That no one must be appointed to office. That no one office belongs to any one man. That principles and not cash shall control the primaries. That judges and ballot clerks shall be appointed for the next election. That the purchase of votes by officers sworn to preserve the law, must stop. That the voters of Wisconsin county belong to no one man to be bartered and sold like so many sheep. That honesty and morality shall be important factors in our self government."

This is the manifesto. It's all right, but who issued it? Certainly not the people, for we have heard of no meeting to "redress grievances," since the time it was nominated. We have no evidence that it is the pronouncement of the candidates. It seems to be the production of the editor of the campaign sheet.

We endorse these principles too, every one of them, so there seems to be no reason on that point. But we go a little further; we endorse the platform of the State convention that nominated Hon. Frank Brown, favoring the legalizing of primaries and making the present election law general. The democracy of this county wants to know if you, the fusion candidates, endorse that platform. If you do, how are you going to vote a republican ticket? If you do, how do you think you are entitled to know whether or not your nominees for members of the next legislature are going to vote for democratic United States Senators. We don't say that you are democrats, or are not democrats, but we ask you if you have any information on this point as to your candidates. This is the real issue in this campaign and the opponents of the democratic party will know it. They are using every effort to side track politics by some petty personalities, which can have no bearing upon the question and which are not in any way issues in this campaign. Some of these personalities are indulged in by persons that could be overthrown with mortification by the publication of facts that would be stated in a half dozen lines. But as neither the authors of these personalities nor the parties against whom they are directed are issues in the campaign, we can't see that the reader would be enlightened in making the selection of a ticket to vote on the Third of November if we should indulge in them. We therefore don't feel called upon to deal in such stuff. There are not the real issues before the people of this county as we understand them. The success of the democratic party, and the election of two United States Senators are the real issues in this campaign.

THAT MANIFESTO.

Well, some one among the opponents of the democratic party has issued the republican manifesto. This is it.

"Running Wisconsin county on business principles. That our laws must be enforced. That there shall be a yearly showing of the receipts and disbursements of all public money. That no one must be appointed to office. That no one office belongs to any one man. That principles and not cash shall control the primaries. That judges and ballot clerks shall be appointed for the next election. That the purchase of votes by officers sworn to preserve the law, must stop. That the voters of Wisconsin county belong to no one man to be bartered and sold like so many sheep. That honesty and morality shall be important factors in our self government."

This is the manifesto. It's all right, but who issued it? Certainly not the people, for we have heard of no meeting to "redress grievances," since the time it was nominated. We have no evidence that it is the pronouncement of the candidates. It seems to be the production of the editor of the campaign sheet.

We endorse these principles too, every one of them, so there seems to be no reason on that point. But we go a little further; we endorse the platform of the State convention that nominated Hon. Frank Brown, favoring the legalizing of primaries and making the present election law general. The democracy of this county wants
