No More Night Pass Censorship

Princess Anne has no further claim on being colonial. It has passed from the good old days, and has become strictly modern. More than that, it is ahead of the times, for its ideas along some lines are more modern than those of Atlantic City and other places where the ladies have been prohibited from adopting the new style of wearing no hose.

It actually looks as if a good looking girl might appear at the Washington Hotel with absolutely bare ankles and "get away with it." Just a few years ago the whole town would have been shocked. But after that time there came a period of wide skirts and long strides forward were made possible.

The statement is backed up by a scribe who asked Mr. J. D. Wallop last week: "What would happen if a lady among your guests should appear without hose?" He replied: "Why, we wouldn't do anything about it. We'd be glad to see her." He hesitated a moment before he finished, "We'd be glad to see that she was keeping cool." It was something of a relief to the inquirer to have that sentence ended.

Dog Law Is State Wide

Many people seem to have the idea that this law which requires dogs to be licensed will not be enforced, but this is not true. The law is a State-wide affair, over which the County Commissioners and the County Treasurer have nothing to do except to see that the law is enforced and all dog owners secure license tags for their pets. The Maryland Sheep Growers' Association has sent a letter to all the Boards of County Commissioners over the State urging them to push the proposition, and this has also made the magistrates in all sections extremely active.

Persons who have not as yet secured a license for their dogs had better do so at once, for they will find it cheaper in the long run, especially if they are found harboring unlicensed dogs and are heavily fined.

Red Cross Want Empty Cigar Boxes

Empty cigar boxes are needed by the soldiers of General Hospital No. 43 at Hampton, Va., for use in various forms of reconstruction work. Captain Van Riper, vocational officer at this, the leading "shellback" institution in the East, has requested the American Red Cross to assist him in obtaining a supply of these boxes from those who are generously inclined.

Shipments can be made to Mr. A. S. Emig, Department of Military Relief, Potomac Division, American Red Cross, 1719 H Street, N. W., Washington, D. C., or to Capt. Van Riper, vocational officer, General Hospital No. 43, Hampton, Va.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles A. Lane and daughter, Misses Jane and Helen, of Baltimore, Md., are visiting at the home of Mr. Frank Lane, on Backford road.

OUTBREAK OF HOG CHOLERA

Farmers Lost Hog Last Week From This Disease

There has been several cases of hog cholera in various parts of the county during the past few weeks and farmers are urged to be on the watch for any cholera in their communities. Cases of hog cholera have been investigated by Dr. E. J. McLoughlin, a government veterinarian, and County Agent C. Z. Keller in the following localities: Mt. Vernon, Westover, Marion, Crisfield and Smith's Island. Hogs have died in each of these places from cholera and the outbreak seems to have spread along the water courses in the county. Should cholera make its appearance in your neighborhood keep in mind the following:

1—Quarantine your farm, allowing no visitors to see your sick hogs. Treat this disease as any other contagious disease and use all means to prevent your neighbors obtaining cholera from your farm, or if it is in your neighborhood use all means to prevent this disease reaching your herd.

2—Have your hogs inoculated at once, at the first sign of sickness in your community or in your herd. Do not delay, many hogs can be saved if treated in time. There are men in each community who will inoculate the hogs.

3—Hogs dying from cholera must be buried or burned. It is against the law not to properly dispose of the bodies of hogs dying from cholera. Hog pens, yards and runs having cholera hogs should be thoroughly disinfected.

4—The county agent should be advised at once of any cases of sick hogs so that proper measures can be taken to prevent the spread of this disease. The services of a government veterinarian can be obtained to assist in making a diagnosis and post mortem examination of hogs having cholera.

Farmers by co-operating and keeping in mind these words "quarantine," "sanitation" and "inoculation" will assist in preventing an outbreak of hog cholera which is a preventable disease. Farmers desiring the names of the community vaccinators and information on the control of hog cholera should write County Agent C. Z. Keller.

WILSON ON HIGH LIVING COSTS

Existing Laws Inadequate And High Prices Not Justified

Addressing Congress last Friday and proposing remedies to check the high cost of living, President Wilson declared that existing laws were inadequate and that high prices were not justified by shortage of supply, present or prospective, but were created in many cases "artificially and deliberately" by "vicious practices."

The President recommended that the food control act be extended to peacetime operation and that Congress exclude from interstate as well as interstate shipments, goods which did not comply with its provisions.

The President also recommended that the food law be provided with a substantial penalty for profiteering and that a cold-storage law be enacted modeled after the law in New Jersey by which a time limit is placed on cold storage. He also recommended that all goods released from cold storage be marked with the price prevailing when they went into storage.

Demand for increases of wages, accompanying the rising costs of living, the President said, were justified "if there be no other means of enabling men to live."

Baltimore To Honor Navy Men

Maryland will welcome her sons who have returned from the seven seas at Baltimore on September 12th. The movement to combine Defender's Day and Navy Day, which has had the support of many prominent men in the state, was assured success last Thursday, when Commander F. V. H. Weems notified Mayor Wm. F. Broening that he would be able to secure the presence of a division of submarines.

Commander Weems believes he will be able to secure furloughs for all Maryland men still in the service who are located within reasonable distance so they may participate in the pageant.

Mass Convention Of Democrats

The Democratic State Central Committee has issued a call for a Mass Convention to be held in the Auditorium, Princess Anne, on Thursday, Aug. 14th, at which time the committee appointed to suggest nominations on the Democratic local ticket, will make its report. The committee will hold a preliminary meeting, to-day (Tuesday) for the purpose of agreeing upon the recommendation of a list of candidates.

From reports received from various sections, Wisconsin's pack of tomatoes will not be more than 50 to 60 per cent. of a normal crop. There is a wonderful lack of young tomatoes on the vines, the heavy rains of July washing away the blossoms. It is believed that several canneries will not operate this season.

FRENCH WAR BRIDE AT PINE KNOB

Mme. Rousseau Who Married M. Black First Arrival In Somerset

Mme. Rousseau, 22 years of age, was born in Marseille, France, and at the age of 17 married Dr. Rousseau, a very prominent and well known surgeon there. He was killed by the Germans in the recent war in 1916. M. Black is a chief navigator, having been in the Navy eleven months. Mme. Rousseau consented to become Mme. Black and come to America.

She went to the priest at Marseille and would have to wait a month for the papers, so the priest sent them to Brest, France, where he told them they would not have to wait. On arrival at Brest it was learned they would have to wait a week and the ship, the "Lunkenbach," sailed in three days. M. Black then persuaded his sweetheart to leave all her pretty things behind and don boy's clothes, telling her that after they were at sea 24 hours he would make her presence known and the Captain would marry them. This he did, but the Captain refused, claiming he was a newly commissioned officer and did not understand the Navy rules well enough to do so. He was compelled to courtmartial M. Black, but could not put him in the "brig" as there was no one else on board to navigate the boat; but the Captain gave the little sweetheart all the comforts of the boat, as she was quite ill. On reaching New York they sent the girl to Ellis Island and the man to jail, where they were compelled to remain for two weeks while the character of the girl was being investigated.

After two weeks reports were received from France that the girl's character was above reproach and that she was of a good family. The couple were then taken to the City Hall in New York, where they were married. M. Black then took his wife to a priest, who performed a religious ceremony, Mme. Black being of Catholic faith. M. Black was then sent to Portsmouth, stripped of his rank and salary and reduced to a common sailor.

While in Portsmouth the newly-weds made the acquaintance of Mr. Glenn W. Price, who persuaded his mother, Mrs. Florence D. Price, to let the girl come to "Pine Knob," near Princess Anne, to recuperate. M. Black is well thought of in the Navy and at the expiration of his time has been offered a lucrative position with the Merchant Marine.

Food Jumps 83% In Six Years

Families in twenty-five cities paid 16 per cent. more in June for twenty-two standard articles of food than the average in 1918, according to figures made public by the Department of Labor last week.

The average cost of the same foods a family in 1918 was 67 per cent. more than in 1913, the increase in June, 1919, over the 1913 average being 83 per cent.

The articles upon which the costs were based weighted according to quantity used, were: Sirloin steak, round steak, rib roast, chuck roast, plate boiling beef, pork chops, bacon, ham, hens, fresh milk, butter, cheese, lard, bread, flour, cornmeal, rice, potatoes, sugar, tea and coffee.

WAR RECORDS OF MARYLANDERS

Governor Designates Aug. 16th As "Recording Day"

The State of Maryland, through the Historical Division of the Maryland Council of Defense, is undertaking to have written up the "War Service Record of every Marylander." Forms prepared for this purpose have been distributed throughout the state. Announcement is made in the Baltimore newspapers and the newspapers in each county of the places where the forms are available.

In Baltimore city the forms will be placed in the Enoch Pratt branch libraries, and in the office of the Mayor's Committee of Welcome to Homecoming Troops in the City Hall, as well as in the office of the Historical Division at 201 West Monument street.

Governor Harrington, by proclamation, (which will be found in our advertising columns) has named Saturday, August 16th, as "Recording Day" to start the "drive." The campaign to secure the records will continue until completed, but it is hoped to secure as many as possible on this opening day. The purpose is to have written up the "War Service Record" of every Marylander who was in the military or naval service of the United States or of the Allies in the great war, whether before or after the entrance of the United States into the war, and whether in overseas service or in this country.

The governor asks, therefore, every Maryland soldier, sailor and marine, or nurse, to attend on August 16th, and to fill out a "War Service Record." If the soldier or sailor lost his life in the service, or if he has not returned to the state, a member of the family is requested to fill out the record. It is desired to include those whose homes were formerly in Maryland, although they may later have lived elsewhere.

The person appearing to fill out a record should bring along discharge and other papers that may be of assistance in supplying exact information as to dates, etc., in relation to the military service. A photograph (preferably in uniform) of every man is desired along with the record, and copies of citations and clippings, letters or diaries of special interest. These records will be preserved in the State War History Collection.

The Historical Division of the Council of Defense is located in the building of the Maryland Historical Society at 201 West Monument street. The Maryland Historical Society has taken an active interest in the undertaking and has given to the Historical Division the free use of rooms in its fine new home. George L. Radcliffe, vice-president of the Fidelity and Deposit Company, is chairman of the historical division and Earl Singewald executive secretary. The advisory committee of the historical division includes many prominent men and women of the city and state.

Col. Woodcock For Comptroller

Lieut-Colonel Amos W. W. Woodcock, of Salisbury, Monday of last week filed with the Secretary of State, at Annapolis, his papers as a candidate for the Republican nomination for Comptroller. There will be no opposition to him, the ticket of Harry W. Nice for Governor, Alexander Armstrong for Attorney-General, and Col. Woodcock for Comptroller being agreed upon some weeks ago.

Col. Woodcock thus enters the race with no opposition in his party at the primaries and with a united party behind him. In filing his papers, Colonel Woodcock gave out a statement in which he referred to the constitutional statement of the duties of the Comptroller and added:

"If elected I will carry out, with the aid of the best expert advice, the spirit of the above provision and of all other laws pertaining to the office."

"I will issue in addition to the yearly report required by law, at least once each month a simple and clear statement so that every child may know and understand the condition of the State's finances. Public knowledge is the one safeguard against public waste. With greater public knowledge and interest it will be easily possible to lessen the intolerable burden of present taxes without curtailing the legitimate activities of the State."

"I will endeavor to make the administration of the office as efficient as that of the best business corporation in the land."

Census Supervisors Appointed

The Secretary of Commerce, upon the recommendation of the Director of the Census, has made the appointments of supervisors of census for the State of Maryland for the year 1920. The appointment for the First District is Francis G. Wrightson, Easton, Talbot county.

The First District is composed of nine counties as follows: Caroline, Cecil, Dorchester, Kent, Queen Anne, Somerset, Talbot, Wicomico and Worcester. The population in 1910 was 200,171.

AROUSED BY FOOD PROFITEERING

Gov. Harrington And Other Officials Will Try To Curb Situation

Governor Harrington and other public officials and people of the State generally are aroused to the "Food Profiteering" situation right here in Maryland, and a determined move to suppress existing conditions has been launched.

Rapid and aggressive have been the developments to employ every wheel of the state's legal machinery to bring to the bar of justice the men guilty of food profiteering, whether commission merchants, owners and managers, green grocers, hucksters or market stall lessees. The investigation will take wide range. Rent profiteers will be included in the net. The developments include: Appearance of State's Attorney Harry W. Nice before the Baltimore grand jury with an explanation of the scope the investigation should take. The jury expressed a willingness to co-operate. It will appoint a committee of five members, who, if necessary, will work overtime in conducting its probe in quest of evidence on which indictments will be framed.

In an interview, Mr. Nice declared that legal means will be found by which the investigation will be made. Attorney General Ritchie and his staff of assistants are exploring every nook and corner of the state's statutes and the common law with a view to finding legal steps for the inauguration and prosecution of the investigation.

Governor Harrington appointed Wm. H. Killian, of the conservation commission, chairman, and W. H. DeC. Wright, who was prominent in investigation of rent profiteering during the war period, two members of the committee of three, which will make the investigation on behalf of the state. A statement issued by Governor Harrington declares that he will back up the investigation as far as the law will allow.

STATE CENTRAL COMMITTEE MEET

Harmonious Gathering of Democrats In Baltimore Last Week

Democrats, big, little and indifferent, who gathered at the Hotel Remert, Baltimore, last Wednesday, to attend the meeting of their State Central Committee, were harmonious on one thing, that Major W. Brooke Lee, son of former United States Senator Blair Lee, of Montgomery county, should be their candidate for State Comptroller.

Major Lee consented to lay aside his disinclination to toss his hat into the political arena and to think it over. As the time limit within which certificates of nominations for state offices expired on Thursday, Major Lee gave his final answer that day to Dr. J. Hubert Wade, chairman of the State Central Committee, and consented to take the nomination for comptroller. The ticket as agreed upon is:

Governor, Albert C. Ritchie, of Baltimore, the incumbent attorney general. Comptroller of the Treasury, Major Brooke Lee, of Montgomery county.

Attorney General, Thomas J. Keating, of Queen Anne's county, incumbent insurance commissioner.

Clerk of the Court of Appeals, Caleb C. Magruder, of Prince George's county, the incumbent.

The meeting of the State Committee was brief. All resolutions were referred without debate to the following committee on resolutions, one from each of the congressional districts:

First—Harvey L. Cooper, of Caroline county.

Second—John T. Ford, Fifteenth Ward, Baltimore city.

Third—August Gerecht.

Fourth—Wm. T. O'Gorman.

Fifth—Arthur P. Gorman, Howard county.

Sixth—W. J. Grove, Frederick county.

Mr. Gorman, as chairman of the committee, reported back resolutions which were adopted for primary election and state convention dates, and expressing sorrow at deaths of Richard A. Johnson, of Howard county, and John E. George, of Queen Anne's county, both members of the committee.

The meeting of the committee attracted representative democrats from every county of the state and from all sections of the city and representatives of all factions. United States Senator John Walter Smith and Governor Harrington were the central figures in the gathering, which also included Albert Ritchie, Major Lee, C. C. Magruder, John J. Mahon, "Frank" Kelly, Col. Jacob W. Hook, Howard W. Jackson, Howard Bryant, Col. H. J. Waters and scores of others.

In the making of the campaign, which promises to be almost a house-to-house and farm-to-farm affair, the Democrats will not need to introduce any of their State candidates. It happens that each of them has a name that is almpst as Democratic as is the word Democratic. Their families have been mixed up in Democratic affairs in the state for many years.

Mr. Ritchie is the son of the late Judge Albert Ritchie, who, before he went on the bench, was one of the advisers of the Democratic leaders in Baltimore city a generation or two ago. He also is a nephew of the late Judge John Ritchie, who filled much the same capacity in Frederick county and other parts of Western Maryland. Major Lee's father, former Senator Blair Lee, is known to every Democrat in Maryland, of whatever factional affiliation. Mr. Keating, who is widely known throughout the Eastern Shore as a lawyer, trustee of estates and business man, is a son of the late Thomas J. Keating, once Comptroller of Maryland and for many years one of the powers in Democratic politics on the Shore. Mr. Magruder has been identified with Democratic politics in Southern Maryland for half a century.

Storm Caused Loss of $2,000,000

Four persons known to be dead, probably six seriously wounded, property and crop damage estimated at more than $2,000,000 and 200 families driven from their homes formed the toll of the electrical storm which swept northern Ohio late last Tuesday.

Three of the deaths occurred in Youngstown, where two persons were killed instantly by lightning and another electrocuted by coming into contact with a live wire. In Tiffin more than 200 homes in the Rock Creek Basin were flooded and abandoned.

Ashland county, with estimated damage of $1,000,000, suffered the greatest loss. Between 60 and 80 bridges and culverts were reported washed out and highways damaged. Scores of farmers lost livestock, wheat and oats in the fields, while corn was flattened out and other damage done to orchards and vineyards.

Even in jumping at conclusions some fellows never get out of the amateur class.

"We just mopped 'em up"

"Those boys didn't know what retreat meant. And, pep! Say, every mother's son charged as tho' he was the whole American Army. It was the proudest moment of my life."

More than 32,871,000 tins of Velvet Tobacco were sent to the boys in France—enough, if placed end to end, to reach 2340 miles or nearly from New York to Brest. How much it helped them, their friendly letters testify.

Velvet makes friends easily—because, like true friendship, it has been allowed to ripen naturally. For two years, Velvet ages in wooden hogsheads, and when it comes out it is just right—no kick, no bite, no harshness.

You and Velvet—begin that friendship now.

NEVADA AS "GOLDEN STATE"

From Reports, It Is Not at All Improbable She May Become Thus Known.

When they began to dig out silver by the ton from the Comstock group of mines, Nevada lost its original name of "the Sagebrush State," and became known to the whole world as the "Silver State."

But recent developments in the Divide district seem to indicate another change of name; for they do say that the gold is so thick just a little under the surface that the owners of the mines refuse to dig lest they be ruined by the excess profits tax. They just take out a shovel from time to time to pay living expenses, and sit tight over the hole where they took it out till they need a little more. Possibly, also, these mine owners are influenced by patriotism, as not wishing to disturb values by flooding the world with gold and thus adding to the economic confusion. California has hitherto taken pride in calling itself the Golden state, but even in Nevada they are getting ready to demand the belt and title and say they are going to get it.

And with all due allowance for new-born enthusiasm and for the picturesque way in which prosperous miners are wont to express themselves, if a tenth of what is claimed is true—and it may be—we may expect the people of Nevada to change from the most loyal of silverites to the most determined and irreconcilable gold bugs. Circumstances do alter cases. That they have found a lot of gold is certain.—Sioux Falls Press.

WHEN AVIATION WAS NEW

Benjamin Franklin Evidently Had Expectations of Its Value, Though Venturing No Predictions.

Somebody has been quite naturally reminded, by events in the air, of what Benjamin Franklin said to Condorcet about aeronautics 136 years ago, in Paris. The French capital was just then much interested in the balloon ascensions of the Montgolfier brothers, perhaps even more excited, on the smaller scale of the times, than modern cities over the actual crossing of the Atlantic, and whenever men came together the future possibilities of ballooning made an immediate topic of conversation. Condorcet, meeting Franklin, asked him if he thought an aeronaut would ever be able to steer his balloon. "The thing is in its infancy," said Franklin. "It is necessary to wait." "But what is the good of it?" demanded a doubting Thomas. "What useful purpose will it serve?" "Gentlemen," replied Franklin, "it is a child just born; let us wait to judge it until its education is completed." And even now the education is far from finished.

Was Big Railroad Project

The summer brings the semicentenary of the opening of the Mt. Washington railway, which, 50 years ago, distinguished the White mountain region of New England by making it the location for the first important mountain railroad in the country. Remarkable railroading to high altitudes has since been accomplished, but the climb of some 6,200 feet to the summit of the highest of the White mountains was then regarded almost as an achievement of the impossible. And it did, for that matter, immediately make Mt. Washington possible to many a tourist who would have spent his life at the bottom rather than try then to climb to the top on foot.

Tribute to Porridge.

A wonderful old man is Mr. James Nicol, who has just celebrated his one hundredth birthday in the Kentish village where he lives, and is still going strong. Mr. Nicol, who is a Scot, was born in Tullibody, Clackmannanshire, and joined the Seventy-fourth Highlanders during the reign of William IV, later taking part in suppressing the Indian mutiny. He can do the Highland fling even yet, he says, and claims that the recipe for long life is porridge when one is young. He did not know the taste of meat or tea till he was over seventeen. Mr. Nicol married his second wife when he was ninety-three.

Not Her Honey.

I was expecting a call on the telephone from my wife at eleven o'clock one morning. Exactly at that hour my bell jingled, and, taking down the receiver, I said: "Hello!"

The response came: "Is that you, White?"

"This is your honey, sweetheart," was my reply.

In icy tones came: "You've got your nerve. Wait till I see your wife."

Bang went the receiver. I recognized the voice as that of my wife's chum.—Chicago Tribune.

Lithuanian Exports.

Lithuania is shaking off the grip of German economic control. First of its products to be freed will be its lumber, which Germany controlled to her own great profit.

Lithuania exported about 300,000,000 cubic feet of timber annually through the port of Memel by the River Niemen. Germany's control of the Niemen river has been ended.

Lithuania will therefore come forward as a world trader as soon as her independence is recognized. She is already planning the purchase of metal, machinery and foodstuffs in America.

PRINCESS ANNE, MD.
TUESDAY MORNING, AUG. 12, 1919

The governor of New York has reviewed the Farmerettes, but they have already been thoroughly viewed by all the male neighbors.

There is a growing number of people who feel that the Mexicans at least should take out hunter's licenses before shooting any more Americans.

These motorists who run away after knocking people down will not need to hurry so much when the turnkey rings the bell announcing back time.

Once in a while a man goes by when the clothing and shoe producers forget to raise prices, but they always make up by a double advance the next time.

Of course the advance of the woman suffrage movement and the haste of the congressman to abolish the ice cream tax have nothing to do with each other.

Some army officers, evidently needed to be reminded that kicking the private soldier around was no sufficient substitute for going up to the front line trenches.

Attorney General Palmer says the salaried man is the worst sufferer under the present cost of living. If the salaried man will work hard, he may be promoted to a job that pays wages.

The passing of the county unit direct primary law is in sight. After an eight-year trial of this method of choosing candidates for State offices both major parties in Maryland this year have entirely ignored this machinery with which to choose candidates and instead have selected their standard-bearers through a series of conferences and agreements.

Political observers are predicting that the next session of the General Assembly will be called upon to repeal this law and to substitute the straight mass system for primary elections or a falling back upon the old convention system.

THE RACE RIOTS
The better elements of different races never have trouble in getting along with each other. Industrious and peace loving and fair minded people can always reach some basis of adjustment by which they can live harmoniously side by side.

The suffrage who provoke such race outbreaks as those recently occurring at Chicago and Washington must be made to feel that the country will not tolerate such disturbances. It will be necessary to land a lot of them safely in jail for long terms to teach their friends and imitators that for their own health they must keep the peace.

Wherever there is serious friction between whites and negroes the same and sensible leaders of both must get together to remove the causes. The white people must give the negro every opportunity for education and development. The negroes must realize that until they become just as good citizens, as useful and moral and intelligent as the white race, they must expect some degree of social discrimination.

FIGHTING HIGH PRICES
Public feeling driven almost to desperation by continued advances in living costs is demanding that the federal government check the tendency to higher prices. Politicians of all parties have promised such action for years but they have accomplished very little. The government will no doubt attempt something to meet the existing situation and it will have support in any reasonable measures.

The first and principal cause of high prices is that wages have been greatly advanced in nearly all trades. These advances do not come out of the employing class as some people imagine. They are simply added to the cost of goods. After everyone has had his advance and has paid out the money in higher prices he discovers that he is no better off. If he has saved any money he is worse off, as now his bank deposit will not buy as much as formerly.

There is also a very widespread belief that there is much profiteering in many trades. But the retail trade is not getting the money. The small dealers do not seem to be getting rich.

If the wholesalers and the manufacturers are asking exorbitant prices they are pursuing a course of extreme folly. They are about as safe as a man who should send off a lot of July Fourth fireworks in a powder magazine. They are likely to start a social convulsion the end of which cannot be foreseen.

If the extent of this abuse is exaggerated to lay high prices to this cause merely has the effect to distract public attention from the real causes of present conditions and to delay the application of real remedies. These are times when no person can safely demand an immediate return for the service he renders to society. Also the people are not in the money position of having

THE ART OF SWIMMING

Swimming used to be regarded as a kind of athletic stunt enjoyed by the kids as a means of cooling off in hot weather, or as a means of displaying fancy diving tricks. But of recent years it is seen to be one of the vital elements of education. Many thousands of drowning accidents occur annually, most of which would be averted by a familiarity with the water and knowledge of simple strokes.

Many of the colleges now refuse to graduate students who can't swim. Public schools with access to swimming places might well take the same stand. Some inland towns of course have no suitable swimming place available. But most of their residents occasionally visit other places with good bathing resorts. They should make it their principal business on such visits to see that their children learn how to swim. It is a well-known fact that children brought up near the water are the ones who do not know how to swim.

THE HEALTH OF COUNTRY LIFE

People who contemplate removing from country towns and farms to go to large cities may well consider the sacrifice of health conditions that they make in so doing. A person for a time may enjoy the rush and noise of the city. But dodging automobiles, rushing for cars and trains and the incessant noise and clutter constitute a serious nerve strain.

Health authorities have noticed a startling increase during recent years in the degenerative diseases, particularly affections of the heart and kidneys. The hurry of city life is very favorable to the increase of such troubles. Although health regulations are often enforced strictly in the cities, yet the death rate of children is larger. Census statistics give a death rate in cities of 18.410 for the children under one year of age and in the country districts of only 11.740.

Danger from contagious diseases is much greater in the cities. The people are too close to each other. An infection like the influenza of last winter spreads with frightful rapidity. In the larger centers, measles and scarlet fever are two and three times as prevalent as in a country district. Transportation of food supplies for long distances is a source of peril and infections are lying in wait at every turn.

The country town and rural life on the contrary provide good water, pure air, abundant room and a quiet and serenity favorable to the normal functioning of the human organs. The difference commonly means years more of life and a pleasant old age. People who rush off to the cities so frequently from mere whims sacrifice much of happiness and comfort and security.

A Travelling Man's Experience

You may learn something from the following by W. H. Ireland, a traveling salesman of Louisville, Ky. "In the summer of 1888 I had a severe attack of cholera morbus. I gave the hotel porter fifty cents and told him to buy me a bottle of Chamberlain's Colic and Diarrhoea Remedy and to take no substitute. I took a double dose of it according to directions and went to sleep. At five o'clock the next morning I was called by my order and took a train for my next stopping place, a well man."

Stanley F. Tuckton and Catherine R. Tuckton, his wife, and T. Lewis, Ellen T. Ross and Walter W. Ross, her husband, and Isabelle B. Tuckton vs. Ernest Delamont Rosenfeld

No. 3335 Chancery. In the Circuit Court for Somerset County, Maryland.

The object of this suit is to procure a decree for the sale of certain real estate situated in the town of Crisfield, Somerset County, Maryland, of which William E. Tuckton, late of Crisfield, deceased, was the owner, and which was devised to the said Stanley F. Tuckton, his wife, and T. Lewis, Ellen T. Ross and Walter W. Ross, her husband, and Isabelle B. Tuckton, his wife, and Ernest Delamont Rosenfeld, his wife, by the will of the said William E. Tuckton, deceased.

The said Stanley F. Tuckton, a son, who married Catherine R. Tuckton, both of whom are of full age and reside in Crisfield, State of Delaware; (b) March T. Lewis, a daughter, who is of full age and resides in said New Castle County; (c) Helen T. Ross, a daughter, who is of full age, and resides in said New Castle County; (d) Isabelle B. Tuckton, a daughter, unmarried, who is of full age, and resides in said New Castle County; (e) Ernest Delamont Rosenfeld, a grandson, being a son of Edna Rosenfeld, who was a daughter of the said William E. Tuckton, and who died intestate during the lifetime of her said father, the said Ernest being of full age, unmarried, and residing in Germany, being a non-resident of the State of Maryland; that said real estate is not susceptible of partition or division without material loss and injury to the parties entitled to interests therein, and that in order to make division of said interests it will be necessary that said real estate be sold and the proceeds thereof divided among the parties according to their respective interests.

It is therefore, this 7th day of August, nineteen hundred and nineteen, by the Circuit Court for Somerset County, in Equity, ordered that the plaintiff, by causing a copy of this order to be inserted in some newspaper published in said Somerset County once in each of four successive weeks before the 10th day of September next, give notice to said non-resident defendant of the object and substance of this bill, warning him to be and appear in said Circuit Court, in person, by solicitor, or by attorney, on or before the 10th day of September next, to show cause, if any he has, why a decree ought not to be made as prayed for.

Messages Through The Earth

Radiography will be revolutionized by transmission through the earth and water, instead of the air, as the result of discoveries made at a little experiment station on a barge in San Diego Bay, California. It is predicted by Lieutenant R. A. Morton, of the Navy radio laboratory at Mare Island, who conducted the experiments.

First proof of the success of the new method of the radio transmission through the earth, according to Lieutenant Morton, was made when the United States Navy Department sent a message from the Annapolis station to the British Admiralty that the dirigible R-34 had been sighted off the American coast.

Lieutenant Morton was at his instruments, heard the message and copied it in its entirety, he said.

As an additional advantage of the earth and water transmission, he declared that underwater cables can be pointed like a gun toward any station desired and so single out such a one, whereas aerial antennae are equally affected by waves from all directions.

These bold radio rioters who fire guns at unarmed and defenseless people are probably the same ones who stayed at home while others went up against the Hun trenches.

A Great Remedy

The merits of Chamberlain's Colic and Diarrhoea Remedy are well known and appreciated, but there is occasionally a man who has no acquaintance with them and should read the following by F. H. Dear, a hotel man at DuPuy, Mont. "Four years ago I used Chamberlain's Colic and Diarrhoea Remedy with such wonderful results that I have since recommended it to all of my friends."

However, the Federal law supersedes the State law, and the open season is September 1st, and closes on December 15th. Our sportsmen would do well to keep the above date in mind and not to shoot doves before September 1st.

A subscriber, received a tin through the postoffice and it made him mad. He went to see the editor about it, and the editor showed him a few duns of his own—one for paper, one for type, one for fuel and several others. "Now," said the editor, "I didn't get mad when those came because I knew that all I had to do was to ask several reliable gentlemen like you to come up and help me out, and then I could settle all of them." When the subscriber saw how it was he relented, paid up and renewed for another year.

An Old Fault Finder. An irritable and fault finding disposition is often caused by indigestion. A man with good digestion and bowels that act regularly is usually good natured. When troubled with indigestion or constipation take Chamberlain's Tablets. They strengthen the stomach and enable it to perform its functions naturally. They also cause a gentle movement of the bowels.

PROCLAMATION OF THE GOVERNOR

DESIGNATING SATURDAY, AUGUST 15TH, AS RECORDING DAY, AND ASKING EVERY MARYLAND SOLDIER, SAILOR OR MARINE OR NURSE, IN OR WITH THE ARMED FORCES OF THE UNITED STATES OR OF THE ALLIES IN THE GREAT WAR, TO ATTEND AND FILL OUT A WAR SERVICE RECORD.

Whereas, our country, with unselfish purpose, engaged in the great struggle to secure freedom to the world, and poured into the undertaking her great resources and prevailing might; and

Whereas, the State is especially proud of her sons and daughters who served in or with the armed forces of the United States or of the Allies, and esteems it a duty and privilege to preserve their records in a permanent War History Collection; and

Whereas, the Maryland Council of Defense, through its Historical Division, has prepared a War Service Record, and has organized committees in the counties of the State and in Baltimore city to assist in compiling these records:

Now, therefore, I, Emerson C. Harrington, Governor of Maryland, do hereby designate SATURDAY, AUGUST 15TH, as Recording Day, and I ask every Maryland soldier, sailor or marine, or nurse, in or with the armed forces of the United States or of the Allies in the great war, to attend at one of the appointed places and fill out a War Service Record. If it is not possible for the soldier, sailor, marine or nurse to attend at one of the appointed places, he should do so. A photograph (preferably in uniform) should be brought, and discharge or other papers that may be of assistance in filling out the Record secured. The places appointed for the recording will be duly published in the newspapers of Baltimore city and of the counties.

In testimony whereof, I have hereunto set my hand and caused to be hereunto affixed the Great Seal of Maryland this 5th day of August, 1915.

EMERSON C. HARRINGTON, By the Governor. THOMAS W. SIMMONS, Secretary of State.

EXECUTIVE DEPARTMENT. ANNAPOLIS, MARYLAND. PROCLAMATION. Declaring Soldiers' Vote Law No Longer Operative.

Whereas, by proclamation issued the 15th day of January, 1915, I suspended the operation of the election laws of the State, and all rules and regulations adopted thereunder, as and to the extent authorized by Chapter 73 of the Acts of the General Assembly of Maryland of 1913, to the end that the provisions of said Act authorizing and providing the means for duly qualified voters absent in the military or naval service of the United States to vote by mail at general, primary or special elections, might be and become effective, as therein set forth; and

Whereas, said Act was passed and my Proclamation thereunder issued as a war measure, with the object of giving the soldiers and sailors of Maryland, who enlisted especially for the war with Germany, the opportunity of voting during their absence in service during said war; and

Whereas, the war is practically over and peace is about to be declared, and the soldiers and sailors of Maryland, for whose benefit, as aforesaid, the said Act was passed and my Proclamation issued, have practically all returned to Maryland and been demobilized, so that the condition for which the Act was passed and aforesaid Proclamation issued is now or is about to be over; and

Whereas, Section 228 of the said Act provides that whenever the condition which resulted in the issuing of said Proclamation terminates, it shall be the duty of the Governor, as soon as convenient and proper, by proclamation to end the suspension of the election laws, whereupon the provisions of said Act for absent voting shall become inoperative; and

Whereas, in view of the foregoing, it is now convenient and proper that the Proclamation contemplated by said Section 228 should be issued.

Now, therefore, I, Emerson C. Harrington, Governor of Maryland, by virtue of the authority conferred upon me as aforesaid by said Act of Assembly, do hereby proclaim and declare the aforesaid suspension of the election laws terminated and at an end, so that the provisions of said Act of 1913, Chapter 73, may be and become inoperative, to the extent as if my Proclamation of January 15, 1915, with reference to voting by absent soldiers and sailors, had never been issued.

In testimony whereof, I have hereunto set my hand and caused to be hereunto affixed the Great Seal of Maryland, at the Capital, in the city of Annapolis, on this 5th day of June, in the year of our Lord one thousand nine hundred and nineteen.

By the Governor. EMERSON C. HARRINGTON. THOMAS W. SIMMONS, Secretary of State.

VALUE OF SAVINGS BECOMES APPARENT

One of Great Lessons of War is That of National and Individual Thrift, Now Rapidly Growing

Now that the new German government has accepted the inevitable, and has officially signed the peace terms dictated by the allies and the countries associated with them, the greatest and most disastrous war that ever scourged the world is ended.

For nearly five years the world has been topsy-turvy. The things that were needed yesterday are no longer required, and the activities of the great war establishments and munition plants are being diverted to the manufacture of implements of peace.

There must now be a readjustment. Governments that have thought in billions and spent money with a lavish hand, must retrench and think in millions and even smaller amounts, and must gain a new perspective.

Viewed in the retrospect the part played by America in the great world war is one of the most glorious chapters in history. And in the making of this brilliant history the plain American citizen played a stellar role. The mountains of munitions, the equipment for the millions of soldiers, the great ships that carried the men across the ocean, could not have been provided had not the common people of America provided the money.

Much of this money was obtained through the sale of Liberty Bonds and War Savings and Thrift Stamps. This great volume of money has not been wasted. First it brought permanent peace to the world, and now that real peace is here, every cent that was so invested will come back to those who aided their government, and it will come back with interest.

This war that is now happily ended has taught the people the value of saving. They went into the saving game as much through patriotism as anything else. But now that they are reaping the returns, and see that what they did with a patriotic motive is a real foundation for future fortune, they have gained a new confidence in their country, and they will continue to buy the securities the Treasury Department offers, and will make the country many-fold more prosperous than it would have been had not the war instilled the lesson that will prove invaluable in future years.

PAYING OFF THAT MORTGAGE

Theodore Roosevelt said: "Thrift is merely the use of hard common sense in the spending of money." Paying off the mortgage on the installment plan by buying War Savings Stamps is one of the uses of this hard common sense.

Not only does this plan offer a practical way of saving small amounts of money, but small amounts may be earning interest as soon as they are set aside toward the collecting of the larger sum. This interest in turn materially helps to reduce the 6 per cent interest rate commonly charged on mortgages.

When the mortgage comes due it may either be paid off in whole, or in part, and renewed, the method of saving through War Savings Stamps being employed until the principal is liquidated.

"May the vast future not have to lament that you neglected it." Buy Thrift Stamps and War Savings Stamps.

In the plan on the back of War Savings Stamps, the Government will guarantee the principal and interest.

CANNOT LOSE MONEY IF INVESTED WISELY

Funds Put into War Savings Stamps Are Absolutely Safe and Yield Handsome Profit to Holder

Government securities afford the safest and most practical investment in the world. A War Savings Stamp is a promissory note for $5 if redeemed at maturity, or for the original cost of the stamp plus accrued interest if redeemed before maturity.

It was only after America entered the great world conflict that the small wage earner in this country was afforded the opportunity of investing in government securities; of becoming co-partners with the government. That there are today more than 20,000,000 holders of government securities is a fact which speaks for itself.

When you buy a War Savings Stamp you are helping the government. To be able to make a loan to the government, even as small as the sum represented by a War Savings Stamp, is a proof of patriotism and also a practical manifestation of that spirit of national "thrift and individual savings which has come to us as a permanent heritage from the war.

WEALTH OF NATION GROWING RAPIDLY

In Washington some of these experts, who are masters of figures and who have a mind attuned to statistics, frequently dig up queer things. One of this type has figured out that the total wealth of the United States is $800,000,000,000. Then he figures out the new wealth produced annually, which he terms "net income." This gets into dizzy figures, too. He estimates that last year the national wealth increased $18,000,000,000, which he admits is going faster than the normal. Another Washington official points out that one of the best ways to conserve this national income in wealth is for individuals to buy War Savings Stamps.

ONE SAFE PLACE FOR LIBERTY BONDS—THE BANK—PUT YOURS THERE

The Cumberland (Md.) Evening Times prints the following, which should be a reminder to all who are now keeping their Liberty Bonds or War Savings Stamps in boxes around the house or in broken tea pots or in mattresses:

Mrs. William B. Dever, wife of Fireman-Engineer Dever, Baltimore and Ohio railroad, of Rowlesburg, W. Va., threw $1,650 worth of Liberty Bonds into the Cheat river, back of her home, by mistake, with rubbish she had cleaned from their home. The valuable bonds have not been recovered although a diligent search of the Cheat river bottom in that vicinity has been made.

W. B. Dever's great loss of bonds has a parallel. W. W. Wood, Baltimore and Ohio railroad engineer, lost $150 worth of Liberty Bonds from his pocket. They were a $100 and $50 issue. Engineer Wood intended to deposit the bonds in a local bank. They have not been located.

A laborer unloading a car of coal at Paw Paw, Saturday, found a $100 bond in the coal. It is thought to have dropped from the pocket of a car loader at the mines. The laborer reported the matter to the company's station agent at Paw Paw. It is said, with a view of returning it to its owner.

KIDNEYS WEAKENING?

LOOK OUT!

Kidney troubles don't disappear of themselves. They grow slowly but steadily, undermining health with deadly certainty, until you fall a victim to incurable disease. Stop your troubles while there is time. Don't wait until little pains become big aches. Don't trifle with disease. To avoid future suffering begin treatment with GOLD MEDAL Haarlem Oil Capsules now. Take three or four every day until you are entirely free from pain.

This well-known preparation has been one of the national remedies of Holland for centuries. In 1898 the government of the Netherlands granted a special charter authorizing its preparation and sale.

The housewife of Holland would almost as soon be without food as without her "Real Dutch Drops," as she quaintly calls GOLD MEDAL Haarlem Oil Capsules. They restore strength and are responsible in a great measure for the sturdy, robust health of the Hollanders.

Do not delay. Go to your druggist and insist on his supplying you with GOLD MEDAL Haarlem Oil Capsules. Take them as directed, and if you are not satisfied with results your druggist will gladly refund your money. Look for the name GOLD MEDAL on the box and accept no other. In sealed boxes, three sizes.

Look for the name:

The Braganza Diamond.

The Braganza diamond is a great mystery. Very few people have ever been allowed the privilege of looking at it, and of these few some are of the opinion it is not a diamond at all, but merely a wonderful specimen of white topaz. At any rate, it is generally conceded to be a diamond and is considered the jewel supreme of the crown jewels of the late reigning house of Portugal, the ancestral family of the duke of Braganza.

Figures of Speech.

An old lady, after returning from a visit to "the zoo" announced that she "always did enjoy a visit to the Theological Gardens." A servant girl, describing her master's illness, explained that the "doctors held a consolation and found that it was something eternal," and a lady recently remarked that when she was in Italy she "saw many people in the garb of monks with tonsils on the heads."

Clever Willie.

Glancing hastily over the pages of Willie Johnson's examination papers, the teacher was delighted to see that not one of the questions remained unanswered. But upon a more careful scrutiny her pride took a tumble. After nine of the twelve questions Willie had written politely, "I am sorry that this is a subject on which I have no information."

BIG MEN OF STATE AIDING ODD FELLOWS

State And City Co-operating To Make Centennial And Convention Big Success.

Some of the biggest and most prominent men in Maryland are working hard to make the Centennial Celebration and Sovereign Grand Lodge, I. O. O. F. Convention in Baltimore, September 14 to 20, a big success.

Headed by Col. Jacob W. Hook, these prominent Marylanders—members of the State and City Co-operation Committee—include Hon. William F. Bragging, Baltimore's mayor; Congressman J. Charles Linthicum, Attorney General Albert W. Ritchie; Judge Walter I. Dawkins; Judge Frank L. Duncan; State's Attorney Harry W. Niece; James W. Chapman, Jr., president of the Baltimore School Board; Thomas B. Marshall and Thomas G. Young.

They are leaving nothing undone which will provide for the comfort and entertainment of the 50,000 persons expected to attend the big event.

Some idea of the responsibility which involves on them can be seen when it was learned that notables from Australia, Denmark, and other foreign countries, will be present during the big week. It is the intention of the committee that when these visitors return to their native lands they will carry back with them the very best impressions of the United States and particularly of Maryland. Therefore not only must Baltimore be dressed in its best clothes, but there must be a host of Marylanders on hand to extend the state's hospitality to the foreign Odd Fellows as well as to the thousands from other states.

There are 16,409 Odd Fellows in Maryland, of which number 9,000 are members of lodges outside of Baltimore and 7,409 are members of Baltimore lodges.

A Monster Parade.

One of the big events of the Centennial Celebration and Grand Sovereign Grand Lodge Convention, I. O. O. F., at Baltimore, September 14 to 20, will be the parade of the Patriarchs Militant and other members of the order. There will be 8,000 swords in line, 25 bands of music and more than 10,000 civilians. Every band in Baltimore has been engaged for the parade, besides the bands to be brought by visiting lodges.

Cleans Bronze.

Genuine bronzes may be washed with good soapuds and a sponge or rag and wiped dry with a soft flannel cloth or chamols. Dirt and stains may first be removed with a flannel cloth moistened in sweet oil. Afterward polish the bronzes with flannel or chamols.

Powerful "Fourth Estate."

The "fourth estate" is the newspaper press. It is so designated humorously as a distinct power in the state. Formerly the phrase designated the persons constituting the lowest and unrepresented classes of society, as distinguished from the commons.

Change Wrought by Time.

The old-fashioned boy who used to be tickled to death when his daddy gave him a nickel to spend now has a small boy who doesn't know that there are any coins below the half dollar.

HOW FAMILY INCOME MAY BE DISTRIBUTED

Every Home Should Have Own Personal Household Budget If It Is to be Successful.

Every household is a corporation with certain definite obligations and a more or less certain income, and it should, therefore, have a definite budget.

No general budget can be so framed as to fit the needs of every family. Families differ, even when identical in size, number, sex and general situation, but no family can thrive and progress without sound and sane financing; without arrangement of a reasonable financial margin; without regular saving and investments, such as are offered by Thrift and War Savings Stamps; and only intelligent adherence to an intelligent budget can be trusted, under ordinary circumstances, to bring about the desired results.

Methods of appropriation, however, differ; a method which proves feasible in a given family would be worse than useless in another; but certain cardinal principles may be safely laid down.

The amount of possible savings should be set apart definitely, and rigidly adhered to. Other allowances may be variable or they may be held within hard and fast limits. One plan after another may be tried, if liked, until the best one suited is found.

All things considered, the most easily efficient budget usually is that which allows a certain share of the income for each budget head listed, holds rigidly within the items of appropriation, and wisely applies any balance or surplus to the savings or recreation account.

ONE WEAK SPOT
Many Princess Anne People Have a Weak Part And Too Often It's The Back

Many people have a weak spot. Too often it's a bad back. Twinges follow every sudden twist. Dull aching keeps up, day and night. Backache is often from weak kidneys. In such case a kidney medicine is needed.

Doan's Kidney Pills are for weak kidneys. For backache and urinary ills. Princess Anne people recommend the remedy.

Mrs. H. B. Wherrett, Extension Antioch ave., Princess Anne, says: "I had been troubled nearly all my life with kidney complaint and had severe backaches at times. If I did anything that caused me to stoop over, I suffered very much with severe pains through the small of my back, especially when I straightened up. At times I could see little black specks and fiery flashes in front of me. During the last attack, I used one box of Doan's Kidney Pills and I have had no further trouble. I cannot recommend this medicine too highly."

ORGANIZED LABOR K. E. OILL

Plumb Plan For Nationalization Of American Roads

Organized labor and the House Interstate and Foreign Commerce Committee locked horns last Wednesday over the Plumb plan for a nationalization of American railroads.

In one of the liveliest committee hearings held at the Capitol in years, spokesmen for labor called on Congress, in effect, to grant their demands or accept the consequences, and members of the committee as bluntly replied that they would not be coerced or frightened into line.

Interweaving in their statement an incessant demand for action to reduce the cost of living, labor's spokesmen roundly denounced the legislative body for playing politics and idling in face of the gathering storm of unrest, and the attempt of the Republican majority to adjourn the House for a three-week recess was likened by Warren S. Stone, chief of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers, to "Nero fiddling while Rome burned."

"I want to say," declared this blunt spokesman for labor, "and I say it in no spirit of threat, but as a fact, that unless Congress or some one finds a solution within a few months—not a few years, mind you, but a few months—you are going to see the worst time the country has ever known. The people are not going to fold their hands and say 'Please,' while they are starving."

The outline of labor's plan for control of railroads follows:

The so-called Plumb plan, the tripartite control of railroads, as suggested by the Railroad Brotherhoods, and backed by the American Federation of Labor, provides for management of the lines by a board, on which the public, operators and employees shall be equally represented.

Under the plan present owners will be reimbursed in the language of the proposal, "for every honest dollar they have invested."

The operating management and labor will share equally in the corporation to take over the railroads.

All revenue in excess of the guarantee to private capital shall be divided half to the operating management and employees and half to the public, "either by increasing the means of service without increasing the fixed charges or by reducing the cost of the service which the machinery then in service can render."

You never can tell. Even the fellow who learns to say no may have to take it back.

Public School Notes

The Board of Education met at their office in Princess Anne last Tuesday, with all the members present.

Miss Clara M. Lankford, of Princess Anne, and Miss C. Lucille Thomas, of Crisfield, were granted scholarships at the Maryland State Normal School.

Miss Elizabeth Miles, of Upper Fairmount, was awarded the scholarship at St. Mary's Seminary, to succeed Miss Aileen Beauchamp who has resigned.

It was ordered that the public schools should open on Monday, September 1st. There will be a meeting of teachers and trustees in Princess Anne on that date and regular school work will begin the day following. The colored schools will reopen on Wednesday, October 1st.

The secretary was directed to advertise for bids for transportation of pupils from the lower school in Mt. Vernon to school No. 2 in the same district.

The annual report for the year ending July 31st, was presented and examined. The school at Jamestown was ordered to be reopened.

The superintendent was authorized to attend a meeting of county superintendents to be held in Baltimore on Aug. 29th and 30th.

The superintendent reported that there were still many vacancies in the schools of the county and that a number of them will probably be filled after the State Examination to be held in Princess Anne next Thursday and Friday.

A committee was appointed to go to Mt. Vernon to select a site for the new central school.

Death of Mrs. Fannie M. Dennis

Mrs. Fannie Murdoch Dennis, widow of Judge J. Upshur Dennis, died last Thursday morning at Baltimore, N. C., where she had been spending the summer. She had not been in good health, but her death was unexpected until a few hours before it occurred.

Mrs. Dennis was Miss Fannie Murdoch, of Louisiana, before she married Judge Dennis. Besides her two children, Mr. J. Murdoch Dennis and Miss Dora Louise Dennis, she is survived by one sister, Miss Dora Louise Murdoch, 245 West 8th street. Her husband, who was one of the most brilliant members of the bench in Maryland, and a member of the Eastern Shore family which has been distinguished in Maryland for generations, died on September 12th, 1918.

Her husband was a member of the Maryland Bar and a member of the American Bar Association.

STOCK RAISING ON THE 'SHORE

Farmers Looking For Profits From Blooded Cattle And Hogs

Eastern Shore farmers of the lower counties not content with reaping small fortunes from strawberries, vegetables, potatoes, watermelons and cantaloupes are embarking in a new enterprise, the raising of cattle and hogs. Several far-seeing farmers near Salisbury have had a survey of their soil made by an expert of the Agricultural Department at Washington. He has pronounced the region as productive of all the grasses, clover, alfalfa, hay, etc., which are essential in the cattle-raising business.

This feature of stock farming was dwelt upon at a convention of Eastern Shore dairymen at Queen Anne recently. From Talbot, Queen Anne's, Caroline and Kent counties there are large daily shipments of milk to Wilmington and Philadelphia. The time is near at hand when lovers of ice cream in the lower Eastern Shore will not rely upon the product from Middletown, Del. They will have the home product.

The raising of hogs on a large scale also added to the farm energies, especially in Wicomico. There is urgent need of this movement. So attractive have been the prices in recent years for pork that farmers have depleted their stocks to reap cash rewards. In Wicomico enterprising boys have engaged in the pig-raising industry. They are buying pure-bred pigs on a co-operative plan, which calls for enrolling more hogs each year until the whole country is stocked with pigs that are worth while. Next spring the boys plan to hold a public sale, which will be advertised freely, in order that the good work may be extended. The boys were limited to two breeds, as it seemed advisable to have only a few breeds than to have many, but next year the plans may call for only one breed, depending on the sales and other conditions. The aim of the boys is to make Wicomico county known countrywide as the home of worth-while Durocs and Berkshires.

Many inquiries have come to the county agent as to the reason why the Durocs and Berkshires were chosen and not Hamabians, Tamworths etc. This question can be answered by saying that from a study of the breeds as regards popularity, which sells them, adaptability to conditions in this county, preferences of the boys and farmers in the county, as well as other factors which were considered, it seemed advisable to secure these two breeds. The boys in Somerset and Dorchester counties are limited to only one breed, the Duroc, which is known as the "Jersey Red" in some places.

Terrific Storm Sweeps Peninsula

Damage running into thousands of dollars was done by the severe northeast storm which visited this section on Wednesday. Whole fields of corn were blown to the ground, young apples and pears were torn from the trees, late peaches suffered a similar fate, and train service was greatly impaired.

The storm which began shortly after midnight on Tuesday, continued with almost terrific force all day Wednesday and well into Wednesday night. The heavy downpour of rain was intensified by a forty-mile northeast gale which drove the rain drops with the velocity of machine gun bullets.

Throughout the peninsula the storm worked havoc. The new road and bridge at Allen Mill-Dam, between Princess Anne and Salisbury, which was completed about three weeks ago, was carried away. A washout at New-castle, Del., held up trains on the main line and all mails as well as passenger traffic from Philadelphia and other centers were delayed.

GREEN WORM EATING CLOVER

Also Lima Beans And Other Things In Several Counties of State

If it is half as bad as its scientific name, the "Platyphena scabra Fabr." known to ordinary mortals as the green clover worm, which is reported in large numbers in Cecil, Harford, Frederick, Anne Arundel, Prince George, Worcester and Somerset counties, will probably cause the farmers and gardeners of Maryland and other States considerable anxiety regarding the safety of their crops of soy beans, clover, lima beans, peas and other legumes, which these green monsters take especial delight in devouring.

"This is not the first invasion of the pest in this section," said Prof. E. N. Cory, State Entomologist of Maryland, in describing the parasite. "Similar outbreaks occurred in Maryland and the District of Columbia as far back as 1897-1899, but as far as we are able to determine the worms were not nearly so numerous as in the present invasion."

"The worm is green in color and ranges one-half to one and a half inches in length. Its favorite food is the clover and it is only occasionally that it attacks soy beans. It is the larva of a moth, with a wing expanse of approximately one inch. It is a light gray to a dark brown moth and is rather inconspicuous. There are three generations annually. The first brood begins about the middle of June, the second in early August and the third late in September or early in October. The egg is laid on the leaf. Where this pest is attacking garden beans or soy beans they can be poisoned by using one pound of arsenate of lead powder to 50 gallons of water. Both the upper and the lower sides of the leaf should be sprayed."

"Where the soy beans are grown for hay, of course, spraying is impractical. In such a case it is a question of deciding whether the worms have done the maximum damage, no doubt the crop will be cut before the third brood appears. One indication as to how much more damage may be expected is the presence of cocoons on leaves webbed together."

"If many such cocoons are found, the chances are that the major injury is past. However, if there are many small caterpillars and practically no cocoons, the chances are that the damage will continue for some time, and it will be necessary for the farmers to judge from the amount of growth already made and the prospect for growth whether the plants will outstrip the damage by making new leaves and pods. If he thinks that they will outstrip the injury, then he can afford to wait to cut his soy beans at the normal date. In order to guard against another outbreak another year, he should see that his hay is carefully stacked, and all of it should be fed before another spring."

Andrew Carnegie Dead

Andrew Carnegie, steel magnate and philanthropist, died at his Lenox summer home, "Shadow Brook," Mass., at 7:10 o'clock Monday morning of last week, after an illness of less than three days with bronchial pneumonia. He was in his 84th year.

Andrew Carnegie had given away $350,695,658 up to June 1st, 1918, a compilation of his benefactions prepared by the Carnegie Endowment for international Peace shows.

His fortune, when he retired, was estimated at about $250,000,000. This of course would have been greatly increased by the natural advance of securities since.

November 28th, 1912, Mr. Carnegie made a statement which was taken to indicate he had gotten rid of all but $25,000,000, but what he really said was that his New York corporation had been made the residuary legatee of all surplus left after meeting the provisions of his will. He explained he had set aside $25,000,000 to meet personal pensions to the members of the Military Telegraph Corps and Pennsylvania Railroad men with whom he had been associated.

BAPTISTS FOR BIG CAMPAIGN

Hope To Raise $750,000 In Maryland In One Week

Every phase of the religious activities of the Baptist Church in the city and state is at present being centralized about the gigantic task of raising $750,000, the state's quota of the $75,000,000 fund to be raised for missions, education and general church work. Leaders of the state organization, of which Rev. Dr. W. H. Baylor is at the head, have already laid plans for unifying the state and forces to such an extent that there will be no doubt of the ultimate success of the drive.

An educational, information and inspirational campaign will be waged throughout the Baptist congregations of the state during the time intervening between now and the first week in December when the actual campaign will start and during which time the entire amount of the state's quota will be raised. The work of apportioning the various quotas to the churches of the city and state is being worked out and will shortly be announced. The wealthy churches of the denomination in Baltimore will take a large share of the total amount, leaving the smaller churches and congregations a minor share as their contribution to the fund.

The city and state campaign activities will be in charge of what is known as the campaign advisory committee, composed of the following: Rev. Dr. W. H. Baylor, general sales director; Rev. G. Pitt Beers, state organizer; Joshua Levering, state commissioner; Francis A. Davis, laymen's committee; F. S. Biggs, church extension; Rev. Kingman A. Handy, state paper; Miss Clara M. Woolford, Women's Missionary Union of Maryland; Mrs. Oscar G. Levy, organizer; Mrs. Eugene Levering, vice-president, and Mrs. George Stevens, corresponding secretary.

Alfalfa A Good Crop For This County

A number of farmers of the county are growing alfalfa with success. It does well on some of the heavier and well drained soils and makes a very desirable hay. Alfalfa hay is eaten readily and can be fed with good results to horses, cattle, sheep, brood sows and laying hens. It will cut down the amount of grain that is fed in the ration, which is an important consideration under present conditions. Once this crop is established it will last for several years in this section and will yield from three to four cuttings of valuable hay during the season.

The feeding value of the hay is greater than that of red clover hay. When a stand of alfalfa is broken up corn or other crops yield heavily, although potatoes don't do well on alfalfa sod on account of the lime increasing the amount of scab in the potatoes. The alfalfa being a legume adds a large supply of nitrogen to the soil and the long roots improve its physical condition by making the lower layers more porous.

Alfalfa requires a carefully prepared seed bed. The land should be free from weeds before it is sown and it is usually well to have some cultivated crop precede it. It does well following early potatoes or cowpeas and soybeans, and grows best in a soil that is fine and mellow on the surface and is fairly compact beneath, so that it will hold moisture well.

About 2 to 2 1/2 tons of ground oyster shell or limestone should be applied and worked into the land about a week before sowing. Seed should be inoculated with soil from an old alfalfa field or by the use of pure culture of the bacteria. They should be broadcasted or sown with a seed drill at the rate of 20 to 24 pounds to the acre, 10 to 12 pounds each way, and sown a little deeper than red clover. In this section the best time for sowing the seed is from August 25th to September 1st, depending on weather conditions. Plenty of moisture should be in the ground when the seed are sown.

The Government will furnish free inoculation for one bushel of alfalfa, crimson clover, vetch or any other legumes. Special prices of $1.15 for an acre of $3.75 for 5 acre size have been obtained from a firm for inoculation for alfalfa and other legumes. Farmers who are interested in sowing alfalfa and desiring to inoculate the seed can order the inoculation material through County Agent C. Z. Keller.

Boys' Pure Bred Club Exhibit

The public will find their time well spent, if, while they are attending the Pocomoke Fair this week, they will visit the Boys' Pure Bred Club exhibit. This exhibit will be larger and better than ever and in fact will be one of the chief attractions at the fair.

In addition to the exhibit of pure bred hogs, one of the most improved types of a colony hog house will be exhibited. This house has been erected according to government plans. A self-feeder for use in the economical fattening of hogs has also been constructed according to the most up-to-date authorities.

ANOTHER DRIVE FOR RED CROSS

Will Try To Raise $15,000,000 Between November 3rd And 11th

Plans for a nation-wide Red Cross campaign opening Monday, November 3rd, and closing Armistice Day, November 11th, were formerly announced last week by Dr. Livingston Farrand, chairman of the Executive Committee of the American Red Cross. The primary object of the campaign, which will be known as the Third Red Cross Roll Call, will be to enroll members for 1920, but there will be in addition a general appeal for $15,000,000 to enable the organization to complete its war obligations at home and abroad. There will also be local appeals, where necessary, conducted by the chapters, to secure funds needed for local programs.

During the war there were two annual Red Cross campaigns, the War Fund Drive in the late Spring and a Christmas Roll Call for membership. The only campaign this year will be the one in November, and in succeeding years there will be only an annual Roll Call in which the Red Cross will seek the re-affirmed allegiance of the American people expressed in dollar membership. The money so derived will be used for American purposes, and the approval thus received is to be regarded as a mandate to carry on future programs.

"The first task of the American Red Cross is, of course, to complete its obligations to American soldiers and sailors," said Dr. Farrand in announcing the program. "The organization plans, as its future policy, to concentrate its efforts upon peace problems at home, unless America should again be involved in war or confronted by great disasters creating special emergencies."

"The Red Cross programs are primarily within the field of public health and will aim particularly at co-operation with official activities, Federal, State and local. The Red Cross will seek not to duplicate the work of established organizations, but will endeavor to supplement other agencies where they already exist or to stimulate and organize work where none exists."

"The tremendous task of the American Red Cross in the war has, however, left a continuing obligation which cannot be fulfilled for some months to come," Dr. Farrand stated.

"The Red Cross authorities realize that the generosity of the American people during the war and the present high cost of living at home might legitimately lead many to expect a release from further demands for assistance to other people," continued Dr. Farrand, "but we must remember that our Allies were much harder hit by the war than were we and that we have incurred obligations to them which honor demands shall be discharged. In naming the sum of $15,000,000, the Red Cross has tried to determine the smallest amount which will enable it to round out its work and make effective the appropriation of army goods rather than to estimate the generosity of the American people."

State Democrats To Convene

Secretary Albert J. Almonsey, of the Democratic State Central Committee, announced last Tuesday that State Chairman Wade had decided that the Democratic State Convention will be held on Thursday, September 18th, at noon, in the Academy of Music, Baltimore. That will be 10 days after the primaries, which will be held on Sept. 8th. Chairman Wade was authorized to fix the date and place of the convention at the recent meeting of the Central Committee.

The State convention will ratify the State nominations, which will be even more a formality than usual, for there is but one candidate for each nomination. Also, the convention will adopt the party platform. There is no sign now that there will be a hard fight over any question except woman suffrage. The leaders are believed to be opposed to that and will carry their point, probably, though the suffragists' friends are expected to protest strenuously.

SOMERSET COUNTY NAMES TICKET

Candidates Decided Upon By The Democratic Party

The unexpected has happened and the Democrats of Somerset county got together last Thursday and ratified a ticket, without a dissenting voice, which has all the appearance of being a winner at the November election. By this action a primary fight is avoided and the Democratic party in the county is united for the first time since the Lee-Gorman primary fight in 1911.

At a mass-meeting held in Princess Anne on July 29th a committee of 30 members was named to agree upon and select the candidates on the local Democratic ticket, members of the Democratic State Central Committee and delegates to the Democratic State Convention. The committee held two meetings and at the meeting last Tuesday a full list of candidates was agreed upon.

Last Thursday afternoon a meeting was held in the Auditorium to receive the report of the committee and was called to order by William T. G. Polk, chairman of the State Central Committee. Aden Davis was elected chairman and Harry C. Dashiell secretary. Col. Henry J. Waters presented the report of the committee of thirty and made a brief address in which he emphasized the fact that the committee had unanimously agreed upon the nomination of each candidate. He stated that the work of the committee was characterized by the most earnest desire of the members to reunite the party behind strong candidates who would win at the coming election. The candidates presented and ratified by the committee were:

For State Senator—William F. Byrd, of Asbury District.

For House of Delegates—Gordon Milbourne, of Asbury district; Thomas P. Simpkins, of Mt. Vernon district; William J. Tankersley, of Deal's Island district.

For Clerk of the Circuit Court—S. Frank Dashiell, of East Princess Anne district.

For State's Attorney—Gordon Tull, of West Princess Anne district.

For Sheriff—John R. Greene, of Fairmount district.

For County Commissioner—Michael A. Somers, of Lawson's district.

For Judges of the Orphans' Court—George U. McAllen, of West Princess Anne district; John A. T. Holland, of Dublin district; Asbury S. Henderson, of Brinkley's district.

For County Surveyor—Levin H. Hall, of Brinkley's district.

For State Central Committee—Lorie C. Quinn, Sr., Edward B. Lankford, Charles H. Speights.

Delegates to State Convention—Joshua W. Miles, Henry J. Waters, William J. Hurley and I. Purnell Horsey.

Col. Henry J. Waters then arose and requested Collector of Internal Revenue Joshua W. Miles to address the meeting. Mr. Miles spoke of his extreme satisfaction that the party was united behind the ticket that had just been named. He urged all Democrats in the county to forget forever the differences that had divided the party in the past; to lose sight of personalities and individuals but to unite in the coming campaign to wage a determined fight for success of the Democratic party.

He referred to the importance of a united party in the county to aid in the election of the State ticket. He praised the candidates on the State ticket, Hon. Albert C. Ritchie, Major Brooke Lee, Thomas Keating and Caleb C. Magruder, and spoke of his extreme gratification that the party had united in the State in the nomination of strong candidates representing the different elements of the party.

Song-Bird Pot Pie Costly

State Game Warden E. Lee LeCompte has issued a warning to gunners not to shoot robins, which are under the protecting wing of the federal government. Robin pot pie will not be so plentiful in Maryland this year as in years gone by. The Conservation Commission of New York has taken the lead in the protection of this popular bird. Through the federal authorities the commission has administered a lesson costing $500 in the form of a penalty imposed on John Verza, of Marlboro, N. Y., that robins are not a legal article of food in New York State. He was prosecuted by E. F. Nolan, one of the commission's game protectors. Information was given Nolan by a farmer who had seen Verza shooting at a flock of robins. A search was made of his residence and there were found hidden in a wine vat 83 robins and two cedar waxwings. Verza was arrested and held by Judge Hutchins under $1,000 bail.

Verza's liability for this violation aggregated $2,000. However, a compromise was agreed to by W. T. Moore, deputy attorney-general, who handled the case, and action was dismissed upon Verza's settlement of $500.

"I suppose there were times in my life when I did need a good dressing." "Probably they were your salad days."

HER DISCIPLINE

By JACK LAWTON.

Stanton, riding village-ward for his day's supplies, saw the automobile coming toward him at a clipping pace down the country road. He had just time to discern a girl's white-clad figure at the wheel before the machine was upon him, pushing with a grating jar his own little car into the ditch.

When Stanton arose, as he supposed unhurt, the girl, who impatiently awaited proceedings, bent again to the wheel and disappeared amid a cloud of dust. He had been too confused to note either number or make of the flying auto and his fleeting view of the girl's face, shaded by her low-brimmed hat, was too indistinct to remember. But of what use?

His sturdy runabout was uninjured as he forced it out of the ditch, and his own bones were intact and in their right places. Indignation was at first his overwhelming sensation.

"This autocrat of the roadway should be locked up like any other common lawbreaker," he rumed inwardly, and then a sickening realization of pain came over him—pain which shot from his right shoulder down his arm, making steering an impossibility.

Helplessly he leaned back in the car seat, signaling help from a passing teamster.

"I guess I've been hurt," said Stanton. "A young woman drove her car into mine a few minutes ago. Can you find some one to drive me back to my shack in the woods?"

"Young woman in a big gray car?" the man queried. "That's Lawton the millionaire's daughter. Think she owns the town in general. No mother, and spoiled by her dad. His girl can do as she likes an' he'll pay. That's the idea! I'll send a fellow right on from the village to drive you home." And he did.

The "fellow" left Stanton's runabout at the opening of the wood in its rough-built shed, while painfully he made his way through the screened boughs to his log cabin home. When Stanton had with difficulty prepared his own evening meal he sank exhausted upon a bed by the window. It was here that he watched the sun rise after a sleepless night, sinking later, breakfastless, into a sleep until noonday. Then, as he lay upon his pillow, he reflected on the different types of womanhood—the fortune-favored daughters and those working for a livelihood.

As Stanton reflected he endeavored to rise—he would make a cup of coffee and get to his typewriter; but the effort was unavailing. A step sounded, muffled by the pine needles before the cabin door, then a girl's figure appeared in the opening.

"Good-morning," she said, hesitating at the man's appearance of invalidism. "I have wandered farther into the wood than I realized, and just when I was becoming too thirsty I saw your home. May I, please, have a drink of water?"

"Certainly," Stanton responded, "if you will help yourself. I find that I am unable to help even myself."

"Indeed?" asked the girl. She came into the room, gazing curiously at the prostrate figure. "You are ill, and alone?"

"I live alone," Stanton answered. "I was hit by an automobile yesterday—now seriously, I did not know until I returned here."

Quickly the girl came forward, tossing her hat upon a chair. "First, I will get something for you to eat," she said. "Where do you keep your food?"

As she searched the wall cupboard, Stanton furtively admired the girl's piquantly charming face. "You know—" she asked presently, "the person who ran into you?"

Stanton frowned. "I learned," he replied, "that she was one of that irresponsible class of women who consider only the gratification of their own reckless whims."

"You talk like a book," the girl said, smiling.

"I write books," he answered grimly; "that's what I'm out here for."

"Cooking your own meals?"

"Even that," he told her, "is preferable to being disturbed in my work."

"And now—you will write up that 'poor rich girl,' I suppose, as a horrible example."

"She is a horrible example," Stanton insisted. "She should be disciplined. What punishment is the payment of a speeding fine to her? Unless, indeed, she might be made to work out her own fine."

"You think that would help?" asked the girl. She was bending over the dead stove. "Just how?" she asked, irrelevantly, "does one build a fire to make coffee? I know what I'll do," she added brightly, "I won't take a minute; my car is at the opening. I'm going home to get my chafing dish."

Glowing and smiling the girl soon reappeared, bearing in her arms a huge bundle. When she had deposited it upon the table she came demurely to stand beside the author's couch.

"About that discipline," she said, "I'm going to try your advice. Will you let me work out my fine—for the speeding, you know? I'll take the housekeeper's place and cook for you every day until you are well. I can make lots of good things in a chafing dish."

"It wouldn't be fair to let you," Stanton protested, but his eyes were averted.

"Necessary discipline," Lawton's spoiled daughter answered, severely, and the two sat at each other, staring at the chafing dish.

A TIP FROM UNCLE SAM

To His Nieces and Nephews: "Beware of the man who offers you something 'just as good' for your Government securities."

College Educations are Made Possible By Government Plan

Director of War Loan Organization of This District is Anxious to Explain Method to All Who Are Interested and He Invites Requests for Information.

Perhaps in no other thing is Uncle Sam more interested than in the future of America in the citizens of tomorrow—the children of today—and he consequently realizes the tremendous importance of inculcating in the minds of the children the principles of thrift and kindling in their hearts a desire to improve their condition in life. With these things in view the government is suggesting ways whereby a higher education may be had by many boys and girls who otherwise would never receive the benefits of a college course.

"In the 3,000,000 homes in Maryland, the District of Columbia, Virginia, West Virginia, North Carolina and South Carolina," said Albert S. Johnstone, director of the War Loan Organization, Richmond, Va., "there are perhaps 1,000,000 boys and girls, 12 to 15 years old, who are looking forward to entering college—some day. Their parents realize, if the boys and girls do not, that this 'some day' will come very, very soon."

"It is not merely a question of money, Enkindled ambition, steadily adhered to by both the child and his parents, is necessary. Otherwise the money will probably not be accumulated in time, nor appreciation of the value of a college education be so developed in the minds of the boy and girl that they will stick to their purpose to get it regardless of the obstacles in their path."

"There is a method—provided by the United States Government—by which this money can be accumulated gradually, and be ready when it is needed. Meanwhile it will be absolutely safe, will draw a splendid rate of interest and be exempt from all state, county, and city taxes, both as to principal and interest, except estate or inheritance taxes. Moreover, the process of getting this money ahead is so simple, so direct, that all the members of the family may share in it, though no one can get it except the one to whom it belongs."

Mr. Johnstone says he would like to tell every interested parent, boy, or girl more about it. He asks simply that you fill out the coupon below and mail it out, and mail to him at the address given on it. He promises a prompt reply.

Dear Sir:

I have read of the method, provided by the United States Government, by which the accumulation of money in advance to secure a college education is being encouraged. I would like to know more about it. Please write me fully.

WAR SAVING STAMP VALUABLE SECURITY

There are eight points of excellence that are possessed by War Savings Stamps which are especially appealing and which are not combined in any other security now to be obtained in any market. War Savings Stamp workers would do well to get these eight points and to see that their advantages are not lost sight of.

(1) Every War Savings Stamp is a direct promise to pay on the part of the strongest government in the world.

(2) It bears interest at the rate of 4 per cent compounded quarterly if held until maturity.

(3) The amount of money required for the investment is so small that every person can own at least one interest bearing security.

(4) It is readily obtainable. Any post office, almost any bank and any other agency will supply them.

(5) It is always in season and may be purchased at any time.

(6) Its principal is always maintained with an accrual of interest.

(7) It is the most liquid of all securities, readily converted into cash on short notice and is redeemable upon maturity at convenient places.

(8) Its interest is received immediately at the time of purchase, instead of periodically during the life of the securities.

ARE YOU CIVILIZED?

"The difference between the civilized man and the savage is, thrift. Keep expenditures always below income; save something," said Andrew Carnegie.

How far are you civilized? Do you simply live in today, as does the savage, or are you preparing for the necessities of tomorrow? Will you be ready to take advantage of future opportunities? Will you be able to own your own home, to travel, to change your position or enlarge your business? Are you confident of what old age will bring, and what opportunities you will be able to give to your children?

In other words—ARE YOU SAVING?

You can do it. Join the great movement for a Thrifty America. Make a start with your odd quarters today. Thrift Stamps may pave the way to a happy, comfortable and more civilized tomorrow. Are you traveling this smooth road, or is yours an unpaved one? Choose between the two.

Lincoln said: "Be a patriot. Don't mar the immortal emblem of humanity, the Declaration of Independence. Buy Thrift and War Savings Stamps."

Thrift is shorthand for "Waste not, want not." Buy War Savings Stamps.

WAS ONE GOLD WATCH AHEAD

Incident in Lord Macaulay's Life Which Probably He Was Quite Willing to Forget.

Here is an amusing story of Macaulay, as told by Lady Logan in her reminiscences:

"Lord Macaulay was in Rome the winter we were there with the maharajah. They had one very good story about him going the round of the English colony, which was told us by an attaché of the British embassy. Like all strangers, he went by moonlight to see the Coliseum and, as was proper in a historian and a poet, that the spirit of the centuries might have full sway within his soul, he went alone. As he stood rapt and gazing in the shadow of the arches a man brushed rudely by jostling him roughly. With great presence of mind, Mr. Macaulay—as he then was—felt at once for his watch. It was gone. The thief was still in view. Promptly the historian gave chase, and, taking the law into his own hands as might one of the heroes of ancient Rome whose deeds he set forth, he promptly knocked him down and repossessed himself of his property."

"Fearing that other criminals might be about, the Englishman at once returned to his hotel, to find, to his surprise, his own watch ticking comfortably on his dressing table and a strange gold watch in his waistcoat pocket. Horrified at his first successful coup as a footpad, he hurried off to the bureau de police to give up his booty, where he was confronted by an excited foreigner, vehemently describing the outrage of which he had been a victim."

"OLD DUFFER" WAS ADMITTED

Distinguished Citizen, Wanting to See Horace Greeley, Irreverently Announced by Office Boy.

A citizen of Waterbury wrote a letter to the Republican of that city a day or two ago asking for information about Horace Greeley, who he was, etc. That he wished to learn more about the great journalist does him credit, but we are surprised there is a man in Waterbury capable of writing letters to newspapers who didn't know about Mr. Greeley already.

This reminds me of a story told by the late Charles A. Dana. One day while Mr. Greeley was reigning as editor of the Tribune, he was particularly busy, and gave explicit orders to his office boy not to admit anybody to his room. Later on the office boy announced to Mr. Greeley there was an "old duffer" outside clamoring for an interview with the editor. Mr. Greeley asked the boy who it was, to which the boy replied he didn't know, but that he wore a soiled linen duster, carried a carpet-bag of the early seventies type, and made a big fuss because he couldn't see the editor of the Tribune. "Well," replied Mr. Greeley, "if he is so insistent you had better ask the fellow his name, and then I will decide whether he can come in." The boy went back and returned in a few minutes bringing the information that the "old duffer" was Henry Wilson of Boston who happened at that time to be the vice president of the United States. He saw Mr. Greeley.—Hartford Courant.

Golf Will Survive.

It has been held in some expert circles that golf never could become the game baseball is, because golf lacks a picturesque language. This view overlooks the fact that baseball acquired its language by slow degrees, and only reached its present perfection through the long labors of devoted philologists and etymologists. The language grew, like love, by what it fed on.

Give golf and the sport writers time and they will produce a language for that game as copious, refulgent, and learned as now distinguishes the more popular game. Already we detect the beginnings. We read of Mr. Bockenkamp's play Thursday that by "sinking a horripollating putt of 45 feet" he finished 6 up.

We have heard of 45-foot putts before, but it must be admitted it adds to the wonderment of one to know that it was horripollating. This is an encouraging beginning and convinces us that golf is going to survive.—Kansas City Star.

Queer Coincidence.

One of a party whereof Charles Darwin was a member was speaking of the earthquake of Tacahnano, in northern Chile, on which occasion the father had lost all his property and the narrator himself had barely escaped with his life. Then, writes Darwin, there ensued a curious coincidence. A German, one of the party, got up, saying he would never sit in a room in those countries with the door shut, as, owing to his having done so, he once nearly lost his life at Soplopa. Accordingly, he opened the door. No sooner had he done so than he cried out, "Here it comes again!" and another shock ensued. The whole party, escaped.

In 1900.

"And what is this peculiar little spiral instrument of steel?" "That is a very odd device people used many years ago to remove corks from bottles."

"Oh, I see." "Any other question?" "Yes, would you mind explaining to me what bottles were and what were they used for?"

HARMONY RESTORED IN THE COUNTY

The Democratic party of Somerset county, after eight years of party strife and bitter primary contests, has at last succeeded in establishing harmony in the party ranks.

The party, it may be said, has recovered its sanity.

Much of the discord and demoralization of recent years is traceable to the so-called "direct primary" system. To restore order it was found necessary to resort to a plan akin to the convention system. Party harmony could never have been secured in this important State and county contest in any other way. The Marylander and Herald has always lamented the introduction into our politics of the direct primary, and sincerely trusts that for the good of the State and in the interest of good government the convention system may be restored and a good, fair elections law framed, looking to the securing of community or local rights and representative party government, through State and county conventions, whose members shall fairly represent the existing political units in State and county.

This journal heartily congratulates the Democratic party and the people of Somerset county that Democratic party unity in Somerset county has been restored. As an immediate and direct result of party harmony through the convention system, an excellent county ticket has been presented to the electorate of this county. The chances of Democratic success have been improved within the last fortnight one hundred per cent, and good Democrats everywhere are prepared to stand together and work for the election of the whole Democratic ticket.

Much hard work will be needed to bring success, however, and this work must be performed not only by the candidates, but by every Democratic citizen interested in good government and the restoration of the Democratic party to power in Somerset county. Let the leaders of the Democratic party begin at once an effective and strong party organization in every district looking to the purification of the registration lists and the casting of a full Democratic vote in November. With an excellent State ticket and a strong, well distributed local ticket representative of every element of the Democratic party of Somerset county, we can, and must, conduct a campaign that will lead to a satisfactory outcome when the ballots are counted.

The President, Congress, the Supreme Court and other authorities may think they have been appointed to run this country but apparently they have got to ask permission of the railroad men.

Since July 1st the baby's paterfamilias has had to be refilled very frequently. Also many women in these dry times are amazed to see how rapidly their toilet lotion disappears.

Most of the boys of Princess Anne are working this summer and it is reported that some of them earn enough money to buy their own ice cream cones.

The latest fad is to color your dog the same tint as your clothes or your automobile. To make the thing complete, the fashionable woman will of course put a coat of harmonizing house paint on her face.

10,000,000 MEN SHORT

The Director of the Red Cross Speakers' Bureau estimates that 10,000,000 men were killed in the war. Figures like these show why labor and commodities are scarce.

The loss of life has not diminished the demand for the necessities of life in like proportion since there are about the number of women, old men and children as before the war. To keep up production and fill the world's needs some way must be found to make up for the loss of 10,000,000 workers.

More efficient methods of work could do it and more labor saving machinery could do it. But there is a lack of capital to provide the machinery and it takes time to introduce efficiency methods. The startling changes produced by the war will tend toward greater efficiency and in 10 years the loss is quite likely to be made up. In the meantime, to make up the deficit, the industries will have to depend much more upon the labor of women than formerly.

Since July 1st there are not so many men who go down town every evening to learn the news.

THE CROP SHRINKAGE

A few weeks ago the American people were expecting crops beating all previous records. The wheat crop in particular was to mount up to 1,200,000,000 bushels or more. But much damage has been done and wheat will probably drop below a billion bushels. Scarce food was what started advance of all kinds of prices and plentiful food is needed to bring prices down.

The latest figures indicate about an average cereal crop. That is not enough, as Europe's productive power is not restored. As long as the food supply is short or only barely sufficient, speculators will always be manipulating prices. There needs to be a reserve of food so that cornering shall be discouraged and profiteers shall not be able to scare the public into paying exorbitant prices.

The people must still think of food conservation. During the war food economy talk was printed in every newspaper, shouted at the people from every billboard. Since the armistice people are slipping back in their old careless ways. Probably at the present time great food resources are being wasted in garbage and otherwise.

The more food is wasted the higher it costs. Every home in this town should continue the policy of food conservation and keep up all the thrifty habits taken up through the war. The old days of lavish resources are not likely to return.

Many men who worked on farms as boys will recollect how the thrifty old timers would make them rake in every corner of the hayfield and how their gleanings would collect a big heap of scatterings that thrifless workers would leave behind. Leaky carts and careless handling waste great quantities of grain. Careful, economical harvesting will be needed to pull the world through its present pinch.

The people who dump garbage in their back yards and alleys are at least popular with the pigs.

PROFITEERING

The charging of unjust prices is an evil which if unchecked threatens the social order. Of course at such a time as this there are many reckless charges of extortion. Many concerns are charged with it when they are barely able to meet their bills. Probably the trouble is much more with producers, manufacturers, speculators and middlemen than with the retail trade. But no element of the trade community is wholly exempt from blame for the present unreasonable level of values.

How far the government should go in fighting this evil remains to be seen. It may become necessary to go the limit and fix a good many prices. The machinery of production and distribution is delicate and should not be tampered with any more than is necessary. Anyway the practices of food hoarding and speculation are harmful as conducted now and will have to be regulated.

Much can be accomplished through public sentiment if organized. Boards of Trade and other business organizations should take up the price question, realizing that every single case of unfair prices creates social unrest, promotes labor trouble and drives away trade.

In cases where profiteering is alleged, investigations by public authority, or committees appointed by an impartial body, would be useful. The finding of such investigations would not be lightly disregarded by sellers of merchandise.

The agitation against high prices should not go so far as to scare producers, dissipate business confidence and check production. Business will be on a sounder foundation if everyone is made to realize that prices have reached the highest point to which they can go with safety. When the business man becomes content with a reasonable profit and the wage earner stops clamoring for more pay then prices will begin to recede.

The latest fad is to color your dog the same tint as your clothes or your automobile. To make the thing complete, the fashionable woman will of course put a coat of harmonizing house paint on her face.

Tooth "Born" in Night.
Minnie is fond of her infant brother and delights in tickling his lips to hear him coo, and make him smile, and one day while amusing herself this way her little brother showed a tooth that had protruded in the night. She called to her mother: "Come, see the tooth what was born in brother's mouth last night."

A Travelling Man's Experience

You may learn something from the following by W. H. Ireland, a traveling salesman of Louisville, Ky. "In the summer of 1888 I had a severe attack of cholera morbus. I gave the hotel porter fifty cents and told him to buy a bottle of Chamberlain's Colic and Diarrhoea Remedy and to take no substitute. I took a double dose of it according to directions and went to sleep. At five o'clock the next morning I was called by my mother and took a train for my next stopping place, a well man."

ENTRANCE EXAMINATIONS

State Scholarships in Engineering Courses

Entrance Examinations for the Department of Engineering, as well as for the College of Arts and Sciences, will be held in Gilman Hall, Homewood, Monday to Thursday, September 15th to 18th, 1919, beginning at 9 a. m., each day.

Applications for Scholarships in the Department of Engineering, established under the provisions of the Laws of Maryland, Chapter 90, 1912, will now be received. If there is more than one applicant for a particular scholarship, a competitive examination must be taken Friday, September 19th, beginning at 9 a. m. Appointments will be made soon thereafter.

Each Legislative District of Baltimore City and each county of the State, with the exception of Howard, Queen Anne's and Somerset counties, will be entitled to one or more scholarships for the 1919-1920, in addition to those already assigned to resident students. In the three counties mentioned above, all the available scholarships have been awarded.

Under the provisions of the Act of Assembly, the County and City Scholarships are awarded only to deserving students whose financial circumstances are such that they are unable to obtain an education in Engineering unless free tuition, free use of text-books, and exemption from all regular fees. One of the scholarships in each County and each Legislative District of the City carries also the sum of $200. No. 3335 Chancery. In the Circuit Court for Somerset County, Maryland.

The object of this suit is to procure a decree for the sale of certain real estate situated in Crisfield, Somerset County, Maryland, of which William E. Tuckton, late of Newcastle County, State of Delaware, died seized and possessed.

The bill states that the said William E. Tuckton departed this life on or about the 8th day of May, 1896, intestate, leaving surviving him a widow, Frances E. Tuckton, and the following children and grandchildren as his sole heirs at law:

(a) Stanley F. Tuckton, a son, who married Catherine R. Tuckton, both of whom are now of full age, and reside in said Newcastle County, State of Delaware; (b) Martha T. Lewis, a daughter, who is a widow, of full age, and resides in the same castle County; (c) Helen T. Ross, a daughter, who married Walter W. Ross, both of whom are of full age, and reside in said Newcastle County, State of Delaware; (d) Ernest Delamont Rosenfeld, a grandson, being a son of said Stanley F. Tuckton, and who died intestate during the lifetime of her said father, the said Ernest being of full age, unmarried, and residing in Germany, being a non-resident of the State of Maryland; that said real estate is not susceptible of division, and the parties entitled to interests therein, and that in order to make division of said interests it will be necessary that said real estate be sold and the proceeds thereof divided among the parties according to their several interests.

It is thereupon, this 7th day of August, nineteen hundred and nineteen, by the Circuit Court for Somerset County, in Equity, ordered that the plaintiff, by causing a copy of this order to be inserted in some newspaper published in said Somerset County once in each of four successive weeks before the 10th day of September next, give notice to said non-resident defendant and to the parties to this bill warning him to be and appear in this Court, in person or by solicitor, on or before the 25th day of September next, to show cause, if any he has, why a decree ought not to be passed as prayed.

An endurance test in swimming was made recently at Ocean City, by Rev. C. A. Vandermeulen, of Newark, Md., formerly of Pocomoke Circuit. He swam from south of the fish landing bank to the Dominican College, without resting in any way, and without changing stroke, in 56 minutes. This is the entire length of the board walk. The distance was somewhat lengthened by having to swim out seaward to avoid the strong counter currents at the end of the pier. This goes to prove that clergymen may be good sports in healthful athletics and develop strong bodies.

ARMY WORMS

That Pest Be Discovered Before Crops Have Been Seriously Damaged.

EXAMINE MEADOWS CLOSELY

Grass or Grain Should Be Carefully Inspected to Detect Presence of Caterpillars—Poisoned Bait May Be Used.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

Watchfulness is the key to success in cases of invasion by army worms, which are young of certain moths or caterpillars that fly only at night. The eggs from which the army worms hatch are laid commonly on grasses or grasslike grains and the tiny caterpillars, upon hatching, feed for several days near the ground, hidden by overhanging grasses or grains and thus may escape notice until nearly full grown, by which time they have become widely distributed over the infested fields.

Upon the discovery of the pest in its younger stages depends very largely the possibility of stamping out infestations before serious injury to crops has occurred. Meadows therefore should be examined frequently, particularly those planted to timothy, bluegrass, wheat, and especially millet, to discover the young worms. If the infested spot be small, the grass or grain can be moved off and straw scattered over the spot and burned, thus destroying the worms. If the caterpillars have become distributed over a considerable area, this can be marked off by stakes and the crop sprayed heavily with a solution of paris green at the rate of one pound to 50 gallons of water, or of arsenate of lead at the rate of two pounds of the paste or one pound of the powder to 50 gallons of water.

Poisoned Bait for the Army Worm.
Poisoned baits have long been used as a means of destroying the numerous species of cutworms and also the army worm. An efficient bait of this kind may be prepared and used as follows: To 50 pounds of wheat bran and one pound of paris green or two pounds of powdered arsenate of lead; add the juice of one-half dozen oranges or lemons. Then bring the Stages and work of the true army worm (Girphis unipuncta) and some of its insect enemies: a, parent or moth; b, full-grown larva; c, eggs; d, pupa in soil; e, parasitic fly, Winthemia quadripunctata, laying its eggs on an army worm; f, a ground beetle, Calosoma calidum, preying upon an army worm, and, at right, Calosoma larva emerging from burrow; g, a digger wasp, Sphegus sp., carrying an army worm to its burrow; h, Entomophila purgatus, a wasplike parasite of the army worm.

mass to a stiff dough by adding low-grade molasses or sirup, preferably molasses, and scatter the mixture broadcast in small pieces throughout the infested field.

In case the worms are not discovered until they have begun to travel in a mass, usually they can be destroyed by furrowing or ditching completely around the infested area.

Summary of Control Measures for the Army Worm.

1. Watch fields of growing grass and grain carefully, especially the meadows, during the spring and early summer months, to discover the army worms before they become full grown and spread over the entire farm. When the worms are discovered at work, do not lose a minute, but attack them vigorously by means of the measures outlined in foregoing paragraphs.

2. Poison them by spraying crops with intended for forage with one pound of paris green to 50 gallons of water, or with two pounds of powdered arsenate of lead to 50 gallons of water. In case the paris green is used on tender plants, like corn, add one pound of freshly-slaked lime to 50 gallons of the mixture. This is to prevent burning the tender plants. Where spraying is not practicable, the use of the poisoned-bran bait already mentioned is strongly recommended.

In case the worms are crawling in a mass, surround them with a furrow and crush them with a roller.

"Age Cannot Withstand"
A tradesman was brought before the magistrate charged with having sold unwholesome articles for consumption as food. The charge was fully proved. "I wish to point out to the court," said counsel for the defense in a dignified tone, "that the house of business that I have the honor to defend was founded in 1802." "Has it renewed its stock since that date?" asked the magistrate.

Explaining "Yankee."
Yankee "was a cant, favorite word with farmer Jonathan Hastings of Cambridge about 1718. . . . A Yankee good horse, or Yankee cider and the like. . . . The students (of Harvard) used to hire horses of him; their intercourse with him, and his use of the term on all occasions, led them to adopt it."—Will Gordon, "Independence of United States," volume 1, letter 12, page 482.

Only Thing He Could Do.
Mother wanted to go to the store, so she told Jack to take care of Ramona, the cat, and not let her out of his sight. When mother returned, she found Ramona tied to the fernery with a rope around her neck. Mother asked Jack why he did this and he said: "Well, mother, that is the only way I could keep Ramona in my sight."

Study in Strength.
The muscles have their periods of development and decline. The lifting power of a youth of seventeen is 280 pounds; in his twentieth year this increases to 320 pounds, and in the thirtieth year it reaches 385 pounds. By the fortieth year it has decreased eight pounds; at fifty the figure is 330 pounds.

Chinese Love Horses.
China is one of the last of the nations of the world to adopt and enjoy the motorcar. Indeed, the conservative Chinese shrink from anything that seems to cast any aspersions upon horses, for equines have played a big part in tradition, history and the life of that mysterious land in the far East.

BRICKS AND CEMENT WILL
Absorb Moisture and "Grow" to a considerable Extent, According to English Publication.

How much has your house or the wall at the bottom of your garden grown?

Houses and walls, indeed all things made of bricks, do grow, and this fact is known to architects, who sometimes have to allow for it when making plans for building, says London Answers.

In the old days, when the clay of which bricks were made was mixed with water before being baked, the amount of growth was not noticeable; now that no water, or very little, is mixed with the clay, which is therefore said to be dry baked, the bricks absorb moisture and swell sometimes to a considerable extent.

Some years ago in a garden at Ely a pier was built of dry baked bricks and the garden hose was turned onto this pier for a considerable period every day for some weeks. At the end of this time the pier was measured, when it was found to have grown some inches.

Cement is another substance which grows. That is why you may often see on station platforms and on wall copings built of cement one of the joints missed out here and there.

The greatest growth naturally takes place where cements and bricks are used together, as happened in a house of which the parapet was built of bricks placed endways and cement supported on iron. The growth in this instance was so great that quite large spaces were visible between the iron supports and the parapet.

USE FOR LUMINOUS PAINT
Material Found Almost Invaluable in War Might Also Be Well Employed in Peace.

Here is a wartime application of luminous paint that should be useful in summer camps, on the hikes of boy scouts, in peacetime maneuvers of citizen soldiers, in marking the landing places of aircraft, etc.

The British army had disks or buttons two or three inches in diameter, coated with luminous paint and having a sharp spike on the under side. These were stuck upon the sides of trenches, buildings, fences, etc., or were swung by hand to give signals in the well-known code where bright lights were dangerous or where silence was golden.

The luminous disks were visible from 30 to 60 feet, so they formed valuable landmarks. Luminous ribbon also was used for marking trails through the woods, and luminous patches were attached to the backs of stretcher bearers to prevent them from being fired upon by their own troops.

The Scientific American suggests that the names and numbers of city streets might well be marked with this luminous paint.

The Fanciulla d'Anzio.
One of the gifts that President Wilson received in Italy was a silver model of the statue known as the Fanciulla d'Anzio, presented to him by the Roman municipality. The original is a Greek statue, discovered not long ago at the villa of Nero, in the seaport town of Anzio, near Rome, and purchased by the Italian government for 450,000 lire. Admirers of art and students of archeology had traveled from all over Europe to see it, and the youthful draped figure, carrying a platter from which the object it long ago held had been broken, was named the Maid of Anzio. Then somebody noticed that the long robe was lifted a little, as if to avoid tripping over it, that the biceps muscle of the bare arm was more boyish than girlish, and so on, until modern judgment has decided that the title Fanciulla d'Anzie is a misnomer, and that the unknown sculptor was really modeling the figure of a handsome youth performing some service in an ancient temple.

Brain Muffins.
Roger W. Babson of the department of labor said at a dinner in Washington: "Speaking of labor, it has been a tough job to eat some of the health foods that were turned out during the war."

"A young lady said to a young man at a Washington dance: "Are you the same young man who ate so many of my brain muffins at the Red Cross last fall?" "No," he answered, "and what's more, the doctor says I never will be."

The Sign on the Church.
Many a pedestrian and motorist, looked, observed and smiled Wednesday night as he passed a church on Clinton hill. Obvious and elaborate preparations for a wedding were under way. Coaches and florist wagons were bustling. The unmistakable canopy was being erected from sidewalk to door. And in big letters on the front of the church was blazoned the minister's subject for an approaching service: "This Is the Life."—Newark News.

Spilled Her Pleasure.
Husband—Have you had a pleasant afternoon?
Wife—No; Mrs. Wilkinson and Mrs. Jenkinson came together and left together. I had a lot of things about Mrs. Wilkinson I wanted to tell Mrs. Jenkinson, and I had a lot of things to tell Mrs. Wilkinson, but, of course, when they were both together it was no use.

CATTLE TICK IS BADLY WALLOPED

Bloodsuckers Receive Severe Trouncing in Infested States During Month of March.

FINE WORK OF ERADICATORS

According to Reports 1,203,497 Cattle Went Through "Canal to Prosperity"—Big Increase Made in Number of Dipping Vats.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

If the annual battle against the cattle fever tick can be compared to a boxing match of nine rounds—each month from March to December being a round—it is true that the tick got a thorough trouncing in the first round, and the bell rang with the parasite figuratively hanging over the ropes.

March of this year brought more dippings of cattle for the tick than were recorded in any other March since the federal and state governments began to fight the parasite in 1906. According to reports from all tick-infested states 1,203,497 cattle went through "the canals to prosperity" in March, 1919. This compares with 996,505 in March, 1918, and 720,552 in March, 1917.

This year's results came from an effort to "Dip That Tick in March" with the object of preventing so far as possible the reproduction of the parasite. The ticks that were killed in March will produce no thousands and millions of descendants to suck cattle blood all summer. With the flying start in March, and with continued vigorous attacks through the dipping season, it is believed that the tick eradicators have good chances of reaching their aim of cleaning up 90,000 more square miles of territory this year—more than ever has been released in one year from the federal quarantine against the pest.

Healthy increases in the number of dipping vats available for use also are shown by reports to the bureau. In Shorthorn Heifer, Tick Infested.

March, 1917, there were 15,765 vats; and in March, 1918, there were 22,879. This year there were 29,255.

Reports From States.

A summary of the state reports shows that Alabama had 6,230 vats had 143,384 dippings in March; Arkansas, 2,801 vats, 13,776 dippings; Florida, 1,114 vats, 94,905 dippings; Georgia, 1,220 vats, 182,704 dippings; Louisiana, 4,459 vats, 253,129 dippings; Mississippi, 5,553 vats, 128,703 dippings; Oklahoma, 1,053 vats, 44,938 dippings; South Carolina, 801 vats, 1,447 dippings; North Texas, 4,905 vats, 273,937 dippings; South Texas, 1,220 vats, 66,574 dippings. Preliminary and reorganization work was conducted in North Carolina.

Ample provision has been made in every state for dipping vats, and an adequate supply of dipping materials has been distributed to the counties that will likely need them this season. Satisfactory progress in constructing vats and in preparing the dipping solution was made despite the excessive rains.

In Texas, which has the largest amount of infested territory, encouraging progress is reported from zone No. 1, which includes the territory in which eradication work is to be planned most vigorously this year. Nearly all the counties in zone No. 1 have made appropriations for the work, and construction of dipping vats is being pushed as rapidly as possible.

Shorthorn Heifer, Free of Ticks.

It is believed that the general dipping of cattle every two weeks will be conducted in nearly all of zone No. 1 during the present year.

The Oklahoma state legislature, by making a special appropriation of $40,000 assisted several counties in the southeast corner of the state which seemed unable to raise funds with which to carry on county work. With this assistance it is believed that Oklahoma is now in a position to get rid of the tick by the end of 1920.

The Arkansas legislature recently appropriated $100,000 for tick eradication in that state, and with the large force of federal, state and county employees now at work it is believed that all of the state, with the exception of seven or eight counties, will be released from quarantine next December 1. The Louisiana forces seem determined to wind up the tick fight this year, and the indications are that they will be successful.

In Mississippi, where final clean-up work is being conducted following the release of the state from federal quarantine, the courts recently decided that the state laws providing for state quarantines are legal, and it is believed that the final work in Mississippi will be successful during the present year.

State-wide Law in Alabama.

As a result of the new state-wide tick-eradication law in Alabama it is hoped that the entire state will be released from federal quarantine by next December. The law requires all county commissioners' courts in tick-infested counties to provide means for dipping and to require the dipping of cattle every two weeks between April 1 and December 1.

Systematic work is being conducted in 22 counties in Georgia, giving ground for hope that these counties will be released from quarantine at the end of the dipping season. The state-wide law enacted by the Georgia legislature at its 1918 session becomes effective in December of this year, and 1920 may be the last year of the tick's residence in that state.

In Florida it will be necessary to conduct eradication work in units composed of several counties, and for this reason more time is required to construct dipping vats and make arrangements for systematic work. The people of Florida, however, are alive to the necessity for tick eradication, and the state co-operation given to the federal government makes it seem certain that Florida, despite the great area still under quarantine, will not be the last state inhabited by the tick.

In North Carolina the eradication work is being reorganized with encouraging prospects for an early clean-up. Final "mopping-up" work is being conducted in South Carolina, from which the federal quarantine was removed last year.

PREVENT BIG LOSS OF GRAIN

Poor Work of Binder, Shattering During Shocking and Faulty Separator Are Causes.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

Under average conditions the loss of grain during harvest is far greater than is generally supposed by the average farmer. Poor work on the part of the binder, shattering during shocking and hauling, faulty work of the separator, and minor losses at the machine result in a waste of millions of bushels every year. With a guaranteed price every farmer is offered an incentive to reduce such losses to a minimum this season. See that the binder is in good working order, handle the bundles carefully, using a tight floor or canvas on the wagon in hauling, and a demand by the farmer that the separator do efficient work will save many dollars' worth of grain as well as add to the pocketbook of the farmer.

REPAIR OF PASTURE FENCES

Little Time Spent in Replacing Weak Posts and Tightening Wires Will Prove Profitable.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

Advantage should be taken of the first lull in farm work to inspect and repair pasture fences. A little time spent from time to time throughout the season in replacing weak posts, tightening or splicing of wire and driving an occasional staple may save much trouble later when the pasture becomes short and the cattle are tempted by crops in nearby fields. A strong fence discourages cattle from attempting to break out, while a few successful attempts may make regular fence breakers of them. If plenty of water and salt are provided and fences are kept in repair, usually little trouble will be experienced unless the pasture becomes very short and the cattle are lured by other fields.

DOESN'T PAY TO SPRAY BEETS

Easier to Make New Plantings When Attacked by Leaf Spot, Especially in Small Garden.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

Garden beets are attacked by a leaf spot which materially injures their growth, but it is so easy to make a new planting of beets that it hardly pays to spray, especially in the very small garden. This is practically true of a large number of diseases.

By keeping stock solutions of copper sulphate and lime on hand, a little Bordeaux mixture can easily be made up and applied with a cheap spray outfit that can be purchased in any seed store. Where these sprayers are not made of brass or copper, the Bordeaux mixture should not be allowed to stand in them, and they should be thoroughly cleaned with clean water after using.

OLD AGE STARTS WITH YOUR KIDNEYS

Science says that old age begins with weakened kidneys and digestive organs. This being true, it is easy to believe that by keeping the kidneys and digestive organs cleansed and in proper working order old age can be deferred and life prolonged far beyond that enjoyed by the average person.

For over 200 years GOLD MEDAL Haarlem Oil has been relieving the weaknesses and disability due to advancing years. It is a standard old-time home remedy and needs no introduction. GOLD MEDAL Haarlem Oil is inclosed in odorless, tasteless capsules containing about 5 drops each. Take them as you would a pill, with a small swallow of water. The oil stimulates the kidney action and enables the organs to throw off the poisons which cause premature old age. New life and strength increase as you continue the treatment. When completely restored continue taking a capsule or two each day. GOLD MEDAL Haarlem Oil Capsules will keep you in health and vigor and prevent a return of the disease.

Do not wait until old age or disease have settled down for good. Go to your druggist and get a box of GOLD MEDAL Haarlem Oil Capsules. Money refunded if they do not help you. Three sizes. But remember to ask for the original imported GOLD MEDAL brand. In sealed packages.

ANOTHER OF WAR'S RESULTS

Direct Connection Traced Between Great Conflict and the Annoying Scarcity of Laundresses.

This is from Alexandria, our neighboring city down the Potomac.

Housekeepers there are having quite a time getting "help," especially some one to do the family wash. The necessity for clean clothes is one which devolves upon civilized beings. Wars may come and wars may go, but the washtub and washboard go on forever.

But it has been hard to get a laundress in Alexandria. War-time conditions have enabled many who earned their living at the tub to turn to less arduous pursuits, with the result that there is a scarcity of "wash ladies." The condition is one paralleled in many other cities.

"Aunt Lucy," said one Alexandrian woman, addressing a colored woman whom she had known for many years, "don't you know some one who can do my washing?"

"No, ma'am I don't know no one," she said.

The woman made a last attempt.

"Won't you do it for me, Aunt Lucy?" she asked, with a winning smile.

"Deed, chile," said Aunt Lucy, "I don't have to do no washing no more."

"Why?" asked the woman.

"Well, honey, hit is jes like this," explained Aunt Lucy with a nice distinction: "De Civil war made us free. And dis here worl' war has made us independent."—Washington Star.

EAGER TO SEE ELEPHANT

First One That Was Brought to the United States Aroused the Utmost Curiosity.

Nowadays, when summer in the United States would hardly seem itself without the coming of a circus, it is difficult to realize the excitement aroused by the first exhibition of an elephant. A now-forgotten showman, Hackallah Bailey, is said to have imported the first elephant nearly a hundred years ago, and the animal was a whole show in himself. The circus tent had not yet come into being, and the elephant was shown in barns in the Eastern states that then held the bulk of the population. To prevent the public from seeing the show without charge, the elephant traveled from place to place in the night; but even so, the public refused to be wholly circumvented, and small companies gathered with bonfires ready to light when the strange creature came lumbering past on his way to the next town. Sometimes, however, the management defeated this intention by sending along the road a horse built up to look like an elephant in the dark, and when the bonfire had been lighted and had burned out, the real elephant followed. —Christian Monitor.

The Way to the Pole.

Service with the American air forces in France adds weight to the opinion of Donald B. MacMillan, Arctic explorer and leader of the Crocker land expedition, that the airplane is not adapted for a dash to the pole, and that the cost of such a trip by dirigible would be prohibitive. In his own future explorations, Mr. MacMillan says, he expects to depend on the "ever-faithful dogs," for conveyance. The airplane is, in his judgment, impracticable for several reasons, one of which is, he says, sufficient to discount the idea of successful Arctic exploration by hardy airmen. The frozen north offers no smooth fields of ice on which the explorer could make a landing. A dirigible might start from a properly equipped hangar in Labrador and hope to return, but the total cost of the expedition would probably be about $1,000,000.

In Apple Blossom Time.

A wedding I attended was held in an orchard in apple blossom time. One of the women wore a red shirtwaist. In the midst of the service a bull in a pasture in the next field rushed in at the red shirtwaisted woman, who climbed a tree before the bull arrived. The rest of the party and myself did likewise. The bride's veil fell off, which embarrassed her exceedingly. The shirtwaist was thrown over the fence and the bull subdued, and the wedding continued in peace. The woman hastened home after a new shirtwaist, wearing her husband's frock coat.—Exchange.

Replanting Forests.

In England and in Scotland, before the war, were many hunting ranges and sporting grounds. During the war, however, these were cut down to supply munition factories at home and armies abroad. Never before, it is said, have these countries been so bare of timber as they are at present. But now they are preparing to replant their forests. The old ones were first of all ornamental but incidentally they proved useful. These which they are planting now are to be first of all useful and also, of course, ornamental.

Remorse.

"So you were in a German prison camp?"

"Yes."

"How was the food there?"

"Don't ask me to answer a question like that, but I'll say this much: If I ever run across the old lady I used to board with—overcome by the recollection of the mean remarks he used to make about those Sunday night suppers of cold ham and grits, the returned doughboy applied a handkerchief to his eyes and hastily walked away."—Birmingham Age-Herald.

Dynamiting the Clams

The little pholas or boring clam is a great delicacy on the Pacific coast. Its meat is juicy and tender and is excellent in chowder. Consequently, fishermen are not content to dislodge the clams slowly with pick and crowbar. They use dynamite, one blast of which dislodges hundreds of clams, according to the Popular Science Monthly.

There are now several branches of the national home and state homes in twenty-seven states.

Statements That May Be Investigated. Testimony of Princess Anne Citizens

When a Princess Anne citizen comes to the front, telling his friends and neighbors of his experience, you can rely on his sincerity. The statements of people residing in far away places do not command your confidence. Home endorsement is the kind that backs Doan's Kidney Pills. Such testimony is convincing. Investigation proves it true. Below is a statement of a Princess Anne resident. No stronger proof of merit can be had.

Oscar Long, Route 1, Extension Antioch ave., says: "Several years ago I had severe attacks of backache and, in fact, had been troubled more or less all my life. Whenever I did anything that required stooping, I had sharp pains in the small of my back. I was forced to get up several times at night to pass the kidney secretions and was in very bad condition. After using several boxes of Doan's Kidney Pills, I was cured. I have enjoyed good health ever since and I can heartily recommend Doan's Kidney Pills to anyone suffering from backache or other kidney trouble."

School Days Are Drawing Near

Are Your Children Prepared?

YOU, Mothers and Fathers, know how hard Children are on Shoes, and yet, very often, the child is blamed for wearing out the Shoes too quickly when the Shoes themselves are really too poor to stand the wear an active child will give them.

You would not spend your money for some shoes if you could cut them open and see what is inside of them. A solid leather shoe, if properly made, wears longer, holds its shape longer and, in every way, is a better shoe than one in which substitutes for leather are used. Do not buy shoes without having an opportunity to see the shoes themselves, and then study their quality and construction.

"Star Brand," "Ferris" and "Little Jack Horner" Shoes for Children are attractive in appearance and made to permit the proper development of the child's foot. Best of all, they are Right in Price.

Is it Possible to Legislate Life and Brains?

Swift & Company is primarily an organization of men, not a collection of brick, mortar, and machinery.

Packing Plants, their equipment and usefulness are only outward symbols of the intelligence, life-long experience, and right purpose of the men who compose the organization and of those who direct it.

Will not Government direction of the packing industry, now contemplated by Congress, take over the empty husk of physical property and equipment and sacrifice the initiative, experience and devotion of these men, which is the life itself of the industry?

What legislation, what political adroitness could replace such life and brains, once driven out?

THE GREAT SALISBURY FAIR

WILL OPEN ON

Tuesday, Aug. 26th, 1919

And Continue for Four Consecutive Days

EVER SINCE THIS FAIR was first started it has been the endeavor of its management to make it better and better each succeeding year. The arrangements made this year make it certain that those who visit this, the great Fair event of this peninsula, will find entertainment that will please and gratify them. The war clouds have rolled away and peace is again with us. Agriculture, however, holds its place as the leading and most essential industry of the world. Food all must have, and it is the hope that better and larger crops of all kinds may be encouraged through the medium of this and other Fairs. We earnestly request that all those who have anything worth displaying will communicate with our Secretary and make arrangements to exhibit at our Fair farm produce of all kinds, poultry and live stock, products of the housewife's industry, such as jellies, canned goods, bread, cake, etc. It is only by the hearty co-operation of those in this community that we can hope to make our display such as will help those engaged in these various industries.

AMUSEMENTS

Believing that good, healthy and clean entertainments are necessary and essential to the thousands that annually visit our grounds, arrangements have been made to provide a program of interesting events which cannot help but please our patrons.

DUTCH JEANETTES

The Dutch Jeanettes is an animal and acrobatic act of most unusual merit, consisting of three people, twenty bird actors, eight dog actors, and last, but not least, Alonzo, the famous Monk. The act opens up with an unusual and comedy acrobatic performance by the two men, assisted by two of the dogs, a performance similar to their relatives, the Gaudschmidts, who have been playing the New York Hippodrome all season. This is a fine act, and one that all will enjoy seeing.

MacLAURENS

The Musical MacLaurens is an act of unusual merit, consisting of four beautiful girls, assisted by Hugh MacLauren, the brother. They open in Scotch costumes playing bagpipes and drums, and then the four ladies dance a Scottish dance while the brother plays the bagpipes; the anvil chorus is played, using two anvils, two cornets and a trombone; they also introduce the buck and wooden shoe dancing, finishing with two cornets, two trombones and trap drums. This is one of the best acts of this kind on the road to-day. It is not one of the cheap imitation musical comedies that are so often seen, but the real, genuine thing.

MARVELOUS MELVILLE

Last, but not least, is a wonderful, sensational act by Marvelous Melville, the famous gymnast. This act was recently featured as the leading gymnastic performance of Barnum & Bailey's greatest show on earth. It is wholly novel and absolutely unlike anything of its kind ever seen before. It is an intricate performance with a remarkable combination of strength, daring and agility which stirs its beholders with enthusiasm. This Fair considers it is very lucky to get a feature of this kind on its grounds this year, and feel certain that those who see it will say that this one act alone is worth the full price of admission. All of these acts are free and will be staged across the track where they can be seen from the grandstand and grounds.

RACING

There has never been a year in the history of this Fair when the outlook for good horses and spirited racing was better than now. Inquiries for racing blanks have been received from far-off Michigan even. Those who love a horse and enjoy hotly contested trotting and pacing races can feel assured that they, this year, will have as great a treat as they have enjoyed for some time.

MOTORCYCLE RACING

There is nothing that runs on the "good old earth" at such a tremendous rate of speed as a motorcycle. The way they whirl around a track, taking the curves, is enough to make the most hardened men and women hold their breath, waiting for the spill which every moment seems certain, but which the great skill of these trained riders always succeed in avoiding. We have recognized the great interest that these Motorcycle Races create, and have each year devoted more and more of our time and money to making them the best that could be obtained. This year unusually interesting races have been arranged, and it is prophesied that some of the racers will make record-breaking time on the track.

MIDWAY

We hope this year to present to our patrons one of the best Midways we have ever had. The Great American Shows, one of the biggest carnival companies on the road today, has been engaged to attend our Fair and open up its wonderful shows to the public. It is impossible to go into details as to all the forms of amusements that can be found under the tents of this big carnival company. It is sufficient to say that it has all that the usual carnival has and much more besides, and that these shows will be amusing, interesting, instructive, and decent. On the Midway there will also be found many other things which will prove well worth seeing.

On TUESDAY, "Children's Day," all children under twelve years of age, will be guests of the Association and admitted to the grounds FREE. Admission on this day will be 30 cents (war tax included).

WEDNESDAY and THURSDAY, or "Everybody's Days," when almost everybody who can will be there, our price will be as usual, 55 cents (war tax included), and 30 cents for children under 12 years.

FRIDAY will be better known as "Home Day," the day when everybody comes and enjoys the show at the nominal price of 30 cents (war tax included) to all.

REDUCED RAILROAD RATES

Arrangements have been made with the Railroad Administration for the sale of reduced fare tickets from August 26th to 29th, inclusive, good to return until August 30th, inclusive, from Tasley, Delmar, and intermediate stations, also from the Crisfield branch, from Dover, Del., and stations south to Delmar, inclusive. This will permit those wishing to attend the Fair to buy tickets at a reasonable rate for any day of the Fair or for all days inclusive. Be sure and don't miss this Fair. You cannot fail to have a good time. Bring your families, your friends and your neighbors. Remember the dates. Make no other arrangements that week, but be prepared to come and enjoy a full week's holiday with us. We will promise you a good time.

Enforce The Dog Law

The Dog Law passed in 1918 for Maryland dog owners' and farmers' protection was in effect last year, but many of its requirements and penalties were ignored or misunderstood. Those who paid this tax claim, and properly, that dog owners who did not comply with the provisions of the law should in fairness be compelled to contribute their share to the general welfare. This the County Commissioners are properly trying to compel the delinquents to do. The tax paid by the dog owners is a very light one for the pleasure of keeping these dogs for the pleasure of having them as well as the danger they may inflict on their neighbors' property, and it may be added, in parentheses, it is usually the worthless dogs that should be killed that do the most damage. This tax is but one or two dollars a year each. This is required to be paid on or before the first day of July of each year. This date is now passed for the year 1919, and the owners who have not paid this small fee and obtained their licenses and tags are in default and liable to the law's penalties for the delay. This is for dogs six months old or over.

Not Paying Insurance Premiums

Three-quarters of the Maryland soldiers and sailors discharged from the service of the United States have allowed their insurance policies to lapse. Because of the unusual advantages of these policies this indifference on the part of the former members of the nation's armed forces is considered most unfortunate.

Information from Washington is to the effect that provision is being made whereby all delinquents can reinstate themselves by the payment of but two months dues, provided their policies have not lapsed over a period to exceed 18 months. Efforts are now being made in Congress to allow the holders of policies to substitute for the small monthly payments now required the placing down of a lump sum, if this plan is more satisfactory. Another change urged is the removal of the restrictions which require that beneficiaries be immediate members of the family.

80,000 Treated At Fort McHenry

More than 80,000 wounded soldiers, returned from overseas service, have been treated at the government hospital at Fort McHenry. This number comprises a fifth of the entire number of soldiers from the American Expeditionary Forces, who were injured while fighting for world freedom against the Hun.

In making public these figures for the first time Col. Joseph M. Heller, government inspector of the hospital, declared more soldiers had received treatment in the Fort McHenry Hospital than at any place in the country. Also, and what was more to the point, a greater number had been cured in its wards than elsewhere.

Death of T. T. Beauchamp

Mr. Tuhman T. Beauchamp, one of the oldest farmers of Brinkley's district, died at his home last Tuesday night at 10 o'clock, aged 85 years.

He is survived by a widow (Mrs. Mary Beauchamp), four daughters (Mrs. J. H. Harlow, of Havre de Grace, Md.; Mrs. J. C. Wilson, of Cheriton, Va.; Mrs. Allen Jones, of Perryville, Md.; Miss Mildred W. Beauchamp, of Wilmington, Del.) and four sons (Messrs. A. James, of Lawrenceville, Ill.; Walter L., of Perryville, Md.; George T. and Talmage B. Beauchamp, of Westover, Somerset county, Md.).

DAYLIGHT SAVING ACT DEAD

Repeal Measure Passed Over President Wilson's Veto

Repeal of the Daylight Saving act was accomplished last Wednesday. The Senate voted to sustain the House in passing the repeal measure over President Wilson's veto. The vote was 57 to 19.

The repeal of the law, which takes its place among the very few which have been passed over a Presidential veto, becomes effective after the clocks are turned back to normal in October.

The act will go down in Legislative history as one of the few measures which have been vetoed twice by a President and have become a law after all by the vote of more than two-thirds in both houses of Congress.

Agitation for repeal of the Daylight Saving law first came from farmers, but was backed by labor unions, mothers' clubs, rural school authorities and many other interests.

Loss in time in farm labor was the principal objection raised to the law. Farmers said that with the clock advanced an hour, work could not begin as early in the morning as under the normal time schedule and must close an hour earlier. This was because the dew on the ground in the early morning prevents farm labor.

Farm hands it was contended, would not work after 6 p. m., clock time, or at most 7 o'clock.

Mothers' objections to the daylight law were based upon confusion of conditions in the home and, fundamentally, loss of sleep by children.

Protests against the law from labor unions and workmen were based upon the requirement for earlier rising. Wives of workmen, it was said, often were compelled to prepare breakfast by artificial light.

Trainmen Get $392 A Month

Railroad trainmen are being paid more than State Governors and high officers of the Army, a letter from R. L. O'Donnell, general manager of the Pennsylvania Railroad, read to the House last Wednesday by Representative Blanton of Texas revealed.

ing $392.35 a month, passenger train engineers $376.85, Mr. O'Donnell's letter said, "Mr. Blanton told the House, 'and yet the Governor of Texas receives only $333.33 and a colonel in the Army the same amount.'

"Freight conductors receive $313.90 and passenger conductors $308.55, which is more than a lieutenant colonel's pay of $291.66, a major's of $250 and a captain's of $208.33. It seems to me that many other people have more justification in striking than railroad employees have."

Famous Shad Becoming Extinct

The fact that the shad for which Maryland has been famous for generations are in danger of becoming extinct is made plain in the report of J. P. Snyder, of the United States Bureau of Fisheries, who is now acting superintendent of the Maryland fish hatcheries, published in the official bulletin of the State Conservation Commission. He suggests as a measure of protection that the taking of shad and also of herring in the pound nets along the bay should be regulated, and that netting these fish on their spawning beds be prohibited. He indicates that unless some adequate measures of protection are taken the fish may soon become extinct, and certainly that unless there is some limitation in taking shad, herring and rock these fish may never again be restored in large numbers.

May Be Your Opportunity

Ambitious young men with a scarcity of cash are offered a fine opportunity to secure a pleasant and paying profession through the engineering scholarships offered by the Johns Hopkins University by advertisement elsewhere in the Marylander and Herald. These scholarships are paid for by the State and include tuition, free use of text books and all regular fees. Some of them also pays $200 a year, which may be used in paying board. The entrance examinations will be held at Gilman Hall, the main building of the University, September 15th to 18th, inclusive; but if there are more than one applicant from a county a competitive examination must be taken September 19th. Full particulars may be obtained by addressing the registrar.

The Ladies' Aid of Quinton Methodist Protestant Church will hold its next meeting Thursday, August 28th, at the home of Mrs. D. J. Dryden. The program will be as follows: Reading, Mesdames Cowger, Johnson, Scott and Lankford. Music, Mrs. Long, Mrs. Coulbourne, Mrs. Halley and Misses Beatrice Hendrick, Ida B. Wilson, Angie L. Scott and Jessie Warren.

OLD GREEN HILL CHURCH

Erected in 1733 Still An Interesting Spot For Episcopalians

For more than one hundred years St. Bartholomew's Day has been made the occasion, at old Green Hill Church, of a reunion each year, of families whose ancestors worshipped in this old church, erected in 1733 on the north bank of the Wicomico River about 12 miles below Salisbury. This year, however, the celebration was changed to the Feast of the Transfiguration, August 6th.

This year the attendance was smaller than usual, owing to the fact that a severe storm which prevailed the night before had made the roads almost impassable. Those who did attend enjoyed the day and left late in the afternoon feeling that they had observed a custom set apart by their ancestors of visiting this venerable edifice at least once a year.

Green Hill Church was erected in 1733, the figures showing the year being on the east gable of the church. Stepney Parish, which is proud to be the mother of this venerable edifice, is closely connected with the history of Somerset county, which at the time the parish was organized, embraced a large portion of Wicomico county. Stepney Parish was composed of two of the four parishes of Somerset, Wicomico and Nanticoke. The first church was built in 1695 and the Rev. John Hewitt was the rector until his death in 1698. From 1698 to 1703 the Rev. George Trotter was rector.

The rectorship of the succeeding clergyman, the Rev. Alexander, was a remarkable one, extending from 1704 to 1769, in which latter year he died. Thus he served Stepney Parish for 65 years, and when he died was 90 years of age. Since that time Green Hill Church has been served by rectors from Salisbury, Quantico and Spring Hill, the services not being at all regular. The rector at the present time is Rev. Mr. Blunt of Quantico.

Timonium Fair Next Week

With every department and class completed and with special amusement features at night Timonium Fair, Timonium, Baltimore county, opens on Labor Day, September 1st, for a week of splendid exhibits and clean, wholesome fun and amusement. Each night will be a special night. The list of awards is unusually large.

Never before has Maryland been so well represented at any fair, it is said, as it will be this year. From all parts of the State breeders of fine stock and growers of fine produce have sent in their exhibits. Particularly good will be the exhibition of farm machinery and implements. Of particular interest to the women will be the Model Home, erected on the grounds and containing a multitude of labor saving devices.

Tuesday, which is Children's Day, will be the day of the big horse show, when the prize horseflesh of the State will parade before the throng expected to attend. There will be no racing on Tuesday, the horse show taking its place.

The opening day will be given over to local societies, and music will be furnished by the Towson Band. St. Mary's Industrial School's "Baby" band will be out in force and those who have heard the youngsters play know what good music to expect on Tuesday.

Wednesday is State Editors' Day and an invitation has been extended to the editors to attend the fair. Tickets have been sent to those accepting the invitation. A battalion of boys from the Maryland School for Boys will attend and their band will furnish the music. A benefit for the Red Men's Home will be held on this night.

Thursday is Governors' Day and in addition to Gov. Harrington, the two candidates for the high position—Hon. Albert C. Ritchie and Harry W. Nice will attend. On Thursday night at 7 o'clock there will be a marathon race.

Friday is Mayors' Day when the mayors of Baltimore and of the nearby cities and towns will be entertained. There will be a benefit for the boy scouts at night.

Saturday is carnival day and night. This will be a day of fun from the opening of the gates in the morning until they close late at night. All during the week the fair will be open until late and 1,500 arc lights will be used to illuminate the great midway and the grounds. The amusement features this year are so great and so numerous that those who go during the day will want to attend at night as well.

The cattle will be shown in the new exhibition building just completed at a cost of $30,000. This building also houses the offices and a first-class restaurant where meals will be served day and night.

REPUBLICAN COUNTY TICKET

The G. O. P. To Have Free-For-All Race In The Primaries

Whatever hope may have been entertained among leaders and other representative party men in Somerset county of avoiding a fight in the forthcoming primary election has drifted to the four winds. Repeated efforts of Somerset Republicans to patch up factional troubles and get together on a ticket has proved futile and a full ticket representing each faction of the party has been filed. The party is divided into the old Duer faction, "the organization" now led by State's Attorney L. Creston Beauchamp, and another faction led by Sherman Dryden, of Crisfield, and State Senator George P. Parsons, of Marion.

In compliance with the election laws of this State Republican candidates for nomination have filed certificates with the Board of Election Supervisors. The candidates follow:

For State Senate—Sherman Dryden, John B. Robins.

For Clerk of the Circuit Court—Harry T. Phoebus, W. Jerome Sterling, William E. Ward.

For members of State Central Committee—Charles S. Dryden, James I. Dennis, Wade H. Ford, Warren C. Gunby, Farran Jones, George P. Parsons, Edward N. Wilson, Vernon C. Ward.

For Judges of the Orphans' Court—Charles H. Bedsworth, Daniel D. Borman, Edward S. Evans, Zadoc H. Phoebus.

For County Commissioner—Robert J. Maddox, Columbus C. Ward.

For Sheriff—H. Frank Conner, Derrick K. Lawson.

For Members of the House of Delegates—Elmer F. Catlin, Henry C. Disharoon, Calvin T. Gladden, Edward J. Hall, William J. Hall, Harry T. Nelson, William C. Todd.

For Delegates to the State Convention—L. E. P. Dennis, Alexander Johnson, Alonzo L. Murrell, Charles T. Wicks, William L. Whittington.

State's Attorney Beauchamp is opposed in the primaries for re-nomination as State's Attorney, but the real fight seems to revolve around his leadership, and the effort of the Dryden-Parsons forces is to dethrone him as leader of the party.

All of these candidates, together with a fac-simile of the official ballot to be used at the primary election on September 8th, will be found in supplement form in this week's issue of the Marylander and Herald.

Good Tires Are Dark In Color

That its tires are now made in dark colors is due not to a fad in style, but to important improvements in the compounds which make up the tire tread, is the statement of the United States Tire Company.

After a long period of experimentation, this company developed a new formula for its tread compounds, so much tougher and much better-wearing, that it was adopted as the standard of manufacture, even though it called for a change from the light color to which the public had been accustomed.

Before the dark tire was placed on the market it was thoroughly tested by the testing fleets of the company. These tests demonstrated that the dark compound produced tires of greater mileage than the lighter stock. The dark colored tires have been on the market long enough now to demonstrate their superiority.

Aside from the matter of the quality of the tire, the dark colored tire has a decided advantage in that it is not so easily discolored as the light tire. To keep a light colored tire presentable required frequent dressing, but the black tire needs no attention of this sort.

If the dark tire offered no superior points, the light tire would probably be in demand with buyers who regarded it with favor, but the unquestioned superiority in toughness and durability of the dark tread makes the matter of color a negligible factor when considered in connection with the subject of the real merits of the tire.

Aeroplane Stunts At Salisbury Fair

The Great Salisbury Fair has entered into a contract for two Curtiss biplanes to give daily exhibition flights during the four days of the Fair which opens today (Tuesday) and continues for four successive days. The exhibition on the grounds will consist of daring dives and loops and almost every other stunt that these machines are capable of performing when driven by fearless and skilful pilots. Anyone who desires a trip in one of these machines can be accommodated, as the aeroplanes are equipped for carrying passengers.

It is the wish of the manager, Richard M. Wheelan, to make any loving couple happy by giving them a chance to be married high in the clouds. Here is your chance, if contemplating matrimony. With either Lieuts. Colyer or Starbuck piloting the planes the happy couple can rest assured that there will be no chance of a falling out between any of the parties concerned as they are both thoroughly experienced pilots.

OYSTER SEASON NEXT MONTH

Bivalves Reported to be in a Healthy Condition And Plentiful

Reports of deputy commanders of the oyster police force to Conservation Commissioner Shaw show that oysters on beds of the Chesapeake Bay and its tributaries, awaiting the tongmen and dredgers in September, are in good, healthy condition and of fine quality.

The Bulletin of the Conservation Commission for September, just issued, after giving the roseate reports of deputy commanders on growing oysters, continues:

The size of the oysters seem better than for a number of years, which is but natural as a result of the retention upon the bottoms during the past two seasons of oysters that were not of 2½ inches, the legal size. Oysters having been conserved to attain their growth give promise of a good quality for Maryland oysters the coming season. The results of these examinations indicate the best prospects for oysters that we have had for a number of years. The effects of trade waste discharged in the upper Bay are still being felt, but the bars there show signs of recovery. In the lower Bay and tributaries, the oyster prospect is exceedingly good.

Attention is also called to a letter sent out by the Commission to all watermen of the state, reminding them again of the possibilities of oyster culture and the practical benefits thereof. So far, during the year 1919, the commission has issued 68 leases covering 428½ acres, and there are now pending 63 applications which have been advertised, and protest period expired. These leases will be issued as soon as the engineer has completed the necessary surveys.

From expressions made by persons interested in oyster culture with regard to the scale of rental for oyster ground, there seems to be some uncertainty in the minds of persons contemplating filing their applications for leases. Originally the Oyster Culture Law prescribed a scale of rental as follows:

One dollar per acre for each of the first two years, $2 per acre for the third year, $3 per acre for the fourth year, $4 per acre for the fifth year and $5 per acre for remainder of term.

When the Conservation Commission assumed charge in 1916, it found many former lessees unwilling to continue their leases and many would-be applicants unwilling to apply for ground because they felt the advancing scale of rentals would not justify them either to continue their old leases or take up new ground.

By virtue of authority of the amended law, the commission decided to inaugurate a new scale of rentals, which is as follows:

$1 per acre until January 1st, 1924, $2 per acre for the years 1924 and 1925, $3 per acre for the years 1926 and 1927, $4 per acre for the years 1928 and 1929 and $5 for all subsequent years of the lease.

Bankers' Dinner For Downes

Arrangements have been completed for the testimonial dinner the State Bank Section of the Maryland Bankers' Association will tender to former State Bank Commissioner J. Dukes Downes, who has just left this position to become vice-president of the Title Guaranty and Trust Company. The affair is in charge of a committee composed of William Spilman, of Baltimore, chairman; W. M. McCormick and Thomas H. Fitchett, of Baltimore; William B. Spiva, of Princess Anne; J. E. Ray, Jr., of Hyattsville; A. W. Sisk, Preston, Caroline county; T. G. Lowndes, Cumberland, and E. C. Hook, Hagerstown. The dinner will be held at the Emerson Hotel, Baltimore, September 11th. This date was selected as it is the eve of a holiday in Maryland and will give county bankers a chance to leave their homes and attend. Governor Harrington and Attorney-General Ritchie have consented to be guests and to make addresses, while Judge Duncan, of Towson, will be toastmaster. The bankers will present Mr. Downes with a handsomely engraved set of resolutions. These resolutions will be presented on behalf of the association by Joshua W. Miles, Internal Revenue Collector for this district, who is also president of the Bank of Somerset, Princess Anne.

Youth Killed By Lightning

While taking a boat to anchor at Hills Point, Neck district, Dorchester county, Monday evening of last week, during the approach of a severe electric storm, George Edward James, 17-year-old son of Oliver James, lost his life from a stroke of lightning.

His younger brother was knocked overboard and returned half-stunned, reporting his brother's disappearance. The father found the boy dead in two feet of water.

PINE GROWING ON EASTERN SHORE

Assistant State Forester Writes Interesting Article On Longleaf Pine

A visitor to the Eastern Shore of Maryland does not have to be particularly observing to become aware of the fact that Nature has here poured out of her bounties with lavish hand. Both land and water have been made to yield those foods which have made "Eastern Shore" a by-word for epicures the country over, whether it be the tempting tomato, the uncalled-for crab, the mouth-melting melon or the banquet bivalve.

But it is not alone in things that satisfy the "inner man" that Nature has outdone herself on the Eastern Shore. As if to facilitate the shipping of these delectables to the uttermost parts of the earth, she has caused to grow here a tree whose lumber adapts itself admirably to the manufacture of containers for these products, whether it be box shooks, barrel staves or basket veneers; namely, the longleaf pine.

To the average Eastern Shore man, there is nothing particularly remarkable about this pine—like the poor, it has been with them always. As a matter of fact, it is the fastest growing commercial timber tree on the Atlantic Coast under natural conditions. And it has been due solely to its splendid vitality and vigor of growth that it has been able to wage even a losing fight against the ruthless attacks of the timber miner, locally known as lumberman. That it is a losing fight can not be denied. Just travel out of town a few miles in any direction and your eye will meet acres upon acres of land growing up to maple, gum and sassafras that the youngest voter can tell you was covered only a few years ago by a splendid stand of pine. In fact, this is so common an occurrence after logging, that we hear even supposedly experienced lumbermen say, "hardwoods will always follow pine." Yes, weeds will always follow crops if you let the land alone and do nothing to encourage the more valuable species. By wise and proper care at the time of logging, pine can invariably be made to follow pine.

In order that this succession of worthless hardwoods may be checked and pine come up again into its own the Marylander and Herald has made available these columns for J. A. Cope, Assistant State Forester, to present some facts which it is hoped will stimulate interest in owners and growers of pine in this section.

At the head of this series of articles, I have called it the Longleaf Pine of the Eastern Shore. It is necessary thus to qualify Longleaf because further south in the Carolinas and Gulf States there is another Longleaf Pine quite different in its rate of growth and general habits. Even this term Longleaf is not in use all over the peninsula, every section has a different name for it. A collection from my notebook runs as follows: Long Shat Pine, Corn Stalk Pine, Old Field Pine, (especially when it grows in the open), Yellow Pine, Rose Mary Pine, etc. In addition to this variety, the Forestry branch of the U. S. Department of Agriculture calls it officially the Loblolly Pine, because the damp depressions or pockets where it grows so luxuriantly in Louisiana are locally known as Loblollies—hence Loblolly Pine. Any of the above might have been chosen as the official name, but since it wasn't, it will be much less confusing to speak of it hereafter by its proper name—Loblolly Pine.

Wicomico News Changes Ownership

Brewington Brothers' Company, owners of a large office building in Salisbury, and part owners of the Wicomico News, a weekly newspaper, have sold out to interests represented by Fred P. Adkins, Dale Adkins and Amos W. Woodcock, who will organize a new corporation known as the News Publishing Company, and conduct the newspaper business which, it is understood, will be of independent political views.

The Brewington brothers have for several months been in ill health. Both Messrs. H. L. and M. V. Brewington will remain at their desks temporarily to assist the new management in the publication of the paper until the new editor or editors are able to come to Salisbury and take charge of the editorial work.

This was announced last Friday by the War Department.

The aggregate strength of these units will be nearly 7,000 officers and men. The infantry regiment comprises 3,800; the Machine Gun Battalion, 775; the artillery, 750, and the Engineers 230, giving a total combatant strength of 5,600.

HER IDLE HOUR

By HORTENSE CALDWELL.

Gladys Carter called it her idle hour, but all her friends called it her busiest. The hour was supposed to be from five to six, spent at the Soldiers' and Sailors' club, but many nights the hands of the clock were long past seven when she left the building.

Every night, except Sunday, for 13 months, she had covered her typewriter, put on her coat and hat and gone to the club. Arriving there she had busied herself making sandwiches and coffee for the men who would arrive shortly for the social hour. Because of her cordiality, she was a great favorite with the men in service, making no distinction between the home boys and the strangers.

One night as she was busy making a delicious looking salad, she chanced to observe a man in uniform just entering the door. In a glance she could see he was a stranger, probably some poor lonely fellow who had never been in that city before. Hurriedly she dropped the fork she had been using, and went to where he was standing.

"How do you do," she said, cordially, as she extended her hand. "You are very welcome."

The fellow smiled his gratitude. Evidently he had been afraid of the reception he would receive.

"Come over here," Gladys continued, "and I will make you acquainted with some of the other men."

Smiling pleasantly, she led the way over to where three boyish looking fellows were standing.

"This is Mr. — Why, I don't believe you told me your name."

"My name is Jenks, Harold Jenks," the newcomer said.

"Oh, yes, Mr. Jenks. Let me present you to Mr. Grant and Mr. Lynn. Now, Paul," Gladys said, turning in the direction of Mr. Grant, "you can see that Mr. Jenks is made perfectly at home."

After Gladys had turned away to greet more boys, Harold turned to Paul. "Why not introduce me to the lady?" he asked.

"Why, I thought you knew her. She is Miss Gladys Carter, much beloved by every man in service."

"Well, I'm glad I'm a member of that society," Harold answered with a smile.

Paul crossed the room and laid his hand on Miss Carter's arm. "Mr. Jenks would like to meet you if you will come over here a minute."

Gladys went to where Mr. Jenks was standing. Paul glanced at them both a little doubtfully and then introduced them. Never once after that did Harold take his eyes from the graceful Gladys as she moved deftly about the room.

His stay in that city was but nine days, but during that short time he was a frequent visitor at the club. At last came the day when he had to say good-by, and sorting out Gladys, led her to a seat.

"You have no idea how much you have done for me here," he began, "and I want to thank you for it all. I'm not going to tell you just how much you mean to me, as I am going to France. But I want you to think of me, and write to me, will you?"

Gladys readily consented, and with tear-dimmed eyes she gave him her hand. "I will think of you now, and after you've gone, Harold, and I may be still here when you come back."

Harold took the hand gravely, smiled and went out.

A month after that the letters had begun to fly over the ocean thick and fast. She, at home doing her bit at the club, was thinking of him, while he, doing his bit in the trenches, saw but one smiling face he had left behind.

At last, he returned home, to find her still keeping her place of mercy. Smilingly he reassured her he was perfectly safe, and glad to be home again; but the clear-eyed Gladys noticed one side of his head was badly scarred.

"I feel as if I had known you all my life, Gladys," he said, "and your letters were so like you, I could fairly see your eyes and feel your touch."

"Your letters were wonderful, too," she replied, "and I always read them during my idle hour."

"Your idle hour," he repeated thoughtfully, "Gladys, you will never realize your vast amount of work in 'your idle hour.'"

"It was mere pleasure for me," she answered, "and I have never been so happy as I was during those hours." "I still want you to be happy, Gladys, but don't you think you might spend those few minutes with me in our home?"

Two weeks later Mrs. Harold Jenks sent cards to her friends saying her 'at home' would be from five to six on Wednesdays. (Copyright, 1919, by the McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

Talkin' About It.

A farmer said to his negro servant: "Jim, have you fed the horses?" "Yassir." "What did you feed 'em?" "Hay." "Did you feed the cows?" "Yassir." "What did you feed 'em?" "Hay." "Did you feed the ducks?" "Yassir." "What did you feed 'em?" "Hay." "Did they eat it?" "Nawsir; dey didn't exactly eat it, so far as I saw, but they were talkin' about it when I let 'em."—Brooklyn Citizen.

WHEN BEATTY PUT TO SEA

Like Drake of Old, Commander of British Fleet Left the Tennis Court for Battle.

Scarcely had I arrived at Aberdour when I learned that some unusual report had come in from the sea. Lieutenant Hunter writes in the World's Work. The admiral had arrived before me and continued to talk on his open wire for some moments. The fleet at once dropped from four to two and one-half hours' notice for steam and shortly afterward was making preparation for departure at a moment's notice. When Sir David came out to the tennis court he suggested that I need not answer the recall signal from my ship as expected, but return with him. "I don't believe they intend to shove off without me," he added. We started our game, but over the wire the admiral had thrown the scent into the kennels and already the leaders of that great pack, so apparently listless a short hour before, were bristling and snarling on the new-found trail. With a pleasant smile Admiral Beatty jerked his racket toward the Firth. From the court which overlooks the entrance could be seen the first of the screening groups as they slipped quietly to sea. Division followed division, as destroyers, light cruisers and scouts passed on to their appointed tasks. The grand fleet was in motion. In motion at the direction of its great commander in chief, who, while actually commanding his fleet by wire, was also my partner in a game of tennis. Messages came to him too often for his liking, as far as the game was concerned. Several he dispatched in reply, but it soon became too hot, forcing departure for a sterner game.

DEMAND NOW IS FOR MUSIC

Freak Attire and Mannerisms No Longer Attract Streams of Dollars to the Concert Hall.

It looks as if the old order of musicians will soon be moss covered. The tously headed individual in freak attire does not find his camouflaged personality a passport to capacity houses. If the dead composers had messages for modern humanity the messages must be interpreted by modern men and modern women.

The musician of today looks like a smart business or professional man rather than an idle dreamer, observes the Philadelphia Record. He is as good a customer as the barber has. Short cropped hair is supplanting the shaggy locks of former days. The schoolboy's Windsor tie and low collar have given way to the neat four in hand and regular business man's collar. The Buffalo Bill chapeau is ousted by the conventional fedora. Odd mannerisms which serve no useful purpose are cast off.

The modern musician is a good mixer. He wants to know his public first hand, and he enters into the general life of the community instead of acting the recluse. By mingling he has learned that people now want music, not gesticulations nor dress. Concert goers are more concerned about what they hear than what they see. An artist's reputation for freakishness off the stage does not offset poor execution on the stage. The music-loving public has developed to the point where sham and pretense are useless. Nothing but the ability to produce good music can get past.

Censor Hun Telephone Talks.

At first, all use of telephones was forbidden to the inhabitants of occupied towns (of Germany), but this rule has been relaxed also. In the French zone the natives are allowed telephone calls within their own city; while in Coblenz the Americans allow this and also permit the use of five trunk lines from the occupied territory into Germany proper. Thus a German in Coblenz may talk directly to a German in Berlin.

Except in cases of extreme personal necessity, all such calls are supposed to be confined to the transaction of important business, and, of course American army censors "listen in" on every call. This privilege was given to the Germans of Coblenz because it was found that the sudden and complete interruption of contact between the two banks of the Rhine caused a great deal of inconvenience and suffering—Gregory Mason in Outlook.

Starting Something.

The household was comparatively quiet when the ten-year-old son looked up from the last page of a recent issue of the News and inquired of both parents sitting near: "What's funny about this here 'Abe Martin'?" "There's never anything 't' eat in a home where the wife is on an allowance." "The joke, my son," his father replied, "is that instead of spending the allowance for eats, the wife blows it in for clubs, clothes, candy and conventions." "No, son," said the mother, "the fact is that the allowance is not large enough to provide a hotel menu, though the men seem to think it is. And that is no joke, either."—Indianapolis News.

Bullet in Brain Twenty Years.

After living for 20 years with a bullet in his brain, Edgar Wilgus, an insurance broker of Trenton, N. J., was killed by a 5-foot fall on the granite steps of a New York hotel. The medical examiner, discovering the bullet in the man's brain, thought at first that he had been unaccountably shot, but learned by telephoning to his home how long he had carried the bullet in his head.

IF ever men are "Tom" and "Bill" to each other, it's when good pipes are a-going. If ever good pipes go their best, 'tis when Velvet's in the bowl.

For Velvet is a mighty friendly smoke. Kentucky Burley is the leaf that Nature made for pipes. Wholesome and hearty, honest as the day. And Velvet is that same good Burley leaf, brought to mellow middle age.

For eight long seasons Velvet "meditates" in wooden hogsheads, throwing off the rawness of "young" tobacco—truly "ageing in the wood." Out Velvet comes—cool, calm and generous—the tobacco Nature made good, kept good and made better.

Velvet's sweetness is the sweetness of good tobacco, not "put on" like "frosting" on a cake. Its mildness comes from natural ageing, not from having the life baked out. Its fragrance is true tobacco fragrance, not a perfume. And Velvet makes an A Number One cigarette. Roll one.

As good old Velvet Joe says:

"Fill yo' heart with friendly thoughts,
Yo' mouth with friendly smoke—
An' let the old world wag."

A Mental Transformation

By LILIAN HALL CROWLEY

(Copyright, 1919, by the McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

Mazie put the manuscript in her bag and started for the subway. She was a very happy young woman this pleasant March morning, for her hopes seemed well on the way to realization. She had been studying and working hard on her music during the past winter in New York. She had the creative faculty and had been encouraged by teachers and friends to try and publish her compositions. She had at last finished some of the manuscripts and was on her way downtown to see a publisher.

Smiling and light-hearted she was ushered into the office where sat the great man whose dictum either made or did not make the would-be artist.

"Is this Mr. Granville?"

"Uh-huh!"

He was a rather large man whose sedentary life had brought about a loose look to his figure. He wore spectacles and did not rise when Mazie introduced herself. A grunt emanated from his tightly closed lips—if a man of importance would do such a thing as grunt. Mazie stated her business. He did not ask her to sit down, and she began to feel indignant.

"We have lots of this kind of stuff." He fingered the manuscript disdainfully. "I don't suppose this is any better than most of the others that come in here."

"But you haven't looked at it!" "I can imagine what it is," he growled, without looking at her.

By this time Mazie was very angry. She did not expect to be received by a man of business as if she were in his dressing room, but she had not counted on this.

Fell to a Sitting Position on the Sidewalk.

"Mr. Granville, this is a business house, is it not?"

"Certainly," he answered in surprise.

"Well, then, I am submitting this music to you as a business proposition. That is for what this business is organized. You do not know whether my music is suitable or not, because you haven't looked at it. If it is what you want, you have value received and you are not doing me a favor. I should think that courtesy would cost you nothing, either in time or money. You think because you are old it is your prerogative to be rude. Good-day!"

She took the manuscript from the desk and started for the elevator.

"Just a moment, Miss Jones." He arose from his chair. "If you will leave the music and your address with me, I will look it over."

"Very well! The address is inclosed." Mazie haughtily handed him the manuscript and walked out of the room without further look.

The city was suddenly thrust in the throes of a heavy snowstorm, and when the first thaw came the streets were a mass of slush and water.

Mazie, although a very pretty girl, knew that her chief beauty was her slender feet. Having a natural pride in their beauty, Mazie always wore the loveliest of lovely shoes; but on this particular day, when she had a number of errands which required walking, she put on her oldest and ugliest shoes and over them a hideous pair of storm rubbers. Returning at dusk, and when she was a block from her boarding place, her feet slipped from under her and she fell to a sitting position on the sidewalk, with both muddy rubbers sticking up as much as to say: "Look at me."

And looked at they were by a man coming round the corner. For a moment he was surprised at the suddenness of the affair—then, looking from ugly rubbers to the face of the fallen one, he exclaimed:

"Why—why, Miss Jones!"

Mazie, humiliated to find herself in such a miserable plight, could only gasp: "Why—why, Mr. Granville!"

"Permit me to assist you." He helped the forlorn girl to her feet and, offering his arm, which she reluctantly took, he escorted her to her door. He was most solicitous about her accident, but Mazie assured him that she was not hurt at all and thanked him coldly for his assistance. He raised his hat as she went in the door.

Mazie was furious with herself.

"To think of how dignified I thought I was that day I snubbed him, and then, of all men in New York, he should find me sitting in front of him in the mud." She gazed ruefully at the rubbers. Then:

"Why should I care! Horrid old thing!"

About eight o'clock in the evening Mazie was surprised to find her rescuer on the telephone.

"Miss Jones," he said, "when I saw you home this evening I realized that you live next door to me, and I should like to run over now and talk to you about the music, if you have fully recovered from your fall. May I?"

"Why—yes—yes, indeed!" Mazie was confused.

She thought: Horrid old man, he wants to return my compositions so I won't bother him at the office again. Nevertheless she went to her room and powdered her nose before the mirror of her dressing room and felt sure that her gown was most becoming.

She smiled as she glanced at the silver slippers which matched it. Then going back to the drawing room, she was ready to receive the ogre. "I shall be dignified to spite him," she thought.

The maid announced "Mr. Granville," and he followed immediately.

"Good evening, Miss Jones." He bowed most graciously, holding the music in his hand.

Mazie was stunned with surprise, for here was a very different person from the man in the office. He was tall and straight, had a pleasant smile and was without spectacles.

"Oh—oh—I thought you were an old man," she exclaimed.

"Well, I am rather—that is, I am thirty-four, which is a great deal older than you."

"I am twenty-four," Mazie replied, "but I thought when I saw you in the office that you were as old as my father. You don't look at all old to-night, though."

"Perhaps I am more human than I was the other day."

"Perhaps," said Mazie, freely. Seeing he was on dangerous ground he changed the subject.

Mazie stole a glance at him and was glad she had looked in her mirror.

"I find I like your music very much, but would like to suggest a few changes. May I show them to you? You see, this is from the standpoint of the market," he hastened to add.

"You are very kind. Yes, I should like to have your criticism."

"Well, hardly that," he replied, "but I think if you would change this it would go better," pointing to a place in the score.

Mazie saw at once that the changes he suggested were an improvement and they went on from that to discuss modern music in comparison with the old.

Tom Granville arose to go. "We haven't finished going over the music. May I come to-morrow night?"

"Oh, yes," Mazie answered. "I am so happy that you are going to publish it. One is so foolish about one's creations, you know."

The next night he took the music with him to have it published.

There were many things to be seen to in the next few weeks which necessitated telephone calls and personal calls in the evening—many of them. Very soon they were calling each other Tom and Mazie.

Mazie loved the outdoors and she and Tom took long walks in Central Park and along Riverside drive; they drank in the delightfully cool air which swept over the Hudson. Tom's muscles began to harden and he soon lost the flabby slouch of the office. In fact he was very good looking and very happy. Mazie had forgotten her first impressions and to her he seemed a great, big, splendid hero.

They found they were most congenial, for not only had they their music in common, but both loved pictures and visited the art galleries together whenever Tom could leave the office and Mazie her studies. These days were eagerly looked forward to and became a part of their lives.

At last the time drew near for Mazie to go back to her home in Ohio. Only one more afternoon for them to be together. They were very silent as they seated themselves on a bench near the big fountain in Central park.

"Will you marry me, Mazie? I have loved you from the moment you scolded me in the office."

"What if it should become a habit with me? You wouldn't like to be scolded again, would you?" she asked smiling roguishly at him.

"Yes, yes, by all means scold if I ever become such a boor again. I was settling into the worst form of old bachelorhood when you startled me out of my complacency. Please marry me and save me!"

Mazie's worshipful look was turned full upon his handsome face as she replied:

"I will marry you, but it will be because I love you!"

Historic Island.

The little island in the mouth of the Forth, which was the rendezvous for the German cruiser Konigsberg, and the British fleet, has had previous associations with the Hungarians, if not with the Germans. It contains the ruins of a thirteenth century chapel dedicated to St. Adrian, who, with 6,000 other Hungarians, are said to have been killed by the Danes and buried on the island. In former times 15 fishermen, with their families, lived on the May, and at the end of the fishing season, the fishermen of the Fife coast used annually to hold a merry making on the island. The wreck and total loss of a boatful of women on its passage to the May brought the custom to a tragic end.

The people who wish to save the cost of advertising should carry out their idea to its logical conclusion and cut out clerk hire.

The stock of hides and leather is said to be ample to supply shoes at lower prices, but the supply of honesty seems to have run short.

Such vast quantities of food are being hoarded that a lot of it must spoil, but that portion of it will be useful to feed to the speculators when they get into jail.

If the railroad brotherhood people think they are the only people in the United States that can operate the railroads they are laboring under a very great delusion.

It is claimed that the butchers charge too much, but just think of all the automobiles they have to keep to supply people who are too proud to carry a pound of meat home.

Anxious inquirer asks what is meant by "Soviet government." Well, that is a form of society where everyone gets everything they want and no one has to do any work. Hooray!

Some one asks what has become of the kids that used to read the dime novels about pirates? O, well, now they are grown up and reading in the newspapers about the profiteers. Same thing.

CATTLE SHOWS AND PUBLICITY

The desire of progressive farmers for cattle shows and agricultural fairs was originally due to the need they felt for publicity for their enterprises. Therein they showed themselves more progressive than some merchants who always criticize farmers for lack of enterprise. This type of merchants say that a man who sells good goods can market his product solely on his reputation from past sales without any effort for publicity.

The progressive farmer found that without publicity he could not get prices for his product warranted by their merit. He might turn out a superior product but buyers might not hear of him and might not know what he was doing.

To disseminate this information, wide awake farmers started the agricultural shows and impartial judges awarded prizes to those who were producing the best goods. The result was to help these progressive producers to win attention and market their product. It also improved the product of all who participated in these fairs by stimulating them to get into the game and use the best methods. Thus the result was to improve the product and the service of the whole community.

In any community, Princess Anne, for instance, the displays of the merchants at any time constitute a fair just as interesting as the displays at a first-class agricultural show. Without advertising there would be no sufficient means for those who make the best showing to command the most attention.

Advertising promotes rivalry in the service of the public and it enables those who collect superior stocks at the lowest values to call public attention to them and get the bulk of the business. Thus advertising improves the service rendered the public and does the same for a retail center that the cattle show does for the farming community.

JUSTIFICATION FOR PRICES

Some dealers who are criticised on the charge of profiteering, justify their prices on the ground that they "can get it." Apparently they feel it is fair for them to ask any price that the public is willing to pay.

As a correspondent wrote in an exchange, the man who owned a good fire engine could get almost any price for the use of his machine if it was needed at a fire. But that would not prove that a high charge was fair.

The real justification for a price is what it costs to produce and distribute an article including a moderate return to the producer and distributor. A great many of the prices now being charged go far beyond this standard of comparison. They include a speculative profit. The people are getting tired of enriching speculators.

The folks who kick on the high cost of traveling might take their next vacation near home where the scenery is considered very beautiful by people who live a thousand miles away.

POLITICAL DISCUSSION

The libel suit of Henry Ford against the Chicago Tribune raised many interesting questions as to how far a newspaper can go in criticising political opponents. The libel law is rather vague and as both parties claim a victory in this case little new light is thrown on this problem. The newspaper writer as before will have to be governed by his own sense of fairness and decency.

Public debate is always in danger of running to one of two extremes. Some writers are abusive and say things about public men that are grossly unjust. But this evil tends to cure itself. Newspapers guilty of such utterances hurt themselves more than anyone else and they disgust the public.

On the other hand, if the libel law was literally or drastically enforced, newspapers would be fearful in engaging in frank discussion. To bring out the truth about public men and office holders, people must be able to speak with some freedom. If they can't say what they think, discussion will be pale and colorless. Sincere conviction will be suppressed, criticism will be muzzled, and the public will fail to get a clear and accurate view of the fitness and character of public men.

So, although freedom of discussion has its evils and is often abused, it is dangerous to public interest to hold it down too closely. In most libel suits this has been the feeling of courts and juries. If they felt that facts were not misstated and if malice was not shown, they were tolerant with expressions of opinion, if these seemed sincere. Suppressing the expression of honest conviction is much like muzzling a good watchdog.

A Test Case For Carranza

The Mexican bandits who seized and held for ransom two American aviators afford Carranza an opportunity to prove his willingness and ability to protect foreigners in Mexico and to punish criminals. The incident furnishes a test case as to the genuineness of his professions and as to his power to make them good. This bandit gang appears to operate in a particular locality and to be well known there. Its members are so open in their negotiations for the ransom that they designate the storekeeper with whom it may be deposited, and they carry on their bandit business fearlessly right up to the Texas line. There ought to be no great difficulty in running them down, if Carranza is not impotent or insincere.

The Mexican Government owes it to us to throw such a force into that section and to hunt this band with such vigor that it cannot escape. Diaz could have done this and would have done it. If Carranza does not do it, it will be either because he cannot or will not. If he is either too weak or too indifferent to do so, we may have to insist on doing it for him. We pursued Villa for several hundred miles into Mexico territory, and we may be forced to make smaller criminals take notice.

Police work of this sort is very different from making war on Mexico. We have a right to insist that the boundary line and its vicinity be made safe for Americans—that they shall not be murdered or kidnapped, if they chance to overstep it by a few yards. If Carranza cannot or will not delouse this part of Mexico, we may have to declare it a nuisance and clean it up ourselves. A vigorous declaration to that effect might bring speedy results.—Baltimore Sun.

A Traveling Man's Experience

You may learn something from the following by W. H. Ireland, a traveling salesman from Louisville, Ky. "In the summer of 1888 I had a severe attack of cholera morbus. I gave the hotel porter fifty cents and told him to buy me a bottle of Chamberlain's Colic and Diarrhoea Remedy and to take no substitute. I took a double dose of it according to directions and went to sleep. At five o'clock the next morning I was called by my order and took a train for my next stopping place, a well man."

The object of this suit is to procure a decree for the sale of certain real estate situated in the town of Crisfield, Somerset County, Maryland, of which William E. Tuchten, late of Delaware, died seized and possessed.

The bill states that the said William E. Tuchten departed this life on or about the 8th day of May, 1908, intestate, leaving surviving him a widow, Frances B. Tuchten, and the following children and grandchildren as his sole heirs at law, to-wit:

(a) Stanley P. Tuchten, a son, who married Catherine R. Tuchten, both of whom are of full age and reside in Newcastle County, State of Delaware; (b) Martha T. Lewis, a daughter, who is a widow, of full age and resides in said Newcastle County; (c) Helen T. Ross, a daughter, who married Walter W. An Old Fault Finder
An irritable and fault finding disposition is often caused by indigestion. A man with good digestion and bowels that act regularly is usually good natured. When troubled with indigestion or constipation take Chamberlain's Tablets. They strengthen the stomach and enable it to perform its functions naturally. They also cause a gentle movement of the bowels.

The New Pied Piper

DON'T LET HIM LURE AWAY YOUR GOVERNMENT SECURITIES.

You remember how the Pied Piper of Hamelin Town played a siren tune on his pipe and lured the children away. The land is now full of Pied Pipers who are trying to induce people to sell their Liberty Bonds and War Savings Stamps. They are making "golden" promises; they are offering stock in concerns which they say will make you rich. Hold your government securities. Don't let the Pied Pipers make a laughing stock and a sucker out of you.

HE TELLS WHAT HE THINKS OF AMERICA

Syrian Says Now Is Time For Every Man To Prove Patriotism—Answer Found In War Savings Stamps.

It sometimes takes the new-comer to appreciate America. The native-born is often too close to the situation to realize what this country means to the world today. He is used to all that it offers, taking it as a matter of course, and frequently loses the vision in sordid detail; while the new-comer—but listen to what one of them had to say.

He is George E. Rihbany of the 1915 class of the Boston High School of Commerce and he came to this country from his native land, Syria, when he was 10 years old. In a four-minute speech on the value of War Savings Stamps, given at the school recently, he said in closing:

"Hate is not characteristic of the American people, but the Germans taught us unwillingly how to hate them. Now it is a sin not to hate the spirit the Hun showed and not to abolish it from the face of the earth. Of the latter we are positively sure, because the American passion for justice is a hundred times stronger than was the German passion for conquest. 'I never entertained the idea of becoming an orator and I am sure that I lack oratorical ability, but such qualifications are unnecessary on an occasion like this, because the only and best inducement to a true American is the call of his duty and government, and not even the best orator of the greatest speaker of all times.

"Whether we all realize it or not, we are now in the midst of a period which will be known to all the oppressed peoples of the world as the Americanization period. Now is the time for every one of us to prove whether he is a sham American or a genuine American."

The practice of thrift and the purchase of War Savings Stamps are just two good indications of the genuine American. They make for financial independence, freedom, prosperity and happiness.

UNCLE SAM'S MONEY BEST IN THE WORLD

Color Looks Good To Boys Coming Home After Seeing Only Foreign Currency for Months.

Just how good American money looks to a man away from home is illustrated by the story told by one of those boys who fought in France in the war for the preservation of civilization, and who afterwards saw service across the border in Germany.

Sergeant H. H. Coffey was attached to Company L, 354th Infantry, and for six months was at Trier, Germany, 80 miles from Luxembourg. Now he is back home.

"While we were in France," said Sergeant Coffey, "we were paid in French money. And afterwards, when we were in Germany, we were paid in German money. The difference between the French and German money, as compared with United States money, is amazing. It is printed on white paper, and one gets an awful wad of it for comparatively a small quantity of American money.

"When we got this foreign stuff the boys were very liberal with it. They would gamble with it, would lend it and handle it very carelessly. But when we got to Brest on our way home, and that money was exchanged for real American money, all that liberality disappeared, and it was guarded jealously."

That is one of the lessons the war has taught. American money, any promise to pay on the part of Uncle Sam, is mighty valuable in the eyes of the world. That is why the Liberty Bonds found so ready a market, and that is why the War Savings Stamps look just as good as money. They are both evidences of indebtedness on Uncle Sam's part and his written promise to pay. There is no record yet that he ever failed to meet an obligation.

KEEP GRIP ON YOUR WAR SAVINGS STAMPS

Advertising Clubs Issue Warning To Protect the Public Against Ubiquitous Stock Swindlers.

Various ways for prospective investors to detect the unscrupulous stock promoters are contained in a bulletin recently issued by the National Vigilance Committee of the Associated Advertising Clubs of the World. The bulletin indicates several unmistakable signs of the "wild cat" stock peddlers which owners of War Savings Stamps and Liberty Bonds will do well to consider before exchanging their valuable securities for the offerings of northern stocks. The warning to prospective investors is as follows:

"So far as we have been able to ascertain not a single case has ever been reported where the promoters of a legitimate, worthy enterprise have offered to take Liberty Bonds in payment for the capital stock of a new company. We believe that the very offer to take Liberty Bonds should prompt the bond owner to consult a banker or legitimate broker as to the value of the stock that is offered in exchange for the bonds. The offer to exchange is an earmark which should serve as a warning.

"Another earmark of the faker is his attitude when it is proposed to postpone action pending an investigation. He will usually sneer at the thought of consulting a banker or broker of standing, suggesting that, of course, they would not recommend the stock because they have stocks of their own to sell.

"In such a case the prospective investor might be sensible enough to remember that it is the one who casts reflections upon business men of standing who is likely to be the fly-by-night salesman, and that the banker has been in the community many years and will no doubt continue in business for many more. He might reason that an established firm would figure that it could not afford to deceive. Yet there are thousands of people who allow themselves to be hoodwinked because they believe such fairy stories."

HAND GRENADE BANKS WILL SOON BE READY

Children Are Urged to Begin Saving Money At Once So That They Will Not Lose Any Time.

Some 350,000 hand grenade banks will be ready for distribution in the Fifth Federal Reserve District by August 20, according to a statement issued at the War Loan Organization of this district.

Every one of these hand grenades was manufactured to carry destruction to the Hun, and now, with percussion cap and explosive removed, they are to serve in the campaign for thrift. Made into penny-slot banks they will be lent, one to each child under seventeen years old who calls at a bank. Then, if enough money to purchase one or more War Savings Stamps is saved in a specified time, the hand grenade becomes the property of the child.

There has been some delay in Washington in getting the grenades ready for distribution, due to the large number that had to be prepared for their new capacity, but it is now assured that they will shortly be ready. Every child who would like a real souvenir of the great war can get it by calling at the bank as soon after August 20 as possible, for there will probably be more than 250,000 children in the district who will want the grenades, and the supply is necessarily limited.

Meanwhile, the children are urged to begin saving at once so that they may have a "running start" when the grenade banks are delivered. The sooner enough money is saved to buy a War Savings Stamp the sooner the hand grenade belongs to the child, and the sooner the child begins to save the sooner the desired end will be reached.

DAIRY

INCREASE IN DAIRY PROFITS

Dairy Bull Associations Have Done Good Work and Show Big Increase in Incomes.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

Scrub dairy bulls are doomed. The bull association sounds their death knell, but it replaces them with bulls of better breeding. In June, 1918, there were 44 dairy bull associations and several have been organized since then. They are doing excellent work. Without exception they show an increased income without an increased cost.

The New Windsor (Maryland) Bull association has furnished production records of dams and daughters for three successive years. Each year the daughters have produced more milk and butter fat than their dams, which demonstrates that the bulls were well selected. Of the 21 daughters of association bulls for which the 1918 records are available, 16 excelled their dams in butter-fat production, and 15 excelled their dams in production of both milk and butter fat.

The average yearly production of the dams was 5,500 pounds of milk and 219 pounds of butter fat. The average yearly production of the 21 daughters was 6,523 pounds of milk and 263 pounds of butter fat. In milk production the daughters excelled their dams by 963 pounds or 17 per cent, and in butter-fat production by 44 pounds, or 20 per cent. These are not as large gains as some other bull associations have given, but are well worth while.

Because of co-operative ownership the bulls cost the farmers no more than would have been paid for scrubs; it costs no more to feed the daughters than to feed the dams, and it costs much less to feed the bulls because there were not so many of them. The increased production, therefore, was all net profit.

GROWS GARDEN TO BUY CALF

Washington Boy Raises Prize-Winning Vegetables and Buys Jersey Heifer With Money.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

Alfred Olson of Klickitat county, Wash., is a member of one of the calf clubs organized by the United States department of agriculture and the state college of Washington. With his purebred Jersey heifer calf, Arcus Babe, he won the state championship prize last year. In 1917 Alfred became interested in the calf club work, but a purebred calf costs money, and he did not have funds to buy that requisite for membership. To enroll in a garden club as the first step toward entering the calf club may seem unusual, but that was what the Klickitat county boy did, and he reached the desired goal. The weeds in his club garden kept him busy all summer, but he gave it such faithful care that his vegetables were prize winners. He exhibited a collection of them at the state fair and took $60 worth of prizes.

Meanwhile he had been writing to Jersey breeders for prices and descriptions of calves. He decided on Jerseys because that was the breed his father had. With $40 of his garden prize money he bought a month-old Jersey heifer calf in October. He kept her in the barn all winter, but in the spring she was turned out on the range. When brought in in September to be made ready for exhibition purposes she was larger at eleven months than his father's grade calves of fifteen months. At the state fair Alfred's Jersey was awarded the state championship prize in the boys' and girls' club class and was valued at $150.

SMALL-TOP MILK PAIL BEST

Prevents Entrance of Dust or Dirt and Greatly Reduces Number of Bacteria in Milk.

In modern dairies where clean milk is produced the small-top milk pail is a necessity, as it presents only a small opening into which dust and dirt may fall from the air or from the cow's body. It has been found by experience that the use of a pail of this kind greatly reduces the number of bacteria in milk from dairies where it is used. Many types of milk pails are for sale, but any tinier by the addition of a hood can convert an ordinary pail into a small-top pail.

Even the Germans Had Some Horse Sense

*Hunland, Preparing For War, Did Not Overlook
Part To Be Played By Steeds*

At the risk of perpetrating a pun, it must be said that even the Germans, at the beginning of the war anyway, had horse sense, for they realized the great part played in war by the horse. O'Neil Sevier, the great authority on the history of the development of the horse, tells us:

"At the outbreak of the great war the German imperial studs of Gratz and Trakenen were the domiciles of the British derby winning stallions Galtee More and Ard Patrick, each of which had cost the German Imperial treasury $110,000, also of Binitou, a French stallion and a Grand Prix du Conseil Municipal winner, which had cost another $97,000. Austria-Hungary had in service a French stallion called Adam, which had been stud service in this country and had been purchased at public auction at Paris for $58,000; also Robert le Diable, which had been imported from Great Britain only a few years before at a cost of $80,000, along with the American stallions Aymer, Blue Label, Fountainblu, King Hanover, etc.

"France had in service Hermis, a Brighton Cup and Suburban handicap winner on this side and upwards of 3,500 other stallions, one of which, Blarney, a son of our own Irish Lad, had been presented to the Government by the late Herman B. Duray, of Brooklyn.

"Hermis had been obtained by gift from Edmond Blanc, the Monte Carlo croesus. Germany maintained thoroughbred stallions at 4,000 station stations in selected breeding districts. These stallions served the mares of neighborhood farmers free, the Government, however, reserving the privilege of buying all foals at 3 years old at previously fixed prices, provided they fulfilled exactly military standards.

"Austria-Hungary maintained as many more stallions, and the production of horses of suitable military type in dual monarchy territory so far exceeded military requirements the Government was permitting the sale of grades in Germany, in the neighboring Balkan States and in Italy.

"Great Britain, the cradle of the thoroughbred family and the great source of supply of basic thoroughbred stock for the entire world, had not nationalized the production of horses for military purposes. Private breeders had easily supplied the needs of her comparatively small standing army of less than 500,000 soldiers of all arms. But the difficulty she and her allies have experienced these three years in obtaining, even at a cost of another 300 or 350 million dollars in Canada, Australia, South Africa and the Argentine Republic, another million and a half horses to supplement the million and more bought in the United States, has convinced her statesmen of the necessity of making new and vast plans for horse production in the future.

"A year ago last spring Major J. Hall Walker, one of Great Britain's most distinguished soldier-sportsmen, made a patriotic gift to his country, of his entire stud of thoroughbred stallions, broodmares and animals of racing age, the value of which was fixed at more than $3,000,000. Parliament accepted this gift as a nucleus for an imperial breeding scheme and immediately appropriated another $3,000,000 for the extension and development of the work. And, taking a leaf from militarily efficient Germany's book of experience, the British Government entered into an arrangement with Lord Lonsdale to race the produce of the new imperial stud on the tracks of Great Britain and Ireland for the purposes of elimination and classification. After the war this imperial breeding scheme, which is an imperial scheme now in name only, is to be made a real one by taking in the already flourishing bureaus of Canada, Australia and New Zealand.

"There is a homely saying in the West and Southwest that when a man has the good fortune to get his head above the tall grass it (the head) immediately becomes the target for rocks hurled by his less enterprising, or less fortunate, neighbors. The exigencies of the great war have thrust up out of the tall grass our own national head. In three years the United States have been transformed from an insular power, albeit a great and self-sufficient one, into the world's leading power in finance, industry and commerce. National pride and national greed make imperative the maintenance of such permanent military preparedness as will be necessary for the defense of this leadership. And the history of the last three years in Europe has demonstrated to the satisfaction of all, save the most fatuous pacifists, that a nation with anything worth taking in these days of super dreadsnaughts that plow through the oceans at 30 knot speed and submarine monsters that carry six-inch deck guns and cruise from 3,000 to 5,000 miles, undefended by a mobile army thoroughly equipped in every particular, that does not run into millions invites the fate of Northern France, of Belgium, of Rumania, of Russia, of Serbia.

"We are going to come out of this war with an army that will run into millions, an army that will be efficient in technical training and military spirit for another generation. Perhaps, too, before we are through with the Central Empires, or they with us, the stubborn national prejudice against universal military training and the obligation of universal military service will have disappeared and we will have adopted either the Swiss or the Australian defense system which will have assured us of sufficient, and immediately available, man power for all time. Already we have developed a proficiency, unexcelled anywhere else in the world, in the production of powder and ball, and of the complicated engineering of modern warfare and our resources of fuels and minerals are inexhaustible.

"But we are now, and will be in definitely defenseless unless something is done in a national way to stimulate production, woefully short in horse power."

and cowpeas are relished by horses, and when accessible will serve as a careful addition to the grain feed for mares in foal. They are relatively rich in protein, and consequently combine well with corn.

Roughage.
Timothy hay is a popular roughage for horses. Brome grass makes good hay which is equal to timothy hay in feeding value. Orchard grass, if cut in early bloom, is equal to the best of the hay grasses, and carries considerably more crude protein than timothy. Meadow fescue is not so valuable as timothy for horses. Sudan-grass hay is a safe feed for mares, and numerous native prairie grasses furnish hay that is equal to timothy. Clover hay is likely to be dusty, but it has great fattening qualities. Millet is not a safe feed for mares in foal. Corn fodder frequently is used to feed idle horses in the winter, but there is not enough nutrition in it alone for mares in foal. The same thing is true in a greater degree of straw. If either is fed, good-quality hay also should be fed. Unthrashed cowpea or soy-bean hay is also a valuable roughage which is relished by horses. Even the thrashed hay contains considerable nutrition. It should not be fed to brood mares if it contains any mold. Alfalfa hay makes an excellent feed for mares if it is fed once a day and timothy or corn fodder given at the other feeding. Occasionally alfalfa hay is not properly cured, causing it to mold badly in which case it should not be fed to the horses. Farmers have reported occasionally that alfalfa causes the kidneys to act too freely, but it is likely that this trouble will not be noticed if the alfalfa does not make up over one-half of the roughage.

To sum up: Proper feed of sufficient quantity and variety, regularly supplied; moderate, uniform work, and careful handling will maintain an in foal mare in proper physical condition to develop a healthy, strong foal.

THE MOST DANGEROUS DISEASE

No organs of the human body are so important to health and long life as the kidneys. When they slow up and commence to lag in their duties, look out! Find out what the trouble is—without delay. Whenever you feel nervous, weak, dizzy, suffer from sleeplessness, or have pains in the back—wake up at once. Your kidneys need help. These are signs to warn you that your kidneys are not performing their functions properly. They are only half doing their work and are allowing impurities to accumulate and be converted into uric acid and other poisons, which are causing you distress and will destroy you unless they are driven from your system.

PRINCESS ANNE. — MD.

ON SUNSET HILL

By CHRISTINE HAYES.

As she pinned on her hat Anne Waring suppressed a savage desire to tear it into shreds and instead smiled encouragingly at her reflection in the cheap square mirror.

"A good, brisk walk, and you'll be a new woman, my dear," she said.

A good, brisk walk was Anne's stock remedy for a dark blue afternoon. It had never failed, perhaps because she was seldom troubled with dark blue afternoons.

Indirectly the hat was responsible for this one—hence the brief annihilative impulse. Directly, however, a thoughtless remark was to blame, one of those chance shots that hurt by their very truth.

It was Saturday, and a half-day at the office, so after lunch she had run in to see her sister. Her twelve-year-old niece, Ruth, had greeted her with "Oh, auntie, I just love you in that hat! Don't you think small hats are so much more becoming to middle-aged people?"

Anne had gasped, thankful that Ruth was rattling on without noticing her discomfiture. She had made a hurried departure and, locking herself in her lodging house room, had striven to readjust her world. Somehow she had never thought of herself as middle-aged. And by modern standards she was not. The idea had come like a shock, and it was not welcome. She could not have told why. Certainly she had expected to be middle-aged some time.

Now, drawing on her gloves, she peered into the mirror again, more closely. Yes, the lines at the corners of her mouth were deepening. Picking up her muff she walked down the stairs rather slowly. At the street door she paused a moment, feeling as though she were about to face the world in a new character.

Once outside, however, the clear, cold air brought a rose pink to her cheeks and a sparkle to her eyes, and gradually her sense of depression slipped away before the thousand-and-one interesting things Anne always managed to see on her way.

"I'll walk out to Rolf," she decided, "and just about get there in time to see the sunset from that hill. Then I can take the car back."

Out in the more open spaces of the suburbs, Anne faced her problem squarely.

"You must get used to the idea, Anne Waring," she admonished herself. "You are middle-aged—middle-aged. I don't think it's the growing old that you mind, though, so much as the growing old in office-lodging-house restaurant surroundings. And your surroundings are your own fault; but it's too late now. You were foolish enough to let a silly quarrel with Peter spoil your whole life!"

But in spite of herself, Anne's mind dwelt on Peter Lee rather wistfully. Peter and she had been engaged for almost a year when a dispute had occurred over some trivial matter. To the dismay of each of them the dispute had of its own accord, it seemed, taken on the proportions of a quarrel. Both had been obstinate and proud, and at last Peter had gone away. Anne had never heard from him since.

She was still thinking of him when she reached Sunset Hill. She had timed her walk well, for the drama of the sunset was just being staged, the pine trees black against the glory of the flaming sky. Breathlessly Anne watched its gorgeous shifting.

"Anne Waring! What are you doing on my hill? Didn't you see my trespass signs? But the Spirit of Lost Happiness heeds no trespass signs. I, of all men might have known that."

At her name Anne had turned, to see Peter Lee.

"But—I'm not the Spirit of Lost Happiness," she protested, feeling strangely as though they had parted only yesterday.

"Well, if you're not the Spirit of Lost Happiness, perhaps—would you be the Spirit of Happiness, Anne—not lost, you know, but found? You see, you've haunted my thoughts so long that I'm bound to have you a spirit of some kind. Anne, you could forgive me—"

Anne forgave him.
"Peter," she whispered a few moments later, "doesn't the sunset grow old gracefully?"

Yanks Like French Souvenirs.
Yankee soldiers are keeping the French shops busy these days. Souvenirs of France are all the go. Among these souvenirs are brooches bearing the arms of different cities. The head of the famous Lion of Belfort, the statue of Bartholdi, the sculptor who designed the Goddess of Liberty, is another favorite. The Lorraine cross has also proved very popular with the Yanks. This symbol has two sets of cross arms instead of one. It appears particularly to the Americans because of the part which the Yanks played in Lorraine during the war. The Red Cross dog and the lucky white elephant charm are other French souvenirs which the Americans are procuring in large numbers to take back to the states.—The Spiker, France.

No Palace.
"You were going to call your nickel theater—?"
"Plunk's Palatial Palace."
"And why did you change your mind?"
"The building wasn't wide enough to get that across the front in electric letters."

Environment.

We are very much what others think us. The reception our observations meet with gives us courage to proceed or damps our efforts. A man is a wit and a philosopher in one place who dares not open his mouth and is considered a blockhead in another. In some companies nothing will go down but coarse, practical jests, while the finest remark or sarcasm would be disregarded.—Hazlett.

WORDS FROM HOME

Statements That May Be Investigated. Testimony of Princess Anne Citizens

When a Princess Anne citizen comes to the front, telling his friends and neighbors of his experience, you can rely on his sincerity. The statements of people residing in far away places do not command your confidence. Home endorsement is the kind that backs Doan's Kidney Pills. Such testimony is convincing. Investigation proves it true. Below is a statement of a Princess Anne resident. No stronger proof of merit can be had.

Oscar Long, Route 1, Extension Antioch ave., says: "Several years ago I had severe attacks of backache and, in fact, had been troubled more or less all my life. Whenever I did anything that required stooping, I had sharp pains in the small of my back. I was forced to get up several times at night to pass the kidney secretions and was in very bad condition. After using several boxes of Doan's Kidney Pills, I was cured. I have enjoyed good health ever since and I can heartily recommend Doan's Kidney Pills to anyone suffering from backache or other kidney trouble.

Price 60c. at all dealers. Don't simply ask for a kidney remedy—get Doan's Kidney Pills, the same that Mr. Long had. Posters-Milburn, Co., Mfgs., Buffalo, N. Y.

School Days Are Drawing Near

Are Your Children Prepared?

YOU, Mothers and Fathers, know how hard Children are on Shoes, and yet, very often, the child is blamed for wearing out the Shoes too quickly when the Shoes themselves are really too poor to stand the wear an active child will give them.

You would not spend your money for some shoes if you could cut them open and see what is inside of them. A solid leather shoe, if properly made, wears longer, holds its shape longer and, in every way, is a better shoe than one in which substitutes for leather are used. Do not buy shoes without having an opportunity to see the shoes themselves, and then study their quality and construction.

"Star Brand," "Ferris" and "Little Jack Horner" Shoes for Children are attractive in appearance and made to permit the proper development of the child's foot. Best of all, they are Right in Price.

THE GREAT SALISBURY FAIR

WILL OPEN ON

Tuesday, Aug. 26th, 1919

And Continue for Four Consecutive Days

EVER SINCE THIS FAIR was first started it has been the endeavor of its management to make it better and better each succeeding year. The arrangements made this year make it certain that those who visit this, the great Fair event of this peninsula, will find entertainment that will please and gratify them. The war clouds have rolled away and peace is again with us. Agriculture, however, holds its place as the leading and most essential industry of the world. Food all must have, and it is the hope that better and larger crops of all kinds may be encouraged through the medium of this and other Fairs. We earnestly request that all those who have anything worth displaying will communicate with our Secretary and make arrangements to exhibit at our Fair farm produce of all kinds, poultry and live stock, products of the housewife's industry, such as jellies, canned goods, bread, cake, etc. It is only by the hearty co-operation of those in this community that we can hope to make our display such as will help those engaged in these various industries.

AMUSEMENTS

Believing that good, healthy and clean entertainments are necessary and essential to the thousands that annually visit our grounds, arrangements have been made to provide a program of interesting events which cannot help but please our patrons.

DUTCH JEANETTES

The Dutch Jeanettes is an animal and acrobatic act of most unusual merit, consisting of three people, twenty bird actors, eight dog actors, and last, but not least, Alonzo, the famous Monk. The act opens up with an unusual and comedy acrobatic performance by the two men, assisted by two of the dogs, a performance similar to their relatives, the Gaudschmids, who have been playing the New York Hippodrome all season. This is a fine act, and one that all will enjoy seeing.

MACLARENS

The Musical MacLarens is an act of unusual merit, consisting of four beautiful girls, assisted by Hugh MacLaren, the brother. They open in Scotch costumes playing bagpipes and drums, and then the four ladies dance a Scottish dance while the brother plays the bagpipes; the anvil chorus is played, using two anvils, two cornets and a trombone; they also introduce the buck and wooden shoe dancing, finishing with two cornets, two trombones and trap drums. This is one of the best acts of this kind on the road to-day. It is not one of the cheap imitation musical comedies that are so often seen, but the real, genuine thing.

MARVELOUS MELVILLE

Last, but not least, is a wonderful, sensational act, by Marvelous Melville, the famous gymnast. This act was recently featured as the leading gymnastic performance of Barnum & Bailey's greatest show on earth. It is wholly novel and absolutely unlike anything of its kind ever seen before. It is an intricate performance with a remarkable combination of strength, daring and agility which stirs its beholders with enthusiasm. This Fair considers it is very lucky to get a feature of this kind on its grounds this year, and feel certain that those who see it will say that this one act alone is worth the full price of admission. All of these acts are free and will be staged across the track where they can be seen from the grandstand and grounds.

RACING

There has never been a year in the history of this Fair when the outlook for good horses and spirited racing was better than now. Inquiries for racing blanks have been received from far-off Michigan even. Those who love a horse and enjoy hotly contested trotting and pacing races can feel assured that they, this year, will have as great a treat as they have enjoyed for some time.

MOTORCYCLE RACING

There is nothing that runs on the "good old earth" at such a tremendous rate of speed as a motorcycle. The way they whirl around a track, taking the curves, is enough to make the most hardened men and women hold their breath, waiting for the spill which every moment seems certain, but which the great skill of these trained riders always succeed in avoiding. We have recognized the great interest that these motorcycle races create, and have each year devoted more and more of our time and money to making them the best that could be obtained. This year unusually interesting races have been arranged, and it is prophesied that some of the racers will make record-breaking time on the track.

MIDWAY

We hope this year to present to our patrons one of the best Midways we have ever had. The Great American Shows, one of the biggest carnival companies on the road today, has been engaged to attend our Fair and open up its wonderful shows to the public. It is impossible to go into details as to all the forms of amusements that can be found under the tents of this big carnival company. It is sufficient to say that it has all that the usual carnival has and much more besides, and that these shows will be amusing, interesting, instructive and decent. On the Midway there will also be found many other things which will prove well worth seeing.

On TUESDAY, "Children's Day," all children under twelve years of age, will be guests of the Association and admitted to the grounds FREE. Admission on this day will be 30 cents (war tax included).

WEDNESDAY and THURSDAY, or "Everybody's Days," when almost everybody who can will be there, our price will be as usual, 55 cents (war tax included), and 30 cents for children under 12 years.

FRIDAY will be better known as "Home Day," the day when everybody comes and enjoys the show at the nominal price of 30 cents (war tax included) to all.

REDUCED RAILROAD RATES

Arrangements have been made with the Railroad Administration for the sale of reduced fare tickets from August 26th to 29th, inclusive, good to return until August 30th, inclusive, from Tasley, Delmar and intermediate stations, also from the Crisfield branch; from Dover, Del., and stations south to Delmar, inclusive. This will permit those wishing to attend the Fair to buy tickets at a reasonable rate for any day of the Fair or for all days inclusive. Be sure and don't miss this Fair. You cannot fail to have a good time. Bring your families, your friends and your neighbors. Remember the dates. Make no other arrangements that week, but be prepared to come and enjoy a full week's holiday with us. We will promise you a good time.
