

T. A. Goldsborough Wins Democratic Nomination Over H. W. Robertson

Unofficial Returns Give Caroline County Man Majority Of 28 Over His Wicomico County Opponent In Nine Counties of First Congressional District. Major General Wood Sweeps The State In Republican Presidential Primaries. Wicomico Gives Robertson Majority Of 533 Over Goldsborough.

TOTAL VOTE POLLED, 2377.

On the face of the unofficial returns of the primary elections on Monday T. Alan Goldsborough defeated Hilton W. Robertson for the Democratic congressional nomination in the First Congressional district, by 28 votes in the nine counties which make up that district.

The same unofficial figures seem to show that Mr. Robertson carried Wicomico county by 533 votes.

Robertson Carries Four Counties.

At 11 o'clock on Tuesday morning the Robertson headquarters in this city was bowing to the inevitable and practically acknowledging the nomination of Mr. Goldsborough by the very close margin of 28.

Mr. Robertson appears to have carried four of the nine counties, as follows:

Cecil by 277; Kent by 33; Dorchester by 79; and Wicomico by 533.

Mr. Goldsborough appears to be credited with victory in five of the nine counties as follows:

Queen Anne's by 86; Talbot by 268; Caroline by 469; Worcester by 71; and Somerset by 98.

In Wicomico county the unofficial figures show that Robertson carried 13 of the total of 15 election districts. The two carried by Goldsborough are Quantico by a margin of three and Dennis with a majority of 21.

The vote in the districts, unofficial, in the Robertson vs. Goldsborough contest was as follows:

District	Goldsborough	Robertson
Quantico	54	51
Willards	21	51
Camden	105	176
Salisbury	109	142
Nutters	25	64
Pittsville	53	80
Sharptown	36	40
Nanticoke	36	65
Hebron	40	88
Parsons	184	269
Delmar	45	85
Trappe	63	86
Mardela	65	145
Dennis	52	31
Tyaskin	34	82

Totals 922 1455
Robertson's majority in Wicomico county, 533.

As the result of the primary voting throughout the state on Monday the following are the nominees to be voted on for election next November:

For United States Senate, O. E. Weller, Republican; John Walter Smith, Democrat.
For Congress: First District, W. A. Andrews, Republican; T. Alan Goldsborough, Democrat.
For Congress: Second District, A. A. Blakeney, Republican; Carville D. Benson, Democrat.
For Congress: Third District, John Philip Hill, Republican; Charles P. Coady, Democrat.
For Congress: Fourth district, Dr. W. E. Knickman, Republican; J. Charles Linthicum, Democrat.
For Congress: Fifth District, Sydney E. Mudd, Republican; Frank O. Smith, Democrat.
For Congress: Sixth District, Fred N. Zihlman, Republican; Frank W. Mish, Democrat.

At press hour the indications in the face of lack of complete returns from all parts of the state showed that Major General Leonard Wood had carried all of the state against U. S. Senator Hiram Johnson of California in the race for the Republican Presidential nomination, with the exception of Allegany and Howard counties, and it was said that Baltimore county was in doubt.

The voting in this city on Monday was very quiet. The Goldsborough and Robertson camps had their local leaders and workers on the job all day and the vote was pretty well polled.

All day long at the Robertson headquarters in THE NEWS building there was a crowd of Robertson backers seeking information. On Monday night the headquarters of offices were crowded and telephones and lead pencils were working overtime at the task of receiving and tabulating the returns.

At 11 o'clock with several districts in a few of the counties unreported, it was estimated that Mr. Robertson had defeated Mr. Goldsborough by at

SUNDAY WILL BE MOTHERS' DAY

White Carnations Should Be Worn on That Day In Honor of That Best Of Friends, Mother.

Sunday will be Mothers' day. This is a day set apart by the people of this country as a day on which to honor our Mothers.

In every city, town and village in the United States, carnations, the flower which has been officially designated as the emblem of Mothers' honor, will be worn by men, women and children.

One carnation is worn as a tribute to a Mother living. Two carnations are worn as a tribute to a Mother who has departed this life. White carnations should be worn.

In churches all over the land, special Mothers' day programs will be rendered. Special music will be given by choirs and congregations and special sermons will be preached.

Graves of Mothers will be decorated with white carnations, and white carnations will be found in many homes in honor of that best friend of all men and women, Mother, next Sunday.

Salisbury will be no exception to the rule. All the city's people will observe the day, and white carnations will be worn and displayed in honor of Mothers living in this world and of Mothers who are living in that world where death does not approach.

It is to be hoped that there will be no home in this city, the occupants of which will not pay homage to the Mother of the family, that best friend a man or a woman ever had or ever can have—Mother.

Robertson May Contest

Wednesday:—According to reports carried in the Baltimore papers, the contest between Robertson and Goldsborough for Democratic congressional nomination, is even closer than at first reported. Late reports seem to indicate Mr. Goldsborough leading by 14 votes, and it is said that Mr. Robertson will ask for a recount of the vote of the entire nine counties of the First Congressional district.

FAMOUS SURGEON HERE ON SUNDAY

Former Surgeon To Czar of Russia Will Tell of His Experiences In Europe. Musical Program.

Dr. Edward H. Egbert who was surgeon general for the Imperial Russian Government under Czar Nicholas, will deliver a lecture on his experiences in Russia on Sunday afternoon at 3 o'clock. Dr. Egbert is a very able speaker and his information being first hand will prove most interesting and instructive.

A special musical program is being arranged and it is hoped to secure the Madden orchestra from Wilmington to give a short concert.

Local talent is being engaged for a chorus to lead the general singing of sacred music.

Everyone is invited and as there is to be no admission charge it is hoped everyone will attend.

MAJOR ROBERTS VISITS SALISBURY

Retired Army Officer Is Guest Of Recruiting Station And Visits With Prominent Citizens Here.

Major William Roberts, U. S. Army (retired) visited and inspected the local recruiting station today. He was favorably impressed with Salisbury and the surrounding country. The Major has been retired for some years, but was called into active service at the beginning of the war and is still on active duty. Sergeant Jones introduced him to a number of the leading citizens with whom he had quite a chat and especially with Col. A. W. Woodcock, talking over army and National Guard reorganization.

The recruiting station has authority to enlist 50 colored men for infantry, for colored service school, camp at Benning, Ga., enlistment for three years. Previous service men preferred, but other desirable men will be taken.

Married men may now be re-enlisted but they are to understand that the family allowance now authorized will terminate with the emergency.

CHAMBER OF COMMERCE MEETS ON THURSDAY

There will be a meeting of the Chamber of Commerce Thursday evening, the 6th instant, at 8 p. m. The matter in connection with the secretary for the organization will be taken up at this meeting and it is hoped that there will be a full attendance of the members.

The monthly meeting of the W.C.T.U. will be held Monday May 10th, at 3 p. m. in Elks' hall. Important business. Members are urged to attend.

COUNTY TAX RATES ARE SOARING HIGH

Wicomico And Each Other County In State Will Have Increases In Rate If Improvements Are Made.

It is an old saying, whether true or not, "that coming events cast their shadows before them." If true, the most of the counties of this state may look for new high tax records this year. The H. C. L. is affecting every department of the state and county's government, and there seems to be no way of keeping down the cost of conducting public affairs, even with the most rigid economy. It is no use to complain and to make comparisons with costs of five or six years ago. Everything is on the up go and it is not believed the peak of high prices has been reached.

Referring to the coming tax rates in the various counties, it is safe to predict that few, if any, will escape raising their rates very materially.

The first to start off is Harford county, where the county commissioners after a two days' session, completed the levy for 1934 and have made a rate of $1.80 to pay the expenses of the county this year. The state tax rate is 35 1/2 cents on the $100.

The county rate is greatly in excess of any in the history of the county and the announcement occasioned a big surprise. Last year the rate was $1.15. The commissioners state they were reluctant to impose such a high rate, but could not do otherwise in view of the demand for public school improvements and increase in teachers' salaries, and also the demand for new roads. The total amount of the levy for expenses is $402,000, as against $280,600 last year. Of this $145,420 is for public schools, an increase of $51,000.

The commissioners decided not to avail themselves of the authority given by the recent legislature to bond the county for $60,000 for school improvements. The sum of $86,400 was levied for public roads and $31,000 to meet the state's appropriation for improved lateral roads. The county's taxable basis is $29,792,863.

What will the result in Wicomico be; is the question of paramount importance that is being asked daily.

School Bond Issue Snowed Under Monday

Out Of 4,096 Votes Cast In School Bond Election, 3,094 Are Opposed And 1,092 In Favor. Only 4,096 Out Of Possible 6,901 Votes Are Polled.

BAD CONDITIONS WILL STILL EXIST.

The $200,000 school bond issue which was submitted to the vote of the people of Wicomico county on Monday for their approval or rejection was completely snowed under by its opponents. The bonding measure was carried in just one of the county's voting districts, and that district is Sharptown. Delmar was the next most loyal district to the cause of education.

The majority against the bond issue in the county is 2,002, the votes for it numbering 1,092 and those opposed to it numbering 3,094. The total possible vote in the county is 6,901 and the total vote cast both for and against the bond issue was 4,096 showing that 1,805 voters were not sufficiently interested in the cause of public education in the county, to vote either for or against the measure.

The unofficial figures representing the results of the voting on the bond issue in each of the 15 districts are as follows:

District	For	Against	Possible Vote
Dennis	12	129	201
Trappe	55	243	585
Nutters	17	131	253
Salisbury	199	265	754
Hebron	21	205	288
Willards	20	131	275
Camden	118	265	753
Nanticoke	36	243	501
Delmar	84	103	405
Sharptown	135	36	285
Barren Creek	27	299	399
Pittsburg	26	158	261
Quantico	53	236	394
Tyaskin	59	218	421
Parsons	230	432	1126
Total	1092	3094	6901

By the defeat of the bond issue on Monday the people of Wicomico county have voted to continue the evil

W. A. Kennerly Elected Mayor Of Salisbury In City Election, Tuesday

John W. Serman, Charles E. Bennett And Ernest B. Hitch Are Elected To City Council. C. L. Dickerson Is Defeated. New Board Will Organize May 16. Elections May Be Contested By Farmers and Planters Co., On Ground That Primaries Were Not Legally Called By City Committee.

KENNERLY LEADS HIS TICKET.

W. Arthur Kennerly is mayor-elect of Salisbury. He was elected to fill the chief executive office of the city at the elections on Tuesday. Mr. Kennerly was the only candidate for mayor.

John W. Serman, Charles E. Bennett and Ernest B. Hitch were elected to membership in the city council. The newly elected city officials will take their oaths of office on May 16.

C. L. Dickerson Defeated.

The election of Messrs. Serman, Bennett and Hitch to the city council, eliminates C. L. Dickerson who was also a candidate for election and gives to the Farmers and Planters company only one of its alleged candidates in the council.

The vote on the several candidates was as follows:

For Mayor:
W. Arthur Kennerly.....611

For Council:
John W. Serman.....505
Charles E. Bennett.....430
Ernest B. Hitch.....414
C. L. Dickerson.....343

The new Mayor and Council will meet on Monday night, May 16 for organization only. The present Mayor and Council will meet on that night in regular session for the transaction of business and the winding up of its affairs as an administrative body. The new board will meet the following Monday night to begin its duties of administration in regular form.

It will be remembered that at the democratic city primary elections, Mr. Dickerson and Mr. Bennett each polled 353 votes while Mr. Hitch polled 354. Mr. Hitch is the only one of the three who is opposed to permitting the Farmers and Planters company to locate a fertilizer manufacturing plant on Mill street. The present Mayor and Council declined to use its authority to order a recount of the Bennett-Dickerson-Hitch vote which was asked for by Mr. Dickerson, and both Mr. Dickerson and Mr. Bennett petitioned in legal form to have their names appear on the city ticket for election on Tuesday. These petitions were granted, and the elections resulted as already told.

It has been reported, as told exclusively by THE NEWS, that the Farmers and Planters company, after the elections, might seek to contest the elections on the ground that the primaries in which Mr. Hitch was nominated and Messrs. Bennett and Dickerson polled a tie vote for nomination, were not legally called by the City committee.

Whether or not the company will take such action is not known. Should the company take any action which will call into question the regularity of the primaries at which Mayor-elect Kennerly and Councilmen-elect Hitch and Serman were nominated, the election of those officials on Tuesday may be thrown into litigation. In such an event the election of Mr. Bennett will probably not be questioned since his name appeared on the city ticket by petition and not as a result of the primaries.

In spite of the fact that their nominations appeared to be without question as the result of the primary election. Mr. Kennerly and Mr. Serman, evidently anticipating a contest of the city elections on the ground of alleged irregularity of the primaries, also presented petitions for the appearance of their names on the city ticket. These petitions were disregarded by the Mayor and Council however, as, according to reports, neither had the legally stipulated 200 qualified voters as signers.

DEATH CLAIMS BABY.

The death angel entered the home of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel J. Phillips on Monday morning, May 3rd, and claimed their infant daughter, Mary Elaine aged six weeks. Funeral services were held at the home on Chestnut street on Tuesday afternoon at 2 o'clock Rev. J. T. Herson officiating. The child was laid to rest at the M. P. cemetery in Delmar.

Mr. and Mrs. William B. Green spent a part of last week in Richmond, Hampton, and Newport News.

Coal Prices May Jump.

The coal dealers of Baltimore at a meeting this week voted to increase the price of hard coal $1 a ton for spring and summer deliveries. Whether or not the Baltimore increase will be adopted by Eastern Shore dealers is not known.

It is believed that should the price of coal take a jump within the next few weeks the same fuel will experience a much more definite increase in price before next fall. This means that coal bins should be filled and made ready for next winter's demands at the earliest possible minute. It is quite probable that should the Baltimore dealers find it necessary to increase prices in that city, the same conditions which cause the boosted prices there will have at least some effect on coal prices in Salisbury.

PRICES OF GAS GOES UP 50 CENTS

New Rate of $2.50 A 1000 Cubic Feet Became Operative on April 28. Many People Object.

Beginning on April 28, the price of gas in this city was increased from $2 to $2.50 per 1,000 cubic feet, according to notices sent by The Citizens Gas company to its patrons. Coming as it does at this season, a season when gas for laundry and cooking purposes is almost a necessity, since the kitchen range will be given a recess for the summer months, the increase in the gas rate is bound to work a hardship on many people.

It is understood that the increase in the costs of coal and oil as well as the increased costs of labor are responsible for the increased cost of gas to the patrons of the local gas company.

It is reported, unofficially of course, that many of the gas users in this city are so opposed to paying the increased rate, that they are contemplating carrying their objections before the Public Service commission of the state in an effort to have the old $2 rate restored. Whether or not there is truth to such a report is not known.

DIED SUDDENLY

FRIDAY, APRIL 23

Mr. Josephus Elliott died suddenly on Friday night, April 23rd, at his home on Locust street. He had retired apparently as well as usual, and did not awaken his wife till he was breathing his last, passing quietly away in his last sleep. Mr. Elliott was a member of the M. P. church and a regular attendant. He leaves a widow and six children: Mrs. Charles Sturgis, Delmar, Mrs. William T. Wilkins, Mrs. William Collier, Clarence Elliott, Mrs. Homer Disharoon and Herman Elliott, of Salisbury. The funeral services were held at the home Monday, April 26th, at 2.30, Rev. R. L. Shipley officiating, assisted by members of the choir from Bethesda M. P. church. He was laid to rest in Parsons cemetery.

MRS. S. P. WOODCOCK WAS WELL BELOVED

A Member of Asbury Church Since Its Early History. Lived Many Years of Christian Usefulness.

Salisbury met with a very distinct loss on Tuesday evening of last week when Mrs. Samuel P. Woodcock died at her home on Camden avenue.

She was the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas A. Smith. They were persons of unusual piety and were prominently identified with the early history of the Asbury church. Their remains now rest in front of the church door. From childhood she was under religious influence and training, and laid the foundation of her splendid Christian character by surrendering herself to Christ in very early life. She was converted in the old Asbury church and united with that church and so entered upon a life-long career of usefulness. Not even the extreme suffering which she endured in the last years was sufficient to subtract from her interest in the church she loved so well. Happy the church that can count such folks in its membership.

She was an unusual "keeper of the home." The folks who loved her best were those who knew her best. She lived for her family and her friends. Being of a bright and cheerful disposition, she readily won the hearts of folks. When you called at her home you were assured of a gracious greeting, and, perhaps, the very latest thing in the shape of a good humorous story. Her's was a sincere cordiality that her neighbors and friends will not soon forget. It has not been quite the same around Camden avenue since the hand of affliction was laid upon her.

After a severe and prolonged illness, for she suffered for more than 18 months, on Tuesday evening, April 27 she quietly went to sleep, and was not; for the God of the years had taken her to Himself.

"Only a moment of dark, a dream of the fleeting night,

And then the beautiful break of day,

And the quiet peace of the light;

And you found yourself where you longed to stand,

In the calm repose of the Heavenly land."

Mrs. J. E. DeShazo of Sanford, Va., is again at her home after undergoing treatment at the Peninsula General hospital.

WANAMAKER STORES

CUT PRICES 20 P. C.

In Effort To Reduce Living Costs, Two Big Stores Will Sacrifice $4,000,000 In A Week.

In an effort to reduce the costs of living, the Wanamaker stores in Philadelphia and New York have announced a straight 20 per cent. reduction in the selling price of all merchandise handled in those two big stores.

The cut prices will prevail on all cash sales for a period of one week and it is estimated will mean savings to the buying public of approximately $4,000,000.

America Land of Tobacco.

America is still the greatest producer of tobacco and also the greatest consumer of it, the greatest exporter and the greatest importer, too. She keeps her association with it which began with the discovery of the new world. It was the riches of tobacco as well as gold and fountains of youth that drew hither the adventurers who penetrated the new continents. Later tobacco was so precious a thing among the first English colonists that they plowed up the streets of Jamestown to plant it.

Matter of Touch.

"Go away from me!" said the fashionably dressed woman to the tramp. "I wouldn't have you touch me for a dollar." "I was only goin' to touch you for a nickel, lady," came the reply.

BOOKS AS MEDICINE

Books are frequently referred to as tools and as the key to the treasure trove of knowledge. The American Library is daily demonstrating in U. S. Public Health Service Hospitals that convalescent soldiers and sailors find returning health and increasing strength in good books.

FARM DWELLERS ASK FOR BOOKS

Announcement of the "Books for Everybody" Movement Brings Letter Flood.

INFORMATIVE WORKS SOUGHT

Requests for Reading Matter Range From Volume on Drainage to Collins' "Book of the Stars."

The announcement of the entrance of the American Library Association upon the "Books for Everybody" movement and still later news accounts of the activities of the organization along these lines resulted in a widespread appeal from residents of the rural districts of the country for books on farming. Whether the American farmer is simply evidencing his ambition to do a good job better or whether the better crops of his neighbor, who has attended an agricultural college or school, has spurred him on is a matter difficult to determine. But the fact remains the farmer is asking for books. The great majority of American farmers are either without libraries and book service or they are inadequately served.

One of the points which the American Library Association in its "Books for Everybody" movement is strongly urging is the extension of the county library system in states where enabling acts have been passed—some twenty-one in number—and the proper legislation in others which have not yet taken the step. The system, with its central library and radiating lines to stations in the remotest sections of the county, assures good books to every man, woman and child who cares to reach out a hand and grasp one.

Letters Show Need of Service. The American Library Association is not giving its entire attention to the urban dweller, nor is it neglecting the centers of population for the rural districts and communities. It is, however, unquestionably eager to create a steady flow of informative reading to rural America. That the need for such service exists and that it is anxiously sought is evidenced in every letter of this nature received by state library commissions and by the A. L. A. A few excerpts have been selected because they seem to express most truly the needs of thousands of others.

When Lydia Carlson, whose farm is beyond Mason, Wis., asked for copies of "Productive Farm Crops," "Productive Vegetable Growing" and "Principles of the Practice of Poultry Raising" she echoed the book needs of her neighbors. Then she revealed the fact that her eyes are not always in the furrows by asking for a copy of Collins' "Book of the Stars."

What Others Desired. There was a pressing need behind the letter from James Dunn, who lives ten miles from Convent, La., the nearest town, which has a population of only 500 people. He asked for a copy of "Practical Farm Drainage." The task of keeping his acres dry was beyond him. Walter Williams of Osseo, Wis., wanted to know if he could make fuel alcohol from frozen potatoes and spoiled fruits, and if he could, where there any books on the subject. The requests run the whole range of farm operations. Some wish to know how to treat scale. Others desire facts on hog raising. Books giving information on crop rotation are in demand.

The American Library Association is raising a $2,000,000 fund to finance the "Books for Everybody" movement which during the next three years will be carried on in co-operation with existing libraries and library agencies. The money is not being raised through the medium of an intensive drive but through the individual efforts of the librarians, library trustees and friends of libraries.

American Library Association Serves Ten Thousand Men in Nation's Hospitals.

EFFORTS BRING RESULTS.

Works on Vocational Training Circulated Among Men Who Must Take Up New Callings Because of Their Injuries.

Hospital library service maintained by the American Library Association during the war was credited with great value in aiding in the recovery of many sick and disabled men.

There are still in our hospitals more than 10,000 former service men. Of these nearly 8,000 are in Public Health Service hospitals, the remainder in civilian hospitals. Books, magazines and newspapers are sent to these men from the American Library Association. In the larger hospitals, containing over 300 patients, special librarians are placed. To the smaller hospitals, through the co-operation of many public libraries, library visitors are sent to visit the wards once or twice a week and learn the book needs of the patients.

A special effort is made to supply to ex-service men in hospitals the books in demand as a result of the training given by the Federal Board for Vocational Education.

More Books for Blind.

The A. L. A., in co-operation with other agencies already interested in work for the blind, is printing books in the new Braille type. Because of the newness of the revised Braille adopted for teaching to the American war blind, literature printed in it is limited to fewer than 200 books. Though the total number of blinded soldiers is small, their need of books is great, and the "mangle of print" can do much to restore hope and usefulness to them.

Not only for former service men who are sick or disabled is the association working. The value of books proved so great to men in camps that efforts are still being made to connect discharged soldiers and sailors with libraries wherever they may be. Hundreds of letters have reached A. L. A. headquarters from former service men telling of the lack of library facilities in particular localities to which those men have returned.

Direct Service Provided.

In many cases there is a state library commission or a nearby library to which a man can be referred for the books he needs, but if there is no such organization through which he can be served, books for almost any serious purpose may be borrowed directly from the A. L. A. War Service, 24 West Thirty-ninth street, New York city. The only expense in connection with these loans is prepayment of return postage on books borrowed.

The A. L. A. has published lists of books to help ex-service men who are studying to advance themselves in their work. "Five Hundred Business Books," "One Thousand Technical Books" and reading courses on practical subjects are now in preparation.

Other Work Being Done.

Other branches of work which the A. L. A. War Service is carrying on include service to the Merchant Marine, Coast Guard and lighthouses, service to industrial communities which are resultant from the war, service to United States forces overseas. This work is carried on with money received from the United War Work funds, the use of which is limited by the conditions of the gift to these specific purposes.

The service of the Merchant Marine department provides free library service to seamen on American merchant ships in the form of "crew's libraries," bookcase boxes, each containing about 80 books. These libraries are exchangeable at principal ports. Books and magazines are sent also to men in coast guard stations, in lighthouses and on lightships.

GEERS ENJOYS DISTINCTION OF BEING OLDEST MAN WHO EVER HANDLED REINS

Edward F. Geers, "the grand old man of the sulky," who will be "on the job" at the Grand Circuit light harness races this season, as he has been for some forty odd years past. He will drive for Frank C. Jones of Memphis. It is said that this veteran, who was severely injured last season, is one of the oldest, if not the oldest, man who has ever handled the reins in the history of the light harness turf.

All that publicity Carpentier and his collar got in New York must have made Dempsey feel like a nickel at the 1920 Follies box office.

Strangler Lewis must have an awful crush to that headlock of his. The heads of some of the grapplers are not the softest things in the world, either.

When Carpentier meets Dempsey, who on this side of the ocean will care whether the Reds, the Spartans, the Bolsheviks or the regulars win in Berlin?

The Davis cup committee has decided to recommend to the United States Lawn Tennis association that this country send no tennis team to the Olympic games.

Princeton A. A. spent nearly $7,500 for its varsity and freshmen teams last fall. Supplies, such as shoes, jerseys, pants, stockings, etc., totaled $2,849.40, while freshman eleven equipment cost $422.77.

COACH AL SHARPE IS AFTER NEW QUARTERS

Hockey and Basketball Teams Lack Building, He Says.

Forcing Men to Use Philadelphia Ice Rink Was Imposition—Players Who Missed Recitations Forced to Make Them Up.

Coach Al Sharpe of Yale is going to make an immediate demand for a large building to accommodate the basketball and hockey teams. He wants a building that will seat approximately 5,000 people.

In an unofficial communication to Yale authorities, Sharpe declared the practice of forcing the hockey team to use the Philadelphia ice rink was an imposition. Under the plan in vogue this winter, Yale's hockey crew was forced to take an express train to Philadelphia for the games and then return to the college as quickly as possible and by whatever means was available.

Those of the players who missed recitations were obliged to make them up. The instructors refused to alter the lesson schedule to accommodate the players.

Coach Sharpe says the facilities for basketball are inadequate, while new quarters of ample size would enable this sport to at least pay its own way. In part, his report says: "Yale should take advantage of the increased popularity of the game, and at the same time offer encouragement to the members of the basketball squads in the future."

It is said Yale officials have taken a stand against building for the present.

HAS "RABBIT" INFIELD

Coach Jack Slattery has christened Harvard infield the rabbit infield. There's a reason. Conlon, the shortstop, stands five feet seven inches and weighs only 140. Eddie Lincoln, at third, is the same height, and is three pounds heavier, while Capt. Bobbie Enimmons is an inch taller and weighs 150 pounds. Slattery says small men make the best infielders.

WANDA-ROSE

By MILDRED WHITE

The little girl who had been wandering uncertainly about the corridor of the great office building paused at last before a glass door.

"James Lorrimer," she spelled audibly; "Attorney and Counselor at Law." Then the little girl opened the door and peeped inside.

A young woman bending over a typewriter looked up and smiled reassuringly.

"That's Mr. Lorrimer, isn't it, sitting there in the farthest room behind a desk? I'll go and find him myself."

"Who sent you in here?" he asked. "No one sent me," the little girl quietly returned. "I just came." She seated herself in a wide chair at the opposite side of the desk. "I came by myself on the street car; I found your name last night among the lawyers in our telephone book. It's a business visit and I brought all the money in my bank to pay you. I've got over a dollar. Please tell me how to get unadopted."

"To get unadopted," he repeated. "So you don't like the adoption business, eh? Well, how did it happen? And what is your name, young lady?" "I'm Wanda-Rose," the child answered with dignity. "and I don't like being adopted very much. It happened when the beautiful lady visited our orphanage. She liked me because I made her smile; it had grown very hard, she said, for her to smile, so she managed with the directors to adopt me and took me home with her. She was the first mother I'd ever had. Some one found me long ago in the orphanage garden, when I could hardly talk at all, and what I called myself 'Jounded like 'Wanda,' so that's the name they gave me. My beautiful lady added 'Rose'; she says I'm like a rose to her. But, please, will you make me unadopted?"

The big man got up and lifted the tiny figure to his knee.

"I'm afraid that I don't understand all this, Wanda-Rose," he said, whimsically. "If your beautiful lady is also kind, why wish to be 'unadopted'?"

The child raised reproachful eyes. "As if I'd ever wish to be," she said. "It's for her sake that I'm doing it. So that he will come back again."

James Lorrimer shook his head. "I will have to ask you to explain further, Wanda."

"Rose," she finished, severely. "He went away two years ago; you see he was my beautiful lady's husband. Ellen, that's the cook, says that they were very happy together until my lovely lady's sister died and she took her little boy to raise. She was so fond of that boy; he was delicate, Ellen says, and my mother—I call her mother, you know—had to stay with him a great deal. The boy's name was Roger, and Ellen says that my mother's husband got very 'noyed' about Roger. An' he'd talk cross when he wanted her to go some place an' my mother couldn't because of Roger, an' she'd cry, and then by an' by her husband went away, an' my mother told Ellen he was never coming back, an'—he never did."

The lawyer arose abruptly and put the child from him. His brows were drawn together again and his gaze was darkly piercing.

"Well?" he asked.

Wanda-Rose settled herself again quietly in the big chair. "Well, Roger's father married after that, Ellen says, an' he took Roger away; an' my mother used to cry a great deal, she was so dreadfully lonely. Not for Roger, Ellen says, but for her husband. He didn't know that she was lonely, of course, or even that Roger had gone; he just kept on staying away. Then my beautiful lady began to visit the hospital and orphanage, an' brings us toys an' roses, an' she called me 'her rose.' I liked to make her laugh; she had such a pretty laugh—like birds singing when you hear them in the morning. An' one day she took me home with her to be her little girl. But I couldn't keep her laughing because she cried so much over the photograph in the frame in her room; an' I asked her was it her husband's photograph and was he ever coming back? She just put her head down then and cried harder than ever an' she said: 'Never, darling, now—I'm afraid.' So I thought that 'now' meant me—that he'd never come 'now' you see, 'cause I was here—like Roger. An' he'd gone away because of Roger—or Roger is what started the trouble, anyway, Ellen says. So I came down here to get unadopted. Lawyers do such things, don't they?" Wanda-Rose paused. "You ought to be glad to do it than anyone else," she said, shrewdly.

James Lorrimer stood for a long time looking down into the street below. Then he came to bend over the little waiting girl, and his face was very tender.

"So you'd give your own happiness for the sake of your beautiful lady, Wanda-Rose?" he said. "And do you think that she could still find happiness with a husband who had been so unkind? For if you do, we are going together, you and I."

The child smiled happily. "She'll want us both," she said, "because you see she loves us." "Me?" asked the big man. The one tremulous word was all that he could say. Wanda-Rose nodded confidently. "She told me that she loved you. That's why I thought you'd be glad to know, when I hunted you out in the telephone book."

SIMPLICITY NIGHT
BRILLIANT SUCCESS

Salisbury Grangers Enjoy Fine Program While Attired in Overalls And Gingham Frocks.

Simplicity night at Salisbury Grange was held May 1st and was even better attended than Men's night. There were about 85 present at Men's night and there must have been 100 present Simplicity night.

The brothers in overalls and the sisters in gingham dresses and aprons gave the session a unique appearance. However H. L. Van Horn, who started the overall club at Pomona, did not wear his overalls, but came in with them hanging on his arm.

The duet by Brothers John L. Smith and John J. Morris was a scream. There is always something doing when those two Johns get together.

The play by the Matrons Home club, "Mind Your Own Business" was calculated to teach very strongly the injustice that may be done by gossip especially when conclusions are jumped at. It was excellently played each member doing her part in a most worthy manner.

Brother A. L. Williams gave two very beautiful recitations.

Brother G. H. Cobb and Sister Ollie Mitchell assisted by the pianist rendered some very fine music. Those who were not present missed a rare treat such as cannot be described but must be seen to be appreciated.

STURGEON IN RIVER
CAUSE HEAVY DAMAGE

Fishermen who hail from Seaford, Del., and other points on the Nanticoke river and whose usual catches are shad and herring, are experiencing great difficulty these days because of the presence of sturgeon in the river in great numbers. The big sturgeon have cost the fishermen many dollars by tearing up their nets. The fish get into the nets which are designed for the capture of smaller fish, and easily make their escape by driving against the meshes. Several very large and valuable shad and herring seines have been completely destroyed by the sturgeon. Up to this time none of the sturgeon has been offered for sale in the local markets. In fact it is doubtful if any of the big fellows have been captured, since the fishermen are not equipped to properly handle their weight, strength and gaminess.

Dr. and Mrs. F. W. Wilson and son Frederic of Pocomoke City were business visitors in this city on Thursday afternoon.

THURSDAY, : : : : MAY 6, 1920.

THE PEOPLE RULE!

The proposed $200,000 bond issue for the use of the public schools of Wicomico county was snowed under by the votes of its opponents on Monday.

Politicians throughout the county got busy early in the bond issue campaign and killed that measure which was destined to give the children of the county good educations and properly equip them for the everyday battles of life.

It was supposed that the people of the county would have a sense of proportion and justice; but the vote of Monday seems to show that the arguments of the professional politicians were stronger than the voters' sense of duty toward the children.

Not a real argument was raised against the school bond issue. It is a fact that many things were said against it, but not an argument was made.

The best business minds in the county urged the people to support the bond issue; the most prominent men and women in the county, the best educated people, the best Christian people were its advocates. Only the politicians, and those tax payers who are so unfortunate as to have no children of their own in the schools, were its opponents.

The bond issue is lost. The people have spoken and the people rule. The die is cast, and Wicomico county is on record as being opposed to a movement to raise the educational standards of the county and state. It is not a record of which to be proud; it is a record wrought by the politicians to whom, it seems, a great majority of the voters listened.

What will be the result?

The statements made during the campaign before the elections of Monday, were based on facts. The schools of this county are in a deplorable condition. They are inadequate and inefficient. They must be improved if the children of the county are to be given a square deal.

But will the children be given a square deal? The vote on the bond issue does not seem to indicate a desire on the part of the taxpayers to act justly toward their children.

The only possible way now in which to raise the money needed in the schools, is by direct taxation.

But it won't be raised that way.

The same politicians who defeated the bond issue, will prevent an increased tax rate for the benefit of schools. They have prevented it in the past, they will prevent it again.

They fully realize that to raise the tax rate in amount sufficient to meet the needs of the county's children will bring about their own political defeats at the next elections. They know they cannot raise the needed money by taxation and be retained in office. They know that when they touch the tax rate to increase it, they touch the very hearts of the tax payers. Their knowledge of this has kept the tax rate to its present figure, with the result that the schools have been neglected, year after year, until today they are totally inadequate and inefficient.

It is safe to say, that the men who defeated the bond issue on Monday will do all in their power and will doubtless succeed in preventing a tax rate adequate to the school's needs. They cannot advocate a tax rate for that purpose and retain their political influence.

The result will be a continued bad condition in the schools. A condition that will grow worse and worse with the passing months and years, until after a while, the public school system of this county will be a total wreck.

What a dark and gloomy day to anticipate—a day in which, because the voters of this year refused to support a bond issue by which their children might be benefitted, those same children are deprived of all their educational advantages.

The fault is not the peoples' excepting that they allow themselves to be fooled by the political leaders of the community. These same leaders are the men who continually preach, "Keep politics out of the schools!" These are the men who while preaching that very sound doctrine use their every ounce of political energy and influence to defeat a measure which is designed to improve the schools and help the county's children.

And the people allowed themselves to be fooled!

Is there any wonder that 11 out of every 100 white persons over 10 years old in Wicomico county cannot read and write? Is there any wonder that Maryland as a state ranks 34th in the list of all the states in the Union in point of education?

However the people have spoken, and the people rule.

The bond issue is lost, and the children must suffer!

AN OPPORTUNITY IS HERE.

An effort has been made during the last few weeks to create an organization in this county, which will co-operate in the great nation-wide campaign for the raising of money with which the home service work of the Salvation Army may be carried on.

It is evident that the people of the county do not fully appreciate the great work of the Salvation Army, because it is a fact that they have failed to generously join forces with those who are in sympathy with the Army's work. Perhaps there is a lack of sympathy here for the Salvation Army, because Salisbury is after all, but a small city and is fortunate in not needing, or seeming to need; the services of that great life-saving, soul-saving institution. It is a fact that the Salvation Army finds its greatest fields for work in the big cities; but were Salisbury stricken with a crime wave, devastation by wind, flood or fire, the Salvation Army would without doubt be the first institution to come to the city's relief.

Hundreds of thousands of men and women have been lifted from the dreags of despair, a plane of life where dishonesty and crime were their common creed, to high planes of American and Christian citizenship—and the credit for their salvation must be given to the Salvation Army. The Army is working today, it will work tonight, it will work tomorrow and it will continue to work throughout the ages. Whether the people of Wicomico county help or not, this great work of the Divine Master will be carried on. But Wicomico as a Christian community must do its duty.

Ask any of Wicomico's returned soldiers how the Salvation Army functioned abroad during the war! Their answer will be words of praise for those men and women in the uniform of the Salvation Army, who braving shot and shell and gas, disease and disaster carried food and comfort to our fighting men.

The Salvation Army received but little national aid in its war work. It used its own funds and mortgaged all of its property in an effort to raise the money with which to aid in the winning of the war against the Huns. Today, the Salvation Army wants to continue its great and glorious work of salvaging lives and souls here at home; but because it voluntarily gave its all to the American fighting men in France, it cannot do this priceless work at home without the help of the people of the country-at-large.

This is the reason that the Salvation Army is asking for assistance. It used almost its last dollar in carrying comfort, food and good cheer to those American soldiers who left home and country that the world might be made safe for democracy. It is now practically without funds and it cannot continue to save those poor forlorn brothers and sisters of ours, unless we all help.

Who is the man or woman in Wicomico county who will dare to say he or she is too busy to help do God's work?

Who is there who will dare to say he or she is not in sympathy with that great work?

Who is there who will be coward enough to say he or she will not put a shoulder to the wheel and lead in the work of helping the Salvation Army function for God as it has functioned for years gone by?

Wicomico county is a community of Christian people. Surely there are a sufficient number of REAL Christians in the lot to put this Salvation Army appeal over the top, not in the interests of the Salvation Army, but in the interests of Christianity and humanity!

ENOUGH SUGAR FOR ALL.

While there is now, and there is going to be a sugar shortage which will cause high prices for that commodity, there is no reason for a scare, according to the Salisbury wholesale grocers.

The present shortage of sugar has been brought about by a combination of circumstances. First of all, the estimate of the Cuban sugar crop fell short a few hundred thousand tons; then through stock manipulations a great per centage of the sugar crop came into the possession of private speculators instead of the hands of the regular refiners. The private speculators have held on like grim death to their raw sugar, awaiting high prices by the creation of a shortage of supply. The refiners have been unable to supply the demand from their own stocks of raw sugar and have been compelled to buy in from the private speculators at prices which are fancy.

Within the last few days the sugar refiners of the country have agreed that they will refine no sugar excepting that which is actually their own. This will mean that the speculators will be forced to hold their stocks indefinitely, or that they will have to release them for refining, at modified prices.

In the meanwhile a supply of sugar is being received in the United States from Java, China, Peru, Argentine and Czechoslovakia.

It is the opinion of the local wholesale dealers that with the supplies being received from these countries, combined with the small stocks of sugar on hand in this country, there will be plenty and enough sugar to go around until the next Cuban crop comes in. It is stated that sugar prices will be exceedingly high because of the shortage; but it is reasoned that the high prices will tend to reduce the consumption among the people of this country and so conserve the supply.

It is estimated that sugar, before next fall will sell at 30 or more cents per pound.

It is said locally that the sugar sales since January 1 have exceeded by far those of any other previous corresponding time and season. This is accounted for by the fact that consumers are fearful of famine and soaring prices. As a matter of fact, it is said, if the consumers would refrain from hoarding sugar but would buy from time to time only those amounts which they actually need, there would be much less danger of famine and prices would not climb so rapidly.

The source of supply is short, that is true; but on top of this, when the consumers hoard a hundred pounds or so each in all parts of the country, the already short supply is the more rapidly decreased and with the decreasing of the supply, must of necessity come increasing prices.

Virginia Dare Wine

Breaks all Records

The reason? Mighty easy to find, because it's the only wine nowadays that's worth drinking. It's made with the alcohol in, contributing its aroma, bouquet, and adding to its flavor, and then the alcohol is extracted. COUNTY QUOTAS
ARE ANNOUNCED

Salvation Army Appeal For Home Service Funds Start in Maryland Monday.

The Salvation Army appeal for funds with which to carry on its home service here in Maryland, will be made next Monday, May 11. Every county in the State has been organized and has its county chairman, treasurer, teams and workers, all on their toes and ready to put the appeal across.

Honorable Franklin K. Lane, former Secretary of the Interior, is chairman of the national appeal committee. In Maryland Governor Ritchie is state chairman for the men's division, with Mrs. J. Charles Linthum, chairman of the women's section.

Cardinal Gibbons, Bishop John Gardner Murray, General John J. Pershing, Samuel Gompers, president of the American Federation of Labor, the Secretary of War, Newton D. Baker, and the Secretary of the Navy, Joseph Daniels, are among the thousands of prominent men of the country who have heartily endorsed the Salvation Army and who ask the people of the country to give as freely to this appeal as the Salvationists have given of the time and labors, both before, during and after the war.

The Maryland General Assembly, at its session this year, passed resolutions endorsing the Salvation Army's work at home and on the battlefield.

The quotas asked of the different counties in Maryland are as follows:

Allegany (Cumberland), $33,500 (Bldg.); (Frostburg), $4,150.

Calvert, $1,150.

Caroline, $2,050.

Carroll, $3,450.
Cecil, $2,500.
Charles, $1,750.
Dorchester, $2,300.
Frederick, $3,000.
Garrett, $2,300.
Harford, $2,350.
Howard, $1,750.
Kent, $1,750.
Montgomery, $3,450.
Prince George's, $2,700.
Queen Anne's, $1,750.
St. Mary's, $1,750.
Somerset, $2,350.
Talbot, $1,150.
Washington, $5,500.
Wicomico, $2,350.
Worcester, $2,300.

Salvation Army officials hope not only to continue all their present humanitarian activities, but to widen the scope of many of them. If the answer falls short, the plans for expansion and extension must be abandoned and the present work perhaps curtailed.

Only a small portion of the Army's work is self-supporting. The rescue homes for unfortunate women; the hospitals, including the maternity hospitals which care for thousands of mothers of the poorer classes; the slum settlements which are such bright spots in the squalor of the tenement districts, demand constant financial aid. The fresh air camps, the prison work, and the founding homes are supported wholly from the Home Service fund. The evangelical work, the bureaus which yearly give away great amounts of food, clothing and supplies to those in dire need, as well as many other activities and institutions of the Salvationists, derive their means of existence from the same source.

The name of the fund indicates the purpose for which subscriptions are sought. It is to make possible the Home Service of the Army in America, to insure the continuation of its labors in the communities of America.

Mr. and Mrs. Lemuel Collins of Savagetown were among the city's shoppers last week.

MANY NEW BUILDINGS ARE BEING ERECTED

Several new apartments and homes will be completed in the next few months partially relieving Salisbury's shortage of homes. Mrs. S. T. Evans is having her home remodeled and three brick dwelling houses built on Camden avenue which will be completed in the first part of September. Lloyd Richardson has the contract for the work and the homes are understood to have been already rented. Two brick apartments on Circle avenue are almost completed. These are being built by John Windsor and are to be sold. Mr. Windsor has just completed a large home for himself and family on the corner of Camden and Maryland avenues. G. William Phillips is having a home built on Newton street which will be completed sometime in the latter part of June.

Women's Coats, Suits, Silk and Wool Dresses Reduced.

Beginning Thursday morning we will put a reduction of 20% on all the suits and coats that remain in our stock. On the same day we will start all of our wool and silk dresses at a reduction of 15%. (No voile dresses are included in this reduction).

We offer an extensive collection of dresses that will bring joy to those who desire to add one or two more to their wardrobe.

For these dresses are the kind that the trained stylists choose for their good lines, and the prices are now so very low that ownership of them is a double delight.

This reduction, for the dresses of these grades, are quick clearing prices—very nominal in fact—the reason for them being our desire to speed out all lines that are at all incomplete.

All sizes are in each group, though perhaps not in each line.

REMEMBER THE REDUCTIONS. SUITS AND COATS 20% OFF—DRESSES 15% OFF.

A Ten Day Sale of Shirting Madras at 52¹/₂c Muslin at 40c

A timely sale of madras that will be taken up by many because of the many shirts that are made at this time of the year—just when a man starts to take his coat off owing to the heat of Summer, new shirts come into full play.

Madras that is Full 36 inches Wide—Strictly fast colors 52¹/₂c.

Muslin at 40c

Every one wants muslin these days and muslins are high, while good muslins are higher.

HILL muslin is the standard these days and while we do not say that we are offering HILL muslin at the reduced price, we do say that the one that we are offering is the same count as HILL and every whit as good.

While Hill muslin is priced at 45c the yard, this one, the same count and the same quality is specially priced at 40c the yard.

We will call this a nameless muslin, it has a name but we are not allowed to use the name in advertising it at this price, owing to the contract under which it was bought.

Millinery Reduced in Price. Pattern hats at a Reduction of 15 to 30 per cent.

Our millinery department has been very popular this season, because of the large variety of styles and the very moderate prices and now to clear away the pattern hats that are left in our stock we are offering them at a reduction of from 15 to 30% off their former low prices.

HEALTH HINTS.

Miss Margaret G. Law, Red Cross Public Health nurse in Wisconsin county has consented to write for The News, each week an article on the care of health and prevention of disease and sickness. This is the fifth of Miss Law's articles.

WHAT DO GROWING CHILDREN NEED?

(By Margaret Law, R. N.)

Child welfare experts consider the following necessary for the child's best growth and development:

Shelter: Decent, clean, well kept house; plenty of fresh air in the house; winter and summer, warm rooms in cold weather, separate bed, bath, and toilet rooms; influence with sufficient bedrooms to keep the child's sleeping quarters clean and sanitary; indoor water-closet and water supply; pure, abundant water supply; a comfortable place to sit.

FOOD:—Three square meals a day. Clean, simple, appetizing, well-cooked food; meals at regular hours and sufficient time for them; dinner at noon for children under seven years of age; the daily diet should include: Milk, at least one pint a day; cereal and bread; green vegetables, especially leafy vegetables; fruit; egg, meat, or fish. If no one of these three is used, an additional pint of milk should be given. Has your child these?

Every child has the right to be well born, well nourished, and well cared for.

Clothing:—Clean, well-kept garments; different clothing for day and night; suitable to the climate; change of underwear and nightgown at least weekly; a change of stockings at least twice a week; warm underclothing; and stockings in cold weather; heavy coat, cap, and mittens for cold weather; shoes free from holes and nails; and shoes with soft soles; long and wide enough to protect the feet from cold and wet; and shoes with soft soles; and shoes with soft soles.

Health and Personal Habits:—Hands and face washed before meals and at bedtime; both every day or at least once a week; natural bowel movement every day; teeth brushed not yet been made public.

at least twice a day (morning and night); regular bed hours, ten hours of sleep at night, with open windows; correct weight for height. Has your child these?

Education and amusements:—A safe, clean, roomy place for outdoor and indoor play; at least two hours outdoor play every day; constructive and usable playthings and books; some one with sympathetic oversight to direct the play; the right sort of playmates. Has your child these?

While parents are a child's best asset.

Education and work—Schooling for at least nine months a year from seven to 14 years of age; not more than two hours of school outside of school hours; no school work when the child is so tired that he cannot do his work; no school work when the child is so tired that he cannot do his work.

The Index is the Heart of the File.

You may have the best article file made; the cabinet work may be perfection, the finish superb, and the drawers may respond to the slightest touch, but if your letters are not properly indexed, you might as well have used a soap box.

Efficiency and good results depend on your selection of a good system of filing and finding letters—only partially on the cabinet itself. Like a beautiful automobile with a poor motor, a file with a poor index can not give good results.

The speed you get from your Filing Department determines to a large extent the speed of your whole office organization, and especially does it affect the efficiency and output of your high priced department heads.

Waiting for correspondence is worse than waiting for a train. You fuss and fume and soon your enthusiasm and concentration, which count for the most in a good day's work, are gone.

COMMUNICATION.

I have been in the Counties of Wicomico, Worcester and Somerset for over a month now trying to perfect an organization in each one capable of raising a sum of money for the Salvation Army. Naturally my first object was to get in touch with some man or group of men who were big and broad enough and capable of putting it over.

My efforts thus far have produced but little results. Every man, with but few exceptions had his excuse and brought it out just as if he knew it by heart. Of course the answers were varied and numerous but the most frequent has been the plea of having had so much war work. This has been such a favorite reply that I have about come to the conclusion the battle of the Argonne must have been fought somewhere between Salisbury and Berlin, the St. Hihiel Drive carried through between Princess Anne and Crisfield, and the other notable engagements along the Berlin, Snow Hill and Pocomoke City Sector. If the average holds good for the rest of the country we should have something like 99,000,000 war heroes exclusive of the boys who were at the "French Front."

Another rather common excuse seems to be "We are sick of Drives." In the first place permit us to observe that this is not a drive at your pocket-book, but an appeal to your hearts to give so the Salvation Army may be the means of salvaging for better things those persons who have dropped so low they are unable to help themselves. The Salvation Army is not a "front parlor organization."

As to being sick of drives, that is quite natural because they seem to be never ending. On the other hand, who is to say where to stop. Is it fair to pick out the Salvation Army as the organization to which you will first say no? It would be well to think a bit before making oneself responsible for such action. If you will but read the Geographic Magazine and the Ladies Home Journal for April and see what each has to say regarding the Salvation Army; or read the speeches and statements of such people as General Pershing, the Secretary of War, Governor Ritchie, the Maryland State Legislature and an endless chain of the most prominent people of the country, I am quite sure you will come to the conclusion that there really is no more effective organization in existence today for reaching the sore spots of humanity. The Salvation Army lives for and with its work.

A number of people have said they wanted a little time in which to catch their breath, but the Salvation Army does not ask for time in which to catch its breath. While you are catching your breath they must needs reduce their activities and should the country at large ask for time also, it would mean abandoning their work almost entirely. This would be a catastrophe for which I am sure there is no man would care to be responsible.

So many other people say they have asked others for money so much they are ashamed to do so again. I can see no reason why anyone should be ashamed to ask for a contribution to such a cause. It is an appeal for the support of God's own cause. Dollars contributed go down into the places that need it most. No way is too dark; no climb too weary for the Salvation Army Lasso who is helping to wage the long war against crime and poverty, suffering and hunger. Is it a human being in pain, in distress? That is all she asks. She cares naught for creed, color or nationality.

The Salvation Army are on the job 24 hours a day and the sun never sets on their activities, for they encircle the globe. They never ask for time in which to catch their breath. They do not say "We are sick of all this filth and misery in which we live." They are never too busy to lend a helping hand. They ask no questions of those who need assistance except "Won't you let me help you?" They work where the human wreckage and driftwood accumulates and prove the statement that there is much worth saving by the results they obtain. Two out of every three derelicts make good.

When some forlorn, betrayed woman comes to them asking their aid, they do not say they are too busy, tired out by their war work or sick of such work. The Salvation Army replies to such an appeal "Of course we will help. No matter if the baby is nameless it is worth its weight in gold to the nation if brought up into a worthwhile citizen."

The mother who brings her child to the day nurseries which the Salvation Army maintains, to be cared for during the day while she works for a living is cordially welcomed and the baby given the best of care.

The Army believes in better babies, because better babies make better men and women and they make a better country for us all to live in. It hits a vital spot.

It was soup, soap and salvation on the front lines of France, with the doughnuts thrown in for good measure, and it is soup, soap and salvation on the fighting line of the home sector.

The Salvation Army is not asking to be paid for its patriotism and its efforts to make the lives of our boys in France a little easier and better. Their work over there cost them dearly, but the record is clear and can be pointed to with pride if need be. What they want is funds with which to carry on their great program of Americanization and tireless efforts of "raising the bottom." They are offering the most practical and direct method of aiding your fellow man.

The Salvation Army asks for a free vote of confidence from the Nation. The Eastern Shore is far behind most every other district of Maryland. It hasn't such a very large share to raise. There are so many who can help in this county and all it needs is to have everybody put their shoulder to the wheel and over the top she goes.

Sincerely yours,

W. T. ASHBY,

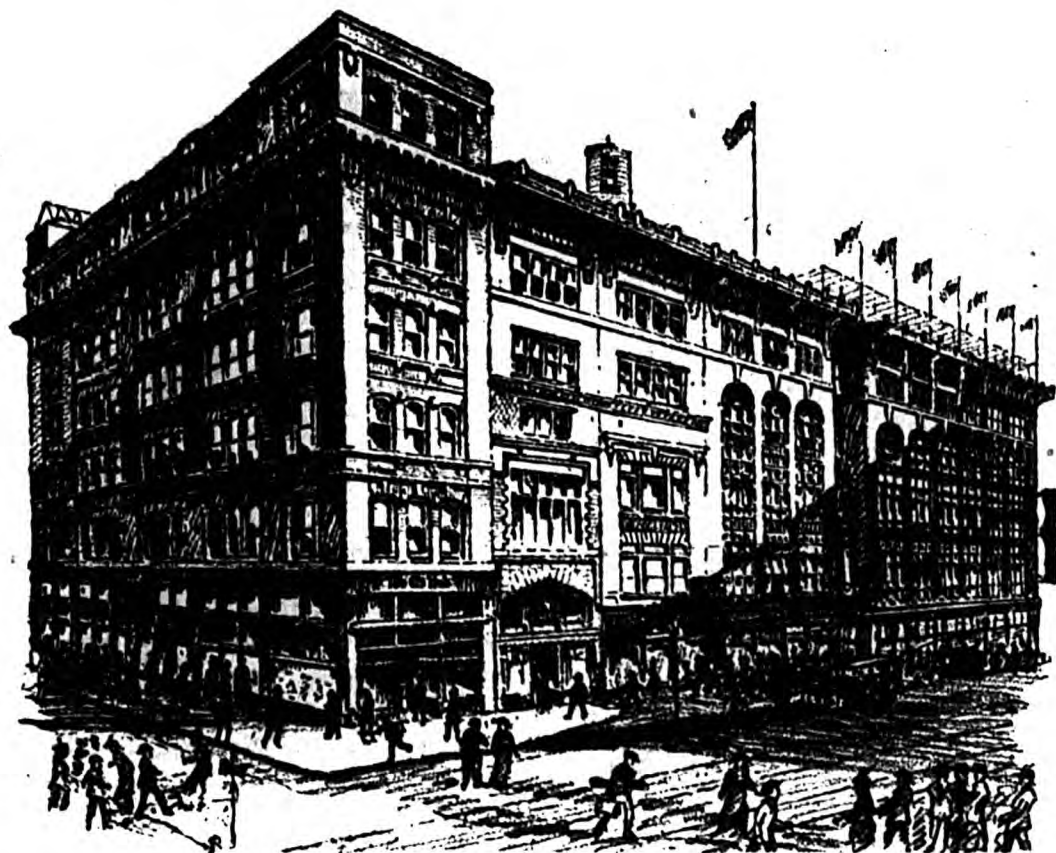

Representing the Salvation Army in its appeal for 1920, to be held May 10th to 20th.

About Digestion.

It is claimed that only half as much food is required when it is thoroughly masticated. Digestion begins in the mouth and a thorough mastication of the food is of the greatest importance. When needed take Chamberlain's Tablets to strengthen the digestion and insure a regular movement of the bowels. —Advt. *

Cornell-Wood-Board

Triple Sized, Takes the Place of Plaster—for Walls, Ceilings, Partitions, Repairs, Alterations and New Work

Will You Rent Your Attic for $25 Per Month?

In Homes, Stores and Factories—Spare Space Now Pays Big Returns

Living and working quarters are in such demand that thousands of people are finishing up their attics, basements, spare rooms and other waste space with attractive Cornell-Wood-Board walls and ceilings.

When space is as valuable as now, a few dollars spent for Cornell-Wood-Board will pay big returns in rents or added rooms—a guest chamber, nursery, cozy sewing room, den, office or shop. Two comfortable rooms are often obtained from one large room subdivided by a Cornell Partition. This strong, rigid wood-board takes the place of lath and plaster; and it is far more easily applied, and cannot crack, chip or fall.

Triple-Sizing Protects Against Moisture

Cornell is favored by architects, carpenters and builders because its internal and external sizing resists absorption and expansion, especially in damp weather.

Coupled with our pure wood fiber construction it enables us to guarantee that Cornell will not warp, crack, buckle or chip, if our directions are followed.

Experts favor Cornell also because of its mill-primed surface (both sides) which saves you the cost and labor of a priming or sizing coat.

For Small Rooms "Cornell 32"

The 32-inch width is a Cornell feature that produces the most charming panel designs for hallways, small rooms and borders. For large rooms, broad partitions and factory construction requiring wider panels, "Cornell 48" is recommended.

Lumber yards in every city are prepared to supply you—but ask for "Cornell-Wood-Board" by name—for no other wall-board is like it.

If your dealer is out of samples, write direct to us for panel plans, samples and prices.

SALISBURY MARYLAND

HERBERT HOOVER CAMPAIGN LAUNCHED IN MARYLAND

Strong State Organization is Functioning Among Men and Women

Headquarters Now Open in Baltimore City, Big Men Of This State Start Boom With Gusto—Women Very Active.

HERBERT HOOVER

Baltimore.—Reports from far points throughout this State show conclusively the Hoover boom is firmly taking root. The Maryland headquarters for Herbert Hoover are now established in the heart of Baltimore's business district, 119-121 West Fayette street, where hundreds of visitors appear daily.

Though the Hoover organization for Maryland has only been functioning a short while and headquarters were just opened, the daily mail brings encouragement from all classes, parties and creeds who offer their moral and financial support.

Some of Maryland's most astute citizens in civic and professional life form the State Executive Committee. John T. Stone heads the guiding organization as President. Mr. Stone is President of the Maryland Casualty Company, and was active in war work. The Executive Committee members are: John T. Stone, H. F. Van Trump, Emory H. Niles, S. F. Evans, J. S. Wilson, Jr., W. B. Miller, William H. Maltbie, H. E. Corner, Carl C. Thomas, William B. Littleton, George S. Jackson, Henry W. Williams.

This organization was launched at a State-wide conference called by Mr. Stone on April 14th, 1920. About sixty residents of Baltimore City and the counties of both political parties attended this meeting, and letters were received from most every county in the State, endorsing the candidacy of Mr. Hoover in a most enthusiastic way. The meeting, after a talk by Mr. Stone, explaining the purpose of the meeting, unanimously resolved that a Club should be formed, to be called the Hoover Club of Maryland, open to all residents of the State in favor of the election of Mr. Hoover to the Presidency.

Mr. Stone was elected President; Mr. Maltbie and Dr. Van Trump, Vice Presidents.

Women of Maryland will play a vitally important part in the Hoover drive. They are already well organized and actively canvassing the entire State. The Hoover Club of Maryland prides itself in the fact that it has the valuable support of patriotic women. Women in the campaign are not organized in a separate auxiliary, but rather have their place shoulder to shoulder with the men workers. They are on an equal footing.

Two public meetings have been held by the women and a series of parlor meetings is being arranged. A very successful meeting has already been held at Mrs. Francis King Carey's house, at which there were about two hundred representative women of Baltimore, invited to meet Mrs. F. Lewis Slade, of New York, and hear her speak about Hoover. Mrs. Slade is very popular in Baltimore, and it will be remembered that on one of her visits she helped to organize the Junior League, which has been such a success. She is now a delegate from New York to the National Convention. Her speech aroused much enthusiasm and most of those present enrolled as members of the Hoover Club.

Women help to make public opinion. In all probability the women will have the right to vote by next November, but in any case they can be of great service in the campaign, which consists chiefly in getting signatures of men and women pledged to vote for Hoover.

The roster of the women's committee which will be enlarged from time to time is as follows:

Miss Alice Tiffany, Mrs. B. Corkran, Jr., Mrs. A. Morris Carey, Mrs. J. H. Mason Knox, Mrs. Francis King Carey, Mrs. Jacob G. Moses, Mrs. Julius W. Freeman, Dr. Lillian Welsh, Mrs. Austin McLanahan, Mrs. Mark O. Shriver, Mrs. John W. Garrett, Mrs. Francis Sanderson, Mrs. Carl C. Thomas, Secretary.

"The most encouraging phase of our efforts in Maryland thus far has been the support volunteered by the man who has his nose to the grindstone," declared Mr. Stone. "Hoover supporters are developing regardless of sect or party, race or color. The letters we receive invariably convey the thought that the United States needs first and foremost a 'business administration.' They state it is their belief Hoover is the business man to handle the job properly. They are convinced of his sincerity and real ability."

"Hoover is not so much the politician as he is the capable business man. He has a mind that few leaders in our country have. The best argument for Herbert Hoover is his 'bigness.' Everyone knows of his great brain and capacity for disposing of knotty problems, either vast or infinitesimal in scope. It is not necessary to mention his unblemished record as national food administrator. Just read his record in the business world. He is a 'big man' in whatever he undertakes. And he is just what the westerner calls a 'square shooter.'"

"Mr. Hoover's candidacy is open and above board. He was not seeking the office. If he had been, he made a very unbusinesslike poor start by not stating his affiliations promptly. Hoover was engaged in another merciful undertaking, the records of congress will show, when his friends were beseeching him to run for president. He did not decide to run until he completed his object, namely getting a large sum from congress for carrying on much needed foreign work."

"The main object of the Hoover clubs is to show by enrollment the extent of the public interest in national issues as expressed by Herbert Hoover. This is desired in order to convince delegates to the Chicago convention of the support of this movement from all elements in the community. This line of action is thought to be wiser than at this late date and with unequal organization to initiate new contests in the primaries."

Cut out and mail to HOOVER CLUB OF MARYLAND, headquarters 117 West Fayette Street, "second floor front."

I am a supporter of Herbert Hoover for the Presidency of the United States, and I pledge myself to do all I can to further Mr. Herbert Hoover's candidacy.

I hereby enroll myself as a member of the Hoover Club of Maryland. Give Personal answers to the following questions:

MEN'S SEVEN SHOPPING AGES

Periods of Life Which All Salesmen Recognize as Unchangeable as Nature's Laws.

Merchants divide their customers into seven classes according to age. First there is the toddle age when all articles of wear are selected without consulting the personal taste of the wearer. Then comes the 'teen age' when the chief concern is to find clothing made of some fabric that will resist the rough surfaces of cellar doors, tree trunks, outbuildings, and other prominences on which small boys and girls will climb in spite of all attempts in educating them otherwise. Third is the sweetheart period, when boys and girls first find that they shouldn't scratch each other's eyes out. It is at this time they begin to take a first interest in clothes. The tendency is toward loud ties, striped socks, fancy dresses, etc., to the delight and profit of the merchants. Fourth, comes the courting age during which each sex is looking for his or her life mate. Each dresses with the chief purpose of pleasing the opposite sex. Candy merchants, flower shops and theaters reap a rich harvest from the folks of this period. Fifth stage is the early-wed. The young folks are becoming established in a home. They first learn the real value of money and the joy of citizenship. Sixth, the practical age. In 99 homes out of 100, the problem during this period is economy. Consequently, sales of all kinds appeal to the mothers of this age. Seventh and last, the sunset age, that glorious period of life rich in its experiences and friendship. Comfort is about the only appeal that salesmen can make to this period of life.

BASED ONLY ON TRADITION

Ancient Religions All Had Foundation in Supposed Wisdom Handed Down by the Ancients.

A state of original barbarism prevailed through the fragments of remote antiquity preserved among various nations and through all the religious traditions of the ancient world, according to books esteemed sacred by various oriental nations.

In the Skiking and other fragments of Chinese history, and in the Ramayan of the Indian Valmiki, pictures are drawn of the happiness and virtue of the first men. Plato said that his countrymen derived all their knowledge of divine things from the ancients, who, as he affirmed, "were wiser and lived nearer to the gods than we."

The Egyptians began their history with dynasties of gods and heroes who were said to have assumed human form, and to have dwelt among men. The golden age of the Hindus, and their numerous avatars of the gods, are fictions of a similar character, as well as their two royal dynasties descended from the sun and moon, a remarkable coincidence with which is found in the traditions of Peru.—Detroit News.

Rainmakers' Beliefs.

From very ancient times superstitious beliefs have existed concerning rain, and many quaint little rites have been performed by agricultural people anxious for the welfare of their crops. For a cat to appear unusually restless is still held by some to be a sure sign of rain. It has also been noticed that when the cows all lie down in the fields rain very often follows before long, usually of a more or less violent character. In one of the northern provinces of India the maidens used to have a quaint custom. When rain was desired they would sail forth with jars of water, which they calmly poured down the backs of any old women they happened to pass. This dangerous practice is now, fortunately, out of date. Some people believe to this day that, in a case of severe drought, flogging the surface of rivers, ponds, etc., will quickly call up refreshing showers. The flogging is done with rods, preferably of hazel.

The Dusk and Stars.

The rain had ceased falling softly through the dusk. A cool green wind flows through the deeps of air. The stars are as wind-whirled fruit blown upwards from the tree tops. Full-orbed, and with a pulse of flame, the moon leads a tide of quiet light over the brown shores of the world. But here I stand upon the brown shores of the world, in the shine of that quiet flame where, full-orbed, the moon uplifts the dark. I think only of the stars as wind-whirled fruit blown upward from the tree tops. I think only of that wind that blew upon the tree tops, where the whirling stars spun in a mazy dance, when, at last the rain had ceased falling softly through the dusk. O wind-whirled stars, O secret falling rain.—Fiona Macleod.

Do It Now!

Who would imagine that Sir Walter Scott, the great Scottish poet could sometimes feel lazy? Yet he says that he often found the beginning of the day's labour as distasteful as "plunging into cold water." "We shiver on the brink," said he, "but once in, are full of vigor and energy. If the morning hours are squandered in idleness, we are apt to think the rest of the day is too short to trouble about, and so the precious time passes away with no achievement." Such a thought as this makes one inclined to obey the advice of another philosopher, who said, "Don't wonder when to do a thing, but do it now!"

SOLDIER OF FORTUNE APPEARS AT ARCADE

Robert Warwick, As Myles Calthorpe
In Stirring Romance of Diamond Smuggling, Delights Movie Fans.

Myles Calthorpe, an Englishman of good family, and a soldier of fortune, goes to South Africa where he finds employment with Matt Solomon and Brummage, two diamond smugglers who conceal their illicit traffic in gems under the guise of being dealers in feathers. Brummage asks him to meet a Kaffir who is to trust a package to him, but suspecting that he is being employed as a tool for some illegal purpose, refuses and is immediately discharged.

Calthorpe starts for Cape Town and is robbed of his money by tramps. He stops at the home of Joan Farrant, a beautiful girl whose picture he had seen in a magazine, and whose brother, Henry Farrant, is implicated in diamond smuggling with Solomon and Brummage. He appeals to Joan for help and she obtains a position for him as clerk with her brother. Calthorpe and Joan meet frequently and they grow fond of each other. Through Farrant, Calthorpe's reputation suffers in Joan's estimation and he decides to go south.

Farrant takes advantage of the opportunity to smuggle a package filled with diamonds to Cape Town and at Joan's request, although she has no knowledge of its contents, Calthorpe accepts it for delivery to the address written thereon by Joan. On the steamship en route, Calthorpe is found and the package confiscated by King's officers. Calthorpe, to screen Joan, refuses to turn king's evidence, and is sentenced to serve three years' imprisonment at hard labor, and when he is released, he obtains employment on a sugar plantation under the alias of "Jim Clark."

Calthorpe rescues Fanny Dering, a society girl, when she is attacked by the same tramps who had robbed him, and when she discovers his interest in a photograph of Joan Farrant in her possession, she contrives to bring the two together at a country ball. Joan recognizes Calthorpe and believing him to be a criminal, she exposes him, but regrets her action when it is too late. Calthorpe admits his prison record, but Tom Dering, a young lawyer, believes in him and assures him of his confidence and aid. Mr. Prescott, Calthorpe's employer, follows suit and makes him manager of his plantation.

Assuring Calthorpe of his co-operation in bringing the diamond smugglers to justice, Tom induces him to reveal the truth. Calthorpe encounters one of Solomon's messengers bearing a packet of diamonds and in the presence of detectives and other witnesses, the messenger exposes Solomon, Brummage and Farrant's criminal operations. Farrant is injured in an accident, but before he dies, he exonerates Calthorpe, whereupon Joan's love for Calthorpe revives. Calthorpe himself handcuffs Solomon and Brummage; the newspapers exonerate him completely and when he next meets Joan, she confesses her great love for him, thus rendering the lives of both happy.

EDUCATION BOARD ORGANIZES TUESDAY

W. B. Miller Succeeds L. T. Cooper
Who Served A Creditable Nine Years. L. W. Gunby, President.

The Board of Education for Wicomico county was re-organized Tuesday, Walter B. Miller entering the board as the successor to Levin T. Cooper, whose term had expired.

The board organized by re-electing L. W. Gunby as its president. H. L. Brewington was elected vice-president.

The retiring member of the board, Mr. Cooper, had served in that capacity for the last nine years and rendered very efficient and valuable aid to the cause of education in Wicomico county. He retired, as he expressed it, "with regret that he could no longer give his time to the important matter of education."

Mr. Miller, the new member, is so generally recognized throughout this county as a man of ability and integrity, that his entrance upon the work will be regarded as very greatly strengthening the board at a time when grave school problems will have to be solved.

Mr. Gunby and Mr. Brewington have served on the board for several years, and are regarded as successful business men who are devoting their time to the cause of education in this county.

The new board was in session all day on Tuesday, important business matters claiming their attention.

Chief among the matters considered was the budget of 1922. The defeat of the bond issue, in which was provided large sums for the building and repairing of school houses, claimed the attention of the board several hours, as it necessitated changing of many items of expense which it was hoped to make by the passage of the bond bill. It was decided to make many repairs and to erect a few new buildings, provided the County Commissioners can see their way clear to appropriate the necessary money without imposing too heavy burdens upon the taxpayers of the county. The two boards will confer upon the matter next Tuesday.

Several delegations were before the board on Tuesday. One from Delmar came with the proposal from a committee of a Delmar lodge to present to the Board a handsome flag and pole to grace the entrance to the new High school building in Delmar. The proposal was accepted.

A delegation of colored people from Quantico presented its claims for a new school building in Quantico. The committee stated that the colored people would donate the land and would furnish the framing for a new building. In addition to this they had raised $500 in money to help in the erection of the building. This shows the interest the colored people of Quantico have in the cause of education and it impressed the board very much. Colored people in several other sections of the county have made similar offers, notably in and around Delmar, where they have purchased a tract of land costing $800 which will be deeded to the School board as soon as a new building is erected.

In Salisbury the colored people have raised several hundred dollars for the erection of a new High school building, and at Wetipquin they have done the same thing. It will be the policy of the board to grant these requests as soon as enough money is available to erect the buildings.

The matter of establishing High schools at Pittsville, Mardela and Hebron was discussed at considerable length. For Pittsville it was shown that the present building was adequate to take care of the children attending the school and that it would require only one extra teacher to add an additional grade, raising the school to and including the tenth grade. This, the board decided to do.

Mardela, it was shown, had enough rooms to accommodate the children attending. The board decided to continue the school as at present, which teaches up to and including the ninth grade, which will require the employment of an extra teacher in the elementary grades.

Reports from Hebron school, which is asking that the 10th grade be added, show that there are not enough pupils to comply with the school law so as to raise the grades, and the school will likely be continued as at present, with the ninth grade as the maximum grade. As soon as sufficient pupils can be provided in the High school grade to comply with the school laws, the grading will no doubt be raised.

Several other matters were considered, including the appointment and assignment of teachers for next year.

LOCAL GIRLS IN TYPING CONTEST

Beacom College Student Wins Grand Prize in Contest Where Students Of Four States Compete.

Miss Jessie People, a Wilmington girl, and a Beacom Business college carried away the grand prize in the recent typewriting contest at the First Regiment armory. The contest was open to Business college and high school students who had received no instruction in typewriting prior to September last.

Between 70 and 80 students representing New Jersey, Pennsylvania, Maryland and Delaware high schools and business colleges competed for the 10 prizes. The Beacom Business college of this city, had five students entered in the contest, and won the big silver loving cup which was awarded to the school whose pupil won the gold medal.

Two other Beacom students, Miss Nellie West and Miss Glendora Pippin won honor medals. The other two Beacom girls, Miss Eleanor Farry and Miss Gladys Hudson, ranked 11th and 12th respectively. Miss Farry, who is a daughter of United States Marshal M. F. Farry, of this city, received special mention for having turned in the most accurate paper. The students wrote for 15 minutes and Miss Farry was the only one of the entire number who had fewer than four mistakes.

All of the Beacom students were trained by Miss L. Eisenhart, principal of the typewriting department of the Beacom school. The contest was held under the auspices of the Annual Business show, and under the direction of J. N. Kimball, international contest manager.

Howard Riggins is now assistant secretary of the Salisbury Young Men's association having resigned his position with the Salisbury Music & Specialty Co.

CRISFIELD HAS DISASTROUS FIRE

Entire Plant Put Out Of Business
By Fire Friday Night. Several
U. S. Boats In Danger.

On Friday night Crisfield was visited by another fire, this time occurring at the plant of the Crisfield Shipbuilding Company. Reports say it originated in the watchman's office, caused by the explosion of an oil stove while he was on his rounds. It occurred just after midnight, and fanned by a gentle wind the flames engulfed the entire plant.

The fire department made a quick run to the scene, but had some trouble with the motor engine, on which repairs had only been completed that day, since the burning out of the bearings at the recent fire at Princess Anne. Little could be done to save the buildings, so the department's attention was directed to saving three government patrol boats which were at the plant for repairs.

These vessels were let down the ways to escape being consumed by the fire, and other precautions taken to prevent other surrounding property from being destroyed. The well-equipped machine shop containing a large amount of equipment from the government boats was totally destroyed. A car load of cement just hauled to the plant was also rendered useless. For a while great excitement prevailed as it was feared that the ice plant would ignite, but heroic efforts of the fire department prevented this catastrophe.

The estimates of damage vary, but is thought to be around $50,000, with insurance in force of around $6,500. The plant is totally put out of commission.

MASONS ATTEND SERVICE ON SUNDAY

Splendid Address By Delaware's
Grand Master Is Listened To By 125 Members From The County.

Masons, members of Wicomico lodge No. 91 of this city, and representatives of every other Masonic lodge in the county numbering 125, attended service on Sunday morning at Asbury M. E. church, under the guidance of Past Master George Shipley of Wicomico lodge as marshal.

The service which was conducted by the Rev. J. T. Herson, pastor of the church, was featured by an address by Harry Mayer, grand master of the State of Delaware, who talked for about 45 minutes about fraternalism; making points of man's duty to God, his duty to country, to his neighbor and to himself.

Mr. Mayer was formerly a resident of Salisbury. He was admitted to Masonry through Wicomico lodge in 1905 and feels a keen interest in the work of the local organization.

Wicomico lodge under the administration of Worshipful Master Charles W. Bennett is booming. Candidates are being admitted at frequent intervals, the roll call of members now numbering about 190. Wicomico is one of the strongest Masonic lodges in the state outside of Baltimore city.

TRINITY CHURCH.

Next Sunday the pastor, Rev. Thomas Rosser Reeves, will preach at both services. The morning service will be observed as "Mothers' Day." The sermon will be on "Our Mother." Young women will pin white or red flowers upon those attending this service. The choir will render special music appropriate to the occasion. At the evening hour the preacher's theme will be "The Dignity, Divinity, and Destiny of Man." Evening service one hour.

Mrs. W. B. Tilghman Jr., and Miss Louise Tilghman entertained the meeting of officers and teachers of Trinity Sunday school in the new basement room. After a delightful luncheon, Sunday school matters were discussed. Attendance at Trinity Sunday school is now running above 200.

On Thursday evening Rev. and Mrs. Thomas Rosser Reeves entertained the official board of the church at the episcopate on North Division street. After routine matters were disposed of, refreshments were served and a delightful social time enjoyed.

Miss Killiam of the public schools will sing solo at the midweek service on Wednesday evening.

STRAWBERRIES TO BRING $10 A CRATE

Whole Fields Are Bought In At This Price Before The Fruit Is Set.
Acreage Small This Year.

Truckers and strawberry growers of Wicomico county are now busy making their arrangements for the shipping of their crops of luscious fruit and it is expected that within the next two weeks the berries will be on in very fair amount. The acreage in Wicomico this year is rather small, as compared with previous years, but the outlook for the biggest prices ever known in the history of the business will cause the volume of money to be received here by the growers quite as large as for many years past. Already, contracts have been placed for many of the fields at the rate of $10.00 per crate of 32 quarts, and the demand will, it is said, be so great as to probably cause even an increase in this price.

Three years ago, the News made a great effort to impress farmers and truckers with the importance of setting out extra large acreages of strawberry plants because it was seen that should the prohibition measure pass, and become a law, there would be such a demand for fruit juices as to make the strawberry crop the best paying crop which could be produced on a farm. Some of the farmers were astute enough to take this advice and set out new patches; and these people at the last season, and will this season, reap a golden harvest. W. F. Allen of this city, who is without doubt the best authority on strawberry culture in the United States, says that while the acreage this year is somewhat small, next year, he believed would see the largest acreage of strawberry growing which this section has ever known; as almost every farmer has been setting out new patches because of the excessively high prices which the berries have been bringing for the last two years.

The putting down of strawberries for fruit juice purposes is carried on extensively here by one or two of the largest canners and growers. This process is very simple and the price received for the fruit juice, like everything else, has increased many times during the year since the prohibition act went into effect. It is understood that John H. Dulany at Fruitland and W. F. Allen will both engage extensively this year in putting down strawberries for fruit juice purposes and that both these gentlemen have been successful in obtaining the necessary sugar for the purpose. Mr. Allen, it is said received last week 175 barrels of sugar to be used in this way.

The eastern section of Wicomico county is a large strawberry section, and it is gratifying to know that many of the farmers and truckers of that section have been alive to the situation and have not allowed this industry to die on the farm as they have in other sections of the county. Last year, there was probably more money received by the farmers and truckers of Pittsburg, Dennis and Willards districts for strawberries than was received for all other crops, and it is said that they are in a position this year to reap the golden harvest again.

LADIES

Since you have purchased your Apex Cleaner, it is a foregone conclusion that your household duties are lightened, but, unfortunately, the cleaner cannot do everything. One of the things it cannot do is the ironing—and ironing is no easy task at best. It is easiest, however, when done with the modern Electric Iron—the Rutenber. With an Electric Iron there is no soot or dirt and the heat in the kitchen is reduced to a minimum.

DELAWARE BERRY GROWERS PROSPEROUS.

Never in the history of the strawberry industry in lower Delaware were prospects better for a bumper crop of fruit than at this time. The blossoms are well advanced for this season of the year, and all patches seem to have plenty of foliage, runners and buds. Fruit growers believe that cold weather is a thing of the past, and everything is being got in readiness for the approach of the berry season, which will be on within the next four weeks, unless cold rains and an unusual amount of cloudy weather prevail and prevent the fruit from developing.

The acreage in lower Delaware this season is greater than last season, due to the fact that growers found berries to be one of the most profitable crops grown last year. Prices remained high throughout the season and several growers from a few acres realized enough to purchase small farms. One grower in Northwest Fork district sold his field of about seven acres for more than $8,000, while another farmer in Dagsboro district got about $7,000 from five acres. Possibly half of the berries grown in Sussex county go into syrup and jams, millions of pounds of sugar being used to preserve them before they are shipped to the extensive syrup manufacturers in Rochester, N. Y., and St. Louis.

LIBERTY BONDS MUST BE CONVERTED.

Holders of four per cent. Liberty bonds of the second loan and converted fours of the first loan must exchange them for permanent 4 1/2 per cent. bonds before collecting the installment of interest due May 15. Latest advice from the Treasury department indicate that these permanent bonds will be ready for delivery at the Treasury by May 1, the delay in receiving them being due to difficulty in having them printed.

No inconvenience has resulted, as holders of the temporary bonds will receive no installment of interest until May 15, on the second fours, and June 15 on the first converted fours.

Except where holders of temporary bonds specifically request otherwise, 4 1/2 per cent. permanent bonds will be given in exchange for all temporary fours turned in. Large numbers of these bonds are still outstanding, holders having failed to convert them, through ignorance or carelessness into the more valuable 4 1/2 per cent. bonds. Since all of these must now be turned into the Treasury in exchange for permanent bonds, the conversion into the 4 1/2 per cent. bonds can be accomplished simultaneously with the exchange.

The last coupon on the temporary second fours matured November 15. Holders of these bonds must therefore exchange them for permanent bonds, with all the coupons attached, before the installment of interest due May 15 can be collected.

FREE LIBRARY SERVICE INADEQUATE.

Only 9.6 per cent. of the population of Virginia has access to free public libraries, leaving almost 1,900,000 persons not provided with free library service, according to the estimate of the United States Bureau of Education recently made public.

American Library association officials declare that this lack as revealed by statistics of public library development recently compiled by P. P. Claxton, Commissioner of Education, will give residents of Virginia a conception of the benefit to be derived from the "Books for Everybody" movement launched by the association. To devote to the task of making public library service a vital influence in every American community, the A. L. A. is gathering a "Books for Everybody" fund of $2,000,000. Henry R. McIlhenny, State Librarian of Virginia, at Richmond, is State Director for Virginia.

CITIZENSHIP SCHOOL AT UNIVERSITY.

A school of citizenship, designed to interest women in a more thorough knowledge of the machinery of government, has been opened at the University of Virginia, under the auspices of the bureau of extension of the university, the league of women voters co-operating. Addresses at the opening exercises were made by President Alderman, of the university, whose theme was "The New Democracy;" Dr. Albert H. Putney, dean of the faculty of the schools of diplomacy, jurisprudence and citizenship in the American University, Washington, D. C., whose subject was "The Making and Development of the National Constitution," and Mrs. Edward P. Costigan, Washington chairman committee on food supply and demand, National League of Women Voters, who spoke on "The Aims and Purposes of the League of Women Voters."

WHEN WE GO SWIMMIN'.

Boy! it's great to shed your oxfords,
And to shake your happy rags,
When the summer sun is boiling in the sky!
And its swell to trim your toe-nails
On the rocks and river snags,
And to bid the blistering bank a brave Good-by.

Fellows, we must hit the by-way
That goes winding in and out,
Wriggling right up to the waters, willow-girt,
That's the highway, lads, that's my way,
That's the road that suits a Scout,
And bids By-by to troubles, duds and dirt.

How you dash in, how you splash in!
How you dive in, if you dare:
Oh the happy thrill, the pulse-beat, the delight:
How your head does split the water:
How your heels do hit the air:
How you vanish, as by magic, out of sight!

Then you bob up with a shiver
Gently creeping down your spine,
Like a little tiger-kitten hunting game.
Oh, the quiver of the river
When you shiver, ain't it fine,
Don't it make the bloomin' bath-tub blush for shame?

HOPE

(By Esther Dell)

When life is drab, when all seems to be against us, when no matter what our best efforts may be, nothing seems to have been accomplished, when the day is dark and dreary and the sunshine seems obscured for ever, we have

HOPE!

Hope is desire with expectation of getting what is desired, belief that it is obtainable. It is the same as trust, and life without hope and trust in the future would indeed be tragical.

Hope? It is all we have. We live for it, in it and by it. We hope our loved ones' love will remain loyal to us. We hope we will succeed in business. We strive to live aright, because we hope to achieve perfect rest in Heaven.

Therefore I say, "Hope On."
If hope is dead, there is no life.
No matter how dark the day, how rough the path, how disloyal and untrue those people whom we call friends, we must hope!

Hope? It is our lives! Without it we become stagnated. We lose our vim. Hope is Life. If we Hope we live. If we live we Hope.

A part of this page is devoted to a discussion of some of those problems and themes which are of interest to women. The page is written by Miss Esther Dell, one of The News' special feature writers who invites her readers to send her communications and news items for publication on The Woman's Page.

From time to time Miss Dell will discuss topics which she believes will interest the women readers of The News; but she asks the co-operation of her readers in the matter of furnishing subjects to be discussed.

All communications of this character should be addressed personally to Miss Esther Dell in care of The Wicomico News, so that her personal attention to such matters may be assured.

Character Killers More Dangerous Than Life Destroyers

No Crime Is More Dastardly And None More Hideous Than The Circulation Of Gossip Which Tarnishes The Reputation Of A Woman. Gossip Circulators Are Menace
To Their Communities.

THEY ARE NOT TO BE TRUSTED.

(By Esther Dell).

Where is the man or the woman who can afford to "talk about" his or her neighbor?

Where is the man or the woman who in turn might not be "talked about?"

Last week I attempted to point out the evils of gossiping.

Since last week I have heard a lot of new gossip—that kind which must of necessity blacken the character of a woman. I listened to it, and while I listened I could not but think of the dastardly crime my "informant" was committing.

If that person had struck the woman talked about dead in the streets, instead of talking about her in the manner that she was talked about, that woman would have been the more kindly dealt with.

The things that were said, if repeated, would kill that woman's reputation. It would create for her a character among her fellows that would follow her to the grave and injure not alone her, but her brothers, sisters, parents and her children. It would be better that this woman be dead and buried now than that the things this person said about her be repeated.

Yet these things were said to me. How do I know how many other people my "informant" said them to? I can't trust that person not to tell other people, although I asked that there be no repetition of the gossip—all of which was based on what this "informant" called rumor—not facts.

I can't trust a person of that kind! Such a person steals a woman's sacred reputation! What is the crime that such a person will not commit? There is no jewel, no coin of any realm more precious than the reputation of a woman. It is a priceless thing to be treasured and cherished. The honest man and the honest woman will make no attempt to deface it or steal it. Any honest person will realize that a clean character is the woman's greatest of all her God-given graces. If it is scarred or stolen, that woman is lost!

And I say, who is the man or woman who will wilfully ruin a good woman's reputation?

I say good woman, because which of us is to judge which is a good woman and which is not a good woman?

Remember that mandate:

"Judge not that ye be not judged."

Gossip is a dangerous thing. Every man and every woman should be careful how it is used. It is a poisonous gas which withers the lives of those whom it attacks. It has driven to Hell more men and more women than whiskey or drugs; and it has all too frequently struck back at its promoters in no indirect manner.

Remember my friends how criminal a thing it is to take the life of a human being—but remember, I plead with you, that it is far more criminal to kill a woman's good name.

WHERE DID I COME FROM?

By Margaret Warner Morley.
(Author of The Renewal of Life, The Insect Folk, etc.)

This question the child is bound to ask sooner or later. There are two ways of answering it. One way is to evade the question, or answer it untruthfully, telling the child that the stork brought him or some such fiction. This is a bad way for the child knows it is not true. If, at first, he does not know it is false, he soon will.

The other way is to tell the truth. One mother answered the question of her eight year old son with the simple statement, "You came from Mother, in sight for the housewife who is up Dear. You grew within her body and lay close to her heart for a long time. She knew you were coming and got ready for you and thought about you and loved you even before you were born." The boy looked at her, threw his arms about her and exclaimed, "Oh, Mother! that is why I love you so." He had been told the truth, and he instinctively knew it was the truth. He did not have to find out later that his mother had deceived him.

When any child finds that he has been deceived by his mother he naturally loses confidence in her. Usually he will not ask her any more questions but will listen to vile stories from other people and will think that they are true and that that is why his mother is not willing to be frank with him.

Every mother should tell her own children about the coming of new life and she should tell them before evil-minded persons have a chance to pollute their minds. The first impression that children get on this subject is the one that lasts. Make the coming of new life seem beautiful to your child. Tell him the story of the bird's life, how the nest is built, how the eggs are laid, how the parent birds sit on the eggs to keep them warm, how happy and excited they are when the eggs hatch out, how they carry food to the young birds and care for them until their feathers grow and how finally they teach the young birds to fly.

Teach the children to respect motherhood, to be tender and careful of all mothers. Tell them when pussy is going to have kittens. They must be very gentle with her and feed her well and help her all they can. They will love the kittens they have thus watched far more than any other kittens they have ever had, and they will learn to understand and respect all mothers. The boy who is cruel to animals will very naturally be unkind to his mother, his sisters, and later to his wife and children. Much can be done to supplant the instinct of cruelty with loving care and thoughtfulness in the impressionable hearts of young children. Mothers, make your children thoughtful and loving, teach them to cherish what is weaker than themselves. Do you realize that the making of the next generation is in your hands? To a great extent you can make your children just what you want them to be. What a glorious responsibility is yours!

SUGAR SUBSTITUTE IS EASY TO GET

Saccharine. A Pure, Wholesome
Sweetner. Many Times Sweeter Than Sugar Can Be Safely Used.

(By Esther Dell).

Threatened with a shortage of sugar, or sugar to be sold at excessively high prices just as the preserving and canning season approaches, housewives in all parts of the country are greatly worried.

Especially is there genuine anxiety felt in this particular section, because fruits and berries are grown in great quantities here and are "put up" for winter use as a part of the housewives' routine work each spring and summer season. Then, too, even though the raw materials are sold at very high prices, the finished canned goods and preserves will figure a cost much lower than that charged for the canned goods offered for sale in the stores.

Even though sugar promises to be almost out of sight as to cost and quantity this summer, there is relief in sight for the housewife who is up to date.

The solution seems to be offered by the use of saccharin, which is a coal tar product several hundred times sweeter than the ordinary refined sugar. Saccharin is white in color. It can be bought in bulk by the pound or it can be bought in little tablets to be dissolved in water before being used. The powdered form is the better and most convenient. Saccharin is absolutely harmless. It is used extensively in the coating of medicinal pills and in the sweetening of medicine flavors as well as extracts, ready to use pie fillings, etc.

Its selling price per pound will doubtless be as high as that of sugar but when it is considered that two little tablets of the sweetening, each no larger than an ordinary quinine pill, is equal in sweetening power to two teaspoonfuls of ordinary granulated sugar, it can easily be seen that by its great strength it reduces the amount it is necessary to use, and is much cheaper in the long run than sugar.

Just why saccharin was not brought on the market for general use during the last sugar shortage, I do not know, unless those manipulators of the sugar market who sought to make their millions at the expense of the convenience and comfort of the public were afraid that its introduction and use would ruin their prospects of getting rich.

However saccharin can be had at almost any good drug store and I predict that its use this summer in the kitchen and on the table of many American homes, when sugar is selling at 30 cents a pound will be very general.

4 MORE MEAT RECEIPTS

Beef Steak Pie.

Chuck steak, cut in narrow strips
Bit of garlic
½ bay leaf
6 peppercorns
Sprig of parsley
4 halved potatoes
1 onion stuffed with 2 cloves
1 cup sliced carrots
1 cup sliced carrots
1 cup celery cut in strips
Tie in square of cloth.

Place steak in a kettle with boiling water to cover, and let it simmer for half an hour. Add seasoning in bag together with salt to the meat, and thicken the stock. Place the kettle on an asbestos mat to keep sauce from sticking. Some dried mushrooms soaked and drained improve the flavor. Simmer while making the pastry. Then remove the bag of seasoning. Put all in a baking dish with a rolled crust over the top and sides. Brush with milk and bake 40 minutes covering it with heavy paper as soon as it is brown.

Brain Rissoles.

2 cups brains (or 1 whole brain)
¾ teaspoon salt
2 tablespoons chopped green pepper.

½ cup thick white sauce
Put brains into a bowl of cold water with salt for 30 minutes, skin and remove fibre. Cook in water to cover 15 minutes. Drain, chop, or put through a meat grinder, add seasoning and white sauce. Form into small balls; roll sheet of pie paste or short biscuit dough quite thin. Place the balls in a row equal distance apart. Place another sheet of paste over all. Stamp out with round cutter or cut them apart and press upper and lower crusts together. Bake in a moderate oven. Brown in deep, hot vegetable frying medium.

Baked Pig's Head.

1 pig's head
Biscuit dough
Salt and pepper
Choose a pig's head and clean very well. Parboil. Pat out biscuit dough and roll pig's head in the dough. Bake until brown.

Braised Beef.

Cut the meat which may be from the brisket, into cubes; brown in frying pan with drippings. Use strong heat—stir meat so it will cook quickly and not lose its juice. Tender cuts can be cooked whole. Remove the pieces to a closely covered kettle that can be used on top of range (unless the oven is heated for other cooking.) Rinse the pan with a ¼ cup of boiling water to save all browned bits, and pour over meat. Cover tightly and cook slowly for two hours.

Prepare the following sauce and pour over the meat and continue cooking for another hour.

Sauce:

chopped: 1 onion, 1 carrot, few sprigs parsley
2 tablespoons butter or butter substitute
½ cup diced celery
1 cup canned tomatoes
Salt and paprika
Melt fat. Brown onion, carrot in it. Add parsley, celery, and tomatoes. Heat thoroughly. Add seasonings.

After a hearty meal, take Doan's Regulents and assist your stomach, liver and bowels. Regulents are a mild laxative. 20¢ at all stores—Adv.

Mr. and Mrs. Milton Walls of Pocomoke spent the last week end with their parents, Mr. and Mrs. Albert M. Walls in this city.

How much should I give to make this a better world?

A CERTAIN man in New York filled out his income tax report.

It showed an income so large that his tax was 53%. And his total gifts to church and charity for the year were $148.

Think of it—thousands spent for luxuries and pleasure for himself; and $148 to leave the world a little better than he found it!

Most of us do better than that; but not so very much better.

Our average daily gift for all church causes is

- less than we spend for daily papers
- less than a local telephone call
- less than a third of the day's car fare
- less than 3 cents a day

No wonder that 80% of the ministers of America are paid less than $20 a week. No wonder that the church hospitals turn away thousands of sick people a year. No wonder that China has only one doctor for every 400,000 people. No wonder that every church board and charity society is forever meeting deficits, forever passing the hat.

It isn't because we are selfish; it isn't because we don't want to help. It's just because no one has ever put up a great big program to us, and asked us to think of the work of the church in a systematic businesslike way.

The Interchurch World Movement represents the united program of thirty denominations. They have surveyed their whole task, no business could have done it better.

They have budgeted their needs; no business could have a more scientific budget. They have united to prevent the possibility of waste and duplication. At least a million dollars will be saved by the fact that thirty individual campaigns are joined in one united effort.

And they come to the men or women who love America—to you—this week asking you to use them as the channel through which a certain definite part of your income can be applied to make this a better world.

Only you can determine what part of your income that should be.

It's a good time right now to answer that question. We're passing through the world just once; how much better will the world be because you passed through?

NEW WORLD PROGRAM
DEvised BY CHURCHES

By S. EARL TAYLOR.

DR. S. EARL TAYLOR,
General Secretary Interchurch World Movement.

If Christ, on the day He was born, had started on a tour to preach in every village in India, He would still have 80,000 more to visit.

We now believe we have found a way by which the leaders of the Protestant churches can sit around a common table and have the Christian program of the entire world laid before them. By means of the Interchurch World Movement we can see where the Methodists are, and where the Baptists are. We can see the general outline of their forces, their present status in this great world struggle, and may also have some idea of the unoccupied places, and what may be done by all of us to enter these unoccupied parts of the world field which Christ sent us to occupy.

CHURCHES TO AID LONELY
SHEEP SHEARERS OF WEST

The bleat of the sheep on the backbone of the continent calls men to the mountains. On high uplands from the Canadian border to Mexico, in lonely and inaccessible places, one of the most romantic examples of the country's migrant worker—the sheep shearer—plies his trade.

Unheard of though he is to thousands of his fellow workers, it was for him that the immigration regulations of three countries—Canada, the United States and Mexico—were modified during the war. This permitted freedom of movement to many hundreds of this strange craft, and the means of employment to thousands in factories and stores.

Yet, for all his importance in the ranks of the nation's great Marching Army of the Employed, what sort of life does this man lead? The migrant fruit picker, or wheat harvester, or farmhand, or lumberman often roams inland through cities and the congested spots of civilization. But the sheep shearer, by the nature of his trade, is cut off from such influences.

Through a survey of the nation's migrant labor now being made by the Interchurch World Movement, it is suggested that for men of this class, relief may be afforded through churches in outlying districts. For social and other purposes these men, with proper co-operation by church bodies, could make use of many of the facilities without which they are doomed to a life of isolation.

Explaining the "Ring Finger."

Of all the men, both young and old, who place engagement rings on the fingers of their brides-to-be, it is almost an absolute certainty that not one-tenth of them knows why he places the ring on the ring finger of the left hand. Of course, the answer could be: "Everybody's doing it." The custom of placing the ring upon the fourth finger seems undoubtedly to owe its origin to the fancy that a special nerve, or vein, ran directly from this finger to the heart. Macrobius, in his Saturnalia, alludes to the belief in the following words: "Because of this nerve, the newly betrothed places the ring on this finger of his spouse, as though it were a representation of the heart." This information, he asserts, was derived from an Egyptian priest.

Preachers' Sons.

I know the age-old jokes concerning preachers' sons and deacons' daughters, but have no great concern respecting them. (The writer is one of them.) It is true that much, and much too much is expected of them. They are constantly in the eye of the members of the congregation, and little allowance is made for their shortcomings. Trivial offenses are magnified, and they are rarely treated with real justice. Yet in a long life I have known many preachers' sons, and there have been very few "black sheep" among them. In nine cases out of ten they have proved to be high-minded, honorable and respected citizens.—Melville E. Stone in Collier's Weekly.

MIRAGE IN NEVADA DESERT

Traveler Relates How Two Coyotes Shared His Astonishment at Strange Sight Witnessed.

One morning in a Nevada desert I sat watching a moving mirage show its scenes—picture after picture. Occasionally one to right or left in front of or behind the preceding one. Some were retained in place much longer than others; they were brought closer and shown or shown further back. One scene was of two covered wagons with three or four loose horses. They moved along two dim wheel tracks, round an arroyo and across two or three typical sand drifts. I stared at the scene in astonishment. They stopped as though to camp by the mirage lake. A camp fire appeared. I rubbed my face; I was awake. I saw objects moving about the wagon and the fire.

Two coyotes came trotting along near me. They saw the camp and after a few steps of looking with head to one side they stopped in front of me to watch it. I rose up better to watch them. They had either not seen me or had forgotten my presence in their eager concentration on the camp scene. Another loose horse, as though left behind, came lagging up. The coyotes watched this moving horse; they were seeing what I was seeing. Smoke rose above the camp fire by the wagon, then the picture melted and only the bare desert shimmered before us.—Elias A. Mills, in Saturday Evening Post.

BRING GOOD AND BAD LUCK

Belief in Power of Various Flowers is Strongly Held in Eastern and Western Lands.

It is good luck to eat the first mayflower you see in the spring. If it is a crocus, let it alone; in Austria they say it draws away one's strength. Nor must you dig up a cuckoo flower or tempt luck by moving a wild daisy into the garden. In Egypt the anemone is one of the lucky flowers of spring; wrap the first one in red cloth and, if not disturbed, it will cure disease. On the French coast it is useless to try to catch fish unless the waters are first strewn with flowers by the fishermen's wives and daughters. In Devonshire (England) they regard it as unlucky to plant a bed of lilies in the course of twelve months. The Turk sees misfortune in so light a thing as the fall of a rose petal and will sometimes guard against such droppings by carefully picking the flowers before they fall apart. In Samoa the head of a corpse is wreathed in flowers to aid the soul to gain admission into paradise.

Chinese Tea Myth.

An interesting myth has been woven about the 5 o'clock "tea." According to a Chinese legend, tea was discovered by a son of an Indian king, Darma, who in 519 A. D. paid a semi-religious visit to China. To prove his religious fervor, Darma led an ascetic life, ate only vegetables, and prayed constantly. He vowed never to sleep that he might devote all his time to prayer, but one day, after many years, he was overcome with drowsiness and, against his will, slept. On awakening, he wept bitterly. To show his remorse he cut off his eyelids. The next morning he found the eyelids metamorphosed into two shrubs called "cha," the Chinese for eyelids. The moral of this legend points out that Darma chewed some of the shrubbery and learned its arousing properties. In 1639, the Chinese presented the "cha" or "tea" leaves to the czar, and later they were introduced into London.

High Living.

He was an Englishman, and it was his first introduction to the American Sunday-night supper, with all sorts of good things on the table at the same time. With an air of bewilderment he helped himself to everything that was passed him and then valiantly attacked his loaded plate. Picking up a fish ball in his fingers, he applied a generous smear of honey to it and bit into the new combination. A look of horror overspread his features, and he turned to his neighbor and put a warning hand on his arm.

"I say, steady on old chap!" he whispered, after a copious drink of water. "there's something dead in this bun! Don't try it, whatever you do!"—Youth's Companion.

Amusing Old Tales.

Dr. Fludd, the Rosicrucian, told of an Italian nobleman who lost a great part of his nose in a duel. A piece of flesh cut from the arm of a slave was applied, and the Italian had again a seemingly natural nose. The slave, freed, went to Naples, where he died, and at that instant gangrene appeared on the Italian's nose. The part that belonged to the dead man's arm was cut off by the advice of physicians. Flesh was taken from his own arm and applied. He rejoiced in his new nose until he, too, died. See Edmund About's ingeniously amusing romance, "The Nose of a Notary"; also Sir Kenelm Digby's "Discourse Concerning Power of Sympathy" (1660).

LITTLE HUMAN DIRECTLY WILD WAS SAVED BY SALVATION ARMY

The photograph of the little girl above was taken after she had been found, deserted and weak from abuse, by Salvation Army workers at Cumberland and fed and tenderly brought back to normal. The two "lassies" shown are Misses Gladys Burnell, seated, and Ruth E. Woods, both of Cumberland.

The story of the little girl, typical of the work being done by the Salvation Army in every town, village and hamlet of the State, is told as follows: Coming from Cumberland, where Commandant and Mrs. George M. Woods have charge of the work of the Army, it is a striking illustration of the joy which is brought to many a little heart which had been torn by woe.

Three little children, left orphans, were deserted by their grandmother who had taken charge of them. The grandmother sold all the furniture and left town. Not even a chair was left for the use of the little ones. They were seated on the bare floors when found.

Neighbors said that the one little girl, being the youngest, was treated like a cur, being frequently kicked and knocked about. Most of the food she got was what she was fortunate enough to find while she crawled about the floor.

Commandant and Mrs. Woods stepped in and took charge of the child. Tears came to the eyes of those who were familiar with the case when it was found that the baby was weak and ill because of indigestion and was unable to eat much of anything. One of her legs was partially paralyzed and she was unable to walk. She was a nervous wreck and a large bump on the back of her neck was mute evidence of the abuse to which she had been subjected.

When approached the little girl would shrink, fearing that she was to be beaten again.

Commandant and Mrs. Woods took charge of the little girl and one of the other children. They placed her on a special diet and gave her special exercise daily. With the aid of a kind-hearted physician they developed the little cringing weakling into a beautiful little blue-eyed girl loved by every one. It took but six months to bring about this transformation, but it was hard work for the Salvation Army workers. Finally the crippled limb was completely cured and the lump disappeared. The little girl was living in another world and became as happy as other little girls who never faced hardships and abuse.

Commandant and Mrs. Woods then found a home for the child—a home in which the couple were childless but in good circumstances. It was like opening a door and permitting the sun to shine into the home. The couple adopted the former wail and she is now worshipped by them. She is now about three years old and is as happy as any little girl in the world.

SANTA BARBARA MISSION, CALIFORNIA.

The Santa Barbara Mission is one of a chain established by the Spaniards about 1750. It is the best preserved of all the famous California Missions. These were built along "El Camino Real", (The King's Highway) for the purpose of converting the Indians to Christianity.

The first building at Santa Barbara was built in 1787, with the assistance of Indian workmen. The converts increased in number so rapidly that additions were added almost yearly. In 1793 a building 25 by 125 feet was constructed, but was destroyed by an earthquake in 1812.

In 1815 the present Mission was started, and completed five years later, under the direction of Father Antonio Ripoli. It is still in fine condition due to the solidity of its walls and supports. The walls are six feet thick, of sandstone blocks, and are reinforced by solid stone buttresses nine feet square. The towers, 30 feet high, are of solid stone nearly 20 feet square. The roofs of the church and monastery are covered with tiles made at the Mission by the Indians.

The Santa Barbara Mission is the only one of the original Missions in which continuous services are held to the present day.

The Mission stands on the side of one of the foothills overlooking the Pacific. The red roof and white walls in the old Spanish style of architecture make it one of the most beautiful sights along the California Coast. Recently the new Pacific Fleet dropped anchor off the California shore near Santa Barbara. The men were entertained by the town and given an opportunity to visit the nearby places of interest, chief among which were the Santa Barbara Mission.

Treatment of Common Colds.

"If all who catch cold could be persuaded to remain in bed for the first 24 hours of such an attack," says a well known physician "there would be fewer cases dragging on with distressing symptoms for weeks and often ending in some more serious disease." To make sure of a prompt recovery you should also take Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. Whether sick or well the bowels should move each day.—Adv't.

TILGHMAN'S FISH FERTILIZERS

Help Solve the Farm Labor Problem

The farmer, as are many big manufacturers, is up against a shortage of labor. One of the big problems of present day farming is how to solve the labor problem. It is having the serious consideration and attention of not only the farmers themselves, but all economic experts who realize that the prosperity of the country depends upon keeping up and increasing farm production.

All authorities agree that one of the most practical ways to meet this situation is to increase the yield per acre. In other words, enable the farm owner and the help he has left to produce as much as formerly by intensive production. To bring this about the use of fertilizers is vitally necessary, for fertilizers enrich the soil, increase the yield and improve the quality.

It is much more economical to fertilize your present acreage and make your present labor more efficient than it is to plow up more acres, so use plenty of Tilghman's Fish Fertilizers and let it help you keep up your production despite your lack of help.

EMPLOYMENT FOR MEN NEEDED HERE

Prominent Citizen Urges Chamber of Commerce To Bring Industries Employing Men To this City.

One of the city's most prominent citizens and business men, a man who has for years watched and helped Salisbury to grow, expresses through The News this week his opinion of one of the greatest of Salisbury's needs.

Employment here for young men, so that they may be induced not to leave their home city just when they reach an age of usefulness is this great need—says this prominent Salisburyman.

His interview follows:
"In these days of Chambers of Commerce, Rotary clubs and other civic organizations which are being organized for the benefit of Salisbury, there is one question which comes to the forefront when considering the future expansion of this community, and that question is: "What is it that Salisbury needs most?"

"Trying to answer this question, I can honestly declare that the most important thing for the future progress of Salisbury is the establishment of some kind of manufacturing enterprise which will give employment to men. By this, is meant something in the way of an automobile factory, a talking machine factory, or some high class mechanical industry where men could earn a high scale of wages, and where the young men could be attracted to work. Little as some of the principal business men of Salisbury may think of it, the city is now just at the point where its is going to lose a great many of its young men, because they are dissatisfied with conditions existing here. This is a class of young mechanics who would be perfectly capable of taking positions in an automobile factory or in some other skilled line of mechanical work who are able to do the average mill hand work and for this reason, they find themselves cut off from the opportunity of earning the high scale wage for which they are eagerly seeking.

Within the last few years, Salisbury has been extremely fortunate in the location of factories which employ women and there is little doubt that but few idle women or young girls can be found in this community; but the average of young men who are not daily engaged in work is far too large. For this reason the great effort now should be through these various business organization which have been established, to get busy and see if it is not possible to locate in this city some high class manufacturing establishment where young men can be employed.

"A look around shows the several hundred women who are now working at the Jackson & Gutman factory, the Star Shirt factory, the American Cigar factory, and the several hundreds employed in the various department stores and offices of this city, and that women labor in Salisbury is short, but on the other hand, it shows many young men who could be earning and who would be willing to work to earn a fair scale of wages if they had the opportunity. It can be said without hesitation that the one thing Salisbury most needs is a strenuous effort on the part of the Chamber of Commerce and the Rotary club to induce either some large machine works or automobile factory to locate here so as to give employment to the men of this community and to the hundreds of others who would come here if they saw the opportunity to get good wages.

"What is the use of talking about house building and other movements of that kind when you have right in your own midst quite a considerable number of present residents who are not making sufficient wages to keep them satisfied in the community? Our work as business men is to try to provide the very highest class working conditions that it is possible to find for our people and certainly, there are many places in the United States where large machine works and automobile factories are located which do not have as good advantages as we could offer here provided these business organizations would bring to the attention of the manufacturing world what we have to offer and get down to brass tacks and locate something of the kind in this community. Unless we do this and do it speedily, we are going to lose a very large number of young men whom we cannot afford to dispense with."

SLOW TO ACCEPT BUDDHISM

People of Japan Loath to Embrace Faith Introduced into the Country by Korea.

Buddhism was introduced into Japan by Korea in the year 552. It was first embraced by the higher classes, particularly in scholarly circles, but the lower classes still clung to their old faith of Shintoism. The doctrines of Buddhism were written in the Chinese language and the believers offered their prayers in that tongue.

At one time Buddhism made such strides as to become the state religion in Japan, but the people still opposed it with a determination of upholding their own Shintoism, until the statesmen and priests invented an ingenious way of explaining and interpreting the religious principles of Buddhism. They adopted the theory of monotheism as well as polytheism by saying that there is only one supreme power which is personified in the form of various gods and goddesses, according to the different countries and different institutions.

The principles of Buddhism and Shintoism were thus reconciled and in order to convince the popular mind of this theory, Emperor Shomu patronized a movement to erect a large bronze statue of Dabutsu or Buddha at Nara, the statue being completed in the year 752 after 14 years of casting and construction.

LIKE SWORD OF DAMOCLES

How Many Others Have Unwittingly Set in Peril of Which They Were Ignorant?

It may have chanced that some of us have unwittingly sat under a sword of Damocles and "through good luck rather than good management" have escaped its fall. Damocles himself was happily ignorant of his danger for a brief time.

The story, with its perfectly obvious moral, is that in the reign of Dionysius the Elder as the ruler of Syracuse in Greece, years before the Christian era, one Damocles, a member of the court, wishing to establish himself securely with the monarch, flattered him up to the hilt. Being a good deal of a man and believing that "flattery, like cologne water, is to be smelled of, not swallowed," Dionysius decided to teach the courtier a lesson.

He invited him to a wonderful banquet, which Damocles enjoyed greatly until he perceived above his head a sword which was held by one single hair. How soon he was able to leave his perilous station is unrecorded, but his feelings during the rest of the feast may be imagined and need not be described.

Matrimonial Oddities.

In bygone days in India women were sometimes allowed to choose their own husband. One of their old fairy tales tells of a fair princess, who, after a tournament, placed a garland around the neck of a knight who had won her heart.

Among the Eskimos of the east coast of Greenland a man captures the girl he wants, but from that time on the usual order of things is reversed. He has to exercise the greatest vigilance to prevent her from eloping with any other man whom she may prefer, as this seems to be her privilege. In the northern New Hebrides a bride who is unhappy seeks the earliest opportunity of running away from her husband and seeking a home with some man she likes better. If her parents cannot induce her to return to the injured husband they usually send him a pig to soothe his wounded feelings. —National Geographic Society Bulletin.

Still Make Use of Blowgun.

The blowgun is still popular for hunting birds among the Kowat Indians in Louisiana. This weapon consists of a tube, usually of cane, about six feet long, rubbed smooth on the inside with an implement made for the purpose and carefully straightened with the aid of fire. Slender, pointed darts about eight inches long are used as ammunition, each one wrapped neatly along a third of its length with thistle-down or cotton to make it fit the inside of the tube. The hunter places a dart in the tube, which he raises to his lips and with which he takes careful aim at his game; then with a quick puff of breath he drives the little dart flying with a sufficient force to impale and kill a small bird or squirrel.

DOINGS AT THE WICOMICO HIGH SCHOOL

(The editors of the Wicomico News have set aside this column for the use of the pupils and faculty of The Wicomico High School and the items published here will be furnished by one or more of the scholars weekly.)

Our one ball game this week was the most satisfactory of the season as far as good playing was concerned. It resulted in an 11 inning tie, 5-5 with Federalsburg as opponents. Huston and Adkins were Salisbury's battery and "Tobe" never served them up better. He got stronger as the game wore on, not an earned run being scored after the fifth inning. Cooper also played well for Salisbury.

Senior final exams begin Monday and undergraduates take their beginning the following week. Class night is the 28th of May and commencement night June 1st.

The girls are again playing End ball and expect to play a match game at the track meet on the latter part of this month. The boys Dodge ball team is also practicing hard for the county game while the Track team is turning out every afternoon to get in shape for Field day.

The "Tatler" went to press Friday when William Morgan, Editor-in-chief, made a special trip to Westminster to make final arrangements for the printing of this year's school annual. He carried all the copy for the book with him and the appearance of the year book is being eagerly waited for by the pupils.

Last Friday the picture of the school Choral club and Orchestra was taken. It will be placed in a magazine to be published by the state board of education under the title of the leading Choral High School class in the state.

Exhibition of the Art, Domestic Science, and Manual Training departments of the year will be held next Friday and Saturday. Several things of beautiful workmanship will be on exhibit and the public is cordially invited to attend.

Mr. and Mrs. Lemuel Collins of Savagetown were among the city's shoppers last week.

Why You Should Buy Guaranteed Roofing

When you buy roofing you want durability as well as shelter. You want to know that it will last long enough to make its average cost per year a reasonable figure.

That is why Certain-teed should appeal to you. For, when properly laid, Certain-teed Roofing is guaranteed for 5, 10 or 15 years, according to weight.

The guarantee adequately protects your investment, but it does not accurately measure Certain-teed's life. In fact no one knows just how durable Certain-teed is, because in no case has it ever been known to wear out on the roof.

And Certain-teed is more than durable. It is weather-proof, fire-retarding and spark-proof. It effectively shelters your property.

With all these advantages, Certain-teed Roofing costs less to buy, less to lay and less to maintain, than any other type of good roofing.

OBSERVATIONS OF AN OLD TIMER

Salisbury Of 40 Years Ago Comes Back Here And Finds Many Great Changes Visible.

We had an interesting visitor to drop into the News office a few days ago in the person of a former resident of Salisbury who had not been here for more than 40-odd years. He came in to subscribe for The Wicomico News as he said he would like to keep posted on his old home town notwithstanding the fact that it was so greatly changed that he hardly could recognize either a familiar spot or a familiar face within the city. He was an interesting character, a man who had left here as a very young man and had gone to the far West where he had spent his life in successful farming and cattle raising, and notwithstanding the fact that he had been away from here for such a long time, he had a vivid recollection of Salisbury as it used to be back in the late 'sixties and 'seventies.

Speaking of his former life here he said: "I have been here for several days and walked over what is now to me a strange and new city. I have tried to find some old familiar spots but as a matter of fact, I can see but very few of the old landmarks and practically no faces that I used to know except in the person of Ned Goodvine, George Bell, and a few old colored citizens whom I still recognize. I have walked the streets north, south, east and west, trying to find some familiar spots of the dear old Salisbury, but they seem all to have vanished under the hand of progress, and I really feel like a stranger in a strange land in what was formerly my beloved home. First, I went down to see the old Locust mills and the hospitable home of the late Dr. Cathell Humphreys and instead of finding that beautiful grove with the waters flowing placidly by and the beautiful lake in front, I find the whole area all covered with tremendous buildings constructed and in course of erection, and not a single familiar thing is left to tell where once stood one of the most hospitable homes of this city and also one of its most beautiful spots. How well I remember the days of pleasure we all had in boating and swimming on that beautiful lake, catching pike and shooting ducks beyond where the railroad bridge now stands and in fact, enjoying one of the most pleasant grounds which I have ever known lying in the township. Finding myself disappointed there, I walked up one of your main streets to the former home of Gen. Humphrey Humphreys, and to my amazement, I found in the corner of what used to be his yard or lawn which he so highly prized, a tremendous four-story building which I am told is used as a Y.M.C.A. centre. Standing at that point, I gazed around me, and I could not see a single familiar house in any of that location unless it possibly be the old Poplar Hill Mansion standing away off many blocks from where I was. It seems that this old colonial place has kept its original form and shape but it is about the only one that I can find in Salisbury.

Walking down your Main street, I tried to find where the home of the late Dr. William Rider stood and the little office which was in the corner of the yard where one of the first banks ever established in this section was located but here, again, I was disappointed for on this site, I see large banking buildings and big theatres, covering every inch of ground and so changed from what it was many years ago that I would not have recognized even the location of the former structures. I then walked around on what we used to call Dock street or Canal street where the old canal used to make in from the river for the purpose of landing merchandise from the scows or lighters, and even here I was again disappointed for on the very site where the old canal used to be I found large brick warehouses filled with merchandise and business bustling everywhere. Across the street from this spot, used to be the old livery stable where some of the former citizens of Salisbury catered to the travelling public and in the rear of this stable was a large pound, into which the cattle drivers who used to buy the cattle down the peninsula and drive them to Philadelphia before railroad shipments, would stop at night in this large pound and feed their stock. Here as a boy, I remember in company with other boys of the town we would go with our milk pails and milk the cows in the herd and now I understand that on this very spot is to be erected a tremendous manufacturing plant to be run by some shirt company and so this spot will soon be obliterated as has all the rest.

"Thinking that probably the hand of progress and the touch of commercialism had not reached out quite so far, I went to the site where the flour and saw mills of the late Humphreys used to be located beside the beautiful Wicomico Falls, but long before I reached the spot, I heard the puff of factory and mills, and when I reached what used to be one of the most beautiful spots on the Eastern Shore where the water came down from Polk's pond and fell over this beautiful falls to its rocky bed below in the Wicomico River, I found tremendous electric plants and other manufacturing places which were entirely unfamiliar and strange to one who had not been here for the many years in what I had been absent. I inquired about the old cording mill, that too had passed as had everything else.

"I am starting on my return trip to the west again tonight, sad at heart that so many of the old familiar scenes are gone but glad that Salisbury is moving so rapidly towards becoming a great commercial centre and a large and busy city." The News man endeavored to get the busy man to publish his name but he said "No. I am a stranger here now, and indeed I feel like one, and I pass out of the community never expecting again to return, and I carry my recollections with me as my own personal property."

DELAWARE FAIR PLANS UNDERWAY

Big Affair Opens On September 6 And Lasts Four Days. Track Entries Close on September 1.

Entries that are being received for early closing classes at the Delaware State fair, indicate that some of the best horseflesh in the east will line up for the races that constitute the important features of the track events of the meet, September 6 to 10. Nominations close May 15, and "win-race as of that date govern." The horses are to be named by July 15. When the horses are named, one or more additional entries may be named by a nominator by paying one per cent. on each additional entry, and such entries make no further payment unless they start in a race, when each additional horse must pay up to the full three per cent to start.

The prizes in the five early closing classes are as follows: No. 1. 3-year old trot, $5,000; No. 2. 2.15 trot, $1,000; No. 3. 2.12 pace, $1,000; No. 4. 2.20 pace, $1,000; No. 5. 2.24 trot, $1,000.

National and Union Trotting association rules will govern unless otherwise specified. The time for entries to close of open classes has been fixed for Wednesday, September 1. The purses will be for $300 with $20 entrance fee. The entrance money will be added to the purse. J. Wirt Willis is chairman of the Race committee, and all entries should be addressed to S. H. Wilson, Jr., secretary.

There will be plenty of stalls provided, ready to be occupied, with free straw, hay and grain supplied at the grounds at market prices. All consignments are made to Elsmere Junction.

PACKARD TRUCKS DELIVERED HERE

Two Salisbury Concerns Get New Machines. Dennis Hauling Co., Have New Packard Moving Van.

Three new Packard trucks, sold by D. N. Magruder, territorial representative of the Packard Motor Car Co., have been delivered in this immediate section within the last few days. Two of the big trucks have been handed over to Salisbury concerns and the third to Clarke & Bodley of Showell.

The Peninsula Bottling Co., is one of the local concerns to which a truck has been delivered. This is a specially made two ton pneumatic tired chassis with a speed of 30 miles, and is the second machine of its type to be delivered to this concern within the last few weeks.

Morris Brothers Co., have also been delivered within the week, a two ton solid tired Packard truck, to be used in the lumber business.

The machine delivered to Clarke & Bodley in Showell is a four ton dump truck to be used in the hauling of sand and gravel. Another truck of the same type will be delivered to this concern within the next two weeks.

The Dennis Hauling Co., of this city has placed its order for a special two ton Packard truck with pneumatic tires, to be fitted with a big moving van body. The body will be 15 feet long, six feet wide and seven feet high, all inside measurements. The body will have side sliding doors exactly similar to those with which freight cars are equipped, and will be the only moving van truck of its style and capacity in this section of the country.

It is expected that deliveries of several other Packard trucks and passenger cars will be made to buyers in this city and immediate vicinity within the next few weeks.

AMERICAN EDUCATION IS REMEDY OF INTERCHURCH FOR WORLD WOE

RELATIVE ATTENDANCE IN THE FIELD OF HIGHER EDUCATION (PERCENTAGE INDICATED BY AREA)

More than half of the total investment in higher education in the United States is in colleges and universities, founded by religious denominations who found in America that liberty of theological preferences and academic learning which had been denied to them in their native lands overseas.
Today half of the 450,000 students of higher grades in the United States are in attendance at these denominational colleges and universities.

Upon that tremendous army equally tremendous demands are to be made during the next five years, demands that tend to restore to American colleges and universities that atmosphere and purpose which marked their beginnings. A world survey of the needs of peoples who are struggling along without knowledge of the teachings of Christianity and without training in even the most rudimentary courses of an academic education has revealed to America her responsibility and privilege. Through the Interchurch World Movement the 400 colleges and universities of the thirty religious denominations which have united on a program of co-operative effort are to be required to furnish the majority of the 100,000 leaders and workers needed. They are the West Points and the Naval Academies of the greatest religious movement of all time.

It is estimated that these denominational institutions have furnished ninety per cent of the religious leaders of the past. Are they to be able to meet the new and larger demands?
Not unless—

Unless the churches return wholeheartedly to those policies which created and developed the system upon which modern American education is based the effort will fail. So serious is the situation that in 1920 half of the 5,000 places that must be filled in the United States alone every year must be filled by untrained or only partly trained men.

Solution of the problem resolves itself in the last analysis into terms of money. Unless the churches are prepared to expend more than $1 for every $40 appropriated for education by the state solution of the problem is indefinitely postponed if not made impossible. This proportion is caused by the fact that the churches concentrate almost exclusively upon the colleges and universities, upon the thirty-eight students who enter college from the 1,000 who are received into the elementary schools. And of the thirty-eight only the fourteen who obtain their degrees receive any prolonged training.

It has been demonstrated that what a people would accomplish in their national life they must first put in the minds and hearts of their youth in the schools. That the first exponent of this theory was a Prussian minister of education does not alter the fact.
The colonial colleges were quite as successful in producing men true to type as were the German educational institutions prior to 1914. Will the church colleges and universities of today prove as successful?

The thirty denominations which have created the Interchurch World Movement are going to make a determined effort to restore the balance. American education is represented by $78,- 837,431 in a total Interchurch budget of $330,777,572 which is to be subscribed during the week of April 25.
Only foreign missions and home missions are considered more important by the denominational leaders. And in both departments items for educational purposes bulk large.

Wherever the church of America extends its educational activities it is possible to create a civilization that is Christian just as by her schools Germany made her civilization military.

quiescence, and Nancy felt helpless, speechless before these two eye-glassed individuals.

"I am very sorry Mrs.—"
"Mrs. Doolittle is my name."
"Come right in and I will have you shown to your room at once. My mother had a serious accident this morning, which explains why you were not met."

"Humph!" sniffed the irate Mrs. Doolittle. "I consider it most important to have one's life so ordered that should one suddenly be called to face one's Maker" (here her eyes rolled so high that Nancy feared they really were mounting heavenward) "that another can step right in and carry things to a perfect finish."

"That is a wonderful idea, Mrs. Doolittle," said Nancy, struggling between laughter and tears. "Here, Ned," she called to the one errand boy of the hotel, "carry these bags and show Mr. and Mrs. Doolittle to rooms 32 and 34."

"Well, Marie, what's your trouble?"
"Miss Nancy, your mother was going to send Ned down first thing this morning for fruit for breakfast. Has he gone yet?"

As Ned put in an appearance he was dispatched for the fruit. Nancy turned again to be confronted by Mrs. Doo-little's longnettes.

"Are your rooms satisfactory, Mrs.
Doolittle?"
"Satisfactory? Would you call it satisfactory to be put in a room containing a bed with no mattress on it?"
"Mrs. Doolittle, I will see to your rooms at once."

The breakfast bell precluded further conversation on the subject, and Nancy, fully intending to give immediate attention to those rooms, was mounting the stairs when Marie called to her in a hoarse, agitated whisper:

"Oh, Miss Nancy, get the doctor, quick; Florrie has cut off her hand."
Nancy grasped the stair-rail for support. "Marie! Where is she? I'll telephone for the doctor; you stay with Florrie."

"I can't, Miss Nancy, the folks are all getting nervous 'cause no one is waiting on them. Annie can't do the whole dining room all alone."

"Of course not. Wait. I'll call father."
"Dad!" Nancy went into their private dining room, where her father was peacefully consuming a tempting steak. "Dad, everything's wrong; the hotel is upside down; there aren't any mattresses on the beds, nor any fruit, and Florrie has just cut off her hand, and—"

"For goodness sake, child, spare my head—why should there be any fruit on the beds? And what's become of all the mattresses?"

"Don't argue, dad—do something!
Telephone the doctor!"

She left him at the telephone and flew to the kitchen, where her father soon followed her. Here pandemonium reigned. Florrie, a girl of emotional temperament, rocked back and forth, crying desperately.

"They'll hear you if you yell like that, Florrie, and so will everyone else," said Mr. Bates. "Hold onto yourself until Doctor Brand gets here."
"Could this be Mr. Bates?" Florrie stopped a cry so suddenly that her mouth remained open. It was then discovered that the hand which she had supposedly cut off proved to be but one of her fingers.

When Nancy returned to the kitchen an hour later peace hovered once more within its borders, while on the veranda guests, content in the memory of a good, if belated breakfast, laid plans for the day; and in the office an able general in the form of Elisha Bates was enthroned before the telephone, into which poured orders for meat, fish, fruit and vegetables, which boiled well for luncheon and dinner.

"The schools are grinding slowly, but exceedingly well," Nancy misquoted as with light heart and swiftly mounting respect for the new acquisition to the Bates family, she went up to her mother's room.

Moral Elevation.

The true greatness of a nation cannot be in triumphs of the intellect alone. Literature and art may enlarge the sphere of its influence; they may adorn it; but they are in their nature but accessories. The true grandeur of humanity is in moral elevation. . . .
The surest tokens of this grandeur, in a state, are that Christian benevolence, which diffuses the greatest happiness among the greatest number, and that passionless, God-like justice, which controls the relations of the state to other states, and to all the people committed to its charge.—
Charles Sumner.

A WORD WITH WOMEN.

Valuable Advice for Salisbury
Readers.

Many a woman endures with noble patience the daily misery of backache, pains about the hips, blue, nervous spells, dizziness and urinary disorders, hopeless of relief because she doesn't know what is the matter.

It is not true that every pain in the back or hips is trouble "peculiar to the sex." Often when the kidneys get congested and inflamed, such aches and pains follow.

Then help the weakened kidneys.
Don't expect them to get well alone.
Doan's Kidney Pills have won the praise of thousands of women. They are endorsed at home—Read this Salisbury woman's convincing statement:

Mrs. Chas. T. Bradley, 315 Elizabeth St., says: "I was troubled with a bad case of kidney complaint and backache. When I did anything that obliged me to stoop, I could hardly straighten up, because sharp pains would catch me in the small of my back. One day I learned of Doan's Kidney Pills and after taking several boxes, I was rid of the trouble. Since my cure, I have always recommended Doan's Kidney Pills to anyone suffering from backache or disordered kidneys."

SOME OBSERVATIONS OF THE MAN ABOUT TOWN

He Finds That While High Prices Are Not Popular They Are Necessary—And They Will Rise.

A great deal has been said in the way of unfavorable comment about the high prices being charged for food commodities and about the merchants who charge those high prices.

Now the Man About Town knows something about the high cost of living. He knows that the dollar of today has a purchasing power in meats and groceries of the 30 cents of a few years ago; and he kicks like a steer—but it doesn't do him any good. He must eat, and as long as he must eat he must pay the prices.

But as a matter of fact, should we in justice to the grocers and butchers, kick against the prices they charge us for food commodities?

Of course none of us likes to pay 25 or 30 cents a pound for sugar and not any of us likes to pay a fabulous price for anything; but we should bear in mind perhaps, that the fellow who sells the sugar and the other necessary commodities, also has to pay a fabulous price and that he doesn't like it any better than we do.

The Man About Town paid a fruit dealer the other day, 25 cents for three measly little oranges—that is at the rate of a dollar a dozen; and he has bought better oranges on the streets of New York many times for two cents a piece—but do you know that the man who sold those oranges for three for a quarter paid for them?

He paid $12 a box; and after he took his loss in wasted fruit, paid his freight and cartage charges, he made about two and a half cents on each 25 cents worth of oranges he sold.

The same is true of all food commodities.

It may be true that there are some retail dealers who are unscrupulous. But they are greatly in the minority. The big majority of merchants, especially those of Salisbury are honest men.

Sugar is selling today for better than 20 cents a pound; and one housewife a few days ago said to The Man About Town:

"I think my grocer is over-charging me for sugar. I think he is simply taking advantage of all the newspaper talk of sugar shortage to charge high prices."

I advised her to investigate. She did. She happened to be in another nearby town a few days afterward and she inquired the price of sugar there. The figure quoted her was a cent a pound higher than the price she was paying here in Salisbury.

Just wait until the strawberry season comes. Oh but won't we kick at the prices we will have to pay!

Last year we were able to get very nice berries for 25 cents a quart. We thought that was high; and it was compared with the eight and ten cent prices we paid in previous years—but just wait until the berries come again this year!

The costs of growing and cultivating the berries are as high or higher this year than last. The cost of baskets and crates is higher; and pickers will be paid five cents a quart!

If strawberries can be bought this year for 30 cents a quart, they will be cheap berries! And yet The Man About Town and every other sensible person will kick at paying such a price. The fact remains though, that the grocers will make no greater percentage of profit at such prices, than they did a few years ago when they sold the luscious fruit at 10 cents a quart!

Nobody likes to pay high prices for foodstuffs; but everybody must eat. The retail grocer doesn't like to pay high prices either, but he must either pay them and charge them or go out of business and if all the grocers and butchers were to go out of business, where would we poor mortals get our life sustaining food stuffs, at any price?

ANIMAL LIFE AND CLIMATE

Abundant Proof That Extremes of Temperature Do Not Preclude Possibility of Existence.

The contention of Dr. Abbott of the Smithsonian Astrophysical Observatory that because of the cold climate of Mars life could not exist upon that planet is not convincing.

Polar bears rejoice in temperatures so low that little vegetation at any time of the year exists in the latitudes in which they are found. The existence of tigers in Korea, which has a New England climate, supposedly changed by sea currents when the country's fauna was tropical, shows how animals common to the hottest parts of the earth adapt themselves to climate as cold by comparison with the tropics as the climate of Mars is by comparison with the regions in which the Eskimos live. Monkeys from Africa died so fast of tuberculosis in heated houses that the mortality rate forced an experiment, as the result of which African monkeys are living out of doors all the year in one of Chicago's parks.

If life as we know it, human, animal or vegetable, could not withstand the climate of Mars, might not life adapted to the climate flourish? The fabulous salamander lived in fire. An Eskimo, newly arrived in Moscow or Bagdad, could believe that since men could live in such places reptiles easily might bask upon live coals and frolic in flames. Why might not life, adapted thereto, exist in a temperature of 300 degrees above or below zero if a man from the polar regions can become acclimated in the tropics, or vice versa?—Louisville Courier-Journal.

TAKE HIGH OFFICE MARCH 4

That Day Officially Set for Inauguration of the President of the United States.

President Washington was inaugurated for his second term, beginning March 4, 1793, and all the other presidents, except four, who were inaugurated March 5, because the 4th fell on Sunday.

The four exceptions were Presidents Monroe, second term, 1821; Taylor, 1849; Hayes, 1877; and President Wilson's second term, 1917. President Wilson took the oath March 5, 1877, and was formally inaugurated on the following Monday. President Wilson took the oath for his second term on Sunday, March 4. The usual inauguration parade took place the next day.

The question as to whether, in the event of March 4 falling on Sunday at the beginning of a term, there being an interregnum of one full day in the office, was first brought by John Quincy Adams when he was secretary of state. He applied for a dictum of the Supreme court to guide the manner of inaugurating President Monroe for his second term. The opinion of Chief Justice Marshall does not prohibit the president from taking the oath and entering his duties immediately after midnight of March 3, even if March 4 falls on Sunday.

Rare Biblical Collection.

An interesting collection of Bibles, some of which are rare books, others of which are valuable on account of their former possessors or donors, is installed in the Mount Holyoke college library. In one group are found the ancient versions of the Scriptures; the original Hebrew and Greek, including a miniature copy of the scroll of the law called the Sefer Torah, the ancient Syriac, the Septuagint and the Latin Vulgate.

Among the four editions of the Latin Vulgate is one bearing the date 1548, with Luther's portrait stamped on the leather cover with a Latin inscription, of which the translation is, "If you wish to see the face of Luther behold the portrait; if you would know his mind, consider the book."

"Insult to Injury."

Little do we realize when we use this expression that we are indulging in a lot of wisdom. Unknowingly we are alluding to the classic of the classic, an old Latin fable quoted by Phaedrus from the more ancient version of Aesop. It is a fable about a baldheaded man, and as usual the baldheaded man is at a disadvantage. In this case it is a mere fly that takes advantage of him. Well, the baldheaded man was bitten on the head by a fly and when he attempted in retaliation to smite the insect he succeeded only in giving himself a vigorous slap on his bald pate. Whereupon, according to Aesop, the fly said jeeringly: "You want to kill me for a touch—what will you do to yourself now that you have added insult to injury?"

Our First Person Singular.

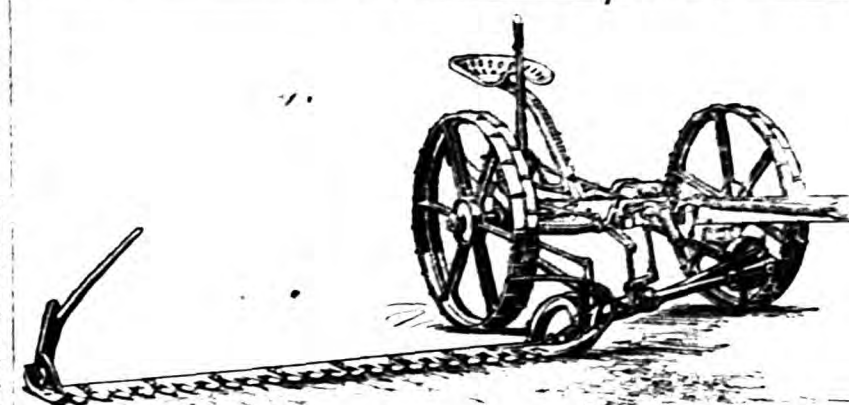

Is not English the only great language in which the pronoun of the first person singular is capitalized? How monumentally imposing is that upper case "I"! If a writer is egotistic the capitals stretch across his page like a colonnade. When he writes "we" he descends to the lower case. But this orthographic solipsism, mark you, is shared by Americans, Canadians, Australians, New Zealanders—all who use the English tongue. It is therefore not to be set down to inequality, but to individualism—a stark, ineradicable, valuable quality of these various folks whose thoughts and feelings have been nourished by the same language—Henry Van Dyke in Scribner's Magazine.

TOYS AND JOYS

By ANNA L. FINN.

(© 1924, by McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

The senior member of the firm of Hill & Company hastily donned hat and coat, preparatory to leaving on an extended business trip. As usual, he had allowed himself only the minimum time in which to catch the train, and had very few minutes to spare. He was about to leave the office when he hurriedly remarked: "Oh, by the way, Miss Emerson, I just happened to think; tomorrow is my young nephew's birthday, and I've quite forgotten to send him a remembrance. I wish you would select an appropriate gift and have it charged to my account and send it to him, inclosing my card."

Without offering any suggestions, and without waiting for even a casual question, Mr. Hill departed, leaving his secretary, Edith Emerson, quite bewildered, idly fingering a slip of paper on which was written only the address of her employer's nephew, in a nearby city.

As secretary to Mr. Hill, Edith's duties were indeed varied. His latest request, however, was the most unusual he had ever made, but she realized, strange as it was, she would have to go through with it.

"An appropriate gift for my young nephew," she repeated; "very explicit instructions—if that isn't just like a man!"

For several minutes she sat in deep thought and then suddenly she remembered the picture on Mr. Hill's desk. Entering the private office of her employer she picked up an oval frame containing the picture of a chubby-faced boy, presumably ten or twelve years of age. Yes, she was quite certain this was the nephew of whom Mr. Hill had spoken quite frequently.

Noontime found Edith Emerson in the toy department of one of the large emporiums, fairly revelling in the various models of miniature airplanes, of which her knowledge was rather limited. After enlisting the services of the very affable salesman, however, she succeeded in selecting one, and had it sent to the address she had been given, inclosing Mr. Hill's card, as instructed.

It was indeed a relief to realize that the irksome task had been accomplished and Edith now plunged into her work with renewed vigor.

Affairs at the office proceeded as usual during the absence of Mr. Hill, and it was not long before he returned. Apparently he had completely forgotten his nephew, as well as the birthday gift, because no mention was made of it. Edith, too, had quite forgotten the incident by this time, until one day about two months later, when it was recalled to her mind quite vividly.

It was in the midst of a busy forenoon, and she was unexpectedly called into the private office of her employer, to be confronted by a very pleasing looking young man with a pair of smiling brown eyes. Mr. Hill, usually very serious looking, was now wreathed in smiles and Edith could not quite account for it.

"This is my nephew, Theodore Hill, Miss Emerson," her employer began by way of introduction. "You will remember we sent him a birthday gift some time ago, and he now wishes to express his appreciation." Edith looked with amazement from one to the other, and then her gaze rested on the photograph on Mr. Hill's desk. She could not quite get the connection, and then gradually it all dawned upon her—she realized just what had happened—she had mistaken the young man who now stood before her for the little boy whose picture she had so much admired. Explanations were beyond her; she was embarrassed to the point of mortification, and Mr. Hill, appreciating the circumstances, at once came to her rescue.

"It was all my fault, Miss Emerson," he said as he placed a fatherly hand on her shoulder. "You see, I can't quite realize that Ted has grown to be a man—I still think of him as the little boy of yore, and my reference to him simply misled you. As to the photograph," he continued, "it was taken some fifteen years ago, but I still cherish it for its fond recollections of bygone days."

By this time Edith was more at ease, and was able to appreciate the humor of it, as well as Ted, who stood silently by, apparently immensely amused. From the admiring glances he was casting at Edith, however, it was apparent that he was very much smitten with the little secretary. And Edith, although she would not admit it even to herself, could not help but think how charming Ted Hill really was.

It was strange, but nevertheless true, how many subsequent visits Ted found it necessary to make to his uncle's office, and particularly what an important part Edith played in them. Even the staid Mr. Hill began to notice the frequency of his nephew's calls, and he soon realized that it was something other than his esteem for his uncle which prompted them.

In a fast moving train, a happy bridal pair are starting their journey together. "Look at the airplane, dear!" Ted remarks as he looks out of the train window. "How strange you should have noticed it," Edith replies. But after all, it was not very strange when Ted considers it. It was not for the first time he might never have won his dear little bride.

GROUND UNDER HEAVY TAXES

People in Bible Times Completely at Mercy of Extortionists Extractors of Tribute.

People in the Bible times were taxed heavily. They were on a straight levy, not based on incomes or excess profits. Payment was compelled and no excuses made, nor were there any exemptions to married men or heads of families. Although there were no army or navy establishments and no airplane program, the people paid their assessments in both gold and silver.

King Solomon compelled the Canaanites who were left in the country to pay him tribute. The rebellion of Jeroboam on account of the heavy taxes levied by Solomon, afterward growing into the revolt of the Ten Tribes, was the most pretentious kick against the levy of the powers in Bible times. Jeroboam was at first compelled to take refuge in Egypt, and it was on account of the taxes and levies laid by Solomon that the Israelites said to Rehoboam, the son of Solomon, upon the latter's death:

"Thy father made our yokes grievous; now therefore make thou the grievous service of thy father and his heavy yokes which he put upon us lighter and we will serve thee."

When Caesar Augustus was in power and Quirinus was governor of Syria, after having just been elected for a third term because he had kept the Syrians out of war, the first named issued a proclamation signed by his secretary of state that the whole world should be taxed. And all the people went to their own city to be taxed. The later editions of the Bible speak of the act as the people being "enrolled."

HISTORY MERELY A LESSON

Paints Pictures Only That They May Be an Inspiration to Future Generations.

History does not relate for the sake of relating; it does not paint for the sake of painting; it relates and paints the past that it may be a living lesson of the future. It proposes to instruct new generations by the experience of those who have gone before them, by exhibiting to them a faithful picture of great and important events with their causes and their effects, with general designs and particular passions, with the faults and virtues that are found commingled in human things. It touches the excellence of prudence, courage, and great thoughts profoundly meditated, constantly pursued, and executed with moderation and force. It shows the vanity of immoderate pretensions, the power of wisdom and virtue, the impotence of folly and crime. Thucydides, Polybius, and Tacitus undertake anything rather than procuring new emotions for an idle curiosity or a worn threadbare imagination. They doubtless desire to interest and attract, but more to instruct; they are the avowed masters of statesmen and the preceptors of weak men.—Victor Cousin.

For a Headache.

A correspondent recommends the following simple remedy for headache—sick headache particularly. Cut a lemon in half and squeeze the juice into a tumbler. Add a few—very few grains of sugar, and fill the glass nearly three-quarters full of cold water. Now stir in half an egg-spoonful of ordinary baking soda. This will fizz up, of course, and the draught must be swallowed during effervescence.

If one does fail to relieve headache, repeat it three hours after. Taken fasting, the first thing in the morning, it will do much to settle the stomach after the sick headache, and probably prevent its recurrence for some time to come. This kitchen-physic has prevailed when phenacetin and other nerve-quieters have signally failed to do so.

Teach Child Courtesy.

Good manners in children as well as grown people are the expression of an innate consideration for the rights, privileges and opinions of other people.

Years of experience have crystallized this feeling into certain conventional forms of expression, which every child should be taught. The little habits of courtesy, which should be a part of every day life, are really the "outward and visible sign of an inward grace." Few acquisitions are more valuable to anyone than that charm of manner which wins the immediate regard of everyone with whom they come into contact.

One at a Time.

One Saturday afternoon two girl friends and I boarded a crowded street car. We managed to get to the front of the car. As we didn't care to hang to the straps, we held to each other's arms. I was standing next to a seat which was occupied by a man and a woman. The car gave a sudden jerk and I fell into the man's lap, pulling my friends with me, while the man said in a surprised tone, "Never mind pulling the others; one is enough." Everybody roared. O death, where is thy sting!—Chicago Tribune.

Comparison.

"I believe in free speech!" exclaimed the vociferous man.
"So do I," rejoined Uncle Bill Botticler. "So do I. But in one respect free speech reminds me of the free lunch in the old days. You have to see a man making a pile of himself just because something's free."

ESKIMOS HAVE NO HUNTERING AFTER THINGS WHICH OTHER PEOPLE LOOK UPON AS NECESSARIES.

Without tea, coffee, sugar or tobacco, and with but few vegetables, the Eskimo of Greenland finds life pleasant and thinks his homeland one of the most desirable in the world. The few who have visited Denmark think the Danes are to be pitied, says Roger Pocock, in the Wide World Magazine. The Eskimo's needs are few, and these his arctic home supply in abundance. In filling these the Greenland seal is the most important factor. Its internal organs are almost identical with those of a sheep, and its meat is a fat, streaky mutton. The skin makes hairy breeches for men, women and children, and with the hair removed and properly oiled, makes soft-soled, waterproof footgear. From it also is made the hunter's shirt, the summer tent, the woman's boat, the hunter's canoe and the harness for the dog team.

Winter clothes are made from the fur of the fox, dog and bear. Driftwood, always plentiful on these rocky shores, furnishes roof beams, tapt poles, canoe frames, harpoons for sealing, and lance shafts for hunting walrus, bear and reindeer. Lamps are made from hollowed rocks and knives from sharp stones. Other things are considered luxuries.

Coasting in Wake of Boat.

Passengers on one of the Hudson river ferries in New York were treated in the summer of 1919 to the odd spectacle of a canoe sailing in their wake, all the way across the river, without any means of propulsion. What made the canoe go was a question that puzzled many. The more observant noticed that the canoe did not keep to the smooth water directly aft the ferryboat, but rode off to one side, in the rough waves that the paddle wheels kicked up. They also noticed that the canoe did not hug the ferryboat close, and that often it pursued its mysterious course at a considerable distance, though it traveled just as fast as the ferryboat. According to a writer in the "Scientific American" who explains the mystery, the canoe always took a position on the forward side of a wave and kept it all the way across. The wave carried the canoe along as the surf carries the Hawaiian on his surf board.

VALUE CARS AT VOLUME PRICES

What Most Miles per Dollar Means To 7,000,000 Car Owners

The thing that every tire buyer—for big car or small—is trying to buy, is mileage economy. And the one way to produce it is scientific manufacturing.

That means quantity buying, quantity production and quantity selling — always the Firestone way to better tire values at low cost.

A GOOD INVESTMENT

GRANT SIX

Is the Grant Six a good buy viewed from the standpoint of an investment?

One looks at an investment from the standpoint of safety of principal and the yield of interest or earnings.

Safety is dependent upon the marketability of the product and the strength of the organization back of it.

Looking at the purchase of a Grant Six in this light, does it stand the test?

Let us see. It delivers high returns in the way of comfort, serviceability, dependability, safe, troubleless transportation.

It yields higher returns for every dollar invested than any car of similar price. It is more comfortable to ride in, easier to look after, less expensive to maintain and has a higher resale value.

Back of each Grant Six is a Company with unsurpassed manufacturing facilities, strong organization, ample financial strength and a powerful dealer organization.

For as long as Grant Sixes have been built the demand has always exceeded the supply. There have been two to five people ready to buy every Grant manufactured.

These conditions make the Grant Six an exceptionally good investment. Come and see it.

A JANUARY THAW

By LIZZIE M. PEABODY.

(© 1936, by McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

There was a hint of snow in the air and the sky was dark with clouds as Fred Whitton hurriedly stepped around the corner and into the side street that evening in January. Olive Gay's home was on the corner and he had promised to call on her and help her take some goodies to "Aunt Debby," as she was called by the people of the neighborhood. Aunt Debby lived alone in a small cottage set back from the street, and the young people enjoyed going to see her as much as she enjoyed having them come, for wonderful indeed were the stories with which she entertained them—stories of a time long past, and of which she usually was the heroine.

Fred hastened along, thinking it would be best to take his own bundles first and then return to call for Olive. As that meant that Aunt Debby was either ill or very tired, and had gone to bed, he stepped into the little porch to place the bundles in a large box, which had been so warmly interlined that food left in it would not be likely to freeze during the night.

As he stooped in the darkness to open the cover of the box, some one suddenly attempted to rise, and there was a moment of confusion; and squeals, grunts and the dropping to the floor of heavy parcels could be heard. A frightened woman gasped, and Fred instantly decided that Olive had tired of waiting for him, and had started on ahead.

Anticipating a wild scream, he said quickly: "Don't be frightened, dear! It's only Fred!" and attempted to steady her by passing his arm around her slender waist; but to his surprise his arm did not stop as soon as he expected it to, but kept traveling on, for the waist was a very large one.

There would certainly be a scream now, he thought, and poor Aunt Debby would be awakened, and her nerves would be upset for the rest of the night; so placing his hand over the mouth of the stout lady, he propelled her to the street.

His captive was Sally Eaton, a girl who dearly loved a joke. For some time she had been making odd, choking sounds, but he knew she was shaking with laughter and if he removed his hand now her laughter could be heard for a distance, or else he'd get a large piece of Sally's mind. Neither of these things happened, however, as she only laughed softly now and then, after he explained why he had done as he did. "But I'm wondering," she chuckled, "did you think at first that it was I you met on the porch?" "I wasn't sure who it was," he answered truthfully, but his face burned. When she left him at the corner she called back softly and mockingly: "Of course, you won't tell Olive!" And Olive, waiting impatiently on the back porch with her parcels beside her saw them, and heard Sally's words. Without answering Fred ran hastily up the front steps and rang the bell, and Olive passed through the house to the front door and met him, and together they started to go to Aunt Debby's cottage.

Olive spoke seldom as they passed along, and answered Fred's comments shortly. After a while she asked: "Why were you so late?" And he answered truthfully enough: "I took my parcels first, so I could help you with yours," but he did not mention Sally's name. After that she was more quiet even, and the return from the cottage was made almost in silence, for Fred's thoughts also were interesting. Sally called the next day, and with the thought uppermost of paying Fred for treating her so unceremoniously, she changed the story a little in many ways, and gave Olive the impression that Fred and she had walked to the cottage together.

Mischief-loving Sally went away smiling, but there was an angry sparkle in Olive's eyes, and when Fred called that evening she was not at home. The same thing happened many evenings, and then Fred stopped calling.

After that, Sally got tired of teasing; and, relenting, told Olive the true story. "I think he thought at first that it was you he met on the porch," she said with a reminiscent giggle.

That evening, with her wraps on, ready for a walk, Olive watched from the window of the unlighted sitting room, and when she saw Fred passing, she ran down the steps and, much to his surprise, greeted him with the warm smile to which he had been accustomed until of late.

With a blush and a laugh, she said: "Good evening, Fred; cold weather, isn't it?"

A warning glow stole over him as he grasped her hands. "For the last two weeks it has been almost cold enough to freeze a fellow's heart," he grumbled ruefully, "and the few words you have spoken to me have been so like feathers that they have chilled me through, but now that you are smiling again, I may not mind the weather so much."

"What was it all about, anyway?" As they walked slowly along, she told him how well Sally had succeeded in her plan to tease, and her eyes were watery and misty, and her voice was wailing and as she looked at him through her tears, the smile she met was radiant. Fred, pulling down his coat collar and putting his gloves in his pockets, he said: "There's a remarkable change in the weather. I'll say a regular January thaw has set in."

PLANNING NOW FOR WEEK'S OBSERVANCE

National Ship By Truck—Good Roads Week Begins On May 17. Elaborate Program Is Prepared.

National Ship by Truck—Good Roads Week, to be observed May 17-22, inclusive, is being planned throughout the country, according to Washington headquarters of the Ship by Truck bureau.

Tentative plans include motor truck tours lasting through the week and covering virtually every section of the country, according to reports received from 65 cities where branch offices have been established. Good roads organizations and associations interested in motor truck transportation will form the nucleus, it is said, of a temporary organization to promote activities during the week. Virtually every rural section of the country from coast to coast will be traversed by caravans of motor trucks during Ship by Truck—Good Roads week, giving practical demonstrations of the utility of truck transportation and preaching the doctrine of better highways.

Other plans include essays by school children, sermons and the distribution of literature, all designed to arouse interest in a national program of highway construction along lines already advocated by such organizations as the American Automobile

Chamber of Commerce, the National Grange, the United States Chamber of Commerce, the National Automobile Chamber of Commerce, the National Association of Motor Truck Sales Managers, and the Ship by Truck bureau.

Endorsements from Government officials, senators, congressmen and educators have been received.

Governors of various states are expected to issue Ship by Truck—Good Roads Week proclamations.

"We need a broadened policy which will concentrate Government funds on national highways releasing state and county funds for use on state and county roads," says Senator Charles E. Townsend, author of the Townsend Good Roads bill, discussing the possibilities of the week. "Nothing could be more valuable," he continues, "than a national discussion of this question such as that proposed during the National Ship by Truck—Good Roads week."

Professor R. C. Atkeson, Washington representative of the National Grange, says:

"I heartily approve the general idea involved in Ship by Truck week and the study and attention that will thereby be directed to the problems of highways, transportation and distribution."

Are You An Infidel?

(By Calvert L. Estill.)

Speaking not from a religious, but from a business point of view, are you an infidel? Are you one of the so-called old fashioned kind that do not believe in advertising? Do you ever read a remarkable announcement published by a reputable merchant and say to yourself, "Oh! that's just an advertisement?" If so, you are not old fashioned; you are of another world.

Even the Egyptians advertised. The Pyramids are only massive monuments, advertising the glory of departed rulers. The military highways of the Romans are nothing but the lasting advertisements of the skill of the Roman workmen. The hanging gardens of Babylon advertised what was probably the first cabaret. We are accustomed to think of antiquity as something aged; as a matter of fact it is the cradle of infancy. If the ancients advertised, so must you if you would be considered up-to-date.

And you do believe in advertising, though you may not believe that you believe. In the morning you get up from an advertised bed; you put on advertised clothes; you eat an advertised breakfast food. If you are lucky, you go to the office in an advertised car; you go up to the fifth floor on an advertised elevator; you open your mail from firms that advertise. Through all the day you are in hourly contact with advertisements and with people who advertise. They believe in advertising—is it possible that all the people with whom you do business are wrong? That it does not pay to advertise?

Look around your home, your office, and count the things that you bought because you saw them advertised? Where did that comfortable Morris chair come from? Even the name is suggestive of an advertising campaign. Who made your desk and why did you buy that particular make and type? You saw it advertised, of course!

Where are you going to spend your vacation this summer? At a charming resort that you know of only by advertisement. Out of the two or three routes to it, you will undoubtedly choose the one that is advertised as the quickest and most comfortable. And when you get there, you will go to the hotel that you read about in the papers.

Can you honestly say that you do not believe in advertising? Give the subject ten minutes real reflection—then obey the conviction of your own mind and advertise!

SCOUTS THE BEST BY EVERY TEST

Scouting The Hope Of Farmer Youth Is Now A Concrete Reality The Best In Education

Those who have taken numerous many efforts for good making from hope. But hope that is not a real hope. For what a real hope would do for the youth of the future.

Scouting is a hope of the future and a reality of the present.

It has been weighed in the balance and it has not been found wanting. There are large possibilities of development before it and the principles on which it acts are not only true but also.

Therefore men with large vision of civilizations endorse it.

The experience of the past and the hope of the future have in this opportunity of the present.

From the President Emeritus of Harvard

"The very best kind of education is obtained in such things as the Scout movement, which is a real education."

"New boys and girls are being taught at primary schools. Parents are usually disappointed to find them. The Boy Scout organization provides an excellent opportunity for the youth of the future to learn the principles of the Scout movement and to develop their own character."

"Again the scout movement is setting an example that the youth of the future should follow. It is a real education and it is a real hope for the future."

From the United States Marine Corps

The following statement is from the official report made by the committee on work among boys of the United States Marine Corps in America. "We commend the Boy Scout movement and its organization as a valuable means of contact with the boys of the future and the community and as a means of developing the character of the youth of the future. WILL ASK COUNTY COMMISSIONERS FOR $36,000 FOR SCHOOLS

School Board Strips Its Budget To Lowest Possible Minimum Figure.

WILL INCREASE TAX RATE 20c A $100.00

Money Will Be In Addition To Levy For Teachers Salaries And General Operation Costs And Will Be Used To Meet Demands For School Building Improvements.

The Board of Education held another lengthy session on Friday, the chief matter considered being a revision of the estimates affecting the erection of new school buildings and the repairs to old buildings for the coming year.

This paring down of the former estimates was made necessary by the failure of the bonding bill for $200,000 to be ratified by the voters of the county. The figures, as revised by the board on Friday will be presented to the County Commissioners for their approval or disapproval. The figures are as follows: Addition to Bell Street Primary school, Salisbury, $7,000.00; addition to East Salisbury Primary school, $7,000.00; addition to Powellville school, $3,000.00; addition to Wilard school, $2,400.00; new colored school at Wetipquin, $4,500.00; new colored school at Quantico, $4,000.00; new heating plant in Camden Primary school, $3,000.00; repairs and addition to Chestnut St. Grammar school, $2,600.00.

These figures, which are considered the most pressing at the present time, foot up about $35,000.00 and will be asked for from the County Commissioners in the very soon to be made.

Should the Commissioners levy this amount it will require a tax of about 20 cents on the $100 on the assessable basis of about $18,000,000. In this estimate the Board of Education is providing only for the most pressing needs. In the previous budget, made before the bond bill was voted on, Sharptown was put down for about $30,000.00 for a new High school building. Funds not being available for this improvement, the Board of Education has decided on only minor repairs to the present school building, which, it is believed can be provided for out of the general fund.

So, if the County Commissioners decide to "pay as we go," to meet the objections of a great majority of taxpayers to issuing bonds for school improvements, at least 20 cents on the $100 will have to be levied in addition to the amount levied for teachers' salaries and general expenses. The two will make the largest amount by far ever levied for school purposes in Wicomico county.

The Clara school controversy, like Banquo's ghost, will not go down, judging from the pressure which is being brought to bear upon the board to reopen this school, which has been closed for two or three years. The people of Clara are claiming that they have the necessary number of pupils to entitle them to a re-opening of the school, and will be satisfied with the seven grades taught in the one-room rural schools. They say they prefer this to going to the two-room White Haven school, where the ninth grade is taught.

Figures presented to the board on Friday by Superintendent Bennett show that White Haven can furnish but 30 scholars if the residents of Clara are withdrawn and the law requires 40 pupils to maintain a two-room school like that now at White Haven.

The re-opening of the Clara school will, therefore, lower the grades taught in White Haven from ninth to seventh and close one room of the school. The board is in a dilemma as to the situation at these two points and did not reach a definite conclusion at Friday's meeting. The situation will be further considered in all its phases at future meetings.

SCHOOL BUDGET

FOR YEAR IS HIGH

The School Board on Tuesday presented its budget for the next school year to the County Commissioners. The total of the budget is $202,555.50 exclusive of the $64,202.96 estimated state appropriation for schools.

GRANGES OBSERVE MOTHERS' DAY

Boys' And Girls' Clubs Will Furnish Program At Regular Meeting of Salisbury Grange on Saturday.

The next meeting of Salisbury Grange will be held Saturday, May 15th. After the business session the lecturer has arranged for a Mothers' day program, consisting of special music and recitations.

The boys and girls clubs of Phillips' school, under the direction of County Agent Cobb, will furnish a part of the entertainment giving the members an insight into the work of the Boys and Girls clubs throughout the county.

The lecturer's hour will be open to the public. Those wishing to attend are cordially invited to be at the hall about 8.45 o'clock.

WILL BANQUET RETIRING MANAGER

F. W. Woodcock Leaves For Philadelphia On Monday. C. O. Culver Will Succeed Him.

Floyd W. Woodcock, for the last four years general superintendent of the Eastern Shore Gas & Electric company of this city, will leave Salisbury with his family on Monday for Philadelphia where since May 1, he has been assistant public utility manager in the Day & Zimmerman Inc., organization. Mr. Woodcock has sold his home on Camden avenue.

C. O. Culver, since January 1 of this year, assistant to Mr. Woodcock, is now acting as the general manager of the local company, pending his appointment to the managerial position which is slated to be made in a few days.

On Friday night, tomorrow, Mr. Woodcock's office and business associates in Salisbury will have him as their guest of honor at a banquet to be served at the Central hotel. The toastmaster will be R. M. Stanton, and responses to the toasts will be made by O. G. Martino, P. C. Lauers, J. W. Downing, A. D. Shultz, C. O. Culver, R. F. Dalton, H. I. Oswalt and Mr. Woodcock.

Mr. Woodcock has long been recognized as one of the leading business men of this community. He has a host of friends here who while they regret to have him leave Salisbury, join with The Wicomico News in wishing him their sincere congratulations on his new business connection and in wishing him every success in his new venture.

SEAPLANE FLIGHTS AT OCEAN CITY

Capt. Robert Bull and Mrs. Bull Will Demonstrate The Albatross And Carry Passengers on Sunday.

The seaplane, Albatross which was launched on Tuesday at Finney's Wharf, Va., by its owner Robert Bull, and which made several successful flights, will make flights at Ocean City on Sunday.

When the Albatross made her first trip to the skies on Tuesday, Mrs. Bull was a passenger. Afterward, however there was a rush of people who wanted to experience the sensation of flying.

The little flying boat was purchased by Mr. Bull from the U. S. Navy at Hampton Roads and taken to Finney's Wharf in the schooner "Minnie May," owned by Capt. J. Robt. Wise, October 25th. It was originally intended for use by the Government in instruction of fliers. She is known as model No. 40, is equipped with a 100 h. p. Curtis engine and is considered the best small boat in the United States for flying qualities and instruction purposes. She has a wing spread of 47 feet, length, 30 feet; develops speed of approximately 80 miles an hour, at full speed; slow speed, 40 miles per hour; landing speed, 30 miles per hour. She will carry four passengers and has cruising radius of about four hours.

The Albatross and her owner and pilot will be at Ocean City on Sunday when all who desire may travel in her to the skies.

WILL NOT AGREE ON MERGER OF DIOCESE

Delaware And Easton Episcopalians At Meeting On Thursday Agree That Such Action Is Impossible.

A resolution opposing the merger of the Protestant Episcopal dioceses of Easton and Delaware was adopted at a meeting in Easton on Thursday of the standing committees of both dioceses. The resolution stated that the proposed merger was neither possible nor desirable at this time. The matter will be dropped unless the diocesan conventions see fit to raise the question on the floor. In that event the reports of the committees will be submitted.

Members of the Delaware committee made it clear that the only terms under which they would consider the merger were that the See be located in Wilmington. The Easton committee was equally insistent that the See be kept in Easton. The action of the Southern Convocation, which met Wednesday in Ocean City and which opposed the merger, was brought out.

The Delaware committee, prior to the meeting, was inclined, it is said, to recommend to its diocese that the election of a bishop be postponed until after the convention of the Easton diocese in June. The present plan calls for election of the Delaware bishop at the convention next Wednesday. After the meeting the members of the committee said they saw no reason for any further delay and that they will recommend that the election take place Wednesday.

Those representing the diocese of Delaware at the meeting were the Rev. B. F. Thompson, of Dover; the Rev. R. W. Trappell and the Rev. F. M. Kirkus, of Wilmington; Felix Du Pont and Chancellor Curtis, of Wilmington, and Woodbury Martin, of Georgetown. The Easton Diocese was represented by the Rev. Dr. Henry B. Martin, of Chetertown; the Rev. Dr. Henry Davies and Judge William H. Adkins, of Easton, and Edwin Dashiell, of Cambridge.

LIBERTY BONDS MAY BE CONVERTED

W. S. Gordy, Local Banker, Tells How Four Percent Bonds May Be Made To Earn Higher Interest.

Persons here who hold unconverted four per cent Liberty bonds of the first and second issues can earn one-fourth of one per cent more on their money by having them converted into 4 1/4 per cent bonds, it was today emphasized by Wm. S. Gordy, Jr., cashier of the Salisbury National bank.

"Holders of four per cent Liberty Bonds of the second issue," said Mr. Gordy, "should send their securities to their local banks to be forwarded to the Federal Reserve bank of Richmond immediately. The bonds must reach the Federal Reserve bank not later than May 14. Therefore, prompt action is necessary. Holders of four per cent Liberty bonds of the first issue should send their bonds to their local banks for forwarding to Richmond so that delivery will be made to the Federal Reserve bank not later than June 14."

The reason of these dates, Mr. Gordy said, is that the next interest payment on the second and first Liberty Bonds fall, respectively, on May 15 and June 15.

"If holders of unconverted four per cent Liberty bonds of the first and second series wish to take advantage of this conversion privilege and thus increase their incomes, the bonds must be sent as I have explained. If the bonds are not delivered to the Federal Reserve bank of Richmond for conversion until after the above interest dates then it will cost the bondholder, who wishes to convert his security, one-fourth of one per cent of the face value of the bond, this charge being to cover the necessary interest adjustment to the next interest payment date."

"By all means the holders of the four per cent securities should send in their bonds immediately and receive permanent 4 1/4 per cent bonds."

SALISBURY TO HAVE VOCATIONAL TRAINING SCHOOL FOR SOLDIERS

WILL SELL THE KEEL PROPERTY ON MAY 15

Big Canning Business And Property To Be Sold At Auction To Satisfy Its Many Creditors.

Farmers of this entire section will be interested in the sale at public auction of the William R. Keel property at Rockawalkin Tuesday, May 25. The Keel canning concern was indebted to practically every tomato grower in the county and all will be glad to see the property sold for a large enough sum to liquidate this indebtedness.

At the same sale all the contents of the canning factory will be sold by the trustees. The plant is one of the most modern and up-to-date in the state, and is located on the railroad and the State road.

The sale will mark the close of a big bankruptcy case. The trustees and mortgagees hope the property will bring enough to make a satisfactory return to all the Keel creditors.

FIVE WILL BE GRADUATE NURSES

Peninsula General Hospital Will Award Diplomas To Five Young Women on Monday, May 24.

The members of the 1920 graduating class of the Peninsula General Hospital Training School for Nurses will attend the observance of the Florence Nightingale centennial in Baltimore on Wednesday night. The young women will be chaperoned by Miss Margaret Laws, R. N., Red Cross and visiting nurse for Wicomico county.

The members of the graduating class are Miss Mildred Disharoon, Miss Louise Wilkins, Mrs. Susan Carter, Miss Sarah Culling and Miss Alice Travers.

The graduating exercises will take place in the Salisbury Young Men's association building on the afternoon of Monday, May 24, when the graduates will receive their diplomas from the hands of former United States Senator W. P. Jackson, president of the hospital's board of directors. Following the graduation exercises in the afternoon, the graduates will be given a reception and dance at the Nurses' home. On Friday night of this week, the members of the class will be the guests of the hospital's graduate nurses in Salisbury, at dinner at the Atlantic hotel in Berlin.

COUNTY'S DRIVE LAUNCHED TUESDAY

Effort To Raise Quota of Salvation Army's Home Service Fund Is Started Here. Good Speakers.

The Salvation Army Home Service appeal for Wicomico county was opened Sunday in the Arcade theatre by a mass meeting held to hear Dr. Edward H. Egbert of Washington, speaker.

The Arcade was nearly filled when Dr. Boyle invoked divine blessing on the Salvation army, those present standing, and the audience led by a chosen choir sang two hymns. William Sheppard sang "Fear Not O Israel." Upon the conclusion of the solo, W. T. Ashby, who presided over the meeting, and who is the chairman of the Salvation army drive for Wicomico county spoke at length on the things that the Salvation army accomplished, giving statistics to verify his statements. More singing followed Mr. Ashby's talk, and then Dr. Edward H. Egbert, former surgeon-general of the Russian Imperial government and Russian Red Cross captain during the war, was introduced.

His talk although short, was very interesting, especially since he discussed the Bolshevik and Soviet form of governments. The character of the Russian peasant was also thoroughly talked about and the universal need of the Salvation army brought out. The meeting was dismissed with a prayer by Dr. Herson.

The music was furnished under the direction of Miss Faulkner.

Brown Saw Service In France And Bears Scars Of Battle. He Installed And Instructed In The Work at Camp Meade And At Fort McHenry, Saved Government Great Sums.

Salisbury's newest industry is the Victory Vulcanizing and Tire Store, located on East Church street, in what was formerly the home of the Eastern Shore Laundry. George E. Brown of Akron, Ohio, an ex-service man is its owner and proprietor, and it is his intention to make of the new enterprise a vocational training school for wounded soldiers.

The special function of this new concern is the retreading of automobile tires, and when the new machinery to be used in that work arrives, the plant will be equipped for retreading tires of the heaviest trucks, passenger cars and down through all the lists of tire sizes to those used on motorcycles. Not alone will the plant be equipped to retread tires of all sizes, but its work will be unique in that it will produce four different types of treads for each of the several sizes.

Mr. Brown, came here about a month ago from Camp Meade, where he was in charge of the vulcanizing plant where wounded soldiers are taught the vulcanizing and retreading trade. He introduced the work there in the vocational training school and had 300 wounded soldiers as his students. As a result of his work at Camp Meade, and previously at Fort McHenry, a retreading plant has been put in each of the U. S. Hospital vocational schools and his 800 Camp Meade men are now the instructors in those schools.

Mr. Brown was Sergeant Brown during the war. He was a member of the 126 Machine Gun company with the 32d division, and in one of the Argonne forest engagements he received three wounds, each of a serious nature. Today he bears the scars of battle but his right arm, shattered as it was by shrapnel, functions perfectly.

When he returned from over seas and lay on a hospital cot at Fort McHenry, Brown wondered just what his future would bring forth. Before the war for 10 years he had been tire adjuster for the Firestone Tire Co., in Akron, and when that concern heard of his predicament it offered him his old position, though it was then believed that he would never be able to use his arms to work. Brown was too independent to accept such an offer. Instead, he decided to work for the U. S. government and finally received permission to undertake to teach a class of disabled men vulcanizing and retreading, at Fort McHenry. His effort was so successful that he has received letters of commendation from Secretary Baker, General March and others equally prominent.

Brown proved to the Government officials that the retreading of tires was a profitable venture because the output of his department was 50 finished tires a week, representing a saving to the government of $2,500 weekly.

Now, at Evergreen Hospital for Blind Soldiers, in Baltimore, there is a class in tire vulcanizing and retreading, a department installed (Continued on Page 8).

THE SALISBURY CANDY KITCHEN BEING RENOVATED

The Sarbanes Co., proprietors of the Salisbury Candy Kitchen, are making some big improvements in that restaurant and confectionery store. Hastings & Parsons, contractors, are laying a new asbestos floor, a composition closely representing tiling, and the side walls are to be recovered with beaver board which will be tastefully decorated. The metal ceiling is to be repainted and the entire interior of the store room thoroughly renovated. The work was started on Monday and it is expected that it will be completed in about a week.

Drive Now To Recruit Maryland National Guard

Governor Ritchie At Dinner In Baltimore Tells Need Of Guard Of Full Strength To Guard Public Interests. Business Men And Employers Of Men Approve The Movement.

CAMPAIGN TO OPEN MAY 17.

Young men who have become 18 years of age since the armistice was signed will be especially urged to join the new Maryland National Guard during the recruiting campaign for that organization which will be started all over the state on May 17th, and be conducted until May 31st. It is hoped that Maryland's quota of 3,200 men will be raised by the end of the month.

The campaign will be comprehensive in scope. It is in response to a real need that plans for it have been laid, for at least the entire strength of the National Guard in Maryland is less than 200 men. This force, of course is entirely inadequate.

In Baltimore the old Fifth regiment will be re-created. In the counties a new First regiment will be recruited, with companies in various towns throughout the state as in the days of the old Guard before the great war. Assigned to Maryland also are two batteries of field artillery and a field hospital unit. The batteries probably will be divided between the city and state, detachments being raised in various towns.

The new Guard will be armed and equipped by the United States government under the direction of Gen. J. McI. Carter, chief of the Militia bureau. Drills will be held one night a week, and for these the men will be paid by the government at the rate of something over $1 a night. Under the new Army bill now pending in Congress this scale of pay will be raised to approximately $1.50 a night for private soldiers up. Each year there will be a training encampment lasting about 15 days and for this period also the men will be paid.

In many instances employers of labor and the heads of business houses throughout the state have agreed either to pay their men who enlist in the Guard their full rate during the time they are in camp or to make up the difference between what the Government will pay and what they would get if they remained at their work. By the time the campaign is in full swing it is expected that practically every business man will be ready to agree to this plan.

Tentative plans for the campaign were discussed at a dinner given by Governor Ritchie to 200 representative business and professional men from all parts of the state at the Southern hotel, in Baltimore, last Wednesday night.

At this dinner every speaker—and among them were the biggest employers in the state as well as the mayors of towns and leading professional men from many counties—pledged his support to the campaign. And every speaker laid stress on two points which are expected to carry weight with the thinking people of the state.

The first is this: Maryland needs a national Guard, perhaps more now than before the war. There has been so much general unrest and so many whisperings of radical effort to make trouble among the loyal laboring men of the country and for the Government, that no one can tell when a state organization of trained troops might be needed for the protection of the commonwealth and the property of its residents.

In addition to this need for the Guard, it is pointed out that in time of great public catastrophe, such as visited the city of Baltimore in the great fire of 1904, the need for National Guardsmen can hardly be estimated. At that time the Guardsmen rendered service to the stricken city which no other force could have given, and through their work hundreds of thousands of dollars were saved.

The second point stressed by those who are to conduct the campaign is this: men who served in the National Guard before the war, who were taken into the Federal service at the outbreak of hostilities with Germany (Continued on Page 8).

BIG STROKE TO HAVE OPENING ON MAY 22

Kennerly & Mitchell Will Entertain Friends and Patrons to Show Appreciation of Growth Since 1916.

For the purpose of showing its appreciation of the patronage given it since four years ago when its store was the scene of a remarkable opening and reception, Kennerly & Mitchell, men's clothiers and outfitters, will give another opening and reception on Saturday, May 22, this year.

Four years ago the affair given by this firm was the talk of the peninsula. People came from far and near to be present; but this year, with its new day-light store, its greatly increased floor space, its modern store fixtures and its very large and strictly up-to-the-minute stock, Kennerly & Mitchell plans to give all visitors, a reception and opening worthy of a city much larger than Salisbury.

Handsome and appropriate souvenirs will be given to the men and cut flowers will be given to the women visitors. A specially selected orchestra will be hidden behind a bank of ferns and greenery and will play sweet music through the hours of the affair.

Members of the firm and store attaches will be on hand to welcome all visitors to show them the store which is the biggest and most modern of its kind on the Eastern Shore and to display to them the new styles in men's and boys' clothing and haberdashery.

Salisbury is to be congratulated because of it being the home of this wonderfully progressive and wide-awake business house. Its store is a credit to the city and would be a credit to any one of the bigger buying centers of the country. The heads of the firm are men of business integrity and each one of its sales force is a person specially trained in the clothing lines.

Twenty-four years ago B. Frank Kennerly and Edward D. Mitchell left their farms and entered into the clothing business in this city. They immediately found themselves face to face with very keen competition but they stuck to their posts and by close application to business, and honest treatment of their patrons soon made a solid place for themselves in the business world of Wicomico county.

During each year they have been in business their enterprise has grown steadily and healthfully until today it is the biggest of its kind on the Eastern Shore.

The management of the firm remained unchanged until 1908 when Mr. Kennerly withdrew to become president of the Kennerly-Shockley Co. At that time Charles W. Bennett who for years had been identified with the business, was admitted to a partnership, and Mr. Mitchell assumed the actual management of the business. It is due largely to Mr. Mitchell's progressive ideas, personal popularity and business sagacity that the firm, Kennerly & Mitchell is today the big enterprise that calls Salisbury home.

The present site of the concern's big store was purchased in 1910 of the late John H. White. The building on the site was modernized and for a while served the needs of the business well; but the scope of enterprise extended so rapidly that more room and more modern facilities were required, and about a year ago the improvements which when completed made up the present big daylight store of this progressive clothing firm, were started. This big store has a solid glass front covering each of its three floors. It is equipped with elevator service, and for the convenience of its patrons, the store is equipped with Alco mirrors. This store boasts of one mirror, 6x12 feet, the largest in this city.

That the people of Salisbury and all the surrounding country appreciate the efforts of this concern to give them service and merchandise unexcelled elsewhere even in the biggest cities, is shown by the fact that the business of the firm is growing by leaps and bounds.

It is in an effort to show the people its appreciation of their support and patronage that plans have been made for the big opening and reception at the Kennerly & Mitchell store on Saturday, May 22. The general public is invited to share in the festivities of the occasion.

Mr. Mitchell, the senior member of the firm is one of the city's most active and most popular young business men. He is a director of the Peoples National bank, president of the Mitchell & Goslee Hardware Co., director and treasurer of The Shoreman Hotel Corporation, a director of the News Publishing Co., senior member of Insley & Mitchell, canners, and a very active member of the Salisbury Chamber of Commerce, and of the Rotary club of Salisbury. In addition, he is interested in many others of Salisbury's business concerns. He is also an active member of the Asbury M. E. church.

Mr. Bennett, the junior member of the firm is one of the city's most active and most popular young business men. He is ever on the alert for the interests of his customers, realizing that by serving them well, he is best serving his own and his firm's business interests. Mr. Bennett is a member of the Methodist Protestant church.

This big store is well patronized by the people of Virginia and Delaware to whom much credit for the growth of the business is due.

J. H. Johnson has purchased a lot on the River Boulevard from D. C. Weatherhead and expects to build in the near future. The residence which is to be erected is a bungalow of the California type and is of exceptionally artistic design. Mr. Johnson is to be congratulated on the good taste displayed by his choice.

DELMAR BANKS INCREASE STOCKS

Bank of Delmar, and First National Are Very Flourishing Financial Institutions.

At a special meeting of the stockholders of the Bank of Delmar held a few days ago, an increase in the capital stock of the institution was authorized. The capital stock will be increased from $25,000 to $40,000 and the new stock will be sold to new interests, the old stockholders waiving their rights to subscribing. This has been one of the most successful of the smaller banks of Wicomico county, and has been paying a 12 per cent. dividend for several years while at the same time, it has been building up a fine surplus fund for its stockholders. The new stock has been distributed among the younger business men and farmers in and around Delmar and the directors feel that the institution will be very much strengthened and the business greatly enlarged by the issuing of this new stock.

Notices have also been sent out by the First National bank of Delmar calling for a special meeting of the stockholders sometime in June, when it is proposed to increase the capital stock of the First National from $30,000 to $50,000. This bank which was started several years after the Bank of Delmar, and which is located on the Delaware side of the town, has also had a very successful career and like the older institution, the directors feel that by bringing in new blood and interesting the younger men of the community the bank will be in a better position to make larger returns to its stockholders.

Delmar is the most flourishing community in Wicomico outside of Salisbury and the largest town next this city. Being a railroad centre, the junction of two roads, the present high scale of wages paid all railroad employees has the effect of bringing several hundred thousand dollars each month to that community and the banks of the town have been able to interest a very large percentage of railroad employees as depositors and customers. The fact that these men are at present earning two and three times the salary they formerly earned, has had the effect of increasing the deposits of both the banking institutions of Delmar very largely since the beginning of the World war; and both institutions are now in a flourishing condition and will continue to grow under their present splendid management.

CHURCH CONFERENCE IN OAK HALL, VA.

Forty-ninth Annual Session Of Eastern Shore District M. E. Church South, Successful Affair.

The 49th annual session of the Eastern Shore District conference of the Methodist Episcopal church, south, convened in Downing's church, Oak Hall, Va., on Tuesday, April 17th for a three day session, adjourning at 1 o'clock Thursday. The conference was presided over by Rev. F. B. McSparran, presiding elder of the district.

The reports from the various charges of the district showed that the work for the last year had surpassed that of any previous year. There have already been over 1,000 conversions, while meetings have not been held in more than one-half of the churches. Pastors salaries have been increased over $7000 this year bringing the grand total up to $52,000.00 paid on the 25 charges.

The opening sermon was preached on Tuesday evening by Rev. J. B. Peters, of Cambridge. The annual sermon on missions was preached by Rev. F. G. Davis, of Capeville. The sermon on evangelism was preached by Rev. W. S. Deyerle, of Keller. All of these were pronounced by the congregations that taxed the capacity of historic old Downings as being sermons of great power.

The following delegates were elected to represent the district at the next annual conference that meets in November: Mrs. C. R. Waters, W. L. Trader, W. J. Russell, C. Starr Boggs, I. L. Price, Roscoe Jones, J. C. Walker, and W. B. Bull. The following alternates were elected: W. S. Nelson, A. W. Short, E. A. Downing.

During the conference addresses were delivered by Rev. Asbury Christian, D. D., J. F. Rawles, conference chairman of the Minute Men, and W. S. Nelson, district chairman of the Minute Men. G. I. McAllen and G. Wm. Phillips were re-elected as district lay leaders.

The conference will meet next year with the Cambridge church.

Final Reduction & Clearance

Suits, Coats, Capes, Dresses and Skirts at 25% Off Their Marked Price.

This discount will be applied to every suit on our racks. Tricotines, serges, poret twills and poplins both navy and black are included as well as all the light shades, and jersey suits. Every coat and cape, both short and long and every wanted color of the season. Every dress in our stock, taffeta, satin, charmeuse, serge, tricotine and crepe de chine. (The new voile and gingham dresses excepted). Every cloth skirt on our racks including navy, black and plaids, both plain and accordion-pleated, (Sport and white wash skirts excepted). This will be the final reduction of the season so get in early while the selection is still complete.

We are merely following our policy not to carry over garments from one season to another. This is your opportunity to save 25% right here at the height of the season. Remember, we have not picked out just a few undesirables or old styles but our entire stock of the above named garments, everyone this season's styles, will go on sale at this great reduction. This sale will start with the issue of this paper and will last until sold but we advise an early selection.

1500 yards of voiles which we carried over from last season go on sale at the yard 39c

There isn't a piece in the lot that sold for less than 50c and some as much as 85c; most of them were 69c. Some of the designs are very similar to the patterns of this season but instead of mixing them in with this season's voiles we have placed them on sale at this very special price of 39c.

Final reduction in Millinery 25% off their marked price. Every black, blue, tan, brown, red or purple hat, in fact, every one of them except the white and the horse-hair braid hats will be put on sale at this great reduction of 25% off. This includes every shape and every trimmed hat and every pattern hat. None reserved except as above mentioned. Two special lots will be on sale at a reduction of about 50%. They are sailors, ribbon trimmed and sport hats. These are $3.95 and $4.50 respectively.

Announcement

We have established a Dressmaking Department for the convenience of our customers. Miss Mary Riffin is in charge. We will accept orders for dresses, skirts and blouses.

THE PEOPLE MUST PAY.

The question of how to raise the money needed for the public schools of the county is one which is now bothering some people, especially those who used their every effort, and very successfully too, to defeat the proposed $200,000 school bond issue on Monday, May 3.

These men know full well that the money must be forthcoming. They know that the people have awakened to a knowledge of the needs of the schools. They know too, that the people will not tolerate a tax rate which will provide the money needed in the schools.

There is but one way to raise the money without increasing the tax rate materially, if at all. This will be the increasing of the assessments of values of taxable properties in the county; and in many instances this should be done.

It is a fact that if a man pays taxes at the rate of $2 a hundred on a property assessed at $1,000 he is not paying as much in taxes as though he paid at the rate of $2 a hundred on the same property, valued at $2,000. In one case he would pay taxes to the amount of $20 and in the other he would pay in the amount of $40. In other words he would pay twice the amount in taxes, though he still paid the same tax rate. This is probably the way in which the money for the schools will eventually be raised. It cannot be done this year, but watch out for next year!

In fact it is quite possible that with the taxable basis sufficiently increased all along the line, the tax rate on the increased valuations, may be fixed at a lower figure than the present rate, while the tax payer pays more money in taxes than he does now.

Reports are current that steps will soon be taken to increase the taxable values of properties in this county. There are many instances on record which show that the present system of assessment is unjust—that on man's property is assessed at 90 or 100 per cent of its actual value while that of his next door neighbor is taxed on a basis of about 40 or 50 per cent of its real value. It is the assessment of the under-assessed man that should be raised, and not that of the man who is already equitably assessed. The question is, will the new assessment basis be any more just than the present one?

There is but one way to make it so. Do not have the assessment made by local or incompetent men. No matter how honest a local assessor may be, he has his friends for whom he feels that he would like to do a favor—and all too often those friendly favors have cost the county real money. The assessment should be made by men, foreign to Wicomico county, who are trained in assessment work. They should be paid for their services and they should be watched to see that they report honest values on the properties they assess. Each property assessed should be visited and inspected personally by the assessors. They should see for themselves just what each property owner's property is. They should not take his word for it.

There is no question but that the present system of assessing properties in this county is unjust and inefficient. There is no question but that a re-assessment along equitable lines will increase the revenue of the county to such an extent, without increasing the tax rate, that there will be no need of setting a new and higher tax rate, to give the public schools the needed improvements—but you people who voted against the bond issue on May third because you were told that it would increase your taxes, will very soon find that while your tax rate is not increased, it may even be decreased, your assessed valuations have been increased and that you are paying more money as taxes than you have ever paid before.

And it is right that this should be because it is your bounden Christian duty to give to the children, that are yours and your neighbors', the educations which will make of them men and women fit to cope with the problems of life.

The money for schools must be provided, and the people must pay either by a high tax rate or on an increased valuation of their taxable properties.

THAT NEW GAS RATE.

The Citizens Gas company of this city has notified its customers that beginning April 25th, the price of gas to home consumers would be at the rate of $2.50 per thousand cubic feet less 10 per cent, if paid within the specified time. This is an advance of 50c. per thousand cubic feet over the former rate of $2.00 which Salisbury's people have been paying for some time. This advance of 50 cents a 1000 cubic feet for gas in a community of this size seems to be exorbitant and is likely to cause a great deal of complaint from the consumers. The fact that this is a season of the year when the people use gas most extensively, makes it all the more burdensome and many believe that the Gas company could have waited until the fall of the year when the housewives are not so dependent upon gas as a fuel, before making this tremendous advance, if there was any necessity for it at all. This brings up the real question as to whether or not the Gas company has overreached the mark in making the advance so extreme all at one time. It has generally been the policy of these public service corporations to advance their rates when necessary, say, 10 per cent, at a time, but to make an advance of 50 cents per thousand cubic feet, seems to the average citizen such an extreme move as to make it necessary for the people to appeal to the Public Service Commission of the state for protection.

Everybody will agree that public service corporations should have the opportunity of earning a fair return on a legitimate investment. One citizen remarked in speaking of this advance, "the gas company is not making extensive improvements at the present time which are costing it any large sums of money," and as their equipment is probably not deteriorating very materially especially that portion of it which is under the ground, the consumer is at a loss to know why just at this time there should have been such an extreme advance in the price of a commodity which the people of this community are almost forced to use because of a lack of facilities for getting wood and other fuel.

The News has always been liberal in its views regarding the return which corporations should receive on their investment and it has never been of the hide-bound character of some people who are always fighting corporations simply because they are corporations. The paper's idea is that if a corporation is properly managed and is not wasteful or extravagant, it should be allowed to receive a fair return on its investment but it is not believed that the public should be penalized because of a lack of management in a big corporation and forced to pay a higher price for its commodity than would otherwise be the case if careful management and economy is practised in all its departments.

It is not meant by this that there is criticism of the management of the Citizens Gas company as its board of directors is composed of some of the most prominent and astute business men of this city, who manage their own affairs in a highly satisfactory manner; but whether or not they are too busy to look after the details which are many in a business of this kind, is more than can be said. It is contended that having a valuable franchise from the city the gas company should use every effort to give the people first-class service and first-class gas at the very lowest minimum cost which it can afford to do.

It is understood that there will be an effort to get a hearing of this case before the Public Service Commission and it is certain that the Gas company will be perfectly willing for a showdown of the cards and get an opinion from the commission as to whether or not it is charging the right price for its commodity.

SAYS WESTERN PRICES ARE LOWER THAN HERE

Purnell Parsons, Absent From Salisbury Eight Years, Sees Many Improvements Here.

Purnell Parsons who left this city eight years ago for California, returned for a short visit last week and remarked on the many changes which have taken place here during his absence.

Mr. Parsons is engaged successfully in the furniture business in Los Angeles.

When told of the high prices of all commodities in this section, Mr. Parsons said he could not understand such a situation. Western prices are much lower, he said, than those which prevail here. He cited the sale of two dwellings in Los Angeles, each but three years old, in very good locations, at $3,800 each, and said the same houses in relatively good locations here would bring $10,000 each under the present scale of real estate prices.

Mr. Parsons says that Los Angeles is the garden spot of the world, but he still holds in his heart a great love for Salisbury, his former home.

Before returning west, Mr. Parsons will visit with his brother, W. S. Parsons of Snow Hill.

COUNTY NEWS

MARDELA SPRINGS.

We have had two deaths in Mardele this week which have thrown a cloud of gloom over the entire community. They were the cases of Job Darbey and Joseph Venables. Judging from the crowds attending their funerals, they had a host of friends. Many of us take this as a call to us, as one of the preachers said in preaching the funeral sermon: "Be ye also ready for ye know not the time when the Son of Man cometh." If men are not serious now, it is not because they have not enough warning.

Mrs. H. R. Mann, the wife of our successful doctor, has gone to her old home in Charlottesville, Va., for a little rest. Dr. Mann accompanied her, but owing to his large practice, he had to return at once.

The four frosts this month have done no little damage for the truckers and farmers in this section. It was hard on the early potatoes, cantaloupes and cucumbers. It is not thought that the fruit has been hurt very much. We feel very glad that the fruit is not badly hurt for the bloom is large and the prospects are good for a large yields. It is especially hard on the farmers, so far as the potatoes are concerned, for the seed is scarce this year. There will be a small acreage of tomatoes set out this year. The farmers are afraid that the government will unload its pack of tomatoes on the market and this will ruin their prospect. But others think that this will be a good year for tomatoes, since so many will not plant many. The poor farmers seem to be up against it, let the tide turn which way it may. There ought to be better legislation in favor of the farmer. But how can we hope for anything better until we stop sending so many lawyers to the legislature and to Congress, instead of sending our wisest farmers. The farmers know best what they need. If the experiment has never been tried, of sending farmers to the halls of legislation, let us try it soon. Who among us will be bold enough to press this thought upon the consideration of our voters at the next primary?

William E. Wilkinson is improving his property with a coat of paint. Judging by the appearance of many houses in town, it seems to us that others should follow the example of Mr. Wilkinson. Of course the cry will at once go up "the price of paint is too high." Of course it is. But isn't everything else too high also? The Bailey & English Co. has conceived the idea of lowering the prices on their goods so as to bring down to that extent the cost of high living. It is to be hoped that other firms will follow.

Branch Hill, Athol and Hebron baptist churches have called to the pastorate, Rev. G. W. Gorrell, who took charge this past Sunday. Mr. Gorrell is a young man and hails from Baltimore. He has had one pastorate before this, and is a graduate of Crozier Theological seminary.

Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Venables are visiting the home of his parents this week, having been called home on account of the death of Mr. Venables' father.

Prof. H. W. Hickey and Miss Olive Mitchel and Miss Stevens gave a demonstration in the selection and cooking of chickens, in the home of Mr. and Mrs. A. S. Venables, on Tuesday afternoon of this week.

BIVALE.

Mrs. Mary Fields was in Baltimore last Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Edgar Anderson visited relatives here last week.

Mr. and Mrs. William Dickerson of Chester, Pa., are visiting Mrs. Dickerson's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Jarrett.

George A. Harrington and family of near Salisbury visited relatives here Sunday.

Gus Horsman died on Friday evening, after a lingering illness. Funeral services were held at the M. P. church here on Sunday morning, conducted by Rev. L. E. Haddaway, Nanticoke Tribe No. 87, Improved Order Red Men, of which he was a member, attended the funeral in a body. Deceased is survived by a wife and one son, Edgar, two brothers and one sister, George Horsman of this place and Will Horsman and Mrs. Frank Anderson of Laurel, Del.

LOCAL THEATRES HAVE RUN ON SINNERS

Constantine Talmadge Looks For One At The Arcade and Alice Brady Is One at The Liberty.

(By Dick van Dyck).
Salisbury may not be reckoned exactly as paradise; but it surely must not be confused with that place situated at the other extremity of the universe. Yet strangers in the city last week must have wondered just what was what. Huge posters on the streets proclaimed the fact that Constantine Talmadge was "In Search of a Sinner" at the Arcade theater; and that Alice Brady was discovered to be "The Sinner" at the Liberty. She was not the kind of sinner, however, that Miss Talmadge was seeking.

At an early age she was married to a man who was too good to live; he just lived to do good things for charity, for his friends, for his profession. Being so extremely good, he finally died (an act, in the opinion of his young wife, that was the best thing he ever did); and she, being so devilishly hungry for real devilment immediately went in search of a wild man.

Her search led her to the wildest of wild towns—according to the story books—and in New York she picked flowers in Central park and a dead one in a cafe. Disappointed in her first attempts at vamping, she returns to the home of her brother-in-law, and there things begin to happen. Word pictures cannot replace motion pictures; so if you didn't see Connie Talmadge in this play, you missed a treat.

Many a time we have wept over some melodramatic rendition of "Down on The Farm," but at the Liberty Monday night we had to laugh until we wept. The comedy is one of the greatest Mack Sennett has yet produced; and it is all based on actual occurrences at the famous Sennett Farm. It was a riot of rural romance and revelry, and clearly showed that Mack Sennett and his cast have not forgotten how to make sad mortals laugh.

High School Commencement Exercises In Arcade Theater Thursday Night June 1. Banquet May 21.

Those festivities and events which annually surround the graduation of High school students in each community will begin on Friday, May 21, in this city when the members of the Senior class, Wicomico High school will be the guests of the Juniors at a banquet.

On May 30, Sunday, the sermon to the graduates will be preached by the Rev. R. A. Boyle, pastor of Wicomico Presbyterian church. The members of the graduating class will meet at the S.Y.M.A. building and will march from there to the church building.

On Monday, May 31 at the Arcade theater, the Seniors will present their annual class play, and on this occasion the addresses of the class president, valedictorian and salutatorian will be delivered.

Commencement night will be on Tuesday, June 1.

The exercises which will be unusually elaborate this year will be given at the Arcade theater. There will be a speaker of national and perhaps international renown, but those in charge of the program arrangements are not yet ready to make announcement of his name. This will come later on. Features of the exercises program will be musical numbers by the High School Choral club and by the High School Orchestra.

The graduates who will number 32, will be as follows:

Salisbury To Have Training School

there by Mr. Brown at the request of the hospital heads.

Mr. Brown has had 12 or more years experience as a tire vulcanizer, retreader and adjuster. He takes a good-for-nothing tire and makes it into a new article. He claims that he can add 5,000 miles or more to the life of a worn out tire at one half the cost of a new tire.

Within a few weeks he will employ 20 ex-service men who received wounds while in the war against the Huns. These men will be sent here by the Government to learn their trade, a feat which they will accomplish under Mr. Brown in about three months. As soon as one score of men has finished, a new lot will be sent here. While working here they will be learning a new trade that will pay them after they have their course completed, from $150 to $200 a month, and while they are learning, they will receive compensation at the rate of from $80 to $100 a month. These 20 men will produce for Mr. Brown about 10 finished tires a week, so that Salisbury's motorists who suffer with worn out tires will have splendid service in the matter of tire rejuvenation.

At the present time Mr. Brown has all the work he can attend to with his limited staff of assistants; and this number will not be increased until the necessary machinery to expand the service of the business has been received. This, Mr. Brown believes will be within a week.

In addition to his vulcanizing and retreading business all of which is done by electrically driven machinery and under steam pressure, Mr. Brown handles a full line of automobile supplies and accessories. He has recently installed a free air, free water and free jack service at the curb in front of his place of business, to the use of which the motoring public is welcome without charge.

FIVE YEAR OLD GIVES A PARTY

Miss Elizabeth Ruark, little daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Luther Ruark of Newton street, entertained a few of her friends on Thursday afternoon, in honor of her fifth birthday. After playing games the children were taken into the dining room where the birthday cake with five candles, was cut and refreshments were served. Those present were: Jane Banks, Nancy Windsor, Julia Windsor, Margaret Cathel, Harriet Stewart, Edna Washburn, Evelyn Vincent, Newton Hastings, Jean Dashiell.

FIRE DESTROYS BIG FLOUR MILL

Plant of Hebron Milling Co., is Burned Early on Tuesday Morning. With Loss of $50,000.

Fire of unknown origin destroyed the entire plant of the Hebron Milling company at Hebron, seven miles from this city on Tuesday morning. The flames were discovered at about 8 o'clock. The fire spread rapidly over and through the wooden buildings, each one of which with its contents is said to be a total loss.

On Friday and Saturday of last week two car loads of wheat were unloaded at the mill and stored in the big elevator. It is believed that the fire may have been caused by spontaneous combustion, the result of dampness which may possibly have found its way to the grain because of the stormy weather on those days.

The mill had a capacity of 50 barrels of flour daily. It is estimated that the loss by fire is more than $50,000 a part of which is said to be covered by insurance.

The business of the Hebron Milling company is owned by M. M. Nelson, George C. Bounds, George W. Holliday, W. Roy Wilson, T. O. Ellis, J. Lee Holliday and Dr. J. McFadden Dick.

The mill was destroyed by fire about five years ago.

Drive To Recruit Md. National Guard

and who formed the nucleus for many divisions which rendered heroic service overseas, automatically became civilians when they were discharged from the Federal service at the end of the war.

They did their duty nobly, and they deserved a retirement to private life and a complete rest from the duties and responsibilities devolving even upon a militia organization. Thousands of them went through the entire war. They served the country for more than two years, in many instances at a tremendous personal sacrifice.

Governor Ritchie and those men who will work with him to recruit the new Guard, notable among them being Adjutant-General Milton A. Reckord, former colonel of the old First Regiment and for a time its leader in France, do not believe that these men should be called upon again to enter the service—at least that no special appeal should be made to them.

Since the armistice was signed, many thousands of young men have become 18 years of age, have reached the period when they can be of most advantage to their state and can give most satisfactorily of their service to the protection of that community of which they are citizens. Their elder brothers and their older friends have proven to the world that they were ready to assume this responsibility; now it is their duty to show themselves no less patriotic and ready to support and protect the country in which they live.

These are the fundamental points to be observed in the conduct of the recruiting campaign. It is likely that meetings will be held throughout the state, under the direction of the leading men in each community.

The Guard will be supervised by Adjutant-General Reckord, who made an enviable reputation in France as a soldier and a man. They will have the universal backing of their employers, the support of their friends.

There is only honor for the man who wears the olive-drab, even if it be only for one drill night a week. His employer, his family, his friends all know that his willingness to wear it signifies also his willingness to take upon his shoulders a part of that readiness to support the country and those things for which it stands which have made America's record from the War of Independence down a list of victories and a line of achievements.

George W. Woolford, president of the Eastern Shore Trust company; Mayor Thomas W. Koon, of Cumberland, and Mayor Thomas Howard E. Koontz of Westminster, who were among the speakers at the Governor's dinner, all are behind Governor Ritchie in the coming campaign, and few men in the state do not stand ready to support him and the lads who respond to his call by enlisting in the new Guard.

AMERICAN LEGION DANCE, FRIDAY MAY 21

Wicomico post, American legion, will give its final dance of the season, on Friday, May 21. The affair will be entirely informal. Music will be furnished by the Salisbury orchestra. Since this dance is a benefit in favor of the legion, a large attendance is urged. The dance will be the last of the series given by the local post.

TO AUCTION LOTS FRIDAY, MAY 21

S. P. Woodcock & Co. will sell some very desirable building lots at auction, on Camden avenue also on Virginia avenue, Friday, May 21st, at 7 o'clock p. m. These lots are located in one of the best residential sections of the city and anyone desiring to build a home should investigate same. This company has conducted a number of very successful auction sales and has greatly helped in developing the city by platting and dividing large pieces of land into building lots and making the lots within the reach of everyone desiring to own their own home. Plat of this development will appear in the next issue of this paper.

CELEBRATE ANNIVERSARY OF CHURCH ON MAY 16TH

On Sunday afternoon, May 16, at 2:30 o'clock, the annual memorial services at the Old Rockwalkin Presbyterian church will be held. The Rev. R. A. Boyle, pastor of the Wicomico Presbyterian church will conduct the services, for which a special program has been arranged. This will be the 103d anniversary of the establishment of the Presbyterian church in this vicinity. If the weather on May 16 is unfavorable, the memorial services will be postponed until the following Sunday.

ENTERTAIN FRIENDS AT BIRTHDAY PARTY

Our Congress- man

What does he think of the farmer? Was he ever a farmer himself? Does he care more for free seeds for city folks than for county agents for farm folks? Is he for the farmers, now that he's elected, or has he forgotten them?

The COUNTRY GENTLEMAN

has been hunting up the farmers in Congress—and, let me tell you, it's like hunting for a needle in a haystack. At any rate, it is finding out who are the farmers' friends, and that's something to know.

In the issue of THE COUNTRY GENTLEMAN that will be out next week there's a big article called "How Congressmen Vote." I wish you'd read it—it sure is an eye-opener. There's an election coming on, and the farmers should know who are their friends in Washington. The COUNTRY GENTLEMAN will keep you posted if you read it every week and follow its Washington dispatches. . . . Best way to get them is by subscribing. Comes right to your mail box 52 times a year—a great big farm weekly, full of fine, friendly articles.

WILL TEST PULLMAN FARE BOOST.

The State Corporation Commission of Virginia on May 1st issued a rule against the Pullman Palace Car company, returnable on May 13, to show cause why the company should not be fined for raising its rates in Virginia without the knowledge or consent of the commission.

While the Corporation commission has no jurisdiction over interstate business, Major Alexander Forward, of the commission, said the body felt it to be its duty to issue the rule against the company regarding the raise of rates between points in Virginia.

Pullman sleeper and chair car rates advanced 20 per cent. on Friday night, April 30th, on all railroads of the country, the Interstate Commerce commission having overruled all protests. The minimum charge is 50 cents, plus four per cent war tax.

The increase is pronounced on short hauls. Passengers going from Richmond to Gordonsville have been paying 43 cents, but will now be charged 54 cents, including the war tax. To Ashland the rate was 25 cents. It is now 54 cents.

SUFFRAGE WINS!

Suffrage was revived in Delaware May 5th when the state Senate passed a ratification bill, 11 to 6. After rejecting a substitute offered by Senator Gormley, democrat, of Wilmington, providing for a referendum at the next election on the subject, the senate adopted the resolution of Senator Walker, republican, of Newcastle county, ratifying the Anthony suffrage amendment. Senators Brown and Palmer, both of Sussex county, were the only republicans who voted against ratification while Senator Price, of Kent county, was the only democrat to support the resolution. There was a big demonstration by suffragists in the senate chamber following the announcement of the vote. It is proposed to send the resolution to the House where speedy action is expected. Although the lower branch of the legislature defeated a similar resolution on April 1 by a vote of 22 to 9, suffragist leaders claim to have increased their strength sufficiently to assure the concurrence of the House in the Senate measure.

MIGRATORY BIRD TREATY IS VALID.

The Migratory Bird Treaty act of 1918, designed to carry out provisions of a treaty between this country and Great Britain for the protection of migratory birds, their nests and eggs, has been held constitutional by the U. S. Supreme Court. Justice Holmes who rendered the opinion, held that the treaty was also valid, and that the act was within the powers of Congress.

Justice Holmes in rendering the majority opinion, declared that "a national interest of very near the first magnitude" was involved, and that, except for the treaty and the statute, there soon might be no birds for any Power to deal with.

"We see nothing in the Constitution that compels the government to sit by while a food supply is cut off and the protectors of our forest and our crops are destroyed," Justice Holmes said. "It is not sufficient to rely upon the states. The reliance is vain, and, were it otherwise, the question is whether the United States is forbidden to act. We are of opinion that the treaty and the statute must be upheld."

This act carries with it heavy penalties and all persons are warned against killing or taking any migratory game and non-game or insectivorous birds or taking their eggs at any season.

This decision settles the question of doubt in the minds of a great many gunners throughout the United States. All employees have been advised to give the matter full publicity. Any person caught violating any of the provisions of this act need have no excuse.

TAX ON AUTOMOBILES BRINGS IN $1,400,000.

Together with the money now on hand and the payments already made by the secretary of the commonwealth to the auditor of public accounts, Virginia is richer by $1,400,000 by reason of the tax on automobiles. This was the report made recently by Chief Clerk Hayes, of the secretary's office, who has been working a large force with might and main to get the licenses out. The total number of licenses issued so far is about 105,000, though the numbers do not run consecutively, skips being made to keep the classifications—trucks and pleasure cars—separate. Applications are still coming in, the number averaging 150 daily. This means that the total number of cars in Virginia this year will not fall far short of 120,000. Cost of the license for the cars varies greatly, the cheapest for the lowly and ridiculed specimen—being a little more than $11. There are others that cost as high as $125—the large and powerful trucks carrying many tons of freight.

THE OLDER BOY AND HIS INTERESTS.

"No one subject has been more often discussed than that which some refer to as the 'Older Boy Problem,'" says Chief Scout Executive James E. West in his annual report on the Boy Scouts of America. "In all of our conferences much thought has been given to this subject, and I believe it is generally conceded that the problem is largely a question of leadership."

"There are innumerable cases where the interest of the boy is held in Scouting for a period of four or more years. Indeed, I recently met a troop in which there were 12 boys who were veteran scouts, and they were still intensely interested."

"There is some discussion throughout the field as to the advisability of some new program for older boys. In some places experiments have been made with the Scout reserve, and in another place they have organized the Scout legion. Many of us are making a study of this whole problem, and it is hoped that in the near future something tangible may be offered to the field to help scoutmasters in holding boys for a longer period of time."

"The most troublesome period in a boy's life is between the ages of 14 and 17, and it would add greatly to the value of the Scout program if a larger number of boys could be furnished with a program for their leisure time."

"Some thought has been given to the advisability of the organization of a Scout legion in order to attract the boy of 15 or 16 who possibly has not had an opportunity to join the Scout movement earlier in life, as well as to hold the boy of 15 or over who is in Scouting."

"I have suggested that a program might be developed responsive to the following addition to the Scout obligation:

"To maintain law and order by faithfully observing and supporting the duly constituted authorities in enforcing the laws and ordinances of the city and state in which I live, and by promoting a better understanding of the provisions of the Constitution of the United States Government and the principles of Americanism."

CROSSED OCEAN 38 TIMES ON ONE VESSEL

Wilson J. Morris has been visiting for a few days with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. E. P. Morris at their home on South Division street. Mr. Morris has recently been released from service on the U. S. troopship Leviathan, having served on that vessel from the time she made her first trip across the Atlantic until she went out of commission. Mr. Morris crossed the ocean 38 times while in service on this vessel, and during that service was promoted to the rank of chief petty officer.

Mr. and Mrs. J. Arthur Price and daughter Jeanne of this city have been the guests recently of Mrs. Price's parents, Mr. and Mrs. John H. Blades of Pocomoke City.

An Honorable Livelihood For The American Girl

For the girl or woman who must earn her own income, how much more satisfactory it is to have a profession—and a profession that carries with it the honorable distinction of service.

A trained nurse is not made over night. Her profession is acquired through study and training. But once earned, it is ever her own, which no whim of an employer or change of a system can ever take from her.

And—while the nurse is training she is being paid. It is a three years' course at the hospital, not book study alone, but actual helpful service that brings the student to her diploma and her profession.

We will gladly answer any and all questions in person or by mail, for the country needs nurses and we are prepared to train them.

Some Sound Advice To Boy and Girl Graduates

Girls Leaving School To Go Into The Business World Must Be Very Careful Of Their Associates, And Boys Must Be Honest And Diplomatic. Temptations And Critics Are Always On The Job.

DIGNITY A STRONG WEAPON.

(By Esther Dell.)

Within a few weeks many boys and girls throughout the country will don their best frocks and their best suits, their happiest smiles, their bashfulness and stage fright and will pass through that happy ordeal known as High school commencement exercises. High school graduation is a great event. It is the first occasion of its kind in the lives of the young people, and because it is the first, it is the biggest, the best and the happiest.

Now I just want to say a word to those boys and girls who read The Wicomico News, who will graduate from High school this spring. I was graduated from High school myself, long years ago, and I know all of the sensations which go and come with its anticipation. I know how you long for it, and how you dread it. I know how some of you are cramming with your studies in an effort to pass those final examinations and be eligible to graduate with those same boys and girls who have been your class mates throughout your public school life. I know what it means: the cutting down of pleasures and the burning of the midnight oil. I know all about it; for I was not one of those students to whom my lessons came easily. I worked hard for all I learned and now that I am older and realize how little I know, I wish I had worked even harder when I had the opportunity to learn. Someday, you boys and girls will doubtless feel the same way.

But this isn't just what I was going to talk with you about today. There are so many things to say about graduation and the things that go with that occasion and about the things you will do and not do, after your High school graduation, that it is hard for me to know just where to begin; but I am going to talk to you, especially you girls, about your lives after the High school days.

You are just beginning life! I say to you enjoy it. Take all the pleasure from life that you can absorb; but go in for those pleasures which are clean, moral and wholesome. Be careful to do this! If you are not careful, if you allow your self to be talked about because of your innocent indiscretions, no matter how innocent they really are, there will be people who will take great pleasure in attributing worse than bad motives to your actions; and when that is done, your youthful happiness will be quickly terminated.

I say have a good time but be careful how you do it.

Be careful of the company you keep. Pick and choose your friends. Do not let any one boy monopolize too much of your time until you are through your school days; and if you are not going on to college after High school, but are going into the business world, be PARTICULARLY careful. The girl in college is surrounded usually, by good moral environment. The girl who goes into the business world sets out upon her own resources and has no protecting influences except her early home training, and her love of the pure and good. Temptations will come thick and fast. They will come in all kinds of forms. Some of them, you will not recognize as temptations to do wrong. If you fall for those you cannot be blamed; but the others are the ones to be careful about.

Automobile rides, parties, lunches, etc., are some of the forms that your temptations will take. Be careful of them. Choose your companions carefully. I say this to you girls because I know what you are going to be confronted with.

Try to find employment with persons whose reputations have never been attacked. Then attend strictly to business and do not allow yourself to become too familiar with the boss or his clerks. Hold your distance. Be nice and kind and cheerful, do not be a grouch, but be DIGNIFIED.

If you stand upon your dignity as a woman you will find that your business and social associates will admire and respect you. The girl who allows herself to become familiar with her everyday associates soon becomes an old thing with them and they lose their respect and their admiration for her.

I say again that the girl who leaves school this spring and goes into the world of business is the girl who must be careful. It is right and proper that the girl should take her place in the business of the world; and it is unfortunate that she cannot be surrounded with the same protection which surrounds her brothers in her work; but it is the way of the world that as soon as a girl leaves her home and enters upon a career for herself, she puts herself in the limelight where her every act may be, and will be watched and where her every false step will be criticized.

Be careful girls, I plead with you.

To the boys who will graduate this spring and enter upon business careers I want to say this:

You will not be subjected to the temptations which your sisters will meet with; but you as MEN can do a great deal to shield the girls and women with whom you come in contact, from those temptations. If you are men you will do it. You will be kind and courteous to the women whom you find are your office or store or factory associates. You will remember that YOU have a Mother and sisters at home whom you love and respect and you will treat the mothers and sisters of other boys as you would like those other boys to treat the women whom you love.

As men, be men. In all things be honest and truthful. If you make a mistake, admit it—do not try to pass the buck to someone else. No matter what kind of a job you may have, work hard at it. Work for the interest of the boss. Forget your own individual interests and opinions. Do the work the way he wants it done, until you find that he is dishonest and then QUIT the job and get another.

I have known a number of boys who went into offices to work after leaving High school who attempted to change the long established systems employed in those offices. Now I am not saying the boys' ideas were not better than those which caused those office systems to be installed, but it didn't set well with the boss to have a boy just out of school come into his office and tell him he was wrong.

Just take your time boys! Do your work well and look about you. Store up in your memories all the things you see which you think might be improved upon, and then some day, after you have shown your employer that you believe his interests are your interests, go to him and tell him what you have seen and what you think of it. Be honest and manly in that discussion with him. Do not try to dominate the situation. Let him do that. You just confide in him your opinions and leave it to him to study over what you have said and use his best judgment in the matter.

Now I have preached quite a sermon haven't I?

I don't know whether I have given you any new ideas or not. The story I have told you is an old one, but it is ever good and ever true.

And I want to say this, if I have any friends among you young people who want to ask me for advice on any subject concerning your lives, I will do my best to be of honest assistance to you at all times.

4 MORE MEAT RECIPES

Pork, Parsnips and Carrots Make An Especially Pleasing Dinned Dish, When Properly Cooked.

(By Esther Dell.)

Stewed Beef Heart With Prunes.

1 beef heart
1 cup pitted prunes
About ½ cup flour
1 teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon pepper
Pour boiling water over beef heart. Let stand for 10 minutes. Trim off fat and arteries. Cut in pieces for stewing. Dredge with flour and brown in a little fat obtained by trying out fat which was cut off. Place in stew kettle and pour over it enough hot water to cover, add the prunes soaked and pitted, season with salt and pepper. Stew slowly till tender. Take care that it does not burn. Will serve eight people generously.

Chopped Beef Au Casserole.
1½ pounds clod of beef, ground
½ cup tomato relish
Tabasco sauce
1 can beets
Mix chopped beef with tomato relish. Add ¼ teaspoon tabasco sauce (more if desired). Season well with salt. Put in glass casserole and bake two hours, basting frequently with a high grade of table sauce. A few strips of bacon across the top of any meat loaf adds to its richness and improves flavor. Serve garnished with 1 can beets, quartered. Serves five people.

Fresh Pork, Parsnips and Carrots.
1 lb. pork, butt
4 large carrots
4 large parsnips
1 small red cabbage
Seasoning

Cook pork in piece 1½ hours. Cook vegetables in same kettle until soft. Remove from kettle and finish cooking meat. Cut up pork into thin slices. Arrange side by side down the middle of a large platter. Around the meat serve the cabbage quartered, and vegetables cut into lengths. Serve with high-grade meat relish.

Smothered Beef.
3 pounds of rump or clod
3 large onions sliced
3 tablespoons oil or drippings
2 tablespoons mild prepared mustard
Flour mixed with salt and pepper
1 teaspoon celery seed
1 cup strained tomatoes or ½ can tomato soup.

Dredge meat with flour. Brown well in heavy pan. Brown onions in oil; add mustard, celery seed and tomatoes. Pour this sauce over meat and cook slowly three hours or more on top of stove or six hours in a fireless cooker.

SOME OBSERVATIONS OF THE MAN ABOUT TOWN

He May Be Able To Save Enough Money To Buy A Strawberry Or Two This Season.

Here it is pretty close to the middle of May and the temperature has hovered down around that mark on the thermometer where it is usually found in October. It just seems to the Man About Town that the power which influences the seasons must have got things mixed up a little bit.

The Man About Town like many other men about town, several weeks ago, when the scent of spring was in the air and the sunshine was bright and balmy and when the robins and the blue birds began to sing their mating carols and all of those early spring things happened, fell in line with the general trend of things and donned his spring attire. That is, he donned the only spring attire he could afford to don in these days of high clothing costs—he continued to wear his last winter's suit and put on something under it a little more abbreviated than that which the winter weather seemed to call for; something known by three letters.

Then he sauntered forth from day to day, feeling that he was all dressed for the season of which the bards of old and the modern poets sing.

But alas! Just about that time the weather man got his wires crossed; and the Man About Town like every other man about town shivered and suffered. The mercury went down to the freezing point, the winds blew, the robins and the blue birds seemed to have travelled to southern climes, and it became necessary for The Man About Town to doff his only spring attire, and go back to those elongated garments which served so well earlier in the year to keep away the wintry blasts of Boreas.

The unfortunate part of the whole thing, however, is not the fact that the Man About Town is wearing his winter clothing at a season when he should be wearing his warmer weather garments and has visions of the necessity of buying a new cold weather outfit next fall as a consequence, but that the cold weather has caused such great loss to the farmers of the county.

Strawberries, those luscious sweets, so plentifully grown in this section, are said to be practically wiped out. Even the few which remain, it is said, will lack that delicious flavor which usually belongs to the Wicomico product, because of the chilling temperatures and the lack of warm sun rays, and will be sour and bitter.

Strawberries are a profitable crop as a rule in this section. Its elimination by cold weather and frost has cost The Man About Town his enjoyment of his favorite fruit, unless he can afford to buy a berry or two, say a week, when he is especially flush; but it has cost the farmers and the people of the county generally many thousands of dollars. Those berries which have been ruined by frost were to have been sold to city buyers at approximately 31 cents a quart—$10 for a crate of 32 quarts to be exact, and thousands of crates were to have been shipped. However, if the reports from many of the local strawberry centers can be relied upon, all of that is a thing of the past.

Another tough part of the very tough proposition is the fact that cucumbers and tomatoes seem to have been pinched by the cold weather too, and that the tiny peaches, pears and apples were frozen as they clung closely to their parent tree branches.

All of this will help to make the prices of those small quantities of fruits and early vegetables which escaped the freeze very high. In fact, reports gathered by the Man About Town seem to indicate that the prices charged for the small supply will simply soar to the skies. The demand will be heavy, the supply will be short. That means high prices.

So The Man About Town, discouraged with the prospect of not being financially able to enjoy his usual fillings of strawberry shortcake this summer, is hopefully looking forward to the saving of sufficient money with which to buy a strawberry or two once in a while during the season.

Doubtless because these will prove so difficult to get they will be the more highly relished by him. It is to be regretted though, that so many people will have to suffer because of the wiping out of the crop which promised to bring into Wicomico county such perfectly good money and so much of it this season.

Harsh physics react, weaken the bowels, will lead to chronic constipation. Doan's Regulets operate easily. 30c a box at all stores.—Adv't.

AUTO MEANS PASSING OF RURAL SCHOOLS

Trucks Are Used To Transport Country Pupils To Bigger Community Schools In All Parts of Country.

The little red school house on the hill, so romantically pictured in fiction, yet sadly inefficient as an educational institution, will be a thing of the past if the bill to be presented to congress to utilize United States mail trucks for transporting children to and from school in the rural districts is passed.

The object of the bill is to consolidate the educational facilities of the country districts, eliminating many of the school houses and thereby concentrating education in given districts with better school houses, higher paid teachers and consequently better education. This would be brought about, it is argued by adherents of this bill, by bringing the children to the school house instead of the school house to the children.

Already many of the smaller communities of the country have put into actual practice through private community enterprise the fundamental idea back of the bill. Two examples in California are the El Cajon Union High school and the Anaheim Union High school, which were established for the use of residents in a number of the nearby towns.

A one-ton Federal was purchased for the El Cajon school with a special bus body. Thirty-one passengers can be comfortably seated in it. The truck makes two trips a day, each eight miles.

The Anaheim Union High school, which covers an even larger territory, is operating a fleet of several Federal trucks with much the same body construction.

A number of the schools are using adaptable bodies, which do other work on contract during that part of the day when not occupied with their school trips and on Saturdays. Other lines are operated by farmers co-operative trucking companies, which handle the transportation of the pupils at a fixed rate per pupil or per family.

Regardless of the weather, the intense heat or the biting cold, these trucks are bringing a higher type of education to the very doors of the rural community dwellers.

BOY SCOUTS THE PARENTS CABINET

City Has Three Troops Of The Organization To Date And Recruits Are Rapidly Enlisting For Work.

The Parent's Cabinet.

The parent of a growing boy has one of the hardest administrative positions in the world. To train that abounding energy so that it shall not work injury to the boy himself or to others needs the best thought of all human minds. Few parents feel equal to the task. They must feed and clothe the boy. While they are otherwise engaged the boy is also otherwise engaged.

The parent is much assisted by the school teacher and it is of exceeding help and comfort to wise parents that of late years the parent-teacher associations have brought closer contact and better understanding.

The parent of the growing boy should add the scoutmaster to his acquaintance, make a friend of him as the leader of that boy. The school teacher and the scoutmaster make a parent cabinet for wholesome counsel and advice which can scarcely be excelled. As you keep your boy in school so make him a scout. It will ease the burdens and increase the joys of your own home life.

The Opportunity Is At Home.

Three troops of Boy Scouts are already organized in this city. One of them is certainly within reach of your boy. It will cost him 25 cents to register. Beyond that he is taught to earn the money he needs for scouting, which is never very much, however, and not at all beyond his earning power. Scouting will help your boy to become what you want him to be, what he wants to be, and what the world needs him to be.

Enroll your boy therefore at once as a scout. You will find that most boys are keen to become scouts. If by any chance your boy is not, buy a scout handbook at the Salisbury headquarters, and yet him to reading it.

You need not worry in no way about the scout work being anything but beneficial for him as these articles have shown. The scout movement is endorsed without qualification by the leading educators, business men and pastors, both locally and nationally. Increase your cabinet and counsel as a parent by this contact for your boy at once.

The Scout Law.

In the preceding article we showed you what a boy had to know and do in becoming a scout and in continuing his work as one. Now in this, the concluding article of this series furnished by The Wicomico News for the information of the public and especially of parents, we propose to set forth the scout law which shows the things a boy promises "on his honor" to obey when he takes the Scout oath.

1. A Scout is Trustworthy.

A scout's honor is to be trusted. If he were to violate his honor by telling a lie, or by cheating, or by not doing exactly a given task, when trusted on his honor, he may be directed to hand over his scout badge.

2. A Scout is Loyal.

He is loyal to all to whom loyalty is due, his scout leader, his home and parents and country.

3. A Scout is Helpful.

He must be prepared at any time to save life, help injured persons, and share the home duties. He must do at least one good turn to somebody every day.

4. A Scout is Friendly.

He is a friend to all and a brother to every other scout.

5. A Scout is Courteous.

He is polite to all, especially to women, children, old people, and the weak and helpless. He must not take pay for being helpful or courteous.

6. A Scout is Kind.

He is a friend to animals. He will not kill nor hurt any living creature needlessly, but will strive to save and protect all harmless life.

7. A Scout is Obedient.

He obeys his parents, scoutmaster, patrol leader, and all other duly constituted authorities.

8. A Scout is Cheerful.

He smiles whenever he can. His obedience to orders is prompt and cheery. He never shirks nor grumbles at hardships.

9. A Scout is Thrifty.

He does not wantonly destroy property. He works faithfully, wastes nothing, and makes the best use of his opportunities. He saves his money so that he may pay his own way, be generous to those in need, and helpful to worthy objects.

He may work for pay but he must not receive tips for courtesies or good turns.

10. A Scout is Brave.

He has the courage to face danger in spite of fear and to stand up for the right against the coaxings of friends or the jeers or threats of enemies, and defeat does not down him.

11. A Scout is Clean.

He keeps clean in body and thought, stands for clean speech, clean sport, clean habits and travels with a clean record.

12. A Scout is Reverent.

He is reverent toward God. He is faithful in his religious duties, and respects the convictions of others in matters of custom and religion.

Are These The Things?

Are these the things you want your boy to know and be?

They are the things he learns to do and be as a scout.

Why not get your boy started as a scout at once?

Full information may be obtained at the Salisbury scout headquarters, if not from the pastor of your church.

These are things that the Boy Scouts mean in Salisbury.

Make your boy a scout.

Let your boy learn to follow the Scout Law, and when he becomes a man he will respect the law of democracy more and be a better man and a better citizen.

Make your boy a scout.

ON WHICH SIDE DO YOU STAND?

(The Manufacturers' Record.)

The liquor traffic has wrecked more lives than war. It has brought more sorrows and sufferings to women and children than all the other curses which the devil has fastened upon mankind.

Its prosperity has been fertilized by the tears of womanhood; it was founded on broken hearts, on wrecked bodies and eternally damned souls.

It has been the creator and upholder of rotten politics.

It has helped to fill the dens of vice, and it has encouraged immorality that it might thereby increase its accursed profits.

It was upheld by and its influence upheld houses of ill-fame as instigators of liquor consumption and all other body and soul-destroying agencies of hell.

It fed the fires of lust that it might fatten on the sin it created.

It filled the land with saloons, the hotbeds of personal and political corruption, which were the doors that led straight down to ruin here and to hell hereafter.

Indeed, it turned millions of homes into hells.

It brutalized its agents and damned its followers.

It stretched out its slimy, stinking, rotten hands into the political life of the nation.

It browbeat or bulldozed or bribed legislators and business men alike.

It sought to destroy even the banks whose officials were opposed to its hell-born power.

The slave trade of olden days, in its vilest forms, when in order to destroy all evidence the miserable wretches were dumped overboard to drown when the slave ship was pursued by British cruisers, was angelic in character as compared with the liquor traffic.

If every slave ever held in captivity had been treated as inhumanly as were some by brutish masters, the sufferings of all would have been mild as compared with the monster of the liquor traffic.

Germany's vilest crimes were no worse than the work of this hell-born, hell-directed liquor business.

And yet when the nation had loosened its clutches, when its stranglehold on the morality and the political safety of the country had been almost broken, it once more lifts its tiger-like spirit that it may again suck the nation's morality and political honor.

Once more the harlots, the whores-mongers, the liars, the touts, the race-track gamblers, the licentious of all classes unite to restore the reign of this kind of death who gloats over ruined bodies and wrecked souls.

And to their ever-lasting shame some men who profess to love honor and virtue, men who do not want to see their sons and daughters the victims of this licentious power, are standing on the side of the evil forces arrayed against individual and national morality. Surely they must be ashamed of their co-workers and co-partners.

When in the great judgment day they stand with uncovered souls before Almighty God, how many of them will be forced to see pass before them in awful agony the long procession of souls eternally damned because of their influence in behalf of the liquor traffic! How many thru eternity will hear the wail of broken-hearted women and the cry of suffering children whose husbands and fathers were led to ruin by the work of these so-called men of respectability! Of some it shall be said, "And in hell he lifted up his eyes."

Causes Machine Real Anxiety.

One of Salisbury's most prominent and best informed citizens gives his opinion of the status of the Democratic machine in the following interview to The News:

"There is a new Richmond in the field of politics in Wicomico county and incidentally, in the First Congressional district. The wonderful fight made by Hilton W. Robertson in the Democratic primaries for the nomination for Congress a few days ago brings to mind the fact that Democratic politics have certainly undergone a great change on the Eastern Shore. For a man who was at little known to the rank and file of the voters as was Mr. Robertson, his success not only in Wicomico but in every other county in the First Congressional district cannot be classed otherwise than phenomenal. He made a fight against a member of one of the oldest Eastern Shore families and a young man prominent both in law and politics, who made a wonderful run in his own judicial circuit for the position of chief judge and to the average mind, it was thought that when Mr. Goldsborough made his announcement as a candidate for Congress in the Democratic primaries that he would have a walk-over.

"A few months ago, when Mr. Robertson announced the fact that he would be a candidate for Congress, his aspirations really were laughed at by most of the politicians, and the wise ones said that he would make such a poor showing as to be ashamed of himself after the votes were counted; but the reverse happened. He swept everything before him not only in his own county of Wicomico but throughout the district, and has thus overturned and put into discord calculations of all the politicians and the Democratic organizations in the nine counties on the Eastern Shore came out of the fight very much bruised and battered.

"For 25 years, the John Walter Smith political machine in the First Congressional district has been considered as being unbeatable and every candidate whom Smith and his friends have backed during all these years has always been successful in the primaries, as his machine controlled with such a potent hand the destinies of the Democratic party in this section of the state as to make it impossible for an outsider to get a look into the inner circle. It now begins to look, however, as if the Smith grip on the voters in the First Congressional district has been really broken and that for the future the politicians of the old state machine cannot calculate with any degree of certainty on what is to happen to them either in the primaries or in the general elections.

It is a foregone conclusion that Mr. Robertson's stand on the Volstead act had a great deal to do with his success in getting such a large vote in the recent primaries. While the Eastern Shore counties were among the first to enact prohibition legislation, and have for years been considered the real dry section of Maryland, there seemed to be a general revolt against the prohibition legislation passed by Congress and much to the surprise of a great many temperance inclined people and notwithstanding the fact that the churches and ministers throughout the First Congressional district made a hard fight against Mr. Robertson, it is believed by those who have studied the figures that he won his great popularity in the recent primaries principally because he stood as a wet candidate. This brings to mind the fact that in the coming Congressional and Senatorial fight next November this issue is bound to cut quite a figure in the contest, and unless the church people and the temperance people organize much more solidly than they have ever done in the past, there is a possibility that something may happen next November which would give Maryland two Republican United States senators instead of one as at present.

"There is an old saying that every dog has his day, both in politics and in all other walks of life and while Senator Smith and his organization has had a most wonderfully successful career in Maryland politics for the past 25 years, figures and facts seem to prove that the old machine is tottering and ready to fall to pieces, and this fact may have contributed largely to the success of Mr. Robertson in his recent fight.

"This brings to mind the fact that there is a new heaven in the loaf of politics, not only in Wicomico county but through the entire first Congressional district and in fact, throughout the state, and if Senator Smith and his machine should meet defeat next November it will mean that there will be an entire new alignment politically throughout the entire state. Here in Wicomico county, where the old Democratic machine seems to have been gradually disintegrating for several years, new leaders must come to the front if the party is to be saved as the dominant party, but there are many who believe that there is a wonderful lack of the right kind of material from which to make these leaders and many people are looking forward to the general election for county offices next year with a belief that comparing the very close call which the Democratic party has had in this county for several years past, that the Republicans if they are shrewd enough to nominate the proper kind of man might have a big chance of getting hold of some of the best paying offices in the county at that time.

"There seems to be but little doubt that Mr. Robertson and his organization will have a great deal to say and a great deal to do with Democratic politics in Wicomico for sometime to come as he has made himself felt both in business and political circles since he returned to Wicomico to make his home. The fact that Mr. Robertson soon after his return here took hold of a defunct old shipyard and has built it up into a great commmercial enterprise giving employment to several hundred men at a fine wage scale, has shown his ability to handle business propositions in a way which impressed the people with the fact that he was above the ordinary individual and the manner in which he organized his last political campaign and the success by which he brought this campaign to a conclusion is very strong evidence that if Mr. Robertson decides that he desires to become a political factor in Wicomico, that he has gone a long way to prove his ability and that his future movements will be looked upon and carefully watched by other aspirants for leadership with much temerity and misgivings.

"And so the political kaleidoscope turns and the old order of things pass out and new men and new ideas take their place and have their bearing on the future of the community. Mr. Robertson's great success with his first shot out of the box has certainly disturbed and caused panic in the old Democratic organization in Wicomico to such an extent that the old leaders are now sitting up and are much alarmed over the situation. Like the fellow who is approaching a railroad track they "stop, look and listen" to see if it is possible for them to fathom what is in store for them for the future. That they have lost their hold on the rank and file of the voters in their own party seems to be a foregone conclusion. Whether Mr. Robertson and his new organization can corral this vote and meet it successfully is a mooted question which only the future can decide, but certainly at the present time, it would seem that there is such a lack of certainty of election surrounding the Democratic ballot box in old Wicomico as to cause those who are aspiring to fill the various fat places which will be selected next year, to hesitate before rushing in where "angels fear to tread."

Periodic Billious Attacks.

Persons subject to bilious attacks at regular intervals know about when to expect an attack. They find that they have no desire for food when an attack is due but usually eat because it is meal time. Skip one meal and take three of Chamberlain's Tablets and you may be able to avoid the attack. Persons subject to periodic bilious attacks should not drink tea or coffee at any time. —Advt. *

Unfortunate Sermon.

A prison chaplain, new to his duties congratulated his audience in the prison chapel upon the largeness of the congregation. Still another prison chaplain, known for his bluntness of speech, began his address—it was carefully typewritten and had been delivered in a federal prison in a southern state—by apologizing for his absence the Sunday previously, stating, "I was busy performing the last offices to a person who occupied a place in this congregation a few weeks ago, but now has passed away, via the chair, to the presence of his Maker."

His Girl.

During a visit to a girl friend of mine in another city I was kind to a half witted fellow there, and he immediately conceived a great liking for me. Several months later while visiting there again I attended a dance, when this fellow came up to me during a dance and in a loud voice, easily heard all over the place, said, "O, I knew who you are; you're my girl," and proceeded to follow me around the rest of the evening.—Exchange.

Arbitrary "Ton Rating" of Trucks Replaced by Practical Method

EVER since the first truck appeared on our streets you have seen trucks labeled $\frac{1}{2}$ ton, 1 ton, 2, 3, 5, or 6—labeled according to the opinions of the factories which made them.

We say "opinions" because—

First, there never has been an official standard by which a truck had to be rated.

Second, no manufacturer knows enough about the job each truck must do, to rate it intelligently.

Third, there are 70 different makes of so-called 2-ton trucks on the market today, and yet no two have identical specifications.

A few good trucks might carry their rated loads through the Rocky Mountains for ten years or more.

While poor trucks may wear out with the same load in flat country in three years or less.

PACKARD MOTOR CAR CO. OF BALTIMORE

CHARLES AND MOUNT ROYAL AVENUE
BALTIMORE, MARYLAND

Baltimore, April 17, 1920.

Packard Motor Car Co.,
Charles & Mt. Royal Ave.,
Baltimore, Md.

Gentlemen:

Several months ago we found our transportation equipment insufficient to take care of our needs. A representative of your organization made a survey of our hauling problem and recommended the size truck "to fit the job."

Material handled and road conditions were considered in determining the unit to be used. Today we find the trucks installed on the basis of Packard Scientific Transportation Engineering to be of the proper size and properly equipped for our work.

Yours very truly,
THE JAMES ROBERTSON MFG. CO.
J. P. McPhail, V. P.

Putting a ton rating on trucks at the factories is probably the most confusing and arbitrary custom in the truck industry.

It is unfair to the maker of good trucks and a false basis for the buyer of any truck to judge prices by.

WE believe a truck should be fitted to its job by men who know all the conditions under which it is to operate, as well as the quality and service built into the truck itself.

Hereafter Packard trucks will not be rated at the Packard factory.

Our men here will make an analysis of each hauling problem and recommend the Packard unit which the specific job requires. This is the practical method.

The decision to do away with factory ton rating comes as a result of several years of successful transportation engineering experience with our new method.

Our organization is at your service.

Little Girl, Big Boy And The Garden Elf

(Written for the United States School Garden Army, Bureau of Education, Department of the Interior.)

The Children and Mr. Noah Webster.

"Good morning, Learned Sir," said the Green Elf Man as he bowed to the square, chunky little man with the thin legs and arms, and the student's cap. "You honor us with your presence."

"Good-morning, my friends," said the Dictionary Man who was very gracious, "I thought I would take the air. I am something of a stay-in-doors, but I believe in fresh air. Why, I keep a mem-o-ran-dum of these words constantly by me. You will find 'Air' in the 'A's' and 'Fresh' in the 'F's.' Two very necessary things for young people as well as old. I have a crick in my back. Someone close about taking pains to straighten it out, and I have to bear pain and because someone was careless. I treat books rever-ent-ly because they contain the souls of men."

The children looked bewildered, but at last Big-Boy said, "You mean that the men who write the books put so much between the covers that they are never really away but speak to us each time we go to them for advice or pleasure?"

"You are a very learned boy," said the Elf Man, "I am proud of your acquaintance."

"He knows lots and lots," said Little-Girl proudly.

"Oh, what I know," explained Big-Boy modestly, "I was taught at school. Our teacher explains things to us, and she teaches us the way to express ourselves. She tells us not to be afraid to use big words in the proper place because she says we shall never learn younger."

The Dictionary Man was much interested. "Now ben-e-fac-tor for instance," he said, "is a big word. What does it mean?"

The Little-Girl didn't know. Big-Boy wasn't quite sure about it. The Elf Man thought it was a neck muffer.

The Dictionary Man shook his head. "Do you all give up?" he asked, proud to be able to show his su-pe-rior knowledge.

"Yes," said the Little-Girl. "Y-e-a," said Big-Boy slowly—he didn't like to be gotten the better of by a word that he should have known.

The Dictionary Man rustled his leaves—which was his way of laughing.

"Well, my dear, it means one who confers a benefit, according to my friend, Mr. Noah Webster. All children who raise food and tend gardens helpfully confer a benefit on others. Mr. Webster is my benefactor. He wrote my book. Will you remember?"

The children declared they would indeed.

"Who was Mr. Noah Webster?" asked the Elf Man, "Was he the owner of the ark?"

Little-Girl and Big-Boy laughed merrily, when the Elf Man asked this question, but the Dictionary Man said, "I am surprised at you children, the Elf Man is just beginning his education."

"We are so sorry," said the children, "But the Elf Man knows lots and lots of garden secrets. He knows all about 'green things a-growing.' He knows all about the Really-truly-garden-land. Dear little Elf Man, tell us more about the garden."

The Elf Man stood proudly on his very tip-toes, and seemed to grow taller with the importance of the moment. "I will tell you the story of one of your garden neighbors," he said, "the lowly Doodle Bug."—By Cecelia Reynolds Robertson. (To be continued).

STATE COLLEGE NOW STATE UNIVERSITY

Last Legislature Took Steps Necessary To Give Maryland State College Higher Standing.

House bill 592 has been signed by the governor of Maryland, and, on July the first, Maryland State college will become a university under the name of, according to the bill, the University of Maryland. This means that the school is finally to achieve the name of university, a recognition of the fact that has existed for several years, that this college is organized on a university basis. For the old University of Maryland it means new life for the Medical school.

The regents of the University of Maryland and the trustees of Maryland state reached an agreement on this merger some time ago, and by Speaker Tydings' active work the bill was passed by the House of Delegates and Senate. The university turns over all its assets to the trustees of State, who will become the board of regents of the new University of Maryland, under the leadership of State's president. The University of Maryland will bring the schools of medicine, law, dentistry and pharmacy to unite with the schools of agriculture, chemistry, education, engineering and mechanic arts, home economics, liberal arts and graduate school of the State college, forming a well-rounded educational unit.

The main incentive to the merger on the part of the old University of Maryland was the poor financial condition of the medical school. Under the new arrangement more state aid will probably be granted and the way will be open for private bequests and for aid from the endowment and research funds of foundations for scientific research and medical investigation work. The other schools of the university were strong, but agreed to come into the merger for the sake of unity. These departments will be allowed their own governing body and will have charge of the courses, teachers and professors' compensation, if they so desire. The benefits that State will derive are a high university standing, and an added prestige. Maryland as a whole will benefit because a central state controlled university will offer all branches of education at the lowest possible cost to the citizens of the state. By this means Maryland finally has gained a national state-controlled institution for higher education, along the lines of the big western state universities that offers a continuous course thru public schools, and high schools thru the state university. This is the crowning achievement for Maryland's educational system, and will certainly mean much to the state as a whole in the future.

STATE FAIR TO RAISE ITS PRICES

Admission Which For Years Has Been 50 Cents Will Be Advanced To 75 Cents This Year.

The high cost of living these days, makes every one with the smallest inclination towards helping out the family purse, think of a garden. There is the exercise it affords, the interest that is centered in the work during the process of cultivation and the crops that are eagerly waited for and to the far calculating person, the monetary saving through the raising of produce and vegetables to supplement the table.

The vegetable department at the Delaware State fair, which will be held at Elsmere, September 6 to 10 this year, it is believed will easily surpass the displays of other years. More attention will be paid to exhibitors stuff, to see that they are exhibited to the best possible advantage, and every courtesy paid those who exhibit. Every encouragement will be given to make the standard even higher than of other years. The exhibit has always been one of the most attractive ones and from reports of those preparing to show their skill as gardeners and farmers, the display will be a record over before.

This year the classes are being offered. They are a departure from the usual course and are designed to give a class for professional gardeners only. This will be a display of vegetables grown by gardeners who are experts in that line. Second—a class for the farmer only.

This will include that which he raises on his farm, vegetables, fruit, grain and forage. These classes are explained more fully in the premium list. The premium list has been revised and the management feels that it embraces all the varieties of vegetables that are grown in this state and the neighboring country.

A competent judge will pass upon these exhibits and will gladly explain to any farmer or kitchen gardener how to improve his crops if the man is desirous of information.

The directors of the State fair are seriously considering the advisability of making the entrance fee to the fair grounds this year 75 cents. In other years the admission has been 50 cents, but the doubling of the expenses incidental to the conduct of the fair makes it practically a necessity to increase the admission price. All expenses are higher by about 75 per cent this year than last, and even should this step be decided upon, the receipts from admissions would not be as large as last year.

PIFFLE FOR CALLOW YOUTH

Advice Handed Out by Successful Business Men Is to Use a Slang Phrase, Bunk.

A successful lumber merchant has been giving a newspaper interviewer a few of the mental wrinkles that influenced him in the making of money. Here are some of them:

"If your initials spell a word it means you will be rich."

"If, on the other hand, you mend a garment while wearing it, you will always be poor."

"If your right hand itches it is a sign that you will receive money. If your left hand itches you will spend it. This is because right begins with R and L stands for receive, while L stands for let go."

"When you see a shooting star you should say 'money.' As many times as you are able to say the word during the fall of the star, so many extra dollars will you have in your pocket as a result."

Helpful words, aren't they? Well, they are no better and no worse than the bulk of the talk handed out by successful men for the guidance of their fellows—that is, in the matter of making money. The rich or successful business man doesn't disclose his real secrets if he has any—though he often attends club lunches or dinners and makes a speech pretending to do so.—Philadelphia Record.

One To Convince The Most Skeptical Salisbury Reader.

The test of time is the test that counts. Doan's Kidney Pills have made their reputation by effective action. The following case is typical. Salisbury residents should be convinced.

The testimony is confirmed—the proof complete. Testimony like this cannot be ignored.

Mrs. Wm. E. Wells, 410 Martin St., Salisbury, says: "I was very weak and everything I did was a burden. I suffered from rheumatic pains between my shoulders, my head ached nearly all the time and I was often dizzy. Finally I began taking Doan's Kidney Pills and they brought me wonderful relief."

OVER SEVEN YEARS LATER Mrs. Wells said: "I recommend Doan's Kidney Pills as highly as ever. Whenever I have the least trouble with my back, I take Doan's and get relief. I buy this medicine at White & Leonard's Drug Store and find no praise too strong for it."

Price 60c. at all dealers. Don't simply ask for a kidney remedy—get Doan's Kidney Pills—the same that Mrs. Wells had. Foster-Milburn Co., Mfrs., Buffalo, N. Y.—Adv't.

Keel and wife to the Eastern Shore Warehouse Company, dated March 22nd, 1919, and recorded among the Land Records of Wicomico County, Maryland, in Liber J. C. K., No. 112, Folio 468, default having been made in the said mortgage, and by and with the approval of the United States District Court for the District of Maryland, the undersigned will offer for sale AT ELEVEN O'CLOCK A. M.

Tuesday, May 25th, 1920

ON THE PREMISES, all the interest of the said William R. Keel and Annie R. Keel, his wife, in and to the following real estate which is improved by a modern up-to-date and complete canning factory, all those lots or parcels of land situated at Rockawalkin, Salisbury Election District, Wicomico County, Maryland, having a frontage of seventy (70) yards on the East side of the county road leading from Rockawalkin Station to the State High Way and binding upon the North side of the right of way of the B. & A. Railway Company, for a distance of two hundred ten (210) yards, containing three (3) acres of land, more or less, being the same land conveyed to the said William R. Keel by Annie B. Roberts, by deed, dated February 22nd, 1919, and recorded among the Land Records, aforesaid, in Liber J. C. K., No. 112, Folio 230, reference to which deed is hereby made for a more complete description of the said property.

Terms of Sale—Cash.

The property will be sold free of all liens.
FREDERICK H. FLETCHER,
Attorney named in the Mortgage.
NOTE:

At the same time the Trustees in Bankruptcy will offer for sale all the contents of the above canning factory, consisting of machinery, etc., so that the purchaser has the chance to buy one of the most modern up-to-date and completely equipped canneries, located directly on the State Road and at a railroad station.
May 6-3t. 161.

Sheriff's Sale.

Under and by virtue of a writ of fieri facias issued out of the Circuit Court for Wicomico County and State of Maryland, at the instance and for the use of the E. S. Adkins & Company, a corporation, against the goods and chattels, land and tenements of Levin F. Hopkins and to me directed, I have levied upon, seized and taken into execution all the right, title, interest, claim and demand of the said Levin F. Hopkins in and to all that lot or parcel of land situate in Salisbury Election District of Wicomico County and State of Maryland, and lying and binding the southwest side of Wicomico Street and the northwest side of Beauchamp Street in the City of Salisbury, and adjoining the property of Otis Lloyd on the northwest and the property of Wesley Kibble on the southwest, containing, approximately, one acre of land and being the property conveyed to Levin F. Hopkins by Elizabeth Polk, et al. by deed dated February 26th, 1904, and recorded in Liber E. A. T., No. 39, Folio 131, together with all improvements thereon.
I hereby give notice that on SATURDAY THE 29th DAY OF MAY 1920, at the Hour of 3 o'clock, P.M.,

I shall sell the above described property at the Court House door in Salisbury, Wicomico County, Maryland, to the highest bidder for cash to satisfy the aforesaid writ and costs.

PEOPLE SEEM TO WANT IGNORANCE

They Are Satisfied That County Should Rank Third From Last in Maryland in Point of Literacy.

A close study of the figures giving the result of the recent defeat of the school bond issue in Wicomico county shows very conclusively that the sentiment here against bonding the county for permanent improvements is exceedingly strong. The fact that the bond issue was defeated by more than three to one in the recent election makes it an almost hopeless proposition for the future and it is not likely that another opportunity will be given the people of the county to vote on the subject of school improvements for many years to come.

During the campaign, those who had charge of the bond issue fight brought to the front facts and figures sufficiently strong to have induced the people to vote in favor of the bonds if they had any such inclination. Not only was it shown that hundreds of school children in Wicomico were not getting school facilities, but that conditions were gradually growing worse year by year and the County Commissioners find it impossible to provide sufficient funds from the direct levy to meet the requirements which are necessary to give the growing population the schooling which it should have. When one considers that Wicomico county stands almost at the very lowest notch of illiteracy throughout the state there only being two counties below Wicomico, it is really a disgrace to the intelligence and manhood of this community that the bond issue was so thoroughly snowed under.

Now the question of providing for the future of the public schools of Wicomico county is one which the County Commissioners in their official capacity should consider most earnestly. Speaking on this subject, one of our most prominent citizens said to the writer: "It is to be hoped that the County Commissioners will not raise the tax rate in Wicomico county another cent to provide more money for the public schools. The people have spoken at the ballot box and they have decided that they do not desire any better school facilities than they have at present. Therefore, the County Commissioners should put a stop to the methods which have been pursued for several years by trying to get new school houses out of the general levy and thus create deficiencies in their appropriation, having run up into the thousands of dollars each year. If the people do not want better schools and are not willing to pay for them by a proper financial solution, then by all means let us run the schools as long as the present appropriation made by the County Commissioners will provide, and then close them up until the next school year. In other words, let the people have a taste of their own medicine and if the children go uneducated, which is to be deplored, it will be their fault and not the fault of the County Commissioners or of the School board and just so long as the commissioners keep on raising the tax rate year by year for the purpose of trying to make these permanent improvements by direct taxation, instead of by bonding, the people will never wake up to the direct situation and it will be impossible to pass a bond issue for the next 25 years for any permanent improvement. The only way to deal with a subject like this is to give the people what they want; and if they want ignorance, let them have it. I venture the assertion that before long they will wake up to the fact of their mistake, and will be willing to vote for a bond issue which will insure the proper education of their children and of their children's children. "Wicomico county now has one of the largest tax rates of any county in Maryland and it is certainly high time for our commissioners to stop trying to meet the deficiencies caused by the fact that the people generally will not rise to their responsibility and aid in the progress of this community." M. V. B.

Tooth Puller's Bad Reputation.
"To lie like a tooth puller" is in Le Roux de Lincy's "Book of French Proverbs" (Paris 1859), quoted from the "Dictionary of the French Academy" (1835). The tooth puller in those days was often a wandering mountebank who drew a crowd by telling Rabelaisian stories and indulging in horseplay. He sold quack medicines, and, of course, lied prodigiously. Lannelongue's explanation of the origin is more amusing, though it is so circumstantial that it breeds suspicion. Furthermore—and this is conclusive—"to lie like a tooth drawer" is in Phillibert Joseph Le Roux's "Dictionnaire Comique" (Amsterdam 1718) with this comment, "No one lies more outrageously than a tooth drawer, who promises not to hurt, which is not possible." And Le Roux quotes Poissone's one act play, "The Basque Poet" (1668), "But all of you lie like lie tooth pullers."

Flow of Language.
A colored preacher, one of the men who are never at a loss for words, was commending to his congregation one of the organs of the church, and this is how he did it: "The missionary bulletin of this church needs subscribers. It is young and unfinancial, but through the instrumentality of backbone and grit it will become an ideal. It was ushered into existence out of purely innocent contemplation of moral and religious good, which would, in all probability, result from carefully agitated principles of righteousness. The bulletin will be observed mingling in social convolutions to furnish with sheaves of harvests of those reasonable products common to social contingencies. The tone of the whole will be missionary work."

A CALL TO THE YOUNG WOMEN OF MARYLAND

FLORENCE NIGHTINGALE CEN-TENARY BEING CELEBRATED IN BALTIMORE THIS WEEK.

Under The Auspices Of The Maryland
State Association Of Graduate Nurses.

GRADUATE NURSES ARE ALL HELPING.

Through emphasizing the life work of Florence Nightingale and her wonderful contribution toward alleviating suffering by her nursing and her revolutionizing of the care of the sick, the Maryland State Association of Graduate Nurses, in the celebration this week of the centenary of this remarkable woman is hoping to stir up such interest throughout the state in the nursing profession as will react toward increasing the number of young women who will take up this profession as their life work. Wednesday, May 12th, is the anniversary of Florence Nightingale's birth and it is on this date that the celebration is to take place. It will be held in Baltimore and representatives of the nursing profession in every county of the state as well as of the various nursing institutions of the city will participate.

Throughout the counties the superintendents of the hospitals and training schools, are taking a keen interest in the celebration and in the effort to pay fitting tribute to the memory of the "first trained nurse," while at the same time bringing home to the young women of their neighborhoods the advantages as well as the opportunity for real service to humanity to be found in nursing.

The Graduate Nurses' Association has sent out invitations very generally for the celebration which takes place in the Associate Congregational Church, Preston street and Maryland avenue. Dr. William H. Welch will preside. Dr. Howard A. Kelly will make the address and other members of the Medical and Chirurgical Faculty of Maryland are to participate. In addition to the members of the nurses' organizations. The church is to be decorated for the occasion, and a feature of the observance will be the showing of lantern pictures of scenes and incidents in the life of Florence Nightingale and in the life and duties of nurses.

In charge of the arrangements is a committee representing the Nurses Association, the officers of which are: Miss E. M. Lawler, of Johns Hopkins Hospital, president; Miss Jane E. Nash, Church Home and Infirmary, and Miss Eleanor Evans, Union Protestant Infirmary, vice presidents; Miss Sarah F. Martin, secretary, and Miss Bernice V. Connor, treasurer.

The graduating classes—the graduates—the Public Health Nurses—Army Nurses and as many other nursing groups as we may have from the schools of nursing throughout the state will attend in uniform and form in procession, which will be one of the most interesting features of the celebration.

The idea of those in charge of the arrangements for the celebration is that both the training schools and the nursing organizations need primarily a better public understanding of their work. The training schools throughout Maryland have a second vital interest which is particularly important at the present time—which is to bring before the public "Nursing as a Profession", and to urge young women to see the opportunities in the field of nursing.

It is felt that the returns from the Nightingale centenary can scarcely fail to be considerable, both in the shape of a public better informed concerning the work of Schools of Nursing and Nursing organizations, and therefore more responsive to appeals for larger numbers of desirable recruits to the training schools.

Florence Nightingale was born at Florence, Italy. At the age of thirty-two she began her nursing career, studying hospitals and nursing methods in Great Britain, France, Germany, Belgium and Italy, and was appointed superintendent of a private hospital in London in 1853. At the outbreak of the Crimean War she was selected by Sir Sidney Herbert, Secretary of War, to superintend hospitals at the front. In October, 1854, she went to the Crimea taking charge of 38 nurses. In two months she had transformed the hospital, secured supplies, established sanitation, and reduced the death-rate from forty-two to two per cent. She returned to England at the end of the war, July, 1856.

It was from this beginning that Florence Nightingale went forward to her wonderful life of organization and teaching which finds its ultimate fruit in the day to day nursing in the hospitals and sick rooms of the world to day; and has its echo in the praises and blessings which the countless number of sufferers as well as the soldiers of the Wars of more modern times shower upon the followers of the "Lady with a lamp."

She died in 1910 at the age of ninety years.

FROST DAMAGES THE BERRY CROP

Freezing Temperature On Wednesday Night Cost County Thousands Of Dollars In Berries.

According to reports received from all sections of Wilcomico county within the last few days, the low temperatures which prevailed in this section on Tuesday and Wednesday of last week, played havoc with the crops of strawberries and cucumbers which bring annually annually to the county's farmers, thousands of dollars.

The mercury on Wednesday night hovered just below the freezing mark and on Thursday morning every standing pool of water was covered with a skim of ice.

Reports from Siloam and from Mardela sections tell the story that strawberry plants already in blossom were wiped out by the frost. From Mardela it is also reported that the young cucumber plants in that section are killed. From many other sections it is reported that tomato plants set out in the fields within the week or ten days, are killed.

So heavy was the frost on Wednesday night that it penetrated through the trees in the woods and killed the young grass.

Not for many years has there been such cold weather in May as was experienced here last week. The apple, peach and pear crops are also reported as seriously affected. It is estimated that the loss to the county in small fruits and early vegetables has run into the hundreds of thousands of dollars.

"We Picked Up Seven Large Dead Rats First Morning Using Rat-Snap"

So writes Mr. B. E. Carpenter, Woodbridge, N. J. "We lost 18 small chicks one night, killed by rats. Bought some RAT-SNAP and picked up 7 large dead rats next morning and in 2 weeks didn't see a single rat. RAT-SNAP is good and sure." Comes in cake ready for use. Three Sizes, 25, 50c, $1.00. GRANT SIX

Praised Everywhere

Few new models have ever evoked such nationwide enthusiasm as the new Grant.

And never has enthusiastic appreciation been more honestly earned.

For besides being a model of beauty and graceful design, the new Grant brings qualities of ease of operation that keeps fresh springs of enthusiasm constantly bubbling.

They speak of its surprising speed. It slips along so smoothly, at say 30 to 35 miles an hour, that it challenges the admiration of those accustomed to driving cars that cost twice its price.

"It hangs to the road in great shape." "Smoothest riding car I was ever in."

Others praise its easy steering, its short turning radius, making it possible to park in small space.

Again they say its brakes operate with surprising ease, its clutch engages and disengages with wonderful smoothness, and it rides so comfortably that it sets an entirely new mark for light cars.

And everybody who has tried it says it's a wonderfully comfortable car to ride in.

If you haven't seen the new Grant Six, make it your business to see it soon.

LOWER DELAWARE NEWS IN BRIEF

Tax Rate Fixed At 65 Cents. Fire Destroys Fooks Home. Ollie Morris Trial Set for June 25.

Tax Rate 65 Cents.
Levy Court commissioners of Sussex county have fixed the tax rate for the fiscal year at 65 cents on the $100 of assessed valuation. In order to take care of the bonded indebtedness for the improved road program about $14,000 less will be appropriated for earth roads construction than last year. In considering the levy, it was the opinion of the commissioners that rates should be higher, but because of the increased taxation due to the operation of the new school code, it was deemed advisable to continue the rate.

It will be impossible for the commissioners to fix the tax rate for the schools until it is ascertained what action is taken by the commission of the legislature now at work on revising the code. As soon as this work is done, the tax rate for schools in Sussex county will be fixed by the commissioners.

Home Destroyed.

Fire of unknown origin Thursday afternoon destroyed the dwelling, barn and stables on the farm owned by Mayor Harry K. Fooks, of Laurel, and tenanted by Joseph Neal, at Salem School district. Members of the family were at the house when the fire was discovered but it spread so rapidly that little could be saved. Fortunately the stock was in the fields and escaped without injury. Only partial insurance was carried. The Laurel fire department went to the scene and used its chemical apparatus but the fire had such headway that nothing could be done.

Frost Kills Berries.

Although too light to do much damage to other fruits or vegetables, the frost of Sunday and Monday nights damaged the strawberry crop in Sussex county considerably, especially where mulch had been used around the berry plants or in low ground. The frost collected around the straw and left the center of the blossoms black and withered. In low ground the frost seemed to sweep over the highland and collect in the pockets, killing and withering the berries planted there.

Growers who have examined their fields declare that one third of the crops has been destroyed by the frost.

Trial June 28.

Ollie Morris, the boy who is held for the killing of his wather, is recovering from the effects of the burns received in his cell in the Georgetown jail, where it is thought he had tried to commit suicide. His mother is said to have expressed the intention of using all means to secure his acquittal.

His trial is fixed for June 28 and James M. Tunnell and Daniel J. Layton have been retained as his counsel. It is said his plea will be self-defence while he was attempting to prevent his father from injuring him. It is further said that the young woman said to have been the cause of the trouble between the father and son has expressed a willingness to marry Morris when he is liberated and if she has secured a divorce from her husband.

Nurse Now On Duty.

Miss Maud Sudler, the child welfare nurse for the western side of Sussex county, is making regular trips every week to Seaford. She will be found at the health centre every Monday afternoon from 1 to 4 o'clock. Miss Sudler hopes the mothers will bring all the small children to see her. She especially wishes to see those in good health and will be glad to give advice as to preparation of food, clothing, etc. If there is a child too sick to be brought she will gladly visit the home if the mother or doctor will let her know.

Hickman Farm Sold.

One of the largest real estate deals in Sussex for a long while was made in Frankford on Tuesday when Horace J. Hickman sold his farm, known as the "Hickman Homestead," to Ebe Campbell and son. With the purchase they bought all the live stock, tools, machinery and other equipment of a well kept farm. The farm comprises 200 acres of the best land in the lower part of the state.

Road Work Started.

Work has been started by the Empire Construction Co., of Philadelphia, on the Georgetown Rehoboth Beach road. The metal roadway will be 16 feet wide, constructed of concrete upon a 60 foot right of way.

As this is one of the main highways of the county and during the summer is used by thousands of tourists going to Rehoboth beach—work will be pushed as rapidly as possible. The present contract extends as far as Beaver Dam M. P. Church, where the road intersects the Harbeson-Milton road.

ALGAROA WILD FOREST TREE

Has Been Spread Over Barren Lands in Hawaii Without Any Effort of Artificial Planting.

The mesquite tree, or algaroba, was originally introduced into Hawaii by Father Bachelot, and planted in the Catholic mission grounds, Honolulu, in 1823. The original tree attained a diameter of three feet three inches, and a height of 60 feet before it was topped in 1906 to make room for a new city block.

The algaroba is the most valuable tree in Hawaii. The algaroba forests yield 80,000 cords of excellent wood annually, in addition to $100,000 worth of honey and enormous quantities of beans which furnish a valuable fattening food for stock at a time when the dry summer has exhausted the grass supply.

The algaroba tree begins to bear pods when 6 years old, and when these pods are eaten by stock the small horny seeds are not crushed but rather prepared for quick germination by the action of the digestive fluids. The spread of the tree without the expensive effort of planting by artificial methods over vast areas of barren lands of Hawaii has, therefore, been due almost solely to stock, and has in this manner become a wild forest tree. The algaroba in Hawaii has a very shallow root system and is subject to windthrow in very heavy storms.

HOLD CONVERSE IN JUNGLE

Expert Asserts That All Wild Animals Have Method of Communication With Each Other.

If the chimpanzees possess the most extensive ape vocabulary—and Garner, who knew the sound and meaning of about a hundred monkey words, said they do—baboons have the crudest. Dr. Dittmars says that those in the Bronx park collection express their emotions with a roaring bark, a faint chattering, and, when frightened, a wild scream.

"But all animal life has some method of communication," says Dr. Dittmars. "In some cases it isn't vocal, but it satisfies the same need. When a lion is lonesome he puts his head close to the ground and rears. Possibly he knows the ground acts as a sounding board. With a different cadence this roar becomes a challenge, and other males take it up until the jungle reverberates with their din."

"Another roar with a different intensity is answered only by females. The lioness will listen to fix the direction from which his roar comes and will move toward him. Then she will roar, and he will move, and finally they meet."—Exchange.

Treatment of Common Colds.

"If all who catch cold could be persuaded to remain in bed for the first 24 hours of such an attack," says a well known physician "there would be fewer cases dragging on with distressing symptoms for weeks and often ending in some more serious disease." To make sure of a prompt recovery you should also take Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. Whether sick or well the bowels should move each day.—Advt.

There will be a social at Leonard's school on Friday, May 14 to which the general public is invited.

Some Serious Problems Are Confronting The Board Of Education

Great Scarcity Of Teachers Because Of Low Salary Scale. Business World Offers More Flattering Opportunities. Many Object To Working In Rural Schools And All Are Discouraged Because Bond Issue Was Defeated. Thirty-two Teachers Seek A Single City School Position.

CONDITIONS ARE CRITICAL.

The school authorities of Wicomico county, in common with the remainder of the state, are facing serious problems—more serious than ever before, perhaps—for the coming scholastic year.

First—There is wide-spread discontent among white and colored teachers because of the niggardly salaries paid for many years past. This has caused hundreds of teachers to leave the profession and to seek employment in the business world, where attractive salaries are paid. The depletion in the ranks of the teachers has, therefore, brought the school authorities face to face with a serious shortage of teachers.

Second—The environments of many teachers, especially in the rural sections, are not always pleasant. Boarding and housing conditions are not always what the average teacher desires. Female teachers especially are looking for improved social conditions; they are looking for places where they can enjoy many of the twentieth century pleasures which make the humdrum of teaching a little more pleasant. Hence the teachers are gravitating towards the cities and towns, where, if they cannot command good salaries at teaching, they can command flattering salaries in the business world.

Third—There is, in many communities, a disposition among the people to complain so much about the work of the average teacher. They forget the many difficulties under which the teacher labors; the poorly constructed and poorly ventilated school houses; the uninviting location and surroundings of the school properties; and the lack of equipment in most of the schools. The almost constant complaints against teachers not only discourages them in their work, but no doubt causes hundreds of them to desert the profession, for more congenial work and more pleasant environments.

Fourth—The overwhelming disapproval of the bond issue by the taxpayers of the county at the election last Monday, has put a damper on the spirits of many teachers, who conclude that the taxpayers do not want to better conditions under which they are working, and that it will be impossible to do satisfactory work under present conditions, and which would, under favorable conditions, have opened up the avenue for more efficient work and ultimate financial rewards. This, too, is another reason for the tremendous defection in the teaching profession.

To show the unrest among the teachers of this county, especially in the rural sections, (and it is so all over the state), I will cite one case, and there are several others similar, where there are now 32 applications for one vacancy in the Salisbury High school, and the majority of these are from teachers who are doing rural work this year, but who state positively that they will not return to the rural schools under present conditions.

The question naturally presents itself, what are we going to do about it? A practical solution to the problem is to:

(1) Advance salaries that will be sufficient to live on in these days of H.C.L. This the Board of Education is endeavoring to do by the aid of the County Commissioners;

(2) Improve the conditions of our school buildings; make them decent to teach in, and equip them so that efficient work can be done. This the board would have done had the bond issue won; now it cannot be done except by direct taxation and the imposition of an excessive tax rate. So this proposition stands a very poor show of materializing any time in the near future;

(3) Make more attractive the conditions under which the teachers labor; give them community help and encouragement; send your children to school regularly and help them in the preparation of their lessons at home. Many other things could be suggested to help the teachers and Board of Education solve some of the many difficult school problems.

Teacher Situation Appalling.

There might be some comfort in the consideration that Maryland and Wicomico are not alone affected by this defection in the teaching force, but it does not help matters here in the least. The teacher situation is a national menace, it is declared by a recent report of the President's Industrial conference, held in Washington. The report says:

"There is everywhere a shortage of teachers. An inquiry made by the Bureau of Education showed that in January, 1920, more than 18,000 teachers' positions in the public schools of the country were then vacant because the teachers to fill them could not be had. Over 42,000 positions are filled, in order that they may be filled at all, by teachers whose qualifications are below the minimum standard of requirement in the several states. It is the estimate of the Commissioner of Education that more than 300,000 of the 650,000 school-teachers of the country are today below any reasonable minimum standard of qualifications." Many of those who remain in our schools receive less pay than common laborers, despite the long years of preparation for their profession that they have undertaken. This situation is a national menace. It is useless to talk of Americanization and of the diminution of illiteracy and other national educational problems, unless it is faced at once."

This serious condition will soon be investigated, and it is hoped with beneficial results.

A national conference of representative citizens has been called by the United States Commissioner of Education to meet at Washington, May 19, 20, and 21, "to consider the pressing problem of education from the standpoint of statesmanship and the public welfare." Secretary of the Interior John Barton Payne has sent a special invitation to the governor of every state to head the delegation from his state at the conference. Let us hope that broad minded men will be brought into this conference and that some adequate remedies may be found to solve the difficult problems.

As a help to the local situation, the Board of Education appeals to the best manhood and womanhood of Wicomico to rally to the support of the school authorities and by their sympathies and money, help to better our condition. The Board of Education appeals to the people of Wicomico for co-operation in meeting the needs of the children along educational lines.

DOINGS AT THE WICOMICO HIGH SCHOOL

(The editors of the Wicomico News have set aside this column for the use of the pupils and faculty of The Wicomico High School and the items published here will be furnished by one or more of the scholars weekly.)

The Freshman class was in charge of the exercises in Assembly last Friday morning and the lower classmen certainly did things up brown. The program consisted of opening remarks by Lucile Gullette, its president, followed by a humorous recitation given by Anne Messick which was great. "Fun on the Bingville Branch," was then presented as a comedy in an act, and it surely deserved its name if any play ever did. Louise Reddish and Conrad Livingston as "Sal" and "Hank" forced the audience into convulsions by their humorous sayings and actions. This Assembly was the last of the year and quite a number of visitors were present.

The Senior class play "The Roman-cers", will be given at the Arcade on the 31st of May. The rehearsals have been started and costumes from the city are ordered. The play, which is a three act comedy, is certainly good and those wishing to get tickets can do so from any senior.

Last Friday the base ball boys traveled to Denton and came back on the short end of a 13-12 score. Davis and Lankford were our pitchers, Lankford replacing Davis in the 6th inning with three men on bases, without warming up at all. He proved his caliber however by retiring the side with one run. Tomorrow the team goes to Cambridge and Bailey will pitch.

The Seniors are chin deep in exams this week, and next week all other classes will be in the same dilemma.

TAX QUESTION THIS YEAR WILL PRESENT PERPLEXING PROBLEM

Rate Will Crowd The $3 Mark If Needed Improvements Are Made.

SCHOOLS AND ROADS NEEDS ARE IMMINENT

Re-assessment Of Properties To An Equitable Taxable Basis Would Be A Just Way Of Raising The Needed Money. Many properties Are Away Under-assessed.

The people of Wicomico county are fixing a tax rate for 1920 which is variously estimated will run from $2.40 to $2.75 on one hundred dollars. When the tax rate for 1919 was fixed at $2.00, there was a general howl throughout the county, and to most minds the rate was high enough but the demands which are now being made on the county commissioners for additional school facilities, occasioned by the fact that the bond issue was defeated and because of the new school law passed by the legislature fixing the salaries of the school teachers, it will be necessary to make the largest appropriation ever made for school purposes, and if advantage of the provisions of the law under which permanent road construction is to be made for the future, is to be taken, additional money will have to be provided also.

At a recent meeting of the county commissioners the school budget was presented by the Board of Education, and in this budget was an item of thirty odd thousand dollars for new school houses and improvements to old ones. This, in addition to the forty odd thousand dollars additional which will have to be appropriated to meet the advance pay for the school teachers, making a round sum of about $202,000 which the county is asked to provide for school purposes for the current year. There will be added to this amount the sum of $64,000 which the county receives from the state, or if the full demands of the Board of Education are met it will practically mean that the schools for Wicomico for 1920 will cost in the neighborhood of $300,000 to run. This enormous sum of money is staggering to the minds of many people and brings out the fact that if the county is to continue to pay for its school improvements from a direct tax levy, that the tax rate here will grow to such an enormous proportion as to make it almost impossible for the property owners to maintain themselves under the constantly increasing expenditures. There are many taxpayers who are opposed to any further increase in taxation and yet there are many other important public improvements in the way of roads and bridges which are of equal importance to the people as are the public schools which are not yet provided for.

The commissioners are now facing a deficiency of about twenty-five or thirty thousand dollars in the road expenditures for last year which must be provided for in this levy, and if advantage is to be taken of the law un-

QUITS POSITION WITH GOODYEAR PEOPLE

Benjamin Shank Will Join Forces Of Philadelphia Concern On June 1. Business Record Very Bright.

Benjamin Shank of this city, for five years a travelling representative of the Goodyear Tire and Rubber company of Akron, Ohio, on June 1, will sever his connection with that concern and join forces with the Larson Oldsmobile Co., of Philadelphia, handling the "General Motors wholesale line."

Mr. Shank will continue to live in Salisbury. He will travel over the Eastern Shore of Maryland, and Virginia, Baltimore city, Delaware and New Jersey, south of Trenton.

That Mr. Shank is a success as a salesman is well indicated by the fact that his business during the last year shows an increase of $30,000 over that of the previous year. The Wicomico News extends its congratulations and wishes for success to Mr. Shank.

CHAMBER OF COMMERCE APPOINTS A SECRETARY

C. M. Freeman, was engaged by the Chamber of Commerce at its meeting last Thursday as the secretary of that organization. He will begin his duties here in about a month.

WILMINGTON FOLKS BANQUETED HERE

Employees Of Booker, Scott & Moore Motor Here To Meet Local Employees Of That Concern.

Twenty-six people, representatives of the main plant of Booker, Scott & Moore in Wilmington, motored from that city to Salisbury in four cars on Saturday and were the guests of the local heads and employees of the company at a banquet which was served at the Peninsula hotel. After the feast the entire party, numbering about 40 people, attended the picture and vaudeville performance at the Arcade theater.

William Harrington of this city was the toastmaster and speeches were made by John A. Booker of Wilmington and by W. S. Springer of Salisbury. An informal vocal program of popular songs was delightfully rendered by Mr. Harrar of Wilmington and by Arthur Ward of this city.

The banquet was given for the purpose of affording an opportunity for an interchange of ideas between the company's employees in Salisbury and Wilmington and to discuss the advisability of beginning the operation of another branch plant on the Eastern Shore of Maryland.

W. F. MESSICK IS COUNCIL'S PRESIDENT

C. E. Bennett Draws The One Year Term. Mayor Kennerly Makes Address At Council Meeting.

Monday was a big night in Salisbury's official circles, since on that night Mayor W. A. Kennerly and the newly elected councilmen, Ernest B. Hitch, Charles E. Bennett and John W. Serman took their seats as city executives. Speechmaking was the order of the day and nearly everybody had something to say—but Mayor Kennerly was the principal speaker.

He congratulated the retiring mayor, I. E. Jones and the retiring councilmen upon their success as city fathers. He briefly reviewed what their administration has accomplished. He asked for their help, advice and co-operation in making his administration as mayor of Salisbury, as beneficial to the city as has been the administration of Mr. Jones. Mr. Kennerly did not outline any plans he may have in mind regarding changes in the municipal government; but at the meeting of the council next Monday night he will read a message to the council and name his several appointees to city offices, and ask the council for its approval of his appointments.

I. E. Jones, the retiring mayor, congratulated Mayor Kennerly upon his election and assuming the duties of the chief executive; and he promised that co-operation which Mayor Kennerly has asked for.

Each of the new councilmen made brief addresses as did also the other members of the board and those retiring from the board.

The new Council was organized on Monday night with W. F. Messick as president and Charles E. Bennett drew the short, one year term.

CUBS WIN THEIR FIRST GAME OF SEASON

The Salisbury Cubs played their first baseball game on Friday, defeating the Sharptown Braves, 8 to 2. The Cubs lined up as follows: Turner 1b., Prag 2b., Dryden ss., Culver 3b., Brewington cf., Duncan and Regan lf., Disharoon c., Loomis, p.

TRUCK TOURING PARTY HERE TODAY

Long String Of Machines Touring State Will Come Here Today With Speakers And U. S. Marine Band.

Thursday and Friday, May 20 and 21 will be memorable days for Salisbury or for those people of the city and vicinity who are interested in automobile trucks—for on Thursday afternoon at 5 o'clock there will arrive here, a long string of motor trucks which are touring the state in the interests of the Ship by Truck and Good Roads week observance. This week which is being observed in every section of the United States, began on May 17.

Arriving here at 5 o'clock on May 20, today, will be this long string of trucks, each appropriately decorated and one of which will carry a United States Marine band of 20 instruments. Another of the trucks will carry a U. S. Marine recruiting station. The trucks and their party will remain in Salisbury until 8 o'clock tomorrow when departure for points in Somerset and Worcester counties will be made. The party will return to Salisbury later in the week and give another demonstration here.

While here on Thursday, four four-minute speakers, men of state and nation-wide renown will make brief addresses. The speakers will include Mr. Beck of the Merchants & Manufacturers association of Baltimore, Mr. Selfe of the Service Truck Co., Mr. Owens of the Kelly-Springfield Truck Co., and Stewart Longworth of the Friestone Ship-by-Truck bureau.

The trucks appearing in the line will be the Kelly-Springfield, Packard, Mack, Federal, Stewart, Service, Norwalk, and several others.

The party is making its headquarters in Baltimore and is touring the state in the interests of the Ship-by-Truck—Good Roads week observance. It is planned to cover 550 miles in this state. Similar parties are touring through each other state throughout the country this week.

H. T. Walker of Baltimore, manager of the Firestone Ship by Truck bureau, was in this city last week arranging for the reception of the touring party on Thursday. He has met with real encouragement on every side.

Mr. Walker announces that the program which will be given here on Thursday night will be one of exceptional merit and he urges all the people of the city and vicinity to be present so that they may enjoy the music by the U. S. Marine band and profit by what the several speakers will have to say.

COMMENCEMENT DATE CHANGED TO MAY 22

The date of the commencement exercises of the Peninsula General Hospital Nurses' Training school has been changed from May 24 to Saturday, May 22.

Mrs. Oliver Hearne Wins Old Photo Contest

She Correctly Names Each One In Group Of 40 People In Old Picture Of Wicomico High School Student Body, And $25 Cash Prize Is Awarded.

The $25 cash prize offered some time ago by an out-of-town subscriber to The Wicomico News to the person who could correctly identify all the persons who appeared in a published picture of the Wicomico High School student body of 1886, was won by Mrs. Oliver Hearne, and a check for $25 has been sent to F. P. Adkins to be given for Mrs. Hearne to some worthy local cause.

There were 40 people pictured in the old group picture and Mrs. Hearne correctly identified them all. Mrs. E. Riall White missed two names—W. J. Holloway and Charles Humphreys. In place of these she named William Moore and Oliver Hearne who do not appear in the picture.

Mrs. Carrie Turner Zimmerman also identified all but one. She named Charles Humphreys and added the name of Joe Dulaney.

The donor of the $25 cash prize, which is now in the hands of F. P. Adkins, suggests that the prize money be turned over to the Wicomico High school for its uses, since the nature of the contest was closely allied

MAYOR KENNERLY TO MAKE APPOINTMENTS

T. Rodney Jones Sr., Mentioned As Possible Successor To City Magistrate Turner.

The new city council and the new mayor were inducted in office Monday night, and while no official business of any moment was transacted, it is said that next week the new Mayor and Council will get down to business and it is intimated that there may be many changes in the officers to be appointed by Mayor Kennerly. The names of Sidney Dougherty and E. E. Twilley are most prominently mentioned for the appointment of city treasurer, each aspirant having considerable backing among the business men of the community. It is said, however, that Mr. Dougherty has the stronger of the two petitions and that because of this fact Mayor Kennerly may name him as the next city collector.

The names of the present incumbent N. P. Turner, and T. Rodney Jones are mentioned in connection with police magistrate for the city. Mr. Turner has held this position for many years and the friends of Mr. Jones are extremely anxious to see him receive this appointment. The place pays, it is said, in the neighborhood of $1200 a year and is considered the best appointment to be given out by the mayor of Salisbury. Mr. Jones like Mr. Turner, has been a justice of the peace for a great many years, and it is likely that considerable wrangling will ensue on the part of the friends of both these gentlemen to land the position.

For several years Benjamin A. Johnson of the firm of Long & Johnson, has occupied the office of city solicitor and has made an extremely fine record in that place. It is said, however, that other names are being mentioned for the appointment and that Mayor Kennerly may be forced to choose between some of the other younger lawyers of the city. The names most prominently spoken of besides Mr. Johnson are those of Captain Claude L. Bailey, F. W. C. Webb and Hon. Hooper S. Miles. All these gentlemen are well known young attorneys who have had considerable experience, and their friends are urging in each case with the assurance that the city's legal business would be safe in the hands of either of them.

For the position of chief of police there are no reports of any active candidates for the present, and unless there is some active fight made against the re-appointment of Chief Disharoon, it is said on good authority that he may be named again.

It is understood that Mayor Kennerly has definitely decided to take up the question of some improvements in the "street cleaning and garbage system" of the city, and that a strong effort will be made to have him recognize the fact that something must be done with the traffic situation on Main, Dock and Division streets.

FLAG RAISING AT DELMAR HIGH SCHOOL A BRILLIANT AFFAIR

TRAVELS HERE IN AIRPLANE MONDAY

Dr. Frank L. Grier of Milford, Del., with his little daughter, Frances aged 10, came over in an airplane on Monday, to visit Mr. and Mrs. R. D. Grier, making the trip, about 60 miles, in 55 minutes, at an altitude of 4,100 feet.

FIELD MEETING HERE THURSDAY MAY 20

County's School Children Are Preparing For Monster Test Of Brawn And Endurance Here Today.

The annual Field and Track meet of the county's public schools will take place at the Fair Grounds on Thursday, May 20, under the direction of the State's Public Athletic league.

There will be 27 different events, and several entries for each. Every school in the county will be represented by a number of entrants.

In the Junior 80 pound class there will be 76 entries; 37 in the Junior 95 pound class; 29 in the Junior 115 pound class; 26 in the Junior unlimited class; and 34 in the Senior unlimited class. There will be 203 entrants in the total of 27 events.

The affair is held annually under the supervision of well qualified directors and is a gala occasion among the county's school children.

Gold medals are awarded to the first finisher in each event, a silver medal to each second finisher and a bronze medal to those who finish third.

SALISBURY PEOPLE CAN FLY IN AIR

American Legion Is Conducting Week Of Air Ship Flights Every Day From Homestead Dairy Farm.

The railroad strike may tie things upon the ground, but the citizens of Salisbury can go any place they desire this week by aeroplane. For the benefit of the American Legion, two aviators are here with their Canadian Curtiss, two-seater plane, and will take passengers wherever they wish to go.

The flights started Tuesday and will be continued for a week or ten days. Late Friday afternoon, and again Saturday, Thomas Christian will do some truly wonderful acrobatic stunts in the air. The flyers are experienced former Army instructors and have taken up, in their three years of flying, more than 1500 people from five to 79 years of age, without a single accident.

The ship is a 100-horse power tractor, weighing 1500 pounds, and having a wing spread of 42 feet. The average time of flight is 15 minutes; but arrangements can be made for longer trips. The plane starts from the Homestead Dairy Farms and passengers can go up either in the morning or the afternoon.

In order for those who wish to fly to have their wishes fulfilled, the Legion has arranged with Mr. Lowe to have a bus run from the Peninsula hotel to the Homestead farm. The fare is low and the bus will make as many trips as possible during the day. This is a splendid opportunity for those who have never been up in the air to experience a novel sensation. The Legion will be glad to give further information.

LEGION TO GIVE DANCE TOMORROW

Wicomico Post, American Legion will give its final dance of the season tomorrow evening at the Armory. These dances have been very successful and the quality of the music given has always been fine. The committee composed of Wilson Booth, Walter Willing, and Howard Ruark, promise the public that the dance will be well worth attending, and that the music will be even better than usual. Dancing will begin at 9.00 o'clock sharp.

Stars And Stripes Presented By May-Dell Council Of Jr. O. U. A. M.

CEREMONIES BEGUN WITH BIG PARADE

State Councillor Caulk Of Delaware, The Speaker Of The Occasion. W. B. Miller Made Speech Of Acceptance. Entire Education Board Was Present, Also County Supt. Bennett

Several hundred residents of Delmar assembled on the grounds of the new Delmar High school, on Saturday afternoon to witness the very interesting ceremonies conducted by May-Dell Council No. 6 Junior Order United American Mechanics on the presentation of a handsome flag and pole and a Bible to the new High school.

A long procession of citizens and pupils of the school, headed by prominent members of the order and the Gumboro Concert band, marched to the school building.

The ceremonies were conducted by officers of May-Dell council, assisted by the State Councillor of Delaware, A. H. Caulk, who presented the flag in a splendid address which elicited much applause. W. B. Miller, of the Board of Education, accepted the flag and made an address bristling with patriotism which won a hearty response from the crowd.

The Bible was presented by Willard S. Ellis and accepted by Prof. C. H. Cordery, principal of the High school.

County Superintendent Bennett and Messrs. Gunby and Brewington of the Board of Education, were present and enjoyed the ceremonies.

The flag unfurled to the breeze from the top of a 60-foot pole, is 6x10 feet and is a handsome one. As it was unfurled vigorous cheers from the spectators, rent the air.

At the close of the ceremonies it was announced by the councillor of May-Dell council that an "open house" would be held at the Council Chamber in the evening, to which the entire assemblage was invited.

The ceremonies on Saturday also offered an opportunity for the inspection of the handsome new High school building by the hundreds of people present.

This handsome brick structure, costing, completely furnished, about $50,000.00, is the handsomest school building in Wicomico county and the residents of Delmar are justly proud of it. The building contains six large class rooms, a mammoth assembly hall, two locker rooms, sanitary toilets, principal's room, library, and is heated by steam and lighted by electricity. Every modern convenience for a school building has been supplied. The lot on which the building stands comprises four acres, thus supplying plenty of room for outdoor sports of all kinds. The building is, in short, a model and splendidly constructed building.

The architect was Mr. Sisco of Baltimore, and the builders were the McNurney Construction Co., of the same city.

Delmar is exceedingly fortunate in having such a splendid High school, which will provide ample room for the needs of the town for several years to come.

FORMER MAYOR IS VISITING HERE

Edwin E. Bruen of East Orange, N. J. Has Great Faith In Future Of Wicomico Real Estate.

Ex-Mayor Edwin E. Bruen, of East Orange, N. J., accompanied by his family, motored to Salisbury this week and will spend about ten days here. Mr. Bruen is a firm believer in the future of Wicomico real estate, having invested in two farms during the past few years—one on the Tony Tank road, near town, and on the Spring Hill road. Mr. Bruen will, while here, award the contract for improvements to the building on the Spring Hill road. When prices of building material get back to normal conditions the ex-mayor will erect a handsome home on the Tony Tank road farm.

LOWER DELAWARE NEWS BRIEFLY TOLD

New Roads To Milford. Dover Has New Fire Truck. Needle In Baby's Leg.

Commencement exercises of the Georgetown public schools will be held on Tuesday night, June 8. The graduating class consists of Misses Mary Green, Eveleah Green, Sarah Hatfield, Sallie Lambden, Georgetown; Miss Jennie Wilgus, of Millsboro; Miss Marian Lynch, of Selbyville, Ralph Swain and Harry Joseph, Georgetown. The exercises will be held in the Sussex county court house and the address to the graduates will be delivered by Professor A. M. Harrington.

New Concrete Roads.

Two new concrete roads will be built from Milford this year. The appropriation for the work has been made by the Kent County Levy court. One road will be constructed from Milford to Harrington, a distance of nine miles; the other from Milford to that section of the country known as Milford Neck—the rich farming center of that part of the state.

New Fire Truck.

The Dover Town council at a meeting held Monday evening decided to purchase a triple combination fire truck from the Ahrens-Fox company, the price to be $12,500.00. The truck will be completed and delivered some time next fall.

Needle in Child's Body.

Adeline Murphy, the 15-month-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Leonard H. Murphy of Laurel, was operated on by Dr. E. F. H. Farlow who removed a sewing needle about an inch and a half long from her leg.

About two months ago Mr. Murphy discovered a growth in the flesh of the child's leg which seemed to give much pain at times, and the physicians thought was from a torn muscle. Later examination proved it to be a foreign substance, and it was taken out. The needle proved to be No. 8 gold-eye which had turned black in the flesh. It is thought it was probably swallowed months ago and has since been working its way around in the child's body.

Fined For Bass Fishing.

William Trader, a farmer residing north of Milford was arrested last Saturday by Deputy Warden J. Frank Hollis, charged with catching bass before the open season and selling them. The case was heard before Justice of the Peace E. V. Hendrixon, of Milford, and a fine of $50 and costs imposed. The State Game and Fish commission has spent considerable money to stock the ponds throughout the state and they will prosecute all persons violating the game laws.

Buried Tuesday.

Funeral services were held in Laurel over the remains of the late J. Theodore Hastings, who died Tuesday from pneumonia at New Castle. The body was brought here and services were held from the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. Harold Edie, of North Laurel. Interment was made in the Methodist cemetery.

Mr. Hastings was a well known Democrat, especially in the western side of Sussex county. He was a native of this section and spent most of his life in Laurel, where he served for many years as county constable.

Mr. Hastings was 65 years of age and had been married twice, his second wife, Mrs. Mame Melvin Hastings, being the daughter of James Melvin, of Georgetown. His only son, J. Theodore Hastings, Jr., is assistant railroad agent at Chestertown, Maryland.

Marriage Announced.

The marriage has been announced of Cecil R. Benson, son of Mr. and Mrs. John W. Benson, of North Laurel, to Miss Eleanor C. Bie, of Englewood, N. J., Saturday evening at the home of the bride's parents. On their return from their wedding trip they will reside in North Laurel, where Mr. Benson has erected a handsome new dwelling. Mr. Benson is a veteran of the World War, serving in France as first lieutenant of infantry, and while leading his company in a charge thru a wheat field, following the wounding of his captain, was wounded and narrowly escaped death by the explosion of a shell which killed all the men near him and put him in a hospital for several weeks. He is manager of the Laurel Lumber Co.

Amputated Foot.

Henry Lyons, aged 30 years, a farmer, living between Seaford and Woodland, met with a horrible accident Tuesday while operating a wood-sawing outfit on his farm.

He was tightening the feed gauge on the machine when he fell into the revolving saw. His foot was severed above the ankle and his body was rapidly being drawn into the saw when fellow workmen rescued him. Had they not acted quickly his body would have been severed by the saw. He is now at his home in a precarious condition.

Injured By Fall.

While Mr. and Mrs. William Framp-ton, formerly of this town, now living in Denton, Md., were visiting Mr. and Mrs. George Vickers, in Laurel for a few days last week, a small son, Roland, fell into the excavation at the corner of Market street and Delaware avenue, where the foundation is being laid for the new building for the Peoples National bank. He was picked up in an unconscious condition by Mark Levy and a physician was summoned. The lad had several teeth knocked out and he received numerous bruises and contusions and it was thought he suffered a fracture of several ribs.

FORMER SALISBURIAN DIES IN BALTIMORE

Edwin H. Smith, 68, Passes Into the Unknown At His Sister's Home, On Sunday Night.

Edwin Hammond Smith, a native of Salisbury and for several years a well-known business man, died last Sunday night at the home of his sister, Mrs. Alice Jackson, 208 W. Monument street, in Baltimore, after a long illness, aged 68 years.

Deceased was a member of the well-known Smith family of Salisbury, his parents being the late Thomas B. and Margaret H. Smith. He was educated in the public schools of this city and entered business life with the firm of Humphreys & Tilghman, pioneer lumber dealers of Salisbury. He remained with this firm for several years, and then went to Baltimore, where he was connected with Cathell & Morris, lumber dealers. Subsequently Mr. Smith entered the cigar and tobacco business on North Calvert street, Baltimore, which he gave up several years ago on account of declining health.

Deceased is survived by two brothers, Albert C. Smith of Salisbury, and George Smith of Baltimore, and three sisters, Mrs. Alice Jackson, Mrs. Emma Moore and Mrs. Mary Pyle, all of Baltimore.

Funeral services were held on Wednesday of this week in Baltimore, and the body will be brought to Salisbury today or tomorrow for interment in Parsons cemetery.

TO THE EASTERN SHORE.

If I could write as a poet should,
I would take the green of the hills,
The waving pines of the stately wood,
And the music of tinkling rills.

I would weave them all in a verse sublime,
With colors of the sunset's glow,
Then dedicate that verse of mine
To the dear old Eastern Shore.

To Salisbury:

And then perhaps 'twould please me too,
To write a verse fair Queen for you.
For while the "Shore" is fair to see,
My heart, oh Salisbury, turns to thee.
And though I love this Maryland,
'Twas Salisbury first with friendly hand,
Who made us welcome, my pal and me,
And gave her love to us as we.
And tho' at time your faults I see,
Let this express my love for thee.
And dare I hope 'twill please you too,
To have me write this verse for you.
W. C. THURSTON.

MAY WEATHER DOES CONTORTIONS

May has furnished an unusual variety of weather so far. There have been changes in 24 hours from summer heat to freezing. Last week the thermometer registered 84 degrees one afternoon, bringing out straw hats and thin clothing, but before eight o'clock the same night the temperature dropped to 54 degrees. Straw hats which had blossomed out were replaced by the winter's derby.

Why Ocean Waters Are Never Still.

The surface waters of the ocean are in constant motion under the influence of waves, tides, currents and drifts. Waves are vertical oscillations caused by the winds. Tides resemble waves in their motion but they owe their origin to the attractive force of the sun and moon. The horizontal movements of the surface waters are known as drifts and currents. A drift is a general movement under the influence of the wind, but slower and more changeable in direction than a current. Enclosed seas have a circulatory movement because the water usually differs in density from the ocean.

THEODORE ROOSEVELT AN AMERICAN FATHER

He Set An Example In His Home Which Every Father Would Do Well To Follow.

While many pay tribute to Theodore Roosevelt as a great American, it is also to Theodore Roosevelt the father that the heart of America now turns.

The story of those happy years which he spent with his family in the White House cannot fail to impress us with the sacredness of the home life, the joy of the family bond nor can anyone measure the effect of such an example upon the rank and file of Americans.

Col. Roosevelt understood as few men do, the privileges and responsibilities of fatherhood. After reading that delightful new publication, Theodore Roosevelt's Letters to his Children, one is reminded of those beautiful words of Jean Paul Richter, "Only by the union of manly energy and decision with womanly gentleness does the child rest and sail at the conflux of two streams." One marvels that this busy man found time to take such a part in the life of his children. No matter how full was his day of engagements with the highest dignitaries of state, Col. Roosevelt always found time to be the companion of his children, to read or play with them, to join in their outdoor sports or when he was separated from them to write, very frequently. His understanding of child life was remarkable and his sympathy unflinching.

Col. Roosevelt made practical that famous admonition of Froebel, "Come let us live with our children." Often the great upper rooms of the White House were alive with pillow-fights and with those bed-time romps which must have left a lasting impression upon the happy group of young children. But the characteristic which was most touching in his family relationship was his ability to continually remind his children that the spiritual values in life are those which are really worthwhile.

We all know that the greatest safeguard for a republic is the founding of happy homes. There is no greater danger threatening the American home today than the absence of the father as an active and determining force in shaping the character and the development of his children. How often we hear some of our best men remark complacently, "I leave the training of my children entirely to my wife. She does it all." We hear much in verse and story of the influence of good mothers, and this is well, but we need to hear just as much of the influence of good fathers, such fathers as Colonel Roosevelt. Some of us mothers know only too well that, try as hard as a woman may, she cannot be both father and mother to her children.

Thousands of fathers face crises in the lives of their sons and find themselves powerless to influence them though these devoted parents would willingly give a right arm, if necessary, to possess this very power. They lack influence because they did not give of their love, sympathy and companionship when their children were little and confiding.

Many men feel that they express their devotion to their families when they toil all day to supply comforts and luxuries for those they love, but that they have no time to give their children. The American man is one of the most unselfish of human beings, and the American woman appreciates this fact. He gives freely to his wife and children of all that he has except himself and his time, and these are the two gifts which his family most needs.

If tired or busy fathers would give but a few minutes each day to their children, would enter into real fellowship with them, a bond of sympathy would be established. Fathers would find real rest and relaxation in the companionship of their happy, affectionate little ones and misunderstandings and estrangements between father and child in later years would become less frequent.

SOME OBSERVATION OF
THE MAN ABOUT TOWN

He Finds A Majority Of People Favor
Reorganizing Co. I, But "Boys" Are Bashful About Enlisting.

"The necessity of re-organizing Co. I, Maryland National Guard is imminent"—this is the opinion of The Man About Town after hearing several people discuss the need of the organization at their informal cracker-box and soda fountain forums about the city.

The other day The Man About Town wandered into Toulson's drug store. There were a number of men gathered about the soda fountain discussing things military. Some of them were fellows who fought under the Stars and Stripes on Flanders's fields. They were talking about reforming Co. I, and one of them said:

"Sure I'll get into the harness again; but I don't want to butt into it all alone. I'm going to wait awhile and then when the bunch is in, I'm going in too. We sure ought to have the company here; its a good thing for all of us." There were three or four men in the group to which this veteran of the World war spoke and each one seemed to endorse his sentiments.

In Dashiell's news and cigar store there were two fellows talking. Neither of them have ever seen military service, though both of them just escaped the last draft because the Huns gave up the fight before they were called.

"Say, Jim," said one of the boys, "I'm going in Company I. If I had been called to go across and lick all of those Huns when I was scared to death they would call my number, I'd have had a fat chance of getting away with them because I'd been a real rookie. I don't know a right about from a forward march and I'm going into Co. I to learn some of that stuff. If Mexico gets nasty maybe they will call on me to go down there and lick the Greasers and I want to get as much of that military soup into me as possible before I go."

Seated on that comfortable little bench in White & Leonard's "gossip corner for men" The Man About Town talked with two old fellows like himself about Co. I, just a few days ago. He suggested that if some of the middle-aged men would take the initiative and go into the thing, the younger men would follow—and it is the younger men that are wanted and needed in such an organization. One of the men to whom he talked agreed that military training is a fine thing for young men but he didn't think much of it for his gray hairs and stiff muscles; beside he didn't feel that he could take one night a week from his fireside to go to the Armory and drill.

The Man About Town got sore at this kind of an argument because the man who talked in this manner has great business and realty interests here. He is of that type of citizen who in case of a race riot, a flood, a disastrous fire or any city-wide disturbance in which his personal interests might be endangered, would be among the first to call on the local military organization for protection and help—and he would severely criticize any failure on the part of the Guard to save his interests.

There are a lot of such men in Salisbury!

But the saving grace of the situation is found in Salisbury's women, especially the young women.

In Collier's drug store the other day there was a bevy of the city's prettiest girls seated round one of those little tables on which cooling drinks and paper straws are served. The girls were talking about soldiers—ever an interesting topic with girls—for it is true that a natty uniform will go further in winning a girl's heart than a million dollars.

One of these pretty creatures told her companions that she was just coaxing Jack, of course that isn't his name, to join Co. I. "He was such a good soldier in France," she said, "and he knows all about how to do everything, and he looks so well in a uniform, that I'm sure it wouldn't be long before they made him a general or something."

Another of the group seemed inclined to think that while "Jack" might be a good soldier, it would be a long time before he ever becomes a general; but she said most decidedly that she wouldn't ever "have a friend who wouldn't don the uniform of his country." She said she would be perfectly willing that "Bill," another fictitious name, should go to the Armory and drill once a week even if drill night happened to come on Wednesday, the night set apart for his calls at her home.

So it seems to The Man About Town that with a majority of the people, the reorganization of Co. I, is very popular. Of course there is here and there a selfish fellow who wouldn't give a nickel either in time or money to see one of the Egyptian pyramids walk up Main Street; but happily they are in the minority.

The great majority of the people favor the reorganization of the company. It is true though, that many of the "boys" are hanging back waiting for the "other fellow" to go in first. When his pal goes, he will go too.

There are at present but about 10 men in Co. I. There are needed, 60 men and three officers. The city has one of the best Armories in the state which will be at the home of the company. The men will be drilled by experienced officers. Drill nights will happen once a week and $1 a drill will be paid to each man. In addition, there will be the summer vacation for which the men will be paid; and the wonderful mental and physical development opportunities which the drilling and the military training affords.

Right now, even today the company should have mustered in its full quota of men so that they might be preparing for an emergency with Mexico, or so that they might be preparing to take part and make a creditable showing in the inaugural parade in Washington next March 4 and in the Armistice parade next November 11.

It is the hope of The Man About Town, as it is the hope of every citizen who is proud of Salisbury, that Co. I, Md. N. G. may soon be made up to its required strength, so that the city may feel secure in all times of emergency, because its brave sons are ready, trained and equipped to handle any disastrous situation which may be visited upon this community—and because they will feel that in case of national trouble, Salisbury will have ready to send into the field of action, a company of well drilled men to hold the front line until other men can be trained and sent to their relief.

THE MAN ABOUT TOWN.

VISIONS NOT ALL REALIZED

But Even So, There Is Something Fine
In the Dreaming of Beautiful Dreams.

There seem to be a great many disappointed people in the world today; the explanation apparently is that many of us do not find our dreams and hopes realized in quite the way and at the time we expected. How many times have there been conjured up before us a kind of magic day in which all fine and splendid things would be easily possible, and life would, of necessity, lose very much that was sordid and unideal? We had beautiful visions that seemed so easy of realization. But in the cold light of the day into which we have now come there are many hard and unyielding unideal facts, and what we fondly pictured falls to shape itself in actual life. Of course, we are disillusioned and disappointed. But ought we to be? Was there, after all, anything the matter with the vision that we cherished? Is it possible that the trouble with us is that we have not the faith and the wisdom to see the vision being realized, though in ways and fashions of which we had not dreamed? Columbus did not discover what he looked for, but were his faith and dreaming not justified nevertheless? And would he ever have discovered anything but for the faith and the dreaming?—Montreal Herald.

Mind Working One Way.

Hopelessly imbecile, an inmate of a Devonshire (England) poor-law home for the insane possesses a wonderful memory. If the number of any psalm be mentioned this man can at once recite the whole psalm. Given the number of a hymn, he can repeat all the verses. But, more wonderful still, if he be given a date in any year, he can tell the day of the week on which that date occurred.

Here is a poser for mind experts. This poor man's brain lacks all the qualities which make for sanity, save one. The faculty of memory may have been normal at the man's birth, and constant practice may have marvelously developed it. Whatever the explanation may be, the marvel is that a mind capable of such a tremendous feat did not grow into an organ of reason.

First Bolshevik Republic.

A writer in a French newspaper has discovered that a bolshevik republic existed in China seventy years ago, at Chetung, in Manchuria. It was founded by conscript miners who had been sent by the Chinese Emperor to dig for gold. These men, treated as slaves, deserted and established a Communist republic in the mountains. Their example was followed by an entirely different class, a race of brigands, who, however, continued to "spoil the Egyptians" while leaving their communist neighbors unmolested. Their menfolk are now policing Manchuria on behalf of Japan, which adopted the plan of setting thieves to catch thieves, and in return for their services protected them from Chinese and Russian persecutors.

The son of Mr. Newly-Rich wanted to be an auctioneer. His father had intended him for a learned profession, but promised to think it over. Meeting a friend, Mr. Risen-from-the-Ranks, he confided to him the dilemma, and asked for his view of auctioneering as a calling. "Well," said this authority on short cuts to wealth, "it's like this: An auctioneer order 'ave an 'ammer and an 'ead, an' the 'ammer ain't a baton o' use without the 'ead."

The Healer

O, Harmony, Magic Healer, my Muse salutes you!
Yesterday, our souls traveled among the shadows, but after Evening had ushered departing Day over the threshold of Heaven, you called us to your side and when we stood about you, whispered witching fancies to us.

Your vibrating chords drove out all thoughts of Sorrow, leaving us, when you finally stole away to higher realms, with lighter hearts to face the coming night; to take up the dull burdens of another day; with a braver front than we could muster—before.

Thanks to you, Sweet Spirit of Harmony, the mocking ghosts that had peered over our shoulders as we gazed into the mirror of the Past, have vanished and we are warmed with the glowing promise of—A HAPPIER TO-MORROW!

All Hail, Harmony; the Muse of Poesy salutes you!

Schools Costs Increased Nearly $90,000, According To Board's New Budget

During Year Ended July 1920, $115,395.40 Was Appropriated By The County Commissioners. The New Budget Calls For $202,255.50, An Increase of $86,860.10 And The School Board Has Stripped Its Requisition For Funds Down To The Barest Necessities. Teachers' Salaries Show Well Merited Increase. Deficit To Be Again Reduced.

EXPECT $64,602.96 FROM STATE.

The budget prepared by the Board of Education and presented to the County Commissioners last week, calls for an appropriation of $202,255.50 from the county. In addition to this the requisition states that the board expects to receive from the state for school purposes, approximately $64,602.96; making the total at which the Board of Education places the county's schools expense for the next year $266,858.46.

The report of the Board of Education for the year ended July 31, 1919 shows that the total receipts of the board for school purposes in this county were $171,627.13 or $95,231.48 less than the total of the budget for the coming year. Of the $171,627.13 spent by the board in the year ended July, 1919, only $115,395.40 was appropriated by the County Commissioners, and this county appropriation is $86,860.10 less than the Education board is now asking of the commissioners.

The board plans this year to apply $18,224.07 on its deficit, whereas in the year ended July 31, 1919, $27,395.40 was applied on the same deficit. This is a difference of $8,171.33, more applied on the deficit last year than is now intended to be so applied.

Teachers' salaries according to the budget during the year will cost $156,159.00 as against $88,796.07 during the year ended last July; the difference here is $67,362.93 increase.

The new budget calls for $29,750 to be spent for permanent improvements at school buildings as follows: Wetpquin, Quantico, Willards, Powellville, Central Primary, East Salisbury and Brick Kiln.

The sum of $14,175.00 is asked for to be used for repairs and upkeep of buildings. Of this amount $7,500 is to be used for general repairs and equipment and the remainder will be spent at the Camden and Salisbury Grammar schools and for rentals of buildings used for school buildings which are not owned by the county. For unforeseen expenses, the budget allows the sum of $3,000. For the purchase of new furniture and for the up-keep of school furniture now in use in old buildings, the budget provides the sum of $3,500.

For maintenance and support of schools, which includes salaries of teachers, supervisors, superintendent, clerks, etc., fuel, insurance, deficit, water rents, lighting costs, text books, materials of instruction, janitors' wages, etc., the budget provides the sum of $216,433.46. This item includes the $156,159.00 already mentioned for teachers' salaries and the $18,224.07 to be applied in the board's old deficit.

The grand total of the budget is $266,858.46 of which it is estimated $64,602.96 will be received from the state, making the total which the Board of Education asks of the County Commissioners for school purposes for the year, $202,255.50, an increase of $86,860.10 over the county's appropriation for schools during the year ended July 31, 1919.

ARTS EXHIBIT AT HIGH SCHOOL, FINE

High School Affair Is Complimented Highly By State's Educational Heads. Hundreds of Visitors.

It is safe to say that never in the history of the Wicomico High school has there been such a wonderful exhibit of Manual and Applied arts as was shown there during the school week ended May 21st. More than 1000 entries in the exhibit were viewed by approximately 650 visitors, and each entry won merited approbation.

Miss Ruth Powell, the head of the Domestic Science department, Mrs. Fooks, in charge of the Manual Training department, and Miss Dorothy Mitchell, the chief of the Art department, were in charge of the exhibit while Prof. R. Lee Clark had supervision of the decorations. The latter consisted of green and white vertical strips of crepe paper hung around the borders of the spacious Manual Training room serving as partitions between the various sections. They formed a very pretty background for the entries especially in the Domestic Science department.

As one entered the exhibit rooms, the combined product of the girls' sewing classes of the school met the gaze; first came the second year dresses which were made principally of gingham, voiles, and poplins, they numbered about 65; then the third year gowns which were much more elaborate being made of organdy and voiles. They totalled about 50. At the extreme end of this department which occupied the whole length of the room and about one-third of its width was found the graduation dresses of the Seniors numbering 24. All were very pretty and were made of net and organdy. Each Senior was allowed $7.00 and the maximum spent was $7.01 while the minimum was $5.90; the average cost per dress was $6.20, showing what can be saved, as all the dresses would have cost at least $25.00 separately. The making of a graduation dress is the climax of a four years' rigid course in sewing and the products show how efficient that course has been. The Freshman girls made about 300 pieces of lingerie, each girl making two pieces.

The Manual Training exhibit was composed of about 60 pieces of work consisting principally of writing desks, library tables, serving tables, chairs, floor lamps, table lamps, sewing stands, piano benches, medicine cabinets, and tabourets. Especially worthy of note was the library table made by Calvin Hastings of the Junior class costing only $10.00; it was a marvel of good workmanship.

The Scientific department under the direction of Prof. J. B. Parsons, gave daily demonstrations of current electricity, electrostatics, measuring the length of sound, light and current waves. Other scientific instruments were on display and were explained by some of the students who were always there for that purpose.

The Art display consisted in the main of sketches of objects near and distant, shadow drawing, elpees, and in color schemes. The two posters made by Phillip Mitchell for the Senior class night play were fine, more favorable comments being made on them than on any other entry of that exhibit.

The Commercial department led by Misses Mae Powell and Mary Dryden exhibited typewriter books, speed tests, examples of good penmanship, ledgers and bookkeeping accounts. They were very well done and drew much favorable comment.

Several members of the State Board of Education inspected the exhibit and complimented those responsible for it in very high terms. Among those present were: Miss McNaughton of the Home Economic department of Maryland Agricultural college. State Supervisor of Rural Schools Holloway, Miss Stevenson, District Superintendent Extension work of Maryland State college, and Mr. Revis, Assistant Supervisor state education.

EPWORTH LEAGUE ELECTS OFFICERS

Miss Helen Bailey and Miss Elva Blades will lead the Epworth league meeting at St. Andrew's church next Sunday evening at 7 o'clock. This society was organized last Sunday with 82 members. Judging from the interest and enthusiasm manifested by the members, this society will soon be the leading organization in the church. The following officers were elected for the year: President, Mrs. Charles Livingston; vice president, Miss Helen Hastings; president of the devotional service, Mrs. Harold Hawkins; president of social service, Mrs. Clarence Livingston; president of recreation and culture, Mrs. Levin Short; president of missions, Miss Essie Bozman; secretary, Miss Katherine Harmon; corresponding secretary, Miss Marybell Adkins; treasurer, Randall Blades; organist, Miss Katherine Livingston.

Millinery, Coats, Suits, Capes, Dresses and Skirts

Our wonderful sale of Millinery, Coats, Suits, Capes, Dresses and Skirts still continues at 25 per cent off their marked prices (with a few minor exceptions.) This 25 per cent reduction will not be permanent and may only go on this week so suggest you come in and look them over as this is a remarkable saving.

SUITS

In Tricotines, Serges, Poiret Twills and Poplins, both navy and black and all the light shades.
Also Jersey Suits.

COATS & CAPES

Both short and long in all the desirable colors of the season.

DRESSES

Every dress on our racks. Taffeta, Satin, Charmeuse, Crepe de Chine, Tricotine, Serge and Jersey Cloth. (The new Voile and Gingham dresses excluded.)

SKIRTS

Every cloth skirt in our stock. This includes Serges and Poplins in navy and black only, also, plaids, both plain and accordion pleated. (Sport and white wash skirts excluded.)

As stated in our last week's advertisement that we are merely carrying out our policy not to carry over garments from one season to another, and that we have not just selected a few old and previous seasons' styles, but our entire stock is included only with a few exceptions as noted in each instance. These mentioned above are at your disposal at a saving of ¼ off their marked price.

MILLINERY

This will be our final reduction in our millinery department. Just think 25% off every Black, Blue, Tan, Brown, Red or Purple hat, in fact any in our stock with the exception of White and Horse-hair braid hats. This remarkable reduction also includes every shape, trimmed hat and pattern hat.

We also have two other special lots of hats on sale at about a 50% reduction in Sailors, Ribbon trimmed and Sport hats. The price on these two lots is $3.95 and $4.50 respectively.

For 39c per yard

50c to 85c Printed Voiles, also a few awning stripe skirtings for Summer wear. These were carried over from last season, but some are very similar to this season's printings and in order to clean out this lot we are willing to sacrifice them at 39c per yard.

Announcement

We have established a Dressmaking Department for the convenience of our customers. Miss Mary Riggins is in charge. We will accept orders for dresses, skirts and blouses.

H. C. L.—ITS CAUSE.

According to figures published in a recent memorandum of the Supreme Council of the Peace Conference, wholesale prices generally in this country since 1913, have increased 120 per cent. The memorandum shows that during the same period of time, wholesale prices in Great Britain have increased 170 per cent. and in France, Italy and Belgium, 300 per cent. each.

When it is considered that wholesale prices in this country are 120 per cent. higher today than they were seven years ago, it is safe to assume that the increase in the scale of retail prices has kept the pace, at least.

Wages, it is claimed, in all lines of industry, since 1913 have shown an average increase of about 80 per cent., so that it seems clear that while wages are high, living costs are much higher; and that while there is plenty of work to be had at the high wage scale, that scale is not sufficiently high to meet the excessive advances in living costs.

Thus it is shown that the purchasing power of the American dollar has greatly decreased during the last seven years. This shrinkage combined with a lack of production at different times in different lines, a tendency on the part of the people to spend their money so freely that the supply of commodities produced during those periods of partial industrial inactivity, has been found unequal to the demand, has served to hold prices well above a normal figure.

There is no question had the circumstances which have caused the high prices been reversed, if every possible industrial energy had been put and kept in operation, if there had been exercised a normal degree of sanity among the people in the manner of buying luxuries, the supply would have been equal to the demand, and prices today would be much nearer the normal limit.

The American people went crazy at the sight of money. Every man was at his brother's throat in an effort to wrest a dollar from him. The laboring classes, better paid than ever before in the history of the country were not satisfied. They wanted more pay. They refused to work until it was given them, and while they were on strike the commodity they produced was consumed by the people who were at work. This meant a decreased if not exhausted supply of that particular commodity and a necessarily high price for it when its production was resumed.

Crazy with a fever produced by an over-stuffed pay envelope, the working men of the country bought freely; too freely of those things for which they had no particular use. They went in for the most expensive luxuries. Men who never before in their lives owned a shirt that cost more than $2 went in for silk shirts at $12 a piece and they bought them in dozen lots. Women whose hands were coarsened and roughened with hard toil decked their fingers with precious jewels. Families accustomed only to coarse but nourishing food began immediately to clamor for the best cuts of meats and the fruits of the tropics. The country was money-spending crazy. Money was coming easily. It went just as easily.

The result is the high prices of today. When those prices will recede is a question. Maybe it will be soon, maybe it will be in the far future. Labor conditions are still unsettled. Men are on strike and threatening to strike. When they do, the commodity they produce by their daily work is cut off. That means a higher price for that commodity. The spending bee has spent its force very largely. The people are stocked up on the luxuries of life and are contenting themselves with those things which are more in keeping with their real needs.

Conditions are getting back to normal, in so far as purchasing is concerned, and when the country's production of commodities resumes its normal levels, prices will begin to drop.

The whole thing depends upon the ability of the country to produce. If the production can be made greater than the demand, and it will be if every man who works at the production of any kind of a commodity will do his full duty, normal prices will soon be reached—but as long as men are dissatisfied with their wages and refuse to work until their demands are met, just so long will retail prices continue to soar.

The problem of high living costs can only be solved when the laboring men of the country consent to produce more than the country needs.

WHO IS THE PROFITEER?

Who's the profiteer? Nobody knows. In fact, few seem really to care. The producers place the blame on the middle-men; the middlemen say the retailers are at fault; and all three insist that the poor public is responsible for the high cost of living on account of its alleged extravagances.

As a matter of fact, he who will give but a moment's serious reflection to the question, will necessarily realize that a number of factors enter into the problem. No attempt is made to fix the responsibility; but the reader should act according to his own conviction.

Naturally the first influence that comes to mind is that of the World War. It was imperative to get things for the army and navy, to get them quickly and without regard to cost. As in every case of hasty bargaining, high prices had to be paid. To stimulate production to capacity, high wages kept pace with the increased selling costs.

High wages inevitably raise the general standard of living; consequently, more than ever before, people were able to buy those things they had always wanted. Increased demand, in this case, meant decreased supply with resultant high prices.

Even while the demand was growing, production in certain fields was limited, or ceased altogether; and owing to the greatly increased volume of business, in the other fields, labor in vast numbers had to be secured. New, unskilled, inefficient labor always tends to lower quality or quantity, or to raise prices. Diluted labor inevitably means greater costs of production and therefore higher selling prices.

When the armistice was signed, people expected to see conditions quickly returning to a normal state. But the surplus was almost totally exhausted; the demand exceeded the supply; prices were maintained on their high level, or went even higher.

All of these influences have been strongly evident in the economic world, but there is one which, perhaps, overshadows all the rest. The war left the entire world in a restless, dissatisfied condition, manifested by strikes everywhere. Strike has followed strike, until it seems as if the whole world had gone strike mad.

When a man leaves his job, few realize that it costs one whole day's production. The number of working days thus lost in the United States alone would probably run well above a hundred millions. One hundred million working days lost in the factory, in the store, on the farm. Wasted money is as nothing compared with wasted time, for the latter can never be regained. Such an inexcusable waste of time, such temporal extravagance, can result in but one thing—continued high prices. The world today is no longer interested in what you have done, or what you did during the war—what are you doing today? Are you producing?

Conditions, then, being what they are, the thinking man will hesitate before he applies the epithet "profiteer" indiscriminately. The vast majority of business men are making a smaller aggregate profit than they did five years ago; yet, because a few unscrupulous scoundrels unmercifully gouge the public, all business men are denounced as "profiteers."

A thousand factors influence the cost of the necessities of life; but the retailer is blamed most often and most heartily for high prices simply because he happens to be the one to come into daily, personal contact with the buying public. As a matter of fact, he has less control over the cost of things than any one else in the entire chain, from producer to consumer.

Give the reputable merchants a square deal. You will find the "profiteers" a decidedly small minority in a decidedly large business world. If you do know a "profiteer," expose him without mercy; that is a duty you owe yourself and your fellow citizens. And you will find all honest merchants and business men on your side, waging the fight against economic vultures with as much courage and enthusiasm as you, yourself, have. Furthermore, you will be surprised to find out how many really honest people there are in the world.

The helpless public is no longer helpless; it is beginning to organize in self-defense. The coal strike in Kansas, when the citizens mined their own fuel; the railroad strike in New York, when the commuters ran their own trains; the police strike in Boston, when the property-holders guarded their own possessions; the formation of numbers of Over-all and Patched-shoe clubs—all show what the public can do for its own cause, when it is so inclined.

Properly exerted, the vast power of the people can avert any malicious, vicious tendency; but the public must act, and that means that each individual citizen must act. The diseases of the body economic are many and serious; but they are not necessarily fatal and the remedy lies with the individual, with you.

Use that power in moderation now, and avoid drastic action later. And in the meantime, be fair to the business people in the industrial and commercial world; they are making an honest living and are helping you to live, for you could not live without them.

A deliberate, cool, studied effort on your part, directed along the proper channel, will do as much as any other one thing to solve the problem of inflated cost and selling prices.

THEY ARE DOING IT HERE TOO!

Are prices all over the world just on the point of tumbling? After the last four years of high living costs, are conditions beginning to return to what they were before the war? A few things seem to indicate that they may; but more things indicate that they won't.

Silk is called the barometer of trade, and silk has fallen heavily in the last few days. The market dropped seriously in Japan, and it is beginning to drop now in the United States. The huge department stores in the large cities are making drastic reductions; reductions so unusual that they have attracted comment in the press of the entire country.

To those who do not live in the great centers, such reductions seem to mean only one thing—that high prices are coming down. Do the dwellers in towns and the smaller cities realize that what is happening in New York and Chicago and Philadelphia is also happening right in their midst?

Reduction sales in the Salisbury stores have been running for weeks; sales in which the buyer could obtain equally as good bargains in quality, quantity, and price as he or she could find in larger communities. It would be well for the citizens of Salisbury to know their own city in all its phases; to know what their fellow townsmen are doing; to know what their merchants are selling. Such knowledge would save many a dollar and many a long trip, and it would help your city to grow and become a better place in which to live.

And the reduction sales now going on are really the result of natural economic laws. There are those who will not believe in the altruism of the average business man; and who will believe that all advertising is simply sales propaganda; but these people never really give a moment's thought to business conditions apart from their own particular sphere.

The sales now in progress may be due to the fact that merchants are over-stocked. But why are they over-stocked? Because they bought for you and you did not buy from them. As your personal representative they did what you, individually, never could do; they thoroughly investigated the entire market and selected the best in quality, style, and value and brought it here for you.

The present stock in Salisbury could be kept until it is sold; but to give you the best merchandising service in the world, the Salisbury merchants are willing to sacrifice their fair, legitimate profits in order that they may restock and give you the latest styles, fabrics, and colors that the market affords.

Only through your co-operation with your own city's business men can such a shopping system as we have, be maintained; and it is decidedly to your advantage to maintain it. Give your home merchants your most hearty, sympathetic co-operation. The infinite value resulting from such a course of action will astonish you.

BUILDING & LOAN
ASSN. HAS MEETING

Twenty-sixth Annual Session of Wicomico B. & L. Assn., Shows It To Be In Flourishing Condition.

The 26th annual meeting of the stockholders of the Wicomico Building and Loan association of Salisbury was held on Monday evening in the office in the Cooper building. Five hundred and eighty shares of stock were represented in person and by proxy.

The meeting was presided over by the president, Hon. J. D. Price, and Wm. M. Cooper acted as secretary. H. L. Brewington and Mark Cooper were elected tellers to canvass the vote and ascertain if enough shares were present in person or by proxy to hold the meeting. This being ascertained, the secretary was called upon to read the annual report for the year ending April 30, 1920. This report showed assets of $190,953.72, as follows: Mortgages, $175,402.25; loans to stockholders, $7,350.00; Liberty bonds, $1,000.00; office furniture $400.00; real estate, $104.50; cash in bank, $6,696.97.

The liabilities were reported as follows: Common stock, $106,900.00; dividend on common stock, at 6 per cent, $6,534.00; preferred stock, $66,600.00; interest on the preferred, $990.00; undivided profits, $7,929.72, making a total of $190,953.72. Dividend checks were handed to the stockholders present, after which the old board of directors, consisting of J. D. Price, C. D. Disharoon, J. C. White, U. W. Dickerson, W. M. Cooper and Jay Williams was re-elected for the ensuing year. This closed the stockholders' meeting.

The directors then held a short meeting, re-electing the old officers, viz.: president, J. D. Price; vice-president, C. R. Disharoon; treasurer, J. C. White; secretary, W. M. Cooper; assistant secretary, Miss Mary E. Hearn; attorney, Jay Williams; examiners, U. W. Dickerson and Wm. M. Cooper; auditors, C. R. Disharoon and C. J. Birkhead.

Select Your Waists from This Sale

There is every incentive to do that. There are new styles here, dainty materials such as Georgettes, jap silks, Crepe de chine; and the prettiest trimming that give these blouses a becoming softness and charm.

Added to that we are offering these blouses this week at very unusual prices.

For example there are models from $2.50 to $6.00 that it will be impossible to duplicate probably.

So we repeat that it is wise to come in early this week and select your waists from these collections.

Here they are grouped under three prices, for quick clearance and we believe it will be quick, at these prices.

LOT NO. 1. Waists that sold around $2.50.....Sale Price $1.95
LOT NO. 2. Waists that sold around $3.50 and $4.00.....Sale Price $2.85
LOT NO. 3. Waists that sold up to $6.00.....Sale Price $4.60

OUR SALE OF SUITS, COATS AND DRESSES STILL CONTINUES AT A REDUCTION OF 20% OFF FORMER PRICES, ADDED TO THIS SALE ARE SKIRTS AT THE SAME REDUCTION.

Another Sale of Oxfords & Pumps For Women

Several weeks ago we conducted a sale of odds and ends of women's shoes, which was very successful. It was such a success that every single pair was sold.

This sale proves to us that another sale at this time would not be amiss. We have no more before the war shoes to offer, as the last lot was, at before the war prices, so we are going to offer now, new goods that have only been in the house a few weeks.

We are offering these shoes at a sacrifice of profit, and we hope that you will take advantage of the opportunity to secure several pairs.

Every Pair of Shoes that we sell above $10.00, You must pay a Government Tax upon.

THIS IS OUR SPECIAL.

All of our $10.50, $11.00, $11.50, and $12.00 Pumps and Oxfords for Women

SPECIAL AT $10.00 AND NO WAR TAX.

See our Window Display of Them.

Men's Socks--A Special

We have advertised many specials for women in the past several weeks and very few for men. We have thought of the men, 'tis true, but could find nothing that would interest them as a special.

Here is one that will interest wives and mothers, for the men, SOCKS.

Here are two lots of socks, the first lot at 50c, includes pure silk and artificial silk socks that have a value up to $1.00 the pair, in the following colors. Fancy socks, Black, Brown, Grey, White, Bronze. Not all sizes of any kind, but all sizes are represented in the lot.

The second lot consists of socks that sold up to 75c the pair. These will be sold at 25c the pair, and this lot includes Palm Beach, Black, Brown, Navy and Cadet Blue and Smoke.

Here Is A Sale Of Sweaters That Is Of Interest

Just the time to purchase a sweater, when it will be of the most use. The days are still cool and a sweater just fills the need of a light wrap.

$5.00 SWEATERS ARE NOW $3.75.

$6.00 SWEATERS ARE NOW $4.50.

$7.00 SWEATERS ARE NOW $5.25.

$8.50 SWEATERS ARE NOW $6.38.

$10.00 SWEATERS ARE NOW $7.50.

$12.50 SWEATERS ARE NOW $9.38.

A SALE OF ODDS AND ENDS OF STAMPED GOODS--To Clear Away

We have always carried an extensive line of stamped goods. Before the high prices were talked about, we had a large stock of this class of goods of which we have sold very little in the past two years. Embroidery work took a back seat when the war broke out and naturally these stamped pieces have remained in our stock ever since. We have added no new pieces to our old stock because it was not necessary, we had no demand for them.

EMBROIDERY WORK HAS REVIVED A LITTLE IN THE PAST MONTH OR SO

But the idea of this sale is not the fact that embroidery work has revived, but the fact that the good materials that are in these pieces can be made use of in various ways at such little cost as compared to new materials.

FOR LINEN NAPKINS, SCARFS, PILLOW CASES, AND OTHER PIECES THAT DO NOT REQUIRE A PIECE OF LINEN OVER FROM 18 TO 24 INCHES SQUARE, THESE PIECES ARE IDEAL.

All that is necessary is to boil the stamping out of them and there you have a good piece of linen or crash at about an eighth of the price that you would have to pay for new linen off the piece.

THEY ARE GROUPED UNDER TWO PRICES.

39c for the Pieces that formerly sold (before the war) at from 50c to $1.00
19c for the Pieces that formerly sold at from 25c to 50c.

NOTE:—None of these will be laid aside, none sent on approval, none sent C. O. D.

CHURCHES TO URGE BETTER ROADS NEEDS

Pastors Will Work With The Ship-by-Truck—Good Roads Committee On Sunday, May 16.

Issuing a call for the observance of Good Roads' Sunday, May 16, in connection with National Ship by Truck—Good Roads Week, May 17-22, the committee in charge of arrangements for the week have addressed a letter to clergymen of every denomination inviting their attention to the "relation between good roads and right living and good roads and Christian progress."

Stressing the point that the early construction of better highways will prove one of the quickest means of facilitating production, the calls says: "The purpose is to fix in the hearts of citizens the conviction that the next step to be taken for the welfare of the community, the nation and the world is immediately to improve the highways and to inaugurate measures whereby every mile of roadbed in the United States may be hard surfaced as soon as the combined forces of counties, states, and the federal government can secure this result."

The urgent need of increased transportation facilities is emphasized in the call which continues:

"The waterways and railways no longer can handle the volume of traffic that must be moved.

"City dwellers cannot continue to pay the present prices of foodstuffs. A national factor in these excessive costs is the haul from the farm to the town over primitive roads. If production is to be increased, the farmer's life must be made attractive. Nothing will produce this result as surely as modern highways."

LOCAL CHURCH IS WELL REPRESENTED

The Woman's Missionary society of the Eastern Shore District, Virginia conference, was in session Tuesday and Wednesday of this week at Wachapreague, Va. The meetings were largely attended and very flattering reports were presented from the various churches in the district. Trinity church, Salisbury, was represented by the following delegates: Mrs. W. R. Dobson, Mrs. C. D. Krause, Miss Mary Smith, Mrs. I. E. Jones, Mrs. I. L. Price.

The Index is the Heart of the File.

You may have the best article file made; the cabinet work may be perfection, the finish superb, and the drawers may respond to the slightest touch, but if your letters are not properly indexed, you might as well have used a soap box.

Efficiency and good results depend on your selection of a good system of filing and finding letters—only partially on the cabinet itself. Like a beautiful automobile with a poor motor, a file with a poor index can not give good results.

The speed you get from your Filing Department determines to a large extent the speed of your whole office organization, and especially does it affect the efficiency and output of your high priced department heads.

WARNS AGAINST "STRETCHING" SEED

Expert Tells Farmers Not To Plant Potato Seed Which Is Cut Too Small. Poor Yields Will Result.

With ordinary potatoes selling at luxury prices, with seed potatoes yet higher and almost beyond the reach of the average farmer's pocketbook, there will be a tendency for potato growers this season to stretch the quantity of their seed over too great an area, thinks Dr. H. J. Patterson, director of the Maryland State College Experiment station.

Undoubtedly a great many potato growers, hearkening to the siren voice of high prices, will make efforts for a bumper crop this fall, says Dr. Patterson. On the other hand they will be confronted by the high prices which they in turn will have to pay for seed. In trying to make the most of these two difficult situations, growers will be tempted to follow the line of least resistance and make a small quantity of seed plant a large area of land. This will mean cutting the seed potatoes into small pieces.

Experiments at the college for the past few years have shown beyond a doubt that the greatest yield from potatoes, regardless of the acreage involved, results from the planting of medium sized pieces, explains Dr. Patterson. During the war, while every effort of the state and the country was bent toward economical production, attempts were made to produce potatoes from parings and some people were inclined to try this method. The theory of this suggestion was based on the fact that the eyes of the potato produce the sprouts and that the parings could thus be utilized for the production of the next crop while the potato itself could be used for food. Experiments, however, do not justify this practice, says Dr. Patterson.

It has been proven that the young potato plant needs a certain amount of nourishment from the parent seed for successful growth. This nourishment is derived from the piece of potato in which the eye is embedded and a dif this nourishment is reduced below a certain limit, the yield suffers. The most profitable size to plant, considering the value of the seed and the results to be obtained, should weigh from one and a half to two ounces, or about the size of a hen's egg. Smaller pieces produce proportionately smaller yields although they may be planted over a considerable larger area of ground.

Dr. Patterson further urges the careful selection of seed potatoes. Medium sized potatoes, representative of the type to which they belong, without irregularities and free from disease, should be chosen for planting. They should be cut into pieces of the proper size with not less than two eyes to each piece and should be planted soon after cutting.

Another difficulty which Maryland growers are apt to encounter, says Dr. Patterson, is a disease which has recently affected the McCormick potato and which is not readily detected. In order to eliminate this disease from the potato seed, Dr. Patterson recommends that the potatoes which are chosen for planting should be allowed to sprout in a warm bright room before being cut. Ordinarily the sprouting of potatoes before planting is not advised owing to the danger of breaking the sprouts in handling the seed.

Sprouting, however, is the surest method of detecting this disease, observes Dr. Patterson. Potatoes which produce long, spindly shoots should be discarded as indicating a lack of vigor while the ones showing short, sturdy sprouts are the ones to select for planting.

DRY LAWS PUT JAIL OUT OF BUSINESS

Superintendent of Allegheny County
Calabrese Shows How "Drys"
Have Hurt Business Since July 1.

The 50th annual report of the Allegheny (Pittsburgh) county Workhouse and Inebriates' asylum shows that prohibition has nearly ruined that institution. The superintendent, on the 11th page of the report says:

"The total number of prisoners in confinement on December 31st, 1918, was 763, and the number in confinement December 31st, 1919, was 493. Only six months of 1919, however, were prohibition months.

"The superintendents seems to take a particular interest in the effects of prohibition upon the total of commitments to this institution, for he says:

"In connection with the above, as a matter of information, we herewith attach a comparative statement, showing the commitments for various offenses for the first 6 months and the last 6 months of the year 1919:

	1st six 2d six
	Mths. Mths. Ttl.
Assault and battery	27 18 45
Aggravated aslt & bt'y	21 14 35
Felony asslt & bt'y	41 19 60
Being com. prostitute	60 19 79
Disorderly conduct	334 50 384
Drunkness	149 12 161
Larceny, etc.	155 75 230

Vagrancy	573 62 635
Miscellaneous	397 197 594
	2,698 370 3,428

The table showing the number received during each month of 1919 is most illuminating. The first six months of 1919 were wet months and the second six months were dry. Beginning with July 1st, there was a sharp decrease in the number of prisoners received and this decrease continued right through the year as is shown by the following table:

	Males	Females	Total
January	504	34	538
February	702	41	743
March	420	38	458

POSSIBLE PLAY YARDS.

By Katharine Beebe.

The readers of these articles do not need to be convinced of the importance and educational value of children's play. Among the intelligent parents of today it is now largely a question of ways and means. Play apparatus such as slides, swings, seesaws and sand boxes are being purchased and set up in yards and gardens on every side and most schools are now well equipped with such devices. This provision for occupation is good—very good—as far as it goes, but it does not go far enough.

An observer of children at play knows that the usual types of apparatus furnish them many well occupied hours, but it is a common occurrence for these expensive articles to be deserted for the street, the vacant lot, the building in process of construction around the corner, the forbidden pond or the lake. How can we add to the attraction of the home yard so as to increase the number of hours of contented play there and decrease those undesirable wanderings? To meet this need I offer the suggestion which comes to me from my observation of a school in my vicinity. In the ground surrounding the building there is a so-called Construction Zone, a strip of land where any child or group of children may work according to inclination. Garden tools, hammers, nails and boards of various sizes were furnished. Within a few months a variety of houses, huts, tents and other nameless contrivances appeared, each one representing hours of honest effort and moment of great satisfaction to the little carpenter who had constructed it.

Last spring one of my neighbors turned over a tract of land in her yard to the boys, for constructive purposes and their entire vacation was devoted to the excavation of a lake into which flowed a river having its source under a distant hose connection. It was September before the water could be turned in and the building of rafts begun.

If the parents of young children will give them paving blocks, boards, boxes, a ladder, a pair of trestles, a clothes line and pulleys, hammers, saws, nails and shovels, the children will do the rest. But they should not be given too many tools at once.

In this day of combinations a community play yard of this description could easily be put into operation. It would be necessary to place the tools in the care of some responsible person who could give them out and put them away. Of course ground so occupied would look like chaos compared to the usual neat lawn, but again, but the result would be worth the price. If the chosen spot be surrounded by a vine covered or a hedge of elder, willow or other quick growing greenery, it would probably be a gratification to the neighborhood, but a community play yard is a co-operative possibility.

FERTILIZE! INTENSIFY!

All the world is crying for more production. Products of the farm are just as vitally needed today as they were during the war. Farmers should take advantage of this situation by intensifying the cultivation of their acreage. In other words, without increasing your acreage, which can be termed overhead, intensify your production by fertilizing your present acreage.

The right use of Tilghman's Fish Fertilizers will enable farmers of this section to increase their yield without any additional expense, because the increase in production and profits through the right use of Tilghman's Fish Fertilizers will more than offset your fertilizing cost.

Tax Question This Year Will Present Preplexing Problem

der which the state and national government provide a very large portion of the fund for building permanent roads, it will be necessary for the commissioners to appropriate for the deficiencies of last year and the expenditures of this year not less than one hundred thousand dollars for public roads, and so it is very apparent if the county is to keep pace with the progress of the times and use that portion of the road funds which should be used and which is contributed by the state and national government, that it will not be surprising if the tax rate for 1920 reaches $2.75 per hundred dollars, especially so if the commissioners meet the demands of the Board of Education for the thirty odd thousand dollars for new school houses and repairs to old ones.

This is a serious situation and brings to mind the fact that the commissioners will be compelled to do one of two things; either to cut out school and road improvements, as it seems impossible to get a bond issue in the county, or else to have a general revision of the taxable basis of the county. Speaking on this subject, one of our well-known financiers remarked:

"The present taxable basis of Wicomico county is in the neighborhood of $17,000,000, and while this as compared with a few years ago seems quite large, as a matter of fact if the property throughout the county was anywhere near equitably assessed, the basis would be nearer $25,000,000 than $17,000,000. I know of hundreds of acres of land bordering along the state highways which are on the tax books today at practically what they were before the state roads were built, and yet the state and county have spent many hundreds of thousands of dollars in improving these roadways, and of course, at the same time have made this farm land advance in price from a few dollars an acre to several hundred dollars an acre. Take the section from Salisbury to Mardela Springs and Sharptown and see just what has been done for that portion of the county. After the building of the state highways, farm lands advanced from a few dollars per acre to several hundred dollars per acre and yet if you will go and examine the tax books you will find the land is assessed at about what it was ten years ago. If there has been any advance it has been so slight as to make it almost unrecognizable. There are hundreds of acres of farm lands on both sides of the state highway leading from Salisbury to Barren Creek within a radius of eight miles of this city which the owners have recently refused as much as from $200.00 to $250.00 per acre, and I will venture the assertion that not a single acre of it is on the tax books for more than forty to fifty dollars an acre, if that much. The same condition prevails in every other section of the county. Take for instance the land bordering on the state highway from Salisbury to Allen. I understand, and in fact after examination I find it to be true, that a great deal of this land is on the tax books at from nine to ten dollars per acre and from as low as seven dollars per acre, and yet some of it has been sold for as much as $50 to $100 per acre, and I heard recently of a gentleman in that section who wanted $90,000 for his timber rights on land that is now assessed on the tax books at about ten dollars per acre. This does not hold good only in one case, but there are hundreds of such cases, and as an example I might cite that recently a gentleman living in Salisbury sold a tract of timber land to one of our large mill concerns for a price which was said to be $100,000, and on examination of the tax books it was found that all this property was not on the tax books at more than twenty odd thousand dollars. Another case which might be cited where a tract of timber was sold by a gentleman living in Salisbury to another mill operator for the sum of $40,000, and it is said on good authority that this tract of land was on the tax books at about ten to twelve dollars per acre, or about 10% of the value he received for the property when it was disposed of, and probably is still on the books at this same low rate. Another case I might cite was where a gentleman bought a tract of small timber for which he paid $10,000 and an examination of the tax books show that the property was assessed at nine hundred dollars, and I feel sure this same piece of property is assessed at the same price today.

"Is it therefore surprising that the tax rate in Wicomico County should amount to such large proportions when there has been such a lax method in the assessments which have been made year by year? Here in Salisbury where, by the way, property has been assessed at almost its selling value in the past there are some cases which are just as surprising and just as ridiculous as some of the country property. During the past six months more real estate has changed hands in this city than for probably five years previous, and at prices which have really astounded the average citizen. It has been a common thing for Main and Dock street properties to sell at prices ranging from $15,000 to $50,000, which for years have been on the tax books at less than 10% of the price received for them by their owners. These properties are still on the tax books at the same old rate and will probably remain there unless the County Commissioners wake up to the fact that something must be done to relieve the present situation. One notable incident is a piece of property on Main street which sold for many thousands of dollars and which was casually looked up the other day as to its value on the assessment book and it was found to be only about 8% of the price it brought at private sale, and I have heard of incidents recently where real estate has been refused sale at prices ranging from $18,000 to $25,000 and on investigation have found that they are valued on the tax books at from $4,500 to $6,500.

"There has been some question as to the right of the County Commissioners to reassess special properties without reassessing the whole county, but the commissioners have plenty of authority to reassess any piece of property at any time they are convinced that the old assessment is not equitable, and certainly the commissioners could not serve their constituents in a more valuable way than to set aside a few weeks of time and go into this whole situation, district by district, and do it themselves, and not allow the average local assessor to use favoritism, as has been the case in the past in assessing property in his respective localities. To cite how absurd the assessments are in some sections of Wicomico, I might say that the marsh lands along the Wicomico and Nanticoke Rivers, as well as in Trappe district, which are now so valuable because of the large revenues received for muskratting, are in many cases on the tax books at about three dollars per acre, and yet it was a common thing this past winter for these marshes to produce revenues ranging from $1500 to $7000 to their owners, and many of them in Barren Creek, Sharptown, Nanticoke, Tyaskin and Trappe Districts were leased out by their owners at sums ranging from one to three thousand dollars, and yet the entire marsh would not be assessed on the tax books at a price which would produce the county a revenue of fifty dollars per year. And so I might go on and enumerate thousands of other cases, the absurdity of which is so flagrant that I fail to see how the County Commissioners can sit in their office and allow these abuses to go on any further without trying to rectify them."

NEW BUILDING NEARING COMPLETION

Stores, Offices And Furnished Rooms In New Structure At Corner Of Main and Lake Streets.

The two story brick building on W. Main street near Lake which has been in course of construction for nearly four months will be completely finished early next week.

E. Peter Linnet, the owner of the building will occupy one half of the first floor using it as a dry goods and notions store. George Byrd will rent the other half of the main floor to be used as a meat and provisions store; both have already moved in. The second story will be divided into eleven rooms two to be occupied as offices and nine as furnished rooms, the former being already rented. The entrance to the second floor is at the side of the building. These rooms will be ready for tenants in about two weeks.

Messick Bros. have done the brick work on the building and the cost of completely erecting the structure is in the neighborhood of $15,000.

Mr. Linnet bought the land from James Lowe after the fire in 1918, which destroyed his stable there.

FIRST STRAWBERRIES HERE ON SATURDAY

"Gabe" Banks of Trappe District Bings A Quart To The City, And It Sells For 50 Cents.

Following his usual custom of being the grower of the earliest strawberries in Wicomico county, "Gabe" Banks, of Trappe district, brought to Salisbury on Saturday, May 15, a quart of luscious strawberries, which sold readily for 50 cents. Mr. Banks stated to a News reporter that he expected to pick several quarts of berries this week, but not so many as he would have done had not the recent frosts done so much damage to the early berries. He said also that the heavy frosts and ice of the last few nights had done hundreds of dollars damage to his bean, tomato, cantaloupe and melon crops. The same reports come from other farmers and truckers in various sections of Wicomico county.

YOUTHS OF 16 MAY OPERATE CARS

State Motor Vehicle Commissioner
However Does Not Favor Allowing Permits To Youthful Persons.

Automobile Commissioner Baughman is preparing to take care of a great rush for operators and chauffeurs licenses during the month of June. On June 1, the recent amendment of Section 143 of the Motor Vehicle Law goes into effect. This amendment provides that youths between the ages of 16 and 18 years may now apply for a license to operate automobiles in this state and be granted one in the event that they satisfactorily pass the required test. The Automobile Commissioner has been opposed to the lowering of the age limit throughout the fight which was carried on in the legislature on this point. The law was passed however, despite his opposition. The Commissioner is willing to concede that a great many youths between the ages of 16 and 18 years are perfectly competent to shift levers on an automobile and steer same on a straight course but he stoutly maintains that 90% of the boys and girls between these ages have neither the prudence nor the discretion that is required to operate a motor vehicle. It was observed during the recent war, when by a special war measure, certain youths between 16 and 18 years of age were permitted to take out chauffeurs and operators licenses, that most of these boys were prone to "Pass everything on the road," oftentimes doing this at the most inopportune moments when the view ahead was obstructed by a curve or when the way ahead was not clear of approaching traffic. The Commissioner sincerely hopes, that those parents who allow their 16 and 17 year old offspring to obtain licenses to operate automobiles, will see that they are thoroughly instructed regarding the operation of same, and that when practical these youngsters be accompanied by one of their elders, who will be able to check those outbreaks of that fast and reckless driving mania which has so often spread death and destruction in its path. The Commissioner has decided that inasmuch as none of these applicants between the ages of 16 and 18 years have ever had an opportunity to drive before in this state he will require that they keep their instruction license for the full period of thirty (30) days before issuing them a regular operators license. By the provisions of Section 143 no one is allowed to drive on an instruction license unless accompanied by a regularly licensed operator. The Automobile Commissioner's office is daily in receipt of from 50 to 100 applications for operators license from youths below 18 years of age and these applications are being daily returned as no applications may be received until after June 1.

LOCAL GRANGE HAS MOTHERS' PROGRAM

Members of Boys' and Girls' Clubs Put On Excellent Entertainment
On Saturday Night.

Mothers night at Salisbury grange was well attended though the attendance was not as great as on Simplicity night.

Brother Grant Sexton, who is a member of the Executive committee of the state grange, was asked by this grange to urge the necessity of the state grange paying the transportation of the delegates of the smaller granges to the state grange meetings at the next meeting of the executive committee.

As a literary program, there were recitations by some of the grange members and also a little play fitted to the occasion of Mothers day but the major part of the program was furnished by the Boys' and Girls' clubs of Phillips' school.

If these boys and girls have not learned, through their club, a single solitary thing except to keep an open mind and try out new theories, they have learned one great of a lesson.

ODD FELLOWS TO BUILD TEMPLE HERE

At Business Meeting Tuesday Night,
May 25th, Final Plans Will Be Made To Assure Construction.

Newton Lodge No. 56, Independent Order of Oddfellows, of this city, has decided to build a home of its own, to be known as the Oddfellow Temple, and the building will be erected on the lot owned by the order, situated on East Main street, bought about five years ago.

Much enthusiasm is shown by members of the order and although no really concerted effort has yet been made to obtain subscriptions, about one third of the estimated cost has been subscribed. The cost is given as about $32,000. This sum, it is hoped by the officers will be subscribed entirely by members of the order. As there are 401 members of the local lodge, this would give a per capita of about $80.00 per member, and from the results so far, the officers are sanguine as to the ultimate success of the proposition.

As evidencing the esteem in which the order is held by the public, a number of persons not identified with the order, have asked to be allowed to subscribe, a ready assent to which was given.

A number of the most influential men of the town are members of the lodge and are working in behalf of the new home. They realize that the order is a potent factor in the city's life, that its aims are the betterment of society at large, and that a handsome home for the order, will enhance the city's appearance, aid in a development of East Main street, and be a matter for civic pride.

A business meeting will be held on Tuesday night, May 24, at 8 o'clock, in the lodge room, at which time final plans will be shaped up to insure an early start on construction. All members should make it a special point to aid this movement by being present.

FACTORY WHISTLES TO TELL OF WEATHER

County Board of Agriculture Takes Progressive Step For Benefit Of People In The Rural Sections.

The daily broadcasting of the weather report by factory whistles is the newest and most progressive step to date of the Wicomico County Board of Agriculture.

County Agent G. R. Cobb announces that he will receive at his office in the Court House building every day the official weather report for this section. This report may be seen at his office or information concerning it will be given to all persons who call him on the telephone.

In addition to this service, W. C. Mitchell, president of the board, has arranged with C. R. Disharoon & Co., of this city, Benjamin & Graham, of Fruitland, R. G. Davis & Co., of Willards and G. A. Bounds & Co., of Hebron to announce the weather forecast daily by their factory whistles according to the following code of signals:

One long blast, fair weather.
Two long blasts, rain.
Three short blasts, cold wave.

The weather signal will be blown from each of these factory whistles every morning at 11 o'clock. With in the near future, arrangements will be made, with other factories to also give the farmers the benefit of the free weather report service.

Information concerning the weather forecast can be had by telephone either at the office of the county agent or at the office of the Tomato Growers' association.

HOTEL PROSPECTS SEEM TO BE BRIGHT

According to reports received from apparently authentic sources, the Shoreman hotel proposition is nearing completion and the hotel itself will soon be a reality. More than $110,000 of the needed $150,000 has been subscribed, and the greater part of the needed balance is practically assured. It is said that just as soon as the stock subscribed amounts to $150,000, the actual construction of the new hotel building will be started; and it is also said that the prospects of beginning the work in the near future are promising.

JONES-DAVIS

On Wednesday evening at 7.30 o'clock, Miss Reba Davis, of Salisbury became the bride of Earle Jones of Hampton, Va., formerly of Salisbury. The ceremony was performed by Rev. T. R. Reeves at the M. E. parsonage. The bride was attired in a suit of navy blue, hat and gloves to match, and carried brides roses. They were attended by Mr. and Mrs. Denwood Bosman. On Thursday afternoon, Mr. and Mrs. Jones left for Hampton, Va., where they will make their home.

DR. CARPENTER HURT IN AUTO ACCIDENT

Was Driving To Baltimore With Dr.
O. O. Trice When His Machine
Turned Turtle at Chestertown.

Dr. James H. Carpenter of this city lies in the Johns Hopkins hospital in Baltimore, suffering with a fractured collar bone and fractures of both arms as the result of an automobile accident which happened six miles from Chestertown while he and Dr. O. O. Trice, also of this city, were driving to Baltimore. Whether or not Dr. Carpenter sustained other injuries is not known.

Reports reaching this city on Wednesday morning concerning the accident which happened on Tuesday night, say that the machine which Dr. Carpenter was driving turned turtle six miles from Chestertown, and that Dr. Carpenter was pinned beneath it. Dr. Trice, it is said, was thrown from the machine but was uninjured. Fortunately the accident happened close by a garage and assistance was promptly given. Mrs. Carpenter was notified of the accident on Tuesday night and left immediately for Baltimore.

MAKING CHANGES IN DIVISION ST. PROPERTY

W. R. Disharoon Moves Seabreeze House From North Division To William Street. Other Changes.

Walter R. Disharoon, who recently purchased the Seabreeze property, better known as the George W. Humphreys home, on North Division street has a large force at work this week moving the front building to a lot on William street, which he recently purchased from the heirs of George W. Leonard.

This portion of the house will be remodeled and improved for the owner's occupancy until building conditions become more normal, when Mr. Disharoon expects to erect a new home on the Seabreeze lot.

The rear portion of the old home will be fitted up for the present occupant, Capt. L. McKim Porter, until Mr. Disharoon gets ready to build.

It is quite an undertaking to move the old home, as it will be necessary to remove the telephone cables and electric light wires from a long stretch on North Division street.

LOCAL MAN DIES IN NORTH CAROLINA

Walter K. Evans, Brother of Mrs.
Walter J. Powell, Of Salisbury Is Laid To Rest Here.

Salisbury was shocked to hear of the death of Walter K. Evans, which occurred on Wednesday, May 5th in Asheville, N. C. While it has been known for two years that he was far from well, yet his physician and family have been hopeful of his condition. He had been at Asheville only one week however when he became so much worse that death was expected daily.

The deceased was born in Salisbury January 29th, 1886, and was the son of the late Sewell T. and Maggie K. Evans. After finishing in the school here, in 1903 he went to Washington, D. C. with the Home Savings bank and steadily gained promotion. In 1910 he married Miss Miriam Caywood and later became associated with the A. S. Caywood Real Estate office of Washington. His widow and two children, Betsy Margaret and William Wallace, survive him.

The remains arrived in Salisbury on Thursday, the funeral services being held Friday morning at the home of his sister, Mrs. Walter J. Powell. Mrs. Evans and Chester Caywood returned to Washington that afternoon. A great deal of sympathy is felt for his relatives both in Salisbury and Washington.

Editorial Comments of Live Local Subjects

BIG CROP MAY SPELL RUIN.

Tobacco growers throughout the Danville section have been told that over-production of tobacco during the coming season, is likely to spell ruin. With an increase of 200,000,000 pounds of tobacco over the 1919 crop, when 470,000,000 pounds was produced, there is grave danger of a slump in prices which will yield the grower less money than the cost of production. Leading tobacco manufacturers and dealers in the raw material have realized the situation, and are spreading propaganda in the rural districts in order that the farmers may have the situation properly explained.

The 1919 crop sold for the highest average ever known, this being a great incentive for a larger acreage in the crop now being planted out. The great depreciation of the rate of exchange in Europe is considered an effective bar to normal exports, and as there is a sufficient accumulation of raw tobacco now on hand to take care of all practical and domestic needs, it is a foregone conclusion that the prices at the opening of the coming season will be far below those of last season.

With fertilizer selling at a high price and farm labor both scarce and high, leading tobacco men say that the production of a larger crop will be fraught with the peril of selling it at a cost below that of production. The growers of the Danville section are showing great interest in the situation, and there are indications that many of them are redrawing their plans and are now intent upon raising more widely used domestic products. The continuation of cool weather is greatly delaying the growth of tobacco, and a late season is already assured.

ROOSEVELT COIN APPROVED.

Coinage of a Roosevelt two-cent piece is authorized by a bill passed May 3rd by the Senate. Senator King, Democrat, Utah, objected to the authorization, but withdrew his objection after other Senators had asserted there was a business necessity and convenience as well as a commemorative purpose to be served by the action.

Coinage of 50-cent pieces to commemorate the three hundredth anniversary of the landing of the pilgrims and the hundredth anniversaries of the admission of Maine and Alabama into the Union, is authorized in bills passed by the Senate. The bills have already passed the House.

EMERGENCY SUPPLIES JUST IN TIME.

One million dollars worth of American Red Cross relief supplies, comprising 150 carloads, was recently unloaded at Constantinople from the steamer Itu, destined for South Russian refugees who are swarming helpless and starving over the lower Balkans and Caucasus. These supplies, distributed by the Near East Relief Commission, working in conjunction with the American Red Cross, include 50 carloads of surgical dressings, 22 carloads of clothing, yarn and blankets, 25 carloads of hospital supplies, 45 carloads of bedding and ten of hospital clothing. Drugs, food, and other supplies make up the remainder.

A DECADE OF SUCCESS.

On the occasion of the tenth annual meeting there should be included a summary of our record of accomplishment for the past ten years, says Chief Scout Executive James E. West, in his annual report on the Boy Scouts of America.

Estimating the number of boys reached by Scouting prior to the adoption of our record and registration scheme in September, 1913, fully one and a quarter million boys accepted the Scout Oath and Law and have qualified for one or more Scout badges.

Scouting as a program for the leisure-time activities of boys in 1910 was still to be shaped and fashioned by the hand of experience into the definite thing it now is after 10 years of testing.

Accepted by the public in the beginning largely as a play idea, now at the end of its first decade, Scouting is recognized as an educational factor that not only can not be ignored by the schools, but must eventually become a supplementary feature of all our public school work.

The Gang Spirit A Natural One.

In this brief ten years since the Boy Scouts of America began in the United States we have had the great satisfaction of having been able to demonstrate to the parents of America that the gang spirit is a natural spirit in a boy and can be made the agency of his training in citizenship.

In this decade it has been established that almost all that is needed is right leadership in order that boys shall obey the better instincts of their natures.

When it is said that, "A Scout is loyal," "A Scout is trustworthy," there has simply been announced a truism of all boys. Scouting has not made boys loyal and brave and courteous, it has merely given boyhood the opportunity to express itself according to its better nature.

It seems fair to say that ten years ago boys of America for the most part were left to follow wrong bents in their natures for practically all of their leisure time.

An Epic of Spring

The winter has been tedious,
The cold has been severe;
There was little to amuse us,
Still less to bring us cheer.

But the spring is now approaching,
All our sorrows are forgot;
'Cause the Jowl and Greens are steaming
In the fragrant dinner pot.

Flowery epics have been written
Of the turkey and the quail;
Venison and turtle also,
And the toothsome little rail.
But the crowning joy of feasting
Comes to him who casts his lot
Where the Jowl and Greens come steaming
From the fragrant dinner pot.

Give to those who know no better,
All the fancy Frenchy grub,
With its nameless high toned dishes
Served in restaurant and club.
We prefer the sweets and corn pone,
Spread with butter, piping hot,
And the Jowl and Greens a steaming,
From the fragrant dinner pot.

A Woman's Profession

There is a profession for women—and a most honored one it is. It is not acquired in a day or a week, but once gained is always an asset for livelihood and honorable service, and once acquired is never lost.

Do you know that throughout this country many of our greatest hospitals have schools for nurses? Tuition, board and lodging are not only free, but you are paid for your time while learning. The opening is there for rich or poor—for the woman who has learned that serving brings happiness, and that a profession means independence.

It is a three years' course for women between the ages of 18 and 35 who are healthy, conscientious, loyal and who understand the happiness that comes from service.

And, your training completed, you have a profession that insures independence and comfort always.

Any and all questions will gladly be answered and complete information given if you will communicate either in person or by letter with My 20.

THE OPINION OF ONE WOMAN.

(By Esther Dell.)

Some one has asked me to give my opinion as to whether or not the so-called modern or popular music is an improvement over those old tunes that have lived and will continue to live through the ages. I suppose I have already answered the question haven't I, in the manner in which I have put the subject of this week's article?

Now remember please that my opinion is the opinion of only one woman—a woman who is proud that there is a great deal of sentiment and romance in her nature—a woman who loves dearly those things which SHE holds to be dear and clean and beautiful. Of course my conception of those things may be different from yours; but I am giving my opinion, and not yours.

I can see no music in the popular modern stuff—and I say stuff because I think it is just that and nothing more. I can see a great deal of music in those compositions which Longfellow must have had in mind when he wrote in his The Children of the Lord's Supper:

"Writ in the climate of Heaven, in the language of the angels."
Think you that Holland had the 20th century jazz stuff in mind when in his Plain talks on familiar subjects—Art and Life, he wrote:

"Music was a thing of the soul
—a rose lipped shell that murmured of the eternal sea—a strange bird singing the songs of another shore."
Listen to Pope in his Ode on St. Cecilia's Day and see if you think he had mind any such atrocious stuff as "You'd Be Surprised," or "Can You Tame Wild Women"—Here is what he says:

"Hark! the numbers soft and clear,
Gently steal upon the ear;
Now louder, and yet louder rise
And fill with spreading sounds the skies."

There is another quotation, this one from Rabelais, which seems to me to apply to the stuff which we are prone to call modern music:

"Above the pitch, out of tune and off the hinges."—And another from Henry VI which also seems to be applied to the modern stuff:

"How irksome is this music to my heart!
When such strings jar, what hope of harmony?"

Webster says of music, that it is the science or art of pleasing through expressive or intelligible combinations of tones—that it is melody or harmony, as the music of the streams.

But to get down to really practical comparisons—and I am dealing chiefly with compositions for the voice, because the modern stuff usually is arranged for the voice or instrument—who is there who will say that "Love's Old Sweet Song," is not to be preferred to "Daddy You've Been a Mother to Me"? Who will say that "Old Black Joe," and "Juanita," are not more to be desired by intelligent and cultivated people than "Dardenella" or "Bubbles"?

Is there anything prettier than that old ballad "In the Gloaming"? Can you compare it justly and intelligently with that stuttering Katy thing which came out during the World war and made such a wonderful hit among a certain class of people?

Take "Sweet and Low" for instance—compare it with any one of the very modern songs and what is your opinion?

It seems foolish for me to go on with more comparisons, because there are no comparisons to be made.

The old songs breathe beauty and morality, while the new songs seem saturated with discord and sensuality. The words set to the music of many of the new songs are not fit or decent for self respecting people to repeat. Each line is fraught with sensual suggestion; and the music, if it is music, is written with the seeming idea of accentuating that sensuality.

It is my opinion that while the old songs are good, pure, clean music, the new stuff or the greater part of it, is written and circulated with the idea of exciting the passions of the people into whose hands it falls.

I thoroughly believe that something should be done to prevent the publication of much of the music, so called, which is now being floated on the market for sale. I believe that most of the so-called modern dances to which the churches have made just and well merited objection have been the outcome of the evil music which has been published and circulated.

Somebody writes a set of words which are evily suggestive; they fall into the hands of some other person who, realizing the tendency of the age to run amuck among the sordid animal passions of life and the opportunity to commercialize those passions, composes a few strains of this cord, for it is rarely harmony, and has it published with the suggestive words. Then the thing is put into the hands of shrewd promoters and flaunted before the eyes of a public which is all too ready to grab it and make it popular, despite its sensuality and its lack of real musical qualities.

Mothers and fathers are mighty careful about the character of books, magazines and newspapers which their children read—but they are just as mightily careless about the kind of music the children play and sing.

I believe that an immoral song and there are hundreds of them in the homes of the American people today, can be just as harmful to a young girl as the most sensual French novel.

I believe music is more to be feared than literature. Music hath charms that no book can possess. It's rhythm finds a home, often in the unconscious mind of a child; the child finds the tune passing through its mind. It can think of no other tune; while the book that is read, is read and very often forgotten. It must be a very well written and very strong story indeed, that remains in the busy mind of a child—but with music it is different. The ringing tones find a lasting place in the receptive and naturally poetic soul of the young.

Too great care cannot be taken in the selection of the music which finds its way to our pianos and our music cabinets if we would keep clear the minds of our children. The ribald, smutty, sensual, unmusical, discordant stuff which is today flaunted in the faces of the American people is a disgrace to the intelligence and the decency of the American people.

Let us get back to the days of "Come Back to Erin," "O Promise Me," "The Nut Brown Maiden," "The Old Brigade," "Then You'll Remember Me," "Juanita," "The Holy City," "Massa's in the Cold, Cold Ground," "Old Nassau," "The Soldier's Farewell," "In the Gloaming," "Unless," "Forgotten," and the thousands of REALLY GOOD songs which we used to sing only a few years ago before we began to run to such stuff as that which we hear on the street corners and in the hell-hole cabarets of the big cities today.

I imagine I have shocked the musical senses of some of my readers in thus rendering my opinion in this matter of comparing the modern stuff which is called music with those calm, clear sweet melodies which stand ever forth in my mind as the real musical classics of the true American home—but I have expressed an opinion which is honest.

Let us get back to the days of that music which Milton must have had in mind when he wrote his Hymn on the Nativity:

"Ring out ye crystal spheres!
Once bless our human ears,
If ye have power to touch our senses so;
And let your silver chime

Move in melodious time;
And let the bass of Heaven's deep organ blow,
And with your nine-fold harmony,
Make up full consort to the angelic symphony."

Carlyle says—"Music is well said to be the speech of the angels," but Carlyle was not referring to rag-time or jazz when he made that observation. If he had been familiar with our 20th century musical stuff he could have as truthfully have said:

"Jazz and rag time are well said to be the language of the Evil One."

LOOKING THE FAMILY OVER

Woman Writer Made Some Suggestions That Are Worth More Than a Passing Thought.

A suggestion by Cella Caroline Cole in the Delineator, on how to live in accord with others and eliminate the jangles offered the following as one item. In solving the problem she said:

"If you'd step out this minute from the habit of looking at your family as the family and take a new look at them as human beings, individuals, struggling, dreaming, falling just as you do—oh, yes, this applies to your father and mother, too; they're not things especially equipped just because they happen to be your father and mother; they're trying even harder than you are to do something, and be something—look at them, the whole family, as people you can do things for, but they needn't do anything for you so far as you are concerned (that's their affair), people you can learn from, every one of them, blessed, brave, marching, hoping human beings groping into life and trying to find the right road to walk on. And then take a look at yourself and see if you are the kind of person you'd like to have for a best friend, and why not. Take a walk in the country every now and then, where there are hills or moors or wide fields if you can get them, something patient and serene and strong."

It is my opinion that while the old songs are good, pure, clean music, the new stuff or the greater part of it, is written and circulated with the idea of exciting the passions of the people into whose hands it falls.

I thoroughly believe that something should be done to prevent the publication of much of the music, so called, which is now being floated on the market for sale. GREAT POET LOVED TOBACCO

Tennyson's Devotion to the Fragrant Weed Can Only Be Described As Intense.

Tennyson's passion for a "long pipe" is well known. The story that he never smoked the same pipe twice can be dismissed, for like all smokers, he detested new pipes. He entertained the liveliest hatred of Florence because he could not get any decent tobacco there, and on this account promptly returned home. Carlyle, describing Tennyson, said: "Smokes infinite tobacco." His devotion to the herb became so intense that literally he could not exist without it. On one occasion, at a soiree of the Royal Society, he declared he must have a pipe. A friend said he should smoke up the chimney of the library or on the roof. Tennyson chose the latter, and with his body thrust half way through the skylight puffed away in peace, descending in a quarter of an hour greatly refreshed. Wherever he went he must be allowed to smoke. Accepting an invitation to visit Gladstone in 1876, he wrote: "As you are good enough to say you will manage anything rather than lose my visit, will you manage that I can have a pipe in my room whenever I like?"

"Strad" Violin Poor Investment. From a contemporary we learn that "Cervetto, an Italian musician in London in the eighteenth century, is said to have received a number of Stradivari violins for sale. He was instructed to ask £4 ($20) each for the violins, but failed to sell them at this exorbitant price, and had to send them back to Italy. With these same violins selling at the present day from $10,000 to $20,000 each, this seems almost incredible, but we must remember that at that time Stradivari was not known as the premier violin maker of the world. However, it would have been a very poor speculation for anyone to have bought the violins at even that nominal sum at that time and hoarded them away for his heirs to sell at the present day. The sum of $20 invested at compound interest at that time would have amounted to far more than $20,000 at the present day. Such is the power of money to breed if kept steadily at work at compound interest."

Anatomy Among the Ancients. It has been pointed out that the statues and plaques carved in stone and wood to be seen in the Gizeh museum prove that the priest mummifiers of Memphis 8,000 years ago possessed a profound knowledge of anatomy. Science, therefore, as Lockyer remarked, is as old as art, and they have advanced together.

Another remarkable fact in this connection is that excavations in Italy have brought to light scores of finely finished surgical instruments for certain operations, which are in almost every particular of form like those reinvented in modern times and used by the most advanced surgeons of today.

New Health Officer.

The Board of County Commissioners of Worcester county met on Tuesday last and named Dr. F. W. Wilson, county health officer to succeed Dr. Paul Jones, who has acceptably filled this position for a number of years.

WHEN YOU NEED A TONIC, TAKE ONE THAT IS ENDORSED BY PHYSICIANS. READ WHAT DR. ARTHUR SAYS ABOUT

MANTONE

THE KING OF RECONSTRUCTIVE TONICS.

The Mantone Company, Baltimore, Md.

Gentlemen: Never did I once think of indorsing a Proprietary Medicine and have always said I never would, but in this particular instance I cannot refrain from doing so.

I have practiced medicine twenty eight years, and during that time when a real Tonic and Tissue-builder was indicated I always prescribed a compound of IRON, NUX VOMICA and PHOSPHORUS, as I always get better results from such a compound than any other.

By indorsing MANTONE tablets I feel that I am not only helping humanity in my local practice, but helping to pave the way to a Nation-wide use of such a valuable prescription.

IRON is known to be the only real blood builder by helping Nature to increase and strengthen the red corpuscles. NUX VOMICA is only real muscular tonic and stimulant, and PHOSPHORUS the only real nerve food and stimulant. By the trio we have a compound superior to all known drugs as a general tonic and stimulant, suitable for all ages and all functional conditions.

For the above reasons I feel that MANTONE tablets deserve the highest place as a builder of humanity and well worthy of its name.

Very truly yours,
DR. W. E. ARTHUR.

JERRY

By AGNES G. BROGAN.
(Copyright, 1920, Western Newspaper Union)

When Aunt Truscott wrote suggesting that I come to her for a visit, I knew that something was up. Aunt Truscott is not generous with her invitations, and I suspected mother had asked for this one. I thought that I knew the reason: Ever since Aunt Sarah returned from Clover Lea—that's the poetical name of Aunt Truscott's estate—with glowing tales of the wealthy bachelor who was expected to arrive to take possession of the big house next door to aunt's, I had noticed mother and Aunt Sarah, too, watching me in speculative fashion. Once I heard Aunt Sarah remark as I sat on the veranda: "Abigail is too friendly with young Persons—who you know amounts to nothing."

And mother had understandingly replied: "I agree with you that it would be well to send her away for a time where she might meet with somebody worth while."

I chuckled. Tortures could never persuade me to accept Bobby Persons. Glory! What a joyous restful time it would be; and Aunt Truscott, the old dear, was quite agreeable. For the first time I forgave her my inherited name of Abigail.

The first cloud on my horizon appeared when I ran aunt's roadster plumb into a spotted dog who ran across my path. The dog was injured. I found, but not so badly as I had feared. His eyes sought my face trustfully as I lifted him into the machine and drove into aunt's barn where we kept the roadster. I was bending over the dog and trying to find the extent of his hurt, when a young man came through a side opening in the barn.

"Tell me where he is hurt," I said. "I ran over him."

The red-haired young man stared at me, then in an instant he was on his knees examining the dog, who weakly wagged his tail.

"Just bruised, I guess," he said at last. "We will have to make a bed for him here. I'm afraid it wouldn't be wise to carry him over next door."

"Next door?" I exclaimed. "Then the dog belongs to the rich bachelor?"

It was out before I realized that I was probably addressing the rich bachelor's chauffeur. The dog had wagged his tail at this young man's appearance and the man had called him "Spotty."

"Who?" he asked stupidly.

"I mean," I endeavored to correct my mistake, "that the dog must belong to your employer, Mr. Walwright, Mr. Obadiah or Hezekiah, or something—Walwright. You work for him, don't you? Are you the chauffeur?"

"I am," the young man promptly replied. "I'm chauffeur and plumber, and everything else for Mr. Walwright's car. Don't I look it?"

"Do you think," I asked fearfully, "that Mr. Walwright will miss his dog and hunt him up? And would he be very angry if he found that I had run into Spotty? Angry enough to bring a case of damages?"

"He can be mighty angry," the young man honestly admitted. "But, I'll take the risk with Spotty. Just bring out a little supper for the dog tonight—then call Jerry through the garage door. I'll come."

Jerry did come, and he not only looked after Spotty but gave aunt's roadster an overhauling that it had needed for months. Then he drove me down a beautiful moonlit road to show a certain pretty spot which had escaped my notice. Jerry was the nicest companion! Jolly and entertaining in a most respectful way, and with the frankest blue eyes I think that I have ever seen. Jerry's face was nice, too, in a good-natured way, when the motor grease had been washed off between the freckles. I liked the freckles, too. They seemed all a part of his wholesomeness, and one night when Spotty got up and trotted out of the barn and it came to me that I was not to meet Jerry any more, I turned to stare at him as though I had never seen him before. And, in truth, I never had seen him in this new understanding way. Jerry, the chauffeur was the man I loved. There was no getting out of it, or around it. And, as I sat there with the sweet-scented breeze blowing in through the open door between us, it seemed to me that I must always have known of my love for this man from the moment he had bent in his dirty clothes over Spotty's maimed figure. Jerry looked toward me now as I stared and his big hands took mine and held them.

"So you have found it out, Gail dear," he said. "Why, I've known all along of my love for you, and of yours for me," he added daringly. "Let's go in and tell Aunt Truscott. I can't let you go back home alone dear. I'm going with you as your husband."

"They won't be pleased at home, Jerry," I faltered. "But that doesn't matter. Nothing in all the world matters." I said wonderingly, "but just only you."

"They'll be pleased, all right," Jerry remarked when he had kissed me. "For I'm the bachelor you had heard of, himself. Not Obadiah, or Hezekiah—but Jeremiah Walwright instead—from next door!"

PREPARE FOR COLLEGE NEW CAMPAIGN SLOGAN

PUBLIC SCHOOLS TO OBSERVE MAY 14 TO GIVE STIMULUS TO IMPORTANT MOVEMENT.

Public schools here have been requested to observe May 14, which has been designated "Prepare for College Day" in this state and in the other states comprising the Fifth Federal Reserve District.

During chapel exercises, or at other specified periods that day, it is suggested that addresses be made in the high schools by leading business men and prominent educators, and in the elementary schools by the teachers. The purposes of the observance, it is explained, are to stress the importance of a college education and to offer suggestive methods whereby the pupils, and their parents, may plan ahead with a college course definitely in view.

Women's clubs are being asked to help in the movement, and the Rotary clubs also are expected to take part, while many churches have expressed their interest and indicated their desire to participate. Further, the United States Treasury Department, through the district War Loan Organization, is lending assistance, and the general plan, it is announced, has received the heartiest approval of practically every college president in the state.

Miss Mary G. Shotwell, director of the educational division of the War Loan Organization of this district, recently discussed the project before the convention of the Virginia Association of Women's Colleges and Schools. The association, by resolution, pledged its "sincere and hearty co-operation in carrying out all the plans."

It is proposed by the Treasury Department that parents who desire to send their sons and daughters to college and that boys and girls who wish to provide a college fund for themselves—that they definitely plan for the future and make regular systematic saving a part of their plan. As new, productive investments for such funds government securities, such as Treasury Savings Certificates and War Savings Stamps, are suggested.

Observance of "Prepare for College Day" will be fruitful of extensive results, it is believed, and the stimulus toward higher education is expected to be very valuable, particularly since the statement has so frequently been made recently and so authoritatively that never before has the country been in more imperative need of men and women of trained minds and broad vision.

FALL CAMPAIGN TO BE HOTLY WAGED

U. S. Senator Smith and O. E. Weller Will Lock Horns For U. S. Senate.

Indications point to a very lively campaign in Maryland this fall for the seat of the United States Senate now held by the Hon. John Walter Smith, senior senator from this state. Both the Democratic and Republican parties are now beginning to get ready for the struggle which is likely to be one of the most severe Maryland has experienced for many years.

Senator Smith has been in control of the Democratic party for the last 25 years, and for a long time his grip on party affairs appeared to be unbreakable, but within the last four years he has been gradually losing control of the situation, as has been evidenced by the fact that Maryland now has one Republican United States senator and several Republican congressmen, and here on the Eastern Shore many of the counties have fallen from their heretofore Democratic control and local Republicans have been elected in almost every county including Wicomico.

The contest for the United States senatorship will be between Senator John Walter Smith and Hon. O. E. Weller, both men of tremendous mental and political sagacity, and as this is probably the last political fight that Senator Smith will make, it is but natural that he and his friends will make a most desperate effort to keep him from being defeated in the declining years of his life. The fact that this is a presidential year will also add to the heat of the contest, and many Democrats believe that the Republicans will start in with somewhat the better chance of winning out, because of the handicap which the Democratic party is now laboring under, caused by a division of that party between the policies of Mr. Wilson and the rank and file of the party people.

There seems to be but little doubt that Mr. Bryan will have a tremendous influence in the Democratic National convention which will assemble at San Francisco this summer, and there are those of his admirers who believe that he will be able to capture the convention and practically name the Democratic nominee for president. If this be so, it will cast a more sure uncertainty on the final results in November.

It is understood that we have here at Wicomico county two of the three aspirants among our local politicians who desire to be named as district delegates to the National convention, and it is more likely that at the State convention which will assemble in Baltimore, there may be some very strong wire pulling to land at least one of these gentlemen as a member of the Maryland delegation. It is said on very good authority that the "Big Four" who will go from Maryland will contain the names of Senator Smith, Governor Ritchie, former United States Senator Blair Lee at least the fourth member not having yet been agreed upon.

In the Republican ranks it is said that neither Senator Jackson nor Mr. Weller will allow the use of their names as delegates to the Republican National convention which will assemble in Chicago, Senator Jackson being the National committeeman and quite naturally desiring to succeed himself in that position, and Mr.

Weller being a candidate for the United States senatorship, thinks it best to allow some of the other party people to receive the honor of being one of the "Big Four" Republicans from Maryland.

The official ballot this fall will be one of the largest ever placed before the voters of the country, as it will not only contain the names of all the nominees for president and all the electors, but will also contain the names of candidates for the United States senator for each party and congressmen as well, which will make it a voluminous and extra large ballot to handle, and for this reason it will necessitate much education and instruction by the party people to the rank and file of the voters.

AT 35, LOCAL MAN IS RAILROAD HEAD

Victor Parvin, 35 Years Ago, A Messenger Boy Is Now Superintendent Of The Ann Arbor System.

Victor Parvin, a former resident of this city, was in Salisbury last week visiting his parents who live on New York avenue. Mr. Parvin, who is not more than 35 years old, has been appointed superintendent of the Ann Arbor railroad with headquarters at Owosso, Mich.

The Ann Arbor is a well known road of the middle west. Its system extends for a distance of 290 miles through Michigan.

About 15 years ago, Mr. Parvin, "Vic" as he was called by his friends, started his career as a railroad messenger under Superintendent Benjamin at the B. C. & A. station in this city. Since that time he has been connected in responsible positions with the N. Y. N. H. & H. road at New Haven, Conn., the M. S. & L. road at Minneapolis, Minn., the B. & O. road at Newark, Ohio, and the Virginian railroad at Princeton, W. Va.

Mr. Parvin's new position as superintendent of the Ann Arbor road carries with it a salary of about $5,000 a year, it is said, and the use of a private car, staff of stenographers, etc.

Together with General Manager Blomeyer of the road, Mr. Parvin will make an inspection of the entire Ann Arbor system so as to enable him to become familiar with the workings of each of its many departments.

There are a host of people in Salisbury who will remember "Vic" Parvin and who will be glad to hear of his rapid advancement in railroad circles. The Wicomico News offers its sincere congratulations and best wishes for his success.

NOTHING TO IT AS A PIE

With Lemon Filling Gone, Remainder of Confection Could Only Be Called as "Squash."

A business man of Jeffersonville, active in the councils of the Young Business Men's club and of the Rotary club and one of whose outstanding characteristics is a liking for pie, says he has learned a perfectly good way of making squash pie out of lemon pie, but prefers the latter kind, says the Indianapolis Star. He had been to a sale in Utica township, not to buy, but attracted by the fame of the cooks who were to serve pie. He surrounded one lemon pie and asked to have another packed to take home—for his wife, he said. The women packed it between two paper dishes, the upper one inverted, and then wrapped it in newspaper. He placed it on the back seat of his automobile and started for home. Unfortunately he gave a friend the package for a cushion. When the package was turned over to the lady of the house and was opened by her it consisted of an upper paper dish, an upper pie crust, a lower pie crust and a lower paper dish; that was all. It was a case of "squash," and not a slice of lemon filling left.

Howe Once Reverenced.

The sacrifice of horses characterized the Scandinavian and Teutonic races, while Tacitus tells us that the Germans sought oceans and mountains from white horses kept at the public expense in sacred woods and groves, pure from the taint of earthly labor, but that on solemn occasions these were yoked to the sacred chariot and were accompanied by the king or chief of the tribe and the priest, who noted their neighings and snortings, and that no species of divination was more trusted, not only by the people and the nobles, but by the priests who regarded themselves as the ministers of the gods and the horses as acquainted with their will. It has been commonly believed, though on insufficient evidence, that the Saxon invaders of Britain bore banners blazoned with a white horse.

Soul Development.

There can be no permanent success in the world of art without a deep soul development. One does not become an artist by accident or by chance, but so much to be thrilled or startled by the soul. An artist must make a permanent, conscious, and deliberate effort to develop his soul.

which were heard once or twice no longer interested, if that is all the artist has to contribute to his art. Where, however, there is spiritual and ethical development behind that singing, the art carries a new message. If a singer—any man for that matter—is kindly, thoughtful and unselfish it shows in his life and actions, and to an unthoughtful degree in the quality of his voice, and consciously or unconsciously he draws men to him. —Morgan Kingston.

Periodic Bilious Attacks.

Persons subject to bilious attacks at regular intervals know about when to expect an attack. They find that they have no desire for food when an attack is due but usually eat because it is meal time. Big Value in Tires for The Smaller Cars

Back of the manufacture of Goodyear Tires for the smaller cars is the same purpose to supply high value in the product that is behind the manufacture of the Goodyear Tires that equip the most expensive automobiles built.

This purpose is expressed by the enormous resources, extraordinary skill and scrupulous care applied to the manufacture of Goodyear Tires in the largest tire factory in the world devoted solely to the 30x3-, 30x3½, and 31x4-inch sizes.

The effect of this endeavor is noted in the fact that last year more cars using these sizes were factory-equipped with Goodyear Tires than with any other kind.

It is also noted in the fact that if you own a Ford, Chevrolet, Dort, Maxwell, or other car requiring one of the sizes mentioned, you can secure Goodyear Tires and Goodyear Heavy Tourist Tubes at the nearest Goodyear Service Station.

SSIP OF THE STREET CORNER

The announcement of Senator [Name] that he would allow the use of his name in case it was necessary at the coming Republican convention in Chicago, Maryland is in line with the action of Senator [Name] who is generally known he is an extreme favorite either with voters of his own party or the public in general. Just what game Senator is playing, no one seems able to fathom, but it is not likely that "presidential lightning" will strike Maryland this time, either in the Republican or Democratic party, and those who might be apprehensive over the candidacy of Senator [Name] can rest easy with the knowledge that he is not likely to cut much ground in the Chicago convention.

An officer from the Internal Revenue department is now on the Eastern Shore visiting various counties making an examination of the real estate transfers for the past 12 months. He will be in Wicomico county within a few days to spend probably two to three weeks looking over the records here. This is done for the purpose of finding out something about real estate sales during the last 12 months so as to get a line on the reports submitted by the former owners of this real estate on their income blanks. Under the law parties selling real estate must pay income tax on the profits of said real estate over and above the fixed value placed on this property before the war, and notwithstanding the fact that the property might have been inherited or given to the owners, they must have fixed a value on same prior to the war and any increase they receive in the sale of this property they must account to the government income the same as if it had been earned in any other line of business. This fact is probably not known to many people and some of the large estates which have been received for real estate in this city in the last six months must be accounted for in the income returns next March and the minimal surtax paid on same, by those who received the profits, and it is for the purpose of checking up and getting ready to keep track of these sales in this community that the revenue officer will spend two or three weeks getting data on real estate transfers from the clerk's office, so as to have ready at hand in the Internal Revenue department a full list of the properties which have been sold, both town and country property, for the purpose of checking up those who have made the big profits in the deal. It will therefore be safer for everyone who has made a lucky strike in real estate to give a full and fair report of same in his next income return.

Advance agents for another large manufacturing concern which is looking for a new location visited Salisbury about 10 days ago to look over the situation here relative to obtaining a site for its operation. It is said that the parties were very much impressed with the Jackson Brothers old plant in South Salisbury, but that the price at which the property is held seemed to them to be prohibitive. It is said that this concern would employ a very large number of people in woodworking business and that they were anxious to get a location which had power already installed and some buildings already erected. The trade papers contain many advertisements seeking new locations away from the large manufacturing centers where labor troubles are so rampant as to make it almost impossible to continue business. A representative of one of these concerns who recently visited Salisbury said that he was particularly and most agreeably surprised at the labor conditions he found existing here. He said from what he could observe and learn he believed that labor conditions were better in Salisbury than in any place of its size in the United States. He found labor satisfied to a large degree and noted the absence of labor organizations which are continually causing trouble and arousing the workers to strikes and disagreements. It was pointed out to him that there was only one labor organization in Salisbury and that the operators here paid their men a very fair wage scale and that operators and workers here were on the most agreeable terms and that labor conditions in this city were therefore far in advance of those in many communities where agitation and strikes predominated. It was for this reason that the visitor said his concern, as well as others, would like to locate in a community of this kind and that he felt sure if these conditions were thoroughly known throughout the country, that Salisbury would soon have a dozen or more new manufacturing enterprises which would greatly add to our population and our commercial value.

Gasoline goes up, but the automobiles run just the same. Notwithstanding the fact that gasoline is today selling at the highest prices ever known, the demand for motor cars is constantly on the increase and not a single motor concern in Salisbury is able to keep up with the demands now being made up on it to supply new pleasure cars as well as trucks and tractors. Within the last six months the price of automobiles has advanced two or three times, and yet the demand keeps up and almost every day dozens of new cars can be seen on the streets and country roads. The farmer has come to realize the fact that his automobile is a necessity on the farm, not only for the purpose of keeping the boys and girls satisfied but also because it gives an adequate and quick service from the farm to the city and enables the owner to keep in closer touch with market conditions and allows him also to be able to get his produce and trucks to the railroad stations in much quicker and better time than by the old horse and wagon way. Salisbury probably owns as many automobiles per capita as any community of its size in the east, and the continued building of improved highways throughout the country will largely increase the ownership of automobiles by the farmers in every section. The ownership of these automobiles has made quite a change in the business aspect of this city. Where formerly farmers and their families would come to Salisbury during the day and thus neglect the farm work at home, they now remain at home on the farm, finish their day's work and come to Salisbury in the evening when they can not only do their shopping, but at the same time the family can enjoy the moving picture shows and other amusements offered by this enterprising city.

ONE TEN POUND HEN BRINGS $3.40

According to a report which reached this office on Monday morning, Herbert Chatham who lives on the Snow Hill road near this city, recently sold a hen which weighed live weight, 10 pounds at 34 cents a pound, receiving a total for the fowl of $3.40. Chickens of lighter weight, last winter sold for as high as 47 cents a pound in the city markets and many of the county's poultry growers made big shipments of their stock to those places while the prices were high.

About Digestion.

It is claimed that only half as much food is required when it is thoroughly masticated. Digestion begins in the mouth and a thorough mastication of the food is of the greatest importance. When needed take Chamberlain's Tablets to strengthen the digestion and insure a regular movement of the bowels. Advt.

Pity Wasted.

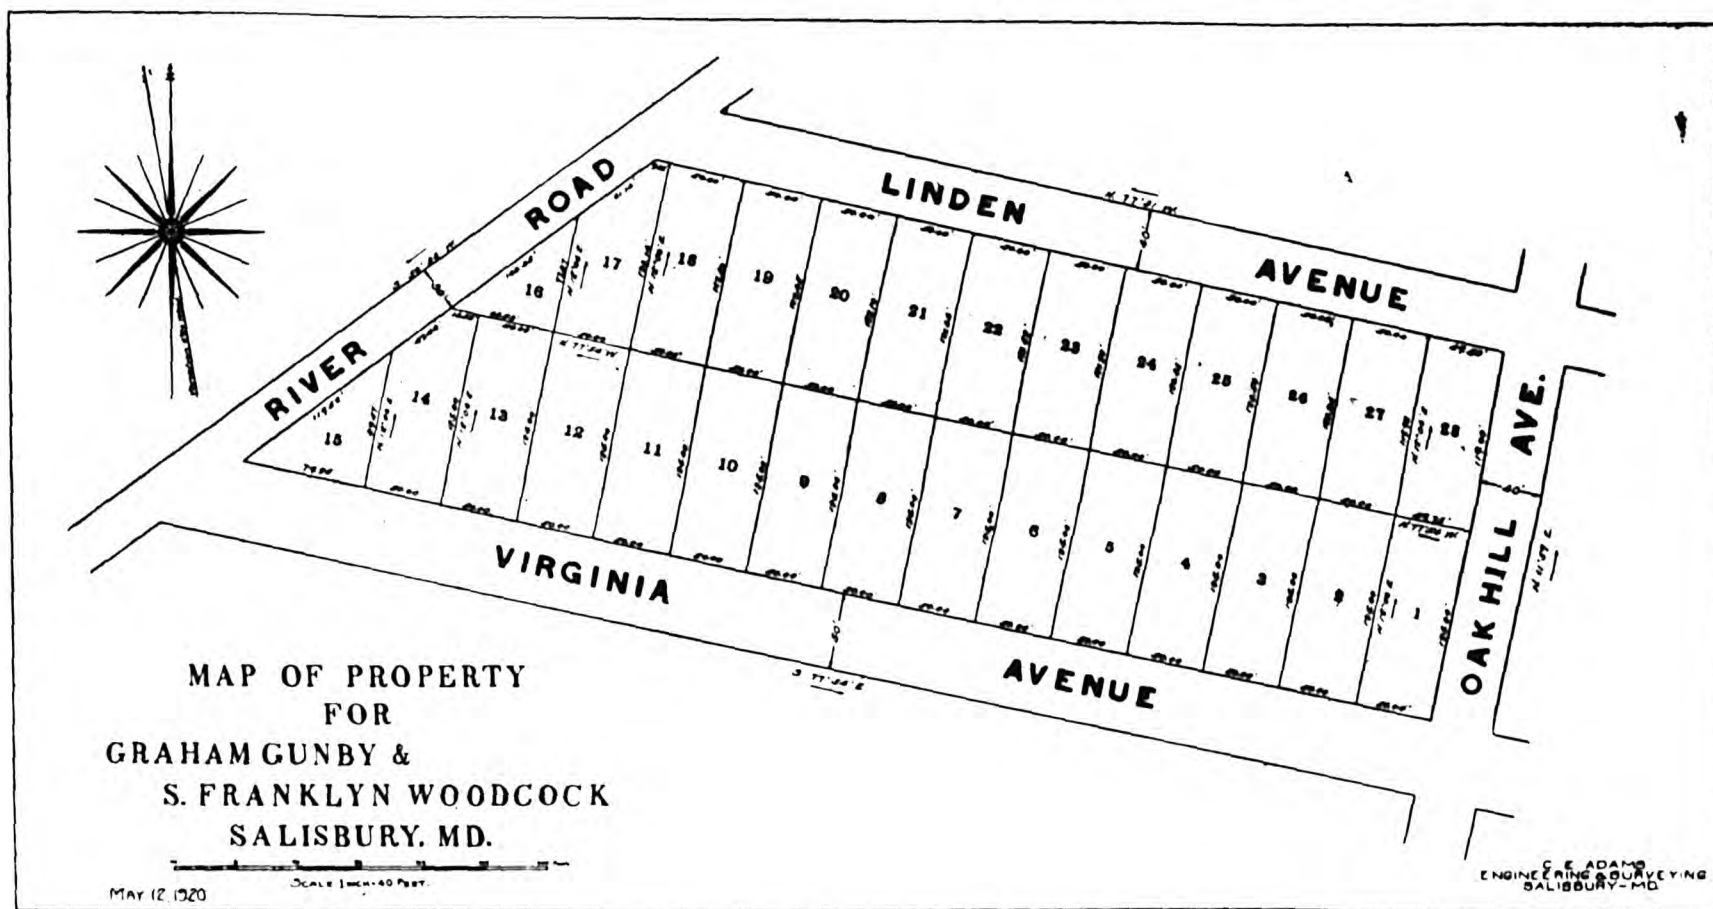

"I was sorry for Mrs. Brown when she was taken with that coughing fit in church this morning," Jones remarked kindly. "Everyone in the place was looking at her." "Don't you worry about her feelings," Mrs. Jones observed tartly. "I guess she didn't mind everyone looking at her, as she had on a new $50 hat."

NEW AUTO LAWS OPERATIVE JUNE 1

No Registration Or License Plates Issued For Machine Until Applicant Produces Title Papers.

After June 1, the commissioner of motor vehicles is forbidden by law to issue either a certificate of registration, or license plates for any car until the owner thereof first secures a certificate of title for same from his office. The law gives all persons who have already obtained license plates and a registration card for the year of 1920, ninety days in which to obtain a title to their car. After September 1, it will be a misdemeanor punishable by a heavy fine to operate a car registered in Maryland unless a certificate of title has been issued to cover this car. On or about the first day of June every car owner in the state will receive a copy of the new law governing titles as well as a synopsis of other minor changes in the automobile law. At the same time they will receive an application blank for a certificate of ownership. On this blank they will be required to give a full description of their motor vehicle together with a statement of their title to same and any liens or encumbrances thereon. If the identification numbers, serial numbers, or engine numbers on the motor vehicle have been tampered with or have been changed, mutilated, defaced, concealed, chiseled or obliterated, the owner of such a car must within 60 days from June 1, file with the commissioner of motor vehicles a verified statement explaining such mutilation, obliteration, etc., on blank provided for this purpose by the commissioner. The commissioner will make an investigation and if he finds no irregularity concerning the mutilation of numbers as far as the present owner is concerned, he will issue a new number, which number shall be regarded thereafter as the one to be used in describing such motor vehicle. In the event that an automobile has been purchased second hand, it will be necessary for the present owner to state name and address of the person from whom car was purchased and whether the vehicle was bought by cash purchase, trade, conditional sale, or bill of sale. The charge for an original certificate of ownership is to be $1.00. This certificate does not have to be renewed annually but is good for the life of the car as long as the car is owned or held by the original owner of certificate of ownership. In event of the sale or transfer of the ownership of motor vehicle for which an original certificate of title has been issued, the original holder must endorse on the back of same an assignment thereof to the purchaser together with a warrantee of title and a statement of all liens or encumbrances on said motor vehicle. This endorsement and assignment is to be made on the rear of the title certificate in the space and form provided therefor by the commissioner. The original owner then delivers his title certificate to the purchaser together with the motor vehicle which he is selling. The purchaser in turn must present this certificate to the commissioner and make application for a new certificate of ownership, before he can obtain license tags to operate same. The charge for the new certificate is also $1.00. After September 1, it shall be unlawful, for any person to sell or transfer a car within the limits of the state unless there shall pass between the parties such certificate of title with an assignment thereof in the form prescribed by the commissioner of motor vehicles. The penalties for violations of this provision are from $5.00 to $1,000 or imprisonment for not more than 10 years.

The certificate of title does not have to be carried in the car but should be kept in a safe place with other valuable papers, but owner may be required to produce same for inspection by a proper officer of the law.

COMMERCE CHAMBER ENDORSES S. A. DRIVE

Appoints Committee To Raise County's Quota Of $2,850 This Week.
Effort Will Be Successful.

The campaign for the raising of $2,850 which is being waged in this county for the general fund of the Salvation Army to be used in its Home Service work is now assured of success, since the movement has been endorsed by the Salisbury Chamber of Commerce.

At the meeting of the Chamber on Thursday night, W. T. Ashby of Washington, D. C., organizer of the Salvation Army campaign on the Eastern Shore of Maryland, addressed the members in the interests of his mission.

A telegram from Governor Ritchie to the Chamber was read by the president, Fred P. Adkins, in which the Governor endorsed the Salvation Army movement and urged that it be given all possible support and impetus.

The result was the naming of a committee with F. P. Adkins as chairman to co-operate with Mr. Ashby in having this county raise its quota of the Army's Home Service work money.

The committee appointed consists of Mr. Adkins, L. W. Gunby, Graham Gunby, H. W. Ruark and Col. A. W. W. Woodcock. This committee met on Friday and took steps to have the county raise its quota of $2,850. There is every indication now that the effort will be crowned with success.

It would be useless to repeat the well known story of the work of the Salvation Army during the war; how it depleted its treasury of funds to go voluntarily into the thick of the fray, where ever help was needed, at its own expense. It had no high salaried secretaries or workers. The same men and women who are today working to save souls on the streets of the big cities in this country, are the same men and women who in France cared for the sick and wounded soldiers, carried them coffee, food and comfort when those American heroes were occupied with hot battle against an enemy that knew and gave no quarter.

The Salvation Army used all of its funds in the World War work and now has practically nothing left for its invaluable work at home. It is to raise the money necessary for the carrying on of its Christian work at home that the people of Wicomico county are asked to give their bit toward the great sum that is being raised this week throughout the country.

PRESBYTERIANS MEET AT ROCKAWALKIN

Annual Memorial Services At Makemie Monument On Sunday, Conducted By Rev. R. A. Boyle.

A large gathering of Presbyterians took place on Sunday afternoon at the Makemie monument, in Rockawalkin, where open-air services were conducted by the Rev. Robt. A. Boyle of this city. This monument stands on the grounds of the old Rockawalkin church, which was for years one of the well-known Presbyterian churches of this county. At least once each year the Presbyterians assemble there to do honor to Francis Makemie, the founder of the church on the Eastern Shore. The services are very interesting and impressive.

WARNING.

Several months ago through advertisements in your local papers, we warned the public against the indiscriminate purchase of securities, particularly oil stocks, without first carefully investigating the merits of such securities.

OUR WARNING was doubtless accepted by some; others are now wiser BUT POORER.

Within the last year or so, the investing public of the nine counties on the Eastern Shore of Maryland alone, have invested hundreds of thousands of dollars in stocks, mostly unlisted, which now have little or no value. This class of stock generally represented promoters' profit, rather than value, and were fundamentally unsound at the outset.

Such securities are STILL BEING OFFERED TO YOU and we again call your attention to the advisability of careful investigation before investing.

ARE YOU

Investing Your Money Safely?

A number of high grade Preferred Stocks of the largest corporations in this Country are selling on the New York Stock Exchange at prices to yield from 7 1/2% to 9%.

Are the Preferred Stocks you are buying yielding you that much with safety?

Are they the obligations of companies doing a healthy business and managed by successful business men?

Are they listed on some recognized Stock Exchange where you can sell them if you so desire?

Do you know that the assets behind the Preferred Stock, and the earning ability of the Company are such as to make it a Preferred Stock in reality, rather than in name?

Does the Company publish a balance sheet and regular report of its earnings?

Do you know that the concern from whom you are buying is responsible, and is advising you honestly and is not making an unreasonable profit on their sales?

Do you know that your securities are good collateral with your Bank, or Banker, for a collateral loan? (This is very important).

General Motors 6% Debenture Preferred Stock, selling at about $71 per share, yielding 8 1/2%, callable at $115 per share, is a strong Preferred Stock. This Company in size, ranks next to the billion dollar United States Steel Corporation and is controlled by the Duponts of Wilmington. There is no bonded debt ahead of this Preferred Stock, and the Common Stock behind it is selling in the open market for more than $300,000,000. It is also tied up by strong protective provisions. Our charge for buying, or selling, is fifteen cents per share.

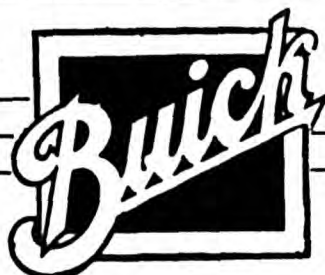

We have in mind several other high grade Preferred Stocks which we would be glad to advise with you about, if interested.

ENTRANCE EXAMINATIONS

State Scholarships in Engineering Courses.

ENTRANCE EXAMINATIONS for the Department of Engineering, as well as for the College of Arts and Sciences, will be held in the Civil Engineering Building, Homewood, Monday-Saturday, June 21-26, 1920, beginning at 9 a. m. each day, under the auspices of the College Entrance Examination Board.

APPLICATION FOR SCHOLARSHIPS IN THE DEPARTMENT OF ENGINEERING

established under the provisions of the Laws of Maryland, Chapter 90, 1912, will now be received. If there is more than one applicant for a particular scholarship, a competitive examination must be taken, Friday, September 17, 1920, beginning at 9 a. m. Appointments will be made soon thereafter.

Each Legislative District of Baltimore City and each County of the State, with the exception of Cecil, Harford, Queen Anne's, Talbot and Worcester Counties, will be entitled to one or more scholarships for the year 1920-1921, in addition to those which have already been assigned. In the five counties mentioned above, all the available scholarships have been awarded.

Under the provisions of the Act of Assembly, the County and City Scholarships in the Department of Engineering are awarded only to deserving students whose financial circumstances are such that they are unable to obtain an education in Engineering unless free tuition be granted to them. The scholarships entitle the holders to free tuition, free use of text-books, and exemption from all regular fees. One of the scholarships in each County and in each Legislative District of the City carries also the sum of $200. The expense of attendance for those who do not receive scholarships is not greater than at other Maryland institutions.

Scholarships may be awarded to graduates of Loyola College, St. John's College, Washington College, Western Maryland College, Maryland Agricultural College, Mt. St. Mary's College, Rock Hill College.

One scholarship will be awarded "At Large."

Applicants should address The Registrar, The Johns Hopkins University, for blank forms of application and for catalogues giving information as to examinations, award of scholarships, and courses of instruction. The next session begins Tuesday, September 28, 1920.

HEALTH HINTS.

Miss Margaret G. Laws, Red Cross Public Health nurse in Wicomico county has consented to write for The News each week an article on the care of health and prevention of disease and sickness. This is the seventh of Miss Laws' articles.

HOW TO LIVE LONG.

By Miss Margaret Laws, R. N.

Have Fresh air where you live and work.

Open all windows wide before you use the room in which you live or work. Let fresh air in all the time.

The best temperature is between 68 degrees and 70 degrees Fahrenheit.

Open one window at the top and one at the bottom. The good air comes in one window and the bad air goes out the other. If you feel the air blowing on you, place a board in front of the open window to send the air up.

People who are used to fresh air almost never have colds.

Try to keep the air in your house as pure as the air outdoors. Do not let dust and smoke stay in the house.

Let in all the sunshine you can. Sunshine and fresh air kill germs, and thereby help to keep out sickness.

Wear light, loose, porous clothes.

The skin should be kept clean and warm and should have air. Clothes should not be tight.

As most of us are in heated houses in winter a large part of the time, we should wear light-weight clothes. Upon going out-of-doors, put on heavy outer clothes.

Always wear porous cloth, that is, cloth so loosely woven that you can blow air through it.

Do not wear your hat tight. It cuts off the blood from the skin of the head and makes you bald. A soft hat is the best.

Do not wear tight shoes or high heels.

Spend part of your time in the open air.

No matter how much air you have in the house, it is not as good as the air outdoors.

Even if the outdoor air is damp and foggy, it is generally healthier than stale air indoors. This is just as true in the city as in the country.

Children who have plenty of fresh air at school learn quickly and do not get sick easily.

Learn to stay in the open air. If you do not get exercise while at work, walk at least part of the way to or from it. Play games outdoors, if you can.

DOINGS AT THE WICOMICO HIGH SCHOOL.

(The editors of the Wicomico News have set aside this column for the use of the pupils and faculty of The Wicomico High School and the items published here will be furnished by one or more of the scholars weekly.)

The annual track meet of Wicomico county will be held today at the county Fair grounds and Wicomico will be well represented in the way of athletes.

For the last two weeks the boys and girls entered have been training daily for endurance and speed in the running events and doing other beneficial things for the remainder.

Last Friday the ball team journeyed to Cambridge to play the second of a series of two games. Lankford pitched a marvelous game for Salisbury and should have won, being stopped from doing so by errors by the rest of the team. R. Adkins at back stop did fine work especially since it was his first game of the season behind the bat playing at short all the other games.

By tomorrow all undergraduates will have finished their examinations to the great dismay of all the pupils? Senior reports were given out Tuesday and they are taking full advantage of their privileges as graduates-elect of the school. The Junior-Senior banquet will take place tomorrow evening at the school and a fine program is being arranged by the Juniors.

The annual year book will be ready for distribution early next week the price being the same as last year's with the exception of those out of school to whom the price will be 25 cents higher.

The Senior class night play "The Romancers" will be presented May the 31st, and tickets are on sale by the various pupils. The admission is very reasonable and it is hoped that the people of Salisbury will support the play which is given for the purpose of defraying graduation expenses.

For a mild, easy action of the bowels, try Doan's Regulets, a modern laxative. 30c at all stores.

COUNTY NEWS

MARDELA.

Dr. B. G. Parker has this past week been attending the Southern Baptist convention, in Washington, as a delegate representing the Branch Hill, Athol and Hebron Baptist churches. This was the 75th anniversary of the convention. On the first day of the Convention, there were 5008 delegates present, on the second day, there were over 7000. It is supposed to be the largest religious delegation that ever assembled in the National capital.

The vice president of the United States made one of the opening addresses. He congratulated the baptists on their splendid showing and their vast numbers. This has been the banner year for the great Baptist brotherhood. They have now gone beyond the 7,000,000 mark. They started out to raise $75,000,000 this past year and they reached $92,000,000 and this, only for the Southland. The Baptists in the north are now busy raising their $100,000,000.

Rev. G. W. Gorrell, the new pastor of the Branch Hill, Athol and Hebron Baptist churches took charge last Sunday. It is understood that he is going to marry soon and bring his bride to Mardele Springs and live in the parsonage.

On Saturday morning, Miss Blanch Owens fell down the steps and broke her limb above the ankle. Miss Blanch is a popular school teacher, and we feel very sorry for her mishap.

Harry Bounds and wife are visiting in town this week; his parents formerly lived here, but Harry had been engaged in West Virginia for some time past. We are glad to have our boys come back, if it is only on a flying visit.

Miss Hennie Hearn and Mrs. Isaac Dean of Vienna were visitors in town this week.

Mrs. Albert Bounds and daughter Hettie are visiting friends in Baltimore and Philadelphia.

Guy Jackson and wife, Mrs. James E. Bacon and Ralph Bounds motored to Baltimore this past week.

Mrs. Hopkins, the mother of J'm and Alex Hopkins, has been seriously ill, but is somewhat better at this writing.

Harold Bennett while cutting timber this week figured in a very severe and painful accident by the axe glancing and going across the upper part of his foot near the instep. Some of the ligaments were severed. Dr. Mann was called in and sewed up the wound.

BIVALVE.

Miss Mildred Insley was in Baltimore on Saturday and Sunday.

Brady J. Dayton of the U. S. Navy, after spending a month with his family left on Saturday for League Island Navy Yard, in Philadelphia, to report for duty.

Monroe Robertson of Rockawalkin spent Saturday and Sunday here.

Mr. and Mrs. Clark Robertson spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. George W. Robertson at Rockawalkin.

Captain A. W. Insley is spending a few days with his family here.

Mothers day was observed in the M. P. church here on Sunday evening. Rev. Haddaway delivered a sermon appropriate to the occasion.

It has been decided by a church vote to hold a camp here this summer, the date to be announced later.

The M. P. church here is being treated to a new coat of paint this week.

George W. F. Insley is having his home painted this week.

Homemade Cleaning Solution.

"A dollar saved is a dollar earned," then try this homemade hot, cleaning solution on your old, white straw hat:

1 oz. of salt of lemon, 10c.

1 oz. of flowers of sulphur, 15c.

Dissolve salts of lemon in one pint of hot water, then add flowers of sulphur. For white millan, panama or other white straws, brush hat until free from dust, place in basin or scrub with cleansing solution, using small brush. Rinse in cold water and place on flat surface to dry.

COLD WEATHER

DELAYS CORN PLANTING

The unusually cool weather of this month, accompanied by frosts and ice, has greatly retarded the corn planting in Wicomico county. It is said that not more than half the usual acreage has been seeded up to this time. That which has been planted will not turn out of the best because of the cold, inhospitable ground since it was planted. It will take a week of clear, warm weather to get the crop in the ground.

There will be preaching by Elder H. C. Ker at the Old Side Baptist meeting house in this city on Saturday May 23 at 7.30 p. m.

A THOROUGH TEST.

One To Convince The Most Skeptical Salisbury Reader.

The test of time is the test that counts.

Doan's Kidney Pills have made their reputation by effective action. The following case is typical.

Salisbury residents should be convinced.

The testimony is confirmed—the proof complete.

Testimony like this cannot be ignored.

Mrs. Wm. E. Wells, 410 Martin St., Salisbury, says: "I was very weak and everything I did was a burden. I suffered from rheumatic pains nearly all the time and I was often dizzy. Finally I began taking Doan's Kidney Pills and they brought me wonderful relief."

OVER SEVEN YEARS LATER Mrs. Wells said: "I recommend Doan's Kidney Pills as highly as ever. Whenever I have the least trouble with my back, I take Doan's and get relief. I buy this medicine at White & Leonard's Drug Store and find no praise too strong for it."

Price 60c at all dealers. Don't simply ask for kidney remedy—get Doan's Kidney Pills—the same that Mrs. Wells had. Foster-Milburn Co., Mfrs., Buffalo, N. Y.—Adv.

DIAMOND IS MODERN JEWEL

Beautiful Stone as We Know It Today Was Unfamiliar to the Ancient World.

The perfectly cut and brilliant diamond the world knows today is not very much more than 50 years old, says a writer in Popular Science. The ancient world knew little of diamonds. From the first Pharaoh to the last, through all the pageantry of 31 dynasties, diamonds were unknown in Egypt. From the dawn of history, Babylon remained unfamiliar with them for 40 centuries.

The conquest of Alexander across the Indus in 327 B. C. acquainted Greece vaguely with their existence. The patricians of Rome in the days of the early empire rarely owned them. Byzantine supremacy, the rise of Venice to maritime power, the Moorish conquest of Spain, brought only a trickle of diamonds into western Europe. A fashionable jewelry store in America today carries more diamonds in stock than were in all Europe when Columbus sailed from Palos.

Henry D. Morse of Boston, in the last century was the first to discover the balanced proportions that developed a diamond's highest reflective and refractive possibilities. Since brilliancy is the crowning glory of a diamond, he did not hesitate to sacrifice whatever weight was necessary to achieve it. Retaining the 58 facets of the earlier cutters, he found that a diamond is at its sharpest climax of brilliancy when the depth from table to culet is six-tenths of its diameter, and that a little more than two-thirds below. Cut in this style, a diamond not only flashes light from every polished facet surface, but seems alive with coruscating inner fires.

Morse's proportions are the rule of the world today, and they mark the final triumph of the art in the achievement of the perfect jewel.

SCHEME WORKED TOO WELL

Teacher Should Have Remembered That Old Proverb Concerning Things Heard by Listeners.

A new high-school teacher had come to the local high school and was anxious to know how she impressed the faculty members and students. But she was new and of course would not ask any of them the others' opinion of herself.

So she began to watch for a chance to use her own ingenuity in making the discovery. And one day her chance came. She was in the principal's office filling out an identification card when she saw him and one of the other teachers coming down the hall. Quickly she slipped just outside the back door and stood there to listen a wee bit.

Just as she had hoped they would, they noticed the card she had just filled out. "Oh, she's the new teacher," spoke up the principal. "Do you know by any chance what history she teaches?"

The other teacher answered, "Ancient."

The principal grinned. "Why, of course," he returned. "I should have known that from her looks."—Exchange.

Curious Fatigue Test.

A unique method has been discovered to measure just how tired one's body becomes after hours of work. A line is drawn across the forearm with a sharp point, not sharp enough to break the skin, but only to drive out the blood and leave a straight white line on the skin. An observer holding a stop watch measures the time it takes for the blood to rush back into the skin and the white line to fade. The exact number of seconds and fraction of a second is recorded. This test is repeated say at intervals of one hour all day until the working hours are over. When these readings are plotted on paper a curve is drawn which tells at a glance just how one's energy ebbs throughout the day. There is always a marked jump in the line after lunch hour.—Boys' Life.

The Emu.

"The emu is a large bird, half the size of an ostrich," says Lee S. Crandall, curator of birds in the New York Zoological park, writing of "The Troubles of Father Emu" in Boys' Life. "It is found only in Australia, where there is also a closely related bird, the cassowary. The wings are rudimentary, so that the bird is unable to fly. But it does not suffer from this lack, for its strong legs enable it to run with great speed and agility. In fact, the emu is hard to catch and a dangerous opponent when cornered, for it is as elusive as an eel and can kick with tremendous force. When engaged in combat it leaps high in the air, and launches a trip-hammer blow strong enough to send a heavy man head over heels.

Attainable Goal.

So what is your star to be like? Is it worth going after good and hard? You don't want a star of a job or life work that is so tenuous the points will roll up and refuse to be pasted down as a sensible and effective decoration and insignia of what you represent. You don't want it to be so "fat" and material that all spiritual and ethical manifestations are lacking, and you don't want it to be so far away that it's out of reach—in fact you want just a good, stable star that is attainable by strong, steady determination and one that will shine brightly through every setback and discouragement.—Pittsburgh Leader.

MOST UNIQUE STRIKE

Red Faber made, perhaps, the most unique strike ever seen on the bowling alleys of the Chicago Elks' club. Faber rolls with terrific speed, which accounted for the freak. He cut the ball loose and it hit a little to the left of the center pin, leaving No. 8 standing. One of the pins flew clear to the pit, hit the wall, caromed off the wooden side of the alley and got the lone pin standing. When the game finished the pin boy remarked: "The sho' glad that big red-headed man is done finish, 'cause if he ain't I is."

DIAMOND NOTES

All Yankee pitchers must take five minutes of control practice daily.

Wilbert Robinson has been trying to make a left-handed hitter out of Bernie Nels.

Charley Pick is fielding well at second base, but he has not yet found his batting eye.

New York betters favor the Giants over the Cincinnati Reds to win the National league pennant.

The Western league, seeing prosperity ahead, returns to the system of double umpires this season.

Green uniforms with crimson lettering have been adopted for the Indiana university baseball team.

The Cincinnati Reds, whether or not they stay in Miami was beneficial, will return there next spring to train.

Toledo's ball club has been re-enforced by Brandon Grover, fast third baseman of the University of Ohio.

Why is not a team that can beat the world's champions entitled to be considered the real champions of the world?

Otto Miller has been appointed coach of the Brooklyn team by Manager Robinson, succeeding Jack Coombs.

The Sioux City club has sold the veteran outfielder, Paul Melan, to Yakima of the Pacific International league.

Joe Harris, who says he has quit the Cleveland Indians, has taken the management of a billiard room in Franklin, Pa.

Every time Rabbit Maranville and Hank Gowdy kill off a would-be pitcher, the cry goes up, "The Army and Navy Forever."

Indications are that Maurice Shannon has won the third base job with the Griffins over Joe Leonard or any other candidate.

Gus Belfrich, spitball pitcher sold by Nashville to Fort Worth, has announced his retirement from professional baseball.

Both Pfeffer and Grimes were sought by Manager Stallings of the Braves, but Uncle Robble refused to part with either.

Pitcher Howard McGraner, who has been out of the game, is going to try a comeback with Syracuse of the International league.

J. Franklin "Home Run" Baker has again reiterated that he has retired from baseball and will not join the New York Americans.

Whatever happens to the disrupted Yankees Aaron Ward is one man pretty sure to stay with Huggins, and prove mighty valuable.

Oroville Bill James, former pitcher of the Boston Braves, who worked out with the Chicago Cubs at Pasadena, says his arm is all right again.

Tris Speaker may not be the greatest outfielder in the annals of baseball, but there is a large majority of baseball enthusiasts who say he is.

The Mobile club has signed a second base tryout named E. C. Lemasters, who hails from Evansville, Ind., where he has had semi-pro experience.

Rolla Mapel, who was expected to do some real southpawing for the St. Louis Browns this season, has decided to play independent ball in Colorado.

One good piece of news comes from the Yankees. It is that Charley O'Leary is a much livelier coacher than Pat O'Connor was. That will help some.

Paskert's throwing has been a big feature of the spring training, and the veteran, who has been hitting the ball savagely, seems well on the way to a successful comeback.

The Washington club has signed a Cuban catcher named Torres. He made such a good impression playing with the Havana stars against the Griffins at Tampa that Manager Griffith signed him on the spot.

Why not make the work of the home lighter by providing an easy way of preparing a meal?

An oil or gasoline cooker will accomplish this, and our stock offers a desirable assortment from which to make a selection.

You look at them before you buy, and back of them is our guaranty of quality.

WEST POINT OFFICERS JUST BACK FROM FRANCE, RESUME TRAINING IN GEORGIA

The photograph shows a scene during a wrestling match, one of the strenuous and highly developing sports comprising the basic course in athletics given to officers of the West Point class of 1921, who were graduated just before the signing of the armistice, and who but recently returned from the battlefields of France to resume their training at the Infantry school at Camp Benning, Georgia.

Matters appear to be pretty quiet in the ranks of the heavies these days. Must be that Fred Fulton has knocked all of the near-champion crop cold.

Boston high school regimental indoor carnival held recently attracted a total of 1,018 contestants. Athletes were permitted to compete in only one field event.

The footballists are beginning preparations thus early for next fall's campaign. They evidently believe in the old aphorism: "In times of peace prepare for war."

Patriots who expect to pay a war-time price at the Dempsey-Carpentier fight should be guided by the French champion's tip that he will need only six rounds to knock the American out.

Intercollegiate Association of Amateur Athletics of America is composed of 32 colleges, University of Cincinnati, Williams, Holy Cross and Boston college having joined the organization this year.

Arthur Kennett of Eastbourne, England, has accepted a position as professional at the Foud du Lac (Wis.) Country club. The course is a new one and Kennett will be in charge of the construction work.

JOE WOOD MAY PITCH AGAIN

Speaker Hopes That Former Boston Red Sox Star Will Be Able to Resume Box Work.

Tris Speaker has hopes that Smoky Joe Wood may come back this year as a pitcher. The Indian manager will class Joe as an outfielder, however, until the season wears on and he has had a chance to get his arm back. Wood is willing to work any place for Speaker. He says: "Tris Speaker wants me to pitch. I will try to come back in the box. If he wants me as an infielder, I'll be an infielder. Otherwise, I will continue as an outfielder."

AGGRESSIVE BOXERS STAY ON OFFENSIVE

Willing to Take Punch in Order to Drive One Home.

Fans Seldom See Fighters Like Mike O'Dowd, Jimmy Wilde or Jack Dempsey Doing Much Backing Up While Engaged in Ring.

Boxers of the fighting type figure that a batter on the defensive is losing.

Therefore, one seldom sees aggressive battlers, as Mike O'Dowd, Jimmy Wilde, Jack Dempsey and others, doing much backing up.

They are forever coming to their quarry, keeping on top in the milling, taking punishment to hand out more. The aggressive battler is usually an open fighter. He gives and takes. O'Dowd is this sort of a scrapper. He has little defense and takes many punches, but his own heavy artillery soon brings down the opposition. Wilde has an open style though a peculiar one. He also has a hard punch. Dempsey is an open fighter, but a shifty one, and carries a wallop.

To back up though, to be on the defensive now and then, does not mean that a boxer is losing. Benny Leonard is very often backing up on his opponents. Leonard uses this method to draw his opponent to him in the open and give him a better opportunity to put over a knockout punch if he desires to. Ritchie Mitchell is an aggressive fighter, yet he often is waiting for the other fellow to come to him. Pete Herman is a defensive fighter, but he never loses. He can come out of his shell whenever he desires and whip his opponent. Jack Britton is the same sort of scrapper.

ALL ST. LOUIS BOYS ON TEAM

Sixteen Youths From Mound City Determined to Win Place on Winston-Salem Roster.

Eddie Brennan, who will manage the Winston-Salem team in the Piedmont league, expects to put a complete team of St. Louis boys in the field. When Brennan left his home in St. Louis to report to Winston-Salem recently he took no less than 10 Mound City youths with him, every one of them determined to win a place on the team.

EXPECT TEXAN TO STAR

One ball player Texas fans figure as sure to go up after this year is Outfielder Ed Brown of San Antonio. He broke into the game out of the Army last year and was a good deal of a sensation, but he needed polish. Manager Johnny Nee expects to shine him up so that the big leaguers won't overlook him next fall.

Low Kerosene Fuel Consumption

The Twin City 12-20 has proved by performance that it meets the first four essentials of the farmer's requirements—great surplus power, plenty of reserve strength, low fuel cost, and thorough dependability. By virtue of this performance, it stands as an accepted leader today; it has met and mastered the several tractor tasks because it is built to DO the work, NOT to meet a price. The fuel economy of the Twin City 12-20 and the efficiency of its kerosene burning system, were well demonstrated in the competitive plowing contests of 1919, when the Twin City won 6 of the 8 competitions in which it was entered. The average fuel cost of "the field" was 58 1/2¢ per acre, and that of the Twin City 37 1/2¢ cents per acre. The 12-20 engine is equipped with an exclusive Twin City-Holley vaporizing system that automatically delivers the fuel mixture to the cylinder in the proper condition for combustion. In this way, the Twin City engine burns kerosene fuel perfectly without the use of water injection. Let your tractor be a Twin City. It will satisfactorily do your work.

Little Girl, Big Boy And The Garden Elf

THE LITTLE DOG JOINS THE ARMY.

"The dew is still on the grass, Lady. Made Garden Manual. You are surely not going out. You will get your grass slippers soaking wet. Uh!" The Dictionary Man shivered and wrapped his crinkly leaves closer around him, for the spring morning was a trifle chilly and the dew lay thick and glistening upon plant and shrub as if fairies' mantles had been left hanging on the flower stalks; perhaps the sun had caught the little people at their ball and they had fled leaving their cloaks behind them. Little-Girl thought the garden looked like Fairyland in the early morning. She loved to look from her window and watch for the little Elf Man, who was sure to pop out from under the step or from behind a clump of violets; one never did know just where the Elf Man was going to bob up.

The poor Dictionary Man had a crick in his back, so he did not care to get his feet wet, but as for Little-Girl she loved to slip off her sandals and her little white socks and rest her feet upon the sweet wet earth and wiggle her pink toes into the sand and crumbly black loam.

It was the most wonderful feeling. And if you walked on the grass it seemed to hold you up, and you felt as if it had springs, and you would not have been surprised if you had suddenly flown right up into the pear tree, you felt so light and happy. And then the earth seemed to draw your feet down and kiss them; "magnetic attraction" wise people said. Little-Girl wished that she need never wear shoes.

Big-Boy didn't wear shoes in the morning—no, not until he dressed in the afternoon; he could wriggle his brown toes as much as he pleased in the cool earth and walk right through the water in the tiny pool in the garden. Splash! Splash!

Little-Girl sometimes wished she had been born a boy. Even Father Frog could splash around in the water as much as he pleased. Little-Girl sighed and ran out to meet Madame Garden Manual. It must be admitted that Madame Garden Manual was picking her steps. She really was trying to keep her grass slippers from getting wet and there was Big-Boy splashing along and something was running by his side. Yes, barking! It really was a dog after all, and well, perhaps, Ku-ti-pi wouldn't be so very much scared. Perhaps Big-Boy's dog would turn out to be a very gentlemanly dog and would not run Ku-ti-pi up the pear tree. Little-Girl hoped so.

"He-ho-ho-o," said Big-Boy by way of good morning. "Come on, Bobtail," and, sure enough, the fox terrier had a bobbed tail, but I must say that Big-Boy did not bob the doggie's tail. No indeed, he would not have been so cruel, for a dog needs its tail to brush away troublesome insects and for other purposes, but as Big-Boy's dog had only a stump of a tail, Big-Boy decided to call him Bobtail. He also decided to be very kind to the dog and keep him well bathed and brushed. Bobtail was very happy and ran around Big-Boy in a circle, jumped up and down, and was properly introduced to Little-Girl. Madame Garden Manual stepped up on a tree seat and waited until Big-Boy had assured her that Bobtail was a well-trained dog and never had been allowed to tear books.

"I am glad to hear it," said Madame Garden Manual, "for some dogs worry and tear every book they can get between their teeth, and I am so full of valuable information that I can not afford to be torn up."

"Will he chase cats?" asked Little-Girl anxiously.

"No, indeed, not this dog. My father wouldn't let me have him until he found out all about his habits. Why Bobtail belongs to the school Garden Army."

"Bow, wow, wow! Bow, wow, wow!" said Bobtail. He was very proud to be called a garden soldier.

"Me-ow, me-ow, me-ow!" the great satin-black cat sitting on the gate post looked down at the company as if in doubt as to his next move; should he come down and be sociable or run away?

Bobtail decided the matter. He looked at him with such a kindly expression in his brown eyes that he came down at the call of Little-Girl. They walked over to Big-Boy's garden, for he was to plant his sweet-pea hedge and the Garden Manual Lady was to assist him with her advice. All of the company were very much interested. And Bobtail began at once to make the dirt fly. He intended to show that he was a true soldier of the School Garden Army.

"Oh, is that the way he helps?" asked Little-Girl.

"You see he is a trained dog, and he understands what you tell him. Of course, he knows most about the things he used to carry in his old home; he always went after the garden tools and he knows the sounds of the different names. That is why he is called a soldier of the School Garden Army," said Big-Boy.—By Cecilia Reynolds Robertson. (To be Continued).

Seems Something of a Pity That Writer Did Not Complete Pungent Epistle.

Not long ago, the story runs, a traveling salesman visited a certain small town and sold the proprietor of its general store an order of jewelry, the Youth's Companion relates. When the jewelry arrived it was not as represented, and the merchant consequently returned it. But the wholesale house, nevertheless, attempted to collect the bill, and drew a sight draft on the merchant through the local bank, which returned the draft unhonored.

The wholesalers then wrote to the postmaster, inquiring about the financial standing of the merchant, and the postmaster replied laconically that it was O. K.

By return mail the wholesalers requested him to "hand the inclosed account to the leading lawyer" of the place for collection.

This is the reply that they received: "The undersigned is the merchant on whom you attempted to palm off your worthless goods. The undersigned is president and owner of the bank to which you sent your sight draft. The undersigned is the postmaster to whom you wrote, and the undersigned is the lawyer whose services you sought to obtain for your nefarious business. If the undersigned were not also the pastor of the church at this place he would tell you where to go."

Haw, Haw!
"It says here that if you want to develop anything you should exercise it regularly," said the Old Fog, as he looked up from the newspaper he was reading.

"Huh!" commented the Grouch. "If that was a fact, a woman's jaw would be as big as her chest."—Cincinnati Enquirer.

Treatment of Common Colds.

"If all who catch cold could be persuaded to remain in bed for the first 24 hours of such an attack," says a well known physician "there would be fewer cases dragging on with distressing symptoms for weeks and often ending in some more serious disease." To make sure of a prompt recovery you should also take Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. Whether sick or well the bowels should move each day.—Advt.

Mayor Kennerly Makes Many Suggestions For City Improvements, In Message

Wants Street Traffic Regulated For Convenience Of The Fire Department.

COMFORT STATION AT THE CITY HALL

Congratulates and Commends Colored Citizens Of City. Names Week of June 7 As Clean-up Week. Promises to Study City's Garbage Needs. Speaks Good Word for New Hotel.

Mayor Kennerly in his first message to the City Council on Monday night suggests some regulation of traffic during the time that the fire apparatus is making a run to a fire; the better lighting of Camden avenue and Circle avenue so that those streets might be used for the parking of automobiles and the giving to those parking places, proper police protection; the enlarging of the City Hall, providing it with private office for the mayor and the president of the council and with a public comfort station, and the quartering of the city magistrate's office and the city's police department, street cleaning department in the municipal building. He suggests that the W. B. Tilghman Co., be asked to use only dry materials in the manufacture of fertilizers so that odors of which he has received complaint may be eliminated; he suggests that the week of June 7 be observed as "clean-up week" by every resident of the city and promises to personally look up a method by which the city's garbage may be disposed of. He asks for the co-operation of all the people in the making of the proposed Shoreman hotel a reality.

The message in full follows: I come before you this evening with my message as Mayor of Salisbury, embodying as it were recommendations and asking that immediate thought and even prompt action be taken at once on what you deem should receive such attention.

Tonight, gentlemen, is our first sitting for actual business, we must try to be as thorough as possible in our proceedings, not to inculcate the principle of making new precedents on questions that may come to us by giving them too little thought, but to give to each matter due consideration. I believe you men are of the type that will serve any community well. It was through the conservative men of our city that you have been placed where you are. So I ask that you and I as well as our citizens co-operate that the best interests of our beloved Salisbury can be served.

The first question I wish to take up before you is indeed an important one. There must be some actual regulation taken at once about traffic during the Fire Alarm. Heretofore, when the fire alarm is sounded, it seems to have been a custom for all those who possibly can to make their way to the zone where the fire is or was supposed to be. They go in automobiles and other vehicles if possible which make it doubly hard for our firemen, who in many cases have come (Continued on Page 8).

TWELVE PEOPLE BUY 28 BUILDING LOTS

S. P. Woodcock & Co., Sale Of City Real Estate On Friday, May 21, Is A Wonderful Success.

The entire plat of land, including 28 building lots, bounded by the River road, Virginia avenue, Oakland avenue and Linden avenue was sold at public auction on Friday, May 21, by S. P. Woodcock & Co., to 12 purchasers, the aggregate amount of the purchases being $7,585.

The purchasers are Michael Shlietman, George E. Richardson, F. A. Grier Jr., H. S. Todd Jr., E. Homer White, William C. Morris, M. L. Dodd, George R. Hitch, V. J. Downing, Avery W. Hall, Tony Paolone, Lee L. Fields. The Riffe house was sold to Carl S. Goolee and the Graham Gunby lot on Camden avenue was sold to I. L. Benjamin, the last two properties bringing approximately $11,000.

The banks of Salisbury will observe Monday, May 31st as a legal holiday and will be closed all day.

FIREMEN EXPRESS THANKS FOR DONATIONS

The members of the Salisbury Fire department publicly thank E. L. White for the valuable cellar nozzle which he gave the department for its work at the fire at his potato house on February 6; The Hebron Milling company for a donation, for its services at Hebron on May 15, and also Mr. Wetherhead for his donation in recognition of the department's services at his woods fire at the Sanatorium on May 16.

MEMORIAL DAY OBSERVANCE HERE

American Legion Members Will Attend Church Service In A Body Sunday Morning, at 10.30.

In fitting commemoration of those who fell in the World war, the veterans of Wicomico county will gather in full uniform and attend divine service in a body Memorial day, next Sunday. The movement was started by the local post of the American Legion; but the members of that body are doing all in their power to persuade all former soldiers, sailors, and marines to join them in observance of the occasion.

The service men will meet at the Armory at 10.30 o'clock in the morning and march to the Southern Methodist church where the Rev. Thomas R. Reeves will deliver a short special sermon. It is peculiarly appropriate that the Legion should observe Memorial day in this manner this year, for the local post has been endeavoring for some time to revive interest in a memorial to the fallen soldiers of Wicomico county, without receiving much enthusiastic support.

The Legion hopes that through this special service, the public may be reminded that the dead of the county are still unrecognized; and that Memorial day may bring to each individual a full sense of what the season really means.

STRAWBERRY CROP IS ON IN EARNEST

Carloads Are Being Shipped Daily From County At From $9.50 to $12 A Crate. Cannery Busy.

The strawberry crop is on in earnest and busy times are prevailing at the chief shipping points, Fruitland and Pittsville. More than 50 crates were shipped each day on Thursday and Friday, and on Monday of this week more than a carload was shipped from Fruitland. Prices paid by buyers at these stations ranged from $9.50 to $12.00 a 32-quart crate. Growers are paying three cents a quart for picking, but it is said some pickers are demanding four cents. Growers, however, are fighting a raise in the picking price and will refuse to make the advance.

Even at the excessive prices being paid by the buyers, the preserving plants are preparing for a big season's output. It is understood that John H. Dulany of Fruitland has purchased three carloads of sugar for packing the crop he has contracted for.

The blackberry crop also promises a large yield this season, according to reports from Register of Wills John W. Dashiell, who is one of the most extensive growers in Wicomico county. He said to a News reporter on Thursday that little damage had been done to the crop by the recent heavy frosts and that the yield promised to be a little above the average, and quite some larger than that of last year. The price for picking the crop will be the same as that paid for picking strawberries.

The results of harvesting these crops will soon be shown in the big deposits of the banks in this county. For several years berry culture has proven to be among the very best money-making propositions to the farmers of the Peninsula, and the high prices that have prevailed for the past three or four years have persuaded nearly every grower to increase his acreage. Last season some of the growers averaged $1,000 per acre from their berries.

THIRTY-TWO WILL GRADUATE, TUESDAY

High School Commencement Exercises In Arcade Theater Evening of June 1, At 8.30 O'clock.

Next Tuesday night, June 1, 32 boys and girls will be graduated from the Wicomico High school of this city.

The Commencement exercises will take place in the Arcade theater beginning promptly at 8.30 o'clock; and the people of the city who desire tickets entitling them to admission to the exercises may obtain them from any member of the High school faculty.

The speaker of the occasion will be Professor Charles S. Richardson of the Department of Education and Oratory of Maryland State college. Professor Richardson is a speaker of more than state-wide renown and he will doubtless have a message of great importance to the members of the graduating class as well as to every person who is in his audience.

Music for the occasion will be furnished by the High School orchestra and by the High School Choral society, and the usual awarding of prizes and diplomas will be features of the evening's program.

The Class Night program with all its many interesting features including the class history, class poem, class prophecy and the class play will take place at the Arcade theater on Monday night, June 1, beginning promptly at 8.30 o'clock.

WILL CALL N. Y. P. & N. "NORFOLK DIVISION"

For Operating Purposes Only, Pennsylvania Directors Vote to Eliminate Local Road's Good Old Name.

For operating purposes, the New York, Philadelphia and Norfolk railroad will hereafter be known as the "Norfolk Division" of the Pennsylvania system. This designation will include the rail line from Delmar, Del., to Cape Charles, Va., and the boat lines between Cape Charles, Old Point Comfort, Port Norfolk and Norfolk.

The directors of the New York, Philadelphia and Norfolk Railroad company have authorized this step in conformity with the general policy which is being followed of unifying the organization of the Pennsylvania system and treating all of its component parts, as far as practicable, from the operating viewpoint, though they constituted a single railroad, regardless of differences in corporate ownership. In the cast of the New York, Philadelphia and Norfolk Railroad company, the Pennsylvania Railroad company owns all of the capital stock.

The directors of the New York, Philadelphia and Norfolk Railroad company, have approved the change, and as far as physical operation is concerned, the new divisional instead of the old corporate name will be used. In financial and accounting matters, however, all corporate distinctions will be preserved and the rights of security holders fully preserved.

BUYS BUILDING LOT ON WILLIAM STREET

James Elliott has purchased a valuable building lot on William street, from Mrs. Frank M. Mitchell. This lot has a frontage of 70 feet on William street and a depth of 200 feet. It adjoins the home and lot now occupied by Dr. J. F. E. Carpenter, and which Mrs. Mitchell recently sold to Mr. Purnell, of Scott and Purnell Co. Mr. Elliott, it is understood, contemplates building a home in the near future.

MARYLANDER HEADS M. P. CONFERENCE

Rev. Dr. Thomas Hamilton Lewis, President of Western Maryland College, Elected on Second Ballot.

The Rev. Dr. Thomas Hamilton Lewis, president of Western Maryland college, was elected president of the Methodist Protestant General conference in Greensboro, N. C., on Saturday afternoon on the second ballot, being within seven votes of election on the first ballot.

His two nearest opponents were Dr. J. C. Broomfield, of Fairmont, W. Va., and Dr. John Clark Williams, of Teahuacana, Texas, president of Westminster Texas college.

Dr. Lewis recently resigned as president of the Maryland State Board of Education and also tendered his resignation as president of Western Maryland college, though he still holds the latter position. He was president of the General conference from 1908 to 1912, and was succeeded by Dr. Lyan E. Davis, of Pittsburgh, the retiring president at the conference in Baltimore. Dr. Francis T. Tagg, of Baltimore, was president from 1904 to 1908, and from 1892 to 1900 the late Dr. Joshua W. Hering was president.

Dr. H. L. Elderdice, president of Westminster (Md.) Theological seminary, nominated Dr. Lewis and among many seconders were Dr. J. H. Straughn, president of the Maryland conference.

NEW APPOINTMENT PLEASING TO PUBLIC

C. O. Culver Is Generally Liked As Successor To F. W. Woodcock As Local Head of E. S. G. & E. Co.

The naming of C. O. Culver as acting superintendent of the Eastern Shore Gas & Electric company with headquarters in Salisbury to fill the position made vacant by the transfer of Floyd W. Woodcock to Philadelphia is most gratifying to the hundreds of customers of this large corporation, because of the intimate knowledge which many of them have of Mr. Culver's fitness for this position.

The new appointee is one of the best known financiers in this section, having graduated at the Wharton School of Finance of Philadelphia after a full four years' course, and later being connected with the official charges of Day & Zimmermann, the well known engineers of that city. Mr. Culver has been located in Salisbury for several years and has a most intimate knowledge of the vast business of the Eastern Shore Gas & Electric company, covering as it does a large portion of the lower peninsula of Delaware and Maryland. It is the policy of the Day & Zimmermann management to promote their employees as they show the proficiency which is always demanded by this large concern.

It is interesting to note the rapid development of electricity on the Peninsula since the taking over of the various plants from private ownership by the Day & Zimmermann management and bunching them all under one large corporation known as the Eastern Shore Gas & Electric company. A few years ago these companies were trying to operate by local management in the various towns and villages in which they were situated, but owing to the fact that the expense of the various management was so excessive, it was impossible to give the very best service at the very lowest possible cost and (Continued On Page 12).

PROPOSE 22% RAISE IN ALL PASSENGER RATES

Conference With Eastern Shore Shippers In Princess Anne On Wednesday Shows Some Existing Conditions Unfair To Salisbury. Road's Proposition May Be Approved.

The matter of an increase of 30 per cent in freight rates by the N. Y. P. & N. railroad was considered at a meeting of large shippers of the Eastern Shore of Maryland and Virginia, in Princess Anne on Wednesday.

The meeting was called by R. B. Cooke, traffic manager of the N. Y. P. & N. R. R. for a general discussion by all present. Mr. Cooke presented the railroad's side of the proposition and was fortified with figures to prove that the advance asked for is absolutely necessary if the railroad is to better the service now being given shippers, or to maintain the present standard of service. Mr. Cooke declared that for every dollar received from freight traffic it is costing the road from $1.05 to $1.10. The equipment, he said, was allowed to run down while the road was under government control and the increase of 30 per cent, asked for will be necessary to restore the road to good condition and furnish the rolling stock necessary to handle the traffic.

The shippers present at the meeting were also fortified with figures relating to rates and took prominent part in the discussion. The question of differentials was dwelt upon by the shippers, who claimed that present rates were a discrimination against the shippers of this territory. For instance, it was shown that in carload shipments from the west to points on the N. Y. P. & N. R. R. the rate to Salisbury is about 60 cents a ton more than the rate through to Norfolk. The shippers thought they should be given the Norfolk rate in order to meet competition from the wholesale houses and jobbers in the cities.

While no agreement was reached, it was the consensus of opinion among those at the meeting that if the differential rate could be adjusted, and it can be shown before the Interstate Commerce commission that the rate asked for by the railroad is necessary to provide more rolling stock and better the physical condition of the road, so as to give quicker dispatch to shipments, those at the conference will agree to the raise in rates asked for. Mr. Cooke agreed to arrange for an early meeting of a committee of five at Broad street station to confer with railroad officials further on the question of advancing freight rates.

It was also brought out at the Princess Anne meeting that the N. Y. P. & N. will ask for an increase of 22 per cent in passenger rates.

The meeting Wednesday was attended by large shippers from Delaware, Crisfield, Salisbury, Pocomoke City, and other points.

Those present from Salisbury were: T. L. Ruark, representing the wholesale grocery firm of T. L. Ruark & Co.; Walter S. Sheppard, representing the wholesale grocery firm of W. E. Sheppard & Co.; Ernest Turner, representing the wholesale grocery firm of Turner Bros. Co.; Graham Gunby, representing the hardware firm of L. W. Gunby; F. P. and E. Dale Adkins, representing E. S. Adkins & Co., lumber dealers; and M. A. Humphreys, representing Jackson Bros. Co.

WORKING MEN TO MEET IN THE ARMORY

On Saturday, May 29, at 8 o'clock p. m., there will be a special meeting in the Armory of all trades workers, including carpenters, joiners, machine men, box makers, basket makers, bridge builders, and dock workers, in fact all working men. The meeting is to be held under the auspices of Salisbury carpenters and joiners' local, No. 2267. Special speakers will be present and there will be music by a full brass band. All interested persons are asked to attend.

Choral Society To Give Grand Concert Here, June 7

Galaxy Of City's Best Singers Will Present Very Attractive Program In Auditorium Of S.Y.M.A. Building Under Direction Of William Anderson. Miss Grace E. Elliott, The Soloist.

VIOLINCELLO VIRTUOSO FROM PHILADELPHIA.

The Salisbury Choral society, organized early last winter, has been rehearsing weekly for its first concert; and this affair is now to be given in the auditorium of the S.Y.M.A. building, under the direction of William Anderson, on Monday night, June 7, and the net proceeds of the affair will be given by the society to the Peninsula General hospital.

The society includes 40 of the best singers in Salisbury. Its members have rehearsed faithfully each week with the idea of presenting in the early spring, the best concert ever given by home talent in this city. That this will be accomplished may well be judged from the fact that Mr. Anderson is the director of the choral, from the personnel of the chorus, its solo features and the very carefully selected program which has been arranged.

In addition to the vocal program, Bertrand A. Austin, a famous violincello virtuoso of Philadelphia, has been engaged for the evening of the concert as a special attraction.

Miss Grace E. Elliott, soprano soloist of St. Peter's church choir and well known as one of the best singers in this part of the state, will be the only vocal soloist of the concert evening. Miss Elliott's selection, Mendelssohn's "Hear My Prayer" is especially adapted to her voice, range, and personal style of interpretation, and is certain to be one of the favorite performances of the program.

The program of the concert in full follows:

Program, Part I.

Hail Orpheus, Hail, De Reef, Choral Society; Greeting To Spring, Strauss, Choral Society; (a) Fleeting Hour (Cello obligato), Lee, Ladies of the Choral Society, Mr. Austin; (b) Farewell to the Forest, Mendelssohn Choral Society; Violincello (a) Elegie, Faure, (b) Scherzo, Goema, Mr. Austin; (c) Swan, Saint Saens, Choral Society; (d) Voices of the Wood, Rubinstein, Ladies of the Choral Society

Program, Part II.

Hear My Prayer, Mendelssohn, Miss Elliott and Choral Society; Violincello, (a) Oriental, Cuit, (b) Song, Grieg, (c) Tapantelle, Popper, Mr. (Continued on Page Seven).

COUNTY NEWS

SHARPTOWN.

The members of the Sunshine Sewing circle and a large number of friends gave Rev. and Mrs. Henry S. Dulany a delightful surprise party on Tuesday evening of last week. The early evening was spent in music and games. Later refreshments were served. Prof. Paul Phillips, principal of the Sharptown High school made a very appropriate address in which he assured Rev. and Mrs. Dulany of the hearty support of the young people. Rev. Dulany responded and expressed himself as being very happy in his work here. Rev. and Mrs. Dulany endeared themselves very much to the young people.

Miss Nellie Bounds entertained the Sunshine Sewing circle on Monday night. After the routine of sewing was over refreshments were served.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Feldner, Mrs. Herman Pusey and son Herman Jr., from Baltimore are the guests of Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Kennerly.

Mrs. Charles E. Tilghman and daughter, Margaret are the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Wilson Bounds.

Mrs. J. W. Robinson and Mrs. E. G. Bennett have returned after spending several days with Rev. Oris G. Robinson, Baltimore.

Mrs. C. C. Ellis and son Christopher, of Laurel, are visiting her sister, Mrs. W. R. Higgins.

The Senior class of the Sharptown High school gave for its class play Sophocles' Antigone at K. of P. hall on Wednesday evening before a large audience. The play has its setting in the ancient city of Thebes and the plot was taken from the prehistoric account of the Theban royal line. Newell Calloway as Kreon deserves special mention in the manner in which he handled his part and he disclosed a latent theatrical ability. Catherine Phillips as Antigone was highly complimented for the manner which she interpreted the truly heroic maiden Antigone. Another charming feature of the play was the chorus consisting of eight pretty Theban maidens who sang very sweetly.

The carpenters who were home from Chester, Philadelphia and Camden several days on account of the strike returned to work on Monday having been notified to report for work.

The town fathers have greatly improved Main street and have arranged ed for a further improvement by putting on a heavy covering of stone. Other streets will be improved later. Horace Hearn left Tuesday for Bethel where he is interested in a new shirt factory now being put up there. He will have charge of the plant.

S. J. Cooper, Misses Lena and Mary and Master Samuel Cooper spent Sunday last as the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Earl Cooper near Columbia.

The Nanticoke river steamer is now making three trips a week.

Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Gordy spent Sunday as the guests of Mr. and Mrs. A. W. Robinson, Laurel.

Mrs. Sarah J. Twilley who has spent several months with her daughter, Mrs. A. W. Robinson, Laurel, has returned here to spend the summer.

BIVALLE.

Capt. S. A. Langrall made a business trip to Long Island, last week.

The steamer Old Point Comfort is now making three trips a week on the Nanticoke River route.

The first strawberries of the season were shipped from here last Thursday. There will be a very short crop of strawberries this year, due to damage caused by frosts.

Mr. and Mrs. John W. Dunn of Wilmington moved here last week and will occupy the house recently vacated by Samuel L. Dunn.

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Ent and children and Mrs. Kirwan of Crisfield visited Mrs. Jennie Robertson on Sunday afternoon.

Rev. L. E. Haddaway delivered the baccalaureate sermon to the graduating class of the Nanticoke High school on Sunday evening at the Bivalve M. P. church.

Edward M. Efford died on Friday afternoon after a lingering illness. Funeral services were held at the church here on Sunday morning, conducted by Rev. L. E. Haddaway. Burial was made in the family lot at the church cemetery. Deceased is survived by a wife, and one brother, Samuel L. Efford, of this place.

ROYAL OAK.

Strawberries are now being shipped in small quantities and are bringing fair prices, but owing to the late frosts the crop will be a short one.

Several of our folks attended the social at Wetipquin Wednesday of last week, which proved to be quite a success.

Mr. and Mrs. Willie Owens and children visited Mr. and Mrs. A. F. Wilson on Sunday.

Mrs. William F. Couch and little son, William, spent a part of last week with friends and relatives in Salisbury.

Miss Blanche Heath spent the week-end with her parents Mr. and Mrs. George P. Heath at Nanticoke.

Mrs. Hester Mills who has been spending some time with her son Winfield Mills has now returned home.

Mrs. Lizzie Messick of Wetipquin was the guest of Mr. and Mrs. L. R. Messick on Sunday last.

Miss Dora Dashiell entertained a few of her friends on Sunday. Those present were Misses Eric Bradley, Maude Bennett, Ruth Taylor, Elizabeth French and Daisy Bradley, Victor Catlin, James Bradley, Maxwell French, Claude and Thomas Dashiell and Lucine Bradley.

DELMAR.

Irving Culver & Company are erecting a potato house 30x60 feet on Railroad avenue north of Mill street.

Surveyors have been engaged this week establishing grades and lines for new paving. Many improvements will be made in various sections of the town.

Dorothy West, little daughter of Garfield West, of the 7th grade won a Gold Medal in the spelling contest at the Athletic meeting held in Salisbury Thursday.

L. P. Coulbourn, of Salisbury, has been awarded a contract for laying the cement sidewalk around the Delmar High school. Mr. Coulbourn's bid was the lowest submitted by competitive bidding.

Little Girl, Big Boy And The Garden Elf

THE DOODLE BUG AND THE ANTS' COWS.

Doodle Bug, Doodle Bug, come to your door!
Here are two friends, three friends, four—
And here is another as I am alive,
Here are friends, Doodle Bug, three, four, five!"

"Now, who is the fifth friend, I should like to know," said the Dictionary Man.

"Why, bless me, it is Madame Spring Manual! Your good health, Madame. Permit me to give you the seat of honor, for you are able to give far better instruction to these young people than I could give. You will tell them of nature's ways."

And the Dictionary Man bowed as low as the crick in his back would allow him to bow.

Madame Spring Garden Manual smiled as she took the place of honor. "So you are having a talk on the Doodle Bug," said Madame Garden Manual. "He is a very greedy little bug, but he rids my garden of many ants. Ants are a pest. They do, perhaps, make the soil more porous, and they are very industrious creatures, but they really are selfish because they work mostly for themselves. However, we may learn many lessons from them in thrift. They build houses. They store up food for the winter. Indeed, they keep cows and milk them."

Little-Girl giggled when Madame Garden Manual said that the ants kept cows, and even the Dictionary Man looked surprised. Indeed, he said, "You surprise me, Madame." Now an ant is so tiny that keeping cows seems altogether impossible, unless the cows are in-vis-i-ble.

"No," said Madame Garden Manual, "the ants' cows may be seen even without the aid of the Enchanted Glass, which you know is the magnifying glass. You have, no doubt, the word 'aphid' between your leaves, Mr. Dictionary Man?"

The Dictionary Man admitted that he had.

"Well," said Madame Garden Manual, "the aphids are the ants' cows. All United States School Garden Army Soldiers know aphids when they see them, but perhaps they do not know about the honey dew provided by the aphids. Ants are very fond of honey dew. They like it quite as much as children like maple syrup. They can smell it a long, long way off. They know that if the aphid is stroked a certain way, with the ants' feelers, that there will come a drop of honey dew. And, dear me, you should see the ants lick it up—just like a kitten lapping milk."

The children were quite breathless with interest.

"Now, if the ants would eat the aphids they would be good friends of the garden, but they only milk their aphid cows. So, you see, for all his industry, the ant is not well liked. I am always pleased to find our friend Doodle Bug around, for I know that he will lure the ants into his hole in the ground. The Doodle Bug is really as dangerous as a lion to the ant family. If an ant goes too near to the edge of the hole, the Doodle Bug throws up some sand, and draws him down and feasts upon him." The children shuddered as they heard of the terrible fate that befalls wandering ants.

"Why does the Doodle Bug grasp a straw so firmly when we put the straw down the hole and call him?" asked Big-Boy.

"He thinks it is an ant, and so he snaps his jaw tight, and some times you are able to pull him up by the straw," answered the Garden Manual Lady.

"You told the story of Doodle Bug much better than I could," said the Elf Man, admiringly. "Will you speak to us another day?"

"Indeed, I will," said Madame Garden Manual; "It is my mission in life to give information about growing things, and their friends and enemies."

"If you would like to stay with us," said the Dictionary Man, "I can promise you snug quarters on the library shelf. Other ladies are among our list of visitors. There is the Story Book Lady, for example. She knows all about the Land-of-Make-Believe, and as you are from Really-Truly-Land you would be good company for one another."

"I thank you, sir, and then I should be near my little friends," and Madame Garden Manual beamed on Little-Girl and Big-Boy, for she knew that they were true-blue soldiers of the United States School Garden Army.—By Cecilia Reynolds Robertson.

NEWS OF THE WEEK FROM SUSSEX COUNTY

At the time of the death of her husband, Mrs. Orendorf was ill and it is believed that his death was a fatal shock to her.

While preparing his garden for spring planting Captain E. W. Register, Lewes, found a copper cent which was minted in 1794. The vignette was very plain and showed the coin had been used but little.

Apple and peach trees have not been much hurt by the recent cold weather, and from the great quantity of blossoms the trees bore a week or so ago, the yield should be abundant this season.

While trying to escape from being run over by an automobile which was trying to turn around in front of the postoffice at Millsboro, Mrs. Theodore M. Burton, Sr., missed her footing and fell with such force that she suffered a fracture of the leg.

While friends were assembling to attend the funeral of Ely Orendorf, aged 75 years, at Greenwood, his wife, two years his junior, died. Relatives postponed the funeral and buried them in the grave that had been prepared for the husband.

Charles E. Wright, one of Seaford's oldest citizens, suffered a paralytic stroke, while doing some carpenter work. He was taken to his home and when his friends entered with him his wife was upstairs. In her haste to get to her husband she fell down the stairs, bruising herself considerably.

Mrs. Margaret McCue, wife of Peter McCue, died at her home on Second street, Blades, Tuesday afternoon at 3.22 o'clock, aged 73 years. During the sleety weather last winter, Mrs. McCue, while on her way to visit a friend, fell on the sidewalk, fracturing her hip, which confined her to her bed, where she lay for 15 weeks.

J. Henry Lyons, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Lyons, living between Seaford and Woodland, while sawing a lot of wood at his sawmill, was adjusting the guide where the wood is fed to the saw, when he fell, his foot coming in contact with the saw. Before his fellow workmen could release him his foot was severed, the severed foot remaining in his shoe. He was taken into his home in an unconscious condition and medical aid summoned. It is thought he will recover.

While working an abandoned field for cultivation this year, Christian Nouman, who owns a farm near Georgetown, broke through into an old and unused well and when found by his wife was in such an exhausted condition that he could not have lived much longer. Fortunately for Nouman his wife had gone to the field to take him some hot cookies, she had just baked or he would have died in the well. The well had been boarded over and then covered with dirt. The rotted boards broke and Nouman fell to the bottom of the water, into slime and debris. He found a place on the side of the well to hang and called for help. Mrs. Nouman came out about that time with the cookies and hearing his voice found him. With a rope she managed to get him out.

HAS A CLOSE

SHAVE WITH DEATH

Harry Callaway, who is employed on a derrick gang on a stretch of the state highway between Delmar and Laurel, was seriously injured and barely escaped with his life, Thursday when the screw chain got caught, causing the heavy boom to fall. Callaway was working directly under it and seeing it was descending upon him threw himself backward in time to avoid being crushed to death. The heavy boom fell upon his right foot, which was badly mangled.

Certain-teed Is Easy to Lay

Certain-teed Roofing can be easily laid by anyone who will follow the simple instructions enclosed in every roll.

You don't have to hire experienced roofers. You don't even have to worry about finding skilled workmen. They are mighty hard to get these days.

This fact means two things to you. You save the difference between the wages of skilled and unskilled men. You get your roof laid quickly by men who can be easily obtained.

But Certain-teed Roofing provides far more than a roof that is easily laid. It is guaranteed for five, ten or fifteen years, according to weight. It has never been known to wear out on the roof. It is weather-proof, fire-retarding and spark-proof.

Though there is a shortage of many kinds of roofing, you can always get Certain-teed Smooth-Surfaced Roofing.

See your dealer at once. He either has Certain-teed or can get it quickly from a nearby Certain-teed warehouse.

COUNCIL FAILS TO CONFIRM T. R. JONES

Mayor's Choice For Police Magistrate Fails Of Councilmanic Approval. New Solicitor Has Close Call.

Each of Mayor Kennedy's appointments, made at the City Council session on Monday night, was confirmed by the four councilmen present with the exception of that of T. Rodney Jones Sr., to succeed N. P. Turner as city magistrate.

There was a lengthy discussion also over the appointment of L. Claude Bailey to succeed Benjamin A. Johnson as city solicitor and for a while it seemed that the Council might also fail to confirm Mr. Bailey's appointment, but Mr. Johnson who was present, personally urged the confirmation of Mr. Bailey and the council finally acted in accordance with his suggestion.

Confirmation of the appointment of Mr. Jones as police magistrate was denied on the ground that Mr. Turner has made good in that office and there appears no good reason for having another man succeed him. It was recalled that Mr. Turner had resigned from office on May 10, and is now holding over until his successor is appointed and qualified; but the councilmen urged that since Mr. Turner has shown himself to be so efficient in office, that he should be urged to withdraw his resignation and accept a re-appointment, should Mayor Kennedy decide to withdraw the appointment of Mr. Jones and substitute the name of Mr. Turner. Until Mr. Jones' appointment is confirmed by the council, Mr. Turner will be continued as the city's police magistrate.

The discussion of the appointment of L. Claude Bailey to succeed Benjamin A. Johnson as city solicitor was brought about by the fact that a majority of the councilmen present appeared to favor the retention of Mr. Johnson in office. They took the stand that since Mr. Johnson has held office as city solicitor for six consecutive years, he is perfectly familiar with all legal matters pertaining to the city's business and government. It was their opinion that since the mayor has been but recently elected to office and is unfamiliar with the city's legal affairs, it would be unwise to remove from office a man who is well versed in such matters and who during his six years in office has shown himself to be efficient.

Mr. Johnson was present at the meeting. He spoke briefly on the subject, saying he was not a candidate for a re-appointment. He appreciated the confidence which the arguments of the councilmen showed they had in mind to confirm him, but he said that since the mayor and the city solicitor, by the very nature of their offices, are often brought very close together in conducting the city's business, he thought it only proper that Mayor Kennedy should be given the right to make his own selection in this matter. He said that for six years as city solicitor he has frequently neglected his own personal law practice in order to give the city his best services and while he does not regret having done this, he feels that the time has come when he should devote all of his time to his personal business interests. Mr. Johnson urged the council to confirm the appointment of Mr. Bailey as city solicitor, and this action was finally taken.

COUNTY'S BANKS ARE PROSPEROUS

Aggregate Sum On Deposit In All Banks In Wicomico Is Nearly $4,000,000. Will Soon Increase.

In last week's issue of The Wicomico News appeared more than three columns of bank statements for Wicomico county. A perusal of the statements will show that the banks are very prosperous at the present time, in spite of the stringent money market everywhere. The statements to be published about July 1, however, will no doubt make even better showings than the statements published last week. This will be brought about by the fact that the large sums received for the strawberry crops will be in the accounts of the growers and will have a very material effect on the total amount of individual deposits in the various institutions. The amount on deposit in the various banks in the county, as shown by the various statements published last week, reached a sum in excess of $3,914,962.25. This is a very healthy condition and while most of the banks have been compelled to retrench in loaning funds for speculative purposes, the banks are taking care of loans purely for legitimate business enterprises.

The community bank is getting to be a more wonderful institution every year. There was a time when small banks located in the various communities were looked upon as not being a very sure or safe proposition, but that day has gone never to return. Every progressive community now has its own local bank and it fills a long-felt want in these towns and villages which could not be filled in any other way.

It has not been so many years ago when Salisbury was the only community in Wicomico county which had a bank. For years this one bank did all the business; now there are four very large banks in this city and a bank is established in every leading town in the county, all of them in a prosperous condition.

This all goes to show that the community spirit is a vital one to the people, and that when they have their own banking facilities backed by their local people the desire for thrift and saving seems to grow with the growth of the bank, and so it has begun to be recognized as almost a necessity that every community of any size should have its own banking institution.

A bank in a community not only engenders thrift among the people, but it also teaches them the great fundamental principle of putting aside something for a rainy day and at the same time trains the young, who in the future make the progress, citizens of the community. The statements published last week show that the banks of this county have loans outstanding of more than $3,476,628.00.

STATE RANKS 37 IN EDUCATIONAL CIRCLES

New Russell Sage Foundation Report Shows Maryland Has Sadly Fallen Off In Last 30 Years.

The report of the Department of Education of the Russell Sage Foundation, just issued, shows that during the past 30 years Maryland has fallen off more than any other state in relative standing in educational systems. Maryland ranks as the 37th state with a percentage of 43.2. The Foundation's educational measurement is worked out by taking the official data showing the number of children attending school, the amount of training they secure, the progress they make, the amounts expended for buildings and supplies, the salaries paid their teachers, and other similar items, and combining these factors into a single index number which shows the general standing or efficiency of the school system. This method resembles that used by the Federal government in indexing the cost of living and prices for commodities.

The foundation states that all the results are computed from data furnished by the states themselves to the federal government and that the records have been compiled and combined by exactly the same methods for all the different states and without admitting into the results any elements of personal judgment. The author of the report served during the war as chief statistical officer of the army. Montana leads in the list of states with the best educational system and as showing the greatest progress. South Carolina is at the bottom of the list.

Maryland state school authorities, while not willing to accept as final the findings of the foundation, attribute the lack of progress in the state's school system to the unwillingness of taxpayers in several counties to contribute their share of expense in maintaining the public school system. Only two weeks ago voters in Wicomico defeated in proportion of 3 to 1 a proposed issue of $200,000 for new school buildings and repair of old ones in the county—Baltimore American.

Mrs. M. T. Wilson of Baltimore is visiting her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Lee Johnson.

HONOR OUR FALLEN HEROES!

Memories of things unpleasant are apt to fade swiftly from the mind. The World War touched so few, comparatively, sharply enough to retain a place in the memory that it is now all but forgotten. Even for those who felt the chill loss of loved ones on the field of battle, nothing is left but a majestic memory. Last year the horror was so close, so poignant, that those who grieved the most shrank from a public observance of Memorial day.

The time of remembrance is again here. The year has softened the sorrow and endeared the memory until now, like the sun shining on a distant field, grief appears in a halo of golden light. Only the memory is left; the memory of those who answered the call of their country and marched happily, bravely away.

Such memories as these brighten the past and make smoother the long road leading into the future for many a lonely, grey haired mother, many a wife, many a sweetheart. And memories such as these are worthy of the highest recognition we, who are left, can bestow.

Those who have gone to join the ranks of the Great Commander will be present in spirit next Sunday in every special memorial service held in the United States; and for many this will be the only communion, because the tombs of the lads who gave their lives are in a distant land, and the ones at home have not even the little comfort of worshipping at a shrine.

The great silent field of white crosses at Romagne-sous-Mont Faucon, where twenty-five thousand American boys lie buried in sight of "Dead Man's Hill" and surrounded by shell-torn farms; the last encampment at Thiachourt; the National cemeteries of the United States and the smaller burial places of towns and villages, will be visited by hundreds of thousands of men and women and children Sunday—and homage will be paid those who have given their lives to make ours a better, brighter world.

The blue and the grey, the heroes of the Spanish-American war and those who wore the olive drab in the last great conflict, will, alike, be honored. And many a sorrowing heart will be comforted by the little rite of placing flowers on a mound.

How will Salisbury observe this occasion? Wicomico county cheerfully gave her sons that the world might remain as it was; a world of liberty-loving, patriotic, prosperous people. Some of her sons have not returned.

How will they be honored?

Sunday, May 30, will be Memorial day.

SALISBURY'S NEW ERA.

Salisbury's much needed new and modern hotel, is soon to be a reality, according to the latest reports from people who are keeping in close touch with the progress of the scheme.

One of the directors of the Shoreman Hotel Corporation, and it is this corporation which is to fill the city's long felt need for a good hotel, said a few days ago.

"The success of the hotel proposition is almost within grasp. We now have about $115,000 of the needed $150,000 stock subscribed and we feel sure that the remaining $35,000 will soon be forth coming."

It is estimated that from the time ground for the big new hotel building is broken, up to the time the structure is completed and ready for occupancy, will be approximately seven months. This means that if the construction work can be started this summer the completed new hotel will come to Salisbury as a New Year's gift; and it will be a gift well appreciated.

The need of the proposed new hotel in Salisbury has been too often and too thoroughly told to need repetition—nevertheless the fact of that need cannot be too deeply impressed upon the minds of the people of this city.

Salisbury by its natural location, by its railroad and steamboat facilities, by its progressive spirit and business industries, is the unquestioned center of the entire Eastern Shore. The city has not achieved this distinction in a day or a year. It has grown throughout years until it has reached its present place in the sun of municipalities. Its growth has been natural and healthful and it is still growing.

Still, in spite of its achievements, Salisbury is without a hotel of a truly representative type. Its hotels are perhaps as good as those of any of the Eastern Shore communities, but that is not good enough for Salisbury. The best of all the Eastern Shore communities must have the best accommodations.

Hundreds of dollars will be brought to Salisbury when a really modern and moderately priced hotel is operated here. People from other sections will come here to the Eastern Shore's best stores to shop. They will stop at the good hotel and spend their money here, instead of making their purchases and leaving the city on the next possible train.

Travelling men who now cover territory to which Salisbury is the natural key, will make this city their headquarters. They will make short trips to other places out of this city daily, returning to Salisbury to sleep and eat at night. Tourists will be attracted to the city by their knowledge that there is a creditable hotel here—and all of this will mean business, more business and as time goes on, still more business for Salisbury.

From this increased business every merchant, every banker, grocer, butcher, baker, blacksmith, builder, carpenter, doctor, dentist and lawyer will profit—because there never was a community in which one man could profit all to himself.

It is true of every community that all things which are beneficial to that community are also beneficial to each resident of that community; and so since it is an acknowledged fact that the proposed new hotel for Salisbury will be a great benefit to Salisbury, so must it also be acknowledged that it will be a benefit to each of the city's people.

Therefore it is to be hoped that every man, woman and child in this city will say a good word for the new project; and that every one who can stretch a point to be financially able, will give his or her bit to make up the $35,000 which is still needed, before Salisbury can be given that improvement which is more to be desired in connection with the city's growth and success than any other improvement which has been suggested or tried for, in many years.

PLAY BALL!

The suggestion has been made that there be organized on the Eastern Shore this season, a baseball league of eight teams, each team representing a different town or city.

The suggestion is a good one and it is to be hoped that it will materialize into something more material than a suggestion.

There are hundreds of real baseball fans among the men and women of the Eastern Shore. Each of these would willingly pay a nominal fee to witness a baseball game once or twice a week. There is no doubt but that a sum of money to finance the league from the start, could be had by public subscription among the business men of the towns to be represented in the league.

Every business man in every live community realizes that if he is to increase his business and better his home community, he must do something to attract people to that community. Almost every business man realizes the attractiveness of a baseball game.

There is hardly a town of any size at all, outside the Eastern Shore of Maryland, which is not represented by a baseball team. This team travels about over its league circuit and by this method advertises its home town. People from its home town follow it to witness its away-from-home games and these people too, advertise the town from which they come. In addition, they spend money in the town they visit and benefit that place while also advertising their own home community.

There are a lot of good baseball players on the Eastern Shore. There seems to be no really good reason why an Eastern Shore league of six or eight teams should not be organized, given a schedule and play throughout the summer months. It is probable that because the members of the teams would be working men and unable to leave their regular work too frequently, that only Saturday afternoon and holiday games could be arranged, but even games played once a week would be a great benefit.

There seems to be on the Eastern Shore a peculiar lack of interest in all sports, among many of the people. Just why this is, no one seems to know; but it is certain that if home talent teams would be brought into hot contest one with another, that interest in those teams and those contests would be immediately aroused and that this interest would go a long way toward promoting interest in clean sports and in creating a real local pride; a thing which is sadly lacking at present in many of the Eastern Shore communities. It is to be hoped that some way can be found to really organize an Eastern Shore baseball league this summer.

STOP, LOOK AND LISTEN.

While every private and business interest in Wicomico county and throughout the entire Eastern Shore is heartily in sympathy with any reasonable project that promises to improve the railroad facilities of the section, the announcement that the New York, Philadelphia and Norfolk road is about to ask for an increase of 30 per cent in its freight rates and 22 per cent in its passenger rates is rather astounding.

Doubtless if the proposed increases were 10 per cent, little would be thought or said, but an increase of practically a third in the cost of one branch and more than a fifth in another branch of the road's service seems to demand that the public, Stop, Look and Listen!

It may be true that the railroad's rolling stock and other facilities were allowed to run down at the heels during the war under government control.

However if that is the case the travelling and the shipping public is not to blame. The people did their share in financing the war and in addition they lost money and patience because of the woefully poor railroad service given during those days of warfare. They stood their losses like true Americans, because of the nation's need. They are not to be commended for their good citizenship—they simply did their duty—but after they have done their duty and done it well, it is exactly fair that they should again be called on to bear an additional burden?

The placing of the railroads under government control was not done at the suggestion of the general public—but rather at the suggestion and pleadings of the heads of the railroad companies who claimed an utter inability to render service under the conditions then existing.

The government took over the roads to save them and to help win the war—and the people paid.

If the government allowed the roads to become run down in spite of the fact that service was decreased and rates increased, is that the fault of the public?

And if it isn't the fault of the public, should that public be called upon now to make good, losses which occurred under a business management in which the people had no voice, a management which the roads' heads were glad to thrust upon the government in one of the most critical times in the nation's history?

Surely the people of the Eastern Shore want the best railroad facilities available. They have long wanted and argued for such facilities, but without much avail.

Now it seems that the railroad company, finding it got the worst of a bad bargain in its dealings in government management and control, is coming to the people with calls for assistance.

Again we say it is time to Stop, Look and Listen—and it is certain that the business interests of the entire peninsula will heed this warning, no matter what may be the outcome of the railroad's calls for help.

Worcester's Schools

To Cost $130,000

County Commissioners Allow This Amount. High School Teachers Refuse to Work for Minimum Wage.

The Commissioners of Worcester county have levied the sum of $130,000.00 for all school purposes next year. No provision is made for the erection of new school buildings.

The last legislature, however, made provision for building a new school house at Stockton by a bond issue, to be submitted to the voters of the county. If the bond issue is submitted to the voters and they decide in its favor the bonds must be issued. If the decision is against a bond issue the Commissioners cannot sell bonds for that purpose.

To pay the required salaries of Worcester county teachers necessitates the sum of $142,220. The state pays $56,277.00 in addition to the $130,330 levied by the county, thus leaving around $44,000 for all purposes outside of the required salaries for teachers; but there is the rub—the High School teachers have given notice that they will not work for the minimum salary, but must have an advance of 20 per cent, and the Board of Education has allowed it.

IN MEMORIAM.

In sad and loving remembrance of our dear husband and father, Rev. R. Wilson, who departed this life, May 1, 1919.

A voice has gone, we loved to hear, His footsteps have been still, There's a place vacant in our hearts, That never can be filled.

But happiness is remembrance we find, When thoughts return to him, But Death has darkened that one spot, Of the home, we all loved so well.

No one knows how much we miss him, How our hearts are filled with pain, In a land where there's no end, We all trust to meet again.

Styles for slender figures include low-topped, topless and rubber specialties.

For the full figure, we can show you corsets which will insure long, slender lines.

For the average figure we have a variety of back-lace and front-lace models in all materials.

Warner's Rust-Proof
Corsets—

—are the best possible corsets for any—and for every—type of figure. That is because of their expert designing and their standard construction. Perhaps you do not know that every Warner's Rust-Proof Corset is double-boned throughout. That means, not that it is heavy, but that it is doubly flexible; that it will yield to every movement of your body and yet continue to control your figure by its smooth, firm lines. And every Warner's Rust-Proof Corset is made of cloth so strong that, no matter how it is stretched or drawn, it will not tear.

Let us show you your model!

Guaranteed not to rust, break or tear.

Mayor Kennerly Makes Suggestions

very close to having serious accidents. I would recommend that a notice be given through our city papers and by placards placed in some of the show windows of our merchants, notifying the public that at the sound of the Fire Alarm all streets and highways must be cleared to give the firemen and their apparatus the right of way, under penalty, calling attention to our ordinance. I ask that you gentlemen give this your immediate attention.

Another important recommendation I bring before you gentlemen is for the better lighting of Camden street and Circle avenue. I will ask that there be placed on each of these streets four large lights of the same power and type as those used on Main street. It will greatly assist me in regulating the congested traffic in our city on Saturday nights. It is my purpose when this is done to see that many of our automobiles are placed on these two streets at that time. I will place special policemen to patrol these two parking places, trying as best we can to protect our visitors from theft not only of their automobiles but of their contents. We invite our county people to come to Salisbury and I am determined that they shall have protection.

Gentlemen:—The next recommendation is a very needed one. You are aware that our present City Hall is not large enough to take care of the business of Salisbury. In the first place there is no private office for the Mayor. There is no private office for the President of the Council. There is no reception room. In fact there is absolutely no privacy at all. There is no headquarters to Salisbury. If you want a policeman you have to chase him down. There is no system to our department at present. This cannot be for success. If the people of Salisbury expect me to be efficient they must not tie my hands. Our police force must have a system to it. Our street working force must have a system to it, and any other force must have a system under my administration. I will recommend that an Annex be built to our City Hall on the space now occupied. I ask that our headquarters for all business be at City Hall. Our police should work from there. Our Police Justice should be at City Hall. Our street force works from there and I find it a great convenience. In fact gentlemen I deem this very important for the success of our city. I hope you will give your thought to this as promptly as you can. There is still another reason why we should build. We invite and look for our support at present largely from the citizens from our surrounding country. Our country people if you please. They come to Salisbury regularly, spend their money, they work hard in hand with the people of Salisbury for success. Yet with all that they do, we have never provided them with a public toilet or dressing room. I contend that this is a necessity without a doubt, and I believe I speak for the general masses. Let's get busy gentlemen and provide a public toilet for our visitors. With the rebuilding of City Hall all this can be accomplished with great good to all.

My friends, I am in receipt of a petition which will speak for itself. Referring to the W. B. Tilghman Co. using raw or wet fish scrap in the manufacture of their fertilizer. On this question I wish to say that the residents of Camden have been subjected sometime to this. They appeal to you for action. I am a resident of Camden myself and feel since it has been mentioned I will say that the smell is very bad at times. I do not wish to be antagonistic to any business enterprise, but I believe if the W. B. Tilghman Co. would use only dry fish or dry material there would not be any objections on the part of the petitioners.

Gentlemen: Much has been said in our city papers about a garbage system. Many of our citizens have said much along this line. Now I wish to say as I see it, at present we cannot institute a thorough garbage system. But I promise that I will study the working part of a system and if I think it advisable I will come before you with the proposition. I will however ask your assistance in making the second week in June this year, Clean-up Week. I will ask the residents to clean up their yards and what ever garbage they might have and place it in either a box or can. We will have our men call and collect. I will ask that the week of June the 7th be the commencing week. We will adopt this plan for the present as an experiment.

Mr. President and gentlemen, I cannot close my message to you without taking up one more question. I am a great believer in giving credit where it is due. I believe in giving encouragement to every human being that deserves it. We have among us a class of citizens who are tax payers, who have in most cases been respectable, have been industrious. Many have built their own homes and try to be a credit to themselves and to our city. They are our colored population. I believe in them we have some who know how to be honest and respectable. We must remember that we as Christian men must not condemn a whole race for what a few do. As far as my association has been with our colored citizens I will say that our dealings have been always of the fairest. I therefore want to congratulate them for their integrity, for their respect for law and order, and I want to add that I will always be glad to lend them a helping hand to aid them to progress.

I will next ask you my friends to lend to the people of our city your assistance. All your endeavor and all the energy you can possibly put forth in helping to build for Salisbury a real hotel. I hope I am not asking too much of you gentlemen, but I know you are interested in the building up of Salisbury. Now lend to those who are seeking to their utmost on the hotel proposition, your co-operation, your help. There are two things my friends that help give a city prestige. A good police protection, and good hotel accommodations. We must keep pace with the times. We must build for Salisbury a hotel that will be a credit to our city and its promoters. Again I ask you gentlemen for your assistance.

The next in order will be my appointments which are as follows: Supervisor of Streets: Geo. E. Sirman.

Police Justice: T. Rodney Jones Sr. City Solicitor: L. Claude Bailey. Chief of Police: Woodland Disharoon.

Associate Policemen: Chas. R. Dennis, Geo. E. Williams, Sidney O. Furniss.

Special Policemen: Jas. C. White, P. E. Little.

I ask that you confirm the above appointments.

The Mayor approves the following recommendations of the officers of the Fire Department which are as follows: Chief: John Davis. Janitor: James Chatham. Watchman: Mr. Brown.

For the benefit of some I wish to state the appointment for clerk will not be made until the first week in July next, according to our charter.

In closing this message to you this evening Mr. President and fellow councilmen, I ask your ever prompt attention to assist me. I trust that you will be as indulgent as possible with those probably who have been less fortunate than we. Lend the attentive ear to the suffering. Be as charitable as you possibly can. Let us all work for good. For I want this to go forth as coming from me:

That I, W. Arthur Kennerly, Mayor of Salisbury, am the champion and defender of suffering humanity ALWAYS and EVERYWHERE.

With best wishes,

I am, respectfully,

W. ARTHUR KENNERLY, Mayor.

Salisbury Has Five Smallpox Cases

State Health Department Says There Is Nothing Alarming in the Situation. All Cases are Mild.

In order to contradict rumors of a large number of cases of smallpox in Salisbury, the State Health department states that there are at present in the city five reported cases, one of which originated in Ocean City while the others were contracted here. In two instances the source of the infection has been traced back to unrecognized and unreported cases that evidently occurred here about a month ago but with the other cases the source has not been found.

While so far, most of the cases have been quite mild it should not be forgotten that a severe case may be contracted from one of these. The only safe plan is for every unvaccinated person to be vaccinated immediately. This applies to adults and children. Every authority on smallpox states that it is far better to vaccinate babies during the first year of their lives. Every adult who has not been successfully vaccinated for several years should be re-vaccinated. In this way only can the disease be stamped out.

Every physician and householder should immediately notify the Health department of any suspicious eruption or breaking out that they may find out whether the disease is smallpox or not.

Meanwhile everyone should submit to vaccination without delay.

WHEN IS THE TIME?

(By Calvert L. Estill.)

When is the time to advertise? There are those who say that when sales are dropping below normal and business is stagnant in general, every effort should be made to stimulate buying. That is true, but it is only part of the truth. The dealer who advertises only when business is sluggish, is cheating himself out of that greatest of all factors for big business—good will of the public—and is not rendering to his patrons the service which they deserve and of right ought to have.

A right implies a duty and a duty a right. The merchant has the right to advertise what he wishes to sell, and in order to make his business successful, it is his duty to do so. And at the same time it is his duty to sell and to advertise what the public wants to buy. It is, therefore, just as imperative that the progressive business citizen advertise as widely in times of great prosperity as in times of adversity.

During the World War, many manufacturing concerns gave up their own peculiar lines of business to fabricate things for the Government. Some of these firms stopped advertising; the public was allowed to forget about them. Then the Armistice was signed; the Government canceled its contracts; and they were forced to go out again into the world of competition. But they had been forgotten; and in the meantime their competitors who had kept up their efforts to retain the public good will booked the orders.

Today those firms are spending millions of dollars trying to regain their places in the public eye; millions that would have been only thousands had they kept their publicity departments at work. From which may be drawn the lesson that while advertising should be stimulated during off seasons, it should be even more stimulated during periods of prosperity.

Fall in, Boys!

The Governor has sounded the call

Citizenship in dear old Maryland carries with it a wonderful heritage. From the earliest days the sons of Maryland have always been quick---yes, eager---to respond whenever the need arose, and her sons of today will not do less to continue the record of the glorious past.

PROCLAMATION

WHEREAS, The entire National Guard of the State of Maryland was drafted into the service of the United States by the Government in 1917 under the provisions of existing law, and the members thereof were discharged from further service under their enlistment contracts;

And, WHEREAS, The Government of the United States has called upon the State of Maryland to reorganize and re-establish its National Guard at the earliest possible moment;

And, WHEREAS, The State of Maryland is without troops or forces adjudged necessary to properly maintain and preserve the institutions of the Commonwealth;

Now, THEREFORE, I, Albert C. Ritchie, Governor of Maryland, call upon all citizens of the State that are physically capable and between the ages of eighteen and forty-five to enlist in the 5th Maryland Infantry, Batteries A and B, Field Artillery and Field Hospital No. 1, in Baltimore City, and the various companies of the 1st Maryland Infantry located in certain towns and cities of the State, in order that same may be filled with their proper quota. Maryland has never failed to respond to any call upon the services of its citizens by the National Government in times of stress or peril. The record made by the troops from this State equals that of any other and it should be the pride of all Marylanders to keep the State's standard for such service at the front. In order that the above matter may be applicable to all of our citizens, I also call upon the business men of the State to urge upon all of their employees the necessity for active support of the National Guard.

Done in the City of Annapolis, this fifth day of May, nineteen hundred and twenty.

(SIGNED)

ALBERT C. RITCHIE,
GOVERNOR.

BRIEF HAPPENINGS IN DORCHESTER CO.

The Beckwith Camp Meeting association at its last meeting decided to hold the Beckwith Camp meeting this year from July 16th to the 26th.

The Cambridge Board of Trade has had new life infused into it by reorganization a few nights ago. Like Salisbury's Board of Trade, the dues were greatly advanced.

Representative William N. Andrews of the First Congressional district will make his campaign for reelection as an ardent supporter of the Volstead prohibition enforcement law.

Mrs. Frederick H. Fletcher, of Cambridge has been appointed by Governor Ritchie, a member of the Board of Education for Dorchester county. She qualified for the position and attended the meeting of the Board on Tuesday.

At a largely attended meeting of the leading taxpayers of upper Dorchester recently held, sentiment was strong for a vote on bonding the county for $350,000 for schools and needs. The legislature passed a bill for a bond issue for this sum and the meeting recently held favored the securing of petitions asking for a referendum to enable the voters to express themselves by ballot at the General Election in November next.

The Eastern Shore Trust Company of Cambridge has recently added two more branches to its system of banks latest one being the National Bank of Mechanicsville the stockholders of which on Tuesday of last week unanimously approved the recommendations of its directors that the bank become a member of The Trust Company system of banks. The Bank of Mechanicsville becomes the 19th branch of the company. In addition to the Mechanicsville National Bank the Trust company is starting a new bank at Upper Marlboro.

At a meeting of the delegates from the different farmers organizations in the county held in Cambridge on Thursday evening, the organization of the Dorchester Farmers association was completed. The association is planning a constructive program of work to improve farm conditions in Dorchester County. One of the first steps taken will be the establishment of a County Exchange system by erecting bulletin boards on which can be listed the products wanted or for sale by the farmers in the community. A member in each community will be appointed to keep these bulletin boards up to date. It is proposed to work out other farm problems in the same way by appointing in each community a committee to have charge of each line of work taken up.

SOMERSET COUNTY NEWS IN BRIEF FORM

In an advertisement in a Crisfield paper a middle-aged man, owning a farm and claiming to be up to date, neat, refined, brilliant, a good entertainer, kind and loving, seeks a wife. The only stipulation is that she be able and willing to help in the cause of Christianity and love the farm.

The death of Millard Filmore Bounds, of Mount Vernon, this week, removes a prominent citizen of the county. Deceased was 63 years of age. Mr. Bounds always took an active interest in the civic and political life of the country, and was a justice of the peace at Mount Vernon for many years. He was a son of the late William and Henrietta Bounds, of Mount Vernon.

Berry growers are now harvesting a crop which is bringing them large returns. Contracts with many buyers call for the payment of $10 per crate of 32 quarts. Although the weevil has damaged berry patches to some extent, and the crop was injured by the recent frost, Somerset growers look for a large crop, and expect the season to be a successful one from every standpoint.

It is doubtful if a candidate for any appointive office was ever given stronger endorsement in Somerset county, than the endorsement of Mr. Dashiell for the State Conservation Commission. Oyster and crab packers, oystermen, crabbers and those engaged in every branch of the seafood business, as well as bankers, farmers, merchants and prominent men in every line of industry, in Somerset county, have either written Governor Ritchie personal letters or signed petitions, urging the appointment of Mr. Dashiell.

From appearances at this time the municipal election to be held in Crisfield June 2 will be hard fought, with probably three tickets in the field. The period of filing nomination papers expired May 14, and the registration days will be May 26 and 27. Of the present officials Lorie C. Quinn Jr., has filed for mayor and Benjamin F. Somers seeks re-election as a Councilman. Mr. Quinn is at present president of the board of Councilmen. Mayor Richardson and Councilman A. B. Biggin will retire. Six more names were filed by Mr. Quinn as candidates for Councilmen just prior to the closing of the list. They were Dr. R. E. Norris, Charles T. Maddrix, George E. Nelson, H. Gordon Mears, Severn R. Sterling and William E. Ward. Of these Dr. Norris has withdrawn.

TILGHMAN'S FISH FERTILIZERS

Help Solve the Farm Labor Problem

The farmer, as are many big manufacturers, is up against a shortage of labor. One of the big problems of present day farming is how to solve the labor problem. It is having the serious consideration and attention of not only the farmers themselves, but all economic experts who realize that the prosperity of the country depends upon keeping up and increasing farm production.

All authorities agree that one of the most practical ways to meet this situation is to increase the yield per acre. In other words, enable the farm owner and the help he has left to produce as much as formerly by intensive production. To bring this about the use of fertilizers is vitally necessary, for fertilizers enrich the soil, increase the yield and improve the quality.

It is much more economical to fertilize your present acreage and make your present labor more efficient than it is to plow up more acres, so use plenty of Tilghman's Fish Fertilizers and let it help you keep up your production despite your lack of help.

WINGS AT THE WICOMICO HIGH SCHOOL

Following the grand shake-up in the line-up of the ball team the players seem to have gained new life. Lankford especially, at high deserves the commendation of all because of his good work in the box when his support has repeatedly crumbled behind him.

This is the first shutout Wicomico has given during the whole season and Hurlock is by no means any weaker than any of the teams with the exception of Berlin that we have played this year.

Today is the last day of the scholastic year and reports are to be distributed to the anxious ones at the same time.

Also and far more important (in the estimation of the writer) than the above matters is the fact that this is the last time for this year that High School news will grace the pages of Salisbury's weekly because the next edition of this paper this writer expects to be a full fledged alumnus of the Wicomico High school. He sincerely hopes that next year the news of dear old W.H.S. will again be seen in these columns and sure that they will be far more interesting than these have been.

THE SCHOOL'S MUST CONTINUE TO SUFFER

County Commissioners In Order To Hold Tax Rate To $2.00, Cut Allowance for Schools To Quick.

The County Commissioners on Tuesday gave final consideration to the school budget presented by the Board of Education and decided to appropriate for all school purposes for 1920-21 the sum of $155,255.50. Of this amount $149,031.43 was for general school purposes, including teachers' salaries, and $6,224.07 was to help meet the deficit of former years. This leaves $12,000 yet unpaid on the old deficits.

The total amount levied for all school purposes, $155,255.50, compared with $156,676.15 levied last year, shows a loss to the schools of $1,420.65.

These figures, plus the estimated revenue for 1920-21 of $64,000 show that the Board of Education will have at its disposal for all school purposes the sum of $219,255.50, which is said to be far below the needs of the schools if managed efficiently.

The amount agreed upon by the Commissioners gives about $40,000 increase in teachers' salaries over last year. No provision is, of course, made to erect new school houses and make repairs to old schools next year. The Board of Education asked for $35,000 for these purposes, proposing to expend it only for the most urgent needs. The defeat of the bond issue therefore sounded the death-knell to the proposition to erect new buildings and repair old ones, and the commissioners accepted the result as a condemnation of the extensive plan of improvements contemplated, and felt that they "would not be justified in raising the tax rate, already burdensome, 50 or 75 cents on the $100.00," as a member of the board put it. So the school improvements will have to wait for a more auspicious occasion.

The action of the Commissioners on Tuesday on the school budget fore-shadows the maintenance of the present tax rate of $2.00 on the hundred, unless the deficit for roads and other general expenses go beyond the maximum figure now contemplated. In any event the rate to be declared will not exceed $2.65 to $3.10 and may be a trifle less. The annual levy will be struck in about two weeks, and until then the Commissioners will be busy putting new property on the tax books, raising the basis of a good deal of property now admittedly too low, in order to raise the assessable basis several hundred thousand dollars.

SUCCESS OF CO. I IS NOW ASSURED

Local Committee Of Business Men Heads Recruiting Drive. Big Mass Meeting on Thursday, June 3.

Company "I" will be reorganized without the shadow of a doubt, according to the information given out last night by the Citizens committee, recently appointed by Governor Ritchie to act for Salisbury and Wicomico county, at its first meeting at the Armory. Plans for the recruiting campaign were fully discussed and the name and address of every desirable prospect in the county was obtained. Within the week, each young man on this list will receive letters from the adjutant general, from the committee, and personal calls from the county's most influential business men.

The governor has requested eleven representative men to act as the chairmen of the various sub-committees. These chairmen are Jesse D. Price, Fred P. Adinks, W. B. Miller, A. M. Walls, H. W. Cart, E. D. Mitchell, N. Jerome Wimbrow, George C. Bounds, Purnell White, Mayor Kennerly, and Rev. Herbert D. Cone. To each chairman has been given a group of five or six men; and it is these groups which will try to see every prospect in person.

A big meeting has been arranged for Thursday night, June 3; and the committee will endeavor to have every man on the prospective list present. A number of the biggest employers in the county will, it is said, give short talks explaining their attitude toward the National Guard, which it is understood, entirely favorable. The meeting will be made more attractive by music and other features of a like nature.

From the earnest way in which the citizens committee is planning its recruiting drive, it is evident that the people of the county are heartily in favor of, and will fully support, the company. And the very fact that it is the citizens, especially the older business men, who are endeavoring to re-form the organization, shows that the people consider the company purely as their personal organization.

The recruiting authorities, according to report, will take only the very best young men in the county; and since the list of such individuals is

GOOD COMEDIES AT LOCAL PLAY HOUSES

Arcade And Liberty Theaters Management Put On Genuine Side-splitters. Are Thoroughly Enjoyed.

(Dick van Dyck).

We hear a lot about corking comedies, but did you ever see one? There were two in town this week and if you missed them you missed a rich, rare, racy treat. Remember Harold Lloyd in "Captain Kidd's Pirates"? Sure you do! Well you should have seen him in an "Eastern Westerner." There was a truly comical comedy, something that you see advertised on the bill boards but often fail to see on the screen.

The scene opens with Lloyd attempting to out-shimmy the professional dancers in a restaurant somewhere along the great White Way. His shoulder shaking at such late hours shakes his dad's good opinion of him; and the young man soon finds himself on his way west, to live a life of seclusion on his uncle's ranch. The reel fun starts upon his arrival; and until the very last foot of the film, the play is filled with originality and cleverness of a high order.

To have seen this one feature was to have added a year of fun to a prosaic life; but The Liberty also linked up two other good films with the comedy, Constance Talmadge in "Good Night Paul" and Sylvia Breamer in "The Blood Barrier." Constance was particularly clever in a play based on mistaken identity; and Miss Breamer made a decided hit in the drama, though she was none too well supported.

The other comedy in which Lloyd was presented appeared at the Arcade under the title "His Royal Slyness." It was as funny as "An Eastern Westerner" but lacked some of the originality of the former. On the same bill were Enid Bennett in "The False Road" and hazard-taking Helen Holmes in a special feature.

The vaudeville was exceptional. George Dixon, the jack in the box, put on a clever musical act, although not one that could be called exactly harmonious. He had a number of unusual novelty offerings that are distinctly new and that were received with great favor by the audience.

Jansen and Harrigan presented some catchy songs and old melodies, as well as one up-to-the-minute medley. Their voices blended well and their act was thoroughly enjoyable. Van and Yorke in comedy songs and patter were given a rousing welcome and brought a brand new line of comedy stuff. The Firey Dragon offered a weird spectacle in lights and costumes. Altogether the show was particularly well worth seeing.

Among the coming attractions, two stand out pre-eminently; Houdini in "Terror Island" at the Arcade on Thursday and Friday, and Elsie Janis in "The Imp" at the Liberty the same days. The whole of the A. E. F. knew and loved Miss Janis for the sunshine and happiness she brought into their rather dreary lives; and it is safe to assume that few former doughboys will miss seeing her. Follow their lead and get in while you can.

Houdini has attracted world-wide attention by his death-daring deeds, and in "Terror Island" one finds action from start to finish, action of the most thrilling kind. If you like the thrills that come from watching human being deliberately risk their lives, see Houdini.

A review of the week in the movie world would be incomplete without a word for Norma Talmadge, who has been here infrequently of late. In her latest production "The Woman Gives" she is at her best. As the model, Inez Sondersson, she follows the man she loves down into the Street of a Thousand Sorrows—and meets experiences that are part of the lives of few other women. A story of dramatic intensity, especially adapted to Miss Talmadge, and carrying the strongest of appeals to the human heart is this First National Attraction "The Woman Gives."

Converted Bonds Ready.

Liberty bonds of the following issues which have been left at the various banks in Salisbury for conversion, are now ready for immediate delivery: first 4's; second 4's and third 4's.

large, it is thought that the company may be filled to capacity and still leave many disappointed men out. In other words, the problem seems to be more or less one of elimination rather than one of finding men to fill the ranks. For this reason, the committee will urge every eligible man to present himself for enrollment at once in order that he may have a chance at this great opportunity.

And the committee especially urges every man in the county who is qualified for the Guard to attend the big meeting Thursday night, June 3.

BIG STORE OPENING BRILLIANT SUCCESS

Kennerly & Mitchell Entertain Hundreds of Delighted Guests on Saturday. Souvenirs Given Away.

The big opening at the Kennerly & Mitchell store in this city on Saturday was a decided success. The handsome clothing store was visited by hundreds of people from Eastern Shore towns in Maryland, Delaware and Virginia and while the store was given over to the entertainment of the guests, there were many of these who made purchases and the big sales force was kept busy all day.

The store's usually light and attractive appearance was greatly enhanced by the presence of great baskets of handsome cut flowers. Roses, lilies, sweet peas and violets played very important parts in the decorative scheme. Many of these handsome floral pieces were gifts to the store by the big wholesale houses which supply it with merchandise. Some of the pieces were sent from New York some from Boston and several from Baltimore and Philadelphia. In addition to these big showy pieces, there were hundreds of dainty and pretty bouquets of home grown flowers and hundreds of flowering potted plants.

During the afternoon and evening the Salisbury orchestra, stationed on the second floor of the store, played a program of exceedingly excellent music. Souvenirs were given to each and every visitor. The ladies received beautiful red and pink carnations and the men were given handsome clothes brushes. Hundreds of the flowers and brushes were given away.

All day long and until late in the night the store was crowded with admiring visitors. The specially increased staff of attendants apparently took genuine delight in ushering the guests through the three floors of the biggest men's and boys' clothing and furnishing store on the peninsula, and those who visited and saw, had nothing but words of praise for the store itself, the handsome decorations, the big spring stocks displayed, the excellent music, the souvenirs, and the courtesy with which each and every visitor was greeted.

It is safe to say that the Kennerly & Mitchell opening brought hundreds of people from other places to Salisbury. Such an affair as this, could not but be a credit to the city; and those in charge of the management of the big store's business affairs are to be congratulated upon the wonderful success of the affair as well as upon the great growth of their business—a growth for the showing of which the opening was really given.

Harmony School Elects New Officers

Non-sectarian Sunday School Begins Its Second Year of Work Amid Promising Prospects for Success.

The election of officers of Harmony Sabbath school, held recently resulted as follows: R. H. Hampshire, superintendent; C. J. Hummell, assistant superintendent; Hazel Hampshire, secretary; Charles Robinson, treasurer; Eleanor Hummell, organist; Raymond Melick, librarian; Ray Whayland, assistant librarian.

Sessions of the Harmony Sabbath school are held in the Freney School building on the Delmar road, four miles north of Salisbury. The school is now entering upon its second year in a most promising condition in point of attendance, finance, and interest manifested. It is strictly a non-sectarian school being conducted by the members of three or four different denominations all working together for the betterment of the community and the advancement of real Christianity in their own particular section of Wicomico county.

WOMAN INJURED BY AUTO ON TUESDAY

A woman whose identity it was impossible to ascertain at the Peninsula General hospital was run down and injured on Main street near Benjamin's department store on Tuesday afternoon by an automobile driven, it is reported, by Mrs. Walter R. Disharoon, who took the injured woman in her machine to the hospital. Attempts to gain information concerning the identity of the woman or the nature of her injuries, from the hospital, were futile.

Daniel H. Hastings.

Daniel H. Hastings, 51, died on Tuesday afternoon at his home on Camden avenue. Funeral and burial services will be held tomorrow afternoon. The deceased is survived by the following children: Mrs. H. F. Powell, Pens Grove, N. J.; Mrs. Thos. H. Pusey, and L. R. Hastings, of Salisbury; Daniel O. and Walter G. Hastings, both of Wilmington, Del.

keep pace with the rapid improvements which the electric business is always demanding, and so it was that the Day & Zimmermann concern purchased the Salisbury Light, Heat & Power company, the Peninsula Power company located in Caroline county, the Idlewild located in the same county, and the large plant owned by former Congressman Price and Mr. Cooper of this city and located at Laurel, Del., as well as the light and gas plant at Cambridge. When these plants were taken over many of them were in a dilapidated condition and service extremely poor, and it has taken some years to build, enlarge and finally amalgamate all these various concerns into one great and growing corporation, but the experimental stake has passed and Day & Zimmermann can now be congratulated on having one of the most extensive and best equipped modern plants in this section, doing a tremendous business covering a large area of territory and furnishing light, heat and power for 24 hours each day and for 365 days in the year to thousands of customers scattered from lower Delaware to Salisbury. All these various stations have been connected so as to make it possible to give service, no matter what may happen to one or the other of the individual plants, and the final arrangement will be that one large power station will either be located in Salisbury or at Laurel which will ultimately furnish power for the entire territory now covered by the lines of the company.

Since the advent of Day & Zimmermann's management in this section, it is worthy of note that more than 35 shirt and overall factories have connected with their lines as well as large flour mills, tremendous planing mills like E. S. Adkins & Co., of this city, and various others in Caroline and Dorchester counties and many other small manufacturing plants are now being run by the power from this concern which could not, under the existing price of gasoline, be able to carry on their business were it not for the accommodations furnished by the Eastern Shore Gas & Electric company. It is the intention of the Day & Zimmermann management to finally make it possible for every farmer living along the lines or anywhere near their main trunk lines to have the advantages of electricity on their farms for lighting and power purposes the same as the telephone is now used by almost everyone living in this enlightened territory.

The wonderful things accomplished by the splendid management of this great and growing corporation only goes to show what benefits communities receive from the proper amalgamation and operation of large concerns.

SHIRT MAKERS DANCE ON WEDNESDAY

Heads of Star Shirt Manufacturing Co. Entertain Employees at An Informal Affair at Armory.

On Wednesday night of this week the employees of the local factory of the Star Shirt Manufacturing Co., were the guests of their employers at an informal dance given in the local Armory. Music was furnished by the Salisbury orchestra and the dance was in every respect a signal success.

Similar dances are to be given the company's local employees every six months. The next affair of its kind will occur during the late fall or early winter. In addition to the dances, the heads of the Star Shirt Manufacturing Co., will give their Salisbury employees a day's outing and picnic during the approaching summer.

DIOCESAN CONVENTION IN EASTON ON TUESDAY

The Annual Diocesan convention for the Diocese of Easton meets on Tuesday, June 1st at 11 a. m. in St. Andrew's church, Sudlersville. The opening sermon will be preached by Rev. Herbert D. Cone, rector of St. Peter's church, Salisbury. On Tuesday evening a mass meeting will be held with an address by Rev. F. J. Clark, secretary to the presiding bishop and council of the Episcopal church. St. Peter's parish will be represented by the rector and William M. Cooper. During the convention at Sudlersville, Rev. Herbert D. Cone, will be the guest of James M. George, and William M. Cooper will be the guest of Dudley Roe.

A Mile is too Small to Measure by Figuring the service of the General Tire by the mile is like trying to measure the ocean with a teaspoon.

Users of the General Tire get so many thousands of miles out of their tires that after they pass a certain point it's as hard to realize what this surplus General Service means as it is to comprehend the immensity of the 93 million miles to the sun.

Yesterday people talked in millions—today it's billions—and where only a few years ago 5,000 miles was a big tire record, today users of General Cords are greedy for 20,000 miles and more—little realizing what a lot of extra service they get out of General Tires for the money they pay for them.

The average General Cord Tire will pass enough milestones—so that if they were laid end to end they would make an endless stone track more than ten miles long in itself. Isn't that the kind of tire you want—one that is measured by the miles of milestones it passes?

SOME EFFECTS OF PROHIBITION.

The Illinois edition of the American Issue reports a result of a questionnaire sent to sheriffs of Illinois counties in regard to the effect of prohibition on crime.

George W. Farrar, sheriff of Cass county, says: "Before the dry law we had from half dozen to fifteen, now we have none."

Sheriff H. E. Parker, of Crawford county, says: "I haven't a prisoner. Prohibition has made all the difference in the world."

Sheriff Guy R. Williams, of Fulton county, says: "My average number of prisoners for the year 1919 was 25; this year, 1920, the average is three. To the best of my knowledge and belief, it is entirely due to prohibition."

Frank A. Schoenholz, Sheriff of Lee county, says: "have but four inmates at this time, and none of them on account of liquor. Before July 1st, 1919, the number ran as high as 19."

Sheriff Ralph Pfafford, of McLean county, says: "On the first day of April, 1919, we had 51 inmates; at the present time we have in jail 16 inmates, nine of whom were committed by the District Court of Springfield."

Sheriff John W. Wilson of Bond county, reports an empty jail, and says that before prohibition he always had inmates.

Sheriff Barnett, of Gallatin county, says: "There has been a great change since July 1. At our County Fair in 1918, the jail had 13 drunks; in 1919 at the County Fair we had not a single arrest."

Sheriff George W. Tegar, of Woodford county, says: "The decrease in the number of inmates of our jail has been about 75 per cent."

Sheriff L. B. Spaulding, of Bureau county, says: "January, 1919, we had 36; in March, 1920, there is but one inmate."

Sheriff James F. Wheeler, of Knox county, says: "The prison population of Knox county has decreased about 75 per cent. The greater part of this is due to the prohibition law."

The Sheriff of Stephenson county reports that the jail population during 1917 was over 129. During 1919, with only half of the year dry, the total was only 77.

The Sheriff of Pulaski county, writes: "I have only one in the jail, where prior to prohibition I usually had five."

The Sheriff of Pope county, says: "We have only one in jail, haven't had any drunks for over 12 months; prohibition has made a hundred per cent difference."

TRAINING WEEK POSTPONED.

Owing to the lateness of the out-door bathing season in Maryland, Virginia, West Virginia and the District of Columbia, the Potomac division of the American Red Cross, operating in this section, has decided to postpone the nation-wide "Learn To Swim Week" to be held under the auspices of that organization from May 22-29, to June 19-26.

All Red Cross chapters in these states and in the district will be requested to organize a Red Cross Life Saving corps in their city or town, provided, of course, that there are water facilities for bathing or swimming in the form of natatoriums, bathing beaches, lakes, rivers, creeks, etc. Publicity material will be issued within a short time to the proprietors of all swimming pools and bath houses and to the heads of all municipal and private places where swimmers congregate. The Red Cross is making unusual endeavors to lessen the number of deaths by drowning this year and all swimming instructors are invited to join in the movement by co-operating with the organization in forming Life Saving corps.

FISH!

The deep sea fishermen at Ocean City, while somewhat backward in their season, are now beginning to reap a golden harvest from their big nets. Last Saturday the largest shipment of the season was made when the fishermen loaded six hundred barrels of trout and other ocean fish from their day's catch. It is said that fishermen at this point are about 5,000 barrels of fish short of what they had shipped at this corresponding period a year ago, but that the prices they are now receiving have more than made up for the deficiency in the quantity. Good ocean fish are bringing from 90 cents to one dollar per barrel, and at these figures if the fishermen at Ocean City have their usual catch, it will mean the most flourishing fishing season they have ever experienced. It is said the extreme cold weather of this spring has had something to do with the late running of the fish, but they now seem to be coming in large quantities and by the middle of June it may be possible to be shipping from 1,000 to 2,000 barrels of fish per day from this famous seaside resort.

WHY NOT MAKE BRICKS?

The question has been asked many times why Salisbury should not be the brick making center for the Eastern Shore of Maryland. For several years we have had operated by the Salisbury Brick company and by the Peninsula Brick company near this city, and both concerns have turned out not only as good brick as can be purchased anywhere, but have done fairly well as to quantity, but certainly the business of brick making could be very largely increased in this vicinity if proper methods were employed along that line. Recently an expert from Washington who was here looking over the brick situation said that Salisbury should be the brick making center for the Peninsula. He said in the first place we had the best shipping facilities of any place he knew on the Eastern Shore, as we had direct lines to Virginia as well as north through Delaware and east and west from Ocean City to Claiborne, as well as water transportation, and that we were in position to furnish bricks as cheap and as good as any place he knew of. He said he had made an examination of the clay in both the yards of the Salisbury Brick company and the Peninsula Brick company, and he found there most excellent material for brick making. He was especially gratified at the high quality of clay found on both properties and said that the Peninsula Brick company had the opportunity, if the poorer capital was placed in the business, to make enormous quantities of brick and that if properly made they would prove to be among the hardest and best brick which could be made in the state of Maryland. This gentleman seemed to think that here was a great business awaiting real development. He said that for many years to come brick would be in the most urgent demand at extremely high prices and that there was no reason why an enormous business should not be built up right here in Salisbury in this line of trade. He also spoke of the excellent quality of fire clay which he found on the yards of the Salisbury Brick company, and said that here was a commodity which could be developed into a big paying proposition if it was properly gone after.

TWELVE WET

FRIDAYS IN A ROW

Last Friday was the 12th successive Friday that rain has fallen, and those who recall and believe the adage that was current in England in the Middle Ages see rain for the remaining Fridays of 1920. The adage read to the effect that if it rains 10 or 11 Fridays in succession it will rain every Friday thereafter until a new year is begun. As a success of one hundred rainy Fridays has never been experienced, there comes to one the comforting assurance that this wise saying, like so many of its kind, is untrue and probably was never intended to be taken literally.

COULD HARDLY STAND ALONE

Terrible Suffering From Headache, Stitches, Backache, and Weakness, Relieved by Cardui, Says This Texas Lady.

Gonzales, Tex.—Mrs. Minnie Phillips, of this place, writes: "Five years ago I was taken with a pain in my left side. It was right under my left rib. It would commence with an aching and extend up into my left shoulder and on down into my back. By that time the pain would be so severe I would have to take to bed, and suffered usually about three days. I suffered this way for three years, and got to be a mere skeleton and was so weak I could hardly stand alone. Was not able to go anywhere and had to let my house work go. I suffered awful with a pain in my back and I had the headache all the time. I just was unable to do a thing. My life was a misery, my stomach got in an awful condition, caused from taking so much medicine. I suffered so much pain. I had just about given up all hopes of my getting anything to help me.

One day a Birthday Almanac was thrown in my yard. After reading its testimonials I decided to try Cardui, and am so thankful that I did, for I began to improve when on the second bottle. I am now a well woman and feeling fine and the cure has been permanent for it has been two years since my awful bad health. I will always praise and recommend Cardui." Try Cardui today. E 75

Salisbury's Retail Prices Show Well By Comparison

News Special Feature Writer Finds Certain Materials Here Cheaper Than In The Big Cities. Service Here Is Quicker And More Humanly Courteous. Local Stores Are Continually Offering Big Money Saving Opportunities.

IT'S BETTER TO BUY AT HOME.

(By Esther Dell.)

Like every woman, I enjoy going into the stores and making a general nuisance of myself by looking at the pretty things and inquiring the prices even though I know when I do it that while I would like to buy, my economic conscience will say, "No."

Every once in a while I fail to heed that little inner voice, when I see something that is particularly pleasing at a price which is attractively low—as for instance, one day last week I went into a Salisbury store where I found they were selling silk gloves at 49 cents a pair; and while my economic conscience tried to tell me I really didn't need the gloves, my love of a bargain drove me to make a purchase of a pair—and I believe I made a wise purchase.

I have read a good deal and heard a good deal about the big discount sales which some of the New York and Philadelphia stores are now conducting. Every day some one calls my attention to the fact that a certain store in Baltimore or a store in Wilmington or in New York or in Philadelphia is offering such and such a BARGAIN!

Such things make me smile! I haven't a doubt but that each one of those stores is really offering the bargains advertised—but don't you want to see what you buy when you buy it?

And if you want to see it before you buy it, can you afford to spend the price of the railroad fare from here to that other big city just to save a dollar and a half or so on a purchase? If you will notice a good many of those big city store bargain advertisements you will see printed at the bottom of them something like this:

"No goods or money to be returned." or maybe something like this: "We will not be responsible for errors in filling mail or telephone orders during this sale."

Now as a matter of fact, my friends, you have as good stores in Salisbury as in any other place in the land. The big city may have bigger stores which offer bigger assortments; but when it comes to cheap buying, Salisbury's stores are as good as any other city's stores.

If you want something that the Salisbury stores do not carry in stock, all you have to do is to explain your wants to the proprietor, the manager or a member of the sales force and a supply of the commodity you are after will be laid before you for inspection within a very short time.

As for bargain sales, Salisbury's stores are offering them all the time. It is true that I had quotations on crepe de chine from a big city store the other day. I wrote for samples and prices just for the purpose of making comparisons. This is what I found:—the big store quoted me $4.50 a yard for a crepe de chine that I found I could buy in one of the Salisbury stores for $4 a yard. The material is just the same quality and the pattern is hardly different.

Now wouldn't it be foolish to send my good money to that big store and pay 50 cents a yard more for that material than I would have to pay here at home?

As a matter of fact I do not believe that many of our women are sufficiently interested in the local stores to read their advertisements or to make personal visits to those local shopping centers. Many of us make a business of reading the advertisements in the big city papers and swallow whole all that we read there because they are the advertisements of nationally known stores; but we do not realize that renown was won through advertising of the same kind that our own stores are having published in every issue of the papers of this section, and that the local advertising is just as honest as that of any other stores, no matter where they may be located.

It is a great mistake to believe that just because a merchandising house has won a great name for itself thru its advertising, it is the best store in the land. It is right to believe and to realize that our first duty to ourselves and to our community lies in our patronage of the home buying centers—for in them we can buy just as advantageously, and be treated just as fairly and just as courteously as in any of the stores of the bigger cities.

Here at home we know the sales people and the store's business heads. They are our personal friends, our townspeople. They expect to meet and associate with us today, tomorrow, the day after and next year. It is to their interest to treat us justly in our business dealings. In the big city stores they never expect to see us again—they know we are attending a special sale, because we want to save a few cents and that is all. They have no real interest in us and we have no real interest in them. They want to see us, and we want to buy and save money. There ends the relation between us. If they cheat us, we will not protest, because we are just one of thousands—here at home if we are dissatisfied with a purchase after we have made it, we go back to the store and file our protest.

What is the result? We are given attention. We are not referred to some little half baked complaint clerk who answers us saucily and pays little or no heed to what we say.

We are treated well and justly at home—so I say, let us do our dealing at home. We will find that in the long run we will be better satisfied and that we will have spent no more money than if we had sent our good money to one of the big city stores for our commodities.

TEACHING CHILDREN LESSONS IN THRIFT

(By Charlotte Eldridge.)

The parents and teachers of every child wish him to have the benefit of greater advantages than they have had. That is one of the reasons why parents often make great personal sacrifices to educate their children for more congenial work than they themselves have enjoyed and interest in his pupils is one of the few compensations for the trials and insufficient financial returns of a teacher's career.

To make the principles of thrift effective to the child, they must be put into constant practice both at home and in school and must have a direct connection with his daily life.

Every educator realizes the tremendous value of teaching thrift and industry to little children both for their immediate benefit and in anticipation of their future success. Parents who have not had a training in personal economy are anxious to have their children realize that the practice of thrift and an appreciation for the value of money are essential to success and self respect. Thrift principles enter into every relationship and problem of daily life.

Training in economy is equally necessary for the child of parents in poor or moderate circumstances and for those who are rich. In our complex American life it is possible that the poor child of today may be the rich man or woman of tomorrow, and that the child born with a silver spoon in his mouth may sometime be thrown upon his own resources.

It is never too early in a child's training to begin the teaching and practice of thrift. Tales of the habits of animals and insects furnish many examples of this quality. The simple story of the red squirrel will interest any child. Tell him that before cold weather begins the red squirrel builds a comfortable and durable home, that during the summer and fall he gathers nuts and acorns to provide food for the winter time when snow covers the ground. Contrast the habits of the spendthrift rabbit, who saves nothing and who consequently suffers from hunger.

The thrift and enterprise of the bee and the ant may be contrasted with the laziness of the grasshopper and the butterfly. The Book of Proverbs and Aesop's Fables contain many a story which shows the stupidity of extravagance and laziness.

Thrift may also be taught by the careful use of materials, in the school room by economy in handling chalk, clay, paper and other article, and in the home by careful use of furniture and by the elimination of waste in household necessities such as food, fuel and light.

In every walk through the streets to and from schools, material for consideration presents itself. The example of the fire department, a source of interest to every child, may be used to show how loss of life and property is prevented. The public cans for rubbish are another public economy, for by their use we decrease the duties of the street-sweeper.

The means of practicing the principles of thrift are numerous. Children may be encouraged to buy the government Thrift Stamps issued by the United States Treasury, or to have accounts in Postal or Savings Banks. Through these channels the systematic saving of money may be brought home to the child in an attractive and profitable way, and the sums so saved conserved and invested. Americans have been called a nation of economic illiterates. They are spendthrifts by habit. It may not be possible to eradicate the vice of extravagance in this present generation, but it can be stamped out of the boys and girls of the future by continued instruction.

The influence of economy is far-reaching, and instruction in thrift is a personal, a municipal, and a patriotic duty which both parents and teachers owe to the children, the community, and the country.

DIED AT SHARPTOWN.

Capt. John W. Robinson died on Wednesday of last week at the age of 67 of a complication of diseases. For a number of years he conducted a shipbuilding plant in Jacksonville, Florida, but owing to failing health he returned a few months ago, hoping to regain his health, but he gradually grew worse until the end came. His remains were interred in the Red Men Cemetery on Friday after funeral services in the M. E. church, of which he had been a member for many years, by Rev. H. S. Dulany. He leaves a widow, two sons, Omer W. Robinson of this town and Rev. Oris W. Robinson of Baltimore, and one daughter, Mrs. E. G. Bennett of this town.

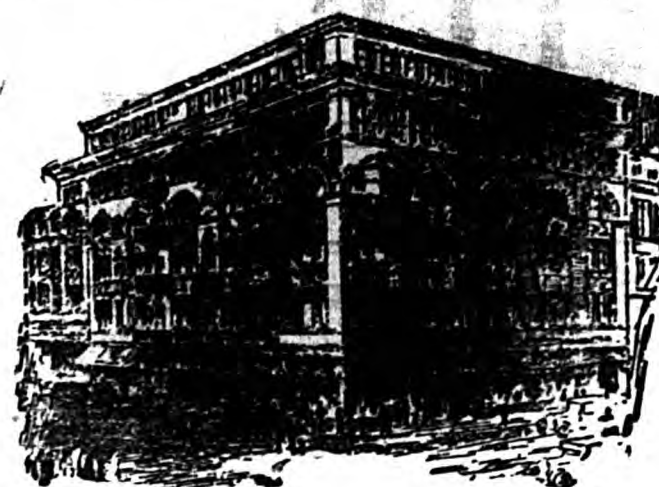

THE CONTRAST

(By Stuart Laidlaw.)

Do you remember that star-lit night
We stood side by side, while the eerie cry
Of the Ghost-bird spoke of its pitiable plight?
I promised you then I'd fight the Fight,
And win where you'd lost; that I'd win or—die!

But you did not believe in the Love of God,
And you did not believe in me;
And if I failed, you would rather the sod
Should hide; than the world should see.

To-night I stand in the shadows again
But another stands close to me
The ghostly-bird cries now as then—Another call from the World of Men.
Come to-day, and I seem to see
My work, and One cries, "Go out and strive,
I believe in God and You;
And while we're together and you're alive,
I don't care what you do!"

MANTONE

THE KING OF RECONSTRUCTIVE TONICS.

It is Sold under guarantee by all Druggists.

The Mantone Company,
Baltimore, Md.

Gentlemen: Never did I once think of endorsing a Proprietary Medicine and have always said I never would, but in this particular instance I cannot refrain from doing so.

I have practiced medicine twenty eight years, and during that time when a real Tonic and Tissue-builder was indicated I always prescribed a compound of IRON, NUX VOMICA and PHOSPHORUS, as I always get better results from such a compound than any other.

By endorsing MANTONE tablets I feel that I am not only helping humanity in my local practice, but helping to pave the way to a Nation-wide use of such a valuable prescription.

IRON is known to be the only real blood builder by helping Nature to increase and strengthen the red corpuscles. NUX VOMICA is the only real muscular tonic and stimulant, and PHOSPHORUS the only real nerve food and stimulant. By the trio we have a compound superior to all known drugs as a general tonic and stimulant, suitable for all ages and all functional conditions.

For the above reasons I feel that MANTONE tablets deserve the highest place as a builder of humanity and well worthy of its name.

Very truly yours,
DR. W. E. ARTHUR.

The Mantone Company,
Baltimore, Md.

Gentlemen: I am not in the habit of endorsing patent medicines for the majority of them are fraudulent, but in the case of "Mantone," I feel that I can depart from my usual custom, for I think this remedy is the best Reconstructive Tonic that I know of. In the first place Nux Vomica is the best stomachic and nerve tonic that I, in my practice have ever used; when this is reinforced by Phosphorus, the best of nerve tonics, and with the addition of Iron, a great blood purifier, we have all the remedies that go to make a great general tonic and re-builder for stomach, nerves, and blood.

Very truly yours,

J. HOWARD BERRY PICKED BY EXPERTS TO FILL JIM THORPE'S SHOES AT OLYMPICS

The former pentathlon champ of the University of Pennsylvania, J. Howard Berry, bookbinder by trade, is picked by experts to take the place of Jim Thorpe in the pentathlon at the coming Olympic games. He is a bookbinder at his father's bookbinding establishment, of which he is a partner, at Philadelphia, and he says that he would rather be champ bookbinder of the United States than athlete. He also has interests in the wholesale coal industry at which he spends a few hours daily. In addition to an hour or two on the Franklin field cinder track, after which he loafs around "until tomorrow."

DIAMOND NOTES

Connie Mack prefers the collegiate to the sandlotter.

Eddie Murphy was the champion punch hitter of the American league last season.

Ed Barrow hangs right to his job as Red Sox manager. Lots of fans had him fired last winter.

Michigan has ten baseball players available for this year's nine who won their letters in previous years.

Miller Huggins, manager of the New York Yankees, still holds out hope of signing Frank Baker, third baseman.

Mike Martin and Nick Altrock are getting set to beat it for Tampa to get things ready for the advance guard of Nationals.

George Gibson wants to make several trades that he thinks will put the Pirates very much in the National league pennant race.

Plans for a new Georgia-Alabama baseball league are under way. A 12-player limit and a maximum salary of $1,500 are features.

The Louisville club is going to give Ad Thomas another try at it. The soldier left-hander has the stuff and may yet get it over.

Chicago fans are willing to bet Grover Cleveland Alexander wins more games than any other pitcher in the National league this season.

The New York club owners put a high value on the remarks of Ban Johnson. All they want is a half million for some of the things he is alleged to have said about them.

Hal Janvrin, who was such a failure with the Nationals, will make good this year, according to Branch Rickey of the Cards. Janvrin will be with St. Louis when the season opens.

Roger Peckinpaugh has been keeping in great shape this winter and hopes to get away to a good start in April. The veteran started lots of folks last year by his brilliant work.

Akron (O.) industrial firms are erecting a modern, up-to-date stadium and athletic field for employees. They are back of the purchase of the International league baseball franchise.

Tris Speaker, Cleveland manager and outfielder, was the only major leaguer to score five runs in a 1919 game. He did that at the Polo grounds on August 11, when the Indians defeated the Yankees, 15 to 9.

"SIMON PURE" AMATEUR

"Chick Harley, the wonderful all-around athlete and All-American halfback of Ohio State University, will go down in history as a real amateur athlete. It has just come to light that Harley refused numerous offers to play on professional football teams during the season, but that he was determined to lose no money and refused to play."

CLUB TO BUILD HOTEL

Backers of the Wichita Falls Club in the Texas League have a scheme that may be followed by other clubs if it pans out right. Because of shortage of hotel accommodations in the Texas boom town, the Wichita Falls people plan to build a hotel for home and visiting ball players in connection with their grandstand. There will be kitchenettes, indoor beds and everything for Mrs. Ball Player if she wants to make her home with hubby at the ball park.

STAGE REGATTA AT VICTORIA

Expected That Some of Greatest Oarsmen in West Will Participate in Big Event.

Some of the greatest oarsmen in the West are expected to participate next summer at the annual regatta of the North Pacific Association of Amateur Oarsmen, which will be held in Victoria.

The last international regatta on the Pacific coast took place at Portland, Ore., in 1914. In past years the keenest competition has been between Vancouver and Portland, but the entrance of the famous Coeur d'Alene, Idaho, club for the 1920 regatta has broadened the interest.

SWIMMING RACES IN HAWAII

Duke Kahanamoku and Norman Ross Slated to Compete in 100-Yard Junior for Men.

The Hawaiian branch of the A. A. U. has arranged two national swimming events on April 17 and 19. The two events will be the 100-yard and 150-yard junior races. Duke Kahanamoku and Norman Ross will compete.

Low Kerosene Fuel Consumption

The Twin City 12-20 has proved by performance that it meets the first four essentials of the farmer's requirements—great surplus power, plenty of reserve strength, low fuel cost, and thorough dependability. By virtue of this performance, it stands as an accepted leader today; it has met and mastered the several tractor tasks because it is built to DO the work, NOT to meet a price.

The fuel economy of the Twin City 12-20 and the efficiency of its kerosene burning system, were well demonstrated in the competitive plowing contests of 1919, when the Twin City won 6 of the 8 competitions in which it was entered. The average fuel cost of "the field" was 56 1/2 cents per acre, and that of the Twin City 37 1/2 cents per acre.

The 12-20 engine is equipped with an exclusive Twin City-Holley vaporizing system that automatically delivers the fuel mixture to the cylinder in the proper condition for combustion. In this way, the Twin City engine burns kerosene fuel perfectly without the use of water injection. Let your tractor be a Twin City. It will satisfactorily do your work.

SOME OBSERVATION OF THE MAN ABOUT TOWN

Reads Of Experiences Of Army Deserter in Ohio And Recalls Story of John Long in Civil War.

While scanning the pages of an Ohio weekly journal last week, The Man About Town was struck with reading an interesting account of the escapades of an army deserter who for two years lived in caves and was fed daily by his faithful wife.

The scene of the army deserter's escapade was laid in the Hocking Valley, near Adelphia. The deserter, Carl Amerine, aged 24, was drafted in the 84th Division, in 1918. He left the camp in August of that year to pay a visit to his wife and infant baby near Adelphia, oversteering his leave, he said. His wife fearing he would be shot as a deserter, persuaded him to go into the hills, Amerine told the officers. There he lived in the caves until one day last week when a friend of the family learned of his whereabouts and persuaded Amerine's wife to give her consent to his surrender.

During the time he was hiding, Amerine was furnished food by his wife, who sent it to him or took it to him personally daily.

Amerine, gave himself up to military authorities at Camp Sherman. Attired in the uniform he wore when he left Camp Sherman, and unkempt from long months spent in the hills, he expressed relief to military authorities that his worry was over.

This story brought vividly to my mind a similar case which occurred in Salisbury during the Civil war, only that the man instead of being a deserter from the Union Army was a strong Southern sympathizer and had incurred the displeasure of the "Yankees" that a price was set upon his head. He, like the Ohio man, lived in a cave near Salisbury, and for nearly four years eluded the "Yankees."

This man's name was John Long, who long since has passed to the silent majority.

Well do I remember when but a boy I heard "Uncle John" recount the thrilling experiences through which he passed in those stormy days of the Civil war. Having made up his mind that he would not obey the call of his country to duty, his chief thought was to find some place where he could hide until the "unpleasantness," as he termed it, "had blown over." So he finally decided on living in caves and set about to building two or three somewhere along the edge of Polk's Pond, between the dam and Middle Neck bridge. These caves were roomy, finished inside with lumber, and had pleasant bunks to sleep in. Portholes enabled Long to scan the ground in every direction for soldiers who were constantly on the search for him. Hundreds of times, he said, the soldiers were within a few feet of his hiding place, but by good luck he escaped.

During these years Long was supplied with food by friends who visited the cave at night, and occasionally he would disguise himself and go home for something to replenish his larder.

His narrative of thrilling escapes while on some of his night prowlings will never be forgotten by The Man About Town.

Disguised, he frequently visited the liquor saloon of "Old Man Hawkins," which stood on East Camden street, about where the big brick garage of

D. W. Perdue & Co., now stands. Here the friends of the north and of the south often met and many a wordy conflict finally terminated in a "knock down and drag out" fight.

It was on just such an occasion as this that Long became involved in a difficulty with several Federal soldiers. Disguised as a negro woman, Long, who was a powerful man weighing about 240 pounds, drifted into the Hawkins saloon. It was not long before a fight started and Long struck several of the soldiers, one in particular being an officer who fell to the floor like a dead man. After a great deal of work on the soldier he was finally revived, avowing that he had been "struck many a time but never so hard as that negro woman struck him." "Uncle John" used to tell this story as well as many others of a similar character—and chuckle about the manner he eluded the "Yanks."

Many of the older readers of The News will recall vividly these stories about Long's escapades during the years which tried men's souls—when the nation was divided on the question of slavery and had locked horns in deadly combat.

ALL IS READY FOR NATIONAL GUARD DRIVE

Special Effort To Get Recruits Will Be Made During The 10 Days Beginning May 24.

All is in readiness for the opening of the statewide campaign to raise recruits for the new Maryland National Guard, which will open on Monday May 24th and continue for 10 days. At the end of this time it is the hope of Governor Ritchie, Adj. Gen. Milton A. Reckord and others backing the campaign to have Maryland's quota in the new national militia organization of the United States.

Maryland must raise 3,200 men for the Guard. There will be two infantry regiments, two batteries of artillery and a medical unit. One infantry regiment and at least one of the artillery groups will be distributed throughout the counties and a company will be raised in many towns. The infantry regiment of the state will be the First, and in the city the fifth Regiment will be revived.

Plans for the Guard campaign have been made carefully. It is purposed to enroll men from as representative a group of citizens as possible, and every profession, business and trade will be called upon to present a quota of recruits to the State. The executive or "steering" committee named by the Governor to aid in the campaign has suggested two per cent as a proper proportion for large employers to give to the Guard.

In each of the counties a sub-committee will be named to aid in the active work. These committees will see to it that every young man in the counties receives an invitation to join the guard and has explained to him the need for a state military organization and the duty which lies before him in regard to the matter.

Young men who have come of military age since the World war armistice was signed are to be especially appealed to. It is felt by those at the head of the campaign that the veterans of the war and men who have already seen military service will, in many instances, come into the new organization, but it is felt that they can't be expected to share the entire responsibility.

Governor Ritchie is anxious to see that the campaign goes over in good style for the obvious reason that at present Maryland is virtually without military protection of any kind. The work done by the old Maryland National Guard on many occasions when disaster visited the city or state, such as the great fire of 1904, furnishes ample evidence of the need of some organized body of men for service in such emergencies.

Adjutant-General Reckord's office in the Maryland Trust Building, Baltimore or the county workers in the campaign will be glad to furnish full information concerning the new units, to all interested.

TEACHERS' EXAMINATIONS ON JUNE 3RD AND 4TH

The dates set for the teachers' examination are Thursday and Friday, June 3 and 4.

The questions on the four subjects representing the equivalent of a high school education for third grade teachers desiring to advance their certificates to second grade will be given on Friday, the second day of the examination. The questions in the subjects representing the equivalent of a normal school course for applicants desiring to advance the grade of their certificates from the second to the first grade will also be given on Friday, the second day of the examination. The examination for advancing the grade of certificates will not be given again in August. The August examination will not be held this year unless for some emergency reason, and if held will include only the elementary school subjects for applicants writing for their first certificates. These examinations will be given in the Wicomico High school of Salisbury.

OCEAN CITY COTTAGES IN GREAT DEMAND

Salisbury will be very well represented in the cottage colony at Ocean City this summer. Many of Salisbury families have secured cottage at this famous seaside resort and will spend the summer there moving over around the 10th of June. The demand for cottages at Ocean City has never been quite as urgent as it was this season, and it is understood that each cottage on the beach which has been offered for lease has been taken over, with one exception, and that is a very large cottage, the rent of which is said to be $1000 for the three summer months. The prices of cottages at Ocean City which heretofore have ranged from $250 to $350 for the season have this year advanced to $600 $700, and $900 for the season. Of course these cottages are furnished, but in many cases the families who own them have reserved the basement of the houses in which to live during the summer. These prices are thought to be very excessive, but notwithstanding this fact the demand for the cottages has been so great that price seems to cut but little figure.

About Digestion.

It is claimed that only half as much food is required when it is thoroughly masticated. Digestion begins in the mouth and a thorough mastication of the food is of the greatest importance. When needed take Chamberlain's Tablets to strengthen the digestion and insure a regular movement of the bowels.—Advt.

Why a Majority of the Smaller Cars Come on Goodyear Tires

Last year more cars using 30x3-, 30x3½-, or 31x4-inch tires were factory-equipped with Goodyear Tires than with any other kind.

This is plainly a result of the high relative value produced in these tires for the smaller cars by Goodyear's enormous resources and scrupulous care.

They represent the same intense endeavor to supply utmost satisfaction in tires that has laid the basis for the marked preference which exists everywhere for Goodyear Tires in the larger sizes.

This real Goodyear value in tires is available for your Ford, Chevrolet, Dort, Maxwell, or other car using one of these sizes, at our nearest Service Station. Go there for these tires and Goodyear Heavy Tourist Tubes.

SCOUTS CELEBRATE TENTH BIRTHDAY

Scouts Of America Organization Will Be 10 Years Old On Memorial Day, May 30.

As part of its tenth birthday celebration the Boy Scouts of America will observe the week commencing Memorial Day, May 30th, and ending June 6th, nationally as Boy Scout week. This will be a characteristically outdoor celebration and a program of outdoor activities will be carried out in the 17,000 and more communities where scout troops are in operation.

It would be impossible to estimate the tremendous impetus which the Boy Scout movement has given to outdoor life and outdoor activities among American boys. During the 10 years of its existence in this country it has led tens of thousands of lads away from city streets and set them hiking, camping, following wood land trails, learning to know the trees and stars and birds by name, to find their way by night or day with or without a compass, to choose the best kind of camp site, to set up camp in the right way, to signal messages by semaphore from tower to tower or by heliograph from hill to hill, to build camp fires and cook their own meals over them.

They learn to think quickly, to observe accurately, to look out for themselves and others in ordinary occasions and in special emergencies. They are "prepared" in every sense, prepared to enjoy life to the utmost, to be clean, vigorous, healthy, fresh air animals. Probably more boys have spent more days and nights in the open in the past 10 years than in all the past history of this country since pioneer days—a fact very largely due to scout influence and training. The activities of Boy Scout week will include outdoor rallies, overnight hikes, barbecues, demonstration camps and competitions in outdoor scouting features.

Sunday, May 30th, the opening day of the celebration will include special services in churches of all denominations, Scouts participating. Programs of Scouting activities will be carried out during the week, Friday, June 4th, will be observed as Hike and Camp day and Saturday, June 5th, will be National Scout Field day, with competitions in tent pitching, fire building, wall scaling, signalling, tower and bridge building and demonstrations of fire aid and life saving.

The great objective of Boy Scout week will be to give the scouts themselves a good time and to rouse the interest of the public in outdoor life and scouting. The more people who can be induced to get out in the open with the Boy Scouts the better outlook for America. We started out a race of sturdy pioneers, let us follow the Boy Scouts back to the trail.

ELISHA GIVANS DIES IN SALISBURY

Elisha Givans, formerly of Worcester county, died at his home near Salisbury a few days ago. He was born near Powellsville in the Givans homestead. He had reached the advanced age of 78 years. Most of his married life had been spent near Whiton. A few years ago he sold his farm near Mt. Zion M. P. church, and retired from active farming, coming to Wicomico county, where he bought a place near Salisbury. Mr. Givans is survived by his widow and 13 children. He is also survived by 28 grandchildren, and by three brothers and three sisters.

NEWS OF THE WEEK FROM LOWER DELAWARE

Health authorities have started a campaign to stamp out hog cholera in lower Delaware, which has broken out in several sections and is threatening destruction to the winter supply of meat. As soon as the disease breaks out, nearly all of the farmers vaccinate the hogs with serum and virus.

Measles are so prevalent in Broad-kiln district that manufacturing industries in the town of Milton, it is feared, will have to close down a most of the employees are affected. There are but few families in that section in which some one is not ill.

Members of Evergreen Forest, No. 49, Tall Cedars of Lebanon, Milford, composed of Masons from all parts of lower Delaware, went by special train to Wilmington Tuesday afternoon, where they were guests of Brandywine Forest. Forests from Baltimore and Philadelphia were in attendance at the Wilmington meeting at which degrees were conferred on a large class of candidates. About 200 members from Sussex county went to Wilmington to attend the affair.

Advices from all sections of Delaware point to a big food shortage, due to idle farm lands this year. During a recent trip over this territory Robert Vaile, a member of the Philadelphia North American news staff, he found conditions very unfavorable. He says: "We're going to be hungry next winter. The season only three blades of corn are growing where four grew last year; only three hills of potatoes are planted where four stood in the summer of 1919; only three men are working on the farms where four are required and five should be employed; only three acres are being cultivated where four were growing crops a 12 month ago. The state of Delaware shows a one-third shortage of farm labor, a one-third reduction in crops. The Eastern Shore of Maryland shows the same thing. Last year the district of East Dover, in Kent county, ordered 9,000 pounds of binder twine. This year the order was sent in for 6,000 pounds. That means a one-third reduction in the cereal crop. The corn acreage in Kent is reduced by one-third. There has been a 10 to 15 per cent cut in the land plowed for tomatoes. All of this land will not be planted. Worse than that, the tomato crop cannot be fully harvested because of lack of help. The berry crop will show about 20 per cent drop.

"How much is being paid for farm labor? Why, you simply can't quote a commodity that is not available. Some farmers are paying $100 a month.

"There are 25 abandoned farms within a radius of 10 miles of Georgetown," told County Agent M. C. Vaughn in a matter-of-fact way. Mr. Vaughn feels the gloom of the situation but doesn't show it. He said that Sussex county will raise less than two-thirds of its usual tomato crop. And when you speak of a cut like this it dare not be forgotten that the Eastern Shore belt raises half of the tomatoes that are put up in cans and sold from the grocers' shelves.

"As for the peas, there will be a mere handful raised for the canners.

"Yes, I am safe in predicting a one-third drop in the corn production," added Mr. Vaughn. Perhaps it will be more with potatoes. It costs too much money for seed. Ours is a big berry section. The 1920 crop will be reduced 20 per cent. That means a worse situation in 1921 because it is from the present year strawberry plants that we get our 1921 plants."

DRUM FISHING IN SEASON AGAIN

The drum fishing season at Ocean City is fast approaching and it will be only a few weeks before many fishermen will be wending their way down to the beach in quest of them. Drum are caught from the shore and furnish very exciting sport. The fish weigh from 35 to 50 pounds each and it takes an expert fisherman to land one on the beach.

NEWS IN BRIEF FORM FROM WORCESTER CO.

Capt. Elmer Watson, of Chincoteague, taught two caviar sturgeons in his deep sea nets the same day, the receipts therefrom being $711.50. The roe weighed 175 pounds and brought $3.50 a pound.

There is considerable activity in real estate in various sections of Worcester, and high prices are prevailing. There seems to be quite an active demand for Ocean City property. Among the sales last week were two pieces---Lafayette Johnson purchasing from Minnie Moore Ewell "The Virginia," on the west side of Atlantic avenue. The price paid was $2,800. Oscar M. Purnell sold to Rose C. Barry a house and lot on corner of Atlantic avenue and Talbot street, the price paid being $4,250.

Several farms have also changed hands, the records showing: Job Truitt from Calvin B. Taylor, attorney, etc., 10 acres of land near Whaleyville, in the Ninth Election district. Consideration $2,125. George W. Hitchcock and Benjamin Shank from Elisha D. Layton part of the McNeal Farm, about 4 miles from Bishopville. Consideration, $10,000. David T. Justice, Jr., from Tabitha Fisher, farm containing 42 acres, on the left hand side of the county road leading from Stockton to Welbourne. Consideration, $2,500.

Fifty years ago this week Ara P. Bowen and Miss Savannah Aydelotte were married at the home of her father, Col. W. J. Adolotte, at Pocomoke City. The marriage ceremony was performed by the Rev. Joseph L. Polk, of the Presbyterian church. Mr. and Mrs. Bowen lived in Newark until a few years ago, when they removed to Berlin, where they now reside. They received numerous congratulations on their 50th birthday, and were made happy by the good wishes and felicitations of their many friends. Of the five children, that blessed their union, one, Ara J. Bowen died in a hospital in France, while in the service of his country.---Snow Hill Messenger.

Several hundred people visited Ocean City Sunday to witness flights by the seaplane Albatross, owned by Robert Bull of Finney's Wharf, Va. The little flying boat made several flights, carrying a full load each trip. The owner charged $10 for a ten-minute flight, or $1.00 per minute. The boat is known as model No. 40, is equipped with a 100 h. p. Curtis engine and is considered the best small boat in the United States for flying qualities and instruction purposes. She has a wing spread of 47 feet, length 30 feet; develops speed of approximately 80 miles an hour at full speed; slow speed, 40 miles per hour; landing speed, 30 miles per hour.

County Superintendent McMaster presented his budget to the County Commissioners last week, and it is the largest budget by several thousand dollars ever presented. The total amount asked for is $275,179, or six times more than the school levy of five years ago. Of this amount $77,600 has been estimated for permanent school improvements, $10,800 for repairs; $2500 for furniture, and $184,279 for maintenance of schools. In the first part of this budget is provided $72,500.00 for new school house and repairing old ones. Nothing is asked for new white schools at Snow Hill, Berlin, or Pocomoke, but $45,000 is asked for a High school at Stockton and $4,500 for a colored school at Stockton.

HEALTH HINTS.

Miss Margaret G. Laws, Red Cross Public Health nurse in Wicomico county has consented to write for The News each week an article on the care of health and prevention of disease and sickness. This is the eight of Miss Laws' articles.

HOW TO LIVE LONG.

Miss Margaret Laws, R.N.

Have lots of fresh air where you sleep.

Some people do not have the chance to work or play in the open air or to get fresh air in their workrooms. But at night it is different. We spend a third of our time in bed, and while we are asleep we can get plenty of fresh air.

You should always have all the windows in your bedroom wide open. The night air will not hurt you. It is good for you. If you breathe good air all night, you will feel more rested in the morning and better able to do your work.

If possible, sleep out-of-doors, but have plenty of nightclothes and bedclothes to keep you warm.

If there are mosquitoes or flies, hang a piece of light mosquito netting over the bed.

Breathe deeply.

Breathe deeply, slowly, regularly, through the nose. Do not breathe through the mouth. If we do not occasionally breathe deeply, part of our lungs may become useless.

One one-fifth of the air is "oxygen." This is needed by the blood to keep us healthy.

Do not force yourself to breathe rapidly. This is harmful. Breathe slowly.

Avoid eating too much. Do not force yourself to eat too much, even if you think that you should weigh more than you do. Weight may be gained by sleeping as well as by eating.

When your body gets hard exercise, it uses up more heat and needs more food. The food gives back the heat. If you do not get exercise in your work, you should eat less, or you may get fat.

Do not eat between meals. You may overwork your stomach.

Do not eat heavy meals just before heavy work. Do not eat a heavy meal when you are very tired or overheated. It is then sometimes better to skip a meal or to eat fruits or salads. If overheated, eat foods that take up room in the stomach but which do not make much heat. Such foods are lettuce, cucumbers, celery, spinach, asparagus, cabbage, beets, onions, carrots, parsnips, squash, pumpkins and tomatoes.

Eat a little less food in hot weather. Food makes heat, and in hot weather you need less heat.

KELLEYS.

Lee Ruark, near Johnson's school met with a bad loss last Sunday evening. While he was away, his home caught fire and was burned. There was no one home but Mrs. Ruark and two of the children. Five young people happened to be riding that way just as the fire was discovered and went to the rescue, and with good luck saved all the furniture, except the cook stove.

Constipation causes headache, indigestion, dizziness, drowsiness. For a mild, opening medicine, use Doan's Regulents. 30c a box at all stores.---Adv.

Who never work;
But men with brawny muscles, brains, and daily tasks abound
Who never shirk.
And the happier of the two
Are---I put it up to you!
Take that cure for every ill: "Go to work, work, work!"
Oh, that wondrous panacea, "Go to work!"

THE WONDROUS PANACEA.

(Dick van Dyck.)

If you're feeling like a martyr and perhaps a little blue,
Go to work!

If the Powers that Be find fault with everything you try to do,
Never shirk!

For the best lies in the trying,
And of that there's no denying.
There's no Power on earth can find fault if you work, work, work;
Oh, no Power on earth can find fault if you work!

When the rain is dripping wearily from winter's sodden sky,
Go to work!

For all that any man can do is make an honest try,
Never shirk!

When you're getting all the blame
For something undeserved, be game;
Let the knockers knock their hardest:---go to work, work, work;
For no one is hurt by knocking. Go to work!

When the birds begin to carol and the flowers start to bloom,
Go to work!

Though it may seem mighty hard to shut yourself up in a room,
Never shirk!

For the men who always play
Will at last be forced to pay,
But they won't know how to do it. Go to work, work, work!
Oh they won't know how to do it. Go to work!

There are dreamers, there are loafers, there are shirkers all around

ENTRANCE EXAMINATIONS

Scholarships in Engineering Courses.

ENTRANCE EXAMINATIONS for the Department of Engineering, as well as the College of Arts and Sciences, will be held in the Civil Engineering Building, Homewood, Monday-Saturday, June 21-26, 1920, beginning at 9 a. m. each day, under the auspices of the College Entrance Examination Board.

APPLICATION FOR SCHOLARSHIPS IN THE DEPARTMENT OF ENGINEERING

Established under the provisions of the Laws of Maryland, Chapter 90, 1912, will now be received. If there is more than one applicant for a particular scholarship, a competitive examination must be taken, Friday, September 17, 1920, beginning at 9 a. m. Appointments will be made soon thereafter.

Each Legislative District of Baltimore City and each County of the State, with the exception of Cecil, Harford, Queen Anne's, Talbot and Worcester Counties, will be entitled to one or more scholarships for the year 1920-1921, in addition to those which have already been assigned. In the five counties mentioned above, all the available scholarships have been awarded.

Under the provisions of the Act of Assembly, the County and City Scholarships in the Department of Engineering are awarded only to deserving students whose financial circumstances are such that they are unable to obtain an education in Engineering unless free tuition be granted to them. The scholarships entitle the holders to free tuition, free use of text-books, and exemption from all regular fees. One of the scholarships in each County and in each Legislative District of the City carries also the sum of $200. The expense of attendance for those who do not receive scholarships is not greater than at other Maryland institutions.

Scholarships may be awarded to graduates of Loyola College, St. John's College, Washington College, Western Maryland College, Maryland Agricultural College, Mt. St. Mary's College, Rock Hill College.

One scholarship will be awarded "At Large."

Applicants should address The Registrar, The Johns Hopkins University, for blank forms of application and for catalogues giving information as to examinations, award of scholarships, and courses of instruction. The next session begins Tuesday, September 28, 1920.

HASH GIVEN ANY OTHER NAME SEEMS TO TASTE BETTER-IS CULINARY DELICACY

A Meat Grinder Will Prepare the Meat in Short Order.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

What's in a name? Much, sometimes. For instance, hash. Hash has become one of the seven original jokes. But hash, if well made and well seasoned, is a culinary delicacy. No matter how good it is, however, it grows tiresome if served too much.

So the uncanny meat-saving cook serves her hash in new forms, labeled with new names, and the finicky in her family eat it with a relish.

Sometimes the meat has been cooked, but oftentimes it is tough portions of steak or other cuts which have been cut off before cooking. Chopping makes it tender and also allows it to be cooked quickly and economically.

The following recipes are recommended by the home economics kitchen of the United States department of agriculture:

Mock Rabbit.
3 slices of bread 1/2 pound beef and moistened with water. 1 pound sausage, or 1 green pepper. 1 egg. 1 onion. 1/2 pound sausage meat. Pepper and salt. 1/2 pound salt pork.

Chop the meat. Chop the onion and cook it—but do not brown it—in the fat fried out of a small portion of pork. Add the bread and cook a few minutes. When cool, mix all the ingredients and form into a long roll. The surface can easily be made smooth if the hand is wet with cold water. Lay the remaining pork, cut in thin slices, on top, and bake 40 minutes in hot oven. The sausage may be omitted, if desired, and other seasoning used.

Smothered Beef Roll.
1 pound round beef 1 egg. 1/2 pound lean fresh 2 cupsful stewed to-pork. 1 small onion. 2 slices bacon. 1 green pepper. 2 tablespoonfuls butter. 1 cupful soft stale ter. bread crumbs. 4 tablespoonfuls of 1 teaspoonful salt.

Remove the seeds from the pepper and put it through the meat grinder with the meats and the onion. Add crumbs, egg and salt. Make into a roll,

USE DAMPERS TO SAVE HEAT

Check Draft Controls Rate at Which Fire Burns and Housewife Should Know Operation.

Every stove has two dampers, or should have, and an efficient housewife knows how to operate them. The check draft damper controls the rate at which a fire burns. By opening it a fire is checked. When it is closed the draft is increased. Learn to use it so that it will do its work, specialists in the department of agriculture suggest.

If this damper is properly constructed and managed a fire may be checked without opening the cooling door. The turn damper fits loosely so that gas may pass off even when it is closed. In most heaters, this damper should be kept closed except when starting the fire. Otherwise most of the heat goes up the chimney.

The damper in the cooling door should be used only to let in air and to consume gases that are formed, especially when soft coal is used. The ash-pipe damper admits the air necessary for the ignition of the coal or wood. Regulate the air supply by this damper—not by opening the ash-pit door.

BEANS ECONOMICAL AS FOOD

They Are One of Cheapest Sources of Protein and Help Supply Valuable Constituent.

Beans, though higher in price, are among the cheaper foods that can be bought today. They are one of the cheapest sources of protein and may be used to help supply this valuable food constituent in the diet, according to United States department of agriculture specialists.

DARN SMALL HOLES QUICKLY

Stockings and Other Knitted Underwear Should Be Given Very Prompt Attention.

Darn promptly small holes in stockings and other knitted underwear. A stitch in time saves the garment. Rub a piece of soap across the end of a run to stop the run until you can mend it, suggest the home economic experts in the department of agriculture.

place in a shallow baking dish, pour the strained tomatoes around it, put the bacon on top, and bake 40 minutes, basting with the tomatoes. Thicken the gravy with the flour cooked in the butter. A little seasoning, such as a bit of bay leaf, a clove and a small onion, improves the tomato sauce. As the pepper and onion are not likely to be cooked as soon as the meat, it is well to fry them in a little fat before adding the other ingredients. This amount will serve six to eight people.

Cannelon of Beef.

This dish is prepared by making chopped beef into a roll and baking it wrapped in a buttered paper, a method designed to keep in the steam and so insure a moist, tender dish. The paper must be removed before serving. The roll should be basted occasionally with butter and water or drippings and water. In preparing the roll an egg may be added for each pound and a half of meat, and chopped parsley, onion juice, lemon peel, or finely chopped green peppers make good seasoning. A thickened gravy may be made from the drippings, the liquid used being either water or tomato juice.

Strips of pork laid on the roll may be substituted for the buttered paper and basting.

Meat Rolls.

Small quantities of cold ham, chicken, or other meat may be utilized for meat rolls. The meat should be chopped fine, well seasoned, mixed with enough savory fat or butter to make it "shape," and formed into rolls about the size of a finger. A short dough (made, say, of a pint of flour, two tablespoonfuls of lard, one teaspoonful of baking powder, salt and milk enough to mix) should be rolled thin, cut into strips, and folded about the meat rolls, care being taken to keep the shape regular. The rolls should be baked in a quick oven until they are of a delicate brown color, and served hot.

HOMEMADE MIXTURE IS BEST

Various Prepared or Self-Raising Flours Are More Expensive Than Those of Housewife.

The various prepared or self-raising flours are more expensive than the mixture that the housewife can easily make by adding the requisite amount of baking powder to flour and sifting it several times. It is a convenience and a saving of time to keep a mixture of this kind on hand, as one sifting provides enough for a month's use for cakes and muffins.

Wash the piano keys with a damp rather than a wet cloth.

Mildew in leather can be rubbed off with vaseline.

Shoe polish on clothing can be removed by vinegar.

Frozen fish is just as nutritious as fresh fish and considerably cheaper. To thaw it out lay it in cold water. Cook as soon as it is thawed.

If you have no oxalic acid at hand you will find half a lemon dipped in salt quite as efficacious in cleaning copper or brass ware.

Keep a bowl in the refrigerator for small portions of vegetables left each day. They will serve their purpose in soups, stews or chowders, giving added nutriment as well as flavor.

When crocheted buttons lose their shape by much laundering, dip them in cold starch and mold them in your fingers into the shapes you want. Then let them dry and they will look like new.

If a piece of lemon is added to a pan of cold water and the wilted vegetables allowed to stand in the water for an hour or so, they will be as fresh as when gathered. Especially good for lettuce, celery, spinach and parsley.

INDICTED FOR ALLEGED PROFITEERING IN SUGAR

Laurel, May 20.—Information has been received here of the arrest and indictment, by Federal authorities, of Harry Cohen, formerly of this town, charged with violating the Lever act in connection with transactions in sugar. Martin Ellison, a sugar broker of Jonesboro, Ark., was indicted with Cohen on a charge of profiteering in sugar. Both men were arrested in Bay City, Mich., where Cohen has been living since he left Laurel. Cohen spent last winter here, and with the aid of a number of buyers bought most of the furs that were gathered on the Peninsula, clearing about $15,000 on the year's work. He told some of his friends here he had three carloads of sugar stored in Michigan, on which he said he expected to double his money.

WORDS FROM HOME.

Statements That May Be Investigated Testimony of Salisbury Citizens.

When a Salisbury citizen comes to the front, telling his friends and neighbors of his experience, you can rely on his sincerity. The statements of people residing in far away places do not command your confidence. Home endorsement is the kind that backs Doan's Kidney Pills. Such testimony is convincing. Investigation proves it true. Below is a statement of a Salisbury resident. No stronger proof of merit can be had. Ask your neighbor!

W. A. Kennerly, prop. City Hand Laundry, E. Camden St., Salisbury, says: "I was troubled by lame back caused by stooping a great deal. The pains I had were sharp and severe and always caught me in the small of my back when I tried to straighten after bending over. The kidney secretions were scanty and highly colored and contained sediment. After I used several boxes of Doan's Kidney Pills which I got at White & Leonard's Drug Store I was cured. There is nothing too good for me to say about Doan's Kidney Pills and I recommend them to every kidney sufferer."

How to Keep a Hired Man

When an old Arkansas farmer saw the comforts a neighbor was providing for his farm hands, he snorted: "Huh! I ain't a-goin' to carry no hired man round on a leaf!" . . . But he didn't have a hired man and couldn't get one.

The COUNTRY GENTLEMAN

has asked many hundreds of farmers, living in all parts of the country, how they get help and what they do to keep their men working and satisfied.

The answers make an article that is full of live-wire suggestions for farmers everywhere. Every idea in the lot—and they range all the way from bathtubs to bonuses and from hogs to hunting trips—is practical, is working today. Articles of this sort—helpful, hard-headed suggestions for the farmer—make up THE COUNTRY GENTLEMAN every week. What would it be worth to you to be sure of a hired man the year round? More than a dollar, surely. Yet you can have this article and hundreds of other practical, friendly labor-saving ideas for just that $1.00. Subscribe today—through me.

USE ADOBE TO BUILD HOMES

Back to Materials Employed by Spanish Missions.

CHEAP MATERIAL IS SOUGHT

Concerted Effort to Reduce High Cost of Building Small Homes is Being Made in Many Places—Adobe Scheduled for Picturesque Recrudescence—Cool in Summer and Warm in Winter.

Concerted effort to reduce the high cost of building small homes, so as to place them within reach of families of modest incomes, is being made in many places. Analytical chemists are finding their services in demand testing the various qualities of clay which it is hoped will furnish the durability shown in the adobe houses built by the early Spanish settlers in New Mexico, Arizona and California more than a century since. Many of these buildings still extant are as solid, if not more so, than they were when plastered together by their crude designers and constructors, long before the Louisiana territory became an integral part of the United States of America.

In an article published in the Post-Dispatch, prepared by Thomas Crane Young, prominent St. Louis architect, attention was called to his plan to make a series of experiments with the clays in the vicinity of St. Louis, to see if small homes could not be provided with a sun-dried mixture of earth and straw, serving as a substitute for walls of standard brick or hollow tiles. These experiments, the St. Louis Post-Dispatch announces, are still under way and are being watched closely by those who hope for some satisfactory adjustment of the housing problem, which has reached an acute stage in St. Louis and most of the other large cities.

Adobe Bricks the Thing.

With building costs persistently advancing and rents keeping pace with this upward trend, a cheap material that would serve the purposes of lumber, brick, stone, tile or concrete would go a very long way in removing an admittedly serious menace. That the adobe is scheduled for a picturesque recrudescence is no longer a matter of speculation, as it has already been taken up on an intensive scale in southern California, where some of the mission buildings constructed of earth still stand as a memorial to the constructive genius of the earliest settlers, who came chiefly from Spain.

Like the Indians and others who happened along first, they decided that homes were essential. Having no architects, builders or skilled mechanics, they took advantage of the materials that nature supplied and molded their walls of mud, with sufficient straw or grass to make the binding force necessary to hold the mass together. Even where there was no timber available, they made supports of the same plastic material after subjecting it to a drying process in the hottest focus of the sun's rays. These pioneers molded the clay into blocks much larger than the standard bricks of the present day and used the soft clay instead of the lime or cement mortar used in modern construction.

Simple Process of Building.

While the construction of the adobe house is a slow process, it is yet simple and requires no large working force such as is needed in the building of a home with brick, tiles or lumber. Out in California, where the adobe is coming back strongly, women and girls have turned builders and have reared some attractive-looking bungalows. They follow closely the style of the mission buildings and work with a genuine zest once they get their houses under way. In the Huntington Park district, near Los Angeles, young women are giving time and study to their plans and are getting some artistic effects when it comes to the stucco work on the exterior of the walls. When the little homes are completed, it is planned to train vines that will spread all over the structures and add greatly to their picturesque beauty.

Though the Spaniards are credited with the development of the adobe, excavations made in ancient Assyria, Babylon and Egypt have disclosed the fact that the same material, mixed with straw and grass, was generally used for home building by these early races. They followed the same general process of molding the bricks or blocks to a uniform size and then drying them in the sun, before setting them in the walls. Where a stout building was desired a very thick wall was constructed, but most of the houses had but one thickness of the hand-molded forms.

Indians Were Pioneers.

The adobe of southern California and Arizona in its crudest state has always been a delight to the artist. Part of the soil, not altogether lovely, but yet harmonious, they present a front of solidity and unobtrusive dignity that deeply impresses one at once. The first adobes built by the Indians, who had little inclination for architectural beautification, were walls of mud heaped up in mass, with a piece of wood or a bunch of grass stuck here and there to give the mixture holding qualities.

The early Spanish came along and studied the arts and crafts of the Indians with profit. They found many of the adobe houses in good condition and as other materials were not easily obtained, they began improvements on the original plan. They found that most of the soil of the country was well adapted for such uses and they gathered their workers together and proceeded to build their missions. They shaped the pliable clay into bricks 4 by 12 by 16 inches, and added a liberal measure of grass to impart strength and prevent disintegration. These were piled up in the form of parallelogram, the soft earth, well watered, being placed in the interstices and over the points. As timbers and shingles could not be obtained, they molded substitutes of the same mud composition and installed them in place. After the great earthquake of 1812, the Spaniards abandoned the practice of providing roofs of this material, as it was in that disastrous happening that the top of the mission church of San Juan Capistrano collapsed while the place was filled with frightened members of the colony. Many of the worshippers were killed by the falling blocks.

Cool in Summer, Warm in Winter.

The walls of the early houses varied a good deal, some having a thickness of three and four feet, and the floors were made of the same composition. The adobes served the double purpose of keeping the occupants cool in the extremely hot weather and warm when a wintry blast happened along. Where it was available, the early builders, especially the Indians, combined the soil with "tulio," a sort of reed found in the swamps. This added material strength to the walls. Many of these cabins, reared more than a hundred years ago, are still occupied by the descendants of their designers. Among the foothills of Palomar are several villages of the Temecula Indians, whose huts, built of this formula, are still providing home and shelter. Where the mud bricks were placed in the walls without first being dried out thoroughly and mixed with some sort of a binder, they soon succumbed to the weather and disintegrated in time. Thus the original building of the San Gabriel mission was reduced in time to a mere mound. This furnished an object lesson to the builders, who constructed the other mission groups of stancher compositions.

For many years one of the show-places of Santa Barbara was the adobe mansion erected by Don Aguirre, and known as "La Casa de Aguirre."

Palace Built of Clay.

Don Aguirre was a rich Spaniard who did not believe in practical economy when it came to providing a home for himself and his descendants. He used adobe for his walls because that was the popular material of the time, but he made them as thick as an ordinary fortress; its windows deep as the ports for guns and protected from without with very heavy shutters. The shingles came from Honolulu and the furniture and tapestries from Spain. It contained a store, magazine, warehouse and court and in effect was a village within itself. The residence was 10 large rooms and its drawing room was known to the grandees from San Diego to Monterey for its receptions and parties, at which the Senora Aguirre presided with all the grandeur of a queen. The patio was 40 by 40 feet, the arches of adobe being supported by columns of artistic molding. The porch was fully 15 feet in width, extending the entire length of the court. This famous creation of adobe stood solidly, defying the ravages of time and weather extremes, until about twenty-five years ago, when a cloudburst in the mountains sent a cataract down on the place, tearing out the supports and starting the disintegration that caused its eventual ruin.

The adobe builders of 1920, while seeking some of the decorative schemes of the Spanish builders, are more intent on providing small homes rather than forts, and are not making their walls as thick as Don Aguirre deemed necessary. Durability and permanency can be insured without resorting to such massive walls, and as lumber and shingles can be secured for the roofs and supports, it is not necessary to invite mishaps such as occurred in the 1812 earthquake.

Has Proved a Success.

The saving in brick and tiles, the principal items in home construction, is a very important factor in the cost of providing the small home, and the workers out in California and other western states will find many others following their example in combating the high cost of building. That the women have found it pleasant employment mixing the mud and molding the blocks to go into the walls is also regarded as a promising augury that there will be many converts to the adobe plan.

Of course, all clays are not as well adapted as those in the far West for adobe walls, but most cities have a variety of soils and tests should be made before the bricks are molded. In the vicinity of St. Louis some of the best brick, terra cotta and fire-clay products in the country are produced, which means that there is a bountiful supply of material waiting to be taken out of the bosom of Mother Earth for those who wish to experiment and build. The tests now being made by Architect Young and his associates are being awaited with interest by many persons who have lots, but lack the means to provide houses at the present record-breaking prices of materials of common usage. If the earth and its straw or other binder can be hammered and treated into shape to supply the walls, St. Louis will not be long in catching up with the California men and women who are achieving results.

MARYLAND FARMERS TO HEAR MEREDITH

SEC. OF AGRICULTURE WILL BE FARMERS' DAY SPEAKER AT COLLEGE PARK, MAY 29.

BIG PROGRAM PLANNED

Demonstrations Will Cover All Phases
Of Rural Work Including Features Of Interest To Women—Baseball Game In Afternoon.

An address by the Hon. E. T. Meredith, Secretary of Agriculture, demonstrations of the value of labor saving machinery on the farm and in the home, motion picture presentations of rural activities and a baseball game between Maryland State College and Johns Hopkins University, will be the outstanding features of Farmers' Day at the Maryland State College of Agriculture, College Park, on Saturday, May 29.

The program for this seventh annual event promises to be more than usually interesting and arrangements are being made to care for hundreds of visitors from every part of the State. Every effort has been made by the faculty of the College and the corps of specialists connected with the Extension Service and the Experiment Station to make the day one of profit and pleasure to those who attend.

In addition to the regular train and trolley service to the College, the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad will operate several specials, both from Baltimore and Washington, to handle the passengers between those two cities and College Park.

PROGRAM COVERS WIDE FIELD.

The program for the day will cover a broad field of agricultural activities, so that there will be some particular feature of especial interest to each visitor who will have the opportunity of watching such demonstrations as he most desires to see. A varied and entertaining program has been arranged for the women by the Home Demonstration Department.

The demonstration work will begin at 9 o'clock in the morning and from that time until 1 o'clock, representatives of each department will be present to explain the various exhibits. Guides will be on hand to meet the visitors and show them to the points where the demonstrations are in progress.

At 11 o'clock motion pictures will be shown in the auditorium in the Agricultural building and at 2 o'clock the address of the day will be delivered by the Secretary of Agriculture. The ball game is scheduled for 4 o'clock.

Owing to the high price and scarcity of labor, it is expected that the farmers will show particular interest in the demonstrations of labor saving machinery and the specialists in charge of this part of the program will take the opportunity to point out that the more extended use of machinery on the farm is one of the very best methods of combating the present labor situation.

TRACTOR DEMONSTRATION.

In this connection the use of the tractor in belt work will be demonstrated. Many farmers have wrongly come to the conclusion that the tractor has little value outside of its function in pulling the plow and the cultivator. Consequently the tractor is put to work on many farms for a period of approximately one month and stands idle during the remainder of the year. The many uses to which this valuable machine may be put by applying the power from the belt will be demonstrated. The idea being to show that the tractor should be kept busy every month during the year.

FEATURES FOR WOMEN.

Extensive plans have been made to entertain and instruct the women visitors. On the second floor of the Agricultural Building there will be a special exhibit of labor saving devices which can be employed by the farmer's wife. These will include all manner of electrical appliances such as washing machines, electric irons, dish washers and toasters.

On the lower floor of the same building in the offices devoted to the Home Demonstration work, there will be an extensive display designed to show the conservation of clothing. Women's and children's garments and even center pieces and other fancy work will be shown as a part of this demonstration in the utilization of old clothing.

Miss Madge Reese, of the United States Department of Agriculture, will be in charge of the milk show and will demonstrate the uses and explain the value of this commodity. At 10:30 o'clock a fashion show with living models will be staged in the auditorium of the Agricultural Building and it is expected that this will be one of the most attractive features for the women visitors. Mrs. Richardson, of the Woman's Division of the War Loan Organization Fifth Federal District at Richmond, will be present and will make a talk on household accounts and budgeting.

DEMONSTRATES THE KILLING OF FOWLS

State Agriculture College Experts
Give Lessons In Proper Preparation
Of Fowls For Food and Market.

An interesting series of demonstrations, dealing with the most approved methods of killing and cleaning fowls and the preservation of the meat with the portable pressure cooker, have been arranged by the Extension service, Maryland State College of Agriculture, to be held in Washington, Carroll, Allegany, Worcester, Somerset and Kent counties during the months of May and June.

The first of this series of demonstrations, showing the actual processes which the specialists recommend, was recently conducted in Wicomico county at the homes of Mrs. Sax Venable, Mardela; Mrs. E. M. Watson, Mt. Herman; and in the grange hall, Quantico.

The work was in charge of H. W. Rickey, poultry specialist of the Extension service and Miss Mabel Stephenson, district agent for the Eastern Shore, in co-operation with G. R. Cobb, county agent and Miss Olive C. Mitchell, county home demonstration agent for Wicomico county.

The demonstrations by Miss Stephenon consisted in the canning of chicken by use of the portable pressure cooker, the preservation of eggs in water glass and the uses of eggs for various purposes. Mr. Rickey killed and dry-picked a fowl, demonstrating the various methods of killing, including the bloodless method. He also explained how to cull fowls for vigor and egg production and showed how to test eggs in the process incubation.

An interesting and valuable part of his demonstration consisted of a post mortem examination during which he described the effects of certain common diseases upon the internal organs of fowls. The poultry-houses on the farms visited were used to illustrate the principles of poultry house construction and suggestions were made for remodeling old houses along more improved lines. The demonstrations were attended by nearby residents who expressed themselves as well pleased with the work.

WEEK OF MAY 30 BOY SCOUT WEEK

Every Section Of The Country Will See Its Boys Devote Energies To Week's Varied Observances.

Throughout the United States, the week of May 30th to June 6th, will be observed as Boy Scout Week, with a program of outdoor activities participated in by the half million Scouts and Scout Officials who compose the 17,000 local troops of the Boy Scouts of America.

The program of the week will be opened Sunday, May 30th, in the churches of all denominations on the merits of Scouting in helping the boyhood of the community. In many instances Boy Scouts will make four minute addresses and will otherwise participate in the program.

Friday, June 4th, will be known as Overnight Hike day, and it is expected at least 200,000 Boy Scouts will spend the night in the woods, and in many communities plans have been made to invite fathers of Scouts on the overnight hikes.

National Scout Field day is planned for Saturday, June 5th, with competition in tent pitching, fire building, wall scaling, signalling, trek-cart demonstrations, tower and bridge building and first aid and life saving work. Scout games, etc. Camp cookery with free samples of miniature flap-jacks will be a feature of the Field Day program.

Demonstrations of all Scouting activities will be held during the week throughout the country in communities where Scout troops exist in order to show the work done by the Scouts. This will include life saving, safety-first, clean-up and good house campaigns and various other activities for which the Boy Scouts are noted.

"The outstanding purpose of Boy Scout Week is to stimulate interest in Scouting so as to reach a large proportion of the Nation's boyhood," said James E. West, Chief Scout Executive of the Boy Scouts of America.

We want to project the light of public attention upon the Boy Scouts of America as a movement which has grown to be the largest of its kind the world has ever known, a brotherhood of organized boyhood which builds solidly for the future, which prepares the young of today for the responsibilities of citizenship tomorrow."

MAGISTRATE TURNER RESIGNED ON MAY 10

This Is The Reason He Wasn't Re-Appointed. Office During Four Years Paid $363 A Year.

Since City Magistrate N. P. Turner sent his resignation to former Mayor Jones on May 10, together with a copy of that resignation to Mayor Kennerly, it was very unfair both to Mr. Turner and to Mayor Kennerly for any newspaper to make the assertion a week ago that Mr. Turner would not be re-appointed by the present mayor.

The statement was also made that the compensation of the city magistrate of Salisbury is in the neighborhood of $1,200 a year. This statement was also in error, since the office is paid on a fee basis and Magistrate Turner's records show that from May 1, 1916 to May 1, 1920, his total receipts in fees have been $1,455.75, or an average of about $363.63 a year for each of the four years. Mr. Turner has been a magistrate for at least a decade; during a part of that time he has been the city's police magistrate, and his work in that office seems to have been generally satisfactory.

It is true that he has not been appointed to the office he now holds, by Mayor Kennerly; but the reason is that he resigned from that office and would not consider a re-appointment.

The city's police docket as kept by Mr. Turner during the four years ended May 1, 1920 show the following interesting figures:

Arrests and Convictions: 1916, 24; 1917, 12; 1918, 12; 1919, five; April 1, 1919 to May 20, 1920, one. Total, 54.

During the four years that he has served as the city's police magistrate, Mr. Turner has heard and tried a total of 451 cases.

NEW PHONE PRESIDENT BELIEVES IN STRAIGHT TALK POLICY

A. E. BERRY, PRESIDENT OF THE C. AND P. TELEPHONE CO.

Starting his working career on a dredging boat in the Potomac River and being elected President of the Chesapeake and Potomac Telephone Company at just about forty years of age, A. E. Berry is making friends in Maryland because of his policy of plain dealing with the public.

"There is nothing about our business we want to hide," said Mr. Berry to newspaper men in his office recently. "On the other hand I would like to get all Maryland asking questions about the telephone business."

Mr. Berry's policy of absolute frankness with the Public Utilities Commission of the District of Columbia resulted in the quickest rate-case hearing on record and a favorable decision on the company's application to increase the rates to parallel those requested in Baltimore.

CHIT CHAT OF THE STREET CORNERS

Some Current News Of Local Interest Discussed In The Glow Of The City's Arc Lights.

The completion of a mile of stone road from Rockawalkin church westward and towards Catch Penny and the improving of the dirt road from the limits of the stone road to Catch Penny, has materially lessened the time required to make the trip between Salisbury to Nanticoke. It used to require about three and a half to four hours to drive with a team from Nanticoke to Salisbury, but now the automobile covers the distance in less than one hour.

The writer, with a party of friends toured this road last Sunday and was agreeably surprised to see the improvements made in the road. Of course there are some bad stretches on the road, but it seems these are being looked after by the engineering department of the county at several points gaps from one-half to a mile in length have recently been shelled and will soon afford smooth riding for automobilists.

It was also noted that two miles of the road leading into White Haven had been shelled and is now one of the smoothest shell roads in the county. This formerly was one of the worst roads in Wicomico county.

The improvements in the roads noted have not, however, covered the needed improvements to make a first-class road all the way from Salisbury to Nanticoke, but these needed improvements will no doubt come in due time, and satisfy the clamor which has been made for many years by the residents of Nanticoke and Tyaskin districts for improved roads.

It was observed that many automobile parties were touring these roads Sunday, and making good time most of the way. Indeed, many residents of the two western districts have "got the habit" of motoring to Salisbury Saturday afternoons, remaining until late in the evening, shopping and attending the movies. The run home can be made in less than an hour and this is the inducement to come to Salisbury. The faces of many well-known men and women from the two lower districts are seen on the streets of Salisbury every Saturday and oftener.

In his travels Sunday the writer was surprised to note that many improvements had been made to dwellings and out-buildings on farms. Several new residences have been erected on farms along the river courses and there was a general air of improvement in all directions.

RAILROAD WINS CASE IN TALBOT COUNTY

In Talbot county Circuit court last week the case of Henry H. Jackson against the B. & A. Railroad Co. for $25,000 was disposed of. Jackson said he was injured by a fall from the wharf of the Baltimore, Chesapeake and Atlantic railway at Claborn, November 9, 1918. The case was tried before a jury with Leonard S. Fleckenstein, of Easton, as foreman. After the plaintiff had finished his testimony the court ruled that the evidence produced was not sufficient to entitle him to recover damages and instructed the jury to bring in a verdict for the defendant.

GETTING READY TO HANG FOUNTAIN

Sheriff Soulsby of Talbot county is making all necessary preparations to hang Isaiah Fountain. Last week the sheriff obtained a scaffold from Caroline county and moved it to Easton where it will be erected in the jail yard. The sheriff is also arranging for a large tent to cover the scaffold and for a strong guard to patrol the entire jail yard on the day of the execution.

Treatment of Common Colds.

"If all who catch cold could be persuaded to remain in bed for the first 24 hours of such an attack," says a well known physician "there would be fewer cases dragging on with distressing symptoms for weeks and often ending in some more serious disease." To make sure of a prompt recovery you should also take Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. Whether sick or well the bowels should move each day.—Adv't.

STYLEPLUS CLOTHES

A Message to the customers of Kennerly & Mitchell

Kennerly and Mitchell held the opening of their new store Saturday, May 22nd. This was the greatest event of their twenty-four years of uniformly successful business. Their success in Salisbury and vicinity is also ours.

Kennerly and Mitchell have handled Styleplus Clothes each season since they were put on the market, always with mutually satisfactory results in every respect.

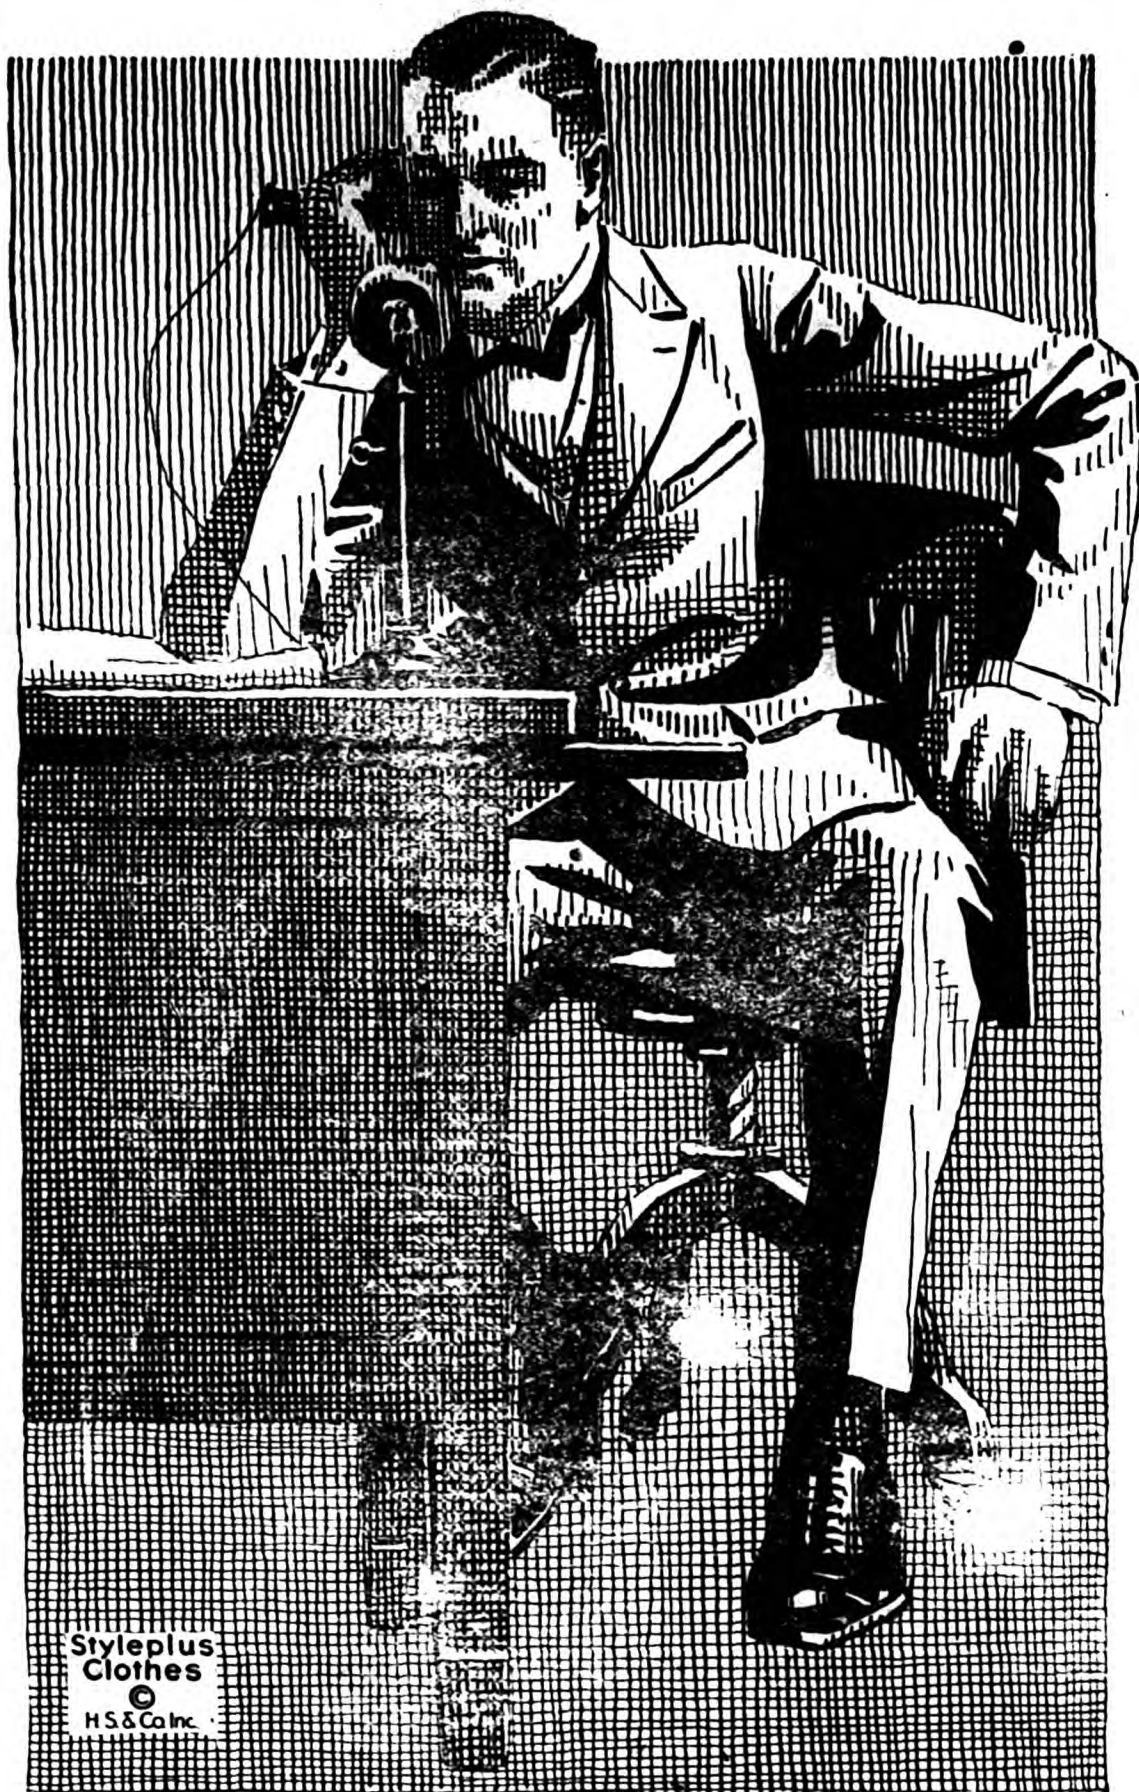

They have built their business on right principles--quality merchandise and the greatest possible service for their customers.

We congratulate them on this policy and the aggressiveness which has made their great growth.

We wish them continued success and the lasting friendship of every customer.
