WIN BY AN OVERWHELMING MAJORITY

Democratic Management Of Wicomico County Receives Strong Endorsement—Amendment Goes Down But The Democrats
Make Gains All Along The Line—They Control
The Legislature And Can Submit Another Amendment In 1911.

One of the largest victories for a great many years was won by the Democrats of this County at the polls on Tuesday. For once the prophets were right in this County and the head of the ticket won by a majority of 752.

The Amendment did not fall very much behind this majority and all the local candidates were elected by a vote which in no instance ran far behind that given for the head of the ticket. The claims of cutting in one or two instances which the Republicans claimed would be large enough to endanger their election failed to develop and the results show but little if any cutting anywhere. The Democrats carried all but four districts in the County and reduced the Republican majority in Nantuxco and Tuxco. While the results are somewhat larger than was expected in this County, yet it was acknowledged that better feeling in the ranks of the party never existed than at present. This was largely due to the adoption of the Crawford County plan of making nominations which made the rank and file of the party in all sections of the County feel that it was their ticket, and that they were bound to see it get the support it was entitled to.

In the State, the Amendment was defeated by something over 16,000 votes, but the Democrats have elected enough members of both legislative bodies to organize and control and will have 5-5 vote in both bodies.

The defeat of the Amendment is largely due to the vote in Baltimore City, where it was defeated by close to 12,000 votes. On the whole, outside of the Amendment, the Democrats seem to have won a great victory in the State and will send Sen. Rayner back to the United States Senate. Judge Boyd is returned from Western Maryland, and all but Mr. Lehman of the Judicial nominees in Baltimore were elected. Dr. Hering, the Democratic nominee for Comptroller wins by a handsome majority of over 9,000 votes.

An analysis of the vote will show that a large majority of the white voters in the State were opposed to the negro voting and that throwing out their vote the measure would have been carried by over 30,000 votes.

On the Eastern Shore the Democrats have practically a clean sweep as every County has elected its ticket and it will send up a solid delegation this year to Annapolis.

The composition of the 1910 Legislature will be as follows:—

GAINS FOR DEMOCRATS

Official Count Reduces Majority Against The Amendment—Hering's Plurality Grows.

In compliance with the State law, the Election Supervisors in Baltimore and every county in the State met at noon Thursday and began the canvass of the vote cast in Tuesday's election.

The majority for Dr. Hering for State Comptroller has been materially increased by the official count, and from present indications he has carried the counties by at least 9,299. This, with the unofficial majority of 1,116 given him in the city makes the majority 10,415. It is expected by the Democrats that Dr. Hering's majority will be further increased in the city and the counties yet to be heard from. The official returns have also reduced the majority in the counties against the suffrage amendment. The returns now show that the amendment was lost in the counties by 4,655. City Democrats say they believe the official count will also reduce the majority against the amendment in the city.

The Democrats are now turning their attention to the next Legislature and there is much discussion about election laws to be asked for by the counties. Mr. J. Alby Henderson, a member of the House of Delegates from Montgomery county, announced that if it meets with the approval of his constituents he will introduce in the next Legislature another amendment. He is also favorably inclined toward asking the Legislature to extend the Wilson Ballot law to Montgomery county. From present indications a number of counties will ask for this law.

It is also announced by the Democrats of Washington county that they will ask the Legislature to give Hagerstown the Annapolis Election law.

The official returns show that the Democrats will have more than three-fifths majority in each branch of the Legislature, giving them the power to pass any suffrage amendments or other constitutional amendments and laws they see fit and which meet with public approval.

The official returns also show that the amendment was carried in Cecil county, whereas the unofficial returns showed that it had been defeated. The Democrats, in addition to electing the State Senator in Washington county have elected three members of the House of Delegates, while the Republicans have only two members of the House.

The majority of Chief Judge A. Hunter Boyd, of the Court of Appeals, has also increased.

DEATH OF AN AGED

Native Of This County—Father Of Capt.
W. H. White.

Capt. Thomas W. H. White, one of the best known citizens of Wicomico county, received news Wednesday of the death in Philadelphia of Peter Dashiell White, the last uncle of Capt. White, on father or mother's side. Deceased was between 95 and 100 years of age, but the exact age Capt. White does not recollect. He thinks, however, it is bordering close on a century.

Peter White learned his trade as tailor with the late Henry Brewington of Salisbury, between the years 1837 and 1843, and worked with Mr. Brewington as journeyman until 1845. He then went West and traveled for many years with an Indian Chief as interpreter. He settled down in Philadelphia in the fifties and engaged in the merchant tailoring business. He lost his wife in the sixties and went to live with his son William H., where he passed his declining years in comfort and happiness. The funeral service took place Thursday from his late home No. 3524 North 16th St., and was attended by Thomas White, Jr., and Mrs. Jannette Merrill, children of Capt. T. W. H. White.

Phillips—Cordrey.

The home of Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin H. Cordrey near Hebron, was the scene of a very pretty wedding last Wednesday evening, when their daughter, Cora E. was united in holy wedlock to Mr. Thomas M. Phillips of Laurel, Delaware.

The bride, wearing a beautiful bouquet of carnations, entered the parlor on the arm of the groom, while the march was rendered by Miss Lillian Phillips, sister of the groom. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. O. H. Williams.

The bride was attired in cream moirai, and the groom wore a suit of conventional black. She was the recipient of many beautiful presents. After the ceremony a reception was given their many friends, who wished them a long and happy life. They will be at their home near Laurel after November 10th.

First.—Pedestrians crossing boulevards at night shall wear a white light in front and a red light in the rear.

Second.—Before turning to the right or left they shall give three short blasts on a horn at least three inches in diameter.

Fifth.—In dodging autos, pedestrians shall not run more than seven miles an hour.

Seventh.—Pedestrians will not be permitted to emit cigarette smoke on any of the main roads in an offensive or unnecessary manner.

Eighth.—Each pedestrian before receiving his license to walk upon the highways must demonstrate to an examining board appointed by the Club that he is able to satisfactorily dodge, leap, crawl and extricate himself from machinery.

Ninth.—Pedestrians will be held responsible for all damages done to automobiles or their occupants by collision.

ANGRY COW WRECKS

Large Automobile—Her Calf Had Been Killed By A Car.

An automobile driven by William Brown, of Trenton, N. J., was wrecked on the Freehold road after a hot skirmish with an angry cow. A month ago a speed devil killed her calf while its mother was grazing beside the road. The cow has since become frantic at every approach of an automobile.

James McCarty was taking the animal out to pasture when a big automobile appeared. The cow broke away from McCarty, dashed at the car, was knocked down, but came out of the crash with flying colors, as the automobile hood was demolished and the mechanism so deranged that it had to be towed to a garage for repairs.

"My child was burned terribly about the face, neck and chest. I applied Dr. Thomas Electric Oil. The pain ceased and the child sank into a restful sleep."—Mrs. Nancy M. Hanson Hamburg, N. Y.

COULD READ AT TWO

Years Of Age. Good Typewriter At Four. Composed Textbook On Anatomy At 5, In Grammar School At 6. Scientific Prodigy.

Some details of the achievements of William James Sidis, the 11 year old Prodigy who has just entered Harvard with the highest honors, are published herewith and go to show that the youth, who is gravely declared to be the most learned under graduate who has ever entered the Cambridge institution, is a wonderfully successful result of a scientific forcing experiment and as such furnishes one of the most interesting mental phenomena in history. His precocity is the fruit of a parental theory of mind growth put into practice from the very beginning of his life.

Young Sidis is the son of Dr. Boris Sidis, a Boston psychologist, who, years before the boy's birth, had developed very advanced ideas on the subject of child training. On the basis that as soon as a child begins to grow its brain begins to grow also, and that the brain is less and less sensitive to training as age increases. Dr. Sidis had planned and developed an elaborate system of training. This system he applied to his son.

Began With Blocks.

The child's training was begun with a set of alphabetical blocks when he was a little over a year old. When his young son, sitting on the nursery floor, said "ba ba." Dr. Sidis took two of the blocks, denoting "A" and "B" respectively held them before his eyes, and showed him, first the "B" block and then the "A" block.

Later, Dr. Sidis reversed this order and showed him the other sound that was represented by these two letters. In a little while, on being shown, first, the "A" block and then the "B" block, the child would say "Ab". Thus not yet 3 years old, he learned to talk, read and spell at once.

Before he was 3½ years old pre-concious William James would sit on the floor in the midst of his blocks and spell out various words. This was his way of playing. This child was next taught to count. Then, because he wanted the child to know something about the idea of time, Dr. Sidis gave him some calendars, explaining to him the meaning of them. For weeks he played with these.

One day he startled his parents by announcing that he was able to tell on what day of the week any given date would fall. It was first thought that in his play with the calendars he had memorized some of the dates. Upon investigation, however, it was found that he had worked out all by himself a method of counting enabling him mentally to calculate any date demanded of him.

Expert With Typewriter.

When William James or "Jimmy" was 3½ years old he could use a typewriter, and at 4 he was an expert operator. He was also much interested in fairy stories, learned them by heart, and was soon studying elocution and learning how to recite them to the best advantage.

By the time he was 5 years old he was not only able to read, write and speak English and use a typewriter, but he was an expert accountant, had begun to study French and Latin and had written a text book on anatomy and another on English grammar—presumably for his own use.

Entering a grammar school when 6 years old, he moved up several grades in six months, and entered Brookline High School at 8 years. In six weeks there he had completed the mathematical course and began writing a book on astronomy. Then he plunged into the study of German, French, Latin and Russian.

On leaving school he began the study of mathematics in real earnest. Internal and infinitesimal calculus became his hobbies, and in addition he invented a system of logarithms based on the number 12, instead of 10. This was inspected by several well known mathematicians and pronounced perfect in every detail.

Much has already been made of the story of the three years spent in endeavoring to secure admission to Harvard, Sidis' age being an obstacle which the University authorities could not see their way clear to override till this year.

THREE GOOD REASONS

The lecture was finished. Chattering groups of enthusiastic women were discussing the ideas just advanced by the latest exponent of "Thought Control"; others were hurrying away to street cars, for it was getting late. Among the latter was Carolyn Deering, so absorbed in discussion with her companion she signalled a car regardless of its destination before they had even begun to say good-by.

Firmly grasping the handle, she turned a flushed face to the conductor. "Does this car pass Piedmont avenue?"

"Yes, madam," the conductor walked.

"Well, good-by, dear, good—"

"If we don't stay here all night," he interrupted, and an indignant little person, mounting the steps, flashed an angry glance at his number as she passed to her seat, while the passengers audibly smiled.

The conductor did not smile, but stoically called several streets; then came for her fare.

"You were impudent." She could not resist saying it in a low tone. "I know it, I'm sorry," he returned. "It is the 60th time I've had the chance to-day and didn't take it up."

Such a frank apology turned Carolyn's resentment upon herself, the more since the lecturer had expounded the advantages of mental control, and that was why her hand trembled a little as he took it in kindly helping her down at Piedmont avenue.

"I am sorry I was angry," she faltered.

"Oh! don't mind," he said. "This is my last trip to-night. I'll feel better after a rest"—and his car moved away out of sight.

There were years of happiness for both unlocked in that apology and next morning a little note thrilled in Carolyn she had not discovered there before. She was scarcely aware of it, however, until glancing at the morning paper startling headlines arrested her attention.

"Crash of cars. Motorman killed, conductor not expected to live."

She read on. Yes, it was he. Conductor 1234 was either now dead or dying at the Lansing Hospital.

It seemed as if she could scarcely breathe, but she read the article through. The little note of the morning paper had become a tumultuous chord and her whole being trembled in its power. All day her thoughts turned to the sufferer, and she fancied the kindly eyes that smiled for her closed in death. The night was long, and on the succeeding morning she secretly telephoned the hospital.

"Yes, dear conductor, I've been brought there. In Ward K, madam. He is conscious."

These answers gave her unreasonable happiness, but she explained to herself: "I was so unjust to him, poor chap." Then she sent a box of fresh flowers with a card, "From a friend on Piedmont avenue."

Day followed day and fresh flowers were always by the sufferer—but one day a new girl at the phone could give no information regarding a victim in Ward K.

"One of the sufferers in the accident had just died, it might be he." Then something very close to Carolyn seemed to go.

The winter gayeties helped to dispel the melancholy that seemed settling upon her and as spring came her father's health failed, for the wool firm of which he was a member had struggled hard during the recent panic and a European tour was advised for its senior member.

Another year passed and the old man did not improve; anxiously they watched him when he asked for "the boy" or "sea" until one day a member of the firm said: "It is Rantoul, his secretary, he wants; let me send him down."

Carolyn met him with the motor at the station of the north shore resort and as the tall, handsome young fellow came toward her, she felt an forgotten chord vibrate through her whole being for there were the same kindly eyes and smile of Conductor 1234.

"I am so glad," she said, seeing his smile of recognition.

"And so am I," he replied. "I mean," she continued in some confusion, "that you did not die."

"Oh! I didn't die. That was my last trip, though, as I told you. Wool business is more to my liking. I want to thank you for the flowers; they did more for me than you can think."

It was Rantoul Mr. Deering had wanted, and so it came about that the young man spent many days with them by the sea; and so it was that Rantoul and Carolyn took long walks where little salt breaths from the Atlantic came up to them; and so it was one moonlight night when she had playfully called him her Conductor 1234 he said: "Ah! dear little girl, how could you remember that number so many years!" And she stood very close to him when she answered: "Well, sir, for three good reasons, first, you were impudent to me, sir, and I took it to report you; secondly, it is the number of my motor, and thirdly—the little bush was covered by the moonlight. 'I have loved you from that very night.'—FLORENCE SCRIBNER.

Deep Breathing Beneficial. The simplest way to get warm after exposure to cold is to take a long breath with the mouth firmly shut. Repeat this several times until you begin to feel the heat returning. It requires a very short time to do this.

The long breath quickens the pulse, and thus causes the blood to circulate faster. The blood flows into all parts of the veins and arteries, and gives out a great deal of heat.

It is stated that this method of deep breathing prevents colds and many other ailments if begun in time.

Heat in the Cellar Doesn't Count

It is the heat that gets upstairs that warms the house. A blazing hot cellar is simply eating up your coal pile and your purse, and giving nothing in return. Any old furnace will make heat, but the way to utilize the heat and circulate it through every room in the house is to install the

THE CONQUEST OF THE POLE

By Dr. FREDERICK A. COOK

THE observations of April 14 gave altitude 88 degrees 21 minutes, longitude 95 degrees 52 minutes. We were but 100 miles from the pole, but there was nothing to relieve the mental strain of the icy despair. The wind came with the same satanic cut from the west. There had been little drift, but the ice before us displayed signs of recent activity. It was more irregular, with an open crack here and there, but the sleds glided with less friction, and the dreary dogs maintained a better speed under rising tails.

With teeth set and newly sharpened resolutions, we set out for that last 100 miles. Some dogs had gone into the stomachs of the hungry companions, but there still remained a sufficient pull of well tried brute force for each sled, and, though their noisy vigor had been lost in the long drag, they still broke the frigid silence with an occasional outburst. A little fresh enthusiasm from the drivers was quickly followed by canine activity.

We were in good trim to cover distance economically. The sledges were light; our bodies were thin. All the muscles had shriveled, but the dogs retained much of their strength. Thus stripped for the last lap, one horizon after another was lifted.

In the forced effort which followed we were frequently overheated. The temperature was steady at 44 degrees below zero F., but perspiration came with ease and a certain amount of pleasure. Later, however, there followed a train of suffering for many days. The delight of the birdskin shirt was changed for the chill of the wet blanket.

Fortunately, at this time the sun was warm enough to dry the furs in about three days if lashed to the sunny side of the sled. In these last days we felt more keenly the pangs of perspiration than in all our earlier adventures.

The amber colored goggles were persistently used, and they afforded a protection to the eyes which was quite a revelation, but in spite of every precaution our distorted, frozen, burned and withered faces lined a map of the hardships en route.

We were curious looking savages. The perpetual glitter induced a squint which distorted the face in a remarkable manner. The strong light reflected from the crystal surface threw the muscles about the eye into a state of chronic contraction. The pupil was reduced to a mere pinhole.

There was no end of trouble at hand in endeavoring to keep the windows of the soul open, and all of the effect was run together in a set expression of hardship and wrinkles which should be called the boreal squint.

This boreal squint is a part of the russet bronze physiognomy which falls to the lot of every arctic explorer. The early winds, with a piercing temperature, start a flush of scarlet, while frequent frosts bites leave figures in black. Later the burning sun browns the skin; subsequently strong winds scorch the moisture, harden the skin and leave open fissures.

The hard work and reduced nourishment contract the muscles, dispel the fat and leave the skin to shrivel up in folds. The imprint of the goggles, the set expression of hard lines and the mental blank of the environment have removed all spiritual animation. We have the color and the lines of old russet apples and would easily pass for prehistoric progenitors of man.

In the enforced effort to spread out the stiffened legs over the last reaches there was no longer sufficient energy at camping times to erect a snow shelter. The silk tent was pressed into use. Though the temperature was very low when the sun was high, its congenial rays pierced the silk fabric and rested softly on our brows closed in heavy slumber. In strong winds it was still necessary to erect a sheltering wall to shield the tent.

Signs of land were still seen every day, but they were deceptive optical illusions and a mere verdict of fancy. It seemed that something must happen, some line must cross our horizon, to mark the important area into which we were pressing.

When the sun was low the eye ran over moving plains in brilliant waves of color to dancing horizons. The mirages turned things topsy turvy. Inverted lands and queer objects ever rose and fell in shrouds of mystery, but all of this was due to the atmospheric magic of the midnight sun.

With a lucky series of daily astronomical observations our position was now accurately fixed for each stage of progress. As we neared the pole the imagination quickened, and a restless almost hysterical excitement came over the boys. They fancied they saw heaven and earth, and I had a new land under observation. Frequently, but with a change in the direction of light or an altered trend in our temperature, the horizon cleared and we became eager only to push farther into the mystery.

Final Dash For the Pole.

The "Big Nail" Reached at Last and "Old Glory" Unfurled—Endless Fields of Purple Snows—No North, No East, No West.

From the eighty-eighth to the eighty-ninth the ice was in very large fields and the surface was less irregular, but in other respects it was about the same as below the eighty-seventh. We noticed here also an extension of the range of vision. We seemed to see longer distances and the ice along the horizon had a less angular outline.

The color of the sky and the ice also changed to deeper purple blues. We had no way of checking these impressions by other observations. The eagerness to find something unusual may have fired the imagination, but since the earth is flattened at the pole perhaps a widened horizon should be detected.

At 8 o'clock on the morning of April 19 we camped on a picturesque old field with convenient hummocks, to which we could easily rise for the frequent outlook which we now maintained. The tent was pitched. The dogs were silenced by blocks of pemmican. In us new enthusiasm was aroused by a liberal pot of pea soup and a few chips of frozen meat, and then we bathed in life giving sunbeams, screened from the piercing air by silk strands. It was a beautiful day, and had our sense of appreciation not been blunted by accumulated fatigue we would have greatly enjoyed the play of light and color in the ever changing scene of sparkle.

The Eskimos were soon lost in a profound sleep, the only comfort in their hard lives, but I remained awake, as had been my habit on succeeding days, to get nautical observations. The longitude calculations lined us at 94 degrees 3 minutes. At noon the sun's altitude was carefully set on the sextant, and the latitude quickly reduced gave 89 degrees 31 minutes—twenty-nine miles from the pole.

My heart jumped for joy, and the unconscious conviction which I was creating awakened Etukishuk. I told him that in two average marches we would reach the "big shu" (the big nail). Ahwahwah was awakened with a kick, and together they went out to a hummock and through glasses sought for a mark to locate so important a place as the terrestrial axis. If but one sleep beyond it must be seen.

I tried to explain that the pole was not visible to the eye; that its position was located only by a repeated use of the various instruments. This entirely satisfied their curiosity, and they burst out in hurrahs of joy. For two hours they chanted and danced the passions of wild life.

It was the first real sign of pleasure or rational emotion which they had shown for several weeks. For some time I had entertained the fear that we no longer possessed the strength to return to land, but the unbridled flow of vigor dispelled that idea.

More sleep was quite impossible. We brewed an extra pot of tea, prepared a favorite broth of pemmican, dug up a surprise of fancy biscuits and filled up on good things to the limit of the allowance for our final feast days. The dogs, which had joined the chorus of gladness, were given an extra lump of pemmican. A few hours more were agreeably spent in the tent, and then we started with a new spirit for the uttermost north.

We were excited to a fever heat. The feet were light on this run. Even the dogs caught the infectious enthusiasm and rushed along at a pace which I had not dreamed of. With a new spirit we prepared equipment the Greenland and shores were reached on April 15. Here Dr. Cook was greeted by Harry Clinton and the great Eskimo friend, to facilitate an early return he moved southward to the Danish settlement and reached Upernivik on May 24, 1908. The Danish ship Hans Egede took him from Upernivik to Denmark.

On April 22, 1908, Dr. Cook began the long return march. With fair weather, good ice and the inspiration of the home run long distances were at first quickly covered.

With a good deal of anxiety Cook watched the daily reduction of the food supply. It now became evident that the crucial stage of the campaign was to be transferred from the taking of the pole to a final battle for farther famine and frost. Early in July farther southward progress became impossible, and in quest of food he crossed the Fifth of Devon into Jones sound. On Feb. 18, 1909, the start was made for Anaktuvuk. A newly prepared equipment the Greenland and shores were reached on April 15. Here Dr. Cook was greeted by Harry Clinton and the great Eskimo friend, to facilitate an early return he moved southward to the Danish settlement and reached Upernivik on May 24, 1908. The Danish ship Hans Egede took him from Upernivik to Denmark.

It was the same expanse of moving seas of ice on which we had lived for 500 miles.

But, looking through gladdened eyes, the scene assumed a new glory. There were plains of gold fenced in purple walls, with glided crests. It was one of the few days on the stormy path when all nature smiled with cheering lights.

As the day advanced and the splendor of summer night was run into the continued day, the beams of light, the surface snows thickened, while the shadows of hummocks and ridges spread a line of violet barriers through which a way must be sought.

From my position a few hundred yards ahead of the sleds I could not resist the temptation to turn frequently to see the movement of the dog train with its new fire. In this direction the color scheme was reversed. The icy walls were in gold and burning crests, while the plains represented every shade of purple and blue.

Through this sea of color the dogs came with a spirited tread, noses down, tails up and shoulders braced to the straps like chariot horses. The young Eskimos, chanting songs of love, came with easy step. The long whip was swung with a brisk crack, and all over there rose a cloud of frosty breath.

Camp was pitched early in the morning of April 20. The sun was northeast; the pack glowed in tones of lilac; the normal westerly air of shivers brushed our frosty faces. The surprising burst of enthusiasm had been nursed to its limit, and under it a long march was made over average ice with the usual result of overbearing fatigue. Too tired and sleepy to wait for a cup of tea, melted snows were poured down, and the pemmican was pounded with the ax to ease the task of the jaws. The eyes closed before the meal was finished, and the world was lost to us for eight hours. The observation gave latitude 89 degrees 45 minutes, longitude 94 degrees 52 minutes.

With the boys singing and the dogs howling we started off after midnight on April 21. The dogs looked large and noble as they came along that day, while Etukishuk and Ahwah.

DR. COOK'S ESKIMOS PHOTOGRAPHED BY HIM AT THE POLE.

though thin and ragged, had a dignity as herald of the greatest human battle which had ever been fought with remarkable success.

We were all lifted to the paradise of winners as we stepped over the snows of a destiny for which we had risked life and willingly suffered the tortures of an icy hell.

The ice under us seemed almost sacred. When the pedometer registered fourteen and a half miles we camped and calmly went to sleep, feeling that we were turning on the earth's axis.

The observations, however, gave 89 degrees 59 minutes 45 seconds. We therefore had the pole, or the exact spot where it should be, within sight.

We advanced the fifteen seconds, made supplementary observations, pitched the tent, built a snow igloo and prepared to make ourselves comfortable for a stay long enough for two rounds of observations.

Our position was thus doubly assured, and a necessary day of rest was gained. Etukishuk and Ahwah slept very little. My goal was reached: the ambition of my life had been fulfilled. How could I sleep away such overwhelming moments of elation?

At last we had reached the boreal center. The dream of nations had been realized. The race of centuries was ours. The flag was planted to the coveted pole. The year was 1908, the day April 21.

The sun indicated local noon, but time was a negative problem, for here all meridians meet. With a step it was possible to go from one part of the globe to the opposite side—from the globe of midnight to that of midday. Here there are but one day and one night in each year. The latitude was 90 degrees, the temperature—38.7, the atmospheric pressure 29.83. North, east and west had vanished. It was south in every direction, but the compass, pointing to the magnetic pole, was as useful as ever.

Though overjoyed with the success of the conquest our spirits began to change on the next day after all the observations had been taken and the local conditions were studied. A sense of intense loneliness came with a careful scrutiny of the horizon. What a cheerless spot to have aroused the ambition of man for so many ages! Endless fields of purple snows? No life, no land, no spot, to relieve the monotony of frost! We were the only milking creatures in a dead world of ice.

Often The Kidneys Are

Weakened by Over-Work.

Unhealthy Kidneys Make Impure Blood.

Weak and unhealthy kidneys are responsible for much sickness and suffering, therefore, if kidney trouble is permitted to continue, serious results are most likely to follow. Your other organs may need attention, but your kidneys most, because they do most and should have attention first. Therefore, when your kidneys are weak or out of order, you can understand how quickly your entire body is affected and how every organ seems to fail to do its duty.

If you are sick or "feel badly," begin taking the great kidney remedy, Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root. A trial will convince you of its great merit.

This mild and immediate effect of Swamp-Root, the great kidney and bladder remedy, is soon realized. It stands the highest because its remarkable health restoring properties have been proven in thousands of the most distressing cases. If you need a medicine you should have the best.

Sold by druggists in fifty-cent and one-dollar sizes. You may have a sample bottle by mail free, also a pamphlet telling you how to find out if you have kidney or bladder trouble. Mention this paper when writing to Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y. Don't make any mistake, but remember the name, Swamp-Root, and don't let a dealer sell you something in place of Swamp-Root

RESULTS IN WICOMICO.

The Democrats carried this County by one of the largest majorities received in years. This is very gratifying to the Democrats and especially so to those who advocated the Crawford County plan of nominations in the fall belief that it would be for the best interests of the party, as well as result in the nominations of better men for office. It was said by many that the primary election would leave scores which it would be impossible to heal up by election time, and it was freely prophesied by some of these after the primaries this year the party would suffer at the fall election.

This prediction was not fulfilled but on the contrary the party rolls up a larger majority than usual and we think it will be acknowledged with less effort than usual—or at least the people were found more receptive to the efforts than in former years. The personnel of the ticket nominated, together with the increased majority for it, ought to go far in convincing those, who were opposed to Direct primaries, of its advantage over the old system.

It should not be lost sight of, however, that the law regulating the holding of direct primaries needs improving so as to make it do what it is intended to accomplish—one of the most important of which is changing the law so that we will have a secret ballot—no ticket should be allowed to be marked outside of the election booth, and the same general regulation now applied to the general election, should be made applicable to the primary election.

DEFEAT OF AMENDMENT.

The defeat of the Amendment while not entirely unexpected is a great disappointment to those who desired the elimination of the negro in Maryland politics.

The defeat of the Amendment may be accounted for in several ways but probably the greatest factor was the fear of the foreign voters in Baltimore City and Baltimore County that the passage of the Amendment would endanger their own right to vote. The Republicans saw that this phase of the question was kept constantly before this vote as well as before the white illiterate voters in the counties. They were aided in this by the character of the educational test, which was further emphasized by Taylor's offer to Gov. Wardlaw, which was first accepted and then turned down.

Another factor was the fear of a great number of voters in the City and counties that the disfranchisement of the negro meant a one party state, and that party would be dominated by a strong organization, which it would be hard to oust. The fear of one party domination could have been largely overcome if the Democrats had made a direct primary law for the entire State which would be a guarantee to the voters that they would have an opportunity to voice their protests, if things were not run in a proper manner. This however, the Democrats failed to do in the last legislature and while we believe that if the voters had seen fit to disfranchise the negro vote, the party would have adopted a primary system satisfactory to all, yet a large number of voters were afraid to take chances on it and voted against the Amendment on this ground.

While doubtless a number of citizens voted against the measure in the belief that an injustice was being done the colored race, yet we believe that could the other ground have been overcome the Amendment would have carried.

Another reported reason for the vote against the measure is that the saloon men in Baltimore City and Baltimore County were opposed to the disfranchisement because they wanted the negroes to vote when the question of saloon or no saloon came up in these places, as they saw it must come up sooner or later.

FROM AUTO TO WATER

To Save Life—Man Stops Car And Rushes Her To Her Home.

Wilbur L. Losee, has just returned from an automobile trip through Long Island with C. W. Frost and the latter's family, which was marked by the thrilling rescue of Mrs. P. Ackerman, of Rockville Center, L. I., from drowning in Wreck Lead, near Long Beach.

Mr. Losee and his party came along in the automobile just as Mrs. Ackerman, who was one of a crabbing party, fell overboard. Mr. Losee stopped the car, leaped out, placed her in the machine and rushed her to her home, three miles away. She was in a serious condition from her immersion in the water, and it was found that in seizing her as she was going down Mr. Losee had gripped so strongly that he had fractured a bone in her arm.

Notes on Orchard Culture.

"Clover is the apple tree's best friend. Profit from a fruit orchard is not theory but a demonstrated fact."

A few days after pruning paint the stubs with white lead.

Each tree has an individuality of its own and must be dealt with accordingly.

Good, first-class fruit is the aim of our efforts. Never be satisfied with anything else.

Stable manure is without doubt the best general fertilizer that can be applied to orchard soils.

Make the orchard a business venture and keep an account of everything pertaining to its interests.

When poor fruit is produced there is a reason. Aim to find it by a careful study of the trees and conditions.

Nature grows fruit for the seeds, while man grows it for the pulp. We want pulp with as few seeds as possible.

When opera glasses first came commonly into use a young man escorted his aged maiden aunt from the country to a "playhouse."

During one of the acts she complained that the light was too dim. He borrowed an opera glass from the friend sitting near and, handing it to her, said: "Here, auntie, try this glass."

Covering the suspicious-looking object with her handkerchief, she placed it to her lips and took a long pull, and then handed it back to her nephew in great disgust, saying disappointedly: "Why, there isn't a drop in it."

How When He Was Happy.

The soul of an editor who had died of starvation was being conducted to the Elysian fields. As they passed the portals of the infernal regions, he asked his guide if he might not go in and look around. The guide consented, but warned him to stay but a few minutes, as he could not wait long.

A long time passed, and the editor had not returned; so the guiding angel went in search of him. He found him before a cage in which a number of doomed wretches were being roasted on red-hot gridlles. Over the cage was the sign "Delinquent Subscribers."

"Come," said the guide; "we must be going."

"Don't wait for me," replied the editor. "I'm not coming. This is Heaven enough for me!"

SHOULD LIVE 150 YEARS

Says Authority On Conservation—Span Of Life On Increase.

Human life is increasing in length at a very rapid rate, but the span will have to go on increasing for a long time before it becomes even normal, for the human being ought to live to about 150 years, if he did himself justice.

Thus opines Prof. Irving Fisher of Yale in a remarkable study which has just been issued by the National Conservation Commission. From a most careful study of vitality and health statistics Professor Fisher concludes that about 850 years ago, the average span of human life began to increase and it has been gaining ever since.

Popular Fallacy Exploded.

There is no more popular fallacy than the idea that people don't live so long as they need to do. The fact is that they live much longer than they ever did before, at least in any era of which there is record. At the end of the Seventeenth Century the average life was about four years longer than at its beginning. At the end of the Eighteenth another four years had been added to the average. Then came the Nineteenth, with its great strides in science in all departments. During the first three quarters of that century it is found that the average length of life increased at the rate of about nine years to the century.

But that does not tell the most remarkable chapter of the story of increasing longevity. During the last generation the increase has been faster than ever before. Thus in Massachusetts the average length of human life is now increasing at the rate of about 14 years per century. That is, at the present progress continues, a century hence the average person in Massachusetts will live 14 years longer than he does now. Yet Massachusetts is not making so good a record as is presented for Europe as a whole, where the present increase is at the rate of 17 years in a century. Prussia, the land of greatest advance in medical surgical and hygienic science, is increasing its average longevity at the rate of 27 years per century.

Stationary in India.

What such an increase of human life would mean may be judged from the fact that the average life in India is now only 23 years and it is stationary. India represents the stage of civilization at which the benefits of science, medicine, surgery, sanitation, etc., are still denied to the people in general.

Professor Fisher quotes the result of Metchnikoff's investigations to sustain the contention that a normal age for men should be about 150 years. Metchnikoff found that mammals generally lived about five times the period devoted to growing. The one exception is man. The growing period for man is about 30 years; therefore, if he should lengthen his life up to the average of other mammals it would be about 150 years. Professor Fisher does not esteem that 150 years is by any means an impossible attainment when the unexplored possibilities of science, sanitation and social betterment are developed. Metchnikoff decided that this was not even a normal period for old age; proper conditions of life should advance greatly, and this conclusion is unhesitatingly accepted by Professor Fisher.

—There will be a meeting of all the parents of the High School boys and girls at the High School Building, next Friday evening, Nov. 12. It is desired to have a conference of parents, teachers and school officers in order to bring the home and school into the closest relation. PROVERBIAL MARYLAND

Hospitality Enjoyed At Home Of Mr. And Mrs. John Warren, Former Residents Of Wicomico.

Mr. and Mrs. John S. Warren, of Berlin, whose beautiful old time Maryland hospitality is proverbial, gave a dinner to a few of their many friends on Friday of last week. Those present were Mrs. Wm. L. Laws of Wango, and her guest, Miss Sadie Wilson of Hartford Co., Miss Rosa Hyde of near New Castle, Del., and Mrs. J. Bowen and Miss Amanda E. Donnell of Berlin.

It goes without saying that this day was most delightfully spent. The brightest natural days always close with shadows, so sometimes, do the happiest social days. Mr. and Mrs. Warren's guests will be very sorry to learn that to the daughter of the house, Miss Maggie, that happy day ended sadly.

In the growing dusk she did not perceive that the cellar door was open and she fell down the stairway severely injuring her shoulder and arm. The Doctor's examination proved there was no dislocation, nor broken bones, but a case of bruised and strained muscles, exceedingly sore and painful, which, for at least a week or ten days, will render her good right arm useless.

Better Not Get Dyspepsia

If you can help it, Kodol prevents Dyspepsia, by effectually helping Nature to Relieve Indigestion. But don't trifle with Indigestion.

A great many people who have trifled with indigestion, have been sorry for it—when nervous or chronic dyspepsia resulted, and they have not been able to cure it. Use Kodol and prevent having Dyspepsia.

Everyone is subject to indigestion. Stomach derangement follows stomach abuse just as naturally and just as surely as a sound and healthy stomach results upon the taking of Kodol.

When you experience sourness of stomach, belching of gas and nausea, flatulence, bloated sensation, gnawing pain in the pit of the stomach, heart burn (so-called), diarrhoea, headaches, dizziness or chronic tired feeling—you need Kodol. And then the quicker you take Kodol—the better. Eat what you want, let Kodol digest it. Ordinary peptic "dyspepsia tablets," physics, etc., are not likely to be of much benefit to you, in digestive ailments. Peppin is only a partial digester—and physics are not digesters at all. Kodol is a perfect digester. If you could see Kodol digesting every particle of food, of all kinds, in the glass test-tubes in our laboratories, you would know this just as well as we do.

Nature and Kodol will always cure a sick stomach—but in order to be cured, the stomach must rest. That is what Kodol does—rests the stomach, while the stomach gets well. Just as simple as A, B, C.

CHAPTER XII.

THE LANTERN ABOVE.

CLARE sat for hours on his porch that night gazing down upon the chateau. Lights gleamed in a hundred of its windows. The bitterness of his own isolation, the ostracism that circumstance had forced upon him, would have not rancor been tempered by the glorious achievement in the market place. He wondered if the princess knew what he had dared and what he had accomplished in the early hours of the night. He wondered if they had pointed out his solitary light to her—if now and then she bestowed a casual glance upon that twinkling star of his. The porch lantern hung almost directly above his head.

The chateau was indeed the home of revelry. The pent up struggling spirits of those who had dwelt therein for months in solitude arose in the wild stampede for freedom. All petty differences between Lady Deppingham and Drusilla Browne, and they were quite common now, were forgotten in the whirlwind of relief that came with the strangers from the yacht. Mrs. Browne's good looking, eager husband revelled in the prospect of this delicious night, this almost Arabian night. He was swept off his feet by the radiant princess, the Scheherazade of his boyhood dreams. His blithe heart thumped as it had not done since he was a boy. The Duchess of N. and the handsome Marchioness of B. came into his tired, hungry life at a moment when it most needed the light. It was he who fairly dragged Lady Agnes aside and proposed the banquet, the dance, the concert—everything—and it was he who carried out the hundred spasmodic instructions that she gave.

Late in the night, long after the dinner and the dances, the tired but happy company flocked to the picturesque hanging garden for rest and the last refreshment. The hanging garden was a wonderfully constructed open air pleasure suspended between the chateau itself and the great cliff in whose shadow it stood. The cliff towered at least 300 feet above the roof of the spreading chateau, a veritable stone wall that extended for a mile or more in either direction.

Near the chateau there was a real waterfall, reminding one in an unusual sense of the misty yells at Lauterbrunnen or Giesbach. The swift stream which obtained life from these falls, big and little, ran along the base of the cliff for some distance and was then diverted by means of a deep, artificial channel into an almost complete circuit of the chateau, forming the moat. It sped along at the foot of the upper terrace, a wide torrent that washed between solid walls of masonry, which rose to a height of not less than ten feet on either side. There were two drawbridges, seldom used, but always practicable. A small stationary bridge crossed the vicious stream immediately below the hanging garden and led to the ladders by which one ascended to the caverns that ran far back into the mountain.

Two big black irregular holes in the face of the cliff marked the entrance to these deep, rambling caves, wonderful caverns wrought by the convulsions of the dead volcano, cracks made by these splintering earthquakes when the island was new.

The garden hung high between the building and the cliff, swung by a score of great steel cables. These cables were riveted soundly in the solid rock of the cliff at one end and fastened as safely to the stone walls of the chateau at the other. It swung stanchly from its moorings with the constancy of a suspension bridge and trembled at the slightest touch. It was at least a hundred feet square. The floor was covered with a foot or more of soil, in which the rich grass and plants of the tropics flourished. Cool fountains sprayed the air at either end of the green inclosure. The illusion was complete.

The walls surrounding the garden were three feet high and were intended to represent the English garden wall of brick. To gain access to the hanging garden one crossed a narrow bridge which led from the second balcony of the chateau. There was not an hour in the day when protection from the sun could not be found in this little paradise.

Bobby Browne was holding forth with his usual exuberance on the magnificence of the British navy. "There she is now, sleeping out there in the harbor, a great big thing with the kindest of hearts inside of those steel ribs—her majesty's ship the King's Own! Think of it! She conveys a private yacht, she stops off at this beastly island to catch her breath and to see that all are safe, then she charges off into the horizon like a bird that has no home. May I offer you a cigarette, princess? By the way, I wonder how Chase came off with his side show."

"Saunders tells me that he was near to being butchered, but luck was with him," said Deppingham. "His ship came home."

"It was a daring trick. I'm glad he pulled it off. He's a man, that fellow is," said Browne. "See, princess, away up there in the mountain is his home. There's a light, see it? He keeps rather late hours, you see."

"Tell me about him," said the princess suddenly. She arose and walked to the vine covered wall, followed by Bobby Browne.

"I don't know much to tell you," said he. "He's made an enemy or two, and they are trying to drive him out."

We've asked him down here just because we can't bear to think of a fellow creature wasting his days in utter loneliness, but he has so far declined with thanks. The islanders are beginning to hate him. They distrust him, Britt says. Of course you know why we are here. You."

"Every one knows, Mr. Browne. You are the most interesting quartet in the world just now. Every one is wondering how it is going to end. What a pity you can't marry Lady Agnes!"

"Oh, I say!" protested Browne. She laughed merrily.

"But how dull it must be for Mr. Chase! Does he complain?"

"I can't say that he does. Britt—that's my lawyer—Britt says he's never heard a murmur from him. He takes his medicine with a smile. I like that sort of fellow, and I wish he'd be a little more friendly."

"He has learned to know and keep his place," said she coolly. Perhaps she was thinking of his last night in the palace garden. Away up there in the darkness gleamed his single, lonely, pathetic little light. "Isn't it rather odd, Mr. Browne, that his light should be burning at 2 o'clock in the morning? Is it his custom to sit up?"

"I've never noticed it before, now you speak of it. I hope nothing serious has happened to him. He may have been injured in—I say, if you don't mind, I'll ask some one to telephone up to his place."

"Yes, do telephone," she broke in. "I am sure Lady Deppingham will approve. No, thank you. I will stand here awhile. It is cool, and I love the stars. Five minutes later he returned to her, accompanied by Lady Agnes. She was still looking at the stars.

"Lady Deppingham called him up," said Bobby.

"And he answered in person," said her ladyship. "He seemed strangely agitated for a moment or two, Geneva, and then he laughed—yes, laughed in my face, although it was such a long way off. I asked him if he was ill or had been hurt. He said he never felt better in his life and hadn't a scratch. He laughed—I suppose to show me that he was all right. Then he asked me to thank you for bringing a warship. You saved his life. Really one would think you were quite a heroine or a godsend or something like that. I never heard anything sweeter than the way he said good night to me. There!"

The light in the bungalow bobbed mysteriously for an instant and then went out.

"How far is it from here?" asked the princess abruptly.

"Nearly two miles as the crow flies, only there are no crows here. Five miles by the road, I fancy. Isn't it, Bobby? I call him Bobby, you know, when we are all on good terms. I don't see why I shouldn't if you stop to think how near to being married to each other we are at this very instant."

"I wonder if help could reach him quickly in the event of an attack. It could if he'd have the kindness to notify us by phone," said Browne.

"But he wouldn't telephone to us," said Lady Deppingham ruefully. "He's not so communicative as that."

"Surely he would call upon you for help if he?"

"You don't know him, Geneva."

The princess smiled in a vague sort of way. "I've met him quite informally, if you remember."

"I should say it was informally. It's the most delicious story I've ever heard. You must tell it to Mr. Browne, dear. It's all about the enemy in Thorsberg, Mr. Browne. There's your wife calling, Bobby. She wants you to tell that story again about the bishop who rang the doorbell."

The next morning the captain of the King's Own came ashore and was taken to the chateau for dejeuner. Late in the afternoon the marquis and his party, saying farewell to the princess and the revived legation, put out to the yacht and steamed away in the wake of the great warship. The yacht was to return in a month to pick up the princess.

Geneva, her maids, her men and her boxes, her post and her dachshund were left behind for the month of March—not without misgiving, it must be said, for the marquis, her uncle, was not disposed to look upon the island situation as a spot of long continued peace.

"You won't be able to get help as cleverly and as timely as that American chap got it last night," protested the marquis. "Warships don't browse around like gulls, you know. Karl will never forgive me if I leave you here."

"Karl is of a very forgiving nature, uncle, dear," said Geneva sweetly. "He forgave you for defending Mr."

"I hope no harm comes to you here in this beautiful place!"

Chase, because you are such a nice Englishman. I've induced him to forgive Mr. Chase because he's such a nice American—although Mr. Chase doesn't seem to know it and I'm quite sure Karl would shake his head if he should come upon him anywhere. Leave Karl to me, uncle."

And so they sailed away without her.

just as she had intended from the beginning. Lord Deppingham stood beside her on the pier as the shore party waved its adieu to the yacht.

"By Jove, Geneva, I hope no harm comes to you here in this beautiful place!" said he, a look of anxiety in his honest eyes. "There goes our salvation if any rumpus should come up. We can't call 'em out of the sky as Chase did last night. Lucky beggar! That fellow Chase is tripping, by Jove! That's what he is. I wish he'd open up his heart a bit and ask us into that devilish American bar of his."

"He owes us something for the warship we delivered to him last night," said Bobby. "He has made good with his warship story, after all, thanks to the King's Own and Britt."

"And the fairy princess," added Lady Deppingham.

"I am doubly glad I came if you include me in the miracle," said Geneva, shuddering a little as she looked at the lounging natives. "Isn't it rather more of a miracle that I should come upon mine ancient champion in this unheard of corner of the globe?"

"I'd like to hear the story of Chase and his adventures in the queen's garden," reminded Bobby Browne.

"I'll tell it to you tonight, my children," said the princess as they started for the palanquins.

AFTER SUFFERING ONE YEAR

Cured by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Milwaukee, Wis.—"Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has made me a well woman, and I would like to tell the whole world of it. I suffered from female trouble and neuralgia for a long time. I had the best doctors and they all decided that I had a tumor in addition to my female trouble, and advised an operation. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound made me a well woman and I have no more backache. I hope I can help others by telling them what Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has done for me."

Mrs. Emma L. Mear, 833 First St., Milwaukee, Wis.

The above is only one of the thousands of grateful letters which are constantly being received by the Pinkham Medicine Company of Lynn, Mass., which prove beyond a doubt that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, made from roots and herbs, actually does cure these obstinate diseases of women after all other means have failed, and that every such suffering woman owes it to herself to at least give Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound a trial before submitting to an operation, or giving up hope of recovery.

Mrs. Pinkham, of Lynn, Mass., invites all sick women to write her for advice. She has guided thousands to health and her advice is free.

good health, with its blessings, must understand, quite clearly, that it involves the question of right living with all the term implies. With proper knowledge of what is best, each hour of recreation, of enjoyment, of contemplation and of effort may be made to contribute to living aright. Then the use of medicines may be dispensed with to advantage, but under ordinary conditions in many instances a simple, wholesome remedy may be invaluable if taken at the proper time and the California Fig Syrup Co. holds that it is alike important to present the subject truthfully and to supply the one perfect laxative to those desiring it.

Consequently, the Company's Syrup of Figs and Elixir of Senna gives general satisfaction. To get its beneficial effects buy the genuine, manufactured by the California Fig Syrup Co. only, and for sale by all leading druggists.

FAIR EXCHANGE.

A New Back For An Old One. Now It Is Done In Salisbury.

The back aches at times with a dull, indescribable feeling, making you weary and restless; piercing pains shoot across the region of the kidneys, and again the loins are so lame that stooping is agony. No use to rub or apply a plaster to the back in this condition. You cannot reach the cause. Exchange the bad back for a new and stronger one. Follow the example of this Salisbury citizen.

Mrs. John G. Malson, E. Brown Street, Salisbury, Md., says: "Doan's Kidney Pills have helped me more than any other medicine I have ever taken. I do not have the least hesitation in endorsing them. I was subject to attacks of kidney complaint for a long time and whenever I caught cold my back became very weak. If I did much stooping my back also grew lame and painful, especially across my loins. Seeing Doan's Kidney Pills highly endorsed by people who had used them, I procured a supply at White and Leonard's drug store. Since taking this remedy I have felt much better in every way. In fact I have had no further trouble from my kidneys and back."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, New York, sole agents for the United States. Remember the name.—Doan's and take no other.

It saves thousands yearly from desperate lung diseases. Infallible for Coughs and Colds, it dispels Hoarseness and Sore throat. The "pure food law" is designed by the Government to protect the public from injurious ingredients in both foods and drugs. It is beneficial both to the public and to the conscientious manufacturer. Ely's Cream Balm, a successful remedy for cold in the head, nasal catarrh, hay fever, etc., containing no injurious drugs, meets fully the requirements of the new law, and that fact is prominently stated on every package. It contains none of the injurious drugs which are required by the law to be mentioned on the label. Hence you can use it safely.

HUNT "JOY RIDERS" WITH NEW DEVICE

Highways Protective Society Has Mechanical Detective for Trail-ing Rushing Automobiles

TO TELL SPEED BY THE CAMERA

New Invention Which Is as Terrible to Malefactors of the Road as Is the Bertillon System to Ordinary Criminals.

New York City.—In its crusade against automobile speeders in general, and "joy riders" in particular, the National Highways Protective Society has resorted to a new invention which is as terrible to malefactors of the road as the Bertillon system and the telegraph are to ordinary criminals. The invention is being tried out at the present time—or, rather, its first fruits are being preserved in secrecy, so that a sudden and overwhelming exhibition of its scope may be given in the near future. Without warning some fine day a number of scorchers who have seen no speed traps nor been molested by water-carrying "cops" will be hailed to court and confronted with the irrefutable evidence of their law-breaking. It will make no difference whether the offence was committed in a lonely road in the outskirts or in a crowded street. There will be no chance to dispute the testimony on the ground of human error on the part of the accuser, for the accuser will be something mechanically and mathematically infallible. The defendant will not be able to get the benefit of the doubt, for there will be no doubt within a fraction of a foot and a fifteenth of a second.

The deadly invention used by agents of the National Highways Protective Society consists of a double lens camera, fitted with a split second chronometer. The lenses are of equal focal length, one placed above the other. The transparent face of the chronometer is between. The operator does not alarm his prey by exposing the camera for a front or side view picture. He waits until the whizzing machine has passed, presenting its back and the vulnerable and important number board. Then he presses the bulb, which opens the shutter of the upper lens, and starts the chronometer going, with a second hand covering fifteen divisions of a circle. Almost immediately the operator presses the bulb again, and this time the shutter of the lower lens opens, and the chronometer is simultaneously halted. It takes no expert to make these two snaps at the back of the speeding car. Whether the time between the two exposures is a small fraction of a second or a full section is immaterial.

When the plate is developed it shows a large image on the space exposed by the upper lens, when the car was close by, and a smaller image on the space exposed by the lower lens, when the car was further away, while the second hand of the chronometer is pictured as it started on the dial and as it stopped. The difference in size between the two images corresponds to a mathematically accurate distance in feet between the first and second positions of the automobile. A table has been worked out on this basis, both experimentally and with the aid of trigonometry. If, for example, the second image is one-third as large as the first, the automobile must have been fifty feet further from the lens.

Treat cars as you treat sins. Hand them over to Jesus one by one as they occur. Commit them to him. Roll them upon him. Make them his. By an act of faith look to him, saying: "This, Lord, and this and this, I cannot bear. These hast taken my sins. Take my cars. I lay them upon thee and trust thee to do for me all, and more than all, I need. I will trust and be not afraid."—Rev. F. D. Meyer.

To low they build who build beneath the stars.—Young.

Kills Her For 20 Years.

"The most meritorious enemy I had for 20 years," declares Mrs. James Duncan of Englewood, Mo., "was Dyspepsia. I suffered intensely after eating or drinking and could scarcely sleep. After many remedies had failed and several doctors gave me up, I tried Ely's Cream Balm, which cured me completely. Now I can eat anything. I am 70 years old and am overjoyed to get my health and strength back again." For indigestion, loss of appetite, kidney trouble, lame back, female complaints, it is unequalled. Only 50c at all druggists.

Paul a Prisoner—The Shipwreck

Sunday School Lesson for Nov. 7, 1909
Specially Arranged for This Paper

LESSON TEXT.—Acts 27:42-44. Memory verses, 1 & 18.
GOLDEN TEXT.—"The Lord redeemeth the soul of his servants; and none of them that trust in him shall be desolate."—Psa. 124:2.

TIME.—Early in November, A. D. 60 or 61.
PLACE.—St. Paul's bay on the northeast shore of the island of Malta, in the Mediterranean sea, 180 miles southeast of the most southerly point of Italy.

Suggestion and Practical Thought.
What the storm and wreck revealed as to the character of Paul, the missionary hero:

For nearly seven months we have been studying the character of Paul under a great variety of circumstances. We have found him conscientious, consecrated to God, devoted to the good and the salvation of his fellow men, energetic, wise, courageous, joyful, faithful, persevering, independent, unselfish, courteous, of strong feelings, but self-controlled, saintly and true. We have seen him chiefly at his missionary work.

In this storm and wreck we see him from another point of view, connected with bodily interests, physical needs, things pertaining to ordinary human life, as a man among men, not, as one has said, "a long-distance pastor," but in close touch with humanity.

I. The Manly Authority of a Tested Character.—Vs. 27-32. "The fourteenth night" (v. 27) from the time they left Fair Havens in Crete, when the storm began. "Driven up and down," tossed by the waves and "borne along" "in Adria," not the Adriatic sea, but the name then given to the central basin of the Mediterranean. "The shipmen deemed that they drew near to some country."

29. "They cast four anchors out of the stern." Anchoring from the stern is unusual, but much the best under the circumstances, for it would leave them free to sail to either shore when daylight came. During the dreary waiting, while they "waited for the day," the sailors tried to save themselves at the expense of all the rest by means of the boat, the one visible way of reaching the shore. But Paul, noticing the plan, appealed to the centurion and the soldiers to put a stop to it. The soldiers had the boat, but the soldiers had the weapons and the power. Paul therefore appealed to the soldiers, for he saw clearly that (v. 31) "except these abide in the ship, they cannot be saved," as had been promised. Those who went in the boat would doubtless be drowned, and even if they reached the shore, there were none left to manage the ship, especially if the officers of the ship were among those who planned so selfishly for their own safety.

The soldiers put an end to the plan by cutting the ropes and setting the boat adrift.
"Nothing was too good for Paul after that, and when at last the ship broke, and the roll call was made on land, every man, soldier, and sailor sang out cheerily, 'Hail.' And when at last Paul got to Rome, Capt. Julius and his soldiers did not soon tire of telling to wife and child and sweet-heart how the little preacher had saved them from the angry deep."

II. Care for the Physical Comfort and Health of His Companions.—Vs. 33-38. "While the day was coming." As soon as it was light enough to find food. "Continued fasting" took no regular meals.

34. "I pray you take some meat," food; "for your health," safety, they would need to put their bodies in the best condition to give them the strength needed to reach the shore.

35. "He began to eat." To lead them on by his example, he himself did what he advised them to do.

36. "Then were there made of good cheer." "The hearty cheerfulness" (in it too colloquial a phrase to say the "pluck") of the apostle had communicated itself, as by a kind of electric sympathy, to his companions.

III. Paul Doing the Commonest Duties to Help his Companions.—Acts 28:1-6. 1. "They knew," recognized, "that the island was called Malta," now shortened into "Malta."

IV. Paul Healing the Sick.—Vs. 7-10. Publius, the governor of the island, living not far away, entertained the company for three days till they had time to make other arrangements.

The father of the governor lay critically sick of dysentery. Paul prayed for him, and laid his hands on him, and he was healed. This gave Paul an opportunity to preach the gospel. For Paul had no credentials that would be of use, and as a prisoner suspicion would be cast upon him. So that God himself gave him the best credentials by bestowing on him miraculous power. Paul healed many others; and as a Christ's works of healing showed his kindness and love for men, and revealed the loving nature of our heavenly Father, so Paul's aid for the sick expressed the kindness of the gospel.

Casting Away Cares.

ATTRACTIVE WINTER

Modes in New York.—Inexpensive Evening Gowns; Metallic Trimmings; Rich Furs; Long Coats; Animal Neck Pieces; Hugs; Muffs.

Comparatively inexpensive but extremely smart and pretty frocks are made from figured or plain nets. These nets can be obtained in all colors both light tints and dark pastel shades. Black net especially is very popular for evening wear. Very often an old silk or satin frock can be made into an exquisite evening gown by making for it an over drapery of net in the same shade. These draperies are very simple, the skirts very often have an upper portion lengthened by a circular flounce; the upper part as a rule is short in the front—reaching about to the knees and slopes down at the back to any desired depth, even to the hem if desired. The favored trimmings are bands of net embroidered in floss and trimmed, as often as not, with aculeus of gold, silver or bronze. Occasionally gold braid, cord or lace are introduced in these net bands and make a charming form of adornment. Contrary to expectation these trimmings are not at all expensive in the simple designs.

Evening Wraps.

Evening wraps can be as simple or as elaborate as one wishes this season. Perhaps the most inexpensive of the really smart wraps takes the form of the plain military cape of broadcloth. These are usually unlined and are very pretty in rose, pale blue or champagne. A very stylish and serviceable cape on this order is of the army blue trimmed with brass buttons a la militaire and lined with bright red.

For trimmings are seen on many of the handsome wraps. Sometimes there is only a slight touch of fur, such as outlining the armholes or bordering the collar and cuffs and sometimes the entire wrap is edged with fur.

Fashions in Furs.

Fashions in furs are very beautiful. Coat models follow closely the style of the cloth garments shown earlier in the season. Some of the long coats in ponyskin and baby camel imported from Paris are slightly bizarre in cut but the models now being made up by the great New York fur houses, while possessing all the style of the French furs, are more conservative in line and also much more becoming to the American figure. Pony coats are in high favor. They are made long, in many cases coming down nearly to the hem of the skirt and are trimmed with wide shawl or sailor collars and fastened by big metal buttons with jeweled centers.

Sealskin Coats.

Sealskin and its imitations, the best of which is French dyed muskrat, are enormously fashionable. Caracul is popular for coats and also for neck pieces. Some of the most charming neck pieces of this pretty and useful fur with muffs to match are shown at the leading fur house of C. C. Shayne Co., where all the very latest and most exclusive styles in furs are seen.

Here also are the most beautiful coats in dyed muskrat, both plain and trimmed with mink or sable or long haired furs such as skunk or fox.

Neckpieces And Muffs.

All long haired furs are popular for neckpieces. White, black, Siskin and pointed for skins are especially smart and are made up in autumn effects without being shaped very much, with the head at one end and the tail at the other or perhaps there will be two heads hanging down the back with the tails in the front.

Muffs are very large and trimmed with heads and tails in the long haired furs. In the finer furs such as

PRESIDENCY OF SENATE

Senator Price Of Wicomico Would Be A Wise Selection—Well Qualified.

Since the election, politicians have been figuring on the organization of the next Legislature. The Eastern Shore will send up a solid delegation to the next Legislature and out of the 21 Democratic members of the next Senate the Shore will be represented by nine Senators. It is the belief that in view of this large number and the old time custom of making either the Speaker of the House or the President of the Senate from the Eastern Shore that the next President of the Senate will come from one of the nine Democratic counties this side of the bay.

Several names have been spoken of in connection with the Presidency of the Senate and among them is the able Senator from this County, Hon. Jesse D. Price. It has long been the custom of the Legislative bodies at Annapolis to select their presiding officers from members who have seen service in the Legislature, and it is not thought that the 1910 Senate will deviate from this rule, especially as it will have among its members so many "hold-over" Senators who are fully competent to fill the position of President.

Among those most prominently mentioned for the position are:—Sen. Jno. P. Moore, of Worcester; Sen. Harper, of Queen Anne and Sen. Jesse D. Price, of Wicomico County. It is not known whether or not Sen. Moore or Sen. Harper will be candidates.

It is understood, however, that Sen. Price will be a candidate and to those who know Sen. Price, he is regarded as immensely well qualified to fill this important and honorable position.

Sen. Price has demonstrated that he is an able and alert debater and one of the best parliamentarians in the Senate. If honored he would make a fair and impartial presiding officer. Wicomico would feel honored in having its Senator fill this position—an honor it has not had since the late Gov. E. E. Jackson sat in the Senate and so ably presided over the deliberations of that important body.

LARGE LEGISLATIVE

Questions To Come Up At 1910 Session
Says Gov. Crothers.

The Legislature that will convene in January will have questions to handle of greater magnitude and importance to the State than in any of its predecessors.

Big Program Outlined.

"Never before in Maryland," says Governor Crothers, has a program of such magnitude been arranged for the Legislature as the one that the present members have to face when they go to Annapolis. Certain pledges were made in the Democratic platform that are non-political in their nature. These the people have a right to expect to see carried out to the letter.

"There are other questions likewise non-political that I regard as even more important than these, and the most important of all, in my opinion, is some regulation of the appropriations that are made by the State for all manner of educational and charitable institutions. In this matter of appropriations I am especially hostile to the method of carrying appropriations from session to session under special statutes of which the general public has no information. The people have a right to know just what is being done with their money. Therefore all the appropriation should be made biennially. On one side of the account there should be the revenues of the State and on the other the provision made for the disbursements of this money.

Expenses Are Growing.

"The expenses of the State show a decided tendency to outstrip its revenues. Each year shows increasing demands upon the State for appropriations of all kinds. Plans should be outlined for more business like methods in the disbursements of the State money and also in the expenditure of such appropriations as are made. There must be more system in everything. Otherwise the State within a few years will be in a position where its revenues will not be sufficient, for it cannot hope to increase its taxable basis in proportion to the demands. It remains, therefore, for the Legislature to inaugurate some system whereby the money of the State can be made to mean more in relieving the afflicted and destitute, for they must be cared for. I believe the Legislature can handle the problem if the newspapers inaugurate a campaign of education, so that the facts can be placed in their session in time to let them form some opinion of a method to meet the situation.

"The reassessment problem is a very important one. The idea of it is to equalize taxation levied directly for State purposes, property values in some portions of the State being assessed on one basis and in other portions of the State on another. This results in inequalities.

BALTIMORE MAY NOT

Get More Legislators—Pledge Assumed To Be Conditional.

Politicians are centering their attention now on the coming session of the Legislature and the ante-election promise contained in the platform of both political parties. In a few weeks the public will know whether these promises were simply a means of gaining an end or were actuated by a desire on the part of the politicians to give to Maryland a better basis of government.

One of the ante-election promises in which Baltimoreans are particularly interested is increased representation, a plank concerning which was embodied in the platforms of both parties under the Democratic plank Baltimore is promised an increase in her representation in the lower house of 28 members, or a total representation of 53 members, with an increase of six or seven Senators in the upper house using Baltimore county the largest county in the State as the unit of calculations.

When the promise of increased representation for the city was acquiesced in by the county Democrats it was said at the time that it was with the understanding that the city leaders would deliver the goods on the amendment proposition. The city leaders having failed in this however it is regarded as a question now as to whether or not the county members will live up to their ante-election promises on the increased representation measure.

Being a Constitutional Amendment the act will require a three fifths vote in each branch of the Legislature. While it is true that the Republicans are also committed to increased representation it is a question whether or not they will help the city Democrats out of their dilemma in the event that the county contingent goes back on them.

THE LARGEST IMPROVEMENT IN SALISBURY'S DEVELOPMENT.

As A City Commercial In Many Years. Lake Humphreys And Other Estate To Add Many Acres In The Heart Of Salisbury.—Big Plans.

During the past week, negotiations, which have been pending for several weeks, have been completed between certain gentlemen in this Town and the owners of the Humphreys Estate securing its purchase and looking to the development of the property for residence and business purposes.

This purchase includes more than thirty acres in the very center of the town, consisting of "Mill Grove," and the land adjoining, back land, the "Loonst Grove Mill" site, the Meadow, the Pond site, all of which lies West of the Railroad and something more than sixty acres lying East of the Railroad and means that the Lake will be abandoned as a lake and will be improved for business purposes.

The price paid for the above estate, we understand, is around $40,000. This movement is in direct keeping with the present progress of Salisbury and if our town is to continue to grow and keep up with the times, it is necessary that it have more room. While this is a big undertaking, the gentlemen who are behind it, we are sure, will put it through and will place Salisbury in a class on the Eastern Shore entirely with itself.

No town on the Peninsula, where these plans have been carried through, will be able to compete with Salisbury in the progressive race for business. It is in keeping with some of the undertakings of our larger cities. All of this property will be turned over to a Corporation incorporated at from $100,000 to $200,000, and will develop the property and sell it or lease it on such terms as may be advantageous to business, furnishing docks on both sides of the River from Camden Bridge. The river from Camden Bridge to the Railroad will be dredged out by a steam dredge to a width of from sixty to seventy feet, and such depth as will accommodate our largest vessels loaded coming to this town.

The plans also contemplate laying out a street through "Mill Grove" residence property as well as a street from the East end of the dam, connecting the south side of the Pond site with the north side, making a thoroughfare for South Salisbury and the Southeastern part of the County, at the N. Y. P. and N. Station without making it necessary to come around and pass through Division and Church Streets. These two sections of the Town thus connected are growing faster than any other sections of the Town at present, and it has been a problem for several years how a convenient avenue could be opened up across Humphreys Lake. This now is settled in a very practical way.

As an incident to this line of development, it is expected to establish facilities with the New York, Philadelphia and Norfolk Railroad for hauling their freight nearer to the business centre and at the same time, it is hoped that a Union Station can be brought about between the B. O. and A., and the N. Y. P. and N. This company will do nothing that will stand in the way of public improvements, the accommodation of the public and the progress of Salisbury.

The bridge at the wash-out will be built temporarily by the Town so that the people in South Salisbury can be accommodated. The purchasers have explained to the Town Council, we are informed, that they propose to give as much land as the Town may need for a right of way across the dam free of charge and intend to remit to the Town the award of the condemnation proceedings completed just before the purchase.

These improvements contemplate two pivot bridges, one at Camden Avenue and one at the dam where the wash-out took place.

The promoters have had the proposed channel sounded by a practical dredging man and have estimates on the work which place it very much cheaper than was at first expected. They are informed that the plan is entirely feasible from a business viewpoint, but as a municipal undertaking, it is one of the greatest projects that has come to this Town for many years, even rivaling our Railway.

We congratulate these gentlemen upon their patriotic spirit; their plans are very commendable, the success of which rebounds to the interest of Salisbury and the public should extend every convenience and encouragement to its consummation.

ELBERT HUBBARD

Lecture At Ulman's Opera House For Hospital Benefit, November 24.

Arrangements have been completed for the lecture of Elbert Hubbard, at the Ulman Grand Opera House, on November 24th, for the benefit of the Peninsula General Hospital. Mr. Hubbard will deliver his famous lecture "The March of the Centuries" which has a national reputation. It is not often that our people have the opportunity to hear a man of such world wide reputation as Hubbard and it is expected that the audience will be one of the largest and most fashionable ever seen in this city.

Tickets will be on sale at Toulson's drug store beginning Wednesday next November 17th. Reserved seat tickets $1.00, general admission to the first floor, 75 cents.

The proceeds of the lecture will be for the benefit of the Peninsula General Hospital and the people of the entire community should patronize the lecture, not only on account of its character but also for the good purpose for which it is given. Hubbard stands at the head of the lecturers of the United States, and the lecture will be most instructive and entertaining.

TO BAKE TAFT PIE

Delicacy For The President Will Be Six Feet In Diameter.

President Wallenstein, of the Pie Salesmen's Union, New York, which has decided to present a mammoth mince pie to President Taft on Thanksgiving Day, says that a committee has been appointed to select a suitable oven for baking the pie. He explained that a big pie, unlike a monster loaf, cannot be baked in sections.

The Union will make the pie two days before Thanksgiving Day, so that it will be in prime shape to be eaten. The largest pie ever baked was built by a Brooklyn pie-baking concern, and exhibited as an advertisement. It was rectangular, about three and a half feet wide and eight feet long.

"We want a circular pie six feet in diameter," Mr. Wallenstein said. "We want a home-made pie highly magnified. We don't want a monstrosity."

The repertoire will include the masterpieces of the German, French and Italian composers, as well as several new operas for which the Metropolitan Opera Company has the sole rights in this country.

There will be nearly 100 soloists in the Metropolitan this season, making it the largest opera organization ever formed in America. The names of the singers include some of the greatest vocal artists in France, Italy, Russia, Germany, Austria, England and America. Never before have so many American singers appeared in the Metropolitan, proving that in grand opera this country's artists compete with France, Germany and Italy.

The Lyric in Baltimore has been bought by the Metropolitan Opera Company and a large sum has been spent in making it a splendid opera house. The theatre contains 20 new boxes. The most brilliant audience that ever assembled to hear opera in Baltimore was expected at the opening of the season on November 12.

In Memoriam.

In memory of my wife and our Mother, Mrs. Mary A. Truitt, who departed this life two years ago on the morning of Nov. 15, 1907.

It has been two long years and seems to be very long indeed, since our best friend on earth was called from us. We were at a loss to understand why it was then, and why she and her grand daughter, little four year old May Brittingham, so young and promising, was called in such a horrible way, that of being burned to death, and the mystery is just as great today, as it was then, but we humbly bow in submission to the hand of God, the All Wise Creator.

We hope to understand why it was we were called upon to bear such a heavy burden, and the burden to our hearts is just as great today, only the comforting promise to us, that all things are for the better that are wrought by the hand of God.

She was a kind and loving wife and a most affectionate Mother always leading a most honorable life and imparting to us the best of advice which, if followed we will undoubtedly meet her again which we have hope of doing.

While they are gone yet they are not forgotten.

THE PROGRESSIVE GRANGE

Will hold its Next Meeting Saturday, November 20—Scattering Improvement Ideas.

The Election is over. Some are pleased with the results. Others are disappointed perhaps. Let us hope that the affairs of the County and State are entrusted to capable and efficient hands.

But the farmer does not make his living out of politics. He has to get in close communion with mother earth for his sustenance. Individual experience teaches the farmer a great deal, literature distributed by the State Experiment Stations, and by the U. S. Department of Agriculture, give him a valuable fund of information. But much good can come from organization. And the stronger the organization is in numbers and the more work each one does, the more good will come to each one.

The Grange is purely a farmers Society, organized for the purpose of bringing the farmers together socially, and giving them an chance to discuss questions of mutual interest. In addition to being a social organization the Grange can be utilized as a medium for buying farm machinery, fertilizer, and other supplies, at a reasonable figure, also for obtaining cheap insurance, and for securing beneficial legislation.

"In Union there is strength." And we believe there are great possibilities for good in a strong order of the Grange in Wilcomco. We urge the farmers all over this county to send in application for membership in the Grange. The dues are only a trifle. We need your assistance and support, and we believe we can aid you in return. Meeting in the Old Fellows Hall, on the third floor over Western Union Telegraph Office, on the first and third Saturday evenings of each month at half past seven o'clock.

Last Saturday evening we were entertained by the Lady members of the Grange. They gave us a very interesting literary program, also some excellent vocal and instrumental music.

Later in the evening sandwiches, coffee, pies and cakes were served. The question of whether there is profit in poultry on the farm was very ably discussed by both the ladies and the gentlemen.

We wish our farmer's "friends" to join our Grange and bring their wives with them, have a good time socially and exchange ideas for our mutual benefit.

Next meeting Saturday, Nov. 20th, at 7.30 o'clock Wm. P. Morris.

The soothing spray of Ely's Liquid Cream Balm, used in an atomizer, is an unspeakable relief to sufferers from Catarrh. Some of them describe it as a Godsend, and no wonder. The thick, foul discharge is dislodged and the patient breathes freely, perhaps for the first time in weeks. Liquid Cream Balm contains all the healing, purifying elements of the solid form, and it never fails to satisfy. Sold by all druggists for 75c, including spraying tube, or mailed by Ely Bros., 56 Warren Street, New York.

You Don't HAVE to be a Stoker

Heaving coal into a furnace and shoveling ashes out is hard work. Besides, coal costs money. If you go to your heater more than three times in twenty-four hours, you are wasting time and labor, and throwing away coal. And the chances are that your house is not comfortable all through. You should install the

MODEL Heating System

It almost takes care of itself. Burns every pound of coal completely, getting every bit of heat out of it. Distributes the heat uniformly, by steam or hot water, to every radiator in the house. Keeps all rooms warm and cozy whether on the "windy side" or "over the heater." Makes no dust, and fewer ashes than a hot air furnace, because it burns less coal, and burns it thoroughly. Thousands are in use, saving from one-third to one-half the former consumption of coal. Quite a desirable saving.

The Ledom is as good a kitchen range as the Model is a heating system—which is saying a great deal. Its grate alone saves half of the usual coal consumption, and makes it the ablest, quickest, most convenient range ever built. Don't fail to see it.

Bear and Forbear

Randall came slowly down the wood road that led to the resort ground. The fact that every step brought him nearer to Vivian did not hasten his pace, because Webb was also there, and of late Vivian's fancy had seemed to favor this rival who was all that the word "eligible" implied.

He turned from the main road and came to a neglected lovers' lane. Some little distance from him he saw an elderly female forging her ample form through the undergrowth that had sprung up across the remains of a path leading past a small summer house.

To one of the larger trees a young bear at the stage between sportive and growls was secured by a long chain. Frolicsome he crossed the course of this luckless, approaching woman.

Bruin, accustomed to inspiring terror or to receiving overtures in the way of propitiating peanuts, retreated in astonishment from the vigorous thrusts of the green cotton umbrella. A rustic bench a few steps further on invited the woman to rest. Enconcing herself thereon, she leaned an elbow on either knee and gazed earthward.

Randall's eye was caught by the wonderfully constructed headgear that adorned the woman. It was a big straw bonnet covered with yellow straw cereals which it would be difficult for chronicler or milliner to define.

Bruin took or mistook them for his favored edible peanuts. He came forward. To his bewilderment there could be no more tempting prospect than this vision of peanuts—in clusters. A bound, a clutch and a huge paw closed powerfully upon the bonnet.

With the howls of the terrified woman was mingled a loud, cracking, tearing, sheaf-like sound. Her hatpins had not been securely impelled and to his lair, the trunk of the tree, Bruin bore in triumph, not only the autumnal bonnet of his prey, but also her tan-colored, kink-inkled wig, leaving her with a white, smooth, shining pate.

"Humpty Dumpty," softly whispered Randall to himself, as he hastened to the rescue. He wrestled with the bear and the headgear until he had secured the latter and restored them to the hysterical woman, whose hands were clasped over her defenseless head.

"He is quite tame," reassured Randall, turning toward her, and apparently not noticing the rakish set of the wig and bonnet, which were of widely antagonistic angles.

"I was never here before," she gasped, "and I took him for a big dog. Why, I am that scared and beat-like, I don't know as I can make the hotel."

"Rest here a little while," he said, kindly, "and I will walk back to the hotel with you."

"My, but I am glad you came along," she said, gratefully. "I always supposed city folks were terribly stuck up, but you're just like her—Miss Grey. I ought to have listened to her."

She told me I had better walk with her. My, but she is a fine girl!"

The light in Randall's eyes aroused her curiosity.

"Do you know her—Vivian Grey?" she asked eagerly.

"Yes, I know her," he made answer, his heart throbbed quickening at the mention of the loved name.

"She boarded at our farm one Summer, and she is always just as sweet to me as she is to her city friends when I come to town. I have been sick and our folks packed me down here to the hotel to rest up a spell. I'd have been awful lonesome, but Miss Grey was here, and she looks after me."

While Randall was helping his corpulent friend up from the rustic bench a tall, handsome, supercilious man came through an opening in the woods. He gazed in astonishment at the pair.

"Oh, Randall," he drawled, with a suspicion of a sneer in his voice, "keeping tryst in this romantic spot? Who's your fair friend?"

The "friend" detected the sneer, and turned to him resentfully, but before she gained her voice Randall responded in quiet tones:

"My friend, Webb, is a lady who was frightened by an attack from the bear here, and I am walking back to the hotel with her where she is staying."

"Oh, I thought it was 'Beauty in distress.' They are not quite so exclusive at the hotel as they were last year. I am on my way to keep an appointment with a mutual friend of ours, so I will bid you adieu and leave you to your fate."

Randall's response was averted by the appearance of a lovely young woman in the doorway of the Summer house. She bestowed a slight and frigid bow upon the astonished Webb and went up to the woman.

"Mrs. Beagle," she said, sympathetically, "I am sorry for your fright. I was resting here in the Summer house during your encounter with the bear. I was coming to the rescue when I saw Mr. Randall was doing everything necessary, so I awaited developments. I will return with you to the hotel."

"It was lovely of you to be so nice to her," she said in an undertone to Randall, as Mrs. Beagle went back to the bench to collect her belongings.

The expression in the beautiful eyes of the speaker made Randall's heart leap. What happened during their walk back to the hotel is immaterial, but that night Bruin was treated to a whole flock of peanuts.

A New Cure.
A doctor whose practice lies mostly in the country districts has recently called to attend a physician's boy, whom he found to be suffering from whooping cough. Among his instructions he told the mother to "put some ice in a box and tie it around the boy's head." Next day he called again and was met at the door by the girl-wife, who, in answer to his query, replied, "Aye, Joe's a heap better the day, but the ice has melted."

LAKE HUMPHREYS AND SALISBURY'S FUTURE.

The glory of Lake Humphreys departed last summer with the washing away of the bridge and dam, and passed down with its pickered and black base into the Wicomico river.

Lovers with their gondolas no longer skimmed its silver surface; and the habitat of the fish became infested with the swamp grass and diverse noxious weeds.

"From a thing of beauty" it becomes offensive to the eye and a breeding spot for malaria.

The owners declined to dam up the waters, and the city justly did not feel inclined to again convert it into a water power for the owners. This was the dilemma which the people of the City found themselves.

In the meantime some thinking both deep and tall, was going on among a few of our enterprising citizens. Early last summer Mr. Henry B. Freney began negotiations with the owners looking to its purchase, which was consummated last week, at a figure which will probably bring a fair profit to these co-operating with him. But that is not the thing with which the public is so much concerned. While every one will wish them well because of their pluck and faith in the future of Salisbury, that is a private affair and they take the risk, which also involves a great outlay of money before the property is available for business purposes. Some persons stood against the very boldness of the plan of development, but as it has been explained and shown to be feasible, the universal expression of opinion is "it is the biggest thing that ever came to Salisbury." Here is just where the interest of the people come in. Salisbury like all other places must expand to be successful, for no growth means decay. Main Street is already barred in so that there is no chance for expansion eastward toward the railroads. This enterprise gives a chance for rapid growth right at the very centre of the city. With drawbridges and river dug out to the railroad dam deep enough for navigation, we will have complete union of water and railroad facilities for transportation.

Facilities for rapid and competitive traffic compel cheap transportation.
When the transportation problem is solved in this way for any community, that means rapid growth. This also means rapid advance in the values of all kinds of property and this in turn adds to the wealth of the individuals as well as to the assessable basis for both City and County taxation. There is no possible aspect in this enterprise that can be looked at but what will show it to be of great importance to the city and the county. If from the agricultural standpoint, "he is a benefactor who makes two spurs of grass grow where one grew before" so commercially speaking they are benefactors of the city who convert, waste places, like the bottom of Lake Humphreys now is, into building sites fit for the habitation of man and fit for mills, markets,

BETTER RAILROAD FACILITIES.

The citizens of Salisbury, through the Business Men's Association have been trying to get the N. Y. P. and N. E. R. to give the people of Salisbury better accommodation in railroad services, with the Eastern Shore of Virginia than they now have. The request made is that the railroad run the train that now reaches Salisbury at 7 o'clock in the evening, which now stops at Pocomoke City, further down the road to Cape Charles if possible, if not, as far down the line as it could see its way clear, and then to start the train which now reaches Salisbury at 6.44 in the morning, at the same point that the evening train stops. This train now starts from Po-comoke City. This would give the people of Virginia an opportunity of coming to Salisbury and return the same day, which is impossible as trains are now run. Anyone at present wanting to come to Salisbury or to any points above Salisbury will have to spend the night or return home on the train which leaves here at 8 o'clock in the morning. It is very easily seen that this arrangement is a big bar to any business between the people of Salisbury and all points below Pocomoke City—as a matter of fact, it has practically killed all business relations between these sections as far as retail trade goes and has badly handicapped our wholesale merchants. The people of Virginia are in hearty sympathy with the movement to get better train service, and see that the present arrangement works very much against the progress of the entire Eastern Shore. Not only would the change of trains be a great convenience to Salisbury and the entire Eastern Shore of Virginia, but it would add both to a great extent in a business way.

Salisbury is the largest place on the N. Y. P. and N. E. R. and gives to it a large volume of business, and in view of this fact, it is certainly entitled to some consideration at the hands of the railroad, and it certainly seems that the request of its business men and citizens to have these trains extended to Cape Charles is a very reasonable request, especially as it would accommodate as well the people all along the line who have business here or with any points north of Salisbury.

It is understood that the committee appointed by the Business Men's Association to act in conjunction with a like committee from Pocomoke City have not met with the success in taking over this matter with the railroad officials that they should have, and have not succeeded in convincing them that the change in these two trains would result in benefits alike to the people and the railroad, but have been put off with indefinite promises for the future, which of course means that the railroad officials have turned the proposition down.

The matter should not be allowed to rest here but the request for better accommodation between these sections should be continued until the railroad is brought around to the view point of seeing the advisability of granting the reasonable demands of this city. It is entirely too important a matter to Salisbury to allow it to drop and no stones should be left unturned until something is accomplished.

Salisbury has shown wonderful growth in the past few years, and there is no reason why its growth in the future should not far exceed its advances in the past, and if the railroads will give the help and encouragement to which it is entitled it will continue in prosperity and progress.

As Salisbury grows and its business increases in volume the more advantage it will be to the railroads, and it does look like a reasonable demand like the one now made should be given due consideration and ready compliance by the N. Y. P. and N. E. R.

first laid out by the Commissioners.

Use Motor Cars In Hunting Deer.

Hunting by automobile is the latest thing in outdoor sports in Maine. For the first time in the hunting season wives and daughters have gone into the heart of the woods by auto. Successful hunting from the machine itself has been reported by scores of parties. Auto trips have even extended to the back roads, carrying the hunters into the hearts of the wilds of Maine.

Hundreds of deer and partridges have fallen prey with little exertion to the hunters. Instead of frightening the game, the chug-chug and the hook-hook of the auto seems only to excite the curiosity of the untamed animals, which stand motionless giving the hunters in the automobiles ample time to get a good shot.

Lacy Thoroughgood Is The Only Merchant In

The Town Who Gives An Insurance Policy With Every Suit And Every Overcoat He Sells

This Insurance Policy is sewed on the outside of your inside coat pocket, and reads: "A New Suit Without Charge If This One Proves Unsatisfactory." The policy insures this to you: that your suit will satisfy you in every respect, that it is absolutely all pure wool, with not a thread of cotton in it; that the trimmings and materials are of the best, that the woolen has been fully shrunk before it left the manufacturer's shops, so that it cannot shrink on your back; that the suit will look good, not for a day or a month, but will hold its style and fit until completely worn out; and on top of that, mind you this insurance policy says that if the suit falls short of the guarantee, bring it back. Any clothing merchant can say to you "Come to me and get clothes that will satisfy," but what merchant will say "Come back to me after you get your clothes if they don't satisfy." That is what Lacy Thoroughgood, of Salisbury, says.

Eat What

You want of the food you need
Kodol will digest it.

You need a sufficient amount of good wholesome food and more than this you need to fully digest it. Else you can't gain strength, nor can you strengthen your stomach if it is weak.

You must eat in order to live and maintain strength.

You must not diet, because the body requires that you eat a sufficient amount of food regularly.

But this food must be digested, and it must be digested thoroughly. When the stomach can't do it, you must take something that will help the stomach.

The proper way to do is to eat what you want, and let Kodol digest the food.

Nothing else can do this. When the stomach is weak it needs help; you must help it by giving it rest, and Kodol will do that.

Our Guarantee

Go to your druggist today, and purchase a dollar bottle, and if you can honestly say, that you did not receive any benefits from it, after using the entire bottle, the druggist will refund your money to you without question or delay.

We will pay the druggist the price of the bottle purchased by you.

This offer applies to the large bottle only and to but one in a family.

We could not afford to make such an offer, unless we positively knew what Kodol will do for you.

It would bankrupt us. The dollar bottle contains 2 1/2 times as much as the fifty cent bottle.

Kodol is made at the laboratories of E. C. DeWitt & Co., Chicago.

CHAPTER XIII.

MR. SAUNDERS HAS A PLAN.

MISS PELHAM'S affair, with

Thomson Saunders by this time had reached the stage where observers feel a hesitancy about twitting the parties most concerned.

"Miss Pelham is a clever girl, much cleverer than Saunders would be if he were a girl," said Britt. "She's found out that he earns a thousand a year and that his mother is a very old woman. That shows foresight. She says she's just crazy about London, although she doesn't know where Hammersmith is. That shows discretion.

She's anxious to see the boats at Fulham, and talks like an encyclopedia about Kew gardens. That shows dis-plomacy. You see, Saunders lives in Hammersmith, not far from the bridge, all alone with his mother, who owns the house and garden. It's all very appealing to Miss Pelham, who has got devilish tired of seeing the universe

from a nineteenth story in Broadway."

"She's a very nice girl," agreed Bobby Browne.

"A very saucy one," added Deppingham, who had come a severe cropper in his single attempt to interest her in a mild flirtation.

"She's off with Saunders now," went on Britt. "That's why you can't find him, my lord. If you really want him, however, I think you can reach him by strolling through the lower end of the park, but don't fall to shout."

"I do want him, confound him! I want to ask him how many days there are left before our time is up on the island. Demmed annoying that I can't have legal advice when I want it!"

"How many days have you been here?"

"How the devil should I know? That's what we've got Saunders here for. He's supposed to tell us when to go home and all that sort of thing, you know."

Deppingham, phlegmatic soul, was forever disturbing Saunders with calls to duty, although Saunders was main-tened in confidence, of course—that he was in the employ of Lady Deppingham or no one at all. Nevertheless he always lived under the shadow of duty. At any moment his lordship was liable to send for him to ask the time of day or some equally important question. And this brings us to the hour when Saunders unfolded his startling solution to the problem that confronted them all.

First he confided in Britt soberly, sagely and in perfect good faith. Britt was bowled over. He stared at Saunders and gasped. Nearly two minutes elapsed before he could find words to reply, which proves conclusively that it must have been something of a shock to him. When at last he did express himself, however, there was nothing that could have been left unsaid—absolutely nothing. He went so far as to call Saunders a doddering fool and a great many other things that Saunders had not in the least expected.

The Englishman was stubborn.

They had it back and forth, from legal and other points of view, and finally

Britt gave in to his colleague, reserving the right to laugh when he was all over. Saunders, with a determination that surprised even himself, called for a conference of all parties in Wickholme's study at 4 o'clock.

"Now, what's it all about, Saunders?" demanded Deppingham, with a wide yawn. Saunders looked hurt.

"It is high time we were discussing some way out of our difficulties," he said. "But five weeks remain before our stay is over. The apparent impossibility of marriage between Lady

Deppingham and Mr. Browne naturally throws our joint cause into jeopardy. There would be no controversy, of course, if the terms of the will could be carried out in that respect.

The islanders understand our position and seem secure in their rights. They imagine that they have us beaten on the face of things. Now, the thing for us to do is to get married."

He came to this conclusion with startling abruptness. Four of his hearers stared at him in blank astonish-

"Get married?" murmured first one,

then another.

"Are you crazy?" demanded Browne.

Britt was grinning broadly.

"Certainly not!" snapped Saunders.

"Oh, by Jove!" exclaimed Deppingham, relieved. "I see. You mean you contemplate getting married. I congratulate you. You gave me quite a shock, Saunders."

"I don't mean anything of the sort, my lord," said Saunders, getting very red in the face. Miss Pelham looked up from her notebook quickly. He winked at her, and her ladyship saw him do it. "I mean that it is high time that Lady Deppingham and Mr.

Browne were getting married. We haven't much time to spare. I!"

"Good Lord!" gasped Bobby Browne.

"You are crazy, after all."

"Open the window and give some air," said Britt coolly.

"See here, Saunders, what the devil is the matter with you?" roared Deppingham.

"My lord, I am here to act as your legal adviser," said Saunders, with gravity. "May I be permitted to proceed?"

"Rather queer legal advice, 'pon my word."

"Please let him explain," put in Mrs.

Browne, whose sense of humor was strongly attracted by this time. "If there is anything more to be learned concerning matrimony I'd like to know it."

"Yes, Mr. Saunders, you may proceed," said Lady Agnes, passing a hand over her bewitched eyes.

"Thank you, my lady. Well, here it is in a nutshell: I have not spoken of it before, but you and Mr. Browne can very easily come to the provisions of the will. You can be married at any time. Now, I!"

"And where do I come in?" demanded Deppingham sarcastically.

"Yes, and I?" added Mrs. Browne.

"For forget us, Mr. Saunders."

"I include Mrs. Browne," amended

Deppingham. "Are we to be assassinated? By Jove, clever idea of yours,

Saunders! Simplifies matters tremendously."

"I hear no objection from the heirs," remarked Saunders meaningly, whereupon Lady Agnes and Bobby came out of their stupor and protested vigorously.

"Miss Pelham," said Britt, breaking in sharply. "I trust you are getting all of this down. I wish to warn you, ladies and gentlemen, that I expect to overthrow the will on the ground that there is insanity on both sides. You'll oblige me by uttering just what you think."

"My plan is very simple," began

Saunders helplessly.

"Demmed simple," growled Deppingham.

"We are living on an island where polygamy is practiced and tolerated.

Why can't we take advantage of the custom and beat the natives at their own game? That's the ticket!"

Of course this proposition, simple as it sounded, brought forth a storm of laughter and expostulation, but Saunders held his ground.

"You have only to embrace Mohammedanism or paganism, or whatever it is, temporarily, just long enough to get married and comply with the terms. Then, I dare say, you could resume your Christian doctrine once more, after a few weeks, I'd say, and the case is won."

"I pay Lady Deppingham the compliment by saying that it would be most difficult for me to become a Christian again," said Browne smoothly, bowing to the flushed Englishman.

"How very sweet of you!" she said,

with a grimace which made Drusilla shiver with annoyance.

"You don't need to live together, of course," floundered Saunders, getting rather beyond his depth.

"Well, that's a concession on your part," said Mrs. Browne, a flash in her eye.

"I never heard of such an assinine proposition," sputtered Deppingham.

FAIR EXCHANGE.

A New Back For An Old One. How It Is Done in Salisbury.

The back aches at times with a dull, unendurable feeling, making you weary and restless; piercing pains shoot across the region of the kidneys, and again the loins are so lame to stoop is agony. No use to rub or apply a plaster to the back in this condition. You cannot reach the cause. Exchange the bad back for a new and stronger one. Follow the example of this Salisbury citizen.

Mrs. John G. Mason, E. Brown Street, Salisbury, Md., says: "Doan's Kidney Pills have helped me more than any other medicine I have ever taken. I do not have the least hesitation in endorsing them. I was subject to attacks of kidney complaint for a long time and whenever I caught cold my back became very weak. If I did much stooping my back also grew lame and painful, especially across my loins. Seeing Doan's Kidney Pills highly endorsed by people who had used them, I procured a supply at White and Leonard's drug store. Since taking this remedy I have felt much better in every way. In fact I have had no further trouble from my kidneys and back."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster—Milburn Co., Buffalo, New York, sole agents for the United States. Remember the name.—Doan's and take no other.

MRS. J. K. MARTIN
Teacher of Piano and Pipe Organ 118 Main St., Salisbury, Md.

"Uncle John"

Twenty years ago "Smith" was the life of the little town of Madison. Within its red brick walls were crowded all of tragedy, all of comedy, the madcap prank; the tender dream of love; the wider, fiercer one of ambition; the heroic battle with self, fought and won; the lifelong friendship; the death of a friend; the death of a friend; the death of a friend.

One day there entered its classic halls a man tall and broad-shouldered, whose keen gray eyes and commanding presence were to exert a remarkable influence on our lives. The new hair softened, but could not disguise the stormy passions of a nature which had known on intermediate between love and hatred; strong delight and bitter sorrow; righteousness and sin.

Seen from a distance, the manly and erect carriage and proud poise of the head were striking. A nearer glimpse of the tales Time had written on his brow, and you either shrank back in awe or a piquant curiosity lured you on to learn more of the past of this singular man. Did you venture so far, the probability is that you would have your trouble for your pains, for John Hilton was as reticent as he was proud. Come and go with us, sit at the same table, enter into the same studies with ourselves, he might, yet the icy reserve never melted. Fear and respect him we did—but love him, we could not.

By and by we learned that he was afflicted with an incurable disease which at times caused him the most exquisite pain, yet no moan escaped his lips. Sometimes, after an exceptionally bad spell, he would disappear for several days. When he appeared again, he would seem more bright and cheerful, though often he fell into a pensive mood. There came a day, however, when we learned to pity and to love the proud man. An unusually protracted period of pain was followed by what seemed returning health.

"Uncle John," as we learned to call him since his illness, knew better, however, and one night, around the winter's fire, he told us his story. "As a boy, I cared little for young ladies' society, though my sisters had many girl friends. After a time it became the general opinion I would never marry. But one bright summer morning I overtook a young lady on the highway and offered her a lift as far as our journey ran in the same direction.

"She was a fair, sweet woman, with appealing blue eyes, and I learned, had charge of the village school. Time passed pleasantly, and all too soon we reached her destination. Singularly enough, I often had business on the Valley Road, and somehow it was only natural that I picked up Edith Wharton on my way. Acquaintance ripened into friendship, and friendship into love. When she returned to her Eastern home, all my heart and hopes went with her.

"The many letters that passed between us but confirmed our belief in one another, and marriage seemed the culmination of earthly bliss. Alas! It did not take us long to discover how superficial was our knowledge of one another. Love, we had brought out the best in each other; now, both saw less worthy traits in the other. Then bitter words, soon forgotten by the one who uttered them, but ranking dead in the heart where they had been planted, passed between us; but no words of love or forgiveness followed, for we were, both, oh, so proud.

"Bronchial troubles added to Edith's petulance, and she was unhappy because I did not sympathize in her worship of the beauties of the universe. To me, utility ranked higher than beauty, and I considered most of her fancies nonsense. For four years I did not see her, for I hated her for her mother's sake.

"Into every species of vice I plunged, and to-day I bear the marks of that hell which scathed body and soul. At last, weary and nauseated with it all, I one evening wandered into the vestibule of a church. Not caring to enter, but entranced by the beauty of a single voice which rose high and clear in song, I remained when it ended. Deeply moved by what followed, I lingered at the close of the service, sought the pastor, and so enlisted his interest and sympathy that he invited me to his study. Hours after, when I left him, it was with the firm resolve that the future should atone for the past, and, by God's grace, my life has since been an upright one. Were it not for my child, I could be perfectly happy; but mine was the hand that raised the barrier between us. God grant that on that better shore, Edith, little Edith and I may meet once more, a happy, united family.

"Uncle John's" voice sank to a whisper. Long we sat, silent and moved. When we turned to bid him good-night, the dawn of eternal day was on his face. Beside the wife he so wronged and misunderstood, he lies "Requiescat in pace."

Paul a Prisoner
—In Rome

Sunday School Lesson for Nov. 14, 1909
Specially Arranged for This Paper

LESSON TEXT.—Acts 28:11. Memory verses 30, 31.

GOLDEN TEXT.—"I am not ashamed of the Gospel of Christ; for it is the power of God unto salvation in everyone that believeth."—Rom. 1:16.

TIME.—The week, November, A. D. 60 or 61.

PLACE.—Rome. Paul is in his own hired house under guard.

Suggestions and Practical Thoughts.

The Triple Test of Character and Destiny.

Righteousness, Temperance, and Judgment to Come.

Applied to the Apostle Paul and to Gov. Felix.

1. How the Apostle Paul Stood the Test. The Test Applied.—Vs. 1, 2. In our last lesson we left Paul under guard in the governor's palace at Caesarea.

Five days later a deputation arrived from Jerusalem bearing charges against the prisoner—Ananias, the high priest who had ordered an officer to smite Paul on the mouth for declaring his innocence, the most influential of the Jewish rulers; certain elders who would confirm the charges against Paul; and an eloquent Roman lawyer named Tertullus whom they brought with them on account of his superior knowledge of Roman law and methods of court procedure, his skill as a pleader, and the fact that a Roman lawyer would have more influence, as an unbiased man, in a Roman court.

The Court Scene. Felix was the judge. There were no jurors. Paul was brought into the court.

Tertullus as a skillful advocate opened his plea with a eulogium both delicate and artful. He based it on the one virtue on which the orator could truthfully hang any praise, his energy and vigor in suppressing robberies and rebellion. "He seized and sent to Rome a famous brigand called Eleazar, who had ravaged the country for nearly 20 years; he repressed the rebellion of the Egyptian impostor; and quelled a sedition which arose between the Jewish and Greek inhabitants of Caesarea."

Hence "by these we enjoy great quietness" (v. 2). "Yet, notwithstanding, he was probably the worst governor that Judea ever had. He had a number of the Sicarii continually in his employment; and instead of pacifying the Jews, he only fanned the spirit of sedition."

So that as a whole the eulogium was historically false, and the most exaggerated flattery, when he spoke of "the very worthy deeds . . . done unto this nation by thy providence."

The witnesses from Jerusalem testified "that these things were so."

11. How Paul Stood the Test.—As Gold Tried in the Fire.—Vs. 10-11.

The First Charge Disproved by a simple statement of facts. "He was brought up to Jerusalem for to worship" (v. 11). He did not do one of the things with which he was charged. The Jews began to riot, and did all the rioting that was done.

Paul's Answer to the Second Charge was that he acknowledged that he was "a ring-leader of the sect of the Nazarenes," but denied that it was heresy against the Jewish religion.

1. He worshipped the same God (14), "the God of my (our) fathers," but "after the Way which they call a sect" (R. V.).

2. He believed in the Jewish law and prophets. From them he knew that Jesus was the Messiah.

The Sum of His Answer was (16) "I exercise myself." I practice these principles as an athlete trains and disciplines himself by continual practice of the art by which he hopes to win, as an art that requires practice for its perfection (1 Cor. 9:27; 1 John 3:3).

III. The Test Applied to Felix.—Vs. 22-25. The Decision Delayed: 22. "When Felix heard these things," both sides of the case, "having more perfect," exact, "knowledge of that way." Better "the way." He knew the character of Christians too well to believe the charges against Paul. Hence, "he deferred them," under the pretense that he wanted to hear from Lysias, the chief captain, when he would "know the uttermost of your matter."

Paul Two Years a Prisoner, but with the utmost indulgence and liberty compatible with his safe keeping.

What Was the Value of This Imprisonment in Attaining the Great Purpose of Paul's Life? 1. It was on the way to Rome, under the best circumstances.

2. It was the means of preparing him for his best work when he reached that city.

3. Paul had been in poor health, and he needed the rest under the care of Luke, the beloved physician.

Paul's Discourse. 25. An effort to persuade Felix and Drusilla to repent and become Christians.

1. He discoursed "of righteousness," the duty and privilege of a true life with all the fruits of the Spirit, the beauty of holiness, which the gospel will produce in the hearts of those who obey Jesus the Christ.

2. "Temperance," control over all one's passions and appetites, and all the forces of the soul under the control of reason and conscience, as a rider is under the control of his horse, and obeys his guiding rein, or a ship is under control of its captain.

3. "Judgment to come" was presented with its rewards for virtue, and punishment for sin and crime.

Kills Her Fox Of 20 Years.

"The most merciless enemy I had for 20 years," declares Mrs. James Dunoon, of Hayneville, Me., "was Dyspepsia. I suffered intensely after eating or drinking and could scarcely sleep. After many remedies had failed I tried Electric Bitters, which cured me completely. Now I can eat anything. I am 70 years old and am overjoyed to get my health and strength back again." For indigestion, loss of appetite, kidney trouble, lame back, female complaints, it is unequalled. Only 50c at all druggists.

REV. COOPER RESIGNS

One Of Trinity's Most Popular And Esteemed Pastors.

At the Fourth Quarterly Conference, Rev. W. A. Cooper announced to the Board that at the coming Conference he would ask for a change in pastoral duty, giving his reason for so doing. He stated that while he regretted very much to sever his connection with this church and Salisbury that he believed it to be the best interests of all concerned that a change should be made. Rev. Mr. Cooper is very popular in Salisbury and the community at large will be sorry to learn that he is not going to return. The Board adopted the following resolutions unanimously.

"That we regret exceedingly to part with the services of Brother Cooper, whose labors among us have always been for the betterment of the church in every department of Christian endeavor. His walk and conversation have always been Godly, setting an example worthy of the emulation of us all. He has preached the Gospel of Christ, in a forceful and convincing manner, and his labors have been blessed in the increase of membership in Trinity Church. His bold stand for civic righteousness, in and out of the pulpit, has won for him many friends of all denominations of our city, and he will leave Salisbury with the best wishes of our people, irrespective of denomination."

"That we hereby record our deep appreciation of his faithful services here during the past two years, and pray that in his new field of labor he may be successful in winning souls for the Master."

"That while we are aware that Brother Cooper has, on account of certain conditions, expressed himself as not being willing to return for another year, it is the sense of this Board, and the congregation of Trinity Church, unanimously, that we would be delighted to have him serve us another year."

WHY DOES THE SURPRISE STORE

Do the Leading Business in Salisbury?

Because the people have finally found out that all the bargains offered at this wonderful Store are honest and genuine.

Facts Are Oftentimes Stranger Than Fiction.

Here are some solid facts, that sound like fiction. When we show you one of our Suits, at the price we sell them for, you hesitate. WHY? Because, being used to paying such exorbitant prices for clothing, you wonder whether you are fortunate enough to have at last discovered a place where you don't have to pay out your last dollar in order to maintain a neat appearance.

You often hear some merchants speak of being Reliable; you need give them no thanks for that—that is what they have to be, if they wish to succeed, so they only favor themselves. Every merchant who makes success in business is reliable, and vice versa, every merchant who is reliable is also successful in business.

What is the every-day meaning of the word reliable? It is just this: When you enter a store, with the intention of spending just so many dollars, you expect just so many dollars' worth of goods in return, and also you wish the goods to meet with the requirements they are represented for.

The mere fact of a merchant being so many years in a city does not make him any more reliable than the new merchant who immediately proves his reliability in a good, honest and conscientious manner.

Oftentimes the merchant who cries against competition has a good reason.

The successful merchant, who gives his patrons honest values, cares for no competition whatever. We have demonstrated that to the letter, having come among you as strangers, only a short time ago. Look at us now. Our store never sees a moment's rest. The unceasing crowds that keep coming here have become convinced of the fact that we are right in prices, goods, selection, attention, and other facilities necessary to render a patron at ease when purchasing.

BE DULY THANKFUL

On Thursday And Every Other Day. Splendid Exhortation By Cardinal Gibbons.

"Be thankful to God for all blessings, for afflictions, for poverty, for trials and tribulations, as well as for prosperity and good health, and let us raise our voices and repeat with the angels in Heaven Benediction and honor and praise to God forever and forever, amen."

From the pulpit of the Cathedral Cardinal Gibbons spoke this in the course of his annual Thanksgiving sermon.

"There is no sin more odious or hateful to God than the sin of ingratitude," declared the Cardinal. "God cried out against the ingratitude of the Israelites and He is today crying out against the ingratitude of modern men. The ox submits to its master and allows the yoke to be placed upon it. But we, who are servants of the Great Master, will not allow the yoke of Christianity to be placed upon us if it is opposed to our inordinate and worldly desires."

Time Honored Custom.

"The observance of Thanksgiving Day is a time honored and laudable custom. Because of its being a day of public worship in this country it cannot but help bringing down countless blessings upon us. Every natural favor we have is a blessing from God and it is incumbent upon you, brethren, to render thanks to the Almighty for whatever is done for you."

"We should be thankful for our existence. Life is a merited blessing conferred upon us, and you should not only be thankful for that life God has bestowed upon you; but also for the preservation of that life."

"Some say they have little to be thankful for; they declare their health is bad; they are in straitened circumstances, while others have good health, enjoy abundance of good things and occupy exalted positions. But, my brethren, you should be thankful to God not only for prosperity, but adversity and for the bitter cup of sorrow that He may raise to your lips. This may seem incongruous and paradoxical, but it is true. And when the day of judgement comes you will thank God a thousand times more for the adversity, sorrows and trials of life than the temporal favors."

Pleasure Intoxicates.

"Is it not true that we fail to thank God either in prosperity or adversity in prosperity we are intoxicated with pleasure and forget Almighty, in adversity the spirit of affliction is frozen and again we forget God."

The only time some of us brethren, think of God is when we want some favor."

"The ancients rendered thanks to their deity for the advancement of their country, for their health, for their victories. How much more ought you, civilized and Christian people to thank God for what we have, thank God for the church of Christ, which is your teacher, and for the great country in which we live?"

Thankful for Spiritual Life.

"If we are thankful to God for our natural life, how much more should we be thankful for our spiritual life? If thankful for the fecundity of earth to sustain that natural life, how much more thankful for the precious body of Christ given you for the maintenance and support of your spiritual body."

"When the day of thanksgiving comes this month, and even every day, be thankful to God for what you are and for your existence; pour forth thanks to Almighty God. All our prayers and good works should begin with a prayer of thanksgiving to God. A prayer of thanksgiving is the most effective prayer. It is only just, meet right and proper at all times to give thanks to God. Do not, my brethren, I beg you, complain, grumble or find fault with things. Be thankful for everything and let me end with repeating what I said in the beginning: Benediction, praise and honor to God forever and forever. Amen."

OPENING OF SALISBURY'S

Greater Future Says Well Informed Native Of This City. Large Prospects.

Salisbury Nov. 18, 1909.

To the Editor of the Advertiser. If it seems presumptuous in a resident whose material stake is small to enter the subject, it may not be out of taste in a born citizen of Salisbury, to congratulate the City on the project of utilizing the water courses and the land area of Lake Humphreys and the adjacent transportation opportunities. To me it seems like a new period of commercial strength. I have no connection with the enterprise beyond that of every other inhabitant, but I have lived at various times in Philadelphia, St. Louis, Kansas City, Omaha and St. Paul, cities deeply concerned in the object of laying beside each other railroad facilities and water transportation.

Last summer I studied in the course of my professional experience several new cities on the shores of the Great Lakes, among them Duluth, the "Boo", Port Arthur, Fort William and Detroit. When one has witnessed the lavish way in which these places spend and plan to spend millions for the same purpose of adding waterways to railroad, he may be pardoned for enthusiasm over the prospect now presented before his native town. If the plan is consummated I do not see how any other Eastern Shore town can call itself a competitor. Nothing will be left for Salisbury except to provide the industrial population to develop a great civic potentiality.

Even in the most limited aspect the addition of a large building area to an extension of the now congested central district will be a blessing to Salisbury.

It is to be anticipated that the railroads will be eager to make them selves part of the improvement. Of that I know noting but the presumption is that a railroad will seize the opportunity of increasing at nominal cost to itself its freight and passenger business. The switch-yard territory to be opened would alone excite the imagination of a railroad's operators.

All in all, the project is a brilliant one. It comes at a psychological moment for our city. Personally I have no doubt of its success. That is obvious and inevitable. Whether the present promoters carry it out or fail, whether they make a profit or incur a loss, need not disturb the people. The work itself contains the principle of success and is sure to be a colossal utility to our town.

Respectfully,

Joseph A. Graham.

TO CHANGE OYSTER LAW

Shellfish Commission Has Amendments To Place Before General Assembly.

The Shellfish Commission will continue its fight at the next session of the Legislature for amendments to the oyster culture law. Changes were recommended at the last session, but they were voted down.

These changes provide thirty acres instead of ten, as the maximum for one individual in the tributaries of the bay and five hundred acres, instead of one hundred, as the maximum in the open bay; reduction of the rental to $1 an acre for six years; provisions for forcibly collecting such rentals as may be charged; permission to lessees to take oysters whenever they choose; setting aside of ground for cultivation of plant oysters; reduction of time at which riparian owners have to decide whether they desire to take up the land to which they have first claim.

Although the oyster law has been in operation for several years the good that was expected to come from it has not materialized to the extent that was hoped. In the opinion of the Commission these hopes will materialize more rapidly if the changes recommended are put into effect.

THANKSGIVING RACES

To Be Held On The Fair Grounds Thursday.

Arrangements have been made for a number of races to be held on the Fair Grounds at Salisbury on Thanksgiving day. The first race will be the match race for $100 a side between Richard Prince owned by Sewell H. Richardson, and Doctor Prince owned by Wimbrow Bros. In addition to the $100 the horses will receive 40 per cent of the gate receipts. These horses are both reputed to be fast ones and a close and exciting race is expected. In addition to the match race there will be given a 2.40 pace and trot in which a number of entries will be made.

Mr. Armstrong, the owner of Dry Dock is anxious to have a free for all race arranged and it is hoped that one can be got up, it is understood that several very fast horses are considering coming on that date, and if so an exciting and interesting race will take place.

Dr. Bull's Cough Syrup cannot be excelled at curing cold and cough. Price 25 cents.

Minutes Of Proceedings At Tuesday's Meeting.

The Board met with all the members present. The minutes of the meeting held November 16th follow:— Messrs. W. S. Smoot, Wade and Stanley Bedworth, Frank White and others, as delegates from Westipquin asked the Board to furnish shells to repair the causeway at Westipquin Creek and shell the road as far as the Baptist Church. They agreeing to put the road bed in condition and put the shells on. Board agreed to furnish shells, but did not pledge any definite amount.

Petition was filed by Eugene Moore for appointment as Keeper of White Haven Ferry. It was decided to let the contract by public auction and December the 4th was fixed upon as the date and White Haven the place of sale.

Mr. George W. Brown called the attention of the Commissioners to the condition of the Parker road from Zion Church to the Middle Neck Road. Board agreed to repair the road temporarily and put off general work on it until the spring.

The report of the examiners on the first section of the Parsonsburg road was again taken up for consideration but on account of objections of abutting property owners action was deferred and a part of the improvement may be abandoned on account of these objections.

Mr. Wright asked the Board to open and make public a piece of road about 500 yards long now used for travel, extending from the road leading from Athol to Bewastico, between the Langdale property and James Waller residence, along the property of Edward Bennett. He stated he could get it built for $75. The work was ordered done.

The Commissioners of Pittsville asked the Board to furnish and lay west to the corporate limits 300 feet of 10 tile so certain ditches could be closed and sidewalks made on them. The Board agreed to do this work in lieu of the appropriation made to the town.

The Board agreed to allow the School Board to occupy the room in the Court House heretofore occupied as a sheriff's office, and to tender the incoming sheriff's office in the voting house back of the Court House.

Letter of E. H. Walton, attorney, asking damages for injuries claimed to have been sustained by L. J. White by a defective bridge in Trappe District was referred to Mr. Bailey, attorney of the Board.

Union Thanksgiving Service

All of our churches will unite in one large and popular service. This year the sermon will be preached by the Rev. W. A. Cooper, likely his last sermon in Salisbury.

Union Thanksgiving services will be held this year in the Asbury M. E. Church. It has become a custom among our church people to hold one service on Thanksgiving Day, all of the churches joining. These services are always well attended. The pastors of the various churches preach the sermons on these occasions according to a fixed turn. This year the sermon will be preached by Rev. W. A. Cooper, of the Trinity M. E. Church, South, and an added interest will be given to his sermon, as he has resigned from the pastorate of Trinity and will leave Salisbury for his new field of labor on the afternoon of Thanksgiving Day.

Deputy Sheriff Appointed.

Mr. J. Clayton Kelley who was elected Sheriff of this county at the last election has announced the appointment of his deputy. Mr. Roy E. Smith of Quantico, is the man and is one of the best known men of Quantico District. Mr. Smith will move to Salisbury and occupy family quarters in the Jail.

STUFFED BALLOTS

Way Back In 1655. Politics In Boston In 17th Century Show Corruption.

It is not necessary to give up our pious faith in the superior political morality of our forefathers when we learn that even in the first generation of Bostonians was found a ballot stuffer.

The same record which reveals this brook, records also its instant repudiation and punishment. It was on January 14, 1655, 35 years after the settlement of Boston, according to the quaint records preserved of the King's Chapel, that a referendum was held as to whether a part of the land should be alienated.

The old chronicle runs: "The inhabitants proceeded to bring in their votes, and when the Selectmen were receiving them at the Door of the Hall they observed one of the inhabitants, viz., John Pigeon, to put in about a dozen with the word Yes wrote on all of them, being charged with so doing, he acknowledged it, and was thereupon ordered by the Moderator to pay a fine of Five Pounds for putting in the more than One Vote according to Law, and the inhabitants that they must withdraw and bring in their votes again in manner as before directed, and the inhabitants accordingly withdrew and the votes being brought in and sorted it appeared that there was Four Hundred and two votes and that there was two hundred and five Yess and one hundred and ninety seven Nays."

Proceedings of City Council At Monday's Session.

The City Council was in session on Monday evening and transacted considerable routine business.

Following building permits were granted: to Glen Perdue, dwelling on Parsons Street, to Wm. S. Lewis, barn and stables on Mount Street, to Fulton Milling Company, warehouse on Mill street.

On motion, Friday evening, November 19, was selected as date for the hearing of charges preferred against night Policeman James Crouch, and a special session of the Council will be held for this purpose.

On motion, Surveyor Shockley was directed to make a plat of Main St., from the west end of the bitulithic pavement to the south side of Delaware and Third Streets, preparatory to ordinance condemning and widening of said portion of Main Street Extended.

The City Solicitor was instructed to prepare an ordinance prohibiting roller skating on the streets of Salisbury.

Ex-Congressman Jackson Hurt.

Ex-Congressman W. H. Jackson met with a very painful accident this week. Mr. Jackson was getting into his carriage at his office when the horses started up suddenly, throwing him with considerable force upon the ground. He was carried to his home and Dr. H. C. Tall was called in.

While at first it was feared that the injuries would be serious it is not believed that outside of being very painful and likely to confine him to his home for some time, that any serious results will follow from the accident.

THE MAN HUNT

A Widow's Ideas Of Capturing Big Game.

Woman is tired of the old harp, and way of trying to get men to see the many advantages matrimony has over single blessedness, and is determined to go into the business of catching men in an orderly and systematic manner—at least an article by Dorothy Dix in the Evening Bulletin, of Philadelphia, gives one that impression. The article follows:—

The winter season which is the open season for husband hunting, is now upon us, and it behooves every young woman who wants a home of her own to make ready for the chase. Now, I believe in matrimony, and desire to do all I can to push along a good thing, so I have secured the assistance of a widow who has captured no less than four different men as the prowess of her bow and spear, to give expert advice on the best tactics to pursue in husband hunting.

For obvious reasons she desires to remain anonymous, so I have written down for the benefit of the readers of the "Bulletin" the words of wisdom that fell from her lips when I interviewed her on this important subject. "The trouble with most women," said the widow, "is that when they start out on the love chase they assume that all men are alike, and that the same weapon will bring all of them down. That is as silly a mistake as if one would go bird shooting with a fishing rod, or angling for trout with a Winchester rifle."

"That is error No. 1. "Error No. 2 consists in woman's failure to familiarize herself with the nature and habits of the different species of men, which shows as much lack of judgment as it would to start out to hunt lions on the shores of Chesapeake Bay, or canvas back ducks in the Rocky Mountains."

"Error No. 3 is woman's fond and fatuous belief that the same line of charms appeal to every man, which is as idiotic as to think that you can use the same sort of shot and shell to bring down an elephant or a canary bird."

"The huntman who wishes to bring in a full bag first provides himself with the proper equipment for the chase. Then he devotes much study to the ways of the game he is pursuing and adapts himself to its peculiarities, for he knows that some animals must be patiently stalked, some rushed, and that some birds must be shot from behind a blind, and some shot on the wing."

"Even so must a woman conduct the love chase, for there are men who can only be captured by being stealthily crept upon; others who are so tame that they can be knocked over like a barnyard fowl; others who can be decoyed by a wooden rival into good shooting distance, and still others who will come to any good feeding place that is properly baited, where they can be easily caught as they gorge themselves."

"Generally speaking, all men come under one or the other of these classifications: "The shy man. "The spoiled man. "The vain man. "The selfish man. "The domestic man. "Let us consider each of these in turn."

"The shy man is one of the most attractive animals that roam the matrimonial forest, and he is well worth capturing for many reasons. In the first place, because he is nearly always good and tender; and, in the second place, because he is of a timid nature and so much afraid of women that he very seldom roams away from home after he has once been caught and do mesticated."

"In fact there can be no lovelier household pet than a shy husband, and it is well worth any woman's time and attention to try to catch one. "In starting out upon the pursuit of the Shy Man, however, the fair huntress should bear one thing in mind, and that is, she will scare him off if she attempts to hunt in couples. She must go alone, and creep upon him so gently that he does not perceive her approach. The best way to do this is to establish a friendship with his sisters, or some female relative, and thus, by dint of appearing naturally and innocently on his horizon, accustom him to the sight of her, without frightening him."

"He very careful to show no eagerness, as a false move will startle him and put him to flight. Let the huntress woman bide her time. "Let her become almost like a sister, with the difference that, while his sisters snub him, she praises him. She exalts him. She alone makes him feel that he is a devil of a fellow, instead of being a gawky nonentity in society."

"In this way, without his knowing it, she will have him out of the herd, and, without his knowing it, he will be her meat. "For the final capture, it is generally necessary to lay some shallow trap, such as for the huntress to pretend that she is going to some distant land to shoot big game, or to engage in the wholesale butcher business in Chicago. Tears are also a good bait, but almost any old thing will do, as the Shy Man is extremely susceptible where women are concerned and never fails to blunder into the pit that has been dug for him."

"Once he is in, the huntress will have to help him out, because he would choke to death on his Adam's apple if he were left to proceed unaided. So, after the first preliminary flounder at love-making, a compassionate huntress should give him her hand. This will all him with such gratitude that he will follow her like a dog the balance of his life."

"The best weapon to use in chasing down the Shy Man are a pair of gummed shoes, a thirty-two-calibre snipe and a long range pat shoe. Always use smokeless powder that does not rob off when you pillow your head on a black coat."

"So said the Widow. Hives, eczema, itch or salt rheumatism sets you crazy. Can't bear the touch of your clothing. Doan's Ointment cures the most obstinate cases. Why suffer. All druggists sell it.

Don't use harsh physics. The reaction weakens the bowels, leads to chronic constipation. Get Doan's Rheglets. They operate easily, tone the stomach, cure constipation.

THINK IT OVER. WHO IS TO BLAME?

By Rev. F. A. Campbell.

Suppose I had before me a number of saloonkeepers, their wives and children; suppose I call one of their boys to me, and after passing my hands a few times over his head, I could make just such a change in his physical and moral nature in five minutes, as a saloon will make in five months or five years; suppose I pass my hand over his head and blunt his intellect, destroy his health; plant disease within him, cloud his judgment, sear his conscience, paralyze his will, obdurate his heart, take away his self-control, love of home, love of industry and property, and all the good opinion of manhood; suppose I could thus stand, and in five or ten minutes destroy the health of this boy, inflame his eyes, pickle his brain, tan his stomach, and poison his blood, and kindle the fires of the second death on the lips and cheeks that is now bright and fair, and should thus present him to my audience of saloon-keepers a raving maniac while screaming wives and mothers fainted.

These men would leap upon me and tear my body limb from limb. And they would be doing right; and yet, this is the infamous work the saloon-keepers are doing to 60,000 fathers and sons every year, under the august protection of the law. And when men protest against it they are called fanatics. This every Christian man will admit, that the saloon-keepers are doing to destroy souls than the churches are doing to save men.

Who is to blame? Is it only the men who are elected to office that have the power to enact a license law? I say not. If I vote for a man knowing that he will help enact a law that will give a man the authority, but will protect him in committing the awful crime of robbing my neighbor of his happy home, taking from him the comforts of life, sending his wife and mother to an untimely grave, murdering the father of that home with the curse of rum, sending his soul to a drunkard's fate; I appeal to the judgment of every Christian man especially, and ask, if I vote for the men who I know would give the man authority and make it a legal business to commit this great crime, am I not a partaker of the crime?

I pierce the veil that hides the invisible with my eye of faith, and I see three men standing at the Judgment throne. One is a poor drunkard, another is a saloon-keeper, and the other a Christian. I hear the Judge say to the poor drunkard, "Why are you here in this awful condition?" "It was rum that brought me here in this condition."

"Where did you get your rum?"

"This man sold it to me."

"Why did you sell this man that accursed stuff and rob him of his eternal happiness?"

"This Christian man who said he loved God, and was led by the Spirit of God, said it was right, and I would give him so much money for a license the law would protect me and uphold me."

And the Judge answered: "Woe unto those who justify the wicked for reward."

An Indian Judge on Drink.

The following expression of opinion, recently given by the Sessions Judge of Umballa, India, who has to deal with the effects of an unwise excise license policy, is worthy of consideration. Speaking from the bench, he said:

"The abuse of intoxicating liquor and the facility with which strong drink is obtained under the new excise rules are, I am afraid, largely responsible for this lamentable increase in violent crime. In nearly all the recent cases in which capital sentence has been passed, drink was at the bottom of the crime. In the interests of orderly administration, some restriction should, I think, be placed on the supply of spirituous liquors. Murder is a worse crime than illicit distillation."

License produces the same trouble everywhere, but some license advocates seem more shocked at some illicit liquor selling under prohibition, than at the request murder under license, caused by the open saloon.

Due to Drink.

Of the 33,000 men passed into Wadsworth (England) workhouse since 1886 by Dr. A. E. Dodson, there were only fifteen total abstainers. Of the fifteen at least seven were mentally or physically unfit to maintain themselves. This makes the proportion of needy (able-bodied) abstainers practically 33,000 to eight, and affords new evidence for the old contention, "But for drink the workhouse might be closed."

A German Doctor's Views.

In order to secure for the people better, cheaper food, the use of beer must be energetically fought against. Through the brewing of beer, nutritive substances are spoiled and living made expensive.—Dr. N. Blocher of Germany.

A New Cure.

A doctor whose practice lies mostly in the country districts was recently called to attend a playman's boy, whom he found to be suffering from whooping cough. Among his instructions he told the mother to "put some ice in a bag and tie it around the boy's head." Next day he called again and was met at the door by the girl-wife, who, in answer to his query, replied, "Aye, Jackie's a heap better the day, but the mice are a' dead."—Dunbar Weekly News.

Women as Well as Men are Made Miserable by Kidney and Bladder Trouble.

Kidney trouble preys upon the mind, discourages and lessens ambition; beauty, vigor and cheerfulness soon disappear when the kidneys are out of order or diseased. Kidney trouble has become so prevalent that it is not unusual for a child to be born afflicted with weak kidneys. If the child urinates too often, if the urine scalds the flesh, or if, when the child reaches an age when it should be able to control the passage, it is yet afflicted with bed-wetting, depend upon it, the cause of the difficulty is kidney trouble, and the first step should be towards the treatment of these important organs. This unpleasant trouble is due to a diseased condition of the kidneys and bladder and not to a habit as most people suppose.

Gori, Russia.—A daring plan to rob the treasury of Gori, in which $1,000,000 are kept, has been discovered. The scheme of the criminals, five men and a woman, was to dig a tunnel into the building from outside. They had progressed a distance of 350 feet and had reached a point directly below the cellar when a bookkeeper heard sounds of excavating and summoned the police to investigate, with the result that all six were captured.

MARYLAND REPUBLICANS UNEASY.

That there is much uneasiness in Republican top ranks, and being felt through the body of the party over the outcome of Maryland's next Legislative Assembly is easily seen.

There is a very keen opposition and avowed hostility to the proposition that Democrats are fathering of legalizing the Crawford County plan of direct nominations and passing a law mandatory on both parties to hold their primaries throughout the State under the plan, with all the safeguards of a general election surrounding them.

This, we believe would more surely disgust the white Republican with the negro vote than any argument or political logic that has ever been submitted.

In many counties where the negro vote exceeds that of the white Republicans the fear and the reality of negro domination would then be apparent in the Republicans own party to their rankest negro domination scot-fers, as demonstrated by their primaries when the negro majority could place negroes on the Republican primary ballot and elect negroes to the Republican ticket.

CAN A CHILD EVER REPAY THE DEBT IT
OWS ITS MOTHER.

Many a mother literally gives her life for her child. In health, watching over it day by day and hour by hour, in sickness never leaving its bedside, watching every breath it draws, the child is every moment under the protecting wing of mother-love. This is a pathetic little story that comes from West Virginia. Mrs.
Grace Smith, of Beverly, had been watching for weary hours at the bedside of her sick child. She was poor, and must not only care for the little one, but earn enough for support.
She remained up all night with the child, and without closing her eyes went to work at dawn and spent all the morning laboring at the wash tub.
Then she went out in the heat of the day to pick blackberries and walked several miles to town. When she reached the store she fell to the floor, exhausted, and died before she could be restored to consciousness. The doctors said she had literally worked herself to death.

How many mothers there are who have given their youth and beauty and good looks and health and strength —have spent it all for their children?
And then when the lines of care mark their faces with wrinkles and their hair is streaked with gray, how many are rewarded by the devotion and care of those for whom they have done so much? Not as many as there should be. "But mother is so old," you hear a fresh young girl say, "who would care for me for music or flowers or drives or sails down the bay." And she reaches off, never giving her another thought. Children take, as a matter of course, the constant devotion of their parents, and are often impatient that they cannot give them more.
Many a mother has toiled and striven for long years to rear her daughter into a charming attractive woman, only to find that the girl does not appreciate and can hardly conceive the sacrifices made for her. Perhaps the little girl for whom the patient woman worked herself to death might grow up to be ashamed of the fact that her mother ever worked at a wash tub, or picked blackberries to support her little flock.
The wrinkled face of a mother is illumined by a love and refined by a sacrifice that makes it more beautiful than the glowing cheek of the vain young woman, who races through the world with no thoughts except of self and no care except for her own beauty and her own pleasure. Parents do not mind making these sacrifices. They are made every day in a million homes, and the devotion of parents to their children is perhaps the best proof that human nature, in spite of its many faults and shortcomings, is, as a whole, wholesome and good. But the parents do have a right to expect from their children some appreciation, and the least that the girls and boys can give, is devotion and consideration and the love that means more to father and mother than all else. "How charming that a woman's sooth is an invaluable child!"—Baltimore Sun.

Governor And Other State Officials Favor Reform.

The announcement that Mr. T. Leigh Marriott, who was re-elected a member of the House of Delegates, would introduce in the next Legislature a bill providing for a constitutional amendment to do away with the engrossing of bills and have them printed recalled to Governor Crothers and other State officials that a similar recommendation is in the report of the Governor's commission on legislative expenses and procedure, which was received by him last January.

State Senator J. Frank Harper, of Queen Anne's county, who was chairman of the commission, will, it is believed, lead the fight for the adoption of a general plan for the reduction of expenses in the Legislature. If the plan is carried out, it is estimated that the State would save about $80,000.

Nearly every person who has ever served in the Legislature, or had dealings with it has protested against the present engrossing system. From present indication there will not be much opposition to its discontinuance.

In past years many men have been employed both on the House and Senate sides for engrossing bills. Some of them have been capable, while others have not, and on many occasions bills have been held for weeks in the engrossing rooms before being returned.

Presbyterian Church At Ocean City--Pastor.

Rev. J. L. Rushbridge who was recently called to the pastorate of the Presbyterian Church, Ocean City, was installed on Friday evening of this week. Rev. William H. Bancroft of Berlin presided at the services in place of Rev. Alexander Allison of Wilmington, who is the Moderator of the Presbytery of New Castle and propounded the Constitutional questions to both the pastor-elect and the congregation. Mr. Bancroft preached the installation sermon. Rev. W. T.
M. Beale of this city delivered the charge to the people and Rev. P. S.
Armstrong of Greenville, Del., delivered the charge to the pastor.
This Presbyterian Church in Ocean
City was organized in May, 1909, with a membership of 48. Its prospects for growth are very bright as it is the only church organization in the town which has at this time a permanent pastor in charge all the year.
An agreement has been entered into between the Conference of Wilmington and the Presbytery of New Castle to the effect that no work will be undertaken by the former body until such a time as the population of Ocean City will warrant it. This agreement on the part of these two great church organizations redounds to the credit of each of them. The church property is valued at $5,000 and is entirely free of debt. Rev. Mr. Rush-bridge has had pastorates in Buffalo, N. Y., and Philadelphia. He comes from New Gretna, N. J., to Ocean City.

Big Drive of Steers.

Hon. Wm. H. Jackson received a big drive of steers Tuesday last from Chicago, which will be sold for market next spring. There were 375 young steers in the bunch. They were distributed on two farms 250 of them being sent to the "Rider" farm and 125 to the "Trader" farm. At his Rockwalking farm Mr. Jackson has the largest and finest steer barn in this State. It was built with special care for stock feeding. Every stable has running water and the entire building has concrete floor, with plenty of light and arranged so as to facilitate work in caring for the cattle. This is the largest consignment of young steers ever received here for feeding purposes.

Temperance Worker Says Drunken Mothers
Killed 200,000 Babies in 1908

Miss Maria O. Braham, of Chicago, who has been interested in temperance work in York, Pa., made some strange statements while she was speaking at the Presbyterian church.

She said 580,000 boys in the United States had become addicted to alcoholism during 1908. In the same time 200,000 babies in the United States were smothered to death by drunken mothers; 4788 wives were murdered by drunken husbands; 7000 murders were committed by persons under the influence of liquor; of 11,000 suicides 6000 were caused by alcoholism; 1, 000,000 deaths were brought about by drunken cab drivers and chauffeurs; 40,000 wives and mothers were made widows; 85,000 persons were made insane through intoxicating liquors, and 100,000 men, women and youths went to prison during 1908 as the result of alcoholism.

Better Not Get Dyspepsia

If you can help it. Kodol prevents Dyspepsia, by effectually helping Nature to Relieve Indigestion. But don't trifle with Indigestion.

A great many people who have suffered with indigestion, have been cured by Kodol. It is a natural and chronic dyspepsia, resulting, and they have not been able to cure it. Use Kodol and prevent having Dyspepsia.

Everyone is subject to indigestion. Stomach derangement follows stomach abuse, just as naturally as a cold follows a cold. It is a sound and healthy stomach results upon the taking of Kodol.

When you experience sourness of stomach, belching of gas and burning acid, bloated sensation, gnawing pain in the pit of the stomach, heart burn (so-called), diarrhoea, headaches, dullness or chronic tired feeling—you need Kodol. And then the quicker you take Kodol—the better. Eat what you want, let Kodol digest it. Ordinary peptic "dyspepsia" tablets, "physic" etc., are not likely to be of much benefit to you, in digestive ailments. Peppin is only a partial digester—and physics are not digesters at all. Kodol is a perfect digester. If you could see Kodol digesting every particle of food, of all kinds, in the glass test-tubes in our laboratories, you would know this just as well as we do. Nature and Kodol will always cure a sick stomach—but in order to be cured, the stomach must rest. That is what Kodol does—rests the stomach, while the stomach gets well. Just as simple as A, B, C.

Our Guarantee

Go to your druggist today and get a dollar bottle. Then after you have used the entire contents of the bottle if you are not cured, we will refund your money without question of delay. We will also pay the freight for the bottle. Don't hesitate, and druggists know that our guarantee is good. Kodol is sold in all drug stores, and to be sure in a family. The large bottle contains 24 times as much as the fifty cent bottle. Kodol is prepared at the laboratories of E. C. DeWitt & Co., Chicago.

CHAPTER XIV.

TWO CALLS FROM THE ENEMY.

DEPPINGHAM was up and about quite early the next morning—that is, quite early for him. He had his rifle and coffee and strolled out in the shady park for a smoke. The princess, whose sense of humor had not been lessened by the stilted sleep of the night before, was walking in the shade of the trees on the lower terrace, beyond the fountain and the artificial lake.

"I was thinking of you," she said in greeting as he came up.

"How nice you are," he said. "But, my dear, it is wise in you to be thinking of your handsome devil? It's a most dangerous habit—thinking of other men."

"But, Deppy, dear, the prince isn't here," she said, falling into his humor. "That makes quite a difference, doesn't it?"

"Your logic is splendid. Pray resume your thoughts of me—if they were pleasant and agreeable. I'll not blow on you to Karl. By the way, I have a compliment for you. Brodney says your hair is more beautiful than Pong's. That's quite a compliment. Tithan never even dreamed of hair like Pong's."

"You know, Deppy," she said, with a pout, "I am very unhappy about my hair. It is quite red. I don't see why I should have hair like that of a red cocker. It seems so animalish."

"Rubbish! Why should you complain? Look at my hair. It's been likened more than once to that of a Jersey cow."

"Oh, how I adore Jersey cows! Now, I wouldn't mind that a bit."

They were looking toward the lower gates while carrying on this frivolous conversation. A man had just entered and was coming toward them. Both recognized the tall figure in gray flannels.

"I trust I am not intruding," Chase said as he came up. His gaze was as much for Deppingham as for the princess, his remark quite impersonal.

"Not at all, not at all," said Deppingham quickly, his heart leaping to the conclusion that the way to the American bar was likely to be opened at last. "Charming to have you here, Mr. Chase. You've been most unneighborly. Have you been presented to her highness, the Oh, to be sure. Of course you have. Stupid of me."

"We met ages ago," she said, with an ingenuous smile, which would have disarmed Chase if he had been prepared for anything else. As a matter of fact, he had approached her in the light of an adventurer who expects nothing and grasps at straws.

"In the dark ages," said he so ruefully that her smile grew. He had come, in truth, to ascertain why her husband had not come with her.

"But not the forgotten variety, I fancy," said Deppingham shrewdly. It would be impossible for the princess to forget the greatest of all fools," said Chase.

"He was no worse than other mortals," said she.

"Thank you," said Chase. Then he turned to Lord Deppingham. "My visit requires some explanation, Lord Deppingham. You have said that I am unneighborly. No doubt, you appreciate my reasons. One has to respect appearances," with a dry smile.

"When one is in doubt he must do as the Moslems do, especially if the Moslems don't want him to do as he wants to do."

"No doubt you're right, but it sounds a bit involved," murmured Deppingham. "Lady Deppingham will be delighted to see you. Are you ready to come in, princess?"

They started toward the chateau, keeping well in the shade of the boxed trees, the princess between the two men.

"I say, Chase, do you mind relieving my fears a bit? With all due respect to your estimable clients, it occurs to me that they are likely to break over the traces at any moment and raise the very old Harry at somebody else's expense. I'd like to know if my head is really safe."

"I came to see you in regard to that very thing, Lord Deppingham. I don't want to alarm you, but I do not like the appearance of things. They don't trust me and they hate you—quite naturally. I'm rather sorry that our British man-of-war is out of reach. Pray don't be alarmed, princess. It is most improbable that anything evil will happen. And, in any event, we can hold out against them until relief comes."

"We?" demanded Deppingham.

"Certainly. If it comes to an assault of any kind upon the chateau I trust that I may be considered as one of you. I won't serve assassins and bandits—at least not after they've got beyond my control. Besides, if the worst should come they won't discriminate in my favor."

"Why do you stay here, Mr. Chase?" asked the princess. "You admit that they do not like you or trust you. Why do you stay?"

"I came out here to escape certain consequences," said he candidly. "I'll stay to enjoy the uncertainty ones. I am not in the least alarmed on my own account. The object of my visit, Lord Deppingham, is to ask you to be on your guard up here. After the next steamer arrives and they learn that Sir John will not withdraw me in submission to Ransin's demand, with the additional news that your solicitors have fled injunctions and have begun a bitter contest that may tie up the estate for years—then, I say, we may have trouble. It is best that you should know what to expect. I am not a traitor to my cause in telling you this. It is no more than I would expect from you were the conditions reversed."

"It's mighty decent in you, Chase, to put us on our guard. Would you mind talking it over with Browne and me after luncheon? You'll stay to lunch, of course?"

In the wide east gallery they saw Lady Deppingham and Bobby Browne deeply engrossed in conversation. Deppingham started and involuntarily allowed his hand to go to his temple as if to check the thought that flitted through his brain.

"Good Lord," he said to himself, "is it possible that they are considering that 'Saunders' proposition? Surely they can't be thinking of that!"

As he led the way across the green Browne's voice came to them distinctly. He was saying earnestly:

expect from you were the conditions reversed."

"It's mighty decent in you, Chase, to put us on our guard. Would you mind talking it over with Browne and me after luncheon? You'll stay to lunch, of course?"

In the wide east gallery they saw Lady Deppingham and Bobby Browne deeply engrossed in conversation. Deppingham started and involuntarily allowed his hand to go to his temple as if to check the thought that flitted through his brain.

"Good Lord," he said to himself, "is it possible that they are considering that 'Saunders' proposition? Surely they can't be thinking of that!"

As he led the way across the green Browne's voice came to them distinctly. He was saying earnestly:

"The mere fact that we have come out to this blessed isle is a point in favor of the islanders. Chase won't overlook it, and you may be sure Sir John Brodney is making the most of it. Our coming is a guarantee that we consider the will valid. It is an admission that we regard it as sound. If not, why should we recognize its provisions, even in the slightest detail? Britt is looking for hallucinations and all!"

"She" came in a loud hiss from somewhere near at hand, and the two in the gallery looked down with startled eyes upon the distressed face of Lord Deppingham. They started to their feet at once, astonishment and wonder in their faces. They could scarcely believe their eyes. The enemy!

He was standing broadly as he lifted his helmet, smiling in spite of the discomfort that showed so plainly in Deppingham's manner.

Chase was warmly welcomed by the two helms. Lady Agnes was especially cordial. Her eyes gleamed joyously as she lifted them to meet his admiring gaze. She was amazingly pretty. The conviction that Chase had mistaken her for Lady Agnes the evening before took a fresh grasp upon the mind of the Princess Geneva. A shameless wave of relief surged through her heart.

Chase was presented to Drusilla Browne, who appeared suddenly upon the scene, coming from no one knew where. There was a certain strained look in the Boston woman's face and a suspicious redness near the bridge of her little nose.

"It's very good of you," said the enemy after all of them had joined in the invitation. "Why is it that I am more fortunate than your own attorney, after all, no better than they. Would you mind telling me why I am honored by an invitation to sit at the table with you?"

The touch of easy sarcasm was softened by the frank smile that went with Deppingham felt his duty to explain.

"It's—it's—er—oh, yes, it's because you're a diplomat," he finally remarked in triumph. "It was a grand recovery, thought he. 'Saunders is an ass, and Britt would be one if Browne could only admit it, as I do. Rubbish! Don't let that trouble you. Eh, Browne?'"

"Besides," said Bobby Browne breezily, "I haven't heard of your clients inviting you to lunch, Mr. Chase. The cases are parallel."

"I'm not so sure about his clients' wives," said Deppingham, with a vast haw-haw! Chase looked extremely uncomfortable.

"I am told that some of them are very beautiful," said Geneva sedately. "Other men's wives always are, I've discovered," said Chase gallantly.

The party had moved over to the great stone steps which led down into the gardens. Chase was standing beside Lady Deppingham, and both of them were looking toward his distant but now.

"That is my home, princess. It is the first time I have seen it from your point of view, Lady Deppingham. I must say that it doesn't seem as far from the chateau to the bungalow as it does from the bungalow to the chateau. There have been times when the chateau seemed to be thousands of miles away."

"When in reality it was at your very feet," she said, with a bright look into his eyes. For some unaccountable reason Geneva resented that look and speech.

"That really where you live?" she asked, so innocently that Chase had difficulty in controlling his expression.

At that instant something struck sharply against the stone column above Chase's head. At least three persons saw the little puff of smoke in the hills far to the right. Every one heard the distant crack of a rifle. The bullet had dropped at Chase's feet before the sound of the report came floating to their ears. No one spoke as he stopped and picked up the weapon, deadly missile. Turning it over in his fingers, he said coolly, although his cheek had gone white:

"With Von Blitz's compliments, ladies and gentlemen. He is calling on me by proxy."

"Good God, Chase," cried Browne. "they're trying to murder us! Get back, every one! Inside the doors!"

"I'm sorry to bring my troubles to your door," said Chase. "It was meant for me, not for any of you. The man who fired that did not intend to kill me. He was merely giving voice to his pain and regret at seeing me in such bad company." He was smiling calmly and did not take a single step to follow them to safety.

"Come in, Chase! Don't stand out there to be shot at."

"I'll stay here for a few minutes, Mr. Browne, if you don't mind, just to convince you all that the shot was not intended to kill me yet. I'm sure Lord Deppingham will understand. He has been shot at often enough since he came to the island."

He lighted a cigarette and coolly leaned against the column, his gaze bent on the spot where the smoke had been seen. The others were grouped inside the doors, where they could see without being seen. A certain sense of horror possessed all of the watchers.

"For heaven's sake, why does he stand there?" cried the princess at last. "Can he endure it no longer. It may be as he says it is, but it is foolhardy to stand there and taunt the pride of that marksmanship. I can't stay here and wait for it to come. How can?"

"It's been there for ten minutes, princess," said Browne—plenty of time for another try."

Before they were aware of her intention the princess left the shelter and boldly walked across the open space to the side of the man. He started and opened his lips to give vent to a sharp command.

"It is so easy to be a hero, Mr. Chase, when one is quite sure there is no real danger," she said, with distinct irony in her tones. "One can afford to be melodramatic if he knows his part so well as you know yours."

Chase felt his face burn. It was a direct declaration that he had planned the whole affair in advance. He flicked the ashes from his cigarette and then tossed it away, hesitating long before replying.

"Nevertheless I have the greatest respect for the courage which brings you to my side. I dare say you are quite justified in your opinion of me. It all must seem very theatrical to you, I had not thought of it in that light. I shall now retire from the center of the stage. It will be perfectly safe for you to remain here—just as it was for me."

He was leaving her without another word or look. She repeated:

"I am sorry for what I said," she said eagerly. "And"—she looked up at the hills with a sudden widening of her eyes—"I think I shall not remain."

Chase made light of the occurrence, but sought to impress upon the others the fact that it was prophetic of more serious events in the future. In a perfectly cold blooded manner he told them that the islanders might rise against them at any time.

"The people are angry, and they will become desperate. The interests are mine, of course. I am perfectly sincere in saying to you, Lady Deppingham, and to you, Mr. Browne, that in time they will win out against you in the courts. But they are impatient. They are not the kind who can wait and be content. It is impossible for you to carry out the provisions of the will, and they know it. That is why they resent the delays that are impending."

Deppingham told him of the scheme proposed by Saunders, treating it as a vast joke. Chase showed a momentary sign of uneasiness, but covered it instantly by laughing with the others. Strange to say, he had been instructed from London to look out for just such a coup on the part of the heirs—not that the marriage could be legally established, but that it might create a complication worth avoiding.

He could not help looking from Lady Deppingham to Bobby Browne, a calculating gleam in his gray eyes. How very dangerous she could be! He was quite ready to feel very sorry for pretty Mrs. Browne. He sat opposite to the princess. His eyes were refreshing themselves after months of fatigue; his blood was coursing through new veins. And yet his head was calling his heart a fool.

FAIR EXCHANGE.
A New Back For An Old One. How It Is Done in Salisbury.

The back aches at times with a dull indescribable feeling, making you weary and restless; piercing pains shoot across the region of the kidneys, and again the loins are so lame to stoop is agony. No use to rub or apply a plaster to the back in this condition. You cannot reach the cause. Exchange the bad back for a new and stronger one. Follow the example of this Salisbury citizen.

Mrs. John G. Meison, E. Brown Street, Salisbury, Md., says: "Doan's Kidney Pills have helped me more than any other medicine I have ever taken. I do not have the least hesitation in endorsing them. I was subject to attacks of kidney complaint for a long time and whenever I caught cold my back became very weak. If I did much stooping my back also grew lame and painful, especially across my loins. Seeing Doan's Kidney Pills highly endorsed by people who had used them, I procured a supply at White and Leonard's drug store. Since taking this remedy I have felt much better in every way. In fact I have had no further trouble from my kidneys and back."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, New York, sole agents for the United States. Remember the name.—Doan's and take no other.

It contains none of the injurious drugs which are required by the law to be mentioned on the label. Hence you can use it safely.

MANY THINK CEYLON
Was Home Of Adam. Millions Of Orientals Believe That Island Was Garden Of Eden.

Millions and millions of the devout Christians of the Orient and all the followers of the Prophet Mohammed believe that the Island of Ceylon is the Garden of Eden, in which the human race first came to consciousness, says the Springfield Union. Connecting Ceylon with India and the mainland of Asia is a low lying chain of islands and sand banks known as Adam's Bridge. In the Southern part of the island is a beautiful mountain which has been known for centuries as Adam's Peak. A railroad built like the Florida Keys road to Key West will soon run across Adam's Bridge to connect Eden with Asia, and the angels with the flaming swords who stand guard at the gate will be made to do signal tour service for a Government railway. The high slopes of the Adam's Peak are devoted to growing tea for the afternoon delectation of some daughter of Eve, who has long ago forgotten the garden, the serpent and the exile.

Despite all these modern improvements and developments Ceylon is still a Garden of Eden, although it is much confused as to who is the master of the garden. Near the top of Adam's Peak there is a depression in the stone which resembles a footprint—the track left by a giant in the form of a man. Good Moslems and the vast majority of Oriental Christians firmly believe that it is the footprint of Father Adam when he turned to leave the Paradise. Good Buddhists believe that it is the imprint of the bare foot of Gautama Buddha, who brought the enlightenment of his wisdom to Ceylon. Devout Hindus believe that the footprint is that of one of the thousand and eight manifestations of the second person in the Brahminic trinity. So pilgrims of every religion make their way to Adam's Peak to pray for the salvation of mankind at the spot where many of them believe the first sin came into the world. Twenty-five years ago Buddhism was unorthodox in Ceylon. Hardly a monk could be found; the temples were given over to the prostitution of the Hindus and their disgusting worship. Everybody recognized that Buddhism was dying out in Ceylon just as it had already died in India. Colonel Olcott resolved to reform Buddhism. Enough of his Christian training and Occidental heritage remained with him to convince him that "faith, if it have not works, is dead." He established a Buddhist college, in which boys and young men were to be instructed in the ordinary branches of learning and in the pure precepts of their fathers' ancient faith. Soon after came Mrs. Maria Higginbotham, also an American, who established a similar college for girls. The yellow-robed monks rubbed their eyes in wonder, and their toes, caught some of the inspiration of the Western blood in an Eastern religion. In this same Garden of Eden the American laborers in the Christian vineyard are also hard at work. The American mission in the north of the island is taking outcasts boys and girls, educating them, giving them English names and setting them out on the road to prosperity. In Colombo there is an old Dutch Presbyterian Church, the congregation dating from 1643. The present church building was erected in 1749 and is the largest and handsomest building in the city. It contains the tombs of the Dutch Governors, Generals and Admirals—a mighty host. Its people are all "burghers," descendants of the old Dutch colonists. Whether the footprint on the Peak is that of Adam or Buddha or Vishnu only the pilgrims care. But there is no doubt that today American influence is the most potent in the confused religions of this island.

Paul a Prisoner—The Plot
Sunday School Lesson for Oct. 10, 1909
Specially Arranged for This Paper

LESSON TEXT.—Acts 23:30; 23:35. Memory verse 1.
GOLDEN TEXT.—"I will say of the Lord, he is my refuge and my fortress; my God; in him will I trust."—Ps. 91:2.

TIME.—May, A. D. 67 or 68. PLACE.—Castrum Antonia in Jerusalem. The way between Jerusalem and Caesarea. A prison in Caesarea.

Suggestion and Practical Thought. Storm clouds and their silver lining. The darkness deepens. Oh, abide with me.

I. Darkness and Storm from the Jewish Rulers. Acts 23:30—23:35. Paul Cited Before the Roman Authorities and the Jewish Sanhedrim. The next morning after our last lesson the puzzled commandant summoned the Jewish rulers to meet him. Paul's defense. Paul did not at this time use his accustomed tact and courtesy. But, with one unobscured exception, for which he apologized like a Christian gentleman, he did not utter a discourteous word.

He spoke as a man to his equals. Charged with crimes, he denied them in toto. This was no time for confessing any failures of reaching absolute perfection before God, as in his letters to the Ephesians (Eph. 3:8) and to the Corinthians (1 Cor. 15:9). All that would have been entirely misunderstood. Paul had no meek humility, no Uriah Heep humbleness. He stated the simple fact. (V. 1) "Barrenly beholding," "looking steadfastly on," "the council," as if he would look into their inmost souls, he declared, "I have lived," Greek, "lived as a citizen," obeying the laws of the empire, and fulfilling his duties as a Roman citizen. He was a faithful covenant member of the commonwealth of God to which the other Jews, including the members of the Sanhedrim, belonged. "He lived as a true and loyal Jew." His record was his defense. And this in all good conscience before God. "However men may misjudge him, by their false standards or in ignorance of the facts, he is right in the sight of God, and acquitted in a higher tribunal than that of the Sanhedrim or of Caesar."

2. The Silver Lining to the Clouds.—Vs. 6-11. The First Rays. To Divide and Conquer came to Paul while he was explaining his teachings and his work in words of which the record is the barest epitome. He perceived a difference of opinion among the rulers. The two leading parties were almost as much opposed to one another as they were to the Christians.

The Result was that the council came to no decision as to the charge against Paul.

The Second Ray of Light came from Christ Himself. 2. During "the night following the Lord," the glorious Jesus, "stood by" Paul as he had at Corinth (Acts 18:9, 10), and as he did again two years later in the storm at sea (Acts 27:24), showing that he was his ever-present helper, as the electric flash reveals the continual presence of the unseen electric power.

3. Another Storm Cloud.—An Inaugural Plot to Kill Paul.—Vs. 12-15. 12. "Certain of the Jews (more than 40 (v. 13), . . . bound themselves under a curse." They invoked the curse of God upon them if they should "eat or drink until they had killed Paul."

The Plan was to ask Lydas to bring Paul down from the barracks in the castle of the Sanhedrim hall, under pretense of examining him further. A small guard would seem sufficient. They would excite a tumult, murder Paul and represent the murder as a mere accidental incident.

4. The Silver Lining. The Plot Made Known. The Result Was That Paul Was Sent Safely on His Way Toward Rome.—Vs. 16-19. Paul's Nephew. "The narrative gives the impression that he was quite a young man." It is uncertain how he came to be in Jerusalem, or how he discovered the plot.

The youth told Paul what he had learned. Paul asked a centurion to take the youth to commander Lydas, who immediately laid his plans to foil the plot.

Commander Lydas was more in sympathy with Paul than with the turbulent Jews who gave so much trouble to the Roman authorities. He assembled a guard of 300 infantry, the ordinary Roman soldiers, 200 spearmen, a special class of light-armed soldiers, and a band of 70 cavalrymen. They started secretly at about 6 o'clock in the evening, "the third hour of the night" (v. 23), for Caesarea, the Roman capital of Judea, the seaport from which Paul embarked for Rome two years later. They carried a letter from Claudius Lydas to Felix the governor. The whole cavalcade went a little more than half the whole distance, when they came to Antipatris, a fortress and pleasant place of residence built by Herod the Great in the plain of Sharon. The foot soldiers went no farther, but returned the next day to Jerusalem.

The great desire of Paul's heart was assured. Death, nor prison, nor Jews, nor Romans could prevent. His work was so approved of God that he promised him a larger and more difficult field. "So must thou bear witness also at Rome." His wish (Acts 19:21; Rom. 1:10, 11) was to be gratified in a way of which he had no thought.

Does Not Stimulate
Ayer's Sarsaparilla does not stimulate. It does not make you feel better one day, then as bad as ever the next. It is not a strong drink. No reaction after you stop using it. There is not a drop of alcohol in it. You have the steady, even gain that comes from a strong tonic and alternative. We wish you would ask your doctor about this. He knows. Trust him. Do as he says. J. C. Ayer & Co., Lowell, Mass.

What are Ayer's Pills? Liver Pills. How long have they been sold? Nearly sixty years. Do doctors recommend them? Ask your own doctor and find out.

LIVING ON TEN CENTS

A Day—Several Times Millionaire Does't Spend Much.

Ten cents a day is what living costs Valentine Christ, who owns more land in Oayshaga county, Ohio, than any other man. As Cleveland is in Oayshaga county, and in fact taken up the greater part of it, the value of Christ's land holdings is reputed to represent several million dollars. In spite of his wealth, however he lives as meanly as the poorest beggar.

Only on Sundays does this eccentric old man vary from his ten cent fare. The first day of the week sees 20 cents expended for meals.

This is his daily bill of fare.

Breakfast—Two slices of toast and a cup of tea without sugar or milk.

Dinner—Two slices of bread and butter and a cup of coffee without sugar or milk.

Supper—One piece of toast and a cup of tea without sugar or milk.

Only when he visits his friends, relatives or a free lunch stand does he eat anything else.

Christ's home is a tiny house on Bond street, in which he lives rent free, since it is owned by his sister. He does not rent it. He cooks his own meals, and it is said does his own laundry work. That is a trivial matter however since he does not wear white linen.

Valentine Christ is nearly 70 years old. He came from Germany when he was 14, along with his parents and three other children. The father bought railroad tickets to Indiana for the family. When he reached Cleveland it turned out he had been misled, the tickets were worthless. Accordingly the family settled there. The father obtained employment as a tailor. In six months he died, leaving the family of which Valentine was the eldest with $5. Young Valentine went to work for his father's "boss." He got $3 a week. Within a year however he was making $20 a week. He saved his money until he had several hundred dollars. One day he passed a sheriff's auction, in front of the old courthouse, became interested and bought a lot. From that day his fortune has grown by leaps and bounds.

TO FORBID FOOTBALL

Bill To Be Introduced At The Next Session Of Legislature.

In Virginia the General Assembly of Virginia will be asked at its next session to enact a statute forbidding the playing of football in this State. The death ten years ago of George Baben, from injuries while playing with Georgetown, the death Sunday of Archer Christian from an injury received on Saturday in Washington and the death Monday of Walter J. Luffey, Jr., a young soldier, from burns inflicted in a game, has aroused a storm of protest against the sport.

General Charles J. Anderson, president of the Board of the Virginia Military Institute, declares that the game should be forbidden. Members of the General Assembly from Richmond are arrayed against the game. An attempt was made twelve years ago to suppress football. Senator Barkdale being the patron of the measure, and at that time, when there were no figures to back up the claim that the game was dangerous, nearly one-third of the members of the Senate voted for the proposition.

What is the Success of a Merchant?

Not to sell or offer Summer goods in the Winter time or Winter goods in the Summer time, or small sizes to large people or large sizes to small people. BE DULY THANKFUL

On Thursday And Every Other Day. Splendid Exhortation By Cardinal Gibbons.

"Be thankful to God for all blessings, for afflictions, for poverty, for trials and tribulations, as well as for prosperity and good health, and let us raise our voices and repeat with the angels in Heaven Benediction and honor and praise to God forever and forever, amen."

From the pulpit of the Cathedral Cardinal Gibbons spoke thus in the course of his annual Thanksgiving sermon.

"There is no sin more odious or hateful to God than the sin of ingratitude," declared the Cardinal. "God cried out against the ingratitude of the Israelites and He is today crying out against the ingratitude of modern men. The ox submits to its master and allows the yoke to be placed upon it. But we, who are servants of the Great Master, will not allow the yoke of Christianity to be placed upon us if it is opposed to our inordinate and worldly desires."

Time Honored Custom.

"The observance of Thanksgiving Day is a time honored and laudable custom. Because of its being a day of public worship in this country it cannot but help bringing down countless blessings upon us. Every natural favor we have is a blessing from God and it is incumbent upon you, brethren, to render thanks to the Almighty for whatever is done for you."

"We should be thankful for our existence. Life is a merited blessing conferred upon us, and you should not only be thankful for that life God has bestowed upon you; but also for the preservation of that life."

"Some say they have little to be thankful for; they declare their health is bad; they are in straitened circumstances, while others have good health, enjoy abundance of good things and occupy exalted positions. But, my brethren, you should be thankful to God not only for prosperity, but adversity and for the bitter cup of sorrow that He may raise to your lips. This may seem incongruous and paradoxical, but it is true. And when the day of judgement comes you will thank God a thousand times more for the adversity, sorrows and trials of life than the temporal favors."

Pleasure Mitigates.

"It is not true that we fail to thank God either in prosperity or adversity in prosperity we are intoxicated with pleasure and forget Almighty, in adversity the spirit of affliction is frozen and again we forget God."

The only time some of us brethren, think of God is when we want some favor."

"The ancients rendered thanks to their deity for the advancement of their country, for their health, for their victories. How much more ought you, civilized and Christian people to thank God for what we have, thank God for the church of Christ, which is your teacher, and for the great country in which we live."

Thankful For Spiritual Life.

"We are thankful to God for our natural life, how much more should we be thankful for our spiritual life? thankful for the fecundity of earth, thankful for the natural life, how much of a thankful for the precious body of Christ given you for the maintenance and support of your spiritual life."

On the day of thanksgiving, some this month, and even every day, be thankful to God for what you are and for your existence; pour forth thanks to Almighty God. All our prayers and good works should begin with a prayer of thanksgiving to God. A prayer of thanksgiving is the most effective prayer. It is only just, (meets right and proper at all times to give thanks to God. Do not, my brethren, I beg you, complain, grumble or find fault with things. Be thankful for everything and let me end with repeating what I said in the beginning: Benediction, praise and honor to God forever and forever. Amen."

THREE NOTED ARTISTS

Prices are 50 cents for reserved seats. Children in gallery 15 cents. For benefit of school library fund. The Grand piano-forte will be used at this concert.

OPENING OF SALISBURY'S COUNTY COMMISSIONERS

Greater Future Says Well Informed Native Of This City. Large Prospects.

Salisbury Nov. 15, 1909.

To the Editor of the Advertiser.

If it seems presumptuous in a resident whose material stake is small to enter the subject, it may not be out of taste in a born citizen of Salisbury, to congratulate the City on the project of utilizing the water courses and the land area of Lake Humphreys and the adjacent transportation opportunities. To me it seems like a new period of commercial strength. I have no connection with the enterprise beyond that of every other inhabitant, but I have lived at various times in Philadelphia, St. Louis, Kansas City, Omaha and St. Paul, cities deeply concerned in the project of laying beside each other railroad facilities and water transportation.

Last summer I studied in the course of my professional experience several new cities on the shores of the Great Lakes, among them Duluth, the 'Boo', Port Arthur, Fort William and Detroit. When one has witnessed the lavish way in which these places spend and plan to spend millions for the same purpose of adding waterways to railroad, he may be pardoned for enthusiasm over the prospect now presented before his native town. If the plan is consummated I do not see how any other Eastern Shore town can call itself a competitor. Nothing will be left for Salisbury except to provide the industrial population to develop a great civic potentiality. Even in the most limited aspect the addition of a large building area to an extension of the now congested central district will be a blessing to Salisbury.

It is to be anticipated that the railroads will be eager to make themselves part of the improvement. Of that I know nothing but the presumption is that a railroad will seize the opportunity of increasing at nominal cost to itself its freight and passenger business. The switch-yard territory to be opened would alone excite the imagination of a railroad's operators. All in all, the project is a brilliant one. It comes at a psychological moment for our city. Personally I have no doubt of its success. That is obvious and inevitable. Whether the present promoters carry it out or fail, whether they make a profit or incur a loss, need not disturb the people. The work itself contains the principle of success and is sure to be a colossal utility to our town.

Respectfully,

Joseph A. Graham.

TO CHANGE OYSTER LAW

Shellfish Commission Has Amendments To Place Before General Assembly.

The Shellfish Commission will continue its fight at the next session of the Legislature for amendments to the oyster culture law. Changes were recommended at the last session, but they were voted down.

These changes provide thirty acres instead of ten, as the maximum for one individual in the tributaries of the bay and five hundred acres, instead of one hundred, as the maximum in the open bay; reduction of the rental to $1 an acre for six years; provisions for forcibly collecting such rentals as may be charged; permission to lessees to take oysters whenever they choose; setting aside of ground for cultivation of plant oysters; reduction of time at which riparian owners have to decide whether they desire to take up the land to which they have first claim.

Although the oyster law has been in operation for several years the good that was expected to come from it has not materialized to the extent that was hoped. In the opinion of the Commission these hopes will materialize more rapidly if the changes recommended are put into effect.

THANKSGIVING RACES

To Be Held On The Fair Grounds Thursday.

Arrangement have been made for a number of races to be held on the Fair Grounds at Salisbury on Thanksgiving day. The first race will be the match race for $100 a side between Richard Prince owned by Sewell H. Richardson, and Doctor Prince owned by Wimbrow Bros. In addition to the $100 the horses will receive 40 per cent of the gate receipts. These horses are both reputed to be fast ones and a close and exciting race is expected. In addition to the match race there will be given a 2.40 pace and trot in which a number of entries will be made.

Mr. Armstrong, the owner of Dry Dock is anxious to have a free for all race arranged and it is hoped that one can be got up. It is understood that several very fast horses are considering coming on that date, and if so an exciting and interested race will take place.

Dr. Bull's Cough Syrup cannot be excelled as curing cold and cough. Price 25 cents.

Union Thanksgiving Service

All of our churches will unite in one large and popular service. This year the sermon will be preached by the Rev. W. A. Cooper, likely his last sermon in Salisbury.

Union Thanksgiving services will be held this year in the Ashbury M. E. Church. It has become a custom among our church people to hold one service on Thanksgiving Day, all of the churches joining. These services are always well attended. The pastors of the various churches preach the sermons on these occasions according to a fixed turn. This year the sermon will be preached by Rev. W. A. Cooper, of the Trinity M. E. Church, South, and an added interest will be given to his sermon, as he has resigned from the pastorate of Trinity and will leave Salisbury for his new field of labor on the afternoon of Thanksgiving Day.

Deputy Sheriff Appointed.

Mr. J. Clayton Kelley who was elected Sheriff of this county at the last election has announced the appointment of his deputy. Mr. Roy E. Smith of Quantico, is the man and is one of the best known men of Quantico District. Mr. Smith will move to Salisbury and occupy family quarters in the jail.

STUFFED BALLOTS

It is not necessary to give up our pious faith in the superior political morality of our forefathers when we learn that even in the first generation of Bostonians was found a ballot stuffer.

The same record which reveals this break, records also its instant repudiation and punishment. It was on January 14, 1655, 35 years after the settlement of Boston, according to the quaint records preserved of the King's Chapel, that a referendum was held as to whether a part of the land should be alienated.

The old chronicle runs: "The inhabitants proceeded to bring in their votes, and when the Selectmen were receiving them at the Door of the Hall they observed one of the inhabitants, viz., John Pigeon, to put in about a dozen with the word Yea wrote on all of them, being charged with so doing, he acknowledged it, and was thereupon ordered by the Moderator to pay a fine of Five Pounds for putting in the settlement of Boston according to the more than One Vote according to Law, and the inhabitants that they must withdraw and bring in their votes again in manner as before directed, and the inhabitants accordingly withdrew and the votes being brought in and sorted it appeared that there was Four Hundred and two votes and that there was two hundred and five Yea's and one hundred and ninety seven Nays."

Proceedings of City Council At Monday's Session.

The City Council was in session on Monday evening and transacted considerable routine business.

Following building permits were granted: to Glen Perdue, dwelling on Parsons Street, to Wm. S. Lewis, barn and stables on Mount Street, to Fulton Milling Company, warehouse on Mill street.

On motion, Friday evening, November 19, was selected as date for the hearing of charges preferred against night Policeman James Cronch, and a special session of the Council will be held for this purpose.

On motion, Surveyor Shockley was directed to make a plat of Main St., from the west end of the bitulithic pavement to the south side of Delaware and Third Streets, preparatory to ordinance condemning and widening of said portion of Main Street Extended.

The City Solicitor was instructed to prepare an ordinance prohibiting roller skating, on the streets of Salisbury.

Ex-Congressman Jackson Hurt.

Ex-Congressman W. H. Jackson met with a very painful accident this week. Mr. Jackson was getting into his carriage at his office when the horses started up suddenly, throwing him with considerable force upon the ground. He was carried to his home and Dr. H. O. Tall was called in.

While at first it was feared that the injuries would be serious it is not believed that outside of being very painful and likely to confine him to his home for some time, that any serious results will follow from the accident.

THE MAN HUNT

A Widow's Meas. Of Capturing Big Game.

Woman is tired of the old hag-hunt way of trying to get man to see the many advantages matrimony has over single blessedness, and is determined to go into the business of catching men in an orderly and systematic manner—at least an article by Dorothy Dix in the Evening Bulletin, of Philadelphia, gives one that impression. The article follows:—

The winter season which is the open season for husband hunting, is now upon us, and it behooves every young woman who wants a home of her own to make ready for the chase. Now, I believe in matrimony, and desire to do all I can to push along a good thing, so I have secured the assistance of a widow who has captured no less than four different men as the prowess of her bow and spear, to give expert advice on the best tactics to pursue in husband hunting.

For obvious reasons she desires to remain anonymous, so I have written down for the benefit of the readers of the "Bulletin," the words of wisdom that fell from her lips when I interviewed her on this important subject. "The trouble with most women," said the widow, "is that when they start out on the love chase they assume that all men are alike, and that the same weapon will bring all of them down. That is as silly a mistake as if one would go bird shooting with a fishing rod, or angling for trout with a Winchester rifle.

"Error No. 2 consists in woman's failure to familiarize herself with the nature and habits of the different species of men, which shows as much lack of judgment as it would to start out to hunt lions on the shores of Chesapeake Bay, or canvass back docks in the Rocky Mountains.

"Error No. 3 is woman's fond and fatuous belief that the same line of charms appeal to every man, which is as idiotic as to think that you can use the same sort of shot and shell to bring down an elephant or a canary bird.

"The huntman who wishes to bring in a full bag first provides himself with the proper equipment for the chase. Then he devotes much study to the ways of the game he is pursuing and adapts himself to its peculiarities, for he knows that some animals must be patiently stalked, some rushed, and that some birds must be shot from behind a blind, and some shot on the wing.

"Even so must a woman conduct the love chase, for there are men who can only be captured by being stealthily crept upon; others who are so tame that they can be knocked over like a barnyard fowl; others who can be decoyed by a wooden rival into good shooting distance, and still others who will come to any good feeding place that is properly baited, where they can be easily caught as they gorge themselves.

"Generally speaking, all men come under one or the other of these classifications:

- "The shy man.
- "The spoiled man.
- "The vain man.
- "The selfish man.
- "The domestic man.

"Let us consider each of these in turn.
"The shy man is one of the most attractive animals that roam the matrimonial forest, and he is well worth capturing for many reasons. In the first place, because he is nearly always good and tender; and, in the second place, because he is of a timid nature and so much afraid of women that he very seldom roams away from home after he has once been caught and domesticated.

"In fact there can be no lovelier household pet than a shy husband, and it is well worth any woman's time and attention to try to catch one.

"In starting out upon the pursuit of the Shy Man, however, the fair huntress should bear one thing in mind, and that is, she will scare him off if she attempts to hunt in couples. She must go alone, and creep upon him so gently that he does not perceive her approach. The best way to do this is to establish a friendship with his sisters, or some female relative, and thus, by dint of appearing naturally and innocently on his horizon, accustom him to the sight of her, without frightening him.

"Be very careful to show no eagerness, as a false move will startle him and put him to flight. Let the huntress bide her time.

"Let her become almost like a sister, with the difference that, while his sisters snub him, she praises him. She exalts him. She alone makes him feel that he is a devil of a fellow, instead of being a gawky nonentity in society.

"In this way, without his knowing it, she will have cut him out of the herd, and, without his knowing it, he will be her meat.

"For the final capture, it is generally necessary to lay some shallow trap, such as for the huntress to pretend that she is going to some distant land to shoot big game, or to engage in the wholesale butcher business in Chicago. Tears are also a good bait, but almost any old thing will do, as the Shy Man is extremely nervous and where women are concerned and never fails to blunder into the pit that has been dug for him.

"Once he is in, the huntress will have to help him out, because he would choke to death on his Adam's apple if he were left to propose unaided. So, after the first preliminary rounder at love-making, a compassionate huntress should give him her hand. This will all him with such gratitude that he will follow her like a dog the balance of his life.

"The best weapons to use in chasing down the Shy Man are a pair of gummed shoes, a thirty-two calibre smile and a long range patience. Always use smokeless powder that does not set off when you pillow your head on a black coat."

So said the Widow.

No Clinkers Burns Less Coal—Gives More Heat

Clinkers are not only troublesome, but very expensive. They clog and kill a fire, so that the coal only half burns, and very little heat is produced. The one sure way to be proof against clinkers, and to have steady, warm comfort in every room in your house, every hour in all kinds of weather, is to install a

Temperance Topics

THINK IT OVER. WHO IS TO BLAME?

By Rev. F. A. Campbell.

Suppose I had before me a number of saloonkeepers, their wives and children; suppose I call one of their boys to me, and after passing my hands a few times over his head, I could make just such a change in his physical and moral nature in five minutes, as a saloon will make in five months or five years; suppose I pass my hand over his head and blunt his intellect, destroy his health, plant disease within him, cloud his judgment, sear his conscience, paralyze his will, obliterate his heart, take away his self-control, love of home, love of industry and property, and all the good opinion of mankind; suppose I could thus stand, and in five or ten minutes destroy the health of this boy, inflame his eyes, pickle his brain, tan his stomach, and poison his blood, and kindle the fires of the second death on the lips and cheeks that is now bright and fair, and should thus present him to my audience of saloonkeepers a raving maniac while screaming wives and mothers fainted.

These men would leap upon me and tear my body limb from limb. And they would be doing right; and yet, this is the infamous work the saloonkeepers are doing to 65,000 fathers and sons every year, under the august protection of the law. And when men protest against it they are called fanatics. This every Christian man will admit, that the saloons under the protection of the law are doing more to destroy souls than the churches are doing to save men.

Who is to blame? Is it only the men who are elected to office that have the power to enact a license law? I say not. If I vote for a man knowing that he will help enact a law that will give a man the authority, and not only the authority, but will protect him in committing the awful crime of robbing my neighbor of his happy home, taking from him the comfort of life, sending his wife and mother to an untimely grave, murdering the father of that home with the curse of rum, sending his soul to a drunkard's fate! I appeal to the judgment of every Christian man especially, and ask, if I vote for the men who I know would give the man authority and make it a legal business to commit this great crime, am I not a partaker of the crime?

"Where did you get your rum?" "This man sold it to me." "Why did you sell this man that accursed stuff and rob him of his eternal happiness?" "This Christian man who said he loved God, and was led by the Spirit of God, said it was right, and I would give him so much money for a license the law would protect me and uphold me." And the Judge answered: "You unto those who justify the wicked for reward."

An Indian Judge on Drink. The following expression of opinion, recently given by the Sessions Judge of Umballa, India, who has to deal with the effects of an unwise excise license policy, is worthy of consideration. Speaking from the bench, he said:

"The abuse of intoxicating liquor and the facility with which strong drink is obtained under the new excise rules are, in my opinion, largely responsible for this lamentable increase in violent crime. In all the recent cases in which sentences have been passed, drink was at the bottom of the crime. In general, interests of orderly administration, some restriction should, I think, be placed on the supply of spirituous liquors. Murder is a worse crime than illicit distillation."

Due to Drink. Of the 33,000 men passed into Wadsworth (England) workhouse since 1888 by Dr. A. E. Dodson, there were only fifteen total abstemious. Of the fifteen at least seven were mentally or physically unfit to maintain themselves. This makes the proportion of needy (able-bodied) abstainers practically 33,000 to eight, and affords new evidence for the old contention. "But for drink the workhouse might be closed."

A German Doctor's Views. In order to secure for the people better, cheaper food, the use of beer must be energetically fought against. Through the brewing of beer, nutritive substances are spoiled and living made expensive.—Dr. N. Block of Germany.

A New Cure. A doctor whose practice lies mostly in the country districts was recently called to attend a ploverman's boy, whom he found to be suffering from whooping cough. Among his instructions he told the mother to "put some tea in a bag and tie it around the boy's head." Next day he called again and was met at the door by the girl-wife, who, in answer to his query, replied, "Aye, Jackie's a heap better the day, but the nice air's a dodd."—Dunbar Weekly News.

Women as Well as Men are Made Miserable by Kidney and Bladder Trouble.

Kidney trouble preys upon the mind, discourages and lessens ambition; beauty, vigor and cheerfulness soon disappear when the kidneys are out of order or diseased.

Kidney trouble has become so prevalent that it is not uncommon for a child to be born afflicted with weak kidneys. If the child urinates too often, if the urine smells the fish, or if, when the child reaches an age when it should be able to control the passage, it is yet afflicted with bed-wetting, depend upon it, the cause of the difficulty is kidney trouble, and the first step should be towards the treatment of these important organs. This unpleasant trouble is due to a diseased condition of the kidneys and bladder and not to a habit as most people suppose.

Women as well as men are made miserable with kidney and bladder trouble, and both need the same great remedy. The mild and the immediate effect of Swamp-Root is soon realized. It is sold by druggists, in fifty-cent and one-dollar size bottles. You may have a sample bottle by mail free, also a pamphlet telling all about Swamp-Root, including many of the thousands of testimonials received from sufferers who found Swamp-Root to be just the remedy needed. In writing Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y., be sure and mention this paper in any mistake, but remember the name, Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, and the address, Binghamton, N. Y., on every bottle.

Public Sale of Valuable Farming and Timber Land

Having decided, on account of my age, to quit farming, I will sell at public auction, all my real estate lying in Dennis District, Wicomico County, Maryland, to-wit: a new farm, at Salisbury, Wicomico County, Md., in front of the Court House, on Saturday, Nov. 20th,

1909 at 2 o'clock p. m. This land will be offered in parcels as per plot made by Geo. E. Jackson, Surveyor, viz:

1. All that part of said land lying adjoining the lands of Wm. L. Laws and those of Clarence Laws on the north, and the lands of L. Lee Laws on the west and east of ditch running through the said Laws land, and on both sides of road leading to Wm. L. Laws' home residence, and containing 70 1/2 acres of land, more or less. About three fourths of this land is cleared, the balance in timber; improved by small tenant house in good repair.

2. All that part of said land lying on the northwest side of the road from Cypress Branch to St. John's Church, adjoining S. E. Shockley's land on southwest, and on the northwest, and bounded on east by ditch separating this land from other lands of said Wm. L. Laws, and on north by division line between this lot and Lot 3, as shown in plot; containing 114 acres of land, more or less. About one fourth of this land is cleared, the balance in marketable timber, and is improved by tenant house in good condition.

Digging Plotter Caught.

Gori, Russia.—A daring plan to rob the treasury of Gori, in which $1,000,000 are kept, has been discovered. The scheme of the criminals, five men and a woman, was to dig a tunnel into the building from outside. They had progressed a distance of 350 feet and had reached a point directly below the cellar when a bookkeeper heard sounds of excavating and summoned the police to investigate, and the result that all six were captured.

MARYLAND REPUBLICANS UNEASY.

That there is much uneasiness in Republican top ranks, and being felt through the body of the party over the outcome of Maryland's next Legislative Assembly is easily seen.

There is a very keen opposition and avowed hostility to the proposition that Democrats are fathering of legalizing the Crawford County plan of direct nominations and passing a law mandating on both parties to hold their primaries throughout the State under the plan, with all the safeguards of a general election surrounding them.

This, we believe would more surely disgust the white Republican with the negro vote than any argument or political logic that has ever been submitted.

In many counties where the negro vote exceeds that of the white Republicans the fear and the reality of negro domination would then be apparent in the Republican own party to their rankest negro domination scorners, as demonstrated by their primaries when the negro majority could place negroes on the Republican primary ballot and elect negroes to the Republican ticket.

CAN A CHILD EVER REPAY THE DEBT IT OWES ITS MOTHER.

Many a mother literally gives her life for her child. In health, watching over it day by day and hour by hour, in sickness never leaving its bedside, watching every breath it draws, the child is every moment under the protecting wing of mother-love. This is a pathetic little story that comes from West Virginia. Mrs. Grace Smith, of Beverly, had been watching for weary hours at the bedside of her sick child. She was poor, and must not only care for the little one, but earn enough for support. She remained up all night with the child, and without closing her eyes went to work at dawn and spent all the morning laboring at the wash tub. Then she went out in the heat of the day to pick blackberries and walked several miles to town. When she reached the store she fell to the floor, exhausted, and died before she could be restored to consciousness. The doctors said she had literally worked herself to death.

How many mothers there are who have given their youth and beauty and good looks and health and strength—have spent it all for their children? And then when the lines of care mark their faces with wrinkles and their hair is streaked with gray, how many are rewarded by the devotion and care of those for whom they have done so much? Not as many as there should be. "But mother is so old," you hear a fresh young girl say, "she wouldn't care for me as a flower or a daisy or a lily down the bay." And she rushes off, never giving her mother a thought. Children take, as a matter of course, the constant devotion of their parents, and are often impatient that they cannot give them more. Many a mother has toiled and striven for long years to rear her daughter into a charming attractive woman, only to find that the girl does not appreciate and can hardly conceive the sacrifices made for her. Perhaps the little girl for whom the patient woman worked herself to death might grow up to be ashamed of the fact that her mother ever worked at a wash tub, or picked blackberries to support her little flock.

The wrinkled face of a mother is illumined by a love and redoubled by a sacrifice that makes it more beautiful than the glowing cheek of the vain young woman, who races through the world with no thought except of self and no care except for her own beauty and her own pleasure. Parents do not mind making these sacrifices. They are made every day in a million homes, and the devotion of parents to their children is perhaps the best proof that human nature, in spite of its many faults and shortcomings, is, as a whole, wholesome and good. But the parents do have a right to expect from their children some appreciation, and the least that the girls and boys can give, is devotion and consideration and the love that means more to father and mother than all else. "How sharper than a serpent's tooth is an ungrateful child!"—Baltimore Sun.

Governor And Other State Officials Favor Reform.

The announcement that Mr. T. Leigh Marriot, who was re-elected a member of the House of Delegates, would introduce in the next Legislature a bill providing for a constitutional amendment to do away with the engrossing of bills and have them printed and recalled to Governor Othman and other State officials that a similar recommendation is in the report of the Governor's commission on legislative expenses and procedure, which was received by him last January.

State Senator J. Frank Harper, of Queen Anne's county, who was chairman of the commission, will, it is believed, lead the fight for the adoption of a general plan for the reduction of expenses in the Legislature. If the plan is carried out, it is estimated that the State would save about $80,000.

Nearly every person who has ever served in the Legislature, or had dealings with it has protested against the present engrossing system. From present indication there will not be much opposition to its discontinuance.

In past years many men have been employed both on the House and Senate sides for engrossing bills. Some of them have been capable, while others have not; and on many occasions bills have been held for weeks in the engrossing rooms before being returned.

Presbyterian Church At Ocean City—Pastor.

Rev. J. L. Rushbridge who was recently called to the pastorate of the Presbyterian Church, Ocean City, was installed on Friday evening of this week. Rev. William H. Bancroft of Berlin presided at the services in place of Rev. Alexander Allison of Wilmington, who is the Moderator of the Presbytery of New Castle and pronounced the Constitutional questions to both the pastor-elect and the congregation. Mr. Bancroft preached the installation sermon. Rev. W. T. M. Beale of this city delivered the charge to the people and Rev. P. S. Armentrout, of Greenville, Del., delivered the charge to the pastor. This Presbyterian Church in Ocean City was organized in May, 1909, with a membership of 43. Its prospects for growth are very bright as it is the only church organization in the town which has at this time a permanent pastor in charge all the year. An agreement has been entered into between the Conference of Wilmington and the Presbytery of New Castle to the effect that no work will be undertaken by the former body until such a time as the population of Ocean City will warrant it. This agreement on the part of these two great church organizations redounds to the credit of each of them. The church property is valued at $5,000 and is entirely free of debt. Rev. Mr. Rushbridge has had pastorates in Buffalo, N. Y., and Philadelphia. He comes from New Gretna, N. J., to Ocean City.

Big Drive of Steers.

Hon. Wm. H. Jackson received a big drive of steers Tuesday last from Chicago, which will be sold for market next spring. There were 375 young steers in the bunch. They were distributed on two farms 250 of them being sent to the "Rider" farm and 125 to the "Trader" farm. At his Rockwalking farm Mr. Jackson has the largest and finest steer barn in this State. It was built with special care for stock feeding. Every stall has running water and the entire building has concrete floor, with plenty of light and arranged so as to facilitate work in caring for the cattle. This is the largest consignment of young steers ever received here for feeding purposes.

Temperance Worker Says Drunken Mothers Killed 200,000 Babies in 1908

Miss Maria O. Brebm, of Chicago, who has been interested in temperance work in York, Pa., made some strange statements while she was speaking at the Presbyterian church.

She said 580,000 boys in the United States had become addicted to alcoholism during 1908. In the same time 200,000 babies in the United States were smothered to death by drunken mothers; 4788 wives were murdered by drunken husbands; 7000 murders were committed by persons under the influence of liquor; of 11,000 suicides 6000 were caused by alcoholism; 1,000,000 deaths were brought about by drunken cab drivers and chauffeurs; 40,000 wives and mothers were made widows; 85,000 persons were made insane through intoxicating liquors, and 100,000 men, women and youths went to prison during 1908 as the result of alcoholism.

Better Not Get Dyspepsia

If you can help it, Kodol prevents Dyspepsia, by effectually helping Nature to Relieve Indigestion. But don't trifle with Indigestion.

A great many people who have been afflicted with indigestion, have been cured by it. When nervous or chronic dyspepsia resulted, and they have not been able to cure it. Use Kodol and prevent having dyspepsia.

Everyone is subject to indigestion. It comes on in various ways. Stomach abuse, just as naturally as just as surely as a sound and healthy stomach results upon the taking of Kodol.

When you experience sourness of stomach, belching of gas and bloating, indigestion, nervousness, gastric pain in the pit of the stomach, heart burn (so-called), diarrhoea, headaches, dizziness or chronic tired feeling—you need Kodol. And then the quicker you take Kodol—the better. But what you want, is Kodol digested. Ordinary peptic "dyspepsia" tablets, "physic" etc., are not likely to be of much benefit to you, in digestive ailments. Peppin is truly a partial digester—and physics are not digesters at all. Kodol is a perfect digester. If you could see Kodol digesting every particle of food, of all kinds, in the glass test-tubes in our laboratories, you would know this just as well as we do.

Nature and Kodol will always cure a sick stomach—but in order to be cured, the stomach must rest. That is what Kodol does—rests the stomach, while the stomach gets well. Just as simple as A, B, C.

CHAPTER XIV.

TWO CALLS FROM THE ENEMY.

DEPPINGHAM was up and about quite early the next morning. He had his rifle and coffee and strolled out in the shady park for a smoke. The princess, whose sense of humiliation had not been lessened by the fitful sleep of the night before, was walking in the shade of the trees on the lower terrace, beyond the fountain and the artificial lake.

"I was thinking of you," she said in greeting as he came up.

"How nice you are," he said. "But, my dear, is it wise in you to be thinking of us handsome devils? It's a most dangerous habit—thinking of other men."

"Your logic is splendid. Pray resume your thoughts of me—if they were pleasant and agreeable. I'll not blow you to Karl. By the way, I have a compliment for you. Brodney says your hair is more beautiful than Pong's. That's quite a compliment. Tilton never even dreamed of hair like Pong's."

"You know, Deppy," she said, with a pout, "I am very unhappy about my hair. It is quite red. I don't see why I should have hair like that of a red cocker. It seems so animalish."

"Rubbish! Why should you complain? Look at my hair. It's been likened more than once to that of a Jersey cow."

"Oh, how I adore Jersey cows! Now, I wouldn't mind that a bit."

"They were looking toward the lower gates while carrying on this frivolous conversation. A man had just entered and was coming toward them. Both recognized the tall figure in gray fannels."

"I trust I am not intruding," Chase said as he came up. His gaze was as much for Deppingham as for the princess. His remark quite impersonal.

"Not at all, not at all," said Deppingham quickly, his heart leaping to the conclusion that the way to the American bar was likely to be opened at last. "Charmed to have you here, Mr. Chase. You've been most unneighborly. Have you been presented to her highness, the—Oh, to be sure. Of course you have. Stupid of me."

"We met ages ago," she said, with an ingenuous smile, which would have disarmed Chase if he had been prepared for anything else. As a matter of fact, he had approached her in the light of an adventurer who expects nothing and grasps at straws.

"In the dark ages," said he rudely, that her smile grew. He had come, in truth, to ascertain why her husband had not come with her.

"But not the forgotten variety, I fancy," said Deppingham shrewdly. It would be impossible for the princess to forget the greatest of all fools," said Chase.

"He said no worse than other mortals," she said.

"Thank you," said Chase. Then he turned to Lord Deppingham. "My visit requires some explanation, Lord Deppingham. You have said that I am unneighborly. No doubt you appreciate my reasons. One has to respect appearances," with a dry smile.

expect from you were the conditions reversed."

"It's mighty decent in you, Chase, to put us on our guard. Would you allow talking it over with Brodney and me after luncheon? You'll stay to luncheon, of course?"

In the wide east gallery they saw Lady Deppingham and Bobby Browne deeply engrossed in conversation. Deppingham started and involuntarily allowed his hand to go to his temple as if to check the thought that flitted through his brain.

"As he led the way across the green Brodney's voice came to them distinctly. He was saying earnestly: 'The mere fact that we have come out to this blessed island is a point in favor of the islanders. Chase won't overlook it, and you may be sure Sir John Brodney has making the most of it. Our coming is a guarantee that we consider the will valid. It is an admission that we regard it as sound. If not, why should we recognize its provisions, even in the slightest detail? Britt is looking for hallucinations and all!'"

"Sh!" came in a loud hiss from somewhere near at hand, and the two in the gallery looked down with startled eyes upon the distressed face of Lord Deppingham. They started to their feet at once, astonishment and wonder in their faces. They could scarcely believe their eyes. The enemy!

He was smiling broadly as he lifted his helmet, smiling in spite of the discomfort that showed so plainly in Deppingham's manner.

Chase was warmly welcomed by the two hosts. Lady Agnes was especially cordial. Her eyes gleamed joyously as she lifted them to meet his admiring gaze. She was amazingly pretty. The conviction that Chase had mistaken her for Lady Agnes the evening before took a fresh grasp upon the mind of the Princess Geneva. A shameless wave of relief surged through her heart.

Chase was presented to Drusilla Browne, who appeared suddenly upon the scene, coming from no one knew where. There was a certain strained look in the Boston woman's face and a suspicious redness near the bridge of her little nose.

"It's very good of you," said the enemy after all of whom had joined in the "Why is it that I am more fortunate than your own attorney, after all, no better than they. Would you mind telling me why I am honored by an invitation to sit at the table with you?" The touch of easy-sarcasm was softened by the frank smile that went with it. Deppingham felt it his duty to explain.

"It's—it's—oh, yes, it's because you're a diplomat," he finally remarked in triumph. It was a grand recovery, thought he. "Saunders is an ass, and Britt want it, as I do. Rubbish! Don't let that trouble you. Eh, Browne?"

"Besides," said Bobby Browne breezily, "I haven't heard of your clients inviting you to lunch, Mr. Chase. The cases are parallel."

"I'm not so sure about his clients' wives," said Deppingham, with a vast haw-haw! Chase looked extremely uncomfortable.

"I am told that some of them are very beautiful," said Geneva sedately. "Other men's wives always are, I've discovered." The party had moved over to the great stone steps which led down into the garden. Chase was standing beside Lady Deppingham, and both of them were looking toward his distant bungalow.

"That is my home, princess. It is the first time I have seen it from your point of view, Lady Deppingham. I must say that it doesn't seem as far from the chateau to the bungalow as it does from the bungalow to the chateau. There have been times when the chateau seemed to be thousands of miles away."

"When in reality it was at your very feet," she said with a bright look into his eyes. "For some unaccountable reason Geneva resented that look and speech."

"Is that really where you live?" she asked, so innocently that Chase had difficulty in his expression.

"Instantly something struck sharply against the stone column above Chase's head. At least three persons saw the little puff of smoke in the hills far to the right. Every one heard the distant crack of a rifle. The bullet had dropped at Chase's feet before the sound of the report came floating to their ears. No one spoke as he stooped and picked up the warm, deadly missile. Turning it over in his fingers, he said coolly, although his cheek had gone white:

"With Mr. Britt's compliments, ladies and gentlemen. He is calling on me by proxy."

"Good God, Chase," cried Browne, "they're trying to murder us! Get back, every one! Inside the doors!"

Before they were aware of her intention the princess left the shelter and boldly walked across the open space to the side of the man. He started and opened his lips to give vent to a sharp command.

"It is so easy to be a hero, Mr. Chase, when one is quite sure there is no real danger," she said, with distinct irony in her tones. "One can afford to be melodramatic if he knows his part so well as you know yours."

Chase felt his face burn. It was a direct declaration that he had planned the whole affair in advance. He flicked the ashes from his cigarette and then tossed it away, hesitating long before replying.

"Nevertheless I have the greatest respect for the courage which brings you to my side. I dare say you are quite justified in your opinion of me. It all must seem very theatrical to you. I had not thought of it in that light. I shall now retire from the center of the stage. It will be perfectly safe for you to remain here—just as it was for me."

He was leaving her without another word or look. She repeated: "I am sorry for what I said," she said eagerly. "And"—she looked up at the hills with a sudden widening of her eyes—"I think I shall not remain."

Chase made light of the occurrence, but sought to impress upon the others the fact that it was prophetic of more serious events in the future. In a perfectly cold blooded manner he told them that the islanders might rise against them at any time.

"The people are angry, and they will become desperate. Their interests are mine, of course. I must therefore share in saying to you, Lady Deppingham, and to you, Mr. Browne, that in time they will win out against you in the courts. But they are impatient. They are not the kind who can wait and be content. It is impossible for you to carry out the provisions of the will, and they know it. That is why they resent the delays that are impending."

Deppingham told him of the scheme proposed by Saunders, treating it as a vast joke. Chase showed a momentary sign of uneasiness, but covered it instantly by laughing with the others. Strives to say, he had been instructed from London to look out for just such a coup of the part of the heirs—not that the marriage could be legally established, but that it might create a complication worth avoiding.

He could not help looking from Lady Deppingham to Bobby Browne, a calculating gleam in his gray eyes. How very dangerous she could be! He was quite ready to feel very sorry for pretty Mrs. Browne. He sat opposite to the princess. His eyes were refreshed themselves after months of fatigue; his blood was coursing through new veins. And yet his head was calling his heart a fool.

LIVING ON TEN CENTS

A Day—Several Thousand Dollars' Worth.

Ten cents a day is what living costs Valentine Christ, who owns more land in Cuyahoga county, Ohio, than any other man. As Cleveland is in Cuyahoga county, and in fact takes up the greater part of it, the value of Christ's land holdings is reputed to represent several million dollars. In spite of his wealth, however he lives as meanly as the poorest beggar.

Only on Sundays does this eccentric old man vary from his ten cent fare. The first day of the week sees 80 cents expended for meals.

This is his daily bill of fare.

Breakfast—Two slices of toast and a cup of tea without sugar or milk.

Dinner—Two slices of bread and butter and a cup of coffee without sugar or milk.

Supper—One piece of toast and a cup of tea without sugar or milk.

Only when he visits his friends, relatives or a free lunch stand does he eat anything else.

Christ's home is a tiny house on Bond street, in which he lives rent free, since it is owned by his sister. He does not rent it. He cooks his own meals, and it is said does his own laundry work. That is a trivial matter however since he does not wear white linen.

Valentine Christ is nearly 70 years old. He came from Germany when he was 14, along with his parents and three other children. The father bought railroad tickets to Indiana for the family. When he reached Cleveland it turned out he had been swindled, the tickets were worthless. Accordingly the family settled there. The father obtained employment as a tailor. In six months he died, leaving the family of which Valentine was the eldest with $5. Young Valentine went to work for his father's "boss." He got $3 a week. Within a year however he was making $20 a week. He saved his money until he had several hundred dollars. One day he passed a sheriff's auction, in front of the old courthouse, became interested and bought a lot. From that day his fortune has grown by leaps and bounds.

TO FORBID FOOTBALL

Bill To Be Introduced At The Next Session Of Legislature.

In Virginia the General Assembly of Virginia will be asked at its next session to enact a statute forbidding the playing of football in this State. The death ten years ago of George Bahen, from injuries while playing with Georgetown, the death Sunday of Archer Christian from an injury received on Saturday in Washington and the death Monday of Walter J. Laffey, Jr., a young soldier, from burns inflicted in a game, has aroused a storm of protest against the sport.

General Charles J. Anderson, president of the Board of the Virginia Military Institute, declares that the game should be forbidden. Members of the General Assembly from Richmond are arrayed against the game. An attempt was made twelve years ago to suppress football. Senator Eardkale being the patron of the measure, and at that time, when there were no figures to back up the claim that the game was dangerous, nearly one-third of the members of the Senate voted for the proposition.

FRUITLAND ON THE MOVE

Forward. Much Building And Many Improvements Denote Rapid Progress.

This little town, so closely connected with Salisbury, by two shell roads, wires and automobiles as to give us the advantage of the country and City too, is growing faster than might be imagined.

When we moved here two years ago last March there were about fifteen or twenty houses and two stores in the place, one saw mill and small cannery factory in the center of the town. The factory has been moved out and nearer the railroad. The saw mill has been sold and is to be moved out and nearer the railroad. The most of the houses did not look as if they had been painted in many years. They have nearly all been newly painted since then, and many of them have been enlarged and remodeled.

The large store house of I. H. A. Dulany and Sons has been very much enlarged with a marvelous increase in stock and trade, while there are four more new stores and another one nearly completed which expects to open soon.

Twenty or twenty five new dwellings have been erected and are now occupied.

The Rev. H. S. Dulany is expecting to move into his new home, by the side of the parsonage, in a few days.

Roads are being graded for shells in four directions leading out from Fruitland into the country, besides the two already shelled that lead to Salisbury which will enable the farmers and truckers from all around to find an easy way to their little business center.

Fruitland was once called Forktown, because of the many roads that fork here, but is now appropriately called Fruitland because of the fruits, cantaloupes, and watermelons grown and shipped from this station.

While some of our people do not go to church very much, the church is pretty well filled every Sunday to hear the word and to learn the will of the Creator concerning "His Creatures". While many improvements were put on the church here last year, we are about completing the frescoing of the inside and the painting of the outside now.

The Shiloh people have $100, in hand to put a fence around their Church and graveyard, which they expect to do in a few days. The Zion people have some money in hand for the fencing of their church and graveyard, and it is hoped that it will be like the heaven which the woman hid in three measures of meal, till the whole was leavened. The St. Luke's people have already chained their nice shady grove in with their church.

The Red Men are completing a very nice and commodious Hall in the center of our little town, and our church people all are interested in the enterprise and hope to be able to help each other socially, financially, and spiritually.

Our Third Quarterly Conference will be held at Fruitland two weeks from next Tuesday, December 14 at three p. m.

Crouch Re-instated.

At the hearing before the City Council on Friday night in the case of Policeman James Crouch on charges preferred by Mayor Harper, it was decided to re-instate Mr. Crouch on the police force for which he had been suspended by Mayor Harper pending an investigation. The suspension and hearing of Mr. Crouch arose from the difficulties between him and Mr. J. Frank Waller on the Saturday night before election. Mr. Waller, who had on the suggestion of the Mayor filed supplementary charges against Mr. Crouch, through his attorney withdrew these on the grounds that he did not want to be put in the position of making this a personal matter, and stated that he did not want to be put in the position of prosecuting Mr. Crouch before the City Council, but adding that he was willing to testify if the Council so desired, and tell all he knew about the matter. After considering the case the Council passed the following resolution:—

Resolved, That we endorse the action of Mayor Harper in suspending Officer Crouch from the police force, but from the evidence produced we do not find sufficient evidence to justify his removal.

Mr. Crouch has made a very efficient night watchman and the sentiment among the business men on Main Street was strongly in favor of his retention on the Police force, and this was doubtless a very strong factor with the City Council in favor of his retention on the force.

COUNTY COMMISSIONERS

Important Session On Tuesday. The Roadways.

The County Commissioners in session Tuesday, transacted the following business:

A large delegation of citizens of Salisbury, composed of Messrs. G. W. D. Waller, S. R. Douglass, H. B. Freney, F. Leonard Wallis, Jay Williams and others, appeared before the Board and asked for the appointment of J. Frank Waller as constable for Parsons District. The appointment was made.

The Board rescinded the order for the present allowing School Board to use the Sheriff's office in the Court House, and allowed the Sheriff to continue to use the office.

The patrons of the new Meadow Creek Road were before the Board to adjust some difficulties relative to the straightening of the road and the signing of the bond guaranteeing the necessary 10 per cent. It was decided to hold up on the work till these matters are adjusted.

A petition was filed from Barren Creek District, asking for the improving of the public road from Mardela Springs to Vienna causeway under the Shoemaker Road Law. Petition was ordered filed as of this date.

A delegation from Sharptown asked the Board to furnish shells to extend the road out of town, as far as the Delaware line, a distance of about one half mile, needing about 30,300 bushels of shells. Board agreed to furnish the shells and the committee agreed to prepare the road bed and put the shells on.

Messrs. Jno. Cooper of Delmar, and I. B. Bennett, of Riverton, asked the Board to open up a new road connecting Columbia, Del., and Mardela, a distance of about two miles. Mr. Cooper stated that Delaware would open up the three quarters of a mile in Delaware if Maryland would build the one half mile. Board agreed to appoint a committee to lay out the road. The following were appointed commissioners: R. G. Robertson, T. J. Wright and Wm. M. Wright.

A delegation was before the Board asking that work be resumed on the Parsonsburg road; also asked the commission to complete the work of laying out the balance of the work of widening and straightening the road from the end of the first section to Parsonsburg.

The Election Supervisors submitted the bills for costs of general elections and primaries for 1909. Election bills amounted to $3,890.82; primaries $588.00, a total of $4,478.82. These bills will be paid after January 1, 1910. The Board ratified and confirmed the report on first section of Parsonsburg road.

How The Republicans Met Campaign Expenses.

Mr. Jackson A. Generous Contributor. William F. Jackson, the Republican National Committeeman, proved to be the good angel of the Republican party in Maryland, contributing $18,000 of the whole amount of $20,459 spent by his party through the State and city committees.

Mr. Jackson is not a politician. He is generally believed to have a wholesome disgust for the political game, so the generosity he exhibited on this occasion is all the more remarkable. National Committeeman Jackson is the son of Ex-Congressman William H. Jackson, who attained fame for his expenditures in political campaigns in which he was interested.

Mr. Jackson divided the money paid by him—giving $7000 to Republican Chairman Hanna for the State fund and $8000 to City Chairman Platt for the campaign in Baltimore City.

Stone Gave Liberally. Collector of the Port William F. Stone seems to have suffered more because of the campaign than any other individual, for, in addition to contributing $4000 to the campaign fund, he has assumed the indebtedness of the city committee to the amount of $2,385.95, the total indebtedness being $6,385.95. Mr. Stone is generally regarded as a poor man, so the liberal contribution ascribed to him in connection with the debt is not likely to add to his joys in life.

Judges are supposed to stand strictly aloof from politics, but Judge Henry Shockbridge's interest in the campaign seems to have gotten the better of his discretion, for he is down for $100 in the list of contributors to the Republican fund.

Godwin Down For $1500. James E. Godwin, treasurer of the city committee, is down on the list of contributors for $1500.

Robert Garrett and Charles J. Bonaparte each gave $1500, and John W. Garrett, brother of Robert Garrett, gave $1000, as did Wm. H. Jackson. Election day distributions of the Republicans were much smaller than similar payments by the Democrats, but as the difference in the campaign "bark" amounted to only $4000 the Republicans evidently found some use for their money previous to election day.

JOHN KENDRICK BANGS

"Will Take The House" When He Comes To Town For Next Lecture Course.

Fine Discourse By Elbert Hubbard Wednesday.

Salisburyans were given a rare treat on Wednesday evening, when Elbert Hubbard, the famous lecturer and writer rendered his famous lecture on "The March of the Centuries." This lecture was delivered in his usual eloquent, witty and entertaining style, and was thoroughly enjoyed by all present.

Unfortunately for the success of the lecture from an attendance standpoint, the night was a stormy one and doubtless kept many home. It is not often that the residents of a place the size of Salisbury are given an opportunity to listen to a man of the ability and learning of Mr. Hubbard and it is to be regretted that the attendance was not much larger. The public is indebted to the able Board of Lady Managers of the Hospital for the arrangements to get Mr. Hubbard here, and whether it was a success financially or not, those who attended enjoyed a rare intellectual treat.

It is understood that the Lady Board of Managers have arranged for other entertainments of like character, and it is believed that many who failed to attend Wednesday's lecture, will not miss the next one, which will be by John Kendrick Bangs.

The cry is often heard in Salisbury that the people are not given any chance to listen to a high class form of entertainment, and such as are brought here, are not worth attending, or worse than that are low in their moral tone and decidedly uninteresting, and this is unquestionably true in a large majority of the entertainments placed before the people of Salisbury. This being true, it would seem that a first class entertainment such as the Lady Managers of the Hospital are offering the people, would meet with the success it deserves. The ADVERTISER congratulates those in charge of these lectures, and hopes that they will not be disappointed with the poor attendance on Wednesday evening, believing that there is enough people in this city who will encourage and help out a movement of this kind when they are aware of the character of the entertainment provided.

New Firm Incorporates.

Messrs. J. Raymond Fields, C. Edgar Laws and James Thoroughgood, who recently purchased the business of Lucy Thoroughgood have incorporated under the name of The Thoroughgood Company. As stated in our issue of several weeks back these gentlemen have purchased the well known business of Mr. Lucy Thoroughgood, including stock, fixtures and good will of both stores, Mr. Thoroughgood retaining no interest at all, being obliged to give up business for the present owing to the condition of his health. The gentlemen who have incorporated with $50,000 capital stock are all well known young business men, who are thoroughly familiar with this business, which is firmly established, and propose to run it in the same progressive way which has characterized its management in the past.

SALISBURY GRANGE

Booming. Interesting Discussion. Purposes Outlined.

At the meeting of the Salisbury Grange last Saturday evening, several applications for membership were received. This shows that the farmers of this county are waking up to the possibilities of a Farmers' Society. They are beginning to see the necessity for an organization which will look out for their interests.

Almost every branch of industry, trade and profession has organized a society for the promotion and protection of the individuals engaged in such industry, trade or profession. If lawyers, doctors, mine owners, business men, telegraphers, miners and others can profit by organization, why cannot the farmer? They believe they can, and they are right.

The subject for discussion last Saturday was "Woman's work on the farm." What she should do and what she should not. This subject was thoroughly discussed. It seemed to be the consensus of opinion of those present that woman's work should be confined to the house and barnyard, and that only when circumstances made it absolutely necessary should woman take her place in the field. It is proper that women should work in the garden, help about the chores, and attend to the poultry whenever she has opportunity.

The subject for general discussion at the next meeting, Saturday, December 4th, is in substance, "How to make the farm more attractive for the young people."

It is the purpose of the Salisbury Grange to engage in co-operative buying, for the benefit of its members during the season of 1910. The plan is to buy fertilizer, seed and everything used on the farm, in fact, where co-operative buying will result in a saving to the members. In taking such a step the Grange has no ill feeling against any local house, but is simply obeying the first law of human nature—self interest.

If any farmer wishes to join the Grange he should see some one who is a member and send in his application for membership. Every farmer in the county should join. The next meeting is in the Old Fellows Hall, Main Street, Salisbury, Maryland, Saturday evening, December 4th, at seven o'clock. W. P. W.

City Loses Suit.

A verdict for $2800 against the City of Salisbury was brought in by the jury in the Talbot County Courts on Wednesday of this week in the suit brought by Mrs. Ada Brittingham for damages for injury alleged to have been sustained by the plaintiff, while walking across the board walk over Humphreys mill dam, claim that a loose board flew up while she was crossing the dam causing her to fall. This suit was originally brought in the Circuit Court for this County, removed from here by the plaintiff to Worcester and from there removed on the request of the city to Talbot County. The City was represented by Messrs. Toadvine and Bennett of this city and Congressman J. Harry Covington as counsel while Mrs. Brittingham was represented by Messrs. Miles and Standford of Princess Anne. The attorneys for the City immediately asked for a new trial on the ground that the verdict given was excessive.

Smokeless

Until science discovered a way to construct the Automatic Smokeless Device, and make it completely dependable, all oil heaters had one common great fault—smoke.

With the advent of the Automatic Smokeless Device, and its practical application to the

PERFECTION Oil Heater

(Equipped with Smokeless Device) the smoke problem was successfully solved.

The Perfection Oil Heater is the only heater equipped with this

which insures a steady, full-glowing heat, with the wick turned up as high as it will go, without a shred of smoke. Reverse the motion, turn the wick down—there's no odor. The smokeless device automatically locks and prevents the upward movement of the wick beyond the proper exposure. That is the secret. This splendid result gives leadership to the Perfection.

You may now have all the heat you want—when you want it—and where you want it—without the annoyance of smoke or odor. Brass font holds 4 quarts of oil, which permits a glowing heat for 9 hours. Brass wick tube—damper top—cool handle. Cleaned in a minute. The Perfection is beautifully finished in Nickel or Japan.

A New Back For An Old One. How It's Done in Salisbury.

The back aches at times with a dull insupportable feeling, making you weary and restless; piercing pains shoot across the region of the kidneys, and again the loins are so lame to stoop is agony. No use to rub or apply a plaster to the back in this condition. You cannot reach the cause. Exchange the bad back for a new and stronger one. Follow the example of this Salisbury citizen.

Mrs. John G. Meison, E. Brown Street, Salisbury, Md., says: "Doan's Kidney Pills have helped me more than any other medicine I have ever taken. I do not have the least hesitation in endorsing them. I was subject to attacks of kidney complaint for a long time and whenever I caught cold my back became very weak. If I did much stooping my back also grew lame and painful, especially across my loins. Seeing Doan's Kidney Pills highly endorsed by people who had used them, I procured a supply at White and Leonard's drug store. Since taking this remedy I have felt much better in every way. In fact I have had no further trouble from my kidneys and back."

MAY PASTE ONE MILLION

Posters. Billboards Will Teach Prevention Of Tuberculosis.

Paratuberculosis have been nearly completed for the beginning of the million dollar poster campaign against tuberculosis which will be carried on jointly by the National Association for the Study and Prevention of Tuberculosis, the Associated Bill Posters and Distributors of America, and the Posters Pinta Association of the United States.

The campaign is an outcome of the last convention of the Bill Posters, at which time a resolution was adopted granting free of charge to the National Association for the Study and Prevention of Tuberculosis space on all of the bill boards controlled by this organization, located in 8,400 towns and villages of the country. The National Association was at once confronted with the difficulty of accepting the generous gift of the Bill Posters, because of the lack of funds to carry out the programme proposed. The poster printers offered to print all of the posters free of charge, but the problem of paper was such a large one, involving so many thousands of dollars that the National Association was obliged to appeal to paper manufacturers in all parts of the United States. As a result of these requests sufficient paper has been received to start printing 15,000 posters. The sketches for the designs have also been solicited from prominent artists in and around New York City.

Through the generosity of these different groups, the National Association is able to inaugurate one of the largest bill posting campaigns ever undertaken by a philanthropic organization. If sufficient paper is procured, a million posters will be pasted on bill boards in every state in the Union.

The posters will be nine feet long and seven feet wide, and will be printed in several colors. The posters are designed to show graphically how consumption can be cured and prevented. They will be distributed through the local and state anti-tuberculosis associations and through individuals interested in the crusade against this disease in all parts of the United States.

No Clinkers

Burns Less Coal—Gives More Heat

Clinkers are not only troublesome, but very expensive. They clog and kill a fire, so that the coal only half burns, and very little heat is produced. The one sure way to be proof against clinkers, and to have steady, warm comfort in every room in your house, every hour in all kinds of weather, is to install a

MODEL Heating System

Adapted to steam or hot water. Under the boiler is a wonderful grate that is clinker-proof, trouble-proof, keeps the fire always clear at the bottom, making the coal burn to fine white ashes.

Saves coal by utilizing it. Instantly regulated for greater or less heat as required, by the most improved system of drafts and dampers. Keeps the hot water tank always full of piping hot water. Sustains a remarkably steady oven for baking, which is easily regulated to the desired degree of heat.

PEOPLE'S PULPIT...

ELECTING KINGS.

Sermon by CHARLES T. RUSSELL, Pastor Brooklyn Tabernacle.

"Brethren, Give Diligence to Make Your Calling and Election Sure" (II Peter i, 10).

Sunday, Nov. 14.—Pastor Russell, of Brooklyn Tabernacle, preached today from the above text to a large and attentive audience as usual. He said:—

Throughout the length and breadth of this land of liberty, young and old understand full well the significance of election. Councilmen, aldermen, mayors of cities, county officials, State officials, United States Congressmen, Senators, the President and Vice-President are chosen or elected from amongst the people to their various official stations. They are chosen with a view to the blessing that will accrue to the electors by the exercise of their official positions. How strange, then, that we who are so familiar with these things should read into our text so very different a view of election!

The thought should naturally suggest itself to us that if God is electing or selecting a Church in the present time, it must be with a view to the use of that Church subsequently to serve in some manner the interests of the remainder of the world, from amongst whom they were elected. And this is just what the Scriptures teach; namely, that Christ Jesus himself is the Head, the Captain, the Chief Ruler, and that this "elect" company are, figuratively speaking, his "members," his associates, his under-priesthood. The Scriptures tell us that this selection is according to Divine foreknowledge and foreordination. They tell us that God foreknew our Lord Jesus as the one who would occupy the glorious position of Prophet, Priest, Mediator and King of the world during the Millennium. They tell us also that the same God and Father of our Lord Jesus Christ foreknew us also and "predestinated" that there should be a Church class selected from amongst the world, to be their Redeemer's associate, his under-priesthood, his subordinate kings during the Millennium.

The Elect Now and Hereafter.

The Church is spoken of as God's "elect" now, before the election has been finished; before the testing is completed; before the called have been proven faithful and worthy. These are "elect" in the sense of having been nominated—"moved" and "seconded." God moved that they should be elected, and "called them with a heavenly calling." It remained for the elect themselves to "second the motion" by presenting themselves in full consecration of heart to the Lord. But this was not sufficient; for the invited ones were recognized as imperfect and unable to come up to the requirements of the call. Hence it was necessary that the Lord Jesus Christ should become their surety and agree out of his own fullness of merit to supply all of their lack, their imperfection. And this he gladly does by applying for such the merit of his sin-atoning sacrifice finished at Calvary.

Making the Election Sure.

Keeping before our minds that the heavenly Father made the motion or the call, that we seconded it by accepting the call upon its terms of faith and consecration unto death, and that our Lord Jesus our surety who will make good our unintentional blemishes, what shall we say of the prospects of our being elected and at whose door shall we lay the responsibility if we are not elected? Surely the unchangeable God who nominated us has made every provision for our election and will co-operate. Surely our Redeemer, our Surety, our Advocate, will give us every assistance in the way and, according to his promise, cause all things to work together for our good. Just as surely, therefore, the entire responsibility for failure would lie at our door. And this is what St. Peter in our text declares, "Make your calling and election sure."

From this standpoint we have a special interest in our own election, such as we never had before when we misunderstood the entire matter. Once in our ignorance we thought that St. Peter had written foolishly about our making the election sure; for according to the erroneous theory which we had "swallowed" without proper mastication, God was doing all the electing himself, and had unalterably fixed our destiny as eternal glory or eternal suffering, long centuries before we were born.

This erroneous view blinded our mental sight from all the various incentives which now are so precious and so helpful. What had God elected us to be and to do? To sit upon a cloud and to play upon a harp and to sing to all eternity, cheerfully looking over the battlements of heaven to see our dear friends writhing in torment, and striving hard to praise God for it all and to think of his course in our election and their damnation as the exemplification of Justice and of Love?

We read indeed in the Scriptures respecting a Kingdom, for which our Lord Jesus taught us to pray, "Thy Kingdom come; thy will be done in earth as it is done in heaven," yet the throne of error upon us was so tense that we recognized not the inconsistency between these promises and our false hopes. Now, thank God, "the mystery" is revealed to us in God's Word and by his Spirit, and we perceive that the Millennium Kingdom is to be a reality and that its blessing to mankind is general, to all the families of the earth, is to be most thorough, most systematic, most complete, and in the end entirely satisfactory.

Kings to Be Elected.

What an interest we properly take in this matter of our election, after learning that the office for which we are running is a combination of priesthood and kingship! The elect are to be priestly kings, or, otherwise styled, "a Royal Priesthood." Their glorious service is to be for a period of one thousand years, during which they will be kings and priests unto God and will reign over the earth (Revelation xx, 4; I Peter ii, 9).

My beloved hearers, if your hearts are not moved by this message of God's grace and this information respecting his Kingdom and of your prospects of becoming kings and priests in that Kingdom, it is because you do not believe the message—because your faith does not properly grasp the "exceeding great and precious promises" of God's Word (II Peter i, 4). I am aware that this whole message by Jesus and his apostles has been so long covered by the rubbish of "the dark ages" that it was lost to our sight for a long while, and sadly we missed its encouragement to faithfulness. I am glad, however, that now the eyes of understanding are opening to see the length and breadth and height and depth in the great Divine Plan of the Ages.

The Value of Earthly Crowns.

Consider for a moment what fabulous prices have been paid for earthly crowns. Thousands of lives have been sacrificed and millions of money, to gain an earthly crown. And thousands who paid this price knew well that "unclean rests the head which wears the crown." They knew well, too, that its tenure would be precarious and that the attainment of it would bring them lasting hatred from others who aspired to the same position and who considered that their right to it was as good or better.

What comparison should we institute as between the value of such a crown and the "crown of glory" honor and immortality which God has promised to his elect—to such of them as make their calling and their election sure! Has God placed too high a valuation upon the heavenly crown, in demanding that those who would share it with the Redeemer must prove their loyalty to him and to the principles of righteousness, and to the spirit of love, to the extent of laying down their lives in his service and in "doing good unto all men as they have opportunity, especially to the household of faith?"

Our Lord asked wherein would be the profit to any man if he were to gain the "whole world and lose his own soul—lose his future life." The purpose of our present topic we might ask a modified question, namely, if one should gain the empire of the whole earth and all of its riches, and if another should gain this heavenly election to the heavenly Kingdom of one thousand years and go subsequently to heaven, which would be the better part—which would show the real wisdom, and which would be the foolish one? But the contrast increases when we note that the dominion of earth cannot be secured by our sailing through bloody seas, and that a mere competency of earthly wealth is attained by only one of a thousand who strive for it day and night. Surely from the standpoint of the Father's Word all earthly honors are vanities, in comparison with the heavenly glories and blessings which may be surely attained by the "called" of this Gospel Age—if they will but follow the Divine directions.

In our context St. Peter tells us upon what terms the called and accepted may make their election sure. After calling our attention to God's exceeding great and precious promises he tells us that they were given us to the intent that they should operate in our minds so as to influence our lives, in harmony with the Divine will; and that "wherefore mark the heavenly call of the Divine nature, after having escaped the corruption that is in the world through desire"—selfishness. Just (verse 4). He proceeds to amplify, and urges that such as have this hope shall give all diligence to the matter of adding to their faith virtue of fortitude. That is to say, faith of itself is very good as a start, but God requires more than this. As a condition of our acceptance for election he requires that our faith shall be of a strong kind, giving us fortitude for all of life's affairs; for all of our covetousness with the Lord; for a faithful endurance of opposition, contradiction, etc., that thus we might be copies of our Lord Jesus Christ, as God has ordained all of "the elect" must be (Romans viii, 29).

Not only must we have a strong faith combined with fortitude, but we must also add "knowledge." We require some knowledge of God and of our Lord Jesus and of the Gospel message before we could come unto the Lord at all, but the Apostle is not referring to this, our earliest knowledge; He is addressing Christians who have already taken the first steps. He assures us that they need knowledge to enable them to go forward in Christian development—knowledge in addition to their faith and fortitude. We have nothing to say against worldly knowledge, scientific knowledge, etc., when these do not cross or interfere with the Divine Revelation, but we are confident that the Apostle did not intend to refer to worldly knowledge, but to the greatest of all scientific knowledge—the knowledge of God.

How shall we know God? By study of his character. Our Lord Jesus it was who declared, "This is life eternal, that they might know thee, the only true God, and Jesus Christ, whom thou hast sent (John xvii, 3). This knowledge at the present time is a secret knowledge and, as the Apostle says, a "hidden mystery," which can be known only by those who put themselves into a certain attitude of heart and mind and conduct toward the Lord and his revelation. We are to study God's character—to learn respecting his Justice, his Wisdom, his Love and his Power, by studying his revelation—the Bible. In it we see his dealings past, and his promises respecting his dealings future. And a correct appreciation of these gives us a knowledge of God's character as exemplified therein. But since this knowledge is not stated in terms for the world to understand, it follows that only those in proper condition of heart and enlightened by the holy Spirit can receive this knowledge. It is taught only to the pupils in the School of Christ. "The secret of the Lord is with them that fear him; and he will show them his Covenant."

"Ye Shall Never Fail."

Now comes the climax of the advice to those seeking to make their calling and election sure (verse 8). "If these things be in you and abound, they make you that ye shall neither be barren nor unfruitful in the knowledge of our Lord Jesus Christ." And then as our text declares, if these things abound and if we give diligence to the making sure of our calling and election and do these things, we shall never fail—we shall in no case fall of securing our election. God seeketh such for joint-heirship with his Redeemer in the Kingdom. God "seeketh such to worship him as worship him in spirit and in truth."

The grand consummation of our election—our Kingdom honors and glories—is specifically referred to by St. Peter in the next verse, saying, "For so an entrance shall be ministered unto you abundantly into the everlasting Kingdom of our Lord and Savior Jesus Christ." If, dear brethren, we believe these things, let us permit them to control our lives—our words, our deeds and our thoughts. Surely we can well afford to be considered foolish along lines of the sacrifice of earthly interests, if thereby we can develop the character which our Lord desires and prove ourselves worthy of a share in his Kingdom.

A NEW ASSESSMENT.

There has been considerable demand for some time among those who are familiar with conditions in this County, for a new assessment. This demand, is based upon the well known fact that property is not now assessed upon a fair or equitable basis. It is a fact too well known to need any particular attention called to it, that the property today is assessed in various sections of the County upon a different valuation—and this is even true in the same sections and in many cases in adjoining farms. This being the case, it must be apparent to all that a new assessment is needed in this county.

If an assessment is decided upon, however, the Board of County Commissioners should be given full power to conduct it, and no pressure should be brought to bear upon them or upon any member of the Board for the appointment of any man from a political standpoint. What we want, if we must have an assessment, is one conducted on a business basis, with the assessors selected from men who are familiar with the values in all parts of the County and men who cannot be influenced either to add to or take from the valuation on any man's property no matter who he may be or what influence he may have in the politics of the County.

If a new assessment is to be made in the same way that most assessments have been made in the past we will not be much better off than we are at present, for property in different sections of the county will still be placed upon an unequal and unfair basis. We do not want sheep assessed in one place at $5 per head and in another at $3, nor do we want adjoining farms with little or no difference in real value assessed one at $5 per acre and the other at $25.

Whether or not the property should be assessed at its full value or whether it is assessed at a lower price would make but little difference to the tax payers, if all were placed on an equitable basis. There is, however, some danger in a high assessment, as this gives the County Commissioners a chance to keep the rate at what seems to be a fair one, yet bringing in a great deal more money. There is no disadvantage in this provided the money is needed and is properly used, but the having of considerable money at command is always a temptation to use it for some purpose or other whether needed or not. It is easier to keep a rate down than it is to get one down, and some Board of Commissioners may need money for a much needed improvement and be justified in increasing the rate for that purpose. The next Board would probably keep the rate at somewhere near the same figure and use the money whether needed or not. A lower assessment and a high or rate is probably the safest plan to go by, as the Commissioners will never make the rate over high owing to the criticism which would follow from an increased rate, while with a high valuation the rate could be kept at a figure which would seem to be a very reasonable rate and yet in fact be a much higher one than the other on a different valuation.

We have at present no able and business Board of Commissioners, and one that we believe would handle the re-assessment question in a business like manner, and as a new assessment is badly needed, there will probably never be a time when one can be taken with better advantage than at the present.

We are confident that if the present Board decides to make an assessment that they will organize it along strictly business lines and see that men are appointed to make the assessment who are qualified to pass upon the value of property, and that under their supervision we would have an assessment that would be fair and equitable to all.

Let us have a new assessment, and let the Board of Commissioners have a free hand in carrying it out.

Proceedings School Board At Last Meeting.

A petition signed by every parent of scholars of Shad Point School was presented to the Board asking for the erection of a more modern school building at that place. The Board filed the request for future consideration. The Board decided to close the public schools of the county for the Christmas holidays on Wednesday, December 22, and reopen them on Wednesday, January 5. The fall sessions are to be taught on Wednesday, December 22.

At the close of the session of the Board Friday an inspection of the new school buildings in East Salisbury and in Camden was made. The Board was highly gratified at the excellent work done on them by the contractors, Messrs D. E. Parker and Frank M. Mitchell. Both are splendid buildings, which would do credit to any city or town.

The Board decided to give a holiday on Friday, December 3, to the teachers of the Wicomico, Sharptown and Delmar High Schools in order to allow them to attend the meeting of the State High School Teachers Association which will be held in Baltimore on the above date.

The Board was notified that the annual meeting of the State School Commissioners Association would be held in Baltimore on Thursday and Friday, December 2 and 3. The county Superintendents Association will be held on the same dates. The members of the Board and County Superintendent Holloway are arranging to attend these meetings.

The Camden School.

The new Camden School building was completed on Friday and was opened on Monday with an attendance of 204 pupils, distributed in the following grades: Fourth Grade, Miss L. Cora Gillis, principal, 52; Third Grade, Miss Margaret Anderson, 38; Second Grade, Miss Grace Darby, 49; First Grade, Miss Wilsie Lowe, 66, and average of 51 to each room. This building is one of the best arranged and handsomest school buildings in this city. It contains four class rooms each 33½x33 feet. There are two cloak-rooms each 6x23½ feet. On the ground floor are two teachers' rooms, 12x14, and libraries. The halls are 14 feet wide. In the basement are two rooms designed for toilet rooms. Half of the basement is arranged for a rainy day playroom. This handsome building is located on 4½ acre lot on Locust Street.

Taft's Big Thanksgiving Dinner. Huge Turkey.

President Taft and his family had a genuine Thanksgiving dinner Thursday. In addition to the 40 pound turkey which had been sent to the White House by Horace Vose of Westley, B. L., and the 560 pound mince pie sent by the bakers of New York city, there was a 60 pound "billy possum," said to be the largest and plumpest ever trapped in the Georgia woods, on the table in the White House dining room.

Among the "trimmings" of the Taft dinner was a pyramid of the Giant Albemarle pippins received from the Virginia Horticultural Society.

Marriage Of Former Salisbury Girl To Delawarean.

A quiet but very pretty wedding took place in Dover, Delaware, at the home of the bride's parents, ten o'clock, Thanksgiving morning, when Miss Minnie Lee Taylor became the bride of Mr. William Lincoln Clayton. Only the immediate relatives of the contracting parties witnessed the ceremony which was performed by Rev. Joseph Brown Turner. After a wedding breakfast, Mr. and Mrs. Clayton took the noon train for a two weeks' Southern trip.

The bride is the only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd W. Taylor, well known to Salisbury people, having been residents of this city until 1898, at which time they removed to Dover, where they have made a wide circle of friends. The groom is a member of the firm of Stevenson and Clayton, prominent Dover merchants.

A Vell Hint.
If one wants to look ugly and stow- only, let the vell stretch and loose under the chin. No matter how well it is adjusted everywhere else, the appearance of a woman is ruined. A seller of imported vellings gives this hint to overcome this difficulty. After the vell is smoothly pinned and fastened on the hat and nape of neck, first try to draw back the objectionable fullness and secure it with invisible hairpins.
Should there still be a pendent, loose end under the chin, give it a little twist and turn it under. The vell holds smoothly in place, is more becoming and does not come loose until the vell is removed.
As this twisting usually comes in the same place, it does not stretch the lower edge of vell as much as one would suspect. Even though it does, a slight unevenness when the vell is off is much better than lack of trimness when worn.

Eat What

You want of the food you need
Kodol will digest it.

You need a sufficient amount of good wholesome food and more than this you need to fully digest it. Else you can't gain strength, nor can you strengthen your stomach if it is weak.

You must eat in order to live and maintain strength. You must not diet, because the body requires that you eat a sufficient amount of food regularly.

But this food must be digested, and it must be digested thoroughly. When the stomach can't do it, you must take something that will help the stomach.

The proper way to do is to eat what you want, and let Kodol digest the food.

Nothing else can do this. When the stomach is weak it needs help; you must help it by giving it rest, and Kodol will do that.

Our Guarantee

Go to your druggist today, and purchase a dollar bottle, and if you can honestly say, that you did not receive any benefits from it, after using the entire bottle, the druggist will refund your money to you without question or delay.

We will pay the druggist the price of the bottle purchased by you. This offer applies to the large bottle only and to but one in a family.

We could not afford to make such an offer, unless we positively knew what Kodol will do for you.

It would bankrupt us. The dollar bottle contains 2 1/2 times as much as the fifty cent bottle.

Kodol is made at the laboratories of E. C. DeWitt & Co., Chicago.

THE PRINCESS COME GALLOPING.

A WEEK passed an interesting week in which few things happened, openly, but in which the entire situation underwent a subtle but complete change. The mail steamer brought disconcerting news from London. Chase was obliged to tell the islanders that notice of a contest had been filed. The lineal heirs had pooled their issues and were now fighting side by side. The matter would be in chancery for months, even years. He could almost feel the gust of grief and disappointment that swept over the island, although a word came from the lips of the silent population. The very silence was foreboding.

He did not visit the chateau during that perplexing week. It was hard, but he resolutely kept to the path of duty, disdaining the pleasures that beckoned to him. Every day he saw and talked with Britt and Saunders. They, as well as the brisk Miss Pelham, gave him the "family news" from the chateau. It did not require extraordinary keenness. The worst part to gather that her ladyship and Browne had suddenly decided to engage in what he would call a mild flirtation, but what Saunders looked upon as a real attack of love.

"If I had the nerve I'd call Browne good and hard," said Britt over his julep. "It isn't right. It isn't decent. The disappear for hours at a time, and they're always got their heads together. Poor little Drusilla! She's from Boston, Chase, and can't refigure. Besides, Deppingham wouldn't take notice if she cried. The worst of it is Deppingham has got an idea that they may try to put him out of the way—him and Drusilla. Awful, isn't it? And, say, by the way, Saunders is getting to be a little more serious than you imagine. I must therefore forbid you to ride outside of the park."

far from the chateau?" he demanded, almost harshly. She looked at him in amazement.

"Am I a trespasser?" she asked coldly. "I beg your pardon," he said quickly. "I did not mean to offend. Don't you know that it is not safe for you to be 'alone'?" she exclaimed. "I am not afraid of your shadows. Why should they disturb me?"

"Look!" He pointed to the distant assemblage. "Those are not shadows. They are men, and they are making ready to transform themselves into beasts. Before long they will strike. Von Blits and Rasula have sunk my warships. You must understand that it is dangerous to leave the chateau on such rides as this. Come! We will start back together—at once."

"I protest, Mr. Chase, that you have no right to say what I shall do or not do. It isn't a question of right. You are nearly ten miles from the chateau. In the most unfrequented part of the island. Some day you will not return to your friends. It will be too late to hunt for you then."

"How very thrilling!" she said, with a laugh.

"I beg of you, do not treat it so lightly," he said, so sharply that she flushed. He was looking intently in the direction of the men. She was not slow to see that their position had been discovered by the miners. "Will you come with me now?"

"It seems so absurd! But I will come, of course. I have no desire to cause you any uneasiness."

As they rode swiftly back to the tree-lined road a faint chorus of yells came to them across the valley. For some distance they rode without speaking a word to each other. They had traversed two miles of the soft dirt road before Chase discovered that Selim was the only man following them.

The two men who had come out with the princess were not in sight.

"The dog!" So, you see, princess, your escort was not to be trusted," said Chase grimly.

"But they have stolen the horses," she murmured irrelevantly. "They belong to the chateau stables."

"Which direction did they take, Selim?"

"They rode off by the Carter's highway, excellency, toward Ararat."

"It may not appeal to your vanity, your highness, but it is my duty to inform you that they have gone to re-join our clandestine meeting."

"Clandestine! What do you mean, sir?"

"The islanders are watching me like hawks. Every time I am seen with any one from the chateau they add a fresh nail to the coffin they are preparing for me. It's really more serious than you imagine. I must therefore forbid you to ride outside of the park."

"I dare say you are right, Mr. Chase," she said at last, quite frankly. "I thank you."

ELOPING

Wrecked—Chastity And Life As No Cigarette.

Persons fatally injured as a result of an automobile accident near Onthbert, Ga., early Monday morning. The dead are: Curtis Williams, chauffeur, of Fort Gaines, Ga.; James Shepard and Horace Shepard, both of Edison, Ga.

The injured: Miss Helen Mattox, 30, and Miss Mary Mattox, 16, of Ogleman, Ga.

On Way To Marry.

With the purpose of being married James Shepard and Miss Helen Mattox, accompanied by Horace Shepard, a brother of the bridegroom to be, and Miss Mary Mattox a sister of the bride elect, hired an automobile at Fort Gaines and were driven to Onthbert by Williams. Upon reaching that point all the ministers refused to marry the couple on account of their youth, neither of them yet having passed their twentieth birthday. After being unable to obtain the services of a minister the party hastily left town. Speeding along at a rate of 30 miles an hour, and while attempting to light a cigarette, Williams lost control of his machine crossing a bridge, and the party was dashed to the railroad tracks, 30 feet below.

The machine fell upon Shepard and Williams. William's neck was broken and death resulted instantly. The two Shepards were frightfully injured and death resulted in a few moments. Miss Helen Mattox was severely bruised and her face and arms were badly lacerated. She also received internal injuries. Miss Mary Mattox was terribly injured.

TO MAKE WAR ON

Brutal Football. Presidents Of Four Leading Western Colleges Would Overhaul Rules.

With the presidents of four of the leading Western Colleges enlisted in the fight to eliminate brutal football, the move has received fresh impetus. That the gridiron game of the present day is doomed to a sudden overhauling is the stand maintained by four prominent educators.

Statements urging the immediate revision of the mode of play have been received from President Judson, of the University of Chicago, President Northrop of Minnesota, President Van Hise of Wisconsin, and Chancellor Avery of the University of Nebraska. That the sport is fast becoming a menace to the life and limb of all participants is the opinion of the educators.

On coal gridirons recently three victims were added to the list of injured. Captain Blinckhorn of the Morton Grove team was borne from the field, having fractured his collarbone during a fierce scrimmage. James Sullivan, of the Panther A. C., fractured three ribs, while Bruce of the same eleven, dislocated his shoulder.

MR. WALLER EXPLAINS

Position. Statement of Facts. Hearing Before City Council.

Eda. ADVERTISER:—Kindly give me space in your valuable paper to correct some misleading and false statements that have appeared in the papers regarding the proceedings before the City Council and my connection with the suspension of Officer Crouch.

In the last issue of the Worcester News, for instance, and under the misleading heading of "Crouch—Waller Difficulty," it states as follows:—"There was a lengthy hearing of the evidence on both sides before the City Council Friday night each side being represented by Counsel. After hearing all the evidence," etc. etc. Now I wish to state that this is wholly misleading as it fails to state all the facts and gives the public the impression I was personally prosecuting Crouch and had tried my case before the Council.

Now the facts that I wish to state are these: Mayor Harper, in the discharge of his official duty, for which as a citizen, I desire to thank him, filed charges against Mr. Crouch and suspended him from duty. As Crouch's assault upon me was the cause of his suspension, the Mayor requested me also to file charges. This I did some time afterwards, not realizing that it would be construed into a personal encounter between Crouch and myself. As soon as I realized my position, while I was willing to assist the Mayor and Council in their official duty to maintain discipline, I had my counsel withdraw my charges on Friday evening mentioned and tender myself ready to assist the Council in their investigation. Not a single witness was summoned on my behalf and the matter was heard wholly upon witnesses summoned on behalf of Mr. Crouch, though I did testify at the invitation of the Mayor. I realized that I could have no possible interest whether James Crouch was on or off the Police Force, further than any other law-abiding citizen, had in the peace and good order of the community, and did not desire any witness to testify for me and so informed the Mayor. I also believe the Mayor would have summoned other witnesses on his own responsibility if he had not expected I would summon them until a late hour.

Now this is all that was done before the Council. My charges withdrawn. Witnesses summoned on behalf of Crouch interrogated by the Mayor, and I testified at the call of the Mayor and without counsel. This is all the trial that there was.

As the News does not seem to have known of the assault at all until this late day, though known all over the community, it should be common justice to all, get the facts.

I wish to state also that while I was sick the reports of the assault to certain city papers were garbled and one sided. The Sun, which should have had a fair report, had none at all. The report of the Council proceedings also in this paper were grossly incorrect, one sided and misleading.

Respectfully yours,
John F. Waller.
