GERMANY.

VIENNA, February 4.

NEVER was there such a bustle among our ministry as at present. The private secretaries are almost inadequate to the task of making up the dispatches which are continually forwarding by couriers to Paris, Petersburg, Berlin, &c. Several ministers great courts have frequently long conferences with the first minister of state. In the war department, a more than double vigilance is observed. There is a motion among the troops, which excites apprehension the friends of peace. Several military persons of the first rank shew, by the dispositions which they are making, that they momentarily expect other orders. A yet an impenetrable veil hangs before these important omens, which however threaten a speedy and decisive solution.

ENGLAND.

LONDON, March 6.

THE DEY OF ALGIERS.

Extract of a letter from an officer in lord Nelson's fleet, dated off Algiers, Jan. 18, 1804.

On the night of the 15th, the Superb, commanded by captain Keats, anchored at Algiers, having Mr. Falcon, the consul general on board, and a letter from lord Nelson to the Dey, demanding that Mr. Falcon should be received as consul there, and that all the Maltese who have been lately captured by the Dey's cruisers, should be liberated and given up as British subjects. On the following morning, at day-break, a salute was fired from the fort, which, however, captain Keats did not return, but sent a lieutenant on shore with a letter, to request an audience of the Dey, which was accordingly granted. Captain Keats, accompanied by Mr. Scott, chaplain to lord Nelson, who speaks the Arabic fluently, and who acts as interpreter there, waited upon the Dey, and presented lord Nelson's letter, with a suitable and spirited conference on the occasion. Throughout the interview, which lasted nearly an hour, the Dey's conduct was very violent and outrageous, and it concluded his positively refusing to receive either Mr. Falcon back again, or to give up any of the Maltese in possession.

On the 17th, in the morning, our fleet of ten of the line came in sight of Algiers, when captain Keats again went on shore to wait upon the Dey, who never refused to see him, he being then busily employed on the batteries, and after waiting for nearly two hours, captain Keats returned on board, and on the next day, the 18th, communicated to lord Nelson all that had passed with the Dey.

Under these circumstances his lordship did not think it advisable to attempt further intercourse with the Dey, or to make use of any threat he was not prepared to realize, as though we could easily in a few days have destroyed his whole fleet, which was then lying in the Mole, and have knocked down the town at their ears, we might have crippled some of our ships in such a manner as to render them unable to relieve the blockade of Toulon at this season of the year, which was deemed a much more important object at the present moment. We therefore to-day sailed from Algiers, on our way to Toulon again.

The whole squadron were more disappointed than possibly express, at not being permitted to humiliate the Dey, and extirpate for a time this nest of pirates. Two hours would have done the business completely, and I trust we shall one day make the experience. I am perfectly convinced, from my own observation, and it was also the opinion of the ablest officers in the fleet, that four sail of the line would easily destroy all their works, and all their navy in the morning, with very little loss. They have in the Mole a great number of guns mounted on their principal battery, which defends the Mole where their ships are laid up, and it has a formidable appearance.

The bay is so injudiciously constructed, that line of battle ships can anchor upon each other, within half pistol shot, where not a gun could be brought to bear upon them, and in which position they would soon lay the whole work in ruins. The work is the sole defence of the town from the sea, except an old wall without a single gun mounted upon it, and which a few broadsides would blow into dust.

The garrison does not amount to above four thousand soldiers (if they can be called such,) who have no discipline or courage, and who particularly the English; not only from our naval skill, but from an ancient prophetic tradition they have amongst them, and which they all firmly believe "that Algiers is to be taken and destroyed by the English on a Sunday." The prophecy may be easily fulfilled by us whenever we chuse, and we must shortly take some decided steps to humble the Dey, unless we are content to pay him tribute, like most of the other European powers. No consul now can ever be sent back with honour or safety till satisfaction is obtained for the insults we have received.

"The Dey of Algiers is entirely guided by some Jew merchants residing at Algiers."

When admiral Linois's squadron fled from Pondicherry in the last week of July, (probably on receiving the intelligence of the war from the French government,) they left on shore 150 troops and six sacks of dollars, landed from one of their frigates. This treasure is now in our hands, as is also the town, though the French troops are not disarmed.—The French agents had already begun to form a vast establishment of seaports, by enormous bounties, and increase of pay, beyond that which we give to our native troops. The number slated to have been enrolled, though not regimented, are not less than 5000. This force is now, however, necessarily dispersed.

March 10.

Government are buying up a very great number of old merchant ships, for the purpose of sinking them at the mouths of the enemy's harbours.

From Dutch news-papers to the 3d instant, we have selected some interesting information from France, which we believe, will be found exclusively in our paper. On the 23d ult. Cardinal Belloy, archbishop of Paris, presented the congratulations of the clergy of Paris, on the discovery of the late conspiracy. On the 24th of February, Bessieres, commandant general of the consular guard, presented also similar congratulations on the part of his corps to madame Buonaparte.—Here follows a very important paper on the subject of the invasion, being an address to the first consul, and containing, no doubt, the sentiments of the French government.

From the staff of Boulogne, to the first consul. BOULOGNE, February 24.

"Citizen First Consul,

"The national flotilla have learnt, with the most lively indignation, the horrible attempt against your person. Like all the corps of the army—like all the citizens of the country—we tremble at the danger you have passed; but, placed in the face of that inimical land—which soon will be a witness what French valour can do, guided by virtue and good faith, against crimes and perjury—our souls were affected in reflecting that a conspiracy, the atrocity of which is increased by the inconceivable union of its accomplices, was about to put an end to the prosperous destinies of France; and that this flotilla, assembled at your orders, owing its existence to your genius, would find itself out of condition to fulfil the glorious causes which its hero creator alone would make it undertake. Thanks to the God of our armies, who has preserved you to lead us to victory! Yes, citizen first consul, the flotilla will break the space which separates it from those shores destined to be a new theatre of triumph for the brave armies of the republic. Vainly shall the enemy's fleets attempt to stop our passage! You have made the calculations! The means are ready! Order—and success shall prove to Europe that all is possible, when your genius conceives, and Frenchmen execute. Health and respect!

March 12.

An expedition sailed on Thursday evening against one or more of the enemy's ports, which it is confidently believed we can hermetically seal up by sinking a number of large vessels, deeply and heavily laden, in the mouth of them. Boulogne is the port which can be so sealed up, and the thousand and one gun-boats it contains, thereby rendered useless. On Thursday evening several large ships, consisting of two sixty-fours, some frigates, and bombs, with several gun brigs, shaped their course for Boulogne. A very heavy firing was heard at Dover the whole of Friday; towards the evening it was more heavy, and the boules at Dover were shaken by it; it continued during part of yesterday. It is supposed that the expedition which sailed on Thursday evening was engaged in accomplishing its object. The large ships which have failed are, it is said, loaded with stones, and these stones united together by iron bars and chains, so as to form one solid mass—and these are to be scuttled side by side, so as to lay the foundation for an embankment of sand, in the same manner as the French themselves succeeded by means of cones at Cherbourg. The whole of this will be done under the cover of our blockading squadron. The immediate good to be derived from it, is that it will give our ships increased depth of water in approaching the port, and enable them by a concentrated fire of bombs, to burn the whole force assembled.

The intelligence which has been for sometime circulated of the sailing of the French fleet from Toulon, is repeated on the authority of letters brought by the Lisbon mail of Saturday, and of one received from our squadron off Ferrol. At Cadix it was generally believed that the enemy's fleet put to sea on the 23d of January. No official communication of this event has reached the admiralty; and we have been favoured this morning with the perusal of letters from Ferrol, which positively state that the French ships were still in Toulon on the 14th ultimo.

By our Deal letter of this morning, we learn that a most tremendous firing was kept up a Boulogne yesterday, the object of which is supposed to have been the destruction of the flotilla of the enemy at that port.

A report has obtained, that lord Moira is to command an expedition to Holland. We cannot pledge ourselves for the accuracy of this statement.

March 15.

WAR WITH SPAIN.

It is reported in the political circles, at the West end of the town that this event is at no great distance. Indeed, we have been confidently assured that letters of marque and reprisal are now preparing to be issued against the ships and vessels belonging to that power.

DOVER, March 13.

Since my last, very heavy firing has been heard in the direction of Boulogne; but it being very thick weather, nothing could be seen from our hills, and no news has been heard from our blockading squadron; but last night three of the enemies gun boats were seen standing in for the Downs, with English colours above the French. The firing has been very heavy again to-day; and it being quite calm and thick, we have heard no news of the result; it is supposed that the enemy have made a movement to come out in the roads.

YARMOUTH, March 14.

Yesterday a great deal of firing was heard from the South East, which has continued great part of the day; it is supposed that an attack has been made by Sir Sidney Smith on the gun boats in Flushing.

MASSACHUSETTS.

BOSTON, April 17.

On Sunday, the schooner Topsham Beauty, capt. Somes, arrived at Gloucester, in 30 days from Surinam. We learn, that a British fleet was at the mouth of Surinam river with troops, and had demanded the surrender of the colony; that the governor had refused to submit to the English, and had expressed his determination to defend the place as long as possible; and that in consequence of the answer arrangements were making for a vigorous attack on the place.

April 23.

FROM THE ISLE OF FRANCE.

Captain Knowles, arrived here yesterday, in 68 days from the Isle of France, informs, that the news of the destruction of Bencoolen, had been confirmed; and that an official account had been received of the surrender of Pondicherry, to the English. The French troops, who defended the place for a time with great bravery, were allowed the terms of capitulation which they had asked for.

Captain Knowles further informs, that the privateers of that port, had not been very successful in their cruises against the English commerce in those seas; several of them had returned, a few days before he failed, without having met with a single prize.

FROM THE EAST INDIES.

Captain Myrick, who arrived here on Friday last, from Batavia, in the ship Indus, informs, that a French squadron, of one 74, two frigates and the corvette Berceau, (probably that commanded by admiral Linois) sailed from Batavia, the 8th December, which previous to the arrival of the Indus, had destroyed the English pepper magazines at Bencoolen, (on the island of Sumatra) to the amount it was said of from fifteen to twenty thousand picols.—And the same squadron had captured an English ship at Bencoolen, with a valuable cargo of Calcutta and Madras goods, and sent her to the Isle of France.

At a meeting of a number of democratic republicans at the city of Annapolis, on Friday the 20th day of April, 1804, GASSAWAY WATKINS having been chosen chairman, and NICHOLAS BREWER, secretary, the following resolutions were entered into and ordered to be published in the National Intelligencer, Maryland Gazette, and American.

WHEREAS this meeting have been published certain resolutions entered into by a meeting of republican citizens of Prince-George's county, at Upper-Marlborough, on the 10th instant; and whereas this meeting highly approve of the principles contained in said resolutions, and believe that the adoption of similar measures in Anne-Arundel county would tend to secure the election of democratic republican characters as electors of president and vice-president, member of congress, and delegates to the general assembly,

RESOLVED, That it be recommended to the democratic republicans of Anne-Arundel county to meet at the places of holding elections for their respective districts, on the 26th of May next, and appoint five delegates to meet in general committee, at the city of Annapolis, on the 16th of June, to fix on proper characters to be supported as delegates to the next general assembly.

RESOLVED, That the general committee to be thus selected, when assembled as aforesaid, determine on four characters whom they may consider best calculated to unite the democratic republican interest of this county as candidates at the next election of delegates, and this meeting pledge themselves to support the characters that may be designated by the committee aforesaid.

RESOLVED, That it be recommended to the general committee aforesaid, when thus assembled, to appoint a committee of their own body to consult with any similar committee that may be appointed by Prince-George's county, on the proper character to be run as representative in the next congress of the United States, and this meeting in like manner pledge themselves to support any character that may be fixed on by such general committee of the two counties.

RESOLVED, That it be recommended to the aforesaid general committee of Anne-Arundel county, to appoint a select committee of their own body to consult with any similar committees of Baltimore city, and that part of Montgomery county composing the electoral district, on the proper characters to be brought forward as electors of president and vice-president, and this meeting in like manner pledge themselves to support the characters that may be thus designated by the committees of this electoral district of president and vice-president.

GASSAWAY WATKINS, Chairman.
NICHOLAS BREWER, Secretary.

At a meeting of a number of respectable republicans at Upper-Marlborough, in Prince-George's county, on the 10th day of April, 1804, HUMPHREY BELT, Esquire, having been appointed chairman, and TRUEMAN TYLER, secretary, it was agreed that the following be published in the National Intelligencer and Maryland Gazette.

WHEREAS a general understanding of republicans, as far as is practicable, would tend to ensure success at the ensuing elections of electors of president and vice-president, member of congress, and delegates to the general assembly,

RESOLVED, That it be recommended to the republicans of Prince-George's county, that they meet at the several places of holding elections in their respective districts, on Saturday the 28th day of April, and appoint seven delegates to meet at Upper-Marlborough on the fifth day of May next, and fix on suitable characters to be recommended to the people to represent them in the next general assembly of Maryland.

RESOLVED, That it be recommended to the said delegates when thus assembled, or such committee as they may choose, to consult with any committee that may be appointed by the several election districts of Calvert, Montgomery, and Prince-George's counties, composing the electoral district of president and vice-president, and any character that may be appointed or fixed on, by such general committee of the said counties, this meeting pledge themselves to support, by all fair and upright means.

RESOLVED, That it be recommended to the delegates appointed as aforesaid, to meet at Upper-Marlborough, or such committee as they may choose, to consult with any committee that may be appointed for Anne-Arundel county, on the proper character to represent this district in the congress of the United States, and that this meeting pledge themselves to support, by all fair and honourable means, the person that may be fixed on, as aforesaid, as a candidate at the next election for member of congress.

HUMPHREY BELT, Chairman.
TRUEMAN TYLER, Secretary.

Ten Dollars Reward.

Whoever takes up said fellow, and secures him in any gaol, so that I may get him again, shall receive the above reward, paid by

SENSIBILITY.

BY MRS. KNIFE.

A ROSE-BUD overcharg'd with dew,
Its with'ring head reclin'd;
Nigh broken from its parent bough,
The sport of ev'ry wind.
Maria to the woodbine bow'r
With Ella chanc'd to walk;
Careful she rais'd the drooping flow'r,
And ty'd its bending stalk.
"Ah live!" she cry'd, "my lovely Rose!
"And let your charms expand;
"Free to the gale your sweets disclose,
"Nor dread the spoiler's hand."
As through the grove, at close of day,
Maria lonely stray'd;
A wretched female cross'd the way,
And thus implor'd her aid:
"In pity hear a Daughter's prayer,
"In pity haste to save;
"Alfred, my Father, bow'd with care,
"Is sinking to his grave.—
"Content, within a little cot,
"Which decks yon humble vale,
"The grateful song that blest our lot,
"Was borne on ev'ry gale.
"The lord of these domains one day
"Beheld this luckless face;
"His bosom justice ceas'd to sway,
"And passion held her place.
"In vain to win me to his arms,
"Each gaudy lure he try'd;—
"For me his riches wanted charms—
"Virtue was all my pride.
"Then wild revenge inflam'd his breast;
"Beneath oppression's rod
"My aged father sunk distress'd,
"And hop'd—but in his God.
"Heav'n knows my pure unspotted fame,
"Yet more than Life I prize!
"Nor will I earn the bread of shame—
"No—though my Parent dies!
"Then gracious hear sad Anna's prayer—
"If you delay to save,
"My father, bow'd with want and care,
"Must sink into his grave!"
In vain the murmurs of distress
Assail'd Maria's ear;
What misery would fain express,
Maria would not hear.
A gen'rous Rustic, as he pass'd,
O'erheard the mournful tale—
Borne on the wings of eager haste,
He fitted to the vale.
And, as the bounteous dole he gave,
Beneficently smil'd;
Rejoic'd, from lawless pow'r to save
The Father and the Child!
Shame on those hearts that never felt
A fellow-creature's woes—
Yet tenderly affect to melt
IN PITY FOR A ROSE!

And whereas the said Paul Pilsbury hath assigned all his right, title, and interest, of and to the said patent machine to Paul Adams, of Newbury, Thomas Burnham, Joseph Swasey, and Joseph Lord, Esquires, of Ipswich, and state of Massachusetts, and thereby giving to them the exclusive right of constructing, using, and vending to others to use the said machine for fourteen years from the date of said letters patent; with full power to receive all benefits and profits accruing therefrom, and to perform and execute all such acts relative to the same as the said Paul Pilsbury might have legally performed or executed.

NOTICE.

That by virtue and authority of the above assignment, the aforesaid Adams, Burnham, Swasey, and Lord, hath given, granted, and assigned, unto James Williams, of the city of Annapolis, the exclusive right, liberty, and authority, to construct, use, and vend to others to be used, the aforesaid shelling machine, during the whole unexpired term of fourteen years, (for which the exclusive privilege has been secured as aforesaid by letters patent) for the state of Maryland, and all that part of the district of Columbia lying on the north side of the river Patowmack. Said Williams has one of the machines, which may be seen at Annapolis at any time, and is now ready to furnish any person or persons with one or more of the said machines, with licence to make use of the same, or to grant licence to make use of them without furnishing the machine, one machine might serve four or five persons in a neighbourhood, by each person getting licence to use it, which will not exceed five dollars each.

This machine has been seen and much approved of by the president, and most of the members of congress, as well as by a great number of gentlemen farmers and others from different parts of the United States. The cost of a machine, with licence to work it, will not exceed thirty dollars. I will sell the exclusive right of making use of this machine for one or more counties, on very moderate terms. A man and a boy with this machine worked by hand, may easily shell one hundred bushels of corn in a day. The machine may be easily fixed to be turned by a horse, or water.

Please to take notice, that no other in this or any other state can grant licence to use this machine within the state of Maryland, or part of the district of Columbia; any person making use of it without a proper licence will be presented if known.

MARYLAND GAZETTE.

THURSDAY, MAY 10, 1804.

Foreign Intelligence.

ENGLAND.

LONDON, March 6.

The Courier de Londres, of Tuesday, under the head of Paris, contains the two following letters, which, it says, have excited a great sensation in the military circles:

General Moreau to lieutenant-general Duroc.
PARIS, September 8.

GENERAL,

HAVE received the letter which you have done me the honour to write to me in the name of the consul, offering me a command in the expedition against England. I thought that my opinion of that enterprise was sufficiently known to have saved me the unpleasantness of rejecting such a proposition. I shall, now, however, answer with the frankness of a soldier, who can explain himself the more fully, without reserve, upon the present occasion, as he has given some proofs of courage, and done his duty some important services; and besides, general, I consider your letter as being rather intended to inform my intentions, than as transmitting to me orders. I have never been the advocate of maritime expeditions, particularly since I have seen the remains of our marine, and the choice of our armies, followed up in them with astonishing rapidity. I think that, in forming enterprises, the issue of which is very uncertain, and the result of which may give a mortal blow to the government which conceives it, and to the nation which seconds them, one must be forced to them by circumstances so important, that the safety and honour of the state would be compromised, if one should make a retrograde step should discover weakness or irresolution.

I do not see that the present circumstances offer us to risk, against a thousand unfavourable chances, the greater part of our land forces; and that generating marine, which is beginning to be created were by magic, by an enthusiastic and industrious people. I have asked myself, when I saw the considerable armaments that were making for the re-occupation or acquisition of our colonies, whether the cause was so solid that we should hope to be able to recover what we had recovered or acquired, and if restoration of our commerce were so necessary or certain that we ought to employ in it so much treasure and so many soldiers. Let the first consul permit me, who feels a lively attachment to his old companions in arms, to express here some regret for unfortunate events in the too bold combinations which have destroyed so great a number of them. I regret will explain to him my present opinion of expedition that is preparing, and my refusal to take part in the direction of it. We had the best of Europe, the best means of recruiting our forces weakened by eleven years of war. In its place we have now corps almost entirely composed of conscripts, among whom we no longer observe the veterans; but like those ruins which attest the grandeur and magnificence of those edifices which time has overthrown.

At present, if we may judge from the immense preparations that are making from the concentration of our forces, upon points near the coast, recollecting the declarations made by government, and the reports which it accredits, the business in hand is nothing less than a desperate enterprise, the improbable success of which would be the ruin of England, but whose ultimate result will weaken us as a continental power, and be our total destruction as a maritime nation. I may be permitted to ask, upon seeing evidence of such great magnitude hazarded or compromised, whether we were in a situation so critical with respect to England, that we were obliged to swear its destruction, and to prepare our own ruin. We were careful and respected upon the continent; we directed with too much impetuosity perhaps all its political transactions; we were safe from the power of the English navy, and for a long time, no doubt, as to the intrigues of the ministers of England; and in this situation, truly strong, energetic, and invincible, that we attempt an enterprise which could only be excused by a despair that left us no choice of resources. I am far from disapproving of the enthusiasm excited in the nation against a nation eternally rival, and almost always its enemy, from blaming efforts and the sacrifices which it inspires; but I think that the action of government ought to confine itself to the development of these dispositions for the sake of preparing, through it, the restoration of our marine; but to go farther to devote to such great efforts, our armies, still in the labour of their re-organization; this general, be assured, is to expose us to be assailed by those continental powers who are jealous of us, and have their eye upon us. This is to replace us in the disastrous circumstances, from which we were only extricated by the miracle that brought back Buonaparte from Egypt, and made him triumph on the 18th Brumaire. May I be now permitted, general, to make an observation which a wife and regular government is worthy to bear and to appreciate; but which I should not have hazarded in the time of disorder and anarchy, when the law of nations was scarcely more respected among us than the liberty of individuals. We are told every day that we are restored to civilization, that we are replaced in the first rank of social order, and yet an expedition is announced worthy in its principles of those unsettled colonies who contend with their neighbours for enjoyment which they do not find at home, or of those savage hordes who see, in the end of war, nothing but the booty which they may acquire, and in its result the total annihilation of the adverse horde.

Such, however, are the strange ideas that have been propagated among the soldiers to excite them to obtain, from their cupidity, a devotion expected in vain from real courage. I do not pretend here to discuss the rights of conquest, nor to examine whether they can be extended in proportion to the perils which have been run to obtain them; but is it politic to announce before hand every thing that is meant to be derived from it? Is it fit to present it to the eyes of those who are to undertake it, only as a vast scene of pillage and assassination? It is, no doubt, contrary to the intentions of the first consul that such means should be employed to corrupt the minds of our brave warriors, and to substitute the love of gain for the honour of glory; but it is to you, general, I confide the honourable task of illustrating to him these intrigues, and telling him how much they afflict military men, who are faithful to the laws of honour. They all see, as I do, with inquietude, that every day is suffered to depress that spirit which in the early period of our military glory had no other impulse but the thirst of glory, the love of the country, I might almost say the enthusiasm of liberty, and surely that spirit will not revive, in which nothing is demanded of them but a blind temerity, in which nothing is prescribed to them but the abuse of victory. I speak with liberty, with confidence; and I do not think it a proof of courage. It would be shewing a want of esteem for the head of the government to see any danger in telling him what is just and true.

I have the honour to be, &c.

Lieut. general Duroc to general Moreau.

One o'clock in the morning.

MY COMRADE,

I have laid before the first consul the letter which you have done me the honour to write to me, the 8th instant. It is with pain that I send it back to you by his orders. The gen. first consul charges me to inform you that he does not recognize in it the language of a Frenchman, nor the character of a distinguished soldier. He has sent it back to you for the purpose, that by destroying this evidence of an error which he wishes to forget, you may be sure that it will never be made use of to tarnish your glory, nor to impeach your intentions. The general first consul orders me to acquaint you, that he wishes to have some conversation with you in private, the 25th instant.

I am, with respect, your comrade.

DUROC.

March 15.

The report of the sailing of the Toulon fleet seems contradicted by an address which appears in the Moniteur of the first instant, signed by admiral Gantheume, and several other officers, and dated Toulon, February 21st.

The firing heard at Deal and Dover two or three days ago, did not, it is now said, proceed from our cruisers, but from the enemy, who were exercising their mortars, gun-batteries, and flotilla. Their boats and vessels have made no movement indicative of an intention to put to sea.

YARMOUTH, March 12.

The Princess of Wales cutter, commanded by lieutenant Robert Cameron, arrived in the roads yesterday afternoon, with dispatches from Sir Sidney Smith, after a run of eleven hours from Flushing, where she left the commodore, who is not content with blockading ports in the common way, but has actually moored his own ship, the Antelope, Crescent and Magicienne, at the mouth of the Duerloo, which has effectually stopped up that passage to Flushing; the Cruiser brig, and Rater sloop of war, are moored in Wullings, within three miles and a half of the enemy's flotilla, which are anchored in the roads, to the amount of 60 or 70 sail. When our ships can do this in the face of an enemy, and in their own harbours, what have Englishmen to fear from invasion.

American Intelligence.

MASSACHUSETTS.

Boston, April 25.

Captain Taylor, from St. Bartholomews, informs of the receipt of the intelligence there from Barbadoes, announcing the arrival of an English fleet, with 1300 troops on board, destined, it was supposed, against Martinique and Surinam. Our last accounts from England, mention the equipment of a fleet for the West-Indies; and we find by our monthly army list, for January, that the 16th, 46th and 70th regiments of the line, were embarked for the West-Indies. They sailed about the 2d January. Admiral Dacres commanded the Squadron.

April 29.

FROM THE MEDITERRANEAN.

Captain Coleman arrived at Nantucket, from Salou, touched at Gibraltar, on his passage, and there saw a letter from commodore Preble, informing of his having taken a very valuable Tripolitan ship, and another prize, with 30 gentlemen and as many ladies, on a party of pleasure; with these it was expected he would be able to exchange the officers of the Philadelphia frigate.

We learn, that Mr. Eaton is to go out to Tripoli, to negotiate peace with that regency; or to bring the war to a prompt issue.

NEW-YORK.

NEW-YORK, April 30.

Arrived, the British ship Minerva, Valentine, in 40 days from Falmouth, (England.) The Minerva sailed from Falmouth on the 21st ultimo, in company with 6 sail for Newfoundland, under convoy of the Wolverine, captain Gordon, of 16 guns, and on the 25th, in lat. 48, long. 22, fell in with a French frigate of 36 guns and a corvette. An action took place between the Wolverine and the frigate, and after three broadsides the former struck. The corvette in the mean-time, chased the convoy, and captured two of them, and probably the rest. The brig Bee, of Peel, was the first one captured. (There was nothing new at Falmouth.)

PENNSYLVANIA.

PHILADELPHIA, April 30.

Yesterday arrived the ship Rufus, Hazard, from London. Sailed from the Downs the 19th of March last, brings nothing new. The Juliana for New-York was to sail the same week.

Captain H. however, informs, that the boat which came out to take off his pilot, informed him that a vessel had just arrived at Deal, from the coast of France, having on board five or six French generals implicated in the conspiracy against Buonaparte, but who had fortunately effected their escape.

Captain Dalhousie, arrived at Boston, from Bordeaux, informs, that Moreau, was still in confinement, and that the commander of the consular guards had also been arrested as an accomplice in the late conspiracy against the life of Buonaparte, and, after a summary trial, was immediately shot. Pichegru and Moreau, it was expected, would meet the same fate.

Governor Claiborne, of Louisiana, at first only received a temporary appointment. Letters from New-Orleans, now say, he is to be continued in the office.

Extract of a letter from the Cape of Good Hope, January 24.

"There is a French ship in the bay, (the Geographe) which has been three years in search of the ships of the celebrated Peyrouse. She found two men among the natives of New-Zealand, who had belonged to them, and were the only survivors out of the two ships, and have since died on board the Geographe. They informed, that one of the ships were burnt, and the other (Peyrouse's own ship) went to pieces.

ligencer, Maryland Gazette, and American.

WHEREAS this meeting have seen published certain resolutions entered into by a meeting of republican citizens of Prince-George's county, at Upper-Marlborough, on the 10th instant; and
whereas this meeting highly approve of the principles contained in said resolutions, and believe that the adoption of similar measures in Anne-Arundel county would tend to secure the election of democratic re publican characters as electors of president and vice president, member of congress, and delegates to the general assembly,

RESOLVED, That it be recommended to the de mocratic republicans of Anne-Arundel county to meet at the places of holding elections for their respective characters to be supported as delegates to the next

general assembly.

RESOLVED, That the general committee to be thus selected, when assembled as aforesaid, determine

port the characters that may be designated by the committee aforesaid.

RESOLVED, That it be recommended to the ge neral committee aforesaid, when thus assembled, to ap point a committee of their own body to consult with any similar committee that may be appointed by Prince-George's county, on the proper character to be run as representative in the next congress of the United States, and this meeting in like manner pledge themselves to support any character that may be fixed on by such general committee of the two counties.

RESOLVED, That it be recommended to the afo

THE BEGGAR BOY.

LOUD howl'd the tempest, and cold was the night,
Just twelve had the village bell toll'd,
No star was there seen to lend its faint light,
And dark was the heath to behold.
Yet a sufferer there was who despairingly lay,
Whom the storm threaten'd soon to destroy,
Stretch'd out at his length, on the cold and dank clay,
Lay a wretched, forlorn BEGGAR BOY.
A traveller was passing, and heard his faint moan,
The sound gave a check to his speed,
And pausing awhile, heard a still deeper groan,
And instantly rein'd in his steed.
He dismounted, and long did he look all around,
Unsuccessful was still his employ;
At length he discover'd, half dead on the ground,
The wretched, forlorn BEGGAR BOY.
As soon as the object distress'd met his eye,
Of tears was the stranger beguil'd,
His bosom was heaving with sympathy's sigh,
In his arms as he rais'd the poor child.
Whose long worn out garments were drench'd with the rain!
And long did the stranger employ
Every means the apparent led life to regain,
Of the wretched, forlorn BEGGAR BOY.
He rode on still faster, his tale to gain,
Tho' cheerless and dark was the night,
His charge, on a rich satin sofa was lain,
And open'd his eyes to the light.
He look'd round the gay, splendid room, with surprise,
And the Baron's heart glowing with joy,
With pleasure saw gratitude's tears in the eyes
Of the wretched, forlorn BEGGAR BOY.
And delighted he view'd the re-animate glow,
On a face late so pale and so wan,
Tho' the Beggar Boy's tears still continued to flow,
Yet his artless tale, thus he began:
"May God ever bless you, good Sir," cried the child,
"May you ever each blessing enjoy,
"I'm unus'd to this goodness—you look too so kind
"On the wretched, forlorn BEGGAR BOY.
"Yet once I was lov'd, and my parents not poor,
"A competence then blest their days,
"Against the distress'd never clos'd was their door,
"And the poor ever spoke in their praise.
"My much lov'd father, the noblest of men,
"In me center'd every joy.
"My mother ador'd me—not was I then
"A wretched, forlorn BEGGAR BOY.
"But too soon, alas! did war's dire alarms,
"To battle my father invite.
"And scarce a few months had he left our fond arms,
"Ere he met with his death in the fight.
"As soon as the news met my poor mother's ears,
"And bereft her of every joy,
"Death clos'd the sad scene of her earthly career,
"And left me a poor BEGGAR BOY.
"My stern uncle seiz'd on my houses and land,
"And made me thus wretched and poor,
"He denied me relief, and his merciless hand,
"Has spurn'd me away from his door.
"Two years have I wander'd, dejected and lost,
"And hoping death soon would destroy,
"A life that on misery's billows had tost,
"The wretched, forlorn BEGGAR BOY.
"No more shall a Beggar's sigh heave in thy breast," (Cried the good, noble Baron, in tears)
"From thy stern uncle thy lands will I wrest,
"And here end for ever thy cares."
Transported, the innocent sunk on his knees,
Clasp'd his hands in a tumult of joy,
"Look down my much lov'd parent and see
"Your ALBERT's no more a forlorn BEGGAR BOY.

ITALY.

GENOA, February 11.

On the course of last week a frequent and heavy cannonading was heard from several points of our coast, as at first imagined that it proceeded from Toulon, but it is now known every thing is quiet in that harbor. On the 7th instant, signals were made on the heights of Ventimigliu for a squadron of about 20 ships being in sight; but it could not be distinguished of what nation they were.

MILAN, February 23.

The approaching spring may be expected to produce events of the greatest importance on the coast of Italy and in the Mediterranean sea. The French army in Italy will be considerably reinforced, and several corps are on their march from our republic for the Neapolitan territory, which will be replaced by fresh troops from France. It is reported, that the French troops have received orders to take possession, not only of the city of Naples, but of the island of Sardinia. Admiral Nelson appears to be informed of their intention, as he has already appeared with his fleet off Sardinia and the Genoese coast. The accounts from France and Italy say nothing of the sailing of the Neapolitan fleet.

The exchange of couriers between this city and the French headquarters in the Neapolitan territory is very frequent, and every thing appears to indicate that important events may soon be expected.

GERMANY.

VIENNA, March 3.

According to accounts from Constantinople the Porte is strengthening its force by sea and land as rapidly as possible. A great augmentation of the army has in particular been ordered.

HAMBURG, March 13.

The French army in Holland and the adjacent countries is now to be augmented to 130,000 men. The army in Hanover, which makes a part of it, is estimated at 25,000 men. The embargo in Holland continues, by order of the French government, both in that country and in France, the arrests continue to multiply. Paris exhibits the same scene of terror as under Robespierre. After seven in the morning nobody is permitted to pass through the barriers, and domiciliary visits continue to be made. The unfortunate Moreau has, by some accounts, been moved from the temple to the prison of Vincennes. He continues to persist in his denial of having seen either Georges or Pichegru, or of having any connection with them.

Letters from Petersburg, of the 24th ult. state, that Count Markow has frequent conferences with the Emperor.

HOLLAND.

HAGUE, March 6.

Harmony, who will to-morrow set out again for Utrecht, had a long conference with our minister of War, Pyman, and the marine council. He is not entirely satisfied with the state of our preparation in the army. To-day he will review the garrison here.

AMSTERDAM, March 6.

We are assured that the destination of the Squadron under Admiral Harstink, on board of which is 2000 men, is Ceylon. An expedition for the recovery of settlements there, could not be undertaken at a favorable time.

ENGLAND.

LONDON, March 17.

A letter has been received from Lisbon, of a late date, which contains the following intelligence of importance.

LISBON.

The French envoy has announced officially to his countrymen merchants here, that they need be under no apprehension of a rupture between this country and France; as he has finally concluded, on the 19th of December, a separate treaty of neutrality. The price of wheat is understood to be sixteen millions of francs; Portuguese merchants having been called on by the French government for their advice how that sum may be most easily raised. I have good reason to suppose a loan is allowed to pay the money, by monthly instalments; which induces me to think Buonaparte does not intend to drive the country to extremities. Since the arrival of the last packets, a report is current here, that Great-Britain agrees to the terms of neutrality with Spain and Portugal; but that, seeing they have been obliged to purchase them, requires some guaranty against further exactions and concessions. Possession of Madeira and Goa is demanded of Portugal. I have not heard what is asked of Spain. At all events, Mr. Addington appears to be under no apprehension of our being in immediate danger here, as he positively altered the destination of transports which had been ordered to take British subjects and their property from hence.

A very heavy firing was heard yesterday evening at Dover. No intelligence had arrived during the course of yesterday from Boulogne; but the firing last night is supposed, by our Dover correspondent, to proceed from the enemy's batteries throwing shells at our ships becalmed near the shore. We rather think it proceeds from our vessels, which may be carrying into execution the plan we mentioned a few days ago relative to the sealing up the harbour of Boulogne.

March 20.

Private advices from Rome, of the 8th ult. mention that the king of Sardinia still continues to reside there, and receives a great many foreigners of distinction. He is likewise said to have an English diplomatic agent near his person, who enjoys his confidence to the highest degree. His majesty's departure to Sicily was confidently talked of. He frequently receives dispatches from the court of Peterburg. The king is said to be willing to leave Sardinia to the English during the war, provided the British government will guaranty, that on a general peace he shall receive back a part of his former dominions, or otherwise a competent indemnity. The negotiations on this subject are said to be in a state of great forwardness; but the French who seem to have some intelligence of what is going forward, are said to meditate an expedition against Sardinia.

Since the beginning of February a number of French couriers have constantly been passing from Paris to the headquarters of general St. Cyr, at Tarento, and thence back again to Paris. This army which is near 40,000 men strong, is to receive a reinforcement of near 30,000 men more, and has made movements to approach the capital of the kingdom of Naples, which the king, in that case will quit to return to Sicily.

March 27.

MESSAGE FROM HIS MAJESTY.

The chancellor of the exchequer presented a message from his majesty to the following purport:—

“GEORGE REX.

“His majesty thinks it proper to acquaint the house of commons, that the officers, non-commissioned officers, and privates, of several regiments of the militia of Ireland, have made a voluntary tender of their services to any part of Great-Britain. His majesty has received with satisfaction this striking proof of the attachment and zeal displayed by his loyal subjects, for the general defence and security of the united kingdom. Conceiving that this patriotic offer may be attended with the most important advantages at the present critical juncture of affairs, his majesty recommends it to his faithful commons, to enable him to avail himself thereof, and to make provision for such regiments as may have occasion to come into this country, for such a length of time, and to such an extent, as they shall think proper and expedient.”

The chancellor of the exchequer moved that this message be taken into consideration on Wednesday next, and said, that on the same day his right hon. friend, Mr. Secretary Yorke, intended to make a motion for improving the military force of the country.

The fleet under Lord Nelson off Toulon, consists of the following ships of the line:

Victory	100	Lord Nelson
		Capt. Murray
		Sutton
Canopus	80	R. A. Campbell
Donnegal	80	Sir R. Strachan
Gibraltar	80	Ryves
Kent	74	R. A. Bickerton
Belleisle	74	Hargood
Excellent	74	Sotherton
Renown	74	White
Suberb	74	Keats
Triumph	74	Sir R. Barlow, Bart.
Agincourt	64	Schomberg
Monmouth	64	Hart
Hindostan	50	Le Gros
Brakel	50	Clarke

There are other ships in the Mediterranean not included in this list. We are to add also the frigates Seahorse, Medusa, Active, Amazon and Diana, of 38 guns each, the Phebe, of 36 guns, and the Juno of 32 guns. From such a powerful force, wielded by such a commander, we may fairly anticipate the most glorious consequences.

MASSACHUSETTS.

BOSTON, May 4.

FROM FRANCE.

Captain Carver who arrived yesterday from Bayonne in 40 days, brings verbal accounts somewhat later than we have received. When captain C. arrived at Bayonne, there were stationed there about 35,000 troops, which were afterwards ordered to different parts. There were likewise about 200 gun boats in readiness, and the whole topic of conversation was the invasion. Capt. C. understood, however, that news of peace would be very acceptable. It was rumoured that Moreau was executed.

NEW-YORK.

NEW-YORK, May 9.

EARTHQUAKE. A pretty smart shock of an earthquake was felt on Monday night between 1 and 2 o'clock in this city and neighbourhood. It was followed by a second but lighter one, at about four. The shaking of the houses created considerable alarm and apprehension. The direction of its course seemed from east to west. The atmosphere, at this hour, was tranquil, and the sky serene and brilliant.

At an early hour yesterday morning, the state-prison, in the neighbourhood of this city, was discovered to be in flames. Notwithstanding the active exertions of our citizens, the fire continued its ravages for two or three hours; and before it could be extinguished, consumed the roof and the garret floor of the north wing and the north part of the front, to within a few feet of the centre of the building. The damage sustained is estimated at 25,000 dollars. The building was set on fire by the prisoners.

The following letter from captain Preble to the American consul at Cadiz, is obligingly furnished us by the latter for publication in the Mercantile Advertiser.

Malta, 20th January, 1804.

“On the 23d ultimo I captured off Tripoli some of the Bashaw's principal officers, a number of his soldiers, thirty young women, and twelve black men.”

(Signed)

EDWARD PREBLE.

A letter from Alicant to a merchant in Cadiz, dated February 23d, says, “By the American schooner —, Burger, who arrived here yesterday in a few days from Leghorn, I am informed the French have embargoed all the vessels then in that port, and have pressed a great many seamen both there and at Genoa. They have also ordered 200,000 rations to be provided for an expedition which is to take place immediately, supposed against Sicily or Sardinia; but which of the two, or whether either of them, is not known with certainty.”

FROM MALTA—27th February.

“Captain Hull, in the Argus, returned here in 36 hours from Alicant, but heard nothing of the Tripoline cruiser; yet he brought an account of the commodore having taken one with about 60 men on board bound to Syracuse. Captain Hull is gone to Tangiers.”

May 12.

FROM ST. DOMINGO.

Captain Hodge, arrived at Newburyport, from Cape Francois, states that a week before he sailed from the Cape a disturbance happened between Christophe, and the captain of an English frigate. The lieutenant of the frigate with several of her men attempted one night to take off a number of the French inhabitants. The blacks were alarmed, assembled in great numbers, and with Christophe at their head, took from the lieutenant his side arms. The next morning they were sent along side, but the captain of the frigate refused to receive them, and would neither suffer the boat to be along side the frigate nor to go ashore. A flag of truce was then sent ashore demanding satisfaction; in the mean-time the frigate got springs on her cables, and warped up abreast the city, and signals of hostility flying, and in readiness to fire on the city if necessary. The English captain, however, received no satisfaction, and in 3 days was ordered from the place.

The schooner Citizen, arrived yesterday, from Gibraltar, brings intelligence that Lord Nelson had cautioned British vessels against proceeding up the Mediterranean, as he was about to bombard Algiers. Mr. Pinckney, American ambassador at Madrid, had given official information, that the terms of quarantine at Cadiz was reduced to fifteen days. Captain Bainbridge and officers were liberated through the interference of Mr. Gavino, United States consul. A report was in circulation that the French had imposed an embargo at Leghorn, in February.

PENNSYLVANIA.

PHILADELPHIA, May 10.

We are sorry to learn, that accounts are received in town stating that a few days since a fire was discovered in the mansion house of Mount Vernon. It was extinguished without its committing any very material damage; but it is understood that circumstances have appeared, in the inquiries for its origin, which give too much reason to believe that it was the effect of design.

His honour Bushrod Washington at present holding court in this city, in consequence of hearing this disagreeable intelligence, has been obliged to adjourn the session, and intends immediately to proceed to Mount Vernon.

WILKESBARE, May 5.

We are sorry to state that Mr. Howes Goldsborough of Newton, N. Y. has lost two arks loaded with wheat, near Havre-de-Grace. One of them after having run to the Chesapeake bay, was sunk by the violence of the waves, the other broke from her fastening in the night, and has undoubtedly gone to pieces.

We learn too with regret that Mr. James Irwin, of the same place, has lost an ark, about 800 bushels of wheat and a number of barrels of pork.

The dangers of navigating the Susquehanna below this place, are so numerous, that every prudent man would rather take the price for his produce, which we could afford to give for it here if the turnpike road was finished, than run the risk of proceeding further down with it.

NAVIGATION OF THE SUSQUEHANNA.—In our last paper we stated that 550 rafts had passed this place on their way to market; since that publication, about 50 more have gone down, besides a number of arks. It will not therefore be far from correct to state that the whole number of rafts which have descended the river, from, and about this place the present spring, will amount to 600; and the number of arks to 100. These numbers will be considered great, when we state that in 1796, only 30 rafts went down from and above this place; and not a single ark until the year 1800.

On Friday evening, April 20th, a boat belonging to Daniel Montgomery of Danville, stove at Hunter's Falls nine miles above Harrisburgh; 750 bushels of wheat being the whole of her lading were lost, and three men were drowned, one of whom commanded the boat; two of them had large families, and the third was a young man lately married.

KENTUCKY.

LOUISVILLE, April 14.

Arrived at this port on Monday last, the new brig Nanina, captain M'Cutcheon, in ten days from Pittsburgh, where she was built and completely fitted for sea; and burthen about one hundred and fifty tons.—She is the property of Mr. James Berthoud.

Also the new ship Louisiana, captain James M'Keever, on board of which came the family of Mr. Berthoud, owner, who has removed to this place, we are informed, for the purpose of carrying on the ship building more extensively. The Louisiana is to take in a freight of cotton at the mouth of Cumberland river—her burthen is about three hundred and thirty tons. We are sorry to add, that the above vessels cannot pass the falls until the water rises.

LEXINGTON, April 10.

On Monday the second instant, a strong and well-built ship was safely launched at Limestone, to the extreme gratification of a very large concourse of people. The enterprize of Mr. Charles Gallagher, the entire owner of this vessel, merits the good wishes and patronage of Kentucky.

OHIO.

CINCINNATI, April 11.

Within a few weeks five vessels have passed this town for New-Orleans; one brig from Marietta left this place yesterday. Mr. Gallagher's ship from Limestone passed down on Monday last. From the present state of the Ohio, it is feared they will not be able to pass the Falls.

BALTIMORE, May 12.

Extract of a letter from a correspondent, to the editor of the New-York Morning Chronicle, dated Savannah, April 27.

"This city, for several days past, has been in as great a consternation and uproar as it is possible for you to conceive—the circumstance that gave rise to it has been the misconduct of Jabez Bowen, one of the judges of the superior court of this state. In his charge to the grand jury, he recommended the emancipation of the blacks, and went so far as to say, that it the legislature did not do it he would head them himself, and assist in cutting the throats of the white inhabitants. The grand jury protested against such alarming conduct, on which the judge committed them to gaol. This circumstance roused the indignation of the citizens—a meeting was immediately called, and such measures adopted as to relieve the grand jury. The uniform companies were ordered out, and in the evening judge Bowen was seized and put into prison. Had it not been for the military, he would have been torn to pieces, for every one, without an exception, was exasperated at him."

FOREIGN NEWS.

By the politeness of captain Brown, and of passengers in the Juliana, London papers to the 28th March are received at the office of the Morning Chronicle. When a few days out, the Juliana spoke the ship Hardware, which left Bristol for New-York, April 8th. At that time the blockading squadron before Brest had been blown off and had arrived in England. Nothing particular had occurred relative to the destiny of Moreau. The king of England had so far recovered as to place his signature to public bills as usual. On the 29th March, the Juliana heard a very heavy firing off Boulogne, arising it is presumed from a continuance of the bombardment.

The Juliana had started previously, but lost both anchors in the Downs in a gale, and was obliged to put into Ramsgate.

The accounts brought by this arrival mention that the armaments of France appeared to be in a state of more than customary activity along the whole line of the French and Dutch coasts, particular movements had taken place at Havre, Boulogne and the Texel, and intelligence had reached the admiralty announcing an uncommon degree of vigour among the French fleet at Brest. The force in the outer harbour of that port consisted of 14 ships of the line ready for sea, exclusive of frigates; in the inner harbour a vast number of transports, gun-boats, and small craft of different descriptions.

A British squadron maintained a blockade off Rochefort with great vigilance, as a French division in that port consisting of 4 sail of the line, 3 frigates, cutters, &c. was kept ready for sea at a moment's notice. It was understood that these vessels had nearly three thousand troops on board, and provisions for six months.

The British squadron off Boulogne, did not succeed as well as had been contemplated in blockading that port. On the 25th it was compelled by the violent gales to return to the Downs, previous to which (on the 23d) about 100 gun boats came out of the harbour in one tide, with an apparent intention to engage. On the 24th, there came on a heavy gale; which occasioned much confusion among them, several got foul of each other, one run on shore, another was dismasted, a third lost her bowsprit, &c. Most of them made out to return, but 27 ran into the newly opened port of Vimereux, and one was obliged to bear away for Calais. The amount of this attempt however served to shew that a greater number can get out in one tide than was calculated.

Letters from France were said to state that great dissatisfaction prevailed in the French armies and that an explosion was shortly expected. Nothing however appears to have transpired relative to any counter revolution.

On the 2d March, Mr. Liston had his audience of leave at the court of Copenhagen, and was to depart on the 5th.

The expedition which was to block up the harbour of Boulogne by sinking vessels loaded with stone, having failed in that intention, an attempt was talked of, to shut up the harbour of Havre-de-Grace in that manner to increase the security of Jersey and Guernsey, but it was the opinion of intelligent men that this stone expedition would have little success any where.

The emperor of Russia is said to have charged Mons. D'Onbril, his charge d'affaires at Paris, to decline all answers to the demands of France, concerning the armaments Russia has been obliged to make for the protection of the liberties of Europe.

A Russian fleet in the Black Sea with a number of transports was stated to be preparing for sea, which was to stop three weeks at Constantinople, where the Russian ambassador had made extensive contracts for supplies, and was then to proceed to the Archipelago and Mediterranean.

The court gazette of Petersburg, had remarked that "The arrival of a consul from the United States of America, proves that the commercial relations between Russia and the United States will be immediately established, and naturally acquire that importance which the wants and demands of the inhabitants of the new world must give them."

Accounts from Paris of March 10th, say that "the fortresses of Luxembourg contains no less than 644 insurgents from the western departments, formerly Chouans, but not concerned in the late insurrection. They are condemned to hard labour till peace, then to be transported to the colonies for life. They are all under thirty years of age."

The generals Dulanoy and Napfonti are recalled from Hanover. Gen. Elbe succeeds the former in the command of artillery.

Wattenroy, chief of the second Helvetic demi-brigade in the French service is nominated general of brigade, and is with general Vonder Wied, his countryman, employed in the staff of the first consul to have command of four lately levied Swiss regiments under Louis Buonaparte, the colonel general; a place vacant since 1792, when count d'Artois was deprived of it."

Mr. Smith the British charge d'affaires arrived at Stockholm, the 3d March.

Accounts from Hanover of March 9th states that Messrs. Van Bremer and Baron Grote had set off for Paris as deputies from the states, to petition the French government for the diminution of the great burdens of the country, and lessening the great number of troops, daily increased by the arrival of conscripts. The situation of the country is stated to be extremely critical, the report continued that the French army in Hanover would be shortly very much increased, on the 8th 200 recruits arrived from Italy.

From Rome it is stated that Lucien Buonaparte had stayed there early in February, sometime incog. that he had visited Naples and that couriers had been constantly passing between Paris and Tarento, the headquarters of general St. Cyr. It is understood that one part of his business was a negotiation, in consequence of which the French army of near 40,000 men, will receive a speedy reinforcement of 30,000 more. An expedition against Sardinia is expected to result.

Of Moreau, we find with much pleasure favourable intelligence in the following account, under date of Paris, March 5.

"Moreau's affair appears to take a favourable turn. They say there was but one letter from Pichegru found among his papers, written some years since from Barceuth, in which Moreau was requested to procure Pichegru's amnesty. The latter complained at the same time of finding himself in narrow circumstances. The first draft of Moreau's answer lay with this letter. He freely declared his influence did not suffice to procure this amnesty. To assist him in his distress, however, he remitted him 6,000 francs, assuring him, that, as soon as he should be able to do any thing for him, he would do it unasked."

"The lenator Barthelemy had nearly been implicated. Some months ago Pichegru had sent him compliments by L'Abbe Gaudier. The latter prevailed on Barthelemy to give him an insignificant note to Pichegru, which said merely, "I rejoice my dear Picard (this was the name Pichegru had taken on escaping from Cayenne) you are well. I shall not forget the friendship which you have shewn me in our mutual misfortunes." When people began to whisper of the conspiracy, Barthelemy received a letter from Pichegru via Calais. Being assured that the police must have knowledge of this letter, he went direct to the consul Cambaceres with the letter unopened, told him of the circumstance, and gave him the letter."

It is stated with confidence (via Holland) that Buonaparte being no longer apprehensive of domestic enemies has resolved to conduct the invading enterprise in person.

NEW-YORK, May 11.

By the Hardware, which left Bristol on the 8th April, further foreign intelligence is received; and however this vessel was spoken by the Juliana, we were enabled yesterday to anticipate the most material information she brings, in our summary of foreign news.

The hon. John Quincy Adams, of Massachusetts, the hon. George W. Campbell, of Tennessee, and George Youngs, of the district of Columbia; Zebulon Hollingsworth, and Richard Raynal Keene, of Maryland; Thomas R. Root, of Virginia; Rufus Easton, of New-York state, were duly admitted and sworn as attorneys and counsellors in the supreme court of the United States at the last term.

PITTSBURG.

Extract of a letter, accompanied by a proclamation of the lieutenant governor of Upper Louisiana from St. Louis.

"Yesterday captain Stoddard arrived, escorted from the ferry below by about 20 of the respectable citizens of this place; after a salute of three cannon, the lieutenant governor informed him, that he was ready to enter into a negotiation to deliver into his hands the province of Upper Louisiana, &c. which will take place as soon as the American troops arrive, which will be in about four days."

Don Charles Dehault Delassus, colonel of his catholic majesty's armies, lieutenant governor of Upper Louisiana, and its dependencies, &c. and commissioned for the delivery of said province.

By proclamation, dated February, 1804, informing the inhabitants of having received orders for the delivery of the province to captain Amos Stoddard, who is empowered to receive and keep possession for the United States.

FROM A GRENADA paper of April 6.

By captain Roe, of the American schooner Edward, from Barbadoes, we learn of the gallant capture of a French frigate mounting 36 guns, by one of his majesty's sloops of war, mounting 18 guns, and carried her into Barbadoes. Captain Roe mentions that the frigate had been engaged for three days by a sloop of war, which he believes was the Osprey, the captain of which was wounded in the leg by a splinter, and 16 men killed, when she parted. That she afterwards fell in with another sloop of war, which he believes to be the Hippopotamus, to which she struck, the crew of the frigate refused to engage, on the pretext of their time of service having expired. Captain Roe saw the wounded men landed from the frigate, and from the sloop of war which had first engaged her.

From the Trenton True American.

The following letter from Joseph Cooper, Esq on the preservation of pear trees from blasting, is highly interesting, and will we doubt not be found eminently useful.

PEAR TREES.
Trenton, March 2d, 1804.

Friend Wilson,

AS I came from Philadelphia at the commencement of the last sitting of the legislature, I viewed with sorrow great parts of the pear trees in sight of the road, greatly injured by the blast so destructive to that valuable fruit, and as I have preserved my trees of that kind of fruit from that malady for more than 30 years past, by an accidental discovery, I consider it my duty to communicate it to the public, through your paper, if you think the relation worth the trouble.

On my plantation was a great number of pear trees, which were continually blasting, and the limbs decayed, except one near the house which had iron hoops, hoops, &c. which were kept entirely free from the aforesaid misfortune: this induced me to try others by hanging any iron, of a proper form for the purpose, such as nail rods, horseshoes, old hoops, or any such as would be most safe from falling, on most of the largest limbs, in such manner as not to bind and injure the tree. Since that was done I have not perceived the blast to injure them, and many trees which were previously all dead except the trunk, or nearly so, are now and have been for more than twenty years in a flourishing condition. The reasons I leave to others; but the fact is so well proved by near or thirty years experience, the labour and expence trifling, that I earnestly recommend it; and am, Your friend,

Translation of an Alibi Metastasio's Opera of Artaserse.
OF arms and strife the warrior dreams—
The hunter of the waving woods;

To wander near the chrystal floods.
So I, when wrapt in pleasing rest,
Borne on the wings of slumber, fly
To thee whose image fills my breast,
Whose name the live-long day I sigh.

Addressed, extempore, to a Lady, who desired the Author to tell what was the subject of her thoughts.

I SAW it glow upon thy cheek—
I saw it glisten in thine eye—
I saw the guarded secret break,

'Twas LOVE—the rebel reigns secure,
And triumphs o'er that little heart—
Ah, fair one! shun the fatal lure,
And bid the treacherous foe depart.

WAS I right or was I not?
Tell me girls, and tell me true;
You, I mean, who've husbands got,
Was I wrong to do so too?
No—I'm sure to die a maid
Ne'er was meant to be my lot;
HYMEN call'd and I obey'd,
Was I right or was I not?
When the youth that pleas'd my mind,
Told his love in language sweet,
Could I see him fond and kind,
Sigh and languish at my feet?
No, no, no, it was in vain,
Frowns and threats were quite forgot;
Soon at Church I eas'd his pain,
Was I right or was I not?
This I know, a single life,
Never was design'd for me;
No, no, no, 'tis nought but strife,

STRASBURG, March 16.

In pursuance of previous dispositions made with the elector of Baden, a select party of French troops, headed by an aid-de-camp of the first consul, lately crossed the Rhine at Kehl, and surrounded Ofenbourg, where the lodgings of several emigrants were situated out to them by a Baden officer, and they taken in arrest. Some few were also seized at Kehl. On the return of this detachment, 15 prisoners were left in charge of the governor of the castle here, among whom are the baroness Von Reich and the abbe Eymar, an old member of the constituted assembly.

Another party set off at the same time for Ettenheim, where the like measures will be taken. There are some hopes that Dumourier will be found in that city: at any rate it is certain that he lately passed a fortnight there, in company of several French princes. Fifteen persons were taken into custody here yesterday morning; among whom are the ci-devant count de Toulouse, Lautree, Madam de Klingling, and general Tefnoyers, who, three years since was president of the court-martial which cleared the accomplices of general Pichegru.

It is said that Chambe has been seized on the Upper Rhine.

FRANCE.

PARIS, March 10.

On Wednesday the American minister, Mr. Livingston, gave a splendid ball in honour of the discovery of the conspiracy against the first consul. The whole diplomatic corps, with the exception of the Neapolitan minister, and the Russian charge d'affaires, were present.

March 22.

The report which was yesterday in circulation respecting Louis Anthony Henry, of Bourbon, is thus confirmed by the public papers. A few hours after he was brought from Strasburg to Paris, he was sentenced to death, in consequence of his having been concerned in the conspiracy. Another paper says, that Louis was taken in the night by a French officer detached to Strasburg for the purpose—he had prepared to defend himself; but his own secretary, who was a Frenchman, secretly deprived him of his arms, which he did not discover till the moment of his seizure.

ENGLAND.

DOVER, March 25.

The Aurora American ship, of and for New-York from Amsterdam, arrived here this day; the master states that he left the Texel last Thursday, at which time all the heavy artillery, stores, &c. necessary for the invasion, were within a mile of the ships, ready to embark at a short notice; the force was four ships of 74 guns each, and about 80 transports capable of carrying from 4 to 500 men each; there were also several gun vessels and smaller craft ready to accompany them; he was interrogated by the collector of the customs, and the captain of the Sea Fencibles, and has several passengers on board, all of whom confirm, it is said, the above report.

FALMOUTH, March 26.

This day arrived the American ship Charles, capt. Rebbie, 41 days from Senegal. She brings an account that the island of Goree was taken possession of, after a very desperate action, on the 17th of January, by the crews of six French privateers. The French commander with 47 men were killed, and several wounded. The British had 20 men killed. General Frazier and the second in command, I am happy to say, escaped unhurt. A schooner, cartel, having on board 150 French troops to garrison Goree, failed from Senegal on the 14th of February, to take on board general Frazier and troops for Britain. The French landed with the bloody flag flying, and continued it until the end of the action: they fought from one o'clock p. m. till twelve a. m. A French schooner privateer was lost on Senegal bar, about the end of January. Several French privateers were burning that coast.

LONDON, April 2.

According to the return of the navy, corrected to this day, it appears that we have in commission 100 ships of the line, 24 of 50 guns, 126 frigates, and 227 sloops, cutters, gun boats, &c. A letter from an officer on board one of his majesty's ships off Flushing, states that the French had embarked their cavalry and stores, and only waited for a calm to elude the vigilance of our cruisers.

Boston, May 16.

LATEST FROM FRANCE.

Yesterday arrived here, the schooner Traveler, capt. Hall, from Fecamp, in France, (a port ten leagues from Havre) in 37 days. Captain Hall did not bring any papers; but informs, that no event of magnitude had occurred since the development of the conspiracy:—That he had not learnt any thing further respecting Moreau, than his arrest; and that the most active and efficient measures were in continual execution for the prosecution of the war.

NEW-YORK.

NEW-YORK, May 14.

Captain Goodrich, who arrived here yesterday from Amsterdam, informs, that the transports had fallen down to New Dieppe, and were in readiness to receive the troops for the invasion. There was a report in circulation at Amsterdam, that the prince of Conde had been taken up and executed for having been concerned in the conspiracy. The fate of Moreau, &c. was not known when the Francis Henrietta sailed.

[N. Y. GAZ.]

Captain Goodrich, of the ship Francis Henrietta, who arrived yesterday, in 37 days from Amsterdam, has obligingly favoured us with files of Leyden and Schiedham papers to the end of March, containing Paris dates to the 26th. A very considerable portion of these papers are taken up in relating discoveries connected with the late conspiracy. Messrs. Drake and Spencer Smith, his Britannic majesty's envoys at Munich and Stuttgart, are charged with having been concerned in the plot; a private correspondence between Mr. Drake and a Mr. D. L. has been discovered by the French government, and the instructions which D. L. received were laid before an extraordinary convocation of the conservative senate on the 23d of March by the grand judge. It does not appear by the papers we have received that Moreau had been tried and convicted as stated in the English prints. With the consent of the elector of Baden the French seized 15 emigrants at Offenbourg, and 15 at Strasburg, and detached a party in hopes of finding Dumourier at Ettenheim, where he had been a short time before with the French princes. Russia having promised protection to the republic of the seven islands, contemplates sending troops to the Mediterranean by the way of the Black Sea, but as they do not seem necessary at present in that republic, the movement has given the French a pretext for sending troops to Naples, where they have demanded as a security that three of the ports and several ships of war should be given up to them. Very little is said about the invasion; it does not appear, however, to be relinquished, and several late movements among the shipping in the French and Dutch ports, has excited more than the usual attention of the English fleets. Under the Paris head of March 16, they have the following extract of a letter from London, dated Feb. 28. "His majesty is quite recovered in a most extraordinary manner. Dr. Willis came in with a person dressed in the uniform of a French general, and told his majesty that it was Buonaparte made prisoner; it had the desired effect, so powerful is the name of Buonaparte."

[N. Y. DAILY ADV.]

Paris is watched with such circumspection that it is impossible for any one to pass or repass without the knowledge of the police, and a line of 12,000 men surrounds the barriers. Throughout the Belgic Provinces, the post-masters are forbidden to let post-horses to any person without a certificate from a police-office, and in every town or village, and even on the public roads gens d'armes are placed to examine the passes of travellers, and to arrest all such as may be unprovided. Orders have been sent from Paris to Italy, and different parts of Germany, for the arrest of persons implicated in the late conspiracy.

May 15.

We have received, by the ship Eagle from Belfast, a file of the News-Letter as late as the 6th of April, but they do not contain London advices later than the 2d. The last paper mentions, that the Cork fleet sailed for the West-Indies, on the 24th March under convoy of the Apollo, and had a fine offing; but in the evening an express was received by lord Gardner, in consequence of which a cutter was dispatched to order the fleet back.

A fleet of about 22 sail left Surinam on the 7th of April, with about thirty-five hundred troops, under the command of general Maitland, and a squadron of five sail of the line, under commodore Wood, for Surinam—since which the London and Cork fleets have arrived there.

May 18.

Captain Hannifen, of the brig Rolla, has favoured the editors of this Gazette with French papers to the first of April. The paper of the 30th of March, contains the trial of Louis Antoine Henri, of Bourbon, duke of Enghein, who was shot soon after his condemnation; and it was believed in France that Moreau, Pichegru, La Fayette, &c. (who had also been taken) would be put to death. The comptroller of the post-office at Strasburg, two ci-devant lieutenant-generals, who had been in the corps of Conde, several ecclesiastics, and many others, had also been seized and carried to Paris.

There had been an embargo at Bourdeaux for 18 days previous to the 12th of April, when it was taken off; during which time a number of boats for the invasion, crept out of port, and stole along the coast. It was, however, believed in France, that no attempt would be made to invade England.

Several American gentlemen had been taken up in France and imprisoned, and every man suspected of being unfriendly to the tyranny of Buonaparte was sure to be conducted to prison.

BARBADOES.

BRIDGE-TOWN, April 23.

This day the London fleet arrived, under the convoy of the Unicorn frigate, of 44 guns—having on board gen. Myers, gen. Montgomery and suit, with a few troops, for the different regiments in these islands. The fleet consists of about thirty sail for the different islands, they left Portsmouth the 8th of March.

SOUTH-CAROLINA.

CHARLESTON, May 3.

The British brig Chance, captain Watt, from Jamaica for this port, with a cargo of slaves, was captured yesterday by the French privateer cruising off our bar.

The French corvette Africa, (late the Herald sloop of war) sailed from Havanna for this port 23 days since, with 330 French troops, passengers. About a week since, in a gale, she lost her mizen mast, and was compelled to throw overboard 13 or 14 guns—Sixteen of the passengers were lost at the same time. She took a pilot on board on Thursday evening, and anchored a short distance from the bar. Yesterday morning the brig Garland, from Nassau, fell in with her, and on firing two guns, the corvette struck her colours, having at the time but four guns mounted. We are told it is a disputed point whether she is a lawful prize, she being, it is said, captured within the jurisdictional limits of the United States.

May 5.

Captain William Cuthell and crew, late of the British ship Rosamond, of Greenock, captured off Charleston bar on the 30th ult. by the French national schooner La Hazard, captain Sachs, came up on Thursday evening in a pilot boat. The Frenchmen plundered captain Cuthell of every thing, and even robbed the sailors of their hats and shoes.

The French privateer schooner, which captured the British ship Rosamond, and British brig Chance, has not been seen off the bar since Thursday evening.

The Enterprize brought 51,000 dollars in specie, as one article of her cargo; she came out under convoy of the Lily sloop of war, and parted with her two days ago in the gulf, bound to Bermuda; the Garland came on with her as a protectress.

May 7.

The British forces that lately made the attack on Curraeo, had returned to Kingston, and after recruiting their ships, &c. by a very hot press, they had sailed again with a reinforcement, and it was supposed their object was to make a fresh attack on that island.

The French 84 gun ship, some time since captured from the French on coming out of Cape-Francois, had been fitted out at Kingston, and sailed with a convoy for Europe, but got ashore on Morant Keys: She has since been got off with considerable damage.

Arrived at the fort last night, the British armed cutter Hind, commanded by lieutenant M'Lean, from Antigua with dispatches. She saluted the fort, which was returned.

The president of the United States returned to the city of Washington on Sunday evening last, from Monticello.

The LAWS of MARYLAND,

Passed November session, 1803.

Poet's Corner.

ORIGINAL.

For the MARYLAND GAZETTE.

[The following lines were occasioned by the untimely death
of a young Lady who fell a prey to extreme sensibility.
The time of her nuptials had been fixed, when her admirer ungenerously violating the solemn vows he had made, she sunk under the disappointment. The authoress,
from a long intimacy with the deceased, knew and admired the amiable qualities that adorned her immature
life.]

WHY dost thou, blushing Rose, look gay?

To mock my faded form?

I'll turn me from thy smiles away,

Nor heed thy vermeil charm.

When evening comes to blast thy bloom,

And bid thy colours die,

In thy decay I'll read the doom

Of creatures such as I.

Yon oak, of late the forest's pride,

Now lifeless limbs extends;

The grey moss curls along its side,

And Spring no foliage lends.

Once in the pride of youth it stood,

And bow'd 'neath ev'ry blast,

But now denied the veg'ative flood,

It moulders to its last.

So when Youth's spring our cheeks adorn

With health's empurpling glow,

"Blythe as the Lark we hail the morn,"

Nor heed th' impending blow.

But cruel Love, of faithless mein,

Soon plucks the secret sigh;

We love—alas! oft love in vain,

Then sicken, pine and die.

But why should I at fate repine,

Or shed th' unceasing tear?

The fault, HORATIO, sure was thine!

Thou fix'd the arrow here.

"That great first cause" who gave me breath,

Compassionates my woe;

He sends the friendly arm of death

To lay MARIA low.

—Now Joy, which long had fled my breast,

Resumes her wonted reign;

I fly to realms of blissful rest

From scenes of care and pain.

MALVINA.

FROM THE TRUE AMERICAN.

Messrs. PRINTERS,

FROM the number of marriages which I weekly
see published, it appears as if the Ladies were availing themselves of the privilege which Leap-Year gives them of wooing the gentlemen: and that their soft,
mild, fluent, and persuasive tongues, and elegant and
captivating manners and address, have obtained for
them a success which the awkward behaviour and
clumsy conversation of the Gentlemen never could achieve. As a friend to matrimony, however, and from a wish to save the Ladies from the necessity of
pleading too loudly their own merits, and pressing too closely their own suits, I send you an extract from a celebrated pamphlet called "The Bachelors' Tattoo,"
which I hope will stimulate those gentlemen, both
old and young, who to the disgrace of themselves, to the injury of their country, and in contempt of the powerful host of attraction which embellish our American Fair, continue to live single, useless, and miserable lives, to take unto themselves helpmates, companions, and comforters.

NO FRIEND TO CELIBACY.

"If you are for pleasure—Marry!

If you prize rosy health—Marry!

And even if money be your object—Marry!

"A GOOD WIFE is "Heaven's" last best gift to
man;" his angel and minister of graces innumerable;
his Sal Ptochrestum or gem of many virtues: his Pandora, or casket of celestial jewels; her presence
forms his best company; her voice, his sweetest music;
her smiles, his brightest day; her kiss, the guardian
of his innocence; her arms, the pale of his safety,
the balm of his health, the balsam of his life; her
industry his surest wealth; her economy, his safest steward; her lips, his faithfullest counsellors; her bosom, the softest pillow of his cares; and her prayers
the ablest advocates of Heaven's blessings on his head!"

"If you love the Creator you ought to marry, to raise him up worshippers; if you love the ladies, you ought to marry to make them happy; if you love
mankind you ought to marry to perpetuate the glorious race; if you love your Country, you ought to marry, to raise up soldiers to defend it; in fine, if you wish well to earth or heaven you ought to marry, to give good citizens to the one and glorious angels to
the other!"

The LAWS of MARYLAND
Passed November session, 1803.

Poet's Corner.
ORIGINAL.
For the MARYLAND GAZETTE.

[The following lines were occasioned by the untimely death
of a young Lady who fell a prey to extreme sensibility.
The time of her nuptials had been fixed, when her ad-
mirer ungenerously violating the solemn vows he had
made, she sunk under the disappointment. The authoress,
from a long intimacy with the deceased, knew and admired the amiable qualities that adorned her immature
life.]

WHY dost thou, blushing Rose, look gay?
To mock my faded form?
I'll turn me from thy smiles away,
Nor heed thy vermeil charm.
When evening comes to blast thy bloom,
And bid thy colours die,
In thy decay I'll read the doom
Of creatures such as I.
Yon oak, of late the forest's pride,
Now lifeless limbs extends;
The grey moss curls along its side,
And Spring no foliage lends.
Once in the pride of youth it stood,
And bow'd 'neath ev'ry blast,
But now denied the vegetive flood,
It moulders to its last.
So when Youth's spring our cheeks adorn
With health's empurpling glow,
"Blicke as the Lark we hail the morn,"
Nor heed th' impending blow.
But cruel Love, of faithless mein,
Soon plucks the secret sigh;
We love alas! oft love in vain,
Then sicken, pine and die.
But why should I at fate repine,
Or shed th' unceasing tear?
The fault, HORATIO, sure was thine!
Thou fix'd the arrow here.
"That great first cause" who gave me breath,
Compassionates my woe;
He sends the friendly arm of death
To lay MARIA low.
—Now Joy, which long had fled my breast,
Resumes her wonted reign;
I fly to realms of blissful rest
From scenes of care and pain.

MALVINA.
FROM THE TRUE AMERICAN.

Messrs. PRINTERS;
FROM the number of marriages which I weekly
see published, it appears as if the Ladies were availing themselves of the privilege which Leap-Fear gives them of wooing the gentlemen: and that their soft,
mild, fluent, and persuasive tongues, and elegant and
captivating manners and address, have obtained for
them a success which the awkward behaviour and
clumsy conversation of the Gentlemen never could achieve. As a friend to matrimony, however, and from a wish to save the Ladies from the necessity of
pleading too loudly their own merits, and pressing too
closely their own suits, I send you an extract from a
celebrated pamphlet called "The Bachelors Tattoo,"
which I hope will stimulate those gentlemen, both
old and young, who to the disgrace of themselves, to
the injury of their country, and in contempt of the
powerful host of attraction which embellish our American Fair, continue to live single, useless, and miserable lives, to take unto themselves helpmates, companions, and comforters.

NO FRIEND TO CELIBACY.
"If you are for pleasure—Marry!
If you prize rosy health—Marry!
And even if money be your object—Marry!
"A GOOD WIFE is "Heaven's last best gift to
man;" his angel and minister of graces innumerable;
his Sal Polechrestum or gem of many virtues: his Pandora, or casket of celestial jewels; her presence
forms his best company; her voice, his sweetest music;
her smiles, his brightest day; her kiss, the guardian
of his innocence; her arms, the pale of his safety,
the balm of his health, the balsam of his life; her
industry his surest wealth; her economy, his safest steward; her lips, his faithfulest counsellors; her bosom, the softest pillow of his cares; and her prayers
the ablest advocates of Heaven's blessings on his
head!"
"If you love the Creator you ought to marry, to raise him up worshipers; if you love the ladies, you
ought to marry to make them happy; if you love
mankind you ought to marry to perpetuate the glorious race; if you love your Country, you ought to marry, to raise up soldiers to defend it; in fine, if you wish well to earth or heaven you ought to marry, to
give good citizens to the one and glorious angels to
the other!"

NEW-YORK, May 22.

The Bristol Trader, from Bristol, London papers to the 10th, and Bristol papers to the 12th April, are received at the office of the Morning Chronicle. We make from them but few extracts, as they are only a day or two later than former dates. They furnish an electoral mandate from Bavaria, ordering all French emigrants to leave those territories in 24 hours. They also give the names of the marquis de Vaux Borel, general Melitte, the vicar general d'Eymar, who had resided several years at Offenbourg, as being arrested about the same time with the duke of Enghien. That prince is stated to have been shot pursuant to sentence, but the accounts of his execution are not official, nor is that event noticed in any of our French papers, which extend beyond the time stated.

SWEDEN.

STOCKHOLM, March 25.

A strong report prevails here, that Buonaparte has demanded of the court of Denmark that the Sound and all Danish ports shall be immediately shut against the English; if this be true, it is rather expected the demand will be extended to Sweden.

ENGLAND.

LONDON, April 6.

A report prevailed in the city yesterday, that lord Nelson's fleet had met with the French fleet from Toulon, and after a severe engagement, in which the gallant admiral was said to have fallen, six of the enemy's ships were captured. The story was stated to come from the captain of the Fairy sloop, who arrived at Falmouth, having received the intelligence from a captain he met with at sea. Another account was said to have been received from a captain arrived at Weymouth, who had sent the communication to his owners in town; but neither of these accounts are worthy of a moment's serious attention. At Copenhagen, on the 13th of February, above 1000 persons were ill of an inflammatory fever, attributed to the cold and continued east winds.

April 10.

On Sunday dispatches were received at lord Hawke's office from the continent, which caused a great deal of bustle among the ministers yesterday, and several of the foreign ambassadors had conferences with them. We do not pretend to know the cause; but it states that, among other accounts, a declaration of Buonaparte to the court of St. Petersburg has been received, stating, that in case any Russian troops in the Baltic should land in Mecklenburgh, Holstein, or any where else upon the German continent, French troops would immediately occupy the whole towns; and if any Russian troops from the Black Sea should attempt to land on the Italian continent, French troops would occupy not only the city of Naples, but every seaport in that kingdom.

Letters from Genoa of the 11th ult. state that the Nelson fleet was still in port. At Munich and other places, some emigrants from France have been arrested, at the instance of the French envoy, citizen Otto. Among them is the late lord of Chalons, who has resided at Munich several years. He is now upwards of 70; but at the establishment of the concordat he omitted to send in his resignation.

April 12.

For twenty-four hours after the duke d'Enghien was condemned, petitions for him were presented by the duke de Liancourt, and several other of his friends, through the medium of madame Buonaparte, as the consul resides at Malmaison, where he is visible to all but his ministers, favourites and relatives. In the senate, on the 22d, it was proposed by Buonaparte to advise the first consul to pardon the duke. It is said at Paris, that this senator pointed in strong language the danger of accustoming Buonaparte to blood in civil causes; and said among other things, "that Nero cried at one time when he was about to sign his name to a death warrant; but at another time, accustomed to the sight of blood, by the use of depraved counsellors, he murdered his own brother, his tutor, his senators, ministers, generals, and all classes of Roman citizens, with the same indifference as he saw Rome burning."

Buonaparte desired general Mortier to be president of the military commission which condemned the duke, but he declined it. General Hulin was then appointed (the son of a washerwoman, and formerly a servant in the workhouses of the court at Versailles,) notorious since July 14th, 1789, in all the dreadful catastrophes of the revolution. After sentence was passed, the duke asked, if he could see Buonaparte; "yes," said Hulin, "if you have any discoveries to make." "Discoveries," answered the duke, with indignation: "carry me to the plate of execution." "That cannot be done," said Hulin; "before we have reported our sentence to the first consul." "I knew the sentence," answered the duke, "before; against the law of nations, he carried me away from Ettenheim."

From the time of the duke's arrest, he had never been once permitted to lay down on a bed, to undress, to shave, or to change his linen; and his feet were so swollen from fatigue that he could hardly stand. In the dungeon at Vincennes, where he was shut up, with four gens d'armes, for the 14 hours he lived after his condemnation, there was neither a bed nor a chair; there was some straw, where he sat down, but he was prevented from a moment's rest, by the noise and questions of these satellites, who had orders to prevent his slumber. A clergyman was with him for an hour, but was not permitted to speak with him, except so loud as to be heard by the guards.

In the morning, before day light, on the 22d, gen. Murat arrived at Vincennes, escorted by fifty Mamelukes, and accompanied with four aid-de-camps, and generals Mortier, Hulin, and Louis Buonaparte, who had come on purpose from the coast. Each Mameluke held a flambeau, and 200 gens d'armes and 300 men of the Italian troops surrounded the castle, prevented the approach of every one, and guarded all the avenues to that part of the wood about 100 yards distant from the castle, fixed for the place of execution. The duke being told his sentence was to be executed, said, calmly, "I am ready and resigned." When he heard, upon inquiry, that the grenadiers who should shoot him were Italians of Buonaparte's guard, he said, "THANK GOD! they are not Frenchmen. I am condemned by a foreigner, and God be praised, that my executioners are foreigners too! It will be a stain less upon my countrymen." Upon the place of execution, he lifted his hands towards Heaven, and said, "MAY GOD PRESERVE MY KING, AND DELIVER MY COUNTRY FROM ITS FOREIGN Yoke." Two gens d'armes then proposed to tie an handkerchief over his eyes, but he said, "A loyal soldier, who has so often been exposed to fire and sword, can see the approach of death with naked eyes and without fear." His hat was then taken off. But on looking at the grenadiers, who had already pointed their fusils at him, he said, in Italian, "Grenadiers, lower your arms, otherwise you will miss me, or only wound me." Of the nine grenadiers who fired at him, seven hit him; seven bullets pierced his body.

The following is a correct list of the persons arrested by order of the French government:

At Strasburgh—Madame Lajolois; the justice of peace, Lajolois; the counsellor of the finance, Demonge, and his wife; Madame Velinglin, and Madame D'Effart, the sister-in-law to the general; the Abbe Litterman and the Abbe Paquet; the two unmarried sisters, D'Argrain; general Denoyers, and two servants.

At Kehl—Mr. de Matville; Mr. de Kappenheim; and the two merchants, Lindauer, and Zaigle.

At Offenbourg—Marquis de Vaux Borel, ex-general; Madame de Reich; and her chambermaid; Madame de Moyra; widow of the general, and her servant Jacob; Abbe Eymar; Mr. de Boulogne, and general de Melette.

At Ettenheim—Duke d'Enghien; Mr. d'Emery; colonel Dumoutier; Mr. de Thumery; colonel Grufstein, aid-du-camp of the duke; Abbe Weinborn and Abbe Michel; lieutenant Schmid; the two servants, Ferrard and Boula.

At Frankfort—Colonel Kuppelmayer, born in Alsace, and formerly aid-du-camp to the Austrian general Klinglin.

Several French gens d'armes are yet at Frankfort, and will remain there during the fair.

DEAL, April 8.

The stone expedition, it is said, sailed yesterday from Dungeness, in order to sink the ships, the wind being thought favourable.

A letter has been received from Hudsum, from a person of great respectability, which states, that the French are on the point of evacuating Hanover, which will then be occupied by Prussians. It is expected, that the French troops will march to the Hanse Towns, or into the Danish dominions.

American Intelligence.

NEW-YORK.

NEW-YORK, May 25.

From captain O'Brien from the Straits, arrived last evening, we have received the following particulars:

Major Barney, the American consul for Sicily, had received dispatches from Mr. Livingston at Paris, enclosing a letter from the First Consul of France (written in his own hand,) to the commissaire general at Tripoli, demanding the release of the American officers and seamen of the Philadelphia frigate. The dispatches had been forwarded to Syracuse.

On the 6th of February an aid-de-camp of general Berthier arrived at Leghorn from Paris with orders to raise 200,000 rations. On the 7th the French general Verdier, with the said aid-de-camp, visited the vessels in Leghorn and took down their names. Sixteen had been put in a state of requisition, for the purpose of carrying French troops: Their destination was not known, nor was it known at what port they were to embark. It was supposed, however, for Corsica or Elba.

Captain O'Brien has dispatches for government from the American consul at Gibraltar; and Mr. Tom, passenger in the Shepherdess, has also dispatches from the consul at Tangier.

The French frigates Dido and Sybille, each of 44 guns, from Guadaloupe, where they recently arrived from France with troops, arrived last evening, and anchored at the quarantine ground. The object of their coming here is unknown.

PENNSYLVANIA.

PHILADELPHIA, May 23.

Accounts from New-Orleans to the 15th April state, that the army of Louisiana had left that place 3 days before for Pensacola. The late prefect, Mr. L'Auffat, was on the eve of departing. His destination was unknown. He was to sail in the brig Natchez, some said for Guadaloupe, others for Charleston. He took a formal leave of the American commissioners on the 12th, and was received at the government house with great respect and ceremony. The American inhabitants intended giving a sumptuous entertainment to the commissioners, previous to the departure of general Wilkinson.

It appears that some uneasiness was excited at New-Orleans by the appearance there of the letter from governor Claiborne to the president of the United States, which was published in the papers of the U. States. It will be recollected that this letter spoke in very unhandsome and contemptuous terms of the merchants, planters and others of that country. Some Frenchmen who conceived themselves calumniated by the governor, have manifested unusual irritation. Inflammatory publications have been the consequence, inviting the inhabitants to resist the government of the United States. The governor has declared the letter to be a mutilated extract from the genuine letter; and on the 15th the public feeling seemed to be subsiding.

"An English ship from London, worth 300,000 dollars, prize to a French frigate, arrived here this day. The signal is up for another."

Extract of a letter from Reading, May 15.

"On Wednesday evening, the 2d instant, the notorious Hester McDowell, arrived in this town, and early next morning, set out in the Harrisburg stage. On her way, she called herself Mrs. Price, and said her husband was in Philadelphia, and would follow her in two or three weeks. She talked of going to Redstone and Fort-Pitt. For this latter place, it is said she took passage in a heavy waggon she found at Carlisle."

We understand (says the Morning Chronicle) that a letter has been received, giving information of a terrible fire in Demerara, which extended over an immense distance of country.

We have it from the most respectable authority that the attempt to establish a Bank at New-Orleans has failed. Mer. Adv.

Baron de Humboldt arrived in this city on Wednesday last, in the ship Conception, from Havanna. This distinguished Prussian philosopher with his companion, Mr. Bonpland, having passed the last eight years in the Spanish colonies of America, is now, we are informed, on his way to Europe for the purpose of publishing his discoveries in that part of the world hitherto so little known.—These gentlemen, it is said, have discovered, during their researches, more than three thousand species of plants not before described.

SOLITUDE.

O SOLITUDE, thou all tyrannic foe!
Thou sad distresser of the human breast!
Who fierce administ'rest to every woe,
Ease, ease my anguish with a little rest.
Thy grievous pressure oft have I endur'd,
With dreading grief and heart-corroding sighs;
When in confinement's hated walls immur'd,
The floors I've wash'd with rivers from my eyes.
Yet in what gloomier forms dost thou appear,
When happier times rush in upon the thought;
When absent relatives no more we hear,
With what augmented fearful terror fraught.
'Tis then, O SOLITUDE! thy iron rod,
With scourge severest rends the human heart;
'Tis then thy dreary darkness sad abode
More black appears than base Canidia's art.
When this sad recollection thwarts the mind,
Each hour seems a day, each day a year;
No solace can the wretched captive find,
His sorried heart his grief-worn breast to cheer.
O power divine! to whom all Nature bends,
The earnest prayer of thy poor suppliant hear;
Restore me to my relatives and friends,
Or teach me fearful SOLITUDE to bear.

SELECTED.

TO MARY.

AH! MARY, why where beauty reigns,
Through nature's realms, on hills or plains,
Is all so weak, so frail?
Soon fades each flower of happier hue,
Though fed with morning's purest dew,
And kiss'd by ev'ry gale.
I mark'd a rose ('twas early morn)
Full blooming, by an aged thorn,
At noon its charms had fled;
Thus, MARY, in thy cheek must fade
That tint inimitable, made
Of mingling white and red.
I heard, 'twas on the ides of June,
The lark; he thrill'd his merriest tune;
But ah! too soon 'twas o'er;
And must thy lips, whose music soft,
Hath charm'd to ecstasy so oft,
One day delight no more?
I pluck'd a lily, fair as light,
The flower was nature's purest white;
It scarce surviv'd an hour!
Alas! dear girl, that neck of snow,
Down which those graceful ringlets flow,
Is mortal like the flow'r!
I mark'd the varied lustre, seen
In dew drops on the summer green
At morn; but short its date,
Yes, and that heav'nly eye of thine,
Though sparkling, mild; though bright benign,
Must share the dew drop's fate!
Yet are not all thy charms like flowers;
The nervous mind's ethereal powers,
Shall brave the frosts of time;
So wisely cultur'd, here below,
Those noble powers shall live to glow
In some far happier clime.

SONG.

TUNE—"HOLLOW DRUM."

WHEN the busy toil of day is done,
And beneath the mountain sinks the sun,
Soft and fair,
The vernal air,
And Echo answers merrily;
When I move
To meet my love,
My bounding heart beats cheerily.
While the yellow moon-beams light the vale,
And the bird of sorrow sings her tale,
Sad and low
The warbled woe,
Sounds thro' the wild wood drearily;
Then breathe I
The tender sigh,
While beats my heart less cheerily.
