DEVOTED TO THE INTERESTS OF PRINCESS ANNE AND SOMERSET COUNTY

PRINCESS ANNE, MARYLAND, MARCH 2, 1920

Vol. XXII No. 30

GOVERNOR'S NEW ROAD BILL

Introduced By Senator Harrison—A $3,000,000 Bond Issue

Senator Harrison introduced last Thursday the road bill prepared by the Governor and which provides for rural roads, lateral roads and the extension of the State road system. This provides for a loan amounting to $3,000,000 and makes it incumbent on the counties to contribute toward construction.

In a statement issued by him explaining the provisions, the Governor says: "The bill for State roads construction for the next two years was prepared under my direction and introduced today by Senator Harrison. This bill provides for a bond issue of $3,000,000, of which approximately $850,000 in each of the next succeeding years will be used to construct post roads by matching an equal appropriation from the United States government. The balance of $650,000 each year, with an additional $100,000 from the automobile license funds, will be used to match an appropriation of $750,000 from the counties to construct lateral roads. This is the plan outlined by me at the time of my inauguration and again referred to at the time I presented the budget to the Legislature.

"The bill as drawn provides that both classes of roads are to be divided among the counties on the basis of their road mileage. The duty of meeting the State's appropriation is made mandatory on each county; the method of raising the money to meet this appropriation is left to the discretion of the county authorities, and they are given ample authority to raise it in any way which suits their local conditions. If this bill is enacted, it means for each dollar spent by a county for improved roads, $3 will be spent by the State and Federal government. I hope that its provisions will be very fully discussed and considered, in order that the members of the Legislature will have all possible suggestions before them of the best method to continue the building of permanent roads throughout the State."

"Flu" Claims John Edwin Nock

Mr. John Edwin Nock died at his home in Salisbury, Sunday afternoon, February 22nd, a victim of influenza, after an illness of ten days.

Mr. Nock was 47 years old. He was born on a farm in Somerset county in 1872. He remained on the farm until he was 13 years old when he went to Cambridge and worked in a shoe store. From there he went to Baltimore and New York where, for several years in each of those cities, he was engaged in the clothing business. In 1906 he and his brother Charles H. Nock went to Salisbury and started a shoe and clothing store.

The deceased is survived by his father, John W. Nock, aged 75, a civil war veteran, of Crisfield; by his widow and one daughter, Alexine Nock, and by his brother, Charles H. Nock, all of Salisbury. Also surviving him are four half-brothers and one half-sister. These are William C. Nock, of Delmar; Lindley S. James Dix, Mayhew and Nicholas Norman Nock, all of Crisfield, and Mrs. Agnes Nock Reese, also of Crisfield. Funeral services were conducted at the home of the deceased on Tuesday afternoon by the Rev. Joseph T. Heron and burial was made in Parsons cemetery.

Inter-Church World Movement Meeting

A meeting in the interest of the Inter-Church World Movement was held in Antioch Methodist Episcopal Church last Thursday afternoon. An interesting discussion of the movement's program was participated in by the ministers present, among whom were Dr. Charles Scofield, surveying supervisor, and Rev. R. E. Benson, of the State Field Department, of the headquarters in the Bible House, Baltimore.

A survey of Somerset county will be made as soon as the roads permit travel. In the near future a county conference will be held to consider the religious problems of the county.

A State conference for pastors will be held in Baltimore on March 8th, 9th and 10th, and a conference for Delaware will be held in Dover on March 10th, 11th and 12th.

Judge's Pensions To Stay

By the overwhelming vote of 58 to 8, the House last Tuesday adopted an unfavorable report on the bill introduced by Mr. Shockley, People's party, of Worcester, to repeal the law granting pensions to judges.

The vote for repeal was the smallest recorded during several sessions. Mr. Spencer, a Carroll county farmer, called attention to the fact that all of the lawyers in the House had voted to retain the pensions. He expressed the hope that they would vote for pensions for farmers if they should ever seek the gratuity.

GOING AFTER DRAFT EVADERS

Many Maryland Men Are Named As Military Deserters

After considerable delay the War Department is preparing for publication a list of military deserters, draft evaders and possibly delinquents, which will be posted in all sections of the country. This action will be followed by a nationwide hunt for those on the list who are still at large and will affect 2,619 Marylanders who are classed as deserters under the selective draft act, 1,154 of whom are negroes.

All the records of Maryland draft boards were forwarded by Adjutant General Henry M. Warfield, of this State, to the Adjutant General's Office at Washington, but copies of the records were also sent to the State Adjutant General's Office at Annapolis, of which J. M. Griffith is in charge. General Warfield was in charge of the Maryland boards, and his office at Annapolis has made the following announcement of figures concerning Maryland deserters:

Class June, 1917—637 whites; 630 colored.

Class June, 1918—31 whites; 59 colored.

Class September, 1918—790 white; 457 colored (aged 19 to 36).

Class September, 1918—7 white; 8 colored (aged 18 years).

Class September, 1918—Aged 37 to 45 not counted, armistice intervening.

Secretary of War Baker has announced that the name of every draft deserter is soon to be made public by the War Department following a survey now in progress. It was officially announced that the list of draft evaders is being completed and will be used for two purposes:

First, to inform the Department of Justice and police officials of the country; second, to inform the deserter himself and his friends and acquaintances that a charge of desertion stands against him.

In addition to the list of deserters, records were also sent to the War Department from local draft boards for 2,873 whites and 1,838 colored delinquents. It is the opinion of many that those who sought to evade the draft, but whose status got no further than that of a delinquent will escape prosecution. Nothing concerning delinquents was mentioned in the Government announcement.

Bainbridge Colby Succeeds Lansing

Bainbridge Colby, New York, one of the Progressive party leaders under Theodore Roosevelt, will succeed Robert Lansing as Secretary of State.

Announcement of his selection by President Wilson was made last Wednesday at the White House.

The selection of Mr. Colby came as a surprise. Most officials assumed Frank L. Polk, acting Secretary, would be the President's choice. The first inkling the President was to appoint some one outside of his official family came when Mr. Colby visited the White House early that day in company with Raymond T. Baker, Director of the mint. Mr. Colby was taken to see the President on the south lawn. A few minutes later the announcement of his selection was made. On leaving the White House Mr. Colby said:

"I had a long and unburied conference with the President, which impressed me with the great confidence he has reposed in me. I hope I shall not prove inadequate to these great duties."

Mr. Colby was born at St. Louis 51 years ago, and graduated from Williams College, Massachusetts. He spent one year at the Columbia Law School, and has practiced law in New York since 1892. He was a member of the New York Assembly in 1901-02.

Delmar Fair Circuit Meets

The annual meeting of the Delmar Fair Circuit, comprising associations of Maryland, Delaware and Virginia met in Salisbury on Thursday afternoon and transacted much important business. James M. Crockett, of Pocomoke City, was re-elected president, and D. J. Ward, of Salisbury, secretary and treasurer.

The Delmar Association admitted Harrington, Del., as a new member and this fair will open the race circuit of 1920 on July 27th to July 30th inclusive.

The dates for the 1920 meetings of the several associations in the Delmar circuit are as follows: Harrington, Del., July 27-30. Cambridge, Md., August 3d to 6th. Tasley, Va., August 10th to 13th. Pocomoke City, August 17th to 20th. Salisbury, August 24th to 27th. Wilmington, Del., Sept. 6th to 10th.

Having received a complete overhauling, the steamer Harrington is again operating on a daily schedule between Claiborne and Annapolis, making one round trip daily, leaving Claiborne at 10 o'clock a. m. and Annapolis at 5.30 p. m.

Rear Admiral Peary Laid To Rest

Rear Admiral Robert E. Peary, discoverer of the North Pole, was laid to rest in Arlington National Cemetery, last Tuesday, with full naval and military honors and with high officials and officers of the Government and the diplomatic corps present to pay last tribute to the world-famous explorer.

Because of the high naval rank bestowed upon Admiral Peary with the thanks of Congress for his achievements, the ceremonies were in charge of the Navy Department and Capt. Carroll Q. Wright, chaplain at the Washington Navy Yard, conducted the religious service.

The casket was carried to the cemetery on a gun limber draped in the National flag which Admiral Peary raised at the North Pole. A troop of cavalry and a battery of artillery formed the military escort which led the way, while a long procession of official and private automobiles carried the distinguished mourners to the graveside.

At the cemetery a company of blue-jackets fell into line with the army escort and the three volleys of the last salute were fired by a squad of sailors from the Presidential yacht Mayflower. A navy bugler sounded "taps."

Records Of War Activities Wanted

The Historical Committee of Somerset county is alive to the value of preserving the records of war activities of the county for permanent State records. It is necessary, therefore, for everyone to co-operate with the committee in collecting all data pertaining to the work of all organizations and committees in order that due credit can be given to the splendid work that was done throughout the county.

It is earnestly requested by the committee that the boys who have not filled out their papers do so at once. Blank forms for this can be secured from Col. Henry J. Waters, who has been appointed by the State Committee as chairman for Somerset county.

Mr. Robert H. Cluff, of Somerset county, has accepted a position with the Produce Exchange, Pocomoke City.

OYSTERMEN FEAR LOSS OF RIGHTS

They Are Opposed To Legislation Designed To Help Them

That oystermen, men who toil in the dredge and tonging boats, are constantly in fear of losses of their rights was an explanation given last Tuesday by Mr. Joy, of Calvert, of their opposition to legislation which is really designed to help them. Not being familiar with legislation and having witnessed in the past efforts which they construed as invasions of their rights by the legislature, they are naturally suspicious of all laws affecting their interests. They had opposed the cull law, said Mr. Joy, which had turned out to be the salvation of the oyster industry.

Mr. Joy made this and other statements during a hearing before the Committee on Chesapeake Bay and Tributaries on Mr. Gladden's bill to abolish the Conservation Commission, which he upheld. Incidentally the committee, by a vote of 14 to 1, turned down the bill to abolish the commission.

The discussion before the committee was carried on by Mr. Gladden, Mr. Joy, Mr. Holznecht, Mr. Milbourne, chairman; Mr. Dudley and Mr. Killian, of the Conservation Commission. Mr. Milbourne addressed this question to Mr. Gladden:

"Will you not admit that we are getting a better grade of oysters since the Conservation Commission was created?"

Mr. Gladden: "Yes, but the salvation of the oyster lies in the enforcement of the cull law. I am informed that the law is not as rigidly enforced as heretofore."

Mr. Joy: "There is a complaint in every tide-water county against the Conservation Commission. While I cast no reflection on the oystermen as a class, I am frank to confess that they do not fully understand conditions which affect them. They are too apt to misconstrue measures which are designed to protect their interests. The Conservation Commission, in enforcing the oyster laws, has made enemies. Certainly the cull law has been enforced by the commission. Under the old system the Board of Public Works employed, by the year, captains of oyster police boats and others charged with the enforcement of the law. The commission appoints them by the day. Hence men are immediately removed if they do not do their work. The oystermen objected to the cull law when first enacted. This illustrates what I mean when I say that they are extremely sensitive of their rights, and they are suspicious of every effort to protect them."

Mr. Killian, of the Conservation Commission, explained the grounds on which complaints against the commission were founded, and pointed out the benefits that followed the enforcement of the cull and other laws. He said two oyster police captains had been dismissed because of their laxity in enforcing laws. He told of the success of the first experiment in transplanting small oysters from the lumps to the waters off Dore's Wharf.

The second experiment had proved to be a failure.

General Warfield Resigns

Adjt.-Gen. Henry M. Warfield has tendered his resignation to Governor Ritchie, and the Governor has accepted it with surprise and many expressions of regret. General Warfield gives as the reason for his resignation the fact that the duties of the office have been so exacting during the last four years that he has been unable to give his personal affairs the attention they demanded.

General Warfield's resignation closes a period of 35 years of almost unbroken service in the military forces in Maryland. He enlisted in the Fifth Regiment in November, 1885, re-enlisted after his service of three years was up, and during his second term of duty was elected second lieutenant of Company K, in which rank he served until 1891, when he became first lieutenant of Company F. The following year he was commissioned a captain, and in October, 1895, was promoted to be a major. He commanded the Third Battalion of the Fifth Regiment during the regiment's service at Tampa in the Spanish-American war. In June, 1903, he succeeded Col. Frank Markoe as colonel of the Fifth Regiment.

Governor Crothers appointed him Adjutant-General in January, 1903, and Governor Harrington again selected him as head of the military establishment of the State when he became chief executive.

National Thrift Week

Schools throughout the Fifth Federal Reserve District have completed plans for the observance of National Thrift Stamp Week—March 1st to 6th. An effort will be made to have every school boy and girl, who have not already done so, start the saving habit with the purchase of a 25 cent Thrift Stamp at some time during the week. Children who have already enrolled as savers will be encouraged to stick another stamp on their Thrift Cards in order to make a hundred per cent. showing. There are now nearly 9,000 school savings societies in the district.

WANT BETTER ROADS FOR COUNTY

Somerset Taxpayers Would Abolish Supervisor System

About 400 taxpayers of Somerset county attended a meeting held in the Court House, Princess Anne, last Tuesday afternoon to consider ways and means to adopt a system which would result in better road conditions in the county. If the weather had been good it is believed that 1,000 taxpayers would have been present. The roads in the county are worse than they have been for years. Some sections are cut off from the center of the county entirely. There are roads over which automobiles and motor trucks have not been able to pass for two months except when the roads were frozen so hard that the vehicles would not break through. It is such a condition as this which creates an unprecedented demand for road improvement.

Former State's Attorney Gordon Tull was chairman of the meeting and Mr. Earle Morris, secretary. A motion was made by Mr. Charles H. Hayman to abolish the present road supervisor system. This resolution was adopted by an overwhelming vote. It was certainly the opinion of the taxpayers that the present system had failed to function, and that the condition of the roads in the county are worse now than ever before.

Mr. Hayman then offered a resolution containing suggestions for the adoption of a new road system in the county. The central idea of the proposed plan is to make a chart of the roads in the county and then award contracts for their repair and maintenance to the lowest bidder, who would give bond upon taking the contract. In construction of shell roads the plan proposes that the shells shall be purchased by the county and hauled upon the roads by the people interested. This plan would abolish the present office of road supervisor and place the roads under control of the County Commissioners.

The following committee was appointed to draft a bill to be presented to the Legislature abolishing the present road supervisor system and substituting another system: Dublin district, Wood A. Long; Brinkley, James C. Carver; Lawson, William L. Whitington; Asbury, James H. Cullen; Smith's Island, Wm. H. Bradshaw; Crisfield, E. Benson Dennis; Westover, Herschel V. Maddox; East Princess Anne, Albert B. Fitzgerald; West Princess Anne, Dr. E. E. Tull; St. Peter's, H. B. Phoebus; Mount Vernon, William B. Renshaw; Dames Quarter, Daniel D. Bozman; Tangier, William L. Jones; Deal's Island, Charles W. Ringgold. Another meeting of the taxpayers will be held today (Tuesday) at 1 o'clock p. m. to ratify the action of this committee.

The sentiment of the taxpayers is for a change in the present road system, and the plan is to go ahead with the formation of a bill creating a different system, which the Somerset county delegation will be asked to pass at this session of the Legislature. Mr. H. Fillmore Lankford and several other speakers at the meeting expressed the opinion that no legislation, the purpose of which is to abolish the present road supervisor's office in this county, will be passed at this session of the Legislature, in view of the fact that the Republican members of the delegation in the Legislature from Somerset county are all allied with the present Road Supervisor in local politics.

Luring the meeting there was a great deal of criticism of the present Roads Superintendent, W. Page Jackson. V. W. Miles, of Marion, moved that a committee of five be appointed to wait upon the County Commissioners and ask for the removal of Mr. Jackson from office. This motion was not voted upon.

Farmers Fix Wage Scale

At a recent meeting of Galena Grange, at Galena, Kent county, farmers decided on fair wages for farm hands. The rate agreed on was $35 a month, with board and lodging, for ordinary farm work when the laborer is employed by the month; ordinary work, by the day, $1.50 and board; corn shelling, by the day, $2 and board. Corn thinning was considered as ordinary work.

Estimating on the cost of lodging and feeding a laborer placed this at $1.25 a day. Cost of keeping a horse for a farm hand was put at $5 to $15 a month. The wage scale was agreed on to last from now until wheat harvest.

There is perhaps nothing that interferes more with effective school work than parties given during the school week. If the time actually spent at the party alone be considered the ill effects on the school work would possibly not be so marked. But experience has taught all of us that the mind cannot be centered on school work, either while anticipating a jovial time or while the impressions of a night of amusement are fresh in our memories.

GOVERNOR MAKES APPOINTMENTS

Col. Reckford For Adjutant General New Appointees For Somerset

Governor Ritchie sent his list of appointments to the Senate last Thursday, ending all speculation by naming both Key Compton (president) and Charles H. Knapp, as the Democratic members of the Baltimore city Police Board, with E. Clay Timanus as the Republican member. William Curran and Max Ways, Democrats, and R. F. Smith, Republican, are named Supervisors of Election for Baltimore city. Col. Milton A. Reckford was named Adjutant-General, vice Gen. Henry M. Roads Superintendent, W. Page Jackson spent several days last week in Annapolis.

By the Editor of the Baltimore Sun.

A comely woman, nearing middle age, stepped out on the little cottage porch and shaded her eyes from the morning sun, that she might look deeper and farther into the budding green mysteries of a perfect day. As her gaze wandered appreciatively from the distant hills to the nearer meadows and orchards, their peace seemed reflected in her face. But when she glanced down at her own garden a quick frown accompanied an impatient exclamation. "That pesky dog again! I declare it's enough to provoke a saint, which I never claimed to be. If there's one thing on earth more bothersome than another, it's neighbors who don't care two pins for other people's comfort."

Once upon a time before Miss Lydia's coming, the path from her steps had run directly through that yard and the next, ending at the adjoining house and was a well-worn trail. But a little cloud had appeared on the friendly horizon, at first no bigger than a man's hand, and grew to such proportions that the spite fence had appeared to stop all intercourse.

However, two young folks lived on either side, and love laughs at fences as well as locksmiths, so just where the big maple stretched its branches over the top an almost invisible gate had been made and many a night had the lovers found it an ideal trying place. But this was years ago and the original owners had moved far away. The gate was fitted now with latch and hinges, but she had never used it, as the next house had been empty until lately and then she had been disappointed to learn that it was only a lone bachelor who had taken the farm.

But today with sudden determination she picked up the broken tulips and started down the path. Meantime her neighbor, happily unconscious of trouble, and feeling at peace with every man, went whistling to the barn. Round the corner whistled a large cat, holding a chicken in its mouth and disappeared through the very hole under the fence that the mischievous pup had used. "Drat that cat!" cried the farmer, "there goes another of my best Plymouth Rocks. This thing is going to be stopped right now!" and he too strode down the path toward the gate, stepping through it just as Miss Lydia was about to reach for the latch. "Dear me!" was her startled thought, "it's himself. Now's my chance!" though her courage was going fast, for she was a shy soul. "She's the one this interview's coming to," ran Farmer John's mind, "for I saw her petting that ornery cat one day," and simultaneously they spoke.

"Ma'am, that cat of yours—"

"Sir, your dog—"

Then they broke off in blank amazement. A long stare, and again they cried in unison:

"John!"

"Lyddy!"

"How in the world?—"

"What on earth?—"

And stopped again, for want of breath, seemingly. If so, John was the first to recover it.

"Lyddy, tell me, have you been living here all these long years? I left home the day after we quarreled, just to make you sorry; but I was sure you would send for me to come back. And when I'd waited as long as I could stand it, and was starting home, I had a long spell of sickness that might have kept me from ever seeing old Barlow again. And when I did get there, nobody knew where you were. I went away to work again and was lucky. This spring I got tired of it all and bought this farm for a change. Just now your cat caught another chicken, and I was coming over to—Lyddy, are you married?"

Lydia's face flamed like a pink penny. "Why, no, John. You see, me's health never was good in Barlow, so when an old aunt left her this little place she wanted to try the country air. And I was secretly grieving over you, John, and wanted to come where nobody knew me; so we just quietly moved away off here; and when ma died at last I just stayed on. I hadn't inquired your name of anyone, and was coming to tell you how your dog was spoiling my garden."

"Lyddy," said John softly, "do you remember the night of the big sleighing party, when you and I promised to be pals for life? Look, I've carried this with me always."

And he produced from his pocket-book a funny little tin type that she had given him on that occasion.

"Will you give me a chance to make up for all we've missed since then? 'Twas all my fault we quarreled."

"No, mine, too, for I was stubborn," was the quick reply; "but oh, we're too old to marry now."

"Old—you?" cried John. "You look sixteen to me, and that's a fact. And didn't our old copy books say that it's never too late to mend?"

"Well, I don't know," twinkled Lydia; "strikes me, we were quite ready to follow up that cat and dog affair."

"Hush them both!" cried John. "I wouldn't part with that pup now for a fortune; but he shall learn to leave me alone. Lyddy, if you'll just come and plant them in my garden at once."

As the little gate was left wide open, as the sun bright day went through the stars on the other side as Mrs.

Women police in Bangkok guard the most part and are stationed in the palace in Bangkok, they are assigned to a special vocation. One of their duties is to follow any visitor who visits the palace and remain with him or her until their departure. They see that no mischief is done, and that no one annoys the ladies of the court. The women police are attired in a distinctive uniform, but are not armed.

Natural Inquiry.
Our little four-year-old girl went with me to feed the chickens. The food was quite hot and the chickens drew their bills out quickly. I said: "They ought not put their noses in that hot food." "Have chickens got noses?" she asked. "I told her they had, and her next inquiry was: 'Where do they carry their handkerchiefs?'"—Exchange.

From the Earth's Infancy.
The perfect state of preservation of organisms which lived untold millions of years ago is shown by Professor Oliver in an archaic type of seed in the lower coal measures of Lancashire. These are only one-fifth of an inch long, but under the microscope their integument is seen to possess ten ribs, which project like little arms.

Gold Stone.
Gold stone is a sort of an opaque golden brown glass filled with minute crystals of a bright gold color, and of various sizes. It is used for ornamental purposes. Its preparation was accidentally discovered at Murano, near Venice, Italy, when a quantity of brass filings dropped into a pot of melted glass.

The Psalter.
A very ancient instrument which was in general use by the Hebrews, is spoken of in the Psalms. It belonged to the harp species, but was much smaller than the harp as we know it, probably more like the dulcimer in size, but there is a difference of opinion as to whether the strings were plucked or struck.

This little boat was one of the fleet of 59 which cleared the North Sea of 55,000 mines.

The Fleet has just returned to this country and was given a big reception in New York City.

These boats would sometimes be out for as long as twenty-five days in the storms and seas for which the North Sea is noted. The work was declared impossible by other navies, but the United States went ahead and completed this work before the scheduled time.

The U. S. Navy once again did the impossible.

Pearls No Oyster Monopoly.

True pearls, from 1-32 to 1-16 inch in size, were found in large numbers on the mucous surfaces of a recent shipment of tripe received in England from the United States. That the occurrence was not unusual, but had merely escaped previous notice, was shown by the examination of fresh specimens taken from native cows, says Popular Mechanics Magazine. The pearls were soft, of course, each imbedded in a cyst, and apparently developed just as in a bivalve.

Is There Such a Man?
Happy is the man who can go to sleep without reporting that the furnace fire is all right, the basement light turned off, the back door locked, the front door locked, the cat put out, the bedroom windows raised, the bedroom register turned off, the clock wound, the alarm set, and the alarm spring released.—Exchange.

Moving Mountains.
Studies in the Himalayas have brought to light a phenomenon. It is no less than an apparent creeping of these gigantic mountain ranges, the highest on the globe, sideways toward the south, with a consequent crumpling up of the Siwalik hills. Surveys disclose the real facts.

First Recorded Eclipse.
The first eclipse recorded happened March 19, 721 B. C., at 8:40 p. m., according to Ptolemy. It was lunar and was observed with accuracy at Babylon. Anaxagoras was the first to explain the physical cause of eclipses about 450 B. C.

INCOME TAX RETURNS DUE

Business Men, Farmers and Wage Workers Must File Schedule of Income for 1919.

MARCH 15 LAST FILING DATE

Net Incomes of $1,000 or Over, if Single; or $2,000 or Over if Married, Must Be Reported.

The Income Tax imposed by Act of Congress on earnings of the year 1919 is now being collected.

Returns under oath must be made on or before March 15 by every citizen and resident who had a net income for 1919 amounting to:

$1,000 or over, if single; or if married and living apart from wife (or husband); or if widowed or divorced.

$2,000 or over, if married and living with wife (or husband).

The status of the person on the last day of the year fixes the status for the year with respect to the above requirements.

Under any of these circumstances a return must be made, even though no tax is due.

Husband and wife must consider the income of both, plus that of dependent minor children, in meeting this requirement; and, if sufficient to require a return, all items must be shown in a joint return or in separate returns of husband and wife.

A single person with minor dependents must include the income of such dependents.

A minor who has a net income of $1,000 or more is not considered a dependent, and must file a separate return.

Personal returns should be made on Form 1040A, unless the net income exceeded $5,000, in which case Form 1040 should be used.

Residents of Maryland should file their returns with, and make payments of Income Tax to, Joshua W. Miles, Collector of Internal Revenue, Baltimore.

How to Figure Income.

The best way to find out whether one must file a return is to get a Form 1040A and follow the instructions printed on it. That form will serve as a reminder of every item of income, and if a return is due it tells how to prepare and file it.

If in doubt on any point as to income or deductions, a person may secure free advice and aid from the nearest Internal Revenue office.

Guesswork, estimates and other hit-or-miss methods are barred when a person is making out his Income Tax return. Accuracy and completeness must be insisted upon. The return is a sworn statement. As such it must be thorough and accurate.

Salaried persons and wage earners must ascertain the actual compensation received. Overtime, bonuses, shares in the profits of a business, value of quarters and board furnished by the employer and other items which are compensations for services must be included.

It must be borne in mind that compensation may be paid in other forms than in cash. A bonus paid in Liberty Bonds is taxable at the market value of the bonds. A note received in payment for services is taxable income at its face value, and the interest upon it is also taxable.

Other Returns Due.

Every partnership doing business in the United States must file a return on Form 1065; and every personal service corporation must file a similar return.

Corporations must file annual returns on Form 1120.

Trustees, executors, administrators and others acting in a fiduciary capacity are required to file returns. In some cases, Form 1041 is used; in others, Form 1040; and still others, returns on both forms are required.

Information returns, on Forms 1099 and 1098, must be filed by every organization, firm or person who paid, during 1919, an amount of $1,000 in salary, wages, interest, rent, or other fixed or determinable income to another person, partnership, personal service corporation or fiduciary. These information returns should be forwarded directly to the Commissioner of Internal Revenue (sorting division), Washington, D. C.

FARMER'S INCOME SUBJECT TO TAX

Gains for 1919 Must Be Figured
Under U. S. Law—Returns
Due March 15.

LAND SALE PROFITS TAXABLE.

Necessary Farm Expenses May Be Deducted—Special Form for Farm Income—Cash or Accrual Basis for Computing.

A farmer, shopkeeper, or tradesman must figure up his net income for 1919; and if the farm or business income plus his other income was sufficient to require an income tax return a complete return must be filed with the collector of internal revenue by March 15.

A farmer should ascertain the gross income of his farm by computing all gains derived from the sale or exchange of his products, whether produced on the farm or purchased and resold.

Farm Expenses.
From his gross income a farmer is allowed to charge off all of his necessary expenses in the conduct of the farm during the year. These include costs of planting, cultivating, harvesting and marketing. In addition to these costs he may deduct money spent for ordinary farm tools of short life bought during the year, such as shovels, rakes, etc. Also, the cost of feed purchased for his live stock may be treated as an expense in so far as this cost represents actual outlay, but the value of his own products fed to animals is not a deductible item.

Other farm expenses allowable are the cost of minor repairs on buildings (but not the dwelling house), on fences, wagons and farm machinery; also bills paid for horseshoeing, stock powders, rock salt, services of veterinary, insurance (except on dwelling house), gasoline for operating power and sundry other expenses which were paid for in cash.

As to hired help, all the productive labor is a deductible expense; but the wages of household servants, or help hired to improve the farm, as in tree planting, ditching, etc., cannot be claimed against earnings. A farmer is not allowed to claim a salary for himself or members of his family who work on the farm.

Wear and Tear.
Purchase of farm machinery, wagons, work animals, etc., also the cost of construction or extension of buildings, silos, fencing, etc., should be considered additional investments in the farm and are not proper deductions against income.

A reasonable allowance may be claimed for wear and tear on farm buildings (except the farmhouse), fences, machinery, work animals, wagons, tanks, windmills and other farm equipment which is used in the conduct of the farm.

As to autos and tractors, the cost of these is not an expense, although the cost of their upkeep is an allowable deduction, if the machines are used exclusively for farm purposes and not for pleasure. Also, in such cases, a deduction for wear and tear is allowed.

Farm Losses.
The loss of a growing crop is not a proper deduction from income, inasmuch as the value of the crop had not been taken into gross income. The loss of a building or of machinery through storm, lightning, flood, etc., is an allowable deduction, but care should be used to ascertain the correct loss sustained, as restricted by income tax regulations.

No deduction is allowed in the case of loss of animals raised on the farm, but a loss is deductible from gross income if the animals had been purchased for draft or breeding purposes. Shrinkage in weight or value of farm products held for favorable market prices cannot be deducted as a loss, for the reason that when such products are sold the shrinkage will be reflected in the selling price.

Sale of Farms and Land.
The value of agricultural lands has been jumping during the past few years, and during 1919 many owners sold out part or all of their lands at big profits. All such gains constitute income and must be taken into the net income for the year.

Any person who sold part of a farm or ranch, or part of a parcel of land must also show any gains realized by the sale.

The method of figuring gains and losses on such transactions is prescribed in the Income Tax regulations, copies of which may be secured from Internal Revenue Collectors.

Forms for Returns.
The Internal Revenue Bureau has issued an improved Form 1040F for the use of farmers. This form, together with Form 1040A or 1040, will give the farmer explicit information as to how to properly figure his net income for 1919.

There are two methods of figuring a farmer's income tax return this year. He may make his return on the basis of the difference between the money and goods received for his products and the cash paid out for actual allowable farm expenses within the year. Or he may make his return on the accrual basis, which means computing the receipts and expenses that pertain to the taxable year, excluding income earned and expenses incurred in previous or succeeding years.

They couldn't be built now for twice $71,000

When the talk turns from politics to railroads, and the traveler with the cocksure air breaks in with, "There's an awful lot of 'water' in the railroads," here are some hard-pan facts to give him:

American railroads have cost $80,900 a mile—roadbed, structures, stations, yards, terminals, freight and passenger trains—everything from the great city terminals to the last spike.

A good concrete-and-asphalt highway costs $36,000 a mile—just a bare road, not counting the cost of culverts, bridges, etc.

Our railroads couldn't be duplicated today for $150,000 a mile.

They are capitalized for only $71,000 a mile—much less than their actual value. Seventy-one thousand dollars today will buy one locomotive.

English railways are capitalized at $274,000 a mile; the French at $155,000; German $132,000; even in Canada (still in pioneer development) they are capitalized at $67,000 a mile. The average for all foreign countries is $100,000.

Low capitalization and high operating efficiency have enabled American Railroads to pay the highest wages while charging the lowest rates.

American Women Stirred by Armenian Horrors

"MERCIFUL GOD, it's all true! Nobody has ever told the whole truth! Nobody could!"

Thus Eleanor Franklin Egan, in the Saturday Evening Post, quotes Howard Heinz of Pittsburgh, Herbert Hoover's representative in the Near East, on the real conditions in Armenia as he saw them with his own eyes.

Mr. Heinz had been one of those who had believed the stories of starvation and death in Armenia had been exaggerated. Not until he went himself to the Caucasus did his views change. Then he was shaken to the foundation of his soul by what he saw.

"Fearful! Awful! Horrible! Unbelievable!" are some of the adjectives Mrs. Egan says must be used in speaking of conditions in the Near East, where Near East Relief, 1 Madison Avenue, New York, supported by contributions from the American people, is conducting the only organized effort to save the lives of these utterly destitute millions. Everything she saw and heard justified the necessity for quick and generous aid from America. Her story of what she witnessed re-enforces the call of the Near East Relief for aid for stricken Armenia.

"The Hunger grin" is everywhere evident," Mrs. Egan writes. "The pitiful hundreds seemed to me to be weeping constantly. Not profoundly as in grief, but whimpering, appealingly as in unbearable physical distress. A terrible population. Unspeaking filthy and tattered matted hair; shivering, death stricken throngs milling from place to place, children crying aloud, women sobbing in broken inarticulate lamentation; men utterly hopeless and reduced to staggering weakness, heedless of the tears rolling down their dirt-streaked faces."

That is her picture of the Armenians most in evidence in Armenia. These are the throngs. Then she turns to the mobs. "Large numbers here and there, wide-eyed, eager, hands outstretched in wolfish supplication; teeth bared in a ghastly grin that had long since ceased to smile—an emaciated skin-stretched grin, fixed and uncontrollable."

"Is it any wonder," she asks, "that I could not swallow my food? I threw it to the children in the ravening hordes and started small riots. The children fought together, snarled and clawed at one another for small bits of army biscuit or morsels of bully beef."

"And then I was told that many of them were so starved that solid food Collecting grass to be eaten as food in Armenia. Thousands die after terrible suffering from eating grass.

"The starvation grin," so common in Armenia, as described by Mrs. Egan in her article.

was likely to kill them instantly. This was too terribly true. Yet in the whole length and breadth of the land there was not an ounce of food of the kind necessary for such cases. At Kars I saw one man die with bread in his teeth. And if you will consent to look with me upon a too awful thing I will add that he showed evidence of having eaten too much grass.

"I went hungry in Armenia, and I associate remembered pangs of my own with all my recollections of the terrible land. I had plenty of food with me, but for days on end I could not eat. It was a physical impossibility."

"And I came to a point, too, when to look upon things that had to be looked upon set my heart to quaking in a horror difficult to describe."

Of her first sight in Armenia of the terrible condition of the people Mrs. Egan writes of the scenes on her way to Kars:

"Everywhere in the fields there were people down on their knees searching for grasses to eat. Those near the railroad lifted their heads and gazed at our train as it rushed past, and I caught glimpses of terrible faces. An old man sitting at the top of an embankment waved a handful of grass at me where I stood at the car window, then threw his head back and laughed a maniacal laugh. I began then to feel the cold chills with which I was to shiver for days on end."

Of Kars she writes: "It had been raining for days, and wherever one looked one saw nothing but misery and mud. Between the railroad tracks were unsightly pools and puddles, through which many human scare-crows trudged back and forth."

"They were a multiple Lazarus, and the train was the rich man's table. They were begging for crumbs. I began to hear for the first time the whining indescribable phrase that sounded to me like 'O-na-ne, O-na-ne.' It was so feebly, so plaintively murmured, 'O-na-ne.'"

Mrs. Egan asked what it meant and was told the nearest equivalent was "Oh, my soul!" "But," she says, "it was more than that; it was a prayer for mercy."

Describing a makeshift hospital before the arrival of the Near East Relief workers, Mrs. Egan writes:

"The sick in their unbelievable rags were lying around on the floors—bundles of unimaginable wretchedness. The doctor was not doing anything at all for them. What could he do? He had not so much as a single ounce of medicine of any kind. The little people were more pitiable than the adults. The ward, if I may call it that, had in it not one stick of furniture of any kind, and the children were all lying on the dusty and rubbish-strewn floor with nothing under them and no covering save the rags they wore."

"It Is Not Very Nice to Starve," Says Little Guest From Armenia

IRANEH ESTHER ARAXIE AZGAPATIAN.

I AM little Armenian girl. I have three years. My name has a history as long as the tail of a cat. I am called Iraneh Esther Araxie Azgapatian.

Iraneh, because I was born at Kazvin, in Persia, and that is a good Persian name. Near the Red Cross hut where I first opened my eyes was the tomb of Esther and Mordecai, so my father also named me Esther. Then, being a good Armenian, I had to have the name of our beloved river Arax. Therefore I am Araxie.

My father is General Mesrop Newton, khan Azgapatian. He was with an army in the Caucasus mountains during the Great War. We were living just inside the city wall. I could hear the jackals at night howling, howling all the time. I howled too. My nurse said the jackals set me a bad example. My first nurse was a great big soldier. He belonged to the Russian army, which was encamped near us.

My mother tells me that she paid five roubles a day (that is $2.50 in American money) for half a loaf of bread. The bread was often full of dirt and splinters. One fine day my father found a can of condensed milk in a shop and bought it for $6. That day I had a feast and did not cry at all. Several times my father was able to buy a salt herring, for which he paid $1.50.

I began to get very thin. My mother said she must take me away so that I would not die. We began to go away, but it took a long time. Everywhere there were people going. They mostly had no clothes, and often they would fall down. My mother said they would never get up again. My mother said they did not have the money to buy even the bad bread we had and they could not live without food. We traveled in an ambulance, on horseback, donkeyback and camelback, in a truck, a motor lorry and a cart—in fact, by every way except an airplane.

It was many months before we could come to America. There is much to eat here. I like America. I never cry any more. My mother cries. She says there are thousands of little children starving to death in our country. It is not nice to starve. I did not like it. It makes her sad. But some days she smiles. That is when my mother says she knows America will not let the little Armenian babies suffer or be hurt.

ARAXIE.

AID GOD'S POOR, SAYS MRS. DANIELS

By MRS. JOSEPHUS DANIELS, Wife of the Secretary of the Navy.

THE plight of the people of Armenia presents a tragedy inconceivable. Hundreds of thousands of the descendants of the earliest Christian race are now, because of their religion, undergoing sufferings beyond the imagination of civilized America. During the war it is estimated that 1,000,000 Armenians, a third of the total population, were massacred. No barbarity in human history exceeds the gross cruelty of that destruction. Thousands were driven out upon the desert, there to die from hunger and thirst under the pitiless rays of a tropical sun.

MRS. JOSEPHUS DANIELS.

Such was the price which the Armenian people paid for their Christianity and their loyalty to the cause of justice and democracy during the world war. One-quarter of a million children, chiefly orphans, whose parents perished in massacres, are utterly dependent on American charity.

Hundreds of thousands of refugees in the Caucasus, clad only in torn, verminous rags, without shelter and without food, can exist only if America has compassion upon them. Shall we fall them? Not if I know my country!

Help Near East Relief in its work for God's poor.

Mrs. Walter King Sharp, of Chambersburg, Pa., and Miss Mollie Ross, of Doylestown, Pa., spent Friday and Saturday in Princess Anne in the interest of the Young Women's Christian Association.

Figures of the Y. M. C. A. war work have just been published. The total receipts were $161,722,649.42, and there is an unexpended balance of $17,000,000 due to the fact that the war ended so suddenly.

Miss Lou Mills, Home Demonstrator of Somerset county, attended the Conference of Home Demonstration Agents of the Eastern Shore counties, held at Easton, Md., last Wednesday, Thursday and Friday.

Messrs. C. Hubbard Daugherty and Jerome Sterling, Jr., of Crisfield, left Wednesday last for a trip to Havana, Cuba. On their return they will take in a number of the popular resorts on the Florida Coast.

The Circuit Court for Somerset county has granted a divorce to Mrs. Emma Hollowell, of Crisfield, from her husband, Wm. B. Hollowell, and given her the right to resume her maiden name of Emma V. Miles.

Major Stanley Phillips, wife and daughter, who have been spending some time at the home of the former's uncle, Mr. John B. Roberts, returned to Norfolk last Tuesday. Major Phillips is stationed at Fort Enclave.

Mr. Hall, of Somerset county, introduced a bill last Friday to provide for the appointment of six instead of three school commissioners for the county.

Mr. Hall wants the Federal geographical sections of the county represented on the board.

Mrs. Katherine Dashiell, wife of Mr. William Walles Dashiell, died suddenly at her home, 848 St. Nicholas Avenue, New York City, last Wednesday night. Her funeral took place from her late home last Saturday afternoon. Mrs. Dashiell was well-known in Princess Anne, having been a frequent visitor at the home of Mr. C. M. Dashiell.

Mr. George Poe Wier died last Tuesday afternoon at Eldon, near Cambridge, where he and his brother, Charles H. Wier, Jr., had farmed on a large scale for several years. Death came suddenly and was due to heart failure. A widow, formerly Miss Sallie Robertson, of Somerset county, and two children, Miss Lucretia Poe Wier and C. Henry Wier, survive. The body was taken Tuesday night to Baltimore. Funeral services were held in the chapel of Greenmount Cemetery at 10 o'clock Wednesday morning.

Rt. Rev. William Forbes Adams, Bishop of the Diocese of Easton, is critically ill with pneumonia. The Bishop is in his 88th year, having reached his 87th milestone on January 2d, last. On St. John's Day, 1915, he celebrated the 56th anniversary of his ordination, and has been bishop of the Protestant Episcopal diocese of Easton, including the nine counties of the Eastern Shore of Maryland, since 1867. He is a native of Ireland, and in his eighth year he was brought to Kentucky by his parents. In spite of his advanced years, Bishop Adams has been exceptionally vigorous and active.

Ancient Wisdom.
You do the greatest service to the state if you shall raise, not the roof of the houses, but the souls of the citizens; for it is better that great souls should dwell in small houses rather than for mean slaves to lurk in great houses.—Epictetus.

Aztec Emeralds.
Among the Aztec treasures of Mexico were found many fine emeralds. They were exquisitely cut, and it is from this source that the magnificent emeralds now forming part of the royal collection of Spain were supposed to have come.

HELP THE ARMENIANS

Thousands Will Starve If They Do Not Get Aid

Whatever happens, hundreds of thousands of Armenians and Syrians will starve to death unless America gives immediate and substantial aid to them.

This is the gist of a report made by Major General Harbord, formerly of General Pershing's staff, who, as the representative of the United States Government has just completed a thorough survey of conditions in the Caucasus.

General Harbord estimates that at least $30,000,000 will be required to see these unfortunates safely past the next harvest, giving them, in addition to sufficient food and enable them to work, seeds and implements to make possible the planting and harvesting of the crop.

It is difficult for us Americans to comprehend the condition of a people who are actually starving in large numbers; human beings who are unable through any channel to lay their hands upon sufficient food to sustain life. Our people in America have never seen human beings ravenously snatch an apple or potato peelings or squabble over unidentified refuse and single crumbs, nor do they spend days gleaning fields already repeatedly and thoroughly gleaned, nor do they make grass an article of principal diet. These are things that our missionary say in Armenia and Anatolia. Such is the situation among the Armenians and others destitute in the region over which the Russian and Turkish armies fought. Until a crop can be harvested it will continue to be the case except where alleviated by foreign aid, practically the only source of which is America.

Near East Relief, an American organization, chartered by Congress, is doing all that is possible to help these unfortunates regain their homes and start life anew. It depends upon the voluntary gifts of Americans and is asking for $30,000,000 only—a less sum than General Harbord suggests. This is feasible only because the methods of administering relief call for the continued activity of the Armenian people themselves, who are helping valiantly in every way.

Interested In Princess Anne Academy

The following is a copy of a letter which the Hon. Thos. S. Hodson, of Crisfield, Md., wrote on April 24th, 1919, expressing sympathy for the Princess Anne Academy in the loss it had sustained by fire. This he permits the principal, T. H. Kiah, to publish as an aid in securing funds. It should be stated that the amount sent by Mr. Hodson and his son, Mr. Clarence Hodson, of New York City, was $100.

Principal T. H. Kiah, Princess Anne Academy.

"I note with regret that your main building, the old Olney building, was burned the other day. I write to say that I have $25 for you toward rebuilding whenever you choose to call on me for it.

"Somerset county has no fact or achievement to boast of more worthy of special honor and notice than that she possesses an academy where youth can be well taught and boarded for less than $100 per annum. There is, so far as I know, no other in the State which does that.

Yours truly,
THOS. S. HODSON."

Marriage Licenses
The following is a list of the marriage licenses issued by the Clerk of the Circuit Court for Somerset County:

LAWYER GAVE UP

Legal Light Wholly Retired From Unequal Combat.

Little Star is Dr. After Judge Had So Thoroughly Proved the Eligibility of Colonel Jones as a Juror.

Presiding over a judicial district in the Tennessee mountains is an old gentleman who invariably demands of litigants, before the machinery of the court is set in motion: "Do you want back law or justice in this here court?" "Justice," has always been promptly declared for, and his honor must have distributed it with a wise and kindly hand, inasmuch as he has been elected, almost unanimously, on every voting day ever since the Civil war.

Natives do not usually regard a lawyer as a necessity when a cause is to be decided by this lawgiver of the hills. Each man states his case for himself, and the judge simply tells the witnesses to "jest tell the jury all about this here matter, so far as you air informed," and helps out with a few direct questions when the testimony seems not quite clear.

Not so long ago, however, "a foreigner"—from Kentucky—joined issues with a native, and imported a lawyer from Nashville. Among the other strange and unprecedented things that the lawyer did was to challenge certain of the men who were expected, as a matter of course, to form the jury. Being a juror is a recognized profession in that particular region, and the lawyer's objections occasioned both astonishment and anger in the breasts of the gray-bearded regulars.

"Colonel Jones has been on the jury every settin' of this co'te for thirty years," the old judge remonstrated gently, in one instance. "He always has proved powerful satisfactory to the co'te and to all others concerned. Of course, as we air goin' to have back law in this case, you can object to Colonel Jones if yo' want to, but I would personally like mighty well to know why yo' object to him."

"From his conversation, overheard by chance, I am convinced that this man would be unable to give proper weight to the evidence I shall introduce, your honor," the lawyer explained briskly. "He is unacquainted with the meaning of the most ordinary words."

"That so?" the old judge remarked, pushing up his spectacles and surveying Colonel Jones reprovingly. "Now, I always thought that he was right well along in words. What was it he didn't seem to know the right meanin' of?"

"The term 'preponderance of evidence,' your honor," the lawyer asserted, "was most absurdly construed by this man. He—"

"Oh, I reckon not," the old judge interrupted, with a kindly smile. "I reckon you just misunderstood him. I am plumb sure that Colonel Jones knows as well as I do that preponderance of evidence means evidence previously pondered—don't you, colonel?"

"Objection withdrawn, your honor," the lawyer said weakly.—Philadelphia Ledger.

Inspired by Joaquin Miller. Charles Wakefield Cadman, the famous composer, found inspiration for his sonata for the piano in a major, Op. 58, in Joaquin Miller's poem, "From Sea to Sea." Cadman said he prided himself on the inspiration he got from Miller's works in which he sang to the West of the United States. Cadman's first movement showed the West before the white man found it, and naturally he had to ring in his eternal love for the Indian. Without being too much influenced by the poet Miller, Cadman tried to carry out his idea, his longing for the West. It may be taken as the pioneer's thoughts of the eastern or southern home he has left in quest for the new, undiscovered land. Cadman also speaks of his poem of rejoicing for the continent now constructed. Triumph, pride, beauty, happiness, optimism, breadth and ecstasy are the things he tried to write into his compositions.

Finland Reaching for Trade. The Finnish Trans-Oceanic Trading company, a co-operative institution representing about 90 per cent of the manufacturing firms and merchants of Finland, is about to open a branch of its business in Australia. An option has been obtained by the company on a fleet of Finnish steamships and an effort will be made by the company to gain the Baltic trade with Australia previously held by Germany. The concern hopes to obtain the trade with Australia in paper, timber, turpentine and other goods that it had before the war through German agents, and with the elimination of German influence, will carry the products of Finland to Australia in a regular fleet of vessels running on a monthly schedule.

Oh, Murder! "Both these samples smell like cheap goods to me." "Cheap! Those whistles are the best on the market. They're both over ten years old." "Then they're old enough to have better scents."

Something He Was Familiar With. "Come, my dear post," the hostess finally begged, "say something to us!" "Have you observed—duchess," he murmured, hesitatingly. "That—this—these—these are pink!"—Los Angeles.

U.S. NAVY

With the Fleet

When you can look out over the stern of a big dreadnaught and see a line of regular he-ships following in battle formation, you just can't help swelling up and letting out a couple of man-sized roars. A fair sea, a good breeze, and a line of battleships making fifteen to twenty knots, present the most inspiring sight any man can ask on this earth. Living with such experiences turns boys into men, gives them a grip on life, makes real stuff of them. They work hard, they play hard, and we know that, if necessary, they can fight hard. Learn about your wonderful Navy. Be proud of it. It is respected by every country in the world. And it is yours; every bit your Navy.

DAUGHTER OF AGUINALDO IN U. S. CAPITAL

She Meets Many Wives of American Statesmen and Makes a Hit.

When General Emilio Aguinaldo was leading the Filipino army against the American forces twenty years ago he probably little dreamed that some day a daughter of his would visit the city of Washington and would be given a great reception at the famous Congressional Club! And that the wives of 120 members of the American Congress and two wives of members of the President's cabinet would call upon her to pay their respects!

But all this actually happened when Miss Carmen Aguinaldo, his nineteen-year-old daughter, visited Washington recently. And those wives of the American statesmen expressed themselves as both charmed and surprised at the refined, tactful, college educated young miss who greeted them.

"Miss Aguinaldo was simply delightful," was the expression of one congressman's wife. "She was very modest, yet she acted so natural and thoroughly at home that she captivated everybody."

On another occasion while in Washington Miss Aguinaldo was given a real ovation by a Filipino-American audience when she recited "My Last Farewell," poem of Dr. Jose Rizal, the Filipino martyr.

Miss Aguinaldo is a student at the University of Illinois, Urbana, Ill. While in Washington she was the guest of Mrs. Jaime C. de Veyra, wife of one of the resident commissioners from the Philippines. The Capitol building and the Congressional library appealed particularly to the young Filipina, while the beautiful sights from the Washington monument thrilled her with delight. When asked how she liked America, she smiled and answered:

"It is a wonderful country. I didn't like winter at first, but since I have learned how to skate I am having fine times. All the Americans whom I have met have been very good to me. My friends in Urbana and my classmates in the university are just lovely, but I cannot help feeling homesick at times because I am missing my father. My coming here was indeed a great sacrifice for him, for we are very close. He is so good to me."

Miss Aguinaldo is intensely patriotic. She does not conceal her resentment when she hears or reads of a misrepresentation of the Filipinos. "It is unfortunate," she once exclaimed in a voice full of sadness, "that my country and my people are hardly known, much less understood, by the people of America."

Politics is tabooed in any conversation with this Filipino maid. She evades the topic by replying that she is too young to express opinions on things political. "All I can say," she declares, "is that I share with my father in the desire for independence for my native land. There is no question about our being able to govern ourselves."

Filipinos declare Miss Aguinaldo has a "genuine Filipina temperament"—that is, she does not believe in the occidental custom of "dates" between young men and women. She does not see anything wrong in it, she says, but it is such a violent departure from the custom in the Philippines that she cannot adopt it.

"You might laugh at me," she said, "but I cannot go out with one single escort unchaperoned. I simply can't. I will go back to my country with the soul of a Filipina."

A newspaper in one of the large American cities that Miss Aguinaldo visited expressed the opinion that she would no doubt be greatly impressed by the sight of street cars and some of the fine residences she would see, but the truth is the young lady was raised in Manila, where she has seen an up-to-date street car system all her life.

WOMEN GET BALLOT BEFORE AMER. SISTERS

Senora de Veyra Describes Status of Women in the Philippines.

The Filipino woman is destined to be in the world's spotlight more than ever before as a result of the news just received by cable from Manila to the effect that the Philippine senate has passed the equal suffrage bill giving women full political rights with men. This would indicate that the Filipina may beat her American sisters to the ballot box.

The Filipina has many admirers who predict she will make good if she gets the vote, just as she has made good in the very important role she has occupied in the family and business life of the Philippines ever since the introduction of Christianity in the islands three centuries ago.

America's advent in the Philippines discovered a wonderfully interesting, responsive little being, the Filipino woman," writes one American concerning

A good old joke is told of the woman who, when asked by the banker to indorse her husband's check so it could be cashed, wrote on the back: "I heartily indorse this check. Your loving wife, Mary." Whether that incident is true or not, it happens frequently in real life that some woman, left alone by her husband's absence or death, finds herself in woeful ignorance of how to manage her money affairs. Thoughtful farmers and other business men these days are opening bank accounts for their wives—as told in a splendid article in the next issue of

MATERIALS OUR SECOND LARGEST EXPENSE

NEXT TO THE MONEY paid employees, the cost of materials is the most important factor of expense in operating any telephone system. This holds good everywhere, and it is quite true of our company.

PUBLIC REGULATION FIXES the price we may charge for our service, but it does not keep the price of materials down. We must pay current market prices for the materials we require to maintain our plant and equipment. Since 1914 the average price of

MATERIAL REQUIRED TO FURNISH TELEPHONE SERVICE HAS INCREASED 90 PER CENT.

BUT IN SPITE OF the burdens of rising wages and increased cost of materials, our whole effort has been to maintain our equipment at Bell System standards and to furnish good service.

WE CANNOT REASONABLY be expected to continue supplying service without adequate revenues; and therefore we are now asking the Public Service Commission for increased rates sufficient to pay our expenses and earn a fair return.

MANILA CARNIVAL BIG ATTRACTION OF FAR EAST

This is the season of the year when the Philippines become the playground for the entire orient. It is carnival season in Manila.

In 1908 the first Philippine carnival was held on historic Wallace Field in Manila in February, when the climate of the islands is at its best, and each succeeding year there has been a larger and more elaborate celebration. The 1920, or Victory, Carnival, will be the greatest event of its sort ever held anywhere in the Far East.

There are commercial and government exhibits in connection with the carnival, and on no other occasion is it possible to gain at once such a comprehensive idea of the production and development of resources of the archipelago as that which is offered the visitor at the carnival city.

In the evenings the carnival becomes the center of Philippine and oriental social activity. A huge open air auditorium serves for the elaborate nightly balls, and on its mammoth floor thousands of couples swing together to the strains of music furnished by the famous Constabulary and other military bands. Probably at no other place in the world will one see an equally impressive cosmopolitan spectacle.

The Manila visitor who can plan his trip to arrive at the Pearl of the Orient for carnival time may well deem himself fortunate.

How Would You Like to Harvest Two Crops of Corn a Year as They Do in the Philippines?

No, reader, this corn was not grown by one of our local farmers! It wasn't grown in the United States, even. It was grown in the faroff Philippine Islands by Filipino schoolboys. Two fine crops of corn a year are produced in the islands.

The Philippines are doing some wonderful things in the agricultural line. The Philippine government has fine agricultural schools throughout the islands, and the Philippine legislature, composed entirely of Filipinos, is each year making larger and larger appropriations for this important work.

The staple food of the islands is rice, but corn is coming right along in popular favor. Its use was given great impetus in the last year because of a rice shortage. Other important Philippine crops are hemp, sugar cane, coconuts, coffee, tapioca and pineapples. Lumber is also an important industry.

There are hundreds of thousands of acres of land lying idle in the Philippines, which have a greater area of fertile land than Japan—this in spite of the fact that the population of the Philippines is 11,000,000 while that of Japan is around 55,000,000. There is every reason to believe that some day the Philippines will have a population as large as that of Japan today. The Filipinos are the only Christian people in the orient, and their young men are working night and day to prepare themselves for the responsibility of citizenship in the Philippine Republic, which they believe to be near at hand.

Rice Terraces Are World's Masterpieces

This is a photograph of the Ifugao Igorrot rice terraces, which are among the most remarkable of their kind in the world. They are one of the many marvelous sights for the tourist to see in the Philippine Islands and are to be found in the Ifugao district of the Mountain province, Northern Luzon.

The height of these terraces, which are held up by stone walls, is from 4 to 18 feet, averaging 8 feet high. It is estimated there are 12,121 miles of eight-foot stone walls in the Ifugao terraces, which is approximately half the distance around the world.

These terraces are skillfully irrigated by water brought in troughs along the precipitous mountain sides over long distances.

A Filipina who is doing important work for her people in the United States.

the Filipina. "Mothering the only Christian people in the far east, she holds a place of authority, love and respect in family and social life that is not accorded to women in countries neighboring the islands, or in India, China or Japan."

A Filipina who is doing an important work for her people in the United States is Mrs. Jaime C. de Veyra, wife of the resident commissioner from the Philippines. Not only has she frequently addressed the wives of members of Congress in Washington as to conditions in the new Philippines, but she has visited various cities, speaking before women's clubs. The senora wears, in giving her talks, one of the beautiful gowns of her home land, a delicate pineapple fabric, hand-woven and hand-embroidered, shaped like a gauzy-winged butterfly.

"In many ways the path of the women of the Philippines is easy," says Senora de Veyra. "Laws made by her have combined the best of American and Spanish precedents, and she has come into her own with far less struggle than either her American or her Spanish sisters. Married women may hold property in severalty. They are guardians of their own children. These are vested rights and cannot be taken away from her."

"Professional opportunities are as good for women as for men in the land from which I come. The Filipina is by custom the dictator in the home. She is usually the keeper of the family treasure. Practically all of the small shops in Manila are conducted by women. Women are already members of the Philippine Bar Association—a thing still impossible in Great Britain. They are also successful as physicians."

Life is really a fifty-fifty proposition for women in the Philippines, according to the senora, who has taken such a prominent part in women's work there that she has sometimes been referred to as "the little mother of them all." She was the assistant matron of the Normal Hall Dormitory for girls when she married. She speaks English fluently and puts her little talks "across" with real tact. She has four children. An evidence of her enterprising was her action last year in making her husband at home in the eyes of the world by coming to dictate a

Representatives of the Just Representation League and of other business and civic bodies in Baltimore interested in increased representation for the city appeared last Wednesday morning before the Senate Committee on Constitutional Amendments. They urged the passage of the bill introduced by Senator Stiggs, which would give Baltimore City 14 members of the Senate and 35 members of the House, assuming the increase of 700,000 population in the city to be correct.

It seems certain that the Legislature will pass some bill, submitting to the people an amendment to the Constitution which would give the city larger representation. Senator Metzger, one of the Republican leaders from the county, has a bill creating two additional Legislative districts in the city, each to have one Senator and six Delegates, a total increase of 14 in the city's delegation. And Senator McIntosh, of Baltimore county, introduced a bill Wednesday to make the new Annex an additional Legislative district, with one Senator and six Delegates. Thus, it appears that there is sentiment among both county Republicans and Democrats for increased representation, and that fact, plus the general understanding that the administration favors increased representation, is taken to assure the submission to the people of some bill.

Maryland High in Navy Recruiting

For the past four weeks Maryland has stood third for two weeks and fourth for two weeks in the Eastern District, which is composed of fourteen main stations. New York and Philadelphia, having a population more than double that of Maryland, naturally lead the list. Other states having a population in excess of Maryland are not obtaining as many recruits as the Maryland Recruiting Force.

Lieutenant Commander P. V. H. Weems, recruiting officer for Maryland attributes this favorable report to the loyalty of the ex-navy men in Maryland and to the hard work of the recruiting force, who have covered the State repeatedly in putting the Navy before the public.

One of the features of the Maryland Recruiting Force is to hold periodical recruiting rallies, showing official navy pictures and including one or two short talks on navy recruiting.

Plans are being laid to enlist the entire crew for the U. S. S. Maryland. As this monster ship is only 68 per cent. complete, it is now a few weeks before the time for enlisting the men for this ship.

TIME IS THE TEST

The Testimony Of Princess Anne People Stand The Test

The test of time is what tells the tale. The public soon finds out when misrepresentations are made, and merit alone will stand the test of time.

Princess Anne people appreciate merit and many months ago local citizens publicly endorsed Doan's Kidney Pills; they do so still. Would a citizen make the statement which follows unless convinced that the article was just as represented? Below is testimony such as the sufferer from kidney ills is looking for.

Mrs. Carroll Hastings, Stone Road, Princess Anne, says: "For nearly seven years I had diseased kidneys and I was miserable and weak. I had a dragging-down pain in my back and my heart palpitated. Then again, I had sick headaches and dreadful pains in the small of my back. I was getting worse every day and I finally got Doan's Kidney Pills at Jones' drug store. The first box cured me of backache and the other symptoms were greatly relieved."

KEEPS DOAN'S ON HAND. Over nine years later, Mrs. Hastings said: "I always keep Doan's Kidney Pills on hand in case I should need them. I recommend them whenever I have an opportunity."

Price 60c. at all dealers. Don't simply ask for a kidney remedy—get Doan's Kidney Pills, the same that Mrs. Hastings had. Foster-Milburn, Co., Mfgs., Buffalo, N. Y.

Ford

Weak Links in a Strong Chain

That's just what initiation parts are when they become a part of your Ford car. They look strong enough, but the metal isn't there—the strong, durable Vandium steel that goes into the Ford chassis and every Ford part. Ford parts are specially cast and heat-treated, each according to its use. Some require a hard, flat-like wearing surface, others need resiliency, and some need just "toughness."

Ford metallurgists have been studying these problems for sixteen years and know just how each unit should be made to endure a maximum of wear and tear. They know that best results can be obtained only by the use of special formulas for different parts, and that honest Ford parts wear from thirty-five to 100 per cent. longer than counterfeits.

We carry complete assortments of genuine Ford parts for both passenger cars and trucks. And our garage is equipped to give careful, prompt Ford service—from minor adjustments to complete overhauls. Drive in, it's better to be safe than sorry. Come to the authorized Ford Dealer for service.

Is Your Woodland Productive?

Timber has now gotten to valuable that no one who owns woodlands can afford to let them lie idle or to be less productive than it is possible to make them.

At this time of year the farmer is making plans for the next crop season. In making plans for field crops he should not neglect his woodlands and his timber crop which may be the further means of producing the immediate revenue needed to finance some of his other farm operations.

The average woodland consists of trees of many different species, much differing in relative value. If the woodland has been well protected there will probably be on the ground trees of all ages, from the tiny seedling up to those of mature growth. It is possible, by judicious management, to harvest a succession of timber crops from the woodlands at a few years interval, thus putting the woodland on much the same basis as the cultivated land. In selecting the trees to be cut and those to save for further growth a wise selection must be made. There are certain weed trees to be eliminated, overgrown trees to be taken out in order to give more light and growing space for the younger trees, thinnings should be made where the trees stand too close together and, in some cases, it will be necessary to plant open spaces with seed or young trees of the right kind in order to bring the woodland up to further production. These are operations similar to the tending of a field crop, and can be easily carried out in the winter when other farm work is not pressing.

There is scarcely a tract of woodland in the State that cannot be greatly improved, and the best part of it is that this improvement can generally be brought about by a cutting operation, which will net the owner a considerable revenue. The State Board of Forestry, 815 Calvert Building, Baltimore, has worked out a plan for handling woodlands that has proven entirely satisfactory in hundreds of cases. Every owner should have his woodlands examined by an expert to know what he has and how he can get the most out of it. The service is free.

Has Had Stomach Trouble for Seven Years

Theodore Sanford, of Fenmore, Mich., has had stomach trouble for seven years and could not eat vegetables or fruit without pain in the stomach and restless nights. By taking Chamberlain's Tablets he is now able to eat vegetables or fruit without causing pain or sleeplessness. If troubled with indigestion or constipation give these tablets a trial. They are certain to prove beneficial.

WET WAVE ALARM: DRY LEADERS

Continuing Anti-Prohibition Revolt From New Jersey to Massachusetts
Eastern "dry" were feverishly manning the pumps last Tuesday in frantic effort to combat the "wet" wave sweeping over sections from New Jersey to the northern boundary of Massachusetts. The biggest waves which struck the "dry" ship were:

Gov. Edward I. Edwards, of New Jersey, signed the 3.50 per cent. beer bill, passed by both houses of the legislature and it is now on the statute books of New Jersey as an enforcement act for prohibition.

The manufacture and sale of beverages will not be undertaken in New Jersey under the provisions of the law until Congress declares the war with Germany at an end.

Fortified with the New Jersey statute, expressing the views of the Governor and legislature on the mooted question of concurrent enforcement power under the Eighteenth Amendment, Attorney General Thomas F. McLean is ready to go before the Supreme Court of the United States and take up Governor Edwards' battle to upset the Constitutional amendment and the Volstead act.

In a statement issued Tuesday the Governor reiterated his intention to fight for a "wet" plank in the Democratic National Convention.

Complete returns from the 64 Massachusetts towns holding annual elections Tuesday showed that over half of them, and many of these previously "dry" strongholds, had voted "wet." Among these were Lexington and Dedham, which has been "dry" for 49 and 23 years respectively.

Canners and Tomato Growers' Meeting

At conference of representatives from the United States Department of Agriculture and the State Colleges of Maryland, Delaware and New Jersey, together with the leaders of the canners and growers' organizations of the three States, recently held at Wilmington, Del., it was suggested that meetings of growers and canners be held in all the principal tomato counties, at which time the whole problem, including means for increasing yields, could be presented to all concerned.

In order that the growers and canners in this county may get together and discuss the tomato problem, a meeting has been arranged by County Agent C. Z. Keller for Wednesday afternoon, March 17th, at 1.30 p. m., in the Court House. There will be speakers from the United States Department of Agriculture and Maryland State College present to discuss the growing of tomatoes, and growers and canners are requested to take part in the discussion.

Miss Addie Wilson Dead

Miss Addie Wilson died at the home of her brother, Mr. Samuel Wilson, at Westover, Sunday night, February 29th, of pneumonia, aged 69 years.

Miss Wilson was a daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. L. J. Wilson, and was well known in Princess Anne. She had spent the past two or three years with her nephew, Mr. C. C. Waller, and had only recently gone to visit her brother at Westover. She is survived by two brothers, Mr. L. James Wilson, of this town, and Samuel Wilson, of Westover. Miss Wilson was a niece of Mr. Z. J. Dougherty, of Princess Anne. Funeral services were held last Tuesday in St. Andrew's Church, conducted by the Rev. O. E. Murphy. Interment was in the church cemetery.

Among bills introduced in the House last Tuesday was one by Mr. Gladden, of Somerset, providing that the Board of Education appoint only male attendants to the schools. Another bill passed was Mr. Ball's, of this county, increasing the term of the State.

BISHOP ADAMS DIES AT EASTON

Was Head Of The Episcopal Church On The Eastern Shore

Right Rev. William Forbes Adams, Bishop of the Protestant Episcopal Diocese of Easton, died between 2 and 3 o'clock last Friday morning at his home in Easton. He had been ill less than two weeks. Misses Pauline and Louise Adams, the Bishop's daughters, and his son, Dr. Wilbur Adams, were with him when the end came. Bishop Adams was 87 years old, and his death was due largely to the infirmities of age.

His funeral took place yesterday (Monday) afternoon at 2 o'clock in Trinity Cathedral, Easton.

Bishop Adams was born January 2, 1833, in Enniskillen, Ireland, but his father, a man of means, came to this country in 1841, when the subject of this sketch was in his eighth year, and settled in Kentucky, where the middle youth of William Forbes Adams was passed.

Mr. Adams was ordained a priest by Rt. Rev. William Morrey Green, D. D., Bishop of Mississippi. In 1860 Mr. Adams was given charge of St. Paul's, Woodville, Miss. He was in charge there during the Civil War, and within the sound of the guns of Fort Hudson during the long and desperate struggle of 52 days. Rev. Mr. Adams was elected to the chaplaincy of a Mississippi regiment, but the colonel of the regiment being one of his parishioners objected to his leaving and prevented notification of it.

In 1868 Bishop Adams married his cousin, Miss McCallen, the daughter of Rev. William McCallen, an Episcopal clergyman and an A. M. of Trinity College, Dublin. By this union he had six children, three of whom—Capt. Charles W. Adams, Mrs. Mary Adams, wife of the late Rev. Franklin B. Adkins, of Easton, and Mrs. Alice Wilson, together with his wife, are dead. There are three children living—Dr. Wilbur Adams, of Oklahoma, and Misses Louise and Pauline Adams.

With the death of Bishop Adams it will become necessary to elect a new bishop and this is expected to bring about a discussion on the part of those who favor the reorganization of the Diocese of Easton, with the Diocese of Maryland. There has been talk of this for some time on the part of some of the clergy and prominent laity of the diocese. Others are just as strongly opposed to the plan, and it is likely that the present circumstances will lead to a lively dispute.

A. J. McDorman Victim Of Pneumonia

Mr. Alfred T. McDorman died Monday last week at his home after an illness of one week from pneumonia, following an attack of influenza. His wife, Mrs. Dora Estelle McDorman, and one of his children, Dorothy, nine years old, are ill with the disease at their home, 31 East Woodland Avenue, Baltimore.

Mr. McDorman was 38 years old, and a son of Mr. and Mrs. Francis J. McDorman, of Dames Quarter, Somerset county, and is well known in the county, as some years ago he was a teacher in the Washington High School, Princess Anne. He was widely known in the insurance business in Baltimore. At the time of his death he was the Southern manager of the American Mutual Liability Company, with offices in the Continental Building. He was a member of the bar and was a graduate of Washington College and the University of Maryland Law School. Mr. McDorman was a member of St. Martin's Protestant Episcopal Church and of the Modern Woodmen of America.

Besides his wife, who was Miss Dora Estelle Crew, of Kent county, the deceased is survived by his parents (Mr. and Mrs. Francis J. McDorman), two brothers (Mr. E. Rigby McDorman, an attorney, of Baltimore, and Mr. Newell F. McDorman, of Cincinnati, O.) and six children, the oldest of whom is 15 years (Alfred, Francis, Dorothy, Marshall, Donald and an infant 10 days old). Funeral services from William Cook's funeral parlors, Baltimore, on Wednesday evening at 8 o'clock. Interment on Thursday at Still Pond, Md.

February Weather

The weather report for the month of February as compiled by Mr. James R. Stewart, co-operative observer of Princess Anne, follows:

Maximum temperature, 56 degrees on the 18th; minimum temperature, 11 degrees on the 1st; total precipitation 7.70 inches; total snowfall, 5.00 inches. Clear days, 7; partly cloudy, 11; cloudy, 11. Fall on the 5th; high wind on the 4; fog on the 23d and thunderstorm on the 14th. The prevailing wind was northwest.

Farmers are of the opinion that tractors will help considerably in solving the problem of the shortage of help which they are anticipating will exist this year as has been the case for some years past.

LANE RETIRES FROM THE CABINET

Secretary Criticizes Official Washington As Poorly Organized

Official Washington is a combination of political caucus, drawing room and Civil Service bureau. It contains "statesmen who are politicians and politicians who are statesmen."

Such is an epitome of the views of Franklin K. Lane, retiring Secretary of the Interior. They are expressed in a characteristic parting report to the President as Mr. Lane left public life Monday of last week after more than twenty years' service—the last seven in the Cabinet.

"Washington," says the retiring Secretary, "is rich in brains and character. It is honest beyond any commercial standard. It wishes to do everything that will promote the public good. But it is poorly organized for the task that belongs to it. Fewer men of larger capacity would do the task better."

"Ability is not lacking, but it is pressed to the point of paralysis because of an infinitude of details and an unwillingness on the part of the great body of public servants to take responsibility."

"Everyone seems to be afraid of everyone. The self-protective sense is developed abnormally, the creative sense atrophies. Trust, confidence, enthusiasm—these simple virtues of all great business are the ones most lacking in Government organization. We have so many checks and brakes upon our work that our progress does not keep pace with the nation's requirements."

"For the higher administrative officers there should be salaries twice as high as those now given and they should be made to feel that they are the ones responsible for the work of the department, the head being merely an adviser and a constructor of policies."

"As matters are now devised there are too few in the Government whose business it is to plan. Every man is held to details, the narrower view, which comes too often to be the department view or some sort of parochial view. We need for the day that is here and upon us men who have little to do but study the problems of the time and test their capacity at meeting them."

"In a word, we need more opportunity for planning, engineering statesmanship above, and more fixed authority and responsibility below."

Describing the Interior Department as "an abiding place for a group of unrelated Governmental agencies," the retiring Secretary described it none the less as "the most distinctly American of all the Departments."

Epworth League Holds Pie Social

The Epworth League of Antioch Methodist Episcopal Church held a pie social at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Ashton P. Mills last Thursday night. Those present were: Mr. and Mrs. Charles Young, Mr. and Mrs. Paul Sterling, Mr. and Mrs. James Sterling, Misses Ada Nicholls, Doris Wolcott, Leona Jackson, Estelle Briddell, Eloise McAllen, Delia Henderson, Elsie Dryden, Olive Hayman, Esther Owens, Louise Powell, Sarah Hastings, Bertha Heath, Martha Dryden, Lillian Waller, Mary Wilson, Ruth Dryden, Daisy Adams, Juanita Sterling and Messrs. Jesse C. Maddox, Frank Rhodes, Jerome Hickman, Everett McAllen, Marion Hickman, Ralph Dryden, Paul Briddell, Otis Long, Carroll Henderson, Roy Hayes, James Sterling, Jr. and Peter Hains. A very pleasant evening was enjoyed and over $25.00 was realized by the League.

Death Claims James E. Ball

Mr. James E. Ball died at his home in Salisbury Sunday morning, February 29th, of flu pneumonia, after an illness of one week, aged 64 years.

Mr. Ball was twice married. His first wife was a Miss Truitt, sister of the late James T. Truitt, of Salisbury. He is survived by his widow and two children by his first wife—Mr. Ernest Ball and Mrs. Mary Collier, of Baltimore, Mr. C. C. Ball, of Princess Anne, is a brother of the deceased.

Funeral services were held at his late home last Tuesday afternoon, conducted by the Rev. Robert A. Boyle, pastor of Wicomico Presbyterian Church, of which Mr. Ball was a member. Interment was in Parsons Cemetery.

Women In National Conventions

The Democratic and Republican National Conventions this year will not look the same as in years past. Both the parties are sending a goodly proportion of women delegates, even giving them the coveted places among the "big four" who represent each State at large.

PRIZE ESSAY CONTEST ENDED

Miss Jessie Taylor A Competitor In Army Prize Award

Following instructions from the War Department, papers of the contestants in the prize essay contest, in which the pupils of the Washington High School took part, were forwarded to Washington, Friday, February 27th.

The contestant of the Washington High School was Miss Jessie Taylor, whose paper was sent. The essay was written on "What are the Benefits Derived from Enlistment in the United States Army," and follows:

"Since the beginning of time, and armies, it has been the custom of men, who had no real love for life in the Army, to join because of family traditions or from a sense of duty. It is no longer necessary for a man to join only to keep up family traditions or to satisfy his sense of duty. The advantages of the modern United States Army are so many that few men who enlist fail to better themselves."

"For men who have failed to complete their common school education, there are grammar school courses at all posts. These courses consist of arithmetic, spelling, geography, history, civics, grammar and other similar subjects. If a man has completed his school education but has learned no trade, he has an opportunity to learn some trade by which he may support himself in civil life. And the real advantage of this is that the men are receiving $30 per month while learning besides receiving the seven essentials, namely: Wholesome, body-building food, clean, comfortable quarters, medical attention, dental work, recreation, amusements, and education. Another notable advantage is the physical improvement of the men. One rarely, if ever, sees a round-shouldered soldier, and they also have the keen thinking brain which accompanies the healthy body."

"In the fourteen branches of the Army, there is a branch to suit all dispositions. Each of these courses offers special opportunities. There are chances for promotion in all these branches. Over 1,000 of the present army officers were former privates. When a man completes thirty years service in the Army, he may retire on three-quarters of the pay he was receiving at the time of his retirement. The man seeking employment who can produce a discharge from the Army showing a good character, possesses an asset important with most employers."

"If a man has a desire to travel, the Army is his chance. He may travel in Europe, China, Panama, Siberia, Hawaii, Philippine Islands, or United States, and while traveling he is earning and learning. The terms of enlistment are one or three years, but, of course, the man who enlists for three years has more chance for travel than the man who enlists for one year. While traveling the men learn foreign customs, languages and business methods, which are very important assets in the great world trade war."

"The Government offers its soldiers the cheapest insurance in the world. After retirement the soldier may have $20,000 amassed and live comfortably a long time even if he is not regularly employed. These advantages are worth the thought of any serious-minded man. Think them over!"

State Roads Damaged

Chairman Frank H. Zouck, of the State Roads Commission, last Wednesday stated that the present winter had been an exceptionally hard one on the state roads, and that, in many places, after the snow, ice and frost have disappeared, they will resemble the old country roads. Mr. Zouck declared that the big trucks and the freezing process, both of which have been working on these roads all winter, have simply "chewed" them up and left them in a bad condition.

The chief contributing cause, as seen by Mr. Zouck, is the heavy truck traffic which is almost constant over the roads, and by carrying heavy non-slip chains on their rear wheels has had a damaging effect. It will take a long time and much expense to restore them by the state roads repair force. He stated further that the Maryland roads were never built to stand the wear and tear of the greatly increased truck traffic.

Why Food Prices Will Stay Up

There'll be no great drop in food prices for at least two years to come, says President Cumpson, of the New York Wholesale Grocers' Association. Four things make this certain in his opinion: A short supply, an immense demand, short hours and high wages of labor, and the universal call for highest quality regardless of cost. The last compels wastage of lower-grade products and puts more demand and more price on high-grade goods.

THE ROAD COMMITTEE'S REPORT

Proposed Substitute For The Present Road System In Somerset

The committee appointed by the mass-meeting of citizens at the Court House in Princess Anne on Tuesday, February 24th, to consider means of improving the condition of the public roads in Somerset county, said committee having been appointed for the purpose of considering and recommending a system of road supervision for the county, the present system having been unanimously condemned by said mass-meeting, met last Tuesday and submitted the following report:

First—The commissioners, after the law is in effect, shall schedule county roads, such as are not cared for by the State, in sections of 3 to 10 miles, the object being to put same in blocks. Advertise by billing all public places in the county for fifteen days and copies by request from the office of the county commissioners. The care of each section to be sold to the lowest bidder from date of sale to second Tuesday in January, 1921, on which date the care of said roads are to be sold in the same manner for the year ending the second Tuesday in January, 1922, etc. The purchaser for such road or roads shall be required to fill up holes, drag, bush and use such other means to keep the roads passable and safe, weather permitting, as the county commissioners would term practical. Where wooden bridges are still in use it should be staged in contract if they are to be kept up, if so, by bidder. If pipe is to replace them the county commissioners are to furnish the pipe and the bidder is to install same. Where culverts of concrete or bridges of width beyond 12 feet are to be constructed, it shall be the duty of the county commissioners to prepare specifications, advertise as above at the Court House door and all public places within a radius of 10 miles from where such work is located and sell contract for such work to the lowest bidder at the Court House door.

Second—Ditching—Any property owner or users of public roads may apply to the county commissioners for the ditching of certain roads. Upon application the commissioners shall appoint an unpaid commission consisting of three (3) taxpayers and summon the property owners on said ditch, whose duty it shall be to go over the said road, note what is required and approximate the cost of assessing every property that will be drained or benefited by such ditch, on a percentage basis with the county, and report same to the office of the county commissioners, whose duty it shall be to advertise and sell on the plan of culverts and bridges. It shall be the duty of the county commissioners to bill property owners who have been assessed on any ditch as above and if same is not paid within thirty days charge to the property and collect with taxes.

The county commissioners shall give at least one day in every two weeks to supervision and inspection of bridges, roads and ditching as conditions may require. Contractors for the care of the roads will be required to give personal bond to the amount of their contract.

All contracts, when the work is completed, shall be inspected by the commissioners and when approved shall be settled for at once when the amount is $500 or less; amounts over $500 shall be settled by semi-annual payments—one-half June 1st and one-half January 1st.

In the event of any dispute between the commissioners and such contractor, same shall be settled by unpaid arbitrators, the county commissioners selecting two taxpayers, the contractor two taxpayers and the four selecting the fifth taxpayer. The decision of this commission shall be final.

Urge Recall Of Maryland Vote

At a public hearing in the hall of the House of Delegates at Annapolis last Wednesday afternoon before the House Committee on Temperance the Legislature was strongly urged to recall Maryland's vote of two years ago in favor of the ratification of the prohibition amendment, to join other States in proceeding before the United States Supreme Court, and to refuse to apply the Volstead act to Maryland. Joint resolutions asking for the recall of the State's vote in the amendment and instructing the Attorney General to join other States in proceedings before the Supreme Court to test the validity of the Eighteenth Amendment are pending and will be acted upon in a few days. Thursday the signers of published petitions asking for repeal of the prohibition amendment was heard by the Senate Temperance Committee in the hall of the House of Delegates. The hearing Wednesday attracted a crowd which filled the main floor, the aisles and galleries of the hall. The crowd was enthusiastic and serious in its mission from start to finish.

WILLIAMS OUT FOR CONGRESS

Throws His Hat In Ring For Nomination In First District

While Senator Robins, of Dorchester, are hesitating to oppose Congressman William N. Andrews for renomination from the First Maryland District, former State Senator Williams, a caustic critic of the "Wilson policies" and of "pussy-footed" Republicans, has boldly announced his candidacy. He asserts that he may get very few votes but he will have an opportunity to do some "plain talking."

Mr. Williams is editor of the Elkton Whig and was formerly pastor of Northminster Presbyterian Church in Baltimore. He has been an ardent supporter of United States Senator Joseph Irwin France and a severe critic of Woodrow Wilson before and after the war, in which two of his sons were lieutenants in the American Expeditionary Forces, one of them being seriously wounded. Mr. Williams served in the State Senate at the sessions of 1914 and 1916 and figured largely in the opposition to the Democratic "machine."

"I expect to be a candidate for Congress this year. I have no illusions about the barriers that my candidacy must meet in both the primary and the ensuing election. But none of these things shall move me. I may not get a handful of votes. But I hope to give the voters some very plain talk concerning the problems and performances of our National Legislature."

"In the Congressional campaign of two years ago I declined to become a candidate because my grown sons were fighting overseas and I myself was and had been completely immersed in war work."

"But the war is over. We have now to wrestle with the great problems it has left us—the enormous public debt, the need for wise and economical expenditures of the people's money, the shameful squandering of millions (many from the taxpayers' pockets) by inefficient and unregarding governmental departments; the concerted and well-organized movement for 'universal training,' leading straight on to the establishment of 'militarism' in these United States; the adjustment of industrial conditions in order that increased production may reduce the cost of living; and that American industry may find itself, and then lend itself to the restoration of industrial initiative and prosperity; the imperative necessity for so meeting the acute agricultural situation so that production of food products may not be further handicapped and that the multitudes of people 'off the farms' shall not starve."

"These are some of the many problems to which the people's representatives (if they are to be efficient representatives) must give their best thought their widest practical experience, their unbiased and unfrightened judgment. I venture to think that those best fitted to co-operate in the settlement of such problems are the men who have had personal contact with these problems as they have arisen. I believe no man can go to Washington and strive adequately for the solution of these problems unless he goes freed of all political shackles, ready and anxious to voice in Congress what the people are thinking and saying back in the shops and out on the farms and down in the street—and, in fact, everywhere today in these United States. I believe the people are asking for representatives in Congress who appreciate the gravity of these problems, because they are personally in contact with them and with the people upon whom they are most anxiously pressing."

"I would like to say right here that I do not know whether Congressman Andrews expects to be a candidate to succeed himself. I have had no conference with him, or for that matter with any other political leader. I, of course, would be glad to receive their support, as they in the past have received mine."

"But all that is secondary. What primarily concerns me in the announcement of my candidacy is my desire to go straight to the people with the problems and interests that are supremely theirs. The hurrying years are carrying me fast into the 'golden glow of the west.' In what time is left I should be glad to contribute my little mite to the solution of the great questions that challenge us, if this American Commonwealth is to continue to stand for the 'common welfare.'"

"One other word: Whoever goes to Congress from this district this year will have my sincere good wishes, for the matters to which he must set himself are of infinitely more importance than any man's personal or political fortunes."

Womens' Suffrage Defeated In W. Va.

The West Virginia Senate last Wednesday afternoon rejected the resolution to reconsider its action of Monday when it defeated the woman suffrage ratification amendment by a vote of 15 to 13.

The action was considered final, and it was said no further attempt would be made to ratify the amendment at the special session of the legislature.

The House of Delegates ratified the amendment late that afternoon by a vote of 45 to 42. Later two members opposing it in the initial vote changed, making the final vote 47 for ratification to 40 against.

The Little Luster-ware Pitcher

By BARBARA KERR

(Copyright, 1920, by McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

It rained, not a gentle, misty, ingratiating rain, but a cold, hard, driving rain. "As if papa told it to," grumbled Renie Martin, whose paramount interest in life just now was the quest of a walnut chair to match a suite that had been her grandmother's. Judge Martin did not sympathize. But nothing would have kept Renie at home after Mr. Berry, the second-hand man, had telegraphed her and told her of a country sale where some solid walnut furniture was to be sold. He said:

"They're richly carved; were in the Hollister family back East for no telling how long and in Sam Hollister's family here for half a century." Mr. Sam Hollister was having the sale.

"It looks as if the quest was over, mother!" cried Renie; "that is, if you can stand the drive, for we'll take a jitney and go out to that sale."

Mrs. Martin had been on a milk diet till her strength was rather of that variety and she knew the trip would lay her up, but she reflected that the next day was Sunday. So what mattered it if she were sick for one day, if her husband did not know the cause of her illness?

They bundled themselves into rubbers and mackintoshes, drank some hot milk, climbed into the jitney and were off.

When they reached the little country place the sale goods had been arranged for the widower by neighbor women, whose hearts were warm and in the right place, but whose dish water had gone stone cold. The dishes washed first showed their patterns somewhat, but all smelled loudly of their bath. However, Renie and her mother did not come to buy dishes, so they picked their way through the jumble in the yard and on the porches and went inside.

There they were! The old walnut chairs with their haircloth upholstery, arranged in company order. The sofa was flanked on one side by the rocker, on the other by the armchair, six small chairs sitting expectantly and decorously in front. You have it! There were too many of them, too good to be true! They were carved and carved, but not "our chaste design," groaned Mrs. Martin.

They went out a side door upon a small stoop, where was a table of dishes. Mr. Hollister explained that the five white bowls with the blue hand-scapes on them, and the bits of straw and paper inside, were new. He had bought them last April, was going to have an oyster supper on his birthday, but his wife had died before that time, they'd never been used.

"Never even unpacked," volunteered the hushed and solemn voice of the dishwasher at Mrs. Martin's elbow.

There were two large glass coal oil lamps. One was very beautiful, with a pink bowl, so you did not have to fill it with colored cotton or tissue paper to make it look pretty. There were all varieties of gorgeously flowered dishes, representing the various city firms who gave away dishes as premiums with baking powder. Also there was a large glass dish, standing high in the center of the table, supplanted by a stack of glass fruit saucers.

Mrs. Martin and Renie, after the manner of true connoisseurs, noted all this, then they looked at each other. The initiated could not mistake the look. They saw a find!

In the middle of that table was a genuine luster-ware pitcher. Peeping from out the grime was the beautiful pink-lavender house with birds of the same hue, and about the same size, hovering over it!

Mrs. Martin carefully picked up the pitcher, set it in the tall glass dish and remarked that, as the furniture did not suit her, she would give him a dollar for the two and return to town.

The woman who had washed the dishes heard the extravagant offer and gasped. It affected Hollister. Taking the articles out of Mrs. Martin's hands he carefully put them back on the table and said:

"We can't do that, my goods for sale. Maybe there might be one of my neighbors come just for that dish. It's meant to hold oranges. If I sold it private, they'd say, 'Hollister never give up no chance on that dish.' You kin bid it in." And he went to inform his stool bidder.

He was thinking only of the dish. Mrs. Martin and Renie held a little council. Mrs. Martin took the jitney back to town, Renie took up the job of watchful waiting. She noticed among the crowd of bidders and onlookers a young man whose dress and manners were most engaging. She caught his appraising eye several times, but mindful that she was unchaperoned and with only one object in view—to get that luster-ware pitcher—she looked coldly away. However, that did not prevent his gradually edging his way into her vicinity.

Near by, upon a paper-covered trunk, was another stack of dishes; among these was another little brown pitcher. It would hold three times as much as the luster-ware, also it had the advantage of belonging to a class of pitchers the process of making which is not lost, so if anything happens to it, or any of its parts—why the factory is still running. At least that was the argument that sold the mowing machine.

The crier leaned over the dishes to pick up a lot. A country whisper reached the ears of the young man: "Ain't that the little brown pitcher that town woman wanted—better bid on it!" He drew near and made his bid after it was started at 10 cents. Spirited bidding followed. Hollister's neighbors went up spiritedly 5 or 10 cents at a time. The "town guy" paid $1.50 for his pitcher, much to the amusement of Renie, who knew it could be duplicated at the 10-cent store.

Just then some one tossed a roll of cotton batting into the middle of the table of dishes. The crier reached over, picked up the cotton, stuck one finger through the handle of the coveted pitcher, another through the handle of a glass vinegar cruet, and holding them aloft, demanded: "How much am I bid for these?"

To Renie's amazement and in response to her little scared bid they were knocked down to her for fifteen cents.

She slipped the pitcher into the handbag and hurried off in search of a telephone to call the jitney for home. In her haste and state of exultation she ran fairly into the young man who was watching her performance.

She had to stop to beg his pardon, then asked if he knew where she could find a phone that she might call a taxi.

"I am going back to the city myself," he assured her politely, "and as I have plenty of room I will be glad to take you."

Renie demurred. She hardly knew what to say. Surmising the truth, he smiled and said: "I am sure that our folks know each other if we do not. I am Paul Thurston and am visiting my uncle, Thomas Thurston. And I know now who you are. You are Judge Martin's daughter and I have been wanting to meet you. Besides, I think you are right now dying to laugh at me."

At which Renie did laugh, a merry little peal of laughter, for Paul was holding up to her gaze his brown pitcher.

"Whatever possessed you to buy that?" gasped Renie. "I thought perhaps you did it for a joke!"

"No, indeed, Miss Martin! I am in deadly earnest. To the uninitiated all brown pitchers look something alike. I thought I had executed my Aunt Thurston's commission in a most workmanlike manner till you bought that bunch of stuff. You see the nurse that attended Mrs. Hollister told my aunt that she had a luster-ware pitcher and I was sent out to buy it at any price."

Again Renie laughed; then her face grew grave. "Oh, isn't it too bad; Mrs. Thurston will be so disappointed. What should we do?"

Paul picked up a piece of paper and carefully wrapped up his pitcher. "Aunt is a pretty good sport. I'll tell her the truth; then when I get back to Philadelphia I'll find her one. At any rate, I know she hasn't in her collection a pitcher like this. So come on, let's take our pitchers home."

Was it raining? Oh, but that was in the morning. If it still rained two young people whose acquaintance began at a country sale where they were both trying to buy a luster-ware pitcher did not know it, for the journey back was all too short.

And what did Aunt Thurston say? She just laughed and said: "What difference does it make? That pitcher will be in the Thurston family, anyway, or I'll miss my guess."

Cast-Iron Made From Steel Scrap.
A development of war conditions in the steel industry of the United States has been the demonstration of the possibility of making pig iron and iron castings direct from steel scrap in an electric furnace—something never accomplished before. It has been claimed that such iron, cast in the form of castings, is far superior to the same castings made from ordinary pig iron, melted and cast. Tests of this new iron recently made at Columbia university demonstrate its high quality. Its tensile strength was shown to be 40,780 to 45,030 pounds per square inch, considerably higher than that of ordinary cast iron.—American Machinist.

WEALTH FLOWING INTO CUBA

Crops of Cotton and Sugar Will Net People of Island Some $2,000,000,000.

Cuba's coming sugar crop is expected to yield about 4,000,000 tons—a record output. At prices which the planters are counting upon receiving for their sugar this will mean a payment to them of from about $750,000,000 to $800,000,000. Bear in mind that this is for one crop raised on an island of only 45,896 square miles and with a population of about 2,500,000.

In the cotton-growing sections of the South there are approximately about 25,000,000 people. The center of interest in Cuba is sugar. In about the same degree that cotton concentrates the interest of the South. When the cotton crop first reached the value of $2,000,000,000 a year, the world held up its hands in amazement, and yet this $2,000,000,000 is distributed directly or indirectly among 25,000,000 people. In Cuba more than a third of that amount will be distributed directly or indirectly among 2,500,000 people. Every dollar of this vast sum is paid into Cuba from other countries. It is as though the entire world production of gold for two years and more were dumped into Cuba, as measured by the world's production of gold and the Cuban sugar crop value.—Manufacturers' Record.

NO CHANGE IN HUMAN BONES

Construction of Shoulder Blades Today the Same as Those of Sixty Centuries Ago.

There has been no discernible change in the shoulder blade of man in the last 6,000 years, according to Dr. William W. Graves of St. Louis, who spoke before the meeting of the American Association for the Advancement of Science.

Shoulder blades of Egyptian mummies, 6,000 years old, and those of Illinois river Indians, believed to be about the same age, are the same as those of the present-day men, according to Doctor Graves.

In July and August of last year Doctor Graves measured 1,500 shoulder blades of men and animals, endeavoring to classify the differences in them. The vertebral borders, with which he was particularly concerned, are the same in humans as in gorillas, chimpanzees and also in lower monkeys.

Concerning the skeletons of Illinois river Indians, which he said appear to be between 4,000 and 6,000 years old, he was asked if he considered that proof that this continent was inhabited then by humans whose physical type was as high as that of the Egyptians of that day. He said that he could not draw such a conclusion, although the shoulder blades are of the same type.

Fairy Baskets.

Fairy baskets are made of large hazel nuts, filberts or peach pits. Filberts must be soaked in hot water for several hours; hazel nuts and peach pits may be used green. With a sharp, fine pointed penknife bore through the filbert or hazel nut on each side in the light colored upper third, cut away the shell carefully around the hole so as to leave a handle between the incisions, dig out the meat that is inside, then cut very tiny notches in the lower edge. If you use peach pits trim off the sharp point, then bore and cut out the shell and trim the stalk end smooth.

Those baskets are a never failing pleasure to both children and grown-ups. One use to which you can put the fairy baskets is loop a dozen or more upon a strand of silk floss, fill each one with earth and supply it with a single fine grass seed, then hang them in a sunny window and keep moist.

Britons Eat Less Meat.

Englishmen used to be considered the greatest meat eaters in the world. Now, declares the Society of Meat Importers (London), the average Englishman eats 33 per cent. less meat than he did before the war. Unless he can be induced to eat more of it the country will be faced with such a glut of meat as it has never had before, a London dispatch says.

The annual consumption of meat in the United Kingdom before the war was about 1,800,000 tons, say the importers. It is now only 1,200,000 tons. And this, they contend, is due entirely to the high cost still maintained. Englishmen and Englishwomen, too, are just as fond of meat as ever, but they cannot afford to eat as much of it as they used to.

Use for Helgoland.

The Royal Society for the Protection of Birds in England and the Permanent Wild Life Protective Fund of the United States join in suggesting that Helgoland be made a reservation for the birds that migrate along the coast of Europe. The island is less than one-fifth of a mile square, but it is directly in the path of migratory birds, and when Germany has removed the fortifications and other military establishments the birds will probably use it.

Why Horses Are Diminishing.

An authority attributes the diminution in number of horses to the impossibility of horse prices keeping pace with the prices of wheat, corn, pork, beef and mutton, and therefore the farmer neglects horse breeding for something more profitable. But what are we going to do for work stock five or ten years from now? he asks.

North Dakota's Lignite.

A government report says "the fuel problem has been forever solved in North Dakota." The western half of the state is underlaid with lignite, the beds estimated to contain 800,000,000,000 tons. Over thousands of square miles this soft coal lies so close to the surface that farmers merely dig a hole in their own fields and take out the coal as they require it. During 1918 1,000,000,000 tons were mined. If the farmer is too busy with his farm work to help himself, he can buy it for $1.50 or $2 per ton. Many of the large grain elevators are operated by power furnished by coal that is mined on the spot, and this general economy in fuel has aided materially in increasing the per capita wealth.

Just as Good.

Bobby, just home from his first visit to the country, was telling the folks of its wonders. "And say, ma," he said, "out on the farm they get milk from cows, and it's just as good as any."—Boston Transcript.

WATER FED FIRE

Case Where Liquid Was of No Use to Quench Flames.

Metallic Sodium in Vessel's Hold Merely Blazed More Fiercely as Streams From Fire Hoses Reached It.

It is said that, for the most part, water if applied in sufficient quantities will eventually quench any fire. In some cases, however, water not only proves ineffectual but actually kindles and nourishes the fire.

When a freighter, the Hardy, steamed out of Le Treport, France, some years ago she carried, besides the mineral water in her hold, a number of small wooden cases marked "metallic sodium."

Now, the channel was rough. The vessel rolled and pitched violently. The captain saw that the ship was listing to port, and suspecting that the cargo was shifting, sent a boatswain below to investigate. As the boatswain entered the hold he saw that several cases of mineral water had broken and that the water was swishing about in the hold. Then suddenly he saw one of the wooden cases marked "sodium" burst into flame.

Immediately he gave the alarm, and the crew rushed to their fire stations. The captain directed the men to turn the hose into the hold. As the first stream of water struck the burning case there were several explosions as package after package within the case caught fire. By this time two other cases of sodium had broken open, and their contents, as they came in contact with the water from the hose, burst into flame.

The crew could not believe their eyes. The more water they poured on the fire, the more intense grew the conflagration. Then suddenly two cases flew into the air, crashed against the overhead beams and spread out in sheets of fire, the smaller pieces dropping back only to bounce and dance about, huge balls of flame in the half-swamped hold.

The superstitious crew was fast becoming unmanageable, and the captain saw that in any case he must abandon the ship. He ordered the crew to the boats not a moment too soon, for as the boats rowed away from the blazing hulk several loud explosions came from the hold. Then there was one mighty detonation; the freighter broke in two and plunged out of sight.

Japan and Baseball.

Japan is one of the few nations of the earth that has adopted the "national pastime" of the United States, the game of baseball, which grew up, in its present form, in the latter country. The game has been transplanted, has taken root, and is thoroughly flourishing in the island kingdom. But the Japanese, according to one of them, recently traveling in America, are making all their baseballs by hand, not yet having perfected any machinery for manufacturing them. This sojourner, who is a mechanical expert, was much interested, while on his trip, in learning the method by which the balls are made. The playing of the game in Japan, says this traveler, is widespread. A few years ago two of the Japanese universities sent teams to the United States, where they engaged in competition with American university nines. Their ability was marked, and their sportsmanship excellent. The common interest of the people of the two nations in this sport has been recognized as a possible source of increased understanding between them.

Will Never Show.
Joe Hawkins of the Auto Sales company, is a believer that appearance is 95 per cent of the game.

The other day he was demonstrating a very classy six-cylinder car to a man and his wife. The wife was very much taken with the appearance of the car; the husband was still a long way from being sold.

As they were coming down Meridian street one of the cylinders started missing. Hawkins, trying to apologize for the behavior of the engine, said: "One of the spark plugs must be broken for one of the cylinders is missing."

The wife spoke up: "That doesn't matter much, the cylinders are all under the hood anyway, and if one of them is missing it will never show."—Indianapolis News.

Something Missing.

"This catalogue is no good," said a man visiting the art museum, according to a story that has reached us. There ain't any prices on it."

"What," said his wife. "You weren't thinking of buying any?"

"Certainly not," replied the complainant. "But how can you be expected to appreciate pictures if you don't know the price of them?"—Boston Transcript.

Parental Diffidence.

"Does your boy mind when you speak to him?"
"Yes," said Farmer Cornstossel, doubtfully. "But he's got us so impressed with his superior knowledge that we don't often venture to speak to him."

As to Alimony.

"Is there any way a man can avoid paying alimony?" asked the friend who was seeking free advice.
"Sure," replied the lawyer. "He can stay single or stay married."

TO GOLDEN WEST

Adventurous Spirits of the World Turned in '49.

Lives and Souls Counted for Little in the Frantic Rush for the Yellow Metal—Thousands Died en Route.

On Dec. 8, 1848, the first deposit of California gold was made in the United States mint by David Carter. What a date! Gold had been discovered in California, and the earth trembled under the march westward.

Around the days of '49 in the Golden state on the blue Pacific, says the Kansas City Journal, an American playwright constructed a drama of telling power, "The Girl of the Golden West." It is a picture of the rough and terrible days of that frantic epoch, where men lost their souls and their lives in the pursuit of the yellow metal. California was admitted as a state into the Union in 1850. In '49, 40,000 immigrants arrived in California overland and by way of the isthmus of Panama.

It was in a little pioneer fort of Capt. Sutter's, formerly an officer of the Swiss Guard of Charles X of France, that the announcement was made that shook the world in 1848, and produced scenes of unparalleled excitement. From every part of the globe came the gold seekers, from Chile, Peru, from ancient Cathay, from the Sandwich Islands, from England, France and Russia. Says Capt. Sutter of that memorable morning in 1848: "I was sitting in my tiny fort when Mr. Marshall, who was digging a mill race at Coloma, on the American river, burst into my presence. He was white as ashes and greatly excited. I glanced at my rifle to see if it was in its place, for in those days we lived in perpetual expectation of attack from Indians. No! Marshall lunged on the table a handful of scales of pure virgin gold. I was thunderstruck. He explained how he had found it along the left bank of the stream."

A pioneer tells the story of the fearful gold-dust fever. "Two years after the discovery of gold on the American river by Marshall, I, like thousands of others, got the 'gold fever,' and I got it bad. To this land of gold promise came the bravest and best men of the older states. They were the daring spirits of the old home, who, ill-content to vegetate amid the scenes of their birth, took heart of hope, and through weeks and months of peril and fatigue toiled across the waterless and savage-peopled wastes to the land afar. They lit their campfires of buffalo chips and sagebrush and tossed in uneasy dreams at night with their guns for pillows. The revels that woke them was often the crack of rifles in the hands of the savages. For days, weeks and months they thirsted and hungered amid the alkali deserts and the rocky canyons, and when they reached the land of promise there was little left them but their splendid manhood, brains and brawn."

"The prairie schooners from Missouri and Arkansas, drawn principally by oxen or mules, formed a continuous line of march by every route leading to the south pass of the Rocky mountains. The late Dr. Stillman, who conducted a hospital at Sacramento in '49 and '50, estimated that, in seeking the 'golden fleece,' in less than one year 10,000 young men who had started with cheers and song were sleeping beneath the wild flowers."

During the year 1848 $10,000,000 in gold was extracted from the mines, principally from the Yuba, Feather and the American rivers, and from the gulches connected therewith; the rocker, the shovel, the prospecting pan and the crevice knife being the only machinery employed. Over $40,000,000 was obtained in '48. From 1848 to 1870 $1,000,000,000 was the gold output of the state of California. Throughout the first three years of the mining excitement every article of trade had to be imported.

"Si compre oro aqui" (gold dust bought here) should be the legend of California.

And Daddy Took the Hint. Miriam Field is not quite nine. Also, she is very polite; of that there can be no possible doubt. A favorite uncle is visiting the family and Miriam wishes him to spend all his time with her. Uncle Roger and Dad were discussing politics after dinner, a day or two ago, about the time Dad is in the habit of bringing in enough coal to last for another twenty-four hours. Miriam hung around her uncle, tried to catch Dad's eye, stood first on one foot, then on the other, and at last at a full in the conversation her voice was heard: "Daddy, don't you have to bring in any coal today?"

China Gets Back Pavilion. The beautiful pavilion on the Tatar city wall above Chienmen gate in Peking has been returned to Chinese custody. In the mutiny of the troops in Peking early in 1912, after Yuan Shih-kai had assumed the presidency, the commanders of the foreign legion guards in the capital decided that, as a military measure, the pavilion should be occupied by foreign troops. The American legion guard has occupied it ever since.

Both Welcome. "A wedding is not half a wedding without the presence of friends," says an exchange. You can also spell it "marriage."

NEARING CULEBRA CUT.

One of Uncle Sam's battle-wagons going through the Panama Canal. This view was taken near Culebra Cut from a Navy seaplane.

The little tug hardly looks large enough to chaperon a battleship, does it? But then the tug is a part of the U. S. Navy too.

Size isn't always the most important thing. The men of the Navy have learned that brains amount to a great deal more.

VICTIM OF FATE'S HARSHNESS

Sad Story of Luther K. Linkenheoper Would Move Almost Any One to Tears.

"As I was coming to town just now," said the motorist, "I saw a peculiar sight; a thin, wild-eyed man, clad in a red-and-blue bedquilt, perched in a treetop and every now and then crying 'Honk! Honk!' to the unbridled glee of a gang of men and boys assembled below."

"That was Luther K. Linkenheoper, by the symptoms," replied the landlady of the tavern at Grudge. "He accumulated three second-hand Hootin' Nanny cars; one he traded for, one his brother-in-law wished onto him and one was left him by will. None of them were of any account, and so he set to work to take 'em all apart and make one good one out of the three. The task was too much for his mind, and after he had made about five from the ruins of the three and still had a lot of stuff left, and none of 'em would move a muscle, he began to chatter, then to yell, and finally took to his bed a-jibbering. Once in a while he escapes from his relatives and gets out and cuts some such caper as you saw. He thinks he is a Hootin' Nanny himself."

"But, great guns! Even a car of the name you mention does not wear a bedquilt and climb trees!"

"Mebby not. But it would if it was as crazy at Luther is."—Kansas City Star.

PRIZE CAST-OFF CLOTHING

Peculiar Whim of "Fashion" in Virgin Islands Puzzling to United States Marines.

United States marines garrisoning these new possessions of Uncle Sam can't understand the fashions affected by the natives, writes a St. Thomas (Virgin Islands) correspondent. Just why a negro or Cha-Cha Indian should wear an overcoat when the thermometer stands 100 in the shade still mystifies the "sea soldiers."

Many of the marines down here have seen service in the neighboring island of Haiti, where clothes are the least consideration of the natives. But as soon as the new arrival reaches these shores he is approached by natives begging for his cast-off clothing.

For some strange reason the native Virgin Islander believes in wearing every article of clothing he can lay hands on. All American holidays are now celebrated by the natives, who spend the day parading about the streets, some of them wearing overcoats, capes, two or more pairs of trousers and a red bandana handkerchief about the neck. Also they frequently adorn themselves with the horns of cows or oxen attached to the head just in front of the ears.

Immortal "Mermaid."

She was a "famous woman," because she was a "famous" inn that served "famous" men. That was enough for the Mermaid. She was named after an enchanting lady of the vasty deep, who is a woman to her girdle and a fish to her feet. Her figure was on the signboard of the famous inn, in Friday street, London. Pass with hasty glance the bar in front—the parlor behind of the blackened roof and polished tables—taproom on the left—low doorways, winding passages—and you have come to the inn parlor. This is the Mermaid! And the men sitting there? Ben Jonson, Fletcher, Beaumont, Carew, Donne and Shakespeare. Shakespeare is roaring over his dog's nose, and Ben Jonson over his canary. Oh, listen to the wit-combats between Shakespeare and Ben Jonson! Mermaid, dear "famous woman," why were you not a twin?

Varying Colors of Diamonds.

Each of the five mines owned and worked by the great De Beers company in the Kimberley district produces diamonds with well-marked characteristics. The rich Kimberley mine yields a good percentage of white and many yellow stones. Dutoitspan mine is famed for its large yellow diamonds. At Bultfontein small white and spotted stones are common. From the Wessleton mine come many beautiful deep orange colored diamonds, while the De Beers mine shows a good percentage of tinted yellow and brown stones. The Premier mine (Transvaal) yields a large number of "off-colored" stones. The Cullinan diamond was of exceptional purity. From the Jagersfontein mine in the Orange Free State the famous bluish-white stones are derived. The diamonds found in German Southwest Africa are small and yellowish in color.

Win Fight on Yellow Fever.

In 1916 the Rockefeller foundation sent a sanitary commission to Ecuador for the purpose of arranging with the Ecuadorian government to take the responsibility of eradicating yellow fever from Guayaquil. The proposal was accepted June 10, 1918, when a celebrated bacteriologist arrived and began his work. He succeeded in discovering the germ which causes yellow fever, his investigations promising to produce not only a preventive, but also a cure for this malady.

The "Lower Calling."

The Principal—Miss Brown, I wish you would give up this idea of marriage. The training of children is a far higher calling than the mere bearing of them.

The Teacher—Yes, Miss Matthews; but if it weren't for those of the lower calling, whom would you have to train?—Life.

UP THE SHAFT

By ELIZABETH DE ROER.

"I think you'll do," said Mr. Jagoby to the new maid, "but there's one thing I want to impress on you."

"What is that, sir?"

"Whenever you see me retire to my cellar for—ahem—prayer and meditation, no matter who calls you must say I'm out. Do you understand?"

"Perfectly, sir," replied the maid, with a knowing smile. "At the last place I worked sir, the gentleman of the house—ahem—prayed and meditated so much my mistress had half a dozen doctors in to see him, sir, and I was told they had to put him into a kind of jacket."

A Guess.

"I saw Snubb kiss a girl the other night!"

"What! Why, he told me today he'd never kissed one single girl in his whole life."

"It's very probable. I remember thinking at the time that she was too good-looking to be single."

Kind-Hearted.

"Would you call a xylophone a musical instrument?"

"Why, yes," replied Mr. Dubwate, "if I happened to be addressing an unfortunate creature who earns a living by playing one of the things. I have no desire to hurt anybody's feelings unnecessarily."

UNDISTURBED POSSESSION.

"Every man is entitled to his opinions."

"Quite true; and in many cases they don't appear to be of the slightest use to anybody but the owner."

Some Weep.

We sometimes pity Argus, that hundred-eyed old sinner; just think if wife made him peel The onions for his dinner.

Practical Version.

He—I'm trying to think of that famous line about the moth's desire for something. Do you happen to know it?

She—(With a recent experience in mind)—Why, yes, dear. "The desire of the moth for the fur," isn't it?

A Rank Mistake.

"Mrs. Beggs offended her husband's war chums when she welcomed them to a dinner."

"How so?"

"She told them it was a strictly private affair, and they're all officers."

A Seaside Hotel.

"I hear your new hotel cost $200,000."

"Yep, the stockholders are somewhat disappointed."

"As to what?"

"They expected to get it back the first season."

The Remedy.

He—We will have to call another meeting of the club because last night we found we had no quorum.

She—Then why don't you buy one and keep it where you can get at it handy when you need it?

A Haunted House.

"This house is haunted."

"Haunted? Do you really believe that?"

"I do. It is haunted by the thought that the landlord is going to raise the rent."

His Status.

"Who was this great god Pan who was always hypnotizing people by playing with pipes?"

"I guess he was the boss plumber of the ancients."

HIS DELUSION

"Is your husband a member of any secret society?"

"He thinks he is, but he talks in his sleep."

History.

Oh, history repeats itself! It is a well-worn text. But just the same no earthly elf knows what it will say next.

In a Double Sense.

"I thought I knew a lot about managing my salary."

"Well, what of it?"

"But since I married I must say I have to hand it to my wife."

Bad, Anyway.

Blondine—Doesn't Gerty Giddigad make up something awful?

Brunette—Yes. I don't know whether it is her eyesight that is bad or her judgment.

Paradoxical Relief.

"So the stranded acrobat got a good job in the circus?"

"Yes; he got on his feet by standing on his head."

UP THE SHAFT

By ELIZABETH DE ROER.

Because Duanne needed vocal lessons, because her father insisted that she should receive the best and because his account in the town bank was very small, Duanne had chosen a tiny, dark room in the New York "nineties." Its only means of light and air was through a window looking out on an air shaft. But Duanne laughed, because she was that kind.

Because Mason Hill had no father with a bank account backing him, because he had just returned from France with a $80 bonus in his pocket, and because he was doing to study art—Mason had chosen a small, dark room in the "nineties" looking onto the very same shaft as Duanne's.

One is hardly surprised, therefore that the next morning when Duanne thrust a curly head out of her window to see what kind of a day it was, Mason was doing the same thing, and they both discovered a tiny blue patch of sky nine stories up.

"I thought I was the only one who wanted to know how the weather is," Mason called across the shaft, and Duanne laughed back: "Oh, no, indeed! If Mr. Sun won't come in and say good morning to me, I go out and say good morning to him."

"I'm glad you did." Mason's voice was as sincere as his eyes were blue. "The shaft is as lonely as a soldier in France"—and he knew what he was talking about.

"It is gloomy, isn't it?" Duanne said. "It was—until you appeared."

They both laughed, grew braver, and continued:

"Are you studying here?" the man asked.

"Yes; I'm going to be a singer some day; and you—"

"Oh, I'm taking art!" This was said awkwardly, but received enthusiastically.

"How interesting, Mr. —"

"Mason Hill—but you needn't remember it all," he added meaningly.

"All right, Mason, I won't," Duanne was surprised at her easy informality; "and you may call me Anne."

So the days—busy, happy, fighting, discouraging, hopeful days—went by and every morning Duanne and Mason looked up the shaft, laughing and talking together. As their friendship grew they took long walks, returning sometimes, rosy-cheeked, to Duanne's room, where they would have a quiet supper, exchanging happy recollections of the "up country" days.

At last the inevitable happened. They fell in love. It was a glorious spring morning, and they were looking up the shaft. Duanne called across to Mason:

"What in the world would we do without this shaft, Sonnie? (That was her favorite name for him.) I'm actually getting attached to it—sort of a sentimental feeling, you know."

"In that case I wish I were the shaft," Mason called back, and Duanne looked at him questioning. He leaned forward and went on easily:

"I never thought I'd make love in an air shaft, but that's what I'm doing, Ann. I'm crazy about you and I'm trying to forget that I haven't a little house to push you right into as Mrs. Hill. He stopped for encouragement, and Duanne hastened to give it.

"Well, we don't need a house, do we?"

"Ann, you mean—that you'd be satisfied with a little apartment until I could work up? Do you, dear?"

Ann was laughing.

"Yes, Sonnie, that's just what I mean."

"Ann, dearest, I'm coming right in and seal the agreement!"

There was a banging of doors, a clatter of feet down the hall, and Mason burst in. He came straight to the window and took Duanne in his arms.

"Then it's agreed, dear?" he bent forward to kiss her.

"Wait a minute," Duanne whispered. "On one condition."

"What?"

"That our apartment will have an air shaft."

Doctor to Old Shoes.

To reduce the high cost of walking, the United States department of agriculture has become a doctor to old shoes—not a general practitioner, but a consulting specialist both in diagnosis and treatment. One of its most recent prescriptions, evolved by the bureau of chemistry, has to do with the pair of last winter's shoes that, about this time of the year, are pulled out of the closet all full of mildew and looking hopelessly done for. The prognosis is that the disease is not fatal; but that the shoes are good for a month or two anyhow. The treatment is: Brush or rag, applied externally; castor oil, small quantity vigorously rubbed in; sunshine, one or two days.

Liked Cherry Wine.

Tradition tells how Diocletian, Roman emperor, born in Dalmatia, grew as epic over the wine of the marasca from Zara as Horace over the Falernian from the slopes of Solifara. Its fame was handed down from the ancient Romans to the times when Venice held dominion over the land. Throughout the vicissitudes which have befallen Zara—last of all the Dalmatian cities to remain victorious in its Italianism, its maintenance of Italian schools, against Austria's Slavic policies—the wild cherry, the marasca, has survived.

TUESDAY MORNING, MAR. 9, 1920

Appropriate motto for Princess Anne girls for Leap Year: "Look before you leap."

All the nations protest that they want peace but the munition makers are preparing to run their plants on full speed.

The women are attending lectures to learn how to vote intelligently but the men don't need to as all they have to do is to ask the political leaders.

If the railroad workers go on strike they may get a longer vacation than they figure on, but they will be just in season to get jobs planting corn.

While everyone in Princess Anne is longing for the sweet perfume of spring, it is not absolutely necessary to turn your garbage in the back yard to produce them.

A lot of people who used to get rich by selling sewing machines and wash outfits are now acquiring wealth by selling phonographs and fur coats and diamond rings.

Some of these manufacturers who have so indignantly denied that they are profiteering are also trying to sell stock on the ground that they pay 25 per cent. profit.

The idea of spring cleaning entertained by some folks in Princess Anne is moving trash and litter from their houses and stores out into their back yards and alleys.

The middlemen no doubt charge too much, and, if so, a lot of the smart talkers should be able to get rich by providing the same service for a good deal less money.

Farm workers to be scarcer than ever this spring, but if the country stores will put in good stocks of $20 silk shirts, it may help reconcile them to their laborious lot.

While the Government is trying to increase the supply of raw materials the government bureaus keep the waste baskets of the nation chock full with their superfluous publicity matter.

The comic papers always picture the farmer as an old man, but the most decrepit looking ones nowadays are the fellows who left their father's farm 25 years ago to get rich in the cities.

The mechanics think they can run the railroad a good deal better than the railroad men, the railroad men think they can run the farms a good deal better than the farmers, and the farmers think they can run the shops a good deal better than the mechanics.

The operating division of the United States Railroad Administration, the governmental agency which for more than two years has controlled the operation of the nation's railroad systems, has passed out of existence. With its passing 230 lines that had been merged into what was practically one gigantic system went under control of private interests, free to operate in competition as of old.

THE PEACE TREATY SITUATION

The statesmen at Washington have now talked eight months about the peace treaty. The people have had no chance to do much talking that can be heard in Washington. But that does not mean that they are not interested. On the contrary a sentiment of deep indignation is manifested that the world settlement has been held up so long.

Europe is on the verge of anarchy as it struggles with hunger and despair. America is the dominating factor and nothing can be done until America is willing to act. Everything waits the pleasure of America, who dallies while statesmen quibble.

If the people could get a chance to act on this question they would settle it very promptly, and on a basis making for world peace and assuring the safety of America.

The great majority of the American people want some kind of a League of Nations. They believe that it takes united action to get things done in this world. They do not see how peace can be secured unless some kind of organization is formed through which the nations can act together. At the same time they do not propose to sacrifice the independent rights of this country. They do not intend to have any American army ordered into Europe by a League of Nations, without the full and free consent and approval of the representatives of the American people.

If this peace treaty becomes an issue in the coming campaign, it is an issue that will cut very deep and wide. Those who have been quibbling over trifling differences, who have thwarted the desire of the people for prompt action, or who have failed to protect the rights of our United States to maintain its own independent rights under all circumstances will find themselves marked for

THE RETURN OF THE SUN

It is easy to feel sympathy with the ancient sun worshippers as one sargery looks for the return of the source of all life in these days of early spring. Man was born to live in open air. When he has to shut himself up in an artificially heated house he is not following nature. Every day's aspect of the sun brings a sentiment of good cheer. Evidences of reviving vegetation, the welcome songs of birds, the resumption of farm tasks along the country roads, these and other influences bring a pleasant feeling of anticipation to the people of Princess Anne.

The autumn is the season for retrospection, often melancholy. There is a forward look in the spring, when balmy airs fill one with hope and expectation of better things. The season when the sap runs is the time when man's heart plans new achievement.

TOWN PLANNING

Many communities are taking up the town planning idea. Take the State of Wisconsin as one illustration. Within a short time the following places have made arrangements for laying out city planning projects: Beloit, Janesville, La Crosse, Kenosha, Eau Claire, Green Bay, Marion, Oshkosh, Racine, Sheboygan, Waukegan and Wausau.

Chambers of Commerce and Boards of Trade all over the country are pushing the town planning idea. No city is too big and no village too small to need this movement. It is a very costly matter to remedy mistakes after town growth has proceeded for a period of years. It is easy and inexpensive to lay out the lines of desirable growth for future years.

Town planning saves money by reserving lots that will be needed for schools, playgrounds and parks. It keeps residence and business localities separate, and thus works against the growth of ugly neighborhoods.

COUNTY SURVEYOR'S NOTICE

Kicking Over The Traces

If the teeth of Hon. William H. Anderson, our old friend and husky two-fisted rum fighter, are not firmly fastened in his head, they must have been considerably rattled by the action of the Democratic State Convention in coming out flatly against the prohibition amendment.

Mr. Anderson has been threatening New York Republicans with dire penalties if they did not throw Senator Wadsworth overboard on account of his anti-prohibition record. Playing one party against the other, he was sailing along apparently with every wind in his favor. In the National field, he broadly intimated that if the Republicans did not behave themselves he would flock with the Democrats and force the issue of radical enforcement, with William J. Bryan as the top liner. Without paying any heed to these warnings the Republicans are proceeding to renominate Mr. Wadsworth. On top of this the New York Democrats, men and women, go over lock, stock and barrel to the Demon, cutting the ground entirely from under Mr. Anderson's feet.

It's a sad, bad, mad old world, kicking over the traces and balking at the water wagon just when it seemed comfortably settled for a long and thirsty ride.—Baltimore News.

She States It Mildly

While suffering with a severe attack of the grip and threatened with pneumonia, Mrs. Annie H. Cooley, of Middlefield, began using Chamberlain's Cough Remedy and was very much benefited by its use. The pains in the chest soon disappeared, the cough became loose, expectoration easy and in a short time she was as well as ever. Mrs. Cooley says she cannot speak too highly in praise of this remedy.

Why Colds Are Dangerous

It is the serious diseases that colds lead to that makes them dangerous. They prepare the system for the reception and development of the germs of influenza, pneumonia, tuberculosis, diphtheria, scarlet fever, whooping cough and measles. You are much more likely to contract these diseases when you have a cold. For that reason you should get rid of every cold as quickly as possible. Chamberlain's Cough Remedy will help you. It is widely known as a cure for bad colds.

Public Sale OF VALUABLE Storehouse Property Under Mortgage

By virtue of the power and authority contained in a mortgage from The Oriole Lumber Company, a body corporate, to The Bank of Somerset, a body corporate, dated the 27th day of December, 1915, recorded among the land records of Somerset county, Maryland, in Liber W. J. S. No. 69, folio 386, etc., the undersigned Attorney named in said mortgage will sell at public auction at the Court House door, in Princess Anne, Maryland, on Tuesday, March 16, 1920

At or about the hour of 2 o'clock P. M., all that lot of land in Saint Peter's district, Somerset county, Maryland, lying on the north side of the county road leading through the village of Oriole and ending upon said road, bounded on the west by the school house lot, and bounded on the north and east by the land of Henry B. Phoebus, and containing one acre and one-half, more or less, conveyed to the said Oriole Lumber Company by Harry T. Phoebus by deed dated the 12th day of March, 1915, recorded among said records in Liber W. J. S. No. 67, folio 379, etc., and which was conveyed to the said Harry T. Phoebus by Henry B. Phoebus and wife.

This lot is improved by a STOREHOUSE of large size and in good condition, and this sale affords an excellent opportunity to any one desiring to engage in the mercantile business at a good start.

TERMS OF SALE—As prescribed by the mortgage, cash. Title papers and revenue stamps at the expense of the purchaser.

H. FILLMORE LANKFORD
Attorney named in said Mortgage

Order Nisi

In the matter of the Tax Sale of Real Estate in West Princess Anne Election District of Somerset county, assessed to Amanda Jones, made and reported by James S. Dashiell, collector of State and county taxes for the Second Collection District of Somerset county, for the year 1919, Francis M. Wilson, purchaser, ex-Parte.

In the Circuit Court for Somerset county, No. 3391 Chancery.

Whereas, a certain James E. Dashiell, collector of State and county taxes for the second collection district of Somerset county, in the State of Maryland, for the year 1919, has reported to the Circuit Court for Somerset county a sale made by him to Francis M. Wilson of all that lot or parcel of land lying and being in West Princess Anne Election District of said county and State of Maryland, containing one acre and one-half, more or less, with the improvements thereon, adjoining the lands of Hamilton King and Mason Jones, conveyed to Amanda Jones by deed dated May 2nd, 1905, recorded in Liber O. T. B. No. 40, folio 492, assessed to Amanda Jones on the assessment books of said election district for the year 1919 and sold for the payment of taxes due and in arrears, together with all proceedings had in relation thereto; and whereas, upon examination, it appears to the said Court that the said proceedings are regular, and that the provisions of the law in relation thereto have been complied with. Now it is therefore ordered by the Circuit Court for Somerset county, in Equity, this 1st day of March, 1920, that notice be given by the publication of this order once a week for four successive weeks in the Marylander and Herald, a weekly newspaper published in Somerset county, before the 31st day of March, 1920, warning all persons interested in the said real estate to be and appear in this Court on or before the 1st day of April next, to show cause, if any they have, why said sale should not be ratified and confirmed.

The report states the amount of sale to be $17.740.00.

W. JEROME STERLING, Clerk.

True Copy. Test: W. JEROME STERLING, Clerk.

Pleading guilty to charges of embezzling postal funds and detaining and secreting letters deposited at the post-office of which he was at the time in charge, Mr. Eugene A. Lankford, who, until his arrest a few weeks ago, served as postmaster at Marion Station, in Somerset county, was Monday of last week sentenced by Judge Rose, in the Federal Court, to a term of six months in jail. Lankford not only admitted his guilt, but with the aid of friends, refunded the alleged stolen money in full.

During the past week permits have been issued by the Government for the importation of 365,000 bags, 165 pounds each, of Danish potatoes. These potatoes, when they arrive here, will have a marked effect in reducing the present high price of potatoes, and will lower the price now being paid the producer in this country. There is vast quantities of potatoes in the States of Maine, New York, Connecticut and Massachusetts, which have been kept off the market through the railroads being blocked by heavy snows all over the Eastern States.

North Bill Signed by Governor

Governor Ritchie last Tuesday signed the North System Bill, which was passed by the Senate and the House.

The bill as signed is exactly as it was introduced by Mr. Cobble in the House. There were only five opposing votes to its passage in the House and one in the Senate. It removes many of the public offices of the State from the appointive list and places them on a civil service status. The passage of this bill constitutes a redemption of one of the main planks in the Democratic platform of the campaign of last fall.

One of the worries of the newspaper man is errors in names of people. Names must be used freely to give any sense of intimate contact with the affairs being discussed. But when a paper has to use from 100 to 500 names in every issue, it is some proposition to get all the spelling and initials right.

Watching Bryan

There is much discussion among Democrats in and out of Congress, now that the railroads have been turned back to their owners, as to whether William Jennings Bryan during the coming campaign will continue to advocate Government ownership or drop the subject and devote his energies to agitating strict enforcement of the prohibition amendment under the drastic Volstead law.

POULTRY FACTS

GIVE GRIT TO AID DIGESTION

Hens Should Have Access at All Times to Supply of Material to Help Grind Food.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

The hens should have access at all times to a supply of grit or stones of a size small enough to be swallowed readily. Grit is used by the hens to help in grinding in their gizzards the hard grains which they eat. A supply of ordinary gravel will answer the purpose of grit very well. Crushed oyster or clam shell also should be given to the hens and be kept before them at all times. If this is withheld the hens are likely to lack sufficient shell-forming material in their feed, with the result that they lay many soft-shelled or thin-shelled eggs. Grit or shell can be purchased in small quantities at any feed or poultry supply store.

PECULIARITIES OF TURKEYS

Show the Least Intelligence of Any Farm Fowl When Young and the Most When Matured.

Some one said the turkey shows the least intelligence when small and the most intelligence after maturity of any fowl known. This is true of all the farm fowls. The goose and duck will often go some distance from the poultry range, make a nest, deposit their eggs, sit and hatch, if undisturbed, taking no notice as to whether being watched by human eyes or not. The turkey is very cautious. She will find one, if she finds she is being watched, away from the nest or where she intends making it, often making a nest and sitting down easily, until her watcher decides, or is deceived into thinking she is on the nest, but he will have to try it over again. After the watcher has gone away, she leaves her temporary nest for the true one, deposits her egg and usually covers it deeply with leaves or other trash.

WINTER SHELTER FOR GEESE

Geese Are Very Hardy and Open Sheds Are Satisfactory for Cold Weather Season.

Geese do not need shelter except during cold winter weather, when open sheds may be provided. Gooselings are not usually hatched until good pasture is available, and need additional feed only for a few weeks. The range of pasture used either for geese or for geese should be large enough so that the grass will remain clean, or the stock should be moved frequently to fresh land. Coops, barrels, or some other dry shelter should be provided for the young gooselings. Geese are very hardy and free from diseases and insect pests.

POULTRY NOTES

If you would avoid limberneck at low no dead carcasses or maggots on your farm.

It pays every farmer to have a poultry-wired yard for his fowls in which they may be enclosed when desirable.

Much of the year's success with the farm flock depends on the quality of the birds that are left after the fall culling.

Figure on enough poultry litter for the laying house so that the birds can have clean scratching material throughout the winter.

A little extra care of four hens and a lot of choice food will pay in egg money three times. Don't be afraid of doing the work.

The hen needs exercise the same as a human being. You can't expect her to have health and lay winter eggs when huddled up in a small

We Have the Potash

to Insure Your Sweet Potato Crop

The interest of farmers in this community is our first thought. Service has been a big factor in the rapid growth of our business. In order to live up to this policy, as soon as the armistice was signed, we had our foreign agents get into touch with the producers of Potash. We felt it was our duty to you to replenish your Potash supply as quickly as possible.

We are glad to state that we are now in a position to fulfill all your Potash requirements. Fresh cargoes from European sources of supply (the old German mines) have enabled us to combine this necessary plant food with our well-known Fish Scrap and other necessary ingredients.

Three years' cropping without Potash makes it necessary for you to replenish your soil with this plant food, and is all the more reason why you should insist on TILGHMAN'S FERTILIZERS, fertilizers that guarantee you Potash in your plant food. Ask your dealer.

FARM POULTRY

BOYS AND GIRLS JOIN CLUBS

First Step in Organization Usually Is to Get Support of Business Men of Community.

Poultry-breeding associations are usually the outgrowth of pioneer work in organizing boys and girls into poultry clubs or of repeated efforts to interest producers in better poultry methods. In some instances, however, leaders in communities have expressed their desire to make an effort to establish for themselves a business or side line that will add to their incomes as individuals and likewise increase the property of the community.

In such promising localities, the first step in organization usually is to get the support of local business men. In small towns many business men own farms and consequently are interested in agriculture, which in turn benefits the various lines of business. At the same time their assistance is helpful in financing the association. In fact this is frequently accomplished by inducing the business men's association to contribute a suitable fund for standard-bred stock which is to be distributed among the farmers who join the association. Cooperation of that kind is usually obtained easily if the business men are shown the advantages of the organization and how the increased prosperity eventually will benefit them.

Another plan that has proved to be satisfactory in Overton county, Tenn., is direct financial assistance from the banks. In this case the banks advanced $1,000 to be invested in breeding pens through the co-operation of the poultry club agent and the county agricultural agent. Each pen consisted of ten hens or pullets and a male bird which cost on an average $2.50 a bird. The pens were placed with club members in the various communities. Each person who received a pen guaranteed to return, after the first year, 20 fowls in payment for the original ten hens or pullets furnished him. Those 20 standard-bred fowls, together with two selected male birds, were divided into two pens and the next year were given under the same conditions to two additional club members. One of the requirements of the plan was the continuance of this "endless-chain" system for five years, or until every member possessed at least one pen of standard-bred fowls. Thus the original pens have been multiplied by many hundreds, and the entire county has become well stocked with one breed of fowls.

CONDITION OF LAYING FOWL

Body of Hen Is Deeper in Rear Than at Front of Keel—Pelvic Bones Well Spread.

A hen that is laying has an enlarged abdomen, due to the enlarged intestines, ovary and oviduct. The body is deeper in the rear than at the front of the keel. The condition is reversed when a hen stops laying. The pelvic bones are well spread in the laying hen. As production decreases the ear lobes contract.

MINERAL ELEMENTS FOR HEN

It Pays to Burn Refuse and Brush Heaps Near Poultry Range for Bits of Charcoal.

Hens seem to obtain certain mineral elements that they crave from wood or coal ashes and it pays to burn refuse and brush heaps near the poultry range so that the birds can clean up the ashes and bits of charcoal that remain after the fire.

FAVOR STANDARD-BRED FOWL

Once Taken Up by Farmer He Will Never Go Back to Mongrel or Crossbred Poultry.

When a farmer discards his mongrel or crossbred poultry and takes up standard-bred fowls he never goes back to the poorer stock, because he finds standard-bred birds more satisfactory and more profitable.

WORLD'S GREAT DEBT TO OIL

As Illuminant, Fuel and Lubricant, it is indispensable to the Progress of Mankind.

It is 70 years since the first oil well was drilled in Pennsylvania, thus inaugurating the era of oil. The discovery was at once recognized as possessing great value, but there could have been but a slight appreciation of the mammoth proportions to which the industry was destined to grow. Hailed as an illuminant supplanting candles and whale oil, the business has widened beyond any possible dreams of those who were active in the early days of oil. The center of the industry has long since departed from the place of its origin. The southwest and the Pacific coast, almost unknown lands in the infancy of the business, now produce thousands of barrels to the original oil region's one. Oil is still used as an illuminant on millions of farms and in isolated places all over the world, but that is no longer the chief product of crude. Gasoline, at first a troublesome by-product, is now the main result sought. The millions of motor-driven vehicles that have come into existence in the past score of years would not have been possible had we not had this desirable product to provide an explosive to drive them. Vast quantities of the crude product are used to drive locomotives and ships. The war might not have been won had not the allies had access to the fields of Mexico and the United States. And not only as fuel does the greasy product enter into the world's commerce, but as a lubricant it lessens the friction of bearings, from the sewing machines to steamships. The by-products even enter the realms of medicine, and while the limit would seem to be reached in utilizing the waste from the refineries, it is possible that further subdivisions may yet increase the number. The story of oil is a romance that equals the tale of steel, yet it is an infant in point of time compared with the metal that has brought such wealth to Pennsylvania.—Pittsburgh Gazette-Times.

Indomitable Cheerfulness.

That a man can remain cheerful though imprisoned for a crime he did not commit is proved by some of the letters that Mr. O. Henry wrote to his little girl while he was serving his unjust sentence. They are quoted in the Boston Globe.

"Hello, Margaret!" says one playful mischievous. "Don't you remember me? My name is Aldiberonthophosthophorokophokus. If you see a star shoot and say my name 17 times before it goes out you will find a diamond ring in the track of the first blue cow's foot you see go down the road in a snowstorm while the red roses are blooming on the tomato vines. Good-by! I've got to take a ride on a grasshopper."

Again he wrote: "I hope your watch runs all right. When you write again be sure to look at it and tell me what time it is, so I won't have to get up and look at the clock." And in another note: "Be careful when you are on the street not to feed shucks to strange dogs or pat snakes on the head or shake hands with cats you haven't been introduced to or stroke the noses of electric car horses."

Two Strains of the "Spud."

Two new vegetables have been propagated at the Missouri botanical garden at St. Louis, it was announced by Dr. George T. Moore, director of the garden.

One has been named the "arracha" and the other the "dasheen." Both resemble the potato and are said to be about equal in food value to it.

Doctor Moore explained the arracha, when cooked, is a bit darker than the sweet potato and tastes like the persimmon. It is a rapid grower, he said. Dasheens, cooked in cream, taste like cauliflower, and when baked have the flavor of a roasted chestnut. Doctor Moore amplified. They are related to the Egyptian taro, commonly referred to as the "elephant ear," Doctor Moore said.

The announcement was made to delegates who attended the convention of the American Association for the Advancement of Science, which ended recently.

Made Good Use of Hairpin.

Dr. Arnold K. Henry of Dublin, who was a surgeon with the British expeditionary forces in France, relates in a letter to the Lancet several instances of using a hairpin when called upon to perform an operation without the proper tools. In one case he horrified the mother superior of a French convent by using a common hairpin, bent as a retractor for an eyelid. In another he extracted with it a foreign body from the ear, which syringing had failed to remove. Once when he had to perform tracheotomy on a baby, with no instrument but a knife, he borrowed a hairpin, bent it, inserted it into the wound in the throat and utilized the projecting ends as attachments for tapes around the neck.

Cost of Style.

Mother—Why do you wear that thin blouse?
Daughter—It's stylish.
"You must be cold."
"I am."
"I should think you'd shiver."
"No, it isn't stylish to shiver!"

"Something Like Cheese."

A small boy came to the Brightwood library and solemnly asked for cottage cheese. The librarian thought a moment and asked if he did not mean the book, "Scottish Chiefs." "Yes," he said pleasantly. "I knew it was something like cheese."—Indianapolis News.

Will Not be One Day Without

PE-RU-NA

This Lady TELLS Her FRIENDS

Mrs. Mary Fricke, 507 Bornman St., Belleville, Ill., is just one of the many thousands of ladies throughout the country who, after an agony of years, have at last found health, strength and vigor in PE-RU-NA.

Her own words tell of her suffering and recovery better than we can do it: "I suffered with my stomach, had awful cramps and headaches so I often could not lay on a pillow. Saw your book, tried PE-RU-NA and got good results from the first bottle. To be sure of a cure I took twelve bottles. I have recommended PE-RU-NA to my friends and all are well pleased with results. I will not be one day without PE-RU-NA. Have not had a doctor since I started with PE-RU-NA, which was about fifteen years ago. I am now sixty-three years old, hale, hearty and well. Can do as much work as my daughters. I feel strong and healthy and weigh near two hundred pounds. Before, I weighed as little as one hundred. I hope lots of people use PE-RU-NA and get the results I did." An experience like that of Mrs. Fricke is an inspiration to every sick and suffering woman.

If you have catarrh, whether it be of the nose, throat, stomach, bowels, or other organs, PE-RU-NA is the remedy. It is not new; it is not an experiment. PE-RU-NA has been tried. PE-RU-NA has been used by thousands who once were sick and are now well. To prevent coughs, colds, grip and influenza and to hasten recovery there is nothing better.

PE-RU-NA will improve the appetite and digestion, purify the blood, soothe the irritated mucous linings, eradicate the waste material and corruption from the system. It will tone up the nerves, give you health, strength, vigor and the joy of living. Do what Mrs. Mary Fricke and thousands more have done—try PE-RU-NA. You will be glad, happy, thankful.

OUR EMPLOYEES ARE YOUR NEIGHBORS

IN THE STATE OF MARYLAND we have 3100 people on our payroll. Together they make up the telephone company, and all of them are your neighbors. They are regular people, just like you, your friends and family.

THESE EMPLOYEES OF OURS spend their wages right at home. They eat food, wear clothes, live in houses, talk, laugh, sing, cry, get peevish—and get over it—and enjoy the movies, just like you. They are good citizens, and we are proud of them.

THESE FOLKS ARE making every effort to give you good telephone service. They comprise the organization whose business it is to see that always there is some one on hand to keep the service going in spite of accident, flood, epidemic, storm—any one of a hundred emergencies.

THEY TAKE PRIDE in their work and in their company. They deserve your co-operation and your support. And they will be greatly encouraged if they know you are willing to pay a necessary slight increase for telephone service.

NOW THAT WE ARE asking that the company be allowed to make a living, we believe it is timely and appropriate to remind you that the more support you give the telephone company the better it can serve you.

NAVY ELECTRICAL SCHOOL.

Taking machines apart to see what makes them tick is just as interesting as making them go after they're put together.

In the Navy gas engine school shown above, some of our future aviators are investigating the ignition devices on an airplane engine.

The sailors get a thorough training in the gas engine and have lots of opportunities to perfect themselves in this specialty during a four years' enlistment. They are paid during the entire course, and when they finish their enlistment period they can either continue in the service or go back to civil life, well qualified to do high class garage work.

MINISTERS COST LESS THAN AUTOS

World Survey Figures Reveal How Badly United States Is Paying Its Pastors.

MANY LIVING ON $600 A YEAR.

One of the Aims of Present Protestant Co-operation Is to End Disgrace of Underpaid Preacher—Pensions Also to Be Provided.

What are the chances of a young man who intends to be a lawyer of making $3,000 a year? What are the doctor's chances? What of the minister or the manufacturer?

The lawyer has exactly one chance in five. The doctor's chances are one in seven. It is ten to one against the manufacturer. The modern minister, however, who formerly ranked with the doctor and lawyer as a member of the "learned professions," has fallen hopelessly behind. He is a 100 to 1 shot.

These figures are part of a mass of astonishing facts brought to light by the world survey being made by the Interchurch World Movement and whose sources of information are such that many economists and statisticians are availing themselves of the results. This survey puts America's minister at the bottom of the ladder of the nation's income receivers—and with responsibilities which equal those of any captain of industry.

A worker in a silk mill, a laborer in a rubber plant, a paper maker, a worker in a shoe factory—all are getting higher average wages, the survey shows, than does America's minister, city or country. Nor does the city man receive the luxurious salary that many persons, including many country parsons, believe he does. Not four ministers in a thousand, according to the survey, receive $5,000 a year. In no instance, whatever the denomination, does a majority receive $1,000.

Cotton Pickers Better Off. Are you a Congregationalist? In 2,783 churches the yearly pay to your ministers has been less than $1,000. Are you a Presbyterian? You are then on the less than $1,000 list with 6,415 ministers. In the event that you are a Methodist the charge is that 4,719 pastors are trying to exist on the $20 a week that you pay them. Episcopalians do a little better, yet half of their rectors receive less than the $1,500 a year which government economists regard as the minimum on which a family can be decently maintained.

The initial cost of the cheapest "fly-ver" on the market is less than $800, but a very good, conscientious pastor, it is shown, can be hired for a year for that sum.

Ministers in the South are preaching to fifty or more cotton pickers who individually are paid more for picking cotton than their entire neighborhood pays to the preacher in a year.

One of the aims of the present co-operation of the world's Protestant denominations is to end this disgrace of the underpaid minister. With universities, business houses and municipalities daily taking action to provide for the comfort of their workers, the church is to keep pace with the times, and to arrange not only for adequate pay for its workers, but to provide pensions for those no longer able to work.

It is to move the public to prevent unfavorable comparison of pastors and puddlers. Until then, as for a puddler swapping jobs with a pastor drawing an "ordinary" salary—never! The lowest salary paid to pastors is lower than any wages paid in the entire steel industry.

FORTY IDEAL AGE FOR WOMEN

English Artist Sweeps Away Time-Honored Ideas Having to Do With Spinsterhood.

There is a flurry among English spinsters. A prominent artist has come to the conclusion that a girl of forty should be man's ideal. He sweeps away all the time-honored rubbish about spinsters at the age of forty being mostly interested in cats and canaries. Here is what he has to say about the new old girl.

The ideal age for a woman from the viewpoint of the man who studies the sex as an artist is forty years. The woman of forty is at the perfection of her beauty and has attained a settled mentality which she did not possess as a girl in her teens, or as a young woman in her twenties and thirties. At forty she is an ideal companion, pleasantly matured, tolerant and understanding. Only the ignoramus in life find joy in the society of young girls or undeveloped women.

During the war and since many women of the so-called "sweet-and-forty" age got married, a considerable number of them widows. This has led to frequent lamentations by younger women that, with the huge number of unmarried beauties about, it is unpatriotic for Cupid to show such favoritism for widows and spinsters.

Madagascar Turtles.

Some of the turtles of Madagascar are oval in form and very fat and plump; others are much thinner and flat. In order to catch them, the natives go out to sea in the early morning when the ocean is very smooth, and the turtles come to the surface to enjoy their morning nap.

NEW WORLD PROGRAM DEvised BY CHURCHES

By S. EARL TAYLOR.

DR. S. EARL TAYLOR, General Secretary Interchurch World Movement.

If Christ, on the day He was born, had started on a tour to preach in every village in India, He would still have 30,000 more to visit.

We now believe we have found a way by which the leaders of the Protestant churches can sit around a common table and have the Christian program of the entire world laid before them. By means of the Interchurch World Movement we can see where the Methodists are, and where the Baptists are. We can see the general outline of their forces, their present status in this great world struggle, and may also have some idea of the unoccupied places, and what may be done by all of us to enter these unoccupied parts of the world field which Christ sent us to occupy.

CHURCHES TO AID LONELY SHEEP SHEARERS OF WEST

The bleat of the sheep on the backbone of the continent calls men to the mountains. On high uplands from the Canadian border to Mexico, in lonely and inaccessible places, one of the most romantic examples of the country's migrant worker—the sheep shearer—piles his trade.

Unheard of though he is to thousands of his fellow workers, it was for him that the immigration regulations of three countries—Canada, the United States and Mexico—were modified during the war. This permitted freedom of movement to many hundreds of this strange craft, and the means of employment to thousands in factories and stores.

Yet, for all his importance in the ranks of the nation's great Marching Army of the Employed, what sort of life does this man lead? The migrant fruit packer, or wheat harvester, or farmhand, or lumberman often roams inland through cities and the congested spots of civilization. But the sheep shearer, by the nature of his trade, is cut off from such influences.

Through a survey of the nation's migrant labor now being made by the Interchurch World Movement, it is suggested that for men of this class relief may be afforded through churches in outlying districts. For social and other purposes these men, with proper co-operation by church bodies, could make use of many of the facilities without which they are doomed to a life of isolation.

City Lighting Modern.

Lighting up a whole city at night is quite a modern invention, although illumination was used in some of the ancient cities. Paris and London dispute the priority in the matter of modern street lighting. London claims to have lighted its streets with lanterns as early as 1414, but this contention is disputed. During the sixteenth century lanterns for street lighting were provided at the public cost in Paris.

"ACEY-DOUCIE."

Killing the Bones.

No indeed, they're not shooting craps. They are playing "Accey-Doucie," a perfectly safe and sane pursuit.

Wherever there are men of the seas you will find a game of "Accey-Doucie." It's one of the favorite diversions of Uncle Sam's sailors.

An "Accey-Doucie" tournament develops almost as much excitement as a good stiff boxing match. If you would be real salty you must learn to play it.

Messrs. B. C. and Norman Dryden spent Sunday in Crisfield.

Miss Mabel Culver spent part of this at the home of her aunt, Mrs. John Marriner, Princess Anne.

Mr. Genger, of Illinois, arrived this week and took possession of his farm recently purchased of Mr. O. H. Miller.

Mrs. E. T. Dykes and children are spending sometime at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. James Noel in Revel's Neck.

Little Mary Hickman, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. H. W. Hickman, of near Pocomoke City, after spending a month at the home of her grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. B. T. Dykes, returned home Sunday.

The world is full of ambidextrous people who are sure they are right and then get left.

The test of time is what tells the tale. The public soon finds out when misrepresentations are made, and merit alone will stand the test of time.

Princess Anne people appreciate merit and many months ago local citizens publicly endorsed Doan's Kidney Pills; they do so still. Would a citizen make the statement which follows unless convinced that the article was just as represented? Below is testimony such as the sufferer from kidney ills is looking for.

Mrs. Carroll Hastings, Stone Road, Princess Anne, says: "For nearly seven years I had disordered kidneys and I was miserable and weak. I had a dragging-down pain in my back and my heart palpitated. Then again, I had sick headaches and dreadful pains in the small of my back. I was getting worse every day and I finally got Doan's Kidney Pills at Jones' drug store. The first box cured me of backache and the other symptoms were greatly relieved."

KEEPS DOAN'S ON HAND. Over nine years later, Mrs. Hastings says: "I always keep Doan's Kidney Pills on hand in case I should need them. I recommend them whenever I have an opportunity."

Price 50c. at all dealers. Don't simply ask for a kidney remedy—get Doan's Kidney Pills, the same that Mrs. Hastings had. Foster-Milburn, Co., Mfgs., Buffalo, N. Y.

State Trees for Planting

With the approach of spring the topic of trees is frequently discussed. There will be more forest and roadside planting this year than ever before according to present indications.

Many inquiries have been received by the State Board of Forestry, 815 Calvert Building, Baltimore, by those who want to plant memorial trees, by others who are anxious to plant rows of trees for windbreaks to temper the cold west and northwest winds and many others shade trees along the roadways. A few are making arrangements to plant some of their idle or waste land in forest trees. Whatever the needs, the State Board of Forestry is ready to help in advice regarding the selection of trees and method of planting, and in furnishing the trees at actual cost.

The trees range in size and price from 4-inch pines at less than a half-cent apiece, up to pines 7 feet tall at 60 cents apiece, and oak transplants from 10 inches at 2 cents apiece to ash and elm trees 15 feet tall at 65 cents each. Between these extremes are trees of many varieties and sizes, selected because of their suitability for the different soils and the different purposes of planting throughout the State of Maryland. They include two kinds of pine, Norway spruce, cypress, three kinds of oak, ash, elm, black walnut, two kinds of locust, ginkgo and other trees suitable for forest or roadside planting.

The State nursery has proven to be one of the most popular branches of the Forestry Department and has done much toward promoting tree planting throughout the State. Since establishing the nursery the demand for State-grown stock has exceeded the supply, necessitating extensions at different times. Some stocks are low, but the policy of "first come, first served" will prevail while they last.

You never can tell. Dumb luck may come to the fellow who merely has sense enough to keep his mouth shut.

Insist On Genuine Ford Parts

Imitation "Ford" parts are being sold by many mail-order houses, downtown stores and garages to unsuspecting Ford owners as "Ford" parts. But they are not Genuine Ford parts made by the Ford Motor Company. They are made by concerns who have no connection whatsoever with the Ford Motor Company. These imitation parts are not even made from the same grade of steel, or under the same formulas used by the Ford Company. They are counterfeit parts. Tests have shown them to break when the genuine Ford parts didn't even bend, and they generally are from thirty-five to one hundred per cent. lower in quality. The Authorized Ford Dealer is your protection. As such, we handle nothing but the Genuine Ford parts. They are made from the famous Ford Vauxhall Steel and each part—according to its use—is heat-treated in the way that will give it the longest wearing qualities. Every part is the same as its duplicate in your Ford car or Ford truck.

Our stock of parts is complete. And our Ford garage and Ford Mechanics are at your service at all times. Drive in when replacements or repairs for your Ford car may be necessary. Save your car and also your money. Insist on Genuine Ford parts.

THE RIGHT USE OF MONEY

Helps the Owner Helps Business Helps the Community

The need of the times is for individual money surpluses. The buying value of a dollar today, when dollars are cheap, may double some day when dollars are dear. This is the best possible time to gather a surplus and the Peoples Bank of Somerset County is the best place to safeguard that surplus.

Place your dollars with us; they will grow in value and we will place them, under our sound banking policy, where they will help business and the community.

The call of the hour is for funds for productive enterprise. They are needed to finance farms and all business, to increase production, to better conditions throughout the United States and right here in Princess Anne.

If you have not a Checking or Savings account already, you are invited to open one as a means of personal betterment, and as an indication of public spiritedness. If you have an account, now is the time to build it up.

Free Scholarships For Service Men

Former service men who have not already filed applications for one of the free scholarships offered by the Young Men's Christian Association Educational Service for demobilized men may do so at once, according to advice of W. H. Dashiell, of the Somerset County Educational Service Committee.

The opportunity is open to every ex-soldier, sailor, marine and orphaned son of a veteran who served in the late war. Although there are still sufficient funds to care for several of the ambitious men in the county at the rate applications are being filed they will soon all have been distributed.

As the greater proportion of ex-service men come from cities of less than 5,000 inhabitants, the "Y" has allotted a proportionate amount of the funds available for free awards to such communities. Scholarships will be given in the Home Study Courses of the United Y. M. C. A. Schools to qualified applicants unable to attend city schools.

The wide range in courses offered makes it possible for the man with little or no elementary education to participate in the benefits on an equal basis with those more fortunate in the matter of education. Comprehensive and practical agricultural courses are offered in the Home Study Courses along with commercial, academic, professional and highly specialized technical ones. Applications should be addressed to Superintendent W. H. Dashiell, Princess Anne, Md.

Public School Notes

Arbor Day, according to a proclamation by Governor Ritchie, will be celebrated by the public schools on Friday, April 9th.

Dr. William Burdick, Supervisor of Physical Education, has set the date for Somerset's Field Day for Thursday, April 22nd. The meet for the colored schools will be on the day following. Both meets will be held in Princess Anne.

The events for the track meet will be the same as last year. There is to be a new tournament in dodge ball, limited to one-room rural schools, which may have a team of ten, mixed of boys and girls. Valley ball for high school girls is also among the sports added.

A meeting of the teachers of the county is slated for Friday, April 16th, in Princess Anne. The colored teachers will meet on Saturday, April 10th, in Princess Anne.

Maryland Day will be observed in the public schools on March 25th.

Process To Elect Bishop

A diocesan convention has been called by the standing committee of the Eastern Protestant Episcopal Diocese to elect a successor to the late Bishop William Forbes Adams. It is to meet on the third Tuesday in April in Trinity Cathedral. Ballots will be taken separately by the clergy and laity, and a majority will elect. About 25 clergymen and 100 laymen are expected to attend. The names of nominees have been announced.

SHOOTING AFFAIR IN SALISBURY

John Melvin In Jail And Harry Hillman In The Hospital

John Melvin, a married man over 60 years of age, is in the Salisbury jail and Harry Hillman is in the Peninsula General Hospital lying at the point of death from a bullet wound inflicted by Melvin at the N. Y., P. & N. Railroad depot in Salisbury last Friday afternoon. Miss Lydia Pusey, of Pocomoke City, was present when the shooting occurred. The bullet entered Hillman's abdomen, puncturing his intestines. There are various rumors as to the cause of the shooting.

Mr. Melvin, who is one of the doorkeepers at Annapolis while the General Assembly is in session, was on his way home from Annapolis and stopped off at Salisbury en route to Pocomoke City. Friday-afternoon Mr. Melvin met the train which arrived at that place at 3.14, and from the train came Hillman and Miss Pusey. Melvin followed the couple. Hillman tried to pacify Melvin, who seemed to want to crowd Hillman off the platform on to the tracks of the railroad. Hillman took hold of Melvin and gave him a push. Melvin went down, but immediately regained his feet and, at close range, fired point blank at Hillman. Miss Pusey was in the meantime trying to pacify the men, and when the shot was fired went into hysterics.

Mr. Hillman was rushed to the hospital, Miss Pusey insisting that she go with him, which she did. Miss Pusey stated that she never gave Mr. Melvin any cause for his actions, and the only thing she knew was that her kind treatment to the old man was mistaken for affection, and Mr. Melvin became jealous. Dr. J. McFadden Dick, who performed the operation, stated the wound was such that Mr. Hillman had a very small chance for recovery. Both the men are prominent in Pocomoke City.

Arbor Day

Friday, April 9th, has been designated by proclamation of the Governor as Arbor Day. On this day we are asked to plant trees around the home, on the school grounds and along the highways. This year the day is to have a special significance in the planting of memorial trees for those who made the supreme sacrifice in the world war. The State Board of Education is urging the celebration of the day by all the public schools and suggesting the planting of memorial trees. The State Board of Forestry, Baltimore, Md., will supply the trees from the State forest nursery at cost of growing them and give advice as to kinds to use and method of planting.

The importance of Arbor Day is emphasized by the growing scarcity of timber and high prices of lumber. We must be "tree growers" if we are to be "tree users." And above all, is the thought that in planting trees we are planting for posterity—we are doing an unselfish act that will make the home surroundings, the school grounds or the highways more beautiful for those who come after us. This Arbor Day should be one of lasting memory by planting trees that shall be, in fact, living monuments for the planter as well as those for whom they are planted.

Rev. D. F. McFaul Dead

Funeral services were held in Wilmington, Del., last Tuesday for Rev. Daniel F. McFaul and interment was at Laurel on Wednesday. He died at the age of 88 years, and is survived by his widow, Mary E. McFaul; 4 daughters, Miss May McFaul, Miss Katharine McFaul, Mrs. William J. Johnson, of Houston, and Mrs. Joseph J. Dougherty, of Milford; and by one son, Wallace McFaul, of Milford.

Mr. McFaul had been ill but nine days. He came from Maine to Delaware in 1884. Mr. McFaul assumed the pastorate of Millboro Methodist Episcopal Church in that year. His other charges on the peninsula follow: 1885, Fruitland; 1886, Leipsic; 1887-8, Crapo; 1889-1890, Elk Neck; 1891, Pocomoke City; 1892-1893, Somerset; 1894, 1896, Bethel; 1897-1898, Roxana; 1899, Smith's Island; 1900-1902, Parsonburg; 1903-1905, Kenton; 1906-1907, Houston; 1908-1909, Wyoming; 1910-1912, Farmington; 1913, Hobron; 1914-1917, Hockessin. After resigning his pastorate at Hockessin Mr. McFaul was retired by the Conference.

"Sweet-Barrie" Drama At Auditorium

The attraction at the Auditorium next Thursday night will be "Blanche Sweet in 'Fighting Crissy,'" by Bret Harbo. This is a drama of strong emotions, as breezy as the prairie, as sweet as the wild rose, full of the beauty and chivalry of the rugged west. When you see this drama of rugged California you will see one of the outstanding special features of the screen's achievements.

Tax Ditch Meetings

The taxables on ten of the tax ditches of the county met Saturday, March 6th, for the purpose of electing managers and treasurers to serve during the ensuing year. Failing to have a quorum at the meetings, the officers were appointed by the County Commissioners at their regular meeting Tuesday.

The report of the managers shows that a considerable amount of ditching was done during the past year but the scarcity of labor prevented a larger amount of work being accomplished. A number of the managers are considering using dynamite on some of the tax ditches, as it was demonstrated last year that dynamite could be used economically in digging tax ditches.

Dynamite demonstrations will be arranged in various sections of the county this spring by County Agent C. Z. Keller for the purpose of showing the value of explosives as an aid to draining land. Farmers interested in the use of dynamite in ditching should arrange with Mr. Keller for a demonstration.

Soldiers' State Bonus Bill

Outstanding features of bill to give soldiers State bonus:

Would give $10 for each month's service to every man or woman who served 90 days or more, with 25 per cent. additional to those who were in battle, and allow $30 a month up to $1,080 for those who wish to go to school.

Adjutant General's records show 54,365 men were in various branches of service, but has no record of army nurses.

Records show that 9,260 of the total number were negroes.

Because of incomplete records, amount required for bonuses is uncertain and the appropriation might make State unable to pay its obligations.

Would cost State $9,000,000, and might go as high as $12,000,000.

If paid from direct taxation, would add 61 cents to State tax rate.

If paid by bond issue, would add 8 cents to State rate for each of next two years, and 6.3 cents for each of 13 years following.

If paid by inheritance tax, would levy from 1 to 10 per cent. on all estates of decedents.

Quotas For Near East Drive

Last Rites For Bishop Adams

During the funeral of the late Rev. William F. Adams, Bishop of the Diocese of Eastern, which took place from Trinity Cathedral, Easton, at 2 o'clock, Monday afternoon of last week, all the public offices and places of business in the town were closed. The people turned out en masse and the Cathedral was not large enough to hold the vast crowd that gathered. Many remained outside during the service, but they went to Spring Hill Cemetery, where the burial took place.

Services at the Cathedral were conducted by the Rev. George C. Sutton, chairman of the standing committee of the diocese, and Rev. Henry Davies, of Easton, secretary. Bishop John Gardner Murray, of Baltimore, Bishop of the Diocese of Maryland, read the service. The Rev. George S. Ganser, dean of the Cathedral, carried the Bishop's cross and crook.

Among the other ministers within the chancel rail were the Revs. William C. Schouler, George C. Jones, Elton; Dunbar Gould, Cambridge; Llewellyn Williams, Pocomoke City; Herbert C. Cone, Salisbury; J. C. Thomas, Denton; H. Borden Smith, Princess Anne; Edmund Burke, Ocean City; S. S. Potter, Berlin.

A number of vestments of different parishes in the diocese were in attendance. The honorary pallbearers present were Louis W. Trail, Easton, treasurer of the Episcopal fund; Judge William H. Adkins, Easton; Col. Henry J. Shannahan, Col. Henry Holliday, Edward B. Hardeste, T. Hughlett Henry, Dr. A. S. Cover, O. K. Byerly, all of Easton; Spencer Willis, St. Michaels, and H. Lay Beaven, Hillsboro.

Bill To Reduce Conservation Board

Senator Legg, of Queen Anne county, is preparing a bill to reduce the Conservation Commission from three members to one. A bill introduced in the House by Mr. Gladden, of Somerset, to abolish the commission was defeated. Senator Legg and Commissioner Killian clashed at a joint meeting of the Senate and House Committees on Chesapeake Bay and Tributaries on Tuesday. Mr. Legg declared that the commission was discourteous to the Senate, where he has introduced a series of bills prepared by the commission which later had introduced another series of bills in the Senate. Warm words passed between the gentlemen, but their differences were soon smoothed over.

Former Senator Loses Leg

Former State Senator Marion V. Brewington, of Salisbury, who has been at Church Home and Infirmary, Baltimore, several months suffering from diabetes, had his left leg amputated at the knee last Tuesday by Dr. J. M. T. Finney.

It is said that physicians at the infirmary advised an operation when the Senator first entered, but he would not consent on account of his weak condition. Since then he has been improving, and upon advice of Dr. Finney the operation was performed.

ROBERTSON OUT FOR CONGRESS

Wicomico County Man Seeks Democratic Nomination

Yielding to the insistence of Democrats of Wicomico county and his friends, Mr. Hilton W. Robertson, well-known banker and business man of White Haven, has announced his candidacy for Congress.

At a meeting at White Haven Monday evening of last week, attended by prominent party leaders, Mr. Robertson agreed to make the race for the nomination.

Under the leadership of the Wicomico business man his friends there are confident that the First District will be assured of capable and intelligent representation in the House at Washington, and that an overwhelmingly Democratic Congressional District will again be represented by a Democrat.

Thoroughly versed in the economic needs of the people of the Eastern Shore, Mr. Robertson is peculiarly well fitted to represent them in the National Legislature, it was declared at Monday's meeting.

Mr. Robertson is one of the business leaders responsible for restoring Maryland to her ancient dominance in the shipbuilding industry of the country. At the plant of the White Haven Shipbuilding Company, which he organized and built in 1917, two 2,500 ton vessels have been constructed for the United States Shipping Board at the expenditure of $1,000,000.

Mr. Robertson is no less active in the banking field. He is chairman of the board of directors of the bank of White Haven, and, while studying law in Washington, D. C., organized the Dupont National Bank of that city, becoming its cashier, later being offered the presidency.

The Wicomico business man has been a life-long resident of White Haven. Born there July 16, 1886, he was educated at the White Haven school and the Business College of Baltimore, later receiving a degree of L. L. B. from the Lincoln and Jefferson University of Washington.

His family, one of the oldest on the Eastern Shore, have been prominent in local politics and the Democratic party. Mr. Robertson gave active support to the campaign of Governor Ritchie and it was on that campaign he first came into prominence politically, the suggestion being made then that he run for Congress at the next election.

Fire Destroys Chamberlain Hotel

The Chamberlain Hotel, at Old Point, Va., one of the most famous tourist resorts on the Atlantic Coast south of Atlantic City, was destroyed by fire late Sunday afternoon, the 7th inst.

The 400 guests and 160 employees escaped. The loss is placed at between $3,000,000 and $4,000,000. This includes about $150,000 worth of jewels and clothing of women guests who had come to stay for the Easter season, always one of the resort's gayest times. In addition to the hotel a small store next door and Government building nearby were burned.

The fire was discovered on the ground floor by Manager George F. Adams, but before the fire apparatus arrived it had made such headway it was impossible to check it. The fire departments of Hampton, Phoebus, the National Soldiers' Home at Hampton, Fort Monroe, Langley Field, Newport News and Camp Custer helped fight the flames. Especially good work was done by the Coast Artillerymen from Fort Monroe.

The Chamberlain was a five-story wooden structure and was built in 1893. The building alone was valued at two million dollars and stood on part of the Government reservation at Fortress Monroe, permission for its erection being given by Congress. The hotel was directly on the water front and one of its chief attractions was a large swimming pool in one wing of the building.

Ever since its erection it has been a favorite rendezvous of members of the navy set. Whenever the Atlantic fleet put into Hampton Roads the hotel became the meeting place of the officers and their families.

Tomato Growers' Meeting Wednesday

A meeting of the tomato growers and canners will be held tomorrow (Wednesday) afternoon, March 17th, at 1.30 o'clock in the Court House. There will be talks by representatives of the Extension Service, who will discuss the growing of tomatoes and the control of diseases of this crop. Growers and canners will also discuss the tomato problems.

It is desired that there will be a good attendance of growers and canners at the meeting as the discussion of various phases of the tomato situation will be of interest to all concerned in this crop.

Revell's Neck

March 13—Mrs. J. S. Farrow and son, Charles, are both under the doctor's care, being threatened with pneumonia. Many of the citizens of this section are on the sick list.

Mr. Millard F. Long is installing a water system thru his home.

Miss Mary Pusey is spending a few days with her aunt near Princess Anne.

Mr. J. B. Farley entertained "The Helping Hands" Saturday night at his home.

Miss Mildred Pusey, of Delmar, Del., visited the home of Mr. and Mrs. Woodland Pusey recently.

Little Mildred, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Beauchamp, is confined to her room with scarlet fever.

"The Helping Hands" will hold their next meeting at the home of their secretary, Miss Clara D. Farrow.

Mr. Wm. T. Beauchamp's new dwelling is nearing completion. It adds to the community's improvement greatly.

Mr. J. T. Furniss and sisters, Misses Mollie and Nannie, spent Sunday evening as the guests of Mr. and Mrs. C. O. Farrow.

Services were conducted Sunday by pastor in charge. Owing to the weather there has been no services at Mt. Olive Church for several weeks.

Prayer meeting was held on Wednesday night at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Randall Crowell. It meets next week at the home of Mr. E. W. McDorman.

The farmers of this section are discouraged over their hotbeds. The seeds germinated slowly, therefore, predictions are a scarcity and lateness of tomato plants.

There will be given by the ladies of Mt. Olive Church an oyster supper and festival—ice cream and cake also will be served—on March 23rd, at the store of the late James L. Morris.

Deal's Island

March 13—Mr. Elwood Shores has gone to Chester, Pa.

Mrs. Lucy Shores is visiting relatives in Chance.

Mr. and Mrs. John K. Kelly are visiting relatives in Salisbury.

Mr. Edward Tease has gone to Baltimore, where he hopes to find work.

Mr. Clifford Kirwan has returned to Baltimore, where he will resume his work.

On Friday last we celebrated the birthday of our first and noble President, George Washington. Four plays were given, one from each room, in our public school, and all who were present spent an enjoyable evening. The proceeds went for the school library.

Taking their friends and fellow-employees at the Aberdeen Proving Grounds by surprise, Mr. John Fitzhugh Lee Horner, of Deal's Island, and Miss Lillian Kress, of Baltimore, eloped to Bel Air and were married March 8th. The party left the proving grounds in automobiles. They will reside on North Charles street, Baltimore. The romance began at the proving grounds several months ago. Mr. Horner, who served in France with the Fifth Marines, has been employed in the ballistic section of the construction department, and Miss Kress is private secretary to the head of that department.

St. Peter's

March 13—Miss Iva Phoebus is visiting in Baltimore.

Mrs. Sallie Rozman, of Salisbury, was the guest of Mrs. Mary Dize last week.

Miss Helen Windsor, of Venton, spent the past week with her grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. B. F. Laird.

Mrs. George Crosswell, of Norfolk, Va., is visiting at the home of her mother, Mrs. A. C. Rozman.

Mrs. William Hopkins and children are visiting the former's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Laird, in Baltimore.

Mrs. Vessey Shores, after spending a few months with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Paul Smith, returned to Baltimore on Friday.

Mr. Edward Reese returned to Baltimore on Tuesday, after spending the week end at the home of his sister, Mrs. Jennie Reese.

Canners Urge Pure Product

The Tri-State Packers' Association, of which Mr. C. M. Dashiell, of Princess Anne, is secretary, in session at Wilmington, Del., last Thursday, passed a resolution favoring laws compelling the canners in Delaware, New Jersey and Maryland comprising the association to pack only high-grade tomatoes and forbidding the use of juices from cores and skins.

A resolution criticizing the Bureau of Chemistry of the Government was voted down. The army and navy were requested to make public the quantity of canned goods now on hand so the packers may know where they stand.

The remainder of the session was taken up in discussing the new inspection system of the National Association and in urging growers to raise a better grade of product than they have in the past.

The emblem of the Marine Corps will hereafter be worn on the collar of the enlisted men of that organization. Hereafter the sea soldiers have worn the globe, anchor and eagle device only on their headgear. The collar emblem will be bronze for the khaki and winter field uniforms and brass for the blue uniform.

BROUGHT TO BOOK

By ALDEN CHAPMAN

(Copyright, 1929, Western Newspaper Union)

Blair had entered the room, old-fashioned city mansion bearing the name on its door plate "Alton Morse" with an ardent heart and high hopes. He sat now in its library confronted by its owner, whose grim, forbidding face chilled him, whose disclosures were disconcerting.

Two months previous while visiting his sister at a seminary, he had met Lucia Sterling. The acquaintanceship had blossomed into mutual friendly interest and, on his part at least, into genuine love. She had told him that she lived with Mr. Morse, that her parents were both dead and that the attorney, because her father had been a former client, had practically adopted her. Lucia had consented to his calling on her when she left school and she had told Mr. Morse of the expected visitor.

Blair had been ushered into the library of the house when he sent in his card, and, sister-faced, its occupant had received him coldly.

"I know who you are, and of your family," said Mr. Morse. "I also fancy I know the object of your call. It is Miss Sterling."

"Yes," replied Blair. "I hope she is well."

"She is far from that," replied the lawyer gravely. "Do not be alarmed, sir, it is mental, rather than physical ailment. Miss Sterling has received some disclosures relative to her past, or rather that of her parents, that have been considerable of a shock. She knows of your intention to call and has authorized me to see you in her stead."

"I do not understand," began Blair in a perplexed way.

"I can say only that, considering your high social standing and illustrious family name, it is better that your acquaintance with Miss Sterling should terminate utterly."

"You insinuate some mystery which, no matter what it may involve, could not in any way affect the regard I feel for Miss Sterling," spoke Blair staunchly. "Mr. Morse, I must insist on having a decision from her lips alone."

Alton Morse arose with a peculiar expression on his face. "I will convey your message to my ward," he said solemnly, "or rather my dead friend's daughter," and left the room. He returned shortly bearing a folded scrap of paper.

"Miss Sterling declines to see you," he reported. "This is her only and final word, and Blair bowed his head in despair as he read: 'Mr. Morse must speak for me. I thank you for all your courtesy and regard, but we must never meet again.'"

Without another word Blair left the house. Dusk had come down, but as he slowly passed the garden space he glanced back. One upper window at the side of the house showed a light.

Blair proceeded on his way, but so mystified by the strange incident that after he had turned the next corner he reversed and confronted the stranger.

He was a man over fifty, bearded and bronzed, and wore a great blazing diamond in his tie and another of unusual size on one finger. Two men crossed the street, evidently attracted by these signs of opulence. When within twenty feet of the corner they suddenly sprang upon him.

Blair hastened to the rescue. He drove one of the men prostrate with a vigorous blow. The other had a pistol aimed at the stranger. Blair struck up his hand, but himself felt a stinging contact in one arm. As the men dispersed the victim seized Blair by the hand with the words:

"You have saved my life, young man. Why! what is this blood! You are wounded!"

"Only a slight scratch," declared Blair negligently, but the other hailed a cab, solicitously attended his rescuer, and, arriving at his hotel at once sent for a surgeon.

The latter dressed a slight flesh wound, and the stranger secured a room for Blair connecting with his own. When Blair awoke in the morning he noticed his host with startled eyes gazing at some articles he had placed on a stand.

"What is this—where did you get it?" he inquired, holding up a photograph of Lucia Sterling.

A strange emotion was manifest in the man's face as Blair's story came out. His face hardened as he muttered the name of Alton Morse. "Come with me," he spoke. "If you feel able, there is something you have an interest in."

An hour later they faced Alton Morse, pale, cowering, in terror. Within the hour Blair knew that the stranger of the garden was Robert Sterling, the father of Lucia.

It seemed that three years before he had met from Australia a fortune teller, which Morse had appropriated. He did this when he was supposed to be dying. Morse had back the fortune and prevented Blair from encouraging Blair by making her believe that she was the daughter of a convicted assassin.

Blair was forced to make resignation. It was a double blessing that Robert Sterling bestowed upon the accused father of Lucia, for he owed to her his life as well as the happiness

Navy Blacksmith Shop.

The village blacksmith shop under the spreading chestnut tree is for rent. The smithy has gone to sea to learn some new tricks of the trade in the U. S. Navy schools.

Blacksmithing is now a highly specialized trade in iron working. Once a man masters it he is sure of a good living for life, either in or out of the service.

A real interest in one's work is as necessary in the Navy schools as in others, but Jack is paid to learn and is sure of his job as long as he wants it, providing he is in earnest.

CLASSED HIM AS BEGINNER

Retired Sea Captain Evidently Knew Little of "Impressionistic" School of Painting.

"I once engaged board and lodging at the house of a retired New England sea captain," says a New York artist, "and from him I received some sincere advice."

"One day, while I was busy painting, I became aware that the captain was standing behind me, gazing at the canvas over my shoulder."

"How do you like it?" I asked.

"Now, it chanced that the captain's house has been without an artist boarder for several years and that I was the first follower of the impressionist school it had ever harbored."

"The old sea dog gazed thoughtfully at the lower right-hand corner of the canvas where I had thrown a mass of parti-colored splashes and blotches."

"You're kinder young," said the captain, kindly. "This is your first summer outdoors at it?"

"Yes."

"Well, now, see here," resumed the captain. "There's two or three old palettes up in our shed-chamber. You get one of those and try out your paints. You'll have to lose that whole corner of your canvas, I'll bet you, and it'll make your picture considerably smaller. I wouldn't do that again if I was you."—Harper's Magazine.

Why I Love America.
Now ask me why I love America! Such homes as mine are to be found all the country over and they are what make it a great country. Every boy scout has these loved ones that he prizes above all others. For these we would gladly give our lives. For all boy scouts are brave and unselfish. Being unselfish we are not only interested in the happiness of our loved ones, but we are determined to see that every other family is just as happy as our own.—Lieut. Belvin W. Maynard in Boys' Life.

Keep Up Your Confidence.

The majority of failures begin to deteriorate by doubting or depreciating themselves or by losing confidence in their own ability. The moment you harbor doubt and begin to lose faith in yourself you capitulate to the enemy. Every time you acknowledge weakness, inefficiency or lack of ability you weaken your self-confidence, and that is to undermine the very foundation of all achievement.—Orison Swett Marden in Chicago Daily News.

BLAME ON PAPER

Atrocious Wall Coverings Cause of Bad Temper.

In Article on the Subject, English Journal Makes Serious Charges Against Designers Who Give Fancy the Reins.

"It isn't your liver which is wrong, it is your will power!" may possibly be the exclamation of the doctor in the near future. Instead of sending round to the chemist for salts and senna, the man who feels his nerves to be jangled, his digestion to be rotten and a taste in his mouth like sucked pennies, will call in the men with the ladders, the paste bucket and the slapdash brushes.

Many a man thinks he is bad tempered and takes himself seriously to task, as he reads his paper in the train, for having left behind him a family in tears, when really, he is perfectly innocent.

If he did break out and say things and slam doors and throw things about and ask who had been chopping firewood with his best fazor and call the breakfast bacon "putrid"—it probably was—it was not that he was "ratty," but that the wallpaper all over his house was enough to give a rhinoceros a thin skin, a writer in London Answers asserts.

In the days before wallpapers were invented the world bred quite a large and regular crop of saints. The reason no new saint ever appears on the horizon is due to wallpapers. Who could be a saint and live with the atrocious convolutions, evolutions and pyrotechnics of the modern wallpaper?

The thing is impossible. A wall covered with a fruit salad of cherries, with leaves to match, may be borne with for a day, or even a week, but when it comes to living with it a whole year, and often much more, it gets on the nerves and frays the edges of the nervous system.

Then there is the flower paper, a few degrees worse than the fruit salad contraption. A little red rose or two scattered broadcast on a nice, creamy background may be all right, but when it comes to what the Covent garden porter calls "A market bunch" repeated all over the wall 520 times it is calculated to send a Galapagos tortoise into hopping madness.

Then it is a funny thing how wallpaper designers love big flowers. They wouldn't be seen looking at a daisy or a primrose, but put a sunflower or a dahlia or a rhododendron or a prize chrysanthemum or some mixture of all these which makes a flower no one ever saw outside an opium dream and they go for it with avidity and reproduce it by the hundred gross!

Paperhangers would be well advised to change their method of advertising their craft. It is no use to put up a sign simply saying that you are a house decorator, "estimates free," and that sort of rot. Say, rather:

"N. O. Arnsnik, Professor of Rest Cure. Are you jumpy? Do you tremble when you see a job of work? Are you given to language? Do you assault the gas meter man and set the dog on the tax gatherer? What you want is a new wallpaper or two—something in low tones, restful and soothing."

"Giddap!"

The Stars and Stripes prophesies that long after the last of the American forces have left France echoes of Yankee vernacular will linger among the French peasantry, and to bear out its prophecy it tells the following story of a good woman at Vouvray, a suburb of Tours, who bought at a sale, conducted by our remount service, a horse with which on the whole she was well pleased. When, however, she had it only a short time a private from the Tours barracks came upon the worried old lady, circling horse and cart in a vain effort to get the beast to start.

"How goes it, madame?" he inquired. "Ah, monsieur, he is a bon cheval, but he understands not the French. How is it you say 'allez!' monsieur?" "Volla, madame," he replied, and took the reins and with a single "giddap!" urged the horse into action.

"Ah, merci, monsieur, merci!" exclaimed the amazed and delighted woman.

If ten years from now she remembers no more than "giddap!"—well, that's something.

Secretary Baker a "Bartender."

"I might have a chance to get a job after March 4, 1921," said Secretary of War Baker the other day, "if it had not been for the prohibition business."

"Once when I was mayor of Cleveland I had a hand in settling a labor row. When it was all over one of the men asked me if I carried a union card. I replied that I did not, but would be very glad to have the chance to do so. In the next day's mail I got a card entitling me to life membership in the bartenders' union."

"I carry the card to this day, but now I am afraid it will not do me much good."—New York Sun.

Unnecessary Work.

The other day when the second grade teacher announced the singing lesson she noticed that Russell was reading a story book.

"Put away your book, dear, while we are learning to sing," she said. "But I don't really need to learn how to sing," he calmly protested. "You see, we have a phonograph at our house."

AMERICANS ASKED TO STAY AT HOME

NIGHTS SHOULD KEEP OUT OF EUROPE UNTIL PEOPLE GET ON FEET AGAIN.

BAPTISTS ENLARGE WORK

Mission Secretary Will Recommend How Evangelistic, Educational and Benevolent Program Can Be Carried Out.

Americans should keep out of Europe, unless they have important business there, until Europeans have had an opportunity to get on their feet again, declares Dr. J. F. Love, secretary of the Foreign Mission Board of the Southern Baptist Convention. Dr. Love, as chairman of a commission named by the Baptist 75 Million Campaign to visit Europe and make a survey of the mission fields there, has just returned from a five-months' tour of the continent. He says Americans have distributed cash with such a lavish hand in many places on the continent that the people have become convinced that every American has money to throw away and as soon as they spot a citizen from this country they proceed to overcharge him for everything he buys and every service rendered. Unless Americans forego sight-seeing in Europe for a few years a lot of natives there will become professional beggars in Dr. Love's opinion.

Baptists Suffered Heavily. Along with the other religious denominations Baptists suffered heavy losses of property in Europe during the war, Dr. Love reports, but he found that such Baptists as survived the war remained loyal to their convictions and they are now ready to welcome the aid and co-operation of American Baptists in the rehabilitation of their countries and the propagation of the gospel. From the contact formed with the Baptists of the chief countries of Europe, by these representatives of the Southern Baptist Convention, Dr. Love believes there will ultimately be formed a cooperative alignment of the Baptists of the world that will make them larger factors in world evangelization than they have ever been before.

Carry on Relief Work. While the program which Southern Baptists will carry on in the European countries which they have not occupied before will not be determined until after the commission has reported to the Foreign Mission Board members of the commission found crying need for money with which to meet cases demanding immediate relief and cable home for funds to be employed in this connection in northern France and Belgium. This money was promptly forwarded and has been distributed through an agency set up in Paris in conjunction with the Foreign Missionary Society of the Northern Baptist Convention. Prior to the visit of this commission, missionary work by Southern Baptists in Europe has been confined to Italy and Bohemia. However, the commission visited England, Scotland, France, Belgium, Holland and Italy, but found it impossible to get into Czechoslovakia, the Balkans and Russia at this time.

Palestine and Egypt Visited. After the tour of Europe had been completed, the commission, which included Dr. Z. T. Cody, editor of the Baptist Courier, of Greenville, S. C., and Dr. Everett Gill, formerly missionary to Italy, but now a pastor in Kansas City, went to Palestine to look into the missionary work there, formerly done by the Baptists of Southern Illinois, but recently taken over by the Foreign Mission Board of the Southern Baptist Convention. A trip into Egypt for the purpose of studying the Mohammedan situation was made by the party while awaiting a ship on which to return to Italy. So far, Christianity has made very little inroad on Mohammedanism anywhere, Dr. Love found, though some of the missionary agencies in Palestine have been established for more than a half century. He anticipates a better chance for the Christian religion there, following British occupation of that country.

Establish Orphanage in Rome.

By reason of the liberal response from the native Christians in the various mission fields to the 75 Million Campaign, many improvements on those fields have been made possible. Among the enlargements already provided for are an orphanage in Rome, the addition of a girls' department at Rio College in Brazil, and land for a girls' school at Sao Paulo, Brazil. The Interior China Mission was asked for $7,500 for the campaign, and the missionaries there subscribed this amount, while the native converts added $4,500. The North China Mission has subscribed $50,000, while Brazil will respond with nearly $1,000,000. In South Brazil the campaign as it was carried on in the South, was duplicated with all the special days and other extraordinary efforts and the response is far beyond the anticipations of the Foreign Mission Board. In Argentina, the quota asked was $75,000, while the returns from that country have already reached $125,000.

Women Leaders of Nation, in Conference, Indorse Interchurch World Movement Aims

Efficiency Plank in New Religious Program for America and Her Missions Meets Enthusiastic Approval Throughout Three-day Convention at Washington.

The tremendous appeal made to the women of America by war-stricken children and by children in need the world over was illustrated recently at a conference of church women assembled at Washington.

That there would be much more attention to and adequate legislation concerning the problems of children has long been prophesied as a result of granting suffrage to women. The emphasis placed upon the needs of the little folks all over the world by these representative women, who came to Washington from every part of the United States, called together by the Interchurch World Movement, bore witness to the fact that American women are first of all maternal.

The power of women to mold public sentiment and, once started, to push through the matters closest to their consciences cannot be overestimated in these reconstruction days. In matters at home and overseas what the women of this country decide must be done will be done not by their efforts alone, but by the combined efforts of their fathers, husbands, brothers and sons.

Mrs. Wilson Presides. Answering the call to gather in Washington, arrangements for the conference having been made by a committee of which Mrs. Woodrow Wilson is chairman, the women assembled represented all the Protestant churches now co-operating in the Interchurch Movement. Among the notable members in the sessions were Mrs. Robert Lansing, Mrs. Josephus Daniels, Mrs. David Houston, Mrs. Franklin K. Lane, Mrs. A. S. Burleson, Mrs. A. Mitchell Palmer, Mrs. Grouitch of Serbia, Mrs. Pauaretoff of Bulgaria and Mrs. Marc Peter of Switzerland. In all there were 302 delegates present, representing twenty-one denominations.

1. Mrs. Woodrow Wilson. 2. Mrs. Grouitch. 3. Mrs. Josephus Daniels. 4. Mrs. Robert Lansing.

Throughout the sessions of the conference, which extended over three days, the enthusiastic approval of the aims of the Interchurch organization was continually evident. The fact that by co-ordination much more efficiency in working methods for all churches could be obtained made a very definite appeal. Putting churches on a more businesslike basis might be thought an odd platform upon which to unite women of the various denominations, but the day is gone when business methods and efficiency have no charm for the feminine sex. Due to the efficiency plank in the Interchurch platform, first of all, the organization was indorsed and recommended to the church women of America.

Big Budget for Babies.

A big budget for babies was the first recommendation to the women of the mission boards of the churches. This applied especially to the children in the war-stricken countries, but as well to children in need all over the globe. Women were also asked to support the Industrial Department of the Interchurch World Movement and the program of organized motherhood for the children of the world. Church women in the various cities of the country were urged to assist in obtaining co-operation with industrial, civic and legislative child welfare. They were called upon to remember that the constant attention of every woman citizen is imperative for the protection of children.

The appeal of the children of our own land and those millions of others throughout the world left orphaned because of war, pestilence or famine, comes with double force to the followers of Him who said, "Inasmuch as ye have done it unto the least of these ye have done it unto Me." And the women of America, in indorsing the program of the Interchurch organization, have put their mother hearts behind the movement and added the power of their intelligent co-operation.

MINISTERS NEED FREE HOSPITALS

Survey by Interchurch World Movement Reveals Pulpit's Poverty.

Clinics and Homes for Aged and Infirm and Better Salaries for Pastors Are Part of New Co-operation Program.

As a result of the campaign now being made by the Interchurch World Movement the combined Protestant churches of America will provide many more hospitals, clinics and homes for the aged and infirm. An interesting feature of these Protestant hospitals will be free treatment for ministers, as recent surveys made by the Interchurch organization have made the need for special dispensations very obvious.

The following startling facts were divulged as to the average salaries in the various denominations. Starting with the highest, the average for Episcopal ministers is $1,242; the average for Presbyterian (North), $1,177; for the United Presbyterians, $1,099; for the Reformed Church (Dutch), $1,170; for the Methodist Episcopal (North), $1,176; Congregational, $1,042, and for the Baptists (Northern), $950.

With government experts announcing that $1,500 is the lowest salary upon which a family can be decently maintained and suggesting budgets for none lower, ministers have a discouraging outlook. Such things as hospital bills are almost impossible to meet, and yet every normal family has some illness in its midst every year. Accordingly the Interchurch Movement, while on its way to obtain higher averages in salaries, will assist by providing free care in its institutions.

MILLION DELEGATES TO ATTEND 2,000 MEETINGS TO DISCUSS INTERCHURCH PLANS

Bulk of Counties in the United States Will Have Conferences to Solve Problems of Unchurched Areas, Wasteful Duplications and Underpaid Preachers.

A method of holding meetings of Protestant church representatives in about 2,000 county seats in the United States, involving a total attendance of anywhere from a million to a million and a half delegates, has been evolved by the Interchurch World Movement of North America, according to an announcement just made at Interchurch headquarters, at 45 West Eighteenth street, New York City.

The original plan to hold all of these two thousand and odd meetings simultaneously throughout the country was abandoned as impractical. But they will take place as nearly simultaneously as possible, all but a very few being scheduled to be held between April 5 and 17.

The meeting place will in most cases be the county seat, and the attendance will be composed of the membership of the Protestant churches of the county.

The conferences will last one day only. During that day will be presented the whole program of the Interchurch World Movement for promoting co-operation in missionary and general church activities among the Protestant churches. Time will also be given to discussion of the local problems in each county as revealed by the Interchurch Movement's survey of religious conditions throughout the United States.

No Sidestepping of Problems. It will be, it is said, a very exceptional county that does not hear some more or less unpalatable truths concerning unchurched areas, or wasteful competition, or underpaid and absentee preachers. Not many counties, it is stated, are able to show an average ministerial salary higher than the average for the whole United States, which is $937, while barely one-third of the entire Protestant population of the United States, according to estimates made by the Interchurch survey, has an opportunity for regular church attendance.

Besides a full consideration of local problems, the program at the county conferences will present the outstanding results of the world-wide survey of religious, social and economic conditions made by the Interchurch Movement, the material for which has been gathered from every corner of the earth. Special emphasis will also be laid on the place of prayer in Christian life, the importance of assisting young people in the right choice of their life work and the duty of laying aside a definite proportion of income for religious purposes. Lantern slides will be freely used to illustrate the various addresses.

The conferences will be managed by local committees, and the various topics under discussion will be handled by teams of from five to eight men and women, recognized as church leaders in the county or state. Each team will be responsible for conducting the conferences in eight counties.

Big Educational Campaign Prepared.

This series of conferences represents only an intermediate stage in a great campaign of intensive education in practical Christianity preparatory to the united appeal for missionary funds and workers which will be held by the Protestant denominations co-operating in the Interchurch Movement between April 25 and May 2. The teams that will address the county conferences were themselves trained as a "faculty" of specialists in the various aspects of the Movement at a series of state and pastors' conferences. Similarly, those who attend the county conferences will in turn form a "faculty" for interpreting the message of the Interchurch Movement to their local churches.

Thus it is expected that before April 20 the ideal of church co-operation advocated by the Interchurch World Movement, in place of church competition, and the program of evangelization that goes with it, will be familiar to every one of the fifty million Protestants in the United States.

TUESDAY MORNING, MAR. 16, 1920

It is not true that a lot of people are making an effort as they are trying hard to see which will do the least work.

These six hour day people who demand more leisure do not give any indication that they are overworking their brain.

Prominent among the causes of marital "incompatibility," is the failure of wife's cookery to agree with Hubby's stomach.

During house-cleaning time the men may have to eat in the cellar, and some of them will be more reconciled to it than formerly.

Mr. Hoover persists that he is not a candidate for President, but he has not yet refused to answer the doorbell when the politicians call.

Business women are planning a combined move for sensible dress. It won't succeed because it won't help the style makers sell any more clothes.

Some people think they can put their wages up to double what the farmer gets, and that then people are going to work farming and feed them.

The profiteers have a jolly good laugh when the Government tells them to reduce prices, but the cold shivers run down their backs when they read that some factory is increasing production.

A lot of people who are buying worthless oil stocks should reflect that when they throw their money into the ocean they at least have the satisfaction of knowing that no greasy promoter gets it.

These building trades workers who are demanding $10 and $12 a day will be whining around in a few years because the American people have learned how to put up houses cheaply by quantity production.

Some one wants to know what has become of the young crowd that used to have such jolly times going on ham sandwiches and picnics? O, well, they are old fogies now, and their children are hiring the swiftest orchestra within 100 miles for their next dinner dance.

ST. PATRICK'S DAY
Many people whose ancestors' feet never touched the "owid sod," yet wear the green ribbon on St. Patrick's Day. This tribute may be due in part to the genial characteristics attributed to this winsome old saint. Perhaps even more it is a tribute of friendship for the Irish people who form so large an element in American life.

The Irish race began coming here in large numbers some 60 to 75 years ago. The first pioneers were struggling young people, with no possessions but strong hearts and willingness to work. From that simple beginning they have gone on to take a very prominent place in politics and professional and business life. It has been a remarkable story of achievement. Wearing the green on St. Patrick's Day is a fitting compliment to the people who have accomplished such an advance in a period relatively so brief.

CHILDREN'S GARDENS
Children working on home gardening in connection with school work, produced last year $48,000,000 worth of vegetables. That was a splendid showing. Few people would have considered it possible before the war. During those two years of fighting the community learned that there are great assets of power unused in this country. The enthusiasm and energy of children are one of these assets.

In the majority of towns and cities there was no very comprehensive movement for children's gardens. In some places no such effort was made. In many others school authorities simply invited the children to raise vegetables and made no particular attempt to enlist those who did not respond.

A determined effort to get companies of children enlisted in every school district for garden raising ought to multiply the total raised above several times. In large cities, of course, many children have no access to productive soils. Still city back yards often yield astonishing results.

When you persuade children to run a garden of their own you accomplish several results. You make a very substantial addition to the food supply. You divert the kid element from mischief. You give them beautiful outdoor occupation. You give them a sense of responsibility and respect for property. You get them in the habit of industry and attending to regular tasks.

These results mean much in character development. Children's gardens should be considered one of the most important features of their school work. The Maryland and Herald would like to see every child in Princess Anne try a garden this season.

INDUSTRIAL IMITATION
It is claimed that a chain of manufacturers and dealers have been working for years to produce an imitation of a certain spark plug and that quantities of inferior goods of this kind have been turned out.

Whether or not this claim is sustained the market for all kinds of goods is full of imitations, some of which are worthless and others unreliable. The public has to be constantly on its guard.

Several protections against disappointing purchases can be suggested: First—Buy advertised goods. People do not spend money on publicly unless they know the stuff is O. K. Second—Buy of your home merchants. They know the game and will protect you. It is also helpful to buy goods on which the maker's name is stamped, as that helps identify standard products.

UNPRODUCTIVE EXPENDITURES
Many people say that extravagant expenditure does not hurt the community since it keeps money in circulation. Suppose a woman does spend $300 on a dress, they say. She has to buy $300 worth of labor and materials with it, and that keeps working people busy.

Yes, but it does nothing to build up the country or keep up its productive resources. If that woman would content herself with spending $50 on her dress and save the $250 the money would help develop the country. It might be used to build water power plants, to buy machinery for some factory, or help some farmer buy tools. However spent, it would buy just as much labor as if it was blown in on the costly dress.

And while hiring and keeping busy just as much labor, it would make a permanent increase in production. If spent in developing a water power plant, it enables some factory for all time to turn out necessities of life for less money.

If spent to help some farmer buy equipment it helps him produce more food.

So one could go through a hundred ways in which saved money is used for development purposes. It could be shown how every one of these permanent improvements employs just as much labor as wasteful spending, and at the same time makes labor permanently more productive and adds to the resources of the country.

It is not merely that the country needs development, but that the old equipment is constantly wearing out and needs renewal. The railroads need an enormous sum expended to keep their properties up. Every industrial undertaking requires new capital constantly to keep itself up. When money is spent in a wasteful way the country's equipment runs down, production becomes more costly, and living costs more for everyone.

"A woman's tears relieve her, and, if applied just right, often relieve her husband's pocketbook."

No Change in Time of Toggling
That no change will be made in the season for taking of oysters by means of tongs, and offering them for sale, as contemplated in a bill introduced in the Legislature some time ago, was the decision practically reached last Tuesday afternoon following a hearing on oyster legislation before the Committee on Chesapeake Bay and Tributaries of the Senate. Besides the committeemen, members of the State Conservation Commission who have to do with the administration of the oyster laws, were present at the hearing, as were also a large delegation of oystermen from the tidewater counties.

Mrs. Cooley says she cannot speak too highly in praise of this remedy.

Why Colds Are Dangerous
It is the serious diseases that colds lead to that makes them dangerous. They prepare the system for the reception and development of the germs of influenza, pneumonia, tuberculosis, diphtheria, scarlet fever, whooping cough and measles. You are much more likely to contract these diseases when you have a cold. For that reason you should get rid of every cold as quickly as possible. Chamberlain's Cough Remedy will help you. Resolutions On The Death Of Dr. H. G. Alexander Resolutions in regard to the death of Dr. H. G. Alexander adopted by the Board of Education last Saturday, March 9th:
The recent death of Dr. H. G. Alexander has deprived the Board of Education of Somerset county of one of its most valued members. The Board desires to put upon record its expression of profound regret.
Dr. Alexander, although connected with the Board of Education but a few months, exhibited a strength of character possessed by few. He was not hasty in arriving at decisions upon important matters and far from slow in voicing his conclusions. His interest in the public schools and his desire to assist in their improvement deserve grateful recollection. His association with the other Board members was always of an agreeable character and exhibited a gentlemanly dignity and the highest regard for his co-workers.
The Board of Education desires also to place upon record its deep sympathy for Dr. Alexander's family, to whom a copy of this record is ordered to be sent; also, to be published in the county newspapers.

Start Cheaper Meat Week
The Department of Justice announced last Friday the dates of "Save Money on Meat" week in the various States. During these weeks an effort will be made to reduce materially the prices of the cuts of beef, pork and lamb now in heavy demand by showing consumers the advantage of turning to those which are equally nutritious but which cost much less. The first "Save Money on Meat" week will be held from March 22nd to March 27th. The second will be the week beginning March 29th, the third the week beginning April 5th, which will be observed in the State of Maryland—and the fourth the week beginning April 12th.

ONE MAY BE FATAL

Time-Minute Deliveries Can No Longer Be Made

Dealers and Manufacturers Should Have Advanced Information as to Farming Needs—Transportation Is Uncertain.

Farmers probably will not be able to secure time to meet their agricultural needs if they wait about ordering it until they are ready to apply it. Under old conditions, companies supplying agricultural lime recognized spring and late summer as the two periods of demand, and farmers have customarily ordered their lime at the time they wished to apply it, in order to save time and work by including hauling from the railroad station and applying to the land in one operation. Under present conditions, lime manufacturers are no longer able to adjust their business to this practice. Owing to shortage of labor in their own plants and transportation difficulties, fast-minute deliveries can no longer be made with certainty.

For these reasons the department of agriculture urges that spring needs be anticipated and that orders for lime be placed at once. Dealers and manufacturers should have advance information as to farmers' needs so that orders can be combined and car space used to the best advantage. Delay in placing may result in failure to obtain the lime until too late.

It is, moreover, the desire of the railroad administration that the season for delivery of lime, which has heretofore been from March to May, be extended to include the period from January to May, in order to relieve, as far as possible, the existing car shortage.

GATE IS MADE STOCK PROOF

Posts Placed 1 1/2 Feet Apart Enable Pedestrians to Pass Through—Cattle Kept Out.

A short-cut path across a field to an electric car line was blocked by the owner, who fenced it with wire and turned cattle in to graze. Since the path saved a great many steps, he received many protests. The owner gave permission to the pedestrians to put in a gate at each end of the path that would permit them to pass, but prevent the escape of cattle. This was done in the manner illustrated.

An opening was cut in the fence, 1 1/2 feet wide, a post placed on each side, and a third post midway between them, about 1 1/2 feet from the fence line. The arrangement proved to be quite satisfactory.—Werner W. Baumbach, Walla Walla, Washington, in Popular Mechanics Magazine.

TUBERCULOSIS OF CHICKENS

Science Has Demonstrated That Disease May Be Transmitted by Swine to Poultry.

Dr. G. F. Fitch, chief of the division of veterinary medicine at the Minnesota college of agriculture, states that science has shown that tuberculosis may be transmitted by swine to poultry and vice versa.

"Tuberculosis in poultry is a common disease," he says, "and it causes heavy losses. Fowls affected with it become lame, their combs lose their luster, and their flesh falls away. There is a generally rundown condition. Tuberculosis can be controlled by the removal of infected birds and by a thorough cleaning up of their quarters. The disease cannot as a rule be transmitted through the eggs. Its introduction can be traced usually to infected fowls."

POTATOES NEED PLANT FOOD

Most Successful Growers Generally Make Application of Manure to Heavy Soil.

To grow potatoes successfully an abundance of plant food is required. Experiments at the Ohio experiment station show that from 10 to 16 tons of manure and from 300 to 500 pounds of acid phosphate per acre may be used with profit in fertilizing potatoes.

The application of fresh manure to the soil just before plowing is associated with the development of scab on potatoes, so that early winter application of manure is regarded as essential. The most successful potato growers generally apply manure to a field, heavy soil, preferably clay, in the autumn and in the spring.

Japan Taking Western Sports

Japan is offering somewhat of a market for American sporting goods at the present. Since the end of the war there has been an increased interest in sports, and it may be said of Japan that western games played there are essentially scholastic in nature, baseball being the most popular, with tennis second. The latter-named sport has now found favor outside of student circles, and tennis courts are scattered here and there throughout the larger cities.

Got It Easily.

With coupons mother secured a silver pitcher. One day a friend was admiring the pitcher, when little daughter said: "Mamma didn't have to pay money for that; she just paid cards."

THOUSANDS PROCLAIM THE MERITS OF PE-RU-NA

Read Their Letters

Mrs. Martha C. Dale, R. F. D. 1, Cannon, Del., writes: "I am entirely cured of chronic catarrh of the stomach and bowels by PE-RU-NA."

Mr. J. Bayer, Glendale, Oregon: "There is no medicine like PE-RU-NA for catarrhal deafness."

Mrs. Kate Marquis, Middleburg, Ohio: "PE-RU-NA cured me of catarrh of the head and throat."

Mr. J. H. Collins, Wesson, Mississippi: "PE-RU-NA makes me feel vigorous and able to work without that tired, weak feeling I usually have otherwise."

Mrs. P. Ludvigsen, Austin, Minnesota: "I got rid of my liver trouble and can eat anything since taking PE-RU-NA."

Mrs. L. Hearing, 283 East 169th St., New York City: "For catarrh of the head and stomach, I have found PE-RU-NA better than any other medicine."

Mr. W. H. Edgar, 49 Cooper St., Atlanta, Georgia: "PE-RU-NA cured me after I had suffered fifteen years with rheumatism."

Mrs. Leona Dodd, R. No. 3, Madon, Tennessee: "PE-RU-NA is a grand medicine for coughs and colds."

So many diseases are due to catarrh and catarrhal conditions, makes PE-RU-NA the best medicine in the world to have on hand for emergencies and general health protection. Thousands of families are never without a bottle of PE-RU-NA or a box of PE-RU-NA Tablets in the medicine cabinet. That is the safe way. You can buy PE-RU-NA anywhere in tablet or liquid form.

The World's Largest Production of Tires on the Smaller Cars Alone

We call attention not so much to the size of this average daily production as to the extent of the effort we put into the making of these 30x3-, 30x3 1/2-, and 31x4-inch sizes.

The separate factory we have devoted to their manufacture is not only the largest of its kind in the world, but it makes fully effective that experience and resourcefulness which have produced the tires most popular on the higher-priced cars.

No tires bearing the Goodyear name contain a higher relative value than these tires for Ford, Chevrolet, Dort, Maxwell and other cars requiring the sizes mentioned.

If you own one of these cars, go to the nearest Goodyear Service Station Dealer for these tires and for Goodyear Heavy Tourist Tubes. He has them.

30x3 1/2 Goodyear Double-Cure Fabric, All-Weather Tread $23.50

30x3 1/2 Goodyear Single-Cure Fabric, Anti-Skid Tread $21.50

Goodyear Heavy Tourist Tubes are thick, strong tubes that reinforce casings properly. Why risk a good casing with a cheap tube? Goodyear Heavy Tourist Tubes cost little more than tubes of less merit. 30 x 3 1/2 size in water—$4.50 proof bag.

BAPTISTS LAUNCH BIGGER PROGRAM

$100,000,000 IN SUBSCRIPTIONS AND $20,000,000 IN CASH BY MAY 1 IS NEW AIM SET.

WILL SEEK SOULS, ALSO

Evangelistic Campaign Calculated To Reach Thousands of Unsaved Persons Is Announced For March and April of This Year.

Now that the subscriptions to the Baptist 75 Million Campaign have passed the $90,000,000 mark, leaders in all the states composing the territory of the Southern Baptist Convention have resolved to place this sum at $100,000,000 by the meeting of the Convention at Washington early in May. It is also planned to bring the total of cash offerings by that time to $20,000,000. The convention at Washington will be the seventy-fifth session of that body and it is deemed appropriate to celebrate the diamond jubilee of the organization with an enlarged subscription and cash sum with which to carry forward the missionary, educational and benevolent work fostered by the convention in all parts of the world.

DR. GEORGE W. TRUETT
Chairman of the Baptist Campaign Commission.

This additional sum will be sought from churches which did not have a part in the original campaign, from members of churches who did not subscribe then and from other persons who made subscriptions in the fall but who feel disposed to increase their subscriptions now. This effort for increased funds will be made during the last week in April so that everything can be completed before the convention meets in Washington May 12.

Returns By the States.
The reports on the original drive for funds in the 75 Million Campaign to date, as made by the several states, follow: Alabama, $4,100,000; Arkansas, $2,265,000; District of Columbia, $250,000; Florida, $1,370,892; Georgia, $10,100,000; Southern Illinois, $830,704; Kentucky, $7,167,713; Louisiana, $2,875,000; Maryland, $907,760; Mississippi, $4,144,902; Missouri, $2,062,506; New Mexico, $732,260; North Carolina, $7,250,000; Oklahoma, $3,200,000; South Carolina, $7,554,772; Tennessee, $5,010,000; Texas, $16,560,000; Virginia, $8,298,488. Returns from the foreign mission fields and other sources not included in the above bring the total subscriptions beyond $90,000,000.

This vast sum of money was raised at a total expense of three-quarters of one per cent, making this probably the most economically conducted campaign in the history of the country.

Plan Evangelistic Campaign.
Prior to this effort for additional subscriptions and cash, however, a South-wide campaign of evangelism, stewardship and emphasis upon the fundamental doctrines of religion is planned for the month of March and the first three weeks in April, when the churches will employ their organized forces in seeking to win to Christ many thousands of the 20,000,000 people within the territory of the Southern Baptist Convention who are not affiliated with any church. A day of prayer in behalf of the success of every item on the Baptist program for the spring and summer of 1920 has been set apart. Many of the states have already got their evangelistic campaigns well under way.

In the hope of arousing as large interest as possible, city-wide, county-wide and associational campaigns of soul-winning have been planned in many places. In other places, especially the rural districts, where the summer months are considered more desirable for evangelistic work, the special program will be deferred until July and August. This will make it possible for city pastors to aid the rural pastors and thus double the evangelistic force of the denomination.

The program of evangelism, stewardship and emphasis upon the fundamental doctrines of religion is calculated to conserve the victory achieved in the campaign for funds. Dr. George W. Truett, pastor of the First Baptist Church at Dallas, Tex., is chairman of the campaign commission, while Dr. L. R. Scarborough continues in the capacity of general director.

OLD ENGLISH "PUBS"

History of Entertainment This Week
More Popular in the Cities
Late for the Country.

In the prohibition era, when the law was on the side of the salaried man, and when all the pubs in town and country were long histories will reach a golden age, a writer in London, England, in a book called "The Pub in England," says that the pub is the most important institution in the country. It is the only place where the law is on the side of the salaried man. It is the only place where the law is on the side of the salaried man. It is the only place where the law is on the side of the salaried man.

Still, there is the Fighting Cocks, at St. Albans, which can accurately point back to 1220. Prior to that, it was the Black Lion Inn. It is octagonal in shape, and its ceiling is not six feet high. Although a notable old inn.

Nobody ought to go to Gloucester without seeing the Cathedral first and the New Inn second. The New Inn is one of the oldest inns in the country, and one of the most picturesque and best preserved.

The Crown at Manchester is another old place, and so is the Rose and Crown at Balmbridge, in Wensleydale. Probably this was the first Rose and Crown, which refers to the Tudor Rose, and it has been very extensively altered, for in the neighborhood of London alone, there must be a dozen of that name.

BOBBY'S MEMORY ALSO GOOD

In the Matter of Quoting Proverbs Small Boy May Be Said to Have Based on Uncle

Old Uncle Arthur was visiting his niece in the city. And he was much given to the repeating of proverbs, especially to small Bobby on his coming and going. Now Uncle Arthur himself was not free of vices and Bobby certainly hoped that some day something would give a chance to report at his great uncle. Finally his chance came.

The family was at the dinner table when Bobby arrived home from school. Being very hungry he rushed straight to the table. The first thing Uncle Arthur did was to give him a long, searching look, which showed him the dirty little hands Bobby had neglected to wash. "Bobby," he began impressively, "I see you've forgotten that old proverb which says: 'Cleanliness is next to godliness!'"

The family looked embarrassed. But not Uncle Arthur. He felt that he had done his duty and he majestically lifted his cup of coffee and took a long, loud gulp of that beverage. That gulp brought Bobby his chance. "Yes, I had forgotten that one, Uncle Arthur," he said sweetly, "but I remembered the one that said 'Drink slowly and distinctly!'"

Even Uncle Arthur was too much surprised to tell Bob that he had made a slight mistake in the quotation. But they all did think it mighty fitting.

Need for Figures

A favorite Madison square argument from the asphorix is to hold up a hat and yell:

"I paid $3 for this hat; the man who made it got 24 cents. The employer got $2.76. What are you going to do about it?"

Now, the manufacturer of that hat knows that he rarely gets half as much as the worker got; he also knows that the speaker neglects the cost of the raw material, the cost of preparing the material, the cost of transportation, and the cost of selling—all of which involve labor; that also he, and every one who handles either the material or the finished hat, have to pay rent and taxes. But instead of pointing in figures, that employer is more than likely to suggest that more Americanization is needed and would like to have some one play the "Star-Spangled Banner!" —Samuel Crowther, in World's Work.

Jerusalem's Water Supply

"Practically every house in Jerusalem has its own rainwater cistern, and it has been estimated that if all these cisterns were full they would contain 500,000,000 gallons." Captain Carson of the British army of occupation reports. "Before a cistern is now filled with pure water the owner must obtain a certificate from the newly organized health department that his cistern has been rendered sanitary and mosquito-proof. He is then given enough water to fill his cistern, through a temporary pipe line. The organized effort to supply pure water to the 50,000 residents of Jerusalem has enabled them to have ten times more water than formerly."

Not What He Meant

A small choir were practicing the well-known anthem, "As the hart panteth after the water brook."

The rendering of the open stages was apparently not quite to the satisfaction of the gentleman who wielded the baton.

He considered it necessary, therefore, to render some advice to the choir, and caused great consternation and not a little embarrassment among the little flock by the following announcement:

"Now, your attention is much needed, but the time is very short, really, your parts are far too long."

Let's Get Acquainted

"Get better acquainted with your neighbor—you might like him!" That's a pretty good motto for a community like ours, isn't it? Town folks should get better acquainted with country folks; the merchants and the bankers should get to know the farmers—and how they are farming. Speaking for this bank, we'd like to get acquainted personally with every farmer hereabouts—he might like us enough to deposit money with us; we might like him enough to lend him some. Anyway, we could swap ideas—and perhaps add his name to the rapidly growing list of subscribers for

The COUNTRY GENTLEMAN

Sometimes banks get acquainted with farmers by giving good advice, or urging good roads, or organizing calf clubs among the boys. That last was the way of one whose story is told in THE COUNTRY GENTLEMAN dated March 6. And we'd like to get acquainted with you through this Great National Farm Weekly itself. We know that THE COUNTRY GENTLEMAN helps farmers all over the United States to make more and more money. It would please us to see you making more money too, so we stand ready to send in your subscription if you just say the word. ## TELEPHONE RATES GOVERNED BY COST OF PRODUCING SERVICE

IT IS AN UNCHANGEABLE law of trade that the price at which any service can be continuously sold is governed by the cost at which it can be continuously produced.

THERE IS NOTHING IN THE TELEPHONE BUSINESS THAT EXCEPTS IT FROM THIS LAW.

IT IS GENERAL KNOWLEDGE that this company has been subjected for the last several years to constantly rising costs. Particularly from the date this country entered the war our company, like practically every other public utility, has been struggling under this steadily increasing burden.

THE MATERIALS WE NEED have been scarce and expensive; the cost of labor has been going up; and in the face of such conditions the demands for service have racked the point where our resources and facilities are strained to the utmost.

WE CANNOT DO AS a private industry might—arbitrarily raise prices or suspend operations until conditions become more nearly normal. We must stand ready at all times to serve the public, to make needed extensions to our plant and equipment and to meet the demands for more and more service.

WE WELCOME THESE obligations, but we have now reached a point where it has become our duty to ask the Public Service Commission for such rates as will enable us to continue doing business and to provide sufficient revenue for the operations of the future.

HESSIAN FLY THREATENS WINTER WHEAT

The HESSIAN FLY

Flow under deeply all infested wheat stubble during summer or early fall where this is practicable and does not interfere with the growing of clover or important forage grasses.

If volunteer wheat starts kill it by disking or plowing while it is still young.

Postpone sowing winter wheat until the June 15 date—so that none of the plants will appear above ground until after the flies have died. Sowing on this date usually insures largest yields in seasons of normal rainfall. Consult your county agent or State Agricultural College regarding the safe sowing dates for your region.

Serious injury to the winter wheat crop of 1920 by the Hessian fly seems extremely probable. Reports received by the United States department of agriculture entomological experts in the Mississippi basin winter wheat region indicate a rapid increase of the Hessian fly in that important wheat-growing district. These reports show that considerable young wheat already has been killed by the Hessian fly, and that serious losses to the crop of 1920 are almost certain.

Unless winter wheat growers east of the Rocky mountains can be induced to unite in a concerted movement to observe the approved methods of combating the Hessian fly during the summer and fall of 1920, it seems that a disastrous general outbreak of the pest very probably will occur in 1921.

A shortage of farm labor and unfavorable weather conditions at planting time have combined to influence many wheat growers in planting their grain too early in the season. This has resulted in a heavy infestation of Hessian fly in practically all of this early planted wheat.

Damage Feared in East

A dangerously heavy infestation of Hessian fly also exists in the Piedmont plain wheat regions lying east of the Appalachian mountains and embracing Maryland, Virginia and eastern Pennsylvania. Complaints of serious Hessian fly damage in that region have already begun to be heard, and there is at present every indication that early-sown wheat in these states will be considerably if not seriously reduced in yield this year.

There is no remedy for the Hessian fly when once it takes possession of a crop of wheat. Grain that is so heavily infested as to afford little promise of a profitable yield should be deeply plowed down and lightly harrowed as early in the spring as is practicable. This should be done by March 1, if possible, so as to bury the stubble and prevent a large part of the flies from hatching and reinfesting other fields of growing wheat or barley. The land may then be planted to oats, corn or other immune, quick-growing crops, so as to avoid a complete loss of profit from the land during the current year.

How to Fight the Fly

The methods for combating the Hessian fly are, in brief, as follows:

1. Practice crop rotation. Do not sow wheat on stubble if it is possible to avoid doing so.
  2. Plow under all infested stubble, where possible, soon after harvest.
  3. Destroy all volunteer wheat by harrowing, disking, plowing or some other method.
  4. Plow all land to be sown to wheat as early and deeply as existing conditions permit, and prepare a thoroughly pulverized and compacted seedbed.
  5. Conserve moisture against a period of drought at seeding time.
  6. Use good seed.
  7. Fertilize.
  8. Sow wheat during the fly-free period as advised by your farm advisor or state experiment station.
- Adhere to these practices every year whether the fly is abundant or scarce. They will help to keep it scarce. Community co-operation is essential if success is to be attained, because one infested field may furnish enough flies to damage the wheat for several miles around.

LEARN OF WHEAT VARIETIES

Result of Comprehensive Survey Made by United States Department of Agriculture.

For the first time in the history of wheat growing in America it will soon be possible to map the distribution of wheat varieties and to learn the large number of names under which the same varieties are known in different parts of the country. This result has been made possible by a comprehensive survey of varieties made by the United States department of agriculture, through the bureau of plant industry and the bureau of crop estimates working in co-operation. Schedules were sent to about 65,000 crop reporters to determine the distribution of wheat varieties, the source from which they came, the date of their introduction into the community, the percentage which each represents of the total wheat acreage in the community. The returned schedules have been studied and about a thousand letters of inquiry have been sent asking for additional information and samples.

KEEPS ONLY PUREBRED SIRES

Veteran of New London County, Connecticut, Used Registered Sires 39 Years.

"I have kept registered sires for 39 years," writes Lloyd P. Ayer of New London county, Conn., in applying to the United States department of agriculture for enrollment in the "Better Sires—Better Stock" campaign. Mr. Ayer is a breeder of Holstein cattle, Percheron horses, Berkshire swine and poultry.

This record of using purebred sires since 1880—more than one-third of a century—was especially noteworthy since the emblem of official recognition granted him was the first to be issued in the new year.

IDENTIFY VARIETIES OF SWEET POTATOES

Department of Agriculture Is Working Out a Key.

It Is Based on Color, Size and Shape of Stems and Leaves and in Quality of Tubers Themselves—Results Promising.

The United States department of agriculture is working out a key by means of which varieties of sweet potatoes can be identified. There has always been a great deal of confusion regarding sweet potato varieties, and this key will make it possible to positively identify all true varieties. It is based on the color, size and shape of the stems and leaves, and on the color, size and quality of the potatoes themselves. That the key works is attested by the fact that by its use varieties described at the time Columbus discovered America have been identified.

The development of varieties of sweet potatoes for stock feed, sirup, starch and sugar making is under way, and the preliminary results secured indicate that the possibilities of the sweet potato have hardly been touched upon. It is yet too soon to say just what may be expected from this work, but the results thus far secured are very promising. This work is being done at Arlington Farm, Va., and at the Pee Dee experiment station, Florence, S. C.

Investigational work in curing sweet potatoes has also brought out important results. It was shown that with proper handling in storage conditions sweet potatoes can be carried through the winter and as late as April 1 with not more than 1 per cent of loss from decay.

Smash Take $25,000 in Gems
A daylight robbery of unusual daring occurred last Tuesday when automobile bandits drove up to the jewelry store of the James R. Armiger Company, 310 North Charles street, Baltimore, calmly proceeded to smash the large front plate-glass window and carried off two trays of diamond rings valued at approximately $25,000. It was the boldest burglary in the history of the city, as hundreds of pedestrians were in the neighborhood at the time.

Charles E. Willard, of Govans, who attempted to stop them in their flight after the robbery, was shot in the foot and was taken to Mercy Hospital.

When the large Cadillac machine stopped in front of the jewelry establishment one of the men alighted, and armed with a hatchet, which was wrapped in a Philadelphia publication, walked toward the store. In a flash he smashed the plate-glass window and reached for a tray of diamond rings. A second man armed with two revolvers followed closely and stood in the doorway of the store. Another man and a woman remained in the front seats of the machine with their heads bent low and the engine was kept running so that the robbers could make a quick getaway. Louis P. Maas, president of the concern, said that it all happened so quickly that the machine had sped off before anyone in the store had realized what had taken place.

Something new is an experiment. Must be proved to be as represented. The statement of a manufacturer is not convincing proof of merit. But the endorsement of friends is. Now suppose you had a bad back, a lame, weak, or aching one. Would you experiment on it? You will read of many so-called cures. Endorsed by strangers from far-away places. It's different when the endorsement comes from home. Easy to prove local testimony. Read this Princess Anne case: Ernest M. Hayman, 402 Main street, says: "Some years ago I was in a bad way with disordered kidneys. Backache caused me considerable annoyance. When I passed the kidney secretions, they burned and scalded and were highly colored. I was obliged to pass the kidney secretions several times during the night and I was very miserable. Doan's Kidney Pills were recommended by Mr. Smith, the druggist. After using one box, I was cured of the trouble. Since then I have said a good word for Doan's Kidney Pills whenever I have had a chance."

Price 60c. at all dealers. Don't simply ask for a kidney remedy—get Doan's Kidney Pills, the same that Mr. Hayman had. Foster-Milburn, Co., Mfgs., Buffalo, N. Y.

The Department of Justice Ought to Be Pretty Good Authority

Back in January the Department of Justice took steps to find out if there was wild profiteering in the manufacture or sale of men's clothes.

SIMON SAYS:
"PRICES UP!"

The present cost of woollens and labor will not permit any reductions. And according to the straws that are now blowing, there will be still more increases.

CLOTHING PRICES WILL STAY UP; MAY INCREASE

WASHINGTON, Feb. 3.—Clothing will not be reduced in price before 1921, according to announcement made late today at the Department of Justice, following a conference between clothing manufacturers and Howard E. Figg, special assistant to Attorney General Palmer.

There is even likely to be an advance in the cost of clothing to the wearer next Fall, it was intimated at the conference by Sidney Hillman of the United Garment Workers, who asserted a further wage increase will be sought and the increase will be added to the price of clothing.

Our new Spring line ought to look enticingly attractive to you—knowing the real facts about conditions.

This new line is the greatest we have ever offered to the public.

The values are as solid as Gibraltar—and the prices unaccountably low.

Howard E. Figg, special assistant to Attorney General Palmer, had his set-to with the retailers at the National Association Convention at Chicago.

Mr. Figg was reported as claiming that retail brigands were riding the poor pulling public to the tune of $30 profit on a $60 suit.

Fancy statements were alleged about the cost of materials. Schedules of imaginary costs were reported to have been issued.

Then later Mr. Figg called in the manufacturers for a seance at Washington, trying by every possible method of persuasion to get the cost of men's clothes down.

The above news item is the answer to all the investigating and expressed hopes of earnest endeavor to slice off the fat from the ever-increasing prices.

What would YOU do? What could ANY man do? You can't buck the inevitable. You can't stay the tendency of a nation. You can't put the big kettle in to the little kettle.

We're rightfully proud of what we can do for you this season, namely: Give you abundance where there's scarcity—and low prices where there's almost universal skyrocketing.

Tomato Growers' Meeting

The tomato growers' meeting held in the Court House, Princess Anne, last Wednesday afternoon was attended by more than one hundred farmers from all communities of the county. Various phases of the tomato industry were discussed by Messrs. Charles Speights, George Kemp, C. M. Dashiell, Hamp Shields, sales manager of Wicomico Tomato Growers' Association, and Prof. C. E. Temple, of the Maryland State College.

It was brought out that if the tomato industry was to be maintained in this territory that it was necessary that the tomato crop be made profitable to the farmer, and the canner receive the product and pack it at a figure which would enable him to compete on the market with the packers of other sections.

It is realized that tomatoes are an uncertain crop, but it is felt by a number of farmers that it would be possible to increase the yield per acre, which has been decreasing the last few years and rendering the crop unprofitable.

It was mentioned that drainage, increasing the soil fertility, using good seed and setting the plants out early and thorough attention during the growing season would be important factors in increasing the yield per acre and make tomatoes a profitable crop.

Advisory Board Campaign

The Advisory Board of the National Camera Association, at a recent meeting in Wilmington, Del., fixed dates and places for meetings in their several districts. They will hold a meeting in Princess Anne on Friday, March 26th, at 2 p. m.; Salisbury and Snow Hill on Saturday, March 27th, the former at 1 p. m. and the latter at 7 p. m. Speakers from the National Association have been engaged. It is thought that a great majority of the packers on the Eastern Shore will get behind this movement, which not only provides a market for the canned products, but insures clean and sanitary packing.

Y. M. C. A. Scholarships

The Local Educational Committee, requested by the Young Men's Christian Association recently, to distribute scholarships to ex-service men, held a meeting at the office of the Board of Education last Wednesday. The members of the committee are Win. H. Dashiell, Superintendent of Schools; W. O. Lankford, Jr., of the firm of W. O. Lankford & Son, and E. Walter Long, of the Bank of Somerset. Mr. Dashiell was elected secretary of the committee. All applications for scholarships should be addressed to the secretary without delay.

There were six applicants for the office: Mr. Honies A. Tull, Mr. and Mrs. L. T. Miles, Mr. Vance W. Miles, Mr. Bryce Whittington and Mr. Charles R. Day. Their papers were made out and filed in due form and the result is watched with interest.

MARYLAND DRY BILL IS BEATEN

House Refused To Concur In Volstead Enforcement Act

By a vote of 62 to 39 the House of Delegates last Thursday refused to concur with the Federal Government in the enforcement of the Volstead Act.

The action of the House was construed as a repudiation of the ratification of the Prohibition Amendment by the General Assembly two years ago.

It is also construed as a hard blow to the Antisocial League which had rallied all of its strength in support of the McBride bill that designed to apply the Volstead Act to the State. The league kept together its forces intact in Worcester, Caroline, Frederick, Calvert, Kent and Garrett counties, lost one vote in Dorchester, and witnessed the dividing of its forces in Anne Arundel, Cecil, Carroll, Washington, Montgomery and Allegany counties. Wicomico, Charles, Harford, Prince Georges and Howard counties failed to rally with a single vote for the bill. Baltimore city's delegates voted solidly against it.

The effect of the defeat of the Volstead Act is that Maryland will not cooperate with the Federal Government in the enforcement of prohibition. This means that all expense will fall upon the Federal Government.

The debate occupied almost the entire morning session, from 12.10 p. m. until after 2 o'clock. Mr. McBride made a strong fight for his bill. The main argument against it was delivered by Mr. Miles, of Wicomico, who showed that the Federal act deprives a citizen of the right of trial by jury.

Messrs. Milbourne and Hall of Somerset county, voted for the bill and Mr. Gladden was absent.

Battleship Maryland Launched

The battleship Maryland, dreadnaught and latest and most formidable of sea fighters, was launched at 9 o'clock last Saturday morning at Newport News. Mrs. E. Brooke Lee, wife of Major Lee, State Comptroller, was sponsor. Secretary Daniels, with a number of officials of the Navy Department went down from Washington on the yacht Mayflower. Governor Ritchie and a delegation from the Maryland Legislature were present, among whom included on the part of the Senate, Senators Erick, Parran, Metzgerott, Brady and Speicher, while the House committee consisted of Delegates Joseph, Roberts, Miles, Fisher and Tydings.

The Maryland is the largest battleship yet built for the Navy. She is 600 feet long, 97 feet wide at the waterline, has a mean draft of 30 feet and is as large, if not larger, than any of the warships of the world. She has two funnels, two cage masts, is heavily armored below and above the waterline, will make an estimated speed of 21 knots an hour and has a normal displacement of 32,000 tons.

Aside from the usual aircraft and submarine protection, the Maryland carries eight 16 inch turret guns and 14 5-inch secondary guns. There are four 3-inch anti-aircraft guns, two 21-inch submerged torpedo tubes and four 6-pound saluting guns.

The ship's complement will consist of 1,410 officers and men. There will be 24 wardroom officers, 28 junior officers, 13 warrant officers, 64 chief petty officers and 1,281 men.

Miles-Gambrell Bill Defeated

The Miles-Gambrell bill, providing for a referendum by the people of Maryland as to whether the State should permit legalized race track gambling, was defeated in the House of Delegates, at Annapolis, Tuesday evening, the bill lacking one vote of receiving a constitutional majority.

The failure of the referendum measure was brought about by the switching in the closing hours of the battle of two men, Claggett E. Remsburg, of Frederick county, and Calvin T. Gladden, of Somerset, both Republicans. Delegate Gladden was at Annapolis but did not attend the sessions of the House. Delegate Remsburg attended Tuesday and changed his vote after the recess taken for lunch. Up to that time he had voted with his colleague, Emory L. Coblenz, and the other Frederick county delegates, for the referendum, but changed over on the first ballot after the recess. During the roll call Mr. Coblenz argued with him to change his vote and used some vigorous language, but without result. Meanwhile the racetrack members sat confident and smiling in the knowledge that they had blocked the passage of the referendum plan.

The Woman's Society of the Presbyterian Church will hold a sale of bread cakes and country produce at the "Cottage" next to the Presbyterian Chapel on the Saturday before Easter (April 3rd), at 3 o'clock.

PULLMAN THIEF CAUGHT IN ACT

Stole Jewelry, Money And Clothing From Sleeping Passengers

Charles Nye Corrine, 24 years old, whose parents reside at 301 South Vine street, Delavan, Ill., an ex-service man, was taken into custody at Cape Charles, Va., last Tuesday morning charged with having committed one of the largest Pullman car robberies which has ever taken place on the N. Y. P. & N. Railroad. His plunder consisted of money, diamonds, gold cuff buttons, valuable scarf pins and silk underwear. There were 23 passengers in the Pullman sleeping car on which Corrine was riding and not one of them escaped being robbed.

The prisoner boarded the Pullman in New York Monday evening, accompanied by three other men who had enlisted in the navy and were en route to Old Point Comfort, Va., in charge of George J. Squires of the United States Navy. Corrine was detected in the robbing expedition when he placed his hand in the birth of a sleeping passenger and was in the act of removing a stickpin from his victim's coat. The passenger grabbed his arm and held him until help arrived.

After being placed in jail at Eastville, Corrine set fire to the bed clothing and the cell was soon a mass of flames, his object being to make his escape in the excitement incident to the fire. His efforts were frustrated by the town sergeant, who was watching the prisoner from another room.

In addition to a charge of robbery, he will also face a charge of arson. When the prisoner was searched he was found to be wearing seven suits of silk underwear, including one of women's attire. The lost valuables, money and diamonds, were found on his person. He confessed his guilt.

Corrine, who is well educated, is supposed to be a ring leader of the thieves who have been robbing Pullman cars on the different railroads of late. He was taken into custody by the railroad police under Capt. Esham, of the N. Y. P. & N. R. R., who had been advised to be on the lookout for him.

Older Boys' Y. M. C. A. Conference

From the Eastern Shore District Young Men's Christian Association office at Easton comes the announcement of the first Eastern Shore Older Boys' Conference, which is to be held at Salisbury the week-end of April 16th-18th, opening Friday night with the conference dinner and closing Sunday night with a farewell service. Boys from all the nine counties will attend, representing the High Schools, Sunday Schools and the Y. M. C. A. Any other organization that desires to send delegates may do so by sending to the District Y. M. C. A. office at Easton for registration blanks.

The object of the conference is to give the older boys of the Eastern Shore of Maryland a great outlook on life, which all boys everywhere, who are just coming into manhood, are anxious for. The conference theme is: "Achieving Life's Goals; first, Physically; second, Educationally; third, Religiously; fourth, Socially; fifth, Economically." Speakers of unusual merit and reputation will be present. The program will not be lacking in entertaining and recreational features, particularly on Saturday, the 17th, when there will be inter-county mass games and athletic contests.

Senate Rejects Treaty

The peace treaty again failed of ratification last Friday night in the Senate, the resolution containing the Republican reservations failing to receive a two-thirds majority. The vote was 49 for ratification to 36 against.

On the roll call 21 Democrats broke away from the Administration ranks and voted for ratification.

Immediately after the vote, Senator Lodge offered a resolution proposing to return the treaty to the President with the information that it could not be ratified. Senator Hitchcock, Administration leader, objected to immediate action on the resolution.

The resolution of Senator Lodge provided: "That the Secretary of the Senate be instructed to return to the President the treaty of peace with Germany, signed at Versailles on the 28th day of June, 1919, and respectfully inform the President that the Senate has refused to advise and consent to its ratification, being unable to obtain the constitutional majority required therefor."

The resolution was adopted by a vote of 47 to 37, all of the latter being Democrats. Six Democrats, Gore, Kirby, Reed, Shields, Walsh (of Massachusetts) and Williams, voted with the Republicans for the Lodge resolution.

The March term of the Circuit Court for Worcester county convened yesterday (Monday) morning.

BONUS WANTED BY LEGION POSTS

Maryland Veterans Strongly In Support Of Proposed Awards

Results of a canvass of all the posts of the American Legion throughout Maryland, including Baltimore, undertaken to determine the attitude of the former service men from this State regarding the bonus question now before Congress, shows that there is not a post in the State which does not favor the granting of the bonus.

This survey has been undertaken by Henry S. Barrett, National committee-man for Maryland, acting under orders from Commander D'Olier. Mr. Barrett represented this State at the meeting of the executive committee of the American Legion in Washington yesterday (Monday), when final recommendations as to the ways and means of the bonus proposition will be adopted and presented to Congress.

In the hundreds of reports he has received from the former Maryland participants in the great war, Mr. Barrett said last week there was not a single individual or post who spoke against the measure. There was, however, more or less of resentment, he said, in the minds of the ex-service men regarding the impression which has gone abroad that they are asking for a monetary reward for their services. Such, most emphatically, is not the case, Mr. Barrett declared. It is not reward for services rendered which is being sought but a financial adjustment which will enable each of the ex-members of the armed forces of the nation to re-enter civil life at the point where at the commencement of the war they forsook their civilian pursuits to don a uniform.

The cost of living has greatly advanced. Yet without money and oftentimes without the prospect of a position, they are turned out of the army and left to shift for themselves. And the vast majority of the men, he contended, are even now in financial embarrassment because of the parsimony of the government in refusing to allow them enough money to properly clothe themselves and take up their work again at the point where it was left off. Had the government been a little more generous then, no need for a bonus would have arisen now.

Robertson for Congress League Formed

The announcement last week of the candidacy of H. W. Robertson, the local shipbuilder and banker, for nomination on the Democratic ticket at the May primaries, has been followed at White Haven and in the adjacent districts of Wicomico and other counties with practically unanimous approval.

It is reported from Salisbury that organization of a "Robertson for Congress League" is rapidly progressing, and that headquarters of the league have been opened in the Advertiser Building there. Curtis W. Long, State's Attorney for Wicomico county, has accepted the chairmanship of the league, and Wade H. Inley, of Salisbury, the secretary-treasurer.

Other prominent Democrats who have accepted places on the executive committee of the league are Ira D. Turner, secretary of the Democratic State Central Committee, for Wicomico county; W. W. Larmore, sheriff; Senator C. R. Disharoon, L. Atwood Bennett, Dr. Harry C. Tull, William C. Mitchell, Harry Dennis, treasurer Wicomico county; Arthur E. Williams and W. K. Leatherbury, of Salisbury; Ammonites Covington, A. J. White, Harry Robertson, L. J. Dashiell, Randolph White and Raymond T. Robertson, of White Haven; H. James Messick, of Nanticoke; Wade Bedworth, J. C. Mitchell, George C. H. Larmore and George F. Inley, of Tyaskin; William Gillis, of Hebron; W. H. Durham, of Quantico, and John F. Phillips, of Clara.

Miss Pusey And Mr. Hillman Married

Mr. Ephraim King Hillman, who was shot by Mr. John Melvin at Salisbury on Friday, the 12th instant, and was taken to the Peninsula General Hospital, in that city, for treatment, was able to leave that institution last Saturday morning. He and Miss Lida Calvin Pusey, who had remained at the hospital since the shooting, came to Princess Anne on the 9 o'clock train and were conveyed to the Methodist Episcopal parsonage where they were married by the Rev. Leolan Jackson. The newly weds left on the noon train for Pocomoke City. Mr. Melvin, who was confined in the jail at Salisbury, was released last week on $5,000 bail. After the sensational affair at Salisbury the Hillman-Pusey marriage will come as a surprise to their acquaintances in Somerset and Worcester counties.

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas B. Taylor, of Marbury, Md., have returned to their home after spending the winter with the latter's parents, Mr. and Mrs. T. H. Heath.

GOVERNOR COMES OUT FOR BEER

Ritchie Advocates 3 1-2 Per Cent. Light Beverages

Governor Ritchie took the plunge on the prohibition issue last Tuesday when he sent to the House a message in which he advocated the manufacture and sale of 3 1/2 per cent., alcoholic beer, cider and light wines. The Governor directly advocates the bill introduced by the majority of the Temperance Committee. This bill authorizes the manufacture and sale of 3 1/2 per cent. beer. The Governor has thus lined up with Governor Edwards, of New Jersey, on beer legislation. He ignores the Volstead act in its general feature. The message follows:

"I have considered with great interest the various bills and resolutions now pending in the Legislature on the question of prohibition.

"To restore to the people of this State the rights which I, along with so many others, feel have been denied them, by drastic Federal legislation, involves a great many admittedly difficult questions, some of the more important of which depend upon the Supreme Court's decision in the Rhode Island case.

"My judgment is that the farmers of this State want and should not be denied the right to make cider and light wines, as they have always done, and that the laboring man and the people generally should not be denied beer and light wines, and without meaning to disapprove some of the bills or resolutions which follow other lines, I do not hesitate to say that I favor legislation which will recognize the above view.

"I think, moreover, that House Bill number 654, which comes up in the House tomorrow, and which was introduced by Messrs. Jones, Dimarco, Curry, Wellbrenner and Needing, is such a bill.

"The bill provides that it shall cease to be operative if the Eighteenth amendment is declared invalid, so that if this contention in the Rhode Island case is upheld by the Supreme Court, then the wishes of the people of Maryland upon the entire subject of prohibition will not have been prejudged, but the opportunity will be presented of expressing them at the polls.

"The bill, if passed, will, however, be effective as long as the Eighteenth amendment stands. It is impossible to say, in advance of the Supreme Court's decision, exactly what its effect may be, but if certain strongly advanced views as to the meaning of the 'concurrent' clause in the Eighteenth amendment prevail, then the bill will, according to its terms, authorize beer, light wines and cider.

"If these views do not prevail, then the passage of the bill will, in any event, constitute a protest by the people of Maryland against the denial of their right to express their wishes upon this important question, and will be an indication of their desire that the Volstead act be amended.

"I feel that the people of Maryland favor the continuance of cider, beer and light wines, and that this bill fairly represents the ideas of our people as to the manner in which the Eighteenth amendment, if valid, should be enforced. For these reasons I hope that the Bill No. 554 will pass."

Governor Ritchie Gives Reception

The reception given last Tuesday evening by Governor Ritchie at the Executive Mansion, Annapolis, in honor of the members of the General Assembly, was one of the most brilliant in the history of the State. The spacious house was elaborately decorated throughout with palms and spring flowers, and the invitations, numbering about 700, were limited to the members of the Legislature and their families, State officials, a number of the navy set and members of Annapolis society.

The Governor and his mother, Mrs. Albert Ritchie, received in the drawing room to the left of the main entrance, opening into the conservatory and the State drawing room. Among those assisting in receiving were Mrs. Henry Landon Cabell, of Richmond, Va., a sister-in-law of Mrs. Ritchie; Mrs. Brooke Lee, wife of the State Comptroller; Mrs. David Gregg McIntosh, Jr., and Mrs. Frank Mish, of Hagerstown. A section of the Naval Academy band, stationed in the State drawing room, played throughout the evening and there was dancing.

Mrs. Chaplin Raps Charlie

Charlie Chaplin's screen antics gave him no time to create an atmosphere of happiness at his family fireside, according to his wife, Mildred Harris Chaplin. She, at Los Angeles, Cal., announced last Thursday she would seek legal separation from the film comedian.

Mrs. Chaplin did not make it clear whether she would file suit for divorce or for separate maintenance.

In an interview, Mrs. Chaplin, herself a motion picture actress, said her husband's coldness and neglect had made life unbearable. She added:

"He finally deserted me, after threatening unless I accepted a settlement of $25,000 and filed suit for divorce in Nevada, he would start suit against me," said Mrs. Chaplin.

"After this he had detectives follow me everywhere. But he has no grounds upon which to sue me."

QUIZ OF FARMERS ISSUED

Twelve Questions Are Asked From Presidential Aspirants

Copies of the questionnaire, prepared by a committee of the National Board of Farm Organizations for presentation to all Presidential candidates, in order to place him on record on matters of interest to farmers have been issued.

The committee already has listed nearly a score of active or prospective candidates to receive the inquiry and will add others "as each candidate, active or receptive, assumes that status." The list now includes Vice President Marshall, Senators Johnson, Poindestor, Harding, Lenroot and Owen, Governors, Cox, Sprout, Lowden, Collidge and Goodrich, Herbert Hoover, Attorney-General Palmer and Major-General Wood.

"We have started something that we will stay with to the finish," C. S. Barrett, president of the National Board, said. "This questionnaire is a statement of principles, not a perfunctory inquiry as to where candidates stand on certain questions." The questions follow:

"Will you do your best to bring about such direct dealing between producer and consumer as will secure to the farmers a fair share of the wealth they create, reduce the cost of living to the consumer and limit or destroy the opportunity of the profiteer?"

"Will you do all that in you lies to secure to all farmers and consumers the full, free and unquestioned right to organize and to purchase and sell co-operatively?"

"Will you see that the farm people of America are represented on general boards and commissions in whose membership various interests are recognized, whether or not the work is directly concerned with agriculture?"

"Will you appoint a Secretary of Agriculture who knows actual farm conditions, who is satisfactory to the farm organizations of America, and who will cause to be made comprehensive studies of farm production costs at home and abroad, and publish the uncensored facts?"

"Will you take the action necessary to ascertain and make public all obtainable facts concerning the great and growing evil of farm tenancy, so that steps may be taken to check, reduce or end it?"

"Will you do your best to secure improved personal and commodity credit facilities on reasonable terms for farmers?"

"Will you earnestly endeavor to secure to co-operative organizations of farmers engaged in interstate commerce, service and supplies equal in all respects to those furnished private enterprise under like circumstances?"

"The railroads have been returned to their owners, if at the end of two years of further trial of private ownership the railroads fail to render reasonably satisfactory service to the people, will you then favor reopening the railroad question?"

"Will you use your best efforts to secure the payment of the war debt chiefly through a highly graduated income tax, or otherwise, by those best able to pay?"

"Will you earnestly strive to uphold and enforce the National conservation policy, and especially to stop forest devastation, which has already more than doubled the price of lumber and paper to the consumer?"

"Will you do your best to secure and enforce effective National control over the packers and other great interstate combinations of capital engaged in the manufacture, transportation, or distribution of food and other farm products and farmers supplies?"

"Will you respect, and earnestly strive to maintain the right of free speech, free press and free assembly?"

May Separate Godino Twins

The famous Godino twins who, since their birth, 11 years ago, have been joined together at the base of the spine, and who have both interested and puzzled medical science, have been taken to Baltimore—possibly to be separated into two distinct human beings, by the surgeon's knife.

Lucio and Simplicio, the two happy lads, are now at the Union Protestant Infirmary, where they are undergoing expert observation, preliminary, it is said, to a definite attempt to separate them without causing death. They are exactly alike in build and appearance. Their minds are distinct, and not the slightest affinity of thought between them has ever been definitely proved.

The Godino twins are natives of Samar, one of the Philippine Islands. They have been taught English, arithmetic and other things that ordinary school children are taught—they are Boy Scouts, and real lively little fellows.

THE NORTH POINT LAW

By ARCHEY CAMERON NEW

Constable Matthews stood at the door of his little thatched cottage and sniffed indignantly at the air, when a broad smile of contentment beamed on his wide, happy face and his keen gray eyes twinkled.

"Gosh, but this weather's fine," he exclaimed to himself, and then his glance strayed down the road toward the town store and a large group of men standing in front of it. "Plannin' some parade, I reckon." And then he entered forth toward the store, but not on police business. In fact, Sam Matthews seldom went anywhere on police business—because that business was exceedingly dull at North Point.

"Hello, Sam," greeted some of the men in front of the store, as the officer bore into view. "Gonna pinch some snuff?"

The joke was the oldest in North Point, but Sam hesitated at the store steps and grinned amiably.

"No, just pluggin' along," he countered, humorously, as he pointed to an empty jaw, usually filled with a quid.

And then, as he turned his back on the crowd of men, and was about to enter the store, a name came to his ears that brought him up short. "Classon!" Always a name to be reckoned with, mused Sam, as he peered across the bridge toward Parkersboro. A name either feared, hated or loved, according to circumstances. To be feared or hated, when the owner of the big mills at Parkersboro was mentioned. Nearly 90 per cent of the men at North Point drew Classon Woolen mills pay envelopes—and nearly 80 per cent of them hated the owner cordially. For he was a hard taskmaster and thoroughly selfish. Sam gazed sympathetically toward his group of fellow-townsmen as he thought of Classon's latest offense against his workers—a refusal to install a co-operative lunch room where they might get their lunches at cost. And thinking of lunches, Sam smiled and reminiscently sighed as he thought of the bright, captivating and ministering little angel—who also bore the name of Classon.

How many of those men, mused Sam tenderly, took slices of chicken, bits of luscious fruit and the like in their lunch boxes—borne to their women folks by Dorothy Classon. Dorothy was so unlike her father in every way as to make North Pointers forget she was a Classon—generous to her finger-tips, lovable to her slipper-tips, and democratic to a fault.

Sam listened to the wrangling for a few minutes listlessly—for it was all too well-known to him—and was about to enter the store when a dominant voice in the group arrested his attention, and he crouched in the dark of the porch to listen unseen. What he heard chilled every fiber of his body.

They couldn't do this thing, he gasped, as he crouched lower, listening intently. And use him, Sam Matthews, as a tool for their purposes—impossible! It was all very well to hate Classon, to denounce him, revile him, if they would—but this thing—hate, he shuddered. And then he sorrowfully realized that they were right—they could use him—he was their constable.

And then, after a few minutes, he heard footsteps at his back, crunching on the gravel path. They were coming after him—after their constable—to make him do his duty. He hung his head and slightly turned his face toward the house. Then he breathed easier, for the footsteps again receded up the street and he looked up, then was startled.

He recognized the couple. It was Dorothy, and he noted regretfully her happy profile as she leaned on her escort's arm and smiled into his face. Sam knew of the romance of this couple, and his warm old heart had rejoiced as, for months past, he had seen the girl stray past his home on the arm of George Fulton, the young assistant superintendent of the mills. A fine match, he agreed. Fulton had fought his way through the mills to the position he now held—perhaps the only one besides Dorothy who commanded a civil word from the elder Classon. Before this night he had gazed fondly at the picture of Fulton's dark handsome head against the golden head of Dorothy as they strolled through North Point.

Sam shuddered now, and then he gazed apprehensively toward the store. No one was in sight. Perhaps it wasn't too late yet. He might avert trouble after all. And no complaint had been made to him as an officer.

He followed the pair stealthily, and then as Dorothy entered the gate of Mrs. Waters, the widow of an old mill employee, Sam noted that Fulton waited for her. He quickened his step and, passing Fulton with barely a nod, hurried up the walk and rang the bell.

"Go evenin', Mrs. Waters," he greeted the widow briefly as she admitted him. And then, noting Dorothy, he spoke quickly. "Please, Miss Dorothy, the missus wants to see you right away. Will you come now?"

"Why, sure," Dorothy agreed, laying a package of tea on the table before Mrs. Waters' grateful eyes. And then, bidding the widow a cheery goodnight, she followed Sam outside.

In a whisper, "We can get through the hedge. It's quicker."

"But Geor—Mr. Fulton, what about him?"

"I'll tend to him," answered Sam briefly. "Please, Miss Dorothy—hurry."

Without question, Dorothy followed the old constable into his sitting room. Mrs. Matthews rose and welcomed her impulsively. Sam left the room hurriedly.

"Why, Miss Dorothy," exclaimed Mrs. Matthews, happily, "this is indeed a surprise!"

"A surprise!" echoed Dorothy, nonplused. "Why, didn't you send for me? Mr. Matthews said—"

She stopped abruptly as she heard angry voices on the porch.

"Ye'd better git out—and git quick!" she heard Sam's shrill voice, and then Fulton's deeper rumble came to her ears.

"I'll do no such thing," snapped Fulton. "Miss Classon is with me, and I'm going to see her home. Oh, Dor—" Dorothy heard him start to call her name and then followed a short scuffle, followed by a dull thud. Dorothy screamed and then the door opened and the old constable staggered in bearing Fulton's limp form in his arms, and dropping him on the sofa.

"Mr. Matthews, what have you done?" cried the girl, as she leaned over Fulton's head, and then, as she drew her fingers away wet she stared horrified at Sam, who answered her stare coolly. "How dare you? You've killed him. You brute, you fend—"

Like a young lioness she sprang at Sam, who withdrew a pace and held out his arms restrainingly.

"He's not dead," he replied, coolly, and then he turned to his wife with an air of command. "Get some warm water, ma, and bathe his head. He'll come to in a minute. I'll be back soon."

Mrs. Matthews stared at her husband questioning, and then knowingly, as from long association with a man whose worldly wisdom had long since gained her complete confidence, turned a ministering hand toward the young man. Dorothy bent over him, calling to him to come back to life, revealing in her mental stress an understanding long since divined by the older woman, and then just as Fulton's eyelids quivered and he struggled to his feet, the door flew open and Sam reappeared, followed by a clergyman. His reappearance acted as a red flag to Dorothy, but he waived her aside, as he went toward the table and took up a leather-bound volume.

"Not so quick, Miss Dorothy," he droned, whimsically. "And be a little more respectful to'rds th' law an' th' clergy."

"Law!" she flared, scathingly. "Is it lawful to strike a man cowardly with a club when he—"

"God moves in mysterious ways his wonders to perform," replied the constable, and then he turned to the clergyman. "Ain't I right, parson?" And then, to cut off another outburst from Dorothy, he opened the book in his hand. "Hold on, Miss Dorothy, and let me explain. To begin with, your daddy is a mean old cuss, and the boys all hate 'im. They've tried every way they know to get simple justice out of him, but he's just plain ornery, I reckon."

"But, what—?"

"Jest a minute. He told one of the boys that it didn't matter t' him a darn bit if their wimmen folks did have t' work their arms off. An' that he didn't keer a fiddler's cuss if th' wimmen folks were ashamed o' their shabby clothes—nobody but a dern fool keered what folks said about 'em, says he. So th' boys wanted t' teach him a lesson. They's an old law down here, in this town what makes it a crime fer a young couple t' be together on th' streets a'ter dark. No-body ever paid much 'tention to it, 'cause I reckon th' jail wouldn't h' been large enough fer 'em if they did. Th' boys kinda thought yer daddy'd be kinda changed a bit if they showed him what disgrace'd mean t' him, and bein's they've noticed you an' young Fulton out here several evenin's together—they aimed t' have me pinch y' fer violatin' th' old North Point law!"

"But it's ridiculous!" Dorothy started to protest vehemently.

"Granted. But that ain't savin' ye none, n'r me neither. I knowed they'd ketch y' on th' way back t' town, so I had t' keep y' from goin' back. An' from violatin' th' law, too. Th' young feller kinda made it hard fer me, but I've kept y' from bein' plinched." Sam stopped, peered wistfully from the girl to the young man, and then turned his eyes to the book again.

"Th' law also sez," he continued, glancing at the pair through half-closed lids, "that a constable kin issue marriage licenses a'ter dark and they ain't nothin' t' keep a married folk from trampin' all over North Point together. Now, th' parson's a kinda curious feller an' when I met him outside a few minutes ago he was kinda wonderin' as whether you and Fulton liked each other enough t'—"

Sam's voice trailed off into a kind of smothered sputtering, as the girl threw her arms around his neck and kissed him. And then she glanced shyly at Fulton.

"Do we, Geor?" she asked.

"Let's show them," answered Fulton with alacrity, as he sprang to her side, and with his arm around her tightly, turned to face the clergyman.

"I reckon they do," said Sam a few minutes later as the clergyman handed Fulton a parchment certificate, and imitating the young man he gave Ma Matthews a great big hug and a very noisy kiss.

PASSING OF NOTED THEATRICAL HOTEL

RENDEZVOUS OF SPORTING WORLD IN BALTIMORE TO BE WELFARE CENTER.

SALVATIONISTS GET IT.

Will Convert It Into Hotel For Working Girls And Maryland Headquarters.

"Soap, soup and salvation," instead of lobster and chorus girl will be the order of the day hereafter at "Joe" Tipman's hotel, known all over the country as the Baltimore headquarters of the theatrical and sporting world, for the Salvation Army has taken over the hotel and will convert it into headquarters for this division, with a hotel for working girls, an auditorium and other features to be added.

For a quarter of a century, when it was known as Rielly's Hotel, the four story building has been the gathering place of the moths which flitted and fluttered in Baltimore's "white light" district hundreds of noted actors and actresses have stopped there and pugilists whose names are familiar to hundreds of thousands have gathered in its barroom to discuss past victories and future events.

Now the hymns of the Salvationists will echo where once the merry lilt of rousing songs sounded and demure working girls will tread the halls which once resounded to the clatter of the high heels of the chorus girls.

In a way the passing of the hotel is a tragedy in the life of "Joe" Tipman. It was his ambition, when he bought the hotel last August, to make it the clearing house for the sporting world. Himself the hero of hundreds of prize ring fights and known in all the cities of the United States and in the large centers of England, "Joe" wanted to establish a hotel where thespians en route from city to city might always find friends and where his companions of the squared circle would find congenial company.

But "Joe" fell foul of the prohibition law. Last November he was sentenced to four months in the City Jail, a punishment which his friends say he took because he was too good a sport to throw responsibility on others. While he was serving his term, Brigadier Escott, of the Salvation Army, learned it might be possible to purchase the hotel, a new structure built only a few years ago to replace the one destroyed by fire.

Through the good offices of Warden Lee, the real estate men who negotiated the sale were admitted to "Joe's" cell and the bill of sale was signed.

Down from the walls have come the pictures of celebrities. The glass case containing the boxing gloves "Joe" wore when he fought "Battling Nelson," Tommy Feltz, Joe Gans, "Terrible Teddy" McGovern, "Packey" McFarland, "Young" Corbett, Dixon, the colored fighter, and those he wore in the ring in England, has been removed from its place of honor in the barroom, which soon is to be converted into a Salvation Army "saloon", where hot drinks, soft beverages and lunches will replace the exhilarating drinks that formerly were served.

Out from the vault where it has been safely guarded has gone the book of autographs containing the signatures of men and women known to the stage of today and of the past. Sarah Bernhardt, the "Divine Sarah," wrote her name in it and not many pages away are the signatures of the Dolly Sisters. Robert Mantell's name is inscribed in the little book; so are the names of Fannie Brice, now in the public eye in connection with the "master mind" case in New York; of Olga Petrova, Alice Brady, Frank Tinney, "Gentleman Jim" Corbett, Bert Williams, Leon Errol and a score of other noted actors and actresses.

Already the word has gone out in theatrical circles that no longer will accommodations be available at "Joe's." The news is being received with regret for the hotel was known as a "decent" place where disorder of any kind was not permitted and where cleanliness was the rule rather than the exception. In the heart of Baltimore's theatrical district, but a few steps from three of the largest play houses, it was a Mecca for the girls of the chorus as well as for those principals who cared more for the gossip of their friends in cozy surroundings than for the cold formality of the marble facaded hostilities.

On the first floor will be an auditorium seating 500 persons. This will be the "James Potts Auditorium," named after the first Baltimore boy who fell in the great war. On the same floor will be offices and committee rooms, while the upper floors will be given over to rooms where, for the modest sum of $3 a week working girls may find comfortable, safe quarters, with baths and showers.

Early in April the Salvationists will take possession of the building. Their lease on their present quarters in the Hoffman Building expires then. In May the formal dedication of the building will take place and high dignitaries of the church will officiate.

Appropriate services will mark the passing of another old Baltimore landmark and prominent officers of the Salvation Army will be present.

QUEER LITTLE YAP

Odd Customs on Small Island.
Now American.

Peculiar Currency System Would Seem to Have Some Disadvantages.
—Religious Rites Observed by Races of Fishermen.

The island of Yap isn't such a yap place, after all.

Returned travelers from the South sea give illuminating details of life on the queer little island which even President Wilson hadn't heard of until the Paris conference decided that America ought to get something out of the war—and generously gave us Yap.

If America's would-be stars should adopt the well-known Russian plan of using Yap as a "Siberia"—as suggested the other day by a senator, who got a big laugh for his idea—here are some strongly American customs with a Malayan twist that deported persons would find in operation there.

Money as big as cartwheels, "not only," but considerably bigger—huge stone dollars from two to twelve feet across!

Rachelor's club houses occupied by the entire male population on certain occasions, women being entirely excluded.

A social order, consisting of four castes—magicians, impoverished artistocrats, rich men and the populace.

A religion that includes a god, Luk, who protects thieves and swindlers.

A language that would delight a diplomat or a blushing maiden, having nearly 40 different ways of saying "No."

The two great products of Yap are coconuts and typhoons. The typhoons save the natives the trouble of picking the coconuts. It is precisely in that quarter of the Pacific that the worst storms on earth are born, and from July to December the weather would delight Professor Porta.

Gold or silver money has no more value in Yap than bolshevik rubles have here. The Yaps have such faith in human nature that they have devised a coin nobody can lift. A small coin is a disk of granite, two feet across and six inches thick, with a hole in the middle.

A large coin is two fathoms across and two feet thick. Rich people in Yap simply pile their money in the front yard or lean it against the side of the house, which saves them the trouble of showing off by elaborate dress or other indirect methods. It also gives full publicity to all cash transactions.

For "chicken feed" they use large pairs of oyster shells and hundred-pound sacks of copra. To "pass the plate" in a Yap church you have to use a moving van.

Americans who oppose foreign entanglements may take comfort from the fact that the word "Yap" originally meant "foreigner." The early Yaps were great traders and voyagers around the South seas. In other words, foreigners are Yaps—the same old story.

Today the Yaps fish religiously. Before every fishing party the men are obliged to leave their wives and spend four days in the club houses, which are large stone mansions.

After the first successful catch, the men come ashore and everybody takes a pull at the fermented juice of the green coconut. This is dubbed a religious rite, and the women have to keep quiet about it or get cursed by the gods—an idea which should interest Americans who are still fond of little fishing parties.

When a Yap gentleman wishes to steal he prays to Luk. Luk keeps other people from looking. If the thief gets caught anyhow, he simply decides that Luk must have been too busy to hear his prayer, and hopes for better Luk next time.

For the rest of it, Yap is 35 miles long and five broad, surrounded by a coral reef, has hills 1,000 feet high, runs out of water whenever it fails to rain for a week, has five smaller islands near it, grows yams and tropical fruits, but not rice, and contains some 10,000 natives of the Malay race, whose language, curiously enough,
shows a basic relation to Sanskrit.
And it's ours, every bit of it.

Photography From the Air.

In Tasmania photographic enterprise has taken on a new form. A Tasmanian photographer, determined to outdo his rivals in getting pictures of the most picturesque state in the commonwealth, chartered a recently imported airplane, went aloft, and obtained magnificent views. These were exhibited in his shop window, sold like hot cakes, and amply rewarded him for his enterprise. The cinematograph man will now be put upon his mettle and the picture shows, no doubt, will soon be showing their audiences moving scenic pictures of surprising range and beauty. In time pictures taken from the airplane will probably be used to instruct children in geography.

The Undertaken Office Boy.

"But didn't you get off once before to attend your grandmother's funeral?"

"Yes, sir, she came near being buried alive that time, sir."—Sydney Bulletin.

Contrariwise.

"Do you suppose any tax is popular?"

"There's a tax on injuries is always popular with people who haven't any."

ALL ARE TALLER LYING DOWN

Fact Which at First Seems Peculiar Is Easily Susceptible of Scientific Proof.

How many people are aware that we are shorter when standing than when lying, and taller in the morning than in the evening?

An Englishman was the first to discover this, but afterward Doctor Marand of the Royal academy of France made several experiments to prove the theory. He found after a year's trial that usually in the night he gained almost three-eighths of an inch, and lost almost as much during the day. The cause of this is to be found in the different state or condition of the cartilages which go to make up the spine.

The joints of this part of our bodies are separated and yet joined by particular bony substances, every one of which has a springy resilience.
These are capable of yielding on all sides without bending the backbone or spine itself. Of course, the difference is scarcely perceptible in one joint alone, but the combined effect is appreciable. Naturally, when the spine is supporting the weight of the head it is liable to contract, and we are taller after lying down for some time than after we have been walking about all day with our bodies in an upright position, with the spine supporting the weight of the head.

At night time, when we lie down in a more or less horizontal position, these top parts do not weigh so heavily, and the springy muscles being expanded, our spines consequently become longer.

Another proof of this is to be found in the increase of height sometimes experienced by invalids who have spent a long time in bed; and also in the fact that the more rest a young child has, the taller he will grow.—London Tit-Bits.

This Toad Was a Vagrant.

How she indulged in an experiment to determine the truth of the assertion recently made by a Youth's Companion contributor that toads have homing instincts, and was disappointed, Miss Dora Read Goodale tells in the Springfield Republican.

Some time ago, she writes, I read that the unassuming toad has the "homing instinct" to as great a degree as the homing pigeons, and the assertion was supported by detailed accounts of various toads that were removed to a distance but returned to their native haunts even before their owner or landlord. Therefore, on a fine Sunday morning I caught in my garden a portly toad, whose puffy cor-pulence suggested that he had executed numberless flies, and after tying a red thread round his leg like a badge of honor, I carried him, partly by automobile and partly on foot, three miles from home.

When I gently deposited him near a mossy log by the wayside, he sat perfectly still for fully two minutes, as if getting his bearings; then, after winking two or three times and catching an ant or two with his lightning tongue, he gave a prodigious leap and disappeared in the undergrowth. I confess I had not much hope of seeing him again—and I never have.

No "Mute Inglorious Miltons."

There are no "mute, inglorious Miltons," although there are many inglorious persons who imagine that they are Miltons, writes St. John Ervine in the Manchester Guardian. A Milton may be "inglorious" for a period, but he is never "mute" for a moment. Even the inglorious persons who imagine that they are Miltons, when they would be much better employed as haberdash-ers, are never mute. They are as a rule, more articulate than the Miltons, for they put into their tongues what they are unable to put into their pens.

The problems of society in dealing with men of genius is not how to encourage them but how to keep them in order. It is probably true that in a disorganized nation the average intelligent man, if he be reared in poverty, will fail to rise to his level, but it is equally true that the man of genius, however harsh his circumstances may be, will find his level as certainly as water does.

Some Feat.

Mother was out for the evening, so father was putting the son and heir to bed. Moreover he was beginning to realize why his wife was so tired in the evening.

"Now, Ronald!" he said sternly, when the blankets had been drawn over the little figure, "remember that I will be very cross if you aren't a good boy when I have gone downstairs."

He left the room reassured by the awed silence which followed his words.
But he had hardly reached the foot of the stairs when a shrill voice yelled:
"Come and tuck me in, father!"
He lost his temper.

"I won't!" he retorted. "Get out and tuck yourself in."

War Divorces Increase.

The post-war divorce crush in England is steadily increasing and it was declared in London that no diminution is in sight. There were 1,325 unde-fended cases in the January list of the divorce court and a new list is being prepared to take care of the surplus cases. The big increase in divorces is attributed to the upheaval in social conditions caused by the war.

Nautical Information.

on the ocean instead of miles?
First Class Scout—Well, you see they couldn't have the ocean tied if there were no knots.—Yale Record.

SENT FAMOUS WAR MESSAGE

Man Who Wigwagged "Hold the Fort" for General Sherman During Civil Conflict, Is Dead.

Alfred Nye, member of the Federal Signal corps during the Civil war, who died recently at Lexington, Neb., is credited with having sent General Sherman's famous message, "Hold the fort," to General Corse at Allatoona Pass, Ga., in 1864. During General Sherman's march to Atlanta, the Confederates under General Hood, withdrew and marched around General Sherman, heading back toward Tennessee, planning thereby to cut the Union line of communication.

The point chosen by the Confederates was Allatoona Pass, guarded by two little forts on either side of the railroad, the garrison being formed of a small brigade under Lieut. Col. J.
E. Tourtelotte. When the Confederate army began its attack Colonel Tour-telotte asked for help. General Corse, with the nearest troops available, at Rome, Ga., was ordered to reinforce the pass. He was able to move only a few hundred men.

The battle raged through the night and the following day, the Union men refusing to surrender the fort.
Meanwhile Sherman was exchanging signals with the men whenever the smoke of battle drifted aside, until he was able to have Alfred Nye wigwag to them: "Hold the fort." The Confederates retreated and continued their march to Tennessee.

COLORED MAN WOULD WAIT

His Opportunity Is Coming When Some Negro Arrives to "Make a Dictionary."

A young physician gives the following amusing conversation with his valet, who was a negro:

"He didn't have no business to call me a nigger, did he, doctor?"

"There is no harm in the word negro," explained the doctor. "Negro is the name of your race, your people.
Every race has a name, the Indian, the Chinese; the name of your people is the negro race."

"You say dat, doctor? You thinks dat? But us colored folks, we know dar ain't but one nigger—he's de bad man."

"But that is the talk of ignorance," argued the doctor. "Here is the meaning of the word negro in the dictionary; don't you see—a negro is a black man!"

"Did a white man make dis book, doctor?" asked the boy.

"Yes."

"Well doctor, you know how it is twixt white man and nigger. You know if the white man made de book he glad ter writ it down dat de black man is a nigger. Eit don't stonish me ter read dat writ in a book a white man make. Des wait till de nigger makes a dictionary."

Tactical Error.

A major of marines had his battalion out in the brush in Cuba for a problem in observation. He detailed a private to go to a small hill about a quarter of a mile away and conceal himself. The battalion would then try to locate the private with field glasses as a training for finding enemy scouts and snipers during actual battle conditions.

The private trotted off and, at a signal from the major, flopped to the ground. The major turned around to explain the problem to the battalion, but, upon turning again, was much incensed to see the private standing again in full view of all. Seizing a pair of signal flags from a sergeant the major wig-wagged wrathfully:
"Why don't you lie down as I ordered?"
Upon which the private on the sky line wig-wagged back respectfully, but with great emphasis:

"Sir, why did the major order me to lie down on an ant hill?"—The Home Sector.

Buried Rome.

Archeologists in France have been greatly encouraged by the success which has attended the excavations in Provence in search of more Roman architectural remains. It is thought, owing to the extent of the discoveries, that it will be possible to bring to light the roads which existed between the various Roman establishments of the south of France. Inscriptions and sculptured fragments have been found at Die in the Drome, aqueducts, an immense gymnasium, a necropolis and ramparts at Orange; while at Vaison the Roman theater having been fully revealed, the statues discovered there in fragments are being placed in the neighboring museum. There is a Sabina, a Tiberius, a Hadrian and an Augustus.

An Echo of the Past.

"I'm afraid there isn't much sentiment in Jibway's soul."

"No!"

"Some one was playing a celebrated waltz of a decade ago, and how do you suppose Jibway remembered that he had heard it before?"

"He said, 'By jiminy, that's the tune the orchestra was playing one night in a restaurant where I got ptomaine poisoning!'"

Biddy's Comeback.

Misses—Now, Bridget, there's no use of further argument as to how the dish should be prepared, but our ideas on the subject are so different that it is evident one or the other of us is crazy.

Bridget—True for ye, mum—an-sure it isn't yerself'd be kapin' a crazy cook.—Boston Transcript.

TUESDAY MORNING, MAR. 29, 1920

The Maryland legislature is making hurry so near and yet so far!

Daylight burglaries reported in many places. Probably the burglars don't want to disturb the rest of the police.

Everybody favors education now-days as it is popularly believed to enable people to live without doing much work.

No cases of spring fever and tired feeling are reported among the sporting crowd when a dance lasting until 8 a.m. is arranged.

It is claimed that modern ballroom dances originated from the steps of the Indians. Must have been just after the firewater was passed round.

Employers who won't discuss labor conditions with their help, usually get a chance later to discuss them fully with the walking delegates.

The motorists who plead guilty to fast driving may seem to be exceptionally honest, but perhaps they are merely proud of their speed records.

Among the people of Princess Anne who complain of high insurance rates, are those who maintain heaps of inflammable rubbish in their basements.

Women suffrage does not mean any more expense for cigar treats but the election officials will have to buy some more brooms for the polling places.

Formerly the roadsides were lined with blacksmith's shops to keep the work horses of the country shod. Now they are lined with garages to keep the pleasure cars repaired.

Dealers claim the public does not want medium-priced goods, but such stuff has a way of mysteriously disappearing to parts unknown just as soon as it is advertised.

After the bakers have increased the cost of bread in order to keep on giving the same sized loaf, then they will probably cut down the size of the loaf in order to keep the price the same.

NEIGHBORHOOD SPIRIT
Several hundred civic organizations have called a conference to be held at Washington to promote better neighborhood spirit. Community service and "Get Together" work will be emphasized.

The motto of the Nineteenth Century was "everyone for himself, and the devil take the hindmost." It is dawning on the Twentieth Century that you must have team work in order to get things done.

There is much good neighborhood spirit in Princess Anne. It grows more active every year. It seeks to revive the friendliness of the old-time village.
It wants every family in this community to find abundant opportunity in life. Also it desires to use Twentieth Century organization and business methods in promoting civic achievement. It will welcome any National movement for civic advance that may result from the Washington conference above referred to.

THE DISABLED SOLDIERS
Usually wars have produced a great body of helpless and pathetic cripples, whose lives have been wrecked and the majority of whom were dependents.

The Government plans for re-educating the soldiers crippled in the late war for business and industrial pursuits may work out some time. But the Government, like other large bodies, moves very, very slowly. The Federal Board for Vocational Education is coming in for sharp criticism for alleged red tape methods and delays in paying this debt of honor and patriotic duty.

If, as claimed, an interval of six or more months usually taken place after a man is accepted for such training before he can begin work, there is a deplorable lack of business system. It is unfair to relatives who have to support a man who gave his all to his country.
Yet he is put off from month to month as if he were an undeserving beggar. It is a poor reward for patriotism and the right is not one to thrill the youth of the land with zeal in the service of their country.

A helpless man under such circumstances quickly gets into a hopeless frame of mind and every week's delay makes it harder for him to take up his new task of training. Without this resuscitation a crippled man will be handicapped for life and he may lose heart and go to pieces in despondency and failure. The American people feel intensely interested in the welfare of these men. They will go the limit to set them on their feet in business or industry.

The Marylander and the Herald expresses the sentiment of the soldiers and relatives when it asks the Government to Maryland to do what it can for the speedy progress

THE BACK-YARD PROBLEM

There is a popular superstition that you can dump anything unsightly in a back yard and no one will see it. As a result the back yards in most towns are a mass of eyesores which take all the shine off the handsome front yards. D.
H. Blanding, clerk and treasurer of Sumter, South Carolina, makes some quite original suggestions.

He would remove fences and sheds and other unsightly objects in the rear lots, and have the land of a neighborhood thus thrown together, used in common by abutting households.

Then he would have a community garden made out of all these back yards to supply vegetables and flowers to the abutting dwellings.

He also suggests that this rear land could be used for a community heating plant to furnish steam heat to the adjoining houses, a community kitchen to supply meals and a community laundry to do the neighborhood washing.

A group of back yards thus combined and developed for use and beauty would make the rear estate enough more valuable to pay all costs of development.

Community laundries and kitchens might be considered a radical form of back-yard improvement that would change family life a good deal. Yet they may be common in a few years.
But back-yard improvement can be carried on equally well in a less ambitious way. Any group of neighbors could mutually agree to clean up and beautify their grounds and the change would be marvellous.

If a lot of the householders of Princess Anne would agree this spring to plant trees, shrubs and flowers in their back yards the improvement would soon be noticed. It would give Princess Anne a reputation far and near for superior attractiveness and standards of taste.

HOME LIFE
In large cities crowded and cramped apartment houses are driving out home life. People do not seem to care as in the daytime they are working and in the evening out at diversions. The home is largely a sleeping place. In small cities and country towns there is more home life as formerly. Yet even there, many people feel that the constant succession of entertainments destroys the old-time home life. There is something lacking in a family when old and young do not get together constantly for good talk and intimate association.

Yet one reason why people stayed at home more in former years was that there was nothing doing anywhere else.
The much-vaunted old-time home life frequently consisted largely in yawning with sleepiness and wish there was something going on.

The quiet evening around the parlor lamp, when the whole family gathered in one place, for various pursuits, will probably never return. People, especially young folks, demand more vigorous pursuits. But if it is the case that people are spending too much time in entertainments they can't be forced to give up such diversions by merely negative program. Singing, gymnastics, competitive sports and games and other diversions that give an outlet to the desire for vigorous action will have to be substituted.

The home circle is the medium through which one generation passes on its standards to the next. The old-time intimate relation ought not to lapse, even if people have more outside activities. In a town like Princess Anne there are many pleasant diversions which, in a way, act as a competitor to old-time home life. But for all that there are plenty of households here in which the finest ideals are nobly maintained.

Why Colds Are Dangerous
It is the serious diseases that colds lead to that makes them dangerous.
They prepare the system for the reception and development of the germs of influenza, pneumonia, tuberculosis, dysentery, scarlet fever, whooping cough and measles. You are much more likely to contract these diseases when you have a cold. For that reason you should get rid of every cold as quickly as possible. Chamberlain's Cough Remedy will help you. It is widely known as a cure for bad colds.

Bryan The Unbeaten

If William Jennings Bryan has ever been beaten in a Presidential contest or an effort to gain the nomination for the Presidency, he does not know it. All his reverses have been to him but post-ponements of the day of his greatness.
The cumulative effect of defeat has added cheer.

So the country will see the silver-tongued orator once more upon the wing and beating the air with the familiar trophies of songful appeal, and waving his hands with the finality that is the keynote of Bryanesque argument.

The untroubled Commoner has heard the sound of the honey bee and he has been longing for the honey. He has seen the signs of confusion for his party and wants to make the confusion thrice confounded. He has felt the quiver of the call to high achievement and has dreamed the dreams of sure conquest. He feels that the people are longing to cast votes for him.

Anathema is too mild a word to be descriptive of the imprecations cast at him by his party foes. Among these is the aphorism of the White House, Bryan's protégé, from whom he has broken away.
It is no novelty to have Bryan pose as a Presidential expectant. It is a pose that is always one of wide interest and of unsuspected developments—in all respects save that of uniform defeat.—Baltimore American.

Half Billion Of Tax To Be Refunded
The United States Supreme Court has decided that "stock dividends" are not "income." Therefore income taxes need not be paid upon them.

By "stock dividends" is meant the distribution of new shares among the stockholders of a corporation. Sometimes a corporation will double its number of shares, presenting each shareholder with a new share for every old one.

Such distributions are not income;
they add nothing to the value of the property or to each shareholder's share of it; they only divide the property into a greater number of shares, worth no more than before.

Yet the Government has called such shares "income" and has wrongfully collected income taxes on them. This money must now be paid back to those from whom it was taken. Mr. Roper, the Commissioner of Internal Revenue, says that a hasty estimate made in his office indicates that half a billion dollars will have to be returned. New taxes may have to be invented to make up the loss.

Legislature Drawing To Close
The biennial session of the Maryland General Assembly is fast drawing to a close. Convening on January 7th the 90-day period fixed by the State Constitution will end at midnight of April 6th.
Lots of new legislation has been presented, and other bills introduced, provide for repealing, amending or re-enacting various existing laws. A number of bills have passed both Houses.
Some have already become law, by virtue of the signature of Governor Ritchie.
Many others are now well on the way to like action, and still others will never get further than the light of the committee rooms as is generally the case.

The Federal Constitutional amendment has long since been disposed of, but much important legislation remains to be passed upon. The "wets" and "drys" will have further parries on pending bills. During the past week, chief interest has centered in the House, because of the determined fight that has been waged by the advocates and oppoit is now speculative as to what will be the final outcome.

The City Council of Crisfield passed a resolution advocating a county bond issue for $15,000 for the purpose of erecting a new colored school in that town. The council expressed the feeling that the whole town should work for the passage of the bill, and invited the co-operation of the citizens of Crisfield, both white and colored, in securing the bond issue with which to build a new colored school.

Comptroller E. Brooke Lee at Annapolis last Tuesday made public the first quarterly distribution for 1920 of funds for the public schools of Baltimore city and the counties, totaling $400,000. Of this sum $350,000 represents the usual school tax, $37,500 is apportioned for textbooks and $12,500 is for supplies. The apportionment for Somerset county follows: Public school tax, $7,110.10; textbooks, $810.30; supplies, $287.31.

Next Thursday, March 25th, is Maryland Day, being the 226th anniversary of the landing of the Maryland pilgrims on the banks of the St. Mary's river. It will be appropriately celebrated by the public schools throughout the State, the special topic selected by the State Department of Education for this year being "Maryland's Highways." The celebration of Maryland Day by the public schools began in 1904, and it has resulted in a greatly increased interest in Maryland history and the noble part this State has played in the forming and building of the nation.

Auto "Jacks" Convicted

J. Morgan Clark, of Baltimore, and Ira and Earl McAllister, of Salisbury, were sentenced Wednesday by Judge Robert F. Duer and Joseph L. Bailey to three years each in the House of Correction for the receipt of the automobile of Mrs. Ulys Wimbrow. The first two were represented by Attorneys Woodcock and Webb and Earl McAllister by Miles, Wheaton and Miles. The Court in passing sentences announced their determination to give the prisoners the advantage of every reasonable doubt and gave each man three years.

Fined For Selling Wild Ducks

In sentencing James Thomas Bradshaw to pay a fine of $10 and costs in United States Court, Baltimore, last Thursday, for selling wild ducks out of season Judge Rose said he wanted to let the people of Smith's Island know that the Migratory Bird Act must be observed.

"If violations of it occur next winter," Judge Rose added, "somebody will suffer for it."

The evidence showed that on January 14th last Bradshaw took to Crisfield seven canvas-back ducks, which were sold for $1 each, and seven black ducks, which brought $1.15 a pair. Bradshaw lives on Smith's Island, and was accompanied to court by Collector of Internal Revenue Joshua W. Miles, who was his attorney. The fine and costs aggregated $21.65.

Danger In Inlet At Ocean City

Apprehension, which is constantly growing, is felt at Ocean City over the continued widening and deepening of the inlet connecting the ocean and Sinepuxent Bay. This canal was started by the February storm, which caused such havoc at that place. At the start it was 8 feet deep and 50 yards wide. By erosion the inlet is now 20 feet deep and is nearly 300 yards wide. The erosion continues unchecked.

The inlet is 4 1/2 miles south of Ocean City, one mile from the canal which was started in 1908 and which was closed up by sand slides. There is talk here that if the Governor includes in his supplemental budget the sum of $100,000 asked by Senator Harrison for protection of Ocean City from encroachments by storms, and if the legislature approves this sum, it should be used in preventing further widening of the inlet.

FEWER ANIMALS ON THE FARMS

Government Enumeration Shows 1.2 Per Cent. Decrease

A survey of livestock on farms and ranges of the United States made by the bureau of crop estimates of the Department of Agriculture, January 1, this year as compared with a year ago, shows a moderate decrease in the number of calves, steers and bulls, cows not for milk, horses, sheep and swine. A slight increase in the number of milk cows and mules is also indicated.

The estimated number of animals on farms and ranges January 1, were 21,109,000 horses, 4,995,000 mules, 23,747,000 milch cows, 44,385,000 other cattle, 45,615,000 sheep and 72,909,000 swine. The total of all animals is 215,760,000, which is 2,686,000 head, or 1.2 per cent, less than a year ago.

Milch cows have increased about 272,000 head, or 1.2 per cent; mules increased 41,000 head, or .8 per cent; sheep decreased 251,000 head, or .5 per cent; horses decreased 373,000 head, or 1.7 per cent, and swine decreased 1,678,000 head, or 2.2 per cent.

The total value of all farm animals on January 1 was about $3,561,000,000, which is a shrinkage of about $266,000,000, or 3 per cent, compared with a year ago. It is an interesting observation that mules and milch cows, which increased in numbers, also increased in value per head, whereas all other classes of animals decreased in value per head as well as in total numbers.

SOY BEAN SEED OF MUCH VALUE

Quite Essential That All Who Raise Crop Should Prevent Deterioration and Loss.

THRASHED WITH SEPARATOR

Machines Must Be Readjusted to Prevent Split Beans—Straw Obtained Is Quite Valuable Feed for All Kinds of Animals.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

Soy-bean seed now is of considerable value, and it is essential that all farmers who have raised it thrash and store it so as to prevent deterioration and loss.

The ordinary grain separator can be adjusted to thrash any beans successfully, but this machine, if equipped to thrash small grains, must be readjusted when soy beans are to be thrashed, as otherwise a large percentage of cracked seed will result.

Some of the More Important Varieties of Soy Beans, Several of Which Are Already Well Known to Farmers of This Country.

The chief cause of split beans is the high speed of the cylinder, which should be reduced at least one-half, although the speed of the fans and other parts of the separator may be maintained at normal.

Satisfactory Machines.

Special pea and bean separators of different sizes are now on the market.
These types of machines do clean thrashing and split practically none of the beans. Undoubtedly such separators are more satisfactory and economical where a considerable acreage of beans is grown. In sections where there is an extensive seed production, investment in such a machine by a community would be profitable.

Soy beans, if thoroughly dry, can easily be thrashed with a flail. If one has only a small acreage—an acre or so—this method is practical and economical. In a few sections, a corn shredder has been used to advantage in the thrashing work and where the beans are properly cured and dried, the seeds shell out readily when run through this machine.

Soy beans which have been stacked out of doors or housed in the mow prior to thrashing should be thrashed when the weather is dry and suitable for work of this character. Thrashing should not be attempted until the beans have passed through a thorough cure and subsequently cured so that the seed is separated readily from the straw.

Valuable Feed for Stock.

The straw obtained from thrashing the soy bean for seed is a valuable feed for all kinds of live stock. In many localities the straw is baled at the time of thrashing and sold.

As soy-bean seeds spoil rather easily if not properly handled, care should be exercised in curing and storing. After the beans are thrashed they should be watched carefully to avoid heating and moulding. When thoroughly dry, there is no such danger. The best plan, according to specialists of the United States department of agriculture, is to spread the seed out on a floor immediately after thrashing and subsequently shovel them from time to time until they are thoroughly dry. The afternoon should be dry and have a free circulation of air. Soy-bean seed loses its viability rather rapidly and it is not safe to hold seed for planting purposes more than two seasons. The seeds of the soy bean, unlike those of the cowpea, are rarely attacked by weevils or other grain insects.

SAVE FERTILITY OF MANURE

Be Better Place to Apply Plant Food Than on Fall-Sown Cover Crops or on Clover.

If stable manure of any kind is available at this season of the year there is a better place to apply it than on the fall-sown cover crops, or on clover and other such. When thus applied, there will be practically no loss of fertility—less than if the manure is kept under, especially if uncovered.

Tilghman's Fish Fertilizers Produce More Dollars Per Acre

No progressive farmer today disputes the value and necessity of fertilizers.
Your County Agent will tell you that the quickest and easiest way to increase production per acre, consequently your profits per acre, is through the correct use of the right kind of fertilizer.

For the past thirty-two years, TILGHMAN'S FISH FERTILIZERS have been the choice of the farmers in this community. Combining high proportions of Potash and Fish scrap, TILGHMAN'S FERTILIZERS give to your

Get Goodyear Tire Economy for That Smaller Car

Just as owners of the highest-priced automobiles get greater mileage and economy out of Goodyear Tires, so can the owners of smaller cars similarly enjoy Goodyear advantages.

The 30x3, 30x3½, and 31x4-inch sizes of Goodyear Tires are built to afford a money's worth in performance and satisfaction which only the utmost in experience, resources and care can produce.

This extraordinary money's worth begins not only with the merit of these tires, but also with the first cost, which in most cases is no greater, and sometimes actually is less, than that of other makes of the same types of tires.

Go to the nearest Goodyear Service Station
Dealer for Goodyear Tires for your Ford, Chevrolet, Dort, Maxwell, or other cars taking these sizes. He is ready to supply you Goodyear Heavy Tourist Tubes at the same time.

30x3½ Goodyear Double-Cure
Fabric, All-Weather Tread $23.50

30x3½ Goodyear Single-Cure
Fabric, Anti-Skid Tread $21.50

Goodyear Heavy Tourist Tubes are thick, strong tubes that reinforce casings properly. Why risk a good casing with a cheap tube? Goodyear Heavy Tourist Tubes cost little more than tubes of less merit. 30x3½ size in water—$4.50

EARLY PLANTING OF CORN IS ESSENTIAL

Larger Varieties Can Be More Profitably Grown.

Results of Experiments Conducted to Demonstrate Practicability and Value of Method—Better Yields Obtained.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

Earlier planting of large, productive varieties of corn is frequently much more profitable than the normal planting of early maturing varieties. Proof of this has been obtained in many instances, announces the chief of the bureau of plant industry, in reporting on the results of experiments conducted to demonstrate the practicability and value of the earlier planting of corn. By much earlier than normal planting it has been found that larger varieties can be profitably grown for ensilage in northern localities with much better yields than can be had from the smaller native varieties planted at the usual date.

In the South, by planting small short-season varieties earlier than normal, much earlier maturity can be secured, affording a supply of corn for very early feeding. Many rather soft varieties that rot badly when planted late produce sound corn when planted early in southern localities. The planting of short and long season varieties in alternate rows has increased yields where moisture is a limiting factor.

Varieties differ, it has been found,
in their ability to adapt themselves and their grain production to varying stands. Prolific varieties, when given increased space, have shown ability to increase their grain production much more satisfactorily than have the single ear varieties, because of their ability to make up for deficiency in stand.

The studies made by the department specialists have resulted in isolating uniform types within a variety. It has been found that so-called varieties of corn are largely conglomerates of many distinct types, and to arrive at basic facts in breeding work it is necessary to segregate these uniform types.

BARREL FOUNTAIN IS HANDY

Outfit Will Save Lots of Work and Also Insure Constant Supply of Water for Fowls.

The diagram shown is of a homemade poultry fountain. The cistern is a common barrel that is watertight, connected to a drinking tank by a piece of pipe with one elbow as shown, says a writer in The Farmer. A big washer or something else of that shape is fastened on the end of the pipe at "C" in order to make a sort of rim on the inside of the pipe. "A" is a piece of board used for a float and connected to plunger, "B," by means of a wire.
This makes a self-locking valve so that the water will flow in until the tank gets full when the float pulls the plunger up against the rim on the inside of the pipe and shuts off the water which flows in again as the water is consumed. It is well to have the part of the tank where the valve is boxed off by itself with a lid over to keep Homemade Poultry Fountain.

the poultry from meddling with the valve. This outfit will save a lot of work and also insure a constant supply of fresh water if the cistern is kept replenished with a couple of pails of water once in awhile, according to the number of chickens.

CHICKENS NEED GREEN FEED

Greatest Value Is Succulence, and Salts It Contains are Great Assistance to Digestion.

In nutritive elements, green foods contain so little strength that if their only claim to poultry favor was on that account they would have been discarded long ago. Their greatest value is their succulence, and the salts they contain, which promote digestion.
Green feed in the winter poultry ration helps to keep a laying stock in good tone. It assists digestion, and many poultry keepers use it for that reason and because it increases egg production.

SUPPLY MATERIAL FOR EGGS

No One Kind of Grain Will Furnish
All of Different Food Elements Required by Hens.

There is no one kind of grain that alone will furnish all of the different food elements required to maintain the body of the hen in good condition and also furnish the material of which eggs are made. Certain kinds of food combinations are required to make the yolk of the egg, certain other kinds are required to make the whites, while still other kinds are needed for building the membranes, which surround the yolk and the white and the shell which contains all.

GARDENS AGAIN ARE IMPORTANT

Just as Essential This Year as During War Period, Say Federal Specialists.

MUST PROVIDE MORE FOOD

General Harry Clegg With Withstand Considerable Frost and Should Be Planted Early—Make Plans Now at Short Intervals.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

Gardens are going to be just as important this coming year as during the war period. United States department of agriculture specialists declare. High food costs, they say, are likely to remain until more to eat is grown and distributed. Farm gardens, village gardens, and city back yard gardens all will help. Food produced in the garden not only helps balance the family budget but releases that grown on farms for the use of people who are entirely dependent upon others.

With the lengthening of the days it will not be long until land can be worked, and such hardy crops as peas, radishes, lettuce, radishes and beets planted, especially throughout the lower Gulf Coast region. The average date of the last killing frost of the winter in this section is not later than March 15. This zone includes the southern portion of South Carolina, the southern half of Georgia, Alabama and Mississippi, almost the whole of Louisiana and all southeastern Texas. Several of the more hardy garden crops, including those mentioned above, will withstand considerable frost and may be planted at least a month before the average date for the last frost.

Take a Chance on Early Planting. Irish potatoes are easily injured by freezing, but they require about a month to come up and may be planted at about the same time as lettuce and radishes. It pays to take a chance on the early planting of certain of the more hardy garden vegetables. If they are killed or severely injured they may be replanted. A good method is to make about three plantings at intervals of two weeks, and if the first planting is killed the later ones take its place; if not killed, early vegetables will be produced and the second and third plantings provide a continuous supply.

Keeping up the gardening interest throughout the season is just as important as making an early start. About the time the more hardy vegetables are planted in the garden the seeds of tomato, eggplant, and peppers should be started in a window box indoors. By the time the ground and the air are warm these plants will be of good size and ready to set in the garden. In the meantime a few "frostproof" or hardy cabbage plants may be set out. Next will come the planting of snap or string beans. Then follows the planting of Lima beans, summer squashes, melons of all kinds, and other of the more tender vegetables.

Remember the Greens, Too. And don't forget the greens. We all need more greens in our diet. Spinach, kale, and turnips will keep you supplied with greens during the late fall and early winter, but you should have a bed of spinach planted now, in the Gulf Coast region, for early spring greens. Early turnips and beets are excellent for use as greens and later you can have delicious Swiss chard. Basella withstands heat and makes satisfactory summer greens. The main point in getting the most out of your garden is to begin early and keep going throughout the entire season, making every foot of land produce to the limit.

OBTAINING EGGS IN WINTER

Supply of Bone Meal or Beef Scraps Should Be Kept Before Hens at All Times.

The farmer who wants winter eggs should keep a box of bone meal or beef scraps before the fowls, or give them a feed of freshly cut bones every few days. In addition, supply them with vegetables occasionally, make them scratch for all their grain feed, and keep the fowls warm at

PE-RU-NA

THE REMEDY FOR EVERYDAY ILLS

"I have used Pe-Ru-Na for years in cases of colds and catarrh. The results have been good, in fact, more than you claimed. Have also taken Lacupia and can easily say it is one of the best blood purifiers I have ever used."

Mr. J. F. Arendt

For Catarrh and Catarrhal Conditions

The evidence of one man like Mr. Arendt is more convincing proof to you of the merits of Pe-Ru-Na than any written words of ours. For Pe-Ru-Na has been the standby of the American family for decades for catarrhal inflammation of the mucous membranes lining the organs of the body. Thousands, like Mr. Arendt, have proved the effectiveness of Pe-Ru-Na for coughs, colds, nasal catarrh, stomach, bowel and liver disorders or any disease characterized by a catarrhal condition. If your suffering is the result of a catarrhal disorder try Pe-Ru-Na. It is a true, tried medicine.

Nickels in London.

A letter in the Times of London points out the advantages England should gain by substituting nickel coins for bronze. To one who has merely visited Switzerland, this proposition requires little argument. In weight, bulk and convenience nickel is unquestionably preferable. With what ease can Swiss 20-centime pieces to the value of, say, 2 shillings, be carried, as compared with 2 shillings' worth of "copper!" And how this reform would lighten the bus conductor's burden! The combined weight of the 20-centime, 10-centime and 5-centime Swiss nickels is, writes the Times correspondent, only 137 grains, against the 515 grains, which 3½ pence weigh. Apropos of this subject, the London chamber of commerce has decided to recommend that the government prepare for issue, when required to supplement the silver currency, nickel coins of the value, say, of sixpence, a shilling and half a crown.—Christian Science Monitor.

Imports of Precious Stones.

The value of the precious stones imported into the United States in the fiscal year that ended recently was greater than it had been in any previous year. Pearls are growing more popular, but because the war interfered with the fisheries they have become so scarce that dealers cannot supply the demand. The South Africa diamond producers are taking advantage of the favorable market to unload the diamonds that they have been accumulating during the war. According to the National City bank of New York half the diamonds in the world are already owned in the United States.—Youth's Companion.

Out West.

"We want some rope."
"I have some at $4 a pound, also some at $6. What do you want it for?"
"To lynch a profiteer."
"Take your choice at 40 cents."—Louisville Courier-Journal.

LANE IS TO LEAD SALVATION ARMY

Former Secretary of Interior Is Chairman, 1920 Committee

Franklin K. Lane, who recently resigned as Secretary of the Interior Department, has accepted the chairmanship of the national committee in charge of the Salvation Army's home service appeal for 1920. This is Mr. Lane's first big civic work after severing his cabinet connections.

In a letter to Commander Evangeline Booth, Mr. Lane declared that sympathy for the suffering people of other lands must not cause America to neglect her own poor and unfortunate classes.

FRANKLIN K. LANE.

"In all our thoughts for other peoples, we may not rightfully forget those on our streets," writes Mr. Lane. "The girl who has stumbled and sees no refuge but the grave; the man who has been broken, through repeated disappointment, disaffection or disease; the neglected, unloved child; the Salvation Army speaks words that are healing to the spirit, holds out a supporting hand and starts them on the way upward out of the slough of despond. If we were not all intended to do this kind of work, then I believe the teaching of nineteen hundred years has been in vain."

Mr. Lane has made it clear to officials of the Salvation Army that he intends to be a "working chairman" in the great appeal. Asked to deliver an address in the interest of the Salvation Army he readily acquiesced, "but," he said, "I should like to address the workers themselves; the men and women who are carrying on this work."

Self-Sacrificing Mamma.

There is a little boy in our neighborhood whose father has been dead for several years. Often we speak of him in a pitying manner on account of his loss. Yesterday my youngest rushed into the house exclaiming: "Have you heard the news? Jamie's mamma has gone and married a papa for him."—Chicago Tribune.

Why Breathe Through the Nose?

Reasons for breathing through the nose instead of the mouth are: (1) to warm the air; (2) to moisten the air; (3) to remove the dust and germs; (4) to produce more suction in the chest, which helps draw blood into the lungs as well as air, thus helping the heart and more easily attaining second wind.

Cause of Breathlessness.

Breathlessness is caused by insufficiency of the heart either from lack of proper exercise or from disease. The heart fails to pump the blood to the lungs fast enough and accordingly the CO<sub>2</sub> accumulates and overstimulates the breathing center. This causes the sensation of inability to breathe fast enough.

Special Light to Test Colors.

An electric color-testing instrument is designed for textiles, wall papers, coloring materials, etc., and with a special arc light applies the fading power of the sun for 20 hours. Forty samples may be tested at once, each being partly covered, so that the faded colors can be directly compared with the originals.

Possible Platinum Beds.

Possible sources of supply of platinum are the river gravels in southeast Borneo, where further prospecting is required, and various districts in North Ontario, and the stream placers in Alaska, which are being investigated by the United States geological survey.

When Reading Books.

One must be an inventor to read well. As the proverb says, "He that would bring home the wealth of the Indies, must carry out the wealth of the Indies." There is creative reading as well as creative writing.—Emerson.

In Vain.

He had fairly puzzled the good village folk, had that clever ventriloquist, and now he was going to perform his last and greatest feat.

"Ladies and gentlemen," he announced, with a grand bow, "I will proceed to sing that famous ballad, 'Goodbye,' in a lady's voice which will appear to proceed from the empty air above your heads."

The minutes passed. Looks of strain and agony, doubt and anger chased one another across the performer's face; but there was no song.

Then a voice suddenly broke the silence.

"Tain't no good, guv'nor," it said. "I've bin an' lost the gramophone needle."—Answers.

A Correction.

The Judge—I understand that you frequently said that robbing a trust fund was the last thing you would do.

The Culpit—Well, what if I did say so?

The Judge—You were wrong. You are now going to do from one to ten years.

NOTHING DOING.

Miss Bug—No Henry Snail, I cannot marry you. Your house is not large enough for two!

Model for Others We Know.

I cannot sing the old songs. The neighbors would object. In fact I cannot sing at all. And keep my self-respect.

Close Observation.

"I saw a woman eat with a knife at our party," said Mr. Cumrox. "Don't let's be precipitate," exclaimed his wife.

"How do you mean, 'precipitate'?" "About copying her. If it was Mrs. Buggins, of course, it's all wrong. But if it was Mrs. Toppington Pymme, eating with one's knife has undoubtedly come into fashion."

Blankness.

"Is that poetry what you call blank verse?"

"I think so," answered Miss Cayenne. "Anyway it reads as if the mind of the man who wrote it was a blank."

Quite True.

First Convict—Well, all I've got to say is, poverty is no crime.

Second Convict—No, it isn't. If it was this old palace sure would be crowded to the top.

A Good Investment.

"So you are going to give up work, my man? But can you afford to retire?"

"Oh, yes, sir. I'm going to be married."

Natural Propensity.

"How was it you managed to teach your parrot such long learned words?" "Why, it was quite natural for a parrot to take to polly-syllables."

Nothing of the Sort.

"I understood the two men had quite an epistolary argument."

"No pistols about it. They took it out in writing letters."

Not Possible.

"I read an account somewhere of an odorless onion."

"That must be about as interesting as a smokeless pipe."

One Kind of Ability.

Hewitt—Grues claims to have considerable ability in his head.

Jewett—Yes, I have seen him wag his ears.

LOOKING AHEAD.

"Why were you so determined to kiss that homely cousin of yours?" "I wanted to establish a precedent; she has two pretty sisters, you know."

Unfailing Abundance.

Of shortages we've often heard Throughout the nation. No shortage ever has occurred in conversation.

He Was Right.

Mike—What's the best thing to drown one's sorrows in, Pat?

Pat—Perspiration! Hard work will kill them.

In the Clock Store.

The Minute Hand—I say, let's strike. The Hour Hand—For shorter hours? The Minute Hand—Yes, for a forty-minute one.

Retort Courteous.

She—I will marry none but a worthy man.

He—Stranger than their exact opposit.

Funerals
March 30—Mrs. Fred Gorchy, of Princess Anne, visited her brother, Mr. B. C. Dryden, this week.

Mrs. Clara Godfrey and children, of near Snow Hill, after visiting the home of Mr. and Mrs. H. R. Shockley, left this week to visit in Salisbury.

Mrs. Harry Thornley and son, of Williamsport, Pa., were guests at the home of Mrs. Thornley's uncle, Messrs. F. W. and James T. Marriner, Friday and Saturday of last week.

Death entered our community again this week taking for its victim the five-month-old baby of Mr. and Mrs. B. C. Dryden. Burial services were held at Somerset Methodist Episcopal Church Wednesday, interment in the cemetery adjoining.

Mr. Fender Culver and Mr. J. D. West returned home Wednesday after accompanying Mrs. West and little son to Salisbury, at which place the latter is undergoing treatment for abscess of the throat. Mrs. West is stopping at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Figg, of that city.

Upper Extremities
March 29—Mr. William A. Ford is on the sick list.

Mr. Jerome Landon is very ill at his home in Landville.

Mr. and Mrs. M. Guy Walker, of Crisfield, were recent visitors at the home of Mrs. Jeannette Chelton.

Mr. Arthur Todd has returned home after visiting relatives in Baltimore.

Dr. L. T. Warner, president of Maryland Annual Conference, occupied the pulpit of Salem Methodist Protestant Church last Sunday morning.

Rev. George E. Sterling, pastor of Christ Methodist Episcopal Church will leave on Tuesday for Wilmington, Del., to attend the Wilmington Methodist Episcopal Conference, held at that place.

The entertainment given by the Jamestown School at the church hall on Thursday evening was a success. A large audience was present and a nice sum realized for the Red Cross and War Children's Relief.

Federal Farm Loans

More than 4,000 farmers were accommodated with loans from the Federal Farm Loan Board's funds during the month of January. Their aggregate borrowings were about $15,000,000. These loans were for long periods and at interest rates much below those charged by private lenders. Many thousands of farmers have been directly benefited by this Federal loan plan since its inception, and thousands more have reaped an indirect advantage through the reduction in interest rates brought about by this governmental agency.

New Massacres Of Armenians

Terrible tales are made public by our State Department, as from "reliable sources," of massacres of Armenians by Turks. It is reported that 20,000 Armenians have lately been put to death in and near Marash, in Asia Minor, about 100 miles north of Aleppo. This happened after French troops, which had been protecting the place, had retreated. There is constant fighting between the Turks and the French, and the latter are greatly outnumbered.

The dreadful affair has caused a new demand in this country that the Turks shall be driven out of Europe—though this massacre was in Asia. The Christian nations of the world are begged to give protection to the long-persecuted Armenians, either through the League of Nations or in some other united way. The Armenians are a Christian people. They claim to be the oldest Christian nation in the world. But they live in a region surrounded and ruled by Mohammedan Turks. For fifteen centuries Armenians have kept their Christian faith at the cost of frightful persecutions. It seems clear that as one of the results of the war Armenia should be made independent and protected from the fanatical fury of the Turks, who consider it a pious virtue to kill Christians.

U. S. Must Have A Big Navy

Unless the United States ratifies the Treaty of Peace and becomes a member of the League of Nations we must pay the enormous costs of building up a Navy "incomparably the greatest in the world." That is what Secretary Daniels tells the House Committee on Naval affairs.

The Secretary presented to the Committee three plans. One called for no new ships except such as are necessary to "round out" the fleet now building, and finish the work already begun. This plan the Secretary said would be safe and prudent if the United States is to be in the League and have the benefit of its support.

If we are to remain outside the League, subject to attack by powerful enemies, then it would be suicidal not to be prepared for such attack, with a Navy superior to any other. It would be expensive but vitally necessary.

If the Senate takes no action at all on the treaty at this session, but leaves the question open for future decision, then the Secretary would recommend as a middle course what is known as the "Sixty-nine Ship Program." This would cost about $195,000,000.

Mr. Daniels did not give estimates of the cost of the other two plans. One would cost little, the other a vast sum of money.

PROTECTION FOR MUSKRATS

Mr. Calder's Bill To Save Little Animal From Extinction

Mr. Milbourne introduced a bill in the House which is designed to save muskrats from following the path of taroquin to extinction. The measure was prepared by Mr. C. G. Calder, of Somerset county, who is a member of the new State Board of Agriculture. From Somerset come reports of the rapid extinction of the little animal from the marshes. In Worcester, however, it is claimed, that the rodents are holding their own. In that county methods have been established and are being practiced for their preservation and protection. The demand for the pelts of the little animals in their worst season. Twenty years ago the pelts were drags in the market at 25 cents each. Today they find ready sale at $4.50. The carcasses, which formerly went to the waste heap, is now 30 cents each. A trapper in Dorchester county is said to have made over $10,000 during the present season. The total sales of pelts in the county, according to reports, have exceeded $500,000 for this season.

The bill introduced last Tuesday by Mr. Milbourne provides for licenses for trappers. The total cost of each license is $1.75. In addition the bill provides that "Every person who purchases, barter or sells muskrat furs, except persons who kills such muskrats, shall pay to the Clerk of Court of said county or city the sum of $50 as a traders' license, unless said person or persons are merchants holding a traders' license." Ample penalties are provided for violations of the act.

Bills have been introduced to extend the closed season for muskrats.

Sky Illuminated By Bright Light

Monday night of last week those of our citizens interested in such things, might have witnessed a most remarkable aurora. Being visible a little after sunset as a pale, yellowish light in the northern sky, it gradually spread around to the east and west and up toward the zenith. At first it was rather quiescent, but as the evening advanced it became violently active, and at times would shoot up rapidly from the horizon in wavelike streams and cover most of the sky.

Shortly after eight o'clock until after ten the sky was illuminated by a web of white light, that flickered, and shed gleams of pinkish hue, purple, green and yellow. One told another of the wonderful spectacle in the heavens until groups began to collect and all watched the strange night with necks craned heavenward.

"Dear, Lisa, dear world am comin' to an end," said a colored man to his wife as both gazed skyward to the spectacular view in the northern skies. And they were not the only ones who felt some apprehension at the wonderful Aurora Borealis, the Northern Lights.

Mrs. Emily Porter Dead

Mrs. Emily Porter died at her home in Salisbury last Tuesday morning about 1 o'clock. She was 72 years old and was born near Fruitland in 1847 in what was then Somerset county. Her husband, Capt. McKemie Porter, and she celebrated their 50th wedding anniversary this year. They were married in 1870.

Mrs. Porter is survived by her husband, Captain Porter, and two brothers, Captain George Twigg, of Baltimore, and John Twigg, of Virginia. The funeral services were conducted at her home at 11 o'clock Thursday morning, and the remains were interred in the family plot in the Allen cemetery.

"The Heiress Hunters" April 7th

On Wednesday, April 7th, the Junior class of Washington High School will present "The Heiress Hunters," a clever three-act comedy, at the Auditorium, Princess Anne. Suppose you could choose between marrying a beautiful heiress and a Spanish model who was constantly threatening you with a dagger, which would you take? Dick, of the Junior class, chose the Spanish girl, in this funny comedy.

Civic Club To Meet

The attention is called of all the members of the Civic Club to the meeting which will be held at the Washington Hotel on Wednesday afternoon, March 31st, at 2:30 o'clock. The annual election of officers, discussion of the approaching "Clean Up Week" and other matters of interest will come up at this time. A full attendance is earnestly requested.

Services At St. Andrew's This Week

Holy week services at St. Andrew's Church as follows: Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday at 4:30 p. m.; Thursday, celebration of the Holy Communion at 10:30 a. m.; Litany at 4:30 p. m.; Good Friday, morning prayer at 10:30 a. m.; Litany and Penitential office at 3 p. m.; Easter Sunday—April 4th—celebration of the Holy Communion at 7 and 11 o'clock a. m.

PULLMAN THIEF IN JAIL HERE

Brought From Baltimore to Princess Anne Last Friday Night

Claris Nye Corwine, 24 years old, claiming Delavan, Ill., his home, was released from the jail at Eastville, Va., and taken to Crisfield Monday of last week by Deputy United States Marshall Hickman and arraigned before United States Commissioner Wyatt on a charge of robbing passengers on a railroad sleeper between Delmar and Cape Charles. Corwine plead guilty and was held under $5,000 bail for the Federal grand jury.

Deputy Marshall Hickman took Corwine to Baltimore, where the Federal authorities decided that it was not a case for the Federal Court, so he was brought to Princess Anne last Friday night and lodged in jail.

Corwine was accompanied to Princess Anne by Chief Gunner's Mate Charles L. Lilly, of the Naval Recruiting Station at 125 E. Baltimore street, Baltimore, who was instructed to consult the civil authorities here and endeavor to have him released because of his mental condition. Corwine enlisted in the Navy February 11th, 1920, and was discharged March 18th, 1920, because of mental deficiency. He then went to New York and again enlisted in the Navy March 15th, two days after his discharge, and it was while on his way to Norfolk to re-enter the service that he robbed the Pullman passengers on the N. Y., P. & N. Railroad. The prisoner was also accompanied to Princess Anne by his brother, G. D. Corwine, who came from Walcott, Montana, to intercede in his behalf.

After a hearing Saturday morning the accused was held in default of $1,000 bail to await the action of the grand jury at the next term of the Circuit Court, which convenes April 12.

Salvation Army Campaign

Salisbury and the whole of Wicomico county is going to be asked very soon to raise some money for the Home Service work of the Salvation Army. In fact, an effort is being made now to form an organization for the carrying on of a campaign which will raise for that great Christian organization in Wicomico county, $2,850.

The campaign will be waged thruout the county from May 10th to May 20th, and the counties of Wicomico, Worcester and Somerset will be combined in the raising of a quota of $8,005. This will be apportioned as follows: Wicomico, $2,850; Worcester, $2,300; Somerset, $2,850.

Each of the counties will have its individual chairman and its own campaign committees. In addition, there will be a number of districts in each county and each district will have its own chairman. The entire work will be directed by a member of the State Committee and it is expected that some rousing rallies will be presented.

Older Boys' Conference

"Additional announcement in connection with the Older Boys' Conference to be conducted by the Eastern Shore District Young Men's Christian Association Committee for the nine counties, at Salisbury, April 16-18, is made to the effect that United States Senator Selden P. Spencer, of Missouri, one of the ablest men in the Senate, will be one of the two main speakers at the conference dinner to be held Friday night the 16th. C. C. Robinson, Boys' Secretary, International Young Men's Christian Association Committee, New York, will be present throughout the conference. He is one of the best authorities and speakers on Sunday School and Young Men's Christian Association boys' work. Of special interest to Eastern Shore people will be the announcement that Lieutenant Colonel A. W. Woodcock, of Salisbury, will be one of the conference speakers.

Mish Out For Congress

State Senator Frank W. Mish, of Washington county, last Tuesday announced his candidacy for the Democratic nomination for Congress in the Sixth district. Alban M. Wood, of Frederick, also is a candidate for the nomination.

The indications are, that most of the organized forces in the district will line up behind Senator Mish. He carried Washington county last fall, in the face of the county's normal tendency to the Republicans and the Republican tide, and the politicians look on him as a vote getter. Also, he is said to make a strong appeal to the farmers, and his stand for modification of the rigid prohibition laws is expected to aid him.

It will pay to spray fruit trees, as the present price of fruit justifies considerable care being given the home orchards. Farmers interested in spraying can obtain a spray calendar by applying to County Agent C. Z. Keller.

To Remove U. S. Hero Dead

An agreement under which American dead in France, whether within or behind the battle zone, may be removed to the United States as soon as arrangements have been completed, has been reached at a conference between representatives of the French and American Governments. The agreement awaits the approval of the French Government.

The conference decision, as transmitted by Ambassador Wallace, was sent last week to Chairman Porter, of the House Foreign Affairs Committee, by the State Department.

"This practically ends the controversy between the United States and France over the return of our soldier dead," said Mr. Porter. "I am confident the French commission did not make the recommendation without the full knowledge of Premier Millerand, with whom we carried on all our negotiations."

Secretary Baker recently wrote Congress that about 50,000 of the American dead would be brought home at the request of the nearest of kin and that the remainder, about 20,000 would be concentrated in major cemeteries in France which would be maintained by the War Department.

To Auction State's Land

The Wolfe bill, under which Fleming Lankford, son of the Superintendent of the House of Correction, was to get 8 1/2 acres of the Gardner tract on the Washington Boulevard for $1,000, was reported from the Senate Finance Committee last Tuesday with an amendment which virtually nullifies the agreement of sale made by the Board of Prison Control.

The amendment is a new bill merely authorizing the board to sell the tract at public auction and will not go into effect until June 1.

When the bill was first favorably reported Senator Metzgerot declared that he would bind himself to pay $2,000 for the land, and if he got it at that figure would expect to sell it at once for $2,500 to $3,000.

Senator McIntosh immediately asked that the bill be recommitted.

Goodman's, The Mecca For Shoppers

Last Friday and Saturday Goodman's store was the scene of many attractions in millinery and ladies' wearing apparel for the Easter season as well as for Spring and Summer wear. The proprietors stated that many hats have been sold and that the ladies showed themselves to be grateful for the practical aid given in the selection of millinery, coats and suits. New millinery received yesterday include many small hats, turbans and a wide variety of wonderful styles and shapes. Gay, bright-hued flowers, fruits, ribbons, fancy quills, fancy pins and colored facings are the trimmings used to produce the loveliest creations. In ladies' suits you will find the newest weaves in colors, gay or sombre, whichever you may prefer. The style detail perfect—the materials beautiful.

TOMATO PACKERS IN A QUANDARY

Situation Confronting Them Grave Farmers Want High Prices

Tomato packers of Maryland, New Jersey and Delaware have recently made representations to the War Department concerning the grave situation confronting them. It is claimed by the packers that the past season proved unprofitable to them because of the demoralization of the market due to the vast supplies of canned goods, particularly tomatoes, thrown upon the market by the War Department as "surplus" after the armistice was declared, and in some sections, particularly on the Eastern Shore and in Delaware, the canners have refused to make contracts for acreage with the farmers for the coming season because they have been unable to form an estimate of the demand for the next pack.

On the other hand, the farmers have stood out for prices which the packers regard as impossible. The result has been a situation so unsettled that the outlook for the next season is disquieting both to the packers and to the farmer.

This situation promises to be greatly relieved, so far, at least, as the packer is affected, by a statement which has just been completed by both the War and Navy Department, showing the amount of canned tomatoes on hand by both departments and how much of it will be thrown on the market in competition with the packers' goods.

According to this tabulation, the War Department has an amount equal to only about 200,000 cases of No. 3 size, an amount which the packers may regard as almost negligible.

The amount of canned tomatoes held by the Navy which might possibly come upon the market, is equal to about 40,000 cases No. 3 size, so that the total amount of Government cans of tomatoes will not exceed 240,000 cases No. 3 size.

This amount is so insignificant as compared with the annual consumption of canned tomatoes that the packers will feel justified in making immediate preparation for a full season's pack if they can come to an understanding on price with the growers.

Eastern Shoremen Meet

The Eastern Shore Society held a special meeting at the Hotel Rennett, Baltimore, to observe Maryland Day, a custom that was inaugurated last year when Mr. W. Thomas Kemp was president. Mr. Kemp made an address on Old White Marsh Church in Talbot, a landmark of the early colonists on the eastern side of the bay. The third church on the site, completed in 1750, was destroyed by fire in 1897, portions of the walls being left standing.

A cedar gavel, used Thursday night by President Samuel K. Dennis, was presented by Mr. Kemp to Secretary Shannahan. It was made of wood from the church site and encircled by a silver band bearing the names of the seven successive presidents of the Society—Dr. J. Clement Clark, from Caroline, superintendent of Springfield Hospital; Dr. James Sordley, from Queen Anne's, a lieutenant colonel in the Medical Corps of the United States Army during the war and in charge of blinded soldiers at Evergreen; former Judge Winder Laird Henry, from Dorchester; B. Howard Haman, from Kent; former Governor Phillips, Lee Goldsborough, from Dorchester; W. Thomas Kemp, from Talbot, chairman of the State Conservation Commission, and Samuel K. Dennis, from Worcester, United States District Attorney at Baltimore.

The amendment is a new bill merely authorizing the board to sell the tract at public auction and will not go into effect until June 1.

Suffrage Ratified By 35 States

If Delaware ratifies the Anthony Suffrage Amendment, it will be the thirty-sixth State to do so, thus providing the necessary two-thirds of the forty-eight States to make the Suffrage Amendment a law and give women in all States the ballot.

The amendment was unanimously ratified by the Senate of the State of Washington on Monday of last week, the House having previously passed a ratifying resolution.

Ratification of the Amendment has been made by these thirty-five states: Wisconsin, Michigan, New York, Ohio, Kansas, Illinois, Pennsylvania, Texas, Massachusetts, Iowa, Missouri, Utah, Arkansas, Montana, Nebraska, New Hampshire, Minnesota, North Dakota, California, Maine, South Dakota, Colorado, Rhode Island, Kentucky, Oregon, Wyoming, Nevada, Indiana, New Jersey, Idaho, Arizona, New Mexico, West Virginia, Oklahoma and Washington.

The six States which have refused to ratify are: Mississippi, Alabama, Georgia, South Carolina, Virginia and Maryland.

These States have yet to act: North Carolina, Florida, Vermont, Connecticut, Louisiana, Tennessee and Delaware.

WILMINGTON M. E. CONFERENCE

Convened In Grace Church, Wilmington, Last Wednesday

The Wilmington Methodist Episcopal Conference convened in Grace Church, Wilmington, Del., last Wednesday morning. The conference was opened by Bishop W. F. McDowell, of Washington. The Rev. D. W. Jacobs was elected secretary; the Rev. Walter E. Gunby, statistician; the Rev. Vinal E. Hills, treasurer. The Rev. J. W. R. Sumwalt is conference host. The Rev. Dr. Carlisle L. Hubbard, formerly of Baltimore, led the evangelistic service that afternoon. The Rev. Dr. G. T. Alderson presided at the Foreign Mission anniversary at night. Speakers were the Revs. E. W. Bysse and G. F. Sutherland.

The character of the Rev. Dr. George P. Jones, of Elkton, was passed without challenge or comment at the opening session. No defense was necessary because no charges were made or intimated.

For five years Dr. Jones has been the pastor of the church at Elkton, and is said to have performed fully half of the marriage ceremonies at this Maryland Getna Green in that period. There has been criticism of his matrimonial activities in Elkton, but none in the Methodist Conference. The chief source of the criticism is believed by Dr. Jones' fellow ministers to be jealousy of a minister's earning an honest dollar in addition to his salary. Dr. Jones, perhaps, earned about $5,000 a year by marriages, it is said.

At Thursday's session a memorial indorsing suffrage and calling upon the Delaware legislature, now in special session, to ratify the amendment was passed almost unanimously by the ministers.

A memorial condemning the tendency of the church to lean more and more toward worldly amusements was passed at the afternoon session Thursday and exhortations to other conferences to make the same stand as Wilmington were added.

Dr. Watt, in his report to the Conference, condemned the use of churches for "bazaars, suppers and entertainments," claiming that indiscriminate use of the edifices tend to lower the moral standard of the church and lessen people's appreciation of the Methodist religion.

After considerable balloting last Friday the conference elected delegates to the general conference. The ministers elected two on the first ballot, District Superintendents Robert Watt and W. A. Wise, but several ballots were required to elect the others. The delegates elected were District Superintendents Watt, Wise and W. R. Mowbray, and the Rev. H. T. Budd, for the ministers, and E. C. Hardesty, of Wilmington, Judge Henry C. Conrad, of Dover, L. Atwood Bennett, of Salisbury, Md., and J. W. Wheatley, of Easton, Md.

Judge Conrad and several others spoke briefly. A plea was made for more salaries for the ministers and resolutions adopted favoring increases. It was declared that ministers are compelled to leave the churches in order to make a living and that each year the ranks of the ministers are getting thinner. It was declared that something must be done to stop this tendency.

State Marriage Law Improved.

By vote last Thursday, 80 to 14, the House passed to the second reading the Eppler-Joseph marriage bill. In speaking of the bill Mr. Joseph said:

"I feel very gratified at having finally passed a substantial amendment to the marriage law which I believe will do a great deal toward eliminating the evils which have been so prevalent in the past. Since 1914 I have introduced at each session of the General Assembly a marriage bill in the hope of correcting the evils which have placed a stain upon Maryland's good name."

The amendment proposed raise the age of consent from 16 to 18 years of age for the female and makes it obligatory for one of the contracting parties to appear in person before the marriage clerk in order to obtain the license. There is no question in my mind but what many of the infant and objectionable marriages were caused by the parties desiring to evade the law securing some irresponsible person to secure the license for them. This irresponsible person would simply swear that the answers given to the questions prepared by the clerk were true to the best of their knowledge and belief and the only knowledge they possessed was that given them by the party desiring to evade the law. No one could be charged with perjury.

By the adopted amendment the contracting party, swearing falsely to the statements can be convicted for perjury. This will deter many from seeking to obtain a license unlawfully.

I believe that the bill as passed will go a long way toward preventing the long existing marriage evil in this State.

OF INTEREST TO TOMATOGROWERS

Recommendations By Prof. Beatty To Increase Yield

At the recent meeting of the Tri-State Packers Association held in Wilmington, Del., Professor Beatty, who had been appointed on a committee to formulate a plan to bring about increased production of tomatoes, made his report, which was a most excellent one and combined the results of many years' experiments by the Government and State institutions on this line. His recommendations, in part, follows:

Select land that is well drained, in a good state of fertility and in good physical condition as a result of proper treatment during previous seasons, and which has not been in tomatoes, potatoes, peppers or egg plants for at least three years.

Crop rotation is essential. Leguminous or other green manuring crops should be plowed under as often as possible. Conditions vary so greatly regarding staple crops in the tomato-growing centers that it would not seem feasible to use the same rotation in all places. Consult with your county agent for recommendation on crop rotation.

The importance of good seed cannot be over estimated, as poor seed is dear at any price. The greatest menace to the canning industry is poor seed, especially canary-run seed, often saved from low-yielding plants, which are diseased and are not true to style. Some of the most successful growers in this territory are paying as high as $20 per pound for well-selected, high-producing seed, whereas many growers are demanding seed which shall cost them not over $1 to $1.50 per pound, which generally result in poor yields. Many successful growers are raising their own seed, which cannot be bought at any price.

The use of home-grown seed is strongly recommended. The growers should take steps to secure next year's supply of seed through selection from this year's crop. Select high-yielding plants. Before any tomatoes are picked from the field, go over the plants very carefully and stake hills which are high yielding and disease-resistant with fruit of high quality and true to type for the variety in question.

The use of a new seed bed each year presents many points of advantage. If an old seed bed must be used, sterilize it. Directions for sterilizing seed beds may be obtained from Farmers' Bulletin 996, U. S. Department of Agriculture, or from your county agent.

Thick seeding, high temperature and excessive moisture will produce soft, tender, tall and thin-stemmed plants, and should always be avoided by the tomato grower. Stocky, well-grown, well-hardened plants are essential, and well worked the necessary work and effort required to secure them. Reject all plants that are diseased or off color.

Greater yields can be secured when the plants are set in the field than is now the practice. It is desirable to set the plants in the field as soon after May 10 as local conditions will permit. In order to secure the plants it will be necessary to use cold frames and hot-beds. To have the plants ready May 10th to 15th, it is necessary to sow the seed March 10th to April 1st. Plants that have been transplanted before setting in the field are stronger and give better results.

Early plowing of the land is desirable. Plow as deeply as the soil will permit. Gradually deepen the depth of plowing a half inch to an inch each season until the soil is at least eight inches deep. In case a cover crop is to be plowed under, disking is recommended before plowing. Thoroughly prepare the land. A seed bed consisting of three or four inches of thoroughly fined soil is desirable.

Commercial fertilizers applied at the rate of 1,000 pounds per acre is recommended. Six hundred pounds of this should be broadcasted before the field is laid off. Four hundred pounds additional should be applied in the rows about ten days before setting. About four to six weeks after setting apply, if necessary, 150 pounds of nitrate of soda as a side dressing. Be careful that nitrate does not fall on the foliage.

If well-rotted stable manure is available, use this broadcast as a top dressing and disc into the soil before planting. When moderate applications of manure are made, 400 pounds of 4-8-4 fertilizer per acre in rows under the plants will be sufficient.

Plants should be removed from the seed bed carefully, saving as much of the root system as possible. Plant in rows six feet apart, spacing the plants three feet apart in the rows, if the crop is to be sprayed, or if green crops as crimson clover are to be planted between the rows. If the plants are not to be sprayed, but green crops are to be planted, the distance of setting may be varied from the above-recommended distance. Plants should be "watered in" if set in dry weather, and should be set deeply so that only a few inches are exposed.

Pick when the vines are dry to prevent spread of leaf spot or blight by hands and clothing of pickers.

Successful tomato growing depends on good seed, good plants, proper fertilization, careful handling, clean cultivation and disease control. The practice of the recommendations will enable the tri-State to retain the position they have previously held in the tomato growing and canning industry.

FROM HEAVEN VIA CAROLINE

By H. LOUIS RAYBOLD

(Copyright 1919, by McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

Down on their knees before the bed, their scant front hair twisted in grotesque curls, the two Nelson sisters were saying their prayers. To be accurate, it was Sarah who was doing the actual petitioning, but her words found an eager echo in Fanny's heart. "Dear Lord, send us a sign. We're at the end of our rope. O Lord, you know we must decide tomorrow. If it be meant that we keep our little place, send us a sign from heaven. Let it be that the money we take in over the counter comes to five dollars—was it five, Fanny? If we don't get that much we'll know that it was best for us to sell. Amen."

Solemnly arising, they climbed into their high four-poster, and without a word, folded their withered hands beneath the patchwork comfortable and sought refuge from their worries in ritual slumber.

The last of their line, except for an errand, harum-scarum nephew, "out West in Kansas," the Nelson sisters had been facing for some years a steadily decreasing income. So far they had managed to hang on to the old homestead by closing up the main portion of the house and living in an ell, one room of which they had turned into a tiny shop, the proceeds of which seldom averaged four dollars a day, but served to pay their taxes and very semi-occasional repairs.

Not many people nowadays in Farmington remembered when the "Nelson girls" were young. To the newer generation they were just two old maids, who kept a little store "where you can buy anything you want, my dear, from little cakes and souvenir spoons to Chinese jilly bulbs that grow in stones set in water."

School children stopped in on their way to school to buy a penny's worth of candy, out-of-town visitors drifted in and poked around, and—there was Caroline.

The sisters often said they would have had to go out of business long ago had it not been for Caroline. Ever since she was a brown-curled little thing of five she had been a regular customer. And she was the only one who heard at all regularly from Billy, the harum-scarum nephew.

To Caroline, and indeed to everyone, the two women often declared it was a great trial to them to keep the shop. It was not right that women, particularly of their bringing-up, should have to "work."

As a matter of fact, interest in their little store was the one thing life held to color their gray days. Without it, they could have done nothing but sit in the windows of the big house and watch life go by—go by without ever turning to wave a hand at them. No—there was one other thing they could do besides that, and it seemed more than likely that that was just what they would have to do. They could sell the old house, and with the proceeds take out a lease until death of a brightly furnished, utterly unindividual room in the Home for Aged Women.

For several years, Charlie Wallace, Farmington's very up-and-coming real estate agent, had pestered the life out of them with offers for the house—not very large offers. As long as the meager earnings of the little shop had been just sufficient to carry them by, they had refused. But recently, since their complaints had swept the country, people hadn't been so desirous of paying their wares—not even the Chinese jilly bulbs guaranteed to bloom by Easter.

Letters to Billy, whom they had brought up as their own son until he had grown old enough to seize a wild opportunity to go West and make a "pile," had not been answered. Earnestly and often the aunts assured each other that the letters had never reached him. Yet deep in their old hearts each felt that the only man in the family to whom they could go, even for advice, had failed them.

And now the day of decision was at hand. Charlie Wallace was coming around at eight o'clock that morning to get their final word as to whether they would sell. And true to their New England tradition, they had laid their burden in the hands of the Lord.

In the morning, Sarah arose an hour earlier than usual to take down the shutters. A passing milkman, fortifying himself with a cruller, might make the very difference between five plus and five minus.

Little by little during the day, tickled in the pennies and dimes and occasionally quarters. Along about three o'clock, the tin box held nearly three dollars. At five, Jimmy Williams' purchase of crackers and cheese brought the total up to three-fifty. A few minutes later, a neighbor paid up a small account of one dollar. Four-fifty! Then came Caroline.

Her purchases came to 30 cents. Then she decided on a bottle of four-rate pen ink—she bought a great deal of that—that made 45 cents. The two old women watched her as she tucked her packages under her arm and started slowly for the door, her eyes sweeping the shelves for something she might have forgotten. They looked upon her as holding in her small Chinese spoon the very mandate of the Lord; yet no sign or word or sign would they utter.

"I guess that will be all," she said brightly, one hand on the door. At that moment the six o'clock whistle from Farmington's one factory broke shrilly on the air. That meant closing time. The shop never had any evening trade.

As Caroline went out, Sarah looked at Fanny and Fanny looked at Sarah, and in that brief interchange of glances was expressed all that they saw descending upon them—the final putting up of the shutters, the last sight of the filled shelves, the locking of the door, themselves on the outside.

"Oh, I forgot," sounded the voice of the Lord's emissary on the doorstep. "Did said to bring him home an apple pie, if you had one. Have you?"

"Thank the Lord, yes!" almost sobbed Fanny. "Here it is!"

When Charlie Wallace came at eight, he had a very short conversation with Sarah, who as the elder by two years transacted all business. Quite confident that there was nothing else for the "old girls" to do than to meet his price, he was astounded to get a refusal, and left with a slightly sarcastic comment as to their folly in refusing such an eminently remarkable offer.

And the two sisters themselves figuratively drew down in their belts as he went out.

"Hello—hello!" Who was that tall bronzed youth just blown in like a breeze?

"Billy!" cried the aunts; then, sure of it, "Billy!"

"It's me," he said. "Just dropped off the old sixty-five. I got your letter and decided it was quicker to answer in person."

Much excited conversation followed. And at the end, while Billy made way with the mate to Caroline's apple pie, he said quite casually: "I'll buy the house, Aunt Sarah. It's just what I want."

"Why—why, you sound as if you had made your pile," said Fanny shyly. "I sure did," he said, "and then some."

"But will you want so big a place?" asked Sarah.

"I think we will—Caroline and I," said Billy.

"Caroline?"

"Who else?" asked Billy, indignantly.

"I always said I'd come back to her, and I just stopped now on my way up from the station to ask her to marry me very soon. She said 'yes.' And you needn't work in this old shop any more."

Sarah and Fanny each gave a little gasp. They would have said it was a sign of relief.

But Caroline, some days later, discussing the matter with Billy, said: "Don't take the shop away from them, darling. It will be wonderful to buy the house and have them make their home there—but they would miss the little store, even if they don't admit it."

"Whatever you say, goes," said Billy.

IN EVERYTHING TOPSY TURVY

Dress, Manners, and Customs in China Are Direct Opposites of Those of the West.

Men wear gowns and women trousers in China, which is one of the customs that makes the land topsy turvy. Upon meeting a friend, the Chinaman shakes hands with himself, not with the friend. In hot sunshine he shades not the nape of his neck, but the front of his head, while returning home he refreshes himself with a cup of tea, putting the saucer on top of the cup and not under it.

It is not unknown in China to kill one's enemy, but it is more common form of revenge to heap shame upon an enemy by committing suicide at his doorstep. Many other instances can be mentioned which make the Chinaman different from the Westerner. Thus, he likes eggs not newly laid, but those that have been buried for several years. He drinks his wine hot instead of cold. Books are printed to begin at the end and work backward, with the lines reading from the top of the page downward, add from right to left.

The most unusual Chinese way in rowing a boat is to "yuloh," with one long oar at the stern. When two oars or sculls are used, the Chinaman, contrary to the European's method, stands and pushes instead of sitting and pulling. If he sits he leans back against the stern and thrusts on the handle of the oar with his feet.

Dickens' Appreciation of Himself.

That Dickens was fully cognizant of the reception his writings would receive from many persons is shown by the following quotations from his Charles Dickens edition of "Martin Chuzzlewit": "What is exaggeration to one class of minds and perceptions is plain truth to another." And "I have never touched a character precisely from the life, but some counterpart of that character has incredulously asked me: 'Now, really, did I ever really see one like that?'" And "All the Pecksniff family upon earth are quite agreed, I believe, that such a character as Mr. Pecksniff is an exaggeration and that no such character ever existed."

Sometimes Happens.

"A man that's too set on pavin' his own way," said Jud Tunkins, "is mighty liable, along towards nightfall, to find himself ringin' doorbells and inquire how to get back to the main road."

Tastes and Odors of Wood.
Though most native American woods are without pronounced odor or taste, American Forestry notes that woods of the laurel family, such as sassafras and California laurel or myrtle, have a distinct spicy odor and taste. Port Oxford cedar has a very spicy, resinous odor; other cedars, especially pencil cedar or juniper, a more aromatic odor, Hemlock has a slightly sour odor, while cypress is somewhat rancid.

Noticed It at Ones.

I am the owner of two dogs, a black cocker spaniel and a white long-haired Scotch terrier. One day a little girl came in to play with them. We were out in the yard, both dogs sitting on the porch, when I noticed that she would look intently at me, then at the dogs. She did that several times, then said, "Why! your dogs don't look one bit like you."—Exchange.

WEAR RATTLES ON ANKLES

Girls of Mozambique Don Their in Keeping Time in Their Peculiar Dances.

Consider a country as big as the Atlantic states from Florida to New York, with the capital near the southern boundary, having a population of more than 300,000 inhabitants, of whom only about 1 per cent are white, and you have Mozambique, a Portuguese colony in Africa to the south of what was German East Africa, says a bulletin of the National Geographic society.

Mozambique is one of the oldest of all European possessions, and one of the richest in agricultural possibilities, but is one of the least known countries in the world. There are five towns and a small, up-to-date capital city, with a number of military posts and outposts. There are no deserts, salt sinks, swamps or mountainous wastes. The colony is altogether inhabited by about twenty tribes.

Among the curious customs of the land is the wearing of rattles by the girls on their ankles at dances. Hollow spheres are made of palm leaf or grass and are partially filled with large seeds or pebbles. The noise of these ankle rattles is supposed to assist in keeping time in the dance. Similar ornaments are frequently worn by the boys.

The popular music used at a bafuque or ball is that of the marimba, or huge xylophone, which gives out a blood-freezing death chant during the "expression" dances of both men and women.

PEPPER TREE OF GREAT SIZE

Also Is of Quick Growth and Its Drooping Branches Are Particularly Ornamental.

As the elm or maple tree is to the New England village, so is the pepper tree (Schinus molle) to southern California cities and towns. For beauty of shape and color, for grace and for shade, it is a tree almost unique. Being of quick growth, the pepper tree soon attains a large, luxuriant size and the great drooping branches form cool archways which protect passers-by from the too vigorous rays of the summer sun.

The delicate feather leaves droop and sway like those of the weeping willow. Silvery green, they glisten in the yellow sunlight, and when the panicles or clusters of tiny pale flowers festoon each slender branch, the whole tree is a shimmering, fairy bouquet. Soon the path under the archway is sprinkled with the tiny greenish flowers, and grape-like bunches of green berries hang from the trees.

Later, as if touched by a mysterious fire, a vivid red flames from each branch of berries. The sunshine glances through the green feathered leaves upon the swinging bunches of red fruit, and the trees glow in color. The breezes lift and turn, shake and twist the myriad brilliant berries until soon a gorgeous scarlet mantle is spread for all to tread upon.—Christian Science Monitor.

Laughing in Your Sleeve.

Judging by the fact that we have this expression in French, German and Latin, there must be a lot of surreptitious laughter in the world. But a laugh's a laugh for all that, and it's good for the digestion. It's hard to see how anyone could have a laugh in any of the tight little sleeves that are de rigueur this season. There's hardly room to have an arm in them. But not so in the "bell" sleeve of last summer, which was a diminutive replica of the sleeves worn by the ancients, who, not concerned with changing fashions with the seasons, wore one style long enough to make it famous. With them, when anyone seemed to be screening his face behind the long flowing folds of his sleeve, there was always the suspicion that he was "laughing in his sleeve." And to this day laughing behind anyone's back, whether it be a fan or a hat that screens it, we call laughing in your sleeve.

Inglorious Obstructionists.

Some folks are at their best in spragging the progress of others. They mistake the right to obstruct for evidence of the power to construct. Yet what child does not know the difference? Any fool can stand in the way of progress. And the more obstinate he is the better success will he have. But the fact that he dare oppose himself to the combined judgment of others does not prove him a man of strength. In fact, the chances are against his being in the right. There may be some pleasure in bucking the crowd, but it takes a hero or a fool to do it. All honor to the man who, knowing he is right, dares to face any odds in the exercise of his conviction. The world will hear from such in the buildings they leave as marks to fidelity and faith.—Grit.

Plant's Great Vitality.

There is a creeping moss found in Jamaica, in Barbados and other islands of the West Indies, which is called the "life tree," or, more properly, the "life plant." Its powers of vitality are said to be beyond those of any other plant. It is believed to be indestructible by any means except immersion in boiling water or the application of a red-hot iron. It may be cut up and divided in any manner and the smallest shreds will throw out roots, grow and bud. The leaves of this extraordinary plant have been planted in a close, airtight, dark box, without moisture of any kind, and still they grew.

ALL FOR FREEDOM

Desperate Chances to Escape Taken by Prisoners.

Even When Almost Certain Death Is Faced, Convicts Have Been Known to Go On With Their Efforts.

Pepper got his cognomen from his method of highway robbery. Walking along the street in the evening, he carried an unlighted pipe between his teeth. When, in some lonesome spot, he saw a pedestrian stop to light a cigar, Pepper would accost him, asking him to "hold the match." When the fellow traveler obliged, Pepper, instead of lighting his innocent-looking pipe, turned it toward the eyes of his victim, and blew hard. The pipe was of special construction and filled with red pepper. The victim, blinded by this horrible assault, could do nothing to defend himself until relieved of his valuables.

With two terms already behind him, Pepper was sent to Clinton. There he immediately began to plan an escape, and in his plans exhibited great cleverness.

He worked in the clothing shop of the prison. One piece at a time, working over a period of eight months, Pepper stole a complete civilian outfit from the shop. The ensemble he hid in his pillow.

Banging his way loudly, Pepper made for the warden's office. Without even knocking he stumbled in. The warden happened to be very busy at the moment, but this did not deter Pepper. "I've come to sell you some meat," he declared confidentially.

"Sergeant!" bawled the warden, "take this d—d pest and throw him out! He's bothering me!" The sergeant came in and removed the obstreperous meat seller, dumping him outside the gates with force and relish. It was not until Pepper was across the 20 intervening miles to Canada that he really allowed himself a good laugh. Pepper stayed out of the clutches of the law until five years later, when he was foolish enough to return to New York.

At the same prison great courage enabled another break-out.

Near the prison laundry stood an empty barrel. Taking the bottom out of this, four prisoners took turns at tunneling.

After two weeks of intermittent work they reached the wall, and excavated a small chamber there for working purposes.

Finally one of the huge slabs was loosened, and worked forward to a point where it was almost about to topple into the excavation.

Here a terrible difficulty became apparent. It would be perfectly simple to release the slab, but the second it came out it would crush beyond recognition the man working in the excavation. The men talked it over gravely and decided that one of the number must be sacrificed that the other three might escape.

They drew straws. By ironic chance G—, the one of the four with more than an ordinary reason for escape, drew the shortest straw. His was the assignment. One of the others, proclaiming himself unattached, offered to take his place, but G— refused. In the few seconds after his election he had formulated a scheme that might give him something of a chance to escape the slab when it fell.

He took down a short piece of plank. This was insufficient to stop the rush of the big stone, but he thought that, in breaking, the wood probably would delay the fall long enough to permit him to squirm out of the way. Proping it in place, he grimly worked the slab until it gave way.

It struck the plank, breaking it. Jumping back, G— endeavored to get out of the way. He succeeded—except for his right hand. This was mashed until it was scarcely recognizable as a member. Gritting his teeth, he made no outcry, however, but turned to the work that yet remained.—E. T. Bronedon, in Popular Mechanics Magazine.

Gold Lops in Service.

An ancient Irish gull, the Goldsmith's corporation, gave a dinner recently for the first time since before the war, at the Gresham hotel, Dublin. The charter was granted by Charles I in 1637, was originally established for the purpose of hall-marking all articles of gold and silver wares that were brought to their offices for marking. It has zealously discharged its duties for over 280 years and is still vigilant as ever in detecting and punishing fraudulent hall-markers. The original charter and seal, a copy of its roll of members, with the warden's and members' oath, were exhibited, and on the table were specimens of antique silver bowls, potato rings and other articles.

He Comes No More.

My friend came to see me on Saturday evening as usual, in a beautiful new suit. We went to the theater and when we arrived at my home decided to spend the remainder of the evening on the front porch. The porch had just been painted a few days before, but, supposing it to be dry, I thought nothing of it until he, thinking it time to leave, exclaimed, "O, I'm stuck!" He just happened to sit on a part of the porch that had not completely dried. To my embarrassment, he ruined his new suit, and what was worse, never paid me another visit.—Chicago Tribune.

THREE YEARS WITHOUT HOPE

A Story of Sickness and Suffering with Final Return to Health It will do you good to read it

No matter how long nor how much you have suffered, do not give up hope. Do not decide there is no help for you. There is. Make up your mind to get well. You can. There is a remedy in which you may place full reliance as did Mrs. Rozalia Kanis of 39 Silver Street, New Britain, Conn. This is what she says: "I had cramps for three years and thought I would never be any better. I could not eat without distress. Slept with my mouth open and could hardly breathe. No medicine helped me. I had catarrh of the stomach. Now I have no cramps and am feeling well and healthy. I wish every suffering person would take PE-RU-NA."

Catarrh effects the mucous membranes in any organ or part. PE-RU-NA, by regulating the digestion and aiding elimination, sends a rich, pure supply of blood and nourishment to the sick and inflamed membranes and health returns.

For coughs, colds, catarrh and catarrhal conditions generally, PE-RU-NA is recommended. If you are sick, do not wait and suffer. The sooner you begin using Dr. Hartman's well-known PE-RU-NA, the sooner you may expect to be well and strong and in full possession of your health. A bottle of PE-RU-NA is the finest emergency, ready-to-take remedy to have in the house. It is fourteen ounces of preparation and protection.

Sold everywhere in tablet or liquid form.

Sea Otter's Fur Valuable.

A coat or cloak of genuine sea otter is worth more than its weight in gold. While the skins of the ordinary freshwater otter have no particular value in the fur market, the pelt of the true sea otter is today the most valuable of all furs. The sea otter was formerly found in considerable abundance off the coast of Alaska, but it is now nearly if not quite extinct.

Moon Influences Nervous System.

The Greeks regarded a full moon as favorable for great enterprises. This belief has a basis of physiological truth, because it is now known that the nervous system is influenced by the lunar cycle. Hence there are periods of vital energy when the physical and mental capacity is at its height, and it is then that success may reward our undertakings.

CHRISTIANIZED FOREIGNERS PROVE LOYAL TO FLAG OF UNITED STATES

SOUTHERN BAPTISTS FIND THAT NO EVANGELIZED PERSON FROM OTHER COUNTRIES HAS PROVED TRAITOR TO HIS ADOPTED LAND—LARGE WORK IS BEING DONE AMONG THEM.

A group of large boys of foreign parentage, reached and made happy by a Baptist Good Will Center.

Patriotism and religion go hand in hand in the work which Southern Baptists are doing for the foreigners in their midst, declare the several workers in this field who have found that wherever a man, woman or child of foreign birth or parentage has been won to the Christian religion that one stands foursquare for the flag, laws and institutions of the United States.

Work in evangelizing and Americanizing the 4,000,000 people of foreign birth and parentage residing within the territory of the Southern Baptist Convention has been carried on by representatives of the Home Mission Board and the Woman's Missionary Union of the Southern Baptist Convention and the various state mission boards for several years, but this work will be enlarged and intensified as a result of the larger proceeds made available for it through the 75 Million Campaign.

Important Centers Named.

Among some of the more important centers in the South and Southwest where work of this character is carried on are Richmond and Norfolk, Virginia; Baltimore, Maryland; Louisville, Kentucky; Tampa, Florida; Birmingham, Silver Hill and Mobile, Alabama; Meridian, Miss.; New Orleans and Church Point, La.; San Antonio, Laredo, El Paso and Fort Worth, Texas; Krebs, Okla., and East St. Louis, Herrin, Christopher, Harrisburg, Granite City and other points in Illinois.

Aims That Are Sought.

Indicating the aims that are sought in this work, they may be briefly summarized as follows:

1. To reach the little children that their feet may be started in the upward path.
2. To inspire the older boys and girls with ideals that will help them to improve their environment and give them strength to cope with temptations.
3. To interest the young people in sane and wholesome pleasures that their energies may be rightly directed.
4. To help the women to be better home-makers, more careful wives and mothers and better Christians.

RURAL CHURCH WORK WILL BE DEVELOPED

BAPTISTS PLAN TO REACH 15,000 COUNTRY SUNDAY SCHOOLS THIS SUMMER.

PROVIDE BETTER TEACHERS

75 Million Campaign, with Assistance of Sunday School Board, Makes Extension Program Possible.

DR. I. J. VAN NESS, Corresponding Secretary Baptist Sunday School Board.

In what is believed to be the most extensive campaign for the development of rural Sunday Schools that has yet been undertaken by any single denomination, the forces of Southern Baptists especially interested in Sunday School work will undertake to reach 15,000 or more rural Sunday Schools of the South and Southwest this summer, announces Dr. I. J. Van

5. To give Christ and an exalted citizenship to the neighborhood.

In addition to the nurseries and playgrounds maintained for the children, clubs and classes are held daily for young and old, the neighborhood houses being open during the winter months from 3 to 6 in the afternoon and four nights in the week from 7 to 9. In addition to the English courses, cooking, sewing, first aid and nursing are taught girls, manual training and other useful courses are given the boys, along with practice in debating; while for the mothers there is instruction in housekeeping, care of the sick, sanitation and food selection. Through the mission Sunday schools, vacation Bible study classes and otherwise a knowledge of the Bible is afforded and the way thus opened for a personal surrender of lives to God.

Life of Communities Changed.

And in every community where a Good Will Center or other social work has been established by the Christian workers there has come about a marked transformation in the lives of individual members of the community and in the appearance of the homes and general premises. Cleanliness has superseded dirt, happiness has taken the place of sorrow, and hope has come to lighten the faces that were formerly overshadowed by depression and doubt. Little tots who previously wandered through the streets now find pleasure and helpful entertainment in the games, stories and Bible lessons provided at the settlement houses; aimless boys and girls have been fired with zeal and ambition to become useful Christian citizens; mothers burdened with handicaps of heavy work and poverty have taken a new lease on life when they have found that there are those in the world who want to help them to a higher life; and the fathers, noting the improvement of the members of their families, have yielded to the refining and uplifting influences that have been thrown about them in the home and the community. The viewpoint of the whole community has been changed and better citizens, from both the patriotic and the religious viewpoint, are the result.

Ness, corresponding secretary of the Baptist Sunday School Board at Nashville.

The work is made possible by the larger funds available from the 75 Million Campaign and will be carried on by the forces of the eighteen states of the Southern Baptist Convention, in co-operation with the Sunday School Board. Additional workers will be put on in every state and a large number of Sunday School institutes will be held in the hope of reaching a great majority of the rural Sunday Schools in every state. Normal Sunday School institutes will be held in fifty counties of Tennessee, for instance, and over 500 rural centers will be reached with the better system of Sunday School teaching and methods of administration. Similar methods will be followed in all the states.

Every State Enlarges Work.

Over $300,000 a year will be expended on Sunday School field work in the territory of the Southern Baptist Convention. It is announced, and every state organization will greatly enlarge its Sunday School force, giving especial attention to the development of the rural schools.

In order that an adequate number of instructors may be available for carrying on this larger program, a thirty-day normal school will be held in Nashville, beginning May 31, in the instruction in which a large regular faculty of Sunday School experts and many special lecturers will be employed.

The Sunday School Board at Nashville has just established a department of Sunday School administration which will deal with all questions of Sunday School organization and equipment. This department will be in charge of Arthur Flake, who has been a member of the field force of the Sunday School Board for quite a while and who was formerly superintendent of the Sunday School of the First Baptist church of Fort Worth, Texas, said to be the largest Sunday School in the South.

Build Better Church Houses.

Another department of the Sunday School Board is giving attention to the encouragement of better church houses and pastors' homes in the rural districts, furnishing architects' plans for this purpose and detailed instructions without cost to churches which contemplate buildings along these lines.

The Shoreland Club was entertained by Mrs. George W. Madlin at her home, "Dunwain," last Thursday afternoon. Those present were: Mrs. Robert F. Duer, Mrs. H. L. Brittingham, Mrs. Wm. H. Dashiell, Mrs. W. A. N. Bowland, Mrs. Charles Fitzgerald, Mrs. John E. Holland, Mrs. H. Fillmore Lankford, Mrs. Earl B. Polk, Mrs. H. C. Robertson, Mrs. J. T. Taylor, Jr., Mrs. Joseph G. Scott, Mrs. T. J. Smith, Mrs. W. O. Lankford, Jr. and Miss Ellen D. McMaster. Mrs. E. Herrman Cohn was the guest of the club. On Thursday afternoon, April 29th, at 3:30 o'clock, the club will meet at the home of Mrs. Earl B. Polk.

The Maryland Legislature will adjourn next Monday, April 5th.

Mr. and Mrs. Winter Drew, of New York city, are guests of Mrs. Denwood A. Jones.

Princess Anne Public Library will be open from 4 to 6 o'clock beginning Saturday, April 3rd.

Collector of Internal Revenue Joshua W. Miles, of Baltimore, spent the week end in Princess Anne.

Rev. Walter A. Green, of Statesville, North Carolina, spent last week with his father, Mr. A. H. Green, at Fairmount.

Mr. W. L. LaFollette, of Washington, D. C., spent last week in Princess Anne looking after his farming interests in Somerset.

Mr. and Mrs. E. J. Bengler, after spending a week at the Washington Hotel, returned to South Orange, N. J., last Saturday.

Don't miss seeing "The Helms Hunters," the clever comedy, which will be presented in the Auditorium April 7th, 1920.

Mrs. J. D. Wallop and her daughter, Mrs. Franklin P. Waller, are spending a week in Washington, D. C., visiting at the home of Mrs. Wallop's sister, Mrs. Sidney H. Phillips.

Miss Margaret Graham and Mr. Cooper Harrison, both of Deal's Island, were married last Friday by the Rev. Oliver H. Murphy, D.D., at his residence, 202 Beckford Avenue, Princess Anne.

Mr. and Mrs. Omar J. Croswell left last Thursday to visit friends in Baltimore. Before their return they will go to Harrisburg, Pa., to attend the White-Romberger wedding today, Tuesday.

Chief Judge Patterson, who had been attending court at Snow Hill, motored in company with Associate Judge Robt. F. Duer to Princess Anne last Saturday morning, and after dining with the latter, left on the afternoon train for his home in Cambridge.

Mr. Robert Oates and his friend, Mr. W. D. Parker, of Moorehead, Miss., spent last week at the home of the former's mother, Mrs. L. A. Oates. They left last Sunday for Mercersburg, Pa., to resume their studies at Mercersburg Academy.

A meeting will be held in the Court House tomorrow (Wednesday) night at 8.15 o'clock for the purpose of organizing a Parent-Teachers' Association of the Washington High School. This organization is to include men and women who are interested in the school as well as those who have children attending the school.

Mr. Henry Sterling First Assistant Chief Engineer on the steamship "Princess Matoika," which is now lying in New York harbor, spent the week end with his mother, Mrs. A. P. Mills. He left Sunday night for New York to join his ship which will sail April 5th for Russian ports. Henry's many friends here are always glad to see him.

Mr. H. W. Robertson, of White Haven, an aspirant for the Democratic nomination for Congress for the First District, was in Princess Anne last Friday in the interest of his candidacy. He was accompanied by Mr. Claude Richards, of Raseburg, Md. Mr. Robertson declared himself in favor of modifying the Volstead Act; or in other words, of "liberalizing" the present prohibition law so as to permit the sale of light wines and beer. He said he was in the fight to the finish and hoped to capture Somerset vote in the primary election.

The Ladies' Aid Society will meet at the home of Mrs. Passwater Thursday next, April 1st. This is an important meeting. Election of officers will take place and plans for the business of the year will be discussed.

Five Sundays in February Question

During the month of February just closed frequent references have been made to the fact of there being five Sundays in that short month. A glance at any century calendar will show that every 28 years this combination regularly rolls around, except only when it is interrupted by the closing year of a century whose figure is not divisible by 400. Thus, in the century preceding this, there were five Sundays in February in 1824, 1852, 1880. There were five Sundays in February 1920, and will be in the years 1948, 1976, and so on every 28 years thereafter until the calendar again comes to the closing year of a century indivisible by 400, which, of course, forbids that year being a leap year. The year 1900 was such a year, and consequently broke in on the regular cycle of 28 years, so that a stretch of 40 years, from 1880 to 1920, was required before the regular combination was again struck. But this 40-year period is of infrequent occurrence, and will not happen again until 2088 and 2128.

LETTER "R" NOT POPULAR

Many Writers Would View With Regret Its Complete Disappearance From the Language.

In a tract recently issued under the auspices of the Society for Pure English, Dr. Robert Bridges deplores the practical disappearance of the letter R from the speech of southern Englishmen, according to the Manchester Guardian. Yet, some people would be disposed to regard the extinction of this letter with composure or even approval. John Aubrey, for instance, appears to have nursed a prejudice against those who sound it too prominently in their speech. In his "Lives" Aubrey animadverted on the fact that "Hutton pronounced the letter R (Hutton's cabin) very hard—a certain sign of a satirical wit."

In Germany the "cane letter" has found many enemies, who insist that its abounding employment largely accounts for the ruggedness of Teutonic speech. Some writers have gone so far as to produce works from which it is entirely banished—a remarkably difficult feat, seeing that it figures in about 50 per cent of German words.

Two other familiarities of the eighteenth century, Brookes and Gottlieb Hermann, wrote a number of poems from which the letter is deliberately excluded, so as to produce an atmosphere of "sweetness and light."

These facts were eclipsed by a nineteenth century author, Grant Rittler, who held the letter in aversion, though it appears twice in his own surname. He published two novels, "Die Zwillinge" and "Lisette and Wilhelm," in which no R can be found.

Paul von Schonthau and Leo Kober are responsible for similar works on a lesser scale.

KING ALFONSO'S FIRST SMOKE

Experiences of Spanish Monarch Very Much Like That of Some American Small Boys.

King Alfonso has been telling the story of his first cigarette.

The incident, it appears, occurred immediately after he had been formally enthroned as king of Spain when attaining his majority on his sixteenth birthday.

Up to that time, he had not been allowed to smoke, nor even then was the prohibition withdrawn. Nevertheless, he came to the conclusion that, as a ruling monarch, he might at least do as he liked in this respect.

Accordingly he asked his brother-in-law, the prince of Asturias, for a cigarette.

"I haven't got one," said the prince, faithful to family orders.

Then the king applied to the officer of the guard, who said solemnly:

"I regret that I do not smoke them, your majesty."

At last the young king made his way to the sentry at the palace door, who amiably produced a plug of black tobacco from his trousers pocket and offered a cigarette for his majesty, who smoked it proudly through the palace.

"It made me violently sick later on," he said in telling the story; "but I enjoyed it at the time. I felt, as I puffed and puffed, that I was really and truly grown up at last."

Supplying Palestine With Water.

From the average yearly rainfall of 20 inches, enough water could be stored up in Palestine to support a population of 15,000,000, according to James Haines, secretary of the Zionist Society of Engineers, which is laying plans for a water supply system for the Holy land as part of the restoration work necessary to make the land ready to receive the hundreds of thousands of Jews from all over the world who will emigrate there as soon as the political status of the country is cleared up.

Allowing for a 50 per cent loss through evaporation and running off, Mr. Haines has figured that the yearly rainfall over the 20,000 square miles of Palestine will provide a future population of 5,000,000 with a daily per capita supply of 2,000 gallons. The average daily consumption in New York at present is estimated at about 800 gallons per capita.

"Silly Old Fool."

Of the stories told by Mr. Pett Ridge, the popular author, one of the best, perhaps, is of an incident which occurred outside a London railway station.

"I wanted a taxicab," says Mr. Ridge. "A small boy ran to fetch one and came back with it, holding the handle of the door as a signal of temporary ownership. As the cab pulled up a bigger lad tried to obtain possession of the handle."

"Out of it!" ordered the young boy, aggressively. "I was the one sent to get the taxi for the silly old fool!"—he turned to me and touched his cap respectfully—"wasn't I, sir?"—London Tit-Bits.

Among Humorists.

"Ever borrow an idea?" asked the young husband.

"Among us professionals it is considered permissible to borrow back and forth," said the old timer. "However, I hope you'll avoid something a friend of mine once did, and has been sorry for ever since."

"What was that?"

"He stole a job from a religious paper."—Louisville Courier-Journal.

PARTS OF LOST CONTINENT?

Reasons for Believing That South Sea Islands Were at One Time Joined Together.

I have been reading a book on the South seas which says that there are reasons to suppose that in some instances the numerous islands in the South seas were at one time parts of continents. What reasons are there for such a supposition? asks a correspondent.

The only reasons that we are familiar with are the character of the inhabitants of the islands and their language. It is reasoned that these islands bear marks of very early habitation by man. Navigation was in its infancy, as only long boats, propelled by oars, were known, and they would not be safe for voyages over rough seas to search for unknown lands. This fact and the resemblance of some of the South sea islands to our race lends reasonableness to the supposition that these places were inhabited while they were still a part of the mainland which in some subsequent age sank in places below the surface of the seas. Such a supposition is, moreover, strengthened by discoveries from time to time of ocean levels that seem to have been at one time islands or parts of continents. These discoveries have been made in different parts of the several oceans. It is not so long ago that a vast submarine bank was located by Capt. J. K. Davis of Doctor Mawson's Antarctic ship Aurora, during an oceanographic cruise. Captain Davis reported that for about 100 miles south of Tasmania the ocean bottom deepens to 12,488 feet; it then rises again to the crest of a ridge 150 miles long by about 100 miles wide, standing over 11,000 feet above the general level of the neighboring sea floor. It has been concluded that this ridge was without doubt a fragment of a lost continent.

WESLEY READ ON HORSEBACK

And Many Noted Writers Took Their Walks While Engaged in the Perusal of a Book.

Reading on horseback—one of the rarer accomplishments of man, according to Mr. Fisher—was sedulously practiced by John Wesley.

"History, poetry and philosophy," Wesley relates, the Manchester Guardian recalls, "I commonly read on horseback, having other employment at other times."

Wesley maintained that this practice made for safety on long country rides.

"I asked myself, How is it no horse stumbles when I am reading? No account can possibly be given but this: Because I throw the reins on his neck. I then set myself to observe, and I aver that in riding about 100,000 miles I never remember my horse (except two that would fall over heels anyway) to fall or make a considerable stumble while I rode with a slack rein."

Shelley used to read when out walking and frequently collided with other walkers because his eyes were fixed on a book.

Macaulay was also a pedestrian reader; so was Southey, who gives a long list of books read while taking his evening walk. These range from "a batch of volumes relating the events of the last ten years in Spain" to "the Nibelungen in its original old German."

Rich Undeveloped Region.

The Amazon valley is said to be the greatest undeveloped region in the world today; on every side there are natural resources of immense value, with commercial possibilities, which are as yet untouched. The soil is said to be extraordinarily fertile. The forests offer woods in inexhaustible variety, many of them cabinet woods of rare value. Of vegetable oil nuts, a tenth part only is known to the outside world. Resins, gums, spices, medicinal plants, fibers, abound in infinite variety. Kapok grows along the banks of most of the main rivers, but not a pound of it is exported to the United States, although America imported 7,000,000 pounds last year from far-away Java. There are mineralized areas said to contain coal, iron, gold, silver and precious metals of many kinds. They have not yet been prospected.

Relish of the Right.

Whoever has so far formed his taste as to be able to feel the relish the beauties of the old masters has gone a great way in his study; for merely from a consciousness of this relish of the right, the mind is almost as powerfully affected as if it had itself produced what it admires. Our hearts, frequently warmed in this manner by the contact of those whom we wish to resemble, will undoubtedly catch something of their way of thinking; and we shall receive into our own bosoms some radiation at least of their fire and splendor. That disposition which is so strong in children still continues with us, of catching involuntarily the general air and manner of those with whom we are most conversant.—Sir Joshua Reynolds.

Inexplicable.

"I can't make out what's the matter with John," complained the newly wedded wife of the new civilian.

"What's he been doing?" inquired her neighbor.

"He's broken twenty-seven pieces of our best china trying to fasten two plates together with his fork."—The House Doctor.

In the Forest of Arden, near London, England, the ancient custom is still observed of holding a May day procession, in which people from all the parishes surrounding the forest take part. The scripture is afterward read in the shade of one of the "gospel oaks," which are held sacred to this purpose. Little by little civilization is encroaching on the Forest of Arden. Railroads have cut through its trees, which are said once to have been so numerous that a squirrel could travel all over the forest without touching foot to the ground.

Icelandic Trawling Perilous.
Compared with the hardships of Icelandic trawling, North sea boats are always in a haven. From October to March blizzards of snow and sleet sweep the Icelandic regions, and from December to the end of January there is only an hour or two of daylight. Icelandic vessels are much larger than North sea trawlers, and so marked is the difference between the two operations that an Icelandic skipper rarely works the North sea, and vice versa.

May Explain Egyptian Plague.
When all the waters of Egypt turned to blood it must have been rather appalling. But Gerace, in Calabria, beheld a similar phenomenon in 1883, when a fiery red cloud approached from the sea, presently covering all the heavens, and a rain of blood followed. When the rain dried, however, the matter that gave it its crimson hue was found to be volcanic dust, which had been carried in the clouds and deposited by the rain drops.

Here Is Picture Churches Have Chosen As That of the Typical American Girl

SEEKING a poster which correctly presented the typical American daughter in her present day attitude to the Church, the art directors of the Interchurch World Movement chose the painting of Denman Fink.

This serene, calm-eyed, wholesome young woman was selected as the type of the daughters of America being reared under the influence of the Christian Church. Mr. Fink's painting shows her here pausing as though waiting for her parents to join in restoring the complete membership attendance of this place of worship, one of the objectives of the Interchurch World Movement in which the evangelical group of Protestant Churches has joined.

The poster has been prepared for distribution throughout the entire country for stimulating interest everywhere in extending the influence and ideals of the Church to men's daughters throughout the whole world.

BUDGET OF $336,777,572 FOR 1920 ANNOUNCED BY INTERCHURCH MOVEMENT

Thirty American Denominations, Co-operating in Program for World-Wide Extension, Seek Fund to Be Raised in United Simultaneous Campaign From April 25 to May 2.

Co-operating in a program for world-wide extension of religious effort, 30 American denominations have announced their budget for 1920, in which they seek a fund of $336,777,572. Of this sum $175,448,349 is to be paid in this year. Announcement of the financial program is made through the Interchurch World Movement. The raising of the money will be undertaken in a united simultaneous campaign from April 25-May 2. Of the $336,777,572 to be raised, $229,000,000 will be expended in America.

Coincident with the announcement of the budget Dr. S. Earl Taylor, general secretary of the Interchurch World Movement, issued this statement:

"In presenting the budget the Interchurch World Movement asks nothing for itself. All of the expenses incurred will be paid by the co-operating agencies, and the Interchurch World Movement is merely the servant of all.

"The budget represents an earnest attempt on the part of thoughtful Christian men and women to make a study of the world's needs as viewed from the standpoint of the co-operating churches and to lay these needs upon the minds, the hearts and the consciences of the people of America, thus placing the responsibility where it belongs—upon the shoulders of the individuals who make up that element of our Republic who believe that the security of our democratic foundations has been because they have rested upon the Christian home, the open Bible, the free school and the free church."

The purposes for which the money is to be expended are: Foreign Missions, $107,661,488; Home Missions, $109,949,037; American Education, $78,887,431; American Religious Education, $5,931,925; American Hospitals and Homes, $5,116,465; American Ministerial Pensions and Relief, $20,510,299; miscellaneous, $8,770,027.

The miscellaneous item of the budget covers expenditures for war relief, temperance, enlistment campaign, etc.

The 30 denominations and the extent to which they participate in the financial campaign follow:

Advent Christian Church, $35,000; Northern Baptist Convention, $130,583,000; National Baptist Convention, $10,250,000; General Baptists, $272,500; Church of the Brethren, $3,219,598; Brethren Church, $200,000; Christian Church, $727,003; Congregational Churches, $16,508,470; Disciples of Christ, $12,501,188; Evangelical Association, $1,394,260; United Evangelical Church, $305,993; Society of Friends in America, $4,532,081; Society of Friends in California, $40,000; Holiness Church, $50,000; Evangelical Synod of North America, Lutheran, $1,846,521; General Conference of Mennonites, $82,000; Methodist Episcopal Church, $34,485,737; Methodist Protestant Church, $1,745,866; Free Methodist Church of North America, $6,234,986; African Methodist Episcopal Zion Church, $212,000; Colored Methodist Episcopal, $250,000; Reformed Zion Union Apostolic Church, $17,233; Presbyterian Church in the U. S. A., $44,970,000; Presbyterian Church in the United States (South), $7,865,445; Associate Reformed Presbyterian Synod, $382,264; Reformed Presbyterian Church of North America, Synod, $529,472; United Presbyterian Church, $31,977,437; Reformed Church in America, $2,136,091; Reformed Church in the United States, $16,916,085; Church of the United Brethren in Christ, $6,546,662.

In addition to the 30 denominations which take direct, active part in the co-operative religious effort, the following additional organizations have endorsed the program of the Interchurch World Movement, but do not this year participate in the financial campaign:

The Foreign Christian Missionary Society (Disciples), the Christian Woman's Board of Missions (Disciples), the Association for the Promotion of Christian Unity (Disciples), the Board of Missions, Methodist Episcopal Church (South); the Freedman's Board, United Presbyterian; the Woman's Missionary Association, United Brethren in Christ; the Society of the United Brethren for Propagating the Gospel Among the Heathen, Moravian Church.

Of the sum of $34,485,737 opposite the name of the Methodist Episcopal Church it is stated that $21,000,000 already has been subscribed in the Centenary Campaign.

In announcing the details of the financial program Lyman L. Pierce, director general of the united simultaneous campaign, said:

"The 30 denominational campaigns will be conducted simultaneously from April 25 to May 2, each following its own denominational channels and having full freedom of action. In addition, the campaign will be a united campaign as well.

"It is proposed in every community throughout America to call on that great, friendly constituency which is not directly allied with the church as members to take its share in the raising of funds. To this end in every community there will be a United Simultaneous Financial Campaign Committee. This committee will organize a great Citizens' Division, to stand side by side with the denominational divisions in providing the financial objective of each community.

"The raising of the $336,777,000 will be equitably and justly distributed among the states. Each state will make quotas on the same fair basis to each county. The county will make quotas to the communities, and the communities will raise the funds through an organization made up of a number of divisions. Each local church will maintain its identity and be a unit in its denominational division."

After explaining that the Foreign Survey of the Interchurch World Movement is designed to disclose the unfinished task of the church in foreign fields Mr. Pierce says:

"There is now in progress throughout America a Home Survey, which includes an exhaustive study of the problems of the city. Some of these have been completed and are available as demonstration of the thoroughness and system with which these co-operating denominations have sought to face the problems which the Church must meet in the American cities if they are to be met.

"In approximately 70 per cent of the counties throughout America the Rural Survey is under way. Some counties have been completed and can be used as typical of the exhaustive nature of this study of rural problems. It is shown as a result of these studies that, while there are not too many churches, as has been often stated, there may possibly be a better distribution of these churches and of the ministers, who are the great influences back of the Church. This matter of distribution is being referred back to the denominations for a policy to be determined by them."

CHURCHES TO NEED 100,000 WORKERS

This Is Estimate of Force Required by Interchurch World Movement Program.

9,000 NEW MISSIONARIES TO GO TO FOREIGN FIELDS

Burden of Preparation Rests Chiefly on Denominational Schools and Colleges.

More than 100,000 workers will be needed during the next five years in the world campaign planned by America's Protestant churches affiliated with the Interchurch World Movement. More than 9,000 new missionaries are to be recruited for the foreign fields alone, and thousands of other workers, lay and clerical, are to be secured for churches in the affiliated organizations of this country. Where are they all to come from?

It used to be the notion that the only essential equipment needed by a person who proposed to devote his life to the church was a "call." On the other hand, the modern mission worker knows that, while devotion to duty is an absolutely indispensable requisite, it must be supplemented by highly specialized training. As much executive equipment is required, it is commented, to direct a congregation as to direct a business, for the successful clergyman must know modern life in all its many sided phases quite as well as Biblical history. The missionary nowadays must often teach agriculture, carpentry, hygiene or sanitation to pave the way to the gospel.

Most of the church workers of today are trained in church schools and colleges; the Interchurch survey shows. A preliminary survey of education in the United States made by the Interchurch has brought out the fact that 90 per cent of the ministers and missionaries in service have received their education in institutions under the control of the church. To these institutions the church must look, it is believed, for most of its future workers.

Part of the fund that is to be collected by the Interchurch World Movement will be apportioned among the denominational schools and colleges supported by the churches which are taking part in the campaign.

WHY HIGHER TELEPHONE RATES ARE NEEDED NOW

SOME ONE HAS ASKED why this company is asking now for higher rates in view of the fact that at some points an increase in our rates was made some time ago.

DURING THE PERIOD that our property was under Government control, the revenues from operation belonged to the Government and the Government was responsible for the expenses. When it became apparent to the Federal authorities that, due to war prices of labor and material, revenues from the properties were not equal to expenses and the Government was thereby sustaining a loss, the Postmaster General directed the companies affected to establish rates high enough to produce revenues sufficient to meet expenses.

THE STUDY OF THESE requirements was made shortly after the Armistice was signed, when there were indications that there would be a decrease in the prevailing costs of labor and material. With a desire not to burden our subscribers with any more than was absolutely necessary, this company established rate schedules—not adequate at the time—but which we believed, with the anticipated decrease in costs of labor and material, would prove to be sufficient.

THE EXPECTED DECREASE IN COSTS DID NOT BECOME A REALITY. ON THE CONTRARY, COSTS HAVE RISEN SHARPLY.

GOVERNMENT CONTROL HAS ENDED, and the company is confronted with unusual demands for service from a plant exhausted by the burden placed upon it during the war.

OUR SERVICE MUST BE maintained at a high standard. Our facilities must be expanded to meet the growth of the cities, towns and communities we serve. With inadequate revenues we cannot maintain a service up to our standard, nor can we attract new capital necessary to enable us to expand our plant. We are now asking for an increase in rates to better enable us to fulfill this obligation.
