BURGLARS IN SALISBURY.

They Destroy A Valuable Safe For The Lime And Coal Co.

The large safe in the office of the Salisbury Lime & Coal Company, near the N. Y. & N. railroad station, was cracked last Friday night and badly damaged by professional burglars. The booty they captured amounted to less than ten dollars. The Standard Oil Co.'s office was entered but the safe was not molested. No arrests have been made. Two suspicious looking characters arrived in Salisbury Friday morning on the Steamer Tivoli. They walked up and down Main Street and back on Church Street seeming to take especial interest in the big stores, the post office and Harper & Taylor jewelry shop. Chief of Police Elliott spotted them during their stay and observed them leave in the afternoon on the Steamer Tivoli. Officer Elliott now thinks they landed again at the first wharf down the river and returned to Salisbury in the night.

After another reconnoitre they decided upon the Lime & Coal Co.'s safe, he thinks, and then, falling to open the Standard Oil safe, they left town on the south-bound train which leaves here at 3.30 a. m. Entrance into the Lime & Coal Company's office was made by way of the side door, a crowbar being used to force the door, being used to force the door.

This office is a favorite among professional and amateur crackmen. Ever since the Salisbury Oil & Coal Company, which was succeeded by the present company, was established several years ago, the office has been subject to irregular intervals to the nocturnal visits of these gentlemen. The isolation of the office no doubt accounts for the fact. Fortunately it has always been the policy of the managers to keep very little money overnight in the safe.

Members J. D. Price and L. L. Price constitute the firm of the Salisbury Lime & Coal Company, and their severest loss by the burglary Friday night was the destruction of the safe, which was worth about $275.

Numerous burglaries have been perpetrated and attempted on the Peninsula during the last several weeks. Extra caution should be exercised by our night watchmen.

Accident To Mr. Street.

Mr. Isaac J. Street, of Tysack district, was brought to the Peninsula General Hospital last Thursday night suffering from a gunshot wound. Mr. Street and eight other gentlemen went hunting for rabbits that afternoon, it being the first day of the open season, and the dogs had started a trail in a little branch which runs up into the field of Mr. Irving Jones. The party divided, a section entering the field on either side of the branch. Near the head of the branch Mr. Thomas Jones saw the rabbit sitting and raised his gun to shoot it. Others of the party called out to him to not shoot, and in response to them he elevated the muzzle of his gun, but having his finger on the trigger the gun was unintentionally discharged. The big load of shot entered the breast, abdomen and legs of Mr. Street who was standing on the other side of the branch in range of Mr. Jones' gun.

The accident spoiled the remainder of the day's sport, as Mr. Street soon grew faint and nauseated as a result of the happening. He was made comfortable at the hospital and later Dr. Dick examined the wound. He found that fifty-one shots had entered his body. At the hospital his case is regarded as hopeful.

All Saints' Church Consecrated.

Consecration Services were held last Thursday at All Saints Protestant Episcopal Church, Delmar. Bishop Coleman and several clergies were present and participated in the services. Arch Deacon Hall of Wilmington preached the consecration sermon.

Rev. Mr. Spalding of Laurel is rector of the new church and it is through his efforts that the church has been built, the cost of which was $1800. Those of Salisbury who attended the service were Rev. and Mrs. Vanderbogart, Mrs. W. L. Bevington and son, Randolph, Mrs. J. R. T. Laws, Mrs. T. W. Seabrook, Mrs. W. E. Dorman and Miss Mamie Parsons. There were also visitors from Laurel, Seaford, Quantico, and Spring Hill.

Pan American Exposition.

Good progress in the matter of an Eastern Shore exhibit at the Buffalo exposition next year was made at the meeting, last Friday at Easton, of the special committee of the Eastern Shore Board of Development having the arrangements for the same in charge. Several members of the Committee were noted as absent, but they sent letters assuring President Oswald Tilghman of their hearty support, and saying that their friends were taking great interest in the matter of an exhibit. After Secretary W. S. McKean has visited Buffalo for important and very necessary information, the committee will again meet and make for her arrangements for the proposed display of the diversified, natural and manufactured resources of the Peninsula.

Free Delivery.

Salisbury, Md., Nov. 1 '00. As there seems to be some impatience manifested concerning the Free Delivery of mail, I wish to say that I have no doubt that action will be taken in the matter in the near future, but as yet there has been nothing whatever done toward making any appointments, the whole matter being in the hands of the Civil Service Commission, whose action we await.

E. S. ADKINS, Postmaster.

A HALLOWE'EN PARTY.

Gay Evening with the Spooks at Dr. Humphreys' Residence.

The Halloween phantom party given by Misses Lucy and Elizabeth Humphreys Wednesday evening last was marked by original and suggestive features. The guests assembled between nine and ten o'clock. The phantom figures of the silently moving and disguised participants noisily swarming to and fro about the dimly lighted rooms and halls lent a somber and gruesome aspect to the novel scene. Illuminated hollow pumpkins fretted with hobgoblin faces were suspended from the chandeliers and stared about with weird though comical expression. Candles alone were used for lighting the apartments, and the walls were hung with boughs and garlands of autumn leaves, and skeletons reposed in shadowy places and masks peered out from dark corners here and there. Slow fires glowed in open fire-places, and augmented the dancing lights and shadows from the candles and tapers. Refreshments which were served just before midnight were seasonable and also suggestive of the time and occasion. A centerpiece upon the supper table consisting of an artistically decorated large pumpkin resting upon a bed of autumn leaves was filled and heaped with a variety of fruits. Ginger snaps with cider, pumpkin pies, nuts and fruits were served bountifully. A dumb supper was spread in the barn at midnight amidst the most profound silence and stillness.

But at the last stroke of the midnight bell in the Court House tower the guests fled in confusion and fright upon the appearance from the outside darkness of a distressed and groaning ghost. A very attractive feature of the evening was the phantom orchestra in which appeared the Spirits of Beethoven, Handel, Chopin and other departed celebrities; in all some eight or ten, who discoursed ghostly symphonies. Then there was a sepulchral figure who claimed to be Hamlet's father's ghost who most charmingly told ghost stories to the delight of everybody. A detective was put upon the track of this spook, and in the real flesh proved to be Prof. LeFevre. Fortunes were told by many devices the chief of which was the witch's pot. A fortune cake was cut and the ring was drawn by Miss Sallie Toadvine, the thimble and the coin falling to the lot of Miss Lizzie Wallies. The guests present were as follows:

The Misses Mary Reigart, Nellie and Carrie Fish, Dora Toadvine, Elizabeth Johnson, Elizabeth Dorman, Virginia and Nancy Gordy, Katie Todd, Mary Cooper Smith, Edna Gillis, Helen Leonard, Lella Birkhead, Mildred Dougherty, Lizzie and Victoria Wallies, Miriam Powell, Mary Gordon Toadvine, Emma Williams, Margaret Bell, Letitia and Mary Houston, Clara and Mary Lee White, Sallie, Mary and Alice Toadvine, Mrs. Wheeden and Mrs. Read of Baltimore, Mr. and Mrs. W. B. Miller, Mr. and Mrs. M. V. Brevington, Mr. and Mrs. Dean Perdue, Dr. and Mrs. S. A. Graham, Mr. and Mrs. A. C. Smith, Mr. and Mrs. L. Ernest Williams, Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Collier, Dr. and Mrs. E. W. Smith, Messrs Wm. J. Holloway, Alex Toadvine, W. Gordy, Jr., Donald Graham, W. W. Leonard, James Leonard, D. B. Cannon, Charles LeFevre, S. King White, Leonard Wallies, Wm. Johnson, Gus Toadvine, Dr. W. G. Smith, Mr. and Mrs. V. Perry and Mr. Mrs. Irving Powell.

The Carlists in Spain.

Madrid, Nov. 1.—It is officially admitted that the Carlist band in the vicinity of Berga numbers 800 men. Troops are closely pursuing them. Communication between Berga and Barcelona has been severed. Another numerous band has appeared at Figols. It has 16 horses and is divided into three groups. The gendarmes who searched the country house of Senor Torres Baros, brother-in-law of the Duke of Solferino (who has disappeared), where they seized several rifles, also obtained possession of documents giving the names of 126 Carlist chiefs and 600 Carlist soldiers.

THE PUBLIC SCHOOLS.

Interesting Answers to Perplexing Questions.

QUESTION 11.
Editor Teachers' Column:—To what extent should whispering be allowed during school hours?

No. 11. Right administration of school affairs is not always an easy task. It is easy enough to sit in judgment on the cases that are pure black or pure white, but the gray cases (among which, I include whispering) are complex, requiring the utmost caution and deliberation. It is an essential principle of school government that every pupil be allowed the largest liberty possible without infringing on the rights, interests, duties, or convenience of others.

Prof. Hinesdale says: "Reasonable order in the schoolroom, for the most part, must be secured indirectly; it must come as the result of keen interest in the work, and close application to it. What is sometimes called 'good order' does not always imply either interest in studies or a good school, since it may be secured by extreme repression, but interest and application are pretty certain to lead to good order. In other words, order should be largely spontaneous. In the long run, that teacher will best succeed in securing it who says little about it. Even grown persons who are coarsely trying to keep still and it difficult to do so. How many find it to sit for a photograph! The boy whose business it is to be quite is likely to make a great deal of noise while about it. Moreover, a positive direction of order to keep still, given to any assemblage, tends to provoke nervous and muscular movements. Great audiences are as still as death, not when the orator is decanting on order and stillness, but when he loses himself and them in his subject. Hence attempts to secure order should not be thrust into the faces of children."

QUESTION 12.
Editor Teachers' Column:—How is the logical method of teaching history pursued and what are its advantages?

No. 12. Most modern text books in History have been prepared according to the topical method, and contain a systematic presentation of the subject, continuous and connected events. Then the pupils should be called upon to recite in turn, following the order of events as given in the book. I do not mean a mere repeating, parrot-like, the words of the text book, but that the pupils shall express the facts, which the text-book has skillfully grouped, in their own language, bearing in mind that it is a clear conception of events that is required. Our best text books frequently distinguish between the more important and the less important facts by a difference in type. It often helps to cultivate a historical taste, and adds greater interest to the study, when historical knowledge from other sources than the text-book can be brought to bear upon the topic under discussion. By following a systematic plan of presentation, the pupils of history gain the continued narrative in a manner that shows him the relation of the facts. As the attention and parts of each event are unified to the imagination by giving the space and time boundaries of the whole. Unity is further secured by following strictly the order of changes, and by organizing each change into the whole. The relations of the whole define the whole, and the subordinate parts are shown in their subordinate relations.

QUESTION 13

Editor LeFevre.—Please explain to me something of what is meant by proceeding from the concrete to the abstract and how would you apply this rule in the teaching of geography?

No. 13. The child must go from things to ideas and thoughts. The things defined in geography—paper, rays, steamships, the globe, and the learned through pictures or by some tangible representation of them. When the mind becomes able to soar unaided in the higher atmosphere of abstraction the concrete is no longer needed. The thing seen becomes the representation of the thing to be conceived. After we know what a river is, we learn both to locate the rivers of the country and to group them into river systems. From a knowledge of mountains we pass to their classification, and study the mountain systems of the globe. The causes of geographical phenomena are inquired into; and, we study the circumstances which determine the location of cities, the causes of the prosperity of nations, and the reason for certain industries. Thus, we proceed from the concrete to the abstract, from particular objects to general notions.

Cambridge in the Parade.

The banner of the Democratic Club of Cambridge, the gift of Col. Thos. Hughtlett, was the handsomest standard unfurled at Salisbury on the 24th. It was carried by Messrs. Bryan's speech filled the hearts of all with enthusiasm. Altogether it was a glorious day.—Cambridge Chronicle.

Gentleman Rider's Fatal Fall.

Baltimore, Nov. 1.—Mr. A. F. Watson, of Philadelphia, who was injured during a race at Pimlico Tuesday afternoon, died yesterday at the University hospital, never having regained consciousness since his fatal fall. Physicians at the hospital said that Mr. Watson's skull was terribly fractured and no operation was performed except to pick out a few of the splinters of bone and cleanse the wound of the clots of blood. Physicians think the blow was not caused by a kick from his horse, but believe that Mr. Watson fell upon a stone.

Khaki Cloth For the Army.

New York, Nov. 1.—The contract for furnishing the quartermaster's department of the United States army with 1,000,000 yards of khaki cloth, was awarded yesterday to the American Khaki mills at 22 cents a yard. There were two other bidders—John Wana-maker and Boesneck, Brosell & Co.

ANNAPOLIS POSTOFFICE

To Be Built By Charles McCall, Of Philadelphia, For $64,000.

Washington, Oct. 31.—Annapolis is at least to have a postoffice building more in keeping with its dignity as the Capital of an important and flourishing State.

The contract for erecting the structure was today awarded to Charles McCall, of Philadelphia, who now has several big operations under way in different sections of the country, including the Continental Trust Company Building in Baltimore, the North Company Building in Philadelphia, and it is understood his plans for a 12 story structure on the site of John Wanamaker's present store in Philadelphia have been approved.

The contract price for the Annapolis post-office building is $64,000, which, being so limited, has necessitated some change in the material to be used. Limestone will be substituted for the granite and marble specified in the original plans. It is thought work will be commenced at an early date.

Western Maryland College.

Realizing the importance of the male students familiarizing themselves with practical politics, Dr. G. W. Ward of the History Department has caused the College Republic to be reorganized. This organization is based on the Constitution of the United States. The Democrat and Republican parties have candidates in the field for president and vice president, and the campaign is being hotly contested.

We are very glad to welcome in our midst again Mr. Wade Inley formerly of the class of '01. He is now a member of the Historical Division of the '02 class.

The young ladies have also organized a Home Circle. Owing to our limited knowledge of this organization we cannot speak intelligently of the plans of the society.

No item of College news would be complete at this time without mention of our football team. They made a trip to Washington last week, playing the Gallander and Episcopal High School teams. In the first case the score was 11 to 6 in our favor. Our team kept E. H. S. from scoring notwithstanding the fact that they had several men from the University of Virginia on their line. This state of affairs was so unexpected that the faculty and students thought the team worthy of a reception. Accordingly a hack was procured to bring the team up from the depot and by the aid of a drum chore and some fireworks we showed our appreciation of the team and demonstrated the fact that football is not a dead issue at W. M. C. Much interest is manifested in our game with Hopkins to-day, Saturday.

Good for Trees.

A reliable farmer says if you bore a quarter inch hole in the heart of a fruit tree or any kind of a tree that is infested with insects, and inject as much dry sulphur as possible, then insert a plug to keep the sulphur in place, it will cure blight, make the tree strong and healthy and in no way injure it. If this be true it is a valuable boon to fruit growers, as the sulphur goes through all parts of the tree, being absorbed from the heart and making a good healthy color. If true it is a valuable discovery.—Seaford News.

ROYAL Baking Powder Absolutely Pure

Makes hot breakfast-breads wholesome—no yeast germs, no alum. Makes cake, biscuit and pastry of superior fineness, flavor and delicacy. Makes food that will keep moist and sweet. Is most economical, because it is the purest and greatest in leavening strength. In the easy, expeditious preparation of the finer cakes and pastries, Royal is indispensable.

Care must be taken to avoid baking powders made from alum. Such powders are sold cheap, because they cost but a few cents per pound. Not only will they spoil your cake, but alum is a corrosive acid, which taken in food means injury to health.

Over-Work Weakens Your Kidneys.

Unhealthy Kidneys Make Impure Blood.

All the blood in your body passes through your kidneys once every three minutes.

The kidneys are your blood purifiers, they filter out the waste or impurities in the blood. If they are sick or out of order, they fail to do their work.

Pains, aches and rheumatism come from excess of uric acid in the blood, due to neglected kidney trouble.

Kidney trouble causes quick or uneasy heart beats, and makes one feel as though they had heart trouble, because the heart is over-working in pumping thick, kidney-poisoned blood through veins and arteries. It used to be considered that only urinary troubles were to be traced to the kidneys, but now modern science proves that nearly all constitutional diseases have their beginning in kidney trouble.

If you are sick you can make no mistake by first doctoring your kidneys. The mild and the extraordinary effect of Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, the great kidney remedy is soon realized. It stands the highest for its wonderful cures of the most distressing cases and is sold on its merits by all druggists in fifty-cent and one-dollar sizes.

You may have a sample bottle by mail. Send to Dr. Kilmer, free, also pamphlet telling you how to find out if you have kidney or bladder trouble. Mention this paper when writing Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y.

SECRECY OF THE BALLOT.

Workingmen Need Not Fear to Vote Their Own Way.

IT IS ABSOLUTELY IMPOSSIBLE TO FIND OUT.

[From the Baltimore Sun, Oct. 11.]

Several letters have been received by The Sun within the last 24 hours from workingmen which indicate that the trust employers are up to their old tricks again. Here is a sample statement:

My boss says how you going to vote. I says McKinley (which I ain't). He eyed me a minute and says: "Well, I'll know if you don't. We keep tab on you all by that coupon the judge tears off." I have told the boys in my shop that it ain't so—that the ballot is secret as the law says. Will you please tell us if I ain't right. It will interest every mechanic in Baltimore. Put the whole business plain and straightforward and we'll act as the Sun says to.

THE BALLOT IS SECRET.

Mr. William F. Porter, a member of the Board of Supervisors of Elections, was questioned upon this point yesterday afternoon. He said:

"There is no possible way to ascertain how a man votes unless he states it himself. The law providing for a secret ballot is very plain and carefully drawn. When a voter walks into a polling place on election day he is asked his name and address. The judges then look in the registration books to see that he is properly registered. If he is registered the ballot clerk takes a ballot from the pile before him, writes the man's name on a little slip or coupon attached to it and hands him the ballot. The voter then goes into a secret compartment or booth, where he casts his ballot, and he marks it with the mark inside, comes out and hands the ballot to the judge representing the party in power in the State. This year, of course, IT WILL BE THE DEMOCRATIC JUDGE. The judge tears off the coupon or slip bearing the voter's name and strings it on a file. The ballot is then placed in the ballot box.

THE COUPON AND ITS USE.

Many persons are puzzled by the coupon upon which the name of the voter is written," continued Mr. Porter, "and they imagine their ballots may be traced in that way, but such is not the case. Each coupon is numbered, but there is no corresponding number on the ticket.

"When the coupon is torn from the ballot there is nothing on the ballot to indicate who cast it.

"The coupons were devised simply to prevent repeating. If I should vote, for instance, and the judges neglect to record me as having voted, the coupon will show the fact. If another man comes in later and wishes to vote on my name the judges may look over their books and see that, apparently I have not voted. But when they look over the coupons they find that I have voted. But they may search coupons, ballots and everything else and cannot learn how I voted, for there is absolutely nothing to distinguish my ballot from that of any other man. No one can tell from what ballot any coupon came.

COUPONS ARE DESTROYED.

"When the polls are closed the first thing the judges must do is to destroy the coupons. In his instructions this year to election officials, Attorney-General Rayner says, with reference to the coupons:

"Before the ballot box is opened all coupons taken from the ballots cast shall be destroyed."

"No one need fear," says Mr. Porter, "that the way he votes will become known. That is a secret that is impossible for any man to find out. I have heard politicians bewail that fact time and again.

EXTRA PRECAUTIONS THIS YEAR.

"The Supervisors of Elections have taken extra precautions this year to guard the secrecy of the ballot. We will have them printed on heavier paper than usual, so that no mark made on the face of the ballot can be detected by inspecting the back.

FOUR HOURS IN WHICH TO VOTE.

"There is another fact that the workingmen should know. The last Legislature passed a law requiring every employer to allow his workmen at most four hours in which to vote. This does not include the dinner hour."

A heavy penalty for violation of the law is imposed.

Take care of the stomach and the health will take care of itself. If people only realize the soundness of that statement the majority might live to a good old age like Moses. "The eye undimmed, the natural force unabated." It is in the stomach that the blood is made. It is from the stomach that nourishment is dispensed to nerve and muscle. If the stomach is "weak" it can't do its whole work for each part of the body. If it is diseased the disease will taint the nourishment which is distributed, and so spread disease throughout the body. It was the realization of the importance of the stomach as the very center of health and the common source of disease, which led Dr. Pierce to prepare his "Golden Medical Discovery."

"Diseases which originate in the stomach must be cured through the stomach." The soundness of this theory is proved every day by cures of diseased organs, heart, liver, lungs, blood,—by the use of the "Discovery," which is solely and singly a medicine for the blood and organs of digestion and nutrition. It is a temperance medicine containing no alcohol, whiskey or other intoxicant.

John Monroe was arrested in Denton Tuesday in connection with the death of an unknown man, whose mangled body was found near the tracks of the Delaware and Chesapeake Railroad, near Hillsboro, Caroline county. The body looks as if a train had struck it.

"I have used Chamberlain's Cholera, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy and find it to be a great medicine," says Mr. E. S. Fhipps, of Potomac, Ark. "It cured me of bloody flux. I can not speak too highly of it." This remedy always wins the good opinion, if not praise, of those who use it. The quick cures which it effects even in the most severe cases make it a favorite everywhere. For sale by R. K. Truitt & Sons.

A Village Blacksmith Saved His Little Son's Life.

Mr. H. H. Black, the well-known village blacksmith at Grahamsville Sullivan Co., N. Y., says: "Our little son, five years old, has always been subject to croup, and so bad have the attacks been that we have feared many times that he would die. We have had the doctor and used many medicines, but Chamberlain's Cough Remedy is now our sole reliance. It seems to dissolve the tough mucus and by giving frequent doses when the croupy symptoms appear we have found that the dreaded croup is cured before it gets settled." There is no danger in giving this remedy for it contains no opium or other injurious drug and may be given as confidently to a babe as to an adult. For sale by R. K. Truitt & Sons.

Population of the United States.

Washington, Oct. 30.—The official announcement of the total population of the United States for 1900 is 76,295,230, of which 74,688,907 are contained in the 48 States presenting approximately the population to be used for apportionment purposes. There is a total of 1,606,323 Indians not taxed.

The population in 1890, with which the aggregate population of the present census should be compared, was 63,689,756. Taking the 1890 population as a basis, there has been a gain in population of 13,235,474 during the past 10 years representing an increase of nearly 21 per cent.

There is more catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years the doctors pronounced it a local disease, and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure with local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Science has proven catarrh to be a constitutional disease, and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is the only constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally in doses from 10 drops to a teaspoonful. It acts directly on the blood and mucous surface of the system. They offer one hundred dollars for any case it fails to cure. Send for circulars and testimonials.

HEART-SICK.

There are a great many people who have heart sickness, who have no chronic derangement of the heart. When the stomach is diseased it may affect many other organs, and produce all the evidences of diseased heart, diseased liver or kidneys, or disease in some other organ. The inexperienced practitioner treats the wrong disease, and hence the constant statement of Dr. Pierce's correspondents: "Doctors could not help me."

Doctor Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery cures diseases of the stomach and organs of digestion and nutrition. It increases the assimilative powers, and purifies and enriches the blood. When diseases of organs remote from the stomach are caused by the stomach, the cure of the stomach results in the cure of the other diseases, in heart, lungs, liver, kidneys, etc.

"Six years ago my stomach and heart troubled me so much I had to do something, as the doctors could not help me," writes Mrs. S. A. Knapp, of San Jose, California, Box 30. "I went to San Francisco and had treatment for catarrh of the stomach, and was better for some time, then it came back. I then used Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery and Pleasant Pellets. These medicines cured my stomach. I do not have the pain and indigestion as I did. It is very hard for me to tell you what I suffered before I commenced taking your valuable medicine. I recommend it to all the sufferers whom I meet."

To cure constipation use Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets.

AN EXPLOSION HORROR

A Dozen Big Business Buildings Destroyed in New York.

TWENTY-SIX PEOPLE MISSING.

As Yet No Bodies Have Been Recovered, But Many Are Doubtless Buried in the Ruins—Illegal Storage of Explosives the Cause of the Disaster.

New York, Nov. 1.—As a result of a small fire several big business buildings of chemicals occurred in the drug store of Tarrant & Co., at Warren and Greenview streets, Monday and blew down a dozen buildings and badly damaged a score of others. The loss of life is not known, but from all sources of information it is gathered that there are perhaps the bodies of 32 persons in the ruins, that being the number of persons officially reported missing. It is believed by many, however, that the death list will be much higher.

The Tarrant building was a seven story structure, and the other buildings destroyed were five to seven stories high.

The disaster was one of the most terrible that has ever occurred in this city, and rivals the Windsor hotel fire in its appalling results, though in loss of property it will be worse. Chief Croker, of the fire department, said today that the loss is fully $1,500,000.

Just as the fire broke out a train stopped at Warren street station of the Ninth Avenue Elevated road. It passed on in time to escape the explosion, and the few people who were left on the platform of the station are thought to have all escaped before the great explosion came. The station master fled across the structure, carrying with him the receipts of the day and his unused tickets, while two women, who had stepped on the platform to watch the fire, frightened by the first explosion, fled down the downtown tracks, assisted by the station porter, who took them to the Barclay street station in safety. The big explosion completely carried away the station, and the mass of masonry that fell with it broke through the flooring and almost demolished the structure just below the building.

Immense masses of masonry, pieces of cornice, great beams, window casings and an indescribable mass of wreckage of every description tumbled suddenly into the street in front of the building all at once. The force of the explosion below had thrown the firemen back across the street so that they were not caught, but their escape from the rain of debris was almost miraculous.

The wreckage was thrown across the windows of the buildings in which the Irving National bank is located, on the northeast corner of the street. The offices of the Irving bank and of Mecklen Brothers, bankers and brokers, were nearly wrecked.

At the first explosion an attempt was made to gather all the money and paper that was lying on the counters together and to throw them into the safes, and it was supposed that this had been done, when the second explosion brought flying glass and plastering from the skylighted ceiling down about the heads of everybody and caused them to escape in a hurry.

Capt. McClusky, of the detective bureau, who hurried every available man of his staff to the fire, was appealed to to protect the funds of the bank, he being told that they were in the vault, the door of which was supposed to be unlocked. When the captain and his men went, however, they found about $10,000 scattered in confusion over the counters and floor. This was hastily thrown into the vault and the door locked.

A revision made last night of those persons missing and thought to have perished shows 26 unaccounted for. Of this number four are known at the addresses given by the persons reporting them missing. Out of the whole number eight are put down by the police as employees of Tarrant & Co.

Not a single body had up to 10 o'clock last night been found in the ruins, though what looked like parts of bodies have been dug out. It begins to look as if what remains are in the mass of debris which still cumbers the place and will be totally unrecognizable as of human composition even should the workmen find them. This is because of the tremendous heat caused by the explosion and the fire and the fusing of materials which, running together, form a mass of all sorts of stuff. For instance what was supposed to be parts of bodies taken out on examination at the morgue to be blackened pieces of melted gum Arabic. Again yesterday another mass was found which the workmen first thought to be human flesh, but is now thought to be melted rubber. The searchers have found in the ruins of the Home Made hotel a number of articles such as books, a handkerchief, a cigar holder, etc., but whether their owners escaped or not is unknown.

The authorities in the meantime are pushing the investigation into the amount of explosives stored in the building with a view to prosecutions. Along this line Secretary Augustus F. Docherty, of the fire department, in speaking of the cause of the explosion, said:

"The combustibles carried by Tarrant & Co. were largely in excess of what were allowed them under the law and their permit granted by the fire department and in consequence of this fact they have violated the law. By violating the terms of the permit they have committed a misdemeanor, which not only violates their insurance policies, but renders them criminally liable and responsible for the damage to life and property as a result of the explosion. The fire insurance companies cannot be held for the damage."

Three Venesuela Towns Destroyed. Caracas, Venezuela, Nov. 1.—Further details received regarding the earthquake of Monday last show that San Casimiro, Cus and Charallano were entirely destroyed. An inlet situated at the mouth of the Neveri river has disappeared. At Amargura, Brochero and Corpele the damage done was considerable. There are many dead and injured. Railroad and telephone service between Caranaro and Rio Chilo is interrupted.

HOW WILL YOU VOTE.

The campaign of 1900 is about over. Before another issue of the ADVERTISER will reach you the ballots will have been cast and counted and the voice of the people will have been heard, either in the re-election of Wm. McKinley or the election of that magnetic orator Wm. Jennings Bryan. Whatever the verdict, the American people will accept the result as the will of the majority, whether it be of their own inclination or otherwise.

Now that the issues have been clearly and vigorously presented, we feel that the average American citizen can easily decide for whom to cast his vote.

On the one side we have Imperialism, Militarism and Trusts. We have the prospect of a large standing army in times of peace—if there be any. We look forward to innumerable wars, growing out of the present foreign policy of the Republican administration, which is a policy of greed and conquest. We know that the Trusts will multiply and grow fat if Mr. McKinley is re-elected. We know that the Constitution, which the people revere, has been trampled upon and cast aside and that it will no longer be the guiding instrument of the Nation's destiny. We know we can no longer occupy our proud position as the greatest Republic of the world. We know that with four years more of McKinley the Ship of State will have drifted so far towards an Empire that it will be impossible to bring her back to her ancient moorings. This will be the result of a continuance of the Republican party in power.

On the other hand, if Mr. Bryan is elected, the United States will again assume her position as the greatest Republic the world has ever seen, whose people love peace rather than war, whose sympathies will be extended to every people struggling for liberty, whose trade and commerce will continue to be extended over the entire globe, but not by arms and the blood of the youths of the land, who should form the future mainstay of our country. The reign of the Trusts will be short lived. In Mr. Bryan's own State a Trust has been compelled to go out of existence by the strict enforcement of the law. The Constitution will again govern the policies of the nation.

The National expenditures will be reduced three hundred millions of dollars a year.

The War tax will be lifted from the shoulders of the people. Every young man will have the same chance to go to the front in the battle of life that was given his father before him. He no longer will be compelled to seek employment from one of the great trusts of the country, but can embark in new enterprises of his own.

Which will you choose of the two—Mr. McKinley, the Empire and the evils that will follow; or Mr. Bryan, the Republic and the reopening of the way to success for individual enterprise and merit? We believe that when you calmly consider the great questions before the country today, you must vote the Democratic ticket. We can see no good reason why a Democrat should withhold his support of the ticket this year. The "Mcney Question" is settled—the Republican claim to the contrary. Let every Democrat do his duty and when the returns are in on next Tuesday, Wicomico will be found in the Democratic column and Maryland will have cast her electoral vote for Wm. Jennings Bryan.

—It is the contention of the Democratic party that the Constitution is and must be supreme over every portion of our country. Hence there can be no such thing as an American colony belonging to the United States and over which our Constitution has no jurisdiction. Such a situation is impossible under our form of government.—David B. Hill in his Chicago speech.

YOUNG MAN'S CHANCE IN THE WORLD

This is one of the most important points in all the debates about trusts, and it is just beginning to sink into the minds of voters. In a few years, at their rate of progress under the McKinley administration, all the business and industries of the country will be controlled by the trusts. A great proportion of it is now. Five or ten years hence what is a young man to do? This is a question Mr. Bryan puts to American fathers. If the father leaves his son a fortune in trust stocks, he is of course reasonably secure. But very few will be able to do this, not one in a hundred thousand. But what of the young man who has only his own energy, and perhaps a few thousand dollars to invest in some enterprise? Yet such chances were open to his father. Then the whole field of industry was open. The young man with a few thousand dollars could make a start. He can do so no longer—at least to any great extent, and in a few years more at the McKinley rate of progress he will find all openings closed. Take the hundreds of industries and branches of business now occupied by the trusts, what chance does the young man stand in any of them as his father had chances when industry was open, the field free? This is the subject of universal remark. It is no part of political controversy. It is an economical fact. We have heard it scores of times from aspiring young men.

In a recent list one hundred and thirty seven trusts are named which control one hundred and thirty seven branches of industry. They cover the whole field. And there is no mistaking the tendency of the times. The trusts are absorbing each other. Where is the young man's chance? It doesn't exist. He is mortgaged to the trust for his lifetime. He must be a hewer of wood and drawer of water for them. His father's chance don't exist for him. Submission to the iron rule of the trusts is to be the price of employment. That brings up the issue, the way industries are tending, of obedience or starvation. Labor organizations would become useless and strikers of no account save to involve the people in want, and eventually make way for McKinley's "permanent standing army" in suppressing that discontent and those evil conditions that should be met by legislation. The aspiring young man who hopes for success in life has but one chance to remedy the conditions that are being forced on him. It must be by his vote. If he gives it to the trust monster he is fighting his own battle of life.

Finally, in this campaign, on which side do we find the trusts with a unanimity significant of the vast interests involved? Is it not clear as day—as indisputable as any fact that could be stated—that they are on the side of McKinley and Hannah and the Republican party? Their treasure and measures of intimidation are being poured out to defeat Bryan.—Pittsburg Post.

—Democrats must remember that the Democratic Ticket is the first ticket on the ballot this year. For the past four years the Republican Ticket has been first. Don't make a mistake. An X mark in the first emblem on the ballot votes the entire ticket and no other mark is necessary.

—The Cambridge Democrat and News says: "Our people who visited Salisbury on Wednesday were very much impressed with the evidence of business activity and prosperity to be seen on all sides. Salisbury is an up-to-date town and its businessmen and public officials are among the most obliging and accommodating we ever met. Salisbury is not so well located, in our opinion, as Cambridge, but the enterprise of its people has overcome all obstacles. It is already a rich town and bids fair to grow rapidly, as there are now new buildings going up in all parts of it."

That Salisbury is better located than Cambridge is easily seen. Here two railroads intersect at right angles, one a great trunk line; the Wicomico river ebbs and flows through the western side of the city. Salisbury is centrally located and easily accessible to the people of all parts of the "Eastern Shore" peninsula which forms an interesting and prosperous part of three important States. Cambridge has a beautiful water-front, the great Choptank lying at her door, and a railroad, which, however, is not and by force of natural conditions, can not become a very important factor in the city's progress. These facts and the public spirit of the Salisbury people places her foremost among peninsula towns.

—In another column of the ADVERTISER will be found a letter from John K. Cowen to the Baltimore Sun, that is being published as advertising matter by the Democratic press throughout the State.

The object of this letter is to influence Democrats and Independent voters to support the Republican ticket. We do not believe that it will accomplish this purpose. In fact we think it will have the opposite effect. Mr. Cowen has gone over to the Republican party and is today as much a Republican as the President himself whose cause he champions. His parading under the name of Democratic League should fool no one, his only object being his belief that he may exert a greater influence with wavering Democrats. The Democrats of Maryland are not inclined this year to waver and will cast a practically solid vote for Wm. Jennings Bryan. The only effect Mr. Cowen's letter will have in Wicomico, will be to drive the Democrats closer together and cause them to fight harder for the success of their ticket on next Tuesday.

Look now at the great employers of labor and their attitude in this campaign. That, too, is the subject of complaint. The great bicycle works at Hagerstown make a contract for the sale of wheels, which will be the means of furnishing more than 1,000 men with their support during the coming year. But the contract depends for its performance on McKinley's election. A Democratic club of Baltimore threatened to boycott the wheel because the manager simply told the truth about the contract. Why, I can tell that club that within ten days one of the large concerns on the B. & O. Railroad in West Virginia has made an agreement for the sale of an enormous product, and one of the express conditions is: "This agreement shall be null and void if Bryan is elected." There is not a large manufacturing concern on the

JOHN K. COWEN

REPLIES TO THE ATTACK ON HIM BY THE SUN.

STATEMENT THAT CAR CONTRACT WAS AWARDED CONTINGENT ON MCKINLEY'S RE-ELECTION IS CONFIRMED BY MR. COWEN.

CHARGE OF "COERCION" REFUTED.

THE SUN'S MISSTATEMENTS AND CONDUCT ANALYZED

ISSUES OF THE CAMPAIGN ABLY DISCUSSED.

To the Editor of The Sun;

You have devoted considerable space to the statement I made at Music Hall about a contract for steel cars which would be canceled in the event of Bryan's election. You have called it a "bluff," by which, of course, you mean that my statement is untrue. Now, let me give you the precise provision in the contract for construction of these 6,000 steel cars.

CONTRACT CONDITIONAL ON BRYAN'S DEFEAT.

The document constituting the contract, addressed to me as President of the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad Company is as follows:

"Dear Sir:—Referring to our verbal understanding yesterday with regard to the purchase of 4,000 gondola and 2,000 self-clearing hopper bottom steel cars, I write this letter for your acceptance, so as to avoid any possible misunderstanding." Then come the terms. Under paragraph of the contract is: "THE FURTHER VERBAL UNDERSTANDING BETWEEN US WAS THAT IN CASE OF THE DEFEAT OF MCKINLEY FOR PRESIDENT, YOU ARE TO HAVE THE OPTION OF CANCELING 5,000 CARS."

The 1,000 cars named were, as I stated in my remarks at the meeting, about the number that would be well under way before the election, and would therefore be taken; the remainder, under instructions I have received, would not be taken—as to them the contract would be at an end.

1st. My statement was, therefore, true. Yours is necessarily, therefore, false. You could have found out the exact facts before you made your false statement; you did not even try to do so.

2d. Why was such a condition made? There were two controlling reasons:

(1.) This is a large order for cars, costing well on to $5,000,000. These cars will necessarily be paid for out of the proceeds of securities provided under the various plans of reorganization for such purposes. These securities are necessarily floated by bankers, and Bryan's election is believed by all bankers, without exception, to be so certain of causing fear, doubt and hesitation in the financial markets of the world that they would not take the securities at prices which the managers of the Company regard as proper prices, still, they will take them at proper prices, if Bryan is defeated. The funds therefore for the payment of the cars would not be forthcoming, hence, as prudent business men, we made the contract accordingly.

(2.) Again, if Bryan is elected, we believe that there will be such a contraction of business and enterprise that such a large additional number of cars will not be needed. This is the plain, unvarnished tale. Now, you may say that bankers and financial institutions have no business to think as they do about the result of Bryan's election on business and finance. That may be; but they do so think, and that ends it. You may say that the managers of the road ought not to think that Bryan's election will create such a partial paralysis of business that the road will not need this additional equipment; but they do so think, and that ends it.

The writer of your editorial and the collector of the valuable gossip from that bankers and financial institutions mentioned in your news columns could, doubtless, manage the railroad better than those now in charge of it but for the time being, at least, our opinions must control. Now, I have given you a fact as to a plain contract and the business reasons for it. What do you think of your charge against me that I was telling a falsehood?

SUN APPROVED SAME COURSE IN 1896.

8d. I am not done with you. I now propose to show that I made a statement of precisely similar contracts made by other industrial companies in 1896, which became void in case of Bryan's election, and you approved the utterance. Here is the quotation from my Music Hall speech in 1896, as taken from your columns:

"TO AVERT PANIC."

"Look now at the great employers of labor and their attitude in this campaign. That, too, is the subject of complaint. The great bicycle works at Hagerstown make a contract for the sale of wheels, which will be the means of furnishing more than 1,000 men with their support during the coming year. But the contract depends for its performance on McKinley's election. A Democratic club of Baltimore threatened to boycott the wheel because the manager simply told the truth about the contract. Why, I can tell that club that within ten days one of the large concerns on the B. & O. Railroad in West Virginia has made an agreement for the sale of an enormous product, and one of the express conditions is: 'This agreement shall be null and void if Bryan is elected.' There is not a large manufacturing concern on the

Pittsburg Division of the B. & O. Railroad but has orders on file conditioned on McKinley's election. Mr. Campbell, of the great Campbell Zell Manufacturing Company, of this city, has told the story of paralysis of manufacture caused by Bryanism in a manner that leaves nothing to be said.

"If this Bryan club wishes to boycott an industrial plant because it has creditors depending on McKinley's election, they may as well provide themselves with the State Directory of all the manufacturing establishments of the United States, because they are all in the same condition as that of the Campbell-Zell Company or the great works at Hagerstown."

"With substantial unanimity the managers of these great manufacturing concerns throughout the Union, without reference to whether they are Democrats or Republicans, are opposing Bryan and Bryanism. They know Bryan's success would mean panic and disaster. They seek to avert panic and disaster, which would throw untold thousands of workmen out of employment."

Here is what you said of me and my speech. I almost blush to quote it:

"When Mr. Cowen rose to speak the applause was deafening. It was fully six minutes before he could proceed. Then he was interrupted again and again. Flashes were waved by the men and handkerchiefs by the ladies. Mr. Cowen's speech is given in full on this page. It was a great speech."

You had a headline even more eulogistic, and you especially commended my speech to the wage earners. But let me give you a few side lights on the report of the meeting on Thursday last from your columns of four years ago upon a like meeting. You now describe the march of men from Sparrow's Point, Curtis Bay, Locust Point, Mount Clare and other like busy centers of industry in the city as the coercion of men by their employers."

See what you said in 1896. I merely give the substance of your description as given in the Sun of November 3, 1896. You describe the march of the "Workers from Sparrows Point," coming by special train over the Pennsylvania Railroad. Then you give the "Workers from East Baltimore," under August Berkemeier, chief of the stevedores at Locust Point terminals of the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad. Then you describe the boys from Locust Point, under the direction of Mr. Reeler, the B. & O. agent there. Then you grew enthusiastic over the march of the men from the car works at Curtis Bay, who came by special train to Camden Station. Then you reserved your special enthusiasm for the men who came from the B. & O. Mount Airy shops. You said: "They turned out as fine a body of mechanics and workmen as has ever been seen in this city." You described their sturdy step and manly bearing and the enthusiasm they displayed.

Such was the free action of the wage-earners in 1896, as you described it. The same arrangements made for the same men, the same kind of a gathering from the same centers of employment, you say is produced by coercion.

You know every man who works for any one of the large employers of labor in this state is as perfectly free to vote for Bryan as McKinley, although every such large employer is an advocate of McKinley's re-election. Ought you not to be ashamed of yourself for casting such slurs upon the honest workmen from these busy places of happy, contented human labor?

I now pass to another phase of these contracts, which become void in case of Bryan's election.

You had scores of editorials in 1896 taking the position that mere fear of Bryan's election was paralyzing business; that contracts would not be made for fear that panic and disaster would follow the election of Bryan, and you argued that if the mere threat or fear of the election of Bryan produced such results in the way of the contraction of business, and the hesitation of business men to commence new and large expenditures, then the actual election would produce business panic and disaster.

Now, what did those editorials mean when translated into an actual business condition? Suppose at that time, as receiver of the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad, I had thought the company needed 6,000 steel cars, and I had discussed the question with the bankers and they had said we will not take the car trust certificates you propose issuing for your new cars, except at ruinous rates of discount, and, most probably, not at all in case of Bryan's election if such an unfortunate event occurs everybody must keep close to shore and must not borrow, and, as a prudent receiver, do not buy any more cars than you can see your way clear to pay for out of the funds now in your control; better take only 1,000 and make the delivery of the other 5,000 dependent on McKinley's election. Would I not be justified in making such a contract, and do not your editorials of 1896 endorse that position, and that business men everywhere at that time were acting that way?

I quote from only two of your many editorials.

This from the Sun editorial of October 26th, 1896: "There is not a business man who does not know of large operations which are made contingent upon result of the election—of enterprises that will not be launched; of orders that are not to be filled unless Bryan is defeated. It is a period of general and anxious suspense."

Here is an editorial from your issue of November 2d, 1896: "That the election of Bryan will injure workmen by making it difficult to sell their produce is the opinion of prudent men everywhere. The following announcement from West Virginia indicates that the paralysis will not be confined to any one industry: 'The Ensign Manufacturing Company, of Huntington, W. Va., have received an order from the Chesapeake and Ohio Railway Company for two hundred coal cars of thirty tons capacity, to be entered as an order on Wednesday November 4th, in case only of the election of McKinley.'

"Yours truly,
"THE ENSIGN MFG. CO.,
"Per E. ENSIGN, Treasurer."

"Huntington, W. Va., Oct. 30th, 1896."

"The announcement is a business affair. Mr. Bryan has intimated in his speeches that a panic will be inaugurated by the triumph of his policy, owing to the prospect of a successful substitution of the silver for the gold standard—the fifty-cent dollar for the one hundred cent dollar. After the transition is made all will be lovely, says Mr. Bryan, but it will obviously be impossible to do business with the ordinary close calculation of profits during the period of transition, which will last no one knows how long. Many persons with more business experience than Mr. Bryan have assured us that even after the transition from the gold to the silver basis there will still be uncertainty in business calculations, stagnation of industry and hard times. No prudent business man will want to undertake a big contract at a fixed price until he knows what his pay will be worth when he gets it. If he puts into a coal car, for example, material bought on the 100 cent gold basis and has fixed the price of delivery on that basis, he would be easily out of pocket if he got his pay on the 50-cent silver basis. This being the case, it is interesting to the public to hear what practical business men foresee to be the effect of Mr. Bryan's election on business. If it is foreseen that their employees are likely to be made idle by the triumph of a policy fatal to business, they have a right to know it, and then can vote for or against a policy of disaster as they see fit. Such announcements as the one here quoted have been described as efforts to bulldoze employees. Not necessarily. They give information. After receiving it the employee, being protected by the Australian ballot, can vote as he likes."

CHARGE OF COERCION PURE NON-SENSE.

You have called my statement of the conditional contract made with the Steel Company a threat, and "coercion." Threat to whom? Coercion to whom? Have you taken leave of your seven senses, or has your worship of the "Great Tribune" gone the length of imitating him in his meaningless form of speech? How could the cancelling of an order to a Pittsburg firm be a coercion of Maryland workmen? Have you lost the power to construct even a plausible slander? But I go further. If I had as clear and concrete an illustration that directly affected the men before me, I would have given it. I now say, without hesitation, that the Pittsburg case is only an illustration of an effect that will in an hundred ways reach the very men to whom I spoke. The election of a Populist would injure them not only in its menace to the wages of all living by wages and salaries, but in its drying up of enterprise.

AN EFFORT TO DECEIVE ALL CLASSES IN SUCCESSION.

So far from this being coercion, I agree with what you said in 1896, that the workmen had a right to know such facts and they ought to be told. So you thought that the workman ought to get information in 1896, but is better with it out this year. I cheerfully admit that your Populist and his platform look better in the dark, but we must let the light in on you all the same. Why are you interested in keeping from the workman in 1900 information that you said in 1896 it was wrong to withhold from him? We find out of your own mouth that you are engaged in an effort to deceive the workmen of this state. You tried first to deceive the commercial classes with your nonsense about imperialism. The business man laughed at you. You then raised a hysterical shriek about trusts. He smiled at you good naturedly and wondered what you took him for. The business man was too intelligent to be caught with your clap-trap. It remains to be seen how you

PRODIGAL CASTELLANE.

The Counts Inability to Handle His Wife's Wealth.

Paris, Nov. 1.—The civil tribunal has appointed George J. Gould trustee for the Countess of Castellane, his sister. According to the pleadings in the case her husband, Count Boni de Castellane, spent 25,000,000 francs in four years, whereas his income from his wife's fortune is only 3,000,000 francs.

Maitre Bonnet, when applying for the trusteeship, informed the president of the court that the countess herself recognized that the expenditure had been too lavish, and that it was necessary for some one of experience and authority to manage her affairs. He went on to say that, although the countess was a consenting party to the trusteeship, it was desirable that he should furnish precise details.

The income of the countess, he went on to set forth, was 3,000,000 francs. Since the marriage 15,000,000 francs had been expended, and the debts now amounted to 25,000,000 francs. The Gould family had met in consultation and unanimously decided to authorize George Gould to make the present application.

With regard to the fitness of George Gould to be trustee Maitre Bonnet pointed out that his fortune was larger than that of the countess, that authority based on affection would be great, and that no one was better qualified, as it was George Gould who was appointed executor of his father's will. Another consideration was that the clearing away of the debts would take a number of years and that therefore it would be wise to economize and not to go to the expense of a paid trustee. The tribunal took this view.

The action in the case was the result of a suit brought by Mr. Gould against his sister. The proceedings were conducted in secret session, only the bare decision being announced. The Castellanes are now staying in the country together.

For more than a year there have been rumors that Count Boni Castellane was greatly exceeding his income by his extravagance, but the members of his family have always been ready with denials and explanations. To settle the affairs the count and countess visited New York last February. At that time the sum of $20,000 was due from the Gould estate to the Countess Castellane, and the money was paid over to her. This was part of the fortune left to her by her father, estimated at $15,000,000. When Anna Gould married Count Castellane she agreed to give her noble husband the sum of $2,000,000, an amount that was supposed to equal his coronet and pedigree.

Count Boni Castellane bought a yacht and went sailing "strange countries for to see," and when he got home he told his wife that he would like to be a politician. So a seat in the chamber of deputies was secured for him. The countess gave him $200,000 to make him a member of the exclusive coterie that is to raise the Paris charity bazaar from its ashes, and many thousands went into the Grand Trianon Palace of the Castellanes in the Avenue du Bois de Boulogne.

about Clothing, Hats, Shirts, Collars, Cuffs, and Suspenders for a number of years, and for the life of me I don't see how you can find so much to say about them," remarked a customer to Lacy Thoroughgood. "Well," said Thoroughgood "the trouble is I can't say enough about them. If the people who read my Ads. knew how good the goods are that I sell and how cheap they are I'd sell every man of them, that is the trouble. If I had any way of making people understand how good a suit of clothes I can sell for $10.00 they would stop paying more, or they would get better clothes, for their $10.00 than they're getting now (unless they're already onto 'EM) Thoroughgood's $10.00 suits are made perfect, haven't a dishonest stitch in them or a poor part in their construction, and they'll wear as well as any suit you can buy. Lacy Thoroughgood can't say too many good things about his goods if he should try. Most all clothing stores claim something. Some of them have what they claim—some don't. Lacy Thoroughgood claims to sell better made clothes at popular prices than any other store in Salisbury. If Thoroughgood don't sell better clothes for the money than anybody else does and you buy any of Thoroughgood's you can't get stuck, you get your money back. The easiest thing in the world is to claim something. This applies to about everybody and everything. A milk man in Salisbury claims to get his milk from the milky way, some of his customers think it comes from the rain clouds. Most everybody in the clothing business claims something, some of them have what they claim (that's Thoroughgood)—some don't (you know 'EM) so do I. Now the democrats are claiming Maryland this time, so are the Republicans. It's so easy to claim something. If anybody in Salisbury is selling clothing cheaper than Thoroughgood, Lacy has never heard of him.

HOW WILL YOU VOTE.

The campaign of 1900 is about over. Before another issue of the ADVERTISER will reach you the ballots will have been cast and counted and the voice of the people will have been heard, either in the re-election of Wm. McKinley or the election of that magnetic orator Wm. Jennings Bryan. Whatever the verdict, the American people will accept the result as the will of the majority, whether it be of their own inclination or otherwise.

Now that the issues have been clearly and vigorously presented, we feel that the average American citizen can easily decide for whom to cast his vote.

On the one side we have Imperialism, Militarism and Trusts. We have the prospect of a large standing army in times of peace—if there be any. We look forward to innumerable wars, growing out of the present foreign policy of the Republican administration, which is a policy of greed and conquest. We know that the Trusts will multiply and grow fat if Mr. McKinley is re-elected. We know that the Constitution, which the people revere, has been trampled upon and cast aside and that it will no longer be the guiding instrument of the Nation's destiny. We know we can no longer occupy our proud position as the greatest Republic of the world. We know that with four years more of McKinley the Ship of State will have drifted so far towards an Empire that it will be impossible to bring her back to her ancient moorings. This will be the result of a continuance of the Republican party in power.

On the other hand, if Mr. Bryan is elected, the United States will again assume her position as the greatest Republic the world has ever seen, whose people love peace rather than war, whose sympathies will be extended to every people struggling for liberty, whose trade and commerce will continue to be extended over the entire globe, but not by arms and the blood of the youths of the land, who should form the future mainstay of our country. The reign of the Trusts will be short lived. In Mr. Bryan's own State a Trust has been compelled to go out of existence by the strict enforcement of the law. The Constitution will again govern the policies of the nation.

The National expenditures will be reduced three hundred millions of dollars a year.

The War tax will be lifted from the shoulders of the people. Every young man will have the same chance to show his way to the front in the battle of the world as was given his father before him. He no longer will be compelled to seek employment from one of the great trusts of the country, but can embark in new enterprises of his own.

Which will you choose of the two—Mr. McKinley, the Empire and the evils that will follow; or Mr. Bryan, the Republic and the reopening of the way to success for individual enterprise and merit? We believe that when you calmly consider the great questions before the country today, you must vote the Democratic ticket. We can see no good reason why a Democrat should withhold his support of the ticket this year. The "Mcney Question" is settled—the Republican claim to the contrary. Let every Democrat do his duty and when the returns are in on next Tuesday, Wicomico will be found in the Democratic column and Maryland will have cast her electoral vote for Wm. Jennings Bryan.

—It is the contention of the Democratic party that the Constitution is and must be supreme over every portion of our country. Hence there can be no such thing as an American colony belonging to the United States and over which our Constitution has no jurisdiction. Such a situation is impossible under our form of government.—David B. Hill in his Chicago speech.

YOUNG MAN'S CHANCE IN THE WORLD

This is one of the most important points in all the debates about trusts, and it is just beginning to sink into the minds of voters. In a few years, at their rate of progress under the McKinley administration, all the business and industries of the country will be controlled by the trusts. A great proportion of it is now. Five or ten years hence what is a young man to do? This is a question Mr. Bryan puts to American fathers. If the father leaves his son a fortune in trust stocks, he is of course reasonably secure. But very few will be able to do this, not one in a hundred thousand. But what of the young man who has only his own energy, and perhaps a few thousand dollars to invest in some enterprise? Yet such chances were open to his father. Then the whole field of industry was open. The young man with a few thousand dollars could make a start. He can do so no longer—at least to any great extent, and in a few years more at the McKinley rate of progress he will find all openings closed. Take the hundreds of industries and branches of business now occupied by the trusts, what chance does the young man stand in any of them as his father had chances when industry was open, the field free? This is the subject of universal remark. It is no part of political controversy. It is an economical fact. We have heard it scores of times from aspiring young men.

In a recent list one hundred and thirty seven trusts are named which control one hundred and thirty seven branches of industry. They cover the whole field. And there is no mistaking the tendency of the times. The trusts are absorbing each other. Where is the young man's chance? It doesn't exist. He is mortgaged to the trust for his lifetime. He must be a hewer of wood and drawer of water for them. His father's chance don't exist for him. Submission to the iron rule of the trusts is to be the price of employment. That brings up the issue, the way industries are tending, of obedience or starvation. Labor organizations would become useless and strikers of no account save to involve the people in want, and eventually make way for McKinley's "permanent standing army" in suppressing that discontent and those evil conditions that should be met by legislation. The aspiring young man who hopes for success in life has but one chance to remedy the conditions that are being forced on him. It must be by his vote. If he gives it to the trust monster he is fighting his own battle of life.

Finally, in this campaign, on which side do we find the trusts with a unanimity significant of the vast interests involved? Is it not clear as day—as indisputable as any fact that could be stated—that they are on the side of McKinley and Hannah and the Republican party? Their treasure and measures of intimidation are being poured out to defeat Bryan.—Pittsburg Post.

—Democrats must remember that the Democratic Ticket is the first ticket on the ballot this year. For the past four years the Republican Ticket has been first. Don't make a mistake. An X mark in the first emblem on the ballot votes the entire ticket and no other mark is necessary.

—The Cambridge Democrat and News says: "Our people who visited Salisbury on Wednesday were very much impressed with the evidence of business activity and prosperity to be seen on all sides. Salisbury is an up-to-date town and its business men and public officials are among the most obliging and accommodating we ever met. Salisbury is not so well located, in our opinion, as Cambridge, but the enterprise of its people has overcome all obstacles. It is already arched town and bids fair to grow rapidly, as there are now new buildings going up in all parts of it."

That Salisbury is better located than Cambridge is easily seen. Here two railroads intersect at right angles, one a great trunk line; the Wicomico river ebbs and flows through the western side of the city. Salisbury is centrally located and easily accessible to the people of all parts of the "Eastern Shore" peninsula which forms an interesting and prosperous part of three important States. Cambridge has a beautiful water-front, the great Choptank lying at her door, and a railroad, which however, is not and by force of natural conditions, can not become a very important factor in the city's progress. These facts and the public spirit of the Salisbury people places her foremost among peninsula towns.

—In another column of the ADVERTISER will be found a letter from John K. Cowen to the Baltimore Sun, that is being published as advertising matter by the Democratic press throughout the State.

The object of this letter is to influence Democrats and Independent voters to support the Republican ticket. We do not believe that it will accomplish this purpose. In fact we think it will have the opposite effect. Mr. Cowen has gone over to the Republican party and is today as much a Republican as the President himself whose cause he champions. His parading under the name of Democratic League should fool no one, his only object being his belief that he may exert a greater influence with wavering Democrats. The Democrats of Maryland are not inclined this year to waver and will cast a practically solid vote for Wm. Jennings Bryan. The only effect Mr. Cowen's letter will have in Wicomico, will be to drive the Democrats closer together and cause them to fight harder for the success of their ticket on next Tuesday.

JOHN K. COWEN

REPLIES TO THE ATTACK ON HIM BY THE SUN.

STATEMENT THAT CAR CONTRACT WAS AWARDED CONTINGENT ON MCKINLEY'S RE-ELECTION IS CONFIRMED BY MR. COWEN.

CHARGE OF "COERCION" REFUTED.

THE SUN'S MISSTATEMENTS AND CONDUCT ANALYZED

ISSUES OF THE CAMPAIGN ABLY DISCUSSED.

To the Editor of The Sun;

You have devoted considerable space to the statement I made at Music Hall about a contract for steel cars which would be canceled in the event of Bryan's election. You have called it a "bluff," by which, of course, you mean that my statement is untrue. Now, let me give you the precise provision in the contract for construction of these 6,000 steel cars.

CONTRACT CONDITIONAL ON BRYAN'S DEFEAT.

The document constituting the contract, addressed to me as President of the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad Company is as follows:

"Dear Sir:—Referring to our verbal understanding yesterday with regard to the purchase of 4,000 gondolas and 2,000 self-clearing hopper bottom steel cars, I write this letter for your acceptance, so as to avoid any possible misunderstanding." Then come the terms. The concluding paragraph of the contract is: "THE FURTHER VERBAL UNDERSTANDING BETWEEN US WAS THAT IN CASE OF THE DEFEAT OF MCKINLEY FOR PRESIDENT, YOU ARE TO HAVE THE OPTION OF CANCELING 5,000 CARS."

The 1,000 cars named were, as I stated in my remarks at the meeting, about the number that would be well under way before the election, and would therefore be taken; the remainder, under instructions I have received, would not be taken—as to them the contract would be at an end.

Let my statement was, therefore, true. Yours is necessarily, therefore, false. You could have found out the exact facts before you made your false statement; you did not even try to do so.

2d. Why was such a condition made?

There were two controlling reasons: (1.) This is a large order for cars, costing well on to $5,000,000. These cars will necessarily be paid for out of the proceeds of securities provided under the various plans of reorganization for such purposes. These securities are necessarily floated by bankers, and Bryan's election is believed by all bankers, without exception, to be so certain of coming, that doubt and hesitation in the financial markets of the world that they would not take the securities at prices which the managers of the Company regard as proper prices, still, they will take them at proper prices, if Bryan is defeated. The funds therefore for the payment of the cars would not be forthcoming, hence, as prudent business men, we made the contract accordingly.

(2.) Again, if Bryan is elected, we believe that there will be such a contraction of business and enterprise that such a large additional number of cars will not be needed. This is the plain, unvarnished tale. Now, you may say that bankers and financial institutions have no business to think as they do about the result of Bryan's election on business and finance. That may be; but they do so think, and that ends it. You may say that the managers of the road ought not to think that Bryan's election will create such a partial paralysis of business that the road will not need this additional equipment; but they do so think, and that ends it.

The writer of your editorial and the collector of the valuable gossip from the tried and eminent financiers mentioned in your news columns could, doubtless, manage the railroad better than those now in charge of it but for the time being, at least, our opinions must control. Now, I have given you a fact as to a plain contract and the business reasons for it. What do you think of your charge against me that I was telling a falsehood?

SUN APPROVED SAME COURSE IN 1896.

3d. I am not done with you. I now propose to show that I made a statement of precisely similar contracts made by other industrial companies in 1896, which became void in case of Bryan's election, and you approved the utterance. Here is the quotation from my Music Hall speech in 1896, as taken from your columns:

"TO AVERT PANIC."

"Look now at the great employers of labor and their attitude in this campaign. That, too, is the subject of complaint. The great bicycle works at Hagerstown make a contract for the sale of wheels, which will be the means of furnishing more than 1,000 men with their support during the coming year. But the contract depends for its performance on McKinley's election. A Democratic club of Baltimore threatens to boycott the wheel because the manager simply told the truth about the contract. Why, I can tell that club that within ten days one of the large concerns on the B. & O. Railroad in West Virginia has made an agreement for the sale of an enormous product, and one of the express conditions is: 'This agreement shall be null and void if Bryan is elected.' There is not a large manufacturing concern on the

Pittsburg Division of the B. & O. Railroad but has orders on file conditioned on McKinley's election. Mr. Campbell, of the great Campbell-Zell Manufacturing Company, of this city, has told the story of paralysis of manufacture caused by Bryanism in a manner that leaves nothing to be said.

"If this Bryan club wishes to boycott an industrial plant because it has orders depending on McKinley's election, they may as well provide themselves with the State Directory of all the manufacturing establishments of the United States, because they are all in the same condition as that of the Campbell-Zell Company or the great works at Hagerstown."

"With substantial unanimity the managers of these great manufacturing concerns throughout the Union, without reference to whether they are Democrats or Republicans, are opposing Bryan and Bryanism. They know Bryan's success would mean panic and disaster. They seek to avert panic and disaster, which would throw untold thousands of workmen out of employment."

Here is what you said of me and my speech. I almost blush to quote it: "When Mr. Cowen rose to speak the applause was deafening. It was fully six minutes before he could proceed. Then he was interrupted again and again. Flags were waved by the men and handkerchiefs by the ladies. Mr. Cowen's speech is given in full on this page. It was a great speech."

You had a headline even more eulogistic, and you especially commended my speech to the wage earners. But let me give you a few side lights on the report of the meeting on Thursday last from your columns of four years ago upon a like meeting. You now describe the march of men from Sparrow's Point, Curtis Bay, Locust Point, Mount Clare and other like busy centers of industry in the city as the coercion of men by their employers.

See what you said in 1896: "I merely give the substance of your description as given in the Sun of November 2, 1896. You describe the march of the 'Workers from Sparrows Point,' coming by special train over the Pennsylvania Railroad. Then you give the 'Workers from East Baltimore,' under August Berkemeier, chief of the stevedores at Locust Point terminals of the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad. Then you describe the boys from Locust Point, under the direction of Mr. Reeler, the B. & O. agent there. Then you grew enthusiastic over the march of the men from the car works at Curtis Bay, who came by special train to Camden Station. Then you reserved your special enthusiasm for the men who came from the B. & O. Mount Clare shops. You said: 'They turned out as fine a body of mechanics and workmen as has ever been seen in this city.' You described their sturdy step and manly bearing and the enthusiasm they displayed."

Such was the free action of the wage-earners in 1896, as you described it. The same arrangements made for the same men, the same kind of a gathering from the same centers of employment, you say is produced by coercion.

You know every man who works for any one of the large employers of labor in this state is as perfectly free to vote for Bryan as McKinley, although every such large employer is an advocate of McKinley's re-election. Ought you not to be ashamed of yourself for casting such slurs upon the honest workmen from these busy places of happy, contented human labor?

4th. I now pass to another phase of these contracts, which become void in case of Bryan's election.

You had scores of editorials in 1896 taking the position that mere fear of Bryan's election was paralyzing business; that contract would not be made for fear that panic and disaster would follow the election of Bryan, and you argued that if the mere threat or fear of the election of Bryan produced such results in the way of the contraction of business, and the hesitation of business men to commence new and large expenditures, then the actual election would produce business panic and disaster.

Now, what did those editorials mean when translated into an actual business condition? Suppose at that time, as receiver of the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad, I had thought the company needed 6,000 steel cars, and I had discussed the question with the bankers and they had said we will not take the car trust certificates you propose issuing for your new cars, except at ruinous rates of discount, and, most probably, not at all in case of Bryan's election if such an unfortunate event occurs everybody must keep close to shore and must not borrow, and, as a prudent receiver, do not buy any more cars than you can see your way clear to pay for out of the funds now in your control; better take only 1,000 and make the delivery of the other 5,000 dependent on McKinley's election. Would I not be justified in making such a contract, and do not your editorials of 1896 endorse that position, and that business men everywhere at that time were acting that way?

I quote from only two of your many editorials.

This from the Sun editorial of October 26th, 1896: "There is no business man who does not know of large operations which are made contingent upon result of the election—of enterprises that will not be launched; of orders that are not to be filled unless Bryan is defeated. It is a period of general and anxious suspense."

Here is an editorial from your issue of November 2d, 1896:

"That the election of Bryan will injure workmen by making it difficult to sell their produce is the opinion of prudent men everywhere. The following announcement from West Virginia indicates that the paralysis will not be confined to any one industry:

"The Ensign Manufacturing Company, of Huntington, W. Va., have received an order from the Chesapeake and Ohio Railway Company for two hundred coal cars of thirty tons capacity, to be entered as an order on Wednesday November 4th, in case only of the election of McKinley."

"Yours truly,

"THE ENSIGN MFG. CO.,

"Per E. ENSIGN, Treasurer."

"Huntington, W. Va., Oct. 30th, 1896."

"The announcement is a business affair. Mr. Bryan has intimated in his speeches that a panic will be inaugurated by the triumph of his policy, owing to the prospect of a successful substitution of the silver for the gold standard—the fifty-cent dollar for the one hundred cent dollar. After the transition is made all will be lovely, says Mr. Bryan, but it will obviously be impossible to do business with the ordinary close calculation of profits during the period of transition, which will last no one knows how long. Many persons with more business experience than Mr. Bryan have assured us that even after the transition from the gold to the silver basis there will still be uncertainty in business calculations, stagnation of industry and hard times. No prudent business man will want to undertake a big contract at a fixed price until he knows what his pay will be worth when he gets it. If he puts into a coal car, for example, material bought on a 100-cent gold basis and has fixed the price of delivery on that basis, he would be sadly out of pocket if he got his pay on the 50-cent silver basis. This being the case, it is interesting to the public to hear what practical business men foresee to be the effect of Mr. Bryan's election on business. If it is foreseen that their employees are likely to be made idle by the triumph of a policy fatal to business, they have a right to know it, and they can vote for or against a policy of disaster as they see fit. Such announcements as the one here quoted have been described as efforts to bulldoze employees. Not necessarily. They give information. After receiving it the employee, being protected by the Australian ballot, can vote as he likes."

CHARGE OF COERCION PURE NONSENSE.

You have called my statement of the conditional contract made with the Steel Company a threat, and "coercion." Threat to whom? Coercion to whom? Have you taken leave of your seven senses, or have your words of the "Great Tribune" gone the length of imitating him in his meaningless force of speech? How could the cancelling of an order to a Pittsburg firm be a coercion of Maryland workmen? Have you lost the power to construct even a plausible slander? But I go further. If I had had as clear and concrete an illustration that directly affected the men before me, I would have given it. I now say, without hesitation, that the Pittsburg case is only an illustration of an effect that will in an hundred ways reach the very men to whom I spoke. The election of a Populist would injure them not only in its menace to the wages of all living by wages and salaries, but in its drying up of enterprise.

AN EFFORT TO DECEIVE ALL CLASSES IN SUCCESSION.

So far from this being coercion, I agree with what you said in 1896, that the workmen had a right to know such facts and they ought to be told. So you thought that the workman ought to get information in 1896, but is better without it this year. I cheerfully admit that your Populist and his platform look better in the dark, but we must let the light in on you all the same. Why are you interested in keeping from the workman in 1900 information that you said in 1896 it was wrong to withhold from him? We find out of your own mouth that you are engaged in an effort to deceive the workingmen of this state. You tried first to deceive the commercial classes with your nonsense about imperialism. The business man laughed at you. You then raised an hysterical shriek about trusts. He smiled at you good naturedly and wondered what you took him for. The business man was too intelligent to be caught with your claptrap. It remains to be seen how you

PRODIGAL CASTELLANE.

The Counts Inability to Handle His Wife's Wealth.

Paris, Nov. 1.—The civil tribunal has appointed George J. Gould trustee for the Countess of Castellane, his sister. According to the pleadings in the case her husband, Count Boni de Castellane, spent 22,000,000 francs in four years, whereas his income from his wife's fortune is only 3,000,000 francs.

Maitre Bonnet, when applying for the trusteeship, informed the president of the court that the countess herself recognized that the expenditure had been too lavish, and that it was necessary for some one of experience and authority to manage her affairs. He went on to say that, although the countess was a consenting party to the trusteeship, it was desirable that he should furnish precise details.

The income of the countess, he went on to set forth, was 3,000,000 francs. Since the marriage 15,000,000 francs had been expended, and the debts now amounted to 22,000,000 francs. The Gould family had met in consultation and unanimously decided to authorize George Gould to make the present application.

With regard to the fitness of George Gould to be trustee Maitre Bonnet pointed out that his fortune was larger than that of the countess, that authority based on affection would be great, and that no one was better qualified, as it was George Gould who was appointed executor of his father's will. Another consideration was that the clearing away of the debts would take a number of years and that therefore it would be wise to economize and not to go to the expense of a paid trustee. The tribunal took this view.

The action in the case was the result of a suit brought by Mr. Gould against his sister. The proceedings were conducted in secret session, only the bare decision being announced. The Castellanes are now staying in the country together.

For more than a year there have been rumors that Count Boni Castellane was greatly exceeding his income by his extravagance, but the members of his family have always been ready with denials and explanations. To settle affairs the count and countess visited New York last February. At that time the sum of $20,000 was due from the Gould estate to the Countess Castellane, and the money was paid over to her. This was part of the fortune left to her by her father, estimated at $15,000,000. When Anna Gould married Count Castellane she agreed to give her noble husband the sum of $2,000,000, an amount that was supposed to equal his coronet and pedigree.

Count Boni Castellane bought a yacht and went sailing "strange countries for to see," and when he got home he told his wife that he would like to be a politician. So a seat in the chamber of deputies was secured for him. The countess gave him $200,000 to make him a member of the exclusive coterie that is to raise the Paris charity bazaar from its ashes, and many thousands went into the Grand Trianon Palace of the Castellanes in the Avenue du Bois de Boulogne.

about Clothing, Hats, Shirts, Collars, Cuffs, and Suspenders for a number of years, and for the life of me I don't see how you can find so much to say about them," remarked a customer to Lacy Thoroughgood. "Well" said Thoroughgood "the trouble is I can't say enough about them. If the people who read my Ads. knew how good the goods are that I sell and how cheap they are I'd sell every man of them, that is the trouble. If I had any way of making people understand how good a suit of clothes I can sell for $10.00 they would stop paying more, or they would get better clothes, for their $10.00 than they're getting now (unless they're already onto 'EM) Thoroughgood's $10.00 suits are made perfect, haven't a dishonest stitch in them or a poor part in their construction, and they'll wear as well as any suit you can buy. Lacy Thoroughgood can't say too many good things about his goods if he should try. Most all clothing stores claim something. Some of them have what they claim—some don't. Lacy Thoroughgood claims to sell better made clothes at popular prices than any other store in Salisbury. If Thoroughgood don't sell better clothes for the money than anybody else does and you buy any of Thoroughgood's you can't get stuck, you get your money back. The easiest thing in the world is to claim something. This applies to about everybody and everything. A milk man in Salisbury claims to get his milk from the milky way, some of his customers think it comes via the rain clouds. Most everybody in the clothing business claims something, some of them have what they claim (that's Thoroughgood)—some don't (you know 'EM) so do I. Now the democrats are claiming Maryland this time, so are the Republicans. It's so easy to claim something. If anybody in Salisbury is selling clothing cheaper than Thoroughgood, Lacy has never heard of him.

THE SPIRIT OF GREED

DR. TALMAGE TELLS OF ITS BLIGHTING EFFECT ON MANKIND.

Strong Denunciation of Those Who Worship the Golden Calf of Modern Idolatry and Sacrifice Themselves and Their Families on Its Altar.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 28.—In this discourse Dr. Talmage shows how the spirit of greed destroys when it takes possession of a man and that money got in wrong ways is a curse. Text: Exodus, xxxii, 20. "And he took the calf which they had made and burnt it in the fire, and ground it to powder, and strewn it upon the water, and made the children of Israel drink of it."

People will have a god of some kind, and they prefer one of their own making. Here come the Israelites, breaking off their golden earrings, the men as well as the women, for in those times there was masculine as well as feminine decoration. Where did they get these beautiful gold earrings, coming up as they did from the desert? Oh, they borrowed them from the Egyptians when they left Egypt. These earrings are piled up to a pyramid of glittering beauty. "Any more earrings to bring?" says Aaron. None. Fire is kindled, the earrings are melted and poured into a mold, not of an eagle or a war charger, but of a silly calf. The gold cools down, the mold is taken away, and the idol is set up on its four legs. An altar is built in front of the shining calf. Then the people throw up their arms and grate and shriek and dance vigorously and worship.

Moses has been six weeks on Mount Sinai, and he comes back and hears the howling and sees the dancing of these golden calf fanatics, and he loses his patience, and he takes the two plates of stone on which were written the Ten Commandments and flings them so hard against a rock that they split all to pieces. When a man gets angry, he is apt to break all the Ten Commandments! Moses rushes in, and he takes this calf and throws it into a hot fire until it is melted all out of shape and then pulverizes it, not by the modern appliance of atomistic acid, but by the ancient appliance of niter or by the old fashioned file. He stirs for the people a most nauseating draft. He takes this pulverized golden calf and throws it in the only brook which is accessible, and the people are compelled to drink of that brook or not drink at all.

But they did not drink all the glittering stuff thrown on the surface. Some of it flows down the surface of the brook to the river and then flows on down the river to the sea, and the sea takes it up and bears it to the mouth of all the rivers, and when the tides set back the remains of this golden calf are carried up into the Potomac and the Hudson and the Thames and the Clyde and the Tiber, and men go out, and they skim the glittering surface, and they bring it ashore, and they make another golden calf, and California and Australia break off their gold earrings to augment the pile, and in the fires of financial excitement and struggle all these things are melted together, and while we stand looking and wondering what will come of it, lo, we find that the golden calf of Israelitish worship has become the golden calf of European and American worship.

Modern Golden Calf. Pull aside this curtain, and you see the golden calf of modern idolatry. It is not, like other idols, made out of stocks or bonds, but it has an ear so sensitive that it can hear the whispers on Wall street, and Third street, and State street, and the footfalls in the Bank of England, and the flutter of a Frenchman's heart on the Bourse. It has an eye so keen that it can see the rust on the farm of Michigan wheat and the insect in the Maryland peach orchard and the trampled grain under the hoof of the Russian war charger. It is so mighty that it swings its way it will the world's shipping. It has its foot on all the merchantmen and the steamers. It started the American civil war and, under God, stopped it, and it decided the Russo-Turkish contest. One broker in September, 1899, in New York, shouted, "One hundred and sixty for a million!" and the whole continent shivered. The golden calf of the text has, as far as America is concerned, its right front foot in New York, its left front foot in Chicago, its right back foot in Charleston, its left back foot in New Orleans, and when it shakes itself it shakes the world. Oh, this is a mighty god—the golden calf of the world's worship.

But every god must have its temple, and this golden calf of the text is no exception. Its temple is vaster than St. Paul's cathedral in England, and St. Peter's in Italy, and the Alhambra of the Spaniards, and the Parthenon of the Greeks, and the Taj Mahal of the Hindoos and all the cathedrals put together. Its pillars are grooved and fluted with gold, and its chandeliers are descending gold, and its floors are tessellated gold, and its vaults are crowded heaps of gold, and its spires and domes are soaring gold, and its organ pipes are resounding gold, and its pedals are tramping gold, and its stops peddle out as the golden calf, while standing at the head of the temple, as the presiding deity, are the hoofs and shoulders and eyes and ears and nostrils of the calf of gold.

Its Altar of Sacrifice. Further, every god must have not only its temple, but its altar of sacrifice, and this golden calf of the text is no exception. Its altar is not made out of stone as other altars, but out of counting room books and fireproof safes, and it is a broad, a long, a high altar. The victims sacrificed on it are the Swartons and the Ketchams and the Plaks and 10,000 other people who are slain before this golden calf. What does this god care about the groans and struggles of the victims before it? With cold, metallic eye it looks on and yet lets them suffer. What an altar! What a sacrifice of mind, body and soul! The physical health of a great multitude is flung on to this sacrificial altar. They cannot sleep, and they take chloral and morphine and intoxicants. Some of them struggle in a nightmare of stocks and at 1 o'clock in the morning suddenly rise up, shouting, "A thousand shares of New York Central—108 1/2—take it!" until the whole family is frightened, and the speculators fall back on their pillow and sleep until they are awakened again by a "corner" in Pacific Mail or a sudden "rise" of Rock Island. Their nerves gone, their digestion gone, their health gone, they die. The god of the golden calf comes in and reads the funeral service, "Blessed are the dead who die in the Lord!" Mistake. They did not die in the Lord.

The golden calf kicked them! The trouble is when men sacrifice themselves on this altar suggested in the text they not only sacrifice themselves, but they sacrifice their families. If a man by a wrong course is determined to go to perdition, I suppose you will have to let him go. But he puts his wife and children in an equipage that is the arrangement of the avenger, and the driver lashes the horses into two whirlwinds, and the spokes flash in the sun, and the golden headgear of the harness gleams until black calamity takes the bits of the horses and stops them and shouts to the luxurious occupants of the equipage, "Get out!" They get out. They get down. That husband and father flung his family so hard they never get up. There was the word on them for life—the mark of a "C" horse—the death dealing hoof of the golden calf.

Solomon offered in one sacrifice on one occasion 22,000 oxen and 120,000 sheep, but that was a tame sacrifice compared with the multitude of men who are sacrificing themselves on this altar of the golden calf and sacrificing their families with them. The soldiers of General Havelock in India walked literally ankle deep in the flood of "the house of unseemly" where 200 white women and children had been slain by the negro, but the blood about this altar of the golden calf flows up to the knee, flows up to the girdle, flows up to the shoulder, flows up to the lip. Great God of heaven and earth, have mercy on those who immolate themselves on this altar! The golden calf has none.

Degrading Worship Goes On. Still the degrading worship goes on, and the devotees kneel and kiss the dust and count their golden beads and cross themselves with the blood of their own sacrifice. The music rolls on under the arches. It is made of clinking silver and clinking gold and the rattling specie of the banks and brokers' shops and the voices of all the exchanges. The soprano of the worship is carried by the timid voices of men who have just begun to speculate, while the deep bass rolls out from those who for ten years have been steeped in the seething caldron. Chorus of voices rejoicing over what they have made; chorus of voices wailing over what they have lost. This temple which speaks stands open day and night, and there is the glittering god with his four feet on broken hearts, and there is the smoking altar of sacrifice, new victims every moment on it, and there are the kneeling devotees; and the dogology of the worship rolls on, while death stands with molder and skeleton arm beating time for the chorus—"More, more, more!"

Some people are very much surprised at the actions of people in the Stock Exchange, New York. Indeed, it is a scene sometimes that paralyzes description and is beyond the imagination of any one who has never looked in. What snapping of finger and thumb and wild gesticulation and raving like hyenas and stamping like buffaloes and swaying to and fro and jostling and running one upon another and deafening uproar, until the president of the exchange strikes with his mallet four or five times, crying, "Order, order!" and the astonished spectator goes out into the fresh air feeling that he has escaped from pandemonium. What does it all mean? I will tell you what it means. The devotees of every heathen temple cut themselves to pieces and yell and grate. This vociferation and gyrations of the Stock Exchange is all appropriate. This is the worship of the golden calf.

But my text suggests that this worship has to be broken up, as the behavior of Moses on this occasion indicated. There are those who say that this golden calf spoken of in the text was hollow and merely plated with gold, otherwise Moses could not have carried it. I do not know that, but somehow, perhaps by the assistance of his friends, he takes up this golden calf, which is an infernal insult to God and man, and throws it into the fire and it is melted, and then it comes out and is cooled off, and by some chemical appliance or by an old fashioned file it is pulverized, and it is thrown into the sea, and the astonished spectator goes out into the fresh air feeling that he has escaped from pandemonium. What does it all mean? I will tell you what it means. The devotees of every heathen temple cut themselves to pieces and yell and grate. This vociferation and gyrations of the Stock Exchange is all appropriate. This is the worship of the golden calf.

Day of Judgment Coming. But every day is a day of judgment, and God is all the time grinding to pieces the golden calf. Some years ago in a time of panic we learned as never before that forgeries will not pay, that the watering of stock will not pay, that the spending of $50,000 on country seats and a palatial city residence when there are only $30,000 income will not pay, that the appropriation of trust funds to our own private speculation will not pay. We had a great national tumor in the shape of fictitious prosperity. We called it national enlargement. Instead of calling it enlargement we might better have called it a swelling. It was a tumor, and God cut it out, and the nation was sent back to the principles of our fathers and grandfathers, when twice three made 6 instead of 60 and when the apples at the bottom of the barrel were just as good as the apples on the top of the barrel and a silk handkerchief was not half cotton and a man who wore a $50 coat paid for was more honored than a man who wore a $50 coat not paid for.

The modern golden calf, like the one of the text, is very apt to be made out of borrowed gold. These Israelites of the text borrowed the earrings of the Egyptians and then melted them into a god. That is the way the golden calf is made nowadays. A great many housekeepers not paying for the articles they get borrowed of the grocer and the baker and the butcher and the dry goods seller. Then the retailer borrows of the wholesale dealer. Then the wholesale dealer borrows of the capitalist, and we borrow and borrow and borrow until the community is divided into two classes, those who borrow and those who are borrowed of, and after awhile the capitalist wants his money, and he rushes upon the wholesale dealer, and the wholesale dealer wants his money, and he rushes upon the retailer, and the retailer wants his money, and he rushes upon the customer, and we all go down together. There is many a man in this day who rides in a carriage and owns the blacksmith for the tire and the shoemaker for the shoe and the wheelwright for the wheel and the trimmer for the curtain and the driver for unpaid wages and the harness maker for the bridle and the furrier for the robe, while from the tip of the carriage tongue clear back to the tip of the camel's hair shawl everything is paid for by notes that have been three times renewed.

I tell you that in this country we shall never get things right until we stop borrowing and pay as we go. It is this temptation to borrow and borrow and borrow that keeps the people everlastingly praying to the golden calf for help, and just at the minute they expect the help the golden calf treads on them. The judgments of God, like Moses in the text, will rush in and break up this worship, and I say let the work go on until every man shall learn to speak truth with his neighbor, and those who make engagements shall feel themselves bound to keep them, and when a man who will not repeat of his business iniquity, but goes on wishing to satisfy his cannibal appetite by devouring widows' houses, shall, by the law of the land, be compelled to exchange the brownstone front for the penitentiary. Let the golden calf perish!

Idols Demolished. But, if we have made this world our god, when we come to die we shall see our idol demolished. How much of this world are you going to take with you into the next? Will you have two pockets—one in each side of your shroud? Will you cushion your casket with bonds and mortgages and certificates of stock? Ah, no! The ferryboat that crosses this Jordan takes no baggage—nothing heavier than an immortal spirit. You may, perhaps, take $500 with you two or three miles in the shape of funeral trappings to the cemetery, but you will have to leave them there. It would not be safe for you to lie down there with a watch or a diamond ring. It would be a temptation to the pilferers. If we have made this world our god, we shall see our idol when we die ground to pieces by our pillow, and we shall have to drink it in bitter regrets for the wasted opportunities of a lifetime. Soon we will be gone. Where are the men who tried Warren Hastings in Westminster hall? Where are the pilgrim fathers who put out for America? Where are the veterans who on the Fourth of July, 1794, marched from New York park to the Battery and fired a salute and then marched back again? And the Society of the Cincinnati who dined that afternoon at Tontine coffee house on Wall street? And Grant Thoburn, who that afternoon waited 15 minutes at the foot of Maiden lane for the Brooklyn ferryboat, then got in and was rowed across by two men with oars, the tide so strong that it was an hour and ten minutes before they landed? Where are the veterans that fired the salute and the men of the Cincinnati society who that afternoon drank to the patriotic toast? And the oarsmen that rowed the boat? And the people who were transported? Gone! Oh, this is a fleeting world! It is a dying world. A man who had worshiped it all his days in his dying moment described himself when he said, "Fool, fool, fool!"

Unfailing Securities. I want you to change temples and to give up the worship of this unsatisfying and cruel god for the service of the Lord Jesus Christ. Here is the god who will never fade. Here are the securities that will never break. Here is an altar on which there has been one sacrifice that does for all, for "by one sacrifice hath Christ perfected forever them that are sanctified." Here is a God who will comfort you when you are in trouble and soothe you when you are sick and save you when you die. For he has said: "When thou passest through the waters, I will be with thee and through the rivers they shall not overflow thee; when thou walkest through the fire, thou shalt not be burned, neither shall the flame kindle upon thee."

When your parents have breathed their last and the old, wrinkled and trembling hands can no more be put upon your head for a blessing, he will be to you a father and mother both, giving you the defense of one and the comfort of the other. For have we not Paul's blessed hope that as Jesus died and rose again, "even so them also which sleep in Jesus shall God bring with him." And when your children go away from you, the sweet darlings, you will not kiss them and say goodbye forever. He only wants to hold them for you a little while. He will give them back to you again, and he will have them all waiting for you at the gates of eternity. Oh, what a God he is! He will allow you to come so close that you can put your arms around his neck, while he in response will put his arms around your neck, and all the windows of heaven will be hoisted to let the redeemed look out and see the spectacle of a rejoicing father and a returned prodigal locked in that glorious embrace. Quit worshipping the golden calf and bow this day before him in whose presence we must all appear when the world has turned to ashes.

Then dwelling like a parched scroll, When louder yet and yet more dread Swells the high trump that wakes the dead. [Copyright, 1900, Louis Klopsch, N. Y.]

Why They Loved the Cur. The Newton (Kan.) Republican says that a Galveston family recently moved to that town and attracted much attention by the affection which they bestowed upon a common looking yellow cur. Inquiry revealed the fact that during the great storm along the coast of Texas the baby of the family had been swept off a porch and appeared to be helplessly lost. But the dog plunged into the flood, fought with the waves and brought the baby back to safety.

will succeed in your effort to deceive the wage-earner. But who is coerced? All of us are under certain forms of coercion. Do you remember the witty reply of the Irishman when his Scotch friend asserted that the Irish people would lie? He replied, "That's only the national protest against the tyranny of fact." Facts tyrannize over us all. I would only explain to the workmen the hard facts that tyrannize over them and me. When you assert that we would be just as anxious to do business if Bryan was elected, you are perfectly right. If you could put into the chair of Washington and Cleveland the most ridiculous mountebank, the most chattering specimen of the Bander Log, we would be just as anxious to do business as we are today. The difference would not be in our desire, but in our opportunity. We can not do business, however much we desire, if the "tyrannical fact" of a want of confidence shuts us off from our sources of supply. I did not want to coerce any employer. I wanted to show the employees of my own and other companies—the tyranny of fact, from which an intelligent man never gets free.

A MORAL AND INTELLECTUAL DEBAUCH.

A word now on your dealing with the interests of the wage-earner. You have in this campaign been on a great intellectual and moral debauch. You have been emancipated from the tyranny of fact. You have taken marvelous positions that require wonderful assurance, but your most daring achievement was to present a Populist to the wage earner as his friend—that took some nerve. If you ask the farmer to worship the weevil and the grasshopper, or the gardener to erect an altar to the tomato worm and pea louse, they would tell you that they were their natural enemies. The relation of the Populist to the wage-earner is just the same. The Populist are for the most part men who have bought Western farms which they could not pay for. They hope to pay off their mortgages from the profits of the lands. They, therefore, desire a debasing of the currency, that they may pay both capitalists and wage-earner in cheap money. They are after the wage earner as distinctly as they are after the capitalist. It may be all right for the wage earner to vote for a Populist against his interests, but anybody who persuades them that it is to his interest to do so commits a fraud.

ANTI-IMPERIALISM.

Let me speak of the first. Does the Constitution forbid us to acquire territory except by the consent of its people? Does the Constitution extend to its newly acquired territory?

(A) We never acquired any territory by the consent of the governed. We have acquired much territory, and nobody ever dreamed of applying this phrase to it.

(B) We have never treated newly acquired territory as part of the United States, or governed by the provisions of the Constitution applicable to the territories. In all ways the general government has, from the beginning, treated the territories as not a part of the United States.

(C) To treat new territory as governed by the Constitution, as it applies to the States would strip our government of powers inseparable from the whole idea of a government, and make the treaty making power purely ridiculous.

TERRITORIES SIMPLY PROPERTY OF UNITED STATES.

(D) The Constitution itself makes the clearest distinction between the United States and such territory. It treats the latter simply as property of the United States, to be dealt with by Congress exactly as it would with the power purchased for the Army or the supplies for the departments. Its regulations for such territory are not even described as laws, but as "rules and regulations." Here is the provision (Constitution, Art. IV, Section 3, Sub-Section 2):

"The Congress shall have power to dispose of and make all needful rules and regulations respecting the territory or other property belonging to the United States."

(E) The theory that the provisions of the Constitution as to the States extend to the territories was an ingenious fiction of Calhoun, "invented," as Benton expresses it, to secure a recognition of slavery in them. His position was made a little ridiculous by his previous recognition that it did not so extend. He tried to slip into an appropriation bill an amendment extending the Constitution to the territories. Webster, in a luminous argument, showed that it could not, as a Constitution even be extended to them by act. (It would require an amendment to the Constitution itself to extend it to the territories.) Calhoun's position did not commend itself even to the Democrats, and then he invented the present theory, his object being to override the objections of New Mexico and California to having slavery forced on them.

AN OUTWORN SCARECROW.

Such is the anti-imperialistic dogma. It is absolutely without substance. The loud outcry that has been raised by you and others against the action of the present administration as involving the overthrow of our free institutions is simply an outworn scarecrow that has been raised against every administration that ever had a difficult position to deal with. Every great measure in England or this country has been put through in the face of this alarmist outcry, and there has been a steady advance in freedom and self-government all the time.

Paid Advertisements.

Now for your second point on anti-expansion:

EXCUSE OF BRYAN FOR FAVORING TREATY NECESSARILY FALSE.

Mr. Bryan personally helped to pass the treaty by which we acquired the Philippines of Spain. He now says that he did so, not for the sake of raising a false issue, but because he knew we could readily abandon them after the treaty. It is painful to say that this cannot be true. That treaty binds us to secure to Spain the same rights in Philippine ports that we have ourselves, and to secure for all time religious freedom in the islands. This, of course, we could not do, if we abandoned them.

PUTTING US WITH THE SAVAGE TRIBES.

The ground taken by you, and in the Maryland Democratic platform, is that it is contrary to our policy to expand beyond the sea. We must only expand into contiguous territory, and among "homogeneous people." Where does this doctrine bring up? Russia, the land of the knout and the spy, wants only land contiguous to her own. China, too, never cared for any land not bordering on the sacred contiguous empire. The Kafir tribes, and other savage peoples make war only for contiguous land. On the other hand, the ancient Greeks, the Romans, the English, the French, the peoples among whom free institutions have grown up, have all been eager to reach beyond the seas. In all of them, the acquisition of land in foreign countries has gone hand in hand with increased freedom at home, and more perfect self-government. Can a policy be sound that makes us sit down with the benighted despots and half-savage tribes and cuts us off from that development which has brought progress and life to the great free peoples of the earth? What must be the result if we do not continue to expand?

CHINA'S POLICY WILL BRING CHINA'S FATE.

Is not progress the condition of life? China possesses probably the richest land in the extent and variety of its natural resources on the globe. She started early in the race of nations with a bright, intelligent people, who had acquired an advanced civilization, while the Anglo Saxons were still a savagery. But among her fixed principles she had incorporated the spirit of our Maryland Democratic platform: "No expansion, but into contiguous territory and homogeneous people." Nothing different; no variety, none of the influences from outside forms of life, which widen the mind and make patriotism something more than national conceit. And so China was for ages a still figure among the nations, an arrested civilization, and now she is simply an illustration of what your theories lead to. We want every influence that will broaden us as a people and diversify our interests and our trade. The ancient peoples, we are told, hated the sea, because it brought ideas and unsettled the old traditions. They coined the expression, "He that speaks two languages is a rascal," meaning that he has been across the seas and gotten new ideas.

APPEAL TO A BENIGHTED PREJUDICE.

Is it not to this same spirit that you now appeal? Was it not to this same spirit that Mr. Bryan was appealing when he expressed his horror at the prospect of a syndicate introducing telephones and electric lights among the Philippines? Is not the ideal community off on and your Maryland Democratic platform the Irish town where all the people lived by taking in one another's washing?

OUR GREAT STATESMEN FAVOR EXPANSION.

What do we find against you? A westward movement of the peoples that has never stopped since history began. We find Jefferson disregarding the same cry you now raise, and acquiring Louisiana, when it was farther away than the Philippines now are. We find Seward planning for years the acquisition of distant Alaska, bitterly opposed to the annexing of the Danish West Indies, and expressing the hope, in a letter written before his death, that the Spanish Republics of South America might some day be brought under our flag. Richard Olney believes that we should have acquired Cuba, even in violation of our pledge. We find that great Democrat, Stephen A. Douglas, desiring the acquisition of additional territory "in the North, in the South, or in the islands of the sea" (Freeport speech), and warning the Senate against action that might lead to the annexing or colonizing of land in Central America. When Germany could have taken much more contiguous land from France she refrained only because she did not want it, and Bismarck was opposed to the taking of Lorraine; yet her great desire in her colonial possessions. Certainly some sound reason lay under the desire for acquisitions away from home on the part of our great statesmen, and I firmly believe that that reason was the belief that the possession of foreign interests would be necessary to the education of our people and the steadying of our government at home. I heartily agree with Stephen A. Douglas when he said:

"I believe that the interests of commerce of civilization, every interest which civilizations hold dear, would be benefited by expansion."

All of us believe that capital and labor are dependent upon one another, and profit best when they agree. In this country there has been closer and better understanding from year to year. The man who pays wages and the man who has to maintain his family by those wages will not agree always on that subject. It cannot be expected so long as both are merely human. But the workman has from year to year made more allowance for the difficulty of one who has to raise money for wages, and the employer has had more consideration for the hard problems of the employee's life. There has been less and less of quarrel, more and more discussion and adjustment, and out of it all two facts stand forth:

1st. That the proportion of earnings going to wages has been steadily great.

2d. That the deposits in the savings banks have been steadily larger and the depositors more numerous.

The connection of employer and employee is not a romantic love affair or sentimental friendship, but a trade relation, characterized more and more by mutual consideration and mutual respect. The enlightening influences of Christianity, have been and are at work here, as elsewhere, and it would be a shallow philosopher who would say that capital and labor had not come closer together. It is not the Garden of Eden yet, by any means, but there can be little doubt that Mr. Bryan and you have stolen the job of the snake.

Yours respectfully,
JOHN K. COWEN.

Ayers, a milkman, with serving adulterated milk. Fifty cases of typhoid fever were reported today as existing in Elkton. No deaths have occurred to date.

Easton, Oct. 28.—It has been decided, if possible, to erect a $3,000 building for Eastern Shore of Maryland exhibits at the Pan-American exposition in Buffalo, N. Y., next year. It is understood that a site for the building can be obtained and it is desired to construct the house with Eastern Shore capital. President Oswald Tilghman and Secretary W. S. McKean, of the Development association, are actively promoting the plan.

Snow Hill, Oct. 28.—Fish Commissioner C. L. Vincent has had 400 large mouthed black bass and 200 brook trout placed in the Pocomoke river at Snow Hill through the courtesy of the United States fish commission. The fish were from three to five inches in length. It is intended to put them in the Pocomoke in large quantities, and if they thrive in this section of the state the fish commissioner will introduce them into other suitable streams.

Hagerstown, Oct. 26.—Laban Smith, aged 4½ years, son of John Smith, of Pennsylvania avenue, Hagerstown, fell into a cistern containing five and a half feet of water this afternoon and was drowned. The little fellow, while his mother was busy with her housework, slipped out of the back door, and in walking across the floor of the cistern the rotten boards broke and fell in. His mother searched for him a few minutes afterward, and looking into the cistern saw him floating on top of the water. She hooked him out with a garden rake, but he was dead before a physician could be summoned.

College Park, Oct. 28.—State Entomologist Prof. W. G. Johnson, of the Maryland Agricultural College, is giving attention to the stalkworm, which has been doing a great deal of damage to young tobacco. He says: "The insect has been known, so far as I can find out from tobacco growers, for the last 15 years as a destructive pest to young tobacco in southern Maryland. My conclusions from this season's observations are that it is most likely to occur over local areas in tobacco following grass, timothy or clover; that the character of the soil has little or nothing to do with its ravages, and that the attack upon corn is also a frequent occurrence in the same section, especially when following grass."

Westminster, Oct. 29.—Policeman William N. Beaver was murderously assaulted by a colored prisoner Saturday night. The policeman arrested Samuel Powell, a colored man, for boisterous talking and swearing on the street and drunkenness. He took his prisoner to the office of Justice William Moore. While the policeman stepped into the rear room for a moment Powell made a break for liberty, with Beaver close to his heels. In order to scare Powell Beaver fired his pistol in the air. The negro, however, was desperate and struck the officer a crushing blow over the head and eyes with a heavy palling, rendering him unconscious. When he recovered the negro was out of sight and up to the present time all efforts to locate him have been fruitless.

Cumberland, Oct. 26.—The pardon by Governor Smith of seven miners who were serving terms in the Maryland House of Correction for unlawful assembly in connection with the recent strike is much appreciated in the mining region. The miners have returned to their homes, and efforts will be made to secure them employment. A number of miners who had been on the blacklist have been restored to their old places in the mines. There seems to be a feeling of pacification all around. Governor Smith's action in pardoning the men in no wise affects or prejudices the cases of Organizer William Warner and others, in whose behalf appeals to the court of appeals have been taken. A majority of the jury trying the case of the men just pardoned signed the petition.

Ellicott City, Oct. 29.—At a recent auction in Howard county there was sold for 50 cents a picture, valued at hundreds of dollars, being nothing less than a masterpiece by the Dutch artist Ludolph Backhuysen, showing a naval review in the harbor of Amsterdam. The art treasure was not recognized by anybody present at the sale in its accumulated dust and grime of ages. The picture at first fell into the hands of Harry Akers, of Howard county, and eventually Nicholas M. Matthews, of Baltimore, got hold of it. He at once recognized its value, and when he became its proud owner he lost no time in having its original beauty restored. It now adorns his gallery. The canvas is painted with the faithfulness to detail that marks all of the great Hollander's work when in his prime, 250 years ago.

College Park, Oct. 30.—Assistant Entomologist H. P. Gould, of the Maryland Agricultural College, in speaking about the third annual meeting of the State Horticultural Society to be held in Baltimore Dec. 20, said: "For the benefit of Maryland fruit growers students at the Maryland Agricultural College and others who may be interested, I desire to make an extensive collection of fruit packages in connection with the Maryland State Horticultural Society and the Maryland Agricultural College. It is proposed to exhibit this collection at the annual meeting in Baltimore. To this end we intend to invite many people to send samples of the packages, carriers and vegetable crates, together with price lists and other information which would be of advantage to the fruit grower. The packages will be plainly labeled, giving the name of the manufacturer and any other specific information at hand. Such exhibits should be of mutual advantage to both the manufacturer and the fruit grower. There will also be a large exhibit of fruits kept on cold storage and prepared."

NEWS FROM ALL SECTIONS OF WICOMICO SENT IN BY THE ADVERTISER'S REPRESENTATIVES.

QUANTICO.

Mr. Lee Taylor has turned his dwelling house so an end instead of a side fronts the street. He contemplates building in the near future a front building which, when completed will enhance the value as well as greatly improve the appearance of the property.

It is reported that Mrs. Wm. J. Bounds will have built within a few months a fine residence on her lot in town. At present, an old house stands upon the lot (the property being known as the "Kennedy property") which being replaced by the new residence will add much to the improvement of that part of the town. Though from afar, Quantico is reputed to be "slow" and practically dead yet a nice residence is constructed now and then, which helps to beautify our pleasant little town.

If Darius, king of Persia, was living now and should send heralds to Quantico instead of to Athens and Sparta to receive land and water as tokens of submission to his royalty, the people here would hardly throw the heralds into wells and bid them find there the earth and water demanded, as did the Athenians and Spartans, for though they might get the earth yet the water would be scarce, as the wells about town are proving partial failure for water supply, owing to the falling of the springs and rotting of the curbs.

The Epworth League of the M. E. Church will be led by Mr. S. T. Bailey, next Sunday evening. A revival of interest in this feature of church-work is encouraging to those interested.

We wish to return our sincere thanks unto all who helped to make the church what it is, and with profound gratitude to God who stirred us to the work, we will use it for his glory and the salvation of the people. D. F. McPaul.

DEMOCRATIC CHAIRMAN JONES

Says There Will Be No Election Crookedness This Year.

Chicago, Nov. 1.—Senator Jones, chairman of the Democratic national committee, speaking of Croker's recent suggestion that "Democratic" voters congregate about the polling places on the evening of election day, count noses and then, if the election returns for Bryan do not tally with their count, go into the polling places and throw those fellows in charge of the returns into the street," said: "I don't see anything wrong with that suggestion. Senator Hill, I believe, suggested a baseball bat as being peculiarly appropriate to render justice to a corrupt election judge. The Democratic party is opposed to violence, but at the same time I feel warranted in saying that the Democrats fully intend to reap the fruits of their victory. If intimidation is attempted at the polls or fraudulent counting tried by election judges there will be Democrats in the vicinity ready to take just such action as may be necessary to stop it.

"There will be neither intimidation at the polls, ballot box stuffing nor fraudulent counting this year. If either is attempted it will be stopped there and then. And if any one gets hurt in this process of prevention, I hope it will not be the honest man who is doing his duty fairly and well. The Democrats have made an honest campaign. We have appealed to the heads and hearts of the American people. We have won the fight, and by heaven we will not be defrauded out of our victory by the chicanery of election judges. If our Republican friends will be honest there will be no trouble, but intimidation at the polls or attempted dishonesty in the counts will be met by such methods as may be necessary and entirely effective."

SETTLING THEIR DIFFERENCES.

Anthracite Miners Rapidly Resuming Work—Troops Withdrawn.

Hickleton, Pa., Nov. 1.—The Minersville colliery, operated by the A. S. Van Winkle estate, will resume work tomorrow. The company yesterday afternoon agreed to grant the men all the concessions made by the other companies and operators. Calvin Pardee & Co. and a committee representing the strikers for whom there was no work at Lattimer when operations were resumed on Monday, arrived at an amicable agreement yesterday, and all the discharged men went back to their old places today.

Scranton, Pa., Nov. 1.—The Clark Tunnel miners returned to work yesterday when the company acceded to their demand for the discharge of an objectionable boss named George Speeder. The Noy Aug Coal company's men likewise returned to work. They remained out because they didn't understand the notice. The Forest and Green Ridge men are still out, but the differences are in process of adjustment.

Pottsville, Pa., Nov. 1.—The six remaining companies of the Fourth regiment and the governor's troop broke camp in the Panther Creek valley yesterday and left for home, there being no further need of the presence of militia in the coal regions. The men had been on duty since Sept. 22, and they were glad of the opportunity to return to their homes.

Lipton's Big Deal in Pork.

Chicago, Nov. 1.—As a result of his pork deal here, Sir Thomas Lipton is believed to have made $350,000. There were only 35,000 barrels of pork that could be delivered and the Englishman owned them all, as well as twice that number bought from people who did not have a barrel to deliver. When the price reached $16, some time ago, the majority of shorts thought it time to buy some of the pork they had contracted to deliver at approximately $11 per barrel during October. Numerous private settlements are said to have been made, so that while bearish speculators in pork have received some painful financial injuries, the wounds have not been mortal. Lipton's representative allowed one belated short to take 1,000 barrels at $18 per barrel. Today shorts are offering $20.

Girl Mill Workers on Strike.

Hazleton, Pa., Nov. 1.—About 100 of the 150 girls employed at the Freedland silk mill, 12 miles north of here, went on strike yesterday afternoon because of the refusal of the company to discharge a forelady whose father, a miner employed at Jeddo, is said to have worked during the coal strike. The girls also demand a uniform wage rate of $1 a day. The managers of the industry allege that the forelady has given satisfaction. They also claim that they cannot grant a wage increase, because the mill has been operated at a loss for several months.

After they have tried it, the cigar does the rest. They find that it is as we claim—the best cigar that can be made and sold for the money. It holds its trade and constantly increases in popularity.

A Man's Financial Condition

Generally has more to do with the style in which he dresses than has fashion, but the man who buys clothes of us, is always sure of correct fashion whatever the price he pays. The difference between our highest prices and lowest prices is simply one of quality in materials—the fashion and workmanship are ever right. This Fall's values here are exceptionally strong—so is the variety. In Suits for men, fancy patterns in smooth, soft faced goods are more the thing than rough fabrics, and the popular call is for gray and brown-gray effects. We have them all—and in them combine the elegance of the best skill and make. We know we are exclusive in high grade clothes, but it is only in quality; our prices are very common. In buying from us the economy is yours—and when you can buy the Best for the price of the inferior, why not have the Best? Suppose you look at our suits for $10.

SALISBURY TO HAVE NEW ICE PLANT

Mr. J. D. Price to be General Manager of the Business.

Salisbury is to have a new ice plant in addition to the one already in existence. The persons comprising the new firm are Mr. W. F. Dusch of Norfolk, Va., and Mr. J. D. Price of this city, who will be manager. The firm will be known as "The Crystal Ice Co." The plant will have a daily capacity of fifteen tons and be capable of refrigerating 30,000 cubic feet of space for storing ice, etc., and when the duty of the machinery is not required to keep cool the ice houses the capacity is increased to eighteen to twenty tons daily. The new Company will start with good prospects of success having already secured a contract to furnish several hundred tons of ice the coming season. The ice business is a growing one in this section of the country and no doubt the new company will be able to dispose of its product and relieve the strain on the Salisbury Ice Manufacturing Co., who have not been able to meet the demands at all times. The Crystal Ice Company will locate its plant on the railroad somewhere near the N. Y. P. & N. Station. It will be in operation by March 1st, 1901.

The plant will be of the most modern design and thoroughly up to date. The York Manufacturing Co., of York, Pa., are the builders and are already at work on the construction. The buildings to receive the machinery will be commenced in a few days.

CLOVER HILL FARM SOLD.

Ex-Sheriff Farlow Purchases a Fine Farm on Shell Road.

Mr. Hugh J. Phillips, of Washington, has sold his fine farm "Clover Hill," on the shell road, just outside of town, to Ex-Sheriff John W. Farlow of Parsons district for $6300.00. There are about 240 acres of well-improved land, splendidly adapted to grain, grass, small fruits, and truck. Besides a suitable dwelling and a commodious barn there is a tenant house. One large field is seeded to wheat and the others are well set in grass. There are also orchards and berry patches in excellent condition. Within thirty days Mr. Farlow's two sons will take possession of the property and assume its management. Mr. Phillips will dispose of his dairy which has been a feature of the farm several years. This is one of the several fine properties out that way. Others of note in that immediate vicinity are "Fairfield" now the property of Colonel Warner; Mr. James E. Betts, Mr. David Ward, Mr. J. Bayard Perdue, Mr. John W. Parker of L's, and last, but by no means least, Mr. Samuel E. Gordy's.

B. C. & A. DIRECTORS MEET.

Dined At Peninsula Hotel While Here.

The annual meeting of the directors of the B. C. & A. Railroad was held in the Company's office in Salisbury last Wednesday.

The directors arrived here at noon in the private car of Vice President, S. M. Prevost, via the N. Y. P. & N. railroad, from Philadelphia. Here they were met by Messrs. Chas. A. Chipley, and R. B. Dixon of Easton; Superintendent A. J. Benjamin, Attorney R. P. Graham, W. U. Polk, and Hon. E. E. Jackson of Salisbury. The old Board of directors was re-elected with the exception of John P. Green, resigned. He was succeeded by J. V. F. Randolph of New York. The old corps of officials was re-elected.

After a handsome set-out at Schneck's the party went on a tour of inspection from Ocean City to Claiborne, on a private train. At Claiborne the Steamer Cambridge met the train and by special trip conveyed the party to Baltimore.

Those who dined at Schneck's were S. M. Prevost, J. V. F. Randolph, Benjamin Strong, John S. Wilson, Chas. A. Chipley, U. T. Renney, E. E. Jackson, W. U. Polk, L. M. Stafford, R. B. Dixon, T. A. Joyner, R. P. Graham, Willard Thompson, A. J. Benjamin, and W. L. Rathsteln.

Capt. Street Improving.

Captain Isaac J. Street, whose shooting accident was fully reported in the ADVERTISER last week, is out again and rapidly improving in spite of the following paragraph clipped from a Baltimore paper, dated Nanticoke, November 3d.

"Capt. Isaac Street of Tyaskin, near here, was fatally shot in the breast yesterday. Captain Street and Mr. Thomas Jones, a neighbor, were hunting together at the time, when the latter, owing to a dense hedge, was unable to see Mr. Street and shot him, nearly the entire load lodging in his breast."

M'KINLEY AGAIN

Four Years More of Republican Control at Washington.

THE VERDICT OF THE PEOPLE

The Republicans, in addition to re-electing President McKinley, have swept the country in the congressional elections, and will have, during the next two years, a working majority in both houses of the national legislature.

The latest returns indicate the election of 206 Republicans and 145 Democrats to the house of Representatives. With the new members to be elected by state legislatures, the senate will stand: Republicans, 48; Democrats, 31. This is a gain of 17 representatives and four senators by the Republicans.

The latest returns show that McKinley will have 284 electoral votes. The figures give Bryan 163 electoral votes.

McKinley carried all the states he did in 1896 except Kentucky, and the following states which were then in the Democratic column: Kansas, South Dakota, Utah, Washington and Wyoming.

The New England States are solid for McKinley. The Middle states all vote for him. The south is probably unchanged from the vote of 1896. It is in the far west, therefore, that President McKinley has made his greatest gains.

New York Republicans rolled up a tremendous majority over the state. Besides giving McKinley a majority of approximately 150,000 in the state, they elected Odell and the full Republican state ticket.

Pennsylvania cast its usual tremendous vote for the national Republican nominees. The plurality for McKinley and Roosevelt is 287,694. The Republicans will have a big majority in both branches of the legislature. It looks as if the Quay stalwarts had won a majority on joint ballot in the Pennsylvania joint legislature.

The roll call of electoral votes is apparently as follows:

FOR M'KINLEY.		Wisconsin	13
California	9	Wyoming	3
Connecticut	6
Delaware	3	Total	284
Illinois	12	Required to elect	224
Indiana	12	FOR BRYAN.

FIRE AT DELMAR.

Mr. T. A. Veasey Loses Heavily by a Blaze.

About two o'clock on Wednesday afternoon fire was discovered in the loft of the stables owned by Mr. T. A. Veasey, located in the rear of the Veasey Hotel at Delmar, Md. At the start it was realized that the fire might prove a most serious one as the major part of the town seemed doomed if the large Hotel should burn, it being centrally located and of such dimensions that it would be impossible to save the neighboring buildings. Every body in the town turned out and did heroic service, the young boys doing as much work as the men. Wilmington and Salisbury were telegraphed to for aid but before the Fire Departments could respond the fire was gotten under control by the bucket brigade and confined to the stable where it originated.

Mr. Veasey's loss was quite heavy. He stated to a reporter of the ADVERTISER that the buildings and contents were not insured and the loss would be from a thousand to fifteen hundred dollars.

The furniture on the first and second floors of the Hotel was all gotten out but was somewhat damaged by the rough handling it encountered. A general feeling prevailed that the town had narrowly escaped a large conflagration.

PARTRIDGES ARE SCARCE.

Other Game Plentiful, However, on the Eastern Shore.

The gunning season on the Eastern Shore opened last Thursday, and it promises to be one of the most prosperous seasons for many years. There is a marked scarcity of partridges, but throughout the 'Sho' rabbits, squirrels are reported in abundance.

In Talbot county the outlook is particularly promising, and in the neighborhood of Easton a number of coveys of partridges have been seen, while the county seems to be overrun with squirrels and rabbits.

The ducking prospects are very good, and numbers of ducks of the red head variety have been reported on the Miles and Tred Avon rivers during the past week and a large flock of coots was seen on the Wye river.

A number of Easton gunners are talking of making a strong effort to secure a closed season at the next Legislature for partridges, as there are few of them in the county. Reports from Kent, Queen Anne's and Dorchester counties also say that while there is a scarcity of partridges there is an abundance of other small game.

Exhibitors At Paris Exposition.

The Mutual Life Insurance Company of New York, is credited with having made one of the most unique exhibits in the Paris Exposition and more than any other expression it has made clear to the Paris observer the wonders of the North American continent, its mighty race and still mightier achievements. This exhibit, presented in bold and beautiful diagrams and allegories, the extent of this continent, the growth of its people, the magnitude of its enterprises and the boundlessness of its resources. It is expected that this exhibit will be represented at the Pan-American Exposition at Buffalo next year.

Mr. Herbert N. Fell, General Agent for the Southern District of the Mutual Life Insurance Company, entertained last Friday evening at the Company's Building in Wilmington, Prof. William P. Stewart, the Company's Instructor of Agents, and a number of the agents.

Mr. G. Sellman Williams was among those present and briefly responded to one of the toasts.

Mr. Jackson to his Friends.

I wish to thank and express my gratitude to both the Democrats and Republicans alike who so heartily supported me in my candidacy for Congress. My election naturally pleases me greatly, but it is the result in Wicomico that touches me most deeply.

I fully appreciate the fact that it was the independent voting of a large number of our citizens that produced the outcome of the election in this county. As the representative of this district in Congress I shall do all within my power for the benefit of the district and my county and shall endeavor to perform the duties of the office in a non-partisan manner.

BRYAN CARRIES WICOMICO.

He Receives a Plurality of 423—Brown Receives a Plurality of 397.

Nine of the Twelve Districts go Democratic and Three Republican—Jackson Carries the County by 451—Maryland Casts her Electoral Vote for McKinley and Roosevelt.

The election on Tuesday was one of the quietest Wicomico has ever known. It was a beautiful day and an exceedingly large vote was cast, about ninety per cent of the registered voters going to the polls. Mr. Bryan carried the county by a handsome plurality of over four hundred—an increase of about two hundred over the plurality he received in this county in 1896. The size of his plurality in this county was a surprise to his most ardent supporters as they hardly expected it to be over three hundred.

Salisbury, Delmar, Nanticoke, Parsons, Pittsburg, Dennis, Trappe, and Quantico all gave Democratic majorities, while Sharptown, Nanticoke and Tyaskin gave Republican majorities. Salisbury is this year the banner district giving over one hundred plurality for Bryan. Mr. Edwin H. Brown, democratic candidate for the fifty sixth Congress, ran very nearly even with Mr. Bryan.

Mr. Wm. H. Jackson, the republican nominee for the fifty seventh Congress, ran way ahead of his ticket and carried the county by over four hundred. There were several reasons that produced this result. Local pride caused much of the outting that was indulged in, Mr. Jackson being very popular at home and having a large circle of personal friends. Then again, Mr. Moore was an exceedingly unpopular candidate in Wicomico, where the friends of ex-Gov. Jackson keenly resented Mr. Moore being placed upon the ticket by the Ocean City convention through the pressure of the present administration.

The prohibition vote of the county was less than two hundred when in 1896 it was over three hundred.

In Delmar district an animated fight was waged for and against the sale of liquor. The anti license people won by a majority of eight. The vote was: For license, 110; against license 118.

The State of Maryland followed the drift throughout the country and cast her electoral vote for McKinley and Roosevelt by a plurality of between four thousand and fifteen thousand. Baltimore City went republican by nearly seven thousand and the counties rolled up a majority of as much more. Cecil, Harford, Howard, Montgomery, Queen Anne's, Worcester and Wicomico went democratic and the balance of the counties of the State were republican.

Royal Baking Powder

Makes The Food More Healthful

Royal baking Powder possesses peculiar qualities not found in other leavening agents, which arise from the superior fitness, purity and healthfulness of its ingredients.

Royal Baking Powder leavens the food perfectly by its own inherent power without changing or impairing any of the elements of the flour.

Thus the hot-breads, hot-rolls and muffins, and the delicious hot griddle-cakes raised by the Royal Baking Powder are wholesome and digestible, and may be eaten without distress, even by persons of delicate digestion.

Alum baking powders are low priced, as alum costs but two cents a pound; but alum is a corrosive poison and it renders the baking powder dangerous to use in food.

DELAWARE REPUBLICANS.

The Legislature May Now Elect Two Republican Senators.

Wilmington, Nov. 8.—The Republicans not only carried the state for McKinley and Hunt for governor, but also secured the legislature in both branches. This means the election of two Republican United States senators. The senate will be composed of nine Republicans and eight Democrats, and the house will have 19 Republicans and 15 Democrats, with one tie district, Red Lion hundred, which comprises the Twelfth representative district of New Castle county. On joint ballot the legislature will stand: Republicans, 28; Democrats, 23, not including the Red Lion hundred member. Inasmuch as the Republicans will be in control of the house of representatives, it is practically certain that Theodore F. Clark, the Republican candidate, and who was speaker of the last house, will be seated. The Republicans will have the organization of the senate and authority to pass upon the contest of Howard D. Ross, Republican, against Francis J. McNulty, Democrat, for senator.

The Republicans elected two senators and nine of the 15 representatives in Newcastle county. In Kent county the Democrats elected two senators, and each party elected five of the ten representatives. In Sussex county the Democrats elected one senator and the Republicans the other. The Democrats elected five and the Republicans five of the ten representatives.

The general assembly is Republican, but it was of the same complexion in 1895 and again in 1899, and both times senatorial deadlocks continued to the end. History may repeat itself.

MARYLAND FOR M'KINLEY.

Baltimore, Nov. 8.—With scattered precincts in various counties of the state to hear from Maryland's plurality for McKinley and Roosevelt in Tuesday's contest was 14,146, with a probability that the official count will swell the total to 15,000 or more. Besides placing Maryland's eight electoral votes in the McKinley column, a solid Republican delegation to the Fifty-seventh congress was elected with handsome majorities. The members-elect, with their probable majorities, follow:

First district, William H. Jackson, 14,871; 2d, A. A. Hakesey, 754; 3d, Frank C. Waters (re-elected), 20,331; 4th, Charles R. Schrim, 17,113; 5th, Sidney E. Mudd (re-elected), 4,015; 6th, George A. Pearce (re-elected), 3,542; 7th, Josiah L. Kerr, Republican, nominated to fill the vacancy in the Fifty-sixth congress, caused by the resignation of Governor Smith, was also elected, but by a reduced majority.

This means a loss of two congressmen to the Democrats, the Fourth and First districts having been represented by Democrats, though Governor John Walter Smith, who was elected in the First, resigned soon afterward to become governor of the state. His business partner, State Senator John P. Moore, was nominated by the Democrats to succeed him, and his defeat was a source of great surprise, it being considered that he was practically sure of election.

Democratic Gains in Massachusetts. Boston, Nov. 8.—President McKinley has carried Massachusetts by about 80,000 plurality, a reduction of nearly 100,000 from that of four years ago. The Republicans have elected ten of the 13 congressmen, a few by an increased plurality over 1896, but in the majority of the districts their candidates ran behind those of four years ago. This leaves the present delegation politically unchanged. While the total vote for governor was somewhat behind that given the national candidate in 1896, Crane was re-elected governor by a somewhat larger plurality than that received by President McKinley. The reduction in the Republican plurality was due not so much to the falling off in the party vote, but the return of the so-called Gold Democrats of 1896 to the regular Democratic ranks. The Republican vote showed a net loss of about 15 per cent. The senate of 1901 will stand 22 Republicans and 8 Democrats, while the house will be 178 Republican, 59 Democrats and 2 Social Democrats.

Iowa's Congressmen Republicans.

Des Moines, Ia., Nov. 8.—It is apparent that Iowa is Republican by 100,000, and a solid delegation of 11 Republicans will be sent to Washington. Republican Chairman Weaver says: "Iowa is McKinley by over 100,000, and we have elected all the congressmen." Democratic Chairman Huffman says: "We concede the state to McKinley by 60,000. We claim the election of Volmer in the Second congressional district."

The North Dakota Returns.

Fargo, N. D., Nov. 8.—The Republican plurality in North Dakota will be 10,000 to 12,000. There is no question about the election of all the state ticket and the congressmen-at-large, and there have been large Republican legislative gains. In the state judiciary the returns show the election of a Republican to the supreme bench.

Marion Butler's Senatorial Successor.

Raleigh, N. C., Nov. 8.—The election in North Carolina was very quiet. Bryan's majority will be about 30,000. The whole state Democratic congressmen are elected. Democratic State Chairman Simmons is elected United States senator to succeed Marion Butler, Populist, by 40,000 over his opponent, Gen. Julian S. Carr.

WAY RETIRE SENATOR CULLOM.

Illinois Democrats Claim a Majority on Joint Ballot.

Chicago, Nov. 8.—Returns received from the state at large do not materially alter the political complexion of the next state legislature. The probability is that the Republicans will have a majority of about 22 on joint ballot which means a Republican successor to Senator Cullom. The present house is Republican by 10 and the hold over senators give a Republican majority of eight in the senate and the Democrats figure that with but slight gains they will be able to have a majority of one or two on joint ballot and thus replace Senator Cullom with a Democrat. In the event of their obtaining the control of the legislature, it is certain that Samuel Alschuler, the defeated Democratic gubernatorial candidate, will be sent to the senate. The Republicans, however, claim that there is not the slightest doubt of their having control of the legislature, and give plausible figures in support of their assertions. Some of them claim 85 members of the house, but this is considered excessive by the conservative members of their own party.

Kentucky is Still in Dispute.

Frankfort, Ky., Nov. 8.—The Kentucky governorship is still being claimed by both parties at the state capital. The Democrats are claiming votes showing Beckham's election by from 4,500 to 5,000, while the Republicans claim the election of Yerkes by 2,500. Independent voters charge that the Republicans are holding back the returns in the Eleventh district and that the Democrats have done likewise in the First, the Republican and Democratic strongholds, respectively, each waiting for the other side to make a show down, and this is responsible for the delay in ascertaining the result.

The Vote in Washington State.

Seattle, Wash., Nov. 8.—The returns from Washington state are too incomplete to form any accurate basis as to McKinley's plurality. The Democrats concede that he has carried the state, and attribute to him but a small majority. The Republicans claim that his plurality will be from 5,000 to 7,000. Jones and Cushman, Republicans, are conceded to be re-elected to congress by pluralities somewhat smaller than McKinley's. The Democrats are positive that Governor Rogers, fusionist, has been elected by 500 to 1,000 votes. It may require a full count to decide.

Indiana's Republican Plurality.

Indianapolis, Nov. 8.—A plurality of anywhere from 25,000 to 35,000 for the Republican national ticket; the election of Col. W. T. Durbin, Republican, to the governorship, the election of the entire state and Marion county Republican ticket; nine out of thirteen congressmen, and the election of a legislature that will have a Republican majority of 40 on joint ballot. In a summary in brief of Tuesday's battle at the polls in Indiana. An unexpected development is the fact that the Republicans made their strongest gains in Democratic strongholds.

A Republican Senator From Kansas.

Topeka, Nov. 8.—Practically complete returns show that McKinley has a plurality of 25,000 and that the Republican state ticket is successful by a plurality of probably 5,000 less. The legislature will be Republican in both branches, insuring the election of a Republican United States senator to succeed Lucien Baker. The Republicans have certainly elected seven congressmen, one district being still in doubt, with the chances in favor of the fusion candidate.

McKinley's California Majority.

San Francisco, Nov. 8.—The majority for McKinley in California continues to grow and the indications are that it will reach 40,000. Owing to the failure of the few election officers to make a semi-official report the complete figures in San Francisco cannot be ascertained at present, but it is safe to say that the Republican presidential electors have carried the city by 8,000 or 10,000. The Republicans have elected all seven congressmen. The legislature is Republican by a majority of 26.

McKinley's Majority in Utah.

Salt Lake, Nov. 8.—Returns from about three-fourths of the precincts in the state are in. McKinley's majority is 4,500; Wells, Republican, for governor, has a majority of 2,000, and Sutherland, Republican, for congress, leads King by 1,600 majority. The senate will stand nine Republicans and nine Democrats. The Republicans elect 23 representatives and the Democrats 17, making a Republican majority of 11 on joint ballot.

West Virginia's Congressmen.

Wheeling, W. Va., Nov. 8.—West Virginia has gone Republican by from 12,000 to 15,000 majority. The entire state ticket is elected. The congressional delegation is solidly Republican, as follows: First district, D. B. Dorener, 4,000 majority; 2d, A. G. Dayton; 3d, Joe H. Gaines; 4th, James H. Hughes. The legislature is Republican in both branches, 20 to 25 majority on joint ballot, insuring the re-election of Senator Elkins.

South Dakota's Legislature.

Sioux Falls, S. D., Nov. 8.—Republicans will elect from 105 to 115 members of the legislature out of a total of 132, giving them a majority in both branches. Republicans elect their two nominees for congress and full state ticket.

Missouri's Republican Congressmen.

Kansas City, Mo., Nov. 8.—The Democrats have elected congressmen in 12 Missouri districts and the Republicans in two, with the Thirtieth and Fourteenth to be heard from. These are claimed by the Democrats.

Two Republican Counties in Georgia.

Atlanta, Ga., Nov. 8.—Two counties of Georgia—Coffee and Liberty—went Republican. Bryan's plurality in the state is 40,000. Every Democratic congressman elected.

New Mexico Republicans.

Santa Fe, N. M., Nov. 8.—Indications are that B. S. Reedy, Republican, has been elected delegate to congress. The legislature is Republican.

CONGRESSMEN CHOSEN.

Republicans Have a Good Majority in Both Branches.

FIVE SENATORS TO BE ELECTED.

Delaware and Nebraska Will Each Choose Two Members to the Upper House, While Idaho Will Select One Member to That Body.

Washington, Nov. 8.—The next senators to represent their states, will stand on the basis of Tuesday's election: 49 Republicans, 37 Democrats and 9 independents, with the legislature in doubt in three states, with the privilege of electing five senators at this time. The legislatures in doubt are Delaware and Nebraska, in each of which states two senators are to be chosen, and Idaho, with one senatorial chair to be filled. Among those elected in the independent column are Senators Stewart, of Nevada, and Kyle, of South Dakota, who in the last congress acted with the Republicans on all party matters; Turner, of Washington, and Harris, of Kansas, who acted with the Democrats; and Wellington, of Maryland. The representation by states should be as follows:

According to a Chicago dispatch from Congressman Joseph W. The Republicans have elected solid congressional delegations in California, Connecticut, Delaware, Idaho, Iowa, Kansas, Maine, Maryland, Michigan, Minnesota, New Hampshire, North Dakota, Oregon, Rhode Island, South Dakota, Utah, Vermont, Washington, West Virginia, Wisconsin and Wyoming, aggregating 90 members. ## Senator Clark's Re-election Assured.

Helena, Mont., Nov. 8.—Fuller returns of Tuesday's voting in this state confirm the preliminary estimates sent out. Bryan's plurality will be from 15,000 to 18,000, and Governor Toole leads the Democratic state ticket with from 5,000 to 8,000 votes to spare. The legislature, which will elect two United States senators, will be Democratic by from 15 to 20 votes on joint ballot, and the gubernatorial re-elect Senator Clark and some other Democrat or Populist to succeed Thomas C. Carter and fill the vacancy caused by the resignation of Senator Clark last session.

Florida's Democratic Plurality.

Jacksonville, Fla., Nov. 8.—The official returns from 338 precincts out of 567 in the state show the Democratic presidential electors received 17,930 votes to the Republican electors' 6,200. This will give Bryan a majority of 23,000 in the state. Democratic candidates for state house offices have approximately 25,000 majority.

Bryan's Colorado Plurality.

Denver, Nov. 8.—Returns from the election are showing coming in, but sufficient returns and careful estimates have been received to show that Bryan's plurality will be from 20,000 to 30,000, and may reach 40,000.

Ohio's Largest Vote.

Columbus, O., Nov. 8.—Democratic State Chairman Lang had no statement to give out last night. Republican State Chairman Dick said: "Unofficial returns received from 84 of the 88 counties, warrant the claim of 70,000 for McKinley and we elect 17 of the 21 members of congress, a gain of two." The Republicans gained in 77 counties and the Democrats in 11, most of the Democratic gains being in Cleveland, Cincinnati and Toledo, where it is reported that most of the vote that Mayor Jones, of Toledo, received last year for governor went to Bryan. The total vote in Ohio yesterday was about 1,100,000, the largest ever cast in the state."

The Close Vote of Nebraska.

Omaha, Neb., Nov. 8.—Elections in Nebraska are so close as to be watched keenly. Chairman Lindsey for the Republicans, claims that McKinley carries the state by 7,000 or more, the Republican state ticket wins by 5,000 to 7,000 and that the Republicans have a majority of 17 in the legislature. Against this the Democrats claim Bryan has carried the state, though by a narrow margin of perhaps of not more than 1,000, and that fusion has a safe working majority in the legislature. Neville is the only congressman conceded to Democrats by Republicans. Both parties are claiming the lead on joint ballot.

McKinley's Rhode Island Plurality.

Providence, R. I., Nov. 7.—Corrected unofficial returns from Rhode Island give McKinley 33,831; Bryan, 19,947; Maloney, 1,283; Woolley, 1,526, a plurality for McKinley of 13,874 in a total vote of 56,677. His plurality four years ago was 22,978, in a total vote of 54,780. He carried every city and town in the state, as he did in 1896. The vote this year is the largest ever cast in the state. In Providence McKinley received 5,116 plurality, while the city went Democratic for mayor by 1771 plurality. Bryan gained 5,488 in the state, while McKinley lost 3,615 in the total vote.

Mr. Bryan Noncommittal.

Lincoln, Neb., Nov. 8.—With the exception of a short drive in the early evening, W. J. Bryan remained in his study yesterday, rising late in the morning and retiring early. He said last evening he had no statement of any kind to make at present. Mr. Bryan received hundreds of telegrams during the day and evening from personal and political friends, but their nature was not disclosed. It is Mr. Bryan's intention to remain in Lincoln at least until he is thoroughly rested. To newspaper correspondents he asked to be excused from outlining his future action.

Minnesota's Governorship in Doubt.

St. Paul, Nov. 8.—The only point unsettled in the Minnesota election is the contest over the governorship. Everything else has gone Republican by majorities so large there is no possibility of changes. Tams Blahy, chairman of the Republican state committee, figures 8,754 plurality for Van Sant, while Chairman Roseng, of the Democratic committee, from the figures reported by him, foots up 12,000 plurality for Lind.

Triumph of Regularity, Says Stone.

Harrisburg, Nov. 8.—Governor Stone said today that the result of the election in Pennsylvania on the legislative ticket is, as it ever should be, a triumph of regularity over irregularity. The verdict of the people is that Senator Quay, having received a majority of the Republican votes in both houses of the last legislature, he should have been elected by that body and that he will be elected by the next.

Mississippi Amendment Defeated.

Jackson, Miss., Nov. 8.—The next congressional delegation from Mississippi will be wholly Democratic. The state is conceded to Bryan by 45,000. There is little doubt but that the amendment to the constitution changing the method of distributing the common school fund was defeated, fully 25 per cent. of the voters failing to vote on the question.

Texas' Solid Delegation.

Houston, Tex., Nov. 8.—Tuesday night's estimate of 175,000 majority for the Democratic ticket in Texas is about correct, as indicated by the returns so far received. The only Republican congressman from Texas has been replaced by a Democrat, and the delegation will be solid. The one Republican senator has been defeated and the legislature is composed entirely of Democrats.

The Eminent Kidney and Bladder Specialist.

The Discoverer of Swamp-Root at Work in His Laboratory.

There is a disease prevailing in this country most dangerous because so deceptive. Many sudden deaths are caused by it—heart disease, pneumonia, heart failure or apoplexy are often the result of kidney disease. If kidney trouble is allowed to advance the kidney-poisoned blood will attack the vital organs, or the kidneys themselves break down and waste away cell by cell. Then the richness of the blood—the albumen—leaks out and the sufferer has Bright's Disease, the worst form of kidney trouble. Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root the new discovery is the true specific for kidney, bladder and urinary troubles. It has cured thousands of apparently hopeless cases, after all other efforts have failed. At druggists in fifty-cent and dollar sizes. A sample bottle sent free by mail, also a book telling about Swamp-Root and its wonderful cures. Address Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y. and mention this paper.

BIOXIDE OF SODIUM.

IT WILL PURIFY AND REPURIFY AIR INDEFINITELY.

An Important Discovery Announced by Two French Chemists—It Will Have Far-reaching Results in Everyday Life.

By the merest chance two French chemists, Drs. Desgrez and Balthazard, have recently made the important discovery that bioxide of sodium will purify and repurify air indefinitely. This means, roughly speaking, the removal of the chief obstacle to submarine work and to all other pursuits requiring a constant renewal of air by mechanical means. Its commercial value along many lines can hardly be estimated.

To the credit of several miles, forgotten and left to die, the discovery must be credited. In the laboratory of the two chemists the mice had been placed for some experiments in a closed glass globe, and then forgotten. In the nature of things the air of the globe should have been soon exhausted, and the mice have perished of asphyxiation. Great was the surprise of the chemists, therefore, when, several days later, they found the mice still alive. Somewhat thin, to be sure, but exhibiting no difficulty in their breathing. Casting about for an explanation of the mystery they decided that a small block of bioxide of sodium which had been left in the globe must have effected the unexpected prolongation of life. They tested the matter. Rabbits and dogs were shut up with a block of the bioxide in hermetically sealed glass receptacles just large enough to hold sufficient air for half an hour or so. After five hours and half the animals were still breathing regularly and placidly, just as if they were in the open air.

Then it was decided to experiment with human subjects. A diver's helmet was constructed with a lining of the bioxide of sodium. The air capacity of the helmet was only about five pints. But, the air being purified and oxygenized by the action of the chemical, the wearer was able to remain under water for an indefinite period.

There was no longer any room for doubt that a discovery had been made which, while of extraordinary simplicity, will be an invaluable aid to progress and to the comfort of life. It was shown by experiments that wherever carbonic acid gas is present bioxide of sodium fastens on it to get at the carbon and combine it. Incidentally a proportionate quantity of pure oxygen is set free—that is to say, the bioxide of sodium is the most efficient scavenger of vitiated air yet discovered. It needs no preparation of any kind. Its mere presence suffices, and it is absolutely insatiable. As long as there is a morsel of the bioxide left and the tiniest whiff of carbonic acid gas for it to play on it continues its purifying work.

Perhaps one of the most interesting applications of the newly learned properties of the bioxide will be in the development of submarine navigation. Experts say that the oxygenizing compound will solve at once the difficulty of providing submarine vessels with a constant supply of fresh air at normal pressure. That phase of the problem has hitherto balked all the efforts of submarine engineers.

With the use of the regenerating bioxide there is no need of machinery other than that used for propelling the submarine vessels. There is no need of returning to the surface for renewing the air supply. As long as the bioxide, the food and the material employed for generating power hold out the boats may remain under water. The submarine boat comes at once into the realm of practical achievement.

It is obvious that the use of a diving helmet such as was employed in the initial human experiment recorded will facilitate the work of salvage and scientific exploration under sea. All the apparatus that the diver will need will be the one rope or cable by which he communicates with those above and by which he is hauled up when necessary. Formerly he was obliged to move very slowly and carefully for fear of tangling the guiding rope across the air tube. Often despite all precautions the accident would happen. That meant a frightful death at the bottom of the sea, the man being deprived of air to breathe and unable to give the signal to be pulled up. Under the new conditions his work will be both freer and safer.

On land the uses to which the bioxide may be put are endless. It will be used to purify the air in hospitals. Mining operations will be rendered much more safe by its use. Crowded factory rooms can be kept always full of fresh, sweet air. In theaters and places of public meeting people can breathe freely. In schools children will be brighter and healthier for its presence.

It has been pointed out also that the bioxide will dispense with the need of opening windows in winter time. Instead of losing three-quarters of the artificial heat of our rooms through windows opened for ventilation we may if we like keep our apartments hermetically closed from November until May and have a constantly equable temperature, with no fear of sudden chill; the air, none the less, always perfectly pure, and the coal bills cut down.

More interesting still is the suggestion due to the discoveries that bioxide may be used to give a chance to people buried alive. Dr. Desgrez especially is enthusiastic on this point. He insists that the law should compel the construction of what he calls scientific coffins, spacious enough to give ample turning over room, having a bell attachment ringing outside and containing a block of the bioxide.—Paris Letter in New York Sun.

China and Ginseng.
The curious mixture of astuteness and absurdity in the Chinese character could not be illustrated better than by the fact that for more than a hundred years the United States has been shipping its entire product of ginseng to China, and during that time the Celestials have consumed not less than $235,000,000 worth of a root that is absolutely without medicinal use in any civilized country in the world. Physicians and chemists in this country who have made a study of ginseng agree that about its only virtue is the fact that it will bring in China from $8 to $25 a pound, the same being worth in this country from $1.75 to $3.50 a pound, dry. Kentucky, Tennessee, West Virginia and North Carolina are the chief ginseng producing states, although it is found in New England and Canada and was one of the primitive industries of Vermont at an early day. The general belief is that the use of ginseng by the Chinese is influenced rather by superstition than by science.—Argonaut.

THREE GREAT CHINAMEN.

Pen Pictures of Li Hung Chang, Chang Chih-tung and Prince Ching.

"Among the great leaders that may be classed as of the Liberal, though not properly the Reform, party is the only Chinaman whose reputation is world-wide—Li Hung Chang. He is a man of the measure of Bismarck as a statesman. With but one exception, he stands head and shoulders above any of his countrymen. He is thoroughly Chinese in his general conversation, in his conceit, in his duplicity and in the way silver sticks to his palm," says I. T. Headland in Ainslee's.

"He knows China's weakness. He knows the strength of foreign governments. His shrewdness is more than a match for that of all with whom he comes in contact. After his return from his trip around the world, in an audience with the empress dowager, she asked: 'Tell me truly now what you think of these foreign barbarian countries through which you have passed as compared with China.'"

"You want truly their condition?" "Yes, I want to know truly." "Well, they are in a much better condition than China. They are more powerful, cleaner and more enlightened."

"It is said the empress dowager was not well pleased to hear the truth, but her lips remained sealed." "A few months ago Sir Claude MacDonald, the British minister, suspected that Li Hung Chang was favoring Russia against Great Britain, and he managed to have Li Hung Chang removed from the tsung-li-yamen. This was the worst move he could have made. In a few weeks the old statesman managed to ingratiate himself into favor with the empress dowager in such a way as to secure his own appointment as viceroy of the two Kwangs."

"He is one of the kind of whom it may be said, 'You may put me out, but you cannot put me down.'"

"Li Hung Chang is as great a statesman as Bismarck, as great a warrior as Grant, as great a politician as Platt and as great a business man as Rockefeller. A large part of his wealth lies in pawnshops. He is probably the greatest pawnshop owner in the world."

"Another great Liberal leader of the same general stamp is Chang Chih-tung. I would advise every reader of this article to stop and learn his name. It is a singular fact that the two greatest statesmen in China should be named Chang and Li. These two names are the Brown and Jones of China. They have a saying:

"Chang chih ch'ang, Li chih t'ung, Jen shih shih shih shih shih shih."

"I have translated it as follows: 'Though the Changs may all be perfect, their perfection is their fallings. I will never deny to see.'

"Chang is viceroy of Hupeh and Hunan. And while the emperor was issuing his reform edicts this great viceroy was writing one of the most notable books that has ever been written by a Chinese. It is called 'Leaves of Learning,' and in it are discussed all problems relating to the welfare of the empire, especially as regards what may be called the new learning."

"Chang urges that all consuls and ministers in foreign countries should translate the best books of those countries into Chinese; that schools be established in connection with all the foreign legations and consulates for the education of the Chinese children in those countries, and that printers in port cities print large editions of books relating to foreign affairs, so that they may be circulated broadcast throughout the whole empire. He urges the necessity of reform and speaks of the Conservatives as old 'money-back' officials. He keeps several English speaking secretaries, who gather for him all information about foreign countries which concern him as viceroy of two of the most important provinces in China. He is liberal in subscribing to any object that promises the reform of the antiquated customs of the empire and the opening of the eyes of the people."

"Prince Ch'ing is well known and yet not well known. He is a Bohemian in every sense of the word, as has been indicated by his conduct toward the imprisoned ministers during the months of the siege. He constantly risked his life to defend them and to send them provisions. He has been for years a member of the tsung-li-yamen. He is a man upon whom we may always depend for pro-foreign views, and yet a man whom all the Chinese love."

"He is not a genius. He is not a crank. He is not a man who does things which are talked about. He is not a man whose every foreigner wants to interview. He does not take extreme views. He is not sought by the Chinese or by foreigners to settle international disputes as Prince Kung and Li Hung Chang are sought."

"Prince Ch'ing always employs a foreign physician, which is one of the sure signs of progress in a Chinaman. There are those who send for the foreign physician in extreme cases. But men like Li Hung Chang, Chang Yin-huan and Prince Ch'ing employ him in all instances."

Is Goldenrod a Menace to Health?

The goldenrod has been a much abused plant of late. Some very scientific persons have suddenly discovered that it is the cause of hay fever, and I have been requested—in some instances ordered—to cease saying friendly things about it. If I continued to speak of it as a plant to be tolerated, I would be set down as a deliberate conspirator.

Now, there happen to be unlimited quantities of the plant growing all about the locality in which I reside, acres and acres of it, all along the lowlands near the river, while the pastures and hill-sides are brilliant with the bonfires which it kindles on every hand. It is certainly reasonable to suppose that some of us who live where it flourishes ought to have hay fever if this disagreeable disease is so produced. But the fact is we do not have it. The only cases of hay fever ever known in the eastern part of Wisconsin are those which come from the city. By coming into the haunts of the plant they at once find relief, and, moreover, if the sufferer comes early enough in the season he may escape it altogether.

Another charge not long ago made against the goldenrod was that horses were killed by eating it. This charge is quite as absurd as the other, for horses and cattle are pastured where it grows year after year, and we have never heard of one case of injury from it. So far as I have been able to observe, they never touch it.—Lippincott's.

OTTO, THE BRAWLER.

DR. TALLMAGE WRITES OF AUSTRIA'S ROYAL BULLY.

Some of the Mad Escapades of This Eccentric Imbecile—The Three Most Interesting Churches in Vienna—A Lovable Emperor.

(Copyright, 1900, by The Christian Herald, New York.)

Vienna on fire with patriotic illumination. The figures "1830" and "1900" blazing on parliament buildings and palaces and suspended across streets and decorating towers and arches. Emperor Francis Joseph is 70 years old, and for that reason 1830 and 1900 are put aside by him. The night is in regalia of fire. It is amazing how the most destructive element in nature can be commanded into service, and it will take the shape of a crown or a throne or a scepter or a shield or a sword or an equipage or a human face, and how that element which unrestrained is the terror of the world can be compelled to express admiration and kindness and love; how it can be made to write on the black pages of the night coronation and betrothal. For three nights fire has reigned in Vienna and all Austrian cities, and it has been a peaceful reign. It means congratulation and victory over the wear and tear of 70 years.

The emperor is a unique personality, and but for the people's love for him the empire would long ago have been divided. Hungary is as anxious now to be independent as in the days when Louis Kosuth struck for freedom, and his son now stands in the Hungarian parliament concerning the empire whenever he will. But Emperor Francis Joseph is so kind, so charitable, so sympathetic, so helpful that while he lives Austria will remain intact.

Every one knows some story of his compassion and generosity. Hearing that one of his officers, who had become blind, had said that his only comfort now was music, the emperor gives the poor man a seat for life in the opera house. By such deeds he has won all hearts. His assembly's benevolence have intensified the affection of the people for his ruler. The suicide or murder of his only son (and it still remains a mystery how he was done to death) and the assassination of the empress two years ago have called forth a loyal love seldom seen in other nations. Having no son to succeed him, he is educating his nephew for the throne—a splendid lad of 13 or 14 years. Otto, the father of the lad, would have been the next emperor, but he does not want the throne, and so no one in the empire wants him to take it. He is one half bad and one half imbecile. He keeps the air full of scandalization. He goes into a restaurant, orders all other persons to depart, and, having taken full possession of the place, he and the group of wild fellows with him drink themselves drunk and then smash the crockery and the decanters and the tables and the window glasses, and no one dare protest, for he belongs to the imperial family. But the next day the bill for this roistering destructiveness is sent to the emperor, and he pays it.

Otto is the terror of the neighborhoods when he is inflamed of strong drink. Riding on horseback through the country districts, he met a funeral procession of peasants. As is the custom, they were carrying the coffin on their shoulders. Otto made them stop and put the coffin on the ground, and then he with his horse leaped over the coffin this way and that until the drunken delirium was satisfied. Hearing of this or some equal of ferocity, the emperor called this erratic specimen of royalty into his presence and severely reprimanded him. Otto was soon after seated at his own table with some rollicking companions, and when the emperor's name was mentioned Otto said, "I will show you my opinion of the emperor." Then the outrageous eccentric lifted from the table a bowl of greens and took it to a statue or bust of the emperor standing in the room and poured the greens over it, thus obliterating all the attractiveness of the work of art. The emperor heard of this and commanded the receiver of Otto into his presence and told him that on occasion, and in the presence of the imperial family and their guests he boxed Otto's ears.

This royal nuisance is a peculiar equestrian and has one of his horses so trained that he can without dismounting ride up the front steps of restaurants and hotels, and into the doorway, and through the hall, and into the bathroom, and the horse puts his four feet on the counter and waits for a drink, and the man is put to the horse's mouth either by Otto or the landlord, and the animal is compelled to drink without having any choice as to the style of liquor he may prefer. The old emperor is tired of paying the bills for these reckless adventures, but he finds that the sooner such bills are paid the less disagreeable publicity. The royal outlaw is incorrigible and will never be allowed to mount the throne of Austria. His son does not take after him, but after his mother, who is a most excellent woman.

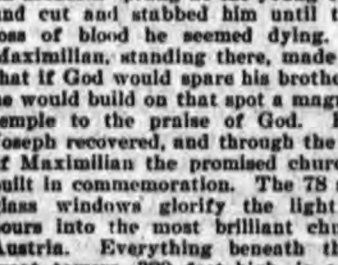

The three most interesting churches to me in Vienna are the Votive church, the Capuchin church and the Augustine church. The Votive church was built by Maximilian of unhappy Mexican experiences. He and his brother, the present emperor, while young men were taking a walk in what were then the fields, and an assassin sprang at the young emperor and cut and stabbed him until through loss of blood he seemed dying. Then Maximilian, standing there, made a vow that if God would spare his brother's life he would build on that spot a magnificent temple to the praise of God. Francis Joseph recovered, and through the efforts of Maximilian the promised church was built in commemoration. The 78 stained glass windows glorify the light as it pours into the most brilliant church in Austria. Everything beneath the two great towers, 320 feet high, is as wonderful as the three great arts of painting and sculpture and architecture can make it. Also, that the builder of so great a cathedral in commemoration of a life spared should have been shot as a usurper far away from home and in a strange land, the disaster throwing his poor wife into a dementia which for more than 30 years has possessed her, so that she hardly knows her own brother, in whose home she is mercifully isolated.

But the body of the unfortunate Maximilian rests in illustrious company. It sleeps in the Capuchin church, another building of absorbing interest in Vienna. For nearly 300 years it has stood, the mausoleum of the imperial family. Maria Theresa is there. Marie Louise, empress of the French, is there.

THE RE-ELECTION OF MCKINLEY.

Yesterday the nation recorded its will at the polls after a political contest conducted with extraordinary earnestness. Issues of supreme importance were involved, affecting the permanency of republican institutions and the rights of the masses. It was a battle royal from start to finish, but, despite the intensity with which it was waged, patriotic men of all parties will accept the result as the deliberate verdict of a majority of the American people.

On July 6 THE SUN, commenting upon the adoption of the silver plank by the Kansas City Convention at the demand of Mr. Bryan, said: "Mr. Bryan has diminished his prospects of election and weakened his party by the attitude which he assumed when he dictated its platform."

His 'vindication' may prove the most costly blunder in his political career. Like the charge at Balaklava, 'It is magnificent, but it is not war'.

That ill-judged and unnecessary declaration for free coinage has cost Mr. Bryan the Presidency. Mr. McKinley has been re-elected, not because a majority of the people indorse his administration, but because they were afraid, without understanding the situation, that Mr. Bryan, if President, would disturb the financial system of the country. There was no ground for this fear, for Mr. Bryan, if elected, would not have had the support of a majority of Democratic Congressmen if he had attempted to secure the repeal of gold standard legislation. In forcing a declaration for free coinage into the platform, he gave his political opponents the opportunity which they desire to play upon the fears of the timid.

The Presidential campaign of 1900 will long be remembered because of the forces which were arrayed against each other and because of the principles at stake. The Republican party carried the country in 1896 upon a single issue—the preservation of the gold standard, a purely business question. It won then not because all its policies were acceptable to a majority of the people, but because it was pledged to maintain a stable financial system. During the period within which it has been in power—from March 4, 1897, to the present time—its course has been revolutionary and in utter conflict with American principles. It provoked and has waged for more than a year and a half a 'war of conquest' based upon a denial of the fundamental principle of this Republic, the "contest of the governed." It has given special privileges to monopolies at the expense of the masses. It has promoted the growth of trusts and licensed them to prey upon consumers and workmen alike. The record it has made merits a stern rebuke by the American people without regard to party. For no man should be influenced by ordinary political considerations when the safety of the Republic is imperiled or when an economic policy threatens the masses with industrial slavery.

In this contest the Democratic party has stood for the interests of the plain people. Arrayed against it have been the trusts and the vast influence which they exert, the corporate wealth of the country, an army of officeholders, and all others whose selfish interests have been promoted by Republican legislation. All who have received favors in the past, all who expect favors in the future, exerted the various influences at their command to perpetuate the power of the Republican party. The Democratic party had no "friends" of this character to assist it in the contest for equal rights, in the protection of the masses from the encroachments of monopoly and in the maintenance of this Republic as the champion of liberty in all lands. It had no "friends" with big purses to buy victory for it in consideration of future favors. It has fought the battle of the people with no other resources than those which it derived from the strength of its cause. It has stood for definite principles—for justice, humanity and fair play. It has asked no favors and it has promised none.

Now that the battle has been fought and the issues have been decided, "let us" to use the words of the late General Grant on a memorable occasion, "have peace." This great Republic, as at present organized, ought to survive any political contest. It rests upon the sure foundation of the consent of the 75,000,000 people who will be governed after March 4 next by the President and Congressmen elected yesterday. From the new administration the people expect and will demand all that a free and enlightened people are entitled to. The country wants peace at home and abroad. It wants equal opportunities for rich and poor, for individual enterprise as well as for corporations. It wants relief from oppressive taxation and release from trusts domination. It wants government of the people, by the people, for the people: not government of the syndicates, by the syndicates, for the syndicates. It wants general prosperity, not the enrichment of favored interests at the expense of the masses. It wants to secure to every man the right to vote as he pleases, free from coercion in any form. It wants wise legislation, good government and no departure from correct principles. This is the ideal which every thoughtful and patriotic American citizen should keep constantly before him—Baltimore Sun of Wednesday.

In Devotion Boston.
Captain E. R. Montfort, the postmaster, is the possessor of a fund of humor and doesn't mind telling a good story even if the joke happens to be on himself.

A year ago, in company with his family, he visited Boston and was a guest at the Tremont House. One morning, the rest of the party being absent on a shopping tour, the captain made up his mind to go out and see the "Hub." He determined to walk about aimlessly for three hours, gather in all the sights and then take the shortest route back to his hotel. The captain sallied forth and for the stated time wandered through the streets of Boston, gazing into shop windows, looking at monuments and enjoying himself thoroughly. At last, tired out by his long walk, in which he calculated he must have covered at least ten miles, he stepped up to a stalwart police officer standing on an adjacent corner and said:

"Officer, can you direct me to the nearest route to the Tremont House?"

The patrolman eyed Captain Montfort quizzically for a moment and then replied:

"Well, sorr, ye might cut acrost th' strait at th' front door, but if Oi were you Oi'd walk over on th' crossing byerant!"

Captain Montfort had walked for three hours and had wandered back to a point opposite the front door of his hotel—Cincinnati Enquirer.

Eve's Maternity.
Of Eve's maternity the record gives no sign beyond the birth of her three sons and the indefinite "sons and daughters" while she shared the intolerable length of Adam's life—930 years. The story of Cain and Abel reflects the rivalries of early agricultural and nomadic life. It has been left to modern art to body forth the mystery of the first death smiting on the maternal heart. Eve, with the dead Abel lying cold and still across her knee, is one of the most beautiful pieces of sculpture in our Metropolitan Museum.

It is not the less beautiful because it represents a universal mystery, involving the last mother whose son is dead equally with the first. For who is yet so wise as to understand clearly and fully what death means?

The heart of Eve's pathetic story, for those endeavoring to make it yield some moral lesson, is the power for bene or blessing which the woman has over the man's life. She falls and he with her. Eve has many names in literature. Lady Macbeth is one of them. Rosamond Vincy is another. She has many names in the workaday world, in which the average man and woman choose the worse or better part—Rev. J. W. Chadwick in Harper's Bazar.

Beeswax From the Gulf's Bottom.
Mr. P. J. McNeil of High Island made an unusual find on the beach at that point a few days ago which made him a richer man by several dollars. The beach for several yards was strewn with beeswax, aggregating about 500 pounds in weight. It seems that about 46 years ago a Spanish vessel bound from some Mexican port to New York sank in the gulf about 100 miles off High Island coast. Part of her cargo was beeswax, and after remaining at the bottom of the ocean for nearly half a century it finally drifted ashore. The wax was in fine condition, and Mr. McNeil found little difficulty in disposing of it at a good figure—Galveston News.

A Coquette.

The sky coquetted with the earth;
She made a dark cloud pout,
And burst in angry tears of rain
That blurred her blue eyes out.
And then she relented, bit by bit,
Till sudden, of her grace,
Threw him a happy kiss of sun
And laughed down in his face
—Theodosia Garrison, in Truth.

—The notice of progress calls for constant improvement. Each season it seems as if perfection has been attained, but the next shows further advancement always. Oehm's Acme Hall, Baltimore's leading outfitting house for everything that man or boy wears, is in the advanced ranks. Our citizens would do well to visit this colossal establishment, and save time, trouble and money by buying all under one roof. Money back if goods are unsatisfactory.

"STAR" ROUTES EXPENSIVE.

This Branch of Postal Service Cost Country Over Five Millions.

Washington, Nov. 2.—The annual report of W. S. Shallenberger, Second Assistant Postmaster General, was made public to day. It shows that on June 30 last the annual rate of expenditure for inland mail service was $35,146,060; for foreign service, $2,014,528; total expenditure, $37,160,588.

There were 22,824 star routes, with a total mileage of 260,838, involving an annual rate of expenditure of $5,123,878.

The routes of all kinds in the domestic mail service cover over a half million miles in length and the miles traveled over them per annum was 459,203,773. An average of almost nine trips a week on each route was maintained throughout the country. Mr. Shallenberger refers to the steps taken looking to stopping speculative biddings for mail contracts and announces that the new policy of awarding all new contracts only to persons living on or contiguous to the routes involved has worked satisfactorily.

Death of Mr. George A. Meekins.

Mr. George A. Meekins, a well known Maryland newspaper man and historian of the Fifth Regiment of Maryland died late Monday night at the City Hospital in Baltimore. Mr. Meekins had been ill for several weeks, and his relatives and friends were not at all surprised at his death. He was 87 years old and a native of Virginia, but passed his youth on the Eastern Shore. Serving on the editorial staff of the Baltimore American some time since, he was well known and popular with the newspaper fraternity and among the public with whom he came in contact. His brother, R. Lynn Meekins, at present associate editor of the Saturday Evening Post. Mr. Meekins' body was interred at Laurel, Del.

Mr. Bryan Declines to be Senator.

"Lincoln, Neb., Nov. 8.—To the Editor of the Evening Journal: You may say officially that under no circumstances would I accept the office of United States Senator, even if it were tendered me. I made my fight for the Presidency and I lost. I am not going to take other men's positions from them." After Mr. Bryan's defeat it was said that his immediate future depended on the complexion of the Legislature elected in Nebraska. It was reported that he would probably be a candidate for the United States Senate if the Fusionists got a majority. He never said this in so many words to any person, unless it is Mrs. Bryan, but the men who are closest to him thought he would be a candidate if he could win.

—Justice Daniel J. Staton, one of the old residents of Nutter's district, cast his forty-sixth Democratic vote last Tuesday, and like the preceding forty-five was for the straight Democratic ticket. Justice Staton remarked Wednesday that he was proud of the fact that he never sp'it a ticket in his life.—Wicomico News.

—Mrs. W. E. Dorman gave a progressive domino party Wednesday afternoon. Mrs. Somers Gunby, losing only one game drew the prize. Those present were: Mesdames L. D. Collier, W. B. Miller, G. R. ## RELIGION IN POLITICS

AN ESPECIALLY TIMELY DISCOURSE
BY REV. DR. TALMAGE.

The Man Faithful to God is the Most Faithful to his Country and to his Fellow Men—An Example From the Life of Daniel.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 4.—This discourse of Dr. Talmage is appropriate for all seasons, but especially in these times of great political agitation. The text is, Daniel vi, 10, "Then the king commanded, and they brought Daniel and cast him into the den of lions."

Darius was king of Babylon, and the young man Daniel was so much a favorite with him that he made him prime minister, or secretary of state. But no man could gain such a high position without exciting the envy and jealousy of the people. There were demagogues in Babylon who were so appreciative of their own abilities that they were affronted at the elevation of this young man. Old Babylon was afraid of young Babylon. The taller the cedar the more apt it is to be the target of the lightning. These demagogues asked the king to make a decree that anybody that made a petition to any one except the king during a period of 30 days should be put to death. King Darius, not suspecting any foul play, makes that decree. The demagogues have accomplished all they want, because they know that no one can keep Daniel from sending petitions before God for 30 days.

So far from being afraid, Daniel goes on with his supplications three times a day and is found on his knees making prayer. He is caught in the act. He is condemned to be devoured by the lions. Rough executioners of the law seize him and hasten him to the cavern. I hear the growl of the wild beasts, and I see them pawing the dust, and as they put their mouths to the ground the solid earth quakes with their bellows. I see their great red eyes and their long sharp fangs snap in the darkness. These hungry monsters approach Daniel. They have an appetite keen with hunger. With one stroke of their paw or one snatch of their teeth they may leave him dead at the bottom of the cavern. But what a strange welcome Daniel receives from these hungry monsters! They fawn around him; they lick his hand; they bury his feet in their long manes. That night he has calm sleep with his head pillowed on the warm necks of the tamed lions.

But not so well does Darius, the king, sleep. He has an attack of terrific insomnia. He loves Daniel and hates this stratagem by which he has been condemned. All night long the king walks the floor. He cannot sleep. At the least sound he starts, and his flesh creeps with horror. He is impatient for the dawning of the morning. At the first streak of the daylight Darius hastens forth to see the fate of Daniel. The heavy palace doors open and clang along long before the people of the city waken. Darius goes to the den of the lions. He looks in. All is silent. His heart stops. He feels that the very worst has happened; but, gathering all his strength, he shouts through the rifts of the rock, "O Daniel, is thy God whom thou servest continually able to deliver thee?" There comes rolling up from the deep darkness a voice which says: "O king, live forever. My God has sent his angel to shut the lions' mouths that they have not hurt me." Then Daniel is brought out from the den. The demagogues are hurled into it, and no sooner have they struck the bottom of the den than their flesh was rent, and their bones cracked, and their blood spouted through the rifts of the rock, and as the lions make the rock tremble with their roar they announce to all ages that while God will defend his people the way of the ungodly shall perish.

Daniel's Greatest Offense.
Learn first from this subject that the greatest crime that you commit in the eyes of many is the crime of success. What had Daniel done that he should be flung to the lions? He had become prime minister. They could not forgive him for that, and behold in that a touch of unsanctified human nature as seen in all ages of the world. So long as you are plucked in poverty, so long as you are running the gamut between landlord and taxgatherer, so long as you find it hard work to educate your children, there are people who will say: "Poor man, I am sorry for him. He ought to succeed, poor man." But after awhile the tide turns in his favor. That was a profitable investment you made. You bought just at the right time. Fortune becomes good humored and smiles upon you. Now you are in some department successful, and your success chills some one. Those men who used to sympathize with you stand along the street, and they scowl at you from under the rim of their hats. You have more money or more influence than they have, and you ought to be scowled at from under the rim of their hats.

You catch a word or two as you pass. "Stuck up," says one. "Got it dishonestly," says another. "Will burst soon," says a third. Every stone in your new house is laid on their hearts. Your horses' hoofs went over their nerves. Every item of your success has been to them an item of discomfiture and despair. Just as soon as in any respect you rise above your fellows, if you are more virtuous, if you are more wise, if you are more influential, you cast a shadow on the prospects of others. The road to honor and success is within reach of the enemy's guns. Jealousy says, "Stay down or I'll knock you down." "I do not like you," says the snowflake. "Why don't you like me?" said the snowflake. "Oh," said the snowflake, "you are going up and I am coming down."

Young merchants, young lawyers, young doctors, young mechanics, young artists, young farmers, at certain times there are those who sympathize with you, but now that you are becoming a master of your particular occupation or profession, how is it now, young lawyers, young doctors, young artists, young farmers—how is it now? The greatest crime that you can commit is the crime of success.

Decision of Character.
Again, my subject impresses me with the value of decision of character in any department. Daniel knew that if he continued his adherence to the religion of the Lord he would be hurled to the lions; but, having set his compass well, he sailed right on. For the lack of that element of decision of character so eminent in Daniel many men are ruined for this world and ruined for the world to come. A great many at 40 years of age are not settled in any respect, because they have not been able to make up their minds. Perhaps they will go west; perhaps they will go east; perhaps they will not; perhaps they will go north; perhaps they will go south; perhaps they will not; perhaps they may make that investment in real estate or in railroads; perhaps they will not. They are like a steamer that should go out of New York harbor, starting for Glasgow, and the next day should change for Havre, and the next for London, and the next for Liverpool. These men on the sea of life everlastingly taking ship and making no headway! Or they are like a man who starts to build a house in the Corinthian style and changes it to Doric and then completes it in the Ionic, the curse of all styles of architecture.

Young man, start right and keep on. Have decision of character. Character is like the goldfinch of Tongouli. It is magnificent while standing firm, but loses all its beauty in flight. How much decision of character in order that these young men may be Christians! Their old associates make sarcastic flings at them. They go on excursions, and they do not invite them. They prophesy that he will give out. They wonder if he is not getting wings. As he passes they hiss and chuckle and sneer. "There goes a saint." O young man, have decision of character! You can afford in this matter of religion to be laughed at. What do you care for the scoffs of these men, who are affronted because you will not go to ruin with them? When the grave cracks open under their feet, and grim messengers push them into it, and eternity comes down hard upon their spirit, and conscience stings and hopeless ruin lifts them up to hurl them down, will they laugh then?

I learn also from my subject that men may take religion into their worldly business. This is a most appropriate thought at this season of the year, when so many men are starting out in new enterprises. Daniel had enough work to do to occupy six men. All the affairs of state were in his hands; questions of finance, questions of war, of peace, all later and later questions were for his settlement or adjustment. He must have had a correspondence vast beyond all computation. There was not a man in all the earth who had more to do than Daniel, the secretary of state, and yet we find him three times a day bowing before God in prayer. There are men in our day who have not a hundredth part of Daniel's engagements who say they are too busy to be religious. They have an idea somehow that religion will spoil their worldly occupation, that it will trip the accountant's pen or dull the carpenter's saw or confuse the lawyer's brief or disarrange the merchant's store shelf. They think religion is impertinent. They would like to have it very well seated beside them in church on the Sabbath, to find the place in the psalmbook or to nudge them awake when they get sleepy under the didactic discourse, or they would like to leave it in the pew on Sabbath evening when they go out, closing the door, saying, "Good night, religion; I'll be back on Sunday!" But to have religion go right along by them all through life, to have religion looking over their shoulder when they are making a bargain, to have religion take up a bag of dishonest gold and shake it and say, "Where did you get that?" They think that is an impertinent religion. They would like to have a religion to help them when they are sick, and when the shadow of death comes over them they would like to have religion as a sort of nightgown which will open the door of heaven, but religion under other circumstances they take to be impertinent.

Christianity For Busy Men.

Now, my friends, religion never robbed a man of a dollar. Other things being equal, a mason will build a better wall, a cabinet maker will make a better chair, a plumber will make a better pipe, a lawyer will make a better plea, a merchant will sell a better bill of goods. I say, other things being equal. Of course it does not propose to give him a new head or to intellectualize him or to change a man's condition when his ordinary state is an overgrowth of a philosophical theory that a total vacuum is impossible, but the more letters you have to write, the more burdens you have to carry, the more miles you have to travel, the more burdens you have to lift, the more engagements you have to meet, the more disputes you have to settle, the more opportunity you have of being a Christian. If you have a thousand irons in the fire, you have a thousand more opportunities of serving God than if you only had one iron in the fire. Who is busy as Christ? And yet who a millionth part as holy? The busiest men the best men. All the persons converted in Scripture busy at the time of their being converted. Matthew attending to his custom house duties; the prodigal son feeding swine; Lydia selling purple; Simon Peter hauling in the net from the Damascus, going down on his law business. Busy, busy! Daniel with all the affairs of state weighing down upon his soul, and yet three times a day worshipping the God of heaven.

Again I learn from this subject that a man may take religion into his politics. Daniel had all the affairs of state on his mind, yet a servant of God. He could not have kept his elevated position unless he had been a thorough politician, and yet all the thrusts of officials and the danger of disgrace did not make him yield one iota of his high toned religious principle. He stood before that age, he stands before all ages, a specimen of a godly politician. So there have been in our day and in the days of our fathers men who have been eminent in the service of the state. Such was Benjamin Franklin, attorney general of New York in the time of your fathers. Such was John McLean of the supreme court of the United States. Such was George Briggs of Massachusetts. Such was Theodore Frelinghuysen of New Jersey—men faithful to the state, at the same time faithful to God. It is absurd to expect that men who have been immersed in political wickedness for 30 or 40 years shall come to reformation, and our hope is in the young men who are coming up, that they have patriotic principle and Christian principle side by side when they come to the ballot box and cast their first vote and that they swear allegiance to the government of heaven as well as to the government of the United States. We would have Bunker Hill men less than them than Calvary, and Lexington men less than them than Bethlehem, but because there are bad men around the ballot box is no reason why Christian men should retreat from the arena. The last time you ought to give up your child or forsake your city is when it is surrounded by a company of Choctaws, and the last time to surrender the ballot box is when it is surrounded by impurity and dishonesty and all sorts of wickedness.

Religion in Politics.

Daniel stood on a most unpopular platform. He stood firmly, though the demagogues of the day blazed at him and tried to overthrow him. We must carry our religion into our politics. But there are a great many men who are in favor of taking religion into national politics who do not see the importance of taking it into city politics, as though a man were intelligent about the welfare of his neighborhood and had no concern about his own home.

My subject also impresses me with the fact that lions cannot hurt a good man. No man ever got into worse company than Daniel got into when he was thrown into the den. What a rare morsel that fair young man would have been for the hungry monsters! If they had plunged at him, he could not have eluded into a niche beyond the reach of their paws, or the snatch of their tooth. The came, pleased, all around him, as hunters' hounds at the well known whistle come bounding to his feet. You need not go to Numidia to get many lions. You all have had them after you—the lion of financial distress, the lion of sickness, the lion of persecution. You saw that lion of financial panic putting his mouth down to the earth, and he roared until all the banks and all the insurance companies quaked. With his nostril he scattered the ashes on the domestic hearth. You have had trial after trial, misfortune after misfortune, lion after lion, and yet they have never hurt you if you put your trust in God, and they never will hurt you. They did not hurt Daniel, and they cannot hurt you. The Persians used to think that spring rain falling into seashells would turn into pearls, and I have to tell you that the tears of sorrow turn into precious gems when they drop into God's bottle. You need be afraid of nothing, putting your trust in God. Even death, that monster lion whose den is the world's sepulcher, and who puts his paw down amid thousands of millions of the dead, cannot frighten you. When in olden times a man was to get the honors of knighthood, he was compelled to go fully armed the night before among the tombs of the dead, carrying a sort of spear, and then when the dawn of day would come forth, and amid the sound of corn and corn parade, he would get the honors of knighthood. And so it will be with the Christian in the night before heaven, as fully armed with spear and helmet of salvation, he will wait and watch through the darkness until the morning dawns, and then he will take the honors of heaven amid that great throng with snowy robes, streaming over seas of sapphire.

An Amusing Episode.

A party of women were going to the Paris exposition grounds in an omnibus, and each one paid her own fare. When the driver collected the money from the box into which the fares were dropped, he found the amount short. He stooped to tell a woman seated nearest to him that one fare was missing. She told him she thought all had paid, but he shook his head vigorously. "Non, non!" said he, whereupon she turned to the others and asked them in French if they had paid. The reply was a chorus of "Oui!" apparently from all sides, but the driver still protested.

The passengers became indignant, the man shouted and gesticulated, and for awhile pandemonium reigned. Finally the driver yielded, though unwillingly, to the force of numbers and turned again to his horses, grumbling over the meanness of the foreign visitors.

Meanwhile in a corner of the omnibus sat a little American woman, wide eyed and astounded, the only passenger who did not know a word of French. When quiet was restored, she said gently, in English: "Well, really, I don't know what all that fuss was about, but now that it is all over will you please hand up my fare? I haven't had a chance to pay it yet. That horrid man seemed to be so impudent about something!"—New York Tribune.

Cast Off Father and Mother.

The strained relations that have existed between King Alexander and Queen Nathalie since his recent marriage to her former lady in waiting have developed into an open rupture. In consequence of this the king gives notice through The Official Gazette that all proceedings calculated to undermine the position and honor of himself or of his consort will be regarded as treason, and the same measures will be taken against them as if they were traitors or rebels.

This is probably the first occasion on which a sovereign has publicly denounced his mother as guilty of high treason and has threatened her with punishment as such. Fortunately, she happens to be banished from France. But he has banished her court marshal and representative, Colonel Simenich, from the kingdom, has seized his effects at Belgrade and has given directions that she is no longer to be regarded either by the clergy or by the government of Serbia as a member of its reigning house.

In one word, King Alexander, having cast off his father, has now done the same thing with regard to his mother.

Love as a Cure For Jealousy.

A young man who has lived for 30 years in the vicinity of Manayunk is looking forward eagerly to two important events in his life—his marriage and his first hair cut. He lost all his hair at a very early age. In fact, it is said that he has never had any from infancy. However that may be, he has always worn a wig, and his sensitiveness on this point has prevented him from associating very much with the fair sex. Some time ago he met a young woman, and for the first time in his life he fell in love. Still he despaired of winning her because of his physical defect.

A short time after the tender passion first asserted itself he was surprised one morning to observe that in washing his head a little down appeared on the skin. This continued to grow until now he has quite a nice head of hair. He used no nostrums, and local physicians attribute the growth of hair to the increased flow of blood to the head under the stimulation of the emotions of love. The marriage is not far distant.—Philadelphia Record.

Limited Quarters at Baltimore.

Baltimore is not a large house—in fact, for a palace a very small one. It is built in the usual style of Scotch houses, with thick walls, many turrets and entirely of grey colored stone. There is not much accommodation for a court. The sitting room and dining room slotted to the ladies in waiting are of modest dimensions, the entire space available in the castle being so limited that ministers are often requested not to bring a private secretary with them and are continually obliged to transact business and correspondence in their bedrooms. Many of the bedrooms have no dressing rooms adjoining them.—London M. A. P.

THE GERMAN KAISER

DR. TALMAGE PICTURES HIM AS A RULER INTENSELY EARNEST.

A Good Story of His Propensity For Travel—"Augusta, Pack the Trunks"—The Art, the Music and the Religion of the Land of the Rhine.

[Copyright, 1900, The Christian Herald, New York.]

Not a beggar in Berlin, not a beggar in Dresden, not a beggar in Germany, as far as we have been able to see. In other European countries the beggar is a familiar object. Hat in hand, eyes upturned, garments in rags and an attitude indicating it has long been taken. His father and mother were paupers. Pedigree of rags, inheritance of want, equal of centuries impersonated. But in Germany neither at the door of churches nor at the gate of railroad stations nor on the street are you asked for alms. What is the reason? The German nation has no superior among nations in prosperity. The people have enough to eat and enough to wear and enough to shelter them. The harvest fields which we see through the car window declare that this year a wealthy crop will be added to the national resources. Cleanliness, another sign of prosperity, is everywhere evident. Dirt is always poor. Plenty of water in Germany, wisely distributed and everywhere used. Midsummer and yet not a malodorous abode. Berlin as healthy in August as in January. Only two cases of intoxication have been seen in all the empire. German beer is not as bad as American whiskey. No doubt there are poverty and suffering, but we do not know where to find them.

Germany's religion has much to do with its prosperity. As the most revered name in St. Petersburg is Peter the Great and we are shown the houses where he lived and the axes with which he cut and the cups out of which he drank and the staff with which he walked and the boots which he built and the pens with which he wrote and the beds on which he slept and the crown which he wore and the throne on which he sat, so in Germany the great name is Martin Luther, and we are taken to the chairs in the window at Wittenberg, where he talked with his wife and the door of the church on which he hammered the theses and the pulpit where he preached and the mugs out of which he drank before apollinaris water was found and the tomb where near by that of Philip Melancthon he sleeps the long sleep and the statue in all the cities where he stands with the Bible in his hand and his lips of marble or bronze is still preaching the gospel with which he shook the earth and proclaiming a religious emancipation which will yet give all nations the right to worship God in their own way. Luther is still the mightiest religious power in Germany.

Likewise the long reign of Kaiser William I was a salutary reign. He chose for his winter and summer residence the plainest and simplest of his palaces, leaving for the inspection of tourists the royal palace, where Frederick the Great entertained Voltaire in vast rooms amid painting and statuary and chuckling together over what they considered the joke of all time—the Christian religion—and also forsaking the palace at Potsdam, its walls encrusted with precious stones and august with masterpieces, the stupendous structure built at the close of the seven years' war to prove that the national resources were not exhausted. The two palaces occupied by Kaiser William, according to the season, look like prosperous homes, but completely unpretentious. You are led through his late residence in Berlin, admiring its simplicity, and through his study, where he sat with Bismarck and drafted plans for the national welfare and put down the foundation of an empire which, I think, will last as long as the sun and moon endure. For the history of almost every nation it requires pen and sword closely united. That which was achieved by Thomas Jefferson's pen and George Washington's sword and Alexander Hamilton's financial genius for institutions in America, William I and Von Moltke and Bismarck achieved for Germany.

The present emperor has enlisted the hearts of all his people. While many criticize his pronouncements and do not like what he does not like that, William II will hand down to his great-grandson a legacy that which he received from the dying hand of his father, Emperor Frederick, who reigned only 93 days, and which his grandfather wielded 27 years. German blood has iron in it, and the German government will last long after frivolous France and craft Spain have again and again changed from republicanism to monarchy, and from monarchy back to republicanism. The present emperor is ubiquitous; now laying the corner stone of a church, now unveiling a monument, now launching a ship, now reviewing a regiment, now in one city and now in another. At a French and Judy show, some time ago, the performer gave what he considered the characteristics of the three emperors who reigned within four months over Germany. Kaiser William, Frederick and William II. The man of the show said: "Kaiser William will be remembered by his saying, 'I have no time to be weary.' Emperor Frederick had for characteristic utterance, 'It is well to suffer without complaining.' The present emperor will be known for his familiar saying, 'Augusta, pack the trunks.'"

For this disrespect the showman was two months imprisoned. After he had served his time in jail and had come out he continued his show, but with the following change of remark: "Kaiser William will be remembered by his saying, 'I have no time to be weary.' Emperor Frederick had for characteristic utterance, 'It is well to suffer without complaining.' But I am not permitted to say what is the characteristic saying of the present emperor." Then the audience supplied the lacking information by shouting, "Augusta, pack the trunks."

But Emperor William knows nothing through this facetiousness. There is an earnest side to his nature which all recognize. He presided a sermon on his yacht a few days ago, a more exacting going through the press, but my learned and genial friend, Rev. Dr. Dickey, pastor of the American church in Berlin, for whom I preached Sabbath before last, has translated the emperor's sermon, which must have taken three-quarters of an hour in delivery, and is very forceful and brilliant. He is the only emperor I ever heard of who preached, although King David provided texts for a great many sermons, but why not kings and emperors talk the pulpit?

NEWS FROM ALL SECTIONS OF WICOMICO SENT IN BY THE ADVERTISER'S REPRESENTATIVES.

QUANTICO.

The election which probably will be fraught with greater significance than any in the history of our country passed very quietly in Quantico. The day was marked with almost total absence of drunkenness and profanity and good cheer seemed to pervade the atmosphere breathed by the two great political parties. The voting was done slowly but steadily throughout the day and there seemed to be very little "bustling" of the voters by the leaders of any party. At 1 o'clock the Democrats served up a roasted pig to "the boys," it was with sweet potatoes and cornbread was eaten with an apparent relish which satisfied the appetite of all. The returns were eagerly awaited at the stores of T. R. Jones & Bro., and W. S. Disharoon and at the hotel, in each building there being a telephone. Enough was heard by midnight to satisfy even the most sanguine Democrat that Bryan's cause was a lost one and that McKinley would be elected his own successor. The Republicans while, of course, buoyant at their party's success and triumph are not loudly demonstrative nor even joyous with their opponents, and the Democrats, though grieved at their chief's defeat are bearing it gracefully realizing that though they differ with their opponents on certain principles yet they can clasp hands with them in their respect for the constitution, loyalty to Union and reverence for the flag and feeling sure the Union, strong and brave, will sail on.

In the midst of a great campaign, the parents, teacher, and pupils of Quantico and vicinity will not forget the debt of gratitude due Mr. J. W. Turpin for taking the lead in the laying of the walk to our town school. The matter has been discussed and various opinions have been tried for a year but it seemed no plan could materialize until Mr. Turpin took the work in hand and pushed it to the finish; the result being that we have now a nice genteel pavement to the school building which will indeed be a preventative from sickness for the pupils of the school as well as a very great town improvement.

It is encouraging to hear from the County Commissioners that before many changes of the moon we shall be furnished with shells for our streets.

The Knights of Pythias are preparing to hold an entertainment of high order on the night of 17th, to which all are invited. This is one of our growing orders and their excellent talent at home and speakers from abroad insure an interesting occasion.

The bell of the school house leaped from the belfry on Wednesday and fell on front porch smashing in the roof and landing in the yard where a great many children were at play, but fortunately no one was hurt.

EDUCATIONAL INTERESTS.

A Column of Reading Matter For All Interested in School Work.

QUESTION 14.

Professor LeFevre:—I have a bright boy whose father doesn't want him to "waste his time," studying grammar and history. Will you kindly tell him in this column why the boy should be required to study the entire course laid down by the School Board?

No. 14. All that we amount to in this world depends upon what we do, and our ability to act is dependent upon our development, our education. When we are born into the world, we possess merely the possibilities of a growth or development; and, in order to gain the highest powers of which our natures are capable, we must be taught, be schooled. Education is the harmonious development of all the powers of man. Man possesses a multiplicity of capacities, all of which contribute to his well-being, and his dignity. A perfectly developed manhood or womanhood implies the complete development of every capacity and gift. These powers are so related that they may be unfolded in very nearly equal proportions, and harmoniously blend in the final result. Educational work should reach every power, and School Examiner Bounds in his recent course of study has striven to give the schools of Wicomico County a complete scheme of education. It depends upon how our boys and girls today make use of the opportunities, our schools afford, what the men and the women of tomorrow will be.

Apart from the excellent mental discipline to be derived from the study of such branches as grammar and history, their practical applicabilities should appeal to the father in question. Correctness of expression, or what grammar teaches, is essential to broad culture and to the expression of thought so as to accomplish its author's designs. History combines amusement of the deepest interest, the exercise and improvement of the best faculties of man, and the acquisition of the most important species of knowledge.

With history omitted, a public school curriculum would be weak indeed. History may be regarded as the school of politics, and, as such, some knowledge of it is indispensable to rulers and statesmen; it is also highly important to every citizen of a republic, in order to enable him to perform, in a manner honorable to himself and useful to the state, the duties of a freeman. By history, we gain our knowledge of the constitution of society; of the reciprocal influence of national character, laws, and government; of those causes and circumstances which have promoted the rise and prosperity, or the decline and fall of states as well as of individuals. The prosperity of our nation depends upon the education of our citizens. This is why our public schools have been instituted, and every parent should rejoice that his or her children can, along with the culture received from other studies, receive instruction in grammar and history.

QUESTION 15.

Professor LeFevre:—A particularly apt and tractable pupil in my school desires to drop mathematics altogether, now that she has completed the elementary books and made some progress in higher mathematics. This comes from a desire to devote all her time "to studies that will be of most use to me in life." I find that parents agree with her. Is this idea correct, and should pupils be encouraged in it? If not will you explain at length.

No. 15. Pupils, and too frequently parents, are not capable of judging what subjects should be taught in our public schools. This is why our course of study is not elective but compulsory. How many children would grow up to be intelligent men and women, if they are left to themselves to select their studies? Nothing but elementary mathematics is taught in the schools of our country, and every child should complete the course. Mathematics is the science of quantity. It is the only exact science and it should therefore be diligently pursued, both in numbers (Arithmetic) and extension (Geometry) in order that our pupils may be trained in accurate and precise modes of thinking. In its effects, along the line of mental discipline, there is no study of more consequence than mathematics. A well trained mind is better than knowledge. Mental power is what you want. Do not drop your mathematics.

C. H. LEFEVRE

At a meeting of the School Board last Wednesday, Messrs. Whitefield S. Lowe and Herbert Williams were appointed trustees of the new school on the Spring Hill road. The other trustees will be selected later.

The Board decided to reopen the school at old Spring Hill Church in Baron Creek district. Miss Mildred Dougherty of Salisbury was appointed to teach it. The school will open next Monday.

Mr. George Hambury was appointed a trustee for Wetpquin school, vice Charles T. White, resigned.

Miss Lulu Ellingsworth was appointed to fill the scholarship in the State Normal School surrendered by Miss Jennie O. Williamson.

The Smyrna Times of last Wednesday said: "Prof. Chas. Howell LeFevre, formerly Principal of the Public Schools here, now Supervising Principal of the Salisbury High School, is editor of a column on educational matters in the Salisbury ADVERTISER of that town. The following extract will show the drift of thought that interests both the parents and children in his educational realm."

Then follows questions and answers copied from previous issues of this column.

The school board of Talbot county has purchased nine Smith Premier typewriters, with tables and stenographer's chairs, for use in three high schools in their county, where typewriting will be taught in the future.

A NEW FIELD FOR WOMEN

School of Practical Agriculture and Horticulture.

Within recent years a number of prominent American women have gone in for "personally conducted" farms. The daughters of Abram S. Hewitt are successful and enthusiastic farmers, and but for the Hewitt farm brings a fabulous price per pound in New York city. Mrs. Richard Watson Gilders has a farm of 250 acres near Lenox, on which she laughingly declares everything which appears on her bountiful table except paprika and olive oil is raised.

These rich lady and gentlemen farmers believe that a practical, scientific knowledge of agriculture would revolutionize American rural life, would turn the tide of emigration from the great congested cities and prove of tremendous educational and social force. With this purpose in view they have contributed to the School of Practical Agriculture and Horticulture to be opened at Briarcliff Manor, Westchester county, New York. Mr. Abram S. Hewitt and Mr. William E. Dodge head the list of people prominent in all good works who make up the board of trustees and furnish the financial backing for the enterprise.

On this perfectly equipped farm, or rather agricultural village, for it is measured by miles on all four sides, the pupils of the new school will have an opportunity to study practical profitable farming and floriculture.

The new school will be under the direction of Mr. George Powell, the well-known agricultural authority, formerly connected with Cornell University. Mr. Powell said the school is the outcome of the appeal for instruction from the weary toilers of great cities eager to try new fields and pastures green if only they might obtain sufficient knowledge to avoid disaster.

While the school will be thrown open to all comers, irrespective of age, sex or previous condition of servitude, Mr. Powell thinks it should especially attract the attention of women, offering as it does, inestimable advantages in studying the practical, profitable methods of the manor farm. Mr. Powell has received hearty encouragement and a support from trustees of the botanical gardens to which pupils will make study journeys. They will also go to New York to study market conditions and methods of packing.

Pupils have textbook work to obtain a sufficient knowledge of chemistry, but the course will be mainly practical work. Like Swanley, the school diploma will qualify pupils to take positions as landscape gardeners, florists etc. Mr. Powell maintains that a woman can earn more money as a gardener than as a teacher with a quarter of the preparation and a mere fraction of the fatigue.

Or pupils may go in for beekeeping, poultry or dairying by purchasing or renting a bit of land.

Or several women by buying adjoining land may raise fruit, vegetables, poultry, flowers etc., on a commercial scale and by co operation utilize labor, machinery, etc., to the greatest possible advantage. This outdoor life would release women from the slavery of clerkships and poorly paid positions in the city and besides securing them better health would enable them while earning a living to enjoy homes of their own.

Every branch of floriculture and agriculture will be taught, and women who so desire may not only learn to bud and graft plants and raise small fruits, but having brought the fruit to perfection instruction will be given in the best methods of converting it into secondary products, such as jellies, jams, canned fruit, etc.—New York Correspondence Chicago Record.

THE DELMAR BAZAAR.

Opened Monday and Continued Through the Week With Much Success.

The long talked of Masonic Bazaar of Delmar opened its doors for business last Monday in the commodious hall of Mr. W. B. Sirman at that place, and has been in progress during the whole week past.

The ladies of Delmar have taken a lively interest in the work and have been quite successful in getting together a handsome lot of contributions, especially in the fancy work line.

For this important occasion the hall has been transformed into a bower of fascinating beauty, the different booths being draped and curtained with bunting and decked with flags and Japanese lanterns. This with the great variety of articles, beautiful ornaments and dainty fancy work, and smiling faces behind each counter ready and anxious to serve each customer, makes a very pretty picture. "Rebecca at the well" of ice cold lemonade is there, and the gypsy tent where for a small fee strange facts (?) of the far off future are revealed. Tickets were sold at 25 cents a piece for a handsome diamond ring. The one getting the lucky number is to win the prize. Ice cream and cake can be had at all times.

On Wednesday evening a banquet was given to the visiting patrons at 35 cts. per cover. This was enjoyed by quite a number of folks from Salisbury, a special train leaving here for Delmar about half past six o'clock and returning at ten o'clock.

The object of the Bazaar is to raise funds for the erection of a Masonic Temple in that town and the management reports grand success. We have been requested to acknowledge the following list of contributions which were received too late for acknowledgment through the columns of the "Bazaar Notes."

Postmaster Adkins, of Salisbury, visited the Postoffice Department in Washington last Wednesday and an order was issued establishing free delivery service at Salisbury Dec. 1, with H. Winter Owens, W. Garrett Groves and Alexander H. Murrill as carriers. Mr. Owens was transferred from the clerical force of the office and the latter two were certified from the Civil Service Commission as the result of a competitive examination. An examination for a substitute carrier will be held soon.

Mr. Owens' transfer from the clerical force of the Salisbury Post office to the free delivery service is only temporary. His general knowledge of the U. S. Mail Service caused the administration to select him to assist the officials in the inauguration of local free delivery.

Wedding in Wilmington.

Mrs. Wm. H. Jackson attended the marriage of Miss Bessie Murray in Wilmington on Wednesday evening. The Philadelphia Times has the following account of the wedding:

Wilmington, November 14.—A brilliant wedding took place in St. Paul's Methodist Episcopal Church to night when Miss Bessie Janvier Murray, daughter of the pastor, Rev. W. I. S. Murray, became the bride of William Fowler Metter. The ceremony was performed by Dr. Murray. Mrs. Josiah Marvel was the matron of honor, Miss Ella Jones of Dover and Miss May Conn of this city, were bridesmaids. Robert D. Hoffer, Jr., of Middletown was the best man. The ushers were Edward M. Vaughn, of Middletown; William D. Denney, of Dover; George L. Townsend, Jr., of Odessa, and Charles B. Palmer, of this city.

DEMOCRACY IS NOT DEAD.

The Washington Correspondent of the Sun writes interestingly of the Future of the Party.

The most sensible article we have seen in all this talk about the reorganization of the Democratic party appeared in Wednesday's issue of the Baltimore Sun from its special correspondent at Washington. What the Democratic party needs today is rest not agitation.

The dispatch reads as follows: "Political gossip and quidnuncs are taking much pleasure in speculating upon the future of the Democratic party and the necessity for piecing up the shattered fragments through an immediate attempt at re-organization. A lot of regular and of halting leaders of the party have already given their views as to what ought to be done, and many others will be following their example for some weeks to come."

Then the gossip and the public alike will become weary of the subject and it will be dropped for something newer.

The Democratic party from a period commencing not later than eight or ten years after the Civil War has been the majority party of the country. Never has it been more largely in the majority than in 1896 and again in 1900. Republican managers of the highest prominence are conceding with the utmost frankness McKinley's re-election was due to Democratic aid, just as was his first election four years ago. No one disputes or doubts this. Had the party been united in 1896 McKinley would not have been in it, nor, of course, would there have been any show for the Republican nominee this year.

A party is not in such hopeless condition when it can poll 7,000,000 votes, all white, and spare a million or so more to elect the other side. The Democratic party is one of the few political parties which was not born to die. It has already outlived several opposition parties, and it will be alive and flourishing long after the Republican party passes out of existence.

The darkest days of its history were through the period of the Civil War and the years immediately succeeding, when at one time it had not more than half a dozen members of the Senate and perhaps not more than 40 in the House.

There used to be a good deal of talk about reorganization and all that sort of thing, but nothing came of it. The party went right straight along, and in due time its glorious rank and file brought it on top, just as they will do again. The men who are talking about reorganization and airing their views with so much pretense of wisdom and foresight may delight to hear their own utterances, but if they live long enough they will find how little they knew about it. They may as well settle down. Should they really undertake any serious movement, as is the intimation thrown out by Mr. Dickinson, of Michigan, they would only expose themselves to ridicule. But they will not do it; the encouragement will be too feeble. The Democratic party needs rest, not reorganization. Two years hence, when the Congressional elections are again on, the party will show itself and will make itself felt. It will have no national platform, but the party in each Congressional district can make its own declaration of principles and conduct the fight on its own lines.

There will be no national organizations to help it or hinder it. The chances are 20 to 1 the party will get fairly on its feet again, and when 1904 rolls around will be in as good a condition as it ever was in its whole history. This will come through the logic of events, naturally and inevitably. The best thing for all the leaders to do—those who supported Bryan and those who did not—is to take back seats for a season and let the pot boil slowly. The Republicans have absolute control of every department of the Government. They are going their own way, and Democratic policy is to watch and wait. Let 1904 take care of itself."

A Coincidence.

At Delmar a voting contest for a gold watch that cost $110 was won by T. A. Veasey, whose number was 110. He is a hotel keeper on the Maryland side and lost his license by 118 votes against the 110 in his favor. The day following the election his stable was destroyed by fire. Wilmington Every Evening.

TEACHERS AND PUPILS.

Educational Matter of General Interest to All.

QUESTION NO. 16.

Prof. LeFevre:—Should Teachers encourage a feeling of comradeship with their pupils, or cultivate a dignified reserve in the school room and in public, and why?

Inquirer:—Comradeship is not inconsistent with dignity. It is possible for a teacher to associate with his pupils, and yet maintain inviolate his professional character and reputation. It is true, however, that the teacher should never forget, nor should he ever permit his pupils to forget, the real relation that school life causes them to bear toward each other. Familiarity with a noble character breeds respect rather than contempt.

A cold reserve, in school and in public, will cause the teacher to lose many golden opportunities of doing good to the character he desires to mold. Youth is clay for the potter's wheel, and honor and usefulness commonly hasten to own that they owe everything to some one they have copied. There is an attribute of the true teacher that is more easily thought of than heeded, something in which none are proficient. The teacher should display, in a life of noble deeds and attainments, that strength of character which affords trust and confidence to lodge in the breast of his pupils. There are some men and women in whose company we are always at our best. While with them we cannot think mean thoughts nor speak ungenerous words. Their mere presence is elevation, purification, sanctity. All the best stops of our nature are drawn out by the intercourse and we find a music in ourselves that was not there before. Suppose that influence were prolonged through a month, a year, a lifetime, and what could not life become. C. H. LeFevre.

FOR SCHOOL LIBRARIES.

In selecting their district school libraries the teachers of this county may get valuable suggestions from the following list of books which a very successful teacher in Baltimore has placed within reach of her school. The list has been planned for pupils from the fourth to the eighth grade inclusive. The list is made out and hung up in the school-room so that the children may consult it when desirous of finding something interesting to read. There is no compulsion about their taking the books, but they are told that the books are good reading.

TALES FOR CHILDREN.

The fourth grade list includes Nathaniel Hawthorne's "The Wonder Book." There are also Boyesen's "Norseland Tales." There is "Indian History for Young Folks" and "Stories of Old Rome," besides many others of similar character.

For the fifth grade this teacher suggests Gilman's "The Wonder Book," Lodge's "Hero Tales From American History," Kingsley's "Children of Westminster Abbey," and similar works in history, with a number in geography, including "Three Vassar Girls in South America" and the "Zigzag Journeys Around the World."

The sixth-grade history books include "Sir Walter Raleigh," by Toole; "Miles Standish," by Abbott, and "Grandfather's Chair," by Hawthorne. The geography books include Julian Ralph's "Dixie Land," Torrey's "Florida Sketch Book," Hawthorne's "Our Old Home," and Frank R. Stockton's "Personally Conducted."

HISTORY AND TRAVEL.

Loosing appears among the authors of the seventh-grade history books with "Living Men and Women of the Revolution" and "Events in Baltimore During the Revolution" by Puryear, is another in the series. Mitchell's "Hugh Wynne" is one of the most modern books in the recommended list. The geography books for this grade include Miss Mulock's "Fair France" and two of Paul Du Chailion's travel books, "My Aplingi Kingdom," and "From Pharaoh to Fellah." There are also Sheiden's "A Yankee Girl in Zululand" and "The West From a Car Window" by Davis.

The eighth-grade history books have a decided flavor of the Civil War, "Baltimore on the 19th of April 1861," is one of the books; it is followed by Headley's "The Great Rebellion." There is also Eggleston's "A Rebel's Recollections" and "With Lee in Virginia," by Henry. The geography books are largely concerning India, China and Japan, with two by Stevenson, "Samoa" and "In the South Seas."

A Brakeman Killed at Delmar.

About five o'clock this (Friday) morning, Mr. Fred Dorman, a freight brakeman on the Delaware railroad, was run over and killed by an engine in the switching yards at Delmar, Del. Mr. Dorman was on the rear of the engine, which was backing at the time, and ran into an open switch bringing it into contact with the side of a freight train. This threw the young man from the engine to the track where he was instantly crushed beneath the wheels of the moving locomotive.

Mr. Dorman was a single man about twenty seven years of age and resided in Wilmington, Del. A coroner's inquest was held at two o'clock Friday afternoon. At this writing the responsibility for the switch being left open is not known.

MISS ELLIS ABROAD.

A Wicomico Woman Writes Interestingly of a Recent Trip to Europe.

Following is the first installment of a serial account of the Maryland and New York Christian Endeavor journey to the great convention in London last summer. Miss Adella E. Ellis, daughter of James Ellis of Spring Hill, this county, who was of the party, is the author. Miss Ellis is at present engaged in teaching in the public schools of Queen Anne's county. Other installments will follow.

Sodarsville, Md., Nov. 14, 1900.

The burning of the North German Lloyd's Steamships, "Mali," "Salle," and "Bremen," delayed the departure of the Maryland and New York Christian Endeavor parties for the great convention at London until Thursday, July 5th. The original plan was to sail from New York July 3d, but after the great fire we left Baltimore July 5th, by the Steamer "Rhein" bound for Hamburg, Germany. About 2.30 o'clock p.m. on the last mentioned date we steamed out of Baltimore harbor, accompanied by the little tug which by its frequent shrieks, kept us aware of its existence and presence. A storm was in progress as we steamed out, lightning flashing, thunder crashing, yet little heed did we pay to these disturbances of the elements above us, our thoughts for the time were centered on the friendly land and the dear home faces we were leaving behind. Crowds gathered at the pier to see the steamship leave, some to say goodbye, others out of curiosity, and we, looking back, saw some with tears streaming down their faces, others whose faces were wreathed with smiles, and one and all wishing us "bon voyage" amid the cheering and fluttering of handkerchiefs. And then began the scramble for our respective places. As we were "emergency passengers," not booked to sail on the "Rhein" there was much confusion and some disappointment about the assignment of state-rooms. Many had been built in the stern of the ship to accommodate us, and considering the length of time in which the carpenters had to do the work, the rooms were very comfortable indeed.

And then came supper; and such a supper! Some who had been told of the excellent steamship fare, the fine service on board an ocean liner, were much taken back to find themselves assigned to a regular "camp meeting" table; one long bench on each side serving for chairs, and in order to reach our respective places must disturb every one seated or else crawl over the bench, many preferred the latter way. Our supper consisted of dry wheat bread sliced, German black and rye bread, caressed tongue, butter served on a dinner plate, black coffee, the sugar for which was served on a saucer. As the salt was served in the same way it was necessary to exercise some caution in the use of each for we might find we had salted our coffee and sugared our canned tongue. After we had finished this bountiful repast we repaired to the upper decks, devoutly hoping "there was no more to follow" of a like character.

The day had been exceedingly hot and we waited in vain for the cooling breeze. The huge iron ship had been several days in port and was thoroughly heated through and through and when we repaired to our state rooms we found sleep impossible, many spending the night in their chairs on deck. I "turned in" as the sailors say, but only to awaken and think of the extra cold wasted during the blizzards of '95 and '99.

I think many of us agreed with one of our neighbors in the adjoining state room, who said the next morning, "Well, I firmly resolved last night to be a better woman, for if the bad place is any hotter than this state room I know I do not want to go there." Then came our first day at sea, having passed through the Cape about 8 a. m. when the pilot left us. Our breakfast differed but little from supper of the previous day but as I was not feeling very steady I did not partake. The day Friday passed as all days do, broken in the evening by the exceedingly unbecoming behavior of the "inconstant moon", who showed her face first upon the right and then upon the left, now fore, now aft. Inquiry brought out the fact that the steering apparatus had broken and we were again heading for our distant port.

Saturday passed and then came our first Sunday on shipboard. But one day differs not from another, on shipboard, and with the exception of a service at half past ten, at which Rev. Dr. Wallace of Utica, N. Y., preached, Sunday passed as had the two previous days. By Monday morning we began to feel the influence of the ocean breezes, and although we were still in the warm and genial waters of the Gulf stream the air was much cooler and life was becoming more than an existence. Monday evening we made the acquaintance of the fog horn; the first blast at 10.30 p. m. made us rush to the side of the ship expecting to see a neighboring ship, but imagine our dismay when we were confronted by a thick fog through which we could not have distinguished objects six feet away. These blasts continued at regular intervals of two minutes each until 3 a. m. of the next day, during which time sleep to me was impossible. The next day, Wednesday, July 11th, was uneventful; foghorn began at 3 p. m. and blew until 9 a. m. next day. As is the custom always on shipboard, an entertainment consisting of addresses, music, etc., was given by the passengers on Thursday evening at which a volunteer contribution is made and this sum is given to widows and orphans of sailors, the sum in this case being given to the bereaved ones of the Hoboken fire. The chief feature of the evening was a lecture by Mr. Joseph Veins of Baltimore on "Joseph" the son of Jacob, the Israelite. The lecture showed much thought on the part of the lecturer; his pictures were strong realistic word-paintings; his similes were couched in terms at the same time beautiful and striking. Before concluding we learned his position in regard to Trusts and Monopolies, the Hanna-McKinley administration, and many other affairs of National interest. Had we been in doubt before, after he mentioned incidentally that his early boyhood was passed in Richmond, Va., then our conjectures were proved.

Nothing more of interest transpired during the whole voyage until we sighted land Monday, July 16th, at 3 p. m. Throughout the whole voyage everyone watched with much interest the placing of the flags on the mast (Mercator's projection) at noon of each day, these flags marked the exact position of the ship each day and also recorded the number of miles made in the last 24 hours.

We were all very much disappointed that we would be obliged to spend another Sunday on shipboard as we had hoped to be in London that day, but as it could not be avoided all were reconciled and games of Shuffle board, rope quoits etc. helped to while away the time.

Nothing could have been more delightful than the weather since we had left Baltimore. The sea during the entire voyage was as smooth as any of our rivers and for two or three days at a time not a single "white cap" was to be seen. It was as cold as Dec. the sky perfectly clear and altogether one of the most remarkable voyages that any one on board had ever seen. Sunday was observed as the previous one, Dr. Benham of Baltimore, Drs. Williams and Wallace of New York state, preaching. And right here let me say that the good ship "Rhein" carried over on that voyage thirteen ministers of the Gospel and arrived safe in port. Monday afternoon land was seen for the first time in twelve days, it being the Scilly Islands off the southwest coast of England. These are only naked, gray rocks rising abruptly from the water. As we passed along into the English Channel we skirted Old England's coast, sometimes near sometimes far. Soon Bishop's Head Light House came into view, standing alone at sea, ready to point out danger to the mariner. As the sun was still shining we did not now need its kind services. Soon darkness hid the land from our view, but not before we had seen what appeared to be the mobilizing of the English Navy off the coast. All was conjecture and none could tell what news of war might come to us on the morrow for which we waited so impatiently and anxiously.

TWO NOTABLE DEATHS.

Henry Villard and Marcus Daly Have Passed Away.

VILLARD'S CHECKERED CAREER.

Made and Lost Three Fortunes in His Big Railroad Deals—Mr. Daly, the Montana Copper King, Came From Ireland Penniless.

New York, Nov. 13.—Henry Villard, the financier, died yesterday morning at his home, Thorwood Park, near Dobbs Ferry. The cause of death was apoplexy, from which he had been a sufferer for several weeks. A week ago he contracted a severe cold, which hastened the end. Mr. Villard had been unconscious nearly all the time since last Tuesday. When death came '95 and '99.

THE LATE HENRY VILLARD.

There were gathered around the bed Mr. Villard's wife, his sons Oswald G., Harold G., with his wife; Mrs. William Lloyd Garrison of Boston, his sister-in-law and Mr. Villard's only daughter, Mrs. James W. Bell of Dresden, Germany. In addition to the family Mr. Villard leaves a sister, Mrs. Emma Von Xylander, wife of Gen. Robert Von Xylander, of the Bavarian army.

Thorwood, the name of Mr. Villard's country home at Dobbs Ferry, is a massive and handsome villa of stone and brick.

Henry Villard was born in Bavaria in 1835, and came to this country in 1853, leaving his university studies against the advice of his father. He became a reporter on leading newspapers in New York, Cincinnati and Boston, and in 1866 married a daughter of William Lloyd Garrison. He began his Wall street career in 1870 with practically nothing, and ran his fortune up to the millions. In 1884, however, came the crash that wiped away most of his fortune. Since then he has twice won and lost fortunes, and his estate at his death probably foots up $500,000.

THE DEATH OF MARCUS DALY.

The End Came Peacefully After Terrible Suffering.

New York, Nov. 13.—Marcus Daly, one of the leading mine owners of the world, 60 years old, died in his apartments in the Hotel Netherlands yesterday.

THE LATE MARCUS DALY.

terday morning. Dilation of the heart and Bright's disease of the kidneys, with resultant complications, were the immediate cause of death, though Mr. Daly's illness dated back several years. He had suffered severely during the last two months, but the end was painless. While he was surrounded by members of his family, his life went out so peacefully that only the physicians in attendance knew that he had found rest.

Mr. Daly returned from Europe about the middle of September. It was then told that his physicians had confirmed the opinion of those at Mannheim, Germany, that his days could not be many. He wished to be taken to his new home at No. 725 Fifth avenue, but it was thought best that he should remain in the apartments in the Hotel Netherlands, whither he had been taken from the steamship.

Mr. Daly was born in Ireland in 1842, and came to this country a penniless boy. After working at odd jobs in New York he finally went to California and worked as a potato digger. In 1876 he went to Montana, began mine prospecting and "struck it rich." Of late years he has won prominence through his political rivalry with Senator Clark. His interest in the Anaconda mine alone is valued at $20,000,000.

Priest Killed by a Cable Car.

New York, Nov. 15.—Rev. Father John E. Barry, vicar general of the diocese of Manchester and Concord, N. H., was struck and instantly killed by a Broadway cable car yesterday afternoon in front of the Astor House. Father Barry was in company with Father E. M. McCallahan of Concord, Father G. W. Murphy of Portland, Me., and Father W. J. O'Reilly of Manchester, N. H. His body was dragged for some distance, the wheels of the first truck passing over and horribly mangling the body. Father Barry was here to attend a series of special services at St. Patrick's cathedral. Father Barry was 67 years old, and well known throughout New England. The motorman and conductor were arrested.

LESSON OUR NATIONAL CONTESTS.

The Times recently proposed three amendments to the Constitution and earnestly urged that the closing session of the present Congress should act upon them. The amendments advocated would accomplish the following reforms:

1. That hereafter the President and Vice President of the United States shall be elected for the term of six years, and that the President shall be ineligible to re-election as his immediate successor.

2. That the people of the nation qualified to vote for members of the popular branch of Congress in the States and Territories, shall vote directly for candidates for President and Vice President, and the candidates receiving the largest number of votes shall be declared elected.

3. That United States Senators shall be chosen by popular election, as other State officers are elected.

These proposed reforms are generally regarded as vital to improve tranquillity in commercial, financial, industrial and trade circles, and to lessen the appalling corruption of our elections. They merit much more extended discussion than could be given in a single editorial, and we shall consider them more fully in separate articles.

The reasons for the extension of the Presidential term were never more widely or profoundly appreciated than they are at the present time. The business of the country has practically no relief from the disturbing influences of politics. Every President, when elected, immediately employs all the power of his administration, and hinders or advances national legislation, to serve the single purpose of re-electing himself. With the single exception of Buchanan, no President of the United States has ever entered upon his high office with the settled purpose not to be a candidate for re-election, and retired with fidelity to that purpose. True, he could not have been elected under any conditions existing at that period, but at no time during his term did he direct his efforts to succeed himself.

With the new President elected, the business interests of the country always well understand the policy that has been decided by the national judgment, and it would be easy to adapt business efforts to the political policy adopted by the nation; but political strife and disturbances begin with the inauguration of the President. A new Congress is to be elected in less than two years, and the whole power of the government must be directed to sustain the administration in Congress. The result is often the defeat of the administration in one or both branches of the national Legislature, and political disturbances are at once precipitated. The policy of the administration is halted, and in the struggle for political supremacy, commerce, industry and trade are made to suffer.

Immediately after the election of the mid-administration Congress comes the great battle for the Presidency, and it continues without interruption until the verdict of the nation is rendered. Business is thus disturbed by constant political conflict and by the distrust that is always a fearful paralysis to commercial and industrial progress.

By extending the Presidential term to six years for future Presidents, and making them ineligible to be their own immediate successors, two great advantages would be gained to the country.

1. There would be a long period of freedom from political agitation during each Presidential term, and—

2. The President, being ineligible to succeed himself, would naturally avoid the disturbing demoralization and often disgraceful abuse of political power to accomplish his reelection. The President would have every incentive to maintain the highest standard of political purity, and to give commerce, industry and trade the highest measure of tranquillity.

Our Presidential election contests are looked to with constant dread by the business and industrial interests of the country. We doubt whether there is one business man in a hundred who would not earnestly urge the extension of the Presidential term, with the President made ineligible to succeed himself. Every consideration of business tranquillity and political integrity demands the adoption of this important reform; and the party that shall be most potential in accomplishing it will most command the respect and trust of the American people. We earnestly appeal to the present Congress to inaugurate this most vital reform, and if earnestly pressed, we believe that it would command the requisite votes in both Senate and House.—Philadelphia Times.

—Democrats should think of how to organize—not reorganize.

GO SLOW.

As is the case after every Presidential election, on every side you hear mutterings of discontent and talk of reorganization from the defeated party. Leaders who have heretofore been prominent in the councils of the Democratic party, but who withheld their support of its nominee in the recent election, have come forward with suggestions of reorganization. The Democratic party wants its old leaders and its new leaders—it wants all who believe in its principles and hoped to see this country remain as it was founded—a Republic born to lead the world in the paths of peace and liberty, but this is neither the time for reorganization nor does the suggestion come from the proper sources. The party wants time to seriously consider the results of the elections of 1896 and 1900 and the causes that brought them about. As Hon. George W. Peck, former Governor of Wisconsin, says:

"Let the Democratic party reconstruct itself when it gets good and ready. This haste on the part of some people who are not in it is too much like mere mourners proposing to a bereaved widow on the way home from the funeral of her husband. Wait till the widow can dry her eyes."

The Democratic party is not dead but will right itself within itself as it has ever done. No temporary defeat can obscure its past brilliant record nor cause it to falter in its future achievements. Governor McMillan of Tennessee aptly refers to the election and the future of the party as follows:

"The result of the national election is disappointing and unsatisfying to me. I believe that, notwithstanding the clouds that hang over our horizon today, the future will be brighter for the party and principles of Jefferson. The principles of Democracy were not torn of the day, but forever, for the party did not change principles when Jefferson, Jackson and Cleveland were defeated, and will not change now because Bryan was defeated."

Let all this reorganization and reconstruction business go slow. Whatever may have been the difference of opinion as to its advocating one individual policy or another, Democracy is still strong and true and will assert itself in the future. It cannot die.

SPRINGFIELD REPUBLICAN LOOKS FOR HANDWRITING ON THE WALL.

There are not wanting experiences admonishing the Republicans not to presume too much upon their victory. Prosperity—the full dinner pail—is the most treacherous of ground on which a political party can plant itself in laying claim to the support of the people. No party knows how to command prosperity for more than a brief period. The election of 1872 is still easily with in the memory of men of middle age.

The Republican victory was a sweeping one even after many leading Republicans had left the party in protest against the tendencies of the first Grant administration. The spirit exhibited by the victors was heedless and intolerant. A great commercial prosperity reigned and it was theirs, and it was to continue, now that the opposition had been thrown down so heavily. Never were triumphant party hopes and promises more quickly and rudely crushed. Within a year from the re-election of Grant and the going of Greeley to his grave with a broken heart, came the great panic of 1873 and a depression extending over five years, compared with which that of 1893 was mild. The Democrats swept the country in the election of 1874 and elected the president in 1876 on the face of the returns—and this in spite of the great handicap put upon that party by its pro-slavery war record.—Springfield (Mass.) ## FOR A STATE FARMERS' CLUB.

Preliminary Steps Taken Looking To Such An Organization.

About 20 representatives of the farmers' clubs of Maryland met this week in the lecture hall of the State Geological Survey, Johns Hopkins University, Baltimore, for the purpose of forming a State organization to advance the interests of agriculture. Dr. Mahlon Kirk, of Montgomery county, was elected presiding officer and W. W. C. Stewart, of Baltimore county, secretary.

William L. Amor, J. Worthington and W. W. C. Stewart were appointed a committee on resolutions and made the following report, which was adopted:

That the various farmers' clubs throughout the State, in joint convention assembled, recognize the value of district farmers' clubs and desire to promote their organization and the usefulness and efficiency of a State organization as their natural sequel.

To this end the State Conductor of Farmers' Institutes be and he is hereby requested and urged to take the necessary steps during his annual visit to each county to arouse local interest in the subject, to assist in the framing of constitutions for local organizations and to take all necessary steps to bring about the formation at least of one club in each county.

That a meeting of this body be called by its president and secretary for March 1, 1901, when a constitution shall be submitted for adoption to be framed by an executive committee consisting of three members to be selected by ballot at this meeting.

That the existing officers continue in office until March 1, 1901.

That a circular prospectus of the purpose of this organization be prepared by the executive committee at an early day to be circulated throughout the State, and that the executive committee be empowered to carry out the purpose of this meeting.

William L. Amor, J. D. Worthington and Asa B. Gardiner, Jr., were chosen as the executive committee.

Letters favorable to the purpose of the meeting were read from: Secretaries William P. Trimble, of Wilks Club, Harford county; John A. Null, Clearview Club; Daniel Wolfe, Union Bridge Club, and J. D. Engel, Middleburg Club, of Carroll county.

There are 22 clubs in this State—six in Harford county, two in Baltimore county, four in Carroll county, one in Cecil county, one in Charles county, one in Kent county, two in Prince George's county, four in Montgomery county and one in Howard county.

Laxative Bromo-Quinine Tablets cure a cold in one day. No cure, no pay. Price 25 cents.

Catarrh

Is a disease of the mucous membrane or inner lining of the nose, throat, lungs, stomach, bowels and other organs. It is caused by a cold or succession of colds irritating the delicate surfaces, and is promoted by scrofulous taints in the blood.

It is especially dangerous in persons having a predisposition to consumption.

In these and all other catarrhal cases, Hood's Sarsaparilla so thoroughly renovates the blood and restores strength that it permanently cures.

In fact, because of the character of the disease, and peculiar merit of the remedy, Hood's Sarsaparilla is the only common sense treatment for catarrh.

Hood's Sarsaparilla Promises to cure and keeps the promise. No substitute for Hood's acts like Hood's—be sure to get Hood's.

Help... Nature

Babies and children need proper food, rarely ever medicine. If they do not thrive on their food something is wrong. They need a little help to get their digestive machinery working properly.

SCOTT'S EMULSION OF COD LIVER OIL

WITH HYPOPHOSPHITES OF LIME & SODA

will generally correct this difficulty.

If you will put from one-fourth to half a teaspoonful in baby's bottle three or four times a day you will soon see a marked improvement. For larger children, from half to a teaspoonful, according to age, dissolved in their milk, if you so desire, will very soon show its great nourishing power. If the mother's milk does not nourish the baby, she needs the emulsion. It will show an effect at once both upon mother and child.

has been improving, has been improving right along for the past thirteen years. You can easily prove this by looking backward over Salisbury newspapers for thirteen years. Lacy Thoroughgood opened on the 17th of November 14 years ago and got a few customers, most of these have staid by him, a few of them are not here now. There are more clothing stores in Salisbury now than there were, and those that were here are all doing four or five times as much business as they were (see Salisbury news papers) Lacy Thoroughgood is doing quite a few himself and as nobody has lost any customers, all have gained and Thoroughgood is most always doing something, you can easily figure that the clothing business has wonderfully improved; this goes to prove that there are either a great many more men here, that Salisbury Clothiers are getting more outside trade or that existing conditions, aided by Lacy Thoroughgood's constant pounding have brought prices down so low that men can today afford to buy two suits, where they could afford but one fourteen years ago. Of course Thoroughgood can't tell why anybody else's business should be any better, for there has never been a dollar spent in the past thirteen years outside of Thoroughgood's store that wouldn't have bought more than it did if it had been spent at Thoroughgood's. That's been proved so many times that it has become one of the reasons why Thoroughgood's business grows. Other reasons are, that Thoroughgood's best goods wear, that Thoroughgood's cheap goods wear, that Thoroughgood gives you what he says he will, and that nobody ever buys anything at Lacy Thoroughgood's and regrets it afterward. There are other reasons like these, for Thoroughgood to gain More Customers. Men's finest Silk-lined Overcoats $15.00 instead of $20.00, Men's finest Cloth Overcoats, in black, blue and brown, $10.00 instead of $15.00, Men's finest Kersey Overcoats $8.00 instead of $12.00. Thoroughgood has Overcoats for $5.00, $6.00, $7.00, $8.00 and $8.50. Thoroughgood has Men's Overcoats with some cotton in them for $4.25 instead of selling them for "all wool" and getting $7.00. There are other reasons why Lacy Thoroughgood is doing more business all the time.

WELFARE OF OTHERS

DR. TALMAGE SAYS WE SHOULD BANISH SELFISHNESS.

Cites the Example of Job, Who Was Delivered From Evil When He Prayed For His Friends—Happiness Comes From Doing Good.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 11.—In this discourse Dr. Talmage was on narrowness of view and urges a life helpful to others; text, Job xlii, 10. "And the Lord turned the captivity of Job when he prayed for his friends."

Comparatively few people read this last chapter of the book of Job. The earlier chapters are so full of thrilling incident, of events so dramatically portrayed, of awful ailments and terrific disaster, of domestic infelicity, of staccato passages, of resounding address, of omnipotency proclaimed, of utterances showing Job to have been the greatest scientist of his day, an expert in mining and precious stones, astronomer, and geographer, and zoologist, and electrician, and poet, that most readers stop before they get to my text, which, strangely and mysteriously, announces that "the Lord turned the captivity of Job when he prayed for his friends."

Now, will you please explain to me how Job's prayer for his friends halted his catastrophes? Give me some good reason why Job on his knees in behalf of the welfare of others arrested the long procession of calamities. Mind you, it was not prayer for himself, for then the cessation of his troubles would have been only another instance of prayer answered, but the portfolio of his disaster was rolled up while he supplicated God in behalf of Eliphaz the Temanite, Bildad the Shuhite and Zophar the Naamathite. I must confess to you that I had to read the text over and over again before I got its full meaning. "And the Lord turned the captivity of Job when he prayed for his friends."

Well, if you will not explain it to me, I will explain it to you. The healthiest, the most recuperative thing on earth to do is to stop thinking so much about ourselves and go to thinking about the welfare of others. Job had been studying his misfortunes, but the more he thought about his bankruptcy the poorer he seemed, the more he thought of his caruncles the worse they hurt, the more he thought of his unfortunate marriage the more intolerable became the conjugal relation, the more he thought of his house blown down the more terrific seemed the cyclone. His misfortunes grew blacker and blacker, but there was to come a reversal of these conditions. One day he said to himself: "I have been dwelling too much upon my bodily ailments and my wife's temper and my bereavements. It is time I began to think about others and do something for others, and I will start now by praying for my three friends." Then Job dropped upon his knees, and as he did so the last shackle of his captivity of trouble snapped and fell off. Hear it, all ye ages of time, and all ye ages of eternity, "the Lord turned the captivity of Job when he prayed for his friends."

A Mighty Medicament. The fault with most of us is too much self concentration—our health, our fortunes, our advancement, our social position, our achievements, our losses, our defeats, our sufferings, our persecution, our life, our death, our immortality. Of course there is a lawful and righteous selfishness. In a world and in a time of such activities and rivalries and temptations we must look after our own interests and our own destiny or we will go under. Do not wait for others to take care of you. Take care of yourself. But it will not hinder our preservation and prosperity if we enlarge the sphere of our wishes and prayers so as to take in others. The law in the natural world would do well for the moral and spiritual world. The centrifugal force in nature would throw everything in toward the center, and the centrifugal force in nature would throw everything out from the center, but the centrifugal and the centrifugal work beautifully together. The one force that would throw everything toward the center is balanced by the force that would throw everything outward.

Our world, with its own interests, feels the pull of other worlds. No world, no nation, no community, no man, no woman, can afford to exist only for itself or himself or herself. The hour in which Job has that soliloquy about the enlargement of his prayers so as to take in his friends and he put into execution his good resolution was the hour when he felt a tonic, a sedative, a nerve, a cataplasm, that helped to cure his body and revived his mortuities till they were a hundred percent better than ever before. For the record is "the Lord gave Job twice as much as he had before," and tended to make him a wonder of longevity. For he lived 140 years after his troubles were gone. Oh, what a mighty medicament is the contemplation of and the effort for the welfare of others!

"But," says some one, "it was easy enough for Job to pray for his friends. Anybody can do that. There are those to whom we are obligated for years of kindness. They stand so close to us in sympathy and reminiscence and anticipation that it is easy for us to pray for their welfare." Well, I see you do not understand that these friends of Job were the most tantalizing and exasperating friends a man ever had. Look at his behavior. When they heard of his bereavements and the accidents by whirlwinds and lightning stroke, they came in and sat down by him a whole week, seven days and seven nights, and the record is "none spoke a word to him." What a disreputable and wicked silence! Mind you, they professed to be religious in a way they ought to have been able to do some religious consolation in.

stand of that they were dumb as the sphinx which at that time stood in the African desert and stands there still. Why did they not say something about reunion in the heavenly realms with his children, who had been slain? Why did they not talk to him about the satisfactory explanations in the future world of things we do not understand in this world? Why did they not go to the apothecary and buy a poultice that would have soothed the carbuncles, or some quieting potion that would calm his nerves, or a few drops of febrifuge that would cool his heated frame? No! For seven days and seven nights they did nothing and said nothing for his relief. They must have almost bored him to death.

Job's Comforters. After these three friends had completed their infamous silence of a week they began to lecture Job. First Eliphaz the Temanite opens with a long story about a dream which he had in the night and irritates the sufferer with words that make things worse instead of better and sets him in an attitude of defense against the lecturer. Then comes Bildad the Shuhite, who gives the invalid a round scolding and calls him garrulous and practically tells him that he deserved all that he had got and that if he had behaved himself aright he would not have lost his house or his children or his estate. He practically said: "Job, I will tell you what is the matter with you. You are bad. You are a hypocrite. You are now getting paid for your wickedness." No wonder that there came from Job an outburst of indignation, which calls out the other quondam friend, Zophar the Naamathite, who begins denouncing Job by calling him a liar and keeps on the discourse until Job responds to all three of them in the sarcastic words, "No doubt but ye are the people, and wisdom shall die with you."

Oh, what friends Job had! Heaven deliver us from having one such friend, to say nothing of having three of them. It was for such friends that Job prayed, and was it not a religious triumph for him to do so? Would you, the very best of you, be in very devout mood and capable of making intercession for people who had come to you in a day of trouble and said: "Good for you. You ought to be chastised. You are being taken in hand by eternal justice. If you had behaved yourself aright, you would not have been sick or persecuted or impoverished or made childless." Oh, no, my friend, you would not have felt like Job when he prayed for his friends, but more like Job when he cursed the day of his nativity.

Notice that this denunciation by the three friends was premeditated. They did not merely happen in and come suddenly upon trouble for which they could not offer a compound. The Bible says, "They had made an appointment together." The interview was prearranged. They had agreed as to what they would say to the sick man. You can see that their remarks were not extemporaneous. What they said was sublimely poetic. They rose in style into what in later times we would call the Homeric or Dantesque. But Job was not in need of poetry so much as a salve for his eruptive disorder. He was not dying for lack of a paragraph in blank verse. He was not so much in need of a didactic lecture about the justice of God as an assurance of the divine mercy. Some pious rustic of the land of Uz, not able to put three grammatical sentences together, could have said something more consolatory.

The Worthiness of Emulation. The meanness of the attack of these religious critics was augmented by the fact that they had the sufferer in their power. When we are well and we do not like what one is saying, we can get up and go away. But Job was too ill to get up and go away. First he endured the seven days and seven nights of silence, and then he endured their arraignment of his motives and character, and after their cruel campaign was ended, by a sublime effort of soul, which I this day uphold for imitation, he triumphed in prayer for his tantalizers. In all history there is nothing equal to it except the memorable imploration by Christ for his enemies. No wonder that after that prayer of Job was once uttered a thrill of recovery shot through every nerve and vein of his tortured body and every passion of his great soul, and God answered it by adding nearly a century and a half to his lifetime and whitened the bills with flocks of sheep and filled the air with the lowing of cattle and wakened the silent nursery of his home with the swift feet and the laughing voices of childhood—seven sons and three daughters celebrated for their beauty, the daughters to refine the sons, the sons to defend the daughters. There is nothing that pays so well as prayer, and the more difficult the prayer to make the greater the reward for making it.

Let us all make similar attempt to pray for those who vex and misrepresent and tantalize us. You may be very popular in the city or neighborhood where you live, but I warrant if you are in active life there are those who wish you the opposite of wishing you well. Are you benevolent? They say it is on your part a matter of personal display. Are you eloquent or learned? They declare you are overrated and that what you say or write is of no importance. Do you try to make yourself effective in church or hospital or board of directors? They call you officious. Are you well dressed? They say you are proud. Does a false report start in the community against your character? They believe it all and add another story to the fabrication. Some of them pretend to be friends, but they have the cudgels all ready for you. I'll phaz the Temanite, Bildad the Shuhite, Zophar the Naamathite. "Now, pray for them." "Oh," you say, "I can do that." I thought you could not. But you will grow in grace until you can do it as easily and as well as did Job pray for his exasperators. You ought to pity them, for defamers and detractors and the envious and jealous are not happy. They hurt themselves more than they hurt you. Better be pursued than the pursuer. Better be the infant Christ than Herod the robber of the Bethlehem cradles. You want to be a better man. You want to be a better woman. Then scale this height of triumphant prayer, and you will be ten times more of a Christian than you ever have been. It will prolong your life as it prolonged Job's life. You will feel a glorious reaction that will last through all time and all eternity. It will steady your nerves, it will reduce your spleen, it will regulate the pulsation of your heart.

Keep Your Temper. Nothing is so unhealthy as to get mad. It is a shock to the whole physical organization as well as to your mental and moral condition. It is no unusual thing for people to drop down dead in a fit of anger. You people who weigh over 200 pounds avoid duels had better never lose your temper, for at such times apoplexy is not far off. Get the equipoise of Job in the text, and it will help you in business directions. Praying for all offenders, you will have more nerve for large undertakings; you will have a better balanced judgment; you will waste no valuable time in trying to get even with your enemies. Try this height of prayer for your antagonist today, and if you fall try it tomorrow. Keep on until you accomplish it, and I should not wonder if, in addition to the moral and religious strength it gives you, it should add a hundred percent to your worldly prosperity. Job xlii, 10, "The Lord gave Job twice as much as he had before."

What we all need is to get out of ourselves and go to helping others, whether friends or foes. As beautiful an instance of how this can be done I found last summer in London in the person of Florence Nightingale, the heroine of hospitals and of battlefields when there were no hospitals. The lounge on which she lies prostrate is a throne of power, and, though she has passed into the eighties, she trains nurses for sickbeds, and her influence is now felt among the wounded in South Africa, while her memory is still of the story of Balaklava, Sevastopol and Inkerman, where England and France and Russia grappled. She told me that she had not been happy until she undertook to alleviate suffering and that since she began that work she had never seen an unhappy day. To that work she consecrated her life, her classic attainments, her social position, her brilliant personality. Her whole life for others, and her face shows it. I think so much of heaven is to be found in no other human countenance. Tennyson's "Charge of the Light Brigade" is not more thrilling to me than the womanly bravery and sacrifice that took care of those who were shot from the saddles of the "Immortal Six Hundred."

The Emblem of Immortality. My text endorses prayer and gives it a scepter to wave over our temporal and eternal life. Under God it cured Job and fixed up his finances and restored his home and made him so robust of health that he lived 14 decades. "But," some one says, "I do not believe in prayer for friends and foes, because I do not think that God is going to change the laws of nature because we ask him to do so." Neither do I think that God will change the law of nature at our request, but I am sure that he answers prayer through natural law. Not a physician of any skill, allopathic, or homeopathic, or hydropathic, or eclectic, but has some time been surprised that what was thought to be a fatal disease suddenly relaxes its grasp of the patient, and he recovers. Not one law of nature has been fractured. Prayer may have given the sudden turn to that illness. A business man may be in difficulty inextricable—mortgages against him foreclosing, goods to be sold for some reason become unsalable, new invention in machinery making the old machinery of his factory worthless, all kinds of commercial troubles pouncing upon him at once. Most business men have at least once in their lives been put in such agonizing crisis, but the harried merchant or manufacturer gets out of it. Creditors become lenient, the wheels that were made useless for making one kind of fabric turn out to be good for making another style of fabric, the stock of goods that could not be sold comes into unexpected demand, and whereas all things were against him all things are now for him. No law of nature is broken and no law of trade. Prayer may have given that extrication. God, by making a law, does not tie his own hands with it. If you are free to do what you are asked to do, is not God just as free, or are you mightier than your Maker?

Prayers Answered. What a scene it was when that whaling ship, after a cruise of three years, approached a New England harbor! From the shore the mother knew that it was the ship in which her son was sailing, but a hurricane struck the ship and destroyed it on the rocks, and the wreckage was strewn on the beach. But the mother continued all night in prayer for her son's safety, and in the morning a knock was heard at her door, and the door opened, and in came her long absent boy exclaiming, "Mother, I knew you would pray me home." But you need not go so far for illustration. I have in my own life had answers to prayer so pointed, so direct, so startling, that I dare not recite them lest I be misunderstood. I could pick many startling instances right out of this audience. You dare not doubt the integrity of those who present such evidence. You would believe them as witnesses in any court of law standing before judge and jury, and certainly you ought to believe them when they give solemn testimony as to what they have seen and felt in answer to prayer. Silent prayer, audible prayer, ejaculatory prayer, intercessory prayer, extemporaneous prayer, liturgical prayer, prayer in the morning to start the day right, prayer in the evening to correct the mistakes of the day, prayer at the beginning of the year as we launch out upon its uncertainties, and prayer at the close of the year reviewing the vicissitudes of the 12 months, prayer for ourselves, prayer for others, not formal and heartless prayer, which is of no more use than the prayer of the heathen of Timbuctoo, who writes his petition on a board and then washes it off and catches the water in a cup, giving it to the sick to drink for recovery.

Many of the prayers offered in Christian lands are as senseless as these artificial prayers of the pagans. What is needed is not only heartfelt prayer, but direct prayer, such as David mentions, drawing his figure from archery, with its bow and arrows. As the notch of the arrow is put against the string of the bow and then the archer takes aim and in a flash the arrow strikes the mark, so David resolves that his prayers shall not be aimless. He aims his prayer at the heavens, "To thee will I direct my prayer." "Have you said your prayers?" is a misleading question. You may say your prayers a thousand times without praying. The Bible speaks of Elias, "who prayed in his prayer," implying that one can seem to pray when no prayer is offered. Prayer is the soul on the wing. It is the private door into the King's palace. It is the barometer showing what the spiritual weather will be. It is stepping into the holy of holies. It is telegraphy with the heavens. It is the winding up of the clock of the immortal soul. It is intercommunication between the finite and the infinite—prayer suggested by circumstances.

Breath of the Soul. Prayer is what some one has called "the slender nerve that moveth the muscles of omnipotence." Prayer is the beautiful respiration of the soul. It is the whisper of holiness into the ear of help. It is laying hold of almightiness, omniscience and omnipresence at one and the same time. Prayer enlists all divine and angelic reinforcement. Prayer is laying hold of a pulley fastened to the heavenly throne. Prayer is the first breath of a new-born soul, and it is heard in the last gasp of earthly Christian experiences. Prayer! In an instant it mounts the highest heavens. Neither scarp nor archangel over flew swifter or higher than the infant's petition at her mother's knee. What an opportunity is prayer! Why not often use it praying for ourselves and, like Job, praying for others? What better work would we do, what better lives would we live, what better hopes would we entertain, if we multiplied and intensified our prayers!

Some one asked a soldier of Stonewall Jackson the secret of the great general's influence over his men. "Does your general abuse you, swear at you, make you march?" "Never," replied the soldier. "No! Well does the swearing: Stonewall does the praying. When Stonewall wants us to march, he looks at us soberly. Just as if he were sorry for us, and says, 'Men, we have got to make a long march. We always know when there is going to be a long march and right smart fighting, for Stonewall is powerful on prayer just before a big fight.' When Stonewall Jackson was asked the meaning of the passage 'Instant in prayer,' he said: 'If you will not mistake and think I am setting myself up as an example, which I am not, I will give an illustration from my own habit. I have so fixed the habit of prayer in my mind that I never raise a glass of water to my lips without a moment's asking of God's blessing; I never seal a letter without putting a word of prayer under the seal; I never take a letter from the post without a brief sending of my thoughts heavenward; I never change my classes in the section room without a minute's petition for the cadets who go out and those who come in.'

Helpfulness of Prayer. Now, if God has during these remarks shown us the uses, the importance, the blessedness of prayer, suppose we try to do what Job did when he prayed for his exasperators. Many of us at the beginning of this subject felt that while we could pray for ourselves and pray for those who were kind to us we never could reach the high point of religious experience in which we could pray for those who annoy us and make us feel worse instead of feeling better. That was a Matterhorn, that was an Alp, to the top of which we feared we could never climb, but we thank God that by his omnipotent grace we have reached that height at last. Let us pray! Oh, Christ, who didst pray for thine assassins, we now pray for those who despitefully use us and say all manner of evil against us. For their eternal salvation we supplicate. When time is no more, may they reign on thrones and wear coronets and sway scepters of heavenly dominion. Meanwhile take the bitterness from their soul and make them soon think as well of us as now they think evil. Spare their bodies from pain and their households from bereavement. After all the misunderstandings and controversies of this life are over may we keep with them eternal jubilee in the mansions on the hill, and as thou didst turn the captivity of Job when he had prayed for those who badly used him, and health came to his body and prosperity to his estate, now that we have by thy grace been able to make application for our antagonists, cure our diseases, if we are ill; and restore our estate, if it has been scattered; and awaken gladness in our households, if they have been bereft; and turn the captivity of our physical pain or mental misfortune or mental distress, and thine shall be the kingdom and the power and the glory forever and ever. Amen!

I can not speak too highly of it." This remedy always wins the good opinion, if not praise, of those who use it. ### Whisky Medicines.

The temperance press is emphasizing the danger to the home in the use of "medicines" which are loaded with whiskey or alcohol. In this respect, as well as in the remarkable character of their cures, Dr. Pierce's medicines differ from other preparations. Dr. Pierce's Ten Medical Discoveries and "Favorite Prescription" contains no alcohol, whiskey or other intoxicant, and are wholly free from opium, cocaine and narcotics. Every family should have a copy of the People's Common Sense Medical Adviser, sent absolutely free, on receipt of stamps to pay expenses mailing only. Send 21 one-cent stamps for the book in paper covers, or stamps for cloth binding. Address: R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y.

Every Movement Hurts

When you have rheumatism, muscles feel stiff and sore and joints are painful. It does not pay to suffer long from this disease when it may be cured so promptly and perfectly by Hood's Sarsaparilla.

This medicine goes right to the spot, neutralizes the acidity of the blood, which causes rheumatism, and puts an end to the pain and stiffness.

Biliousness is cured by Hood's Pills.

What Would You Give

To be cured of catarrh? If you or your friends have this disease, you know how disagreeable it is. Its symptoms are in the eyes, the head, the throat, the nose, the ears, the stomach, the bowels, the bladder, and the genital organs. It is a disease of the mucous membranes, and it is a disease of the blood. Fortunately its cure is not a question of what you will give, but what you will take. If you will take Hood's Sarsaparilla, the great constitutional remedy, which thoroughly purifies, enriches and vitalizes the blood, you may expect to be completely and permanently cured. The good blood which Hood's Sarsaparilla makes, reaching the delicate passages of the mucous membrane, soothes and rebuilds the tissues and ultimately cures all symptoms of catarrh.

T. L. Day, Swing & Co., of Ridgely, one of the largest packing firms on the Peninsula, sold to a Chicago firm last week 20,000 cases of tomatoes, packed in gallon cans. This is probably the largest single sale of canned goods ever made in the State.

George Harris, colored, of Rowland, Md., was arrested by the police of another was a school crime. We have come to see that the child's progress is not wholly dependent upon the expenditure in drill, but is partly the result of natural physical growth. When the brain is sufficiently mature, those who are great difficulty are easily mastered. Thus more time is obtained to interest the child in the true and the beautiful through literature and in noble ideas through history.

To some extent we are recognizing that conditions favorable to personal growth with adults are also conditions of growth for children. We demand for ourselves freedom in the choice of means to accomplish our ends; this we now accord the child as far as possible. The old attitude was one of passivity; receptivity—we now wish it to be one of activity self-directed as far as possible.

Chamberlain's Cough Remedy is now our sole reliance. It seems to dissolve the tough mucus and by giving frequent doses when the croupy symptoms appear we have found that the dreaded croup is cured before it gets settled. There is no danger in giving this remedy for it contains no opium or other injurious drug and may be given as confidently to a babe as to an adult. For sale by R. K. Truitt & Sons.

MATTERS IN MARYLAND.

Centerville, Nov. 1.—Howard E. Perry was convicted today of selling whiskey in Queenstown district and fined $200 and costs and sentenced to 40 days in jail. Perry has promised not to engage in this illegal business in the future.

Baltimore, Nov. 12.—The 21 farmers' clubs of Maryland, representing nearly all the counties in the State, organized a central body at a meeting today at Johns Hopkins university. The clubs of Cecil, Harford, Carroll and Baltimore counties are leaders in the project of thus bringing the farmers together for mutual benefit.

Cumberland, Md., Nov. 9.—Alexander McLeod, aged 60, constable and engineer at Lonaconing, was found dead in Jackson Run, at Lonaconing, yesterday, with his mouth in a pool of water five inches deep. It is believed he stumbled over a stone wall, his head striking a rock in the fall, and he was drowned while in a stunned condition.

Cumberland, Md., Nov. 10.—The Cumberland city council has passed an ordinance exempting from taxation for ten years the Klots Throwing company of New Jersey, which intends to establish a large silk spinning plant here. A site has been selected, and it is expected work will soon begin on the main building.

Baltimore, Nov. 9.—Jacob Engel was sentenced yesterday to two months in the penitentiary. Engel was charged with the murder of Joseph Rooks, who died on April 15 from a wound inflicted with a knife. The case was considered an unusual one. Engel was arrested at the time and given four months in jail by a police justice. After the death of Rooks Engel was indicted for murder.

Baltimore, Nov. 9.—Albert Kaufman, 12 years old, yesterday in some manner obtained possession of a letter containing checks amounting to $1,462 addressed to the Fourth National bank, Philadelphia. The employee of the Second National bank of this city, who sealed the posted letter, is positive that he placed it in a letter box. The clerk, who had destroyed the envelope and had distributed several of the checks among his friends, is being held pending an investigation.

Ellicott City, Nov. 13.—James Fleher, colored, known throughout Howard county as a thresherman, was seriously injured today by the accidental discharge of a shotgun. He was riding in a buggy, with the gun, when it slipped and, falling on the hammer, was discharged. The load took effect under his arm, producing a frightful wound, from which he nearly bled to death. He was taken to a Baltimore hospital. Fleher lives near Columbia.

Cumberland, Md., Nov. 10.—Harrison Foreman and Nathaniel Rice were buried alive in the new South Cumberland sewer, 13 feet deep, on Arch street, yesterday. The bodies have been recovered, frightfully mangled. Foreman was caught in a running position as he endeavored to escape. The ditch broke ahead of him as well as behind him. Rice was caught with his pick in his hand, stooping over.

Baltimore, Nov. 14.—Robert W. Burnside, colored, was sentenced to 18 months' imprisonment yesterday for miscegenation. Burnside secured a marriage license for his marriage to Lena Holtgreve, a young white girl, the daughter of his employer. He swore that she was also colored, and the couple were married on July 18 by a colored minister. They were subsequently arrested and brought to this city. The young lady claimed that she was frightened into marrying her dusky husband.

Berwyn, Nov. 12.—The father of Edward Howard, a young man from Alexandria, Va., whose dead body was found in front of the residence of Mr. A. B. Smith, in this place, on the morning of Oct. 1 last with a pistol wound in his head, is apparently loath to accept the conclusion reached by the jury of inquest that his son committed suicide. Mr. Howard, it is said, still clings to the theory that his son was foully dealt with. It is stated that he has secured the service of a prominent detective who is now working on the case, and that he has a clew which may lead to sensational developments.

Cambridge, Nov. 12.—Great quantities of rock fish have recently been taken in the Choptank river. Nets have with great difficulty held the masses of fish that each night pour into the pounds. Nets in the best locations are now taking in from two to four thousand per night, and the bank accounts of the operators are growing rapidly. The fish fetch in Baltimore—large, 12 cents; small, 7 to 10 cents. Throughout the late summer the fish were affording good rod fishing, but did not begin to form in schools until late in October about which time the weirs and nets began to fill up.

Baltimore, Nov. 14.—It was announced yesterday that the Baltimore Trust and Guaranty company had practically completed arrangements for financing a deal involving upwards of $11,000,000 of stocks and bonds. A company has been formed, it is stated, which will shortly be incorporated under the name of the American Lead and Baryta company. This company will purchase 33,100 acres of land in Washington county, Missouri, about 65 miles southwest of St. Louis, said to contain valuable mineral deposits. A new town will be laid out, and the company expects to reap rich returns from the sale of building lots. Already some of the mineral deposits have been developed.

Elkton, Nov. 9.—The postoffice at Rising Sun, Cecil county, Samuel Hambleton, postmaster, was entered by burglars at an early hour this morning and the safe in the office, containing money and stamps, was blown open. In the safe was $480 in money and stamps, which the burglars secured. The office was robbed several months ago of more than $500 in stamps and money. The report of the explosion aroused those residing in the vicinity of the office, some of whom witnessed the departure of the men, there being five in the party. Entrance to the building was gained by forcing open the front door. A number of tools were secured from the building of J. S. Pogue & Sons and the blacksmith shop of William McDougal.

SUPERSTITIOUS ISLANDERS.

Would Not Let Body of Suicide Rest in Their Soil.

Crisfield, Md., Nov. 9.—The body of Robert Alexander of Tangier Island, who on Sunday last committed suicide, was interred here yesterday, after his friends had almost abandoned hope of his remains finding a resting place.

Residents of Tangier Island are superstitious fishermen, and their doings are ruled by their church. The burying of a suicide on the island is contrary to their laws, and when Alexander died residents notified his relatives that he could not be buried on the island.

Accordingly, his body was taken to Taylor's Island, but owing to hatred existing between fishermen of the islands the body was not allowed to be carried ashore, and the funeral party was driven back to the boats by a band of fishermen armed with shotguns. Despairing of finding a burial place for the dead man, his friends considered burying his remains in the waters of the Chesapeake. This was found to be contrary to their church customs, and the remains were brought here by boat, entailing a two days' voyage.

Sussex Goes Democratic.

Sussex county, Del., has been carried by the Democrats with an average majority of 340, because of the anti-Addicks dissension, although the McKinley electors have carried the county by an average majority of 700. For the first time in years a Democratic Levy Court is elected, Alfred H. King, for Broadkill hundred, and William P. Nichols, for Lewes and Rehoboth hundred, being the only Republican commissioners elected.

The official count gives the Democrats one additional Representative, William J. West of Broad Creek hundred winning by a plurality of five.

The Sussex Assembly seem as determined by the canvass five: Senators—Charles Wright, D, for Second district; Isaiah J. Brauser, U. R, for Fourth district (re elected). Representatives—George B. Clendaniel, U. R, Second; Walter M. Hearn, D, Third; William J. West, D, Fourth; David W. Ralph, D, Fifth; Shadrach Short, U. R, Fifth; David J. Long, U. R, Seventh; Harry S. Pretymann, U. R, Eighth; Eli Peppe, D, Ninth; Ebenezer Wise Warren, D, Tenth. Total—Democrats, six; Union Republicans, six.

Political.

Kent News (Dem), Chestertown: "One of the Eastern Shore's most brilliant Congressional representatives—Joshua W. Miles—was sacrificed to the folly of '96. Now the eloquent and able Ned Brown and Worcester's favorite, Moore both go down in a wreck five times greater."

MR. JACKSON'S SUCCESS.

Salisbury Courier (Rep.), Hon. William H. Jackson's success is gratifying to both Republicans and Democrats, who have joined in celebrating his victory. Mr. Jackson probably has the regard of more of his fellow-citizens than has any other resident of Wicomico county, with the possible exception of his brother, the ex-Governor, who occupies a place alongside his in the hearts of their neighbors. We feel assured that the voters of the district will never regret having chosen Mr. Jackson to represent them in Congress. He is the foremost business man in our community and has done more to make Salisbury what it is than any other dozen men. He is worthily honored by a grateful constituency.

Agricultural College.

College Park, Md., Nov. 11.—President Richard W. Silvester, secretary and treasurer, Dr. Joseph E. Owens, of the Maryland Agricultural College, and Director Harry J. Patterson, of the Agricultural Experiment Station represented this institution at the annual meeting of the officers of the agricultural colleges and experiment stations held at Hartford, Conn., last Tuesday.

Mr. Ridgely's Opinion.

HENRY RIDGELY, JR., Atty at Law, P. O. B. 17, Dover, Delaware. Phone 89. Dover, Del., Nov. 8th, 1900.

Mr. Herbert N. Fell, General Agent, The Mutual Life Ins. Co. of N. Y.

Dear Sir:—I herewith enclose the several papers duly executed, sent me to enable the collection of the policy of insurance of my late Father, Edward Ridgely, in your Co., together with the certificate of appointment of myself as Admr. of his estate, and also my receipt as such Admr. for the present value of said policy. Kindly attend to the collection and remit to me when secured.

I have not had an opportunity of calculating the interest as you suggest, but will do so when opportunity offers. In the meantime I have not the slightest hesitancy in stating that I believe your Company has demonstrated in the present matter that it is equal, if not superior to any other Company of which I have knowledge, so far as the profit and interest of the insured is concerned. Thanking you for your uniform courtesy in this matter, both to myself and my Father, I am, Yours truly, HENRY RIDGELY, JR.

The uppermost idea in your mind when about to supply yourselves with suitable clothing for Fall and Winter wear, is to get it good and serviceable at the very lowest price. Our clothes are made up from goods first tried and tested for strength, color, and appearance. No clothes fit as well as ours, and none compare with them in shapeliness, nor wear so well. ## MR. H. W. ANDERSON.

Death Succeds An Illness of Twelve Months Duration.

After an illness of more than twelve months Mr. Henry Wesley Anderson died last Monday night at his home in Rockwalking four miles from Salisbury.

Funeral services were held over the remains at 10 o'clock Wednesday morning at the home of the deceased. The body was then borne to the old Anderson burial grounds in Trappe district on the opposite side of the river. Messrs. Wm. L. Laws, E. Stanley Toadvin, L. J. Gale, Wm. S. Moore, C. C. Parker and C. W. Layfield, old time friends of the dead man, were the pall-bearers, and several hundred friends and neighbors congregated to pay a last tribute of respect and esteem.

Mr. Anderson was born in October 1837. His father, the late Isaac Anderson, was in his day an extensive landowner and farmer. When the son grew to manhood he became a landowner, also, and engaged, besides, in vessel interests. Early in life he developed a strong aptitude for politics. A hereditary whig he became, at the breaking out of the Civil War, an ardent and active democrat, and died an admiring follower of Mr. Wm. Jennings Bryan. Indeed it might be truthfully said that he was the "original Bryan man" in Wicomico.

Mr. Anderson was one of the Commissioners of the County when the present stately Court House was built in 1877, and was one of the building committee. In 1886 he represented the democratic party in the Maryland house of delegates, and in 1894 was chief clerk of the Senate Folding Committee. At the time of his death he was a member of the County democratic Central Committee, serving with Messrs. E. E. Jackson and Wm. L. Laws.

In early manhood Mr. Anderson married a Miss Price. Mrs. Frank Cooper, of Virginia, and Mr. H. B. Anderson of this county, survive of this union. Some years after his first wife's death he married the daughter of Wm. Harris, who with five children, survives.

Mr. Anderson's estate consists of several hundred acres of fine farming land on the Wicomico river in Salisbury district, and a lot of livestock and other personal property.

VIRGINIA CONFERENCE.

Report Of Secretary Of Twentieth Century Fund.

The Virginia Methodist Episcopal Conference, South, which convened in Norfolk Tuesday November 13th., finished its labors last Thursday night.

Rev. Dr. A. C. Cooke Smith, president of the board of education, read a highly interesting report, showing that upward of $74,000 of the proposed $100,000 from the Virginia Conference for the twentieth century thankoffering educational fund was raised during the past year, and a resolution was proposed authorizing the continuance of the collection during the coming year till the full amount is raised.

Rev. James Cannon, Jr., secretary of the board, read a detailed report of the finances of the board, which showed that 200 preachers have subscribed $14,000 and 3,400 laymen have subscribed about $61,000 to the twentieth century thankoffering educational fund, and that 75 preachers of the conference and 88,000 laymen of the church have not subscribed anything. The preachers who have subscribed gave an average of $70 each, and the laymen who have subscribed have given an average of $11 each.

Rev. W. E. Judkins was continued as presiding Elder of Norfolk district. Rev. W. F. Green was sent to Salisbury. Rev. Reginald H. Potts' time limit having expired, he goes to Suffolk; Rev. J. E. Brooks will go to Wicomico Circuit; Rev. J. H. Adams, will be presiding Elder of Rappahannock district. Rev. J. D. Hank is presiding Elder of Charlottesville district. Rev. James Cannon was re-elected President of the Blackstone Female Institute.

A Good Performance.

The Gus Sun Minstrels appeared at Uiman's Opera House Wednesday night and played to a large audience. The first part was a good one, especially the singing, while the specialties were above the average. They travel in their own car and have an exceedingly good band. The Cuban tenor singer, basso Chipman, two female impersonators and the negro sketch team were the features. The musical team also doing well. Altogether it was a very creditable performance and no doubt will draw a large crowd when they again visit Salisbury.

CHURCH NOTICES.

Division Street Baptist Church Dedicated.

The dedication of Division Street Baptist Church last Sunday was a grand success, large congregations being present both at the morning and the evening service. Rev. Dr. Rowland of Philadelphia, who is connected with the American Baptist Publication Society, was present and preached morning and evening.

At the close of the morning sermon Dr. Rowland stated that but $600 debt remained on the church, and that the pastor would be much pleased if the congregation would contribute half of that amount. In a very short time over $800 was pledged, and at night this amount was considerably increased. In the afternoon addresses were made by Rev. F. A. Clark, Rev. S. J. Smith and Rev. C. W. Prettyman. Palms and plants adorned the pulpit and altar of the church, and special music was furnished by the choir of Trinity M. E. Church South, assisted by Mrs. Spring.

Interesting services have been held every evening during the past week, conducted by able men. Wednesday evening Rev. Dr. Flippo delivered a lecture on "Ice in the Pulpit, and Who put it There."

At the Fourth Quarterly Conference of Trinity M. E. Church, South, the following resolutions were unanimously adopted:

Whereas, It became necessary by the law of limitation for our Pastor, Rev. R. H. Potts, to be removed to another field of labor at the approaching session of our Annual Conference.

Resolved, That we wish to record our appreciation of Bro. Potts and of his services among us. His demeanor in our midst has ever been that of the cultivated christian gentleman; his uplifting and elevating pulpit work has been acceptable to all our people and an inspiration to a higher life. As pastor he excels. He is held in high esteem both in and out of the church.

Resolved, That to any church fortunate enough to secure him as its pastor, we recommend him in love, and pray that God may continue to own his work and to use him for His Glory for many, many years.

Resolved, That we part with him and his family with genuine sorrow and wish for them Heaven's richest blessings.

Thanksgiving services will be held in Trinity M. E. Church, South, Thanksgiving morning, November 30th. Dr. S. J. Smith of the Methodist Protestant Church will preach the sermon. The congregations of the Presbyterian and Division Street Baptist Churches and the three Methodist churches will unite in these services, and the collection taken will be equally divided among those churches for charitable purposes.

Rev. C. W. Prettyman will assist in the re-opening services of Habnab M. E. Church Sunday. An effort will be made to lift the heavy debt that has rested on this church for a long time. Rev. G. W. Wilcox will fill Mr. Prettyman's pulpit at Asbury Church Sunday.

The usual Thanksgiving services will be held at St. Peter's Protestant Episcopal Church Thanksgiving Day.

Another Fire at Delmar.

The residence of Geo. W. Landon of Delmar was destroyed by fire Friday evening, about 6 o'clock. The fire originated in the rear part of the building, and is supposed to have been caused by a defective flue. No furniture was saved, except a piano and a sideboard. The building was owned by Mr. T. A. Vessey, proprietor of the hotel, and stood a few feet from where his stable was burned a few days before.

The loss is estimated at from $2,500 to $3,000; insurance on building, $1,100; furniture partially insured.

The dwellings of Mr. Peter Vincent and Mrs. Adella Vincent, between which the burned building stood, together with the furniture, were damaged. The losses in these cases were made good by insurance.

Albino Mice.

Mr. Herbert Lowe exhibited at the ADVERTISER office last Saturday four pure albino mice which were caught in the barn on the farm of his father, Mr. John S. Lowe, of Spring Hill. There were five of the family when they were discovered, but one was so badly injured in catching it, that it afterward died. Their milk white coats and pink eyes make the little freaks look very pretty. Though a freak of nature, albinism tends to become hereditary, not so strongly, however, in the human species as some kind of animals, as for instance mice and rabbits.

IDEAL SCHOOL OF TO-DAY.

Prof. Van Sickle of Baltimore Talks on This Vital Subject.

Professor Van Sickle, the new Superintendent of Public Instruction of Baltimore, delivered an address recently on the subject of education before the Arundel Club. In the course of his remarks Professor Van Sickle said:

In devising its education scheme it has been the purpose of every people, from primitive races to those most highly developed, to preserve through the training of the children and to transmit to future ages the best elements of its civilization. This is the great problem in the United States today. Under social and industrial conditions prevailing before the advent of the factory system and the crowding of the population into the cities education was much more a function of the home than it can be at the present time. More and more schools are relied upon to do what the home can no longer do.

It is a good sign of the times that parents care not only for what lessons the child is learning, but what life he is living in school. Our ideal school is an extension of the home, and while it continues to give sound training in the traditional three R's, it also provides manual activities to replace those that once formed so valuable a part of the home education. The kindergarten utilizes the play instinct for educational ends and trains through interesting occupations to habits of neatness, order, kindness and industry. The physical well-being of the child is carefully considered, much more attention being paid to the construction of schoolhouses than was formerly the case. It is thought essential that there should be ample playground; that the rooms should be large enough to allow free movement; careful attention is paid to lighting and ventilation. There is in our ideal school a room devoted especially to manual training, and in all its departments the school aims to train the mind through the eye and the hand.

Some changes in American education in the past 25 years are so fundamental as to merit notice. The most marked change of all, perhaps has been in the matter of home and school discipline. Saracasm, the harsh construction of the childish motive, and the appeal to physical pain as a means of producing quiet and intellectual activity have wellnigh disappeared. Fear, the incentive once relied upon in the church, and copied in the home and school, has given place to kindness, sympathy and love. Since in this country we have come to think that government is of the people, for the people and by the people, we have come to think that the government of the child should be such as will fit it to be self governing, and thus to take part in such a Government by the people.

Another tendency of great significance in modern education is that of giving children things to do that they can do well instead of things that we know they cannot do well. When the child is sure of himself nervousness disappears. His attitude is eager, alert, cheerful, triumphant. We have seen the joy that comes through achievement and the satisfaction that comes from service. Formerly for one child to help another was a school crime. We have come to see that the child's progress is not wholly dependent upon the time spent in drill, but is partly the result of natural physical growth. When the brain is sufficiently mature, those parts of the curriculum which once gave great difficulty are easily mastered. Thus more time is obtained to interest the child in the true and the beautiful through literature and in noble ideals through history.

To some extent we are recognizing that conditions favorable to personal growth with adults are also conditions of growth for children. We demand for ourselves freedom in the choice of means to accomplish our ends; this we now accord the child as far as possible. The old attitude was one of passivity—receptivity—we now wish it to be one of activity self-directed as far as possible.

The satisfactory scholastic preparation given by the high school to those intending to teach is noted, but attention is called to the great need for an opportunity to review these subjects from the teaching side with the needs of the child in view—in short for a training school for teachers. Some of the training which comes from experience in the schoolroom might be gotten much more quickly and with less harm to the children from a training school for teachers.

The School Board of Baltimore has adopted a uniform plan for two school sessions, to take effect next September.

The announcement of the intention of Dr. Daniel C. Gilman, president of Johns Hopkins University, Baltimore, to retire at the close of the present scholastic year has been received with regret by the friends of the University. His successor will not be named for the present.

SALE OF "OLD HOSS."

Adams Express Company Will Dispose of Accumulation of Unclaimed Packages.

On Saturday afternoon and evening December 8th., the Adams Express Company will auction off an accumulated assortment of unclaimed packages. The sale will begin in Uiman's little opera house at 2 o'clock in the afternoon of the day above mentioned and continue until the last article is disposed of. The collection will come from all the express offices on the lower peninsula, and the sale will be made without reserve. Each package will be offered separately, and of course the prospective purchaser as well as the auctioneer will have no idea of the contents until the package is opened after the sale. Purchasers will not be permitted to open their packages in the sale room, but the Mayor and Council have not as yet passed an ordinance prohibiting such a thing on the streets. As each purchaser's attitude will be similar to that of the boy who buys a prize box at a country fair, spectators may prepare to be amused by the scenes which will occur on the streets in the vicinity of the auction room.

These auctions are of common occurrence in the cities and large towns, where, in "Express" circles they are called in the vernacular, "The Sale of Old Hoss," but this is the first one in the history of the express business ever held on the Peninsula south of Wilmington—another evidence of Salisbury's growing importance as a centre of population and commerce.

It sometimes happens that these sealed packages contain valuable articles of jewelry, time-pieces, fire arms, ladies' toilet articles, fine linen handkerchiefs, pocket-knives and other articles of value. They almost invariably sell for small sums. The seductive element of chance, so fascinating to the average citizen, naturally enters very largely into the result of each purchase of "Old Hoss."

Wellington's Patronage.

Washington, Nov., 20.—The Administration has already taken steps to reduce Senator Wellington's patronage. Instead of 16 he will have only 6 places in the census office, 10 of his appointments being marked to go when the temporary clerks leave.

By this process Senator McComas is a gainer, and he will now control 26 places in the census office, Wellington's 10 being transferred.

All the places have been filled. Other reductions in Mr. Wellington's patronage will take place, it is predicted, from time to time for the benefit of Senator McComas and the Republican Representatives from Maryland.

MISS ELLIS' TRAVELS.

Her Trip Abroad Made Interesting to Others by Being Well Told.

Sudlersville, Md., Nov., 21, 1900. The morning of disembarkation came, Tuesday July 17 and all were up bright and early almost with the sun which is a very early riser in these latitudes in summer.

As we went on deck and looked about us we saw with delight that we, during the night, had passed some historic spots, one of them being the Lizard—that majestic rock, which marks the division line between the Bay of Penseance from which the pirates used to come and the English Channel. Star Point, Portland Bill, St. Alban's Head had been passed and England in all her beauty lies before us; on our left, we see the chalky cliffs rising abruptly from the water's edge and again when they are passed we discern the beautiful fields, villages and majestic country places. Passing from the English Channel into Alum Bay, we passed, on the starboard side, the needles, the sharpened point of the Isle of Wight.

Between the lovely green shores and wooded slopes of this, one of the fairest garden spots in the world, and the mainland of England are spread out the sparkling expanse of The Solent, famous in history and poetry for centuries. At 8 a. m., the sea-pilot came on board and into his hands the Captain committed the ship, and at the mouth of the Solent the harbor pilot met us. The sea-pilot brought us some London papers and from these we learned that Germany only had declared war against China, so our fears of the afternoon previous were allayed. One can imagine with what joy we received the papers if he remembers that for twelve days we had not heard one word from the outside world, we knew not what calamities had befallen the land of our birth; our world for the time had been the good ship "Rhein" and her cargo of precious souls. Not even a friendly sail had greeted us until we were eight days from Baltimore.

But the little excitement caused by the papers quickly passed and we turned to the scenes around us. Upon entering the historic waters of The Solent one of the most magnificent marine pictures nature ever painted was before us. Upon the right in pastoral quietude and beauty lay the Isle of Wight, upon the hills of which is "Osborne House," her majesty's palatial country home, the towers of which may be seen from the deck of the steam-ship. Before it is the little seaport town of Cowes, which nestles close to the water's edge, its residential sections stretching out on either side like the wings of some great white bird.

The Saving of Money

by the use of Royal

Baking Powder is considerable. Royal is economical, because it possesses more leavening power and goes further.

Royal saves also because it always makes fine, light, sweet food; never wastes good flour; butter and eggs.

More important still is the saving in health. Royal Baking Powder adds anti-dyspeptic qualities to the food.

There is no baking powder so economical in practical use, no matter how little others may cost, as the Royal Imitation baking powders almost invariably contain alum. Alum makes the food unwholesome.

Women as Well as Men

SUNNY WOMEN.

Who has not known the woman whose disposition is described by that one word "sunny"? There's always a laugh lurking on her lips. Her cheeks are ever ready to dimple in smiles. Her household influence is as brightening and stimulating as the sunshine. Nothing can be crueller than to have this sunshine blotted out by disease. But this is a common cruelty. The young wife who was the sunshine of the home becomes its shadow. Every young wife should know the value of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription in the protection and preservation of the health. It promotes regularity, dries the drains which enfeeble body and mind, and cures inflammation, ulceration and female weakness. It nourishes the nervous system and gives to the body the balance and buoyancy of perfect health. It is a strictly temperance medicine.

"I can say that your medicine cured me," writes Mrs. Maud Pearce of Mountville, Fairfield Co., Ohio. "I had suffered about twelve years from female weakness and I had almost given up, thinking there was no cure for me. Then I heard about Dr. Pierce's medicine and thought I would try it, and can say that seven bottles of your 'Favorite Prescription' made me well. I am now able to do my own housework. I took about twelve bottles in all of Dr. Pierce's medicines. Took some of the 'Golden Medical Discovery,' 'Favorite Prescription' and some of the 'Pleasant Pellets.'"

Dr. Pierce's Pellets cure constipation.

SEVENTY THOUSAND MEN

Will Soon Be Under Gen. MacArthur in the Philippines.

TO PUSH THE CAMPAIGN RAPIDLY.

He Desires to Make the Most Efficient Use of the Volunteers Before Their Term of Service Expires in June. Favors an Army of 75,000.

Manila, Nov. 22.—Gen. MacArthur was asked yesterday whether the result of the presidential election in the United States was in any way responsible for the orders to push operations against the Filipinos. He replied that the result of the election was merely coincident with other features of the situation. He added that return of the soldiers and marines from China, with the recruits who had arrived recently, would increase the number of troops to 70,000 men. The enlargement of the forces, the ending of the rainy season, better roads, improved transportation and the desire to make the most efficient use of the volunteers before their term of service expires, in June, are all contributory to the most active campaign. Already Gen. MacArthur has perfected arrangements for sending a strong force, under Gen. Macabulos, the former Filipino chief, after Aguinaldo, who is supposed to be in northern Luzon.

Concerning the placing of 35,000 volunteers, Gen. MacArthur said he favors the establishment of a standing army of 75,000 men and authorizing the president to increase it to 100,000 men. The general also said he was enlarging the force in Gen. Young's district to nearly 7,000 men, that heavy reinforcements were being sent to Gen. Hughes, in the island of Panay, that more troops had been ordered to southern Luzon and that various column movements had been planned.

The soldiers and marines who have returned from China are selling quantities of curios looted from the residences of the nobility or wealthy persons at Peking and Tien Tsin. Many of them are valuable and ridiculously cheap, and a number of presents of such loot have been mailed to the United States for Christmas presents.

DEATH OF CHARLES H. HOYT.

The Well Known Playwright a Victim of Paralysis.

Charlestown, N. H., Nov. 21.—Charles H. Hoyt, the well known playwright, died at his residence here last night of paralysis, from which he had been suffering for several months past. Ever since his return to Charlestown, after his release from a private asylum in

THE LATE CHARLES H. HOYT. Hartford by order of the court early in August, it had been known by his attendants and nearest friends that his condition was serious, and that there was little or no chance for his recovery.

Brown's Stealings $191,000. Newport, Ky., Nov. 20.—The experts who have been working with receiver Tucker on the books of the German National bank place the shortage of cashier and individual bookkeeper, at $191,000. According to reports from those who were with Brown when he left last Tuesday night he had less than $500 with him. Brown's salary was only $1,500 per year. Cases are now cited where he spent more than that amount in one day. His bond was for $10,000, and it is good as far as it goes.

Robbed and Cremated in Their Home. Charlotte, N. C., Nov. 22.—Two old ladies, Violet J. Colley, aged 75, and her niece, Jane Cath Colley, who lived alone in a house on Main thoroughfare, five miles from Charlotte, were on Tuesday night murdered, robbed and their dead bodies burned. The old ladies were generally reported to be wealthy. It is known that they had a retired life for years and seldom ventured away from home, not even to the city, except when business compelled a visit.

Accident to Lord Roberts. London, Nov. 22.—A Pretoria dispatch says: Lord Roberts met with an accident on Sunday last while he was riding. His horse fell with him, and he was shaken and bruised, but no limbs were broken. As he has since sent dispatches to the war office it is believed that he is performing his usual duties, especially as he has not mentioned the accident.

A Hitch in Negotiations. Peking, via Shanghai, Nov. 22.—The meeting of the foreign envoys on Monday unexpectedly developed a point of difference, which brought the negotiations to a temporary standstill. The matter will be referred to the home governments. The conference adjourned without fixing a date for reassembling.

Perry Belmont Angry. New York, Nov. 22.—When Richard Croker left for England, among the gifts that went with him was a basket of flowers sent by the board of governors of the Democratic club. Perry Belmont, one of the board of governors, has resigned because of the unauthorized use of his name.

FRENCH DISAPPOINTED.

President Kruger Fails to Arrive For the Marseilles Reception.

CROWDS WAITED MANY HOURS.

Only 30,000 People Gathered Along the Line of March, Owing to the Uncertainty of Kruger's Arrival. No Demonstrations Against British.

Marseilles, Nov. 22.—A blunder in the calculations of the time the Gelderland would require between Port Said and Marseilles resulted in the flailing out yesterday of the intended demonstration and imperilled the success of the reception to President Kruger, of the Transvaal republic. The French reception committee did not take into account the gale that is sweeping the Mediterranean and the low speed of the Gelderland, but allowed all their arrangements to stand.

The Boer delegates, victims of the organizing committee, awaited expectantly at their hotel from early morning until the afternoon the arrival of the cruiser. For several hours the carriage intended for Mr. Kruger remained at the entrance of the hotel, the horses, which were decorated with rosettes of Boer colors, pawing the ground impatiently until the equipage was dismounted. Various delegations and societies that had assembled at the leading stage remained through heavy showers until they realized, in the signaling of the Gelderland, that their presence was futile. Then they disbanded.

The fiasco was unfortunate because thousands among yesterday's concourse will shrink from the possibility of losing another morning. Yesterday's crowds were for the greater part made up of workmen and shopkeepers, who lost money by attending the gathering, and who are not likely to repeat the experiment.

Bad weather and the element of uncertainty as to the time of Mr. Kruger's landing kept many thousands even yesterday from the route. Thirty thousand would be a generous estimate of the crowd, which was massed thickly at several points, while only sparse assemblies were to be seen elsewhere. The French and the Boer delegates were all intensely disappointed, especially as up to a late hour no news had been received of the Gelderland's entry into the harbor. No importance is attached to the report of an injury to her machinery, the theory being that she is merely going slowly in consequence of the heavy sea, which is chiefly responsible for the delay.

An amusing statement appeared in a local paper yesterday afternoon in which an alleged rumor was published to the effect that the delay was due to the capture of the Gelderland on the high seas by a British squadron or to deliberate damage to her machinery by a mercenary. Naturally these statements only provoked the laughter of those who read them.

The attitude of yesterday's concourse, while unanimously favorable to Mr. Kruger and the Boers, was nevertheless quite free from anything of enfeeblis to the British, which tended to enliven the absurdity of a noisy promenade along the principal boulevards last evening by a score of anti-British youths, whose efforts led to no disorder whatever.

New Warning Signals For Sailors.

Washington, Nov. 22.—The weather bureau experiments with signal lights for warning sailormen far out to sea of impending storms have been concluded, and American lamps fitted with pressed glass lenses have been decided on in preference to the French make, which cost five times as much. A system of these beacon lamps soon will be established along the Atlantic coast and great lakes in addition to the signal service now in operation in many ports. The new method of signaling from the lofty steel towers will far surpass all that has heretofore been done. Each beacon will be visible about 12 miles in any direction, and the lights from 108 of them, which is the proposed number, will give a continuous series of warnings visible for nearly 2,500 miles along the sea coast.

In the Hands of a Receiver.

Pateron, N. J., Nov. 22.—James S. Read, as receiver, took charge of the mill of the Pioneer Silk company yesterday. He held a consultation with the Ryle Brothers, proprietors, and discussed the financial affairs of the company. The surplus, it is expected, will enable the company to meet all its obligations. Application will be made to the supreme court of Pennsylvania for the appointment of Mr. Read as receiver for the business at Allentown. There is reason to believe that the company will be able to resume business.

Pacific Mail's New President.

New York, Nov. 22.—The board of directors of the Pacific Mail Steamship company held a meeting yesterday, at which Charles H. Tweed, James Speyer and Ogden Mills were elected directors in place of George J. Gould, Samuel Thomas and Henry Hart, resigned. Mr. Tweed was elected president of the company. Mr. Schwerin remains vice president and general manager of the company, with headquarters in San Francisco.

The Vote of Nebraska.

Lincoln, Neb., Nov. 22.—The official count for Nebraska, partially finished yesterday, shows that the total vote of the state was 21,835. Of these McKinley received 12,135; Bryan, 11,403. The count on the other presidential candidates is not complete. For governor Deltrich, Republican, has 113,879; Poynter, fusion, 113,915; Deltrich is the lowest man on the Republican state ticket.

The Peacemaker Killed.

Columbus, Ga., Nov. 22.—Mitchell Taylor and Charlie Comer, both negroes, fought a terrible duel with pistols near here yesterday afternoon. The cause was $2.15 due on a watch by Comer to Taylor. Comer was killed and Taylor was badly wounded. During the fusillade Taylor's sister ran between the men as a peacemaker, and was shot through the head by Taylor. She died in a few minutes.

ANOTHER AMERICAN DUCHESS.

Duke of Manchester Wants No Dowry With His Bride.

London, Nov. 20.—An inspection of the register of the Marylebone parish church shows that the reported marriage of the Duke of Manchester to Miss Helene Zimmerman, daughter of the Cincinnati multi-millionaire, is true. The ceremony occurred last Wednesday afternoon. According to

DUKE OF MANCHESTER.

The Daily Mail the marriage was the outcome of a long and romantic attachment. The couple will sail for New York next Saturday. The duke wishes it to be known that he married for love. He has not asked and does not hope for a dowry with the lady. The duke is a bankrupt, and his father-in-law is worth many millions.

BIG REDUCTION IN TAXES.

Republican Leaders Decide to Take On Thirty Millions a Year.

Washington, Nov. 22.—The Republican members of the ways and means committee made such progress yesterday with the bill to amend the war revenue law that it is expected the first draft will be completed tonight. The committee decided yesterday to make the bill for a reduction of $30,000,000 a year. This is the amount suggested by Secretary Gage, and it is understood, meets with the views of the president. In fact, the members of the ways and means committee, who saw the president Tuesday evening, say that before Secretary Gage appeared before the committee the whole matter had been carefully considered by the president and the secretary.

Bank Robbers Held Citizens at Bay.

Delaware, O., Nov. 21.—A dozen professional bank robbers made a desperate attempt to secure the contents of the money vault of Sperry & Warren's Deposit bank, at Ashley, ten miles north of here, before daylight yesterday. While nine stood on guard holding the citizens at bay with their guns, three operated the dynamite under the deposit vault of the brick building. The bank's property is worth $50,000, and there was $15,000 in cash deposit on hand. The first dynamite explosion aroused citizens, but some of the robbers kept them at bay while others continued at work. After doing $25,000 damage by dynamite, without breaking the safe, the robbers left, firing as they went to prevent pursuit.

Rev. Mr. Stuart Says "Persecution."

Wilkesbarre, Pa., Nov. 22.—Rev. D. E. Stuart, charged with performing a criminal abortion and against whom a warrant has been issued for wife murder, was closeted nearly all yesterday with his counsel, and the expected hearing was not held yesterday. His counsel will today take Stuart before one of the court judges for a habeas corpus hearing. The dead woman's parents, it is now said, are the real prosecutors. Stuart claims the entire affair is a malicious persecution, and he feels confident of acquittal.

Threatened Cabinet Crisis in Japan.

London, Nov. 22.—"The overthrow of Marquis Ito's cabinet," says the Yokohama correspondent of The Daily Mail, "is threatened. Already Viscount Katsura, minister for war, has resigned in consequence of a scandal affecting Hoshi Toru, minister of communications, who is accused of accepting large bribes and will probably be arrested. The political opponents of the accused minister denounce him as a 'Tammanist,' probably because he was formerly minister to the United States."

Three Killed by Mine Cars.

Birmingham, Ala., Nov. 22.—A string of empty tram cars broke loose and ran away in the Sloss ore mines of the Sloss Sheffield Steel and Iron company, near Bessemer, yesterday. Nape Thompson, the superintendent, was run over and instantly killed. Charles Kelly and Andrew Hart, who were working near by, were struck by two cars which jumped the track and crashed them to death against the wall of the mine.

More Alleged Hoodlums in Cleveland.

Cleveland, Nov. 22.—A sensational affidavit, made by Charles W. Lapp, a member of the city council, was made public yesterday. Councilman Lapp swears that Councilman White told him that "the gang" (meaning certain members of the council) received $5,000 for their votes on the police alarm contract, and intimated that $5,000 more was to be paid for their votes on a contract for the new city fire alarm system.

River Engineers Want Recognition.

Pittsburg, Nov. 22.—The marine engineers' strike is still on. The combine notified the engineers' association that the scale of wages would be conceded, but recognition of the association would not be considered. The men say their union must be recognized before they will take any coal down the river.

Killed by Building Collapse.

Pateron, N. J., Nov. 22.—During a heavy gale yesterday afternoon five lives were lost in the course of construction at Haledon, near this city, were blown down. One man was killed and three injured. The dead man was James Spear, 45 years old, of Pateron.

REAPPORTIONMENT UNDER THE NEW CENSUS.

By the Constitution of Maryland it is made the duty of the Governor of the State immediately after the publication of the new census to rearrange the representation of the counties in the House of Delegates according to their population and to declare the adjustment by proclamation. The announcement of the population of the counties is therefore awaited with considerable interest. It is possible that as many as ten counties may be each entitled to one more member under the new census, although it is not likely that the increase will be as much as this. It may not be more than three or four. If, however, the increase should be as much as ten, and that increase in the House to be elected next year should be followed up by an increase of six in the representation of Baltimore city, it will be extremely difficult to find room for them in the present chamber. It is already overcrowded. At the election next fall a proposed amendment to the Constitution creating a new Legislative district in the city is to be submitted. If it is approved by the people of the State it will entitle the city to one more Senator and six more Delegates, making four Senators and 24 Delegates in all. The basis of representation in Section 4, Article 3 of the Constitution is as follows: Counties having a population of less than 18,000, 2 Delegates; 18,000 and less than 28,000, 3 Delegates; 28,000 and less than 40,000, 4 Delegates; 40,000 and less than 55,000, 5 Delegates; 55,000 and over, 6 Delegates and no more. Each Legislative district of the city is to have the representation of the largest county. Baltimore county has reached the limit of six Delegates, and neither that county nor the Legislative districts of the city can get any more delegates, whatever increase in population they may have.

Anne Arundel county had in 1890, 34,094 inhabitants. The same rate of increase that it had in the previous decade will bring the population up to 40,000 and give five Delegates an increase of one. The census of 1890 showed a decrease in the population of Charles from 18,548 to 15,191 and the delegation was decreased from three to two. It was contended at the time that there was an error in the enumeration and it is possible the three Delegates will be restored by the new census. The population of Garrett in 1890 was 14,213 and it has two Delegates. The present registered vote is about 4,000 and that would indicate a population in excess of 18,000 and an additional Delegate.

An increase of about 1,700 in the population of Howard over 1890 will entitle that county to three Delegates instead of two, and Kent lacks only 530 of 18,000 to give her another Delegate. But the census of 1890 showed a small decrease from 1890 and there is no evidence that the decrease is not still going on.

Montgomery will almost certainly get another Delegate, as the population in 1890 was 27,185 and it is surely over 28,000 now, and so entitled to four Delegates. Between 1880 and 1890 there was a small decrease in Prince George's. The population was 25,080, but as there has been a considerable overflow from Washington city since 1890 it is not unlikely it is now over 30,000, as the registered vote is over 7,000. Somerset lacks 5,850 of having 30,000, but as there was a very large increase in 1890 it is possible the necessary number for four Delegates may be reached, but this is far from likely. Washington county in 1890 had 39,782 and it almost certainly has 40,000 now and will have five Delegates, instead of four. Queen Anne's county decreased about 800 from 1880 to 1890, when it had 18,451, and if the decrease has continued it may lose one of its three Delegates by falling below 18,000.—Balto. Sun.

MESS. ARMOR-BOWEN COMPANY, the leading advertising agents of Baltimore City, is sending us recently an advertisement of the Chas. A. Vogel Company, may:

"It may be some satisfaction to you to know that your paper is one of the few that consider the Chas. A. Vogel Company as an advertising medium in Maryland."

THOSE WAR TAXES.

A general protest from all over the country is being registered against a continuance of the war tax. It is confidently predicted that the coming session of Congress will furnish some relief from these taxes. The people have borne this burden, with little murmuring, for two years after the war was ended, for which it was created. It was to defray the expenses of the war with Spain that Congress passed this act and it is now full time that some relief was at hand.

The receipts of the government will be over eighty millions in excess of the expenditures for the present fiscal year. It is unjust that the people should be taxed other than for a revenue to economically defray the expenses of the government.

Let not the Republican party, in the fullness of its power, think that, in the reelection of McKinley, the people either endorse all of his policies or that they will countenance and submit to the continuance of an unjust tax. Let Congress do its duty and repeal the Spanish War Tax.

COMING TO MARYLAND.

A Movement of Negroes from North Carolina Predicted.

A correspondent writing to the Baltimore Sun, from Snow Hill, says: "A former citizen of Snow Hill who is now a resident of North Carolina says that the negroes in various parts of that State are making arrangements to come to Maryland, where they will be able to take an active part in governmental policies. Many have already left, and others will do so as soon as they can get together money enough to land them within the Maryland line. The general hope is to settle in the 'black belt' of Southern Maryland, but, failing in that, anywhere in Maryland will do. The power to influence political results is dear to their hearts, and it is well known in North Carolina that in Maryland a cross opposite Lincoln's nose votes the ticket straight. The man who gives the information is firmly convinced that this move on the part of the negroes is but the beginning of a steady stream that will flow from North Carolina to the nearest doubtful or Republican State where no such thing as an educational qualification can stand between the negro and his franchise."

Captain Turner Active.

Capt. James A. Turner, deputy commander of the oyster navy, in charge of the State Fishery Force, steamer Governor McLane, has reported the capture of the schooner Richard Crumpler, Capt. John T. Tyler, for having uncultured oysters in his possession. Deputy Commander Turner and his crew were employed three days culling 2,500 bushels of oysters on the vessels in the Potomac. Justice Ely, of St. Mary's county, imposed a fine, which with costs, amounted to $85, which was paid. Commander T. C. B. Howard is determined to have the cull law strictly enforced, being very important to those dependent upon the oyster bars for a living, and his deputy commanders are carrying out his instructions, it is said, to the letter of the law.

PLEASANT HUNTING TRIP

Followed by a Delightful Game Supper at Which Messrs. Miller and Benjamin Play Host.

Messrs. Walter B. Miller and A. J. Benjamin returned to Salisbury last Friday night after an eight days' shooting excursion around Freeport, Gloucester county, Virginia.

A magnificent game supper Monday evening at Mr. Miller's residence on Walnut Street, was a charming sequel, which eight participating friends will probably cherish in memory many years to come.

The supper was served in courses and came in the following order:

Assorted Oysters on half shell, Maryland Biscuits, Quail on Toast, Olives, Bordeaux Claret, Roast Quail, Roast Wild Turkey, Cranberry Sauce, Potato Croquettes, Corn Bread, Hot Rolls, Imperial Brut Champagne, Celery Salad, Branded Peaches, Assorted Cakes, Coffee, Regalia Cigars.

The guests of Messrs. Miller and Benjamin were, Messrs. L. Ernest Williams, Samuel A. Graham, O. J. Schneck, Robert F. Graham, John D. Williams, L. W. Gunby, A. F. Benjamin and Wm. M. Cooper.

Mrs. Miller was with her sick aunt, Miss Graham, in Carlisle, and the men had the house to themselves.

Mrs. Miller's beautiful plate adorned the table.

The game was prepared and cooked by John Parker, and it could not have been more savory and appetizing. Each variety represented a part of the contents of the hosts' game bags, when they returned from the trip.

An interesting feature of the supper was a marvelous account by Mr. Miller of how the wild turkey was brought down by him with his trusty friends.

Mr. Benjamin regaled his companions with a most likely tale of how he surprised the coon, in the forks of a tree, seventy feet above ground, and which by the way, he so easily deers weighed 85 pounds.

Shades of Darry Crockett! While away from Miller and Benjamin were visited guests of Mr. Robt. H. Farinholt of Freeport, who, together with other citizens, showed the Salisbury gentlemen every courtesy. The latter were charmed with their entertainment and the results of their hunt; and are much impressed with the country, not only as a great and inviting game preserve, but with its manifold agricultural and commercial possibilities.

Mrs. Perry Entertains.

Mrs. Thos. Perry gave a delightful domino party to her many friends, on Wednesday afternoon, at her home on William Street. Mrs. Mary D. Ellegood was the champion, winning a pretty Wedgewood Vase. ## Blood Humors

It doesn't make any difference whether you believe in the modern theory and speak of the causes of diseases as referable to germs, microbes or bacilli, or whether you use the older and better understood terms of "humors" and "blood diseases"—Hood's Sarsaparilla cures them all.

It cures scrofula, salt rheum or eczema, catarrh, rheumatism, malaria and all other blood poisons; nervous troubles, debility and that tired feeling. This is not merely modern theory; it is solid up-to-date fact.

"Salt rheum on my hands so severe I had to wear gloves most of the time, and could not shut my thumb and finger together, was cured by Hood's Sarsaparilla." Mrs. A. O. SPAULDING, North Bearport, Me.

Getting Thin

is all right, if you are too fat; and all wrong, if too thin already.

Fat, enough for your habit, is healthy; a little more, or less, is no great harm. Too fat, consult a doctor; too thin, persistently thin, no matter what cause, take Scott's Emulsion of Cod Liver Oil.

There are many causes of getting too thin; they all come under these two heads: over-work and under-digestion.

Stop over-work, if you can; but, whether you can or not, take Scott's Emulsion of Cod Liver Oil, to balance yourself with your work. You can't live on it—true—but, by it, you can. There's a limit, however; you'll pay for it.

Scott's Emulsion of Cod Liver Oil is the readiest cure for "can't eat," unless it comes of your doing no work—you can't long be well and strong, without some sort of activity.

The genuine has this picture on it, take no other. If you have not tried it, send for free sample, its agreeable taste will surprise you. SCOTT & BOWNE, Chemists, 409 Pearl Street, New York.

has been improving, has been improving right along for the past thirteen years. You can easily prove this by looking backward over Salisbury newspapers for thirteen years. Lacy Thoroughgood opened on the 17th of November 14 years ago and got a few customers, most of these have staid by him, a few of them are not here now. There are more clothing stores in Salisbury now than there were, and those that were here are all doing four or five times as much business as they were (see Salisbury newspapers) Lacy Thoroughgood is doing quite a few himself and as nobody has lost any customers, all have gained and Thoroughgood is most always doing something, you can easily figure that the clothing business has wonderfully improved; this goes to prove that there are either a great many more men here, that Salisbury Clothiers are getting more outside trade or that existing conditions, aided by Lacy Thoroughgood's constant pounding have brought prices down so low that men can today afford to buy two suits, where they could afford but one fourteen years ago. Of course Thoroughgood can't tell why anybody else's business should be any better, for there has never been a dollar spent in the past thirteen years outside of Thoroughgood's store that wouldn't have bought more than it did if it had been spent at Thoroughgood's. That's been proved so many times that it has become one of the reasons why Thoroughgood's business grows. Other reasons are, that Thoroughgood's best goods wear, that Thoroughgood's cheap goods wear, that Thoroughgood gives you what he says he will, and that nobody ever buys anything at Lacy Thoroughgood's and regrets it afterward. There are other reasons like these, for Thoroughgood to gain more customers. Men's finest Silk-lined Overcoats $15.00 instead of $30.00, Men's finest Cloth Overcoats, in black, blue and brown, $10.00 instead of $15.00, Men's finest Kersey Overcoats $8.00 instead of $12.00. Thoroughgood has Overcoats for $5.00, $6.00, $7.00, $8.00 and $5.50. Thoroughgood has Men's Overcoats with some cotton in them for $4.25 instead of selling them for "all wool" and getting $7.00. There are other reasons why Lacy Thoroughgood is doing more business all the time.

JOSHUA'S VICTORIES.

DR. TALMAGE DRAWS FROM THEM LESSONS IN CHRISTIAN WARFARE.

Encouraging Words For Those Engaged in the Battle of Life—God's Soldiers Never Turn Backward—Divine Promises Unfailing.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 18.—In this discourse Dr. Talmage follows Joshua on his triumphal march and speaks encouraging words to all who are engaged in the battle of this life; text, Joshua 1, 5. "There shall not any man be able to stand before thee all the days of thy life."

Moses was dead. A beautiful tradition says the Lord kissed him and in that act drew forth the soul of the dying lawgiver. He had been buried, only one person at the funeral, the same one who kissed him. But God never takes a man away from any place of usefulness until he has some one ready to replace him. The Lord does not go looking around amid a great variety of candidates to find some one especially fitted for the vacated position. He makes a man for that place. Moses has passed off the stage, and Joshua, the hero, puts his foot on the platform of history so solidly that all the ages echo with the tread. He was a magnificent fighter, but he always fought on the right side, and he never fought unless God told him to fight. He got his military equipment from God, who gave him the promise at the start, "There shall not any man be able to stand before thee all the days of thy life." God fulfilled this promise, although Joshua's first battle was with the spring freshet, the next with a stone wall, the next leading on a regiment of whipped cowards and the next battling against darkness, wheeling the sun and the moon into his battalion, and the last against the king of terrors, death—five great victories.

As a rule when the general of an army starts out in a war he would like to have a small battle in order that he may get his own courage up and rally his troops and get them drilled for greater conflicts, but the first undertaking of Joshua was greater than the leveling of Fort Pulaski, or the assault of Gibraltar, or the overthrow of the Bastille. It was the crossing of the Jordan at the time of the spring freshet. The snows of Mount Lebanon had just been melting, and they poured down into the valley, and the whole valley was a raging torrent. So the Canaanites stand on one bank, and they look across and see Joshua and the Israelites, and they laugh and say: "Aha, they can't disturb us until the freshets fall! It is impossible for them to reach us." But after awhile they look across the water, and they see a movement in the army of Joshua. They say: "What is the matter now? Why, there must be a panic among those troops, and they are going to fly, or perhaps they are going to try to march across the river Jordan. Joshua is a lunatic." But Joshua, the chieftain, looks at his army and cries, "Forward, march!" and they start for the bank of the Jordan. One mile ahead go two priests carrying a glittering box four feet long and two feet wide. It is the ark of the covenant. And they come down, and no sooner do they just touch the rim of the water with their feet than, by an Almighty fiat, Jordan parts. The army of Joshua marches right on without getting their feet wet, over the bottom of the river, a path of chalk and broken shells and pebbles, until they get to the other bank. Then they lay hold of the oleanders and tamarisks and willows and pull themselves up a bank 30 or 40 feet high, and having gained the other bank they clap their shields and their cymbals and sing the praises of the God of Joshua. But no sooner have they reached the bank than the waters begin to dash and roar, and with a terrific rush they break loose from their strange anchorage.

No Going Backward. As the hand of the Lord God is taken away from the thus uplifted waters—waters perhaps uplifted half a mile—they rush down, and some of the unbelieving Israelites say: "Alas, alas, what a misfortune! Why could not those waters have staid parted? Because perhaps we may want to go back. O Lord, we are engaged in a risky business. Those Canaanites may come up on us. We want to go back? Would it not have been a more complete miracle if the Lord had parted the waters to let us come through and kept them parted to let us go back if we are defeated?" My friends, God makes no provision for a Christian retreat. He clears the path all the way to Canaan. To go back is to die. The same gatekeepers that swung back the smothering and crystalline gate of the Jordan to let Israel pass through now swing shut the smothering and crystalline gate of the Jordan to keep the Israelites from going back. Victory ahead, but water 30 feet deep behind, surging to death and darkness and woe. But you say, "Why did not these Canaanites, when they had such a splendid chance, standing on the top of the bank 30 or 40 feet high, completely demolish those poor Israelites down in the river?" I will tell you why. God had made a promise, and he was going to keep it. "There shall not any man be able to stand before thee all the days of thy life."

But this is no place for the host to stop. Joshua gives the command, "Forward, march!" In the distance there is a long grove of trees, and at the end of the grove is a city. It is a city with arbors, a city with walls seeming to reach to the heavens, to buttress the very sky. It is the great metropolis that commands the mountain pass. It is Jericho. That city was afterward captured by Pompey and once by Herod the Great and once again by the Mohammedans, but this campaign the Lord plans. There shall be no swords, no shields, no battering ram. There shall be only one weapon of war, and that a ram's horn. The horn of the slain ram was sometimes taken, and holes were punctured in it, and then the musician would put the instrument to his lips, and he would run his fingers over this rule musical instrument and make a great deal of sweet harmony for the people. That was the only kind of weapon. Seven priests were to take these rude, rustic musical instruments, and they were to go around the city every day for six days—once a day for six days—and then on the seventh day they were to go around blowing these rude musical instruments seven times, and then at the close of the seventh blowing of the ram's horns on the seventh day the perforation of the whole scene was to be a shout, at which those great walls should tumble from capstone to base.

Victory Follows Defeat. The seven priests with the rude musical instruments pass all around the city walls on the first day and score a failure. Not so much as a piece of plaster broke loose from the wall, not so much as a loosened rock, not so much as a piece of mortar lost from its place. "There," say the unbelieving Israelites, "did I not tell you so? Why, those ministers are fools. The idea of going around the city with those musical instruments and expecting in that way to destroy it. Joshua has been fooled. He thinks because he has overthrown and conquered the spring freshet he can overthrow the stone wall. Why, it is not philosophic. Do you not see there is no relation between the blowing of these musical instruments and the knocking down of the wall? It is not philosophic." And I suppose there were many wiseacres who stood with their brown knitted hats and the forefinger of the right hand to the forehead of the left hand, arguing it all out and showing that it was not possible that such a cause could produce such an effect. And I suppose that night in the encampment there was plenty of caricature, and if Joshua had been nominated for any high military position he would not have received many votes. Joshua's stock was down. The second day the priests blowing the musical instruments go around the city and again a failure. The third day, fourth day, fourth day and a failure, fifth day and a failure, sixth day and a failure. The seventh day comes, the climactic day. Joshua is up early in the morning and examines the troops, walks all about, looks at the city wall. The priests start to make the circuit of the city. They go all around once, all around twice, three times, four times, five times, six times, seven times, and a failure. There is only one more thing to do, and that is to utter a great shout. I see the Israelite army straightening themselves up, filling their lungs for a vociferation such as never was heard before and never heard after. Joshua feels that the hour has come, and he cries out to his host, "Shout, for the Lord hath given you the city." All together the troops shout: "Down, Jericho! Down, Jericho!" And the long line of solid masonry begins to quiver and to move and to rock. Stand firm under! She falls! Crash go the walls and temples, the towers, the palaces, the air blackened with the dust. The hums of the victorious Israelites and the groan of the conquered Canaanites commingle, and Joshua, standing there in the debris of the walls, hears a voice saying, "There shall not any man be able to stand before thee all the days of thy life."

The Savior's Deliverance. Only one house spared. Who lives there? Some great king? No. A woman distinguished for great kindly deeds? No. She had been conspicuous for her crimes. It is the house of Rahab. Why was her house spared? Because she had been a great sinner? No, but because she repented, demonstrating to all the ages that there is mercy for the chief of sinners. The red cord of divine injunction reaching from her window to the ground, so that when the people saw the red cord they knew it was the divine indication that they should not destroy the premises, making us think of the divine cord of a Saviour's deliverance, the red cord of a Saviour's kindness, the red cord of a Saviour's mercy, the red cord of our rescue. Mercy for the chief of sinners. Put your trust in that God, and no damage shall befall you. When our world shall be more terribly surrounded than was Jericho, even by the trumpets of the judgment day, and the hills and the mountains, the metal bones and ribs of nature shall break, they who have had Rahab's faith shall have Rahab's deliverance.

When wrapped in fire the realms of ether glow, And heaven's last thunder shakes the earth below, Then, undimmed, shall o'er the ruins smile A light thy torch at nature's funeral pile.

But Joshua's troops may not halt here. The command is, "Forward, march!" There is the city of Ai. It must be taken. How shall it be taken? A scouting party comes back and says: "Joshua, we can do that without you. It is going to be a very easy job. You must stay here while we go and capture it." They march with a small regiment in front of that city. The men of Ai look at them and give one yell, and the Israelites run like reindeer. The northern troops at Bull Run did not make such rapid time as these Israelites with the Canaanites after them. They never cut such a sorry figure as when they were on the retreat. You who are out in the battles of God with only half a force instead of your taking the men of Ai the men of Ai will take you. Look at the church of God on the retreat. The Bornean cannibals ate up Munson, the missionary. "Fall back!" said a great many Christian people. "Fall back!" taken. Do you not see Munson, the cannibal, have eaten up Munson, the missionary? Tyndall delivers his lecture at the University of Glasgow, and a great many good people say: "Fall back, O church of God! Do you not see that Christian philosophy is going to be overcome by worldly philosophy? Fall back!" Geology plunges its crowbar into the mountains, and there are a great many people who say: "Scientific investigation is going to overthrow the Mosiac account of the creation. Fall back!"

God's Soldiers Must Advance. But friends of God never have had any right to fall back. Joshua falls on his face in chagrin. It is the only time you ever see the back of his head. He falls on his face and begins to whine, and he says, "O Lord God, wherefore hast thou at all brought this people over Jordan to deliver us into the hands of the Amorites, to destroy us? Would to God we had been content and dwelt on the other side of Jordan. For the Canaanites and all the inhabitants of the land shall hear of it, and shall say, 'The Lord is not with us, and he shall deliver us out of our hands from the earth.' I am very glad Joshua said that. Before it seemed as if he were a supernatural being and therefore could not be an example to us, but I find he is a man, he is only a man. Just as sometimes you find a man under severe opposition or in a bad state of work, lying down and sighing about being defeated. I am encouraged when I hear this cry of Joshua as he lies on the dust. God comes and rouses him. How does he rouse him? By complimentary apostrophe? No. He says, "Get thee up. Wherefore liest thou upon thy face?" Joshua rises, and I warrant you, with a mortified look. But his old courage comes back. The fact was that was not his battle. If he had been in it he would have gone on to victory. He gathers his troops around him and says: "Now, let us go up and capture the city of Ai. Let us go up right away." They march on. He puts the majority of the troops behind him in the night, and then he sends comparatively small regiments up in front of the city. The men of Ai come out with a shout. The small regiments of Israelites in stratagem fall back and fall back, and when all the men of Ai have left the city and are in pursuit of these scattered, or seemingly scattered, regiments, Joshua stands on a rock—I see his looks flying in the wind as he points his spear toward the doomed city, and that is the signal. The men rush out from behind the rocks and take the city, and it is put to the torch, and then these flying Israelites return, and between these two waves of Israelite prowess the men of Ai are destroyed, and the Israelites gain the victory; and while I see the curling smoke of that destroyed city on the sky, and while I hear the hums of the Israelites and the groan of the Canaanites, Joshua hears something louder than all, ringing and echoing through his soul. "There shall not any man be able to stand before thee all the days of thy life."

No Place to Stop. But this is no place for the host of Joshua to stop. "Forward, march!" cries Joshua to the troops. There is the city of Gibeon. It has put itself under the protection of Joshua. They send word: "There are five kings after us. They are going to destroy us. Send troops quick. Send us help right away." Joshua has three days' march, more than double quick. On the morning of the third day he is before the enemy. There are two long lines of battle. The battle opens with great slaughter, but the Canaanites soon discover something. They say: "That is Joshua. That is the man who conquered the spring freshet and knocked down the stone walls of Jericho and destroyed the city of Ai. There is no use fighting." They sound a retreat, and as they begin to retreat Joshua and his host spring upon them like a panther, pursuing them over the rocks, while the catapults of the sky pour a volley of hailstones into the valley, and all the artillery of the heavens, with bullets of iron, pound the Canaanites against the ledges of Bethoron. "Oh," says Joshua, "this is surely a victory!" "But do you not see the sun is going down? Those Amorites are going to get away after all, and then they will come up some other time and fight us, and perhaps destroy us. See, the sun is going down. Oh, for a longer day than has ever been seen in this climate!" What is the matter with Joshua? Has he fallen in an apoplectic fit? No. He is in prayer.

Look out when a good man makes the Lord his ally. Joshua raises his face, radiant with prayer, and looks at the descending sun over Gibeon and at the faint crescent of the moon, for you know the queen of the night sometimes will linger around the palace of the day. Pointing one hand at the descending sun and the other hand at the faint crescent of the moon, in the name of that God who shaped the worlds and moves the worlds he cries: "Sun, stand thou still upon Gibeon, and thou, moon, in the valley of Ajalon!" They halted. Whether it was by refraction of the sun's rays or by the stopping of the whole planetary system I do not know and do not care. I leave it to the Christian Scientists and the infidel scientists to settle that question, while I tell you I have seen the same thing. "What?" say you. "Not the sun standing still?" Yes. The same miracle is performed nowadays. The wicked do not live out half their day, and their sun sets at noon. But let a man start out in battle for God and the truth and against sin, and the day of his usefulness is prolonged and prolonged and prolonged.

John Sumner's Influence. John Sumnerfield was a consumptive Methodist. He looked fearfully white, I am told, as he stood in the old Sands Street church in Brooklyn preaching Christ and again on the anniversary platform in New York pleading for the Bible until unusual and unknown glories rolled forth from that book. When he was dying, his pillow was brushed with the wings of an angel from the skies, the messenger that God sent down. Did John Sumnerfield's day end? Oh, no! He lives on in his burning utterances in behalf of the Christian church. He said: "I cannot die now. I am only 27 years of age. Sun of my Christian influence, stand thou still above America!" And it stood still.

Robert McCheyne was a consumptive Presbyterian. It was said when he preached he coughed so it seemed as if he would never preach again. His name is fragrant in all Christendom. That name is mightier today than was ever his living presence. He stood to preach the gospel in Aberdeen, Edinburgh and Dundee, but he went away very early. He preached himself into the grave. Has Robert McCheyne's day ended? Oh, no! His dying delirium was filled with prayer, and when he lifted his hand to pronounce the benediction upon his family and the benediction upon his country he seemed to say: "I cannot die now. I want to live on and on. I want to start an infusory for the church that will never cease. I am only 30 years of age. Sun of my Christian ministry, stand still over Scotland!" And it stood still.

The Light of the Gospel. A long time ago there was a Christian woman very consecrated, and she had a drunken husband, and so on came the night of domestic trouble. She lost her children, and there came the night of bereavement. She was very ill, and there came the night of sickness. Her soul departed, and there came the night of death. But all these nights of trouble and darkness and sorrow and sickness were illumined by the grace of the gospel, and people came many miles to see how cheerfully a Christian could die. The moon that illumined that night of righteousness was a reflection from the Sun of Righteousness. In the last hour of that night that night of darkness and sick hand toward heaven those who stood nearest her pillow could hear the whisper, for she wanted to live on in the generations that were to follow, consecrated to God. She wanted to have an influence long after she had entered upon her eternal reward, and while her hand was lifted and her lips were moving those who stood nearest her pillow could hear her say: "I want to live on for many years of good. The moon, stand still in the valley of Ajalon!" But Joshua was not quite through. There was time for five funerals before the sun of that prolonged day set. Who will preach their funeral sermon? Maullion preached the funeral sermon over Louis XVI. Who will preach the funeral sermon of those five dead kings—the king of Jerusalem, king of Hebron, king of Jarmuth, king of Lachish, king of Egion? Let it be by Joshua. What is his text? What shall be the epitaph put on the door of the tomb? "There shall not any man be able to stand before thee all the days of thy life." Before you fasten up the door I want five more kings beheaded and thrust in—King Alcohol, King Fraud, King Lust, King Superstition, King Indebtedness. Let them be beheaded and thrust in. Then fasten up the door forever. What shall the inscription and what shall the epitaph be for all Christian philanthropists of all ages are going to come and look at it? What shall the inscription be? "There shall not any man be able to stand before thee all the days of thy life."

God's Promises Unfailing. But it is time for Joshua to go home. He is 110 years old. Washington went down the Potomac and at Mount Vernon closed his days. Wellington died peacefully at Appleby House. Now, where shall Joshua rest? Why, he is here, where his greatest battle now. After 110 years he has to meet a king who has more subjects than all the present population of the earth, his throne a pyramid of skulls, his parterre the graveyards and the cemeteries of the world, his chariot the world's heresy—the king of terror. But if this is Joshua's greatest battle, it is going to be Joshua's greatest victory. He gathers his friends around him and gives his valedictory and it is full of reminiscence. Young men, tell what they are going to do. Old men, tell what they have done. And as you have heard a grandfather or great-grandfather seated by the evening fire tell of Monmouth or Yorktown and then lift the crutch or staff as though it were a musket to fight and show how the battles were won, so Joshua gathers his friends around his dying couch, and he tells them the story of what he has been through, and as he tells there, his white locks snowing down on his wrinkled forehead, I ask if God has kept his promise all the way through. As he lies there he tells the story one, two or three times—you have heard old people tell a story two or three times over—and he answers: "I go the way of all the earth, and not one word of the promise has failed, not one word thereof has failed. All has come to pass, and I have seen it. 'Chosen as a dying parent will, and as I choose now whom you will serve, the God of Israel or the god of the Amorites. As for me and my house, we will serve the Lord.' A dying parent cannot be reckless or thoughtless of his children. Consent to part with them forever at the door of the tomb we cannot. By the cradle in which their infancy was rocked, by the blood of the covenant, by the God of Joshua it shall not be. We will not part, we cannot part. Jehovah-Jireh, God who provides for us, 'I will be a God to thee and thy seed after thee.'"

Dead, the old chieftain must be laid out. Handle him very gently. That sacred body is over 110 years of age. Lay him out, stretch out those feet that walked dry shod the parted Jordan. Close those lips which helped blow the blast at the stone walls of Jericho. Fold the arm that lifted the spear toward the doomed city of Ai. Fold it right over the heart that exulted when the five kings fell. But where shall we get the burnished granite for the headstone and the footstone? I bethink myself now. I imagine that for the head it shall be the sun that stood still upon Gibeon, and for the foot the moon that stood still in the valley of Ajalon.

Arabic Typewriters. One of the most interesting of recent inventions is an Arabic typewriter, which has just been patented. Inasmuch as Arabic writing has no fewer than 638 distinct characters, the difficulties to be overcome are obvious. There are, however, in Arabic only 29 letters, each letter having many different forms. One letter, for example, has 65 forms, the purpose of this variety in forms being to enable each letter shall join with the adjacent letters, whatever their shape. This condition of affairs, obviously, is hard on the typewriter, and for a long time past Arabic scholars have desired to contrive compromise characters, so to speak, which would join well enough and which would at the same time be satisfactory to the readers of the written language. This has at length been accomplished, and as one of the results of the philographic reform, an Arabic typewriter will now be placed on the market. This Arab merchant in this country and all over the world will be able to conduct their correspondence much more easily than hitherto. The Arabic language is in use today in Egypt, Persia and Arabia. Such an achievement gives hope that there may yet arrive a Chinese typewriter, notwithstanding the fact that in that language 24,000 distinct characters are in accepted use among the educated.—Saturday Evening Post.

A Fad From the Fair. The latest French fad which has made its appearance in New York is the misshapen pearl, mounted on scarfpins or strung for necklaces. These pearls are frequently of large size and sometimes of excellent color. They are sold in Paris as genuine pearls, though at a less price than a perfect pearl of the same size would bring. A young man wearing one of these pearls as a scarfpin was the subject of much conversation on Saturday. This pearl was mounted on a scarfpin. It was lopsided and generally out of drawing. "Why don't you get a good imitation?" they are cheap," said a man who noticed. "This is the real thing and not an imitation," said the wearer. An even bet was made on it and when the expert who examined it pronounced it a genuine pearl the critic was forced to pay. They are one of the abominable fads of the Paris exposition, and Americans have brought them home as souvenirs.—New York Sun.

A Coincidence. Believers in psychical phenomena may find something to marvel at in this story told of a member of the City Imperial Volunteers and his sweetheart's ring. The truth of which is authenticated. Before going to the front the young warrior presented to his affianced a handsome engagement ring. One day she broke the circle. Of course she was sorry, but attached no importance to the event until a little time since, she ascertained that her lover had died in South Africa on the very day and about the same hour on which the love token was shattered.—London Telegraph.

Christmas Trees. The Kneebec (Me.) Journal says: "They are cutting Christmas trees down in Washington county. The season's cut will include 400 carloads, with 300 bunches to a car. From one to six trees are included in each bunch. These trees will be sent to wholesale markets in New York and Philadelphia, where trees worth 15 cents in Maine will bring $1.50 and more."

What a splendid type of tireless activity is the man as the psalmist describes it. Issuing like a "bridgehead" from his chamber and rejoicing like a strong man to run a race. Every man ought to be in the morning refreshed by slumber and renewed by rest after the struggle of the day. But how rarely this is so. Most people rise still unrefreshed and dreading the strain of the day's labor. The cause of this is deficient vitality and behind this lies deficient supply of pure rich blood and an inadequate nourishment of the body. There is nothing that will give a man strength and energy as will Dr. Pierce's Medical Discovery. It does this by increasing the quantity and quality of the blood supply. This nourishes the nerves feeds the brain builds up enfeebled organs and gives that sense of strength and power which makes the struggle of life a joy. The good feeling which follows the use of Golden Medical Discovery is not due to stimulation as it contains no alcohol whiskey or other intoxicant. It does not brace up the body but builds it up into a condition of sound health.

What Would You Give

To be cured of catarrh? If you or your friends have this disease, you know how disagreeable it is. Its symptoms are in the eyes, throbbing temples, ringing noises in the ears, headaches, capricious appetite, and constant discharge of mucus. Fortunately its cure is not a question of what you will give, but what you will take. If you will take Hood's Sarsaparilla, the great constitutional remedy, which thoroughly purifies, enriches and vitalizes the blood, you may expect to be completely and permanently cured. The good blood which Hood's Sarsaparilla makes, reaching the delicate passages of the mucous membrane, soothes and rebuilds the tissues and ultimately cures all symptoms of catarrh.

A Village Blacksmith Saved His Little Son's Life.

Mr. H. H. Black, the well known village blacksmith at Grahamsville Sullivan Co., N. Y., says: "Our little son, five years old, has always been subject to croup, and so bad have the attacks been that he has feared many times that he would die. We have had the doctor and used many medicines, but Chamberlain's Cough Remedy is now our sole reliance. It seems to dissolve the tough mucus and by giving frequent doses when the croupy symptoms appear we have found that the dreaded croup is cured before it gets settled." There is no danger in giving this remedy for it contains no opium or other injurious drug and may be given as confidently to a babe as to an adult. For sale by R. K. Truitt & Sons.

A Village Blacksmith Saved His Little Son's Life.

Miss Ethalia Carbaugh, near Hagerstown, had not spoken for four months on account of a nervous affection. The other day, while climbing a fence with a bucket of water, she fell, and the fright, in connection with the shock, was the means of restoring her speech.

For Over Fifty Years

Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup has been used by millions of mothers for their children while teething, with perfect success. It soothes the child, softens the gums, allays all pain, cures all wind colic, and is the best remedy for diarrhoea. Twenty cents a bottle.

A well on the land owned by Z. Charlier Travers, in the upper part of Washington county, supplies water so close resembling beer in appearance that numbers of persons have been fooled by it. The well was dug 50 years ago and clear, sparkling water has been used from it until recently, when the color of the water changed. Foam gathered on the water like on beer, yet it is tasteless and claimed to be healthful.

MATTERS IN MARYLAND.

Annapolis, Md., Nov. 22.—Governor Smith yesterday signed the death warrant of Charles, alias "Froggie" Lomax, colored. The date of execution is fixed for Jan. 18. Lomax was convicted of the murder of his mistress.

Williamsport, Nov. 19.—Williamsport has had about a year's experience in municipal ownership of an electric light plant. The plant is operated by a commission appointed by the burgess and commissioners. The plant also supplies light and power to private parties. The receipts per month are $110 and the expenses $148. The difference—$38—represents the cost per month of lighting the town.

Cumberland, Nov. 16.—The Klotz Throwing company is completing arrangements for the erection of a large silk mill here. Mr. B. Stearns, of New York, a member of the company, was here a few days ago and gave assurance that the plant will be built. The company has two mills in operation in Pennsylvania and one in Virginia. Work will likely commence on the new mill here within a few weeks.

Baltimore, Nov. 16.—It is announced here that negotiations are being conducted looking to the absorption of the Maryland Telephone company, of this city, the Pittsburgh and Allegheny Telephone and Telegraph company, of Pittsburgh, and the Delaware Telephone company, of Wilmington, Del., by the Erie Telephone and Telephone company. The former corporations are controlled by a Baltimore syndicate.

Annapolis, Md., Nov. 20.—Fifty-six cadets, comprising the entire third class of the Naval academy, have been placed on the third conduct grade until Dec. 22, which means they will be deprived of liberty and not permitted to visit the city but once a month. The reason for this step is that the cadets signed a petition to the secretary of the navy asking him to show clemency to a cadet that the superintendent had asked to have dismissed for "gouging."

Centerville, Md., Nov. 17.—Mary L. Cheers pleaded guilty to the charge of murder yesterday and was sentenced to ten years' imprisonment. Her husband, Matthew Cheers, has been convicted of murder in the first degree, and is awaiting sentence. Solomon L. Roberts and Cheers were employed on the Hermitage farm. Cheers suspected his wife of intimacy with Roberts, and caused her to decoy Roberts into a compromising position. He killed Roberts with a bullet of wood.

Snow Hill, Nov. 18.—A former citizen of Snow Hill who is now a resident of North Carolina says that the negroes in various parts of that state are making arrangements to come to Maryland, where they will be able to take an active part in governmental policies. Many have already left, and others will do so as soon as they can get together money enough to land them within the Maryland line. The general hope is to settle in the "black belt" of southern Maryland, but, failing in that, anywhere in Maryland will do.

Baltimore, Nov. 16.—It is understood that Alexander Brown & Sons will shortly address circular letters to the stockholders of the Baltimore and Lehigh Railroad company requesting an option on the stock. Details concerning the prospective deal are carefully guarded by those interested. Whether the banking house is seeking the property on its own account or for a third party can not be learned. The Baltimore and Lehigh railroad extends from Baltimore to Carlisle, on the Pennsylvania state line, a distance of about 43 miles.

Baltimore, Nov. 16.—Edwin McClintock and Roy W. McClintock, the Massachusetts students charged with the larceny of four pounds of platinum valued at $1,200 from the Johns Hopkins university, pleaded guilty to the charge yesterday and were paroled for one year by Judge Dennis. The boys said they took the platinum for the purpose of securing money to defray the expenses of their schooling. One is a student at the Johns Hopkins university and the other at the Baltimore Medical college. Judge Dennis told the prisoners that it was only for the sake of their mother that he did not sentence them.

Cambridge, Nov. 16.—The oyster business at this point has taken a sudden and forward movement. It is safe to assert that every marketable oyster that can be gotten into Cambridge harbor will speedily find its way to the packers' bins. The competition to secure oysters for shipment is very lively. Shell stock is bringing from 60 to 65 cents per bushel. Shucked stock sells in Cambridge from 85 cents to $1.05 per gallon. One packer, who is fortunate enough to have a bedding ground adjacent to his oyster house put down during September and October some 2,000 bushels of oysters. Their growth since then and the decided rise in price will double their value of two months ago.

Hagerstown, Nov. 19.—The large frame bank barn, 100 by 50 feet, situated at Reid, Washington county, owned by Peter Eschelman, of Hagerstown, and tenanted by Benjamin Weaver, was totally destroyed by fire Sunday afternoon, together with a wagon shed and 400 barrels of corn, 25 tons of hay, 3,000 bundles of corn fodder, a number of chickens and some farming implements. The fire was caused by two boys lighting cigarettes with matches in a stable owned by Cornelius Myers, 200 yards from the barn. The stable burned and sparks were blown on the strawstack and a fodderstack at Mr. Eschelman's barn. These were burned and the barn was soon in flames.

Cumberland, Nov. 21.—William Twigg was shot from ambush on a road through the woods near his home, in Flintstone district, Allegany county, last Saturday morning. Warren Hamilton is charged with the shooting. He is alleged to have fired. One shot struck Twigg near the eye and another in the head. Other shots struck his horse and saddle. Twigg had a Cumberland physician to remove the shot. The Twigg and Hamilton families have been at odds for some time over a road, the former contending that it is private and the latter that it is public. The matter has been in court and examiners sent by the county commissioners arrived at the Twigg place shortly after the shooting. The commissioners are now endeavoring to locate a road satisfactory to all parties.

The heartfelt sympathy of this place is extended to his bereaved family.

Mrs. J. S. Langdale is seriously ill at her home in town.

ALLEN.

Mr. Farley Pool Parsons is now a resident of the Quaker City. He sold his interest in the cat business to Mr. Will Smith. He expects in a few days to give his "How to bag cats" to one of the leading magazines of this country. It will be a model of clear, terse, vigorous English, often rising into passages of great poetic and picturesque beauty.

"Have you any limborn bonnets?" inquired a very modest Miss of one of our prominent merchants. "Any what? Any limborn bonnets?" "Any, you don't mean leghorn?" The young lady was brought to by the proper restoration.

"Uncle" Jim Stewart was advised the other day by a friend to get his life insured. "Blamed if I do," said he "it would be my luck to live forever."

An old offender was recently introduced to our new magistrate as John Simmons. Alias Jones, Alias Smith. "I'll try the two women first, bring in Alice" Jones.

A few afternoons since a "pair" of our sports, going from Eden to Salisbury on the train were getting rather noisy and profane, when a gentleman on the shoulder of one of them on the shoulder, with the remark, "Young man do you know you are on the road to perdition?" "That's just my luck, I bought a ticket for Salisbury and I've got on the wrong train."

Please take notice. A young gentleman who has received a good education can read and write, and is versed in geography, history, music, dancing and elementary mathematics, wishes a situation in a respectable family as a wood sawyer.

Though we are falling upon what the poet calls the "Melancholy Days," the saddest of the year, we cannot take a gloomy view of this the last month of autumn. It is to us a golden period. What if the frost touch the tender herbage, what if the summer birds have carried to other lands the gladness of their songs, the skies are still bright, the air is pure and bracing and the blood courses merrily through the veins in an elastic current. Mind and body both in a better condition than during the summer heats. Mosquitoes have disappeared, flies are innocuous and easily slain. You can exchange civilities with a dog without incurring the danger of hydrophobia. Why should we mourn over the inevitable decay of the beautiful?

"All that's fair must fade, The sweetest must decay, All that's sweet was made But to be lost when sweetest. Stars that shine to fall, The flower that droops at springing, These are types of all To which our hearts are clinging."

Autumn never appeared to us like the stricken battle-field of nature, but rather like the most gorgeous carnival with the various trees for masqueraders in fancy costumes of every hue. The carnival passed they lay aside every ornament and pass their cold winter season in a condition of repose. But we know that life and joy linger in their hearts that they are economizing their forces for another season, when each silent action in the pageant will appear brighter and more beautiful than ever. If this chill autumn seems unkind to inanimate things it deals more generously by the human intellect. It opens the season for mental exertion, for mental toil, pleasure and triumph, that the lecture room, the library, the study and the laboratory will witness. Those smiles where "ceaseless summer smiles," figure very prettily in poetry and romance but the mind of man is dwarfed just in proportion as the forms of Nature expand, and we people here in Allen would rather at this moment be striding over the hills of this village with our free thoughts for companions than be lounging in a hammock in the tropics, subjected to the enervating influences of a torpid heat.

FRUITLAND.

On Thanksgiving Day, Nov. 29th, there will be preaching in the M. E. Church at 10-80 a. m., by the pastor, Rev. W. O. Bennett. At night the Epworth League will hold a Conundrum Tea in the Town Hall. Admission 10c. Oysters served in every style. There will also be cream and cake. All are cordially invited to come and spend the evening with us, we promise you a royal good time with barrels of fun, laugh and grow fat.

Mr. J. W. Dashiell, who recently met with the painful accident of cutting his left leg with a knife, is now much improved.

Mr. Asbury Simms of near this place is erecting a new dwelling house on his farm.

Mr. Jno. Todvin and Miss Jennie Snelling spent last Sunday afternoon at this place as guests of Mrs. Albert Bozeman.

DELMAR.

The Masonic Bazaar closed last Saturday evening after a week's run of great success. The remaining unsold articles were sold at auction by Mr. Geo. Biall the well known and popular auctioneer.

LONGBRIDGE.

Miss Sallie M. Dixon, aged 19 years, died at her home near here on the 16th instant. She had been an invalid a long time. Through her long illness she never murmured but was resigned to the will of God, and fell asleep in Jesus as peacefully as if lying down to gentle repose. Her many friends will miss her sweet companionship and the neighborhood her christian example.
