FSU College of Business Receives AACSB Accreditation Extension

AACSB ACCREDITED

FSU's College of Business recently received a five-year extension of accreditation for its business degree programs by the Association to Advance Collegiate Schools of Business. Less than five percent of the world's business schools have earned this distinctive accreditation by AACSB International.

AACSB accreditation standards require excellence in areas relating to strategic management and innovation; active student, faculty and staff participation; learning and teaching; and academic and professional engagement.

"Extending our AACSB accreditation supports the College of Business's efforts to ensure our programs align with the very best practices in business education," said Dr. Sudhir Singh, dean of the FSU College of Business. "Frostburg State has been accredited by AACSB since 2005. It is a valuable accomplishment to be reaffirmed for the quality of our educational experience and our commitment to continuous improvement."

Established in 1916, AACSB is the world's largest business education alliance, connecting educators, learners and business to create the next generation of great leaders. With a presence in more than 100 countries and territories, AACSB fosters engagement, accelerates innovation and amplifies impact in business education. Learn more about AACSB at aacsb.edu.

The FSU College of Business is committed to preparing its diverse students for a lifetime of professional success through a caring approach to individual development that emphasizes critical thinking, experiential learning, social consciousness and a global perspective. "Weirdly Unsustainable." From an underground fire that burned for a century to a short-lived herd of wild goats, FSU Professor Andy Duncan's research into Weird Western Maryland has uncovered some local examples of how not to treat the Earth.

"Let's Build a Better Earth." Join 10-year-old community member, Myles Thomas, as he shares his thoughts on pollution, climate change and his generation's uncertain future.

"Effect of COVID-19 on Local Volunteer Fire Departments." Volunteer fire departments have been adversely affected by the COVID-19 pandemic. Day will discuss the issues these departments are facing and the ways that students and community members can help.

"Three Futures for Trumpet and Orchestra." Learn how musician Jacob Dallager is using his musical ability to respond to concerns of climate change. This session features a performance by the artist.

"The Environment and the Active Body." This presentation by Dr. Martin Barrett will address the factors that satisfy and/or constrain the physiological needs of the physically active body, recognize the interdependence of personal and environmental factors that serve to provide the active body with physical activity opportunities and identify the ways in which the active body is also a pro-environmental body.

"Greening the Playing Fields" This session by Barrett will begin by establishing the green waves of environmentalism in elite-level college and professional sport before providing a forum for attendees to discuss the duty of sport organizations to become (operationally) more sustainable and the opportunity sport organizations have to inspire sustainable behaviors among their fans.

"From Cynic to Optimist: Envisioning a Positive Future." This presentation by Dr. Kara Rogers Thomas uses the framework proposed in the book, "The Future We Choose" by Chritiana Figueres and Tom Rivett-Carnac, to focus on positive progress and achievable environmental goals.

"Water Bottle Planter." Tiffany Sherrick and student members of the Sustainability Awareness Society will show how to make a flower planter using a water bottle.

"Creating a Sustainable Bioplastic From Natural Materials." The polymers in everyday plastic items can be made using natural materials. In this presentation, Sophia Stagers and student members of the American Chemical Society will show how to make a bioplastic using cornstarch and glycerin.

"Blockchain Technology and Sustainability." Blockchain is a distributed, immutable, transparent and trustworthy database, shared by a community. In this presentation, Yiming Zhuang will discuss blockchain technology and how it could benefit the achievement of sustainability.

The film festival will consist of the following:

"Awake, a Dream From Standing Rock" tells the story of the massive peaceful resistance led by the Standing Rock Sioux Tribe to the Dakota Access Pipeline through their land and underneath the Missouri River.

In "How to Let Go of the World," filmmaker Josh Fox travels to 12 countries on six continents to investigate climate change and uncover the answer to a difficult and fundamental question: what is it that climate change can't destroy?

"Cooked," from award-winning filmmaker Judith Helfand, reveals the ways in which class, race and zip code predetermine unequal response and recovery to environmental disaster.

In "No Fear No Favor," African communities on the front lines of the poaching crisis fight to protect their wildlife for future generations.

CES and Student Activities Host Streaming Event ‘Step Afrika! Presents: Celebration’

FSU’s Cultural Events Series and the FSU Student Activities program will offer “Step Afrika! Presents: Celebration,” a free streaming performance on Wednesday, April 21, at 7 p.m.

The Washington, D.C.-based dance company blends the percussive dance styles practiced by historically African-American fraternities and sororities, traditional West and Southern African dances, and an array of contemporary dance and art forms. Following the performance, the dancers will present a virtual tutorial and interactive discussion, live from the Atlas Theatre in Washington, D.C.

Step Afrika!’s celebration of African-American history explores the richness and diversity of African-American life through the eyes of one of America’s most renowned dance companies. This presentation, which was conceived and filmed in 2020, will provide viewers with unique ways of deepening their understanding of little-known moments in African-American history. The program includes works from the company’s recent virtual programming, including a moving excerpt from the critically acclaimed dance film, “Stono,” which was inspired by the Stono Rebellion of 1739 and the Negro Act of 1740, two monumental moments in American history that are not widely known.

The event will be available to view on April 21 at <http://involvement.frostburg.edu/LUC/live>. The live, interactive discussion will immediately follow. For info, contact ces@frostburg.edu.

The concert will open with the FSU Percussion Ensemble performing “Angels of the Apocalypse” by David R. Gillingham. The first half will conclude with the Percussion Ensemble and Choral Artists performing LaMont’s “The Lord’s Prayer.” The second half will open with the FSU Chamber Singers, University Chorale and Troubadours Tenor-Bass Choir, directed by Dr. Scott Rieker, performing Franz Biebl’s iconic “Ave Maria,” and the concert will conclude with the two groups performing Leonard Bernstein’s “Chichester Psalms.”

Gillingham has an international reputation for the pieces he has written for band and percussion; he is a professor of music at Central Michigan University. His “Angels of the Apocalypse” was inspired by the biblical book of “Revelation” and contains sections inspired by the opening of the Seventh Seal, as well as angels blowing trumpets to bring about the end of the world. It ends, however, in a positive light, representing a religious apotheosis.

LaMont wrote “The Lord’s Prayer” in 2011. It was designed to give listeners of different religious/secular backgrounds the ability to hear a variety of messages. It can be taken as a “call to reason,” for practitioners to listen to what their faiths actually preach (caring for others, being good citizens), a critique of Christianity or a programmatic story of a group’s journey through faith, doubt and resolution.

Prolific, but obscure, Bavarian composer Biebl composed his “Ave Maria” for a seven-part men’s choir. This setting of the Latin text of the Angelus prayer has become a staple of choral repertoire for its lyric beauty and lush harmonies, and Biebl eventually arranged it for mixed and treble choirs. The trio of soloists provide lyric counterpoint to the inexorable chordal movement of the larger ensemble, all of which are designed to draw the listener into a deeper relationship with the Divine.

For “Chichester Psalms,” Bernstein repurposed unused musical materials that he had previously composed, including two movements from his abortive collaboration on a musical rendition of Wilder’s “The Skin of Our Teeth,” and the unused original opening for “West Side Story.” The resulting musical journey from unreflective and simplistic religion through trial and anguish to arrive at a place of humbleness before the Divine summarizes Bernstein’s attitudes toward belief. He held that true spirituality is found in humility and simplicity, and his compositions reflect that.

Points of Pride

FSU Reaches Final Four of the NCAA Next Generation Innovation Challenge

A team of four FSU undergraduate students – including recreation and parks management students Braxton Clark, Sienna Starkey and Aaron Williams, as well as law and society major Taylor Longworth – recently reached the Final Four of the NCAA Next Generation Innovation Challenge. The challenge required teams to develop and pitch an innovative solution to the existential crisis that is the lack of qualified officials to referee competitive games and matches, which threatens youth sport participation nationally.

The FSU team's concept was an interactive learning resource that places parents, coach and young athletes in the shoes of sports officials and develops a greater sense of empathy and appreciation for the important role that sports officials play. The concept was presented through a video pitch, which was assessed by an expert panel of sport professionals. Out of 25 schools, FSU's pitch was deemed worthy of a Final Four place and the video pitches from all finalist schools – which also included the University of Notre Dame, University of Georgia and Indiana University–Purdue University Indianapolis – were broadcast as part of the NCAA's two-day Innovation Summit that took place April 2 and 5. The team was mentored by Dr. Martin Barrett, an assistant professor in FSU's Department of Kinesiology and Recreation.

To watch the final three-minute video pitch, visit <https://youtu.be/Gg9noDUipAQ>.

Take Note

CLC's Spring Festival of Children's Literature Is Virtual This Year

From left, award-winning authors and illustrators Jerry Craft, Ryan T. Higgins, Andrea Warren and Salina Yoon, who will headline this year's Festival of Children's Literature

This year, the Children's Literature Centre at FSU will present a virtual Spring Festival of Children's Literature on Friday, April 23, and Saturday, April 24.

For 37 years, the festival has welcomed hundreds of educators, librarians, parents, students and literature advocates to the FSU campus to share their love of children's literature and learn more about successful ways to share that love with children. This year, the festival goes virtual for the first time through a share-and-learn atmosphere, allowing adults who direct children's learning to interact with authors and illustrators who bring characters to life and inspire children to read.

Award-winning authors and illustrators Jerry Craft, Ryan T. Higgins, Andrea Warren and Salina Yoon will headline this year's virtual event. In addition to their virtual presentations, each featured speaker will be available for a live Q&A session, allowing registrants a chance to interact with the presenters. Participants will also be able to virtually attend up to seven professional development workshops that focus on a wide range of literacy and literature topics for the pre-K through eighth-grade classrooms. An extensive booklist will be available online for purchase. Each book will include an autographed bookplate.

Craft is the author and illustrator of "New Kid," winner of the Coretta Scott King Award and the first graphic novel to receive the Newbery Award. "Class Act," a companion book to "New Kid," was one of the School Library Journal Best Graphic Novels of 2020, as well as a Kirkus Best Middle Grade Book of the Year. Craft also created "Mama's Boyz," a syndicated comic strip, which has received the African American Literary Award five times. He is the co-founder and co-producer of the Schomburg Center's Annual Black Comic Book Festival and co-wrote the middle-grade prose novel, "The Offenders: Surviving the World While Serving Detention!" with his sons, Jaylen and Aren.

Higgins is the author and illustrator of the New York Times' bestseller, "We Don't Eat Our Classmates," and "The Mother Bruce" series, which includes "Mother Bruce," "Hotel Bruce," "Bruce's Big Moves," "Santa Bruce" and "Bruce's Big Storm." He is the recipient of the Ezra Jack Keats New Illustrator Honor and the E.B. White Read Aloud Award.

Warren, who has worked as a newspaper reporter, magazine editor, and high school English and history teacher, is the author of numerous nonfiction chapter books, including "Surviving Hitler: A Boy in the Nazi Death Camps"; "Enemy Child: The Story of Noman Mineta, a Boy Imprisoned in a Japanese American Internment Camp During World War II"; "Orphan Train Rider: One Boy's True Story"; and "We Rode the Orphan Trains." She is the winner of the Boston Globe Horn Book Award for "Orphan Train Rider" and the Midland Author's Award for "Pioneer Girl."

Yoon is an author, illustrator and format designer of nearly 200 novelty books for young children. She specializes in formats that are unique and interactive, including "Rock & Roll Colors," "Opposnake," "Pinwheel" and "Kaleidoscope," as well as "The Penguin," "The Bear" and the "Duck, Duck, Porcupine" series. Yoon is the recipient of numerous awards, including the 2018 Geisel Honor for "My Kite Is Stuck! and Other Stories."

The brainchild of two FSU professors, Dr. William Bingman and Dr. Thomas Palardy, the festival was created as a way to honor two colleagues who promoted the love for and value of children's literature. Now in its 38th year, what began as a small gathering of children's literature enthusiasts is now one of the premier conferences of its kind on the East Coast.

The festival is administered by the FSU Foundation and is sponsored by the Children's Literature Centre and the FSU Department of Educational Professions.

Admission to the festival is by registration only, is limited in number and is available online at <https://forms.frostburg.edu/207>.

For info, contact the Children's Literature Centre at 301-687-3133 or clc@frostburg.edu. ## Health and Safety Messages

Travelling This Summer?

Be sure to map out your route before you go and don’t take any shortcuts if you are not positive where you are going.

Most motels do not offer the same security measures that a large hotel chain would. Pool your money – double up in the rooms and opt to stay at a reputable hotel. Pick a room by the elevator or highly trafficked area.

When you leave your room, hang a “do not disturb” sign on the door, and leave the TV on, making it seem as though someone is in the room. Make arrangements with housekeeping to have the room straightened when you are there.

If you brought magazines/reading materials from home, rip off the mailing address before you go.

Make sure you have copies of all your important documents. Leave a copy with your parents and a copy in the hotel safe.

Check in with your parents/family a couple of times a day. Set up a time to talk/Skype each day so that they know where you are. Leave a detailed itinerary with contact numbers of hotels/hostels and any other important information they might need to get in touch with you.
