happenings in Various Sections of Old Maryland

NEWS ITEMS FOR OUR READERS

Easton.—The Talbot Packing and Preserving Company is running its Cordova plant canning apple sauce. This is a new departure for this section and is made possible by the fact that large orchards with unlimited supplies of apples are grown in Talbot county close to this plant.

Cambridge.—Register of Wills Russell P. Smith, while returning from Baltimore broke his left ankle in stepping off of the electric car at Annapolis in order to take the Annapolis-Clarksburg Ferry. Through the assistance of friends he succeeded in getting on the steamer.

Hagerstown.—Charles Edward Roach, aged 85, a retired merchant of this city, died at his home here following a short illness. He was born in Baltimore in 1838 and moved with his parents to West Virginia in his boyhood. After reaching his majority he went into business in Falling Waters, W. Va., and later in Beddingford.

Centerville.—Thomas J. Keating, appointed by Governor Ritchie last week as associate judge of the Second Judicial Circuit in place of the late Judge Philemon Hopper, took oath of office here Saturday. His first appearance on the bench will be at the opening of the October term of court at Denton tomorrow morning.

Oakland.—The water conditions in Garrett county have become so serious that many farmers, as a result of the continued dry weather, have been compelled for more than a week past either to drive their stock to nearby streams or haul water in barrels to their barns. The first heavy frost of the season visited Garrett county last Tuesday morning, in some cases destroying tender vegetation.

Baltimore.—Establishment in Baltimore of a branch of the National Dairymen's Council may develop from negotiations authorized by producers and distributors of dairy products, meeting in the office of the State Board of Agriculture. Dr. A. F. Woods, president of the University of Maryland, who presided at the meeting, said the national council has an extensive educational program to stimulate use of milk and its products.

Frostburg.—Paul Rodgers, aged 21, a private guard employed by the Consolidation Coal Company near Rockwood, may lose his right hand, which was mangled with bullets when a riotous mob went off in some unaccountable manner while he was leaning on it, with both hands over the muzzle. Rodgers was watching men pass along the road, when the weapon went off, where the bleeding was checked. It is believed that amputation may be necessary.

St. Mary's City.—In the sleepy little God's acre of St. Mary's Protestant Episcopal Church, on the St. Mary's river, there will take place on Wednesday afternoon, October 25, a simple ceremony which, after nearly 250 years, will complete the first chapter of the history of Maryland. The service will dedicate the memorial erected by the Maryland Chapter of the Colonial Dames of America to Lionel Copley, first royal Governor of the province, and which will be presented to the rectory and the vestry of St. Mary's, the Rev. Alfred Harding, bishop of Washington; the Rev. John G. Murray, bishop of Maryland, and the Rev. C. W. Whitmore, rector of St. Mary's parish, will officiate at the service. A historic address will be made by James Walter Thomas.

Upper Marlboro.—It was a great day for Southern Maryland. Not for many years has this town, the historic county seat of Prince George's seen such a crowd as gathered here Saturday to celebrate the beginning of construction of the Robert Crain Highway, the million-dollar State road that is to form a trunk line between Baltimore and the Southern Maryland counties west of the Patuxent. Between 6,000 and 7,000 persons came from Baltimore and all parts of lower Maryland to take part in the festivities and to share the hospitality that was bestowed with open-handed generosity. The celebration began with the arrival of a special train bearing members of the Merchants and Manufacturers' Association and their friends and the Southern Maryland Society. The festivities lasted all day and into the night. There were speeches, a pageant composed of floats representing the five Maryland counties—St. Mary's, Anne Arundel, Calvert, Charles and Prince George's—symbolic exercises portraying the new union between Baltimore and Southern Maryland and music by the Naval Academy band.

The town was decorated from one end to the other, and the Fair Grounds, where luncheon was served and where the afternoon exercises were held, was a blaze of color. Governor Ritchie drove over from Annapolis and received one of the most notable receptions of his official career.

And Nothing Less Worthy. There is nothing lighter than vain praise.—William Drummond.

STATE CAPITAL

Start Memorial Armistice Day, Baltimore.

Armistice Day will be set as the date for laying the cornerstones of the War Memorial Building in the Civic Centre, if plans being made by Mayor Broening mature satisfactorily, the Mayor announced. The exercises would take place at 11 A. M., the hour when hostilities ceased.

Arrangements for the ceremony will be made by the joint committee representing the city and State in preliminaries to erection of the building and a special committee to be named by the Mayor and Governor Ritchie.

The Mayor sent the Governor the following letter bearing upon the proposal:

"The Joint Memorial Commission plans and specifications ready to secure bids and have the Memorial Building under contract so that the cornerstones may be laid on Armistice Day. The plan would be to have a committee representing the State and municipality arrange for suitable ceremonies.

"I would be most happy to have you join with me in the selection of a committee so that there may be representatives from every county in the State as well as from the city.

"It occurs to me that the proper hour for the ceremonies would be at 11 o'clock in the morning, after which my purpose would be to entertain the out-of-town delegates at luncheon, at which of course I shall be most happy to have you as my guest."

"That the plan can be carried out appears assured, since Lawrence Hall Fowler, architect of the structure has brought the plans to a state where the contract can be let within a short time. Considerable foundation preparation would be necessary before laying of the cornerstones, but it is believed this can be carried out in time for the ceremony on Armistice Day.

In the event that the cornerstones be laid November 11, the possibilities are that particularly impressive ceremonies will be arranged to mark the double observance. Each year since the armistice the city has officially recognized the anniversary, but year a public memorial ceremony on the memorial day being carried out.

A campaign to arouse the interest of farmers throughout Maryland in the eradication of garlic is being undertaken this fall by the University of Maryland extension service, according to Dr. Thomas B. Symons, director, who points to the economic waste now resulting from the prevalence of this weed.

"It has long been recognized," says Dr. Symons, "that wheat growers have been sustaining annual losses as the result of a discrimination in price against garlicy wheat. From 5 to 10 cents per bushel has been the usual discount on wheat containing garlic, although immediately following the war this discount ran as high as 20 cents. Garlic in pasture lands had also been a source of annoyance and loss to dairymen of the State.

"Garlic eradication is not a new project. The extension service and the county agents have been advocating the elimination of garlic from farm lands for a good many years. This fall, however, an effort will be made to get concerted action against garlic. Information as to the methods by which garlic is spread and how it may be eradicated will be sent broadcast throughout the State in an effort to organize a campaign against it. Special exhibits, dealing with methods of garlic eradication, will be made at all the county fairs.

"It would seem that the best method of obtaining results would be to interest all farmers in a community in the work. This would not only have the advantage of preventing the possible spread of garlic from one farm to another but would give the farmers of a community a better price for garlic-free wheat.

"Methods of eradication are simple, but entail some additional work and a slight change in crop rotations. The first step is late fall plowing of garlic-infested land. Usually this may be done in November, when the garlic plant has attained a height of about a foot. The land is permitted to be bare over winter and the following spring is planted in corn. The next fall late plowing is again recommended and the land planted the following spring to soybeans, cowpeas, potatoes or any other spring crop. Wheat may then be sown in the fall, together with the customary grass and clover. The use of seed wheat absolutely free of garlic must be emphasized."

Baltimore.—Settlement of the rail and coal strikes of recent months has been followed by a sharp upward turn in business volume, placing industry on a much improved position and holding a happy augury for the immediate future. A. S. Goldsborough, general manager of the Merchants and Manufacturers' Association, declared in his monthly review. A month ago Mr. Goldsborough declared that business needed only settling of the striking strikes to enable it to bound forward with a distinct impulse. In his statement, based on surveys in virtually every local industry, he declared his former position justified.

BOY SCOUTS

(Conducted by National Council of the Boy Scouts of America.)

HERE COME THE SCOUTS

Scouts may go out for a good time, but their first and training is always ready to be called into action.

Some Philadelphia scouts were holding a field meet at Independence park. They had just finished a first aid contest when a call for assistance came from another end of the park where a woman had fallen on some broken glass, receiving severe lacerations on the head. Their first aid knowledge at their finger tips, the scouts hurried to the injured woman. As they approached, the crowd gave way. "Stand back, stand back, here come the scouts." The story ends by we would have it: The woman received help and was restored to her home.

But in this park other work was awaiting the first aiders. The scouts were now having a bite of lunch when word came that a small boy had been hit with a baseball bat, and his Sunday school teacher was looking for help. In a twinkling the scouts were at the side of the wounded boy, and again administered treatment to the suffering.

This story now changes its principal to Troop 182 of South Philadelphia, and its location to Pennypack creek. Here the boys, while camping near the stream, discovered a young boy, not a scout, who had just fallen from a tree near by. Scoutmaster Saks soon diagnosed the boy's injuries as body abrasions and a fractured femur. Saks dressed the arm with a splint, and with the aid of Assistant Scoutmaster Fogel, obtained an auto and took the boy to Frankford hospital.

More was to come to test preparedness, for when the scoutmaster returned to the camp and had gone in swimming with his boy, he was struck by a heavy log near by where a boy, not a scout in this case either, was lying on the ground, an eight cut on his head, having struck his head on the log. Scoutmaster was dressing the wound when a doctor arrived.

HIS THIRD RESCUE

Earl Hunter, fourteen-year-old member of Troop 14, Syracuse, N. Y., was riding his bicycle recently along the bank of Onondaga creek when he heard screams and saw a boy being carried down the stream which was congested with floating lumber. Hunter, without taking the time to strip off his coat, jumped into the creek, swam to the helpless boy and grasping him securely with one of the belt he had learned at the scout camp, brought the drowning boy safely to the shore. Hunter, who has three rescues to his credit, was a winner of the Junior Red Cross life-saving badge last summer. Last year Hunter pulled a boy out of the waters of Crooked lake. Two years ago he rescued his small brother from drowning at Jordan.

AMERICAN LEGION TO HELP

Many thousands of boys will have the advantages of scouting who are now asking in vain for admission because scoutmasters and troop facilities are not available. If the vigorous efforts of the American Legion to induce every Legion post in the United States to become sponsor for at least one troop of boy scouts succeeds, a recent issue of the American Legion Weekly contains a ringing call to posts to do this, signed by Commander-in-Chief Hamilton MacNider. Mr. MacNider writes: "No finer teaching of loyalty and patriotism, no finer training for useful, clean American citizenship exists than that of the Boy Scouts of America."

GOOD TURN TO AVIATORS

Marking of the cities and towns in western Pennsylvania for aviators en route to Pittsburgh, as proposed by Maj. B. H. Mulvihill, president of the Aero club of Pittsburgh, will be one of the special community services to be rendered by boy scouts. The plan is to have the scouts make great letters from stones gathered in the waste places of the district. These letters are to be painted white or white washed to spell out the names of localities.

HOW

AERIAL ACTIVITIES ARE LOOKED UPON BY MOROS.—Army pilots assigned to the Third squadron, which recently served a temporary tour of duty at Jolo, Sulu archipelago, have been bringing back interesting tales of how the natives act and what they think of the aerial activities on and about Jolo. Some Moros believe the airplane an embassy from Allah. Others believe the superhuman occupants all-seeing and all-powerful, and still others that the plane is a dragon flown out of the South seas come to wreak divine vengeance on all bad Moros, according to an old Arabic legend. Capt. John I. Moore reports that while on a reconnaissance flight near Bigibutin in South Jolo, he was at a loss to account for a native who was riding along the highway, holding aloft an outstretched arm a small white object as if in supplication. In explaining the fact later to Major Stephen, commander of the local constabulary, that officer, having heard of similar incidents, stated that certain natives are authorized to carry barongs or knives by written permission.

Those who are apprehended with knives, but without permits, are severely punished. The native in question, who was carrying a barong, was holding his permit aloft for Captain Moore to read from airplane, in fear that one of the fearsome bombs he had heard so much of might be dropped on him otherwise, or that the plane might swoop down upon him and confiscate his weapon.

How Sand Dunes Travel.

In the desert of La Jora, Peru, there are thousands of crescent-shaped sand dunes formed by the winds and slowly advancing across the level surface. One investigator measured one of these dunes, the points of whose crescent were 100 feet apart, while the length around the convex side was 477 feet. The width at the widest part of the crescent was more than 100 feet. The weight of the sand composing the dune was estimated at 8,000 tons. All yet it moved 125 feet in a year. All the dunes have the same form, and have the convex side toward the prevailing south wind.

Why Bridesmaids Get Presents.

The custom of giving presents to bridesmaids originated in a form of toll. The bride's girl friends went through the form of presenting the bridegroom and his friends from taking her from her home, a mock battle ensued, each party pelting the other with sweetmeats, and this was finally settled by the bridegroom making presents to all the girls.

Has Ice at All Seasons

Montana Indian, Digging Well, Scambling Game Upon Most Remarkable Freak of Nature.

More than eight years ago John Spotted Wolf, an Indian of the Cheyenne reservation in eastern Montana, decided that he should like to have a well near his log cabin. So he and his wife Mary chose a spot near a large pine tree, perhaps 20 yds from the door, and then John began to dig. By noon of the second day he had dug down ten feet. Although the weather was mild, he had complained of being cold while at work. After getting up on an extra coat and went to work again. His wife Mary and her brother Hoop Bill, by hauling up and carrying away the dirt that he loosened. But in spite of the third morning he found more nothing; but when night came and the well had reached the depth of 15 feet he was almost frozen.

The next morning he again descended the well and worked as rapidly as his many layers of clothing would permit. After a while water began to appear. Suddenly he shouted: "Pull me up! Pull me up!"

John had barely reached the surface before the well filled to within a foot of the top and then began to freeze around the edges. In a short time only a small opening perhaps a foot in diameter remained.

The well remains the same way year after year. The Youth's Companion states. During the day in summer the sun melts the ice around the top, but at night it freezes again. The well, which furnishes a permanent ice supply for the people in the neighborhood, is a strange freak of nature. Such there are so many in the western part of the state. Tourists who visit the reservation regard it as a great curiosity.

Right-Sightedness.

The objection comes from France that the majority of people are not only right-handed but also right-sighted. By this is meant that most persons see better with the right eye than with the left and habitually, though unconsciously, employ it more. Some persons, however, make greater use of the left eye than of the right, and accordingly are said to be "left-eyed."

Whence Alfalfa's Name.

Alfalfa is really a Spanish name for the Medicago Sativa, to give it its full botanical name. It is also known as Spanish trefolium. It may be termed one of the old timers on this continent as it was brought over to this country by the early Spaniards. It took very kindly to its new home and now is known and valued as fodder in many parts of Canada and the United States.

The Hessian Fly.

Serious losses, running as high as twenty-five per cent of the crop in some localities, have been attributed to the Hessian Fly during the past year, says E. N. Cory, State Entomologist, who cautions farmers against a repetition of the infestation unless the safe dates for planting wheat are observed.

The safe dates for planting wheat have been calculated anew, says Mr. Cory, and correspond very closely with the actual practice of the best-trained farmers in the different sections of the State. It has also been determined that the safe date for sowing wheat to avoid depredations by the Hessian Fly is identical with the average date on which wheat may be sown to secure the best development of the plant and yield of grain.

The safe wheat planting dates as calculated for the different sections of Maryland for an elevation of two hundred feet are given by Mr. Cory as follows:

Cecil, north half of Harford, extreme north tip of Baltimore and Carroll Counties, Sept. 29 to Oct. 9; upper half of Kent, northeast Queen Anne's, lower Harford, middle Baltimore, nearly all of Carroll, upper half of Frederick and Washington Counties, Sept. 30 to Oct. 10; upper half of Caroline, practically all of Queen Anne's, upper Ards Arundel, lower portion of Baltimore and Carroll, all of Howard, upper tip of Montgomery, lower tip of Frederick and Washington, most of Allegany and upper half of Garrett, Oct. 1 to Oct. 11; lower half of Caroline, all but southern tip of Talbot, lower Anne Arundel, upper Prince George's, nearly all of Montgomery, southern extremity of Allegany, and southern two-thirds of Garrett, Oct. 2 to 12; upper tip of Worcester, upper half of Wisconsin and Dorchester, lower portion of Anne Arundel and Prince George's and upper half of Calvert, Oct. 3 to 13; middle portion of Worcester, upper tip of Somerset, lower half of Wisconsin, Dorchester and Calvert, nearly all of Charles and upper tip of St. Mary's Oct. 4 to 14; lower Worcester, nearly all of Somerset and St. Mary's and the southern portion of Charles, Oct. 5 to 15.

The dates should be advanced or retarded, explains Mr. Cory, as the elevation in the different sections happens to be above or below 200 feet. The dates should be one day earlier than those given for each 100 feet of elevation above 200 and one day later for each 100 feet of elevation below 200.

Expect to Improve Ironshire Church Property

Work was begun to improve the property of the Ironshire M. E. Church last Saturday morning. Several trees were taken out of the yard, and those left were trimmed. It is contemplated to grade the yard and plant shrubbery this fall; to paint the church outside and inside, and to secure a church bell as soon as possible.

A festival will be held on the church lawn Saturday night, October 7th. Committees have also been appointed to wait upon the people of the community, and to receive their subscriptions for the work.

The lively interest being displayed by all concerned, together with the willingness of all to help, has given assurance that the improvements contemplated will not long be delayed. Everybody helping makes the work easy and insures that no one will be unduly burdened.

MARYLAND BOYS TAKE GOLD CUP

American Youngsters Win Northcliffe Trophy in Live-stock Judging Contest.

VISIT ENGLISH STOCK FARMS

Youths Given Opportunity to Inspect Cattle and Horse Farms While on Trip to Royal Agricultural Society Show.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.) During a year made notable by American successes in international contests, not the least important event was the winning of the Northcliffe gold cup by the team of Maryland boys sent to England by the Southern Fair association, Atlanta, Ga., after defeating all club teams in the live-stock judging competition among boys' agricultural club members in the United States. These boys—Warren Rice, Joseph Gladden, and George Wood—of Cecil county, recently returned to their homes, with experiences that fall to the lot of few boys.

In competing with the English team for the cup offered by Lord Northcliffe, publisher of the London Daily Mail, July 5, the American boys judged classes of British Friesians, Guernseys, and Dairy Shorthorns. The English team, one member of which was a girl, was selected from about 250 club members now enrolled in work with gardens, pigs, poultry, calves, and bees, under the leadership of the London Daily Mail. This work was begun two years ago as a result of observations made by Lord Northcliffe during a visit to the United States. He was so impressed with the work of the American boys that he decided to send a team to England to compete with the best of the English boys.

Before attending the Royal Agricultural Society show, where they competed for the gold cup, the American boys visited Edinburgh, parts of Scotland famous for Shorthorn cattle and Clydesdale horses, a number of English stock farms, and a typical county fair at Doncaster. At the royal show they attended one of the annual auction sales that drew buyers from Denmark, France, Spain, and even from the Far East. Following the show the party took a flying trip to the French battlefields, reaching Paris in time to witness the celebration of Bastille Day, the French "Fourth of July." The boys were accompanied by E. G. Jenkin, state boys' club agent of the Maryland extension service, and C. L. Chambers of the United States Department of Agriculture.

"Our boys impressed the English breeders with their thorough knowledge and ready apprehension of the animals shown them," said Mr. Chambers. "They were keenly alert to the opportunities that came to them to study the results of generations of painstaking work by English live-stock breeders. The contest gave them an opportunity to demonstrate to old England the benefits resulting from the inspiration and training that a half million American farm boys and girls receive every year under the guidance of the United States Department of Agriculture and the state agricultural colleges."

COST OF GRADING FOR ROADS

Government Statistics Show That Price in Recent Months Has Gradually Declined.

The cost of grading for highway construction apparently has reached a stable condition, according to statistics of the bureau of public roads of the United States Department of Agriculture. The average cost per cubic yard for grading on federal-aid roads rose from 38 cents in 1917 to a peak price of 68 cents in 1920, and has since gradually declined.

On federal-aid work contracted for in the last three months the average price per cubic yard for the whole United States was 33 cents in April, 32 cents in May, and 34 cents in June. The cost of other items entering into road work also shows a general tendency toward stabilization, although in many cases not as marked as that for earthwork.

RED CROSS PUTS UP $9,739,872

Year's Budget Stresses Relief and Services at Home and Overseas.

MILLIONS FOR VETERAN AID

Over $3,000,000 Allotted to the Disabled—Foreign Work Lessens.

Washington—Expenditures totaling $9,739,872.47 for carrying through its program of services and relief during the fiscal year in the United States and overseas are authorized in the budget of the American Red Cross, effective July 1, 1922. This total is $2,735,975 less than the expenditures for the last fiscal year, when disbursements reached $12,475,847.63. It is announced at National Headquarters in a statement emphasizing the necessity of continued support of the organization by enrollment during the annual Roll Call, November 13-November 30 inclusive. This total for the budget is exclusive of the large financial operations of the 3,300 active Red Cross chapters, which, it is estimated, will more than double the total.

War Veterans Have First Call

First call on Red Cross funds is for the disabled ex-service men, of whom 27,487 were receiving treatment from the Government on June 1 last. This work for veterans and their families in a wide variety of service that the Government is not authorized to render and for which it has neither funds nor facilities has the call on $3,000,000 during the current year, or about $300,000 more than was expended last year for soldier service. Adding the funds disbursed in this humanitarian work of physical reconstruction following the World War by the chapters throughout the country will approximate a total for the current year approaching $10,000,000. This work, in the opinion of the Surgeon General's office, will not reach its peak before 1926.

Through its chapters the American Red Cross is equipped to find the individual ex-service man, help him in his problems and difficulties, provide immediately for his necessities, and open the way for him to the Government compensation and aid to which he is entitled. The extension of this work to the families of such men is a wide variety of service that the Government is not authorized to render and for which it has neither funds nor facilities has the call on $3,000,000 during the current year, or about $300,000 more than was expended last year for soldier service.

Great Domestic Program

This year's budget stresses a constructive effort during the war and after the armistice—brings with it a greater responsibility for domestic service to the American Red Cross. The budget for foreign operations, however, totals $3,941,000, but of this amount $1,824,000 is for medical relief and hospital supplies for Russia, which is a part of the gift made by the Russian famine relief work of the American Relief Administration program. The child health service in Europe continues, moreover, and $51,000 is appropriated for this work undertaken in 1920. Other items in the stringently diminished foreign program include $200,000 to support the League of Red Cross Societies, $22,000 for nurses' training schools instituted by the Red Cross abroad, and $600,000 for liquidation of the general Red Cross foreign relief program.

Prepared for Emergencies

For disaster relief the Red Cross has set aside $700,000, and for emergencies in Chapter work $500,000 to be available for domestic, insular and foreign demands. This is more than $300,000 above last year's expenditures. For service and assistance to the 3,300 chapters and their branches $1,200,000 is provided by the National organization. Other budget items of importance in the domestic program include $200,000 for assistance to other organizations and education institutions for training Red Cross nurses and workers; $100,000 for Roll Call assistance furnished to chapters; $100,000 for unforeseen contingencies.

Of the total budget less than $500,000 is allotted for management in the National organization. No cash estimate, of course, is possible to weigh the value of the service by volunteers in the chapters.

The State Convention.

The Maryland Sunday School Association will celebrate the 80th anniversary of its organization in the old historic First Methodist Episcopal Church of Baltimore, October 18-20. The date has been moved from November to avoid the rains, and the best have been secured for this Convention.

In addition to the Confessors, which will occupy two entire forenoons and which are of inestimable value, a wonderful program has been nearly completed. Dr. G. A. Halbert, pastor of Brown Memorial Presbyterian Church, gives one of the greatest Adult Bible Class addresses in the United States, and he will give his address as the opening and keynote of the Convention.

Wm. H. Ridgway, the iron manufacturer of Coatesville, Pa., known to tens of thousands by his unique weekly contributions to the Sunday School Times, will open the eyes of the whole state as to the relation of business to religion, and especially of great business men to the Sunday School. It has just appeared that only five per cent of the members of Congress are not church members.

The wizard speaker of Washington, Dr. C. G. Chappell of the great Representative Church, which is not large enough to hold the audience, will also speak upon an Adult topic.

Mrs. Maud Junkin Baldwin, International Elementary Superintendent, who has admirably mastered herself to Maryland and has just put forth a remarkable book on elementary work, will lead the elementary work of the Convention.

Mayor Albert W. Roper, of Norfolk, whose class, it is stated, sends $1000 a month on its activities, has also accepted an invitation to be present.

John L. Alexander, the greatest Young People's worker in the world and the head of the International Sunday School Association, will be one of the strong characters of the Convention.

Dr. Hugh S. Magill, Field Secretary of the National Education Association and now General Secretary of the International Sunday School Association, will be present.

A program committee has been at work for weeks to put on a program of the first night of the Convention with 185 persons taking part, entitled "The Lamp." The membership of this committee insures its success beyond question. They are Mr. Daniel A. Hauer, Mrs. E. A. Bandholtz, Miss Augusta Fenton, Miss Goldie Park, Miss Marie Stahl and Miss May Wharton. In addition to the First M. E. Church, St. Mark's Lutheran, Associate Congregational, St. John's M. P. and St. Michael and All Angels Churches have been secured.

Excellent Reason.

The railroad station at Meridian, Tex., is about a mile from the busi-ness part of the town. One night a sleepy, weary traveling man said to the man who was driving him to the hotel: "Old man, why did they put this depot so far from town?"

"The driver craned his head in thought and replied: "Well, boss, I's 'oiced to admit dat I has n't given de matter'scient cogitation, but jes' jumped up for a answer like dis: I's 'posed dey done dat so as to have de depot as near as possible to the railroad."

Your Help Is Needed.

Blame whom you will for the Smyrna horror; the least Americans over here can do to contribute promptly and generously to the Smyrna Emergency Fund of the Near East Relief. From Constantinople headquarters, Director Jeannette of this organized American relief agency for Anatolia (chartered by Congress) was sent immediately to Smyrna on a United States Destroyer with a medical unit and supplies. Responding to the request of the U. S. State Department to do its utmost, Near East Relief advanced $25,000 and then a second $25,000, first in food, medical supplies and stores collected at Constantinople for its regular work; and, since the fire, some steamers besides destroyers have been secured to transport refugees. The call now is to feed temporarily hundreds of thousands of refugees—homeless, helpless men, women and children—and convey them to places of greater safety where they will not starve to death or breed pestilence. How Maryland best can help Smyrna relief will be a special feature of the Maryland Conference on October 11, at First Unitarian Church, Charles and Franklin Sts., Baltimore. Send checks for this special Emergency Fund to Maryland Near East Relief, John E. Boisseau, Treasurer, 14 W. Franklin St., Baltimore, Md.

Christ's Deepest Longing

By REV. J. H. SCHAFER, Director of Evening Classes, Moody Bible Institute, Chicago.

TEXT—Loved thou me?—John 21:15.

A strange question for a man to ask. It sounds like the plea of a woman.

Yet there is no trace of femininity. It is the heart hunger of a strong princely soul.

The asking presumes the expectancy of love, and also intimates its disappointment. The consistent expressions of a deep and unchanging affection will never provoke an inquiry of doubt.

The man interrogated was the foremost apostle, distinguished by wonderful experiences. A rough, uneducated, profane fisherman, he was one day introduced to Jesus. His life was never again the same.

For more than three years Peter kept most intimate company with Jesus, devoted, energetic, faithful in the work of winning men.

Jesus Christ was divine, but His deity did not interfere with His development as a human being.

The trial before Pilate was ended. Condemned as a blasphemer against God and the temple, Jesus was led away and crucified on Calvary's lonely hill.

Condemned as a blasphemer against God and the temple, Jesus was led away and crucified on Calvary's lonely hill.

IMPROVED UNIFORM INTERNATIONAL Sunday School Lesson

By REV. P. E. FITZWATER, D. D., Teacher of English Bible in the Moody Bible Institute of Chicago.

LESSON FOR OCTOBER 8

THE BIRTH AND CHILDHOOD OF JESUS

LESSON TEXT—Luke 2:1-30; 40-52. GOLDEN TEXT—And Jesus increased in wisdom and stature, and in favor with God and man.—Luke 2:52.

1. The Birth of Jesus (vv. 1-7). 1. Time of (vv. 1-3). It was at a time when the Jews were coming under the Roman power.

2. Place of (vv. 4-6). Bethlehem, as the prophet had foretold 700 years before (Micah 5:2). God moved the emperor to enforce the decree of taxation in time to cause Mary to be at Bethlehem.

3. The Nature of the Message (vv. 10-14). It was good tidings of great joy. It was good tidings because the way of salvation was about to be opened for all—Jew and Gentile.

4. The Shepherds' Witness (vv. 15-20). They made a prompt investigation of the angel's message.

5. Mary's Complaint (vv. 43-50). She reproached with Him, for His behavior. To this He replied in a dignified, yet tender manner.

6. Jesus' Development (v. 52). (1) Mental. He "increased in wisdom." (2) Spiritual. He "increased in stature." (3) Physical. He "increased in favor with God and man."

Wisdom to Be Desired. Wisdom is better than rubies; and all the things that may be desired are not to be compared to it.—Proverbs 8:11.

A Long Fight.

Two young Japanese scholars, so the story goes, hated the Christian Bible, and attacked it with all their might. But in reading it one of them, in spite of himself, was converted by its teachings.

This heathen scholar was drafted as a private into the Japanese army, in the Russo-Japanese War, and sent to Manchuria. But, to his disgust, he found that his sergeant was a earnest Christian.

The heathen hater of the Bible was struck dumb. It seemed to him that the Bible was everywhere that he turned. He came to his old friend next day and cried:

"I surrender! I surrender! That God of yours and that Book of yours find me out wherever I go. Now I will try to know them!"

The long fight was over; he studied the Word of God with a changed heart, and now is an applicant for baptism in the faith he once fought against so hard and bitterly.

In a Christian land shall a young man be even less open-minded than this Japanese student?—Forward, Nov. 15th, 1913.

The woman stood in the doorway for parting words that were sure to be as long as the original call. She was not in a happy frame of mind—she seldom was, for life had been hard, poor creature! and she had fallen into a way of telling over her griefs as a nun does her roary.

"An' so, what with bein' poor, an' no health to speak of, an' Mary Ann's, an' Jim gone wrong, there's no comfort nowhere," she concluded. "I ain't got no sunshine in my life."

"Well, if she hasn't any sunshine of her own she needn't stop other people's all the time," muttered small Johnny in a too-audible whisper to the little sister at his side.

DOULTRY FEED AND CARE FOR PULLETS

Most Common Mistake to Give Fowls Free Range and Compel Them to Hustle for Living.

When should an April pullet begin laying? Generally the statement is made that Leghorn pullets should begin when five to five and one-half months old; Rhode Island Reds and Wyandotte pullets take a month longer and Plymouth Rocks still another month.

An investigation made by Purdue University developed the fact that many flocks are not doing as well as they could if the young pullets were properly fed and cared for.

In the Signal Box

By ERNEST LEVINE

Three Points was a responsible situation, though fewer than a dozen trains passed through it each day. Carter was a white-haired fellow of thirty-five, with a white beard and white hair. The Westbound Limited passed Three Points at six on a winter's night. Dressed in full speed, though with a touch of his hand Carter could have raised the signal against her. That could not be done. She had to pass to take the siding to permit the East Special to founder on its way along the single track. The dispatcher had blamed Carter the telegram. Happen what might, the Westbound must take that siding, half a mile down the track, and to pull up on to smash into the other train, whose engine and tender were on the bridge, two miles back in the mountains, was already audible.

The flutter of a lily white dress, right on the metals. Minnie's voice. "My foot's caught, daddy daddy!" And the thunder of the train in Carter's ears. And the roar of the other train across the mountain bridge. The train must make a siding, or good-night to several score of human lives. On the other side? One life, a child's, but his own! Yes, Carter's hair was snow-white the next morning. He stood in the signal box, listening to the thunder of the oncoming train. There was still just time to yield to that almost irresistible impulse. To set the signal, run out of the box, snatch his child from the rails and— And? The traditions of the railroad service prevailed over the instincts of the father. The train came into sight, a fiery monster, bearing down upon that patch of white. The little voice—was it imagination?—seemed to ring in his ears. "Daddy! My foot's caught, daddy!" Then the train rolled over the place. No cry reached Carter's ears. It was gone to the siding, and a minute later the second train passed in the opposite direction. Then Carter left the box. Two trains had passed over the place, and in the dark Carter could see nothing, no sign or trace of evidence of what had happened. Quietly, because he had suffered all that a man may endure without losing his sanity, he made his way toward his cottage near the line. And every step he took he was thinking, "How shall I tell Ella? How shall I tell Ella?" He remembered the strong scent of the vines upon the porch. He went with haggard mien up the three wooden steps. It's wife came to the door. "Dear—what's the matter? Oh, what's the matter?" "What?" He tried to tell her, but all he could say was "Minnie—Minnie—" "Minnie? She's inside, playing with her railroad." "What?" Carter ran into the house, incredulous. There on the floor sat the child, winding her clockwork engine. He snatched her into his arms. "Minnie, child, have you been here all this time?" "Oh, a long, long time, daddy. And what do you think? The points of the rails ran into my foot, and I couldn't get them out for ever so long. And then, through the dark, I saw something white on the line."

KEEP YOUNG STOCK GROWING

Succulent Green Feed, Variety of Grain, Fresh Water and Shade Are of Importance.

So long as the young stock have plenty of succulent green feed, a variety of grain, fresh water, shade and exercise, together with well-ventilated sleeping quarters, they will grow like the proverbial weed, but if the growth is stunted by the lack of any one of these essentials, gain is slower even when conditions become normal than it would have been. The poultry grower gets tired; surely the chickens ought to be all right for one night—but that very night is the night the chickens take to pile up. Morning finds the half-grown stock gaunt; a day or so shows them with the dirty nostrils that come when the catarrhal discharge has filled with dust. A cold from crowding soon becomes a rumpy cold unless prompt action leads it off, and one night's neglect has cost plenty.

MATURE CHICKENS ON RANGE

Good Summer Ration for Hens is Mixture of Wheat, Oats and Corn, One Part Each.

Encourage mature chickens to range by feeding them sparingly. A good summer ration for hens consists of 1 part wheat, 1 part oats, and 1 part corn, by weight. More eggs are obtained where the birds are fed a little grain than when forced to depend upon "pickings" about the farm.

Mythological Personages

Heien was the daughter of Zeus, the great Greek god, and the wife of Menelaus of Sparta. She was the most beautiful woman in Greece, and was indirectly the cause of the Trojan war. She was carried off by Paris, the son of Priam, to Troy, it being claimed that the goddess of love, Aphrodite, had much to do with persuading her to leave her husband, Menelaus. After the death of Paris she married his brother, whom she later betrayed when Troy was captured by the Greeks. She then returned to Sparta with Menelaus, and lived happily with her original husband until their death.

A Burnt Sacrifice

By MARTHA M. WILLIAMS

(Copyright, 1912, by McClure Newspaper Syndicate)

"Young man, what did ye come after?" Squire Jans asked severely of the tall stripling who sat unsteadily on the edge of his chair in front of a snapping fire. "After—after Polly, please, sir. Mammy sent me. She says it ain't fair, you with six children, her with none. She—she likes Polly best, as she does me," came tumbling out all in a huddle. The squire lay back in his spin-bottomed armchair, laughing hard but silently. A full minute he laughed; then wiping his eyes, hung at the youngster: "Go back and tell your mammy, Polly, nor none of my gals ain't to be had for her sake—nor yours. I hope they marry and—well, but they must look out for woin," scolding emphatic on the word "woin," scolding that can't say the word for himself and has to hold on to mammy's apron string or fall sprawling." "I'll tell her, and thank you, sir," said the boy Jans, but with a touch of sullenness. "I ain't sayin' nothin' against Polly, she's top notch—but if I had the pickin', why, I'd say words to Melia. She's little and soft and cuddles like a new-batched chicken." "Humph! Ever tell her so?" the squire questioned. "No, sir. I'm not free yet—won't be twenty-one till day after next 'lection. Mammy says I couldn't get a license to marry nobody till then 'strictly she give consent," the lad began. "You believe her?" the squire exploded. "I have to—ain't she mammy?" Joe Jans answered with an air of finality. "I finks! Seems like she's got you under her thumb for fair," the squire chuckled. "Wonder how she manages it? Tell her if she'll show me and made it work on my flock I'll give her leave to choose among 'em—provided it aint Polly.

"You Believe Her?"

"But she wants Polly; nobody else," Joe protested finally. "Polly suits her. Both of 'em are the up-and-comin' sort. She says the others are stack-rusted, else lazy or assy, all but Ella, and she's got too much religion. I tried my best to tell her how she and Polly'd fight; but she's the sort we can't tell—go always to show her."

"Ye won't never have the chance to show her that, Polly's sweet for your mammy, son—or anybody else's. Search the length of Brush Creek, ye won't find her match—not for looks, nor sense, nor real judgment—specialty of men—and even boys like you," the squire asserted.

"What's your collogy of my name? Not you, dad? Surely not you?" a gay girl voice called from the outer hall. Polly burst through it into the warm tobacco-scented room, her eyes stary, her cheeks twin damask roses.

"What are you two collogin' about with such solemn owl eyes?" she asked. "Better go out and take a run to match mine. I never stopped from the top of the Red Hill to the door here at home."

"I'm down with rheumatism if you don't watch out," the squire said with a smothered chuckle. "Just now you mustn't think of dying. Here's Joe sent by his mammy to court and marry you right out of hand. What d'ye say to it?"

"Why, let me see! Loc's like there's a heap of good work in him—so long and tall, I'd never need a ladder," Polly answered reflectively, though her eyes danced. "But I won't marry anybody that hasn't money. How much you got, Joe? Cold cash, remember, not prospects?"

"Why, I—I—but it don't matter; squire says I shan't have no," Joe stammered eagerly. The squire winked at Polly.

"That's a put-off," he said severely. "What he wants is Melia. We can't let him have her and leave you dancing in the pig trough."

the Green place the day I can," Joe answered artlessly. "Joe, you take my breath! I didn't know there was no such money in the world, much less in the neighborhood," Polly cried. "But say, sonny, get lead out of your mind. There's plenty already in the family—enough and more if there are four brothers to divide it. Better take the money and go to college. I'd have tried to get you in the notion years back if I had dreamed you were so well fixed."

"Thank you, mam," Joe said, out-bushing the reddest beet. "But you don't understand, I love my mammy like the best of all hearts. I want her to live years and years and years. She's good to me—to all of us—her don't sense we're grown up. She never will, unless I break away. I want a home—"

"And little Melia in it, eh?" Polly interrupted. Joe bowed his head. "I wouldn't swap it for heaven," he said in a choked voice. "As long as I hide at home in mammy's home I feel bound to mind her, no matter what she says. That makes me shy and backward-gauntin' too. I can't feel nor look rightly grown up. But let me get my feet on my own doorstep, I shan't be afraid of nothin' nor nobody."

"You do need room to grow," Polly said, suddenly sober. "Better try college rather than matrimony. I've always held an education would make a big man of you. Why not give yourself the chance?"

"And let some other fellow carry off Melia? Not for this world and two more like it!" Joe cried hoarsely. "Please, please, Polly, don't you laugh at me. Help me—you always have done it—else I'd run away two years back."

"I remember," Polly said very low, swallowing something that made her utterance thick. "Now run along home and have it out with mammy. Tell her Melia's worth twenty of me—even if you could have me."

"You want to fight a battle royal. A drawn battle this first time, but he won at the last. Slightly, indirectly, Polly helped him. She was very jolly all that summer, joking with mammy whenever they met over their joint disappointment. "We never would have had a dull minute. It's a shame to think of all the good fights that won't ever be fought," she mourned, her eyes the while twinkling their wickedest.

"Heavily we ought to make the turtle doves wait up! I find a man brave enough to marry me. Simply dreadful to have a child five years younger writing herself Mrs. so far ahead of me." Thus she kept all Brush Creek neighborhood in a titter, and at last brought off the wedding, not in a blaze of glory but in the quiet she felt the young couple craved.

When they were safely away on their brief wedding journey she shut herself in, saying with something between a smile and a yawn: "My, but I am tired!" Alone she faced herself in the mirror, saying with a real smile bitterer than tears: "My happiness is laid a burnt offering on the altar of Melia. Lord send her happiness; she deserves it!"

FAMOUS FLORIDA TREE DEAD

Immense Cypress Which Has Stood for Centuries Succumbs to Light Gust of Wind.

The "lookout tree," a cypress believed to have been the largest in Florida, and which had stood for ages near the shore of Lake Okechobee, a short distance from the settlement of Belle Glade, has fallen. After withstanding violent storms, the big tree, 40 feet in circumference, eight feet above the ground, toppled before a light gust of wind. Subsidging of the waters because of the draffage of the Everglades had resulted in a settling of the muck ground which left its roots undermined.

At the base of the tree was an artificial mound of sand, believed to have been carried there from the lake shore by mound builders who once were inhabitants of the territory. The Indians or prehistoric people buried many of their dead in the mound, for numerous specimens of human bones have been recovered from it. One of the most interesting of these was a wrist-bone encased by a crude hand-cuff, a recent discovery.

Life Pledged on Truth of Statement. A note test of truthfulness is described by the London Daily Express correspondent at Nairobi, Kenya Colony, East Africa.

"If I am not telling the truth I will die within a month," said a native claimant in a civil action in the Nairobi court.

His declaration arose over a money dispute with another native. The claimant offered to take the defendant to a place near Nairobi where they would eat of a certain fruit, take a solemn oath and see who would die first, that being the fate of the liar.

Ever Think of That? A mule cannot pull while he is kicking, and he cannot kick while he is pulling. Neither can you.

Regretted Wasted Time. Bobby will celebrate his birthday the latter part of next month. He was asked last evening what he would like, and after much debating he decided on a boat and a cab. After some further discussion as to which the boys could be purchased he said: "But if you bought them now I could be playing with them until my birthday."

Poison in Mushroom Cap. Animals usually know what is good for them and squirrels will examine the stalks of poisonous mushrooms without any apparent ill-effects. The sap of the plant is left. This suggests that the poison may be contained in the rejected portion, the escape of the feeding squirrels not being due to any special immunity. But the subject requires careful investigation.

But it's a Wrong Conclusion. The evil things, the materialistic things, the negative, destructive things, always make so much more noise than the forces of harmony and beauty that the average individual may be forgiven if he concludes that there is nothing but turmoil and discord and blatant vulgarity in the world—Herbert Hagedorn.

Monkeys Cleanly Animals. Monkeys, in their wild state, are very clean animals, and explorers who have visited their forest homes, and observed their habits, report that they have often seen these animals dashing water into their faces, and having a good wash very much as mankind does, of course, without the soap.

Something Seemed Lacking. A man was leading a horse to the blacksmith shop. To Bobby it was an unusual sight to see a horse without a wagon, so he said: "Oh, look! There goes a horse without a wheel."

Edgar Gaskins.

Ocean City, Md. Oct. 4th, 1922.

Mr. Edgar Gaskins, of Ocean City, was found dead in his bedroom Monday morning by his son, Kendall. The child heard his father fall from the bed in the night, but he fell asleep again, and did not go to see what the trouble was. The next morning when he went into his father's room he found him lying on the floor. He went for a friend of his father, Mr. Granville Cropper; he went over and found he was dead. An investigation was held and he was pronounced dead of a natural death. He was subject to having fits; probably he died with one of them. It's not known certain, as there was no one with him, as his wife had left him and gone to Baltimore, where she was working at the Y. W. C. A. She returned home when she was notified of his death. He was buried Tuesday, Oct. 3rd, in the Episcopal Churchyard at Berlin, but will be removed from the grave today, (Wednesday) for the purpose of being put into a vault. The people of Ocean City decided that they wanted the body put in a vault, and not in a pig's box; why his body wasn't put in a vault at first is what people can't understand. He leaves four children, a father, one sister, and a host of friends to mourn their loss.

Wedding Announcement.

Mrs. Winnie Ittel announces the marriage of her daughter, Beulah Imogene, to Mr. Sam Houston Showell, on Saturday, the twenty-third of September, nineteen hundred and twenty-two, Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania.

At home, Parkersburg, West Virginia. The following is taken from a Pittsburgh paper:

Miss Imogene Ittel, of this city, and Mr. Sam Houston Showell, of Ocean City, Md., were married in Trinity Church, Pittsburgh, by the Rev. Thaddeus A. Chatham, Rector, at noon on Saturday, September 23, 1922.

The bride is the charming and estimable daughter of Mrs. Virginia Ittel. She came here several years ago from Tylersburg, Pa., where she held the responsible position of secretary and assistant treasurer of the Ohio Valley Refining Company. She was active in church and social circles and has a large number of friends here who extend hearty best wishes and congratulations.

The groom is an exemplary young man, a civil engineer of ability, now in the service of the State Road Commission.

From St. Mary's Paper. The bride is a favorite in St. Mary's society, and has taken an active part in church and Sunday School work. Mr. Showell's home is Ocean City, Maryland. He is a civil engineer and for several months was engaged in supervising the work on the river road above this city. At present he has charge of the construction of the new work on the Northwestern Pike, leading out of Parkersburg.

POULTRY

TERM STANDARD-BRED FOWLS

Means That Bird Referred to Conforms to Standards of Color, Markings and Weight.

A purebred, whether it is a hen or a cock, means that the animal comes from a definitely recognized breed and that the parents were purebred animals of the same breed. If an animal has lineage of pure breeding which can be definitely proved, and thus makes the animal eligible for registration, it is then a purebred animal. There is the added stipulation that an animal must be healthy, vigorous and a creditable specimen of its breed in order to be purebred.

In reference to poultry breeding, perhaps the best terms of all to indicate 100 per cent blood is the expression "standard-bred." This means that the fowl referred to as standard-bred is one which conforms to the standards of form, color, markings, weight, etc., for the various breeds under the standard of perfection of the American Poultry association. Standard-bred is a term which is growing in popularity among those doing business in the purebred poultry field, and is perhaps a more distinctive expression than any other which might be used with reference to poultry. Of course, there are standard-bred horses which refer to a distinct breed of light horses, including both trotters and pacers eligible to registration in the trotting registry.

DUCKS FOR MEAT AND EGGS

Pekin Breed Is Kept Almost Exclusively for Green Ducks—Runner Is Good Layer.

"The Pekin breed is kept almost exclusively by producers of green ducks, and also on many farms where they are grown for meat," says H. W. Sanborn, extension poultry husbandman, United States Department of Agriculture. "They fatten rapidly and may be fed on rations recommended for chickens, but better results are usually secured by feeding more green and vegetable feeds and a larger proportion of mash.

"For the general farmer who is more interested in obtaining eggs than producing meat, the Runner is a good breed. This duck holds the same relative position in the duck family that the Leghorn does in the chicken family. It lays a good-sized white egg considerably larger than a hen's egg, and is declared to be a small eater, a good forager, and hardy. The introduction of this breed is helping to build up a trade of first-class duck eggs. These eggs should be marketed frequently, as they depreciate in quality more rapidly than hen's eggs."

HEN NEEDS SHELL MATERIAL

Tests Show Decrease in Number of Eggs Where Oyster Shells and Grit Are Lacking.

Tests made at the University of Wisconsin experiment station, where the feeding of hens could be watched closely, show that hens have a tendency to eat down on the number of eggs they lay when they run short of material which goes into the egg shell. Some believe that soft shells come as a result of not having sufficient oyster shells or ground bone material, but tests do not bear it out. So, for keeping up the number of eggs, it is essential that hens running free on the farm have a supply of oyster shells, ground bone or some other mineral grit, near where the flock is fed.

FEED FOR YOUNG COCKERELS

Where Market Is Available for Spring Chickens Plan to Feed Green Stuff Liberally.

If there is a market available for spring chickens, it is a good investment and time well spent in building a little enclosure where green stuff is available to feed the young cockerels all they can eat for a couple of weeks before selling them.

Soul Refuses to Be Caged.

The human soul is like a bird that is born in a cage. Nothing can deprive it of its natural longings or obliterate the mysterious remembrance of its heritage.—Eyes Sargent.

"Chigger" Universal.

The chigger is indiscriminately known as a chigger, chigco, chigco or jigger, and is found in many countries and is sometimes called "red bugs" and incorrectly "ticks."

How Martha Became Engaged

By JESSIE DOUGLAS

(Copyright by McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

"Well, Martha," Mrs. Kent said plaintively, "Mel dropped in to tell me he was engaged."

"Engaged?" Martha whispered. The color reddened her fine white skin, and then she was as white as a pear blossom. She held up her head very high and walked out of the room. But when she had crossed the threshold, and was sure she was out of her mother's sight, she reached up furtively and wiped away the tears that were brimming her eyes.

Mel—engaged. To Della, of course—Della, with her bobbed hair and her swinging earrings and pretty painted lips and her naughty dark eyes. Martha had seen it all along; she knew that he only dropped in on the Kent's honeysuckle-shaded porch because it was so nearby. She knew that it was the tinkle of her red tea in tall glasses, and her mother's cream cake, that he enjoyed better than all their conversation.

Her mother had told her over and over again that she must talk and laugh the way Della did. But something in Martha raised a high stone wall across which she gazed at any young man with frightened, impatient heart.

If the man were ever so old, or homely, or forsaken, Martha was charming. Her blue eyes danced, and the dimple in hiding came out to help her smile.

But that was just the trouble with Mel Hall. He was not old or homely or forsaken. All the girls in town were interested in him, and let him pull her in after him.

She couldn't talk to him. She could listen to him. She loved the sound of his deep voice with its velvet drawl. She loved to see him bend over his cigarette in the darkness while the lighted match showed her his clear-cut features—the boyish mouth, the straight nose, the teasing, laughing eyes she loved.

Loved. She came to that word and her heart seemed to drop away. She couldn't go on loving him in secret any more. Not when Della, with her provocative glances and her cigarette-stained fingers, claimed him. Martha could almost fancy Della laughing at her secretly all this time, and calling her "poor old maid" for that was what her mother spoke of daily: "You'll be an old maid, Martha, with your stiff ways; that's not the way to treat men. Look at Della!"

Oh, yes; her mother was right; but now, at least, she wouldn't spend any more of those dimes in which she told herself that she would try to copy Della. She could just go on being herself, and not letting any one know that her heart was breaking under her little ornate fret.

Yet she remembered how she had stolen up to her own room at night and had peered in at her face with the shy blue eyes, color of periwinkles, and at the shining hair that she unbound from the banded coils about her head, and thought he might grow to love her.

Pulled Martha in After Him.

She wasn't the kind of girl who could laugh and play and tease, like the other girls. She was horribly old-fashioned and she knew it.

Sometimes Martha had slipped to her knees and said a very short, very childish prayer, but after it was over and she lay in her narrow white bed, she could almost believe that Mel Hall would come to care for her sometime. Yet every word that her mother said was true, she was just like a little brown statue of a girl, a picture of a girl when Mel dropped in at the Kent's shady porch and smoked a cigarette for a moment before he swung on down the street.

And now he was engaged. All her tiny hopes were frustrated and Martha knew that now nothing mattered; that she could settle back and be an old maid in peace and even endure in silence the daily iteration of her mother's plaint.

Now she walked down the porch steps and down the street with the armful of blue iris that she was taking crippled Miss Darcy.

Here she was calmly going on about her affairs as though her heart wasn't breaking within her!

"Hi, Martha!" She lifted her head from the open squares of her pavement to see that Mel Hall was waving to her. All of a sudden she knew she wasn't afraid of him any more. He belonged to the intelligible; the men who were almost as easy to talk to as women.

"I want to congratulate you!" Martha said quietly. "Thanks," he said briefly, and rather shyly. "You know I was just looking at this house on the old Saunders place—it's to let—and wondering what could be done with it."

"I love old houses; let me explore it with you," Martha said calmly. She knew very well he was looking at it for Della Summers, but she didn't care. She did like old houses, and always planned how she would paint and paper and hang curtains.

Mel thrust up a window and pulled Martha in after him. She came in tumbling and rose checked and laughed with fagged gaiety when she saw the blackness of his hands and her own dusty marks.

"Like the living room?" he asked suddenly. "Why, it's darling! You can paint the woodwork ivory white and put up orange curtains and get that lovely old mahogany down at Henderson's. Here's a hearty and space between the windows for bookshelves," she rambled on delightedly, until she saw him watching her, and remembered, with hot-checked dismay, that it was his house and Della's she was planning.

"Go on," he said. "Do the dining room!" as they strolled into the long bay-windowed room.

"It's your turn," she said. He told her that he'd like it in blue; he'd always wanted a dining room in blue, but would she like it?

"Do you mean would Della like it?" Martha asked, drawing back.

"Della—what do you mean—what's she got to do with it?"

"Why, aren't you going to marry Della?" Martha asked in a shocked tone.

He came over and caught hold of both her hands and said simply, "No, I'm going to marry you."

She found she was kissing him back and then she tried to push him away while between her choked voice and her tears she whispered, "But you're engaged, mother told me—"

"As superintendent of the lower mill," he shouted. "You adorable little goose. You don't think when a man could have a real girl that he ever want a silly flapper with earrings and bobbed hair?"

Martha could only turn her face against his shoulder and wonder how it had ever happened to her.

HAVE THEIR HOMES IN CAVES

Abodes of Desert Tribes That Are Said to Be Both Healthy and Comfortable.

In the Tunisian and Tripolitan parts of the Sahara, more especially in the region of limestone formations, there are the celebrated cave dwellers, whose inhabitants were first described by the Greek geographers before the Christian era.

The rock shelter is the simplest form. The soft rock at the side of a hill is dug out. Each general abode is more compartments until a whole apartment house has been created.

Another style of underground dwelling in Tunis is dug in flat limestone formations. A large square hole is first excavated like a quarry. This is a sort of courtyard; the individual rooms and houses are dug in the sides about this. A diagonal passageway leads to the surface, and is made large enough for camels to pass down.

The charm of these dwellings is that they maintain an equable temperature all year around. The limestone surface on exposure to the air becomes hardened. The caves are both healthful and comfortable.

Slips of the Tongue.

Everybody is presumed to have heard of the man who said to a stranger whom he found at his club at church one Sunday morning: "I beg your pardon, sir, but you are occupying my place." A near relative, probably a descendant of this man, who answers to the name of Smith, was dining with a friend. The soup had been brought on, and the wife of the host was apologizing for it.

"I am afraid you will find it seasoned too highly," Mr. Smith, she said. "I tell Susan every day of my life not to use so much salt and pepper in her cooking, but it doesn't do any good."

"The soup is all right," Mrs. Jones, "the guest hastened to assure her. "It's exactly Sussaned to my taste." Philadelphia Ledger.

BETTER THAN DISH WASHING

Student Finds Occupation of Driving a Taxi Allows Him More Time for His Books.

The passerby stopped beside the taxicab parked near Bryant park, remarks the New York Sun. He had passed the same driver several times and had noticed he was reading. Once it was Plato's dialogues, another time John Ruskin's "The Stones of Venice," and now his interest was spurred to the questioning point by observing the driver was delving into Aristotle.

"I'm working my way through college," he said. "I heard about students who washed dishes and all that sort of thing. But taxi driving is the ideal job for the student. I don't start to work until late in the afternoon. I have a rush at only certain hours. The rest of the time I spend studying. You get plenty of time in between fares to learn the Euclid, the history of the pyramids, and why Russia is dead against too much purple in painting. I suggest taxi driving any time instead of waiting on tables."

METHODS OF WHEAT CULTURE IN KANSAS

Surprising Success in Sowing in the Stubble.

Plan Has Averaged Higher Yields Than Plowing and Nearly as Much as the Early Plowing.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

In western Kansas where a large part of the cultivated area is sown to wheat year after year, the greatest cultural problem in terms of acres involved is how to prepare wheat stubble for wheat. For the past 14 years this problem has been studied at the Fort Hays branch station, and the results have been published by the United States Department of Agriculture in Department Bulletin 1094, Methods of Winter-Wheat Production at the Fort Hays Branch Station, by John S. Cole and A. L. Halsted.

This experiment station is in Ellis county, Kansas, which is in the western tier of the solid block of "million-bushel" wheat counties in that state. Statistics of the Kansas state board of agriculture show that farming in this section has been stabilized for 30 years by devoting nearly three-fourths of the cultivated acreage to winter wheat. During this period there has been no change in yields; the average for the county from 1891 to 1920, inclusive, being only 5.6 bushels to the acre.

All this time wheat has been grown continuously after wheat by several methods. In this region there are 90 days between harvest and seeding. By plowing 73 days after harvest and 17 days before seeding, an average of 10.5 bushels per acre has been produced, the lowest yielding method tried, but practically the same as the average for the county. Early plowing, 32 days after harvest and 58 days before seeding, has averaged 14.6 bushels per acre. Early plowing subsided has averaged 17 bushels, and hand plowed instead of early plowed has averaged 17.3 bushels. Land alternately fallowed and cropped to wheat has averaged 20.3 bushels.

From 1914 to 1920, inclusive, surprising success has resulted from sowing wheat in the stubble either disked or uncutivated. This method has averaged higher yields than late plowing and nearly as much as early plowing.

Various other important experimental results are recorded in the bulletin, but the most important announcement is that the 90-day period between harvest and seeding offers the most fertile field for the control of yields. The more completely this is made a cultivation period the higher will yields be above the minimum at which they now rest. An increase of 25 per cent in yield is possible, and some part of it may be the investigators should be realized through greater timeliness and efficiency of operations.

SUDAN GRASS IS POPULAR

Plant Well Adapted to Certain Conditions; Supplies Some Needs Better Than Other Crops.

Eight years ago Sudan grass received its first extensive publicity in this country, and its popularity continues to increase, proof enough that the plant is well adapted to certain conditions and supplies some needs better than any other forage crop. The satisfaction it gives as a summer pasture for work stock, dairy cows and other farm animals has been an important factor during the last year in stimulating a more than usual interest in the crop. It has also been found that when reasonable care is used there is very little danger of prussic acid poisoning; in fact, when the pasture is properly handled there is no danger in the region east of the 98th meridian. West of that line the danger is practically negligible unless the grass is fed by drought.

New evidence regarding Sudan grass pasture is being provided each year by farmers and experiment stations. In New Mexico, irrigated Sudan pasture carried two head of milk cows to the acre, and enough butterfat was produced to give a return of $77 an acre after the cost of the grain feed had been deducted. A prominent farmer in central Kansas has a Sudan grass pasture every year for his dairy herd and claims that the butter churns in from five to ten minutes and is firm and well flavored, while that from alfalfa-fed cows is hard to gather and soft.

In Your Garden.

It is truly wonderful how many birds will visit modest gardens during a year. They will, during the spring migration, be most in evidence from early daylight till breakfast time, and then again as evening comes on, says the American Forestry Magazine. When autumn approaches, the migration that takes place is equally interesting. In winter we may look for various finches, sparrows, crossbills, hawks, owls, and not a few other species that come to us during that time of the year.

The Long Trail

By JUSTIN WENTWOOD

(Copyright by Western Newspaper Union.)

John Lucas had found the woman who had betrayed him, and whom he had sworn to kill.

It had been a long chase, and a stern one. From the seaport of Massachusetts they had gone to Florida, thence to Texas, thence to California, then to Oregon; then they had recrossed the continent, and he had located them in Savannah.

Lucas was fifty-five, his wife, Adeline, was thirty. Jim Proggson, Lucas' farm laborer, was a young man with a bullet head and a suggestion of underbred and undeveloped power. Just the man to attract some servant wench, but—Adeline!

It was horrible. Lucas was descended from the Pilgrims, he was still called "Squire" in the township, and Adeline, his second wife of two years, was a well-bred woman. Proggson! If it had been a gentleman he would have stayed quietly at home and divorced her, but—Proggson!

He was not going to touch Proggson. The fellow was not worthy of attention. But because of Proggson he was going to kill Adeline who had wounded him past redemption.

Nevertheless, as he walked up the white, palm-tree-bordered road toward the villa where she lived, he was aware, with his acute New England conscience, that he had not been entirely guiltless. There had been a time after their marriage, when Adeline would put her arms about his neck and kiss him. Lucas had been rather too busy for kisses. Besides, restraint, bred of a hundred harsh forbears, which had now broken down into grim, elemental determination to avenge the slight on his honor.

Adeline had been proud, but not so proud as Lucas. That had been the stumbling-block, that clash of wills; Adeline would not be dominated as Lucas had dominated his first wife, a timid, shrinking little thing who had been given to him in youth, and had obeyed him meekly. There had been scenes of violence. Adeline had wanted an allowance. Lucas had paid her bills and told her to ask for what she wanted. Then her uncle had left her money, and she had become independent. She had told him that she would break that overweening pride of his.

broken it? No, because of it he meant to kill her. And gripping the pistol more tightly in his hand, he strode up to the villa and rapped on the door.

He had often pictured that encounter in his mind, but when he saw Adeline standing before him, surprise changing into that cold hardness he knew so well, he gasped involuntarily, and felt his heart begin to hammer in his breast.

Adeline's eyes fell on the pistol in his hand, and a proud smile curved her lips.

"Come in, John," she said, and led the way into the living-room. It was well furnished, with Adeline's fine taste; that had been another bone of contention between them, he remembered. There were books and magazines strewn about everywhere. Adeline turned and faced him.

"Well?" she asked contemptuously. "You abandoned woman—"

"Oh spare me those New England heresies," she begged him. "I am not in the mood for them. You've come to shoot me, have you?"

"Where's that—Proggson?" Adeline laughed. "Want to shoot him, too?" she asked.

He felt his resolution falling him. He was aware that she was spiritually stronger than himself, and that was incredible, because he had been wronged so deeply.

"Well, shoot, shoot!" she jeered, standing in front of him. "You had a fine chance, didn't you, John? It was I who put you on the trail. I learned that you were coming to look for me. Well, shoot if you think I'm worth it."

He laid the pistol down upon the table. He bent his head. "I—can't," he said. "I never knew it before, but I love you, Adeline."

"Shoot for your pride's sake, then." "My pride's gone. It's broken. I've been a fool. But—Proggson!" Her face softened. "Then I can tell you, John," she said. "There never was any Proggson. Proggson was going West, and I paid him to pretend he was going away with me. I chose him as the instrument with which to break that pride of yours which had always stood between us, between you and what had been my love for you."

"Now go home and—forgive me." "Adeline!" He took her hands in his. "You've broken me, and you've—you've saved my soul. I deserved it all. You've opened my eyes, but—won't you come home, too, Adeline? Just give me the chance to care for you—I don't want your love—"

"My dear, you've always had that. Oh, John, can you forgive as well as is possible? If I go back it will be harder for me. But I'll face it if you'll—try to forgive and—care."

His Growl.

"Women flatter themselves," declared Mr. Flubbud, who is somewhat heeppicked.

"Well, old topper?"

"My wife is always telling me that if she was to die I'd marry a flapper."

"Well?"

"She doesn't stop to consider that I might not want to marry anybody."—Louisville Courier-Journal.

Thought Photographed.

Commandant Dargot of the French army and a noted military criminologist as well as psychologist, experiments in thought photography, resulting in pictures of objects suggested mentally, which, when projected from the mind to a highly sensitized photographic plate held against the forehead of a subject, leave a tangible impression on the object thought of at the moment.

If a criminal fears talking in his sleep, what double-distilled horror will he not know when he comes to realize that the very thoughts of his waking hours may be read at police headquarters as if in cold print, perhaps even more clearly than if he himself were present trying to evade questions?

Fish's Vision Limited.

To the fish the surface of the water, seen from below, presents a circular window surrounded by mirrors, according to Edward Ringwood Hewitt, author of "Secrets of the Salmon," soon to be published by Scribner's. It seems that a fish can see out into the air only through a limited aperture; everywhere else the surface reflects the contents of the stream, or (if he is a shallow one) the bottom. This is because the light rays passing from water to air are bent, and when the angle of the light ray from the fish's eyes with the vertical becomes great enough, it is bent backward so that it does not enter the air at all, but is directed downward toward the bottom.

Rule That Must Be Observed.

In vain do we talk of progress and superior light if we have not yet learned the elementary rules by which men of sense, having a certain end in view, adapt their means to the attainment of that end.—W. E. Gladstone.

SHOE ESSENTIALS

QUALITY

Regardless of price, courtesy or anything else, unless a shoe is made of good leather both the purchaser and merchant lose.

The patron will not return and the merchant consequently loses his future business.

Our shoes are known as "The All-Leather Line"—the very best we can buy.

PRICES

We endeavor to keep at all times a complete assortment of shoes and oxfords.

Furthermore, we keep every style displayed so they can be inspected quickly. This enables you to select the very kind you want.

ASSORTMENT

When we engaged in the Shoe Business on an extensive scale we determined to base our prices on quality sales and we have no regret over this move.

It is your continued patronage which enables us to sell with a small margin of profit.

FIT

A shoe may contain the very best quality of leather and be sold at a reasonable price but if it is not the proper fit that shoe will not render satisfaction.

There is great variation in the shapes of feet and unless a shoe is properly fitted the life of the shoe will be curtailed.

There must be no undue strain or excessive roominess. We would prefer losing sales to selling shoes of improper fit.

INDEPENDENT REFORM.

E. S. District Federation of Women's Clubs Convention at Elkton.

All roads led to Elkton on October 5th. The large gathering of earnest club women who journeyed there that day assured the success of the semi-annual conventions for future times. Mrs. Robert C. Lewis, President of the Women's Club of Elkton, welcomed all most heartily, and with her club members served tea and wafers to the women as they arrived, certainly a hospitable way to start a convention, and a treat most relished by those from distant points who started early to reach Elkton at noon, when the convention was called to order by invocation, followed by the always fluent remarks by the District President, Mrs. Andrew A. Hathaway, of Easton. Mrs. Daniel Miller, of Baltimore, told us much about Federation headquarters at Washington.
Dr. J. Richard Bolt, of Washington, D. C., addressed the convention upon child welfare, giving facts in a concise and forceful manner. Then our own Mrs. Alfonso Foley, of Royal Oak, District Chairman of public welfare, followed Dr. Bolt's remarks upon the subject with her own interesting views, and in confidence told of her dreams of the future of this great work. Mrs.
Beench, of the Pittsburg Carnegie Institute of Fine Arts, held her audience while she spoke for library extension in a fascinating manner.
The next day Mrs. J. W. Tucker, Proprietor of the Advance, read her "good books to read a good book," indeed." Mrs. T. C. Martindale, of Salisbury, the only club woman of the Eastern Shore to go as a delegate to the National Convention, at the Chautauqua read a classical report of that wonderful convention.
Luncheon was served at the Howard House, and a most enjoyable feast it was, made doubly so by the cordial addresses of Mrs. Lewis and Mrs. A. J. Jones, Vice-President of the Maryland Federation. Then the charming personality of Mrs.
John W. Garrett, Chairman of Fine Arts of the Maryland Federation, asserted itself when she told of her desires along the lines of musical work for her department, and we hope they will work out for the great benefit of the Eastern Shore. Mrs.
Lewis R. Dick, of Philadelphia, made us acquainted with Vashel Lindsay, and after her reading from his poems, we were ready to agree also that he is nearly our greatest American poet. A farewell by Mrs.
Hathaway brought the second convention also to the end of a perfect day, perfectly spent with the Women's Club of Elkton. Upon the cordial invitation of Mrs. Walter A.
Sheppard, President of Wicomico Woman's Club, the convention adjourned to meet at Salisbury next April.

in Memoriam.

In the graveyard, silently sleeping,
Where the flowers gently wave,
Lies the one we loved so dearly,
And tried so hard to save.
She is gone, but not forgotten,
Never shall her memory fade,
Sweetest thoughts shall always linger
Around the spot where she is laid.
One year has passed, dear Edith; we miss you,
Friends may think the wound is healed,
But they do not know the sorrow
That lies within our hearts concealed.
We mourn for you, dear Edith,
But not with outward show,
For our hearts mourn sincerely,
Mourn for you silently and low.
Today recalls the memory
Of our loved one laid to rest,
But those who still remember
Are the ones who loved you best.
Keep her, dear Jesus, in Thy keeping Till we reach the shining shore,
Then, oh Jesus, let us have her,
To keep and love forevermore.
Her dear Mother, Father, Sisters and Brothers.

Md. S. S. Convention.

The publishers' exhibit in the Chapel of the First Methodist Episcopal Church, on the occasion of the Maryland Sunday School State Convention, October 18 20, will be the best ever seen in Maryland. Books of every description within the Sunday School, Church and Missionary field will be on display. Material advertising special days in Sunday School work, the best Cradle Roll, Home Department, Adult Class material, etc., will be available.
The great Pageant entitled "The Lamp," to be presented in the Associate Congregational Church Wednesday evening, will be a twofold revelation:—first, of the supreme value of Religious Education;

secondly, the tremendous teaching value of the Pageant. Pastors, parents and teachers should make a special effort to see it.
Rev. Joseph Clark, D. D., State
Supt. of New York Sunday School Association, will conduct conferences on School Administration and Adult Work in the Local School.
His great address on "The Pathway to Power" will be given before the entire convention. Dr. Clark is known among writers as "Timothy Standby," under which pseudonym he has written books and pamphlets for many years.
Sunday Schools are urged to elect delegates. But all other Sunday School pupils are also invited. The convention is free to all; no enrollment fee will be charged. Battle more is making great preparation for the entertainment of at least 1000 delegates from the counties.

The quota of this county is 20, and the County Sunday School organization is making special efforts to have its whole quota of delegates present and go over the top.

Helpful Words

From a Berlin Citizen.

Is your back lame and painful?
Does it ache especially after exer-

 JUNIOR TOPIC—John Preaching and Baptizing
 INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—A Fearless Reformer
 YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Repentance: What It Is and What It Does.

I. The Degeneracy of the Times (vv. 1, 2).
 The Jews had sunk to a very low level of civil, moral and religious life. Luke carefully enumerates the civil and religious rulers in order to show the profligacy of the times, and therefore the need of a messenger to call the people back to God and virtue. Herod, the son of the Great, was a murderer. Annas and Caiaphas were corrupt ecclesiastical rulers.

II. The Nature of John's Ministry (vv. 3-6).
 In the wilderness he underwent a discipline which fitted him for his task. Out of the wilderness he bled the people back to God and virtue. Herod, the son of the Great, was a murderer. Annas and Caiaphas were corrupt ecclesiastical rulers.

III. The Content of John's Message (vv. 7-18).
 1. Penitence of Sin (vv. 7, 8). He called them "a generation of vipers." This shows that he charged them with devilishness and wickedness. Knowing the subtle hypocrisy of these Jews, he demanded evidence of their sincerity—the genuineness of their repentance was to be demonstrated by their works.

2. Announcement of Judgment (vv. 9-14). He declared that the tree not bringing forth fruit was to be hewn down and cast into the fire. John made it very plain that for their sins they should be called into judgment. Paul's preaching of a judgment to come made Felix tremble (Act's 24:25).

3. Instructions to the Inquirers (vv. 10-14). (1) The people (vv. 10, 11). Each man was to turn from his besetting sin and show love and kindness to his fellow men. Clothing and food were to be given those who had need. They were to turn from a life of selfishness and greed and do unto others as they would be done by. (2) Publicans (vv. 12, 13). The tax gatherers who were guilty of greed and oppression were not asked to give up their occupation, but to exact only that which was appointed by law. (3) The soldiers (v. 14). These were likely the policemen of that day—at least men on military duty. He told them to extort money from no man, to accuse none falsely, and to be content with their wages. To all these classes he made it clear that they should henceforth perform their duty from a motive of love instead of selfishness and greed.

4. Testimony to Jesus (vv. 15-18). The people were musing in their hearts as to whether John was indeed the Messiah. When John perceived this he with fine humility declared that his mission was so lowly in comparison with Christ's that he would be unworthy to perform the menial act of a slave in loosening the latchet of His shoes. John baptized with water, but Christ, he declared, would baptize with the Holy Ghost and with fire.

IV. John's Imprisonment (vv. 19, 20).
 Because of his reproof of Herod for his wicked lewdness and other sins John went to the dungeon. The preacher of righteousness must become a martyr. God's faithful prophets are usually despised by the world, even cast into prison, burned, or beheaded.

"Come Now and Let Us Reason"
 By REV. H. OSTROM, D. D.
 Extension Department, Moody Bible Institute, Chicago.

TEXT—Come now and let us reason together saith the Lord; though your sin be as scarlet they shall be made white as snow; though they be like crimson they shall be as wool.—Isaiah 1:18.

The plentiful references to the dye industry since the war might give us an easy grasp of a certain text. Dyeing was so understood and so practiced long ago that even Tyrian purple could not have claimed for it the distinction of the blue, the purple and the scarlet of the holy garments of God's ancient priests. Little wonder that in the latter part of the Seventeenth century the few Jews in Jerusalem were distinguished as dyers.

God's appeal to beset and evil-doing Israel places the contrast in distinct description; there is scarlet against snow, and crimson ever against white. You have seen the rays of scarlet, or the moment, as the setting sun glorified the banks of winter snow beneath them, and you have seen the crimson there shed its glory over the feeding flock of sheep; the one all colorful, the other all whiteness. Thus does God call to Israel as if saying "your sins are all apparent, certainly, tragic, I will make them unseen even as a white handkerchief against snow." God is asserting to Israel his power and his willingness to cover sin so that it cannot be seen. Not that God will call wrong right! Not that! But that he knows how to "take away sin." And he wills to do it.

Great is the fact of God's power to cancel sin. If someone had discovered the secret of coloring a scarlet or a crimson garment white it would soon be announced world-wide, and great investments would be at command to use the secret. But far greater is the secret so persistently set forth in the Bible that God can make white, our scarlet and crimson record. These deeds and habits we rate as less offensive are so often classified with those we rate as decidedly bad in the Bible as if to urge upon our attention the fact that before God sin is sin. The fearful are classed with sinners and covetousness is classed with idolatry. While this fact may cause some to be annoyed, you and I may see in it the glorious truth that God can as readily deal with one as the other, and just as effectively, too. Gray sins may seem to us easier to do away with, but with God those of the deepest and most enduring hues are not more difficult to remove.

Will but believe his power to remove whiteness nothing can make us perish. The Scripture we have selected is a call to "reason." And God's call to reasoning asks men to begin by considering their relation to him. It is just here that sin appears in the way. The sin question must be settled if we are to act rationally in his sight. It is not right to be reasonable to ignore it, our tendency to make much of our relations with each other and to proceed as if God could not be really known, ignores good reasoning.

Our assumed, ideal accord with each other when traced to its root, spells "self." Our imaginary brotherhood ends in egotism. "Disinterested benevolence" is unnatural. God first! Godliness and then brotherliness! Right with God, and then "the square deal!" No Godless social welfare possible! Separated from God and joined to one another, even civilization becomes uncivil. Marriage vows, friendship pledges, contracts in business and citizenship loyalty are all too uncertain, too amenable to sentiment and emotion to classify as good rational assurances, apart from right relations with God.

God's call to reason is wrapped up with the assurance that he can put sin completely away. How well the Lord's words to Cain fit into the whole Bible message about sin when translated; "If thou dost not well the sin offering croucheth at the door." (Genesis 4:7.) Place alongside this Scripture the words "I will remember their sin no more" (Jer. 31:34.) Or accompany it with these words: "We also joy in God through our Lord Jesus Christ, by whom we have now received the atonement" (Rom. 3:25.) Nothing, you see, is here left to a "perhaps" or a "maybe." The voice that said "Let there be light," says: "They shall be as white as snow." Argument has nothing further to say.

My soul, cling thou to that great word, "Thought! What it, recognizes it so, lo, awakened to the fact! Though my sins be as scarlet! Worst has come to worst! The discovery, all but hopeless has been made! O, let me but believe God's "they shall be!" Tell me the words about myself, for forthwith, if I come to God's reasoning I am the receiver of the best. "They shall be." What shall be? My sins. They shall be white as snow. They shall be wool. Surely God's reasonableness is effectual. "He that believeth is not condemned!" "What clearing!"

"I, the chief of sinners am, But Jesus died for me."

Harsh Criticism.
 An unusually caustic critic was being shown through one of the Paris art salons by an enthusiastic friend. They stopped before some of the most modern of modern art.

It was the handwork of a woman, and might have been a lifelike portrait of anything from a sandstorm to a steam roller.

"She must be wedded to her art," the enthusiast declared, enraptured.

"Yes, and every picture she has painted is sufficient reason for a divorce," was the reply.

The Quaker's Gift.

A certain prosperous Quaker was once called upon by a man eager to get help for a good cause that was in desperate need. The Quaker listened sharply for a few minutes, and then interrupted the speaker.

"Friend, thy mission is excellent. These people ought to be helped. And I will help thee."

Taking out his check-book, he wrote out and handed over a generous gift to the astonished man, saying cheerfully as he did so: "Friend, thy mission requireth haste. I will not delay thee."

The Quaker then arose, took his hat and started for the door, saying "Friend," for the third time, "I know a man across the way who will, I think, help thee. I will go with thee to him." And in less than half an hour the immediate desperate needs of that cause were relieved, and a worthy and brave man sent rejoicing on his way.

The three principles of ideal giving are splendidly shown in this true story, which must have been often repeated, for the characters were people well known in their day.

The first principle is, quick understanding and interest. The second principle is, quick action. The third principle is, quick foresight and sympathy. In other words: "What I can do myself," "How soon I can do it," and "What I can start some one else to doing."

Many a grand good cause halts and perishes because the second and third of these principles have never taken sound root in our own lives.—Hobart Clear, in Forward

"You, Too, Can Have Beautiful Hair"

LONG, silken, vigorous hair is the highlight of every woman. Worry, poor health, strenuous living, neglect, etc., soon cause hair to weaken and fall out. The scalp must be kept free from infection, the hair roots must be nourished. Discriminating men and women make it a practice to use regularly to keep the scalp healthy and promote the growth of the hair. They find this splendid preparation very helpful in treating dandruff, falling hair, and other scalp diseases. Washing the hair with Rawleigh's Liquid Shampoo or Shampoo Jelly avoids the dangers of ordinary soaps which in time, weaken and destroy the hair roots. Proper use of Rawleigh's Shampoo and Hair Tonic will aid wonderfully in preserving and beautifying the hair.

Rawleigh's Hair Tonic

Rejoice Always.

One way to rejoice always is to pray always; to give thanks for little things. No one beginning the day by thanking God for the light that breaks into the bedchamber, for the fresh morning air, and for eight hours of rest, and for all his comforts, and keeping that up, will go down to breakfast doleful and discouraged. Spirit-filled people are always sunny people. Every groan and sigh and complaint and doubt and unfaithfulness is an ice blanket to the spirit of rejoicing.—Our Messenger.

Perseverance means a new beginning every now and then. It has been said, indeed, that "new beginnings are the life of perseverance." Every now and then failure is apt to come. But the persevering Christian does not stop for failure, but begins all over again—and wins in the end—Selected.

MAKE YOUR PURCHASES NOW

For the first time in several years it is apparent that for some time to come higher prices must be paid for merchandise.

A new tariff law is responsible for an increase on several classes of Merchandise and other factors contribute towards a rise on other lines.

In many places there is a shortage of labor causing various industries to bid for help with a consequent rise in wages.

An actual shortage of freight cars prevails in many sections of the country which indicates that the United States as a whole is enjoying prosperity.

In view of all these facts, we would advise an early purchase of Merchandise thereby effecting a saving.

RUGS DRY GOODS

The new law imposes a high tariff on the wool used in the manufacture of rugs; consequently, replacement of the better grades in our stock would cost several more dollars per rug. Proportionate increases apply to cheaper grades.

Our stock of Dry Goods is larger than ever before. A few reasonable items are mentioned below:

Cretonne,	Cotton Batts,
Outing Flannel,	Scrim,
Underwear,	Gingham,
Madras,	Percale,
Serge,	Damask.

Our present stock will be disposed of at the old prices and the early purchasers are the ones who will reap the benefit.

10c A YEAR Would Make Me Lay MORE EGGS!

Now that's a rather surprising statement to be made by an old hen like me, isn't it? But it's a fact and I'm going to tell you about it.

Now, if you were a chicken you'd be thinking of such things, too, and, believe me, you'd hold out on egg production if you were not provided with the right kind of a house to stay in.

AND ABOUT THAT 10c A YEAR

The cost of a good poultry house, such as I have in mind, is very small. Taking it for granted that you intend to keep a flock of at least 40 of us chickens on hand at all times, the cost of furnishing us with the right kind of a home would not exceed 10c per year for each of us.

The Good Luck Knocker

By JANE OSBORN

Myra Grimwade stopped at the nurseryman's on her way home from school one Saturday afternoon in October. She was buying some bulbs to be planted now for spring flowering.

It Displayed a Griffin's Head.

Myra was twenty-four. She had been appointed to teach English in the high school in Dalton two years before when she left college, and because she had no family and didn't like boarding houses and did like the shady streets and quiet ways of the little town of Dalton, she had built a little house on an available lot on one of the newer streets of the town.

of coins. You see, our family has lived here for centuries. That knocker was on the old Hanway house, torn down ten years ago while I was off at college. Then you know I was in France during the war and after that business kept me across for a while, and—well, I always intended to get hold of the old door knocker, but I never did. I just happened to see it as I was passing and I thought I'd stop.

Mrs. Elizabeth Dirickson.

Mrs. Elizabeth Dirickson, widow of the late Col. L. L. Dirickson, died on Friday, Oct. 6th, within a few days of her 91st birthday. Far beyond the allotted span, yet with all her faculties remarkably preserved, she kept in touch with current events, reading and conversing with her friends on all live topics of the day.

Stricken in body, but at intervals mentally conscious, she made her last wishes known to her loved ones. Two daughters and a son survive her: Mrs. Harry Farnell and Miss Clara Dirickson, of Berlin, and Levin L. Dirickson, of Newport News, Va.

A Lady of the Old Regime.

The death of Mrs. L. L. Dirickson marks the passing of the last member of a coterie of friends of other days and other times. Her gentle courtesy, serene dignity and genial cordiality, a fragrant memory with those of us who knew her well. She has "fallen on sleep." "It is not death to die." M. L. W.

A Remarkable Record.

Chamberlain's Cough Remedy has a remarkable record. It has been in use for almost half a century and has constantly grown in favor and popularity as its good qualities became better known. It is the standard and main reliance for these diseases in thousands of homes. The facts that it can always be depended upon and is safe and pleasant to take are greatly in its favor when it is wanted for children.

ST. MARTIN'S.

Rev. C. C. Jones delivered his farewell address in an impressive manner Sunday morning to a well-filled house from various appointments and friends from nearby towns. Such an audience testified to the regard and esteem in which he was held by those he came in contact with, and the people whom he has faithfully served for two years. With reluctance the Charge submitted to his service being transferred to a larger and more lucrative field.

The St. Martin's Sunday school will be re-instituted Sunday, Oct. 15th; we want everybody in, come out and take on new life and interest. Make this great work in God's Kingdom count the best ever next year. Everybody welcome young and old.

Edward Fisher and his new bride, nee Mrs. Edna Birch, of Chincoteague, paid St. Martin's a compliment by spending the early part of their honeymoon with Mr. and Mrs. Charles Palmer.

Mr. Jesse T. Holland, of Philadelphia, is making his brother, W. K. Holland, a short visit.

Miss Carolyn Burbage, of Berlin, was secured as teacher to fill the vacancy in our school due to the resignation of Rev. C. C. Jones.

Rev. C. C. Jones and wife, and daughter, Madelyn, accompanied by Miss Gertrude L. Donoway, motored to Philadelphia last Tuesday and spent a few days on a shopping tour.

Mr. Ollie Donoway made a business trip to Sharptown and the adjoining vicinity Monday.

Rev. C. C. Jones is attending the Virginia Conference this week which is in Session at Norfolk; we are hoping the Bishop will send a Live Wire.

A Good Physic. When you want a physic that is mild and gentle in effect, easy to take and certain to act, take Chamberlain's Tablets. They are excellent.

Where One Dream Ends

By A. W. PEACH

Robert Winston laid his brushes and palette aside and listened. The old studio building had once been sound-proof, but time had worked a mysterious change—at least between Winston's studio and hers. She was making her piano speak of haunted things, even through the old walls. The music was softened, but it came to him with something of the charm of music that drifts across moonlit waters.

Finally, he shook himself from the spell, drew out a small electric heater, and swiftly prepared an attractive lunch. Then he calmly marched upstairs and knocked on her studio door. He was a bit afraid of her, for she had seemed to him a very haughty little person, but any girl who had played right through the afternoon into the evening merited some interruption, if only long enough to eat.

The music ceased, the door opened, and the small oval face, in which unusually dark eyes were set, looked out with cold query.

"Robert Winston, impressionist, presents his compliments to Avis Ronald, depressionist, and invites her to a repast with him, for the day is far done and the darkness—" he began.

"But I—"

She looked so weary, and a bit troubled with some inner doubt that made her hesitate, that he did what he hardly thought he possessed the courage to do—he serenely reached out and took her hand.

"Come, child, you have practiced long enough. Look upon my gray hairs and be obedient," he announced.

She glanced quickly at his temples, where faint streaks of gray were beginning to show, and smiled. "I will go, but, please, promise you won't be as nice to me as you usually are!"

He looked at her with astonishment; her voice was half serious, half whimsical. "You shall command me!" he answered with finality.

She sank into the big lounging chair in his studio with a faint sigh of relief, and he drew up the little table on which he spread the lunch.

She was in a somber mood, though she made some effort to match his cheerfulness; and with his knowledge of the ways of human hearts, he knew she had come to one of those dark days when the game does not seem worth the candle.

When the lunch was out of the way, he leaned forward. "Now look, Avis, there is something very much wrong. You see, I read human hearts—"

The look in her dark eyes as they rested upon him was perplexing. "I wish I was all she said."

"You're I can read. Something is going wrong. Now we are neighbors and friends. Can't I help you?"

She shook her head. "Oh, it is nothing. I am just wondering whether—but you wouldn't understand!"

He saw it was useless to try to draw her out. "I think I could, and you know you can count upon me if I can be of use."

"Very kind of you, and I thank you, sir," she replied in the same puzzled tone.

They chatted of this and that—the nothings that make up life—and then she rose from the chair. She held out her hand. "You have been very good to me—in spite of the noise I make over your head—and I am grateful to you."

He was downright puzzled. His first impulse was to wrap his arms about her, draw her dark head close to his, make her tell what was on her mind. He suddenly realized how she had meant to him; but her dark aloofness checked him, and the good-night he gave her was merely the pleasant bantering good-night of friendship.

He was away from the studio most of the day, returning in the evening. His day had been a busy one, but for some mysterious reason his thought of her had been on his mind. Thinking he heard a slight stir above him, he went up, but there was no answer to his knock; yet, going down the stairs he met Tim, the janitor, and in response to a casual question Tim replied that Miss Ronald had gone to her studio, he thought.

"You See, I Read Human Hearts."

He tried to compose himself to work, but he was restless. He went upstairs again and knocked on her door. Silence answered him. Profoundly puzzled, he called her name softly, and was certain he heard a faint sound within. Then he took the situation by the horns.

"Avis, open this door or I will get Tim. Please—I have something important to tell you!"

The door opened slowly, and she was facing him. His quick, trained eyes saw in her girlish face fear, fright, and some terrible determination. He closed the door quickly.

"Avis, what is it? Tell me!" He caught her to him. "I have been worried for some strange reason all day. Tell me—I want to know—and—"

With his arm around her slight waist, he held her to him in spite of the effort she made to release herself. Then she held out one small, finely formed little hand.

"The trouble?" she said in a dead, wistful voice. "It is enough. I have felt my hand growing numb. I thought, practiced all yesterday afternoon, to give it away. This morning I could not move it, and this afternoon a specialist told me I would never use it again—paralysis. You see?"—she spoke with dangerous quiet—"I have overdone my practicing. Try to be hard to make a dream come true, and now it's gone!"

She did not weep. There is a stage beyond weeping, beyond despair. He knew something of its meaning. He looked down at the dark head. He noted that her left hand was hidden. He pulled it into view. In it was a small bottle, and his cry of fear went into his words:

"Avis, what is that—poison?" he cried in a choked voice.

She nodded simply. He caught the bottle, threw it aside, then gathered her in his arms and sat down. "Look here, little girl, this, I think, is the luckiest thing that ever happened. I have been in love with you from the first time I saw you. When one dream ends, another always begins, if we keep our eyes and hearts open. Your dream of a musical career is over. Let's dream of other—ours together! What do you say?"

The helpless little hand made it possible for him to say what he otherwise never could have said to her. He spoke softly, quietly, swiftly, commanding himself with effort. She began to relax, weeping softly. When she spoke her whispered words were music to him.

"I wanted you to love me, but—but I thought it was just friendship. I would have given up my music for you—for I—I loved you, too—from the first, but I didn't think you cared for me—"

He settled that—without the aid of words; and the other dream began.

FISH EASY PREY FOR TERNS

Birds, Masters of the Air, Are by No Means Afraid of the Leaping Waters.

The following description of the activities of the common tern is taken from the manuscript of a work on the birds of Massachusetts by the Department of Agriculture.

When the mackerel or the bluefish, coming in great herds, find a school of "bait," the larger fish chase these small fry until the latter, in their efforts to escape, break water in all directions and skip over the waves like flying-fish, or mill around in a dense mass. The water all around fairly boils under the savage assault of the pursuers. Then it is that the sharp-eyed terns, spying the commotion, flock from afar to feast on the luckless fishlings.

They hover in the sunlight, above the surging sea. The whirling, screaming white-breasted birds, strongly contrasted against the murky sky, alternately climb the air and plunge like plummet straight down upon the waves or even below them—rising again, fluttering, poisoning, screaming, striking. It fairly rains terns—hundreds of them together shooting downward into the maddened waves. Masters of the air, they play with the gusty blast and gambol with the leaping waters. Rising from the sea they shake the brine from their plumage and, towering higher, hover a moment breasting the gale, then set their wings, and, like long, barbed spearheads, drop downward to plunge, again and yet again.

Marriage à la Mode.

Petting is one of the greatest amusements of young people of today, but in few countries is there such freedom of speech and action as here.

In China, for instance, not only is love-making taboo among young people, but it is forbidden even to speak of love. An engaged couple may not mention their coming nuptials. All is attended to by the parents.

His Opinion.

"Here's an item in the paper," said Mrs. Johnson, in the midst of her reading, "about a professor, up East some, that says there will be dogs in heaven."

"He's mighty right," agreed Gap Johnson of Rumpus Ridge. "It would be hell if there wasn't."—Kansas City Star.

BOYS DON'T WANT THRILLERS

Tales of Wild Adventure Seemingly Only Interest the Middle-Aged Man of Today.

No longer do the tales of "Little Susie Shot," "Deadwood Dick" and other old-time terrors of the prairies interest the youth of the rising generation, observes the New York World.

This has been demonstrated since the collection of Beadle's dime novels was placed in the public library. It had been expected that there would be a rush of young people to see the old thrillers, and at least one society that takes upon itself the care and supervision of public morals was moved to rise in protest against debauching the eyes of youth. However, in the month in which these books have been on show, less than 10 per cent of the visitors has been under the age of sixteen.

Attendants keep a tally, and during the time the Beadle books have been displayed there have been 1,427 persons in to see them. While the tally as to ages is not kept, it is the consensus of attendants that hardly more than 100 have been minors. In the next room, however, where the baseball collection has been displayed, more than half the visitors are children. During July there were 9,643 who visited the display.

The Beadle collection has been attractive chiefly to the middle aged. Men of dignified bearing, often in pairs, have gone the rounds of the showcases, chuckling over the titles. "It's like renewing youth," is a frequent comment.

IMPORT BEADS BY BILLIONS

Demand for These Ornaments by the Women of the United States Seems Insatiable.

Ballots and beads must belong together in the mind of the modern woman. At any rate, ten strings of beads are worn today when one was worn before the war and before the vote. Beads by the billions are being imported. This year's record promises to run far ahead of last year's, and last year's record was worth a glance.

To make any comment upon the advanced and emancipated woman's interest in the ornament that is usually set down as a South sea savage's notion of an all-but-complete costume is quite unnecessary. The figures speak for themselves.

From central Europe, from France, from the shores of the entire Mediterranean, from all India, from the three great countries of the Far East, the making of beads for the United States is a big business, declares a New York Sun writer. Not satisfied with the quantity that can be turned out with everybody working at the job of decorating the dresses and the hats and the shoes of millions of American women, the demand for something different has made the best dealers get the very South sea savage to scarping up the seashells from the shores of lonely isles that are all but lost on any average map.

To the national bill for fire materials could be added the cost of all imported cigarettes and then the total would be $35,000,000 short of meeting the total outlay for feminine ornaments. In spite of the increase in the amount of coffee imported, the cup that cheers America at breakfast time costs far less than the beads that women wear. About $25,000,000 less. The comedy continues throughout the whole list of life's lesser luxuries.

IMPORTANT NEWS QUICKLY TOLD

NEWS ITEMS FOR OUR READERS

Frostburg.—George Meitz, aged 65, near Rockwood, was instantly killed by a passenger train on the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad near Casseman. He was employed as a track-layer at the Casseman mine of the Hill Coal Company and is survived by his wife.

Baltimore.—Two classes in vocational guidance courses have been organized at the School of Commerce of the University of Maryland. The opening session will be held on Thursday night. Schools where vocational guidance has been introduced report that the percentage of students who fail or leave school without completing their course is reduced from 50 to 15 per cent, according to Frank P. Hiler, instructor at the School of Commerce.

Cumberland.—The movement of coal and other freight over the Baltimore and Ohio railroad is exceeding all records since December last. More than 3,500 loads were dispatched through Cumberland eastward Friday, while nearly 3,000 loads and empties went West. On previous days the dispatch East averaged 2,500 loads. The record of Saturday and Sunday is expected to excel that of Friday. Shipment of coal and other freight on the Western Maryland railroad also shows an advance, an average of 800 loads having gone through daily. An average of 122 cars of coal were moved daily from 64 mines in the Upper Potomac and 45 loads daily from 25 mines working in the George's Creek territory.

Hagerstown.—The industrial exhibit at the Hagerstown Fair, with 48 manufacturing concerns of Hagerstown and the county represented with a variety of products, will be made a permanent feature of the annual fair. It is announced by the Hagerstown Chamber of Commerce. The exhibit was held under the direction of the Chamber of Commerce and was such a pronounced success that it has been decided to continue it each year. The exhibit showed the finished products of the plants, arranged in attractive style, under general supervision of Ernest J. Newcomer of the Chamber of Commerce. The entire exhibit has been donated to the Orphans' Home in this city.

Baltimore.—Charged with complicity in a $181,000 whiskey robbery on July 14 last, from the John Faust Distillery at Glen Rock, Pa., George C. Martin, 28 years old, who gave his address as 3440 Auchenor terrace, was traced here from Pennsylvania and was arrested in the office of his counsel, William J. Curran, by Michael Francis, a special investigator for the Department of Justice. Taken before United States Commissioner Supple, where he was held in $4,000 bail, Martin assaulted Francis by striking him in the face with his fist as he was leaving the court room. Marshal W. W. Stockham, who witnessed the altercation, went to the assistance of Francis and after a struggle Martin was subdued and taken to jail.

Belair.—The annual meeting of the William Paen Chapter of the Daughters of the American Revolution took place Saturday at the residence of Mrs. B. J. Williams, of Darlington. The following officers were elected: Mrs. Walter W. Preston, regent; Mrs. John S. Bradshaw, vice-president; Mrs. John S. Young, recording secretary; Miss Annie Calmes, treasurer; Miss Minnie Calmes, corresponding secretary; Mrs. Annie P. Mannikhy, sen. historian; Mrs. Robert L. Prigg, chaplain; and Mrs. Henry Strassbaugh, registrar. This chapter expects to erect a memorial tablet to those Harford men who lost their lives in the World War. It will be of bronze and will be placed in the army here. Governor Ritchie, Brig-Gen. M. A. Reckord and others are expected to be present at the unveiling.

Hagerstown.—The Ku Klux Klan of Hagerstown is carrying on a campaign to break up spooning and for the second time within a week have warned couples. The latest warning was issued to a prominent local business man and a married woman of this city after the woman had been caught by four hooded and white-robed figures on the outskirts of the city. The man fled and made good his escape, but the woman fainted when the white-robed figures began to gain on her as she was fleeing across a cornfield. After working over her for some time the four alleged Klansmen finally brought her back to consciousness, then warned her to be true to her husband and freed her. Just a week ago another spooning couple was caught near the Hagerstown Country Club by four masked men who warned them to move and never be seen together again or they would be dealt with harshly. A woman's scream aroused residents and the story finally came to light of the attempt made by the four men to capture the business man and woman.

STATE CAPITAL

Perryville Bridge Under Discussion.

Men interested in the sale of the Havre de Grace-Perryville bridge to the State held a long meeting in the offices of Attorney General Armstrong with the special Bridge Commission appointed by the last Legislature.

This Commission comprises John N. Mackall, chairman of the State Roads Commission, chairman; William M. Maloy, chairman of the Public Service Commission, and Attorney General Armstrong. Among those present in behalf of the bridge company were former State Senator Thomas H. Robinson, of Harford county, S. C. Rowland and "Mike" Fahey of Havre de Grace.

There were also present two engineers—Walter Hopkins, bridge engineer of the State Roads Commission, representing the special commission, and John E. Greiner for the bridge owners.

The conference devoted itself to a consideration of the valuation of the bridge made by the two engineers. While no statement to this effect was made by any of the conferees, the understanding is that the State's valuation of the property is about $600,000. This is $100,000 less than the figure (less a discount of $10,000) at which the bridge company offered the property to the State.

It would seem likely that the State will buy the existing bridge, assuming that the discrepancy in the two valuations can be arranged, rather than erect a new highway bridge over the Susquehanna.

The bill for the purchase of the Havre de Grace-Perryville bridge occasioned what was perhaps the most bitter fight in the longest session of the last House of Delegates. Stephen W. Gambrell, majority floor leader, and William Purnell Hall, Delegate from Baltimore city and thorn in the side of the administration, joined hands in the effort to defeat the bill as it passed the Senate, where it had been introduced by Senator Tydings, of Harford, now Democratic candidate in the Second Congressional district.

The bill originally provided that the State purchase the bridge for the flat sum of $600,000. As amended in the House and finally passed, the measure made $690,000 the maximum price, thus allowing the special commission leeway in negotiating.

Poultry Show December 5.
Exhibits of game from the State preserved, carrier pigeons used in the United States Navy and poultry from Federal Government experiment stations will be feature attractions at the Baltimore Show of the Poultry, Pigeon and Small Stock Association. The show will open December 5 at the Fifth Regiment Armory. Entries will be closed on November 22.

The officers are: Clinton L. Riggs, president; Joseph W. Shirley, vice president; Arthur C. Lovings, treasurer; Howard S. Thompson, secretary, and Francis G. Riggs, chairman.

Survey To Be Continued.
Members of the committee appointed to make a survey of medical administration of prisons are studying the data which has been collected. Dr. Lewellyn F. Barker, the chairman, announced.

The committee will go to the Penitentiary in about a week, Dr. Barker said. Two visits may be made to that institution. Dr. Barker said the committee would not be ready to report to the Board of Prison Control for two or three weeks.

All Officers Can Join Now.
The Reserve Officers' Association of Maryland will succeed the Reserve Officers' Association of Baltimore at the reorganization meeting in the Howard Street Armory. Officers throughout the State will be eligible to membership. The report of the Washington convention will be made by Col. Jenks B. Jenkins and Major E. Johnson Poe. Col. George E. Weeks will outline the correspondence courses offered by the Army.

W. A. Stultz To Hang November 3.
Governor Ritchie has set Friday, November 3, as the date for the hanging of William A. Stultz, Jr., convicted of the murder of Policeman Adams at Frederick. The Lunacy Commission recently examined Stultz and declared him sane.

Rockville.—Mrs. Woodrow Wilson will be the guest of honor at a luncheon to be given on November 2, at the Wardman Park Inn, Washington, by the Woman's Democratic Club of Montgomery county. W. Cabell Bruce and Frank M. Misk, Democratic candidates for the United States Senate and House of Representatives, respectively, will deliver addresses, as will several others of prominence. The club was organized about a year ago and has a membership of about 100.

Baltimore.—Everywhere is now in readiness for the "Baltimore Week" celebration which opens next Sunday and continues until the following Saturday night. The three big features of the campaign will be the parade on October 24, Navy Day on October 27 and the monster banquet at the Century roof that night.

Window Fines.

BOY SCOUTS

SCOUTING AND THE SCHOOLS

The "scouting and the schools" section at the recent convention in Boston of the National Education Association held a prominent place among the many different department meetings. The convention was attended by over 5,000 of the leading educators of the country.

The educational value of scouting, its influence for citizenship training and character building are thoroughly recognized by the educators, who are more and more supplementing the school work with the scouting program.

At the scouting section Edwin Y. Miller, principal of the Northern High school, Detroit, Mich., told how Detroit's board of education is co-operating. Since 1920 the plan has been followed of installing scout troops in school buildings under school auspices. The board of education employs a scout executive in the same way they would employ a teacher, although the actual scoutmaster is, of course, a volunteer. About twenty-five troops are being conducted by the board of education and there are over fifty that meet in school buildings.

"The public schools and the boy scouts are leaders among the agencies that make better boys," said Prof. Albert Shales of Columbia University, who has been investigating the proposition for a number of years. "The conclusion is inevitable. We must co-operate. Less eloquence and more accomplishment from now on."

In his address on "Boyhood and Citizenship Training," Dr. George J. Fisher, deputy chief scout executive, Boy Scouts of America, said:

"It is strange that in a democracy like ours the average person has so little, if any, training in the duties and responsibilities of citizenship. To have an effective democracy we must seriously train the youth in the principles of democracy. His man experience is dependent upon his boy experience. Scouting has been a great aid to the schools in furnishing a definite program of service activities. Scouting is a concrete practice of patriotism. It is the youth of America who will give the youth of the world the best of which we have the consciousness of having served the community, the state, the nation. This scouting has provided for you, but for any other program yet devised."

In still another section "The Wider Use of School Houses," "Scouting" was the subject of important consideration. Charles H. Mills of national headquarters, Boy Scouts of America, stated in an address that from wide experience he believed no activity belonged to the wider use of schools more than scouting; and that there was no place where scouting belonged more than it did in the public school house. "The two primal motives of scouting," said Mr. Mills, "are character building and citizenship training. Is there any possible way in which these could be formed better backing for citizenship training than to have the very civic forces themselves foster and encourage and promote scouting? It does not take the boy long to realize that it is the city itself that is working for him and serving him by the school community center interesting itself in scouting. Immediately there arises in him the desire to reciprocate by serving his community."

GOOD TURNS FROM MENOMINEE
Scouts of Menominee, Mich., are alive to possibilities of rendering community service as shown by this list of several months' good turns: Assisted American Legion in Memorial day activities; did considerable work for local library; constructed auto truck for local scouting; organized Fourth of July celebration; collected nearly 7,000 musk tooth nests from city trees; cleaned up tourist camp grounds three times; distributed programs to 4,000 people at the municipal Christmas tree celebration; cleaned up ground and picked up all the programs and wrapping papers from gifts in this park the next day; rendered services to recreation commission; took part in Women's club playlet; and gave demonstration of first aid; carried through broken glass campaign, picking up from city streets 400 pounds of glass, as well as nails and other rubbish injurious to auto tires.

Individual good turns were: shoveled walks of snow; reported shooting of song birds; carried on campaign to abolish cigarette smoking among boys under twelve.

GOOD TURN FOR OLD GLORY
Scouts distributed several thousand cards along the line of parade at Fort Orange, N. Y., on Memorial day, reminding people to remove their hats when the flag passed. Scout Executive Claude L. Meitz of the Fort Orange council, Boy Scouts of America, is in receipt of a letter of appreciation of the scouts' work from the secretary of committee on Americanization of Fort Orange post, American Legion.

Stray Bit of Wisdom.
It is from books that wise men derive consolation in the troubles of life.—Victor Hugo.

Two Great Americans Spread Light in Syria.

—American interest in the Near East was fortunately founded upon the idea of missionary Christian service. This type of American activity, though it runs back in Syria a full hundred years, has not been seriously vitiated by that self-interest which seems inevitably to accompany the struggle for markets of trade. Probably this is not due to any superiority of American morality in international affairs, as our relations with the West Indies and the Central American states amply prove. A clever Austrian writer has named it for us—"the imperialism of the banana." It would be wise of us to think it over and to realize that the banana is a useful fruit if properly handled. But it easily goes rotten, writes William Linn Westermann, in Asia Magazine.

To the present time, however, we may well take pride in American missionary and educational activity in the old Turkish empire, and most of all in one of its agents, Dr. Howard Bliss, who succeeded his father—"old Dr. Bliss," as the Syrians affectionately speak of him—in the direction of the Syrian protestant college at Beirut. An eminent young Englishman at the peace conference, who knew the Syrian situation as few men do, frequently spoke of Dr. Howard Bliss as "the root of all good in the Near East." A Syrian, a graduate of Beirut college, who was urging an American mandate over Syria, was asked what gave him his exaggerated notion of the virtue of Americans. He said: "I know that American business men, if the United States should take over the mandate of Syria, would want to make money out of us. But they would leave us our independence, and they would leave with us some of the money which they made in our land in the form of hospitals and schools." Then with great earnestness he spoke of Dr. Howard Bliss and his father, paying to them and their work a tribute such as few men could deserve: "I owe to my father and mother the fact of my birth. Everything else that I have attained in life, my professional training, my views of life, even my love of liberty, all this I owe to Beirut college, to Beirut, to the man who spoke was not a Christian. He was a Mohammedan Arab.

COMMUNISTIC TO A DEGREE
How Unfortunate Bee Which Cannot Perform Its Full Duties Is Done Away With.

"In bee civilization the state is everything, the individual nothing," writes Dallas L. Sharp in Harper's. "Each one exists for the whole, but the whole exists for no one. The individual is born to serve and the moment he ceases to serve, that moment he dies—worker, or drone, or queen, even the unborn young in their cradle cells. For let hard times come knocking at the door, with more baby mouths to feed than there are stores to feed them from, and the tender young are torn from their warm beds and hurled into the outer cold. Let the last virgin queen of the season be mated and not only does that drone perish in the act, but all the drones in the hive no longer needed are banded, bag and baggage, outside, to fumble for one pathetic moment before they die at their own door. Let the worker come home with frayed wings, falling never so little of her full capacity production, and she is set upon, never to be seen again in the hive; let the queen-mother, in the height of the honey flow, come short in her prodigious task of keeping the colony at its maximum strength; let her fall off from laying her 2,000 or 3,000 eggs per day, and a new queen is deliberately prepared for the old mother, then any one or worker, falling a victim to the pitiless policy of the state."

How Limousines Earn "Keep."
A fine horse never pulls a common cart till he is old and broken down, but machines are not so particular about their work. Brand new and latest model limousines that sometimes have a chauffeur in livery serve as trucks every day in New York. Not occasionally, but regularly. Most commonly they take parcel post boxes to the post offices after office hours, but they may be seen in the middle of the day also taking a full load of light freight on short hauls about town.—New York Sun.

How Next War Will Be Fought.
Major General Squier, chief signal officer of the United States army, told the graduates of the Camp Vail signal school that there had been greater developments in radio the past decade than in any other other science. Also that in future wars bargages and bombardments would be laid down by radio.

How It Turned Out.
"When your antagonist went into politics he made it a point to say in public, 'Get thee behind me, Satan.'"
"Yes," replied Senator Sorghum; "and that busy old boy has been one of his political backers ever since."

Blacksnakes Good for Golf.

Blacksnakes seeking a comfortable home, rent and taxes free, are invited to the golf links of the Coatesville Country Club, in Coatesville, Pa. Along the sides of the course underbrush has been permitted to grow thick, and tempting rock piles with full southern exposures have been placed to lure the snakes from adjacent lands. An educational campaign has been inaugurated among golfers with an aversion to reptiles in order that there may be no repetition of the deaths by violence which came to two of the organization's petz. Champions of the blacksnake declare that it is the most efficient natural enemy of the ground mole, which admittedly is the natural enemy of golf greens. Not only does the snake go right into the mole's borings and discourage that animal's operations, but it is alleged to kill off ratters and coverhairs. It is harmless to mankind, but is unlikely to appear in places where there are children about. It is put, for it were a night, in change.

Annual Services At Blackwater.

Annual services will be held at the old Blackwater Presbyterian Church, near Frankford, Del., this Sunday, the 22nd, at 2 p. m.

The sermon will be preached by the Rev. George S. Burslem, pastor of the Dover, Del., Presbyterian Church. His subject will be, "The Church and the Changing Order."

Blackwater is a very old church.
Its history is that of the Colonial days. It has been the mother of many churches, the two most recent being Ocean View, Del., and Frankford, Del. The latter has taken upon itself the care of the church and the grounds.

It has numbered among its pastors many famous Presbyterian di-vines.

It is easily reached by the way of Frankford. The public and friends of this old church are cordially invited to attend this service.

CAMERA TO RECORD WINNER

Method of Timing Race Is Declared to Be Beyond All Possibility of Error.

The moving picture camera is to be put to a new use; it is to time exactly the runners in a race.

When two competitors come in very close together it is extremely difficult for the umpire to say which was first, and often two men are so near that the result is declared a dead-heat.
In all cases probably one of the men is a fraction in front of the other, but the eye is unable to note such minute differences.

Now a clock is to be erected at the winning post, and as the winners come in they will be photographed with a kinema-camera, which will time their arrival to the hundredth part of a second. If the winner breaks the tape only one eighth of an inch in front of his nearest competitor the camera will note the fact.

The camera will be focused simultaneously on the clock at the winning post and on a mirror reflecting the start of the race. Both clock and camera will be set working before the starter fires his pistol, and the flash of the pistol will be reflected in the mirror and recorded on the film with the time of the clock to a hundredth of a second.

This time can then be subtracted from the time of the finish, and the exact time of the race for each man arrived at.

There will now be very few dead-heats in running matches.

CHINA'S WALL IS CRUMBLING

Wonderful Structure, Built 200 B. C., Believed, However, to Be Good for Many Centuries.

Recent visitors to the great wall of China, which is accessible at Nankow, forty miles from Peking, describe it as slowly crumbling. Many of the turrets which command its salient points as the wall climbs over the mountain tops are in ruins and tourists and natives alike wrench the stone blocks from the superstructure to throw into the valleys below. Yet it is maintained that the great structure, extending from Shanhaikuan on the sea almost to the borders of Tibet, has many centuries to live, although no efforts are made to preserve it.

Construction of the wall was begun 200 B. C. by Emperor Chih Huang-ti, a contemporary of Hannibal, who conceived "his barrier to keep out the Tartars. At one time 700,000 criminals and prisoners of war were engaged in the work. The main part of the wall, however, was not undertaken until the Seventh century, when, it is said, 3,000,000 workers were employed.

Dates From Fifteenth Century.

Interesting discoveries have been made at "Ye Ode Griffin" hotel, Amersham, England, a coaching house dating back to the Fifteenth century. The digging out of a leaking water pipe has brought to light a perfect example of an early Georgian fireplace. "It has white seats on either side and an immense hearthstone in the center, with an old-fashioned spit above it. On the hearth were some old coins, one with the date 1687. High up in the chimney is a recess which tradition says was used as a hiding place during the political persecutions of two hundred years ago.—Montreal Family Herald.

her, would you not feel you were doing a great Christian service? Would it not take some of the weariness out of household drudgery if we felt we were as truly serving God in it as if we were doing what the fine folks with plenty of time and money are doing? Let us remember Washington Gladjen's beautiful hymn:

Christianity's Present Goal

By REV. GEORGE E. GUILLE, Extension Department, Moody Bible Institute, Chicago.

TEXT.—Then the same day at evening, being the first day of the week, when the doors were shut where the disciples were assembled for fear of the Jews, came Jesus and stood in the midst, and saith unto them, Peace be unto you. And when he had so said, he showed unto them his hands and his side.—John 20:19-20.

This scene, over which the spirit of God so lovingly lingers, represents what we may call the present goal of Christianity, for it is the model for every assembly of the Lord's people. A present goal there is for us, just as there is a future one. What is that goal toward which our pilgrim feet are pressing? It is what is set forth in that line in II Thess. 2:1: "Our gathering together unto Him." To be with Him and to see His face forever! The present goal, then, is just the anticipation of that. It is any gathering of the saints now, round their risen Lord. Let us observe some of the outstanding features of this scene and see how they portray the blessings awaiting us, upon every occasion of "our gathering together."

1. Resurrection is the ground upon which the disciples meet. Mary's testimony to the resurrection of Christ brings them together upon this first day of the week. It is an eighth day—a number in Scripture that speaks of resurrection and of new creation. And it is thus that we are to assemble ourselves together upon the Lord's Day. Not as Baptists or Presbyterians, but as a company of risen saints for whom death and judgment are forever past.

2. And where is He? He is where He declared He would be—"in the midst." "Where two or three are gathered together (not where 'they gather') unto My name, there am I in the midst." The spirit of God is the convener of such assemblies, and He will gather the saints to one center only—that center is the person of the risen Christ. "Come Jesus and stand in the midst" and said "Peace."

3. Peace, then, is to mark the gathering of His people, His own peace! Locked doors cannot keep Him away from His own, but dispersion can, disharmony can, a marplot can! If He is there, there is peace. Peace has been made by the death of the Cross and He comes to proclaim it. "And when He had so said, He showed unto them His hands and His side," the marks of that death by which peace has been made.

4. And why this? It is a moment of peace, a moment of joy, a moment of gladness, a moment when the saints are gathered together, they shall not forget His death. The one thing never forgotten in heaven is the one thing He would have us remember here, and indeed the only thing that He ever asked us to commemorate: His death. "This do in remembrance of Me." And it is as we are gathered around Him at His table that we truly anticipate the day when "He shall present us to Himself." In instituting that memorial feast, He said: "I will not drink henceforth of this fruit of the vine, until that day when I drink it new with you in my Father's kingdom." He refuses wine until He shall drink it with His bride at the wedding feast! Paul was caught up to heaven, and came back with this additional revelation: "I have received of the Lord, that . . . as often as ye drink this cup ye do show the Lord's death till He come." Thus, as we sip the outpoured wine, we are not only recalling His death and reminding that it was our sins that spilt His precious blood, we are anticipating the marriage supper when we shall drink wine with Him anew, and with overflowing hearts, we cry: "This morning here, in thine absence, the next occasion at the marriage-feast. Come, Lord Jesus, come quickly!"

5. "Then were the disciples glad when they saw the Lord!" Oh, were they not! It is His presence that gives gladness, now as He shall be our joy forever. He comes into the midst, not with peace only, but with gladness and thus we foretaste our heaven.

But glad hearts are full of praise, and by Him, we are exhorted, "let us offer the sacrifice of praise to God continually, confessing His name." And we have heard Him say to the Father: "In the midst of these, which will I sing praise unto Thee." His own heart has a song! He has come into the midst to lead us in our praises to the Father. He is the Chorister and Himself the Theme of our praise! This is the rare perfume, so dear to God, that of old went up to Him before the veil—confessing with our overflow hearts that precious, ineffable name before Him, and no exercise of our hearts can be dearer to Him than this!

6. Time now for the benediction: "Then said Jesus to them again, Peace be unto you: as my Father hath sent Me, even so send I you." When of old the priests came out of the holy place the people smelled the incense on their garments. Thus do we go from the sanctuary—to leave the sweet savor of Himself in every place.

Something Worth While. Nat Goodwin used to tell a story of a tramp who, upon being asked to undertake the task of eating 30 quail in 30 days, pathetically exclaimed: "Make it turkeys."—Philadelphia Public Ledger.

LESSON FOR OCTOBER 22

JESUS TEMPTED

LESSON TEXT—Luke 4:1-13. GOLDEN TEXT—For in that He Himself hath suffered being tempted, He is able to succor them that are tempted.—Heb. 2:18. REFERENCE MATERIAL—Eph. 2:1-11; Heb. 2:14-18; PRIMARY TOPIC—Jesus Overcomes Temptation. JUNIOR TOPIC—Jesus Tempted to Do Wrong. INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Overcoming Temptation. YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—What Christ's Victory Means to Us.

I. The Place of (v. 1). The wilderness of Judea. The first man, Adam, was tempted in a garden, the most pleasant surroundings. The second man, Jesus Christ, was tempted in a barren wilderness surrounded by wild beasts (Mark 1:13).

II. The Purpose of (v. 1). He was led into a wilderness by the Spirit. Christ's temptation was Messianic. Though He was "tempted in all points like as we are," we are not tempted as He was in this instance, but the same methods are employed on us. During the eighteen years of retirement Satan surely tempted Christ as he tempts us. Satan, no doubt, would have gladly escaped this hour, but the time had come for the Redeemer to enter upon His mediatorial work; therefore He went from the place of anointing and heavenly recognition as the Son of God to meet and despoil the arch enemy (Heb. 2:14).

1. It was not a preparation for His work, but rather its first conflict. In baptism we have the symbolic act of dedication of himself to the work of redemption through the cross—the "making full a righteousness." In the temptation, the strong man is spilling the enemy.

2. It was not to see if Christ would stand fast—would fall under the most crucial test. Christ could not fall. To so postulate would make God's scheme of redemption to have been unsettled until after this temptation, and would have made God guilty of setting forth a scheme of redemption on the basis of a possible overthrow.

3. It was to show Christ as an object upon which we may rest our faith with unshaken confidence. He came as the second Man, the head of a new race, its very source and life. It was a demonstration of the inseparableness of the divine and human natures in the incarnation.

III. The Method of (v. 2, 3). Christ as the world's Redeemer sustained a threefold temptation. The first was a temptation to doubt, to lose faith in God's promise of blessing upon a man who had made a ground of attack.

1. Assaunt of Man (v. 2-4). Satan made his first assault upon Him as a man by appealing to the instinct of hunger. Satan urged Him to use His divine power and convert a stone into bread. Hunger is natural and sinless. This temptation was in violating a right hunger in a wrong way. To have yielded in this case would have been to renounce the human limitations which He had taken for our sakes. To use divine power to satisfy human needs would have been to fail as Saviour and Redeemer.

2. As Messiah (v. 5-8). Here the temptation was to grasp His rightful dominion by false means. The devil offered to surrender unto Him the world if He would worship him. The force of this temptation was in the fact that the kingdoms of the world are Christ's by God's covenant with Him. God's method by which Jesus was to possess the world was the cross. The temptation Satan is pressing upon the church today is to get possession of the world by other means than the cross.

3. As Son of God (v. 9-12). Here Satan tries to induce Christ to presume upon God's care. He quotes a Messianic Psalm to induce Him to so act. To the spectacular thing in order to get notice is to fall into Satan's temptations. For Jesus to have placed himself in danger in order to get God's special help in delivering Him would have been to sin. To put one's self in moral and spiritual peril in order to test God's faithfulness as Saviour is never quite so dangerous as when He quotes Scripture.

IV. Christ's Defense (v. 4, 8, 12). It was the Word of God. He met and repulsed the enemy with "It is written." Our defense is God's Word. Let every Sunday school teacher know how to use it!

V. The Issue (v. 13). Satan is vanquished. If we will but trust God and use His Word we too can overcome.

Memory Prayers.

Almighty God, unto Whom all hearts are open, all desires known, and from Whom no secrets are hid, cleanse the thoughts of our hearts by the inspiration of Thy Holy Spirit, that we may perfectly love Thee, and worthily magnify Thy holy name, through Jesus Christ our Lord. Amen.

Give me clean habits, clean words and clean thoughts; Help me to stand hard for the right against the easy wrong; Save me from habits that harm; Teach me to work as hard and play as fair in Thy fight alone as if all the world saw; Forgive me when I am unkind, and help me to forgive those who are unkind to me; Keep me ready to help others at some cost to myself; Send me chances to do a little good every day, and so grow more like Christ, Amen.—The Home Quarterly.

If our light as Christians cannot shine across the width of the family sitting room, or even the family table, and witness to brothers and sisters our consecration to love and kindness, how can it ever enlighten the world outside? A lamp, not bright enough to read by, will not do for a lighthouse's beacon—Forward.

"When a girl makes up her mind to do a right and true thing, and sticks to it, peace of mind follows decision. When a young man takes a stand for the right, and holds to it, peace comes to his soul. It is the hesitation that stands between principle and pleasure that makes restlessness and unhappiness."—Local Subscriptions to Advance 31

"Where your cash pays Dividends"

The House of Dreams

By ERNEST LEVINE

(© 1922, Western Newspaper Union.)

Maytown is near New York. It is as old as the Puritans, and some say—but this is pretense—it takes its name from the Mayflower. No one would guess at its age from the neat rows of clapboard houses on either side of the long street, unless one took a glance at the old Manor House, back in its maple grove.

A very old house, which has belonged to the Clay family from time immemorial. A mysterious house, for 30 years at least, since old Mr. Clay, the author of profound, queer books became a recluse there. Mysterious even to the tradesmen's boys, who knock at the back door and, eliciting no response, leave their parcels there.

The old, deaf housekeeper hardly counted. She, too, was a recluse. Gossip rose and fell in Maytown about the Manor House. What was happening inside it? Who were the visitors who sometimes went there?

Maytown is puritanical, prohibitionist, of course, godly and possessed of a burning hatred for beauty. Beauty and immorality are the two deadly sins. Immorality in Maytown? Hush!

Maytown hated the Manor House with a fury that was becoming madness. It hated it for its age, because of the spacious rooms—poor, cramped minds that dwelled in little, ornate parlors with twisted furniture, and tiny halls. It hated it because it stood for something which had once been the heritage of all men, a certain freedom, a nobility of life.

It hated old Mr. Clay, who could be seen very rarely seated in his chair upon his porch, among the maples. An old man with a white beard, who wrote queer books about beauty. Novels? Well, a sort of novel, but nobody could understand them.

But—who were the night visitors at the Manor House? Who were the visitors that some people declared they had seen leaving, very early in the morning? Women! Young women! Ah, old Mr. Clay might not be all that he pretended to be!

It was curious, the sort of people who told these tales. There was the child Henry, for instance, a sensitive, dreamy boy, who declared that he had heard music into one night, and seen him by the arm. Old Mr. Clay made no response except to lean heavily toward him.

Old Mr. Clay was dead. He had died writing, half an hour earlier.

There was a panic. The raiders disappeared. All except old blind Matty, who had to feel her way out of the house.

"I know who them women was," she said to Mrs. Sillett when she rejoined her. "It was his thoughts of beauty. They wasn't mortal."

Locomotive From Scrap Iron.

Working for eleven years, with a file as his only tool, a man in Buenos Ayres has made a miniature locomotive of scrap iron. The locomotive can be operated under its own power by the use of compressed air. The iron was not heated in the making, but was worked cold. A small coal tender and passenger coach were made at the same time and the whole thing is a little more than six feet in length and weighs 170 pounds. More than 1,200 screws and 2,000 rivets were used in the work. The train is complete to the last tiny detail and is built on the model of the equipment used on the British railroads of that country.

Corncocks.

Corncocks are being turned into automobile fuel, also a hard rubber substitute for phonograph records, pipe stems, varnish, buttons and electrical parts.

This commercial alchemy happens not in Germany, famous for its utilization of by-products, but right here in America. It is the result of six years of research by La Forge and Mains, chemistry experts of the Department of Agriculture.

Chemical engineering is one of the biggest fields open to young men today. It is the modern Aladdin's lamp.

BAPTISTS REPORT $35,000,000 CASH

CAMPAIGN HAS MADE POSSIBLE VAST ENLARGEMENT OF EVERY PHASE OF GENERAL WORK

GAIN 500,000 NEW MEMBERS

Effort Will Be Made to Enlist These and All Other Baptists in Share in Forward Movement During November

Total cash collections on the Baptist 75 Million Campaign up to May 1, 1922, had reached the sum of $35,000,000, according to the general Campaign headquarters. This represents an advance of nearly $20,000,000 over what Southern Baptists did for their general missionary, educational and benevolent work for the three years preceding the Campaign. The contribution of larger gifts to religious work has been accompanied by larger spiritual results in the local churches. It is pointed out. For instance, Southern Baptists baptized 150,000 more converts during the first three years of the Campaign than they did in the three years before, gained 3,000 new Sunday schools and 400,000 new pupils, enhanced the value of their local church property by $33,000,000, enlarged their contributions to local churches by $2,000,000 and increased their contributions to all causes by $12,450,000.

Baptist Institutions Grow

Some other phases of denominational progress made possible by the Campaign include increasing the number of Baptist hospitals in the South from 12 to 19, with three others under construction and four more definitely planned; strengthening of 17 Baptist orphanages and the establishment of two new ones, lifting $3,000,000 indebtedness on 119 Baptist schools, colleges and seminaries, completion and erection of permanent improvements in the sum of $1,000,000, and the addition of substantial sums to the endowment funds. Over 2,500 ministerial students are enrolled at Southern Baptist schools.

Church Loan Fund Raised

Among the outstanding accomplishments of the work of the Home Mission Board are the raising of 1,000 churches in building new houses of worship, the completion of the million-dollar Church Building Loan Fund, strengthening the work among the foreigners and Indians and the 25 Mountain mission schools. The Board has employed an average of 1,495 workers during the Campaign and reports for that period, 134,832 baptisms, 218,371 additions to churches, 2,276 Sunday schools and 759 churches organized, and 1,469 houses of worship built or repaired.

On the foreign field the equipment for mission work has been practically doubled, more than 250 new foreign missionaries have been sent out, more than 400 new native workers have been employed, and the Board has entered the new fields of Spain, Jugoslavia, Hungary, Roumania, Southern Russia, Palestine and Siberia. The Board reports for the period of the Campaign 17 new churches on the foreign field, 21,723 baptisms, 211 new Sunday schools, gain of 17,578 pupils, native contributions of $1,093,333, and 20,642 treatments administered by medical missionaries.

Another result of the Campaign is that the Bible and Annuity Board, which is looking to care for the aged dependent ministers and their families, has been enabled to double the number of such persons helped and the amount that is given these beneficiaries. Last year the Board was able to dispense $128,966 among needy ministers. It has invested assets of $1,149,088.

Receive 600,000 New Members

More than 600,000 new members have been received into the local Baptist churches of the South since the Campaign began, and in the hope of enlisting all these in the Campaign, as well as reaching the older members of the churches who have not shared in the forward movement heretofore, the month of November 3 has been designated as Re-enforcement Month by the Campaign Conservation Commission. During this month it is planned that every Baptist church in the South will call upon all its members—who are not already participating in the Campaign and secure subscriptions from them covering the two remaining years of the movement, and cash offerings to the Campaign from all the members. Dr. L. R. Scarborough, of Fort Worth, Texas, who was general director of the original Campaign, has been elected to serve in that capacity for the Re-enforcement program, although the details are being worked out in the various states under the leadership of the secretaries of the state mission boards. It is hoped to secure several million dollars in additional subscriptions and several millions in cash as well by December 1.

Oil From Palm Tree.

Cocaine nut oil, which is obtained from the fruit of a variety of palm tree that grows in Central and South America, has been examined by the Department of Agriculture. It resembles coconut oil and can replace it for many purposes. The supply of these nuts is almost unlimited and several firms are now attempting to establish the manufacture of the oil on a commercial basis.

Although during the war there was a scarcity of fats and oils in some countries, it seems that there are plenty of sources from which to obtain them in this country and many other parts of the world.

Seeds as Source of Wealth.

Although there are a number of productive sources of vegetable oils used in the arts and in the manufacture of food products, investigations by the United States Department of Agriculture indicate that valuable edible oils may be obtained in paying quantities from waste products and from seeds, such as the sunflower, not yet grown to any great extent in this country. At the present time the principal sources of vegetable oils are flaxseed, cottonseed, soy beans, corn germ, peanuts, palm, rape seed, tungnuts, mustard seed, sesame, castor beans and olives.

Numbering German Students' Hair.

Professors who (according to a dispatch from Berlin) recently counted the hairs on the heads of an entire class of men and women in Munich university, must have been endowed with remarkable patience. The arduous research disclosed that the men had from 40,000 to 50,000 hairs; the women from 60,000 to 70,000. Counting at the rate of one hair a second, it would take one professor more than 10 hours to number 70,000.

Answer the Call.

Berlin People Have Found That This Is Necessary.

A cold, a strain, a sudden wrench, a little cause may hurt the kidneys. Spells of backache often follow. Or some irregularity of the urine. A splendid remedy for such attacks.

Many Berlin people rely on it. Here is Berlin proof.

W. J. Hastings, Sr., salesman, Bay St., says: "My kidneys got out of order and I had a dull ache across my back and kidneys. If I took cold, the trouble was worse. My kidneys didn't act right. I used Doan's Kidney Pills and they relieved the trouble, strengthening my back and kidneys and helping me in every way. I recommend Doan's to anyone having kidney complaint."

Price 60c, at all dealers. Don't simply ask for a kidney remedy—get Doan's Kidney Pills—the same that Mr. Hastings had. Foster-Milburn Co., Mfrs., Buffalo, N. Y.

How Better Than Pills?

The question has been asked—Is what way are Chamberlain's Tablets superior to the ordinary cathartic and liver pills? Our answer is, they are easier and more pleasant to take and their effect is so gentle that one hardly realizes that it is produced by a medicine. Then, they not only move the bowels but improve the appetite and strengthen the digestion.

A New Delmarvia Book.

Edward Noble Vallandigham, LL. D., a son of the late Rev. James L. Vallandigham, who just before the Civil War Period was a much beloved Pastor of several of the ancient Presbyterian Churches on the lower Eastern Shore, and afterwards in upper Delaware, has just completed a book entitled "Delaware and the Eastern Shore," published by J. B. Lippincott Co. of Philadelphia, Pa. It is artistically bound and printed and filled with many attractive views of our Peninsula. It contains much interesting information in a most readable form and is different from any other book concerning Delmarvia heretofore published. The author is a native of the Peninsula and is a graduate of the University of Delaware, where he was at one time Professor of Literature. His mother was a Miss Spence, of Snow Hill, Md. He is a well-known writer and newspaper correspondent and now resides in Boston, Mass.

A few years ago the Philadelphia Record published a popular series of illustrated articles by this author concerning our Peninsula.

We welcome this latest addition to the literature of our beloved Peninsula and are glad to note that it contains a full appreciation of the people and places on this Peninsula with a delightful New England viewpoint appearing here and there in it. John S. McMaster.

A Remarkable Record. Chamberlain's Cough Remedy has a remarkable record. It has been in use for almost half a century and has constantly grown in favor and popularity as its good qualities became better known. It is the standard and main reliance for these diseases in thousands of homes. The facts that it can always be depended upon and is safe and pleasant to take are greatly in its favor when it is wanted for children.

Rev. Wilbur Smith Called to Baltimore.

October 11, 1922. Editor, Berlin Advance, Berlin, Md. Sir:

One of my colleagues in Ocean City, the Rev. Wilbur M. Smith, announced last evening at the Board of Trade meeting, that he had been called to a Church in Baltimore, and would leave Ocean City in a short time.

I am writing to ask you to express for me my personal regret at the call which takes from us one who has ever been enthusiastic and helpful in every effort for the uplift of the community in which he has worked with pronounced success for the past four years; and express to Mr. Smith my congratulations—not upon his call to a large and influential parish, but upon the achievements which have made the call possible.

As a rule, the demand of all Churches for entrance to their ministry is scholarly; and that scholarship is determined largely by one's graduation from a Seminary of Theological education.

Through circumstances beyond his control, the advantages of Princeton were denied to Mr. Smith; but he did his work at Ocean City, and carried on his studies at the same time, in such a way that both the people of his parish, and the demands of a great institution were thoroughly satisfied, with the result that his Presbytery, after a thorough and exhaustive examination gave him the full credits for scholarship, while the community in which he has served is one in giving him full credit for efficiency.

The man who has the vision, and will hold to it until his dream comes true, is the man worth while. Mr. Smith has the vision. That he will hold to it, we of Ocean City have positive proof. That he is worth while the Church in Baltimore to which he goes will find out for themselves. We do not have to ask or look, for we have watched him fight his battle, do his work, and keep the vision. And we are content to leave it with him—in good keeping.

I desire to congratulate Mr. Smith upon his achievement, which I know has meant much study under the stress of many demands, and in the face of many difficult problems. We must congratulate the church in Baltimore to which he has been called, while at the same time we regret a loss which will mean to them a distinct gain.

With the earnest prayer for his continued achievement and its consequent success, believe me Faithfully Yours, Edmund Burk.

W. C. T. U.

A goodly number of the members of the W. C. T. U. met at the home of the President, Mrs. Thomas Norris, and her mother, Wednesday evening.

The special program was omitted because of the large amount of business that needed attention.

A letter from our State President, Mrs. Mary R. Haslop, suggesting that we have Miss Roena E. Shamer hold a public temperance meeting in Berlin next week, was read and favorably considered, but could not be settled positively on so short notice. Watch for further announcements.

The election of officers was to be held at this meeting. Some felt compelled by present circumstances to resign their position, but were prevailed on to continue the work, at least for a while.

Refreshments of cake and hot cocoa were served by the hostesses.

Card Of Thanks

The members of the Berlin band wish to thank those who have contributed money for their instruments.

ANNIVERSARY ANNOUNCEMENT

With September just passed our firm completed its Fourteen years of Business Experience in the town of Berlin. While our growth has been slow yet from year to year our business has steadily increased from that September in 1908, when we began, until now when we find ourselves on the home-stretch of the Biggest Year we have had in our Fourteen Years of trying to Serve the Public in this and the surrounding community.

Some Reasons For This Growth

We believe in Common Honesty—an Honest Count—an Honest Grade—whether the Material is coming on our yard or going off to the Consumer.

We believe in our business. It is an Honorable one and is here to render a Necessary Service to the people and whatever serves faithfully is Holy.

Our chief interest in our business has been to give our Customers Satisfaction with the Material they buy at a fair profit to ourselves.

We believe in making the same price, for the same thing, to all men. Any other method spells trouble.

We share in concessions given by the big mills to the large buyer. We are one of a group that buys in large quantities. Think of buying Forty Cars of Shingles at one time and a Carload of Zinc-Coated Nails to use with those shingles! At one purchase 550,000 feet of Flooring from one of the best Mills in the South! The advantages of these large purchases we give to our Customers.

A Word Of Appreciation

However, the main object in our mind in the use of this space was to express to our Friends and Patrons our Hearty Appreciation of their Faithfulness and Patronage during Our Fourteen Years of endeavors to serve them. The building public has been good to us and we are greatly pleased to return our most Sincere Thanks—Thanks for their Many Good Words to us when everything was just right and Thanks for their Lncient Criticism of us when the mistake was ours.

We want your Trade and we trust you will get in touch with us when in need of Building Material. If in the future we can give you better service than we have done in the past, rest assured it will be our pleasure to give it. Visit US.

Yours for Better Homes,

DEMOCRATS HAVE 33,687 MAJORITY

UNOFFICIAL TABULATION SHOWS
194,183 VOTERS REGISTERED IN ENTIRE CITY.

LEAD IN EVERY DISTRICT

Many Men and Women Decline To Affiliate With Parties, According to Figures.

Baltimore.—Unofficial tabulation of the registration in the city based on figures furnished prior to revision day places the total number of those enrolled at 194,183, and gives to the Democrats an affiliated majority of 33,687. Divided into legislative districts, the Democrats have 6,912 in excess in the First, 17,134 in the Second, 7,225 in the Third and 2,316 in the Fourth.

In the First district there were placed on his books 14,761 Democratic men and 4,949 Democratic women, a total of 19,710. There are 9,014 Republican men and 3,964 Republican women, a total of 12,978. Of declined voters 2,464 are men and 729 women, a total of 3,193. The total vote in the district is 35,851, 23,827 being white men, 8,236 white women, 2,412 colored men and 1,466 colored women.

In the Third district there are registered 17,051 Democrats, men and women, a total of 26,216. Of Republican men there are 11,436 and Republican women 7,455, a total of 18,891. Declined men number 2,222, and declined women 1,051, a total of 3,273. The total registration in the district is 48,380. Of these on the books, 25,137 are white men, 13,769 white women, 5,602 colored men and 3,872 colored women.

The Fourth district has 11,765 Democratic men and 4,183 Democratic women, a total of 15,948. There are 9,135 Republican men and 4,369 Republican women, or 13,504 in all; 1,490 men and 411 women declined to affiliate, a total of 1,901. The total vote registered in the district is 31,421. Of this number 17,969 are white men, 6,450 white women, 4,585 colored men and 2,411 colored women.

EDUCATORS TO GATHER HERE

American University Body To Meet
At Hopkins.

Baltimore.—More than 100 of the prominent educators of the country are planning to attend the annual meeting of the Association of American Universities at Johns Hopkins University on November 9, 10 and 11. Announcement of the convention was made Saturday at Homewood.

Details of the program have not yet been completed, but arrangements are being made by Dr. Frank J. Goodnow, president of Hopkins, and a special committee for the entertainment of the guests. It is expected that two or more representatives will be sent from each of the large universities. Representatives of Columbia University will be Prof. Herbert E. Hawks, dean of the collegiate department; Dr. Frederick J. E. Woodbridge, dean of the graduate school; William H. Carpenter, provost, and Prof. Adam Leroy Jones, director of admissions.

Addresses will be made by prominent university officials and the election of officers for the year will be held.

Next Saturday Dr. Goodnow and Dr. William W. Guhl, president of Goucher College, are planning to go to Buffalo, N. Y., to attend the inaugural ceremonies for Dr. Samuel P. Capen, the new chancellor of the University of Buffalo. In connection with this ceremony there will be the dedication of a new chemical laboratory, the first of a group of buildings planned for erection on the university's new 150-acre campus.

Howe.—The Colored State Normal School, located at Jericho Park, a little more than a mile north of this place on the Pennsylvania Railroad, was totally destroyed by fire. It is thought the fire originated in the furnace room, the probable cause being combustion of gases from the use of soft coal. The building, which was three stories and basement constructed of brick, was built in 1911 by the State of Maryland, Col. W. S. Powell, of the Elliott City Times, being chairman of the committee having in charge its erection. The cost of the building was about $20,000. At the time the blaze started there were no classes in session but about 20 students were in the apartment on the third floor, used as a dormitory and recreation room. All escaped but lost all their wearing apparel and personal effects.

Annapolis.—After the prosecution finished presenting the testimony of its witnesses in the court-martial of Midshipman James H. Robinson, charged with hazing William H. McGarber of the fourth class, the accused midshipman went on the stand and admitting portions of the charges against him, denied that he had been extreme in his requirements. He declared that he had nothing to do with the last stunt, the "asymptote," which was the direct cause of the "plobe's" complete physical collapse and his detention in the hospital over two weeks after the occurrence.

SHORT CUTS IN STATE NEWS

The Latest News From All Over the State

HAPPENINGS OF THE WEEK

Cumberland.—Dr. Wilmot Ayres, Bedford, and Miss Blanche Filles, trained nurse, daughter of Harry Filles, of Wollburg, are in Western Maryland Hospital with serious injuries sustained when the automobile in which they were riding struck a cement abutment and overturned.

Crisfield.—A locomotive struck a bad rail, plate in the Pennsylvania terminal yards here, turned turtle and was wrecked. Engineer Massey stuck to his post and was not seriously injured. Fireman Draper jumped from the high side of the engine and sustained a few bruises.

Elkton.—The annual Community Show at Calvert, under the auspices of the Ninth District Farmers' Club and the Calvert Grange, was held in the Cecil County Agricultural High School Building Saturday. The attendance was large and the exhibits the most numerous since the shows were inaugurated.

Baltimore.—Except for an increase of 21 cases of whooping cough, Baltimore's health situation was highly satisfactory during the last week, according to a report by Mayor Broening from Assistant Health Commissioner J. Frederick Hempel. Deaths for the week totaled 193, or 17 less than for the corresponding week last year.

Cumberland.—The registration during the sittings covering three days in Allegany county resulted in the enrollment of 513 new voters. Of this number 470 affiliated with Republicans and 43 Democrats. Delegates who have studied the situation say the Republican majority in Allegany in November will be materially reduced.

Salisbury.—Conceding that the bridge which spans the Wicomico River at Mata street, this city, is a connecting link in the State highway across the Eastern Shore the State Roads Commission has promised State aid in replacing the old bridge with a modern structure. The bridge and other structures of the city are being inspected by the State Roads Commission.

Annapolis.—The Annapolis Academy eleven-downed George Tech, 13 to 0, in the big intercollegiate football game, played in Annapolis Saturday. Navy scored a touchdown and placed goal in the first quarter and another touchdown in the second period. Although Navy failed to score in the latter half, the Annapolitan outplayed the Georgians and missed two other scores only by the narrow margin.

Rockville.—Chief of Police Charles T. Cooley led a raid on a house on the Rockville-Georgetown pike, four miles below Rockville, Thursday night. Montgomery county and Federal officers found there, they say, 25 pints of whisky, which they confiscated, and placed under arrest Maurice Davis, Charles Mangum and Hugh Lawlor. The three men were brought to Rockville, where they furnished bond of $1,000 each for their appearance in the Police Court here on charges of having liquor in their possession with the intention of selling it.

Salisbury.—The City Council is sounding the public on the question of purchase by the city of control of the water system in Salisbury, now under the ownership of a private concern. Increased facilities are necessary to meet the demands of the first underwriters. The city would first need authority to float a bond issue in order to purchase the present plant, which would mean a delay of more than two years, it was pointed out. Should additional mains be laid by the Salisbury Water Company at the expense of that firm, an increase in rates charged the consumers would be inevitable.

Salisbury.—The Ritchie-Bruce-Goldsborough combination held forth at a well-attended Democratic mass-meeting in the theatre here Saturday evening. Besides the Governor, the senatorial candidates and the candidates for re-election from the First Congressional District, Robert E. Lee, chairman of the State Industrial Accident Commission and star platform performer, and Miss Margaret Koenig, of Baltimore, added their flow of oratory to the evening's proceedings and were well received. Alexander M. Jackson, one of the Democratic congressional candidates in the First District, in the recent primaries. A considerable number of Republicans were in the audience. When Governor Ritchie, who was the first speaker, launched a tentative gubernatorial boom for Comptroller W. S. Gordy, Jr., by stating that it seemed to be traditional for comptrollers to become governors, the audience applauded. The Governor hastened to add, however, that he hoped Mr. Gordy would be contented to wait for another term. The Governor attacked the Republicans for taking the burdens of Federal taxation from the shoulders of the rich and placing them via the tariff upon the shoulders of the poor.

How New York Got Its Spine.
The steel that made New York a city in the sky was wrought in my own time. My father and his sons helped puddle the iron that has braced this city's rising towers. A tower that crumbled, now stands erect. And we whose backs were bent above the puddling hearths know how it got its spine. A mossy town of wood and stone changed in my generation to a towering city of glass and steel. "All of which"—I can say in the words of the poet—"I saw and part of which I was."—From "The Iron Puddler," by James J. Davis.

WHY Some Men Prove Superior to Women as Cooks

You have doubtless heard the opinion put forward that men as a rule make better cooks than women. Usually this opinion is projected by a man. Perhaps he is a man who likes to cook, a bachelor who really prefers to go home to a meal of his own making than a meal cooked in his club or at a nearby restaurant. He makes the remark about men making the best cooks partly because he sincerely believes that they are and partly to oppose any possible feeling on the part of his friends that he is womanish in liking to cook.

Men who themselves know nothing of and care nothing for the art and practice of cooking sometimes incline to this belief—that men are the best cooks. This, they say, is because men have more acute and more scientific taste. The greatest cooks are of ways men, and one has to be something of a gourmet to be a really first-rate cook.

Here is the opinion of an English writer, George H. Sims, on the subject, and it is as good an explanation as any: "Men as a rule make better cooks than women—I am writing of professional cooks because an amateur who is only interested in the art and has a taste for it, whereas the professional take it up because there is more money to be earned by calling oneself a good plain cook than there is by going into domestic service as a scrubber of doors, a dustier of furniture or a bander around of dishes."

This really is an explanation that might be applied to the professional man cook as well as to the professional. He is a rare bird—as rare a bird as the professional male cook. Popular prejudice is somewhat against him. A man has far fewer opportunities to work up skill in cooking than does a girl who is offered cooking lessons in school and is often pressed into service at home. So the man who does overcome obstacles and does develop skill as a cook must be naturally gifted as a cook.

MADE FEBRUARY THE VICTIM

Why That Month Has Not Its Quota of Days Is Due to Jealousy of Roman Emperor.

Why have July and August 31 days apiece, while poor February has only 28, or, at the most, 29, days? A writer in "The World" says: "The Romans were the first to give the month of February 28 days. The number of days in the month was increased to 29 days by Julius Caesar in 46 B.C. for the common years and 30 days for the leap years. The extra day was added to February, the only month next to the year 46 B.C. Caesar's first name, Julius, had been given to the seventh month, and when the Emperor Augustus decided to have a month of his own he made up his mind that certainly it should have no fewer days than July, which was Caesar's."

Consequently, they cut another day off February in order to give Augustus his 31 and then arranged the sequence of strong and weak months after August; otherwise there would have been three successive months—July, August and September—each with 31 days. This is an explanation given by an Italian review, without documentary evidence.

Why Acadian French Were Removed.
A few days ago a chapel, a memorial to the French settlers of Acadia, who were expelled from the land of Evangeline by the British in 1755, was dedicated at Grand Pre, N. S. In 1621 Acadia was granted to Sir William Alexander, who named it Nova Scotia. In 1755, because of their persistent refusal to take the British oath of allegiance, the Acadian French were removed.

Evangelina, a tale of Acadia, is said to be based upon a true story, which traveled from Canada to New England by word of mouth, and is the subject of a famous poem by Longfellow, published in 1847. It is the story of two innocent lovers who were banished from Acadia with the rest of the French, and became separated, but who remained faithful till death. The poem founded a national legend which has kept alive the memory of an episode that would have otherwise been forgotten.

BOY SCOUTS

(Conducted by National Council of the Boy Scouts of America.)

HAS MUNICIPAL GOVERNMENT

Treasure Island, summer camp of the Philadelphia scouts, though renounced in name of pirate boldness and clanking defiance, is a miniature city with regular government and law-abiding citizens. A new mayor is elected every Saturday night and names his cabinet upon his inauguration. Besides the mayor, there are in this well-organized community a city clerk, a camp physician, head of the department of stores and highways, a department of public health, bureau of supplies, of city transit, of recreation, wharves, docks and ferries, city property, lighting, public welfare, harbor police, city police, fire department, chief of police, a commissary department and a city treasurer. The work of regulating the various activities and duties of the camp is carried out by boy officials. Each troop has its own camp. Twice a week there is a general central camp fire and once a week in the woods a council ring.

In the first-aid department the boys under the supervision of two camp doctors, are trained to handle all first-aid cases.

There is never a minute of idleness at camp. Every moment is planned and crowded with work and play, "a characteristic combination in boy scout education."

The Philadelphia Public Ledger in commenting on the camp says: "Hundreds of boy scouts of the Philadelphia district will find during the next few months at this ideal camping site on the Delaware river a treasure more enduring, more delightful and more precious than all of the loot of pirates—a treasure of health, happiness and the joy of just being alive."

"AT YOUR SERVICE"

GOOD TURN APPRECIATED

Scout Executive Dyer T. Jones of South Orange, N. J., is in receipt of the following letter of appreciation of a good turn: "During the storm Sunday, June 11, a large hickory tree on my premises was blown down by the wind, breaking two other trees in its fall and entirely blocking the sidewalk and most of the roadway in front of my home. In response to a call by the village authorities, Troop No. 11, boy scouts came to my home and inside of 30 minutes, they chopped the tree in five or six lengths, lopped off the branches and stored all of the debris on the lawn, entirely out of the way of traffic of all kinds. As this tree was between 60 and 70 feet high and measured about 18 inches in diameter it seems to me that the accomplishment of this work in such a speedy manner is a meritorious achievement and worthy of being called to your attention. I certainly appreciate the work of Troop 11 under their leader, Mr. Morrison, and through you I wish to express my hearty thanks for their sincerely earnest work in time of emergency.—John B. Sandford."

GIVE TOURISTS INFORMATION

"Things You Ought to Know About Baving, the Falls City of the Lakes—Distributed by Courtesy of the Boy Scouts"—so reads the little page of a folder which is being handed all autoists inquiring at the two information booths recently erected by the Racine (Mich.) Association of Commerce and taken charge of by boy scouts. The circular includes a map of routes to neighboring cities and to local points of interest.

INDEPENDENT REFORM.

President Harding has sounded an appeal to the nation for help to the Smyrna victims and other sufferers from the Turks, that has been taken up by the newspapers of the state and will certainly appeal to the heart of Maryland, says Harold F. Pellegrin, state director, Near East Relief.

The state newspapers are not only publishing accounts from unbiased writers that tell of the awful conditions in the Near East but are making appeals through their columns to the people to give, says Mr.
Pellegrin. And it is not only the newspapers that are helping wonderfully but the big magazines are doing splendid work, the latest action being full page appeals on Oct.
21, in metropolitan papers all over the country, made by the Literary Digest which paid every cent of the cost of the appeal. In this appeal the call to action is summarized thus:

"Driven from their homes, by fire and sword beaten, trampled, robbed—more than half a million men, women and little children are being swept along to starvation, madness, and self-destruction in the Near East.

"Herded in the streets like cattle for the slaughter; huddled on the brink of the sea, and casting themselves, crazed by hunger and fear, in the dark waters; dragged from the burning hell of Smyrna, only to be thrust by their rescuers into the slower hell of Mitylene and Salonika, and other 'havens' of refuge, which are now crowded centers of starvation and breeding grounds of pestilences, they have only one hope of salvation from the nightmare of crucifixion. That hope is YOU—Americans."

What, says State Director Pellegrin, will avail the aid of the newspapers, of the magazines, what avails
the call of the President, unless you, reader, respond to this agonizing cry for help. Answer now, send a check to John E. Bosse, state treasurer, Near East Relief, 14 W. Franklin St., Baltimore, Md. He gives twice who gives speedily, says the Greek Patriarch at Constantinople, quoting a Greek proverb in an appeal by him.

Modern Knights Wanted

Yes, I fear it's growing. At least it seems to be, as I go about the country. In car after car that I enter I see boys occupying seats, and women and older men standing.
Now I can't understand that.
I have known so many courteous boys in my lifetime, that I can't quite account myself to be so hard-kind. Yet for a strong, active young boy to remain in a seat while an elderly man or a woman stand-right alongside or in front of him—well, it isn't courteous, is it?

I have many pictures before me now of young gentlemen, fourteen or sixteen years old, who always touch their hats when they meet an older person on the street, who rise when an older person enters a room where they are seated, and who never retain a seat when an older person is without a seat. They do these things so naturally that they don't have to stop to think over it it comes right up as the next thing to do.

Does anyone think that is unmanly or weak? Don't deceive yourself. True courtesy and fingentlemanly behavior have always been the habits of the big, strong men of the world. Nobody would be particularly surprised if a "big boy" lacked courtesy or finthoughtfulness of others. Who more could one expect? But a manly boy, a boy who is strong and clean in body and mind, and who is courageous—why, one junaturally expects him to rise and yield his seat on a car to his mother or to someone else's mother or sister. For him to fail is hard to be thought of.

Courtesy to girls and women ways has been considered the mark of a gentleman and always will be so considered. The crowded street car, with men and women standing and swinging on the straps, and with people of every kind jostling and hurrying back and forth—what a place to have a woman stand if it's possible to avoid it!

I know that many men fail this courtesy; but that isn't what I'm talking about. That does excuse a boy, does it? What do men do, need concern us only it is right; then we can afford to as they do. But to be less than courteous to a woman just because some man is less than courteous isn't a good argument, is it?

IMPROVED UNIFORM INTERNATIONAL

Sunday School Lesson

By REV. F. B. FITZWATER, D. D., Teacher of English Bible to the Moody Bible Institute of Chicago.

MESSIAH'S MINISTRY (WORLD'S TEMPERANCE SUNDAY)

GOLDEN TEXT—Righteousness exalteth a nation; but sin is a reproach to any people.—Prov. 14:34. REFERENCE MATERIAL—Matt. 23:23; Rom. 14:12. PRIMARY TOPIC—How Four Boys Became Healthy and Happy.—Dan. 1:12-20. JUNIOR TOPIC—Destroying the World's Enemy. INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—The Next Step in the Prohibition Campaign. YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Progress of Prohibition Throughout the World.

The lesson committee has gratefully named this lesson "World-wide Prohibition." Neither the text nor the context, directly or implied, says anything about prohibition, so we understand the use of the word. However, when Messiah shall reign upon the earth the ruin traffic with all other iniquitous practices will be abolished.

1. Messiah's Commission (v. 1). He was appointed by the Lord. God's plan for the world is a time of peace and blessing. 2. Messiah's Program (v. 1, 2). Messiah's program is twofold: to "proclaim the acceptable year of the Lord, and the day of vengeance of our God." The careful reading of Luke 4:18-21 will show that Jesus suspended reading of this passage at the comma, in Isaiah 61:2. His first coming opened up the day of "grace and the acceptable year of the Lord," and His second coming will usher in "the day of vengeance of our God." (II Thess. 1:7-10; cf. Mal. 3:1-3).

1. Proclaiming the Acceptable Year of the Lord (v. 1, 2). In His ministry of grace He preached (1) "good tidings to the meek," "Meek" here means not only a grace, but a condition, that is, those in poverty and affliction. (2) "Bind up the brokenhearted." "Bind up" signifies healing. (3) "Liberty to the captives." The figure of deliverance from the Babylonian captivity is used to describe deliverance from sin and death (Heb. 2:15). (4) "Opening of the prison to them that are bound." Messiah's work was to give deliverance to those who were enslaved by the consequences of their sin. (5) "The acceptable year of the Lord." This means a space of time in which God would accept all who repent of their sins and come to Him.

2. Proclaiming the day of vengeance of God (v. 2). While the day of mercy is lengthened out, the time of judgment is being hastened. The world when the Lord shall be revealed from heaven will be a scene of judgment. The period of mercy is called "day," showing that the period of mercy is much longer than the period of wrath.

3. The Sins of Messiah's Kingdom (v. 3). "Comfort all that mourn" (v. 2). "The day of vengeance will bring sorrow to many, but they shall be comforted when they shall see the King on the throne." 2. "Give unto them beauty for ashes" (v. 3). This peculiarly applies to Israel.

4. "Oil of Joy for Mourning" (v. 3). Israel has been mourning for centuries. When the Messiah shall reign as King they shall be glad.

5. "Garment of Praise for the Spirit of Heaviness" (v. 3). Instead of wearing the symbol of the burden of sin they shall be clothed so as to indicate their joyfulness.

6. "Called Trees of Righteousness" (v. 3). These trees represent Israel as planted by God and bearing fruit, not as reeds bowed down with sorrow.

7. "They Shall Build the Old Wastes" (v. 4). Israel shall return to their own land and shall rebuild the city of Jerusalem and the cities of Judah which lie waste.

8. "Strangers Shall Stand and Feed Your Flocks" (v. 5). In the time of the kingdom the Gentiles shall render voluntary service unto Israel so that Israel may devote her whole time to the service of God.

9. "Ye Shall Be Named the Priests of the Lord" (v. 6). God chose Israel to be the priestly nation to represent Him to the Gentiles.

10. "For Ye Shall Have Double" (v. 7). Instead of the shame and confusion which Israel has experienced for centuries she shall have double honor and rejoicing.

11. "I Will Direct Their Work, and Make a Covenant With Them" (v. 8). God will vindicate His people and cause the Gentiles to see the divine favor upon them.

12. "False Prophets." Believe not every spirit but try the spirits if they be of God, because many false prophets are gone out into the world.—John 4:1.

13. "Unjust Things." He that speaketh unjust things cannot be hid, neither shall the chastising judgment pass him by.—Book of Wisdom, 1:8.

14. "In the Sight of All Men." Provide things honest in the sight of all men.—Romans 12:17.

15. "Gigantic Codfish." The largest single cod of which Wilfred T. Grenfell has a record, he tells in "Labrador," weighed 102 pounds. The record on the Newfoundland banks is held by a fish taken in 1888, which weighed, after being gutted, 133 pounds; the American record by a fish weighing 100 pounds.

16. "Lefty Island Mountains." The volcano Mauna Loa on the island of Hawaii and the neighboring cone, Mauna Kea, both nearly 14,000 feet high, are among the highest island mountains in the world.

The Protevangelium

By REV. LEW W. GOSNELL Assistant Dean, Moody Bible Institute, Chicago.

TEXT.—And I will put enmity between thee and the woman, and between thy seed and her seed; it shall bruise thy head, and thou shalt bruise his heel.—Gen. 3:15.

The dictionary defines Protevangelium as "the first announcement of the gospel; the promise of a Savior given to Adam and Eve, veiled in the curse to the serpent (Gen. 3:15)." Every Christian should memorize this precious text and seek to appreciate the depths of its meaning. It should be noted that the blessing is to result from the curse on the serpent. We have no doubt of the presence of the literal serpent on this occasion. But certainly, this creature was "seduced" by the same diabolic intelligence which later animated the swine, in the time of Christ (Matt. 8:30, 31).

The serpent was an appropriate instrument for Satan's use in the temptation. Dean Stanley remarks: "The towering pride of the serpent's erected head, and the beauty of its glittering skin, the subtle fascination in the fixed and steadfast gaze of its unshaded eye, the wily cunning of its tortuous movements, the malignant venom of its poison, and the undimmed shrewdness of its natural lusts, the low and groveling descent into the dust of the earth, are indeed fit emblems of almost every form of the darker side of human life."

The address to the serpent refers to two seeds. Certainly there is something deeper here than the enmity which exists between men and snakes. The seed of the serpent must mean the generations of evil men, culminating in the Antichrist (Matt. 23:33; I Joh. 3:10). The seed of the woman must mean the righteous, especially Christ (Gal. 3:16; 4:4; Heb. 2:14; I Joh. 3:8). From the beginning there has been enmity between these two seeds (I Joh. 3:12). It has been well said, regarding our text, that "we have here the sum of the whole matter, and the rest of the Bible does but explain the nature of this struggle, the persons who wage it, and the manner and consequences of the victory."

Again, in this verse, written in the first pages of the Bible, there are set before us both the first and second advents of our Lord. The serpent is told he will bruise the heel of the seed of the woman, and the woman's seed, when He was crucified on Calvary. We rejoice, however, that this bruising was not fatal, for the heel is the lower part and not vital!

But we rejoice even more because of another bruising which is mentioned, the bruise of the woman shall bruise the serpent's head. True, Christ anticipated His final victory when He overcame the Adversary in the wilderness and at His resurrection (Col. 2:15). But His victory is not yet complete, and will not be until the dawn of the happy millennial day, when Satan will be bound for a thousand years, to be finally cast into the lake of fire. Notice, that while it was Christ's heel which was wounded, it is Satan's head which is to be bruised, and the head is the vital part!

Huxley's Despair.

How thrilling that, embedded in the very account of the entrance of sin into the world, thousands of years ago, is the prophecy of Christ's final victory over it, which still awaits fulfillment. There is much pessimism abroad today. Huxley said: "The theory of evolution encourages no millennial expectations. If, for millions of years, our globe has taken the upward road, yet, sometime, the summit will be reached, and the downward route will be commenced." But, with this promise of God before us, we can say with Luther: "Here arises the Sun of Consolation." We do not think it fanciful to see in this wonderful Scripture a suggestion of the virgin birth of Christ. How shall we otherwise explain this statement that the Redeemer is to be the Seed of the woman, but nothing is said of His being the Seed of the man? In closing, we would again point out that this "first announcement of the gospel," of the good news, is presented in an announcement of warfare and of final judgment on Satan. It reminds us that, while the book of Revelation opens with glorious visions of the new heaven and earth, these are preceeded by scenes of judgment. In which, the plagues of Egypt are repeated, only intensified, and men gnaw their very tongues for pain. God is long-suffering, but the day of Christ's wrath must come, if the serpent's seed are to be destroyed and the meek are to inherit the earth. God's very purposes of good require the judgment which is to fall on the earth!

How we rejoice in Him who is the Deliverer from the wrath to come (I Thess. 1:10). Just as God provided coats of skins for our sinful first parents, so we may sing:

"Jesus, thy blood and righteousness My beauty are, my glorious dress. 'Midst flaming swords, in thine arrayed, With joy shall I lift up my head."

All Things Good and Useful. There is not one grain in the universe, either too much or too little; nothing is to be added, nothing to be spared; not so much as any one particle of it, that mankind may not be either the better or the worse of it, according as it is applied.—L'Estrange.

Best Form of Reading. A man improves more by reading the story of a person eminent for prudence and virtue than by the finest rules and precepts of morality.—Addison.

Little Density in Fog.

It takes a big block of fog to make one good swallow of fog, says Dr. W. J. Humphreys of the United States weather bureau at Washington. The densest fog off Newfoundland banks contains some 20,000 droplets in a cubic inch. Doctor Wells and Doctor Thurns of the bureau of standards found:

To get one gulp of water enough fog to fill a space 3 by 5 by 100 feet would have to be condensed. In a fog that size there are 60,000,000,000,000 particles of water. "It would take about a half hour to count an inch of fog particles," says Doctor Humphreys. Placed side by side, 2,500 to 3,000 droplets would be needed to fill that length. "The droplets in a cloud have been found to be, on the average, twice the size of a fog droplet."

New Light on Biblical Lore.

A ludicrous distortion of scripture occurred not long ago in an English school when a small pupil wrote of the Pharisees: "The Pharisees were a mean, greedy lot. One day one of them gave our Lord a penny and our Lord held it out in his hand and looked at it with scorn and said, 'Whose subscription is this?'"—Boston Transcript.

Rawleigh's PURE SPICES. THERE is a big difference in spices and no matter how much or how little you use, they should be Rawleigh's Spices because Rawleigh's are absolutely full strength, economical to use—a little goes a long way. The most ordinary cakes, puddings, etc., become irresistible through the use of Rawleigh's Pure Spices. For pickling and making spiced preserves Rawleigh's Spices are unsurpassed. They are the finest flavored, the most wholesome spices grown; and are so good, so superior in every way, that you will like them the minute you open the can. In sifter-top, hygienic cans. Always uniform in strength. Ground and sealed at the big sanitary Rawleigh factories, untouched by human hands. Unsurpassed for cooking, baking, pickling, and wherever pure spices are needed. I will soon call with a complete line of Rawleigh's Good Health Products. Hold your orders for me, write or phone. J. B. Jackson, The Rawleigh Man Berlin

Modern Knights Wanted.

Yes, I fear it's growing. At least it seems to be, as I go about the country. In car after car that enter I see boys occupying seats, and women and older men standing. Now I can't understand that. I have known so many courteous boys in my lifetime, that I can't quite account myself to another kind. Yet for a strong, active young boy to remain in a seat while an elderly man or a woman stands right alongside or in front of him—well, it isn't courteous, is it?

I have many pictures before me now of young gentlemen, fourteen or sixteen years old, who always touch their hats when they meet an older person on the street, who rise when an older person enters a room where they are seated, and who never retain a seat when an older person is without a seat. They do these things so naturally that they don't have to stop to think over it; it comes right up as the next thing to do.

Does anyone think that is unmanly or weak? Don't deceive yourself. True courtesy and fine gentlemanly behavior have always been the habits of the big, strong men of the world. Nobody would be particularly surprised if a "sissy" boy lacked courtesy or fine thoughtfulness of others. What more could one expect? But a manly boy, a boy who is strong and clean in body and mind, and who is courageous—why, one just naturally expects him to rise and yield his seat on a car to his mother or to someone else's mother or sister. For him to fail is hardly to be thought of.

Courtesy to girls and women always has been considered the mark of a gentleman and always will be so considered. The crowded street cars, with men and women standing and swinging on the straps, and with people of every kind jostling and hurrying back and forth—why, what a place to have a woman stand if it's possible to avoid it!

I know that many men fail in this courtesy; but that isn't what I'm talking about. That doesn't excuse a boy, does it? What the men do, need concern us only when it is right; then we can afford to do as they do. But to be less than courteous to a woman just because some man is less than courteous, isn't a good argument, is it?

If you cultivate the habit of treating every woman courteously, you'll be a better man yourself.—Eugene O. Foster, in The Comrade.

A Remarkable Record.

Chamberlain's Cough Remedy has a remarkable record. It has been in use for colds, croup and whooping cough for almost half a century and has constantly grown in favor and popularity as its good qualities became better known. It is the standard and main reliance for these diseases in thousands of homes. The facts that it can always be depended upon and is safe and pleasant to take are greatly in its favor when it is wanted for children.

"One example is worth a thousand arguments," declared Gladstone. It is only because argument is so much easier than example that we usually try it instead. A good argument, we vainly hope, will carry enough weight to balance the lack of it in our example. But the world is too shrewd for that; it follows practice more than preaching. Being lovable, day in and day out, helps more people to Christ than all the arguments our lips can utter.—Selected.

How Better Than Pills?

The question has been asked—In what way are Chamberlain's Tablets superior to the ordinary cathartic and liver pills? Our answer is, they are easier and more pleasant to take and their effect is so gentle that one hardly realizes that it is produced by a medicine. Then, they not only move the bowels but improve the appetite and strengthen the digestion.

"We measure God by ourselves, when we think of giving to Him as being a real sacrifice of joy or power. It may be a sacrifice—but of the small joy to the great one. It may begin in pain, but it ends in power, as all true givers learn."

John Meets an Old Friend

By CAROLINE H. WILSON

(© by McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

"Bob and I are going on the yacht club cruise, Halliwell; better come with us," remarked John Murray to his friend, pushing back his chair and lighting a cigarette.

"Halliwell threw his cards into the center of the table. 'No, thank you, Murray. I must get back to the office. Your eternal good times would be the death of me. I have to think of the wife, you know. I'll take my pleasure at the other end of life.'"

"Eternal good times?" thought Murray as he walked down the street. "I haven't had many good times lately. Business is rotten. And Laura is cold as ice, although I could have staked my life that Laura would have stuck it if I had earned only a day laborer's pay. Well, perhaps I had better give up the cruise and go back to the office. There are several important letters that ought to go out on the next mail." Halliwell's remark still rankled.

He was walking down the avenue when, one block away from his office, he met his wife's old school friend, Coralie Winter.

"There'll Be Plenty of Room."

at the far end of the room, where John soon recovered his usual good spirits. He was laughing heartily at some witticism of Coralie when she happened to remark: "Oh, I'd love to go as far as the yacht club with you."

most the same as could help me?" His tired brain could not solve the problem.

"I've half a notion to turn back and get her to go with us. But she thinks I'm busy at the office, and goodness knows I ought to be. No, it's better not to speak, but I wish I had not met Coralie."

He hurriedly left the room and hurried up a telephone booth. He took out his watch.

"Three o'clock, by George! There's that note to Moore & Herrington. Got to protest. I'll get to the bank this afternoon. Hang it all! If I hadn't met Coralie it would all have been attended to. Come to think of it, though, I haven't got the $500 in the safe. Well, a short life and a merry one for me. He laughed. Then he joined Coralie on the sidewalk just as his chauffeur rounded the corner. He dismissed the man for the day.

"Teach me to drive!" suddenly begged Coralie.

RED CROSS WINNING IN FIGHT FOR HEALTH

Better, Stronger Citizenship Now Emerging Out of Work in United States.

The American Red Cross has an evangelist of better health has looked its problem square in the face. How it accepted the task reveals, so it in the nation's physical condition as brought out during the World War, and conscientiously applied its activities to correction forms a vivid chapter in the forthcoming annual report.

Historically and practically, nursing is a basic work for the Red Cross. In its public health nursing service, in instruction in home hygiene and care of the sick, nutrition classes, first aid and life saving courses and health centers, the American Red Cross is applying effectively the lessons learned during the war and making for a healthier, stronger and better nourished citizenry.

The task of the Red Cross Public Health nurse in the 1,240 nursing services now operating throughout the country instructing their communities in health essentials and disease prevention is demonstrating the possibilities of human betterment and the great benefits of enlightenment.

During the last year 313 new public health nursing services were established by Red Cross Chapters, and several hundred services so convincingly proved their effectiveness that they were taken over by public authorities. In order to promote this work $30,000 was allotted to provide women to prepare themselves for public nursing. The home visits made by the 1,240 nurses aggregated nearly 1,500,000 visits to schools numbered 140,000, and in six months 1,250,000 school children were inspected by these nurses and where defects were found advised, examined by physicians. In rural communities this service has made a very marked advance and has won thousands of converts to approved methods of disease prevention.

Red Cross Gains Strength in All Foreign Fields

In insular possessions of the United States and in foreign lands the American Red Cross scored heavy gains during the last year, passing the previous membership high mark of 1915 by 42,000 and advancing the figure to 1,654,084. The Philippines take the lead, gaining nearly 100 per cent, now having 115,917 members. In Europe the 1921 Roll Call enrolled 171,125, with the Constantinople Chapter reporting 925, a gain of 33 members. China was 1,782 members, a gain of 595; the Little Virgin Islands have 1,000, while the Dominican Republic with 2,027 advanced from its previous high mark by 1,423 new members.

Red Cross Water First Aid Makes Life-Saving Gain

More than 325 Chapters engaged in life saving or water first aid last year with the result that the American Red Cross Life Saving Corps has set a new high mark for enrollment and the number of qualified life savers developed. The influence of life saving instruction in many localities is reducing the water fatalities through instruction and the wider dissemination of resuscitation and first aid knowledge by the Red Cross representatives. Excellent work has been done by installing a large part of the American population how to take care of itself in the water. Growing recognition for the Red Cross Life Saving Service, shown by the general public, is being given the most thorough training in life saving.

THE KITCHEN CABINET

GOOD, ECONOMICAL DISHES

Meat cooked in a casserole may be tender and succulent even if from the cheaper cuts.

Chick Steaks—Cut a slice or two of chuck at least two inches thick and large enough to fit the casserole. Brown well in a little hot oil, place in the casserole with onion, hot water, meat or vegetable stock to cover. Cover and simmer until tender. At the end of that time add six small onions, a few carrots sliced and enough small potatoes to serve the family; continue cooking until the vegetables are tender. Thicken the gravy and serve from the casserole or arrange on a platter.

China Chile—Take two pounds of the neck of lamb, cut into small pieces. Soak one cupful of dried beans overnight, drain, add the beans, one head of lettuce shredded, two sliced onions, salt and pepper to season and two cupfuls of boiling water. Simmer until the meat is tender—about three hours.

Graham Bread—Take one-third of a cupful of sugar, one-fourth of a cupful of fat melted, mix and add one and one-half cupfuls of sour milk, one-half teaspoonful of salt and three-fourths of a teaspoonful of soda, one-half cupful of white flour, two cupfuls of graham flour, two teaspoonfuls of baking powder. Beat well and bake in a well-greased bread pan for fifty minutes.

Bran Bread—Mix two cupfuls each of bran and white flour, one teaspoonful of salt, one and one-half cupfuls of milk, five teaspoonfuls of baking powder, four tablespoonfuls of sugar and one-half cupful of raisins. Steam in a covered coffee can for three hours.

Plain Merquies—Beat four egg whites until dry, add one and one-half cupfuls of granulated sugar very slowly. Cover a board with writing paper and drop the merquies upon this in any desired form. Sprinkle with finely shredded almonds and bake in a very slow oven for forty-five minutes.

FEEDING PIGEONS IN LOFTS

Most Popular Method is to Have Stated Hours for Placing Grain Supply in Troughs.

Self-feeding hoppers are seldom found nowadays in the lofts of veteran pigeon breeders. Their argument is that they have not found it profitable to have several days' supply of grain within reach so the birds may help themselves at will. There are two reasons for this: First, inferior squabs are raised in lofts where feed is constantly before the birds, as there is no regularity among the breeding pigeons in feeding their young; second, this continual picking at the grain eventually leads to poor appetites, resulting in the squabs suffering.

Another disadvantage in having feed lying around is that it attracts mice and even rats, and when once these enemies get in a loft there is great loss of young birds.

The most popular method for feeding is to have stated hours for placing the grain in the troughs. These troughs are placed in the center of the floor, so that there will be plenty of room for all the birds to gather around it. Galvanized iron drinking vessels are preferred to stone fountains.

There are three open boxes in each loft, measuring 12 inches in length, three inches in width, and three inches in depth, and these boxes contain oatmeal, grit and charcoal.

A bucket is placed in the aviary of each loft. These are made of galvanized iron and of convenient size for handling. During the winter the birds are given a bath once a week, or only on bright clear days.

It may be given twice a week, once in the morning and once in the afternoon, for about two hours. When they are excited and turned up, the water is not emptied shortly after the birds are through bathing, they may drink of it and become sick.

LIME OF GREAT IMPORTANCE

Mineral Element is Essential for Egg Production and Development of Young Chicks.

Provision for an adequate supply of lime in the ration should be made by poultry raisers, for if this important mineral element is lacking in the food a drain is made on the reserve supply in the bones and soft tissues of the animal which interferes materially with egg production in mature hens and in the proper development of the growing chicks.

BIS VALUE OF ANIMAL FEED

Experiments Made at Purdue University Showed Great Increase in Egg Production.

Animal feeds have a decided value in the ration of laying hens and pullets. Experiments made by the Purdue University showed an average egg record of 140.2 eggs in a year from a pen of pullets fed skim milk; 135.9 eggs from those fed meat scrap; and 61.2 eggs from those that received no animal feed of any kind.

If your chicks are not doing well something is wrong. Look out for lice and for worms in the intestines.

All cockerels that are not to be used as breeders should be marked as soon as they weigh about two pounds.

A two-pound bird will sell for as much now as a four-pound bird two months later.

The sex of geese is best distinguished by size and voice. Ganders are somewhat heavier and have harsher voices. It is the ganders that hiss when they are attacked or annoyed.

Sweet milk in abundance is highly desirable. Milk-fed fowls usually bring a premium on the markets and have a better flavor than those fed fattening rations sweetened with water.

Huge Jellyfish. A jellyfish of beautiful, translucent blue, weighing close to 90 pounds, was washed ashore on the south of England coast recently. The creature has seven odd-looking pink-hued tentacles protruding below the body of it and had two orifices resembling gills to breathe through. Some of us have vivid recollections of being stung badly by small ones and tremble to think what such a big fellow as this could do.—Exchange.

Victor in Small Town Found He Had to Be Exceptionally Careful About Offending In-Laws.

There is a town in the Southwest where the families have intermarried to such an extent that it is difficult for an outsider to make the least criticism of one person without the danger of offending some family member. When an out-of-town visitor commented on this fact to Mr. Jones, the postmaster, Mr. Jones nodded.

"Bill Perkins—that our sheriff—complained of the no longer ago than last week," said he, according to the Philadelphia Ledger.

"You see, it took him more'n a week to arrest Frank because Frank got wind that he was wanted on a little matter of sellin' moonshine, and he went on a round of visits amongst his relatives, aunts, nephews, in-law and I don't know what all, and it wasn't till he had had his fill and went back home to his wife that Bill could make the arrest without seeming to kind of butt in, as you might say, and spoil the remnants."

"I should think he would make a strange sort of sheriff," said the visitor, "waiting all the time for sentimental reasons and then arresting a man when he went home, just because his wife wasn't a relation?"

Whereupon the postmaster drew himself up and assumed a remote expression.

"That's as you look at it," he said in a chilly tone, "I may be a bit prejudiced in Bill's favor, as he married my son-in-law's youngest sister. Anything that concerns him concerns me, you understand."

FRAGRANCE ON PRISON

Electric Perfumer in Cleveland County Jail Arouses Mind to All Kinds of Possibilities.

Aitar of roses and sweet scents of Araby. There's a electric perfumer at the county jail. It costs all kinds of sweetness on the prison air. Last turn the button and the jail becomes a garden of roses or fragrant with the scent of orange blossoms.

The other day the atmosphere of the jail reflected the aroma of the forest cedar. It might have been Norway pine, sassafras, crab-apple blossom, but it just happened that the perfumer was charged to dispense an aromatic tinged with forest cedar.

The machine has possibilities, the sheriff believes. It might be employed to awaken the prisoners each morning with scents of violets and soothe them at breakfast with odors of hnm, eggs, corn fritters, grapefruit and other viands not on the regular morning menu of coffee and butterless bread.

Oh, yes, indeed, the machine has possibilities. At night it could discharge the odor of pineapple or figs or dates, and any prisoner with a good sense of smell and a strong imagination could readily go to sleep and feel that he was in Hawaii.

But the perfumer is in jail only on trial.—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Meteors Fall in Saskatchewan. A giant meteor blazed here the Big Quill lake, near Wynyard, Saskatchewan. A fiery body was seen by many in the district to drop from a clear sky and clouds of steam rose from the lake for some time after it had sunk in the water. Other meteoric disturbances are reported from Vancouver, Saskatchewan, southwest of Saskatoon. People in the neighborhood heard five or six loud explosions and the earth between Vancouver and Pike lake was shaken.—Montreal Gazette.

Miss Roena Shaner Speaks in Berlin.

In spite of two other meetings in town at the same hour, and the absence of the pastor, who is holding extra meetings at Libertytown, a goodly number of Presbyterians and Methodists gathered Wednesday evening, in the Sunday School room of the Presbyterian Church, and listened attentively to Miss Roena E. Shaner, of South-eastern Missouri, vice-president of the Missouri W. C. T. U. and National Organizer, for about an hour and a half, a she told of the vast amount of good, that has resulted from the Eighteenth Amendment. Though that amendment is not yet as well enforced as it should be, it has brought happiness and prosperity to almost numberless homes. Men who formerly couldn't keep fifteen cents, now have bank accounts.

Mrs. Shaner spoke of the history of the Woman's Christian Temperance Union, of its activities along various lines that had helped to make ours a dry nation. "She said too many of us think NOW that our work is done, and we can sit down and fold our hands. But the liquorites never rest—they are eternally trying to spread sentiment in favor of modifying the Volstead Act to allow wines and beer to be sold, which, if it could be done, would certainly bring back the drink traffic with all its horrors. Our constant watchfulness and vigilance is needed now, as much as ever."

She especially urged that our votes should only be cast for such men as will help to strengthen the Volstead Act; if you stand for temperance and want to vote for a man, and don't KNOW how he stands on this most important question, make him declare himself; if he will not answer or tries to "dodge," understand that he is not the man you want to represent you. The nations of the world are looking to America for help to free them from the accursed drink traffic, and we must not fail them.

Miss Shaner, who was formerly a school-teacher, considers the training of the child of the utmost importance, and cited instances illustrating the results of early temperance training in after life. When it is considered that the "CHILD of today, is the man of tomorrow," the importance of training the child in the way he should go becomes more apparent.

Miss Shaner addressed two of the schoolrooms in the afternoon.

ANNIVERSARY ANNOUNCEMENT

With September just passed our firm completed its Fourteen years of Business Experience in the town of Berlin. While our growth has been slow yet from year to year our business has steadily increased from that September in 1908, when we began, until now when we find ourselves on the home-stretch of the Biggest Year we have had in our Fourteen Years of trying to Serve the Public in this and the surrounding community.

Some Reasons For This Growth

We believe in Common Honesty—an Honest Count—an Honest Grade—whether the Material is coming on our yard or going off to the Consumer.

We believe in our business. It is an Honorable one and is here to render a Necessary Service to the people and whatever serves faithfully is Holy.

Our chief interest in our business has been to give our Customers Satisfaction with the Material they buy at a fair profit to ourselves.

We believe in making the same price, for the same thing, to all men. Any other method spells trouble.

We share in concessions given by the big mills to the large buyer. We are one of a group that buys in large quantities. Think of buying Forty Cars of Shingles at one time and a Carload of Zinc-Coated Nails to use with those shingles! At one purchase 550,000 feet of Flooring from one of the best Mills in the South! The advantages of these large purchases we give to our Customers.

A Word Of Appreciation

However, the main object in our mind in the use of this space was to express to our Friends and Patrons our Hearty Appreciation of their Faithfulness and Patronage during Our Fourteen Years of endeavors to serve them. The building public has been good to us and we are greatly pleased to return our most Sincere Thanks—Thanks for their Many Good Words to us when everything was just right and Thanks for their Lenient Criticism of us when the mistake was ours.

We want your Trade and we trust you will get in touch with us when in need of Building Material. If in the future we can give you better service than we have done in the past, rest assured it will be our pleasure to give it. Visit US.

Yours for Better Homes,
