Remarkable Calculation.
Charles L. Dodgson, professor of higher mathematics at Christ Church, Oxford, known to most people as
"Lewis Carroll," and the author of
"Alice in Wonderland," is responsible for the following peculiar calculation:
Write down the number of your brothers that are living. Multiply this by two. Add three. Multiply the result by five. To this add the number of your living sisters. Multiply the result by ten.
Add to this result the number of your dead brothers and sisters. From the total subtract 150.
The right hand figure gives the number of deaths, the middle figure gives the number of living sisters, and the left-hand figure gives the number of living brothers.

motors was received a few weeks ago
by the firm from the Japanese government. The Sulzer firm makes a specialty of Diesel and large motors for submarines.

WASHINGTON

President Harding signed a proclamation of martial law in West Virginia,
Secretary of War Weeks announced.
"In no other" was Uncle Joe Cannon's answer to report that he was going to retire from Congress at the end of his present term. The former Speaker of the House is now 83 years old and represented his state in Congress for 23 terms.

President Harding in a proclamation issued through the War Department demanded that the Mingo marchers return to their homes.
Legislation establishing a credit machinery to aid farmers in producing and marketing their crops through advances ranging from periods of six months to three years was urged by Representative Anderson, of Minnesota, chairman of the Joint Commission of Agricultural Inquiry.

Secretary Hoover is in favor of a national coal exchange.
Reserve Board reports indicate that the revival in buying and commercial activity generally is greater than at any period since the depression of last September began.

German competition has not been so keen as expected up to date, according to Secretary Hoover. The German manufacturers, Mr. Hoover said, are having difficulty maintaining pre-war standards both in quality of production and in quantity.

NATION'S BUSINESS

Immigrants admitted to the United States during the fiscal year ending June 30 numbered 803,223, as compared with 430,000 for the previous fiscal year and with an average of 1,021,040
during the ten-year period.

Proposed to place a 3 per cent. tax on manufacturers' sales as included in a bill introduced in the senate by Senator Smoot, apparently does not meet with the approval of some of the larger manufacturers. Their opinion favors the one per cent. sales tax.

Organized shirtwaist and dress makers of Philadelphia went on strike
because of reduction in wages.
Oliver H. Shoup, governor of Colorado, has sent letters to the governors of 16 Western states asking them to join with Colorado in effort to bring about a reduction of railroad rates.

Governor Cox, of Massachusetts, has been asked to call a special session of the legislature to consider the unemployment situation in the state.

dustry is under way in the United States, according to Secretary of the Treasury Mellon and to reports being received by the Federal Reserve Board and other agencies.

couple of others are not likely to show
many signs of breaking.

SHIPPING BOARD HAS A PATRONAGE ROW

Representatives and Senators
Whose Constituents Lose Jobs
Start a Hard Battle.

Washington.—Unless some sort of change is ordered by Chairman Lusk
of the Shipping Board upon his return to Washington from Chicago or pleas and threats from Senators and Representatives are heeded 301 employees of the board and the Emergency Fleet Corporation will have severed their connection with the payrolls before October 1.

Under orders from R. H. Montgomery, financial adviser to Mr. Lusk, notification already has been sent to the employees concerned. The dismissal, however, will not be effective
until the end of the fiscal year.

A phase of the affair, it is understood, will be the passage of a resolution by Congress when it reconvenes on September 24 calling on Mr. Lusk to furnish to Congress complete detailed information regarding the salaries paid to officials or employees of the board and the Fleet Corporation.

Coincidental with the dismissal of clerks and minor officials, it has become known that four of the six men who are permitted to use the new law
to draw salaries of more than $10,000
a year are Vice Presidents Love, Shull
and Fry and Director of Sales Farley.

What the five members of the claims board will do appears uncertain, although it seems likely Chairman Meals
will continue to draw $17,500 a year.
The claims board has adjourned for several weeks past on questions concerning its authority not settled.

The first act of the claims board was to allow a claimant $20,000 on account, but the Shipping Board promptly turned down the claim and directed the claimants to collect their money from Treasurer Tolling.

LATEST EVENTS AT WASHINGTON

President Harding reiterated his conviction that the nations of the world can only approximate disarmament, but in almost the same breath confidently predicted that nations
"are going to diminish the burdens of armament."

Preliminary reports having indicated
a breaking up of the hands operating in the West Virginia coal fields,
officials of the Federal Government deferred decision on the question of intervention in the state, pending a more complete and definite report from Brigadier General H. H. Band-holtz.

Hearings on tariff legislation were suspended temporarily by the Senate Finance Committee after more than a score of witnesses had appeared plant at Muscle Shoals, Ala.

The Famous Players-Lasky Corpora-

tails will be given later.

The treaty of peace with Germany which was signed at Berlin will be

NEW DRAFT OF TAX MEASURE

Finance Committee Decides to Recast House Legislation
Into Uniform Work.

ADOPT SMOOT PROPOSAL

New Technical Form of Bill is One Originally Suggested by the Treasury Experts—Special Tariff Agents at Work.

Washington.—In beginning consideration of the bill the Senate Finance Committee decided to change the form of the measure. The bill, as it will be reported to the senate, will consist of a complete revision of existing revenue laws, containing both new sections and those which are left unchanged. The bill as passed by the house consisted of a long series of amendments to the present law. The provisions of the present law which were not changed were not printed in the bill, and consequently in order to understand the measure it was necessary to compare the new sections with the old law.

This action by the senate committee does not mean that the substance of the house bill will necessarily be changed. The technical form of the measure can be changed without any difficulty.

By providing for a complete revision of the law the senate committee approved the method originally adopted by treasury experts in presenting a tentative draft to the House Ways and Means Committee. Members of the Ways and Means Committee, however, were of the opinion that the bill would be less cumbersome and more readily handled on the floor of the house if it contained only amendments to the existing law. The house committee by deciding not to adopt the treasury form cut the length of the bill in two and greatly reduced the time required to read the measure
on the floor of the house.

Senator Penrose, chairman of the Finance Committee, in announcing the action, said that the purpose was to place the bill in such form as it can be read easily understood.

"We want the bill to be in the form which it can be read easily read by the members of the committee. Penrose said. We do not want to have several hundred amendments attached, like heretofore,
to the present law."

Democratic, as well as Republican,
members of the Finance Committee were in attendance. Although the committee worked on the bill for several hours, no action was taken with reference to any controversial points
in the bill.

Dr. Thomas S. Adams, tax expert of the Treasury Department, who was chiefly responsible for the drafting of the bill as originally submitted to the house committee by the treasury, was present and explained various features of the house measure. The committee began at the beginning of the bill and started to read the measure through, section by section. During the four hours only 14 of the 89 pages of the bill were covered. The sections read included those relating to personal service corporations, those defining foreign traders and foreign trade corporations, and various features for determining gain or loss in computing income taxes. These sections include a provision for a flat rate of 12 1/2 per cent of the net profit from the sale of capital assets when a taxpayer's total net income and capital net gain exceed $20,000.

There was considerable discussion
over the method of taxing personal service corporations. The bill now provides for taxing personal service corporations at a flat rate of 12 1/2 per cent in the same manner as an individual corporation are to be taxed. Heretofore personal service corporations have been taxed in the same manner as corporations are to be taxed. Heretofore legality of this procedure has been denied as a result of a Supreme Court decision.

Some of the sections disclosed related to the taxation of income invested in gifts of bequests. The bill makes a number of amendments to the existing law dealing with this subject.

There was no discussion of the question as to whether the income tax changes shall be retroactive on income of the calendar year 1921. There also was no discussion of the plan proposed by Senator Smoot of Utah for a 3 per cent tax on manufacturers' sales. Senator Smoot did not bring up this question and will not press the matter until the sections of the bill dealing with miscellaneous taxes are reached.

The change in the form of the bill
from a series of amendments to a complete revision of existing law was one of the proposals advocated by Senator Smoot.

WHISKY WAREHOUSE RAIDED

Forty Armed Men With Auto Fleet
Pulled Off Bold Robbery.

Milford, Pa.—Forty alleged bootleggers, heavily armed and working with a fleet of motor cars, broke into the government liquor warehouses
here and carried off about 50 barrels of whisky.

The robbers forced an entrance to the building from the rear and rallied the liquor through nearly 500
yards of woodland to the waiting automobiles.

Salt and Dampness.

Salt is what is called "hygroscopic," that is, it eagerly absorbs moisture. In fact, both air and salt are absorbents of moisture and it is a contest between them as to which gets it. Results depend on atmospheric conditions. Ordinary atmosphere always contains a proportion of moisture, and warm air is apt to be more humid than cold, as it absorbs and holds water vapor more readily than cold air. Salt has such affinity for moisture that under such conditions it draws it from the air.
When the air becomes dry, the moisture is given up by the salt, which in turn becomes dry as it returns the moisture to the air.

St. Swithin, Myth Disproved.

A record was kept from 1840 for twenty years for the purpose of testing
the truth of the popular belief that if rain fell on St. Swithin's day it would rain for forty days after. The result of this test shows that the greatest number of rainy days had occurred in these two decades in years when St.
Swithin's day was dry.

Her Probable Intention.

Wright had been sent to the bank
with his weekly amount, and when he returned he did not have his book.
His mother asked him where it was.
After quite a little hesitation he confided to her in a whisper, "Well, mother, the girl took it and kept it. I think she wanted to weigh it."

Old Buggy H's Court.

A judge of Livingston, N. J., is on record as holding court from the seat of an old buggy. The case was that of a tenant who had disregarded notice to vacate property, so the buggy was drawn up within a short distance of the house in question and the trial proceeded.

Profitable Eggshells.

In no instance are the shells of the eggs used by the Italian vendors of ice cream sold in the London streets broken. They are pierced at each end and blown by the mouth, the perfect shells being sold to the proprietors of shooting galleries.

Fit for Tat.

When Lord Randolph Churchill vicited the diamond fields of South Africa
he is said to have exclaimed after looking at some diamonds: "And all for the vanity of women." A lady who heard the remark added: "And the depravity of men."

Distance Lends Enchantment.

Nuts in Immense Quantities.

On the north coast of Guatemala
60,000 tons of coconuts are said to be available for exportation annually, and with an expenditure of $10,000
for highway improvement this quantity could probably be increased to 100,000 tons per annum. On the Pacific or south coast the yield of coconuts, it is estimated, could be increased to 800,000 tons per annum. This is a supply of cheap labor in this southern region.

(Omitted last week.)

Mr. and Mrs. Luther Davis and Mrs. Hettie Figgis, of Showell, and Mr. and Mrs. Edward Figgis and children, of Delmar, were guests of the former's son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Davis,
last Saturday, Mr. and Mrs. Davis and children and Mrs. Edward Hastings returning the visit Sunday.

Miss Ina Benson, of Seaford,
the Misses Jane Davidson and Mary Cropper, Edward Davidson and Jack Cropper, of Bishopville, were guests of the Misses Alberta and Ruth Hastings Saturday evening.

Mrs. Harry Mitchell has returned home from a two-weeks' visit in the northern cities.

Mrs. George Jones, of Taylorville, visited her daughter, Mrs.
Morris Mitchell, Wednesday.

Automobile Badly Burned.

The new siren sounded its first fire alarm last Saturday evening
when one of Mayor Horace Davis' automobiles was found to be in flames in his yard. Its close proximity to the gasoline tank and a stable filled with hay threatened
a spread of the fire, but the blaze was extinguished so quickly that the Fire Department did not unload their equipment upon their arrival. The machine, which was a comparatively new Ford, was damaged about $200. "Bill" Powell,
the colored employe, had just filled
the tank with gasoline, and some drippings from the hose fell on a lighted lantern in the foot of the machine.

The Key that Unlocks the Door to Long Living.

The men of eighty-five and ninety years of age are not the rotund, well-fed, but thin, spare men, who live on a slender diet. Be as careful as he will, however, a man past middle age will occasionally eat too much or of some article of food not suited to his constitution, causing indigestion or constipation,
and will need a dose of Chamberlain's Tablets to move his bowels and invigorate his stomach. When this is done,
there is no reason why the average man
should not live to a ripe old age.—Adv.

SELBYVILLE, DEL.

The Ladies' Aid met on Tuesday evening with Mrs. A. M. Lysch.

The first fall meeting of the Women's Club was held Thursday evening in the Club room. During the summer months, this room,
which is the first floor of the Red Men's Hall, has been beautifully decorated. The Club women are planning great things for the winter months.

We were all sorry to hear of the sudden death of Miss Ollie Dukes, who was a former milliner of this town, but at the time of her death,
resided in Middletown.

A great many of our town's people attended the funeral of Mr.
Timothy Townsend, at St. George's,
on Thursday.

Mr. and Mrs. Alexander, of Wilmington, are visiting Mrs. F. K.
Evans.

Mr. and Mrs. Bert Kaler and two sons, James and Price, of Maryland, and Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Davis, of Philadelphia, were guests of Mr.
and Mrs. John Davis, last week.

Our public school opened Tuesday, causing quite a few families to move home from the beach before
the hot weather was all gone.

Mr. and Mrs. Isaac Tracy, of Philadelphia, were here last week and purchased a building lot on Church Street, where they expect to build a residence in the near future.

Henry—Vosburg.

A very pretty wedding was solemnized Thursday afternoon at four o'clock at the home of the bride,
Miss Minnie Seymour Vosburg,
who took as her life partner, John Dirickson Henry, cashier of the Exchange & Savings Bank. Their pastor, the Rev. S. A. Potter, performed the ceremony, in the presence of about seventy-five invited guests. Dr. Benjamin Vosburg, father of the bride, gave her away.
The only other representatives of her family were her brother, Dr.
Arthur S. Vosburg, and Mrs. Vosburg, of Rye, N. Y. The house was beautifully decorated with flowers, arranged by Mrs. E. A.
Carey, Mrs. C. W. Keas and Mrs.
T. Y. Franklin. The general effect was white.

After refreshments, Mr. and Mrs.
Henry motored to Captain E. A.
Carey's for a week or ten days on the bay in the house boat, the trip being shortened on account of the advanced age and feeble health of Dr. Vosburg, who will be cared for during their absence by his son and daughter-in-law. On their return
they will reside at the bride's home,
on South Main Street extended.

The best wishes of the community go with Mr. and Mrs. Henry in their new life.

About The Stanley Amendment.

The following is an extract from a letter of Attorney-General Hopkins, of Kansas, addressed to Congressman Volstead regarding the Stanley amendment pushed so vigorously by the wets, prohibiting search for liquor without a search warrant:

"I do not hesitate to say that a law that prevents federal officers from apprehending rum running autos and moonshine stills without first securing a search warrant would practically destroy the power of officers to cope with these lawless agencies.

"If I have a correct copy of the Stanley Amendment, it prohibits all search, or even an attempt to search for liquor or anything else without a search warrant. What this may mean is hard to conjecture.
Officers enforcing the prohibition laws deal with the most wily,
unscrupulous and vicious class of criminals that defy law. These officers must secure clues of evidence and follow clues given them and be subject to schemes laid to mislead them. This often amounts to an attempt to search for outlawed liquor. If it is made a crime, and the officer penalized more heavily for attempting to enforce the law than
the criminal he is trying to arrest, there will be little incentive left for officers to do their duty.

"It would, of course, be impossible to deal with rum running autos
or other mobile agencies used to distribute liquor. Those who operate these machines are desperate outlaws. The affidavit for search warrant must describe the machine, the thing to be searched for, etc. You cannot secure this information in advance. To require it means the liquor traffic restored on wheels. It is hard enough now, in states where prohibition has been established for years, for officers to catch these law-breakers, but it will be still more difficult in other states which have no public sentiment to back up these officers. The states having enforceable prohibition laws now,
provide for the stopping and seizure of automobiles and the liquor in them without a warrant or a search warrant. The federal government would be in an inconsistent position
to prevent its officers from doing what state officers are now authorized in doing. It will lead to conflict, as illicit dealers will resist state officers from acting within their authority and plead in their defense that they thought the officer was a federal agent.

The enforcement officer's work is now hazardous enough; I hope Congress will not make it more so.

Would Repeal Other Federal Laws.
"Some of the federal laws that will be repealed or practically destroyed if the amendment above referred to should be adopted are sections authorizing search without a warrant under the Postal, Game,
Food and Drug laws and many other books, which have been on the statute books for years and been sustained by the courts.

"This proposed amendment applies to searches under all laws and it would be hard to prophesy how far it would cripple the government in the enforcement of other laws."

"Not-Over Sunday," Oct. 30.

The Anti-Saloon League of America is asking the pastors of all the churches to devote one service on World's Temperance Sunday, October 30th, to a discussion of the situation which confronts the dry forces. It is desired to thoroughly enlighten and arouse those satisfied, complacent persons who are resting
on their oars in fancied security, that the fight is "not over," but must be kept up while organized action is kept up against it.

The call has been issued for the eleventh convention of the World's Woman's Christian Temperance
Union, which will be held in Phila-

signed by Rosalind Carlisle, President; Agnes E. Slack, Honorary Secretary; Blanche R. Johnson,

Honorary Secretary, Ella A. Boole, Honorary Treasurer. Delegates will come from every quarter of the globe.

Since the signing of the Convention Call, the death has been announced of the president, the Countess of Carlisle, after an illness of several months. Lady Carlisle was elected at Boston in 1906, and had served ever since. She was president of the British Women's Temperance Union, and a pioneer temperance worker of her own country,

where her active efforts in this and other lines of work for the public welfare will be greatly missed. Our national president, Miss Anna Gor-

the World's W. C. T. U.

Welcome Distance By REV. H. OSTROM, D. D. Extension Department, Moody Bible Institute, Chicago.

TEXT—As far as the east is from the west so far hath he removed our transgressions from us.—Psalm 102:12.

"So far!" Mark the admissions of the failure of human language in the Bible. When multiplied words will not tell what is to be stated, look for a little word so, as God "so loved" the world, thus it is the vastness of his pardon is announced as "so far." Was distance ever more significant? Can a man and his sins be in absolutely different neighborhoods?

The expression is equal to practical holiness. The east; that is where? Straight out into space, east, east; it cannot be bounded by human thought. The west; that is boundlessness in the opposite direction from the east. So there is boundlessness to boundlessness! "So far!"

For the reach of vision, space may tire the eyes; for the journey, distance may weary the traveler, or the heat may weary with homeliness because the ocean is so wide, but there is distance to be greeted with ten thousand welcomes. What a fact! That a man's sins may become to him foreigners!

Nothing like a patched-up peace can represent God's dealings with sinners. We might well imagine that something must have been done to guarantee mercy through grace as a free gift so perfectly sufficient. Otherwise how could it be true that God and I could be actually, clearly at peace?

It is of our Lord Jesus Christ that the declaration is made. "He is our peace." Not only does He give peace; that would be wonderful, but He is in the place of condemnation against us, so that its opposite He is to us. Something availed. Something substituted. Something fulfilled. His shed blood has met all. In the embrace of God's great mercy-plan we were there when it occurred. "Peace is proclaimed through the blood of the cross."

We are often too ready to classify Bible descriptions as hyperboles. When we read of the assuaging and the stars, we say the descriptions are highly poetic. Perhaps they are not. What look in all the world can profess to describe the mountains from above them or stars from beyond them except the Bible?

So here, when we are considering the forgiveness of sin, let us not say it is a statement of poetic license. No, it is a genuine statement of what a sinner may well both cry and sing for joy to believe it: He loves us. There is no possible a judgment unto condemnation against the man whom the Lord forgives.

"We are saved from wrath" through Jesus Christ. But we are also saved from present wrath. "The reproaches of them that reproached thee were laid on me"; those are the words which the Holy Spirit takes from the Psalm of the ancient psalm, for whom this Psalm of our text was especially given, and by Him applied through Paul to our Lord Jesus Christ. We may search in vain for the slightest hint of a wrath against the man whom God forgives.

Agas ago this distant sending away of our sins was typified. Of the goat which Aaron should send forth after laying his hands on its head and confessing all the iniquities of the children of Israel, it is written that it was dispatched into "A SOLITARY LAND." Let the iniquities be there in a neighborhood by themselves. It is sin in company that works the havoc. Let them be sent into perpetual loneliness. Let them be so that if they called for help I could not hear them. If they swore that I was once their friend, their asseveration could never reach my ears. As a lost sinner, I could hear their sigh when it was as if less articulate than silence; but now, I may not hear their sigh. "He shall put them upon the head of the goat, and shall send him away by the hand of a man, and he shall let go the goat in the wilderness." "So far!"

O, it is God's ancient plan that his forgiveness shall never be so close as to be almost. From guilt to remission is no mere narrow escape. Surely, then, on this side of the Cross of His only-begotten Son the distance has not been lessened; and "children" and "heirs" are not qualified; they are free. In Him, for my sins it is banishment; but for my soul, it is homeing.

The Burning and Shooting Light. There is another that bereaveth witness of me; and I know that the witness which he witnesseth of me is true. Ye sent unto John, and he bare witness unto the truth. He was a burning and a shining light; and ye were willing for a season to rejoice in his light.—John 5:32-35.

In Wrath Remember Mercy. Oh Lord, I have heard thy speech, and was afraid; Oh Lord, revive Thy work in the midst of the years, in the midst of the years make known; In wrath, remember mercy.—Habakkuk 3:2.

A Useful Fish. They have a remarkable fish in Nova Scotia. It is known as the frost fish, because it can be frozen solid; but if placed in water it soon thaws out and swims around as vigorously as ever. The natives, we are told, use this fish in making ice cream. The fish is caught, frozen and placed in the cream. In thawing out it freezes the cream and its movements at the same time beat the mixture, making it nice and smooth. It is a fresh water fish, but the story requires a lot of salt.

Credit Where Credit Was Due. Many a man who wakes up to find himself famous would have overlooked it if his wife hadn't called him.—Wichita Beacon.

IMPROVED UNIFORM INTERNATIONAL Sunday School Lesson

LESSON FOR SEPTEMBER 11

PAUL IN ATHENS.

LESSON TEXT—Acts 17:16-34. GOLDEN TEXT—In him we live, and move, and have our being.—Acts 17:28. REFERENCE MATERIAL—Luke 4:16-20. PRIMARY TOPIC—Paul Telling the People about God. JUNIOR TOPIC—Paul in Athens. INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—In a Famous Greek City. YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Paul in a Center of Learning. Being Driven from Berea, Paul Flew to Athens.

I. The Idolatry of the Athenians (v. 16). Athens was the intellectual metropolis of the world at that time, the home of the world's great eloquence and philosophy. Paul's spirit was stirred within him when he saw the city wholly given to idolatry.

II. The Parties Concerned (v. 17-21). True to his usual custom Paul went into the Jewish synagogue and entered into earnest argument with the Jews. From them he turned to such as were found in the market place. Here he came into touch with the Epicurean and Stoic philosophers. The former were atheistic materialists. They denied the doctrine of Creation. They gave themselves up to sensual indulgences since they had no idea of future judgment. The latter were pantheists. When they heard the preaching of Paul they desired to know what new doctrine he preached, so they invited him to the Areopagus where he might speak to them of his new doctrine. They inquired as to what this "babbling" meant literally "seed-picker."

III. Paul's Address on Mars' Hill (v. 22-31). 1. The introduction (v. 22, 23). He did not accuse them of "superstition" as the A. V. would make it, but as in the Am. R. V. he introduces his discourse in a courteous and cordial manner, stating that he perceived that they were very religious. This he explained by stating that as he was viewing their city he beheld an altar with an inscription "To the Unknown God." This was his point of contact. His proceeds at once to connect it with the idea of the living God, implying that this altar had been erected to Him. He was too wise to begin at once to denounce heathenism and idolatry.

2. The body of his discourse (v. 24-31). (1) A declaration concerning God (v. 24, 25). (a) He created the material universe (v. 24). This was a direct rebuke to the Stoics. He did not attempt to prove the existence of God; it needs no proof. The Bible everywhere assumes the existence of a divine Being. (b) His spirituality and immensity (v. 24, 25). He is not served with "men's hands" as though he needed anything, neither is He confined by any sort of religious temple. Being essentially spiritual He demands heart-service, and being transcendent above all He is not confined to earthly temples. (c) His active providence (v. 25). He gives existence, bestows needed gifts, and as sovereign directs all things.

(2) Declaration concerning man (v. 26-31). (a) His common origin (v. 26). This was a blow at the foolish Athenian pride which supposed that they were superior to all other people. This proposition he proved from their own literature (see v. 28). If men are the offspring of God and bear His likeness it is utterly folly to make images as the senseless idols were. (b) No distinction have their place by the sovereign purpose of God (v. 29). The position and mission of each nation is of God's appointment. (c) Men should seek God (v. 26). His goodness and grace in supplying all our needs, and ordering every affair of the universe should move men to see and seek God, for He is indeed very near to every one; so near that our existence and movements are all under His control (v. 27). (d) Pressing obligation to repent (v. 30, 31). This was his supreme message. Though God had formerly passed over idolatry He now calls all men to repent. The solemn reason for such action is the coming day of judgment, the credential of which is the resurrection of Jesus Christ from the dead. The judgment of God of an unbelieving world is as sure as this fact. Men will be judged on the basis of their attitude toward Jesus Christ.

IV. Result of Paul's Preaching (v. 32-34). 1. Some mocked (v. 32). 2. Some procrastinated (v. 32). 3. Some believed (v. 34).

All to God. You should frequently arouse within yourself the desire to give to God all the faculties of your soul—that is, your mind, to know Him and think of Him, and of your will, to love Him; and further seek to consecrate all your outward senses to Him in all their actions.—Fensdon.

Christian Unity. The spirit of Christian unity must be cultivated between the different churches before formal union can be effected.—Rev. Dr. Douglas.

A Nice Toy. Put up a short line of narrow rope or strong twine in a corner of the kitchen or nursery. Make it about three or four feet long. Give the small tots of three or four years of age a handful of clothsops and some old pieces of cloth. The little girls and boys, too, will enjoy hanging up clothes "like mother does."

Credit Where Credit Was Due. Many a man who wakes up to find himself famous would have overlooked it if his wife hadn't called him.—Wichita Beacon.

WHY Certain Styles of Automobiles Are Called "Sedans"

In France there is a town called Sedan, where a wonderful carrying chair, is said to have originated. The chair, serving as a vehicle for the person, who sits within the enclosure of royal draperies, was carried by chair-bearers and was considered quite the thing for the stylish ladies of the time.

They were first introduced in western Europe in 1551, but did not become common as carriers for the social elite of England and France until the eighteenth century. They were elaborately decorated, often with paintings and panels by artists of note, and lined with elegant silks and padded with perfumed cloth.

The chairs, because of the supposed origin in Sedan and because they were often lined with famous Sedan cloth, soon acquired the name of Sedan chairs. Sedan chairs soon became thick on London streets and Paris boulevards, and remained the fashion until their position was usurped by the victorias and the prancing horses of the courts.

Then came the automobile and some advertising writer had the happy idea of calling a model of similar construction a sedan. And sedan it still is.—Exchange.

'SIXTH SENSE' FOR HUMANITY How Invention of San Francisco Man Can Be Utilized for the Benefit of All

Through the invention of Samuel O. Hoffman, a San Francisco inventor, a "sixth sense" seems to have been created. At a distance of 600 feet, in total darkness, Hoffman asserts that with the aid of a delicate instrument for the detection of heat waves he can tell whether one, two or several persons are present. His invention, which was started during the war for detecting enemy forces in front of the American trenches, is a combination of thermopiles, a reflector and a galvanometer. The instrument, which acts much as a sound detector, is sensitive to heat waves and can be developed to the point where a complete silhouette of an object can be given, showing the outlines from which heat waves emanate. It can also be used for the detection of airplanes thousands of feet in the air.

Government officials are said to be considering use of the instrument for guarding valuable goods, such as large coal piles, warehouses and motor car fleets not in use. Instead of a large number of guards, who can be avoided, it is expected to set up one or two of Hoffman's instruments, which will immediately show the presence of people in the vicinity.

Why Glow-Worms Glow. When Mrs. Glow-worm, who is really a beetle and not a worm, shines amidst the night she is not burning any one's hair. She is not burning any one's hair. Mrs. Glow-worm comes flying that way. Her lamp is the only means she has of finding him that she is there. Unlike her husband, she has no wings, and only six, very weak legs. She cannot, therefore, go to look for him, and nature has devised her a voice with which to produce the sounds of which other beetles are capable. She has to rely entirely on her lamp and to keep it bright, too, because Mrs. Glow-worm is not keen-sighted, and might easily blunder past in the dark. Also she may readily raise him, for he gives out only a faint glow that flickers near his tail.

Why "Near" and "Off" Horse. Because in the days when the driver walked beside two horses his position was always at the left, with his right next to the team. Therefore, in driving a pair, the horse on the left was nearer than the one on the right. The "near" horse is always the one on the left.

Why India is Losing Cattle. A census of the cattle of India shows that all the herds have been decreased during the last few years. The reason is that there was a famine of fodder during which it was impossible to get food for the cattle in some districts and it was scarce all over the country.

Why Known as "Dunning." Because in the reign of Henry VIII there lived a ballad named Dunc, who gained a great reputation for making persons pay their debts. When every method of getting payment had been tried without success, Dunc was put to work, and "dunned him" became the popular advice as a last resort.

How Sugar Came to New World. Sugar gradually found its way into the new world from India, while one of the first American products to be carried to Europe was the cocoa bean, from which chocolate is made. Montezuma, Aztec king, drank it from a golden cup.

Why Called "Bridegroom." Because in primitive days the newly wedded man had to wait upon the bride and serve at her table upon his wedding day, and thus was a "groom" on this occasion.

Why "Regatta." Water entertainments are called regattas from the Italian word "regatta," meaning a boat race. "Regatta" is probably an abbreviated form of "remigata," meaning the act of rowing.

The Missing Factor. "What has become of cubist art?" "It lacked the true essential of success." "What is that?" "Salesmanship."

WHEN SIMS GOT IN WRONG

Capitol Barber on Record as Making Bad Break for the Then Senator Harding.

The odds are 200 to 2 that the senators will say that Sims is the most popular barber in the senate barber shop. Sims has the cream of the senate trade and he has been in the senate barber shop longer than anyone knows. He has become expert not only on shaving and cutting hair and massaging, but on political matters as well.

When President Harding was still a member of the senate he came in to Sims to do a little face work on him. Sims began shortly after the senator took the oath, to talk about the dire effect on the senate of the Constitutional amendment providing for direct election of its members.

"Why, this direct election is sure a bad thing," said Sims in Mr. Harding's ear. "Why, the men who are here can't be compared with the men who were here 20 years ago." Just about this time it dawned on Sims what he was saying and to whom he was saying it.

Probably his conscience was stirred by the fact that Mr. Harding's face was getting redder and redder as he tried to suppress his laughter. "Oh, indeed, senator," said the stricken Sims. "I was speaking generally. I didn't mean nothing personal about it."—Los Angeles Times.

HOW WATER HAS TRAVELED FROM VERSAILLES TO COLUMBIA, MO., IN LAST THREE CENTURIES

An old Indian was sitting by a camp fire near the present site of Versailles, Mo., back in July, 1908. He was telling a story about Louis D. Mosson, successor to De Soto, who explored the southwestern part of Missouri in 1522. "Sure, Mike," he said. "These bombas are white, have short hair, carry— But his sentence was never finished. About that time it began to rain and the council adjourned to the shelter. It is now 312 years since that time, but the water from that very rain we are just now getting here in Columbia for drinking purposes. Don't you believe it? Well, here is the way they find such things out. During the war the army made some tests of how fast water moves under the ground. This was done by digging two wells, placing some chemicals in one to discolor the water and then waiting to see how long before the discoloration became apparent in the water of the second well. The layer of sand from which Columbia secures its water is a medium sand, neither coarse nor fine, and it was found that water moved 845 feet in 100 days. The level of water at outcrops at Versailles, which is approximately fifty miles from here, figure it out.—Columbia Missouri.

Learn Japanese. An exhortation to his countrymen to learn Japanese, says that this is one of the easiest languages of the world to pronounce. "The language is in words and none of the consonants offer any difficulty." The structure of Japanese is very peculiar and very strange to the beginner. It is hard to realize a grammar which recognizes no person, no genders—but such is the case with the Japanese. However, there is no reason why people whose mother tongue is English should fight shy of the language. For practical, everyday purposes, six months' study of the spoken tongue will carry an intelligent man a long way provided he has competent teachers.

Defective Vision in Children. Last year 341,000 cases of defective vision among the school children of New York state were reported, according to Dr. William A. Howe of the state education department. A large percentage of the defects of vision are errors of refraction traced directly to poor lighting conditions, he says. Quantity of light is one of the most difficult problems of school lighting. While offices and factories are employing increasingly high intensities of illumination, schools can be found with very low illumination. The subject has added importance because of the fact that night schools are conducted in a number of school buildings. Two thousand rooms in the schools of New York city alone are used for that purpose.

A Bird of a Story. Lieut. Chester Lewis of St. Clairsville, Ohio, executive officer on the United States ship Patuxent, is responsible for the following: While the Patuxent was at the Isle of Pines one of the bluejackets captured a peacock, which was placed aboard when they started north. The peacock took to roosting on the radio shack and now is minus the one part of its decorations for which a peacock is noted—its tail. One night after the peacock had gone to roost, the radio operator turned on the "juice" and started sending messages. The beautiful tail of the peacock was in line with the sparks and the feathers caught fire, considerable of the tail being burned off. However, the fire, according to Lewis, was discovered and part of the Atlantic ocean was used in extinguishing the blaze.

Important Part Missing. Kathryn's father killed a rooster and laid him on the ground until he was through kicking and jumping. Kathryn watched him a minute, then exclaimed, "Oh, the poor thing is looking for his head, daddy."

Few Regions Really Rainless. No part of the earth's surface is absolutely rainless except the interiors of Antarctica and Greenland, where the moisture that falls is always in the form of snow.

The Morning Prayer.

There is a freshness about the early morning that belongs to no other period of the day. The sun has a more kindly brightness and the air a fresh crispness that are largely lost as the day grows older. Upon awaking we throw open the window and let in the buoyant atmosphere of the new-born day. It fills our lungs and brightens our eyes and makes us feel how good it is to live.

What the new-born day is to our physical nature, the morning prayer is to the life of the soul. It is opening the windows of the heart that the clear air of heaven may flow in. It reinvigorates the life within us and turns our thoughts towards the One we love the most. It is a source of renewed strength, and gives a buoyancy to the spiritual step and a clearness to the inner vision. It floods the heart with the breath of life and bathes it in the sunshine of God's smile.

We could not live without the morning prayer. By it we take up again our proper position to eternal things. As the morning reminds us that we are members of a home, holding relationship to its inmates and duties toward those whom we love, so our morning prayer reminds us that we are members of God's family. We say, "Our Father," and by so naming Him proclaim our relationship to all His other children. We thus remind ourselves of His love for, and care over us, and of the precious relationship we sustain to Him. The morning prayer puts us in the right place, opening our eyes to the clear shining of his sun upon us.—Selected.

WHAT WE CAN GIVE.

One of the bravest things in the world is to give to others out of one's deepest poverty, whatever that may be—cheer out of sorrow, hope out of disappointment, help out of weariness, courage out of defeat, the precious mile out of the slender store. It is a brave thing to do this, and yet not often an un-rewarded thing. We do not know that the recording angel keeps any special account of such heroic benefactions.

This is one Berlin woman's testimony: Mrs. Joicie A. Bunting, Bay St., says: Doan's Kidney Pills are an old remedy with me. Welcome Distance By REV. H. OSTROM, D. D. Extension Department, Moody Bible Institute, Chicago.

TEXT—As far as the east is from the west so far hath he removed our transgressions from us.—Psalm 102:12.

"So far!" Mark the admissions of the failure of human language in the Bible. When multiplied words will not tell what is to be stated, look for that little word SO. As God "so loved" the world, thus it is the vastness of his pardon is announced as "so far." Was distance ever more significant? Can a man and his sin be in absolutely different neighborhoods?

The expression is equal to practical littleness. The east, that is where? Straight out into space, east, east, east; it cannot be bounded by human thought. The west, that is boundlessness in the opposite direction from the east. So there is boundlessness to boundlessness! "So far!"

For the reach of vision, space may tire the eyes; for the journey, distance may weary the traveler, or the heart may yearn with homesickness because the ocean is so wide, but there is distance to be greeted with ten thousand welcomes. What a fact! That a man's sins may become to him foreigners!

Nothing like a patched-up peace can represent God's dealings with us sinners. We might well imagine that something must have been done to guarantee mercy through grace as a free gift so perfectly sufficient. Otherwise how could it be true that God and I could be actually, clearly at peace?

It is of our Lord Jesus Christ that the declaration is made. "He is our peace." Not only does He give peace; that would be wonderful, but He is in the place of condemnation against us, so that His opposite He is to us. Something availed, something substituted. Something fulfilled. His shed blood has met all. In the embrace of God's great mercy-peace were there when it occurred. "Peace is proclaimed through the blood of the cross."

We are often too ready to classify Bible descriptions as hyperbolic. When we read of the mountains and the stars, we say the descriptions are highly poetic. Perhaps they are not. What book in all the world can profess to describe the mountains from above them or stars from beyond them except the Bible?

So here, when we are considering the forgiveness of sin, let us not say it is a statement of poetic license. No, it is a statement of the highest truth. Men may well both cry and sing for joy to believe it: He loves us. There is not possible a judgment without condemnation against the man whom the Lord forgives.

"We are saved from wrath" through Jesus Christ. But we are also saved from present reproach. "The reproaches of them that reproached thee were laid on me"; these are the words which the Holy Spirit takes from the Psalm of the ancient people, for whom this Psalm of our main text was especially given, and by Him applied through Paul to our Lord Jesus Christ. We may search in vain for the slightest hint of a grudge against the man whom God forgives.

LESSON FOR SEPTEMBER 11 PAUL IN ATHENS.

LESSON TEXT—Acts 17:16-34. GOLDEN TEXT—In him we live, and move, and have our being.—ACTS 17:28. REFERENCE MATERIAL—Luke 4:16-22.

PRIMARY TOPIC—Paul Telling the People about God. JUNIOR TOPIC—Paul in Athens. INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—In a Famous Greek City. YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Paul in a Center of Learning. Being Driven from Berea, Paul Flew to Athens.

I. The Idolatry of the Athenians (v. 1-9). Athens was the intellectual metropolis of the world at that time, the home of the world's great eloquence and philosophy. Paul's spirit was stirred within him when he saw the city wholly given to idolatry.

II. The Parthenon (v. 17-21). True to his usual custom Paul went into the Jewish synagogue and entered into earnest argument with the Jews. From them he turned to such as were found in the market place. Here he came into touch with the Epicureans and Stoic philosophers.

III. Paul's Address on Mars' Hill (v. 23-31). 1. The introduction (v. 23, 24). He did not accuse them of "superstition" as the A. V. would make it, but as in the Am. V. he introduced his discourse in a courteous and conciliatory manner, stating that he perceived that they were very religious.

(1) A declaration concerning God (v. 24, 25). (a) He created the material universe (v. 24). This was a direct answer to the heathen idea of a grudge against the heaven gods. Men may well both cry and sing for joy to believe it: He loves us. There is not possible a judgment without condemnation against the man whom the Lord forgives.

(2) Declaration concerning man (v. 26-31). (a) His common origin (v. 26). This was a blow at the foolish Athenian pride which supposed that they were superior to all other people. This proposition he proved from their own literature (see v. 28). If men are the offspring of God and bear His likeness it is utterly folly to make images as the senseless idols were.

(3) Men should seek God (v. 29). His goodness and grace in supplying all our needs, and ordering all the affairs of the nations should move man to seek and seek God, for He is indeed very near to every one; so near that our existence and movements are all under His control (v. 27). (4) Pressing obligation to repent (v. 30, 31). This was his supreme message. Though God had formerly passed over idolatry He now calls to all men to repent. The solemn reason for such action is the coming day of judgment, the credential of which is the resurrection of Jesus Christ from the dead. The judgment of God of an unbelieving world is as sure as this fact. Men will be judged on the basis of their attitude toward Jesus Christ.

RAWLEIGH'S COUGH SYRUP is an old time-tested preparation of unusual merit for coughs and hoarseness. Very soothing to the inflamed tissues and helpful in loosening and expelling phlegm. RAWLEIGH'S COUGH LOZENGES are highly medicated and composed of just the right combination of ingredients for overcoming coughs, tickling in the throat, and hoarseness due to colds. Pleasant to taste and convenient to use. RAWLEIGH'S COLD TABLETS contain quinine in its most valuable form and in addition are somewhat laxative, making them particularly useful in overcoming colds. Our Parents' Wishes

By R. RAY BAKER

(By 1921, by McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

"Do you think we were made for each other, Fred?" Fred Hamilton's lip curled in scorn.

"Thanks for the compliment," he said dryly, rising from the chair in which he had been seated.

"You are right. We have been keeping the affair going simply because our parents wished it. It was not a question of love or money, because both of us are comfortably fixed, you with the money your father left you and I with my prospering business."

OLD LEGEND OF MANDALAY

Fanciful Story Which Accounts for the Dogfish Being Held Sacred in That Country.

Dogfish are held sacred in Mandalay for a very picturesque and romantic reason, which goes back a long way in history. The legend of the sacred fish is that once upon a time a king of Pagan went to Shan princess, who had an errand in which was set a relic of Buddha.

Has Seen Life's Bitterness

Granddaughter of the Mighty Napoleon I. Worthy of Remembrance by the French People.

Paris observed the centenary of Napoleon Bonaparte's death with elaborate ceremonies a few weeks ago. Amid all the pomp in honor of the one-time arbiter of Europe another figure stood out in contrast—that of a woman of fifty, dressed in black with a fine, open face, lined by sorrow and the incipient effort to cheer off a bygone life.

"What has happened?" inquired the voice of Eva Marlow. "And where are you taking my little Jim? Why, it is—that you, Fred?"

"It is," he said, calmly but somewhat aggressively, "and I'm taking him home because his father is dead. And what do you mean by 'my little Jim'?"

"You are right. We have been keeping the affair going simply because our parents wished it. It was not a question of love or money, because both of us are comfortably fixed, you with the money your father left you and I with my prospering business."

The operator who takes your call, the wire-chief who tests the line, the man who repairs the instruments, the operator at the distant central office, the traffic inspector, the central office manager—all these and a most complete equipment—are working that your call may be put through in the most satisfactory manner. Bell telephone employees have one characteristic in common—willingness to oblige. This is true in all departments, from switchboard to business office. Their courtesy, willingness to oblige and patience under trying conditions promote friendly feeling and are essential to good telephone service. Nichols—Savage.

A wedding of much interest to Girdletrce people was solemnized Thursday evening, September 1st, 1921, when Miss Nellie Savage, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. T. R. Savags, became the bride of the Rev. Harrison M. Nichols, son of Mrs. B. F. Nichols, of Ifflon, N. Y. They were attended by Mr. and Mrs. Clayton Jones. The bride's bouquet was white roses while the bridesmaid carried pink roses. The bride's pastor, Rev. H. P. Hall, officiated, using the ring ceremony. Only the immediate family and a few intimate friends were present.

The bridal tour included Baltimore, Washington, and New York State, the former home of the bridegroom. A reception was given the young people Thursday, September 8th, at Mt. Ranier Church, Md., three miles from Washington, of which Mr. Nichols has been called to be pastor.

The groom is a graduate of the "Practical Bible-Training School," Bible School, N. Y., and for the past two years a student of the Baptist Theological Seminary, at Louisville, Ky. He was for a time pastor of the Girdletrce Baptist Church, leaving there three years ago. The bride was a school teacher, and prominent among the young people of the church. ATTACK FIRM AS FILM MONOPOLY

Federal Trade Board Declares Famous Players-Lasky Corporation Violates Trust Laws.

ACCUSES IT OF CONSPIRACY

Two-thirds of Money Spent by Movie Patrons Goes to Company, It Charged—$4,000,000 a Day Is Estimated Revenue.

Washington.—The Famous Players-Lasky Corporation, the world's largest movie concern, and owner of 400 theaters in the United States and Canada, was charged with unfair competition under the Clayton act, in a formal complaint issued by the Federal Trade Commission.

The commission, tracing the history of the corporation from its start as a small enterprise with small capital, set forth that now "as a result of conspiracies and affiliations made in pursuance of said combinations and conspiracies" it has eliminated competition by buying up the businesses of its competitors, and now has a monopoly over the entire motion picture industry.

The commission alleged that 97 cents out of every dollar paid into movie theaters throughout the United States is paid to see attractions under the name of Paramount and Famous Players-Lasky pictures, distributed by the Famous Players-Lasky Corporation.

It was said in the complaint that there are approximately 15,000 movie exhibitors in the United States, and that about 20,000,000 persons every day spend approximately $4,000,000 in cash to see motion picture exhibitions. This was mentioned by the commission in its charge that the Famous Players-Lasky Corporation, in its control of the majority of movie producing companies, distributes more than 30,000 films each week to exhibitors in the United States and foreign countries.

The commission cites at some length the corporation's activity in New York, where it is alleged to maintain practically a monopoly. The complaint declared in "furtherance of the conspiracy charged," that:

"The Famous Players-Lasky Corporation acquired the New York Theater building, containing the Criterion, the New York Theater and the New York Roof, at a cost of $3,200,000; that respondents acquired the Rivoli and Rialto in the same district of New York city, as well as the property on which the Patnam Building is located, where it is proposed in the near future to erect a thirty story building to cost $8,000,000 and to contain a motion picture theater."

The complaint also set forth that the corporation acquired the stock of Charles Frohman, Incorporated, which it was alleged, leases the Empire Theater, and has an interest in the Lyceum Theater.

It was charged that the policy of the corporation was to acquire and affiliate with it producers, distributors and exhibitors, as a result of which pictures of independent producers are kept out of a showing in theaters in many large cities, and that continuation of such a policy will eventually eliminate all independents if the practices are continued.

Continuing its recital of the dangers of the corporations alleged unfair competition, the complaint further stated:

"Thus, as the theaters owned, controlled or operated by the Famous Players-Lasky Corporation are permanently closed to all competitors, the productions of many prominent artists who are not affiliated with the Famous Players-Lasky Corporation are denied a showing of their pictures in the first run downtown theaters in New York city, where three of the five first run theaters are owned by the Famous Players-Lasky Corporation, and show Paramount and Famous Players-Lasky pictures exclusively, and the remaining two first run theaters are owned or controlled by competing producers who likewise exhibit their own productions exclusively."

To Remove a Tight Can Lid. Can lids are often difficult to remove. Here is a plan by means of which it can be loosened easily. Tie a piece of stout twine loosely just below the cover, then thrust under the twine a pencil and start to twist it. When the twine is tight, the cover of the can comes away readily.

Care of the Rifle. The sergeant of marines was instructing his men on the care of small arms, says an item in Our Navy. "The rifle is the marine's best friend," he said. "He must never neglect it. He must treat it as he treats his wife and wipe it over with an oily rag twice a day."

Hawaii Talks Many Tongues. Sixty-eight different languages and dialects are used over the telephone lines of Honolulu, according to evidence at the public utilities commission hearing on the Mutual Telephone company's application to increase its rates recently. The list of tongues representing the cosmopolitan conversations of the island include 11 separate national languages, 40 Japanese dialects, seven Chinese dialects and English. The telephone officials protested they were unable to check the number of business calls separate from social calls because of the babel of tongues.

PRESIDENT ORDERS MINERS TO HOMES

Proclamation of Warning Follows New Appeal From Governor of West Virginia.

Washington.—President Harding, in a proclamation issued through the War Department, demanded that the "Mingo marchers" return to their homes.

The proclamation was issued following a conference with Secretary of War Weeks at the White House. The secretary immediately instructed Major General H. H. Bandholtz to proceed to the Mingo district to see that the proclamation is carried out.

The secretary made it plain that if the strikers do not return to their homes by the specified time the "department will take further action."

This was generally interpreted to mean that he will send federal troops into the zone of disorder if the strikers disregard the proclamation.

War Department officials said only word from President Harding was necessary for them to begin movement of troops into the West Virginia fields.

General Bandholtz will command any federal forces that may be sent into West Virginia. It was stated at the War Department that troops were held in readiness at Camp Sherman, Ohio, and Camp Dix, New Jersey, to be dispatched at a moment's notice.

The Nineteenth Infantry, stationed at Camp Sherman, can be landed in Illinois county within four hours after orders are received.

The President's action followed appeals by a special delegation of West Virginia men who were received at the White House. The group was headed by Senator Sutherland, former Governor McCorkle and Secretary of State Young. They were accompanied by Secretary of War Weeks, Assistant Secretary Wainwright and Major General Harbord, deputy chief of staff.

Re-organization Program Approved. Annapolis.

The re-organization program of Governor Ritchie was approved in its final form by the special committee of the executive committee of the Re-organization Commission, and will be brought before the executive committee September 14 and before the full commission on the same day.

One change was made in the draft submitted by Governor Ritchie to the members of the committee. This was to strike out the clause whereby it was proposed to abolish the office of State Librarian and put the library under the control of the Court of Appeals. This leaves the State Library untouched by the re-organization and renders unnecessary the adoption of a constitutional amendment, which would have been required if the change had been insisted upon.

The State Industrial Accident Commission, about which there was serious debate in the committee, was left untouched, but the State Tax Commissioner was retained to one man instead of three and placed under the general supervision of the State Comptroller. The departments thus proposed, in addition to that of State Librarian, number 19, as follows:

1. Executive Department.
2. Finance Department.
3. Department of Law.
4. Department of Education.
5. University of Maryland and State Board of Agriculture.
6. Department of Militia.
7. Department of Welfare.
8. Department of Charities.
9. Department of Health.
10. Department of Public Works.
11. Department of Public Safety.
12. Conservation Department.
13. Department of Public Utilities.
14. State Industrial Accident Commission.
15. Commissioner of Labor and Statistics.
16. Department of State Employment and Registration.
17. Inspector of Tobacco.
18. State Board of Censors.
19. Maryland Racing Commission.

In addition to these departments, a "Governor Advisory Council" is proposed to comprise those department heads whose work relates more directly to the financial and business side of the State Government, together with the Police Commissioner for Baltimore City. The personnel of the council would be:

- State Comptroller.
- State Treasurer.
- Attorney General.
- Chairman State Board of Education.
- Chairman State Board of Agriculture and President University of Maryland.
- Director of Welfare.
- Director of Charities.
- Director of Health.
- Director of Public Works.
- Director of Public Safety.
- Police Commissioner of Baltimore City.
- Conservation Commissioner.
- Commissioner of State Employment and Registration.

The report points out that only two constitutional amendments will be necessary to accomplish the proposed changes. "All recommendations," it says, "can be put into effect through legislative enactments except two—(a) the increase in the Comptroller's salary and the extension of his and the Treasurer's term to four years, and (b) the abolishment of the office of State Librarian. These require two constitutional amendments."

The Governor's program is based on three fundamental principles: (a) It must aim to make the State Government more efficient. (b) It must result in economy. (c) It must be distinctly a Maryland plan. It must not be simply a plan that looks well on paper or that works well in some other State. Nor must it be a plan of expediency. It must take proper account of Maryland experience, conditions and usages and of everything that is good in our institutions.

The program, the report explains, has been constructed in accordance with the following postulates: (a) That there is no need to centralize further power in the Governor's hands. What the Governor needs is not more power, but better facilities for keeping in touch with and supervising the work of the State departments. (b) That whether a given line of work is to be intrusted to a board or to a single official should not be determined by any hard-and-fast rule, as has been done in other states, but should depend in each case upon whether the particular work can be more efficiently and effectively performed by a board or by a single official. In general, however, administrative and executive work should be done by single officials, quasi-judicial and policy-making work by boards. (c) That the State institutions should continue under the management of unpaid boards, because, wherever may be the case elsewhere, in Maryland, this has long given the State the time and talents of public-spirited men of affairs whose services could not otherwise be secured. But the one weakness in such boards, namely, the lack of a sustained sense of responsibility and control, should be remedied by classifying these institutions and providing a supervisory director over each class, who will keep in touch with their work, leaving alone what is being well done and correcting what is not.

(d) That of overlapping terms, that is, terms which extend beyond the Governor's term, are ordinarily not advisable in the case of officials whose work is mainly administrative, but in the case of quasi-judicial and policy-making boards such terms serve to assure continuity of policy and to eliminate political considerations and are desirable.

(e) That minority representation as recognized in Maryland should continue, because the great majority of our people belong to the two leading political parties, and any plan of government must be for the government of those belonging to both, so that the views of the minority members should be sound decisions. (f) That woman suffrage has placed a joint responsibility upon both women and men in government affairs and therefore women should be represented upon State boards and commissions, particularly in those fields of work where woman's training, interest or experience especially qualifies her, such as education, welfare, charities, mental hygiene, health, and also upon the various international boards. (g) That confirmation of the Governor's appointments by the Senate is a desirable safeguard and should continue, except in cases where the Legislature itself sees fit to relinquish it.

(h) That State offices and agencies should not be combined simply for the sake of combining them, nor should so many be combined as to make it difficult for the department head properly to supervise all those placed under him, or as to make the performance of their work more costly. Subject to this, offices and agencies whose work is of an allied or related character should be grouped or merged under one department.

Speaking of "economics," the report says: "It is not possible to foretell accurately what the really substantial economies of the plan will be. These will result from greatly increased efficiency in administering public affairs, avoidance of duplication and waste, centralizing and systematizing governmental activities and control, etc. The difference will be between a well-organized, businesslike management conducted by a small number of departments whose heads will meet frequently with each other and with the Governor, and the present system of a very great number of departments, most of them acting independently of all the others, and no competent supervision over them possible. This difference cannot be measured mathematically in advance. It could not be done in private business, and it cannot be done in public business either."

"It is possible, however, to show the economy which will result at once from reduced salaries in officials' salaries and compensation. In this respect alone the plan recommended will save annually over $145,000, or practically one cent on the State tax rate. The large State of Illinois, in advance of its reorganization in 1917, was only able to show an annual saving of $100,000 from this source. So far as ascertainable other States attempted no specific predictions.

"For purposes of comparison, inquiry has been made of the governors of Idaho, Nebraska, Washington, Ohio, Massachusetts and Illinois, the States which have reorganized their administrative departments, in order to learn what economies have been actually shown there. In each State the saving is said to be very substantial, but not easy to approximate accurately, largely because changes and increases in prices make comparisons difficult; but all of these governors agree that the real economy comes in numerous ways from the greatly increased efficiency and businesslike methods which the reorganizations have introduced.

Cumberland.—Although the drought of the last three weeks in this vicinity is beginning to cause some anxiety to the Chesapeake and Ohio Canal and Railroad interests, no lack of water has as yet been experienced by either carrier. Navigation along the canal continues to proceed normally and all water towers of the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad and the Western Maryland Railway at high and low points have a sufficient supply to last for several days it is stated. Recent rains in the vicinity of Hancock, at Dam No. 5, it was explained, assisted materially in replenishing the waterway, which had begun to recede noticeably. County roads, however, are covered with about three to five inches of dust, making automobile and other vehicle travel difficult. Vegetation in the greater part is apparently not drying out, owing to the heavy dews at night, it was said.

Cumberland.—For the purpose of assisting in locating a municipal flying landing, Lieut. Paul C. Wilkins, headquarters United States Aviation Air Station, Anacostia, Washington, D. C., conferred with Franklin H. Ankester, secretary Cumberland Chamber of Commerce, at that office Wednesday morning. Former Lieut. A. Hammond Amick, Jr., of the Aviation Section, was also consulted. A municipal flying field here would be a link in the Washington-to-Dayton course. Lieutenant Wilkins and his mechanic landed on Cumberland Heights and Oldtown road Wednesday morning.

And He Meant So Well. I was escorting two girl friends home from a dance one night, when we noticed a wide-open window in a house we were passing. Thinking to avert a possible burglary, I stuck my head inside and shouted, "Say, good people!" But that was as far as I got, for a bucketful of water struck me full in the face and a furious female voice shouted, "I told you what you'd get if you didn't get home before ten!"—Chicago Journal.

Softest Known Wood. Trees belonging to the genus Jacaralia, growing in tropical America, are remarkable for their soft wood. After part of the bark is cut away a machete can be shoved to the center of the trunk with ease. The wood, when fresh, can be cut into blocks with a knife, as one would cut up parsnips or turnips. As the wood dries, it shrinks to a small fraction of its original bulk.

Fewer Babies Born in June. Fewer babies are born in June than in any other month.

Energy Needs in Calories. According to the United States Department of Agriculture, a family consisting of a father, mother and three children requires approximately 12,000 calories a day. The diet is best balanced by considering 120 units of 100 calories each. On this basis, fruits and vegetables should supply 24 units; milk, eggs and meat, 36; cereals and legumes, 30; sugar and starchy foods, 12, and fats and fatty foods, 18.

Cafarens and Interest. The story goes that John Hopkins, the founder of the university that bears his name, was accustomed even when of venerable years and more or less infirm of body to walk to his office. Questioned by a friend as to why he did this, he replied: "I never forget that a coffee represents an entire year's interest on a dollar. The interest on a dollar is worth saving."

Dense Vapor from Cloud. The flat top of Table Mountain, South Africa, is often overspread with a cloud known as the Table Cloth. It forms very suddenly, chiefly with strong southerly winds, and has been the cause of accidents to wanderers on the mountain who have lost their way when enveloped in the dense vapor.

Lodgings or Lollypops. Referring to our note on the disappearance of cottage pudding because of the shortage of cottages, a correspondent asks if the high cost of lumber isn't really due to the vast quantities of it now being used in making lollypop handles. Probably, sir, probably. So that while we use our lumber in making cheap sweets we cannot expect to have cheap suites.—Boston Transcript.

Wasted Man Power. Those accustomed to the good old ways are always insistent in their declaration that the claims of the efficiency experts have been greatly exaggerated. New methods, whatever their virtue, are not always popular. It is observed that it still requires the services of two willing adult workers to display the wonders of a three-ring circus satisfactorily to one youngster.—Christian Science Monitor.

They Can Afford It. Our guess is that the only people who laugh and grow fat are those who don't have to work for their board.—Galveston News.

When a young man went to a neighbor's dairy to see his sweetheart, who had charge of the institution, and asked, timidly, of the man, "How is the milkmaid?" the man angrily slammed the door in his face, saying, "Our milk isn't made; it's got from the cow!"—Selected.

SHOES FOR CHILDREN

While we have shoes in stock for men, women and children we would call your special attention to our shoes for children, owing to the greater demand for them at this time. A child well shod will accomplish more in the school-room than one who is not! From The Deputy State Fire Marshall.

We received just before the opening of the schools a lengthy communication from the Deputy State Fire Marshall, George E. Percy, which we found it impossible to print. He calls attention to the fact that 10 per cent of the accidental deaths in this country result from fire, and 85 per cent of the fires are from carelessness, those in school-houses not of the children, but of those entrusted with the legal obligation of safeguarding the children—the school officials, including teachers.

He says in part: "Those who are charged with the responsibility of the care of these children should be sure that everything has been done to insure their safety. Be sure that every fire hazard has been removed; that the heating plant in each building is properly installed and in correct repair; that approved fire extinguishers have been installed when and where needed; that the installation of the electrical wiring has been thoroughly inspected and that same is in good condition, and that exits and fire escapes are in proper shape.

"During an average of five hours each day during 200 days in each year, twenty-five million children are in the schools of the United States. The attendance is compulsory; no fundamental educational problem is greater than the safety of these children.

"Fire drills are extremely important and should be held at least twice a month, but perfection of drilling is of little value if fire exits are omitted or improperly designed, or if doors are locked or do not open outward. All doors to school buildings should open outward, and should be equipped with panic release bar latches.

"What the country needs is national team work in fighting the fire waste. Our schools have a double responsibility and opportunity in the premises; first to put their own houses in order, and second, to yield a powerful educational influence. The education of the public in matters of fire prevention is the most important step that can be taken toward limiting the loss of life and property by fire. If within the next year the teaching of fire prevention were incorporated in the courses of all schools and colleges in the United States, it is safe to predict that the effect upon the fire waste would be very great. Some states already require that a certain amount of time be devoted each month to the study of fire prevention in grammar schools."

A Pronounced Success.

The uniform success that has attended the use of Chamberlain's Colic and Diarrhoea Remedy in the relief and cure of bowel complaints, both for children and adults, has brought it into almost universal use, so that it is practically without a rival, and as everyone who has used it knows, it is without an equal.—Adv.

Birthday Party.

A delightful evening was spent at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Joshua Bunting, near Friendship, in honor of Mr. Bunting's 50th birthday. Music was rendered and refreshments served. There were about 35 guests, who took their departure about 11.30, expressing their pleasure and wishing Mr. Bunting 50 more happy birthdays.

Among those present were the Rev. C. C. Jones and family, Rev. E. J. Nicholson, Mr. and Mrs. Z. H. Jones, Mr. and Mrs. George Jones, J. S. Smallwood and family, Mr. and Mrs. Harry M. Tolb, Jr., Mr. and Mrs. Walter Coo, Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin Jackson and many others.

Newspaper Men To Meet.

Governor Ritchie, of Maryland, will be the chief guest at the fall meeting of the Delmarva Press Association and the Maryland Press Association, at Dover, Del., on Monday and Tuesday, September 26th and 27th. Invitations have been extended by S. E. Shanahan, of Eastern, who is president of the Delmarva Association and secretary of the Maryland Association.

Indications are that it will be the best attended meeting yet held by these associations, which comprise representatives of all the newspapers in Delaware and the Eastern Shore of Maryland. The program includes an oyster roast, airplane trips over Maryland and Delaware and the Chesapeake Bay and many other features.

A bronze equestrian statue of Caesar Rodney is being manufactured to be placed in Rodney Square, Wilmington, commemorating his famous ride from Dover to Philadelphia, July 2nd and 4th, 1776, to cast Delaware's vote for the Declaration of Independence. It is not expected to be completed until early next year.

The Frederick baseball team, holder of the pennant in the Blue Ridge League, 1st Saturday won the deciding game for the Maryland championship, when it defeated Princess Anne, the champion of the Eastern Shore, at Oriole Park, Baltimore.

It is announced that paper money is to be made smaller, soon, for economy's sake, and also because it will be more easily counted in large quantities. Other changes are contemplated in the hope of protecting the bills against counterfeiters.

No Substitute Offered.

Say what you will about druggists offering something "just as good" because it pays a better profit, the fact still remains that ninety-nine out of a hundred druggists recommend Chamberlain's Colic and Diarrhoea Remedy, when the best medicine for diarrhoea is asked for, and do so because they know from what their customers say, of it, that it can be depended upon.—Adv.

Wanted to Make Sure.

A good telephone story is told in The Outlook, of a cook—a new arrival—who had never seen nor heard of the 'phone before accepting an engagement in a suburban New York home.

The whole thing impressed her as uncanny, and for weeks she stood in awe of the apparatus, always putting on a clean apron before answering a call to an interview with a lady or gentleman at the other end of the mystic wire. One day she electrified a dozen guests at dinner by appearing at the door of the dining room and asking distractedly of her mistress: "Is this McGilne's grocery store?" "Why, of course not," responded the amazed hostess. "Well sure, they asked me over the tellyphone this mornin', ma'am!"

OLD BREAK LED TO BRIDGE CRASH

Iron Plate Cracked Ten Years Ago Found on Collapsed Structure at Chester, Pa.

HEROIC WORK OF RESCUE

Trained Bear the Cause—Crowd Following Animal Saw Boy Drown and Overloaded the Bridge—Collapse Puts City in Mourning.

Chester, Pa.—A cracked gusset plate, which was bolted instead of riveted, caused the collapse of the footpath on the Third street bridge over the Chester River at Chester, hurling twenty-five persons to their death in the murky waters below.

All of the bodies have been recovered. The last one taken out of the river was that of Apostolos Apostola, five years old, 419 Edgemont street, Chester. He was the child whose drowning led to the disaster. Three of the seven injured persons in the Chester Hospital are not expected to recover.

A section of the bridge collapsed when several hundred persons rushed upon it to watch attempts to rescue the Apostola boy, who had fallen into the narrow river. The crowd was watching a swimmer trying to find the body, when, without a warning, there was a sharp, cracking sound, and a ten-foot section of the bridge collapsed.

Nearly 100 persons, screaming and struggling, slid down into the water. More than seventy of those were saved by others, who jumped into the river or got boats and carried the victims of the crash ashore.

H. H. Quimby, chief engineer of the Philadelphia Rapid Transit Company, and Edward Tempier inspected the bridge to determine the cause of the accident. After a long examination of the structure, the bridge was found to be in construction. The grain in the plate was perpendicular instead of being horizontal, and we found a crack in the plate nearly eight inches in length.

The length of the gusset plate was fifteen inches, and the old crack in the plate was eight inches long and had been there for eleven years. It is what we call a progressive break.

When the plate was unbolted from the bridge it was seen that the plate was nearly completely split, and the pieces were nearly as sharp as a razor. It was found that about ten years ago a canal boat laden with coal broke loose from its mooring, a hundred feet up the river and jammed against the bridge. A rising tide forced the canal boat further against the bridge, bending the gusset plate.

The morning following the canal boat accident, an inspection of the bridge was made and the bent plate was located. The rivets were cut out of it and workmen took the plate to the street. Instead of putting in a new plate they attempted to straighten out the plate while it was cold, with the result that the plate was cracked. Despite that crack, however, the plate was put back into place and bolted.

The disaster was indirectly brought about by the desire of Apostola to see a trained bear that was being led about the streets of Chester to exploit a moving picture that was being shown at the Edgemont theater. The youngster was walking along the bank of the river, when Vincent Desmond, aged twelve, of No. 912 West Third street, called to him that the bear was coming down the street. The child started to run, and had almost reached the bridge when he slipped and fell into the water. The Desmond boy saw him fall, and called for help. Two men in a rowboat rowed out to the spot where he went down and began diving for the lad's body.

When the crowd surged on the bridge to watch the rescue of the small boy they seemed by fate to gather at the spot where the cracked plate was upholding the footpath.

Coroner Charles Drewes looked at the bridge and condemned the whole structure. He told the authorities that he would forbid any traffic across the bridge despite the fact that only the footpath seemed in danger. Ropes were thrown across both ends of the bridge and no one was allowed to cross. Ten minutes after Coroner Drewes left the scene the ropes were taken down and pedestrians and vehicles were allowed to pass over. When Mr. Drewes heard of the disfiguring of his ward he rushed to the bridge and again ordered the structure closed.

We pledge our renewed and vigorous efforts to secure the enforcement of the Eighteenth Amendment.

We urge upon the citizens of this country the necessity of upholding the majesty of the law.

WORLD PROHIBITION 6. The World's W. C. T. U. Convention, held in London in 1920, and the recent survey by our National president of European and South American countries, has brought us in closer touch with the progress of prohibition sentiment in many of the nations federated in our World's W. C. T. U. Eagerly they are noting the economic and moral benefits already secured through the enactment of the Eighteenth Amendment to the Constitution of the United States. We pledge them our continued sympathy and co-operation and press unceasingly forward to the goal of world prohibition.

THANKS 7. We are deeply grateful to our white-ribbon comrades, and to all other citizens of San Francisco and California, who have united in a welcome so cordial, expressed in ways varied and unusual.

We express our sincere appreciation of every courtesy, and pray the Divine blessing upon every one who has, in any way, contributed to the success of this convention.

LESSON FOR SEPTEMBER 18

ABSTINENCE FOR SAKE OF OTHERS (TEMPERANCE LESSON).

LESSON TEXT—1 Cor. 10:23-33; 13:1, 17. GOLDEN TEXT—Whether therefore ye eat, or drink, or whatsoever ye do, go all to the glory of God—1 Cor. 10:31.

REFERENCE MATERIAL—Rom. 13:1; Matt. 5:1, 2; 1 Cor. 4:3-9; 13:1-7. PRIMARY TOPIC—A Clean, Strong Body.

JUNIOR TOPIC—How to Win the Race. INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Presenting One's Body a Living Sacrifice.

YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—The True Meaning of Temperance.

The occasion of this teaching was the uncertainty as to the right attitude toward "things sacrificed unto idols." This problem was most vital while the Christians were in the midst of the heathen, and with some modifications no less vital still, in mingling with society many perplexing questions arise, such as amusements, way of spending Sunday, enjoyment of luxuries, owning stock in certain corporations, etc. Our lesson contains principles adequate for our guidance in all these problems.

It was customary to divide the annual offering in sacrifice into three parts. One part was consumed on the altar, another part was given to the priest, and the third part was kept by the party bringing the offering. The priest's part was frequently sold in the market. The part which the offerer kept was sometimes eaten at home and sometimes in the court of the temple. The Christian who bought meat in the market was liable to get meat which had been dedicated to the idol god. Then, too, one would be invited to eat socially at the table of someone who had kept his portion of his offering and now set it before his guests. Some with adequate knowledge had no scruples about it; others with less knowledge thought it sinful. The one who has knowledge should bear with the weak one, and at the same time should seek to teach his brother the truth as to set him free from bondage of superstition. The glory of God should control in all things.

I. "All Things Are Lawful for Me" (v. 23).

This declaration is limited, of course, by things which are right in themselves. It is not true that a Christian is free to do those things which are wrong. The Christian can only indulge in "lawful things" as they are expedient and unto edification. As individual Christians we have liberty to do many things which because of their influence on our fellow-Christians we should abstain from.

Even with one's self that is not edifying should be ruled out.

II. "Let No Man Seek His Own" (v. 24).

The Christian is under the control of love. The controlling principle of love is unselfishness. The one dominated by love considers the other's interests rather than his own.

III. "Eat the Food Set Before You" (vv. 25-30).

It is not incumbent upon us to be on the hunt for occasions of the conscience either of ourselves or others. Exercise your freedom in the enjoyment of all right things which the Lord places before you, but as soon as it is brought to your attention that certain things are to the disadvantage of others, you should desist; that is, exercise self-control.

IV. "Do All to the Glory of God" (v. 31).

This is the grand and supreme rule of life for the Christian. The Christian is not at liberty to do that upon which he could not ask the blessing of God. In our eating, employments and pleasures, we should have as our transcendent aim God's glory. How could one ask God's blessing upon the intoxicating cup, dancing, gambling, theatergoing, Sunday desecration, luxurious extravagance, etc.?

V. "Give No Occasion for Anyone to Stumble" (v. 32).

We should so live that no one can ever say that we have been the occasion of their downfall.

VI. Follow the Example of Jesus Christ (11:1).

Christ through love gave up all for the sake of others. He did not please himself. Everyone, therefore, who is a Christian should imitate Him.

VII. The Christian's Body Is the Temple of the Holy Ghost (3:16, 17).

This great truth is true of the Church as a body, but that which is true of the body is true of the individual composing the body; so the point in this Scripture is the serious consequence of defiling the body.

The Queen of Sheba

By REV. GEORGE E. GUILLE

Education Department, Moody Bible Institute, Chicago.

TEXT—The queen of Sheba shall rise up in the judgment with this generation and shall condemn it: for she came from the uttermost parts of the earth to hear the wisdom of Solomon; and, behold, a greater than Solomon is here.—Matt. 12:42.

History records many a notable journey, and many a visit, for reasons other than friendship, of one monarch to another.

But the Lord Jesus has singled out this one as worthy of more attention than them all, because in it there is hidden what is more than in the story of His grace in supplying the need of the seeking soul.

And what a need is here disclosed! As great for the queen as for the lowest of her subjects. The poorest outcast has no greater need of Christ than the mightiest king. "GOD SAVE THE KING!"

Think of her journey. Sheba was at the southern end of the desert of Arabia, 1,500 miles from Judea, the ship of the desert was the slowly moving camel, and the way was beset by perils—perils of robbers, perils of sand storms, perils of ravenous beasts. Two and a half months of discomfort and weariness, and yet, she came. For what? To learn wisdom.

In her faraway land she had heard of the fame of Solomon's wisdom and came to see for herself whether the report were true, putting herself at his feet to be taught of him, thus making manifest that she was one of those whom the Lord designates as "wisdom's children."

Because of this shall she rise up to condemn the men of the Lord's generation and of every generation since, who have not earned that title for themselves, for a greater than Solomon was among them and has been among men ever since, offering all, and more, of what the treasures of Solomon were but the faintest shadow.

The very wisdom of God is He and in Him are hid all the treasures of wisdom and knowledge.

What the queen of Sheba found upon her visit to Solomon was the shadowing forth of the riches that are in Christ and that wait, even now, to pour themselves out at the feet of every seeking sinner. It is evident that the object of her quest was the knowledge of God, for it was "when she heard of the fame of Solomon concerning the NAME OF JEHOVAH that she came to learn of him." And she commended with him of all that was in her heart. "There was not anything hid from the king."

"For all things are asked and opened unto the eyes of him with whom we have to do." And let there be, on the part of any sinner—ruler or ruffian—such frank and open dealing with Him of whom Solomon is the figure, and he shall find every question of his heart answered. If you have heard of His wisdom and His grace—and you have, and would come to know of Him, "and you must be able to take the place of a sinner before Him. You with your folly and He with His wisdom; you with your sins and He with His grace. The same old terms! It is the fact today to run to the philosopher with the heart's questions and to turn to every source of knowledge save the only infallible one, O soul, come to Christ with your questions.

And not only were her hard questions answered, but her eyes beheld things of which she had not heard. When she "had seen all Solomon's wisdom, and the house that he built, and the meat of his table, and the sitting of his servants, and the attendance of his ministers, and their apparel, and his ascent by which he went up into the house of the Lord; there was no spirit in her."

Think of what she saw. "The house that he built." And our Lord, the "greater than Solomon," hath built an house. It is "the house of God" to which every forgiven sinner belongs. "The meat of his table." How eloquent men become in describing rare menus. But think of what that table of Solomon's is, a picture, and the tongue is dumb. Wine and bread of heaven which the Lord of life and glory provides for all His own! The whole Christian life is a "feast," with nothing lacking and all but a little foretaste of heaven!

"The sitting of his servants and the attendance of his ministers." Altogether worthy of his own exalted station. But behold the apparel of those who wait upon the Lord. He hath clothed them with the garments of salvation; that "best robe" is upon them all. They must be worthy of Him, and only He can make them so. Adorned, every one, by His own hand.

"The ascent by which he went up into the house of the Lord." It is a faint figure of the gleaming way by which our Lord has gone up into the sanctuary above, leaving its gate ajar and its light streaming out. By that way He shall return, and we wait for Him.

O soul, the greater than Solomon is here. No journey to find Him, no perils. He will answer all your questions and satisfy your heart forever. Accept Him now as your Savior, lest you face the condemnation of that Arab queen, and His, in a soon coming day!

True Thrift.

Thrift is steady earning, wise spending, sane saving, careful investing, and the avoidance of all waste.

Weather Deck.

A "weather deck," in ship building terms, is a deck with no overhead protection.

Year 1950.

HOW

MOORS FATTEN FEMALES FOR MARRIAGE MARKET

In Egypt a quaint wedding custom is the visit paid by the bride and her friends to the bath. The progress to it partakes of the nature of a procession, headed by Arab musicians, with tambourines, lutes and other instruments. The bride is usually seated on a camel and covered with a sort of tepal from the top of which the greatest palm leaves obtainable are projected. Over the door of the bathroom a handkerchief is hung to denote that only women may enter. After the bride and her friends have bathed, they abandon themselves to the enjoyment of the entertainment provided by the musicians, story-tellers and singers.

Among the Moors, girls are fattened for the marriage market much as the poultry farmer treats his livestock. The staple food of the women is bread, and it is chiefly with this that they are fattened. Long-shaped loaves of it are constantly forced down their throats for a period of about three weeks before their marriage.

The bride has to be put through a strange ordeal. She is placed in an ill-ventilated wooden cage, usually whitewashed, and taken in it in procession through the streets to the bridegroom's dwelling. After a two weeks' honeymoon the discarded box is placed on the roof of the house in a prominent position, so that all may see it. This is an official intimation that the newly wedded pair are ready to receive friends.

Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.

The care of growing chicks, especially during warm weather, is most important, say specialists of the United States Department of Agriculture. Every boy or girl member of a poultry club should give them the best of attention if success is to be had. The baby chicks may be smart little fellows from strong, vigorous parent stock, and they may have been brooded carefully for the first two or three weeks, but unless they receive proper care and management during their later growing period they will not develop properly, and many of them will be lost through disease or sickness. The chief essentials to proper growth are good coops or houses, cleanliness, proper feed and water, shade, and free range.

Every coop or poultry house used for growing chicks should be kept clean at all times. Sickness or disease starts readily in unclean quarters, and in such places the net result are all ways more plentiful. Coops and houses should be cleaned and sprayed once a week, and clean shavings, chaff or sand put on the floor. Examine the chicks and houses often for lice and mites, and if found they should be got rid of at once by following the directions in Department Circular 16, Lice, Mites and Cleanliness, which may be had, free, upon application to the division of publications, United States Department of Agriculture.

A variety of feeds, with fresh, clean water, is necessary. Perhaps the three most necessary for rapid growth are grain feed, green feed and dry mash. Poultry specialists of the department say that in addition to the green feed and dry mash, a good mixture of vitamins should be fed night and morning, giving as large a quantity as the chicks will eat clean, but no more. A good grain mixture for growing chicks consists of three parts cracked corn, two parts wheat, and two parts hulled oats. When available, kafir or rolled or hulled barley may be substituted for hulled oats. In localities where hulled oats, kafir, or rolled barley cannot be obtained, or are too expensive, a mixture of cracked corn and wheat only may be fed until the chicks are old enough to eat whole oats, when two parts may be added to the corn and wheat mixture.

A reasonable supply of fresh green feed is almost as necessary as grain for growing chicks. It allowed liberty they will get much of it for themselves, but if confined, or if in quarters where green feed is not abundant, it should be supplied regularly. Lawn grass, beet tops, cabbage and lettuce are excellent feeds. When chicks are confined to brood coops with runs, they should be placed on ground where the grass is green and tender, and as fast as it is eaten off, the coop and run should be moved to a place where the grass is plentiful. In addition to green feeds and grain, dry mash should be kept before growing chicks at all times after they are three or four weeks old. It is best to feed it in a hopper inside the building, or where it will not be exposed to rain or wet. Here is a good dry mash mixture: Two pounds corn meal, two pounds middlings, one pound oatmeal, two pounds wheat bran, one pound beef scrap and one-fourth pound charcoal. Grit and oyster shell also should be provided.

SMALL FLOCK IN BACK YARD

Two Hens for Each Member of Family Are Recommended as Best by Poultry Specialists.

The average novice can reasonably expect to get an average of at least 10 dozen eggs per hen per year from his small flock in the back yard. On the basis of two hens to each member of the family this will give 20 dozen eggs a year to each person, which amount is about halfway between the average of farm and city consumption. No backyard poultry keeper should be satisfied with less than this, say poultry specialists of the United States Department of Agriculture. Every backyard poultry keeper should try to get as much more as possible. To provide an egg a day for each person, two hens would have to lay 183 eggs each a year.

Saying Things

That Are Not So.

"When I realized what I had done," said a girl, speaking of an insignificant and inoffensive experience, to some friends, "I just thought I should die." She did not think so at all. She knows that she is now perfectly well. The words do not mean at all to her what they say. That is a bad thing, the use of words in other than their plain and obvious meaning. Even used metaphorically, the embarrassment she felt was purely superficial, if it existed at all. There was no remotest possibility of its ending fatally. Such talk, accordingly, was as false as it was silly.

One mischief of so much conversation nowadays is its superlatives and exaggeration. Everything is put into the most extreme and intemperate form. Such fashions of speech are pitifully harmful. They destroy the capacity to use English with vigor and accuracy. And they certainly affect the character, which inevitably feels the weakening influence of such constant verbal mendacity.

There are innumerable ways of expressing the truth. It is far more exhilarating to try to tell the exact truth than to fling everything into the indiscriminate superlative. Just how did we feel? Just what did we say or do? To represent exactly our feelings, our needs, our acts is a testing experience. It is more fun to try to tell the exact truth than to endanger the reliability of all language by putting everything into lurid headlines and superlative intensity.—Forward.

For His Own Sake.

Marion's eyes flashed indignantly as the sloping figure passed down the walk, limping and forlorn, to be sure, but the whole manner so sulky and disrespectful as to banish her pity. Jerry was an old-time pensioner of the family, broken and poor, but shiftless and far from grateful. He was inclined to neglect the few duties he could perform, and to receive benefits with querulous complaints because they were not larger.

"You always are so kind to him, Uncle Judge, and really he doesn't deserve it," said the girl. "I don't see how you can keep on treating him as you do when he doesn't appreciate it."

The judge smiled.

"My dear, his appreciation has nothing to do with the matter. It is not what he ought to be, but what I ought to be that must determine my conduct toward him. Whatever he may be, I cannot afford, for my own sake, to be other than considerate of his need, just to his real claims, patient with his infirmities and shortcomings. Little woman, it simplifies our whole code of dealing with our fellow-mortals if we settle it once for all that it is not so much what others have a right to claim from us, as what it is our duty to claim from ourselves that is to count."—Selected.

A Passion For Usefulness.

It is said the blue-visage Puritan preacher, Cotton Mather, who, by the way, had a ruddy-complexioned soul behind his countenance, that his whole life was dominated by one thought. It was the thought of fruitfulness. It is less Biblical to say usefulness, but it means much the same thing. We should be shrewd saints indeed if Puritan blueness should keep us from admiring the intensity, purity and devotion of the early New Englander. It was a passion with him to be useful. His signet ring bore the device of a fruit-bearing tree, with reference to the word in the first Psalm. When he was at the point of death and almost out of reach of the voices of those about his bed, his son asked him for a word to remember when he was dead—a happy father to have a son who could make a request like that—and the old man whispered: "Fruitfulness." The ruling passion was strong in death.

The life which leaves its mark upon the world for good must have a ruling passion like that.—Selected.

CABBAGE BEETLE DOES MUCH HARM

Insect Carefully Avoids Aerial Sprays Effective Against Many Other Pests.

BEST METHODS FOR CONTROL

Tobacco Dust Found to Be Most Effective of Repellents Tested—Arsenate of Lead Applications Found Satisfactory.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.) Evidently the Western cabbage flea beetle was not hatched to die by poison—at least by sprays of arsenicals found so effective against many crop insect pests. It may be driven away, however, by poisonous applications, and herein lies the methods of control discovered by specialists of the bureau of entomology, United States Department of Agriculture, whose experiments in combating the pest are described in Department Bulletin 902, "The Western Cabbage Flea Beetle," recently published. This insect is by no means confined to cabbage, but frequently does serious injury to turnips, radishes, mustard, kale and other cole crops, to sugar beets, table beets and under exceptional conditions to beans and peas.

BROOM CORN FIBER DEMAND

Crop Compared With Many Other Farm Products—Marketing Methods Neglected.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.) Broom corn is marketed today by practically the same methods in use 70 years ago, according to statements made by specialists of the bureau of markets, United States Department of Agriculture. It is a small crop, compared with many other farm products and, owing to its limited use, has failed to command the attention of the marketing agencies which have played such an important part in developing the highly efficient systems of the distribution of the more important products.

SWEET CLOVER IS SENSITIVE

Crop Seldom Makes Profitable Growth on Acid Soil—Proper Inoculation Important.

While it is claimed by some that sweet clover will grow on almost any kind of soil, it seldom makes a profitable growth on an acid soil. It is one of the most sensitive crops to this condition. An application of two tons of ground limestone or from two to three cubic yards of marl is usually necessary to secure a good crop on an acid soil. Proper inoculation is important.

Document of the Early Church.

The "Didache, or Teaching of the Twelve Apostles," was a didactic work for use in the early church. It was discovered by Brentanos at Constantinople and published in 1883. It had been written in Greek, about 1000 A. D. It is of great value for the study of organization, belief and worship of the early church and was held in high esteem. In it is a description of the two ways of life and death—in the form of rules for Christian conduct.

Cakes in many families are not considered, unless covered with some sort of frosting, and other families prefer their cakes with none. ### DAIRY

BEST DEVELOPMENT OF CALF

Good Supply of Milk or Skim Milk Most Important—Quantity Depends on Size and Age.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.) No part of dairy farming is more essential than the proper feeding of young calves. Likewise nothing is more important for the best development of calves than a good supply of milk and skim milk in the ration. In the past few years the surplus of these products has been utilized as human food in the form of condensed and powdered milk and skim milk. Reports recently received by the United States Department of Agriculture, however, point to a temporary surplus of these products during the flush season, due to decreased export outlet. Until this situation is adjusted, it would seem advisable to utilize the surplus milk and skim milk as feed for live stock.

In raising dairy calves most dairymen prefer that the calf remain with the cow for the first 48 hours. If it is taken away then the cow will be less nervous when she begins to be milked again for commercial purposes than if they are allowed to run together for a long period.

It is desirable that the calf be in a thrifty, vigorous condition when it is taught to drink. It may be left without food for 24 hours, at the end of which time it will be hungry, and with a little teaching will usually drink milk from the pail. Warm, fresh milk from the mother should be put in a clean pail and held near the floor in front of the calf, which will generally begin to nosed about the pail. Once it gets a taste of milk, it will usually drink without further trouble. Sometimes, however, more vigorous measures must be taken.

The quantity of milk fed to a calf depends upon its size and age, and to some extent on the kind and condition of the feed, but experiments by the Department of Agriculture indicate that about one pound a day should be fed for every ten pounds weight of the calf at birth. Many beginners make the mistake of letting the calf have as much milk as it wants. This would be all right if the calf were fed every two or three hours, as when it runs with the cow, but as it is impracticable ordinarily to feed more than two or three times a day, it is best to keep the quantity well below the capacity of the calf and not risk overfeeding.

For the first four days milk from the dam should be fed. After this the milk may be from any cow or cows in the herd, but preferably not from any that are nearly dry. Whole milk is preferable for the first two weeks, after which skim milk may be substituted, commencing with one pound a day and increasing to two or four pounds, depending on the vigor of the calf. No more skim milk should be fed than the calf will drink readily.

In most cases at the end of the third week the ration should be approximately one-half whole and one-half separate milk.

At the beginning of the fourth week from one-half to three-fourths of the ration should be separated milk. During the week the change should be continued until by the beginning of the fifth week only separated milk is fed.

In specially vigorous calves the change may be made a week earlier. After this time separated milk may be fed entirely, unless the calf is very delicate. The quantity fed can be gradually increased until 19 to 20 pounds a day are given. If milk is very plentiful, more may be fed, but otherwise it will not be found economical.

The time that milk should be discontinued depends upon its cost in relation to the value of the calf, its breed, size, vigor, etc. The season in which it reaches the age of six months, and the other feeds available at that time, must also be taken into consideration. Six months is probably a good average age at which to wean calves from milk. Where there is plenty of skim milk available this time may be lengthened. When the best of hay and silage and a good variety of grains are available, the calf may be weaned earlier than when such feeds are lacking. The season of good, succulent pasturage presents the best possible condition for weaning the calf.

Boon to the Armies. An English machine for the use of armless men consists of a table under which are pegs worked by the toes. The pegs are connected with artificial "arms" above the table, which do almost everything that can be done by human arms. Thus the patient can use a spoon, knife and fork, drink from a cup, pick a cigarette and place it in his mouth, open a box of matches, strike a match and light the cigarette, typewrite, turn the leaves of a book, play checkers, wash and dry his face and neck, etc.

SPRING CLEANING

By LYDIA LION ROBERTS.

(© 1911, by McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

Allan Warner pushed back his chair and rose abruptly from the table.

"That's a healthy meal for a grown man," he mumbled, "nothing but a lot of scraps."

"I can't help it," retorted Beatrice, her brown eyes snapping. "I've been house-cleaning all day, and I'm tired to death!"

"You look it," said Allan grimly, his gray eyes traveling from his wife's unduly dark hair to her flushed face and rumpled house-dress. "You used to keep yourself up and be full of fun at supper time and play to me evenings," he continued reproachfully, "and now you are always too tired and don't even change your dress."

"It is easy enough for you to talk," flashed Beatrice, "you can keep yourself spick and span all day in the office with no dirty work to do," and she glared resentfully at her husband's smooth, brown hair, clear brown skin and immaculate clothing. "We can't afford to have the cleaning done, and so I have to do it, and you can't expect me to do everything else besides."

"That! Spring house-cleaning again! Beautiful spring!" growled Allan. Beatrice frigidly cleared the table and then went to bed in haughty silence, while Allan read and rested and then wondered what made him such a grouchy lately.

The next morning Allan hustled up first and brought his wife a cup of coffee before she was out of bed.

"Thought you might like an extra rest," he smiled sheepishly. "Oh, that's dear of you," responded Beatrice, quickly, as she hugged him in affectionate remorse.

"I've had my breakfast, and you try and take it easy today," said Allan as he left for the train.

"Now, isn't that just like a man?" thought Beatrice, as she began to dress. "There is so much to be done; curtains to iron, paint to clean and windows to wash. Oh dear! I get so tired and cross. In all our five years of married life we have never quarreled so much as we have lately. Allan is so unreasonable sometimes, and I can't bear to have our nice new home get dirty, but this house-cleaning takes the heart out of me."

A part of a verse she had once read came suddenly to her mind: "Yes, clean your house—and clean your heart." "I wonder if I housecleaned my heart what I'd do? I suspect I'd throw away some selfishness and envy, and scrub out some stubbornness, and iron the wrinkles out of my patience and sympathy. Then I'd polish my musical talent and make the rooms all shining with the brushes of tenderness and love."

"I'm hungry at the moment," Allan declared, "I'll try a change," she finally decided. "I don't need to get all my hard work done at once, anyway. I've been too much the housekeeper and not enough the home-mother of this family."

Allan had been through a trying day, for orders had gone astray, his best clerk away and inefficiency causing trouble. He sighed with relief as he started for home, and then his spirits sank.

"No rest for the wicked," he groaned inwardly. "This is house-cleaning time and it's 'pickups' for me again, I suppose. Well, it's up to me to smile and bear it."

He squared his shoulders and whistled loudly as he ran up the steps of his pretty suburban cottage. The door opened quickly and Beatrice said smilingly: "Hello, honey, I was watching for you. Isn't it a lovely spring evening?"

Allan looked at her in pleased surprise. Her wavy black hair was prettily coiled with little curls tempting kisses around her ears. Her brown eyes sparkled and her cheeks glowed faintly pink and cool. Her green and white dress was one that he especially admired, and a crisp, ruffled apron swung saucily as she went into the dining room.

"Muffins tonight, dearie," she said, cheerily, as she brought in the supper. Allan sighed with satisfaction at the taste of the hot muffins and juicy steak. The silver shone, the dainty china glistened there was a vase of jonquils in the center of the table and opposite him his wife talked merrily of the news of the day.

"There's no place like home," he declared, appreciatively.

"I'll pack the dishes and play to you awhile," said Beatrice, after her husband had eaten so much that he had to kiss the cook.

Allan leaned back comfortably in his favorite chair, listening in perfect enjoyment as Beatrice played piece after piece they both loved.

"Let's sing," he suggested, finally, and got up to stand beside her at the piano.

"This is like old times," he exclaimed boyishly. "I feel about twenty and you look like sixteen again. What has happened, anyway? Have you found the fountain of youth, or been left a fortune?"

"Neither, silly," laughed Beatrice, happily. "Only I decided to do less house-cleaning and more heart-cleaning every spring."

"Spring, beautiful spring, when my wife beats everything," proudly exclaimed Allan, and kissed her enthusiastically.

Consoling. Landlady (to jilted maiden)—Now don't you be downhearted, dearie. You'll get over it. Why, look at me. I was jilted by three fellows and two bunch of promises cases, but bless me, I've lived to bury a couple of husbands.—London Tit-Bits.

"Instead of putting off painting this fall, Joe, let's put it on!"

It's always cheaper to paint before its needed, than afterward. Takes less paint. Costs less to do the painting.

Fall weather is ideal for painting. Sun not too hot. Dries slower and will last longer. No pecky flies to disfigure it.

Painters, too, are not so rushed, and will spend more time on the work.

And when you buy your paint don't begrudge the few cents difference between a cheap paint and a paint that's cheap. The cheap paint isn't cheap no matter what its price.

The paint that's cheapest is cheap because it goes farther and costs less to make it go. Such a paint is Lowe Brothers. Besides, it lasts longer and looks better as long as it lasts.

Come in and ask for booklet, "Figure Your Painting Costs With a Brush—Not a Pencil." It's free. So is the color card.

Remember The Girl

HUNDREDS of young women are busy in our many central offices in Maryland, putting up telephone connections. Day after day, and night after night, the work goes on. The little lights on the switchboard never cease to blink.

Many of these calls are of the gravest importance. Some are comparatively trivial. But each call must be answered and completed as it comes in. There is no way to pick out and speed up the important ones. Business calls, social calls — they all demand the operator's attention.

The operator is giving loyal and cheerful service and anything that you may do to help her give you better service will be appreciated.

Telephone Heroines.

By Dr. William E. Barton.

One of the incidental points which I have noticed in several stories of calamity in the history of the telephone girl. A fire breaks out in a high office building. The girl at the switchboard calls up every office and tells the occupants to get out.

A dam breaks, and a flood rushes down the valley. The telephone girls stick to their posts and send word ahead, and many lives are saved.

A burglar comes in the night; a frightened woman calls up the police station but before she gets in her call, the burglar strikes her senseless. The telephone girl intuitively knows the meaning of the interrupted call and tells the police where the trouble is.

Such things as these I remember to have read.

I do not know of a town where the people do not complain of the telephone service.

In common with my fellow men, I, too, have seasons of impatience because the service is not better.

But every now and then I consider how wonderful it is that the service is as good as it is.

I read how our boys in France broke out into cheers when the first contingent of American telephone girls arrived. I cheered with them.

I have used the telephone in many foreign countries, and can testify that in comparison with service there, the American telephone girl is an angel.

She has a pleasant voice. She is habitually courteous. She is resourceful. If once in a long time her job gets on her nerves, so also does mine.

I stood a few days ago beside the central operator in a large railway station at a time when trains were coming in in considerable number, and many people were waiting telephone connections in a hurry.

I was impressed by her quiet, courteous demeanor, her voice that did not rise, and the rapidity with which she did her work.

She was doubtless above the average telephone girl, and had a more responsible position than most of them; but she is not the only one of her kind.

Let me suggest that we all try to be a little more patient and courteous toward the telephone girl.

In the first place, I think she deserves it. In the next place, I think it will improve the service.

MT. PLEASANT.

There will be Sunday School and preaching, Sunday, at the usual hours. We will have a new preacher. Everybody invited.

Mr. and Mrs. Willie Beauchamp spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. Clay Powell.

Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Rayne visited Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Massey, near Willards.

Mrs. C. F. Hammond spent Saturday with her sister, Mrs. Charles Perdue, to help nurse her little child, who is very ill with infantile paralysis.

Mr. and Mrs. Clyde Hammond spent Sunday at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Wilmer Brittingham, of Libertytown.

Mr. G. W. Truitt, of Willards, has put some nice birds called pheasants on his farm known as the Gattie Dennis Farm, along the river. We hope the hunters will all know them this fall, and not kill them.

Anyone wishing a copy of "The Anthem Angelic," a book of twenty-six sermons by the late Rev. William Henry Bancroft, can obtain it at this office for the low price of fifty cents—less than the cost of manufacturing. Some damaged volumes cheaper yet. These books are beautifully bound, and written in the characteristic style of the author, with an excellent full-page likeness of him.

The sermons were all delivered in Buckingham Presbyterian Church, except one, which was preached in the Methodist Church to both congregations after his own church was burned.

It is well worth the price, even as a souvenir of the Berlin of twenty years ago.

A Literal Rendering. M. I. Holland. A Scotch lady gave her servant very particular instructions regarding visitors, explaining that they were to be shown into the drawing-room, and no doubt used the Scotchism, "Carry any ladies that call upstairs." On the arrival of the first visitor Donald was eager to show his strict attention to the mistress's orders. Two ladies came together, and Donald, seizing one in his arms, said to the other, "Bide ye there till I come for ye," and, in spite of her struggles and remonstrances, ushered the terrified visitor into his mistress's presence in this unthought fashion.—Life.

STATE CAPITAL

Governor Ritchie To Cut Tangle.

Annapolis.—Governor Ritchie's aid may be invoked to cut the Gordian knot into which the relations of the Maryland Racing Commission, the four one-mile race tracks of the State, Bedwell and Shilling, and the New York Jockey Club have apparently managed to entangle themselves. At least this was the remedy suggested in quarters whose opportunity for watching developments, more and more involved with the passage of time, has been excellent.

The approach of the autumn racing season, which begins September 21 at Havre de Grace, has rendered the controversy involving Bedwell and Shilling once more acute. The significance of this controversy is regarded by many persons as not so much whether Bedwell shall train and Shilling shall ride in Maryland as whether the Maryland Racing Commission shall be the supreme authority over racing matters in this State.

The Racing Commission has granted licenses to Bedwell and Shilling. At the same time the Commission granted these licenses it passed a resolution calling attention to a clause in a ruling by Attorney General Armstrong to the effect that the tracks, as private plants, do not have to recognize the licenses issued by the Racing Commission.

DIRECTS JURY TO INVESTIGATE KLAN

Judge Sheppard, Calling Attention to Expose, Denounces Klux as Menace to Society.

New York.—The first official move taken by the government against the Ku Klux Klan was directed by Judge William B. Sheppard of the United States District Court for the Southern District of New York in his charge to the September Federal Grand Jury. Judge Sheppard in his address laid special stress on the activities of the Klan and urged the jurors to inquire into the conduct of its members, no matter how powerful they may be, politically, socially or financially.

In an interview, following his charge to the Grand Jury, he commended the New York World for its revelations, and declared that unless public sentiment created against the Ku Klux Klan, wide-spread outbreaks of fanatical outlaws, it may prove a serious danger to this government as Bolshevism has to Russia. Charging the jurors, Judge Sheppard said:

In all matters which may be presented by the district attorney or of which you may have personal knowledge, the Grand Jury should proceed fairly and impartially to ascertain whether any offense is committed against the Federal laws, and you are not to be made the vehicle of prejudice or hatred. On the other hand, it is your province to scrutinize and inquire closely into the conduct of individuals, associations of men, no matter how eminent or powerful they may be, politically, socially or financially.

The law, to be effectual, is made for all classes, races and conditions of men, and so long as the law is fairly and impartially administered the people will have respect and confidence in the courts of the land and abide with faith that justice will be administered without respect to persons, and thus the supremacy of the law will be maintained and revered.

JOSEPH BIGGS
Centenarian Who Is Seeking Gayety

Joseph Biggs of Anson, Tex., is one of five Texans who has passed the century mark. He is a veteran of the Mexican war, and until recently was a cattleman. Early in 1921 he turned over the cattle ranch to his children and moved into Anson where he could find the mystery lacking on his ranch.

More Consoling.
"Bless yer, ma'am," said the laundress, whose customer had brought back linen stained that ought to have been white. "Bless yer! You can't expect everything perfect here below. Why, if it was, there wouldn't be nothing to look forward to in 'heaven!'"—London Answers.

Conscience.
That uncomfortable possession, a conscience, holds us back from many a coveted delight, saves us from many a sin, and drives us in many a path we would never be good enough or unselfish enough to take if it by its chilling voice would let us alone. We give ourselves too much credit for our good behavior when we forget that our upbringing has brought into our house of life a personality we cannot disobey if we would live at peace.

Mr. Cobbles Knows.
"I'll have to fire that new hired man," said Mr. Cobbles. "What's he been doing?" asked Mrs. Cobbles. "Nothing." That's just the trouble. I found him reading a book when he oughter been at work. "Maybe it was a book about farmin', father." "No, it wasn't. It was a poetry book. There ain't no poetry in farmin'—there ain't no information in poetry—'ere tells how to lift a mortgage."
