INSURRECTION OF THE FIFTH OF OCTOBER.

ATTACK ON THE PALACE OF VERSAILLES. The American Quarterly Review, which has just been issued from the press at Philadelphia, contains an able summary of the Preliminary Sketch of the French Revolution, prefixed by Sir Walter Scott, to his forthcoming Life of Napoleon Bonaparte. The editor of the Review having been permitted, by the proprietors of that work, to select for publication some of its most interesting passages, we take the opportunity to lay before our readers the account which a gifted and eloquent historian has presented, of the terrible attack of the populace on the palace of Versailles on the 5th of October, which resulted in the forcible transfer of the royal family to a nominal residence in, but an actual imprisonment at, the Tuilleries in Paris.—We regret that our limits will not permit us to publish the whole of this sketch, as it is contained in the Review, and which is every way worthy of its distinguished author. The most material parts of it, however, are given below, and will frequently remind the reader of a kindred description of a similar scene, by the same hand in the admirable tale of the Heart of Mid Lothian.

After speaking of the immediate causes of this terrible eruption, he goes on to state:

That of the 5th of October, 1789, was of a singular description, the insurgents being chiefly of the female sex. The market women, Dames aux Halles, as they are called half unsexed by the masculine nature of their employments, and entirely so by the ferocity of their manners, had figured early in the revolution. With these were allied and associated most of the worthless and barbarous of their own sex such disgraceful specimens of humanity as serve but to show in what a degenerated state it may be found to exist. Females of this description began to assemble early in the morning, in large groups, with the cries for 'bread,' which so easily roused a starving metropolis. There were observed amongst them many men disguised as women, and they compelled all the females they met to go along with them. They marched to the Hotel de Ville, broke boldly through several squadrons of the National Guard, who were drawn up in front of that building for its defence, and were with difficulty dissuaded from burning the records it contained. They next seized a magazine of arms, with three or four pieces of cannon, and were joined by a miscellaneous rabble, armed with pikes, scythes and similar instruments, who called themselves the Conquerors of the Bastille. The still increasing multitude re-echoed the cry of 'Bread, bread!—to Versailles to Versailles!'

The National Guard were now called out in force, but speedily showed their officers that they were too infected with the humour of the times, and as much indisposed to subordination as the mob to disperse which they were summoned. Lafayette put himself at their head not to give his own but to receive their orders. They refused to act against women, who they said were starving and in their turn demanded to be led to Versailles, to de throne—such was their language—the king, who was a driver, and place the crown on the head of his son.' Lafayette hesitated, implored, explained but he had as yet to learn the situation of a revolutionary general. 'Is it not strange,' said one of his soldiers, who seemed quite to understand the military relation of officer and private, on such an occasion, 'is it not strange that Lafayette pretends to command the people, when it is his part to receive orders from them?'

Soon afterwards an order arrived from the Assembly of the Commune of Paris enjoining the commandant's march, upon his own report that it was impossible to withstand the will of the people. He marched accordingly in good order, and at the head of a large force of the National Guard, about four or five hours after the departure of the mob, who, while he waited in a state of indecision, were already far on their way to Versailles.

It does not appear that the King, or his ministers had any information of these hostile movements.—Assuredly, there could not have been a royalist in Paris willing to hazard a horse or a groom to carry such intelligence where the knowledge of it must have been so important. The leading members of the Assembly assembled at Versailles, were better informed. 'These gentlemen' said Barbotanne, looking at the part of the hall where the clergy usually sat, 'with more lights—they shall have lanterns, they may rely upon it.' Mirabeau went behind the chair of Mounier, the president. 'Paris is marching upon us,' he said.—'I know not what you mean,' said Mounier. 'Believe me or not, all Paris is marching upon us—dissolve the sitting.' 'I never hurry the deliberations,' said Mounier.—'Then feign illness,' said Mirabeau, 'go to the palace, tell them what I say and give me for authority. But there is not a minute to lose—Paris marches upon us.' 'So much the better,' answered Mounier, 'we will be a republic the sooner.' Mounier must be supposed to speak ironically, & in allusion not to his own opinions, but to Mirabeau's revolutionary tenets.—Another account of this singular conversation states his answers to have been, 'All the better. If the mob kill all of us—remark, I say all of us, it will be the better for the country.'

It was now night, and the armed rabble of both sexes showed no intention of departing or breaking up. On the contrary they bivouacked, after their own manner upon the parade, where the soldiers usually mustered. There they kindled large fires, ate, drank, sang, caroused and occasionally discharged their fire arms. Scuffles arose from time to time, one or two of the Gardes de Corps had been killed and wounded in the quarrel, which the rioters had endeavoured to fasten on them; besides which this devoted corps had sustained a volley from their late guests, the National Guard of Versailles. The horse of a Garde de Corps which fell into the hands of these female demons, was killed, torn in pieces, and eaten half raw and half roasted. Every thing seemed tending to a general engagement when late at night the drum announced the approach of Lafayette at the head of his civic army, which moved slowly, but in good order.

A band of the rioters found means to penetrate into the palace about three in the morning, through a gate which was left unlocked and unguarded. They rushed to the Queen's apartment and bore down the few Gardes de Corps who hastened to her defence. The sentinel knocked at the door of her bed-chamber, called to her to escape, and then gallantly exposed himself to the fury of the murderers. His single opposition was almost instantly overcome, and he himself left for dead. Over his bleeding body they forced their way into the Queen's apartment but their victim, reserved for farther and worse woes, had escaped by a secret passage into the chamber of the King, while the assassins, bursting in, stabbed the bed she had just left with pikes and swords.

The outside of the palace was still besieged by the infuriated mob, who demanded with hideous cries, and exclamations the most barbarous and obscene, to see the Austrian, as they called the Queen. The unfortunate Princess appeared on the balcony, with one of her children in each hand. A voice from the crowd called out, 'No children!' as if on purpose to deprive the mother of that appeal to humanity, which might move the hardest heart. Maria Antoinette, with a force of mind worthy of Maria Theresa, her mother, pushed her children back into the rooms, and turning her face to the tumultuous multitude which tossed and roared beneath, brandishing their pikes and guns with the wildest attitudes of rage, the reviled, persecuted and denounced Queen stood before them, her arms folded on her bosom, with a noble air of courageous resignation. The secret reason of this summons—the real cause of repelling the children—could only be to afford a chance of some desperate hand among the crowd executing the threats which resounded on all sides. Accordingly, a gun was actually levelled, but one of the bystanders struck it down, for the passions of the mob had taken an opposite turn and astonished at Maria Antoinette's noble presence, and graceful firmness of demeanor, there arose, almost in spite of themselves, a general shout of Viva la Reine.

But if the insurgents, or rather those who prompted them, missed their first point, they did not also lose their second. A cry arose, 'To Paris!' at first uttered by a solitary voice, but gathering strength, until the whole multitude shouted 'To Paris—to Paris!' The cry of these bloodthirsty bacchanals, such as they had that night shown themselves, was it seems, considered as the voice of the people, and as such Lafayette, neither renounced himself, nor permitted the King to interpose a moment's delay in yielding obedience to: nor was any measure taken to put some appearance even of decency on the journey, or to disguise its real character, of a triumphant procession of the sovereign people, after a complete victory over their nominal monarch.

The carriages of the royal family were placed in the middle of an immeasurable column, consisting partly of Lafayette's soldiers, partly of the revolutionary rabble whose march had preceded his, amounting to several thousand men and women of the lowest and most desperate description, intermingling in groups amongst the bands of French guards, and civic soldiers, whose discipline could not enable them to preserve even a semblance of order.

Thus they rushed along, howling their songs of triumph. The harbingers of the march bore the two bloody heads of the murdered Gardes de Corps, paraded on pikes, at the head of the column, as the emblems of their prowess and success. The rest of this body, worn down by fatigue, most of them despoiled of their arms, and many without hats, anxious for the sake of the royal family, and harassed with apprehensions for themselves, were dragged like captives in the midst of the mob, while the drunken females around them bore aloft in triumph their arms, their belts, and their hats. These wretches stained with the blood in which they had bathed themselves, were now singing songs, of which the burthen bore—'We bring you the baker, his wife, and the little apprentice,' &c. if the presence of the unhappy royal family, with the little power they now possessed had been in itself a charm against scarcity. Some of these Amazons rode upon the cannon, which made a formidable part of the procession. Many of them were mounted on the horses of the Gardes de Corps, some in masculine fashion, others enroupe. All the muskets and pikes which attended this immense cavalcade, were garnished, as if in triumph, with oak boughs, and women carried long poplar branches in their hands, which gave the column, so grotesquely composed in every respect, the appearance of a moving grove. Scarce a circumstance was omitted which could tender this entrance into the capital more insulting to the King's feelings; more degrading to the royal dignity. After six hours of dishonour and agony, the unfortunate Louis was brought to the Hotel de Ville, where Bailly, then mayor, complimented him upon the 'beau jour,' the 'splendid day,' which restored the monarch of France to his capital; assured him that order, peace, and all the gentler virtues, were about to revive in the country under his royal eye, and that the King would henceforth become powerful through the people, the people happy through the king;—and 'what was the truest of all,' that as Henry IV had entered Paris by means of re-conquering his people, Louis XVI had done so, because his people, had re-conquered their King. His wounds salved with this lip-comfort, the unhappy and degraded Prince was at length permitted to retire to the Palace of the Tuilleries, which long uninhabited, and almost unfurnished, yawned upon him like the tomb, where alone he at length found repose.

In consequence of the low price of Cotton, some of our agriculturalists, we learn, are about turning their attention to the cultivation of the vine and silk. We have no doubt of the suitability of our climate for both, and the limited experiments which have been made, prove it. The culture of silk is attended with many advantages peculiar to it, which if known, might induce numbers to engage in it. It requires no capital; the poorest man who could procure silk worms and access to a few mulberry trees, may make silk. All the necessary labor may be performed by children or superannuated persons. A crop of silk is the work but of 40 days, the first twenty of which occasion but little trouble. As a number of Mulberry trees grow spontaneously, in many parts of the State, it is evident they may be multiplied at pleasure by culture. It is a tree easily propagated, and known to possess the property of enriching the soil where it is planted. Its berries are good food for hogs and poultry, and it yields leaves large enough to feed with, in three or four years from sowing the seed. To the rich, the culture of silk will be a pleasing amusement, and to the poor a subsistence.—Raleigh Register.

The success of the High School for Girls in New York, equals the expectations of its most sanguine advocates. No establishment of the kind has edified us more in its general aspect and routine. In the three great divisions, comprising several hundred female children of respectable parents—the monitorial system is applied with remarkable order, facility and advantage—Besides the usual rudiments of the best English education, needle work of every kind, French, and drawing are effectually taught; and it has been found by the intelligent Ladies who preside over the School, and who have had much experience in the common academies, that nothing is lost in this institution with respect to manners and morals. Notwithstanding the number of the pupils, the discipline may in fact be such as to produce the habit of greater propriety and delicacy of demeanor. We mention these particulars now, merely to excite public attention to the subject; sincerely wishing that the good example of New York in the formation of the Female High School, may be followed here as readily and beneficially as it has been in the case of the High School for boys.

A GIANT TREE.
The following is given in the Reading Chronicle, as the dimensions &c. of a popular tree which was felled a short time since in Berks County; Height, 117 feet—circumference at the butt end, 20 feet 7 inches, or 6 feet 9 inches diameter—the length from the butt to first limb, 64 feet—7 cords of fire wood were cut from the top exclusive of the trunk, which, together with the bark which has been taken away without measurement it is calculated would make at least 15 cords more, being a total of 22 cords, the tree being perfectly sound, with the exception of a very small decay in the heart, where it was cut from the stump. Its age, according to the circles on the end of the trunk, is 292 years, without an allowance for the decayed part, which is all probability, would increase its age to 300 years. This was the largest solid tree that we ever saw or heard of, and when standing among the other trees with which it was surrounded, it was indeed a forest of the forest. As it was in perfect health and signs, it is a pity that its owner, Mr. John Moser, suffered it to be destroyed, as it would undoubtedly have continued to grow for ages yet to come. Can any one inform us of its equal?

And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That when a person held to labor or service in any of the United States or in either of the territories thereof, under the laws thereof, shall escape into this commonwealth, the person to whom such labor or service is due, his or her duly authorized agent or attorney, constituted in writing, is hereby authorized to apply to any judge, justice of the peace, or alderman; who on such application, supported by the oath or affirmation of such claimant or authorized agent, or attorney as aforesaid; that the said fugitive hath escaped from his or her service, or from the service of the person for whom he is duly constituted agent or attorney, shall issue his warrant under his hand and seal, and directed to the sheriff or any constable of the proper city or county, authorizing and empowering said sheriff or constable to arrest and seize the said fugitive who shall be named in said warrant and to bring said fugitive before a judge of the proper county, which said warrant shall be in the form or to the effect following:—

"State of Pennsylvania, _____ county, ss. The Commonwealth of Pennsylvania to the sheriff or any constable of _____ county, greeting: Whereas it appears by the oath or solemn affirmation of _____, that _____ was held to labor or service to _____ of _____ county, in the state of _____, and that the said _____ hath escaped from the labor and service of the said _____, You are therefore commanded to arrest and seize the body of the said _____, if he be found in your county, and bring him forthwith before the person issuing the warrant; if a judge (or if a justice of the peace or alderman) before a judge of the court of common pleas or of the district court as the case may be, of your proper county or recorder of a city, so that the truth of the matter may be inquired into, and the said _____ be dealt with as the constitution of the United States, and the laws of this commonwealth directs. Witness our said judge or alderman or justice as the case may be, at _____ this _____ day of _____ A. D. one thousand eight hundred and _____. By virtue of such warrant, the person named therein may be arrested by the proper sheriff or constable to whom the same shall be delivered within the proper city or county."

Sec. 4. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That no judge, justice of the peace, or alderman, shall issue a warrant on the application of any agent or attorney as provided in the said third section, unless the said agent or attorney shall in addition to his own oath or affirmation, produce the affidavit of the claimant of the fugitive taken before and certified by a justice of the peace or other magistrate authorized to administer oaths in the state or territory in which such claimant shall reside, and accompanied by the certificate of the authority of such justice or other magistrate, to administer oaths signed by the clerk or prothonotary, and authenticated by the seal of a court of record in such state or territory, which affidavit shall state the said claimant's title to the service of such fugitive, and also the name, age and description of the person of such fugitive.

Sec. 5. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That it shall be the duty of any judge, justice of the peace or alderman; when he grants or issues any warrant under the provisions of the third section of this act to make a fair record on his docket of the same in which he shall enter the name and place of residence of the person on whose oath or affirmation the said warrant may be granted; and also, if an affidavit shall have been produced under the provisions of the fourth section of this act, the name and place of residence of the person making such affidavit, and the age and description of the person of the alleged fugitive contained in such affidavit, and shall within ten days thereafter file a certified copy thereof in the office of the clerk of the court of general quarter sessions of the peace or mayor's court of the proper city or county. And any judge, justice of the peace or alderman who shall refuse or neglect to comply with the provisions of this section, shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor in office, and shall on conviction thereof be sentenced to pay at the discretion of the court any sum not exceeding one thousand dollars; one half to the party prosecuting for the same, and the other half to the commonwealth;— And that any sheriff or constable receiving and executing the said warrant shall without unnecessary delay carry the person arrested before the judge according to the exigency of the warrant; and any sheriff or constable who shall refuse or wilfully neglect, so to do, shall on conviction thereof be sentenced to pay at the discretion of the court any sum not exceeding five hundred dollars; one half to the party prosecuting for the same, and the other half to the commonwealth; or shall also be sentenced to imprisonment at hard labor for a time not exceeding six months or both.

Sec. 6. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That the said fugitive from labor or service, when so arrested shall be brought before a judge as aforesaid, and upon proof to the satisfaction of such judge, that the person so seized or arrested, doth under the laws of the state or territory, from which he or she fled, owe service or labor to the person claiming him or her; it shall be the duty of such judge to give a certificate thereof to such claimant, his or her duly authorized agent or attorney, which shall be sufficient warrant for removing the said fugitive to the state or territory from which he or she fled.— Provided, That the oath of the owner or owners, or other person interested shall in no case be received in evidence before the judge on the hearing of the case.

Sec. 7. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That when the fugitive shall be brought before the judge agreeably to the provisions of this act, and either party allege and prove to the satisfaction of the said judge, that he or she is not prepared for trial, and have testimony material to the matter in controversy than can be obtained in a reasonable time, it shall and may be lawful unless security satisfactory to the said judge be given for the appearance of the said fugitive on a day certain, to commit the said fugitive to the common jail for safe keeping, there to be detained at the expense of the owner, agent or attorney for such time as the said judge shall think reasonable and just, and to a day certain, when the said fugitive shall be brought before him by habeas corpus in the court-house of the proper county or in term time at the chamber of the said judge for final hearing and adjudication: Provided, That if the adjournment of the hearing be requested by the claimant, his agent or attorney, such adjournment shall not be granted unless the said claimant his agent or attorney, shall give security satisfactory to the judge to appear and prosecute his claim on the day to which the hearing shall be adjourned: Provided, That on the hearing last mentioned, if the judge committing the said fugitive or taking the security as aforesaid, should be absent, sick or otherwise unable to attend, it shall be the duty of either of the other judges on notice given to attend to the said hearing and to decide thereon.

Sec. 8. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That the officers which may or shall be employed in the execution of the duties of this act, shall be allowed the same fees for service of process that sheriffs within this commonwealth are now allowed for serving process in criminal cases, and two dollars and fifty cents per day for each and every day necessarily spent in performing the duties enjoined on them by this act, to be paid by the owner, agent or attorney immediately on the performance of the duties aforesaid.

Sec. 9. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That no alderman or justice of the peace of this commonwealth shall have jurisdiction or take cognizance of the case of any fugitive from labor from any of the United States or territories under a certain act of congress, passed on the twelfth day of February, one thousand eight hundred and ninety three, entitled "An act respecting fugitives from justice, and persons escaping from the service of their masters;" nor shall any alderman or justice of the peace of this commonwealth issue or grant any certificate or warrant of removal of any such fugitive from labor as aforesaid, except in the manner and to the effect provided in the third section of this act, upon the application, affidavits or testimony of any person or persons whatsoever under the said act of congress, or under any other law, authority or act of the congress of the U. States; and if any alderman or justice of the peace of this commonwealth, shall contravene the provisions of this act; take cognizance or jurisdiction of the case of any such fugitive as aforesaid, except in the manner herein before provided, or shall grant or issue any certificate or warrant of removal as aforesaid, then and in either case he shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor in office and shall on conviction thereof be sentenced to pay at the discretion of the court any sum not less than five hundred dollars nor exceeding one thousand dollars; the one half to the party prosecuting for the same, and the other half to the use of this commonwealth.

Sec. 10. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That it shall be the duty of the judge or recorder of any court of record of this commonwealth when he grants or issues any certificate or warrant of removal of any negro or mulatto claimed to be a fugitive from labor to the state or territory from he or she fled in pursuance of an act of congress, passed on the twelfth day of February, one thousand seven hundred and ninety three, entitled "An act respecting fugitives from justice and persons escaping from the service of their masters;" and of this act, to make a fair record of the same in which he shall enter the name, age and sex and a general description of the person of the negro or mulatto for whom he shall grant such certificate or warrant of removal, together with the evidence and the name of places of residence of the witnesses and the party claiming such negro or mulatto and shall within ten days thereafter file a certified copy thereof in the office of the clerk of the court of general quarter sessions of the peace or mayor's court of the city or county in which he may reside.

Sec. 11. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That nothing in this act contained shall be construed as a repeal or alteration of any part of an act of assembly passed on the first day of March, one thousand seven hundred and eighty eight, entitled "An act for the gradual abolition of slavery;" except the eleventh section of said act which is hereby repealed and supplied, nor of any part of an act of assembly passed on the twenty eighth day of March, one thousand seven hundred and eighty eight, entitled "An act to explain and amend an act for the gradual abolition of slavery;" except the seventh section of this last mentioned act which is hereby supplied and repealed.

I certify that the foregoing is a copy of an act passed at the present session by both branches of the legislature of the commonwealth of Pennsylvania. In testimony whereof, I have hereunto set my hand at Harrisburg, the 23d March, 1826.

FRANCIS R. SHUNK, Clerk Of the House of Representatives.

We understand the following Circulars, have been forwarded to the levy courts of the several counties in this State.

DEPARTMENT OF PUBLIC INSTRUCTION.

Annapolis, March 15th, 1827.

SIR, The law of Public Instruction in Primary Schools, having been adopted by a large majority of the people, it has become important to the great interests of the State, that the earliest measures should be taken to accelerate the organization of the system, with a view to the speediest practical commencement of its beneficial operations. The Superintendent, therefore, hastens to transmit the instruction, which have been deemed necessary to guide the commissioners in their first duty of dividing their county into a 'suitable and convenient number of School Districts;' and he respectfully requests that at your earliest convenience, you will convoke a special meeting of your Honorable Court, as authorized by the law, for the purpose of appointing such commissioners; and of delivering to them the said instructions, in order that they may proceed, forthwith, in the due discharge of their high duties.

With great respect, I have the honour to be, Sir, your very obedient servant, LITTLETON DENNIS TEACKLE, Superintendent of Public Instruction. To the Honourable Esquire President of the Levy Court of _____ County.

Department of Public Instruction.

Annapolis, March 15, 1827.

Instructions to the Commissioners of Primary Schools, relative to the division of their County into School Districts. In the performance of this duty you will pursue the tenor and spirit of the Act to provide for the public instruction, of youth, in Primary Schools, throughout this State, passed at December Session, 1825; chapter 162; which, in section 5, requires that you, or a majority of you, shall divide your County into a 'suitable and convenient number of School Districts;' in doing which you will have regard to existing school houses, where such there be, as far as practicable; in order that the charge upon the resident inhabitants, especially in the first establishment of the system, may not exceed what is absolutely and indispensably necessary. And, although the extent of five miles square, has been assumed as convenient for such districts, as a general rule, you are not to be governed by that assumption exclusively, but will yield to localities, & circumstances. In sections of sparse population it may be proper to form the districts equal to an area of six, seven, or eight miles square, whilst in more dense, or concentrated settlements, a smaller compass may be adopted—but it will, naturally, occur to you that the square will not be the most 'suitable, or convenient form;' and that in the absence of more palpable boundaries such as bays, rivers, creeks, mountains, or remarkable hills, roads, established fences, or other lines of demarcation, the most eligible marks of description may be the different dwellings, or places of public worship, or other houses, and distinguishing from house to house, around the school house as a common centre, reserving always that every dwelling without the line, which may have been omitted, or overlooked, and all such as may thereafter be erected, during the continuance of the district, shall, of right, belong to the nearest school house. In many cases, however, you will find it necessary to circumscribe a district by its natural limits, such as a small island, on which there may not be a sufficient number of children for the support of a school, and which cannot conveniently be attached to any adjacent district; in such cases, as the distribution of the public money will be in proportion to the number of children, it will be necessary, to enable the inhabitants to partake of the benefits of the law, for them to provide the residue of means to complete the salary of their teacher, or to graduate the duration of their school according to the amount distributed to them. And the like necessity will equally occur in every peninsula, or long neck of land, or district of sparse population; but such occurrences, it may be hoped, will be found rare.

Having finished the division of your County into a 'suitable, and convenient number of School Districts,' according to the best of your discretion and judgment, you will proceed to describe and number the same, and to deliver the description and number thereof, to the Clerk of your County Court, to be recorded as required by section 8 of the Act in question, for which purpose the public advertisements, herewith transmitted, have been prepared; and you will take care that not less than five of these notices be put up in the most public places of each of the said districts.

It is desired that the duties required by these instructions may be completed as soon as practicable, that the Trustees, and other officers of each respective corporation may be elected, that each and all may proceed harmoniously, & that the expected benefits may be commenced and realized with as little delay as possible—in all which the liberal spirit and patriotic zeal of your good people will be most worthily manifested.

The foregoing arrangements are necessarily required in anticipation of the essential appropriation, and assignment of means, for carrying the system into efficient, and beneficial operation; and that their completion and organization will produce an effect so ardently desired by all the friends of public instruction, cannot be questioned upon any just, or reasonable ground—in the mean time, the existing funds for free and County Schools, and the dividends arising from subsequent investments are yielding revenues, comparatively, greater than the means allotted by New York at the commencement of her system, and additional aid may be expected from the next Congress.

It may also be proper to remark that the amendments, which seemed to be, most generally, demanded; and the equal admission of the whole State, to a common participation of all the benefits of this munificence, were passed through the popular branch at the last session of the General Assembly; but the difficulties which arise in harmonizing the contrary of opinion, and adjusting the various details, were such as to protract a decision, to so late a period, that sufficient time was not allowed, to the other branch, for the deliberate consideration, and determination of that interesting concernment—being, however, thus matured, the matter will doubtless engage the early attention of the next convention of the legislature.

Your communications, through the President of your board, are respectfully requested, and every information which may be required will be cheerfully imparted. LITTLETON DENNIS TEACKLE, Superintendent of Public Instruction.

IMPORTANT FROM COLOMBIA.

By the schooner Eliza Piggot, Davis, arrived at Philadelphia, Mr. Sanderson, of the Coffee House, has received a letter dated Laguyra, March 13th, of which the following is an extract: "I enclose you the first copy of the 'Lira' a new paper, which it is intended to publish at Caracas. You will therein find that the Grand American Federation is spoken of, Bolivar's resignation is also therein. His resignation is, however, only to pave the way to place himself a step higher, as there is little doubt that four months will not elapse, before there will be a union of Peru, Colombia, and Bolivia, and Bolivar appointed President for life."

ABDICATION OF THE LIBERATOR.

HEAD QUARTERS, Caracas, Feb. 6, 1827.

To his Excellency the President of the honourable body of the Senate. Most Excellent Sir: In no former circumstances has the august authority of Congress been of such necessity to the republic as at this present period, in which every mind has been disturbed, and the whole nation agitated, by internal commotions. Called by your Excellency to take the oath of office as President of the Republic I arrived at the capital, whence I was speedily summoned to the departments of the ancient Venezuela.—From Bogota to this city I have issued decrees so important, that I make bold to declare it of the greatest moment that your Excellency should call the attention of Congress to them, and request that body, from me, to take them into their wise consideration. If I have overstepped the limits of my duty, I am willingly conscious of the fault, and I am ready to atone for it by the safety of my country. I was required having delayed my departure. When in Bogota I met intelligent people, to whom I declined to accept of the nation. For the office of the Republic upon me, which I me at liberty private life. overstepped the boundaries of my authority, the fault lies solely with me; but I willingly consecrate even my innocence to the safety of the Republic. This sacrifice was required of me, and I glory in not having delayed it.

When in Peru, an official notice brought me intelligence of my elevation, by the people, to the Presidency of the Republic. I declined to the Executive power the acceptance of the Chief Magistracy of the nation. For fourteen years have I filled the office of supreme head and President of the Republic; dangers forced this duty upon me, which, no longer existing, leave me at liberty to retire to the enjoyments of private life.

I beg of Congress to cast a regard upon the situation of Colombia, of America, and of the entire world: every thing seems to flatter us. There is not a Spaniard upon the American continent. Domestic peace has reigned in Colombia since the commencement of the present year. Many powerful nations recognise our political existence and some are joined to us in the bonds of amity and friendship. A large portion of the American States are in alliance with Colombia, and Spain is at present menaced by Great Britain. What more can we hope for? The womb of time can alone contain the immensity of happiness which has been prepared for us by a bountiful Providence, in whom is our only reliance. As for me, suspicious of a tyrannical usurpation rest upon my name, and disturb the hearts of the Columbians, I cannot consider me without a secret dread, because the pages of history tell them that all those placed in similar situations have been ambitious. In vain do I wish to propose the example of WASHINGTON as my defence; and, in fact, one or many exceptions can effect nothing against the experience of the world which has always been oppressed by the powerful. I sigh, between the distresses of my fellow citizens, and the sentence which awaits me in the judgement of posterity. I myself am aware that I am not free from ambition; and therefore, I desire to extricate myself from the grasp of that fury to free my fellow citizens from all inquietude, and to secure after my death that reputation which I may be entitled to for my zeal in the cause of liberty. With such sentiments, I renounce, again and again, the Presidency of the Republic. Congress and the nation must receive this abdication as irrevocable. Nothing will be able to oblige me to continue in the public service, to which I have already dedicated my entire life. And now that the triumph of liberty has placed this sublime right within the enjoyment of every one, shall I alone be deprived of it? No: The Congress and the Colombian people are just; they will not compel me to an ignominious desertion. Few are the days which now remain to me; more than two thirds of my existence have already passed; let me, therefore be permitted to await a peaceful death in the obscure and silent retreat of my paternal residence. My sword and my heart will, nevertheless be always with Colombia, and my last sighs will ascend to heaven in prayers for her continued prosperity.

I pray, therefore, Congress and my fellow citizens, to confer on me the title of a private citizen.

God guard your Excellency.

SIMON BOLIVAR.

Easton Gazette.

EASTON, Md.

SATURDAY EVENING, APRIL 7.

We lay before our readers to day the important laws passed by the states of Pennsylvania & Delaware at the instance of the deputation sent by the General Assembly of this state, the session before last, upon the subject of absconding slaves.

It is very important that slave holders in Maryland should be possessed of these laws that they may proceed in exact conformity to them when necessary.

We publish the Laws to day and will give the report of the Deputation in our next, which we have no doubt will be found interesting.—It affords a succinct view of their whole proceeding & is in all respects a satisfactory state paper.

ALTERED NOTES.—Notes of the Farmers Bank of Virginia, the mother Bank on which are the heads of Washington and Jefferson, have been altered from five to fifty dollars. The figure five at each end, and the word five in the body, have been extracted, and large figures 50 and the word fifty, inserted by a stamp and neatly executed. The small eagle between the signatures of the President and Cashier, has also been taken out and the figures 50 stamped in its place. The public may guard against imposition by noticing, that neither of the heads above mentioned are on the borders of the genuine fifty dollar notes of the Mother Bank; the borders of which have the denomination at the one end and the name of the bank at the other.

Reward for the Discovery of Morgan, &c.

Governor Clinton has transmitted to the committee at Batavia the following Proclamation, offering a reward of one thousand dollars for the discovery of Morgan, if alive, and if murdered, two thousand dollars for the discovery of the offender or offenders, and a free pardon to any accomplice or co-operator who shall make a full discovery of the offender or offenders.

Proclamation by De Witt Clinton, Governor of the state of New York.

Whereas the measures adopted for the discovery of William Morgan, after his unlawful abduction from Canandaigua, in September last, have not been attended with success; and whereas many of the good citizens of this state are under an impression, from the lapse of time and other circumstances, that he is murdered: Now therefore, to the end that if living, he may be restored to his family, and, if murdered, that the perpetrators may be brought to condign punishment, I have thought fit to issue this proclamation, promising a reward of one thousand dollars for the discovery of the said William Morgan if alive, and if murdered, a reward of two thousand dollars for the discovery of the offenders, to be paid on conviction and on the certificate of the Attorney-General, or officer prosecuting on the part of the state, that the person or persons claiming the said last mentioned reward, is or are justly entitled to the same under this proclamation.—And I further promise a free pardon, so far as I am authorized under the constitution of this state, to any accomplice, or co-operator who shall make a full discovery of the offender or offenders. And I enjoin it upon all officers and ministers of justice, and all other persons, to be vigilant and active in bringing to justice the perpetrators of a crime so abhorrent to humanity and so derogatory from the ascendancy of law and good order.

In witness whereof, I have hereunto set my hand and the privy seal, at the L. s. city of Albany, this 19th day of March, Anno Domini, 1827.

The Argus says: We learn that the Committee of the House, to which the memorial on this subject was referred, have not yet been put in the possession of sufficient proof to warrant the recommendation of any particular measures in relation to it.

MEXICAN AND SPANISH SQUADRONS.

Extract of a letter to the Editor of the Philadelphia Palladium, dated Havana March 13, 1827.

"The schooner Red Fox, of Norfolk, arrived here yesterday from Key West, and has given us some information respecting the contending squadrons. It seems this vessel took despatches from Commodore Porter to Admiral Laborde, commanding the Spanish blockading squadron off Key West, and brought despatches from Admiral Laborde to the authorities here; their contents have not yet transpired, but it is rumored that they relate to the exchange of prisoners, Com. Porter having a number of Spaniards confined on board a prison ship at Key West whom he wishes to get rid of. It seems the Government here are about remonstrating with the Government of the United States, on the impropriety of allowing Commodore Porter to make a depot for prisoners of war in a neutral port and that so close to Havana where so large an American interest is at stake.

"The situation of Comm. Porter continues as I before advised you; he has at Key West the following vessels: the Liberator, 40 guns, 250 men; brig Bravo, 18 guns, 100 men; Victoria, 18 guns, 80 men; and a schooner. Two-thirds of his crews are Indians, and one-third Americans and English. They say he is pinched for money.

"Admiral Laborde has six heavy frigates and several small vessels, and keeps a look out for him in person. By the arrival of the Caduceus, Capt. Heart, from Vera Cruz, Government received advices that the Garro Mexican brig of war was ready to sail from that port, with a very large sum of money on board. Several vessels of war have been despatched to intercept her. It is currently reported that the Mexican Admiral Lopez is on board this vessel, to supersede Porter.

"The Spanish line of battle ship is fitting out with all expedition."

Married on Tuesday evening last by the Rev. Mr. Bayne, Mr. John C. Goldsborough to Miss Mary Eliza B. Emory, all of this town.

In this town on Tuesday evening last by the Rev. Mr. Scull Mr. Thomas O. Turner to Miss Elizabeth Auld, all of this town.

It is ordered that she give the notice required by law for creditors to exhibit their claims against the said deceased's estate and that she cause the same to be published once in each week for the space of three successive weeks in one of the newspapers printed in the town of Easton.

In testimony that the foregoing is truly and faithfully copied from the minutes of proceedings of the Orphans Court of the county aforesaid, I have hereunto set my hand and the public seal of my office affixed this fourth day of April A. D. eighteen hundred and twenty seven.

Test JAS. PRICE, Reg'r. of Wills for Talbot county.

VELOCIPEDA.

THE South American horse Velocipede will stand this season at Easton, at Mr. Lowe's Stable every Tuesday, at the Trappe every Saturday, and at the subscriber's stable the remainder of the week, at the moderate sum of four dollars the season, two dollars the single leap, ten dollars to insure a colt, and 25 cents in each case to the groom, provided it is paid by the first of September, but if not paid by that time, 25 per cent in each case will be added.—The following certificates will prove beyond any doubt his pedigree.

NS: MARTIN.

CERTIFICATES.
PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 29, 1826.

I do certify that the black stallion Velocipede, once owned by me, was imported from Lagura by Mr. Patullo, Merchant of Philadelphia, and that he has several Spanish marks on him; that I had the original certificate of his pedigree wherein it is stated that he cost 3 or 4 hundred dollars and that he could pace a mile in 3 minutes.

M. GEBLER.

N. B. I owned him about nine months.—He is one of the King of Spains full bred. Naraganset breed of pacing horses and bears the marks which are put on all that breed of Horses as I am told.

I know the above to be correct—and I have seen two very fine colts of his, one of which is a very fast trotter, supposed to be able to beat any thing of his age.

He is reputed to get bay colts generally, those that I saw were bay—Mr. Gebler is the first Teller of S. Gerard's Bank. I saw the original certificate and I know the horse to be an extraordinary performer, having known him for these 3 or 4 years.

RINALDO,

Arrangements have been made to bring back that superb thorough bred, son of the celebrated Sir Archy to stand the ensuing season in Talbot county.—He will stand at the Trappe every Saturday, and the remainder of the week at the stable of Mr. Lowe in the town of Easton. The season to expire on the 20th of June; he will cover at fifteen dollars which ten dollars will discharge if paid punctually by the first day of September; any person may have a colt insured by paying $20 when the mare is first sent to the Horse, to be returned in case she does not prove with foal, provided she is not sold or transferred to a third person; six dollars the single leap, and twenty five cents in each case to the groom.

RINALDO is 15 1/2 hands high, will be 6 years old this spring. He is a deep blood bay with black mane tail and legs. His sire Sir Archy, is now covering in North Carolina at 75 dollars, and it is the opinion of John Randolph Esq. of Roanoke, that Rinaldo bears a striking resemblance to his sire in his best points & is free from some defects in Sir Archy's symmetry. His Dam is Miss Ryland by Graculus Duetta by Silverball, by Celer. Mark Anthony, Jolly Roger.—Good pasturage may be had for the usual price but no responsibility for accidents. The following extract from the advertisement of Roanoke a brother of Rinaldo now covering in Virginia, will be found applicable to him. Like his sire, he is fit for a dry, waggon, or Coach, as well as the turf, the field and the road, in short for every purpose to which this noble animal can be applied but that of a shooting pony.

Gallant Topham.

A beautiful blood bay 5 years old in May next, three fourths running blood, full 15 1/2 hands high, and handsomely marked, under fine command, and well broke, to trot, rack, and canter smoothly—sired by young Top-Gallant who has distinguished himself by his elegant breed of young horses in Talbot county, good tempered, easily managed for saddle or geer, and to any of them really handsome; out of a full bred handsome mare.—Will cover this spring at the low price of five Dollars the spring's chance—eight dollars to ensure a mare in foal; and two dollars and fifty cents for a single leap—but if the debt is paid by the first of October next, one fifth will be deducted from each claim—and 25 cents for each mare to the groom.

RINALDO,

Arrangements have been made to bring back that Superb thorough bred son of the celebrated Sir Archy to stand the ensuing season in Talbot county—He will stand at the Trappe every Saturday, and the remainder of the week at the stable of Mr. Lowe in the town of Easton. The season to expire on the 20th of June; he will cover at fifteen dollars which ten dollars will discharge if paid punctually by the first day of September; any person may have a colt ensured by paying $20 when the mare is first sent to the Horse, to be returned in case she does not prove with foal, provided she is not sold or transferred to a third person; six dollars the single leap, and twenty five cents in each case to the groom.

RINALDO is 15 1/2 hands high, will be 6 years old this spring. He is a deep blood bay with black mane tale and legs. His sire Sir Archy, is now covering in North Carolina at 75 dollars, and it is the opinion of John Randolph Esq. of Roanoke, that Rinaldo bears a striking resemblance to his sire in his best points & is free from some defects in Sir Archy's symmetry. His Dam is Miss Ryland by Gracchus Duette by Silvertail, Vanity by Celer, Mark Anthony, Jolly Roger.—Good pasturage may be had for mares at a distance at either of the agents at the usual price but no responsibility for accidents. The following extract from the advertisement of Roanoke a brother of Rinaldo now covering in Virginia, will be found applicable to him. Like his sire, he is fit for the "dry, wagon, or Coach, as well as the turf, the field and the road, in short for every purpose to which this noble animal can be applied but that of a shooting pony.

G. W. NABB & agents for John
NS. MARTIN, & S. Skinner.

April 7

Having understood that a report is in circulation, that Rinaldo is not a sure foal getter—for information on this subject I will refer gentlemen to E. N. Hambleton Esq. who had the horse last season, who can satisfy them that he is an uncommon sure foal getter.

VELOCIPEDA.

THE South American horse Velocipeda will stand this season at Easton, at Mr.
Lowe's Stable every Tuesday, at the Trappe every Saturday, and at the subscriber's stable the remainder of the week, at the moderate sum of four dollars the season, two dollars the single leap, ten dollars to insure a colt, and 25 cents in each case to the groom, provided it is paid by the first of September, but if not paid by that time, 25 per cent in each case will be added.—The following certificates will prove beyond any doubt his pedigree.

CERTIFICATES.

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 29, 1826.
I do certify that the black stallion Velocipeda, once owned by me, was imported from Laguiria by Mr. Patullo, Merchant of Philadelphia, and that he has several Spanish marks on him; that I had the original certificate of his pedigree wherein it is stated that he cost 3 or 4 hundred dollars and that he could pace a mile in 3 minutes.

M. GEBLER.

N. B. I owned him about nine months—
He is one of the King of Spains full bred, Naraganset breed of pacing horses and March 31.

A short time back, the following dialogue was held between a patient and a medical gentleman, celebrated alike for his skill and eccentricity:—"I'm come, sir." "You need not tell me that; I see you're come."
"Well, what do you want with me?" "I feel very bad in my inside, and have no appetite."—"Pray what are you?" "I'm a publican, sir."—"Oh, you're a publican, are you; well, Mr. Boniface, I suppose you take a glass of gin before breakfast?" "Yes, sir."
—"And sometimes two?" "Yes, sir."—"And very likely if a friend comes in, you take a third glass?" "That does happen sometimes, sir."—"Why, you gin-drinking scoundrel, you burn up your drams, & then have the impudence to come to me to be cured, get out of my house this moment."—English Paper.

ARCADE.

We have already observed that the New York Arcade is finished, and a considerable portion of it occupied by dealers in fancy merchandize. The Philadelphia Arcade, upon a much larger scale, requires of course more time for its completion; it already presents a gratifying view to the friends of improvement; and when completed will be one of the greatest ornaments of the city. We have made some enquiries relative to its capacities and probable income, and lay the results before our readers:—

The lot on which the above building is erecting is 109 feet on Chesnut street and 150 feet deep to Carpenter street. The Building is 100 feet by 150 leaving an alley of 4 1/2 feet on each side which is handsomely paved with flag stones. The pavements on the street will be laid with the same material. It was projected by John Haviland, Architect, and Peter A. Bronne, councillor at Law; the latter person purchased the lot of Judge Tilghman, for $42,500. The whole expense of the Arcade as it was originally proposed to be built was to be $150,000, including the lot; the 3d story being added has increased it to $162,000.

The possession of the lot was delivered the 1st of April, 1826; the corner stone was laid the 3d May 1826; and the last marble stone is to be laid the 3d May, 1827.
It will be ready for occupancy from the 1st to the 15th June. There are two 14 feet avenues extending the whole length of the building, paved with beautiful flag stones and covered entirely with a glass roof.

There are in the first story 46 stores, and 44 in the 2d story, in the third are 5 rooms to be occupied by the Museum. The stock was divided into 1500 shares of $108 each, of which the contractors were obliged to take one third. Apprehensions were at first entertained by those who did not understand the building, that the stores would be dark but they have been dissipated.
That it is highly ornamental to our city, seems now to be acknowledged by all; and it will be still more so when the enrichments are put up. They will consist of two statues for the Niches emblematic of commerce and the arts; the arms of the State and city, and an allegorical representation of Philadelphia supported by commerce, manufactures, and the arts, in basso relievo to fill the space where the bricks now make their appearance.

The Museum have rented the 3d story per annum, for ten years.

The stores on the 2d floor will rent on an average, $300 per an. 46 x 300. 13800

HESSIAN FLY.

The great warmth of this month of April is calculated to increase the dread of the Hessian fly which will be brought earlier into action by it. From the 25th of this month we must look out for the ravages of this destructive insect. The crop of wheat is generally unpromising this year, and we shall probably have a decisive occasion to judge of the comparative effects of the Hessian fly upon the early wheat and other wheats. At present, the early wheat that was seeded in good time (between the 5th and 20th of October) and in good order, is pretty generally out of danger from the fly—but there is a great deal of early wheat that was seeded both late and in wet ground, which came up badly and looks puny and unthrifty—this will be a subject for the Hessian fly to feed on, and the attention of Farmers is thus early invited to the effects that may be produced among this weak growth of early wheat, comparing them with those that may be produced in other kinds of wheat, and thus ascertaining which may be best fitted to escape the ravages of this disastrous insect. If the fly can prove injurious to early wheat, this is the season to test it, because the early warmth will generate the fly earlier than usual to commence its depredations—and the uncommonly weak, sickly, and retarded condition of the greater portion of early wheat this spring, owing to the lands being in very wet and bad order for late seeding last fall (and which has affected all other wheats in the same manner that were seeded as late) will give the fly every possible advantage over it.

We should be glad that farmers would accurately watch the progress of the fly upon this weak growth of early wheat and report their observations through this Gazette. Nothing can be more useful or more neighbourly than this intercommunication of observations and experience upon matters so important to all.

THE VILLAGE HERALD.

We have been this week favoured with the first number of the Village Herald, a new paper published at Princess Anne in Somerset county.

Feeling, as is very natural, that our own interest may be seriously affected by the establishment of a paper in a community where we have had many kind and liberal patrons, for whose kindness we are at all times free to make the most open acknowledgments, yet we cannot but congratulate our friends to the south upon the establishment of another press that may add to the means of general information and general usefulness. We wish it success, and hope it will be conducted upon the true principles of a free press.

If convenient and not incompatible with the views of our friends in Somerset and Worcester, we shall desire to preserve the evidences of their good opinion by retaining them as our patrons—but should it be otherwise, whilst we shall feel and deplore the loss, we must remember that every community is properly anxious for its own advancement, and those who are more remote must, in the progress of things, yield to improvements that the rapid growth of society naturally establishes.

In Professor Silliman's American Journal of Science and Arts for March 1827, we are gratified to see a very complimentary, though very just, notice taken of Doctor Muse's address to the agricultural Society of Dorset in November last—We pluck this fair flower, so much to our taste, from the professors parterre and present it to our readers.

This address of Dr. Muse was generally esteemed at the time of its publication, by all well informed men, as one of no ordinary merit, but its practical hints were the parts that most attracted general attention. Professor Silliman, who has an eye to investigate, a taste to relish, and a skill to direct him in whatever pertains to Science, has had his attention arrested by the more scientific character of the address, and he remarks upon it in the following handsome and appropriate manner.

"WHEAT.—Dr. Joseph E. Muse, President of the Dorchester Agricultural Society, Md. in an address delivered before that body, Nov. 9, 1826, states the opinion that animal manures are peculiarly necessary for wheat crops, because gluten, the characteristic proximate principle of wheat, contains nitrogen, which assimilates it to animal bodies. It, therefore, manures of animal origin are withheld, the soil becomes less adapted to the production of wheat. It is proposed by Dr. Muse, as an interesting inquiry, 'What proportion of gluten does wheat afford in different parts of the choice benediction on all those, who may here take shelter after an honourable 'March on the Mountain Wave.'

JOINT STOCK COMPANIES.—Wall street outwitted.—A friend of ours, who has recently returned from a visit to the state of New Jersey, informs us that notices were issued by a certain landlord in Hunterdon County, apprising the citizens of that neighborhood, that he had received a copy of the famous Captain Morgan's book, which would be read, 'in his large ball room' on a certain day last week, admittance twelve and a half cents; an audience comprising about 100 individuals assembled from the adjacent country were present, and were highly gratified. It appears that the landlord, who was a stockholder, and interested as our informant understood, in the value of the book, to the extent of one eighth, obtained the control of it by the proxies of two or three friends. The day following, a meeting of the stockholders being summoned, a dividend of the profits was declared, leaving a handsome surplus on hand after returning the proprietors 50 per cent. beside the capital invested; a committee of three being first appointed with powers to select a suitable agent to travel westward with the book the meeting adjourned.

This is even better than 2 or 3 per cent. a month.—Query: will not the legislature of our sister state grant these proprietors exclusive privileges for a handsome bonus.

Appos, about Morgan.—Mr. Miller, of Batavia says I told Mr. Evans, that I protested against the masons killing Morgan— nonsense. I told Mr. Evans that the masons should never have noticed Morgan's book.—Query: as Miller and Morgan are in partnership, has not the joke been carried far enough? If they have not made sufficient by their speculation, why not bring Morgan out of the cellar and get the two thousand dollars offered by the Governor.

N. F. Eng.

The United States Bank, it is well known has spared no expense to attain the desirable object of issuing its notes in so superior a style of engraving and finish as to render unavailing any attempts to counterfeit them. It appears, however, that the ingenuity and talent of the gentry who make the business of counterfeiting a regular occupation, have at length succeeded in producing so good an imitation of one of the plates that we are induced to call the attention of the public to the fact, in order that it may guard against imposition from this source. The counterfeits to which we allude are Twenty Dollar Notes, purporting to be issued by the Parent Bank, payable at the Charleston Office, in favor of Jos. Johnson, President. They bear date 1. February, 1820, and are signed by L. Cheves, President, and Jona. Smith, Cashier. The plate is marked with the letter M. The signature of Mr. Cheves is very well executed—that of Mr. Smith and of Mr. Johnson but indifferently—but the most perceptible defects consists in the indifferant manner in which the other blanks are filled up when compared with the genuine notes. Two of these counterfeits were received by our city banks, but were detected at the Branch Bank, on presentation there. A difference of opinion, however, having been entertained as to their real character one of them was transmitted to the Parent Bank, and by it, positively ascertained to be counterfeit. We mention these particulars to show how well they are calculated to deceive.

FOREIGN.

NEW YORK, April 9.

LATEST FROM ENGLAND. The ship Euphrates, Capt. Smith arrived at a late hour this morning from Bangor (Wales) whence she sailed on the 25th of February. Capt. S. has favored us with a London paper of the 23d, from which we select the following items.

The London New Times of the 23d of Feb. states that Lord Liverpool was gradually recovering his strength. The day before, his Lordship felt so much better that he expressed a desire to see some official paper, which however was not allowed. The following bulletin was struck up at five hours, 12 o'clock on the 22d.

Lord Liverpool continues better. His Lordship has passed another good night. Mr. Canning was quite well, and was expected at London in the course of the ensuing week.

His Majesty was somewhat recovered from his late attack of the gout.

In the House of Lords on the 22d Feb. on motion of Earl Bathurst, the question of the Corn Laws, which was to be discussed on the 26th, was discharged in that House on account of the illness of Lord Liverpool. In the course of his remarks he observed that a statement would be made in the other House, which would contain the whole sum and substance of the measure in contemplation.

Montrose's Chaplain.—It is reported of one of the Chaplains to the famous Montrose that being condemned in Scotland to die, for attending his master in some of his glorious exploits; and being upon the ladder and ordered to set out a psalm, expecting a reprieve, he named the one hundred and nineteenth psalm (with which the officers attending the execution complied, the Scotch presbyterians being great psalm singers), and it was well for him he did so for they had sung it three parts through before the reprieve came. Any other psalm would have hanged him.

A difficulty.—We learn that a man in the county of Bristol (Mass.) petitioned to be divorced from his wife, and when the cause came on for trial he was unable to prove that he was ever married.

which they could not fail to entertain, when the several States were about to become members of the great confederate family. The vast importance to them of this particular interest would for ever have been an insuperable obstacle to the formation of the union without ample guarantees on the subject. Whilst therefore one single state in the Union, shall in the legitimate exercise of its own sovereign legislative power constitute a system of laws by which slaves are made an article of property, it is not in the power of the other states to avoid or elude the imperative obligations they have assumed, to prevent the evils to owners of such property which the parties to this solemn compact had in contemplation, and for which they intended and professed to provide.

The question of slavery is one on which the states in this Union, in their confederate character—on which their representatives in congress, never have and never can claim to exert any legal control over in any one state. Each state is and must be sovereign and supreme in forming for itself a decision, whether slavery shall exist within its territorial limits, and the annunciation of its decision carries with it to the other states, the solemn obligation, not only to refrain from any act which shall discharge a fugitive from the labor or service to which he is held by the laws of the state from which he has escaped, but also "to deliver up such fugitive on claim of the party to whom the service is due."

This is the plain letter and obvious spirit of the federal constitution. The act of Congress of 1793, chapter —, if carried fully into execution would go far to effect the object designed by the constitution, and by those who enacted it, but the riotous assemblies of turbulent persons, most of them colored people, who obstruct the execution of the law and often rescue the party, after his recovery on due proof and who find the difficulties attendant upon their prosecution and conviction to amount almost to an exemption from punishment, have rendered it of small practical utility. Our citizens are thus called to witness the humiliating spectacle of a lawless mob or infuriated crowd, constituting themselves into a tribunal violently usurping jurisdiction over their persons and their property, contemning the laws by which their rights are defined, and executing with a resistless violence, the arbitrary decree which deprives the owner of his property, & often subjects his person to peril, while his distant residence and want of knowledge of their persons, make it impossible for him to enforce the legal penalties which are justly prescribed for their crimes.

A remedy for these evils might be sought in additional legislation by the congress of the United States, to protect the rights of claimants by more ample sanctions, and to multiply officers to enforce and execute the laws. The more appropriate redress known, would seem to be in legislation by the state of New Jersey to enforce the rights of those who come into her territory in pursuit of property, of which they have been deprived. Maryland would prefer the mode last mentioned—we presume it will be most agreeable to New Jersey.

Anticipating the exercise of that spirit of justice and liberality which she will at all times hold herself bound to reciprocate, she has deputed us to make known to the New Jersey legislature, the evils of which her citizens complain, and to ask that redress which she believes may be granted consistently with the best interests of the people of New Jersey.

We ask therefore of the legislature of New Jersey, complete protection for the persons of our fellow-citizens who go into that state to recover their fugitive slaves from labor, who may be found there. If our citizens act improperly, or violate the laws of the state, let them be amenable to the punishment which those laws inflict; but whilst they are in pursuit of their just rights according to the directions of the supreme law of the land, we require that they should be protected in their persons, and that their rights be respected.

If the arbitrary seizure under the law of congress is objected to, we ask that the legislature will authorize the claimant to procure a warrant from a judge or justice of the peace, directed to a sheriff or constable, to search for, seize and bring the fugitive before him for proof, and if proof be furnished, that the judge or justice, shall grant a warrant of safe conduct out of the state, in the direction which the party claimant may require: That an effectual stop be put to riotous assemblies of persons to overawe, or to hinder the search, seizure and taking before the judge or magistrate; as well as to prevent them from hindering the claimant from removing the fugitive after proof: That all attempts to harbor and protect fugitives from labor be restrained: And that means be taken to prevent all persons from concealing, transporting or employing fugitives from labor, under sufficient penalties.

As a means of effecting these things with more ease; and saving a great deal of difficulty, we would respectfully suggest the propriety of providing for some mode of distinguishing the resident persons of color who are free, from those who get into the state as fugitives. In Maryland the interest and convenience of free people of color have been thought to require a system of registry whereby they are readily distinguished from those who are not free, and whereby the evidence of their freedom can readily and satisfactorily be furnished. The same principle of necessity and expediency which leads the naturalized citizen to protect himself by his certificate of naturalization, would seem to apply to the case of a free person of color. The periodical surrender and renewal of their certificates, to be accomplished by a mode easy of access and at trifling cost, would effectually avoid the danger of using them improperly.

We are as little disposed to doubt as those who have commissioned us; that we shall find the legislative authorities of New Jersey, disposed and prompt to afford to the citizens of Maryland, all that relief which the magnitude of the evil, under which they suffer, so loudly calls for.

Our claim to ask the redress of a grievance, is founded on the express provisions of the federal constitution before recited. It grows out of a fundamental article of that instrument which constituted one of the essential means of forming the federal union, and without which, this happy union never would have existed. The faithful adherence to the true spirit of this article, will preserve the bond of union—it is a point upon which no relaxation can be indulged.

A recurrence to the terms of the constitution, the sacred bond by which the States of this Union, have united their destinies; and by which each has pledged itself to the other, is considered sufficient to justify the views and enforce the purposes we have urged; and we have therefore deemed it unnecessary to enter into the consideration of various other grounds upon which the appeal now made might be sustained.

We commit the subject with the foregoing suggestions to the legislature of New Jersey, to whom we desire to be presented through your Excellency, and for the perfect preservation of our rights of person & property, we rely upon their devotion to all the principles of the confederation, and their disposition at all times to render to a sister State, the amplest relief founded upon law, and the obligations due from one member of the federal Union to another.

We have the honor to tender to your Excellency the assurance of our high consideration.

(Signed,) EZEKIEL F. CHAMBERS, ARCHIBALD LEE, ROBT. H. GOLDSBOROUGH.

Extracts of a letter, from Commodore Porter to a gentleman in Pensacola, dated at Key West on Board the Libertad, Feb. 20, 1827.

"When they (the Spaniards) proclaimed that they were blockading me, and a dismantled schr. (which I was converting into a brigantine,) with four frigates and three brigs, they should also have told that one of my brigs was cruising in sight of Moro Castle, and the other destroying all the trade between Matanzas and Neuvitas. While I was thus necessarily employed they captured eight sail, six of which they destroyed and two are now here. We have captured ten altogether—two I sent to Vera Cruz—one being very valuable (say $60,000)—the other a fine armed schr. fit for the service.

"I is preposterous in them to say they blockade us, when our brigs and our prizes come in as they please, in open day. They cannot blockade us—and, since they have reduced their force to two frigates and a brig they dare not. The other day I got under way with the squadron and went out, when Laborde made all sail from me—When I have about to come in, I could scarcely see him. This does not look like blockade.

"It would give me great pleasure to show my Mexicans at Pensacola—I am proud of them—saw them when in an unpolished state,—they are different beings now, altogether—no men could learn faster, no men could behave better. I have never seen a ship worked better or guns better managed—and those are the most essential things. My squadron, although small, looks well. This is not the last you will hear of it, if I recover" (from an attack of Fever,) "and can enjoy my health."

In the vicinity of Philadelphia, on Tuesday the 3d inst. the corner stone of the NAVAL ASYLUM was laid with due ceremony, in the presence of the Naval Commissioners and a number of citizens. After the stone had been properly secured Commodore Bainbridge, President of the Navy Board, delivered the following address:—

"The expense of the building which is about to commence under circumstances so auspicious, is delayed out of a fund raised by the monthly contributions of the Officers, Seamen, and Marines in the National Service. These contributions commenced in the year 1796, and of course nearly contemporaneously with the origin of our naval establishment. By the fostering care of government the fund so raised has accumulated to a sum exceeding $200,000.

"This joint stock is now about to be appropriated under the direction of government, to the purposes for which it was originally intended.—A home will thus be established for the faithful tar, who has been either worn out or maimed in fighting the battles of his country a comfortable harbor will be secured where he may safely moor and ride out the ebb of life, free from the cares and storms by which he has been previously surrounded. He will here cheerfully and proudly live with his own messmates; with the companions of his former sports, toils and dangers; and where they will animate each other, by re-counting the pleasures which they enjoyed, the perils which they escaped, and the battles which they fought. A picture of happiness will thus be exhibited, not less gratifying to the Patriot than it will be useful, in stimulating the intrepid youth of our country, to enlist under our Naval Banner, that they also may secure similar honours and comforts for a 'Green Old Age.'

I speak the sentiments of my associates in the Board of Naval Commissioners, when I say, that we feel the highest satisfaction in witnessing the deposit of the corner stone of an institution, which is calculated to secure so many advantages, and to confer so much happiness. And I humbly beseech Him who governs the sea and the land, to bestow his

UNION HOTEL, Elizabeth Town, Jan. 25, 1826.

DEAR SIR, The undersigned, a deputation from the General Assembly of Maryland, have the honour to present to you the inclosed letter from his Excellency the Governor of Maryland, stating the object of their visit to Jersey, and they beg leave most respectfully, to make the enquiry of your Excellency, whether you will be able to receive them to-morrow, and if agreeable to you, at what time: With very high consideration, We have the honour to be, Your Excellency's obedient servants, EZEKIEL F. CHAMBERS, ARCHIBALD LEE, ROBT. H. GOLDSBOROUGH. To His Excellency, The Governor of New Jersey.

UNION HOTEL, Elizabeth Town, Jan. 26, 1826.

DEAR SIR, Understanding with great regret, through the bearer of our note of last evening, that your Excellency's extreme ill state of health entirely precludes you from any sort of attendance to public business, we must forbear to urge the subject of our mission further upon you at this time, and will beg leave to apprise you, that we will leave for you a written communication with the secretary of state, to which we invite your attention at the earliest convenient moment. With sincere wishes for the speedy restoration of your Excellency's health we are with the highest consideration, Your obedient servants, E. F. CHAMBERS, ARCHIBALD LEE, R. H. GOLDSBOROUGH. To his Excellency Isaac H. Williamson, Governor of New Jersey.

Letter from Messrs. Chambers, Lee and Goldsborough, to Governor Williamson of New Jersey, dated September, 1826.

To His Excellency Governor Williamson, Sir, In fulfilment of the promise made to you at Elizabeth Town, in our note of the 26th January last to present the subject of our mission in writing, we have now the honor to state to your Excellency, that "we are authorized by the general Assembly of Maryland, to negotiate with the Legislature of the state of New Jersey, for the purpose of procuring such aid by legislative provision or otherwise, as may be most effectual for the recovery of persons bound to, or owing service or labor to citizens of Maryland, who have heretofore absconded, or who shall hereafter abscond, or flee from Maryland into the State of New Jersey."

The legislature of New Jersey not being in session at the time we were in that state it became our duty to endeavour to avail ourselves of the good office of your Excellency, to present the subject to their attention, at their first meeting; & we would hope to find in your Excellency an advocate for the protection of the rights of the citizens of Maryland to their property in their slaves who flee from their service into the state of New Jersey, in the true spirit of that faith which was solemnly pledged by the States of this Union, each to the other, when it was provided, That "persons held to the service or labor in one state under the laws thereof, escaping into another shall not in consequence of any law or regulation therein, be discharged from such service or labor but shall be delivered up on claim of the party to whom such service or labor may be due."

The evils of which the citizens of Maryland complain, and which the general assembly desired to have redressed, are, that their slaves escape from their service, and many of them get into the state of New Jersey where they are often harbored and protected.

That it is always difficult, often dangerous and frequently impossible to recover them.

That such difficulties and dangers arise from a systematic and indiscriminate resistance to claimants going in quest of fugitives from labor on the part of individuals who disregard the laws and the rights of our citizens and exercise a control over their property which is grounded on no other authority than a false or pretended notion of philanthropy and the unjustifiable exertion of physical force, and

That such protection and impediments seduce and encourage servants to escape from the service of their masters.

So numerous are the instances of late, of absconding slaves that it has become to the citizens of Maryland an alarming evil as it has caused so sudden a deficiency in agricultural labor as to threaten the most disastrous consequences.

The remedy for these evils is to be found in a sense of justice in the legislative bodies of those States to which these slaves may flee, and in the faithful performance of that duty which is demanded of them by the federal constitution, which binds each state to surrender up fugitives from labor that may be found within its territory, to the citizens of that state from which they may have fled.

The 3d paragraph, 2d section, 4th article of the Constitution of the United States, was adopted to secure to the slaveholding states perfect security against the dangers which they might otherwise have incurred by the intimate union thus formed with the other States, in relation to a species of property which could not be injuriously affected without immense loss to them. The partial intercourse and the want of facilities to an active communication amongst the different members of the confederacy, before the union, relieved the possessors of their property from apprehension,

United States? He supposes that this principle prevails most in the wheat of the south. It would be interesting to ascertain this fact by experiment.

Dr. Muse, speaking of the analysis of American wheat, says, "From 100 parts of white flint wheat, grown in Dorchester, Md. on a clayey soil, I obtained 30 parts of gluten. Wheat grown in Northern Europe, is stated to yield only about 20 parts of gluten in 100."

Dr. Muse concludes, from his own experiments, that cotton may be profitably raised in Maryland. He recommends the introduction of the madder, or rubia tinctorum, and a greater attention to the farinaceous and saccharine roots—potatoes, beets, carrots, &c. From 100 parts of the beet he obtained 12 of saccharine matter; and from the carrot 10 of saccharine and 4 of mucilaginous matter. His address contains many judicious and valuable remarks relative to American agriculture.

We cannot part with professor Silliman's Scientific Journal without copying a brief remark of the once famous E. C. Genet, of French Revolutionary memory, which, we doubt not, from its character and the passed events it is calculated to recall, will by no means be uninteresting to our readers, at least, to that portion of them, who were readers and participators in the events which immediately produced and followed the Proclamation of neutrality by President Washington.

It seems that the Citizen Genet, for such he was called when Minister of the French Directory to this Country, being recalled by his Government, retired from his station, but refrained from going back to France—he married the daughter of old George Clinton and settled himself on the banks of the Hudson, retiring entirely from all interference in politics and giving himself up to philosophy and agriculture—Mr. Genet wrote a memorial on the upward forces of fluids which has been criticised by some of our Savans, and in the vindication he makes in professor Silliman's last Journal, he takes occasion to make this remark viz. "J'aime la plaisanterie as much as any of my old fellow citizens, and having been used in my youth to the great world, I have never been affronted at a criticism, a censure, or a joke aimed at me, if it were grounded & deserved; but when innocent plans, practically offered to my adopted Country, in atonement for the errors which I may have formerly committed under a foreign revolutionary impulse, are indirectly converted into an undisciplined ambition to rank with the philosophers and sages of the earth, I feel myself bound in duty to those who have, with less prejudice, investigated and countenanced my contemplated improvements, to show that my censurers are themselves incorrect, and have adduced neither facts nor experiments to reverse what I have advanced."

Thus the avowed attempt at atonement is confession, that the outrages of Citizen Genet in quality of Minister of Revolutionary France, which were denounced by President Washington and his friends, were "errors committed under a foreign revolutionary impulse"—and thus a new evidence springs to light of the correctness of that political course which was so much vituperated by the impassioned Democracy of the period referred to.

William Morgan, about whom so much fuss has been made, is stated, by the Greenburg Republican, to have been engaged very recently as subcontractor on the Pennsylvania Canal, near Logan's ferry. The information was derived from a gentleman of integrity, who has a considerable contract on the canal, and who was well acquainted with M. in the state of New York.

M. Gosselin, a bookseller of Paris, has realized about ten or twelve thousand pounds by bad translations of the Scotch novels. He is now bringing out a splendid edition of the whole of the novels in seventy two volumes; and he addressed a copy of this publication to Sir Walter Scott, apologizing for having printed the Baronet's name on the title-page. These works are misapprehended by Sir Walter; "pecuniary misfortunes oblige me to make this avowal."

The Liverpool Chronicle of the 17th February contains a long account of an arrest on board the Commerce Steam Packet at the moment she was about starting for Dublin, of a female passenger who was dressed in sailor's clothes, and passed by the name of William Brown. The officers who took her in custody, acted from information of the disguise, which they supposed might have been done to conceal some theft. The sailor was conveyed to prison. From some enquiries, the house where Brown lodged was discovered, the proprietor of which referred the officers to the master of the brig Laura, of New York, as knowing all about her. Her story as well as could be collected appears to be as follows: Her father is a merchant in London. About three years ago, she left his house to follow her lover, who was the mate of a vessel in the North American trade, and hearing he had sailed for St. Johns, she came to Liverpool, and took passage for that port. On arriving at St. Johns, she discovered the vessel had gone to Quebec, thither she went, and there learned that her lover was drowned on his passage up the St. Lawrence. She immediately determined to become a sailor for his sake, and assuming the garb of a man engaged as cook and steward to the master of a vessel for London, with whom she remained upwards of twelve months. The next vessel she joined, and in which she also served upwards of twelve months, some weeks back brought her to Liverpool, but the master suspecting her sex extorted from her the secret, and wished her to remain with him but she would not consent, and she was about to proceed to Ireland. While in prison she said her name was Selina Augusta Hamilton.—She is said to be a complete sailor, taking her grog and using tobacco like other tars. She states that she will have four thousand pounds at her disposal when she comes of age, (she is not yet 19) and intends to equip a vessel and take command. She was brought up for examination on the 16th of February at the Town Hall, when it appeared that her arrest was caused by the Captain of the Laura. The girl refused to tell the Magistrate, Alderman Bourne, her father's name; she said she could see no necessity for it; she said she was a sailor now and such intended to remain. Mr. Duffey, of the Laura, wished the Magistrate to place her in his charge, that he might restore her to her father.—At this she gave him a look of surprise, & then remarked to the magistrate she had made choice of her present mode of life, and meant to pursue it. The Magistrate discharged her.

OXFORD.
Health and Society constitute the delights of life—why may we not establish a delightful meeting place at Oxford for the purpose of salt water bathing, fishing, and elegant enjoyment?—Oxford is a high, healthful, and beautiful situation, the Steam Boat from Baltimore & Annapolis visits it twice every week, the surrounding neighborhood is fertile and productive of every thing that the land can afford, and the waters which flow at its margin are productive of every luxury for the season. A small sum of money would erect a neat & comfortable Establishment for the accommodation of Visitors—the finest varieties of fruits grow at the spot, the Country around is beautiful and interesting, and the facility of access is most inviting. Men who are anxious to invest money at a lucrative interest may here find an advantageous investment, invalids may here find one of the most salubrious Salt Water bathing places, and men of pleasure may be gratified with the most delightful healthiness of situation and sporting on the Salt Waters.

Old age is the only disease of which the residents at Oxford die, and no situation can be better chosen for the recovery of invalids or for the gratification of sportsmen.

Cupping Glasses to poisoned wounds—The employment of natural suction, for the extraction of poison from wounds, is a practice of very ancient date, as is well known. Dr. Barry has lately revived this practice in Paris, making use of Cupping Glasses instead of the living mouth. M. Laennec has presented a report to the Royal Academy of Medicine, on Dr. Barry's experiments, and the results appear to be very important as well as curious. We shall glance at some of the experiments.—In the first place powdered Strychnine was applied to a wound, and then a cupping Glass was exhausted over it. The effects of the poison were prevented. If taken off, the poison would begin to work, and when re-applied, these consequences would be again suspended. Similar experiments were made with Arsenic, the Upastient, and Prussic Acid. Eight grains of Arsenic were introduced into a wound made in the thigh of a dog. Three quarters of an hour afterwards the glass was applied, & kept exhausted for four hours. The dog experienced no inconvenience. Another dog was similarly treated, but no glass applied, and the animal died in 15 hours. Six drops of Prussic acid were infused into a small wound in the thigh of a rabbit. The glass was immediately applied, and kept so for twelve minutes. The animal felt no bad effects; the glass was removed, and quickly the rabbit was seized with convulsions, and was supposed to be dying. The re-application of the glass was followed by a restoration of the pristine state of the animal. After twelve minutes the glass was again removed, and the convulsions and other bad symptoms soon re-appeared, and required the third application of the exhauster. The rabbit could not dispense with the glass till after half an hour from the introduction of the poison. The same process was instituted on another rabbit, but without the exhauster; the animal died in two minutes. Experiments of a similar kind were made with Upas, and with analogous results. It appears evident that the Cupping Glass prevents the poison from finding its way into the system, and that thus the process may be of importance in the healing art.

BALTIMORE, April 12.
FROM RIO JANEIRO.—By the Brig EDWARD, Captain Calder, arrived last night from Rio, whence she sailed on the 27th of February, information is received that the Buenos Ayres army had advanced into the heart of the Province of Rio Grande. Rumours had also reached Rio that a general battle had taken place between the Buenos Ayres and Brazilian armies, in that Province, in which the latter was defeated. It was reported that the Emperor had received despatches from the seat of war in relation to this event, but no intelligence of their contents had been suffered to transpire, a circumstance which strengthened the belief that the information was of a disastrous character to the Brazilian arms. The Emperor was endeavoring to raise an additional body of troops, to be sent to Rio Grande.

The U. S. Ship CYANE was at Santos, undergoing some repairs previous to her sailing for the United States.

It is stated that Mrs. Opie, the accomplished authoress, and the celebrated Mrs. Fry, the benefactress of Newgate, are about to visit this country, and it is believed are now on their passage, accompanied by Anna Braithwaite. They will probably be in Philadelphia in time to attend the yearly meeting of the society of friends.

PEDIGREE.

TOM JEFFERSON was foaled at Darley Hall near Baltimore, on the 2d September, 1822, is upwards of 16 hands high, a beautiful bright bay with black legs, finely formed and his action remarkably good. His sire was the celebrated imported horse Exile "a full blooded Cleveland Bay." his grand sire "one of the most splendid coach horses in England," his great grand sire "the famous Yorkshire horse Mollineux that sold for 1100 guineas." His dam Fanny was got by Eagle out of a Mare raised by Nimrod Owings, Esq. of Frederick county, and owned by Isaac McKim, Esq. The dam of Fanny was got by the celebrated full bred horse Montezuma raised by H. D. Gough, Esq. her dam Dart, a full coach mare got by the imported dray horse Nebuchadnezzar, the property of Col. Williams; her grand dam by Obscurity, her great grand dam by the imported horse Badger, the property of Mr. Carroll. Eagle the sire of Tom's dam may be traced (see English Stud Book) to Eclipse the most celebrated horse that England ever produced. Eagle was imported by the Messrs. Bells of Petersburg, Va. and cost 1500 guineas.

TOM JEFFERSON when he had just turned two years old was "accommodated" to the attention of the breeders of fine horses, by the Agricultural society of Maryland, and before he was three years old received a premium as a Stallion "adapted to get horses for the quick draft." See 7th A. Farmer, 90 Lewis' Colt. It is the mixture of the Cleveland bay with the raising blood which produces the old English Hunter, and it is the cross from them that makes the Jersey horse more valuable than the Southern, giving them bone, size and high round action. The colour of these horses is confined to the various shades of bay always with brown muzzles, and they combine the fine symmetry, smoothness of coat and clean legs of the blooded. In fine it is now admitted in Europe that this breed oxen can increase the size of the blooded horse without taking from them their activity, wind and figure. See 2d A. Farmer 239, and 4th A. F. 24 and 133. PHILIP WALLIS. April 14

THE CELEBRATED STALLION,

Tom Jefferson,

WILL be let to mares this season on Mondays and Tuesdays at the sub-scriber's farm (opposite Chestertown.) Wednesdays and Thursdays at Centreville, and on Fridays and Saturdays at Wye Mill. The season to commence on 8th April and end 8th July. Terms $8 for each Mare, which may be discharged by the payment of $6 on or before the first of September next, and twenty-five cents to the groom. The greatest attention will be paid to Mares, but no responsibility for accidents.

PEDIGREE.
TOM JEFFERSON was foaled at Darley
Hall near Baltimore, on the 2d September, 1823, is upwards of 16 hands high, a beautiful bright bay with black legs, finely formed and his action remarkably good. His sire was the celebrated imported horse Exile "a full blooded Cleveland Bay," his grand sire "one of the most splendid coach horses in England," his great grand sire "the famous Yorkshire horse Molineaux that sold for 1100 guineas." His dam Fanny was got by Eagle out of a Mare raised by Nimrod Owings, Esq. of Frederick county, and owned by Isaac McKim, Esq. The dam of Fanny was got by the celebrated full bred horse Montezuma raised by H. D. Gough, Esq. her dam Dart, a full coach mare got by the imported dray horse Nebuchadnezzar, the property of Col. Williams; her grand dam by Obscurity, her great grand dam by the imported horse Badger, the property of Mr. Carroll.
Eagle the sire of Tom's dam may be traced (see English Stud Book) to Eclipse the most celebrated horse that England ever produced.
Eagle was imported by the Messrs. Bells of Petersburgh, Va. and cost 1500 guineas.

TOM JEFFERSON when he had just turned two years old was "acommentado" to the attention of the breeders of fine horses, by the Agricultural society of Maryland, and before he was three years old received a premium as a Stallion "adapted to get horses for the quick draft." See 7th A. Farmer, 90 Lewis' Colt.
It is the mixture of the Cleveland bay with the racing blood which produces the old English Hunter, and it is the cross from them that makes the Jersey horse more valuable than the Southern, giving them bone, size and high round action. The colour of these horses is confined to the various shades of bay always with brown muzzles, and they combine the fine symmetry, smoothness of coat and clean legs of the blooded. In fine it is now admitted in Europe that this breed can increase the size of the blooded horse without taking from them their activity, wind and figure.
See 2d A. Farmer 239, and 4th A. F. 24 and 133.

ERROR CORRECTED.

The arch Senator Van Buren, it has been reported, had gone to the south on a political expedition to negotiate in relation to New York and General Jackson, and to arrange matters and things for next winter's Congressional Caucus to make a President, and to prepare for his ulterior views—but the Jersey papers deny all this and explain most satisfactorily, that the object of the senator's visit was the first Green Peas of the south, so that he might enjoy the first luxuries of the season upon his return northward at every stage.

It is shrewdly suspected by the knowing ones, that the senator will add some political management to his green peas and season the whole dish with a little spice of intrigue which he is known to fling in with such masterly skill—About the 15th of next month green peas and strawberries will be making their appearance in this part of the Peninsula, where he may be (possibly) expected to partake of those dainties and to cultivate the spirit of Jacksonian opposition to the powers that be. Should any thing of this sort reach us beforehand, it shall be communicated for the benefit of all concerned.

What a tempting thing it must be to unite yourself to an opposition to place such a man as General Jackson at the head of the Government, taking him all in all—but more particularly so when it is known that such a man as the Honorable Martin Van Buren is the leader of that opposition and is the master spirit that rules every thing, and who it is now understood is preparing the machinery, a congress caucus for next winter, at which it is said he will be ready to pledge the vote of the great state of New York, Provided, he the said Mr. Van Buren can receive a pledge that he will be taken up as the successor of General Jackson. Can personal dislikes urge us to be connected with such projects? On this subject much is to be said.

CHESAPEAKE AND DELAWARE CANAL.

There are now more than 300 men at work on the Crosscut Canal. Two of the wharves at Delaware City, on the Delaware Bay are completed, each 200 feet long; and great exertions are being made to increase the number of workmen on the whole line.—Balt. Gaz.

JACKSON MEETING IN CECIL.

A meeting was held at the house of George Peacock, in the Town of Ektan, Cecil county, Maryland, on the 7th of April 1827 for the purpose of appointing Delegates from Cecil county, to meet at Baltimore on the 21st of May next, for the purpose of adopting such measures as shall tend to promote and insure the election of Gen. ANDREW JACKSON as the next President of the United States.

General Thomas M. Firman was called to the Chair and Tobias Rudolph appointed Secretary.

Gen. Thomas M. Firman, Outerbridge Horsey, and John W. Comyges, Esqs. for the first election district—Col. George E. Mitchell, Tobias Rudolph, and Henry Stump, Esqs. for the 2d district—Col. William W. Ramsey, Joseph Couden, and John Maroes, Esqs. for the 3d district—and Col. James Gerry, Washington Hall, and James Janney, Esqs. for the 4th district, were appointed a Committee to attend the General Convention for the purposes aforesaid.

From the elections in Virginia, we learn that John Randolph will have been chosen without any opposition that we can discover to be a Representative in Congress from the State of Virginia; that John Floyd, though opposed, will have been re-elected, without a close contest, and John Taliaferro will have been chosen without any serious opposition. In some counties of the latter Districts, there is no opposition to him.—We use the expression will have been, because, by a mode of election peculiar to Virginia, the elections take place in the several counties in each district on the several Mondays in the month of April.

THE BRITISH MAIL PACKET.

The Hermaphrodite brig Emily, Capt. Hughes, arrived at this port on Sunday last, in 9 days from Bermuda, with the British mail of February from England, in charge of Mr. Piper, of the British navy, who had also despatches for the British minister, with which Mr. Moore, the agent, resident in this city, started for Washington yesterday morning.

The mail delivered at our post office, contained about 1200 letters. The papers brought by this arrival, are not so late a date as those received last week, at New-York, owing to the long passage of the Princess Elizabeth. Their contents have of course been anticipated.—Md. Rep.

DOCUMENT Relative to Absconding Slaves, &c. CONCLUDED.

Copy of a letter from his excellency the Governor of Maryland, to their Excellencies the Governors of Pennsylvania, New Jersey and Delaware, respectively, relative to absconding Slaves.

COUNCIL CHAMBER, Annapolis, January 16, 1826.

SIR, The immense losses sustained by the citizens of this State by the absconding of Slaves, and the great difficulty experienced in recovering them, have been deemed of sufficient importance to induce the Legislature to make a solemn appeal to the Governments of those States, in which the greatest portion of such fugitives are known to seek refuge, for their aid in arresting this growing evil. For this purpose, the bearers hereof, Ezekiel F. Chambers, Esq. a member of the Senate, and Archibald Lee and Robert H. Goldsborough, of the House of Delegates, have been appointed a joint committee, to confer with the Legislature of Pennsylvania, upon the measures best calculated to remedy the grievance so sensibly felt, and which I assure your excellency, is of very serious magnitude and general concern to all holders of slaves.

With the fullest confidence, that the gentlemen deputed upon this interesting business, will be received in the friendly and conciliatory spirit in which they have been appointed, and that, with the disposition, which no doubt, is entertained, that your excellency, as well as the Legislature of the State over which you preside, will feel, to meet the views, and accomplish the objects of their mission, we cannot doubt of a successful issue.

With the highest consideration, We have the honor to be, Your excellency's most obt. serv't.

JOS. KENT.

A letter similar to the above, with the proper alterations where the name of the State occurs, addressed to each of the Governors of Delaware and New-Jersey, respectively.

Report of the Committee to Pennsylvania, New Jersey and Delaware, relative to absconding Slaves &c.

A Report of the deputation consisting of Ezekiel F. Chambers, late a member of the Senate, and Archibald Lee and Robert H. Goldsborough, members of the House of Delegates, appointed by the General Assembly of the State of Maryland, to the Legislatures of the States of Delaware, New Jersey and Pennsylvania, with authority to negotiate with the Legislatures of said States, for the purpose of procuring such aid, by legislative provisions or otherwise, as may be most effectual, for the recovery of persons bound to, or owing service or labor to citizens of Maryland, who have heretofore absconded, or who shall hereafter abscond or flee from Maryland, into any of the said States.

TO HIS EXCELLENCY JOSEPH KENT, Governor of Maryland.

SIR, In obedience to a resolution of the Legislature of Maryland, at their late session, we, the undersigned, have the honor to make you the following

REPORT:

In pursuance of instructions from the General Assembly of Maryland, the undersigned left Annapolis on the 10th of January last, and went on to Dover, the seat of the government of the State of Delaware. His excellency Mr. Painter, the Governor of that State, not being at the seat of government at the time of their arrival, and the Secretary of State being unfortunately confined to his country residence by domestic afflictions, they procured their credentials to the legislative body, to be presented through a distinguished member of the Senate, and, soon after, the undersigned were most respectfully recognized in their public character, by both branches.

A joint committee of both houses, as a committee of conference, consisting of seven gentlemen, was immediately appointed, and the undersigned met them, by invitation, the same afternoon.

Before the committee, & in presence of the other members of the legislature, who attended their session in the Senate chamber, the undersigned explained and enforced the particular objects of their commission.

A bill having been immediately reported by the committee, was introduced into the Senate, and after examination and debate, was passed through that body, with only one or two dissenting voices, in full Senate. When the bill was sent to the house, it was fully discussed and deliberated on, and although there was not an entire unanimity of opinion, in relation to some of its provisions; yet, when the bill was put upon its final passage, there was no dissenting vote. This bill was before the two houses of the Legislature, from Monday until the following Thursday at noon, when the amendments of the house were adopted by the senate, and it engrossed the attention of one house or the other, constantly, during that period, both in their morning and evening sessions. The undersigned were gratified at seeing each section of the bill so deliberately weighed and strictly scrutinized, both as it regarded the principles it contained, and its relation to the existing interests of the state of Delaware, as it was the best indication of a disposition to enact a permanent measure.

A copy of the law was politely presented to the undersigned as hereto annexed, who left Dover that afternoon, upon their ulterior destination.

Arriving at Philadelphia, the undersigned thought it highly expedient to ascertain the state of public opinion in relation to the subject of their mission, to a state where the abolition of slavery had been a favorite object, and was nearly accomplished.

After as diligent an inquiry as they could prosecute, in the short time allowed them, they had no indication that there existed a disposition adverse to the object of their mission.

Notwithstanding the Legislature of New Jersey was not in session, and not likely to be in session for nine months to come, the undersigned concluded that their instructions, and the nature of their duty, required, that they should visit the Governor of that State in its recess, that they might make known to his excellency, the wishes of the General Assembly of Maryland, in instituting this deputation, and endeavor to prevail with him to lay the subject before the Legislature of New-Jersey, at their next session.

Upon their arrival at Elizabeth-Town, the residence of Governor Williamson, they found, with much regret, that his extreme illness made it impossible for him to receive them.

They forwarded to his excellency, Note No. 1, accompanying this report, to which they received a verbal message, that the Governor was too ill to attend to any business, but would take up the subject to which the undersigned had called his attention, at the first moment of returning health. The undersigned then sent Note No. 2, to his excellency, and immediately returned to Pennsylvania, with all convenient speed.

On their arrival at Harrisburg, the seat of government of Pennsylvania, the undersigned were presented to his excellency Governor Shultz, by the Secretary of the Commonwealth, to whose polite attentions, they owe their acknowledgments, and were received by the Governor in a manner the most gratifying. He received the credentials of the undersigned, and promptly forwarded them to the Legislature, from both branches of which the undersigned received distinguished attentions, as soon as they were made known in their public character.

A joint committee of twelve was appointed to confer with them, and an invitation was given to disclose and explain their objects before the committee, in presence of both houses. This invitation was accepted, and the occasion was used by the undersigned to urge and enforce (as they had done in Delaware,) the imperative obligation of the Federal Constitution: the positive claims of the States in which slaves are held, to a faithful and effective execution of the duty imposed by the third paragraph of the second section, 4th article of that instrument; the various motives of expediency which concurred to make it the policy, as well as the duty, of the State of Pennsylvania to do justice to her sister State; and the very serious causes of dissatisfaction, and the great apprehension of antipathies and recriminations, in the event of her refusal to remove difficulties which many citizens of Maryland had been led to believe were deliberately multiplied for the direct purpose of obstructing their rights, although these rights were sanctioned by the supreme law, which the Legislature of a single State cannot control, and the guarantee of which rights, formed indeed, one of the leading pillars on which the union of the States is sustained. They also urged the obvious duty, as well as the plain policy of substituting facilities, as, without which, the provisions of the law, acknowledged to be supreme, would, in effect, be rendered inefficient for the avowed object of its enactment; and they finally presented such views of the subject as seemed to demonstrate that the direct interest of Pennsylvania would be promoted by the same legislation, which should discharge the positive obligation imposed upon her, and gratify the reasonable expectations of Maryland; referring to the correspondence between the two States, in 1823, as evincive of the just ground of expectation on the part of our State, which had instituted this deputation, as a measure the most friendly, and at the same time, the most acceptable to the government of Pennsylvania.

The undersigned had the gratification to see a bill very soon reported by the joint committee, in accordance with the views of the subject presented by them; alterations however, were made in the bill, in its passage through the House of Representatives: the result of hostility, as the undersigned were led to believe, growing entirely out of a mistaken apprehension of its import, and a false view of its object, by individuals who, in the progress of its discussion, had been excited to an opposition against it.

The changes made in the bill after it was reported to the House of Representatives, were based upon the following grounds, viz:—1st, to take from the bill, after careful examination, every thing that was not essential to obtain the object desired; and to avoid, because unnecessary, any detail or summary of common law remedies against rioters and obstructors of the execution of the law. 2dly, To adapt the bill, as far as could be done, without rendering it ineffectual, to the taste and sentiments of its fair and reasonable opponents.

The bill then passed the House of Representatives, was sent to the senate where it had no prospect of an early consideration as that body was actively engaged as a court of impeachment, in trying one of the judges. The Maryland Legislature was bawling to close its session, and the undersigned believed it their duty to return, & accordingly took their leave of the Legislature of Pennsylvania.

Some weeks after the close of the Maryland Legislature the undersigned received intelligence that the Senate of Pennsylvania had considered and passed the bill, and through the polite attention of a member of the House, they obtained an attested copy of the act, which accompanies this report. In this bill the Legislature of Pennsylv vania have embodied all their law in relation to fugitives from labor, and for the protection of their own free people of color.

A difference, will be remarked in the provisions of the law of Delaware, passed on this subject, and that of Pennsylvania; a difference called for by the local situation of the two States and adapted to the particular state of things incident to each. In Delaware, more provisions, and very different ones were required, from those most essential in Pennsylvania, because the territory of Delaware, being a narrow district of country lying in its greatest extent, between the Maryland line and the Delaware bay, which separates it from New Jersey, and in its northern extremity lying between Maryland & Pennsylvania; it was rather the thoroughfare for the Maryland fugitives from labor, than the asylum sought by them. It became indispensably necessary therefore not only to obtain from Delaware every proper and the most prompt facilities to arrest these fugitives within that State, but to require that she should not lend her territory to aid their escape, knowing as she did, that it was their common pass way. For this latter purpose, the undersigned urged, and procured a provision in the Delaware law, guarding against the transportation by water of fugitives from labor; which to Maryland was a most important part of the law. This provision is equally beneficial to the holders of slaves in Delaware, as it afforded like protection against the transportation by water of their own slaves, which is understood to be the most common mode of their escape. Thus the undersigned had the satisfaction of knowing that whilst the Legislature of Delaware were cheerfully performing an obligation absolutely due to her sister State of Maryland, they were, at the same time rendering an equal service to their own fellow citizens of Delaware, in the protection of a great interest. To have pretended that the duty to "surrender up," did not literally include a denial of transit through the State, and on that account to have refused all provisions to prevent such transit, would have been a nicety, or rather an equivocation, inconsistent with the fair mindedness of an intelligent legislature; and an attempt to take shelter under terms, to render a compact null, and to defeat its object, would have been a course entirely unworthy such men as composed the Legislature of Delaware.

The States forming this Union have solemnly agreed among themselves, "to pass no law or regulation which shall discharge a fugitive from labor from another state or territory, from that service; but that they will surrender the fugitive to the claimant of that State to whom his services are due." Should the authorities of a State, knowing that the fugitives from labor from another State, are constantly in the habit of passing through their State to escape from their master's service, refuse to prevent it by the only means in their power, would not such a refusal be a direct invitation to the fugitives to continue to use their territory as the ready means of escape? And would not such permission be a voluntary weakening and impairing of the federal compact on their part to the known injury of another State against which injury that compact intended to guard? And would this be consistent with good faith, and with a fair and just fulfilment of a solemn obligation?

As far as the undersigned could learn, there is no part of the State of Delaware where fugitives from labor tarry any time, except in and about the borough of Wilmington, where they are said to be employed on low wages, when they arrive during the working season and are then discharged and find another asylum during winter in the alms house of Philadelphia, where a very considerable proportion of them remain in worse than profitless idleness, a dead expense upon the inhabitants of that city. Such is the unfortunate situation of the slaves who run away, that, rendered dissatisfied at home with their masters, by the representations and allurements which they hear of from abroad, most of them find a poor and scanty subsistence at first in the temporary employment they meet with, where all the labour that can be imposed on them, is exacted, for which the miserable pittance contracted for is as often withheld as paid them; and at last they generally terminate their existence after unspeakable wretchedness, in the loathsome abodes of Southwark, in Philadelphia or in alms houses or as convicts in penitentiaries.

As a farther illustration of the difference that ought to be expected between the provisions of the laws of Delaware and Pennsylvania, it may be added, that Delaware, if not universally a slave holding State is extensively so, and that justice and duty to others, was protection to herself. Delaware, like Maryland is one of the small States, and she knows how to value the delicate and important principles of that compromise which eventuated in our happy union. She, too, as well as Pennsylvania and Maryland, feels a proper devotion to the union of these States, and will therefore, always prefer to discharge her federal obligations in spirit and in truth rather than to disregard them under any pretence that may be supplied by the refined doctrines of a mistaken modern philanthropy.

The State of Pennsylvania is one of the chief places of abode for our fugitives from labor;—they generally remain in some part of the State, and the provisions of a law to surrender them to the proper claimant, after search, seizure and proof, together with authority to convey them out of the State are the most important measures here. There are specific penalties against riotous attempts at rescue, and against turbulent interferences to hinder the arrest, or the taking away the fugitive to his proper State contained in the law of Delaware, which are not in the law of Pennsylvania. The insertion of such penalties in a law is intended more to explain and to serve as a terror to wrong doers than for any other purpose; and it is thought on that account to be useful, and so far as it would have a tendency to prevent improper acts, it would be truly benevolent.

The undersigned desire to have such a specification in the law of Pennsylvania, but it was alleged, as the undersigned well knew, that such offences were punishable at common law, and in a much higher degree, in the discretion of the court, than they could be under the limitation contained in the law of Delaware. The same offences are punishable in both States. In Delaware, the punishment is limited, by the bill in question;—in Pennsylvania, it is determined by the general law.

Upon the publication of these laws, the citizens of Maryland will be able to learn their precise provisions; and it is very important that they should proceed in the recovery of their fugitives from labor in these States, in strict conformity to the law, both for the purpose of avoiding complaint and the better to secure themselves in the recovery of their property.

All which is most respectfully submitted. EZEKIEL F. CHAMBERS, ARCHIBALD LEE, ROBT. H. GOLDSBOROUGH.

ART OF LIVING HAPPILY.

The following maxims, or rules of action might, if strictly observed go far to increase the happiness, or at least to diminish the inquietudes and miseries of life:—

Observe inviolably, truth in your words and integrity in your actions.

Accustom yourself to temperance, and be master of your passions.

Be not too much out of humour with the world; but remember it is a world of God's creating; and however sadly it is marred with wickedness and folly, yet you have found in it more comforts than calamities, more civilities than affronts, more instances of kindness towards you than of cruelty.

Try to spend your time usefully, both to yourself and others.

Never make an enemy, nor lose a friend unnecessarily.

Cultivate such an habitual cheerfulness of mind and evenness of temper, as not to be ruffled by trivial inconveniences & crosses.

Be ready to heal breaches in friendship and to make differences, and shun litigation yourself as much as possible, for he is an ill calculator that does not perceive that one amicable settlement is better than two law suits.

Be it rather your ambition to acquit yourself well in your proper station than to rise above it.

Despise not small honest gains, and do not risk what you have on the delusive prospect of sudden riches. If you are in a comfortable thriving way, keep in it, and abide your own calling rather than run the chance of another. In a word, mind to "use the world as not abusing it," and probably you will find as much comfort in it as is most fit for a frail being, who is merely journeying through it towards an immortal abode.

ANOTHER HUMBBUG.—We have not read the first part of the celebrated Morgan Book professing to disclose the secrets of Freemasonry, but a book has just been put into our hands, entitled, "The second part of Revelations of Masonry, made by a late member of the craft," which we have perused. It purports to give the secrets of the higher degrees, viz: the "Degree of Mark Man;" "Degree of Mark Master;" the "Architect's Degree in Masonry;" the "Degree of Grand Architect;" the "Degree of Scotch Master or Superintendents;" the "Degree of Secret Master;" the "Degree of Perfect Master;" the "Degree of Past Master;" the "Degree of Excellent Masons;" and the "Degree of Super-excellent Masons."

Now every member of the fraternity who has been passed and raised and advanced to the higher degrees of ancient Masonry, will smile at this enumeration; for with the exception of the degrees of Mark Master, and Past Master, we know of no such degrees in ancient Masonry. And in regard to these two, which are correctly named, we boldly pronounce the publication as impudent a hoax as was ever played off upon a credulous community. It is throughout a base calumny upon the order. We never heard of any such lectures as those given, nor of any such ceremonies, nor of any such obligations as are there set forth.

The whole is an ingenious, though a wicked fabrication.

Having taken the high degree of Knight Templar ourselves we speak understandingly and fearlessly upon this subject, and our denial of the authenticity of the book so far as we know any thing of Masonry is solemn and unqualified. If the public have a mind to buy the imposition, so be it. But we have reason to think that our course upon the Morgan affair has been so frank and impartial that we shall be believed in whatever we may say as of our own knowledge, by those who are as well as those who are not masons. And we have thought it our duty to put the public on their guard against so shameless an imposition. We have never knowingly deceived the public and we feel no more inclination to deceive them upon the subject of Morgan than any other.

system, did not receive the sanction of the Senate. We are disposed to attribute their failure in that body, more to a want of time to investigate them properly, than to a disinclination to promote the system.— We have no doubt another year will produce a different result. In the mean time the superintendent, Littleton D. Tacke, esq. has requested that the levy courts will cause the counties to be laid off into school districts agreeably to the provisions of the original law, which request, we presume, will be complied with. It is not expected that the law will go into simultaneous operation in all the counties or in all the school districts of the same county; hence, the fund required at the commencement, will be inconsiderable.—The sum of $60,000 is already invested, appropriated to this object, and about $100,000 it is expected will be received from the U. States to be applied to the same purpose. In addition to these general resources, Frederick county has a school fund of about $7,000 at interest, besides the annual donation of nearly $800. The education of all classes of society, is too important an object to be neglected on account of temporary obstacles and we are persuaded that, whatever hostility may now be felt towards the primary school system, the experiment has only to be fairly made, to reconcile all parties. If our means be not fully adequate at the present moment to sustain the system in extent, they are sufficient at least to commence with—and we may, we think, safely rely on future legislatures for a more ample provision.—Ad Rep.

LATEST FROM ENGLAND.
By the packet ship Columbia, Capt. Delano, London papers to the 12 ult. are received.

The great question of Catholic emancipation was brought up in the House of Commons on the 5th, and decided at 5 o'clock in the morning of the 7th, as follows: Ayes 272, Noes 276. Majority against the motion four. This decision had produced much excitement in Ireland, and arrangements were making to send a large deputation composed of members from all the counties with an address to the king on the subject.

London March 12.—It is confidently reported that Sir Henry Clinton has written home from Portugal, in the strongest terms, for reinforcements.—The gallant General, it is said, has declared 5000 additional troops to be absolutely necessary.

A destructive storm had taken place on the Irish coast. Much shipping was lost. Amongst the rest were the Enterprise from New-York, Burnett from New Orleans, and Ocean from Charleston—crews saved.

The London Courier, of March 8th, mentions a most extraordinary fall of snow in Scotland. It began early on Saturday, March 5th, and continued without intermission until Sunday noon. In Edinburgh streets it was as high as the balustrades of the areas.

This morning there was much agitation in the stock markets. Rumors are very rife in the city this morning, that Mr. Canning has resigned.

Portugal—Madrid dates of the 22d February state several British regiments had been engaged with the Portuguese Royalists, and had beaten them. The aid-de-camp of Gen. Clinton was killed in the action.

Spain—Letters from Madrid state, that new difficulties have just arisen between the Spanish Minister of Foreign Affairs and Mr. Lamb. The latter has complained that the principal part of the arms found on the Portuguese rebels are of the manufacture of Seville which are under the immediate control, and could not have been disturbed without the consent of the Spanish government.

The reports on 'Change were—'the resignation of Mr. Canning, the Chancellor of the Exchequer, and Mr. Huskisson'—'five thousand additional troops to be sent to Portugal'—'War news from Spain'—'a rebellion in Ireland,' &c.

He thinks the produce of silk alone will make a nation wealthy.

Died at Pliminton on Monday last 16th of April, TENCH TILGHMAN, Esquire, and was interred in the Family Burying Ground on Wednesday the 18th.—The day of his interment was the 45th anniversary of his birth.

A tribute to worth is a duty we owe to virtue, and as rewards have been in all ages the incentive to good conduct, to celebrate the lives of those who have acted well their part, is but to invite others to follow the bright example. How far we can give novelty to the expression of applause or embelish honors which have been often paid to others, is not so much a matter of consideration with those who prefer to promote the interest rather than subserv the taste of mankind. The unusually large and respectable concourse of Relatives, Friends and Neighbours, which attended him to the Tomb, gave the highest testimony of the estimation in which the deceased was held by those who best knew him—their demeanor indicated the most respectful regret—the universal expression was that of sincere lamentation and sorrow.—For when a good man falls in the midst of his usefulness and fame, society sustains a double loss; it is deprived both of the influence of his exertions and the utility of his example.

Mr. Tilghman was early well educated, and from his youth to his death he was remarkable for distinguished industry in the best pursuits of life. He was practical and of sound judgment—he was just, generous, and benevolent—in all his relations with society he was eminently useful, enterprising, and faithful—and above all, he was an unostentatious but sincere Christian.
We bewail his loss—but thank God! we do not grieve as those who are without hope.

Negroes for Sale.
THE subscriber offers for sale three families of negroes, now living in Talbot and Caroline counties, which he wishes to dispose of to good Masters in the neighbourhood of their present residence. They consist of three valuable women, supposed to be from 32 to 36 years of age, with their children; among whom are one young man about 19 or 20, two boys between 11 and 15, girls of 10 or 12, and younger children. ### THE CELEBRATED STALLION,

Tom Jefferson,

Will be let to mares this season on Mondays and Tuesdays at the subscriber's farm. (opposite Chestertown.) Wednesdays and Thursdays at Centreville, and on Fridays and Saturdays at Wye Mill. The season to commence on 8th April and end 8th July.—Terms $8 for each Mare, which may be discharged by the payment of $6 on or before the first of September next, and twenty-five cents to the groom. The greatest attention will be paid to Mares, but no responsibility for accidents.

PEDIGREE.

TOM JEFFERSON was foaled at Darley Hall near Baltimore, on the 24 September, 1823, is upwards of 16 hands high, a beautiful bright bay with black legs, finely formed and his action remarkably good. His sire was the celebrated imported horse Exile—a full blooded Cleveland Bay, his grand sire "one of the most splendid coach horses in England," his great grand sire "the famous Yorkshire horse Molineux that sold for 1100 guineas." His dam Fanny was got by Eagle out of a Mare raised by Nimrod Owings, Esq. of Frederick county, and owned by Isaac McKim, Esq. The dam of Fanny was got by the celebrated full bred horse Montezuma raised by H. D. Gough, Esq. her dam Dart, a full coach mare got by the imported dray horse Nebuchadnezzar, the property of C. A. Williams; her grand dam by Obscurity, her great grand dam by the imported horse Badger, the property of Mr. Carroll. Eagle the sire of Tom's dam may be traced (see English Stud Book) to Eclipse the most celebrated horse that England ever produced. Eagle was imported by the Messrs. Bells of Petersburg, Va. and cost 1500 guineas.

TOM JEFFERSON when he had just turned two years old was recommended to the attention of the breeders of fine horses, by the Agricultural Society of Maryland, and before he was three years old received a premium as a Stallion "adapted to get horses for the quick draft." See 7th A. Farmer, 90 Lewis' Colt.

It is the mixture of the Cleveland bay with the racing blood which produces the old English Hunter, and it is the cross from them that makes the Jersey horse more valuable than the Southern, giving them bone, size and high round action. The colour of these horses is confined to the various shades of bay always with brown muzzles, and they combine the fine symmetry, smoothness of coat and clean legs of the blooded. In fine it is now admitted in Europe that this breed can increase the size of the blooded horse without taking from them their activity, wind and figure. See 2d A. Farmer 239, and 4th A. F 24 and 133.

LA REVUE AMERICANE.

It was during the last summer, that the plan of this periodical work was first announced, in a letter from Mr. Levasseur to his friend in Richmond. We have received by the Cadmus the first seven numbers of it. It is a monthly Journal, (the first number appearing at Paris in July last.) making from 130 to 140 pages; handsomely printed upon very white paper. It is, as its title page expresses, entirely dedicated to American affairs, both north and south. We select for translation a very picturesque account of the Mississippi and Ohio—some of whose features must be quite new even to some of the American readers.

[Compiler.]

Navigation of the Ohio and Mississippi. The Recollections of an American citizen residing in the Atlantic States.

The first thing which attracts the attention of an inhabitant of the shores of the Atlantic, when he arrives at Pittsburgh, is the spectacle which is exhibited, by the variety and number of the boats. We are struck at first with the great batteau, of the size of a large Atlantic schooner, with its deck elevated, and of a grotesque appearance. Vessels of this kind, which require the efforts of 25 men to stem the current, are scarcely ever in use; and although it has not been more than ten years since they were very common, we rarely see them now. Then comes the keeled batteau, of a long, narrow, and elegant form, and carrying from fifteen to thirty tons. This vessel is constructed to navigate the shallows; it is still much used and is chiefly seen on the streams, which are not yet frequented by the steam boats.—The flat boats of Kentucky are a kind of ark, which is fifteen feet wide, and from 40 to 100 feet long, and carries from twenty to seventy tons. Whole families use these boats to descend the river. Those that they employ for the purpose, are called family boats; they are very large, and contain commodious and separate apartments, furnished with chairs, beds, tables and stores. It is not uncommon to see a large family, accompanied by its domestics, and carrying with it its live stock, such as pigs, horses, sheep, poultry, &c. descending the stream in one of these vessels, and thus presenting a representation of the ark of the scriptures. We see also boats of from eight to twelve tons, called of from two to four, hollowed out of a single tree, or formed of the trunks of two trees, joined together skids, of the ordinary form, and other little boats, which derive their names from the manner in which they are constructed. All these batteaux are very numerous, and easily distinguished by the names which they bear. But we find also in this land of liberty, some invention, & perhaps even caprice, some singular irregularities, that it would be impossible to refer to any known method of ship-building. It seems that the brains of these industrious & inventive men reject as they do servitude, the obligation of building according to an established form. The New York Canal begins to show the Atlantic States some examples of this infinite variety of naval architecture.

All these boats, so different in their forms, and for the most part so fragile in their appearance, are destined in most cases, for voyages of from 1200 to 3000 miles. The keeled boats are used for hunting expeditions on different points of the Missouri, Arkansas and Red Rivers at distances just as great; for, such are the interior voyages performed on these extensive water courses. There the nautical phrases are as novel as the forms of their boats, and the manners of the watermen are as strange as their language. All their resting days are spent at the table, in smoking, drinking and singing, and these are pleasures in which the women often participate. Each boat, during the whole time that it remains at its place of destination, is furnished with many fiddlers who are constantly scraping on their violins to the sound of which, we see the watermen incessantly dancing. We ought not to be astonished, if this mode of life, alternately very indolent, or very active—sometimes requiring but little or no effort, offering at one time no danger, then all at once more laborious and perilous than that of the Atlantic navigators, should present irresistible seductions to young people, born near the water-side. The boats passing before their dwellings on the beautiful spring mornings; the verdant forests, the sweet and delicious temperature of the air, the brilliant blue of the skies of this country, the large river presenting an unbroken surface, flowing gently the whole length of the forest and bearing along the boat on its bosom, present an harmonious tout ensemble, which exhilates their youthful imaginations. The boatmen dance to the sound of the fiddle on the deck of their batteaux, and give vent to their gaiety in addressing the girls, who come down on the banks to enjoy the spectacle. The boat glides on until it disappears behind a point of the forest; at this moment, the boat's horn is heard and rebounds to a great distance over the waters. These scenes & this music reverberated by the echoes of the magnificent Ohio act so powerfully on the imagination, that although the spectacle be a thousand times represented to my view, at all hours and in every imaginable situation yet it has for me a charm always new and delightful. Let us not be astonished then if, the youth of these remote countries, brought up in a restless curiosity which solitude and silence are so well calculated to nourish, amid scenes so frequently revisited, should be easily disgusted with the painful, and never ceasing labors of agriculture, and should seize every opportunity of embracing the dangerous profession of a boatman. The general taste of the inhabitants on the banks of these long streams for this profession, explains their aversion to the steam boats, which diminish every day the number of little boats and their crews, and which have already deprived 10,000 men of their employment on the western waters; and still, notwithstanding all these seductions, both for the eye and the imagination, no course of life is so miserable, so precarious, and so full of danger, as that of the watermen. In no occupation are men so easily exhausted. Although it has been but a short time since this species of navigation was first originated, we are sure to see at every bend of the river, and on each elevated point of the bank, some rude monument, some rustic memorial, erected by a brother boatman, which shows that there rest the ashes of a companion who at that spot has either been exhausted by fatigue or buried in the waves.

The Mississippi and the Ohio are nearly of the same size; at their junction, the surrounding country is equally marshy and inundated; the species of vegetation on their banks bears much resemblance to each other, and yet the two rivers present very different aspects. The Ohio is calm and tranquil, and except when it is swollen, its waters are commonly limpid; the Mississippi on the contrary is always muddy, its course is every where rapid and impetuous, its surface presenting numerous and singular irregularities; in many places the water seems to boil upwards for a considerable distance with the force of a rapid whirlpool, attended by a hissing noise, and forms above the common level a swell in the current, which is continually disappearing and renewing itself. We might say that the river is always in a rage, it tears up the earth which borders on its banks, together with the woods which follow it, and bears away these spoils to immense distances.

It is difficult to imagine a more laborious and more dangerous task than that of ascending the river. The difficulties will soon be diminished on account of the number of steam-boats, which they are establishing on its bosom, and which by the power of their motion can accomplish what no force either of oars or sails can do at present. The following is the state of navigation on the Mississippi: The river is covered with boats of every dimension, which are propelled by the aid of poles, oars, or the assistance of men or horses placed on the banks. I have seen in the spring on a single day, at least a hundred boats arrive at New Madrid.—The noisy joy of their crews, their reciprocal congratulations, the living picture that the mixture of numerous animals of every kind presents on board the boats, the variety of their cargoes, but above all, the idea of the long distance that these boats had just passed over, and of that which they had still to surmount, inspired me with a feeling of surprise and meditation. There is not a single spot on the numerous rivers which empty into the Ohio and Mississippi, that is not represented by some of these boats; some convey timber for building, from the pine forests in the southwest of New York; others coming down from Kentucky are charged with flour, whiskey, hemp, tobacco and rope. Tennessee sends the same articles, besides great quantities of cotton; from the Missouri and Illinois rivers are brought cattle, horses, the greatest part of the production of the states on the Ohio, and also poultry and lead—some boats are entirely filled with corn; others with apples and potatoes, others with cider, and of the kind which they call royal, being no other than common cider, whose strength they have increased by freezing or boiling it. Dried fruits and spirituous liquors of every kind, compose also a part of these cargoes, which altogether present a specimen of the different productions of the industry and agriculture of the whole upper country of the west. These numerous boats which coming from the different points for many thousand miles have made towards the same spot, cover a space of many acres.

All the animals of the poultry yard occupy the surface of the boats; we may hear their different noises mixed with the lowing of the horned cattle. The sailors pass from one boat to another, either to collect information, or to lend each other assistance in the difficulties that the navigation of the river as far as New Orleans presents. After an hour or two passed in this manner, they go on shore and enter the town for refreshment. The inhabitants consider themselves very fortunate, if in the course of the evening they do not indulge themselves in some excess—in this case I have seen them adopt speedy and severe measures. About midnight the whole tumult is calmed. The fleet forms itself again at Natchez or New Orleans, but the current of the river is so considerable, that the sailors who meet once perhaps never see each other again.

At day break the horns are heard; every living thing on board the boat is immediately in motion. In the space of half an hour, the whole fleet moves, and soon disappears, restoring to the place it leaves that profound calm which its arrival had interrupted. I have often seen several boats attached together and thus rowing on in company. I went once on board a convey, which was composed of eight boats; the surface of this floating town presented an extensive promenade; the crews exchanged their provisions; some furnished pork, others apples, nuts, cider and dried fruits; one of these boats served as a mart for making their exchanges. The convey does not always sail in this manner; sometimes the boats row separately, but in this case they are sufficiently near each other, to interchange visits by means of their cargoes.

Whilst I was at New Madrid, I saw on board a boat, a manufacture of tin utensils; all the articles which are embraced in that line of business, are finished at this floating manufactory, and are sold by wholesale and retail. I heard them speak of a shop still more extraordinary, which came down the Ohio, and was momentarily expected at New Madrid. In this they made hatches, scythes, & all other iron instruments of the kind; they also shod horses in it; it was in fact a first rate blacksmith's shop. I have often seen in this country, boats which carried stores of valuable merchandise which were arranged in the greatest order; the delicate hands of the merchants, might have rivalled those of the New York ladies. It is a very common thing now to see batteaux sailing like steam boats, by means of mechanical wheels, which are put in motion by the force of a horse. Besides every spring some invention of this kind becomes known being the fruit of the meditations in which the farmer indulges himself at his fire side, during the winter.

LATEST FROM SMYRNA.

The editors of the New York Daily Advertiser have received Smyrna papers to Jan. 12th. Their contents are interesting as they confirm several important facts highly favourable to the Greeks; and, as usual in such cases, furnish evidence that that paper does some times assist, however unwillingly, in the dissemination of truth. In beginning with the last paper, we find that the dissensions at Hydra have been completely terminated, through the influence of Conduroiti; and that Colocotroni is on perfectly good terms with him. Some of the arrangements for a combined attack on Athens, for the relief of Fabvier and the citadel, are confirmed. 60,000 francs had arrived from the Paris committee, which had long been expected.

A report was spread at Smyrna, on the 7th of Dec. that Captain Hastings' steam boat, which had been seen on her passage from Syria, was to join the Hydriot squadron at Samos, to make an attack on the Turkish port of Scala Nova, near Smyrna. The editor sometimes affects to speak contemptuously of the Greek navy; but he gives this report with some trepidation.

The Greeks still hold the fortresses of Grabousi in Candia, which the Spectator complains of as affording great facilities to predatory vessels. Indeed a letter from Canee says they are blockaded by Greek pirates. It is situated on a rock, on the western point of the island of Candia, thirty miles from Canee and commands a small port that has two entrances, one of which is only accessible to small vessels. The fort has 30 cannon and 300 men, commanded by Dasealos Cumini, of Celino, with two Saluti for his principal officers. They have fitted up a large schooner from Napoli, as a galiot, with 24 oars, and several barges; and have declared the island under blockade.

The British Vice Consul for Rhodes has lately been captured, on his way from Carra Mania, by pirates, who carried him to Simis, under promise of a ransom. The pirates were however fired upon, at his request, and escaped after losing some of their number.

The Seraskier Pacha at Constantinople, had nearly recovered from his wounds.—The troops are said to make great proficiency in exercise. On the birth of his child, (which since died,) Mr. S. Canning liberated eleven Greeks who had been imprisoned for various causes; and the account of the child being buried in the Greek Church is confirmed.

M. Forcetti has arrived at Canee, in Candia, as French Consul; and M. S. Sauveur has gone to the Dardanells, as vice Consul from the same country.

The Austrian Vice Admiral Poulucci had recently left Smyrna for Venice, in the frigate Elbe, having performed his service of six months, as fixed by the Aulic Council.

JACKSON MEETING.

The friends of General Jackson, in Montgomery county, Maryland, having given notice to the voters of several election districts in said county, through the medium of the public journals published in said county, to convene on Saturday, the 14th instant, in their respective districts for the purpose of appointing committees to meet the general committee at Rockville to select delegates to meet the Jackson convention in the city of Baltimore, in May next—a sufficient number of the friends of Gen. Jackson not appearing to form a meeting, a large number of the friends of the Administration who happened accidentally to be present, determined to form a meeting and express their sentiments, and what they believed the sentiments of two thirds or more of the people of their district and county in regard to the presidential election.

Having organized a meeting by calling William Hemphost to the chair, and appointing William White Secretary—John H. Bea, Richard Galt, James L. Piater, John M. Williams, Henry W. Talbert, Ignatius P. Lyles, George W. Fletcher, Nathan T. Hemphost, Thomas Hodges and Richard Watson, were appointed a committee to draft and report resolutions for the consideration of the meeting; who, having reported the following, they were adopted:

Resolved, That notwithstanding this meeting duly appreciate the distinguished services rendered by Gen. Jackson to his country in the late war, and that none hold him in higher estimation, or feel more grateful for his military services, yet we feel the utmost confidence in our present illustrious chief magistrate, JOHN Q. ADAMS, and believing him to be better qualified to fill the chair of state, will use all fair and honorable means to promote his election to the next presidency of these U. States.

Resolved, That we have entire confidence in the patriotism, virtue, integrity and talents of the honourable HENRY CLAY, the wise dicit of his calumniators to the contrary notwithstanding.

Resolved, That the proceedings of this meeting be signed by the chairman and secretary, and published in the county papers. WM. HEMPSTONE, Chairman. WM. WHITE, Sec'y.

WINCHESTER REPUBLICAN, EXTRA.

Tuesday Morning half past 4 o'clock, April 10.

SHENANDOAH ELECTION.

Our express has this moment returned from Woodstock, bringing the following result of the first day's election: Woodstock Milford Frederick Tot. Alfred H. Powell 36 16 959 1011 Robert Allen 505 185 55 835

Powell's present majority 206

We confess that this vote does not meet our expectations, and that we entertain strong fears of Mr. Powell's re-election.—Every effort which man could make was making against him. Men who had not voted for twenty years were brought in, & the country scouring in every direction.—Mr. Kercheval was urged to withdraw but he peremptorily declined, declaring that he had given his honour to his friends to continue. He was the only candidate who addressed the People; and in his speech said he had been shamefully treated by Frederick; that men of the first respectability had deserted him, after promising him their support; and that if Shenandoah united in favor of their candidate, he could not complain. On Mr. K's concluding, the voting commenced about 11 o'clock.

We would gladly pass over the scene which followed. We do most sincerely lament that human nature is capable of such deep depravity as was yesterday evinced at the Shenandoah election. On Mr. Powell's challenging a voter, the fellow belched forth the most horrible blasphemies against him, saying he ought to be horsewhipped out of the county. This outrage was a signal for a general concert of damned spirits. The most opprobrious epithets were flung around the court house, and through the public streets. 'Damn Powell! the tory! damned rascal!' 'Hurra for Allen and Jackson!' 'Sour krout forever!' 'Damn the gingerbread voters!' and other like expressions were uttered by men, women, and children. Mr. Powell was repeatedly defied and blasphemed, and personal violence was threatened him in the street. Mr. P's friends were obliged to maintain the utmost reserve, at the hazard of their lives. Such is the happy effect of party spirit.

Wednesday, April 11.—The polls were to continue open three days. I have heard that at half past two o'clock, P. M. yesterday, Powell's majority was reduced to about 50. To-day, Allen will probably go ahead 40 or 50. Mr. Powell's defeat is a public calamity.

[We learn from a gentleman who left Woodstock after the polls were closed on Tuesday evening, that Allen was several votes ahead of Powell. No doubt remains, therefore, that Mr. Powell has been defeated.—Alex. Phoenix Gazette.]

As the election is now over, and the defeat of Mr. POWELL may be considered certain, we may say of him what we could not have said with propriety had he been re-elected, and without any disparagement we hope to his respectable successor, that a few members of the House of Representatives were more useful or more respected—none certainly more respectable—we consider his absence from Congress a loss to the public at large, and to his own State in particular.

Mr. W. W. Seaton, one of the editors of the National Intelligencer, has published, in the Washington Telegraph of Thursday, the following account of a casual dialogue between him and Colonel Richard M. Johnson, Senator in Congress, from Kentucky.

"Some time in the session of 1825-6, as I was passing through the Senate chamber to the secretary's table, after the senate had adjourned, I was hailed by Col. Johnson (sitting near one of the fire places under the gallery, with one other member standing or walking near him) who, in his familiar manner of speaking, said, 'How goes it, old friend? Well, when are you coming out?'"

Editor.—On what subject, Colonel?"

Col. J.—Why, on the Presidential question. Are you not coming out against the Administration?"

Editor.—I can't tell. The Administration has hardly commenced its career yet, and I don't see any thing, so far, to condemn.

Col. J.—What of that? Has not Clay taken away the laws from your paper?"

Editor.—True; but that would be making a private grievance a motive for public conduct; and that we cannot do, however sore we may feel about it. As for Mr. Clay, I know he is no friend of ours; we opposed him, and I understand that he has always been hostile to us and our paper; but the Administration may pursue a policy that we have approved in other Administrations, and if they do so, how can we with any consistency oppose them?"

Col. Johnson (with vehemence, and, I think, with an oath)—I would not care for that. If any body injured me, I would give them as good as they sent; and, as for this Administration, we will turn them out as sure as there is a God in Heaven.

Editor.—But, Colonel, how can you say so, before you see what course the Administration will adopt? Suppose they consult the public interest, and pursue a course that you think right?"

Col. J.—I don't care; [raising his arm, and speaking with warmth.] for, by the Eternal, if they act as pure as the Angels that stand at the right hand of the Turou of God, we'll put them down.

"To this I made no reply, but left Colonel, to pursue the errand that carried me to the Senate chamber."

Ebenezer Shannon has been tried at Boston, and found guilty of passing three dollar bills of the Suffolk Bank of that city, and five of the Concord Bank. On the trial, the following letter written by Shannon to Mary Thompson (to whom he was to be married in a short time) was read in evidence. The occasion which led to its being produced, was, that Mary being unable to read, had handed it to another who was in the same predicament, and who, in her turn, handed it to Marston, (whose name is mentioned) for interpretation:

"Dear Mary—I wish to prove that I took the money which I am taken up for, for if I can do this by two good evidences I shall get clear, if not, I must suffer. I am charged with passing two three dollar bills, which you know I took down to Mr. Nutting's house for a watch, which I sold for eighteen dollars. You will recollect, I presume, that I asked the man if the money was good, and he told me that it was. He said that he was the second mate on board a vessel in this port, and that his name was Biggs. George Sager will swear to this effect, and likewise Mr. Prescott, and I wish you to see Mr. Gordon."

Or otherwise follow these instructions. Lay it upon Mars on whom every body despises, let the evidences testify that they saw him give me the money, for good money, and that I borrowed of him for thirty days, a sum of seventy five dollars, and among them several three dollar bills, and that I asked him if these bills were good, and he said that he took them out of the bank. I prefer this plan to the two. If it is possible, I wish you to get a bill of this description in his possession, go into the woodhouse and get upon the wood and on the left hand, under the eaves, there you will find some bills, put two or three in Marston's hat or pocket under the lining, but will be best; and let me or my lawyer know as soon as you have done it; and I take the remainder of the money and secure it properly, or burn it, as you think proper. Take particular notice of the bills and see what bank, what number, so that the evidences can swear to them, for they are all of one kind; and get as many evidences as you can to swear to this. One of these things must be done or I must go to the State Prison. I wish you to come and see me while I am in jail.—Shannon."

PHILADELPHIA, April 18.

One of the most happy discoveries of the age is that of Mr. Louson; of a cure for drunkenness. The accounts from New Orleans continue to bear favourable testimony to the efficacy of his remedy. The following is given in the newspapers as his prescription.

Receipt.—Tincture Assafoetida; Tart. Antimony; Ipecacuanha.

Mix these with the particular spirit or liquor which you want to shun, and drink a wine glass full every morning, fasting, for a week, when I will insure a voluntary abstinence for one year. An infusion of the leaves of Tobacco, will prove a very valuable auxiliary. As soon as any inclination is felt to resume the cup, the remedy must be promptly applied; or there will be a relapse.

Yesterday a man whose face had the marks when usually attend this besetting vice, came to our office to enquire where the remedy could be procured. He said he had been a habitual drunkard for ten years; had nearly exhausted a large property, and quite broken his wife's heart. He said he would be cured, heaven knew if he could, and would give any thing he possessed for the remedy. We were quite happy to furnish him with the above recipe gratis, which he took and left the office with great joy.

We learn from a gentleman lately arrived from the Spanish Main, that the two frigates Colombia and Centinamarca, intended for some hostile expedition against the Spanish territory, were nearly ready for sea on the 20th March, when the preparations were suddenly suspended, by an order from Balivar, and the expedition abandoned, as it was presumed, for the want of funds to carry it on. It was generally understood that Porto Rio was its object; and that the ships were to co-operate in some manner with the Mexican squadron.

Com. Porter's movements have all along appeared to indicate some intended co-operation, and it would not be strange if, on being disappointed in this manner, he should undertake some active measures, as he may think his character requires some more energetic course, after allowing himself to be nominally blockaded by a squadron he pretends to despise.—N. Y. Daily Adv.

BALTIMORE, April 23.

Commodore Porter.—By the schooner Tison, captain Hallett, arrived at New York from Xibara, Cuba, we learn that letters had been received from Havana, stating that two briggs belonging to Com. Porter's squadron had been captured, by Laborde's fleet. A letter from Havana, dated April 7, contains the following passage:—"One of our coasting vessels has arrived here, bringing on board, as prisoners, the first officer of Com. Porter, one lieutenant, and several seamen, who were risen upon by the Spanish crew after their capture."

We understand, that the Yearly Meeting of Friends, now in Session in this City, have appropriated three thousand dollars, towards defraying the expense of certain Free People of Colour from the state of North Carolina, (where their laws will not permit them to remain,) to Liberia, Hayti, and the free states, as they may prefer. EASTON, Md.

SATURDAY EVENING, APRIL 28.

We publish to day the statement given of the election between Col. Powell and Mr. Allen in Virginia, and we regret that in the course of our duty it becomes necessary to exhibit the violence which marked the event.—If this is to be a sample of the arbitrary & violent proceedings of the friends of Gen. Jackson, we shall have other and stronger reasons for declining to unite with an opposition which means to carry its plans by this prostration of every thing that ought to characterize the conduct of freemen in the exercise of their most serious and important duties.—We refrain from further remarks upon this occasion, and shall leave it to the reflections of our fellow Citizens to make their own comments.

THE COMING ELECTION.

Much is said and calculated upon Mr. Van Buren & New York, as being about to carry the election of President in favour of General Jackson, by throwing the great State of New York into his scale.—If the New York patriots are all of the stamp of that class of gentlemen that the National Intelligencer describes, who maintain the doctrine that political opinions and influence are as much a matter of property as any other possessions, and are therefore as fit subjects of barter and sale, why then indeed there is no calculating upon New York—nor if there is as large a proportionable sum raised by the opposition to influence States as it is said is prepared to regulate the press—the great state will be presumed to go with the highest bidder.—But our intelligence from very good sources and much to be relied on is far different—we learn that the intelligence from New York is most flattering—that Mr. Adams is rapidly gaining ground in Pennsylvania, notwithstanding the Legislative Caucus, and that the western States are regularly growing in good will towards his administration. The great calculation is made upon the Congressional Caucus to be held next winter at Washington which is to set all to rights and to dictate to the people whom they are to vote for as President. Now we are not sure that the people are quite willing that the Congressional Caucus should usurp the right to dictate to them who they must elect as President, we are rather inclined to believe that the good Citizens of this Republic mean to make their own choice and to select for themselves.—If so, and we believe it so, we think that whatever impression the Caucus may make upon New York, it will open the eyes and fix the opinions of multitudes against it.

In these times when all is to be begun anew, we hope that our fellow Citizens will take warning from the past, and in all great matters concerning their own and the National Interest, that they will exercise their own sound discretion and pin their faith upon the sleeves of no man or set of men.

Forward Season—Peas planted in open garden ground podding on the 25th of April.

We understand from a friend in Cambridge, that Ned, the chimney sweep, who robbed the store of Wm. H. Groome in this town last May and who has been confined for some time past in the jail in Cambridge for robbing the store of Bell & James in that town, was last week, after receiving a few lashes, sentenced by the court, discharged—on Sunday night last he again paid Cambridge a visit, and descended the chimney of Lockerman & Craig's store and took therefrom upwards of 200 dollars in cash with many articles of merchandise—Ned was not even suspected until a day or two after the robbery, when he was discovered about ten miles from Cambridge with the goods and taken up and brought back—$130 of the money was found on him. He is now safely lodged in Cambridge jail, and our correspondent thinks it is not likely he will again play them a similar trick.

Ned had taken up his residence with a Mr. John Thompson who resides near New-Market and who has also been committed to jail being suspected of concealing the money and goods.

A man by the name of William Welch, who resided in Queen Anne's county about two miles from Hillsborough hung himself on the 21st instant. On going out he informed his wife he wished to attend personally to the repairing of his fences and should not return for some time—staying longer than she expected she became uneasy and went to look for him—she found him hanging by the neck from the branch of a tree near the fence, his feet touching the ground, but every spark of life had fled.

The Philadelphia papers state that Mr. Cooper's new Novel, The Prairie, will be published in about a fortnight. At the date of the latest intelligence from the author, he was still in Paris attending to the publication of that work, of which five editions are in the press, one in England, two in Paris, in French and English; one in Berlin, and one in this country; all of them are to appear simultaneously.

Dr. Muse, President of the Dorchester Agricultural Society, in Maryland, proposes the cultivation of madder in that state.—We are very glad to see the introduction of this product, so important to manufacturers, recommended to the attention of agriculturists in this country. It is only necessary to ascertain the best manner of raising it, to have it become a highly profitable crop, as it will always find a market.—Perhaps it is not generally known, that every hue of red, all the purples, and almost every shade of brown, applied to cotton manufactures, are derived from this invaluable root. This may be considered another item, by which individual enterprise and advantage may aid in rendering this country independent of Europe; a point never to be lost sight of, when it can be achieved without invading constitutional principles. [N. Y. Times.]

VELOCIPEDA.

The South American horse Velocipeda will stand this season at Easton, at Mr. Lowe's Stable every Tuesday, at the Trappe every Saturday, and at the subscriber's stable the remainder of the week, at the moderate sum of four dollars the season, two dollars the single leap, ten dollars to insure a colt, and 25 cents in each case to the groom, provided it is paid by the first of September, but if not paid by that time, 25 per cent in each case will be added.—The following certificates will prove beyond any doubt his pedigree.

NS: MARTIN.
PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 29, 1826.
I do certify that the black stallion Velocipeda, once owned by me, was imported from Lagura by Mr. Patullo, Merchant of Philadelphia, and that he has several Spanish marks on him; that I had the original certificate of his pedigree wherein it is stated that he cost 3 or 4 hundred dollars and that he could pace a mile in 3 minutes.
M. GEBLER.
N. B. I owned him about nine months—He is one of the King of Spains full bred, Naraganset breed of pacing horses and bears the marks which are put on all that breed of Horses as I am told.

M. GEBLER.
I know the above to be correct—and I have seen two very fine colts of his, one of which is a very fast trotter, supposed to be able to beat any thing of his age.
B. GRAVES.
He is reputed to get bay colts generally, those that I saw were bay—Mr. Gebler is the first Teller of S. Gerard's Bank. I saw the original certificate and I know the horse to be an extraordinary performer, having known him for these 3 or 4 years.
