SHERIFF BILL QUEER

If Ratified By The People Each County Would Have Two Sheriffs

If a bill amending the Constitution and which was passed by the General Assembly is ratified by the people Sheriff McNulty will be legislated out of office and every county in the State will have two sheriffs. As originally introduced by Mr. Bryant, the measure extended the term of the sheriff of Baltimore county to four years.

Four other counties wanted the terms of their officials extended and the bill was so amended. When the bill reached the Senate another county was added and, according to Deputy Sheriff Heine, who followed the bill through both houses, this amendment was concurred in by the House. In this shape it was passed.

After having been reprinted and enrolled it read very differently from the way it is said to have passed. Attorney General Ritchie went over it carefully and said that the most important provision was mixed. It provided, for instance, that in 1917, every county should elect a sheriff whose term shall be four years and in 1919 there is to be another election at which another sheriff is to be elected for four years.

In amending the Constitution no provision was made for Baltimore City at all and, as a result, the city will have no sheriff, while each of the counties will have two.

The bill being an amendment to the Constitution does not require the signature of the Governor and hence it will take its place on the ballot along with other questions to be submitted.

The District School Play

"The District School at Blueberry Corners," given by local talent at the Auditorium last Wednesday evening, for the benefit of the Princess Anne Library, was in every way a marked success. Miss Irene Taylor, who managed the little play, deserves the greatest amount of commendation for her successful efforts. The audience was large and about $86 was secured for the Library.

The parts were well taken. Mr. Charles W. Wainwright, who was the successful applicant for the teacher's position, showed remarkable skill in his unruly school, and his pupils, all of whom were well known adults, showed very cleverly some of the curious episodes of the old time district system. There were three scenes: The Examination of Teachers, First Day of School and Closing Exercises of the Term. A sextette, composed of three young ladies and three young men rendered musical selections between the scenes. It would be difficult to detail the exploits of the various participants in the little comedy. It is enough to say that every part taken by the performers was finely rendered.

Mr. B. Louis Lankford Goes To Haiti

B. Louis Lankford, Chief Pay Clerk, U. S. Navy, who has for some time been stationed at the U. S. Naval Home, Philadelphia, Pa., came down to Princess Anne, with his family, on Friday, the 21st inst. to spend the week with their relations and friends.

They arrived on the 8 p. m. train and at 11 o'clock the same night Mr. Lankford received telegraphic orders from the Governor of the Naval Home to return at once as he had orders from the Secretary of the Navy for him to proceed to Norfolk, Va., immediately for passage to Port au Prince Haiti, for duty with the United States Customs Commissioner at that place.

Mr. Lankford left Philadelphia the following night for Norfolk and sailed on Thursday, the 27th for Haiti by the U. S. S. Hecktor.

Haiti is at present policed by the United States Marine Corps and all customs are collected under the supervision of the Pay Department of the U. S. Navy.

Court House Lawn

The Court House lawn has been greatly improved by the planting of evergreens in spaces about the east and south sides of the building. County Demonstrator, H. S. Lippincott, has been directing the work, co-operating with the Civic Club of Princess Anne. The grounds have heretofore been unrelieved and what the grass has been well kept, there was a bareness that will now be completely changed for the better. The expense will be met partly through the funds of the Civic Club and also through a balance remaining over from the Court House building fund. Mr. Lippincott has shown wonderful taste in the planting and arrangement of the young growth and the appearance of the lawn will be very much beautified.

Mrs. Eliza R. Simpkins and Mrs. Annie White, of Dames Quarter, are visiting Mrs. S. Frank Dashiell, on Main street.

Campbell-Barclay Wedding

A marriage of especial interest to the residents of Princess Anne and Somerset county was solemnized in Baltimore last month, when Miss Lohie E. Barclay, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Barclay, of near Princess Anne, became the bride of Mr. David W. Campbell, of Baltimore.

The ceremony was performed at the Rutland Avenue Church by the Rev. J. G. Biggs. Mr. Paul Barclay, brother of the bride, officiated as best man and Miss Dora Porter, the bride's cousin, was maid of honor. The wedding party was taken to the church in automobiles and immediately after the ceremony, were driven to the home of the newly married couple on East Chase street, where a wedding supper was served.

The bride was becomingly gowned in gray crepe de chine and carried a large bouquet of bride's roses. The bridal attendants were all gowned in white and carried bouquets of white carnations.

At the conclusion of the wedding supper the guests were taken for a ride over the city in the waiting automobiles, arriving at Union Station, in time for the midnight express for Florida. After a short honeymoon in the land of flowers, the young couple will return and be at home to their friends at 1912 East Chase street, Baltimore.

Giving the devil his due is a good bit like passing him a retaining fee.

W. M. COLLEGE BANQUET

Graduates and Friends Met In Salisbury Last Friday Night

The Alumni of Western Maryland College on the Eastern Shore held a banquet at the Peninsula Hotel, Salisbury, Friday evening last. Covers were laid for 100 and every seat was occupied. The collation was a marked success in every particular and the renewal of college associations created the greatest enthusiasm among the graduates and friends of the school.

The toast master of the occasion was the Hon. Alonzo L. Miles, a member of the class of 1883, and a native of Somerset county. Speeches were made by Mr. J. L. Smith, of Baltimore, of the class of 1896, Rev. James Stranghn, of the class of 1899; Hon. L. Atwood Bennett, of the class of 1894, also a native of this county; Mr. L. Irving Pollitt, of the class of 1882; Hon. W. Jerome Wimbrough, of Whaleyville, and Dr. Thomas H. Lewis, President of the institution.

Mr. Miles, in introducing Mr. Pollitt, stated that the latter was a native of Wicomico county, but Mr. Pollitt gracefully corrected the error by saying that he "was born near Salisbury in Somerset county." Dr. Lewis made the principal address of the evening and in fluent and eloquent language reviewed briefly the past history of the college and told of the needs, the aims and purposes of the institution for the future.

Those who attended the banquet from Princess Anne were: Hon. Joshua W. Miles, Mr. and Mrs. George H. Myers, Mrs. Berkeley Fontaine, Dr. Henry M. Lankford, Mr. and Mrs. Harry C. Dashiell, and Messrs. Wilmer O. Lankford, Jr. and Charles W. Wainwright.

Death Of Charles A. Miller

Mr. C. A. Miller, a well-known citizen of Westover district, died at the Peninsula General Hospital, Salisbury, where he had been taken for an operation, last Thursday evening, aged 64 years. Mr. Miller had been ill for some time and when taken to the hospital he was immediately placed on the operating table and died before the operation could be completed.

Mr. Miller was a prominent farmer and canner. In 1904 he was elected Sheriff of Somerset county, which is the only office he ever held.

Mr. Miller is survived by two daughters, Misses Mollie and Elizabeth Miller, of Westover, his wife having died some years ago; he is also survived by a brother, Mr. Sidney L. Miller, who resides about two miles from Princess Anne, and two sisters, Mrs. Wm. T. Porter, of Loretto, and Mrs. Sarah Lekie, of Baltimore.

Funeral services were held from his late home last Saturday afternoon at 3 o'clock, Rev. W. F. Atkinson officiating. The remains were then brought to Princess Anne and were interred in the churchyard of Antioch Methodist Episcopal Church, where his wife is buried.

To-day (Tuesday) and to-morrow (Wednesday) the Southern Convocation of the diocese of Eastern of the Episcopal Church will meet at St. Mary's Church, in Pocomoke City.

On Wednesday morning at 9.30 o'clock, the Rev. Edwin S. Hinks, of Great Choptank parish, Cambridge, will make an address, and at 10.30 o'clock there will be a service and celebration of the Holy Communion in the church. The sermon at this service will be preached by the Rev. G. M. Galarsneau, the rector of All Hallow's church in Snow Hill.

At 2 o'clock on Wednesday afternoon there will be a general business meeting, and election of officers, and a discussion of "How to Raise Money for Missions in Missions," led by the Rev. Vernon Ashworth.

Wonderful Musical Instrument

Learey & Walker have placed in their ice cream and confectionery establishment a very sweet-toned Regina music box for the amusement of their many customers. This instrument is a mechanical wonder as well as a dispenser of classical music, perfectly imitating an orchestra, while the disc of each separate tune takes its place and returns automatically without human aid or assistance other than the winding of the springs; this all takes place in full view of the spectator while the beautiful music floats through the air.

Mr. Walter M. Butler, of Westover, has returned home after spending Easter Holidays in Baltimore.

M. E. CONFERENCE

General Session Convened Yesterday At Saratoga Springs

Yesterday morning (May 1st) the twenty-seventh quadrennial session of the General Conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church convened at Saratoga Springs, New York.

Mr. Thomas H. Bock, of Princess Anne, was selected as the Lay Electoral Conference recently held in Wilmington, Del., as the delegate from Salisbury district, to this conference.

This body, of over eight hundred ministers and laymen in equal numbers, meets every four years to review the work of the church and to revise and add to its legislation. The General Conference is made up of delegates from the one hundred and thirty-three annual conferences, the annual conference being the working unit of Methodism. These delegates are elected on a basis of one ministerial delegate for every forty-five, or fraction not less than two thirds of forty-five, ministerial members in any given annual conference, the number of lay delegates always being the same for each conference as its ministerial delegates.

Among the important matters that will come before the General Conference at Saratoga Springs are the questions concerning union with the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, which has been under discussion with both of these important branches of Methodism for some time; the question whether the church shall elect Bishops for races and languages; the election of bishops to take the place of those who have died during the last four years and those who will retire from active service automatically by reason of this session being nearest to their seventy-third birthday; the election of editors for the church press, which includes the Methodist Review, the numerous weekly Christian Advocates, the Epworth Herald and the Sunday school publications of the Church; the election of corresponding secretaries for such church boards as the Board of Foreign Missions, the Board of Home Missions and Church Extension, the Freedman's Aid Society, the Board of Education, the Board of Sunday Schools, etc., the election of publishing agents (administrative heads) of the Methodist Book Concern, etc.

The first General Conference of American Methodism was held in Baltimore, Maryland, in 1792, at which all preachers in full membership of an annual conference were eligible. The first delegated General Conference was held in New York City, May 1-22, 1812. At this conference the first episcopal address, an utterance which has become of increasing importance, was delivered. This episcopal address is now accepted as the official declaration of the church on important theological, administrative and social problems.

At the General Conference held in New York City, in 1844, the agitation over slave-holding became so acute as to result in plans for separation between that section of the church in the North and the section in the South. The Methodist Episcopal Church, South, was organized in Louisville, Kentucky, May 1, 1845.

Methodism began in America with the arrival of Philip Embury and Barbara Heck, Irish immigrants, who were enthusiastic in the propaganda of their faith. John Wesley, who was the founder of Methodism in England, remained at the head of American Methodism until the Revolutionary War severed relationship between England and the United States. All of the preachers with the exception of Francis Asbury returned across the sea, whereupon, September 1, 1784, John Wesley ordained Dr. Thomas Coke to be superintendent or bishop of the Methodist Societies of the United States of America.

There are now twenty bishops and seven missionary bishops serving the Methodist Episcopal Church throughout the world. The former are elected by General Conference and located for periods of four years each in cities which are designated episcopal residences. The latter are elected by General Conference for continuous service in specific fields.

The Methodist Episcopal Church was organized at Baltimore, Md., at the so-called Christmas Conference, December 24, 1784, to January 2, 1785, at that time there were 104 preachers and 18,000 communicants. There are now over 15,000 preachers and 4,033,123 members. In the early days of the Methodist Church the salary of a preacher was $64. If married he received the similar amount for his wife, with $16 for each child under six and $22 for each child between six and eleven.

Other people's faults are always the biggest.

FIELD AND EXHIBIT DAY

Exercises Held In Crisfield On Thursday—Stopped By Rain

The unfortunate weather that prevailed last week, with rain on Wednesday and that night, came close to ruining the Field Day at Crisfield on last Thursday. Fortunately the morning was clear, but in the afternoon a thunder storm drove every one to shelter and stopped the athletic sports, which are expected to be concluded on Thursday next. A special train left Princess Anne at 9.20 o'clock in the morning and carried seven car loads of passengers. In addition, there were crowds of automobiles conveying passengers from various parts of the county.

The day was opened by a parade made up of the following: Marshals, Grover Blackstone and William Wedlin, Knights of Pythias Band, Company L, Maryland National Guard, Crisfield High School, Lawsonia Band, Boy Scouts of Crisfield, secondary schools of Crisfield, Princess Anne High School, county schools, School Commissioners, police department, firemen. There were about 5,000 visitors in Crisfield.

The parade disbanded at the High School and addresses were delivered by Col. Thomas S. Hodson and State Superintendent of Schools M. Bates Stephenson. Company L then gave an exhibition drill. In the afternoon folk dances were given at the Armory by the girls of the Washington High School, of Princess Anne, and the girls of the Crisfield High School gave a double May-pole dance. A game of Circle Dodge Ball was also given in the Armory, where the crowd had assembled to avoid the rain.

The exhibits from the Crisfield High School, the Washington High School at Princess Anne and other parts of the county, were regarded as especially fine. Prizes will be awarded by the various committees for wood work, mechanical drawing, plain and fancy sewing, cooking, etc., the announcements for which have been but partially made.

The reception committee, Mrs. G. F. Atkinson, Mrs. F. E. Gardner, Mrs. A. R. Crockett, Mrs. I. H. Coulbourne, Miss Addie Handy and Miss Temple L. Bassford, met the official visitors at the High School building and served a delightful luncheon at noon.

There were scheduled on the program 130 contestants for the field events. Part of the events were successfully conducted under the supervision of Dr. William Burdick, of the State Athletic League. The rain, however, came and put an end to the remainder of the time being.

The field events were held with the following scores: Crisfield High School 65 points, Washington High School 34 points, Westover High School 6 points, Marion High School 3 points. The only silver badge was won by F. S. Miles, of Washington High School, Princess Anne.

The dodge ball game was won by Crisfield High School over Washington High School.

The girls who qualified for the bronze badge test were: Dorothy Baltz, Ernestine Baltz, Florence Carey and Olive Johnson, all of Princess Anne.

The boys who qualified for the same tests were: Lee Hayman, Malcolm Sterling, John Harris, Kirk Maddrix, Meredith Stokes, Howard J. Pruitt, Edward Tawes, Stanley Robins, F. B. Tawes, David Kroll, Alonzo Green, and Benson Nelson.

The track events were as follows: Junior 80 pound class—50 yard dash—First, Edward Tawes, Crisfield; second, C. Thornton, Crisfield; third, G. Marsh, Princess Anne. Time 7 seconds.

440 yards relay—First, Princess Anne, B. Barnes, J. Paxton, W. Maddrix and E. Cannon; second, Crisfield; third, Crisfield. Time 1 minute 25 seconds.

A SLIGHT MISTAKE

An Episode of Shakedown City

By F. A. MITCHEL

The wild and woolly west is now a thing of the past. If gun play, public gambling and horse stealing are in vogue in any part of the United States we hear nothing of them. But the probability is that these things have died out before the advance of civilization and the consequent setting up of the church and the schoolhouse.

Before the dawn of this new condition, when all sorts of persons—good, bad and indifferent—were crowding into a country not yet abandoned by the Indian, when every man was expected to look out for his own interests, it is remarkable, in some instances laughable, what small things men would fight about.

In a settlement west of the Missouri river some forty years ago, where there was but one woman to a dozen men among the inhabitants, Cyrus Atkins was out beyond the borders of the town looking for stray cattle when up the road came a woman driving a rattletrap buggy. Whether she was fair to look upon is not a matter of certainty, for any woman not a fright was constantly looking on their own sex only. Certain it is that this person driving toward the settlement was beautiful in Cyrus Atkins's eyes.

"How do, ma'am," he said, putting his hand to his sombrero.

"How do," was the laconic reply. "Air you from the settlement?"

"Yes, ma'am."

"Any chance for anybody to make a livin' there?"

"Reckon, but a good lookin' woman like you don't need to make a livin'."

All she has to do is to pick out a husband and let him do it for her."

"Suppose the husband can't make a livin' for himself?"

"Then, I reckon, the wife 'ud have to do it for both."

"Jist so."

The woman, who had an independent air about her, whipped up her horse and left Mr. Atkins standing beside the road gaping after her. He was thinking that as soon as she got into the settlement, which was called Shakedown City—all settlements appended the word "city" to their name in that country at that time—she would be surrounded by half the men with offers of marriage. He hesitated whether to go on searching for his cattle or go back at once and put in his application. At that moment he spied one of his lost animals in the distance. This decided him, and he concluded to lose an hour or so in putting in his application for the sake of getting his cattle.

When the woman reached the borders of Shakedown City she encountered Enoch Dollittle.

"Ary tavern in the town?" she asked him.

"Yes, ma'am," was the reply.

"Tain't much of a place for a good lookin' woman like you to stop at, see in there's nothin' but men around."

"Well, I reckon I got to stop there, seeln' I don't know nobody in the town."

"There's a few married women in Shakedown. I know one of 'em that I reckon'll take you in."

"Where does she live?"

"I'll show you."

Mr. Dollittle walked along beside the buggy to a house where a frowsy woman was washing dishes, and the stranger said she would like accommodations. Since the reply was favorable, the applicant decided to put up there. She said her stay would be short; but although she was asked the cause of her coming and other questions, she proved close mouthed and gave no satisfactory answers. An hour later Mr. Dollittle was walking down a road leading to some property he had preempted when he met Cyrus Atkins driving his cattle home.

"Seen anything," asked Cyrus, "of a good lookin' woman drivin' into town in a buggy?"

"Yes."

"Where did she put up?"

"She was goin' to put up at the tavern, but I tuk her to Mrs. Green's."

"What had you to do with where she put up?"

"What's that to you?"

"A good deal. I'm the first man to see her comin' into town, and if she's goin' to settle yere I've got the fust claim on her."

"You don't reckon she'd have sich a red headed, slab sided feller as you, do you?"

"I don't propose to give way to a freckled, bowlegged chap like you."

Both men put their hands to their hips, but at the moment Antonio Thibadeaux, who had come from Louisiana, passed by and inquired the cause of the dispute. When duly informed that a new and comely woman had come to town and each of the men proposed to claim her in marriage, Thibadeaux said to them:

"This town ought to be above gunplay in the streets by this time. Yo' no'te'n men are mighty uncivilized in such affairs anyhow. If you two men want to fight about a lady, why don't you do it in a fashion that would do honor to her instead o' mixin' her up in a common shootin' match?"

The rivals were evidently impressed with this view of the case and asked how "them gentlemanly fights" were conducted. Thibadeaux said that he had participated in several, both as principal and second. If they desired it he would be happy to manage a meeting for them.

"Yo' see," he added, "if the lady hears that you have had a street fight about her she'll turn you both down. But if she hears that yee have fought for her in a gentlemanly way she'll be much flattered, and the man that wins will have a to'able good show."

This settled the matter. Mr. Thibadeaux took charge of the affair entirely, making all necessary arrangements, providing a second for each principal and sending to a neighboring town for a "sawbones." The time appointed was the next morning at 7 o'clock, the place to be where Cy Atkins had met the subject of the dispute. Mr. Thibadeaux said that in Louisiana, where he had picked up his knowledge of the code, it was considered bad taste to talk about such affairs, and they were usually kept secret. In this way a vulgar crowd was avoided, and if the fight was about a lady it was deemed more respectful to her.

A bit of gunplay in the street would not have necessarily called together a crowd, but such a novelty as a duel was sure to do so. It did not get out in Shakedown City that an affair according to the code, arranged by a prominent Louisiana duelist, was to take place, until late the night before the meeting. Consequently the lady who was to be fought for went to bed oblivious to the fact that two men were to meet the next morning at 7 o'clock in mortal combat to decide which should give way to the other in an effort to obtain her favor. Indeed, having looked over Shakedown City and not being pleased with it, she had determined to make an early start the next morning for the place from which she had come.

The secret of the duel was divulged by one of the seconds at the Golden Eagle saloon about midnight, and most of those present organized a small game to last till morning with the intention of adjourning from the sitting to the dueling ground to witness a real high toned shooting match as practiced in the state of Louisiana. Such an affair had never been known in Shakedown, and though the citizens had heard of the code duello, their knowledge of it was very hazy.

About half past 6 each principal in the coming affair, attended by his second, left his residence and proceeded to the ground. The master of ceremonies was accompanied by the surgeon, a recent medical graduate, who had gone west to establish a practice, but had never seen a gunshot wound in his life. At the same time a crowd emerged from the Golden Eagle saloon and tramped down the road. Arrived at the appointed spot, Mr. Thibadeaux marked off the ground, taking care that neither of the disputants was placed so that the sun would shine in his eyes. He made the distance thirty paces, which, he said, was usual in such affairs. Each man was handed a revolver that had passed inspection by both seconds and stood ready for the signal to fire. Mr. Thibadeaux said that dropping a handkerchief was the most approved method. But there were very few handkerchiefs in the party and they so solled as not to be surely distinguished by the principals. Therefore it was decided to drop a hat.

Meanwhile a horse and buggy was seen emerging from the town, and just as the seconds handed the principals their weapons the vehicle drew up in the road beside the battleground. "What's goin' on?" asked a woman who was driving.

Mr. Thibadeaux, lifting his sombrero, advanced to her and explained that a duel was about to be fought about a woman.

"What woman?"

"One that came to town yesterday, ma'am."

"Well, what has she got to do with it?"

The matter was briefly explained to her.

During the conversation the principals stood looking at the lady, recognizing her as the person about whom they had quarreled. The crowd, too, turned their faces from the disputants and gaped at her.

"See here, you galoots over there!" she called. "You don't want to fight about me. I got a husband and three children. And if I was single I wouldn't marry either of you. My husband's sick, and Hilton, where we live, is run down. I come over yere to see if there was a better chance to make a livin'."

"I wouldn't live in the town if you'd give it to me, and I wouldn't marry any man in it if I was single. So there! Git up, Sal!"

And, giving her horse the whip, she passed on down the road.

The duel was called off, all adjourning to the Gold Eagle saloon, where the principals shook hands and called on all present to nominate their pizen. Then Mr. Thibadeaux, calling the crowd's attention by an ahem! said:

"Gents, I move that a committee be appointed to go to Hilton and represent to the lady the advantages of this place, which she has turned down, and assure her that if she will remove here with her family she will be taken care of. Since the committee must be provided with funds, I propose a collection."

The proposition resulted in the removal of the family named to Shakedown City, where they were provided for till the husband recovered his health and in time became a prominent citizen of the town.

The presence in Shakedown City of the lady, her husband and her two admirers, and they left the town.

VALE OF KASHMIR.

A Beautiful Spot With a Record of Natural Calamities.

Beautiful and unfortunate is the wonderful vale of Kashmir, lying high among the Himalayas, ringed with gigantic peaks, "clothed in evergreen fir and deodar, the light green bed of Jehlam strung across its dun breast like a jade necklace, blushing with the ghostly pink of peach and plum blossoms."

Kashmir has a persistent record of natural calamity, and sends destroying floods that wipe out whole districts. The giant peaks around the valley stir now and again in their sleep of ages and shake the flats with mighty earthquakes. Famine and cholera kill more than the river and the trembling mountains.

Fire frequently sweeps the fields and cities. As one looks up at the hills on either side from the bed of Jehlam it is seen that one slope is covered with cool, dark forest, while the other grows nothing but long grass. A spark in this grass starts the blaze. Among the Himalayas the air is biting cold, and the Kashmiri carries a little charcoal brazier under his robe to warm his body. These peripatetic furnaces start many a flame.

With a history dotted with such calamitous landmarks the people of Kashmir have acquired a pessimistic expression and disposition. They are superstitious, too, ascribing all manner of mischievous attributes and fairy inhabitants to the mountain springs.—Argonaut.

Magic of a Century.

An examination of American cities a century ago presents many curiosities. In 1800 not New York, but Philadelphia, was our largest city—a pre-eminence it held until 1830. After Philadelphia, New York, Baltimore and Boston, Charleston, S. C., was the largest American city. But I defy any one to give the name of the sixth largest American town in 1800. It was Northern Liberties. How many Americans today ever heard of this metropolis? An antiquarian research discloses that it is now part of Philadelphia. After Northern Liberties, our biggest city was Southwark, Pa.; then came Salem, Mass. Such were the places a hundred years ago which entered in the competition for primacy.—World's Work.

First Test of the Air Pump.

The first public test of the air pump was in 1654, by its inventor, Otto von Guericke, in the presence of Emperor Ferdinand of Germany.

Guericke applied the carefully ground edges of metallic hemispheres, two feet in diameter, to each other. After exhausting the air by his apparatus he attached fifteen horses to each hemisphere. In vain did they attempt to separate them because of the enormous pressure of the atmosphere. The experiment was a great success.

Abusing a True Friend.

The truest and most devoted friend that man ever had is the little inanimate bundle of nerves that stands guard by his bedside through the dead hours of the night, its palpitating little heart spreading cheer and confidence over the surrounding gloom. Yet man often forgets the debt of gratitude he owes this faithful and tireless little friend for the sleepless, watchful hours it subjects itself to in order that he may slumber in security and comfort, and when it sings its merry morning lay I have seen him, instead of bestowing fond caresses, reach from his warm quilts, grasp it ruthlessly and slam it into the farther and darkest corner of the room, crushing the dainty hands that seemed uplifted in an attitude of horror and protection, scornfully muttering such uncouth and unworthy reproach as "Hang that blinkety-blank alarm clock, anyhow!" then return to his snoring!—Zim in Cartoons Magazine.

True Fish Stories.

The Cycosama negrofasciatus will fight with the savage tenacity of a bulldog and will leap high out of the water in pursuit of a tantalizing finger.

The walking perch from India will climb out of the aquarium and take a stroll around the floor looking for another pool unless you put a wire over the top of his home.

The shishigashira has a round fat kewiep body topped by a chubby cheeked cherub head, with the tiny eyes, small mouth and nose of a human being. Its coloring is marvelous, and it is considered sacred in Japan.

The Indian gouramis has arms with which it feels its way about or inspects anything new in the aquarium.

Eccentric Paving.

It is related that when Maximilian Emanuel succeeded to the throne of Bavaria he celebrated the event by causing one of the roads leading to his palace to be paved with plates of burnished copper. This, gleaming in the sunshine, gave all the effect of the more precious metal—gold.

We are told also that Louis XIV. paved one of the courts at Versailles with squares of silver, each of which had recorded upon it some triumph of the French arms. In the center of the court stood a large tablet of gold in representation of the luxurious monarch's favorite emblem—the sun. Memoirs of the time of Louis make mention of a lodge erected to the love of his youth, the fair Louise de la Valiere. The approach was paved with mirrors, wherein was painted an allegory setting forth the undying devotion of the king to Louise.

A Test of Youth.

You often see a woman at the market pinching the end of a chicken's breastbone to find out how tender—in other words, how young—the fowl is. Oddly enough, the same test with human beings is one of the most reliable known. If in advanced life the lower end of your breastbone feels elastic when pushed inward, you may assume that no important changes have yet taken place in your arteries or otherwise in your anatomical make-up.

The human breastbone is shaped like an ancient Roman sword, and the upper part of it is like the sword handle. Its point is a piece of cartilage, which anatomists call the "xiphoid" cartilage. The early hardening and stiffening of it indicate that the changes that accompany old age have prematurely begun.—Youth's Companion.

A Warning.

"Watch out how you holler fer de worl ter look up at you when you gits ter de mountain top," said Brother Williams. "Of all time dat's de one time ter lay low, fer de worl will find you when it gits good an' ready. An' dis other thing is what you got to consider: De minute you hollers old man Trouble locates you an' sets his traps ter trip you an' send you rollin' down ter de bottom, whar you come from."—Atlanta Constitution.

Flower of the Air.

There is a plant in Chile and a similar one in Japan called the "flower of the air." It is so called because it appears to have no root and is never fixed to the earth. It twines around a dry tree or sterile rock. Each shoot produces two or three flowers like a lily—white, transparent and odoriferous. It is capable of being transported 600 to 700 miles and vegetables as it travels suspended on a twig.

ENGINEERS TO SURVEY INDUSTRY

U. S. Naval Consulting Board Names Directors For Work.

FIVE MEN FROM MARYLAND

Harry Dean Bush, William H. Peirce, Carl C. Thomas, John B. Whitehead and William B. D. Penniman, All of Baltimore, Have Been Chosen to Tabulate Industrial Preparedness.

Howard E. Coffin, chairman of the Committee on Industrial Preparedness of the Naval Consulting Board of the United States, today announced the names of the 250 state directors, formed into boards of five men each, who, under the committee's direction, are setting out to make a complete survey of American industry for the first time in the history of the United States government.

Howard E. Coffin, Chairman of the Committee on Industrial Preparedness.

These state directors will be under the immediate guidance of W. S. Gifford, chief statistician of the American Telephone and Telegraph company, who is acting as supervising director of the work. Under them will work the more than 30,000 highly educated members of the American Society of Civil Engineers, the American Institute of Mining Engineers, the American Society of Mechanical Engineers, the American Institute of Electrical Engineers and the American Chemical Society.

W. S. Gifford, Supervising Director of the Committee on Industrial Preparedness.

The state directors, who also become associate members of the naval consulting board, have just received appointment by the secretary of the navy. In making public their names Mr. Coffin said:

"The names and standing of these men speak for themselves. They have been selected by their own professional associates with the only standard that of efficiency and integrity. They work without pay; indeed, the services of many of them could not be bought. In my judgment they form a vast, flexible organization, the like of which has never been known in this or any other country of the world, and an organization, moreover, which from top to bottom is absolutely nonpolitical."

The directors from this state are as follows:

Harry Dean Bush of Baltimore, from the American Society of Civil Engineers, is general superintendent of the Baltimore warehouse of the Carnegie Steel company and director and member of the executive committee of the Baltimore Tube company. He was born in 1859 at Springfield, Mass.; educated at the Springfield (Mass.) high school and at the Worcester (Mass.) Polytechnic institute and is a member of the Canadian Society of Civil Engineers, of the Engineers' clubs of New York and Baltimore and of the Rotary club of Baltimore. Mr. Bush built the first Bull Run riveted steel pipe line, twenty-four miles long, at Portland, Ore.; was engineer of erection of the steel lock gates at the Cascade locks, on the Columbia river, and of the Alexandria bridge of Ottawa, Canada, receiving a silver medal from the Canadian Society of Civil Engineers for a paper on his work. He was for four years bridge engineer of the Northern Pacific railroad.

Carl C. Thomas of Baltimore, from the American Society of Mechanical Engineers, is professor of mechanical engineering at Johns Hopkins university and consulting engineer for numerous companies which are manufacturing his inventions. Professor Thomas was born July 14, 1872, at Detroit, Mich., and educated at Cornell and Leland Stanford universities, is a member of the Society of Naval Architects and Marine Engineers, the Inventors' guild, the American Gas Institute, the American Society of Naval Engineers, the American Association for the Advancement of Science, the Franklin Institute of Philadelphia and other scientific bodies. He was professor of marine engineering at Cornell university for four years and of mechanical engineering at the University of Wisconsin for five years. He is the author of a standard book on steam turbines.

Carl C. Thomas.

John B. Whitehead of Baltimore, from the American Institute of Electrical Engineers, is professor of electrical engineering at Johns Hopkins university and was born Aug. 18, 1872, at Norfolk, Va. Professor Whitehead was educated at Johns Hopkins, holds three degrees and is a Fellow of the American Institute of Electrical Engineers. He has been prominent in the modern development of high tension transmission lines. He was for three years with the Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing company as electrician, when he became operating engineer of the Niagara Falls Power company. For a period he did research work for the United States bureau of standards, for three years was a research Fellow of the Carnegie Institution of Washington and has carried on many researches dealing with electrical engineering.

William B. D. Penniman of Baltimore, from the American Chemical Society, is a member of Penniman & Browne, consulting chemists for corporation and engineering plants. He was born at Baltimore and educated at Johns Hopkins university and the Baltimore Medical college, holding three degrees. He belongs to several scientific bodies and to the City club and Chemists' club of Baltimore. Mr. Penniman has specialized in petroleum and tar distillation and in metals and other supplies used by railroads.

John B. Whitehead.

William H. Peirce of Baltimore, from the American Institute of Mining Engineers, is vice president and general manager of the Baltimore Copper Smelting and Rolling company; was born Aug. 22, 1865, at Baltimore and educated at the Stevens Institute of Technology. He is a member of the American Society of Mechanical Engineers, the American Electro-chemical society and the Merchants and Manufacturers' association of Baltimore. Mr. Peirce was a pioneer in electrolytic copper refining and has developed many methods and devices in connection therewith. He is co-inventor and developer of the method of basic converting of copper now in general use throughout the world.

Prices of Bibles Going Up

The price of Bibles has increased and is likely to advance still further because of the war. Statements issued by religious publication societies show that the expense of publishing prayer books, hymnals and other religious volumes is so much larger than heretofore that buyers have been obliged to pay nearly double the price of last year.

The American Bible Society, of New York, announces that the stock of Bibles in European languages, imported from Germany prior to the beginning of the war, is now approaching exhaustion and the society does not know when it can be replenished.

A Symbol Of Health

The Pythagorians of Ancient Greece ate simple food, practiced temperance and purity. As a badge they used the five pointed star which they regarded as a symbol of health. A red five pointed star appears on each package of Chamberlain's Tablets, and still fulfills its ancient mission as a symbol of health. If you are troubled with indigestion, biliousness or constipation, get a package of these tablets from your druggist. You will be surprised at the quick relief which they afford. Obtainable everywhere.

CODE OF A PRISON

Signal System of the Terrorist Societies of Russia.

TALKING IN JAIL IS SIMPLE.

The Checkerboard Tapping Device Makes It Easy For Prisoners in Solitary Confinement to Communicate With All the Cells of a Fortress.

The most persistent and deadly enemies with which the secret service of any country is forced to contend are the terrorists of the broad lands of the czar.

The detective departments of the Russian government have to deal with the most skillful secret organizations in the world. The devices at the command of the secret orders, especially their methods of communication, are of the most extraordinary character. An authority who has made the closest study of the Russian prison system has assembled these devices. The members of the secret societies of Russia assert that they can communicate with one another in any prison, no matter how carefully guarded. No method of prison supervision can prevent it.

This communication is by a system of tapping, either on the floor or walls of the cell in which the prisoner is confined. There are two codes, as described by the prison authority Kenman. One is primitive and cumbersome—namely, to indicate the letters in the alphabet by the number of taps, as, for example, one for A, five for E, ten for J, and so forth. This is a code of ancient usage. It was found too slow and complicated. A new system was presently devised.

Taking the English alphabet as an example, it can be easily illustrated. Leaving out one letter, as, for example K, and using the letter C wherever one would use K, the working alphabet is reduced to twenty-five letters. One wishing to put this system into practice will imagine a checkerboard of twenty-five squares—five columns of five squares each. He will place a letter of the alphabet in each of these squares, beginning with the top square on the left and going straight down the column.

Thus A would be in the first square of the first column, beginning at the left; E in the bottom square of the first column, F in the first top square of the second column, and so on. With the letters thus set in this checkerboard it is a very simple matter to spell out any word by indicating the column by one, two, three, four or five taps, a slight pause, followed by the number of the square in the column corresponding to the letter in the word to be spelled; thus G would be two-two, and so forth.

When the cells of the old stone fortress of Petropavlovsk at Petrograd were filled with terrorists they talked among themselves by this tapping system quite as freely as though they were assembled in one of their places of secret meeting in the Russian capital. The police tried to prevent it by putting the prisoners in alternate cells only. But the cells were so small and the stone walls were such excellent conductors of sound that even this device did not prevent the communication.

The most inconsequential article was sufficient to carry on the code. A bit of broken cement, fragments of bone, a button or coin was all the prisoner needed. This code was also used when the materials were available to communicate by systems of pinholes in paper or other materials, or by marks on the surface of a wall, door or any article that the prisoner thought would come to the attention of his friend outside.

It was also a device to unravel any article of clothing or prisoner's equipment and by series of knots tied in the threads to spell out messages according to this code.

Another system was to secrete a little fat from the prisoner's food and when one passed a window, if exercise was allowed in the prison courtyard, to make a sign on the glass. When the warm grease from the prisoner's fingers froze on the glass the signal became visible. Bits of broken glass, if they could be obtained, were also used to carry these messages, which were invisible until the glass was frozen.

Systems of signals used by the friends of the prisoners to acquaint them with current affairs were no less ingenious. The whole of the prisoners in the cells of a political fortress in Petrograd were kept constantly informed of what was going on in the capital by the simple device of a man reading a book by the light of a candle. From a certain window of the prison at night it was possible to see this man read his book in a room of a house opposite the prison. By the way in which the book and candle were handled as the man turned the pages and read complete information was signaled into the prison, and by the tapping system it was conveyed to everybody confined in the whole fortress—Melville Davison Post in Saturday Evening Post.

Taking No Chances.
"Face massage, sir?" asked the barber.

"Not on your life," exclaimed the man in the chair. "If I come home with that worried look all ironed out of my face right away my wife will ask me for money for some new gowns."—St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

A healthy person is the best asset for any community, a sick person the opposite.

OLDER BUT STRONGER

To be healthy at seventy, prepare at forty, is sound advice, because in the strength of middle life we too often forget that neglected colds, or careless treatment of slight aches and pains, simply undermine strength and bring chronic weakness for later years.

To be stronger when older, keep your blood pure and rich and active with the strength-building and blood-nourishing properties of Scott's Emulsion which is a food, a tonic and a medicine to keep your blood rich, alleviate rheumatism and avoid sickness. No alcohol in Scott's. Scott & Bowne, Bloomfield, N. J.

Changed the Koreans. Koreans were quick to quarrel in ancient days and won a bad reputation on this account. At one time, a historian explains, fatal quarrels became so frequent in the country that drastic measures were necessary. A law was promulgated ordering adult males to wear on all occasions a china head-dress shaped like an inverted flower-pot. It was impossible to fight when crowned with this fragile gear, and the penalties for removing it were severe. The first offense entailed fifty blows on the soles of the feet, and the second meant decapitation. This decree had the most soothing effects, the nature of the inhabitants changed as if by magic, and Korea was called the Land of the Morning Calm.

The Way It Goes.
"This is an odd way girls have of getting into society."
"How is it odd?"
"Why, to get in they first have to come out."—New York Journal.

It is the appreciation, not of the indulgent, but of the exacting, that counts.

DELICATE MONSTERS.

How Warships Are Lined to Protect Them From Fire and Water.

Although it may look very strong, a battleship is really a very delicate monster. Its vital parts have to be protected by several coverings of a material chiefly obtained from coconuts. This is to prevent certain portions becoming either too cold or too hot. For instance, it will be seen that the results would be exciting if the powder magazines became overheated.

A dreadnaught is entirely clothed in a suit of underwear to protect it from fire and water. The actual construction of the material is a secret, but it is known to be for the most part cellulose, which is obtained from the fibrous end of the coconut.

Cellulose swells when it touches salt water. Therefore if a hole should be made in the ship's side, say, by a shot this cellulose expands and covers the opening, so preventing an inrush of water. The cellulose is also treated to make it fireproof.

Mineral wool is a material used upon the latest type of battleship. It looks like wool, but is really composed of snowy threads of a sort of glass. The men who pack mineral wool have to wear masks to prevent the needlelike particles from being inhaled. It is a remarkable nonconductor of heat and is used to cover the refrigerators and cold storage chambers and also the explosive stores.

The boilers and steam pipes of a dreadnaught have "jackets" in order to prevent waste of fuel. Sometimes these jackets are of mineral wool, sometimes wool and sometimes ordinary blanketing.—Pearson's.

Franklin as a Printer.
A letter of Charles Wilson Peale, who painted the first portrait of Washington, is dated Oct. 23, 1814, and discusses inventions, windmills, etc. In it he says:

"Dr. Franklin when he was a young man went to London and worked in divers shops and in different parts of the printing business. I heard a curious anecdote of him. He hired himself to work at press in an office. When a friend of the owner of the press came to see him, the printer told his friend that he was in great want of a compositor and asked where he could find one. 'I am much surprised that you should want a compositor when you keep a man at the press (pointing to Franklin) who is the best compositor in London,' he said."

"Chamberlain's Tablets Have Done Wonders For Me."
"I have been a sufferer from stomach trouble for a number of years, and although I have used a great number of remedies recommended for this complaint, Chamberlain's Tablets is the first medicine that has given me positive and lasting relief." writes Mrs. Anna Kadin, Spenceport, N. Y. "Chamberlain's Tablets have done wonders for me and I value them highly." Obtainable everywhere.

EXPERTS IN TRACKING.

Australian Natives of Both Sexes Trained From Childhood.

The Australian aboriginals are the finest trackers in the world, London Answers declares.

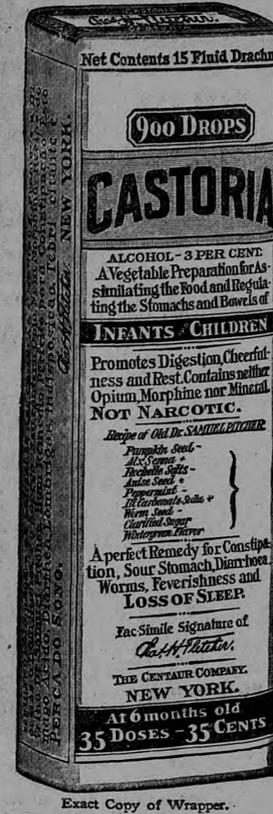

On many occasions they have performed feats which are almost beyond belief. But to them the work is quite habitual. The boys are taught to track from birth.

The women are just as expert as the men. Horse tracks are child's play to them. They can track a horse at full gallop. They can track anything—pussoms, snakes, iguanas, even beetles leave sufficient trail for them to work on.

The standard of honor among these tribes is high. When one of them breaks their strict code, fearing the wrath of the tribe, he bolts and, knowing he will be pursued, uses all his knowledge in an effort to elude those in search of him. But it is questionable if there is a single case on record where he escaped.

What might be called classes in tracking are held for the youngsters. The tutor will get them in a body and then disappear into the bush and do everything he can to make them lose his tracks. He will tiptoe along fallen logs, swim a quarter of a mile along a stream, double on his tracks, and so on. Finally he returns to the boys, who then set out to pick up the tracks.

Harboring Pain.
A Japanese proverb says, "When you take poison don't lick the plate." How much happier a place the world would be if that advice were taken! The principal reason the higher animals suffer less than man is that they do not think about their sufferings.—Harper's Weekly.

Low Price Loses out Against Low Cost

PRICE may sell some things to farmers, but price alone is a poor argument compared with the records for low cost of operation made by Mogul kerosene engines.

Because they run on kerosene, Mogul engines produce farm power at the lowest possible cost.

You know what gasoline costs. You know, too, what kerosene costs. Take the difference—multiply it by the number of gallons of fuel an engine will consume in five years, figuring one pint of fuel per horse power per hour.

At what price must you buy a gasoline engine to make it cost you as little as a Mogul does? Could you afford to accept a gasoline engine as a gift? See the dealer about this. He has the figures all worked out for you on all sizes of Mogul engines from 1 to 50 H. P.

ACIDITY OF THE STOMACH.

Diet Hints For Sufferers Afflicted With This Trouble.

Acidity of the stomach and ulcerated stomach are largely on the increase in both England and America, if statistics are to be believed. And Dr. Willard J. Stone points out in the Journal of the American Medical Association that these are the two countries in which the consumption of sugar is greatest.

Dr. Stone recommends an almost starch and sugar free diet for persons troubled with acidity. He says the following articles of food may be eaten with safety: Fresh fruit pulp or fruit juices, such as grapefruit, oranges, peaches and watermelon, without sugar; broth, soft boiled or poached eggs, fish, chicken, broiled or baked meats, bacon, milk, tea, cream, butter, green vegetables, such as asparagus, spinach, cauliflower, watercress, endive, squash, carrots, turnips, lettuce, fruit and lettuce salads, with olive oil dressing containing a very small quantity of lemon juice; Brazil nuts, pecans or filberts.

The following foods are prohibited: Candy, sugar, sirups and condiments; the fresh fruits which contain more than 10 per cent carbohydrates, such as apples, pears, bananas, cherries, currants, plums; of the vegetables, peas, parsnips, beans, potatoes, corn; the cereals, rice, macaroni, bread, crackers, cocoa, chocolate and coffee.

RECIPE FOR GRAY HAIR.

To half pint of water add 1 oz. Bay Rum, a small box of Barbo Compound, and 1/4 oz. of glycerine. Apply to the hair twice a week until it becomes the desired shade. Any druggist can put this up or you can mix it at home at very little cost. Full directions for making and use come in each box of Barbo Compound. It will gradually darken streaked, faded gray hair, and removes dandruff. It is excellent for falling hair and will make harsh hair soft and glossy. It will not color the scalp, is not sticky or greasy, and does not rub off.

SOY BEANS FURNISH FEED AND FERTILITY

Well Adapted To Maryland Soils And Especially Valuable For Forage.

NICKOLAS SCHMITZ,

Maryland Agricultural Experiment Station.

Soy beans are well adapted to Maryland, and, like corn, thrive best on rich loam soils. It is, however, on soils too poor to grow corn profitably that soy beans will bring the greatest net profit. On such soils, when inoculated and fertilized with a little inexpensive fertilizer, they will produce nearly as much forage and seed as when grown on rich land. They will not grow as well as cow peas on poor sandy soils, but far better than cow peas on stiff clay soils. They will stand poor drainage better than either cow peas or corn.

Soy beans mature in from 70 to 150 days, making it possible to select varieties to fit any length of growing season found in Maryland.

Cultivation.

They require the same kind of preparation of seedbed as corn; and, as in the case of corn, it is better to thoroughly prepare the seedbed before planting than to depend upon cultivation for getting the soil in the proper condition.

For seed production, soy beans should be sown in rows 24 to 36 inches apart, far enough to cultivate, and 1 bushel of seed will plant 2 or 3 acres. The planting may be done with a corn planter or with a wheat drill regulated for planting 2 bushels of oats per acre and with the proper number of seed-holes closed to give the desired distance apart. The plants should be about 2 inches apart in the row.

For hay production, soy beans should be sown broadcast, 1 1/2 bushels per acre; and for this purpose there is no implement better suited than the wheat drill. The seed should never be covered more than 1 inch, except in sandy soil, where they may be covered 2 inches.

Time to Plant.

Soy beans may be planted from any time after corn planting is finished until July 15th, depending upon variety, location and for the purpose planted. For hay and seed it is best to plant the forepart of June, to insure good curing weather for the hay and time for late varieties to mature seed before frost. For fall hog pasture, and for turning down as a green manure, they may be planted up until July 15th if an early variety is used.

Inoculation.

But few Maryland soils are naturally inoculated for soy beans, and, since they seldom thrive unless inoculated, it is necessary to inoculate whenever planting for the first time. To do this, 2 or 3 hundred pounds of soil taken from a field which has grown them should be broadcast over each acre before seeding, and harrowed in immediately to prevent the bacteria from being killed by sunlight. Inoculation with artificial culture is not successful when the culture is applied and the beans allowed to dry before seeding. Much better results are secured when the beans are planted before the inoculating culture has dried.

PREVENT INJURY FROM FRUIT TREE BARK BEETLE.

T. B. SYMONS,

Maryland Agricultural College Extension Service.

Orchardists should be careful to see that all dead wood is cut and removed from the orchard. Such dead wood, or diseased or sickly trees offer an opportunity for infestation by the Fruit Tree Bark Beetle or Shot Hole Borer. While the attack of this insect is usually confined to such wood, after becoming established in an orchard it may attack perfectly healthy trees.

The beetles bore into the bark and sap wood, where they eat vertical galleries or brood chambers, into which the females lay their eggs. The bored holes are about the size of a No. 6 shot.

The adult beetle is about one-tenth inch long, by a third as wide, and uniformly black in color. Trees or parts of trees seriously attacked by the pest are usually hopeless. Gum exudes from the holes of the beetles, and as the young develop into adults they eat their way out. Another injury by the insect is caused by their habit of attacking small twigs in early spring by burrowing into the base of bud.

Control.

The most effective means of control is cutting out all dead and diseased wood. Oftentimes a single limb of a good tree is attacked; in such case, the whole limb should be removed and burned. Slightly affected trees should be liberally fertilized.

The use of a thick lime-sulphur solution painted over the holes will serve to control the pest; also, kerosene emulsion soaked into the holes, will kill the insect, but usually the best treatment is the removal of attacked parts. Clean culture and keeping the trees in a healthy condition is the best preventative of this as well as many other similar pests.

CONTROL THE CODLING MOTH BY SPRAYING

T. B. SYMONS,

Maryland Agricultural College Extension Service.

Now that the dormant season spraying is over, orchardists must prepare for the control of the Codling Moth, which causes wormy apples, by treating their apple trees just as the blossoms fall.

The Codling Moth passes through the winter as a full grown larva in a small, white cocoon beneath or in crevices of the bark. About the time that apples bloom, the larva transforms to the pupa, from which the moth emerges.

The female lays from 50 to 60 eggs, mostly upon the foliage. The eggs hatch in from five to ten days, depending upon the season and temperature. The young larva usually feeds a little on the tender parts of the leaves before it crawls to the nearest young apple, which it attacks by entering the calyx cup. Some will enter the stem end or on the side. The larva continues to feed into the young fruit, its work being indicated by the well known excreta thrown out from the calyx, showing the worminess of the apple. The larva reaches maturity in from three to four weeks and eats its way out usually through the side of the apple, and seeks a secluded spot, where it spins its cocoon for transforming to the adult. In this region there is a partial second brood occurring about July 1st.

Controlling The Moth.

The Codling Moth is controlled by spraying with an arsenical such as Arsenate of Lead, Paris Green, etc.

Usually a combination spray is applied, using concentrated lime-sulphur solution, diluted at the rate of one and one-half gallons to a barrel of water for diseases, to which is added the arsenical—two pounds. Paste Arsenate of Lead, or about one-third pound Paris Green. Most growers use Arsenate of Lead. If the powdered Arsenate of Lead is used—one pound to the barrel is sufficient.

Many commercial firms are selling Arsenate of Lime in place of Arsenate of Lead. This is a little cheaper and there is no reason why it should not be equally as effective on apple, but should not be used on peach and similar tender foliage plants.

Apply Properly.

It is very important in spraying for the Codling Moth that the work be thorough, and that the spray be applied with good power. Power sprayers are, of course, most desirable for this as well as other spraying. The foliage should be covered with the spray and special effort made to lodge the solution in the calyx cup of the blossoms.

Through extended tests it has been found that the Codling Moth can be usually controlled with one thorough spray applied just before the calyx cup closes, or as the blossoms fall.

With the high cost of arsenicals this season, we would recommend one spraying for this pest this season. Of course, it may be necessary to spray later on for the control of some diseases, such as Bitter Rot.

The above treatment for Codling Moth should also suffice to prevent injury from the Curculio on Apple.

EARLY SPRAYING FOR PEA LICE IS NECESSARY.

E. N. CORY,

Maryland Agricultural College.

The pea and melon lice are the most serious aphids with which the trucker has to deal. Pea lice live for approximately eight months of the year on clover, preferably on crimson clover, hence the first measure against the pea louse should be to remove the pea field as far from clover as practical or if it is necessary that both be close together, the clover should be turned under early in the spring.

Careful watch should be made in April for the first aphids, which are light green and about one-eighth of an inch long, and spraying should take place immediately after they are first observed.

A tractor sprayer with nozzles so arranged as to direct the spray over the top and both sides is the best machine to use. Four rows can be sprayed at once with such a machine. Use "Black Leaf 40," 1 to 640 parts of water or 10 ounces to 50 gallons—plus 4 pounds of fish oil soap. Using 75 gallons per acre, one application will cost approximately $2.80 per acre, including labor of two men, team and materials. The same mixture is effective on the melon aphid, a small black aphid, but the cost will be higher as the vines must be turned over and back again, since the aphid clusters on the under side of the leaves.

Weeds take out of the soil plant food which should be utilized by the desired crop. Everyone knows, also, that a good, clean, well cultivated garden with straight rows has a much better appearance than a garden full of weeds. Sometimes the ground between the rows of certain vegetables is mulched with straw, straw manure or sawdust to prevent the evaporation of moisture and keep down weeds.

Aquatic Food Plants.

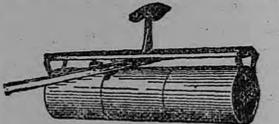

The collection of aquatic food plants secured in a recent expedition to China are of special interest. These include water chestnuts, water nuts and a number of aquatic bulbs, as well as the water bamboo. The Chinese have mastered through centuries of experiments the process of using swamp lands for the raising of food crops, and their success is believed to point to commercial possibilities for some of our swamp regions where reclamation by drainage is not practicable. The kauba, sometimes called the wild rice or water bamboo, now to be made the subject of experiment, is a vegetable in taste somewhat between grass and asparagus. The swollen stalks of the plant are eaten much like our asparagus. The ordinary bamboo, contrary to the prevailing opinion, is not an aquatic plant, and for successful cultivation calls for fertile and well drained soil.

Making Crops While Trees Grow.

Potatoes are a good previous crop for an apple orchard, says a contributor to the American Agriculturist. I planted my trees forty feet apart each way, then I planted potatoes, cultivating both ways. I like early potatoes best. The fertilizer and cultivation, given the potatoes aid the growing trees. When potatoes are dug and removed a cover crop is seeded in the orchard. I like rye and hairy vetch exceedingly well. This cover crop can be plowed under in the spring and planted to beans.

The Land Roller.

There are soils where it would be just about impossible to do good farming without the use of the land roller. The plank drag or some of the other similar implements in this class. On soils which are likely to become cloddy they are very necessary. On those light, porous soils, almost ashy in consistency, they serve the purpose of packing the earth particles. There are sections where practically every farm is equipped with a land roller, and anywhere from 15 to 30 per cent of all the work done on the corn crop is done with the roller. The plank drag is also in high favor in the corn belt.—Farm Progress.

GENERAL FARM HINTS.

It does not pay to give water in dirty vessels to any farm animal. Hogs are no exception.

A manure spreader is a great institution on the farm, but the good it does is in direct proportion to the amount it is used.

Much valuable manure is lost in poorly arranged stables where it is impossible to save or recover the liquids. After a young sow brings her first litter it will be best if she can be given a rest before breeding again. The first litter is usually the hardest draft on the system of the dam, and for this reason, if for no other, she should be given a rest.

One thing that operates to prevent success in horse breeding lies in the fact that the owners do not work their stallions, as is the universal practice in the old country. Farmers are accustomed to making their beef cattle and hogs lay on fat. This is their way of making money for their owners. Too many farmers seem to think that the same practice should apply to the horse, especially the stallion. This is wrong. The stallion needs work for his own good and the good of his progeny. He can be made a money maker in the field and should be. In this way he will develop bone and muscle instead of fat and will be in better health and sire fewer weakling foals.

Which Do You Prefer?

It is important for reasons of health and practical economy for every housekeeper to ask herself this question:

"Do I prefer a pure baking powder like Royal, made of cream of tartar derived from grapes, or am I willing to use a baking powder made of alum or phosphate, both derived from mineral sources?"

The names of the ingredients printed on the label show whether the kind you are now using or any brand, new or old, that may be offered is a genuine cream of tartar powder, or merely a phosphate or alum compound.

Royal Baking Powder contains no alum nor phosphate.

The Higher Cost of Shoes

If the shadow of coming higher prices in shoes did not already appear, we should know from official evidence that there is to be an ascent. The present advance, we are told, will be about twenty per cent. By next fall, they say, it will be more than that, though we are permitted to hope that the conditions which cause the rise will by that time be somewhat mitigated.

The ultimate consumer would be more resigned to his fate if for every increase in the cost of the things for which he has to pay he could have as frank and convincing reasons as he may have for this. For this, it appears, is not just a raise of the price. It is an advance of price made imperative by the higher cost of product.

Ten essential causes combine to create this: The demand exceeds the supply; the cost of tanning materials has increased from 100 to 1,000 per cent.; the supply of raw materials has diminished because of the war; the freight embargo is general, and by water especially bad; marine freight and insurance charges have increased; a tremendous and growing amount of sole leather is exported to Europe; home consumption of shoes is increased because of greater employment of labor and higher prices paid; there is a greatly increased demand for leather for knapsacks, saddles and harnesses for war use, and for belting in enlarging factories; labor rates have gone up; there has been some curtailment of the tannery output.

Back of all this, leather is a by-product, whose supply cannot be increased at will as crops and metals are, but is dependent on the quantity of hides, and cattle are not killed primarily for their hides, but for food supply. The supply of cattle in the country does not, moreover, keep up in proportion to the population.

These are a few of the phases of the situation. The shoe producers of the country face an uncompromising condition, and are trying to make the best of it. There are certain requirements which the consumer must meet, and the best hope for him is a chance in some of the conditions which the war produces. As to that, we can only wait and hope.

An Indefatigable Newsgatherer

Besides being an indefatigable newsgatherer and an impartial chronicler, "The Philadelphia Record" specializes in many fields. It produces market reports, its financial columns, its sporting department, its women's and fashion pages, its reviews of plays and books, etc., are authoritative. Its cartoonist is the best in the country. Its editorial policy is as square as its news policy; the downright sincerity of its attitude on debatable questions commands the respect of those who do not agree with it. And—what's of special interest to the women folks—"The Philadelphia Record" carries the advertising of all the Philadelphia department stores.

"The Sunday Record" is the daily's big brother. Its rapid strides in circulation are proof positive that the publishers have struck the right note in furnishing a bigger and better Sunday paper, with an illustrated magazine filled with the best fiction as one of its strongest attractions. There are also five pages of comics, four of them in color, for everybody who enjoys a wholesome laugh, and an enlarged feature section chock-full of interesting reading.

What The Civic Club Is Doing

The Civic Club met at the Court House Wednesday afternoon. A full attendance was present. The principal business considered by the Club was the cost incurred in decorating the Court House lawn. The total cost of the shrubbery and the expense of planting same to be raised, and it is suggested that those who still have the card board strips for pennies in their possession should fill the strips and turn them in at once.

The club appointed a committee consisting of Mrs. J. Thomas Taylor, Jr., Mrs. Columbus Lankford and Miss Anne Page, to confer with the Town Commissioners over the question of adopting some method to lay the dust on the streets in town this summer.

HON. JESSE D. PRICE

Representative Jesse D. Price, who is a candidate for re-election on the Democratic ticket from the First Congressional District this fall has taken a strong stand for President Wilson and his policies. Congressman Price believes that the Mexican situation is of more importance at the present time than even the other grave international problem. He believes all patriots will stand firmly behind the administration in the present critical period and that none should be small enough to attempt to play politics when the interest of the country demands a united support.

Congressman Lewis Congratulated

Representative David J. Lewis, who was elected on Monday of last week to be the candidate for the United States Senate in Maryland, returned to Washington last Thursday from his home in Cumberland and was forced to hold a reception in the Democratic cloakrooms of the House to receive the congratulations of his colleagues in Congress.
His appearance in the cloakroom was the signal for a small-sized demonstration from the few members there. Immediately Majority Leader Claude Kitchin, one of Mr. Lewis' great admirers, sprang from his seat and headed a line of about 100 Democrats who filed into the cloakroom. They swarmed around Mr. Lewis and kept both of his hands going for 15 minutes. Several of Mr. Lewis' admirers on the Republican side of the House chamber joined in the reception.

"No, I have nothing more to say," said Mr. Lewis to a newspaper correspondent after his reception. "I shall remain in Washington until the campaign opens and will then make a stump tour of the State. I cannot express the deep gratitude I feel to my good friends in Maryland."

If Mr. Lewis is elected to the Senate this fall he will make the twentieth member of that body who has been promoted from the House as a reward for conspicuous services. The latest is Senator Oscar W. Underwood, of Alabama, who was majority leader of the House. It was Mr. Underwood, who as House leader, asked Mr. Lewis to draft a parcel post plan as a rider to the Postoffice Appropriations bill four years ago. The present law is the result of Mr. Lewis' work.

Dr. Gillilan To Move To Wilmington

Dr. Joel S. Gillilan, director of the Sustentation and Home Mission work in the Presbytery of New Castle, will move to Wilmington from Newark the latter part of this month. Special work to be undertaken in Wilmington makes it necessary for Dr. Gillilan to make his home in that city. Dr. Gillilan went to Newark 17 years ago to succeed Rev. J. L. Vallandigham as pastor of Head of Christiana Presbyterian Church, and served that church 11 years.

Dr. Gillilan has been a member of the Newark Board of Education for 6 years and was president of the board the past year. He resigned at a meeting of the board last week and R. S. Gallagher was elected president to succeed him.

NEW OCEAN RESORT

Will Develop On 800 Acres Between Sinepuxent Bay And The Sea

That Maryland will have a new seaside resort is an announcement just made following the purchase by the Atlantic Realty Company of 400 acres of land known as Cold Harbor, between Sinepuxent bay and the ocean and about five miles from Ocean City. This tract, which was bought from the Ocean Beach Land Improvement Company, through the office of Richard W. Cook in Baltimore, exactly doubles the Atlantic Realty Company's present holding.

Work has already been started in surveying and mapping out the property, and will be followed by the erection of bungalows, cottages and possibly a hotel, the installation of a sewerage plant and the construction of a boardwalk.

The place chosen is the spot at which a bridge is to be built across the bay from Sandy Point on the mainland of Worcester county, and is about fifteen miles north of the Virginia line. The Atlantic Realty Company's property there, augmented by this purchase, will make a total of 800 acres, stretching completely across the bar, here about a half mile wide, and gives a beach front of approximately two miles on the ocean with a similar amount on the bay.

A road will be built from the Sandy Point bridge to the highway on the mainland that connects with Berlin, so that the new development can be reached direct without going through Ocean City and along the beach.
The position of the new resort with the ocean before it and the bay behind allows a number of summer pastimes, including sea or still water bathing, sailing, rowing or canoeing, deep sea and bay fishing. In addition, there is said to be a great amount of duck shooting in the fall of the year.

Death Of Mrs. George Greenwood

Mrs. Bathsheba Greenwood, wife of Mr. George Greenwood, died at her home, about three miles southeast of Princess Anne, last Friday afternoon, aged 75 years.

Mrs. Greenwood was born in Bradford, Yorkshire, England, March 9th, 1841 and was married to Mr. George Greenwood on November 5th, 1858. They emigrated to the United States on October 12th, 1884, and settled in Indiana, where they resided until December 20th, 1903, when they moved to Princess Anne.

She is survived by her husband, three sons (Messrs. Frank T., William E. and Jonah O. Greenwood) one daughter (Mrs. Elizabeth Greenwood) and six grandchildren and two great grandchildren.

Mrs. Greenwood was a member of the Episcopal Church. Funeral services were held in Manokin Presbyterian Church last Sunday afternoon, conducted by the Rev. W. F. Freund and the interment was in the church cemetery.

Socialist Candidates Nominated

Arthur E. Reimer, of Boston, Mass., was nominated for president of the United States, and Caleb Harrison, of Chicago, Ill., was nominated for vice president by the Socialist Labor party in convention in New York city Monday night of last week. Both nominations were unanimous.

A resolution was passed urging employees to organize industrially "on the principles of the workers of the international industrial union, and do all in their power to show the fallacy of craft unionism as exemplified by the American Federation of Labor," which was characterized as "a mere watch-your-job-and-boost-your-pay organization."

A platform was adopted asserting that the present system of economic inequality is destructive to the life, liberty and happiness of the working classes declaring that the means of production "must be owned, operated and controlled by the people in common."

Wilmington Shut Up Tight

All churches, public, private and parochial schools, pool rooms, saloons, junk shops, the library and other places in Wilmington, Del., where the public congregates closed at 6 o'clock last Thursday pursuant to orders from the city board of health because of the local smallpox outbreak.

No time limit was specified in the closing orders. The closing order affects 31 public schools, 19 parochial and private schools, 172 saloons, 100 churches and more than 12,000 school children. HOG CHOLERA IN COUNTY

Seventy-Five Swine Inoculated Last Week—A Few Suggestions

Hog cholera has again started in Somerset county. County Demonstrator H. S. Lippincott inoculated 75 hogs during last week. The State authorities this year will compel all dead hogs and other dead animals to be buried under penalty of $50 fine and 10 days in prison.

Bury all dead hogs and by so doing help your county go to the front in agriculture. Let all farmers work together to help keep cholera down in Somerset county.

Farmers themselves can do much toward preventing the spread of hog cholera, thus placing swine raising and feeding on a firmer and more profitable basis. To this end the following suggestions are offered:

Locate your hog lots and pastures away from streams and public highways, and do not allow the hogs to run free range.

Do not visit your neighbor or allow him to visit you, if either of you have hog cholera on your premises.

Do not drive into hog lots when returning from market or after driving on public highways.

Do not use hog lots for yarding wagons and farm implements.

Do not place newly purchased stock, secured or loaned for breeding purposes, or stock exhibited at county fairs, with your herd. Keep such stock quarantined at least two weeks, and use care to prevent carrying infection from these to other pens in feeding and attending stock.

Burn to ashes or cover with quick lime and bury under four feet of earth all dead animals and the viscera removed from animals at butchering time because they attract the attention of buzzards, dogs, etc., which are liable to carry hog cholera infection.

Confine your hogs to limited quarters that may be cleaned daily and spray three times a week with disinfectant (one part compound cresol solution to thirty parts water) until hog cholera has abated in your herd.

Treat them immediately with anti-hog cholera serum, after which they should be kept on light diet with pure drinking water. The serum must be administered before the disease has progressed far in the herd, to get best results.

Post a notice at the entrance of your farm: "Hog Cholera—Keep Out." Notify your neighbors that your herd is infected, that they may take the necessary precautions to keep hog cholera from reaching their herds.

Remove all manure and saturate with quicklime.

After the premises are thoroughly cleaned, spray walls, floors and other surfaces with (one part compound cresol solution to thirty parts water). Where hog houses are small turn them over exposing interior to sunlight.

Wallow holes and cess pools should be filled in, drained, or fenced off.

All runs underneath buildings should be cleaned and disinfected and then boarded up.

Destroy hogs that do not fully recover, as they may be carriers of cholera infection.

For information regarding hog cholera see our County Demonstrator, H. S. Lippincott, Princess Anne.

Summer Courses At Johns Hopkins

The Summer Courses for teachers which has been given for the past five years by the Johns Hopkins University will be continued this summer. The session opens Wednesday, July 5th, and closes Tuesday, August 15th.

This work was begun at the urgent request of the school superintendents of our State, and has been developed under their co-operation in order to provide at home ample opportunities for special study by Maryland school officers and teachers.

The State is especially fortunate at the present time in having the University engaged in this work. The general education law which goes into effect on June 1st will require officers and teachers to advance their academic and professional preparation in order to carry out the improvement found desirable by the school survey.

The University work has been so arranged as to permit a number of combinations of course which will enable every officer and teacher in our school system to meet their special needs.

A program of seventy-five courses has been arranged, the courses in education presenting the largest variety.

The Demonstration School which has been a leading feature during recent years will be continued. It will be so arranged as to enable supervisors and teachers in rural schools to become acquainted with new methods and devices for meeting their particular problems.

Teachers who are desirous of work for the new degree of Bachelor of Science, which is open to men and women, will have an opportunity to utilize the Summer Course toward the realization of this purpose.

Mrs. Samuel S. Sudler is visiting her daughter, Mrs. W. J. Brewington, in Salisbury.

A DOUBLE MISTAKE

By ELINOR MARSH

"Ah, Mr. Edmonds! Happy to see you. But I confess that I am surprised."

"At what, may I ask?"

"Mother wrote me that you were very young looking for your age, but I did not expect to see a man who cannot have reached middle age."

"And I have been told that you, too, do not look your age."

"I? Why, how old do you think me?"

"A man has no right to think at all about a lady's age. I was given to understand that you do not look forty."

"Forty?"

"That's what I was told. To me you don't look over twenty. But perhaps there are two of you about twenty each."

"You speak in riddles."

"Did you never hear of the man who said that a woman of forty should be like a bank bill that may be changed for two twenties? Ha, ha!"

Mr. Edmonds was the only one of the two who laughed at his own joke. Miss Fielding looked at him, wondering if he were not a trifle daft. Her mother, who was a widow, had written her that she was engaged to be married to a Mr. Edmonds, who would call upon her; that he was of suitable age for the mother and she hoped Gwen would be pleased with him. Was her mother to marry a man who appeared to be fifteen or twenty years younger than herself, who cracked jokes about changing the woman he was to marry for two girls? What did it all mean?

As for Edmonds, his father had written him of his engagement and had asked him to call on his fiancée, who would be at home after a certain date. He supposed he was calling on his future stepmother, and Gwen supposed she was receiving her future stepfather.

"I must confess, Mr. Edmonds," said Gwen coldly, "that you are quite a different man from the one I expected to see."

"And I confess," was the smiling reply, "that I am very agreeably disappointed in you."

Gwen looked at him with a blank stare. "What kind of a person did you expect to meet?" she asked.

"A woman twice your age."

"And I expected to find in you a man from fifty to sixty."

"My father in that case would be from eighty to a hundred."

"I am not considering your father. I am speaking of a man of suitable age."

"But would you consider a man three-quarters of a century old a suitable match for a girl?"

"Girl! Do you consider my mother a girl?"

It was now Mr. Edmonds' turn to be astonished. "I was given to understand that both your parents were dead," he said.

"My father is dead, but I assure you that if you are to talk as nonsensically to my mother as you have been talking to me you'll find her very much alive. I assure you she will not brook a proposal to change her for two young girls."

"All I have to say," rejoined Mr. Edmonds, with a puzzled look on his face, "is that, while I know nothing whatever of the prospective mother-in-law, the bride to be is very charming."

"What mother-in-law?"

"My father's. I fear that if she is disposed to be cranky there will be trouble in the family. My father is a well disposed man and I am sure will be able to get on with his bride, but as for a mother-in-law, if she is like the most of them it will be a monkey and a parrot business between them."

Miss Fielding stood looking at Mr. Edmonds with amazement and growing anger for a few moments, then swept out of the room, saying as she went that her mother must have gone stark, staring mad. Reaching the front door she went out, shutting it behind her not over carefully.

"I wonder what the governor means," said Mr. Edmonds to himself, "by trying himself up to a young thing like that and evidently with a fine temper. And won't she make it hot for me?"

He waited until Gwen had had time to get some distance from the house, then went into the hall, took his hat, crammed it down on his head, and went his way.

The next day Mrs. Fielding returned, learned that Mr. Edmonds had called and asked Gwen if she was pleased with him.

"Pleased with him!" said Gwen. "Mamma, have you gone mad to engage yourself to a young fellow who says he would like to change you for two girls, each like twenty years old?"

"Gwen! What do you mean?"

"Why, mother; he's young enough to be your son."

"He is sixty-two."

"Mother and daughter looked at each other without speaking."

"Are you sure that it was Mr. Edmonds who called?" asked the mother.

Gwen went to a dresser, took a card from it and handed it to her mother.

"Why, this is Harry's card."

"Harry?"

"Yes, stupid! Didn't you see the young one? Harry is Mr. Edmonds' only son. He is worth $250,000 in his own right and would make a good catch for you."

"Catch!" cried Gwen in dismay. "I expect he considers that he has caught a tartar."

WISHING AND GETTING.

An Old Man's Realized Day Dream and the Moral It Teaches.

They had started in the most primitive way, the man and his wife, back in the little log house, but they were dreaming of the day when they would own a farm of their own and not have to work so hard. After a time their hard toil was rewarded, and they owned a farm. Then it seemed desirable to add to this tract, and they worked a little harder. A new house seemed a necessary accompaniment to the large farm, so the work could not stop.

A son came to the age when he must be educated and have his chance in life, and they toiled on. All the time the old man dreamed of the days ahead when he could stop work and take life easy. Somehow the days did not come, or he did not recognize them when they came, for he kept on working until he had grown old and worn. Then his health failed, and he had to stop work.

The son for whom they had given precious years out of their lives now showed his gratitude by his gentle, un-falling love and care. It seemed to others that the goal had been reached—that the old man could now enjoy life, surrounded as he was by every comfort and attention. But he was quiet and sad, sitting with head bowed on his toil worn hands.

A neighbor, stopping in for a little visit, asked, "How are you getting along, grandpa?" Then the secret of all his sadness burst forth as he answered earnestly, "Oh, if I could only get out and work!"

What queer things our dreams are after all!—Indianapolis News.

PRETTY ROUGH SPORT.

The Game of "the Bounding Brothers of the Bosphorus."

Many extraordinary forms of amusement have been devised by army officers from the earliest times down to the present day, but none perhaps have more startling characteristics than the following new and original game, which Sir Robert Baden-Powell describes in "Memories of India."

It was introduced into the mess by a brother of our colonel, who came to stay with him. We believed him to be a quiet, harmless planter from Behar, and so he seemed throughout the evening, both during and after dinner, when he remained watching us playing the fool in various ways for our own amusement. But evidently our ways did not strike him as original, and he therefore invited us to play the great game of the bounding brothers of the Bosphorus, and when he had once shown us we joined most heartily in the sport.

The game had few rules, but a certain amount of etiquette. The apparatus consisted of all the furniture, which was piled in a heap near the center of the room, and a writing table, which was placed a couple of yards from it. You were expected then to clap your hands three times—that was the etiquette of the game—then run at the table and turn heels over head on it into the pile of furniture, shouting as you did so, "I am a bounding brother of the Bosphorus!" That was all. It was quite simple, but how it hurt when you landed on the upturned legs of a chair or the side of a table!

Worse Than Working.

The stage carpenter went to the theater manager and asked for an increase in his wages. The manager appeared surprised.

"Why," he exclaimed, "I really don't see my way to giving you a raise. You have nothing much to do. Half the time you are merely standing in the wings listening to the play."

"Yes, sir," replied the carpenter grimly; "that's just it."

Stomach Catarrh Is Very Prevalent

In this climate catarrh is a prevalent disease. Catarrh affects the stomach as often as any other organ. Perhaps every third person is more or less troubled with stomach catarrh. Peruna is extensively used, in these cases.

East Indian Monkeys.
 A naturalist who has traveled in the East Indies says: "The effect on the monkeys of man's appearance is most interesting. The expression of their emotions is certainly almost human as they sit and stare at him, coughing and snarling with anger and contempt, drawing back their heads and throwing the hand before the face with a gesture of abhorrence and other movements indicative of shocked and outraged feelings. But predominant is the expression of absolute horror, which, coming from those we consider our still degraded cousins, is to our superiority very aggravating."

Wonderful
 "Just think of it! A whole splendid dinner—soup, fish, entree, joint with two vegetables, dessert and cheese—for a dime!"
 "Wonderful! Where can you get such a dinner at such a price?"
 "Nowhere; but just think of it!"—Exchange.

No Help.

 "Nor can they ever be. Of necessity the name of the actor must be printed in smaller type than the name of the newspaper."—Louisville Courier-Journal.

Does It Run On Kerosene?

THE most important feature of a farm power engine today is the fuel it uses. That, more than anything else, determines its usefulness and economy. At present prices of gasoline and kerosene, you could not afford to accept a gasoline engine as a gift, if you had to use it. You could better afford to pay a big premium for a Mogul kerosene engine. See the Mogul work on kerosene. Ask your dealer to show you the difference in fuel cost between a Mogul in any size from 1 to 50-H. P., and a gasoline engine of the same size. The figures will surprise you.

Farm and Garden

RECLAIMING OLD ORCHARDS.

Neglected Apple Trees Can Be Brought Back to Vigorous Growth.

The reclamation of neglected fruit trees is a problem which many farmers have to face, especially those who have recently moved to a new home—stead or have come from the city to take up farming life. However small the place and modest its farming pretensions an apple orchard will usually be found somewhere. The question to be settled immediately will be whether the trees are worth saving or whether the farmer will be justified in stripping them to make place for potatoes or cabbages.

To arrive at a businesslike solution of this question the chances of successful reclamation, its probable cost and the returns to be expected from a rehabilitated orchard must be intelligently considered.

First of all, it should be said that the methods here to be described are hardly worth while from the economic point of view unless as much as one acre or say thirty trees are to be worked over. They are, however, equally applicable, of course, to a few trees, or even one if because of its character or associations the country dweller would save it at any cost.

What can be done to make old, neglected, unsightly, useless trees vigorous and productive is surprising. One ambitious farmer by whom a straggly, unkempt apple orchard of twelve acres had been grudgingly taken over in the purchase of a small suburban farm was well advised to spare the ax. He applied modern scientific methods instead. Within five years a small yield of almost useless fruit had been multiplied by ten, and the output was an apple of the highest grade.

First the likelihood of success is determined by the original suitability of the site and the soil of the orchard—one will assume them passable—and the surviving vigor of the trees. Age is not such a great factor. Ordinarily one would go slow about beginning work on a tree more than forty or fifty years old, but truly remarkable results have recently been obtained with such trees to which was left a fair share of vigor.

As for the cost, this can be made surprisingly low, for most of the operations involved may be performed by the most ordinary labor. Thirty dollars a year per acre is a fair allowance.

The actual task of making over an abandoned orchard is usually divided into four principal parts: Pruning, fertilizing, cultivating and spraying. To these are sometimes added surgery and thinning.

As regards the cost some very illuminating figures have recently been presented by individuals and in United States government reports.

The expenditure per tree has been put variously between $1 and $5. One apparently safe estimate is based on the experience of a farmer in New York state. He "restored" a forty-year-old, high topped, scale infected and otherwise neglected Baldwin apple tree. And here is what he said it cost him to do it:

Spraying material.....	$1.00
Applying same.....	1.00
Pruning and surgery.....	.75
Cultivation and fertilizing.....	.75
Total	$3.50

That tree is now bearing eight to ten barrels of apples. A rich return surely for that farmer's labor. A government publication gives these figures, carefully compiled, for the first year's reclamation work:

Plowing	$2.00
Manure—ten loads.....	10.00
Hauling manure.....	5.00
Pruning and hauling brush.....	5.00
Ditching and cultivating.....	2.00
Spraying, four times.....	6.00

Wood Ashes Contain Plant Food.
 Unleached wood ashes contain large quantities of available plant food, approximately 4 per cent potash and 1 per cent phosphoric acid, says Dr. Charles K. Francis, chemist for the experiment station at Oklahoma A. and M. college. The world's supply of potash is controlled by Germany, and consequently at this time potash has a very high value. Wood ashes of the above composition has a money value of about $20 a ton, according to Dr. Francis.

WATCH YOUR SEED.

Grain smuts and blights were unusually severe in 1915 owing largely to the cool, wet season. The seed, then, that will be sown the coming spring will have an abundance of smut spores or germs under the hulls, in the furrows and even inside the kernels. This statement applies particularly to oats smut and barley smut, but certain other widespread diseases, such as the leaf stripe disease of barley, come in the same class. If such seed is sown without first killing the spores loss from smut is sure to occur.—Wisconsin Station.

FIG CULTURE.

Great Demand For Quick Bearing Varieties of These Fruit Trees.

The fig is one of the oldest fruits known, and since it has become known that figs can be grown in pots and fruited in the conservatory or in the open ground, where there are three months warm summer weather, there has been a great demand for the quick bearing varieties by people anxious to grow fresh figs. These varieties begin to fruit by the time the young shoots are six inches long and form a fig at every leaf. Unlike apples, peaches and other fruits of the kind, the fig is more like the raspberry or blackberry in the respect that the fruit does not ripen all at one time. Figs continue to develop and ripen until checked by cold weather.

For pot culture the fig requires about the same treatment as a rubber plant, and if supplied with plenty of water the fruit will ripen. Vigorous plants will have fruit in all stages of development, from the smallest green fruit to the ripe figs ready for picking and eating.

Celeste bears rather small fruit of high quality, but is not very productive. Ischia has a green exterior, the inside of the fruit being blood red. Hirtu Japan is an abundant bearer, and Magnolia bears large pear shaped fruit.

One fig enthusiast writes that his figs stood zero weather last year, though when first set out freezing weather would kill them. As they become acclimated the plants stand colder weather. A gardener in Pennsylvania says her fig tree has withstood twenty winters with protection. The tree is bent over to the ground in winter and covered with straw and earth.

Poultry Tuberculosis.

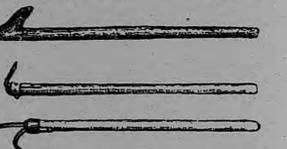

Chickens are subject to tuberculosis. Until recently there has been no test that could be used in determining whether a chicken had tuberculosis or not. Dr. L. van Es of the North Dakota experiment station has discovered a test similar to that used in testing cattle for tuberculosis. When tuberculin is injected into the skin of the wattle or comb a very pronounced swelling develops in case the bird is tuberculous, while if it is free from it no swelling results. The method is very accurate when care is used.

One flock that was tested gave the following results: Percentage tuberculous, one year old, 3 1-3; two years old, 24 1-3; three years old, 80%; and four years old, 85%. The obvious lesson from this is that the old birds are much more affected than are the young ones.

Weed Puller For Harrow.

Much time is often lost in clearing weeds from harrow teeth, especially those on spring tooth harrows. The driver must occasionally stop and pull the weeds out by hand. This is usually a great annoyance as well as a time loser. One of our good readers uses the device illustrated. The one at the bottom consists of a handle of any convenient length and two pieces of iron attached to one end, as indicated.

In operation this tool is carried in the hand. When weeds collect around a harrow tooth it is thrust forward against them or the hook is placed upon the bunch and given a pull. Thus the operator is able to continue progress without even losing a single step, to say nothing of halting his team. A similar device may be made, as shown at the top, from a crocheted stick or with only the hook (see center). When made in this way it can often be used for lifting individual harrow teeth or even sections of the harrow out of the way of snags and stones.—American Agriculturist.

Why Raise Live Stock?

Because live stock makes it possible for a man to put a large value into a small compass and to save in freight on sending things to market.

Because by the help of live stock we are enabled to sell at a high price the carbonaceous products of the farm, which mean nothing in fertility lost, but which are always in demand in the markets.

Because the manure made by the live stock is a valuable byproduct, which not only puts back into the land the mineral plant food that has been taken out, but adds an additional element of carbon in cellular form, which decays and affects the plant foods in the soil in so decaying.

DEMOCRATIC TICKET

For United States Senator:
HON. DAVID J. LEWIS
Of Allegany County.

For Congressman from First District:
HON. JESSE D. PRICE
Of Wicomico County.

THE RECENT PRIMARY AND ITS RESULT

The primary election last week resulted in the election of Hon. David J. Lewis to be the candidate of the Democratic party to succeed the incumbent, Hon. Blair Lee, for the United States Senate; and this though the popular vote was strongly in favor of the latter. The result is one of the effects of the unit system and Mr. Lee can blame no one more than himself for this consequence. The unit system is correct, however, if the direct primary is correct at all. It has always been our opinion that the direct primary is by no means the peer of the old convention plan of naming candidates. It is true that a State convention is to be held to ratify the people's choice and to formulate a platform, but the approach to it has never met with our approval, for many good reasons.

So far as Somerset county is concerned Mr. Lee received a handsome majority. This fact, however, does not permit any true Democrat to do otherwise than to cast his vote in November for the man named under the direct primary system. Mr. Lee had his chance with Mr. Lewis and Mr. Bruce and failed. It is therefore the duty of every Democratic voter to vote for the successful man and the man that will undoubtedly be approved by the State convention. It has been reported that some Democrats will decline to do this but in withholding their vote they simply will be playing into the hands of the Republican nominee, Dr. Joseph I. France. Mr. Lewis has come to the front most rapidly and it is his democratic spirit that has brought him this far along. The parcel post is one of the strong features that has favored his election, but that is only one of the reasons. It is in the main, his general every-day bearing and acquaintance that has given him his great success.

It is folly after the game has been played to lay any special stress upon the State machine or its part in advancing Mr. Lewis. That will have to go for what it is worth and individuals may think what they choose. The duty now is a plain one and that is to support the candidate and do all in our power to aid him and at the same time lend no aid to a Republican candidate.

The Testimony Of The Democratic Primaries

Out of the 23 counties and 4 Legislative districts Lewis carried 15 units yesterday and Lee carried 12 units. The 12 units carried by Lee contain in round numbers 647,000 inhabitants. The 15 carried by Lewis contain in round numbers, based on the same census figures, 648,000; that is, on the score of population they broke almost exactly even.

Lee carried his half by an aggregate majority over Lewis of about 11,000. Lewis carried his half by an aggregate majority over Lee of 7,600. Lee's majority over Lewis in the State was about 3,400.

Yet Lee was beaten. Lee carried the city of Baltimore by 7,400 over Lewis. Yet Lee receives only 21 out of Baltimore's 28 votes in the convention. Lewis wins one Legislative district by 375 votes—Kelly's district. The State organization buys that district from Kelly, and Kelly sells it, for a bunch of police magistrate appointments. Whether or not he has many votes to deliver, he has a few—certainly 200. That would be enough, and was enough, to cut the net vote of this city in the convention exactly in two. Instead of giving Lee 28 votes the city will give him 21 votes, offset by 7 for Lewis, which leaves 14. And Baltimore city went 7400 for Lee!

The News wishes to impress these figures upon the minds of the electorate. In this election the State machine and Lewis won over Lee. But certainly the verdict was neither that the electorate prefers the State machine, nor that it prefers Lewis. The result is the work of the most ridiculous, unjust, brutal pretense of nomination by the rank and file of the party that politicians could well devise. There is little use discussing the principle of the direct primaries in the light of yesterday's election. Suppose Lee had not been running and Bruce had gotten his votes. Suppose that there had been a revolt against the State organization with enough sweep to it to give Bruce a majority of 7400 in the city of Baltimore and practically an even break in the counties, save in Republican strongholds like Frederick, Washington, Allegany and Garrett. This is what Lee secured. Leave out of Lewis' column the big Republican counties that Carrington carried over Smith in 1914, and you will find his plurality even in the counties reduced to about 500. It was Republican counties that nominated him—nominated him over the choice of Baltimore city, and nominated him by giving him an aggregate plurality of 3500 against a Baltimore plurality of 7400 for his chief opponent.

Suppose, then, independents had tried to put Bruce over. What a futile thing it would be to have won with him a popular victory, to have succeeded in carrying the State with him, to have outvoted the machine, to have won fairly and squarely by every fair measure of what should constitute success! For under exactly similar conditions and with the same degree of success, Lee secures only 56 out of 129 votes in the convention.

We could have no better illustration of how great a travesty upon the primaries Maryland politicians have given us in the county unit system than yesterday's vote discloses. This State is in the grasp of the Democratic machine; held by it whether or not the Democratic party itself wishes and, by a count of noses, has the power to lead the way. The illustration was a warning.—Baltimore News.

SCENTING A CRIME

How a Russian Police Inspector Formulated a Theory.

WORKING UP A MURDER CASE.

He Made All the Known Facts in the Case Fit into Each Other Perfectly and Then Proceeded to Demonstrate His Accuracy of Deduction.

We are not encouraged to believe that the Russian police inspector is the equal of the trained French official if Anton Chekhov's story of the deductive method in Russia is illustrative.

One morning a young man hurried into the office of an inspector of police and reported that his master, an officer of the guard who had been separated from his wife and lived alone, had been murdered. He was greatly excited. The inspector went with him at once to the scene of the tragedy.

When he arrived at the house he found the door to the officer's bedroom locked, the key on the inside. The servants, unable to awake their master, had concluded that he was dead. The inspector found the door unopened. He had it forced open. The bed had been tossed about, the pillows on the floor. On a table near the bed was the officer's watch and some silver coins. The officer and his clothing were gone except for a single boot that lay on the floor.

The inspector examined the room carefully. The only thing he found was a partly burned safety match. It was known that the officer did not smoke and used only sulphur matches for his candles. He examined the garden below the window. The grass and some bushes had been trampled. He found a piece of cotton on some twigs and some fine threads of dark blue wool. At some distance from the window, in the garden under a bush, he found the second top boot.

The inspector came to the conclusion, from the evidences, that the man had been strangled and his body taken out through the window.

The fact that the watch and money were undisturbed showed that the purpose of the crime was not robbery. The safety match indicated that some person above the ordinary was connected with the affair, since peasants or common servants would have only sulphur matches.

The fact that one boot remained in the room made the inspector believe that the guard had been killed while he was undressing. The finding of the other boot in the garden indicated that this one had been partly removed and had fallen off while the body was being carried away.

The inspector in his report reconstructed the crime: On the evening in question the guard, who had been on a prolonged debauch, went to his room drunk. As he sat on his bed, taking off one of his boots, he had been attacked and smothered with the pillow. During the struggle the candle was knocked over and afterward one of the assassins relighted it, striking a safety match. When the man was dead his body had been taken out through the window and carried across the garden. As it passed the lilac bush the remaining boot, partly removed by the man before he was attacked, dropped off.

The inspector, having arrived at this deduction, determined to locate the safety match. He went to all the shops in every direction, but not one of them carried in its stock such a thing as a box of safety matches. Finally, at some distance from the scene of the tragedy, he found a shopkeeper who had a single pack of such matches. It was a broken pack, with one box missing. The shopkeeper remembered precisely who had purchased this missing box. It was the wife of the guard, a big, masculine woman of unusual physical strength. She lived near the apartment in which the guard had been murdered. It was now night, but the inspector went at once to the woman and charged her with the murder of her husband.

"I know all about it," he said. "Take me at once to the place where you have concealed your husband!" She got a key from a nail on the wall and went out into the courtyard. The inspector followed. They finally reached a little house at the end of the garden. The woman unlocked the door and they entered. By the light of a candle the inspector saw the long body of a man lying motionless on a bed in the corner of the room. He approached to examine the murdered body.

But here his deductions went to pieces. The supposed dead man sat up, and the explanation of all the tragic incidents appeared. The guard was going to bed every night drunk. His wife heard of it and went across the garden to his window to remonstrate with him. He put the window up and, seeing who it was, threw his boot at her. She was a resolute woman in masculine efficiency. She climbed in through the window, thrashed the drunken guardman soundly, dragged him across the garden and locked him up in the bathroom, where she determined to keep him until he should be sober. He had been thus a prisoner for one day, while with swift deductions the inspector had worked out his complicated murder.—Melville Davison Post in Saturday Evening Post.

WHAT CATARRH IS

It has been said that every third person has catarrh in some form.

Science has shown that nasal catarrh often indicates a general weakness of the body; and local treatments in the form of snuffs and vapors do little, if any good.

To correct catarrh you should treat its cause by enriching your blood with the oil-food in Scott's Emulsion which is a medicinal food and a building- tonic, free from alcohol or any harmful drugs. Try it. Scott & Bowne, Bloomfield, N. J.

STORY OF A LAWSUIT.

Queer Way in Which an Umbrella Case Was Decided in Poland.

The Central Law Journal says that the old fable of the lawyers and the oyster, in which, the ownership of an oyster being contested, the lawyers ate the oyster and gave a shell to each of the litigants, is matched by a story of a lawsuit which a Russian journal relates as entirely authentic.

In a city of Poland, it appears, two men came into court with a suit over the ownership of an umbrella which had been left in a restaurant. Each one introduced evidence to prove that the umbrella was his. Being unable to match the wisdom of Solomon by dividing the umbrella between them, the judge postponed the case. Pending its decision the umbrella was left in the judge's private room.

Later, as he left the court to go home, the judge found that the weather was rainy. He went back to his room, took the umbrella which was in litigation and spread it over his head in the street. On his way home he went into a restaurant and left the umbrella on the rack, and when he was ready to leave the place he found that it had been taken away by some unknown customer. Then he bought another umbrella and took it to his courtroom.

When the case came up the litigants were confronted with it, and neither was able to identify it as his own. The court thereupon fined them both for invoking the law on a frivolous pretext, and they departed empty handed and decidedly "nonsuited."

THE IDEAL CITY.

A Vision of What May Perhaps Come to Pass in the Future.

A city, sanitary, convenient, substantial; where the houses of the rich and the poor are alike comfortable and beautiful; where the streets are clean and the sky line is clear as country air; where the architectural excellence of its buildings adds beauty and dignity to its streets; where parks and playgrounds are within the reach of every child; where living is pleasant, toll honorable and recreation plentiful, where capital is respected, but not worshipped; where commerce in goods is great, but not greater than the interchange of ideas; where industry thrives and brings prosperity alike to employer and employed; where education and art have a place in every home; where worth and not wealth give standing to men; where the power of character lifts men to leadership, where interest in public affairs is a test of citizenship and devotion to the public weal is a badge of honor; where government is always honest and efficient and the principles of democracy find their fullest and truest expression, where the people of all the earth can come and be blended into one community life and where each generation will vie with the past to transmit to the next a city greater, better and more beautiful than the last.—Mayr Fesler, Secretary of the Civic League of Cleveland, O., in New York Independent.

An Ancient Idea of the North Pole.

The north pole is the place of greatest dignity in the world, and the people who dwell near it "have a wonderful excellency and an exceeding pre-rogative above all nations of the earth." How blessed we may think this nation to be, for they are in perpetual light and never know what darkness meaneth, by the benefit of twilight and full moons, as the learned in astronomy do very well know, which, people, if they have the notice of their eternity by the comfortable light of the gospel, then are they blessed and of all nations most blessed. Why then do we neglect the search of this excellent discovery, against which there can be nothing said to hinder the same?—"Hakluyt's Voyage" (Sixteenth Century).

Got His Reply.

A funny man indulged in a practical joke recently. He put an advertisement in a paper for a wife and requested each candidate to inclose her carte de visite. It was a foolish thing to do, but one of the candidates served him out very well by sending the following letter: "Sir, I do not inclose my carte, for, though there is some authority for putting a cart before a horse, I know of none for putting one before an ass."

Fast Flyers.

The great German naturalist Gaetke relates that with the aid of a telescope in his observation of migrating birds he had seen the plover and curlew, not fast flying birds as we know them, travel four miles per minute, 240 miles per hour, in the attenuated air of high altitudes.

Not Lasting.

"What an impression the amateur actress made on the hero when she laid her golden head upon his shoulder, with her face hidden in his embrace!" "Yes, but it's the kind of powder which will easily brush off."—Baltimore American.

At a Crowded Reception.

"My husband is such a blockhead!" "How now?" "Couldn't locate a lady I wanted to find, although I told him plainly that her gown had sleeves of nylon and velvet revers."—Louisville Courier Journal.

WHAT'S THE REASON?

Many Princess Anne People in Poor Health Without Knowing The Cause

There are scores of people who drag out a miserable existence without realizing the cause of their suffering. Day after day they are racked with backache and headache; suffer from nervousness, dizziness, weakness, languor and depression. Perhaps the kidneys have fallen behind in their work of filtering the blood and that may be the root of the trouble. Look to your kidneys, assist them in their work—give them the help they need. You can use no more highly recommended remedy than Doan's Kidney Pills—endorsed by people all over the country and by your neighbors in Princess Anne.

John W. Heath, farmer, R. F. D., No. 2, Princess Anne, says: "For more than a year I suffered from distressing attacks of backache and at times my back became so weak I could hardly work. The kidney secretions were also irregular in passage and there was sediment in them. Having heard so much about Doan's Kidney Pills, I got a box at Omar A. Jones' drug store and gave them a trial. They helped me at once and thus convinced me of their merit. Over four years later Mr. Heath said: "The cure Doan's Kidney Pills made for me is still permanent." Price 50c, at all dealers. Don't simply ask for a kidney remedy—get Doan's Kidney Pills the same that Mr. Heath has twice publicly recommended. Foster-Milburn Co., Proprietors, Buffalo, N. Y. [Advertisement]

CHINESE PRINTING.

Queer Old Ancient Methods Are Still Used by Many Natives.

Chinese hold that the art of printing was discovered in China about fifty years before the Christian era. Until the discovery of the art of paper making, A. D. 95, they printed on silk or cloth cut in the form of leaves. The method employed to this day by many native Chinese printers is substantially as follows:

No printing press is used. The delicate nature of the Chinese paper will not admit of it. When the blocks are engraved, the paper is cut and the ink is ready one man with his brush prints a large number of sheets in a day. The block to be printed must be placed perfectly level and secured firmly. The printer has two brushes, one of them stiffer than the other, which he can hold in his hand and use at either end. He dips it into the ink and rubs the block with it, taking care not to moisten it too much or leave it too dry. If it were wetted too much the characters would be blurred; if too little they would not print.

When once the block is got into the proper condition he can print three or four impressions without dipping the brush into the ink again.

The second brush is used to rub over the paper with a small degree of pressure that it may take the impression. This it does easily, for, not being sized with alum, it receives the ink the instant it comes in contact with it.

It is only necessary that the brush should be passed over every part of the sheet with a greater or smaller degree of pressure and repeated in proportion as the printer finds there is more or less ink upon the block.—Los Angeles Times.

CONCRETE MIXING ON THE FARM

Directions For Preparing Material For Mixing For Farm Use.

G. P. SPRINGER,
Maryland Agricultural College.

There are many ways of mixing concrete, but to the person having only a small amount to handle, up to about 150 cubic yards, hand mixing is the only economical method.

Mixing on the basis of a two-bag batch; meaning a batch of concrete where the basis of measurement is two bags of cement, a 1:2:4 concrete would require two bags of cement (a bag of cement contains one cubic foot), four cubic feet of sand, eight cubic feet of stone or gravel. The tools that will be required are: A mixing board 9x10 feet, which will require the following material:

- 9 pcs. 7/8 in. x 12 in. x 10 ft. x 0 in., dressed one side and two edges.
- 5 pcs. 2 in. x 4 in. x 9 ft. 0 in., rough
- 2 pcs. 2 in. x 2 in. x 10 ft. 0 in., rough
- 2 pcs. 2 in. x 2 in. x 9 ft. 0 in., rough

The mixing board should be tight with the 2-inch strips nailed around the edge to prevent water from escaping.

Runways will require several pieces of plank 10x12 inches wide.

A measuring box for sand and stone will require for a 1:2:4 mix the following material:

- 2 pcs. 1 in. x 11 1/2 in. x 2 ft. 0 in., rough
- 2 pcs. 1 in. x 11 1/2 in. x 4 ft. 0 in., rough

This forms a box two feet square, the extra length on two pieces is for making handles. There will also be required two or more "square point" shovels, one or more sheet iron wheelbarrows, a rake, a water barrel, several water buckets, a sprinkling can, a temper, a spading tool and a sand screen.

Making The Mixture.

Level the mixing board, place the measuring box at one side of the center, fill measuring box level full of sand, lift off the box and spread the sand evenly over the board until four or six inches deep. Take two bags of cement and spread evenly over the sand. Mix the sand and cement thoroughly by turning three or more times. To mix start at the edge of the sand and cement mass and shovel it over into a new pile. In shoveling do not take a shovelful from one pile and dump it upon the other pile, but in turning the shovel give it a twisting pull, this will cause the sand and cement as it falls from the shovel to scatter and mix. The material is shoveled from one side of the mixing board to the other at least three times, and if properly turned should then show throughout an even gray color. Spread out upon the mixing board to a depth of four or six inches and place the measuring box on the center of the mass, fill level full of stone, lift off and level, replace and fill full of stone again, lift off and level down. (Note that the box is filled only once with sand.) Wet the mixing board upon the side where the mass is to be turned, shovel the cement, sand and stone over to the other side of the board sprinkling it as turned, wet board on other side and turn mass back again, sprinkling as turned. As each shovel of material is deposited drag the shovel toward you, this will spread and mix the wet mass. Turn and sprinkle where dry spots show until a complete turning will not expose any dry material. The concrete mass should now contain sufficient water so that tamping will cause water to flush to the top of the mixture, bringing with it a thin film of cement to the surface.

Use At Once.

The concrete is now ready to be placed in the forms built to receive it. Concrete should not be allowed to stand after mixing but should be placed in the forms at once. If it stands for a time greater than 30 minutes it will begin to set, and if then placed in the form will produce a weak structure which will give trouble and eventually fail.

The materials to be used in the concrete, the tools for mixing, the materials for forms, the forms as far as possible completed, should all be on the ground where the work is to be done before any of the concrete is mixed. Use only clean water. Mix quickly and place immediately in the forms.

Advice and information concerning concrete work and other engineering problems may be had by writing to the Division of Engineering, Maryland Agricultural College, College Park, Md.

When cut worms are found to be abundant on corn land, the use of the poisoned bait is recommended. This may be prepared as follows: Mix 50 pounds of wheat bran, two pounds of Paris green, and six finely chopped oranges or lemons. Then bring the whole mixture to the consistency of a stiff dough by the addition of a cheap molasses, such as is used in cattle rations, adding water when necessary. Distribute this bait over the infested field in small lumps, taking care to sprinkle it sparingly around each hill. In case bran cannot be readily obtained, middlings or alfalfa meal may be successfully substituted.

SEWAGE DISPOSAL SYSTEM FOR THE FARM

H. GWINNER,
Maryland Agricultural College Extension Service.

Following a recent announcement that the Division of Engineering of the Maryland Agricultural College was preparing plans and details for a sewage disposal system for the average farm, such a system has been put into working operation and a description of its construction and operation prepared.

The question may be asked why go to the expense of installing such a system on the average farm? In reply to this, it is only necessary to say that such a system does away with the unsanitary and unsightly privy and the pollution of the soil and wells due to the leaching of the liquid waste; producing typhoid and kindred diseases. A properly designed sewage system discharges only clear water; the solid matter in general having been consumed by certain mechanical and bacterial action in such a system. Any insoluble wastes may be easily removed from the system at little expense.

The system in question is designed to care for ten people and consists of two anti-freezing hoppers or toilets, about two hundred and sixty feet of six-inch vitrified sewer pipe and a dark, air-tight concrete tank; this latter being known as a septic tank. The water for flushing the toilets and the system when necessary is carried to the spot by a three-quarter inch galvanized pipe from the college main.

As the toilets are used in an out-house, which has no heat, they are made frost proof or anti-freezing. This desirable arrangement is brought about by the water storage tank over the hopper or toilet being filled while the hopper is being used and it flushes automatically immediately the seat of the hopper rises.

The excreta or sewage, after leaving the toilets, is conveyed through the six-inch pipe to the septic tank. This pipe was laid in a carefully graded ditch, and owing to the lay of the land two grades were necessary; eight feet being on a 10 per cent grade and one hundred and twenty feet was laid on a 4 1/2 per cent grade.

The septic tank, which receives the sewage, is made of a mixture of one part of cement, two parts of sand and four parts of gravel. The top, sides and ends and bottom were reinforced with steel rods. The tank has two compartments or chambers; one of which is the settling section and the other the discharge section. The sewage is discharged into, settled and partially purified in the settling chamber. It slowly seeps around the baffle boards over the concrete partition wall into the discharge chamber and when sufficient has collected in this chamber, it is intermittently discharged from this chamber by an automatic siphon.

This septic tank has a capacity to take care of the flushings of forty gallons per person and to discharge at intervals between twelve and twenty-four hours. There is no advantage in having a tank larger than necessary to properly perform the work, for then the liquid sewage remains too long and putrefaction is likely to occur. If the siphon fails to discharge during the proper working periods, owing to not having received sufficient sewage, flush sufficient water through the toilets to make it do so.

The most difficult portion of the system to construct was the septic tank, owing to the steel reinforcing rods. The forming was of pine, one inch stuff, six inches wide and dressed both sides, while the bracing was two by four stuff. The top of the tank is not separate from the sides, but is molded with the sides and ends. Time consumed in completing tank by three laborers, carpenter and helper was four and one-half days and the cost, complete, was $32.10.

Anyone desiring more detailed information relative to the design, cost, details of construction of the system and blue print drawings of the tank, may obtain same by communicating with the Extension Service, Maryland Agricultural College, College Park, Md.

To this should be added the amount which would have to be paid a surveyor and assistant. It requires about two hours to run the proper lines by these two men.

The Extension Service of the Maryland Agricultural College, in co-operation with the U. S. Department of Agriculture, is prepared to conduct a limited number of co-operative spraying demonstrations. These are for the purpose of teaching the methods of mixing and applying the spray materials and for demonstrating the value of the operation. In these demonstrations, the obligations of the growers are to furnish the equipment, chemicals, labor and to keep a record of the quality and quantity of fruit produced on both the sprayed trees and the unsprayed or check trees. On the other hand, the Extension Service will arrange for a man to go to the orchard as often as is necessary to supervise the work at no expense to the grower.

A Big Spring

The state of Florida has its full share of large and beautiful springs. Many of them form good-sized streams from the beginning, and some are navigable. The largest spring in the State, and one of the largest and probably the best known in the United States, is Silver Spring, which is located 6 miles east of Ocala. This spring forms the principal source of Oklawaha River, a tributary of the St. Johns, and steamboats traversing the river enter the spring basin, which has an area of several acres. The water is from 9 to 30 feet deep and wonderfully clear, appearing absolutely colorless.

Judge Jones Approves Use Of Rod

A decision and opinion of some interest to teachers, parents and pupils was handed down recently by Judge Robley D. Jones in the case of the State against A. C. Lutz, principal of Vienna Academy, charged with whipping a pupil.

In finding Professor Lutz not guilty, Judge Jones upheld the right of the teacher to inflict corporal punishment in moderation, holding that the teacher stands in loco parentis, having the children committed to his care not only for mental training but for discipline, and then when a pupil assumes a belligerent attitude the teacher is recreant to his trust if he does not use the rod.

Judge Jones said that corporal punishment is not as much resorted to as it was a decade or more ago, but that boys must not get the idea that it has gone entirely out of style. He also stated that if should go out, that corporal punishment is no longer to be inflicted in the public schools, the maintenance of discipline would be found an impossibility. He condemned parents who rush into court with such cases and said he had seen but three cases of the kind in court and hoped never to see another.

A Symbol Of Health

The Pythagorians of Ancient Greece ate simple food, practiced temperance and purity. As a badge they used the five pointed star which they regarded as a symbol of health. A red five pointed star appears on each package of Chamberlain's Tablets, and still fulfills its ancient mission as a symbol of health. an executive committee, or managing body of a political party aforesaid, shall be published seven days before the said election in the mode prescribed in Section 49 of this article, as far as may be practicable. It shall not be necessary to print sample ballots or cards of instructions for such elections, but either or both shall be printed by the Board of Supervisors of Elections of the City of Baltimore, when requested by any candidate in said primary election, said request to be accompanied by a sum of money necessary to cover the cost of printing. Each candidate for nomination for public office at a primary election shall pay the sum of twenty-five ($25.00) dollars for each county or legislative district of Baltimore City in which his name appears upon the ballot; provided, that in any county where the salary of the office for which nomination is sought is three hundred ($300.00) dollars or less, such payment shall be ten ($10.00) dollars; upon filing his respective certificate with the Board of Supervisors of Elections; but candidates for Governor, Attorney-General, Comptroller or Clerk of the Court of Appeals of the State shall file their said certificates of nomination with the Secretary of State at Annapolis, and the Secretary of State, immediately upon receipt of the same shall certify the fact of said filing and the name and description of each person so filing said certificate as specified therein to the Supervisors of Elections of Baltimore City and of every county in the State. Said candidates for Governor, Comptroller, Attorney-General and Clerk of the Court of Appeals, upon filing their respective certificates with the Secretary of State as aforesaid, shall each pay to him the sum of two hundred and seventy ($270.00) dollars, which in turn shall be transmitted by him in sums of ten ($10.00) dollars each to the Supervisors of Elections of each county of the State, and the sum of forty ($40.00) dollars thereof to the Supervisors of Elections of Baltimore City; and the Board of Supervisors of Elections of Baltimore City shall pay over the amount so received to the Mayor and City Council of Baltimore, and the Board of Supervisors of Elections for each county shall pay over the amount so received to the County Commissioners of each county, and all the expenses of each of said primary elections in Baltimore City shall be paid by the Mayor and City Council of Baltimore; and all the expenses of holding said primary elections in each county, respectively, shall be paid by the County Commissioners of each county, respectively, precisely as the expenses of the State, City and County elections are now paid under existing laws; and the said ballots shall be prepared and printed in number not less than twice the number of registered voters of the respective political parties participating in such primary, as nearly as the same may be estimated, and shall be delivered by such Boards of Supervisors of Elections to the election officials as provided in this Article for general elections.

185. The names of candidates for nomination for each office or for each place or position aforesaid, respectively, shall be arranged alphabetically upon the ballots according to the surnames of the candidates. Ballots in all said primary elections shall be cast, counted and canvassed and the result of the election announced and certified in Baltimore City and in each of the counties of the State, as now provided by this Article for general elections; and the said primary elections shall be held and conducted and determined in the manner and form provided by this Article for general elections, and subject to all the regulations, requirements and provisions as prescribed by this Article for general elections in so far as the same are or may be applicable to said primary elections and except as may be herein provided. TRENCH WARFARE SHATTERS NERVES

Horror of It All Has Lasting Effect on Victims of the Titanic Conflict.

WEIRD SCENES ARE DESCRIBED

Dr. E. Murray Auer of Philadelphia Says "Trench Dreams" of the Wounded Bore Horrors of Modern Battles.

Philadelphia.—That the horrors of trench warfare, with its sudden alarms at night, the bursting of shells and the burying of men by mine explosions, have a lasting effect on the men who undergo them is the conclusion reached by Dr. E. Murray Auer of Philadelphia, Pa., who for some time was attached to the Twenty-second General hospital of the British expeditionary force, "somewhere in France."

In a paper which was read recently before the Philadelphia Neurological society, and which appears in the current issue of the Medical Record, Doctor Auer gives the results of his observations.

In practically all of the cases which were observed by Doctor Auer the soldiers received no appreciable physical injury, the effect being purely mental. One such instance cited by the physician was found in a boy nineteen years old. This boy had been for three days under a sustained and heavy shell fire. At the end of that time he was threatened by his sergeant with courtmartial for sleeping while on sentry duty. This led to an examination and the sending of the boy to the hospital. He was in a stupor for ten days. The same was true of another soldier who had seen his comrade blown to pieces.

During the time of their coma, which in some cases lasted more than a week, the soldiers gave the impression that they again were living through the experiences which had caused the stupor to come on. This was evidenced by their terrified expressions. They crouched, started and stared wildly when spoken to. One such man rose from his bed in the middle of the night and recited in a one-sided conversation his experience of a charge and burial by a mine explosion, and then relapsed into his stuporous state.

Another result of shock, according to Doctor Auer's observations, is a continued shaking of the entire body, accompanied by various pains and unusually severe headaches. In some cases this shaking has been observed to last several days, and even weeks, although in most instances its duration is a few hours. In one instance this trembling came after a soldier had twice been buried in a mine explosion, had been through a charge and under heavy bombardment in a trench and finally was hit by a piece of rock, which, while not injuring him, knocked him down. In his case the tremor of the head was marked, and lasted for some time.

Temporary loss of memory is a common thing with the men who have been through some extremely trying period or who have suffered a sudden shock. In such instances the recovery of memory is as sudden as its loss. One such soldier, after being near a shell which exploded, could remember nothing that happened to him until he came to himself, walking along a lane, some time later. Another man in the hospital thought himself back in the trenches and became violent, moving his cupboard about as though it were a machine gun and pointing it at his enemies. When he suddenly returned to a normal state he could remember nothing of his experience.

One of the most common, and at the same time most pitiful, of the many mental results of the struggle is the inability to sleep soundly and recurrence of so-called trench dreams. It is not uncommon, Doctor Auer says, to see soldiers start from their beds in the middle of the night, crying out and weeping, the bodies bathed in perspiration as they dream of being chased by Germans with bayonets, of being buried under debris following a mine explosion and of losing the trench in a fog and being unable to get back.

The fear which is commonly found is not the kind which a layman would expect. The soldiers do not fear injury to themselves. They are rather afraid of doing something wrong, a fear of an emergency in which one may fall or lose the confidence of his comrades. In one instance the patient was afraid to go to sleep for fear he would not awake.

Blindness and deafness are frequently found, but one of the most unusual of the phenomena in this connection is the presence of photophobia, the fear of looking. In many instances men are found who complain that they cannot see. In such instances, when their eyes are opened for them, they can see without any difficulty. One instance of this came as the result of a trench dream in which the soldier again lived through his burial by a mine explosion four weeks before. When he awoke he complained that he could not see and imagined that his sight had been lost as a result of the explosion. When the eyelids were raised he could see as well as ever.

Unearth Den of Snakes.

Greenville, Pa.—Two residents of Stoneboro were walking through what is known as Lynch woods, a heavy timber tract near the village, when they saw something moving near an old log. They investigated and discovered a snake, which they killed. The log was then moved a few inches and a den of snakes was unearthed. The men killed 27 of them. They were blacksnakes and several of good size.

WAIT FOR DEATH COMING FROM AIR

SUN BRINGS GERMAN FLIERS

Civilians as Well as Combatants at Saloniki Know That Bomb Throwers May Be Expected When Sky is Clear.

Arnoldo Fraccaroli, well known as correspondent of the Corriere della Sera, is at present in Saloniki for his paper, and writes the following interesting account of scenes and incidents in and around Saloniki, giving a graphic word picture of the situation:

"Sunday is bomb day," he says. "The sun brings the aviators and the aviators bring the bombs, but nevertheless, the people like to see the sun shine here. It puts new hope, new warmth in the blood. The soldiers at once smile and laugh again; the chill is taken out of the air, and even the telegraph poles lose their melancholy appearance. Who knows, perhaps the wire strung on those poles will now bring us some good news? The sun is shining; the beautiful winter sun, and hope and love are revived, and the people begin to feel that things will be as they were before the war. However, that those German aviators will again make their appearance there is no doubt. They always come on sunny days, and we have to put up with it. It is war. The French aviators inspect the country from Glewghell to Petrow, bombard the German-Bulgarian positions near the border, and the German aviators come and bombard us.

"I am just now near the first line trenches, at that angle where the trenches run from west to south to the point where they connect with the British trenches, forming the right wing of this front, which then runs down to the gulf of Orfano. Names, of course, I cannot mention, but I may say that here we are about forty kilometers from Saloniki. Work is progressing in the fortification of this line, which is expected to withstand the attack that the enemy will soon make. The soldiers on this front are experts in the building of trenches and dug-outs, and they were brought here for that purpose, particularly from the Champagne and the Argonne.

"A brigade commander tells me that they are convinced the allies eventually will win, but to make an attack ourselves would be foolish, as we are not strong enough. This same commander invited me to breakfast, and I was surprised at the luxury of the furnishings in his little room. He actually had a real table of wood, some china plates, a few chairs and some tin drinking cups. He did not object to my bringing some preserves with me, and during the meal they were quite welcome. Suddenly came the cry from the outside:

"The aviators! The aviators!" "The soldiers had stopped work in the trenches and were pointing skyward. There in the blue ether at a height of only 600 meters we saw an aeroplane, and as the aviator emerged from the shadow of a cloud and the sun shone on his machine there was a cry of joy:

"A Frenchman!" "But other voices were heard:

"Yes, but see, there's another one coming, yes, and still another, and still another flying very high. There, those two fellows up there are Germans." "The four aeroplanes were flying toward the border. The two lower machines were French, and they were rising higher, no doubt with the object of engaging the Germans in battle. The Germans had come from the direction of Saloniki, where, no doubt, they had thrown their bombs. Of course, the day was so beautiful that we could expect that. In the distance we saw smoke and dust rising, followed a few moments later by the sound of an explosion. The soldiers are shaking their fists at the German machines and cursing and swearing at them. Again there is an explosion, then another—this time very much nearer to us. Evidently the Germans have discovered our position and have come to bombard us, and they also have become aware of the fact that we have no guns with which to reach them.

"Sure enough, the beasts are coming directly toward us, but we all remain standing where we are. Why run? What's the use? All we can do is to separate, so that the bombs when they do fall do not fall among large groups.

"The machines are directly over us now, and we can hear the noise of the motors. Somehow we feel death hovering over us. Some of the men double up, so to speak, and sink to the ground in the natural instinct to protect themselves. There is a terrible crash, followed by rocks and stone and earth flying in the air near us. Groans and cries are heard. A bomb has fallen in our field kitchen, from which a thick, reddish smoke is rising. We can distinguish ten men lying on the ground. Five or six are able to get up, but the others will never rise again. One man had his head crushed and another's chest was stove in.

"High above us fly in the blue sky the two German aviators, going on their way undisturbed."

CRUISING FOR ALASKAN BIRDS

STUCK IN THE ICE OFF BARROW

AN INTERESTING account of the birds observed during a trip in Alaska has been published by the Smithsonian institution, as reported by F. Seymour Hersey, who was in the field for A. C. Bent, collecting data and photographs for the completion of the "Life Histories of North American Birds."

Leaving Seattle on the revenue cutter Bear, the party steamed northward through the "inside passage," where the scenery was delightful all the way to Ketchikan. From that point the Bear passed through Dixon's entrance and headed for Unalaska. As they neared Unimak pass various members of the tubulars, or tube-nosed birds, were noticed, together with sooty shearwaters, petrels and albatrosses. As they approached the pass the number of birds increased to a point almost beyond belief. As far as the eye could see masses of birds were bedded on the water; murres and puffins were everywhere. "It was utterly impossible to form any definite estimate of the number of birds seen," says the author; "hundreds of thousands does not exaggerate their abundance." The ship seems to have literally plowed its way through them. The Bear lay at Unalaska three days, during which time Mr. Hersey collected a number of species peculiar to that locality.

After touching at St. George and St. Paul islands, they proceeded on to Nome, which port the ship did not actually reach on account of the ice, but anchored out in the stream and sent the mail ashore by dog teams.

To the Yukon in Open Boat. At St. Michael Mr. Hersey left the Bear and made arrangements with the owner of a small open power boat to carry him and his outfit to the mouth of the Yukon river. They went through the so-called "canal" between St. Michael island and the mainland, but encountered a severe storm which forced them to land and encamp for three days. Birds were plentiful in the neighborhood of the camp and Mr. Hersey employed the time to good advantage, securing many specimens of eggs.

Proceeding onward, they arrived at the mouth of the Yukon and established their headquarters at the wireless station, eight miles from the native village of Kotlik. The country all around is reported very flat, making a safe feeding ground for the little brown cranes and geese, since it was impossible to approach them unobserved. In describing it, Mr. Hersey says: "So bare and level is the country that a photograph of the river, taken from the shore, shows the opposite bank as nothing but a straight line, such as might be made across the print with a ruler and a coarse stub pen." Here the author remained during the greater part of the breeding season. He found pintails and several species of shorebirds breeding abundantly; gulls, terns and jaegers common, and redpolls, Alaska yellow wagtails, willow ptarmigan and Alaska longspurs also well represented in this region.

Delayed in the Ice Off Barrow. Later in the summer he returned to Nome and again embarked on the Bear, which stopped at many points along the coast, among which were Golovin bay, Cape Prince of Wales, Cape Dyer, Point Franklin and Barrow. Before reaching Barrow they encountered considerable ice and were delayed ten days en route. At Barrow, the northernmost point of this trip, the ice conditions were so bad they only remained long enough to land the mail and take aboard several men who had been caught in the ice the previous season and obliged to winter at Barrow. Among the newcomers was W. S. Brooks of the Polar Bear party, who had been collecting for the Museum of Comparative Zoology.

As soon as the ship was out of the ice her course was changed to west and an effort was made to reach Wrangel island, where the shipwrecked crew of the Karluk was known to have wintered, but after trying for ten days in fog, snow and general bad weather, they gave it up and put back to Nome for coal, stopping at several places on the way. Mr. Hersey left the Bear at Nome and took passage on the steamship Victoria to Seattle.

It is interesting to note the fact that Mr. Hersey found the Aleutian tern, which has always been scarce and which was recently thought to be extinct. Altogether he encountered about one hundred of them and collected several specimens. This bird is larger and much darker than the common Arctic tern and has a peculiar white forehead.

Another rare bird mentioned is Fisher's petrel, once represented in museum collections by a single specimen, and now by only three or four. Although they have been observed frequently, they are hard to collect and their nesting places are not known.

The Aleutian sparrow is one of the most interesting birds seen, being one of the twenty or more varieties of this family that cover the United States from east to west, occurring in British America and Alaska as well. In the islands of Alaska it reaches its greatest development, being very much larger than the ordinary North American sparrow and sometimes as large as a catbird.

Even the barn swallow was seen on the trip; this bird is a true migratory bird, traveling from this point as far south as Argentina and Chile in the winter months.

Guillotine is Misnamed. The guillotine, which came into prominence through the French revolution, was invented to provide an uniform mode of death for all classes of the condemned. It was named after its supposed inventor, a physician named Joseph Ignatius Guillotin.

However, says an exchange, only the idea was due to Guillotin, who at a meeting of the legislative assembly in 1789, expressed opinion that capital punishment should be the same for all classes. Accordingly at the request of the assembly, a surgeon, M. Louis, submitted to that body in 1793 his invention of a mode of capital punishment, "sure, quick and uniform." The first person to feel its edge was a highway robber. The guillotine at Paris was burned by the Communists in 1871.

A similar instrument is said to have been used in Italy, at Halifax in England and in Scotland, where it was called the "Maiden," and the "Widow."

Clever Beggars. Crust throwers, those strangely clever beggars who carry dry bread, throw it into the streets at the psychological moment and hurl themselves on it with wild cries, object, sympathy and alms, have rivals in the soap eaters, who are said to ruin their health by the diet for the purpose of gaining sympathy and undeserved charitable assistance. Two soap eaters recently arrested in New York were asked what ailed them and each shoved forth a feebly held card, one reading, "A Victim of Tuberculosis" and the other, "Help—Deaf, Dumb and Starving." Their pockets were well lined with small silver coins.

HOLD GRIM WAR MEMENTOS

Personal Treasures of Soldiers Killed in the War Are Kept for Their Families.

London.—Little brown paper parcels and canvas bags, ranged in hundreds of pigeonholes in a London Wall building, are silent mementos of the grim side of the great war.

Here are stored the personal treasures of the soldiers who have died at the front. They are kept for the dead soldiers' wives and mothers who find comfort in the possession of the few belongings found in the trenches after bullet, bayonet or poison gas has done its work.

Most of the packages contain things of only trivial value, such as a pipe, a pocket knife, a shaving brush, watch or unfinished letter, but all are carefully kept until relatives of the dead soldiers claim them.

The record office of the territorial regiments deals with every arm of the service and hundreds of inquiries a day are handled. The office attempts to trace the relatives of dead soldiers, but this is not always possible. By means of a very efficient index system the record office keeps track of every officer and man in the territorial regiments.

TRI-COUNTY SUPERINTENDENTS MEET

Conference Held Over Tri-County Institute Matters

The school superintendents of Worcester, Wicomico and Somerset counties met last Thursday at the home of Mr. and Mrs. E. W. McMaster near Pocomoke City. The visiting superintendents were accompanied by Mrs. Wm. J. Holloway and Mrs. Wm. H. Dashiell and the trip to the Pocomoke was made in Mr. Holloway's car. The morning was spent in agreeable social converse and a charming dinner followed.

In the afternoon the superintendents resumed their conference over Tri-County Institute matters. Mr. Holloway reported that Prof. Lunt had found it impossible to attend the Institute and several other names were suggested. Those who have contracted to take part in the lectures are Prof. Thomas D. Eason, of Farmville, Va., who will talk upon Hygiene and High School Science, and Miss Rachel E. Gregg, of Harrisonburg, Va., who will deliver addresses upon Types of Teaching for the Primary Groups and the Art of Questioning for the High School Group. Two of the following will probably be selected to complete the list: Dr. Cyrus D. Mead, of the University of Cincinnati; Dr. Arthur Holmes, Dean of Pennsylvania State College; Miss Margaret T. McGuire, of the George Washington School, Philadelphia.

The Institute will commence on August 28th and close on September 1st. Regular school work to begin on September 4th. The superintendents also planned to hold examinations upon uniform dates as follows: For white teachers, May 31st and June 1st, for colored teachers, September 20th and 21st. They also agreed to recommend the opening of the colored schools on October 2d, and the closing of them on April 27th, 1917, thus arranging for seven months work, as the law of 1916 requires.

Lankford Fails to Get Appointment

The board of directors of the House of Correction, at a meeting at the institution last Friday, desisted over the election of a superintendent to succeed G. B. Timanus, Republican, who, it was generally supposed, would be permitted to complete a four-year term beginning during Governor Goldsborough's administration.

The Democrats took control of the board Thursday. Governor Harrington reappointed Humphrey D. Wolfe, of Howard county; Thomas W. Bannon, of Anne Arundel, and City Councilman Edward Gross, of Baltimore, all Democrats. He issued commissions to them immediately. When the board met Thursday it had been supposed that the way had been paved for the election of William E. Lankford, of Worcester county, as superintendent. Mr. Gross, however, balked. Pressure was brought to bear upon him to induce him to vote for Mr. Lankford's election, but he stood his ground.

The board appointed a committee on organization, which will meet this week and will report to the full board. The effort will be renewed to elect Mr. Lankford.

Crisfield Plant Burned

Fire broke out in the large plant of the Chesapeake Lime and Shell Company at Crisfield on Friday night at 11.30 o'clock and for a while the entire section seemed threatened.

A light wind was blowing across the harbor, driving the flames and sparks into the Anemessux river, however, and spreading of the flames was thus prevented. The fire burned until about 2 o'clock and destroyed all the building, causing a loss of $20,000, which is partly covered by insurance. A stock of lime valued at $8,000 was destroyed. The building was constructed of brick and galvanized iron.

The oyster packing plant of W. L. Tull & Co. and that of B. F. Gibson & Bro., caught fire several times, but were saved. The making of oyster shell lime is a new industry in Crisfield, having been in operation for about two months. The plant was constructed on the most modern and complete lines. It is reported that it will be rebuilt. The origin of the fire is unknown.

Field Events Concluded Today

The Field Events, which were stopped by rain on Thursday, April 27th, will be concluded today (Tuesday) at Crisfield. The May Pole dances that were given in the Army by the pupils of Crisfield High School, will also be repeated in the open. Dr. Burlick, of the State Athletic League, or some of his representatives will be present. It is necessary that the events be completed to determine who shall go to the State Olympiad in Baltimore in June.

Hydroplane Files 106 Miles In Hour

The Curtiss flying boat H-10, which left Baltimore with its five passengers at 6.30 o'clock Monday morning of last week, made the return trip to Newport News, Va., in 2 hours and 11 minutes. The distance was 173 miles, and at times the machine attained the speed of 106 miles.

The trip to Baltimore from Newport News on Saturday was made in three hours and 3 minutes, the wind being adverse. The trip back was made in record time.

In the flight from Newport News no attempt was made to make a record run, as at no time was the engine throttle wide open. The highest altitude attained during the flight to Baltimore was 2100 feet, but owing to the strong wind that buffeted the craft most of the trip was made at a height of 500 feet.

Road Tractor Purchased

At the meeting of the Board of County Commissioners last Tuesday, among other business transacted was the purchase from the International Harvester Company of a road tractor costing $750. This tractor is one of the latest and most complete pieces of machinery for road work on the market and can be utilized in all sections of the county not only for plowing the road but as well for hauling shells and all other road materials.

THE DEMOCRATIC PLATFORM HIGHLY LAUDS WILSON'S ADMINISTRATION

We, the representatives of the Democracy of Maryland, in convention assembled, reaffirm our adherence to the fundamental principles of the Democratic party promulgated by Thomas Jefferson, accepted as a guide by lovers of political and industrial liberty, and firmly upheld by a long line of Democratic statesmen from Madison to Woodrow Wilson.

We proudly declare our continued faith in the present Democratic national administration. Four years ago the American people were pledged by the national Democracy, if entrusted with power, to a wise, constructive and forward-looking program for the establishment of industrial freedom and prosperity. A vigorous and comprehensive legislative policy in the redemption of that pledge has resulted in industrial activity and financial stability, and produced prosperity and happiness throughout the country.

We give profound thanks for that masterful guidance of our delicate and complex international affairs by President Wilson which has kept this country in the ways of peace. During this critical period of world strife his quiet courage, keen perception and unceasing patience has kept us safely and with honor and dignity out of the great European convulsion.

In dealing with the Mexican situation no man can foretell what a day may bring forth in that distracted and torn country. We trust the President, supremely confident of his wisdom and patriotism, to guide us through whatever grave problems that situation may develop.

We are in full accord with the policy of preparedness inaugurated by the President, and strongly advocate the increase of the Army and Navy of the United States to the strength necessary to protect the rights and honor of the nation in any emergency which may arise from the disturbed conditions that confront us. To that end we pledge the unflinching support of our Senators and representatives in Congress.

With firm, unabated and confident reliance upon the statesmanlike characteristics of the President, and in full adherence to the unanimous sentiment of the Democrats of Maryland, the delegation to the National Convention of the Democratic party this day chosen is instructed to vote as a unit upon every ballot for his re-nomination. And this instruction is given both with pride and with faith. There is just pride in his great achievements, and firm faith in his re-election by a sovereign people, who with patriotism and discriminating justice are convinced that in both domestic and foreign affairs his broad vision, rare courage and fine stability make him pre-eminently the man, who, as executive of the nation, can assure a future of prosperous happiness and honorable peace.

We endorse and commend the energetic and faithful support given by our Democratic Senators and Congressmen to the beneficent legislation which the present administration has secured for the American people.

Believing that the peace and welfare of the country can be best promoted by the continuance of Democratic administration, we confidently call upon the Democrats of Maryland to uphold the honor of President Wilson by electing the Honorable David J. Lewis to the Senate of the United States at the coming election. He has for six years in the House of Representatives shown zeal, fidelity and efficiency as a constructive statesman. That great boon to the whole American people, and particularly to those engaged in business and agriculture, an advanced, inexpensive and successful parcel post system is a tribute to his untiring capacity. His election will be an assurance that Maryland recognizes the patriotic services of her public servants, and it will indicate that her people are for the continuance of the present wise policies of government.

We commend to the people of their respective congressional districts the Hon. Jesse D. Price, the Hon. J. Fred C. Talbot, the Hon. Charles F. Coady, the Hon. A. Charles Laughlin, the Hon. Jackson H. Ralston and the Hon. E. Dorsey Etcheson. Representatives Price, Talbot, Coady and Laughlin should be re-elected as a tribute to their loyalty to the existing completed program of an ascendant Democracy, as well as in just recognition of their faithful services to their constituencies. Messrs. Ralston and Etcheson should be elected to assure to Maryland a solid delegation of able Democrats in the National House of Representatives. Each of them is a man representative of the best traditions of Democracy, earnest for the people and strong in their defense. Their election ought to be made certain by the discriminating and patriotic voters of their districts.

In this campaign, devoted to national issues, we congratulate the people of the State on the favorable auspices under which we enter the campaign. Maryland has been redeemed from Republican rule by the election of a Democratic governor, the Honorable Emerson C. Harrington, and the State under his guidance of its affairs has entered upon a splendid program of soundly progressive work which gives to the people of this State assurance of that conduct of public affairs which will promote their highest welfare.

DEMOCRATIC STATE CONVENTION

Governor Harrington Commended— Candidacy Of Lewis Endorsed

The Democratic State Convention, which met last Thursday afternoon at Ford's Opera House, Baltimore, formally ratified the nomination of Congressman David J. Lewis for United States Senator, named a delegation of 32—with a half vote each—to the national convention and adopted a platform commending in the warmest terms the administration of President Wilson and instructing the delegation to vote for him, and also endorsing the administration of Governor Harrington. Congressman Jesse D. Price was chairman of the convention.

The convention was a most formal affair apart from the refusal of the Lee-Mahon-Preston people to accept the somewhat insistent harmony overtures made to them by the Smith-Harrington forces. Senator Lee and Mayor Preston, through their representatives, refused to harmonize. Both refused to be delegates-at-large, but the Smith-Harrington people named Lee anyway. Mr. Preston's destination was accepted.

The organization people might as well have accepted Senator Lee's declination for Thursday night his son, Brooke Lee, made the following statement on Mr. Lee's behalf: "Senator Lee appears to be somewhat beatowed by the convention, but his engagements are such that he will not be able to serve."

Not only did Senator Lee and Mayor Preston refuse to be delegates, but they had their friends in the convention make a fight against the plank in the platform endorsing the administration of Governor Harrington. They were beaten in the resolutions committee by a vote of 18 to 9, and an effort by Judge James McC. Trippe, of the Appeal Tax Court, to renew the fight on the floor of the convention proved futile in a storm of mingled hisses and cheers.

The delegates to the Democratic National Convention follows: At Large—Senator John Walter Smith, Senator Blair Lee, Governor Emerson C. Harrington, Attorney-General Albert C. Ritchie, William Cabell Bruce, Congressman J. Fred C. Talbot, Jere H. Wheelwright and Dr. J. Hubert Wade.

First Congressional District—State Senator Harvey L. Cooper, William W. Beck, John E. George and State Insurance Commissioner William Mason Sheehan.

Second District—Carville D. Benson, Joseph B. Boyle, James T. Jones and George D. Iverson.

Third District—Collector of Customs William P. Ryan, Register of Wills Howard W. Jackson, John H. Robinette and Thomas J. Flaherty.

Fourth District—William Milnes Maloy, John Hubert, Daniel J. Loden and William F. O'Connor.

Fifth District—State Senator Frank M. Duvall, J. O. Watson, George M. Palmer and Edward M. Hammond.

Sixth District—Frank W. Mish, John Shearer, Andrew J. Cummings and C. Conley.

Capt. Wright Tells Of The Chesapeake

Capt. Charles W. Wright, United States local inspector of steam vessels was the speaker at the weekly luncheon of the Rotary Club held recently in the Hotel Rennett, at Baltimore, Md. Captain Wright was a master of a steam vessel before he entered the government service, and the subject of his talk was "The Chesapeake Bay, Mother of Waters."

"The Chesapeake Bay was named by the Indians," said Captain Wright, "and the meaning of the name is mother of waters. I cannot understand why so little has been written in our histories about such an important and beautiful body of water. There are 1,330 miles of navigable waters on the Chesapeake Bay and its tributaries. Adding 200 miles to this for the waters about the capes, it brings the amount of navigable waters in the Chesapeake Bay up to half the distance across the Atlantic Ocean."

"The salt water is gradually working its way further up the Bay all the time," continued Captain Wright, "in 50 years four miles of fresh water has become salt. This is attributed to the fact that the supply of fresh water that flows into the Bay is becoming less each year."

Captain Wright also spoke of the washing of the banks of the Bay, and said that the greatest washing away was taking place at Sharp's Island. The land on this island, he said, had dwindled from 700 acres to about 93 acres. He also spoke of the fish, oysters, crabs and terrapins that were caught in the Bay, and said they were known the world over.

FEES WILL JUMP ALL ALONG LINE

The New Revenue Law Becomes Effective On June 1st

On June 1 the new revenue laws drafted by State Comptroller McMullen will become effective. Through new sources of revenue and by increasing fees on agencies and commodities already taxed it is estimated that $300,000 will be added annually to the State Treasury.

Most of the new articles and agencies and those already taxed are embraced in one law. In addition, however, there is a law which increases traders' licenses. A separate law also imposes a tax upon fast freight lines operating over the several railroads. The new laws should bring about a jump in fees and licenses all along the line.

Here are the provisions of the general McMullen law increasing fees and placing new sources of revenue on the taxation books:

Any person or company of stage players, ventriloquists, sleight-of-hand performers, rope dancers, tumblers and wire dancers, $50 per annum, or $2 for each exhibition in each county.

Circus riders or equestrian performers, $50 per annum in each county.

Animal shows or natural or artificial curiosities, $20 per annum in each county.

Each theater in Baltimore, $200 per annum, issued ratably, or $5 for each night of performance, for license to exhibit as ventriloquists, etc.; for circus or equestrian performers, $100 per annum; to exhibit animals, curiosities, etc., $50 per annum.

Detective agencies, $100 per annum.

Moving-picture theater (per annum fees), seating capacity less than 200, $15; seating capacity of more than 200 and less than 300, $30. This tax is on an ascending scale, the highest tax being $100 for theaters having a seating capacity of 1,000. In cases in which the exhibitions do not exceed three each week, the fee shall be one-half that for theaters giving a performance each week day. In cases in which the exhibitions are given in conjunction with the sale of patent medicines, the license fee is $50 per week.

The licenses on public garages are: Not more than 1,600 feet, $5 annually. This is also a graduated license, the maximum being $100 for those containing more than 7,500 square feet.

Cash register and adding machine companies, $100 each per annum.

Dealers in typewriters, typewriters' supplies, etc., $10 annually.

Commercial, mercantile and mutual protective agencies, $100 annually.

Intelligence offices and employment agencies, $10 per annum.

Laundries employing less than five persons, $5 annually; not more than 10 persons, $15; not less than and not more than 20, $50; more than 20 persons, $100.

Junk dealers in cities or counties of 50,000 inhabitants or more, $30; in cities or counties of 10,000 to 50,000 inhabitants, $20; in cities or counties, 5,000 to 10,000 inhabitants, $10; in Baltimore city, $250.

Trading-stamp companies, $50.

Soda-water fountains, $6 per annum each.

Livery stables, $6 per annum.

Bowling saloons, $20 for first alleys; $10 for each additional alley per annum.

Storage warehouses—Cities not exceeding 10,000 inhabitants, $15; not over 20,000 inhabitants, $25; exceeding 20,000, $25; cities over 50,000, $50; each license on an annual basis.

Check-rooms in which the deposit charge exceeds 10 cents, $40; less than 10 cents, $20 per annum.

Cleaning, dyeing and pressing establishments employing less than five persons, $5; employing not less than five persons, $15; employing not less than 10 persons and not more than 20 persons, $100 per annum.

Shoe-shining establishments, $10 per annum.

Restaurants or eating places in cities of less than 8,000 inhabitants, $5; in cities of over 8,000, $10 per annum.

Plumbers in cities of less than 5,000, $5 for each place of business; more than 5,000 population, $10; more than 10,000 population, $15.

Each foreign construction corporation, firm or individual, $50 per annum in each county and Baltimore city; domestic companies, $10 per annum.

An Ideal Section For Agriculture In All Its Branches—Some Photographs Of Scenes Which Many Of Our Reader Will Recognize

The following is taken from a 14-page folder which was printed at this office for Mr. Harley D. Yates, Real Estate Broker, in advertising his farms for sale on the Eastern Shore:

There is no more ideal section for agriculture in all of its branches than Somerset County, Maryland.

This conclusion has been reached, not because of the most luxuriant crops are produced here, but because the Peninsula at this time offers the best all round advantages for small and large farming. By the best all round advantages is meant not only fertility of soil and convenience to markets, but also the price of land, together with those elements which make life agreeable—delightful climate, hospitable neighbors, modern improvements, schools and churches. No where are all these things more happily combined with moderate prices.

The population of the Peninsula is one of the oldest and most typically American that can be found in any section of the country.

Climate has much to do with profitable agriculture in all farming localities. The climate here is almost ideal; the reasons are, we are surrounded on three sides by the waters of the Atlantic Ocean and the Peninsula is nearer to New York City than half of the State of New York. Being on the double tracked main line of the Pennsylvania Railroad, we ship our perishable products at midnight to New York market 7.30 a. m.

In 1915 from the stations of Marion, Westover and Princess Anne, there were 637 refrigerator cars of strawberries shipped, averaging 7,800 quarts to the car, and for which the pickers alone received $120,260. The growers net average was eight cents a quart. There are always buyers on the ground and the growers go home with a check for every crate delivered.

In 1915 the whole Peninsula produced more than 2,000,000 barrels of early Irish potatoes (no account taken of the thousands of bushels of late ones) and a 1,000,000 barrels of sweet potatoes.

The cantaloupe crop amounts to more than $2,000,000, watermelons $1,500,000, Irish potatoes $3,500,000, sweet potatoes $2,000,000, small fruits and berries $1,200,000, vegetables $1,300,000.

As several of the farms herein described have shore privileges, such as oyster, fish and crab grounds, it will be well to mention the total yearly product of this industry. In 1915 the fishing industry for food fish was valued at $2,500,000, oysters $2,300,000 and from Crisfield alone there was shipped 7,500,000 dozen soft-shell crabs, with a value of more than $2,400,000. It is worthy of note that when the lands are at rest, the waters of the Atlantic Ocean and the Chesapeake Bay are furnishing the most nourishing foods for the hungry millions. Activity in producing food stuffs never ceases here.

The question is often asked, "Why are lands so cheap?" When the cry "Go West" was raised the Peninsula farmer like those of all eastern states, left their fertile fields and went in search of virgin soil.

DRIVE FOR DAYS ON SUCH ROADS

Chesapeake Bay, and being no more than 50 miles at its widest point, the winters and summers are tempered, then that refreshing salt and pine air is always felt, actually resulting in a healthful section. The average summer temperature is 78, for winter 37, nine months growing season, with 46 inches rainfall evenly distributed through the year. Destructive storms, floods, cyclones, killing frosts with immature crops was never known.

An absolute level, clay loam, clay sub soil, not a stone and not a single foot of waste land on any farm. Here one can farm according to his fancy. We grow in great abundance, corn, wheat, hay, oats, rye, barley, clovers, alfalfa, potatoes, tomatoes, vegetables of all varieties, melons, cantaloupes, apples, peaches, pears, cherries, pecans, strawberries, in fact anything that we desire.

Speaking of this section, a writer in Lippincott's Magazine recently said: "It is a garden and an orchard." Nature has been most lavish in her endowments on this section, for with a soil that produces almost everything in abundance, she gave us waters that are famous far and wide as the greatest for high class sea foods in the world.

Within 500 miles of this garden spot are more than 35,000,000 people. One-third of the population of North America. Taking Somerset County as a center and within a circle of this radius are the richest cities in the country. A few of the greater are New York, Philadelphia, Boston, Pittsburg, Baltimore, Washington, Providence, Hartford, Wilmington, Newark, Trenton, Harrisburg, Toledo, Detroit, and hundreds of smaller cities. Here is a market crying out for fruits, vegetables, berries, dairy products, general farm produce, and at present it cannot be supplied.

We are nearer New York City than two-thirds of the State of New York. Draw a circle fifty miles in diameter, from the City Hall, and you put a line around 7,000,000 of people, as many as you will find in all of the States of Nebraska, North and South Dakota, Colorado, Wyoming, Montana, Idaho, New Mexico, Nevada, Utah and Arizona. Not 3 per cent of these people ever produce any vegetables, fruits or staple farm crops, depending upon the farmers to produce and supply them, and they are the greatest fruit and vegetable eating sections in the world.

Income is only limited by the ability of the man, in other words there is no such word as failure here. Both in population and wealth all of the eastern cities are steadily increasing. The people live more luxuriously every year, and the man who is in a position to cater to this is usually sure of a handsome income. The Peninsula farmer is in the best position to supply these markets with the most delicate and perishable products, for in point of transportation the extreme end of the Penin-

EARLY POTATOES—FOLLOWED BY CORN

Soon they found what every one knows, that there is no land that will continue to yield good crops if everything is taken from the soil and nothing put back. Once settled in the West it was not easy to get back.

The stream of population continued to flow toward the Mississippi, until now the most available land is occupied. It has been exploited and advertised by railroads and land agents, transferred until now it is prohibitive in price, and the owners cannot make a reasonable interest on the investment, even by charging the tenant more than he can afford to pay. The eastern states became devoted to manufacture, and much of the land vacated there. The flood of immigration has never been directed to the Peninsula, and as it is situated out of the natural route persons entering the country, and this is the reason why the population is strictly American, and why level fertile lands are cheaper here today than in any other part of the United States.

Land values are increasing very rapidly here. Since 1902 they have increased 136.4 per cent, 40 per cent more than any other section of the country. Lands have also increased in productiveness since 1870, note the table on next page:

 Gentlemen:—Last Summer I used 12 tons of your lime on about 12 acres of land, and planted same to cow peas. At your suggestion I left a strip through the field without lime. I am highly pleased with the result, as the limed parts of the field showed about double the yield of the part without lime. I am perfectly satisfied with the results obtained from your lime.

THE SPRING CANKERWORM.

Much Damage Will Result Unless Effective Measures Are Taken.
 [Prepared by Oklahoma station.]

Unless orchard and shade trees are closely inspected they will be so badly infested with the spring cankerworm before the owner is aware of it that much damage will result before a control measure can be made effective. The most effective application is a spray consisting of at least two pounds of arsenate of lead dissolved in fifty gallons of water. Either the paste or powdered form of lead arsenate may be used. First mix this poison in a half gallon or more of water, then add to the remainder of the water. Mix and keep the solution stirred so that it will be uniformly strong.

Apply this solution with a spray pump, applying as soon as the worms begin to injure the foliage. If application is not made on apple trees before they blossom it will be poor policy to spray until after blossoming is over, for by that time the worms will have done their damage. Furthermore, if spraying is not done before the worms are a half inch long it will be necessary to double or even treble the amount of poison advised per fifty gallons of water.

The spring cankerworms pass the winter as pupae in the soil beneath the trees on the foliage of which they feed. During the early spring they pupate and issue from the soil. The females have no wings, but crawl up into the treetops. The males have wings and fly up into the trees to approach the females. Eggs are soon deposited in the cracks of the limbs of the tree. These hatch about the time the buds begin to open, but are seldom noticed until they have practically defoliated the trees, although they may be easily observed if looked for.

When the limbs of infested trees are jarted or shaken the worms suspend themselves in the air by means of a silken thread until after the disturbance, then ascend said thread to their feeding places and proceed to develop. After development they in like manner descend to the ground, which they enter to a depth of three to eight inches, and there remain until the following spring.

Thorough control during a single season will prevent serious infestation the following year. They are carried from one place to another mainly in the larval stage by animals such as frequent orchards and trees.

Renewing the Rhubarb Bed.
 The rhubarb bed that has stood for a number of years in the same place should be taken up and the clumps cut into pieces with at least one or two good eyes and these replanted in a new spot or, if space is limited, even on the old spot, but in a well prepared and very thoroughly enriched bed. Rhubarb beds become root bound, and the soil becomes so full of roots that there is no area left for feeding. Replanting is the only remedy.

SPRING WAR ON GOPHERS.
 Gophers have begun their early spring work of burrow extension, and immediate steps should be taken toward their extermination, advises Dr. Lee R. Dice, in charge of injurious mammal investigation in the Kansas experiment station.

"Poisoning is the cheaper method where the gophers are numerous, but it is not quite so efficient as trapping," says Dr. Dice. "When one is trapping he may always be sure of just what results are obtained."
 "Poisoning is the most effective and easily applied method of ridding a badly infested farm. Some years ago the experiment station at the Kansas State Agricultural college began the manufacture of poisoned corn which proved effective. Openings into the burrows are made with a sharp iron or stick, and the corn as treated is introduced into the runways. Sulphate of strychnine crystals may be purchased also and inserted into runways, prunes or pieces of sweet potatoes by means of a slit made with a sharp knife and then introduced into the gopher runways in the same manner."

A Tactless Wooing

By EDWARD J. STEWART.

The evacuation of Vera Cruz had taken place, and the fleet was ready to sail. The surgeon in charge of the hospital approached the medical director to report that all invalids had been removed.

"There's a man," said the former, "who, I think, must have died without his death getting on to the list. He was dying yesterday afternoon. I haven't seen him since and presume his body was removed. Conover should have seen to it that the record was made."

"Well, there's no time now," said the medical director, "to investigate the case. We must go aboard."

So it was that when the ships reached the United States the name of Horace Morton, petty officer, was reported, "Died in hospital."

Now, it happened that the elimination of Horace Morton was very acceptable to Mrs. Martha Jones, the mother of Ethel Jones, who had been betrothed to the sailor before he departed for Vera Cruz. He had nothing to marry on, while Philip Thompson, a plumber, who also wanted Ethel, had made considerable funds in his business and was able to take care of her in good style. Mrs. Jones had set her face against her daughter's marrying Morton, and to quiet the old lady Ethel promised that if her lover lost his life in Mexico she would marry Thompson. After this promise there was peace in the Jones family, Mrs. Jones hoping that the man who she considered stood in the way of her daughter's welfare would be snuffed out by a Mexican bullet.

But there was only a small scrap at the landing at Vera Cruz, and greatly to Mrs. Jones' disappointment, Morton was not among the killed. Then came the evacuation, and with it the mother made preparations to renew the fight in the matter of a son-in-law. But when she read in a morning paper that Morton had died at Vera Cruz she muttered silent thanks and with every appearance of heartfelt sympathy broke the sad news to her daughter, all the while laying plans for a wedding with the plumber.

Ethel shut herself up in her room for a week, then came out with a surrender, telling her mother that since her lover was dead she cared not whom she married and was perfectly willing to take the plumber or any one else. Such being the case, Mrs. Jones sent Mr. Thompson word that the way was open for him to win her daughter, but she advised him to be very circumspect and proceed slowly. She believed that Ethel thought she loved another, but that the girl was deceiving herself. A few weeks' courtship would do the business.

Mr. Thompson, who was not an adept in wooing a woman who had just lost the man she loved, began by sending Ethel an invitation to a plumber's ball. Fortunately, he sent it through Mrs. Jones, who threw it in the fire with all haste and wrote her daughter's non-acceptance on account of indisposition.

Mr. Thompson's next move was sending a bouquet of flowers. Mrs. Jones intercepted them, separated the posy, put them in a box and gave them to Ethel as an offering of sympathy from the donor.

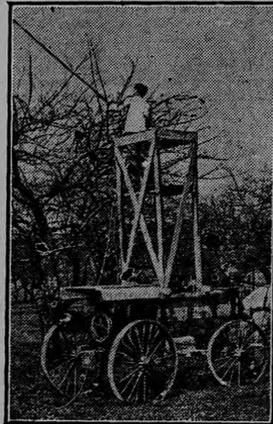

This was a beginning, and Mrs. Jones hoped that by carefully heading off the indelicate attentions of Mr. Thompson to bring the affair to a successful termination in due time. Why she took so much pains to prevent her daughter's being ruffled by the plumber's want of tact is not plain, because Ethel was not in a state of mind to care whom she married. Perhaps her motive was looking to the future. It is also a question as to why Mr. Thompson was anxious to marry a girl whose heart was in the grave. He explained this to Mrs. Jones by saying that a live man was better any day than a dead one and Ethel was sure to find it out. It must be admitted that there is more wisdom in the explanation than sentiment in the statement.

All things have an end, and the plumber's courtship was no exception. The wedding day came round, and with it came a coincidence. When the wedding party was assembling in walked Horace Morton, who had failed to get on the dead list in accordance with the navy regulations. And there was no time for an investigation. He had walked out of the hospital in delirium, and the party responsible for him had been looking for him up to the very moment of the sailing of the fleet homeward.

Upon his appearance as a wedding guest, pale and emaciated, there was a scattering of those present. The bride alone seemed to consider him flesh and blood and, rushing toward him, fell into his arms. He had been aware of Mrs. Jones' opposition to him and her preference for the plumber; consequently he took in the situation without its being explained to him.

"I reckon," he said, "that since everything is handy for a wedding we may as well have one."
 Mrs. Jones, seeing that she had lost, threw up the sponge. The plumber remarked that there were as good fish in the sea as ever were caught and walked away without any evident disappointment. Ethel was presently prevailed upon to celebrate the wedding with the change of grooms, and when the parson came in she was married to the sailor.

This is not the only case of a man's being officially dead and turning up at a time when he is not expected.

PRINCESS ANNE AND SOMERSET COUNTY

Examples of Success Guy Lawton and wife came here nine years ago from St. Paul, Minnesota, knew nothing of farming, rented a tract of land, set out 17 acres of strawberries, at the end of three years purchased their present home of 25 acres. They will tell you that above their necessary expenses they put away in a savings fund $1,000.00 yearly.

Judge Henry Nelson, fourteen years ago, was a waterman, taking up oysters with hand tongs, and managed to save $750.00, with which he purchased 47 acres of ideal trucking land. Today Mr. Nelson has a country home that cost him $12,000.00, is out of debt, and an influential figure among our people and of large resources.

SOME SCENES AROUND PRINCESS ANNE

I can enumerate successes by the dozen, but they will be glad to tell you personally what they have done.

Is on every hand, in town and country. H. S. Lippincott, our County Farm Agent, has been with us only a little more than a year, but in that time he has accomplished wonders in better agriculture. He has opened a Farmers' Creamery, caused to be seeded 497 acres of alfalfa, a Boys' Corn Club, a Guernsey Breeders' Club, has gathered the Grange together resulting in interesting meetings, has personally visited more than 1000 farms, is alive and wide-awake to the needs of the farmers.

Princess Anne is the seat of my operations. It is the County Seat of Somerset County, is a beautiful old town with her wide streets bordered by ancient maples, well kept lawns and stately residences. Her two banks with $1,400,000.00 on deposit, gives evidence of the prosperity of the section.

DEMOCRATIC TICKET

For United States Senator:
HON. DAVID J. LEWIS
Of Allegany County.
For Congressman from First District:
HON. JESSE D. PRICE
Of Wicomico County.

OUR DUSTY STREETS

Princess Anne has some beautiful streets. They have excellent sidewalks but the streets being unpaved the dust from passing vehicles is strikingly unpleasant and sends dirt into residences and stores. The matter is more important now than in winter because windows and doors are open. How to dispose of this dust is a question of more than ordinary proportions.

Several years ago the streets were oiled with excellent results. Last year they were watered at intervals but as the water supply decreased, it was found impossible to continue that service. As conditions are reported to be similar this year the oil policy seems to be the only resource left.

Objections have been made to oiled streets because of the dirt carried into premises and still others objected because of soiled frocks. The former objection will be overcome as soon as the oil is well distributed and the latter is already overcome as the frocks are now worn too short to engage the oily earth.

Information from Washington indicate that the chances for President Wilson's re-election grow stronger each day. Peace loving people have the greatest confidence in a man whose every movement has been to foster peace and at the same time preserve a patriotic spirit among his countrymen.

It is seldom that a President has had as many difficulties to encounter as has Mr. Wilson. He has been censured for his methods but he has persistently refused to be swerved from what he believes to be his correct course.

All the improvements of modern warfare are to be encountered in Mexico, or if some are for the time being beyond the reach of Villa's forces, they have other devices of equal frightfulness. The springs are being poisoned, and pounded glass is greased, so that it will not sink to the bottom, and is thrown into the water holes.

Hughes, Roosevelt Or Root?

In the course of a speech in which he referred to what should be done by the Republican National Convention at Chicago, Senator Lodge of Massachusetts said: "Let us one and all address ourselves to securing the nomination of a good candidate for the Presidency who is most certain to unite all who are opposed to the present administration and to lead us to a complete and assured victory; a candidate who will fully represent Republican principles."

Very nice talk, indeed, but where is such a candidate to be found? It is doubtful if even Mr. Justice Hughes would fill the bill, and it is not known that he would accept a nomination. Also, should he be accepted, Roosevelt would oppose him.

After Hughes comes Roosevelt, in the number of actual followers in the convention. His nomination, however, would be fatal, and at this time seems very improbable. Then comes Root and the "smaller fry."

But none of the "possibilities" meet the requirements set forth by Senator Lodge. Even Senator Lodge does not. The task seems hopeless. - Wilmington Every Evening.

J. Frank Turner Dead

J. Frank Turner, aged 71 years, former State Comptroller, died suddenly in his office in Easton last Tuesday from apoplexy.

In 1871 Mr. Turner married Miss Sallie Powell Hopkins, daughter of the late Henry P. Hopkins, of Talbot county. Mrs. Turner and one son, Henry P. Turner, merchant of Easton, and two daughters, Mrs. Walter Karcher, of Philadelphia, and Mrs. John Mackall, of Baltimore, survive.

Mr. Turner was born in King's Creek, Chapel district, Talbot county, in 1844. His father died when he was an infant and his mother before he had entered his teens.

Working on a farm during vacations, Mr. Turner attended the country school until he was 18, when he entered the office of the Register of Wills for Talbot county. In 1864 he was appointed recorder in the office of Samuel T. Hopkins, Clerk of the Court for Talbot county, and when the late John Baggs was elected Clerk of the Court in 1867 he was made chief clerk, which office he filled until he was elected clerk in 1873.

He resigned the clerkship in 1884 to become State Comptroller, to which he had been elected in November 1883. He served in this position two terms and then returned to Easton and commenced the practice of law.

In 1900 he was appointed Clerk of the Court of Appeals of Maryland to fill out the unexpired term of J. Frank Ford. He was the Democratic candidate for the office at the following election, but was defeated by Thomas Parran.

He was appointed in 1909, by Judge Adkins, State's Attorney for Talbot county, to fill out the unexpired term of Judge James Harry Covington, who had been elected to Congress from the First Maryland district. He was the Democratic candidate for re-election in 1912, but was defeated by his Republican opponent, Charles J. Butler. He had since devoted his time to his law practice, but had always taken an active part in all elections, State, county and municipal.

A Symbol Of Health

The Pythagorians of Ancient Greece ate simple food, practiced temperance and purity. As a badge they used the five pointed star which they regarded as a symbol of health. A red five pointed star appears on each package of Chamberlain's Tablets, and still fulfills its ancient mission as a symbol of health. If you are troubled with indigestion, biliousness or constipation, get a package of these tablets from your druggist. You will be surprised at the quick relief which they afford. A SINGAPORE DISH

Ricetafel Is Not a Mere Meal; It Is a Whole Banquet.

A SORT OF CULINARY MARVEL

It Contains About Everything From Fish to Dessert, but Its Great and Crowning Delight Seems to Be the Highly Odorous Bombay Duck.

On a trip around the world from New York, Singapore is just half way. The ships part here and flow both ways. Drop a letter in the postoffice for New York and it may come across the Pacific; drop another and it may cross the Atlantic.

More odds and ends of humanity are thrown together here in Singapore than in any other city in the world. Singapore is halfway between Arabia and Japan, halfway between India and China. On the street they stream past—Sikhs, Tamils, Parsees, Armenians, Arabs, Malays, Mohammedans, Filipinos, Chinese, Portuguese, Siamese, Japanese, Javanese—as if they were made up for a procession, some with no clothes and some swathed in them.

Every day at noon on the bill of fare in Singapore you find a dish called ricetafel, which will live long in my memory. It is the most fearfully and wonderfully made dish in the world. It staggers the imagination to think of what it is composed. An ordinary intellect stands appalled when it begins trying to figure out what the dish is made of. Only a Kelvin dare try to resolve it into its elements.

The first day I ordered it in a reckless, care free moment. I had never heard of it before and supposed that it was just an ordinary single dose dish. But in a few minutes I began to find out that it was a tafeel of another color. An ordinary sized boy came up bearing a plate of rice and gave it to me. Hardly had the boy turned aside when another boy came up with some meat. I piled on the meat, but just as I was picking up my knife and fork a larger boy came up bearing a plate divided off into sections piled to the cargo line with spices, cinnamon and other tropical products. I looked to see if there hadn't been some mistake, but his confident manner and bearing showed plainly that I was to put them on too. I did, even though it looked as if I were going on a cruise, and had just leaned back to study the mound when another bun bearer came up. I began on his dish and worked my way around, helping myself to the more prominent articles, and after he had gone on I picked up my spoon and was just wondering which side to make my first encroachments on when another outsider came up with another dish of odds and ends. After him came others, some little and some old, some shy and some bold, the line forming at the left and rhythmically tramping by, while I threw on and rounded up until it began to look as if the mound builders had gone back into business again. After the tail of the procession had gone by, I located a favorable spot and went to work.

These are some of the actual things that were in the final draft: Rice, curried meat, mince meat balls, fried onions, shredded onions, white onions, banana fritters, hard boiled eggs, sliced cucumbers, Chinese macaroni, peanuts, French beans, Indian chutney, cocoanut, red fish, shrimps, fried fish, fried chicken, goose liver, chill, times and Bombay duck.

I'll take my word for it that every single one of these destroyers was in my rice tafeel.

I put Bombay duck last, for I know that the other ingredients would rather not associate with it. You could readily understand their attitude if you had once tasted Bombay duck, for there is no other thing its size in the world that makes such an impression on you. It has the worst odor of anything I ever went up against, and without wishing to boast I have smelled some things that were highly praised in their line, but for hard, consistent smelling day in and day out Bombay duck has them all in the Yankee division. In comparison with it Limburger cheese has a delicate perfume.

How it ever got that name is more than I know. It is really a dried fish, which, broken and powdered, lends a seasoning, but as for myself I would rather take my seasoning in some other form. Old residents and missionaries who have been in the country a long time say that after a time a person comes to be very fond of it, but personally I know that there could never be anything between us—unless it was distance. It is all that I can do to stay at the table where one of the parties is an old resident or a missionary a long time in the service.

The people in Singapore do not call ricetafel a dish. They consider it a meal. And that's what it is. It looks as if it had been meant for the noon-day repast at a Woodmen log rolling. Many and many a person here has ricetafel at noon and nothing else. In fact, after eating a ricetafel there isn't room for anything else. A person then wants to crawl off and go to sleep. And that is what everybody does in the suburbs of the equator. The shops all close at noon for a couple of hours while everybody lies down and sleeps off the effect of the ricetafel.—Homer Croly in Leslie's.

DELUDES ITS ENEMIES.

Cunning of the Castor Oil Plant in Protecting its Seeds.

Dressing them up to look like foul tasting bugs, this plant protects her children from hungry birds. If it were not for their disguises the children might be eaten and never have a chance to grow and become big plants. The wise mother plant realizes this, hence the masquerade. It's the castor oil plant.

To the average person anything relating to castor oil is not regarded as much of a delicacy. Birds, however, think otherwise. The seeds of the plant are like candy to them.

So the mother plant schemes to protect them. When she sends them out into the world she clothes them in variegated and fantastic dress until the seeds resemble coccinella beetles.

Now, if there is anything birds dislike more than anything else it is a coccinella beetle. As a result they make a wry face when they see the castor oil beans and pass them by.

These seeds are oval and about a half inch long. They grow in spiny capsules, three seeds in each capsule. To show that the castor oil plant is no newcomer on the earth, archaeologists write of finding seeds in tombs of ancient Egyptians.—Philadelphia North American.

FIRE BAGS AT SEA.

The Kind They Used in the Day of the Old Tinder Box.

Every whaler and sealer that sailed the seas in the days of wooden ships carried a fire bag. This was a tarpaulin bag about a foot long and six inches wide lined with waterproof material, with interlinings of oilcloth and thick flannel. Into this was placed the flint and tinder box for kindling fire, and the bag was then securely fastened with double flaps and tied to keep its contents dry.

It was the special duty of the second mate to look after the fire bag and in case of shipwreck to attach it at once to his person by means of stout straps provided for the purpose. Thus if officers and crew were cast away on some deserted shore in the desolate arctic circle the means of obtaining a fire to warm themselves by and to heat food and drink would not be wanting as long as the precious fire bag was safe.

The steam whalers and sealers of the present day still carry a fire bag stowed in the lifeboat with the bread and water, but now it is of rubber and contains half a dozen tin boxes of matches.—New York Press.

Double Eyed Fish.

There is a fish equipped with bifocal eyes, one-half of the lens for seeing above the surface of the water and the other for submarine use. This characteristic also gives the fish its popular name—double eyes.

The fish inhabits the shores of South America. Sometimes they swim with the eyes half out of water. Examination shows that each lens is divided into two parts by a dark band. The half above the band is out of water and the other half below the surface.

Naturalists tell us that the fish's eyes became "double" from its practice in swimming with the part half submerged. Nature made the part of the eye above water adapted for seeing in the air, while the other part remained adapted for vision under water.

The double eyes grow to about a foot in length and in Brazil are caught for food.—Philadelphia North American.

To half pint of water add 1 oz. Bay Rum, a small box of Barbo Compound, and ¼ oz. of glycerine. Apply to the hair twice a week until it becomes the desired shade. Any druggist can put this up or you can mix it at home at very little cost. Full directions for making and use come in each box of Barbo Compound. It will gradually darken streaked, faded gray hair, and removes dandruff. It is excellent for falling hair and will make harsh hair soft and glossy. THREE RACIAL INSTINCTS.

One Reason, Perhaps, For the Interest Taken in Baseball.

How shall we explain the absorbing interest in baseball and football? In baseball we have a game combining three of the most deep seated racial instincts—the instinct to throw, to run and to strike. During untold periods of the life history of our race survival has come to him who could throw the straightest, run the swiftest and strike the hardest. To throw something at something is almost as natural for a boy as to breathe.

Throwing, batting, running, are no longer of any service in this age of mind, but they were the conditions of survival in the distant past. Baseball reinstates those ancient attitudes and brings a thrill of cherished memories. Any one who has ever held a bat in hand and assumed the expectant attitude of the batter knows the peculiar thrill which is explained only by recalling that his distant ancestors in just that attitude beat down with a real club many an opposing foe, whether man or beast, and those who held clubs in this position and struck hard quickly survived and transmitted this instinct.

The awkward throw of girls, like the left arm throw of boys, is widely known. The plays of girls reveal their own set of instincts recalling the habits of primitive. "We are the descendants of those men who could throw and those women who loved children."—From "The Psychology of Relaxation," by G. T. W. Patrick.

Military Salute's Origin.

The military salute had a curious origin, if tradition is to be believed. It is said that it originated in the days of the tournament, at which a queen of beauty was chosen to preside. The knights and their esquires and all who took part in the tourney on presenting themselves before the queen lifted each one a hand level with the brows as though dazzled by the light of her presence. A nicely thought out compliment this, and though its significance is now forgotten, the natural dignity of the gesture has preserved it as an everyday mark of recognition of a superior rank.—London Chronicle.

Willing to Be the Goat.

"Why should the spirit of mortal be proud?" quoted the impassioned orator.

Then he paused a moment to let it take effect.

"Well," spoke up a half inebriated man in the audience. "I'll be the goat. Why should it?"—Chicago Tribune.

Many Princess Anne People in Poor Health Without Knowing The Cause

There are scores of people who drag out a miserable existence without realizing the cause of their suffering. Day after day they are racked with backache and headache; suffer from nervousness, dizziness, weakness, languor and depression. Perhaps the kidneys have fallen behind in their work of filtering the blood and that may be the root of the trouble. Look to your kidneys, assist them in their work—give them the help they need. You can use no more highly recommended remedy than Doan's Kidney Pills—endorsed by people all over the country and by your neighbors in Princess Anne.

John W. Heath, farmer, R. F. D., No. 2, Princess Anne, says: "For more than a year I suffered from distressing attacks of backache and at times my back became so weak I could hardly work. The kidney secretions were also irregular in passage and there was sediment in them. Having heard so much about Doan's Kidney Pills, I got a box at Omar A. Jones' drug store and gave them a trial. They helped me at once and thus convinced me of their merit." Over four years later Mr. Heath said: "The cure Doan's Kidney Pills made for me is still permanent."

Price 50c, at all dealers. Don't simply ask for a kidney remedy—get Doan's Kidney Pills the same that Mr. Heath has twice publicly recommended. Foster-Milburn Co., Proprietors, Buffalo, N. Y. [Advertisement]

Low Price Loses out Against Low Cost

PRICE may sell some things to farmers, but price alone is a poor argument compared with the records for low cost of operation made by Mogul kerosene engines.

Because they run on kerosene, Mogul engines produce farm power at the lowest possible cost.

You know what gasoline costs. You know, too, what kerosene costs. Take the difference—multiply it by the number of gallons of fuel an engine will consume in five years, figuring one pint of fuel per horse power per hour.

At what price must you buy a gasoline engine to make it cost you as little as a Mogul does? Could you afford to accept a gasoline engine as a gift? See the dealer about this. He has the figures all worked out for you on all sizes of Mogul engines from 1 to 50 H. P.

SENDING A MAN BY MAIL.

The parcel post has made its usefulness felt in many ways, unexpected as well as foreseen. But the English parcel post does one surprising thing that has not yet been introduced into our own system.

An Englishman wished to reach a customer living in a remote part of Balham, one of the suburbs of London, and it was very necessary that he find him quickly. Knowing nothing of the district, he called at the general post-office at St. Martin's-le-Grand to consult a directory. On explaining his case to a clerk he was amazed to learn that he could be sent to the address by parcel post by paying a fee of threepence a mile.

The gentleman had never heard of such a thing, and it is said that very few persons in England know that it can be done. He was placed in charge of a messenger who was familiar with all parts of the city and was soon on his way. The boy carried a printed slip on which was written a description of the "parcel" in charge under the heading "Article Required to Be Delivered," and before leaving the customer's house both the customer and the gentleman had to put their signatures on the paper.

The limit in weight for anything delivered by parcel post in England is generally understood to be eleven pounds, but there is one clause that reads, "A person may be conducted by express messenger to any address on payment of the mileage fee."—Youth's Companion.

THE NORTHEAST PASSAGE.

Only Two Expeditions Succeeded in Getting Through It.

Most attempts of European countries to find a comparatively short passage from the Atlantic to oriental countries were by way of the northwest passage, north of America, because, having first tried the northeast passage, north of Europe and Asia, and in every instance having met with dire failure, they concentrated attention upon the northwest passage as probably more feasible.

Practically all the arctic expeditions from Sir John Ross to Sir John Franklin were fitted out most of all to find the northwest passage. The passage was found during the search for the lost party of Sir John Franklin, but it was never traversed by a ship till Amundsen took his little boat, the Gjoa, through it in August, 1905.

The attempts to make the northeast passage began with the hardy Dutch sailor Barents in 1595, whose party was the first to spend the dark winter night in the arctic "in most greater cold and extreme misery." The only achievement of the northeast passage prior to Vilkitzki's success in 1914-15 was by Baron A. E. Nordenskjold, who sailed from Tromsø with his Swedish expedition in June, 1878, triumphed over the great obstacle of Cape Cheljuskin and was within 120 miles of Bering strait when winter closed upon him. He entered Bering strait in July, 1879, thirteen months from the time he sailed.—Cyrus C. Adams in New York Times.

When Tolstoy Tried to Fly.

From earliest childhood Tolstoy was remarkably observant of the things that were going on in the world around him. Thus, while still in his teens, we find him taking an interest in the art of flying that was too practical to suit his devoted mother. With characteristic thoroughness he invented a design of his own and with equally characteristic courage proceeded to put it to an immediate test from a second story window. But the boy who was afterward to find food for thought for the whole civilized world was not destined to make his mark as an infant aviator. He fell instantly to the ground, and, though by great good fortune no bones were actually broken, the concussion was so great that young Tolstoy afterward slept for sixteen hours on end.

A Curious Relic.

A curious relic of Louis XVII. is the "game of dominos" made of pieces of the Bastille which were given to the dauphin before he and his parents left Versailles forever. It is said that when the box containing it was brought in the queen exclaimed to her bedchamber woman, Mme. Campan, "What a sinister plaything to give a child!" The sinister plaything is, with other revolutionary objects, preserved in Paris.

WALKING FERNS.

These Curious Plants Travel About in a Novel Manner.

Some plants when they get the wanderlust and want to travel send out their seed children fastened to tiny airships or winged kites. Others shoot their seeds like bullets from guns. This one reaches out his foot, takes a long step and travels just like you do when you visit the woods. That's why we call him the walking fern.

His fronds are green and heart shaped. They taper at the ends, and at each tip a bud forms. From this bud a cluster of small fronds and roots develop, dangling from the end of the frond like weight on the end of a spring.

As the cluster grows and gets heavier the top of the frond bends toward the earth. The weight of the rain and dew helps bend until finally the tip touches the earth. There the partially developed roots take hold and start a new plant.

So the fern keeps on walking, sending out new fronds, bending them to the earth and starting new plants. The plants are linked together by the fine, threadlike fronds until instead of one walking fern they have a whole parade.

Unfortunately this interesting plant is more or less rare, although it is a native of the eastern United States. It doesn't thrive well as a cultivated plant, or perhaps we would see more of it.—Philadelphia North American.

FLIGHT OF THE ALBATROSS.

Wing Movements That a Chance Snap With a Camera Revealed.

During the voyage of a vessel from British Columbia to San Francisco the photographic test was applied to a long disputed point in natural history. A large albatross had been following the steamer and keeping pace with it for several hours, and the wonder grew among the watchers on board the ship how the bird was able to fly so swiftly while apparently keeping its wings extended without flapping them. As this is a common method of flight with the albatross, the explanation used to be offered that the bird took advantage of slight winds and air currents, and was so able to glide upon what might be called atmospheric slopes.

As the albatross sailed alongside the ship, about fifteen feet away, the naturalist snapped his camera at it and obtained a photograph that astonished him and his fellow passengers.

The photograph revealed, what no eye had caught, the wings of the albatross, each some five feet long, in the act of making a downward stroke. The explanation naturally suggested was that more or less frequently the bird must have made a stroke of this kind with its wings, although the eye could not detect the motion, and that the camera chanced to be snapped at precisely the right moment.—New York Post.

Some Big Trees.

What undoubtedly is the largest deciduous tree now growing in the United States is a sycamore near Worthington, Ind., which at five feet from the ground measures forty-two feet three inches in circumference. Its height is approximately 150 feet. According to local claims, this remarkable specimen is inferior to one long since felled in the same district, which had a girth of sixty-seven feet. A valley oak which measures thirty-seven feet six inches in circumference was the largest nut bearing tree found during a contest. This is situated in San Benito county, Cal., and reaches to a height of 125 feet. In a good season it bears a ton of acorns. America's largest elm seems to be "the great elm" at Wethersfield, Conn., which at the base has a circumference of over fifty-five feet. It is supposed to be about 250 years old.—Popular Mechanics Magazine.

Naming the Aegean Sea.

The Aegean sea is remarkable among the seas of the world for the obscurity in which the origin of its name is involved. Even the ancients could not give a certain answer on the point. A popular view was that it was named after Aegeus, the father of Theseus, who threw himself into it when his son forgot to hoist the white sail upon his return from Crete as a signal that he had slain the Minotaur. But others derived the name from Aegea, a queen of the Amazons, who also perished in this sea; others from the town of Aegae, in Euboea (Negropont), and a fourth theory traced it to the word "aiges," goats, which the islands of the archipelago were fancifully thought to resemble.

Who Is to Blame?

It is a very conservative thing to say that there are four women to every man in the church membership of America. Many people are wont to lay the blame for this upon the churches. Quite a number of folks would like to lay it upon the men. Some fault the women for it. Is it not possible that the responsibility rests upon our social structure?—Bernard I. Bell in Atlantic.

Matter of Sentiment.

"What makes you go in through the kitchen?" "I don't know your servants very well," replied Mr. Cumrox. "Some way, the front hall seems kind of formal and distant. Around at the kitchen steps they've got an old doormat with 'Welcome' on it."—Washington Star.

Practical Economy

Baking powders made from alum or phosphate may be bought for a trifle less than Royal Baking Powder, which is made from cream of tartar, derived from grapes.

Alum powders are not only cheap, but they differ greatly in leavening power.

If a cheap baking powder is used for a fine cake and the cake turns out a failure there is a waste of costly materials worth more than a whole can of the cheap baking powder.

Royal Baking Powder produces the finest food, and its use therefore, results in an actual saving.

State Tour of Maryland Corn Club

It is announced by Henry E. Warner, Director of the Tour, and Reuben Brigham, Assistant State Agent in charge of Boys' Club Work, that their preliminary trip over the route of the Home State Tour for Maryland Corn and Potato Club Boys will be made during the third and fourth weeks of June, instead of the second and third weeks of May, in order to complete the details in connection with local meetings.

On June 12th, the Path Finding auto will leave Crisfield and proceed to Baltimore by way of Elkton and from Baltimore westward to Oakland, over the State highways, passings through all the towns included in the Home State Tour. Messrs. Warner and Brigham will meet the citizens of these towns at places to be selected by them, which will be announced later. The purpose of the Tour is to organize the permanent committee in each town so that the plan can be harmoniously worked out to the success which seems to be a foregone conclusion.

When the preliminary tour is made, all citizens with their mothers, wives, sweethearts and daughters are invited to attend. As far as possible, there will be three meetings in as many towns a day (morning, afternoon and evening). At the conclusion of this Tour, the committee in charge of the event will send out to all local committees a clear statement of the work expected of them, which will be made possible by the many conferences to be held in June. It has been suggested that the Home State Tour for Maryland Corn and Potato Club Boys be held during the ten days preceding Maryland Week so that this Tour will be a forerunner of the big event at the Fifth Regiment Armory in Baltimore. These plans will be submitted to the various citizen committees for criticism and adoption.

Continuance Of An Old Evil

George Washington, our first President, suffered so much aggravation from what he termed "self-created societies," organized for the purpose of showing national administrations how to conduct the affairs of government, especially during grave crises, that he referred to them in his annual address to Congress, in 1794. He charged they had used their influence to undermine the honor and authority of the government, and condemned "combinations of men, who, careless of consequences and disregarding the unerring truth that those who arouse cannot always appease a civil convulsion, have disseminated, from an ignorance or perversions of facts, suspicions, jealousies and accusations of the whole government."

This evil has continued and still prevails. It was rampant during the War of 1812, during the Mexican War and during our Civil War. Now it is represented by many "societies," formed by women as well as men, and the administration is bothered by their meddling interference and their half-baked conclusions. The government does not need their aid, and they are not likely to render any real service to the country. —Wilmington Every Evening.

Wheat Crop Cut Down

Almost half a billion bushels is the winter wheat harvest forecast for this year by the Department of Agriculture in its May crop report. That is 155,000,000 bushels less than harvested last year when a world's record crop was gathered in the United States, but the crop this year is growing on a much smaller acreage and the severe winter caused a heavy abandonment of the acreage planted last fall. In all, 4,236,000 acres were abandoned, leaving for harvest 33,030,000 acres, which is 7,433,000 acres less than harvest last year. The yield from the growing crop is estimated at 499,280,000 bushels. In its report, the department says:

"Present conditions of growth are poorest in the Central group of states, where winter killing was most severe, the conditions ranging from 23 per cent. below the 10-year average condition at this season in Illinois down to 10 per cent. below in Iowa.

"The Atlantic Coast crop is generally fair to good. The increase over the condition figure of 78.3 per cent. last month is due partly to the elimination of the abandoned acreage from consideration in determining the present condition.

"The Hessian fly, reported as active in many sections last fall, is not seemingly so much in evidence, although reported from scattered localities, particularly in Central Kansas. Mention is made of the presence of the green bug in North Central Oklahoma, but the parasites of this insect are present also and it is hoped will limit the damage it might otherwise do."

Whooping Cough

One of the most successful preparations in use for this disease is Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. S. W. McClinton, Blandon Springs, Ala., writes, "Our baby had whooping cough as bad as most any baby could have it. I gave him Chamberlain's Cough Remedy and it soon got him well." Obtainable everywhere.

STATE TAXES DUE JULY FIRST

Interest Will Be Charged After Sept. 1—No Discount To Be Allowed

Stricter laws affecting the collection of State taxes were enacted by the last Legislature. The discount feature which appealed to many taxpayers was abolished entirely. Taxes due the State will in the future be payable on July 1st and after September 1st interest will be charged. After January 1st of the year following the County Treasurer shall proceed to collect the State taxes as provided for by law according to a letter from State Comptroller McMullen which follows:

To the Board of County Commissioners, Princess Anne, Md.

Gentlemen:

This is to notify you that no discount will be allowed for the prompt payment of State taxes levied for the year 1916. Chapter 530 of the Acts of 1916 provides that State taxes are due and payable on the first day of July succeeding the levy, and if not paid on or before September first, interest shall be charged from said first day of September. Said State taxes shall be in arrears on and after the first day of January succeeding the date of the levy, and it shall be the duty of Collectors, Treasurers and other officers who may be charged with the collection of the same immediately thereafter to proceed to collect said taxes in accordance with the provisions of law for the collection of delinquent taxes. It shall also be the duty of the Collectors or County Treasurer or other officers collecting said taxes to make monthly returns and remittance to the Comptroller of the amount thereof collected from time to time.

Yours truly,
HUGH A. McMULLEN, Comptroller.

Hospital Supplies Go To Russia

Some weeks ago Mrs. Wm. H. Gale solicited contributions from the citizens of Princess Anne to be given to the Red Cross Society in New York to be distributed in foreign lands. Under date of May 16th Mrs. Gale received the following letter from Mr. Albert W. Staub, Superintendent of Receiving and Shipping Station, Brooklyn, New York:

"Dear Mrs. Gale:
"I take pleasure in advising you that the packages of hospital supplies which were included in our Russian shipment 'S', which will sail from New York May 18th, on the S.S. 'Ekaterinoslav,' consigned to the Russian Red Cross."
"I know that you will be interested in learning where your supplies are to be used."

Berry Pickers And Smallpox

About this season of the year a large number of colored people of this section of the county go to Delaware to pick strawberries. At this time there are hundreds of cases of smallpox in Delaware. Many towns are not quarantined, and if our people go this year, they cannot come back until the State health officer gives them permission.

Many of the pickers do now clear enough money to pay their traveling expenses, and they should stay at home, especially this year. There is plenty of work here for these people. Our farmers need them now, and can give them regular work all the summer.

Real Estate Brings Good Price

Last Wednesday Mr. L. Atwood Bennett, of Salisbury, as trustee, sold at public sale in Princess Anne, the real estate of his father, the late James L. Bennett, situated in Tangier district, Somerset county.

At the same time he announced that former Judge Oscar Leser would be re-appointed the minority member of the State Tax Commission. All of these appointments were expected. The salaries of the Conservation Commissioners will be $3,000 each; that of the Tax Commissioner is $5,000.

Town Election On June 5th

On June 5th the town Election will be held for the purpose of electing one member to serve as Commissioner for six years. We have heard of but one candidate for the place—Mr. J. Douglass Wallop. Mr. Wallop was Commissioner for Princess Anne for one term, and by solicitation of his many friends he has consented to serve again. There is no doubt that Mr. Wallop will be the right man in the right place.

The Marshalls Indicted

The grand jury at Easton, returned an indictment last Tuesday against Frank and Rose Virginia Marshall for assault with intent to kill their daughter, Grace Marshall, who was rescued from a room in the Marshall home near St. Michaels, to a hospital, where she has been held a prisoner for years.

The grand jury had before it Miss Emma Davies; John Hancock, of Wilmington, Del., an uncle of Grace Marshall; ex-Sheriff James A. Gannon and Deputy Sheriff Orlan Horsey, who rescued the girl.

Miss Marshall's plight was discovered by her uncle, John Hancock, who was spending the night at the Marshall home. He heard groans coming from a closed room and looking through cracks in the shutters saw the girl crawling around the room picking crumbs from the floor and eating them.

He notified Miss Davies, of the children's Aid Society, who after an investigation secured a warrant and had the girl removed. She weighed at that time 57 pounds. After spending several weeks at the home of an aunt in Easton Miss Marshall was taken to Phipps's Clinic, Baltimore. On April 16th she was sent back to her aunt's home, having gained about 40 pounds in weight while at the hospital, but showing improvement in her mental condition.

State's Attorney Charles J. Butler says he is going to push the case and hopes to secure a conviction.

$2,500,000 Raised For P. E. Clergy

Bishop William Lawrence, of Massachusetts, announces the reception of pledges $2,500,000, which is one-half of the $5,000,000, which must be in hand as a reserve fund to start the plan to pension the retiring clergy of the Protestant Episcopal Church. The campaign to raise this money constitutes the largest single enterprise ever undertaken by the Episcopal church. It was formally started on March 1st and will continue for a year.

It is expected that on March 1st, 1917, the full reserve fund will have been subscribed, and the scheme will then be put into effect. Some 712 clergymen will then be eligible for immediate retirement.

Laird Again On Utilities Board

Governor Harrington Monday last week appointed Philip D. Laird, of Montgomery county, a member of the Public Service Commission to succeed Judge W. Laird Henry, whose term expired on May 1. Mr. Laird has accepted the position and will assume its duties on June 1.

Mr. Laird returns to the commission after an absence of over a year. He will succeed Judge Henry, whom Governor Goldsborough appointed to succeed Albert G. Towers, promoted to the chairmanship of the commission to succeed Mr. Laird, who thus returns as a member instead of as chairman.

LECTURE BY PROF. S. S. HANDY

The Birth of Shakespeare Commemorated By The Shoreland Club

The Trecentenary of the birth of Shakespeare was commemorated by the Shoreland Club of Princess Anne Wednesday evening. The meeting was held at the residence of Mrs. Oliver T. Beauchamp, on Princess William street. The Club had devoted the winter to a special study of Shakesperian plays and the special feature of the occasion was a lecture delivered by Prof. S. S. Handy, of St. John's College, Annapolis, on the "Merchant of Venice." The speaker prefaced his remarks by a brief review of the life and works of the author. He then gave a most interesting exposition of the "Merchant of Venice," reading many of the principal portions of the play. Mr. Handy was introduced by Judge Henry L. D. Stanford. Miss Irene Taylor and Mrs. L. Creston Beauchamp rendered vocal solos, accompanied by Mrs. J. Douglass Wallop, pianist. Those present were:

Pathfinding Auto To Tour The Shore

Beginning at Crisfield Saturday morning, June 3rd, at 10 a. m., a Pathfinding automobile will tour the good roads from Crisfield to Baltimore by way of Elkton, and from Baltimore to Oakland by way of Frederick and Cumberland, for the purpose of organizing permanent committees to take charge of The Home State Tour of the Maryland Corn and Potato Club Boys. The main event is scheduled for the week preceding Maryland Week and will be a forerunner of that state affair, which will be held as usual at the Fifth Regiment Armory in Baltimore.

The Pathfinding automobile will be in charge of Reuben Brigham, who has charge of club work and represents both the federal government and the Maryland Agricultural College and Henry E. Warner, director of the tour, who will represent the Baltimore Sun, under the auspices of which newspaper the tour is to be given by arrangement with the federal and state boys' club authorities. Mr. Brigham has the county agents thoroughly organized and each county agent will represent the Corn Club work in the territory of his jurisdiction.

For the information of those interested, preliminary meetings will be open to the public and in most cases will be held by authority of the city and county officials, with whom are co-operating automobile clubs, commercial organizations, granges and bankers.

The pathfinding car will make three towns a day where possible and the meetings will be held at 10 a. m. and 4 and 8 p. m. daily. Mr. Brigham will explain the work of the Corn Clubs, and Mr. Warner will go into the purpose of the tour and the plan of organization.

The prize winning Corn Club and Potato Club Boys en route will boost Maryland Week exposition and invite all the people of Maryland to come to Baltimore. It is believed and hoped that this promotion for Maryland Week will result in the greatest reunion of state and city people in the history of Maryland. It is peculiarly true of Maryland that every one in the country is related to someone in the city. Later in the season the railroad companies and the steamboat lines will be asked to offer special rates for Maryland Week and to advertise it widely.

The baccalaureate sermon for the 1916 class of the Washington High School, of Princess Anne, was preached by Rev. W. F. Freund at Manokin Presbyterian Church last Sunday evening. A special choir, with Mrs. J. D. Wallop, organist, rendered music.

Farmers' Day

Extraordinary preparations are being made for the annual celebration of Farmers' Day at the Maryland State College of Agriculture. Farmers and their families from every section of the State are expected to throng the College and Experiment Station grounds where every possible effort will be made to contribute to their entertainment and instruction in the activities of their institution. In view of last year's record attendance and the increased interest which has resulted from the successful campaign of the friends of the College for adequate appropriations, fully double the attendance of previous years is anticipated, as this year's celebration will be the opening of a new era in the history of the usefulness of the Institution to the farming people of the State.

The fact that the College is now entirely State property under the recent acts of the Legislature will tend to draw even a larger number of those who have never been well acquainted with its purposes or its obligation to the agricultural interests of the State. Maryland farmers and farm women are more than ever inclined to look upon their State College of Agriculture as the future educational center for rural Maryland and the agency through which their interest will be conserved and protected as well as their possibilities for production increased.

Realizing that the fullest appreciation of the benefits of the institution can only come from a close acquaintance with its work and the receiving of direct benefits from the information given, the authorities in charge are urging each visitor to bear in mind certain definite points regarding which information is desired, so that at the end of his visit he will have succeeded in carrying home with him some lesson of real, practical help in his daily work in addition to his general survey of the activities of the College.

Guides for the purpose of directing visitors will be stationed in every part of the grounds so that those points of special interest to them can be easily and conveniently reached. It is hoped that every farmer within reasonable driving distance will avail himself of the advantages of the good roads of the State to give himself and his family a day of real benefit and enjoyment by visiting, and becoming better acquainted with his State College of Agriculture.

Two International Spies

By ETHEL HOLMES

Before the pan-European war we Americans supposed that our affairs did not interest other powers. Since then we have awakened to the fact that every government has a spy system within the territory of every other government. England, France, Italy and other powers keep secret service workers in other countries. Of all the Germans have the most perfect and extended organization. And yet some of the principal fields of the working of the German propaganda in America have originated with the British secret service men. While these systems may have been strengthened and enlarged since the opening of the war, there is reason to believe that they have always existed.

Austria and Russia have always been watching each other on account of the persistent encroachment of the two on the Balkans. Some years ago two Russian girls, sisters, went to Vienna as spies for the czar upon the intentions of the emperor of Austria regarding schemes to carve Austrian provinces out of Balkan territory. One of these girls, Maria, obtained a position as copyist in the Austrian foreign office. The other, Vera, kept house for the two in rooms in an apartment building. Since they were in the pay of the Russian government they did not want for anything.

Maria was under the orders of Caspar Grenthall, a man who conducted one of the bureaus of the department in which she worked. He was a handsome and otherwise attractive man, and when he made love to her she reciprocated. When they were not engaged in the office he took her out to the gardens and other places of amusement and by his kindness gradually won her heart.

It was not long before Grenthall proposed marriage to Maria. Though she loved him, she hesitated to accept him. Indeed, his being a spy complicated the affair, making her very unhappy.

Then suddenly Maria received a shock. One day when she was at work a girl occupying a desk beside her slipped a bit of paper among those before her. Maria unfolded it and read that she was suspected of purloining a certain document that had passed through her hands. Grenthall had won her in order to find out if she were stealing such documents. Her room would be searched that evening.

Maria was not only disturbed at discovering that Grenthall had deceived her, but in terror at the suspicion that existed against her. Either her life or a long imprisonment would pay the penalty. As soon as office hours were over she went to her room and told her sister what had occurred. She had stolen the paper in question, and it was concealed in their apartment. Taking it from its hiding place, she was thinking what to do with it when there was a sound of persons coming up the stairs without. She had only time to thrust the paper into her bosom when the door was thrown open and in walked Grenthall, accompanied by several men. He made no apology for his entrance or for having played the spy upon Maria. He and his men began a search of the rooms.

Evidently he had expected to surprise Maria and, if the missing paper was in her possession, to find it concealed in her apartments. Not finding it after a thorough search, it occurred to him that it might be on her person. He sent one of the men with him for a woman to make the search. When she arrived he told her to find out whether Maria had the paper.

Maria, when the man who had won her heart to betray her entered, gave him a look of anger, then, when the searching began, fell upon her sister's neck, sobbing piteously. While the two women were clasped in each other's arms, their bosoms close up against each other, Vera contrived to take the paper from her sister's bosom and slip it into her own.

Maria was the one suspected, but it was not to be expected that Vera would be let off without examination. Believing that she would be searched, she cast about for some means of getting rid of the paper. She started to leave the apartment, but Grenthall ordered her back. When the woman came she made the search in one of the bedrooms, the men remaining elsewhere. Vera was with her sister. Maria was required to take off her clothes, which were carefully examined by the searcher and laid upon a table. While her back was turned Vera contrived to slip the paper into a pocket of one of the garments that had been examined. Her sister saw her do this, and hope sprang up within her.

When the search was finished and nothing found the result was reported to Grenthall. Having done all he could in the matter, he withdrew his assistants and went away while Maria was dressing.

The paper was a valuable one for the Russian government, and the sisters were anxious to save it. That night Vera, dressed as a boy, stepped out of the apartment and gained a lower suit without being noticed. The next morning, though a watch had been established, she got to the street and away without being recognized. Maria went to the foreign office, but was discharged. Had it been known instead of suspected that she was guilty she would have been arrested.

Vera succeeded in reaching Russia with the paper and was paid a large price for it. Her sister finally rejoined her there.

SOME FAMOUS SAYINGS.

Many Much Quoted Phrases Not Always Well Authenticated.

Too few of the flashing phrases of history will pass scientific scrutiny. There is no certain authority for Wellington's "Up, guards, and at them." There is conclusive authority against Camborne's "The guard dies and never surrenders," and against the Abbe Edgeworth's invocation on Louis XVI's scaffold, "Son of St. Louis, ascend to heaven." These were the inventions of the newspaper men.

Dr. Johnson maintained that the value of every story depended on its being true, but he was himself the author of "the atrocious crime of being a young man," which generations of young Americans have studied as an example of Chatham's irony. Johnson was not present at the debate when the real reply was spoken. Invention is probably responsible for Goethe's dying words, "Mehr Licht," and Chesterfield's "Give Dayrolles a chair." On the other hand, there is solid evidence for Nelson's "Thank God, I have done my duty," and Pitt's "Oh, my country; how I leave my country!"

Excessive wit and inherent improbability militate against Louis Philippe's heartless phrase at the deathbed of Talleyrand. The king asked Talleyrand if he was in pain, and the latter replied, "Yes, like one of the damned." Louis Philippe murmured, "Already?"

Certain historic phrases gain from judicious editing. "All is lost but honor," wrote Francis I. after the battle of Pavia, but that is not the end of the sentence, which runs on, "and my life, which is safe." When William III. landed in England he made the famous declaration, "We have come for your good," but did not stop there. Not quite a master of English, the Dutch ruler drove home the point—"for all your goods."—New York Post.

Ada Rehan's Bandsman.
Miss Ada Rehan used to say that the finest appreciation of her acting she ever observed came from a bandsman in the orchestra of a Birmingham theater. When she played the angry Katharine she had one piece of superb fury—a swift march to the back of the stage, a right about turn and then a straight march down the stage, pulling up short and sharp at the footlights. One night she saw a bandsman sitting directly in her line of advance shrink back in his chair at the moment of the full stop at the footlights.

"Sure, he thought, I wasn't going to stop on the stage," Miss Rehan said. "I wonder if he is married to a Katharine."

The next day she sent him a box of cigars.—Manchester Guardian.

Home Ties.
A sedate banker of Hamilton, Canada, was sitting in his office one morning when his ten-year-old hopeful drifted in, bearing with him an expression of unutterable gloom.

"Anything gone wrong, boy?" interrogated the financier. "Why, at your age you ought to be cheerful all the time."

"I know it, Frank; I know it," responded the youngster. "I'm doin' the best I can; but, honest, I had a terrible time up at the house with your wife this morning."—Saturday Evening Post.

His Promise.
A Mobile man who was continually hard up had so many notes at the bank he could not leave town except on Sundays and holidays. He had a note falling due every banking day. He dropped into a bank one day and spoke genially to the president.

"I came in to fix up that little matter of mine," he said. "I'd like to renew it for a time."

The bank president had the note on his desk. He picked it up and studied it carefully. "Jim," he finally said, "I don't think this note is made out properly."

"Why not?" asked the alarmed borrower.

Ada Rehan's Bandsman.
Miss Ada Rehan used to say that the finest appreciation of her acting she ever observed came from a bandsman in the orchestra of a Birmingham theater. When she played the angry Katharine she had one piece of superb fury—a swift march to the back of the stage, a right about turn and then a straight march down the stage, pulling up short and sharp at the footlights. One night she saw a bandsman sitting directly in her line of advance shrink back in his chair at the moment of the full stop at the footlights.

"Sure, he thought, I wasn't going to stop on the stage," Miss Rehan said. "I wonder if he is married to a Katharine."

The next day she sent him a box of cigars.—Manchester Guardian.

Luck.
 Luck is that which has made your successful neighbor what he is and has conspired to prevent you from becoming what you would like to be. Luck is good or bad, according to whether you are contemplating your neighbor's success or accounting on your own failures.

Luck is a handy little thing to have around, for if it does not benefit you it at least affords you an objective kicking point. Also, the mere mention of its name relieves you of the necessity of making many embarrassing excuses. Luck is a barb which may prevent disaster from poaching on your domains, but if it does not do this you at least have the satisfaction of impaling upon it all reasons for your defeat.

Luck is perhaps more unlucky than you are.—Judge.

Origin of the Penny.

The "maiden name" of the penny was "denarius," and the English penny is a survival of the Roman rule in the British Isles. Like the coin which preceded it in Rome, it has been debased in value until its name has lost its original meaning. The first denarius was minted in Rome about 268 B. C. and was the principal silver coin of both the republic and the empire. It at first weighed seventy-two grains troy and was as nearly pure silver as durability would permit. It bore on one side the helmeted head of Roma and the mark X and on the other side the images of Castor and Pollux. Later these twin gods were replaced by the head of the Roman emperors. By 215 A. D. the coin had deteriorated in value until it was only 40 per cent silver. The X, which signified the value of ten asses, had wholly lost its meaning. Diocletian finished the degradation of the denarius by applying the name to a small copper coin. In England the largest silver coin was called a denarius at a time when the English forin was called a gold penny.—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

Edison and His Mother.

During the short time that he attended school Thomas A. Edison was nearly always at the foot of his class. On one occasion a teacher remarked to the inspector that the boy was "addled" and that trying to tutor him was a mere waste of time.

The youth overheard the remark. He repeated it to his mother, who promptly took the child back to the school and told the teacher he did not know what he was talking about and that the lad had more brains than the teacher.

Referring to this critical period of his existence, Mr. Edison once said:

"Had it not been for my mother's appreciation and faith in me I should very likely never have been an inventor. She was so true, so sure of me, that I felt that I had some one to live for, some one I must not disappoint. The memory of her will always be a blessing to me."—Columbus Dispatch.

Proof That We Are Sheepish.

The Pittsburgh man who several years ago won a dinner from an Indiana county relative by taking a small piece of wood, a hammer and a nail and blocked traffic on lower Fifth avenue of the steel metropolis by hammering the nail into the shingle resting on the sidewalk has a follower here who did a similar stunt. The New Yorker won his wager by placing a ball of paper six inches in diameter at the corner of Wall street and Broadway and by staring at it got a crowd of a hundred people in five minutes. It proved the old contention of the psychology of crowds, showed that all the yokels are not living in the country and revealed that we humans are all more or less sheep.—New York Letter to Pittsburgh Dispatch.

Origin of Patents.

Patents (from pater, I lie open) originated with the so called nobility of France. Lest their superiority to other folks should be in doubt, the nobles got out titles of nobility, so that the fact that they were better than the rest of the people might "lie open" to all the world. It was in connection with the printing of books that the first real patents were issued, about 1550. By 1625 it began to be customary to issue patents protecting the rights of inventors in the arts and manufactures. Since that time the patent offices of the world have had a steadily increasing business.

- ◆ Troublesome Tonsils.
- ◆ Rheumatism is only a minor consequence of enlarged tonsils.
- ◆ Tuberculosis, asthma, epilepsy, articular rheumatism, goiter, valvular heart disease, stomach and intestinal ulcers, gallstones, glandular troubles and a dozen other serious or even fatal diseases are caused directly or are materially predisposed to by infection originating in the tonsils.
- ◆ The cure is simple. Have them either amputated or atrophied.
- ◆ Radical removal is more effective than slower shrinkage. But get rid of them in any event if they persist in occupying more than their proper share of space and attention. The operation in efficient hands is quick, safe and certain. And if the tonsils reappear the operation or the shrinkage treatment can be repeated.

ORIGIN OF ORE DEPOSITS.

Deep Down Hot Springs Form Veins of Precious Metals.

Steamboat Springs, Nevada, has figured prominently in discussions of the origin of ore deposits. The waters of these springs contain the precious metals in minute quantities, and the sinter deposited by them contains several minerals that are common constituents of ores, as well as small quantities of many of the rarer metallic constituents of ore deposits, including gold and silver.

Such springs, therefore, suggest that many and perhaps most ore bearing veins have been formed by hot waters rising from great depths, which have brought their metal contents up in solution and deposited them in open spaces or fissures in the rocks through which the waters passed, the deposition of some ores being influenced by chemical reaction with the surrounding rock. Many ore deposits are undoubtedly formed in other ways, for some are unquestionably of sedimentary origin, and the metal content of some others has been carried down, redeposited and concentrated by rain water that descended into the earth's crust, but the "hydrothermal" origin—that is, their deposition from ascending hot water—of many of the more valuable ore deposits is indicated by the close relation observed at many places between mineral veins and eruptive rocks. Thermal waters are believed to be, in part at least, given off by slowly cooling and solidifying masses of igneous rock (magma) deep within the earth.—Geological Survey Bulletin.

THE MODERN TORPEDO.

How It Travels and Its Effect Upon Striking a Vessel.

The present day torpedo is a very different sort of weapon from that used half a century ago. It is shaped something like a cigar and is about twenty-three feet long and twenty-one inches in diameter. It weighs considerably more than a ton, and its construction costs from $5,000 to double that sum.

It is made to travel in a certain direction in a fixed time and to explode when it strikes some solid object, such as a ship's bottom. A torpedo of the largest and most modern type will tear a gaping hole in the stanchest ship ever built. The nose or "explosive head" of a torpedo contains the deadly charge of high explosives, nitroglycerin and gun cotton being often used.

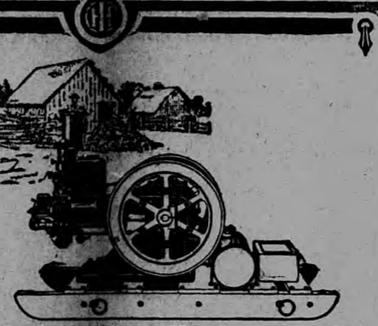

When the torpedo strikes its target a tremendous detonation follows instantly, driving in both the outer and inner "skins" of a vessel. The hole it makes in a ship's bottom varies in size, but is seldom less than ten by thirty feet. The torpedo travels toward its victim at the rate, roughly, of about a thousand yards a minute. The distance and rate of speed have to be calculated to a nicety before the torpedo is discharged. It is kept to its destined course by perpendicular rudders in its tail.

The modern "dirigible" torpedo was first used in a naval war during the Chilean revolution of a quarter of a century ago.—New York World.

Forcing Flower Seeds.

It is a help to soak all hard seeds, such as sweet peas, nasturtiums, balsams, moonflower, etc., at least twelve hours and to file especially large seeds, such as canna and moonflower. This is done by rubbing the sharpest end (or any part away from the germ) over a file, just enough to have the white show. Filing must be done before soaking. Sweet peas may be soaked three or four days.

Another way to hurry coarse, slow to germinate seeds is to force between cotton flannel. Take double pieces of cotton flannel, wet thoroughly, place seeds between them and put in a warm place. Keep cloths moist all the time, and seeds will sprout in from one to three days. Transfer carefully to the ground with the root sprout down.—Farm & Home.

Does It Run On Kerosene?

THE most important feature of a farm power engine today is the fuel it uses.

That, more than anything else, determines its usefulness and economy.

At present prices of gasoline and kerosene, you could not afford to accept a gasoline engine as a gift, if you had to use it.

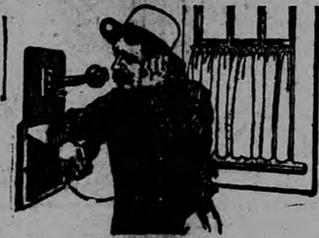

You could better afford to pay a big premium for a Mogul kerosene engine.

See the Mogul work on kerosene. Ask your dealer to show you the difference in fuel cost between a Mogul in any size from 1 to 50-H. P., and a gasoline engine of the same size. The figures will surprise you.

STOP THE LEAKAGE

We have been informed that in our last editorial upon the "Dusty Streets" we seemed to be impressed with the idea that the water service upon the streets had been stopped on account of failure of the water supply. We have been further informed that this was not the case but that the supply has always been adequate except as it had been affected by the many leakages over the town whereby thousands of gallons of water are wasted daily. Mr. Cannon who has charge of the pumping station, states that if these leaks could be stopped there would be plenty of water for all purposes and the supply would be much better and purer. In addition to this, he states, that it is impossible to do the necessary watering of the streets in face of such conditions, and unless the public are willing to contribute the amount necessary to make the service remunerative.

We can see clearly the effect of such an argument, and we can but concur in it. The first step essential, therefore, is for the many leaks to be stopped promptly. We have been told that but few of the many leaks that have been discovered have received attention. The Town Commissioners would no doubt, be justified in having the repairs made and charging the same to property owners. It would be far better for owners to have the repairs made themselves. Possibly the difficulty has been to get the service of a plumber, or it may have been a matter of neglect. Be this as it may, the sundry leaks should be promptly corrected, as much for the prospect of better water and its saving as for the prospect of a street wagon service, if such shall be concluded to be the best policy to keep down the dust.

In our last article we mentioned oil as being the best method of curtailing the dust trouble and the most lasting. Much will depend upon the expense. Water dries rapidly, and has to be renewed frequently. This is not the case with oil and in this respect its use would probably be more effective than water. The adaptation of some plan should come before the Town Fathers, who should also see that leaking pipes and outlets should be repaired.

PREPAREDNESS

This is an age of preparedness. Accounts are current of preparing for all sorts of occasions other than warfare. The purpose of this article is to note a word of warning against serious epidemics, such as smallpox, which is not far from this county though not in it. No one can tell when a case may occur in Somerset or how many new ones might result from it. Would it not be wise in such a case to anticipate such an occurrence and to provide in advance for its rebuke?

It is true that summer is not the season for smallpox to be propagated. Open doors and windows help to eradicate many such diseases. Still in spite of such open air prophylactics, a case or two of smallpox for which no preparation had been made would do a world of injury to a town or any community. If it is thoroughly understood that the county authorities are ready to meet any such exigency, it would mean the ultimate saving of expense as well as the lessening of dread on the part of citizens.

All look for peace, but both sides in the European war now seem to think that peace will come before another winter sets in. But as the reasons given for this belief are contradictory, both sides may be mistaken. On the German side it is held that the German-Austrian victories and strong military position must convince the Allies that it is time to yield and accept peace on Germany's terms. On the other side it is generally believed that Germany is nearly exhausted and must soon sue for peace on the Allies' terms.

Frankness Before Peace

It is certainly to the discredit of none of the warring powers to frankly express a wish to have ended the horrible slaughter of human beings that has made the strife the worst exhibition of human barbarity that modern civilization has ever witnessed. Yet each of them appears to be fearful of an admission that would be wholly honorable and creditable. They all know well enough that neither side is going to win. It is a case of wear and not of win. And they could argue unlimited as to which side has suffered the most from wear of war and not come to an agreement. To continue the war simply to see which can wear the other out is not to the credit of the intelligence of any of the governments.

Germany is frank enough to say it wants peace. But President Poincare of France says it must ask and not proffer peace terms. This appears to be a bit stilted and affected. England is represented as wanting to try out the new million-men army for a drive against the German line. Any such desire is not creditable to the humanity of the English government.

There must be frankness before peace, and is it not time for all the warring powers frankly to declare their wish for peace and go about to get it?—Baltimore American.

SHARP NOTE TO BRITAIN

Washington To Protest Vigorously Against Seizure Of Mails

The American Government is preparing a protest, characterized by officials as "very vigorous," against the interference with mails to and from the United States by Great Britain. A note, to be sent forward in the near future, will take the position that the United States can no longer countenance seizure and detention of mails to and from the United States, particularly those concerning neutrals.

The reply recently received from Great Britain to the last American note, protesting against interference with American mails, is considered unsatisfactory. Protests have been made to the Government by many individuals and firms who have been injured by the frequent long delays to which mails between Europe and the United States have been subjected.

The subject is under detailed study at the State Department and President Wilson has decided to make representations to Great Britain as quickly as a note can be completed. The British Government will be informed that the United States considers it imperative that her present policy be modified.

Avoid Spring Colds

Sudden changes, high winds, shifting seasons cause colds and grippe, and these spring colds are annoying and dangerous and are likely to turn into a chronic summer cough. In such cases take a treatment of Dr. King's New Discovery, a pleasant Laxative Tar Syrup. It soothes the cough, checks the cold and helps break up an attack of grippe. Its already prepared, no mixing or fussing. Just ask your druggist for a bottle of Dr. King's New Discovery. Tested and tried for over 40 years. 3 [Advertisement.]

DANCES AND DIES.

The May Fly Lives Only a Day, but Has a Gay Time While He Lasts.

Foolish insect! He lives only one day and spends the greater part of it dancing. You've doubtless been a guest at one of their dances, held over a stream on a warm summer's evening. You've seen the insects in swarms, leaping up and down in fancy poses and intricate figures. You've attended the dance of the May flies.

There is a general supposition that all May flies live only for a day. As a matter of fact, they will live several days if the atmosphere isn't too dry. Then again they may survive only through a single night. Even this impending fate cannot stop them from dancing.

This brief lived characteristic, however, applies only to the winged existence of the insect. Before they grow wings they pass through several stages, from the larva, which live in water, through several molts and transformations. So while it is a May fly only for a short time it exists for a longer time, and perhaps we can pardon it if it dances during the brief period it lives in the air.

The fly has two pairs of wings, one pair much larger than the other, and two or three long, bristle-like tails. Its mouth is small and soft and not made for eating. The May fly has no time to eat. He's too busy dancing.—Philadelphia North American.

A GERMAN ARMY CORPS.

What It Means to Move and Feed and Form in Fighting Line.

In the nonmilitary mind there is only a vague idea as to the space required for an army corps.

According to a German writer, a German army corps consists of 41,000 men, 14,000 horses and 2,400 vehicles, including the cannon. Such a body of men and their belongings on a single road make a procession about thirty miles long.

Even when in fairly close touch with the enemy the length of a corps is about fifteen miles, and when the front detachments become engaged in a battle it is five or six hours before the men in the rear get into action to assist them.

An army of ten corps would fight on a front about thirty-seven miles long, and a man who undertook to walk from one wing to the other would require twelve or fourteen hours to do it.

An army corps consumes nearly 300,000 pounds of food a day, about 100,000 pounds for the men and 200,000 pounds for the horses. Even under the most favorable conditions it requires a train of 150 wagons to bring up a day's food.

Tea Chewers of Siam.

"Cheewing tea comes from Siam," said a traveler. "They call it mieng. It is in a plug, like chewing tobacco, and it has a villainous smell. This smell is due to the fermentation it has undergone. The tea that the Siamese employ for chewing purposes is a very coarse, rank plant. It is gathered like ordinary tea, but the leaves after being compressed into plugs are buried for fifteen days. They ferment during burial. On their resurrection they are very, very fragrant indeed. The Siamese boatmen chew tea. The richshaw men chew it. The litterators chew it. They say it makes them work better. This is probably the truth, for I chewed a plug myself in Anam, and it exhilarated me strangely. But the aftermath was bad—a headache, smarting eyes and nervous depression."

English and French.

It is truly a graceful speech, the French tongue. Plain, homely things of life, so bald and bare and disheartening in the Anglo-Saxon, are less unlovely in the French. Indeed, the French word for "rage" is so pretty that we have conferred chignon on one of our daintiest fabrics. But in the grace of the language lies also its weakness. It does not rise to the supreme utterances. I have been reading the Bible texts on the tombstones in the little cemetery of Chardonne. "L'eternal est mon berger" can never rank in loftiness with "The Lord is my shepherd," nor "Que votre coeur ne se trouble point" with "Let not your heart be troubled."—Baltimore American.

Overlooked.

Wife—Mabel has just informed me that she is going to be married.

Husband—Have you seen the young man?

"Not yet."

"Um! Considering that she is our daughter, don't you think she should have consulted us first?"

"But you must remember, dear, that the girls of today are so thoughtless!"—Life.

Poetry.

"Write poetry by all means," a professor in the University of Minnesota has encouraged his class boldly. "But don't show it to any one," he adds, establishing his right to be called not only diplomatic, but a sincere worker for the general welfare.

Easy For Him.

"How do you make the distinction between popular and classical music?" asked the very young man.

"Oh, that's easy!" answered the dispenser of home grown philosophy. "It's popular if I enjoy it, and it is classic if I don't."—Chicago News.

Didn't Mean It That Way.

Willie—I say, ma, if dad was to die would he go to heaven? Ma—Hush, Willie! He's been putting such ridiculous thoughts into your head!—London Opinion.

RHEUMATISM ARRESTED

Many people suffer the tortures of lame muscles and stiffened joints because of impurities in the blood, and each succeeding attack seems more acute until rheumatism has invaded the whole system. To arrest rheumatism it is quite as important to improve your general health as to purify your blood, and the cod liver oil in Scott's Emulsion is nature's great blood-maker, while its medicinal nourishment strengthens the organs to expel the impurities and rebuild your strength. Scott's Emulsion is helping thousands every day who could not find other relief. Refuse the alcoholic substitutes.

TRYING TO GRASP TIME.

Forming an Idea of What is Meant by a Million Years.

Astronomers and geologists habitually deal in large numbers. It is utterly impossible to conceive of a billion miles, and even the familiar illustration of a railway train going so many miles an hour for so many years conveys a very vague idea.

It is equally difficult to form an idea of the vast period of time with which geologists deal. What idea can man, who is limited to a hundred years, form of a million years?

Professor Croll tells us how a striking impression of such a lapse of time may be partially conveyed to the mind: "Stretch a piece of paper eighty-three feet four inches long around the walls of a room somewhat over twenty feet square, recall the events of life to give some conception of a hundred years, and then consider that a mark one-tenth of an inch broad at one end of the paper represents the century, while the whole slip gives place for only a million years."

This illustration is worth trying. An even more striking illustration may be seen in the works of nature. Could we stand upon the edge of a gorge a mile and a half in depth that had been cut out of the solid rock by a tiny stream scarcely visible at the bottom of this terrible abyss and were we informed that this little streamlet was able to wear off annually only one-tenth of an inch from its rocky bed, what would our conception be of the prodigious length of time that the stream must have taken to excavate the gorge? We should certainly feel startled on finding that the stream had performed this enormous amount of work in something less than a million years.—London Tit-Bits.

The Great Civilizer.

In many recent editorial contributions and magazine articles it is conclusively proved—were new proof necessary—that the railroad is the most potent of all factors in the civilization of mankind. Not only in a commercial sense, but in an ethical and religious sense, the railway is a pioneer, for it makes possible the intercourse of nations, the broadening of ideas, the seeking of newer and better things and the escape from the undesirable. In the wake of the railway come better conditions of every sort, for better transportation advantages beget better commercial conditions, and they in turn beget more intellectual development and higher ethical standards. That the railway is built primarily as a business investment does not alter the case. No claim was ever made that the railway was an ethical enterprise, but the fact remains, whatever the motive, that the railway is the handmaid of national progress, commercial, intellectual and religious.—New York Mail.

Barbarous Tattooing.

Formerly the Marquesans had such a barbarous manner of doing their tattoo work that it often took nearly six months to heal that which had been done in a single day. They covered the whole body of the males with crudely imitated rough designs, circles, curves and many designs of small work, including round and angular spots, even to the finger nails and the top of the head. Thus, beginning at virility, some were upward of thirty years old before their tattooing was completed. Marquesan tattooing was perhaps more remarkable in appearance than that of any other primitive race.

Luck.

Jack—Congratulate me, old man. Tom—What's up? Are you engaged? Jack—No. Miss Roxleigh refused me the day before her father made an assignment.—Boston Transcript.

"Chamberlain's Tablets Have Done Wonders For Me."

"I have been a sufferer from stomach trouble for a number of years, and although I have used a great number of remedies recommended for this complaint, Chamberlain's Tablets is the first medicine that has given me positive and lasting relief," writes Mrs. Anna Kadin, Spenceport, N. Y. "Chamberlain's Tablets have done wonders for me and I value them highly." Obtainable everywhere.

Expensive Lighting.

It takes 40,650,000 candle power to light up the outside of the Woolworth building, in New York, every night. Six hundred projector lamps, with reflectors covered with silver—not mercury—filled with nitrogen gas, each consuming 250 watts of current and delivering 67,750 candle power, are used in this illumination, which makes the tower visible twenty miles away.—New York World.

Nobody at Home.

"They say," remarked the spinster boarder, "that the woman who hesitates is lost."

"Lost is not the proper word for it," growled the fussy old bachelor at the pedal extremity of the table. "She's extinct."—Indianapolis Star.

Keeps You Waiting.

"True. The girl is usually half an hour late."—Louisville Courier-Journal.

Cancer Precautions.

A writer in a medical journal mentions, among the kind of things on the skin which must be observed for cancer, all moles and warts which grow in size; all moles which change their color and grow dark brown or black; all scaling warts, especially on the lips, the ears, the eyelids, the cheeks or the hands. He further states that "perhaps the most frequent excitant of all, so far as skin cancer is concerned, is dandruff. It falls from the scalp and lights on the ear, eyelids, nose, neck, lips and face, and if there is already a scaling spot or a thickening or a wart, a mole or a gland ready to receive the dandruff scale it sets this spot alive with activity, and it goes on to form a skin cancer. Probably 60 per cent of skin cancers are due to this cause, and many a cancer has been prevented and may be prevented by curing the dandruff or by preventing it."

HAVE YOU A BAD BACK?

If You Have, The Statement Of This Princess Anne Resident Will Interest You

Does your back ache, night and day; hinder work; destroy your rest? Does it stab you through and through when you stoop or lift or bend? Then your kidneys may be weak. Often backache is the clue. Just to give you further proof. The kidney action may be wrong. If attention is not paid more distress will soon appear. Headaches, dizzy spells and nerves, uric acid and its ills. Make the burden worse and worse. Liniments and plasters can't reach the inward cause at all. Help the kidneys—use the pills. Princess Anne folks have tried and proved.

What they say you can believe. Read this Princess Anne man's account.

See him, ask him, if you doubt. John B. Fleming, Main street, Princess Anne, says: "For a long time I was troubled by pain and weakness in my back, brought on by disordered kidneys. The kidney secretions were also in bad shape. I had often read about Doan's Kidney Pills and finally procured a box at Omar A. Jones' drug store. The results were very satisfactory. Over four years later Mr. Fleming said: 'The cure I received from Doan's Kidney Pills has proven permanent in every respect.'"

AN ORDEAL FOR STUDENTS.

Examinations in China Mean Stretches of Strenuous Work.

Learning in China is held in great esteem, and, says the Washington Star, a scholar is a marked and privileged man. In one typical literary center, Kanchou Fou, where students gather for their examinations, the working of the Chinese educational system may be observed to advantage.

A brilliant scene marks the opening of an examination, which is held in a great inclosure, the approaches to which, as well as the platform, are gorgeously decorated with red and yellow lanterns. Strangely enough, the doors are thrown open at midnight, and it is then that the candidates, who may number a couple of thousand and who are dressed in the long blue robes of the scholar, march in and take their seats.

The literary chancellor of the province, clad in silken garments of great magnificence, seats himself upon the platform. The doors are then closed, and the "text" from the classics is announced. The chancellor selects the text at random, and it is upon that text that the student must base his essay. Since the essay is composed under the eyes of an examiner and his lieutenants, cheating is out of the question.

The students who took their seats on this first midnight are sounded out by a big drum at 6 in the afternoon. They have eighteen hours in which to complete their essays. They are permitted to bring into the hall only light confectionery, although tea is often passed. In other words, they are expected to work and not to eat. They are allowed the six hours from sunset until midnight for rest, when the same men reassemble for a second trial.

On the third night those who are thought worthy make their third effort. With the third period the examination is completed, and a second set of men enters on the three days' ordeal.

His Gilded Promises.
"Why did you break off the match? Didn't you love the girl?"
"Yes, I loved her, but I saw that our married life would not be happy. It was better to part in time, was it not?"
"I suppose so. But how do you know that your married life would not have been happy?"
"Well, I had promised her a grand piano and an automobile. In fact, I had made her more promises than I could keep."—Pittsburgh Post.

LINCOLN AT A DEATHBED.

When "God and Eternity and Heaven Were Very Near."

We made a pilgrimage to see an old retired army officer who had been a journeyman printer in an office in Springfield, Ill., and one of Lincoln's intimate acquaintances and asked him to tell us a story that the magazines and books had not found. He told this:

"One day Lincoln asked me to ride fifteen miles out in the country with him and become a witness to a will he was to write for a woman on her deathbed. When the will had been signed and witnessed the woman asked him if he would not read a few verses out of the Bible to her. They offered him the book, but he did not take it, but began reciting from memory the Twenty-third Psalm, laying especial emphasis upon 'Though I walk through the valley of the shadow of death I will fear no evil, for thou art with me; thy rod and thy staff they comfort me.' Without the book he took up the first part of the fourteenth of John, 'In my Father's house are many mansions.' After he had given these and other quotations from the Scriptures he recited several hymns, closing with 'Rock of Ages, Cleft For Me.'

"I thought at the time I had never heard any elocutionist speak with such ease or power as he did. I am an old man now, but my heart melts, as it did then in that death chamber, as I remember how with a pathos truly divine he spoke the last stanza beginning, 'While I draw this fleeting breath.' The woman died while we were there.

"Riding home, I expressed surprise that he should have acted as pastor as well as attorney so perfectly, and he replied, 'God and eternity and heaven were very near to me today.'—Christian Herald.

A Strange Tradition.

When you put your chicken on to cook, if you are uncertain about its age, place in the utensil in which you are cooking it one or two clean rusty nails and you will find, no matter how old it may be, it will cook in the same time and be just as tender as the ordinary stewing chicken.

This is a family tradition handed down from my grandmother, who was a famous cook in her day. Just how the nails act on the meat to produce the effect I will want to leave to some scientist to discover. — Philadelphia Record.

Exaggerated Optimism.

"Bliggins is trying to be an optimist."
"The last time I saw him he thought everything was going to smash."
"He thinks so yet. But he's getting into a frame of mind that makes him suspect that maybe he'll enjoy seeing it happen."—Washington Star.

"Bail him out!" exclaimed the other.

TRYING A PAIR OF SKIS.

The First Attempt Is Great Sport For the Spectators.

Skis are long, narrow strips of wood, turned up at the toes, with a strap in the middle to hold your foot, and they have a spirit of evil running through the whole length of them.

We were inveigled into trying the things. To our everlasting regret we admit it. The idea is to walk to the top of a nice, smooth, slippery hill, put the things on, take a pole in your hand and slide down. Well, we walked up all right; we even got safely to the place where we pushed off with the pole. Then, all at once, the top of the hill seemed to jump away from us and the bottom to come surging up at us. We felt in our stomach as if somebody was trying to move it up near our front collar button. And we were going! My goodness, how we were going!

We said it was a nice smooth hill, didn't we? It was when we walked up, but something had meddled with it before we started to come down. There were waves and swells and gullies, and every time we struck one our right ski showed a desire to travel west while the left one wanted to go due north. It was disconcerting. Most of the time we wobbled. One ski got tired and wanted to ride on the other one. In our heart we knew we never would get out of the scrape alive.

And then right ahead of us loomed up a hummock. It was the highest hummock we ever saw, and there wasn't a chance to dodge it. We muttered goodby to ourself and kept on determinedly—very determinedly. Nothing short of a collision with a locomotive could have stopped us. Swoop we went up the side of the hummock, and in a millionth part of a second we discovered that the thing quit suddenly at the top. The other side was a miniature precipice. Maybe it was four feet down, but the four feet happened all of a sudden and violently.

Later we found out the thing had been put there on purpose. It was a criminal thing to do. We left that hummock abruptly. The air became full of us. We waved our arms and legs and lost our pole, and presently we came down not gracefully and gently, but we got down just the same. We don't know yet where our left ski went, nor do we know where a quarter of an acre of skin selected at random over our person went. We do know that it took two strong men with snow shovels ten minutes to dig us out of the drift. Sking is said to be an sport. It is. It is a great sport—for the spectator. We can think of no greater pleasure than to watch our worst enemy try a pair of skis for the first time.—American Boy.

A Story of Daniel O'Connell.

The great Daniel O'Connell was about to be re-elected a member of the house of commons. The vote was public. The landlords used all their influence to prevent the re-election of Daniel O'Connell. They threatened up to the time of the vote to evict the poor Irish tenants. It meant misery and ruin for them and for their families. A young Irishman on the stand weakened at the moment he was about to vote, before the threats of his landlord. But his mother was there. She called to him, "Oh, John, remember your son!" And the son, reassured by the courageous appeal of his mother, cried before the throne, "I vote for Daniel O'Connell!" His example was followed, and the election of Daniel O'Connell was a veritable triumph.—Letter in New York Times.

Stevenson's Last Chapter.

Robert Louis Stevenson died at Samoa, stricken suddenly down in a day of great heat. He wrote hard all that morning of the last day (Dec. 3, 1894). His half finished book, "Hermiston," he judged the best he had ever written, and the sense of successful effort made him buoyant and happy as nothing else could. "At sunset he came downstairs," says his cousin and biographer, Graham Balfour. "He rallied his wife about the forebodings she could not shake off, talked of a lecture tour to America that he was eager to make, 'as he was now so well,' and played a game at cards with her to drive away her melancholy." He died at 8:10 in the evening of that day in the forty-fifth year of his age.

Another Cause For Joy.

A young woman living in a village near Columbus became engaged recently to a young man. The girl's name for the sake of this tale shall be Jones and that of the young man Jackson. She called at the home of a young matron friend to break the news.

"Oh, I'm so happy!" said the young matron. "And just to think, your embroidery initials won't have to be changed!"—Columbus Dispatch.

Texas Negro Burned At Stake

With 15,000 persons as witnesses, including women and children, Jesse Washington, negro boy, who confessed to the criminal assaulting and murder of Mrs. Lucy Fryar, seven miles south of Waco, Texas, Monday afternoon, was taken from the Fifth District courtroom shortly before noon Monday of last week and burned to death on the public square.

The burning came immediately after the negro's trial had ended. The jury had returned a verdict of guilty, giving him the death penalty. Then some one started the cry of "Get the negro!" It was quickly taken up by all of those from that part of the county where Mrs. Fryar was killed, and Washington was seized.

The mob first wished to hang the negro from the suspension bridge, but the suggestion that he be burned on the plaza met with instant response. He was dragged to the City Hall yard, where the chain, already around his neck, was thrown over the limb of a tree, wood piled around him and the fire started.

CONSERVATION COMMISSION'S SLATE

LeCompte Game Warden, Captain Howard To Head Oyster Navy

The Conservation Commission which was created by an act of the last General Assembly and whose members were recently appointed by Governor Harrington, will organize on June 5, taking over all and additional duties of the Shellfish Commission which will hold its final meeting on May 31. The new commission has agreed upon the following slate:

Chairman, W. Thomas Kemp.
State Game Warden, Lee LeCompte, Dorchester county.

Commander of the Oyster Police Force, T. C. B. Howard, incumbent.

Hydrographic Engineer, Sweps on Earle, incumbent.

Chief Clerk, Samuel T. Harper.

If possible the commission will reappoint other clerks besides Mr. Harper, now in the service of the Shellfish Commission. They are M. H. Gill, Harry C. Linstid and Miss Anna K. Pierson, stenographer.

To the commission from the Board of Public Works has been transferred the election of the deputy commanders, as well as the commander of the oyster police navy. Mr. Kemp said Thursday that none of these appointments had been agreed upon.

The retiring members of the Shellfish Commission, which has been abolished, are: B. K. Green, of Somerset county, Frank S. Revell, of Anne Arundel county, both Democrats, and W. H. Maltbie, of Baltimore, Republican. All the members of the Conservation Commission are Democrats.

Important Notice To Our Subscribers

The greatly increased cost of paper and everything used in the production of a newspaper has forced us to take some action whereby we may make quicker and closer collections. Therefore, after June 1st we will be compelled to discontinue those who keep in arrears. The postal regulations do not permit us to carry those who are more than a year in arrears—look at the date on your paper.

While we know that our subscribers have the best intentions and expect to "pay sometime," we cannot afford, with the present price of printing material, paper, etc., to allow a paper to be mailed after the subscription has become a year in arrears.

We trust that our subscribers will cooperate with us in this matter and send in their remittances promptly so that we may be saved the unpleasant duty of taking their names from our mailing list.

$8,449.85 For An Eye

Hagerstown paid to Walter Crowl, a youth, $8,449.85, representing a judgment and all costs and interest obtained by the boy against the city for the loss of an eye when he was struck by a piece of mortar, where a building was being erected. The plaintiff contended that the sidewalk was not properly barricaded. The case was tried twice and was once carried to the Court of Appeals.

THE ROADSIDE TREE LAW

Its Provisions But Slightly Affected By The Recent Legislation

At its last legislative session the Maryland General Assembly enacted an amendment to the State's Roadside Tree Law as passed by the previous Legislature. This amendment carried a minor modification of the State-wide law that trees belonging within public rights-of-way shall be handled as such, not cut down or indiscriminately trimmed to satisfy the whim of anyone who happens to object to their being beside the roadway, whether the objector were the abutting householder, a professional trimmer, or someone whose wires were in the way of the trees.

The exception states, "That trees standing within the right-of-way or unimproved public roads which have not been surfaced with either stone, shell, gravel, concrete, brick, asphalt, or other improved surface may be cut down and removed by the abutting landowner for his own use without first obtaining a permit." This passage, taken verbatim from the law, defines clearly and exactly the only change made by the Legislature of 1916 since its passage by the body of 1914. This exception was inserted at the instance of the Board of Forestry, which must enforce the law.

Since the enactment of this measure practically the only objection interposed in its application has occurred over the protection accorded trees shading unimproved highways. These latter, of course, seldom traverse the most populous districts, being in consequence not heavily traveled and their appearance more a matter of local than general concern. People residing beside them must therefore look to their appearance and the amendment places the trees of the abutting landowner altogether in his hands, for his own use. The trees lining such roads are very frequently of nearly valueless specimens and species, often as well as being so placed along the narrow roads that occasionally they interfere with the operations of adjoining farmers.

This change cannot detract in the slightest from the proper shading of largely travelled, improved highways, though at the same time it gives to such landowners as may have property rights alongside unimproved highways authority themselves to remove forthwith any offending shade trees, for their own use. At the same time the public, along any roadway—improved or unimproved, macadamized or dirt—will continue to be thoroughly protected in the matter of its shade trees from the operations of persons, not the owners, who for personal reasons might destroy or damage public shade trees.

New Post Office Rules

A notice from the Third Assistant Postmaster General, received was by Postmaster H. L. Brittingham last Tuesday, authorizing him to accept larger postal saving deposits.

This is made possible by an important amendment to the Postal Savings Act just approved by President Wilson. A postal savings depositor may now have an account amounting to $1,000 upon which interest will be paid. Formerly $500 was the maximum amount he could have to his credit. This enlargement of postal savings facilities will be very gratifying to thousands of depositors who have already reached the old $500 limit and are anxious to entrust more of their savings to Uncle Sam. Another feature of the amendment that will avoid further embarrassment to the public and to postal officials is the doing away with the limit on the amount that could be accepted from a depositor monthly.

Under the old law only $100 could be deposited in a calendar month. The amendment abolishes this restriction. While the Postal Savings System has already proved a signal success as is shown by the fact that more than half a million depositors have over eighty million dollars standing to their credit, still it has fallen short of meeting the full demands of the public because of the restrictions which have now been eliminated. Postmaster General Burleson and Third Assistant Postmaster General Dockery have been tireless in their efforts to secure a modification of the limitations and the new liberalizing legislation is particularly gratifying to them.

WASHINGTON ACADEMY COMMENCEMENT

An Interesting Program Presented By The Twelve Graduates

The baccalaureate sermon of the Washington Academy, of Princess Anne, was preached by Rev. W. F. Freund, of Manokin Presbyterian Church on Sunday evening of last week. The sermon was regarded as one of the best of Mr. Freund's efforts. A feature of the occasion was a duet by Misses Frances Alvord and Hilda Carrow.

On Monday evening class day exercises were held at the Auditorium and were most entertaining. The program was as follows:

Class Yell and Class Song.

Class History—Miss Minnie Layfield.

Flower Poem—"Daisy"—Miss Zadieth Reese.

Prophecy—Miss Anna L. H. Fitzgerald.

Class Poem—Miss Sadie Leach.

Scrap Bag—H. Randolph Maddox.

Vocal Solo—Miss Irene Taylor.

Recitation—"Negro Sermon"—Miss Emma Ent.

Class Will—Miss Addie Brown.

Vocal Solo—Mrs. L. C. Beauchamp.

Class Vision—Miss Elinor McAllen.

The exercises were followed by a scarf dance led by Miss Frances Wainwright.

The commencement exercises took place on Tuesday evening at the Auditorium. The program was as follows:

Invocation—Rev. D. J. Givan, pastor of Antioch M. E. Church.

Salutatory—"The Vision of Sir Launfal"—Miss Elinor McAllen.

Address—"Life and Love"—Prof. Sidney S. Handy, of the English Department of St. John's College.

Old Home Prize Essay—"Beckford"—Miss Anna L. H. Fitzgerald.

Presentation of Diplomas—Supt. Wm. H. Dashiell.

Valedictory—"Our Country's Tomorrow"—Miss Mary Stewart Fitzgerald.

It was announced that Misses McAllen and Fitzgerald had both received the same general average. The salutatory and valedictory addresses, therefore, carried with them equal honors.

The members of the graduating class were: Misses Minnie Layfield, Anna Fitzgerald, Elinor McAllen, Emma Ent, Addie Brown, Sadie Leach, Zadieth Reese, Mary Fitzgerald, and Messrs. Hampden H. Dashiell, H. Randolph Maddox, Theodore Bissel and Milton Leake.

On Wednesday evening the Junior Class gave a banquet to the Senior Class at the High School Building. The affair was most tastefully gotten up and was largely attended. The menu was as follows: Grape fruit, chicken croquets, green peas, hot rolls, iced tea, ice cream and cake. Each guest brought a vegetable and a blue ribbon was awarded to Milton Leake for the best one. A vegetable contest was held in which Miss Zadieth Reese received a prize for guessing the largest number of vegetables in answer to the various puzzles. Dancing was then indulged in and the evening concluded with a farewell song to the Seniors, entitled "O Seniors, We Love You." The Seniors responded by singing their Class Song.

THE NEW MARYLAND SCHOOL LAW

Many Changes In The Administration Of Public Schools

The recently revised public school law comes so close to being an absolutely new law we deem it wise to call general notice to its leading changes.

The State Board of Education will now consist of seven members appointed for seven years, one to retire each year.

The State Board of Education and the State Superintendent shall largely control the construction of new school houses.

The State Superintendent shall be appointed by the State Board of Education and not by the Governor as heretofore. In the event that a County Board fails or refuses to obey the law he may order the Comptroller to withhold a part of the State appropriation. He shall also examine the expenditures, business methods and accounts of county school boards, and pass upon the purchase of school lots and plans for new houses.

The County Board shall consolidate schools whenever in their judgment it is practicable, and pay when necessary for the transportation of pupils to and from consolidated schools.

The County Board shall appoint on the recommendation of the County Superintendent all principals and assistant teachers, and on the recommendation of the Superintendent may suspend or dismiss without appeal any teacher.

The County Board may require the County Commissioners to levy annually up to 34 cents on the $100 for school maintenance.

High requirements are laid down for the County Superintendent, whose appointment is subject to confirmation by the State Superintendent. His salary shall not be less than $1800.

There shall also be a "primary-grade supervisor" at a minimum salary of $1100 and "as many additional supervisors as in the Board's judgment are necessary." There shall also be at least one "attendance officer," to compel regular attendance of pupils, his salary to be fixed by the county board and to be not less than $600. There shall also be at least one clerk, to the Board, and such other assistant supervisors, etc., as the Board shall authorize.

All traveling expenses of these officers shall be paid by the Board in addition to their salaries. Liberal chance is given to use schoolhouses for the discussion of public questions.

The certification of teachers after September next shall be a State function, the State Superintendent to furnish uniform questions, and the County Superintendent to be his assistant in conducting examinations. Other important new features are inserted with reference to certificates. Salaries of white teachers of the second grade shall not be less than $300 per annum and shall be paid monthly.

The district school trustees have less authority and control; the County School Commissioners, under the new name of "County Board of Education," possess less power, and the county school superintendent is exalted to the chief figure and central authority in the altered educational system.

There are many more important changes, but the ones noted bear most directly on the body of taxpayers, parents, teachers and pupils.

Government Income Show Gains

Treasury department officials estimate that the Government's receipts in the current fiscal year ending June 30 will be from $90,000,000 to $100,000,000 more than estimated when Congress convened. Revised estimates show the increase approximately as follows: Income tax, from $85,000,000 to $120,000,000, an increase of $35,000,000 from the original estimate; ordinary internal revenue receipts, from $272,000,000 to $305,000,000, an increase of $33,000,000; customs receipts, from $190,000,000 to $215,000,000, an increase of $25,000,000. With these three principal sources of revenue showing an indicated increase of $93,000,000 from the original estimates, officials believe other sources will help bring the total increase close to $100,000,000.

Customs receipts show that the Government already has collected duties aggregating $185,446,442, only $1000 less than the sum collected this time last year, and within $5,500,000 of the sum originally estimated for the entire year. Customs receipts have been steadily rising since December, and now have passed $20,000,000 a month. Continuance of present conditions for another year, officials believe, would result in the customs receipts nearly reaching the level attained before the war.

GENERAL MURRAY VANDIVER DEAD

Democratic State Chairman And Former Treasurer

General Murray Vandiver, chairman of the Democratic State Central Committee and Treasurer of Maryland during eight terms, died at 1.45 o'clock last Tuesday afternoon at the cottage at Blue Ridge Summit which he had taken for the summer in the hope that a long stay in the mountains would restore his strength. The end was expected, for he began sinking a day or two after he reached the mountains on Monday, May 15th. He had been critically ill for weeks, suffering from the liver trouble which had afflicted him for some years, and from tuberculosis, which developed recently. The latter disease was the direct cause of his death.

General Vandiver was 71 years old. He was born at Havre de Grace in 1845, had lived in that town all his life and had done much for its improvement. His home there was a beautiful one. His father was the late Robert E. Vandiver, the family having come originally from Delaware, of which State General Vandiver's forebears were among the earliest settlers. He received his early education in the public schools of Harford county, later went to the Havre de Grace Academy and then took a course in a business college at Poughkeepsie, N. Y., being graduated in 1864.

General Vandiver had been active in Harford county politics for several years prior to his entrance into State affairs as a member of the Legislature of 1876. Singularly enough, he entered that session as an independent. He was again there as a member at the next session, but as a regular, and he had been a regular of the regulars ever since. He was returned to the Legislature in 1880 and again in 1892, and at the session of 1892 was Speaker of the House of Delegates.

He was the author of the charter, which, in 1878, incorporated Havre de Grace, and served as Mayor of the town in 1885 and 1886. In 1888 he became secretary of the Democratic State Central Committee, in which office he continued until 1897, when he was elected chairman and, as stated was chairman when he died.

General Vandiver was a member of the National Democratic Convention of 1892 which nominated Grover Cleveland for the Presidency and was a member of each succeeding convention up to and including that of 1908. He was not chosen a delegate to the Baltimore convention which nominated Woodrow Wilson nor was he chosen for the convention to meet next month in St. Louis.

The only office under the national Government ever held by General Vandiver was that of Internal Revenue Collector, which he occupied for the four years between 1893 and 1897. A little more than two years after he retired from the collectorship he became State Treasurer, and held that office 16 years consecutively, serving under four Governors.

His military title came as a result of his service on the staff of Governor Smith. Gov. Robert M. McLane had appointed him a colonel, but when John Walter Smith was elected Governor he promoted the then Colonel Vandiver to be a general.

With him when he died were his wife, his son Robert, his daughter, Miss Dorothy; Dr. Victor F. Cullen, his attending physician, and John Wagner and Henry Hasenkamp, who had been his devoted personal attaches for years. The body was taken to the Vandiver home in Havre de Grace last Wednesday and the funeral took place on Friday afternoon at 2.30 o'clock at St. John's Protestant Episcopal Church, in Havre de Grace, and was attended by some of the most prominent men of the State, including Governor Harrington. Interment was in Angel Hill Cemetery.

Bankers Elect Officers

With the annual banquet last Thursday the twenty-first session of the Maryland State Bankers' Association was brought to a close at Atlantic City, N. J. Opinion among the members is that it has been the most successful convention of the association, both as to attendance and in the interest and character of the discussions. The following officers were elected and installed:

President, James M. Sloan, president of the Lonaconing Savings Bank; first vice-president, Harry J. Hopkins, president of the Farmers' National Bank, Annapolis; vice-presidents, William E. Brattan, cashier of First National Bank, Snow Hill; Clifton K. Wells, assistant cashier of First National Bank, Baltimore; Francis S. Carmody, president of the Farmers and Merchants' National Bank, Mount Pleasant; Nervin J. Brandt, cashier of First National Bank, Hagerstown; E. E. Reindollar, president of the Birnie Trust Company, Taneytown; Henry B. Reinhardt, cashier of State Bank of Maryland, William H. Conking, president of the Savings Bank of Baltimore; Channing Rudd, Alexander Brown & Sons.

COMMISSION ON OYSTER PLANTING

Chairman Kemp Hints At Lower Rent For Certain Bottoms

W. Thomas Kemp, who is to be the chairman of the Conservation Commission, has had a talk with William H. Killian, one of his colleagues on the Board, concerning the important work that is to be taken up on June 1, when fisheries and game protection will pass under its authority. Asked what the Board contemplated, Mr. Kemp, whose ideas were generally assented to by Mr. Killian, said in part:

"As for oyster planting, in drawing the conservation bill I put into it a provision that the Board should take steps to encourage oyster planting, and this we propose to do. If oysters can be produced on barren bottoms we will do all we can to make it profitable, and to that end I have in mind that in certain areas we should set a lower rental than has heretofore been fixed. The law gives us that right, and we can fix it as low as 25 cents an acre. We should do that to encourage those who are willing to try the thing. There are now about 50 applications for leasing bottoms to be granted as soon as the surveys can be made. And we will protect the planters to the very best of our ability. In the broad areas of the bay this may not be so easy, but in the tributaries there should be no difficulty, and there is where I think planting has the best show.

"Then we should see what can be done on the public bars. In 1914 there was passed an act closing certain depleted natural bars and providing that small oysters from the upper bay should be planted there. This experiment has already been begun by the state and an examination of the oysters so transplanted indicates that the plan will be a success. These reserved areas, aggregating about 1000 acres, will be opened to the public next fall and those who take the oysters will pay a special tax of 5 cents a bushel. I believe that the experiment will bring thousands of dollars to the State.

"It will be difficult to bring about practical result without securing harmony between the planter and the natural-bar oysterman. The latter will not co-operate as long as he believes that the planter is his enemy. So, after we have formulated a policy, we propose to hold meetings in the oyster-producing sections of the State and tell those interested in the industry exactly what we propose to do. We hope thus to bring about their acceptance of the new conditions, but after we have started our policy we are going to enforce it, let the chips fall where they may.

"There has been complaint that the cull law has not been properly enforced. It is specially complained of that it is enforced in some sections when it is not enforced in others. We think we can remedy this—we propose to have it enforced everywhere.

"As to the crab law, that is a new thing in Maryland. We were not able to get through the legislation that we wished owing to opposition from some of the counties. But we have a good law for Somerset county, which produces more than one-half the crabs in the State. This relates to size, while in other counties we have a licensing law without regulation of size. We hope to get better legislation through next time, but in the meanwhile we shall appoint some inspectors to enforce the law.

"We are now preparing forms for the licenses to be sent out to the clerks of the courts in the counties. Mr. Earle, who is to be our chief engineer, has made a study of the crab industry, and we look to him for much assistance. He also has taken up the conservation of the fish industry, and is now getting us information about the fish hatcheries. After we get this we will decide what we shall do in regard to fish propagation. We did not succeed in having the Legislature pass the fishing-net law we wanted. We will go to the next Legislature on this. The fishermen ought to be made pay for the protection they get—the State should not lose money on the proposition but should get some returns."

James W. Upshur Drowned

The body of James Wilmer Upshur, 1732 St. Paul street, Baltimore, who was drowned Sunday night, the 21st, when he fell from a yacht belonging to Joshua Horner, Jr., off Fort Carroll, was shipped to the residence of his uncle, Col. George M. Upshur, at Snow Hill, Md., Wednesday morning. Colonel Upshur was formerly president of the Baltimore Police Board. Miss Belle Upshur, a sister; Levin Upshur, a brother, and Mrs. George B. Pope, an aunt of the deceased, accompanied the body from Baltimore. Funeral services were held in All Hallow's Protestant Episcopal Church, at Snow Hill and the interment was in the cemetery adjoining the church.

A Restoration

By BARBARA PHIPPS

When I was a girl of twelve I one day looked in a mirror and was struck with the difference between my appearance and that of my brothers and sisters. While they resembled one another, I looked like none of them. Their hair and eyes were black; mine was auburn. They were stocky of figure; I was taller than any of them and lithe. Besides these differences, their faces were unrefined; mine, I was pleased to notice, was rather pretty. I was also better dressed than they.

It did not exactly occur to me that I had been born of other parents, but from that time I began to suspect that there was something in me different from what was in them. When I was fourteen my mother, who was as different from me as the others, told me that I must earn by my own living. At the same time she confessed that she was not my mother. She said that when I was a baby I had been given to her to be taken care of, and up to that time a certain sum of money had been paid her regularly for my keep and a specific amount to be spent on my clothes. These payments had been stopped, and this was why I must shift for myself.

Since the day I looked in the glass and discovered the difference between me and the others of the family I gradually lost whatever of affection I had felt for them. When therefore she whom I had supposed to be my mother informed me that I must earn my own living I was content to leave them. I found a position as nursemaid for a little boy two years old and lived in the house where I was employed.

The mother of my charge was kind to me, and one day I told her my story. She was very sympathetic and told me that my experience, together with my appearance and a native refinement there was in me, led her to believe that I was the child of persons of the upper class. This is all she said to me. I wondered if she would not offer to help me find my parents, but she did not. When I spoke of trying to find them she said that it would be like hunting for a needle in a haystack, especially since they did not wish to be found. Were this not so they would seek me. The fact that my allowance had been cut off was especially discouraging.

Had it not been for this last mentioned fact I believe I should have made an effort to find those of my own flesh and blood, though I don't know how I could have made a beginning. As it was, I was obliged to be content with my lot. The only objection to it was that I had a feeling in me that I had been born in a higher sphere than that of nursemaid.

One day when I was seventeen years old my supposed mother came to see me and told me that a great change had taken place with regard to me. She was commissioned to take me to my parents.

"But," she said, "they don't know where you are, and it depends upon me whether you reach them or not. If you go to them you will be rich and can afford to pay me for what I do for you. Here is a note for $10,000, due when you come of age, a year from now. If you will sign it I will not only return you to your parents, but will furnish the evidence that you are their child."

I referred the matter to the father of my charge, and he said that it seemed best that I should sign it. I being a minor, it would not be legal anyway. I signed the note, and the same day the woman drove with me to a handsome house, and on entering I was received by a lady who took me in her arms and wept over me. I had become used to noticing my appearance in contrast with those of my own supposed station, and no sooner did I see this lady than I knew by my resemblance to her that she was my mother. Her hair and mine were the same shade of auburn.

Later a gentleman came and took me on his lap and caressed me. He was my father.

It was many years before I got all the reasons for my having been put in charge of the family with whom I grew up. My father made a clandestine marriage with one to whom his parents were opposed. Soon after I was born my father consented to abjure his wife, and I, when born, was hustled off without its being known to my grandparents that my mother had been married or I born to her. My parents agreed to all this, expecting that it would be temporary. But my grandparents were relentless, and my parents, becoming poorer and poorer, at last were unable to remit my allowance. My grandfather was finally taken ill and on his deathbed relented. He had left his money to charity, but at the last moment changed his will, leaving the property to his son.

Immediately after his death my parents sought me. It turned out that my supposed mother had received $10,000 for my return. The fact that I had also been forced to pay, the same amount was not pleasing to my father, and he threatened to prosecute the woman for fraudulent conduct unless she surrendered the note I had signed. This she did.

For a long while after the great change in my life I could do nothing but think about my newborn happiness, and it seemed that my father and mother were bent on making up the many years they had been deprived of their child by the affection they lavished on me.

All this occurred many years ago. I am now happily married.

Luxury in Puritan Days.

At no time, of course, was luxury completely absent from America. Men spend when the purse is full, even though the purse be small. Not all the sumptuary laws of seventeenth century Massachusetts could prevent sober Puritans from launching into extravagance, from purchasing apparel—"woollen, silke or linnen with lace on it, silver, golde, silke or threed." Even the pious slid back into embroidered doublets with slashed sleeves into "gold or silver girdles, hatt bands, belts, ruffs, beaver hatts," while women of no particular rank appeared in forbidden silk and tiffany hoods. A century later we encounter disapproval of John Hancock's "show of extravagance in living," of his French and English furniture, his dances, dinners, carriages, wine cellars and fine clothes. Washington starved with his soldiers at Valley Forge, but lived like an English gentleman in his home at Mount Vernon. Luxury, pomp, ceremonial were not absent in the eighteenth century.—Walter E. Weyl in Harper's Magazine.

Initiative and Resolution.

Every young man should adopt the I. and R. in his life. That means initiative and resolution. That is, originate something; think up something to do in the world. Don't depend upon others to initiate for you. The world owes no man a living. Every one owes the world a life.

Then there is resolution. That's a man's virtue. It is a man's soul put in action. This sounds like sentiment, but it is solid fact. Half of the social and industrial disasters we experience today in politics, education, commerce and industry is because we practice irresolution and dependence. We will never settle our social and industrial troubles that way. We must think of something else to do, something we can resort to in case of misfortune and disaster. A man should save his earnings and invest them in land, in mine, in shop, in store—something on the outside to take up in times of emergency.—Ohio State Journal.

LET IN THE LIGHT.

Faded Carpets Are Not as Pitiful as Faded Cheeks.

Fresh air enthusiasts are familiar enough to most of us, but we hear less of enthusiasm for light. Darkened parlors, darkened bedrooms, darkened sickrooms are too common.

Sir B. W. Richardson, the eminent London scientist and physician, declared that when the professors of healing enter a sickroom their first words in most cases ought to be Goethe's dying exclamation, "More light, more light!"

The light of the sun is God's own microbe killer, germicide, disinfectant, prophylactic, sickness healer. There is no physician, no chemical antidote, no compounded prescription to be compared with sunlight. Without it nature could not perform her functions. Man, beast, bird, insect would fall victims to the deadly gases that would prevail. The horrid mists and deadly gases are dispersed and decomposed by the action of light.

Let it in, everywhere! Let the light in more and more abundantly. Faded carpets are not as pitiful as faded cheeks. Spoiled cushions are trivial compared with spoiled health. Darkened rooms are too suggestive of darkened lives.—Christian Herald.

On His Guard.

"You say you have quit smoking?"
"Yes; never going to smoke again."
"Then why don't you throw away those cigars?"

"Never! I threw away a box of good cigars the last time I quit smoking, and it taught me a lesson."—Chicago News.

Home Help.

"She froze him with a glance."
The man read this aloud from a novel.

"Try that on the ice cream, my dear," he suggested.—Louisville Courier-Journal.

When death comes it is never our tenderness that we repent of, but our severity.—Elliot.

His Promise.

A Mobile man who was continually hard up had so many notes at the bank he could not leave town except on Sundays and holidays. He had a note falling due every banking day. He dropped into a bank one day and spoke genially to the president.

"I came in to fix up that little matter of mine," he said. "I'd like to renew it for a time."

The bank president had the note on his desk. He picked it up and studied it carefully. "Jim," he finally said, "I don't think this note is made out properly."

"Why not?" asked the alarmed borrower.

"It reads, 'I promise to pay,' not, 'I promise to renew.'"—Saturday Evening Post.

The Proud Beggar.

"I should think a big healthy man such as you would be too proud to beg."

"I am, lady, I am. And when I approached you I said to myself there is a sympathetic, high minded woman who will instantly hearken to an unfortunate man's request and not humiliate him by forcing him to beg for the assistance he so sorely needs."—Detroit Free Press.

BURNED LIME vs. LIME CARBONATE

The greatest authority on lime in the United States, Dr. Cyril G. Hopkins, of the University of Illinois, under date of December 1, 1915, says: "No trustworthy investigations support the use of burned lime in preference to natural lime carbonate, such as ground pulverized shells, limestone or marl. On many soils a moderate use of burned lime, in connection with the liberal use of farm manures, yields profitable returns, which, no doubt, would be still more profitable if the burned lime were replaced with carbonate in equivalent amount and of proper fineness."

Luck.
Luck is that which has made your successful neighbor what he is and has conspired to prevent you from becoming what you would like to be. Luck is good or bad, according to whether you are contemplating your neighbor's success or accounting on your own failures.

Luck is a handy little thing to have around, for if it does not benefit you it at least affords you an objective kicking point. Also, the mere mention of its name relieves you of the necessity of making many embarrassing excuses. Luck is a barb which may prevent disaster from poaching on your domains, but if it does not do this you at least have the satisfaction of impaling upon it all reasons for your defeat.

Luck is perhaps more unlucky than you are.—Judge.

Colds Quickly Relieved

Many people cough and cough—from the beginning of Fall right through to Spring. Others get cold after cold. Take Dr. King's New Discovery and you will get almost immediate relief. It checks your cold, stops the racking, rasping, tissue-tearing cough, heals the inflammation, soothes the raw tubes. Easy to take, Antiseptic and Healing. Get a 50c. bottle of Dr. King's New Discovery and keep it in the house. "It is certainly a great medicine and I keep a bottle of it continually on hand" writes W. C. Jessemann, Franconia, N. H. Money back if not satisfied but it nearly always helps. 1 [Advertisement]

Death.
Death, the dry pedant, spares neither the rose nor the thistle, nor does he forget the solitary blade of grass in the distant waste. He destroys thoroughly and unceasingly. Everywhere we may see how he crushes to dust plants and beasts, men and their works. Even the Egyptian pyramids, that would seem to defy him, are trophies of his power, monuments of decay, graves of primeval kings.—Heinrich Heine.

Simple.
"Those twin boys of yours are so much alike that I don't see how you can tell them apart."

"That's easy enough. When they're on their good behavior they answer to their own names, and when they've been in mischief each one answers to the name of the other."—New Orleans Times-Picayune.

That Was All.
"Maria," demanded Mr. Billus in a loud voice, "what have you been doing to my razor?"

"Nothing," said Mrs. Billus, "except sharpening it again after shaving Fido's tail with it. It's all right, isn't it?"—Exchange.

Courtesy.
Courtesy in the mistress of a house consists in feeding conversation, never in usurping it. She is the guardian of this species of sacred fire, but it must be accessible to all.—Mme. Swetchine.

LIKE A TINY SOLAR SYSTEM.

Power and Possibilities That Are Locked In an Atom.

The most generally accepted theory about the structure of the atom—which is no longer regarded as the ultimate indivisible particle of any element, as this of course could have no structure—is that it is a positively charged nucleus surrounded by a system of electrons which are kept together by attractive forces from the nucleus. Thus it becomes a sort of infinitesimally small solar system.

In an article in the General Electric Review Dr. Saul Dushman draws the following conclusions from a discussion of the laws that govern the atoms of the several elements:

"Considering the relationships exhibited by the different radioactive elements, one realizes that the dream of the alchemists may not have been as fatuous as has appeared until recently. The concept of an absolutely stable atom must be discarded once for all, and its place is taken by this miniature solar system, as it were, consisting of a central nucleus and one or more rings of electrons.

"But the nucleus itself is apparently the seat of immense forces, and in spite of its exceedingly infinitesimal dimensions it contains both alpha particles and electrons. Once in awhile the nucleus of one of the atoms will spontaneously disintegrate and expel an alpha or beta particle. A new element has been born. What causes these transformations? Can they be controlled? These are questions which only the future can answer. But if we had it in our power to remove two alpha particles from the atom of bismuth or any of its isotopes, not only would the dream of the alchemists be realized, but man would be in possession of such intensely powerful sources of energy that all our coal mines, water powers and explosives would become insignificant by comparison."

SEEMED TO RAIN FIRE.

When a Startling Meteoric Shower Scared Folks in 1833.

In Scharf's "Chronicles of Baltimore" there is a vivid description of the starry hailstorm, the fiery meteoric shower, of 1833, and old files of newspapers are made luminous at that date with the impressions of editors and contributors.

One writer said it was the grandest and most charming sight ever presented to the vision of man. Awakened from sleep, he sprang to the window, thinking the house was on fire, but when he looked out he beheld stars, or fiery bodies, descending like "torrents." "The shed in the adjoining yard to my own," he wrote, "was covered with stars, as I supposed, during the whole time."

Professor Olmstead of Yale college thought that the exhibition was the finest display of celestial fireworks that had been witnessed since the creation of the world, although he, too, while knowing its character, was sufficiently imbued with the theological spirit of the time to believe that it was a solemn portent that carried a divine warning.

One editor whose comment upon this phenomenon was probably more quoted than any other he ever made said: "We pronounce the raining fire which we saw on Wednesday morning an awful type, a forerunner, a mercurial sign of that great and dreadful day which the inhabitants of the earth will witness when the sixth seal will be opened. Many things occurring in the earth tend to convince us that we are now in the latter days."

A Widow at Nine.

Marriage at the age of thirteen, as in the case of a woman who has just died at Shoreditch, would not have been regarded as extraordinary in the seventeenth century. In those days children of noble families, particularly wards in chancery, were frequently wedded at the age of nine and sometimes even at five. Little Moll Villiers, the Duke of Buckingham's daughter, was not merely a wife, but a widow, at nine, and we read of her romping in the garden and climbing cherry trees in her widow's veil. In almost every instance, however, such marriages were in name only, and the little wives were allowed to reach their teens before taking up the burdens of wedded life.—London Telegraph.

Office Ornaments.

"Yes, ma'am," commented the office factotum whom long tenure of office had made a bit censorious, "some of these here young ladies about this office does precious little work. They seems to think they're intended for office ornaments."

Then, seeing a shade cross the lady manager's face, he hastened to add reassuringly, "But, ma'am, you ain't no ornament."

Reunited the Rock.

Martha's Vineyard, on the Atlantic coast, for long has had a split rock as a landmark. Then the action of the waves in continually washing through the cleft sucked out the sand and allowed the tops of the two pieces to come together again after being separated for years.—Indianapolis News.

"Lucky at cards, unlucky at love," quoted the wise guy.
"Well, either is simply a case of holding hands," said the simple mug.—Philadelphia Record.

Keep Your Home Free of Filthy Disease-Breeding Flies

You need not be troubled this summer with flies or mosquitoes—you need not face the danger of the disease these nasty vermin carry—you need not have the annoyance they cause, no need to keep everlastingly and ineffectually swatting, swatting.

Bee Brand Insect Powder

is the natural enemy of flies and all other vermin, though it is absolutely harmless to human beings and their pets.

It is easy to use—you need only close all doors and windows, fan it into the air and the flies (or other flying insects) die in just a few minutes.

Bee Brand Insect Powder is invaluable in many other ways. Sprinkle it around the stoves, under sinks, in cupboards, cracks and dark corners and death awaits all crawling insects that approach. It is sure death to roaches, ants, water bugs, flies, fleas, mosquitoes, plant lice, chicken lice, moths, etc. Used as a moth preventive, it is ideal and leaves no bad odors to be "aired out." Put it on the household pets and see the fleas fly.

THE GRADUATION SEASON

The public schools of this county closed on Friday last. Commencement exercises were held at the various High Schools and fifty young people received their diplomas the early part of last week. The career of these young graduates will be watched with interest. Whether they will enter college in the fall or at once pursue some active business work, waits to be seen. Our best wishes go to all of them. The various elementary schools also held their closing exercises. Pupils will now have a recreative vacation of several months.

The closing of the schools is another instance of the passing years. It seems but yesterday when the adults of the present generation were pupils and graduates. We thus live our lives over and childhood recollections, refreshed by the various commencements, are replete with fondness. The opportunities now afforded young people far surpass those of former years. Education is getting upon an extended basis. The new State school law is expected to make still further extensions. The idea therein involved is for progressive action on the part of instructors. They will be expected to fulfill many obligations that will bring them into closer relations to their pupils that will aid in developing better educational methods.

The appeal is therefore to instructors and pupils, the former to improve in their profession and the latter to obey the legal regulation of attending school. If this appeal is heeded future years may be expected to secure for us better teachers and more faithful pupils. At this time, however, we can do no more than review the past and hopefully look forward to better things for the coming years.

General Murray Vandiver

Maryland politics and the Democratic party have lost a figure that for half a century has stood out strikingly in the political movements of the State. As such, Gen. Murray Vandiver will be held in recollection by his associates. Both as chairman of the Democratic State Central Committee and when State Treasurer Mr. Vandiver occupied a conspicuous field and exercised influence in the affairs of his party. The two places he occupied through a course of years and during this time no taint affected his honor. The integrity of Mr. Vandiver was not merely personal but an appreciated asset to his party. A man of fine hospitality, a Marylander possessing much of the full flavor of the term and a man of excellent companionship, Mr. Vandiver out of the circle of politics was appreciated by very many who did not hold with him in his political affiliations.

Passing from the stage of time at a ripe age and surrounded with the appurtenances of comfort, General Vandiver had much for which to be thankful and he evinced in many ways his gratification over the possession of the elements of creature comfort and the possession of coveted friendships. Vigorous in interest in public affairs almost up to the last, General Vandiver must be rated as a peculiarly keen and alert character and his party was made his debtor for many services of counsel and direction.—Baltimore American.

Can A Snapper Bite?

This interesting question is to be judicially determined by the outcome of an action for damages now being tried in a court at New Orleans. The plaintiff, while passing the store of the defendant, was severely nipped on the leg by a snapping turtle, and instituted proceedings for remuneration. The defendant's lawyers raised the novel defence that the plaintiff's allegation was incorrect, as a snapper, having no teeth, could not bite. But the plaintiff displayed a wound that proved the capacity of the reptile to at least do grievous injury.

Maybe a snapper cannot "bite," in the lawful definition of the word, but it can do much worse. It can take a grip with its jaws that it is difficult to break even after its head has been severed. And in making its snap, it can put into its eyes a glare of hate and ferocity not exceeded by the most savage of wild beasts. It is fairly terrifying.—Wilmington Every Evening.

Hicks' Forecasts for June

A regular storm period is central on the 4th, extending from about the 2d to the 7th. The perturbing powers of the June, or summer solstice, will begin its work at this period, and with the Moon at first quarter and on the celestial equator on the 8th, disturbances will continue out of their normal limits, and possibly into the following storm period. From the 3rd to the 6th of June, we find the Moon in conjunction with Saturn and Venus on the 3rd, with Neptune on the 4th, and with Mars on the 6th. Also, the planet Mercury is at inferior conjunction with Earth and Sun, that is between Earth and Sun, on the 5th, and in aphelion, or furthest from the Sun on the 6th. Just how far, or in what particular way, this peculiar bunching of astronomical phenomena may affect storms, weather and other meteorological disturbances, is highly problematical.

A reactionary storm period runs from the 9th to the 12th. This involves the annual electric and magnetic crisis, which is at its center every year on and about June 11th. About this time, annually, the whole Earth, clouds, and even the upper ether becomes supercharged with magnetism and electricity, so that an excess of lightning is everywhere manifest throughout the nights. This condition, as a rule, continues all through the month of June.

A regular storm period is central on the 16th, embracing the 14th to the 19th. This period is shown by the storm diagram to be co-incident with the center of the summer solstice. The Moon is in opposition with Earth and Sun, and at greatest declination south on the 15th, and in perigee, or nearest the Earth, on the 16th.

A reactionary storm period is central on Wednesday, Thursday and Friday, the 21st, 22nd and 23rd. The Earth is at its "turning point" on the 21st, with Moon on the celestial equator on the same day. It is at last quarter on the 22nd, coincident with a very close conjunction of Saturn and Venus on the same day. The conjunction of the Moon with the planet Jupiter on the 24th, may also be considered among the astronomical causes which affect the elements about this time.

A regular storm period is central on the 27th, reaching from the 25th to the 30th. The solstice period comes to an end, and the Mercury period begins about the 28th, or at the center of this volcanic period. On and touching Tuesday, Wednesday, Thursday and Friday, the 27th to the 30th, the storms of this period will reach a crisis; a day or two earlier or later, in proportion as localities and sections lie east or west of each other. The Mercury influence will extend up to about the 10th of July, increasing the tendency to prolonged cloudiness and promise of adequate rainfall generally.

If Mr. Bryan should consent to run as the Prohibition candidate for President, it might relieve him as well as the Democratic party of considerable embarrassment. His conscience would not be hurt by having to support a party which has failed to come out positively in favor of milk and water as the only beverages and which had refused to endorse his peace prescriptions. What a brilliant campaign he could make against alcohol and war! And what inspiration it would give him for future Chautauques! We are afraid the report that he may accept is too good to be true.—Baltimore Sun.

TUESDAY, JUNE 20TH, 1916,

at or about the hour of 2:30 o'clock p. m., all that valuable farm in West Princess Anne District, Somerset County, Maryland, on the northwest side of the new county road leading from Princess Anne to the Revell's Neck road, containing more or less, of which about 50 acres are high land and the balance marsh land, adjoining the land of Charles C. Gelder and the land of William Wetter and wife, whereon the late Peter C. Goble resided at the time of his death, and also a parcel of detached woodland on the southeast side of said county road, containing 8½ acres, more or less, adjoining the land of Charles C. Gelder and used in connection with said farm.

This farm is improved by a dwelling house, barn and outbuildings. A plot of both parcels will be exhibited on the day of sale and can be seen in the meantime at the office of the trustee, in Princess Anne, Md.

This property will be sold subject to the dower interest of Maria C. Goble, widow of Peter C. Goble, therein, and also subject to the tenancy of Joseph Warwick for the year 1916; possession to be given on the 1st of January, 1917, and all crops to be harvested in the present year are reserved.

TERMS OF SALE—One-third cash on the day of sale, and the balance in two equal installments of six and twelve months from the day of sale, to be secured by the bond of the purchaser with approved security, bearing interest from the day of sale, or all cash at the option of the purchaser. H. FILLMORE LANKFORD, Trustee.

Thirty-Three Senators To Be Elected

Thirty-three Senators are to be elected, of whom 18 are Democrats and 15 are Republicans. The United States Senate now stands 56 Democrats and 40 Republicans, and therefore to win control of this branch of Congress the Republicans must hold all their present seats and gain at least eight. This can never be done if there is a three-cornered fight, the Progressives declare, and they are holding out to the State delegations the lure of a combination on their nominees for Senators as a fair exchange for votes in the Chicago Convention.

It is conceded that in Wyoming and Wisconsin the Republican situation is doubtful, and therefore if the Republicans are to have Congress back of their President, assuming the Chicago nominee is sure of winning if he is Mr. Roosevelt, there must be a combination on the State tickets. This proposition of the Progressives will be put out formally within a few days.—New York Herald.

Blue Laws Are Indeed Blue

From the Baltimore Star of May 24. Last Sunday the little town of Annapolis suffered from the enforcement of some old blue laws.

In Philadelphia a flower show was closed on Sunday because viewing these most beautiful of God's works was against other old blue laws.

In New York the National Guardsmen were prevented firing a shot in a patriotic demonstration planned for a recent Sunday.

Truly, the shades of our Puritanic forefathers are long ones and most depressing one at that.

Whatever other virtues they might have had, it is impossible to describe the old gentlemen as being progressive.

MR. J. DOUGLASS WALLOP FOR TOWN COMMISSIONER

Endorsed By Members Of The Princess Anne Volunteer Fire Company

The undersigned members of the Princess Anne Fire Company do earnestly recommend to the voters of Princess Anne Mr. J. Douglass Wallop for Town Commissioner, to be voted for at the election on Monday, June 5th, 1916, believing that no citizen of Princess Anne would more sincerely and successfully promote the welfare of our Fire Company and of our town. We take this method of expressing our view because Mr. Wallop was endorsed as our candidate at a regular meeting of the Company and a committee was then appointed to wait upon him and secure his consent but failed to notify Mr. Wallop of such action of the Company, and we learn that the committee instead of carrying out the wishes of our Company as so expressed at such meeting is now seeking to wrongfully create the impression that our company is for another candidate which we protest is not the fact, as from the endorsement in meeting referred to we had supposed it was the intention of all of our members to support Mr. Wallop.

In the interest of the Princess Anne Volunteer Fire Company, we desire to present to the voters of Princess Anne the name of Mr. William P. Todd, as a candidate for the office of Town Commissioner, subject to the election of June 5th, 1916.

TIRES OF A MOTORCAR.

Why They Are Found Heated After a Long and Fast Run.

It is well known that after a long and fast run the tires of an automobile are found to be very hot, and many have supposed this is the result of the friction of the tire on the road. The Scientific American says that such is not the case, at least as to the greater portion of the heat.

"The real cause of heating," says that magazine, "is the internal friction of the tire itself, for as the tire is being constantly deflected by contact with the road the various piles, or layers, which compose the tire do not act uniformly, and consequently there is more or less motion between them that results in friction and heat. The greater the change in shape in the tire as it contacts with the road the greater will be the friction."

"Of course the harder the tire is pumped the less will be the friction, but it is evident that, while a perfectly rigid tire would generate but little heat, it would fall in giving easy riding. So we must put up with some heating and consequent wear of the tire. The subject is one that is being successfully studied by the tire-maker."

Hanged the Clever Forger.

Of curious petitions against the death penalty being enforced one recalls the eighteenth century case of William Lyland, who was sentenced for forging a bill for $7,114 on the East India House. The forgery was a work of art. No less than thirty signatures were imitated, and at the trial not one of the victims could swear that the signature was not his own. However, with the help of the paper manufacturers Ryland's guilt was brought home. Then came the petition of his friends. So clever a man ought never to be hanged, they pleaded. His craftsmanship should save him. It gained him a respite. He was allowed to finish a fine engraving he had begun, but nothing more. Though the engraver was a favorite of George III., that king quite failed to see how a forgery could be excused on the ground that it was a clever forgery. — Pall Mall Gazette.

SOWING TIMOTHY AND CLOVER.

Unquestionably the most ideal plan of sowing timothy and clover is to put in the nurse crop with a drill after properly preparing the soil and at the same time using a grass seeder attachment. When this plan is followed the grass seed will be scattered between the grain rows and the disk drill will cover the seed sufficiently, but it will not bury it deeply enough so that the plants will never get through the surface. There is some advantage in having grass seed come up between the rows of grain, because in that case the soil from which the timothy and clover draw their nourishment is not so thoroughly dried out as it is in the immediate vicinity of the rows of grain.

In some cases the plan is followed of harrowing drilled grain at least once after sowing, the theory of this being to more completely distribute the grass seed and, furthermore, to uncover that part of it that may have become embedded too deeply and thereby insure a more uniform growth. In any event, let it be understood that more mistakes are made in uncovering grass seed than in covering it too deeply. A few days of warm weather in the spring will dry out the surface half inch of soil, and no plant can germinate in a dry seed bed. On general principles we believe in getting it down where the soil is moist, and moist long enough so that there is plenty of time to insure germination. — Iowa Homestead.

FIRST TELEGRAPH MESSAGE.

It Was "Attention the Universe, by Kingdoms Right Wheel!"

A correspondent of the Youth's Companion, a son of Alfred Vail, whose very important share in making the telegraph practically successful has not been generally recognized, writes to say that the very first message to pass over electrically charged wires was sent early in 1838, when the new invention was exhibited first at Morristown, in New Jersey, where Vail lived, and later in New York.

On Jan. 11 at the Speedwell Iron works in Morristown a party of interested friends met to see the telegraph tried.

"It was in the upper room of the old factory building," wrote Vail in his journal. "A wire was hung round the room two miles in length. At one end of the wire was a battery; at the other was a small frame, on which was a sheet of writing paper. The battery communicated the contents of a note written by one of the ladies present through the wire by means of spaces and lines, which Professor Morse translated into English. At that time the registering machine printed signs that stood for the ten numerical digits, and these numbers were translated into words by means of a bulky dictionary compiled by Professor Morse, in which each word was represented by a combination of figures."

By Jan. 24 of that year, however, when the invention was shown in New York, the dots and dashes were arranged to signify letters, according to a plan of Vail's, and the cumbersome dictionary was discarded.

The first message sent that day, according to Vail, was, "Attention the universe, by kingdoms right wheel!" The original record is now at the Smithsonian Institution in Washington. Each character has under it the corresponding letter written in pencil by Alfred Vail. It was five years before money enough could be got to show the telegraph on a really large scale, and during all those years Vail was active in improving the telegraphic instrument as a means both of sending and of recording messages. Almost all the essential parts of the instrument in use today are the result of Vail's unusual mechanical ingenuity.

Don't Talk Too Much.

Recently a voluble salesman was trying to close a deal with a good customer. The salesman was doing all the talking, and the buyer was becoming not a little annoyed. Several times the customer started to speak, but the salesman would choke him off and start on another line of argument. Finally the manager saw what was up and suggested to the seller that he allow the buyer to say something. This the buyer did and quickly. He said that he had been trying for half an hour to tell the salesman that he would take the goods. — Farm Machinery.

THE GERMAN FARMER.

His Interests Carefully Looked After by His Government.

The interests of the farmer are as carefully conserved in Germany as those of the city dweller, for the farmer is a most important factor in preparedness. The German government has paid out hundreds of millions of dollars in subsidies for the farmer. It has subsidized an army of chemists to increase the fertility of his fields. A model system of inland waterways, run in collaboration with the railways, assures him cheap transportation. In times of stress special railroad rates are granted to save him from disaster. Expert personal advice is furnished for his smallest problems, and care is taken to insure a ready market for his products. Co-operative associations provide for the small farmer the most modern machinery at a moderate rental. If he has to borrow money on mortgage or to make a short term loan to get in his crop a system of land bank associations assures him easy terms. He pays between 3 and 4 per cent for his money on mortgage and about 5 per cent on short loans.

The American farmer who can obtain money at double the German rate is lucky. We permit a chaotic system of distribution whereby the farmer gets only a third of the value of his product, the rest being swallowed up in transportation charges and by the numerous middlemen.

The result is that while Germany has doubled her agricultural production in twenty years, with virtually no increase in acreage, we have been declining steadily to agricultural unpreparedness. The German farmer's acre of worn-out soil has been made to yield twice the product of our young field.—Century Magazine.

Lath Shades in Plant Growing.

It is often necessary to shade seedlings and small or delicate plants from sun and wind. Among the best devices is a shade made from laths, as shown herewith. Preferably the outside pieces are thicker than ordinary laths, so as to hold the nails well and to prevent splitting. The easiest way to make such shades is to place the laths on a smooth, level floor, touching each other and with the frame pieces on the outsides. Then the first cross-piece at one end is laid on the laths and nails are driven through each alternate lath. Then laths are laid

WRITTEN IN GOLD.

Codex Aureus, the Most Wonderful of All Printed Bibles.

You are wont to think of the Bible as the King James version, with which you have been familiar from your childhood. Do you know what the bibliophile regards as the most wonderful Bible in the world?

It is known as the Codex Aureus, or golden codex, because the lettering is all laid on the parchment in pure gold. It is of value for a totally different reason, however. It is written in the Gothic tongue, and a notation on it which bears the date 840 A. D. calls it an ancient manuscript, even at that time. It consists of large portions of the four gospels and is of the greatest value to scholars because it has preserved so much of that long dead language.

A much more spectacular copy of the Scriptures is the one that is known as the "devil's Bible," one of the famous things to see in the city of Stockholm, Sweden. It rests on a large table in the Royal Library, and it is a remarkable work of art.

Its origin is enshrouded in traditions, no two of which agree in the least. It was brought to Sweden from a convent in Bohemia as a part of the loot after the thirty years' war and was probably the life work of dozens of consecrated monks. It is not on ordinary parchment, but the lettering was applied on the secretly treated skins of 300 asses, and the process of treating the skins is a lost art. The frontispiece looks like the portrait of the devil; hence the name.—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

The next move is to nail each alternate one of these latter laths at its ends to the crosspieces beneath. The last piece to be nailed is the thick crosspiece at the opposite end from the starting point. Through this each alternate lath below should be nailed. All that is then necessary is to overturn the frame, when the unnailed pieces will drop out and leave the shade as in the drawing.

This way of managing is easier than to measure the distance between laths as each one is nailed. It is a good plan to use nails one-fourth or one-half inch longer than will go through the wood and to clinch the ends by bending them over by blows with a hammer. To do this the frame must be turned over and placed on an anvil, a bench or some other solid body.—Orange Judd Farmer.

Dangers Of Draft

Drafts feel best when we are hot and perspiring, just when they are most dangerous and the result in Neuralgia, Stiff Neck, Sore Muscles or sometimes an attack of Rheumatism. In such cases apply Sloan's Liniment. It stimulates circulation to the sore and painful part. The blood flows freely and in a short time the stiffness and pain leaves. Those suffering from Neuralgia or Neuragic Headache will find one or two applications of Sloan's Liniment will give grateful relief. The agonizing pain gives way to a tingling sensation of comfort and warmth and quiet rest and sleep is possible. Good for Neuritis too. Price 25c, at your Druggist.

Don't Like The Primary Law

After one trial, the voters of Pennsylvania are expressing great dissatisfaction over the State Primary Election Law. They find it unsatisfactory in its operations, cumbersome in its details, and dilatory in its machinery for ascertaining the result. It is not yet actually known, more than a week after the primary election, who have been chosen delegates to the national convention in some instances, and in the event of close votes and contests, the result could not be legally determined until after the convention had adjourned.

The trouble with State primaries is that they are too large and cumbersome to be effectively handled, especially when only one day is allowed for the primaries of all the parties. And complicated machinery for voting causes vexation and delay. This has been the experience in every large State where they have been held, and Pennsylvania seems to be about the "worst example." Already there is talk of having the law changed at the next session of the Legislature.

Legalized popular primaries are admirable for small voting communities, but they cannot be successfully applied to large ones. For the latter, the convention system stands forth as the best method of making party nominations. —Wilmington Every Evening.

A Symbol Of Health

The Pythagorians of Ancient Greece ate simple food, practiced temperance and purity. As a badge they used the five pointed star which they regarded as a symbol of health. A red five pointed star appears on each package of Chamberlain's Tablets, and still fulfills its ancient mission as a symbol of health. If you are troubled with indigestion, biliousness or constipation, get a package of these tablets from your druggist. You will be surprised at the quick relief which they afford. Obtainable everywhere.

Rheumatism

If you are troubled with chronic or muscular rheumatism give Chamberlain's Liniment a trial. The relief from pain which it affords is alone worth many times its cost. Obtainable everywhere.
