It was estimated officially that there were 12,000,000 subscribers to the loan. Nearly 60 per cent. of the total—$2,668,154,850—was taken in subscriptions of $10,000 or less.

Tull-Hartzell Wedding

The wedding of Mrs. Mary McCandlish Hartzell and Mr. Gordon Tull was quietly solemnized last Thursday morning at 6 o'clock at the home of the bride's mother, Mrs. William McCandlish. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Henry E. Spears, rector of Somerset Parish, in the presence of the family and Mr. and Mrs. Aden Davis, of Marion Station, Mrs. Davis being a sister of the groom.

There were no invitations sent out in the county, and few of their friends in the town knew of the marriage until after the wedding breakfast was served, when Mr. and Mrs. Davis, accompanied by the bride and groom, left in an automobile for Salisbury, where Mr. and Mrs. Tull took the early morning train for Baltimore, from where they will return to their home in Cambridge last Friday for Boston, Mass. After a tour of some weeks they will return and make their home in Princess Anne.

Mr. Tull is a member of one of the oldest and most prominent families in the lower part of the county. He has been three times elected State's Attorney for Somerset county—first in 1896, again in 1908, succeeding himself in 1912. He came to Princess Anne and began the practice of law in 1894, since which time he has built up a good reputation as a general practitioner, and has been a great favorite in our local society. We extend congratulations to the happy couple.

Club Winners Get a Free Trip

The winners of the Boys' Agricultural Club contest, conducted in the county last season by County Agent C. Z. Keller, started Monday last week on a week's trip to the Maryland State College and Washington.

The club winners of all the counties in Maryland spent a week at the college and received agricultural instruction which was of interest to the boys. A side trip had also been arranged to Washington, where various places of interest were visited.

The boys who took the trip from Somerset county were, Howard Jones, of Kingston, winner of the fat pig contest; Wilfred Frodlich, of Crisfield, winner of the corn contest, and Lewis Scheiding, of Westover, who finished second in the potato contest, and was substituted for Norman Landon, of Marion, winner of the potato contest, who was unable to take the trip on account of the strawberry season.

All the expenses of the boys were paid and it was a splendid prize for their faithful work in the club contests. Competition for the contests will be keen this year, as over 180 boys have already enrolled in the Corn, Potato, Fat Pig and Registered Pig Clubs in this county.

Election Supervisors Meet

Last Wednesday afternoon the Board of Election Supervisors met at their office in the Court House for the purpose of approving bills and the transference of other business. While a large number of bills were on file, it was found that many of the election judges, clerks and registrars who served in the last election had not filed their bills. In order to be passed in time for the coming levy it will be necessary for all bills to be in the hands of the Supervisors not later than next Tuesday—June 10th.

Ever notice that the things that can't possibly happen are invariably the things that do?

EPISCOPAL DIOCESAN CONVENTION

Will Discuss Nation-Wide Campaign At Elkton Today

The program of the Nation-wide Campaign of the Protestant Episcopal Church undertaken for the expansion of the activities of the church at home and abroad, will be presented to the convention of the Diocese of Easton, which will be held in Elkton today (Tuesday), by the Rev. Charles E. Betticher, of New York City, Editorial, Secretary of the Board of Missions.

Since the preliminary announcement of the plans of the Board of Missions of the Episcopal Church for a great awakening to the problems of reconstruction, a large majority of the bishops of the church have pledged their support to the movement. The program has been presented to numerous diocesan conventions in the last few weeks and in every case the response has been emphasized by the appointment of a campaign committee. It is expected that such a committee will be organized in the Diocese of Easton as a result of the Rev. Mr. Betticher's address to the convention.

Broadly speaking, the program of the campaign falls into four distinct purposes, which are: To bring the spiritual power of the church to bear upon the church's whole task; to obtain and train an adequate number of recruits for Christian leadership, both clerical and lay; to care, on a yearly basis for three years, for the financial needs of all the general agencies of the church, and in connection with the proper authorities to care for the financial needs of all the Provinces, Dioceses and Missionary Districts of a missionary, religious-education or social service nature.

High School Commencement

The graduation exercises of the class of 1919, of Washington High School, were held in the Auditorium last Thursday night. A large audience was in attendance and the graduates have been highly complimented. The exercises throughout were among the best that the graduates from Washington High School have presented in a number of years. Those who graduated were:

Misses Grace Lee Alder, Elizabeth Blaine Anderson, Dorothy Berrien Baum, Alice Gale Fitzgerald, Mary Louise Fitzgerald, Olive Lavinia Hayman, Elizabeth Frances Jones, Clara Morris Lankford, Emily Lankford Layfield, Anna Hitch Phillips, Dorothy Elizabeth Smith and Messrs. Benjamin Lankford Barnes, Howard Everett Cannon, Stephen Warfield Dashiell, Thomas Henry Fitzgerald, Milton Mingis Holden.

The program follows: Opening prayer, Rev. Leolan Jackson; Old Home Prize essay, "Teackle Mansion, a Home of the Eastern Shore," and salutatory address, Dorothy Berrien Baum; Old Home Prize essay, "The Eastern Shore the Garden Spot of the World," Clara Morris Lankford; address, Prof. G. J. Shultz, instructor in history and political economy, Maryland State College; solo, Mrs. L. Creston Beauchamp; award of Old Home Prizes and diplomas, Superintendent W. H. Dashiell; essay, "France of To-day" and valedictory address, Mary Louise Fitzgerald.

The exercises were interspersed with music by Mr. Kennerly, corneter, and Miss Jacobs, violinist, both of Salisbury; Mr. C. C. Evans, bass violinist, and Mrs. J. D. Wallop, pianist. The numbers rendered were highly appreciated and did much toward making the occasion an enjoyable affair.

Death of John F. Swartz

Friends and relatives were shocked to learn of the sudden and untimely death of Mr. J. F. Swartz, a former resident of this county, but who had been making his home in Florida for the past few years. A letter from Florida to one of the children, who had made inquiry about her father, from whom they had heard nothing since April 10th, stated that Mr. Swartz's body had been found at Deland, about 30 miles from his boarding place, and also stated that the result of the inquest held over him proved conclusively that heart failure was the cause of death.

His son, Mr. Fred Swartz, went to Florida, had the body exhumed and brought to Princess Anne, where the interment was made in the Presbyterian Cemetery last Tuesday morning. Services were conducted by the Rev. Leolan Jackson and Manokin Lodge, No. 106, A. F. & A. M., of which he was a member. Mr. Swartz was about 75 years old. He is survived by one son, Mr. Fred Swartz, and five daughters, Mrs. Thomas Phoebus, Mrs. Sallie Muir, Mrs. Mamie McDorman, Mrs. Sena Murrell and Mrs. Helen Waller.

It is more than likely that the suffrage amendment will be approved by the States in time to allow the women to participate in the election of a President in 1920.

Pearse-Reddington Marriage

"Pine Knob," the beautiful rural home of Mrs. F. E. Pearse, was the scene of an important and interesting wedding on Saturday, when Mr. Thomas E. Pearse, of Peterboro, Ontario, Canada, took as his wife Mrs. Anne Platt Reddington, formerly of Richmond, Va., but who has been living here for about a year at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. George L. Brewington. The Rev. Henry E. Spears, Rector of Somerset Parish, solemnized the marriage.

Mr. Pearse has for years lived on this side of the water and is the son of the Hon. Edgemoor Pearse, of Ontario, Canada, and is at present living at Newport News, Va., where he has a very important engineering project to put through for that city. Mrs. Pearse is the grand-daughter of a former Presbyterian divine of Richmond, Va., where she made her first marriage to Mr. Thomas O. Parker, of South Carolina, a grandson of Edward Rutledge, a signer of the Declaration of Independence. Mrs. Pearse is also the niece of the late Senator Platt, of New York, and a sister of Mrs. C. M. Covington, of Pensacola, Florida, who was a charming and welcome guest at Mrs. Brewington's early part of May.

Mr. and Mrs. Pearse were married at 4 o'clock in the afternoon and took the 7:53 p. m. train for Cape Charles, where they boarded a boat, traveling all the way to Canada by water, going up the Hudson river and stopping at this and that historic point, as suits their pleasure, until within a few miles of Peterboro, Ontario, where they will be present at the near-at-hand marriage of the groom's sister, Miss Lillian Pearse, to a prominent lawyer of Peterboro, at which the Dean of Peterboro Cathedral will officiate.

After the ceremony at "Pine Knob" and the bride and groom had added their names to the register of Somerset Parish, a daintily prepared wedding feast was served by the gracious hostess of "Pine Knob." As both Mr. and Mrs. Pearse had borne marital bereavements there were no out-of-town guests. The marriage took place on the lawn and all present, in due time, bade the newly-married pair their hearty God-speed, and wishes for a long and happy married life.

Shore Towns Want Cannon

Representative Andrews introduced in the House last week a bill for the erection of a public building at Easton, Md., to cost $90,000. Also bills authorizing the Secretary of War to donate one captured German cannon or field piece each to the following Maryland municipalities: Salisbury, Snow Hill, Elkton, Denton, Chestertown, Centerville and Cambridge.

Mr. and Mrs. George W. Maslin spent a few days in Baltimore last week.

LOCUSTS WILL HURT FRUIT CROP

Shortage Is To Be Expected On Account Of The 17-Year Pests

A shortage in the apple, peach and other heavy fruit crops is to be expected as a result of the visitation of the 17-year locusts, according to State Forester Frederick W. Besley, who has returned from an inspection tour of the Patuxent State Forest Preserve. During his trip Mr. Besley observed the numbers of the insects infesting the State woodland and said that the present brood promises to be as great as that of 17 years ago.

The general impression that the 17-year locusts do great damage to crops is wrong and should be corrected," said Mr. Besley. "The larvae of the locust while underground eat the tender roots of green plants, but the damage from this source has never been known to be noticeable. The locust digging its short and noisy lifetime eats almost nothing and millions in a patch of woodland will leave no trace of their foraging.

The real damage done by the locust is done by the female. The male content himself with flying about and singing while Mrs. Locust finds herself a convenient twig, makes a deep incision and deposits her eggs. This incision weakens the twig, renders it liable to disease and fungus and the next heavy windstorm is likely to blow it away.

In the case of fruit trees, the fruit which is usually at the end of the limbs pulls the punctured twigs down until they are no longer able to stand the strain and break. In this way thousands of barrels of apples and other fruit are lost to Maryland farmers with every brood of the locust.

There is no effective way to combat the pest. Whitewashing trees is of no avail and the wrapping of fly-paper about the trunk merely kills a few hundred of the insects which climb the tree to reach their outer covering. These numbers are hopeless because damage is done by the adult locust that flies to the tree and would not encounter the paper. Spraying kills such insects as they come to the tree at the time, but does no damage to the eggs. As soon as the spraying is over others will flock to the tree.

The locusts are now beginning to lay their eggs and in a few weeks the larvae will begin to drop to the ground to begin their 17 years of subterranean boring. Although reports from all parts of the State show prevalence of the locusts in great numbers, the season is just beginning and it will be two or three weeks before they are seen at their height.

To Help Keep The Dollars Growing

School children throughout the country are being urged to impress upon their parents the wisdom of keeping the dollars growing, and as a concrete example of this are informed by the United States Treasury that June 15th will be Liberty Bond Interest Day. On that day the government will pay the holders of the First Liberty Bonds $36,638,000 in interest and is asking that this money be reinvested in War Savings and Thrift Stamps.

Many of the schools are already observing Thrift Day. The suggestion was made that the 15th of the month is the most appropriate date for this observance, because interest of various issues of Liberty Bonds are due on that date.

Arrangements have been made with all postoffices and most of the banks to exchange Liberty Bonds for War Savings or Thrift Stamps, thus permitting the holders of bonds to "Keep the Dollars Growing." The interest on the Liberty Bond coupons due June 15th, if invested in War Savings Stamps, will draw interest at 4 per cent. compounded quarterly. This is the message that children are asked to carry home to their parents.

Insects On Tomatoes

Flea beetles are causing considerable damage over the Shore to tomato plants in the bed, and creating a shortage of plants. The tomato plants should be sprayed with Bordeaux Mixture 4-4-50 and arsenate of lead at rate of 1 1/2 pounds to 50 gallons of water. Commercial Bordeaux Mixture can be purchased already prepared.

The tomato aphid has made its appearance on early tomato plants in the bed and has also been noticed on the plants in the field. Black Leaf 40, one pint to 50 gallons of water with addition of about four pounds of soap, is most efficient spray. Further information concerning control of these insects can be obtained from County Agent C. Z. Keller.

Some men climb upward and some are on the down grade. Others remain neutral and are on the level.

HIGHWAYS TRANSPORTATION

Improved Roads To Carry Motor Trucks an Advantage to Farmers

The people of our land were never able to deal as comprehensively with the problem of highways development and highways transport as today. For now, as a result of war's challenge and the demands upon all producers for their utmost endeavor, we know where people are in greatest need of additional transportation facilities. And from experience gained before and during this war, we have seen the manner in which highways transportation can be harnessed most effectively to the service of our people.

Take the great problem of rural highways transportation and consider a concrete and definite need that presented itself in the State of Utah during the war. In the vicinity of Loa, Wayne county, back 75 miles from the railroad, several carloads of fat hogs were available for market, but there was no means of shipping them to the nearest rail point. The solution was found by improving the highway to carry motor transport, the hogs were moved rapidly to rail shipping point and an additional food supply thereby made available.

And the solution of this problem had the effect of moving the whole back country, a vast area in itself, up closer to the railroads and the markets of the world. While the exodus of the hogs symbolized the creation of new wealth in Wayne county, the transport service was able to return from the shipping point to Loa with the wares of our great industries, thus providing a larger market. Hence highways transport linked up the farms with the desired markets. It also spelled opportunity to the great body of loyal workers in America in that it provided for a larger field to be supplied by the indispensable products of their hands.

What took place in Utah has happened in nearly every corner of our land. Our colleges and universities and other forms of education in several of our most progressive states are already setting up courses of instruction which will equip men to occupy important posts on the frontiers of this development. And of lasting consequence, they will commence to lay the foundation for the progressive science of transportation and communication.

Mr. C. A. Tanner, Local Manager of the B. F. Goodrich Rubber Company, at Baltimore, who is well acquainted with conditions in this section of the country, adds an important suggestion: "The benefits to our section of the country following upon the improvement of highways and the effective and economical utilization of them by express and passenger cars, places us on the threshold of a new era of prosperity. And I am convinced that this and other State Legislatures, as well as our State and County Highway Departments and Commissions, were never in so fortunate a position with regard to having the support of a large portion of the intelligent and thoughtful tax payers of our State.

A great deal of information has now been made available through the Highways Transport Committee, of the Council of National Defense, pertaining to the most effective utilization of highways. No man today need vote or deliberate in ignorance of basic facts. Our own great state colleges should, and undoubtedly will do their part in collecting and disseminating facts which will create an inexhaustible supply of dependable data.

Thus the people of this State are well justified in depending upon members of our State Legislatures and others holding positions of trust, to seek the true sources of information when in doubt and to know what they're talking about in connection with this great development. And for these reasons the Townsend bill, which aims to create a National Highway system and a Federal Highway Commission to direct this great development, should receive the close and insistent attention of all the people. This will be enacted into law one of the most powerful and constructive measures that this generation will have the opportunity to deal with."

Firemen To Meet In Salisbury

The business men of Salisbury are preparing to entertain the twenty-seventh annual convention of the Maryland State Firemen's Association, which will meet there Wednesday, Thursday and Friday, June 11th, 12th and 13th. The Salisbury Fire Department expects 1,500 delegates. After the business meeting there will be a parade, drill contest, band contest, band concert, and on Thursday night there will be a big dance at the armory. On Friday, June 13th, a trip to Ocean City has been planned.

The Maryland boys paraded in Baltimore last Saturday and the old town was dressed in holiday attire to welcome home the boys of the 29th Division, who fought and bled that the country might be safe for democracy. The day had been declared a legal holiday by proclamation of Governor Harrington.

RESOURCES
Balance due from county on county levies	$18,689.00
Amount estimated to come from State in June, 1919	6,786.36
Amount to come from State in July	484.00

Mt. Vernon School	2,500.00
Office expenses	50.00
Superintendent Clerk, Board Members and other expenses	2,000.00
Total	$34,550.00
Estimated deficit	$7,581.64

The deficit thus disclosed may be somewhat reduced, but in any event the Board of County Commissioners is asked to take care of a note for $6,500 to cover it.

The amount asked from the County Commissioners this year is considerably larger than heretofore and the increase is due to the amounts necessary to pay teachers of increased experience, to add to the amount necessary to improve the condition of our school houses, and also to the fact that the amount expected from the State of Maryland last year was not so much as had been looked for.

It must not be forgotten that the public schools are dear to the people of the State of Maryland and the amount necessary to keep them going ought to be backed by every person in the county. It ought to be noticed that the amount asked for teachers' salaries is only enough to cover the minimum salaries provided by the State. The criticism has arisen that there ought to be better teachers in many of our schools and the reply is that if we want better teachers we must pay them better salaries.

The law requires that all teachers who expect to have their certificates renewed must attend summer schools for at least six weeks. The law also requires the county Board of Education to contribute to each teacher who obtains credit from such summer school attendance the sum of $25 to aid them in such expense. The sum of $1,300 is accordingly asked for this purpose. The teachers' institute has been abandoned, the summer school taking its place.

The attention of the public is also called to the fact that the budget asks for various sums of money to improve the school buildings of the county and to add to their equipment.

His Bright Idea

By GEORGE ELMER COBB

(Copyright, 1919, by Western Newspaper Union.)

"The board of pardons are convinced that you were an innocent bystander in the riots at the Eclipse sheet mill and have commuted your sentence. Allen, you are a free man."

"After three years being shut out from the world! Still, I don't complain, warden. I was an idle, thriftless fellow, had no business mixing in with a destructive crowd, and I have the penitentiary to thank for teaching me a trade that will always earn me a decent living. I understand that a relative has left me a little piece of property, so I can recommence life with experience, capital and a clear record."

The birds seemed chiming a welcoming chorus as Sidney Allen left the grim pent house where he had passed three precious years of his young life under an error of the law. The sunshine appeared to him at its brightest, he drew in great draughts of the sweet, clear air, inspiring as wine.

His second year in confinement he had been notified that he had become one of several heirs through the death of a relative. It was imparted to him that he had inherited a store property in Layton, a thriving country town.

It was twenty miles from the prison to Layton and Allen had money to go there by rail, but the delight of freedom kept him tramping the distance after he had started.

It was late afternoon when, tired and dust covered, he learned that Layton was only three miles ahead down a straight country road. Allen rested for one-half an hour, even dozed, and set out upon his way refreshed to pause again, this time amid excitement and interest, at the edge of the little town. Near a rickety old house with a well-kept vegetable garden surrounding it was a five-acre pasture fenced in, and here was presented the amazing spectacle of four white-haired ladies, spry and nimble, chasing a young horse and striving to keep him from escaping through a break at one end of the enclosure. They laughed like merry romping girls, they scolded the wayward pony, who seemed full of mischief. Allen joined in the pursuit, but just as he caught the horse by the mane his foot struck a rock and he was disabled.

One of the ladies led the horse toward the house. The three others, discerning Allen's plight, assisted him, limping, from the spot. They were grateful for his co-operation, solicitous over his mishap. They got him into the house, his injury revealing a bruised and swollen ankle. Like trained nurses they bathed and bandaged the injured member and soon he was comfortably disposed in an arm chair.

From the window he saw the horse hitched to a small wagon, in which heaping baskets of doughnuts and newly baked loaves of bread were carried. "You won't be able to move about much until tomorrow," said one of the old ladies. "I suppose you wonder at all the cookery you see around here. Well, we were all inmates of an old ladies' home that burned down, and clubbed together to make a living. We supply some families with bread, cakes and the like, twice a week and get along very nicely, indeed."

"That is Nelle Clare, a girl we adopted four years ago," spoke one of the others. "You see, two of us have small war pensions and we are now educating her at a seminary."

This explanation referred to the picture on the wall of a beautiful young girl of about eighteen. Allen had certainly come across a strange combination. The quartette made it a pleasant evening for him and he went on his way the next day feeling sure that glowing picture of home comfort would not soon fade from his mind.

Allen found the property left to him to comprise a large roomy one-story store building in the best business quarter of the town. He resolved to utilize it in a business way. What he considered to be a bright idea had appealed to him. While in the penitentiary he had served an apprenticeship in the plastic art, that is, modeling center pieces, images and even statuary heads. He had the old store room cleared up, purchased material and tools and set at work on his grand plan.

This involved a long chat with the four old ladies, who were inimitable cooks. There was no kind of pastry they could not handle artistically. Allen made perfect plaster of paris imitations of bread, cakes, pies, puddings. He tinted them so artistically that they would deceive an expert baker. These facsimiles he placed in the show window, affixing the prices of the genuine articles.

Within the month the Art Bake Shop was doing a thriving business, his four co-partners were filled with joy over being interested in a profitable, growing business, and one day sweet Nelle Clare, their beloved adopted, came home. She was so much more winning and lovely than her picture, and Allen had so endeared himself to the antiquated four, that naturally they drifted into mutual love. The merry, happy baking corps, the manly, industrious Allen, the smiling, winning clerk, attracted the interest and good will of the whole community in their little palace of a store, and the harmonious sextette drifted into an ideal existence that was the admiration and pride of a loyal clientele.

HOME TOWN HELPS

MAKES FOR BETTER CITIZENS

And That is Only One of the Reasons Why Home Ownership Should Be Encouraged.

It will be a great and good thing for the American people if the thrift habits formed during the active war period be turned to the wholesome business of extending home ownership.

The preferred communities in which to rear and educate families are those wherein the percentage of home ownership as compared with tenantry is large. Proprietorship, or the process of acquiring proprietorship, begets an active individual interest in community development.

Owning realty implies the payment of taxes, and every taxpayer naturally is zealous that his money paid for this purpose shall be used to the very best advantage. He cannot be properly true to his own interests without using his vote to put into office men who have a high conception of administrative stewardship.

Home ownership contributes to stability of population and to better neighborhood. It puts family life on a firmer base and raises its standards. It makes, therefore, for a high quality of citizenship, and that in turn yields rich dividends materially and ethically. Home ownership sharpens the sense of individual responsibility in community upbuilding. It enhances self-respect and breeds a vivid consciousness of moral and civic partnership.

SCHOOL GARDENS PAY WELL

Apart From Value of Food Produced, Young People Get Interested in the Work.

Every city in the United States should continue school-garden work during the coming season, for the need of food is as great as it was in 1918, when the value of the products grown by American school pupils was nearly $18,000,000. The plan followed in New York city has the advantage of a year's trial under working conditions, and generally speaking may be taken as a model by school boards wherever sufficient land is available for gardens.

The New York board of education allotted to each pupil a space 25 by 50 feet, and placed 30 boys on each acre. A record of the crops was kept, each boy was required to work at least once a week and to do whatever was necessary on his plot; the board looked after the plowing and fertilization and furnished the seeds, and teachers gave instructions on gardening to the children while engaged in cultivating the soil. The crops, of course, were turned over to the young farmers.

The value of the increased food supply thus obtained is great, but the experience gained by the pupils is worth more than the price of the vegetables.

Best Country Fence.

Nothing adds more to the attractiveness and artistic charms of a country home than a beautiful hedge fence which also is a protection to the lawn and garden. A low woven-wire fence, with Dorothy Perkins roses, bitter sweet, French honeysuckle, or Japanese clematis planted three feet apart, will soon be a hedge of beauty.

But better than these (for you do not need the wire fence) is a hedge of Japanese barberry. It is absolutely hardy, a fast grower, makes a dense hedge, can be sheared to any desired shape, and is attractive in any season while the others lose their beauty in the fall.

Do not confuse the Japanese barberry with the common barberry, against which there is a federal quarantine, because it is understood to carry wheat rust. The Japanese barberry can be purchased of any nursery man very cheaply. Small plants set out two feet apart make a thrifty fence serving two purposes, protection and ornamentation.—Thrift Magazine.

Street Trees.

The appearance of a city is its chief material asset. The caliber of a city's people, as a whole, is exactly expressed in the outward and visible aspect of their municipal home. Now, there is nothing that gives tone to this aspect like well-kept parks and well-tended streets. More and more this is coming to be noted, and increasingly is attention being given to the adorning of city streets with trees. Also it is seen that to depend on private initiative in this matter will not do. What is needed is to bring the planting, nurture, care and protection of street trees under municipal control, and such control concentrated in a single department specializing in the one thing, viz., street trees.

Plant Long-Lived Varieties.

In planting trees select long-lived, hardwood varieties, such as the elm, maple, walnut, oak, hackberry, linden, sycamore, locust. One for every soldier and one for every sailor who has been in the service. These trees to be planted along all of the highways and byways leading out of and into Chicago, and upon such residence streets as have no shade trees. There let the result of this vote speak for itself. The tree as a growing monument for the boys who served will win.

Elsa's Fortune

By VICTOR REDCLIFFE

(Copyright, 1919, by Western Newspaper Union.)

"You have been a loyal and efficient employee, Miss Norris," said John Baird to his stenographer, "and I wish you to accept this as a slight token of my appreciation of your services."

Baird & Co. were going out of business and Elsa had been assisting the head of the house disposing of the papers in his desk. He had laid aside an oblong envelope, from which he drew two bondlike-looking documents. "These are two shares of stock in the Aetna Coal company," proceeded Mr. Baird. "Their par value is one hundred dollars each, but I do not know their sale price. However, the company has paid five per cent dividends regularly."

Elsa's pretty eyes showed her appreciation of the unexpected gift. Mr. Baird signed the transfer blank and she felt quite opulent.

"And now for a month of real vacation!" jubilated Elsa, luxuriously, packed her belongings at her boarding house that evening and the next morning took a train for Yorkton, the home of her nearest living relative, Aunt Norah Bliss.

Two weeks later Morton Drake, a city broker, was hailed on the street by a boyish young fellow who had hurried his steps to overtake him.

"Oh, Mr. Drake!" spoke Ned Waldron a trifle breathlessly, "I've hurried after you to give you a sure tip. You got me my place and I want to try and do something for you. There's a big deal going on with the Aetna Coal company. My sister works there and she says there's going to be a merger, and they're buying in all the stock they can get at any price asked."

"Thank you, Ned," replied Drake. "That may be worth something to me."

Drake was a young business man, but profoundly expert in brokerage tactics. When he got back to the office he looked up the list of the stockholders of the Aetna Coal company. Outside of officers and directors in control he found only about half a dozen scattered holders of the securities of the company. Out of these, phoned or wired to, all but one replied that they had recently sold their stock. From John Baird, listed as holding two shares, a brief letter announced that the same had been transferred and were in the possession of Miss Elsa Norris, Yorkton.

Then Ned came to Drake with some decidedly important information. It was to the effect that each of the rival factions in the Aetna Coal company was straining every nerve to secure a majority of the stock. Drake investigated for himself. He lost no time after that in getting down to Yorkton. He never forgot the twelve hours he spent there; he never ceased after that to cherish in the picture gallery of his soul the sweetest face he had ever seen. Elsa received him ingenuously, her aunt—with courtesy and welcome.

"I have been told that you hold two hundred dollars of the stock of the Aetna Coal company," he stated his mission.

"Yes, two shares," assented Elsa. "Mr. Baird so informed me and I am prepared to offer you five hundred dollars for the securities," and Aunt Norah barely suppressed a shriek of amazement and Elsa cried out, "Oh, that will just pay off your mortgage, dear Aunt Norah!"

Drake counted out the amount he had named. Elsa, deeming herself fortunate beyond belief, was so happy spirited she could scarcely contain herself. Aunt Norah invited this bearer of opulence to tea. Just after the meal a storm came up. Both Aunt and niece did their utmost to entertain their visitor and the hours glided away all too swiftly for the city man, fascinated by the simple joys of that humble but hospitable home.

"I hope we shall see you again," spoke Aunt Norah, as, the storm over, Drake arose to take his departure for his hotel, and Elsa's bright eyes mutely but expressively echoed the implied invitation.

Morton Drake did not rest very well that night—for reasons. Every time he thought of Elsa Norris he experienced a wayward impulse to make her a certain confession.

"Miss Norris," he said, as Elsa came to the door, "here is a receipt I neglected to give you."

"Why, what is it?" asked Elsa in surprise.

"Well, you see, being a broker, while I have paid you for that stock, I have an inkling that it may sell for more money, and in all fairness to a client who trusts me I wish you to have the benefit of whatever may come of it." Morton Drake was not wrong in his surmise. Those two shares of stock were the only ones outstanding which could swing the majority as to voting power in the coal company. He knew how to bargain and received for them an extravagant sum. It was Ned whom he chose as his envoy to inform Elsa that she was the legal owner of seven thousand five hundred dollars and Ned, who guessed his secret love, blurted out the truth to Elsa; who secretly realized that the affection of Drake was more to her than the money.

And Aunt Norah insisted that Drake come to Yorkton to receive their thanks, and at Yorkton he lingered until he was made happy by the conviction that his love was returned.

BUT HE WENT WITH SPEED

That Was About All Witness Cared to Testify as to the Gait of Defendant.

The trial was in the Marion circuit court, on appeal from the police court, where the defendant had been guilty of violating a city ordinance prohibiting the throwing of rubbish in the streets, relates the Indianapolis News. The charge had been preferred by a neighbor, who filed his affidavit setting forth that the defendant had willfully, unlawfully and maliciously thrown certain particles of glass into the street in front of affiant's residence.

During the hearing of testimony in the county court the defendant's lawyer, with all sails set, let loose his best line of cross-examination of the complaining neighbor.

"You say, Mr. Witness," the lawyer snarled, "that you say this defendant throw some glass in front of your house and then run back to his front door—you mean to tell this court that he ran or just simply walked fast?"

"I guess I know when I see a man run," the witness half answered.

"I say, did he run or just walk fast?" the attorney thundered.

"Judge, your honor," the witness excitedly replied, as he turned and faced the judge, "This here same lawyer made me a liar in police court. He might for all I know gone sixty miles an hour. I ain't no judge of human nature."

PLEA FOR MEMORIAL TREES

Committee Would Have One Planted in Baptist Churchyards as Tribute to Roger Williams.

A memorial tree in every Baptist churchyard in the United States to commemorate establishment of religious freedom and soul liberty is the plan of the Roger Williams National Memorial committee of the District of Columbia. The committee, which is in charge of the drive to raise a fund for the erection in Washington of the Roger Williams memorial, announced it would ask every congregation in the country to plant a memorial tree.

"The tree stands for life," says a statement from the committee issued at the Washington headquarters, "and as the American Forestry association is urging the planting of memorial trees in honor of the American sailors and soldiers who gave their lives that political freedom should not perish from the earth, so we will ask that trees be planted in honor of Roger Williams, who worked and suffered that religious liberty might be woven into the national fabric of America."

Pacific Blockade.

"Pacific blockade" is a term invented by Hantefeuille, the French writer on international maritime law, to describe a blockade exercised by a great power for the purpose of bringing pressure to bear on a weaker state without actual war. The Pacific blockade has apparently established itself as a legitimate means of coercing a weak power to observe its international obligations without resorting to war for that purpose. It is a modern development and has usually been the act of several powers acting in concert. It was first employed in 1827, when the combined fleets of Great Britain, France and Russia blockaded a portion of the Turkish coast. More recent instances of its exercise were the blockade of Crete by the powers in 1897, the blockade of Venezuelan ports by Great Britain, Germany and Italy in 1902 and of Turkish ports by the powers in 1905.

The Bargee.

"American soldiers in London," said Gen. Samuel A. Ansell, "take a great deal of interest in the bargees who row enormous canal boats up and down the Thames."

"A soldier stood on the Blackfriars bridge one day watching a bargee row his canal boat, or barge. It was an enormous barge; half a dozen oarsmen could hardly have managed it, but the lone bargee wielded his oar undismayed, and the barge approached the soldier on the bridge at the rate of about an inch a minute."

"The soldier watched the barge a long time, and, when the bridge was at last reached, he took the cigarette from his mouth and shouted down to the plucky oarsman:

"Well, so long, old timer! Don't forget to bring us a parrot back with you!"

What is Biggest Woodcock?

What is said to be the heaviest woodcock was one shot by Arthur Duane near Whitaker's, L. I., about thirty years ago. The woodcock was mounted by Bell, the leading taxidermist of the day, but unfortunately it was later on destroyed by moths.

This woodcock was weighed on a druggist's scales at Southampton and weighed exactly 14 ounces. There are several witnesses living who can testify as to the weight. The naturalists give the average weight of woodcock as ranging from five to nine ounces.

Smoking a Cause of Cancer.

Cancer of the mouth in civilized countries has been greatly reduced by good dentistry. Eighty-five per cent of the cancers of the lip occur in smokers. Formerly clay pipes, which became very hot, were much used, and there has been a notable reduction in the number of cancers of the lip since the clay pipe has gone out of fashion. Smoking, however, is the cause of most cancer of the lip, the tongue and the floor of the mouth.—Maj. W. J. Mayo, War Department Lecturer.

Lake of Sulphate.
A lake near Biggar, Saskatchewan, and about three hundred miles northwest of Regina, has been found to be saturated with sodium sulphate, and the deposit under the lake and alongside the edge to be nearly 97 per cent pure sulphate. The edge is muddy, but on boring down a solid bed of mirabilite crystals is found.

LEARNING TO BE A CIVILIAN

Discharged British Soldier Testifies That He Finds New Feeling Out of Uniform.

Is the glamor of uniform wearing off?
After three years of service clothes I have just spent my first days in civilian attire. Surprising to tell, I believe I have met with more civility out of uniform than in it. "R. G." writes in the continental edition of the London Mail.

Two possible solutions of this remarkable attitude occur to me. The first is that most officers appear to be rather stern and stand-offish in uniform. The other solution, and perhaps an equally probable one, is that the public is getting tired of seeing so many officers going about aimlessly with apparently nothing much to do except to spend money and kill time.

Naturally, I suppose, when I first went out in "civvies" I had the ingrained inclination to salute all superior officers I met and to prepare to take salutes from the ranks. It took me the best part of a day to overcome this impulse.

The "sir" habit was very strong, too. On my first morning as a civilian I had to see a colonel at the war office on business—business in which our standing was at least equal—and I immediately "sirred" him, of course. Force of habit, pure and simple.

Again there is the matter of running after an omnibus or across the road—in uniform one tries to make a point of not doing these things. Now, however, when "example" has not longer to be considered, I find it practically impossible to chase an omnibus or flee from an oncoming taxicab. The instinct is against doing so.

Apparently it is just as necessary to relearn how to be a civilian as it once was to learn how to be a soldier.

SKILLFUL PIECE OF WORK

Novel Feat of Engineering Recently Put to the Credit of American Bridge Builders.

Not long ago it was discovered that the piers of the combined highway and railroad bridge across the Missouri river at St. Joseph, Mo., were in bad condition and it would be necessary to build new piers. At first it was proposed to build the new piers on the downstream side of the old bridge and shift the bridge laterally to the new position, in this way maintaining traffic over the old bridge while the new construction was going on. But the war department required the installation of a larger draw-span in the bridge and so it was decided to build the new piers between the old piers. After they were completed, the fixed spans of the bridge were moved shoreward endwise, so that they rested on the new piers. A temporary span was constructed to fill the gap thus occasioned, so that traffic was closed over the bridge for less than ten hours. Then work was begun upon the new swing span, which was built as a cantilever in open position. To permit of this, a portion of the old swing-span had to be cut away and a temporary lift-span was put in to take care of river traffic. Thus the bridge was reconstructed without changing its alignment.—Scientific American.

Our Book of Doom.

A doomsday book of a new sort has been produced by the alien property custodian. It approximates 500 pages and sets out the names of the enemy concerns that have been found in the United States. The custodian thinks his efforts have been without real cost to the country, since he brought to light for the treasury to collect more than $600,000 in income taxes which were being evaded. Besides the custodian turned some of the German concerns to war work and had them produce $30,000,000 worth of supplies. The custodian's new book, says Nation's Business, contains a deal of comfort for Americans who have claims against Germany and who have been wondering if they will have to wait for payment until Germany makes up her mind about the variety of government she likes best. The state department has hinted that American claimants may get immediate reimbursement from the funds the custodian has collected.

Hubby's Blunder.

He resided in the suburbs, and when he accidentally met an old friend in the city who persuaded him to remain in town for the evening he went to the telegraph office and wired his wife as follows:

"Missed the 5:30 train. Don't keep dinner waiting. Shall be home late." It was very, very late when he did arrive home, and his wife met him at the door.

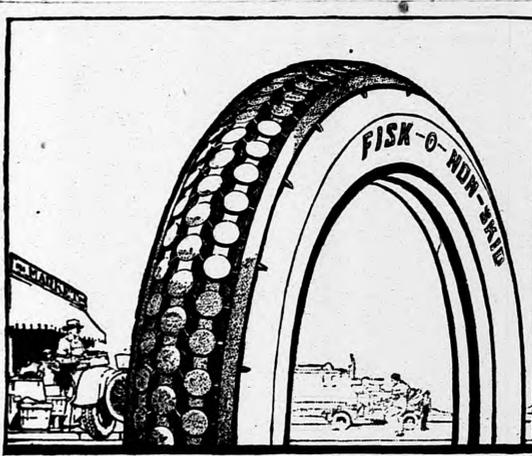

"Did you get my message?" he said, beaming down at her.

"Yes," she said, very quietly, "but I would like you to explain why you sent a message at 4:28 telling me you had missed the 5:30 train."—Rehoboth Sunday Herald.

Phonograph in the Hebrides.

Mrs. Kennedy-Fraser, who has done so much to create interest in Hebridean songs, took a phonograph to the islands, says a writer in Daily Chronicle. This was in order to secure the absolute accuracy of the weird music which is traditional in the Hebrides. The people were so excited by the novelty of singing into the phonograph that they could hardly wait for the record to be played, and then they were amazed at the fidelity with which it rendered the songs and all the trivial sounds of the islands.

TUESDAY MORNING, JUNE 3, 1919

The number of new straw hats now seen demonstrates that last year's hay crop was not a failure.

After a man gets an increase of wages to pay for other people's advances, prices go up to pay for his raise.

Present indications are that the German people will be celebrating Pay Up Week continuously for about 30 years.

At last reports the idle corkscrew makers had discovered that there is going to be a tremendous demand for ice cream spoons.

The doughboys' shoes are said to have stood the wear in the trenches very well, but it is not expected they will outlast the parades.

Germans keep on denying they were not responsible for the war. If they keep on saying so much longer they may begin to believe it themselves.

It is pretty hard for the boys of Princess Anne to preserve their faith in the world and human nature when invited by mother to spend Saturday morning beating the parlor rug.

Woman is supposed to be looking for the dawn of a new era, but among the younger element it seems to be mostly looking up the street to see if any male callers are coming this evening.

Out in Africa the savages are observing Dress Up Week by putting on a plug hat. Here in Princess Anne the families with children are observing Clean Up Week every day in the year.

WHEN WILL PRICES DROP?

The continued high prices of all necessities of life are disappointing a great many people who expected to see them drop soon after the war ended. People who expect an immediate change forget that business men and farmers are paying just as much for labor as last summer, also the workers are paying just as much for food. While these conditions last, prices can't fall far.

The government has undertaken to bring pressure on certain industries to secure some return to lower prices. But in the main supply and demand will be the ruling factor. As long as Europe is drawing great quantities of food and taking practically the whole American surplus, food prices won't drop far.

The social disintegration in Germany, Austria and Russia will greatly reduce the crops that those countries should raise this year. But they will not have money or credit to buy any great quantity. The allied countries should raise a good deal more than in 1918. By next year imports of food should have fallen considerably below the war level. When a surplus of food appears in American markets prices will go down. Millions in Europe are barefoot and ragged. There will be a tremendous demand for cotton, wool and leather. These materials and the products thereof are likely to remain at their present very high level for a year or two.

All price readjustments will have to be of the nature of a trade; every producer dropping his scale a little while the things he has to buy go off an equal amount. It will have to take place by slow degrees. There must be a spirit of give and take between all elements entering into production. It is for the interest of everyone to co-operate in the effort to get prices nearer to normal. The present level is artificial, burdensome and detrimental to business.

ADVERTISERS GIVE BEST VALUES

The net effect of advertising in any community is to concentrate trade. It enables bright, enterprising, far-sighted men to get the bulk of the business, far more than they could obtain on a non-advertising basis. It opens the way for them to introduce modern efficiency systems, to reduce costs through large volume of trade, to take advantage of bargains offered in the wholesale market and to buy and sell in a large way.

Advertising tends to eliminate unenterprising merchants. These find they can no longer depend on the mere physical fact that they have a certain location which really has nothing to do with the merit of the propositions they have to offer. They learn that old customers catching the modern spirit are looking out to see who is announcing the best values and will travel quite a distance to a less desirable location if necessary to snap up an advertised bargain.

REMOVING POVERTY

There are certain weaknesses so deeply bred into the bone that only a general betterment of the whole community would remove them. To many people this will seem hopeless. It induces the feeling that it is useless to do anything to try to remove poverty.

A certain element of people are born lazy, indifferent and shiftless. They won't work themselves and their children acquire idle and vagrant habits and often criminal habits.

Yet much could be done toward reducing the aggregate of this class. One of the principal causes for their existence is the marriage, or illegal union of feeble minded persons. Experts say that the girls of this class are often physically attractive. They are quiet, inoffensive and pleasing to some men. Unless cared for and restrained in good institutions, they are constantly bringing into the world children who will be a burden to society. The provision of well managed institutions for this class of people would lift a very considerable burden from the next generation.

What can be done for the large class of people who, while possessing a fair amount of intelligence, yet are constitutionally lazy?

It would seem that these cases are largely due to removable defects in education. Most of these people were backward children in school who could not keep up with their classes. Overburdened teachers did not have the time to give them the special attention they needed. Communities that follow the modern idea, of special classes and attention for dull children with hand work for those who can't grasp books, succeed in arousing ambition among youngsters that had seemed hopelessly lacking in will power. They are helping these children form habits of industry that will enable them to acquire self-support.

The people who talked about the foolhardiness of the aviators who have been flying across the ocean are perhaps the descendants of those who blamed Columbus for his rash act in sailing an unknown sea.

THE NEW CONGRESS

The Congress held just before the choice of a president has not usually been very constructive. There is too much desire to make political capital. The time would be very largely taken up by speeches, which the members were anxious to have franked to their constituents.

Politicians are afraid of getting caught on the wrong side and offending some aggressive body of voters. So they have had a way of dodging many questions and postponing and pigeonholing them.

This was particularly true of the period from about 1880 to 1900, when the politicians spent their time largely in debating old and threadbare issues. They set up men of straw and knocked them down again with great gusto. It was a period of contention over superficial issues. A great deal of energy had to be devoted to combating eccentric crazes that swept over the country from time to time.

Few great constructive acts were passed. Most of the economic problems of the 19th century went over to the 20th unsolved.

The last dozen years have shown a new spirit in politics. It is a time of unsettlement and change. The people are not satisfied with the old ruts and the living conditions of the past. They demand efficiency, business methods, social justice and constructive work. They are sick of obstructive political tactics and would rather see some mistakes made than to have nothing done.

The lesson of all this for Congress is that partisan feeling must be relegated to the background. Each party must form its constructive projects of legislation to meet existing conditions. No party can get anywhere on a basis of mere criticism. It can win favor only on a basis of things done, of new social institutions created, of old systems of government and business placed on a new footing to meet these changing times.

A Doughboy With Nerve

American soldiers who escaped from the embrace of Mars, but who fell before the darts of Cupid and married French girls, are permitted by Uncle Sam to bring home their brides at the expense of the government.

Recently there appeared at the troops movement office at Brest, France, a burly sergeant, accompanied by a woman bearing a babe in arms, three other anxious looking women and another elderly woman. An old gentleman also belonged to the party. They were, respectively, the wife, baby, sisters-in-law, mother-in-law and father-in-law of the sergeant. He wanted them to return to America with him.

"You win," said the desk officer, "you must have been the greatest soldier of them; you certainly have nerve."

RURAL ORGANIZATION

Up to a very recent time the farm community has been in a disorganized condition. But for a few years, the tendency to form associations for the benefit of the farmer and to improve rural conditions has enormously increased.

In many progressive agricultural counties there are said to be as many as a hundred organizations all working on some proposition of agricultural or rural betterment. If a man attempted to join all the hopeful societies that promised to do something for him, he would spend a big share of his time attending meetings. Nevertheless, the rural community is probably under-organized rather than over-organized.

Not to speak of religious and educational organizations, there are several other lines of associated effort in which wide awake country people are generally interested. First, an organization for all the principal specialties of farming, so that each type of agricultural industry can get together with others working out the same problems, exchange experiences and secure help from experts. Second, an organization for the promotion of social life in the farm community and for the improvement and business advance of their village center and town. Third, organizations for more efficient marketing and buying of farm material and for co-operative efforts where such are practicable. Fourth, organizations to protect the interest of the farmer with respect to legislation and to secure fair treatment of the farm community by the rest of the country.

All this will take a lot of time and effort. Some men may be found talking in stores when they should be at home planting and cultivating. But it takes organization to accomplish much in modern life. The power of the individual is enormously increased when he associates himself with others.

The Friendly Tobacco Home Again

Velvet Tobacco, in its jolly red tin, is again a feature of cigar stores, big and little. There is again Velvet in the pipes, and contentment in the hearts of an army of American pipe smokers. And thereby hangs a tale.

"Where's Velvet Tobacco gone?" those same folks inquired, when disappointed in their quest for that age-mellowed, friendly tobacco, which had made them and their pipes side partners for years.

Where was Velvet? Ask the Red Cross man or the "Y" man. Ask the Salvation Army lassie. Ask the doughboy or the Jackie. Ask the hurried and harassed Quartermaster Corps that were responsible for "more beef, more bullets and more tobacco" for the boys under the tin derbies. Yes, that's why Velvet was not on some of the dealers' shelves. It was on the ships, in the cantonments, in the billets and the trenches. But Velvet is now wearing the red chevron of an honorable discharge.

The doughboy who smoked the "tinned Kentucky sunshine" in France, can now enjoy its friendly company on his own front porch. Those of us who willingly gave up luxuries that the boys over there might have them, can stuff our old pipes once more with Velvet and "smile, smile, smile."

And good old Velvet Joe! Well, he's back in the columns of this paper and glad to see you all again.

Wilson's Memorial Day Message

President Wilson, in a Memorial Day message to the American people last Thursday, declared that the "impressive lesson and the inspiring mandate of the day" is to fulfill the hopes and purposes to the utmost of the men who sacrificed their lives for the country. The message, cabled to the White House, reads:

"Memorial Day wears this year an added significance, and I wish, if only by a message, to take part with you in its observation and in expressing the sentiments which it invariably suggests. In observing the day we commemorate not only the reunion of our own country, but also now the liberation of the world from one of the most serious dangers to which free government and the free life of men were exposed."

"We have buried the gallant and now immortal men who died in this great war of liberation with a new sense of conservation. Our thoughts and our purposes are now consecrated to the maintenance of the liberty of the world and the union of its people in a single comradeship of liberty and of right. It was for this that our men conscientiously offered their lives. They came to the field of battle with the high spirit and pure heart of crusaders."

"We must never forget the duty that their sacrifice has laid upon us of fulfilling their hopes and their purposes to the utmost. This, it seems to me, is the impressive lesson and the inspiring mandate of the day."

Cut This Out And Take It With You

A man often forgets the exact name of the article he wishes to purchase, and as a last resort takes something else instead. That is always disappointing and unsatisfactory. The safe way is to cut this out and take it with you so as to make sure of getting Chamberlain's Tablets. You will find nothing quite so satisfactory for constipation and indigestion.

Heroes Received Royal Welcome

Returning from the battle-scarred fields on which they helped to make history, the Maryland boys whom a beneficent Providence protected from the fate that overtook so many of the brave fighters received a welcome seldom equaled, never surpassed in Baltimore last Saturday.

Their home coming was different from their departure. Tears accompanied the going of dear ones and in many homes the emblems of sorrow continue in evidence, but even in these there remains the melancholy satisfaction that those who shed their priceless blood did not yield their lives in vain. And so those bereft of their kinsmen forgot for the time their own misfortunes and joined in extending a hearty welcome to the buddies of those who have gone before.

There was no let-up in the welcome until the men returned to Camp Meade late Saturday night to be mustered out of service, which probably will be today (Tuesday), for Gen. Grote Hutchison, commandant at Meade, is shooting them out and off to their homes almost as rapidly as they come in.

Mrs. Samuel S. Sudler is visiting her daughter, Mrs. William C. Brown, in Philadelphia.

Miss Henrietta Fitzgerald, who is training to be a nurse at the Jefferson Hospital, Philadelphia, is visiting her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Charles W. Fitzgerald.

First Mate Thomas R. Nelson, of the U. S. Navy hospital ship, Sylvia, was a visitor of Mr. and Mrs. Leolan Jackson, at the Methodist Episcopal parsonage, last week.

The revival in John Wesley M. E. Church, Mt. Vernon, grows in interest each night. The singing evangelist, Miss Minnie Shay, of Baltimore, has not only captured her hearers by her beautiful gospel songs, but by her able exposition of the scriptures.

The Centenary subscription of the Mt. Vernon charge resulted as follows: The John Wesley Church raised $10.00 over her apportionment. Her assessment was $654 and she she raised $664, while the Asbury Church raised $398 of the same amount. (Her apportionment was $654 and raised $398, leaving a balance of $256.)

Graduating exercises were held at the Marion Central School last Friday night. A literary program had been arranged, the proceeds of which will be used in laying a pavement in front of the school building. After the presentation of diplomas by the principal, Miss Mary Lucille Tull, a short address was made by Mrs. George P. Parsons, one of the trustees, in which she commended Miss Tull and her assistants for the good work they had done during the school year.

The remains of Mrs. Hetty L. Collins, who died at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Charles W. Divan, in Merchantville, New Jersey, were taken to Pocomoke City Monday afternoon of last week and interred in the M. P. Cemetery. Mrs. Collins was 94 years old and is survived by four children—Mrs. J. Henry Young, of Cape Charles; Mrs. Annie Leitch, of Colonial Beach; Mrs. Emma Parks, of Fairmount, Somerset county, and Mrs. Charles W. Divan, of Merchantville, N. J., all of whom were present at the funeral.

The farmers of Somerset county have the opportunity this year, as last, to secure the services of boys from 16 to 21 years of age, vouched for by Baltimore school authorities as of good characters and capable of doing good work. They are High School boys, quick to learn, many of them of experience, desirous of rendering service and asking only moderate compensation. These boys will be ready for service as soon as school closes, about the 12th of June. Applications should be sent to Director Clinton L. Riggs, of the Boys' Working Reserve, 306 McCoy Hall, Baltimore.

COAL TAR CREOSOTE TREATMENT MAKES FENCE POSTS MORE DURABLE IN GROUND

Post-treating outfit in which threshing engine is used to supply steam for heating hot baths. The posts are set vertically in the hot treatment and then are laid horizontally in the large tank which contains the cold creosote—Note the beveled tops of the posts.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

The fence-post problem is easily solved on the farm by means of a simple method of treating wood with coal tar creosote. Sap pine, red oak, maple, beech, sycamore, black gum, sweet gum and other abundant or inferior woods by this means are made durable in the ground for 10 to 20 years of service.

It is essential that the timber be peeled and thoroughly seasoned before attempting to treat it. Small flakes of inner bark left on the wood check or prevent proper absorption at those places. Peeling is done most easily during the spring months, but is carried on at other seasons of the year. A spade is about the best common implement for use when the bark slips easily, otherwise an ax or draw-knife should be used.

Because they have a uniform absorbing surface of sapwood, round sticks are more satisfactory than split timber. With treated timber it is not necessary to use the large-sized line posts commonly cut and used in the past. By using a post from three to four inches in top diameter and long enough to allow only a few inches above the top wire, the cost is reduced for creosote and for labor in handling, the post lasts practically as long as larger sizes, and it affords ample strength for the fence line. These facts have been fully established by means of experiments and demonstrations carried on for more than ten years by the forest service, United States department of agriculture, in co-operation with a number of state agricultural colleges in different parts of the country.

Preservative Should Penetrate.

In treating the posts it is important to get a deep penetration of the preservative of from one to two inches in the butt of the post for a height of one foot above the ground level when the post is set in place. This is obtained by boiling the butt in creosote heated to about 210 degrees F. for one to two hours, depending upon the porosity of the wood, followed immediately by a bath in "cold" (80 degrees to 100 degrees F.) creosote for about the same period of time. The wood cells, expanded and deprived of some of the air by being heated, during the cooling treatment gradually absorb the desired amount of the creosote. The tops obviously require only a shallow treatment to last as long as the butts. Where only a single open drum or tank is used, top treatment may be accomplished by means of thoroughly painting the tops with a brush, or pouring hot creosote over the tops.

A very satisfactory outfit for treating posts consists of an upright cylindrical tank for the hot treatment and a horizontal rectangular tank or vat for the cold bath. For applying the hot creosote to the butts one of the large-sized gasoline or oil drums, about 27 inches in diameter, is very satisfactory for small operations, but for larger or co-operative treatment a cylindrical steel tank 3 feet in diameter by 4 feet in height should be used. In either case there will be needed a horizontal steel tank about 3 feet across by 3 feet in height and 8 feet in length, or large enough to accommodate the corner posts.

A gasoline drum with one defective head to be chiseled out can often be obtained at a cost of $2 to $3. The tank for the hot treatment obviously must be of steel and in all cases fitted for heating either with a fire underneath in an earth pit or by means of steam pipes. Except in midsummer, some heat must be supplied to the cold tank. Where dressed lumber is relatively cheap, a satisfactory cold vat can often be made at less cost by being built of dressed 2 by 4 pieces laid on a heavy flooring. It should be fitted for heating by means of an iron pipe circuit either extending over a fire on the ground or connected with a steam engine.

Use Good Preservative.

It is important to use a good preservative, and coal tar creosote has proven by far the most satisfactory substance. Ordinary gas or coal tar has been occasionally used, but it is too thick, even when heated, to give a fair degree of penetration and leaches out more quickly than creosote.

Present prices of coal-tar creosote range mostly from 25 to 35 cents a gallon in barrel lots laid down at the nearest railroad point. The pre-war price was about 15 to 20 cents a gallon. A gallon of creosote is sufficient to treat three posts from 3 to 4 inches at the top, or two posts from 4 to 6 inches in top diameter, thus making the cost from 10 to 15 cents per post or in ordinary times from 5 to 10 cents. The other items would be the cost of cutting and peeling the posts at perhaps 5 cents each, the labor of treating which can be figured at from 2 to 3 cents, and a share of the equipment cost, which would likely average about 2 cents each, using a two-tank outfit. This makes a total cost of from 15 to 25 cents each.

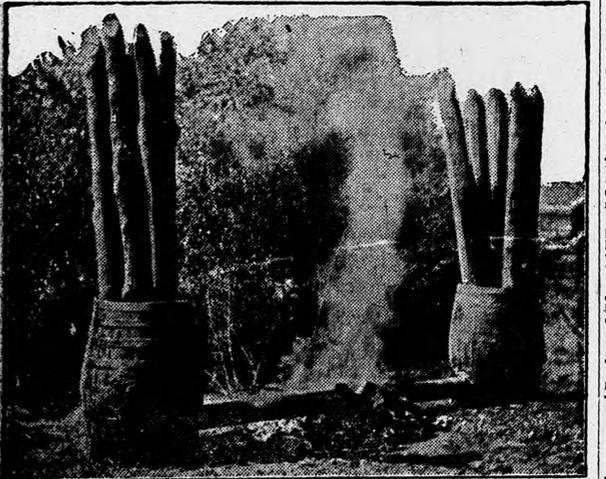

Joint Ownership Saves.

A saving in cost would be made by two or more farmers jointly owning and using a treating equipment. This method in a number of instances has proved a successful form of co-operation among farm owners.

Post timber for treating is very abundant in the dense old-field pine stands throughout the Southern states. The small trees which are being crowded out by the taller dominant trees are very often of just the right size for making treated fence posts. Cutting them for this purpose utilizes a forest product that would otherwise be wasted and improves the remaining stand by giving room for growth needed by the remaining trees. A wood with an interlocked and twisted fiber, such as black gum or sweet gum, are of the very best sort for treating, since they are little subject to the deep checking apt to occur in wood after 5 to 10 years of exposure in the weather. The "seeds" or spores of wood-decaying fungi find entrance through such cracks or checks and begin feeding on the wood cells. Thorough treatment of well-seasoned posts poisons the food of the fungus, thus giving many years of useful service.

Drain Alfalfa Soil.

Alfalfa cannot stand wet feet. If the ground is poorly drained, tile drainage is the remedy. The land can be drained either in the spring or fall.

DAIRY FACTS

PREVENT MILK PLANT WASTE

Managers and Employers of Dairy Establishment Should Work to Avoid Spoilage.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

A quart of milk wasted now is about twice the loss it was a few years ago, and the financial loss, though great, is even less serious than the waste of this essential food. Managers and employees of market milk establishments should take every possible precaution to prevent waste. Here are a few suggestions along this line:

To Prevent Milk Waste.

Keep the shrinkage as low as possible by close attention to leaks, spillage and slopping.

Avoid milk piping as much as possible, since considerable milk will stick to pipes at the end of the run.

Have milk vats so that they can be drained readily.

Drain cans and all containers well after dumping the milk.

To Save Fuel and Ice.

Utilize exhaust steam wherever possible for heating the building and providing hot water for various dairy operations.

Avoid extra steam piping by proper arrangement of rooms, thus avoiding losses due to condensation of steam.

Keep steam valves and joints well packed.

Keep doors of refrigerator room closed. Do not work in refrigerator more than necessary and do not leave lights on.

To Save Labor.

Avoid use of milk pumps wherever possible by adopting the gravity-flow system. Extra labor is required for cleaning pumps.

Avoid unnecessary labor by convenient arrangement of equipment and rooms and through use of labor-saving devices.

Other points which deal principally with mechanical topics are included in the recommendation, all of which have a sound basis of investigation and experience. By issuing a monthly letter on timely matters to the milk trade, the dairy division seeks to raise the plane of milk handling efficiency. It makes official information available to those who are able to put it into immediate use and should assist in reducing operating costs as well as waste of dairy products.

FEEDING COWS FOR PROFIT

Animals Must Have Liberal Ration at All Seasons—Pastures Must Be Supplemented.

If dairy cows are to be fed for profitable production they must receive a liberal ration at all seasons. In summer pasture generally is depended upon, but often it must be supplemented by molasses or silage, and sometimes by concentrates as well. For winter feeding, the ration usually is composed of hay, silage, and a mixture of grains. In properly balancing the ration the grain mixture is compounded to fit the roughage with due consideration for cost, bulk, palatability, and physiological effect upon the cow. For best results, cows must be fed individually, salted regularly, and furnished with all the clean water they will drink.

COWS FRESHENING IN SPRING

Usually Desirable Where Possible for Herd to Secure an Abundance of Good Pasture.

Where it is possible for the herd to secure an abundance of good feed on pasture throughout a considerable portion of the year, it is usually desirable to have the cows freshen in the spring in order that one may take advantage of the inexpensive feeds at the stage of lactation when the largest amount of nutrients in the ration must be supplied.

Disputed Alfalfa Question.

When to sow alfalfa is a disputed question. Many people say sow in August, but some of the most successful growers sow the seed early in the spring.

Proper Feed for Cows.

Cows giving milk require more protein and carbonates than cows that are dry.

The only two mediums through which one's thoughts are conveyed to another are the ear and the eye. Type may sometimes convey things to the public that you can say in no other way. It is the impression made through the eye that lingers longer than through the ear.

French Port Regains Trade.
While Havre was still young the seafaring men of Honfleur conquered Newfoundland, founded Quebec and established numerous trading posts in India. Much of the town's commerce was gradually absorbed by Havre. At the outbreak of the great war, however, Honfleur had a prosperous export trade with England in dairy products, fruits and vegetables, and a considerable quantity of lumber was imported direct from the Scandinavian countries.

Was Last Polish King.
In 1798, on the 11th of April, Stanislaus Poniatowski, the last king of Poland, died. Poniatowski ascended the Polish throne in 1764. The condition of Poland required a strong man on the throne to keep the country from ruin, and Stanislaus lacked the necessary strength and statesmanship. Russia, Prussia and Austria divided this kingdom among them and the deposed king retired to Petrograd on a pension, where he died in 1798.

Equal to the Occasion.
"Speaking of accommodating hotel managers," said a traveler, "the best I ever met was in a provincial town. I reached the hotel late in the evening. Just before I retired I heard a scampering under the bed, and saw a couple of large rats just escaping. I at once complained at the office. The manager was as serene as a summer breeze. 'Til fix that all right, sir,' he said. 'Boots! Take a cat to room 13 at once!'"

TREES FOR THE ROADSIDE
Western Journal Advocates the Planting of Apple and Various Other Kinds of Fruits.

The example of a Minnesota village which is planting rows of apple trees along its roadsides instead of the more conventional Lombardy poplars, Norway maples, box elders and white elms, is capable of adaption to almost every American community. The practice, like a good many others which now commend themselves to favor, is the result of individual initiative. About 20 years ago, it seems, a retired minister introduced fruit trees to the roadway running through his own property. The school district, seeing their value, has now arranged for planting 250 more apple trees of an approved variety and has committed itself to care for them. These are theoretically the property of the lot owner, but it is a safe guess that the public will harvest a good deal of the crop.

It is nevertheless a pleasing custom, and one which is not likely to interfere seriously with the commercial side of fruit growing. The spring months must be particularly beautiful in this part of Minnesota, to say nothing of the annually recurring harvest festival every autumn. One would not begrudge the passer-by his share of the ripe pomes, and it is practically certain that the privilege would not be greatly abused if planting of this kind were general. The experience of orchardists in such regions, for illustration, as the great prune-growing belts of Oregon and Washington shows that when certain fruits become reasonably common loss from pilfering is negligible. But part of the value of the roadside tree would be the tacit invitation to share in the product thereof.—Portland Oregonian.

RESEMBLES OLD LOG CABIN

Remarkably Pretty Bungalow Fashioned From Concrete, the Modern Building Material.

American pioneers have handed down an affectionate regard for log architecture, and many a city dweller would prefer a plain log cabin to a modern mansion for his country home. A builder in Yankton, S. D., has combined both in a pretty and homelike bungalow whose "logs" are made of concrete. The loglike units are precast separately, flat on top, bottom and inside, but with the outside surface molded round and with an imitation bark finish. Ends are cast with dovetails, and interlock at the corners. Ordinary mortar joints are used, and the exterior is finished to a natural effect with a wood-brown stain, preserving in form all the esthetic value of the rustic model, but with the cleanliness and sanitary value of the modern material.—Popular Mechanics Magazine.

In This Pretty Bungalow the "Logs" Are Precast Concrete Units, Laid Up With Mortar, Like Any Masonry, and Stained Wood-Brown on the Outside to Look Natural.

Proper Housing Means Much.

In England the principal original investors in a garden city development are not concerned solely with the financial profit obtainable from the venture. The basis of income return is sufficient to remove any suspicion of charity from the transaction, while it is at the same time recognized by all the investors—including in part, of course, those manufacturing concerns which may have a certain amount of selfish interest in the matter—that the contented and more efficient workmen thus obtained represent a better return than a few per cent additional on their investment. From a larger point of view it is also apparent that the healthier generations that will result from workmen living under these better conditions mean greater power, wealth and efficiency to the whole nation.

Pure Air.
On every "note that dances in a sunbeam" there rides many a disease germ. The dust particles sent flying by motor vehicles or gusts of wind are so many infinitesimal omnibuses carrying loads of passengers who wish to be put off in some warm nose, throat or lung where they may multiply. And the same holds true of every particle of soot that escapes unburned from a chimney. To the man who knows this much of science, dirty streets, and sooty air are more dangerous than all the murderers at large in the world. But to the average person street dust and smoke are nothing more than unsightly and disagreeable objects.—Engineering and Contracting.

ENTRANCE EXAMINATIONS

State Scholarships in Engineering Courses

Entrance Examinations for the Department of Engineering, as well as for the College of Arts and Sciences, will be held in Giltman Hall, Homewood, Monday to Saturday, June 16th to 21st, 1919, beginning at 9 a. m., each day, under the auspices of the College Entrance Examination Board.

Applications for Scholarships in the Department of Engineering, established under the provisions of the Laws of Maryland, Chapter 90, 1912, will now be received. If there is more than one applicant for a particular scholarship, a competitive examination must be taken Friday, September 19th, 1919, beginning at 9 a. m. Appointments will be made soon thereafter.

Each Legislative District of Baltimore City and each county of the State, with the exception of Harford, Howard, Queen Anne's and Somerset counties, will be entitled to one or more scholarships for the year 1919-1920, in addition to those which have already been assigned. In the four counties mentioned above, all the available scholarships have been awarded.

Under the provisions of the Act of Assembly, the County and City Scholarships in the Department of Engineering are awarded only to deserving students whose financial circumstances are such that they are unable to obtain an education in Engineering unless free tuition be granted to them. The scholarships entitle the holders to free tuition, free use of text-books, and exemption from all regular fees. One of the scholarships in each county and each Legislative District of the city carries also the sum of $200. The expense of attendance for those who do not receive scholarships is not greater than at other Maryland institutions.

Scholarships may be awarded to graduates of Loyola College, St. John's College, Washington College, Western Maryland College, Maryland Agricultural College, Mt. St. Mary's College, Rock Hill College. (One scholarship will be awarded "At Large.")

Applicants should address the Registrar, The Johns Hopkins University, for blank forms of application and for catalogues giving information as to examinations, award of scholarships, and courses of instruction. The next session begins Tuesday, September 30th, 1919.

Retain "Perspective."

We say of a painting that the "perspective" is good—meaning that we can see far ahead, beyond the apparent background to imagined beauties still further in the distance. Many people have not this perspective; they see only the pebbles and shallow water in the foreground and, stopping to dabble their feet in the first pleasant invitation to ease and coolness, they lose the call and lure of the deep pools and forests farther on, content to stay at the half-way house, even forgetting that they once held a faint vision of castles of accomplishment.

Ant Development.

Ants have developed nothing remotely resembling industrial organization. Many unnecessary conclusions have been drawn from comparing neuter (undeveloped female) ant workers with the unmarried women of modern industry. A comparison with child labor would be truer. For ant workers are always "hunger" forms—stunted creatures who have no economic opportunity to grow up—who are forced by family necessity to venture out for food before they reach full growth.

Napkins.

Table napkins were in use long before some of the other accessories which we consider indispensable today. Before forks came to be known, men had to use their fingers in preparing their food; hence the ancient common habit of frequently passing the basin of water and its accompanying napkin for wiping the hands. It now seems incredible that forks were not customary until the seventeenth century.

Booze Is Not A Good Cure

From the Ames-Iowa Intelligencer. When a man comes to you all doubled up with pain and declares he will die in your presence unless you procure him a drink of whiskey, send him to a doctor or else give him a dose of Chamberlain's Colic and Diarrhoea Remedy. There is a mistaken notion among a whole lot of people that booze is the best remedy for colic and stomach ache. (Advertisement)

Wicomico H. S. Graduates Entertained

Miss Emily Irving Dashiell entertained, at her home on Prince William street last Tuesday night, the graduating class of the Wicomico High School, Salisbury. Miss Dashiell is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Dashiell. She has taught French and Latin in the Wicomico High School for the past three years. Those present were:

Mrs. R. Lee Clark, Misses E. Vaughan Jacobs, Eugenia Potts, Katherine Betts, Helen Hawk, Mary Little, Virginia Phillips, Hester Sexton, Katherine Todd, Mary Wyatt, Irene Parker, Mildred White and Messrs. Paul Phillips, Charles LeViness, Robert Waller, Henry Silberman, William Rawson, Philip Mitchell, George Reddish, John Howie, Clayton Calloway and Howard Ward, all of Salisbury; Miss Eleanor Stanford, of Baltimore; Misses Margaret and Nell ... of Princess Anne.

The affair was a very enjoyable one, and at a late hour the guests motored to their homes in Salisbury.

The Fall of The Hohenzollerns

Friday night, June 13th, the management of the Auditorium will present the superb production, "The Great Victory, Wilson or the Kaiser" written in the language of pictures.

"The Great Victory" shows in graphic form the difference in ideas and ideals between the United States and Germany, between Woodrow Wilson and the insane war-lord, William Hohenzollern. How the ex-Kaiser planned the great war, and placed the stamp of his approval on the most bestial and depraved acts the world has ever known, is told in a series of amazing scenes. Such crimes as the deportation of the Belgians and the murder of Nurse Cavell are relentlessly depicted in the general arraignment of the Hun. Then, with the entrance of the United States into the war, comes the victory of right over might, followed by the historic Versailles conference and the restoration of the nations to a just peace.

Dr. Fisher Receives Appointment

Dr. Charles T. Fisher, who has just completed an internship at the Church Home and Infirmary of Baltimore, has been appointed superintendent of the Maryland General Hospital, of Baltimore, for one year and will take up the hospital work on June 15th.

The Maryland General Hospital is one of the large hospitals of Baltimore, having a staff of twelve resident physicians. The Methodist Church recently completed a successful "drive," from which over $100,000 was raised for this institution.

Dr. Fisher expects to specialize in abdominal surgery and will return to the Eastern Shore to practice at the expiration of his service in Baltimore.

May Weather

The weather report for the month of May as compiled by Mr. James R. Stewart, co-operative observer of Princess Anne, follows:

Maximum temperature, 87 degrees on the 30th; minimum temperature, 44 degrees on the 15th and 19th; total precipitation, 4.63 inches. Clear days, 12; partly cloudy, 9; cloudy, 10. Hail on the 6th; thunderstorms on the 6th, 9th, 16th, 17th and 25th. Whippoorwill heard on the 15th. The prevailing wind was southwest.

It is possible to get too much of a good thing, as many a fellow has discovered after he has gone to the bad.

BLAST KILLS 90 IN A TUNNEL

Train Full Of Miners At Wilkes-Barre (Pa.) Blown Up

Ninety men and boys are dead and 48 are injured, according to official lists of the Delaware & Hudson Coal Company and the various hospitals and morgues, as the result of an explosion of blasting powder in a car attached to a trainload of miners being transported to their work in the Baltimore No. 2 mine of Wilkes-Barre, Pa., last Thursday. Of the dead 41 have been identified and 37 are unidentified. A number of the injured have not been identified. The disaster is, with one exception, the greatest that ever has occurred in that vicinity.

More than 100 mine workers were crowded into what is known as a trip of mine cars drawn by a motor. The rear car carried 12 kegs of black powder used for blasting loose the coal in the chambers. The mine is modern and equipped electrically. The trolley wire snapped when the train had gone about 200 feet from the entrance. The wire sputtered and sizzled and the sparks it emitted touched off the powder. The terrified riders instantly were aware of the danger that confronted them but they stood powerless to avert it.

There was a roar and in an instant every man and boy on the train was either dead or wounded. Terribly mangled bodies were found everywhere by the rescue crews which instantly rushed into the mine. Firefighters, working frantically, succeeded in an incredibly short time in subduing the flames which followed the blast.

Crockett-Bounds Wedding

Miss Leilia Jeannette Bounds, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edward G. Bounds, of near Allen, this county, and Attorney James M. Crockett, of Pocomoke City, were married at Allen Methodist Episcopal Church last Tuesday night at 8.30 o'clock.

The church decorations were in pink and green, the color scheme being developed with laurel leaves and roses. Prior to the entrance of the bridal party Mrs. Jessie Pollitt of Allen and Miss Agnes Malone, of Washington, D. C., sang "Because" and "O Promise Me," respectively. The party then entered the church in the following order, taking their places around the altar: The ushers, Mr. Carroll Bounds, of Allen, and Mr. Gerald Crockett, of Pocomoke City; the groom and his best man, Mr. Frank D. Young, of Pocomoke City; the bride's maids, Miss Elizabeth Cahill, of Princess Anne, and Miss Velma Griffith, of Plainville, California; the maid of honor, Miss Adelyn Brown, of Hyattsville, Md.; the flower girl, little Miss Frances Henry, and the bride leaning on the arm of her brother, Mr. Ralph Bounds. The march was rendered by Mrs. Agnes Pollitt, pianist, and Mr. William Wedelin, violinist.

The bride's gown was of ivory satin, with Duchesse lace panels outlined in seed pearls. She wore a veil of the Dutch pattern and orange blossoms were used at its head fastenings. Her flowers were a shower bouquet of orchids, roses and sweet peas.

Following the church ceremony there was a reception at the Bounds home and this was closely followed by a supper at which the members of the bridal party were the participants. Mr. and Mrs. Crockett left on Tuesday night for New York. They will travel through the hill country of New England for a few weeks and return to Pocomoke City, where they will make their home.

The house guests at the Bounds home preceding and during the festive occasion were Misses Ruth Allen, of Towson, Md.; Velma Griffith, of California; Lillian Whitson, of Texas, and Mrs. Laura Henry, of Cambridge, Md.

Thrashing Schools to Conserve Wheat

In keeping with the national program to save wheat by more efficient methods of harvesting and threshing, the farm machinery specialist of the Extension Service of the Maryland State College will hold six one-day thrasher schools at as many different points in the State. The aims and purposes of the movement are to reduce the losses of threshing to an educable minimum.

Five bushels of wheat saved at each setting was the result of using last year in one of the big wheat states only one of the schemes to be discussed as a part of the program. Any man financially interested in saving wheat will be amply repaid for spending only one day at one of these schools.

The County Commissioners of Worcester county struck the levy for 1919 last Tuesday. The county tax-rate is $1.30, which is 20 cents less than last year. (The appropriation for schools was $93,540 and $84,500 for public roads.

TEACHERS $15 AND BARBERS $30

Why Is It Hard To Get School Teachers Now? Here's The Answer

Two advertisements appeared lately in a New York newspaper—one of them calling for a teacher of mathematics, history and psychology, at a salary of $65 a month. The other called for a colored barber at $30 a week.

There is no particular reason why the barber should not get $30 a week. Milk wagon drivers are getting $35, and they don't need to know more about driving than any farm boy knows. A quick, light-fingered barber needs as much dexterity as a milk wagon driver, and deserves as good a salary.

But we are sorry for the teacher of mathematics and history. Sixty-five dollars each calendar month means $15 a week. The barber who gets $30 for pruning whiskers may be glad he knows nothing about mathematics or history. In Washington a teacher has to work 25 years before qualifying for a wage of $1,300 a year. In Chicago a teacher cannot get $1,000 before putting in 17 years in the profession. In 23 states the teachers average less than $400 a year.

And in Illinois a high school teacher who tried to persuade one of his pupils to stay and finish his education was met with an irrefutable argument, "I have a job in a mine," said the boy. "I am making more money without an education than you are making with one."

We are told sometimes that teachers deserve no more than they get. If this is true, it does not improve the situation; it only makes it worse. If the type of education that young America is getting is worth more than is paid for it, so much the better for young America. We may sympathize with the teachers, but we may rejoice that young America is receiving a high standard of educational opportunity. If, however, the education received is worthless, why not offer a price that will buy an education worth having?

At the present moment, the development of the rising generation marks America's greatest crisis. Unrestricted immigration has made this country an ethnological freak show. By offering salaries which will attract teachers whose personality and attainments will be a really uplifting force we may guarantee to the America of the immediate future the perpetuation of the ideals and standards which are at present in danger of passing to the discard.

State Firemen's Association To Meet

On Wednesday, Thursday and Friday, June 11th, 12th and 13th, the city of Salisbury will be in gala attire for one of the largest celebrations ever held in the history of that city. The occasion will be the annual meeting of the State Firemen's Association of Maryland and it is expected that thousands of Firemen from all the larger communities will be in that city with their apparatus and other equipment, together with their special bands, and the three days' celebration will be an event which will gather together probably the largest assemblage of people they have ever had in that place.

On Thursday, June 12th, "The Big Day," the tremendous parade will be held through the streets of the city, and it is expected to have in line not only the firemen and fire companies, but the civic bodies and secret orders with all the soldiers and sailors who have returned from service living in Wicomico county, and the occasion will be one which will be worth going many miles to see.

Ritchie Files Papers

Attorney General Albert C. Ritchie Tuesday filed with the Board of Election Supervisors in Baltimore city, a certificate of his candidacy for the Democratic nomination for Governor. He is the first Democrat to enter the field officially. From the counties come reports of a preference among Democrats for Mr. Ritchie as their candidate. They are willing to concede the nomination to a city Democrat, but they say if the city Democrats cannot agree upon a candidate they will look to the counties for a standard-bearer.

While Senator John Walter Smith's friends are committing themselves to Mr. Ritchie's candidacy, the Senator is "sawing wood and saying nothing."

Suffrage Bill Passed

The House woman suffrage resolution was adopted by the Senate late last Wednesday and the proposed constitutional amendment now goes to the States for ratification.

Preparatory to a final vote on the woman suffrage resolution the Senate rejected, 55 to 23, an amendment by Senator Underwood (Democrat) of Alabama, providing that popular State conventions and not legislatures should act on the proposed constitutional amendment.

The vote was 56 for adoption and 25 against, or two more than two-thirds majority required.

Experience is the best teacher, but she doesn't advertise a correspondence course.

ROYALLY WELCOMED BACK HOME

Boys Of The 79th Division March Through Flowers In Baltimore

The heroic 313th of the 79th paraded last Wednesday afternoon for the last time. On their way to the big wooden city of Maryland, to lay aside the garb and the weapons of war, these noble sons of Baltimore tarried long enough to be honored by the grateful populace of the city and the commonwealth they represented on the frontier of civilization.

It was a gala day in Baltimore, and it was a great day for the officers and men of the regiment. It seems that all of the city turned out along the route to cheer and acclaim the heroes, and it made the soldiers realize that, while they faced death, blood and suffering "over there," warm hearts were beating for them "over here."

It was a typical June day. The sun shone brightly and the peace of God, for which the honored ones had fought, reigned over the homeland. The avenues of dignified commerce and stately residences through which they passed were banked high with human hearts, and all of these beat warmly with joy. There were tears and there were cheers. The emotions of the thousands knew no bounds.

Men, women and children cheered until they were hoarse; some, however, could not demonstrate their feelings. They were glad; they were overcome with joy at the sight of the heroes, but their emotions had no voice. Some of the spectators threw flowers at the feet of the soldiers; others presented huge bouquets to individuals in the line of march. No heroes in the world's history were ever received more warmly upon their return than were these sons of Baltimore, who came back on Wednesday.

Colonel Claude B. Swezey rode at the head of the regiment and his rugged countenance was wreathed in smiles as he acknowledged the cheers of greeting. The men of the 315th have been "Swezey's boys" since September, 1917, when the regiment was born. He made soldiers out of these lads who were called to their feet every walk of life, and he took them away to a field of battle more than 3,000 miles away. Wednesday he brought most of them back and all of Baltimore and Maryland joined in making the welcome complete and in demonstrating their appreciation to the "skipper."

U. S. Troops Quit Russia

A contingent of American infantry which has been serving in Northern Russia boarded a transport at Archangel last Tuesday for the journey to the United States. These are the first American troops detailed to sail for home. The detachment will go to Brest.

Six companies of the Three Hundred and Thirty-ninth Infantry, aggregating 1,600 men, or approximately one-third of the American force on the Archangel front, comprise the first detachment to leave. They embarked at Economica, winter port of Archangel.

Other infantry companies will sail as soon as transports are available, but it is probable that the Thirtieth Engineers will remain there several weeks longer. Brig-Gen. W. P. Richardson, American commander, expects to maintain his headquarters at Archangel a considerable time after the departure of the troops.

Before boarding the transport the Americans were reviewed by General Ironsides, British commander; General Miller, Russian Governor-General, and General Richardson. General Miller thanked them for the "assistance rendered us and for the hardships suffered during the hard winter months," and wished them a happy and safe return home.

State May Welcome Ace Troops

As a number of Maryland boys were not attached either to the 29th or 79th divisions, it is probable that a special day will be set aside for a general rejoicing to include the homecoming of all the boys. Governor Harrington stated that he was not prepared to say just when he would declare such a holiday. Adjutant General Warfield, who is a member of the state reception committee, said last Thursday that he thought the receptions given the 29th and 79th were visible expressions of how Maryland felt, not only to the men of these divisions, but to all the men, and that it would be difficult to bring together all the men scattered throughout the different divisions.

There is a feeling, however, among the members of the committee that all the men, including the Navy men, should receive some special token of appreciation from the state beside certificates thanking them for their services to their country. But as there are no more large units to return to the city it is difficult to determine just how and when the other boys can be entertained.

470,000,000 BUSHELS NEEDED

What Europe Expects of This Country This Year

A preliminary survey of the import necessities of Europe, except Russia, shows that the area will need 700,000,000 bushels of wheat and rye as a minimum or 850,000,000 bushels as a possible maximum, Herbert C. Hoover, the head of the Allied relief organization, said in a statement issued last week. The export surplus of wheat and rye from the larger exporting countries indicate that the needs of Europe can be met. Mr. Hoover estimates the exports of the United States at 470,000,000 bushels.

"Through our organization and in cooperation with the various governments," the statement says, "we have completed a preliminary survey of the food prospects of Europe and the import necessity outside Russia for the harvest year beginning August 1st and the world's supplies available to meet these needs.

"We estimate the total prospective European yield of wheat and rye outside Russia, as of May 1st, after deducting seed, at 1,550,000,000 bushels. This indicates a crop of about 77 per cent. of pre-war normal. The pre-war consumption, outside of seed, was about 2,500,000,000 bushels, indicating a net import of about 950,000,000 bushels if consumption were normal next year. The somewhat diminished populations and the diminished buying power militate against full normal consumption, but the least possible consumption with the maintenance of public health we estimate at 2,250,000,000 bushels, or an import on a minimum basis of about 700,000,000 bushels.

"The consumption will necessarily be to a great degree a factor of the financial recuperation and ability to pay for imports, and is also influenced by the tendency to eat more bread and less of the expensive meat and fats. Restrictions of consumption will require continuation of the rigid control of distribution. People everywhere are sick of rations and every state will make a supreme effort to get from under this blight. Some countries, therefore, will get away from the minimum so that an import demand of 850,000,000 bushels is possible.

"The present stocks and crop conditions in the larger exporting countries would indicate that there should be in the coming harvest year an export surplus of wheat and rye of from 370,000,000 bushels to 900,000,000 bushels, but of this other countries than Europe require 100,000,000 bushels, leaving the supply of from 770,000,000 bushels to 970,000,000 available for Europe.

"The consumption in the United States has increased to an extraordinary degree in the year. From the 1918 crop of rye we will export about 270,000,000 bushels, and as the 1919 crop promises at least 200,000,000 bushels larger than 1918, it seems that we can export at the present rate of consumption about 470,000,000 bushels. The minimum export surplus from Canada, Argentina, Austria and minor countries may be estimated at 400,000,000 bushels, while Russia and India may be considered out of the export list next year."

Let Us Forget—A Timely Warning

While the world is still bleeding from its war wounds the United States Public Health Service has issued a timely warning against an enemy at home which annually claims many more victims than war, and which, unlike Germany, has not been rendered impotent—tuberculosis.

Every three minutes this scourge claims one life in the United States. Every year it lowers national efficiency by depriving the nation of the services of hundreds of thousands of young men and women.

Tuberculosis is preventable by proper living. Taken in time it is curable. It is largely the ignorant and careless who suffer because they are not aware that they are victims until it is too late, or if aware, depend on patent medicines and quacks instead of the best medical skill, wholesome foods, rest and fresh air.

Intent on guarding the nation's health, the United States Public Health Service has just published a leaflet, one of its "Keep Well Series," entitled "How to Avoid Tuberculosis." It gives the symptoms briefly and simply: "Slight cough, lasting a month or longer, loss of weight, slight fever in the afternoon, night sweats, bleeding from the lungs." If any of these symptoms develop the Public Health Service urges you to consult an able physician at once. In addition to this leaflet outlines the proper method of living, which, if followed, would not only go far to prevent tuberculosis, but many other human ailments.

The Nation's Public Debt

The nation's public debt reached a new high mark of $25,921,151,270 at the end of May, an increase of $1,096,640,750 during the month, resulting from new issues of certificates of indebtedness and payments on Victory Loan subscriptions. Ordinary disbursements in May amounted to $907,493,920, only slightly less than the $1,068,203,020 in the same month last year.

FORTUNES IN STAWBERRIES

Politics Driven To Cover On The Shore Says Louis M. Milbourne

The Baltimore Sun last Wednesday gave the following statement after an interview with Mr. Louis M. Milbourne, a native of Somerset county:

Many things have been said of the Eastern Shore and Eastern Shoremen, but the most astounding statement in a half-dozen decades came from the lips of a prominent son of that garden spot of Maryland last Tuesday.

The prominent son was no other than former State Senator, now Deputy Collector of Internal Revenue, L. M. Milbourne. What he said was:

"There is very little interest in politics on the Eastern Shore and it is growing less every day."

He meant it. He actually opined in all seriousness that the Eastern Shore was growing indifferent to the favorite diversion, if not principal business in life, of its inhabitants for these many generations. It is almost as easy to imagine the Chesapeake Bay turning "about face" and climbing up the Susquehanna Valley.

"Go on," said the Deputy Collector's visitor, "you interest me strangely."

"I was down home in Somerset county on Friday and Saturday," Mr. Milbourne continued, "talked with a great many men and haven't heard one of them mention gubernatorial nominations or any other kind of nominations yet. Politics is a dead issue."

And the answer?

"Strawberries."

"The Shore has the biggest and finest crop of strawberries I ever saw and the prices are higher than anything the growers have struck since strawberries were invented. They are shipping them at $10.32 a crate, which is bringing in as much as $1,000 an acre to some of the truckers and seldom less than $600. Men who never had $1,000 at any one time in their history are hauling in that much money in a single day."

Not such a bad substitute for politics at that. And yet it will be hard to convince some people that the ingrowing habit of the Eastern Shore mind to dabble in political matters has been entirely eradicated. It is incredible, strawberries or no strawberries, with a lively little scrap brewing in the Republican ranks and the Democratic hosts floundering around in a sea of uncertainty, with no land in sight.

Maybe that explains the whole situation. The Eastern Shore ought to suspend raking in the strawberry receipts for a day or so and straighten out the troubles of their distinguished sons, "Bill Jackson and "Phil" Goldsborough. And if they can spare, say, three days, they might throw a life line to Senator John Walter. If his fellow-Shoremen are going to favor strawberries with their exclusive attention what is going to happen in the Ritchie, Wade, McCullen, Reckord, Lee, etc., puzzle?

The only ray of hope lies in the fact that the strawberry season is brief. It is just possible, unless beans, cabbage, lettuce and the other agricultural products of the "Sho" do an NC-4 stunt, there will be a reversal to form, and the voice of the political seer will again make sweet music in the land of milk and honey.

Senator Milbourne, though, thinks not. He firmly believes his old home land has been permanently weaned from the political bottle and will stick to the solid foods of business enterprise henceforth and forever more.

"There was a time," said he, "when the political job offered emoluments greater than ordinary pursuits presented, and not too much work. Nowadays a man who puts the amount of effort into business he would have to devote to a political job can realize a much greater return. Hence—well, most anyone can do his own hencing. The conclusion is obvious."

Now then, what? Has the grand old State of Maryland nothing to look forward to but a weary struggling along in matters politic without the guidance and genius peculiar to t'other side of the Chesapeake?

Seem' is believin'.

Steamer Virginia Victim Found

The body of Hyman Smith, of Newport News, who was drowned when the steamer Virginia was burned off Smith's Point on May 24th, was found last Tuesday afternoon floating near Crisfield by a party of fishermen, and later was sent to Newport News for burial.

Several days previous the bodies of the dead man's son, Benjamin Smith, 8 years old, and his sister-in-law, Miss Ida Levy, were recovered, and also sent to Newport News.

There are yet two persons who were on the Virginia who are not accounted for, Peter Brill, 1723 Lancaster street, Baltimore, and J. Slater, colored, second cook of the Virginia. Officials of the company believe Brill was the unknown man who was reported to have perished in his stateroom. Nothing is known of the negro.

Second Choice

By R. RAY BAKER

(Copyright, 1919, by the McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

Sadie Marshall came out of the cloakroom with a little skip in her walk and a lot of happiness in her eyes, and went behind the counter to prepare for the big rush of bargain hunters enticed by announcement of the "mammoth yellow tag sale at Miller Brothers' dry goods store."

"What's the excitement?" inquired Tillie Edmonds, offering a stick of gum which proved acceptable.

"Can't tell you," demurred Sadie, as she stripped the wrapping off the gum and placed the delicacy in her mouth. "It's a secret, but—gee! I'm happy!"

Tillie scowled. She felt like reclaiming the gum, but it was too late. Sadie was chewing it recklessly.

"Oh, all right; keep it to yourself," snorted Tillie, and proceeded to turn her back on the other girl and display unusual energy in dusting some bolts of muslin.

But Sadie couldn't keep it. "I'll tell you," she said, "if you promise not to tell anyone else;" and Tillie turned with the scowl still on her forehead, but her ears wide open. "I'm—I'm engaged to one of the finest young men in the world."

Tillie's face was radiant with smiles. She seized both of the other's hands and pumped them up and down for a full minute, while she showered congratulations on her.

"Good! Fine!" she beamed. "When you going to leave us, and what's the gentleman's name? Is it that one I saw you walking with in Central park, feeding the squirrels, a couple of weeks ago?"

The light of happiness in Sadie's eyes lost some of its brilliancy, although it was by no means dispelled.

"It's a Secret."

"No," she said, somewhat less enthusiastically, "he's not the one, although he asked me only last Sunday. That's Mr. Piper, but he's not the one I'm going to marry, although I have to confess I like him an awful lot. My future husband's name is Jasper Jewels and he's got just loads of money and drives a motorcar and—everything."

Tillie sniffed. "I'm kinda sorry," she said. "I liked that Mr. Piper real well, what little I saw of him, and I get suspicious of these fellows who have lots of money. How do you know he's rich and owns an automobile?"

"Well, I've ridden in the car with him," declared Sadie, "and as for his being rich—why, he told me so himself, and you ought to see the clothes he wears! He's spick and span, always, I tell you. Mr. Piper, as I said, is nice and has been very good to me, and if it hadn't been that Mr. Jewels bobbed up—"

Then the bargain hunters began to arrive, and there was no time to talk or think matrimony for the rest of the day. About the time the five o'clock whistles were blowing, a blonde young man, garbed in a blue and white striped suit of a cut and shade that bordered on the radical, entered the white goods department, and Sadie introduced him as her "intended." He had an easy grace of manner and a winning smile that quite captivated the salesgirls—all except Tillie, who simply said: "How'do? Glad to know you," and continued shoving bolts of cloth back on the shelves.

Sadie clung to his arm as they left the store and entered a big green touring car that stood at the curb. Those few salesgirls who were able to scramble to the window did so and stood agape as the machine whirled away.

After having dinner at a restaurant, Sadie and Mr. Jewels took a ride in Brooklyn before going to the theater. While on the ride, Sadie was presented with a ring containing a dazzling white stone. Then, just in time to see the beginning of the performance, they drove up to the theater.

The play was a good one. It had enjoyed a long run in the theater and still was drawing big houses. But Sadie's enjoyment of it was considerably lessened by her consciousness, which was awakened by the presence of a young man seated across the aisle, three rows down. The young man had dark-brown hair and wore rather plain, but neat clothes. Evidently he was in the company of two others, who sat on either side of him, for he could be seen conversing with them frequently.

"Mr. Piper," mused Sadie. "How in the world can he afford to come to this show? He works somewhere in a factory in Brooklyn. I forget just where he said."

Her conscience was bothering her because of the treatment she was accorded her own heart. She knew that she really cared more for Mr. Piper than for her present escort, and she also realized that it was the lure of wealth that had caused her to accept Jewels' offer of marriage.

Her acquaintance with Mr. Piper dated six months back, to one day in late summer, when she was canoeing with two girl chums on Otsego lake. None of the girls knew anything about the management of a canoe, and they nearly paid dearly for their rash adventure on the water. They were about half a mile from shore when the canoe overturned, and if it had not been for Robert Piper, who, with two other young men, paddled up at the right moment, it is unlikely that any of the girls would have escaped with her life. Robert at once began being attentive to Sadie and the affair had become quite serious when she met Jasper Jewels one night at a dance.

Just how the alarm started was never ascertained, but as the curtain descended at the close of the second act the cry of "fire" spread through the audience. It was taken up from the orchestra seats and the boxes to the balconies and galleries and, without stopping to learn the extent of the danger, or if any existed, the greater part of the audience went into a panic, and those who did try to maintain their composure were carried off their feet by the frenzied mob which swept in the fury of terror toward the exits.

Startled like the rest, but so dazed that she scarcely knew which way to turn, Sadie sprang to her feet, reaching out an arm to clutch her male escort. But he had fled up the aisle. Helpless, the girl stood there, buffeted back and forth, until a strong arm grasped her and she felt herself lifted and carried swiftly away, while cries of terror and pain were raised repeatedly on every hand.

It seemed like hours, but it was only a moment later that she realized she was again on her feet and was surprised to see that she was standing on the stage, which was free of the panic-stricken crowd. Beside her stood Robert Piper.

"Come, let's get out of here," faltered Sadie. "We'll be burned up." Piper laughed. "I guess not. There isn't any fire. It's a false alarm. If the orchestra had only been on the job it could have stopped the panic; it's been done that way many a time."

The next day Miller Brothers' sale continued. After the mad nightmare at the theater, however, the battle for bargains seemed to Sadie like a very calm and sedate affair. Nevertheless she was kept so busy that she had no time for words with Tillie until late in the afternoon.

"Well, Mr. Jewels coming after you again this evening?" Tillie inquired during a lull, as she leaned up against the wall, uttered a sigh of relief and placed a stick of gum in her mouth.

Sadie's lip curled. "No," she retorted; "but Mr. Piper is. I decided to marry him after all, and let Mr. Jewels go, even if he is rich and owns a motorcar. I'll take my chances on the poor factory hand. See, here's the ring Jasper gave me last night. I'm going to send it back."

Tillie took the ring and held it up to the light. An expression of scorn crossed her face as she placed her arms akimbo and stopped chewing gum long enough to say:

"Some jewel, Sadie, some jewel. Must have cost all of a quarter. Pure glass and brass, that's what it is. So you're going to take a chance on the poor one, are you? Why, you poor deluded kid, I've been investigating things since I met your used-to fiancé last night, and I've found some interesting facts; and one is that your second choice is the best you could have made. I thought that Jasper person looked kinda suspicious, and I was right. Do you know who he chauffeurs for? Well, I'll tell you. The fellow that owns the big green machine is Robert Piper, who also owns a factory over in Brooklyn; and he's all to the good, that fellow is."

He Fooled His Friends. When the Americans drove the Germans out of the St. Mihiel salient the job was done so quickly and cleverly that a lot of booty fell into their hands. There was one private at Thiaucourt who took a chance, says Stars and Stripes, the soldiers' newspaper, but he could not resist the temptation.

When his mates first saw him they were uncertain whether he was the kaiser or the crown prince as they rushed forward to make the capture. He was riding a German officer's horse, he had a German officer's helmet, and on his chest was pinned the iron cross, all left by German officers in their rush to safety. The squad of Americans bent upon making an important capture were tremendously disgusted to find that it was only Private Jones of the Infantry.

ENTRANCE EXAMINATIONS State Scholarships in Engineering Courses

Entrance Examinations for the Department of Engineering, as well as for the College of Arts and Sciences, will be held in Gillman Hall, Homewood, Monday to Saturday, June 16th to 21st, 1919, beginning at 9 a. m., each day, under the auspices of the College Entrance Examination Board.

Applications for Scholarships in the Department of Engineering, established under the provisions of the Laws of Maryland, Chapter 90, 1912, will now be received. If there is more than one applicant for a particular scholarship, a competitive examination must be taken Friday, September 19th, 1919, beginning at 9 a. m. Appointments will be made soon thereafter.

Each Legislative District of Baltimore City and each county of the State, with the exception of Harford, Howard, Queen Anne's and Somerset counties, will be entitled to one or more scholarships for the year 1919-1920, in addition to those which have already been assigned. In the four counties mentioned above, all the available scholarships have been awarded.

Under the provisions of the Act of Assembly, the County and City Scholarships in the Department of Engineering are awarded only to deserving students whose financial circumstances are such that they are unable to obtain an education in Engineering unless free tuition be granted to them. The scholarships entitle the holders to free tuition, free use of text-books, and exemption from all regular fees. One of the scholarships in each county and each Legislative District of the city carries also the sum of $200. The expense of attendance for those who do not receive scholarships is not greater than at other Maryland institutions.

Scholarships may be awarded to graduates of Loyola College, St. John's College, Washington College, Western Maryland College, Maryland Agricultural College, Mt. St. Mary's College, Rock Hill College. (One scholarship will be awarded "At Large.")

Applicants should address the Registrar, The Johns Hopkins University, for blank forms of application and for catalogues giving information as to examinations, award of scholarships, and courses of instruction. The next session begins Tuesday, September 30th, 1919.

REFUGE FROM SUDDEN STORM

Easily Constructed Shelter Which Should Have Place on Every Public Picnic Ground.

There is not much pleasure to be had in the woods if no shelter is near when rain threatens at any minute. Many picnics are broken up by showers which last but a few minutes, simply because there is no way to protect the food or to keep dry until the squall passes over, writes C. L. Meller, Fargo, N. D., in Popular Mechanics Magazine. A shelter, such as illustrated, will take the discomfort out of walks and picnics, and will induce people to tempt the weather more often, since they know that protection is within easy reach.

A dead tree, the trunk of which is still quite sound, makes an excellent start for such a shelter. It should be cut off about ten feet from the ground, care being taken to make the saw cuts as even as possible. It may be necessary to erect scaffolding to make this cut properly. After the cut surface is worked smooth, eight rafters are fitted into the top of the trunk. The rafters are 12 feet long, four of them being two by four inch timber, and four, four by four inches. They are supported at the outer end by four by four inch posts, driven into the ground and extending eight feet above it. The four by four inch rafters should be fitted into the log first, the two by four inch being added later. Upon this framework, which forms an octagonal, umbrella-shaped structure seven-eighths inch boards are nailed to form the roof. This may be covered with shingles or some roofing material.

For greater comfort, a seat built around the trunk may be added, and other seats may be built near it. The whole structure should be finished in a dark, neutral brown, with just a touch of white trimming. If the roof is stained a moss-green, the color scheme will be in harmony during all seasons of the year, with the prevailing colors throughout the surrounding woods.

BUILD TO SUIT HOUSEWIFE

Designers Appreciate Importance of House Construction From the Standpoint of the Women.

The average citizen, supported by the women of his household, is demanding improved home building and this will, of course, influence all future building operations. From now on consideration of the housing question must be primarily from the point of view of the housewife. Consequently, labor-saving devices will be increasingly stressed. Landlords have learned that it can be just as profitable to own well-kept properties as it is to own dilapidated tenements, or vacant lots filled with rubbish or billboards.

The United States Housing corporation, however, has not adopted any Utopian building scheme. It has simply recognized that the efficiency of the workman is seriously depreciated if he and his family must live in unsanitary dwellings. It has been proved that if he is to work to his best capacity he must be not only well housed but housed adequately and comfortably within reasonable distance from his workshop and at a rental he will be able to pay.

Industrial housing is a comparatively new proposition in America. It is an old one in England, and in many ways it has been adequately solved. The problem there is now largely dealt with from the woman's angle.

Need for City Planning

The need of city planning and the pushing of public work is greater to day than ever before, said Walter D. Moody, managing director of the Chicago plan commission, in an interview with a representative of the Christian Science Monitor. Not only is this true because public work needs to be done to aid in the solution of the labor problem, continued Mr. Moody, but the cities in the United States have grown so rapidly in the last twenty years and the problems of city life are so complex that the new conditions cannot be coped with for the well-being of the people in them without a definite city plan to work to. The problems of parks, better housing, sanitation, ample means for recreation, and facilitation of traffic and the relief of traffic congestion, must be given special attention.

GOOD BUILDINGS FOR SHEEP

Should Be Dry, Well Drained, Ventilated and Furnish Ample Space for the Flock.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

The site for permanent buildings for sheep should first of all be dry and well drained. Ample yard space that is dry and sheltered should be available adjacent to the main barn or shed. A southern slope with sandy soil is especially satisfactory for this purpose.

On most farms, it will be advantageous to have the buildings and yards easily reached from the regular pastures or from fields used to grow forage crops for summer pasture. As the flock requires attention many times daily during part of the year, convenience of location in relation to the farm dwelling and to other buildings will effect an economy of time in the performance of routine labor.

Since sheep do not require quarters that are especially warm, a single wall will ordinarily insure sufficient warmth. If lambs are dropped in very cold weather, a temporary covering over the lambing panels will provide warmth, or a small space can be partitioned off in which to keep a few ewes until their lambs become strong. Shade and protection from heat are peculiarly necessary for sheep. Shade cannot always be furnished in pastures, and buildings that are well located and constructed so as to render them cool in summer will often provide greater comfort to the sheep during hot days than would be possible for them out of doors.

Dryness and freedom from draft are most important. Sheep cannot possibly thrive in quarters that are damp or dark. In fact, the flock should be shut in only during storms. Abundance of light in all parts of the building and at all times is necessary not only for the health of the sheep, but for convenience of the shepherd in caring for them. One square foot of window for each 20 square feet of floor space is necessary. Windows should be placed at a height to insure a good distribution of light, and particularly direct sunlight for the lambing pens during the period the ewes are lambing.

Close confinement in poorly ventilated pens is very injurious to breeding ewes. While they should seldom be shut indoors, a part of the flock will usually lie inside at night. At lambing and during storms doors should be closed. For such times it is necessary to provide means of securing fresh air without creating drafts. In a very large building with numerous doors and windows it is often advisable to build one or two partitions from floor to ceiling to prevent drafts. Fresh air can be admitted through muslin-screened windows opened on the side opposite to that from which the wind is blowing without causing drafts if all other sides of the building are tightly closed.

Level and well-drained clay-surfaced floors are satisfactory and economical. Sheep pack the surface very firmly, and if there is proper drainage the only objection to this floor is that it does not exclude rats. Concrete floors for alleys and feed rooms are necessary, but will seldom be called for in the pens.

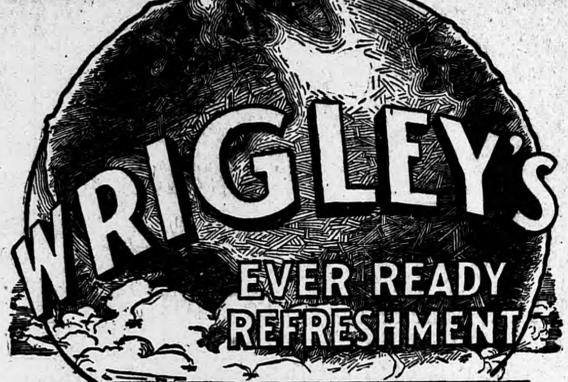

The main features to be provided in the floor plan are minimum of waste space, convenience and ease in feeding and in cleaning the pens, and elimination of the need of moving or disturbing the sheep. Pen partitions should be movable. By using feed racks to make divisions in the pen space the size of the pens can be varied as needed, and in special cases the racks can be removed to permit the use of the space for other stock.

Farmer Who Does Not Raise Animals to Supplement Crops Loses Soil Fertility.

More and more is the tendency toward livestock raising to supplement crop growing in general farming. The farmer who raises crops, such as corn, cotton, sorghum, hay, etc., without animals and sells these products must sell the fertility constituents at wholesale and buy meat, milk, butter, flour, meal, etc., at retail, paying the high cost of hauling both ways and dealers' profits. Animal raising saves fertility and the high cost of hauling. It is worth while.

Learn How a Silo Can Increase Your Bank Account.

In a West Virginia community droughts and hot weather "burnt up" the crops three years in succession. One farmer built a silo and bought a few cattle. The results were so satisfactory that the next season there were fully a half dozen silos on different farms and more stock appeared.

Today this West Virginia community is studded with silos and is one of the most prosperous farming communities in the state.

The moral is this: That the greatest profits of farming are in feeding part of the crops to live stock. The silo makes it possible to feed the stock at little cost, and you derive profits both from dairying and then selling the stock for market.

FARM STOCK

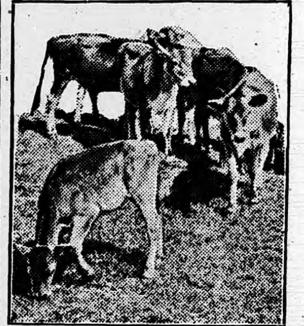

NECESSARY FEED FOR STOCK

Animals Help to Retain Fertility of Soil and Provide Profitable Use for Roughage.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

Now that farming is to be restored to a peace-time basis, the United States department of agriculture believes that many lands formerly devoted to pasture or meadow but recently used for emergency grain production should be reseeded to grass.

The signing of the armistice found the United States with relatively large supplies of foods and relatively small supplies of feeds, with much land impoverished by having been planted to grain year after year, and with a still Raise More Dairy Calves—the Nation Needs Them.

Increasing demand for meat and fats.

Numbers of all classes of live stock have been maintained. Those of swine and sheep have been increased, the former largely, the latter slightly. But the quantities of forage and pasture for live stock have been diminished.

Sound agricultural practice demands, the department thinks, the reestablishment of regular and satisfactory rotations so that fertility may be restored and the live stock carrying capacity of the land increased.

Live stock, since it helps to retain fertility on the land, provides a profitable use for large amounts of roughage and gives employment to labor throughout the year, should find a place on a larger number of farms.

Diversified farming should become more general, to the end that each farm shall produce the necessary food for its family and the necessary feed for its live stock.

Loss from preventable plant diseases should be guarded against by seed treatment and spraying.

Harvesting of fruits and vegetables before exposure to frost, and greater care during harvesting, packing, storing, and marketing, are urged, together with continued organized efforts for the prevention and control of diseases of animals.

Increase in Pork in West Virginia More Than Million and One-Half Pounds—Silage Is Fed.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

County agents of West Virginia, in carrying out the program of the United States department of agriculture and the state agricultural college to increase food production, last year encouraged the farmers of the state to keep additional sows, the result being that these sows produced 13,722 pigs, which increased West Virginia's pork production by more than a million and half pounds. The value of good blood in live stock breeding has been one of the things particularly emphasized by the agents and thereby 18,446 cows were bred to registered sires instead of scrubs, which meant an increased value at birth of calves of at least $164,460. It is estimated.

The agents report that 7,520 cattle were fed silage for the first time last winter with a resultant saving of not less than $37,600 to their owners. Ewes to the number of 6,895 were bred to registered rams instead of scrubs with a prospective increased value of the lamb crop of upward of $8,000. Sheep numbering 4,225 and valued at more than $21,000 were saved from the ravages of parasites through the activities of the various county agents.

In spite of the fact that living quarters are very scarce in Washington Mr. Wilson has not yet rented any of the White House rooms.

Among the popular superfluities that ought to be very heavily taxed is the pleasure that some people seem to find in knocking the home town.

According to William J. Bryan the present Congress is drier than its predecessor. If that be true it is hoped that nobody will strike a match.

Chorus of Americans after hearing that President Wilson is likely to stay "over there" a month or two longer: "Where is my wandering boy to-night?"

It's an awful come-down from the glorious experiences of victory to have to descend to celebrating Rug Beating Week out in the back yards of Princess Anne.

Up to date none of the June brides have shown any indication of willingness to exchange her throne and position for that of President Wilson, John D., or Mary Pickford.

THE BUSINESS BOOM

A few months ago sentiment as to the business outlook was greatly divided. Many authorities took a most depressed view. They foresaw widespread unemployment, soldiers lying around idle, the whole country torn up by labor troubles and general unrest and perhaps revolutionary movements.

It is marvellous how business is re-justifying itself after the strain of a devastating war. Little is heard about unemployment. The principal question so far is as to where the labor is going to come from to harvest the crops.

The big burst of confidence is evidenced in a pronounced stock market advance. Evidently a lot of people are willing to back up their hopes with their money. Leading financiers agree that the outlook is promising for unusual prosperity. So business men who are hesitating on account of their doubts and fears, as so frequently happens, are probably missing opportunities that others of more hopeful temperament will gather in.

BOY SCOUT WORK

President Wilson has issued an appeal suggesting that the week of June 8th to the 14th be observed everywhere as Boy Scout Week.

The Boy Scouts did such fine work during the war that they are entitled now to a little glorification. The type of boy who used to be chasing around the streets ringing people's door bells and hooking fruit has been given by the Scouts an outlet for his surplus activities. He has been given a chance to gratify those instincts of primitive experience and wild life that are innate in every boy. At the same time he has had the touch of discipline that frequently he fails to get in his own home.

These boys under old customs would have been a negligible force in the war. The Scouts brought them into line as community workers and got a lot of service out of them. They sold a great amount of bonds and war stamps; they planted gardens, they distributed literature, they helped swell the enthusiasm at parades. They gave up a great deal of time they used to spend in aimless roving. And apparently they were just as happy. Give a boy a drum and a leader and he will have just as much fun as if he is stealing fruit.

In towns and neighborhoods where the Scouts are well established the citizens should take hold to place their organization on a firmer foundation. They should have permanent quarters where they can meet for drills and social life and entertainments. Business men and athletic leaders should be willing to take hold and serve as scoutmasters and help otherwise.

Towns that have no Scout organization should hasten to form one. It seems the best society yet formed to bring out boys and develop them along lines of discipline and achievement.

GARDEN SPIRIT

Last year about this time a tremendous campaign was being conducted to get everyone to raise a garden. Appeals poured forth from the government and the newspapers. The schools were full of garden talk. It was made clear that a good patriot must have some excellent excuse if he was not adding a little something to the food stock from his own home grounds.

Many men who hadn't touched a hoe nor a spade since they were boys, and many women who had never laid hands on one in their lives, got out into the back yard. They strove and sweat with refractory soils, insatiate insects and weeds of tropical luxuriance. There was a pleasure in joining a country wide and community movement. And there was a good deal of social life over the back yard fence too.

This year there has been no organized campaign to promote gardening except among the school children. Some of the people who raised little but blisters last year, have perhaps decided to quit for this season.

Yet the reasons for general co-operation in raising vegetables are still good. The world is still short of foods. Famine prevails in Europe. Sensible people regret that up to the war period the gardening habit seemed to have gone out of fashion. Years ago the home garden was as common an adjunct as it was last year. Many families founded their prosperity on their thrifty habit of raising a large part of their food on their own land.

The garden habit helped them keep in good muscular condition and gave them just as good out door life as could be offered by membership in the most costly country and outing club. So the gardeners who have acquired cold feet should warm them up again. The back yard gardens will all be needed. Every cultivated plot adds just so much to the wealth, the prosperity and the health of the nation.

REMOVING POVERTY

Accidents that cripple a person for life cause poverty in many families. The number of injuries in mills, mines, and on railroads has been appalling. Twelve years ago, out of each 1,000 men employed in the iron and steel business, 242 were killed or injured. That number has been greatly reduced since then by an accident prevention campaign; but it is still unreasonably large. While the workmen's compensation system offers the injured man very great assistance, it is a tax on society and it does not remove the worker's disability. Poverty still frequently exists in the injured worker's family.

Accident compensation is good, but not so good as accident prevention. To some extent injuries are due to lack of safety appliances. While laws and inspections remove hazards to a certain extent, in many plants dangerous conditions still exist and could be removed without prohibitive expense.

The chief cause of industrial accidents is the negligence of the workers. Anyone who has watched the employes in a large railroad freight yard and has observed how they jump around on moving engines and trains, can see why there are great numbers of railroad injuries each year. Some people seem ashamed to take precautions and think it shows lack of a manly spirit.

Children are constantly being hurt and made dependents for life by such practices as hopping freights, stealing rides on the rear of trucks, crossing streets without regard to automobiles and a hundred other ways.

Schools and factories need to conduct an incessant Safety, First Campaign. They should use moving picture films showing the results of carelessness. Reckless people should be shown how a moment's negligence may take away their earning power and make them dependents of charity for a life time.

The Attempt On Secretary Palmer

Never before has this country experienced an organized bomb attack. It came near it last May Day, when the attempt to send so many infernal machines to public men through the mails was happily frustrated. But the practically simultaneous explosions that occurred Monday night of last week in Washington, New York, Cleveland, Pittsburgh, Philadelphia, Boston and Paterson mark altogether too near an approach to success. If there were no fatalities, that is merely the way bombs sometimes chance to act. The attack was pulled off.

Of course, such a thing cannot be endured. If we are up against Anarchists, then the Anarchists have got to go. There may be two or three or a dozen or a hundred involved. But it does not seem the time to insist overcrucially upon incriminating evidence of the exact kind only. When anarchists begin indulging in such crimes as this, all Anarchistic agitation becomes pretty nearly criminal. To the best of our knowledge not an arrest followed the May Day attempt, nor did more rigorous measures, even, against invitation to lawlessness. This is not the way to meet such threats; certainly not the way to meet anarchy's actual activities.

A Hopeful Sign

With 50,000 soldiers reported to have applied for farms under the plan evolved by Secretary Lane for placing returning fighters upon hitherto untilled lands, it would seem that this scheme, so full of promise on paper, is in a fair way to work out successfully in practice. If it does, even in a measurable degree, Secretary Lane will have done one of the truly constructive works which were so generally predicted as certain to be consequent upon the war.

Congress should give the most generous co-operation to Mr. Lane and the latter's associates, who have been studying this project since soon after we entered the war. So far as is apparent, there has been little or no partisanship between the Democratic Department of the Interior and the Republican leaders in Congress in their negotiations respecting the necessary legislation. There should be none at any stage. Ample money should be provided by Congress for the effectual development of the farms.

For the placing of large numbers of soldiers upon new farms is pregnant with numerous chances of good. It will increase the food supply, and our land, with its rapid increase in population, must give attention to food supply, particularly as the last few decades have witnessed a movement of youth away from the farm which has not been offset entirely by the notable and constant introduction of labor-saving machinery. Not only that, placing soldiers on farms, with proper setting for success of the industrious, will give an outlet to the craving for life in the open, for the more strenuous life, which has been quickened in the hearts of tens of thousands of American boys by their army experiences. It will protect against the danger of unhealthy fermentation of this craving, which might follow if the boys were forced unwillingly back into the sedentary pursuits of the cities.

Again, the movement of these husky young heroes, 50,000 or more strong, to the farm, with its opportunity for independent endeavor, may affect the psychology of all youth—may open the eyes of boys now on the farms to the attractions of the life about them, and may draw city-bred boys from the haberdasheries and the like to the more vital life. And it is not to be forgot that this in turn may shift the weight of unemployment from the cities and relieve the frequent surpluses of labor to be found there, which would mean also lessening the social dangers, the Bolshevistic tendencies that develop in the cities under the blight of unemployment.

By all means, let Secretary Lane and Congress go ahead. The 50,000 soldier applicants for farms are one of the hopeful signs of these troublous times.

Pennies in Demand

Every mint in the United States has been put on a twenty-four hour schedule for turning out pennies and the output has been pushed up to 90,000,000 a month and yet the supply is not equal to the demand. War taxes which add an odd cent or two above the regular price of soda fountain refreshments, cigars and numerous smaller commodities of trade are chiefly responsible, although in the period preceding the war there had been a considerable increase in the use of pennies in trade.

The situation revives the proposal for the return to the fractional currency of the country of the two-cent piece, or some similar intermediary between the penny and the nickel. Sufficient variation in size, as compared with either the penny or five-cent piece, without necessitating the revival of the clumsy two-cent piece which the generation of middle age can remember, and one coin would serve where two are required in a large proportion of the little everyday transactions. Labor in the mints would be saved and the convenience of the public would be served.

Repealing the sales taxes will lessen some of the demand for pennies, but as long as high prices continue, the importance of pennies will continue to be recognized, the odd cent in price-marks will be a recognized power of attraction and it will continue to be necessary to have ample facilities for breaking the nickel. A two-cent coin is in order.—Philadelphia Evening Bulletin.

Cut This Out And Take It With You

A man often forgets the exact name of the article he wishes to purchase, and as a last resort, takes something else instead. That is always disappointing and unsatisfactory. The safe way is to cut this out and take it with you so as to make sure of getting Chamberlain's Tablets. You will find nothing quite so satisfactory for constipation and indigestion.

McAllen, Marjory Heath, M. Guy Walker and Ralph Wilson, of Princess Anne. These boys enlisted in May 1917, and some had not been to their home town since that time.

The Woman's Parish Aid, of St. Andrew's Protestant Episcopal Church, will hold its semi-annual rummage sale on Saturday, June 14th, in the store house of Mr. Cohn. Every one interested in the fund for the improvement of the church building, which will be started soon, is asked to be very liberal in their donations. By notifying Mrs. W. T. G. Polk or Mrs. J. T. Taylor, Jr., the bundles will be called for.

If your neighbor is prosperous, let him prosper. Don't grunt, growl or grumble. Say a good word for him and let it go at that. Don't be a knocker. Your turn will come. No one man is the whole show. If you see that the town is moving along nicely, feel good about it. Help things along, shove a little. Try to get some of the benefit yourself. Don't stand around like a chilly old cadaver. Don't waste time feeling sore because some fellow has a little more sand and sense than you have. Do a little hustling yourself.

Mr. Wisler Cured of Indigestion

"Some time in 1909 when I had an attack of indigestion and everything looked gloomy to me, I received a free sample of Chamberlain's Tablets by mail. I gave them a trial and they were such a help to me that I bought a package, and I can truthfully say that I have not had a similar attack since." writes W. B. Wisler, Douglassville, Pa.

Corn Borer Makes Its Bow

The arrival of a new pest on the farms of Massachusetts, Connecticut and New York, known as the European corn borer, is announced in the monthly crop report of the State Department of Agriculture, issued last Thursday. The report says that the insect was probably brought into this country on hemp and that it hibernated as a caterpillar in corn stalks and large weeds.

Booze Is Not A Good Cure

From the Ames Iowa Intelligencer.

When a man comes to you all doubled up with pain and declares he will die in your presence unless you procure him a drink of whiskey, send him to a doctor or else give him a dose of Chamberlain's Colic and Diarrhoea Remedy. There is a mistaken notion among a whole lot of people that booze is the best remedy for colic and stomach ache.

MAKE USE OF PRINTER'S INK

Federal Official Urges Necessity of Campaign of Advertising to Attract Attention of Consumers.

"Advertise your business. I owe all my success to printer's ink." This was the language of P. T. Barnum, and that he was a conspicuous success is generally admitted.

Something of the same sort seems to have struck Washington. Roger W. Babson, director of education service, labor department, has issued a statement urging a campaign of advertising, saying in part: "Prosperity ultimately depends upon the consumer. If there is not a market for goods they will not be produced."

Only by advertising can buying power be stimulated, but advertising does stimulate buying power and brings a very direct return to the man who advertises.

It is sound advice. It is also timely.

Advertising is the chief auxiliary in trade. It is not the road to success, but success itself. Advertising is to the business man what machinery is to the mechanic.

How can a man know what you want unless you ask for it, or what you have to sell unless you advertise it?

"My advice to the merchant," says Mr. Babson, "is this: For your own interest and for the good of the country, increase the advertising appropriation you have made for this year. If it is $20,000, make it $25,000; make it more if you can."

And all must bear in mind that the prosperity of the country means the prosperity of the individual.—New York Telegram.

FORCED TO FINE DOG HERO

But New York Justice Took Into Consideration Animal's Brave Deed in the Past.

Two medals bestowed for bravery hung from the collar of Jim, a Great Dane, when he appeared in the West side court the other day, charged with having been unmuzzled in public, says the New York World.

Patrolman Joseph B. Ward, attached to the health department, said he had seen Jim in a car without a muzzle. Jim would not let the policeman come near when an attempt to serve the summons was made, Ward testified.

Harry Gilpin, a druggist, told the magistrate about Jim's heroism. Mr. Gilpin and his daughter were asleep in their house one night in 1916, when a fire started. Jim was running up and down outside when the firemen arrived. He failed to make the firemen or the crowd understand what the trouble was. So he darted into the smoke and fire and dragged out first Mr. Gilpin and then Miss Gilpin, both overcome.

For this Jim received the Spiera medal that year and Miss Gilpin gave him another. Recently the Alps club of Riverdale honored him.

"A dog that is as brave as you are deserves consideration," Magistrate Nolan said, "but you weren't muzzled and you resisted the officer. Fine $1." Jim carried the bill in his mouth to the clerk of the court and took the receipt back to Mr. Gilpin.

Submarine Signals.

During the war, as is well known, submarine sound-signaling made great strides. In Schiffbau an account is given of a device employed in Germany. In this device the receiver is secured to the outer layer of the ship's hull from inside and is filled with water, the liquid being in contact with the outer plating of the vessel. The essential point in this device appears to be that the means for producing the sound are placed externally on the wall of the liquid tank, whereas in most cases the sounding device has hitherto been arranged inside the tank or receiver. Another special feature is an automatic arrangement for maintaining constant, or adjusting, the level of the water, which can be manipulated externally.—Scientific American.

Wrong Kind of Clothes.

Little tragedies occur to the men who have to chronicle the larger ones. On Thursday evening our "special correspondent" (arrayed in a silk hat and the best morning costume) arrived to find his mission meant the late train to Whitehaven and a plunge into a burning mine.

He telephoned at once for the proper clothes, but the message must have miscarried in the ear of the careful maid, who packed up a valise of dress clothes and shirts for the man who was to go down the mine.—London Chronicle.

Got It Bad.

The young man about town had just been accepted by "the one girl in the world," who, nevertheless, was a member of a forty-strong beauty chorus.

"So you think you love her?" smiled his father.

"I know I love her!" swore the infatuated youth.

"Are you sure you love her as much as you think you do?"

Making Success.

Make today successful. Bend your energies toward accomplishing something within the next 24 hours which you can think of with satisfaction when you put your head on your pillow at night. Enough successful days make a life success, and there is no other way of doing it.—Girl's Companion.

DIDN'T MEAN IT LITERALLY

English Soldier's Expressed Wish That Death Might Come Was Followed by Hasty Revision.

Maj. Gen. John J. O'Ryan, who has just returned from France, has brought back a number of humorous stories of the battlefield. Here is one he tells about an English sentinel: "The Twenty-seventh division was in Flanders, where it rains almost continuously," began the general. "There were English troops billeted near by. One night, after a particularly hard rain, this English chap was on duty. When he thought no one was around he began to curse everything in general, the weather, the Germans and his own luck. 'Oh, I say, this is blawsted weather, dontcha know. I wish I was out of this beastly mud,' the English sentry muttered. A few minutes later he was cursing the rain which beat in his face. 'Gawd, but I wish I was out of this beastly water,' he mused again. Just then the Germans opened a heavy fire and made things uncomfortable for everyone. 'Oh, Gawd, but this is beastly,' said the sentry, raising his voice. 'Oh, I do hate those blawsted Germans. I wish I were dead.' Simultaneously with his last words a big 'Minnie' dropped almost at the sentry's feet. When he recovered he was lying in a hole covered with mud but uninjured. The sentry sat up, rubbed the mud from his eyes, and then gazing heavenward, said, 'Oh, I say, Gawd, cawn't you take a blawsted joke?'—New York Sun.

FAR BEYOND ALLOTTED SPAN

Instances of Remarkable Cases of Longevity Which Seem to Be Well Authenticated.

The death at Nenagh, County Tipperary, Ireland, of Mrs. Bourke, who was reported to have reached the age of 121 years, has led the London Daily Express to make a record of some of the other famous cases of longevity. In 1904 the regimental chaplain of the 18th Bengal infantry was still conducting services in Calcutta at the age of 130. In 1908 Andrei Nikolavitch Schmidt, a Russian, produced papers which showed that he was 136 years old, and had enlisted in the Reval battalion in 1796. The same year Hadji Raouf was 133, and was still earning a living as a saddler in Constantinople, but he was a juvenile compared with Quo-Ka-Num, an Indian chief who roamed the shores of Puget sound at the age of 160. He was generally conceded by Europeans more likely to be 200, and he claimed to remember the time when iron was unknown to his tribe. He was 2 feet 5 inches in height and did not weigh 50 pounds. A few years ago a Chinese woman reached Montreal. She had left her native land when 70, and had lived in Demerara for 100 years. In 1912 Europe had 7,000 living centenarians, of whom 3,888 were Bulgarians.

New Canadian Coat of Arms.

The Canadian government is considering adopting a new coat of arms for the dominion—one which shall represent all the provinces in the confederation. The present coat of arms is representative of Ontario, Quebec, Nova Scotia and New Brunswick only; for those were the original provinces; and since it was adopted in 1858 Prince Edward Island and British Columbia have entered the federation, and finally Saskatchewan and Alberta have been carved out of what were the Northwest territories. When a design emblematic of these nine provinces has been chosen by the committee and approved by the government it will be submitted to the royal college of heralds in England to be registered. A royal warrant declaring it the official arms of Canada will then be issued.

Double Bottoms Put to Work.

For many years a few steamships from the far east have brought fuel oil back to Britain in the ballast space between their inner and outer hulls. The practice never became general, however, and "tankers" continued to handle the bulk of the trade. But in June, 1917, increased submarine activity and the expansion of the allied fleets made immediate additions to tank tonnage so imperative that not a few, but hundreds, of British and American "double bottoms" were fitted for this auxiliary cargo. Apart from its war-time results this new practice has taught marine engineers many lessons that will guide them in designing the oil-burning ships of tomorrow.—Popular Mechanics Magazine.

His First Visit.

Mr. Lloyd George would seem, says Liverpool Post, to have had a premonition of his future eminence when he paid a first visit to London as a lad of nineteen. "Went to the house of commons," he wrote home to his uncle. "Very disappointed. I will not say but that I eyed the assembly in a spirit similar to that in which William the Conqueror eyed England on his visit to Edward the Confessor as the region of his future domain. Oh, vanity!"

Injections of Cane Sugar.

Doctor Rosenthal reports to the Presse Medicale (Paris) that he has administered intravenous injections of a strong solution of saccharose in numerous cases of tuberculosis. The procedure exerts a manifest tonic action. It raises the blood pressure, augments the body weight, and indirectly produces a favorable effect on the tuberculous lesions. These results are ascribed by the author to an enhancement of the functions of the liver.

When People Wait

Waiting is one of the most profitless things in the world, and waiting at the telephone is almost like sitting still with your eyes closed—the time seems so much longer.

To busy people a short wait seems magnified and correspondingly unprofitable. You can help to lessen such waits for those who call you by answering your telephone promptly, and at the same time protect yourself against lost calls—for the other person often "hangs up."

JUDGE CITY BY ITS STREETS

Importance of Well Laid Out and Properly Kept Thoroughfares Cannot Be Overestimated.

Streets are the lines of expression on a city's face. They are the ideographs of time, recording the thoughts, passions, impulses of the city-soul that dwells within. They are as surely the indices of a city's character as the lines on a human face, a betrayal of whatever is ugly and sordid, an earnest of whatever is serene and gentle and strong.

"There are mean streets," says Balzac, "and streets that are merely honest; there are young streets about whose morality the public has not yet formed any opinion; there are murderous streets—streets older than the oldest hags; streets that we may esteem—clean streets, workaday streets and commercial streets. Some streets begin well and end badly."

In a city where the trees have been discarded to promote convenience and advantages of commercial thoroughfares there are just such streets which distort and mar its beauty. It is a custom with us here in America, with the encroachment of business upon a residential district, tree-lined, shady and inviting, to invade with vandalic hand and fell the trees. Flaunting signs may then be suspended over the pavement to arrest the attention of the passerby; display windows may be viewed from either side of the thoroughfare. There is an irreverence in such practice; beauty and charm have been turned to the uses of barter and trade.

PLAY PARKS TO FOLLOW WAR

Splendid Idea Which Has Arisen in Canada Might Well Be Emulated in This Country.

Play parks for children, which will stand for all time as peace memorials, will be established in all the principal cities of Canada if plans of the Ottawa Horticultural society, supported by the Ottawa playgrounds association, are carried out.

The purpose of the parks will be: "To help make impossible for coming generations the reality of another war; to hold up for emulation for all time that spirit of unselfishness which stirred those of this generation and enabled them to secure for mankind the advantages of peace; and to encourage all those who enjoy the first fruits of peace to dedicate to the ideals of civilization a memorial which shall have the significance of a guaranty that life in the future shall have a fuller measure of joys and rewards."

The parks, according to plans, will enable children to enjoy summer and winter sports and recreations. They will be centers for holding annual peace celebrations. In them some memorial will be erected—a tablet, perhaps—on which will be recorded each year some of the dominant benefits peace has conferred upon the world.

Architecture Important.

It is an asset to own a well-designed home—a house done by an artist who understands the essentials and principles of good design; there are only too few who know these principles and how to practice them. The first essential to inexpensive building is simplicity of general composition, but to make it a success there must be splendid proportions of every part in itself and its relation with adjacent parts and the whole. The scale of the house must be just right, its character is as necessary as the character of the individual.

Good judgment is a rare talent and it must be exercised in the small house just as much as in its more expensive, ornate and pretentious neighbor.

To live in a home of architectural merit, however simple it may be, is a blessing and brings joy and life even though it may come to some almost unconsciously.

City Government Important.

City government touches the citizen in manifold ways and is of more vital importance to his interests, business and personal, than any other sphere of governmental activity with which he comes in contact. It collects more taxes from him and expends more money. Its problems are among the most complex with which public officials have to deal, and being largely of a business nature, every mistake which is made helps to raise the citizen's taxes. If its problems are to be well solved, if the city is to be benefited by the successful achievement of other cities and profit by their failures, city officials must have access to all available information and data to be had upon these various problems and subjects.

Sees End of the Board Fence.

As wooden fences wear out owners of property should not fail to replace them with wire. The price of wire has mounted along with other things, but boards have gone still higher. Lumber will, I believe, continue high. Hence the back yard board fence is, I believe, doomed, and it ought to be. It is hard to imagine anything more unsightly.—Building Inspector Osborne, Baltimore, in the Baltimore News.

The Secret Room

By EUGENIA WALDRON

Copyright, 1919, by Western Newspaper Union.

A host of lovers came to pretty dazed Vesta Brill when it became known that Albert Winsted, the queer old hermitlike oddity of Brompton, had left her his entire fortune. He had subsisted for ten years alone in an old mansion still pointed out as the show place of the little town.

The strange change in his ways had come after he had been abroad for a year. Rumor was that he had wedded a native princess in India. She had died and her loss, it was said, had broken his heart. There was a story about that he had brought back from India a portrait, or statue, depicting the woman he had loved and lost, and that one room in the house was devoted to her as a sort of a shrine.

Alvord Marston, a young lawyer, was named as the executor of the estate. It was he who appeared at the modest, pleasant home of Vesta one evening and informed her of the rare good fortune she had little expected.

The acquisition of wealth did not spoil her simple, wholesome gentleness. Her parents, however, became all aflare with ambitious dreams, and a flock of fortune-seeking young men at once became persistent callers at the Brill home.

One auspicious day the fabric of parental ambitions, as of sutor dreams, was rent and shattered. Marston appeared at the Brill home grave faced, for he had disappointing intelligence to impart. He found Vesta alone and the friendly warmth of her greeting stung him considerably.

"Miss Brill," he said, "I have news for you scarcely agreeable, but it is necessary that I tell you of the same. When I went over to the old-home of Mr. Winsted I found nothing but a few worn-out sticks of furniture. In his safety deposit box at the bank there was a mass of papers that turned out to be mostly receipts for costly jewels, draperies and other expensive oriental fabrics, but no securities or other resources. There is apparently not a vestige left of the large fortune he was supposed to possess."

"Then I am not the rich heiress I have been supposed to be?" said Vesta simply, and actually with a smile.

"You seem reconciled," observed Marston.

"And relieved," added Vesta brightly. "I shall be glad to get back to my own humble, ordinary self. It will be a test of the friendship of my innumerable new friends and it will dissipate the extravagant visions of my parents."

So it was all over. The bubble of wealth had burst and Vesta was after all "a nobody!" Swiftly her suitors deserted her, and, although her mother suffered a severe disappointment, gradually her dreams of luxury and social eminence faded away.

To his amazement Marston had discovered that the old mansion was mortgaged for two-thirds of its value. He began negotiations with a city agent who was looking for a building suitable for a small sanitarium. He called upon Vesta frequently to report progress and the companionship became a source of pleasure to both.

At the end of two months Marston told Vesta of his love for her and they became engaged. They were taking a stroll one afternoon when he remarked:

"I am going to look over the old mansion. It is all that is left of the estate. I understand that the neighborhood boys have been making it a target for the slingshots, and as you may eventually get a few hundred dollars out of it we must keep the property in as good condition as possible."

Marston let himself into the house, and as they passed through the chill, gloomy apartments Vesta clung to him with an eerie sense of weirdness. Finally they came to the solitary room old Albert Winsted had occupied for so many years.

"Why, that is strange!" abruptly exclaimed Marston.

Some missile thrown through the window had struck the wall in one corner of the room. It had left a gaping orifice, and beyond it showed an open space, and, peering, Marston made out what suggested a secret room. Probing, he found that the false bit of wall papered over was really a door. He opened this and he and Vesta stood enthralled, gazing upon a presentment that fairly amazed them.

The room had no windows and its contents were visible only because of the light streaming through the secret doorway. At one end was a dais with gorgeous draperies. Seated in a chair fit for royalty was a wax figure, dusty, but beautiful of face, richly appareled. Before this evident counterfeit presentment of the princess bride of old Albert Winsted were vases, salvers, dishes, filled with gold, diamonds and gems of all descriptions.

In a flash Marston recognized that here was the Winsted fortune. Its former owner, imbibing Hindu superstition, half mad, had made of his lost love a subject of adoration, and this great wealth was a donation, a sacrificial tribute, as to some revealed goddess.

At a touch the wax image disintegrated with the admission of light and air. The secreted fortune was removed to a safe depository, and the double-dealing suitors of Vesta knew the depths of chagrin and envy the day Alvord Marston led the young heiress to the altar.

OLD AGE STARTS WITH YOUR KIDNEYS

Science says that old age begins with weakened kidneys and digestive organs. This being true, it is easy to believe that by keeping the kidneys and digestive organs cleansed and in proper working order old age can be deferred and life prolonged far beyond that enjoyed by the average person.

Conquer Fear.

It is an everlasting duty, the duty of being brave. Valor is still value. The first duty of a man is still that of subduing fear. We must get rid of fear; we cannot act till then. A man shall and must be valiant, he must march forward. Now and always the completeness of his victory over fear will determine how much of a man he is.

Cleaning an Umbrella.

To clean an umbrella place a tablespoonful of sugar in a basin, pour over it half a pint of water and stir till dissolved. Then open the umbrella and, starting from the ferrule, sponge each gore down to the point. Leave the umbrella open till dry.

Let This Paper Be Your Salesman

The only two mediums through which one's thoughts are conveyed to another are the ear and the eye. Type may sometimes convey things to the public that you can say in no other way. It is the impression made through the eye that lingers longer than through the ear.

The voice may suffer through intonation and volume, but the type can never be mistaken. Speak your thoughts to your patrons in clear, clean type and you say concisely just what your customer wants to know.

Tell it. Tell it over and over, and the inside of your store becomes as familiar to the public as it is to yourself. Make our type do your talking.

You may not make yourself understood orally, but even a poor salesman can talk with type. We offer you our training and experience and our type will perform for you if you only give it a chance.

Our advertising columns tell the town's commercial story. Let this paper be your selling medium. One merchant who recently did some special advertising said to us: "Those ads certainly did the business. They brought results." We want to hear that kind of language from every one of you.

A FEW LITTLE SMILES

First Step of the Divorce Court.

"George, dear," began his brand new wife, sweetly. "I thought you prided yourself on keeping your razors in such good condition."

"I do, angel; why do you mention them?"

"Well, I tried to open a can of beans and I couldn't do a thing with either one of them."

Cruel.

Miss Ainshent—I have a perfect mania for collecting antiques. Just now I am making a collection of pictures of the landmarks of this town.

Miss Kutting—I noticed you coming from the photographer's this morning.

Advice.

"Darling, you must never marry a man for his money."

"Why not, mother?"

"Because that sort of a marriage cannot but end unhappily. But I can tell you what to do. You can take care not to fall in love with a man who hasn't money."

Good Enough for Him.

"You know, Pat, it is said that a good name is rather to be chosen than great riches."

"Is that so?"

"Yes, Pat. Now, which would you prefer to have, a good name or riches?"

"Well, you can give me the riches. Me name's O'Toole, and that's good enough for any man."

Soothing Sirup.

They were talking in a foreign but a friendly tongue.

"Do you know what they are saying?" asked another guest.

"No," replied the hostess; "I do not understand a word—but is that not the charm of their conversation?"

EVERYBODY DOES.

"He's made a failure of everything."

"That so. Why doesn't he try writing for moving pictures?"

More Like Bats Than Vines.

We call it "weaker sex" no more. To speak of "clinging vines" is folly. Although we see them by the score. Clinging to car straps in the trolley.

Rejected.

Movie Employer (to applicant)—"Ever see a cow?"

Applicant—"Yes."

Movie Employer—"I'm afraid you won't do. We want somebody to take the part of a cowboy."—Life.

Patent Medicine.

Mary—"She rejected him ten times before she accepted him."

Emma—"She must have thought he was a medicine and followed directions in shaking well before using."

Practical Girl.

He (ecstatically)—I could die for you.

She—Goodness! I hope you won't think of such a thing until after we are married and I have the right to inherit.

Somewhat Scared.

"I understand that nephew of yours took you for a joy ride."

"That was no joy ride for me," answered Mr. Chuggins. "That was a fear ride."

The Exception.

"He may be grouchy, but he certainly cannot pick flaws in anything which is really well done."

"Oh, yes, he can. He complains of meat when it is rare."

So It Seems.

"A seamen's strike is a very serious one."

"Naturally, since a vessel cannot start its cruise until its crews start the vessel."

Exalted Tactics.

Mrs. Knicker—Henry, I must say—Knicker—My dear, I beg you not to start a discussion until after I have had the last word.

A Real Rise.

"I understand you undertook to raise chickens on your place."

"They raised themselves. They flew the coop."

Exceptions.

Happiness Easily Attained.

Those of us who ever stop to reason or think along profitable lines know that there are "sermons in stones, books in running brooks, and good in everything" as the poet sings. We do not have to be either rich or famous to procure happiness. If we try to keep cheerful, forget our woes and "look pleasant," our narrow sphere will take on a broad and pleasing aspect. Furthermore, this view will make us see lots of good in the folks around us and many fine attractions in our home and old "home town."

Camp Roosevelt a Training Place

Boys from Somerset county will be invited to a Reserve Officers' Training Camp on Lake Michigan this summer. The encampment has been named Camp Roosevelt, as a living memorial to the dead statesman, and 15,000 men and boys will be given a period of intensive military-physical-educational training there between July 6th and August 31st. Captain F. L. Beals of the United States Army will be the commanding officer.

Camp Roosevelt is being established at Muskegon, Michigan, as a training place for the Chicago High School boys who are in the Reserve Officers' Training Corps, but it is not necessary to be from Chicago or to have had previous military training to be a Camp Roosevelter. It will be an all-age, all-American camp, open to recruits between the ages of 12 and 45.

Camp Roosevelt is not a profit-making institution. It is being financed by a committee of patriotic Chicago citizens who believe that it may pave the way to a program of national preparedness at all times. The charge, as far as the recruit is concerned, is only $1.00 per day to cover subsistence and equipment, and an enrollment fee of $1.00. This will pay for all expenses at the camp, including board, necessary equipment, instruction and a tent to sleep in. Recruits can arrange for two, four, six or eight weeks of training as desired.

So many inquiries are coming in regarding the camp that it has become necessary to establish executive headquarters at 21 N. La Salle Street, Chicago, from which full information may be secured upon request.

Wires Back To Owners

Postmaster-General Burleson, facing the threat of a nation-wide telephone and telegraph strike, suddenly released last Thursday afternoon the management of the wire companies of the country to their corporate officers.

He did not, however, release the companies completely from federal control. His action passes back to the corporate officers the problem of meeting the discontent of their employes, but does not release the public from the higher telephone and telegraph rates put into effect under Government operation.

The action of the Postmaster-General took Washington completely off its feet. Just a few hours before S. J. Konenkamp, president of the Commercial Telegraphers Union of America, had announced that unless the Atlanta telephone strike was "very quickly settled" he would call a nation-wide strike on all the wire companies in this country and Canada, and would announce the date of this strike within 72 hours. About the same time word came unofficially from Atlanta that the employes there and the company were at a deadlock.

Mr. Burleson, however, did not give the strike threat as the reason for his precipitate turning back of the employment and other managerial problems of the companies to the owners.

METHODISTS TO ATTEND JUBILEE

Will Take Part in Centenary Celebration At Columbus

Hundreds of Methodists, their wives and children, who are members of the Methodist Episcopal Churches in Baltimore and adjacent church districts, will join the great pilgrimage to Columbus, O., where the Methodist centenary jubilee celebration is to be held from June 20th to July 13th. The big 24-day celebration is the culmination of the nation-wide centenary campaign now in progress. The event marks the one hundredth anniversary of the founding of Methodist missions.

Local delegations are to be headed by clergymen and laymen who have figured prominently in directing the series of centenary campaigns which are now being brought to a climax in all parts of the country. Methodist churchmen declare that the great celebration will not be primarily a time of rejoicing over the work done in the years gone by, but rather it will mark the beginning of a new and more powerful era of spiritual activity by the church along many different lines.

Leaders of delegations to the celebration will be clergymen having supervision over the various church districts, among whom are the Revs. M. W. Morbray, of Dover, Del.; W. A. Wise, of Easton; Vaughn C. Collins, of Salisbury; and Robert Watt, of Wilmington, Del.

Dynamite Demonstration June 24-26

The dynamite demonstration in ditching on the Tonies Branch Tax Ditch, East Princess Anne district, near West's store and mill, will be held Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday, June 24th to 26th, inclusive. A mile of ditch through low, wet and swamp land, will be blown with dynamite. About 3,000 pounds of dynamite will be used to blow the ditch, which will be from 3 to 4 feet deep and 6 to 7 feet wide. The cost of explosives will be about $650, which is a special price given on account of the work being a benefit to the public. The ditch will be blown in sections and will be under the supervision of Mr. C. I. Cohee, expert dynamite demonstrator of the DuPont Company, who is cooperating with County Agent C. Z. Keller in this work. It is claimed by Mr. Cohee that this demonstration will be the largest of its kind held by the DuPont Company this year.

Indications are that there will be a large crowd in attendance from various sections of the peninsula to witness this demonstration. Farmers in this county who are interested in the use of dynamite in blowing ditches for draining land should arrange to be present.

Meteor Seen in Many Places

At 7:15 o'clock last Friday evening, while the sun was still shining brightly, a number of persons in this town and county saw what appeared to be a large meteor about the size of the moon. It was observed passing through the sky from the northeast to the southwest. Its passage was immediately followed by a terrific explosion in the direction in which it was traveling.

At the same time, 7:15 o'clock, the meteor was seen traveling over Cambridge and other Eastern Shore towns, and over Baltimore, going in the direction of Catonsville and Ellicott City. Nobody caught up with the fireball and it seemed to have slipped by every one and always appeared to land just a short distance away from the observer.

The average meteor at the start weighs from several hundred to a thousand pounds and changes weight as its speed increases.

Miss Gibbons Graduated With Honors

The Victory commencement exercises of the Western Maryland College, Westminster, closed last Wednesday. Among the graduates was Miss Rose Lurline Gibbons, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Alvah N. Gibbons, of Princess Anne. The commencement parts, assigned according to excellence in comparison and expression during the junior and senior years, were rendered by the following graduates: First, "Follow the Gleam," Esther M. Brill. Second, "Culture and Efficiency," Rose Lurline Gibbons. Third, "Whatever things Are True," Elizabeth R. Lewis. Miss Gibbons won a gold medal in voice; had the degree of Bachelor of Arts conferred upon her, and was among the graduates in pedagogy.

WELCOME HOME TO SOLDIERS

Crisfield Will Celebrate on Thursday in Honor of Their Return

Appropriate honors will be paid the soldiers of Crisfield and Somerset county on Thursday by a great home-coming celebration.

One of the principal features of the celebration will be a big parade with three brass bands. The parade will form at the Crisfield postoffice at 2 o'clock in the afternoon and will march through the streets of the town to the Armory. The parade will be led by Uncle Sam in costume, followed by the Central Park Band. Then will come the white soldiers of Somerset county, in uniform, followed by an appropriate float as a memorial to the boys who gave their lives for the great cause of humanity. Next in line will be the old veterans and the Boy Scouts, followed by the Odd Fellows Band of Salisbury. Then in line will be Crisfield Lodge of Elks, the Campfire Girls, Annamesex Lodge Knights of Pythias, Jr. O. U. S. A. M. and other lodges. At the Armory the Salisbury colored band will be in line, followed by the colored soldiers of the county. These troops will be followed by automobiles, floats and various vehicles, headed by a car bearing the Mayor and City Councilmen.

Following the parade a short address of welcome will be made by a prominent local citizen, after which a banquet will be given at the Armory, followed by a dance. Arrangements have also been made for the entertainment of the soldiers at Central Park in the evening, where everything will be free to the men in uniform. The Elks Home and K. of P. lodge room will also be open in the evening for all men in uniform, and refreshments will be served. At the conclusion of the parade a banquet, entertainment and dance will be held at the colored hall on Fourth street, for the colored soldiers.

D'Esta Rhoads Entertainers

Manager Dougherty, of the Auditorium, announces the appearance of the D'Esta Rhoads Entertainers for three nights, starting Monday, June 16th. This company played here in June, 1913, and many will remember the very entertaining program given by these artists. They give an entertainment distinctly different from any other organization, which consists of marionettes, ventriloquism, sleight of hand, the singing cats, America's road to France, and other novelties, with a complete change of program each night. The attention of our readers is called to their illustrated advertisement in this issue which will give a better idea of the above mentioned numbers. A double bill will be given Tuesday night, when pictures will be added. Maurice Turney Paramount and Artcraft special, "The Sporting Life," will be presented.

Two-Cent Postage On July 1st

Postal rates on first-class mail, which includes letters and postal cards, will go back to a pre-war basis on July 1st. This change is one of the provisions of the revenue bill.

Beginning on that date the rate of postage on letters will be two cents an ounce or fraction thereof to all parts of the United States. Postal cards will be but one cent.

There will be slight increase in the price of stamped envelopes and newspaper wrappers beginning July 1st. Increase in the cost of paper and labor, postoffice officials say, is responsible for this. The increase will be twelve cents per thousand on first quality printed and unprinted envelopes of sizes 5 to 13.

This is a topsy-turvy world. The prohibitionist keeps his spirits up by yelling: "Down with rum!"

MOTOR FEES $1,690,693

Commissioner Baughman Makes Annual Report To Governor

Revenues from the office of the Commissioner of Motor Vehicles amounted last year to $1,690,693, according to the report of Automobile Commissioner Baughman, submitted last week to Governor Harrington.

Commissioner Baughman recalls in his report that the registration fees for automobiles, fixed by the last session of the Legislature, were based on his estimates that the gross receipts of his department would reach $1,600,000 for the last fiscal year. His statement shows that they amounted to $90,000 more than his estimate.

"Despite the fact that the gross receipts were above the estimate made by me," he states, the net amount which was turned over to the State Roads Commission was slightly under the figure which it was thought would be derived from the revenue of my office. A number of causes contributed to this result. In the first place the refunds on returned license tags reached the unprecedented amount of $31,247.16, as against $13,275.31 for the preceding year. In addition to this the price of tags increased from 22 cents a pair to 37 1/2 cents a pair, or from $32.177.62 to $41,216.71.

The total receipts exceeded those of the year previous, $600,000. There were issued 231,541 licenses as against 161,691 the year previous. There were suspended 1,523 licenses, revoked 389 and refused 1,043. There were 1,240 reprimands. From 1917 to 1919 inclusive, the fines from the entire state have increased from $19,077.95 to $116,642.54.

The total number of deaths reported during the year was 203 as compared with 187 for the previous year. The increase is attributed to the large volume of traffic on the roads.

The cost of maintaining the Department is 9.9 per cent. of the total amount of the revenue collected.

"Welcome Home" To Private Pusey

Private Edward Pusey of the 29th Division, was given a "Welcome Home" reception last Wednesday evening at the home of Mr. Matt Melson by the young folks of Venton. His many friends were glad to welcome him back in their midst once more, after serving his country for the past two years.

Private Pusey was under draft age when war was declared with Germany, and was one of the first to enlist from his neighborhood. He joined Company I, at Salisbury, from which place he was sent to Camp McClellan for military training, thence overseas.

The ladies had the porches and lawn beautifully decorated with our national colors, while numerous Japanese lanterns illuminated the grounds. Various out-of-door games were indulged in and refreshments were served at 11.30. Among the ex-soldiers present were Privates P. Phoebus, Omar McIntyre, Dewey and Robert Harrington. All departed at a late hour wishing the ex-soldiers good luck and never to be called again to war.

New Normal School Plan

A new plan for practice teaching was announced by Dr. M. Bates Stephens, State Superintendent of Education, at the graduation exercises at Maryland State Normal School last Thursday night. Hereafter, said Dr. Stephens, the pupils of the senior class at the Normal School, instead of doing practice teaching at the school itself, will be sent into the counties in February for six weeks' work under actual conditions. There will be little or no extra expense involved, he said, as the teachers in the counties will go to Normal School during the six weeks while their places are being taken by the pupil-teachers.

The new plan, involving, as it does, only about 50 teachers in the counties, will not interfere with the regular summer work which is conducted at the school.

Ferryboat At Annapolis

The ferry steamer Emerson C. Harrington, which will ply between Annapolis and Claiborne, arrived at Annapolis last Friday morning.

Gov. Harrington and Mayor Strange were notified of her arrival and they were among the first to go on board to inspect the ship. At 12 o'clock the boat left its berth at the foot of St. George street with the Governor, Mayor Strange and a party of others on board for a trial trip to Claiborne. Governor Harrington has invited state and city officials and citizens on the initial trip aboard the ferry boat from Annapolis to Claiborne next Thursday, June 19. The vessel will carry 1500 passengers and 35 automobiles.

SOLDIERS NEED IMPROVED LAND

Cannot Wait Until Maryland Farms Are Made Productive

That returning soldiers and sailors stand in need of farm lands which yield an immediate income; that they have not sufficient capital to develop unimproved land, are the conclusions reached last Tuesday by the commission appointed by Governor Harrington to co-operate with Secretary of the Interior Lane, in locating the soldiers and sailors on Maryland farms. The members of the commission attending the meeting were: John M. Dennis, chairman; Clement S. Ucker, Wm. McKenney, Dr. A. F. Woods, S. L. Byrn and Wm. J. Freyre.

The commission agreed that there is not in the state, outside of perhaps eight Southern Maryland and other counties, lands adaptable, to which the provisions of the Mondell bill as now drawn might be applied. Under this bill it is proposed that large communities be created for the soldiers and sailors, that each community shall be provided with good roads and such forms of diversions as will make farm life attractive. In sections of the state where contiguous land for such communities can be obtained three or four years would be required in which to make them yield crops. Soldiers and sailors cannot wait this long, nor have they the ready capital with which to improve farm lands or to transform wooded lands and swamps into productive fields.

The commission, in view of these conditions, will urge Congress to so amend the Mondell bill that those states in which the conditions are such that the monies cannot be used economically through the "colonization plan," the commission in those states be authorized to make loans, under proper safeguard, to qualified returned soldiers who desire to farm, for the purpose of purchasing or developing farms under proper supervision.

The commission further recommends that the Farm Loan Act be so amended that the Loans may be made to qualified returned soldiers up to the value of the land as appraised by the Federal Farm Loan Bank appraiser.

Big Day In Salisbury

Last Thursday was probably the greatest for many years in Salisbury. Early in the morning residents in the outlying districts and from every nook and corner in Wicomico county began to arrive in town. And for hours the lines of automobiles and horse-drawn vehicles never stopped on any of the roads leading there.

It is estimated that 15,000 civilians lined the sides of the principal streets that afternoon when the parade was held. Whole-hearted cheers greeted both soldiers and firemen all along the line of march. More than 100 automobiles, including many of the latest models of motor fire engines, were in the parade. But the real feature of the afternoon was the appearance of the returned soldiers. Headed by Lieut.-Col. Amos W. Woodcock, as assistant marshal, men of the Twenty-ninth Division, most of whom were in the original National Guard company of Salisbury and were members of Company I, One Hundred and Fifteenth Infantry, when discharged, were first in line. They were followed by men of the Seventy-ninth Division, and the third detachment was composed of soldiers serving with units not a part of either division.

On Friday all delegates were guests of the Salisbury Fire Department at Ocean City. The next meeting of the State Firemen's Association will be held in Westernport, in June, 1920.

Wild Speculation In Oil Stocks

Owing to the oil discoveries in Texas a great deal of fraudulent stock is on the market, and unwary investors have been separated from their dollars in every State in the Union. The legal authorities are taking steps which they hope will put a stop to these frauds. It is not claimed that all the new oil companies are fraudulent, but many of them own nothing of value except on paper. No one should buy stocks of any kind without patient investigation of what the stock represents, what men are in control of it, and how much stock is out. The inexperienced investor is quite likely to lose his money.

Over 100,000 Autos In Maryland

Maryland has passed the 100,000 mark in the number of motor vehicle licenses issued, according to figures compiled last Tuesday by State Motor Vehicle Commissioner Baughman. About every fourteenth person in the state, whether man, woman or child, owns an automobile. There are enough automobile wheels on Maryland-owned cars to present one to about each third person in the state.

BAY ISLANDS DISAPPEARING

Once Well Populated Sharps Island Now Nearly Deserted

Several islands and headlands in Chesapeake Bay are being destroyed at a startling rate, by the ordinary action of waves and currents. The most interesting feature of the study is the rapid destruction of the three islands at the mouth of Choptank river.

Of these, Sharps Island, which a generation ago was a summer resort and a favorite hunting ground, beside supporting a number of families throughout the year, is today deserted and almost barren of life. Its 432 acres of 1848 had dwindled to 91 by 1900, while at the time of the most recent government survey, in 1910, the island contained but 53 acres, its north shore having suffered the phenomenal loss of 110 feet a year during the period from 1909 to 1910. Calculations indicate that the island will be entirely effaced before 1950.

James Island, which lies south of Sharps Island, decreased in size from 976 acres in 1848 to 490 acres in 1910, while to the north Tilghman Island, which supports many prosperous farmers and fishermen, was reduced from 2015 acres in 1847 to 1686 acres in 1900, and is now surrendering approximately six acres each year to the sea.

On Sharps Island the site of an artesian well has been trespassed on by the waves so that it now presents the unique feature of a well located in the bay. The map of 1901 showed that the "only remainder of the north end of the James Island of 1848 was a small island situated on the spot which was formerly an arm of the inlet, but which later became filled with marsh material. That the water in the midst of land in 1848 should become land in the midst of water in 1901 is a remarkable result of the greater resistance of the marsh-built land.

STATE BAR ASSOCIATION

Annual Meeting To Open At Atlantic City June 26th

Arrangements have been completed for the twenty-fourth annual meeting of the Maryland State Bar Association, which will be held at the Hotel Chelsea, Atlantic City, June 26th, 27th and 28th. The first session will be taken up with the address of the president, Judge Edward C. Peter, of Rockville, and the reports of committees.

Addresses during the following sessions will be made by Guy W. Steele, a member of the association; Dr. Bernard C. Steiner, librarian of Pratt Library, whose subject will be "The Life of Roger B. Taney;" Col. R. H. C. Kelton, who was on the General Staff of the Commander-in-Chief from September, 1917, to June, 1918, and Chief of Staff of the Third Division of the United States Army from June 19th, 1918, to October 19th, 1918, in the general engagements at Chateau Thierry, St. Mehiel and the first attack in the Argonne, his subject being "The American Operations in France, Some Phases of the Original Plans and the Contrast of the Actual Operations;" Col. John H. Wigmore, dean of the Northwestern University Law School, and Col. Edmund M. Morgan, professor of law at Yale University. Colonel Wigmore and Colonel Morgan have served under the Judge Advocate-General since the entrance of the United States into the war, and they will discuss from opposite viewpoints the subject "Military Justice."

The toastmaster at the banquet, that will end the meeting June 28th, will be Omar F. Hershey. The speakers at the banquet will be Judge Morris A. Soper and Lieut.-Col. Stuart S. Janney, members of the association; Mr. Justice Pitney, Associate Justice of the Supreme Court of the United States and Martin W. Littleton, of the New York bar. Mr. Littleton has chosen as his subject "The Things Fundamental." It is expected that the meeting will be one of the largest and most enthusiastic ever held by the association.

Tractor On Journey To California

A tractor, manned by three ex-army officers, left Baltimore early last Tuesday morning on its journey across the continent. San Francisco is the goal sought and it is expected that the tractor will reach the coast in about 33 days. The machine is equipped with rubber tires and an average speed of over 10 miles per hour is expected. Samuel Safr, president of the Safr, Braun & Getzler Company, made the trip from Chicago to see the machine start, and he is of the opinion that the tractor will make the journey in the allotted time. This is the first time in the history of tractors that a jaunt of this magnitude has been undertaken.

Physical exercise is a good thing but even an athlete should hesitate to jump at conclusions.

ANOTHER ARMY HAS ARRIVED

Many Million Strong—It Descends on Maryland Cities and Towns

The State Board of Forestry has had so many inquiries of late in regard to a serious trouble which is affecting the foliage of shade trees all over the State, that it takes this opportunity to call the attention of the tree-loving public to a recognition of the damage which this army can do to the young growth on trees.

Have you noticed the white oak leaves curled up and brown; have you observed maple and elm leaves covered with a sticky substance which gives them an appearance of being varnished; has your attention been called to the swarms of ants marching up and down the trunks of affected trees? Follow up any or all of these clues and you will find the twigs and the under side of leaves literally swarming with little insects, which are known as plant lice or aphids. This is the invading army and it should be met, not with flags a-flying and showers of candy, but with spray pumps and showers of poison spray.

The aphid does not eat the leaves or tender shoots, he sticks a pump he has for that purpose into the leaves and sucks out the plant juices. Deprived of their proper amount of moisture, the leaves at once start to curl and then wither, while the young shoots become wilted, and eventually die. The sap, after passing through the aphid's body, is ejected in those sticky drops known as "honey dew," which gives the leaves such a varnished appearance. The ants are very fond of this honey, in fact the aphids have been called the ants' cows, because the ants take this dew from them so regularly.

These aphids cannot kill trees in one season, but they can appreciably retard the growth and prevent the maturity of fruit and they can make a city's shade trees unsightly to look at and unpleasant to walk beneath. Delay is costly, to be informed should be to act.

Since these insects are leaf suckers and not leaf eaters, you must meet them with a spray attack, a chemical solution powerful enough to kill the aphids the minute it strikes them. One that will not harm the foliage but will be nevertheless effective is nicotine sulphate, a preparation which can be obtained, with proper directions for strength of mixture and method of application, from any reliable seed house.

The private owner will of course take care of his own trees in lawn and orchard. In the case of street trees in towns, the municipal authorities should take the matter in hand. Under the Roadside Tree Law, the State Board of Forestry can see that street trees are planted and properly trimmed, but their funds are extremely limited and municipal expenditure is necessary to give adequate protection to city trees from insect and fungous attacks.

Maryland Men Wanted In Navy

Information has just been received that A. R. Sodergren, seaman, U. S. N., who enlisted at the Navy Recruiting Station, Baltimore, on April 19th, 1917, and whose home address is 110 West Woodland avenue, Arlington, Maryland, has passed the examination for entrance to the Naval Academy, Annapolis, Md., and has been transferred to the receiving ship at Annapolis for discharge from the Navy and entrance into the Naval Academy as midshipman. This fact shows that Sodergren has taken an interest in his work in the service and has taken advantage of the opportunities offered to young men who enlist at this time.

The honor man in the class which just graduated from the Naval Academy was an enlisted man at one time and came up from the ranks, and the opportunities which he enjoyed are offered to all applicants in the Naval Service.

The following dispatch was received from the Bureau of Navigation June 12th:

"Notify Recruiting Officers legislation make present war pay permanent embodied in current appropriation bill now before Congress. House Naval Committee unanimously assures this provision will become law. No definite promise can be given applicants at present but passage seems certain. Give fullest publicity."

The Navy at the present time needs apprentice seamen, hospital corpsmen and machinists mates. Every effort is being made to enlist Maryland's share for the Naval service.

The thirty-seventh annual meeting of the Maryland Pharmaceutical Association will be held at Ocean City June 24th to 27th. Interesting papers will be read by members of the organization, and the program includes entertainment by the Travelers' Auxiliary, a baseball game between the retailers and wholesalers, a minstrel troupe, a banquet and games. The headquarters will be at the Hotel Plimbimmon.

A Fateful Ordeal

By Odilia Frances Pfeiffer

Copyright, 1919, by Western Newspaper Union.

"I feel that I shall never come back, Wade, and it's the thought of the little one that worries me."

"Throw the fret and anxiety completely off your mind, Darlow. You are going to get well and strong up in the mountains."

"But if I should not?"

"Faithfully I shall carry out your plans concerning little Juanita."

Thus had Paul Darlow bound the man he regarded as his dearest friend to a secret compact and never was weak, though well-meaning Morton Wade more loyally resolved.

It was in a city down the Chlean coast that Darlow, broken down in spirits and health, was about to start for an upland district where his physician said there was a chance of re-building his shattered system. As the disheartened man looked back over five years and its fateful awards the future looked indeed bleak and unpromising.

His story was a romance, its present semblance fairly tragical. He had left his aged mother in a quiet little Michigan town to try his fortune in South America. He was all but pledged, when he returned, to wed his boyhood sweetheart, Clarissa Burnham. A year after his departure Clarissa wrote him that his mother was dead. Clarissa had nursed her patiently, lovingly through two months' illness. Darlow sent a pathetic reply full of grateful expressions, but not a word of love for the famished, longing soul so true to him.

He had not forgotten her, but he had become dazzled by a new flame. A bright, flashing beauty of his new environment, Inez Agnilar, had captivated his senses and he had married her. When the intensity of the beguilement had worn away and he found himself bound to a fretful, capricious invalid, he wrote to Clarissa the truth, although his sense of treachery shamed him. Inez faded away leaving their little child, Juanita, to his care. His own health broke down and now he had placed over $2,000 in the hands of Morton Wade, who, in case Darlow died, was to send it and little Juanita to Clarissa Burnham.

Within a month there came word to Wade that Darlow had perished in crossing dangerous rapids in the interior. The news stunned Wade. He had been disloyal to his trust. He had employed the $2,000 in a speculation, feeling certain of a large profit.

Wade lost his investment, and when the call came to send Juanita to Clarissa Burnham, he managed to raise barely sufficient to take her to her new guardian. He wrote Miss Burnham the truthful, penitent story of his delinquency; conscience-stricken, reverted to strong drink to drown his remorse, and one night was killed in a gambling den.

False as Paul Darlow had been to her, she cherished the letter he had written to her immediately after the death of his wife. In thatmissive he declared that all along he had loved Clarissa only.

When the little child arrived, patiently, lovingly Clarissa, took upon herself a new burden. The radiant dreams of her youth had been blighted, but hers was one of those natures incapable of forgetfulness of a first-love ideal.

Clarissa was dependent upon her own efforts for her livelihood, and the added care and expense of little Juanita strained her earning capacity to the limit. She finally lost a position she had held for several years, on account of removal. Then she noticed an advertisement from a widower, Hector Blake, who offered to pay liberally for the care of his two motherless children.

Clarissa now devoted all her time to care for the three children. Mr. Blake, who was an invalid, called once a week and the solicitude of Clarissa for the welfare of his children won his gratitude. With the coming of winter he was preparing to remove South and try to regain his broken health.

One day he came to Clarissa, serious faced and earnest. Plainly he told her that he was anxious to make her his wife. He pleaded with her to become a mother to his little ones. They would go South, he would make over to her their home, and she could take Juanita with them. For the sake of the child Clarissa consented.

One hour after she had accepted Hector Blake there was a summons at the door, and there in flesh and blood stood Paul Darlow. He had survived extraordinary hardships and had reached his native land a rich man.

He poured out his soul to the agitated woman, who had been so true to him. Then Clarissa told him of her promise to Blake. Both were in tears, she stricken over the fact that she could not break that pledge. There was an interruption as a new party seemed inevitable. Hector Blake had heard all and stood within the room.

"Oh, crown the years of wretchedness with the happiness at last within your reach," this man of noble impulses said. "It was not love, as you well know, Miss Burnham, that impelled me to ask you to become my wife—it was a selfish thought of my little ones and the desire to make your future assured. But now—"

The inference was plain, and those two stood reunited, she forgetting all the past; he bringing to her a love that had become the stronger because of his life mistake.

POOR LITTLE KITTEN.

Mrs. Flint came for a visit to her sister's house and her little niece, Charlotte, was delighted to see her.

"What became of the black kitten you had when I was here before?"

"Why, don't you know?" ask Charlotte, much surprised.

"I haven't heard a word," replied the aunt; "was he poisoned?"

"No ma'am," said Charlotte.

"Drowned?"

"Oh, no."

"Stolen?"

"No, indeed."

"Hurt in any way?"

"No, ma'am."

"Well," said Mrs. Flint, "I can't guess, dear. What became of him?"

"He grew into a cat," said Charlotte.

Expected One.

The Salesman—Ah, good morning, sir. I know that you are head over heels in work. Your desk is piled high and your stenographers are tolling feverishly. You lack the one thing that will help you—a dictating machine.

The Boss—Never fear, she'll be sure to stop in on her way to her bridge club. Good morning.

TAKING PROPOSITION

Actor—What, back so soon? Didn't the play take?

Actress—Yes, the play took, the manager took the receipts, the sheriff took the scenery, the landlord took the trunks and the author took to drink.

A Shudder.
She's fair to see,
But I always sigh,
Whenever she speaks
Of "her and I."

Expert Advice.
"I paid $100 to a specialist just to have him tell me my heart isn't right," remarked the prosperous business man.

"Rank extravagance," responded his friend Titely; "I got the same information from a waiter and it didn't cost me a cent."

Home Sympathy.
"Does your husband tell you all about his business?"

"Yes," replied Mrs. Fetherport. "Isn't it tiresome of him when there are so many really interesting things to talk about?"

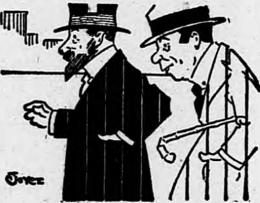

Contrary Results.
"Did the doctor you went to after that accident in which you got so many bumps fix you up all right?"

"He did in a paradoxical way, for the more he reduced the swelling, the bigger grew his bill."

The Boss.
"I want a job where I can be my own boss," remarked the young man.
"You probably will be disappointed," answered Senator Sorghum. "No real boss ever succeeded in electing himself to any conspicuous distinction."

The Infalible One.
Great Editor—Yes, sir, we employ a man in our office just to get things into the paper that are absolutely correct.

"Have you ever tried to print any of his things?"—Judge.

CREDIT.

"It's fine to have credit."
"Yes, but it's better never to have to ask for it."

The Actress.
She started on a farewell tour,
The tickets didn't sell,
Cold facts are stubborn, to be sure,
She didn't fare so well.

Beginning at the Bottom.
"Many a man has attained success by beginning at the bottom."

"That's what Three-Fingered Sam did," remarked Cactus Joe. "He had all the money in Crimson Gulch before we took notice that he was dealin' off the bottom of the deck."

The Advantage.
"All freight trains should be vestibuled."
"Why so?"

"Because vestibules ought to make good hauls."

The Reason.
"Nobody at weddings ever gives the bridegroom away."
"Of course not; you couldn't find anybody that mean."

"The Zero Hour"

By T. E. ALDERSON

Copyright, 1919, by Western Newspaper Union.

"It's positively spooky!" whispered Doris Verne into the ear of her escort and would be lover, Clement Hastings, and she pressed closer to him and he was proud and thrilled at this sentient appeal to his sheltering protection.

"The lecturer is certainly a gifted verbal window dresser," low voiced Clement. "What with magnetism, soul, concentration, hypnotism and clairvoyance, he promulgates some decidedly stunning theories."

It was an afternoon session of a higher thought ladies' society of Brocton. Doris had met Clement on her way to the lecture there to be delivered by an eminent so-called transcendentalist, and had with little difficulty persuaded him to accompany her. "Honor," "privilege," flushed and throbbing he had murmured, meaning that she had awarded him the acme of human felicity.

The lecturer harped upon "The Zero Hour," as he designated the 60 minutes between midnight and 1 o'clock in the morning. According to him when the world was asleep the occult was presented under the most favorable conditions. Then roamed disembodied spirits. Then, while the soul of a sleeper was in suspense, the subtle influence of suggestion or attraction could be most completely developed. Doris listened, caught by the poesy and artistic allusions of the speaker. Clement's mind was too fully filled with consciousness of the presence of his charming companion to care for idealism or theory.

"It was all very beautiful," said Doris, as they walked homeward, "but I don't believe I will sleep a wink tonight thinking of the ghostly stories that man related."

"There's a glorious sunset coming," spoke Clement, as they neared Doris' home. "What a view we could have from Prospect Rock over on the river bank," and to his delight and satisfaction Doris made no demur as they strolled in that direction. They stood gazing at the magnificent panorama of hill, meadow and stream and at the beautiful changing hues of the eventide sky. Clement's heart was beating wildly. It seemed as though the supreme moment of his life had arrived and that he must give utterance to the love thoughts that possessed him. He was about to speak when Doris pointed and cried out:

"Oh! there is the first blue bell of the season," and Clement, spying the flower, clambered up a rock, secured it, and he slipped regaining the ground, and was delighted at the pretty little scream of concern that issued from Doris' lips, betokening a gentle solicitude that inspired him to daring and hope. He pressed the little floweret across his lips and handed it to Doris. She flushed and quivered as something in his eyes told her that his long restrained avowal of love was about to be expressed. There was an interruption. Some girl friends of Doris came into sight and then joined her. Clement kept by her until they reached home.

"The moon comes up grandly at half past eight," he whispered to her, "I shall be at Prospect Rock watching for it—and you."

Doris did not reply, but Clement went away with a hopeful heart. As early as seven o'clock he was at the trysting place. Eight o'clock came, half past. The moon came up gloriously. Nine o'clock—ten. He sat against a rock dreaming of Doris, now he could not see her, and gradually drifted into slumber.

Doris had debated flutteringly with herself as to what she had better do about meeting Clement. She was undecided, but was half inclined to go to Prospect Rock. Two of her girl friends, however, had stayed to supper. They did not go home until nine o'clock. Doris concluded that it was too late to venture on a stroll alone. Besides that Clement had probably got tired of waiting and had gone home.

She did not go to her room, but reclined in the hammock on the porch. Her mind went over the incidents of the day and she closed her eyes thinking of the "Zero hour" lecture and his weird address.

It was that mysterious "Zero hour" when Clement awoke. He aroused with a start. Coming toward him, distinctly visible in the clear moonlight, was Doris directly where she and Clement had stood the afternoon previous. She paused. Clement saw her take from her belt the blue bell flower. She pressed it to her lips, she turned dangerously near to the edge of the rock, which ran sheer 30 feet to the river below. At that moment Clement noted that her eyes were closed. Doris was walking in her sleep! He sprang forward, caught her in his arms and swung her away from the hovering peril.

Doris awoke with a wild, affrighted cry, to listen amazed to the recital of Clement. He had released her from his clasp, but stood near to her still, his eyes aglow telling the story of his emotion.

"The occult influence the 'Zero hour,'" said Doris with a slight laugh. "I went to sleep thinking all about that lecture, and see what the mystic forces have wrought!"

"Don't go, Doris," pleaded Clement, as she turned her face in the direction of home—"at least not until I know if the 'Zero hour' is the great, happy hour of my life!"

such a place that we may feel at liberty to plant according to the so-called closed type.

The second type can be used where the wide meadows, fields, and distant landscape compose the picture, with the roadside trees as frames. Examples of this type may be found in many sections of the state, where beautiful vistas could be enhanced by the presence of suitable shade trees. In many cases, trees along the highway form screens so as to break up the long stretches of views along openings here and there which make more attractive the roadside scenery. — Chicago Tribune.

BEAUTY FOR LITTLE HOUSES

No Great Expenditure Needed to Give Small Abodes Personality, Comfort and Charm.

A page of houses in the Woman's Home Companion carries the following encouraging thought:

"Just because a house is little or inexpensive is no reason why it should not have personality, comfort and charm. In the little community group of homes located at Indian Hill, near Worcester, Mass., this statement has been proved beyond a doubt. Here there are well over fifty modest little homes built on the 'unit' plan, but each one so individual that the effect, taken both simply and collectively, is artistic and picturesque to an inspiring degree. Each little home fronts the street and is set well back from it so that it may have a stretch of green lawn. There is a tree in every yard and a place for a garden at the rear. White walls, gray-green roofs, lattices for vines over the windows and along the porches make home pictures that usually are only possible for well-to-do people to possess."

Pushing Home-Ownership Idea.

Samuel Stern, who is vice chairman of finance, in charge of building and loan associations, has been informally in touch with a large number of the 1,300 associations in New York. He reports that the solid support of the building and loan associations is assured.

"No one," said Mr. Stern, "realizes the fact that the home-owner is one of the most decided factors in civic betterment than do the officers and directors of building and loan associations. They are dealing with home-owners constantly and they know from years of experience that the responsibilities and the prestige which come from home ownership is a tendency to make the man far more interested in his city than is the non-home owner."

Gardens Profitable This Year.

The home garden is likely to prove a profitable investment of effort this year as it has for the past several seasons, in the opinion of the United States department of agriculture. The experience of the past few years has proved that persons who have sufficient land and spare time, and who do their home gardening work intelligently and efficiently, find it profitable. The relatively high prices of practically all foodstuffs tend to increase the saving effected, but the home garden should be planned with a view to meeting the family needs rather than of producing crops for sale on the market.

Associations Doing Good Work.

Home building and home owning is the basis of the strength of the nation. While the home is not a negotiable investment, history has shown that it pays very large financial returns in the increased efficiency of the family. The home-owning spirit is awakened in about 120 cities throughout the United States in which agitation is now active. There are 7,200 building and loan associations in this country which make home-owning possible.

Secure Trees of Quality.

In planting remember that inferior trees, either fruit or ornamental trees, mean inferior results and the loss of time and money. Therefore in selecting stock the first consideration should be quality and the last consideration price.

MANAGEMENT OF A PIG CLUB

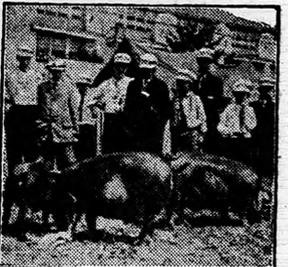

It is Duty of Agent to Furnish Information to Supervisors Who Instruct Members.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

The boys and girls' club work is carried on through co-operation between the animal husbandry division of the bureau of animal industry and the states relation service representing the department of agriculture and the various state agricultural colleges represented by their respective extension departments.

A swine specialist, supported by funds appropriated by congress for the work of the animal husbandry division, is placed in each of the states (desiring such a man (so far as funds permit). The specialist's work is administered by the director of extension, who furnishes office room and equipment, stenographic assistance, and pays his traveling expenses. He is a unit in the extension staff and works in closest co-operation with the state leader of other club work. All the work is done in co-operation with the county agent force and the various interested departments of the college and extension force. The subject matter taught by the specialists is agreeable to the animal husbandry department of the college and the animal husbandry division of the department of agriculture. A simple project or agreement covering the work is arranged by the states relations service between the extension service of the agricultural college and the animal husbandry division.

The pig-club agent is the leader of the animal-club work in the state. It is his duty to provide technical instruction for the club members; to provide supervisors or local leaders and to train them so that they may impart the information to the members. In some cases the duty of organizing the pig clubs falls to the lot of the state agent, while in other states the state leader of general club work and his staff attend to the organization. He works with and through the county agent force and makes use of such local leaders as are available. He projects his vision of the work into the minds of the local leaders and through them into the lives and minds of the members. He must impart his technical information in terms that can be understood by the local leaders and applied by the members. He meets the swine breeders of the state and seeks to win their approval, support, and co-operation. His work must be constructive and must strike at the swine-husbandry problems of the state. He will plan and arrange for the state-wide exhibits, judging contests, etc. He visits members on their farms and helps them solve their problems. He conducts demonstrations, simple in nature, yet effective in solving the problems of the members and the adults. His work must win the support of the parents of the members if it is to be successful.

The individual effort of the agent would accomplish little were it not for the splendid co-operation extended by the extension forces, by the bankers and business men, breeders, local interested people, etc. The work succeeds because the agent multiplies his influence through all the co-operating agencies.

The pig club has not only stimulated the demand for better breeding stock, but also has been the means of introducing community breeding or breed standardizing, in numerous counties in various states where the pure bred part of the industry is practically new and where there were not numerous breed preferences to contend with. The pig club boys have not only taught the adults, where the industry is new, the superiority of the pure bred over the scrub, but have taught them that good individuals bring good prices. "Before this year," says one county agent, "it was hard to get a farmer to pay $50 for a good hog; now they pay $100 to $100."

In addition to these benefits the pig club work is stimulating pork production to an extent extremely important at this time, stimulating home curing of meat through the organization of "ham and bacon" clubs, teaches the members better working methods, inspires pig club boys to better work by educational exhibits and increases their knowledge through judging contests. These are in addition to the indirect results, such as awakening a new spread of comradeship between father and son and the teaching of intelligent borrowing and good business methods through the financing of members by bankers.

Cut This Out And Take It With You
 A man often forgets the exact name of the article he wishes to purchase, and as a last resort takes something else instead. That is always disappointing and unsatisfactory. The safe way is to cut this out and take it with you so as to make sure of getting Chamberlain's Tablets. You will find nothing quite so satisfactory for constipation and indigestion.

IN MEMORIAM
 In sad but loving remembrance of my dear mother, who departed this life one year ago, June 12th, 1918:
 Oh God, what a wall of sorrow
 Must I, the lonely one, bear.
 The silent room, the empty bed,
 The lonely, vacant chair.
 Tenderly I nursed and cared for her.
 Trying in vain to restore her health.
 And prayed she might longer stay;
 Which to me meant more than wealth.
 The loss of gold is great.
 The loss of love is more;
 But the loss of one I loved
 Is the loss no one can restore.

Tree-Planting Campaign Along Victory Highway in Texas is a Step in the Right Direction.

People in other parts of the United States should find inspiration in the tree-planting campaign undertaken by the residents of Bell county, Texas. These thoughtful citizens have subscribed liberally to a fund which is being used to beautify the Temple-Bell road, or Victory highway. At every interval of thirty feet a tree is planted on either side of the road, numbered, and dedicated by the person who plants it to some Bell county soldier who fought in the great war, while a label on the tree gives the name and title of this soldier. With each tree are planted also two pecan nuts and two walnuts. If these produce seedlings, the owner of the tree may take his choice of one of these seedlings or the original tree. Here is a combination of patriotism, estheticism, and utility. The Victory highway will be useful as well as ornamental for generations to come. It will be sought by the tourist of the future not only for its beautiful shade, but out of sheer respect for the good taste and good sense of the people who designed and developed it.—Christian Science Monitor.

ARCHITECT HAS DONE WELL

Somewhat Difficult Task of Combining House and Garage Accomplished With Good Results.

Many attempts to incorporate a garage in a modern house have left much to be desired in the way of architectural effect. Such a dwelling as is shown in the accompanying illustration ration, therefore, attracts favorable interest because of the architect's happy solution of his problem. Artistic doors, made like French windows, afford ingress to the garage at the left of the dwelling entrance, the exterior appearance suggesting a sun parlor rather than a motor car shelter.—Popular Mechanics Magazine.

Home Gardens in 1919.
The need for home production of perishables by means of the garden, it is believed, will continue. Because of the relatively high prices which obtain for practically all foodstuffs, those with sufficient land and spare time should find it profitable to maintain home gardens. Experience shows that very satisfactory returns to the grower, in the form of vegetable products, are obtained when gardening is intelligently and efficiently carried on. The necessity of transporting such products from distant points also is obviated. The department urges those who intend to maintain home gardens to plan to meet the needs of the family rather than to produce crops for sale on the market.—United States Department of Agriculture.

Two States Doing Well.
In Fort Wayne, Ind., the department of public works has purchased 150 trees for a memorial park and Forester Jaencke informs the association that each tree is to be marked with a plate six inches long and four inches wide. Governor Goodrich of Indiana, and Richard Lieber of the forestry department are working out plans for the tree planting by counties. In Alabama John H. Wallace, Jr., the former commissioner, has organized the state by appointing county committees.

Another Nature Mistake.
"I have my back to the wall," explained the Erratic Thinker. "Not for the same reason that the Huns are fighting in that attitude, but because there is a place on my back, slightly lower than betwixt my shoulder blades, as there is on the back of every normal human being, that cannot be scratched without artificial aid. This is one of the very few grave mistakes of Nature."—Kansas City Star.

Studying Ideas of Beauty.
Women at the Michigan Agricultural college are taking courses dealing with the methods of beautifying the farm home. A study of ornamental trees, shrubs and perennials is made, as well as the principles of grouping, arrangement, use of masses, etc.

ARE FLEMING AND WALLOON

People of Belgium of Both Races, the Flemings Being Slightly in the Majority.

The kingdom of Belgium dates from 1830, when the seven Catholic provinces revolted from the distasteful union with the kingdom of The Netherlands. Dr. Edwin A. Grosvenor writes in a communication to the National Geographical society. A conference of the great powers in 1831 determined the boundaries between the two countries. Though obliged by circumstances to recognize Belgian independence, the conference did not sympathize with the authors of the revolution. In consequence the boundary line was traced to the disadvantage of the new nation. It is alleged. The Dutch were assigned peoples east of the Meuse, who were strongly pro-Belgian, and were granted both sides of the Scheldt, thus cutting off approach to the sea by the great port of Antwerp.

Belgium is made up of Flemings and Walloons, with the former in the majority. In 1910, of the 7,751,000 Belgians, there were 3,221,000 who spoke only Flemish, 2,833,000 who spoke French (spoken by Walloons) and 871,000 who spoke both languages. The Flemish provinces are bilingual. Germany tried to divide the Flemings and the Walloons during the great war, but the descendants of the warriors who fought against Caesar refused to be divided. The ancient Belgae occupied all Gaul north of the Seine and west of the Rhine, but today it covers only 11,373 square miles.

ARE NOT REALLY LOCUSTS

Unwelcome Visitors Expected This Year Periodical Cicadas, According to Wisconsin Entomologist.

Be scientific—call the "17-year locust" by its right name, the periodical cicada, and no one will worry about it, says H. F. Wilson, entomologist at the Wisconsin experiment station. Cicadas are common insects, but locusts are reminders of the scourge of locusts in biblical days and the grasshoppers, or true locusts, of the early days in the southwest.

Even the orchard-man's fear of the effect of this particular cicada is not very well founded, judging from the information entomologists have about the insect, for other members of the tribe appear each year and injure the shade and orchard trees in exactly the same way.

The injury is the result of the cicada's laying eggs in the twigs of trees. From the eggs the larvae of the insect hatch. The twig enlarges at that point, growth is interrupted and sooner or later the twig rots and breaks off. The only treatment is to prune off the parts affected. No preventive methods are considered necessary by either horticulturists or entomologists at the station.

Charts of the different broods of the so-called locusts have been prepared by entomologists of the United States department of agriculture, says Mr. Wilson, and they show that the brood expected this year is No. 10. Seventeen years ago it was reported in Wisconsin only in Dane county. The last brood appeared in 1915 and was quite generally scattered over the state.

Made in Germany.
Dr. Arthur Davis, who used to be the kaiser's dentist, is authority for the statement that the crown prince is the most egotistical person he ever met. As an instance of his conceit the dentist recounts an occurrence in one of the palatial dugouts at the front where captured champagne had been flowing freely for some time.

"Your highness," finally asked a young officer, "who is the greatest of all German generals?"
"I am," promptly retorted the crown prince.
"True, of course," said the brother officer, "but how could you really prove it?"
"I don't have to," retorted the crown prince. "I merely say it, and it is so!"—Minneapolis Tribune.

Convincing.
J. A. Strahan, the eminent professor of jurisprudence, tells in his reminiscences several good law stories.

One of the best concerns a certain chancery judge who (writes Mr. Strahan) was so notorious for the brevity of his notes of evidence that, in a case which appeared to make an appeal probable, the parties agreed to have a shorthand note of it.

Later, the court of appeal, puzzled by his decision against the plaintiff whose uncontradicted evidence seemed convincing, sent for the judge's note hoping it would enlighten them.

It did. It consisted of a vigorous drawing of an oily-faced, evil-looking person. Above was written The Plaintiff, and below it And a liar.—Pearson's Weekly.

His Consideration.
"Now, gents," with elaborate sarcasm said the proprietor of the Right Place store in Petunia, addressing the prominent and influential loafers that infested his emporium, "I have placed a batch of comfortable pine boxes around on the shady side of the store, where you can set and spit and whittle and cuss the government and argue about nothing from morning till night, and not be disturbed by customers trying to edge around you to buy something or talk over a little private business with me without having your snouts stuck into it."—Kansas City Star.

When People Wait
Waiting is one of the most profitless things in the world, and waiting at the telephone is almost like sitting still with your eyes closed—the time seems so much longer.
To busy people a short wait seems magnified and correspondingly unprofitable. You can help to lessen such waits for those who call you by answering your telephone promptly, and at the same time protect yourself against lost calls—for the other person often "hangs up."

NEW VALUABLE FOOD PLANTS

Recently Brought From Peru by Members of the Yale Geographic Expedition.

A new and important breakfast food plant has been fetched from Peru by the Yale geographic expedition. It yields a product declared to be quite equal to oatmeal. The plant in question is a cultivated pig-weed, and anciently was one of the two principal grain producing crops of the Incas. Today in Peru it is chiefly used for the manufacture of "chicha," a native beer. From a valley high up in the Peruvian Andes the expedition obtained a new and remarkable wild relative of the tomato. It has an apple-like flavor, and is the fruit of a desert plant, found in company with cacti and other such water-starved vegetable species. The plant is a vine, which, say the experts, may be trained over arbors. It may be crossed with our own tomatoes for the production of varieties with special edible virtues. Another remarkable acquisition was a kind of tomato that grows on a tree. It is only a little tree, four or five feet high, with branches that spread horizontally, giving it a flat-topped effect. The tomatoes are egg shaped, and borne in pendant clusters from near the ends of the branches. Yet another prize, deemed valuable for introduction into the United States, was the "lucuma," which can hardly be called a discovery inasmuch as it has long been a popular fruit in Peru. It has rich, mealy flesh, somewhat resembling in texture and flavor a cooked sweet potato, and is hardy enough to be grown in Florida or in southern California.

HAD REGULAR SINGING TIME

Thoreau's Interesting Account of the Chanting of Vespers by a Whippoorwill Chorus.

What a pleasure it would be to know the woods and the wood folk as Thoreau did. In "Walden," he tells us that "regularly at half-past seven, in one part of the summer, after the evening train had gone by, the whippoorwills chanted their vespers for half an hour, sitting on a stump by my door, or upon the ridgepole of the house. They would begin to sing almost with as much precision as a clock, within five minutes of a particular time, referred to the setting of the sun, every evening. I had a rare opportunity to become acquainted with their habits. Sometimes I heard four or five at once in different parts of the wood, by accident one a bar behind another, and so near me that I distinguished not only the cluck after each note, but often that singular buzzing sound like a fly in a spider's web, only proportionally louder. Sometimes one would circle round and round in the woods a few feet distant as if tethered by a string, when probably I was near its eggs. They sang at intervals throughout the night, and were again as musical as ever just before and about dawn."

Moving Picture Expenses.

The moving picture industry takes in millions of nickels daily, but a big part goes out for salaries, for "stars" and for needless expenses. Quite recently a very much excited individual stopping at one of the big hotels in New York city called up Los Angeles, Cal., on the long distance telephone many times daily and rolled up a weekly bill of $3,000 for this item alone.
"Who is he?" queried a bystander, to whom the hotel proprietor related the story. "One of the new oil millionaires?"
"No," was the reply, "he is a moving picture director. That is just a sample of the high cost of turning out moving pictures today."—Wall Street Journal.

Flu Again Ravages London.

Influenza has broken out again in London, making a third wave in less than a year. The cases that are complicated by pneumonia tend to follow the usual course common in the years before the war. This is in contrast with the rapidly fatal type characterizing the summer and autumn epidemics, and suggests a distinct decrease in virulence. Of those attacked previously very few have been again infected. Some immunity seems to have been established, for in most cases of reinfection there are only vague rheumatic pains and malaise lasting a few days.

Start Education Early.

The street car was crowded, which wasn't unusual. A man carrying a baby boy pushed his way inside to a strap. The swinging piece of worn leather caught the baby's eye, and he reached for it, and missed. It swung again, and the baby caught it tightly. The crowd laughed, and was glad it had something to laugh about.
"That's it, son," said the father. "Might as well learn young. You'll have use for that if you stay around this town long."

Country's Lumber Production.

A total lumber production of 32,760,000,000 feet is the estimated cut for the year 1918 on the basis of partial returns received by the forest service of the United States Department of Agriculture from 713 sawmills, each of which cut 5,000,000 or more feet in the years 1917 or 1918.
In 1917 the total production amounted to 36,000,000,000 feet. The decrease in 1918 is not confined to any one region but is general. It is largest in the southern and eastern states and least in the western states.

Physicians Oath.

A part of the Hippocratic oath is as follows: "Whatever, in connection with my professional practice, or not in connection with it, I may see or hear in the lives of men which ought not to be spoken abroad, I will not divulge, as reckoning that all such should be kept secret." This oath is respected by every court in the world, and rarely indeed has it ever been broken by a reputable physician.

Good Manners.

Good manners, which give color to life, are of greater importance than laws, which are but one of their manifestations. The law touches us here and there, but manners are about us everywhere, pervading society like the air we breathe. Good manners, as we call them, are neither more nor less than good behavior, consisting of courtesy and kindness.—Samuel Smiles.

Moroccan Charms.

Moroccan wives have a recipe for winning back affection. The suspicious wife draws a line of honey from forehead to chin and collects the drippings. Then she rubs the tip of her tongue with a fig leaf till it bleeds and soaks seven grains of salt in the blood. This she mixes with the honey and puts the dose in the crying husband's food.

Eyebags Oysters.

The oyster has a good-sized stomach, which is connected with the mouth by a short gullet; two pairs of gills for breathing, an intestine, a dark green liver, a two-chambered heart and an elementary nervous system, but is minus ears, nose and eyes. It also lacks the footlike appendage that many mollusks possess for the reason that it has no need of an organ of locomotion.

Mixing Tobacco.

The mixing of light and dark tobacco is a thing of comparatively recent date. A man from London found his pipe tobacco was nearly exhausted, so he cut up a cake of chewing tobacco and made a mixture. He continued to smoke the blend, and, meeting a friend who was in the trade, he gave him a sample, with the result that the first smoking mixture was soon before the public.

COUNTRY NOT RIGHTLY NAMED

Island by No Means the Warmest Which Appellation Would Seem to imply.

Iceland suggests to many people a land of glacial coldness populated by fur-clad shivering natives, probably Eskimos. The real Iceland wears clothes no warmer than those needed in Canada. His winters are usually no more severe than those of Canada. The Icelandic is not an Eskimo. He is a descendant of the fair-haired Vikings. Nothing excites an Icelandic more than to have some one pleasantly ask him if it is ever warm in Iceland and if any flowers grow there.

That Iceland is so misunderstood is entirely the fault of the Norse explorers who landed on the island and felt obliged to name it. As it was a cold day and the land was frozen beneath a blanket of snow, they thoughtlessly called it Iceland and departed hastily. Had they first visited the island on a spring day, when the wind blew across the broad plains, they might have felt the vastness of the place and with equal carelessness called it Greenland. The name Iceland was officially adopted and instantly became the island's hoodoo.

Summer in Iceland is warm, sometimes hot. In June the sun poms down upon the plains continuously save for a few minutes at midnight. Another unicealidic phase of Iceland are the hot springs which pour up steaming water. To this hot water supply the women carry their washing as a matter of convenience.

Iceland is not a land of luxuriant vegetation or perfect climate. It is a fairly prosperous little country that struggles bravely against its handicaps, not the least of which is the world's attitude of persistent misunderstanding.

NUTS MILLION YEARS OLD

Interesting Fossils Recently Found by the United States Geological Survey.

Among the fossils recently discovered by the United States geological survey are remarkably well-preserved impressions or casts of leaves of several extinct varieties of oak, oak, beech and hickory, which were found, with three present-day species, in strata bordering the Gulf of Mexico, according to the Youth's Companion. Although the leaves themselves have rotted and gone, here and there some were buried in soft clay by sediment in such a manner as to leave perfectly preserved impressions.

The nuts, on the other hand, neither decayed nor petrified, but fell into pools of water, which is one of the best preservatives in nature, and sooner or later were also buried under silt and clay. Owing to their hard shells, those that fell into places favorable to their preservation are today in excellent condition, although slightly flattened by the long soaking and the gentle pressure of the clay. The deposit in which the leaves and nuts were found is not less than a million years old.

Architecture and Life Are One.

There is another result of good teaching of art history that is important. A good teacher of art history cannot fail to impress upon his students how intimately the history of art and the history of the race are connected; how every great change in style is only a symptom of some great change in ways of thinking and living. The history of architecture ought to teach that life and art are one and that falseness of ideal is mirrored inevitably by a fake architecture. It ought to go far toward removing that destructive viewpoint of the present day that sees architecture as something far off and esoteric and unimportant instead of the very stuff of our contemporary civilization. It ought, in a word, to open the draftsman's eyes to the social implications and the social responsibilities of his art.—Talbot F. Franklin in Architecture.

Put It in the Bill.

The habitual customer, Mr. Feedwell, would often condescend to chat with the head waiter. One day he said very seriously:

"Look here, I don't often complain, but this pepper of yours is half peas!"

"Oh, no!" said the head waiter indignantly. "I see to that myself. We grind our own pepper."

"But I tell you it's half peas!" said the customer, "and I'll prove it! P-e-p-p-e-r—half 'p's. You see!"

And he laughed until the tears came. The head waiter smiled weakly, and went to get the customer's change. He returned still smiling. The customer glanced through his change.

"Threepence short," he said.

"I think not, sir," said the waiter. "Sixpence for peas, sir. Now—half peas!"—London Tit-Bits.

Heligoland.

Heligoland lies in the North sea, 40 miles northwest from the mouth of the Elbe. It consists of a steep, rocky plateau, 184 feet high, with a strip of firm sand at its southerly foot. Its area is about 123 acres. Kaiser William is said to have expended $50,000,000 on the practical reconstruction of the island; it is fortified against sea and cannon alike with great granite buttresses 16 feet thick and 240 feet high on all sides. Even the fissures in the cliffs have been filled up and bolted together with iron chains. They are now a part of the German Empire.

FERRY BOAT MAKES FIRST TRIP

Gov. Harrington Has 1,000 On The Claiborne-Annapolis Voyage

With more than 1,000 guests of Gov. Harrington from Baltimore city and various sections of the State on board the Annapolis-Claiborne ferry steamer made its initial public trip from the State capital across the bay to Talbot county last Thursday.

At Annapolis the whole town turned out to give the ferry a send-off. Mayor James F. Strange presented a State flag to the steamer, and Gov. Harrington, Judge Robert Moss, James Munroe and H. D. Mephram, president of the company which has the contract with the State Roads Commission to operate the ferry, were among the speakers. The Naval Academy Band played on the wharf where the ceremonies took place.

The steamer has a capacity of about 1,500 passengers and a score of automobiles. The rates announced are $2 for transporting an automobile, 50 cents one way for a passenger and 75 cents for a round trip. Eastern Shoremen will save much time in reaching Baltimore and Washington by taking the ferry at Claiborne and the trolley lines at Annapolis.

An autoist from the mountain peaks of Western Maryland will have a straight run from one extremity of the State to the Atlantic ocean resort—Ocean City—at the other by being transported with his machine over the bay on the ferry.

Horn-Shores Wedding

A very pretty wedding took place Saturday afternoon the 14th inst., at Chance, when J. Henry Horn, of Baltimore, was married to Miss Ruth Mycint Shores, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas E. Shores, of Chance. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Wm. H. Revelle, in Chance Methodist Episcopal Church, which was beautifully decorated in palms and flowers for the occasion. The wedding march was played by Mrs. E. P. Simpson.

The bride entered the church with her father, by whom she was given in marriage, and was met at the altar by the groom, attended by Mr. Fred Horn, of Baltimore. The bride wore a gown of white georgette crepe over Duchess satin and carried a shower bouquet of white roses. She was attended by a matron of honor, Mrs. Robert J. Kelley, a sister of the bride. The bride's maids were Miss Orpha Shores and Miss Elma Webster who were dressed in pink georgette crepe and carried bouquets of sweet peas. The ushers were Messrs. Robert J. Kelley and David Souse, of Baltimore.

After the wedding the happy couple went to the bride's home where they received the congratulations of a host of friends. The bride and groom left Monday of last week for Baltimore, where they will make their home.

Woman Suffrage League Meeting

The Princess Anne Branch of the Woman Suffrage League of Maryland held a public meeting at the Washington Hotel last (Monday) night at eight o'clock, Mrs. J. D. Wallop presiding. Miss Beulah Weldon, state organizer, made a report on the progress the organization has made in Somerset county.

The State Suffrage League is sending an organizer into all the counties to gather together all the women who are interested in the movement. Princess Anne numbers many suffragists in its population and they were gladly welcomed at the Monday evening meeting.

Now that the Federal Amendment, called the Susan B. Anthony Amendment, first introduced in Congress in 1878, has passed, it is only a question of a few months until women all over the United States expect to be able to vote.

Filed Papers For Clerk of Court

Last Tuesday Judge Fred N. Holland, of Crisfield, filed papers with the Supervisors of Election for Somerset county, a certificate of his candidacy for the Democratic nomination for Clerk of the Circuit Court. In announcing his candidacy Judge Holland said:

"I'm not allied with any political faction, but have always been a Democrat and supported and voted for the candidates of my party. I am not entering the race as the candidate of any faction, but as a Democrat, and I shall appeal to the members of all factions and branches of the party for support. If nominated, I believe I can win in the general election, in which event I will strive earnestly to serve the people with credit to myself and my party."

The Rev. Mr. Boyle, pastor of the Salisbury Presbyterian Church, exchanged pulpits with the Rev. W. L. Freund, pastor of the Manokin Presbyterian Church, Princess Anne, last Sunday morning. Mr. Freund also was the teacher of the Presbyterian Era Bible Class between 10:45 and 11:00 Sunday morning.

Reception To Soldiers and Sailors

The Red Cross Circle, of Mt. Vernon district, tendered a splendid reception on Wednesday evening last to the soldiers and sailors of Mt. Vernon district who have returned home from the recent war.

The reception was held in the Guild Hall at Mt. Vernon and was arranged by the following committees: Mrs. Edward A. Jones, Mrs. James R. McIntyre, Mrs. Arthur McGill, Mrs. Earle McIntyre, Mrs. Margaret Hopkins and the Misses Sophia Grosoup, Ruby Bounds, Elsie Price, Anita Price, Cecilia Webster and Louise Hopkins.

The reception committee was Mrs. Edward A. Jones and the Misses Sophia Grosoup and Ruby Bounds.

The hall was appropriately decorated and was filled to the doors when the ceremonies began at 8:30 o'clock. In the center of the stage was a large banner containing 37 stars in honor of 37 soldiers and sailors who had entered the service, the two center stars being of gold in honor of the two soldiers—Thurman Webster and Shelby Dashiell—who lost their lives.

The ceremonies were opened by the Rev. Jas. A. Brown, of Princess Anne, with prayer. Mr. Brown also presided and made a short opening address. He then introduced Col. Henry J. Waters, of Princess Anne, who delivered the address of welcome to the soldiers and sailors. Col. Waters was followed by Mr. Oliver Mason, of Mt. Vernon, who was with the 115th Regiment in France and won honors for bravery. He gave an interesting account of his experience abroad. The musical program was rendered by Mrs. Creston Beauchamp, Mrs. Edgar Jones, Miss Irene Taylor and Mr. Joseph Goodman, of Princess Anne. After the ceremonies a sumptuous collation was served to the soldiers and sailors and invited guests.

Tomato Growers' Meeting June 28th

A meeting of the Somerset County Tomato Growers' Association will be held Saturday afternoon, June 28th, at 3 o'clock (new time), in the Court House at Princess Anne. The purpose of the meeting is to discuss the growing, grading and marketing of tomatoes and other farm crops. A sales manager will also be elected to market the tomatoes and other produce of the association members.

Arrangements are being made to have Mr. Theodore Wade, of the Bureau of Markets, United States Department of Agriculture, present to speak on "Farmers' Co-operative Associations." Mr. Wade has had considerable experience throughout the United States in farmers' association work and will be able to give an interesting talk on this subject.

Mr. J. F. Shields, sales manager of the Wicomico Tomato Growers' Association, will be present and discuss the methods the Wicomico Association use in grading and marketing tomatoes and other truck crops. All members of the association and canners are urged to be present at this meeting.

Mathematically speaking, it is four times as hard to forgive and forget than to simply give and get.

BAR CONVENTION THIS WEEK

State Association Going To Atlantic City For Three Day Session

The program for the twenty-fourth annual meeting of the Maryland State Bar Association, to be held at Atlantic City on Thursday, Friday and Saturday of this week, has been completed.

At 10 o'clock Thursday morning the first session will be called to order. Judge Edward C. Peter, of Rockville, the president, will make the annual address and reports of standing and special committees will be received on Thursday evening. Guy W. Steele, of Westminster, will deliver an address, his subject being "The Coming Expansion of Our Law."

Dr. Bernard C. Steiner, librarian of the Pratt Library, will deliver an address on Friday morning on "The Life of Roger B. Taney," a Marylander and Chief Justice of the United States Supreme Court. On Friday evening the association will be addressed by Col. R. H. C. Kelton, U. S. A., his subject being "The American Operations in France, Some Phases of the Original Plans and the Contrast of the Actual Operations." Colonel Kelton was on the General Staff of the Commander-in-Chief from September, 1917, to June, 1918, and Chief of Staff of the Third Division of our army from June 19 to October 19, 1918, in the general engagements at Chateau Thierry, St. Mihiel and the first attack in the Argonne.

Saturday morning's session will be an interesting one. Col. John H. Wigmore, dean of Northwestern University Law School, at Evanston, Ill., and Col. Edmund M. Morgan, professor of law at Yale University, will address the association on "Military Justice." They will treat the subject from opposite viewpoints.

Unfinished business will be disposed of on Saturday afternoon to clear the way for the banquet Saturday night, which will close the meeting. Officers for the ensuing year will be elected Saturday afternoon.

E. M. Adkins Instantly Killed

Mr. E. M. Adkins was instantly killed and Mr. T. J. Stewart was badly injured about 9:30 o'clock last Friday morning while working on the telephone line at the corner of Chesapeake and Maryland avenues, Crisfield. Both men were residents of Salisbury, the former being 24 years of age, while Stewart was 36 years old.

The two men were working on the telephone line where the two streets intersect, the poles on which they were working being joint poles, and used by both the telephone company and the electric company.

Adkins was resting on a cross-arm which carried telephone wires, and in changing his position struck his arm against a high-tension electric wire above him, forming a direct current with the phone wire and killing him instantly. The electric current was discontinued as soon as the accident could be communicated to the plant, and the dead man then fell from the electric wire, his legs catching in a brace of the cross arm and holding the body until it was later taken down by fellow workmen on the line. Death had been instant.

Stewart was working on the same telephone wire four poles above his unfortunate companion and as the current from the electric wire shot through Adkins' body and out over the telephone wire, Stewart received its full force. When Adkins' body fell from the wire, the circuit was broken and Stewart fell to the ground, a distance of about 25 feet. He was badly burned about the arm and hip and his ankle was broken by the fall.

Wedding Anniversary

The home of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas E. Shores, of Chance, was the scene of much merry-making on Saturday evening, the 14th instant, when they entertained a host of friends in honor of their twenty-fifth wedding anniversary. The home was beautifully decorated with flowers and drapery. The merry guests soon arrived, bringing with them many beautiful gifts for the happy couple. After many happy reflections of the past years, and the cordial mingling of "old acquaintances," the company was invited to the dining-room, where they were served with the many delicacies of the season.

At a late hour the guests departed after wishing Mr. and Mrs. Shores many happy years in the future.

July 9th is the date decided upon for the "Welcome Home" celebration to be given the soldiers, sailors and marines of Pocomoke. Supper will be served to the boys in their parsonage at 6 o'clock. The celebration will be held on the church lawn immediately after supper.

DRIVE FOR SCHOOL TEACHERS

Campaign For Students For State Normal School Will Start

A systematic campaign for more students at the Maryland State Normal School to increase the number of trained public school teachers and, in fact, to prevent an absolute dearth in the State has been inaugurated by the members of the Alumni Association of that institution in co-operation with the faculty and the State Board of Education. The present shortage of efficient teachers, together with the ever-decreasing number of young women preparing for that profession, is developing an alarming situation. This condition was emphasized by the fact that but 82 students were graduated from the Maryland State Normal School this year, in comparison to classes of from 75 to 100 in former years. The school, it was stated, could provide for at least 150, and this number of teachers could be placed each year.

The attractive salaries paid to young people entering war work, in comparison with the small remuneration as teachers, are, it is believed, the reason for the loss of a large proportion of the force during the last two years. But despite the fact that many of the teachers will return to their profession with the cessation of government war activities, the decrease in the enrollment at the normal and training institutions is causing growing concern for the future.

In view of these facts, the special committee on increased enrollment appointed by the Alumni Association, believing that larger salaries would attract more recruits to this profession, have pledged themselves not only to work toward an increased enrollment at the school but also toward increased pay for the teachers.

The committee, of which Dr. Robert Fawcett is chairman, already has set to work to carry out these plans and has sent out hundreds of letters throughout the counties and to public officials in the State. Every effort will be made to provide scholarships to those desiring to enter the Normal school. It is requested that the names of possible candidates be sent to the secretary of the committee, Miss Elsie I. Hichew, State Normal School, Maryland.

Prices And Wages Up To Stay

Will prices go down, or will there be a further increase?

This question has engaged the attention of the U. S. Department of Labor, because labor is injuriously affected by the widespread belief that prices will soon take a sudden drop. People will not build houses now, because they think that labor and material will be much cheaper next year. For a like reason they will not buy goods, more than enough to supply immediate wants. All this makes for dull trade and much unemployment.

Price experts connected with the Department of Labor have been at work studying this question to see if the belief in an early fall of prices is well founded. They are now reporting in a way to suggest that it is not well founded.

Studying all the factors in the problem and comparing the result with what actually did happen after other great wars the experts have come to the conclusion that there will be no immediate and sudden fall of prices outside of those things whose price had to be pushed to very high levels in order to stimulate production for the war. It is not denied that in the next ten years the general level of prices will fall; but the change is expected to be very gradual and hardly noticeable at the time. Building and business, therefore, may go ahead with confidence. We are in for a long period of high prices and high wages, and it is doubtful if either will ever fall to before-the-war levels.

Tax On Passenger Automobiles

Hon. Joshua W. Miles, Collector of Internal Revenue for the District of Maryland, which includes the State of Delaware, has issued a statement in which he calls attention to the fact that Paragraph 1, of Section 1001 of the Act of 1918 imposes a tax on all persons carrying on the business of operating or running passenger automobiles for hire at the rate of $10 for each automobile having a seating capacity of more than two and not more than seven, and $20 for each such automobile having a seating capacity of more than seven.

This tax became effective on January 1st, 1919; and the Collector of Internal Revenue states that it is the opinion of his office that a number of persons who should do so have as yet failed to pay the tax, and he is issuing this statement in order that proper attention may be given to the matter and penalties avoided.

FRATERNAL ORDERS ORGANIZING

Maryland Secret Orders Endorse Thrift And Saving Movement

More than three hundred war savings societies are being organized among the fraternal orders of Maryland, according to information given out by the War Loan Organization of the Fifth Federal Reserve District. Seven secret orders have given unqualified endorsement to the thrift and saving movement advocated by the The United States Treasury Department, and these orders have a combined membership of 34,506 with 313 lodges, councils, tents or tribes.

One of the largest of the Maryland orders to take up the thrift campaign is that of the Red Men, of which there are 88 tribes with 9,933 loyal members in the Oriole State. Endorsement of the thrift idea means that all branches or chapters of the orders so approving will invest such of their treasury funds as practicable in War Savings Stamps and will actively push the campaign by organizing war savings societies immediately among their memberships.

James S. Webster, grand chancellor of the Knights of Pythias in Maryland, has issued a stirring appeal. This order has 89 lodges in this state and a total membership of 9,766. Grand Master Frederick C. Euler, of the Shield of Honor, has called upon all members of that order to co-operate in the movement, and the 30 lodges with their 2,201 members are responding splendidly.

On behalf of the Maccabees in Maryland a call has gone forth from Renne D. Kuntz, S. D. S. C., to 32 tents which have a combined membership of 2,790. From Charles S. Cochran, grand master of records of the Knights of the Golden Eagle, a special communication has gone to 14 lodges with their membership of 1,193.

State Manager R. F. Clark, of the Woodman, of the World, which has 40 lodges in Maryland with 3,328 members, has asked the heartiest co-operation and it is being accorded and John Trainer, state deputy of the Knights of Columbus, with its 20 lodges and 5,375 members, has taken similar action. In addition the Fraternal Aid Union, of the eastern division of America in which there is 150 lodges with 15,000 members, is lending strong support, the lodges having been appealed to by Secretary F. E. Pleitner, it being shown that the savings movement is not only highly beneficial to the lodges but it is valuable and helpful to the members as individuals.

Vacation Earnings And Savings

The school vacation just begun is a time of relaxation for both teacher and pupil. But relaxation does not necessarily mean idleness. A change in employment, diverting the mind from one subject to another, often proves more beneficial than so-called complete rest.

The teacher whose pupils find ways of earning money during the vacation period will have the realization that he or she is discharging well the responsibilities of thrift education. Knowing the opportunities open to boys and girls for spare-time employment and pointing them out to pupils is part of the thrift education. If the teacher helps to make the style thrift and industry, instead of waste and idleness, there will be the co-operation of the instinctive imitation.

The eagerness with which boys take newspaper routes shows how instinctive it is to be independent. No amount of effort is too great for the child if he is fed sympathetically over the roughest places when he sees the use to which his work is to be put. He wants to be something and to do something. Perhaps he wants to save for a college fund, or for winter clothes, and he will be anxious to earn something during vacation.

In this connection a recent message to school children by Carter Glass, Secretary of the Treasury, is pertinent.

"I summon you to solve one of America's greatest financial problems: How to make permanent among our people the habits of thrift begun during the war."

"Your investments in War Savings Stamps helped win the war. The victory has been won. Let us carry over into peace time two of the great lessons of the war—the value of thrift and the fact that good citizenship and interest in your government come from having a part in financing it. I call upon you to share in the 1919 National War Savings campaign by studying means and methods of thrift, and by investing your savings in War Savings Stamps. To you I intrust the responsibility for making the future America a nation of thrift."

The postage rate on postals and letters will be reduced to the old rate as before the war, July 1st. Unused stamped envelopes and postals of the increased rate will be redeemed during the month of July only.

IMPROVED ROADS AND HIGHWAYS

Make Rapid Transportation 365 Days In A Year

"Improved highways of a permanent type providing motor express and passenger transportation facilities spell opportunity today to the city which intends to lay the foundation for a healthy permanent future growth."

"For, if we but admit that hope lies in a more even distribution of the population over the acres lying within a city's sphere of influence then we are committed to the task of arranging facilities to permit that adjustment to take place in a natural way."

"Improved highways that make possible rapid motor transportation 365 days out of every year will just as certainly permit and stimulate our people to move out on to the surrounding country acres as a fast and free flowing stream will deliver at its mouth the piece of bark flung in at its source."

These remarks, made by Mr. W. O. Rutherford, of Baltimore, at a recent conference, are vital now, first, because in many cities housing conditions are not conducive to a home-making and home-loving folk, and second, now is the time to set about on those works of public improvement that will permit men and women to become home owners and give them added cause to be proud of their city and land.

"Quite recently our Trade Extension Division," adds Mr. Rutherford, "completed a survey of a large county in one of our great eastern states that has not a single mile of railroad track within its borders. Our object in making such surveys and conducting such research is to help provide a market that will extend the field of usefulness of products made by the workers of America that are indispensable to the life and happiness of mankind, and to the strengthening of our national life. This particular county was isolated, thought of great productive power, and was not harnessed up to the homes of the great industrial cities of the east nor assuming its part of the burden in our march of progress."

"Such a county, typical of many sections of our country, offers unlimited possibilities to greater usefulness." Adequate provision for improved roads and highways transportation will provide a system of veins facilitating and stimulating communication that can be linked up with main arteries of travel. The new circulation thus provided for will incorporate such areas as vital parts of this great living organism we call home and country.

"To meet such situations as these, and because of the evident solution to be found in the improvement of our highways and the stimulation of highways transportation, representatives of the cities of this country assembled at St. Louis recently and put themselves squarely behind the development of highways as being of particular and pressing importance. And at this meeting of the United States Chamber of Commerce a resolution was adopted urging upon Congress that the time had now arrived to create a Federal Highway Commission to lay out and build a truly national system of highways and stimulate their efficient utilization. And this action, signifying the importance to our national life that may be attached to the new Federal Highway Commission merely re-echoes the voices of hundreds of thousands of citizens who have already expressed themselves. As a result of this general insistence, Senator Charles E. Townsend, of Michigan, introduced his bill at the last session providing for the Federal Highway Commission and a national system of highways. The feeling was unanimous that the time had come for the adoption of a policy specifically providing for the building outright by the national government of highways of interstate importance, including those essential to the national defense and development of the public domain."

Millions In Interest

More than $490,000,000 will be paid to the American people before January 1st, 1920, in interest on their Liberty Bonds. It will be of great value to the government, the United States Treasury announces, to have a large part of this money reinvested in government securities and the War Loan Organization of the Fifth Federal Reserve District has sent the banks a small sign calling attention to the value of investing the proceeds of Liberty Loan interest coupons in War Savings Stamps, asking that they display them near the paying tellers' windows when the coupons are most likely to be presented for payment.

It is more blessed to give than to receive, but it is just as well to keep your self-respect.

The Hour of Life

By S. B. HACKLEY

(Copyright, 1919, by the McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

The all-day steady downpour of rain had ceased, but the night was inky black. O'Neal sat in the train, his big hands clasped around one propped-up knee, his sensitive face bent over them, his warm Irish heart aching with a new sense of the grief from which he was feeling.

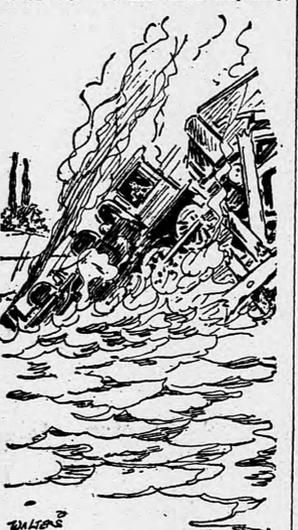

It had been four weeks since Marjorie Ballew had told him of her engagement to Sherrill Leeds—a four weeks whose every moment had gone to arrange his affairs that he might make this prospecting trip to the state of Washington to find a home where he would not have daily to see her as Leeds' wife.

Sherrill was the grandson of one of the aristocratic founders of the town, and had a fortune besides, and he, John O'Neal, brought up and educated though he was, by the childless old minister of the place, was but the orphaned son of Dennis O'Neal, bricklayer.

But O'Neal had not thought this would make any difference to Marjorie—Marjorie whom he had loved since he first carried her lunchbasket to school, and fought Sherry Leeds for calling her "redhead!"

He had waited to ask her to marry him, until he could tell her that his orders for house-building material warranted him building a house for himself, only to find she intended to marry Sherrill Leeds.

"But you made me believe you loved me!" he had cried helplessly,

Went Down in the Boiling Waters.

"Oh, Margie darling, I love you better—I need you more than he."

"Mother wishes it, John," had been her defensive answer. "And I—I don't want you to quit being my friend. I want you to come to see me often."

"I cannot bear to see you again, Margie." In the bitterness of his disappointment the words had burst from him miserably. "I never want to see you again unless it is in the hour of death."

"In the hour of death!" she had echoed unhappily, holding out a trembling hand which he could not trust himself to take. "Good-by then, John, until the hour of death."

"Gibson! All out for Gibson!" The coach door banged open and the train drew to a standstill in a prosperous little town half-way across the West.

A gay group, bringing the fragrance of carnations with it, came in at the rear of the coach and took seats behind O'Neal. There were three young girls in the party, an elderly woman and two young men. From the girls' chatter O'Neal learned they were going on an hour's ride down the road to present the next day at a morning wedding at which the three young women were to be bridesmaids.

"Oh Margie, you'll be almost too busy, after this wedding, with milliners and dressmakers, to help anybody else get married, won't you?" The voice of the girl rose clear and loud.

"Right you are, Lauretine!" One of the young men laughed as he spoke and his voice, strangely familiar to O'Neal, somehow grated on him. "October is only two months off, October, when Margie plays the part of leading lady at my wedding!"

"Two months is a long time. Many things may happen in two months."

O'Neal clutched the arms of his chair. It was her voice, and the man who laughed was Sherrill Leeds! Suppose they should recognize him! Once she had told him, banteringly, that she would know the back of his black head, the shoulders of his over-big body, "across the Mississippi river."

"I'm a coward—a weak-kneed coward," O'Neal rebuked himself, "but I can't face her—I can't face them together."

The next moment there was a terrific wrench of the car, a creaking and groaning of steel and timbers and the engine went down in the boiling waters of the river through the broken bridge. By a strange sort of miracle, though the baggage car hung down into the water, the passenger coaches still stood on the track, in imminent danger at any moment of being drawn into the flood.

The engineer and his fireman had gone down to death, but none of the passengers were more than bruised and shaken, and there was a frantic exodus from the coaches to the safety of the solid ground beside the track.

"Is everybody out and safe?" Marjorie Ballew, standing white and shaken on the sodden ground, asked a man beside her.

"All out but one man," he answered. "He's not hurt, but one of his legs is fastened some way. They've sent up the road for tools, but it's doubtful whether they get back in time to get him out—you see, the coach is likely to go over any minute."

"Who is he?" she asked pityingly. "Says his name's John O'Neal. Wants Rev. Phillip Cavender of Woodside, N. Y., informed, if—"

But the girl was gone. O'Neal, waiting calmly, felt a light touch on his shoulder, and looked up into a pair of terrified blue eyes.

"Margie!" He caught her arm in a tense grip. "Go back!"

"John," she breathed, and his heart beat strangely, joyously, while there came calls of distress from the elderly kinswoman and the girls outside the car, "if it is the hour of death to you, I am going to pass it with you!" "Come out, Madge," pleaded Sherrill's voice through the open window. "Don't risk your life!"

There was no answer from the girl. Leeds' voice hardened with fear.

"Marjorie, I'm coming in to carry you out!"

"Go, Marjorie!" besought O'Neal hoarsely. Go, darling!"

Marjorie slipped the solitaire off her third finger and passed it through the window to Leeds.

"You need not come—you have no authority over me now, Sherrill," she said tensely; "I didn't know where my heart was when I promised to marry you. I know now!"

With a little sob she slipped to her knees, and, throwing one arm about O'Neal's neck, laid her head on his breast, whispering contradictorily that she had loved him all the time.

Five minutes later O'Neal stood on the firm ground and watched his prison house go down in the muddy waters. Marjorie clung to him and hid her eyes.

"Look up, sweetheart," he whispered, his face glowing, "it is the hour of life to us!"

The Opal.

Have you ever heard of the opal? So asks Frank G. Carpenter in "How the World is Clothed." It is a beautiful stone, composed of a material called quartz, save that it contains more or less water and gives forth some of the most brilliant colors known. It sometimes looks white and again may be a pale yellow, red, green or blue. Fire opals shine like fire, when the light strikes them, and show almost all the colors of the rainbow. The opal is found in Mexico and Honduras, and also in South America. It occurs in Hungary and Saxony, and there are large opal mines in eastern Australia. Some have also been discovered in certain of our western states. About the finest specimens, however, are from Austria-Hungary, the most beautiful opal ever found coming from there. This stone is of about the size of a man's hand, and it weighs 17 ounces. It is now among the jewels of the Austrian crown. Opals are usually imbedded in other stones. They have a different form from the diamond, sapphire, or ruby, and are usually round or oval in shape.

Palestine Oil Production.

The present method of manufacturing olive and sesame oil in Palestine consists of a circular stone trough in which a stone disk rotates on edge like a wheel and is operated by a horse, mule or camel. One man is constantly stirring, removing and replacing the olives as they are crushed and another carrying the whole olives to the mill and returning with the crushed ones. A crude wooden box press is used to extract the oil. The primitive devices, while they still exist, are rapidly falling into disuse, as they are too laborious and do not produce as much oil as modern presses. Modern French presses are operated where no power exists, by a long beam pulled by rope and tackle, while some are operated by kerosene engines. With these presses one squeezing is enough. Instead of two or three under the native methods. Under the native process the oil obtained from the last pressings is used in soap making.

The Raven's Warning.

Tradition has it that all the calamities which dog the footsteps of the ill-fated Austrian royal family are foreshadowed by the appearance of a raven.

When the Archduke Maximilian departed for Mexico—and execution—a raven followed him on the path; and when the Archduchess Christina left for her unhappy life in Spain a raven hovered over the carriage.

A whole flight of ravens is said to have hovered over the crowning of the late Francis Joseph, and one of the ill-omened birds dashed a peach from the hand of the Empress Elizabeth the day before she was murdered at Geneva.

Frenchmen Record Kisses.

The Italians and Spaniards kiss only by favor and are decidedly lax in their osculatory observances. Swedes, Norwegians, Danes and Germans are especially generous in the distribution of their favors. The French kiss upon the slightest provocation; sometimes men have been known to kiss each other several times during a brief conversation.

Florida's Beautiful Capital.

Tallahassee, capital of Florida, is not like so many Florida towns, a mere purveyor to tastes of the northern tourist; it is a real bit of the old South—the South of roses and mocking birds, of mansions and cabins, of easy-going settled ways of life. Between 1845, when it was made the state capital, and the Civil war, Tallahassee was one of the gayest towns in the South, for the rich Florida planters, owners of 1,000-acre estates, came there regularly for the meeting of the legislature, and a gay social season. The big plantations have been broken up, and life at Tallahassee is not as picturesque as once it was. But the town itself has not changed much. It is a veritable bower of flowers, especially in the spring when the roses bloom. It is also famous for its great live oaks, centuries old, and its magnolia trees.

FAN

By JACK LAWTON.

The Rev. Roland Reed had not been in Cartersville two hours before he heard of Fan. Everybody heard of Fan eventually. Were not her mysteries the town's chief topic of gossip?

Mrs. Randolph, sister of this merry-hearted visitor, had settled among them a few years ago, and Fan, left homeless, came to live with her. Mrs. Randolph was exclusive. "Stuck up," Cartersville called her—but this busy mother of young and mischievous children had no time to spend in village visits.

Quietly each day she made her round of the stores while her big husband returned at evening from his city office. Fan was the one speculative element of the family. Frequently she disappeared and reappeared again with no explanation or notice of absence in the village paper. Having sufficient at her command, it was known that no necessary occupation called her to the city. Neither, she cheerfully informed a curious inquirer, did she spend the time there visiting friends. Further particulars of her trips were not given.

"Goes after the beaux, I reckon," said Mrs. Evans. And if that were Fan's purpose she surely succeeded. Seldom was she known to return home unattended from meeting.

"Did she not tell you," Mrs. Randolph would regretfully ask an abject caller "that she intended going away? She is in the city?"

It was the young rector's housekeeper who pointed Fan out to him soon after his arrival.

"There goes that wild Hilton girl in her brother-in-law's car," she said, "seems to me I'd find a better companion for my children."

The Reverend Roland, looking through his study window, saw an automobile which appeared to be filled to overflowing with laughing children, and—so the Reverend Roland thought—the loveliest girl he had ever seen, at the wheel.

"Wish you'd talk to the frivolous creature," Mrs. Evans later besought him. "Our last rector tried. Fan listened real attentive, he said, but it didn't do no good."

The Reverend Roland was troubled. As time went on he grew more troubled. Fan selected to play in his church one Sunday, and the sympathetic quality of her voice touched his honest heart with an influence which would not be dismissed.

"Careless! with a voice like that," the rector reproved his own thought.

In a way he and Fan became friendly, but when he would have walked with her down the village street she refused in her own laughing, positive way.

"Your people wouldn't like it," said Fan.

The continued tirade against the girl now tormented him; then came a night when the young rector was called peremptorily into the city. He had barely time to catch the midnight train, and had been thinking pleasantly when the phone call came of his evening with Fan; for she had allowed him to walk from choir practice with her as far as his own door, and had promised to bring tulip flowers to the church in the morning. Perhaps then he might be able to talk with her.

As the rector reflected the midnight train rolled on its cityward way; a low laugh caused him to glance up quickly. Fan was there in the car seat beside him.

"A late trip into the city, Miss Hilton."

"Yes," she nodded noncommittally.

"You said nothing about intending to leave town when I saw you tonight," he persisted.

Fan smiled wickedly. "I decided to leave only twenty minutes ago," she said.

Confidentially she leaned toward him.

"I thought it better to get away without argument before my sister and her husband returned from the theater," she added.

The young minister frowned. "I am afraid," he said, "that I do not understand you."

"I am afraid you don't," Fan cheerfully agreed.

"You will at least," she stiffly requested, "allow me to see you safely to your destination. It will be long after midnight when we reach the city."

"Thanks," Fan carelessly replied; "no need, I'll call a taxi."

For some miles they rode on in silence.

"Would you mind," Fan asked plaintively, "if I use your coat for a while as a pillow; I'm dreadfully tired."

She looked tired, childish also, and in need of protecting care. A great tenderness filled the heart of Roland Reed.

"Fan," he burst out, "will you tell me why you are hurrying into the city tonight?"

The girl's dark eyes softened. "Yes," she answered, "I will tell you. I'm a settlement worker there, interested in a home for destitute children. They phoned me tonight that an epidemic has broken out among them, and that the urgent need of nurses is more than can be supplied, so I'm going in—to take care of the sick babies. Do I meet with your approval, reverend sir?"

But already the answer to her question was in the air. Fan's eyes were shining. (Copyright, 1919, Newspaper Union.)

DADDY DAIRY

GRAIN MIXTURES FOR CALVES

Wheat Bran is Relished by Young Animals and Corn Has Excellent Physiological Effect.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

When the calf is in its second week it should begin to receive grain, and when one month old it should eat about half a pound a day. After this time the quantity of grain may be gradually increased, feeding all that the calf will eat until three pounds a day is reached, probably during the third month. Grain fed to supplement separated milk should never be mixed with the milk. It is questionable whether the preparation of grain in any way, such as soaking or boiling, is advisable under most circumstances.

Wheat bran is eaten readily by young calves. Corn has an excellent physiological effect and to a great extent may take the place of fat removed from skim or separated milk. Experiments tend to show that corn fed to calves should be cracked rather than finely ground. Ground oats are good in grain mixtures when available, but in many cases cost much more per unit of feed than corn and bran. The following grain mixtures are recommended by dairy specialists of the United States department of agriculture:

1. Three parts cracked corn and one part wheat bran.
2. Three parts cracked corn, one part wheat bran and one part ground oats.
3. Three parts cracked corn, one part wheat bran, one part ground oats, and one part linseed meal.
4. Five parts cracked corn, one part wheat bran, one part ground oats, and one part blood meal.
5. Oats, ground.

Clover hay, alfalfa hay, or the most palatable roughage available should be given the calf after the second week. Alfalfa is likely to cause scours, and should be fed sparingly at first and increased only after the calf gets accustomed to it. At first hay should be furnished only a handful at a time, and be placed so that it cannot be soiled. For the first six months, at least, the calf should receive all the roughage of good quality that it will eat up clean. When the calf has access to good pasture during the first six months it need not receive other roughage. It is not advisable, however, to have the calf under two months of age on pasture in the early spring.

GOOD BLOOD ASSISTED DAIRY

Good Dairy Bull, Purchased as Calf for $100, Put at Head of Herd is Good Investment.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

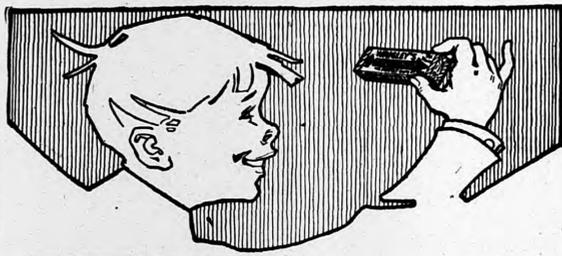

A good dairy bull, purchased by a Montana county farm bureau member, cost $100 as a calf; it was put at the head of a herd of ten cows, the average annual production of which was 4,800 pounds of milk and 264 pounds of butterfat. The daughters of the bull have now replaced the old cows in the herd and exceed the production of their dams by an average of 102 pounds butterfat and 1,825 pounds of milk per year. This improvement nets $300 profit each year without taking into account the difference in value of the calves. A cow should "carry on" for at least six years, which would mean $1,800 additional profit from the ten cows, because of the $100 invested in the bull calf. "It was a bully good investment," says the farmer.

ENEMIES OF DAIRY INDUSTRY

They Are the Men Who Cause to Be Manufactured Poor Grade of Butter for Market.

There is a class of men who are more dangerous to the dairy industry than the men who use the substitute, and they are the men who cause to be manufactured a poor grade of butter. There is no substitute for first-class butter, but for butter made from old, stale cream there is not only danger of substitutes, but there is danger of many people not using butter at all.

Save Family Expenses. The dairy cows under reasonable conditions will save nearly or quite half of the expenses of a small family.

PLANT COWPEAS AND SOY BEANS

Time of Sowing Depends Largely on Latitude and Use to Be Made of Crop.

WAIT UNTIL SOIL IS WARM

Plants Grow Slowly in Cool Weather and Ordinarily There is No Advantage in Planting Earlier Than the Corn Crop.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

Although soy beans and cowpeas may be sown during a period from early spring until midsummer, the time of planting depends largely on the latitude and the use to be made of the crop. As a main grain or hay crop the best time for planting is about the same as for corn, or when the ground has become thoroughly warm. The plants will then start quickly and make a rapid growth. The plants grow slowly in cool weather, and ordinarily there is no advantage in planting earlier than corn. Experiments have shown that the soy bean may be able to withstand more cold in the early spring. For pasture, green manure, soiling, or even for a hay crop, both the soy bean and cowpea may be sown as late as August 1 in the South and July 1 in the North.

Dates of Planting. The extreme dates of successful planting at the Tennessee experiment station were found to be April 3 and August 6, although June proved to be the most favorable month in which to plant any variety. The yields of forage and seed secured from different dates of planting with the Haberlandt variety of soy bean and the Groit variety of cowpea at Arlington farm, Virginia, are as follows:

Date of planting.	Haberlandt soy bean.		Groit cowpea.
	Green forage.	Dry forage.	Green forage.	Dry forage.
May 1.....	6.5	1.56	21.6	7.4
May 15.....	6.8	1.40	18.3	6.3
June 1.....	7.2	1.89	25.3	8.6
June 15.....	6.0	1.21	21.3	9.3
July 1.....	4.8	1.15	15.3	9.0
July 15.....	4.2	1.02	11.0	5.8
Aug. 1.....	3.6	.87	(a)	4.4

(a) Did not mature. The planting of the same variety at different dates or varieties of different maturity on the same date will furnish an abundance of forage or pasture from middle summer until late fall.

CO-OPERATION IS GREAT HELP

Faith in Possibilities of Organization Is Essential—Must Be Expressed in Deeds.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

While popular faith among farmers in co-operation as a means of improving marketing methods has been strong in recent years and has brought about the formation of a large number of associations, the term co-operation has been employed in such a way that many people have come to believe that a co-operative organization offers a solution for almost all difficulties encountered in the marketing of farm products. A great deal may be accomplished through organized effort when it is properly applied and correctly employed, but too much emphasis, say marketing specialists of the United States department of agriculture, cannot be placed on the fact that co-operation is not automatic and is not a solution for all marketing ills. Faith in the possibilities of co-operation is essential to its success, but this faith must be expressed in deeds as well as words.

MUCH DEPENDS ON FERTILITY

Prices of Land Seldom Based on Capacity of Soil to Yield Crops—Improvement Urged.

Few people realize the value of an acre of rich soil. In fact, prices of land seldom are based entirely on fertility or the capacity of the land to yield crops. The value generally is estimated by the roads, distance from market, schools, churches and the character of the people and the roads, schools, churches, etc. It should be the privilege of farmers to improve the soil and conserve its fertility for much depends upon its capacity to yield crops.

TUESDAY MORNING, JUNE 24, 1919

After July 1st it is expected that some people's thinning locks will require a large supply of hair tonic.

So far the undertakers have not offered any protest against the common use of the aeroplane in daily life.

Now if a woman should be elected president, what a spectacle she would make pitching the first ball in the league season?

As there are 50,000 words in the peace treaty, it will fill more than one waste basket when the Germans convert it into scraps of paper.

Kids who blow out their eyes with fireworks July Fourth, need not think they are going to be put on the roll of honor tablet of Princess Anne.

And now the lumber dealers are blamed for discouraging building through increase in prices. Their excuse, probably, is the high cost of knot holes.

Government operation on the railroads and a surgical operation on one's appendix, seem to have results somewhat similar as respects the pocket book.

Now if some folks would work six days a week and talk only one instead of working one day and talking six, things would tend to settle down a lot.

It is claimed the government is losing $2,000,000 a day on operating the railroads, but a million is merely loose change in Uncle Sam's pocket nowadays.

When a man pays anything additional for a house because it has fruit trees in the back yard, is he a public benefactor to the boys in the neighborhood or just merely an optimist?

In the country they pay down their good money July Fourth to go into the cities and see the fireworks and in the cities they pay their good money to get out where it is quiet.

In these times of unrest and disturbance, it is little use to argue with some people. But at least you can sympathetically offer them a bag of cracked ice to put on their heads.

The people who advertise in the Marylander and Herald for the help they need, attract the attention of intelligent newspaper reading workers. Those who depend upon chance to bring the right applicant have to take the rovers and drifters.

Chairman Hays, of the Republican National Committee, who aspires to be the Pooh Bah of his party, says that the League of Nations must not be made a political question, but Senator Borah, who leads the G. O. P. majority in the Senate around by the nose, says that unless it is made a partisan issue he will start a new party of his own. Under which king, oh Republicans—Hays or Borah? As a perfectly impartial observer we are disposed to place our money on the Wild Man from Idaho.—Philadelphia Record.

JULY FOURTH PLANS

During the war the customary expenditure of money for July Fourth celebrations was greatly cut down. It was obvious that all the gunpowder that could be produced was needed to discharge at the country's foes. This year that use for explosives has passed. The same crowd that always spent millions in fireworks and noise, will be wishing to blow out again. Sensible people in Princess Anne are hoping that the desire for just that kind of a racket has been somewhat modified by the experience of war. Except for those rightfully exempted from service, patriotic young men should have heard all the banging they want in France and at the camps.

An inexpensive fireworks display may be justified. But a great many towns used to go into absurd extravagances in this line for so transient a pleasure.

Many towns are going to combine July Fourth celebration with a Welcome Home to the soldiers. Such an occasion will never recur again. It may be pardonable to spend some money for such a demonstration although the soldiers themselves would prefer to see it go into more substantial benefits.

Except for these demonstrations, the country will be foolish if it burns up as much money July Fourth as it used to. The small boy must have some outlet, but a bunch of firecrackers should do him as well as a half dozen.

The most appropriate features are athletic sports, picnics, patriotic addresses to emphasize the meaning of the day, community singing of patriotic songs, parades of military and other organizations and like observances. It should be a day in which children take a prominent part as it is arranged largely for their education. This kind of celebration is not expensive and no town should let go the chance to promote patriotic feeling on this occasion.

TOWN PICNICS

One of the most characteristic American customs is that of the town or community picnic called by various names in different localities. There the natural friendliness of our life appears. If well carried out the occasion gathers pretty nearly the whole town or at least representation of about all families.

The "eats" are a predominant feature of course. Tremendous gastro-nomic feats are performed, whether with meat from a barbecue or clams or fish from bakes and fries, or the simple democratic lunch basket. But the eating part of it is not the real purpose of the affair.

The politicians long ago saw the value of such occasions in their business. They discovered that they could win far more support from a well fed crowd than from a hungry bunch that would attend a rally. Also of late years boards of trade and other community workers have learned that such an occasion is an invaluable means of promoting town spirit.

It is astonishing how old rivalries and jealousies are broken down when men get together in the open air for a good feed, sporting events and other pastimes. When business men fill up with roast mutton or other edible choose up for the annual ball game, the last vestige of rivalry or separatism seems dead. The knocker forgets to kick for once in his life. Next time some one asks him to serve on a committee for a good community purpose, he may actually forget his self consciousness and do it.

The community picnic is the natural expression of democratic feeling in an American home town. It goes farther to unite all elements than all the speech making you could do in a year. Princess Anne has had good community outings in past years and the custom should be fully kept up. Everyone should feel that it is not merely a duty but a privilege to be present.

THE YOUTHFUL OUTLOOK

Superior people sometimes feel inclined to poke fun at the essays read at school and college commencements. They note how these young people look forward to life with hopes and expectations of easy victory over all difficulties, anticipating strong and achieving careers crowded with fine success. Also the young folks can't see why the evils of the world should not be quickly done away and mankind advance to universal happiness and well being. Whereas, say the disillusioned older people, life is usually one series of disappointments after another and the world continues to jog along about the same from one year to another.

Yet the attitude of the young people making their beginning in life is after all the correct one. Mankind was born to hope. Most of the difficulties of life can be overcome by persistence. Those who set out with a confident heart are apt to accomplish a good success. There are limits to the powers of each individual, of course, but most people set their limit too low.

The trouble is that the great majority of persons after being knocked down a few times give up trying. They settle down to do some easy job that they feel sure they can do, but which gives no promise of further advance.

So instead of making fun at the roseate hopes of youth one ought to encourage it and urge the older folks to keep a little of the same spirit of adventure and determination.

It is very interesting to see the mental attitude of the younger generation as it displays itself in the exercises of the graduation season. It reveals high ideals, a determination to win success, a firm confidence that the world should and can be made a better world than it is. In so far as older people get this point of view, they too, will go on to bigger things.

THE CHILDREN'S HEALTH CRUSADE

Over 3,000,000 school children during the school year now closing, joined the so-called Modern Health Crusade. This movement was organized by the Junior Red Cross and National Tuberculosis Association. Each member enrolled in the movement has to conform to certain simple health rules, and buttons and badges are given to those who live up to 75 per cent. of the same.

Three of the most important rules call for clean hands and face, 10 hours a day in bed and slow eating. These hit at three of the most hurtful irregularities of children. No doubt many children will try to make out the 10 hours by sleeping over breakfast time. But if so they get a black mark in that fateful book, the school attendance record.

It is a great art to manage children. You can get practically nothing out of them by lecturing them and you can make them do anything by appealing to the game spirit and competition. This health crusade seems to hit them right.

Booze Is Not A Good Cure

From the Ames Iowa Intelligencer.
When a man comes to you all doubled up with pain and declares he will die in your presence unless you procure him a drink of whiskey, send him to a doctor or else give him a dose of Chamberlain's Colic and Diarrhoea Remedy. There is a mistaken notion among a whole lot of people that booze is the best remedy for colic and stomach ache. [Advertisement]

Mexico Once More

Mexico still remains a menace to us as well as to herself, a problem in instability and frequent revolution which she apparently cannot and we may not solve. Like the troubled sea, she is rarely at rest, and is generally casting up the mire and dirt of lawless outbreaks, great or small. Carranza, for a considerable period, appeared to have mastered the professional disturbers, and his recent capture and execution of the Zapata chieftains, who had so long defied authority, seemed to promise something like national pacification. But Villa's reappearance on the border in the familiar revolutionary role revives once more the disturbing conditions with which we had to deal three years ago. Possibly the attack on Juarez was deliberately designed to tempt us into an act of intervention. Villa tried this once before and succeeded in mobilizing American forces on the border and in forcing us to send a punitive expedition into Mexican territory. Juarez was probably not so much his objective as El Paso. A few shots in that direction, he knew, might stir up an American hornets' nest.

This latest Mexican incident is not so important in itself as in the evidence it affords of the continuance of Mexico's unsatisfactory status, unsatisfactory to us as well as to her. It may be, it probably is true, that interested propaganda from this side of the line is largely instrumental in fomenting these border disturbances. But they could not be fomented in a country which was wisely, fairly and firmly governed, and in which revolution was not always in fashion. So far as our financial agitators are concerned, we should make it our duty to suppress them. They are as bad in their way as Villa. But even if we succeed in repressing their baneful activities, a very serious part of the Mexican problem remains, and will remain until Mexico graduates into the class of stable and orderly countries. In the meantime we must protect our citizens and our towns on the border from the consequences of these revolutionary melees, as we have done in this case. What further we shall do or have to do will depend on developments. —Baltimore Sun.

Cut This Out And Take It With You

A man often forgets the exact name of the article he wishes to purchase, and as a last resort takes something else instead. That is always disappointing and unsatisfactory. The safe way is to cut this out and take it with you so as to make sure of getting Chamberlain's Tablets. You will find nothing quite so satisfactory for constipation and indigestion.

Good Farm Buildings Were Never So Important as Now

NO FARMER can reach maximum production and profits without good farm buildings.

A good barn keeps the stock healthy and in good condition. Good wind-tight hog houses make possible two litters a year with healthier pigs; a well built poultry house increases egg production; a good, implement shed doubles the life of farm machinery.

Every good farm building pays big dividends on the investment year after year.

Maryland Will Get Hun Cannon

Maryland has been given a German cannon as a reward for the State's good showing in the Victory Loan.

This news was received last Thursday by former Governor Goldsborough in a telegram from Albert Sydney Johnston Federal director of the War Loan Division, Fifth district, of which Maryland is a part. There were three cannon apportioned to each of the districts, to be presented to the three States in the district which had the highest over-subscription to the Fifth Loan. District of Columbia actually led the Fifth district, but the Washingtonians waived claim to one of the Hun field pieces and that left Virginia, Maryland and West Virginia, in the order named, to receive the cannon.

Maryland subscribed 106 per cent. of its loan quota and thus won the right to own one of the captured pieces. Where this cannon will be placed has not been decided yet, but Governor Goldsborough will call a meeting of the Liberty Loan Committee to select a site.

Daylight Will End In October

Repeal of the daylight saving law was voted for by the House of Representatives last Thursday, there being 233 votes in favor of wiping it off the statute books to 122 in favor of retaining it. Within an hour from the time the House voted overwhelmingly in favor of its abolition, the Senate began consideration of the same legislation as an amendment to the agricultural appropriation bill, voting for repeal 56 to 6.

The Senate amendment, like the House bill, provides that daylight saving, inaugurated originally as a war measure, shall end next October.

A large crowd from the various counties of the Eastern Shore of Maryland and Virginia and lower counties of Delaware is expected to attend the dynamite demonstration in ditching to be held Tuesday and Wednesday of this week, on the Tones Branch Tax Ditch, near West's store and mill, East Princess Anne district. A mile of ditch will be blown through low, wet and swamp land with dynamite. About 3,000 pounds of dynamite will be used.

This will be the largest demonstration of its kind held in this section and will be under the supervision of Mr. C. I. Cohee, expert dynamite demonstrator of the DuPont Company, who is cooperating with County Agent C. Z. Keller.

IN MEMORIAM

In loving remembrance of Ernest J. Pusey, who died one year ago the 25th day of June:

One short year has passed away,
Since from us you have gone,
Alone in grief to mourn.

Oftimes we wander to the graveyard,
Flowers to place with care,
On the grave of our papa,
Who is resting sweetly there.

BY HIS WIFE AND CHILDREN.

I gave them a trial and they were such a help to me that I bought a package, and I can truthfully say that I have not had a similar attack since." writes W. B. Wisler, Douglassville, Pa.

HOW SAVINGS HABIT HELPS EVERYBODY

Money Invested This Year in Thrift Stamps Returns in Five Years Vastly Increased.

On New Year's day 1923, there will begin a remarkable series of dividend payments to American people. Hundreds of millions of dollars of War Savings Stamps sold during 1918 will then be redeemable. On each New Year's day thereafter for a number of years there will undoubtedly be huge returns to the American people of the money borrowed with interest.

These great dividend days bring American bankers new opportunities and also responsibilities. How can new thrift habits be linked to thrift institutions? How can this money, the product of thrift, be mobilized for further work?

Already the bankers are working with the Treasury Department to continue thrift habits. For people who save money there is a wide range of thrift institutions that will take charge of funds, put them to work safely, and return good earnings. As the government plans to borrow by general education of thrift in every kind, so the banks and thrift institutions can aid the government by encouraging general thrift and building bigger business themselves.

One of the first steps to be taken by bankers is that of spreading information about banks, life insurance, building and loan associations, federal farm loans, and all other thrift institutions. The best way to meet Uncle Sam's sorrowing needs is to promote thrift in the broadest possible lines.

Every dollar deposited in a savings bank becomes available for national finance. Every life insurance policy sold is equivalent to an indirect loan to the government. Every obligation assumed by thrifty people such as a building mortgage is a stimulus to production and saving, and therefore, as much a national service as the direct purchase of government securities. In placing these matters clearly before everybody in his community the banker will live up to his opportunities and his responsibilities in the new thrift movement. When the billion dollar New Year Days arrive he will be ready.

TELLS HOW SHE BUYS WAR SAVINGS STAMPS

Woman Tells How by Intelligent Savings Plan She is Able to Accumulate Money Which Was Formerly Wasted.

"Save while the money is warm" is the motto of a woman who has established a reputation both for herself and her family by the number of War Savings Stamps she bought without apparently stinting in the least. Here is her system.

"The only way to save is to save. When I have actually saved a quarter I put it into a Thrift Stamp without delay. If I save that quarter on one thing and then spend it carelessly for something else, I have not saved any real money.

"For example the other day I went down town expecting to pay $10 for a pair of special shoes. To my surprise, I found there was a sale that day, and got the very pair of shoes I wanted for $7.75. I had saved $2.25. But how to keep it saved. I knew that if I simply regarded it mentally as saving, before the end of the month it would be spent miscellaneously. I went right down stairs in the store and bought nine Thrift Stamps and stuck those quarters in the Thrift card where they could not get away before the end of the month.

"I do the same thing when I have saved a single quarter or half dollar, and I am seriously thinking of getting a little penny bank to hold saved pennies or dimes until they grow to Thrift Stamp size. What is more, I am getting a whole lot of fun out of this most fascinating game, the game of 'Getting Ahead.'

Get that happy feeling—it's waiting for you with your first W. S. S.

The man who puts his money into W. S. S. is never "broke."

Watch your out-go today, and your future income will take care of itself.

Buy W. S. S. and you will neither waste nor want.

GIVE GRENADE BANKS TO SCHOOL CHILDREN

Millions to be Distributed by Treasury Department to Encourage Happy Habit of Thrift.

Hand grenades made by the United States government to bomb the Hun to destruction are now to be used to boom thrift. Millions of the little machines of destruction, with the explosives carefully removed, are to be given to the school children of the United States to encourage the saving habit. The grenades are being converted into miniature savings banks. They will hold pennies and nickels and dimes which can be converted into Thrift Stamps. The Thrift Stamps in turn can be converted into War Savings Stamps.

Distribution of the grenades in the several Federal Reserve Districts will be left in the hands of the district Savings Directors. In this district the War Loan Organization, with headquarters in Richmond, Va., has so far ranged that a grenade bank will be awarded to each child, who, during the vacation period, earns enough money to buy a War Savings Stamp.

Some bank in every community will lend each child a grenade and at the close of the vacation period the child will return it, with the money it contains, to the bank. There the money will be counted. If the child has saved enough to buy a War Savings Stamp the grenade-bank will be his, but in all events the cash must be invested in Thrift Stamps if not enough has been saved to pay for a War Savings Stamp. The grenade-banks are of considerable value and will be splendid souvenirs of the great war, and the War Loan Organization of the Fifth Federal Reserve District is anxious to place them in the hands of as many children as possible.

Thrift is not miserliness, it is getting a hundred cents worth out of every dollar.

Are you sending out ships, or just hoping that somebody else's will get stranded on your shore? Buy W. S. S. and watch your own come in.

BRITISH THRIFT.

The British War Savings Committee has become a permanent institution in England and the following declaration has been issued explaining the English attitude toward thrift:

"Quite as important, both as a source of revenue and as a social movement, is the restraint of luxury, and growth of economy and simplicity of life among the well-to-do. Otherwise goods and services will be wasted. War savings applies to all classes and appeals to all incomes."

Rat Stowaway in Airplane.
A stowaway rat was found, or rather, heard, on the military airplane which flew to India not long ago. It is supposed to have boarded the machine at Chobar, in Arabia, probably attracted by the food supplies the aviators carried aboard the big bomber. That rat became a nuisance, and, indeed, a potential danger. All the way to Karachi it could be heard gnawing something. The question was—what? It might be making a hole in something very important! At Karachi an effort was made to capture the rodent or drive it off the machine, but all attempts failed. Being an Arabian native, the idea occurred to some one that it would not be lured to cold, so the machine, on leaving Karachi, was taken to 10,000 feet. This did the trick. Frozen or numbed with the cold, the rat evidently lost hold and fell into space.

Cosmetic Art.

From the looks of some of the women when it turns cold, it would be a good proposition to sell different shades of powder for hot, warm, cool and cold weather. They say that they sell different shades for day and night—white for the daytime and blue for use under artificial light, so, why not for different degrees of temperature as well? However, probably some bright genius has already thought this up and patented his compound and it may not be well advertised as yet.—Grit.

TO PROTECT LOCUST TREES FROM BORERS

Plant in Thick Stands to Produce Shaded Condition.

With Underbrush About Trunks of Trees Injury by Insects is Less—Protection is Needed for Very Short Period.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

Plantations of the locust tree can be successfully protected from the borer and grow profitably on a commercial scale if the trees are planted in thick stands or mixed with other trees, so as to produce a densely shaded condition during the first ten to fifteen years. Investigations of the United States department of agriculture showed that more trees were destroyed by borers in tracts which had been pruned occasionally or closely grazed, or in which fire had killed out the underbrush, thus destroying the natural shade produced by weeds and shrubbery.

The denser the underbrush about the trunks of the trees, the less the damage done by borers. Trees growing from two to three feet apart were seldom injured, while nearby isolated trees were riddled by borers.

All trees and all parts of the tree are not subject in the same degree to attack by the borer. Rough bark provides crevices in which the borers deposit their eggs. Young trees, less than one and one-half to two inches at the base, are not attacked unless the bark is rough. On younger trees the borers are found at the base and near rough crotches. Trees with trunks more than five or six inches in diameter rarely contain the insects. On such trees the larger branches frequently are infested; but such injury is seldom common enough to do much harm. Protection from borers is necessary for only a comparatively short period during the tree's growth. Under good growing conditions this time should not exceed ten years.

The locust is widely planted for ornamental and shade purposes. It is highly desirable because it grows readily in a variety of soils and situations. It grows rapidly and forms a shapely crown when planted in the open. But it is frequently attacked by borers. This is because shade trees are planted singly and in the open, thus furnishing favorable conditions for attack.

Young borers can be killed readily by the use of an arsenical spray. Spraying will be necessary only every two or three years unless badly infested trees nearby are not treated. As a rule, spraying will not be needed after trees reach six inches in diameter. Trees of that size are usually immune from attack, but should be watched.

Locusts make such desirable shade trees that they should not be neglected and allowed to become injured or destroyed by borers. The increasing value of black or yellow locust for many purposes makes it a profitable tree to grow commercially and emphasizes the importance of protecting it from the borer.

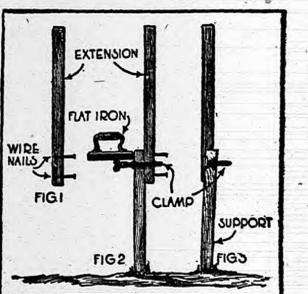

FOR INCREASED TOMATO CROP

Illustrations Show How Supports Can Be Constructed to Hold Plants in Position.

It is usually necessary to attach a vertical extension to a large number of stakes in the tomato patch at certain stages of growth.

The extensions are first prepared by driving wire nails into them, so that the points of the nails are flush with the surface of the opposite side, as in Fig. 1.

Each piece is then fitted into position and held by an ordinary iron clamp, as in Fig. 2. Holding the edge of a flatiron against the bottom stake will steady the support while the nails are driven through and clinched.

This device will help in getting every top stick "plumb."—James M. Kane, in Popular Science Monthly.

USE EFFECTIVE LICE POWDER

Always in Order in Ridding Fowls of Insects—Kerosene Will Exterminate Mites.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

The free use of an effective lice powder is always in order. A dust bath is very essential in ridding the fowls of lice. Whitewashing is effective against vermin. Use kerosene on the roosts and in the cracks to exterminate mites.

Concerning Box Wood.

The manufacturing of boxes and crates in the United States consumes one-tenth of our output of lumber every year. In some cases, says the American Forestry Magazine, the odor of a wood adds to the value of the article shipped in the package. Cigars in Spanish cedar boxes furnish an example. It is widely believed that butter is better if it touches no wood except ash, and a similar belief prevails regarding tea, which, it is said, should be shipped and kept in the Chinese wood in which the orientals pack it. The notion in regard to the tea might lose some of its popularity if it were generally known that the wood of which the tea boxes are made did not grow nearer China than several thousand miles. Some of it comes from Russia. The Chinese paste paper over the boxes, stamp them with Chinese characters, and fill them with tea for foreign markets.

Human Good-Will.

With all your exuberant good-will you haven't altogether got beyond the theory that the first cave-dweller bestowed on his neighbor the bone he himself didn't need, and established the pleasant relation of benefactor and beneficiary. It gave him such a warm feeling in his heart that he naturally wanted to make the relation permanent. First cave-dweller felt a little disappointed next day when second cave-dweller, instead of coming to him for another bone, preferred to take his pointed stick and go hunting on his own account. It seemed a little ungrateful in him, and first cave-dweller felt that it would be no more than right to arrange legislation in the cave so that it should not happen again. Christian charity is a beautiful thing, but sometimes it gets mixed up with these ideas of the cave-dwellers.—Samuel M. Crothers.

Calling New Jersey "Spain."

Referring to New Jersey as "Spain" came about in this way: Joseph Bonaparte, the eldest brother of Napoleon, came to America and occupied the place called Point Breeze, at Bordentown, N. J. He was ex-king of Spain, but, disclaiming his legal rank, he lived there for several years under the title of Comte de Survilleux, endeavoring himself to his neighbors by his liberality and graciousness of manners. He was chosen a member of many learned and philanthropic institutions, and in 1817, an act was passed by the legislature enabling him as an alien to hold real estate within the state. Ardent Republicans, as well as neighbors out of good-natured rivalry, for this reason called the state his kingdom of Spain.

Stranger Than Fiction.

Among the advertisements on the first page of an Austrian rural newspaper appears one tradesman's praise of the "beautiful fresh bread" he distributes, and another tradesman's acclaim of the "beautiful Cavendish bananas" he has for sale. After reading further and finding with relief that at least one individual deals in "beautiful art" in this day of post-postivism, one is naturally led to wonder just when Lewis Carroll was exercising his imagination and when he was merely setting down faithfully what he had heard when he penned such poems of praise as that Alice in Wonderland lyric which concludes:

Soup of the evening,
Beautiful soup.

Machine Shapes Masts.

A machine has been built which will shape masts up to 100 feet in length and three feet in diameter. The timber is set up in the machine and revolved at a speed of 50 revolutions a minute, and it is shaped by a cutter head which is electrically driven at the rate of 700 revolutions a minute. This cutter head is mounted on a carriage, which is moved along the timber against a rail set to give the proper profile to the mast. Heretofore this work has been done by hand and required skilled workmen. At best it has been a slow and laborious task.

Life Made Beautiful.

"The part of life which we really live is short," said Seneca. "Exigua pars est." Perhaps it is true, as this wise old pagan has said. And yet it ought not to be true. All of life should and can be made beautiful. The best that is in us should not assert itself infrequently, but at all times. The time we spend in the effort to satisfy our greed, the time spent in envy of our neighbors, in anger, in any unworthy spirit whatever, is assuredly time spent ill. It is that part of life in which we really do not live at all.—Los Angeles Times.

Consequences.

Consequences are unputting. Our deeds carry their terrible consequences, quite apart from any fluctuations that are hardly ever confined to ourselves. And it is best for us to fix our minds on that certainty, instead of thinking what may be the elements of excuse for us. Sooner or later what we really believe will work its way into action, and what we think and what we do will one day be in accord. That is one great danger of unrestrained thought.

Delivering the New Suit.

Maryland in the Hall of States

Hundreds of Maryland soldiers, wounded or ill, lying in the big Army hospitals of New York, receive their first special welcome and their first hint of home from letters and calls from volunteer women workers at the Maryland desk at the Hall of States in New York City. Backed only by the Southern Society and the Maryland Society, these women are trying to do as well by Marylanders who reach New York as other states are doing for their homecoming sons, despite the fact that other states have large appropriations for the work. Kansas is spending $35,000 to welcome her boys, Massachusetts $50,000, and other states smaller amounts. The Maryland women say they have received no financial aid from the state, even toward the clerical work of writing almost two hundred boys from the state now in the hospitals here.

These letters, sent out under a plan devised by the War Camp Community Service, are as a rule the first words from homefolds to reach the injured boys after they arrive on the transports. The women invite those boys who can, to visit them at the Hall of States and, in the cases of the severely wounded, they call on the men in the wards, carrying cheer, home papers that are avidly seized, and flowers or fruit.

All the hospital activity for the various states centres at the Hall of States, which War Camp Community Service, has established at 27 West 25th St., close to the Victory Arch. Here "Budies" meet, at the war's end, and home-folks welcome the boys back from the trenches and the deep blue seas. How the eyes of the home-sick lads do shine when they sight women from the home community! How they do rush for the home papers! Some of them need more practical aid, some are "blue," some need a job back home, some want to trace lost families. To all of these the Maryland women give help. Sometimes they take a "Blue" lad to dinner and to the theatre, sometimes they find the lost loved ones. For those who need jobs the War Camp Community Service maintains at the Hall of States a nation-wide employment bureau. Its manager, J. H. Vertrees, canvasses Maryland and other states for positions for the service men.

Mrs. E. West Clinebinst is head of the Maryland Hospitality Committee. She is assisted by Mrs. E. A. Herb, Mrs. Charles A. Boston, Mrs. Charles Goldsborough and Mrs. George Penniman.

Scorned His Dad's Ability.
He was the four-year-old offspring of the beloved minister of a well-known and popular church, a minister renowned for his eloquent appeal to life. One day the young son and heir was having trouble with his go-cart, when a neighbor passing by was appealed to for help. The neighbor felt incompetent to advise, and asked: "Why don't you go to your father and find out what's the matter? He'll know." "No use," said the little chap in disgust. "He won't know. He don't know anything except about God!"—Harper's Magazine.

"Rose of Hell."

Years ago a weird tale was given wide publication by a writer with a vivid but distorted imagination, about a desolate stretch of country in Mexico or Central America (and there are many such spots). It was lava-torn, rock-strewn, reptile-infested, without vegetation of note, and, to use the author's words, was "a place." The only hardwood plant found there, according to this modern Ananias, was one bearing the so-called flowers he dubbed "roses of hell." They are not flowers, nor peculiar to that part of the country. An insect stings the wood, a gall grows, and the wood grows with it. When the gall dies and drops out it leaves the receptacle or "rose of hell." So much for the fairy tale. Oak galls or balls, those on willows and other trees are closely akin.

Cyclones.

The most violent cyclones originate in tropical latitudes, in the Atlantic ocean to the north and east of West Indian islands, and in the Pacific in the China sea and in the neighborhood of the Philippine islands. The reason they are so destructive is because they are carried great distances by extraneous influences. The West Indian cyclones are attracted toward the Gulf stream by the great volume of heated air which always hangs over it and follows its course; so the cyclones of the Pacific follow the course of Kuro Siwo, the great oceanic current which passes around the East Indian archipelago, the shores of China and the Japanese islands. Cyclones may be anywhere from 50 to 500 miles in diameter and may travel over a path of 5,000 miles in extent.

Fighting Colors.

Scientists have found by observation and experimenting that certain colors are bad for human temperaments. Reds, most of the varying shades, are veritable "fighting colors," and actually disturb and irritate their victims to a degree that is even bad for their health. Red wallpaper makes occupants of a room irritable and fractious. Green is said to be depressing in a room, regardless of the fact that nature has used this color in prodigal fashion in the big outdoors. Browns are restful, but not uplifting. Blue, blue, blue is the color, all its shades, that make for happiness. Perhaps that was the motif that gave Maeterlinck the idea of the bluebird for happiness.

Conquer Time.

If your mind and heart hunger for books, or music, or art, or whatever it may be, do not let that impatient, censorious ego, which inhabits the frames of most women, prevent you from eating of the manna that is so freely offered if you will only take it. Make time your slave, and do not be the slave of time. Be content with the interruptions that must come with each day, if you are to lead lives that are full and satisfying in the end. For after all love and tenderness and gentleness and joy and truth and honor are the real things in life that count.—Exchange.

Let This Paper Be Your Salesman

The only two mediums through which one's thoughts are conveyed to another are the ear and the eye.

Type may sometimes convey things to the public that you can say in no other way. It is the impression made through the eye that lingers longer than through the ear.

The voice may suffer through intonation and volume, but the type can never be mistaken. Speak your thoughts to your patrons in clear, clean type and you say concisely just what your customer wants to know.

Tell it. Tell it over and over, and the inside of your store becomes as familiar to the public as it is to yourself. Make our type do your talking.

You may not make yourself understood orally, but even a poor salesman can talk with type. We offer you our training and experience and our type will perform for you if you only give it a chance.

Our advertising columns tell the town's commercial story. Let this paper be your selling medium. One merchant who recently did some special advertising said to us: "These ads certainly did the business. They brought results." We want to hear that kind of language from every one of you.

Our Appointed Place.

That girl who values her peace of mind will, instead of indulging in useless regrets, wisely resolve to adjust herself to circumstances. Everyone of us can, if we so decree it, either lessen or make heavier our respective burdens. Therefore, how foolish to waste time in senseless longing or to feel that all our days shall be colorless. The big position we sigh after may be greater than our talents or our ability. Indeed, if some wonderful fairy suddenly placed us in it the chances are that we would not only prove a sad misfit, but would soon become downright miserable. True, the world offers big prizes to the person whose genius shines out from her associates, but not all recognized or successful women are happy. If we are practical and hope to find contentment we will certainly give idle wishing a wide berth. We belong to our own sphere—not to any other individual's and we will spend our energies on making the best of ourselves in our own appointed places.—Chicago News.

Ideal City of the Future.

One can imagine the city of the future to be a place where buildings will rise tier on tier with the highest in the middle, like the hanging gardens of Babylon, or where the tallest building will finish off a corner, as did the old watch towers on the walls of an ancient city, for each group of buildings will be an entity with light and air. By the greater use of glass and ingenious arrangements of courts, sunshine will have a chance, and color will be on every hand to delight the eye. In the future beauty will be considered as much as utility, and it will not be beauty for the few, but for all. If these are the ideals that are present in the mind of the people, and in the mind of the architect when he guides the builder, then there should be no worry as to whether we shall have an American style or not. That will take care of itself.

Genius for Goodness.

The French have a phrase, l'impertinente bonte, by which they designate those impulses toward compassionate conduct which will not be denied, because they are as imperative in their demand for expression as is the impulse to make music or to soften existence by poesy and decoration.

This genius for goodness has in the past largely expressed itself through individuals and groups, but it may be that we are approaching a period which shall give it collective expression, and shall unite into one all those private and parochial efforts. It would be no more strange than was that marvelous coming together of the artists and the people in the thirteenth century which resulted in the building of the Gothic cathedrals.—Jane Addams.

Where the Incas Lived.

The Vilcamaia valley, described as the prettiest in the world, abounds in architectural relics of the Incas. The best are to be seen in Pesac, Calca, Yucal, Urubamba, Ollantaytambo and Machu Pichu. The valley, where it joins the Cuzco valley, is 11,000 feet above sea level and slopes gradually down to the Amazon. It is very narrow, in parts being only just wide enough for the river to pass through. On either side the mountains rise from 3,000 to 4,000 feet above the river, making a scene of unsurpassed grandeur, with glimpses of the snow-capped peaks of the main Andean chain silhouetted against the blue of the sky.

The inhabitants are direct descendants of the Incas.

It Puzzled Him

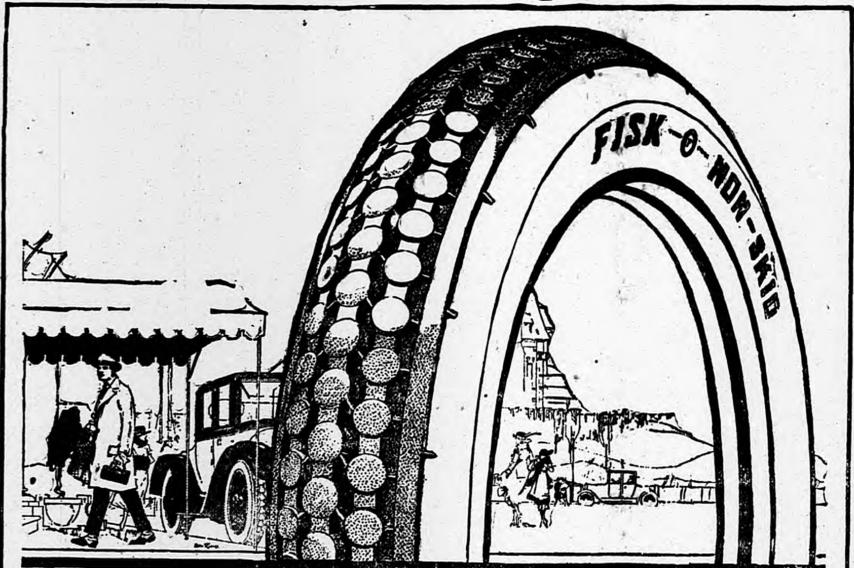

"Every music publisher should keep a professional enunciator—some one to teach singers how to enunciate so that persons in the fifth and sixth rows, at least, may be able to understand what they are saying." So says a musical critic, and re-enforces his advice by this story: A well-known composer, on hearing a singer of the unintelligible type render one of his songs, said: "I always think I'm in the United States until I hear a woman like that try to sing one of my songs. None of that stuff she's getting off was in the lyric when I wrote the melody for it."—Outlook.

Fly's Many Enemies.

If the extermination of the fly was left solely to us humans, the world would be nothing but a thick mass of insects. As with all other of nature's creatures, the housefly has natural enemies. Birds prey upon the fly. Toads, spiders and other animals also deplete the ranks of the fly in huge quantities. Only these natural enemies prevent the fly from filling the earth in immense clouds. Kipling's law is exemplified in the life of the fly exterminators. The toad is beset by the snake and the toad devours flies. Life is the survival of the fittest.

Lion No Match for Auto.

The East African Standard describes a duel between a motorcar and a lioness. The affair, it says, happened at night near Nairobi. The chauffeur noted a commotion in the bush near the road, then the gleaming eyes of an enraged wild animal. He accelerated his speed at the instant the lioness leaped. She struck the hood and was thrown far in advance of the car, whose wheels then passed over her. The dead lioness was then loaded into the car and taken back to town in triumph.

Ark of the Covenant.

The ark of the covenant was the sacred chest which the Lord directed Moses to make to contain the tables of the law which he had received on Mount Sinai. It was 4½ feet long, 2½ feet wide and 2½ feet high. It was covered within and without with gold and was carried by staves inserted in rings on the corners. This ark of the covenant was the most sacred possession of the Israelites. It was placed in the holy of holies in the tabernacle and later in a similar position in Solomon's temple, where it was closely guarded.

CONFIRMED TESTIMONY

The Kind Princess Anne Readers Cannot Doubt

Doan's Kidney Pills have stood the test. The test of time—the hardest test of all. Thousands gratefully testify. To quick relief—to lasting results. Princess Anne readers can no longer doubt the evidence. It's convincing testimony—twice-told and well confirmed.

Princess Anne readers should profit by these experiences. Thos. H. Heath, 114 Beckford Ave., Princess Anne, says: "I suffered from severe pains through my back and loins. I was unable to rest well at night and mornings felt tired and worn out. I suffered from dizzy spells and at times they were so severe I could hardly stand. Doan's Kidney Pills helped me in every way and my system was entirely rid of kidney complaint." (Statement given April 28, 1911.)

Over 5 years later, on or July 24th, 1916, Mr. Heath said: "Nothing has changed my good opinion of Doan's Kidney Pills. I always recommend them when I get a chance."

LEAGUE OPPOSE SEPARATION

To Enforce Peace For Linking Of Peace Treaty and League of Nations

Henry W. Williams, chairman of the executive committee of the Maryland Branch of the League to Enforce Peace, has returned from New York, where he attended a conference of the executive committee of the national league. Branches of several states were represented at the meeting.

Mr. Williams said that in view of the Knox resolution it was determined that it was the duty of the league in the various state branches to institute and to conduct from now until the ratification of the Peace Treaty a most vigorous campaign. It was the opinion of all present that the Knox resolution was not simply an attack upon the covenant of the League of Nations, but was in effect an attack upon the entire Treaty of Peace, and, if passed, might indefinitely delay the making of peace to the serious injury of the world.

"If the Peace Treaty is accepted by Germany it will go before the Senate containing the covenant of the League of Nations, and the Senate has no power without the concurrence of the other parties to the treaty to amend it. The only possible result of the resolution is to encourage the German delegates to refuse to sign the treaty. 'It seems impossible,' continued Mr. Williams, 'to believe that Senators Knox and Lodge would be parties to such proceedings, but it is only thus that they could accomplish their purpose. It is believed, however, that the German people will feel compelled to sign rather than risk the further prosecution of the war, the institution of a blockade and the resulting suffering in Germany.' 'All members of the league, therefore, as soon as the treaty has been signed are urged to use all their influence, directly and indirectly, by personal and written appeals to the senators from Maryland, by the distribution of petitions and resolutions of meetings and societies to impress upon the Senate the demand of the American people that the Treaty of Peace containing the covenant of the League of Nations should be ratified without delay.'

The Scorpion.
The scorpion is a well-known venomous insect of hot climates, shaped much like a lobster. It is usually not more than two or three inches long, but in tropical climates is sometimes six inches in length. The wilderness of Sinai is especially alluded to as having been inhabited by scorpions at the time of the exodus, and to this day these animals are common in the same district, as well as in some parts of Palestine. Scorpions are generally found in dry and in dark places, under stones and in ruins. They are carnivorous in their habits, and move along in a threatening attitude, with the tail elevated. The sting, which is situated at the end of the tail, has at its base a gland that secretes a poisonous fluid, which is discharged into the wound by two minute orifices at its extremity. In hot climates the sting often occasions much suffering, and sometimes alarming symptoms.

Courtesy Always Pays.

When you mingle courtesy with business principles you take out insurance on success. Ross Winans was only acting the part of a gentleman toward two foreigners whom he was showing through his shops in Baltimore. It later developed that they had been sent to America by the czar to select a man to introduce the manufacture of locomotives into Russia. While there were many larger and better equipped shops than his he was the man chosen and within a few years his annual income had reached the $100,000 mark. Good manners have a way of getting where brusqueness and force have difficulty. The grace and charm of Josephine did more to make France safe than the sword of Napoleon. The courtesy of well-bred manners carries men to fortune and power not possible under any other circumstances.

Fountain Fund To Eight Men

Mayor Francis G. Wrightson, State's Attorney Charles J. Butler and W. Mason Shehan, the committee appointed by the judges of the Circuit Court for Talbot county to look into and properly distribute to the best of their judgment to the rightful parties the $5,000 reward offered for the capture of Isiah Fountain, colored, completed their work last Tuesday. Those sharing in the reward are: Patrolman Francis McCloskey, of the Northern district, and Patrolman Peter J. Koehler, of the Eastern district, Baltimore, William E. Lednum, James Cannon, Easton; David Taylor, Maryland, Md.; Edward L. Montague, Lyman J. Scotten and William F. Willis, of Hartley.

The committee met in the court house and heard the different claimants for the reward under oath given before Miss Edna Killan, notary public. The committee went over the testimony, after which they handed in their findings and awards to eight men who took part in Fountain's capture and his safe return to Easton jail. Each receives $623.37. The amount of $13 is taken out of the total for expenses of stenographer and notary.

ONE MAN OPERATES BOTH TRACTOR AND IMPLEMENT

One Man Harvests 25 Acres a Day with the MOLINE UNIVERSAL TRACTOR
It Solves The Farm Help Problem

Harvesting is quickly over with a Moline-Universal Tractor, Model D, one man with an 8-foot grain binder harvesting 25 acres a day, or with a corn binder, 10 acres a day.

The Moline-Universal attaches direct to the binder, and forms a single, compact unit with it that is controlled by the operator from the seat of the binder, where he must sit in order to do good work. The outfit is as easily handled as with horses, stopping, backing, going into corners and turning with ease. With the Moline-Universal one man does cleaner, faster, and better work than other tractors do with two men.

For threshing, the Moline-Universal develops 18-belt horsepower, enough to pull a 24-inch grain separator or a 16-inch ensilage cutter. This belt power is also available for any other work, such as running a corn sheller, feed grinder, wood saw, clover huller, water pump or electric lighting plant.

Harvesting and belt work, however, are not the only things the Moline-Universal tractor can do. With it one man plows 9 acres a day, discs 27 to 38 acres, harrows 76 acres, plants 20 to 40 acres, cultivates 14 to 20 acres, mows 25 acres, rakes 25 to 40 acres, and loads 12 acres of hay.

The high clearance of the Moline-Universal, 29½ inches, makes it perfectly adapted for cultivating, one man cultivating two rows at a time at all stages of the crop. The tractor is light, yet it has power to pull two 14-inch plows at considerably more than average speed, all its weight being traction weight.

The Moline-Universal Tractor will work every day in the year. It does not plow and prepare your seed bed, and then rest while your horses do the planting, cultivating and harvesting. That is why the Moline-Universal really replaces horses, and by enabling one man to do four and five times as much work as before, and solves the farm help problem.

The construction of the Moline-Universal is the most advanced on the market. Perfected four-cylinder overhead-valve motor, electric starting and lighting system, and complete enclosure of all working parts are only a few of the leading features. Examine this machine for yourself at our place of business.
