Capt. Dize Assaulted By Negro

Attacked in his cabin while asleep last Tuesday night, Capt. Wesley Dize, of Smith's Island, and formerly of Crisfield, was the victim of a murderous assault at the hands of a negro deck hand, who robbed the boatman of about $500, and made his escape in a yawl boat.

Capt. Dize was the commander of the schooner “James G. Blaine,” and left Crisfield last Tuesday afternoon for the Potomac river to buy oysters for Crisfield oyster packers. It is understood that the negro waited until a late hour at night, when Capt. Dize had retired to his cabin and his son was at the wheel, then made his murderous assault. He first attacked the boy and beat him into unconsciousness, then went to the cabin and assaulted the captain, after which he robbed him of his money.

Capt. Dize's vessel was found drifting in the Potomac and towed to Machodoc, where medical aid was summoned for Dize and his son, who were helpless from their wounds. They were taken to a hospital in Washington, and although badly wounded, it is now thought that both will recover.

The negro, Robert Kearney, who hails from Chesterfield, Va., was arrested on Wednesday. Upon being searched $500 and a hatchet were found in his possession, after which he was locked up in La Plata jail.

Clean-Up And Keep Clean

The above is the slogan that Princess Anne should adopt as a motto.

We fear our neighbors have not been very critical the past year, or else they have been too busy to give much thought to mere looks, aside from the discomfort one must endure from dust-filled streets and dirty alleys. There is a remedy for this, and that is co-operation and persistency.

The members of the Civic Club are ladies, and for years have done their part in giving a general cleaning once a year. Many times the good work lasting only a few days. This is not very encouraging.

Every one interested in community work and who desires our town to look as well as nearby towns, will wholeheartedly enter into the spirit of planning for its betterment and meet with the Civic Club at the Washington Hotel on Wednesday afternoon at 3.30 o'clock.

Interested In Agricultural Show

The farmers of the county are showing much interest in the Third Annual Agricultural Show to be held in the court house November 20th, 21st and 22nd. There will be a large number of exhibits of fruit, vegetables, potatoes, corn, wheat and other farm and household products.

Only a few weeks remain before the show and farmers should begin to get their exhibits together and assist in making this show the best to be held in the counties of the State.

After all, beer was too plebeian for the prosperous working man, anyhow.

PROCLAMATION OF THE GOVERNOR

Asking The People Of The State To Respond To Third Red Cross Call

Governor Harrington has issued a proclamation asking the people of Maryland to respond to the third annual roll call of the American Red Cross. His proclamation follows:

“The American Red Cross will conduct its third annual roll call for Red Cross members during the week from November 3rd to 11th, and by request of the Potomac Division, I, Emerson C. Harrington, Governor of Maryland, call upon the people of this State to respond promptly and generously to the needs of this great organization.

“I urge all present Red Cross members in Maryland to renew their annual membership in the American Red Cross and thereby express their confidence in its work and endorse the continuing of its service to meet the needs of the State, the Nation and the world. In every county of Maryland there is a Red Cross chapter and I hope every chapter will use the present opportunity to support and strengthen its organization.

“The demands on the Red Cross have not been decreased. It has many problems to face and to solve. Its matchless service during the war reached millions and not only helped the soldiers but entered their homes and cared for their loved ones. It was the brightest page in help, mercy and sympathy ever written in the sorrow and suffering of the world. The Red Cross does not forget either the men who served or their families, and your contributions to its labors and your support of its activities mean aid and kindness and brotherhood.

“The president of the American Red Cross is Woodrow Wilson, and the vice-president is William H. Taft, and from them down the line are thousands of the most able and most representative Americans. There is not a finer, a nobler or a more useful organization. We should give it and its unselfish leaders and workers our best encouragement. Here in Maryland where the Red Cross is so competently managed we should show our substantial appreciation and join in its spirit of trying to make the world better and safer for mankind.”

Chancellor George H. Bradford

One of the men chosen to introduce the first Chautauqua program into the continent of Australia was Chancellor Bradford. The management knew that he would make good, and he has. His first engagement, after returning to America is with the Swatmore Chautauqua Association.

Winter before last he lectured in twenty-four states of the Union and last winter he spent in Australia. Last summer he scored a great success on the summer circuit.

This winter he comes to Princess Anne with a new message, entitled, “Sun-crowned Manhood.” This lecture affords him ample scope for his big ideas and far reaching purposes. He presents his dynamic philosophy of life in a striking way. He resembles William Jennings Bryan not only in appearance but also in eloquence. Hear him in the Auditorium the second night of the Chautauqua, which starts on November 11th and continues until the 13th, inclusive.

Earle B. Polk Now Postmaster

Last Saturday our new postmaster, Mr. Earle B. Polk, entered upon the duties of his office. This is not Mr. Polk's first experience in postoffice work, as he was deputy postmaster under his uncle, the late William C. Fontaine, in 1895.

Mr. Polk took the civil service examination for this office in April and was high over four other competitors. The President sent his nomination to the Senate in July and the Senate confirmed the nomination in September and Mr. Polk received his commission for a four-year term last Wednesday, October 29th.

We wish him success in the administration of his office and feel sure the appointment is a popular one.

Want Toll Bridge At White Haven

Books have been opened at the Bank of White Haven for subscriptions to the capital stock of the White Haven Bridge Company by Daniel J. Elliott, Otis S. Lloyd, Wm. K. Leatherbury, G. F. Beckerley, H. W. Robertson, W. L. Holliday, Lewis Pusey, Commissioners.

At the session of the Legislature of 1896 a bill was passed for building a toll bridge across the Wicomico river at White Haven to connect Wicomico and Somerset counties so as to get away from the old White Haven ferry route by which people were able to get from one county to the other. This bill has been dormant until recently. There may have to be some amendments to the act of the Legislature made at this coming session. But it is believed that sufficient interest can be aroused in the two counties to raise the necessary means to build the bridge, which will have to be a draw or lift bridge. It is the purpose of the corporation to make it a toll bridge and with the immense amount of automobile traffic in this section there is little doubt that the proposition can be made a paying one.

Our Loss Of Men In The War

The total number of war “casualties” in the United States Army and Navy, up to September 1st, was 322,182, according to a late official report. Of these, 116,492 are dead and 205,690 were wounded. The number of those who were killed in action or who died of wounds is almost exactly 50,000. That was less than the number who died of disease. Accidents account for over 8,000 deaths. One gratifying fact, speaking well for the efficiency of the Army and Navy management, is that not a man is now listed as “missing.” All have been accounted for, or else are assumed to have been killed in action.

Tri-County Bankers Meet

The semi-annual meeting of the associated banks of Somerset, Worcester and Wicomico counties was held at the Liberty Theatre in Salisbury last Wednesday afternoon. The meeting was presided over by the president of the association, Mr. Omar J. Crosswell, cashier of the People's Bank, of Princess Anne. Among the distinguished speakers at the meeting was Mr. W. M. Prentiss, manager of the Baltimore Branch of the Federal Reserve Bank of Richmond District.

The meeting was well attended, practically every bank in the three counties having representatives there, and the program was both interesting and instructive. The spring meeting of the association will be held at Pocomoke City.

NEW HUNTERS' LICENSE LAW

New Law Provides Fund To Insure Game And Fish Protection

A feature of the annual meeting of the Maryland Game and Fish Protective Association at the Maryland Academy of Sciences, Baltimore, last Wednesday night was a discussion of the State-wide hunters' license law by State Game Warden E. Lee LeCompte. He declared that the excellent financial condition of the Game Department is due to the passage of the law, which became effective June 1st of last year, and said:

“This law has enabled the Game Department to be more efficient than ever heretofore, as no department can be conducted successfully without funds out of which to operate. There must be an income from some source to maintain it, and I consider the hunters' license system the easiest and most available source of raising revenue for the maintenance of a game department, for the enforcement of the game and fish laws and for propagation of game and fish.

“This law does not incur taxpayer's of the State, as there is not an appropriation made from the State Treasury in any manner for the support of this Department; in fact, there has not been an appropriation made to the Game Department from the State Treasury of Maryland since 1914. Therefore, unless a taxpayer is a hunter, he does not contribute one cent to the support of the Department, and no person who wishes to see a Game Department maintained in this State can object to contributing his part of said fund. I predict the hunters' license system will never be repealed in the State of Maryland, as I find it is very popular throughout the State.

“Since the enactment of the hunters' license system the Game Department has received considerable more support and co-operation from the public than heretofore, and it is gratifying that the sentiment of “let the other fellow report the violators” is disappearing. This sentiment must be wiped out entirely before game and fish will receive protection that every sportsman knows they should have if the sport is to survive. The game and fish laws cannot be enforced without an efficient warden service. At present we have 16 paid wardens, and I hope the fund in the near future will be sufficient to maintain a paid warden in each county. These men were not selected on account of any political influence, but we tried to secure men who we thought would best serve the State. Politics in the past has been a detriment to game and fish protection. When a department maintained for conservation of game and fish is used as a political machine the sportsmen are the losers. I hope the time will come when game and fish interests in all States will be entirely eliminated from politics.”

Open Seasons For Game

The open game seasons in Maryland are as follows:

Partridge, pheasant, woodcock, rabbit and wild turkey, November 10 to December 24, inclusive.

Ducks, geese, brant, jacksnipe and crow-bills, November 1 to January 31, inclusive.

Doves, September 1 to December 15, inclusive.

Squirrels, August 25 to October 1 and November 10 to December 24, inclusive.

Yellow-leg, black-breasted and golden plover, August 16 to November 30, inclusive.

Railbirds, September 1 to November 30, inclusive.

Reedbirds, September to October 30, inclusive.

Bag limits (per day) are: Partridge, 12; grouse, 2; English pheasants, 3; rail, 50; doves, 12; woodcock, 6; rabbits, 10; squirrels, 10; jacksnipe, 10; ducks, geese and brant, 25; yellow-leg plover, 15; black-breasted plover, 5; crow-bills, 10. Per season: Wild turkeys, 4.

It is illegal to export any game, wild water fowl excepted, out of Maryland. Licensed sportsmen may carry out one day's bag limit. Shooting wild fowl from a power boat, shooting at night or on Sunday, hunting while a tracking snow is on the ground, are prohibited.

All persons, excepting landowners, their tenants or children, while hunting on their own or leased land, must have a license to hunt. A nonresident of Maryland pays $10.25, the resident State-wide license is $5.10 and resident county license $1.10. A nonresident landowner of property in a county assessed at $500.00 or more pays $1.10. Guests of landowners must have licenses.

Little Misses Hazel McDowell and Lola Sands Taylor turned over to the American Committee for relief in the Near East $3.25, proceeds from entertainments made from penny shows in the neighborhood.

COUNTRY IS NOW BONE DRY

Senate Repeals Enforcement Bill—Liquor Situation As It Stands

The Senate last Wednesday afternoon followed the action of the House on Tuesday and passed the Prohibition Enforcement bill over the veto of the President. The vote was 65 to 20. This legislation, therefore, goes into effect without further delay and the country is at last upon a straight bone-dry basis.

Because of the confusion which exists in many minds over the status of prohibition legislation in the light of recent enactment, vetoes, etc., a few plain statements of fact regarding the situation might prove enlightening.

First of all, the nation-wide Constitutional amendment, ratified by the necessary three-fourths of the States on January 16th, 1919, will go into effect on January 16th, 1920.

Under this amendment the manufacture, importation and sale of intoxicating liquors for beverage purposes will be forever barred.

Enforcement legislation has now been enacted by Congress providing that any spirituous, vinous or malt liquor containing more than one-half of one per cent. of alcohol shall be regarded as intoxicating.

Meanwhile statutory wartime prohibition, enacted just before the armistice was signed, went into effect last July 1st.

This legislation is to remain in effect until the President by Executive proclamation declares that the army has been demobilized and peace has returned.

In an announcement to the country last Wednesday the President gave notice that upon the ratification of the treaty of peace with Germany, he would lift the wartime prohibition ban against the sale of liquor, not waiting for the ratification of the treaty with Austria.

Until this comes to pass, however, wartime prohibition will remain in operation and enforcement legislation has now gone into effect which puts the country upon a straight bone-dry basis.

This enforcement legislation was passed by Congress some days ago, sent to the White House and Wednesday was vetoed by the President. Three hours later the House, by a vote of 176 to 55, passed the enforcement measure over the Presidential veto by a vote of 65 to 20.

Enforcement legislation, therefore, is to be delayed no longer and the machinery for carrying out the law is automatically transferred from the Department of Justice to the Bureau of Internal Revenue, Treasury Department.

If the veto had been sustained in either House of Congress the enforcement legislation would have been dead and the two bodies would have had to begin the reconstruction of an entirely new measure.

The Wartime Prohibition act as originally passed provided no legal definition for the term “intoxicating liquors” and certain Federal courts, notably that in Baltimore, ruled that 2.75 per cent. beer was not intoxicating and, therefore, not prohibited.

The enforcement act, however, defines intoxicating liquor as that having an alcoholic content of more than one-half of one per cent. and the court decisions were wiped out when the Senate concurred in the House veto action last Wednesday afternoon.

From this time on 2.75 per cent. beer is an illegal product and can no more be sold than whisky or brandy.

Private ownership of intoxicating liquors is lawful if the goods were acquired legally and if they are kept and served in the home. This is true of both wartime and Constitutional prohibition.

Also it is lawful to manufacture wine or cider for home use, although both may contain alcohol.

CELEBRATION AT MAKEMIE PARK

Rain Storm Did Not Stop Visit To Early Home Of Presbyterians

Mr. Harry Pringle Ford, of the Presbyterian Historical Society of Philadelphia, gives the following account of the trip and celebration recently held at Makemie Park, Accomac county, Va.:

For a long time, the “Sons and Daughters of Makemie,” an organization connected with the Wicomico Presbyterian Church, Salisbury, Maryland, Rev. Robert Alexander Boyle, pastor, together with a number of other churches organized by Rev. Francis Makemie on the lower Eastern Shores of Maryland and Virginia, have been planning and looking forward to Thursday, October 23rd, 1919, the date selected for the annual celebration to be held at the Makemie Monument Park, in Accomac county, Virginia, in honor of the founder of organized Presbyterianism in America. But alas for human intentions!

“The best laid schemes o' mice and men Gang aft a-gley!”

The morning dawned with a downpour of rain and throughout the day, nature, like Rachel weeping for her children, would not be comforted. The phones between the many neighboring towns became busy, and it was finally determined by a large number of interested persons, including the venerable, yet perennially youthful Dr. L. P. Bowen, of Berlin, the author of “The Days of Makemie,” not to attempt the long ride in the storm to the Makemie monument.

A little band of the faithful, however, admirably illustrated the time-honored doctrine of “the perseverance of the saints,” by braving the inclement weather and making the journey in automobiles. Among these were Hon. L. Irving Handy, of Wilmington, Del., who was on the program as the orator of the day; John S. McMaster, Esq., of Jersey City, N. J., who had been invited to preside, and H. P. Ford representing the Presbyterian Historical, Philadelphia, Pa. Dr. and Mrs. Geo. W. Todd and Rev. and Mrs. Robert A. Boyle, were present from Salisbury; Mrs. T. Jacob Smith, from Princess Anne, and Mrs. Burwell, from Accomac county, Virginia.

The party was too small to attempt a formal meeting, but a most delightful social hour was enjoyed under the large pavilion within the enclosure, and, protected by umbrellas, the near-by monument and the site of the Makemie home were visited.

The autumnal surroundings were indescribably beautiful. The oaks and maples were resplendent in coloring, with the wonderful evergreens, nowhere more attractive than on the Eastern Shore, forming a striking contrast. At this dreary season of the year these forest scenes are beautiful beyond the power of words to express. The happy group of congenial pilgrims; the monument keeping faithful watch and ward over Makemie's sacred dust; gratitude for his wonderful activities and for what they had accomplished; the dripping trees; the gentle waters of Holden's Creek at our feet; the knowledge that not so far away was Makemie's cherished Rehoboth (the well known mother church of Presbyterianism), and that yonder through the deepening shadows and mist the Pocomoke river was pouring its cypress-strained waters into the Pocomoke Sound and then into the mighty Chesapeake (which we could almost hear making its eternal plaint to the not distant Atlantic), such scenes, such thoughts, filled us with emotions which only such surroundings could inspire.

It will be recalled that the old graveyard in which Makemie is buried was long used as an enclosure for cattle. This vandalism was discovered by Dr. Bowen, and he and Dr. Henry C. McCook, of Philadelphia, became actively interested in rescuing the spot from such sacrilege. Through their efforts and the efforts of others, a sufficient fund was secured to purchase some three acres of the land, including the graveyard and the site of Makemie's home. In 1908 a fine monument was erected here by the Presbyterian Historical Society, the lot was enclosed by a private hedge, and a number of trees have since been planted and several conveniences introduced—the hope being that Presbyterians and others would use this as a meeting place in the years to come.

Francis Makemie came to America in 1683, and through his efforts a number of Presbyterian churches were organized, among them being Rehoboth, Snow Hill, Manokin (Princess Anne), Wicomico (Salisbury) and Pitts Crend After a life of remarkable activity and accomplishment he died in 1708, at the early age of fifty years, having given to the Eastern Shores of Maryland and Virginia their proudest heritage—that of being the earliest homes of organized Presbyterianism in America.

RED CROSS PEACE PROGRAM

For you, for your family and for your community, that is the main object of the peace time program of the American Red Cross. In the nursing service it proposes to install a Public Health Nurse, where no other agency is covering the field; classes in home hygiene and care of the sick and dietetics are to be formed and girls are to be encouraged to become trained nurses. Poor health can be largely prevented; good health can be gained through the Red Cross Nursing Service. Home Service care of the families of soldiers and sailors, first aid training in prevention of accidents, aiding Junior Red Cross Members to become solid citizens and furnishing relief in foreign lands are some of the other plans of the Red Cross in time of peace. Enroll now in the Third Red Cross Roll Call, November 2-11 at your local Red Cross Headquarters.

LEST WE FORGET

The responsibilities of the American Red Cross are not yet discharged. By its charter the Red Cross must follow the army and navy wherever it may be. American soldiers are still in Russia, Germany and in France. These men still need Red Cross service. Their families still need Red Cross service. The American Red Cross must carry this responsibility as long as our soldiers carry their guns. Thirty thousand men are still in military hospitals, many of them crippled for life. They require Red Cross care. Nothing will take its place. Enroll now in the Third Red Cross Roll Call, November 2-11 and help them get that care at your local Red Cross Headquarters.

HEARTILY GIVE TO HEALTHILY LIVE

Haskell Coffin, the artist of the above poster, has embodied in his subject the girl whom every soldier and marine learned to revere. Whether as a nurse, a welfare worker, a searcher or a canteener the Red Cross Girl was ever ready to attend to their wants and comfort. Now that peace has been declared her work is still not done. Several hundred thousand men were discharged from the army and navy, disabled. Thousands of them are at home and under the care of Home Service sections. Many are still in the hospitals and are ministered to by her. She is helping them back to health and she asks your aid. Enlist now in the Third Red Cross Roll Call as a worker for the drive to be held November 2-11 at your local Red Cross Headquarters.

PRODIGES PROVE A PUZZLE

Psychological Experts Unable to Account for Their Amazing Prevalence in England.

Infant prodigies are being discovered in England almost daily. Some connect this with the psychology of war. One of the youthful marvels is Pamela Blanco, a thirteen-year-old girl artist, whose drawings were given the place of honor in an exhibition at one of the principal London galleries.

Critics dealt with them quite seriously and said that the work was suggestive of Botticelli and some of the other old masters. Pamela is an Italian girl who was born in England and never had taken any drawing lessons.

Ronnie Routledge, four, little more than a baby, whose parents know nothing of music, has enjoyed six months of tuition on the violin. At the Grimsby College of Violinists recently he outranked 43 competitors, most of them in the twenties, and scored 119 points in a possible 120. Professor Danton describes him as a miracle.

Little Robbie Day, aged seven, of Brighton, son of a motor mechanic, has wonderful powers of clairvoyance, according to the Weekly Dispatch. Blindfolded, he described a number of articles. These included a treasury note (giving its color, numbers and writing on the back), the color and texture of a piece of fabric he had never seen, the correct answer to a complicated sum in mental arithmetic and figures written down at random.

After five minutes' test he complained of feeling icy cold. "I just see little pictures and I just say them," is Bobbie's explanation.

AMERICANS WILL BE THERE

Opportunities Offered in Abyssinia Are by No Means Likely to Be Long Overlooked.

After his visit to the United States one of the Abyssinian visitors admitted that he knew now why there were no Americans in Abyssinia. As he had seen him at home, the American, so the stranger from Abyssinia decided, is not given to slow and tedious traveling. He wants to get about quickly, and Abyssinia, with nothing faster than a pack mule, offers no inducements of rapid transportation. "That, it seems," said the Abyssinian, "has kept the American man out of our country. It is too bad. We need bridges like yours, we need streets like yours, and we need men like yours to direct the building of them." Commercially and industrially, however, the truth probably is that Abyssinia has not been "discovered," and when that happens the American man will come and build his own rapid transportation. The mere statement that the capital, Addis Ababa, is a city of some 40,000 inhabitants and no railway connection with the outside world is a temptation.—Christian Science Monitor.

Birds Have Right of Way.

Fowl have the right of way in air, warns the director of military aerobatics. This is justice indeed, since birds flew first.

But this is not all. Recently many towns along the Atlantic coast have been visited with dead bird showers. Aviators flying by a town would see a flock of wild fowl coming their way. They would set their machine guns and let the bullets fly.

Presently a prominent citizen walking below would be hit with a large, bloody bird. He complained to the town, and the town complained to the department of agriculture. Then the threw my arms around the gentleman who rose to greet me and kissed him soundly only to hear a strange voice say, "I called to see if I could interest you in a wonderful set of books I'm showing today."

I backed to the light and turned on to view a perfect stranger—a big agent. But Mr. Blank's timely arrival just then saved a little of my embarrassing explanation.—Chicago Tribune

Triple Tone Electric Bell.

Three separate and distinct sounds are given by an electric bell which operates on ordinary lighting current by means of a transformer. In the home the bell can be connected with push buttons installed at three different doors—front, kitchen and side, for example. When one button is pressed a clear ring results, when the second is operated a buzz is produced, and when the third button is pushed a combination buzz and ring results. In the office or shop this bell will prove most useful, since it can be used to call three different persons without necessitating them to count the number of rings, as must often be done when the customary signaling is employed. This bell has no contact points to burn out and no batteries to replace.

Importance of "Now."
"Now" is ever ticking from the clock of time. "Now" is the watchword of the wise. "Now" is on the banner of the prudent. Let us keep this little word always in our mind; and whenever anything presents itself to us in the shape of work, whether mental or physical, let us do it with all our might, remembering that now is the only time for us.—Selected.

Watch the Sun's Halos.
The sun's halos are good weather signs. Many weather proverbs based upon the observation of halos are founded upon sound scientific principles. Studies of the relation of halos to rainfall show that during the summer months 50 to 60 per cent of all halos are followed by rain within 36 hours. During the winter months 70 to 75 per cent are so followed.

True Poetry.
True poetry, like true eloquence, is the voice of nature appealing to the heart with its utmost sublimity and power. Instead of teaching mere dogmas, it awakens the soul. It is a gift of God to the other world, and it is the only true religion. It produces courage, confidence and raises virtue into heroism.—Hugh Swinton Legree.

Coal's Uncertain History.
The story of coal is a very uncertain one. No one seems to know when it first began to be used for fuel. All through the centuries it pops in and out of English literature as something taken for granted, and when it was finally found well in the van of the great industrial expansion of a century or more ago it occasioned no special comment.

Quaint Baptismal Custom.
A pretty custom is followed at baptisms in Helgoland. While a psalm is being sung, a procession of little boys and girls troop in, passing in front of the altar. Each child carries a pannikin of water, the contents of which are poured into the baptismal font.

CARING FOR POOR WOMAN IN TENEMENT

The district or visiting nurse, who makes regular rounds without charge to her patients, advising her about the care of the baby and about sanitation or dietetics, is sorely needed in thousands of communities in the United States—in both town and country. HIDES AND SKINS OF BEST QUALITY

Many of Profit-Absorbing Intermediary Agencies Avoided by Direct Marketing.

PREPARATION IS IMPORTANT

Essential to Fold in Head and Neck, Flesh Sides Together—Sheepskins Are Bundled Differently—Use Strong Linen Tags.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

Much may be done to improve the country branch of the hide and skin industry by marketing the hides and pelts on a graded and selected basis, according to relative merits, and by avoiding many of the profit-absorbing intermediary agencies through more direct marketing by the rural producers. In this way country producers will not only derive more profits, but the profits will be commensurate with the quality of their products, a condition which will prove an incentive to produce hides and skins of the best possible quality.

The preparation of hides and skins for market is of great importance, as when they are not properly prepared and shipped they are subject to great deterioration. The farmer who has thoroughly cured a number of hides and skins by the green salting method commonly followed should place them over some elevated object, such as a barrel. They should remain there over night, to drain free of excess moisture; after which the surplus salt should be swept off or removed by thoroughly shaking the hides.

Folding the Hides.

As a rule hides are folded so that the hair side is out. It is essential to fold in the head and neck on the body of the hide, flesh surfaces together, and to turn in the tail in a similar manner. Then a narrow fold on each side should be made by throwing back the body edges and legs upon the body of the hide, flesh surfaces together, keeping the lines of the folds parallel. The legs should then be folded back and these lapped with the hair surfaces together, bringing the break of each fold near the middle line of the back. The side folds should then be completed by bringing together the two breaks of the folds, with the middle line of the back as the main fold, in this way making one long rectangular bundle. The butt end of the folded hide should then be thrown forward about four-fifths of the distance to the neck fold, whereupon the forward portion of the bottom lap should be folded back on top of the first fold, bringing the break of the rear fold even with that of the fold just made.

Each hide should be bundled separately and tied securely, about seven feet of strong cord being necessary to tie one hide bundle. A soft rope or line at least one-fourth inch thick is suitable for this purpose, although regular hide rope is preferable. Wire should never be used, as it is likely to damage the hide by rusting.

Sheepskins Bundled Differently.

Sheepskins are bundled differently from either cattle hides or calfskins. The wool sides are laid down and the skins are folded along the median line of the back with the wool side out. As many as five skins folded in this manner can be placed in a single bundle for shipment. Two pieces of stout rope should then be wound around the pack from back to belly, one passing around the back portion just in front of the hind legs, and the other passing around the front portion immediately back of the forelegs. All shipments of hides should be tagged with good, strong linen tags with a paper finish and brass eyelets, and all addresses should be done plainly with moisture-resisting ink. Hides and skins should be shipped as soon as possible after bundling without needless exposure to sun, draft, water, or rusty or corroded metals.

Complete information regarding the best methods for skinning, curing, and preparing hides for market is given in Farmers' Bulletin No. 1055, which may be obtained upon request to the United States department of agriculture, Washington, D. C.

Only A Cold

Are you ill? Is often answered—"Oh! it's only a cold," as if a cold was a matter of little consequence, but people are beginning to learn that a common cold is a matter not to be trifled with, that some of the most serious diseases start with a cold. As soon as the first indication of a cold appears take Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. Remember that the sooner you get rid of your cold the less the danger, and this remedy will help you to throw it off.

PEOPLES BANK of SOMERSET COUNTY

Princess Anne, Maryland

A SAFE STOCK FOR ALL

OLD KING SOLOMON WAS A WISE OLD BIRD

Knew How to Save His Shekels By Putting Them Into Safest Investments Bankers Could Find.

Old King Solomon was a wise bird. He distributed a lot of mighty good advice.

But he is dead. You are alive. You will have to make your own decisions and determine your own course of action and your own future. It will not do you a bit of good to try to communicate with Sol and have him solve your problems for you.

If you got his ear, you probably would not take his advice.

You will have to acquire your wisdom as Sol acquired his, by gaining a broad view-point and taking advantage of your own experience and that of others. Solomon was a mason before he was a king and a miner as well, so his view-point probably would not be much different from that of wise workers of the present day.

You may be sure that the high cost of living was a problem in Solomon's day as well as in 1919 and that the purchasing power of a shekel, minted from the gold of Ophir, fluctuated just as does the dollar minted at Philadelphia.

But Solomon knew that thrift and saving, the stimulation of production and the elimination of waste would solve those problems just as the wise working man knows it today. He laid up a lot of coin through safe and conservative investment just as wise men and women have put money for the future in Liberty Bonds, Treasury Savings Certificates and War Savings Stamps. Also there is no record that anyone ever took any of that coin away from Old Sol by inducing him to speculate in wild cat stocks.

He left one bit of advice, the wisdom of which the years have not changed. He said: "A good man leaveth an inheritance to his children's children."

You can follow that advice by steady consistent saving and investment in War Saving Stamps and Treasury Savings Certificates and in Liberty Bonds at present prices. These securities bought now will be an inheritance for your children's children.

Sol had to get wise. You can get wise just as he did. If you fail to save you will repent through many years.

COLLEGE PRESIDENT OUTLINES REMEDY

Tells How High Cost of Living Problems May Be Solved by Every Man and Woman.

President Nicholas Murray Butler of Columbia University, in a recent discussion of the high living costs said:

"Furnishing profiteers is a good thing, but it won't reduce the cost of living. If we had all their hoarded goods it would do little good.

"Only the operation of inexorable economic laws can bring us back to tolerable conditions. The remedy is to save, to practice public economy and private thrift. We must save and invest in productive industry. Borrowing for non-productive reasons means bankruptcy."

In the opinion of the best economist in the United States the people's greatest weapon against high prices is the government's Thrift campaign. Every family should have a budget, just as every successful business has a budget. The first thing on that budget should be the amount to be saved from the weekly or monthly income—not the amount to be spent. Make what you save govern the amount you spend, not what you spend govern the amount you save.

War Savings Stamps bring 4 per cent interest, compounded every three months. Hit high prices below the belt by investing in United States securities. The dollar you save today may be worth twice as much five years from now.

SING A SONG OF SAVINGS STAMPS

Sing a song of Savings Stamps. The cost of living's high. But have you counted all the things

These Savings Stamps will buy?

They help to take that little trip. Or buy some needed clothes. How many things they'll help you get. Goodness only knows.

OUR NEW VIRTUE

In fog or sunshine, snow or rain, it's comforting to have this thought—I have not spent my every gain, and thus reduced my funds to naught—it's pleasant through the muggy days to sit inside a cozy room, and realize the dismal haze cannot surround you with its gloom; to know, through purchase wisely made, investment planned with sober care, your income's bulk will never fade, but through such rainy days appear! Last year and this, an agency for teaching folks this gospel bright has strenuously impressed on me the way to duck the waster-bright; "A dollar saved—the interest gained"—this is the lesson sound and true, which keeps the wayward dollar chained and makes the 4 per cent accrue. Thrift! That's the answer to you, sir! The thing that flamed our battle lamps, and helped to down the Prussian cur; in other words, WAR SAVINGS STAMPS.

Cinders are no more worthless than good intentions which go no farther. Buy those War Savings Stamps now

The Most Welcome Tire That Ever Came to Market

Men Who Appreciate Superlative Values Prefer The Brunswick

In every great tire factory, the chief question is: "How much can we give for the money?" And the product depends on the policy adopted.

Every man who has become acquainted with Brunswick Tires knows that Brunswick standards are again evident. This famous concern—noted as a leader in every line it entered since 1845—has once more proved that its policy is right.

A perfect tire is simply a matter of knowledge and standards and skill. No secrets nor patents prevent making an ideal tire.

But standards come first. For in tire making there is vast room for skimping, for subtle economies, for hidden shortcomings. Makers without the highest standards don't build high-grade tires.

The Brunswick organization of tire makers includes a brilliant staff of technical experts. Not a man among them has spent less than 20 years in handling rubber.

Each is a master of his craft. And the new ideas they bring to the attention of Brunswick directors receive sincere consideration.

Every proved betterment is adopted unanimously.

The Brunswick Tire is a combination of acknowledged features—plus Brunswick standards of manufacture.

The result is a super-tire, the like of which you have never known before. The kind of a tire you will gladly join in welcoming.

Yet Brunswicks cost no more than like-type tires.

Try ONE Brunswick. We promise a surprise. And we feel certain that you will want ALL Brunswicks.

Then good tires will have a new meaning to you.

BLUEBERRIES

By HELEN AHLQUIST

Betty had been picking blueberries since 5 o'clock that morning and with a great sigh of satisfaction as she noticed that the top of her pail was nicely rounded with berries on top at last started for the little red farmhouse where she had been boarding with "Granny" and "Grampy" Robbins for the past two weeks. She existed in town over a ledger 48 weeks of the year and lived for the four she spent in the country each summer. She sang as she trudged along, with never a care in the world except getting back home in time for dinner.

She had gone about half way when she spied a bunch of mountain laurel by Atwood's ledge. She had often heard Granny Robbins bewail its scarcity in their vicinity, so she carefully put her pail of berries under a clump of bushes which were near by and started off to get a bunch of it.

"They'll be perfectly safe there," she thought, "and I'll only be gone a minute anyway."

But she was gone over an hour and got back just in time to see a young man ruefully trying to gather up the contents of the pail. He had spilled every berry!

"You see," he started apologetically,

"I—"

"Don't you dare to say another word," Betty interrupted rudely, "you—"

"I was just going to—" he continued valiantly with his explanation, only to be cut short again by Betty.

"I don't care what you were going to do. You spilled every one of my berries—every one of them," she added tragically. "You ought to be arrested for robbery, so there! I think you're a—you're a—" But she couldn't think of a word of sufficient expression to describe him, so he took advantage of her pause to finish his explanation.

"To sit down," he murmured contritely.

Betty gave him a look of withering scorn and started on her way again while he stood watching her repentantly.

"There isn't a thing I can do about it," he murmured hopelessly. "She's a regular little spitfire."

Betty was nearly home when she remembered that she had left her mountain laurel behind and went back to get it. When finally she reached the farmhouse there sat the offender on the piazza comfortably chatting away with Grampy Robbins! Grampy saw her from the kitchen window and hurried out to introduce her to the new boarder, for, as she so often said, "Grampy will forget little things like that, you know."

Betty acknowledged the introduction frigidly and as frigidly excused herself. Grampy looked with a troubled expression from one to the other and then hastily followed Betty upstairs.

"Why, Honey, what's the matter? I never saw you in such a mood before. Mr. Moore is a friend of Will's, and I'm sure he couldn't be nicer! I was just going to ask you to show him around the farm."

"Oh, I couldn't do that," exclaimed Betty in horror, "I just couldn't. Why, he's the man that spilled my blueberries!"

Grampy was a most sympathetic person usually and she realized if she laughed at Betty's tragic statement that she'd never be forgiven. She hastily ran down stairs, shutting the door behind her, and then sat down and laughed till the tears rolled down her cheeks. She even took Grampy and Mr. Moore into her confidence and the three of them considered it a huge joke.

But they had figured without Betty. She didn't think it a joke, and for the whole week didn't say a word to Mr. Moore. She avoided him whenever she could, and when this was impossible, looked miles past him if they chanced to meet.

"Never you mind, Mr. Moore," Grampy consoled him, "she's/stubborn as a mule, but she'll get over it; just you wait and see if she doesn't."

And that very same day Betty did "get over it." The Robbinses went shopping down the "square," and left Betty at home to get supper. Moore, leisurely reading in the hammock, could hear her singing as she worked, and regretted that such a small accident should keep them from being friends. "She's acting just like an eight-year-old," he thought, "and all she needs is a good spanking!" His thoughts were rudely interrupted, and quickly he ran to the kitchen.

"Oh, Grampy, Grampy, oh anybody," she cried, "the kitchen's on fire."

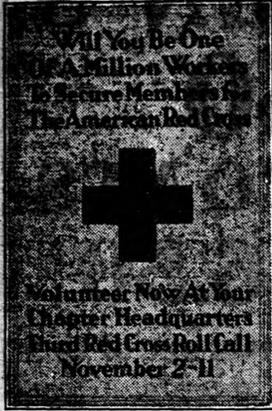

And sure enough—somehow or other the box of kindlings by the stove had caught, and was blazing merrily away, but the two of them put it out in a second. After the excitement was over, Betty bravely started to thank him, but she only stammered for a while, and then quite suddenly burst into tears.

"Oh, come now, please don't," urged poor Moore awkwardly, "really, you mustn't do that. You see," he added brightly, to cheer her up, "I'm glad it happened, because now we're going to be friends, real friends, aren't we? I never put much stock in Fate before, but I guess he's a pal of mine after all. Betty, you can't hold out against blueberries and Fate, can you? We've just got to be friends!"

And Betty, smiling up at him through her tears, agreed with him!

PLEDGE YOURSELF NOW

One million volunteers is the goal of the American Red Cross by November 2. This number, more than ten times that called for by President Lincoln in the Civil War, will be required to enroll the millions of members of the greatest humane organization in the world in the forthcoming drive. The peace time program of the American Red Cross is based on combating a more disastrous annual menace, as far as loss of life is involved, than the late war, namely the scourge of disease. Enlist now in the nation's greatest army at your local Red Cross Headquarters.

THE FLAG OF HUMANITY

The 1920 Red Cross Service Flag differs from the flag given, last year, to each person enrolling in the organization, in that it has two white lines in the blue border, signifying the third year's membership. The large cross in center represents one member, the smaller ones denote additional members in the same family. It is the aim of the American Red Cross to have a service flag displayed in a window of every home, where it is to be kept throughout the year. Every person enrolling in the third Red Cross Roll Call, November 2-11, is entitled to this emblem. Enlist now at your local Red Cross Headquarters.

THE SPIRIT OF 1920

Above is a reproduction of Howard Chandler Christy's latest poster for the American Red Cross, which no doubt will become as famous as the other similar works of art of this well known illustrator. In its portrayal of budding womanhood, upholding the flag, it typifies not only the spirit of America, but of the Red Cross in its nation wide peace program for the health of the United States. This poster forms one of the striking appeals for members in the Third Red Cross Roll Call, November 2-11. Enlist now at your local Red Cross Headquarters.

OLD AGE STARTS WITH YOUR KIDNEYS

Science says that old age begins with weakened kidneys and digestive organs. This being true, it is easy to believe that by keeping the kidneys and digestive organs cleaned and in proper working order old age can be deferred and life prolonged far beyond that enjoyed by the average person.

For over 200 years GOLD MEDAL Haarlem Oil has been relieving the weakness and disability due to advancing years. It is a standard old-time home remedy and needs no introduction. GOLD MEDAL Haarlem Oil is enclosed in odorless, tasteless capsules containing about 5 drops each. Take them as you would a pill, with a small swallow of water. The oil stimulates the kidney action and enables the organs to throw off the poisons which cause premature old age. New life and strength increase as you continue the treatment. When completely restored continue taking a capsule or two each day. GOLD MEDAL Haarlem Oil Capsules will keep you in health and vigor and prevent a return of the disease.

Do not wait until old age or disease have settled down for good. Go to your druggist and get a box of GOLD MEDAL Haarlem Oil Capsules. Money refunded if they do not help you. Three sizes. But remember to ask for the original imported GOLD MEDAL brand. In sealed packages.

Offended the Herring.

In the fifteenth and sixteenth centuries Helgoland was a center of the North sea herring fisheries. Then the herring veered back to Scotland's coast and the islanders handed down a tale of the implety by which they forfeited the boon. Yearly they would form in procession to march about the island to invoke the coming of the fish. One spring, when they had gone but half the route, the herring were sighted. They abandoned the rite and made for the boats. The herring never came again.—National Geographic Magazine.

Moths in Closets.

Get a wide-mouthed bottle, three ounce will do, and fill it with oil of mirbane. Leave the cork out of the bottle and place it in the trunk or closet in such position that it will not tip over. The fumes are very poisonous to insects. For a very large closet use a larger bottle and larger amount of oil. Renew the oil when needed. Sprinkle heavy blankets, quilts, etc., with the oil of mirbane before packing away.

Proofs of Bigness.

To disagree with the other fellow and still remain friendly; to see the other fellow's viewpoint and still cling to your own opinion with a smile that is sincere; to travel the first 50 miles in company with a crowd quietly and not tell all you know; to smile at the breakfast table and then go to work, not willingly but anxiously, proves that you are a bigger man than the ordinary fellow we find on the navy roll.

BAPTISTS PLAN VIGOROUS WARFARE UPON TUBERCULOSIS IN THE SOUTH

SANATORIUM AT EL PASO, ESTABLISHED FOR THIS PURPOSE, WILL GET FINANCIAL AID FROM 75 MILLION CAMPAIGN—EDUCATIONAL PROPAGANDA TO INFORM PEOPLE ON HOW TO COMBAT PLAGUE WILL BE CONDUCTED.

Administration building of Southern Baptist Sanatorium for treatment of tuberculosis patients, located 4500 feet above sea level.

Do you know that tuberculosis is more prevalent in the South than in any other part of the country?

That the death rate from tuberculosis here is 14.2 per cent greater than for the nation as a whole, and greater than in any civilized nation on the globe with the exception of China?

That more than 150 people a day, or 57,782 a year, die in the South and the Southwest from this dreaded disease?

That there are within the territory of the Southern Baptist Convention 275,000 persons actively infected with the great white plague and an equal number have inactive infection?

That the money loss to the South each year from tuberculosis is $175,000,000?

These startling facts were brought to the attention of the Southern Baptist Convention at its session in 1916 and a resolution was at once adopted to try and check the spread of the disease and provide relief as far as possible for those already infected with it.

As a result of this movement there was established in the high, cool, rare atmosphere of El Paso, Texas, the Southern Baptist Sanatorium which aims to minister to as many patients as possible and to disseminate throughout the South and Southwest the information that will result in checking the further spread of the disease and enable those who have just contracted it to obtain immediate cures by proper methods of living.

With the active assistance of the business interests of El Paso a modern sanatorium, located upon a beautiful tract of 143 acres on the side of Mt. Franklin, at a height of 4,500 feet, was opened for the healing of the people, and through the Baptist 75 Million Campaign this institution will receive $500,000 for the erection of additional buildings and $500,000 for an endowment that will enable the sanatorium to minister to those indigent patients who are unable to pay for treatment.

That there is an imperative need for an institution of this character is shown in the fact that all institutions in the South and Southwest for the treatment of tuberculosis have a total capacity of only 8,757 beds, or one bed for only one person out of every sixty in this section who are afflicted.

Everything connected with the Baptist Sanatorium is modern and of the very best, but its present equipment is far too small to cope with the demands that are made upon it. Of the improvement fund that is to be provided, $100,000 is available already and architects are already designing new buildings worth $450,000. These will be constructed just as rapidly as possible.

While the sanatorium is being operated by the Baptists, it will be open to the people of all creeds and no creed. Due to the crowded conditions, however, it is necessary that arrangements be made in advance by communicating with Dr. H. F. Vermillion, superintendent, at El Paso.

The sanatorium is under the general supervision of the Home Mission Board of the Southern Baptist Convention, and in addition to treating patients who have already contracted tuberculosis, it will seek, through a campaign of publicity, to so inform the people of the South and Southwest on the nature and prevention of this disease that the alarming death rate from the white plague can be immediately lowered and finally reduced to the minimum.

SPEND $20,000,000 UPON EDUCATION

SOUTHERN BAPTISTS PLAN MUCH LARGER PROVISION FOR ALL THEIR INSTITUTIONS.

WILL AID RURAL SCHOOLS

Success of 75 Million Campaign Will Mean Strengthening of Educational Forces All Along the Line in Next Five Years.

Of the total sum sought in the Baptist 75 Million Campaign, $20,000,000 will go to Christian education.

But the educational program of the Baptists will not stop there. It proposes to lend itself to the creation of a public sentiment that will result in more efficient public schools in the territory of the Southern Baptist Convention, especially in the rural districts. In this connection it is pointed out that 37 per cent of the total elementary scholastic population of the nation is found in the South; that the rural scholastic population of the South is 77 per cent of the whole; that only one-sixth as much money per capita is expended on the education of the children of the South as on the children of other sections of the country; that only 37 out of every 1,000 pupils in the South enter high school as against 87 from other sections; and only 10 from the South enter college as against 21 from other sections.

Distributed throughout the territory of the Southern Baptist Convention are 142 educational institutions, including academies, colleges, universities, seminaries, and missionary training schools for women. These have a total enrollment of 18,000 annually, but all of them are crowded, greatly in need of larger facilities in every way, and many of them must have an endowment if they are to meet the demands made upon them. It is in supplying these needs that the $20,000,000 apportioned to Christian education will be expended.

To these institutions the denomination is looking for its trained leaders to help carry forward the work along every line contemplated in the $75,000,000 campaign. In Texas alone there are 700 pastorless Baptist churches and probably the same proportion holds in the other states. It is hoped the campaign will call out 5,000 volunteers for ministerial and mission work, and these institutions will be asked to equip these young men and women for their work.

Last year, reports show, over 6,000 students in these institutions took voluntary courses in Bible and mission study; nearly 4,000 of them attended student prayer meetings; ministeria students pastoring churches raised more than $80,000 for church benevolence and led more than 10,000 people to profess Christ. The campaign hopes to result in enrolling 35,000 young men and women in Baptist schools within the next five years.

The South-wide institutions that will benefit from the campaign include Southern Baptist Theological Seminary and Women's Training School at Louisville, Ky.; Southwestern Baptist Theological Seminary and Women's Training School at Fort Worth, Tex.; Baptist Bible Institute, New Orleans and Negro Theological Seminary at Nashville while aid will be given to every Baptist institution of learning in all states of the convention territory, and to new Baptist colleges that will be established in Arkansas, Florida, Illinois, Louisiana and New Mexico, along with one somewhere in the region of the Appalachian mountains yet to be definitely located.

BAPTIST CAMPAIGN COMES CHEAPLY.

Expense in raising the $75,000,000 sought by the Baptists of the South in their 75 Million Campaign will amount to considerably less than one per cent. Dr. L. R. Scarborough, general director, announces. This includes the expense of both the general headquarters and the eighteen state headquarters. This is probably the lowest overhead expense in the history of large money-raising efforts in this country.

"IRELAND AND THE IRISH"

Lecture By Rev. J. T. Herson Friday Night In Auditorium

The Rev. Joseph T. Herson, D. D., pastor of Asbury Methodist Episcopal Church, Salisbury, will deliver his illustrated lecture on "Ireland and the Irish" in the Auditorium, Princess Anne, next Friday night, November 14th.

This is an opportunity for the people of Princess Anne and Somerset county to hear a live topic explained by a man who knows his subject. Dr. Herson was born in Dublin, Ireland. The slides for this lecture were selected in New York by Dr. Herson and are the best that could be obtained in this country.

This lecture will be under the auspices of the Epworth League of Antioch Methodist Episcopal Church.

What About The Civic Club?

Why, just this: Several years ago the women of Princess Anne hearing of what had been done by women in other towns to make them safer places to live in, as well as more pleasing to the eye, gathered their forces together and achieved certain results which were a credit to their industry as well as ingenuity.

That "Little Princess Anne" has been called the prettiest town on the Eastern Shore in great measure due to spirit of improvement that then crept in; unsightly board fences disappeared over night; back yards miraculously became front yards, and because Mr. Jones had fresh paint on his house Mr. Smith followed suit, although he might not want to confess it. And so it came to pass that the magic thing called "co-operation," contrary to all previous traditions, seized on the community—but we have not a finished town yet. Certainly there are ugly spots we are not proud of, and the Civic Club which has been dormant only—not dead—is seriously discussing how such things can be abolished as certain odoriferous piles of refuse, discarded oyster shells, store sweepings, empty packing boxes with straw and paper waiting for some careless smoker to pass by, back door drains—needless to make the list longer, we all know what and where such things are.

This article is intended to stimulate interest in our civic life, not to criticize unduly, but written with the hope that some suggestion may be made which will be helpful in improving the town of which we have already reason to be proud. The Civic Club stands at all times ready to serve in any possible way that may contribute to its uplift.

Today (Tuesday) is "Armistice Day" and will be observed throughout the country as a tribute to the boys who served overseas. It is a legal holiday by proclamation of Governor Harrington

SOMERSET ELECTS REPUBLICANS

Democrats Elect Gordon E. Milbourne For The Legislature

Last Tuesday the Republicans elected their entire ticket in Somerset county, with the exception of one member of the Legislature, Gordon E. Milbourne, Democrat, who has a majority of 67 over Edward J. Hall, the low Republican candidate.

John B. Robins, Republican, won for the State Senate by a majority of 211 votes.

W. Jerome Sterling was re-elected Clerk of the Circuit Court by a majority of 509.

Robert J. Maddox, for County Commissioner, won by 90 majority.

L. Creston Beauchamp was re-elected State's Attorney by a majority of 853 votes.

Derrick K. Lawson was elected Sheriff by a majority of 320 votes.

Wm. J. Hall was the high man on the Republican Legislative ticket, receiving 133 more votes than the lowest Republican candidate for Legislature.

Chas. H. Bedsworth, Daniel D. Bozman and Edward T. Evans, all Republicans, were elected Judges of the Orphans' Court by majorities ranging from 83 to 441. Asbury S. Henderson, Democrat, came within 83 votes of defeating the low Republican candidate.

The tabulated returns of Somerset county are published on this page, they show how the voter marked his ballot and we hope they voted wisely.

Agricultural Show Next Week

Plans are now being made for a large number of exhibits of farm and household products for the Third Annual County Agricultural Show to be held in the Court House, Princess Anne, next Thursday, Friday and Saturday, November 20th, 22nd and 23rd.

Farmers are urged to enter exhibits of the following: (1) Fruits, apples, pears; (2) nuts; (3) vegetables; (4) potatoes, white and sweet; (5) grain and seeds, including corn, wheat, rye, soybeans, cowpeas; (6) grasses and clover hay, 10 pound sheath or bale; (7) dairy products, butter and eggs; household products; canned products; fancy articles. All exhibits are to be in the Court House by 5 o'clock Wednesday evening, November 19th.

The exhibition to be held next week can only be a success providing the farmers respond with a large number of entries in the various classes of farm products. An attractive premium list has been arranged and it is desired that there be keen competition for the prizes.

The shows held the last two years were a credit to Somerset and were much enjoyed by people from all sections of the county.

Everyone should be pleased with the election results: Republicans won; Democrats won; the Drys gained a victory and so did the wets.

MARYLAND'S NEXT GOVERNOR

ALBERT C. RITCHIE ELECTED LAST TUESDAY

Albert C. Ritchie, Democrat, has been elected Governor of Maryland over Harry W. Nice, Republican, by the narrow margin of 165 votes, as reported on Saturday.

E. Brooke Lee, Democrat, is elected Comptroller by a large plurality over Amos W. W. Woodcock.

Caleb C. Magruder, Democrat, has won easily over William L. Marcy for Clerk of the Court of Appeals.

Alexander Armstrong, Republican, is probably elected Attorney General over Thomas J. Keating.

Chautauqua This Week

The Chautauqua to be held here this week has a treat in store for lovers of the drama. On the last evening, Thursday, Miss Elizabeth Oliver will read one of the most modern and successful plays now being placed before the public.

Miss Oliver is instructor of Public Speaking at Swarthmore College, a director of numerous dramatic productions in the vicinity of Philadelphia and an actress of exceptional ability. Her skill in interpreting the various characters in the plays gives her dramatic recitals that artistic finish which places them out of the ordinary.

THANKSGIVING PROCLAMATION

President Wilson Designates Nov. 27th As Thanksgiving Day

President Wilson last Wednesday set aside Thursday, November 27th, as Thanksgiving Day, in a proclamation which said the country looked forward with confidence to the dawn of an era where the sacrifices of the nations will find recompense in a world at peace.

The proclamation follows: "The season of the year has again arrived when the people of the United States are accustomed to unite in giving thanks to Almighty God for the blessings which he has conferred upon our country during the 12 months that have passed. A year ago our people poured out their hearts in praise and thanksgiving that through Divine aid the right was victorious and peace had come to the nations which had so courageously struggled in defense of human liberty and justice. Now that the stern task is ended and the fruits of achievement are ours, we look forward with confidence to the dawn of an era where the sacrifices of the nation will find recompense in a world at peace.

"But to attain the consummation of the great work to which the American people devoted their manhood and the vast resources of their country, they should, as they give thanks to God, re-consecrate themselves to those principles of right which triumphed through His merciful goodness. Our gratitude can find no more perfect expression than to bulwark with loyalty and patriotism the principles for which the free peoples of the earth fought and died."

"During the past year we have had much to make us grateful. In spite of the confusion in our economic life resulting from the war we have prospered. Our harvests have been plentiful and of our abundance we have been able to render succor to less favored nations. Our democracy remains unshaken in a world torn with political and social unrest. Our traditional ideals are still our guides in the path of progress and civilization.

"These great blessings, vouchsafed to us, for which we devoutly give thanks, should arouse us to a fuller sense of our duty to ourselves and to mankind to see to it that nothing we may do shall mar the completeness of the victory which we helped to win. No selfish purpose animated us in becoming participants in the world war, and with a like spirit of unselfishness we should strive to aid by our example and by our co-operation in realizing the enduring welfare of all peoples and in bringing into being a world ruled by friendship and good will.

"Therefore, I, Woodrow Wilson, president of the United States of America, hereby designate Thursday, the 27th day of November next, for observance as a day of thanksgiving and prayer by my fellow countrymen, inviting them to cease on that day from their ordinary tasks and to unite in their homes and in their several places of worship in ascribing praise and thanksgiving to God the Author of all blessings and the Master of our destinies."

Mr. Elijah B. Carey died last Thursday morning at the age of 90 years, at his home in Berlin, Md.

Mr. Carey was a native of Worcester county, and although he held several public offices of importance, he, perhaps, was best known for his staunch support of the Democratic party throughout his life. In the 69 years in which Mr. Carey voted he never missed one election, general or primary, and he always was known to vote the straight Democratic ticket. It is said that he voted the Democratic ticket longer than any other man in Maryland. The last election was the only one in which Mr. Carey could not participate, his serious condition preventing it.

At one time he was Judge of the Orphans' Court of Worcester county, and also served as a member of the Board of County Commissioners.

Surviving Mr. Carey, besides his son, Mr. W. Lee Carey, are his widow, another son, Dr. Charles Carey, of Cambridge, and two daughters, Mrs. George Williams and Miss Nettie B. Carey.

The Light in the Darkness

By A. W. PEACH

(Copyright, 1919, by the McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

Doris Lane could gather little from the kind eyes of the physician who removed the bandages, and her hopes rose. From the moment of the explosion in the chemical laboratory in which she had been employed, during the long days of suffering in the hospital, she did not dare to ask if she would be left with a badly scarred face. The question seemed, for the time being, vain and foolish in her situation, but now that life was assured, she began to wonder if for all her days she was to meet the pitying, questioning look that the unmaimed give the maimed.

"Doctor, how do I look?" she asked, smiling as bravely as she could. The gray-headed surgeon smiled in answer, and said in his grave, kind way: "Well, little girl, I think you have a pair of the finest brown eyes I have ever seen, and your hair—"

"But I didn't mean that," she said hurriedly. "I know, but your question put me in the old-enough-to-ask class; so I wanted to tell you." He looked at her gently. "There is just one bad scar, the others will fade, I am sure. You might bring Miss Lane a mirror," he said to the waiting nurse.

She was weak with suffering, and her mind was tortured with questions of the future, for her training had been limited and the simple matter of a livelihood was no small item now. So when she saw in the truthful glass the livid scar that raced its ugly line across her forehead, and the blotches below where the flying acid had touched, she moaned in anguish.

"Hello, By-way!" The pleasant voice cut through her darkness, and she opened her tear-filled eyes to see standing above her the attending physician, known to her as "Doctor Walter." During the month that her eyes had been bandaged, he had been to her merely a pleasant voice and gentle fingers. Now she saw he was tall, tanned as if from much time spent out of doors, gray-eyed and dark-haired. His mild fun in calling her "By-way" instead of "Lane" had pleased her in her childish weakness; now, however, she turned to the pillow.

His voice was gentle, for he seemed to understand. "Look here, you must not feel that way—"

"No, but if you were—to go through life—this way—pityed—by everybody," she returned brokenly. "Besides, I— She paused. "Besides what?" he urged in the same gentle fashion.

She shook her head and waved him aside. The sight of his strong, pleasant manhood, the sound of his voice, for some reason or other, made her try all the more bitter—just why she did not know.

She did not guess the purpose in the nurse's friendly questioning that evening, but because there was no one in the world to whom she could confide some of her anxiety, she told the nurse what she refused to tell Doctor Walter. And the nurse did not tell her of that purpose, nor offer any suggestion as to how the mutilated girl might solve the problem she was facing.

The next morning, Doctor Walter stopped again. "Miss Lane, I have come to make you a formal offer of a position as my secretary; I want you to look after my office; are you willing?"

She lifted her scarred face. "So that was why the nurse asked me so many questions!" She turned away. "Even you pity me."

"No, I am sincere. I really need some one, and you have had experience with drugs," he said patiently.

The quiet reproof in his voice was enough. "Forgive me, I hardly know what I am saying. Yes, if I can serve you, I want to."

"All right," he said, cheerfully. "We'll consider the matter settled." So it came about that after a week she found herself in charge of the doctor's pleasant office. From the day she had seen her blue-scarred face she had not looked into a mirror. She combed her hair by arranging a small mirror in such a way that her face was not revealed. The pitying glances of the patients who came in was all the mirror she needed. Keener, too, was Walter's gentleness, and the way his eyes would rest upon her in moments when she guessed he did not realize that she knew he was looking at her. Everything seemed to combine to make life more and more dismal as she looked down the slope of the years.

Worst of all, and unguessed, she found herself being drawn more and more to the tall, handsome physician. His personality seemed to the weakened and worried girl a shelter within which there was kindness and peace.

The full force of the situation did not strike her until one momentous day, when a girl came into the office, lovely with the loveliness that is always suggestive of June time and roses. She was welcomed with manifest pleasure by Walter, and the stricken girl in her simple gray and white dress felt the world sink about her.

"I must be brave," she said to herself. I must. He just pities me, and I must not trouble him."

Two weeks went by. The Junetide girl came and went with Walter; and his interest in her presence was evident.

Then came the day that bore with it a change of destiny.

The Junetide girl, her face flushed with joy, hurried from the office, and Walter, following with as much pleasure shining on his, went with her.

Doris watched them go, and guessing what had taken place between them, felt the room about her grow gray as with dusk. From her world the last sunshine went. Through the darkness came a suggestion. She trembled. To go through life alone—an object of pity when she was so hungry for love, for beauty and happiness and youth—it was too much.

The afternoon waned. The din of the great city ebbed into the low monotone suggestive of tides that have spent their force, drawing outward to the sea. She sat in silence, then quietly she went to the cabinet in which he kept the drugs with which he stocked his case. She knew every compartment. From a bottle she shook out with a steady hand three tablets—morphine—enough to send her into the long and restful sleep which would carry her beyond suffering, beyond pity, beyond heartache.

Taking them, and shivering only slightly in the act, she turned to the couch and lay down. "I am sorry, dear, for the trouble and bother I shall cause you, but I am weary beyond weariness."

Out of the darkness came a voice, insistent, firm and thrilling, with a meaning that broke into her consciousness. She opened her eyes, feeling strangely rested and at peace.

The lights were soft and shining in the office. Kneeling beside her, his face strained with anxious question, was Walter.

"Doris, Doris, what have you been trying to do?" The grief in his voice woke her to full consciousness. Sanity came. With a low cry she sprang up, to find herself caught in his arms and held tight.

"Don't pity me!" she begged breathlessly.

His voice indicated that he had found himself. "I don't pity you." He drew her closer to him. "I love you! How blind you have been! Haven't you seen?"

"Seen? You love me—me?" she questioned in a whisper.

"Listen, you stay in my arms until I am through. I do love you—have from the time I saw you in the ward, but you have given me no sign—wrapped in your own thought; is that it?"

"But look at me!"

His mellow laugh relieved the tension. "So that is it! Foolish girl, I am not one of those who love a face; I love the spirit behind those brown eyes of yours—a troubled spirit now. Let me bring it peace. May I? Just say 'Yes!'"

She clung to him. Speech was beyond her for the moment. After a struggle she whispered: "And I have loved you from the moment you looked at me and spoke to me, but I did not dream—"

"The dream begins now, my dear, to come true." His lips brushed her warm and quivering ones. "Let's close the office. Then we'll go for a long spin under the stars. We—"

She remembered. Horror filled her eyes. "But I took morphine! Why did—"

"No," he said gently; "I was worried about you, and was fearful myself. I had filled that bottle with harmless sugar pills. Little girl, I have watched you and kept ward over you. I did not intend to lose you—waiting in hopes that you would take some interest in me."

The music in her heart died at the shock of her recollection. At his last words it started up softly the music that links eternity to eternity.

"You love me—even my hideous face!" she said again, as if the news were too good to be true.

He turned in his authoritative physician's way, and going to the corridor, returned with a mirror. "You sensitive soul, you ought to know those scars have faded out!"

She took the mirror, wondering, a last wonder surging in her heart. All those long weeks she had kept her vow never to look upon her marred face. She took the mirror, his eyes tender upon her. One glance was enough. The blue, vivid scars were gone. Memories of them would remain, but his love would heal even them with the balm that is the surest healing of all woes of earth—the balm of a great love.

FIND MANY USES FOR PEAT

Wartorn Industry Gives Promise of Great Development in the Years to Come.

The output of peat in the United States last year far exceeded that of any preceding year and the general increase, which was stimulated by the war, was shared by practically all branches of the industry. Though extensively used as fuel in Europe and widely known in the United States as a potential source of heat and power, peat has been unable to compete with coal and many peat operators have directed their attention to the utilization of peat in agriculture with gratifying results.

Peat fertilizer was first marketed in commercial quantities in 1908, and stock-food peat in 1912, and though there is still some prejudice against its use the agricultural branch of the industry has been successful and the quantity of fertilizer and stock-food peat annually produced is increasing. Large quantities of these products were made last year, but the most striking development was the production of more peat in the New England States than has been manufactured in the entire United States in all preceding years. Almost equally striking was the widespread interest manifested in peat resources which had been generally regarded as of doubtful value.

Large quantities of peat or sphagnum moss were produced and utilized for stable litter, packing material, and surgical dressing, and several hundred thousand acres of peat soils were used for the growth of crops. The peat litter was produced by the owners of small hogs for their own use, but the packing material was sold to florists for $25 a ton. According to J. W. Hotson of the Red Cross more than half a million peat pads were prepared in this country for that organization. Most of the moss was gathered by volunteers from bogs in Washington, Oregon and Maine, and the pads were used in military hospitals at home and abroad.

TOWNS NOT FATED TO LIVE

Communities East and West, Founded in High Hopes, Are Now Practically Things Forgotten.

Western papers tell their readers that the town of Emerson, Okla., is shortly to be a thing forgotten, remarks the Hartford Courant. It was mapped out as a town site shortly after the territory was opened for settlement, and the promoters had dreams of a metropolis. In 1907 the plan was abandoned, and now the district court has been asked to vacate the land for town site purposes, when what might have been a town will become farm land.

The story of Emerson suggests what came near happening to a Connecticut town in the beginnings of the colony. Those interested in it showed rare sense in their choice of a site, and in their dreams planned not for a town but for a city. Huxpender and Cromwell were to be among its citizens; the cream of England, so its promoters hoped, were to become its citizens. Fate ordered otherwise, and the early days of this dream town are remembered now largely through Lion Gardiner's account of his struggle to hold the site against the attacks of the Indians.

Other states, notably the mining commonwealths of the West can duplicate the story from Oklahoma, but few can equal the romance of the Connecticut settlement.

Village Proud of War Record.

The little Norfolk village of Old Buckingham is proud of its war record. Its total male population between the ages of eighteen and fifty in 1914 was 254. Of that number no fewer than 170 served with the forces and 39 have given their lives for their country.

In their honor a memorial cross has been erected on the village green, an exact reproduction of the "cross of sacrifice" designed by Sir Reginald Bloomfield, R. A., for all British military cemeteries abroad. The total height from the ground line to the top of the cross is 24 feet 6 inches. It is built of stone and the names of those men of the village who fell in the war are incised in gilt on the drum below the base of the cross.

The sacrifice of Old Buckingham is typical of every British village.

Long-Lived Superstition.

We wonder whether the Turkish prisoner who foretold the end of the war by means of the shoulder blade of a sheep had ever read "Giraldus Cambrensis' Itinerary Through Wales," made in the year 1188.

If so, he would have read in Chapter XI "that these people (the Flemings of Pembrokeshire), from the inspection of the right shoulders of rams which have been stripped of their flesh, and not roasted but hotted, can discover future events, or those which have passed and remained long unknown."

A footnote tells us that "this curious superstition is still preserved in a debased form among the descendants of the Flemish population of this district, where the young women practice a sort of divination with the blade bone of a shoulder of mutton to discover who will be their sweetheart."

It is still more curious that William de Rubruquis, in the thirteenth century, found the same superstition existing among the Tartars. Now, in the twentieth century, we find it among the Turks.—London Chronicle.

The Brainy Bee.

The following incident testifies to the remarkable sagacity and efficiency of bees. A hive was being "spied upon" by a wasp. When wasps ascertain a hive is worth attacking they often succeed in ousting the bees. Every time the wasp approached the small entrance hole a bee came out. An hour later the wasp was dead.

Didn't Seem Funny to Him.

Little Augusta had never seen a bald-headed man closely until one day a friend of the family came to dinner. When he was seated at the table Augusta looked very intently at his bald head for several minutes, then whispered in mother's ear: "Mother, hasn't Mr. Reid funny, shiny, pink hair?"—Exchange.

American Independence.

Great Britain acknowledged the independence of the United States by a preliminary treaty of peace dated November 30, 1782, and by the final or definite treaty dated September 3, 1783. This treaty was ratified by the continental congress January 14, 1784.

HAD CHRONIC BRONCHITIS FOR TWENTY-SIX YEARS NOW WELL AND HAPPY THIS IS WORTH READING.

The experience of Mr. E. J. Topalik, 1438 Rose street, LaCrosse, Wisconsin, is chiefly remarkable on account of the length of time he was afflicted.

He writes: "I have been suffering with chronic bronchitis for twenty-six years and every winter I would catch cold and become so hoarse I could not speak for six or eight weeks. I could get only temporary relief."

"This winter I was taken with Grip and was in awful shape. A fellow workman advised me to take PE-RU-NA. By the time I had used three-fourths of a bottle, the hoarseness was gone, also that tired feeling. I am on my second bottle. Hereafter PE-RU-NA will be constantly in my house." It is the best medicine ever put up for the purpose.

For any disease due to catarrh or catarrhal conditions, PE-RU-NA is equally dependable. Coughs, colds, catarrh of the head, stomach trouble, constipation, rheumatism, pains in the back, side and loins, bloating, belching gas, indigestion, catarrh of the large and small intestines, are some of the troubles for which PE-RU-NA is especially recommended.

PE-RU-NA can be purchased anywhere in either tablet or liquid form.

Because of its all-around utility, the Ford One Ton Truck—with worm drive—has made itself an absolute business necessity. It's so dependable in service wherever placed, flexible and sure in control and low cost of operation and maintenance and possessing that vanadium steel strength, it has become the want in every line of business, from retail merchant

DICKENS' TWO LOVE AFFAIRS

Biographers Generally Have Overlooked Interesting Passages in the Life of the Great Novelist.

The many biographers of Charles Dickens have made little mention of his love affairs, though it is certain that the great novelist had loved passionately in his time, says a writer in London Ideas. It is only in out-of-the-way little books that one comes across such revelations as this:

"When only a boy of five years Charles Dickens had a little playmate named Lucy, a beautiful fair-haired child, whom he loved to distraction.

"It was his first love, and only a baby affection at that, but the novelist never forgot it. It is a fact that she is the heroine of at least one Dickens novel."

The original of Dora Spellow in "David Copperfield" was a later love of Dickens, and one which was unhappy for him. The lady, early in the acquaintance, encouraged his affections, but her parents objected on the score of the position he then held in life, and she inclined to their view.

She went away to Paris to study art, and completely forgot the unhappy lover. Later, when Dickens had attained fame as a novelist, she wrote to him, and after a time there was a meeting.

But the lady whom the novelist had known and loved had changed. Charles Dickens, at all times a sentimentalist, was prepared to find her grown old with him, but he did not anticipate the change in her character. And thus the attempt at reconciliation failed of its purpose.

NEW PROCESS IN SCULPTURE

Invention of Italian Scientist Will Revolutionize Work of Masters of the Chisel.

A process for producing bas-reliefs by photography is the fruit of the invention of an Italian scientist.

The basis of the invention is the property possessed by a film of chromium gelatin of swelling in proportion to the intensity of the light falling upon it. The swelling is greater with a low than with a high intensity, so that the light passing through a photographic negative produces upon a chromium gelatin plate a positive in distinct relief.

The transparency of an ordinary negative, however, is not truly proportional to the relief of the original model, but by an ingenious automatic device involving double exposure this difficulty is avoided and a negative is obtained having its lights and shades correctly graded to produce the effect of relief.

Proof That Snails Have Sense.

Those who contend that snails are without sense may be referred to the experiment of a lady who proved otherwise. First she touched the mouth of a water snail with a little piece of lettuce, producing as a result a number of rapid mouth movements. At a later stage, as she was doing this, she also touched its foot or creeping sole with a glass rod. Finally she so accustomed the snail to associate the touch of the glass rod with the coming of food that its mouth would begin to move hungrily at the pressure of the rod on its foot, even when no food was offered.

The effect of the training, we are told, lasted for 96 hours after it had ceased. Then, like a human being might, the snail began to sulk, and responded no further.

At a Disadvantage.

There had been unpleasant words before between the dramatist and a leading comedian as to the latter's habit of adding impromptu jokes to his part. "There's no need for you to gag," said the dramatist angrily, after the comedian had done it again. "Your part as written is quite funny enough. All you've got to do is to say the words and wait for the audience to laugh." The comedian did not look convinced. "That's all right for you," he grumbled. "You live in town and can afford the time. But don't forget I have to catch the midnight train to my place in the suburbs, and I can't wait till the audience laughs!"

Be Careful What You Write.

Never get angry on paper. The written word can be used effectually against you long after the spoken word is forgotten, and might place you in a dangerous or embarrassing position in a court of law. Write only with a cool head and a steady hand, never on the impulse of the moment or when under pressure. Our grandmother used to caution us "to sleep on our wrath," and surely that indeed is good counsel, for a night's rest and time to reflect calmly may change the point of view and enable one to form a cool, levelheaded judgment.

Original Personality.

The approach to the comprehension of any original personality in art or in philosophy is slow but full of fascination. One first impulse, I have usually found, is one of tedious indifference followed by rejection, probably accompanied with repugnance. In this sphere the door which opens at a touch may only lead into a hovel. The portal to a glorious temple may be through a dark and dreary narthex, to be traversed painfully, it may be on one's knees, a passage only illuminated in its last stages by exhilarating bursts of light as the door ahead momentarily swings open.—Havelock Ellis.

These Tires Are a Revelation

The Brunswick is frankly a combination of the best in tire building.

There is one tread that's supreme beyond question. And that is now on Brunswicks.

There is one side-wall construction, which, by every test, holds the summit place for endurance. And that one is adopted for Brunswicks.

Fabrics differ—up to 30 per cent—in their strength tests. On Brunswicks the maximum long-fiber is the standard.

There are certain additions, each one expensive, which add vastly to tire mileage. The Brunswick embodies all these extras.

There are no patents, no secret formulas to prevent any maker from building the best. It is simply a question of knowledge and skill—cost plus care.

Brunswick standards are known the world over. The very name certifies an extraordinary tire. Yet Brunswicks cost no more than like-type tires.

Buy ONE Brunswick. It will prove that a better tire cannot be bought, regardless of price.

HEAVY HOG LOSS CAN BE LARGELY AVOIDED

Greater Care Should Be Used in Shipping Live Animals.

Cars Ought to Be Thoroughly Cleaned Before Loading and Not Overcrowded—Spraying While in Transit is Helpful.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

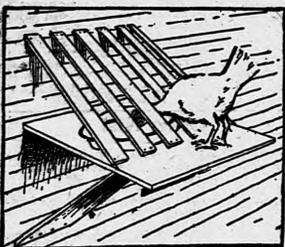

Last May 651 hogs, weighing approximately 157,000 pounds, were unloaded dead, or died in the stockyards at the South St. Paul market. Of this number, 359 hogs, weighing approximately 102,000 pounds, died in transit or in yards during the last six days of the month. This was the week of the first real warm weather, and as is usually the case during the first hot spell in the summer season, the loss of hogs in transit was extremely heavy. The difference in price between dead or live hogs during this week was approximately 18 cents a pound, which would mean a total loss of about $18,900. This loss might have been largely avoided if the shippers had taken proper care in loading, seeing that all cars were properly cleaned before loading, and that cars were not loaded as heavily as is the custom in cooler weather. If these hogs had been loaded in clean cars the losses could have been further decreased by having them sprayed often in transit by the carrier, especially upon arrival at transfer points, and also upon delivery to the terminal. One of the largest buyers of hogs at the South St. Paul market, who reships to other markets for slaughter, states that the losses of his firm during the last week in May were no heavier than usual, but that they were extremely careful to have their cars thoroughly cleaned and sanded before loading, in addition to using lighter than usual and taking the adequate precaution of requesting the railroad officials to issue instructions to have the hogs sprayed as often as possible in transit.

WATER HELPS LAYING FOWLS

Plentiful Supply Should Always Be Available for Hens—Stock-Feed-Rack Idea Is Good.

A plentiful supply of clean, fresh water must always be available to hens. The fowls drink freely, especially when laying heavily, and should not be denied of such a necessary and cheap material as water. The water pan or dish should be kept clean.

The stock-feed-rack idea has been successfully applied to the watering of poultry. One successful poultry raiser uses a contrivance such as the one illustrated on this page, the chickens being forced to hop upon an elevated platform in order to reach the water, and being prevented from standing on the edge of the dish or contaminating the water, because of the necessity of reaching between the slats to drink.

REASONS FOR FALL PLOWING

Longer Period Given for Decomposition of Stubble and Other Pieces of Vegetable Matter.

Fall plowing is a bank balance booster because it returns the best crops. It does this for several reasons, says Andrew Boss, vice director of the Minnesota experiment station, University farm, St. Paul:

It gives a longer period for the decomposition of the stubble and other particles of vegetable matter turned under in plowing.

It opens the soil to the fall rains. It helps to dispose of weeds which interfere with growth of crops.

It lessens the amount of spring work and thereby allows the prompt sowing of the crops in the spring.

It enables one to avoid crowding at any time, and, therefore, is beneficial both to men and horses.

GIVE HARNESS PROPER CARE

First Wash With Warm Water and Soap, and While Still Moist Oil It Thoroughly.

To oil harness correctly, first wash the harness thoroughly with warm water and soap. Then hang the harness up to dry. Do not let it get dry, but when it is still moist, rub it thoroughly with some animal or vegetable oil. Pure neats-foot oil is the best oil known. This renews the softness of the leather and its flexibility. Do not use mineral oils on harness, for it has a destructive effect, say the farm engineering authorities at Iowa State college who make the foregoing recommendations.

BETTER LIVE STOCK CRUSADE

Nation-wide Campaign to Eliminate Scrub Sires From Breeding—Emblem Given Owner.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)
"Better Sires—Better Stock." This is the slogan of a national better-live-stock crusade, to get actively in motion October 1, that is announced by the United States department of agriculture, working in cooperation with the state agricultural colleges and other agencies interested in live-stock improvement. The cam-ampaign looks forward to the future food needs of this country's increasing population and results from long and careful observation of the live-stock industry in this country, and was planned after extensive consultation with specialists and breeders. The plan is to hasten the replacement of the multitude of scrub domestic animals in the United States with good purebred or high-grade stock, and also to improve the quality of purebreds themselves. The goal in view is greater efficiency in production.

The campaign will be the first organized crusade in a large country to improve all live stock simultaneously. It will interfere in no way with any work in live-stock improvement now being conducted, but makes all the work more definite and effective by providing official recognition for progressive breeders.

The campaign will be supervised from the department of agriculture in Washington, and in each state by the state agricultural college. County agents and other field workers of the

KEEP DAIRY UTENSILS CLEAN

This Precaution Should Be Observed Throughout Year, but Especially in Warm Weather.

Utensils that come in contact with milk or cream must be kept perfectly clean. This precaution should be observed throughout the year, but especially during the warm weather, says the University of Missouri College of Agriculture. Wash them by first rinsing in cold water and then by using hot water and a brush. Washing powder suitable for use in the dairy should contain no grease. Ordinary sal-soda used in small amounts is a good dairy cleanser. After washing the utensils with hot water, rinse thoroughly with boiling water and place them where they will come in contact with the direct rays of the sun. This place should be free from flies.

In washing the large milk cans, be sure that the inside of the shoulder of the can is rubbed with the brush, as this is the most difficult part to clean.

LESSEN DANGER FROM FEVER

Diversity of Opinion on Advisability of Removing All Milk From Cow's Udder.

Opinion is not unanimous on the advisability of removing all the milk from the udder after the calf has drawn its first meal. It is urged by those who oppose the complete emptying of the bag that only a part should be removed. The belief is that as nature's plan is only to take a little away there is less danger from milk fever than when the bag is milked clean.

TUESDAY MORNING, NOV. 11, 1919

Some people kick because the church services aren't made of a more popular character, while others want the choirs to put in jazz instruments.

Some people who are operating high powered automobiles in the streets, would have difficulty in driving a baby carriage safely along a sidewalk.

At prices to be charged this year the Thanksgiving turkey in the majority of homes will be a well seasoned back yard hen of ripe age and experience.

The fact that bulletins on the President's condition have been discontinued does not prove that the public knows much less about it than they did before.

About now the boy who didn't know it was loaded turns up, but it would relieve much anxiety if he would point the gun at himself instead of at other people.

Some people here in Princess Anne who condemn the newspapers for printing so much silly personal gossip are about the same ones who find fault that they are never mentioned.

The senators who are delaying a final vote on the peace treaty must be related to the firemen who wouldn't go out with their apparatus to the fire because they were busy painting it.

No particular sympathy is manifested by the public when a United States senator has to consult a specialist on account of throat trouble. And there won't be any great amount of weeping among the public when a coal striker has to call in a doctor on account of his hard colds.

November brings Thanksgiving, the time of family reunions and the giving of thanks to God for all the blessings and mercies of the year. This year Thanksgiving will have a double significance, since it has brought a year's peace. It falls on the last Thursday in November, and is proclaimed by the President, and in turn by the Governor of the state as a day set apart for giving thanks.

THE NEXT SUGAR CROP
The shortage of sugar will have to be endured until the next crop comes in. The main thing now is to see that the scant supply is fairly distributed and that the United States gets its share of the next crop. This country will need more sugar than formerly.

There is more interest in preserving foods and to save supplies that go to waste a great deal of sugar is needed. Then the people who used to resort to the liquor saloons are now patronizing soft drink and ice cream places. This is a natural substitute. It will make the change to a dry nation easier if sweets are liberally supplied.

The United States should not be hogish about sugar. But if the people of Europe will go to work they should be able to produce most of their own sugar supply from their beet farms, leaving most of the Cuban crop for the United States.

SAVING THE RESULTS OF WAR
America and her allies won the war, but can they preserve what they won? Over in Europe, Germany is feeling her way to see how much the allied powers will stand. She is attempting to terrorize the Poles of Silesia, so that they will submit to vote for reunion with Germany. Her troops still remain in the Baltic provinces, which she seeks to dominate. She is making her plans to control Russia.

In this country insidious propaganda is heard everywhere to create hostility against all the allies with whom the United States was recently associated. Many people keep insisting that Germany was treated too harshly in the peace treaty. In so far as those people are sincere, they need to go over and take a look at the French and Belgian devastated districts. Let them see tens of thousands of fruit trees deliberately sawed off by the Huns. Let them look at mines ruined for a dozen years by blowing up bombs in their galleries and by letting rivers into them.

Let them go into the factories which were handicapped for years by stealing their machinery. Let them look at the dwellings of millions of people systematically leveled to the ground. Let them see with their own eyes how those friends incarnate tried to put France and Belgium out of business for a generation.

Then let them go into Germany and see their comfortable and untouched cities and their factories all ready to go in with a ten years start over the ruined industrial districts of France and Belgium. After they get through ask them if Germany got enough?

The powers recently associated to fight Germany must stand together to preserve the results of this war and must not permit any trifling. Otherwise it will have to be fought over again.

THE SELFISHNESS OF CLASSES
Anyone who looks over newspaper and other expressions of opinion from class and trade sources, must be impressed by the spirit of selfishness commonly displayed. The organs of the capitalists seem anxious only to have the rights of property preserved. The organs of labor are clamoring for advantages for the unions, regardless of other elements. Farm papers can see only the interests of the farmer. Trade journals seem to consider solely the welfare of one trade.

Everyone must remember that the community at large has its interest, far greater than that of any single class. Any proposition to appeal to the community at large must seem fair to all elements. A great many of the propositions put forward by these various elements seem very unfair. The dispassionate reader is impressed by their narrowness, their inability to see more than one point of view.

There is altogether too much class dictation. At some periods the capitalists appear the worst dictators and crush the elements of manual labor into the dust with heartless selfishness. At other times labor appears the most ruthless, and highly organized groups threaten the community with paralysis of industry and starvation unless their demands are acceded to. At other times both these two elements get together and by their power of organization squeeze the general public.

The prevalence in the world of narrowness and selfishness accounts for most of the social difficulties now existing. To attain its ends, any element must give the general public an impression of reasonableness and consideration of all interests. The man who can't attain this point of view is not fitted for any form of leadership. He does his cause more harm than good.

Only A Cold
Are you ill? Is often answered—"Oh! it's only a cold," as if a cold was a matter of little consequence, but people are beginning to learn that a common cold is a matter not to be trifled with, that some of the most serious diseases start with a cold. As soon as the first indication of a cold appears take Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. Remember that the sooner you get rid of your cold the less the danger, and this remedy will help you to throw it off.

Two Opposite Verdicts
Ohio and New Jersey present two diametrically opposing verdicts. The former increases its dry majority. In New Jersey the Democratic candidate, who promised to make the State as wet as the Atlantic Ocean, defeated his Republican competitor, who adopted an attitude of resignation to the decrees of Providence. It is to be observed, too, that wet majorities were generally cast in the cities and dry majorities in rural districts.

The result is puzzling to the philosopher of morals, the student of society. Does it prove that the people of Ohio are more virtuous and wiser than the people of New Jersey? Does it prove that a city man is apt to be more immoral and ungodly than a country man? Or does it prove that the rural voter is more easily fooled than the sophisticated city man by appeals to his higher nature? Can it mean that the country voter is better stocked up than his city brother, and that home brew and hard cider look as good to him as the old-time saloon to the townsmen?

We decline to express an opinion. We simply record the facts. Any interpretations may be put upon them that pleases the interpreter. Yet it will not be a rash prophecy to predict that there may still be "cakes and ale" to be had fifty years hence in many convenient, though unadvertised, resorts. So persistent is old Adam in human nature, so hard to kill is the scotch serpent of the still.—Baltimore Sun.

After drinking half of one per cent. beer many people are convinced that the water supply in this country is very ample.

A Good Cough Medicine For Children
Mrs. J. W. Phillips, Redon, Georgia, phoned to J. M. Floyd, the merchant there, for a bottle of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy and said she had bought a bottle of it at his store recently and that it was doing her children so much good that she wanted to keep up her treatment. You will find nothing better for coughs and colds in children or for yourself. It keeps the cough loose, expectation easy and soon frees the system from the cold.

Suit On Dry Bill Filed

The suit of the Maryland Distilling Company for an injunction requiring Joshua W. Miles, Collector of Internal Revenue, to accept the tax and release from bond for sale for beverage purposes 100 barrels of rye whisky was filed in United States Court last week.

It will be argued in New York, as has been stated, before Judge Rose, who has gone to that city to assist the Federal judges there. The argument probably will take place this week, and United States District Attorney Dennis may go to New York to assist in the trial.

The suit was brought upon the theory that the war with Germany is ended and that the Wartime Prohibition law no longer is in force. If this contention is sustained by the courts it will operate to lift the ban which has been on the sale of intoxicating liquors by saloonkeepers and others since July 1st last. This would continue until constitutional prohibition goes into effect next January.

Farmers To Obtain Lime

A communication has been received by County Agent C. Z. Keller from a representative of the Ordinance Department relative to government lime at Hopewell, Virginia. The lime is in bulk and has been stored under waterproof storage, but a large quantity of the lime must now be air-slacked as it has been in storage a considerable time.

The sample tested by the State Chemist gave 81.7% calcium oxide and 1% magnesia. The superiority of this lime is at once apparent over ordinary commercial grades for agriculture purpose, such grades having approximately 56% calcium oxide and 25% magnesia.

This is an opportunity for farmers to obtain lime at approximately what it will cost the Government to load and handle the proposition. The price is $5.50 per ton f.o.b. cars Hopewell, delivered to Norfolk & Western Railway, minimum car 35 tons, or $6.50 per ton f. o. b. barge at Norfolk & Western wharf, City Point, James River. The above quotations are for acceptance within thirty days.

Farmers of this county who are interested in obtaining lime should get in touch with County Agent C. Z. Keller.

Mr. James D. Carrow, of Princes Point, Va., spent the week end with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. H. K. Carrow.

CAN EASILY REDUCE HIGH-LIVING COSTS

Prices Will Come Down When Everyone Puts Shoulder to Wheel and Increases Volume of Production.

"Past history has proved quite conclusively that you can no more legislate the cost of living up and down than you can stop the tide by building a sea wall," says Roger W. Babson, national expert in finance. "The basic economic law of supply and demand always has and always will determine prices," he declares, "in spite of artificial restrictions which may seem to interfere temporarily."

"When demand exceeds supply, prices are bound to rise. With three hungry men with one loaf of bread, out one thing can happen. When supply exceeds demand the reverse is true. Three loaves of bread to one man bring prices tumbling down."

"The real cause for the present high level prices is apparent when you realize that the United States is exporting at present twice the foodstuffs that it exported a year ago, and three to four times the amount exported in normal years. We are feeding Europe, what's more we must continue to feed Europe until it gets back on its own feet again."

"Their crop of 1919 will help some, but we must wait until the harvest of 1920 before they are wholly independent of this country. If the general public can be educated to an appreciation of the situation as it is, and can be made to see that the well-being of every one of us depends upon every man producing as he has never produced before, supply can be increased to meet and exceed this unprecedented demand and we shall weather the storm with everybody ahead. . . ."

"Under the circumstances, it is more of a religious question than an economic one. Maximum production on the part of every individual must be made a moral issue. . . . Decreased demand means depression, and employment and hard times for everybody. Increased production will meet the situation and solve the problem."

"But that can only be accomplished by every man putting his shoulder to the wheel, and producing as he never produced before. . . . When the majority of the people were made to feel that slavery was wrong, it was abolished. When the majority of the people were made to feel that drinking was wrong and were ashamed to be seen going into a saloon, we got prohibition."

"In the same way, when the people began to look down on the man who is not a producer, or who curtails his production, we shall strike at the tap root of the cost of living problem. We must go on a 'producing campaign'."

STAMPS FOLLOWING FLAG AROUND WORLD

Thrill Campaign Goes On Wherever Old Glory Waves—Cheering News Comes From Faraway Constantinople.

Along with the men of the Navy, the War Savings Stamp is following the flag round the world. In the Mediterranean squadron, the government savings securities are as much a part of the battleships and cruisers that are aiding in straightening out the tangled affairs of Asia Minor as the ammunition hoists.

For American thrift has not stopped at home. The savings campaign organized by the Savings Division of the Treasury Department is being carried out by both officers and men through War Savings Societies, Thrift Stamps, War Savings Stamps and Treasury Savings Certificates.

A letter just received by the Savings Division from Captain David F. Boyd, commanding U. S. S. Olympia at Constantinople brings the information that the thrift campaign on that vessel has been placed in charge of Lieutenant H. K. Koebig. Captain Boyd gave assurance of the co-operation of himself and his men in the work.

PAID FOR FUNERAL

War Savings Stamps are as inevitable as death and taxes, and they benefit the dead as well as the living.

Recently John Kirkiras died in Dayton, Ohio. He left no relatives and two who sought to give him a proper burial were confronted with difficulty in financing the funeral. Kirkiras had died leaving no ready cash, and the solicitous friends were afraid that public charity would have to be charged with the burial expenses.

They discovered, however, that before he died the man had invested in about $100 of War Savings Stamps. A trip to the Dayton postoffice and the observance of the necessary formalities enabled them to pay the undertaker's bill.

THE SOBERING BUNDLE

When you have a bunch of boodles in the bank just up the pike, you'll stand for Yankee Doodle, law and order and the like. Then no creed of devastation, such as Russian outlaws shriek, will receive your confirmation—you'll denounce it like a streak. When a man is broke and busted, with no package laid away, he is ever more disgusted with the laws we all obey. He would see our courts all leveled, and the judges on the rack, and the plutocrats bedeviled till they gave up all their stack. He would see all things spoiled, justice he would render mute; then his chances would be splendid to accumulate some loot. I have seen some agitators stirring up the people's souls, and they all wore cast-off gaiters and their pants were full of holes. And they said their chains were clanking as they damned the plutocrat; if they'd only do some banking they would soon get over that. I have heard the spiers thrifless putting up their weary song; I have heard the weak and shiftless saying everything is wrong. But the man who saves his money thinks the Russian creed absurd and he thinks it beastly funny that so many yawps are heard.

THRILL IN SWOOP OF HAWK

Pity for the Victim Cannot Altogether Overcome Admiration for Bird of Prey.

Although the hawk undoubtedly has a right to his dinner, there is frequently little sympathy shown for the bird of prey, but much for the victim that furnishes forth the feast.

It is a thrilling sight to see a fish-hawk, sailing a hundred feet or more above a rapidly flowing stream, suddenly bring his wings nearly together above his back and fall like a plummet to the water below. The action is rapid, the wings are in motion by the time the water is reached, and out of the spray emerges the hawk with a fine fish in his talons, to be borne away to the accompaniment of flashing drops thrown from the struggling fish.

One day on a suburban lawn a mother oriole had coaxed a youngster out of the pendent nest, hung on the extreme end of a branch where no enemy could find entrance. Just as the little one was making the acquaintance of all outdoors, a sharp-eyed hawk saw the newcomer, and in an instant the oriole was taking his first and last flight in the possession of the hawk, while the mother flew alongside pouring out her heart in rage and pain. Thus they passed out of sight.

The strength of the hawk's foot is remarkable. Some years ago a hunter shot a hen hawk of large size, breaking a wing. Down came the hawk and the hunter advanced to secure the chicken thief. The wounded bird made no attempt to run, but faced his foe. When a few feet only separated them he jumped and attempted to fasten his talons in the hunter's foot. A pair of heavy hunting boots were nearly cut through as the sharp claws slipped off the instep. Had the hawk got a fair hold the foot would have been pierced. —Exchange.

HAD ITS ORIGIN IN PERSIA

Word "Check" Can Be Traced to Term Employed in the Ancient Game of Chess.

The historical adventures of the word "check" give an interesting example of how a common term has gained its present meaning.

It comes originally from Persia, and is associated with the game of chess. A shah is a Persian king, and centuries ago the word shah, or something like it, was used to designate an attack upon the king in chess. Under the influence of the medieval Latinist the word underwent a curious change to "accusus" and later passed into old French as "eschec" or "eschac." From the French it was but a step through the Norman tongue into English as "check" or "cheque."

After its form was established the meaning of the word began to extend from a formidable move in a game of chess to any stoppage or rebuff of something in progress, and gradually it came to designate anything which controlled or restrained anything else, and so came to mean a token or ticket. In the early days of "drawn notes," or drafts, the counterfoil or stub in the book was called a "check." About the beginning of the nineteenth century the word became synonymous with draft, and some forty years ago was established as the statutory definition for a bill of exchange, drawn on a banker, payable on demand.

Red Sails.

Violet seas under deep skies and dotted on the horizon from Quiberon to Belle Isle the red sails of the Brittany fishing boats. Along this stretch of the Atlantic coast red sails have been known immemorially. They existed in Caesar's time. In the "Commentaries" occurs the remark that the people of the coast made their sails of tanned skins sewn together. Either they had no flax or did not understand its use, but the more likely reason in Caesar's opinion was that they knew no ordinary sail would stand against the ocean winds, owing to the great weight of their boats. In time the Breton fisherman exchanged his heavy boat for a lighter one and then he hoisted the canvas sail. Different in texture to when Caesar conquered Gaul, the sails of the Finistere seas are of the same tawny hue. The Breton is the most conservative being in the world. The color of the sails of his forefathers must be the color of his sails, and of those of his son. On this point nobody will be found to disagree with him.

Primitive Ferries.

There are rivers in India which are subject to sudden and heavy floods, and over these it is necessary to maintain a ferryboat service. In some cases the method of conveying a person across the river has remained the same for several centuries, as in the following case. A cord having been fastened to a large, elongated gourd, and a smaller gourd being also tied to it, the native gets astride, and, laying his breast upon the larger gourd, paddles himself across with his hands and feet. Women, too, avail themselves of this singular contrivance, under the escort of a ferryman, who, similarly mounted, takes his charge in tow, carries her basket, with perhaps a child in it, on his head, and conveys them safely across.

The Way It Looked to Benham. Mrs. Benham—The paper tells of a man who went crazy on his wedding day. Benham—He must have been crazy before that; otherwise he wouldn't have had any wedding day.

Only Real Peace.
No peace was ever won from fate by subterfuge or argument; no peace is ever in store for any of us but that which we shall win by victory over shame or sin—victory over the sin that oppresses, as well as over that which corrupts.—Ruskin.

Thought She Was Serving.
We took our 3-year-old son to a cafeteria for supper the other evening and when he saw me going around with the tray he said out loud: "Mamma, are you working here now?" —Exchange.

Not Right Kind of Laughter.
One is tempted sometimes to laugh at another's mishap or disappointment, but the laughter that leaves a sting in someone's heart is not the sort of laughter that helps anyone.

Safe to Be Poor.
Again it is proved that age is no guaranty against breach of promise suits. Poverty seems to be the only bar that is absolutely certain.—Kansas City Star.

Women can become a Power in Politics only by neglecting more important work. INOCULATE SOIL TO AID ALFALFA Addition of Bacteria to Promote Favorable Conditions Is Needed in Eastern States.

NOT NEEDED IN SOME PARTS

Farmer Ordinarily Secures Material From an Old Sweet or Bur Clover Field—Several Machines Useful in Applying.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

Alfalfa failures, especially in the eastern parts of the country, result in many instances from the lack of or improper inoculation—the addition of enough bacteria to the soil to promote conditions favorable for the growth of the crop. Despite the popular conception that inoculation is necessary in all parts of the country, specialists report that throughout the alfalfa belt proper, which includes Montana, Wyoming, California, Colorado, Idaho, Nebraska, Kansas, Oklahoma, Arizona, New Mexico, and nearly all of Texas, it is not necessary to inoculate for alfalfa.

In certain other sections of the country there are sufficient alfalfa or allied leguminous organisms in the soil to make a profitable growth of alfalfa possible. Where such crops as white or yellow sweet clover, California bur clover, southern bur clover, and yellow trefoil grow, it is unnecessary to inoculate for alfalfa.

Soil Should Be Neutral.

The soil should be neutral in order that the alfalfa bacteria may thrive, and unless the soil conditions are generally good it is impossible to grow alfalfa on a commercial scale.

Quite commonly the farmer secures his inoculation material from an old sweet clover or bur clover field, or else from an old alfalfa sod, applying the inoculated soil on a cloudy day or during the evening in order that the alfalfa bacteria may not be injured by the bright sunlight. Investigations have shown, however, that there is less danger of permanently injuring the alfalfa bacteria by sunlight than was formerly supposed, and although it is not advisable to court trouble by needlessly exposing inoculation material, this dirt, if necessary, can bear sunlight for several hours without severe injury.

Nodules Are Essential.

It is essential that the soil, if taken from old alfalfa fields, should be from those plots where the alfalfa plants show numerous nodules upon their roots. Such soil, well dried, pulverized, and sifted through a window screen, is best applied to the new field through the fertilizer attachment of a grain drill, by the use of a lime spreader followed by a smoothing harrow, or by distributing it with the aid of an end gate sower attached to a wagon box. Two hundred pounds or more of sifted field soil will be sufficient for an acre. It is necessary in obtaining the material to remove from the surface 2 or 3 inches of soil and to obtain the inoculating material from the underlying 6 or 7 inches. Broadcasting the soil by hand requires a larger quantity and is best done in the early morning, late evening, or on cloudy days in order to minimize the damage effected by the sun's rays.

The glue method of inoculation was widely practiced several years ago in Illinois. It consists of moistening the alfalfa seed with ordinary furniture glue and then sprinkling inoculated soil over it so that the soil will adhere to the seed and carry the bacteria on to the new field. Specifically, this method consists in dissolving two handfuls of glue for every gallon of boiling water and then allowing the solution to cool. Then the seed should be placed in a washtub and enough of the solution sprinkled over the seed to moisten it, but not enough to wet the seed, one quart to the bushel usually being adequate. The soil from the inoculated field should be dried in the shade, pulverized into a fine dust and scattered uniformly over the seed, from one-half to one gallon of dirt being sufficient for each bushel of seed.

TAKES NO ACCOUNT OF TIME

Australian "Sundowner" is a Carefree Wanderer Along the Dainty River Roads of Australia.

And there, a lone pathetic figure on the river road of the Australian bush, is the swagman, the sundowner—thus picturesquely named because of his habit of arriving at a homestead exactly as the sun goes down, and so insuring that he will be offered rations and a place to camp should he desire it. There he stumbles in the crossing, wheel tracks, Australia's tramp and wanderer, with an individuality of his own which marks him out from all the wayfarers of the world.

The gray dust of the plains is on his bronzed and bearded face, on his simple dress of Crimean shirt and moleskin trousers, on his rough unblackened boots, on his blanket bundle strapped across his shoulders, on his swinging billy can and dangling ration bags. He carries no staff or stick, but instead a light switch, broken from a wilga tree or buddah bush, with which to brush away the myriad persistent flies which follow him in a dancing cloud.

At his heels is a dog which may be the veriest mongrel, or may be a champion sheep dog of purest pedigree and worth anything up to $250. His day's march may be two miles or twenty, according to the goal which he has set himself to reach as the sun goes down. Sometimes he will camp for a day or a week or a month in a bend of the river. Time is of no account to the sundowner on the river road.—Will H. Ogilvie in the King's Highway.

WORDS TOO OFTEN CONFUSED

Excellent Point Made in Emphasis of Difference Between "Training" and "Education."

The difference between training and education was well expressed by Dr. C. Stuart Gager in his address to the graduating class of the school of horticulture for women, when he said:

"Cloth would be spun on hand loom today had no other factor been introduced into spinning than the instruction of daughters by mothers. This kind of instruction does not make for progress; it can never convert a trade into a profession. The spinning jenny was not invented by a spinner, nor the wireless telegraph by a telegraph operator, nor the science of agronomy by practical farmers.

"Progress depends upon a fullness of preparation exceeding the limits of anticipated requirement in practice. That is why I have never liked the phrase 'teachers' training class.' Horses may be trained, and a well-trained horse may be depended on to do accurately and promptly the tricks that are taught him. But place him in a new situation or confront him with a new problem or an old one somewhat altered—and you may then learn clearly and easily the difference between training and education."—Montreal Herald.

Life Without Microbes.

Microbes are not indispensable to all life if they are indispensable to any. The question has been definitely settled, it is claimed by some authorities.

A cage completely sterilized at 90 degrees was made and the openings of the cage closely stopped with cotton and protected from the outside by a hermetically closed metallic chamber. Such manipulations as were necessary in opening the cage were made by hands guarded by aseptic rubber cloth. Into such sterilized cage three hens' eggs were placed after having been externally sterilized. The cage was fitted with a glass pavilion or chicken run, where the chickens could develop during their six weeks' sojourn in the cage. In the cage were sterilized air, pure water, sterilized sand and sterilized feed.

The experiments showed that life does not depend upon microbes, but that the vital work of the organism is easy and natural when everything is sterilized.

Despised Wares.

Seeing that I cannot choose any subject of great utility or pleasure, because my predecessors have already taken as their own all useful and necessary themes, I will do like one who, because of his poverty, is the last to arrive at the fair, and not being able otherwise to provide himself, chooses all the things which others have already looked over and not taken, but refused as being of little value. With these despised and rejected wares—the leavings of many buyers—I will load my course, distributing, not, indeed, amid the great cities, but among the mean hamlets, and taking such rewards as befits the things I offer.—Leonardo da Vinci.

Date Tree Highly Prized.

To the Arab the date tree is the perfection of beauty and utility. Every part of this tree has its use to him. The pistils of the date blossom contain a fine curly fiber, which is beaten out and used in all eastern baths as a sponge for soaping the body. At the extremity of the trunk is a terminal bud containing a white substance resembling an almond in consistency and taste, but a hundred times as large. This is a great table delicacy. There are said to be more than 100 varieties of date palm, all distinguished by their fruit, and the Arabs say that a good housewife can furnish her husband with a dish of dates, differently prepared every day for a month.

THE MOST DANGEROUS DISEASE

No organ of the human body is so important to health and long life as the kidneys. When they show up and commence to fail, the result is—look out! Beware of what the trouble is—without delay. Whenever you feel nervous, weak, dizzy, suffer from sleeplessness, or have pains in the back—soak up at once. Your kidneys need help. These are signs to warn you that your kidneys are not performing their functions properly. They are only half doing their work and are allowing impurities to accumulate and be converted into uric acid and other poisons, which are causing you distress and will destroy you unless they are driven from your system.

MIXED WHOLESALE AND RETAIL MARKETS TO SOLVE PROBLEM OF COST OF LIVING

Farmers' Public Markets Shaped by Local Needs.
(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

In attacking the cost of living problem through local public markets, communities might well give heed to definite underlying principles that are known to apply to such marketing situations. Unless one is familiar with the flow of farm produce from the country into the market basket the distinction between "farmers' retail market" and "farmers' wholesale market" is not drawn, but both may be called a "farmers' market" and pictured as one and the same in their operation and function.

Some communities have tried to change farmers' wholesale markets into retail markets, where the housewife could fill her market basket with purchases made direct from farmers—always at a saving. These attempts have usually resulted in failure and a deal of friction between the public, the farmers and officials because, according to city marketing men of the bureau of markets, United States department of agriculture, the farmers' wholesale market is a very different institution from a farmers' retail market.

Wholesale Market.
A farmers' wholesale market draws to it producers who specialize in truck crops and fruits, and who count on hauling corn, potatoes, tomatoes, apples, strawberries or other crops in large quantities. They desire quick sales in large lots after they reach the market so they can return to their farms and the work of production. Time to such growers is more valuable than the difference between what they get in wholesale quantities for their products and what they might realize by lingering long enough to retail their load in small lots at higher than wholesale prices.

Retail Market.
Retail farmers' markets, on the other hand, attract a group of producers who raise a small amount of fruit or vegetables as a side line, and whose other crops do not demand as close attention as those of the truck raiser. Often a farmer who raises only a few vegetables can send them to a retail farmers' market in mixed lots, by a member of his family, who is able to remain away from the farm long enough to dispose of these products to housewives carrying market baskets.

Mixed Markets.
The retail farmers' market depends as much for its success upon location as on any other factor. It must be convenient for the housewife, while a wholesale farmers' market need not be as centrally located, because dealers have wagons or trucks with which to gather their supplies. Farmers' wholesale markets are an early morning institution, starting business at day-break or even before, while a farmers' retail market starts later and runs for a longer time. This, of course, may make possible a mixed retail and wholesale farmers' market; but in organizing such a market it is likely that it will appeal to different groups of farmers, and that it will be necessary to regulate the hours so there will be no conflict between wholesale and retail business among the wagons or sheds.

Too Much Expected.
Although retail farmers' markets have been urged in many communities as a means of reducing the cost of living, too much is often expected of them, according to men who have studied the problem, and who point out that all locally raised produce, especially the more staple crops, such as potatoes, cabbage, onions and apples, represent but a small amount of the total of such products consumed by city dwellers, the bulk of which is shipped in from more distant sections. Retail farmers' markets do serve as an outlet for a certain amount of local produce, varying with localities, that might otherwise be left on the farm, or not produced by the farmer who depended upon other sources of income than fruits and vegetables.

Any community contemplating the establishment of a farmers' retail market should first make sure that there

Two Kinds of Markets.

Different types of farmers' markets attract different groups of farmers.

The truck grower likes to haul full loads and make quick sales in large lots—his time is more valuable on his farm than in acting as his own salesman in disposing of his load in small quantities to the consumer.

Retail farmers' markets appeal to farmers who raise fruit and vegetables only as a side line—they, or members of their families, often can spare the time it takes to sell small lots direct to the housewife.

The location of the farmers' retail market is important. It must be in a place easily reached by large numbers of consumers.

Mixed wholesale and retail markets may prove unsatisfactory unless hours for selling are regulated so that there will be no conflict, and different groups of producers will be encouraged to come in at different times, according to whether they sell in large or small lots.

are in that community enough farmers who are willing to haul their produce to market and dispose of it in small quantities direct to the consumer.

Co-operative Shipping Clubs.

Simplicity of organization and the fact that no capital is required make the co-operative shipping of live stock peculiarly adapted to communities in which more complex forms of co-operation would be impracticable. Although not necessarily feasible in all sections, especially those in which live stock generally is marketed in carload lots, or where there is insufficient stock suitable for shipment to market, or where the central markets are not readily accessible, nevertheless there are many communities in various parts of the country which would be greatly benefited by such associations.

Wherever these associations have been formed an appreciable saving to the farmer has resulted. The profit that formerly went to the local shipper now goes to the farmer, and he has the satisfaction of knowing that he will receive for his stock the actual market price, less the cost of marketing. Moreover, the activities of a competent manager and the influence of a successful association make for a general improvement in methods of marketing live stock and a better knowledge of market prices and conditions by farmers in the entire community. The beneficial influence thus exerted is of no less importance than the actual saving to members on the shipments handled by the association.

Helter-Skelter Marketing.

In many cases animals are killed and offered for sale regardless of market conditions. Frequently advantage is taken of cool weather to kill and dispose of hogs, with the result that the dressed carcasses must be sold on a glutted market, and being a perishable product, must be disposed of at any price obtainable. An example, which is only one of many, was observed at a small town in Louisiana during the winter of 1915-16, where each time the weather became cooler eight or ten dressed hogs were offered for sale when there was a demand for one or two. Such a method is, of course, most unprofitable to the farmer. A number of instances have occurred in southern cities where dressed beef, ordinarily valued at 7 to 8 cents a pound, was sold by farmers for 3 to 4 cents, and dressed hogs, valued under ordinary conditions at 8 to 10 cents a pound, sold for 2 to 3 cents, because of a temporary oversupply of fresh meats in these towns. The farmers could have avoided these losses by finding a market for their meat before slaughtering, by delaying slaughtering until market conditions were improved, or by selling the animals alive on a good market.

Nation-wide Campaign By P. E. Church

With the close of the Triennial General Convention of the Protestant Episcopal Church, which was held in Detroit, widespread interest in the nation-wide campaign of the denomination, which has been steadily fostered for weeks, will find its climax in the intensive work of the campaign now about to start. The campaign will continue through the second week of December.

Perhaps never before in the history of the church have arrangements been made for so comprehensive an assemblage of all its facilities as at present. The campaign will enlist the active cooperation of every agency and every worker connected with the church, and will extend to every member of the denomination, from the largest city congregations to the smallest rural communities.

Primarily, the campaign is of a spiritual nature. Figures have been prepared showing the deplorable conditions existing in many parts of the world and the things which might be done to alleviate them by the church if she had workers enough to accomplish the needed work. Naturally, since without money all the workers to be obtained would find themselves tied, an appeal for funds is incorporated in the work of the campaign.

The whole object, the whole need, may be summed up in one word—interest. It is to arouse that, to instill into all members of the Protestant Episcopal Church the country over a desire to help either with their labor or their money, that the campaign will be waged.

Fountain Retrial in Talbot

Retrial of the case of Isaiah Fountain, colored, convicted before the Circuit Court for Talbot county in April, 1919, of statutory assault, must take place in that jurisdiction. This is the effect of a decision handed down in the Maryland Court of Appeals by Judge John R. Pattison, at Annapolis. The decision denies the application for a removal of the case which was filed by Eugene O. Dunne, of Baltimore city, in behalf of the condemned man.

This is the second time that the Appellate Court has been called upon to pass a ruling in this case, but on different grounds. The first issue was the granting of a new trial for the prisoner on the grounds that the scenes enacted about the Talbot county court house were such as to tend to prejudice the minds of the jurors. After an extensive review the Court of Appeals remanded the case to Talbot county for the new trial as prayed. Then Mr. O'Dunne, who was chief counsel for Fountain, sought another jurisdiction for retrial of the case, holding that under the Constitution and General Code of the state the Appellate Court had the authority to grant such change. The court, in its opinion, however, holds that it has no such power.

Constipation

Most laxatives and cathartics afford only temporary relief and should be used only for that purpose. When you want permanent relief take Chamberlain's Tablets and be careful to observe the directions with each package. These tablets not only move the bowels, but improve the appetite and strengthen the digestion.

Do You Remember November 11th-- that day last year when we all went wild—threw our hats in the air, rang the bells and blew the whistles in sheer delight because the signing of the armistice meant the end of war?

It was the end of a period of destruction during which we "went without," that production might center on materials for war.

On the anniversary of Armistice Day, November 11th, let all Americans pledge themselves to work together and stop waste. Only in this way can we make up the years of lost production and again know peace with plenty.

Holland-Thomas Wedding

A very pretty wedding took place at the home of Mr. Wm. T. Holland, Jr., Mt. Vernon, last Tuesday morning at 11 o'clock, when Mr. S. Norman Holland, son of Mr. and Mrs. W. T. Holland, and Miss Grace Thomas, daughter of the late Capt. and Mrs. Jos. Thomas, were united in marriage. The bridegroom entered the parlor to the strains of Lohengrin's wedding march, rendered by Mrs. W. T. Barbon, the ceremony being performed by the Rev. W. H. Revelle, of Chance, assisted by the Rev. O. B. Rice, of Mt. Vernon. The bride was attired in a traveling gown of Navy blue with large black velvet hat. She carried a shower bouquet of bride's roses and ferns.

The house was tastefully decorated with potted plants and white chrysanthemums. Immediately after the ceremony a wedding breakfast was served, and Mr. and Mrs. Holland left for a motor trip to Baltimore, Philadelphia and Washington.

Among those present were: Rev. and Mrs. W. H. Revelle, Rev. O. B. Rice, Mr. W. T. Holland, Mr. and Mrs. I. J. Holland, Mr. and Mrs. Benson McGoughlin, Mr. and Mrs. Carroll Parks, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Reading, Mr. and Mrs. Veasey Wilson, Mrs. W. T. Barbon, Mrs. Roger White, Mrs. William Bouds, Misses Daisy, Mildred and Elsie Holland, Sarah Revelle, Sophie Groscup, Mary Bouds, Helen Ward, Maude Cannon, Messrs. Jay White, Omar Reading, Frank Barbon, Mr. Pusey, of Baltimore; Messrs. Milton Barbon, William and Herbert Bouds.

Miss Florence Revelle A Bride

Miss Florence Revelle, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Sidney S. Revelle, was married to Mr. Robert N. Collins, of Wilmington, Del., last Saturday afternoon at 2 o'clock. The Rev. James A. Brown performed the ceremony at the bride's home on Beechwood street. Only the immediate families of the contracting parties and a few close friends witnessed the ceremony. The bride wore a navy blue traveling suit and carried bride's roses. She was given in marriage by her father. Mr. and Mrs. Collins left on the 2:48 express for northern cities. After their trip they will reside at 54 Maplewood avenue, Chester, Penna.

Cristfield Has Another Fire

Fire, which seriously menaced the lower section of Cristfield last Monday afternoon, broke out in the tire repairing establishment of E. W. Spencer and was only gotten under control after heroic work by the fire department.

The building where the fire started was destroyed with its contents. The tailor shop of Frank Jones was also in this building. A three-story building adjoining, occupied by the Reese Printing Company and the offices of L. E. P. Dennis & Son, was burned, but considerable property was saved. The brick office building of Senator-elect John B. Robins was also damaged.

Any woman is apt to be proud of her teeth and her hair, although it may be false pride.

BIG EVENT AT CHESTERTOWN

Horticultural Society Meeting On January 6th, 7th and 8th

The great horticultural event of the year for the people of the Delaware-Chesapeake Peninsula is the meeting of the Peninsula Horticultural Society and this annual event, which will occur at Chestertown, Maryland, January 6th, 7th and 8th, 1920, promises to be as interesting and as profitable as any meeting in the past. A very instructive program has been prepared and while it is not quite completed, assurance is given of the attendance of some of the best speakers and practical men in this part of the country. Dr. Thomas J. Headlee, Entomologist, of New Jersey, will be present and give the up-to-date methods of controlling insects that infest farm crops, especially the orchard.

B. W. Leach, of the U. S. Bureau of Entomology, will give in detail the results of work in Delaware during 1919 in preventing the injury of the so-called sideworm.

A half dozen or more of the best men of the Maryland Agricultural College have already agreed to be present. Dr. Bomberger will deliver a very interesting, popular lecture on "The Balance Wheel of the Social Order." Prof. Cory will report on insects, Prof. Shaw will give a discussion on orchard demonstration work in Maryland, Prof. E. C. Aucther will talk on "Apple Pruning Experiments" and "Orchard Pollination Studies" and Prof. R. Wellington will discuss tomato growing. Dr. Woods, President of the College, has promised to be present if possible.

Delaware College will be represented by Prof. C. A. McCue, Dr. Thomas F. Manns, Prof. LeCato and others. Mr. B. W. Anson, Granogue, Delaware, will speak on "Better Home Grounds." Mr. G. Hale Harrison, Berlin, Md., has agreed to give a talk covering his experience in 1919 on fertilizing, pruning, spraying, picking, selling and consigning peaches.

It goes without saying that the best practical men of the peninsula will be on hand with papers and will enter into the discussion and so give the results of their work during the year.

Exhibits of fruit and vegetables promise to be as fine this year as in previous years.

Double Wedding At Pocomoke City

A double wedding took place on Wednesday afternoon at the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. Frank Vincent, Pocomoke City, when their two daughters were united in matrimony. Miss Amelia Katherine became the bride of Mr. Arthur B. Dukes, of Girdletree; Miss Minnie Elizabeth became the bride of Mr. Charles Allison Hancock, of Baltimore. The brides were dressed in dark blue traveling suits with hats and gloves to match and carried bouquets of pink roses and ferns. The home was beautifully decorated with potted plants and chrysanthemums. The Rev. V. E. Hills, pastor of Salisbury M. E. Church, performed the ceremony. The wedding march was played by Miss Annie White, accompanied by Miss Evelyn White on the violin, cousins of the brides.

Both of the couples left during the afternoon for a wedding trip to Philadelphia and New York, and on their return Mr. and Mrs. Hancock will live in Baltimore and Mr. and Mrs. Dukes will make their home in Girdletree.

Y. M. C. A. Dinner Postponed

In a news article released to the papers of the shore it was stated that the first year's budget for county and rural Young Men's Christian Association work was $3,500. This was an error in typewriting and should have read $5,500 required for the first year, and probably $4,000 to $4,500 thereafter. Office and traveling equipment make the larger figure the first year. The Talbot county campaign opened Monday night, November 10th, with a dinner at Hotel Norris, Easton. James C. Godwin, of Easton, is county chairman and Alfred B. Mason is county treasurer. Some very substantial men of Talbot are interested in this move and success in raising the $5,500 and likely an over-subscription is predicted. The Dorchester county dinner and campaign were postponed to December 1st, for lack of sufficient time for preparation in several communities and also for the reason that secretaries were not available to assist during that week.

Wilson Able To Sit Up

For the first time since he became ill more than six weeks ago, President Wilson was permitted to sit up for an hour last Tuesday, when in a wheelchair he was wheeled slowly about the top floor of the White House.

It's the unexpected that happens, but don't bet on it. Life is full of uncertainties.

TO EXAMINE LEGISLATURE BILLS

Governor-Elect Ritchie In Favor Of Council Bureau

In his annual report to Gov. Harrington in 1918, Attorney General Albert C. Ritchie, who is now the Governor-elect of the state, recommended the creation of a legislative council bureau.

One of the most important duties of the lawyer who will fill this place will be to hunt snakes in midwinter, to find the little fellows that lurk in innocent bills introduced, either suspecting or unsuspectingly, by members of the two houses. The hunter will have to be an expert in his work.

"It is, of course, highly important," said Mr. Ritchie, "that legislators should have at their command all the information possible relating to bills which they may wish to introduce or which are pending before them. This gives them the benefit of the studies of those who have considered and investigated the same or similar subjects, enables them to know what has been done relative thereto in other states, and what the experience of other states has been. The average legislator has not the time to procure this information for himself, and usually he has not the facilities either. The Act of 1916, Chapter 474, already imposes work of this character upon the executive officer of the Department of Legislative Reference of Baltimore city.

"It is of at least equal importance that all possible aid should be given those who draft legislation. No work calls for more specialized and expert skill than does the drawing of laws. If the language, form and arrangement of all statutes were passed upon by minds specially trained and qualified for the work, not only would clearness and brevity of statement be promoted, but litigation would be tremendously reduced.

"For instance: The Court of Appeals has many times been called upon to decide whether the provisions of a statute are mandatory or only discretionary, whether 'may' means 'shall,' whether 'power' means 'duty.' Numerous cases involve the exact application of general terms following specific terms, such as 'of the same sort,' or 'or other persons,' etc." The form of the enacting clause has been frequently before the court. Any number of cases involve the question whether a statute was intended to repeal a prior law or not. In innumerable cases statutes have been attacked on the ground that the title does not correctly describe the subject. If in these and in many other cases the statutes had been carefully drawn, so that their scope and application were clear, and all formal requirements complied with, they would generally not have found their way into court at all."

"First Company Of Dead" Honored

In the chill of a November rain the nation accorded honors last Thursday to the first of its heroic dead brought back from the world-war battlefields. On a flag-docked, crepe-draped Army pier in Hoboken, New York, the bodies of 103 American soldiers who gave up their lives in Northern Russia and of 10 sailors who died with the Navy's forces in "farthest North" waters, received their benediction. Their coffins had been swung ashore in rope nets from the little transport Lake Daraga when the funeral ship arrived from Brest.

The Congress of the United States, the Army, Navy, American Legion, the State of Michigan, where most of the heroes lived, and the city of Detroit all joined in honoring the dead.

United States Senator Wadsworth, of New York, voiced the official "welcome home" to the "first company of our dead, no less triumphant in their homecoming than those regiments, battalions and companies of the living we have seen marching through our streets."

Have Gunners' License When Hunting

The law requires every person who is to gun in the State of Maryland, to get out a gunner's license. The prices varying according to the character of licenses. There are three kinds of license, county license, state-wide license and non-residence license. The law requires that the license shall be carried on the person of the party hunting and in addition thereto the written permission from the property owner or tenant on whose property said person may be hunting. Any person found hunting without their license and written permission is deemed guilty of a misdemeanor and upon conviction thereof before a justice of the peace shall be fined $15 for each and every offense and stand committed to the county jail, until such fine and costs are paid, but said imprisonment shall not exceed 15 days for each offense.

WOMAN'S AUXILIARY MEETING

Campaign Planned At The Annual Convention At Easton

The 26th annual convention of the Woman's Auxiliary of the Episcopal Church, on the Eastern Shore, which was held at Christ Church, Easton, on November 6th and 8th, was a memorable one. Following as it did upon the extraordinary sessions of the General Convention held in Detroit, Mich., it had so many features of that great meeting that it might be called a miniature reproduction of it. And what is more important the spirit of the convention was throughout worthy of the occasion.

The interest of the public in the National Wide Campaign, which was the chief topic of study and prayer, helped to make them a success. The convention also had the unusual privilege of listening to three bishops on the issues of the campaign. Several clergymen in addition to the rector, Dr. Davies, were in attendance and took part in the exercises. The messages which these bishops and clergy brought, combined with the masses conducted by Mrs. Van Hengen, and the reports presented by Mrs. Kess, of Berlin, the president, and others, made a stirring appeal to the faith and hope of the delegates.

The attendance of members was the largest in the history of the Auxiliary, while the apparent earnestness and eagerness of everyone to receive instruction and to get the vision and inspiration of the new age were evident on every hand. Mrs. Clara L. Woolford, was the delegate from the Woman's Auxiliary, St. Andrew's Church, Princess Anne.

The keynote struck by Dr. Davies in his opening address was the opportunity for service and what each one can and should do to increase the effectiveness of the church's ministry to the nation and to humanity. The Auxiliary seems to have obtained a broader vision of the real aim of the campaign, pledging itself as a body and individually to stand back of the whole church while doing its work therefor. Emphasis was properly laid upon the importance of the dedication of self, upon each one doing their full duty to meet the call.

As we go to press, news has been received from the central office in New York that the quota asked for the Diocese of Easton will amount to about $100,000 for the three year budget. With such an impetus to greater effort as this convention has apparently been, it ought not to be difficult to secure this amount. In the Liberty Loan and Red Cross drives, single counties sometimes gave that amount and more. Will the response of the people to the challenge of the church be less generous or less spontaneous? It all depends upon whether we clearly perceive the need and the opportunity for wider and better service, for sacrifices and discipline and for united effort, to create a better America and a better world for our children to inherit from us. Those who cherish this hope will not deny the money necessary to translate dreams and visions into reality.

Aliens Will Be Sent To Russia

Aliens rounded up by Department of Justice agents in the recent raids on headquarters of the Union of Russian Workers in a score of cities will be deported as soon as hearings have been held by the Department of Labor, according to Attorney General Palmer.

Mr. Palmer said last Wednesday arrangements for their deportation to Russia had been made, but added that he could not disclose to what part of Russia they would be sent.

Because of the peculiar situation existing in Russia it had been suggested that the aliens could not be deported at this time and that the government might find itself faced with the necessity of establishing concentration camps for them in this country.

As the United States has no communication with the part of Russia controlled by the Bolsheviks, it was suggested that the aliens could not be sent there. On the other hand, it was said that the authorities in that portion of Russia freed from Bolshevik control would not care to receive aliens who have been described by Mr. Palmer as even more radical than the Bolsheviks.

Red Cross Seal Drive

Schools, churches and synagogues throughout the United States were asked last Saturday by Surgeon General Blue to co-operate with the Public Health Service in the sale of Red Cross Christmas seals on December 5th, 6th and 7th.

Considering the goose that lays the golden egg, remember the command, "Thou shalt not kill."

JOB SEEKERS SWARM ON RITCHIE

Great Task Ahead of Governor-Elect In Disposing of Plums

The Governor-elect has been almost as busy since his election as before, for the office seekers descended upon him as soon as it was certain that he had won the job, and have been descending ever since. The fact that all the jobs at Mr. Ritchie's disposal now are filled by Democrats, many of whom favored him for the nomination and supported him vigorously, does not mean that other Democrats are "backward in coming forward" for them. Not at all. The fact that Democrats now hold the jobs simply complicates and intensifies the problem of patronage.

It may be interesting to know the main places Governor Ritchie will have to fill. The incumbents of minor places may be protected under the merit system law, to be passed at the coming session of the Legislature. The first of the important places the new Governor will fill will be Secretary of State. The job is not worth as much now as it used to be. Cutting out the fees, which was done under a ruling by Mr. Ritchie, as Attorney General, supported by the courts, reduces the emoluments from around $7,000 to $2,000, plus $500 allowed the official for acting as secretary of the Board of Public Works. But as the office is one of dignity, there are many who would like to have it.

Among other places are Governor's secretary, $2,400; chairman of the State Roads Commission, $2,500, and two associate commissioners, $2,000 each; a member of the State Tax Commission, at $5,000, to be appointed next year for six years; another member (Republican), to be appointed in 1922; three members of the Conservation Commission, at $3,000 each, for four years; Adjutant General for four years, at $3,000; a member of the Public Service Commission, to be appointed next year for six years, at $5,000 salary, and another member of the commission to be appointed in 1922, at $5,000, unless designated as chairman, in which case he will be paid $6,000, the term expiring in 1922, being held by chairman Reifender.

There also is the automobile chairmanship, running for four years, at a salary of $3,000; a member of the State Board of Prison Control, at $3,000 a year, to be appointed next year, and another at the same salary to be appointed in 1922, both terms running six years; a member of the State Accident Commission, at $5,000, to be appointed next year for six years, and another at the same salary and for the same time to be appointed in 1922, both of whom may be Democrats; the minority term not expiring until 1924, and the chairman of the State Board of Labor and Statistics, at $2,500, and two associate members at $500 each, for four years.

The three members of the Board of Motion Picture Censors, one Republican and two Democrats, will be appointed by Governor Ritchie, one next year, one in 1921 and one in 1922. Each is paid $2,400. The State Librarian, which office usually goes to a woman, pays $1,500, and lasts four years. The Land Commissioner, appointed for four years, is paid $1,500 and fees, equivalent to about $3,000. The job is for four years. The Superintendent of Public Buildings and Grounds, appointed for four years, gets $1,300. The Weigher of Tomatoes, appointed for two years, gets $1,000. The three members of the Police Board, two Democrats and one Republican, appointed next year for two years, get $2,500 each, and the three members of the Board of Police Examiners, two Democrats and one Republican, appointed next year for two years, get $1,200.

The judge of the Juvenile Court, appointed for two years, gets $3,000 and the assistant judge appointed for the same time $1,000; a member of the advisory board of parole, at $1,500, will be appointed next year for six years, and another will be appointed in 1922 for the same period, and Election Supervisors will be appointed for the city and each of the counties for two years, one Republican and two Democrats, Justices of the Peace and other officers.

Weller Out For U. S. Senate

O. E. Weller, Republican leader in Baltimore city, announced last Friday his candidacy for the nomination of his party for the United States Senate in the primaries to be held on the first Monday of May, 1920.

Senator Smith's term expires March 4th, 1921, and the candidate elected in November, 1920, takes the seat now occupied by Senator Smith.

No one really knows what Senator Smith intends to do about the Senatorial nomination, but the idea is pretty general that he will desire the Democratic nomination.

Miners Strike Called Off

"We cannot fight our government." This is the declaration of the leaders of the striking coal miners' unions, and with this declaration they have called off the strike which threw 400,000 men out of employment and threatened to tie up fully 75 per cent. of the big industries of the nation.

The decision to abandon the strike came after an 18-hour conference of the union leaders at the Lincoln Hotel in Indianapolis on Tuesday.

The conference of coal miners and operators from the bituminous coal fields called in an endeavor to settle the strike began in Washington last Friday afternoon.

The demands of the miners for sixty per cent. increase in pay and a thirty-hour week are the main issues. Both the miners and operators have indicated their willingness to accept a reasonable adjustment of their differences and bring about harmony within their ranks.

Temperament and Ted

By VINCENT G. PERRY

(Copyright, 1919, by the McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

Ted was a wonder. Every man, woman and child on the Merlight "lot," as the big film studio was called, admitted it; every film fan in America proclaimed it from the "house-tops." It wasn't just Ted's acting that was the cause of all the wonderment at the Merlight—it was Ted's defiance of temperament.

Why, actors and actresses who were not half so famous as Ted Leonard were allowed to have their days and even weeks of temperament "flings," but Ted worked right through without one in two years, and he worked twice as strenuously as any of the other actors, at that.

Ted wasn't one of the "bold men" type of film actors, either—he was a typical matinee idol in everything but disposition and nerve control.

Director Bob Lasbrook was the only one who didn't comment much on Ted's wonderful fortitude. Lasbrook had been in the film business since its infancy and before that he had had a long stage experience. "He is going to come down with a crash some of these days," Lasbrook murmured to himself one day. "I never saw the man with the true dramatic spirit who didn't have the temperament bug, too, and Ted sure has the dramatic spirit and then some. When the crash does come, look out!"

The crash did come. It was all because of the new leading lady. From the day of his first early success Ted had been starred alone, but now for some unexplained reason the directors of the company decided upon a co-star for him—a famous stage actress who was to make her film debut.

Ted knew what most of the stage actresses who sought the movies were like. He had seen them come up one by one and go down in formation of fours and fives. They didn't take. The movies were meant for young actresses, not for made-up has-beens. The camera brought out the lines and crowsfeet the footlights and grease paint hid! No stage actress was going to be exploited on his fame, no siree!

Bob Lasbrook was not surprised. The calm of the old director had more to do with Ted's final breaking up-of-temper than anything else. After Ted had waxed hot, shaken his fist and resorted to mild profanity old Bob just shook his head. Ted left that night for parts unknown. "To blazes with my contract," Ted had flung back at the business manager of the company as he sailed through the office, head held high. "Marie Sivelle can star alone. I hope her face breaks the camera!" He closed the door without noticing that the business manager had been talking to someone very small and sweet, someone who had been and was blushing profusely.

Ted's temperamental crash, as old Bob would have called it, had a firm grip on Ted for three days. At the end of the third day he began to think reasonably. It all came from not taking a vacation for so long, he told himself. The country was the place for him—the country he had left so few years before. How changed it would be now.

But the country was not much changed, he found. There was a feeling of gratification in bringing his roadster to a halt in front of the little schoolhouse where he had learned his A B C's. That sentiment was not the one that had brought him there first, though. The pleasant memory of the little teacher who had taught there the last year he had been in the village had never really left him, but now it had come back with great force. He had thought then that their friendship would have developed to something more than memories, but for some unexplained reason it hadn't. It was all his fault, the fault of his success, he told himself reproachfully. Would she remember? Would she look the same?

Wonder of wonders, she had not changed a bit. The school door had opened and she was coming down the path to the road. Ted was out of the car and running down the path to meet her. Did she remember? The glad little cry of recognition and the eyes filled with tears of joy said more than all the words in the world. He almost had her in his arms when he remembered.

It was a wonderful week that followed. Just the sort of week that was needed to restore Ted's nerves. With the return of all his practical judgment, Ted began to analyze his feelings. He loved this little teacher, this Nora Givens. She was the sweetest little woman in the world and he was going to make her his wife, he told himself.

Just as he had made firm this resolve a bomb was hurled onto his plans.

"I felt sure that some day you would come back—a successful business man. I knew you would lose all those foolish old ideas about the stage and art and such like," Nora told him as they drove along a particularly inviting stretch of country road.

"Would it make any difference if I still had those ideas—couldn't you love me?" he asked her as he nervously reached out for her hand.

"It wouldn't be practical to love a man with unsettled ideas, like your old ones," she answered, withdrawing her hand from reach.

"I understand," Ted mumbled. That settled it in his mind. Nora shared the narrow thoughts of many other country people—stage and movie folk were all bad in her estimation—she could not realize that some of the finest men and women in the world were engaged in the theatrical profession.

What did it matter after that? There was only one place where Ted belonged and he went back to it—back to the Merlight studio. Let them bring on their co-stars, let them exploit has-beens under his fame. What did it matter? What did fame or success mean when the woman he loved could never be his?

Bob Leonard could not understand this morbid change in Ted. Temperamental attacks did not usually leave after-effects like that. He wondered, too, when Ted raised no further objections to Marie Sivelle. Perhaps when he met that young lady a change would come over him.

A change? Well, perhaps! The moment Ted looked up languidly to acknowledge the introduction to the actress who was to share honors with him in the forthcoming production, the change was effected.

"Nora!" he gasped, "what are you doing here?"

Certainly it was Nora. She was smiling out an explanation. "I am Marie Sivelle. I became famous on the stage because that was my ambition—and I came here to co-star with you because I knew who you were and I wanted to be near you. I was in the manager's office when you expressed the wish that my face would damage the camera. I knew you didn't know. I guessed where you would go. My sister is the teacher at that school now. That's how I arranged to substitute there for a week. I made up my mind months ago, when you first became famous, that I would be your leading lady. Please Teddy won't you let me?" There was real pleading in her request.

"Let you? Why, dear heart, you must be my leading lady for life. I want you always," he cried joyfully, as he gathered her up in his arms.

HOW BUTTERFLIES CROSS SEA

Delicate Creatures Suffer During Voyage, but Millions of Them Make Passage in Safety.

The most wonderful of ocean flyers are the butterflies which cross the ocean in the spring.

Naturalists tell us that one of the most amazing sights in the world is to see millions of these delicate creatures, like a cloud of tiny pieces of paper, flying across the channel from the continent to English shores, when the wind is favorable.

Their stamina and endurance are extraordinary, and although some fall exhausted into the sea, the bulk make a successful crossing. The butterfly army of invasion generally includes many beautiful specimens, and as an illustration of their powers of endurance it might be mentioned many butterflies have descended to rest on vessels 200 miles at sea.

The farthest authenticated distance at which a moth has been captured at sea was recorded by a well-known scientist eight years ago, who took specimens of a certain large moth 1,200 miles from the nearest possible land. —London Tri-Bits.

"No, he won't," said the lover calmly. "That dog is an old pet of mine. I raised him, and I hated to part with him; but I gave him to the dealer last week, with instructions to sell him to your father. Well, Bill, old chap! Glad to see me, ain't you? There, now—charge! What were you saying, darling?" —Cleveland Plain Dealer.

There is a creeping moss found in Jamaica called the "life-plant." It is believed to be indestructible by any means except immersion in boiling water or the application of a red-hot iron. It may be cut up and divided in any manner, and the smallest shreds will throw out roots, grow and bud.

MILLY'S TANTRUM

By J. S. BROOKS

(Copyright, 1919, by the McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

She stood there before him like an avenging angel. She ignored the admiration gleaming from his honest gray eyes.

Then catching sight of his good-natured smile, she snapped:

"I—I just hate people that never get angry—just smile, smile."

That remark deepened the smile on Neil Burnson's cheery face.

"But Milly, if you knew how exasperatingly pretty you look in one of your, hm—tantrums. If you keep on—"

"Tantrums! It's honest to goodness disgust and indifference to any flattery you give me."

"As I was saying," resumed the imperturbable youth, "if you don't stop looking so aggravatingly charming, why, I shall be compelled to take you in my arms."

"That's just what I'm trying to make clear to you. You have done that for the last time! Here, there's no use to prolong the scene."

Milly stepped nearer, and snatching the ring from her finger, she crushed it down into his hand.

Her companion's eyes clouded a little as he answered:

"I say, Milly, aren't you carrying your little farce too far! It's only a trivial thing and you know it."

"Farce, indeed! Neil Burnson. There's another thing. You needn't order those flowers for me; I'll telephone myself."

Then the fellow "that never got mad" said hastily:

"See here, young lady, the next time I order any flowers for you, you'll wear them. And when you want that ring, you'll ask for it. Good-by."

And Neil was off. He didn't see the girl's face pale, he was too angry to catch sight of her outstretched arms.

Why Milly Clayton should drop into a chair and burst into tears when she had accomplished the thing she desired, was a mystery.

Half an hour later Milly called up the florist and made him promise an early delivery. She must have them early.

A picture the girl made in her shimmering party dress of pale green. It set off the healthy pink in her face, and her wavy brown hair, and her brown eyes, still emitting defiance that but gave a sparkle to the portrait.

She gave a pat to the silky folds of her dress, then looked at the clock.

"Eight o'clock, and no flowers have come! And I've patronized that florist for so long a time, I'll just leave him," she pouted.

She looked down at her girdle where the flowers ought to be resting. Then her glance traveled to her left hand.

"How queer it seems with no ring. But a girl can't wear everything," she argued inwardly. "Oh, it seems so—so lonesome—my ring and—him gone."

She looked in her mirror and began to study the radiant reflection in it.

"Perhaps I was too quick, and childish—perhaps—I was," she drawled. "If I'm old enough to be a society woman, I'm old enough to have a little patience with Neil. He's such a boy! Besides, I do miss my ring and him."

A loud peal at the doorbell startled her.

"There's the flowers. I'll go myself." She tripped down the stairs, and turned to open the door, and there stood Neil with a box of flowers.

The girl's face lighted unconsciously.

The young man's heart beat faster.

"Why—y, Neil Burnson, didn't I tell you not to—engage—"

Neil threw out his hand.

"When a young lady, one's own fiancée,"—Milly's head lifted defiantly—"orders me on the telephone to bring her flowers early, I obey." He ended with low bow.

"But I telephoned to the florist," explained Milly.

"You thought you did, dear girl; but your numbers got mixed. So here I am ready to escort you to the party," and the shameless fellow calmly led the way to the living room.

Milly went over to the window, and, with her omissions in a tumult, stood looking down the street.

Her companion produced from his pocket a little figure of a Cupid, which he placed on top of the telephone covering.

The girl with troubled eyes still gazed streetward.

Neil next took the ring and hung it on the tip of Cupid's arrow. Then he called:

"Come Milly, look at your lovely flowers. The girl turned slowly, caught sight of the ring sparkling its welcome, and with a little quivering sigh she cried out:

"Oh, my dear, darling ring, I've missed it so!" And she eagerly snatched it from its place. Then she looked at Neil, who tried his utmost to conceal the mischievous twinkle in his eyes.

But Milly saw it and challenged:

"Why don't you say what a woman would?—that 'if you wanted flowers from me you'll wear them; and when you want this ring you'll ask for it.' I do ask you for your ring, Neil, and I do want the flowers you bring. I found out how trivial I'd been as soon as you left me, Neil; I was so lonely!"

Neil stood patting the telephone.

"Good old telephone! You played a successful part as Cupid that time," he grinned.

The Whole Secret of A Better Tire

Simply a Matter of the Maker's Policies

This you will realize—once you try a Brunswick—that a super-tire is possible only when the name certifies that the maker is following the highest standards.

For tire making is chiefly a matter of standards and policies—cost plus care. Any maker can build a good tire if he cares to pay perfection's price.

All men know Brunswick standards, for Brunswick products have been famous for 74 years.

Formulas, fabrics and standards vary vastly in cost. Reinforcements, plies and thickness are a matter of expense. And these variations affect endurance. It rests with the maker how far he wishes to go—how much he can afford to give.

For there are no secrets nor patents to hold one back.

To ascertain what each maker offers one must analyze and test some 200 tires—as our laboratories have done.

Then it is a matter of combining the best features and building according to the highest standards.

Once you try a Brunswick you will understand how we have built model tires, regardless of factory expense.

Yet Brunswick Tires cost you the same as other like-type tires. Our saving is on selling cost, through our nation-wide organization.

We realize that you expect more from Brunswicks, and we assure you that you get it. ONE Brunswick will tell you the story.

And then you'll want ALL Brunswicks. No other tire, you'll agree, gives so much for your money.

HONOR NOT ENTIRELY WATT'S

At Least Two Inventors Before Him Had the Idea of the Value of Steam Power.

It is a popular idea that we owe the steam engine entirely to the inventive genius of James Watt.

The idea, however, is quite erroneous, for steam was in use as a motive power before he came on the scene. Several types of steam engine were in use, notably Savory's and Newcomen's.

But they were cumbersome, extravagant, and of small power, and it was while repairing a model of a Newcomen engine that Watt, who was working as a mathematical instrument maker at the time, evolved various improvements, notably the separate condenser.

Meeting Matthew Boulton, a manufacturer of metal goods, he entered into partnership and they produced engines, which at once established Watt's reputation. Improvements and inventions followed quickly, one after the other, and the present-day advance in motive power is due to the pioneer work of Watt. Even today the steam engine remains the same in principle as Watt evolved it.

It is an interesting fact, by the way, that Watt's workshop, exactly as he left it, still exists at Heathfield hall, Handsworth, where the engineering genius spent the last nineteen years of his life carrying on scientific investigations.—London Tit-Bits.

FRIENDS OF SUNNY FRANCE

Scotsmen for Many Centuries Fought and Lived Under the Flag of the Bourbons.

Until the eventual fixture of the Hanoverian line on the throne of Britain, there was always a company, at least, of Scots in the Royal Guard in France. When Louis IX made his fatal crusade in Egypt, a Scottish legion fought under the Bourbon standards. Likewise, in all the marches of Jeanne d'Arc there were Scottish volunteers. Scottish schools, academies, hospitals, convents and other institutions flourished in France for many years. Queen Marie, it is said, spent her last years in exile in one of the Scottish convents in Paris.

During these centuries, all France was a land of pilgrimage for the Scots. Trains of pilgrims were seen annually assembling at Saint Waast. Pious Scots also founded shrines at Meaux, Rheims and in many secluded vales of Champagne. As late as 1810 manuscripts attest the presence of Scottish emigrants, whose names soon became confused with French forms.

It is said that one French king, despairing of the frivolity of his heir, said to him, "If thou should govern them badly, I would far rather that a Scot came to rule over them."

Dissatisfaction.

The old saying that some folks would find fault if they were good, is undeniably true. There are too many dissatisfied human beings, a minority, to be sure, but enough to shade the picture which portrays our everyday life. Hanging is a serious matter, and no one can wonder if its contemplation causes dissatisfaction to the hero of the occasion, but lesser ills and woes, and common things like wind and weather, lack of money, unpleasant occupations, a crumpled roseleaf in the bed, a wrinkle in some other woman's get up which has escaped her own, turn loose a stream of fault-finding disagreeable and contemptible. We might as well decide that we all have something to bear in this world and that we will bear it without grumbling; we might as well subscribe to the truth that if it is not one thing, it is another, and set our teeth and say nothing.—Caroline Harris Lee.

"Ghost" of Thomas a Becket.

St. Thomas, the "first Agnostic," whose festival was placed on the shortest day to punish his unbelief, shares this anniversary with a very militant namesake, Thomas a Becket, pilgrimages to whose shrine inspired Chaucer's "Canterbury Tales."

His specter, known among the vergers as "Thomas a Becket's ghost," can be seen occasionally in the crypt of Canterbury cathedral. It is a real ghost, and has been photographed.

One photograph showed a dim figure of a prelate against a pillar, while another snapshot taken from the same position, but on a different day, revealed no such appearance.

Rationalists explain that an ancient fresco on the pillar, painted out at the Reformation, becomes visible through the overlaid material during damp weather.—London Chronicle.

Housekeeping.

We went housekeeping immediately upon our marriage, for mother said she despised these boarding people; she went to housekeeping when she was married, and she meant all her children should do the same; and if their husbands weren't able to go to housekeeping then they weren't able to be husbands, and there was an end of it; and no two people, she said, brought up in different fashions, could unite their lives into one without some jarring, and a third party was sure to turn that jar into an earthquake; and if there were fewer third parties half the trouble would be done away with; for she believed half the divorces and separations and quarrels in the state were brought about by boarding house intimacies with third parties.—Harriet Prescott Spofford.

We are shallow and selfish and lacking in dignity when we play one thing against another to gain our ends. THE SILVER CUP

By M. L. WALKER.

Louise Morton, combining business with pleasure, had just purchased a three-roomed bungalow in a summer colony of lakeside commuters. Here she hoped to rest from her labors as a trained nurse for a long, healthful summer and incidentally raise a fine garden.

She stood on her small front porch in the midst of a litter of household goods and watched the furniture van tilt up over the hump in the road and disappear down the hill.

"If three rooms can hold all these things, it's time to prove it," she declared, and set about her moving in with energy.

Lights began to twinkle in the little bungalows around her as she sat down at last in the tidy little house and looked about.

But the plowing! Last year's matted grass covered the "10,000 square feet" that went with her camp. She called at the great white farmhouse on the slope of the hill, to ask advice the next morning. A workman met her, evidently a farmhand, who was driving the farm horse out on the wagon road.

"Why, yes," said he, considering the blue gray eyes and chestnut locks before him, "I think I can get off to plow your little garden tonight after supper. It's light 'till pretty late now."

As the sunset faded the farmhand drove his plow on to her little field and soon the furrows, straight and black, lay open to the night air, enriching its odor.

"Ever plant before?" he asked as he rested the horses at the end of a row.

"Oh, not a big garden like this," said Louise, noting the well shaped head and the graceful vigor of the figure leaning against the horses, battered hat in hand. "I've planned a fine one," she continued, and was surprised to remember later how interesting it had been to explain it all to Mr. Ward, as he gave his name.

"I'll come over tomorrow and harrow it," he offered as he swung his team into the road at last.

"I'll be so glad to have you," said Louise, happily, "for I can hardly wait to get my little farm started."

The garden grew apace. The flourishing potatoes nodded a sea of blossoms, the corn was blithely green, butterflies hovered over the tender peas. Already the posters of the county fair ornamented the store windows and bulletin boards. All the neighborhood was incited to greater efforts yet by the offer of a silver cup to the winner of the most awards at the fair. As the days went on the vegetables responded to the zealous care Louise expended upon them. Mr. Ward offered to take her exhibits to the hall in his wagon, and he suggested entering the great purple pansies and the flaming nasturtiums also.

She asked the dairy maid at the farm when she went for the milk if Mr. Ward was about.

"He's in town today at the office," replied the girl.

"The office," thought Louise, "probably his employer's; I wonder who the owner of the farm is."

But after supper he came and condoned about the giant squash leaves. The blight wouldn't hurt the vegetables, and the drought was nearly over, too, for already the sky was clouding for a tempest.

And Mr. Ward handled her treasures carefully and appreciated the beauty of their arrangement.

You can't help getting some prizes with these jewels," he assured her.

She went up with the neighbors on the early train next day to hear the opening speeches. To her great surprise Mr. Ward was announced as chairman of the fair committee, and he gave a dignified and interesting speech of welcome and then introduced the others on the platform.

When the gay luncheon party of the neighborhood was over, and the afternoon had begun to wane, and all the winners of honors in the lake community had compared their results, she saw Mr. Ward coming toward her as she stood with a group about a wonderful silvery cow with a little calf beside her. The others greeted him gayly with the easy introduction of country customs.

"So you are the owner of the great farm near our lake," said Mrs. Freeman. "I always supposed you were a hired man, you attended Miss Morton's garden so diligently."

"Well, there's no disgrace in hiring out to help the neighbors, I'm sure, Mrs. Freeman," he replied.

They went over toward the office quarters. "So you are not a hired man at all?" asked Louise.

"No, I have an office in town, but this summer I decided to have a garden of my own, so I came up to my farm for the summer for a change. You don't mind my telling you about your mistake in taking me for the hired man, do you?" He stopped at the lower step and looked at her anxiously.

"No," said Louise happily. "Now that I've won the awards and the silver cup I won't scold about anything."

The judges were already descending the stairs to meet her. There was only a minute left, but he made good use of it.

"And will you let me drive you home tonight—Louise?"

"Yes," whispered Louise, turning to greet the judges.

"And heaven bless that garden," breathed her "hired man" fervently.

TUESDAY MORNING, NOV. 18, 1919

It is suspected there are more moonshiners nights than are shown in the Old Farmers' Almanac.

Now that cold weather is coming on the girls won't have much use for their furs until another summer.

Why should milkmen worry about the price paid by the consumer when the pump is always handy?

If Kentucky has really voted dry the colonels must suddenly have become a minority of the population.

The previous generation was no doubt old fogies, but they could save money on one third the current rate of wages.

After seeing a few football players lamed up for the winter, everyone will be ready for a jolly Thanksgiving dinner.

It is claimed that some folks along the back roads are hardly recognizable for six weeks after they have had a hair cut.

When a hunter mistakes a man for a rabbit it is a sign that he has something more inspiring to the imagination than 2 1/2 per cent. beer.

The fellow who used to leave his horse where he would gnaw the bark off shade trees is now scraping those same trees by cutting corners too fast in his fliver.

The government officials who claim that cost of living has gone down, must have to spend considerable time directing the people to the places where these lower prices can be obtained.

During the war the Germans stopped industrial plants by putting bombs under them, but now they have found that "Red" workers tie up business just as effectively and without risk.

Although the American people seem to believe in the "open shop," the book agents need not think they can go in and take everyone's time for half hour showing them their illustrated editions.

A lot of the "wets" who are weeping so bitterly over prohibition are the same ones who never read anything but the baseball news when prohibition was being acted on by Congress and the Legislatures.

The worst kickers about corrupt government are usually the fellows who can't spend their valuable time to go to the polls. And there are a lot of people whose grandfathers got out with a gun to make the country free, who can't go to the polls if it happens to rain a little.

Governor-elect Ritchie will take charge of his office on the second Monday in January. He has the co-operation of the solid Democratic party. He was, as an exchange notes, the choice of the whole party for the nomination, and no element of it did more than any other for his election.

THE COST OF UNEMPLOYMENT

The business community and the consuming public have never correctly figured what it costs to run an industry in an irregular way. One reason alleged by the soft coal miners for striking is that they have to loaf a good deal of the time when the demand for coal is small. Now when this condition prevails in any industry, it follows that higher wages have to be paid during the limited time when the work is going on. If such industries could be stabilized so that they would run evenly the year through, then it would not cost so much to get the work done.

It is claimed in regard to the coal industry that this can't be done, as so much more coal is used in the winter.
But if the public could only realize the additional cost of running an industry in an intermittent way, they would see that it would pay to co-operate and spread their purchases evenly through the year so that the industries could run on a minimum cost.

It is usually possible to buy coal cheaper in the spring than in the fall.
It would seem as if railroads, manufacturers and the public generally ought to see that it would be for their interest to buy more coal in the spring so that the mines could run regularly and at a minimum expense.

A great many labor troubles could be avoided if the industries could be operated on this even basis all through the year. And in most cases they could run this way if the public realized the advantage and necessity of it and would distribute their purchases evenly through the year.

There ought to be a nation wide campaign for the purpose of stabilizing all intermittent industries. The public should be persuaded to distribute their purchases so that shops and mines could run regularly and avoid the periods of unemployment that bring suffering to the workers and create social unrest.

BEATING THE REDS

When the "Reds" send their agitators all over the country to speak on soap boxes and to instill their ideas of destruction, there should be an organized effort to oppose it. Speakers with intelligence, human sympathy and ability to appeal to the masses, should be sent around to work against this poison.
Let them also speak in the streets and at mill gates and educate the people into sound ideas of economics and political progress.

Conservative people and politicians make a great mistake in the character of the appeals they make to the mass of the people. They must recognize that multitudes of wage earners find it hard to live under existing conditions and are restless. No influence can be exercised on these people, except by those able to understand and sympathize with their difficulties. They can be shown that they are faring better under the present order of society than any people ever fared before and that bolshivism would reduce this country to misery like that in Russia. They can be shown that they have the most to lose by establishing the soviet idea.

Any speaker who expects to influence them must see things from their point of view. He must put himself in their place. The conservative elements can not gain their support unless they present some constructive, reasonable and practical program for advancing living conditions for the great mass of wage earners. But unless a systematic and sincere effort is made along these lines to counteract bolshivist propaganda, these false ideas are bound to gain a considerable hold and to make a lot of trouble.

It does not follow that because a man has the big head there is much in it.

More Action, Please

There has been much talk of deporting dangerous aliens. So far as the public knows, few have been deported.
Agents of the Department of Justice have just rounded up another batch of radicals who came to this country as volunteers to teach Americans how rotten our form of government is. In various strong jails they now await judicial action that shall pave the way for their deportation.

It would be a splendid demonstration of efficient Americanism were every one of these noxious aliens loaded at once on vessels Europe-bound and hastened on their last transatlantic voyage.
There is too much ceremony about starting alien revolutionists for home.

Less bluster and more action is needed. It is a shame to profane a good American jail by confining an alien advocate of sovietism past the first sailing date for Europe—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

No less a personage than Mr. Hoover has predicted that in a few weeks prices will drop 35 per cent.

Only A Cold

Are you ill? Is often answered—"Oh! it's only a cold," as if a cold was a matter of little consequence, but people are beginning to learn that a common cold is a matter not to be trifled with, that some of the most serious diseases start with a cold. As soon as the first indication of a cold appears take Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. Remember that the sooner you get rid of your cold the less the danger, and this remedy will help you to throw it off.

Georgia C. Brittingham vs. James Henry Brittingham, In the Circuit Court for Somerset County, Maryland

The object of this suit is to procure a decree divorcing the plaintiff a vinculo matrimonii from the defendant. The bill states that the plaintiff and defendant were married on the 18th day of December, 1912, and resided together in the State of Virginia, in said Somerset County, Maryland, and in the city of Philadelphia, until the 16th day of August, 1914; that although the conduct of the plaintiff toward the defendant has always been kind, affectionate and above reproach, the said defendant, without any just cause or reason, abandoned and deserted the plaintiff, and has declared his intention to live with her no longer, and that such abandonment has continued uninterruptedly for at least three years, and is delirgerate and final, and the separation of the parties beyond any reasonable expectation of reconciliation; that the said plaintiff and defendant have had one child born to them from said marriage, viz: a son, Cristey King Brittingham, 6 years old;
that said defendant, James Henry Brittingham, is a non-resident of the State of Maryland, residing in the City of Philadelphia, State of Pennsylvania.

It is thereupon this 12th day of November, 1919, ordered by the Circuit Court for Somerset County, in Equity, that the plaintiff, by causing a copy of this order to be inserted in some newspaper published in said Somerset County once in each of four successive weeks before the 15th day of December next, give notice to the said non-resident defendant of the object and substance of this bill warning him to be and appear in this Court in person or by solicitor on or before the 1st day of January next to show cause, if any he has, why a decree ought not to be passed as prayed.

Mr. Rockefeller has given $10,000,000 more for medical research. The money will be invested and the income added to that of the Rockefeller Institute which the donor had already endowed for this good purpose. The Institute studies diseases to learn their nature and causes and how to cure them if that be possible.

The fall and winter gunning season in Somerset county got off to a flying start Monday of last week. By the break of day the sportsmen were in the field with dog and gun. Game is reported to be plentiful in some sections. This season, so far, there have been 776 gunners' licenses issued by the Clerk of the Circuit Court.

Chautauqua, with its many pleasant features, and some rather tedious ones, was well patronized in Princess Anne this season. The attendance at each performance and lecture was exceedingly good. A very interesting program was rendered throughout the three days' entertainment, ranging from light, entertaining music to the opera. A distinct novelty this year was the Hawaiian singers and players. The Chautauqua is assured for next year and, without doubt, next year's program will be as great a success as the one just ended.

State's Attorney L. Creston Beauchamp spent last Wednesday in Snow Hill.

Mr. C. J. Fisch, who recently sold his farm at Venton, has moved with his family to Baltimore to reside.

Smith, 21, both of Accomac county, Virginia. Roy Bloxom, 21, and Nettie Annis, 19, both of Hopeton, Va. S. Norman Holland, 25, and Grace Thomas, 24, both of Mt. Vernon.

New M. E. Church at Ocean City

Sunday, November 9th, was a memorable day in Ocean City and Methodist Episcopal history. The corner stone of the long dreamed of and talked of M. E. Church was laid. At the 11 o'clock service District Supt. Vaughn Collins was the preacher. At 2.30 Dr. Jos. T. Herson, Rev. W. E. Greenfield, Rev. T. O. Bennett, Dr. Collins, Hon. L. A. Bennett and Senator Orlando Harrison, were the speakers. Fulton Powell also assisted greatly in raising the $5,138 which came in response. Members of all three churches there joined in contributing this amount. Rev. W. E. Greenfield was the preacher of the evening. $2,200 had already been raised in Ocean City.

Baptists Eager for Drive

The great Baptist 75-Million Campaign, for which extensive preparations have been made during the last three months, will be formally launched on Sunday, November 30th, and will last but one week.

The task of the Maryland organization, which will be to raise $750,000 as its share of the big fund, is regarded as the largest ever undertaken by the denomination, either in the state or the nation. From the Baltimore headquarters at the Bible House, information comes to the effect that Maryland and Baltimore are ready for the drive, and there is not the least doubt but that both will be among the first of the large cities and states to go over the top with their quotas.

Chincoteague Bay Bridge

The building of a bridge across Chincoteague bay from the center of Chincoteague to a point near Horntown is planned, the money to be provided by a public service corporation capitalized at $100,000 and a $45,000 bond issue. All the stock has been subscribed except $15,000. The Pocomoke City Board of Trade has appointed a committee composed of L. Paul Ewell, John W. Ennis, C. E. Byrd, F. L. Bonneville and F. M. Wilson, to place this amount of stock in Pocomoke City, which is a commercial center for the Upper Accomac people.

A concrete road from Horntown, three miles long, to connect with the Maryland State road, at the Virginia line, is a part of the bridge plan. Chincoteague has a population of 5,000, and the bridge would be 13 miles from Pocomoke City.

In spite of the fact that most other workmen are going on strikes the lumberman still continues to work for his board.

LET NOTHING MAR REJOICING

Surely This Year All Should Keep Thanksgiving With Heart Full of Praise and Gratitude.

Now once again both you and I are going to keep Thanksgiving. And shall we be discouraged by the lofty cost of living? And shall we spurnly dine and sup, still H o o v e r e s q u e l y slaving—and shall we pass the Turkey up because we're used to saving?

I think I hear you answer "Nay"! And I, for one, won't do it; I shall cut loose, Thanksgiving day, and eagerly go to it! I shall not fuss with low-priced meat, with tripe or stringy mutton—I'm going to hop right in and eat until I bust a button. With jellies made of grape and quince, no substitute to thin 'em; and pies of good, old-fashioned mince—with meat and brandy in 'em And if I want a suckling pig to sup plement the gobbler, I'll have it—I don't care a fig! And also sherry cobbler!

For never in the memory of anybody living have people seen, it seems to me, so wondrous a Thanksgiving. The Hun is licked, the world is free, the cruel war is ended—how can our celebration be one feature short of splendid?

Al no, we do not need to waste the goodly gifts of heaven—but why deprive the food of taste, the wheat-en bread of leaven? We needn't feed the garbage can nor choke the refuse hopper; but let us treat the inner man, and do the job up proper!

Let's emulate the Pilgrim Dads, by whom it was invented; although they did not roll in seeds, their conscience was contented. Their crops were short, the country new, 'twas hard to make a living; November's tempests fiercely blew—and yet they kept Thanksgiving. Upon that day they didn't think an epicure a sinner—they gathered all their meat and drink and had one glorious dinner. The Pilgrims, they were goodly men, the times were most religious; they thought it sinful, even then, to found a feast prodigious. Let us rejoice, as then they did, in sweet and hard-earned freedom—let's hail each woman, man and kid and take 'em in and feed 'em!—Ted Robinson in Cleveland Plain Dealer.

A REAL NUGGET

ENGLISH GENTLEMEN DISCOVERED SECRET

FOUND OUT HOW TO BEAT HIGH COST OF LIVING AND PROVIDED IT TO ALL COUNTRYSIDES.

There were no War Savings Stamps or Treasury Savings Certificates in the days of Samuel Johnson, the famous philosopher, but the most effective weapon against profiteers and the high cost of living was known and employed as effectively then as now.

Boswell in his life of Johnson calls attention to the successful manner in which Mr. Peregrin Langdon mastered the art of living in the eighteenth century. Mr. Langdon seems to have been a wonder even in the frugal countryside where he lived. According to Boswell he had an annuity of 200 pounds a year (about $1,000), and while that sum probably exceeded an equal amount today in purchasing power, this is what he was able to do with it.

He supported himself, his sister (who paid $90 a year for her board) and his niece. "The servants," says the biographer, "were two maids and two men in livery; the appointments to his table were neat and handsome. He frequently entertained company at dinner and then his table was well served with as many dishes as were usual at the tables of other gentlemen of the neighborhood. His own appearance as to clothes was generally neat and plain. He had always a post-chaise and kept three horses."

Mr. Langdon's nephew, in writing to Dr. Johnson, gave away the secret formula by which all this was made possible. He declared that Mr. Langdon was able to do so much with so little because he paid for everything as soon as he had it except alone what were current expenses such as rent for his house and servant's wages, and these he paid at the stated time with the utmost exactness. He gave notice to the tradespeople of the neighboring towns that they should no longer have his custom if they let any of his servants have anything without paying for it. Thus he put out of his power to commit those imprudences to which those are liable that defer their payments by using their money some other way than where it ought to go.

In other words Mr. Langdon saved first and spent afterwards. That is the fundamental principle which the savings division of the treasury department is seeking to instill into the American people through encouragement of thrift and safe investment in government securities.

Times have changed since Mr. Langdon's day but principles have not, and his methods of getting the utmost from his income through economy, elimination of waste, wise buying, systematic saving and safe investment are as applicable today as when Mr. Johnson lived.

Mr. Langdon's nephew knew there of he spoke when he concluded his description of his uncle's methods as follows: "These few particulars may afford instruction and be an incentive to that wise art of living which he so successfully practiced."

SCOTCH SONGS TO DATE.

If a body met a body
Coming through the rye:
If a body save a dollar
Why, then, bye and bye,
When the shiftless people holler
"Money's scarce and tight,"
He who saves the nimble dollar,
Will come through all right.

Should auld acquaintance be forgot
And never come to mind?
Why, no!—unless he is a sot
And better left behind.
But one thing you must not forget,
A thing more true than funny:
"When your mind is on savings set It's easy saving money!"

Most capitalists began in a small way. Invest in W. S. S. and insure a comfortable income for your children.

DECLARES SHE LOST BIG SUM IN OIL DEAL

Woman Who Took Risk Hoping to Get Large Profit is Now Suing to Recover Five Thousand Dollars.

Suit was filed in a western court a few days ago by a woman, who alleges she lost $5,000 in a fraudulent oil stock transaction. She would have had no trouble if she had invested in United States securities that the government is now urging its citizens to buy.

The woman wanted 5,000 shares in an oil concern that promised good returns. A man, she alleges, said he could obtain the stock for $2 a share. She gave $5,000 in cash and her note for the balance, and then learned that the stock cost only $1 a share.

There is absolutely no chance for fraud in the purchase of the United States Treasury Savings Certificates that may now be obtained through the Federal Reserve Bank or the governmental authorized agency. These new certificates are issued in denominations of $100 or $1,000 and the buyers take no chance.

Of course Uncle Sam does not promise any fabulous interest. But he does promise a splendid return. The government pays 4.27 per cent, and when tax exemptions are reckoned, the investments just about stack up with the 5 1/2 or 6 per cent investments offered in substantial commercial enterprise.

But the beauty of an investment with Uncle Sam is that one's principal is absolutely secure, and the interest and principal are certain to be forthcoming on the promised day.

HAVE YOU GOT MONEY?

"He's got money."
How familiar is that phrase; and what a lot of meaning it conveys. It expresses a certain admiration, though the tribute may be reluctantly bestowed.

From the viewpoint of anybody who spends his earnings as fast as he gets them, the persons who "have money" stand on a different plane, altogether superior to the ordinary run of folks. By that mere fact they inspire respect.

If you have a little money, nobody can bully you. On the other hand, if you have none, you are helpless and do not dare to speak up for your rights.

Without money, one is necessarily at other people's mercy. There is no escaping that proposition. Obviously, then, the ordinarily common-sensible person ought to have the gumption to start in, as early as possible in life, to put pennies and dimes together and create a little capital.

The little capital thus created will mean independence—the most practical and worthwhile thing in life. W. S. S. will enable you to acquire capital and insure future comfort and prosperity.

BE YOUR OWN CREDITOR.

Benjamin Franklin, the pioneer of American thrift, said:
"The borrower is slave to the lender, and the debtor to the creditor. If you would know the value of money try to borrow some."

Be your own creditor. So regulate your expenditures that the first charge against your income will be savings. Put aside a certain proportion of your money for necessary spending in the future.

Your savings are a safeguard against want in old age, and against the rainy day. They form a fund for that golden opportunity that may be on the way.

Your savings are safe and readily available if invested in War Savings Stamps, guaranteed by the government and earning 4 per cent interest, compounded quarterly.

Make a start with Thrift Stamps, costing 25 cents each. Your W. S. S. at maturity will give you a bank account.

PREVENT MOTTLES IN BUTTER

Primarily Caused by an Uneven Distribution of Salt or by Insufficient Working.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

Mottled butter is frequently found on the market, and, even though it may be of very good flavor, it is strongly discriminated against by the purchaser. As this defect is one of workmanship, it can be overcome by the application of proper methods or the part of the buttermaker.

Mottles are caused primarily by an uneven distribution of salt in the butter. This may be produced by insufficient working of the butter or by churning, washing, and working it at a very low temperature, or by washing or working it at a temperature several degrees higher or lower than the churning temperature.

When the quantity of butter made in one churning is much less than usual it is necessary to work it a greater number of revolutions of the churn than usual in order to produce the same results on the butter.

Extremely low temperatures of churning, washing, and working should be avoided, because they produce so firm a butter that it is only with great difficulty that the salt can be worked uniformly into it. High temperatures of churning, washing, and working must also be avoided to prevent an abnormal loss of fat in the buttermilk and also the making of a greasy, leaky butter.

Working the Butter.

Great variations in temperature during the manufacturing process should always be avoided. Under normal conditions the temperature of the wash water should be the same as or within two degrees of that of the buttermilk.

FLY REPELLENT IS USEFUL

Spraying Should Not Be Done Just Before Milking, as Milk Absorbs Odors Very Rapidly.

The following homemade fly repellents to ease old Brindle at milking time are recommended by Horace Jones, instructor in dairy husbandry at South Dakota State college: (1) 100 parts fish oil, 50 parts oil of tar, and 1 part crude carbolic acid. Apply with a sprayer. (2) One pound common laundry soap, 4 gallons water, 1 gallon crude petroleum, and 4 ounces powdered naphthalin. Dissolve the soap in the water and the naphthalin in the crude petroleum.

Care should be taken that the spraying is not done immediately before milking as milk absorbs odors very readily. If the cows are milked in the stable the milk should be removed immediately after milking to a cool place where no odor of the fly repellent exists.

DAIRY NOTES

The pig and cow pasture should be separate.

Give the young calf an early chance to nibble at grass.

Spray religiously all stalls and whitewash all parts of the stable.

Dairy cows, or all milk cows for that matter, require large quantities of water.

Take good care of the calves, for more of them are needed on many farms.

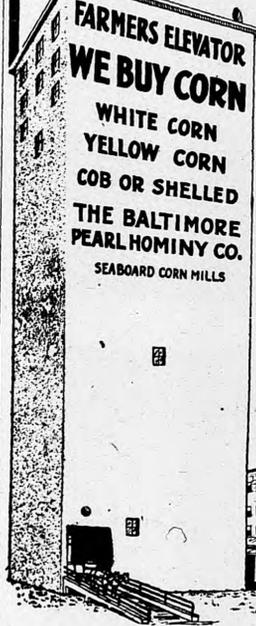

There isn't much play about dairying but no other job pays better for hard work.

The heifer bred too early always remains stunted in growth and her milk flow is shortened for all time.

Keep dirt out of the milk. Strain through cotton or filter cloth. Use only clean, sterile strainer cloths.

BAPTIST WOMEN TO RAISE $15,000,000

FIFTH OF SUM SOUGHT IN FIVE-YEAR PROGRAM WILL COME FROM THEM.

ARE DOING A LARGE WORK

Hospitals, Mountain Schools, Good Will Centers and Church Building Funds Maintained by Them in Addition to Regular Gifts.

MISS KATHLEEN MALLORY
Corresponding Secretary, W. M. U., Baltimore.

Evidencing the larger sphere which women have come to occupy in church life, as well as other activities, when the Baptist 75 Million Campaign was decided upon at the meeting of the Southern Baptist Convention in Atlanta last May, the women, through their regular organization, the Woman's Missionary Union, at once agreed to be responsible for one-fifth of the sum sought, or $15,000,000. This means that the Baptist women of the South will raise for missions of all kinds, Christian education and benevolences, the sum of $3,000,000 a year for the next five years, in addition to their contributions to local enterprises and special work.

Through the channels of the Woman's Missionary Union, with headquarters at Baltimore, Md., the Baptist women of the South have since their organization contributed more than $5,000,000 in cash to various denominational purposes. With the addition of boxes of food and clothing sent to orphanages and other benevolent institutions, the total of their contributions through this channel has reached $5,710,433.71.

Miss Kathleen Mallory is the corresponding secretary of the Woman's Missionary Union, and in appreciation of the service she has rendered in that connection the Baptist women of Alabama have established the Kathleen Mallory Hospital for Women at Laichow-Fu, Shantung, China, Miss Mallory being a native of Alabama.

Women of many of the other states have also undertaken special enterprises of their own. Those of Georgia for instance, established the Ayers Hospital for Women at Hwanghai, China, a girls' school at Kumamoto Japan, the Catherine Bryan Kindergarten School at Canton, China, and the Mary P. Willingham School for Girls at Blue Ridge, Ga., a school designed especially for the education of girls in the mountainous section of that state.

Many of the other state unions have special projects such as Good Will Centers in the tenement, factory and mining districts, where effort is made to bring more sunshine and enlightenment and love into the homes and lives of needy families, especially those of foreign birth; church building funds, scholarships for young women who want to obtain training for special Christian service, and similar undertakings.

The general W. M. U., representing all the women of the Southern Baptist Convention owns, and operates the Women's Training School at Louisville, Ky., which has already sent out 700 trained women for special service in all parts of the world; and has established the Margaret Fund for the education in the Baptist schools of the South the sons and daughters of missionaries on the foreign fields, and the Fannie E. S. Heck Memorial, a church building fund established in honor of one of the greatest leaders Southern Baptist women has known.

But money for the support of these institutions as well as that for the payment of the women's pledge of $15,000,000 in the 75 Million Campaign, will be raised by the actual work of the women and through economy and sacrifice. Church fairs, bazaars, suppers, ice cream socials and the like, are frowned upon by the organized Baptist women of the South as unworthy means for raising funds for carrying forward the work of the kingdom of God and their contributions will not come from this source, if it is suggested.

BETTER PROVISION PROMISED PASTORS

BAPTIST 75 MILLION CAMPAIGN WILL RAISE BIG SUM FOR RETIRED MINISTERS.

CARE FOR THE WIDOWS, TOO

Total of $5,000,000 Included On Program For This Purpose—Insurance Feature Also Included.

REV. J. M. RUSSELL
Typical Retired Minister.

While the salaries paid the ministers of Baptist, as well as other churches in the South, have been far too small in the past to enable them to lay aside a competency for old age a long step in remedying this situation is promised in the Baptist 75 Million Campaign, which proposes to raise $2,500,000 for the relief of aged ministers during the next five years, and then bring this sum up to $5,000,000 during the two years immediately following the campaign.

Looking to the adequate care of hundreds of aged Baptist ministers and ministers' widows in the ranks of the Southern Baptist Convention who are now in need of financial assistance, this body, at a recent session, authorized the creation of the Relief and Annuity Board of Dallas, Texas, with Dr. William Lunsford as corresponding secretary.

Heretofore the average annual salary of Baptist ministers in the South has been less than $500, meaning that a large number of preachers received considerably less than that sum, making it necessary that they engage in other occupations during the week in order to support themselves and their families, and rendering it practically impossible for them to lay aside any money as a support for their old age.

The establishment of the Relief and Annuity Board and the decision to raise $5,000,000 during the next seven years for the relief of the aged ministers already in need of assistance and the more adequate care of the men who hereafter give their lives to the Christian ministry without an opportunity to save up a competency to tide them through sickness or care for them in their declining days, has met with a cordial reception at the hands of Southern Baptists, and it is believed the provision of better treatment for the ministers in their retirement will not only tend to cause young men to look with greater favor upon the ministry as a life work, but will bring the members of local congregations generally to see the need of paying pastors more adequate salaries before these pastors become old and helpless.

By the addition of an annuity feature it is possible for retired ministers to receive an annuity of $500 after they have reached the age of 68, and provided they have been in the ministry for thirty years. If they have served less than 30 years the annuity is reduced by a certain proportion. To participate in this annuity a minister must make monthly, quarterly or annual payments sufficient to bring in an income of $100 per year when invested, on the principle of regular life insurance, while this is supplemented by $400 provided by the denomination. A minister's participation in the annuity fund is in addition to his claims upon the relief fund.

If the minister is disabled at any time after joining the annuity fund, he will receive a certain annuity throughout the period of disability. If he dies his widow will receive an annuity of 60 per cent of what would have gone to her husband as long as she lives, and should the widow die her annuity will be divided among minor children until they become self-supporting, marry or reach the age of 21.

The board has received an endowment of $100,000 from the Baptist Sunday School Board at Nashville not included in the 75 Million Campaign, and this sum will be divided equally between the relief and annuity departments. This enables the board to begin work immediately and assistance is already being given to 285 aged ministers and ministers' widows.

PRETTY MYTHS OF BUSHMEN

Real Poetry in Legends Handed Down Among the Aborigines of Australia.

Fish were not always fish, and did not always stay under water, according to the story of the blacks of the Australian bush. They say that fishes once lived on land and went hunting just as other people do.

One day the fishes were gathered together in a camp near a river, the story goes. It was very cold, and the fishes were huddled around a fire trying to get warm. Suddenly a great wind came up and blew both the fishes and the fire into the water. The fishes just crowded around the fire under the waves and kept warm. That is how the fish first came to stay in rivers and streams, the bushmen say. They add that the fire is still under the water, and that is why it is always warmer under water on a cold day than it is on land. They also say that the crow once owned all the fire there was on earth, and that he kept it in a bag. One day it dropped from his bill and a sparrow hawk saw it fall. He dove after it and grabbed the bag. When he flew away the crow gave chase and overtook him. The two birds fought, and in the mixup the fire fell out of the bag and set the grass and leaves ablaze. The crow tried in vain to prevent the spread of the flames by stamping on them and rolling in them, but the fire spread over the earth and everybody got some. To this day the crow is black from rolling on the burned grass, they say.

FINE OLD ENGLISH DWELLING

Stokesay Castle, Dating From 1291, Has Many Unusual Attractions for the Tourist.

Stokesay castle, which dates back to 1291, is probably one of the finest of all England's old dwellings. Although called a castle, this ancient dwelling is really a fortified manor, and all of its ancient characteristics have been maintained through the last 500 years.

The great hall, which is over 50 feet long and 30 feet wide, is easily the most striking feature of the old manor house. The windows of the castle are all large, and the hall was thus made a much more pleasant place to live in than the majority of houses built in England at that time.

During the thirteenth century the builders first began to make English dwelling houses pleasant to live in, instead of mere places of shelter or defense. Windows of the king's houses were ordered to be glazed, outside doors to have protecting porches, fireplaces to be built, and numerous other household additions made. In some places the windows were filled with painted glass and the walls decorated with rare paintings.

Bluffing Among the Reptiles. The ancient practice of bluffing is not limited to the human species. Various animals pretend to be worse than they are.

The hog-nosed snake is a perfectly harmless little fellow, with no capacities in the way of poison, and yet this reptile, which is rather pretty, is given such sinister names as flat-headed adder and sand viper, and is usually killed on sight. This is because it has the habit of flattening its head and puffing out its neck and hissing violently, which is for no other purpose than to frighten off intruders. It is a plain bluff, to give the impression that the reptile has poison fangs.

This counterfeit is usually taken at its true value, and affords the hog-nosed snake considerable protection, except in the case of human beings, who destroy the innocent reptile on sight, when it is not only harmless but useful also in keeping down vermin.

Grecian Marriage-Gesture.

There are two noted statues of the Venus Genetrix in which the Grecian marriage-gesture is illustrated—one a Roman copy of a Greek original held to represent a celebrated type by Alcamenes, in the Louvre, Paris. The goddess is glad in a very light Ionian tunic, and with raised right arm lifts her himation from behind toward her head, forming the Greek gesture symbolic of marriage. The left hand extends the apple.

The other, an antique marble statue, in the Vatican museum, is held to be an excellent copy of the bronze cult-statue by Arcesilaus which stood in the temple of Venus of the Forum Julium. The figure is fully draped in very thin, clinging drapery; she extends the apple with her left hand, and with the right raises her mantle over the shoulder toward the head—the symbolical marriage-gesture.

Japanese "Maru."

The word "maru" attached to the name of every merchant ship and commonly accepted as meaning "ship" in reality has no known meaning. According to a Japanese authority the word is the survival of a custom centuries old. There are two opinions as to how the custom started. The story, the more likely to be the true one, is that in ancient times the Japanese attached "maru" to the name of anything precious or highly prized, as a sword or a baby. It was first applied to a ship's name about 2,000 years ago, when the Empress Jingo sent an expedition to Korea. She added the word to the name of the ship that transported the troops to Korea. Ever since then "maru" has been associated with the name of a steamship or sailing vessel. It is never used with the name of a war-ship.

DAIRY FACTS

BETTER LIVE STOCK DESIRED

Authentic Incidents Related Showing What May Be Expected From Improved Methods.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

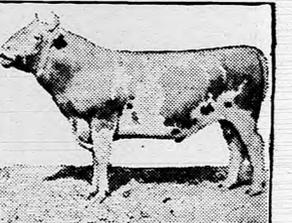

The following authenticated incidents are cited by the United States department of agriculture in its "Better Sires—Better Stock" campaign to show what American farmers and stockmen may expect through improved methods of breeding and handling animals.

One Cow Equals Five.—A New Jersey boy was influenced to buy a high-grade cow for $155. The cow on freshening gave 24 quarts of milk and kept it up for a long period. The father owned five cows, the average for the neighborhood. They were fresh in the spring. Their product did not equal the product of the cow owned by the son—five times the labor and five times the feed, in comparison with one good cow.

High-Class Bully Beef.—An Oklahoma farmer had two registered Short-horn yearling bulls that he priced at $100 each for breeding purposes. A butcher saw the bulls, asked the price, but learned that they were registered and that it would take $100 each to buy them. He bought them, killed them, and stated that they were the cheapest cattle he had bought for some time, because they cut the better kinds of beef and more of it.

Valuable Stock—Valuable Offspring.—In several counties of North Carolina more purebred live stock has been purchased during the past year at the higher prices which have prevailed than in any other year. Hogs were never so high, and yet hundreds of boys bought purebred pigs at high prices with the expectation of selling their offspring. Through the county agents many hundreds of pigs bred by the boys have been sold at good prices and this is stimulating the extension of purebred hogs.

Better Poultry—More Meat.—In a southern community, following the introduction of well-bred poultry for breeding, there was noticeable improvement in the size of the next generation of the fowls. The average weight of the birds marketed was 25 per cent greater than previously, according to the observation of an experienced poultry buyer.

CHEAP FLY PAINT FOR COWS

Formula Given by Expert of Kansas Agricultural College—Apply It With Brush When Cool.

It is often cheaper and easier to buy the mixture rather than make it for a few cows, but if you want to make it yourself here is the formula as given by George A. Dean, professor of entomology in the Kansas Agricultural college:

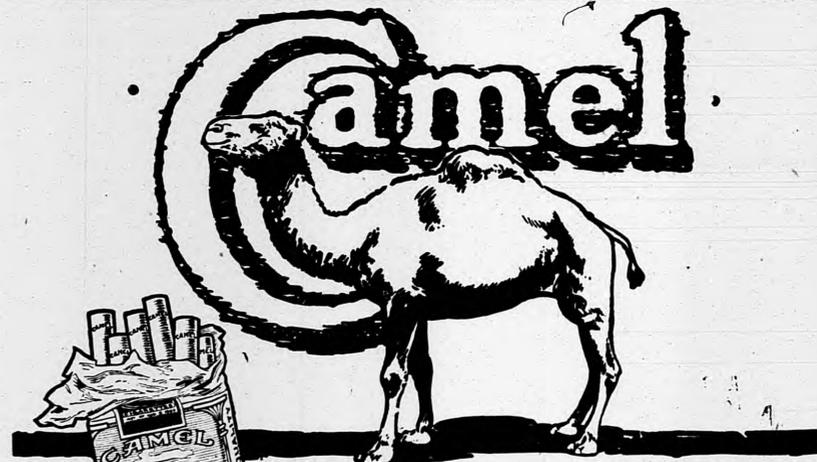

For cattle use two parts of pulverized resin, one part of soap shavings, one-half part of water, one part of kerosene, one part oil of tar, one part fish oil, three parts water.

In making this boil the resin, soap and one-half part of water until the resin is dissolved and then add the three parts water, oil of tar, kerosene and fish oil, and boil well for 15 minutes, being careful to keep the mixture well stirred. Put it on with a brush when cool. In using this mixture it will be necessary to make an application every day for two or three days, and after this once every three or five days is sufficient.

ADVISABLE TO SKIM CREAM

Saving Can Be Accomplished by Turn of Screw and Is Well Worth Effort Required.

In skimming a hundred pounds of 35 per cent cream 15 more pounds of skim milk is kept on the farm than when the same amount of 20 per cent cream is taken. This saving can be accomplished by a turn of the cream screw, and at present feed prices is well worth the effort required. More skim milk on the farms also means more calves raised to furnish meat and milk for all. Milk producers are paid for the butterfat in cream, not for the water and other constituents. This makes it advisable to skim a rich cream, so that as much valuable skim milk as possible may be saved for feeding purposes.

Farm Census In January

In announcing that the department in an advisory capacity is assisting the Census Bureau in preparing to take the 1920 census, the Department of Agriculture stated last week that the date of taking the census of the farmers had been changed from April 1st to January 1st. The change was deemed advisable because the farmer usually is busy in the spring.

The statement urges farmers to acquaint themselves as thoroughly as possible with matters on which they will be questioned by the enumerator. Many of these, it was said, will cover new subjects. Statistics the enumerators will seek cover farm acreage, incomes, values and expenses; uses of the land, amount idle, drainage, live stock, farm facilities such as tractors, automobiles, etc., and fruit and forest products.

Statistics obtained from this census, it was stated, largely will determine the future land policy of the Government.

Your neighbors recommend this remedy—have proved its merit in many tests. Princess Anne readers should take fresh courage in the straightforward testimony of a Princess Anne citizen.

Mrs. K. L. Smith, 106 Beckford Ave., says: "About two years ago I was in a bad way from severe backache. My back was very painful, especially when I stooped over and sharp pains caught me when I straightened up. I was very miserable and one day I learned of Doan's Kidney Pills. After using two boxes, I was rid of the trouble. I can say nothing too good for Doan's Kidney Pills."

Price 60c. at all dealers. Don't simply ask for a kidney remedy—get Doan's Kidney Pills, the same that Mrs. Smith had. Foster-Milburn, Co., Mfrs., Buffalo, N. Y.

Good Idea Of Big Store

A large department store in New York has bought a farm, to be used especially as a vacation place and rest cure for its hundreds of employees. The expenses will be made very low, and the employees are under no obligation to spend their vacations there.

Constipation

Most laxatives and cathartics afford only temporary relief and should be used only for that purpose. When you want permanent relief take Chamberlain's Tablets and be careful to observe the directions with each package. These tablets not only move the bowels, but improve the appetite and strengthen the digestion.

SOMERSET MEDICAL SOCIETY

Decides To Raise Fee Schedule And Discuss Condition Of Our Roads

The Somerset County Medical Society met in Princess Anne last Wednesday. Those present were: Drs. R. R. Norris, W. F. Hall, C. E. Collins, W. H. Coulbourne, of Crisfield; Ira A. B. Allen, George C. Coulbourne, of Marion; C. W. Wainwright and H. M. Lankford, of Princess Anne. A very interesting talk was given by Dr. R. R. Norris on his war experiences.

On account of the high prices of everything the society was compelled to raise the fee schedule for the whole county. This is the last county society on the Eastern Shore to raise fees, but they are now compelled to do it in order to meet expenses. The doctors say that their fees have not been raised in proportion to the high cost of other things.

Before the adjournment of the meeting the doctors discussed the condition of the public roads of Somerset county and prepared a letter which will be presented to the Board of County Commissioners when they meet today (Tuesday). The letter follows:

"The Somerset County Medical Society wishes to call your attention to the fact that the county roads were in a deplorable condition last winter, even though the winter was a mild one, and that the prospects are that they will be even worse this coming winter.

"There were a great many people who did not get the necessary medical attention last winter because of the miserable road conditions.

"As physicians we travel practically every road in the county at all seasons of the year and we think the improvement to the roads should be very much greater considering the amount of money expended.

"We therefore request that when your Board appoints the Road Engineer it will appoint a man of ability, integrity and industry, regardless of his political affiliation."

The meeting was followed by a dinner at the Washington Hotel at which the visiting members were the guests of the Princess Anne physicians.

An Excellent Educational Plan

An arrangement has been made with the State Board of Education and the Maryland State Normal School, by which the Senior Class members of the Normal School will be enabled to go to their respective counties to do practice work and the teachers, whose places they take, will have the opportunity of going to the Normal School for six weeks, free of charge for board or tuition. The time arranged for this exchange is to begin February 2nd, 1920, and close March 12th, 1920. In other words, the Senior Class and home teachers will exchange places for the six weeks.

The arrangement for this county has been completed and the two seniors of the Normal School to return to Somerset are Miss Mary H. Cochrane, of Crisfield, and Miss Elizabeth Stevenson, of Marion. They will exchange places with Miss Nellie Nelson and Miss Ethel Johnson, of the elementary department of the Crisfield High School.

Secretary Glass Now Senator

The sixth change in President Wilson's Cabinet, since he took office nearly seven years ago, is caused by the retirement of Hon. Carter Glass, Secretary of the Treasury. Mr. Glass has just been appointed by Governor Davis, of Virginia, to fill the unexpired term of Senator Martin, who recently died. Senator Martin had only lately been re-elected, and the term does not expire until March 4th, 1925. Before he succeeded Mr. McAdoo as Secretary of the Treasury Mr. Glass served several terms in the House of Representatives and was chairman of the Committee on Banking and Currency. In that position he had a great deal to do with the establishment of the present system of Federal Reserve Banks. The measure was known as the "Glass-Owen bill." At home in Lynchburg, Va., Mr. Glass is a newspaper editor and publisher. He has accepted the appointment to the Senate.

Bugeye Sinks In Storm

When the bugeye Daniels, from Potomac river to Crisfield, loaded with oysters, sprang a leak and sank during a heavy storm last Tuesday, Captain Tyler, the commander, and his brother, both of Smith's Island, barely escaped drowning. The vessel, loaded with 500 bushels of oysters, went down in about 20 feet of water, just inside Narrow Island. The yawl had been cut adrift to help lighten the cargo, but to no avail. Captain Tyler and brother, in a small skiff, lashed themselves to the top of the mast as the vessel rested on the bottom, and remained there from noon until dusk, when Capt. Dyke Taylor, of Federalsburg, came up in his large gasoline boat, and after several unsuccessful attempts, succeeded in rescuing them.

To Our Subscribers

Owing to the great scarcity and large increase in the price of newspaper paper—2 to 5 cents per pound higher than last year—and all labor conditions, it is impossible for us to issue this paper at the rate of $1.00 per year. Therefore, beginning on January 1st, 1920, the subscription price will be $1.50 a year in advance.

Every subscriber to the Marylander and Herald whose pink address slip is marked "18" or "19" is requested to pay his subscription. If the slip reads January "18" or "19," or February, or March, or any other month in the years 1918 or 1919, it means your subscription has expired and you should send that amount by mail or call at this office and settle the same at once.

All subscribers who are in arrears after January 1st, 1920, will be removed from our subscription list as the cost of production makes it necessary to cut down our output to those who pay promptly.

Women Delegates

Women may sit as delegates in the Republican and Democratic national conventions and vote for the nomination of a candidate for President of the United States, according to an opinion given Friday by Attorney General Brundage, of Chicago.

The opinion reverses all practices in effect since Illinois became a suffrage state and may result in the election of some women delegates to the national conventions of both political parties next year.

DEATH OF F. M. WIDDOWSON

Prominent Farmer Dies At Former Home In Pennsylvania

Mr. F. M. Widdowson died at the home of his sister, Mrs. Jean F. Long, in Indiana, Pa., last Tuesday night of Bright's disease, aged 53 years, where he, Mrs. Widdowson and their son, Neal, had gone on a visit.

The remains were brought home last Thursday on the noon train, accompanied by Mrs. Widdowson, her son Neal, Mr. Widdowson's brother, Mr. Edward Widdowson, of Indiana, Pa., and Mrs. Widdowson's brother, Mr. J. S. Rowe, and his wife, of Dixonville, Pa.

Mr. Widdowson was born in Indiana county, Pa., October 15th, 1866. In 1903 he moved to Somerset county and purchased a large farm near Princess Anne. He was a progressive farmer and took deep interest in the Princess Anne Grange and all things pertaining to agriculture. He was a prominent member and worker in the Baptist Church in Indiana county, before coming to Somerset. There being no Baptist Church organization in this town he worked for the establishing of a church of his choice here, and the Baptist organization in Princess Anne is largely due to his and his family's support. His great ambition was to see the new Baptist Church erected, but unavoidable delays have prevented this. Almost his last words, before going to his Steward, was for his family to attend to the building of the church.

Funeral services were held at his late home last Saturday morning at 10.30 o'clock, conducted by the Rev. I. S. Hankins, pastor of the Baptist Church, and the interment was in Manokin Presbyterian Cemetery. The pallbearers were his six sons.

He is survived by his widow, Mrs. Ellen Widdowson, and nine children—Messrs. Lloyd, Guy, Clay, Paul, Neal and Thomas Widdowson; Mrs. Jean McDowell and Misses Joyce and Frances Widdowson. He is also survived by the following brothers and sisters: Mr. Edward Widdowson, Mrs. Jean F. Long, of Indiana, Pa.; Mr. A. L. Widdowson, of Gilmore, Ida.; Mrs. W. R. Myers, of Niagara Falls, N. Y.; Mr. Nelson Widdowson, of Clymer, Pa.; Mrs. A. L. Laney, Indiana, Pa., and Mrs. Mattie Everwine, Marion Centre, Pa.

Eastern Shoremen Elect President

Vice-presidents of three of the county chapters in the Eastern Shore Society of Baltimore city have been elected. W. George Wilson was chosen by the Kent county chapter at the Hotel Rennet as president of the chapter for next year, and Ambrose T. Dixon was elected by the Somerset county chapter. The Caroline county chapter elected Howard Bryant. Mr. Wilson will succeed Percy G. Skirven and Mr. Dixon, L. Jeff Milbourne. Mr. Bryant's predecessor is former Congressman T. A. Smith. Walter R. Gale was re-elected secretary of the Kent chapter.

United States District Attorney Samuel K. Dennis was last Wednesday night elected president of the Eastern Shore Society of Baltimore city to succeed W. Thos. Kemp, of Talbot county, at the annual business meeting of the society at the Rennet Hotel, Baltimore. The vice-presidents elected were: G. T. Wilson, for Kent county; E. W. Hughtell, for Talbot county; Ambrose T. Dixon, for Somerset county; D. Settle, for Cecil county; T. H. Embert, for Queen Anne county; Levin Uphur, for Worcester county; Howard Bryant, president of the Second Branch City Council, for Caroline county, and Robt. Vanakles, for Wicomico county. John H. H. Shannahan was re-elected secretary-treasurer.

"Dry" Ban Hits Barber Shops

After January 16th, 1920, you will not be able to get a rub of your favorite toilet water, containing 40 per cent. alcohol, from your barber. Neither can you get a bottle of patent medicine with a kick in it.

And last of all, raids on the kitchen to get a nip of flavoring extract will go to 40 per cent. of the real stuff in it will be a useless effort.

For the Government has decided that these articles cannot be manufactured or sold until the alcoholic quantity is greatly reduced.

The Commissioner of Internal Revenue at Washington states that he has made a careful study of many of the alcoholic preparations which are at present on the market, and has come to the conclusion that a considerable number of such preparations are fit for beverage purposes.

The Bureau of the Census is a part of the Department of Commerce. It was established as a permanent Bureau in 1902. Prior to that time the census work was done by a temporary organization known as the Census Office.

RITCHIE TO DRAW BILLS

Will Give His Attention To Redemption Of Party Pledges

Governor-elect Ritchie, who has been taking a brief vacation in Atlantic City, returned to Baltimore last Wednesday evening and prepared to go to work early Thursday morning. He had a great pile of mail awaiting his attention, part of it letters of congratulation and part letters of congratulation plus application for office.

Other than the attention he expects to give to the organization of the Legislature, Mr. Ritchie does not intend to consider appointments for weeks. He is anxious to arrange matters so that there will be no tangle over the selection of the Speaker of the House and the President of the Senate. But most of his time between now and his inauguration, which is only about six weeks away, will be devoted to preparation of bills to carry out the pledges of the Democratic party in the campaign and to work on the budget, which will be framed by him.

The new Governor will have some help in the make-up of the budget from the Board of State Aid and Charities. That body, with the Lunacy Commission, has been going over the affairs of the State-aided institutions and State hospitals for the insane in the last few days, and will hold public hearings in Annapolis in December upon applications for appropriations in the next budget.

The contest over the organization of the Legislature, which seems to be the immediate business before Mr. Ritchie and the Democratic leaders working with him, was given a new angle yesterday, when it became known that Senator Wm. I. Norris, of the First district, was a candidate for the presidency. That seems to put all three of the Democratic Senators from the city more or less in the running. Senator Campbell, of the Second district, who has been president since 1916, is regarded as a candidate for re-election, and Senator Frick, of the Third district, has been a tentative candidate, although it was thought unlikely that he would make a fight against Campbell.

Alexander Armstrong, Republican, who was elected Attorney-General, will take over the office from Mr. Ritchie on or about December 20th, the date of the expiration of Mr. Ritchie's term. Mr. Armstrong has not indicated whom he will appoint as Assistant Attorney General. There are four such places, each paying $2,500 a year. There also are two clerkships. Mr. Armstrong is expected to continue the Law Department in the rooms now occupied in the Title Building, Baltimore.

House Adjourned Last Wednesday

Six months to the day after the Congress convened in special session, the House formally adjourned at 4.02 p. m. last Wednesday after receiving word from President Wilson that he did not object to this action. The adjournment resolution was adopted by a vote of 55 to 5.

Only a short recess will be possible, as Congress will reconvene in regular session December 1st. Many House members had left for home, however, before the formal adjournment, and only 60 were present when the committee sent to inform the President of the situation returned with word that he had no objection to adjournment. Republican Leader Mondell, Democratic Leader Clark and Representative Townner, Republican, Iowa, composed the committee, which did not see the President, but conferred with Secretary Tumulty at the White House.

The committee was told that the President had signed the resolutions passed Monday, legalizing the creation of an equipment trust to pay the Government for cars and locomotives bought for the railroads during Federal control, and also that for continuing the Government control of dye imports until January 15th. This cleared the slate.

Governor Pleads For Jews

Governor Harrington has issued a proclamation to the people of Maryland calling on them to lend aid to the Jews of devastated Europe, thousands of whom are at the point of starvation.

In the proclamation, the Governor says the Jews made sacrifices and went through great suffering the same as the people of other nationalities, and conditions in their stricken country are such there is decided cause for immediate relief measures.

Employers who think they can manage their business without reference to community interest are likely to have a business so small that the community won't need to bother with it, and wage earners who strike without considering community interest are likely to find themselves their own bosses for an indefinite period.

Pay Your Subscription In Advance

The present cost of publishing a newspaper is all out of proportion to the subscription price of $1.00 and on January 1st, 1920, the price of the Marylander and Herald will be advanced to $1.50 a year.

Subscriptions should be paid for in advance, and it is a simple matter for one to ascertain if he is in arrears or not by looking at the date on his label.

All subscribers to the Marylander and Herald who are not paid in advance by the first of January next will be removed from our list.

The time has come when leniency in this respect cannot be extended any longer. Under the present conditions it is suicidal to extend credit for subscriptions. It never was good business. Please be governed accordingly, and remit promptly if your subscription is due or in arrears. Look at the date on your label.

TO FIGHT THE WHITE PLAGUE

Red Cross Christmas Seal Campaign Opens December 1st.

To finance the local fight against tuberculosis and to do Maryland's share in the nation-wide war against the disease, a campaign for the sale of Red Cross Christmas Seals for 1919 will be carried on in Baltimore and the State from December 1st to 10th. The anti-tuberculosis fight is at a critical stage in this country. Owing to the war, there are large numbers of new cases of the disease. Other large increases in the number of patients are resulting from the influenza epidemic of last winter. Dr. Martin F. Sloan, superintendent of Eudowood Sanatorium at Towson, has found there are 16 per cent. more cases of tuberculosis as an aftermath of the "flu."

The National Tuberculosis Association, through its 1,000 affiliated organizations in every state and all large cities, is sponsoring the general appeal for a budget of $6,500,000 to carry on the fight with an increased personnel and equipment. Of this sum, Maryland's share is $125,000.

Red Cross Christmas Seals must provide this sum. The seals will be offered for sale in stores, at booths, through mail orders and in other ways, in order to bring the stamps within the reach of every man, woman and child.

Baltimore city is expected to subscribe for $100,000 worth of the seals. The county quotas are as follows: Garrett, $800; Allegany, $2,500; Washington, $2,375; Frederick, $3,100; Carroll, $2,000; Montgomery, $925; Baltimore, $2,750; Harford, $1,650; Howard, $875; Anne Arundel, $825; Prince George's, $825; Calvert, $200; St. Mary's $200; Charles, $200; Cecil, $700; Kent, $700; Queen Anne's, $700; Talbot, $700; Wicomico, $700; Worcester, $700; Dorchester, $700; Somerset, $700, and Caroline, $700.

Committees to direct the campaign have been organized in every part of the state.

Military Funeral Of Corp. Shields

One of the largest funerals ever held in Salisbury took place last Tuesday when Corp. Shelby Shields was buried at Parsons Cemetery.

Corporal Shields' death occurred after a great fight for life, first when serving with Company I, One Hundred and Fifteenth Infantry. He was badly wounded in France and being left upon the field of battle he was captured by the Germans and carried to one of their prison camps, where he was a prisoner for several months.

Of the wounds that Corporal Shields received, the last was the result of an explosion of a bomb, which left 14 pieces of steel in his neck. After his return to this country, the Government, it is understood, had him matriculate at the University of Pennsylvania in medicine at its expense.

Young Shields was popular in Salisbury, and prior to his entry into the war was a student at Wicomico High School, where he was prominent in athletics.

The Rev. Father McLaughlin, of New York, who was the young soldier's chaplain in France, officiated at the service. The young man was laid to rest with military honors. Over 40 members of Company I, with Lieut. Col. Amos W. W. Woodcock in command, marched to the cemetery, fired a salute and sounded taps at the grave. Several comrades from out of town attended the funeral and acted as pallbearers.

The deceased is survived by his parents, Mr. and Mrs. James F. Shields; a brother, James F. Shields, Jr., of New Mexico, and three sisters, the Misses Frances and Esther Shields and Mrs. Alex. McCarthy, all of Salisbury.

AGRICULTURAL SHOW A SUCCESS

Attendance Was Large And Exhibits Were Attractively Displayed

The Third Annual Agricultural Show held Thursday, Friday and Saturday in the Court House was very successful and probably one of the largest of its kind held in the State. Exhibits from all the agricultural districts of the county were on display. The show, true to its name, was county-wide and attracted visitors from all communities of the county.

Although this has been an unfavorable growing season, the exhibits of corn, wheat, potatoes and vegetables were of better quality than in previous years. The exhibit of white potatoes consisted of fifty baskets of Irish Cobbler, Greater Rehoboth, Shockley, McCormick or Hoosier and Rural New York. This display of Potatoes was one of the largest held on the Peninsula and shows that Somerset compares favorably with other potato growing counties on the Shore. The sweet potatoes were also of fine quality, the exhibit consisting of about twenty-five baskets.

The vegetable display of cabbage, celery, turnips, beets, pumpkins and other products of the garden were of good quality and added to the arrangement of the exhibits.

The apple display of Mr. Frank E. Matthews, consisting of thirty-four plates of five different varieties created much interest and showed the possibility of fruit-growing in this county.

The display of corn, wheat and grass, the leading crops of the county, were very good. The dairy products of eggs and butter were displayed to advantage.

One of the features of the exhibition was the large display of corn and potatoes of the Boys' Agricultural Club. Exhibits of these products from all sections of the county showed that the boys are making an effort to improve the quality of these crops, and their exhibits compared very favorably with that of the farmers.

The household display of canned products, cakes, bread and fancy work, was attractively arranged and much admired.

The Junior Home Makers Club of the various county schools had a very fine display of serving caps and aprons, and canned products.

The Manual Training Department of the Princess Anne High School had a nice display of their work of drawing and wood work.

The display of household products were attractively arranged and attracted its share of attention. The superior quality of the canned vegetables and fruits gave evidence of expert knowledge of canning. The fine needle work displayed by the women in no way overshadowed the excellent plain sewing done by the girls of the rural schools, known as the girls of the Junior Homemakers Club. It is interesting to note that among 300 girls enrolled in the club, 180 had exhibits.

The judges of the show were, Miss Venia M. Keller, State Agent, and Miss Mable L. Stephenson, District Agent, of the Maryland State College, of the household department; County Agent G. R. Cobb, of Wicomico county, and County Agent E. S. Oswald, of Worcester county, of the agricultural products. The exhibition was in charge of County Agent C. Z. Keller, and Home Demonstrator Miss L. Mills had charge of the household department.

Too Many Middlemen

That there are too many profits between producer and consumer is the contention of the report of the special committee on co-operative buying and marketing read last Tuesday at the convention of the National Grange in session at Grand Rapids, Mich. The report was adopted.

S. J. Lowell, of Fredonia, New York, newly elected master of the National Grange, was secretary of the committee making the report, which reviewed the work of the grange and other farm organizations in establishing co-operative buying and selling and commended the plan in general. The report holds that there are too many middlemen. It does not attack middlemen as a class, but simply sets forth that there are too many profits between the farmer and the user of his products. It was recommended that a committee of three be appointed by the master to study what has been done and to report at the next meeting on what are considered the best plans for farmers to follow in co-operative work.

It was stated in the report that co-operation with other agricultural organizations in bringing about national legislation had been successful, and recommended that the state granges work with other farm bodies in securing future legislative action of benefit to agriculturists.

Whales That Walked.
Whales used to walk. That is the statement of Prof. Arey Thompson, authority on fishes of the sea, in a lecture on that subject at the Royal Institution, London. He said the whale originally had four feet or fins, but that the two hind ones had simply dwindled away. In bygone ages ancestors of the present family of whales walked about much as seals do.

Thunder and Lightning.
Thunder is caused by electric discharge of lightning. This discharge, in forcing its way through the atmosphere, heats the air and vaporizing in its path to a high temperature, causing a violent expansion along the whole length of the flash. The result is a deep compression wave, or what is the same, a noise. Lightning is the flash of the electric explosion.

Origin of "Eleventh Hour."
The "eleventh hour" means figuratively the last minute, or, as we sometimes express it, "just in the nick of time." The expression now in general use, comes from the parable narrated in the gospel according to St. Matthew of the laborers hired for the harvest.

Chinese Wheelbarrows.
Probably more freight and more passengers are transported in China by the wheelbarrow than by any other land method. The wheelbarrow there used differs from that used by us, in the fact that the wheel is set in the center, and thus supports practically the entire load, while the handles are supported in part by a strap or rope over the shoulders of the man who operates it. As a result, the wheelbarrow coolie in China will transport nearly a half-ton on his vehicle.

Sling Gives Relief.
Great relief from pain in neuritis of the arm has been gained from the use of a sling described by Dr. R. T. Williamson in the British Medical Journal. The sling passes over the shoulder of the unaffected arm and under the elbow of the painful arm and under the elbow of the unaffected arm in such a way that it slightly raises it. This, by raising the shoulder and collar bone, takes off the pressure upon the nerve roots and prevents the weight of the arm from dragging on these nerves.

Largest Custom House.
New York has the largest custom house in the world. Cost, $4,500,000.

Appt. Reminder.
"Come upstairs and let me wash your hands," said Winnie's mother. "I don't want to go up!" wailed Winnie, aged three. "Let her wash them down here," called grandmamma; "she can do it just as well." "No," her mother said firmly, "I want her to come up with me!" Winnie came upstairs as slowly as possible. "Oh," she said, turning a wrathfully tearful face to her mother, "why don't you obey your mother?"

Temperature and Metals.
In a demonstration at the London Royal Institution of the effects of sudden changes of temperature on various materials, Prof. C. H. Lees showed that iron and marble could be removed from low temperature to 630 degrees, Fahrenheit, and changed back from heat to cold without cracking. Quartz was shattered, though silica glass was unaffected.

I Owe My Life to PE-RU-NA
Mr. McKinley's letter brings cheer to all who may be sufferers as he was. Read it:
"I can honestly say that I owe my life to Peru-NA. After some of the best doctors in the country gave me up and told me I could not live another month, Peru-NA saved me. Travelling from town to town, throughout the country and having to go into all kinds of badly heated stores and buildings, sometimes standing up for hours at a time while playing my trade as auctioneer, it is only natural that I had colds frequently; so when this would occur I paid little attention to it, until last December when I contracted a severe case, which, through neglect on my part settled on my lungs. When almost too late, I began doctoring, but, without avail, until I heard of Peru-NA. It cured me; so I cannot praise it too highly."

Why Brunswick Tires Win Preference
There are two main reasons—one, the name itself, which certifies superfine value—the other, that time tells the same story.
Thus reputation and performance unite in giving you all you expect—and more.
Yet Brunswicks cost no more than like-type tires. Many motorists would pay more readily, but the Brunswick idea is to GIVE the utmost, rather than to GET the utmost. And this has been true since 1845. You can appreciate what Brunswick Standards mean by trying ONE Brunswick Tire. It will be a revelation. You'll agree that you could not buy a better, regardless of price.
And, like other motorists, you'll decide to have ALL Brunswicks. Then you'll know supreme satisfaction from your tires—longer life, minimum trouble, lower cost.

Thanksgiving
By EDGAR A. GUEST
For courage that we sorely need,
For strength to do the splendid deed,
For youth, who made the sacrifice
And, smiling, paid the bitter price
That freedom asks of sturdy men,
Oh God, accept our thanks again.
To thee once more today we kneel;
Sad music of the crash of steel
Accompanies our prayers, and yet
Thy mercies everywhere are met,
And we are grateful for the youth
That boldly dared to guard the truth.
Oh God, who gave us sight to see
The way to serve, we pray to thee;
We thank thee for all mothers fair
Who gave their sons into thy care
And bravely hid their grief and pain
That liberty and truth should reign.
We thank thee for each noble heart
That scorned to play the coward part;
We thank thee for the humblest lad
That in these bitter times is glad
To toil until war's flags are furled
To make a kindlier, better world.
For yield of tree and fruit and vine
Once more our gratitude is thine;
But in these days of dangers, we Now offer prayers of thanks to thee
For all the brave and loyal breasts
Wherein the love of honor rests.
Oh God, we thank thee for our youth
That still hold dear the ways of truth;
We thank thee for their courage, and Devotion to our native land;
We're thankful that our flag still gleams
The emblem of man's highest dreams.
—From The American Boy.

NOT COMPLETE WITHOUT PIE
Time Was When No Thanksgiving Dinner Was Worthy of the Name in Its Absence.
Thanksgiving without pumpkin pie was held to be unthinkable. Yet there could be no pumpkin pie without molasses; because Colchester, Connecticut, did not receive its supply of molasses in season, it voted, in 1705, to put off its Thanksgiving from the first to the second Thursday of November! Pumpkin pies thus featured were usually baked in square tins, having only four corner pieces to each pie.
Second only to the pumpkin pie in importance at such a Thanksgiving feast as Whittier sings was the turkey which had been fattened for the occasion and which, when slowly roasting before the open fire and painstakingly basted from the dripping pan beneath, was fit to be the lord of any feast. Chicken there was, too, though always in the form of chicken pie and vegetables of every sort, with raisins and citron, walnuts and popcorn apples and cider galore.

Surely few could have really wished joys such as these to be sacrificed to a second service in the meeting house.

The Indispensable Pie.
Golden Promise of the Future.
We are thankful for the assurance that out of all the tumult and madness of the past years the world of mankind is to find a life richer, truer, grander than any it has heretofore known, a life of truer freedom, of sweeter tolerance and of a broader goodwill and brotherhood.
And we are thankful for the thought amounting almost to a settled conviction, that as a consequence of the great awakening which has come to it with all its blood and tears and suffering, the world will from now on have forever done with every form of organized hypocrisy and oppression will love the truth and nothing but the truth, and will deal justly, and love mercy.
Worldly Spirit Too Much With Us.
It must be admitted that our country has been an egotistical nation, because of our great material expansion and prosperity, and that the true spirit of Thanksgiving day has not been felt by a very large proportion of the people during the past few years. The intent of the pioneers who established it has been lost sight of largely. It has been regarded too much simply as a day to be observed by the church people, while the crowd took advantage of the holiday to indulge worldly pleasures.—Houston Post.

Hail the Turkey!

Here's to the Turkey, glorious bird of copper hue, who gladdened well each Pilgrim heart when, guided by an ancient chart, there came that small, God-fearing crew.

Here's to the Turkey, that bird of gorgeousness and pride, who strutted through the virgin wood when, for a firmer brotherhood, our forbears worked fought and died.

Here's to the Turkey, how often, through the early snow, some sturdy pilgrim sought to slay thee for his feast Thanksgiving day, but fell before the red man's bow.

Here's to the Turkey, proudest, rarest of the living, and, as we bow before our Lord around the yearly festive board, the gem of our Thanksgiving.

WHERE THE BIRDS ARE BRED

Small Farms Are Large Producers of Piece de Resistance of the Thanksgiving Feast.

Although there are many great turkey ranches, and whole communities which live principally upon the raising of turkeys for market, such as Cuero, Tex., whose annual turkey parade preceding Thanksgiving includes thousands of turkeys bound for northern markets, as a rule turkeys are raised in small groups on farms which are interested in other commodities. They are often the sole dependence of the farmer's wife for pocket money throughout the year and many a farmer's daughter also has been able to make a shining appearance in her world of fashion principally through the successful marketing of the turkey brood.

On the 5,000,000 farms of the United States there were, according to careful statistics taken some years ago, only 6,500,000 turkeys. Texas led among the states, producing 850,000. The other states which were large producers were Missouri, Illinois, Iowa, Ohio and Indiana. The state of Rhode Island, noted as it is for its turkeys, produced only 5,000. But the quality of the Rhode Island turkeys always has been excellent and they usually bring prices vastly in excess of those from other parts of the country.

And that ought to be enough about turkeys to get up a pretty good appetite for Thursday's dinner!

REALLY SURFEITED.

Weary—No, t'anks, ma'am. I've et so much turkey dis week dat I gobbles in my sleep.

Great Reason for Gladness.

The day set apart for Thanksgiving for the blessings of the year is a day when the nation is invited to inspect the tapestry of time and to see how steadfastly and how gratifying the old weaver has used the loom for the picture of American contentment and American happiness and American hope. Into the picture enters no public calamity, into it enters no widespread want. Thus the nation has great reason for gladness that it can hang upon the walls of civilization the picture that has been wrought out as the picture of American life from the busy weave of the multitude of individuals who make up that life.

Ranks With Christmas.

Thanksgiving day is an old and honored institution in this country. In 1789 the Protestant Episcopal church formally recognized the government's authority to appoint such a "feast," but it was celebrated with more zest in New England than in any other section. There it is an occasion for annual family reunions, and as a Boston writer says, "it takes the place which in England is accorded to Christmas."

12,121 RECEIVERS OFF

In one year in a single large city in the territory of this Company there were 12,121 cases of receiver left off the hook, due to carelessness on the part of telephone users.

A receiver left off the hook automatically shuts off incoming calls, as the operator gets a continuous "busy" or "out of order" signal. On a party line, it puts the entire line out of business, both for calling and receiving. Many service interruptions to yourself and others may be avoided if you will be careful to see that the receiver is placed back on the hook after each conversation.

The common glass insulators used on telegraph poles can be made to keep a refrigerator free of ants and other insects by placing them under the legs of the refrigerator and filling the interior with kerosene or similar material.

Only Popularity Worth While.

I wish popularity; but it is that popularity which follows, not that which is run after—it is that popularity which sooner or later never fails to do justice to the pursuit of noble ends by noble means.—Lord Mansfield.

Chapter I.

"There was once a mender with yellow eyes and his wife said to him: 'If you mender me you will be hung.' And he was hung on Tuesday next. Finis."—Bookman.

Again Peace on Earth.

"Jones doesn't believe in promoting the good old idea of 'Peace on earth and good will toward men.'" "What makes you think so?" "He has bought his son a cornet."

Wesleyan College the Oldest.

Wesleyan college at Macon, Ga., was founded in 1836, and is therefore older than Emory college, chartered in 1852. It is the oldest woman's college in the United States.

Some Country!

Finnegan, a railroad worker, though not he of "On again, off again" fame, returned to Ireland recently on a visit. On being questioned by his relatives concerning the wonders of America, he described its size as follows: "Phwy, Amer-er-ica is so big that if ye war to dr-rag England through the Shtates ye wouldn't have a mark in th' dirt, an' ye could lose Oireland intirely in wan o' thim gr-rat inland oceans we hoy, phwat we call lakes, an' if ye had Scotland to get rid of there are a thousand earners to hide her in, an' nobody could tell phwere ye'd put her, except, bogorra, for the strong smell av whisky."—Boston Transcript.

The Windward Islands.

The Windward Islands—belong to Great Britain. They consist of the islands of St. Lucia, St. Vincent and Grenada, with the smaller islands of the Grenadine chain. The islands, really, form three distinct colonies, united under a governor-in-chief, who resides at St. George's, Grenada. The Windward Islands derive their name from their position, as do also the Leeward Islands to the east, being more exposed to the trade winds than the neighboring Leeward Islands.

Just So.

Save daylight as we may, night always arrives in dew time.—Boston Transcript.

Value of Quick Decision.

As a rule the man who has trained himself to quick decisions and prompt actions follows close to the right. He does not need to debate questions as does the man who has become a master of deliberation. His mental faculties seem to work automatically and they are generally right. I'm not sure but that they are more often right than they are with the man who is constantly weighing pros and cons and becoming confused with the issues. He saves time because he acts quickly and he saves everybody the uncertainty of indecision.

The Glorious Gobbler

All hail the glorious gobbler! When autumn skies are gray He mounts his china platter throne And rules Thanksgiving day; It is a noble oval With gilded garlands fair, Or it may be an heirloom prized Of old blue willow ware.

Salute the glorious gobbler: (Though sometimes it's a hen That dawns in appetizing brown Upon our famished ken.) He wears his festal dressing Contrariwise, within, Receiving all his subjects true In nothing but his skin.

Here's to the glorious gobbler! Though far afield they roam, Yet in his honor every year The children gather home. His drumsticks beat assembly From mountain top to sea, He wears a gold celery crown, The king of birds is he.

Long live the glorious gobbler. With his attendant pie, Mince, pumpkin, apple, cranberry, And each of generous size, Of all famous monarchs From Ecuador to Spain, He is the only one who boasts An undisputed reign. —Minna Irving, in New York Sun.

Time to Think Only of Blessings. Let us take the right kind of interest in Thanksgiving day—a day that is and always shall be very dear to the hearts of all women. Let us put avarice and envy out of our minds, and think only of, and be grateful for, our blessings.—New York Evening Telegram.

TUESDAY MORNING, NOV. 25, 1919

The standard working hours for a great many people nowadays are to work when they feel like it.

The strikers are complaining bitterly about the high prices that are produced by other people's strikes.

The popular way to observe Thanksgiving reunion about the old family hearthstone is to go to the movies.

Evidently the world will never settle down until everyone has the right to fix his own wages and hours of labor.

A rising movement in scrap iron is reported frequently when two automobiles come together at a street intersection.

Some of the conservative people who are never going up in an airplane are meeting their fate by falling off the haymow.

From present indications the "Reds" will get very red in the face from the speed with which they will have to keep moving.

Apparently a large number of grocers who handle the sugar supply are no relatives of the immortal George Washington.

The students who come home Thanksgiving Day to see father and mother can be found at the dwellings of the home town girls.

The people who complain about the high price of all kinds of printed matter usually burn up a waste basket full of valuable paper stock every day or two.

Some of the folks who are bitterly opposed to the teachers forming labor unions are the same ones who weren't willing to give them a cent of increase in pay.

The people who want absolute free speech should be sent to Central Africa where there will be no tyrannical laws and no oppressive courts to interfere with them.

Great encouragement is felt because, as a result of the clean teeth campaign in the schools, many families have been led to purchase and install a family toothbrush.

THANKSGIVING DAY

In the traditional observance of Thanksgiving, the old timers used to go to church. It was fitting and appropriate.

The normal minded person must feel that in spite of all the sorrow in the world, the worst of which is due human sin and ignorance, there is a heart of love in the universe that offers its guidance and protection and help.

In the rush and hurry of modern life the church service is not so much in fashion as formerly, though it is likely to become so again sometime.

It brings together many widely separated families. People will travel long distances and go to much expense to be together just a few hours again.

They hate to be absent at a feast that traditionally has assembled all the family group.

Innumerable fathers and mothers are made glad as the boys and girls come trooping back bringing new life and energy.

The home-comers find in the home the same old image and remembrance of the past.

The acts of kindness and love that are the value far beyond the food that is served on any holiday dinner.

They give struggling people a new sense of hope and promote courage among the downcast.

So let everyone make Thanksgiving Day a real feast of remembrance of all that is fine in one's past life and of charity for all who find life's struggle difficult.

THE COAL MINERS

It is pretty generally admitted that the coal miners, as the result of irregular operation of the mines, were entitled to some advance in pay.

If they had gone about it in a sensible way instead of trying to frighten and freeze the country into granting their most extreme demands, they undoubtedly would have secured concessions.

As it was they angered the whole country, thus encouraging the operators to take a firmer stand against them than otherwise they would have done.

The American people are good natured and anxious to see justice done to the humblest toiler.

The miners have a hard life and their case should be sympathetically considered, but the American people can be driven only so far.

Attempts to crowd them react to the disadvantage of those who try it.

THE NEWS PRINT SHORTAGE

The American Newspaper Publishers' Association, which recently met to consider the shortage of print paper, recommends limitation of size of newspapers and increase in advertising rates and subscriptions.

The thing for them to do is to double their advertising rates. This would not be done to hold up advertisers for more money, but simply bring the advertising down to a scale not so wasteful of paper.

The policy of newspapers in small and medium sized cities and country towns will have to be worked out as the situation develops.

If the advertisers objected to paying more for their space, they need not do so. They could cut down their space in the same proportion thus saving paper.

The chances are they would not wish to reduce space as much as that, as the benefits of advertising have been demonstrated during the past few years as never before.

FREE SPEECH

The cold blooded murder of American soldiers at Centralia, Wash., by "Red" agitators, said to have been I. W. W. members, will completely break the patience of the American people.

What kind of a country is it, if the soldiers who saved it from its enemies can't march the streets without being shot and killed by skunks in human form?

Mild and gentle pacifists want the Reds to be protected in the right of free speech.

Now the Reds have a perfect right to work for a change of government by legal means.

They can argue that Socialists and Bolsheviks should be elected by ballot to rule the country.

If they can carry elections by fair and legal means, well and good. Other people will have to submit and will do so.

But when they undertake to overthrow the government by force, they commit a crime.

When they circulate literature which advocates overthrowing government by force and the taking of life and seizure of property, they are accessory to crime.

If this government is going to amount to anything, this crime propaganda will have to be stopped.

This movement is practically fathered by aliens. They come here on sufferance and then turn around and try to destroy the institutions whose benefits they have enjoyed.

They have forfeited their right to remain in this country and should be sent back where they came from.

The real place where they should go is Russia where they can have the kind of a government that they want.

This campaign should be conducted with discrimination and judgment.

It should be remembered that Socialists who advocate changing the government by legal means only, have not committed any crime.

But the time has come for a clean-up of those who promote the campaign of force and violence by word or deed.

Only A Cold

Are you ill? Is often answered—"Oh! it's only a cold," as if a cold was a matter of little consequence, but people are beginning to learn that a common cold is a matter not to be trifled with, that some of the most serious diseases start with a cold.

As soon as the first indication of a cold appears take Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. Remember that the sooner you get rid of your cold the less the danger, and this remedy will help you to throw it off.

A Good Cough Medicine for Children

Mrs. J. W. Phillips, Redon, Georgia, phoned to J. M. Floyd, the merchant there, for a bottle of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy and said she had bought a bottle of it at his store recently and that it was doing her children so much good that she wanted to keep up the treatment. You will find nothing better for coughs and colds in children or for yourself. It keeps the cough loose, expectation easy and soon frees the system from the cold.

The first census of the United States was taken in 1720, during the administration of George Washington. It related solely to population.

BUICK CARS

The Buick Model K-Six-44

BUICK VALVE-IN-HEAD MOTOR CARS

Buick Three-Passenger Roadster

THE BUICK Model K-Six-44 possesses marked advantages for the man or woman who wishes a car of limited passenger capacity, with an exceptionally roomy and comfortable driving compartment.

This three-passenger model makes the most of these desirable features, without sacrificing one whit of the modish appearance that belongs to the type.

The body is distinctly a Buick creation, broadening out to accommodate a wide, deep seat for three, then curving in at the back to form a trim rear deck with a weather-proof carrying space for luggage.

Inclined windshield, handsome improved top of high-grade material, side curtains that swing open with the doors, large gasoline tank and extra demountable rim complete the equipment of this smart, business-like car.

Deliveries in open models in one to two weeks. Write for catalog and further information.

Our sportsmen still continue to tramp with dog and gun. Some of them report finding much game while others complain of its scarcity. We suppose this is due to the fact that some are better hunters than others.

May Rival States in Tomato Yield

Tomato growers of Maryland, Delaware and other states in which this vegetable is produced in abundance may within a few years have lively competition from the Bahamas Islands, situated only a short distance from the Florida coast.

Karl de G. MacVitty, United States Consul at Nassau, the capital of the Bahamas, in a report to the Department of Commerce, says:

"The tomato crop for 1919 promises to be the largest ever grown in the Bahamas. Approximately 2,000 acres have been planted, which is a considerable increase in acreage over that of any previous year."

"Shippers estimate that they will be able to export 400,000 crates of tomatoes to the United States during the winter season, which will prove a decided increase over the exports of 1917 and 1918. The tomato industry is still in its infancy in the Bahamas, and its development has been handicapped by the lack of shipping facilities. If a frequent and regular shipping service between Nassau and New York can be obtained it is believed that this industry will so increase that tomatoes will form one of the leading exports of the Bahamas."

No Peace Treaty

Failing after three attempts to ratify the peace treaty, the Senate late Wednesday laid it aside, ended the special session and went home.

All compromise efforts to bring ratifications failed, the three resolutions of ratification all going down by overwhelming majorities. The Republican leaders apparently despairing of bringing two-thirds of the Senate together for any sort of ratification then put in a resolution to declare the war at an end.

The resolution to declare peace will be presented to the next session of Congress; hence officially, the United States is still at war with Germany and Austria-Hungary.

Psalm of Our Fathers

That psalm our fathers sang we sing,
That psalm of peace and wars,
While o'er our heads unfolds its wing
The flag of forty stars,
And while the nation finds a tongue
For nobler gifts to pray,
'Twill ever sing the song they sung
That first Thanksgiving Day:
"Praise ye the Lord with fervent lips, Praise ye the Lord today."
So rose the song from all the ships, Safe moored in Boston Bay.
—From "The Thanksgiving in Boston Harbor," by Hezekiah Butterworth.

CUSTOM ONE OF THE OLDEST

Origin of Thanksgiving as a Great Social and Religious Festival Lost in Antiquity.

The great social and religious festival known as "Thanksgiving" dates back to the Pilgrims and Puritans of New England. The sentiment of gratitude for favors granted is as old as humanity, and ages before the Massachusetts settlers were born mankind was in the habit of expressing its thankfulness by some form of public celebration. But the institution of Thanksgiving as an annual festival of thanks and praise for blessings received at the hands of the Great Author of our being had its origin among the founders of New England.

For reasons which were "good and sufficient" unto themselves, the Puritans abolished Christmas, and feeling the need of some other day to replace it, they instituted Thanksgiving day. After the first harvest of the New England colonies Governor Bradford ordered a public rejoicing with prayer and praise. This was in October or November, 1621. On July 30, 1623, was held the second Thanksgiving, the first ever appointed by a governor in an authoritative way. On February 22, 1631, there occurred in Boston the first Thanksgiving celebration of which any written account remains among the colonial archives. The first regular Thanksgiving proclamation was printed in Massachusetts in 1677. The first Thanksgiving proclamation ever issued by a president of the United States was by George Washington in 1795. From Massachusetts the custom spread to other colonies. In 1890 the governor of New York appointed a day for public thanksgiving and other northern states quickly followed.—Rev. Thomas B. Gregory.

Royal Thanksgiving Bird.

The turkey began to take first place at Thanksgiving feasts back in colonial days. It was the wild variety that won favor then—a fowl with a fine flavor, but no longer known either to commerce or the hunters. The magnificent bronze creatures that have taken the place of the wild forefathers leave no reason to regret the latter's disappearance. So handsome are these high-bred birds that slaughtering them to make a holiday feast seems something like a crime. It is a crime whose heinousness is forgotten when dinner is served, however.

Deep Reasons for Gratitude.

The vastness of America's cause for rejoicing today cannot be reached even by the international outpouring, for never before have we had such colossal reason for thanksgiving in the liberation of some nations, the succor of others, and the release of our own highest impulses for free play. Since the days of the Nazarene no such words have been spoken, no such doctrine preached, as we hear from day to day at the close of humanity's tragedy. Our thanks are deep and loud, sounding around the world.

THANKSGIVING

By JAMES W. BECKMAN.

We observe Thanksgiving day in keeping with the time-honored custom of the Pilgrims.

Thanksgiving day was born in the hearts of a grateful little group of people who had survived a harrowing season.

Real thanksgivings are those which come spontaneously in moments of gratitude for deliverance from distress, appreciation of the beauties of life or enjoyment of genuine friendship.

We are thankful that most of our troubles never happened and that those which did passed over like the storms.

The wealth of the world has been filling our coffers to overflowing. Millions of Mammon give thanks like the blatant fattened calf, all unmindful of the fate of the fattened and battered.

We are thankful to have gone through another year with its alternating joys and sorrows and await with hope and fortitude the things the next may bring forth.—Illustrated Sunday Magazine of the Boston Herald.

Ain't It Splendid?

AIN'T it splendid to be livin' long about this time o' year, just around before Thanksgiving, with the mornings crisp and clear;

With the children's cheeks a-glowin', with the future lookin' bright, and the shops and mills a'goin' like red blazes, day and night?

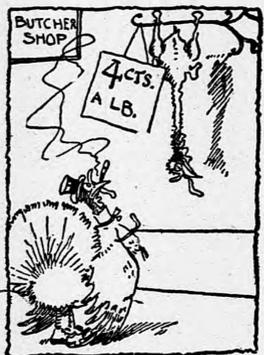

Ain't it bracin', ain't it cheerin', when the colts kick up their heels, to approach the corn crib, hearin' turkeys gobblin' for their meals? Don't it make a fellow kinda satisfied with life and glad, when it's not so hard to find a thing that's goin' to the bad?

Ain't it fine to feel the nippin' of the brisk breeze at your nose, when the old dead leaves go zippin' down the lanes, in scraggly rows, when you've hay to feed the cattle, when you love your fellow men, and you've money you can rattle in your trousers, now and then?

Ain't it fine to wake from dreamin' of the home your boyhood knew, and to find the glad sun beamin' just the way it used to do, long ago, about Thanksgiving, when you'd energy to spare, when your pa and ma were livin', and the days were always fair?
—S. E. Kiser.

DISCOVERED.

"Yep, that's Cousin Bill. Bill always was a cheap guy."

Remember Those Who Served. The great spirits of earth have been men and women who, with thanksgiving in their hearts and on their lips, served faithfully the ages in which they lived. They won the victories and reconstructed the situations through which our blessings have been handed down to us. For their consecrated services let us be truly thankful. Nor in our thanksgiving must we overlook the heroic service rendered by our own boys in the great, recent conflict, and the supreme sacrifice many of them made. They, together with their brave comrades of the nations allied with us in the battle for righteousness, saved democracy for the world.

Made National Celebration. President Lincoln it was who appointed the last Thursday in November, 1864, as Thanksgiving day, and each president of the United States since that time has followed Lincoln's example. In 1858 proclamations of a day for Thanksgiving were issued by the governors of twenty-five states and two territories, and it only remained for the president of the United States to make such proclamation to institute the national Thanksgiving day.

IT'S NOT YOUR HEART IT'S YOUR KIDNEYS

Kidney disease is no respecter of persons. A majority of the ill-afflicted people today can be traced back to kidney trouble.

The kidneys are the most important organs of the body. They are the filters, the purifiers, of your blood. Kidney disease is usually indicated by weariness, sleeplessness, nervousness, despondency, backache, stomach trouble, pain in loins and lower abdomen, gall stones, gravel, rheumatism, sciatica, and lumbago.

All these derangements are nature's signals to warn you that the kidneys need help. You should use GOLD MEDAL Haarlem Oil Capsules immediately. The soothing, healing oil stimulates the kidneys, relieves inflammation and destroys the germs which have caused it. Do not wait until tomorrow. Go to your druggist today and insist on GOLD MEDAL Haarlem Oil Capsules. In twenty-four hours you should feel health and vigor returning and will bless the day you first heard of GOLD MEDAL Haarlem Oil.

After you feel that you have cured yourself, continue to take one or two capsules each day, so as to keep in first-class condition and ward off the danger of other attacks. Ask for the original imported GOLD MEDAL brand. Three sizes. Money refunded if they do not help you.

Keep Hoping.

It may be that just at the moment that we give way to the bitter influence of discouragement and tell ourselves that nothing is worth while as far as we are concerned, we are perhaps at the point of changing our fortunes, although we are unconscious of the fact.

Sarcastic.

"Tomorrow," howled the exasperated manager, after he had seen the ninth packageless patron leave his shop, "I'm going to put a showcase of gold dollars out front, marked down to 30 cents and see if you get rid of few of 'em."—Public Ledger.

Odd that we should call it a dumb-writer when it tells us what everyone else in the house is talking about.—Boston Transcript.

Many Young Men and Women Offer Themselves For Christian Service

Southern Baptists Will Have Ample Working Force for New Program—Campaign Hopes to Strengthen Local Churches and Win 2,500,000 Lost to Christ During Next Five Years.

Group of Young Women Volunteers, Preparing Themselves for Special Christian Service at Baptist Women's Training School, Fort Worth, Texas.

Probably the most encouraging development that has come to the Baptist 75 Million Campaign, so far, is the large number of young men and women throughout the South and Southwest who have volunteered their services for special Christian work wherever God may need them. A special day was set apart in the Baptist schools and churches for "calling out the called," when it was expected to secure a minimum of 5,000 volunteers for special Christian service, this number being necessary, it was held, if the enlarged program of the campaign was to be carried out. Returns from these services are still coming in with the prospect that the number will reach at least 7,000.

These volunteers will enter the ministry, as missionaries, Christian doctors, nurses and teachers to foreign lands, labor in the homeland for the advancement of the kingdom of God or serve in any special capacity where they feel the Lord directs them. Baylor College, Belton, Texas, an institution for young women, led the list of schools with 430 volunteers; Bessie Tift College, Forsythe, Ga., responded with 248; Louisiana College, Pineville, La., 93; Women's Training School, Louisville, Ky., 114; Southwestern Theological Seminary, Ft. Worth, Tex., 83 for the foreign field alone; Oklahoma Baptist University, Shawnee, 57; while similar responses came from numerous other institutions in the various states comprising the territory of the Southern Baptist Convention.

Prominent among the many interesting accounts of the special services held in the churches was a report from Rev. E. Allison, a Baptist minister of Etowah, N. C., who, now in his eighth year, looks back over an active ministry of sixty years, practically all of which has been spent in the vicinity which he is now serving. Mr. Allison has the unusual distinction of having baptized 5,526 persons and at least 100 additional converts under his ministry have been baptized by an assistant pastor since Mr. Allison's health has not been good, due to his advanced years. When this aged minister of the gospel presented the call for volunteers for special Christian service in this campaign, three young men, all of whom were converted and reared under Mr. Allison's ministry responded for the ministry themselves, one of them being his nephew.

But the campaign hopes to enlist a large number of Christian workers other than those several thousand who will give themselves entirely to special religious work. The campaign hopes to enlist 2,000,000 additional pupils in the Sunday Schools of the South and Southwest; win 2,500,000 additional souls of this section to Christ during the next five years; bring the Baptist church membership in the South to 5,500,000 and enlist all these in all forms of church work; increase the number of Baptist churches in the South to 40,000, and enroll 40,000 young men and women in the denominational schools where they will prepare themselves for lives of Christian usefulness in their communities or for service in any part of the world where they may be needed.

While it is the hope to raise $75,000,000 to be invested in the larger program of Christian service which gave the campaign its name, raising the money is only one of the objects sought. Baptists are being implored to give themselves and all of their talents as well as their money to God. Director Scarborough announces.

BAPTISTS PLAN TO FIGHT BOLSHEVISM

AMERICANIZE FOREIGNERS

Teaching Them English and Ideals of United States and Christianity Is Part of Program of 75 Million Campaign.

Southern Baptists have no sympathy for the I. W. W.'s, Bolsheviks and bomb throwers, and while radicals of that type are not numerous in this section of the country as yet, it is the hope of the Baptist 75 Million Campaign to make the spread of such destructive propaganda here impossible by so pervading with the gospel all centers where radicalism might expect to obtain a foothold as to make it impossible for the professional agitators to receive a sympathetic hearing. In other words, it is the hope of the campaign to extend the work of Americanizing and Christianizing the foreigners living within the territory of the Southern Baptist Convention that they will measure up to the highest standards of patriotism and religion.

There are 4,000,000 persons of foreign birth and children of foreigners living within the territory of the Southern Baptist Convention, and while considerable work has been done already along the line of teaching Americanism and the Christian religion to these people, this work will be greatly enlarged as a result of this campaign.

In the Southwestern states there are 1,000,000 Mexicans, 500,000 living in Texas, 200,000 in New Mexico, 75,000 in Louisiana and a large number in Arkansas, Oklahoma and Missouri, because of the growing the Mexican work the campaign has appropriated $575,000 to it alone for the next five years.

But the Americanization and evangelization of the foreigners is not confined to Mexicans. This work is carried on also among the newly-arrived immigrants at the various Southern ports, among those foreign birth in the mining districts of Alabama, Oklahoma and Illinois and among other groups of people of foreign birth in Florida, Louisiana, Texas, Maryland and Virginia. Some of the state organizations carry on work of their own among these people, while in many places the program is carried out co-operatively between the state mission boards and the Home Mission Board in many instances a large work is done by the latter agency alone.

Believing that both Americanization and evangelization can be accomplished most effectively by first reaching the children, Baptist agencies have established schools where the English language is taught, along with American and Christian ideals. Such schools are already being conducted with great success among the Italian and Cuban children at Tampa, Fla., for French-speaking children at Church Point, La., for Mexican children at El Paso and other Texas points, while community center work is carried on extensively at many of these points and at numerous towns and mining centers, where people of foreign birth make up a large percentage of the population the social work of this character being conducted by Baptist women.

Large results are expected to follow the work of the Baptist Bible Institute at New Orleans, where instruction is given in English, French, Italian and Spanish. All foreign-speaking people are required to take some English work and the Bible is taught in certain practical subjects to them in their own languages, thus facilitating their grasp of it. Practical Christian activities are also required of all the students, some of whom are training for foreign mission work and others for service among the peoples of foreign birth in this country. Patriotism and high ideals of Christian civilization are given emphasis throughout the institution and it is the belief of those with whom the work that it will be the Americanization of the

Delay That Is Costly

Leaders of the Republican Congress may deny, but they cannot refute the clear evidence of their utterly futile and resultless career as the nation's legislators during the six months of the present special session. Save for the passage of appropriation bills—which went to meet the heavy expense of this extraordinary session, among other things—there has been no legislation that fulfills their own promises or that meets the demands of the country. But two important measures, besides the fiscal bills, have come before the Senate in the long period since last May, and no final action has been taken with respect to either. One of these, of course, is the immeasurably vital treaty of peace. The other is the railroad bill.

Failure to ratify the treaty and to adopt the League of Nations has not merely delayed peace for the present and withheld a guarantee of its continuance in the future, but has actually disturbed the tranquility of the entire world. Strikes, riots, sedition and agitation have been fostered by the uncertainty which the Senate's dalliance with the treaty has created. Want of a definite arrangement for the operation of the railroads has contributed to the instability of business in every quarter of the country.

Of less import, but yet of significance, is the cost of all this inaction and reaction. The expense of keeping Congress in session for the last six months is $3,000,000. That is not a guess; it is an official figure. It means that Congress has spent of the taxpayers' money about $1,500,000 in fighting the treaty and an equal sum in postponing a satisfactory disposition of the railroads. All that the special session has done in an affirmative way could have been accomplished within three weeks if there had been a disposition to support the President instead of hampering and humiliating him. There has been instead a reckless waste of time and money and opportunity—with one of the consequences of it visible in the industrial upheaval now in progress.

"UL' GLOES"

The old clothes man is a high financier in Eastern Europe, and in Siberia, where a pair of second-hand shoes sell for fifty dollars, and where the cast off clothes of an American Red Cross worker were lately appraised as being worth more than a thousand dollars.

American Jewish relief agents are constantly coming across destitute Jews wrapped in rags that they have not had off them once, day or night, in the last five years. Getting fresh clothes to them is quite as important as giving them food, now that the typhus epidemic is carrying them off by hundreds. Typhus is a disease which flourishes inevitably among these people who have no change of clothing, and who lack even soap for bathing.

Your neighbors recommend this remedy—have proved its merit in many tests. Princess Anne readers should take fresh courage in the straightforward testimony of a Princess Anne citizen.

Mrs. K. L. Smith, 106 Beckford Ave., says: "About two years ago I was in a bad way from severe backache. My back was very painful, especially when I stooped over and sharp pains caught me when I straightened up. I was very miserable and one day I learned of Doan's Kidney Pills. After using two boxes, I was rid of the trouble. I can say nothing too good for Doan's Kidney Pills."

Most laxatives and cathartics afford only temporary relief and should be used only for that purpose. When you want permanent relief take Chamberlain's Tablets and be careful to observe the directions with each package. These tablets not only move the bowels, but improve the appetite and strengthen the digestion.

CLOTHES You Should Wear on Thanksgiving

HIGH ART CLOTHES have given the men of this town a taste of the ultra in fashion; and so it isn't strange that there should have sprung up a demand for the uncommon in shirts, scarfs and the other fixings for men.

THERE IS ONLY ONE STANDARD here for everything—and that is the best. Things that have only their low prices to commend them can find no place in our assortment.

THAT DOESN'T MEAN our merchandise is high priced: it does mean that it must be good enough to render full return for the amount expended.

Elam K. Woodoth Wants Your Holly, Wreaths and Mistletoe

He wanted it last year, and got it, and it is a matter of record that he paid more money to the shippers than any other man in the business. The past fifteen years he has been receiving Holly Wreaths, Box Holly and other greens from this section and invariably has paid the shippers more money than any other firm in the business.

If you want any information, ask him; he will tell you, and tell you the truth. When he says, "Don't ship any Greens before the 5th or 6th of December," he knows what he is talking about. The Railroad Company will not allow the goods to remain in the depot, and as there is no trade for Greens before December 10th, why ship them until it is time for them to be sold.

Prices were high last year, but all indications point to higher prices this year, and Mr. Woodoth is the man to get the high prices for the shippers.

Quite a few jobbers will be around to see you and want to buy your Wreaths, or whatever you have to sell, but if you are wise you will stick to the Old Reliable Merchant who has always made good. When the time comes, which is December 5th or 6th, start all your shipments to

P. S.—If you don't know him, you had better get acquainted. It will be money in your pocket.

Thanksgiving Day

is here, and the holiday spirit of joy and thankfulness is rightfully prevalent everywhere. It is, therefore, meet that we should express ourselves with unbound thanks on Thanksgiving Day this year for what this country has accomplished during the past year.

In looking back on the year that is past we give thanks for the business we have received, for the staunch friends we have made, and for the success we have enjoyed.

On November 27th we will observe the legal holiday, and remain closed all day.

This Thanksgiving—and next

If you are the proud possessor of a growing bank account that spurs you on to bigger things—be glad; you have just cause for thanksgiving!

If you cannot count this among your blessings, Now is an opportune time to begin an account in this Institution.

Add to it, not spasmodically with large sums necessarily, but systematically with regular even though small deposits—

And next Thanksgiving you'll rejoice that you started when you did, and be thankful for the benefits which will inevitably have followed your action.
