BOSTON, August 23.

THE Tunisian ambassador is likely to turn out a "harder bargain" than the executive has yet found him. We are told, his excellency, dissatisfied with the conduct of some of the agents of government at Washington, with respect to some property he had purchased, set off, with one of his attendants for Washington, to remonstrate with the president, or whomever he may find representing the government, on the subject. Mr. Cathcart remains here. It is expected the minister will, on his return, embark in the Two-Brothers.

NEW-YORK, August 27.

Cap. Bates, of the Ranger, from the Ile de France, informs, that when he sailed, that place was blockaded by a British 74 gun-ship and a frigate.

AUGUST 28.

LOSS OF THE SHIP ROSE-IN-BLOOM.

It is with much regret we have to state the loss of the ship Rose-in-Bloom, commanded by captain S. Barker, bound from Charleston to this port. This ship upset at 9 o'clock on Sunday morning last, off Barnegat, during the gale which was severely felt in this city. It is painful to state, that out of forty-nine persons on board, twenty-one were drowned.—Gen. Macpherson, of Philadelphia, in saving the life of his daughter, lost his own. On Monday, at 11 o'clock, A. M. the survivors were taken off the wreck by the British brig Swift, captain Phelan, of St. Johns, and brought safe to this port.

The following are the names of the persons saved: Captain Stephen Barker, captain Oliver Champlin, Miss Eliza Macpherson, hon. John Rutledge, Mr. L. Petroy, M. Brennan, Joseph W. Page, B. Booth, John Davis, D. Botifeur, H. Turner, N. Perry, D. Crocker.

Seamen.

Benjamin Brayton, W. Van Fighthen, John W. Gibbs, Randall Cornell, Lloyd B. Burt, John Hathaway, Lewis Divison, Lewis Riley, James Quin, Thomas Conly, William Cowan.

Men of colour.

Baptiste Hagerdie, John Murray, Henry Davis—28 saved.

DROWNED.

Gen. Macpherson and servant, Mrs. Booth and son, Mr. Clark, James Miller, jun, Thomas Tait, Henry Bowering, Doctor Ballard and servant, Mr. Botifeur's servant, Mr. D. Crocker's ditto.

Steerage passengers and seamen.

PARTICULARS OF THE LOSS OF THE ROSE-IN-BLOOM.

Since the wreck of the Hawsell Indiaman, on the horrors of which the most pathetic strains of the mourning muse have been lavishly poured forth, and the painter's pencil so frequently employed, nothing of the kind has occurred, at least that we can at present call to recollection, so calculated to wring the heart of humanity, and to excite sorrow and sympathy in every bosom not wholly shut against the tender visitings of our nature, as the ship-wreck of the Rose-in-Bloom. Convinced that our readers will be anxious to get minute information respecting that disastrous event, we have been at some pains to obtain the particulars, which we found to be simply as follows:

The Rose-in-Bloom left Charleston on Saturday, the 16th of August, inst. with the wind at S. W. which continued till the Tuesday following, when it changed to the East, occasioned a very high sea, tho' the wind was by no means great. Thus it continued till Friday, the morning of which was ushered in with every appearance of a heavy gale. At noon on that day, a storm arose of great violence attended with thunder and lightning so fierce and vivid as had rarely been witnessed, never exceeded, even by the oldest inhabitants of South-Carolina who were on board.—More need not be said of it than that it appalled the hearts of the stout mariners, and made such an impression on their imaginations as to induce them to think that there was a strong sulphurous fench about the vessel. About four o'clock it began to clear away.—But in the evening the gale increased to a tempest, accompanied with heavy rain, both of which continued with unrelaxed severity, and without intermission the whole night. On Saturday the violence of the tempest and the heavy agitation of the sea suggested to the captain the expediency of endeavouring to heave to, which he endeavoured to do under a top-sail; but this was in less than half an hour torn to shreds by the wind, and by the working of the vessel. A stay-sail was then set; but it too was shivered to pieces before midnight. At this time, the captain, becoming apprehensive that the wind, being at North-East, blowing very violently, and of course the drift of the vessel towards the land being very great, he might get ashore, set a close reefed fore-sail in hopes of the vessel clawing off. Under this she continued labouring till twenty minutes after nine on Sunday morning, when she upset. None of the hatches being battered down, the sea made its way through and rushed by them into the hold, while the cabin was immediately filled with water by the way of the companion. With an extraordinary presence of mind, supplied by the love of life operating upon brave and intrepid spirits, some of the passengers in the cabin, rushed up the companion, and some burst their way through the sky-light, and got into the sea. Among the first of those was Miss M'Pherfon, whom Mr. John Rutledge by vigorous effort got up the companion. The vessel being on her side, those who went out of the sky-light of course got into the sea, where they were entangled among the tackle and cordage, and in their struggles, clung to various parts of the masts, yards and rigging. The only chance they appeared now to have was, to cut away the masts: but this was found to be impossible, neither axe nor hatchet being to be had. Some persons however, who had run up the side of the ship by the shrouds, contrived, with much labour and difficulty, having nothing but small pocket knives with which to do it, to cut away the lanyards, on the giving way of which, all the masts broke off short by the board. The ship now began to right gradually, but very slowly. The laden below as well as on deck being cotton, she was, so far fortunately, buoyant, and continued to float with her stern above water; so low however, as to be swept by the waves as they passed along. On this wretched support, the little chance or hope of life, which those passengers who had escaped the sea, now wholly rested. In the gallant efforts of a brave father to save a beloved child, gen. M'Pherfon, who from the outlet to the last moment, incessantly exclaimed, "Save my daughter," had been numbered with the dead. Mr. Booth, another of the passengers, had seen his wife and child buried for ever in the deep. They had lain in the weather state room. On the vessel's upsetting, he had burst out the dead light, and this unhappy pair getting upon the wreck with their only son, all clinging in an embrace together, were swept into the sea, where a wave separated them, never more to embrace.—He rose in the mizen top—he was seen for a moment at the peak, and sinking, appeared no more.—The child after a few feeble efforts sunk also. Those who escaped from being carried away by the sea, and from drowning in the cabin, now collected upon the stern, and bound themselves with ropes to the weather railing, nearly naked, utterly destitute of food or drink. The cold too, was extremely great; and what with the hurts and fatigue from the tossing about of the vessel, four of those died in the course of the afternoon. Every thing that could tend to dishearten them, was forbidden to be uttered, and such measures as their desperate means allowed, were taken to preserve them. They were arranged in three tiers, joined close for warmth; these changed places at stated intervals, so that each tire should have a turn of the middle place for shelter from the cold winds which blew upon them. In this perilous and painful state they continued all night. About midnight the wind shifted to N. W. the sea fell considerably, and the weather became moderate, and the night clear. About three o'clock in the morning they were cheered by a distant light, which the mariners insisted was a ship's light. It increased in size—it rose fast from the horizon, and they had soon the affliction to perceive that it was the morning star instead of a light of a ship. At day light on Monday the gale had quite abated, and the heat became almost as painful as the cold had been before. At this time bags of cotton began to emerge from the hold, and a trunk escaped from the cabin, which had a small bag of biscuit in it. This, though reduced to a paste with the water, and salt as brine, they were rejoiced to get, resolving to husband it, by an allowance barely sufficient to keep soul and body together. In little more than an hour after sunrise, a sail was descried in the S. W. standing, as they thought, towards them. She afterwards seemed to change her course, which probably was owing to the weather being calm, and her consequently not answering the helm. Fearing that they should escape the notice of the vessel, and desirous to multiply objects in the sea, in order to increase their chance, two seamen were induced, by a reward promised by Mr. Rutledge, to get upon a mast or spar, and with baddles made from a weather board, to move towards the sail. At 8 o'clock, while the men were with great difficulty, but not more danger than they would be on the wreck, were making their way, they and the wreck were discovered by the sail, which turned out to be the British brig Swift, of St. John's, N. S. commanded by an Irishman of the name of PHELAN, whose conduct upon this occasion ranks him among the noblest instances of that pure benevolence and philanthropy, which do honour to the human race, and so generally distinguish the hearts of that oppressed nation. He immediately bore down to the wreck, put out his jolly boat to succour the seamen on the spar, and his long boat to relieve those on the wreck, and got them all in safety on board his vessel, the weather being dead calm. He continued by the wreck till the evening—scuttled the after part of the quarter-deck which was above water, and by great exertions in diving, caused some few trunks to be saved, which helped to clothe the surviving sufferers. Nor was this all. To his immortal honour be it said, he would not stop doing good while any good remained to be done. He himself attended the sick, recruited and nourished the exhausted strength of those who were well; gave up his own blankets and cloaths and those of his crew to cover the unfortunate he had saved—in a word, did every thing in his power to make them comfortable. And what was more than all, without hesitation consented to go out of his course in order to bring the sufferers to New-York, where he landed them about eight o'clock on Wednesday evening.

Events of such an afflicting nature would be intolerably painful, if they were not relieved by something calculated to soothe the mind, and relieve it from the agony of reflecting upon so much horror. In this case the soul, sickened with a long detail of miseries and death and anguish turns from the sufferers, and composes with delight upon the contemplation of the humane and generous man who relieved them.

Mr. Tait, of the house of Tait and Wilson, in Charleston, than whom a worthier man lives not, and Mr. Bowering, being in births to windward when the vessel over-set, could not get out of the cabin, where they were found dead, very much bruised and lacerated as it is supposed by the rolling of the chests and trunks, and by their fruitless efforts to escape.

The following is a copy of a letter written yesterday to capt. Phelan:

New-York, August 28, 1806.

To Captain Richard Phelan, of the Brig Swift.
 SIR,

For having under the blessings of God, rescued us from the wreck of the ship Rose-in-Bloom, on the 23d inst. we offer you our sincere thanks. When we were nearly exhausted by hunger, thirst, fatigue and cold, and clinging to the small part of the wreck, which was then not entirely under water, and without any prospect of possibly escaping from the watery grave into which we were fast descending, the appearance of your vessel resuscitated our drooping spirits, and made us consider you as defined by Heaven for our relief. Your altering your course, sending off your boats, and making great and prompt exertions to save us, excite emotions of gratitude in all of us which we will not attempt to describe. We request you would do us the favour of accepting, as a small compensation for your great and benevolent services, of one hundred guineas, and to be assured that we shall rejoice in any occasion which may hereafter occur of being useful to yourself, your mate, Mr. M'Fee, or any of the crew of your vessel. We sincerely wish you may have a safe passage to St. Johns—that in your passage through life, you may not meet with any other gales than those of prosperity, and that you would do justice to the sentiments of infinite gratitude with which we are your obliged servants.

 New-York, August 28, 1806.

To the signers of the foregoing.
 I accept with strong emotions, the testimony you have presented me of the remembrance you preserve of my services in taking you off from the wreck. Not to have done what I did, would have been a cause of the most severest and most lasting self-reproach; while the recollection of having been instrumental, under Providence, in saving so many valuable lives, will I assure you, be one of the greatest sources of happiness to me during the remainder of my existence. Accept of my reciprocal good wishes.

For the MARYLAND GAZETTE.

To the VOTERS of ANNE-ARUNDEL COUNTY.

FELLOW CITIZENS,
COL. OSBORN WILLIAMS, I am informed by a friend, now says he has been brought forward by his fellow citizens, by his neighbours; a few days past only, my friend positively declares, he heard col. Williams, in presence of a number of persons in the neighbourhood of maj. Hammond's, say that he intended to offer himself a candidate for representative at the ensuing election, much to the surprize and astonishment of every person present; this gentleman, I have been informed, is anxious to fill the vacancy occasioned by the resignation of our able statesman, col. John F. Mercer: why this Mr. Williams should come forward, claiming an exclusive privilege to supply the place of col. Mercer, is matter of astonishment, as a number of gentlemen from other parts of the county had before offered, some of whom had served the people heretofore, others had been candidates, and have voted respectable bodies of men, and are fully entitled to the confidence of the people, and ought to be elected in preference to col. Williams.

For the information of the people, col. Williams lives in the next door to capt. Joshua Clarke Higgins, our former representative, the true, tried friend of the people, the free uncontested choice of the people, a gentleman whose conduct as a representative met the entire full approbation of his constituents, and who will again, I am assured, support him unanimously; and that under existing circumstances, it would be improper to elect col. Williams. The citizens of Anne-Arundel county have, in the upper end of said county, for many years complained they shared unfairly in the representation; the lower end of the county has so generally preponderated in the election, that the delegates have either been from around the city of Annapolis, or the centre of the county, a grievance they have always aimed to have remedied, and last year, in full consequence did they support capt. Higgins in the upper district, and their candidate was voted for by the friends of capt. Higgins; they now are, I am informed, ready to do the same thing, and will do so, provided any assurance can be given that col. Williams is not endeavouring to split and divide the interest of one of your best friends and faithful representatives, capt. Higgins; these circumstances appearing sufficiently plain and evident, is a good reason why you should reject col. Williams as an improper character, my fellow-citizens, and he ought not to be voted for at the ensuing election.

Col. Williams has, in his offer to the people, attempted to soften and lull to sleep the idea that he has been this violent partizan, this advocate of democratic caucuses, this usurper of the people's rights; why does he not come forward and refute the charge? No, my fellow citizens, the facts are upon record; this man is known, he ought not to be elected.

Political writers have established a maxim, that in instituting a government, and fixing the several checks and controls, man should be considered a knave; but where a considerable body of men act together, this check is in a great measure removed, since he is sure to be approved of by his own party, for what promotes the interests of them, and he soon learns to despise the claims of his adversaries; and as it is well known every government must come to an end, and that death is unavoidable to the political, as well as animal body, 'tis impossible such a government as ours of the present day, can long subsist; we shall, at last, after infinite convulsions, find safety and repose only in the best men, and I hope our posterity may be taught a lesson of moderation by our present violent political controversies; and that col. Williams is not the best man, and ought not to be elected.

All questions concerning the proper medium between any two extremes are very difficult to be decided, and when frenzy has seized the mind, and rancorous prejudice inculcated, great God! have pity. Shall the sun sink below the horizon, and darkness steal upon us, and nature be hurried into universal shade? Again let us inquire into the merits of col. Osborn Williams; let us compare him with Horatio Ridout, Esquire, who will serve the people of Anne-Arundel county, in the house of delegates, if elected; let us see which gentleman should stand foremost in the affections of the people, and should be elected, to fill the vacancy occasioned by col. Mercer.

1st. Mr. Ridout is a gentleman of liberal education, brought up to the profession of law, a proper character at this time, and ought to be elected.

2d. Mr. Ridout practiced the profession of law for several years with much integrity; until it suited him to retire to his private estate, and now, having only the public interest at heart, would be a proper character, and ought to be elected.

3d. Mr. Ridout offered himself, and was elected a member of the house of delegates for four years, and served with great honour to himself, and much to the interests and satisfaction of his constituents, and ought for these past services to be again elected.

4th. Mr. Ridout is capable of framing a bill, or law, also to aid and assist greatly in the explanation or discussion of any constitutional question that might arise before the house, he is a safe good man every way, and herein a very proper character, and ought to be elected.

5th. Mr. Ridout is perfectly acquainted with the etiquette and rules of the house of delegates, and knows well the mode and form of doing business, therefore would he a very proper character, and ought to be elected.

6th. Mr. Ridout's acquaintance with the rules of the house would qualify him correctly to fill the chair as speaker, and in such a situation would be a proper character, and ought to be elected.

7th. Mr. Ridout, from his profession as a lawyer, has necessarily involved a knowledge and information in history and governmental science; then this character is proper, and ought to be elected.

8th. Mr. Ridout, from his situation in private and public life, has had an opportunity of being acquainted with the most respectable men in the state for learning, erudition and science, which makes him a very proper character, and ought to be elected.

9th. Mr. Ridout is well acquainted with the situation of his country, he understands the geography of the United States, he understands the geography of the world, he understands accurately the situation of all the transatlantic powers, and the principles of their government, their interests and relative situations, one with another, as well with the United States, and therefore would be a proper character to act in any capacity as legislator in the United States, and ought to be elected.

10th. Mr. Ridout declares himself free of party spirit and prejudice, that he will act impartially for the public good; he is then, my fellow-citizens, the proper character to fill your state and national councils; he is the man that should be elected, and while I have an existence, while I am able to exercise my reason, to use my tongue and pen, will I advocate such men as these, the only sure guardians of your life, liberty and property.

Now, my fellow-citizens, after a due consideration of the merits of col. Williams, this Demosthenes of the present day, I think, like Cicero of ancient times, he may retire from the scenes of public business, and, if he chooses, can bestow his leisure hours, on young men who are desirous of being instructed in Philosophy, or like Cicero, he may make it his business to compose and translate philosophical dialogues.

I tremble at the fate of this man. Powerful omnipotent of sickness and health, we bow to thy decrees. Thou knowest what is to be the future lot of thy people. Immortal son of Hope, improve us. O Minerva, daughter of the omnipotent Jupiter. Diana, tutelary goddess, and thou O Apollo, divine scourer of the diseased, who administered to their maladies; attend to those which overwhelm this courting suppliant; behold the people, the sovereign people, the devoted victims of democratic influence, just ready to descend into the grave of ruin; without resource, without hope, the scene closes, and refuses to yield to sollicitation. Plato himself is astonished to see the people fall dead before his oratory. The sounds of mournful accents fill the air. Minerva come to our aid. Put flight to this modern Demosthenes, this exterminating Mars, more formidable than the God of battle himself; this man, who accomplishes our destruction without arms—banish him far from these regions, if it be thy pleasure, bury him in some unfathomable caucous. O! Heavens! what night spares becomes the prey of the succeeding day, Great Jupiter, at whose command the thunder rolls! crush to pieces this man of Terror. Apollo, prepare your bows and arrows to succour us. Diana, overwhelm him with those fires you darted upon the mountains of Lycia. let them descend like flaming arrows upon his head. Mighty Bacchus, come with thy burning torches, and chase away this man of massacre.

Visitation of the Schools.

On Friday last, the select men and other gentlemen composing the school committee, made their annual visitation to the public schools in Boston. They were accompanied on this pleasing duty by the hon. senators of the county of Suffolk, the representatives of the town, the sheriff and judges of the various courts, the clergy, members of the board of health, overseers of the poor, firewards and strangers. The exercises were such as to give pleasure to the visitors, and did honour to the youth and to the ancient republican institutions of our forefathers. On the lists of the several schools, are 1030 boys and 750 girls; of whom 733 boys and 683 girls were present.

After the visitation, the company assembled in Faneuil-Hall to partake of an elegant dinner. Their pleasure was heightened by enjoying the convenience and beauty of the New-Hall, and by several classical and appropriate toasts.

Circumstances seem still to delay the return of the Tunisian Ambassador to his own country. We understand that he has proceeded to Washington to have an interview with the President or some of the heads of departments.

The Death of the Pines.

It is said that since the fall of 1802, a deadly disease has been spreading among the pine trees of South-Carolina. This year it appears to act with the most powerful effects, many plantations having lost all their sawing and fencing timber, and thousands of acres contiguous to each other, presenting nothing but a dreary waste.—The causes of this disease have not been ascertained.

The quickness of vegetation in hot and cold climates is so astonishing as to be perfectly unaccountable, were we not able to refer it to a most exalted wisdom.

The following is a calendar of a Siberian, or Lapland Year.

June 23	Snow melts.
July 1	Snow gone.
9	Fields quite green.
17	Plants at full growth.
25	Plants in flower.
Aug. 2	Fruit ripe.
10	Plants shed their seed.
18	Snow.

From August 18, to June 23, Snow and Ice.—Thus it appears that from their first emerging from the ground, to the ripening of their seeds, the plants take but a month; and spring, summer, and autumn, are crowded into the short space of 56 days.

of vegetation in hot and cold climates as to be perfectly unaccountable to refer it to a most exalted calendar of a Siberian, or Lapland Year.

BALTIMORE, August 29.

A letter from Mr. Lippincot, of this city, one of the Americans taken in Miranda's schooners, dated Porto Cavallo, July 23, states, that the prisoners had been tried, and ten of the principal officers, who were upwards of 25 years of age, were sentenced to death, and had been executed. The others were sentenced to ten years confinement in irons, and had been distributed in different castles.

The names of Kirkland and Ledlie are not mentioned amongst those that were captured.

Captain Huddle, of the schooner Bee, was killed in the action with the Guarda Costa.

The Marquis Yrujo has a list of the sufferers, with the particulars of their trial.

For the following correct list of the persons executed as pirates, at or near Lagaira, taken from the official judgment, we are indebted to the politeness of a respectable friend:

James Gardner, Gus. Adolphus Bergudd (a Poleander) Charles Johnson, Miles Hull, John Faris, Francis Farquharson, Thomas Donahue (of Philadelphia) Thomas Villop, Daniel Kemper, Paul F. George (a Portuguese).—[Philad. True Am.]

Captain Whiby, of the British frigate Leander, was challenged at Halifax by an American gentleman. He declined it by saying that his duty to his sovereign forbid it. He has since been branded with the epithet of coward! Ibid.

NORFOLK, August 26.

Notwithstanding the severity of the gale, on Saturday night and Sunday morning, we are happy to learn, that the damage is by no means so great as was apprehended. Some vessels in the river were driven from their moorings, and in Hampton Roads where there were upwards of ten sail outward bound, two only parted from their anchors, and went ashore; but we learn, have since been got off without sustaining any material damage. Some new buildings and chimneys were blown down; also, a great many trees and fences. Accounts from the country state, that the corn must have suffered considerably as it is laid flat.

Postscript.

BY YESTERDAY'S PACKET.

BOSTON, August 20.

A Jamaica paper of July 26, states, that on the 17th July, the Serpent loop of war fell in with admiral Warren's squadron in the Mona passage, and learnt that he should steer to the northward, in hopes of intercepting Willaumez's Squadron on its return to Europe.

Further—A gentleman who came passenger in the Industry, arrived here yesterday, from St. John's (N. F.) which place he left 6th inst. informs us, that the brig Scorpion, belonging to Sir John Borlase Warren's Squadron arrived there the day before he sailed; which left said squadron off Cape Race, (N. F.) consisting of 6 sail of the line and 2 frigates; that the Irin, of 50 guns, Mercury, of 32, and Jamaica, of 44, were to sail immediately from Newfoundland to join them; and that a cutter was dispatched to Halifax with the information.

NEW-YORK, August 29.

The Rose-in-Bloom, at the time of the accident that ended so fatally, had on board 130,000 dollars in specie and bills, only 9,000 of which were saved.

August 30.

A detachment of United States troops, consisting of 70 non-commissioned officers, musicians and privates under the command of lieut. E. B. Clewson, embarked yesterday, from fort Jay, on board the loop Huntress, for Albany, destined to the lakes, for the completion of the garrisons of fort Michilimackinack, fort Dearborn, at Chicago, and fort Wayne.

Interesting.—The following is an extract of a letter from a very respectable gentleman of Portsmouth, near Norfolk, dated August 17, 1806.

"Some very interesting accounts are expected in print in a few days from a Mr. Andrew Lecki, a person who has been discharged from the bank. I am told important discoveries will be made. Our collector, Col. Newton, has likewise involved our president in difficulty, by clearing out 3 armed vessels, evidently intended for Spanish privateers, commanded by a man named Turk Cooper, of famous memory. A spirited remonstrance has been made by Mr. Merry, and I suppose it will not be the means of settling amicably the differences between the two countries."

PHILADELPHIA, August 30.

One of the New-York papers, in mentioning the names of the unfortunate persons who lost their lives by the oversetting of the ship Rose-in-Bloom, states, that gen. M'Pherson, of Philadelphia, is among the number. This is a mistake. Gen. John M'Pherson, of Charleston, (S. C.) is the unfortunate sufferer.

The following is the only article relative to peace, brought by yesterday's mails. The report was, consequently premature. The vessel expected to bring the news at New-York, had a passage of 50 days from London—accounts by her are not so late as before received:—

FIRST NEWS OF PEACE.

Capt. Peas, of the sch'r Olive-Branch, was taken from the wreck of the said sch'r on the 26th ult. and arrived here yesterday in the Lady Washington, from New-Orleans. Capt. P. left St. Kitts, on the 7th of last month, and informs, that the day before he sailed, a private hired sch'r arrived there from Barbadoes with news of Peace between Great-Britain and France, this news was received at Barbadoes by a frigate, which left England on the 14th of July: and on her arrival at St. Christophers, a frigate was dispatched to other Islands with the news, and the sch'r which brought the intelligence sailed immediately for Antigua and other British possessions. Captain Peas had letters on board from a number of mercantile houses to gentlemen in this city and Canada, announcing this important intelligence, but which were lost with the schooner. Partial rejoicings took place in consequence of this news.— N. Y. Gazette.

From the Baltimore Telegraph of yesterday.

Yesterday anchored in Annapolis Roads, his French imperial and royal majesty's ship Patriot, of 74 guns, commanded by commodore Krhom, member of the legion of honour, &c. [She has not yet arrived off this port.]

Commodore Krhom arrived here yesterday in a sch'r. The French fleet under admiral Jerome Buonaparte experienced a severe gale on the 10th ult. which lasted till the 13th.—The Patriot parted from the rest of the fleet on the 11th, and is very much damaged, having some of her masts carried away. The report of the capture of part of the homeward bound British Jamaica fleet, is without foundation—nor is it known what course the French fleet has taken.

On Saturday last arrived at New-Castle, a French frigate, having carried away her mizen mast and main top mast, and received some other damage in the late gale of the 23d; she has a number of British prisoners on board, and from report only, we are enabled to say that she is one of Jerome's fleet, that they have all been in the gale, that one of them was obliged to throw over all her guns, that most of them had received some damage, that they were bound for the Chesapeake, that they had taken upwards of 20 sail of British vessels, supposed part of the Jamaica convoy, and that they had a number of English prisoners on board.—To-morrow we hope to be more particular. Mr. Howard, pilot, arrived yesterday informs, that he fell in with the wreck of the Rose-in-Bloom, about 30 leagues S. E. of Cape Henlopen, and left her on Thursday morning, about 2 o'clock, driving to the southward, in tow of two pilot boats. [Phil. Pap.]

The damage done the shipping on the coast by the storm on Saturday se'night, is truly lamentable—Scarcely a vessel arrives which does not bring some account of either discovering wrecks, or picking up floating goods, the deplorable consequence—many valuable lives were lost. [Telegraphic.]

THE ROVER'S REFORM.

JERRY's heart was form'd for loving,
But inconstant as the air,
Round the brilliant circle roving,
He admir'd each lovely Fair.
Some he lov'd for pure good nature,
Some for shape, and some for feature,
Some for one thing, some another,
This he lov'd for being small,
For her size he lov'd the other,
And in fact he lov'd them all.
Who would think that such a rover
Could consent to take a wife,
And become a constant lover
For the period of his life?
JERRY vow'd he'd never marry—
No one girl was form'd for JERRY.
Marriage thoughts were too alarming,
Well he lov'd th' enchanting Fair,
But, "Variety is charming,"
Was to him a charming air.
Soon, however, lovely SALLY,
Borrow'd CUPID's surest dart,
And before he'd time to rally
Pierc'd the roving lover's heart.
JERRY lov'd—resolv'd to marry—
SALLY made a spouse of JERRY.
Who in one alone delighted,
Finds his former notions ill,
For, though long they've been united,
JERRY loves his SALLY still.

LINES BY MOORE.

COME, take the harp—'tis vain to muse
Upon the gathering ills we see;
Oh! take the harp, and let me lose
All thoughts of ill in hearing thee!
Sing to me, love!—though death were near,
Thy song could make my soul forget—
Nay, nay, in pity, dry that tear,
All may be well, be happy yet!
Let me but see that snowy arm
Once more upon the dear harp lie,
And I will cease to dream of harm,
Will smile at fate, while thou art nigh!
Give me that strain, of mournful touch
We us'd to love long long ago,
Before our hearts had known as much
As now, alas! they bleed to know!
Sweet notes! they tell of former peace,
Of all that look'd so rapturous then,
Now wither'd, lost—Oh pray thee, cease,
I cannot bear those sounds again!
Art thou too wretched? yes, thou art;
I see thy tears flow fast for mine—
Come, come to this devoted heart,
'Tis breaking, but it still is thine!

From the LUZERNE FEDERALIST.

MR. EDITOR,

I SEND you an extract for the Ladies, from a valuable little book. As all advice, in a greater or less degree implies censure, I hope you will not think it unbecoming for your paper. I only mention this to induce you to admit the piece, which you might otherwise think not suited to your design; for I would be very far from intimating that I suppose a single lady in Luzerne, faulty in any particular, that is the subject of the advice.

"One of the chief beauties in a female character, is that modest reserve, that retiring delicacy, which avoids the public eye, and is disconcerted even at the gaze of admiration. I do not wish you to be insensible to applause. If you were, you must become, if not worse, at least less amiable women. But you may avoid being dazzled by that admiration which yet rejoices your hearts.

"When a girl ceases to blush, she has lost the most powerful charm of beauty. That extreme insensibility which it indicates, may be too weak and incurable in our sex, as I have too often felt; but in yours it is peculiarly engaging. Pedants, who think themselves philosophers, ask why a woman should blush when she is guilty of no crime? It is a sufficient answer, that nature has made you blush when you are guilty of no fault, and has forced us to love you because you do so. Blushing is so far from being necessarily an attendant on guilt, that it is the usual companion of innocence.

"The great art of pleasing in conversation consists in making the company pleased with themselves. You will more readily hear them talk yourselves into your good graces.

"Beware of detraction, especially where your own sex are concerned. You are generally accused of being particularly addicted to this vice; I think unjustly. Men are full as guilty of it when their interests interfere. As your interests more frequently clash, and as your feelings are quicker than ours, your temptations to it are more frequent. For this reason, be particularly tender of the reputation of your own sex, especially when they happen to rival you in our regards. We look on this as the strongest proof of dignity and true greatness of mind.

"Consider every species of impudency in conversation as shameful in itself, and highly disgusting to us. The dissoluteness of men's education allows them to be diverted with a kind of wit, which yet they have delicacy enough to be shocked at, when it comes from your mouths, and even when you hear it without pain or contempt. Virgin purity is of that delicate nature, that it cannot bear certain things without contamination. It is always in your power to avoid these. No man, but a brute, or a fool, would insult a woman with conversation which he sees gives her pain; nor will he dare to do it, if she resent the injury with a becoming spirit. There is a dignity in conscious virtue which is able to awe the most shameless and abandoned of men.

"You will be reproached perhaps with prudery.—By prudery is generally meant an affectation of delicacy. Now I do not wish you to affect delicacy, I wish you to possess it. At any rate it is better to run the risk of being thought ridiculous than disgusting.

"The men will complain of your reserve. They will assure you that a franker behaviour would make you more amiable. But trust me, they are not sincere when they tell you so. I acknowledge that on some occasions it might render you more agreeable as companions, but it would make you less amiable as women: An important distinction, which many of your sex are not aware of. After all, I wish you to have great ease and openness in your conversation.—I only point out some considerations which ought to regulate your behaviour in that respect.

"Have a sacred regard to truth: Lying is a mean despicable vice. I have known some women of excellent parts who were so much addicted to it, that they could not be trusted in the relation of any story, especially if it contained any thing of the marvellous, or if they themselves were the heroine of the tale. This weakness did not proceed from a bad heart, but was merely the effect of vanity, or an unbridled imagination. I do not mean to censure that lively embellishment of a humorous story, which is only intended to promote innocent mirth.

"There is a certain gentleness of spirit and manners extremely engaging in your sex; not that indiscriminate attention, that unmeaning simper which smiles on all alike. This arises, either from an affectation of softness, or from perfect insipidity.

"A fine woman, like other fine things in nature, has her proper point of view, from which she may be seen to most advantage. To fix this point, requires great judgment, and an intimate knowledge of the human heart. By the present mode of female manners, the ladies seem to expect that they should regain their ascendancy over us by the fullest display of their personal charms, by being always in our eye at public places, by conversing with us with the same unrestrained freedom as we do with one another; in short, by resembling us as nearly as they possibly can. But a little time and experience will shew the folly of this expectation and conduct.

"The power of a fine woman over the hearts of men, of men of the finest parts, is even beyond what she conceives. They are sensible of the pleasing illusion, but they cannot, nor do they wish to dissolve it. But if she is determined to dispel the charm, it certainly is in her power; she may soon reduce the angel to a very ordinary girl.

"There is a native dignity in ingenuous modesty, to be expected in your sex, which is your natural protection from the familiarities of the men, and which you should feel previous to the reflection that it is your interest to keep yourselves sacred from all personal freedoms. The many nameless charms and endearments of beauty should be referred to bless the arms of the happy man to whom you give your heart, but who if he has the least delicacy, will despise them if he knows that they have been prostituted to fifty men before him. The sentiment that a woman may allow all innocent freedoms, provided her virtue is secure, is both grossly indelicate and dangerous, and has proved fatal to many of your sex.

"Let me now recommend to your attention that elegance, which is not so much a quality itself as the high polish of every other. It is what diffuses an ineffable grace over every look, every motion, every sentence you utter. It gives that charm to beauty, without which it generally fails to please. It is partly a personal quality, in which respect it is the gift of nature; but I speak of it principally as a quality of the mind. In a word, it is perfection of taste in life and manners; every virtue and every excellency in their most graceful and amiable forms.

"You may perhaps think that I want to throw every spark of nature out of your composition, and to make you entirely artificial. Far from it. I wish you to possess the most perfect simplicity of heart and manners. I think you may possess dignity without pride, affability without meanness, and simple elegance without affectation."

MERCHANTS.

THERE is not, says ADDISON, a more useful class of society than merchants. They knit mankind together in mutual intercourse of good offices, distribute the gifts of nature, and increase the comforts and conveniencies of life:—

[Boston Centinel.]

ANNAPOLIS, THURSDAY, September 11, 1806.

BALTIMORE, September 6.

LATEST FROM EUROPE.

By the regular-trading and fast-sailing ship Fair-American, capt. Davis, in 40 days from London, we received papers to the 23d of July inclusive, 5 days later than any heretofore received. From a hasty perusal of these papers we do not discover any thing on the subject of peace, except that couriers are still passing between England and France.—Extra's follow.

LONDON, July 19.

Basilico has not yet taken his departure. A Russian courier, however, embarked yesterday for Boulogne with dispatches for M. D'Oubril, who is supposed to have reached Paris.

The removal of the crews of the Prussian vessels from on board their ships to prison, has been the fore-runner, as it was natural to expect, of the departure of the Prussian ambassador Jacobi, who has received orders to leave this country, and who is expected to set off about the end of next week.

July 21.

Letters from the coast mention, that Calais has lately been bombarded by our cruisers on that station. It appears that while commodore Owen was examining some vessels that had run within the French shore, he was fired on from Calais; on which it is added he sent in a flag of truce, declaring that he had been restrained by considerations of humanity from firing on the town; but that should they persist in their wanton attempts to annoy him, he should be compelled to retaliate. A correspondent continues to observe, that an insulting answer having been returned, the commodore ordered two gun-brigs to play upon the town for eight hours, and that part of it was in consequence reduced to ruins.

The letters A. E. I. O. U. were engraved upon the key of the vault of the emperor in Vienna. They stood for the words: Austriacorum est imperare orbem universo. "It is to those of the house of Austria to command the world." Buonaparte ordered the inscription to be effaced.

July 22.

The Constance frigate arrived at Portsmouth on Saturday; spoke, on the preceding Thursday, an American schooner, the Hope, P. Woodward, master—she had just come out of Cherbourg. The master of her declared, that he had read in the Moniteur, that a treaty had been signed at Paris, between the emperor and the Porte, by which the former is permitted to march troops through the Turkish territory to Egypt.

The reports of American masters prove in general, so erroneous, that we may fairly question the accuracy of this intelligence. That the new Turkish ambassador might have been wheedled by the French minister for foreign affairs into a renewal of the ancient relations between the Porte and France, is very likely, and was to be expected; but, that with one dash of the pen, he should give up Egypt without some kind of equivalent, is most incredible. If Talleyrand has been so successful as to carry so important a point, he would scarcely be guilty of the indiscretion of promulgating it at the moment that he is supposed to be engaged in negotiations for peace with Russia and England. It possibly might be subject of a secret article; as such, it could never have been read by the American master, for it would not have appeared on the face of whatever treaty has been signed at Paris. The concession itself is of little value, except as far as it shews the complete influence which France has obtained in the councils of the Porte. If ever Buonaparte shall again penetrate into Egypt, it will be by a much shorter cut than through the Turkish Asiatic provinces. With all the facilities that the Porte could afford him, an expedition which should sail from Portsmouth at the same time that he put his army in motion from Dalmatia, would reach Alexandria many weeks before him. Vast and astonishing as his enterprizes have been, so extravagant a project as this, could have scarcely engaged his waking thoughts.

A mail from Gottenburg arrived yesterday. The general opinion in Sweden is, that a war with Prussia is inevitable. The army in Pomerania has taken a new and advanced position; considerable reinforcements were also expected at Stralsund. Notwithstanding this expectation, and whatever hostile demonstrations Prussia may make, we are persuaded she will never act with vigour against Sweden, as long as the latter is protected by the alliance of Russia.

An English messenger, (not Mr. Basilico) failed from the Downs, on Saturday, for France.

July 23.
Late on Monday evening, a person landed at Deal, from Boulogne, with dispatches from lord Yarmouth, at Paris; and early yesterday morning he arrived in town, at Mr. Fox's house in the Stable-Yard. A cabinet council was soon after held at Mr. Fox's office, in Downing-street, at which the lord chancellor, lord Grenville, viscount Sidmouth and Harwick, earls Spencer, Fitzwilliam and Moira, lords Ellenborough and H. Petty, and Mr. Windham, attended.

So great was the exigency for the council, that a messenger was dispatched to lord Sidmouth at Richmond Park, to require his lordship's attendance.

Parliament will be prorogued by commission this day. Reports are in circulation, but we know not on what authority, that some allusion will be made, in the speech from the throne, to the recent intercourse between this country and France.

From the London Gazette of July 22.

QUEEN'S PALACE, July 21.

James Monroe, Esq; minister plenipotentiary from the United States of America, having received new letters of credence, giving him, jointly with William Pinkney, Esq; the character of ministers extraordinary and plenipotentiaries from the United States, they had this day a private audience of his majesty, to deliver their said credentials.

PARIS, July 7.

M. D'Oubril, the Russian envoy, actually arrived here yesterday, at three in the afternoon. He alighted at the hotel Orange Bateliere.

VIENNA, June 29.

We are positively assured, that M. D'Oubril's full powers and instructions relate not only to the affairs of the Russian prisoners, but that this minister is authorized to open negotiations for concluding preliminaries of peace. Some days before this minister's departure from Vienna, M. Anstetten, counsellor to the Russian legation, set out from this city for Petersburg, with important dispatches.

HAMBURG, July 12.

We are assured that Buonaparte has ordered marshal Bernadotte to march his corps into the country of Hesse Cassel. The elector having refused ten months ago to lend five millions of rix dollars to France, and Napoleon being in want of that sum. Talleyrand has advised that measure as the only means to extort it from that prince. However its success is not quite certain, as it is very well known that the elector, who has never been a friend to Buonaparte, has guarded against his rapacity, by sending his treasure to Berlin.

In the same manner, the elector of Saxony has been summoned to lend six millions of rix dollars to the French emperor; and as he has also refused the loan, it is apprehended that Bernadotte has been directed to pay a visit to the Grune Gewelb, who is now at Dresden.

The new constitution of the German empire is daily expected at Ratisbon. It is already known that the three Imperial cities of Hamburg, Lubeck and Bremen, will be under the immediate direction and absolute control of Buonaparte.

Mr. Bourienne has given notice to our venerable senate, that the political superintendence of the French theatre, in Hamburg, belongs to him, in consequence of orders to that effect, that he has received from the same prince who has sent him as his minister to the circle of Lower Saxony.

NEW-YORK, September 2.

Captain Blagge, who arrived here yesterday from Leghorn, informs, that on the 20th June, off Malaga, he passed through a convoy of twenty-two sail, with troops from Gibraltar, for Sicily. On the 28th, lieut. gov. Fox, commandant of Gibraltar, and suite, sailed in the Orion, of 74 guns, for Messina, to take command of the forces in Sicily. At the same time 2 convoys, one from Cork and the other from Portsmouth, in all 62 sail, arrived at Gibraltar, with troops, in place of the De Rolles and the 42d regiment, both of which were to embark immediately for Sicily. It was rumoured at Gibraltar, that sir Sidney Smith, commanding the blockading squadron off Naples, had taken the three small islands of Vecchia, Prosta, and Capra, laying in the mouth of the bay of Naples; and that he had sent to admiral Knight at Gibraltar, for gun-boats, as he meditated an attack on Minorca.

PHILADELPHIA, September 3.

Letters from Halifax, received from very respectable gentlemen, state, that captain Whitby was put under arrest, and sent home as a prisoner, in the ship Leander, of which he (capt. W.) formerly had the command. Capt. Whitby, we understand, is sent to England to account to the British government for his conduct on the American station, and the depredations he committed off Sandy Hook.

BALTIMORE, September 4.

Loss of the schooner COMFORT.

Circumstantial account of the loss of the schooner Comfort, (Charleston packet) captain Charles Drummond, from Baltimore, received from a passenger taken from the wreck, in lat. 35, 15, long. 76, 30, W. by the brig Experiment, John Bockius, master, arrived at the Lazaretto:

On Tuesday morning, August 19, the Comfort left Hampton-Roads, with passengers, for Charleston. On Friday came on a violent gale from N. E. the schooner lying to, head to the southward and eastward.

At 4, P. M. she upset; at the same moment, most of the male passengers having run upon deck, were washed overboard, whilst others, and the crew, were securing themselves to windward. About 5, P. M. the main-mast broke short off, and at 6 the fore-mast was carried away, when she righted but full of water, the sea making a continual breach over her, the gale still violent. During the night the greater part of the crew and passengers were either washed overboard or drowned, lashed to different parts of the vessel; and on Saturday morning the few survivors had the gloomy retrospect of but 6 remaining out of 25 souls, the original number on board. During the whole of Saturday and Sunday, we continued lashed to the wind-luffs, bearing all the fatigues of hunger and thirst, and most frequently overwhelmed with the break of the sea; and at about 5 o'clock, one of the few remaining, (a black man, one of the crew) exhausted and faint with thirst, was washed overboard; and on Monday morning, we were cheered with the prospect of detecting a vessel to windward, bearing down, which proved to be the Experiment, capt. John Bockius, to whose humanity and attention, we feel it an incumbent duty to express the obligation we lie under, for his unremitting attention to whatever could, in any measure, ameliorate the misery of our situation.

List of passengers and crew drowned.

Captain Charles Drummond.
Mr. James Price, under capt. D's charge, a son of Mr. Price, ship-builder at Baltimore, and 8 blacks composing the crew.

PASSENGERS.

Mr. Archibald Leslie, a resident of Demerara, having been some months past in Baltimore.
Mr. Mercier, a Catholic priest, from Charleston.
Mr. Donally, a pedler, from Baltimore.
Mr. Goodley, from Hampton Virginia.
Mrs. Cooper, wife of capt. Cooper, lately resident at Hampton, removing to Auguline.
Miss Mary Cooper, sister to capt. Cooper, and Miss Sufanna, daughter to Mrs. Cooper.
Three servant maids, three black children, and a boy, servant to Mr. Goodley.

SAVED.

Lieut. Bernard Henry, of the U. S. navy.
John Todd, a young man working his passage to Charleston.

Scott, the cabin-steward, and two other blacks, part of the crew.

September 5.

Extract of a letter from captain Murphy, of the brig Actress, to the editor of the American, dated QUARANTINE GROUND, September 4.

"On the 23d of August, the day previous to my leaving the Havana, the Pomona, a Spanish frigate of 36 guns, from Vera Cruz, was taken about two leagues to the eastward of Moro, by two English frigates, the Arcthusa and Hanson, after a close action of 16 minutes; although the Spanish frigate was assisted by 7 gun-boats (one of which was blown up and another sunk) and a battery of 11 guns. Previous to the action there was a considerable quantity of money landed from the frigate, reported to be the property of the king; but the English took with the ship half a million of dollars; it was reported that the commander of the Spanish frigate lost his life in the action, the number of others is not mentioned, but supposed to be considerable, from the closeness of the action and heavy fire. On the 25th, I fell in with 3 ships, a little to the northward of the Double-headed Shot Keys, one of them appearing much disabled, another had her in tow, standing to the northward through the Florida gulf—these I supposed to be the three aforementioned vessels; it must be observed, that at the time of this action, there was an 80 gun ship then in harbour, but unfortunately her topmasts were down and could not be got ready until the day after the action.

September 6.

Extract of a letter to the editor of the Philadelphia Register, from his correspondent, dated

London, July 2.

"The Leopard, of 50 guns, failed from Spithead on Saturday last, June 28, with orders for the recal of the Leander, which is to return to England, under the command of captain Reggett, the present captain of the Leopard; and an inquiry will ensue on the conduct of the captain of the Leander on her arrival.

"A similar misfortune had occurred on the coast of Portugal, of which intelligence was received last week; and the Portuguese government have proceeded so far as to detain the Richmond gun-brig, until satisfaction is made for this, and several other subjects of complaint. An inquiry is directed to be made."

The king of Sweden has not accepted the offer of Prussia to mediate between him and the court of Berlin. He considers himself as acting in quality of an ally of England, and that the aid of Russia in the adjustment of the existing differences, is unnecessary.—His majesty insists on the evacuation of Lauenburg by the Prussians, and its re-occupation by the Swedish troops.

By the mail which arrived at Kingston (Jamaica) with dispatches, vice-admiral Dacres received a letter from sir Alexander Cochrane, informing him of the death of admiral earl St. Vincent. The intelligence had been transmitted from Barbadoes, by lord Seaford, where a running vessel from London had arrived.

Capt. Collins, of the ship Arctic, arrived at Charleston, the 19th ult. in 68 days from the River Plate, informs, that in a few hours after sailing he fell in with a British Squadron of 8 ships of war, and was boarded by the Diadem, capt. King: the Squadron was under the command of sir Home Popham, from the Cape of Good Hope, and was destined to sail against Montivideo.

September 8.
Further circumstances and particulars, relative to the French fleet.

The gale which separated them commenced on the 19th ult. and not the 10th—at which time they were in tow an American schooner from St. Domingo, but to what port belonging or to where bound is not known—a latitude was fixed on in case of separation in which the fleet was to join. The Patriot cruised in the stated latitude for some time, but seeing none of the fleet appear thought proper to put into the Chesapeake to repair, which she entered on the 28th.

Great fears are entertained for the safety of the British West-India fleet, as it is certain they were totally lost, the captain has arrived here, but can give no information respecting the safety of the rest.

In our Gibraltar Chronicle of July 12, we observe a paragraph stating, that the Spanish government had issued orders to put 18 regiments of infantry, 2 of artillery, and 12 of militia, on the war footing.

The conjectures concerning their destination are various—the following are mentioned: 1st. An approaching rupture with France—2d. the regulars to be sent on a foreign expedition and the militia to do duty in the interior—this opinion is corroborated by the fact, of orders being sent to the commander of the Cadiz Squadron, consisting of eight sail of the line, to hold himself in readiness to sail at a moment's warning; and by the well known want in which Spain America stands of the assistance of the mother country, (owing to Mirauda's expedition,) it is supposed to be intended for that place. The 3d. opinion is that they are intended to garrison the Portuguese ports which are to exclude English ships, and there by save French troops the trouble—of overrunning the whole country.

NORFOLK, August 28.

On Sunday last the British frigate Chichester, Suffolk, got on the Middle Ground as she was going to sea, where she remained upwards of an hour, and sprung a leak; in consequence of which she was obliged to put back, and anchored in our harbour yesterday, in order to undergo some repairs and have the leak stopped. She was bound to the West-Indies with a cargo of spars, specie, &c. The cash was landed yesterday and lodged in the United States bank.

August 29.

Last evening anchored in Hampton Roads, the French frigate Sybelle, of 40 guns, under jury top masts, having lost them, and otherwise damaged in the late gale. The Sybelle was not of Jerome Bonaparte's fleet originally, but of commodore L'Hermitte's Squadron, which did so much damage to the British trade on the coast of Africa, and was composed of the following ships:

Regulus, of 74 guns,
President and Sybelle, of 40 guns each,
Serveillant, brig, sent home.

September 2.

Respecting the Sybelle, we learn, that on the 19th ult. in about lat. 20, 60, long. 64, in company with the Regulus, of 84 guns, and the President of 44, they were encountered by a violent hurricane at 4 P. M. to S. which compelled them to scud for nearly 5 days, in which they lost their mizen-mast, main-top-mast, quarter pieces torn off, and the ship generally much injured. The last that was seen of the Regulus and President, they were scudding before the gale.

From information in which we place confidence, we can say that this Squadron has never joined the fleet commonly called Jerome Bonaparte's.

From arrivals since our last, we find that the late gale was what is usually termed the "tail of a West-India hurricane," for we discover that the further south the gale has been the more violent, and was felt five or six days sooner than it was here. It is described by the officers of the French frigate as one of the most unexampled violence.

The British ship Rattlesnake, Lightburn, from Baltimore to Barbadoes, was captured on the 13th ult. by the French ships Regulus, President and Sybelle, and ordered to Martinique.

We have it from respectable authority, that sir Edward Berry, who was admiral Nelson's captain at the battle of the Nile, and who commanded one of the four sail under admiral Cochrane, at the time of falling in with the French fleet, has resigned in disgust and gone for England, owing to Cochrane's not engaging them. When Nelson paid his compliments to the king after the business of the Nile, his majesty observed with sorrow, that he had lost his right arm. "I have," replied the hero, "but not my right hand—give me leave to present captain Berry to your majesty."

Last evening it was currently reported, that the Regulus was in Hampton Roads.

RUMOURS.—That our differences with Great-Britain are in a favourable train for adjustment. Mr. Munroe is said to have communicated in one of his late dispatches, the heads of an interview, which he had with Mr. Fox; that Mr. Fox, at the outset commented in pretty severe terms upon the regulations of our restriction bill; but that Mr. Munroe had preferred the idea which must be admitted by all impartial politicians; that all the steps which we had pursued towards Great-Britain, were perfectly justified by the steps which the conduct would have much more energy of the interview, himself much less we had adopted.

Talleyrand, in inflaming his master's mind against us! [Richmond Enquirer.]

Rumor.—It is said that information has reached town this forenoon from Washington, that dispatches had arrived from our minister in Spain, that all negotiations were broken off. [New-York paper.]

We have been informed, says the Washington Federalist, that the negotiation for the FLORIDAS has failed. This information was received from Virginia very lately. It seems dispatches from Mr. Munroe, our minister at the British court, were conveyed to Monticello, by one of Mr. Munroe's family, who lately landed at Boston.—This gentleman mentioned the failure on his way to the president's.

BY YESTERDAY'S PACKET.

Baltimore, September 10.

By yesterday's mail we received from our regular and attentive correspondent at Natchez, a file of Natchez papers up to the 12th ult. from which it appears that the Spaniards are again becoming troublesome in that quarter. The subjoined extract corroborates the assertion:

HOSTILE APPEARANCE.

Extract of a letter from a gentleman at Natchez, to the Editor, dated August 2, 1806.

"On or about the 18th July ult. a detachment of Spanish troops, consisting of 308, under the command of capt. Viand, the commandant of Nagadoches, and inspector of the troops of his Catholic Majesty in the interior Provinces arrived at the Caddo village, near Red river about Natchitoches, demanded information relative to the exploring party under the direction of major Freeman, which had passed the Caddo village some days before, cut down and carried away a flag of the United States, which the Caddoes had hoisted in their town, informing them that the flag of the United States had no business there, and that that part of the country was within the dominion of Spain, and forbidding the Caddo chief in future holding talks, trading or having any intercourse whatever with the Americans—after which the Spaniards took their departure in pursuit of the exploring party, and informed the Caddo chief that they were going to take, kill or drive them back.

"We have likewise accounts from Bay-au-Pierre, of the arrival at that place of col. Errara, late governor of Montrey, with six companies of cavalry, said to contain one hundred each, with several pieces of cannon, and that several companies of troops more are on their way from St. Antonio."

Captain Wilson arrived yesterday in 36 days from Gibraltar, informs that intelligence had reached that place the day before he sailed, of an engagement having taken place between the French and Neapolitan troops before Gaetta, which had terminated very unfavourable for the French, they having experienced great loss in killed, wounded and prisoners, besides the destruction of the besieging batteries, which had taken them several months to erect.—[N. Y. pap.]

Forty Dollars Reward.

RAN away from the subscriber, living near Moorfield, Hardy county, Virginia, on the 20th of last month, a negro man named JOE, a broad thickset fellow, about 5 feet 8 or 9 inches high, 22 or 23 years old, has very long feet, a wide mouth, a round visage, short thick nose, low forehead, a black complexion, strong limbs, moves and walks very slow, and is a clumsily awkward fellow; his clothing, when he eloped, consisted of three pair of overalls, two of them osnabrigs, and one of striped gingham, one white linen shirt, one osnabrig ditto, a wool hat, two jackets with sleeves, one of them fine white flannel, the other grey coating, much worn. He was purchased of Mrs. Howard, Head of South river, and it is supposed he will endeavour to go to that neighbourhood. The above reward will be paid for apprehending said fellow and securing him in goal, so that I get him again, and all reasonable expenses paid if brought home.

PARAPHRASE OF PART OF STERNE'S MARIA.

AS I passed, I beheld, by a poplar o'er shaded,
Where a rill, thro' a thicket, meander'd along,
Maria, whose bloom her distresses had faded,
Wildly warbling her tenderly querulous song.
Her form, in a robe of pure white was invest'd,
Her hair, o'er her delicate hand, softly flow'd,
As upon it her craz'd head she pensively rested,
And gaz'd on the flow'rs that around her were strew'd.
From the girdle that clasp'd her, a string was suspended,
To which Sylvio, her only companion, was tied;
Her pipe on a ribbon of pale green depended,
That hung from her shoulder, and wav'd at her side.
This regard for her father she ne'er could recover;
Her goat, that once sported along as the fray'd,
Had deserted her, like her ungenerous lover,
And left to herself this unfortunate maid.
As I look'd at her dog, the sweet girl drew him nearer,
"Ah! leave me not, Sylvio," the tenderly cries:
She remember'd her goat; but her father still dearer,
Drew tears of regret from her wild-rolling eyes.
I sat down beside her, in mute contemplation,
And wip'd off her tears, e'er they fairly had flown,
While my bosom was throbbing with strange perturbation:
I wip'd off alternately hers and my own.
The mind of Maria recall'd the impression,
I'd made when I pitied her sorrows before;
And the charms that attended her artless confession,
Now heightened the feelings of sympathy more.
"I remember," said she, "tho' my mind was distract'd,
"The stranger who saw me, with pity was mov'd,
"To see the unhappy Maria neglected,
"By those she had honour'd, and him she had lov'd.
"My goat stole his handkerchief, and the offender,
"I beat, and he left me, to wander alone;
"But I wip'd, and have kept it, and mean to surrender,
"Should I e'er again see him, what's truly his own."
Then saying no more, the unfortunate mourner,
Produc'd it, enclosed in the leaves of a vine;
A tendril surrounded it, and, on the corner,
I saw the initial that told me 'twas mine.
"Since that, have I seen, in my devious wand'rings,
"St. Peter's at Rome, and walk'd round it with joy—
"The Po and the Tiber's romantic meandrings,
"And return'd without shoes o'er the flints of Savoy.
"The cloud-cover'd Appenines too, have beheld me
"On their hoary cliffs roving, alone and forlorn—
"But the same kind divinity led and upheld me,
"That tempers the wind to the lamb that is shorn."
Shorn indeed to the quick, said I; but could I ever
Be blest with thy sight in my own peaceful cot,
No sorrows of thine, or my own, should disinvest
Maria, from him who now pities her lot.
My study should be to relieve thy distresses;
Thy heart chill'd by neglect, should my sympathy warm;
Ev'ry tear should be dried by my tender caresses,
And my cottage should shelter thy limbs from the storm.
No more o'er the cliff, or the cataract foaming,
Should the steps of the hapless Maria be led;
But when e'er I beheld thee, in solitude roaming,
My hand should conduct thee back safe to my shed.
When, at evening, the fun in his splendour descended,
To Heav'n should our mutual devotion arise,
And my pray'rs, by the found of thy soft pipe attended,
Smiling Seraphs should bear on their wings to the skies
My heart thrill'd again, for the fair mourner grieving,
My eyes were with tears of compassion suffus'd;
I was wiping them off—when Maria, perceiving,
My kerchief already too drench'd to be us'd,—
"Let me wash it," said she, "in this stream near us flowing."
And where will you dry it? half fell from my tongue;
"In my bosom," said she—And is that still so glowing;
I touched on the string, where her sorrows all hung.
I discern'd by her wild eye, her painful sensation;
To the Virgin she tun'd her pipe, plaintive and slow,
The string I had touch'd upon ceas'd its vibration,—
She dropt her pipe, hastily rising to go.
Adieu, sweet Maria! Adieu lovely creature!
Thy griefs underv'd I must pity in vain;
For none but the Infinite Author of nature,
Who has wounded thy heart can e'er heal it again.

American Intelligence.

Boston, September 2.
 THE commissioners appointed to investigate a certain charge against the Princess of Wales, had not reported at the date of our last advices from England.
 But the general faith in her innocence was unimpaired.
 One paper says, "she has, with two or three exceptions, as many friends as there are Englishmen and Englishwomen." The person accused as her paramour, is a Naval Officer of distinction, absent on duty, at the time the investigation was proceeding. A part of the retinue of the Duke of BRUNSWICK, father to the Princess of WALES, had reached England, and the Duke was momentarily expected. Among the con-jectures as to his visit, one was that he came to endeavour to compromise the differences between Great-Britain and Prussia; and another that his object was to see that justice was done his daughter. The conduct of the Prince of WALES towards his consort, was universally reprehended.

The British employ vessels with odd names to carry their pacific dispatches to France—the Basilisk and Bloodhound are among the latest that have gone to the French coast.

September 8.
 The Tunisian Ambassador.
 On Saturday, the ship Two Brothers, chartered by government, for the purpose of conveying home his excellency Melli Meli, hoisted the Tunisian flag, and hauled into the stream. We are authorized to state, that the difficulties which have caused this delay are now happily adjusted; and that he will positively sail immediately after the arrival of the remainder of his suite, now at New-York. Mr. Catchart, who has been charged with the execution of the public business relative to the embassy, will leave town on Wednesday next, for the seat of government.

NEW-YORK, September 8.
 General Miranda.
 Jamaica papers received in this city on Saturday,
 furnish the following:

KINGSTON, (Jam.) August 12.
 By the schooner Stag, we learn that general Miranda, in the Leander, accompanied with 13 vessels, among which was 1 or 2 ships, had arrived on the coast of South America, and landed near Coro, of which he had got possession, and, by the reports prevalent at the departure of the Stag from Aruba, had been successful in several engagements with the Spaniards, and was penetrating into the country.

August 13.
 We yesterday mentioned the arrival of the expedition under general Miranda, on the Spanish Main, and his subsequent success; we are now, however, enabled to state the particulars somewhat more accurately. While capt. Ekell was taking in his cargo at Cape St. Roman, on the Spanish coast, an overland dispatch was received there, containing accounts of gen. Miranda having effected a landing at Coro, (which is said to be only 12 hours sail from Aruba) that he had captured it, and was proceeding up the country. It was also asserted, that he was daily joined by the Spaniards, and had several skirmishes with the government forces, in all of which he had been successful. The gentleman who furnished the cargo for the Stag, informed the captain of her, that he was obliged to be under arms the next morning at daylight, as every person not found in arms against Miranda, was considered as his accomplice, and instantly executed. Miranda is aided by a British force, but the exact number not ascertained. He has been joined by a British frigate.

By a passenger in the Comet, from Nantes, we learn, that it was reported when he left France, that a peace was made with Russia—the island of Corfu given up—Egypt given up to France by the Turks—and a peace talked of.

September 10.
 The schooner Venus, Oliver, in 10 days from Wilmington, N. C. September 2, off the Chesapeake, spoke the British ship of war Bellona, and the Melampus frigate. These vessels belong to Sir Richard Strachan's Squadron.

CHARLESTON, August 30.
 Captain Callahan, of the schooner Camilla, arrived this morning, has politely favoured us with Barbadoes papers to the 12th inst. from which we copy
 the following interesting intelligence:

BRIN-TOWN, (Barb.) August 9.
 Yesterday morning Sir Richard Strachan arrived in Carribe-Bay, from off the Western islands, with his Squadron, consisting of the following ships:
 Caesar } R. adm. Sir R. Strachan.
 80 }
 Capt. Richardson.

Belleisle,	74	Capt. Hargood.
Terrible,	74	Lord Paulet.
Bellona,	74	Douglas.
Audacious,	74	Goffelin.
Montague,	74	Otway.
Triumph,	74	Sir T. Hardy.
Melampus,	36	Poyntz.
Decade,	36	Stuart.

It has been near twelve weeks since this Squadron left Plymouth, in quest of the enemy, and had been cruising with the most indefatigable solicitude for a meeting with prince Jerome, the hopes of Sir R.
 Strachan being particularly directed to that object;
 in which, unfortunately, there is now a less chance of his being gratified, than had he remained on the station, he has just left.

The arrival of the above Squadron in this country has been in consequence of the communication received from Sir Alexander Cochrane, dispatched from hence in the Flying-Fish schooner, on the 28th June, which fell in with Sir R. Strachan, off the island of St. Michael, on the 24th ultimo, and was sent on from thence to England, while the Squadron, pursuing its course hither, made a passage only of 14 days.

August 12.
 By the Circe frigate arrived from Tortola, we learn the sailing of the homeward bound trade from thence, on the 3d inst. consisting of 400 sail under convoy of the Agamemnon and Cerf. Admiral Cochrane, for their better protection, in the Northumbria, with the Elephant and Canada, and four frigates, sailed with them, and would see them far to the northward.

Sir Richard Strachan's Squadron sailed from Car-ri-Bay this day... They have been constantly employed since their arrival in receiving stores and provisions, and gave an unexampled instance in watering, having completed 1101 tuns in 72 hours, at Martinale's old established tanks. The admiral seemed particularly anxious for the ships to weigh, and visited each ship to hasten them; and it was imagined he had received some intelligence by the Circe which occasioned the bustle that has prevailed all the morning. This, however, is all conjecture, although some accounts have been received in town through other channels, that Almantz's Squadron, which we lately stated was expected at Martinique, is momentarily looked for there, advices having been received by Villibet of their having left Toulon on the 20th June, for the purpose of forming a junction with Willaumez off the coast of America, as they insinuate. (no doubt as a stratagem to mislead our cruisers) although there is much reason to believe, that not only Almantz is expected at Martinique but the return of Willaumez also; it being understood here, that moorings have been laid down in Fort Royal Bay for a large fleet, and a general requisition of bread imposed on the bakers, and considerable depots of provisions formed for them.

Under the circumstance even of these Squadrons being united, which would then form a fleet of 13 sail of the line, we could not desire any thing more than that Sir Richard Strachan's highly disciplined Squadron, (for we never saw a finer one in these seas) should fall in with them clear of any chance of their escaping into port, for we may fairly calculate, that the result would be that of his at least doubling his own force, by the capture of an equal number of theirs, and probably the destruction of the whole.

September 2.
 From the Coffee-House Books of last evening.
 The schooner Pocotaligo Packet, capt. Stites, anchored off the fort this evening, in 6 days from Long Island. Captain Stites has brought in with him two seamen, belonging to a British ship, one of the last homeward-bound fleet of Jamaica merchantmen, who inform, that almost the whole fleet, consisting of one hundred and fifty sail, have been dispersed and lost in the late gale. Several of the ships were seen to founder, with the whole of their crews. One of the ships was towed two days by capt. Stites; when they fell in with a British sloop of war, who impressed all the British sailors and burnt the ship. Two days since, capt. S. fell in with the brig Ann, capt. Corry, from this port for Havana, totally dismasted.

NORFOLK, September 8.
 The Fleets. Our coast it is probable, will be the scene of a great naval enterprise, as the British fleet as well as the French, are now near us. On Saturday evening the Melampus frigate, one of the fleet of Sir R. Strachan, anchored in Hampton-Roads. This fleet is composed of the

Caesar,	84	guns
Audacious,	74
Belleisle,	74
Bellona,	74
Montague,	74
Terrible,	74
Triumph,	74
Melampus and another frigate.

It appears that Sir R. Strachan, having heard in the West-Indies, that admiral Willaumez was on the coast of America, and probably knowing the route which Sir John B. Warren had taken, he lost no time in seeking the French fleet, and it is surprising how they have missed. That the fleet of admiral Willaumez, and the Squadron of commodore L'Hermite, or parts of both, were on the coast there can be not the least doubt.

The Patrol of 74 guns and the Valereuse frigate, belonging to admiral Willaumez's fleet are in port,
 the former at Annapolis and the latter in the Delaware.
 The Cybele frigate belonging to commodore L'Her-mite's Squadron, is in this port.

The following is a list of the French force:

The Regulus ,	80	guns
Foudroyant ,	80
Veteran ,	80
Majestic ,	74
Eole ,	74	(at Annapolis)
Impetueux ,	74
Patriot ,	74	(at Annapolis)
President ,	44
Valereuse ,	40	(in the Del.)
Cybele ,	44	(at Norfolk.)

September 9.
 In addition to the melancholy accounts, already published, the Edenton Gazette says, that there are many vessels ashore and wrecked, to the westward of the Swath, at Shell-Castle, and along Occracock.
 Arrived, sloop Venus, Boush, 23 days from Martinique. August 24, in lat. 30, long. 74, 45, spoke an English ship, one of the Jamaica fleet, informed capt.
 B. that the convoy had been dispersed by the late gale; that several had foundered, and a number had lost their spars. On Friday, in sight of land and to the southward of Currituck, captain Boush saw two men of war; he was informed from a Baltimore pilot boat, that an 80 gun ship was off Cape-Heury, the same day.

ALEXANDRIA, September 12.
 MR. SNOWDEN,
 If you think it will be of service to the community,
 you are at liberty to publish the following extract of a letter from Charleston, dated the 2d instant.
 "There will be three or four men from Charleston to Alexandria with 30 or 40 thousand dollars of notes of the consul of the Batavian Republic; but I would have you to be cautious of them if any should be offered to you, for they are good for nothing."

GEORGE-TOWN, September 10.
 Dispatches have been, it is said, brought from France and Spain, by a late arrival.—The contents have not transpired, but the conjecture is, that they are not of an agreeable complexion.
 The secretary of war is absent on a visit to Monticello.

BALTIMORE, September 8.
 The British frigate Melampus, left Hampton-Roads
 on Wednesday last.
 A late London paper says, "We learn from private correspondence, that the emperor of Germany is not so beaten down as to concur in all the changes, the total subversion we should rather call it, which Buonaparte meditates in the German empire. He has had the courage to protest against the election of cardinal Esch, as co-adjutor to the arch-chancellor of the empire."
 Accounts from Trinidad state, that gen. Miranda has assumed the title of "general in chief of the armies of Columbia."

September 11.
 Letters from Boston mention the arrival there on the 6th inst. of the ship Sally-Ann, in 37 days from Liverpool. A letter from a respectable commercial house in Liverpool to another in this city, dated July 26, says, "We have only time to accompany the enclosed price current with the information, that the British parliament is prorogued, and it is officially announced in the speech on that occasion, that our government is engaged in discussions with a view to the restoration of peace on just and honourable terms, but that the success will depend on a corresponding disposition on the part of France."

The fishing boats of Lowestoff and Yarmouth were unusually successful in the course of last week; by the former as many mackerel were caught in one night, as sold in the morning upon the beach for £.1260.
 The first hundred fold this season fetched £.8, but they were afterwards sold for 5s. per 100. Several boats, with a part of those lately caught, were immediately dispatched to Hull; and on Friday last the mackerel were sold there as low as three half-pence each.

The electors proceeded to ballot for a committee to inspect and examine the returns of the elections of the electors, and report whether they have been made agreeably to the constitution and laws of this state—the ballots being deposited in the ballot box, the gentlemen named to strike retired, and after some time returned and reported that Mr. Montgomery, Mr. Johnson, Mr. Prideaux, Mr. Stansbury and Mr. Chambers, were elected.

The president laid before the electors a memorial from William Lyles, of Prince-George's county, stating that the election held in said county was illegal, and praying an examination of the same, which was read and referred to the committee appointed to examine the returns of elections.

The electors adjourn until to-morrow morning 9 o'clock.

Tuesday, September 16, 1806.

THE electors met. Present the same members as on yesterday.

The proceedings of yesterday were read.

Mr. Bayard, an elector returned for Caroline county, Mr. Bowie, an elector returned for Prince-George's county, Mr. Stuart, an elector returned for Charles county, and Mr. Ogle, an elector returned for the City of Annapolis, appeared, and after severally taking the oath of fidelity to the state, took their seats.

Mr. Montgomery, from the committee, delivers to the president the following report:

The Committee to whom was referred the returns of elections report, that they have inspected the returns of the judges of elections for the several counties, and for the cities of Annapolis and Baltimore, and find by the said returns the following persons are elected, declared and duly returned as electors of the Senate of Maryland, to wit: For Saint Mary's county William Hebb and Henry Neale, Esquires; for Kent county James Scott and John Maxwell, Esquires; for Anne-Arundel county John Johnson and Lloyd Dorsey, Esquires; for Calvert county Joseph Ireland and Joseph Wilkinson, Esquires; for Charles county Philip Stuart and John Parnham, Esquires; for Baltimore county Moses Brown and Tobias E. The Committee further report, that before an opinion could be formed on the memorial of William Lyles, respecting the Prince-George's election, it was necessary to go into an examination of the facts set forth, this could only be done by the attendance of persons who were present at the election; to obtain that evidence the committee have issued summonses for several witnesses on the part of the memorialist and Edward H. Calvert, Esquire, to attend immediately, and they expect they will be present this evening.

By order, JOHN BREWER, clerk.

Which was read the first and second time, by especial order, and the question put, Will the house concur with the first part thereof? Resolved in the affirmative. The question was then put, That the house concur with the residue of said report? Resolved in the affirmative.

The electors adjourn until to-morrow morning 9 o'clock.

Wednesday, September 17, 1806.

THE electors met. Present the same members as on yesterday.

The electors adjourn until to-morrow morning 9 o'clock.

Thursday, September 18, 1806.

THE electors met. Present the same members as on yesterday.

The proceedings of yesterday were read.

Mr. Montgomery from the committee delivers to the president the following report:

The Committee of elections beg leave further to report, that they have inspected the return of the judges of the election for Prince-George's county, and have also taken under their consideration the memorial of William Lyles of said county, and find that Walter Bowie is elected, declared and duly returned an elector of the senate for said county.

They further report, that Edward Henry Calvert is also returned elected as an elector of the senate, but it appears to your committee from the duplicate return, that Edward H. Calvert had six hundred and four votes, and William Lyles had six hundred and three votes, that is only one vote difference between them; it appears also to your committee, from the testimony of witnesses, who have been examined, that the polls were opened at 9 o'clock in the morning, and that between two and three o'clock in the afternoon, it was determined and understood, that the polls should be closed agreeably to the watch of Mr. Williams, one of the judges, by whose watch they had been opened; that accordingly, within one or two minutes of six o'clock, by said watch, it was proclaimed by one of the judges that the time would expire in one or two minutes, and for voters to come forward; that no voters offering to vote, the polls were closed; that afterwards they were opened at the instance and solicitation of Mr. George Calvert, and five votes were taken, which were entered upon one of the books of the polls, but not on the other; that it appears by the witnesses, that two of the voters voted for Edward H. Calvert and William Somerville, and two voted for Walter Bowie and William Lyles; that it does not appear for whom the fifth voter voted; that if the fifth voter voted for Mr. Lyles, in that case Mr. Calvert must have exceeded Mr. Lyles two votes, at the first closing of the polls, and if the fifth voter voted for Mr. Calvert, then, in that case, Mr. Lyles and Mr. Calvert must have had an equal number of votes, and neither entitled to a seat; and in as much as your committee cannot ascertain the fact which had the majority of legal votes at the first close of the polls, which your committee consider to be the legal closing, they are of opinion that the seat is vacant; they therefore submit the following resolution:

Resolved, That it not appearing which of the two persons, Edward H. Calvert or William Lyles, had the greatest number of legal votes agreeably to the constitution at the close of the election of Prince-George's county, that the seat of the said Edward H. Calvert, be and the same is hereby vacated.

Which was read the first and second time by especial order, and the question put, Will the house concur with the first part thereof, which relates to Walter Bowie, Esquire? Resolved in the affirmative.

After examining several witnesses before the electors, relative to the election in Prince-George's county, the question was put, Will the house concur with the residue of the said report? Resolved in the affirmative.

The question was then put, Will the house assent to the resolution therein contained?

The yeas and nays being required, appeared as follows:

Affirmative—Messieurs Maxwell, Johnson, Dorsey, Brown, Stansbury, Spencer, Nabb, Sheredine, Chambers, Butcher, Williams, Prideaux, Tyler, Cockey, Smithson, Montgomery, Holbrook, Bayard, Ringgold, Sprigg, Bruce, Tomlinson.—22.

Negative—Messieurs Hebb, Neale, Scott, Ireland, Wilkinson, Stuart, Parnham, Carroll, Winder, Ennalls, Smoot, Bowie, Ogle, Magruder, Beall.—15.

So it was resolved in the affirmative.

On motion the question was put, Will the house adjourn until 3 o'clock, P. M. Determined in the negative.

On motion the question was put, Will the house now adjourn until 3 o'clock? Resolved in the affirmative.

3 O'CLOCK, P. M.

THE electors met. Present the same members as in the morning. The proceedings of the morning were read.

On motion, ordered, That Thomas O. Williams, George Calvert, William W. Berry, Samuel D. Beck, Benjamin Belt, jun. John Castle, Francis Brown, Jonathan Parker, Samuel Sheekles and John R. Magruder, witnesses summoned from Prince-George's county, be each allowed two dollars per diem for two days attendance, together with the same number of days itinerant charges as are allowed to the delegates of the general assembly.

The electors having qualified, by taking the oath to elect without favour, affection, partiality, or prejudice, such persons for senators as they in their judgment and conscience believe best qualified for the office, proceeded to ballot for the senate; the ballots being deposited in the ballot box, the gentlemen named to strike retired, and after sometime returned and reported, that the following gentlemen were elected for the western shore:

John T. Mason, 28 Gabriel Christie, 24
Thomas M'Eldery, 26 James H. McCulloch, 24

On the eastern shore:

Robert Dennis, 15 Ephraim K. Wilson, 19

On Monday morning last arrived off this port, his I. M. ship L'Eole, of 74 guns, commanded by capt. Provoft, (La Croix,) belonging to admiral Willaumetz's squadron, totally dismantled in the gale of the 19th ult. several of her men were lost during its prevalence. Her crew, we are informed, are very healthy.

On Tuesday morning a salute of 21 guns was fired from the French ship Patriot, which was returned by a detachment of the artillery company of this city.

We have been requested to report, the following American vessels, which have been detained by the French ship L'Eole, and brought into the Chesapeake:

Brig Polly, capt. Wynkoop, from Guadaloupe for New-York, detained in lat. 26 1/2, most of the crew taken out and not returned until Tuesday morning.

Sloop Three Friends, capt. Thomas Hartman, from Savannah for Philadelphia, detained off the Capes. Left only the capt. on board, with two sick passengers.

Schooner Nancy, Capt. Glasier from Boston, detained 26 days—they lost both his boats, and eat all his provisions.

Protefts have been noted, but we could not procure them in time for this day's Gazette.

The New-York Gazette of Saturday says, "Yesterday morning a smart firing was distinctly heard in town, from the southward and eastward."

The Knell.

BY HIS EXCELLENCY
ROBERT BOWIE,
 GOVERNOR OF MARYLAND.

A PROCLAMATION.

WHEREAS it has been stated to me by the
 petition of a number of respectable persons,
 inhabitants of Prince-George's county, that a murder
 has been committed on the person of CHARLES NEVITT, junior, late of Prince-Georges county, by a certain negro man, slave of Basil Soper, called WALL, who has since absconded and fled from jus tice: And whereas it is the duty of the executive to guard as much as may be against the commission of such enormities, and to bring such offenders against the laws and peace of society to justice, I have there fore thought proper to issue this my proclamation, and do, by and with the advice and consent of the coun cil, offer a reward of ONE HUNDRED DOL LARS to any person or persons who shall apprehend and secure the said WALL in any goal in the United States, so that he be brought to justice.

GIVEN in council at the city of Annapolis, under the seal of the state of Maryland, this sixth day of September, in the year of our Lord one thou sand eight hundred and six.

By his excellency's command,
NINIAN PINKNEY,
 Clerk of the Council.

ORDERED, that the foregoing proclamation be pub lished once in each week, until countermanded, in

SELECTED LINES,

TO THE MEMORY OF THE CELEBRATED MUNGO PARK;

Occasioned by reading an account of his being murdered at Sego, the capital of Bambarra.

NIGER! thy source, what foot shall now explore,
 What traveller trace the windings of thy shore?
 Who, Afric! tread thy deserts, to relate
 Thy hidden wonders and barbaric state;
 Or reap thy spoil of geographic lore,
 Since PARK and enterprise are now no more?
 Too daring soul! that would'st again review
 Thy perils past, thy perils past renew:
 Cold are thy limbs, on Sego's faithless sands,
 Prey to Bambarra's persecuting hands;
 But Virtue, Science shall thy loss deplore—
 Till Fame expires, and memory wakes no more!
 In future times, when Learning's genial ray
 Shall spread o'er Afric's sons her mental day,
 Some NATIVE bard, oh! PARK, thy fate shall mourn, Collect thy bones, and thus inscribe thy stone,
 "Bambarra! weep; your guilty wrath deplore,
 "Here sleeps the sage your causeless fury tore!"
 And long the sad historic page shall tell
 Where rest thy ashes, how thy virtues fell:
 While giddy youth, grey age, devoid of sleep,
 And lusty manhood, as they read, shall weep,
 Recount thy sufferings and their loss deplore,
 That PARK and enterprise can be no more.

Twenty-five & Fifty Dollars Reward.

ABOUT three years ago I purchased of Walter W. Norman, tanner, in Queen-Anne, a black boy named STEPHEN, then fifteen years old, remarkably well disposed, a little defective in his knees, but otherwise stout and well made. This boy, about 8 weeks ago, by the instigation of some very disreputable person, was enticed from my service, and (from information derived through the boy's own colour) I have reason to believe has obtained a pass, and is now harboured and protected under it. He is supposed to be either in the Swamp of West river, or on Kent Island, where he has a mother named Esther, lately manumitted by a certain Valentine Carter. I will give twenty-five dollars for apprehending said boy, so that I get him again, and fifty dollars for such information as will merely justify my feelings in inflicting the punishment proper for so great a scoundrel.

OF PEACE.

THE following extract of a letter, dated the 1st of August, was written by an intelligent gentleman at Nantes, who, from his peculiar situation, must necessarily receive the earliest intelligence of so important an event.

"PEACE is made. It is not yet officially announced; but, from good authority, I know it was signed two days ago."

Another letter states "that no progress has been made in the negotiation with Spain, in consequence of the impediments of France—the latter viewing the United States with a jealous eye."

[N. Y. pap.]

NEW-YORK, September 17.

LATEST NEWS FROM FRANCE.

The Editors of the New-York Gazette have received by the schooner Atlantic, from Nantes, Paris papers to the 29th of July. Their contents are interesting.

It appears certain, however, that a separate peace was signed on the 20th July, between Russia and France. The terms are not published.

The fortrefs of Gaeta surrendered on the 18th of July, after sustaining a continual fire of eleven days with open trenches, during which time 800,000 pounds of powder were consumed by the besiegers. Thus, after a manly struggle, has this fortrefs fallen into the hands of the tyrant of the world.

We have seen a letter from Nantes, of the first of August, which states, that it was reported, that the preliminaries of peace, between Great-Britain and France, were signed at Paris on the 26th of July.—The writer says, this wants confirmation.

The same letter says, "last evening's mail brought news from Paris, authorizing the free exportation of grain to any port or ports, by neutrals. This shews a pacific disposition towards England."

The harvest in France is stated to be the most abundant ever known. Wheat would not sell for more than six livres.

Captain Farrier, of the ship Delaware, favoured the editors of the New-York Gazette with London papers to the 7th ultimo, 12 days later than before received. They contain interesting political and marine news, which will be found in this days Gazette.

Previous to capt. Farrier's leaving Amsterdam, three ships of the line had been dismantled, and hauled into New-Diepp, and the seamen paid off. There was 4 or 5 sail more soon to be placed in a similar situation.

There were at the ports of Amsterdam and Rotterdam, 9 sail of the line on the stocks; besides one lately launched in the presence of their new king Lewis Buonaparte.

We also learn that all the French troops had left Holland.

A letter from Naples of the 17th July, inserted in one of our last French papers, contains the following account:

"On the first of July, 6000 English disembarked at the gulph of St. Euphemia, in Calabria. They were attacked on the 4th by the general of division Regnier with the Polish regiment and the 42d of the line, who were warmly repulsed. General Compere, grievously wounded, and 300 Poles, were made prisoners. The English having been joined by a reinforcement of 3000 men and by 3 or 4000 Calabrian peasants, committed the error of advancing into the country; and quitted the protection of their vessels. Within a league of Gozenza, they were furiously attacked by the gen. of division Verdier, at the head of 10,000 infantry and 2000 cavalry. The English were beaten; put to the route, and at the moment of writing 1800 English prisoners have arrived at head quarters. General Verdier is in pursuit of the fugitives. On the other hand general Regnier having marched to Cotrone has given up to pillage the village de Liffoli. 500 Calabrian revoltors have been put to the sword."

The same paper says "a French prisoner in England writes that general Rochambeau, so long detained in that island, having requested by virtue of his repatriation, that himself and his army should be debarked in France, has obtained his return on parole. It was given to the solicitations of marshal Rochambeau his father, who demanded it in reciprocity for his own conduct to lord Cornwallis, made prisoner with his army, an event which produced the peace of 1783. Lord Cornwallis, as well as all his men, received on this occasion from general Rochambeau, a treatment so generous that he conceived himself obliged signally to acknowledge it to his countrymen in the journals of the time.

LATE FOREIGN NEWS.

Per ship Delaware, Farrier, last from England.

LONDON, August 4.

On Saturday evening, about five o'clock, lord Lauderdale, appointed minister plenipotentiary on the part of our government, to conduct the negotiation that has for sometime been going on with the court of St. Cloud; left town. Mr. Godard, the person who brought over the dispatches received on Friday, did not accompany his lordship, as stated in some morning papers, but followed him yesterday. His lordship was accompanied by professor Dugald Stuart, and Mr. Ballico, the messenger, who will bring back the first dispatches from his lordship.

About 1 o'clock yesterday morning, lord Lauderdale reached Deal, and soon after embarked on board the Clyde frigate, commodore Owen, which sailed for the French coast between 5 and 6 o'clock, and landed his lordship at Calais at ten o'clock the same morning. His lordship would probably reach Paris this day.

The funds still keep rising from the hope that peace will result from the present negotiations. At 1 o'clock this day the following were the prices: Consols for money 65 3-4; ditto Aug. 65 3-4 7-8; Reduced 64 1-2—Omnium, for money, 12 1-4 1-2; ditto Aug. 13 1-4 1-2; exchequer bills, 2s. to 3s. prem; 4 per cents. 85; navy five per cents. 98 7-8.

The expeditions. Were it not that lord Lauderdale has actually set out for Paris, we should have been inclined to think that several circumstances connected with the expedition to Sicily, seemed rather to indicate apprehensions of the failure of the negotiation. The guards, who have been kept for sometime rather in an undecided state, at Chatham, Deal, Ramsgate, &c. and marched and counter-marched in various directions, after being at length embarked, have been ordered to proceed with all expedition, to Portsmouth, whence the expedition for Sicily will start.

Many officers of the guards have proceeded to Portsmouth by land: most of the staff of them have done so. There are to be immediately embarked, and to follow to Portsmouth with all speed—the Royal staff corps, the Royal Wagon corps, the Royal Artillery, the 95th regiment, five companies, the 40th regiment, the 52d do. the 62d do. and the 89th do.

August 5.

The Clyde frigate returned to Deal yesterday, after having safely landed lord Lauderdale at Calais. Some messengers have proceeded to France with dispatches, since his lordship left town, but no dispatches have yet been received from his lordship. The dispatches with the result of his first conference with the French plenipotentiary, or the minister for foreign affairs himself, may be expected at the close of the present or early next week.

Many people are so sanguine in their expectation of peace, that they allow themselves to believe the business in such forwardness, that lord Lauderdale, will have little else to do but to sign the preliminaries immediately, and that the definitive treaty will be concluded soon after. This, however, will not be so speedily effected as they promise themselves, for there are many important points to arrange, which will take up a considerable time; nor must we infer any thing from the precipitancy with which M. D'Oubril signed a preliminary treaty for Russia. Indeed, we can take upon us to state with confidence, that he is believed to have exceeded the powers which were given him, and that not only our government, but the Russian embassy here, were very much surprized at the haste with which that plenipotentiary signed a treaty, which must have been ready drawn up by the French ministry, before he arrived in Paris, and which could not possibly have been discussed with that deliberation which a matter of such magnitude required. Now that it has been signed, the court of St. Petersburg has to decide on the ratification, but to many politicians it would, even now, be no surprising event to see that court hesitate on the measure.

The emperor of Russia is understood to have proposed to his Swedish majesty to discontinue the blockade of the Prussian ports; and it is supposed if his representations should not be attended to, that he would give his permission for the invasion of Pomerania. It was generally believed in that province, that the Prussians would pass the frontier on the 25th ult. This apprehension, however, may be considered as premature. Prussia will scarcely proceed to extremities until the result of the representations last made by her to the court of St. Petersburg is known. There is nothing now in the state of the continent to induce his Swedish majesty to continue in that dignified attitude which he has so long preserved, wish so much honour to his country, and advantage to his personal character.

An opinion is prevalent in Germany, that Russia and the Porte are on the eve of war, and that the latter is to receive the assistance of the powerful army which the French have collected in Dalmatia. Between its enemies and its allies, the Turkish power is in a fair way of being driven out of Europe.

It is now pretty well known, that lieut. gen. Simcoe is to be the successor to lord Lake in the East-Indies.

Accounts by the Lisbon mail state, that Buonaparte had required of the king of Spain to receive an ambassador from the new created king of Naples. It was also insisted on, that his catholic majesty should agree to the dethroning of his own daughter, the queen of Etruria, and that he should further consent to the incorporation of four of his provinces with the kingdom of France, viz. Catalonia, Arragon, Navarre and Biscay, thereby making the river Ebro the boundary between France and Spain, instead of the Pyrenees. The court of Madrid made strong remonstrances against such unjustifiable pretensions; and war was even declared by the French minister six hours before his catholic majesty consented to the measure.

August 6.

Yesterday dispatches were received by a flag of truce from Boulogne. Their contents have not transpired.

Stocks declined yesterday towards the close of the market. The fall was variously accounted for. Some would have it, that dispatches had been received from France, which brought accounts unfavourable to peace. Others sent a messenger after lord Lauderdale, to order his immediate return. The real cause, however, was simply this: Several holders of omnium, finding the price high enough, wished to realize their profit, and brought large sums into the market for sale. The following were the prices at 1 o'clock: this day Consols for money, 65—ditto for August, 65 1-8 1-4—Reduced, 65 5-8 3-4—Omnium, 11—Exchequer bills, par. 3s. prem.

We stated yesterday, and on the best authority, that M. D'Oubril had, in signing the preliminary treaty with France, gone beyond his instructions.

We can now add, that the terms are so ignominious and disadvantageous to Russia, that it is thought by some diplomatists, the emperor Alexander will probably hesitate to ratify them.

In the mean-time, Napoleon acts as if even the definitive treaty was signed. On the very day that D'Oubril signed the preliminary treaty, it was intimated to the Austrian Ambassador, that his master must immediately abdicate the crown he has so long worn as head of the German empire, and confine himself in future to such matters as concern only his own house.

The Lord Hobart packet, from New-York and Halifax, is arrived at Falmouth.

DISTRESSING ACCOUNT.

From a Charleston paper of Sept. 2d.

By the arrival of the schr. Pacotaligo Packet, at quarantine, we have further details of the dreadful effects of the late gale—on the inner edge of the Gulf captain Stites fell in with a large ship of 600 tons, disabled; she was one of the Jamaica fleet, of 150 sail, which passed Havanna early in last month—capt. S. took the ship in tow, but was afterwards fallen in with by a sloop of war who took out the people and burnt the vessel; the second mate and one seaman belonging to the ship, and who had concealed themselves, are now on board the Packet; they state that from the observations which they made, at least one half of the ships composing that fleet must have been sunk, wrecked or destroyed! 2 people only were saved from one of the ships which sunk near them, and in the midst of the gale another ship took fire and blew up, exhibiting a scene awful in the extreme. On Saturday last, capt. Stites fell in with the brig Ann, capt. Cory from this port bound for Havanna, completely disabled; they had got up jury masts, and were making the best of their way for this port—capt. Stites supplied them with a sail. We derive this intelligence from the pilot, who brought the Packet in last evening, further details may be obtained when the vessel comes up to town.

His most Catholic Majesty has renewed and continued the appointment of the marquis YRUJO, as minister to this country.—This measure of the Spanish court can be considered in no other point of view than as a full and entire approbation of the conduct of the marquis towards this government; and as this conduct has been highly hostile to the administration, it will remain for Mr. Jefferson to meet, in a forcible manner, this indignity from a foreign court. [Phil. Gaz.]

Annapolis, September 25, 1806.

To the VOTERS of ANNAPOLIS.

GENTLEMEN, CIRCUMSTANCES have planned a propriety in my declaring that I am surpris'd I should have been thought to act improperly in availing myself of the right which our country gives; a right acquired to the happiness of the country, to the honour of the world, and to the establishment of a national phenomenon of liberty; but because my conduct is generally conceived incongruous, I think proper to decline a further pursuit of it, and though (for some reasons) its propriety is objected, when time shall have encompassed the catastrophe of my fate, I expect a greater dignity than this world can give.

I am, Gentlemen, With national respect, Your obedient servant, ABRAM CLAUDE. Annapolis, Thursday, September 25, 1806.

Arrived at Boston, on the 15th instant, brig Minerva, Sinclair, from St. Croix, 25 days. September 4 was boarded from his Majesty's ship Montague, one of Strachan's Squadron, having sprang a leak, and carried away her main and mizen topmasts in a hurricane on the 25th of August—bound to England.

A late English paper states the number of the French navy as it now stands, to consist of 4 ships of 120 guns, 2 do. of 80 do. 46 do. of 74 do. And 74 do. of inferior force—principally frigates.

We learn from Richmond, that young Mr. Swinney, (by whose means, it was supposed, the venerable judge Wythe was deprived of existence) had his trial before the district court last Wednesday, on an indictment for murder, and was acquitted. On Thursday, he was tried on an indictment for forgery, and found guilty.

1805	300,227	165,827 ditto.

Cow-Pock—In the house of Commons on Wednesday se'night, the Chancellor of the Exchequer brought forward a measure which must afford much satisfaction to the great body of the people—a proper inquiry into the state of Vaccine Inoculation in this country. The Royal College of Physicians, in consequence of Lord H. Petty's proposed address to the King, will be directed to examine into the cause; to state the condition of the Vaccine Inoculation in England; to inquire into the causes that have retarded its progress here; and finally to make a report, not only of their own opinions, but of the evidence also on which such opinions may be founded. A further remuneration to Dr. Jenner is contemplated.

Mr. MANN,

For near fifty years I have been persuaded, that some means might be discovered to assist the navigation in time of long cloudy weather; but could not satisfy myself in any effectual plan, till Monday, the 18th of this month. I found by observation, that attraction does not animate the needle or compass; that it is a principle in nature, as fixed as the earth itself. I can shew to the eye of any that will look, that the loadstone or magnet is not attracted, but acts from natural principle. I can shew and instruct an artist to make an instrument, that at the same time it shews the course, will also shew the latitude in all weather, and in all places.

BOSTON, September 12.

Arrived, brig Thomas, Sanipson, of Duxbury, 78 days from St. Petersburg. August 14, lat. 46, 31, long. 37, was boarded from a French three-decker, called the Victory, commanded by Jerôme Buona-parte; treated politely.

* This ship we suppose to have been Le Veteran, of 74 guns, which Jerome commands. A gentleman who knows the ship, informs us, that she carries a tier of guns on her gang-way, and therefore has the appearance of a three-decker.

NEW-YORK, September 17.

Arrived, the British frigate Favourite, Seymour, in 8 days from Bermuda. The Vanguard, of 74 guns, arrived at Bermuda 4 days before the Favourite failed, having parted from the Jamaica convoy in a gale. Previous to her separating from the fleet, 9 sail of it had foundered, and but part of the crews of 5 of them were saved by the Vanguard.

NORFOLK, September 16.

L'IMPETEUX DESTROYED!

We stop the press, after having some of our papers worked off, having seen some of the officers of the British frigate Melampus, who inform, that on Sunday morning they deserted to the Southward of Cape-Henry, a line of battle ship dismasted, which they immediately gave chase to and ran ashore on Currituck, about 30 miles to the S. of the Cape, and after taking out the officers and men, (amounting to about 600) set fire to her, when she was totally destroyed. She proved to be the L'Impeteux, Mons. L. V. Bellaw, of 74 guns. The Melampus is now in Hampton-Roads.

WASHINGTON CITY, September 19.

We understand that the statement made some days since in the Washington Federalist, that a relation of Mr. Munroe had passed through this city with dispatches for the president, representing that the Florida negotiation had failed, is without foundation. Mr. Bankhead, the gentleman alluded to, was only the bearer of duplicates of letters long since received.

BOSTON, September 18.

His excellency the Tunisian ambassador, with his suite, failed yesterday for Tunis, in the ship Two-Brothers, chartered by government, for the purpose of taking his excellency home.

PHILADELPHIA, September 22.

A letter from an officer on board the ship Pekin, of this port, dated Leghorn, August 1, says: "In the Straits of Gibraltar was brought to by three Spanish gun-boats, examined and dismissed. Same time saw them capture two American ships, and take them into Algeziras. July 12, passing Carthage, we saw the Spanish fleet of six sail of the line, chasing two English frigates; and off Toulon, the French fleet of 4 sail of the line and 4 frigates, just out from that port."

BALTIMORE, September 22.

By a letter from the American consul at Nantes, dated August 1st, it is stated, that the Preliminaries of Peace between England and France had been signed, and as a consequence, that neutral vessels were permitted to clear out for British ports.

By Norfolk papers received yesterday we learn, that the French consul at Norfolk has refused to acknowledge the crew of the L'Impeteux as prisoners of war, or give a receipt for the same, as he was captured within the jurisdiction of the U. States.

September 23.

Extract from the Orleans Gazette, of the 21st August.

"By letters received this morning, we learn, that the governor of Texas, with about 900 Spanish troops had passed the Sabine river, and had advanced within 12 miles of Nachitoches—that major Porter had sent a flag inquiring their intention; their answer was, that they would occupy their former position, and not act on the offensive.

"It is the opinion of the writer, that an action between our troops and them has taken place before this, unless the Spaniards have fallen back."

Admiral Sir Richard Strachan, in the Caesar of 84 guns, arrived off the coast, we understand, on Monday last, having lost his maintopmast.

A PROCLAMATION.

WHEREAS it has been stated to me by the
petition of a number of respectable persons,
inhabitants of Prince-George's county, that a murder

a certain negro man, slave of Basil Soper, called

tice: And whereas it is the duty of the executive to guard as much as may be against the commission of such enormities, and to bring such offenders against the laws and peace of society to justice, I have therefore thought proper to issue this proclamation, and do, by and with the advice and consent of the council, offer a reward of ONE HUNDRED DOL-LARS to any person or persons who shall apprehend and secure the said negro WALL in any goal in the United States, so that he may be brought to justice.

By order,

Treasury Department of the UNITED STATES,

June 21, 1806.

WHEREAS the Commissioners of the Sinking Fund, at a meeting held on the 28th day of April, 1806, did resolve, that the sum remaining to complete the expenditure of the annual appropriation of EIGHT MILLIONS OF DOLLARS, should among other purposes be applied to the reimbursement of the NAVY SIX PER CENT. STOCK, created in pursuance of an act of congress, passed on the 30th day of June, 1798, and to the reimbursement of the FIVE AND HALF PER CENT. STOCK, created in pursuance of an act of congress,
passed on the 3d day of March, 1795.

This is therefore to give notice, that the principal of the said NAVY SIX PER CENT. STOCK, with the interest due thereon, will, on surrender of the certificates, be paid on the 1st day of October next ensuing the date hereof, to the respective stockholders or their lawful representatives or attorneys duly constituted and authorized, either at the Treasury or at the Loan-Office, as the case may be, where credits have been given for the amount of stock, respectively held by them: and that the principal of the FIVE AND HALF PER CENT. STOCK, with the interest due thereon, will, in like manner, and at the same places, be paid on the 1st day of January, 1807, to the respective stockholders, or their lawful representatives or attorneys duly constituted and authorized.

It is further made known, for the information of the parties concerned, that no transfers of the NAVY SIX PER CENT. STOCK, either from or to the books of the Treasury, or from or to the books of the Commissioner of Loans, will be allowed after the 1st day of September ensuing, nor of the FIVE AND December ensuing. And the interest on all certificates of said stocks, which shall not have been fur-rendered, in pursuance of this notification, will cease and determine, on the day preceding the day hereby fixed for the reimbursement thereof.

TO THE FLYING-FISH.

BY MOORE.

WHEN I have seen thy snowy wing
O'er the blue wave at evening spring,
And give those scales, of silver white,
So gaily to the eye of light,
As if thy frame were formed to rise,
And live amid the glorious skies;
Oh! it has made me proudly feel,
How like thy wings impatient zeal
Is the pure soul, that scorns to rest
Upon the world's ignoble breast,
But takes the plume that God has given,
And rises into light and heaven!
But when I see that wing, so bright,
Grow languid with a moment's flight,
Attempt the paths of air, in vain,
And sink into the waves again;
Alas! the flattering pride is o'er,
Like thee, a while, the soul may soar,
But erring man must blush to think,
Like thee, again the soul must sink!
Oh Virtue! when thy clime I seek,
Let not my spirit's flight be weak:
Let me not, like this feeble thing,
With brine still dropping from its wing,
Just sparkle in the solar glow,
And plunge again to depths below;
But, when I leave the groffer throng,
With whom my soul hath dwelt so long,
Let me, in that aspiring day,
Cast every lingering stain away,
And, panting for thy purer air,
Fly up at once and fix me there!

From the Port Folio.

Among a thousand good songs, I do not know whether I could select one of sweeter cadence, sounder sense, and more agreeable allegory than the ensuing. It is the production of George Saville Car-rey.

LIFE's like a ship, in constant motion,
Sometimes high and sometimes low,
Where every one must brave the ocean,
Whatever wind may blow.
If, unassail'd by squall or shower,
Wafted by the gentle gales:
Let's not lose the favouring hour,
While success attends our sails.

Or, if the wayward winds should bluster,
Let us not give way to fear,
But let us all our patience muster,
And learn from Reason how to steer.
Let Judgment keep you ever steady,
'Tis a ballast never fails;
Should dangers rise, be ever ready
To manage well the swelling sails.

Trust not too much your own opinion,
While your vessel's under weigh,
Let good example bear dominion,
That's a compass will not stray;
When thundering tempests make you shudder,
Or Boreas on the surface rails,
Let good discretion guide the rudder,
And PROVIDENCE attend the sails.

Then, when you're safe from danger, riding
In some welcome port or bay,
Hope be the anchor you confide in,
And care, awhile, in slumber lay.
Or, when each can's with liquor flowing,
And good fellowship prevails,
Let each true heart, with rapture glowing,
Drink success unto our sails.

AN OLD PROVERB.

A SAUCY wit attack'd a married Wight,
For quizzing was his general plan;
Fir'd at the attack, his rustling hen,
Rose, and began to peck again;
Just to support her own dear man:
"Why, Mr. Wit, you're strangely out,
Your jokes may take another route,
—My husband all submission scorns;
You take a bull—I assure you by the horns."
"Madam," replied the humorist, "I yield—
I knew not you had given him such a shield."
CORNU COPIA.

EPIGRAMS.

On a Young Lady with a Bosom-friend of Siberian ermine.

TO check the blast, to guard thy tender form
From ruthless cold this gentle shield I send,
May heaven afford thee, in each ruder storm,
The warm protection of a bosom friend.

To a Lady, who turned her cheek to the author, when he went to kiss her.

IS'T for a grace, or is't for some dislike,
That, when I'd kiss your lips, you turn your cheek?
Some think this vastly rude in your behaviour,
But I should rather think it as a favour,
For I, to show my kindness and my love,
Would leave both lip and cheek to kiss your gloves,
And with the cause to make you still acquainted,
Your glove's perfume'd, your lips and cheeks are painted.

HANNAH FOWLER, Adm'x.

ABSCONDED,

A FEW days ago, from the subscriber, a tall slender black negro woman named DARKEY. I purchased her some years ago from the estate of John Mackall, Esq; and I apprehend she has gone to Calvert county. Any person who will apprehend her, and will produce me sufficient proof that they have sold her in any of the southern states, to wit: Georgia, North or South-Carolina, shall be entitled to the whole proceeds, or I will pay TWENTY DOLLARS to any person who will give me information of her being harboured by any free person, so that they may be profecuted.

EDWARD HALL, West river.

P. S. I am informed she has a brother who lives with capt. Leonard, in whose neighbourhood she may be lurking. E. H. August 25, 1806.

One Hundred & Fifty Dollars Reward.

RAN away, on the first of July, 1806, from the subscriber, living in Anne-Arundel county, Patapsco Neck, near Hawkins's Point, within ten miles of Baltimore, Maryland, a likely young negro man named BOB, but sometimes calls himself Bob MILLER; is a tolerably black, straight made fellow, with a smiling countenance when spoken to, has a remarkable scar on the lower part of the back of his neck, near the size of a cent, under his shirt collar; he was raised to the farming business, he is in the twenty-fourth year of his age, about five feet nine or ten inches high; had on when he went off, a high crown felt hat, with a band and buckle, an over round coat, deep blue mixed strong cloth doubled at each elbow, and the left shoulder, olnabrig shirt, and hempen linen trousers. I expect he will change his name and cloaths, as he did when he ran off before, he changed his name to NICHOLAS JOHNSON. I presume he has procured a forged pass from his infamous connexions in the neighbourhood where he lived. If taken up and secured in any gaol, so that I get him again, shall receive one hundred dollars, if out of the state the above reward, and reasonable travelling expenses paid, if brought home, by JAMES P. SOPER.

Twenty-five & Fifty Dollars Reward.

ABOUT three years ago I purchased of Walter W. Norman, tanner, in Queen-Anne, a black boy named STEPHEN, then fifteen years old, remarkably well disposed, a little defective in his knees, but otherwise stout and well made. This boy, about 8 weeks ago, by the insinuation of some very disagreeable person, was enticed from my service, and (from information derived through the boy's own colour) I have reason to believe has obtained a pass, and is now harboured and protected under it. He is supposed to be either in the Swamp of West river, or on Kent-Island, where he has a mother named Esther, lately manumitted by a certain Valentine Carter. I will give twenty-five dollars for apprehending said boy, so that I get him again, and fifty dollars for such information as will merely justify my feelings in inflicting the punishment proper for so great a scoundrel.
