What do you want with it? "Very well," he murmured innocently. The highwayman prepared to strip off his coat and behold! my friend, who had prepared for an implied threat, put on his overcoat with nothing underneath.

My ambition in these days," he said, "is to write for newspapers. I took in material in the direction whenever it was possible. I hunted the public library in Allegheny, and caught on to the distinguished name of the editor."

But this is not all. Having gone through the first stages of theatrical glory, you are worried all the evening with the prospect of a head of iron and state cake providers. If you are in the stalls, safely wrapped up from the drafts, those two things will be the very narrow and uncomfortable stalls and generally make hay.

There is a deal of talk in the proverb of a nation. Earl Russell defined a proverb as being the wit of one man and the wisdom of many, and the aptness of this is well illustrated by the saying, "When a tree is blown down, it shows that the branches are longer than the roots."

The planchette was the popular craze in the year 1878 in Japan. The instrument used consists of three pieces of bamboo of a specified length tied in the middle by a string, and the string is inserted in a shallow circular tray of lacquered wood about a foot in diameter.

One of my fellow students once bought an old gun, which he intended to use in some private theatricals he was producing. Several of his fellow courtesans were for criticism. One of them picked it up and pointed it, pulling the trigger. The others followed it with their eyes.

INVESTING MONEY. VALUABLE OPINIONS ON THE BEST WAY TO INVEST $100. Varying Ideas of Well-Known Capitalists. Several good and reliable investment Associations Recommended as the Best Places to Keep Money.

With a view of obtaining some opinions on the subject a reporter called on Mr. Henry Clews, who has earned a reputation for his judgment in all matters relating to investments.

"The best investment for $100 is to put it in a good savings bank and make it grow by the compound interest," said Mr. Clews. "If you have a surplus of money, it is better to invest it in a good savings bank than to keep it in your pocket."

"When a man is known to own his house it gives him a status in the community greater than anything else. It is a social asset, and it is a source of pride. It is a source of pride, and it is a source of pride."

DO BOGS SEE GHOSTS? FOR IF BRUTES SEE GHOSTS THEN THERE MUST BE GHOSTS. Examples to Prove That Dogs Have Been Frightened in Houses in Which Spirits Were Said to Have Appeared. Question of Animal Immortality.

Some time ago I had something to say on animal immortality. In that article I briefly referred to the argument, now so common, that some animals appear to have intercourse with beings, or forms and states of being, unseen by us.

First of all, in justice, let us get the facts, or the several facts. In Rod and Gun appears the following letter: "Sir, there is reason to believe that animals can see spirits. At any rate, I have a very remarkable fact to relate. There is a dog named 'Devo' which has long had the reputation of being haunted."

"I have myself seen and heard a dog named 'Devo' which has long had the reputation of being haunted. The dog was named 'Devo' and was a very remarkable fact to relate. There is a dog named 'Devo' which has long had the reputation of being haunted."

THE FIRST CRUSADE.

REMARKABLE ARMY THAT WENT TO CAPTURE THE HOLY LAND. Thousands of Innocent Lives Sacrificed Because of Ignorant Enthusiasm—When Intelligent Knights Took Part, Victory Was Won.

Peter the Hermit was a monk of Clugny, who had made a pilgrimage to Jerusalem. While there he had witnessed the sufferings of those who tried to preserve the true faith among the hordes of barbarians who had swarmed upon and now possessed the lands of Asia Minor.

He saw the shocking profanations of the sacred places of the Holy City, and his heart burned within him to release it from its oppression.

At midnight dreams came to him from whom it was pointed out to him that his mission was to rouse the nations of Europe to a holy war.

Fired with this ambition, he made his way back to France. He reports of his wonderful preaching, and that greater numbers flock each day to hear him. Finally, in November of 1096, such a company is gathered of 100,000 such as he, that he is able to set out on his journey.

The plain of La Limagne, in Auvergne, was covered with white tents, in which were lodged 80,000 people, 4,000 priests and 400 abbots and abbesses were there, while also there were three other camps which were mightier than all of them.

Urban II, pope of Rome, to whom all western Europe did homage, and who had been a lofty stand had been erected in the open air, for no building would accommodate the throng. Upon this stand the pope, and beside him stood the hermit, holding aloft the cross. With burning words and fearful eyes he described the diabolical sights he had witnessed in Jerusalem, and called for volunteers to go with him to wrest the Holy City from the infidel.

His appeal was seconded by Urban, who promised all who would follow him, and beside him stood the hermit, holding aloft the cross. With burning words and fearful eyes he described the diabolical sights he had witnessed in Jerusalem, and called for volunteers to go with him to wrest the Holy City from the infidel.

KEEPING BOARDERS.

The Boarding House Woman's Side of a Much Discussed Question.

A woman, driven by the vicissitudes of life to throw her home open to boarders, finds the experience, as most other women who try it do, difficult, to say the least.

She says philosophically: "I am learning human nature. I have discovered that the soft, velvet, velvet looking woman often carries tigerish claws beneath her velvet, and that the frank looking, well dressed man may develop into a 'Medievalist' before my eyes.

"I don't know why humanity should be so brutal when it essays boarding, but it seems to. A woman called, and returned to the parlor to 'talk business,' as she said, with an engaging smile.

"Business meant a series of searching, and she was very busy, and she returned to the parlor to 'talk business,' as she said, with an engaging smile.

BRAVE MAINE WOMEN.

THEY DO NOT HESITATE TO ATTACK A BEAR WITH GUNS.

Armed with a Fitch and an Ax, Two Female Inhabitants of a Lumber District in the Adirondacks, near Malone, and now in the United States, have their own way of dealing with the bear.

"I read about Mrs. Lewis killing the two bears in the Adirondacks, and about Mrs. Becky Latimer's deer hunting exploits in Pennsylvania," said a New Yorker who has been hunting in Maine, "and now I would like to read about the way some women up in the pine forests have of showing their grit and skill when it comes to dealing with certain wild animals."

"A family named McDonald lives way back in the wilderness of the Molokan district. It consists of the husband, Benrick McDonald, his wife and his sister, both young women. They have a snug little farm in there, and keep a few cattle. Their most valuable possession is a rifle which was given them by their father. This was a good rifle, and they used it for many years.

"One day McDonald was obliged to go to one of the settlements several miles away. His wife and sister were left alone to look after things during his absence. Just before dark a great howling was heard in the neighborhood of the house. The sounds were of such an unusual character that the two women became satisfied that they were cries of terror. They were very much frightened, and after carrying an ax, hurried to the barnyard.

"There they found an enormous bear, standing in the middle of the yard. The bear had fallen to the ground and killed the other cattle were huddled in terror in the corner of the yard. The bear growled and snarled, and showed his teeth as the women approached, but in spite of his terrible roar and threatening attitude, the women did not flinch. They rushed with desperate intent on the bear.

"They killed the bear. Mrs. McDonald charged with her pitchfork and thrust the sharp long tines deep into the bear's neck. The bear gave a howl of pain, and striking the handle of the pitchfork a powerful blow with one forepaw he wrenched it from the woman's grasp. The bear was doing that Mrs. McDonald pitched into him with the ax, and at the first blow he fell to the ground. The bear was turned on her and she raised both ax and fork and struck him as he backed slowly away. Mrs. McDonald followed him up and struck him with the ax, and he renewed her attack on the bear.

"Between the attacks of the two determined and plucky women the bear was killed. The women were very brave and they were very successful. The bear was turned on her and she raised both ax and fork and struck him as he backed slowly away. Mrs. McDonald followed him up and struck him with the ax, and he renewed her attack on the bear.

PARIS BATHCARTS.

Give Way in Which the Average Frenchman Makes His Abandonment.

An Englishman familiar with the fact that the average Parisian, residing as low as $500 per year in the United States, has his own bath, with hot and cold water supply and waste to remove the contents of the tub, is amused, as is the custom in the United States, to be amazed, when on a visit to Paris he gets an idea of the custom still prevailing in that metropolis of luxury and elegance.

The large hotels, some very costly private mansions and apartments, and the public bathhouses have their bathrooms, as is the custom in the United States, to be amazed, when on a visit to Paris he gets an idea of the custom still prevailing in that metropolis of luxury and elegance.

THE ROOMS OF A QUEEN.

GRAND AND GORGEOUS, BUT EXCEEDINGLY UNHOMELIKE.

Victoria's High Palace in Windsor and How the Drury Waste of Stately East Room Impressed an American Visitor.

The Scotch room, as I saw them in July, are already fading in my memory into a soft harmonious mingling of spray and green, for the heat was not yet purple; but the sun caught the spray of a mountain rivulet tumbling on its rocky way, or turned more vivid the intense green of those patches of verdure in the midst of the brown of the heather, which we think seem so unusual when artists who paint in the highlands transfer them to canvas. These high lights stay by one when the hills and all the ordinary features of that charming Scotchland melt into the dim

Raising Food Products in the Cotton Belt.

The St. Louis Globe-Democrat prints a page of letters from correspondents throughout the cotton belt in reply to inquiries as to what the prospects for the acreage of 1892 is at present. The results of these inquiries show that the losses for 1891 have been heavy as to reduced acreage, seems to be the opinion expressed in one or two districts, and that there will be less cotton raised this year than last. The planters are practically all agreed that they must raise less cotton and more corn and bacon, and they say they are going to do this.

Gov. Brown's First Veto.

Governor Brown has vetoed the bill enlarging and extending the powers and franchises of the Maryland Building Association as to enable it to make loans on promissory notes and purchase evidences of debt. The reason for the veto is that the powers conferred are too broad. The bill gives the association the right to take out a bill broker's license and to share notes. It confers powers which are akin to banking powers, and it is questionable whether the people who originally voted into the association did not do so under the impression that their money would be loaned only on real estate.

There is no longer any reason why the woman in New York society should sound making mistakes in the pronunciation of the English language.

Nor is there any excuse for preachers, lecturers or actors blundering through their performances and speaking incorrectly. A woman has been started that will teach everyone exactly how to speak—that is, every one who cares to pay the modest fee of $100 a month.

Miss Anna Alward is the starter of a remarkable system of teaching "Fifth Avenue women" as she calls them, "how to converse."

Having secured her Fifth Avenue school, she places her class in a chair opposite to her. Then Miss Alward arms herself with a basket of cards and prods the Fifth Avenue women into talking. She may talk about anything she likes, but she must, every time, make a blunder in pronunciation. Miss Alward will stand at her, will make the word incorrectly pronounced one of the half-an-hour, and puts it in a little pile. After an hour of this sort of thing the first lesson is ended. The Fifth Avenue woman picks up the cards and goes home feeling like a whipped child to learn her lesson. The next lesson is one through with, and very soon the pupil knows as much as her teacher.

This information about her new system of education is communicated to the New York Herald by Miss Alward herself.

She wants to trump the good news of her existence to the millions of people in the world who sometimes make mistakes in speech.

The correct pronunciation of English words is most important, her prospectors state.

Miss Anna Alward has carefully studied the best existing authorities on the subject, and is able to correct mispronounced words that are frequently heard in the pulpit, lecture room, theatre or in daily conversation. The Fifth Avenue woman who realizes the great advantage of speaking correctly is not at all satisfied with the existing authorities on this subject, and is anxious to improve on them. She has engaged a private tutor for thirty minutes with Miss Alward, who writes upon a card every mispronounced word, with the marks indicating the correct pronunciation.

"Anyone who possesses a good memory can make rapid improvement in this direction."

When the pronunciation given by a pupil cannot be found in the latest edition of any dictionary, Miss Alward calls it incorrect. The expense of instruction is $100 a month. These four words are the name and address, and this frightful example for the ignorance of a pupil with whom the instructor talked: Ignorant Fifth Avenue woman—I will continue to receive instruction on Tuesday afternoons at half-past 2, if the condition of my Fifth Avenue will permit. Now, if the Fifth Avenue woman step up with your $100 bills and learn how to talk!

Wants a Companion This Year.

The "Hermit of the Sonblick," Peter Lechner, who last year passed the winter in the observatory on the summit of that lonely peak, now declares that he will not stay there another winter unless he has a companion with him. He would like to see a wife, if he could find one. Otherwise he will be content with a male companion, who could take turns with him in the observatory, and in the scientific instruments. This decision on the part of the "Hermit of the Sonblick" really threatens the further existence of the highest observatory in Europe. For the Austrian Meteorological institute lacks the funds to support a companion for Lechner, and the small sum, about $100 a year, that is wanted for the purpose is not forthcoming from private sources.

It is believed that the real explanation of the discontent of Her Lechner is that he is annoyed at being forgotten by the public, who have never sent him Christmas presents nor published laudatory paragraphs about him in the newspapers of late.

Three years back he said he wanted a wife, and hundreds of offers at once poured in from all quarters, including several rich and many good looking women, but he then laughed at the idea, and continued to prefer the state of single blessedness. It would be a distinct loss to meteorological and physical science if the Sonblick observatory were to be closed, but some means will probably be found of reconquering the lonely and lofty labor for another winter.—Vienna Cor. London Standard.

Tithe and the Price of Grain.

The difference between the method of paying the clergy of the Church of England, who enjoy the tithes as their living, and the clergy of the Church of Scotland, who enjoy what are known in the north as tithes, will be very apparent in this year. On both sides of the Tweed grain prices are higher for the year, but in England the clergy will receive little immediate benefit from the rise, because the seven years' average is spread over so long a time that the most that can be hoped for from the good prices of 1891 is to stop the fall which has been going on every year without a break since 1878, a longer period of successive annual declines in the value of the tithe than has ever before occurred.

But in Scotland the tithe is calculated on the grain prices of each year, so that the parish ministers who have endured the fluctuations of low prices brought with them when grain was cheap will now have directly the advantages of higher prices when grain has risen. In England, on the other hand, the fall is retarded by the seven years' average. In Scotland the full effects of either the rise or the fall are directly experienced in every year.—London Graphic.

Supporting the President.

Last June a young man was arrested in Natick, Mass., because he would not pay his poll tax, amounting to two dollars. He has now been kept in jail ever since at an expense to the taxpayers of $1.75 per week. The town is losing money on the transaction, but it is vindicating an eternal principle with great success.—New York Tribune.

Rheumatism cured in a day.

"My Cure" for Rheumatism and Neuralgia radically cured in 1 to 2 days. Its action upon the system is remarkable and mysterious. It removes at once the cause and the disease immediately disappears. The first dose greatly benefits, 75 cents sold by E. K. Truitt & Son, Druggists, Salisbury, Md.

Emm's Back in His Old Profession.

News has been received from Sanitar, says the New York Sun, that Emm's Back is received with the utmost demonstrations of delight by his old soldier, who were left behind him when he abandoned his profession on the Nile. Several hundred of them heard that he was coming, and they went south from Albert Nyanza to Lake Edward, Edward to meet him. It is said that the men were so overjoyed at seeing him that they nearly tore off his clothing in their efforts to embrace him. They fired many salutes with their rifles and indulged in every manifestation of joy. Emm had several fights with natives while traveling northwest of Victoria Nyanza. Recent news from Omdurman confirms the return of Emm to Wadiali. It is thought in Omdurman that Emm will be able to re-establish his authority in his old province, but it is not believed that he will attempt to do so.

The plans of the British East Africa Company are coming to light.

The London Times announces that news may come any day that Captain Lugard, who placed Uganda under the British protection, has taken possession of Wadiali on behalf of the British East Africa Company. The Times says that Emm is in his own old territory simply as a private individual. As a German official he is quite out of his best. If Emm behaves loyally there need be no trouble. If not, no doubt Captain Lugard will prove himself equal to the situation. It is evident, therefore, that Captain Lugard hopes to make use of Emm's influence in the country to firmly establish British authority there. If Emm will work with him in this end they will get along well together and Emm will undoubtedly receive a handsome salary from the British company, but the British will not tolerate any attempt on Emm's part to assert any alleged rights as ruler of the country.

Teachers in Germany.

The place which the teacher has made for himself in the educational system of Germany is certainly a noble one. This place of responsibility and influence is not newly acquired. It is an inheritance from the past; a transmission of powers won by the courage, zeal and intellectual strength of the teachers of three centuries. Beginning with the reformation—the time from which the present school system of Germany dates—the teacher has filled a prominent place in all educational reforms. Witness the work of Luther, Erasmus and Melancthon; of Triller, Wigel and Sturm, and of a host of others, not only in promulgating new philosophies and methods of teaching, but in actually practicing new courses of study, in talking out for education the active interest of princes and people and, wherever power was by the courage and intellectual strength of the teachers of three centuries.

Patience of Melancthon.

The question as to the fatigue of Melancthon under long continued stress has been tested and it is believed, satisfactorily settled, in the treatment of two similar suspension bridge links and the results obtained. A square iron link 1 1/2 inches wide, 1 inch thick and about 13 feet long was taken from a bridge at Kieff, Russia, then about forty years old, and tested against a similar link which had lain unused in store ever since the building of the bridge. Under these circumstances the means of comparison were considered in the highest degree favorable, and the result necessarily of a reliable character in determining whether or not iron actually loses, and to what extent, any of its strength in prolonged service.

The effect of the test showed for the old used link an ultimate tensile strength of 11.1 tons per square inch, an elongation of 17.38 per cent. at the point of fracture. In the case of the unused link, the tensile strength was found to be 22.3 tons per square inch, with an elastic limit of 11.9 tons, and an elongation and contraction at fracture of 18.42 per cent. and 18.73 per cent., respectively. From these figures, therefore, it will be seen that the unused link with all its long carriage of the returning churchgoers. In the afternoon and for the rest of the day swiftness maintains a strict observance. It is the fashion not to be seen, and fashion is as relentless on Sunday as on other days. The curtains are not drawn—there is certainly no noise. Not even a servant girl's white capped head is visible. Not even the sunny faces of children break the monotony of rich withdrawal. But for the rolling wheels of hotel and livery hacks that cart visitors about from the park you might shut your eyes and fancy yourself in some quiet country.—New York Herald.
