

Saturday, February 3, 1873.

Several of our citizens are anxious for a re-assessment of the property of the county, and have petitioned our Representatives at Annapolis to that effect. At the last assessment, which was made in '66, the value of real estate was much higher than at the present time, and it was assessed accordingly. Hence the outcry among several of our tax-paying citizens that their property is taxed to an amount exceeding the present value. Yet we do not think that a change in the valuation would accrue to the interest of property holders. For if this change was made, the amount in toto for assessed property would be decreased, in proportion to the diminution of value placed upon it; and consequently, a higher rate of taxation on the dollar would have to be added, in order to make up for the deficit.

Besides when we take into consideration the cost of a new assessment, which would be an additional expense to the county of about $2,000, we hardly think this an expedient movement at the present depressed condition of the finances of the county.

Business and Enterprise in Salisbury.

Somewhat the impression that the business of Salisbury is not so great now as it was in former times has taken hold of the public mind, and it is not at all uncommon to hear men lament the decline in business, and at the same time ascribe to the building of the W. & P. R. R. and the erection of the new county.

Has the business of our town really declined?

Let us examine.

Ten years ago the streets of Salisbury were almost continually filled with long trains of lumber and grain wagons. Men came and went in swarms, and our merchants were kept busy from morning till night supplying the great demand for the goods of every style and description suggested by the needs and tastes of the people. A few years later, when greenbacks were almost as plentiful as acorns in autumn, and land and timber, lumber and grain, brought prices unprecedentedly high, and a people therefore accustomed to excessive prosperity, then, indeed, the business men of Salisbury apparently reaped a golden harvest.

Now the scene is changed. The obtrusive no longer behold the flogging of long, heavy trains, and the people no longer flock to the town and try out their cash with lavish profusion in merchandise and luxuries. This is as it appears to many of our citizens. Now what are the causes that have led to this apparent decline in business? We say apparent because we believe it to be only apparent.

Salisbury formerly drew the bulk of her trade in lumber and grain from that section of country through which the W. & P. R. R. now runs; and the lumber and grain that used to be brought here in wagons is now transported to market on the cars—hence the disappearance of wagon trains. It is true, that some parties out in that country who once hauled their grain and lumber to Salisbury now ship to the cities, but increased transportation facilities has greatly increased the supply, and so-day the lumber dealers of Salisbury buy more lumber than they did ten years ago. The business, in fact, is now done quickly and systematically, and is confined to a portion of the town where it is not continually before everybody's eyes; whereas, in other days all were in the midst of the noise and bustle incident to the business. The business of the town some years back, was almost exclusively confined to retailing merchandise—now there is a considerable wholesale trade, many country stores being supplied on a regular basis here, and the falling off in the retail trade is more than compensated for by the increased wholesale business.

Since 1870 the boot and shoe trade, the ready-made clothing business, which in former times had no separate existence, has now assumed important proportions. The furniture business, hardware and other trades, and an increase in the dry goods trade has marked the past four years. The business, which previous to 1862, was confined to two, each of saw and shingle, has now attained to almost the condition of importance in the business.

For there are now in operation several regular saw mills, and several shingle mills, and a large planing mill, which will produce a large quantity of shingles, and a large quantity of planing.

The Hair Apparent.

From the London Spectator. The Princes of Wales of the House of Brunswick have usually been detested, and have never been popular with more than a section of the people. They have, however, before this generation, assumed able to accept their somewhat painful position patiently, have usually gone into opposition, and have always, tried to obtain personal power as centres of some party to which they made promises which, when once called to the throne, they perceived it was impossible to keep. The last two Princes of the name, Frederick, who died, and George, afterwards George IV., were more detested and disliked than any persons with the name in the realm. The present heir apparent has pursued a wiser course. He has been as constitutional as his mother. Not ten years in England could any dynasty to which the great parties belong, even in conviction, and on no single occasion has he made his personal influence conspicuous to the embarrassment of public affairs. His anxiety for Denmark in 1864 was not paraded, and was too natural to excite remark, and if, as was rumored, he disliked the disestablishment of the Irish Church, his opinion was not permitted to impede the course of the Queen's Government. He has led, in fact, the political life of an heir apparent in this country should lead, and has never led before, and he has his reward in the eager sympathy of the entire nation, unclouded by party dislikes or political rancors. The unity of feeling throughout the empire about his illness, the intense desire that he should win his gallant struggle with death, has been manifested in the most unexpected quarters, and the most striking forms, till we scarcely know which is the more dramatic incident, the solemn service performed on his behalf in all the five temples of Western India, by a rite to which his own is modern, and under forms before which our rituals are yesterday, or the address of sympathy and hope which all the democratic or republican societies of Great Britain are signing to their Queen, an address, we venture to say, almost unexampled in our history, as evidence of the strength of the bond which unites the people and the throne. Had the Prince been the life of a party, had he even paraded his political convictions, no explosion of national sentiment such as has so impressed the Continent would have been even possible.

PRANCE.

COUNT CHAMBERD OF THE FRENCH PEOPLE.

Paris January 29.—A manifesto has been issued by the Count Chamberd to the French people. The Count claims, as of course, the right divine, and says: "I shall never abdicate my claim to the throne of France. I shall never forsake the monarchical principle, which I have preserved intact for forty years, and which is the last hope of France's greatness and liberties. Ceasarism and anarchy threaten France because her salvation is sought in personal questions and not in principles. I shall ever uphold the flag of France and aid in restoring the ancient prestige of her armies. Time presses, and alliances and reorganization are urgent. The happiness of France is my only ambition, and I will never consent to become a revolutionary where I am a legitimate King."

THE NATIONAL ASSEMBLY—PETITION FROM SYNDICATES.

Paris, January 31.—In the National Assembly to-day a debate was begun upon the recent report of the committee providing for the withdrawal of France from the treaty of commerce with England. The Syndicates of the towns of Aix, Vicky, Blombieres and Birrege have petitioned the Government for the abrogation of the law against public gambling, and offer 40,000,000 (?) francs per annum, for the privilege of licensing gambling establishments at these watering places.

SPAIN.

THE LATE RIOTS AT BARCELONA.

Madrid, January 31.—A despatch from Barcelona says that stringent measures have been adopted for the prevention of further riotous disturbances. It appears that the crowds who assembled on Tuesday, burned the houses where the ostro duties had been collected and fired on the troops. The latter replied with such effect that two of the rioters were killed and another of them seriously wounded. The place is now quiet, and, owing to the precautions of the authorities no further trouble is anticipated.

MADRID, JANUARY 31.—REINFORCEMENTS.

to the number of 8,000 men, have sailed from Cadix for Cuba.

GREAT BRITAIN.

ANOTHER LIVINGSTONE EXPEDITION.

London, January 31.—A meeting, in aid of the Livingstone expedition, held at the Mansion House last night, at the call of the Lord Mayor, was well attended and quite successful. Subscriptions were received to the amount of £3,000. Measures were taken to complete the organization and equipment of the relief expedition and send it off at an early day.

North Carolina.

THE LEGISLATURE.

Raleigh, January 31.—The Legislature is wearing an important educational bill. The Senate is passing a bill for the benefit of the State, and condemns much of the work of the contractors and appoints an experienced civil engineer and mechanic to superintend the work. The Committee on Printing, to Wm. Ahearn, of the Daily Carolina, Democrat. The old-line Whigs insist upon giving the printing to Josiah Turner, of the Sentinel, Conservative at figures 25 per cent. higher.

The General Assembly compared the Senatorial vote to-day, when General M. W. Ransom was declared duly elected. Redistricting under the Apportionment act and the State debt are the most important matters before the Legislature.

Pennsylvania.

THE SENATORIAL ELECTION—A FRAUD AND A FAUCE.

Philadelphia, January 31.—Colonel McCleure, the defeated candidate for the State Senate, publishes a card denouncing the result of the election as a fraud, and declares his determination to punish the persons who aided in the return of his opponent. The Inquirer styles the election a false count. The Age calls the election a farce. The Republican papers generally announce the result without comment.

Colonel McCleure asserts that he has proof that 1,800 votes of registers were accepted in two wards, and over 300 in another. He says that he will contest the election in the Senate, besides publishing reporters by criminal suits. The votes cast yesterday were, however, over 10,000 less than cast in October last.

PROSPECTUS FOR 1872. FIFTH YEAR. A REPRESENTATIVE AND CHAMPION OF AMERICAN ART. THE ALDINE: An Illustrated Monthly Journal claimed to be the handsomest Paper in the World.

"Give my love to the artist workman of the 'THE ALDINE' who are striving to make their profession worthy of admiration for beauty as it has always been worthy of usefulness."—IRVING WALKER JACOBSON. "THE ALDINE" white lined with all the regularity, but with the temporary or timely interest characteristic of ordinary periodicals. It is an elegant monthly of pure, high and graceful illustrations, a collection of pictures, the rarest specimens of artistic skill, in black and white. Although each succeeding number affords a fresh pleasure to its friends, the real value and beauty of "THE ALDINE" will be most appreciated when it has been bound up as at the close of the year. While other publications may claim superior elegance as compared with its value, "THE ALDINE" is a unique and original conception—alone and unapproached—by any other magazine of the kind. The possession of the volume just completed cannot duplicate the quantity of fine paper and engravings in an average of number of volumes for the same time.

THE VOLUME FOR 1872 will contain nearly 300 pages, and about 250 fine engravings. Commencing with the number for January, every third number contains a beautiful colored picture on plate paper, inserted as a frontispiece. The Christmas number of 1871, will be an additional volume in itself, containing fifty engravings, four in its and, although not published, will be sent without extra charge to all yearly subscribers.

The Salisbury Advertiser.

FRIDAY, FEBRUARY 10, 1872.

THE CHINA MAIL.—Through the kindness of L. L. South, formerly a resident of Salisbury, but now residing at Hongkong, China, we have been favored with a new copy of the China Mail. New our readers might very naturally suppose that this paper, edited and published among the colonies, is something very novel in the newspaper line, but it is not. For it is gotten up very much after the manner of papers in America—printed in English, and filled with advertisements. It contains a well condensed record of the news of the India, America, Australia, Europe &c. Its editorials denote that its editors are men of considerable ability; and its extended advertising columns seem to indicate that the American and European residents of Hongkong are fully sensible of the value of printed ink. Prominent among the advertisements we notice those of the numerous patent medicines.

Howells' Pills—somebody's Cough Lozenges—remedies for dysentery, cholera, fever and ague, and in short, nostrums for "all the ills that flesh is heir to." The subscription price of the Mail is $24 per annum. How is that for high?

The Alabama Claims have recently become the subject of much discussion in the British Parliament and in the halls of the U. S. Congress. In the Queen's speech at the opening of Parliament on Tuesday, reference was made to the Alabama Claims, in which she stated, large demands were made on the part of the United States, for damages, which are not within the province of the arbitrators at Geneva, to determine. In this connection Mr. Disraeli called the attention of the House of Commons to the above clause in the Queen's speech as follows:

"The royal speech was signally unsatisfactory, and showed, in his opinion, that the Government still lacked a proper appreciation of the gravity of the question at issue between England and the United States. The American claims were greater than those which would follow total conquest. They were preposterous, impracticable, and, if admitted, would be fatal to the power and honor of England."

Mr. Gladstone then followed in reply—

"The Treaty of Washington itself shows that England is ready to make every concession short of national honor to establish friendly relations with America, and to set the example to be followed by other nations. The Government, said the speaker, is ready to explain everything in connection with the treaty, but it will not admit that it has unwittingly made a mistake."

While this subject was being so freely discussed in the House of Commons, a resolution was offered in the United States Senate by Mr. Edmunds, that:

"The President be requested, if not incompatible with the public interests, to communicate to the Senate any information in his possession respecting the alleged violation of the Government of Great Britain in violation of the treaty lately concluded between the Government and the United States, unless the claims of this Government arising under said treaty shall be presented at Geneva upon a principal and in a manner agreeable to the other party."

He stated that the capture and burning of American vessels during the late war and the injuries which were inflicted upon the American commercial marine, were occasioned by England's violation of the neutrality treaty; and the right to make such demands for these injuries, and have the full and satisfied judgment of the tribunal of arbitration is found in the very letter of the treaty.

As the arbitration at Geneva was conducted for the purpose of settling all claims for damages and losses arising from the wrongful acts and omissions of the British Government; and as the treaty expressly states that, "in order to remedy all such complaints and claims of the United States, and to provide for the speedy settlement of such claims, which are not admitted by Her Majesty's Government, the high contracting parties agree that all the said claims, of acts committed by the British Government, shall be referred to the arbitration of arbitration."

Death of Archbishop Spalding.

The Most Rev. Martin John Spalding, Archbishop of Baltimore, after a lingering illness, died at Baltimore, on Wednesday afternoon at a quarter before 5 o'clock, from an attack of capillary bronchitis. He was fully aware of his approaching end, but his mind was perfectly clear, and he conversed freely with those around him, up to within a few minutes of his death, when he sank peacefully and resignedly to rest.

Martin John Spalding was born near Lebanon, Kentucky, on the 23d of May 1810. His father Richard Spalding was a native of St. Mary's county; and his mother, Henrietta Hamilton, a native of Charles county Maryland.

The Archbishop, in his twelfth year, was sent to St. Mary's Seminary, in Maryland county; where he remained until he graduated. Having determined to enter the priesthood, he went at once to Bardonia, Kentucky, where he remained for four years in St. Joseph's Seminary, teaching in the college, and studying theology. In April 1830, Dr. Spalding sailed for Rome, and shortly afterwards entered the Urban College of the Propaganda. At the expiration of four years, he made a most eloquent and able defence of theology and canon law, comprising two hundred and fifty-six theses; for which he was made a Doctor of Divinity. In August 1834, he was ordained priest by Cardinal Pedicini; and after celebrating his first mass in the chapel of St. Peter, at Rome, he returned to his home in Kentucky, where he was elected to the Presidency of St. Joseph's Seminary. In 1843, Dr. Spalding was called to the Cathedral at Louisville, and in 1848, to the Episcopate under the title of Bishop of Lexington. In 1864 he was created Archbishop of Baltimore, and the Primate of Honor of the Roman Catholic Church of the United States. From that time he was engaged in the duties of his office, which were executed with eminent ability.

The European Telegraphic Congress.

The foreign journals bring accounts of the Telegraphic Congress which, after a protracted session of more than six weeks in Rome, Italy, adjourned on January 14, when a revised telegraph treaty was signed. No radical changes were made in the International Telegraph Treaty signed at Paris, on May 17th, 1865, except in regard to secret messages—this class of despatches being greatly restricted in Europe, and many countries being exceedingly illiberal in permitting their transmission. The new paragraph of the treaty provides that private messages may be exchanged in secret language between any two countries where that mode of correspondence is permitted, and that such messages may be transmitted through countries not allowing cipher despatches. Messages written in secret language are defined to be those where either the whole or part of the text is composed of cypher letters or words the significance of which is unknown to the officers of the sending station.

The International Telegraph treaty of May 17th, 1865, went into force in January 1st, 1866, and secured to the whole of Europe the advantages of cheap and uniform telegraph correspondence without any distinction either in regard to language or price of transmission. The treaty provided for triennial meetings for the revision, if necessary, of the regulations, and in 1869 the Congress was held in Vienna. The next meeting will take place in June, 1872, at St. Petersburg. At the Congress recently held, in Rome, the question of neutralizing submarine cables was discussed with great animation, and over thirty speeches were made on the subject. A letter from Professor Samuel F. B. Morse was read, supporting the view that the Telegraphic Congress, by a distinct vote should express the opinion that, in war as well as in peace, telegraphing ashore and in the waters should be considered sacred, and that it should, by the unanimous consent of all nations, be protected, as inviolate and secure against damage. No definite conclusion was arrived at, but it is believed that a special International Congress will be convened for the purpose of discussing this measure, which was formally suggested several years ago by the State Department at Washington.

MORE OUTRAGES AND TROUBLES WITH NEGROES.

Little Rock, February 7.—On Friday last a colored man, named Arch Pope, was shot and killed at Gale, Rock, Pope county, by two young men, named Dupree. The brother and father of the murdered man then attacked an old gentleman, named Tucker, charging him with being the cause of the killing. They shot Tucker twice and beat him until they thought he was dead. He was alive, however, on Saturday, but there are no hopes of his recovery. After this the negroes gathered to the number of thirty, with fire-arms, and more trouble is apprehended.

He was also presented with a sketch of his dinner party at Minister Gataca's, in Washington, drawn by Albert Thomas, a young negro of this place. The Duke returned his thanks, and questioned Thomas on his former and present life.

Flogging in the Navy of H. B. Hall.

After breakfast all hands... Flogging in the Navy of H. B. Hall.

WHY ENGLAND RETAINS INDIA.

It has been asked why did not England let India go when she threw off her allegiance...

Landed property in England has been largely enhanced in value by the investments of fortunes, the fruit of civil, military and commercial success in Hindostan.

But, the man who would present no further reasons than these, for British resolution to keep India in its control would do injustice to the better section of English society...

The brave, fond heart is pulseless now. The form of the stalwart soldier is dust in its far-away grave.

A JURY OF PEERS.

There dwelt some years ago in Bourbon county, Kentucky, a drunken, worthless one-eyed fellow named C., whose chief occupations were getting tipsy and fighting...

The constable quietly replied: "I thought the prisoner was entitled to be tried by a jury of his peers, and I've been out three days hunting 'em up, I've got twelve more outside waiting."

LIFE IN GREENLAND.

The life of the Greenlander must be very dreary. About the first of October, the last ship leaves for Europe, and from that time until the next May, they have no communication with the civilized world...

This lengthened day is followed by an equally long night, which brings mental and moral depression. Men are mooping, testy, imaginative, and colorless as potato-sprouts growing in a dark cellar.

A Wonderful Man.

This old warrior sleeps the sleep of a soldier in a rude Texas grave, over which there is no monument.

Magruder was a wonderful man. He stood six feet four in his height, and had a form men envied and women adored.

Next to the deer, the walrus is of most value to the Greenlanders. It was on a bright August day, when for the first time I saw a herd of these immense beasts.

In illustration of the improvidence of American workmen in their habits of living, a New York association, organized for the purpose of assisting the unfortunate of this class of people, in a late report, publishes the following:

In Holland, in 1869, carpenters, joiners and smiths earned about $6 per week. In Denmark, a first-class carpenter earns from $8 to $9.50, and a bricklayer from $7 to $7.50 per week.

In Prussia and Germany the artisan is generally an educated and well-to-do man. In Saxony the average is from $2.25 to $3 per week, yet the Saxons are a frugal class, and know how to save a little out of that.

In Austria the scale is extremely low in all cases, the poor agricultural laborers earning only from $1.50 to $2.00 per annum. In Belgium, a carpenter with a little capital to buy his material, will average from $3 to $4 per week.

In Switzerland spinners average but $2.50 per week, and children $1.25 to $1.50 per week; blacksmiths, from $2 to $2.50. In France, before the late war, taking Paris for the standard, the arts and sciences grouped all their wonders.

The necessities of life increased in like ratio, but the rates of ordinary workmen did not exceed four francs a day, or $1.80 the week. The labor of women was valued at only $1.20, per week, in England, the average is from 80 to 85 per cent. though the scale of the United States, though 70 per cent, above the rates paid for the work or labor in other parts of Europe.

Selected Poetry.

ELSIKORE. In those dim romantic years Which thy memory still endears, Through my heart that memory sears...

From my heart-strings proudly strung, Love's wild harp was rung, And the heart-tones thrilled my tongue...

Then, my God was mortal maiden, Then, my spirit, rapture-laden, Wished no brighter, other Aiden, Evermore;

Then the days were Heaven's light, beaming, And the nights Elysian dreaming, When time images, angelic seeming, Hovered o'er;

And thine eyes, as eyes of night Streaming from yon Heavenly bright, Filled my soul with liquid light, Elysian.

Al! those days are gone forever With their wild and fitful fever, And my mortal heart shall never Know them more;

For the bleak and spectral gleams Of the days, are spulesse dreams, Since thine eyes have lost their beams, Elysian.

Now my bosom is the tomb Of a love crushed in its bloom, And despair with raven plume Broods o'er;

Death has torn the from my arms, For he envied me thy charms, And he gave thee to the worms, Elysian.

Now my soul is bleak and bare, Now is earth a prison drear, Where I've dwelt this many a year, Nothing more;

From my heart-strings torn and wounded, One long requiem is sounded— Dirge of love-wrecked, woe-unbowed— "Elsikore."

Though my life be young in years, Yet 'tis chronicled in tears, And my heart its burden bears— Evermore;

For I live and grieve alone, And my life-song is a moan, And I bow at sorrow's throne, Elysian.

But this dreary flood will rise, When, above the jeweled skies, I can watch thy love-fit eyes, Evermore;

For I know, in Heaven above me, There's an angel who will love me, For I know that thou wilt love me, Elysian.

Saturday, February 24, 1872.

The consideration of Mr. Sumner's resolution in the Senate, in regard to the sale of arms to France, by our Government officials, during the Franco-Prussian war, has created much discussion among Republican Senators; and developed some new facts in regard to secret communications, which were at that time being conducted by our highest officials. It is embodied in the resolution, that large quantities of arms and ammunitions were manufactured and sold to France by our Government; and that such an act is not consistent with the neutrality relations which then existed between this government and foreign powers. In reply to this statement, Mr. Conkling pronounced the whole thing to be a political farce, gotten up for the purpose of blighting the prospects of Grant's re-election, while Mr. Schurz vigorously supported the resolutions; claiming that there was a violation of neutrality on our part, and produced letters from private parties, interested in the sale of arms, to substantiate his statements. He maintained that the reputation and honor of the government have been compromised by the flagrant violation of neutrality, in furnishing material assistance to France in her recent struggle; and that the administration senators are unwilling to investigate the matter for strictly political reasons, as it would undoubtedly bring reproach upon the acts of the Grant wing, and more surely lead to their defeat.

OUR NEW YORK LETTER.

LIFE IN THE METROPOLIS—HOW POWER HAS WON THE OLD KNICKERBOCKERS—NAIVE AND FOREIGN TALENT—TRIAL OF STORM—A CURIOUS DETECTION—THE SMALL FOX—A WONDERFUL GOAT—THE QUAKER'S PRACHUR.

New York Feb. 19, 1872.

For a wonder, there is a lull in the throbbing of the metropolitan pulse. No feverish symptoms disturb the body politic, no paroxysms of trade threaten the "bulls" or bears, and the last "sensation" has well-nigh been forgotten. When the seltzer spirit of life becomes flat, the people are supposed to rest—no! I recall that word—they simply draw a long breath, for there is no such thing as rest in New York. The city never sleeps. It knows nothing of the bush of the midnight hour. The tinkle of the car-bells, the tramp of homeward-bound men and women, the patter of horse feet, the steam puffing from the nostrils of office carriers hurrying by with the fractions of some fashionable party, and just before dawn the unmitigated trouble of the market-ragons—all these tell of a chorus by busy life, the orchestral accompaniment of which sounds doubly distinct because you hear it in the dark.

Rest, forsooth! Men are too much occupied in what Gerald Massey calls "hammering out the metal of their lives." To let the iron grow cold upon the anvil. And they pound at their respective objects until they have made an individuality or a ruin. To be pointed out—known—respected for wealth or influence, to win a favorable comment in the daily press; to be written down on various occasions as a patron, to become the leader of a political club, or the religious clique; to wear the largest diamonds, give the most exclusive soirees, or to be in some other way out of a neighbor in the strife—one would think were the objects of half of the people of New York.

Banner, for instance, is known by his horses; young Bennett by his yacht; Jerome by his park; and Beecher by his pulpit oracles. Preachers by the score follow in his wake. Hopworth, Bellows, Cuyler, Talmadge, all have been made notorious in print, and that sort of notoriety means a paying congregation. Read the announcements in the Sunday-morning paper, and you will be astonished to find that the Reverend Mr. Higgins will preach on the subject of "slices cut from a Gospel steak," that Bishop Snow will fire "ribshots at the devil," and so on, ad nauseam. Sensationalism is the order of the hour, and it makes but little difference with what kind of shaft the foals are caught. There are a few staid old Knickerbockers, however, who are content to grow quietly; make their money in the old-fashioned way; invest it where it will pay, perhaps little but surely, who regard a speculation as a red-hot poker, and consequently live long, absorb wealth, and maintain the family respectability. They are not numskulls, like a thousand others around them.

Social life with and among these people is really enjoyable. Their houses are the embodiment of good taste and excellence, and you find them patrons of art, music, and every thing which refines and elevates. They purchase what is solid and meritorious; their salons are the resort of the truly intellectual and great, and brains, not brass are the letters of credentials which introduce the strange.

You would be astonished however, to observe how much of the talent that has made its mark in the metropolis is not native. A. T. Stewart, Hearst, and Gregg among the leading merchants and O'Connor, O'Gorman, John Mitchell, Sydney Sullivan among the lawyers, are Irishmen. There are probably fewer actual New-Yorkers who have risen to eminence in this climbing to the apex of the pyramid than of the people of other States and nationalities. Every man has the same chance as his neighbor, and it is the best who wins.

But enough of moralizing. The local news of the day is comparatively meagre. They have enough of telegraphic engravings from other quarters of mankind, every morning boiled down in the columns of the daily journals to supply the usual palubum for breakfast table gossip. The trial of Stokes for the murder of Fisk, is now pending, but interest in the matter has strangely subsided. The popular belief is, that the criminal will not be convicted in the first degree, for when a person is so rich that he can transform a cell in the Tombs into the luxurious semblance of a chamber on the Fifth Avenue, and feast on champagne and venison with his jailer, Justice is very apt to drop her blind, and smile accommodatingly. His counsel, led by the famous John Graham, are moving heaven and earth to gain time, and will stubbornly contest every inch of the trial, from the organization of the Grand-Jury which found the indictment, to the latest decision of the Court. The curiosity to see the prisoner in great array, and the officers are obliged to resort to all kinds of devices to get him to and from the Tombs without the obstruction of the crowd. The Sun calls Stokes the "dandy assassin."

Appos of crime, a very curious robbery has lately been traced out by a commercial traveller. It appears that, in December, $20,000 worth of lace and millinery goods were stolen from a wholesale establishment. Some of them were peculiar in style and color, and the drummer, while travelling, saw a sample on the neck of a lady. He addressed her, ascertained where the same had been purchased, went to Cleveland, Ohio, found a Sunday congregation who had largely invested in similar articles, discovered the place where the same had been sold, and thus is on the track of the actual thieves in New York.

The small-pox is somewhat on the increase, though seventy-five or eighty deaths per week in a population of a million seems but a slight proportion. The run on the Third Avenue Savings Bank is now in its second month, but the institution holds out. In the case of the Guardian Savings Bank, some of the Trustees have come to the rescue, and the poorer depositors are to be paid in full. Those whose deposits amount to more than $200, are to receive twenty-five per cent. Judge Bernard has "ordered" that, if people don't like fire-insurance, they should rather take their chances of being burned to death than have their houses look unobtainable. The French officers are taking up subscriptions to aid in paying the indemnity due by France to Germany. One lady has subscribed $1,000.

A wonderful feat, now performing in the Black Crook at Niblo's, rides a barbed horse, turns summersaults, jumps through rings, carries a monkey on his head, and does many other wonderful things heretofore supposed to belong to the peculiar province of a circus rider.

General P. G. Washington a third cousin of General George Washington, died in this city, on Saturday. He was born in Virginia, held many offices under the various Administrations, and was a fine type of a thorough-going old-time gentleman. He was seventy-four years of age. Brooklyn is all agog over the preachments of Sarah Smiley, a good little Quakeress, who has won much celebrity as an expounder of the Bible. Some of her male rivals, in attempting to make a fuss, because she was allowed to discourse in the regular pulpits, have only added to her notoriety, and the consequence is, that she draws crowded houses. Henry Ward Beecher came to the rescue among others, and said her opponents were a set of dumplings, and if St. Paul could have anticipated their existence, he probably would have written a special apostle that would give poor woman a chance everywhere. It was a sermon funny enough to have been produced on the boards of the Theatre Comique.
