THE EASTER MILLINERY

Displays By Salisbury Establishments. Show A Marvelous Variety Of Elegant Designs And New Pattern Enticements. Some Model Hats.

Easter Millinery displays, which as surely herald the advent of Spring as do the singing birds and blooming flowers, have this week engrossed the attention of Salisbury's fair matron and maid. The three millinery establishments here have been wonderfully decorated and beautified in honor of this occasion.

Millinery is now to be ranked among the fine arts, the study of which is most fascinating. There are no cast-iron rules as to one special shade or shape being the only one possible, but there are an infinite number of shades and styles to be had. Fancy straw hats of all kinds and all colors are fashionable this year in the small and large shapes. Flowers of all kinds and descriptions are used as trimmings and queer odd colors in ribbon and flowers are seen on hats made of embroidery and lace.

Mrs. G. W. Taylor.
In addition to Mrs. Taylor's elegant display a week ago, she has this week renewed her opening and has shown a full line of the latest models. Her decorations produce a very pleasing effect, the lattice work in the rear being entwined and covered with roses in all the dainty and vivid colorings. The windows are arranged in green and white while here are displayed hats of soft dainty white materials whose trimmings contain touches of green, either in foliage of stems.

Among the smartest models was a hat composed entirely of richly shaded foliage and maline, square crown and flaring brim. The only trimming was a bit of white ribbon and a cluster of white flowers at side. A turban in the new and peculiar shape is completely covered, brim and crown, with roses in a beautiful shade of pink. The trimming is a large pink plume falling gracefully over side.

Mrs. Lowenthal.
At Lowenthal's the millinery window presents a handsome appearance in vividly colored trimmings and quantities of French flowers, foliage and picture hats. In the millinery room green and white predominate in the decorations, with here and there a palm or plant to complete the effect. The line of models displayed was most complete and visitors were lavish with expressions of admiration.

A pretty hat with pink rose crown had a brim formed with successive rows of plaited lace, the outer row rippling over edge of the brim. A touch of black velvet ribbon looped at the back and a small cluster of roses nestling on the under brim of chiffon completed the hat. Another striking design was of black horse-hair braid and maline mingled with gilt. The trimming was a handsome black plume at side and gathered lace hanging at back caught with gilt ornaments.

R. E. Powell & Co.
Thursday and Friday were Opening days at the large department store of R. E. Powell & Co., and in spite of the disagreeable weather crowds of visitors kept coming and going.

The store was very artistically decorated for the occasion and all the new styles so dear to the feminine heart were on display. The interior decorations were of vari-colored draperies and potted plants. The west window devoted to the millinery art, represented a summer house, the preeminent colors being green and white. Several handsomely trimmed hats were displayed in this window, while the other contained the newest styles of dress goods, silks and trimmings.

The following hats were among those greatly admired by the visitors: A Gainsborough of white horse-hair braid and maline turned high on left side, with undertrimming of white lilies and scarf of white maline hanging from right side. A torpedo shaped turban made of lilacs and green foliage with facing of lavender maline. A large hat of pink pompadour braid with underbrim made in squares and trimmed on top with pink rosette bows and a white plume shading to champagne, coming from right side and falling low over the back.

Great Ovation To Pastor.
Undoubtedly one of the greatest ovations ever given to a local minister was that tendered to the Rev. H. S. Dulany of Asbury M. E. Church, who preached his farewell sermon last night.

As if wishing to give a final demonstration of the esteem in which they held their pastor, the congregation packed the church to its utmost capacity. It is estimated that there were fully eighteen hundred persons in the church while as many as seven hundred were turned away.—Morning News, (Wilmington, Del.) March 28.

FIRST ISSUE OF "TATLER"

Comprehensive School Book Soon To Be Issued By The Faculty And Students Of The High School. Ample Illustrations, Photos And Sketches.—Interesting Data.

It has been said that wonders will never cease and judging from the actions of the faculty and students of the Salisbury High School we almost arrive at the conclusion they never will. True it is indeed that they have accomplished great things in former years. They have added the laboratory which is very useful in the experimental part of physics; they have secured a magic lantern and a large number of slides which are used in illustrating lessons in literature; they have put in a complete system of electric bells, connecting the different rooms in the High School Building; they have secured a handsome piano which constantly sends forth its joyous peals and causes the old building to resound from floor to rafter with its harmonious melodies of sweet sounds. This and much more they have accomplished but our space is limited and we must hasten on without enumerating them. The reason why we think wonders will never cease, because of the actions of the faculty and students of the High School, is that they have composed a book which was almost as great a task as any of the above mentioned. This book is now being printed and will be ready for distribution within a few weeks. It has been composed entirely by the pupils and faculty and is a very entertaining number. It will be printed on extra quality paper and good ink will be used in printing.

The book has been dedicated to Mr. H. C. Bounds, our present School Examiner for Wicomico County. It will have a beautiful frontispiece which was drawn by school talent and a cut made from it. They have named their book the "TATLER" and a tatter it is for it tells tales out of school, with as much freedom as Robinson Crusoe would pick up shell-fish along the coast of his lonely island. It will contain twenty-four cuts which have been made from the photographs of the different grades, the teachers of the High School, and many others that have in the past or are at present very closely connected with the High School. There will be one cut of Mr. H. C. Bounds and one of each Trowbridge Cantata At The Methodist Episcopal Church Monday Evening.

The Cantata, "The Prince of Jerusalem," by J. Elliot Trowbridge will be given in the main audience room of the Methodist Episcopal Church next Monday evening, April 4th., by a large chorus of trained voices and string instruments under the direction of Prof. W. T. Dashiell. This is a beautiful cantata of 10 numbers, including trios and choruses. Rev. C. A. Hill will give a short talk, explaining the meaning and motives of the different numbers. The fact that it is from the pen of Mr. Trowbridge should be a sufficient guarantee of its quality. In addition to this, there will be other musical selections rendered by local and out of town artists. Some of the best talent of the town is participating in the affair, and a treat is in store for all who may be fortunate enough to hear it.

Absolutely no admission will be charged, as the work was gotten up solely for the entertainment of the people, and all are cordially invited to be present.

THE POPULAR COUNTY CLERK OF THE CITY OF SAN FRANCISCO.

HON. WILLIAM A. DEANE, OF SAN FRANCISCO.

Hon. Wm. A. Deane, Clerk of the city and county of San Francisco, was Chief Deputy in the office of his predecessor during the latter part of his term. He is a Native Son, having been born and raised in the city of San Francisco, and has for many years been prominently identified with the Order of Native Sons of the Golden West, as well as other fraternal organizations. He is an exceptionally popular young man, socially and politically also, as evidenced by the ballots cast at the late election, he having defeated his opponent for the office of County Clerk by nearly 3,000 votes.

In a letter written January 28, 1899, from San Francisco, to Dr. Hartman, Mr. Deane has the following to say of Peruna: The Peruna Medicine Co., Columbus, Ohio.
Gentlemen:—"I would not be without Peruna, as I have found it to be the best remedy for catarrhal complaints that I have ever used. I have tried most all of the so-called catarrh remedies advertised, and can conscientiously say that of all the remedies for catarrhal complaints recommended to me none have been so beneficial as Peruna."—WILLIAM A. DEANE.
CATARRH assumes different phases in different seasons of the year. There is, therefore, four quite well-marked varieties of catarrh. Winter catarrh, spring catarrh, summer catarrh, and autumn catarrh. In each of these varieties the different organs seem to be the principal seat of the catarrh. In the winter the catarrh is more frequent in the head, throat and respiratory organs. In the spring the catarrh seems to chiefly affect the stomach and nervous system. In the summer the bowels and the liver and kidneys seem to be particularly subject to the ravages of catarrh.

Of course it is not meant by this that catarrh is absolutely confined to those parts of the body during the season to which we have assigned them. Catarrh may attack any organ in any season of the year, but the liabilities are so much greater for catarrh to attack particular organs in certain seasons that these four distinct varieties have become recognized. Mr. Robert Douglas, Homeopathic Specialist, cor. 6th and F Sts., N. W., Washington, D. C., in a recent letter to the Peruna Medicine Co., of Columbus, O., has the following to say concerning their noted catarrh remedy, Peruna: "I have been a practicing physician for some years, during which time I have administered Peruna to a number of my patients for colds, catarrh and general debility with great benefit to them. I have paid particular attention to its effects, and I have absolute confidence in its curative qualities, and have no hesitation in giving it a most emphatic endorsement."

Hon. Clement M. Hammond is one of the best known newspaper men in New York City. He was for years editor of one of the principal papers in Hartford, Conn., later was a prominently connected with the New York Recorder and New York World. He has traveled extensively and is known all over the United States for his talent as a newspaper man. Writing to The Peruna Medicine Co., he says:

"For about six years I have had trouble every fall and winter with my voice. At times it has extended to my bronchial tubes and lungs. I think all this trouble came from whooping cough, which I had when I was about twelve years old, and which left me with catarrh. Since I have taken Peruna, my voice has been clearer than in over two years, all of which I am willing to testify to." Mr. Hammond's address is "The Arlington," 64 Montague street, Brooklyn, N. Y.

Peruna is an internal remedy—a scientific remedy for catarrh. It cures catarrh wherever located. It cures last. Peruna gives strength by stopping waste. By saving the mucus it enriches the blood. By cleansing the mucous membranes it preserves the vital forces. No remedy can possibly supply the place of Peruna. Insist upon having Peruna. Take no other remedy. There is no substitute for this catarrh medicine. Send for a free book on catarrh. Address The Peruna Medicine Co., Columbus, Ohio.

There is a quality added to the cake and biscuit by the Royal Baking Powder which promotes digestion. This peculiarity of "Royal" has been noted by physicians, and they accordingly endorse and recommend it. Royal Baking Powder is used in baking by the best people everywhere.

EPITHELIOMA

Covering One Side of Face and Reaching to the Eye

CURED BY CUTICURA

Which Acted Like a Charm After Doctors and Hospitals Failed.

Here is another of those remarkable cures of torturing, disfiguring skin humors daily made by Cuticura Ointment and Soap, after physicians, hospitals and all else had failed.

"I feel it my duty to try to help those suffering from skin diseases. My case was a very bad one, covering all of one side of my face and had reached my eye. I had two or three doctors prescribe without any relief. They said my disease was Epithelioma. I was then advised to go to one of our hospitals, which I did, taking their treatment for some time. I had given up all hope when my husband asked me to try the Cuticura Remedies. My face being in such a very bad state, I used the Cuticura Soap with luke-warm water and a small silk sponge and then applied the Cuticura Ointment. I took one teaspoonful of the Resolvent four times a day. They acted like a charm, and in one week's time my face was cured entirely and has remained so. I certainly can recommend the Cuticura Remedies as infallible."

MRS. A. G. SMITH,
2400 Catherine St., Philadelphia,
Feb. 9, 1903.

"The purity and sweetness, the power to afford immediate relief, the certainty of speedy and permanent cure, the absolute safety and great economy have made Cuticura Remedies the standard skin cure, blood purifier and humor remover of the world."

UNRECOGNIZED SERVICE.

The sunlight falls upon many places where the eyes of multitudes do not behold its beauty. Its fire is kindled upon the tops of lonely mountains. Its beams glisten upon the surface of waters seldom sailed. Its gold is sifted through the foliage of the trackless forest. Its radiance is scattered over the untraveled prairie. Its gems of splendor lie in rich profusion along the sands of the secluded desert.

So, too, are there men and women in the world whose lives are likewise quiet and unobtrusive, but who, nevertheless, in the unnoted spheres in which they live and move and have their being, are blessings, and who wear upon their heads a halo of light for the vision of God. Their names are never spelled out in the type of popular books. Their deeds are never spoken upon the ears of the world's throngs. Their brows are never wreathed with earthly fame. When they shall die, no obituary, blossoming with praise, will breathe fragrance from the columns of great newspapers. No long funeral procession will halt at the door of their late home. No imposing shaft of marble, chiseled with flattering epitaph, will rise towards heaven's blue from their grave. But many of them will be numbered with the kings and queens of eternity, the gates of the city hung wide open for their coronation.

Among this class, we think, may be enrolled a large number of those who follow the profession of teaching, especially those whose field of work is in the public schools. How many of these are estimated at their true value? How many gather the appreciation that is their due? How many are given their just measure of honor? Thousands of these, laboring day and night in a most worthy cause, that cause involving much of sacrifice and mental pain and jaded nerves, pass on down through the years of life with but little recognition of the worth of their service to mankind, some of them contemptuously styled "old maids," and others regarded as "cranks."

What is the work of the public school teacher? It includes something more than the mere tasks of the classroom, although these are hard enough, if many could but know the fact, having never looked "behind the scenes." Higher, however, than the daily routine of the seasons, as the Alps are higher than a hillock of sand, is the ethical and moral instruction that public school teachers impart to the pupils under their care.

We write this with the conviction that those who are called to teach in our public schools ought to be models of politeness and purity. Many of them, we are glad to say, are such. They are beautiful of life. These, going beyond the lessons of the text books, are instilling into young minds the very principles of righteous living, those principles exemplified in themselves and growing from personal experience, having budded and bloomed in the garden of their own hearts. Among the earliest lessons that we received in politeness and virtue were those that fell, like pearls and diamonds, from the lips of our teachers in the public school. Those lessons we have placed in the casket of memory with the gems of parental instruction that fell from lips now silent. No one can get away from early impressions. They follow you to the grave, and on beyond. The fleet-footed years cannot outrun them.

Because of such training in our public schools we live in a better world to day. There are hundreds of children that come from homes in which gentleness of manner and goodness of character are at a discount; and these have caught within the recitation room, presided over by Christian men and women, many a jewel of teaching in ethics and morals for the adornment of life. Thousands of persons, of both sexes, can testify at this hour concerning the worth of the foundation principles of truth, of honesty, of kindness, and of cleanness of tongue that were laid for them by the hands of teachers in the public school.

All honor then to those who are thus dispensing Heaven's graces! Yes; they are unnumbered kings and queens. Their labor of love may not be recognized by the many; but they shall not fail of reward. The sunlight that gilds the solitudes and the waste places of earth, all unseen by the vision of teeming populations, is noted by the eyes of Him Who created its glory. So are those same eyes divine upon Christian teachers everywhere. In the resplendent skies of eternity these shall shine as stars forever.

Thus do we look down the years to-day, and recall those of our youth who early taught us how to live aright. Thus also do we speak their praise and with the hope that those who are carrying on the same work now may come to recognition of service.

William Henry Bancroft.

Letter to L. D. Collier.

Dear Sir:—Shuffert Hardware Co. Hickory, N. C. bought a car load of paint; after selling it a few months, found out it measured seven pints a gallon.

Returned it to the maker and credited customers with what they had lost from short measure.

What do you think of a short-measure paint? Don't you think it half white-wash? Half the paints are pure white-wash.

Go by the name; Devoe lead and zinc. No whitening or clay in that; full-measure whites. A gallon Devoe is worth two of white-wash paint.

Yours truly,
F. W. Devoe & Co.

Capt. John Long an old veteran has resigned his position at the Fenwick Life Saving Station and on the first of April will return to the more comfortable mode of living as a private gentleman. Capt. Long has buffeted many storms and raging seas during the past twenty-three years and no doubt will know how to appreciate the home life of ease and gratitude. The Captain was in Berlin, Wednesday, greeting old friends.

An syndicate of wealthy Philadelphians is discussing the formation of a new country club on the old E. P. Timmons estate, on the Chester pike. A lease of the property has been obtained by Clarence Wolf, of the firm of Wolf Brothers, and the plans for the formation of the club are well under way. The estate which the syndicate proposes to utilize is one of the most picturesque in Chester county. Experts who have looked over the property declare a golf course could be laid out that would rival in attractiveness any other in the vicinity of Philadelphia.

Whiskey and Beer Habit

PERMANENTLY CURED BY "ORRINE,"

ABSOLUTELY SAFE, SURE AND HARMLESS.

Physicians pronounce drunkenness a disease of the nervous system, creating a morbid craving for a stimulant. Continued indulgence in whiskey, beer or wine eats away the stomach lining and stupifies the digestive organs, thus destroying the digestion and ruining the health. No "will power" can heal the inflamed stomach membranes.

"ORRINE" permanently removes the craving for liquor by acting directly on the affected nerves, restoring the stomach and digestive organs to normal conditions, improving the appetite and restoring the health. Can be given secretly if desired.

Cure Effect or Money Refunded.

Ask your druggist when you know what he thinks of ORRINE; he will endorse our statements as truthful in every respect. If ORRINE fails to cure we will refund you every penny paid for it as cheerfully as we took it.

No Sanitarium Treatment or Publicity!

No Absence from home or loss of time! Mothers, wives and sisters, you cannot cure those who are afflicted with this most terrible of all diseases by your fervent prayers, or eyes red with tears, nor by your hope that they may stop drinking. It can be done only with ORRINE. You have the remedy—will you use it? If you desire to cure without the knowledge of the patient, buy ORRINE No. 1; if the patient desires to be cured of his own free will, buy ORRINE No. 2. Full directions found in each package. Price $1 per box.

We will gladly furnish a treatment free of cost to any physician who will demonstrate that Orrine is a positive specific for drunkenness.

A TRUE LOVER.

How Little Francois Discover ed and Realized His Mission.

We met Francois in Paris one winter, when we, my college friend, Fanny Richards, and I were studying painting. We boarded in the Latin quarter, in a small and very unhappy private family, whose quarrels were an open secret all up and down the staircase of the apartment house in which they lived.

Madame had a grievance against monsieur, and monsieur said that it was all the fault of madame, and our reticent New England souls were shocked and dismayed by their volubility and frankness.

Francois was the son of the house, a slender, dark-eyed lad of ten years, gentle, old-fashioned, courteous, a little link of love binding together the dead hearts of his father and mother. They adored him, but his life was none the easier for that reason.

Sometimes he would take the part of one, sometimes the part of the other; but more often he would retire from the war of words, and sitting in our armchair, with his chin in his hand, his eyes staring into the fire, would analyze for us, with a thoughtfulness and precision beyond his years, the failings and virtues of his parents. And he was curiously just and generous to both of them.

It is needless to say that we took pains at such times to divert the conversation into more childlike and less personal channels. Miss Richards was a charming story teller, and she usually cut short Francois' mournful remarks with some tale of true love and lovers. He was particularly fond of old myths, and the story of Cupid and Psyche, or of Persephone, would make him forget all his own troubles.

His manner toward Miss Richards was very touching. He was her little guide and shadow through the streets of Paris. The latter part of the winter he almost lived in our rooms when he was not at school, but he was never in the way.

I can see Francois now, a slim little figure, in the belted blouse of the French schoolboy, standing silently at Miss Richards' knee, gazing adoringly into her pretty face, while she and I discussed, in that difficult English language the mysteries of which Francois was just beginning to penetrate, the advisability of another new gown.

But the winter came to an end, and Francois, watching us pack our trunks, was a very sad little boy.

The day before our departure, when we were exchanging parting gifts, his mother gave Miss Richards a pin-cushion, which she had made, I think, as an expression of gratitude for Miss Richards' kindness to the child.

Francois picked up the gay, scented thing, and held it against his cheek.

"I wish I were this pin-cushion," he said.

"Why?" laughed Miss Richards. "Because then I should go across the great water and live with you always."

"Dear little Francois, how I shall miss you!" sighed Miss Richards, kissing the child's wistful face.

"When I am a man I shall marry you," continued the child, gravely. Miss Richards smiled. "But," Francois, she explained, "when you are a man I shall be an old woman, gray and wrinkled."

Laying his hand upon hers, and looking solemnly into her eyes, he said:

"Mademoiselle Richards, when the presence of another gives such a feeling of peace in the heart as your presence gives to me, age matters nothing."

"For a moment there was silence, then I heard Miss Richards say softly: 'My Francois, you do not know as well the meaning of love must teach other men its meaning. You must be a presence of peace in this house. You must be a peace-maker. Do you understand? Your place is here.'"

"My place is here," he said, thoughtfully, and then, "I see. Love must not go where there is already peace; it must stay in the unhappy places and make them peaceful."—From Ireland's Own.

Timely Help in Accidents.

The Philadelphia and Reading Railroad Company has made a practical beginning in having its employes instructed in preliminary methods of attending people injured in accidents. The management is most enthusiastic over its experiment. And well it may be. It has taken a step which should have been taken long since. Railroad employes, if properly instructed, can aid much in relieving the sufferings of injured people immediately after accidents have occurred. They are invariably the first on the spot. They are, as a rule, practical, strong and intelligent men. By following the right sort of methods they will prove of great assistance to physicians. They can easily be taught to attend to simple fractures, to alleviate suffering, and even to administer the necessary medicine in certain cases.

When accidents occur, it is promptness of help which counts the most. In the majority of cases, it takes several hours before needed surgical treatment can be obtained. Such a delay often entails the loss of life or limb which could have been saved by prompt assistance. It is to be hoped that other railroad corporations will deem it expedient to follow the example set by the Philadelphia and Reading. Their own interests, if not purely humane considerations, should urge them to do.—St. Louis Mirror.

AMONG THE RUINS.

"I have a perfect horror or ruins," said pretty little Mme. Crozier, shuddering, when an excursion to Arques was proposed. "And it is not mere nervousness that makes me feel so. No, it is a real memory, a memory of what I once lived through, that justifies my horror. Listen and judge for yourselves."

"I was eighteen years old when my father bought the old De Crayon place. The house was modern, but close by, on our lands and a little higher up on the cliff stood the old fortress castle of the lords of De Crayon, with its ruined but still frowning towers. Several of my friends and relations, and among them Pierre Crozier, to whom I was then engaged, came to visit us for our house-warming. It was a very happy week. Toward the last, one beautiful moonlight evening, when we were all tired of dancing, I suggested for a change that we go and visit the ruins."

"The proposition was accepted with much enthusiasm, and ten minutes later, warmly wrapped, and carefully admonished by our several mothers and fathers who were absorbed in their game of whist, we started two by two toward the cliff along a hollow way so thickly shaded that the moonlight could scarcely filter through. Behind us and before us, in the darkness, were soft noises of whisperings and little bursts of laughter. Suddenly, emerging from the dark path, we came out into the cold, bright moonlight on the top of the cliff, a bare and desolate place. Towering before us, rose the tragic outline of the feudal ruin, cutting the fleecy clouds into strange, fantastic shapes. Its breaches and loopholes, like blind, sightless eyes, seemed to stare forth at the infinite distance of the sky and sea.

"Although surrounded by a merry, laughing group, I suddenly felt oppressed with an indelible impression of loneliness and sorrow. When we entered the shadow of the gigantic walls I shivered with cold. Pierre and his comrades joked laughingly upon the lords of De Crayon with so much eagerness that I grew uneasy, as if we were intruders and some invisible enemy was listening to our talk. One young girl hoisted piercingly like an owl, and I trembled as if at a presentiment of peril or misfortune. They made fun of me, but although I realized the foolishness of my fears, I could not drive them away. We sat down inside what must once have been the dining-hall, and there the fellows produced some cakes and wine that they had brought with them, carefully hidden beneath their capes. After our impromptu feast some one proposed a game of hide and seek among the ruins as a fitting end of our escapade; and Pierre, whose lot it was, blindfolded his eyes and began to count, while we scattered gaily in groups of two or three. One of my cousins dragged me away with her, and we took refuge in the deep shadow of a large, fluted portal. For a moment there were sounds of scurrying feet and low laughter, and then all was silent. Pierre uncovered his eyes and started to determine for our portal that I suspected him of having peeped."

"Here he came!" Look! Let us hide somewhere he'll whisper my companion.

"We drew back beneath the archway until suddenly she stumbled against something.

"Steps! what! look! she murmured; 'come on, climb up behind me!'"

"It was a spiral staircase, winding about in total darkness. Pierre's footsteps sounded nearer. Filled with the excitement of the game and fearing nothing so much as being caught, I climbed up and up until I was forced to pause for breath. I could hear nothing above me, not below me, and so far as I could tell from feeling, I seemed to be upon a narrow stair-head.

"Thinking that my cousin was there just in front of me, I gave a real along a sort of corridor, calling to her in a whisper, and then, getting no response, in a louder tone. The silence frightened me. I thought which I later found to be true, that in my haste I had gone past the little landing where she had taken refuge. I tried to go back, but in my growing anxiety, I seemed to do nothing but keep going round and round myself. It made no difference what direction I took I could not find the stairs. The wall I followed seemed to have no end. I was lost.

"I began to call, but my voice only started such heavy, gloomy echoes that I trembled and was silent. Then I lost my head. I rushed wildly up and down the long gallery, beating the wall frantically to find some means of escape. At last I stood still in a stupor of anguish, my mind filled with spectral visions and images of murder. Suddenly behind me I heard a soft noise, very light, almost a gliding sound, the soft rubbing against the wall of some invisible beast or person. This was the crowding touch to my terror. I tried to run from it, still following the wall, but suddenly it seemed to disappear beneath my hand, and I felt a sort of nook or corner into which I crowded myself blindly. The mysterious noise was very near then; I crouched in the back of the little corner, drawing back as if I could draw back into the wall itself, when a horrible fear took possession of me, the wall really gave way before my touch, opened and turned upon itself and then closed with a heavy groan and shoulder as I lost consciousness and fell back into the plucky darkness."

"When I opened my eyes again it was day. I was lying stretched upon the grass, wrapped in many shawls, and, had it not been for the pale, anxious faces that were bending over me, I should have thought I was just waking from a frightful dream. As I tried to move, a sharp pain ran through my arm, and I fainted again. It was not until several days later that I learned the ending of my tragic adventure. After calling and seeking vainly for me for half an hour, my companions hastened to warn the people at the house and in the village. They came back armed with lanterns, picks, ropes and ladders.

"Pierre held to it obstinately that I must be somewhere near the stair-way up which he had seen me run, but although they hunted up and down and forward and back, they could not find a trace of me. They thought my poor fate would go crazy, and when the dawn began to break they deserted that part of the ruins to hunt among the cellars. I should have been dead now, lost in the thickness of that great wall, if Pierre, moved by love's miraculous intuitions, had not thought of examining the wall from the outside. For the hundredth time he was looking mournfully up at the implacable stones, when he saw a cat, emerging from some crack or crevice, disappear below in disordered leaps and jumps. I never knew whether this animal, which had frisked me so, had made its home in that little chamber or had fallen there at the same time I did.

"Pierre called the people, and ladders were brought, and he himself climbed up and discovered, beneath the arch, skillfully hidden in the stonework, a little window. They soon made it larger, and it was through this that they gained entrance to the tiny secret chamber where I lay senseless and hurt. As for trying to find the joint and pivot of the door of the secret trap whose mechanism I had by chance stumbled upon, it was impossible. The memory of that terrible night remained too confused and troubled for me to have any clear idea of what I did.

"My arm was not long in healing, and, when, three months later, I laid it upon Pierre's as we walked to the altar, it had ceased to trouble me at all. In spite of the fact that they hastened my happiness, I can feel no longing but horror for ruins of any kind, and I shudder in particular."

THE BEST FEEDS FOR SWINE.

Wheat Ground in a Mixture with Corn Most Valuable. The following regarding feeds for swine is credited to Prof. W. A. Henry: Among the grains ground wheat has been found to have the same feeding value as ground corn. Generally speaking, a bushel of wheat will produce twelve pounds of pork. Wheat for hogs should be ground and fed moistened either with water or milk. Dry whole wheat has not been fed satisfactorily. Even when soaked, a large percentage of the grain passes through the hogs and appears unbroken in the droppings. The best results have been obtained where wheat has been fed ground in a mixture with ground corn.

Ground barley has proved about 8 per cent. less valuable for producing gain in hogs five to fourteen months old than ground corn. Pilsen barley meal most when soaked in a comparatively large amount of water, at least three pounds of water to each pound of meal. Barley is thought especially desirable for growing hogs and to add variety to the ration. Oats in the proportion of one-third ground oats to two-thirds cornmeal have been fed with good results. Whole oats scattered thinly on the floor is reported excellent for brood sows when maintenance and not rapid gain is desired. Sorghum-suet meal fed wet had a feeding value of about 55 per cent. of that of cornmeal. Hogs maintained themselves and made some gain on sorghum strip skimmings alone. When fed with cornmeal good gains were made.

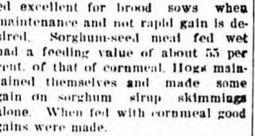

Hogs did no well on pigeon-grass seed alone, but on one-third pigeon-grass to two-thirds cornmeal they made nearly as good gains as on cornmeal alone. When pigeon-grass seed was cooked, it appeared more palatable to pigs than when fed raw. When so prepared it appeared more palatable to pigs than when fed raw. Better gains were made on a ration of two-thirds cooked pigeon-grass seed and one-third cornmeal than on cornmeal alone.

A Sure-Fit Jolly.

Mr. Smithers—So you want to marry my daughter, eh? What are your prospects?

Mr. Smaugus—Well, I expect to marry into one of the oldest and best families in the city, and my father-in-law will be one of the most prominent, intelligent and influential men in the country.

Mr. Smithers—Take her my boy, and make her happy.

Mrs. Rosa Adams, niece of the late General Roger Hanson, C. S. A., wants every woman to know of the wonders accomplished by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:—I cannot tell you with pen and ink what good I felt in taking your Vegetable Compound. I was suffering from the ill effects of the sex, extreme lassitude and that all gone feeling. I would rise from my bed in the morning, feeling more tired than when I went to bed, but before I had used two bottles of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, I began to feel the buoyancy of my younger days returning. I could do more work and not feel tired than I had ever been able to do before, so I continued to use it until I was restored to perfect health. It is indeed a boon to sick women and I heartily recommend it. Yours very truly, Mrs. Rosa Adams, 819 12th St., Louisville, Ky.

Any woman who is troubled with irregular or painful menstruation, weakness, leucorrhoea, displacement or ulceration of the womb, that bearing-down feeling, inflammation of the ovaries, back-ache, general debility, and nervous prostration, should know there is one tried and true remedy, Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. No other medicine for women has received such wide-spread and unqualified indorsement. No other medicine has such a record of female cures.

DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:—I am very pleased to recommend Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound for womb and ovarian difficulties from which I have been a sufferer for years. It was the only medicine which was all beneficial, and within a week after I started to use it, there was a great change in my feelings and looks. I used it for a little over three months, and at the end of that time I suffered no pain at the menstrual period, nor was I troubled with those distressing pains which compelled me to go to bed, and I have not had a headache since. This is nearly a year ago. I always keep a bottle on hand, and take a few doses every week, for I find that it tones up the system and keeps me feeling strong, and I never have that tired out feeling any more.

I certainly think that every woman ought to try this grand medicine, for it would prove its worth. Yours very truly, Miss Eliza Dalton, 308 De Soto St., Memphis, Tenn.

LEGISLATION FOR VOTE ON LIQUOR QUESTION.

The matter of a vote, or prohibition without a vote, which has been the paramount question before the Public in Salisbury and Delmar districts, since the present Legislature convened, has been settled in favor of a vote on April 26. So far, the history of this fight has been a very interesting one. It started in the summer of 1902 by the temperance people petitioning for a vote on the question. This was granted, and an election was held at the Congressional election in which the temperance cause won in this district by a majority of 52.

REPUBLICAN PARTY AND POSTOFFICE SCANDALS.

The Republican party in Congress last week did its utmost to make a disgraceful record for itself. That this record will be exhibited on every platform, at every cross-roads, during the coming campaign, goes without saying. What it has done is to refuse by a strict party vote to investigate the Postoffice Department—that breeding-burrow of scandal and corruption. In voting not to investigate the frauds or punish the boodle-smashers the Republicans do not by any means deny their existence; they only deny the expediency of letting in any more light.

ed (five in the House and three in the Senate) would have been wholly in the hands of Republicans. They declared that it was "not germane"—their real objection, of course, being that it was altogether too germane. John Sharp Williams, the Democratic leader, eloquently pleaded for investigation. "The only way we can secure honesty in the Postoffice Department," he declared, "is by the gentleman withdrawing his point of order or by the House marching over it bodily. The people of the United States are greater than Congress, and they demand an investigation of the rottenness. 'O, won't you,' he pleaded, 'do something to keep the great body of American citizenry from believing that the Postoffice Department is infamous.' No; they would not do any such thing, and they did not. The House decided not to investigate—99 Democrats to 183 Republicans. General Grosvenor, O., had declared that to investigate the scandal "would be a reflection upon the dignity of the House." A curious notion of dignity!

League Passes Resolutions Against Vote On Liquor Traffic In Salisbury and Delmar Districts.

Whereas, There are pending in the Legislature of Maryland two petitions from Salisbury and Delmar Election Districts, one of which asking for direct legislation repealing the license law for the said districts, the other asking for the amendment of the Local Option Law to submit the matter to a vote at the general election every four years upon a petition of a majority of the voters:

Resolved, That this meeting repudiates any law as a temperance measure which submits the question to a vote in the said Districts, and regards such a law in the interest of the liquor traffic, and we therefore prefer no legislation to such a law. That it is unfair to burden the county with the expense of an election, and the promoters of temperance and good morals with the responsibilities of a campaign in order to defeat a business which the people have said they do not want; hence we condemn the passage of any law submitting the question of a vote in Salisbury and Delmar Election Districts as an act over-riding the will of the people, expressed both by petitions as well as by a vote.

The foregoing resolutions were adopted at a mass meeting held in the Court House, Tuesday Evening, March 29th, 1904, under the auspices of the Anti-Saloon League, and copies were ordered to be sent to the Representatives of the House and Senate, and the papers of the town were requested to print the same.

WM. J. DOWNING, Chairman. GEO. R. HITCH, Secretary.

Salisbury is to have a first class Ice Cream plant. A company has been formed and the machinery is being set up. The plant will be located on the premises formerly occupied by Mr. F. W. Shivers, adjoining the factory of the Crystal Ice Co. It is the purpose of the concern to manufacture ice cream and ices of all kinds for the trade and for family purposes, weddings and parties. Can be supplied with fancy mould work, etc. This is a long felt want and we wish them success. Mr. J. D. Price is the president of the Company and Mr. Geo. W. Collins, general manager. They expect to be in operation, we understand, in about a week.

Mr. Benj. T. Booth has sold his house and lot, corner Elizabeth Street and Railroad Avenue to Mr. G. F. Elliott, of New Church, Va., for $1000. Mr. William B. Smitten has bought the "Elliott Farm" which was recently sold to Mr. Everett J. Lyon, of Ann Arbor, Mich. This property is situated about one mile from Salisbury on the proposed new river road. Mr. Smitten contemplates making extensive improvements preparatory to his future occupancy. The sales were made through the R. Frank Williams, Real Estate Agency.

Conscience is one of the worst loggers to have in your house; when he gets quarrelsome there is no abiding with him, ill at lying down and equally troublesome at rising up. A guilty conscience is one of the curses of the world; it puts out the sun and takes away the brightness from the moonbeam. A guilty conscience casts a noxious exhalation through the air, removes the beauty from the landscape, the glory from the flowing river, the majesty from the rolling floods. There is nothing beautiful to the man who has a guilty conscience.—Spurgeon.

Mr. F. Leonard Wallis, of the University of Maryland is spending the Easter holidays at home. Mr. Wallis is a student of law at the University, taking the entire three years in one. In spite of this heavy handicap of three in one, Mr. Wallis has succeeded in ranking among the first in all classes.

THE MAN WITH A HOE.

Flat spreading weeds such as parsley or pig weed do little or no damage to the soil and in an arid region or chard may be of positive benefit by shading the ground and preventing the surface from baking.

White skinned onions will be injured by the sun if grown on top of the ground as recommended for other kinds. When they begin to bulb out cover lightly with earth and they may be grown as nicely as any kind and will be of clear white color.

It takes only a little time to brand the tools about the place and it may save a good deal of trouble some time when a neighbor happens to borrow something and forgets to bring it back. A little awkward home painting on old tools also sometimes helps to identify them and it certainly does no harm.

It is not advisable to let a colt follow its mother to the field, to town and the like. It is better off in a clean well ventilated box stall or covered corral. Work can be done more conveniently if the colt is not running with its dam in the field. However the mare must not be kept from it long at first.

A new style walking cultivator to my mind possesses some points of excellence. It is made with a double arch, the tongue is bolted, thus holding the tongue firmly in place without using the usual brace rods. It is provided with coil springs, adjustable arch and at no time is there any weight on the horses' necks. This can be said of very few others.

Ordinarily in this country the capillary power of the ground counts for much. In order to reconquer the little capillary pores or tubes that bring moisture up from below in a dry time the tilled portion of the land must be thoroughly pulverized and pressed down in close contact with the subsoil. If the surface is packed hard the moisture will escape and the ends of the tubes must be kept closed by frequent surface stirring.—Field and Farm.

Jerusalem Artichokes. There is a widespread idea among farmers that Jerusalem artichokes have very little nutriment that hogs can make use of. Potatoes, rutabagas and pumpkins are much better known to farmers than artichokes, and as hogs fatten on more potatoes. Now let us compare those. Rutabagas have a total of nutriment of 2.5 per cent.; potatoes, 17.5 per cent.; pumpkins, 7.5 per cent.; artichokes, 19.3 per cent. Artichokes have twice as much protein as either pumpkins or rutabagas, and more than twice as much as potatoes; also more carbohydrates and fat than potatoes; twice as much as rutabagas and nearly three times as much as pumpkins. Besides these facts, artichokes are three times as easily grown as either of the others. Good sandy loam suits them best, though they will grow and produce large yields on almost any kind of land. Plant like Irish potatoes, though not quite so deep—four inches is deep enough. Cultivate shallow, and the "chokes" will do the rest.—Farm and Ranch.

Improvement in Building Barb Wire Fences.

In building barb wire fence some put the top wires on the outside and the bottom wires on the inside of the inclosure. A better plan is to have half the posts set with the required wires on the outside of the field, and the other posts on the inside of the inclosure, thus having alternate posts on either side of the wires. This is superior to the common practice of setting all the posts in a straight line. The former method serves to prevent the wires being pushed off from either side.

Every show animal has a constitutional limit and the shepherd that knows when that limit is reached is master of his calling.

Show sheep of different breeds require different treatment, and it is important that the shepherd knows the temperament of each individual.

Strong Testimonial for Climax Plants.

Baltic, N. C. March 25, 1904. Oscar L. Morris, Salisbury, Md. Dear Sir:—The 10,000 Climax Strawberry plants were received on the 21st., in good condition and are the finest plants I ever saw.

Yours truly, D. B. FAISON.

Spring Medicine
There is no other season when good medicine is so much needed as in the Spring.
The blood is impure, weak and impoverished—a condition indicated by pimples and other eruptions on the face and body, by deficient vitality, loss of appetite, lack of strength, and want of animation.
Hood's Sarsaparilla has been used in our family for some time, and always with good results. Last spring I was all run down and got a bottle of it, and as usual received great benefit. Miss BEULAH BORER, Stowe, Vt.
Hood's Sarsaparilla promises to cure and keeps the promise.

Are You Prepared For Easter Sunday?

If you are not, it is advisable that you delay no longer your purchases for the joyous Easteride. The best clothing and hats sold in Salisbury for the money are sold by Lacy Thoroughgood. This is not a mere advertising claim. It is a statement of facts, proved by the biggest clothing business of the city—bigger than the combined business of any other two stores. It stands to reason that Lacy Thoroughgood would never have achieved such remarkable success unless he can give you something more than you can get elsewhere. Think it over; you'll realize that his wonderful growth could only be due to one thing—his ability to sell better clothing for the money than can be had elsewhere. Lacy Thoroughgood and James Thoroughgood are bubbling over with pride and we're doing some blowing. The why and wherefore of it is our New Spring Clothing, Hats and F.xin's. The fact is that the handsome styles so inflate us with pride that we can't help ourselves, so we bubble. Been in Lacy Thoroughgood's down town store or James Thoroughgood's up town store to see the Spring things? Don't miss the show if you are at all particular what you are going to wear this season or what you are going to pay for it. We are up to the moment on everything and you'll realize it too if you'll drop in for a look around. The clothes you'd like to wear are here waiting for you. Come here with all your wants in Clothes, Hats and Haberdashery.

Talmage Sermon
By Rev. Frank De Witt Talmage, D. D.

Los Angeles, Cal., March 27.—Like a fresh call from the woods, vocal with the songsters of early spring, this sermon urges all to cheerful service and to set the keynote of their lives to high and noble themes. The text is Solomon's Song II, 12, "The time of the singing of the birds is come."

"Do you know what makes the snow-bank disappear in the springtime?" asked a man of poetic temperament. "Why, yes," I answered. "It is due to the heat of the sun being so much stronger now than it is in January. It is due to the fact that, by close contact, Maine and Massachusetts and New York and Michigan are being warmed at the sun's fireside, even as one side of a piece of bread is toasted by being exposed to the kitchen stove's heat while the other side, at that place, remains uncooked." "Oh, no," answered my poetic friend. "The snow disappears not on account of the sun's rays, but because the flames glowing among the feathers of the red-breasted robins have melted them. Have you not noticed, as a rule, the snowflakes never entirely disappear until those harbingers of the summer flowers have stamped them out of existence?"

little daughter cannot answer you. She is dumb. Her tongue has been palsied since she was three years old. We have taken her to the best of doctors, but they all say her case is hopeless. "Merciful heaven!" ejaculated. "What an affliction to fall on so beautiful a child!" And as I looked sympathetically at the bright little creature, so sadly shut out of one of the joys of life, I said to myself, "How thankful ought I to be for the power to sing God's praises and to proclaim the gospel of Christ to my fellow men!" Have you ever thanked God in the springtime for the power of the human voice?

God Bids Us Sing.

Like the song birds, God bids us sing because he has given to us an open heaven in which to sing. It is one thing to have a voice with which to sing, but it is just as essential to have a suitable place in which you can sing. It is one thing to have a musical throat like the song thrush, in which all the silver spirits of the hills and valleys find melodious expression, but it is another thing to have the beautiful voice of the yellow tipped canary hushed into perpetual silence by being domiciled in a dark room or in a dungeon. If a singing bird were compelled to live in a ground mole's tunnel, or to work like the moths with their mouths wrapped up with woolen garments, he would be as dumb as they.

Thank God, then, for your musical throat and for your opportunities for using it. David Glasgow Farragut, one of our most respected commanders in naval history, was born July 5, 1810. With the exception of an engagement in which he participated as a mere boy of thirteen, Farragut never smelled gunpowder in actual battle until he was sixty-one years of age. For nearly fifty long years he walked the ship's deck in times of peace. Had he been retired at sixty years of age from the service American history would have had one of its brightest lights snuffed out before it had had any opportunity to shine. John Milton, in some respects, is the greatest name in English literature. Yet old, blind and neglected by his people, he had to write for posterity because the men of his own time and generation would not listen to his poetic song. Edmund Burke, one of the greatest of the English statesmen of his time, most of his life was practically a statesman without an office, or, if in office, one who held a very subordinate place. So little was he honored by his parliamentary colleagues, that in some respects, he could easily be called the greatest name in English literature. Yet old, blind and neglected by his people, he had to write for posterity because the men of his own time and generation would not listen to his poetic song. of our earth's resurrection, which is emblematic of a heavenly glory. Oh, my friends, like the song birds in the springtime, will you not choose a mighty theme to inspire and uplift your life's music?

The theme! What is the inspiring theme of your life's song? Are you ready to surrender your life to the noble work of the alleviation of physical pain? As Cyrus W. Field, when a young man, consecrated his mental energies to compel the marvels of electric science with lightning rapidity to carry men's messages under the seas, and clinging to that purpose for years and years against obloquy and taunts and sneers, will you, in the same persistent, enthusiastic way, fight to alleviate physical suffering? Will you attune your life to the upliftment of mankind, as John Howard sang his sweet song in convicts' cells, or Florence Nightingale sang her song among the booming guns of the Crimean war? Or will you become Christ's apostle to the gentiles down in the slums, as John Elliot was called the "Apostle to the Massachusetts Indians?" In the old country village meeting house the leader of the choir, before the age of organ or piano, would arise and with a little bar of steel strike the keynote of the song. Every human being has a note by which to start his song. Upon what keynote, O man, are you today starting the music of your life's song? The theme! What is the inspiring, uplifting theme of your life's music?

The Chorus of the Woods.

Again, God bids us, like the song birds, sing because he does not expect us to be soloists, but to take an essential part in a great life's chorus. The true beauty of the song birds' singing is that he carries a part and not a whole day's solitary musical recitation. Like the piccolo, or the clarinet, his voice may be shrill, or like the flute, soft and sweet, or like the bass viol, loud and deep; but whether soft or loud, his voice has a part, an essential part in the chorus of the woods. If you would know how essential the birds' voices are for the musical sweetness of the woods just go with me some day up among the forest covered hills. As we tramp on and the twigs snap under our feet and our voices are tossed in echo from tree to tree the birds scurry away or silently hide behind their curtain of leaves. They act a good deal as do the village children when city people are riding through the country. They run into the house or they keep very quiet. But if you pay no attention to those children they will begin to peek out of the windows or behind the wood house, and then they will gradually come out and watch you as you disappear down the road. Such is the way the feathered musicians of the forest act. When you first enter the woods and call to them to sing they will keep as silent as the grave, but if you lie down at the foot of some giant oak and pretend you are asleep the many voices of the birds will then begin their seemingly endless chorus. First there will be a twitter, then an answering call, then a duet, then a third voice will break in and make the trio. Then off in the distance a woodpecker will beat time, like the drumstick tapping upon the sheepskin. Then a great wave of harmony, like Handel's "Hallelujah Chorus," will roll over you. Then sudden silence. Again the music will start, and a new concert will be masterfully rendered, each bird's voice not much in itself, but each an essential part of the great wood's chorus.

An Inspiration.

It is wonderful to realize how quickly a musical conductor knows when any of his musicians are not doing as they ought to do. I once read of a great orchestra of hundreds of pieces being gathered together. When every musician was doing his part, and the sounds rose and fell like voices of many waters, the piccolo player thought he would stop and see if the leader would miss him. No sooner did he stop than the leader pointed his baton toward the silent man and said, "Play! Play! You are an essential part of the piece. Do you hear me?" "Yes," he said in a loud voice. "The conductor for the salvation of the world, God bids us each to sing and take our part, as each bird of the woods has his singing part. Sing! Sing! Today in Christ's name sing, as the song birds in the springtime. Sing your part in the "Song of Moses and the Lamb."

Like the singing birds, we should not only sing because we have an essential part in God's great chorus, but because each song bird inspires other song birds to sing. A little canary in a room alone may not care to warble. But if it differs when two or three birdies are hanging in the windows through which the sun is shining. Then one bird's note will inspire the other birds to sing. So men and women, singing Christ's songs, will inspire other men and women to sing them. Men and women pray better and offer if they pray together. They love God more when they are united. They make sacrifices for the Master, if they love and serve him in groups, as the little company gathered in the upper chamber, to await the coming of the Holy Ghost. They are more willing to go out into the byways and hedges and carry the gospel to the blind, the deaf, the dumb, the crippled and the poor, if they go forth as Christ sent his disciples, two by two, and not alone. My brother and sister, in God's great chorus of redemption, will you not sing and inspire your neighbors and loved ones to sing also?

In Christ's Name.

During the dark days of the American civil war, after the two opposing armies had been watching each other for months upon the opposite banks of the Potomac river, there came a night of strange song, which will always be remembered by those who were participants in the scene. The moon was shining brightly. The surface of the river was reflecting the lights not only of the campfires of the two armies, but also the starry lights from above. The only sounds to be heard were the going forth of the relief guards and the call of the sentries, "All's well along the Potomac." While the stillness of death seemed to prevail, a northern soldier was writing to his mother. As he wrote he became very homesick for the sight of the old farm. He softly began to sing the words which John Howard Payne wrote when he was a helpless, sick, friendless, lonely exile. He sang the words all Americans have sung a hundred times. As the homesick boy sang the men in the next tent took up the refrain. Then the song went from company to company, regiment to regiment, brigade to brigade, until it leaped across the river, and the Confederate army sang it as well as the Federal army. Then the war hounds, which had been growling in rage and showing their white teeth and tugging at their chains, turned and went into their kennels and lay down to listen to the music.

As that one homesick boy's song found its echo in the song of his company, and in the song of his regiment, and in the song of his army, and in the song of the great host which were lying upon the opposite side of Virginia's bank, shall not our Christ's song inspire others to sing? One bird can make a whole forest sound with inspiring songs. Shall not we inspire those in our homes and stores and churches to sing? Sing in Christ's name. Sing as the song birds sing. Sing as the psalmist bids us sing. "Let everything that hath breath praise the Lord." Sing! Sing! Triumphantly and everlastingly sing. Sing, for the time of the singing of all Christians as well as of birds has come.

Our lives are songs. God writes the words and we set them to music at leisure. And the song is said or the song is glad. As we choose to fashion the measure. We must write the song, whatever the words. Whatever its rhyme or meter. And if it is sad we must sing it glad. And if sweet we must make it sweeter. (Copyright, 1911, by Louis Klopach.)

Dragging Pains

2825 Keeley St., Chicago, Ill., Oct. 2, 1902. I suffered with falling and congested of the womb, with severe pains through the groin. I suffered terribly at the time of menstruation, had blinding headaches and rushing of blood to the brain. What to try I knew not, for it seemed that I had tried all that failed, but I had never tried Wine of Cardui, that blessed remedy for sick women. I found it pleasant to take and soon knew that I had the right medicine. New blood seemed to course through my veins and after using eleven bottles I was a well woman.

Wine of Cardui

Mrs. Bush is now in perfect health because she took Wine of Cardui for menstrual disorders, bearing down pains and blinding headaches when all other remedies failed to bring her relief. Any sufferer may secure health by taking Wine of Cardui in her home. The first bottle convinces the patient she is on the road to health.

Beautiful thought that!

Beautiful thought that! Beautiful to think that the winged fore-runner of the spring, the chirping robin, should be carrying around with him a brazier filled with burning coals, as the ancient kings used to do when they traveled, and everywhere he alights he changes the white snow bank of winter into the white snow bank of apple blossoms. But whether the snow disappears on account of the coming of the robins or the robins come as the messengers of spring, merely because the snow is disappearing, it is not in our province to discuss. We want to take for granted the one overwhelming fact that spring is here. And as spring is here and the time of the singing of the birds for New York and Michigan and Montana and Dakota has come, we want to tell why the birds sing and why we, as God's children, should also become his singing disciples. We would today take our text from the book of nature as well as from the book of Holy Writ.

Like the Song Bird.

First, like the song bird, God bids us sing because he has given to us musical throats with which to sing. As the brown thrush or the redbird or the nightingale is able to lift his voice in treble or falsetto or lullaby or cantata or serenade, God, by anatomical construction of the throat, has made it possible for us to sound forth musical notes in his name. He has not disconnected our windpipes from the great bellows of the lungs. He has not had us born with palsied tongue, or with deaf ears. But as God has placed in the larynx of every singing bird's throat a thin membrane, so he has stretched over the end of almost every human being's windpipe a fibrous, elastic tissue which will vibrate as we attempt to sing or speak. We ought, one and all, to be grateful that God has given to us anatomically a musical throat with which we can sing his praises. Thank God today for the power of the speaking throat. We are all ready to acknowledge our indebtedness to him for the blessings of the eye. If you are not, then read that wonderful story written by the most famous of living English authors. The noted opera artist who is growing blind, and who works at his last canvas, then the dark cloud of total obstruction falls upon him. His friends leave him one by one for the Egyptian war. He sits in his room alone, an object of pity, until at last, crazed by horror, he starts for the front and is there mercifully shot by an Arab's bullet. Sight! Oh, yes, with every glorious sunrise, with every architecture of frost upon window pane, with every masterpiece of autumn foliage, with every walk over country hills or through city street, we are all ready to say: "Thank God for two eyes!" Thank God for the windows of the soul!

Power of the Human Voice.

Not only for visual, but for auditory, organs are we also thankful. If the sounding board of one of our eardrums is in any way diseased we guard the other ear more carefully than we do our jewel boxes or our securities, which we place in the safety vaults. We never let our well ear become over-relied by the diseased or register. We never in a railroad train let the draft blow upon it through opened windows. At the least sign of disturbance then away we rush to the specialist to have it treated and cared for by the best of auralists. Ah, yes, we all appreciate the blessings of the ear. But how many of us appreciate the blessings of the voice? How many of us have in the past thanked God that we can sing his praises as the birds can change every tree branch into a choir left in the temple of the woods? How many of us are ready to thank God for this wonderful instrument of human voice, which can laugh out our joys and sob out our sorrows and make men know the thoughts that are lodging for a while under the domes of our foreheads and the loves that are billowing and cooling in the silent retreats of our hearts?

I never realized so much what the blessing of the human voice meant as the other day, when a lady and gentleman from the east, with their little daughter, called upon me. The child had a beautiful face. She was as lovely a young girl as I ever saw. While we were talking she would watch us closely and sympathetically smile when we smiled. But though she smiled she never laughed. At last I turned and addressed a sentence directly to her. With that a shadow flitted across the mother's countenance as she said: "My

Our Opportunities.

In all probability there are few of us here who have not our opportunities. When the American fleet was about to enter Manila harbor some one proposed to the American commodore that the coal barges be sent ahead. If there were any hidden mines in the harbor it was better to have piles of coal blown skyward than human bodies. To that advice Commodore Dewey said: "No; the Olympia shall go in first. For two reasons do I make this decision. First, we need the coal. If defeated and the coal ships are destroyed we are lost. Second reason, I have waited thirty years for this opportunity, and no man shall take it away from me." Commodore Dewey may have had to wait thirty years for his opportunity, but we do not have to wait one month, one week or one day or one hour to serve Christ. Today our opportunity is here. Like the song birds, we have musical throats with which to sing, and we also have the open heaven under which to sing. We have the talent and also the opportunity to use the talent.

Choose a Mighty Theme.

What is true of painting and sculpture is also true of music. Beethoven and Wagner and Mendelssohn and Handel did not employ their genius in a street dirge. They trained their ears to catch the voices of the winds, which can only be heard upon the heights of Mount Olympus. They called their oratorios by the mighty names of "The Messiah," "The Deluge," "The Prodigal Son," "The Light of the World," "Samson," "Saul," "Ezra," "Joshua," "Elijah," "Paul," "Jephthah," "Israel in Egypt," "The Creation," "The Woman of Samaria." So our singing birds in their oratorios have glorious themes to sing about. Their song is the resurrection. They sing of the bursting seeds and the issue of aving flowers. They sing of the winter which is gone and the harvests which are to come. They sing of the sheep which are growing the wool that the little children may have warm clothing to defy the December blasts and of the sap giving life to the trees that the great logs may be rolled into the old fashioned fireplaces around which the families can gather about its glow and learn the lessons of love. They sing of the open harbor and the king's ships going to Tarshish to come back laden with gold and silver and ivory and the wealth of foreign climes. They

LOCAL Correspondence

NEWS FROM ALL SECTIONS OF WICOMICO SENT IN BY THE ADVERTISER'S REPRESENTATIVES.

DELMAR.

Rev. G. L. Hardesty arrived Wednesday to take up his new charge as pastor of the Whitesville church.

Mr. R. L. Holliday, of Clayton, was in town Tuesday.

Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Sipple, of Laurel, visited Mr. and Mrs. E. J. Nelson recently.

Miss Fannie Oneal has been visiting Mrs. Joseph Rostin at Cape Charles.

Mr. Marion Foskey, of Philadelphia, spent Sunday with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. D. H. Foskey.

Mr. H. D. Renninger spent Monday in Pocomoke.

Miss Hettye Renninger has returned from a several weeks visit to her sister, Mrs. W. P. Freeny, in Baltimore.

Mr. William T. Siman spent Monday in Philadelphia.

Isaac Williams was in Wilmington Monday.

Miss Ferd Grasseler, of Philadelphia, has been the guest of her sister, Mrs. George M. Barr.

Daniel B. White and A. Harland Elliott spent Sunday with friends in Whitesville.

Rev. T. R. VanDyke, formerly pastor of the M. E. Church at Whitesville, left Tuesday for his charge at Tangier.

Misses Crystal and Sallie Horsey, near Laurel, have been the guests of their grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. M. M. Hill.

Miss Etha Smith has been visiting Mrs. Ananias Hearn.

Miss Caroline Young, of Martinsburg, W. Va., has again returned to Delmar as trimmer for Miss Elizabeth Hughes.

Mr. and Mrs. Jos. Lowe have been visiting relatives in town.

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Elliott have returned to their home in Bloomtown, Va., after spending some time with relatives here.

Mr. and Mrs. E. W. Cordrey, and daughter and son, are visiting relatives in Baltimore and Sparrows Point, Md.

Mr. W. H. Cannon returned Wednesday from Wilmington.

Mr. and Mrs. John G. Jones, of Wilmington, are visiting Mr. and Mrs. Levin Hastings.

Mrs. W. B. Elliott has been confined to her home by illness this week.

Mrs. S. J. Hitchens and Mrs. Sarah Hitchens were the guests of relatives in Laurel Wednesday.

Mr. Linwood R. Williams, of Washington, is spending a few days with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. A. C. Williams.

Elder H. C. Ker of Middletown, N. Y., has been the guest of relatives in town this week.

The P. B. W. R. R. Company will, in all probability, place a watchman at the railroad crossing at the mill of the Delmar Lumber Co., as a safeguard to teams. This has been for a long time a dangerous point for horses to cross as it is impossible to see the trains on account of the buildings in the locality, and they can not be heard owing to the noise of the mill. A watchman is badly needed, and it is to be hoped the arrangements will soon be made.

The P. B. & W. R. R. is already making arrangements to comply with the requirements of the "Jim Crow" car law recently passed by the Maryland Legislature. The law goes into effect July 1st. It is thought that partitioning cars for whites and blacks will comply with the law, as the car would then be in two separate parts.

Mr. Fooks, of Salisbury, has succeeded Mr. Arthur Ellis as book-keeper for the Delmar Lumber Mfg. Co.

Dame Rumor says that we are to have one or two marriages soon.

The Messick, Wilson Co., have been shipping large quantities of canned goods this week.

Mrs. Charles Hickman and children have moved to Wilmington, where Mr. Hickman has a position with Jackson Sharp Co.

Mr. Robt. Day on Tuesday moved his household goods to Wilmington, and has taken up a residence in that city. Mr. Day was formerly a brakeman in Delmar yard but is now out on the line.

Preparations are being made in Laurel for the entertainment of the State Sunday School Convention, which convenes there April 21 and 22.

Beginning the coming Sunday the evening service at the M. E. Church will begin at 7.30 instead of 7 o'clock as heretofore.

A chance for everybody to listen to the most up-to-date music of the season will be given next Friday night, April 8th., when the Delmar Cornet Band will give a grand musical concert at the Delmar Opera House. The class of music to be played can be expected by no band south of the city of Wilmington, and comprises such selections as "The Burgomaster," from Gustave Luder's great musical comedy of that name. This is a collection of the most popular American airs, and is composed of such tunes as "The Tale of a Kangaroo," "The Liberty Girl," "I love you dear, and only you," "We are Civilized," "Cupid does not Marry," "The Dutch Oats," "The little Sourette," "We always work the public," etc., etc. "Refuge," another selection of noteworthy excellence, is a grand collection of sacred songs that as a musical selection cannot be excelled. "War songs of the Boy in Blue" is a collection of songs ever popular in the great United States. This selection was played by the Carlisle Indian Band of sixty pieces at the opening of Gimbel Bros. store, Philadelphia, a few weeks ago. Another air which has taken like wild fire among the leading bands of the country is that popular, patriotic march "Uncle Sammy." This is one of the most catchy airs that have been written in quite awhile, and is real music from beginning to end. "Battleship Oregon," named after the great battleship of that name is a piece of music that is so heavy as to lead you to believe you almost hear the guns of a ship in action. An Indian War Dance, with all the yelling and shooting of a real Indian War Dance will be given. You can hear the old Indian tom toms and gongs used in these dances. Then there will be singing by male quartets, clarinet, trombone and baritone solos, etc. Prof. C. P. Snyder will play a solo, "Rocked in the Cradle of the Deep," with hand accompaniment, that is sure to please.

PITTSVILLE.

Farmers are busy planting their potatoes.

Miss Eva Hastings, who has been spending some time in Salisbury, has returned home for the yearly meeting at Forest Grove, Wednesday and Thursday.

Miss Emma Farlow was the welcome guest of Miss Bessie Quillen Saturday and Sunday.

Mr. Ben Parsons departed this morning, Sunday March 27th., after suffering a few weeks. A wife and three children survive him.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Parker, of Laurel, spent Saturday and Sunday with his brother, Mr. Will Parker.

Misses Amelia and Minerva Ennis, spent a part of last week with friends in Willards.

Messrs. Walter White and Edgar Adkins made a call at the home of the Misses Quillen Saturday evening.

Mr. Elijah Bailey, who has been ill for some time is convalescent.

of the three members of the School Board; namely, Messrs. Chas. E. Williams, Wm. J. Steton and Levin T. Cooper. They have also had a cut made of the last four principals, namely, Messrs. Henry B. Freeny, Chas. E. LeFevre, W. J. Holloway, and Walter J. Huntington, which will be given space in the Tatler, and they have had cuts made of the four teachers in the High School Department at present, also one of all the teachers in city schools taken together. A cut, in the form of a broken shaft in memory of Hugh Goslee, a member of the class of 1905 who was drowned last summer will occupy a page next to the class roll and history of the class of 1905. There will be a cut representing a man dressed in a base-ball suit with his tennis racket and base-ball bat at his feet already beginning playing. The picture from which this cut was made was drawn by one of the students of the graduating class and is a fair specimen of the artistic drawings that have been produced by the students of the High School in the Manual Training and Drawing Department which has been condemned by many as a dead expense to the county. All we ask those that think it is useless to secure one of these books which contain several cuts made from the pen and ink drawings of the High School students, and if not pleased with their appearance we think that we will be safe in saying that the Business Managers will gladly refund your money. But we are wandering from our subject and before we conclude we surely must say something about the reading matter that is contained in this edition of the TATLER.

First, as we have before stated it is dedicated to H. Crawford Bounds, then there is a very interesting history of the High School, which dates as far back as the "Old Academy Days," and tells how the High School was established and placed on a solid foundation that will ever hold steadfast against storm and gale, a foundation that was laid in the hearts of the people of Wicomico County. For who is it that does not hold in high regard the school where the fragrant buds of his youth bloomed forth and expanded into the tender flower of life until, at last, by the gentle dews of kindness and instruction it ripened into the hardy flower of manhood? The histories of classes of 1905-06-07 come next and occupy several pages and will prove to be very interesting to, at least, all the members of these three grades. The history of class of 1904 will treat each member of class separately and give a comical description of each one of them.

There will also be a want column which will occupy about two pages and we think it would be advisable, for anybody who wants anything they don't possess and wish to obtain, to purchase a copy of this book for this will afford them a golden opportunity without very much exertion on their part. There are several stories, some of which are painted with excellent figures of speech while others are so full of wit that you could not keep from laughing when you read them. We should endeavor to aid this work as much as possible for by so doing we are increasing the abilities of the pupils to produce literature of the first class and bringing them to realize the fact that the children of today are the men of tomorrow.

(The price of these books will be one dollar per copy. They will contain from 100 to 125 pages. Can obtain further information regarding same by applying to either member of class 1904.)

Lehigh University Register Shows An Attendance Of 615 Students.

The Register of Lehigh University, South Bethlehem, Pa., just issued, copies of which may be had on application, shows the attendance of 615 students from 24 States and 10 foreign countries. There are 54 in the teaching staff.

18 four-year courses of instruction are offered at the University: the Classical Course, the Latin-Scientific Course, the courses in Civil, Mechanical, Marine, Metallurgical, Mining, Electrical, and Chemical Engineering, Analytical Chemistry, Geology, Physics, and Electrometallurgy.

A list of graduates of the University, 1904 in number during the 38 years of its existence, indicates that this institution is exerting a very marked influence on the industrial development of the United States, and also of foreign countries.

Provision is made for worthy and needy students whereby they may postpone payment of tuition until after graduation.

In the list of students, Salisbury is represented by Mr. J. F. Leonard.

The boundary line between Maryland and Delaware will not be surveyed for two years the bill providing for the survey having failed to pass.

Young Plants

Every farmer knows that some plants grow better than others. Soil may be the same and seed may seem the same but some plants are weak and others strong.

And that's the way with children. They are like young plants. Same food, same home, same care but some grow big and strong while others stay small and weak.

Scott's Emulsion offers an easy way out of the difficulty. Child weakness often means starvation, not because of lack of food, but because the food is not fed.

Scott's Emulsion really feeds and gives the child growing strength.

Whatever the cause of weakness and failure to grow—Scott's Emulsion seems to find it and set the matter right.

JOINTS PAIN YOU THIS MORNING? First sign of RHEUMATISM. Dangerous to let it run. Easy to cure now. A single bottle of Rheumacide. Will probably do the work. Bad cases require more. RHEUMACIDE cures by getting rid of the cause, so that no trace of the disease lingers in the system. It purifies the blood, relieves the inflammation of the kidneys, the chronic constipation and the catarrh that follows such a condition of the system. Though Mrs. Mary E. Welborn, of High Point, N. C., is 50 years old and had suffered from rheumatism for 20 years, she was completely cured by RHEUMACIDE, and declares she feels "10 years younger" and is anxious to try RHEUMACIDE and be cured. REV. J. B. WHEELER, a noted Methodist minister, of Reisterstown, Md., writes enthusiastically of RHEUMACIDE, which cured him. He is 75 years old and has been in the ministry 50 years. COURT FINISHING SPRING

Term. Several Cases Disposed Of During The Week. What They Were, By Whom Conducted And The Verdicts.

A beautiful week of weather has accompanied this concluding session of the Spring Court. The following cases have been decided:

No. 10 Trials, Samuel S. Barnes vs. Francis H. Dryden. This case was removed from Somerset county and was not concluded until Saturday afternoon, when the jury brought in a verdict for the plaintiff for $215.14. Barnes used Dryden for non-delivery of certain personal property on the Westover farm in Somerset county purchased by Barnes of Dryden as agent. Miles & Stanford and Ellegood for plaintiff, Melvin & Handy for defendant.

Monday was consumed in the trial of Mrs. Matilda Jackson, indicted for selling liquor without license at Fruitland. This case was tried before a jury, which brought in a verdict of not guilty. Bailey for State; G. W. D. Waller and E. Stanley Toadvin for traverser.

Tuesday, Harvey Dixon, colored was arraigned on an indictment for selling liquor at Glass Hill campmeeting last summer. Trial before jury. Guilty, Bailey for State; E. H. Walton and Geo. W. Waller for traverser.

No. 4 Trials. W. H. Palmer vs. Eli T. Jones, for trespass, was settled without trial, each party paying his costs. N. T. Fitch, R. P. Graham and E. H. Walton for plaintiff; J. E. Ellegood for defendant.

Wednesday, State of Maryland vs. Charles Hottin. Trial before jury. Verdict of jury, guilty of manslaughter, sentenced by the Court to be confined in County Jail for two months. Jos. L. Bailey and Thos. F. J. Rider for State. Toadvin & Bell and Elmer H. Walton for the prisoner.

Thursday, No. 4. C. C. State of Maryland vs. Major Gray. Convicted of procuring liquor to an habitual drunkard. Sentenced to be confined in the County Jail for 60 days and pay a fine of $50.00, stand committed until fine and costs are paid.

No. 6 Criminal Continuances. State of Maryland vs. Harvey Dixon. Convicted for selling liquor at campmeeting. Court fined him $50.00 and stands committed until fine and costs are paid.

SALISBURY TAKES FIRST

Game Of Base Ball This Season From Seaford. A Close Match And Doubtful Result Till Finish. Return Game In Salisbury Soon.

The Salisbury High School base ball team played the first of a series of games with the Seaford school team at Seaford last Monday and after a ten inning game succeeded in defeating them by the score of 7-6. The game was stubbornly fought from start to finish and was anybody's until the last Seaford man was retired in the tenth. Salisbury started the run—getting by scoring two in the first on Taylor's single and Bethke's triple, but at the end of the fourth the score was 6-6 and remained so until the tenth when Salisbury batted out the winning run. In Seaford's half of the tenth Coulbourn struck out, Cox made a hit, stole second, was sacrificed to third but Schuler rose to the occasion and fanned White thus winning the game. Bethke played a strong game at short besides carrying off the batting honor by making a triple, double and single in four times at bat. Perry and Atkins played at their positions well and Schuler's pitching was fine, allowing only six hits. The team was entertained at Mrs. Cannon's.

A return game will be played on the Salisbury grounds in the near future.

HEAVILY LADEN FRUIT

Trees May Be Looked For A Little Later. Fair Prospect For Tomatoes And Small Fruits. "Peach Killer" Keeping Quiet.

Despite the discouraging conditions under which the Anne Arundel county truckers are laboring, the Eastern Shore fruit growers are living in an atmosphere of "great expectations." With practically no crop in the Eastern Shore peach belt last year to lower the vitality of the trees, the orchards went into winter quarters vigorous and healthy, a strong point in favor of a heavy crop this year. The continued cold of the past winter, followed by a late spring, has retarded the development of the fruit buds to such an extent that, under the most spring-like weather conditions from now on, the trees will not be in full bloom until the danger from April frosts has practically passed.

Mr. John C. Bosley, general freight and passenger agent for the Queen Anne Railroad Company several days ago made an inspection trip through Maryland and Delaware fruit and trucking sections. Mr. Bosley says: "Of course, no crop is absolutely safe from disaster until the money is banked, but up to this time, the conditions along our road are favorable to a fine fruit crop. The buds of all fruits have barely begun to swell, and growers are confident that, unless very unusual weather conditions prevail during April, these will be safe from frost. All fruit trees are well set with fruit and the growers are sanguine."
"It is a little early to speculate as to tomatoes and small fruits, but farmers are preparing for a heavy acreage of the former, and are providing crates, carriers and baskets for a fall crop of berries, plums, &c. A long, cold winter is always favorable to big fruit crops."

DISGUISED CATARRH

A Stealthy, Insidious, Weakening Enemy to Women—Many Thousand Women Suffer Needlessly From This Cause.

There are a multitude of women, especially housewives, and all other women obliged to be on their feet constantly, who are wracked beyond description, simply because their strength and vitality is sapped away by catarrh of the bladder, which is a disease of the female system. These women get up in the morning tired, drag themselves through their daily duties, only to go to bed at night as tired as before.

Mrs. Eva Barthe, 153 East 12th Street, N. Y. City, N. Y., writes:—"I suffered for three years with what is generally known as leucorrhoea, in company with ulceration of the womb. The doctors advocated an operation which I decidedly refused. A friend advised me to use Peruna. I thought it best to give this medicine a trial, so I bought three bottles of it at once. Now I am a changed woman. My menses cured my leucorrhoea, but I felt so much better, and I kept taking it, as I dreaded an operation so much. I am today in perfect health, and have not felt so well for fifteen years."—Mrs. Eva Barthe.

medicine I have ever taken. I used it faithfully for two weeks, and it completely cured me. I have not had any pains since, anywhere, but feel like a new woman. I am truly thankful for what Peruna has done for me!"—Barbara Albery.

Mrs. Kate Mann, 408 Bathurst Street, Toronto, Ont., writes:—"I am pleased to give praise to Peruna for the blessed relief I found through its use. I suffered for years with backache and dragging down pain, and often had to go to bed and stay there when I was so busy that I could not be spared. It was so bad that I could not do my work. I was told to use Peruna, and I bought a bottle. I used it for a few days, and my pain seemed to give me new life, and every day I felt better. I have been in perfect health for one year. I enjoy work and cheer, and I thank you for what Peruna has done for me. I have been in perfect health for one year. I enjoy work and cheer, and I thank you for what Peruna has done for me. I have been in perfect health for one year. I enjoy work and cheer, and I thank you for what Peruna has done for me."

MRS. KATE MANN.

MISS LOUISE MASON.

MRS. ANNA MARTIN.

Miss Louise Mason, 5 Glen Hills Street, Toronto, Ont., Canada, Secretary of the King's Daughters and Secretary of Lady MacLeod's class, writes:—"If all women knew the benefit to be derived from taking Peruna we would have many happier and more healthful women. My health has never been so good as now. About a year ago I was so run down that I had to take to my bed, and became weaker and weaker. A friend advised me to try Peruna, and I have great reason to be grateful for it. In two weeks I was out of bed and in a month I was perfectly well, and I now find that my health is much more robust than formerly, so that I take Peruna once a month and keep well."—Louise Mason.

Peruna is such a perfect specific for each case that when patients have once used it they can never be induced to quit until they are perfectly cured. It begins to relieve the disagreeable symptoms at once. The backache ceases, the troubling kidneys are strengthened, the appetite restored, the digestion made perfect, the dull headache is stopped and the weakening drains are gradually cured. These results certainly follow a course of treatment with Peruna.

Mrs. Anna Martin, 47 Hoyt St., Brooklyn, N. Y., writes:—"Peruna did so much for me that I feel it my duty to recommend it to others who may be similarly afflicted. About a year ago my health was completely broken down, had backache, dizziness and irregularities in the small of my back, and I was so weak that I could not do my work. I had used Peruna in our home as a medicine for colds and catarrh, and I decided to try it for my trouble. I had not used it more than a few days when my back pain was gone, and I felt much better. I bought a bottle of Peruna, and I used it for a few days, and my back pain seemed to give me new life, and every day I felt better. I have been in perfect health for one year. I enjoy work and cheer, and I thank you for what Peruna has done for me. I have been in perfect health for one year. I enjoy work and cheer, and I thank you for what Peruna has done for me."

Mrs. Wm. Hetrick, Kennard, Washington county, Neb., writes:—"I have not felt well since the Change of Life has not ten years ago. I was in misery and my back ached so much that I could not do my work. I was very weak, and my flesh so tender it hurt me to lean against the back of a chair. I had pain under my shoulder-blades, in the small of my back, and in my hips. I sometimes wished myself out of this world. Had hot and cold spells, dizziness and trembling of the limbs, and was losing flesh all the time. After following your directions and taking Peruna I now feel like a different person."—Mrs. Wm. Hetrick.

Peruna can be purchased for $1 per bottle at all first class drug stores. Address: Dr. Harman, President of The Harman Sanitarium, Columbus, O.

Grand Rally Of Temperance Workers Called For Sunday, April 17.

There was a meeting of those interested in the "temperance movement" last Thursday evening for the purpose of organizing, preparatory to going into the fight at the Election to be held in Salisbury and Delmar Districts April 26th. Committees were appointed to take charge of the work. Among other things it was decided to hold a monster mass-meeting in the Court House Sunday afternoon, April 17th., at which addresses will be delivered by quite a number of prominent citizens of the community. It is earnestly desired by those interested in the cause that all persons desiring to abolish the saloon shall be present and as many as possible take part in the proceedings. It is especially desirable that all those who signed the petitions asking of the late legislature to remove the saloon from our midst shall be present and manifest their continued interest in the cause and pledge their support in the coming fight. The success of the cause is absolutely in the hands of its friends and not its enemies. There are enough people in Salisbury and Delmar Districts to carry the election against the saloon. IT IS ONLY NECESSARY THAT THEY ACT. We want a demonstration on the 17th., to show that the friends of Temperance have determined to act. Speakers for this Red letter day will be announced next week. S. J. Smith, Chairman Anti-Saloon League.

It is the Surer Way

Have your cake, muffins, and tea biscuit home-made. They will be fresher, cleaner, more tasty and wholesome. Royal Baking Powder helps the house wife to produce at home, quickly and economically, fine and tasty cake, the raised hot-biscuit, puddings, the frosted layer-cake, crisp cookies, crullers, crusts and muffins, with which the ready-made food found at the bake-shop or grocery does not compare. Royal is the greatest of bake-day helps.

ECZEMA

The World's Greatest Skin Humour.

Affects Every Age and Condition.

The Only Sure Cure is Cuticura.

If there were not another external skin disease known, eczema would be a sufficient infliction on mankind. It pervades all classes, and descends impartially through generations. While some are constantly enveloped in it, others have it confined to small patches in the ears, on the scalp, on the breast, on the palms of the hands, on the limbs, etc., but everywhere its distinctive feature is a small watery blister, which discharges an acrid fluid, causing heat, inflammation, and intense itching, scaling and crusting.

The Cuticura treatment is at once agreeable, speedy, economical and comprehensive. Bathe the affected parts freely with hot water and Cuticura Soap, to cleanse the surface of crusts and scales, and soften the thickened cuticle. Dry, without hard rubbing, and apply Cuticura Ointment to allay itching, irritation and inflammation, and soothe and heal, and, lastly, take Cuticura Resolvent, or Pills, to cool and cleanse the blood. This treatment affords instant relief, permits rest and sleep in the severest forms of eczema and other itching, burning and scaly humours, and points to a speedy, permanent and economical cure of torturing, disfiguring humours, eczemas, rashes and inflammations, from infancy to age, when all other remedies and the best physicians fail.

Send for the world's greatest skin cure, Cuticura Resolvent, 50c. (10c. per box of 100.) Cuticura Soap, 25c. (50c. per box of 100.) Cuticura Ointment, 25c. (50c. per box of 100.)

James and Robert Lilliston, of Chincoteague have rented and will room, the coming summer, the old Eastern Shore Hotel, Ocean City.

Our old friend Kurtz who has lots of Jersey sense, and yet stuck on California has concluded to buy a chicken farm near Egg Harbor City, and work it for all there is in it. California will be the loser, but Jersey the gainer by Major Kurtz's decision.

Dr. T. Y. Franklin and a few members of the Berlin club joined the Snow Hill forces and had a lively football Wednesday. The Berlin Kennel, as usual led the pack which Snow Hill conceded before the start. County Commissioner, Thomas Whaley enjoyed the sport from start to finish.

Letter to Chas. Guthrie.

Dear Sir: Lead and oil is not good paint; don't wear it, the more so, as every one knows repaint in three years.

Dev' last six, in the same way—allow wide margin in all such statements. What does it mean, to last? It means the same with h. h.

As to covering; that's another h. h. re's an instance.

Mr. J. J. Hill, Sheriff of Pa., painted two houses, lead and oil; to k 40 gal. lons.

Last summer bought 40 gal. of Dev' for the same two houses; returned 10 gallons.

The paint that covers, lasts; it's all paint, and full-measure. Lead and oil is all paint but hot good paint; the lead wants zinc. Better paint Devos.

Yours truly, F. W. DEVOS & CO. P. S.—L. W. GUNBY tells our paint.

A negro man captured a snapper in Elk creek, near Scott Fertilizer Works, a few days ago which weighed 6 pounds. It was purchased by J. Frank Frazer, of Elkton.

High Pressure Days.

Men and women alike have to work incessantly with brain and hand to hold their own nowadays. Never were the demands of business, the wants of the family, the requirements of society, more numerous. The first effect of the pressure is to keep up with all these things is commonly seen in a weakened or debilitated condition of the nervous system, which results in dyspepsia, defective nutrition of both body and brain, and in extreme cases in complete nervous prostration. It is clearly seen that what is needed is what will sustain the system, give vigor and tone to the nerves, and keep the digestive and assimilative functions healthy and active. From personal knowledge, we can recommend Hood's Sarsaparilla for this purpose. It acts on all the vital organs, builds up the whole system, and fits men and women for these high-pressure days.

MAKE THE BOYS LAUGH.

New System of Examination For the Naval Academy.

A new system of examination to determine fitness of applicants to enter the Naval Academy at Annapolis is being talked of among educators, and, even though its adoption is the remotest of possibilities, it opens up a line of thought which is not without general interest.

Foes of the competitive examination system are rejoicing over the adoption by the British government of a plan favored by the admiralty. It is difficult to classify this plan, but that it is a novelty there can be no doubt. Any way it is the scheme by which the future British navy is being chosen and is therefore worth passing mention.

Instead of examining the candidates in each district for which a congressman or senator may have the naming of an entrant to the academy, as is the usual course with us, ascertaining the sum total of knowledge, the admiralty scheme is more in the line of a "get-together" conference, with the examiners telling stories and the boys, fully at their ease, listening delightedly.

The keynote of the whole system is: "Make the boy laugh. Put him in a good humor and then ask him why he wants to enter the navy, and he will tell frankly and naturally, and the best of estimates of fitness may be formed by the examiners." Here are a few of the questions put to the boys with the object of making them merry:

"How long does a turkey's egg take to hatch?"

"How do you make concrete?"

"How high is the monument in Trafalgar square?"

"What fare would you pay a cabman for driving you from one end of the city to the other?"

The boy, puzzled, finally laughs, regarding the questions as he would the famous queries, "Why is a mouse when it spins?" and "Which would you rather do or go fishing?" His good humor thus asserted, he is asked why he wants to be a future ruler in the king's "navy," and he answers in a fashion which gives the examiners a line on his character.

Supplemental, however, is a report from the boy's schoolmaster and doctor, and these considerations are not without their weight in determining acceptance or rejection.—New York Herald.

The Kind You Have Always Bought

PRINTERS' INK.

I believe in it. Men in the commercial world believe in it. Witness the large use of it in the business of merchants like John Wansmaker. Witness the whole pages of metropolitan and country newspapers that set forth the business of mercantile houses. Witness the space given in popular magazines to all kinds of merchandise.

A liberal use of ink from a printing office has made many a fortune. The stores that are crowded in New York, in Chicago, in Philadelphia, in Baltimore, and in other thriving towns, are the stores that make themselves known through the medium of black type. So with railroads. So with manufacturers. So with every kind of trade. Shrewd men in financial circles sell their enterprises on rivers and lakes and oceans of printers' ink.

If one wishes his shop or mill or office to gather dirt on the windows and cobwebs on the walls and dust on the floors, and make the place a rendezvous for rats, there could be no better way to bring about such a result than to be niggardly in the use of printers' ink. Success has often been born among the cases of a publishing house.

But, as a minister of the Gospel, I am chiefly interested in printers' ink as a means of doing good to the souls of men. Guttenberg, the man who invented the art of printing, was about to destroy all the types he had made, and demolish his press, thus bringing upon the world a calamity, because it was suggested to him that printing might become a mighty instrument in the hand of Satan for guttenberg afterwards considered that the right use of his invention would more than overcome any evil that could spring out of it. So he saved his type, and kept his press, by so doing preparing the world for the Millennium. When the art of printing was begun the earth rolled into a new day out of a long night of error and superstition. Then came sunrise. Now it is about noon. Listen to the great clock of the ages chiming the hour! The cogs and wheels of that timepiece of progress are the cogs and wheels of the printing press.

This wonderful art has been used by the powers of darkness for ill. No disguising that fact. The devil always knows a good thing when he sees it. Long ago he discovered the value of printers' ink. He has made the most of its worth. But who can say that the evil of printing has outdone the blessings of it? The thunder of one press set upon the foundations of hell has been answered by the thunder of other presses set upon the foundations of righteousness, that thunder louder and more penetrating, its boom reverberating through every continent. God cannot be defeated by Satan.

The very first book ever printed was the Bible. Faust and his son-in-law Shaffer being the printers, the year 1460 being the year that the type was kissed by the rollers in producing that grand old Volume for millions of eyes to read, printers' ink giving the world the one book that has made heaven light. Thus was the art of printing consecrated to the very highest offices before any black hands from hell could soil it. That first Bible was a prophecy of the future. It was the first flower in the garden of printing that told of multiplied flowers yet to come. More Bibles printed to-day than any other book. Almost innumerable copies of that supreme Book turned off from the presses every twelve months. The white leaves that catch the impression of the type in blessed embrace are like the leaves of opening spring greeted by sunbeams.

Then, too, what a widespread scratching of pens in these days, preparing righteous manuscript for the eyes of editors and the fingers of compositors. Religious books piled up like mountains upon the shelves of great houses of publication. Religious magazines in the mail-bag of every postman. Religious papers upon the library table of numerous Christian homes. Printers' ink telling the story of the Gospel of Jesus Christ.

So far has religion advanced against wickedness that even the immense daily papers of the cities give larger space than ever before. Many of those dailies now publish comments upon the Sabbath-school lessons and the topics of the Christian Endeavor Society. Every Monday morning finds their columns giving reports of sermons preached the day before. Other newspapers of less frequent issue print the discourses of celebrated ministers in full. Printers' ink in black gown and white hands, from the pulpit of the press, an evangel of the Cross, and holding an audience that could not be gathered under any roof that was ever lifted beneath the sky.

Long ago the writer of this article ascertained the possibilities of printers' ink in reaching large numbers of people with moral instruction. I was born into the ministry with printers' ink on my fingers. From that day to this I have made use of the mixture, with it going into thousands of homes and producing lines enough for the making of many books. The labor involved has been exceedingly pleasurable. The thought of the good done is a satisfaction. The anticipation of coming reward from the hands of the Master is a stimulus to better work.

I call down to-day the blessing of God upon all editors and reporters and compositors and proof-readers and pressmen. The Lord help the editors to sharpen their pencils for truth and virtue; the reporters to find more goodness in their rounds than vice; the compositors to have delectable copy, so as to be kept from profanity; the proof readers to discover not too many mistakes in the sheets that come from the "galley," those mistakes throwing them out of humor; and the pressmen to be preserved from dropping their "forms" and making "pi" of both the forms and their own language!

A word to you men who deal with printers' ink. Let your Sabbaths be "leads" in the "stick" of the week. In setting up the manuscript of life, be sure to "follow copy", that Copy the Man of Nazareth. Before you go to press at the judgement, see to it that your "forms" are well "locked" with "quoins" of righteousness, and that no "quads" are up to mar the printed page.

THE BLACK SILK DRESS.

Aristocratic Gown of Other Years Has Passed Away.

What has become of it, that aristocrat among garments, once holding the chief place in every feminine wardrobe? No outfit was considered complete without it, and its possession conferred distinction and engendered self respect and a feeling of security, since no occasion, however ceremonious, found its owner unprepared, says the St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

Some two score years ago black silk was black silk, and not the later deceptive web of vegetable fiber glossed over with gum and sugar and weighted with starch dyes and iron filings, and which would not know a silk worm if it met one in the street. In those days, too, the fashions were more stable, as befitted the more durable goods, and when once a black silk dress was made it stayed made indefinitely. Its lustrous fabric was protected from the impious jaws of the scissors, and the ungodly breadths of the voluminous skirts could be turned inside out and upside down in the making over process.

The black silk standby invented various minor changes for itself in the way of trimmings of silk or "bugle" fringe, or lace, or a lattice of velvet ribbon, when not depending for ornamentation upon its own shining folds, with a lace collar and "undersleeves" as accessories.

It rustled into church in winter under thick warm shawls pinned decorously with chained twin shawl pins, and in summer under lace shawls that persistently slid off the slick shoulders. It put on a white tie and danced at weddings, and a black tie and wept at funerals. Under a protecting apron it bustled about at family reunions and birthday celebrations, and presided at hospital dinner tables and got taken off as soon as the company was gone. It got itself handed down to a second generation even, and heroically stood a sponge bath of cold coffee and the warm attentions of a fattener, and was useful in all its shapes, and looked well as long as there was a scrap of it left.

And so the black silk dress came on down on its honored way through the years, and whether the goods were repped or plain or seeded or grograin—a name to conjure with—it lent itself obligingly to the more frequent changes of fashion. It was tucked and plaited and shirred and ruffled and cut into bias folds and loaded with jet passementerie, but always it inspired profound respect, whether in the best dress or only the second best.

But as time elapsed the more showy colored silks came to the front and shouted themselves into notice, and the black silk dress was shown into a quiet back seat. The question was even raised as to whether it was a real necessity, after all, except for elderly women, and its place was taken by dresses of wool of various weaves and weights.

Then the somber black silk was treated with disdain and humbly crept under out of sight as linings and "foundations," where only its protesting rustle could be heard. Its humiliation was complete when it was made into plain shirt waists and worn every day.

Diamonds in Storage.

"There are thousands of millions of dollars' worth of diamonds stored in the deep vaults, or underground safety deposit vaults, at the Kimberley mines in South Africa," said J. H. Mortimer of Chicago. Mr. Mortimer was a British soldier in the war with the Boers in 1881, and became intimately acquainted with the conditions there. "The natives go down deep into the mines and bring up the claylike earth, which is spread in the sun and dried into a scaly brittle material. This is examined very closely for the precious stones, which are picked out. They are nothing but rough looking pebbles, and their value cannot be estimated with any degree of certainty until they are polished. But the pebbles are not polished at once. They are packed up and sent down into the bowels of the earth again. The mine owners will not allow them to be sold, as the market would be flooded and the value would go down so that there would be no profit in the gems. Instead they are stored in big vaults and brought up a few at a time, as the market conditions demand. As I said, there are thousands of millions of dollars' worth of diamonds stored away."—Milwaukee Wisconsin.

War and Divorce. According to the Jewish World, a very touching editorial appeared in a recent issue of the Hebrew daily Hatzefirah of Warsaw, daily the editor, Mr. Sorolow, calls attention to the Talmudic law which requires every married man before going on the battlefield to grant a conditional divorce to his wife, that she may remarry if he does not return within a reasonable time after the end of the war.

The rabbi of Lodz has caused all the Jewish soldiers that left that city for the seat of war to grant such divorces, and Editor Sorolow suggests that the example of Lodz should be copied all over Russia. Every married soldier, volunteer or reserve, registers with a rabbi his name, address, age, height, birthmarks, name of company and regiment he joins, and the rabbi keeps a record of the same until the soldier returns from the war.

If a reasonable time after the close of the war elapses and the soldier does not return he is counted among the lost and unidentified dead, and his wife obtains the divorce from that rabbi granting her the right to remarry.

THE JEWS IN RUSSIA.

Advice Given to Them by Charles Reade Sixty Years Ago.

Sixty years ago Charles Reade, the famous English novelist, wrote the following words. There has been no change in Russia nor in the condition of the Russian Jews since then, and his advice, says the New York Journal, is as appropriate today as it was in 1840:

"This sudden persecution of the Jews in the very nation where they are most numerous, may it not be a precursor sign and a reminder from Providence that their abiding city is not in Russia?"

I almost think some such reminder was needed, for when I was a boy the pious Jews still longed for the Holy Land. They prayed, like Daniel, with their windows open toward Jerusalem. Yet, now that the broken and impoverished Saracen would cede them territory at one-tenth of its agricultural and commercial value, a cold indifference seems to have come over them.

I often wonder at this change of sentiment about so great a matter and in so short a period, comparatively speaking, and puzzle myself as to the reason.

Two solutions occur to me: (1) Dispersed in various nations, whose average inhabitants are inferior in intelligence and forethought to themselves, they thrive as individual aliens more than they may think so great a multitude of Jews could thrive in a land of their own, where blockheads would be scarce. (2) They have for centuries contracted their abilities to a limited number of peaceful arts and trades; they may distrust their power to diversify their abilities, and be suddenly a complete nation, with soldiers, sailors, merchants, husbandmen, as well as financiers and artists.

If I should happen to be anywhere near the mark in these suggestions, let me offer a word in reply to both objections. In the first place, they both prove too much, for they would keep the Jews dispersed forever. It is certain, therefore, they will have to be got over some day, and therefore the sooner the better one.

As to objection one, it is now proved that sojourning among inferior nations has more drawbacks than living at home. True, the Russian yoke has for years been selling to the Jews his summer labor in winter and at a heavy discount. But the silly, imprudent brute has turned like a wild beast upon them and, outwitted lawfully, has massacred them contrary to law, and truly Solomon had warned them there is no animal more dangerous than a fool and a brute beast without understanding.

Besides, they need not evacuate other countries in a hurry and before the resources of their own land are developed. Palestine can be colonized effectively from Russia alone, where there are 3,000,000 Jews trembling for life and property, and the rest would follow.

As to the second objection, history is a looking glass at our backs. Turn round and look into it with your head as well as your eyes, and you shall see the future. Whatever Jews have done Jews may do.

They are people of genius, and genius is not confined by nature, but by will, by habit or by accident. To omit to try is not to fail. What have these people tried heartily and failed in? Warriors, writers, builders, merchants, lawyers, husbandmen, and supreme in all!

Therefore, if by any chance this recent outrage should decide the Jewish leaders to colonize Palestine from Russia, let us freely offer ships, seamen, money—whatever we are asked for. It will be a better national investment than Egyptian, Brazilian or Peruvian bonds.

Carriation and Primrose. A British lawyer twitted a New York member of the bar on what the former was pleased to call American lack of sentiment. The twit was made on carriation day.

"I read in your newspapers," said the Briton, "that the carriation was to be worn on a certain day out of respect to the memory of the late President McKinley. As my wife is an American, I bought a carriation on the day set. In the big hotel where I am stopping I was the only man whose lapel had the president's flower. I had some business that day in one of your courts, and I was the only man inside the bar who wore the carriation. Even the Judge was without it. I know it was through no disrespect to the memory of a man whom all good men respected. You are simply too commercial over here to indulge in sentiment. You ought to be anywhere in England on primrose day, and you would understand what I mean."—New York Globe.

Parish Dancing Lessons.

What would have been thought a generation ago of a professional dancing master as an agent of church missionary work? His services are now in demand in several New York city parishes. By the report of the rector of Calvary Episcopal church they have proved valuable as a counter attraction to public hall dancing, where the associations are often evil.

The Calvary experiment was in line with that begun by St. Bartholomew's church. Saturday evening dancing classes were organized in the church gymnasium, and in these many young people at once showed themselves interested, the attendance increasing through the season. Their success assures their continuation next year.

Another objection to the devil having all the good tunes, and the parish work which is at present most productive of good results is conducted in a spirit of similar enlightenment.—New York World.

IN SUCH A NIGHT

Characters—Walter Bennett, Edith Layton.

Scene—A garden at night. Bennett and Edith are seated on a rustic bench. Bennett, with his arms folded across his breast, is gazing with a rapturous expression at the moon. Edith glancing carelessly from time to time at Bennett's face, is toying with her fan.

Bennett (transferring his rapturous gaze from the moon to Edith's face, and speaking sentimentally)—Are you fond of Shakespeare, Miss Layton?

Edith (surprised)—Shakespeare!

Bennett (softly)—Yes. I mean do you read him much?

Edith—Not very much but some of his plays are lovely. Did you see Ada that man in the "Taming of the Shrew"? O, she was simply delightful—charming; (complacently) I saw her.

Bennett (drawing nearer his companion, and raising his arm to the back of the bench)—Do you remember the lines—?

Edith—in the "Taming of the Shrew?"

Bennett—No. In the "Merchant of Venice."

Edith—What lines?

Bennett (placing his arm on the back of the bench in such a manner that it encircles Edith but does not touch her)—

"The moon shines bright—in such a night as this

Where the sweet wind did gently kiss the trees,

And they did make no noise, in such a night

Troilus, methinks, mounted the Trojan walls,

And sighed his soul toward the Grecian tents,

Where "Creusa lay."

Edith (after a pause)—Why, I saw Henry Irving in the Merchant of Venice; but I don't remember those lines.

Bennett—O, Shylock didn't say them—it was Lorenzo—Lorenzo, you know—the lover of Jessica. He said them to Jessica.

Edith (vaguely)—O! I think I do remember now.

Bennett (edging a little closer)—Hum—ahem! I say, Miss Layton, it may—it must have been a night like—like this. A man, you know—that is to say, some men—

Edith (fearing him suddenly and tapping him on the shoulder with her fan)—O, I say! Who do you suppose I saw at the Garrick the other night?

Bennett (sighing, and letting his arm fall over the back of the seat)—Who?

Edith—Guess.

Bennett—Well, I really can't, you know.

Edith—Give it up?

Bennett (wearily)—Yes.

Edith—George Willoughby and his wife. They are back from their honeymoon.

Bennett—They must be very happy.

Edith—Really the right thing, after all, for a man—and a woman (the amorous arm again rises to the back of the bench). Don't you think so, Miss Layton?

Edith (with conviction)—Of course it is.

Bennett—Whenever I see two young people like George and his wife settle down in a home of their own and dedicate their lives to one another's happiness it makes me feel—pauses; both gaze dreamily over the landscape. Miss Layton, I'm not much of a fellow. I know; but leans closer toward her and the enterprising arm develops nervous symptoms—but do you think you could ever learn to—

Edith (abstrusely)—They spent their honeymoon in Venice. (Bennett's arm again falls inertly and perpendicularly behind the bench. It's awfully jolly in Venice, isn't it?)

Bennett (suggestively, as the arm again reports for duty)—I suppose so; it is always so delightful there in the autumn—wouldn't you? Tenderly) Miss Layton, be—

Edith (meditatively)—I think I'd rather go to Rome though. Mrs. Sherlton was there last season, and Mrs. Sherlton says—

Bennett (frigidly)—I never admired Mrs. Sherlton.

Edith—Why, Mr. Bennett! Every one likes Mrs. Sherlton. She isn't pretty, to be sure, but everybody admires her.

Bennett (folding his arms across his breast)—I am really very sorry for everybody, then, and I feel constrained to say that everybody's taste is questionable. In my opinion, Mrs. Sherlton is an intrusive, meddlesome, designing old—

Edith—Old!

Bennett (savagely)—Thirty-five if she is a day.

Edith—Why, she's only thirty—thirty last June.

Bennett—If she is such an excellent authority on continental towns, why doesn't she write a guidebook? And, if she isn't, what right has she to go around booming Rome and making disparaging remarks about Venice?

Edith (in amazement)—Booming Rome?—Mr. Bennett, you are getting angry.

Bennett—Haven't I every reason to be?

Edith (contritely)—I didn't know you cared so much about Venice, or—

Bennett—I don't care for it. I've never been there and don't know anything about the blooming town, except that it is laid out in the water and is noted for its gondolas, tumble-down palaces and its prize exhibits of cathedrals. It isn't that, it's the principle of the thing!

Edith—The principle of the thing?

Bennett (desperately)—Yes, the principle of the thing. I was talking to you about Venice, and then Mrs.

Sherlton's eccentric views on Rome insinuated themselves in your mind and inspired you to— I said Venice was a good place for a honeymoon, and—

Edith—Why, I didn't say it wasn't, Mr. Bennett.

Bennett—Well, will you go?

Edith (in a tone of surprise)—Go to Venice?

Bennett—Yes, with me. Will you be my wife?

Edith—Your—

Bennett—Wife, (Edith gazes at him in astonishment for several moments. Bennett takes her hand.)

Edith (confused)—Well—yes—but—

Bennett—But what, darling? But what?

Edith—But I'm sure Lorenzo didn't propose to Jessica that way.

Bennett (stroking her hand)—No—no—I dare say Lorenzo didn't. It was in such a night as this, but (kisses her), well, the circumstances were different, dear.—J. A. T., in Black and White.

Drives 23,360 Miles a Year.

The omnibus drivers on one of the principal London lines drive on alternate days eighty miles and forty-eight miles, which total up to 23,360 miles a year. Novel Insurance.

A curious kind of insurance has been started in Denmark. By paying down $44 at the birth of a daughter her parents insure for her an annuity of $5 if she should not be married at 30, of $10 at 40, of $12 at 50, and so on. If she, however, married before her thirtieth year, the whole $44 is paid over to her.—London Globe.

Miss M. Cartledge gives some helpful advice to young girls. Her letter is but one of thousands which prove that nothing is so helpful to young girls who are just arriving at the period of womanhood as Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:—I cannot praise Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound too highly, for it is the only medicine I ever tried which cured me. I suffered much from my first menstrual period. I felt so weak and dizzy at times I could not pursue my studies with the usual interest. My thoughts became sluggish, I had headaches, backaches and sinking spells, also pains in the back and lower limbs. In fact, I was sick all over. Finally, after many other remedies had been tried, we were advised to get Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and I am pleased to say that after taking it only two weeks, a wonderful change for the better took place, and in a short time I was in perfect health. I felt buoyant, full of life, and found all work a pastime. I am indeed glad to tell my experience with Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, for it made a different girl of me. Yours very truly, MISS M. CARLEDGE, 533 Whitehall St., Atlanta, Ga. — $5000 forfeit if original of above letter proving genuineness cannot be produced.

PERMANENTLY CURED BY "ORRINE,"

ABSOLUTELY SAFE, SURE AND HARMLESS.

Physicians pronounce drunkenness a disease of the nervous system, creating a morbid craving for a stimulant. Continued indulgence in whiskey, beer or wine eats away the stomach lining and stupefies the digestive organs, thus destroying the digestion and ruining the health. No "will power" can heal the inflamed stomach membranes.

"ORRINE" permanently removes the craving for liquor by acting directly on the affected nerves, restoring the stomach and digestive organs to normal conditions, improving the appetite and restoring the health. Can be given secretly if desired.

Cure Effect or Money Refunded.

Ask your druggist whom you know what he thinks of ORRINE; he will endorse our statements as truthful in every respect. If ORRINE fails to cure we will refund you every penny paid for it as cheerfully as we took it.

No Sanitation Treatment or Publicity!

No Absence from home or loss of time!

Mothers, wives and sisters, you cannot cure those who are afflicted with this most terrible of all diseases by your fervent prayers, or eyes red with tears, nor by your hope that they may stop drinking. It can be done only with ORRINE. You have the remedy—will you use it? If you desire to cure without the knowledge of the patient, buy ORRINE No. 1; if the patient desires to be cured of his own free will, buy ORRINE No. 2. Full directions found in each package. Price $1 per box.

We will gladly furnish a treatment free of cost to any physician to demonstrate that ORRINE is a positive specific for drunkenness.

Queer Easter Customs.

A native Mexican Easter is a curious exhibition of ignorance and superstition. The people delight in processions and in weird ceremonies. At various places they enact passion plays which are very real to the Indians. The characters in the play carry out their parts with great realism. Until recently it was a common occurrence for a man to volunteer to be crucified, and actually to allow his bigoted countrymen to perform the awful act. The volunteer was a criminal, who, if he came out of the ordeal alive, received a full and free pardon. It not infrequently happened that the man was killed, for he was made to ride with his face toward the tail of a mule, while the howling mob was privileged to beat him with sticks and stones.

High Pressure Days.

Men and women alike have to work incessantly with brain and hand to hold their own nowadays. Nervousness is the demand of business, the wants of the family, the requirements of society, more numerous. The first effect of the praiseworthy effort to keep up with all these things is commonly seen in a weakened or debilitated condition of the nervous system, which results in dyspepsia, defective nutrition of both body and brain, and in extreme cases in complete nervous prostration.

The Hen-mite Problem.

It would be interesting to get a correct estimate of the number of millions of dollars' damage done to the poultry industry in America every year by means of the little "insignificant" hen-mite, or red spider. Any method, no matter how expensive, of getting this bloodthirsty little animal under control would mean a large gain, a material increase in profits to every poultry-keeper who makes use of it.

When a woman gives up it is because she has gone to the utmost limit of strength and endurance. It is a marvel how women will stagger under the daily household burdens when the whole body is racked with pain.

For the nervous, run-down condition which so many women experience, as a result of overstrain in household cares, there is no medicine can equal Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. It strengthens the weak stomach by curing diseases of the organs of digestion and nutrition. It purifies the blood of poisons which cause rheumatism and other painful diseases. It nourishes the nerves, and builds up the body with sound, healthy flesh.

There is no alcohol in "Golden Medical Discovery" and it is entirely free from opium, cocaine and all other narcotics. Accept no substitute for the "Discovery." There is nothing "just as good" for weakness, nervousness and debility.

"I want the whole world to know what Dr. Pierce's medicine has done for me," writes Mrs. Helen Hardgrove, of Bangs, Knox Co., O. "I had many of the ills of woman's life. My lungs and throat troubled me besides, and I had rheumatism. About a year ago I had to give up my work. I thought I would try it. I took four bottles of your Golden Medical Discovery and 'Pelle's' and by the time I had taken half of the first bottle I began to gain, and kept on getting better. And now I have no more of my old ailments, and am entirely cured of my rheumatism. I feel like a new woman."

Sour Stomach

No appetite, loss of strength, nervousness, headache, constipation, bad breath, general debility, sour risings, and catarrh of the stomach are all due to indigestion. Kodol cures indigestion. This new discovery represents the natural juices of digestion as they exist in a healthy stomach, combined with the greatest known tonic and reconstructive properties. Kodol Dyspepsia Cure does not only cure indigestion and dyspepsia, but this famous remedy cures all stomach troubles by cleansing, purifying, sweetening and strengthening the mucous membranes lining the stomach.

Mr. S. S. Ball, of Ravenwood, Va., says: "I was troubled with sour stomach for twenty years. Kodol cured me and we are now using it in our household."

Advertiser Sermon

BY REV. DR. S. W. REIGART, Salisbury, Md.

The Lamentation Of Mary Magdalene.

John 20: 13. And they say unto her, "Woman, why weepest thou?" She said unto them, "Because they have taken away my Lord, and I know not where they have laid Him." The sight of a woman weeping by a tomb is as sad a picture as imagination can paint. It unseals the fountain of tears in our own eyes to behold the tears of a woman mourning the loss of a dear relative or friend. The Saviour of mankind had no more devoted followers than Mary Magdalene. None realized more deeply their obligation to Him, for by his power she had been delivered from the thralldom of seven indwelling demons, and she testified her gratitude in every possible way. Last at the cross, she was first at the sepulchre; and she came there not merely to give vent to her feelings, but bearing spices, to complete the anointing of His body, as we, in these days, carry flowers to adorn the graves of our dear ones.

Arriving however at the tomb her grief was turned to consternation at beholding that the stone which closed the sepulchre had been taken away, and the sepulchre itself was empty, and inferring at once that the tomb had been desecrated, she ran to tell Peter and John, (the beloved disciple) who came quickly to see for themselves, and finding their fears confirmed returned to their homes mystified in their minds. Mary, however, returning, lingered around the place, convulsed with sorrow. And as she wept, she stooped down and looked into the sepulchre. She was startled by seeing two men in white (angels they were, but she knew it not) sitting one at the head and one at the feet where the body of Jesus had lain, and to their inquiry, "Woman, why weepest thou," she replied, "Because they have taken away my Lord, and I know not where they have laid Him."

Had the Gospel narrative ended here—had a mist of uncertainty continued to hang around the tomb which contained the body of Jesus, and the disposition of that body never been known, how different the history of the world, how changed the state of the church! Nay, there had never been a church of Christ on earth—for the church is founded not on a dead, but on a living Lord—not merely on a Christ who was crucified for the sin of the world but a Christ who was "raised for our justification." The sadness of the Gospel story if it ended with the lamentation of Mary Magdalene, "They have taken away my Lord and I know not where they have laid Him," no tongue could describe, no pen depict. For, says Paul "if Christ be not risen, then is our preaching vain and your faith also vain. Yea, and we are found false witnesses of God because we have testified of God that he raised up Christ; whom he raised not up, if so be that the dead rise not. If in this life only we have hope in Christ we are of all men most miserable."

Let us consider for a few moments what would be the consequences if the story of the Resurrection of Christ were a fable, or in other words the Sun of Righteousness had set beneath a cloud. Christianity remember, is founded on Christ. If Christ be an impostor, or self-deluded, as he must be, if he rose not from the grave, according to his own prediction, then Christianity has no basis, and we who profess it are first, without such an object of worship as satisfies our reason and the longings of our hearts.

Whence do we get our noble conception of God? Is it not from the teachings and life of the Lord Jesus Christ? He came to reveal the Father, to correct and clarify the impressions men had of the Deity. "I and my Father," said he "are One," and only when we look at the life, the sacrifice and death of the Lord Jesus Christ do we see the love of God revealed. How different the God whom the Christians worship from the gods worshipped by the Greeks and Romans, the most cultured nations of the world in the time of Christ. Would the world, would we, suffer no loss if it were shown that we were mistaken in worshipping that God as is revealed in and through Christ? Dr. Van Dyke, in one of his beautiful stories called, "The Lost Word" describes the effect that would follow the obliteration from the memory of the name of the Christian's God.

A youth of the name of Hermas, living in Constantinople, in the early age of the church professed Christianity under the influence of the preaching of John of Antioch, known to us from his eloquence as the great Crysostom, i. e. "the golden mouthed". His father a man of great wealth disinherited him because he had left the gods of Greece for the service of the lowly Nazarine. Hermas, however, after awhile, like Demas, the companion of Paul, began to rue the bargain he had made. He thought of his gay companions, of the self denial of the Christian life and he felt that he had sold his birthright for a dream. Meeting in the grove of Daphne, M-reion, an old priest of Apollo, he told him of the dissatisfaction of his heart, when the priest promised him (as the Devil tempted Christ in the wilderness) that he should enjoy all the pleasures of the world in return for the memory of a single word, the name of Him whom Hermas had worshipped for two years. Hermas agreed to the condition thinking it a light one, and immediately resumed his gaily of spirits. Returning to his father's house he was met by a servant saying that his master was dying and had been calling for his son. The dying man welcomed his son and heir; then addressing him said that it was all dark before him and asked the secret of that faith which Hermas once gave up everything, "Oh! yes," said Hermas, "believe with all your heart in—". But he could not pronounce the name. It was gone from his memory. While he hesitated, groping for the name which he had uttered the night and morning for two years the old man's head fell back and Hermas was standing by the dead, and he was now the master of the house of the Golden Pillars. Time passed, Hermas married Athenais whom he loved dearly. A beautiful boy came to be his heir. He now had everything; wealth, honor, love, but he was restless. His life was incomplete. Athenais said that this unsatisfied longing showed the need of an expression of gratitude. Before an ancient shrine in his garden Hermas stood with his wife and child, to pour forth his gratitude for the blessings of life. "For all the good gifts of life we praise we thank—", he said, "From whom did all his blessings come? Alas, alas,—he was with out a worthy object to worship—without a God. A vague discontent deepened in his heart, he was like a seaman who has lost his compass and chart—He plunged recklessly into pleasure. Luxury and riches increased about him but he was far from happy. One day an accident befell his darling child and he was brought home on a litter at the verge of death. At last, Athenais said, "I have a power that can save him? Let us pray for his life," Hermas sank on his knees—Sperre the child's life—But there was no name on his tongue. He rose from the ground in despair. "Long ago," he cried, "I knew something that might have helped us,—but it is gone—gone—gone!"

Oh! friends, what should we do if the name of the God and Father of the Lord Jesus Christ were taken away from our lives and memory? Would we go back to the worship of the God of the Jews by animal sacrifices or the worship of the gods of Greece and Rome by foolish and licentious rites? If the modern critics or skeptics have "taken away my Lord, and I know not where they have laid Him", I am without a correct knowledge of God—without a Christ, without a Father in Heaven.

II. If at the end of our Lord's life on earth, there is either a sealed sepulchre or an empty one with only an "I know not where they have laid Him,"—we would be without any certain knowledge or means of salvation. In every man there is what Dr. Luthardt, the eminent Leipzig prof. has called "the memory of a lost home. We are all (said he) like exiles, exiles who long for the native land from which they have been driven away." A craving for a better future, a homesickness for a lost home, everywhere accompanies us. The sense of this was universal. We are not satisfied here and never will be. We are hungry and need bread, bread for the soul; we are thirsty and need life giving water; we are guilty and need pardon; we are sinful and need cleansing; we are lost and need salvation. Culture alone will not produce purity of heart. Philosophy will not bring us peace of mind. Invention has no remedy for sin. Science has discovered no balm for sorrow. The old cry of David is still heard: "Wash me from mine iniquity." The old question of Paul is still asked: "Who shall deliver me from the body of this death?" None of the sages of the world have found a ransom for the lost soul of man, nor provided a balm for the wounded heart. Nothing but a consciousness of the pity that dwelt in the Saviour's breast can bring comfort; and hope to the sick soul of man. Now He claimed the power to forgive sin. He asserted that He came to seek and to save the lost. He declared that He gave His life a ransom for the sin of the world. He proclaimed Himself the light and the life of men. He arrogated to Himself the title "Son of God" and "Saviour of the World," and He staked the truth of these assertions upon His resurrection from the dead. If then He be not risen,—but His body was carried off from the tomb we know not by whom, and deposited we know not where, we are without a sure knowledge or hope of salvation. We are yet in our sin, groping our way through a world of darkness, without a light or a guide, facing we know not what awful fate in the future.

III. If, we like Mary Magdalene, confront today an empty tomb, with nothing but the lamentation "They have taken away my Lord and I know not where they have laid Him" we ourselves would be without any firm assurance that an immortal life and a resurrection from the grave awaited us at last. "Christianity," says Dr. John Reid, "does not make immortality. That belongs to humanity. It is not a gift of Revelation. It is a gift of creation. The part ular part to be noticed is that apart from the true knowledge of God, the mere thought of immortality has of necessity no uplifting influence on human life. And the historic fact to be emphasized is that outside of the Jews this belief was not entertained by any large number of men as anything like a certainty. At the time of our Lord's man, even among the Jews, we found to accept the doctrine. The large sect of the Sadducees disbelieved it. But Christ illuminated immortality, brought it forth into its light by His Gospel. He proclaimed the fact of a future life, of a resurrection from the dead, of a rest that should be perfect, of glory that should be eternal and by His resurrection He put the seal of reality upon His words, practically demonstrating the truth of what He said. As the shutter opening lets in the light, so His resurrection was a hinge on which the world's night swung into morning." The fact of His resurrection is the promise and pledge of the resurrection of His followers. But without it, we should know nothing surely of what shall be. Hence the prominent place and emphasis given everywhere in the New Testament to the resurrection of our blessed Lord.

Paul proclaimed it. Peter preached it. John preached it. All of the apostles preached it. They preached it because they were witnesses of it. This thing was not done in a corner. The Jews knew it. The Roman soldiers knew it. The world knew it, and at the time of it. History has attested it. Not only Easter Sunday but every Lord's day is a memorial of it. The church has borne her testimony to it. "It is a signature that stands out with a testimony not to be gained,—a blessed assurance not to be broken." The grief of Mary Magdalene was so great as to blind her eyes to the sight of her Saviour. Hence it was He who addressed her. She thought it was the gardener. Let not our unbelief blind our hearts to the sight of our Risen Lord, nor close them to the voice of the Angels who cry from the empty tomb "He is not here, He is risen,—He is risen. Come, see the place where He lay." "Now is Christ risen from the dead and become the first fruits of them that sleep."

Artificial Diamonds. The manufacture of artificial diamonds by the aid of the electric furnace has been one of the goals of electric chemists since Moissan began his important experiments involving the production of light temperatures. This distinguished scientist, it will be remembered, was able to crystallize carbon and to obtain true diamonds, but they were of microscopic size, and attempts to produce larger crystals were fruitless. Recent experiments with the same purpose have been carried on in Germany by Ludwig, and while they did not result in diamonds of commercial size nevertheless they confirmed Moissan's theory that the carbon crystals known as diamonds are the result of extreme temperature, great pressure and sudden cooling. Where Moissan employed carbon dissolved in iron which was fused by the electric arc and was at the same time under high pressure, Ludwig used carbon alone, employing a bomb into which carbon electrodes were sealed, and which contained hydrogen, to produce the necessary pressure.—Harper's Weekly.

The Paralysis of Wealth. Upon the occasion of the presentation of an expensive loving cup recently to a New York merchant who was celebrating the semicentennial anniversary of his entry into business the recipient gave to the donors, his employees, advice on how to accumulate wealth. Many of those present had been identified with the firm headed by the cup receiver upward of a quarter of a century. Crosses dilated in extenso on the importance of observing frugality in small things, especially until the nucleus of a fortune had been established. He instanced as object lessons two points in his career. When incandescent mantles were introduced the magnate hesitated about adopting them in the counting room because of the expense involved. Only when it was demonstrated that economy could be effected would he apply "them to gas jets. During the Spanish war he paid the help in cash to save the cost of the revenue stamp tax, whereas formerly and since check payments were made.

American Waiters. "If you want to find an American waiter you must look for him in the cheap restaurants," said Oscar, maitre d'hotel of the Waldorf-Astoria. "An American waiter is seldom seen in a restaurant of the first class. In the beaneries you find none but Americans and Irish. In the expensive restaurants the waiters nearly all are French. In the middle class places they are German or English, but always foreign. "I can offer no explanation for this, but years of observation have taught me that it is a fact. It cannot be because of the incompetency of the American waiter. As a rule a man is served more quickly in a beanery than he is in a large restaurant. But the beanery waiters have a slapdash air about them that gives the customer to understand that they think they are just as good as he is. They shun anything like an air of servility. They don't seem to expect tips, and they don't get them. Perhaps that is why the American waiter is not sought for a high class restaurant."—New York Press.

"SAND PAINTINGS."

Pictures in Colored Earths Used In Navajo Indian Ceremonies. To paint a picture in ordinary oils or water colors, with a model to copy, is a difficult task enough to suit most people, but to paint a picture by dropping pinches of colored earth or sand on a smoothed ground surface and to paint it from memory exactly as some other artist painted it a year or more ago appears even more difficult. Such, however, is the process by which some tribes of American Indians reproduce from time to time pictures that are used in certain aboriginal ceremonies and that are believed to be exactly similar to original drawings that date back an unknown number of generations.

In the Peabody museum of Harvard university there is a colored model of one of these paintings that a member of the museum staff had the good fortune to see in process of actual construction, the picture being used in a ceremony performed to cure the illness of two members of a small Navajo village. It represents the four rain gods—one for each of the cardinal points of the compass—who are shown coming from a southern cloud, blue in color, which rises in turn from a black, white and yellow line symbolizing the north, east and west. The god of the north wind is black, of the south wind blue, of the west wind yellow and of the east wind white, and each carries a highly decorated tobacco pouch, containing also a ray of the sun, with which he is supposed to light his pipe. The combination of the sun with the rain, which the Indian imagination pictured the gods as sending, is symbolized by rainbow colors, red and blue, decorating the tobacco bags. From the left hand of each figure hangs a water bottle, a natural emblem of his office, while around the north, west and south sides of the picture is the rainbow, personified by a goddess.

The sand picture, which exists from year to year only in the memory of the medicine man, or shaman, who directs the making of it, is "drawn" on the floor of a sacred hut especially constructed, with its doorway carefully facing the east, from which direction the Indians believe no evil spirit need be expected. The medicine man has as his advisers and memory assistants several old men of the tribe who have participated in many a former ceremony of the kind. The actual "painters" are four young men of the tribe, who first lay a smooth foundation of brown sand and then, starting in the middle, move outward in either direction as the center of the design is finished. Each painter takes a pinch of sand of the necessary color and drops it in the proper place by rubbing it slowly between thumb and forefinger. In this way, line by line, the picture comes slowly into being until at the end of several hours a finished "painting" about 9 by 13 feet in size has been executed to the satisfaction of the chief medicine man and his experienced advisers.

Jacques Thibaud. Something of the career of Thibaud may be gathered from a sketch by A. Dandelot, editor of the Revue des Deux Mondes: "Thibaud was born at Bordeaux on Sept. 27, 1880, and it was under the guiding eye of his father that he began his musical education. He was nearing his ninth year when one day Ysaye came to play in Bordeaux. On leaving the stage at the end of the performance Ysaye caught sight of the child. "Are you pleased with me?" he asked. "Oh, yes," answered Jacques, "but I could play as well." "Laughing heartily at this audacity, Ysaye gave his violin to Jacques and asked him to play. Without a trace of nervousness the child seized the instrument and played one of the numbers that had just been interpreted by Ysaye. Moved almost to tears by his performance, Ysaye took his young colleague in his arms and proclaimed loudly that he would one day be the master of them all.

"At the age of thirteen Thibaud entered the Paris conservatoire and won a first honorable mention in 1895 and the first prize in 1896. He was immediately engaged by Edward Colonne as the first violin soloist of his orchestra. From that time dates the popularity of Jacques Thibaud in Paris."—London News.

DELMAR.

Miss Lillian Ellis spent Easter with her parents at Sharptown.

Mr. F. Leslie Barker returned Monday from a business trip to Wilmington.

Misses Cleve and Florence Hearn, of Fruitland, spent Easter at the guests of Miss Ada Remington.

Mr. Arthur Gordy, of Cradlockville, Va., visited friends in town this week.

Miss Lulu Barker has been the guest of relatives in Wilmington this week.

F. G. Elliott has on sale all kinds of garden seed at the lowest prices.

Messrs. T. A. Veasey, J. W. Anderson, and W. E. German spent Tuesday in Lewes in the interest of the new bank.

Mr. W. A. Wells, of Aberdeen, has been in town this week.

The Delmar Packing Co., is repairing their warehouse which was damaged some time ago.

Daniel J. Parker has purchased of John J. Culver the latter's farm situated about two miles from Delmar. The farms contains about 66 acres, and brought $3300.

Samuel F. Krause has returned to Delmar and again assumed charge of the bakery here.

Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Culver, of Philadelphia, who have been the guests of relatives here, are now visiting friends in Norfolk.

G. T. Jones has moved his residence on East Street.

G. T. Jones has moved his photography gallery from East Street to the lot adjoining W. N. Cannon's Drug Store.

Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Culver, of Philadelphia, who have been the guests of relatives here, are now visiting friends in Norfolk.

Geo. Barrows, by coming in contact with a switch lever Wednesday morning, had his head badly cut.

If you want noteheads, billheads, envelopes, posters, dodgers, programs, or other job printing at reasonable prices, try us. We guarantee excellent work that will give entire satisfaction.

Lumber is being sawed for the carriage repository to be built in the rear of the new bank by Mr. T. A. Veasey.

The Messick-Wilson Co., have shipped nearly all of their last season's pack of canned goods. They expect to pack this season.

Mr. Floyd Lecates has begun the erection of his residence on East Street.

Three more weeks of the oyster season, and the luscious Bivalve will take a back seat.

F. G. Elliott has purchased a gasoline engine that for utility is a marvel. It can be easily moved to any point, and will run any kind of machinery. Instead of bringing your wood to the mill the saw can go to your wood pile instead.

The building committee of the new bank is considering the erection of the banking house. There is talk of the building being built of a new building block made of sand and cement.

The prompt and efficient work of the Senate engrossing clerks, under the supervision of their chief, Mr. L. B. Ker, of Wicomico County, has been particularly complimented, and seldom has it ever been known that such promptness in the preparation and final engrossing of bills has existed. Mr. Ker is not a novice at the business, for he served as a clerk two years ago and his promotion this session was due to his indefatigable work and attention to duty and his propensity for preparing bills in good style and in quick time.

With legs crushed to the hip and his right arm crushed to the elbow, P. W. Lecates, a brakeman on an extra west bound freight train on the Baltimore and Ohio railroad was found shortly after dinner yesterday at the East Junction of the railroad.

When found life was still in the mangled body and Lecates was brought to the Nineteenth street crossing of the B. & O. Railroad and sent to the Delaware Hospital in the Phoenix ambulance where he died five minutes after being admitted. At what time the accident occurred or how the man lost his life will perhaps never be known, but the general supposition is that he was attempting to board the train which was going at a good rate of speed and fell beneath the wheels. The entire train consisting of fourteen cars is believed to have passed over him. The watch carried by the dead man stopped at exactly 1:30 p. m. and this is taken as an indication that it was at this time that Lecates made his fatal fall. The first news of the accident reached the Delaware avenue station about 1:45 and a work train was dispatched to the scene and brought the injured man to this city.

Dr. John Palmer, Jr., was summoned but he immediately discovered that medical assistance would avail nothing.

One of the injured man's legs was stripped to the bone and his shoes were torn from his feet. The hands were still covered with the gloves generally worn by brakemen.

Nothing seems to be known about

Lecates beyond that his home is at Delmar, where the remains are to be sent—Wednesday's Wilmington Morning News.

The unfortunate man is a son of Perry D. Lecates, of this town. He had been employed on the B. & A. for over two years. He was about thirty years old, and is survived by five brothers and two sisters. The remains were brought here yesterday (Thursday) for burial.

The following program has been selected to be presented at the musical to be held at the Opera House to-night (Friday) by the Delmar Cornet Band under the leadership of Prof. C. P. Snyder, of Union Bridge, Md.

RUSSIAN DISASTERS

Continue in The Orient. Large Battleship, Petropavlovsk, With Vice-Admiral, Officers And 700 Men Go Down. Torpedo Boat Sunk. Latest War News.

In addition to the sinking of the battleship Petropavlovsk and the death of Vice-Admiral Makaroff it was officially announced that the torpedo-boat destroyer Beztrashin was cut off from the rest of the Russian fleet at Port Arthur and sunk by the Japanese and that 45 of her crew were lost.

The battleship Pobieda, it was also declared accidentally struck a mine while maneuvering, but was able to return to the harbor without loss of life.

Later dispatches indicate, in the opinion of many, that the loss of the battleship Petropavlovsk, with Vice-Admiral Makaroff and more than 700 men, was probably caused directly by the Japanese fleet. An official dispatch from Rear-Admiral Urin received at Tokio reports the destruction of a Russian battleship and a destroyer by his fleet, and a dispatch from Chofu says that the Japanese fleet had previously laid mines along in front of the entrance of Port Arthur, one of which sank the battleship.

Some Russian officers believe the disaster to the Petropavlovsk was due to an explosion inside the vessel. Grand Duke Cyril's injuries are reported not to be severe, consisting of burns and bruises.

It is reported that Admiral Makaroff's entire staff was on the battleship when she went down.

Vice-Admiral Skrydloff, in command of the Black sea fleet, was appointed to succeed Vice-Admiral Makaroff.

Viceroy Alexieff has been ordered to Port Arthur to take command until a successor to Vice-Admiral Makaroff arrives.

The grief of the Russian people is said to be accompanied by an unshaken determination to continue the war to a successful issue.

An impressive requiem mass was celebrated in St. Petersburg for Admiral Makaroff and his men.

PROMINENT BUSINESS

Men To Address Monster Mass Meeting In Cause Of Temperance. In The Court House Tomorrow Afternoon. All Interested Expected To Be Present.

Arrangements are being made for the monster mass meeting to be held next Sunday, the 17th., at 3.00 o'clock in the Court House in the interest of the temperance cause. It is especially desirable that a large demonstration be made. Those interested in the cause should attend the meeting and by so doing manifest their interest in the cause. To win in this contest needs only the active support of its friends and that support is absolutely necessary. Begin to show this interest by attending this meeting.

Dr. F. M. Stemons will preside, and short addresses will be delivered by prominent business men of the town who will deal with the question in a thoroughly practical way in short, pointed and practical addresses. Resolutions will be offered pledging the temperance people to give the cause their active support at the election to be held April 26th.

Rev. M. J. Eckels, a former pastor of Wicomico Presbyterian Church who is visiting Salisbury will be asked to address the meeting. Music will be furnished by a quartette under the direction of Prof. W. T. Dashiell.

Building On Oak Hill.

Mr. R. Frank Williams, Real Estate Broker, has just contracted with Messrs. Fooks & Williams, builders, to erect for him six new dwellings on Oak Hill, this City. Three of these houses will be erected on Franklin Street three on Howard Streets. The houses will be six room cottages, with front and back porches, and modern in design. Mr. Williams says he has many inquiries for comfortable homes from parties who want to move to Salisbury, and it is his intention to make this section one of the most desirable parts of Salisbury. As a place to live it has many advantages, being high and well located, with the most perfect drainage, and within sight of the Wicomico river, at the same time only a few steps from Camden Avenue.

EPITHELIOMA
Covering One Side of Face and Reaching to the Eye
CURED BY CUTICURA

Which Acted Like a Charm After Doctors and Hospitals Failed.

Here is another of those remarkable cures of torturing, disgusting skin humors daily made by Cuticura Resolvent, assisted by Cuticura Ointment and Soap, after physicians, hospitals and all else had failed.

"I feel it my duty to try to help those suffering from skin diseases. My case was a very bad one covering all of one side of my face and had reached my eye. I had two or three doctors prescribe without any relief. They said my disease was Epithelioma. I was then advised to go to one of our hospitals, which I did, taking their treatment for some time. I had given up all hope when my husband asked me to try the Cuticura Remedies. My face being in such a very bad state, I used the Cuticura Soap with lukewarm water and a small silk sponge and then applied the Cuticura Ointment. I took one teaspoonful of the Resolvent four times a day. They acted like a charm, and in one week's time my face was cured entirely and has remained so. I certainly can recommend the Cuticura Remedies as infallible."

MRS. A. G. SMITH,

It is a party and sweetness, the power to afford immediate relief, the certainty of speedy and permanent cure, the absolute safety and great economy have made Cuticura Remedies the standard in cures, blood purifiers and humor drives of the world.

JOHN NELSON, Practical Painter.

BERLIN.

Mr. Henry Powell, of Norfolk, Va., was a guest of his father, Mr. John Powell Wednesday and Thursday.

Mr. Henry Jones, of Dover was a guest of the Atlantic over Sunday. One of his friends very much regretted being out of town and not reaching home until after his departure Monday morning.

Mr. Wilmer Purnell one of our prominent farmers made Baltimore a business visit from Friday until Monday.

Mr. Holland who spent a week of quietude and rest in Philadelphia and Wilmington has returned. Holland's friends were glad to see him return and so very much improved.

Miss Virgie Trader entertained her friend, Miss Hickman, of Ocean City last week, returning Monday.

Mr. Peter Whaley, of Bishopville, was made tax collector for the ensuing term, in Snow Hill, last Tuesday.

Stein Workman, who has been in Rayne's barber shop for months, left this week for Philadelphia and employment.

Mrs. Theodore Purnell visited her parents in Bishopville from Friday until Monday, returning accompanied by her niece, Miss Ada Laws who intends a short stay in our midst.

Mr. William Phillips was a guest of Mr. Alfred Collins a couple days returning to his home in Georgetown on the afternoon train Saturday.

Mrs. Annie Showell has been ill for weeks at her Ocean City cottage but under the care of Dr. Bagott is somewhat improved. Miss Nadine, a daughter, who was a visitor for a few days last week returned to school Monday.

Mr. E. S. Adkins, of Salisbury, came over on the noon train Monday, remaining as a guest of the Atlantic Monday night.

Mr. W. Lee Carey, of Baltimore City, our late representative to Annapolis, paid our town a business visit this week.

Miss J. D. Quillen, of Quilico, and Herbert Powell of Barboursville, spent the week in Baltimore and Philadelphia.

Mrs. J. Edward Brooks and two children, also Miss Gay Harrington a sister of Mrs. Brooks left Thursday for Baltimore and after a short visit will spend a month at the home of a brother, Mr. John Harrington, Annapolis.

Mr. Robert Waters of Baltimore City, attended the funeral of Mrs. Dixon, Saturday.

Mr. Thomas Taylor who for the past year has been making his home in St. Louis, Mo., returned to Berlin for a short visit, Tuesday.

Mr. William C. Franklin was a guest of the family, on the Hill, from Saturday until Monday, taking the morning train for Baltimore.

Mr. Edward S. Furlush, our new postmaster, has shown the property holders of Berlin how decidedly a fresh coat of paint will improve the looks of things.

Rev. Mr. Gantt will visit North Elk Parish on Sunday to view the field to which he was recently called. There will be no services at St. Paul's, Berlin, on Sunday.

The sudden start of his team whilst loading at Davis brick-yard Wednesday unfortunately caught John Baker foul, throw him, and before he could extricate himself. One of the wheels passed over him breaking his leg. Dr. Jno. Pitts will no doubt take him through his troubles safely.

To the regret of his numerous friends Mr. Edward Kurtz has severed all connections with the Atlantic Hotel and returned to his Jersey home, Westville, on Wednesday afternoon. Ned was a social, genial, pleasant companion and guests of the house regret his departure. We predict for him success and good friends, located no matter where.

Mrs. Savage made her return trip from Philadelphia, Monday night. Miss Rydie, who had intended resuming school duties, was compelled to accompany her mother back, her eyes being pronounced not yet strong enough to the confinement and pursuit of studies.

A wee little lady who will soon be proud to possess the name of Julia was an addition to the fortunate household of Mr. and Mrs. Theron Hanley last Friday. Theresa's dainty little dimple and smile of complacency Saturday morning was sufficient for his friends to realize that all was well. May her young life be strewn with cowslips, sweet peas and forget-me-nots.

Mr. Roger B. Adams last week made Baltimore, his old home state, a business visit. During his stay he was highly entertained and deeply impressed by the lecture of an old college chum, now a minister and located near Harrington. Mr. Adams was at his desk Tuesday morning looking hale and hearty.

Dr. and Mrs. William Thomas Hearn have issued cards and announced the marriage of their daughter Marion Frances to Mr. Charles Ogilvie Elgin, Wednesday, April the twenty-seventh, at twelve o'clock. St. Paul's by the Sea, Protestant Episcopal Church, Ocean City, Md.

Mrs. Edw. Tyler, of Baltimore, will spend a week or two at Dr. James O. Diricksen's on Main Street. Jones Tyler, a younger member is also enjoying the liberties and hospitalities of the household.

OCEAN CITY.

Mrs. Shreve was in Ocean City the past week looking after her property, the Pimblimmon. She was accompanied by her manager, Mr. James.

Mr. Augustus Parker of Pocomoke City spent Tuesday with Mr. and Mrs. John Showell.

Messrs. Cropper & Trimper are painting and repairing the Eastern Shore Hotel which they purchased a few weeks ago.

Piling is being driven in front of the U. S. Life Saving Station and other buildings to protect them from the high seas.

Mr. Harry Trader spent Sunday and Monday very pleasantly with his mother in Berlin.

A young stranger arrived at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Ansley Ludlam during the past week.

A few sturgeon are being caught. Think there will be a larger catch later on as the last despatch from them stated they were on their way up.

Miss Hickman was the guest of Miss Virgie Trader of Berlin, last Sunday.

Mrs. Jas. H. Munford left on the 6.40 train Monday morning enroute for Wilmington and Philadelphia.

A festival will be held at the Mt. Vernon, Friday night, April 15.

Strangers are coming down renting cottages for the coming season. Looks as though we will have a few people here this summer any how.

While There is Life There is Hope. I was afflicted with catarrh; could neither taste nor smell and could hear but little. Ely's Cream Balm cured it. Marcus G. Shultz, Rahway, N. J.

Cream Balm reached me safely and the effect is surprising. My son says the first application gave decided relief. Respectfully, Mrs. Franklin Freeman, Dover, N. H.

T. W. WOOD & SONS Are Headquarters For Cow Peas and Soja Beans

Cow Peas make a large yielding and most nutritious hay crop even on poor or medium land, and the roots and stubble plowed under improves both the condition and productivity of the soil leaving it in much better condition than before the crop was grown.

Mammoth Yellow Soja Beans unquestionably make the richest and most nutritious feed crop grown on the farm. Equally valuable grown either as a hay crop or for the beans. Better than linseed or cotton seed meal for fattening stock.

Full information about these valuable crops in Wood's Seed Book for 1901. Write for it and Special Price List of Seasonable Seeds.

A DEED OF DARKNESS.

One of the evangelists, speaking of the treachery of Judas, after having narrated the traitor's exit from the scene of the last supper, significantly adds, "And it was night."

I have often thought of that four-worded phrase. How aptly it introduces the deed of the wretched man who brought about the arrest of the Master! Under cover of the gloom that wrapped the city of Jerusalem, he goes forth to ply his nefarious trade of delivering the Lord into the bloody grasp of the Jewish authorities. Not beneath the glare of the sunshine will he barter away the life of Christ for the paltry price of a slave. The glory of the day would blush to cast his shadow upon the ground. Fiendish work must be done in the dark.

The assassin's blow must be struck after the sunshine has withdrawn itself from the heavens. Evil must have an appropriate hour for its business. See him yonder skulking along the pavements! Behold him shrinking from every pedestrian! View him sneaking into the presence of the chief priests! "And it was night."

The fields of virtue are not ashamed to be reaped under the eyes of witnesses. Satan prefers to send forth his seed sowers and fruit gatherers when the earth has turned away upon her axis from the glances of the sunbeams. Night is the harvest time of wickedness. Therefore in the night Judas scorching the palm of his hand with the hell-coin of perfidy. Deed of darkness unfit for day light!

In like manner do all the sins that swarm over this world of ours labor principally in the night. Were we, during any night of even this boasted twentieth century, suddenly gifted with vision divine, how would our cities and towns appear to our gaze as the very purloins of perdition! Such sights would rival Dante's dream, filling the mind with images of horror. The wonder is that God does not smite human iniquity to death and tumble the cancer-eaten corpse into the deepest hell. How dangerous it would be to let mortal hands take hold of His thunderbolts!

Out of that night in which Judas sold the Lord issued the crucifixion. But God overruled the traitor's deed of darkness, and gave the world a blessing, the radiance of which is flashing to the uttermost parts of the earth. The lifting of the Cross of Christ was the dawning of everlasting light. The crucifixion was followed by the rising again of the Messiah from the grave. This was the pledge of the final victory over the powers of evil. These shall be destroyed by the brightness of the Lord's coming to earth the second time. Then there shall be no more night. Hallelujah!

Just how the decrees of God are carried to their completion by human agency we know not. Many brains have tried to peer into that mystery, but have been baffled by the shadows over it and around it. The philosophy of the matter is beyond our ken. We see the fact, but we cannot discern the hidden link that binds the free will of men to the sovereignty of God. Yet we are assured of the truth that the Lord causes even the wrath of mankind to praise Him. There must we rest contented.

How was it with Judas? He realized the awful guilt that his betrayal incurred. Lashed by the scorpion-whip of conscience, he rushed headlong to suicide. He certainly felt himself to be responsible for the criminality of that night. No force, save his own unfettered intention, drove him to the commission of his deed of darkness. Nevertheless, he furthered God's plan. "And it was night."

But the night fled, retreating from the advancing dawn; and in the glory of the after day we beheld appeared the Cross that proclaims the love of God for a ruined race. In the silver break of the third morning we look upon the door of Christ's sepulchre rolled away by angelic hand and the empty tomb, those telling of the triumph of the Resurrection. Victory!

Yes, John, beloved disciple, it was night when thy fellow-apostle went forth—a night whose shadows were folded in hell; night whose air was fanned by demon wings; a night in which all the denizens of perdition clapped their flaming hands in glee. This was a type of the moral night that during four millenniums had rested heavily over the world. But as that Thursday night was merged into the Good Friday of redemption, and soon came the Lord's Day, so shall this longer and deeper night of the earth's curse and shame be brought to an end, bursting into the eternal effulgence of the glorified Christ. The mouth of God hath spoken it. God cannot lie. His purposes cannot fail. Even the slaves of Satan, in the performance of their own wills, are advancing the supreme will of Him who sits upon the one absolute throne of the universe.

William Henry Bancroft.

Letter to Jay Williams. Dear Sir:—As your business is to get people into and out of trouble, suppose you consider their pain; it makes 'em almost as much trouble as money, except of course matrimony.

They buy poor paint a good deal; they don't mean to; they don't know any better; they buy without thinking. Bad paint isn't good. It looks good enough for a year, then begins to rot rusty; but changes so slowly, one don't notice it.

Looking isn't all. The business of paint is to keep a house dry inside, the wood and iron of it; keep it from rotting and rusting. Takes good paint to do it. Good and bad paint are sold at one price or about that. One can't go by the price at all; as with lawyers, the price has nothing to do with goodness or badness; and costs are worse yet; the painter and sheriff combine for their share.

But the probability is that a man, who paints Devoe, will come out on top. Yours truly, F. W. DEVOE & CO. The L. W. Gandy Co. sell our paint.

DEMOCRATIC DATES

Selected for Meeting Of State Convention And The Several Congressional District Conventions, First To Meet At Ocean City, August 10.

A harmonious and optimistic gathering of Democrats took place at the Eutaw House in Baltimore, Wednesday, when the Democratic State Central Committee met.

They named dates and places for State Convention and the six Congressional conventions. The State Convention will be held at Ford's Opera House on May 26 at noon.

Congressional conventions for the purpose of nominating candidates for Congress in the several Congressional districts of the State, will meet at the hour of 12 o'clock noon, as follows:

For the First Congressional district at Ocean City, August 10.

For the Second Congressional district at Havre de Grace, August 18.

For the Third Congressional district at Philanthropy Hall, August 25.

For the Fourth Congressional district at Russell's Hall, August 25.

For the Fifth Congressional district at Cross-Street Hall, September 8.

For the Sixth Congressional district at Rockville, September 28.

In making his address to the Committee Chairman Vandiver said:

"You have come together now to make preparation for our Presidential and Congressional contest. With well-established party precedents before us, we shall have no difficulty in arranging all the needed details promptly and harmoniously; but before you begin deliberations it is my happy privilege to thank you on behalf of the Democracy of the State for your thorough work in the last campaign, crowned as your exertions were with such complete success, and to congratulate the party upon the excellent record of our Legislature. The people were with us at the polls. Their representatives in the General Assembly measured up to the public expectations in the face of serious obstacles, and we have a right to feel confident that in November next we shall be able to rejoice in another triumph of our now thoroughly reunited Democracy.

Former Governors Smith and Jackson were both present, the latter being a member of the committee on Resolutions.

TEMPERANCE FORGES HAVE OVERFLOW MEETING

At Court House Sunday Afternoon. Situation Discussed From Moral And Business Standpoints, Several Scores Could Not Get Inside The Crowded Room. Largest Public Meeting In Local History Of The Movement. Impressive Addresses.

The Mass-meeting advertised to take place last Sunday proved a great success, both in numbers and in interest. It proved beyond question that there is no slackening of interest in the cause. The Court House was filled to overflowing long before the hour for the exercises to begin—not with curiosity seekers, or loiterers, but with those interested in the cause, who were willing "to stand up and be counted" with those who are making this fight. The call was made especially to those who signed the petition, asking for legislation prohibiting the sale of whiskey, from the last legislature. They were present and showed their determination to see the matter through to the end. There is to be no "lay down" in this matter.

At the appointed hour the meeting was called to order by Mr. Thos. Perry, chairman of the committee appointed to arrange for the meeting. Dr. F. Marion Slemmons was made chairman. On taking the chair he asked for a musical selection from the audience, under the direction of Prof. W. T. Dashiell; this was followed by prayer, led by Dr. Smith. The meeting was then open for business; thereupon Mayor C. R. Disharoon offered these resolutions for the purpose of recording the sentiments of the meeting, and especially for pledging the meeting to the support of the cause.

Whereas, The Legislature of Maryland during its recent session passed an act directing that an election be held in Delmar and Salisbury Districts, Wicomico county, on Tuesday, April 26th, 1904, at which the registered voters will determine by their ballots the question: Whether the sale of intoxicating liquors as a beverage in Delmar and Salisbury Districts shall be by law prohibited or licensed, and

Whereas, The peace and sobriety, happiness and prosperity of our community would be greatly improved by the total extinction of the liquor traffic in our midst, now, therefore, be it

Resolved, That it is the duty of every citizen of Delmar and Salisbury Districts, who believes in the suppression of the saloon by law, to leave his work and go to the polls on Tuesday, April 26 and vote against license.

Resolved, That firmly believing in the righteousness of our cause we pledge ourselves to do our utmost to secure its triumph at the polls.

The business of the meeting was then fairly opened. These resolutions were seconded by quite a number of prominent citizens present, including Messrs. A. J. Benjamin, W. B. Miller, L. W. Gunby, E. S. Adkins, James E. Ellegood, William Bell, Rev. Mervin J. Eckels, of Philadelphia, Rev. Dr. Reigart and Rev. C. A. Hill in earnest and impressive speeches, remarks of some being given below in synopsis. The point was urged by all the speakers that the success of the cause was absolutely in the hands of its friends and not its opponents. If its friends did their duty success was assured, and without this the cause could not win.

After the speeches a rising vote was taken which indicated the resolutions were adopted unanimously, the meeting then adjourned after benediction by Dr. Eckels.

Mr. Walter B. Miller.

Mr. Miller, after complimenting Mr. Benjamin's remarks, which he said fully covered the argument, said that it would probably be a matter of interest to the audience, and he hoped of some benefit to the cause to know why he had so radically changed his attitude to the temperance question. He assumed that it was known to many of the company that for years he had held, with many others, that a larger measure of temperance could be secured by a well restricted liquor traffic under a license law, than by an effort to stop the drinking of intoxicating beverages by closing the saloons, but after carefully watching the effect of the law passed in 1890, which embodied many good restraining features, he was willing to surrender his opinion in favor of trying the experiment of closing the saloons—not that he abandoned the idea that a well regulated sale of liquor would not better accomplish the result of a larger amount of temperance, but because of the apparent impossibility of getting men to sell liquor as the letter and spirit of the law directed. He mentioned several violations of the law by the liquor dealers, which the latter excused by saying that all the saloon keepers were equally guilty. The fair promises made before the first of May were remembered but a few days after the license had been granted, and the continued intemperance of many well known drinking characters convinced him of the futility of expecting any co-operation in the interest of temperance from men who sold liquor. He realized that speakeasies, clubs and private supplies of liquor would probably result from the closing of the saloons, which was greatly to be deplored, but the object lesson furnished by the temperate and orderly

A JAPANESE THEATRE

Party Given At "Millbank" By The Traveller's Club. The Members Provide Most Royal Entertainment For Their Guests. Oriental Colors And Themes.

"Millbank," the hospitable home of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Johnson, was transformed into a bower of palms and blossoms on Thursday evening, when "The Traveller's Club" entertained their friends at a theatre party of unusual attractiveness. The hangings of rich draperies, gorgeous in oriental colorings the rows of Japanese lanterns, casting a glamour over the scenery, the banks of pine needles, forming a background for the fragrant and delicate fruit blossoms; the quaint and charming figures of the Geisha girls, transported one swiftly on fancy's wings to the Land of the Cherry Blossom and the Rising Sun.

Two plays were presented during the evening, each representing a Japanese City which the Club had visited during its tour of the Orient last winter. The first was laid in New York, and the curtain rose upon a charming scene of Christmas cheer, with Misses Maria Ellegood, Nellie Fish and Elizabeth Wallis, awaiting the arrival of their guests, Dr. Graham, Mr. A. D. Tondvine and Mr. F. P. Adkins, who with much fun, assisted in hanging impossible gifts upon the branches of a brilliantly illuminated tree. When Mr. Tondvine attached a diminutive hobby-horse on one of the highest branches, the audience gained their clue to the subject of the play—Nagasaki. The scene closed most effectively with the clock striking the midnight hour and a chorus of men's voices in "Goodnight Ladies!"

In the succeeding acts the play progressed from a most taking farewell scene between Dr. Graham and Miss Ellegood, on the eve of her departure to Japan, to a scene in the "Tea House of the Rising Sun." When the whole American party, seated on the floor in true Japanese style, were served with "Soki" by the geisha girls, Miss Katharine Todd and Mrs. M. A. Humphreys, and Mrs. Humphreys charmed the audience by a song, the "Jewel of Asia." Mrs. M. V. Browington, as a maiden aunt, and Mr. J. D. Williams, an elderly bachelor, met in a most unexpected manner and convulsed the audience by their mishaps. Mr. L. E. Williams, Mrs. Durham and Mr. M. V. Browington were typical New Yorkers and Miss Dora Tondvine, a maid, whose services would render her dear to all housekeepers.

During the entire act the Geisha girls, Mrs. Adkins, Mrs. Humphreys, Miss Ellegood, Miss Nellie Fish, Miss Grace Ellegood, led by Mrs. John Williams, and equipped with fans, parasols, and all the paraphernalia of flirtation, sang one of their fetching songs.

The second play presented was the "Sights and Insights of the Hobbs Family" which describes the rise of a country family from poverty to sudden wealth and their adventures in Japan. Mr. W. S. Gurdy and Miss Emma Powell, as Mr. and Mrs. Hobbs, with Miss Reigart, Miss Mary Lee White and Mr. Frank Gunby, their irrepressible family, brought down the house by their incomparable humor. Miss Letitia Houston was a typical Gypsy fortune teller, who by disclosing the secret of hidden treasures opened vistas of wonders before the eyes of the Hobbs.

Among the objects of interest in the Shionin Temple, Kioto, was an image of Buddha, impersonated by Mr. Douglas, who regarded with impressive countenance, the crowds of devotees, and a party of tourists, (conducted by Mr. Cleveland White, with facility and grace) under whose fantastic garb we recognized the now widely travelled Hobbs. An English Lord, Mr. W. M. Cooper, who attaches himself to the party is immediately captivated by wily Mrs. Hobbs for one of her fair daughters.

She regards with ambitious eyes, the attentions of "Dave" to one of the "brond Endicotts," Miss Graham and Miss Mary Houston, and beams expansively on a French teacher, Mrs. H. S. Todd, and her pupils, Miss Johnson and Miss Victoria Wallis.

The climax of her ambition was reached in the final scene, when her daughter, Miss Reigart, in bridal veil stands at the head of a beautiful table, by the side of her English Lord and a toast is drunk to "The Bride." Mr. Douglas, the Admiral, offered one to the Navy, after which Mr. White rose to honor the "Travellers Club."

Here's to a band whose fertile brain circles the globe in a special train. A train of thought which tours each land from Tibbet's pastures to London strand, And sees the wonders of mother earth. From a cosy chair on a freight heath. I drink to the Travellers Club."

Miss Mary Houston bade farewell to Japan and offered the toast to America, and the curtain fell amidst waving flags, and the party singing "America in a burst of loyalty. Ices, cakes, nuts, bon bons, etc., were served in Japanese style, and audience and actors mingled in Cosmopolitan freedom.

Mrs. F. P. Adkins Entertains At Large Afternoon Reception.

Mrs. F. P. Adkins gave a beautifully arranged tea and reception at her home on Poplar Hill Avenue Wednesday afternoon from four to six, in honor of Mrs. F. U. Barnes and Mrs. F. J. Lloyd, of Pocomoke City. Floral decorations added much in the general attractiveness of the appointments.

The hostess and her Worcester County guests formed the reception committee. The decorations were white and green.

Mrs. William Sheppard presided at the punch table, assisted by Mrs. Graham Gunby and Miss Maria Ellegood.

In the dining room were Miss Alice Hunt, of Ellicott City, Md., Miss Lizzie Collier, Miss Mary Lee White, Miss Marian Veasey and Miss Bertha Sheppard.

Mrs. E. S. Adkins presided at the coffee table.

"POOR DIGESTION, LANGUID AND TIRED."

MISS DELLA JANVEAU

Miss Della Janveau, Globe Hotel, Ottawa, Ont., is from one of the oldest and best known French Canadian families in Canada. In a recent letter to The Peru-na Medicine Co., of Columbus, Ohio, she says:

"Last spring my blood seemed clogged up, my digestion poor, my head ached and I felt languid and tired all the time. My physician prescribed for me, but a friend advised me to try Peru-na. I tried it and am pleased to state that I found it a wonderful cleanser and purifier of the system. In three weeks I was like a new woman, my appetite had increased, I felt buoyant, light and happy and without an ache or pain. Peru-na is a reliable family medicine."

Adia Brittain, of Sekitan, O., writes: "After using your wonderful Peru-na three months I have had great relief. I had continual heaviness in my stomach, was bilious, and had fainting spells, but they all have left me since using Peru-na."

If you do not derive prompt and satisfactory results from the use of Peru-na, write at once to Dr. Hartman, giving a full statement of your case and he will be pleased to give you his valuable advice gratis. Address Dr. Hartman, President of The Hartman Sanitarium, Columbus, O.

PROHIBITION IS A FAILURE

Read the Testimony of Eminent Statesmen, Ministers, Lawyers and Others Where it Has Been Tried.

The prohibition question has long been a source of agitation in many States. Many of the leading citizens of various States have opposed the passage of prohibitory laws, while many others have favored them.

PROMINENT STATE OFFICIALS AND EMINENT STATESMEN.

ABRAHAM LINCOLN.—"Prohibition will work great injury to the cause of temperance. It is a species of intemperance within itself, for it goes beyond the bounds of reason in that it attempts to control a man's appetite by legislation, and in making crimes out of things that are not crimes."

HORATIO SEYMOUR.—"I owe it to the subject and to the friends of the measure to add the expression of my belief, that intemperance cannot be exterminated by prohibitory laws; they are not consistent with sound principles of legislation."

GENERAL U. S. GRANT.—"I know from my own experience that when I was at West Point the fact that tobacco in every form was prohibited, and the mere possession of the weed severely punished, made a majority of the cadets, myself included, try to acquire the habit of using it."

THOMAS F. BAYARD.—"So far as my experience goes, a well-regulated system of license or rebury revenue is largely brought into the public treasury, coupled with severe penalties for illicit sales, has provided the most efficient check upon the abuse of the liquor traffic."

THADDEUS STEVENS.—"I should be glad if legislation could cure intemperance, but I have seen it tried and tried in vain. I do not believe that sumptuary laws ever had any effect to stop abuses in any country."

HON. CHARLES F. LIBBY, PORTLAND, MAINE. (Ex-President State Senate, Ex-Mayor of Portland and State's Attorney.) "I kept a record of all these men and the number of times they came before me. I looked it all over to see what I had accomplished at the end of my term. I found that I had driven out of the business one set of men and another had come in, and so far as I can judge from my experience, the last set of men engaged in the business was worse than the first."

WHAT EMINENT MINISTERS SAY:

DR. HOWARD CROSBY.—"Prohibition throws wide open the flood gates of vice. An inoperative law is no law at all. There is the unlicensed vice which feels its temporary freedom and is prepared to make the most of it."

REV. DR. NEWTON SMYTH.—"Years ago, when I lived in the State of Maine, I was an ardent prohibitionist. But I have lived long enough and watched the operation of the prohibitory law in Maine closely enough to become convinced that it is not the best means of serving the cause of temperance."

WHAT THE PAPERS SAY.

THE CHRISTIAN UNION.—"It has been once tried in Massachusetts, and ignominiously failed. It is, according to all accounts, a failure in Rhode Island. In Ohio, a similar provision in the Constitution, prohibiting license, gave over to the State for years to free liquor, and made Cleveland a word and a reproach."

NEW YORK WORLD.—"A World correspondent has made an extended tour of the State of Maine, and presents the facts as they came under his careful observation in relation to the working of the liquor law. Liquor is produced without difficulty in Portland, Bangor, Bath, Belfast, Lewiston, found 144 places where intoxicants were sold in some form or other, and he estimates that there are as many as 2,500 open bars in the State."

IN THE FACE OF SUCH UNIMPEACHABLE TESTIMONY WILL THE PEOPLE OF SALISBURY TRY THE EXPERIMENT OF PROHIBITION, WHICH HAS PROVEN SUCH A FAILURE ELSEWHERE.

BERLIN.

The Authorities of Dagoboro had the nerve to pass an ordinance ordering all dogs that frequent the streets to be muzzled from the 16th. of April to the 16th. of October.

O. S. Wimbrow, of Chincoteague, is now the champion, having caught a Rock fish, weighing sixteen and one half pounds.

Mr. Elliott Waggaman and party of friends from Washington City spent the week at Ocean City, making the Shamrock headquarters.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Porter spent Sunday and Monday with the Rev. Mr. Hardesty in Whitesville.

Miss Maud Whaley, of Bishopville, was a guest of her sister, Mrs. John Kras from Saturday until Tuesday.

Miss Isabelle Kenly, after six weeks visit among relations and friends made her return to Baltimore, Saturday.

Mr. Oliver Johnson is at present at a loss how to spend his time, having wound up planting corn Wednesday. Many of our farmers have yet to finish breaking ground.

Mrs. Geo. Hammond left Thursday for a month's visit in Magnolia, Del., and Philadelphia, leaving the keys in Miss Clara's possession, who during her mother's absence will assume all responsibilities as well as contribute to the pleasure and comfort of the household.

Bricks have been dropped and the broken pavement so long out of repair and neglected on Main Street will be replaced. A stitch in time saves many untimely repairs.

Miss Lizzie Tilghman and Miss Lizzie Gibbs are paying Baltimore a business visit this week.

Mr. Fred Rayne left Tuesday for Wilmington, Del., and will again consult his physician, being out of health generally.

Several fine row Sturgeon were caught and shipped from Ayres and Hogan's nets last week, Chincoteague. Mr. Ayres stopped in Berlin Monday, en route to the Island, and reports the season's prospect good.

Mr. Levin Dirickson, in the interest of the shirt factory, made Baltimore City a business visit this week.

Mr. E. G. Kenly was in Annapolis this week, and a guest at the home of Gov. Edwin Wardell.

Miss Margaret Selby Jacobs, of Showell's was a visitor of Miss Ethel Gantt's from Saturday until Monday, joining the Misses Bettie and Margaret Parnell in a taffy pulling, Saturday night.

Mr. Thomas Happy Taylor, who recently returned from a twelve months experience in Missouri, has once more accepted a position at the Atlantic Hotel, and seemingly as much at home as if the connection had never been severed. Taylor was always a favorite with the guests of the house and the boys are delighted to have him back again.

The remains of Mrs. Anne Maria Patty Townsend were brought from Wilmington on the noon train Wednesday by her husband, Mr. Thomas Townsend, and placed by the side of her first husband, who was Edward J. Patty, in the Episcopal Churchyard. Accompanying the remains were her son and wife, Mr. and Mrs. Powell Patty, Philadelphia; and daughter, Mrs. H. T. Latta, of Cleveland, Ohio; and Mrs. Emma Massey, of Wilmington, Del. She was also the mother of Mrs. Harry Jarvis, of this town. The full funeral service was held in St. Paul's, by the Rector, Rev. Mr. Gantt, she being a member of St. Andrew's, Wilmington, Del.

The Easter music will be repeated Sunday morning in Christ Church, Tulphocken and McCallum Streets, Germantown, Pa., and at night Calkins, Magnificent and Nunc Dimittis, in G will be sung, with the solos by Miss Virginia Varrington and Mr. Pessant. During the offertory Miss Warrington will sing "I know that my Redeemer liveth," from Handel's Messiah. The satisfactory rendering of "The Throne of Calvary" by the choir on good Friday attracted a large congregation. Miss Warrington was born, and for a number of years a resident of Berlin, now making her home in Philadelphia, but still still living Ocean City during the summer. Her many old friends well remember her musical ability and lovely gift of voice.

The pupils of the Buckingham High School will give an entertainment Friday, April 30th., in the High School Hall. Doors open at 7:30 o'clock, commencing at 8 o'clock.

PROGRAM.

First Play, "The Pull Back." Characters: Mrs. A. Oldtyle, Miss Virginia Trader; Susanny, Miss Ruth Hammond; Henrietta, Miss Maud Bowen; Adelaide, Miss Jimmie Massey; Gertrude, Miss Virginia Davis; Lou Crane, Miss Louise Powell. A LESSON IN ETHICS.

There are volcanoes once active, belching fire, now silent. Not even a wreath of smoke crowns their craters. But not so with the mountain from which the Almighty thundered the Moral Law. While the world rolls around the sun Sinai shall not become extinct. The Ten Commandments are still in force even after the lapse of centuries.

There are many professedly upright persons however who slight the principles contained in God's words from the summit of Mt. Sinai. One of the commonest of these violations of divine law is that of stealing. Hundreds there are who would scorn to break into a neighbor's house or even to pick his pocket but who nevertheless are often guilty of theft.

Another form of theft is that often practiced upon railroad companies. It is said that corporations have no soul. In many instances that may be true. But there are thousands who are willing to make use of the conveniences that corporations offer and who are likewise thin in regard to soul essence. To cheat a railroad company out of a fare is to many an achievement worthy of boast.

of a parent stealing a ride for him on a train of cars? A boy was once reprimanded for playing in front of his house on the Sabbath. His mother called him in, telling him to go out into the back yard and play. Said the boy, "Mamma, isn't it Sunday in the back yard?" So does this commandment against stealing cover every part of life.

There is no place where its lightning does not flash and its thunder roll. If you wish to stand at the judgment seat of God uncondemned, both here and hereafter, then see to it that you slight not any of God's Moral Law. It was for this very thing that Christ denounced the Pharisees of His day. They were particular about unessential observances of religion, but neglected obligations that were weighty.

Backache

The ordinary every-day life of most of our women is a ceaseless treadmill of work. How much harder the daily tasks become when some derangement of the female organs makes every movement painful and keeps the nervous system all unstrung. One day she is wretched and utterly miserable; in a day or two she is better and laughs at her fears, thinking there is nothing much the matter after all; but before night the deadly backache reappears, the limbs tremble, the lips twitch—it seems as though all the imps of Satan were clutching her vitals; she "goes to pieces" and is flat on her back. No woman ought to arrive at this terrible state of misery, because these symptoms are a sure indication of womb diseases, and backache is merely a symptom of more serious trouble. Women should remember that an almost infallible cure for all female ills, such as irregularity of periods, which cause weak stomach, sick headache, etc., displacements and inflammation of the womb, or any of the multitudes of illnesses which beset the female organism may be found in

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

When a medicine has been successful in more than a million cases, why should you say, "I do not believe it would help me"?

Will not the volumes of letters from women who have been made strong by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound convince others of the virtues of this great medicine?

Surely you cannot wish to remain weak and sick and discouraged, exhausted with each day's work. If you have some derangement of the feminine organism try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. It will surely help you.

GET ADVICE AND HELP FREE.

If there is anything in your case about which you would like special advice, write freely to Mrs. Pinkham. She will hold your letter in strict confidence. She can surely help you, for no person in America can speak from a wider experience in treating female ills. Address is Lynn, Mass.; her advice is free and helpful.

MISS PEARL ACKERS.

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:—About two years ago I consulted a physician about my health, which had become so wretched that I was no longer able to do about. I had severe backache, bearing-down pains, pains across the abdomen, was very nervous and irritable, and this trouble grew worse each month.

"The physician prescribed for me, but I soon discovered he was unable to help me, and I then decided to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and soon found that it was doing me good. My appetite was returning, the pains disappearing, and the general benefits were well marked.

"You cannot realize how pleased I was, and after taking the medicine for only three months, I found I was completely cured of my trouble, and have been well and hearty ever since and no more fear of the monthly period, as it now passes without pain to me. Yours very truly,

"MISS PEARL ACKERS, 327 North Summer St., Nashville, Tenn."

Cow Peas and Soja Beans

Cow Peas make a large yielding and most nutritious hay crop even on poor or medium land, and the roots and stubble plowed under improves both the condition and productivity of the soil leaving it in much better condition than before the crop was grown.

Mammoth Yellow Soja Beans unquestionably make the richest and most nutritious feed crop grown on the farm. Equally valuable grown either as a hay crop or for the beans. Better than linseed or cotton seed meal for fattening stock.

A FREAK OF DESTINY.

A tall, narrow, prosperous appearing man with a well-defined scowl was left by the express flyer at Noonah station, and as he waited, valise in hand, he looked about him with the air of one who was not altogether a stranger. Observing a public conveyance he beckoned as one accustomed to being obeyed to the man in charge, and manifested no surprise when that individual took his own time to respond. Noonah people were slow and independent, and the newcomer had not forgotten that fact.

"You don't seem in any hurry to get a fare," he said, peevishly, as he stepped into the vehicle.

"You didn't expect maybe that I wuz a-goin' to drive up on the platform, now did ye?" drawled the driver, "where might ye be wantin' to stop at?"

"Take me to the best hotel."

"All right. I'll take ye to the Columbus. Git up, Jinny, git up, Jack. Say, if ye hev any baggage the express wagon will fetch it up."

At the hotel—a fine new building—the landlord advanced with a flourishing air of proprietorship to address a stranger, then started, and welcomed his guest by both hands.

"Mr. Arnold!" he said, effusively. "I knew you as soon as I laid eyes on you! And—let me see—it's ten years to a day since you left Noonah."

"How do, Ransom, how do?" the guest spoke cheerfully and cordially. "Time hasn't stood still with either of us. You know I live in Washington now."

"Yes, sir; yes, Mr. Arnold and you've done us proud there. Why, sir, you got us an appropriation for a new postoffice to be built in the near future—I hope to live till I get my letters there. Yes, sir, Congressman, Senator—and now—"

"I'm not in office now, Ransom. My private interests demand all my attention. Besides, you know, I am alone in the world—neither wife nor child."

"Ah, yes, sir. I've heard. She was a fine woman, Mrs. Arnold was, and very handsome, oo—if you'll excuse me for saying it."

"She was very extravagant," said the widower, the scowl on his face intensifying. "I'm dreadfully reckless in her expenditures—why, Ransom, she was the most expensively dressed woman in Washington, where all the women dress like the dickens."

"But, Mr. Arnold—beg pardon—hm—didn't your lady a fortune of her own?"

"Yes, Ransom, and I invested her money to the best advantage, but she spent a lot of it foolishly. However, she's gone now, an it can't be helped."

And with an crest-dejected look Mr. Arnold with the prefix of "Hon." to his name, followed his host to the best room in the hotel.

Later when he had dined and winced he asked some questions and old-time friends in Noonah and led the conversation until he asked casually: "What has become of the Merritts? I suppose Agnes is married by this time? The last I heard of them they had gone abroad. Have they returned?"

"Yes, Mr. Arnold, they are rich now—brought back a heap of money from an estate that fell to them in the old country. They do say Mr. Merritt might have had a title, but the old man's true blue American—no titles for him. And Miss Agnes has never married, though we all know she had plenty of chances." He looked slyly at Mr. Arnold, who was disposed to be communicative.

"Yes, Ransom, she came near being the first Mrs. Arnold. It was her own fault that she wasn't," lied Arnold glibly.

Few of us know ourselves as well as other people know us. "Know thyself," remains Greek to the average man. All Noonah knew that Robert Arnold had thrown Agnes Merritt over for a richer girl. Ransom told of her father's interests in various flourishing enterprises, and of their improved style of living. This was merely a confirmation of news Arnold had already heard, which had indeed brought him to the place he detested.

"Noonah, a cold smile wreathed his face and a calculating light shone in his steely eyes, as he reflected that Agnes had probably remained single for his sake.

Agnes Merritt sat alone in an unlighted parlor looking out on the gathering night and thinking. She had only to reach out her hand to touch the wall and flood the room with a soft electric glow but she preferred the lingering twilight punctuated by the twinkle of the town lamps below and the coming stars above.

The introduction of the hour, when daylight dies in the beloved embrace of night, was upon her—she was communing with the past. On the eve of her thirtieth birthday her thoughts went back to the time of her betrothal to Robert Arnold. How she had loved him, how she loved him yet! No did she blame him for what happened, for she had invited her rich friend to visit her and then when she was engaged in a home outfit, she had stolen her lover, and he had had stolen her lover. Womanlike she blamed the other woman in the case, and let the man go free.

She had recently heard of his wife's death, and allowed herself to dwell on his memory, as she had not done in many years. Now that he was free, would he seek her, now that she had love and fortune both to give him? She could not know of his hard cruelty to the woman who had just died, his petty persecutions—he would not have believed them if that woman could have risen from her grave to warn her. She was in love with an ideal.

Looking out on the night and its panorama she saw him coming toward her with the indifference with which one beholds an ordinary passerby. Surely, surely love is blind. Her eyes rested on the spare figure, slightly bent, and saw no hint of resemblance to any one she had known. Her heart throbs were accelerated by no one thrill, and when the bell pealed and the vibrations reached her she thought, indifferently: "Some man to see father."

Her father and mother were attending the weekly prayer meeting, their sole diversion, with all their wealth and opportunities. The servants were out, or gossiping in a remote part of the house, and Agnes did not feel it imperative that she should answer the door bell. So her former lover walked out of her life, probably for the last time. For when her father found his card under the door that night, with his hotel address penciled on the edge, he thrust it in his pocket for a future inspection, when he should have on his glasses, and forgot all about it. And the Hon. Arnold left Noonah in high dudgeon over the slight.

Yet if that cold, calculating man should come back and ask her to marry him Agnes Merritt will consider herself blessed beyond her deserts. There are women who love the hand that smites them and find their greatest happiness in martyrdom of such is the kingdom of heaven.—Mrs. M. L. Rayne, in Chicago Record-Herald.

As Compared.

"Gosh hang my buttons!" exclaimed Silas Oatcake, who had just returned from a trip to Chicago. "Tain't safe ter go on sum uv th' streets arter dark fer fear uv gettin' robbed."

"Tain't ain't nuttin', Silas," replied Zeke Meadowgrass, who had also strayed from his own throsle in days gone by. "Deown tew Noo York they don't even wait fer it tew git dark afore they rob a feller, by hen!" —Chicago News.

Keeping the Cows Clean.

The cleaning of cows by using the brush and currycomb on them, as well as giving them a scrubbing and rinsing with a sprayer, may appear as a waste of labor to those who have never tried the plan, but if the cows were so treated the result would be more milk and buter, as the cows would be more comfortable. It is more important to brush cows than horses, as the dirt from the cows easily finds its way into the milk.—Jersey Hustler.

The smaller the field the more fence required and the more land taken from cultivation. The more oblong the field, the more fence required to inclose a given area; conversely, the nearer a square is the field the less fence is required.

College Doughnuts.

In a coeducational college near Chicago the senior class recently decided to give an old fashioned "sociable," for which the girls of the class should provide the supper. To two of them was assigned the task of bringing doughnuts of their own manufacture.

For several days they went about with puckered foreheads, evidently wrestling with some mighty problem. Their study, which had been a haven of peace, resounded through long evenings with argument and expostulation.

At last, when their relations were somewhat strained, they applied to a court of arbitration to settle their differences. Mrs. Smith, wife of one of the professors, was taken into their confidence.

"Mrs. Smith," begged one of them, "won't you settle a dispute for us? It's about doughnuts, and I can't convince Anna that I'm right. She thinks they ought to be fried in milk."

"And what would you do with them?"

"Why, I know just what to do. I've been in the kitchen and seen Imogene cook 'em. You fry them in water, of course, and 'em whole kettleful."—Youth's Companion.

A Forgotten Idiom.

In his discussion of the use of the so-called "split infinitive" in Harper's Magazine Professor Lounsbury brings to light the fact that the use of the proposition "to" with the infinitive is itself a corruption.

"In an early speech 'to' belonged strictly to the correlative, or as it is sometimes called, the dative case of the infinitive. Of this practice we have now in our tongue no small number of examples. Locutions like 'rooms to rent' or 'houses to let' are genuine representatives of the original usage, though the verb has been shorn of the ending which once proclaimed its distinctive character. But with 'to' was not at first prefixed to the infinitive proper, though there were other early Teutonic tongues in which such was the case. We still retain traces of the primitive linguistic virtue we once universally possessed. After certain common verbs, such as 'bid,' 'make,' 'let,' and a number of others we rarely or never use 'to.' It is not the normal construction. To say 'I saw him to do it' would strike every one as unidiomatic. It would surely devote the indignation of those who devote all the leisure at their command to the preservation of the purity of the speech."

Look Twice to See Occr.

"Years ago, when I read of the man who said, 'The big trees in California are so high that you have to look twice to see to the tops of them,' I smiled at the humor in what seemed to be an absurd statement," said Mr. John H. Morley of San Francisco in a recent conversation in the lobby of the Waldorf Astoria.

"But the fact is," continued Mr. Morley, "he told what is the literal truth in many cases, and yet it never dawned on me until today, when I took a look at your queer Flatiron building. My attention was called to it as I rode down Broadway. Up went my head. My eyes caught the fifteenth story, and actually I had to look the second time before the cornice came in sight.

"That very thing will happen often if you are near a high object and attempt to look at its top. You will often fail to strike the proper angle of elevation when you raise your head, and you are required to make the second effort. So, after all these years, I have found that what was intended for a bit of humor may be a cold scientific fact."—New York Herald.

Fond of Opposition.

Senator Hoar has not put all his good stories into his recent volume of reminiscences. Some friends greeted him at a Boston club one morning some years ago, anxious for news of his brother, Judge Hoar, who had been reported seriously ill.

"Oh, he's all right," was the cheery response. "You see, all his family were out of town—I, too—and everybody else agreed with him in all he said. Of course it made my brother ill."

"I have just been up there and flatly contradicted all his ancient theories, all his assertions and the very thoughts of his heart. He was simply as lonely as a katydid without anybody to say katydid to him."

Whiskey and Beer Habit

PERMANENTLY CURED BY

"ORRINE,"

ABSOLUTELY SAFE, SURE AND HARMLESS.

Physicians pronounce Drunkenness a disease of the nervous system, creating a morbid craving for a stimulant. Continued indulgence in whiskey, beer or wine eats away the stomach lining and stupefies the digestive organs, thus destroying the digestion and ruining the health. No "will power" can heal the inflamed stomach membrane.

"ORRINE" permanently restores the craving for liquor by acting directly on the affected nerves, restoring the stomach and digestive organs to normal conditions, improving the appetite and restoring the health. Can be given secretly if desired.

Cure Effect or Money Refunded.

Ask your druggist whom you know what he thinks of ORRINE; he will indorse our statements as truthful in every respect. If ORRINE fails to cure we will refund you every penny paid for it as cheerfully as we took it.

No Sanitarium Treatment or Publicity. We Absolve from home or loss of time! Mothers, wives and sisters, you cannot cure those who are afflicted with this most terrible of all diseases by your fervent prayers, or eyes red with tears, nor by your hope that they may stop drinking. It can be done only with ORRINE. You have the remedy—will you use it? If you desire to cure without the knowledge of the patient, buy ORRINE No. 1; if the patient desires to be cured of his own free will, buy ORRINE No. 2. Full directions found in each package. Price $1 per box. We will gladly furnish a treatment free of cost to any physician to demonstrate that Orrine is a positive specific for drunkenness.

PUBLIC SENTIMENT--THE SINEWS OF THE LAW.

Those who attended the mass-meeting in the Court House, last Sunday, and heard Dr. Eckels tell of his efforts in the cause of temperance fifteen years ago in Salisbury could not but be impressed with the wonderful growth of public sentiment in this community against the liquor traffic.

There were those who thought prohibition the proper step; but most of the conservative people thought best to begin by restraining it, taking the ground first that public sentiment was not sufficiently strong to sustain prohibition, and besides the liquor organization was strong enough to imperil the cause by a vote.

If the sentiment in the community is strong enough to demand by a vote that the saloon be closed, then it is strong enough to demand that the speak-easy be closed and the owner sent to the penitentiary.

What criminal laws are not violated? Are the Criminal laws against theft violated? Certainly, but who would demand their repeal? The question is frequently asked, is Prohibition a failure?

It is not considered now that there is much ground for the belief that the speak-easy will prove a great menace. "Prohibition is a failure" only when the community suffers it so, or wants it so.

SOUTH--THE NEGROES FRIEND.

Probably the best speech of the session in the National Congress at Washington, on the negro problem was that recently delivered by the Hon. Eaton J. Bowers, of Mississippi. It was the speech of a statesman, a deep student and a learned lawyer. It was made in reply to a speech recently made by Mr. Gillett, of Massachusetts, arraigning the South against the negro.

CASTORIA. The Kind You Have Always Bought Bears the Signature of Prohibition A Tried And True Success.

Messrs. Editors:--The "advertisement," "Prohibition is a Failure," affords no facts or arguments that have not been repeated a thousand times from Maine to Florida, yet there is more territory today under prohibition than ever before and the cause is steadily advancing.

First, this advertisement is paid for by the liquor dealers and its purpose is to help them and to hinder the temperance side of the issue. Second, it would be easy to fill all the columns of all the papers in the town with "the testimony of eminent statesmen, ministers, lawyers and others, where it has been tried" that PROHIBITION IS NOT A FAILURE;

Third, But why go so far after "testimony?" We can cite the Chief Judge of our Circuit as to the effect in Somerset County. (No one has a better chance of learning the criminal character of a community than a Judge) Only last Monday he declared that the improved condition in Somerset County for sobriety did not admit of doubt and said prosecutions for violations had become rare.

Fourth, Need we cite Dorchester County, which persistently votes for prohibition, knowing it to be a failure, or Cecil County, which after having tried prohibition went back to license, and again in 1902 espoused prohibition and now has a prohibitory law; or the other counties of the Eastern Shore, where the liquor dealers would have us believe that Prohibition is such a signal failure and that the friends of morality and sobriety are such imbeciles as not to be able to see what is so manifest to the liquor dealers. All the people in those counties who have been voting for and supporting prohibition are not "narrow minded cranks" nor are they all total abstainers.

Fifth, We will come still nearer home. Take Pittsburg district, under prohibition for ten or twelve years, Delmar, and Salisbury for three months of last year. We challenge them to bring not DEAD WITNESSES from a distance, but the living citizens of Wicomico county and Salisbury, and let them testify whether "prohibition is a failure."

Sixth, These liquor dealers don't comprehend that the very comments quoted by them is one of the strongest condemnations of the traffic. They treat it as a vice somewhat as a ravenous wild beast which if it can't be killed should be chained. BUT WICOMICO COUNTY AND PUBLIC SENTIMENT KNOW HOW TO KILL THE BEAST. Anti-Saloon League.

Train No. 82 ran into an open switch at Only, Va., Sunday night and collided with a carload of mine props, badly disabling engine 16 which will have to go to Baldwin's Locomotive works Philadelphia, for repairs. Some of the passengers were shaken up a little but no one injured otherwise. It is not known whether the switch was left open by some train using it or was thrown by some person bent on wrecking the train. Serious injury or loss of life was only averted by the fact that Engineman West had shut off steam and was preparing to stop at the station on account of being flagged for passengers. The train was detained about two hours and a half by having to wait for another engine from Cape Charles. It is thought by some that the switch was thrown purposely as the light was not burning.

Letter to Salisbury Lime & Coal Co. Salisbury, Md.

Dear Sirs:—When you can buy pain for less than Devoe; don't; save your money.

Mr. Aaron Higgins, Plainfield, N. J. always used 15 gallons of paint for his house; Devoe took 11.

Mr. Ezra Ratham II, Williamsport, Pa. always used 11; Devoe took 6.

Mr. Burt Young, Girard, Pa. always used a gallon for certain rooms; took half as much Devoe.

Mr. Nathaniel Barber, Canton, N. Y. bought 12 Devoe; used less than 6.

You can always buy paint for less than Devoe; don't; save your money.

The wearing counts the same way and doubles the difference.

The cost of painting is by the gallon. Weak paint costs most; most gallons.

Yours truly, F. W. DEVOE & Co., The L. W. Gunby Co. sells our paint

Spring Humors

Come to most people and cause many troubles, pimples, boils and other eruptions, besides loss of appetite, that tired feeling, fits of biliousness, indigestion and headache.

The sooner one gets rid of them the better, and the way to get rid of them and to build up the system that has suffered from them is to take

Hood's Sarsaparilla and Pills

Forming in combination the Spring Medicine par excellence, of unequalled strength in purifying the blood as shown by unequalled, radical and permanent cures of

Scrofula Salt Rheum

Mrs. Letitia Wilson spent last week at Mardela with her brothers, Messrs. Lewis and Samuel Wilson.

Mrs. Matilda Bailey gave a party last Thursday evening. A large crowd appeared, and all seemed to spend a very pleasant evening.

The farmers say they think there will be a poor fruit crop this year, as the weather is so cool, that the frost has not yet entirely disappeared, so the fruit can not get its natural growth.

Mr. and Mrs. James Venables and Mr. Edgar Venables, of Mardela, were the guests of Mr. James P. Elliott and family Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. W. F. Donohoe, entertained a few of their friends Sunday. Those present were Mr. John Wright and family, Mr. W. Eversman and family, Mr. and Mrs. James Wright and Miss Olevia Eversman.

Misses Annie and Lena Cox and Ida Phillips spent Saturday and Sunday with their cousins, Misses Fannie and Mae Phillips.

Mr. and Mrs. S. A. Calloway, of Mardela, were the guests of their daughter, Mrs. Joseph Truitt, Sunday.

We are sorry to report Miss Fannie Phillips very ill at this writing. Hope for a speedy recovery.

Miss Effie Phillips returned home last Tuesday, after spending some time in Laurel with her sister, Mrs. Lafayette Love.

Mr. Edward Austin, who went to Baltimore as delegate from Mt. Pleasant Church, returned home last week.

Shad are plentiful in Nanticoke river, so our fishermen say. We wish them much prosperity.

The farmer's gardens are looking bad, on account of so much frost.

The members of Mt. Pleasant Church have organized a class meeting, we think it much profit to the neighborhood.

Miss Letitia Wilson is visiting relatives and friends in Mardela.

Miss Lala Lloyd is visiting her uncle, in Cambridge.

WARDS. Some of our older residents say that they never saw such cold weather for April. A slight snow fell on Tuesday.

Peaches are reported killed.

The annual meeting at Smith Mills Baptist Church was held last Sunday. The day was cool but a large crowd from different parts of the county and Maryland was present.

Morris school closed last Friday after a successful term, with Miss Ward as teacher. The afternoon exercises consisted of recitations, dialogues, select reading and singing, after which candy, bananas, cake and lemonade were served. All seemed to spend a pleasant time.

Mr. and Mrs. Clayton Hearne, of Bacons spent last Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. A. S. Hearne.

Mr. and Mrs. Edwin Sirman, of Delmar, Mr. and Mrs. W. S. Davis, of New York; Mr. and Mrs. Guy Hastings, of near Delmar; Mr. C. I. Joseph, of Hollyville were guests of the family of Cyrus Ward on Sunday.

Mr. Webster Pollitt has begun the erection of a new dwelling on his farm near here.

Miss Nannie Ward, who has been teaching the unexpired term of Mrs. Lizzie Bacon at Elliotts District, near here, closed her school on Wednesday.

Arbutus is in full bloom.

SCOTT'S EMULSION. Scott's Emulsion is the means of life and of the enjoyment of life of thousands of men, women and children.

To the men Scott's Emulsion gives the flesh and strength so necessary for the cure of consumption and the repairing of body losses from any wasting disease.

For women Scott's Emulsion does this and more. It is a most sustaining food and tonic for the special trials that women have to bear.

To children Scott's Emulsion gives food and strength or growth of flesh and bone and blood. For pale girls, or thin and sickly boys Scott's emulsion is a great help.

and in Methodist style, in the absence of something better to say would suggest an experience meeting, therefore, I think it would be well to have a little experience meeting in this case and as I have had more experience along the line of saloon questions than most people I think it is proper to relate a little of it. I was raised under saloon influence, had one near the door and at that time it was not considered discreditable to drink as it is now. Almost every one did drink and, of course, I drank too. As habits contracted in youth are apt to go with us to manhood so this was true in my case and this habit continued into middle life and left me with a legacy that was an appetite for drink which has caused me perhaps the greatest fight of anything that I have ever had to contend with and I want to say that I don't feel like saying anything in condemnation or reproach of the disappointed man but more a feeling of sympathy and pity, and I believe that I voice the sentiment of a very large number of people who spend their efforts for him when I say that if the saloon was removed and the temptation taken out of the way they would not drink. Some people have told me that people will get liquor any way. I say that in a great many cases that is absolutely untrue. I know from experience and observation that if a man earns his bread by labor, when he gets his weekly salary, if there is a saloon in town, the saloon man will get the money and if there is no saloon he will spend 80 per cent before he leaves town on Saturday night for something to eat and wear and to clothe his family.

Now I want to appeal to every man in this room who is eligible to vote when the time comes to cast your vote to take away this great temptation and evil from the midst of these people who cannot control their appetite and if there is a saloon man in this room I trust that you will get out of this business and turn your attention to something else. You are all intelligent people and I believe have the means to do business within other lines and it is only a matter of time when the saloon will have to go, therefore, I second the motion to adopt the resolutions.

Tilghman, Honorary Orator; Miss Clara Parker, Honorary Essayist, and the prize orator and prize essayist to be determined next Friday evening. The address to graduates will be delivered by Dr. Jas. W. Cain, President of Washington College. The diplomas conferred by Prof. H. Crawford Bounds. The orchestra will be under the leadership of Prof. Arthur Kennerly, and double and single quartette, will render selections under the direction of Prof. W. T. Dashiell.

On Friday evening, May 13, the annual banquet given by Senior and Junior Classes will be held in the High School Building.

The Newspaper First.

The man whose concern makes most of the tin signs used in this country is an observer of advertising matter. His experience indicates that tin signs are most valuable as an adjunct of newspaper publicity. He says: "My business is best when newspaper advertising is best, and my customers who are most successful in business are those who use newspaper space."

MRS. DISHARON GIVES

A Beautifully Appointed Tea in Her Handsome Home on North Division Street. Many Guests Entertained.

One of the prettiest teas of the season was given by Mrs. Chas. R. Disharon Thursday afternoon at her handsome home on Division Street. The house was beautifully decorated for the occasion. The color scheme of pink and green being carried out with maiden hair fern, smilax and pink carnations.

The guests were received in the drawing room by Mrs. Disharon, assisted by Mrs. Southey King White, Mrs. Harry Tull, of Nanticoke, and Mrs. Frederick Paul Adkins. In the library were Mrs. Ida Williams, Mrs. Chas. Harper, Mrs. William Downing, Mrs. A. Smith and Miss Lizzie Powell. Those serving in the dining room were Misses Mary Lee White, Marian Veasey, Bertha Sheppard, Elizabeth Johnson, Edna Adkins, and Lizzie Collier. Mrs. Emory Disharon presided at the coffee table, and Mr. E. S. Adkins, assisted by Misses Louise Perry and Mamie Gillis served punch. The refreshments consisted of iced, assorted cakes, salted nuts, bon-bons and coffee.

The guests numbering about a hundred and seventy-five were delightedly entertained during the tea by musical selections, rendered by Miss Edith Weisbach.

Among the out of town guests were Miss Stevenson, of Snow Hill; Miss Hunt, of Elliott City, Mrs. Harwood, of Richmond and Miss Abbie White, of Powellville.

Salisbury Baseball Club Not Discouraged by Friday's Defeat.

The base ball team of the Salisbury High School met the team of the Seaford High School in a return game on Friday, April 23rd. The game resulted in a victory for the visitors, score being 9-4 in favor of Seaford. While, of course, luck does not always come our way yet the apparently easy victory of Friday was unquestionably due to the lack of practice upon the part of the Salisbury team. The team being partly composed of members of the Senior Class, who had been in the most of final examinations for two weeks, had had no practice whatever, so the result of Friday's game should not discourage them.

TUESDAY'S ELECTION

Results in A Temperance Majority Of 136 in Salisbury—23 in Delmar. Both Districts To Go Without Saloons For Four Years. Hotly Contested Without Regard To Party.

Tuesday was the day appointed in Salisbury and Delmar Districts for voting on licensing the saloons. Both sides were out early and did vigorous work until the closing of the polls. The vote polled in Salisbury was 688 and showed the temperance forces to be largely in the majority—186 votes. In Delmar 217 ballots were cast, giving a temperance majority of 28.

It is freely reported that large sums of money were spent on both sides, votes bringing from $5 to $20.00. The results of the contest were surprising to each element as both the temperance and liquor sides were claiming from 50 to 100 majority but few had thought it would exceed 100. Officials in charge of the election were:

Salisbury District—Judges, W. S. Lowe, A. F. Benjamin, J. J. Wilson, W. A. Crew, Clerks, H. H. Ruark, G. W. Weisbach.

Delmar District—Judges, S. R. Holloway, D. H. Foskey, L. B. Ker, F. G. Goslee, Clerks, J. G. W. Pentue, J. T. Wilson.

Section 18. And be it enacted, That it shall be unlawful for any person or persons, firm or corporation directly or indirectly to sell or otherwise dispose of by way of barter, within Pittsburg Election district No. 4, Parsons election district No. 5, Dennis election district No. 6, Trappe election district No. 7, Natter's election district No. 8, Sharpstown election district No. 10, Nanticoke election district No. 12, Barren Creek Election district No. 1, of Wicomico county, Maryland, any spirituous, vinous, malt or fermented or other intoxicating liquors of any kind, MEDICATED BITTERS OR ANY COMPOUND OF WHICH ALCOHOL IS A CHIEF OR PRINCIPAL INGREDIENT; and it shall also be unlawful for any person or persons, firm or corporation within said election districts to take orders for any such liquors, medicated bitters or alcoholic compound at any time under any pretenses, in any manner or for any purpose whatsoever; and if any person or persons, firm or corporation within the said election districts, shall directly or indirectly, sell or otherwise dispose of, by way of barter, any such liquors, medicated bitters or alcoholic compounds, or shall therein take any order or orders therefore, then such person or persons, the members of such firm, and the directors, trustees, or managers of such corporation shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and on conviction thereof in the Circuit Court for Wicomico county, or before any justice of the peace thereof shall for the first offense be fined and pay a sum of not less than fifty dollars, or be confined in the county jail, or in the Maryland House of Correction in the discretion of the Court for not less than three nor more than six months, or may be fined and imprisoned in the discretion of the Court; and for every subsequent offense shall upon conviction as aforesaid be fined not less than fifty dollars and be also confined in the county jail or the Maryland House of Correction for not less than six months nor more than one year; but if any such liquors, medicated bitters or alcoholic compounds be sold or disposed of on Sunday or to any minor, the party or parties so offending, on conviction as aforesaid, shall for every such offense be fined not less than fifty dollars and be confined in the Maryland House of Correction for not less than six nor more than twelve months.

DAN GROSVENOR SAYS:

"Pe-ru-na is an Excellent Spring Catarrh Remedy—I am as Well as Ever."

HON. DAN. A. GROSVENOR, OF THE FAMOUS OHIO FAMILY.

Hon. Dan. A. Grosvenor, Deputy Auditor for the War Department, in a letter written from Washington, D. C., says:

"Allow me to express my gratitude to you for the benefit derived from one bottle of Peruna. One week has brought wonderful changes and I am now as well as ever. Besides being one of the very best spring tonics it is an excellent catarrh remedy."
DAN. A. GROSVENOR.

In a recent letter he says:
"I consider Peruna really more meritorious than I did when I wrote you last. I receive numerous letters from acquaintances all over the country asking me if my certificate is genuine. I invariably answer, yes."
—Dan. A. Grosvenor.

A County Commissioner's Letter.
Hon. John Williams, County Commissioner, of 517 West Second Street, Duluth, Minn., says the following in regard to Peruna:

"As a remedy for catarrh I can cheerfully recommend Peruna. I know what it is to suffer from that terrible disease and I feel that it is my duty to speak a good word for the tonic that brought me immediate relief. Peruna cured me of a bad case of catarrh and I know it will cure any other sufferer from that disease."
—John Williams.

W. E. Griffith, Concan, Texas, writes:
"I suffered with chronic catarrh for many years. I took Peruna and it completely cured me. I think Peruna is the best medicine in the world for catarrh. My general health is much improved by its use, as I am much stronger than I have been for years."
—W. E. Griffith.

A Congressman's Letter.
Congressman H. Bowen, Ruskin, Tazewell county, Va., writes:

"I can cheerfully recommend your valuable remedy, Peruna, to any one who is suffering with catarrh, and who is in need of a permanent and effective cure."
—H. Bowen.

Mr. Fred. D. Scott, Larue, Ohio, Right Guard of Hiram Foot Ball Team, writes:

"As a specific for lung trouble I place Peruna at the head. I have used it myself for colds and catarrh of the bowels and it is a splendid remedy. It restores vitality, increases bodily strength and makes a sick person well in a short time. I give Peruna my hearty indorsement."
Fred. D. Scott.

Gen. Ira C. Abbott, 906 M street, N. W., Washington, D. C., writes:

"I am fully convinced that your remedy is an excellent tonic. Many of my friends have used it with the most beneficial results for coughs, colds and catarrhal trouble."
—Ira C. Abbott.

Mrs. Elmer Fleming, orator of Reservoir Council No. 108, Northwestern Legion of Honor, of Minneapolis, Minn., writes from 2385 Polk street, N.E.:

"I have been troubled all my life with catarrh in my head. I took Peruna for about three months, and now think I am permanently cured. I believe that for catarrh in all its forms Peruna is the medicine of the age."

It cures when all other remedies fail. I can heartily recommend Peruna as a catarrh remedy."
—Mrs. Elmer Fleming.

Treat Catarrh in Spring.
The spring is the time to treat catarrh. Cold, wet winter weather often brings a cure of catarrh. If a course of Peruna is taken during the early spring months the cure will be prompt and permanent. There can be no failures if Peruna is taken intelligently during the favorable weather of spring.

As a systematic catarrh remedy Peruna eradicates catarrh from the system wherever it may be located. It cures catarrh of the stomach or bowels with the same certainty as catarrh of the head.

If you do not derive prompt and satisfactory results from the use of Peruna, write at once to Dr. Hartman, giving a full statement of your case and he will be pleased to give you his valuable advice gratis.

ELECTRIC CAR FUSES.

What it is that happens when they "blow out."

One often sees a bright flash and a sudden stop of an electric car, with all the lights out. This is frequently described as a more or less serious accident, and it often causes a panic among the passengers, especially on elevated trains. The greatest danger to passengers, however, is a possible panic, which might be avoided if it was generally known how little chance there is of fire or other danger. The Electrical Review, to help people to understand what happens, makes the following explanation, which should be plain to lay minds: "If a steam engine is overloaded it will stop and refuse to start, although the full pressure of steam may remain upon the piston and not cause any damage. On the other hand, a motor when overloaded tries its best to do the work thrown upon it.
If it cannot run at full speed it will run at whatever speed it can. As the speed decreases the current through the motor increases, and the motor adjusts itself to that speed at which the turning effort is sufficient to cause rotation and do the work. If the effort demanded of the motor is so great that the current which passes through it when standing still is not sufficient to cause rotation the motor will, of course, not turn, but the current will continue to flow unless interrupted by a suitable mechanism.

"The current which will flow through a motor when it is standing still is in almost all cases far in excess of that which the motor is designed to carry, and, indeed, in a well designed motor a current dangerous for the motor will be reached before the motor has been started. The effect of this heavy current on the motor, if allowed to continue, is to heat the windings to a dangerous degree and destroy the insulation, possibly setting it on fire, and it is to prevent this occurrence, whether due to careless handling of the car or to unexpected causes, that the fuses are used. A fuse is simply a short piece of wire of such size that it will be melted by a current which, if allowed to flow through the motor for any time, will damage it. When a fuse blows, then, it simply means that one of the safety devices on the car has operated to prevent damage to the motor. The melting of the fuse opens the circuit and cuts off the current from the motor. To protect the car the fuse is enclosed in a fireproof box, and "There is another device for accomplishing this purpose, which is known as the circuit breaker. This is a switch, controlled by an electro magnet, which opens whenever the current reaches a certain dangerous value. This mechanism is now generally installed upon electric cars in addition to the fuse. It is often placed on the roof of the platform over the motorman's head, where it is easily reached, and it is set to operate at a higher current value than the fuse. To protect the circuit breaker acts almost instantaneously, while it takes a little time for the fuse to be melted. Now, a motor car can stand for a second or two a current which would destroy it if applied for a longer period. The circuit breaker, then, takes care of heavy overloads, and the fuse protects the motor against those smaller currents which are dangerous if applied for a considerable time.

"When a fuse blows out, there is generally a volatilization of the metal of the fuse and a slight explosion. These explosions usually cause a report and some smoke. When the circuit breaker is opened, it draws an electric arc in breaking the circuit, and, as in this arc a considerable amount of energy is dissipated in heating the air, there may be here also something of an explosion, but in neither case is there any danger to the passengers when the apparatus is properly installed. The fuse and the circuit breaker are safety devices, the operation of which indicates not that there is danger to those on the car, but that danger to the motors has been averted."

Henry Harland's Cruelty Story.

Henry Harland, the novelist, lives abroad, but he came to America last year to spend Christmas in Connecticut with his mother.

Mr. Harland is fond of children. In Connecticut one day a little girl said to him:

"In school yesterday I was asked to name the worst piece of cruelty I had ever heard of. I couldn't think of any very cruel thing, and so I said nothing.
What is the worst piece of cruelty you ever heard of, Mr. Harland?"

"The worst piece of cruelty I know anything about," said the novelist,
"concerns Will Hardart and his mother. These two lived in England centuries ago, and Dame Hardart was sentenced to be burned for a witch.

"Her son Will had the face to attend that burning. Furthermore, when the flames began to leap and sing and when the poor woman, overcome with thirst, asked Will for a cup of water, the cruel son replied:

"No, mother, no, for the drier you are the better you will burn."

Pay in the Japanese Army.

The pay of the mikado's soldiers would hardly tempt foreign enlistment, and even the greenest "rookie" in the United States army would think twice before he gave up his $13 a month for the 2 cents a day which a Japanese private receives. When a private becomes a corporal his pay is advanced to 6 cents a day, and when he reaches a sergeant's rank he gets 10 cents for his twenty-four hours' duty.
A first sergeant makes double this sum, and an extra service sergeant is the happy possessor of 30 cents each day. This is as high as an enlisted man can rise without being a graduate of the military officers' school.—Leslie's Weekly.

Whether the Winds Bore Him.

It is said of an old time Maine preacher, Father Blaisdell, who was the pioneer missionary along the Maine coast, that he would launch his boat and sail before the wind and where the wind took him, he would land and preach. At one time, so the story goes, the wind bore him directly toward Isleboro. Just before getting there, however, the wind shifted, and although he was within a few rods of the land he turned his boat and with the wind sailed off to another town, where he landed, held meetings and started one of the greatest revivals ever held under his ministry.

THE MAN WHO WAS NOT.

Strange Story Concerning Powder
Which Explodes.

Cope Whitehouse, the authority on Egyptology and other branches of science, discussing the recent explosion at Woolwich in the Newport Herald, relates the following story, which, he says, was told by Sir Benjamin Baker at a dinner of the Smeatonian club, an association of British civil engineers, which was attended by Mr. Whitehouse:

"There were two mixing houses at Waltham abbey, separated by a considerable space and fully protected by banks of earth. Two men were passing between these houses when both exploded. They said that the one on the right went off first, but it was supposed that this was an inference affecting the memory. They could not understand the simultaneous explosions and therefore supposed that one must have preceded the other by a sensibly period of time. But the scientific advisers of the government were of the opinion that the stability of the compound was disturbed through some synthetic action.

"These men also said that they threw themselves on the ground to avoid the falling fragments. As a prone position was the worst possible their nerves were evidently shaken.
They had observed before the explosion a workman approaching the door of one of these houses. When they rose to their feet their first thought was for him, and they looked around to see where he was. But although they looked and looked they found no body or part of it. He was not, for the air took him. According to the scientific explanation his atoms had received a jar which had shaken them to pieces of about the billionth of an inch in diameter or less.

"As would be said now, he became a collection of antagonistic electrons.
They found part of an empty stocking and the heel of a boot. That was all.
It must be remembered that there would have been no inorganic matter about him, no metal or hard substance.
Therefore, the mysterious processes of life had built him up, so also they had built the material of his clothes.
The fragments which escaped annihilation were apparently due to one of those electrical 'freaks' common in thunderstorms."

Philadelphia Buddhist Temple.

We are very pleased to learn that there is a Buddhist temple in Philadelphia. It occupies a part of the Museum of Archaeology in the University of Pennsylvania and is under the directorship of Dr. Maxwell Sommerville, professor of gyptology in that institution. It was founded by Professor Sommerville during his travels through eastern countries, especially Japan.
He is a learned, refined gentleman, and is especially fond of art. Buddhism has interested him deeply, and he has become quite learned in its philosophy.
This Buddhist temple in Philadelphia has cost more than $500,000, and all these valuable religious articles brought by him from the far east have recently been presented to the university. Professor Sommerville has been delivering constructive lectures on Buddhism in this Buddhist temple.—

The Kaiser's Student Days.

Of the twenty-one scholars of the wore glasses, and three of these had to put a piece of tape before the spectacles in order to be able to see the blackboard. Homer, that glorious man about whom I have always been enthusiastic; Horace, Demosthenes, whose speeches must have filled every one with delight—how were they read? With exhaustion for the battle or the arms of the descriptions of nature. Not at all.

Under the scapula of the grammatical and fanatical philologist each clause was dissected and split up till, to his delight, he had found the bare skeleton and then exhibited for the admiration of all in how many different senses something could be used as a prefix or a suffix. It was enough to make one weep! Away with this tomfoolery!

The Home Thermometer.

Every one ought to make constant use of a thermometer. Get a good thermometer. They don't cost much. Hang one in your sleeping room. Hang another in the living room. Note what temperature is an agreeable one. We presume that 70 F. will be found agreeable to most people. Sixty-five would perhaps be better. At any rate, note what temperature furnishes sufficient heat so as to produce comfortable living rooms. Get posted on this subject for yourself. Don't wait for somebody to tell you what the temperature of your living rooms ought to be. Find out for yourself. You can note for yourself what temperature is the most agreeable one. One practical good will be accomplished by watching your thermometer—you will note how variable the heat is in the house. Sometimes it is 60, sometimes 80 and even above.
This ought not to be allowed. An equable temperature should be maintained and can be just as well as not.

"PARADISE LOST."

Incidents of the Attempted Sale of the Original Manuscript.

After all, the original manuscript of the first book of Milton's "Paradise Lost" remains unsold. It was offered for sale under the hammer a few days ago by Mr. T. Hodge at Messrs. Sotheby's establishment in Wellington street Strand, but failed to realize the reserve price of £5,000. The historic manuscript is the property of Mr. Henry C. Baker of Bayfordbury, who was present in the auction room, and it has been in his family since 1772, when it was inherited by his great-great-grandfather, William Baker, from Richard Tonson, brother of the younger Jacob Tonson. This William Baker was the eldest son of Sir William Baker, M. P. for Hertis, who married in 1742 Mary Tonson, daughter of the younger Jacob Tonson.

Buyers from all parts of the kingdom attended yesterday, and nearly before the little hall contained so many notable literary folk. At 3 o'clock Mr.
Hodge mounted the rostrum and in introducing the "lot" remarked:

"I think there is nothing to say about this manuscript because everything that is known has been published. It is the manuscript submitted to the printer and, no doubt, therefore, read through to Milton. I am sure it is no exaggeration to say that it is the most important volume we have ever had, and I think this may be said of any other firm. Now, what will you offer for it?"

A period of silence followed as the manuscript, inclosed in a glass frame, was handed round for the inspection of the assembly. The voice from one corner said, "Fifty pounds." This was Dr. Ginsburg, and his offer aroused some excitement. Mr. Hodge said he would give £100 for it, and Mr. Snowden, the manager of the firm, sitting on his right, immediately doubted this figure. Both gentlemen then bid against one another, and no other person ventured to interrupt the competition until £3,000 was reached, when Mr.
Snowden retired, he being commissioned for "a private individual" not to bid any higher. Mr. Ellis of Messrs. Elvey & Ellis thereupon offered an extra hundred, and he soon brought up the price against Mr. Hodge to £4,700. The auctioneer then bid £5,000, remarking that it was not nearly enough for so valuable a possession.
There was no other offer, and the auction fell seven minutes after the auction had commenced. Mr. Hodge subsequently said, "I am sorry to tell you the book is not sold." The spectators soon left the room, many observing that it was a good thing the manuscript was not going to America.

Mr. Hodge was besieged, however, by a few zealous buyers, and in reply to their questions he said:

"I do not think the manuscript will be offered again for auction, but it may be sold privately, as Mr. Baker, for whom I was acting, now knows its actual value. There is no truth in the statement that Mr. Pierpont Morgan or any one else made us a private offer of £50,000 or even £50,000 for it. But I am not surprised at this because it is not a treasure that would appeal to all millionsaires. Now, if it were gorgeously illuminated, the case might have been different, and some of them might have come forward."—London Telegraph.

Church Membership.

It is evident that the current resources of a church must be sufficient to enable a minister to devote his time and strength to his charge. There is, in addition, the expense of building and maintaining a house of worship, including light, fuel and care. Some expense is involved in any sort of satisfactory music. Other items will suggest themselves. It may be assumed that to meet these various demands at least $2,000 a year is necessary, save perhaps in the most rural communities, and under mission conditions.

Now, a study of denominational year books will show that the average American church member spends about $12 a year on his church. So, if we could trust to the fairness of a broad generalization, we might divide 2,000 by 12 and say that 167 was the minimum of safety in church membership.—Church

Miss Rose Hennessy, well known as a poetess and elocutionist, of Lexington, Ky., tells how she was cured of uterine inflammation and ovaritis by the use of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:—For years I enjoyed the best of health and thought that I would always do so. I attended parties and receptions thinly clad, and would be suddenly chilled, but I did not think of the results. I caught a bad cold eighteen months ago while menstruating, and this caused inflammation of the womb and congested ovaries. I suffered excruciating pains and kept getting worse. My attention was called to your Vegetable Compound and the wonderful cures it had performed, and I made up my mind to try it for two months and see what it would do for me. Within one month I felt much better, and at the close of the second I was entirely well.

"I have advised a number of my lady friends to use it, and all express themselves as well satisfied with the results as I was. I am Miss Rose Nora Hennessy, 410 S. Broadway, Lexington, Ky.—$5.00 per bottle if original of show box.

PERMANENTLY CURED BY
"ORRINE,"
ABSOLUTELY SAFE, SURE AND HARMLESS.

Physicians pronounce drunkenness a disease of the nervous system, creating a morbid craving for a stimulant. Continued indulgence in whiskey, beer or wine acts away the stomach lining and stiffens the digestive organs, thus destroying the digestive and raising the health. No "will power" can heal the inflamed stomach membranes.

"ORRINE" permanently removes the craving for liquor by acting directly on the affected nerves, restoring the stomach and digestive organs to normal conditions, improving the appetite and restoring the health. Can be given securely if desired.

Cure Effected or Money Refunded.

Ask your druggist what he thinks of ORRINE; he will endorse our statements as truthful in every respect. If ORRINE fails to cure we will refund you every penny paid for it as cheerfully as we took it.

No Sanitarium Treatment or Publicity!
No Absence from home or loss of time!

Mothers, wives and sisters, you cannot cure those who are afflicted with this most terrible of all diseases by your fervent prayers, or eyes red with tears, nor by your hope that they may stop drinking. It can be done only with ORRINE. You have the remedy—will you use it? If you desire to cure without the knowledge of the patient, buy ORRINE No. 1; if the patient desires to be cured of his own free will, buy ORRINE No. 2. Full directions found in each package. Price $1 per box.

We will gladly furnish a treatment free of cost to any physician to demonstrate that ORRINE is a positive specific for drunkenness.

Horse Runs Away With A Lady Down Camden Avenue.

Quite a whiff of excitement was created last Tuesday afternoon by a horse on Camden Avenue, ridden by Mrs. Roland Brinkley, running away. Mr. W. B. Tilghman, Jr., and Mrs. Brinkley, who was a guest of Miss Minnie Louise Tilghman, were out horse-back riding, Mrs. Brinkley being in advance, when the animal she was riding started off in a brisk trot, which frightened Mrs. Brinkley and she began to scream. The horse being an old fox hunter and one that would not easily brook another to come up behind him in a trot, seemed to infer that the screams were meant for him to go faster, and that he did with a right good will. So fast, indeed, that Mr. Tilghman could not catch up with him. Mrs. George Pooley and Miss Minnie Nelson, both with commendable presence of mind phoned to Mr. W. F. Allen, a mile a way on the county road to stop the runaway. Mr. Allen was on the spot in time and managed to catch the horse after its wild run of over a mile. Mrs. Brinkley held on to the saddle with true Virginian pluck and except for being badly shaken and frightened was rescued without injury.

you naturally want the most stylish and the best clothing that you can get for your money. That's what Lacy Thoroughgood will give you, and in workmanship every bit as good as TO ORDER made apparel that costs almost double Thoroughgood's prices. Really no need to look elsewhere. If money is to be saved, there is the place to select your spring suit and trousers. The finest ready to wear clothing for men and boys at prices absolutely the lowest in the city. A magnificent stock from the best makers in the land. So many men—hundreds of them—have taken occasion this season to praise our clothing that we really become enthusiastic when we are called upon to write about it. We don't take a bit of pride in the fact that it is the largest stock in Salisbury, but we do feel like boasting of the style, the quality, the fit, the workmanship. Here you have ready to wear garments that can not be detected from the most carefully furnished Merchant's tailoring work. Lacy Thoroughgood's spring display of clothing for Men, young Men, Boys and Children demonstrates these superior qualities. It is the best clothing made and is only the best that we care to sell. Never before has the stock been so varied or so well prepared to meet the tastes of every body. Never before have prices been so surprisingly low. People who want an out of the ordinary looking suit, in both fit and fabric effect, should inspect Thoroughgood's new Spring Stock. Our Clothing is the talk of the town.

Nature makes all things beautiful in their time. Every one of life's seasons, when life moves on Nature's lines, has its own charm and beauty. Many women dread that period when they must experience change of life. They fear that face and form may suffer by the change, and that they may fail to please those whom they love.

The annual report of the State Council, Junior Order United American Mechanics, shows that the total membership in Maryland is now 21,844, an increase of 2,474 during the past year.

Sciatc Rheumatism Cured. "I have been subject to sciatc rheumatism for years," says E. H. Waldron of Wilton Junction, Iowa. "My joints were stiff and gave me much pain and discomfort. My joints would crack when I straightened up. I used Chamberlain's Pain Balm and have been thoroughly cured. Have not had a pain or ache from the old trouble for many months. It is certainly a most wonderful liniment. For sale by all druggists."

Miss Katherine Walton has been elected secretary of the Emergency Hospital, Annapolis. The superintendent, Miss Adams, has reconsidered her resignation and will remain.

A Cure For Headache. Any man, woman or child suffering from headache, biliousness or a dull, drowsy feeling should take one or two of DeWitt's Little Early Balmers right at morning. These famous little pills are famous because they are a tonic as well as a pill. While they cleanse the system they strengthen and rebuild it by their tonic effect upon the liver and bowels. Sold by all druggists.

Rev. W. T. Litsinger, pastor of the Warwick Methodist Protestant Church on account of poor health, has been compelled to retire from active work in Conference for one year.

8 Cents

Eight cents a pound is what a young woman paid for twelve pounds of flesh.

She was thin and weak and paid one dollar for a bottle of Scott's Emulsion, and by taking regular doses had gained twelve pounds in weight before the bottle was finished.

Eight cents a pound is cheap for such valuable material. Some pay more, some less, some get nothing for their money. You get your money's worth when you buy Scott's Emulsion.

We will send you a little free.

JOINTS PAIN YOU THIS MORNING? First sign of RHEUMATISM. Dangerous to let it run. Easy to cure now. A single bottle of Rheumacide. Will probably do the work. Bad cases require more. RHEUMACIDE cures by getting rid of the cause, so that no trace of the disease lingers in the system. It purifies the blood, relieves the inflammation of the kidneys, the chronic constipation and the catarrh that follows such a condition of the system. Through Mrs. Mary E. Wilborn, of High Point, N. C., in 50 years old and had suffered from rheumatism for 20 years, she was completely cured by RHEUMACIDE, and declares she feels "years younger" and is anxious for "all who are suffering from any of the forms of this dread disease" to try RHEUMACIDE and be cured. REV. J. R. WHEELER, a noted Methodist minister, of Baltimore, Md., writes enthusiastically of RHEUMACIDE, which cured him. He is 75 years old and has been in the ministry 50 years. SAMPLE BOTTLE FREE FROM BOBBITT CHEMICAL CO., PROPRIETORS, BALTIMORE, MD. "GETS AT THE JOINTS FROM THE INSIDE."
