MISS DORMAN'S MARRIAGE.

Quietly Celebrated Last Tuesday at the Home of Her Parents.

Miss Alice Jones Dorman, the only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Levin W. Dorman, was united in marriage at noon last Tuesday to Mr. Charles Thabor Leviness, of Baltimore.

The marriage was performed by Rev. W. T. Green, pastor of Trinity Methodist Episcopal Church, South, at the home of the young lady, 307 N. Division Street in the presence only of the immediate families of the bride and groom, the recent death of the bride's only brother, Mr. L. Clifford Dorman, prompting a very quiet ceremony. The bride, attended by her maid of honor, Miss Miriam Powell and Miss Linda Stevens of Seaford, bridesmaid, descended the stairway and advanced toward the parlor where she was met by the expectant groom, accompanied by his best man, Mr. E. E. Jackson Jr. In the parlor the guests were grouped about the bridal altar, awaiting the arrival of the bride and groom, whose way to the altar was led by two pretty little flower girls—Miss Marjorie Leviness, a sister and Miss Katherine Stafford, a niece, of the groom. There the solemn words of matrimony were impressively pronounced.

Mr. Alan F. Benjamin of this city and Mr. John J. Kaplan of Baltimore were the ushers. The floral decorations were American Beauty roses and ferns. Miss Emma Powell, organist at Trinity church, played the march. The bride's wedding gown was a beautiful white satin duchesse, en train, with pearl trimmings. She wore a bridal veil fastened with a diamond and pearl sunburst, and carried Bride roses.

Miss Powell, the maid of honor, wore blue liberty satin trimmed with chiffon, and carried pink roses. Miss Stevens wore white crepe de chene over blue liberty satin and carried pink roses. The little flower girls wore white dresses trimmed with blue and carried pink roses.

The groom wore a Prince Albert coat and light trousers; the best man and ushers, Prince Albert coats and light trousers. Each wore in the lapel a white rose bud. The ushers and best man also wore gold pins ornamented with pearls, gifts of the groom. The bridesmaids received from the bride handsome white leather card cases.

After the ceremony a wedding breakfast was served in the dining room. The decorations were American Beauty roses and ferns. Daylight was shut out and the house artificially lighted.

The bride and groom left Salisbury via the 2 o'clock north bound express for New York.

The bride's traveling costume was a gown of navy blue broadcloth, and corresponding hat and gloves. Their future home will be in Baltimore where the groom is prominently associated with the Bankers Life Insurance Co. The bride is one of Salisbury's prettiest and best liked girls.

Among the bridal presents was a patch-work cushion notable because it was made and presented by the bride's cousin Master Claude Dorman, whose needle work is remarkable for a boy.

Of the groom's immediate family these present were his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Charles T. Leviness of Baltimore and his sister Mrs. Stafford and her husband of Brooklyn, N. Y.

Safely a Bird.

The wife of a Methodist minister in West Virginia has been married three times. Her maiden name was Partridge, her first husband was named Robin, the second Sparrow and present one Quail. There are now two young robins, one sparrow and three little quails, and the family live on Jay street. That lady surely is a bird.—Peninsula Methodist.

HOSPITAL MEETING.

The Directors Meet and Accept Dr. Todd's Resignation as Superintendent. A Reorganization Committee Appointed.

The Board of Directors of the Peninsula General Hospital, met at the Hospital building Thursday afternoon to consider the question of accepting the resignation of Dr. George W. Todd, as Superintendent of the Institution. After going over the matter thoroughly, the Board decided to accept the resignation. The letter of Dr. Todd's resignation was as follows:

TO THE BOARD OF DIRECTORS—PENINSULA GENERAL HOSPITAL.

Gentlemen:—After most careful and thorough consideration of all the matters which may be involved in the step I am about to take, I hereby announce to the Board that I feel obliged to tender my resignation of the Superintendency of the Peninsula General Hospital, to take effect as soon as another Superintendent can be secured. I desire not to be misunderstood in this action. I have devoted more than three years of hard work under many difficulties and discouragements assisting in the founding and development of this enterprise. I have given it my best and done it gladly. It now seems to me that the interests of my private practice require more of my time than I have been able to give it and that the Hospital should have opportunity to try the benefit of another administration. I wish to say further, that in thus severing my present relations my interest in the Hospital will not undergo any change. I shall ever be ready to render any assistance I can to the new Superintendent and general management. I have the same faith in the founding and development of this enterprise and am not conscious of the loss of any of that public spirit which I always try to exhibit. I would commend the Hospital as worthy of all help and urging that without faltering the new building should be erected. I wish in conclusion to express my heart felt thanks to the Board of Directors for their steady cooperation and courtesy in my conduct of the affairs of the Hospital and to say, that with such a company of men the Hospital should succeed.

Respectfully,
GEO. W. TODD.

The following resolution was unanimously adopted:

Resolved, that in accepting the resignation of Dr. George W. Todd, as Superintendent of the Peninsula General Hospital, the Board of Directors part with his services reluctantly, and here by express their unbounded confidence in his ability and the careful manner in which he has fulfilled his duties since the organization of the institution, and the Board hereby petitions Dr. Todd to continue as a member of the Medical staff of the Hospital.

A committee consisting of Dr. George W. Todd, Wm. P. Jackson, W. B. Miller, H. L. D. Stanford and M. V. Brewington was appointed as a reorganization committee to devise a plan of reorganization to place the hospital on a broader plane, and to intersperse more thoroughly the physicians of Salisbury and the surrounding counties. It is thought that the plan will include the securing of a lady superintendent who will also act as matron. Dr. Todd is thoroughly in accord with the actions of the Board of Directors, and will give his hearty co-operation in the new plans for the reorganization.

Taking the Census.

The work of taking a census of the State under the act passed at the special session of the Legislature began last Wednesday morning. The law allows 15 days for the enumeration and requires that returns must be made to Superintendent Buchanan Sibley not later than June 1. The Superintendent is required to submit to the Governor a tabulated statement of the population of the State on or before July 30, and upon that statement the Governor is to base the representation of the several counties in the House of Delegates.

The enumerators for Wicomico county are: Levin E. Wright, V. F. Collier, George C. H. Larmore, George H. Maddox, Jason P. Tilghman, Marcellus Dennis, E. Parker Haffington, Peter J. B. Hobbs, Joseph L. Wilson, John E. Nelson, James E. Moore, D. Z. Walter.

Board of Trade Annual Meeting.

The following were re-elected as officers of the Board: W. B. Tilghman, President; L. W. Gunby, Vice President; G. Grier Ratcliff, Secretary; L. W. Dorman, Treasurer; L. L. Price, A. J. Benjamin, A. A. Gillis directors.

GOOD MEN NOMINATED.

The Democrats Have An Old Fashioned Primary And Select Three Prominent Business Men For City Council.

The Democratic voters of Salisbury met in convention on Monday evening and nominated a very strong and representative ticket of three persons for City Council to be voted for on next Tuesday, May 7th. The convention was called to order by Mr. J. Cleveland White of the City executive committee and on motion of Mr. Chas. R. Disharoon, Mr. Wm. A. Trader was unanimously chosen chairman of the meeting. As the voters were rather slow in reaching the polls, it was suggested that before any nomination was called for Senator Brewington should make a few remarks on the necessity of nominating a good ticket. The Senator gracefully complied and urged that all lay aside personal preferences and help in choosing a ticket in which every one would have the utmost confidence.

The following gentlemen were then placed before the convention, Messrs. Wm. B. Tilghman, Louis W. Morris, Harry Dennis, Elijah J. Parsons and G. Edward Mitchell. There were no printed tickets and no "combinations" and everything was done in the open. Everybody voted for the three men of their choice and when the polls were closed at 9:30 o'clock the personnel of the ticket was still as much of an uncertainty as at 7:30 o'clock when the polls opened. The vote was soon counted with the following result: Parsons 145, Morris 119, Tilghman 111, Mitchell 108, Dennis 72. Messrs. Parsons, Morris and Tilghman were declared the nominees.

The gentlemen comprising the ticket are among our best known and most highly respected citizens. They have all contributed to the material growth and development of our town and are deeply interested in its continued prosperity. That they will command the full party strength goes without saying. No one could go amiss in supporting the ticket the public may rest assured that if elected these gentlemen will honestly and fearlessly look after our city's welfare.

Chairman Trader selected the following gentlemen to compose the Democratic Executive Committee for the ensuing year: Messrs. Thos. Perry, J. Cleveland White, Charles E. Harper, Elieha E. Twilley, G. Edward Mitchell, Emory L. Disharoon.

Death of a Farmer.

Mr. W. A. Humphreys died about 6 o'clock last Saturday evening, at his home in Rockawalking, aged about 64 years. He had been ill only since about sunrise that morning when he was stricken with paralysis. His remains were interred Monday afternoon in the cemetery of the Rockawalking Methodist Episcopal church, after funeral services by the pastor Rev. C. W. Strickland. A very large number of friends and neighbors were present to pay the last respects to the deceased. Hon. E. E. Jackson and Mr. Jackson were among those present from town. Mr. Humphreys was a farmer and one of the best known citizens of his community. His wife, who survives him, is the eldest daughter of the late Peter Weatherly of Spring Hill. Four sons, Charles of Philadelphia, James, Wm. A. and Bernard, also survive him. The latter is a lad of sixteen years. The others are grown and are among the most honorable and industrious men of this county.

Mr. Humphreys' estate consists chiefly of the farm in Rockawalking where he had lived many years and where he died.

A Novel Proposition.

We cannot promise you a free trip to Mars, a course at Harvard nor a guaranteed prize in the Havana Lottery, but we do want to increase the circulation of the Palmetto Post, and make this proposition: A dozen eggs are not worth much—12 or 15 cents—but we will take the proceeds of them for nine months subscription to the Palmetto Post. Set a hen on the dozen eggs, and good luck or bad, we agree to give nine months subscription to the Post for the chickens that hatch and live to be 30 days old, and trust to your honor not to cheat us. In some instances we may get eight or ten chickens, and again we may get none, but we will take the chance; so give us your name and try it once.—Palmetto (S. C.) Post.

Delmar Has Raised Quarantine.

Last Thursday the authorities of Delmar raised the small pox quarantine against Salisbury, and travel between the two towns is going on again uninterruptedly.

CONFERENCE ACADEMY DEBT.

The Amount to Be Raised by Salisbury District Apportioned Among The Churches.

The Wilmington M. E. Conference, at its recent session, decided to pay off the debt of the Conference Academy, at Dover, amounting to $35,700, by the 30th of June, 1901, by apportioning the debt among the churches of the conference districts.

Salisbury district will raise as her share of the debt the sum of $10,000.00 apportioned among her churches as follows:

Annamassex, $100. Asbury, 450. Berlin, 250. Bethel, 180. Bishopville, 300. Cape Charles, 130. Chincoteague, 150. Crisfield, 450. Crosswintown, 5. Delmar, 300. Deal's Island, 450. Fairmount, 450. Frankford, 250. Fruitland, 100. Girdletree, 200. Gumboro, 200. Holland's Island, 100. Laurel, 500. Mardela Springs, 30. Marion, 90. Millsboro, 120. Mt Pleasant, 100. Mt. Vernon, 150. Nanticoke, 300. Newark, 100. Onancock, 240. Parsonsburg, 150. Pocomoke City, 300. Pocomoke Circuit, 70. Powellsville, 70. Princess Anne, 150. Quantico, 125. Riverside, 5. Roxana, 150. St. Peter's, 300. Salisbury 1465, Selbyville, 110. Sharptown, 120. Smith's Island, 250. Snow Hill, 250. Somerset 150. Stockton, 160. Tangier, 450. Westover, 60. Whitesville, 220.

Presiding Elder Martindale, in speaking of the effort, said that his churches were awake to the undertaking and were going at the task with a will.

There is due and unpaid on the first mortgage, $8,700; second mortgage, $15,000; the unfunded debt amounts in the aggregate to about $12,000; total debt, $35,700.

The bonds secured by the first mortgage have been due for a number of years, and the holders thereof are apparently willing that the said debt should remain unpaid, being satisfied with the security of their lien. The holders of the bonds secured by the second mortgage, however, which fell due on January 1st, 1901, expect to receive their money, and already several of them have demanded payment thereof.

All this indebtedness is interest bearing at the rate of six per cent, requiring an annual interest charge of more than $2,100 and while this has recently been generously met by the collections in the various churches of the conference, yet this does not reduce the principal to any extent whatever.

If the second mortgage is not paid it is feared that the holders of the bonds which it is given to secure will force a foreclosure, and that the holders of the unfunded debt will likewise institute legal proceedings to protect their interests. The limit of accommodation which the First National Bank of Dover is willing to give has been reached, and in the present financial condition no loan could reasonably be expected from any other bank.

Conference at its recent session, by a unanimous vote, ordered that the entire amount of the debt ($35,700) be carefully apportioned to the several churches of the conference, and that a supreme effort be made to raise the amount in each charge on the first or second Sunday of June next, 1901, to be known as "Conference Academy Debt Paying Day." The money to be paid to the treasurer of the academy on or before July 1st, 1901. The following committee was appointed to apportion the debt and superintend its collection:

The presiding elders—Rev. C. S. Baker, D. D., Rev. W. F. Corkran, D. D., Rev. T. E. Martindale, D. D., Rev. Robert Watt, D. D.; Dover district, Dr. A. Smith, J. E. Carroll, W. Salsbury; Easton district, Rev. J. A. Arters, Dr. A. E. Sudler, Joseph H. Barnard; Salisbury district, Rev. C. A. Hill, Hon. W. H. Jackson, D. J. Fooks; Wilmington district, Dr. W. L. S. Murray, G. W. Todd, W. R. Flinn. The commission organized by electing Hon. W. H. Jackson president and the Rev. T. E. Martindale secretary. The district committees have also organized and the work is progressing satisfactorily.

THE MOVEMENT AFOOT.

Tax-Payers Will Petition The County Commissioners.

Public sentiment has so crystallized upon the subject of improved highways that the leaders in the movement have sent out the following petition to be signed by the taxpayers of the county and then laid before the commissioners as their warrant for making the appropriation for a beginning of the work. The petition reads as follows:

"To the County Commissioners of Wicomico County:

We, the undersigned, favor an appropriation of $10,000 to begin the work of improving our public roads after the plan set forth in a recent article in the Salisbury ADVERTISER, by Thos. Perry. Briefly, this article suggested that the County Commissioners make an appropriation of $5,000 to be added to the $5,000 which the Court of Appeals has decided that the B. C. & A. Ry. Co. should pay to the county as taxes, making a fund of $10,000 to be expended in improving our public roads. It is not the plan of the promoters of this undertaking that this money shall be expended on one or two roads, that is, finishing one section at a time, but that the work should begin from many points, that is, on all the principal thoroughfares, thus giving all the public the benefit of these expenditures from year to year."

These petitions will be at once circulated in each district of the county and when signed by the taxpayers they will be returned to the office of the Salisbury ADVERTISER. After each district has been heard from the petitions will be submitted to the Commissioners. There is strong reason to believe that the Commissioners will seriously consider the proposition.

No matter how much care you take in the selection of the materials for your building or how experienced or reliable your mechanics, if you use inferior shingles you make a great mistake.

The covering of a building is the most important part of the materials used in its construction. And it is poor economy to run so great a risk of having a leaky roof, to save such a trifling amount of money. Act wisely and buy best.

MISS ELLIS STILL ABROAD.

Continuation of her Her Sight-seeing in Picturesque Switzerland.

Sudersville, Md., May 1, 1901
Arising quite early Tuesday morning we found the sky overcast with clouds from which the rain descended at intervals in showers too copious for any but the stoutest hearted to take the trip by boat. Our guide decided that those who preferred could leave early and go by boat, the others go with him by rail and meet them at the head of Lake Thun. Quite a number did so but I had had enough of the small lake boats so went by rail.

We left Interlaken at 8 a. m. and much to our delight found that our train to Kus by the side of the lake over which the others had gone by boat all the way until we met them at Thun. The track ran quite close to the water's edge and on one side lay the calm lake, its waters clear as crystal reflecting the ethereal blue of the sky above, or the snowy whiteness of the clouds breaking away or scurrying across the heavens. On the other side the mountains came quite near the lake and the sun's rays breaking through the overhanging clouds, lighting up the mountain tops and showing forth their matchless beauty. For many miles after leaving Interlaken the snowy cap of the Jungfrau was visible. Lake Thun occupies a picturesque position more than one thousand feet above the level of the sea, it is only ten miles long and two broad so the end was soon reached and those who had come by boat left it at Thun and boarded our train. The train being in motion again we found ourselves upon the banks of a river and shortly learned that it was the Aare which we thought we had left at Brienz. It enters Lake Brienz at the former place and leaves Lake Thun at Thun from whence it flows in a northwesterly direction receiving a tributary from Lake Neuchâtel, thence takes a northeasterly direction and empties into the Rhine near Waldshut. The railroad ran beside the river until the city of Berne was reached and before we were many miles from Thun we could perceive that the country was getting more level and many crops of grain were passed not yet ripe for the sickle. Fields of cabbage and other vegetables were also in evidence and the surrounding country assumed an aspect similar to our own.

About 9.30 a. m. Berne was reached, the capital of the Swiss Republic. We had been promised a few hours in this quaint mediaeval city, but alighting from our train we found ourselves hurried into another and in a few minutes we were again speeding across the country toward Larisanne near Lake Geneva where we were to lunch. However, this we learned of Berne; it has a population of over 50,000 inhabitants, one of the sights of the city is the celebrated bear pits where for centuries the municipality has maintained specimens of this wild animal from which the city gets its name; it is one of the emblems on the coat of arms. The cars in which we were crowded were not so comfortable as those we had left. I believed one of the most enjoyable rides I had during the trip was this one from Interlaken to Berne. The mountain air was delightful, the cars comfortable and besides I had a whole seat to myself which added materially to my comfort.

The trip from Berne to Lausanne was uneventful, the country was gradually becoming more level, more farm houses dotted the landscape and the score was such a one as would greet the traveler's eye in our own country. Lausanne is situated in the Canton of Vaud on the south slope of the Jura Mountains; its population is over 26,000. We reached there about 1 p. m. and were quite ready for the dinner set before us at the Hotel Jura. We were treated here to some very nice canton soups, the first we had seen and in fact we had in the way of fresh fruits except a few plums and cherries in the different parts of Switzerland which were the first I have ever seen. Lausanne is about one mile from the lake and after dinner we went to a tram car station and went down a very steep hill to a little town called Ouchy the port of Lausanne on Lake Geneva. Here the boat was waiting for us and all we had to do was to get on board. The afternoon was a perfect one, the bright sunshine over all the lake, the air was delightfully cool and refreshing, the water of "clear placid Leman" lay calm and untroubled around us save where the little boat plowed its way over its beautiful bosom. "O, what is so rare as a day in June? Then, if ever, comes perfect days" must have been written on such a day as this. The wind wafted to us an occasional breath from Mt. Blanc many miles distant and before we were far from Lausanne its snowy white summit could be seen on our left. The air, sunshine and all other causes combined to make a drowsy feeling creep over us and many were the quiet little naps taken while our little boat crossed and recrossed the lake and I am afraid we missed some of the natural beauty of those vine clad hills which sloped down to the edge of the lake on the north. Lake Geneva, or Leman as it is sometimes called, is the largest of the Swiss lakes. It is situated between the Cantons of Vaud and Geneva, and touched by both France and Surry. It occupies a valley bottom between the Alps on one side and the Jura mountains on the other, is crest shaped in 55 miles long and varies in width from one to nine miles. It is said the waters of this lake at different seasons present a peculiar appearance, waving from side to side; it is supposed to be caused by a difference in the pressure of air upon it. Its northern shore has been made famous by Rousseau and Lord Byron, the scenes in Childe Harold being laid in part there. The Prisoner of Chillon commemorated the imprisonment of St. Bonnavaud in Chillon Castle which is picturesquely situated on an isolated rock at the eastern extremity of the lake, many miles from Geneva. The Rhone river empties into this river at its eastern extremity rising under the Rhone glacier at the foot of Mt. Furca in Switzerland; it leaves it at Geneva and flows through south eastern France and empties into the Mediterranean. At 4.30 p. m. we landed at Geneva on the Quai de Mont Blanc and in a little while were at the Hotel Bristol on Rue (street) du Mont Blanc. Geneva is the richest and most populous city in Switzerland, has 85,000 inhabitants and is the capital of the Canton of the same name; it is the smallest Canton of this little Republic

President Wrought Iron Range Co.,
St. Louis, Missouri.

Dear Sir:—We are in receipt of your favor of June 18th, which we regret to say was mislaid. We have great pleasure in stating that your ranges are in use on six of the eight steamers of the fleet and that they have given perfect satisfaction in every way both as to their durability and working qualities, which have been tested to the utmost.

In the fall of '98 our steamer Pacific was totally destroyed by fire at the dock which originated at the G. T. Ry. warehouse, and although the steamer was burnt to the keel the Wrought Iron Range on board was found in such good condition that it was used on our new steamer Germania, which was built the following season to take place of Pacific. There was practically nothing wrong with the stove except discoloration and marks consequent upon the action of intense heat and water.

The steamers using your ranges are Majestic, Collingwood, Germania, Pacific, Britannic and Midland. Very truly, having an area of only 110 square miles is a relic of an of great antiquity being mentioned by Cæsar in his Commentaries. It was once a separate Republic but in 1798 the French took possession of it and made it the capital of the department of Leman 1814 the Canton of Geneva entered the Swiss Confederation as a Federal Canton. Geneva is important to us because it was here the board of arbitration met to settle difficulties growing out of the Alabama claim in 1871-3 which came so near causing a war with England. Here John Calvin fled after he had renounced the tenets of the Roman Catholic church; here he preached and governed the city with strict severity. His strict discipline, however, caused him to leave and find refuge at Strasbourg; but he returned in 1541 and there he died, but his efforts had been rewarded by making Geneva one of the strongholds of Protestantism in Europe. It was once a walled town but the walls have long since disappeared. Geneva is as present a famous literary, theological and scientific centre and has given birth to many great men. Jean-sean-one of them was in his early years regarded as a fool, he was imperfectly educated, having lost his parents in childhood. He was apprenticed to an engraver from whom he fled because of ill treatment and was received into the household of Madame de Warrens. He subsequently became a clerk, then a teacher, writing while in this capacity "Emile" which set forth principles in teaching followed by Froebel, Pestalozzi and other great educators. He died in a hospital in 1778 having only the wreck of a once brilliant mind. A monument to his memory adorns one of the public parks of the city. M. Necke the celebrated minister of finance of France before the Revolution was born here; he was the father of the brilliant and accomplished Madame de Staël, a French authoress of high repute. Our hotel was pleasantly situated on Rue du Mont Blanc, this street being so called because it is exactly opposite Mont Blanc and the bridge spanning the Rhone at this point is also known by the same name, and from any part of both this giant of the Alps can be clearly seen.

We had ample time for resting and making some of a go in our visit before supper and this meal being over we started out for a stroll. The postoffice on Rue du Mont Blanc is a beautiful new building of white marble and on its upper story there are the names carved on marble slabs of every country in the Eastern and Western Continent. I suppose this is significant of the fact that from its desks mail was sent to every quarter of the globe. Geneva is the place of all others for beautiful and cheap jewelry of all description, the famous Geneva watches being manufactured here. As Rue du Mont Blanc is lined with shops displaying these articles we showed ourselves thoroughly American by stopping at each window and gazing at diamond and pearl studded watches, magnificent necklaces of pearls, diamonds, opals and all other precious stones imaginable; the wonder to us was that every thing was so cheap. Attracted by the sounds of hilarity across the river we wandered over the bridge but found in front of one of the hotels that a cheap variety theatre was giving free exhibitions and we turned away disgusted. The streets presented quite a different spectacle from the afternoon; then they seemed almost deserted, but now were teeming with gaily dressed people, men, women and children all seemed on pleasure bent. Our guide was to leave us at this point and return to Belgium to meet another tour and on the morrow we had to plunder alone and of course would miss many points of interest.

FILCHING FROM TREASURY.

Millions Wasted on the Alleged Improvement of Streams

The Baltimore Sun's Washington correspondent, writing under date of April 14th says:

It has very recently been semi-officially announced that the purpose of the Government is to take means to recover, if possible, some of the money corruptly obtained by former Captain Carter, of the United States Engineers.

The case of former Captain Carter is very well known all over the country, for it has been agitated and discussed for years in the newspapers, in the halls of Congress and before the courts.

The Administration has been roundly criticized for alleged leniency toward former Captain Carter, and there is no denying all the powerful influences which array themselves can bring to bear exerted in his favor.

The proof is evident that high authority was impressed to a large or less degree, for otherwise the wheels of justice would not have been so slow in rotating over the shortcomings of this engineer officer. Even now, after all the years of delay and after the exhaustion of all apparent methods in his behalf, neither former Captain Carter nor his friends are satisfied he shall bow to the verdict which has been pronounced against him, but are occupied in the attempt to devise some new means by which he may escape the just punishment which has been adjudged him.

Coincident with this renewed effort is the announcement of the Government's disposition to get back the money which has been stolen from it. Nothing affecting the integrity and the mora of the army has occurred in generations causing a keener sense of mortification in that branch of the service or producing more prompting toward extenuation, if any facts or arguments can be adduced to justify it.

Virtually, therefore, the army would be pleased had any technical loophole been left for Carter to slip through, and it is on technicalities that the present movement to secure his liberty is based. There have before this been scandals in the army, of course. Officers have duplicated their pay accounts, have cheated at cards and army paymasters have embezzled small and large sums. Granting all this, the average of course, has been very low, and the officers of the United States army have had the right to be as proud as any.

It is natural there should be a stir and a gnashing of teeth when the pitch has defiled the crack troops of the army, the engineers.

Former Captain Carter has fallen. Who will be the next? For like causes have produced like effects from the beginning of the world, and will continue to do so until the end. Former Captain Carter may be entitled to no sympathy, he may have no claim on the mercy of his judges or of public sentiment, his reticence doubtless should have been strong enough to shield him from temptation. Yet he, defaulter, embezzler, thief as he may be, fell from right to wrong through the workings of a system atrociously evil and dishonest, and for which he had no responsibility. There is no system of government operations in any country the world has ever known more shamefully dishonest, more shamefully corrupt than the river and harbor appropriations in the United States. It is positively appalling to think of this filching from the public treasury, and yet it has proceeded, step by step, until nothing is thought of it, and he who raises the voice of warning or remonstrance is only laughed at for his pains.

The system has grown and has actually paralyzed the conscience of every member of both houses of Congress, and it is perfectly logical that its deadly blight should have reached over into the Engineer Corps of the army.

The country is familiar with the fact that Senator Carter, of Montana, talked the last River and Harbor bill to death, nominally because, in a slang phrase, of its "steals," but really, as is alleged by his Senatorial associates, because there was stricken from it in conference the opening wedge for committing the Government to the scheme of irrigating the arid lands of the far West. No one can tell what the ultimate cost of this scheme would be. As things go Mr. Carter could have no difficulty in reconciling his conduct to his action, for it would have been just as proper to saddle his arid land scheme on the general Government as a thousand other items which were in the bill. It was openly charged on the floor this was the reason of his opposition, and he did not deny it. Engineer officers may well think former Captain Carter is not so bad, when such language as this has been used on the floor of Congress: "The whole scheme of river improvement is a humbug and a steal, but if you are going to steal, let us divide it out." The bill which Senator Carter talked to death carried $50,000,000. Forty millions of this was for absolutely useless improvements. Mr. Carter well expressed it when he said: "Nine-tenths of the items are without merit, without justification."

The history of this country tells us that long ago, when the Federal Government first began the policy of aid for river and harbor improvements, there were many good and wise men who doubted the wisdom of it, and expressed their views forcibly and earnestly. Not one of those who advocated the policy ever dreamed of going further in its application than the principal coast cities and the great rivers already navigable. How they would doubt their own eyes and ears if they could see the length to which it has gone! It is said that in the last bill every Senator and every member of the House, except possibly Mr. Carter, had some pet item. There were dried-up creeks in every State from Maine to Texas provided for, creeks which had never carried any commerce and could never by any possibility be expected to. Four million dollars was put in for some obscure river in the West, which has trees growing the whole length of its bed, and which could get no water unless artesian wells were sunk to furnish it.

As Senator Wellington said, a splendid railroad could be built its entire length for less than three-fourths of the money. This is just it. River commerce, except of a purely local character, is fast dying. The railroads are taking the freight and they will keep on taking it until they have it all. It is time to get back to first principles and appropriate only where the money will actually promote and develop commerce.

THE VETO HAS CHECKED IT.

Several times River and Harbor bills have been vetoed by Presidents. These measures are invariably rushed through in the last hours of the session and presented to the Executive when he has scarcely time to do more than sign his name. It is unobscuringly said that in the last 80 years no President who had any regard for his oath would have signed one of these bills had he the time to read it. Why has this river and harbor iniquity the inevitable tendency to pervert the moral feelings and deaden the high sense of honor of the Engineer Corps of the army? Nothing is easier to realize. Some one has asked us why it is we have stopped publishing accounts of the small pox. The answer is very simple. There is no small pox to write about. The few cases situated about two miles from Salisbury are all nearly well.

Mayor Disharoon has appointed Messrs. Sewell T. Evans, Chas. Covington and George E. Rounds to act as judges at the municipal election to be held next Tuesday.

The Democrats and Republicans have had their city primaries and placed before the people their city tickets—both are good. We have not one word to say against the Republican nominees but we certainly can see no reason why any Democrat should do other than support the ticket nominated on Monday night.

Our citizens should congratulate themselves that they have such good men who are willing to bear the burden of the city government. The candidates are so well known in the community that it is unnecessary to dwell upon their special merit and fitness for the offices for which they were nominated.

We would say a word of caution, however, to the Democratic voters within the city limits. Don't be overconfident. Take time on Tuesday to come to the polls and vote. If a large vote is cast there can be but one result—the Democratic ticket will win beyond a doubt.

FAVORABLE OUTLOOK FOR CROPS.

After the long spell of unduly cool and wet weather succeeding March, it is encouraging to note that the Climate and Crop Bulletin, issued by the government Weather Bureau, reports that the week ended on Monday morning last was "by far the most favorable of the season."

Though the week was much too cold in the Atlantic States and some other sections east of the Rockies, the arrival of warm weather favored generally the germinations and growth of crops. "In the States of the Upper Mississippi and Missouri Valleys," says the Bulletin, "ideal weather conditions prevailed."

At the close of the week covered by the official report winter wheat continued in a promising condition and rapid progress had been made in preparing the ground for corn planting in large portions of the central valleys, though in several of the Southern States, owing to frost, much of the cotton previously planted had been killed and required very considerable replanting.

THE GREAT STEAMSHIP COMBINE.

Reports of the purchase of the Leyland merchant fleet of sixty steamships by J. P. Morgan's syndicate had hardly been confirmed when announcement was made of the formation of a grand combination of American shipbuilding companies, with a capital of $70,000,000. By a simple repeal of the obstructive Navigation laws of the United States this Leyland fleet would be enabled to hoist the American flag, and thus make a considerable addition to the tonnage of the American merchant marine. Other ships owned by American citizens and built in foreign yards would follow, and thus the foreign built ships, with the American ships now plying the ocean and in process of construction, would constitute the substantial basis of a great future commercial navy.

But, instead of this, the subsidy mongers are renewing their clamors for the adoption of the Fryc-Hanna steamship scheme of spoliation, which would take $100,000,000 out of the public treasury without any compensation to the people. The effect of creating this monster of legislative iniquity would be to pay millions in Treasury bounties to the Billion Dollar Steel Trust for shipping its products abroad under a tariff system which subjects American consumers of those products to the tender mercies of monopoly.

There could be little serious objection to combinations of capital for trade in the world's great financial development if they should not be aided at public expense by legislative favoritism. Let the high protective duties on iron and steel be reduced, and, instead of paying steamship subsidies, let the Navigation laws be repealed. There would then be little cause for complaint over combinations of shipbuilding companies or of great syndicates of capital for owning and operating merchant fleets on the high seas.

In view of the recent movements of syndicates to control shipbuilding and ocean transportation, there is reason to believe that the Fifty-seventh Congress will not pass the Hanna Subsidy bill. The grounds against its passage are much stronger now than they were when the late Congress refused to make the bill a law. On the other hand there are indications that instead of passing the Steamship Subsidy bill, the next Congress will pass the Babcock bill to substantially reduce protective duties on iron and steel and other manufactures of which there are large exports.

Some of the West Pointers insist that the deception practiced by General Funston upon Aguinaldo is no war. They consider that Aguinaldo should have been hazed.—Dallas News.

The law of recompense is always in operation. Aguinaldo may now have less liberty than heretofore, but he can go to sleep at night without fear of being carried away before morning.—Boston Herald.

It is very important that the best glass is used and the lenses are accurately ground—but of greater importance that a responsible person makes the examination. —Thomas Stealing of Worcester, has a large fish trap in Pocomoke Sound. On going to fish one day last week he found it full of ducks. His catch was 180 water witches.

—The Christian Endeavor Society will hold a social in Lyceum Hall, Mardela Springs, Saturday evening, May 11th. The public are invited to attend.

—The Dorchester County School Board at its last session closed two colored schools "for lack of attendance." This does not appear to indicate that the colored people are badly frightened by the new Ballot law.

—The Cambridge Chronicle says; Mr. H. Leatherbury, of White Haven, Md., has leased of Junius Baker the building formerly occupied by the Cambridge Yacht and Launch Co., at the foot of Mill Street. We understand he will engage in the sail-making business.

—Elder A. B. Francis announces the following appointments: Salisbury, Sunday May 5th, 10:30 A. M. and 7:30 P. M.; Mardela Springs Monday, May 6th, at 7:45 P. M.; Rewastico, Tuesday, 7th, 10:30 A. M.; Forest Grove, Tuesday, 9th, 9:00 P. M.; Broad Creek, Saturday, and Sunday, May 11th and 12th.

—George Toadvin, an employe of Mr. A. J. Allen, became mentally unbalanced a few days ago while at work in the field. An inquest was held by authority of States Attorney Bailey, and later the sheriff took the afflicted man to Maryland Hospital for the insane.

—Mr. F. Leonard Wallis spent this week in Richmond where his brother, Mr. Harry S. Wallis, graduated in the science of medicine. Dr. Wallis will spend a month with his mother, Mrs. Annie T. Wallis and then go to Ocean City for the summer. His plans beyond that are not yet formulated.

—There will be special Christian Endeavor services in the M. P. Church on Sunday evening. The pastor will lead the services at 7-15, and Mr. Geo. F. Tibbits of Washington will address the congregation at 8 p. m. There will be recitations and special music. A cordial invitation to all. Don't fail to hear Mr. Tibbits.

—A charter has been granted "The Peoples National Bank" of Cambridge. This is a new bank to be organized and its organization is in a large measure due to the efforts of State Senator Applegarth of Dorchester. It is also rumored that "The Citizens National Bank" will shortly be organized with Mr. Phillips L. Goldsborough as the chief promoter of the enterprise.

—In Dorchester county so far no decisive movement has been inaugurated by Democrats against the renomination of the present members of the Maryland Legislature. The people seem to favor sending back the old Democratic ticket. Senator William F. Applegarth is thought to be in position to receive unanimous indorsement by the next Democratic County Convention.

—A man down the river has constructed a miniature battleship which he calls the "Alabama." It is now on exhibition at Uiman Brother's store, where a number of people have admired its proportions.

—There will be a Drill at the Armory over the store of Mr. Jos. E. Davis at the N. Y. P. & N. depot, Friday evening, May 10th 1901. The Drill will be promptly at eight o'clock for all members of company I. First I. M. N. G. By order L. P. Coulbourn, Captain.

—Dr. and Mrs. A. H. Murrell celebrated the eighth anniversary of their marriage Friday evening of last week. Music was furnished by Messrs. Odis S. Lloyd, A. P. Trader and Merrill Abbott on violin, Arthur Trader on guitar, Herman Murrell on base viol, and Thomas Abbott on the organ. Refreshments were served at eleven o'clock.

—"The Rivals," a comedy in five acts, was rendered in the Auditorium at Princess Anne on Wednesday evening last. The troupe was composed of Salisbury and Princess Anne talent. The play was rendered in excellent style, and the different parts were so well taken that the entire troupe merited and received high commendation. Although by amateurs, the acting would have done credit to professionals.—Marylander and Herald.

—The graduating class of the Salisbury High School this year numbers twenty three. School closes Tuesday May 14, on which evening the graduates will hold class day exercises in the Opera House, and the commencement exercises are to be held the following evening. The banquet will be held in the High School Building Thursday evening, May 16th. Rev. Chas. A. Hill will preach the baccalaureate sermon Sunday evening, May 12th, at Asbury M. E. Church.

—Property of the Baltimore, Chesapeake and Atlantic Railway Company has been taxed $65,000 by the Dorchester County Commissioners. The company has not heretofore paid taxes on this property, the tax on which will be about $800. Since this company absorbed the Wheeler Line freight cars are said to have been advanced considerably. At any rate the merchants are complaining and there is a growing sentiment in favor of a rival line of steamers.

—The American Packer in speaking of the death of Jas. McMenamin, of Hampton, Va states that he owned the only successful crab canning factory in the world and that his secret died with him. The comment has been copied by a part of the press. This is quite an error, as right here in Wicomico we have a very flourishing crab canning factory. This is owned and operated by Messrs Geo. D. Insley and Son at Bivalve. They have recently opened a western branch to their business and expect to push the sale of their goods throughout the country.

—It is currently reported among the Democratic politicians in the Second Senatorial district that Mr. Alonzo L. Miles, who is a partner of Mr. Arthur P. Gorman, Jr., is being urged to become a candidate for the Democratic nomination for the Senate from that district to succeed Senator Lewis Putze, Republican. Mr. Miles is a well-known lawyer and now resides on St. Paul street, above North avenue. He has taken a lively interest in the politics of his ward and has many friends.—Baltimore Sun.

—On Friday and Saturday of last week two of the longest trains ever seen on the peninsula passed through Salisbury. On Friday a freight train, mostly loaded, bound for the north passed through the town with ninety six cars. This train was about 4000 feet long and therefore nearly 4-5 of a mile. On Saturday an "empty" on the way south had one hundred and five cars in one section. There was only one engine with each train. The north bound train was compelled to make several efforts before it could get over the grade about Eden.

—The latest in the labor strike line is a revolt of grave diggers. This happened this week at Fernwood cemetery between Philadelphia and Chester. Thirteen grave diggers went out on a strike because one of their number was discharged and incidentally for more pay. As a result the receiving vaults of the cemetery are filling up with bodies awaiting the preparation of their final receptacles. When the strike fever reaches a cemetery it may indeed be said to have arrived at the very last stage. Exchange.

—Rev. E. C. Wright, pastor of John Wesley Methodist Episcopal Church, colored, of this city, was arraigned last Wednesday before Presiding Elder Waters on a charge of immoral conduct preferred by a member of his congregation. Rev. J. H. B. Hubbard of Pocomoke city and J. H. Harmon of Crisfield appeared in defense of the accused. Rev. P. O'Connell of the Princess Anne Academy prosecuted the case. The trial lasted from ten o'clock in the morning till five o'clock p. m. and resulted in a verdict against Wright. He was therefore suspended from all ministerial and membership relation with the church pending the action of the next annual conference which will meet in Salisbury next spring.

Birckhead & Shockley

The Autofly.

It has come at last—the invention that is going to revolutionize the world. The invention that will make the top story of a building more valuable than the ground floor—that will do away with railroads, street cars and hacks—the invention that will enable us to go from Salisbury to Philadelphia in a straight line has been perfected, and in a few months you can buy the N. Y., P. & N. Railroad for $1.37, and the Delaware Railroad will look like 30 cents, and you can buy an automobile in the bargain counter for 25 cents, and horses and buggies will be so cheap that Thoroughgood can afford to throw one in with each 50 cent necktie. The man that told Lacy Thoroughgood about this has originated a way to navigate the air, so he says. He calls it an Autofly. He says it is all done by a chemical preparation. You put a capsule of it on a stick like a skyrocket, press the button, the preparation flies out in the air, creates a vacuum, and whatever is behind it follows into the vacuum. As the chemical keeps on oozing the vacuum is always ahead, and you follow in its wake. Sorry you didn't think of it, simple scheme isn't it? As Lacy Thoroughgood expects to turn his store upside down shortly, so that you can light on the roof and come right in, he has concluded to close out all his best clothing, best Hats, best Shirts,—in fact all his best goods at ridiculously low prices rather than to move them. Lacy Thoroughgood will offer at once 500 suits for children, usual price somewhere else as much again, but Thoroughgood prices range $1.25, $1.50, $2.00, $2.50, $3.00, $3.50 to $5.00 for Children's Suits, every suit warranted and auto fly. Boy's three-piece knee pants Suits, with double breasted vests, in sizes 9 to 16 years, an extra fine line $3.98, $4.98, $5.98 and $6.50 and they auto fly. Thoroughgood has 200 blue serge suits for boys, suits that are sewed and tailored in first class shape and they auto fly. Thoroughgood has long pants Suits for boys 14 to 20 years, round or square cut suits, single or double breasted vests, in popular patterns, prices $5.00, $6.00, $7.50, $3.50, $10.00 and $12.50 and auto fly. Mothers of boys! bring your boys in, Lacy Thoroughgood is fully prepared for every boy that comes this season.

WASHINGTON, April 28.—In this discourse Dr. Talmage draws his illustrations from a realm seldom utilized for moral and religious purposes; text, Proverbs, vi, 6-8, "Go to the ant, thou sluggard, consider her ways and be wise, which, having no guide, overseer or ruler, provideth her meat in the summer and gathereth her food in the harvest."

The most of Solomon's writings have perished. They have gone out of existence as thoroughly as the 20 books of Pliny and most of the books of Æschylus and Euripides and Varro and Quintilian. Solomon's Song and Ecclesiastes and Proverbs, preserved by inspiration, are a small part of his voluminous productions. He was a great scientist. One verse in the Bible suggests that he was a botanist, a zoologist, an ornithologist, an ichthyologist and knew all about reptilia. I Kings iv, 33, "He spake of trees, from the cedar tree that is in Lebanon even unto the hyssop that springeth out of the wall; he spake also of beasts and of fowl and of creeping things and of fishes." Besides all these scientific works, he composed 3,000 proverbs and 1,005 songs.

Although Solomon lived long before the microscope was constructed, he was also an insectologist and watched and describes the spider build its suspension bridge of silk from tree to tree, calling it the spider's web, and he notices its skillful foothold in climbing the smooth wall of the throneroom in Jerusalem, saying, "The spider taketh hold with her hands and is in king's palaces." But he is especially interested in the ant and recommends its habits as worthy of study and imitation, saying, "Go to the ant, thou sluggard, consider her ways and be wise, which, having no guide, overseer or ruler, provideth her meat in the summer and gathereth her food in the harvest."

But it was not until about 300 years ago, when Jan Swammerdam, the son of an apothecary at Amsterdam, Holland, began the study of the ant under powerful lens that the full force of Solomon's injunction was understood. The great Dutch scientist, in his examination of the insect in the text, discovered a great display of the wisdom of God in its anatomy as an astronomer discover in the heavens and was so absorbed and wrought upon by the wonders he discovered in the ant and other insects that body and mind gave way, and he expired at 43 years of age, a martyr of the great science of insectology. No one but God could have fashioned the insect spoken of in the text or given it such genius of instinct, its wisdom for harvesting at the right time, its wondrous antennae, by which it gathers food, and of mandibles, which, instead of the motion of the human jaw up and down in mastication, move from side to side; its nervous system, its enlarging doors in hot weather for more sweep of breeze, its mode of attack and defense, losing the gate at night against heat invaders; its purification of the earth for human residence, its social life, its republican government, with the consent of the governed; its maternal fidelities, the habit of these creatures of gathering now and then under the dome of the ant hillock, seemingly in consultation, and then departing to execute their different missions.

Altogether Commendable. But Solomon would not commend all the habits of ants or of other insects as he had as some of the habits of the human race. Some of these small creatures are desperadoes and murderers. Now and then they marshal themselves into hosts and march in straight line and come upon an encampment of their own race and destroy its occupants, except the young, whom they carry into captivity, and if the army come back without any such captives they are permitted to enter, but are sent forth to make more successful conquest. Solomon gives no commendation to such sanguinary behavior among insects any more than he would have commended sanguinary behavior among men. These little creatures have sometimes wrought fearful damage, and they have undermined a tower in Nova Scotia, which in time may drop into the abyss they have dug for it.

But what are the habits which Solomon would enjoin when he says, "Consider her ways and be wise." First of all, providence, forethought, anticipation of coming necessities. I am sorry to say these qualities are not characteristic of all the great creatures of God are the ants. The latter are not frugal, but the former are frugal. While the air is warm and moving about is not hindered by ice or snowbank they import their cargoes of food. They bring in their caravan of provisions; they haul in their long train of wheat or corn or oats. The farmers are not more busy in July and August in reaping their harvest than are the ants busy in July and August reaping their harvest. They stack them away; they pile them up. They question when they have enough. They aggregate a sufficient amount to last them until the next warm season. When winter opens, they are ready. Blow, ye wintry blasts! Hang your icicles from the tree branches! Inured as they are to the denizens of the hills, Hunger shud-out, and plenty sits within. God, who sendeth every living thing, has blessed the ant hill.

In contrast with that insect behavior, what do you think of that large number of prosperous men and women who live up to every dollar that they make, raising their families in luxurious habits and at death expecting some kind friend to give their daughters employment as music teachers or typewriters or government employees? Such parents have no right to children. Every neighborhood has specimens of such profligate. The two words that most strike me in the text are "summer" and "winter." Some people have no summer in their lives. They are reaping credit to the soil all year. It is relentless January. Invald infancy followed by some crippling accident or dimness of eyesight or dullness of hearing or privation or disaster of unfortunate environment and energy in longing for some other sphere. There are plenty of people to do the big and resounding work of the church and the world. No lack of brigadiers general or master builders or engineers for bridging Niagaras or tunneling Rocky mountains. For every big enterprise of the world a dozen candidates. What we want is private soldiers in the coming ranks, men not ashamed to wield a trowel, candidates for ordinary work to be done in ordinary ways in ordinary places. Right where we are there is something that God would have us do. Let us do it, though it may seem to be as unimportant as the rolling of a grain of corn into an ant hill.

Furthermore, go to the ant and consider its indefatigableness. If by the accidental stroke of your foot or the removal of a timber the cities of the insectile world are destroyed, instantly they go to rebuilding. They do not sit around mooping. At it again in a second. Their fright immediately gives way to their industry. And if our schemes of usefulness and our plans of work fail, why sit down in discouragement? As large ant hills as have ever been constructed will be constructed again. Put your trust in God and do your duty, and you have best days yet to come. You have never heard such songs as you will yet hear, nor have you ever lived in such grand abode as you will yet occupy, and all the worldly treasures you have lost are nothing compared with the opulence that you will yet own. If you love and trust the Lord, Paul looks you in the face and then waves his hand toward a heaven full of palaces and thrones, saying, "All are yours." So that what you fail to get in this present living, you will get in the next. Go to work right away and rebuild as well as you can, knowing that what the trowels of earthly industry fail to rear the accepters of heavenly reward will more than make up. Persistence is the lesson of every ant hill. Waste not a moment in useless regrets or unhealthy repining. Men fret themselves down, but no man ever yet fretted himself up. Make the obstacles in your way your coadjutors, as all those have who have accomplished anything worth accomplishing.

John Philpot Curran, master of the rolls in Ireland, at his first attempt in court stammered and sat down in confusion and for that stammering was derisively called "Stuttering Jack Curran" and because of his failure in speech was sneered at as "Orator Mum." But he went to work and conquered himself and then conquered courtrooms and great assemblages whom he thrilled with his eloquence. So instead of running against obstacles as against a stone wall he placed them aslant like steps on which to mount. Put your trust in God and nothing can stand before you. Rittenhouse, the astronomer, at the start was so poor that he figured out eclipses on a plow handle.

In Fulton street prayer meeting, New York, a young man rose and said: "I have been an infidel 14 years; I had the prayers of a pious mother, but I spurned them. I suppose she has given me up as lost. I don't know where to find her, but I would like to tell her what the Lord has done for me in answer to her earnest prayers." Did it just happen so that his mother was present and cried out, "Oh, my son, my son!" You know of the glorious Christian work in Japan, but do you know how it began? A New Testament was dropped from an English ship in the harbor of Tokyo. The little book came into the hands of a prominent Japanese, who read it and was brought to God and immediately began to commend Christ to the people. Did all that merely happen so? Tell that to those who do not believe there is a God, but do not tell it to at least a hundred of us who have had in our own lives providential rescues as easily proved as that we have ever lived at all.

All Under God's Care. But we live in times when there are so many changes. There seems almost universal unrest. Large fortunes swallow up small fortunes. Civilized nations trying to gobble up barbaric nations. Upheaval of creeds and people who once believed everything now believing nothing. The old book that Moses began and St. John ended bombarded from scientific observatories and college classrooms. Amid all this disturbance and uncertainty that which many good people need is not a stimulus, but a sedative. In my text I find it—divine observation and guidance of minutest affairs. And nothing is to God large or small—planet or ant hill—the God who easily made the worlds employing his infinity in the wondrous construction of a spider's foot.

Before we leave this subject let us thank God for those who were willing to endure the fatigues and self sacrifices necessary to make revelation of the natural world, so re-enforcing the Scriptures. If the microscope could speak, what a story it could tell of hardship and poverty and suffering and perseverance on the part of those who employed it for important discovery! It would tell of the blinded eyes of M. Strauss, of the Hubers and of scores of those who, after inspecting the minute objects of God's creation, staggered out from their cabinets with vision destroyed. This hour in many a professor's study the work of putting everything on the altar of science is going on. And what greater loss can one suffer than the loss of eyesight, unless it be loss of reason? While the telescope is reaching farther up and the microscope is reaching farther down, both are exclaiming: "There is a God, and he is infinitely wise and infinitely good! Worship him and worship him forever!"

Does Not Decline Work. Furthermore, go to the ant and consider it. It does not decline work because it is insignificant. The fragment of seed it hauls into its habitation may be so small that the unaided eye cannot see it, but the insectile work goes on, the carpenter ant at work above ground, the mason ant at work under ground. Some of these creatures mix the leaves of the fir and the catkins of the pine for the roof or wall of their tiny abode, and others go out as hunters looking for food, while others in domestic duties stay at home. Twenty specks of the food they are moving toward their granary put up on a balance would hardly make the scales quiver. All of it work on a small scale. There is no use in our refusing a mission because it is insignificant. Anything that God in his providence puts before us to do is important. The needle has its office as certainly as the telescope, and the spade as that of the parable of the talents who buried the one talent instead of putting it to practical and accumulative use. His apology was of no avail. "There is no need of our wasting time

If the writer possessed talent, he would certainly feel inclined to "poetize" on these magnificent, superbly beautiful, spring days, but, etc, etc.

Rev. Mr. Bennett's Work.

Rev. Lewis A. Bennett of the Methodist Protestant Church preached his first sermon to his new charge in Delmar last Sunday. The congregation was so large that the church was taxed to seat it.

The people of Crisfield, where Mr. Bennett served before going to Delmar, sent for the President of the Conference and urged him to leave Mr. Bennett that charge. The President replied that the Delmar congregation would not give Mr. Bennett up.

The Crisfield Leader, in speaking of Mr. Bennett's work, says: "Rev. Mr. Bennett has served Marlboro's Church for four years, and has faithfully discharged his duty with credit to himself and congregation. He is a zealous and earnest worker, and his activity accounts for the success which has attended him during his pastoral career. The church has been cleared of indebtedness, and over a hundred new members have been added to the church. Besides, his energy actuated him to build a new church, and his purpose was accomplished.

Bennett's Memorial church a beautiful structure, at Lawtonia, stands as a monument and a great credit to him who first conceived and carried into effect the idea of its erection. Thus his pastorate can be pronounced a great success. The second year, he was heavily burdened with affliction, but is now enjoying excellent health, and we hope he may continue so."

is, by no means, the dreadful disease it is thought to be in the beginning.

It can always be stopped in the beginning. The trouble is; you don't know you've got it; you don't believe it; you won't believe it—till you are forced to. Then it is dangerous.

Don't be afraid; but attend to it quick—you can do it yourself and at home.

Take Scott's Emulsion of Cod Liver Oil, and live carefully every way.

Bug Death IS THE BEST INSECTICIDE On the Market to-day

for the trucker and farmer to use. Why? It is non-poisonous. It feeds the plant from all insects, as it contains no arsenic and can be used on any plant or vine and will not burn or blight it. It keeps the vine green and thrify giving the potato a chance to mature, which means a more starchy potato less liable to rot. Practical tests prove that the extra yield of marketable potatoes more than pay the entire expense. The farmers who used Bug Death last season for the first time are much pleased with the results obtained. These goods are for sale by the following dealers of whom you can obtain a descriptive circular upon application, or address the Danforth Chemical Co., Leominster, Mass.

Nelaton's Remedy For RHEUMATISM

Is a certain cure. It has made hundreds of friends everywhere as the following will show.

Mr. Wm. T. Davis of Cambridge, Md., writes: For two years or more I have had rheumatism very badly and have tried many kinds of medicine without getting any relief. NELATON'S REMEDY was recommended to me and after taking only one bottle I was entirely cured, and have not been troubled for over three months. Thanks to NELATON'S REMEDY for RHEUMATISM.

Mr. Wm. E. Lowrey, Esterman and oysterman of Cambridge, Md., writes: Two years ago last February I had terrible attacks of Rheumatism whenever the weather turned bad, I could not lay down or raise my arm to feed myself. I tried NELATON'S REMEDY and a few bottles cured me completely. I have not had any Rheumatism since and I tell any man, he is foolish to suffer with Rheumatism when NELATON'S REMEDY can be had.

Mr. Moses Tisch of Easton, Md., writes: NELATON'S REMEDY for RHEUMATISM is a wonderful medicine. It cured me when I had Rheumatism so bad that I had to walk around with sticks. I heartily recommend NELATON'S REMEDY to any who suffer with Rheumatism, as it is a reliable and sure cure.

Dr. J. B. R. Parrell of Snow Hill, Md., endorses NELATON'S as follows: I have used the NELATON REMEDY in cardiac neuralgia and general rheumatism with satisfactory results. The ingredients evidence a combination useful for arthritis and various forms of gout and rheum. It is, particularly when accompanied with hepatic torpor.

"SALLIE COLLINS MARVIL."

Sharpstown Visited by More than 5,000 People—The Greatest Event in the History of the Town—Named for a Pretty Little Girl of Four Years Old.

THE NEW $45,000 VESSEL LAUNCHED.

In February, 1900, a contract was made between the Sharpstown Marine Railway Company, of Sharpstown, Md., of the first part and Capt. Wm. J. Quillen of Bethel, De., and thirty four other men of the second part to build at the railway here a four masted vessel with a keel 168 feet long, thirty seven feet beam, and sixteen feet four inches depth of hold. In the early part of April 1900, the keel was laid and the work of construction begun. Day by day, stroke upon stroke, line upon line, and timber upon timber, the work has steadily moved along, until, Thursday of this week, when the beautiful vessel was launched from the terra firma of her construction into the element for which she was built, and upon the bosom of the majestic waters of the Nanticoke she moved like Fulton's first steamboat, almost "like a thing of life." She moved from her bed of construction with such rapidity that the friction of the speed set the launching ways on fire. Without the aid of hands or power, she moved from her resting place at the moment she was cut loose. Hundreds of men, women and children were on her when launched and took the first trip without the least jar or alarm. At the bow of the vessel at the highest point of safety, stood the pretty little four year old daughter of J. Dallas Marvil of Laurel. As she moved into the water, the clarion voice of this sweet little girl called out in tones loud and clear, "Sallie C. Marvil" and sealed this declaration as the name of the new vessel by breaking a bottle of wine. Simultaneously with this act four beautiful white doves were turned loose, after the custom of the Japanese, each dove representing a year of the girl's age. These doves were purchased in Philadelphia by Mr. Marvil. The launch and every feature connected with it were carried out with the utmost precision, and every item of the work assigned was done without the least friction, thus producing perfection in this the crowning event of the labors of many months and the spending of nearly thirty thousand dollars. A success that every body feels proud of in the town where she was built. After drifting on the bosom of the Nanticoke with the youth and ohivairy upon her deck, she was docked by the tug Phoenix.

In beauty of form and equilibrium of construction she floats upon the water as a perfect model, the pride of the builders, the admiration of sailors and the coveted prize of the owners. She was modeled by Thos. J. Sauerhoff, who has been in charge of the shipyard since 1885. The models were made and drafts drawn in the large building built for that purpose at the yard. Every piece of timber went together with perfect accuracy. She has a quarter deck about one half the length of the vessel. She is the largest vessel ever built on the Eastern shore and the largest ever in the Nanticoke river. She will cost when complete about $45,000, forty-five thousand dollars, and will be ready to sail in about sixty days, and will be run in general coasting trade. She will carry ten men. Her sails and anchors will be hoisted by steam. She has three anchors weighing respectively, 800, 8,000, 2,500, and 200 fathom of one and seven eighths inch chain and seventeen sails and four masts. She will carry about twelve hundred tons.

The controlling interests are owned at Laurel and Bethel, Delaware. Capt. William J. Quillen of Bethel owns a large share and is captain and general manager. He is a native resident of Bethel and has spent nearly all his life on the high seas, having taken charge of a sea going vessel twenty four years ago, at the age of twenty years. He had charge of three vessels only during the twenty-four years. The last one sailed by him was the Edgar C. Ross, of Seaford, which he sailed for thirteen years. He has been very successful in every way as captain, sailor, and vessel owner and has the confidence and appreciation of vessel owners and sailors wherever known.

The construction of this vessel has added very materially to the prosperity of the town during the last twelve months having given employment to a great many men. Mr. Sauerhoff has demonstrated great ability and skill in this piece of workmanship, and those who by experience and observation know, say she is neatly, accurately, symmetrically and securely built. Great care was taken in the selection of material and its preparation and putting together was done by a force of mechanics that stand high in their trade. Those who have work done here are always delighted with the splendid force of employes. These men are all men of the town and surrounding community and their record is one to be appreciated.

The launch was looked forward to as a great event, and not a family in town but expected and prepared for company on that day. Some few invitations were sent out to those who were supposed to be especially interested. There were a great many people present; some estimates reaching 7,000, but it was generally conceded to be from 4,000 to 6,000 and perhaps more. More than 1,000 people stood upon the cause way on the opposite side of the river. The steamer Nanticoke brought passengers from Baltimore and nearly every landing along the route. Gasoline boats from Riverton, Eldorado, Federalburg and Seaford were loaded. Three steamers from Laurel and Bethel brought their utmost capacity together with a scow, having hundreds on her. The Steamer Phoenix brought an immense crowd.

The town was full of teams, every available hitching place being taken up. The town received the people openly and gave them a welcome that made them feel quite at home. So far as ascertained everything was done for the comfort and pleasure of everybody. The Laurel Band dispensed very fine music to the admiration of all.

The steamer Nanticoke remained at the wharf during the launch and gave the crew an opportunity to witness the sight. Capt. J. N. Hurst is of this town and he joined in salutes, and added much to the interest of the occasion. There were nine passenger boats here, including steamers and gasoline boats and a large number of smaller sail boats.

Among the visitors from Salisbury we saw Judge Holland, C. E. Williams, Hon. J. E. Ellegood, Thos. Perry, J. Cleveland White, of ADVERTISER, Jas. Ball, H. C. Bounds, A. A. Gillis, C. E. Harper, W. J. Staton, W. E. Sheppard, Fred Grier, A. F. Benjamin, Editor of Courier, Burnett White, I. L. Price, B. Lee Waller, B. F. Kennerly, E. A. Toadvine, I. S. Ulman, and others. From Delmar, F. C. Elliott and wife, C. E. Elliott and wife, Hon. W. L. Sirman, H. Culver, Mrs. Thor. Phillips, Mrs. C. A. Elliott, W. T. Sirman, W. B. Stevens, and many others whose names it was impossible to secure. From Laurel, Col. W. Records, Newton Ward; J. D. Marvil, and wife, H. F. Marvil and wife, J. H. Elliott, E. W. Twilley, C. A. Hastings, Editor C. W. Kenney and wife, W. F. and Charlie King, Paul Twilley, Dr. Fowler, Thos. Riggan and wife and many others. P. H. Drennen and W. J. Donnelly, of Cape Charles; W. H. Whiting, wife and daughter, Jas. Walker and wife, E. B. Bennett; and J. T. Hurst of Baltimore; Dr. R. D. Ellegood and I. S. and F. G. Cannon of Concord; James Oulbourn, A. Melvin, A. Chipman, Dr. Jacob Knowles and wife, of Seaford; Thomas Drennen and wife of Cambridge; and a host of others from these places, and also many from, Bethel, Eldorado, Vienna, Mardela, Hebron, Quantico, Fruitland and the surrounding country. It is in fact that was ever here at one time in the history of the town.

This was the most interesting day in the history of the town. For two years this town has been booming and has attracted the attention of business men far and near and many representative men from other places came to see the town and its growth as well as to witness the launch. Many came and saw and so far as we learned every person who had never been to the town or who have not been here for several years were surprised to see such a growth. It has really been phenomenal and as an evidence of the genuineness of our products they are conceded to be fine and this product of the ship yard, witnessed by so many people far and near, is likely not only to astonish the record, but give a new impetus to the mechanical enterprises of the town. No occasion was so universally enjoyed here as this. Labor of all kind was suspended, schools and stores closed, during launch and the whole day was spent with the visitors to make them as happy as possible, and the day goes by as one long to be remembered on account of its importance, interest and pressure.

Jackson Barge No. 2 Sinks.

A telegram has been received in Baltimore stating that Jackson Barge No. 2, owned by Mr. Robinson of Robinson & Michael, ship brokers, had sunk off Mill Point. She was loaded with guano and bound to Baltimore. The vessel broke loose from the tug which was towing her to port. The barge is one of six which the Messrs. Jackson had built several years ago for their Southern lumber trade. The late T. A. Bounds built the barges on Baron Creek at Mardela Springs.

CITY ELECTION.

The Democrats Win by a Handsome Majority—A Large Vote Polled

The city election on Tuesday passed off very quietly and the result was the election of the three democratic nominees for City Council by a majority of about two hundred. The day was clear and spring-like and had much to do with the large vote polled. When the polls were closed at five o'clock seven hundred and fifteen voters had cast their ballots. It is estimated that one hundred and twenty-five of these were colored who, as usual, cast practically a solid vote for the republican ticket. The republicans made a determined effort to get out their party strength and used many worn out arguments to array the colored voter against their "external" enemies(?), the democrats. They say they used "very little" money and this only to enthrone the colored man.

The democrats spent no money at all but appealed to the voters through a circular to go to the polls and support their candidates.

Early in the day the republicans saw the tide was against them but never gave up the fight and continued to use the horse and buggy to bring the "old veterans" to the polls until they were closed. It is thought that the republicans were prompted to make such a vigorous effort by their desire to regain control of the Fire Department.

The vote was counted in a little over an hour and resulted as follows: Dr. L. W. Morris, D., 457, Mr. W. B. Tilghman, D., 446, Mr. Elijah J. Parsons, D., 443, Dr. Sam'l A. Graham, R., 258, Mr. A. J. Benjamin, R., 236, and Mr. W. T. Booth, R., 264.

The democrats were well pleased with their victory and especially those from South Salisbury who were very anxious to be represented in the City Council.

MR. GUNBY'S IMPROVEMENTS.

A Vault Being Built and a New Book-Keeping System.

Mr. L. W. Gunby is making some important improvements in his big hardware business.

Slemmons & Bounds, the contractors, are at work on a big double brick vault which begins at the bottom of the basement and will extend to the ceiling above the first floor. The finishing brick has been specially made in buff, of special large size by the Salisbury brick company. The upper vault door has arrived and is made of the most resisting steel very ornamentally finished. When the vault is completed the office will be extended to the length of forty-five feet and width of twenty five feet so as to accommodate the growing clerical force, a first class mail service, including rural free delivery, and county telephone having greatly increased the office work of the house. Additional light will be obtained by new windows in the east wall of the building. June 1st a complete system of the most modern mechanical contrivances for counting, recording and checking, will be put in operation, and on that day the loose ledger system will be adopted.

Every detail of the big business will be made to dovetail into the new system and the whole will run with the smoothness and regularity of a well-oiled and nicely adjusted machine.

MARYLAND CENSUS.

Revised Figures Of St. Mary's, Anne Arundel And Charles.

Washington, May 7.—Director of the Census Merriam today announced the results of the official investigation of the alleged irregularities in the enumerations in St. Mary's, Charles and Anne Arundel counties, Maryland. These figures, with eliminations and additions, are as follows:

	Total Stricken Added on	Net
St. Mary's.....	17,182 1,155	201 954
Charles.....	17,726 788	1 3 697
A. Arundel.....	20,262 1,538	1,122 426
Total net reduction.....		1,970

In Anne Arundel county the omissions are attributed to the itinerant population of the county.

The Director has referred to the Attorney-General all legal questions raised during the investigation, including the right of enumerators to count persons temporarily residing in their districts. In Anne Arundel many berry-pickers who legally reside in Baltimore were enumerated. In the other two counties legal residents in Washington, Baltimore and elsewhere who were temporarily absent were enumerated as at their voting district. It is believed that many persons were enumerated twice under this system.

ARREST OF TWO COLORED MEN.

May Be Members Of A Band Of Crooks Though Not Much Evidence Against Them.

Sheriff Brattan arrested two colored boys Wednesday evening and lodged them in jail. They gave their names as Richard Hall, aged 22 years, and Albert Grace, aged 17 years. They said that they came to Salisbury from Baltimore on the sail boat M. A. Jones, and decided to run away from the Captain, J. Atley, because of his cruelty. They claim to be from Anne Arundel county, where, according to them, Hall's father, Jerome Hall, lives and owns a farm land.

When Sheriff Brattan started out to arrest the boys they were in company with two older colored men. The Sheriff came up near the four at Guthrie's store in South Salisbury, and commanded them to stop. Instead of obeying they all took to their heels, running toward cover on the south side of Lake Humphreys. Sheriff Brattan pursued and after a considerable run overtook the two boys and brought them to town. As it was about supper time, the Sheriff saw nobody to press into service but a man on horseback saw the men and went to the Sheriff's assistance. He gave chase to the two men, one of whom followed the lake shore up and escaped. Sheriff Brattan and the mounted man pursued the other so hard that he plunged into the lake, after the Sheriff had shot at him, and swam for liberty.

The two captured boys deny that they know the names of the two who escaped.

Hall is a yellow lad of spare build about 5 feet and 4 inches tall. He has a good vaccination mark, and a large plaster scar on his right abdomen. He says he is called in Baltimore "Yaller". Grace is a frail looking, dark colored youth five feet one inch high with a good vaccination mark on his left arm. He has rather peculiar looking eyes, but no other noticeable marks.

The apparent intimacy between the four colored men and two white strangers who claimed to be athletes, desiring to perform in the open air, and their lingering in the vicinity of the Lime & Coal Company's office, aroused the suspicions of Policeman Elliott, and when he began to shadow them the white men disappeared. The officers believe that they were an organized band of crooks.

THE FENCE LAW.

What is Required by Law to Inclose Stock.

CHICKENS ARE LIVE STOCK.

For the benefit of some inquiring readers we publish below section 41 of the public local laws of Wicomico county. It reads as follows:

"All fields and other grounds kept for enclosures in Wicomico county, shall be fenced with post and rail or plank, or worm fences, made of good and substantial rails, at least four feet high from the ground to the top of the upper rail; and the first or under rail, in post and rail, or plank or worm fences, shall not exceed five inches from the ground or embankment, on which the same is or may be built; and the width between the rails or planks, comprising the construction of good post and rail, plank or worm fences; and all brush fences, made upon the surface of the ground, shall be at least four feet high, and all brush fences, made upon an embankment, shall be at least three feet high; provided the embankment be eighteen inches high; and if any live stock of any kind or description whatever shall break into any person's enclosure, the same being the height and sufficiency aforesaid, then the owner of such live stock shall be liable to make good all such damages to the owner of such enclosure, as shall be found and awarded by two or more judicious persons to be appointed by justice of the peace in said county; said persons to view the same under oath, and make return before the justice of the peace by whom they were appointed; and the said damage shall be recovered in the manner prescribed by law for the recovery of small debts."

The words "live-stock of any kind or description" includes chickens, geese, ducks, guineas, turkeys, etc., and trespass by any of the above named barn-yard fowls lays their owner liable for damages just as trespass by cattle, sheep or hogs would do.

Joseph Matthews, a Grand Army veteran, drew $1,500 from a bank in Frederick city Monday to take an early train next day for Oklahoma. In the night a robber attempted to enter his bedroom, but the watchful veteran met him at the window, promising him a warm reception. The robber, however, thought it better to retreat, and did so quickly.

Brain Insurance.

No man would feel secure if his live hood entirely depended upon the grey matter in the cranium of even his best friend, unless he had the brain insured. Brain insurance is the most important indemnity known to man. When the brain stops the insurance begins. The advertisement of The Mutual Life of New York appears in this issue. There are many good companies but the Mutual Life stands at the top. The new policy just announced by Herbert N. Fell, the Company's General Agent at Wilmington, may well be called Brain Insurance, as it provides a definite life income when the brain becomes inactive and furnishes support for the life of the beneficiary, should death occur.

Yes sir, you are wrong if you entertain any such an idea. Modern improvements in the manufacture of Shoes have cut the cost in two. of Gotham were no doubt wise enough in their way. It is probable that they knew a great deal about a whole lot of things, but they made a mistake when they went to sea in a bowl, and that one error caused their undoing.

No matter how much care you take in the selection of the materials for your building or how experienced or reliable your mechanics, if you use inferior shingles you make a great mistake.

The covering of a building is the most important part of the materials used in its construction. "The weakest link in the strength of the chain," and "The poorest shingles determine the last of the roof." And it is poor economy to run so great a risk of having a leaky roof, to save such a trifling amount of money. Act wisely and buy best

Our Query Column.

ANSWERS TO QUESTIONS.
No. 97. There is an inscription in St. Paul's Cathedral, London, to the memory of Sir Christopher Wren, ending with "four words which comprehend his merit and his fame": "Si monumentum requiris circumspice." ("If you would see his monument, look around") In other words, this grand Cathedral is itself a monument to the greatest of English architects.

Sir Christopher Wren was the son of Dr. Wren, Dean of Windsor and Chaplain to Charles I. He was born in 1632, and died in 1723. Many titles of honor were bestowed on him; was knighted in 1673 by Charles II., elected President of the Royal Society of London 1680, and elected to Parliament, but he won his fame chiefly as architect of St. Paul's Cathedral, which is noted for being the largest and most magnificent Protestant church in the world, and second only to St. Peter's at Rome, among religious structures of modern times.

No. 98. Count Cagliostro is the name assumed by Josepa Balsamo (1748 1795) of whom Carlyle says, "the quack of quacks, the most perfect conrander that in these latter ages has marked the world's history." This famous impostor was the son of Pietro Balsamo, a poor shopkeeper of Palermo. He started out early in life to practice the deceptions by which alone his name has been made famous. His first appearance was in Rome, selling pen drawings, or rather prints touched up with India ink, and passed off as pen drawings.

In Venice he met Lorenza Feliciano, the beautiful daughter of a harness maker, who became his wife. Leaving Rome, the pair made their appearance at Venice, Marseilles, Madrid, Lisbon, Brussels and other cities, sometimes under one grand title, and sometimes under another, until finally they assumed those of the Count Alessandro and the Countess Seraphina Cagliostro. In a coach and four they rolled through Europe and everywhere found access to the highest circles of society.

London initiated them both into the mysteries of Free Masonry, by which they were enabled to achieve their highest triumphs. The Count professed to have secured certain manuscript in which he discovered the original system of Egyptian Masonry instituted by Enoch and Elijah, and a masonry had, in the process of time, wofully declined from its pristine purity and splendor, the Count proclaimed it to be his mission to restore the sacred brotherhood to its ancient glory. From city to city, from Russia to France, traveled the count as the Grand Cophia, and the countess as the Grand Priestess of the revived Masonic faith. Their reputed success seems almost incredible. Settling at last in Strasburg, they lived magnificently; the Count taking up the practice of medicine. Miraculous cures attended his skill, and wonder grew on wonder. But in the midst of their prosperity the hour of retribution was at hand. The Prince Cardinal de Rohan, the most celebrated victim of his arts, became the dupe of the famous diamond necklace case, and with him his friends, the Cagliostro, were thrown into the Bastille. After an imprisonment of nine months they were released, but were ordered to leave France. They wandered again over the continent driven from country to country by suspicious governments, until by some mischance they ventured to Rome, and began to organize an Egyptian lodge.

The authorities of the Romish church had long been watching them, and now having them within its power, caused them to be seized and confined in prison. After a tedious trial the Pope gave judgment that "The manuscript of the Egyptian Masonry be burned by the common hangman; that all that inter-medded with such masonry be accused." Joseph Balsamo (Count Cagliostro) was imprisoned for life in the fortress of San Leon, where he died in 1795. His wife, who was imprisoned in a convent, survived him a few years.

No. 99. The Court of Star Chamber was of very ancient origin. It had extensive powers, could adjudge cases, both civil and criminal, without the intervention of a jury could torture at pleasure, but it could not pronounce the death penalty. It was by this Court that William, Bishop of Lincoln, was fined 5000L for calling Laud the Great Levithan; and John Lilburn, after being fined 5000L, was sentenced to the pillory, and to be whipped from Fleet Street to Westminster. This Court derived its name from the place where it met, one of the chambers of the king's palace at Westminster, whose ceiling was decorated with stars.

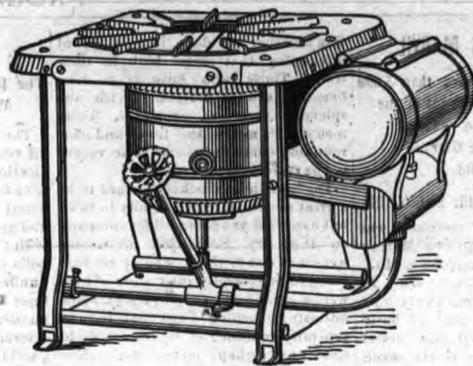

The Court of the Star Chamber was abolished by an act of Parliament in 1641, during the reign of Charles I.; but from this same "Star Chamber" Charles I., called "the royal martyr," was sentenced to be beheaded, January 30, 1649.

What distinguished American revolutionary Statesman and signer of the Declaration of Independence spent a princely fortune in behalf of the American cause, and who said to the General commanding the American force, then besieging the town in which his residence was located: "Spare no particle of my property so long as it affords comfort or shelter to the enemies of my country"?

Keep The Balance UP.
It has been truthfully said that a ry disturbance of the even balance of health causes serious trouble. Nobody can be too careful to keep this balance up. When people begin to lose appetite or to get tired easily, the least impudence brings on sickness, weakness, or debility. The system needs a tonic, craves it, and should not be denied it; and the best tonic of which we have any knowledge is Hood's Sarsaparilla. What this medicine has done in keeping healthy, in keeping up the even balance of health gives it the same distinction as a preventive that it enjoys as a cure. Its early use has illustrated the wisdom of the old saying that a stitch in time saves nine. Take Hood's for appetite, strength, and endurance.

THE CONDITION OF CROPS.

Reports of the Vice-Presidents of the Peninsula Horticultural Society.

Dover, May 1.—Vesley Webb, secretary of the Peninsula Horticultural Society, has received from the vice-presidents of the society their monthly reports of the condition of crops in their localities as follows:

W. F. Allen, Salisbury—Peaches, apples and pears, full crops; strawberries, full crop; blackberries, two thirds crop.

F. P. Cochran, Galena—Peaches, apples, plums, pears and quinces, plenty of buds; many peach trees in full bloom, strawberries and other berries in bloom, with prospects of a good crop; all fruits uninjured so far.

R. L. Gulick, Gluckheim—Peaches, apples, pears, plums, quinces, cherries, strawberries and raspberries, 100 per cent.

Harry A. Roe, Denton—Peaches in full bloom; apples dormant yet, also pears; plums in partial bloom, prospect good; cherries, strawberries blackberries and raspberries, normal.

Harrison, Berlin—Prospects of a full crop of all fruits.

J. W. Hall, Marion—Strawberry prospect good for what vines we have. Owing to the drought of last summer, we have a very poor stand of plants on the rows. Season will be late with raspberries. Blackberries promising. Peaches, apples and pears all promise a good crop. Season very wet and cold.

R. C. Peters, Ironshire—Peaches full crop. Pears not as full as last year, but prospects good for fair crop. Apples rather shy of fruit, buds on most varieties look as if there would be a light crop. Strawberry crop fair for what patches there are in this section. Other fruits don't show up well, as the season is backward.

Maxwell, Still Pond—Blight has played havoc with Bartlett and Manning trees 4 to 7 years of age in this section. Two-thirds of the other varieties are dead. Peach orchards look well, some are affected with the scale, but are being treated with kerosene, which is useless. Fine prospect for apples, pears and berries of all kinds.

Charles Wright, Seaford—Peaches, pears, apples, plums, quinces, cherries, strawberries 100 per cent; blackberries, 50 per cent; raspberries, 10 per cent.

Charles Barker, Milford—Peaches, apples, pears, and plums, good; quinces and cherries fair; strawberries, light crop; blackberries, badly winter killed; raspberries, all winter killed.

S. H. Derby, Woodside—Peaches, apples, pears and plums, all in fine shape; raspberries, winter killed badly.

John J. Black, New Castle—Season backward, and peaches not in bloom. Fruits in general promise fair crop, but no excess of buds in any variety. Small fruits promise well, conditions favorable.

HANDSOME RETURN FROM AN INVESTMENT MADE 31 YEARS AGO.

One of Wilmington's Most Prominent Citizens Testifies to the Superiority of the Investments Offered by the Mutual Life.

The benefits to be derived from a life insurance policy and the deposit of the same sum paid for premiums in a savings bank, raises a question which is frequently discussed by all classes of investors.

If a man at the age of 31 deposits in a bank each year the sum of $46.70, at 4 per cent. compound interest, he will realize at the end of thirty one years the sum of $3,881.

A policy just paid by the Mutual Life Insurance Company of New York at the death of the late Isaac H. Frank, of this city, shows a decided advantage over a savings bank account.

In May, 1870, the company issued to Mr. Frank policy No. 110,892, for $3,000 on the Ordinary Life Annual Dividend plan at age 31, annual premium $46.70. Mr. Frank used his dividends in reduction of his premiums, and during his lifetime surrendered to pay premiums additional amounting to $981.05, and the amount now paid by the Mutual Life is $2,011, making the total accumulated by the company $2,942.05, which is $161 more than would have been realized from a 4 per cent. account in a savings bank. For thirty one years Mr. Frank had an insurance of $3,000 on his life, and if he had put his $46.70 in the bank and then died his heirs would have received only that amount.

Below is a letter addressed Mr. Fell by Mr. Wm. E. Frank, Wilmington's leading grocer, acknowledging check in payment of claim.

Office of WM. E. FRANK, 509 King St., Wholesale Grocer.

Wilmington, Del., April 6, 1901.

Mr. Herbert N. Fell, General Agent, The Mutual Life Insurance Company of New York, Wilmington, Del.

Dear Sir:—I beg to acknowledge receipt of check for $3,011, in settlement of death claim under Policy No. 110,892, on the life of my father, Isaac H. Frank.

This policy was issued on May 24, 1870; annual premium, $46.70; amount $2,000. The dividends were declared annually, and during my father's lifetime he surrendered additions amounting to $981.05, making the total paid by the company $2,942.05. I find that the premiums paid in, together with 4 per cent. compound interest for thirty one years, amount to $2,881.89, the investment, therefore, being better than 4 per cent. continuous compound interest for thirty-one years, besides furnishing insurance for that period.

Having been myself a policyholder in the Grand Old Mutual for several years, I have always endorsed the company, and the settlement of my father's policy conclusively proves the investments you offer are second to none. Very truly yours,

WM. E. FRANK

MISS ELLIS REACHES PARIS.

Some Historic Facts Concerning Continental Europe.

Sudburyville, Md., May 8, 1901.

I noticed last week that the paper said "Miss Ellis still in Europe" and perhaps it is time that she is getting back home, for maybe the story is long drawn out; but one comfort remains to the writer and that is that no one has been obliged to read any of it unless they wished and to those who have patience to read me so far I would say, "Bear with a little longer, I am almost done; I never like to leave a thing unfinished no matter how insignificant."

We set in the day in Geneva in visiting the stores, looking for anything in the way of curiosities we could find. We saw no public buildings of note and the only monument we saw was one to the Duke of Brunswick, one of the city's noble benefactors, standing near Quaine du Mont Blanc where we landed. Mount Blanc was a constant source of interest to us; several excursions left Geneva that day but as none of them went to Mount Blanc nor near there we did not consider the pleasure to be derived from a journey equal to the cost.

Thursday morning found us ready to leave for Paris where we were to spend the following week. We left quite early in the morning and such a beautiful morning it was that no thought of the disappointments and anxieties awaiting us in Paris marred our pleasure or our ride brought us to French territory and again the Customs official must take us in hand. We hoped to be able to retain our seats but our courier failed to impress them with the fact that we had nothing dutiable so out we were obliged to come with all baggage. I do not know what articles they were looking for, as my baggage received the peculiar mark without being opened. Those who had trunks were obliged to open them, but no trouble was experienced by any of the party. We had gone through this farce of baggage inspection six times already and I was about ready to declare myself an ardent advocate of "Free Trade" before the lynx eyed American officials at New York had had their turn at my few belongings.

The earliest historian of France was Julius Caesar who invaded and conquered it 59 B. C.; it was then called Gaul and its people Celts. It covered not only France but Belgium as well and parts of Switzerland and Germany. At the time of the Roman invasion the people were only partially civilized; they had towns and fortifications and had learned something of the useful arts. Their religion was idolatrous and they sacrificed human victims. The Roman power yielded to that of the Franks, a Germanic tribe under Clovis in 481. Paris was its capital and the dynasty which he founded was called the Merovingian. Under Charlemagne it was called the Carolingian and during his reign France was raised to a high rank in Western Europe. The real founder of the French monarchy was Hugh Capet, Count of Paris and Orleans who, made king in 987 by the feudal chiefs, reigned for 30 years. He laid claim to the throne of France, hence the enmity between the two countries; the Crusades and Christian War being the only instance of a military union between them. France has suffered much from Revolutions at home, was abroad and unwise, extravagant rulers. From 1399 to 1449 she was engaged in constant struggle with England.

Under Francis II the Catholic house of France became powerful. Henry VI was the first Bourbon prince and was succeeded by Louis XIII and he by Louis XIV under whose reign the French monarchy reached its highest point of luxury and power and in the reign of extravagance and courtly immorality were sown the seed which produced the terrible Reign of Terror; the extravagance, profligacy of the court the sufferings of the people and oppression of the nobles, the recent success of the War of American Independence, all combined to produce the Revolution which broke out in 1789, the like of which the world had never seen before. Many were condemned to the guillotine whose only fault was that in their veins flowed noble blood.

Napoleon Bonaparte one of the ablest and ablest Corsican by birth now became a rising figure; at first he was Consul but in 1804 was declared Emperor by the people. His ambitious spirit soon conquered all Western Europe, Rome itself was taken and the Pope obliged to leave the Vatican. But his glory was short lived, for in 1815 reverses came and in 1814 Paris surrendered to the allies and Napoleon was sent to Elba. Louis XVIII succeeded to the throne but his reign was soon interrupted by the return of Napoleon who met his final defeat at Waterloo June 18, 1815. Charles X and Louis Phillip ended the long line of French kings and a republic took the place of the old monarchy for a time. Louis Napoleon, nephew of Napoleon I, was elected first president of the new republic but short of assumed the powers of a dictator and the following year became emperor with the title of Napoleon III, reigning nearly twenty years.

At the close of the Franco German War Napoleon III abdicated and France became a republic again with M. Thiers as president. France suffers much from the unsettled condition of the country, the people are restless, easily excited and only a spark is needed to ignite the smoldering fires of discontent. France is divided into 87 provinces or departments each of which is represented in the legislative Assembly.

The country is for the most part level and the people live mainly by agriculture, of which the cultivation of the vine and the raising of beets are the most important, although crops of grain are raised in abundance. Education is free and religious toleration is guaranteed to all; 98 per cent of the people are Catholic.

The country through which we passed to Paris was very much like our own, in fact more so than any we had seen yet. Along after a row of wheat bordered the road side, all out, part of it still standing in the shock, but much had already been hauled to the farm houses and put into stacks to wait for threshing. I hoped to see somewhere the threshing in progress but was disappointed. Our lunch today was to be gotten at Macon a town of considerable importance in our line of travel.

With us was an old lady who had been to Edinburgh as a delegate to the International W. C. T. U., and had joined us in London. She was very easily deceived and believed everything told her. Maryland's State Fire Marshal enjoyed a joke on her occasionally and as that happened to be traveling in the same compartment he remarked that a fellow passenger who left the train at Macon was suffering with small pox. Of course she believed it and when we went to lunch we found each plate supplied with a bottle of French wine. The old lady was so alarmed that she drank the whole bottle full to k-p off the contagion. I do not know whether she ever learned that it was a hoax, perhaps if she did her conscience gave her some unnecessary twinges over that bottle of wine and she a delegate to the W. C. T. U. Our lunch was soon over for there was very little of that was fit to eat and we found that we had only a few minutes to spare before our train was ready to leave and that the remainder of the afternoon was to be spent in the cars.

We arranged ourselves as comfortably as we could, some sleeping and some not sleeping amusing themselves in any way possible. The long afternoon away slowly, the scenery was monotonous, vineyard succeeding wheatfield until we neared Paris and then the market gardens came into view. Nearly all of the farmhouses as well as the outbuildings are built of stone and whenever a garden or what we would call a barnyard was enclosed, the enclosing was a solid stone wall about four feet high, sometimes a stone enclosed the whole; house, outbuildings and all. We supposed there would be some purpose of defence. They could scarcely have been intended to keep off wild animals for the country like all European countries is destitute of forests which would be their natural shelter.

As we drew near Paris we saw evidence of irrigation. In an acre of land devoted to the growth of salad, a favorite dish of the French, and other vegetables there would be often as many as six wells. These were built of stone and the water was raised from them by means of a hand pole and sweep or sometimes a bucket tied at the end of a line; the water was poured over the vegetable by the women and girls.

At 6 p. m. we noticed that we were following the banks of a river and in a little while the city of St. Cloud was passed and ten miles more brought us to the gay dissolute city of Paris famous alike for its history, art, music, literature, science and education. Paris is named for the Parisii, a tribe of Gauls whose mound was stood upon by the site when the city was conquered by the Romans. In 53 B. C. Lutetia as it was then called was an important Roman town; in the 4th century it was called Paris and in the 6th century was chosen by Clovis as the seat of his empire, although it did not become permanently the capital until the 10th century. Louis XI, Henry IX and Louis XIV improved the city much, organizing its police, establishing its schools and public charities.

Napoleon I not only removed the marks of the terrible Revolution, but built up the city on a grander scale with new bridges, street squares and public gardens, spending $3,000,000 in twelve years; yet as late as 1894 the gutters ran through the middle of the street. Modern Paris however owes its beauty to Napoleon III, under Haussmann his plans were carried out, boulevards crossing the narrow streets connecting all the public squares were laid out. These boulevards cross the other streets much like the avenues do in Washington and wherever two or more come together forming a large open space, that site is marked by a monument of national or local importance. Paris is divided into two parts by the Seine river and is surrounded by a range of hills from two to four miles distant. The fortifications consist of a rampart 23 miles long, broken by 57 gates and beyond these 16 forts. The city has many public squares called Places of which and the magnificent historical buildings I will speak anon. Just now we will take a cursory view of this gayest of all cities of the world where men and women value life so little and the whole end of human existence is apparently the pursuit of pleasure.

A little after 6 p. m. we arrived in Paris and found the brakes awaiting to convey us to the Hotel.

YOUR BODIES ARE TEMPLES

You believe that statement. But you only realize in part the obligations implied by it. Do you keep that temple of the body clean? If not, the defilement attaches to every service of the temple. Disease of the stomach and other organs of digestion and nutrition, affects the mind as well as the body. The dull mind stifled by poisonous gases, enters on its service without desire, and accomplishes it without delight. A healthy body and a clear mind result from the use of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. It removes the clogging and poisonous impurities from the stomach, stimulates the flow of the juices necessary to digestion and increases the blood supply in quality and quantity. The "Discovery" is strictly a temperance medicine and contains no alcohol or whisky, neither opium, cocaine, nor other narcotic.

"I had suffered from indigestion and only those who have suffered from it know what it really is," writes Mrs. M. J. Fagan, of 1613 East Genesee Street, Syracuse, N. Y. "I had had severe attacks of headache and dizziness with cold hands and feet; everything I ate distressed me, bowels were constipated and I was growing very thin and nervous. I cannot half express the bad feelings I had when I commenced taking Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. I took nine bottles of the 'Discovery.' I commenced feeling better with the first bottle and kept on improving. Now I am so greatly improved in health my friends often speak of it."

TUESDAY'S MUNICIPAL ELECTIONS.

The result of the election in Salisbury on Tuesday was as foreshadowed in the Advertiser of last week. A large vote was polled for a city election, and the Democrats won by a good majority. Under normal conditions the Democrats are sure victors and it seems to make but little difference whether the Republicans put up a stiff fight or make a lifeless effort to elect their ticket. The election had no particular significance—both parties having put forward strong candidates—and only corroborates the generally admitted fact that Salisbury is Democratic on a party vote by about two hundred.

In Baltimore city the Republicans won a complete victory, electing seventeen out of twenty four seats in the First Branch of the City Council and all four of their candidates for the Second Branch. While both sides professed the utmost confidence in carrying the election, yet, by close observers and those familiar with the existing conditions, the result came not as a surprise. It was an open secret that the two factions of the Democratic party in the city were so bitterly opposed to each other that the old method of "getting even" by "knifing" was resorted to. The Hayes faction claimed they were not treated fairly by the Rasin crowd in the primaries and determined to vent their wrath at the polls. The result proved that they kept their word and were more anxious to retaliate than to elect a Democratic Council. Gov. Smith, Ex. Senator Gorman and other State leaders refused to take a hand in the contest, claiming that it was a question for Baltimore City to settle and not for the State at large.

The attempt of the Republicans to show that the result was caused by resentment against the Democratic party, for the action of the Legislature in passing the recent Election Law, is not borne out by the facts in the case. There was very little interest in the election, as shown by the extremely light vote—only 60 per cent being cast. If there had been any censure or resentment against the party, a much larger vote would have been the result.

All reports show that the new Ballot law worked most satisfactorily and the result of the election proves conclusively that the law secures a free and fair expression of the popular will and is not in the interest of any one party, as the Republican organs would have the people believe.

In no way can the Baltimore City municipal election be said to represent the popular condemnation or approval of the new Election Law. We believe the law a step in the right direction and we believe the people of the State endorse it as such.

THE MARYLAND ELECTION LAW.

There seems little of general political significance in the municipal election in Baltimore, except that the two Democratic factions are more than commonly inharmonious and would rather let the Republicans control the Council than assist one another. The interest that was felt in this election outside of Baltimore was in the fact that it was the first held under the new ballot law, but even in this respect it furnishes no significant result. The vote was so light that it is impossible to make any estimate of the proportion of illiterates on either side excluded by the new law.

A comprehensive test of the Maryland ballot law would have been valuable at this time, when the subject is under consideration at Harrisburg. The foundation of the Maryland act, however, is personal registration, which is not at present practicable in Pennsylvania, and in this essential respect the reform of our election laws must be postponed until another session. As regards the actual conduct of the election, and especially the preparation of the ballot, the Maryland act meets the requirements of reason and justice. The arrangement of the names of candidates under the title of office to be filled and the prohibition of "assistance" in marking the ballots, correspond with the provisions of the bill advocated by the Democrats at Harrisburg.

In Maryland these provisions, which practically exclude the ignorant and illiterate, were earnestly opposed by the Republicans as directed particularly against the black voters, and the measure was excitedly denounced as a deep-laid scheme of Mr. Gorman to regain control of the State. While it is in the rural counties rather than in the city that such exclusion in Baltimore may be'p' to convince these fearful partisans that a fair election law, fairly enforced, does no injustice to any party. It does, no doubt, encourage independent voting, but in Baltimore this has proved to the advantage of the Republicans in the present instance, and it must always be to the advantage of the community at large.—Philadelphia Times.

THE MANTLE OF ELLIJAH.

The Hon. Perry S. Heath has blossomed into a national humorist.

"There is not a man in the Republican party who could get the next Presidential nomination easier than Senator Mark Hanna, and not a man in the United States who could be so easily elected."

Indeed! We hope the secretary of the Republican National Committee will stick to this belief and see to it that Mark is nominated. The result would be a landslide for the Democrats. Mark Hanna and the Money Power versus the People! What a campaign slogan that would make!

As a recognition of the kind of statesmanship now dominating the Republican party the selection of Senator Hanna as its standard-bearer would be logical and eminently fitting. He is the personal exponent of high tariff beneficence, the incarnation of the modern doctrine of the centralization of wealth, and the plutocratic representative of a sordid commercialism. As such he would secure the united support of the new school of Republicanism and in the event of election would undoubtedly continue to exploit the principles of his illustrious chief. The pathetic feature in this picture would be the obliteration of the Hon. Theodore Roosevelt. That would be a pity, though he might be kept in partial view by placing him again in the Vice-Presidential chair.—Wilmington Every Evening.

Advertisements as News.

The well-filled advertising columns of a newspaper or magazine present a great bazaar in themselves, closely consulted by those who wish to buy, says the Louisville Courier Journal. Indeed much shopping is done in these columns. Selections are made at the shopper's leisure, and the advertiser who knows his business will see to it that his advertisement is such as to do in the home the work that a clever, courteous, resourceful salesman is expected to do behind the counter.

Advertising, therefore, has become an art, calling upon bright wit, and demanding both honesty and versatility as essential to the best results. Advertising has accordingly become a matter of personal interest to all who propose to buy—and even to those who have no thought of buying, just as it is a pleasure to look over goods without any expectation of purchasing them. The advertising columns in this way are mediums of human interest, supplied nowhere else. They are not only read closely, but many people read them before reading anything else in the newspaper or magazine.

More and more are business men appreciating these facts. There is more than one advertiser who spends more than a million dollars a year in advertising. Many business concerns are dependent almost entirely on advertising for their existence and continuance, and it is estimated that advertising is responsible for $10,000,000 of sales a year.

There are some business men who can afford not to advertise, but there is no periodical publication which can afford to believe that advertising is uninteresting to its readers.

William E. Jarrell has bought the farm of Harrison W. Vickers, 260 acres, in Kent county, for $13,750. Andrew W. Woodland bought the Shalcross farm, near Carville's Station, in Queen Anne's county, 400 acres for $8,075.

INVITE THE BIRDS.

They are Useful as Well as Agreeable Company.

It is very desirable to have birds about every house, yard, orchard and barn. Birds are most numerous about the farms. They can be attracted to these places best at nesting time. A box placed on a pole 15 or 20 feet high is almost certain to become the home of a pair of blue birds. This bird is universally respected. The little wren will be satisfied with an old tin can for a nest provided it is placed in the woods out of reach of the cat. The purple martin enjoys a good roomy house and is a valuable bird to have around. It will drive away the hawks.

In early times efforts were made to exterminate certain birds such as the crows, blackbirds and rice birds, which were considered injurious to agriculture.

Prof. Lawrence Bruner makes the following interesting statements concerning the destruction of insects in Nebraska by birds. His illustrations may be applied to any other State provided the number of acres is taken as the basis of computation.

"In nearly every case where the food habits of our birds have been carefully studied, we find that the good done far exceeds the possible harm that may be inflicted by them. Allowing 25 insects per day as an average diet for each individual bird to the acre, or in round numbers 75,000,000 birds in Nebraska, there would be required 1,875,000,000 insects for each day's rations.

"Again, estimating the number of insects required to fill a bushel at 120,000, it would take 15,625 bushels of insects to feed our birds for a single day, or 937,500 bushels for 60 days, or 2,343,750 bushels for 150 days. These estimates are very low when we take into consideration the numbers of insects that various of our birds have been known to destroy in a single day. For example, the stomachs of four chickadees contained 1,028 eggs of canker worms. Four others contained about 800 eggs and 103 mature females of the same insect. The stomach of a single quail contained 101 potato beetles, and that of another upward of 500 chinchbugs. A yellow-billed cuckoo, shot at 6 o'clock in the morning, contained 43 caterpillars. A robin had eaten 175 larvae of Bibio, which feed on the roots of grasses &c."

Below is given an abstract of the law for Wicomico county for the protection of the birds:

"It shall be unlawful for any person in Wicomico county to shoot, kill or in any way take, trap, catch or destroy, at any time in said county, any mocking bird, blue bird, swallow, martin, robin, cat bird, woodpecker, sparrow, wren, whippoorwill, dove, thrush, lark, killdeer, red bird, bobolink, yellow bird, linnet, bat, night hawk, branch robin, gold finch, sap sucker, tomitt, or any other insectivorous bird; and each and every person violating the provisions of this section shall be fined two dollars for each and every bird proved to have been shot, killed or in any way taken, trapped, caught or destroyed by him. No person shall at any time willfully destroy, in Wicomico county, any egg or nest of any of the birds mentioned in sections 1 and 2, under a penalty of five dollars for each and every violation of this section."

Jacksonville Burned

A large and disastrous fire visited Jacksonville, Florida, on Friday of last week. The fire burned for twelve hours and covered a space of two and a half miles long by a half mile wide. The loss is estimated at $15,000,000 and over 10,000 people are homeless. Jacksonville is situated on the St. John's river and is a city of some thirty thousand inhabitants. It is one of the popular winter resorts and contained several handsome hotels which were destroyed. An appeal for help has been made to the people throughout the United States.

The bird very likely lost its bearing while returning to its loft in some distant city.

—All the horse fanciers of town were at the race track last Wednesday afternoon to witness a trotting race between Mr. J. S. Duffy's five year old "Mister" mare and Mr. Walter B. Miller's and J. G. Hearn's mares to the pole. Mr. Duffy drove his mare and Mr. Miller the pair. Two half mile beats and one mile beat were trotted. Mr. Duffy's mare took each heat, the best time being in 2.56. The horses were quite evenly matched and gave pretty exhibitions of speed. The pair was unaccustomed to working together and could not make the circle of the track as fast to the pole as either could have done it to a sulky. Mr. Duffy has a very promising young mare. Friday's rain prevented a race in which all of the above horses and Humphreys and Graham's were to enter.

Fish Hatching Operations.

The Salisbury fish hatching station is a center of much activity these days under the management of Deputy Fish Commissioner W. F. Calloway and his assistant Captain Geo. W. Smith. They are conducting the station in a business like manner.

The cold weather has made ripe shad scarce and it was only about ten days ago that suitable roe for propagation could be obtained.

The first fry liberated from the Salisbury station was a lot of 180,000 turned loose in the Manokin river below Princess Anne Wednesday of last week and 210,000 turned into the Wicomico at Salisbury the following day. A million and a half was the hatch of the first week of the operations. This week the number will far exceed this.

Mr. Calloway and his assistant are very deeply interested in the work and take pleasure in explaining the operations to visitors, who call in considerable numbers. Captain Smith has had seventeen years experience in the hatching of fry and was the first man in this county to propagate white perch.

Deputy Commissioner Wesley English has been very successful propagating perch at the Nanticoke station. He turned about 3,000,000 perch fry in the Wicomico at Salisbury Wednesday two weeks ago and an equal number in the Marshall Hope river Friday and 400,000 were liberated at Sharptown. The season for perch is now over. Mr. English is now giving his attention to propagating shad.

A Delmar young man deliberately stood up in Lacy Thoroughgood's store last Saturday and said he was 21 years old and had never hugged or kissed a girl or a woman, young or old, in his life. He believes there is danger in kissing—Delmar people are very careful about their health. If there is any man 21 years old, over or under, living in Salisbury, who has any sort of a face except an ingrowing one, who will take an oath that he has never kissed or hugged a girl, and he will stand in my show window two hours next Saturday night, 7 to 9 o'clock, in plain view of the hundreds who go in and out of my store, I'll give him $25.00 in cash, and will guarantee that he'll wish he'd never been born. Lacy Thoroughgood will surround him while in the window with some of the loveliest suits of Men's Clothes that you ever saw. You always find Lacy Thoroughgood's Clothes different from any other store's offerings, they are better, far better, have more styles. My prices on Men's Suits range $5, $6.50, $7.50, $10, $12.50 to $18. My prices on Children's Suits range $1.25, $2, $2.50, $3, $3.50 to $6.50. Have you ever noticed it? It makes no difference if you are a homely cuss, so homely, even that when you attend a masked ball people can't tell whether you've removed your disguise or not, it should not worry you in the least, all you need is one of Lacy Thoroughgood's New Spring Suits, and you'll be surprised at the sudden show of feeling on the part of your best girl. The Talmage Sermon

WASHINGTON, May 5.—In this discourse Dr. Talmage calls the roll of influence once antagonistic but now friendly to the gospel and encourages Christian workers; text, 1 Samuel xxi, 9, "There is none like that; give it me."

making them stand still that both motions should be stopped—only the one turning the world on its own axis.

Again, I remark that the traveling disposition of the world, which was adverse to morals and religion, is to be brought on our side. The man that went down to Jericho and fell amid thieves was a type of a great many travelers.

Worldly philosophy said, "Matter is eternal. The world always was. God did not make it."

Worldly philosophy said, "Your Bible is a most inaccurate book. All that story in the Old Testament, again and again told, about the army of the locusts—it is preposterous."

Worldly philosophy said, "All that story of the coming of the locusts like an army. An army walks; locusts fly. An army goes in order and procession, locusts without order."

Worldly philosophy said, "All that story of the light turned as clay to the world is simply an absurdity."

Worldly philosophy said, "What an absurd story about Joshua making the sun and moon stand still! If the world had stopped an instant, the whole universe would have been out of gear."

Low-Rate Summer Tours to the Pacific Coast and Mountains of the Canadian Northwest, via the Pennsylvania Railroad.

In view of the extremely low rates authorized by the International Conference of the Epworth League and American Epworth Leagues at San Francisco in July next, the Pennsylvania Railroad Company announces a thirty-day tour across the Continent, leaving New York, Newark, Philadelphia, Baltimore, Washington and other points on its lines east of Pittsburg, on Monday, July 8, returning to New York Tuesday, August 7.

The route will include stops at all the really important points for rest and sightseeing, among them being Chicago, Omaha, Denver, Colorado Springs, Glenwood Springs (with a daylight ride through the Rocky Mountains, including the Royal Gorge and Grand Canon of the Arkansas), and Salt Lake City, arriving at San Francisco 10:00 A. M. Tuesday, July 16, before the Convention opens.

The schedule over the Canadian Pacific Railway will be prepared with special care, and the train side-tracked at nights where necessary, in order that no part of this delightful tour be marred by sleepless nights.

The tourists will travel in the highest grade of Pullman equipment, and the special train will be composed of vestibule dining car, six sleeping cars, and observation parlor, and latter car will be similar to those used on the famous Pennsylvania Limited.

With the exception of the time devoted to San Francisco, passengers will be on the special train during the entire tour. Breakfast, luncheon, and dinner will be provided in the dining car while en route, when side-tracked at the various places visited.

Bug Death IS THE BEST INSECTICIDE On the Market to-day. For the trucker and farmer to use. Why? It is not poisonous, it frees the plant from all insects, as it contains no arsenic and can be used on any plant or vine and will not burn or blight it.

for the trucker and farmer to use. Why? It is not poisonous, it frees the plant from all insects, as it contains no arsenic and can be used on any plant or vine and will not burn or blight it. It keeps the vine green and thrifty giving the potato a chance to mature, which means a more satisfactory potato less liable to rot.

DO YOU GET UP WITH A LAME BACK?

Kidney Trouble Makes You Miserable. Almost everybody who reads the newspapers is sure to know of the wonderful cures made by Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, the great kidney, liver and bladder remedy.

It is the great medical triumph of the nineteenth century; discovered after years of scientific research by Dr. Kilmer, the eminent kidney and bladder specialist, and is wonderfully successful in promptly curing lame back, kidney, bladder, uric acid troubles and Bright's Disease, which is the worst form of kidney trouble.

Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root is not recommended for everything but if you have kidney, liver or bladder trouble it will be found just the remedy you need. It has been tested in so many ways, in hospital work, in private practice, among the helpless too poor to purchase relief and has proved so successful in every case that a special arrangement has been made by which all readers of this paper who have not already tried it, may have a sample bottle sent free by mail, also a book telling more about Swamp-Root and how to find out if you have kidney or bladder trouble.

WHAT THE PEOPLE SAY. Who are Using Home Comfort Ranges. Salisbury, Md., January 24, 1900. Wrought Iron Range Company.

Gentlemen:—This is to certify that we purchased one of your Home Comfort Ranges No. 1 about a year ago and wish to say that we consider it one of the most durable and satisfactory of kitchen ranges, and heartily recommend them to any one wishing anything in the line of a cooking range. We would not be willing to part with it if we could not get another. For durability and as a good baker, and for all purposes, we do not think they could be surpassed.

JAMES A. WALLER, ELIJAH J. ADKINS. Salisbury, Md., January 17, 1901. Wrought Iron Range Company.

Gentlemen:—I have been using one of your Home Comfort Ranges for the past seven years, and can heartily recommend and endorse the most durable and reliable of all kitchen stoves. We would not want to part with it under any circumstances if we could not get another. This letter you may use in any way you think best for your business.

JAMES H. WEST. Salisbury, Md., January 22, 1901. This is to certify that I purchased a Home Comfort Range from one of the Wrought Iron Range Co's traveling salesmen, some six years ago. I find the Range in all particulars as represented by the salesman. It is all that could be desired in a first-class cooking range, and I cheerfully recommend it to any one in need of a cooking range.

WM. S. HASTINGS. Salisbury, Md., February 19, 1901. Wrought Iron Range Company.

It affords me great pleasure to recommend your Home Comfort Range. I purchased one from your traveling salesman six years ago, and it is giving us perfect satisfaction, and is the most economical on fuel. We would not take twice the amount paid for it if we could not get another like it.

JOHN W. PARKER of L. Collingwood, Ont., 11th July, 1900. W. L. Culver, Esq., President Wrought Iron Range Co., St. Louis, Missouri.

Dear Sir:—We are in receipt of your favor of June 18th, which we regret say was mislaid. We have great pleasure in stating that your ranges are in use on six of the eight steamers of the fleet and that they have given perfect satisfaction in every way as to their durability and working qualities, which have been tested to the utmost.

In the fall of '98 our steamer Pacific was totally destroyed by fire at the dock which originated at the G. T. Ry. warehouse, and although the steamer was burnt to the keel the Wrought Iron Range on board was found in such good condition that it was used on our new steamer Germanic, which was built the following season to take place of Pacific. There was practically nothing wrong with the stove except discoloration and rust, consequent upon the action of intense heat and water.

The customers using your ranges are Majestic, Collingwood, Germanic, Atlantic, British and Midland. Very truly, NORTHERN NAVIGATION CO.

If people only knew what we know about Kodol Dyspepsia Cure, it would be used in nearly every household, as there are few people who do not suffer from a feeling of fullness after eating, or being, flatulence, sour stomach or water-brash, caused by indigestion or dyspepsia. A preparation such as Kodol Dyspepsia Cure, which, with no aid from the stomach, will digest your food, certainly can't help but do you good. Dr. L. D. Collier.

Navy Exhibit. One of the most novel features of the Navy exhibit at the Pan-American Exposition is a large map of the world, eight by sixteen feet, on which are placed models of every ship in the Navy. Each day, as telegraphic notification is received, the exact location of each vessel, the vessels are moved about the map in accordance with this information, so that the visitor may see just where every vessel in the navy is each day.

Another interesting thing is a platform 65 feet long representing the deck of a ship on which wax figures are placed wearing uniforms showing the dress of all grades of navy officers. Models of United States warships include four vessels that were in the battle of Manila, and five that were in the fight of Santiago; also the Holland sub boat, the Vesuvius, the dynamiter whose "coughing" was so notable during the anxious days before Santiago; and the hospital ship Solace.

Mother And Child. Let the mother take Scott's emulsion of cod liver oil for the two; it is almost never superfluous. One can eat for two; but nourishing two is a different thing; it implies a degree of interior strength not often found in women of either extreme.

Luxurious people are not very strong by habit, and over worked people are weak from exhaustion in some of their functions. Between the two is the happy mean; but how many women have plenty of life for two? The emulsion is almost never superfluous.

Nelaton's Remedy For RHEUMATISM

It is a certain cure. It has made hundreds of friends everywhere as the following will show.

Mr. Wm. T. Davis of Cambridge, Md. writes: For two years or more I have had rheumatism very badly and have tried many kinds of medicine without getting any relief.

Two years ago last February I had terrible attacks of Rheumatism whenever the weather turned bad, I could not lay down or raise my arm to feed myself. I tried NELATON'S REMEDY and a few bottles cured me completely.

Mr. Moses Tiesch of Easton, Md. writes: NELATON'S REMEDY FOR RHEUMATISM is a wonderful medicine. It cured me when I had Rheumatism so bad that I had to walk around with sticks. I heartily recommend NELATON'S REMEDY to any who suffer with Rheumatism, as it is a reliable sure cure.

Dr. J. B. R. Parfall of Snow Hill, Md., endorses NELATON'S as follows: I have used the NELATON REMEDY in cardiac neuralgia and general rheumatism with satisfactory results. The ingredients evidence a combination useful for arthritis and various forms of gout and rheumatism, particularly when accompanied with hepatic torpor.

Tired Out

"I was very poorly and could hardly get about the house. I was tired out all the time. Then I tried Ayer's Sarsaparilla, and it only took two bottles to make me feel perfectly well."—Mrs. N. S. Swinney, Princeton, Mo.

Tired when you go to bed, tired when you get up, tired all the time. Why? Your blood is impure, that's the reason. You are living on the border line of nerve exhaustion. Take Ayer's Sarsaparilla and be quickly cured.

Ask your doctor what he thinks of Ayer's Sarsaparilla. He knows about the impure old family medicine. Follow his advice and we will be satisfied.

A FAMILY OF SUICIDES.

The Last One Kills Herself With Her Apron Strings.

The last survivor of a Wicomico family of suicides ended her life last Tuesday night when Mrs. Wm. Cox strangled herself with her apron strings at her home near Athol, in Baron Creek district.

Mrs. Cox had been in a morbid condition of mind for a long time, and had several times before attempted to take her life. Her husband and family had closely watched her and each previous attempt at suicide had been frustrated. Of late her efforts at self destruction had been so persistent that some member of her family had constantly guarded her day and night. Tuesday evening the family retired as usual about 9 o'clock, the husband reclining on a couch near the bed on which Mrs. Cox seemed to be quietly resting. Mr. George E. Cox, a son, and his wife, had retired in another room. Some time before midnight Mrs. Cox, Jr. arose from her bed and quietly entered the room where Mrs. Cox and her husband had retired, to see if all might be well. She found Mr. Cox in a peaceful slumber but was alarmed to discover that Mrs. Cox had disappeared. Arousing Mr. Cox a search was made and in a little while her lifeless body was found hanging by her apron strings from the bed post next the wall. That this scheme had been premeditated the family at once realized, as the head of the bed had until that day stood against the wall, and its position was changed at her request, the family thinking at the time that it was only to gratify the whim of a disordered mind. In order to accomplish the deed the suicide was obliged to crouch to keep off the floor.

Mrs. Cox was one of the four daughters of the late Robert Russell only one of whom—Mrs. Ichabod Evans—died a natural death, all the others having taken their own lives.

The Cultivation Of Timber.

A practical side of the forestry preservation question is pointed out by Dr. W. Schlich, a forestry expert, in a recent address before the London Society of Arts, in which he predicts a positive timber famine in the near future unless some systematic efforts are made to increase the world's supply. Dr. Schlich demonstrated that the use of wood, not withstanding its replacement by coal for fuel and steel for building material, was constantly increasing; that the per capita consumption in the four principal countries of Europe is now fourteen cubic feet a year and that, by reason of its use in paper making, it will probably reach twenty feet within a few years. In the meantime the supply is steadily diminishing instead of increasing, as is shown by the ever-advancing prices in spite of cheaper rates of transportation.

Dr. Schlich quoted from official reports to show that only five out of eight European countries are producing more lumber than they import, Scandinavia and Russia being in the lead. The limit of production in the former seems to have been reached, and while Russia still has large forests her domestic demands are rapidly increasing and will soon exclude her from the foreign markets. In North America the supplies are visibly declining. China has no timber now to spare and will be an importer rather than an exporter when the country is developed according to modern ideas, as now seems probable. Only the rest of Asia, South America and Africa remain as sources of supply. These countries, however, do not furnish, even now, any considerable supply of coniferous woods, which are most in demand, and Dr. Schlich therefore concludes that there is practically a shortage already in this kind of wood, which will be followed by a like shortage in all varieties unless remedial measures are soon adopted.

If these statements are true, and there is no occasion to doubt them, it stands to reason that the country which first shows its appreciation of the situation by making practical provision to meet it will be the country which will reap the greatest reward for its foresightedness. Wood is an absolutely necessary commodity and the scarcer it becomes the higher the prices will go.

Having thus diagnosed the disease, Dr. Schlich prescribes the remedy. It is to cultivate timber on the waste lands just as other crops are cultivated on more fertile soil. There are thousands of acres of such land in Maryland and many millions of them in the United States which are bringing in no returns at present and promising nothing for the future. The same land set in timber now would be more, infinitely more, valuable for its product alone in the course of a generation than the land without it would ever be, and while it is yet growing for the market it would be of infinite indirect value in preventing the terrible floods, accompanied by heavy money loss—Baltimore Evening News.

The superb Jersey bull, Burnside Comatrisio 43,253 which took the first prize at the New York state fair, the Interstate fair at Trenton and the New Jersey state fair at Waverly, was bred by S. E. Nivin, of Landenberg, Pa., says the New York Farmer.

THE NEGRO ESCAPED.

Constable J. F. Waller Has the Speed But is a Little Short of Wind.

A very funny thing occurred on Water street last Thursday. John Leonard, colored, was fined by Justice Turpin for disorderly conduct in the Justice's office. Leonard couldn't pay the fine and the Justice sent him to jail. J. F. Waller took the prisoner in custody. As the officer and his prisoner were crossing Division to Water street they separated to pass a group of colored people, Leonard calling out to one to tell a friend to come to jail where he wished to talk with him. At this moment Leonard realized that he might escape "durance vile" and instantly made a fine burst of speed for liberty.

Constable Waller seeing his man disappear forthwith loosened out after the retreating Leonard. The speed of the pursued and pursuer was so great as to produce a vacuum and the displaced air rushing together again, caused a roar so like an approaching cyclone that Judge Holland, who was standing in the street at the time, retired to his cyclone cellar.

An eye witness says that the officer was slightly gaining on Leonard until the Southern Methodist Church was reached, when a pain struck him in the side, then the negro made an easy escape. However his conscience must have troubled him, for early Friday morning he voluntarily appeared before Justice Turpin and paid the fine.

THE FENCE LAW.

A Legal Friend of the Advertiser Corrects an Error of Last Week.

Editors of SALISBURY ADVERTISER:—The Attorney at Law, in addressing the Court on some point to be decided by it, oftentimes calls its attention to some statute or decision, and comments thereon, as to their legal effect; this he does whilst having the utmost respect for the learning and ability of the Court.

Your correspondent having the same high respect for the learning and ability of the editors of the SALISBURY ADVERTISER, respectfully calls their attention to an error, made by those, usually so correct, in their last issue in regard to the "Fence Law," where you quote Section 41 of Public Local Laws of Wicomico County, as being operative, and the law regulating fences here.

By reference to Chapter 483 of the Acts of General Assembly of 1899, you will find that all the sections of the Local Fence Law of Wicomico County are repealed, thus leaving the common law in force in this county, and that law is that every owner of domestic animals is responsible for the trespass and damage done by his animals on the property of another—fence or no fence.

The intention and meaning of the Legislature is further shown by Section 7, of Chapter 593 passed at same session in regard to "Estrays"—That Chapter, after providing for the impounding of estrays and trespassing domestic stock, provides, that an enclosure shall be construed to mean, or common law enclosure, and not an actual one. That makes the lines of a person's real estate the enclosure.

These acts repeal the existing conditions and now owners of animals must fence them in, instead of owners of real estate being compelled to fence them out. E. S. T.

The following is the Honor Roll of Salisbury High School, Third Grade, class numbering 43.

How To Mix Lime.

As this is the time of the year to fix up and make presentable all outbuildings, we give the government receipt for making whitewash—an article which should be more generally used than it is: Take half a bushel of unslacked lime slake it with boiling water, cover during the process to keep in steam, strain the liquid through a fine sieve or strainer and add to it a peck of salt previously dissolved in warm water, three pounds of ground rice boiled to a thin paste and stirred in while hot, half a pound of Spanish whiting and one pound of clean glue, previously dissolved by soaking in cold water, and then hanging over a slow fire in a small pot hung in a larger one filled with water.

Add five gallons of hot water to the mixture, stir well and let stand for a few days, covered from dirt. It should be applied hot, for which purpose, it can be kept in a kettle or portable furnace. The east end of the President's house at Washington is embellished by this brilliant whitewash, says the Practical Farmer, which gives the above receipt. It is used by the government to whitewash light houses. A pint of this mixture, if properly applied, will cover one square yard, and will be almost good as paint for wood, brick or stone, and is much cheaper than paint. Coloring matter may be added as desired.

Henry Stark, of Baltimore, entered seven suits in Carroll county against subscribers to the stock of the United Milk Producers' Association who had not paid in. Four of the suits previously filed by Mr. Stark against subscribers to stock of the association were dismissed by order of the plaintiff's counsel, they having produced certificates of paid-up stock.

Maryland Farms.

While old methods of farming are still in vogue in parts of Wicomico County, Md., says the Baltimore Sun, there are many farms that have been reorganized from almost barren wastes. Spots that a few years ago would not grow peas now show fine stands of clover and grass, wheat and corn. Quantities of clover seed are raised and sold, as well as truck. These farms are all well stocked with cattle, in many cases registered herds, excellent horses and swine. A few years ago, only ordinary stock was to be found on most Wicomico farms. Near Salisbury are fine breeds of poultry. A large number of cattle are fattened for market. Some are bought in Ohio and fattened for the Philadelphia trade; some go to Europe. Large quantities of stable manure from New York are used. W. F. Allen, the largest strawberry and truck grower on the peninsula, is also the largest buyer of manure and fertilizers. Last year he used $5000 worth of one and $4000 worth of the other on his half-dozen farms, and yet made a small fortune on his crops. He often ships five carloads of stuff in a day. Fifteen years ago he was trucking on an acre lot. A number of northern and western farmers have bought land here and been very successful.

The Mania For Speculation.

"In the last three months," says the New York World, "securities worth at par $11,500,000,000 have been sold in the Stock Exchange.

"This total does not include sales up on the Consolidated Exchange or, by curbstone brokers or bucket shops; it does not include dealings in oil, wheat, corn or in unrelated stocks or local securities. Yet it is a sum vast beyond comprehension—almost beyond belief.

"The savings banks of the whole State hold in round numbers $100,000,000. In a single quarter a single exchange in a single city has sold stocks valued at more than 11 times the entire savings of the people in this form for many years.

"The total assessed valuation of New York city last year was $3,534,122,193. In a single quarter a single exchange has sold in stocks more than three times that sum.

In 1890 the total of all forms of tangible value in the United States was a little over $5,000 per family. In a single quarter a single exchange has sold in stocks $16,428 for every one of the 700,000 families in the Greater New York.

"Is any proof needed that this speculation is excessive? That it is out of all proportion to the real needs of business? That it is a menace to the community, and in individuals a folly fast mounting toward madness, as another record breaking day Monday proved?"

DR. ANNIE F. COLLEY, DENTIST, Graduate of Pennsylvania College of Dental Surgery (1 year course) 210 Main St., SALISBURY, MD.

In these days of vast responsibilities vested in one individual too much importance cannot be given to the necessity of insuring the life of the person upon whose health and life the success of the enterprise depends. How many stupendous undertakings involving the investment of hundreds of thousands of dollars are carried to a successful end solely through the energies and ability of one man. To have taken him away would have meant failure. The least that can be done to prevent such a catastrophe is to insure his life in the interest of those who are associated with him. The same argument, in a little different phase, pertains to the different members of a firm, when the death of one might mean financial complications in settling with his estate. Partnership insurance offers just the protection needed, and at a nominal cost. Much is being done in this direction but the advantages and opportunities offered are not yet fully appreciated by many firms that might consider the subject if it were properly presented to them. The 5% Gold Bond of The Mutual Life, advertised in this issue, is the best form of investment insurance on the market.

No matter how much care you take in the selection of the materials for your building or how experienced or reliable your mechanics, if you use inferior shingles you make a great mistake.

The covering of a building is the most important part of the materials used in its construction. The weakest link is the strength of the roof. The poorest shingles determine the last of the roof. And it is poor economy to run so great a risk of having a leaky roof, to save such a trifling amount of money. Act wisely and buy best.

Our Query Column.

No. 100. On the 14th of August, 1485, was fought the celebrated battle of Bosworth Field. The prize to be gained was the crown of England and the hand of the Princess Elizabeth, daughter of Edward IV. Richard III, the usurper of the crown, and Henry, Earl of Richmond, were rivals in this noble sense.

The two armies met on Bosworth Field, Richard III was killed and the Earl of Richmond was crowned King of England with the title of Henry VII. This battle has been considered the most important one in its results since the battle of Hastings (1066). Besides the change of dynasties the most important result of that battle was the introduction into England of the Feudal System in its most oppressive form. The battle of Bosworth Field put an end to that system. In addition to this radical change, the death of Richard III brought to a close the Plantagenet dynasty, which had ruled England for 380 years. It also terminated the long civil wars of the Roses: Henry Richmond, Earl of Tudor, was the last heir of the House of Lancaster (Red Rose), and his marriage with Elizabeth, heiress of the House of York (White Rose), blended in a single line the long estranged families of the sons of Edward III.

No. 101. The phrase is of very ancient origin and is traceable in Church history to Austin, who cites it as the adverb St. Ambrose on the subject of Sabbath keeping, in regard to which the practice of Milan and Rome differed. Rome, and some of the Western Churches, kept the Sabbath as a fast day; but at Milan the ancient custom still continued of keeping Saturday a festival. This differing custom of the churches gave rise to much trouble among conscientious Christians.

To answer this perplexing scruple St. Austin went to St. Ambrose upon the subject, who told him he could give him no better advice than to do as he did—"When I am at Rome I fast as the Romans do; when I am at Milan I do not fast. So likewise you, whatever church you come to, observe the custom of the place, if you would neither give offence to others, nor take offence from them."

No. 102. Thomas Nelson, an American revolutionary statesman and soldier, born in York county, Virginia, Dec. 26, 1738; died there January 4, 1789. His father, William Nelson, for many years president of the colonial council, sent him in his 14th year to Cambridge, England, where, under the care of Dr. Erasmus, he was educated at Trinity College. Such was the influence of his family in Virginia, that he was elected a member of the House of Burgesses, although he was then scarcely 21 years old. In his 24th year he married and settled at Yorktown where his family possessed great estates. Although leading the life of a man of leisure and culture, he warmly espoused the cause of the American colonies in the controversy with the mother country and rendered efficient service in that behalf in the halls of legislation and the tented field. He supported the revolution against the Boston port bill passed by the house in 1774; and upon the dissolution of the legislature by Lord Dunmore, he was one of the 87 members, who formed an association, which, among other things, recommended the appointment of delegates from the several colonies to meet in a general Congress.

He was a member of the first convention which met at Williamsburg in August, 1774. In 1775 he was appointed colonel of one of the three Virginia regiments, ordered to be raised, a position which he resigned upon being elected a delegate to the Continental Congress. In the deliberations of this body he took a conspicuous part and signed the declaration of the 4th of July, 1776. In May, 1777, he was obliged by an indisposition affecting his head to resign his seat in Congress; but soon after, in response to an appeal from Congress, he raised a troop of cavalry with which he repaired to Philadelphia. The danger apprehended from Admiral Howe's expedition having been averted, his corps was disbanded.

Congress having called upon the states for contributions to provide for the French fleet and armament, the general assembly of Virginia resolved early in June, 1780, to borrow two millions of dollars to be deposited in Continental treasury by the middle of the month. The public credit, however, was so low that there seemed little probability that the amount could be procured. In this emergency General Nelson came forward, and on his own personal security succeeded in raising a considerable portion of the loan.

About the same time he advanced money to pay two Virginia regiments ordered to the South, which had refused to march until their arrears were discharged. He participated in the siege of Yorktown as commander of the Virginia troops and again displayed his disinterested patriotism by directing that his own house, the largest and best in the place, and therefore in all probability the headquarters of Lord Cornwallis, should be bombarded, explaining to General Lafayette: "Spare no particle of my property so long as it affords comfort or shelter to the enemies of my country."

It is regrettable that the limitations of the Query column preclude a more extended notice of this grand character.

A SOUTHERN GOVERNOR ON GOOD ROADS.

Some Of The Benefits Which Follow As A Natural Result.

Governor Longino of Mississippi has issued a proclamation calling for a good road convention to be held in Jackson June 14 and 15 for the promotion of a uniform system of road improvement in the State. In his proclamation the Governor says: "Good roads pay directly by increasing the value of land, in reducing the number of draft animals necessary, in saving wear and tear to man, beast and vehicle, in measurably shortening time and space and in erasing from the calendar the days which are now spent in idleness on account of bad weather and consequently impassable roads. Markets would always be accessible and perishable goods, which are now often a total loss to the producer, could at all times be realized on. Good roads pay indirectly in promoting the social, educational and religious interests of the country communities. Easy access to town, church and school would relieve the life of the farmer of most of its limitations, and people would be content to live in the country, because they could get to the city with ease and comfort. Frequent intercourse with the cities and towns would serve to dispel, in a measure, the illusion which in the minds of many rural folk hangs over urban life and constrains them to quit the farm, thus robbing the State of her yeomanry, a source upon which the body politic always has drawn and always will for new life, health and strength."

ORANGES IN MARYLAND.

Agricultural Department Conducting Important Experiments.

Farmers of Maryland will be interested in certain experiments which are being conducted by the Agricultural Department in the culture of oranges. Heretofore this has been considered a semi-tropical fruit and far too delicate to be raised even in the southern part of the State. The study of the flora of Japan which the Department has conducted has led to the discovery of a kind of orange tree that can stand severe winters without danger of being killed by the frost. Five years ago the first experiments were begun with a Japanese orange which is extensively used in making hedges. It has all the characteristics of the orange tree, blossoming most beautifully, but bearing no fruit to speak of. Later the sweet orange was grafted upon the harder stock, and the cross produced trees that have proved capable of standing the winters and of bearing fruit that is palatable. Several trees are now blossoming in the gardens of the Agricultural Department. Later further grafting will be done to improve the flavor of the fruit, and eventually it is hoped to produce a tree which can be profitably planted in this section. Should this year's yield come up to expectations, the Department will send experimental slips to Pennsylvania and Virginia. A great deal of interest has been taken in the experiments by farmers of advanced methods, and they have signified a desire to enter the new field as soon as possible.

What a splendid type of tireless activity is the sun as the psalmist describes it! It is like "a bridegroom from his chamber and rejoicing like a strong man to run a race." Every man ought to rise in the morning refreshed by slumber and renewed by rest. Eager for the struggle of the day. But how rare is this! Most people rise still unrefreshed, and dreading the strain of the day's labors. The cause of this is deficient vitality and behind this lies a deficient supply of pure, rich blood, and an inadequate nourishment of the body. There is nothing that will give a man strength and energy, as will Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. It does this by increasing the quantity and quality of the blood supply. This nourishes the nerves, feeds the brain, builds up enfeebled organs, and gives that sense of strength and power which makes the struggle of life a joy. The "good feeling" which follows the use of "Golden Medical Discovery" is not due to stimulation as it contains no alcohol, whiskey or other intoxicant. It does not brace up the body, but builds it up into a condition of sound health.

LET HARMONY PREVAIL.

The Philadelphia Record urges harmony within the Democratic ranks and thinks this to be necessary to attain success. In discussing Senator Vest's proposition for a party convention and Mr. Bryan's reply, it says,

"Mr. Bryan expresses much indignation over Senator Vest's liberal proposition to call a convention to reorganize the Democratic party. In the opinion of Mr. Bryan there can be no harmony with the men who could not support him on the Free Silver platform. A convention such as proposed would be apt, it is true, to reveal and aggravate antagonisms which may well be left for time to efface. But Mr. Bryan, in opposing efforts to reconcile past differences in the Democratic party, seems to overlook the consideration that political parties are voluntary associations of men who agree upon certain lines of policy which they regard as conducive to the welfare of the whole people. Mr. Bryan wishes to make of the Democratic party a close corporation consisting exclusively of the rapidly diminishing number of voters who are still disposed to follow the silver specter of 1896."

Mr. Bryan admits that the Free Silver issue is dead; but he makes the rather disingenuous claim that the existing condition of things, with the establishment of the gold standard, is a vindication of the bimetalists. It is something new to learn that the defeat of a policy is the vindication of its advocates. Mr. Bryan says that Missouri and Illinois will be the battleground in the Presidential contest of 1904. In that case why should he resist the generous purpose of Senator Vest to reconcile differences in the Democratic party? Does he think that Missouri is to be carried by the course which he adopted toward the Democratic candidate for Mayor of St. Louis, who differed from him on the silver question?

The Sound Money Democrats who could not follow Mr. Bryan into the morass of monetary depreciation gave him credit for sincerity, much as they deplored his narrow fanaticism. Mr. Bryan, on the other hand, is half inclined to admit that events have proved that the Sound Money Democrats are right; but he says that they are not honest. The masses of the Democratic party, however, will not permit Mr. Bryan's unfavorable and absurdly unjust opinion of the Democrats who rightly differ with him to prevent a reunion of the party on living issues. There is nothing to which the practical common sense of the American people is more opposed than to the perpetuation of quarrels over questions that are dead and ought to be buried. Although the late Democratic candidate said not long ago that he had no enemies to punish, he still appears to be implacable toward the Democrats to whom he attributes his defeat. But while he and a very few others may continue to nurse idle resentments, the great heart of the Democracy will respond to the wise and conciliatory counsels of their Nestor of Missouri, with the full conviction that harmony is necessary to success.

—Look for a moment upon the appropriation of the Fifty-sixth Congress at its second session and we can partially realize the cost of war. The total of all appropriations was $730,538,575. Included in this amount see see, Army appropriations $115,734,049; Fortifications, $7,364,011; Military Academy, $778,663; Naval, $78,101,791; Pensions, $145,245,280. We have from these items the sum of $347,217,734, or nearly one half the whole amount expended.

CHAIRMAN VANDIVER CONFIDENT.

In about ten days the Democratic State Central Committee will meet in Baltimore. It is stated that Ex Senator Gorman will from this time—which marks the opening of the campaign for next fall's election—take a prominent part in the management of the Democratic campaign. He is recognized as an able leader and will instill confidence all along the line.

Mr. Vandiver in speaking of the political outlook, said:

"I regard it as almost certain that the Democrats will elect their candidates for Comptroller and Clerk of the Court of Appeals and control both houses of the General Assembly by large majorities. In the Senate the party starts out with 10 members already elected, and it will be only necessary to elect four for a constitutional majority in that body. The Democrats expect to elect Senators in the Second district of Baltimore city and in Caroline, Cecil, Charles, Dorchester, Harford, Montgomery, Prince George's St. Mary's, Talbot and Worcester counties. This is the estimate of the Democratic leaders, who concede only two Senators—those from Allegany and Garrett—to the Republicans, in addition to the three that hold over. Assuming that there will be 92 members of the House of Delegates, four more than at present, I estimate that no less than 60 of them will be Democrats, and this estimate gives the Republicans Baltimore county and two districts of the city, none of which, I believe, they will carry."

—The country will learn with sorrow of the critical illness of Mrs. William McKinley, wife of the president. She was stricken in Texas while touring the country in the presidential party, which started out from Washington about two weeks ago. The President hastily pushed on to San Francisco ahead of time and took Mrs. McKinley to the home of a friend where everything possible has been done to alleviate her sufferings, but little hope is cherished of her recovery; indeed it was reported in some sections of the east that she had died this (Friday) morning. The report was later discredited. The odds are vastly against her, and the announcement at any moment of her death may be expected.

—Elsewhere in this issue will be found a correct synopsis of the "fence law" as now operative in Wicomico county, furnished by a legal friend. Readers of the paper saw in last week's edit on a brief statement of the law as it was before its revision by the legislature of 1892. The fact that the law had been changed had escaped the attention of the attorney who furnished the facts in the article last week.

Messrs. Editors. —The Maryland Agricultural College, situated at College Park, Md., will open a "Maryland Summer School" for teachers on July 1st. In its prospectus, the object of the school is set forth as follows: "There is a growing demand throughout the State for Teachers who are 'up to date,'—who can teach Physical Culture, Drawing, Nature Studies and kindred branches. In fact, we have had some special training to fit them for the responsible and noble profession which they have chosen. The time has come when teachers must have some practical knowledge of the subjects mentioned above, or fall behind in the race for success. Realizing the truth of the foregoing statements, and being conscious of the fact that many teachers have not had the advantage of a college education, the Agricultural College has determined to supply this want by organizing the Maryland Summer School."

Hill and very fine music furnished by the Choir of Asbury Methodist Episcopal Church on the occasion of Ascension Day Services, Thursday, May 16th, 1901. Robert D. Grier, Charles E. Harper, G. Grier Ratcliff, Committee.
 —The Postal Telegraph Cable Company opened last Saturday with Mr. W. Branch Wainwright, Jr., as manager. The office is room 16 second floor of the News building. Mr. L. W. Gunby received the first telegram ever transmitted over the wires of the new company, it coming within an hour after the line was opened. Mr. Wainwright is a very agreeable young gentleman and will no doubt endeavor to please the patrons of the county.
 —An electric light pole which stood on the curbstone opposite the residence of Mr. J. Marcellus Dashiell in Camden, fell early Friday morning, having rotted off at the top of the ground. In coming in contact with the telephone line twenty-one wires were burned out and about ten drops in the telephone central. The electrical display consequent upon the accident is described as being beautiful by the few people who were awake and saw it.
 —Mr. Walter B. Miller's "Mamie Harris," driven by John C. Lowe; Messrs. Humphreys & Graham's "Tom Tit," driven by Sewell Richardson and Mr. J. S. Duffy's "Minnie," driven by the owner, afforded some good sport last Tuesday afternoon at the race track, to lovers of trotting. One heat was declared a draw; the other two were awarded to Mr. Duffy's "Minnie," though the last heat was so closely contested, all three horses coming under the wire in a bunch, that many spectators questioned the accuracy of the judges' decision, some claiming that "Tom Tit" should have had it. The best time made was 2.47.
 —A very charming luncheon was given Saturday, May eleventh, by Miss Nellie Jackson at her home, "The Oaks." The table decorations were in pink and white and the place cards were pink with four leaf clovers. Covers were laid for nineteen and at each place was a very pretty souvenir, a pink and white sailor hat filled with bon-bons. Those present were, Miss Fisher of Huntingdon, Pa., Mrs. A. J. Vanderbogart, Mrs. M. A. Humphreys, Mrs. R. P. Graham, Misses Judkins, Miss Powell, Misses Gordy, Misses White; Miss Reigart, Miss Dora Toadvine, Misses Houston, Misses Fish and Miss Rider. After luncheon Miss Jackson delightfully entertained her friends with descriptions and views of her travels abroad.

Some People in Salisbury Just Now are Laughing in Their Sleeves.

(When they have sleeves on.) Over a certain printing office in Salisbury a new business enterprise was opened up last week. This new business will be run entirely on tick, and that will certainly make a few Salisbury people smile. This new concern is not the only one doing business on TICK in Salisbury. There is the Western Union telegraph office also down town, they do business on TICK.—Thoroughgood don't. Speaking about the telegraph business reminds us of Jay Gould. A number of years ago, twenty perhaps after the Western Union line was completed through Indiana, Jay Gould took a party over the road to inspect the new line and according to one of the newspapers, they stopped in a little town in Indiana to stay all night. There was a Western Union telegraph office down town and Jay was a big stockholder in Western Union. He went into the office and wrote a long telegram, signed it "JAY GOULD" and started out. The operator called him back and asked him to pay. Jay looked with those look-through-you-eyes of his and said "That's signed by Jay Gould and Jay Gould owns a good deal of Western Union." That's all right. Anybody can sign Jay Gould, but only one can make good on the signature. I don't know you and I want money or this dispatch don't go. Jay paid. The young operator was promoted and now don't depend on tick. The difference between Jay's and Lacy Thoroughgood's signature is that Thoroughgood is alive. Anybody can sign an Ad of a $10.00 suit or a $2.50 Hat and can say it's the best suit or the best hat ever sold. Only one can make good—that's

Public Sale OF VALUABLE Real Estate and Timber Land.

By virtue of a decree of the Circuit Court for Wicomico county the undersigned as trustee, will sell at public auction at the Court House door in Salisbury, Md., on at the hour of two o'clock p. m., all that valuable tract of land lying in Nutters district, Wicomico county, Md. four and one half miles south of Salisbury, being a part of the James Toadvine home farm, lying on both sides of the county road leading from Salisbury to Union church, being Lot No. 2 in the division of said home farm among the heirs, and adjoining lands of W. Hitch and A. P. Toadvine. This land will be offered in three parcels as follows,

No. 1. On the west side between the mid county road and the land of Wm. Hitch, and containing 111 acres, more or less.

No. 2. Lying between said county road and the land of Elijah Toadvine, and containing 27 1/2 acres, more or less.

No. 3. Lying east of Lot No. 2 and adjoining the lands of A. P. Toadvine and P. J. Hobbs, and containing 27 1/2 acres, more or less.

Also all that tract of land situated in Worcester county, Md., of which Rachel J. Toadvine died seised and possessed, in Atkinson district and on the county road leading from Hall's school house to St. Luke's church, and adjoining the property of Joshua Snullen, Leonard Kelley and John Ennis, containing 50 acres of land, more or less. This land is well set in marketable timber, as well as a part of the land first described, and would be a good investment for a timber man.

TERMS OF SALE—One half cash on day of sale, balance in one year, with the deferred payments secured to the satisfaction of the trustee.

Plats and further description of said land can be seen at the office of the trustee.

Title deeds at the expense of the purchaser.

Bug Death IS THE BEST INSECTICIDE On the Market to-day

for the trucker and farmer to use. Why? It is non-poisonous, it frees the plant from all insects, as it contains no arsenic and can be used on any plant or vine and will not burn or blight it. It keeps the vine green and thrifty giving the potato a chance to mature, which means a more starchy potato less liable to rot. Practical tests prove that the extra yield of marketable potatoes more than pay the entire expense. The farmers who used Bug Death last season for the pea house are much pleased with the results obtained. These goods are for sale by the following dealers of whom you can obtain a descriptive circular upon application, or address the Danforth Chemical Co., Leominster, Mass.

JOHN W. TRUITT, S. P. PARSONS, F. S. SHOCKLEY.

Women as Well as Men Are Made Miserable by Kidney Trouble.

Kidney trouble preys upon the mind, discourages and lessens ambition; beauty, vigor and cheerfulness soon disappear when the kidneys are out of order or diseased.

Kidney trouble has become so prevalent that it is not uncommon for a child to be born afflicted with weak kidneys. If the child urinates too often, if the urine scalds the flesh or if, when the child reaches an age when it should be able to control the passage, it is yet afflicted with bed-wetting, depend upon it, the cause of the difficulty is kidney trouble, and the first step should be towards the treatment of these important organs.

Women as well as men are made miserable with kidney and bladder trouble, and both need the same great remedy. The mild and the immediate effect of Swamp-Root is soon realized. It is sold by druggists, in fifty-cent and one dollar sizes. You may have a sample bottle by mail free, also pamphlet telling all about it, including many of the thousands of testimonial letters received from sufferers cured. In writing Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y., be sure and mention this paper.

WHAT THE PEOPLE SAY

Who are Using Home Comfort Ranges.

Salisbury, Md., January 24, 1900. Wrought Iron Range Company.

Gentlemen:—This is to certify that we purchased one of your Home Comfort Ranges for the past year, and can cheerfully recommend it as one of the most durable and reliable of all kitchen stoves. We would not want to part with it for anything else in the line of a cooking range. It is a good baker, and for all purposes, we do not think they could be surpassed.

Gentlemen:—I have been using one of your Home Comfort Ranges for the past year, and can cheerfully recommend it as one of the most durable and reliable of all kitchen stoves. JAMES A. WALLER, ELIJAH J. ADKINS.

Salisbury, Md., February 18, 1901. Wrought Iron Range Company.

It affords me great pleasure to recommend your Home Comfort Range. I purchased one of your Home Comfort Ranges six years ago, and it is giving me perfect satisfaction, is a perfect baker, and very economical on fuel. We would not take twice the amount paid for it if we could not get another like it.

JOHN W. PARKER OF L. COLLINGWOOD, Ont., 11th July, 1900. W. L. Culver, Esq., President Wrought Iron Range Co., St. Louis, Missouri.

Dear Sir:—We are in receipt of your favor of June 18th, which we regret to say was mislaid. We have great pleasure in stating that your ranges are in use on six of the right steamers of the fleet and that they have given us perfect satisfaction in every way both as to their durability and working qualities, which have been tested to the utmost.

In the fall of '98 our steamer Pacific was totally destroyed by fire at the dock which originated at the G. T. Ry. warehouse, and in such good condition that it was found on our new steamer Germanic, which was built the following season to take place of Pacific. There was practically nothing wrong with the stove except discoloration and marks consequent upon the action of intense heat and water.

The steamers using your ranges are Matilda, Collingwood, Germanic, Atlantic, British and Midland. Very truly, NORTHERN NAVIGATION CO.

PROTECTION OF BIRDS.

Interesting Information Published by the United States Government.

The farmer when he once learns the importance of birds to agriculture, will become their best protector. For several years the Department of Agriculture of the United States has been carrying on a wonderful investigation into the utility of our birds and their relation to agriculture. This investigation has been systematic, as well as scientific, and the conclusions reached are of vital interest to every farmer.

These experiments furnish ample proof to the inquiring mind of the importance of protecting nearly all of our birds by law. At the same time these interesting statements are not read because they are placed in a government report. The following facts taken from Farmers' Bulletin, No. 54, furnish interesting testimony in favor of some of our common birds.

The Cuckoo.—An examination of the stomachs of 46 black-billed cuckoos, taken during the summer months, showed the remains of 926 caterpillars, 44 beetles, 90 grasshoppers, 100 sawflies, 80 stink bugs, and 15 spiders. Most of the caterpillars were hairy and many of them belonged to a genus that lives in colonies and feeds on the leaves of trees, including the apple tree. The beetles were mainly click beetles and weevils, with a few May beetles.

Of the yellow-billed cuckoo, 109 stomachs (collected from May to October, inclusive) were examined. The contents consisted of 1,865 caterpillars, 93 beetles, 242 grasshoppers, 37 sawflies, 69 bugs, 6 flies, and 36 spiders. Most of the caterpillars belonged to hairy species and many of them were of large size. One stomach contained 1250 American tent caterpillars; another 217 fall webworms. The sawflies were in the larval stage, in which they resemble caterpillars so closely that they are commonly called false caterpillars. The bugs consisted of stink bugs and cicadas or dog day harvest flies.

The Woodpecker.—Farmers are prone to look upon woodpeckers with suspicion. When the birds are seen scrambling over fruit trees and pecking at the bark, and fresh holes are found in the tree, it is concluded that they are doing harm. Careful observers, however, have noticed that, excepting a single species, these birds rarely leave any important mark on a healthy tree, but that when a tree is affected by wood-boring larvae the insects are accurately located, dislodged and devoured.

Two of the best known woodpeckers, the hairy woodpecker and the downy woodpecker, including their races, range over the greater part of the United States, and for the most part remain throughout the year in their usual haunts. The flickers, while genuine woodpeckers, differ somewhat in habits from the rest of the family, and are frequently seen upon the ground searching for food. Like the downy and hairy woodpeckers, they eat wood boring grubs and ants, but the number of ants eaten is much greater. Two of the flickers' stomachs examined were completely filled with ants, each stomach containing more than 3,000 individuals. These ants belonged to species which live in the ground, and it is these insects for which the flicker is searching when running about in the grass, although some grasshoppers are also taken.

The King Bird.—The king bird manifests its presence in many ways. It is somewhat boisterous and obtrusive, and its antipathy for hawks and crows is well known. It never hesitates to give battle to any of these marauders, no matter how superior in size, and for this reason a family of king birds is a desirable adjunct to a poultry yard. The chief complaint against the king bird is that it preys largely upon honeybees. The Biological Survey has made an examination of 281 stomachs collected in various parts of the country, but found only 14 containing remains of honeybees. In these 14 stomachs there were in all 50 honeybees, of which 40 were drones, four were certainly workers, and the remaining six were too badly broken to be identified as to sex.

Insects that constitute the great bulk of the food of this bird are noxious species, largely beetles—May beetles, crows as wire worms, weevils, which prey upon fruit and grain, and a host of other pests.

Three points seem to be clearly established in regard to the food of the king bird: (1) that about 90 per cent consists of insects, mostly injurious species; (2) that the alleged habit of preying upon honeybees is much less prevalent than has been supposed, and probably does not result in any great damage; and (3) that the vegetable food consists almost entirely of wild fruits which have no economic value.

These facts, taken in connection with its well known enmity for hawks and crows, entitle the king bird to a place among the most desirable birds of the orchard or garden.

The Phoebe.—The phoebe subsists almost exclusively upon insects, most of which are caught upon the wing. An examination of 80 stomachs showed that over 98 per cent of the year's food consists of insects and spiders, while wild fruit constitutes the remainder. The insects belong chiefly to noxious species and include many click beetles, May beetles and weevils.

There is hardly a more useful species than the phoebe about the farm, and it should receive every encouragement.

These facts should prove most convincing to every farmer in our State and our birds should receive protection from every good citizen.

COMMENCEMENT AT SHARP-TOWN.

Grammar School Awards Diplomas. Four Lady Graduates—Baccalaureate Sermon—Many Flowers.

The third commencement of the Sharptown Grammar School was held in Twilley's Hall on Tuesday evening of this week. There were four lady graduates and as an evidence of the work done in that institution by these four ladies we give the books completed by them: Arithmetic, algebra, three books of geometry, rhetoric, physics, civil government. In Latin "Jones Lessons" completed and Caesar read, with "Evangeline" and "Enoch Arden" as literary work. These young ladies, whose ages are from thirteen to sixteen, have done their work well and merited the honors conferred. The graduates are Miss Addie F. Cooper, daughter of W. W. Cooper, a prosperous farmer and steam mill owner and lumber dealer, living in the rural section, a few miles from town; Miss Victoria M. Spear is the only daughter of Joseph W. Spear, carpenter and painter and at present a member of the board of town commissioners; Miss Frona M. Bailey is the daughter of Isaac J. Bailey, who holds an important position with A. W. Robinson & Co.; Miss Dorothea E. Walker is the oldest daughter of Samuel T. Walker of this town who has been employed for several years in a large ship building establishment in Philadelphia.

The following was the program of exercises: Invocation, Rev. E. H. Miller; Address, L. T. Cooper; Oration, "Prudence" with salutatory, Miss Addie F. Cooper; Duet, Miss Brooxie Gravenor and Mrs. Sallie Clash; Oration, Miss Victoria M. Spear, "What has America done for the World?" with class prophecy; Oration, "Value of Character," Miss Frona M. Bailey; Solo by Miss Sadie Caulk; "Education" with Valedictory, Miss Dorothea E. Walker; Presentation of diplomas by Jas. O. Adams. The programme was interspersed with fine instrumental music by Miss Brooxie Gravenor.

Mr. Cooper said in part, "While we have reached another mile post in the journey of education, it is not the end of the journey, but only a point of separation. The road to education reaches from the cradle to the grave. The school year, the close of which is marked by this occasion, has been a very happy one, not a single jar has occurred to disturb the work and progress of the school. Harmony has existed among pupils, teachers and parents. The work done has been thorough and we owe a debt of gratitude to our teachers for the high standard of work done, and we hope to see, in the near future, and have reasons to hope for it—this school, the one at Delmar, Quantico and Mardela made high schools. The men and women who have brought these schools up to their high point of excellence do not receive salary commensurate with work done and preparation made. It costs a great deal more now than it did ten years ago to prepare for teaching and more to keep pace with the progress of the work, in the purchase of current literature. No office can compare in dignity and importance to that of teaching. The skill to move the young mind to energy, truth and virtue is worth more than all other arts and sciences. The worth of our schools lies in our teachers."

Mr. Adams said in part to the class: "You are about to enter life; it will not all be pleasantness. There will be trials, difficulties and disappointments, which must be met with brave hearts. While others have spent their time in pleasure, you have labored and struggled hard. They have their reward and you have yours. Yours is something that strengthens, elevates and dignifies, something that fades not away, but will stand by you all the years of your life, a source of joy, comfort and inspiration. Let these exercises infuse a desire for loftier attainments; aim high. Build your hopes on solid foundations. Strive to do something in life that will make the world better for your having lived in it. Flee from that which lowers and degrades—cling to that which elevates and ennobles, and when you shall have crossed the river, that bounds the unknown shore, may you receive the heavenly benediction: 'Thou has been faithful over a few things I will make the ruler over many.'"

Rev. E. H. Miller preached the baccalaureate sermon on Sunday night last in the M. E. Church to a crowded house. His text was Acts 21: 27, and his subject, "Relation of religion to culture." We give a few extracts, "The apostles received two gifts on the day of Pentecost; one of the holy ghost and one of the tongues of flame. The gift of the spirit was the gift of spiritual power. The gift of the tongues of flame, the means by which they were to reach the minds of men. God has used civilization and culture as a means for advancing his kingdom from the beginning. The gifts of learning, eloquence, art and poetry are to be used in the cause of Christ. Culture is the handmaid of religion. Through culture—revelation—we sustain our relation to God and the life beyond. The church is the great friend of learning. Science and art have assisted in disseminating christianity; have provided its strongest defenses against its enemies. Education has aided in the highest development of christianity. Religion commands and is worthy of the attention of intelligent and reasonable people. The most worthy use of our gifts of genius and culture is in the Lord's service."

The pupils presented their teachers many presents as tokens of love and appreciation. The graduating class presented Prof. White with a fine emblem, not as an emblem that his life might be clouded, but that he might be protected from the elements and live to a good old age. Prof. White is a native of this county, and a graduate of Washington College. He came here last fall and took charge as principal of the school and he has made a fine record, not only in school work, but in the town. His general deportment has been such as to win the admiration of all, and his faithfulness to duty, his deep interest in the work of teaching, and the skill and ability with which he has performed his duties entitled him to be ranked among our foremost teachers in the county and state. His work has been well done and the result universally appreciated in the town.

The two assistants, Mrs. Sallie Clash and Miss Gertrude Bennett, have been true and faithful to him as principal and to the school as teachers and the fact of their having taught here for several consecutive years, carries with it the evidence of their worth and appreciation.

The commencement exercises which were introduced by James O. Adams three years ago, are fully appreciated by the patrons of the school and extensive preparations are made for them. This year the preparations were perhaps more elaborate than heretofore, because of growing interest in them and an ambition to make them an honor to the town and a credit to all concerned. The flowers were in profusion. The graduates were loaded with them and the platform was a veritable flower garden.

The large audience was seated by John S. Bradley and Alonzo R. Melson as ushers whose courtesy and activity made every one comfortable.

BREDELL COUNTERFEITING AGAIN

Messrs. Grier Brothers Of This City Recently Aid The Counterfeiter The Second Time.

John Semple, a well known lawyer of Camden, N. J. was arrested last Friday by United States Secret Service detectives on a charge of complicity in the counterfeiting of $20 United States Treasury notes. The arrest was made while Semple was walking along Arch street, Philadelphia, by Chief Wilkie and Operative Berna. The prisoner was given a hearing and released on $10,000 bail. Semple was counsel for Baldwin S. Bredell and Arthur Taylor, who were the engravers for the Jacobs and Kendig gang of counterfeiters, which was broken up two years ago by the Secret Service men, by the arrest in Lancaster of Jacobs and Kendig and the subsequent arrest of former United States District Attorney Ellery P. Ingram and his assistant, Harvey K. Newitt.

The latter two were counsel for the counterfeiters.

At the hearing Taylor and Bredell, the two engravers, who have been confined in jail awaiting sentence, testified that on the advice of Semple they engraved, while in prison, a number of certificates and that Semple advised them to put the notes in circulation.

The people of this vicinity will recall the great counterfeiting scheme of Jacobs, who operated in Lancaster. His plan was to place a spurious stamp on cigars and tobacco thus evading the payment of the government tax on his class of merchandise. His scheme worked without a hitch and Jacobs sold the contraband goods in all parts of the country, until the government finally got a clue, and located the fraud.

Inspectors were sent out by the government and considerable quantities of Jacobs' goods were discovered. Salisbury merchants had been innocent purchasers, the firm of E. L. Gillis & Son having quite a quantity on hand when the inspector came along and confiscated the goods. In other words all the Jacobs goods had to be stamped with genuine stamps before the merchants could sell them, thus they lost $8.80 on each 1000 cigars.

Additional local interest was felt in the matter when it was learned that a part of the machinery with which the bogus stamps were made, was cast at the machine shops of the Messrs. Grier Brothers in this city. Baldwin S. Bredell, the engraver of the counterfeit stamps, is a native of Snow Hill, Worcester county, where his afflicted father now resides.

When a very young man Bredell came to Salisbury and got employment in the early nineties with Mr. S. J. R. Galloway who was then conducting an undertaking business at Five Points, where Mr. Elisha Jones is at present selling groceries. It was while here that young Bredell became acquainted with the skill of the Messrs. Grier as machinists.

He later went to Philadelphia and in 1896 the Messrs. Grier received an order accompanied with drawings, from young Bredell's father for a certain piece of machinery. The machinery was cast and delivered according to instructions, and when the Messrs. Grier received pay for the work they naturally thought no more of it until Jacobs' scheme was unearthed, when it was ascertained that Bredell, who has been from childhood regarded as a very clever artisan, did the engraving with the machinery which the Messrs. Grier had made for his father in Snow Hill. The arrest of Semple last week reveals another fraud in which the same redell makes the Messrs. Grier Bro. gain and in very much the same way lay an innocent part in a crime against the government.

Sometimes in the early part of the recent year the father of young Bredell gave the Messrs. Grier an order for pieces of machinery which the old gentleman said his son, who was in prison, needed to complete a "patented iron" which he had just invented. It turns out that the work done by the Messrs. Grier enabled Bredell to complete his machine for counterfeiting $20 notes, the discovery of which caused the arrest of Semple last week.

Press Headquarters.

For the accommodation of the press at the Pan-American Exposition the Director General has arranged to set part a building now being constructed in the South Midway, near Venice America and between the Pergola of the Horticulture Building and the Restaurant, for the use of newspaper men. The building is a two story structure, and will be completed by May 30.

Going To California.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert P. Graham and Mr. and Mrs. Walter B. Miller will leave Salisbury this (Saturday) morning for a trip across the continent. They will travel from Baltimore to Chicago via the Pennsylvania. At Chicago they will stop off and "do" the western metropolis. From Chicago they will resume travel westward over the Burlington and the Northern Pacific in company with the members and their wives of the National Association of Railroad Commissioners, of which Mr. Graham, by virtue of being Maryland's tax commissioner, is a member. The Association will hold a meeting in San Francisco June 4th. After the meeting adjourns our Salisbury party will go sight-seeing in the great Yosemite, among the big trees, in the Rockies, Salt Lake City, and other points of interest in the west, returning via Buffalo to visit the Pan-American Exposition. The party will reach Salisbury again late in June.

Mr. Miller's departure from Salisbury for several weeks abruptly terminated the spring series of games of the Gentlemen's Whist Club.

To signalize the close of the season Mr. Miller honored his fellow whistlers by entertaining them at supper at his home on Walnut street last Saturday evening.

Salisbury Wins—21 to 6.

The first baseball game of the season in which Salisbury participated was played at Pocomoke on Thursday afternoon. The contest was between the Salisbury High School nine and a team from the Pocomoke High School. Salisbury rather outclassed the Pocomoke club and easily defeated it by a score of 21 to 6. Schuler and Truitt did the pitching for our boys and proved themselves to be in good form, allowing but seven hits to be made by Pocomoke during the nine innings. The Salisbury team had on its batting clothes and in the face of good pitching scored sixteen hits many of them two baggers. Pocomoke made seven hits and seven errors while our boys made sixteen hits and three errors. While Pocomoke was out classed yet it will undoubtedly be in much better shape and play a stronger game when it plays on the Salisbury grounds next week.

A good crowd attended the game and the good plays were well applauded. Every one speaks in the highest praise of the gentlemanly way in which those from Salisbury were treated. No serious contention marred the contest and all returned home with the kindest feelings for Pocomoke.

The Misses Freney Entertain.

A number of ladies from Salisbury spent a very pleasant afternoon last Wednesday at the home of the Misses Freney near Delmar. The party went up to Delmar on the two o'clock express and were met at the station with wagons which conveyed them to the Freney residence.

During the afternoon dominos were played and lunch was served at six o'clock.

Those of the party were: Mrs. Sam'l Sterling of Jersey City, Mrs. H. L. Brewington, Mrs. W. S. Gordy, Mrs. R. D. Grier, Mrs. W. E. Dorman, Mr. L. W. Gunby, Mrs. Somers Gunby, Mrs. J. R. T. Laws, Mrs. E. A. Toadvine, Mrs. S. P. Woodcock, Mrs. Ida Williams, Mrs. Dean Perdue, Mrs. G. S. Powell, Mr. E. W. Smith, Mrs. J. R. Collier, Mrs. W. U. Polk, Mrs. Maggie A. Cooper and Miss Lizzie Powell. Misses Esther and Alice Davis were also present.

The ladies returned to Salisbury in the evening on the eight o'clock train.

The President's Patronage.

Is it any wonder that Mr. McKinley is a popular President? Congress, at its last session, created no less than 3,926 new civil offices with a net increase of the cost to the government of $2,289,075. A permanent increase of the regular army was voted, amounting to no less than 77,194 officers and men, while there was an increase in the navy of fifty officers and 5,000 men.

Since the first of January President McKinley has been able to offer to hundreds of the friends of Congress men and to other beneficiaries life commissions in the army and navy—the most valuable gift that one man can ever give to another.

Prices of a total annual value of more than five million dollars have been placed in Mr. McKinley's hands to distribute "by favor" during this one year. In fact, the patronage in his gift since 1897 has exceeded that of all the other Presidents since the foundation of the government, if the Civil War period be excluded.

The President who comes after McKinley, be he Republican or Democrat, will have no such wealth of patronage to bestow, and hence his popularity will be much less than that of the gentleman who is in daily danger of being smothered in flowers on the Pacific coast.

MAYOR'S ANNUAL MESSAGE.

The New City Council Organizes at the Mayor's Appointments Approved.

The old City Council finished its work on Monday evening and gave way to the three new members and the two hold overs from last year, who proceeded to organization by the unanimous action of Mr. Wm. B. Tilghman President. The Council is now composed of the following members, Messrs. Wm. B. Tilghman, Elijah J. Parsons, W. A. Ennis, W. F. Bounds and Dr. Louis W. Morris. Of the new members, Messrs. Wm. B. Tilghman and Elijah J. Parsons drew the long terms and Dr. Morris the short term.

The Mayor, with his annual message, submitted the following appointments: Clerk to Council—W. A. Ennis. Treasurer—Elijah J. Parsons.

Council—L. Atwood Bennett. Police Justice—Wm. A. Trader. Chief of Police—E. M. Elliott. Street Commissioner—Jas. Kennerly. Night Watchmen—James Crouch and Thomas Ellis. Tax Collector—B. H. Parker.

The Council unanimously confirmed the appointments which were all reappointments with the exception of Mr. W. A. Ennis who succeeds Mr. J. D. Price as clerk and Mr. Elijah J. Parsons who succeeds Mr. Ennis as Treasurer. The Council gave most of the time to the Mayor's message which we print below in full. Before adjourning, the old board passed several bills and decided against the improving of Isabella Street across the Wicomico Falls mill property, owing to the heavy expense necessary to accomplish the work proposed.

Mayor Disharoon's message was as follows:

To the City Council:

GENTLEMEN:—In obedience to Sec. 6, Chapter 186, of the acts of the General Assembly of Maryland, passed at the January Session, 1888, it is the duty of the Mayor after each annual election to report to the Council the condition of municipal affairs, with such recommendations as he may deem proper for the public good.

It is a matter for congratulation that the affairs of our city have been so economically and judiciously administered by our city officials in the past, and the high character and business ability of the members of the present Council is a sufficient guarantee for the future. Since my election to the office of Mayor one year ago, it has been my constant endeavor to acquaint myself with the conditions of the city and to thoroughly inform myself as to its needs, and I feel that it is not a light responsibility to be a member of the city government of a growing and bustling little city, with its ever-increasing needs. It demands some personal sacrifice, which I feel sure you are willing to make.

OUR FINANCIAL CONDITION.

In view of some recent criticisms on the administration of our city finances, I deem it my duty withal to more fully acquaint myself with the conditions. While there is some floating indebtedness, it is not of large proportions. It has been caused by a conscientious endeavor on the part of our former Councils to provide things necessary for the proper protection of life and property, such as new fire hose, repairing fire engine, and to prevent the spread of contagious diseases, all of which I heartily approve. The various items might be specified as follows: $900 on fire engine bought of Grier Bros.; $900 on the robes; a total floating indebtedness of $3,400, all of which can easily be provided for in our regular levies, the notes for engines being payable one each year for three years and the fire hose to be provided for in levy of 1901. In addition to this floating debt there are still outstanding $3,000 of engine house bonds, one of which is due each year, amounting to $500. Two of the eight issued have already been paid and interest on all having been paid each year. In other words, the total indebtedness of our corporation, both bonded and floating, is $3,400, and the last of bonds not being due until 1907. I find, by reference to the city tax collector's books that something over $3,000 is due the city for current expenses, and when we consider the great number of improvements made during the past few years with a tax rate never exceeding 35 cents on the $100, it is a marvelous showing and reflects great credit on the financial management of our city officials and deserves commendation rather than censure.

THE IMPROVEMENTS MADE.

During the past year many improvements to our streets have been made by grading, widening, straightening and shelving. Main street extended has been widened straightened and shelved to city limits. Locust street is being graded preparatory to being shelved. Pine St. is being graded and opened to intersect Locust Street, having been condemned by a former Council, and when completed will open up a section of the city, where desirable homes may be located and will doubtless in the near future add materially to our taxable basis. Elizabeth, the new street extending from Division to West Railroad Avenue, is also being graded and promises to become one of our principal residential thoroughfares. I heartily recommend the early completion of all this work. In addition I urge your honorable body to provide a better approach to Parsons Cemetery by putting down sidewalks and otherwise improving Division St. north of the railroad crossing. I would also suggest to the Council and to our citizens having unimproved property in the recently annexed territory, the importance of laying out streets that are wide and at right angles, and planting rows of trees, as the future growth of our city must soon embrace these large vacant lots. I also trust that you will extend to these outlying sections all municipal benefits as speedily as practicable. During the last year about sixty electric lights were located in the annex as well as other improvements added.

FAVORS A PUBLIC PARK.

I repeat my recommendation of a year ago in regard to lending encouragement towards the establishment of a public park should the opportunity present itself.

I commend to your continued care our Fire Department, which is the pride of our citizens and an honor to our city, being composed of as fine a body of young men as can be found anywhere, and it should be borne in mind that their services are solely voluntary. The splendid discipline and high state of efficiency is due in a large measure to our worthy Chief, Mr. G. Edward Sirman, and his assistants. The retiring Council has recently purchased rubber coats and boots, which were badly needed. I cannot too strongly urge you gentlemen to guard and protect the interests of the Fire Department.

During the year two additional arc lights have been placed on Main and Dock Streets, making these sections much more attractive and bringing them more in keeping with our well lighted city.

THE DOG NUISANCE.

It is evident from numerous complaints reaching me that prompt and vigorous measures must necessarily be adopted to rid our streets of numerous worthless dogs which have become an intolerable nuisance. With all the earnestness I possess I urge you to pass such ordinances as will effectually abate this nuisance.

In conclusion, I ask and expect your hearty cooperation in all matters affecting the interests of our city, the protection of life and property, the peace, good order and general welfare of Salisbury should be a matter dear to the hearts of all her citizens and especially to us who have been called by the people to protect these interests and to bear the burdens. I hold myself at your disposal and promise you my best endeavors in the furtherance of these ends.

Very Respectfully,
CHAR. E. DISHAROON, Mayor.

The United States as a Revenue Producer.

That was a good point which Postmaster General Smith made in one of his speeches along the Presidential route. He suggested, politely, so as to avoid wounding any of our neighbors' sensibilities, that this was now the greatest and strongest country in the world because it had the greatest revenue producing capacity. Quite true. The fact is of a good deal more importance than most people think it. In these days, when there is so much talk of a possible foreign combination against America, it is well to reflect that in war the longest purse generally comes out victorious. Successful war is quite as much a matter of money as of men. America has both and plenty of them. This country is now raising each year something like seven hundred millions of revenue for the Federal Government, and doing it with almost ridiculous ease. Many people do not even know that they are taxed. Secretary Gage, who should be good authority, says we could raise a thousand millions without friction or discontent. M. Routhowsky, the American financial agent of the Russian Government, after an exhaustive study of the economic conditions on this continent, has expressed the opinion that the United States Government could raise two thousand millions of revenue per year without any greater strain upon the population and the patience of the taxpayers than that to which several European people are now subjected in time of peace. The ease with which America raises the large revenue necessary to carry on the government and the wide and comfortable margin of reserve which lies beyond, are the envy of all old world statesmen. European nations which are now taxed almost up to the limit of endurance would probably stop and think several minutes before attacking a power which can raise a thousand millions a year without making any faces about it.

"Our little girl was unconscious from strangulation during a sudden and terrible attack of croup. I quickly secured a bottle of One Minute cough cure, giving her three doses. The croup was mastered and our little darling speedily recovered". So writes A. L. Spafford, Chester, Mich. Dr. L. D. Collier.

A Warning.

The persons who have been robbing and mutilating the rose bushes and flower beds on Division and Parke Streets need not flatter themselves that they are unknown, and unless the practice is discontinued they will be prosecuted.

The residents and business men of Aberdeen are making a strong effort to induce the managers of the Balair and Havre de Grace Electric Railroad to have the road pass through their town. Churchville has always been a strong feeder to the town, and should the route be adopted, Aberdeen would be a strong feeder for the road.

MENHADEN FISHING.

Interesting Account of One of the Many Sources of Chesapeake Wealth.

MONEY MADE BY THOSE IN THE BUSINESS.

The Eastern Ledger publishes the following account of the Menhaden fisheries of the Chesapeake:

Preparations for the annual chase of the oily and noisome menhaden have been under way for some time, and nearly a thousand of the fishermen of the Chesapeake will be engaged in this occupation for the next seven months. The fishing is done by a score or more of steamers of the Chesapeake built especially for the purpose. They are long powerful boats with deep holds, and their superstructures and engines are placed as far aft as possible. This brings the flaring bows up out of the water until they look as though they were about to rise and point directly toward the zenith. In the forward part of each boat is a stout mast equipped with a derrick, and at the top of the mast is a crow's nest, which suggests the new Bedford whaler. This crow's nest is built for occupation by a lookout, whose duty it is to locate schools of fish and to ascertain the direction in which they are moving.

The industry of catching the menhaden and "trying out" the oil has grown to considerable proportions in the Chesapeake Bay, and it is important industry all along the coast from this latitude to that of Maine, being especially thriving on the eastern shore of Long Island. Menhaden are also called "headheads" and "mombunkers," the latter name being the most common. "Greenbacks" and "bony fish" are also the names by which they are known to the fishermen of the Jersey Coast. They belong to the herring family and resemble the common herring in some of their characteristics. They swim in immense shoals, often covering the water as far as the eye can reach. Sharks and blue fish are their natural enemies, and they are chased in shore so far, sometimes, that they leap on the beaches by thousands, trying to escape from the savage rushes of their destroyers, for the menhaden has no way of protecting himself except by flight. Few things are so much to the taste of the bluefish as menhaden and they destroy vast quantities of them. Bluefish are the most wasteful and wanton of all the denizens of the deep, and after they have cut up a school of "bunkers" the sea will sometimes be covered for miles around with the bodies of the dead fish. The bluefish will take a single bite out of the menhaden, thereby killing it, and then will go after another. A few hundred bluefish will destroy thousands of the weaker fish before their appetites are satisfied.

PECULIAR CHARACTERISTICS.

The school of menhaden looks unlike a school of any other fish, and the practiced eye can detect them a long way off. They swim so near the surface of the water that their dorsal fins and half of their tails stick out of the water, and, as the tails have a yellow tinge, the water seems to be of that color as far as the eye can reach. They do not swim steadily ahead, as other fish do. Individuals in the school are constantly working up and down with a curious vibratory motion, so that the water over the school is kept in a ripple, like the water in a shallow stream when it meets with an obstruction.

The menhaden do not "break" from the surface, nor is there the flashing of silvery sides that is seen when a school of food fish swims near the surface. They do not indulge in any antics until the bluefish attack them. Then the spectacle would be a grand one if it were not so wasteful. The big fish hunt the menhaden as a pack of dogs hunt prey. They surround them with a wide circle, and then close in on them with fierce rushes. The menhaden leap desperately in all directions in their efforts to escape, and the sea is hammered into foam. For across the water is white with the splashing of the hunted fish. Among the leaping bunkers flash the bodies of the piratical and merciless bluefish. They leap straight up in the air with the agility of athletes, and often seize a bunker five or six feet above the surface of the water. Then they turn a somersault and shoot down into the water to begin over again. Sometimes they rise under a mass of bunkers and drive them up in the air.

METHOD OF CATCHING.

Bunkers will not take a hook, and the fishing for them is done altogether with seines from the boats already described. When the man in the lookout sees a school of fish the steamer moves to windward, and three boats are lowered, two large ones and a small one. Each of the large boats take one end of an immense seine, and they gradually approach the school, while the man in the small boat rows around on the other side, and he approaches with much noise and splashing to drive the fish into the net. The maneuvering of the two large boats has brought them around the school until the ends of the net are together, and the fish are entirely enclosed.

Often a half mile of net is out before this is accomplished, and then the steamer comes up. The catch is generally far too heavy to be drawn on board all at once, but a scoop is operated by the derrick and a donkey engine and the fish are dumped into the hold. The bunker is not a pleasant fish to handle.

There have been persons who have eaten the bunker. They say that the fish is edible, but the smell of the creature will prevent him from taking a prominent place as a table delicacy. They are valuable as a source of oil, and when the oil is all out they are good for fertilizer, but their usefulness ends.

DASH FOR THE FACTORY.

When the hold is full the steamer makes all speed for the factory, for the menhaden spoil very quickly, and the man who has never smelled a cargo of spoiled bunkers cannot be said to know what possibilities there are in the way of odor. For this reason the menhaden factories are generally located as far from settlements as possible, and when a factory is once comfortably in operation no self-respecting settlement would come anywhere near it. Most of the work of unloading the vessels is done at night, and for a man with so bad a cold that he has lost the sense of smell the sight is a most picturesque one. A big bucket is lowered into the hold, where colored men, who have frankly discarded all vestiges of clothing, load it up with shovels, singing all the time. Another colored man stands aloft, and gives the word to haul up when the bucket is full. That is to say, he could give the word, but he prefers to set it to music, and so he sings a chant something like this: "She's-a-a-a-all full; you can let her come up," which is pretty, but not economical of time or wind.

GETTING THE OIL OUT

The bucket dumps the masses of fish into a big machine that grinds it up, and out of this it goes into a vat, where a great deal of the oil is boiled out, and here again a man with a nose is at a disadvantage. The mass is then put into a great press, where every drop of oil is squeezed out. The residue is dried and sold for fertilizer. Passengers on trains that go through a farming country near the sea often notice a queer phosphorescence playing over the fields. This is caused by the decomposed fish plowed into the soil. Besides the freshness which it imparts to the soil, it also lends a flavor to the atmosphere which makes that part of the country one to be avoided if possible.

Menhaden oil is used principally in leather dressing, and to a certain extent in rope-making and painting. If the yield of oil is large the profits are good, but the sale of refuse, or "fish-scrap," as it is called for fertilizer would hardly pay the cost of catching the fish.

In the spring the menhaden appear first in Northern waters. The Chesapeake fleet begins operations about May 1, in the neighborhood of the Delaware Cape, and follows the migrating fish as they go South. About the last of November they reach Cape Hatteras, and then they are abandoned as to follow them further would not justify the expense of bringing them back to the factories. At least a half million dollars is invested in the boats and factories along the Chesapeake Bay.

Catarrah Cannot be Cured

With local applications, as they cannot reach the seat of the disease. Catarrh is a blood or constitutional disease and in order to cure it you must take internal remedies. It is composed of the best tonics known, combined with the best blood purifiers, acting directly on the mucous surfaces. Several arrests have been made in Washington county of men charged with catching bass out of season and fishing with a seine in the Chesapeake and Ohio canal. The accused claim that the canal is not a tributary of the Potomac river nor is it the river itself. There are individuals owing land on the river who claim that they have a perfect right to fish at any time they see fit.

NECESSARY TO SUCCESS.

The time has again rolled around when those interested in Democratic politics are beginning to talk of Democratic primaries.

The State Central Committee will meet in Baltimore next week and the dates for holding the State Convention and County primaries will soon be announced.

A great deal is now being published in the press about what influences will aid and what will oppose the Democratic and the Republican parties in their respective campaigns this fall. The contest this year is one of great importance to both parties.

We can point out no letter or surer way to success than that of nominating none but good men.

Every candidate who wishes to be nominated by the party should remember that first of all his party's success are to be considered and nothing should be done by him or his friends to endanger that success.

MAYOR DISHARON'S MESSAGE.

Mayor Disharon's message, read to the City Council last Monday evening, is a sprightly and comprehensive document. The condition of the city's finances is very clearly set forth.

The Mayor has not yet given up hope of a public park and again advises the council to acquire one if it can possibly be done without a burdensome increase in the tax rate.

The Mayor's suggestion that owners of unimproved property in the corporate limits should lay off the land in building sites with broad streets, at right angles, and set in shade and ornamental trees, is most excellent.

Another "howling" need which the Mayor courageously touches upon is the necessity for extermination of the city's worthless curs.

the City's assets. It often happens that two, three and sometimes more dogs in the street will set up a chase after a passing team, barking and biting at the horses many of which are made nervous and hard to control.

Many ladies and children now driven on our streets and this habit of the dogs is a constant menace to their safety. And then the howling at night destroys the slumbers and needful rest of the inhabitants of some portions of the city.

ASSES WITH SENATOR GORMAN

There is not a man in Maryland who is as well equipped to represent Maryland in the United States Senate as is Ex-Senator Arthur P. Gorman. "WE NEVER SAID IT"

Miss Brewington has a high soprano voice of unusual range and flexibility, very rich in quality and clear in tone. She made an excellent impression.

—Mr. W. B. Miller's "Mamie Harris," Mr. M. A. Humphreys' "Tom Tit" and Mr. G. J. Hearn's "Winnie Wood," three of Salisbury's speediest trotting horses, were driven on the Salisbury track Thursday afternoon. Mamie Harris and Tom Tit were driven against each other a mile heat. Mamie Harris took the race in 2:35. In the heat she cast a shoe and cut her quarter. Because of this accident Mr. Miller and his friends thought best not to send the mare again. Mr. Hearn's mare was then put in and sent a mile against Tom Tit, the latter taking the race in 2:40. Then Tom Tit was driven a trial half mile to a bicycle sulky in 1:21. Winnie Wood was then hitched to the same sulky and driven by Asbury Perdue a trial mile in 2:35.

It's So And Thoroughgood Wants You To Know It's So.

Many a swindle looks honest. The man who sells a White Wire Clothes line and gets an innocent man sign a contract as agent, which contract turns up as a note in a local bank, proposes a good thing "on the face of it." The man who sells a lot of fake $5.00 bills at $1.00 each by selling one to a man which stands the test of the Farmers and Merchants Bank, and which really is a good bill, sells a good thing "on the face of it." The man who sells a split leather shoe with paper insoles sells a good thing "on the face of it." The man who sells a Satinet suit that looks like cassimere, sells a suit that looks all right "on the face of it"—and its only when a man digs down deep into it—wears it—gets it rain soaked and sun dried that he finds out the swindle. Lacy Thoroughgood don't sell a garment—not one—or an article—not one—that looks good on the face of it, that isn't good clear through it—inside—outside—upside—downside—and Lacy Thoroughgood will stand back of it till you've tried it—worn it—tested it—till you've got your money's worth. Lacy Thoroughgood is selling just now some moderate priced suits for men. They're good lookers. They're honest. They'll wear. They are $5.00, $6.50 and $8.50 a suit. Lacy Thoroughgood's Children and Boys department has this season done its largest business. Thoroughgood has little suits 3 to 8 year sizes in all styles $1.25, $1.50, $1.75, $2.00 up to $5.00. Thoroughgood sells boys' suits, either long or short pants, for less than they can be bought anywhere else—Young Men's suits 14 to 19 years $5.00 to $10.00—in chalk line stripes, new cuts—bring in the boys.—It will be profitable for you. Thoroughgood's customers who know him know it's so and Thoroughgood wants the men who don't know Thoroughgood to know it's so.—All goods sold guaranteed as represented.

Bug Death IS THE BEST INSECTICIDE On the Market to-day

for the trucker and farmer to use. Why? It is non-poisonous, it frees the plant from all insects, as it contains no arsenic and can be used on any plant or vine and will not burn or blight it. It keeps the vine green and thrifty giving the potato a chance to mature, which means a more starchy potato less liable to rot. Practical tests prove that the extra yield of marketable potatoes more than pay the entire expense. The farmers who used Bug Death last season for the pea house are much pleased with the results obtained. These goods are for sale by the following dealers of whom you can obtain a descriptive circular upon application, or address the Danforth Chemical Co., Leominster, Mass. E. P. FITZGERALD, O. A. Thousands Have Kidney Trouble and Don't Know It.

How to Find Out. Fill a bottle or common glass with your water and let it stand twenty-four hours; a sediment or settling indicates an unhealthy condition of the kidneys, if it stains your linen it is evidence of kidney trouble; too frequent desire to pass it or pain in the back is also convincing proof that the kidneys and bladder are out of order.

What to Do. There is comfort in the knowledge so often expressed, that Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, the great kidney remedy, fulfills every wish in curing rheumatism, pain in the back, kidneys, liver, bladder and every part of the urinary passage. It corrects inability to hold water and scalding pain in passing it, or bad effects following use of liquor, wine or beer, and overcomes that unpleasant necessity of being compelled to go often during the day, and to get up many times during the night. The mild and the extraordinary effect of Swamp-Root is soon realized. It stands the highest for its wonderful cures of the most distressing cases. If you need a medicine you should have the best. Sold by druggists in 50c and $1. sizes. You may have a sample bottle of this wonderful discovery and a book that tells more about it, both sent absolutely free by mail, address Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y. When writing mention reading this generous offer in this paper.

Gentlemen:—This is to certify that we purchased one of your Home Comfort Ranges No. 1 about 17 years ago and wish to say that we consider it one of the most durable and satisfactory of kitchen ranges ever made. It is in the line of a cooking range, we would not be willing to part with it for any good reason, and for all purposes, we do not think they could be surpassed.

JAMES A. WALLER, ELIJAH J. ADKINS.

Salisbury, Md., January 17, 1901. Wrought Iron Range Company.

Gentlemen:—I have been using one of your Home Comfort Ranges for the past seventeen years, and can cheerfully recommend it to one of the most durable and reliable of all kitchen stoves. We would not part with it under any circumstances if we could not get another. This letter you may use in any way you think best for your business.

JAMES H. WEST.

Salisbury, Md., January 22, 1901.

This is to certify that I purchased a Home Comfort Range from one of the Wrought Iron Range Co. traveling salesmen, some six years ago. I find the Range in all particulars as represented by the salesman. It is all that could be desired in a first-class cooking range, and I cheerfully recommend it to any one in need of a cooking range.

WM. S. HASTINGS.

Salisbury, Md., February 19, 1901. Wrought Iron Range Company.

It affords me great pleasure to recommend your Home Comfort Range. I purchased one from your traveling salesman six years ago, and it is giving us perfect satisfaction, in a most durable and economical on fuel. We would not take twice the money to part with it if we could not get another like it.

JOHN W. PARKER of L.

Collingwood, Ont., 11th July, 1900. W. L. Culver, Esq., President Wrought Iron Range Co., St. Louis, Missouri.

Dear Sir:—We are in receipt of your favor of June 18th, which we regret to say was mislaid. We have great pleasure in stating that your ranges are in use on six of the eight steamers of the fleet and that they have given perfect satisfaction in every way both as to their durability and working qualities, which have been tested to the utmost.

In the fall of '99 our steamer Pacific was totally destroyed by fire at the dock which was in such good condition that it was used on our new steamer Germanic, which was built the following season to take place of Pacific. There was practically nothing wrong with the stove except discoloration and rust consequent upon the action of intense heat and water.

The steamers using your ranges are Marjestic, Collingwood, Germanic, Atlantic, Britannic and Midland. Very truly, NORTHERN NAVIGATION CO.

"FRENCH POLITENESS."

Miss Ella Critchfield Perlin Art and French Manners.

Sudlerville, Md., May 22, 1901.

After lunch which was a very scant affair we again set forth to see some of the "sights" and the first object of our investigation was the Luxembourg. This beautiful building which once have been one of the imperial residences, but it is used now partly as a picture gallery while another part is used as a meeting place for the Senate. Room after room filled with paintings by celebrated artists of every school and land; every phase of human life is here portrayed, even the thoughts are spoken in the colors of the palette blended by the master touch of a master hand. In all this display it is impossible to see all of the pictures, even if we cared to see them and had weeks of time to do it; I noticed only a few. We learned that the Luxembourg is a sort of winning ground for the Louvre, for when the government buys a picture it is transferred to the Louvre. One picture which claimed my attention was a life size, snow scene being represented and several heavily veiled women seemed to be passing down a street carrying flowers. The veils were lifted from their faces and their great solemnity showed signs of a great sorrow. The artist must have drained the cup of sorrow to its dregs in order to portray it so realistically. Another very interesting one "The Decision," it showed the interior of an Art Gallery on an exhibition day and several pictures were hanging on the wall to be awarded prizes according to their merits. The judges were all standing before one and were pointing to it with their umbrellas. The attitude of the men, their manner and evident excitement and admiration were as real as if we had been looking upon the scene itself. One room was filled entirely with paintings of the Impressionist School while here and there a few were scattered about amongst the other more quiet pictures. The effect of a room filled with them is simply terrible; bright glaring yellows stare at you from all sides, ultramarine blues unaccountably proclaim themselves from every canvas, while greens of every shade and hue, deep pinks, purple make your eyes ache. Not a sign of shading, daubs of pure color are seemingly slapped on regardless of the effect. I was told that one had to view these pictures from a distance in order to appreciate them and I believe that distance will lend enchantment to them as well as to many other things, for I am sure I appreciated them far better when I could not see them at all and I verily believe I appreciate them now than I did when I was 3000 miles from me longer in the room than it was necessary and after seeing a few pieces of statuary we were told that the time was up and we must hasten to the Pantheon. I have heard that this building has been used as a church but the part that we visited has anything but a churchly aspect. Like many of the other buildings it is of the Ionic style of architecture; immense marble columns giving it dignity and strength at the expense of beauty. The part which we visited is an immense picture gallery, and many of the pictures are of national and historical importance. The most interesting perhaps are those relating to Joan of Arc and St. Genevieve, the patron saint of Paris. The life of the former is shown in a series of pictures beginning with her life at ten years of age when she heard the voices telling her to go and lead the French troops against their foes, the English. Her journey to the king, her journey to Orleans where she led the assaulting columns which broke down the walls of the city, the crowning of King Charles IX at Rheims, her cruel death at the stake are vividly portrayed by the artist's brush. The French seem to have realized at last her worth but not until she had died a martyr's death, for now may be seen numerous statues to her honor adorning the public places. Not a letter was written, not an offer made in her behalf from the king when death threatened her at the hands of the English. The king whom she had crowned and restored to the throne of his fathers cast her aside as a blunt tool when his use for her ceased, not a feeling of gratitude or compassion urged him to intercede in behalf of the hapless girl.

St. Genevieve, the patron saint of Paris was born 433 A. D. Upon the invasion of Europe by the Huns led by Attila she protected the safety of Paris and is said to have performed many miracles and converted Clovis, the founder of the French monarchy, to Christianity. Several large pictures fill up one side of the building representing her administering to the bodily and spiritual welfare of her followers. Another very interesting picture is the crowning of Charlemagne by Pope Leo III as King of Lombardy in 778. The Pope is holding the crown in his hands just above the head of Charlemagne who is kneeling before him clad in all the vestments of kingly authority. The same crown minus the jewels is now at the Louvre and with it Napoleon I was crowned emperor of France. Another picture which is finely executed but horrible to look upon is near the main entrance. A man has been executed and stands grasping his own head in his hands while volumes of blood spurt from his severed neck to the amazement and horror of the bystanders. The bodies of Victor Hugo and President Carnot lie in the vault beneath this building; for a France of two one could descend and view the corpses, but I had seen enough of such gruesome spectacles for one day and kept my money.

Leaving here we proceeded to the arc de Triomphe at the end of Champs Elysees. This triumphal arch was begun by Napoleon I to celebrate his victories but was finished, Louis Philippe completed it. It was Napoleon's desire that he should ride through this arch in triumph, but the only triumphal entry ever witnessed was the victorious entry of the Germans. When Napoleon's dead body was brought to Paris from St. Helena the funeral cortege passed under it not as a conquering hero, but as a fallen foe before the mighty conqueror, death. It is built on the order of the arch of Constantine at Rome and consists of three arches, the larger one being in the center and a smaller one at each end. On the interior of the arch are the names of all the battles ever fought by Napoleon; the outside is beautifully carved and the top is adorned by allegorical figures representing peace and war. It is a colossal monument and would be a fit emblem of the glories of any conqueror of any time or place.

The piece of the Bastille is marked by a column a few hundred feet high, surmounted by a gilded ball and standing with one foot on this ball, is a winged figure. The Bastille was a famous state prison of Paris although the name originally meant any works outside a city, here languished many prisoners who had unfortunately incurred the enmity of the French monarchs. It was destroyed by the people of Paris July 14, 1789 and for this reason the column marking its place is called the Column of July.

The afternoon was waning and by the time we had halted at the new palatial residence of Countess Boni de Castellane nee Miss Anna Gould and driven through the grounds of the chocolate manufacturer Menier which in themselves form a beautiful private park, it was time to go back to that miserable hotel. The Parisian home of the Castellanes may have all the splendor of the new world grafted on the old, but to Americans it will never be an attractive piece of architecture; it is modeled after the "Little Trianon" at Versailles, the favorite home of Marie Antoinette the ill-fated queen of Louis XVI. It seems to be only two stories high, the windows reaching from the ground floor to the roof, which is flat. It is deplorable to think of so much good American money being wasted upon that pile of rubbish in a foreign country when it could do so much good in our own. The grounds when the landscape gardener has finished his work will be exceedingly beautiful, but no amount of money will ever make the mansion itself from the outside a delight to all beholders.

The next day was Sunday so our calendar said, but we found it hard to realize that fact. Our first thought was to visit some of the famous churches of the city and as we went our steps in search of one there was nothing about this day to distinguish it from the preceding one; laborers were still at work upon the streets where we had seen them the day before, removing the wooden pavements and laying others; factories were running as usual and everything around spoke of a land where the Lord's day differs not from the other days of the week to the laborer who must earn his bread by the sweat of his brow.

The church of the Madeleine had been mentioned to us as well worth a visit because of its beautiful music so we started to find it and after walking for some time we at last found this imposing structure. It is totally unlike a church being on the same order as the Pantheon we had visited the day previous. It is of the Greek style of architecture and is surrounded on all sides by massive columns, the front having a double row. We entered with the throng and were shown to seats by an usher. These seats consisted of two rows of what we know as flag-bottomed chairs fastened back to back; the row facing the altar being higher than those behind which were used for kneeling, the top being finished with a broad sail where the prayer book could lie while the worshiper was kneeling. The congregation was well dressed as it should have been, we having heard that here is where the elite and fashionable of Paris go to worship. It seemed to us that everyone must conduct his own method of praying and going. Some kind of service was going on all the time but it seemed that the principal act in the drama was collecting money, for during the whole time we were there, there were three or four persons collecting all the time. The first one who came along was an old priest and with him a soldier, gendarme they say dressed in the Napoleonic costume, knee pants, cocked hat and a sword clanking at his side. This priest collected 15 cents or 20 cents in our money for the use of the chair. The soldier in church was a very singular spectacle to us, for our idea of a house of worship is a peaceful one with none of the suggestions of war. These two, priest and soldier were constantly on the move, and scarcely would any one take his seat ere they were at his side.

The next was a man collecting money for the privilege of listening at the music he said, but I pretended I could not understand him and he passed on. But in a little while an old woman came along and she was not so easily gotten rid of, and we had to pay her ten centimes, or two cents in our money, making 2 cents in all. This seems a very small amount but must not forget that to a Frenchman one centime or one fifth of a cent is much more than a cent to us, and a franc, or 20 cents is as great to them as a dollar to us. I believe had we stayed much longer we would have come to the same way of thinking, for in estimating the value of an article we unconsciously associated the franc and dollar. The service was like so much Greek to us, for with the altar taking, the coming and going it would have been well high impossible to follow the service had we been familiar with it. At some part of it, I do not know where we were sitting, a man came by and said something to us in French which I did not understand and as we did not move he seized me and the lady next to me very roughly by the arm and jerked us to our feet. This was a little too much for my American principles so in a few minutes I left not caring to receive any more French rudeness in what we thought was the Lord's house. We were completely at their mercy for a reply of any kind might have brought the soldier to us and we might have been arrested for disturbing public worship. The others stayed a while longer and I waited for them just outside the door.

Returning to the Hotel I found that some of the party had gone to an American church and had the opportunity of hearing Bishop Battler of Southern Maryland Diocese preach. I felt very sorry indeed that I had wasted the morning at the Madeleine for there was nothing, not even the music, any better than we hear frequently in our own churches. The afternoon was spent in doors by most of us, for it was cold and rainy. Although it was the first Sunday in August we were comfortable in heavy woolen wraps while walking while our friends at home were sweating with the heat. A. E. ELLIS.

Bug Death IS THE BEST INSECTICIDE On the Market to-day

for the trucker and farmer to use. Why? It is non-poisonous, it frees the plant from all insects, as it contains no arsenic and can be used on any plant or vine and will not burn or blight it. It keeps the vine green and thrifty giving the potato a chance to mature, which means a more starchy potato less liable to rot. Practical tests prove that the extra yield of marketable potatoes more than pay the entire expense. The farmers who used Bug Death last season for the pea house are much pleased with the results obtained. These goods are for sale by the following dealers of whom you can obtain a descriptive circular upon application, or address the Danforth Chemical Co., Leominster, Mass.

Thousands Have Kidney Trouble and Don't Know It.

Fill a bottle or common glass with your water and let it stand twenty-four hours; sediment or settling indicates an unhealthy condition of the kidneys; if it stains your linen it is evidence of kidney trouble; too frequent desire to pass it or pain in the back is also convincing proof that the kidneys and bladder are out of order.

There is comfort in the knowledge so often expressed, that Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, the great kidney remedy, fulfills every wish in curing rheumatism, pain in the back, kidneys, liver, bladder and every part of the urinary passage. It corrects inability to hold water and galling pain in passing it, or bad effects following use of liquor, wine or beer, and overcomes that unpleasant necessity of being compelled to go often during the day, and to get up many times during the night. The mild and the extraordinary effect of Swamp-Root is soon realized. It stands the highest for its wonderful cures of the most distressing cases. If you need a medicine you should have the best. Sold by druggists in 50c. and $1. sizes. You may have a sample bottle of this wonderful discovery and a book that tells more about it, both sent absolutely free by mail, address Dr. Kilmer & Co., Poughkeepsie, N. Y. When writing mention reading this generous offer in this paper.

WHAT THE PEOPLE SAY

Who are Using Home Comfort Ranges.

Salisbury, Md., January 24, 1900.

Gentlemen:—This is to certify that we purchased one of your Home Comfort Ranges No. 1 about ten years ago and wish to say that we consider it one of the most durable and satisfactory of kitchen ranges, and highly recommend them to any one wishing any part with this line of a cooking range. We would not be willing to part with it if we could not get another. For durability and as a good baker, and for all purposes, we do not think they could be surpassed.

JAMES A. WALLER, ELIJAH J. ADKINS.

Salisbury, Md., January 17, 1901.

Gentlemen:—I have been using one of your Home Comfort Ranges for the past several years, and can cheerfully recommend it as one of the most durable and satisfactory of all kitchen stoves. We would not want to part with it under any circumstances if we could not get another. This letter you may use in any way you think best for your business.

JAMES H. WEST.

Salisbury, Md., January 22, 1901.

This is to certify that I purchased a Home Comfort Range from one of the Wrought Iron Range Co's traveling salesmen, in 1900, and I find the range in all particulars as represented by the salesman. It is all that could be desired in a first-class cooking range, and I cheerfully recommend it to any one in need of a cooking range.

W. M. S. HASTINGS.

Salisbury, Md., February 19, 1901.

It affords me great pleasure to recommend your Home Comfort Range. I purchased one from your traveling salesman six years ago, and although the steamer was burnt to the keel in such good condition that it was used on our new steamer, which was built on the following season, and it was used on the move except dislocation and marks consequent upon the action of intense heat and water.

JOHN W. PARKER of L.

Collingwood, Ont., 11th July, 1900.

W. L. Culver, Esq., President Wrought Iron Range Co., St. Louis, Missouri.

Dear Sir:—We are in receipt of your favor of June 18th, which we regret to say was mislaid. We have great pleasure in stating that your ranges are in use on six of the eight perfect steaming stoves that they have given us, and we are very much pleased with their durability and working qualities, which have been tested to the utmost.

In the fall of '88 our steamer Pacific was totally destroyed by fire at the dock which originated at the G. T. Ry. warehouse, and although the steamer was burnt to the keel it was in such good condition that it was used on our new steamer, which was built on the following season, and it was used on the move except dislocation and marks consequent upon the action of intense heat and water.

"FRENCH POLITENESS."

Miss Ellis Criticizes Persian Art and French Manners.

Sudlersville, Md., May 22, 1901.

After lunch which was a very recent affair we again set forth to see some of the "lights" and the first object of our investigation was the Luxembourg. This beautiful building might once have been one of the imperial residences, but it is used now partly as a picture gallery while another part is used as a meeting place for the Senate. Room after room of this magnificent building is filled with paintings by celebrated artists of every school and land; every phase of human life is here portrayed, even the thoughts are spoken in the colors of the palette, by the master touch of a master hand. In all this display it is impossible to see all of the pictures, even if we cared to see them and had weeks of time to do it in; I noticed only a few. We learned that the Luxembourg is a sort of winnowing ground for the Louvre, for when the government buys a picture it is put here first and then if it has merit it is transferred to the Louvre. One picture which claimed my attention was a life size, snow scene, being represented and several heavily veiled women seemed to be passing down a street carrying flowers. The veils were lifted from their faces and their great solemnity showed signs of a great sorrow. The artist must have drained the cup of sorrow to its dregs in order to portray it so realistically. Another very interesting one "The Decision," showed the interior of an Art Gallery where an exhibition day and several pictures were hanging on the wall to be awarded prizes according to their merits. The judges were all standing before one and were pointing to it with their umbrellas. The attitude of the men, their manner and evident excitement and admiration were as real as if we had been looking upon the scene itself. One room was filled entirely with paintings of the Impressionist School while here and there a few were scattered about amongst the other more quiet pictures. The effect of a room filled with them is simply terrible; bright glaring yellows stare at you from all sides, ultramarine blues untended make you shiver with disgust, flaming reds proclaim themselves from every canvas, while greens of every shade and hue, deep pinks, purple make your eyes ache. Not a sign of shading, dabs of pure color are seemingly slapped on regardless of the effect. I was told that one had to view these pictures from a distance in order to appreciate them and I believe that distance will lend enchantment to them as well as to many other things, for I am sure I appreciate them far better when I could not see them at all, and I verily believe I appreciate them more than I did while in Paris. I stayed no longer in the room than a few pieces of statuary we were told that the time was up and we must hasten to the Pantheon. I have heard that this building has been used as a church but the picture which we visited has anything but a churchy aspect. Like many of the other buildings of the Ionic style of architecture, it is a masterpiece of art, giving it dignity and strength at the expense of beauty. The part which we visited is an immense picture gallery, and many of the pictures are of national and historical importance. The most interesting perhaps are those relating to Joan of Arc and St. Genevieve, the patron saint of Paris. The life of the former is shown in a series of pictures beginning with her life at the years of age when she heard the voice of heaven to go and lead the French troops against their foes, the English. Her journey to the king, her journey to Orleans, here she led the assailing columns which broke down the walls, the crowning of king Charles IX at Rheims, her cruel death at the stake are vividly portrayed by the artist's brush. The French seem to have realized at last her worth but not until she had died a martyr's death, for now may be seen numerous statues to her honor adorning the public places. Not a letter was written, not an offer made in her behalf from the king when death threatened her at the hands of the English. The king whom she had crowned and restored to the throne of his fathers cast her aside as a blunt tool when his use for her ceased, not a feeling of gratitude or compassion urged him to intercede in behalf of the hapless girl.

St. Genevieve, the patron saint of Paris was born 493 A. D. Upon the part of Europe by the Huns led by Attila is said to have performed many miracles and converted Clovis, the founder of the French monarchy, to Christianity. Several large pictures fill up one side of the building representing her administering to the bodily and spiritual welfare of her followers.

Another very interesting picture is the crowning of Charlemagne by Pope Leo III as king of Lombardy in 778. The Pope is holding the crown in his hands just above the head of Charlemagne, who is kneeling before him clad in all the vestments of kingly authority. The same crown minus the jewels is now at the Louvre and with it Napoleon I was crowned emperor of France. Another picture which is finely executed but horrible to look upon is near the main entrance. A man has been executed and the headless body has arisen and stands grasping his own head in his hands while volumes of blood spurt from his severed neck to the amazement and horror of the bystanders. The body of Victor Hugo and President Carnot lie in the vault beneath this building; for a franc or two one could descend and view the casket, but I had seen enough of such gruesome spectacles for one day and kept my money.

Leaving here we proceeded to the arc de Triomphe at the end of Champs Elysees. This triumphal arch was begun by Napoleon I to celebrate his victories but being sent to St. Helena before it was finished, Louis Philippe completed it. It was Napoleon's desire that he should ride through this arch in triumph, but the only triumphal entry it ever witnessed was the victorious entry of the Germans. When Napoleon's dead body was brought to Paris from St. Helena the funeral cortege passed under it not as a conquering hero, but as a fallen foe before the mighty conqueror, Death. It is built on the order of the arch of Constantine at Rome and consists of three arches, the larger one being in the center and a smaller one at each end. On the interior of the arch are the names of all the battles ever fought by Napoleon; the outside is beautifully carved and the top is adorned by allegorical figures representing peace and war. It is a colossal monument and would be a fit emblem of the glories of any conqueror of any time or place.

The place of the Bastille is marked by a column a few hundred feet high, surmounted by a gilded ball and standing with one foot on this ball, is a winged figure. The Bastille was a famous state prison of Paris although the name originally meant any works outside a city, here languished many prisoners who had unfortunately incurred the enmity of the French monarchs. It was destroyed by the people of Paris July 14, 1789 and for this reason the column marking its place is called the Column of Unity.

The afternoon was waning and by the time we had halted at the new palatial residence of Countess Bon de Castellane nee Miss Anna Gould and driven through the grounds of the chocolate manufacturer Menier which in themselves form a beautiful private park, it was time to go back to that miserable Hotel. The Parisian home of the Castellanes may have all the splendors of the new world grafted on the old, but to Americans it will never be an attractive piece of architecture; it is modeled after the "Little Trianon" at Versailles, the favorite home of Marie Antoinette the ill-fated queen of Louis XVI. It seems to be only two stories high, the windows reaching from the ground floor to the roof, which is flat. It is deplorable to think of so much good American money being wasted upon that pile of rubbish in a foreign country when it could do so much good in our own. The grounds when the landscape gardener has finished his work will be exceedingly beautiful, but no amount of money will ever make the mansion itself from the outside a delight to all beholders.

The next day was Sunday so our calendar said, but we found it hard to realize that fact. Our first thought was to visit some of the famous churches of the city and as we went our steps in search of one there was nothing about this day to distinguish it from the preceding one; laborers were still at work upon the streets where we had seen them the day before, removing the wooden pavements and laying others; factories were running as usual and everything around spoke of a land where the Lord's day differs not from the other days of the week to the laborer who must earn his bread by the sweat of his brow.

The church of the Madeleine had been mentioned to us as well worth a visit because of its beautiful music so we started to find it and after walking for some time we at last found this imposing structure. It is totally unlike a church; being on the same order as the Pantheon we had visited as a day previous. It is of the Greek style of architecture and is surrounded on all sides by massive columns, the front having a double row. We entered with the throng and were shown to seats by an usher. These seats consisted of two rows of what we know as flag-bottomed chairs fastened back to back; the row facing the altar being higher than those behind which were used for kneeling, the top being finished with a broad aisle where the worshipper was kneeling. The congregation was well dressed as it should have been, we having heard that here is where the elite and fashionable of Paris go to worship. It seemed to us that everyone must conduct his own method of worship for the crowd was constantly coming and going. Some kind of service was going on all the time but it seemed that the principal act in the drama was collecting money, for during the whole time we were there, the men three or four persons collecting all the time. The first one who came along was an old priest, say dressed in a soldier, gendarme they called him in the Napoleonic costume, knee pants, cocked hat and a sword clanking at his side. This priest collected 15 cents or 20 cents in our money for the use of the chair. The soldier in church was a very singular spectacle to us, for our idea of a house of worship is a peaceful one with none of the suggestions of war. These two, priest and soldier were constantly on the move, and scarcely would any one take his seat ere they were at it again.

The next was a man collecting money for the privilege of listening at the music he said, but I pretended I could not understand him and he passed on. But in a little while an old woman came along and she was not so easily gotten rid of, and we had to pay her ten centimes, or two cents in our money, making 5 cents in all. This seems a very small amount but must not forget that to a Frenchman one centime or one fifth of a cent is much more than a cent to us and a franc, or 20 cents is as great to them as a dollar to us. I believe had we stayed much longer we would have come to the same way of thinking, for in estimating the value of an article we unconsciously associated the franc and dollar. The service was like so much Greek to us, for with the alms taking, the coming and going it would have been well nigh impossible to follow the service had we been familiar with it their mercy for a reply of any kind might have brought the soldier on us and we might have been arrested for disturbing public worship. The others stayed a while longer and I waited for them just outside the door.

Returning to the Hotel I found that some of the party had gone to an American church and had the opportunity of hearing Bishop Satterlor of Southern Maryland Diocese preach. I felt very sorry indeed that I had wanted the mercy for a reply of any kind might have brought the soldier on us and we might have been arrested for disturbing public worship. The others stayed a while longer and I waited for them just outside the door.
