MR. ELLEGOOD'S NOMINATION.

He Is Unanimously Nominated On The Second Ballot By The Democratic Congressional Convention At Ocean City Thursday.

The Democratic Congressional Convention for the first Congressional district of Maryland met at Ocean City Thursday at noon and nominated Hon. James F. Ellegood of Wicomico as the standard bearer. The nomination was made on the second ballot, and was made unanimous, each candidate being withdrawn in favor of Wicomico's favorite son.

The convention will long be remembered as a very unusual one, owing to the number of candidates and the uncertainty of the result of its work. On Wednesday evening no one could forecast which of following names would lead the Democratic forces during coming campaign: Ex. Gov. Jackson, Mr. James E. Ellegood, Mr. Joshua W. Miles, Gen. Jea. B. Seth, Mr. P. B. Hopper, Mr. John H. Kimball or Senator Wm. F. Applegarth.

Most of the Wicomico delegation arrived at the beach on the late train Wednesday night and soon entered upon a vigorous fight for their choice. There is no mistaking the fact that they made a pretty fight from the very start. The conditions on the Eastern Shore were gone over and it was vigorously urged by Wicomico's forces, which were there in goodly numbers, that Mr. Ellegood was the logical candidate and could lead the party to victory. Early Thursday morning it was seen that Wicomico was carrying everything before it and that the nomination could be secured for either Ex. Gov. Jackson or Mr. Ellegood. A delegation visited Salisbury to see if Mr. Jackson would accept if the nomination were unanimously tendered him. This he declined owing to his health, thanking the delegation for the consideration shown him and speaking kindly of all the candidates mentioned. After Mr. Jackson's refusal, the fight was narrowed down to Hopper of Queen Anne's and Ellegood of Wicomico. Talbot was soon won over to Ellegood and his nomination was assured.

The convention assembled at noon, being called to order by State Senator John P. Moore of Worcester. He named Col. Edward Lloyd of Talbot the temporary chairman, and Messrs. Bennett P. Steele of Cecil and E. E. Goslin of Caroline were made temporary secretaries. The committee on credentials and permanent organization were then named as follows:

Caroline, Dr. W. W. Goldsborough; Cecil, A. L. Barry; Dorchester, John W. Fletcher; Kent, Joseph W. Howard; Queen Anne's, Joseph E. Parvis; Somerset, Milton L. Tull; Talbot, J. McMeney Willis; Wicomico, John E. Taylor; Worcester, W. Lee Carey. The committee found the credentials all correct, and the temporary officers were made permanent.

The following committee on resolutions was then appointed: Caroline, Thos. A. Smith; Cecil, W. S. Evans; Dorchester, Wm. H. McGuire; Kent, P. G. Wilmer; Queen Anne's, J. Frank Hopper; Somerset, I. T. J. Brown; Talbot, John S. Martin; Wicomico, F. L. Waller, and Worcester, E. W. McMaster.

The convention here adjourned until two o'clock. Upon reassembling the following resolutions were reported and adopted.

Resolved, by the Democracy of the First Congressional district, in convention assembled, That we reaffirm the cardinal principles of the Democratic party as formulated by the framers of the Constitution and founders of the Republic. We believe in a strict adherence to those principles.

Resolved, That the failure of the Republican party to pass legislation that would control powerful combinations of capital that compel our own home people to pay more for their goods than they sell them in foreign markets, their recklessness and extravagant expenditures of the people's money, their utter disregard of constitutional rights and privileges, all make it necessary to place the law making power, at least, in the hands of the Democratic party, which has always stood by the masses of the people. While ever ready to concede capital what is justly due, we insist that the rights of the laboring man be respected.

Resolved, That we heartily indorse the present administration of State affairs, calling special attention to the peaceful and quiet condition of all classes of our citizens and the efficient management of our finances.

Resolved, That we believe that more than 25,000 white voters who live in the nine counties of the First Congressional district of Maryland, and who represent the best type of English-speaking Americans, owe it to themselves and to those who are to come after them to elevate their political standards and to insist that those who represent us in either State or national positions shall be men well equipped for the discharge of such public duties.

Nominations being called for the counties responded as follows: Caroline passed, Cecil named Mr. John H. Kimball, Dorchester named Senator W. F. Applegarth, Kent passed, Queen Anne's named Mr. P. B. Hopper, Somerset passed, Talbot named Gen. Jos. B. Seth, Worcester passed, Wicomico named Mr. James E. Ellegood.

The first ballot resulted with Ellegood 15 votes, Wicomico, Worcester, Somerset and Caroline supporting him. Applegarth 5 votes from Dorchester, Kimball 4 votes from Cecil, Hopper 7 votes from Kent and Queen Anne's and Seth 4 votes from Talbot. The second ballot was the same as the first but before the result could be announced Talbot changed her four votes from Seth to Ellegood securing his nomination. The other counties quickly withdrew their favorite sons and made the nomination unanimous amid much enthusiasm. The friends of the defeated candidates took Mr. Ellegood's nomination with very good grace and promised their hearty support at the coming election. The Convention was a large and enthusiastic gathering of prominent democrats from all over the Eastern Shore. The proceedings were interesting from the start and the crowd present listened with close attention to the nominating speeches which were all well delivered.

Mr. Wailes placed Mr. Ellegood in nomination in a strong, earnest address which received close attention and much applause. We publish below his speech in part.

"The First district is the cynosure of all eyes today, and it is our duty to choose a man who can redeem the district, and the man above all others who can bring victory to our ranks is the one I am about to name. The campaign of this fall is of moral importance, and its result is but a forerunner of what will occur two years hence. The present administration is oppressing every lowly citizen; it is striving to drive out competition and to make combinations the greatest of all powers. It is now the duty of the Democratic party to nominate and elect to our national legislative halls a man who will be able to cope with questions concerning the national good with intelligence and knowledge. Wicomico is the center of a great fight; it is, indeed, the battle ground of the district, and there is no one more true, more ready, more anxious than he. It is not necessary to placard him, who has been a Democrat when it has been costly to be a Democrat; him, who has gone contrary to his father's political views, him, who 10 years ago led the Democrats of the county out of the wilderness of defeat into victory; him, who is known from the mountains of Alleghany to the Atlantic's shore. He is an intelligent and Christian gentleman whom even his foes respect. He is one who would rather be right than be congressman."

NEWS IN SALISBURY.

The news of Mr. Ellegood's nomination for Congress was received with much pleasure by the residents of Salisbury. An ovation was tendered him at his home on North Division street, Thursday night. A large body of residents marched to his home, headed by a brass band. Mr. N. T. Fitch delivered an address on behalf of the residents, to which Mr. Ellegood responded.

NOTIFICATION COMMITTEE.

Chairman Edward Lloyd appointed the following Committee to notify Mr. Ellegood of his nomination. Henry R. Lewis of Caroline, Wm. S. Evans of Cecil, John G. Mills of Dorchester, Jacob T. Shallicross of Kent, J. Frank Harper of Queen Anne's, Dr. Gordon T. Atkinson of Somerset, George W. Wilson of Talbot, F. L. Waller of Wicomico, and Edward W. McMaster of Worcester. The notification will take place at Salisbury, Tuesday, September 16th.

M. P. CHURCH DEDICATION.

Comments By the Pastor on The Occasion of Last Monday's Ceremonies.

The corner-stone of the re-modeled Methodist Protestant Church of this city was laid last Monday, in accordance with the announcement made last week in the ADVERTISER.

The ceremony, which was witnessed by several hundred people, was impressive and interesting. Several ministers were present, some of whom spoke upon the occasion.

When the present plans of the committee having the work in charge are realized, the edifice will be one of the most complete and commodious in the city. The pastor and congregation are looking forward earnestly to the completion of the work. Just when this may occur and the re-dedication be held is not yet definitely known. Following are some comments of the pastor, Rev. J. S. Smith:

NOTES ON CORNER STONE LAYING.

The Building Committee of M. P. Church, in regular meeting Wednesday evening, September 3rd, 1902, passed a unanimous and very cordial resolution, thanking the Wicomico Lodge of Masons for their splendid and generous services in laying the Corner Stone on Monday afternoon.

Mr. J. T. Ellis has the thanks of the M. P. Church for the gratuitous offering of the Corner Stone, while The Dorman & Smyth Hardware Co., will be remembered for donating the valuable copper box which was placed in the stone. Among the articles deposited in the box was a copy of the Holy Bible, donated by White & Leonard. W. H. Rounds and Fulton Rounds put some coins in the box.

Kennerly and Sirman will not be forgotten. Their renditions of "Rock of Ages," "Lead Kindly Light," and "America" were superb.

The pastor expressed his appreciation of all services rendered. The addresses of R. D. Grier, Rev. C. A. Hill and Rev. Dr. Newton made a pleasing and profound impression.

All that participated in the Corner Stone laying may count themselves among the invited to the reopening exercises.

We do not know what we should have done without the seats loaned by the Salvation Army. Those seats helped to save the day.

Rev. Louis Randall, a former pastor did well the duty assigned him. May he have success in his work in Dorchester.

The press of the city deserves and has the hearty thanks of the church for the full and favorable references to the building enterprise.

Among the little ones whose names are placed in the box are those of Calvin Randall, Robert Waller, Victor Taylor, Minnie Adkins, Sam Adkins, Hugh Dickerson, Margaret Dickerson, Annie Dickerson, Thelma Brittingham, May Windsor, Wallace Powell, Nellie Shepard, Fulton Rounds, Elto Smith, Adeline Rounds.

Now if the church will throw to the wind its fears and with the assistance of its many friends pull together the success hoped for will be realized in good time.

Notice To Trustees and Patrons of Wicomico Public Schools.

The next Teachers' Institute will be held in Salisbury the week beginning September 18th. A call has been issued from a convention of District School Trustees and Patrons to be held on the afternoon of Wednesday, Sept. 17th, in the Court House with the view of stimulating the boards of trustees to some concerted effort in behalf of their schools. We often hear of meetings of other officials, professions, etc., but there could not be gathered together a more important body of men than these school officers, when you consider the interests intrusted to their care.

Several prominent speakers, among them the State Superintendent of Education, Dr. M. Bates Stephens, will make addresses and an effort will be made to have an exceedingly interesting and helpful meeting. It is sincerely hoped trustees and patrons will heartily concur in this undertaking to improve our schools by being present at this convention. Indeed, you cannot afford to miss it. It is a duty you owe to your constituents, the youth of this county. Then, if possible, let every school district in the county be represented by both trustee and patron.

"Trustee's Day" at the Court House, 2 o'clock, Wednesday afternoon, September 17th.

Yours for better public schools,

PRESIDENT MEETS SERIOUS ACCIDENT.

His Death Narrowly Averted in a Dangerous Carriage Wreck.

President Theodore Roosevelt was painfully injured, but not disabled, by an electric car crashing into his carriage Wednesday morning at Pittsfield, Mass.

The President's injuries consist of severe bruises to his right cheek and a general shock. His cheek is swollen and black and his right eye is almost closed.

William Craig, a Secret Service detective who was riding in the carriage with the President, was instantly killed while trying to save Mr. Roosevelt's life by warning the motorman to stop the car. David J. Pratt, driver of the carriage, had his shoulder dislocated and was bruised all over the body.

The other occupants of the carriage were George B. Cortelyou, secretary to the President, whose face and body were bruised; Gov. W. Murray Crane, of Massachusetts, and Representative George P. Lawrence, of the First Massachusetts district, who escaped with a slight shaking up.

Euclid Madden, motorman, and James Kelly, conductor of the car which ran into the President's carriage were arrested. When the President asked Madden why he was running the car in such a manner, the motorman answered:

"Because I had the right of way." The President called for the conductor of the car and said:

"This is the most damnable outrage I ever knew."

Mr. Roosevelt was brave and refused assistance, asking that those who needed help worse be looked after. He continued his trip, though he made no set speeches, but briefly announced to the waiting crowds the accident that had occurred. After a quick journey by rail through Western Massachusetts and Connecticut he arrived at Bridgeport, where he boarded the United States yacht Sylph and sailed to his home at Oyster Bay, Long Island.

A Washington dispatch states that the President will be asked to curtail the future trips he has planned. The view will be presented to him that he must be careful of his life for the sake of the nation, though personally he is averse to restrictions of this kind.

In Wall street there was a brief shock to the market, but normal conditions were easily restored.

The Salvation Army.

The services of the Salvation Army still continue to attract large audiences. The leader is an interesting speaker and the singing is greatly appreciated. The stereopticon scenes, depicting the great work of the army was a surprise to the large audience who attended. It is spoken of in the highest terms by all.

The army has become a world wide organization and is accomplishing a vast amount of good. Staff Captain Merriman, of Philadelphia, has been assisting the Brigade the past few days and the meetings have been of an interesting character. Adjutant Kemp in putting forth a special effort to accomplish good here, has secured the additional services of Colonel Gifford, the Provincial Commander of New York who will be assisted by Major Atkinson, the General Secretary. The Colonel and staff will arrive today, (Saturday) and will conduct a special three days campaign. There will be a reception and musical tonight and three special services on Sunday at 10:30 a.m. and 3 and 8 p.m. An interesting service will be held in the morning. It being a holiness meeting, the subject will be Sham Religion as a Conquering Christianity. Colonel Gifford will be the speaker. Major Atkinson will fan the flame at the afternoon service and at night the Colonel will deliver a thrilling address on Conscience. It is expected that these services will close the Army campaign here. This band of workers, because of their earnestness and zeal in the cause they represent, bear the respect of our citizens. The large crowds who have attended have been both pleased and edified.

A Good Thing Nevertheless.

An exchange is authority for the statement that the Pennsylvania Railroad will build a new passenger and freight station house in Easton and place it at the crossing of the Delaware & Chesapeake over the Baltimore, Chesapeake and Atlantic. Both the present stations will be done away with. The plans for the new station have been made, and the work will soon be begun. Agent N. E. Clark says he knows nothing of the matter.

POLITICAL DISCUSSION IN ALLEN.

Brother Wilson Tells the News to Brother Williams and Others.

"What's a gwinne on in the papers this week in a national way, Hiram?" asked Sam Williams of Hiram Wilson the other night at the postoffice.

We all knew that Sammie was interested as soon as he asked the question, for he fired a stream of tobacco juice a yard in length at a dog that lay in the door, quietly dozing in one eye. We also knew that Hiram was anxious to tell something.

"Everything's a gwinne on, Sammie," said Hiram, his under jaw working up and down on his tobacco like the pistonrod of a gasoline engine. "In the first place, the President's a gwinne to 'low Gin'ral Miles to go to the Fillypeens."

"The Lord be praised!" Sammie exclaimed reverently, "An' will he do any fitele while out there?" he asked.

"Thar' will not be a foute outen him," replied Hiram. "Let me tell ye all about it while ye keep easy. Rosyvelt, knowin' that the country was kinder upset at the way he had 'lowed a certain feller in the War Department, who is a Root shore enuff, to treat the Gin'ral, sent fer the old soljer one day last week an' sex to him, 'Nelse, do ye want to go to the Fillypeens?'"

"I do, yer onner" sex the Gin'ral. "I am just spilin' fer a fout with somethin' or somebody an' thank ye fer givin' me a chance to exercise myself."

"Now look here Nelse," sex the President, "this is not to be a fitein' trip fer yerself. Ye air to go fer me."

"I'll be blamed if I'll go then" sex the Gin'ral a little peppery.

Up jumps Rosyvelt, his hair a stand-in on e'er an' his teeth showin' like the upper an' lower keys of a pipe organ, an' roars out: "Ef ye don't go there I'll retire ye so dumb quick that ye won't know whether ye were in the army or on the police force."

"All right," sex poor Miles "I'll go."

"That's a good boy, Nelse," Teddy goes on to say, "an' I want ye to have a tearin' down time. Ye must tell everybody ye meet what a great man I am—a twentieth century wonder. Tell 'em I am a fitter from Fittersville. Yes sir, Nelse," an' here Teddy tore his hair an' turned a double somerset. "I am a fiter, an' when that's any fitele to be done I'm a gwinne to do it. I kin lick the hole world in a pair of minits, with a cupple of she bears hove in. An, Nelse, my boy, I have about five bu-hells of photographs I want ye to take long with ye an' hand out. They were took with me in different attitoods. Some have me a walkin', runnin', walkin' on my hands, standin' on my head, gettin' burnt eatin' a hot muffin, an' sayin' my prayers, but the most fetchin', fes!, Nelse, in the hole lot is whar I am a cussin' Syd Mudd over fed'ral appointments. Hand these out to everybody."

"I shall de so, yer onner" sex the Gin'ral.

"You may leave now, Nelse" sex Teddy. "The Honorable Booker T. Washington is in the adjoining room an' I don't care to have him see me talkin' with ye."

"An' a nuthe thing, they say the Presid'n is a gwinne to turn in an' help the gammin' in Delaware," Hiram con tinued.

"For gracious sakes," ejaculated Sammie. "I should think he'd be afeared to fool with gas. He mout get sophi-ticated."

"Blamed if he don't ef he fools with the Addicks gas" said Hiram. But ye don't understand Sammie. Addicks wants to go to the Senate. He's in the gas bizness an' rich. Everybody in Delaware is agin him but a few niggers an' convicts. He has by some hook or crook kep' Delaware out of her representashun in the upper house of Congress for some time. The President's got kinder tired of it an', thinks to do Delaware an' the country a service by turnin' in for Addicks. He better not impose that ill smellin' man on the country. He'll know time enuff anyway, when the roll is called what kinder advisers he has had. Grand had that kind of experience until the country rang with charges of fraud, robbery, Belknapery, Babcockery an' bullockery an' any President is liable to have a recrudescence of it do ye understand now, Sammie. Asold maz Dykes user'r say when givin' in his experience at class meetin', "A blind man tho' a fool oughter understand this."

I want to say to you folk, before I go home that our Republican candidate for Congress is a gwinne to di cuase last year's oyster bill that did'nt pass an' the rabbit law in this campaign, while next year candidates for the legis lachur an' county offices will talk on Cuban reciprocity, our commershul treaty with Chiny an' other questions that may arise within that time. No! I am not so much stuck on Rosyvelt. He's a gwinne to an' fro in the earth now like old sattan in the book of Job, trying to make everybody believe as he does. Goodnite, boys.

COUNTY CONVENTION.

The Democrats of Wicomico Assembled On Tuesday And Elected Delegates To Ocean City.

The Democratic County Convention to elect delegates to the Congressional Convention at Ocean City met in the Court room in Salisbury Tuesday at 10 o'clock. Every district in the County sent a full delegation and it was a noticeable feature of the convention that there were so many young men present as delegates. Mr. James T. Truitt called the convention together and stated its object. Nominations for presiding officers being order, Mr. F. L. Wailes was unanimously elected chairman and Mr. H. L. Brewington secretary. As there were no contests the committee on credentials was dispensed with and the delegates present were all allowed to be seated.

On motion, a committee on resolutions consisting of Elisha E. Twilley, King V. White and James E. Bacon was appointed by the Chair. This committee after being out a short time reported resolutions opposing the Protective Tariff Policy of the Republican party, urging the Ocean City Convention to adopt a platform in opposition to bribery and recommending to said convention Hon. James E. Ellegood as a suitable candidate to make the fight on such a platform. These resolutions were unanimously adopted.

In the selection of the delegates each district was allowed to choose its own man and one or two of the districts were allowed additional representation.

Sixteen delegates were chosen as follows: E. E. Jackson, (chairman) Wm. E. Sheppard, George W. Bell, J. Windsor Bounds, Willie Gillis, Geo. W. Messick, G. C. H. Larmore, Minos A. Davis, F. At the close of the convention the delegates were entertained at dinner at the Peninsula Hotel.

Mild Winter Predicted.

Here's prediction that will fall on the ears of the man whose coal bin is still empty, like the choicest music. Prof. C. E. Myron of the government weather department, says the great quantities of rain that have fallen in this country are due solely to the eruption of Mt. Pelee and other interior volcanic disturbances. He says that the summer season in this section will be prolonged until late in the fall. He also predicts a mild winter. His theory is that the volume of water which has fallen during May, June and July cannot be evaporated from the earth during the summer months and that the water being in the earth will hold the summer heat far into the winter. Truly there is balm for every ill.

Paid the Penalty.

Asbury Dixon, colored, was hanged at Snow Hill Friday, for the murder of his reputed wife, Lizzie Borden, last December. In a secluded spot in the woods on the almhouse farm, Sheriff Whalley sent the murderer to his doom by hanging. Twenty deputies who had been sworn in preserved order, keeping back the crowd. Dixon was recently baptized and slept well Thursday night. He was up early Friday morning and lost no time getting dressed. He ate a hearty breakfast and prayed fervently during the interval, until he bade all hands good bye and died soon after the drop. Dixon addressing the 800 spectators said rum had caused him to commit the crime.

BOOKS FOR GIRLS;

A Critic Who Declares There Are None Worth the Reading.

Where are the books for girls? Adults' books there are and books for boys by the carload, says Frank Norris in the Critic, but where is the book for the young girls? Boys' books, tales of hunting, adventure and sport, abound. They are good books, too, sane, "healthy," full of fine spirit and life. But the girl—what does she read? The feeblest, thinnest, most colorless luxuriations that it is given to the mind of misguided man to conceive or to perpetuate. It must be this or else the literature of the adult, and surely the novels written for mature minds, for men and women who have some knowledge of the world and powers of discrimination, are not good reading in any sense of the word for a sixteen-year-old girl in the formative period of her life.

But for all the great parade and prating of emancipated women it nevertheless remains a fact that the great majority of twentieth century opinion is virtually oriental in its conception of the young girl. The world today is a world for boys, men and women. Of all humans the young girl, the sixteen-year-old, is the least important, or at least so deemed. Wanted—a champion; wanted—the discoverer and poet of the very young girl. Unimportant she may now appear to you, who may yet call her by her first name without fear and without reproach. But remember this, you who believe only in a world of men and boys and women—the very young girl of today is the woman of tomorrow, the wife of the day after and the mother of next week. She only needs to put up her hair and let down her frocks to become a very important person indeed.

Meanwhile she has no literature; meanwhile, faute de mieux, she is trying to read Ouida and many other books intended for matured minds, or, worse than all, she is enfeebling her mind by the very thin gruel purveyed by the mild mannered gentlemen and ladies who write stories for girls. Here is a bad business; here is a field that needs cultivation. All very well to tend and train the saplings, the oaks and the vines. The flowers—they have not bloomed yet—are to be thought about too.

New England Dialect.

The professor of Latin in a New England school has until within six months claimed that stories of New England dialect were absurdly exaggerated, but a few months ago a living refutation of his views arrived in the person of a New Hampshire maiden of stern aspect who had been engaged for general housework.

The professor's study is a good sized room, and, as he is fond of plenty of air, he finds three windows and a door no more than sufficient to provide a current. When the new maid had been in the family a week, she passed through the hall one cool morning and stopped at the door of the study.

"Do you wish anything?" asked the professor, roused by a dry cough from the doorway.

"Well, I don't want to be forthputting," said the New Hampshire maiden in a firm but pleasant tone, "but it does seem as if you were setting in a complete draft. Don't you want the door clus or the windows shet or leastways the curtains drew?"—Youth's Companion.

Two Hours' Work a Day.

Dr. Alexander F. Chamberlain says in the Popular Science Monthly: "It has been argued that two hours' physical labor per diem would suffice to keep the whole world well supplied, so great has been the advance in labor saving machinery, methods of transportation, etc. Is it altogether unreasonable to suppose that two hours' intellectual work, under right conditions and with economic distribution of the product, would suffice to keep the whole world supplied here also? Two hours of every one's best would be something worth achieving, physically and intellectually. An end something like this is the ideal to which things are bound to tend. Some poet of the future may be able to sing, 'Better the new world hour than the long European day.' The racial nervousness of the American people, nonpathological in reality, is perhaps the groundwork for this achievement."

A Curious Incident.

A curious incident in the siege of Wepener is related by the chaplain who was present with the forces throughout those terrible days. The siege, it will be remembered, lasted all through holy week, and the casualties in the trenches were very numerous; but on Good Friday only one man was killed, and as this single victim of the holy day was being laid to rest at night a soldier pointed out to the chaplain the wonderful markings on the dead man's breast. There was tattooed a really beautiful picture of the crucifixion, and the bullet that had reached the heart of the soldier had pierced the heart of the figure of the Saviour.—London Globe.

The Shortest Sermon.

The shortest sermon on record was preached at Atlantic, Mich., on a recent Sunday. The pastor had been requested to make his discourse brief on account of the hot weather; so he announced as his text Luke xvi, 24, "And he cried and said, Father Abraham, have mercy on me and send Lazarus, that he may dip the tip of his finger in water and cool my tongue, for I am tormented in this flame." The sermon was as follows: "Three persons—Abraham, Lazarus. It was hot where Lazarus was. He wanted to get out. So do we. Let us pray."

A CONSECRATED PICTURE.

How It Affected a Model, the Artist and a Nobleman.

A poor Bohemian gypsy girl of remarkable beauty was employed by a German artist to sit for one of his "studies." In his studio she saw an unfinished painting of the crucifixion and asked him who "that wicked man" was and what he had done to deserve such a terrible punishment.

The artist smiled at her ignorance and told her that the man nailed to the cross was not wicked, but good above all good men in the world.

From that time her interest in the story of the cross never ceased. She was utterly untaught, and it was by her questions—that grudgingly answered by the painter, who had no real Christian sympathy—that she got her first knowledge of the Saviour of mankind. Noting her employer's lack of feeling, she said to him one day:

"I should think you would love him if he died for you."

The remark fastened itself in the artist's mind. The death of Christ had appealed to him as a pictorial tragedy. The divine life of Jesus had never touched him. The ignorant Bohemian girl had presented the subject to him in another way, and it would not let him rest till he sought religious counsel and ultimately became a servant and a worshiper of the Crucified.

Under the inspiration of a new love he finished the picture, and it was hung in the Dusseldorf gallery, with this inscription: "I did this for thee. What hast thou done for me?"

Some time afterward he met his former model there, weeping in front of the painting. This time he could speak to her as a Christian.

"Master," she said, "did he die for the poor Bohemian too?"

"Yes."

And the Man of Galilee had one disciple more.

A few months later, dying in a gypsy camp not far from the city, the girl sent for the artist and thanked him.

"I am going to him now," she said. "I love him and I know he loves me."

Years afterward a frivolous young nobleman looked on the same picture, and the study of it and the rebuking pathos of its inscription so moved and influenced him that he consecrated himself to the service of God. The young man was Count Zinzendorf, the founder of the Moravian church.

The benediction to the world of a noble and uplifting picture is but feebly measured by the few examples that ever attain publication. It can teach the ignorant, it can rebuke the immoral, it can inspire the devout and thoughtful, and it can preach the supreme truth which St. Paul declared to be his only message and his last enthusiasm.—Youth's Companion.

Crivelli's Painting of Christ.
Carlo Crivelli's famous painting of Christ, entitled "Deposition From the Cross," has been added to the picture galleries of the Museum of Fine Arts, on Copley square.

The painting was finished in 1485 and was brought to the museum from a private collection of paintings in Italy.

Three-fourths of the cost of the painting was paid by a contributor who refused to make his name known, while the museum paid the remainder of the study.

The painting is on a wooden panel and represents the dead Christ, the Blessed Virgin, St. John and Mary Magdalene. At the bottom on the frame is signed "Opus Carlo Crivelli, 1485."

At the top of the picture is a wreath of fruit.

The background of the painting is in gold, as is the dress of Mary Magdalene and the halo of the dead Christ.

The colors of the dresses are particularly bright.

Behind the body of Christ is hung an elaborately decorated piece of embroidery.—Boston Post.

America Always Leads.

If the people of England knew how beautiful the public buildings in the United States are and how superior American hotels are, the amount of travel to this country would be many times as great as it is at present," said a Londoner to an interviewer in Washington the other day. "I am on a tour of the world. When I landed in New York, I did not expect to find much of interest to me. That city was a series of surprises. Its modern buildings, with perfect elevator service and every convenience, made a great impression on me. I did not expect to find any buildings in this country which would compare with those of the old world in architecture, but a ride through the streets of Washington was enough to convince me that my ideas of America were very erroneous. The capitol, Congressional library and other government buildings are as beautiful as any buildings in the world, and their interiors surprise all Europeans. It takes the Yankee to equip a building with every possible convenience."

Where He Was Going.

The Rev. Dr. Swallow tells a story about George Alfred Townsend, who writes over the nom de plume of Gath.

"What does that name mean?" Dr. Swallow was asked by a young lady of his parish.

"Why, the letters are the author's initials," answered the clergyman—"G. A. Townsend."

"But what does the H stand for?" the other persisted.

"That's where he is going when he dies," came from the doctor.

The questioner was visibly impressed.

"Is he such a very bad man?" she asked, almost in a whisper.

"Certainly not," replied Dr. Swallow.

"The H stands for heaven."—New York Times.

Letter to Bradley & Turner.

Dear Sirs: Lead and oil is no longer the paint to be prosperous with.

As everybody knows, lead and oil chalks or powders off in about three years—three years is its limit.

Painters are putting a little zinc in their lead to make it tough; it lasts a good three years with a little zinc.

But painters don't like the job of mixing zinc. It's a tedious job, and, both being white, nobody knows when the mixing is thorough. It gets half mixed; and the paint goes on, a streak of lead and a streak of zinc. That is not good work.

The mistake made is in trying to do by hand what is better done by machinery. Hand-work can't compete with machine-work.

Devos lead and zinc is your paint. It wears twice as long as lead and oil.

This reduces the cost of keeping a house well painted to half.

Yours truly,

F. W. DEVOS & CO.

THE WORK OF THE OCEAN CITY CONVENTION.

The Democratic Convention which convened at Ocean City last Thursday, adopted a platform which every voter in the District clearly understood when it nominated Hon. James E. Ellegood of this county as its candidate for Congress. There is no mistaking the issue.

Mr. Ellegood has been known for years as the most prominent exponent in the state of the Anti-bribery movement. He is an able, sincere, honest exponent of the cause, as well as an able lawyer, and a citizen that would do credit to the state as a Representative in Congress. It goes without saying that in the selection of Mr. Ellegood the District has tired of bribery and decided to make a supreme effort to lessen it. It has grown to such appalling proportions that every one feels that something must be done to lessen it.

The ADVERTISER at the very beginning of the campaign has some suggestions to make as to the conduct of the Campaign. In the first place, it is perfectly useless to spend two months on the stump discussing the evils of bribery when everybody concedes them.

On the other hand let us assume that everybody recognizes it as an evil, and go directly to the question of methods to abate it. In so doing we had as well recognize the fact that it is perfectly use less to make any effort to treat with our opponents, as such methods have been tried over and over again to no purpose. It is too much like the position of a certain Western Railroad president once in conference with his brother presidents of the West, trying to arrange a "gentlemen's agreement" on freight rates. He said there was not one of them he would not trust in any personal relations of life, but there was not one of them, as a railroad official he would trust with his watch. We want no gentlemen's agreement in this matter, because each party will mistrust the other. What we want is the enforcement of the law. There is ample law upon the statute books to meet to the penitentiary every man engaged in vote buying, we only need the evidence of the offense. There are enough people who are heartily in sympathy with the cause, in the Congressional district to collect the evidence in any effort made to violate the law.

All that is needed is an organization of prominent citizens determined to see that the law is enforced, and it will be done. Hersin lies the path of Mr. Ellegood's campaign. Waste no time discussing the subject; too much has already been spent on that. Go directly to the subject of organizing Anti-bribery, vigilance committees in every voting precinct in the Congressional District, and when the organization is completed we can all tell what it is worth. If it has the intelligence and strength that such a cause merits, it will surely succeed, because no vote buyer is going to take the chances of a term in the penitentiary for his day's work. But if this help cannot be enlisted, then the cause must fail. It will mean that the people of the District are indifferent to suppression of the evil. But we do not believe that they are, because the delegates to that convention which met at Ocean City Thursday were fresh from the people and unquestionably represent their constituents. It is very evident that the convention intended to make the suppression of bribery the platform to go before the people on and a victory on this platform will be the most signal that has been won in the state for years. If the proper methods are pursued it can be accomplished; on the other hand a defeat would be most ominous to the state and humiliating to the intelligence and manhood of the First Congressional District.

We repeat; what we want in this campaign is legal action, no waste of time on sentimentalities or glittering generalities. Every believer in suppressing bribery must show his faith by his works if the task is to be accomplished.

In introducing the serenaders of Mr. Ellegood at the home of the latter last Thursday evening, Mr. N. T. Fitch declared that Mr. Ellegood stood for "Purity in politics, Honesty in elections and Integrity in all the relations of life."

KEENE FAVORS GOOD ROADS.

Mr. James R. Keene, the Wall street veteran, who has just returned from Europe has the following to say on good roads:

"If Americans would stay at home and spend here the money that they spend abroad, in five years we would have the richest country the world has ever seen. Let Americans develop their own watering places and see their own country."

"Good roads will bring to America a large degree of prosperity. All the roads in France now are as good as our roads in Central Park. The Frenchman journeys about his own land by automobile, trap or other vehicle, sees and appreciates his country and spends his money there. Let us have such roads in America and the benefits will be everlasting."

"Take the case of the farmer. He now carries a ton of grain on a wagon drawn by two horses. With good roads he could move four tons with the same outfit."

Tax Collections.

More than one third of the taxes for 1902 collectable for state and county purposes in this county have already been received and received for by county Treasurer Todd and his assistant Mr. Robt. G. Robertson, at their office in the Court House. That is to say more than $10,000 of the $36,000 collectable was paid over to the treasurer between the time the levy was declared in June and the 1st of September.

The new law would thus seem to be working satisfactorily. Taxes are becoming more promptly collected and at a smaller cost, the money being paid directly by the people into the hand of the treasurer, is immediately available to meet current expenses, redeem outstanding obligations, and in every way economize and systematize the business of the county.

The Heroism of Missionaries.
There is much heroism of the most apparent sort where missionaries are handed faced wild mobs of savage people and quell them by their presence, as in Armenia during the last seven years.

Not infrequently they have been overcome by the savage multitudes, as in China during the last two years. But perhaps the highest heroism has been displayed at times of pestilence, scourge and plague, when the people die by thousands, and only the missionary is at hand to give counsel and help. There is no doubt that it requires more heroism to face a pestilence than it does to meet a mob. In one case the blood boils and the heart is nerves by the attendant excitement, while in the other case there is only silent despair in the darkness of the night, with death on all sides lurking in the darkness, ready to strike in the back whomever it will. Every year missionaries not a few fall victims to the smallpox, cholera or plague, yet whoever heard of missionaries running away from it?—Woman's Home Companion.

The Dutch Queen's Wealth.
The Queen of Holland is among the richest of royal personages. Part of her enormous fortune belongs to the crown, while the rest is her private property. The royal estates in Holland and the east, which includes the Dutch East Indies, are also of great value. On her marriage with Prince Henry the young queen set aside 200,000 marks, the arrangement being that the interest, which is nearly $150,000 a year, will be at his own disposal, while the capital is, apparently, to pass to the younger children of the marriage. If there are no children, Prince Henry is to have absolute power of disposing by will of 5,000,000 marks, while the remainder will eventually revert to the queen's estate.

Clerical Repartees.
During one of Bishop Potter's parochial visits there happened to be a number of young deacons in the vestry room before service. One of them, who was rather talkative, remarked, "See, bishop, in the benediction there is mention of you," pointing to the words, "O all ye priests of the Lord, bless ye the Lord," etc., "but there is nothing said about us deacons. I don't think it is quite fair."

"Oh, yes, there is," quietly replied the bishop. "Here it is: 'O all ye green things upon the earth, bless ye the Lord!'"

Where Had He Met Him?
The Rev. Dr. Dwight M. Seward, "the bishop of the coast," was fond of telling of a clergyman who spent his summer in the Adirondacks in a settlement at the southern end of Saranac lake. The clergyman cultivated the genial habit to a degree and would dispense greetings to every one as he walked along the street. The simple country folk could not quite understand the good man's cordiality. On one occasion he had bowed most heartily to a noted barroom character of the town, who was plainly much surprised by the attention. He watched the retreating figure of the clergyman in a troubled way. Finally he turned to a group of friends and said, "Now, where in blazes have I met that man?"—New York Tribune.

SHORTHAND AND TYPEWRITING TAUGHT.

Winning by Losing.

Several years ago an American contractor cast eyes upon a certain contract on the Nikolsky railway. Not being able to obtain it by fair means, he went on a beautiful cloudless day to the personage who had control of the contract, taking with him a huge umbrella. In reply to the personage's remark that there was no danger of rain the contractor offered to bet 100,000 rubles that it would be pouring within half an hour. The offer was accepted. At the end of the half hour the sky was still cloudless, the sun was shining even more beautifully. The contractor therefore lost the bet, but he got the contract.

The Story of One Verdict.

The other day, when the jury in a murder trial in the Louisville courts had retired to their room, the foreman said: "Gentlemen, this is a serious case we have to decide. A man's life may be forfeited by our decision. How many Christians are among us?" Nine men raised their hands. "Will one of you pray?" asked the foreman. One of the oldest jurors said he would do his best. All knelt, and a most earnest and impressive prayer was offered. Balloting was then begun. Several jurors were in favor of a life sentence and others for terms as short as eight years. The jury finally agreed on eighteen years.

Honesty Paid.

Earl Fitzwilliam, father of the earl of that name who died recently, was regarded as an excellent landlord. One day a farmer went to him with the complaint that the earl's fox hunters had ruined a field of wheat. The earl gave him $200 by way of payment for the damage. Later in the year the farmer returned the money, saying that the wheat had turned out well after all. Thereupon Earl Fitzwilliam drew a check for $500 and handed it to the man, saying: "This is as things should be 'twixt man and man. When your eldest son comes of age give him this and tell him how and why you got it."

Pure Spices!

The word spice has become synonymous with whatever gives flavor, aids rest, or makes life a pleasure. Spices are not to be classified, it is true, among the necessities of life. We can get along without them just as well as we can get along without music or perfume, etc., but what would life be worth without spices of some kind in stimulating the appetite, improving the flavor of food, and in many cases rendering it more wholesome and digestible. Spices, like many other food products, are adulterated. The adulterated spices are not good for pickling and preserving, and they may cause you to lose lots of your canned goods. If you want the pure and unadulterated spices, strictly high grade, get them at

Do You Retail
Things in Here?

Do you retail things in here? asked a man as he stepped into Lacy Thoroughgood's store Saturday (during Thoroughgood's 69c Shirt Sale). When Thoroughgood got time to assure him that he did a retail business, he went back to his carriage and brought in a handsome fox terrier and said, My wife says that it is no longer fashionable to CUR-TAIL a fox terrier's tail, and this one was shortened before the style changed, she wanted me to get it RETAILED, and when I asked her where to get it done she said, anywhere where they do such things, so I looked for a retail sign. Styles do change in most everything, especially Men's Hats. Lacy Thoroughgood has all his New Fall Hats ready to show you. Now to say that Thoroughgood handles the best men's Hats sold in Salisbury, is an indisputable fact to anyone who has ever entered his store doors. Repeatedly hat buyers find at Thoroughgood's just the hat they were looking for, and often tell Thoroughgood that they failed to find them elsewhere. Every hat that goes out of Thoroughgood's store is the highest type of that article produced. Compare it with other hats and its quality and grace will stand out, unequalled. Everybody is talking about the style of Thoroughgood's New Fall Hats. It's a hobby of Thoroughgood's to do something out of the ordinary in the matter of style and value giving. Look in Thoroughgood's show windows. See for yourself the handsome hats displayed there. A glance will convince you.

HANDICAPPED.

The man who started to run a race in chains and letters would be visibly handicapped. No one would expect him to succeed. The man who runs the race of life when his digestive and nutritive organs are diseased is equally handicapped. In the one case his strength is over-weighted, in the other it is undermined. Success demands above all else a sound stomach.

Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery cures diseases of the stomach and other organs of digestion and nutrition. When this is done food is perfectly digested and assimilated and the body receives strength in the only way in which strength can be given—by the nutrition derived from digested and assimilated food.

"The praise I would like to give your 'Golden Medical Discovery' I cannot utter in words or describe with pen," writes James B. Ambrose, Esq., of Douglassville, Pa. "I am well with what our physicians here said was indigestion. I doctored with the best around here and found no relief. I wrote to you and you sent me a question blank to fill out, and I did so. You sent me a prescription. Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery I took three bottles and I felt so good that I stopped, being cured. I have no symptoms of gastric trouble or indigestion now."

Accept no substitute for "Golden Medical Discovery." There is nothing "just as good."

Dr. Pierce's Common Sense Medical Adviser, sent free on receipt of stamp to cover expense of mailing only. Twenty-one one-cent stamps for the book in paper covers, or 31 stamps for the cloth-bound volume. Address Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y.

TALMAGE SERMON

By Rev.
FRANK DE WITT TALMAGE, D.D.
Pastor of Jefferson Park Presbyterian Church, Chicago

Chicago, Aug. 31.—Sound advice in view of the uncertainty of life is given in this sermon by Rev. F. De Witt Talmage on the text Isaiah xxxviii, 1, "Set thine house in order, for thou shalt die."

I am going to stay aboard this planet as long as I can. When the time comes for me to die, I believe sufficient grace will be given to me with which to die. But I have never felt less like dying than at the present time. My home was never so happy, my friends never more kind, my work never more absorbing. Present earthly life is inexpressibly sweet to me. I feel in reference to it a great deal as did Christopher North, the physical and literary athlete, who, with his friends and children, used to race over the heather of old Scotland, his yellow curls a-flying in the winds, singing and shouting as he ran, because he was bubbling over with joy and animal spirits. I am in love with the world because I like the people who are in it.

But, though earthly life may be a priceless boon to some people as well as to myself, yet there must come to all a time when we shall have to die. Perhaps, like Hezekiah of my text, who besought God by prayer to increase his earthly day, we may be able to prolong our existence ten, fifteen or even twenty years by rigidly obeying the well tested physical laws of health. Dio Lewis, the great lecturer upon hygiene, once declared that every normal healthy child born into the world ought to live to be at least 100 years old. He asserted that nearly all the members of the human race do not live out half their earthly life because they do not eat the right kind of food, wear the proper clothing and take the proper amount of exercise.

But though the longevity of the human race might be increased to 100 or even 200 years, though the present generation might be able to reach the two hundredth and fiftieth milestone which marks the highway of life's journey instead of only the twentieth or fiftieth or seventieth milestone, yet for every man and woman there must come at last an end to earthly existence. The Bible distinctly and emphatically states it. All history proves it. Though Dio Lewis himself rigidly practiced the laws of health which his keen and far reaching intellect framed; though he ate just enough food to replenish the amount of waste tissue; though he wore the proper clothing and daily took the proper amount of physical exercise, yet Dio Lewis himself had to die. So the same words of warning which the prophet Isaiah brought to the sick ruler in the ancient Jerusalem palace I bring to you. They are just as pertinent for the present generation as they were to the Hebrews who lived nearly 3,000 years ago.

The First Steps Necessary.

In anticipating his earthly demise a common sense man should in the first place set his temporal house in order. That means he should, if necessary, get his life insured. He should make out his last will and testament. He should appoint the executors of his estate, and the future guardian of his children. He should explain the details of his business and invest his money in such a manner as that his executors can easily carry out his plans. He should train up his children or his lieutenants so that they may carry on his work after he is dead. He should, if desirable, buy his family plot and make all arrangements for the last resting place of himself and his loved ones. We have contempt for the man who has so little interest in the temporal welfare of his wife and children that he will not make a last will and testament.

"But, Mr. Talmage," answers some one, "I would do as you say, but I am very superstitious about this matter of making a will. I intend to make a will and fix up my temporal affairs when I feel that my life is drawing to an earthly close, but not now. I have always superstitionally felt that when a man makes his last will and testament he will certainly die before the year is out. Therefore I want to postpone making my will as long as possible."

Although I am, comparatively speaking, a young man, yet I have had a great deal of experience in sickrooms and by deathbeds, and, my brother, I want to warn you: as a friend that is all probability when you come to die you will not have any time to fix up your estate and make an intelligent will and last testament. In all probability you will be in such physical and mental weakness that you will not have enough strength to do anything else but lie in your bed and murmur a few words of farewell until you are gone. Therefore, my brother, what you want to do in reference to setting your temporal house in order through the influence of your last will and testament you had better do right away. When death comes, your brain may be too feeble to plan and your fingers too trembling to hold a pen.

Furthermore, my friend, that statement of yours about being superstitious in reference to making a will is very foolish. It is as foolish as the superstition some people have about sitting east of thirteen at a table or looking at the new moon over the wrong shoulder or carrying a newborn babe downstairs before he is carried upstairs. It is so foolish that I am surprised it should be anywhere entertained among intelligent people. You will not die because you make your last will and testament, but you ought to make your last will and testament in reference to your temporal affairs because your death is inevitable. "Set thine house in order."

A Question Answered.

"But, Mr. Talmage," says some other, "what is the good of making a last will and testament? I have nothing to leave except the few clothes in my wardrobe, and there are not many of them. I am a clerk on a comparatively small salary. I live up to the last cent of my income, and I cannot afford to insure my life for the benefit of my children."

My brother, that is a very brave and frank statement to make. You say it is useless for you to make a last will and testament because you have nothing to leave and you cannot afford to even get your life insured. If you, a great, big, strong man, are having such a hard time to make a living, what will you physically weak wife do with a brood of little ones strapped upon her back when you are dead? If it is so hard for you to swim in the current of life and keep your head above the waters, how will she, a poor widow, be able to do it when your strong arm is gone? Will the world be kinder to her than it is to you? Has the cruel world ever been any gentler or extended a more helpful hand to a wife and mother who is left a poverty stricken widow than it has for you?

Mark you, for what most men foolishly squander every year, for the money they spend for cigars and luxuries, for theater tickets, fishing excursions and baseball games, clubs and parties, they could get their lives insured for enough, and more than enough, to support and educate their children long after they are dead.

Furthermore, my brother, if you are not willing to economize in your selfish indulgences for the physical maintenance and mental development of your children by insuring your life, then your professed love for your wife and children is a mere insincere profession of the lips and not of the heart. "Set thine house in order."

"But," I hear some one saying, "the temporal aspects of this text do not affect me at all. I do not have to get my life insured. I am not poor. I am one of the wealthiest merchants of this city. I am building up a fortune, which is growing larger every day. If my wife or children wish to buy anything, all that they have to do is to go down to the city stores and charge the same to me. I pay for all their luxuries without a murmur. Besides that, I have made a last will and testament and left them everything."

Yes; your statement may be all true. But, my successful merchant friend, have you literally set your temporal house in order? Have you taken your wife into your business confidence so that she knows your plans and ideas? Have you ever made her your business confidant so that she would be able to take care of the money and the business after you are dead? Have you taught her the difference between the stability of a government bond and a Wall street speculation in stocks? Have you ever taught her the necessity of taking a receipt? Why, the wife and the mother of your children may be as helpless as a little child in reference to business matters after you are dead. She might be so helpless that the executors could swindle her out of her money as easily as you could cheat in business a five-year-old lad. Leave your wife sense as well as cents; leave her brains as well as bonds. "Set thine house in order."

Make Wise Provisions.

One of the dearest friends of our family some years ago was left a widow with $300,000. Her executor persuaded her to invest the same in railroad stocks so that she might have a million dollars. She went into Wall street and speculated. Today she is absolutely penniless. Make no such mistake in reference to your wife as that husband made in reference to his wife, who was our family friend. The old proverb trenchantly teaches that "any fool can make money, but it takes a very wise man to keep it." When you set your temporal house in order, see that your loved ones will be able to care for the money which you will bequeath them. See that the money which you will leave will not be able to slip through their fingers as water can run through a sieve.

But my text has wider scope than the mere fixing up of the temporal house. In anticipating his earthly demise a common sense man should set his spiritual as well as his temporal house in order. He should prepare for his own eternal journey over the river of death, besides looking after the temporal interests of the members of the household he is going to leave behind.

Unless a man has taken a long journey away from home, a journey which runs up into the months and perhaps into the years, he can have no conception of the immense amount of preparation necessary. In the first place, he must get his letter of credit drawn up and signed. It would be practically impossible to start on a journey around the world, as I did some years ago, and carry enough gold and silver with you to pay all your necessary expenses.

Why, the gold and silver would be as heavy as a sackful of lead. Besides, the gold and silver that are stamped in the American mint would not be acceptable in foreign lands. Every country has its own system of national currency. Further, if a traveler should be weighed down with a sackful of gold he would in all probability be waylaid by some thief and murderer and slain for his gold. So it is the custom of the traveler about to start on a long journey to buy a letter of credit. He pays to the cashier of any one of our great American banking houses, like Brown Bros. or J. P. Morgan & Co., a certain amount of money. That bank gives him a letter of credit, and he can get the money noted in the letter of credit cashed by the agents of that bank in almost every city of the world. If you are going into any dangerous region it is also very important for you to have a passport. This passport, signed by the secretary of state at Washington, is a notification that you are an American citizen. If any foreign nation insults or maltreats that nation will have to answer for the insult to the United States government.

Getting an Eternal Passport.

Now, my friend, as you have to take an eternal journey, as perhaps in the very near future you will have to leave this old planet and go into the endless life beyond, what spiritual preparation have you made for the momentous embarkation? Have you made the proper spiritual preparation for the journey which shall take you into a country where you would like to live through endless eternity, where you would like to live until time itself shall be no longer? Have you in readiness for this eternal journey a letter of credit made out at the Bank of Divine Grace? Have you an eternal passport written in red ink—written in the blood which flowed out of the wounded side of a dying and agonizing Christ? If you have not such a letter of credit, you are ill prepared, you are lost indeed, even though in this world you had all the wealth of a Rothschild, a Vanderbilt, a Rockefeller or an Astor, even though you once on earth lived in as magnificent a mansion as did Dives of old, at whose gate the dogs were licking the sores of a dying beggar. Shrouds have no pockets, and a skeleton's bony fingers can hold no gold, and all your worldly riches will then be but dross, which you cannot carry with you on that last journey. But, if you have the letter of credit of divine grace and the passport stamped with the crimson seal of Calvary, then the long journey will be accomplished safely, and the gates of the New Jerusalem will be opened unto you, no matter how financially poor you may have been on earth, because you are pleading there for admittance in Christ's name.

Henry Clews tells us that when old Cornelius Vanderbilt, the richest man of his day, lay dying, turning his back upon his $90,000,000 as though he had been the poorest outcast in the street, he had to ask his Christian wife to pray for him and sing one of the old Christian hymns which she had learned in her father's house. May we, one and all, never make the mistake of the aged millionaire made in trying to fix up our divine passport at the last moment. May we, long before our earthly demise, apply at the Bank of Grace for a letter of credit which will successfully carry us through the dark days when we are dying and be sufficient for us until we realize the bright and triumphant advent of a heavenly welcome.

The Long, Long Journey.

The simile of death as a long journey from the faintly tinside is very striking. When a man takes a long earthly journey, he is very apt to gather his family about him and say, "If I should take this journey, in all probability I will return home at such and such a time," or if the father is going into a new country to establish another home he says to his children: "After I am settled there and find everything all right you can sell the goods and pack up and come to me. I will be in such and such a place at such and such a time." Or perhaps the man who is about to take a long journey will do as my father and myself did when we started on our journey around the world. We were to set sail from San Francisco and go by the way of the Sandwich Islands, Samoa, Australia and India. It was a long, hard journey, and mother was physically unable to undertake it. So father said: "Mother, you take the two girls and go to Europe and meet Frank and myself as we come around the world. Meet us either at Brindisi or in Paris or London." So mother set sail from New York and went east. Father and myself set sail from San Francisco, going west. We were all to meet by a preconcerted plan at the French capital.

My brother, as you must take this long journey through the valley of the shadow of death with the divine passport in your hands, how can you ever expect to rejoin your loved ones unless you make previous arrangements with them where to meet? Having a letter of credit at the Bank of Grace, you say you expect to journey to the celestial City. Have you ever told your loved ones about that city? Have you ever told them how to get to that center of the universe? Have you ever told them there is only one way to reach your destination, and that is for them to obtain forgiveness of their sins by the blood of the Lamb, so that their heavenly advent shall be made possible? If it is important for you to make spiritual preparations for the journey of death by being washed in the Saviour's blood, is it not just as important for your loved ones to be cleansed by the same blood? You should tell your loved ones how they can be cleansed from sin as surely as the guide, many years ago, told the traveler how his body could be cleansed as he became covered over with a swarm of leeches when he was fording a shallow river in Burma. In horror the foreigner began to pull them off, for the vampires were draining away his life's strength. But the guide bade him cease or he would destroy himself. Then the guide prepared a bath in which he diluted some herbs, the juices of which were fatal to the life of the leech. Then he directed the traveler to lie down in the prepared waters, and immediately his body was freed from the vile aquatic worms. Have you ever told your loved ones that the only way they can meet you in heaven is by bathing themselves in the blood of the Lamb, so that the fatal worm of sin which is sucking at their hearts shall fall off and die?

SHARTOWN

W. N. Cannon and family have moved back to Delmar. Mr. Cannon came here a few years ago and engaged in the drug business and made many warm personal friends and his removal is a matter of regret.

The Eastern Shore Trust Co. organized a branch here on Saturday last with A. W. Robinson president and S. J. Cooper, B. P. Gravener, W. D. Gravener, J. W. Covington of this town, J. S. Cooper of Columbia, Del., and O. N. Bennett of Riveron directors. John O. The bank will open on September 15, which was as early as the outfit could be gotten ready, and the room put in order. The bank will be opened in one of the handsome rooms of S. J. Cooper & Son's large store building on Main Street, the room formerly occupied by W. N. Cannon as drug store.

W. H. Knowles of this town and Knowles & Ross of Galstown are getting all the tomatoes they can use and are several hundred baskets behind, and will run of nights if the rush continues. The growers are living up to their agreement and are furnishing tomatoes as they agreed at eleven cents per basket and Knowles furnish bass kets. With many the agreement was only verbal but it is being lived up to notwithstanding the inducements in the way of higher prices.

Ned R. Bounds' new handsome drug store on Main Street is nearing completion and when done will be an ornament of beauty, interior and exterior. Young Plants

Every farmer knows that some plants grow better than others. Soil may be the same and seed may seem the same but some plants are weak and others strong.

And that's the way with children. They are like young plants. Same food, same home, same care but some grow big and strong while others stay small and weak.

Scott's Emulsion offers an easy way out of the difficulty. Child weakness often means starvation, not because of lack of food, but because the food does not feed.

Scott's Emulsion really feeds and gives the child growing strength.

Whatever the cause of weakness and failure to grow—Scott's Emulsion seems to find it and set the matter right.

MRS. WALTER B. MILLER.

Her Untimely Death Brings Deep Grief To Her Family And Friends.

Mrs. Walter B. Miller died at her home, on Walnut Street, this city, at midnight Thursday, after an illness of about twelve hours. She was in her usual good health Thursday morning, and, in company with her sister, Miss Irma Graham, enjoyed a pleasant buggy ride. Returning to her home about 11 o'clock she was shortly afterward seized with hemorrhage, and gradually sank until death came at midnight. The grief occasioned by her untimely and unexpected death is not confined to the devoted husband, aged mother and affectionate brothers and sisters, but is keenly felt by scores of friends.

Mrs. Miller was the second daughter of Mrs. Louisa A. Graham and the late Col. Samuel A. Graham. She was educated and accomplished, and from childhood had possessed many attractive qualities of heart and mind. Here was a lovely Christian character.

Miss Louisa M. Graham was united in marriage to Mr. Walter B. Miller, January 22d, 1889. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Marvin J. Echols, then pastor of Wicomico Presbyterian Church, at the home of the bride's parents, Camden Avenue.

The happiness of their married life has been marred only by the death in infancy of their two children, William and Dorothy.

In order that members of the family distant from Salisbury may be present Mrs. Miller's remains will be interred next Monday. The funeral services will be held at the house at 11 o'clock on that morning. The interment will be in the Graham lot in Parsons cemetery.

Roster of Salisbury Schools.

The list of teachers for the Salisbury schools is now complete. Prof. S. King White, who was recently granted a life certificate by the State Board of Education, has decided to quit teaching and the vacancy in the High School force caused by his resignation has been filled by the promotion of Prof. Huntington and the transfer of Prof. Virgil Ward from the Principalship of the Delmar Grammar School to the Salisbury High School. The resignation of Prof. White causes much regret among the parents and pupils with whom he is very popular.

Miss M. Edith Bell, another of the Salisbury teachers, is now visiting in the West and will not resume the work this autumn. Her school has been supplied by a system of promotions and appointments. The full roster of the Salisbury schools is as follows: High school, Profs. Wm. J. Holloway; Walter H. Huntington and Virgil Ward; sixth grade, Miss Stella W. Dorman; fifth grade, Misses Alice Toadvine and Faulah White; fourth grade, Misses Daisy Bell and Maggie Anderson; third grade, Misses Mildred Dougherty and Mabel Waller; second grade, Misses Ade Scott and Elizabeth Woodcock; first grade, Misses Mary Cooper Smith and L. Cora Gillis. Manual Training department, Prof. Chas. L. Oswald of New York.

Services At Old Church.

Bishop Coleman will make his annual Fall visitation to Christ Church, Broad Creek, Thursday, Sept. 18th. The services will occupy the day as follows:

Holy Communion, 10.15 a.m.

Morning Prayer, 11 a. m., with sermon.

Meeting of "Christ Church League," 2.30 p. m.

Evening Prayer with sermon, 3 p. m.

The collections taken at these services will be for the repair of the old church and it is earnestly hoped that they may be liberal. By former collections and the contributions of "Christ Church League" a new roof is being put upon the church and other improvements made, but much remains to be done to preserve and utilize the venerable building. Full explanations be given at the services on the 18th. All are cordially invited.

Tolchester Plantation Sold.

John W. Woodsdale, of Philadelphia, through Messrs. Coagriff & Beck, of Smyrna, has sold the Tolchester Plantation to Messrs. Wm. B. Usilton & Sons, of Chestertown, for $25,000. This tract of land comprises 1,000 acres, adjoining the Tolchester resort, has a frontage of a mile on Chesapeake Bay, elegant buildings and the land is under a high state of cultivation. The sale includes not only the 1,000 acres of land but also the present crops. The new owners take charge of the property at once. Mr. Woodsdale paid $40,000 for this property.

THE BOARD OF BISHOPS.

Those of the Methodist Episcopal Church Will Meet in Wilmington in October.

The semi annual meeting of the Board of Bishops of the Methodist Episcopal Church will be held in Grace Church, Wilmington, beginning Wednesday evening, October 29th, and continuing five days.

At this meeting the dates of the conference sessions to be held next spring will be selected and the assignment of the bishops to preside over the conferences will be made. The board will hold two meetings daily, which will be secret.

Seventeen active bishops and probably two retired bishops will be present. Bishop Moore is likely to be the only absentee.

The bishops will be given a reception in Grace Church Friday evening. October 31st.

On Sunday, November 2d, the bishops will occupy the pulpits of the Wilmington churches.

It has been over 25 years since the Board of Bishops met in Wilmington. The fact that the Church Extension Committee will meet in Philadelphia immediately after the session of the Board of Bishops in a large measure caused the bishops to select Wilmington as their next meeting place. The selection of that city as the place for the meeting is considered a great honor for Wilmington.

The Wilmington M. E. Preachers Association at its meeting last Monday invited the Board of Bishops to meet there, extending the invitation on behalf of the Methodists of Wilmington, and Presiding Elder Watt has received from Bishop Fitz Gerald, the secretary of the board, the bishops' acceptance of the invitation.

OYSTERS AT $1 10 A BUSHEL.

Good Varieties Are In Demand, And Dealers Wished For More.

Oysters sold in Baltimore Thursday at $1.10 a bushel.

The demand was excellent and the commission merchants said that more could have been sold than were taken to port. The price given was for the finest varieties. Some of the less desirable oysters sold for 65 cents.

Since the season opened the weather in the Chesapeake bay has seldom given the tongers a fair chance. Wednesday was a good day for them, and as a result 35 or 40 schooners went to Baltimore Thursday morning with cargoes averaging about 200 bushels each.

Captains of oyster vessels say that the season is to a early to predict the yield. All indications, however, point to the conclusion that the oyster, both in numbers and quality, will compare favorably with the bivalves of previous years.

The arrivals in Baltimore Thursday outnumbered those of any previous day of the season. The tongers were jubilant of the conditions prevailing in the Baltimore market, where most of the early oysters are consumed.

Interesting Lecture.

A lecture on Japan, the Country, the people and their strange customs and manners, their ancient religion and modern progress will be delivered by Dr. J. C. C. Newton in the Sunday School Hall at Trinity M. E. Church, South, next Monday evening at eight o'clock.

Dr. Newton resided many years in Japan, and is the author of a History of the Japanese nation and is therefore qualified to speak of that strange people whose history is remarkable.

Tickets, adults, 25 cents; children, 15 cents. The proceeds are for benefit of Sustentation Fund of Miss Coffee, Missionary to China.

Immense Audience.

A new record was made in the attendance at Ulman's Opera House on Thursday evening when the Farce Comedy, Peck's Bad Boy was presented. So great was the crowd that for the first time in the history of the Opera House the sale of admission tickets was stopped at 8.15 o'clock, fifteen minutes before the play began. Messrs. Ulman say that over 800 tickets were sold and given out. There wasn't a vacant seat in the house and a large number stood during the entire evening. The performance itself was hardly up to what had been expected. The members of the company were evidently acting in new roles and at times the play was inclined to drag.

LAWS AS TO SHIPMENT OF GAME.

Department Of Agriculture Issues Valuable Circular.

The United States Department of Agriculture has issued a circular defining the laws regarding the shipment of game. The following notes are taken from it:

Robins, swallows, cedar birds, meadow larks, flickers, night hawks or bats, and a few other insectivorous species, as well as such birds as long-spurs, snow buntings and shore larks, which are useful in destroying seeds of weeds, are occasionally killed as game. They are, however, generally protected, and under no circumstances should be sent to market or shipped out of the State.

Statutes even more stringent than those protecting game birds have recently been enacted by many States for the preservation of birds which are not included in the game list. Under these statutes birds which are in demand for millinery purposes are protected throughout the year, and sale and possession, as well as killing, are prohibited.

It should be remembered that the principal centers for millinery supplies are nearly all located in States which have such laws, and the purchase of native songbirds, as well as of herons, pelicans, guulls, terns, or sea swallows, grebes, or other plume birds, should be avoided.

The shipment of these birds or any part of their plumage is prohibited by the provisions of the Federal law. Ostrich feathers are not subject to these restrictions and their use should be encouraged.

Barlow And Wilson's Minstrels.

There was a gathering of minstrel lovers that packed the Opera House to the doors last night, that assembled to pay court to Barlow and Wilson's Minstrels, as they appeared on their annual engagement. The performance consisted entirely of modern minstrel attractions.

The people went to witness the fin de siècle minstrels of the season, and found them leaders by several lengths, for everything went fast enough to keep the most lively on the qui vive. Their efficient agent told the truth when he said that the company was better this year than ever before. The performance abounds in new features, which kept the audience in a continual state of hilarity, the hit of the evening being made by "the Great Barlow and Wilson." The vocal numbers are gems of the first water. The company is far superior to the usual standard attraction.—Cincinnati Enquirer.

Will be at the Ulman Opera House Tuesday, September 23rd. Prices 25, 33 and 50. Tickets on sale at box office.

Sautelle's Circus.

From a bundle of city exchanges it is seen that Sig. Sautelle's all New Monster R. R. Shows; museum, Menagerie and ancient Roman hippodrome which will be seen in Salisbury, Monday September 22, are astounding the largest audiences everywhere, and the newspapers wherever the circus exhibits, are at a loss for adjectives with which to eulogize the incomparable and world-famous Shows. The fact that Mr. Sautelle has added a menagerie of 20 cages of rare wild beasts also a herd of elephants and camels is enough to influence any of our readers to believe that his show is not like others. Within the last few days Sig. Sautelle's new big R. R. shows, Museum, Menagerie, and Ancient Roman Hippodrome, which will be seen here, have grown till they are now among the largest on the road.

Law For Baseball Is Mississippi.

The planters of Mississippi are demanding from the Legislature the enactment of a law prohibiting the playing of baseball in that State after the first day of September. This close season is said to be absolutely necessary for the well being of the cotton growers. From the first day of September on, time is precious, and every black man, woman and pickaninny is needed continuously to gather the cotton crop. But nothing, they say, can keep the colored man or boy away from a baseball game within a day's journey, and consequently time is wasted and cotton lost to a ruinous extent by the baseball exhibitions.

Important Notice.

Taking effect Monday, September 15th the Baltimore, Chesapeake and Atlantic Railway Company will change their schedule withdrawing the summer schedule and placing in effect the Fall schedule. See time tables and Posters. A. J. BENJAMIN, Supt.

A JUROR'S DUTIES.

Address Delivered Before The Annanias Club of Allen On The Subject.

Our Allen correspondent, writing in a jocular vein, reports an "address" by a fellow townsmen as follows:

Our esteemed friend, Mr. Van Gunby, of Somerset will serve his county and State as a juror at the October term of Court. Mr. Gunby delivered an able and forcible address on the subject before the Annanias Club last Tuesday evening. Despite the raging storm a great crowd had assembled by seven o'clock to hear the Somerset orator.

Mr. Gunby was in excellent shape for speech making, his voice being as clear as a ten cent dinner horn. He spoke feelingly of the duties of a juror and attacked the beef and coffin trusts with vigor and bare knuckles. The speaker spoke as follows;

"Gentlemen an' critschun friends, (you know it is not in good form to menshun the minority first. So you'll excuse me) (Great applause and laughter) (Sence lookin' over the crowd I notis the minority stayed home.) Now gentlemen you have all hearn that I am on the jury this fall for the first time. The appointment come to me unsolicited so far as I am concerned. I known' about it becas I never spected to have that honor thrust upon me. But boys I do believe I shill like the job. Once you git to goin' in this here office business an' you don't even have to flop your wings to git that an' stay that." This here is the openin' wedge fer me boys an', at the old song goes, "I'm gwine away to leave you. Good bye, Good bye." I'm sorry fer you fellers, but you can't blame me. You know the ole sayings, "Charity begins at home. A bird in the hand beats a bob-tail fush. Evil communications corrupt two in the bush, etc."

Now don't misconstrue my lang-widge. Don't leave this room with the opinyon that Gunby's got a swelled head, fer I have not. I'm wearin' the same hat now that I wore before the appointment took place. I ain' had a swelled head sense the mornin' of the 26th of December, an' wouldn't a had one then but my medicine give out on the nite of the 25th, Christmas.

Gentlemen, the duties of a jurymen are manifold. In the first place he must be all eyes an' ears if he keeps up with the doings of Court. A jurymen should weigh well the testimony given in a case, an' if possible to do so, size up the chap what's a givin' it. That's as much in the fellr what's a givin' it as that is in what he's givin'.

An' them lawyers, you must watch them too. Don't let them tears of theirs cut too much figure with you becas if you do you'll be purty apt to render a verdict favorable to their clients. After its all over they'll whisper to one another. "That's the softest jury that ever was drawed."

A lawyer kin cry every five minutes if he thinks its havin' any effect on the jury. I have been in Court before now, as a spectator, an' seen a lawyer git up with tears a streamin' down his face, an' in a broken voice tell of the time when, as a little tacker, his client used to say his prayers at his mother's knees, how she used to watch him, with the love light in her eyes play "King Willyum was King Jeemerson," an' now that he had become a man he was the victim of a conspiracy etc. I known' gentlemen at the time, an' the lawyer knew too, that the fellow was a second Jeesy Jeems.

Before I conclude, I feel it my duty as a jurymen to take a whack at two of the dingdest trusts that was ever hatcheted out by man or devil. They are the food trust and the coffin trust. It's no use to mention the beef trust, fer the men that owns that pertickler one, owns everything else we eat. So it's all one, a food trust. What makes me so tornal mad is they've got the very things in the trusts that we can't do without while livin', an' our friends don't like to see us without when we are dead.

So you see, my friends, the trusts have got us fast, livin' or dead. I know who's at the bottom of all this, it's that old Plowpint Morgan. If he don't look sharp he'll strike bottom some of these days, an' he won't find any strike down that 'mongst the coal miners, nuther.

Gentlemen, I appeal to you to help us break up these here trusts. They are a gounin' us, livin' or dead. Why I know of two or three men in bad health now, who would like to die but they keep puttin' it off from time to time thinkin' the Democrats will git in power and do somethin' with the coffin trust so that they can die as cheap as possible.

They swear they won't die until the coffin trust is busted, an' I don't blame 'em fer it costs like the dickens. I thank you gentlemen for your kind attention."

The applause that followed was deafening. After quiet was restored the president announced to the members of the club that the remainder of the evening might be profitably spent in lying, as there was nothing of importance to be brought up before the club.

And so it was. R. A.

NEW YORK FASHIONS.

New Materials; Tailor Gowns; Styles in Making; New Millinery.

Cloth will be very fashionable for tailor gowns or the short skirts that are now an essential part of every well dressed woman's outfit and as a special novelty may be noted new cloths in mixed colors and others both in solid or mixed shades, showing a camel's hair finish, this being in keeping with a present fancy for hairy finish both in dress goods and millinery. "Soothie novelties" are prominent, whether in conventional or invisible plaids, the last adjective of course applied with a modification, else otherwise the invisible could not be in strict interpretation.

STYLES IN MAKING

show as yet, much adherence to former outlines and departures, if notable in the future, will be slight variations from accustomed contours. Again appears the flaring finish on skirts which again adhere closely to the circumference of waist and hip measure. A majority likewise of Fall gowns, especially those with drop skirts, are now preferably finished with the new S. H. & M. velvet braid skirt protector that is a delightful improvement on the old style bindings. It is more easily applied than any other since it requires but one sewing to attach it to the skirt. Moreover it does not deface the shoes. The irrepressible is again prominent on tailor gowns and in view of coming cold weather, is made with broad revers, which may on occasion be turned over and thus be transformed into chest protectors. But either with or without a gown in keeping, jackets reaching well below the waist are quite in order and because newer, may conflict with continued popularity of Etons. Corsets retain their present outlines so especially adapted to a concealment of defective outlines and peculiarly graceful effects result from the wearing of R & G corsets, since they yield with rare suppleness to every movement of the body and thus become health-giving and aesthetic as well. The straight front is, of course, in conformity with up to date ideas and indeed in every particular, they are ideal, even from a twentieth century point of view.

NEW MILLINERY

continues the low, spreading ideas that were regnant in summer, but the attractive lightness peculiar to blossoms and fancy straws has given way to great apparent heaviness. Cloth hats trimmed by the same, are greatly in order, the majority showing a hairy finish. For dreamy examples, crushed plush repeats the story, displaying a surface thick coated by long silken threads and crushed plush ribbons in keeping are conspicuous, velvet usually thought a heavy trimming or material, becomes light in comparison and in combination, often modifies the effect of the fabric just under discussion.

BIRDS AND BIRDS' WINGS

are seen to a large extent and some hats are completely covered by successive wings lying flat. No garniture in truth, rises upward. Birds are noticeably with low placed beaks, as if in downward flight and wings when not placed flat are turned sideways, rather than upright. Flowers are in marked minority: a yet are not seen on hats and the few blossoms shown are in velvet or have velvet in combination. Leaves are more freely used, because perhaps in velvet made beautiful by rich Autumn tints and occasional delightful examples are wholly covered by the same.

LUCY CARTER.

The Negro's Curse.

We deliberately charge the present worthless and criminal character of the negro to cheap education and bad politics. They have been the headwaters of his degradation. By teaching him idleness and impregnating him with foolish notions as to his position and importance they led him directly to crime. They have incited his worst passions to action; they have destroyed his better nature. They have changed him from a happy, contented, useful worker into an idle, vicious and incompetent loafer. In olden days he had his place of prime service in the South's affairs; today he is a nuisance and a parasite and the greatest factor of crime and evil in the community. He is an outcast and chiefly because of the foolish and criminal methods adopted to civilize him.

Until these cease, until by wise and conservative means he is brought back to his proper place—to a place of humble and helpful service and one entirely out of competition with the white race—there can be no hope of improvement for him.—Charlottesville (Va.) Progress.

RAILROAD WRECK AVOIDED.

Attempt Discovered in Time to Prevent Accident.

What is thought to be a dastardly attempt to wreck the Delaware railroad passenger train that leaves Wilmington at 6:58 p. m., was discovered just in the nick of time last Tuesday evening. While some railroad workmen were walking along the tracks between Clayton and Brenford that evening they noticed an old brake shoe tightly wedged in a switch in such a manner that it would have thrown a train running in a southerly direction off the tracks. They immediately repaired to the station at Brenford and notified the operator there so that he could send word to headquarters at Clayton of their discovery. For the time being all trains were held until an investigation could be made and matters righted.

Several representatives of the railroad company, together with County Constable Herman Wood, went there as soon as possible and removed the obstruction. The trains were also run slowly over that part of the road-way until a thorough investigation could be made to see if there had been any more obstructions placed anywhere, but none could be found. Had the Letter to Phillips & Mitchell.

Dear Sirs: You understand grinding wheat, buckwheat, rye, oats and corn. We understand grinding white-lead and white zinc. The two sorts of grinding are not much alike. Very likely oats and wheat have very differently in the mill, and you may age them very differently—we know very little about your work; don't need to; we'd rather depend on you.

But we paint your house and mill, and out-buildings; perhaps you'd be glad to know about grinding paint: for some people mix their paint with a stick in a tub.

We use lead and zinc—nothing else.

And our zinc is as tough as your oats.

Tub mixers imagine they mix it. They don't; they can't. Takes grinding to mix lead and zinc.

They are both white. Tub-mixers don't know it; but tub-mixers lead and zinc is a streak of one alongside of a streak of the other.

We grind as you grind; and our paint is lead and zinc ground together, mixed intimately: it is neither lead nor zinc, but lead and zinc: the lead is lost, and the zinc is lost; each lost in the other; both lost in the mixture. Lead chalks and zinc peel; lead and zinc ground together hang on and protect each other.

We take care of your mill outside;

you take care of it inside.

Yours truly,

F. W. Devos & Co.

SHOUTING CHRISTIANS.

Some Christians, who formerly shouted, no longer do so. Some never shout at all. Some do not approve of it; others are never well, never buoyant, hopeful spirits, so don't feel like it. Rev. Jno. S. Rush, Yellow Creek, Pa., says: "Victor Liver Syrup is still healing the sick. It seems as if God's blessing is upon it. Listen, women that have been sick for years are now at work and singing God's praises, and men are living a new and happier life. Good reports from the Victor Remedies everywhere." All live druggists and merchants keep them.

The Montgomery County School Board has refused to close the schools of the county during the four days of the continuance of the County Fair. The Agricultural Society urged the closing on the grounds that the people of the county desire it, but the Board decided, from personal inquiry, that the majority of the taxpayers opposed the plan.

"Cleanliness is next to godliness," Dirt and depravity go hand in hand. This is just as true of the inside of the body as the outside. Constipation clogs the body and clouds the mind. Constipation means that corruption is breeding in the body, poisoning the blood with its foul emanations, befogging the brain with its tainted exhalations. Constipation is the beginning of more diseases than, perhaps, any other single disorder. The consequences of constipation are legion. Headache, pain in the side, shortness of breath, undue fullness after eating, coldness of the extremities, nervousness, indecision, lameness, dizziness, sallowness, flatulence, and a score of other ailments are directly caused by constipation. Cure constipation and you cure its consequences. The quickest cure of this evil is obtained by the use of Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets. They are small in size but wonderful in result. They cure permanently. They contain no injurious ingredients. The dose of these does not beset the "pill habit." Ask your druggist for them.

Send 21 one cent stamps, the expense of mailing only and receive Dr. Pierce's Common Sense Medical Adviser, in paper covers. This work contains 1008 pages and 700 illustrations. For $1 stamp it can be had in substantial cloth binding. Address Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y.

The Cumberland branch of A. J. Cummings & Co., brokers of Pittsburgh, has been closed, following the firm's recent failure. The Cumberland partners of the concern will lose about $60,000, and there are other losses at the branch-s at Lonaconing and Frostburg.

Until these cease, until by wise and conservative means he is brought back to his proper place—to a place of humble and helpful service and one entirely out of competition with the white race—there can be no hope of improvement for him.—Charlottesville (Va.) Progress.

WHOLESALE RESTAURANTS.

Places Where Small Eating Houses Obtain Cooked Food.

If it were asserted without any explanation that there were restaurants in New York which cooked large quantities of food day and night and yet which never sold a mouthful to a person within their doors, it would certainly arouse doubt or ridicule. Yet such is the fact. There are more than forty establishments of this class in New York. Their customers are not hungry men, but restaurants, eating booths, oyster stands and free lunch counters. There was a time when every place of this sort owned and used its own kitchen, but the increase of rents, the decrease in the size of store property and the greater economy necessitated by keen competition have brought the wholesale restaurant into existence and made it a financial success.

Most of these affairs are on the east side and are managed by Germans, Hebrews, Swiss and English, their numbers being in the order named. They supply roast beef, lamb, veal, mutton, corn beef and pork, pot roasts, baked and boiled fish, fried oysters, clams, scallops, eels, fishballs and soft shell crabs, boiled potatoes, cabbage, turnips and beets.

A few supply a larger bill of fare, but the demand for their goods is comparatively limited. They purchase good, wholesome material, employ excellent cooks, own efficient delivery wagons and run affairs upon a good business basis.

When you pass an oyster stand and see nicely fried oysters and soft shell crabs neatly piled upon a platter and decorated with little sprigs of parsley, twice out of three times you look at the wares of these establishments. The tiny restaurants in the business districts, and especially those which cater to clerks and workingmen, depend almost entirely upon the wholesale restaurants for their food. Oddly enough they can sell their cooked food to the retail restaurants for less than what the latter would pay for the raw materials. This comes from buying wholesale in very large quantities, in cooking on a large scale and in utilizing all the waste products.—New York Post.

Raise Your Salary.

Most men who work for a salary cherish the belief that they are not getting enough pay to fit either their needs or their deserts. They delight in whispering confidentially over their cigars and whisky that their employers are becoming rich while the real brains of the business, the real money making power in the house, is none other than their humble selves, poor slaves that they are, toiling for others' gain. As the pile of cigar ashes grows and the contents of the bottle lessens these oppressed beings become pathetic in their complainings. They tell of their employers riding about in swift, luxurious automobiles while the unknown underlings—to wit, themselves—struggle along on a pittance, dodging bill collectors, pinched by poverty, unhonored and unsung. "If we only had $20 or $40 more each month," they say, "we could be comfortable."

Any one of these discontented gentry can add from 20 to 50 per cent to his salary without asking his employer's leave. All he need do is cut off his whisky and cigars and cease feeding his other vices, if he has any. But none of these gentry ever thinks of taking such means to increase his income. Genius such as his cannot be required to economize, and it seldom does.—San Francisco Bulletin.

Listened to His Own Sermon.
 The Elmira Advertiser is authority for the following story of an experience of Chancellor Upson with a plagiarist. During his pastorate in Albany Dr. Upson was presiding at a meeting at which a speaker of wide reputation as an orator and writer delivered an address. The two were not acquainted, says by reputation. The orator had made but little progress when Dr. Upson's attention was attracted by the familiar form of the words and line of thought. The conviction soon was forced upon him that he was listening to his own production, delivered some years previously in a distant city. And to the end the speaker spread out the stolen goods as his own. While listening to the orator Dr. Upson decided it would be ungracious for him to expose the piracy, and when at the conclusion he had to comment upon the address he said he had "followed the argument with much interest and found himself in close agreement on the position taken!"

Every Woman a Calender.

Now that ladies wear so many jewels in the daytime, a sequence of color should be thought out. The Siamese arrangement may perhaps afford suggestions. In that country on Sunday red silk with a parure of rubies is worn; Monday brings a silver and white dress and a necklace of moonstones. Tuesday is dedicated to light red, with coral ornaments; Wednesday is devoted to green, with emeralds; Thursday sees a display of variegated colors, with cat's eyes; Friday the lady is arrayed in pale blue, with flashing diamonds, and Saturday is more somber, darker blue, with sapphires to match.—London Graphic.

A Mormon For the Senate.

A gentle who has lived in Utah twenty-five years and regards that state as the garden spot of the Union said in Washington the other day: "The only cloud on our political horizon is the apparent determination of leading Mormons to elect Reed Smoot, an apostle of that church, to the United States senate. They have been advised against the folly of such an act, and the episode of B. H. Roberts has been held up as a warning."

HE GOT THE BRIDGES.

Effective Method Used by Representative Hamilton of Michigan.

One of the best stories told of congressmen relates to Representative Hamilton of Michigan. When Mr. Hamilton wants anything, he wants it badly and will not stop fighting until it is obtained. Once upon a time, and not a long time ago, he wanted a bridge built over the Pawpaw river in his district. He sought the proper officials and pestered them insistently. Still the bridge was not built, and, from all indications, it would not be built for a long time. Mr. Hamilton was patient personified. Patience, however, finally ceased to be a virtue, and the representative from the middle-west was mad. One morning he went to the war department with blood in his eye, strength in his arm and a bottle of Pawpaw water in his pocket.

"Here it is!" he shouted as he rushed into the office of the secretary of war. "Here is what?" coldly inquired the secretary of war as he looked at the little bottle of water.

"Here is some Pawpaw water," emphatically declared Mr. Hamilton, "and I want an order for those bridges."

"What has the water got to do with it?" questioned the official.

"Why, this is water from the river."

"What for?"

"To show you there is water in the river. I was afraid you thought the Pawpaw was a race track, an Indian village or something like that. It is a river. This is water from it. We want a drawbridge over the river. We want two. We want them for trains to run over. We want to accommodate the expanding commerce of Benton Harbor. Do we get the drawbridges?"

"What does the chief engineer say?"

"He says we ought to have the drawbridges."

The chief engineer was sent for. He said the Pawpaw should have two bridges. The orders were signed.—Washington Post.

The Story of a Telescope.

Professor Turner declares that the erection of the observatory on Mount Hamilton sent up the value of land in that region considerably. Accordingly, some enterprising gentlemen in another neighborhood, desiring to test the generality of the law that if a large telescope were built the value of land in the neighborhood would go up, announced a still larger telescope and ordered two forty inch disks of glass for the lens. The experiment succeeded admirably, and they were so well satisfied with the rise in price which followed on the mere announcement (so the story goes) that they considered it unnecessary to proceed further with the instrument. The two lenses were produced and, not being claimed, were left on the maker's hands, the result being that the favorable opportunity for their purchase was brought to Mr. Yerkes' attention, and he bought them for the great telescope that bears his name. This, at least, is Professor Turner's version of the story.—Argo-

Facts About London.

A child is born every three minutes, and a death is registered every five minutes.

The city contains over 700 railway stations, nearly 800 miles of railway line, and eleven railway bridges span the Thames. Daily 1,000,000 persons travel on the underground railways and 2,500,000 in 5,000 omnibuses, 7,000 hansomas, 14,000 cabs and 7,000 tram cars. The total population is between 6,000,000 and 7,000,000.

Four thousand postmen deliver 10,000,000 letters weekly, walking a distance equal to twice the circumference of the globe. Sixty thousand letters are written a day, consuming thirty gallons of ink.

Ten thousand miles of overhead telegraph wires almost shut out the smoky canopy which spreads above the same London streets, and the number of telegraph messages received in London last year was over 6,000,000. Ninety million gallons of water are consumed daily.

Carving the Roasts.

Justice Dugro of the New York supreme court has a quaint fad. He is one of the most expert carvers in the world, and his interest in the Hotel Savoy is so intense that he spends a great deal of his time in the kitchen seeing that the food and service are satisfactory. The close personal supervision has made the Savoy bill of fare famous the world over. When there is a crush in the dining room, he throws off his coat, his judicial ermine, so to speak, and buckles to with the carvers until the hurrah is over. Few of the hundreds of thousands who have dined at the Savoy realized at the time that the perfect cut of roast beef set before them was carved by the hands of one of the distinguished justices of the supreme court of New York. Think of having a carver with a salary of $17,500 a year and a property of millions! A handy man!—New York Press.

Pass the Apples, Please.

The American Apple Consumers' League announces that its object is to make apple eating fashionable. "Business in other lines of production has been doubled by convincing the public that it is the proper thing to wear or use a certain article. There are 40,000,000 Americans living in town and city. Educate them so that they will eat two apples each every day, and you do more for practical agriculture than can be done in any other way."

The league pledge reads: "I agree to call for apple in some form whenever I eat a meal at any public table. Should apple not be named on the bill of fare I will ask why not and endeavor to secure the serving of good eating apples. I will also encourage apple eating in my own family."

The land is in a fair state of cultivation and the property is well located; one of the public school houses of the District being located on said county road opposite this farm. This is the same property which was conveyed to the said Elijah E. Nichols by the administrators of Kitchie Fooks, deceased, by deed dated Aug. 11, 1880 and recorded among the Land Records of Wicomico County.

2. The KING LOT, situated on the North side of and binding upon said Dagsborough Road opposite the HOME farm above described, bounded on the East by the old mill dam of the Parker Mill and on the Northwest by the property of Geo. W. Leonard, containing 4 88-100 ACRES. This is improved by a small dwelling. A part of this land is cleared land and in good state of cultivation, the balance well set in growing timber of pine, oak, gum etc.

3. All that tract of TIMBER LAND situated on the North side of the said county road and adjoining the property lastly mentioned on the West, the property of Jacob Nichols on the North fork of the Mill Branch dividing this property from the property of the said Jacob Nichols. The portion belonging to the estate of Elijah E. Nichols, now offered for sale, containing 54 1-2 ACRES well set in a large quantity of valuable timber, pine, oak, gum etc.

4. ENDORSEMENT FROM REPUBLICAN SOURCE.

Of the many very complimentary things said by the press of Mr. James E. Ellegood since, and as a result of, his nomination for Congress, the following from the Crisfield Leader is the most notable, because of that paper's long-standing advocacy of republican principles. It says:

"An article appeared in the Somerset Journal a week or two ago under the title of "Match Us If You Can" challenging the Democrats of the First Congressional District to nominate a candidate who could be compared with the man that they had nominated. If the editor of the above named periodical and the writer of that article will bear with us for a few moments, we will endeavor to show them that we think they have been "matched" and that there are some good men in the other parties as well."

"The Democrats this week nominated a candidate whose character is unimpeachable and whose ability is unquestioned. He is one of the ablest lawyers of the Eastern Shore and a man who has always stood for the best interests of the people. The confidence and esteem in which he is held by his fellow-citizens is unbounded. He has always opposed the means by which our modern politicians have carried the elections and only recently refused to be placed on the ticket because money would have to be used illegitimately to secure his election. The Democrats are to be congratulated upon their choice of a candidate and feel safe that in securing Mr. Ellegood to be their leader they have a man who, if elected, will conscientiously and fearlessly represent the First District in the halls of Congress."

WEAK APOLOGY.

The Republicans say they are not responsible for the Trusts, and cite the fact that there are Trusts in England. Admitted that there are Trusts in England, everyone knows that they cannot charge the exorbitant prices there that our Trusts charge here under the shelter of the protective tariff. To illustrate; Suppose there was a steel trust in England and suppose they concluded to put the prices of steel products up like our Trusts have done. Now, although selling our consumers steel rails at $28 per ton, our steel trust is selling the same rails at $22 per ton in England. It is therefore a self-evident fact that an English steel trust could not sell its steel for more than $22 per ton, else it would be undersold at every point by our manufacturers. So it is with every product, if a great English trust goes to corner the market and put prices up, here comes the American manufacturer and says to the English people, "I will sell to you for less than that," and that would be speculator at the expense of the masses finds out that he cannot do so without being undersold by the foreign manufacturer. So if it would be in our country if the tariffs were taken off of Trust-controlled products. When the Trusts would go to putting up prices, as they do now, they would find that the foreign manufacturer would be ready to come in and sell to the American people at a reasonable profit. This would at least prevent the exorbitant prices that Trust magnate testifies before the United States Industrial Commission that the Trusts put the prices up just as high as business will stand. The other way they would only be able to put them up as competition would allow, and that could not be as high as 50 per cent as they are at present.

—For a long time during the early stages of this campaign, the Republicans insisted that the tariff was no issue. They declared that the people were satisfied with things as they are. The fact was that they didn't want it to be an issue, and that their statement that it was not, was nothing more than a thought born of a wish. But since the Republicans of Iowa have said that it affords shelter to Trusts—a contention that the Democrats have all along made—and since the Idaho Republicans have adopted an outspoken declaration of the removal of the tariff from Trust controlled products, they are no longer able to deny that the TARIFF IS AN ISSUE and one of the great issues of this campaign. Although, in the words of the conservative New York Herald, the Republican Campaign Text Book "dodges the tariff, defends Trusts and ignores Cuius," and though the President himself refuses, in his speeches, to take cognizance of the trust-breeding tendencies of the tariff, yet it is an issue the American people will not dodge and an issue that the Republicans cannot run away from. Secretary Shaw may continue to deny that it is the mother of Trusts, while admitting that it is the parent of conditions which make Trusts, he may continue to trifle with the intelligence of the people by drawing his infinitesimal distinctions, but the fact still will remain that the tariff, in the words of the Republican generalissimo, Mr. Babcock, DOES enable the Trusts to hold up the consumer while they fix arbitrary and exorbitant prices.

—It is a fact evident to any man whose mind is clear enough to see that two and two makes four, that any circumstance, of whatever nature it may be, which enables a manufacturer to charge higher prices for his products, forces the consumer to pay more for those products. That proposition none will deny. The primary object of the protective tariff was, as every one who is acquainted with the history of Protection knows, to keep foreign competition out of our markets so that the home manufacturers could command better prices for their products. The Republicans themselves stated that was the object of the tariff. Now it is evident that if it enabled the infant industries to command better prices for their products, so long as it is continued it will enable the successors of the infant industries to do the same. We all know that the infant industries of the past are now the giant Trusts, and the same laws which enabled these infant industries to grow rich off of the consumer, enables their successors, the Trusts, to levy tribute off of these same consumers. The Republicans cannot blow hot and cold at the same time. They cannot deny their own statements that the tariff was designed to hold up American prices, and they cannot get around the fact that if the tariff held up prices THEN, it holds up prices NOW. And it is equally evident that if the manufacturer is enabled through the tariff, to charge more for his goods the consumer has to pay more for them. The great mass of the American people are consumers. The tariff compels them to pay more for the products of consumption than they would otherwise have to pay. Every time they buy a Trust made article they pay a tribute to the Trust which controls it, a tribute made possible by a protective tariff. It is evident, therefore, that revision must come, and that the American people are going to demand that it shall come.

—In speaking of Mr. Ellegood's nomination, the Wicomico News says:

"We begin this campaign with the knowledge that we have in Mr. Ellegood a candidate who is in every way splendidly equipped to fill the position of a Congressman. Measured by the Jeffersonian standard, "he is capable, he is honest, he is a Democrat." Measured by public opinion, he is courageous, he is worthy, he is a fighter. Measured by morality, he is a Christian, he is a churchman, he is a temperate man. Measured by society, he is a good neighbor, a generous friend and an upright citizen."

—The best evidence that the tariff is a shelter and a foster mother to the Trusts is the fact that every time the proposal to revise it is made the Trusts hold up their hands in holy horror at the proposition.

—The first echo of Roosevelt's Pittsburg speech says that Congress will not down the trusts until the people down Congress.—Boston Post.

COL. EDWARD LLOYD.

The appearance of this veteran Democrat as a delegate to the Convention and his selection to preside over the deliberations of the body was received with the greatest enthusiasm and a storm of applause rarely witnessed in a Democratic convention. It may not be generally known, but it is a fact that in the deliberations on Wednesday night Colonel Lloyd was selected as the candidate, and the nomination was offered him but he declined it for personal reasons. Like Mr. Ellegood, he would have made a very strong candidate.—Easton Ledger.

Prohibition Convention.

The Prohibition County Convention met in the Court House of Salisbury Friday at noon. The convention was called to order by County chairman John H. Dulany. Rev. Zack H. Webster was chosen as presiding officer and Mr. B. N. Brittingham as Secretary. The convention immediately proceeded to the election of delegates to the First Congressional District Convention. The following were unanimously selected, Rev. Z. H. Webster, Rev. L. A. Bennett, Dr. J. C. C. Newton, Messrs. L. F. Messick, John G. Sheppard, John S. Morris, U. C. Phillips, John H. Dulany, James Elzey and Benjamin Davis.

For Congress the Convention named Mr. J. McAllen of Worcester county. Mr. John H. Dulany, of Fruitland, this county, received 12 votes from the Convention.

Terrapins are growing scarcer in the Chesapeake Bay and its tributaries every season, and it is no longer profitable to hunt them for a livelihood. Only a few watermen can make anything in this industry. Nearly all the terrapins brought to market now are caught by chance by crabbers. Crisfield markets more terrapin than any other place in Maryland. The pounds are well stocked for next winter's shipment. Six-inch terrapins bring $36 and seven inch bring $60 a dozen.

Pure Spices!

The word spice has become synonymous with whatever gives flavor, adds zest, or makes life a pleasure. Spices are not to be classified, it is true, among the necessities of life. We can get along without them just as well as we can get along without music or perfume, etc., but what would life be worth without spice of some kind in stimulating the appetite, improving the flavor of food, and in many cases rendering it more wholesome and digestible. Spices, like many other food products, are adulterated. The adulterated spices are not good for pickling and preserving, and they may cause you to lose lots of your canned goods. If you want the pure and unadulterated spices, strictly high grade, get them at

EYES SPEAK

Volumes, at times, of woman's happiness or misery. The dull, sunken eye, with its dark circles almost surely speaks of womanly ill-health, and its attendant suffering. With the dull eye goes usually the hollow, sunken cheek, the drawn mouth, the shrunken form—the whole glory of woman's beauty marred by the effects of disease.

Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription cures the diseases which undermine the health and mar the beauty of women. It establishes regularity, dries weakening drains, heals inflammation and ulceration, and cures female weakness.

Sick women are invited to consult Dr. Pierce by letter free, and so obtain the advice of a specialist upon their disease. All correspondence is strictly private and sacredly confidential. Address Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y.

"With pleasure I send you free letters to let you know the progress I have made since first taking your medicine," writes Mrs. Pierce Geise, of 825 West Third Street, York, Pa. "Will recommend Dr. Pierce's medicine to every person who may inquire as to what it has done for me. I am trying to walk again now, and began to think I would never be well. If I had continued the treatment prescribed by my doctor I don't know what would have become of me. When my treatment was commenced my weight was 105 pounds. Now it is 120. Have healthy color and my friends say I look well. My best thanks to you and my best wishes, too, for what you have done for me."

"Favorite Prescription" makes weak women strong, sick women well. Accept no substitute for the medicine which works wonders for weak women.

Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets cleanse the clogged system from accumulated impurities.

MRS. L. S. ADAMS.
Of Galveston, Texas.

"Wine of Cardui is indeed a blessing to tired women. Having suffered for seven years with weakness and bearing-down pains, and having tried several doctors and different remedies with no success, your Wine of Cardui was the only thing which helped me, and eventually cured me. It seemed to build up the weak parts, strengthen the system and correct irregularities."

By "tired women" Mrs. Adams means nervous women who have disordered menses, falling of the womb, ovarian troubles or any of these ailments that women have. You can cure yourself at home with this great women's remedy, Wine of Cardui. Wine of Cardui has cured thousands of cases which doctors have failed to benefit. Why not begin to get well today? All druggists have $1.00 bottles. For any stomach, liver or bowel disorder The Bedford's Black-Draught should be used.

Over-Work Weakens Your Kidneys.Unhealthy Kidneys Make Impure Blood.

All the blood in your body passes through your kidneys once every three minutes.

The kidneys are your blood purifiers, they filter out the waste or impurities in the blood. If they are sick or out of order, they will do their work.

Pains, aches and rheumatism come from excess of uric acid in the blood, due to kidney trouble.

Kidney trouble causes quick or unsteady heart beats, and makes one feel as though he had heart trouble, because the heart is over-working in pumping thick, kidney-poisoned blood through veins and arteries.

It used to be considered that only urinary troubles were to be traced to the kidneys, but now modern science proves that nearly all constitutional diseases have their beginning in kidney trouble.

If you are sick you can make no mistake by first visiting your kidneys. The mild and extraordinary effect of Dr. Kilmer's Swamp Root, the great kidney remedy is soon realized. It stands the highest for its wonderful cure of the most distressing cases and is sold on the market by all druggists.

COLUMBIA.

The young people of Columbia gave a straw ride on Saturday evening last to Providence picnic near Delmar. They were eighteen in number, and all spent a very enjoyable evening.

Peach and apple cuttings seem to be the hobby of our young people at present. There has been no end to this amusement, there being several each week. It don't take many apples or peaches either to get a considerable crowd together sometimes.

The rains this week have interfered with work of all kinds, but mostly with the farmers well known fodder saving time. The rain on Tuesday floated many bridges in this community.

The goods and chattels of Roger Phillips deceased were sold at his late residence near here last Tuesday, by J. Kennerly, administrator.

Many of our local sportsmen are shooting squirrels this week, but as far as we have learned no large kills have been made.

Our canning house men are not complaining these days about having nothing to work on. They are completely overwhelmed with tomatoes. A man drives up with a load they look wishful that is, they wish you had left them home.

Rodney Ellis while hoisting in the canning house of J. S. Cooper & Co., let the crane get away. It struck him over the eye cutting a bad gash and breaking the bridge of the nose. Medical aid was summoned and took six stitches in the wound. Mr. Ellis is doing well and is again at his work.

Old Hardy mill bridge collapsed this week while Mr. H. E. Phillips was passing over and down went man, horse and carriage in the flood. Mr. Phillips after considerable effort freed his horse from the carriage and went for help. The horse and carriage were taken out, and strange to say nothing seemed the worse only the carriage was bent considerably. Thirty years ago the men who owned this mill property considered it a little fortune, but the old high ground saw mill is too slow for this age, hence she is neglected and stands but a mute witness of the past.

Several persons went over to Ocean City on Wednesday's excursion.

Owing to the high prices of coal none has as yet been bought here.

Large quantities of tomatoes are being shipped from this section and the shipments added to the very large quantity used at the canneries shows an immense crop. J. P. Cooper has been buying large quantities and shipping them to different markets.

Prof. Edward H. Farbution of Queen Anne's county was the last appointed for the principalship of the school here. He is the fourth three others having been appointed and declined to serve after having been appointed.

The large crate and basket factory of A. W. Robinson & Co closed down on Wednesday, but will likely run for some time, but not regularly, to work up timber as well as fill orders that continue to come in.

Locomotives Fight a Duel.

Milwaukee, Wis., Sept. 11.—Seventy-five thousand persons went to the Wisconsin State Fair yesterday to see two locomotives smash into each other. The State Board of Agriculture had constructed a special railway track a thousand feet long in the field within the race course.

The engines chosen were of the regular pattern of 10 years ago. There was great excitement when the engine drivers mounted their cars, threw wide open the throttles and jumped off in a hurry. Almost in the centre of the field the locomotives came together.

They lifted their bulk nearly upright, and went at each other as do wrestlers. Battered and broken, snarling and hissing, a cloud of steam enveloping their shapeless masses, they clasped each other in an iron embrace.

Crowned with Success.

Success, to most people in this the Dawn of the 20th Century, is the synonym of happiness. He is most happy who is most prosperous. This is true, at least, if the baby is well and cheerful the home is full of sun shine. O. V. Walz, Hartford City, Ind., says "I believe that Victoria Remedies stand ahead of all others. Victoria Infants Relief has been crowned with success in every home." Its grand Digestive Tonic for the baby, rests the nerves, and is unsurpassed in teething Your Merchant and Druggist keep it.

Consumption

The only kind of consumption to fear is "neglected consumption."

People are learning that consumption is a curable disease. It is neglected consumption that is so often incurable.

At the faintest suspicion of consumption get a bottle of Scott's Emulsion and begin regular doses.

The use of Scott's Emulsion at once, has, in thousands of cases, turned the balance in favor of health.

Neglected consumption does not exist where Scott's Emulsion is.

Prompt use of Scott's Emulsion checks the disease while it can be checked.

TEACHERS' INSTITUTE WEEK.

New Features Of The Work Introduced
For The First Time.

SCHOOL TRUSTEES MEET TOGETHER.

The Teachers' Institute for Wicomico County opened Monday morning at 10:30 in the Salisbury High School Building and continued its sessions during the week. The opening exercises each morning were in charge of W. J. Holloway, Principal of Salisbury City Schools and consisted of scripture reading by J. Walter Huffington, prayer and singing by the Institute. The new High School piano was very helpful and entertaining in these exercises.

A notable fact of this Institute was that the teachers of the county did practically all the work, almost every teacher taking part in the various questions and discussions.

The Round Table feature too was prominent, there being three conducted; one on The Art of Study by F. Grant Goss; one on Pedagogy by W. J. Holloway and one on English Grammar by J. Walter Huffington. At these Round Tables, the questions were discussed in a practical manner and every teacher was able to carry away from the Institute some knowledge that can be practiced in the school-room.

Drawing was explained and practical every day methods on the subject were pointed out during the week by Prof. Warren S. Seipp, last year's instructor in Manual Training in the Salisbury High Schools. He showed the teachers how they could combine drawing with other studies and make it an effective means of instruction in their schools not only as a drawing lesson in itself, but as an aid in other studies. His methods were so clear and explanations so vivid that every teacher will be able henceforth to teach drawing in the primary grades at least.

On Thursday afternoon Miss Addie Dean, principal of the primary department of St. Michael's School visited the Institute with eight of her pupils taken from a sub-primary grade. She through the children as a medium, showed in a most excellent manner what a teacher can do along the line of vocal music as well as the teaching of reading and spelling to small children. Her pupils were all the recommendation of her work as a teacher has need demand, as their knowledge of vocal music, being able to read the scale of music in any combination of notes, and their powers displayed in reading and spelling was almost amazing. It may be added that Miss Dean, though principal of the Primary school teaches the first grade and the sub first. Her visit accompanied by her little tons was both instructive and highly entertaining to the teachers and the visitors at the Institute.

Another feature of this Institute was a "Trustees' Day" which was held in the Court House on Wednesday afternoon. Every trustee in the county was invited by Secretary Bounds to be present at that meeting and the response was very gratifying to him. At the meeting the patron was reviewed by State Supt. Stephens. The trustee was spoken of from the view of the Examiner by Messrs. J. Briscoe Bunting and S. Simpson, visiting Examiners from Calvert and Carroll counties respectively. The trustee was ably reviewed from the standpoint of the school commissioner by Mr. Levin T. Cooper, member of Wicomico's School Board and from the standpoint of the teacher by Mr. Minos A. Davis, who for many years was principal of Pittsville Grammar School.

During the week piano and violin solo were entertainingly rendered by the Misses Nellie Lankford, Ora Disheson, May Hill, Edna Adkins, D. Simpson and May Doty.

On Thursday morning the oath of office was administered by Secretary Bounds to all teachers who had not previously taken it.

Addresses were made before the Institute by the visiting Examiners, Messrs. Bunting and Simpson, upon general topics which were helpful and well received. M. Bates Stephens, Supt. of public instruction for Maryland was present two days and spoke upon Some Problems of School Administration first and later upon The Examiner in the School Room. His final talk being relative to some methods and devices in teaching the study of spelling.

Rather a side issue of the Institute was an informal hop given for the teachers in the Williams' Building on Wednesday evening at which most of the teachers who participate in a whirl about the floor were present. The merry dance was engaged in from 9 p. m. to 12:30 a. m. The feature of the evening was the dancing by Messrs. Bobt. G. Robertson, Deputy County Treasurer and Ernest A. Toadvine, Deputy County Clerk. The cotillion was lead by these gentlemen with the Misses LuLu Bacon and Mary Bounds.

The dance was thoroughly enjoyed and Messrs. Jno Humphreys and Frank Holloway deserve commendation for its being held.

The Institute adjourned sine die on Friday at 12 noon.

Secretary Bounds is to be congratulated for such a successful meeting of his body of teachers in the county.

NOTIFICATION MEETING.

Mr. Ellwood Notified Of His Nomination
And His Graceful Speech Of Acceptance.

The notification Committee appointed by the Chairman of the Ocean City Convention met in Salisbury Tuesday and formally notified Hon. James E. Ellwood of his nomination for Congress by the Democrats of the First Congressional District. Besides the Committee there were present Hon. Joshua W. Miles of Somerset, Editor Geo. E. Hadaway of Talbot; Mr. Thomas A. Smith of Caroline and a number of prominent Democrats from this county. The notification took place in the Judge's room at the Court House. Mr. J. Frank Harper of Queen Anne's County on behalf of the Committee made the notification speech. His speech was an able and well delivered one. He dwelt upon the fact that if "Equality of opportunity which is the inspiration to every young man" was to be preserved, both political parties must over come the corrupt use of money in our elections.

Mr. Ellwood in accepting the nomination made the following graceful address and strong appeal for the purity of the ballot.

GENTLEMAN:—"There are times when one's feelings are not quite susceptible of complete analysis. When the news of my nomination came from the Ocean City Convention, there were mingled emotions of much surprise and exceeding gratification, and withal a foreboding of possible misadventure to both myself and the party. It is said that events, fortuitous rather than designed, pointed to me as the "logical" candidate. Therefore, while avoiding all cant, I am forbidden also to indulge in a spirit of personal triumph; but all good citizens of all parties may join in a common thanksgiving, that we have reached the crisis of vote-buying, even though it be conceded to be a political necessity that parties must not confine their nominations to rich men alone."

Not only our Democracy, but civic righteousness in this Congressional District is on trial. There is a Democracy in a higher sense than that of partisanship, in the sense of the people's government against a moneyed aristocracy, called "Plutocracy"; in the sense in which Thomas Jefferson used it, when

MARRIAGE OF MISS BREWINGTON.

Youngest Daughter Of Mr. Henry S. Brewington, Of Baltimore, Sur-prises Her Friends.

In the Baltimore American Thursday was an account of the marriage of Miss Eva Brewington, which reads in part, as follows:

"Miss Geneva Estelle Brewington and Mr. Harry Martin Davis were married last night at the parsonage of Mount Vernon Place Methodist Episcopal Church, 900 Saint Paul street, by the pastor, Rev. Mr. Lincoln A. Ferris.

The announcement of the wedding will come as a surprise to their many friends, as all the arrangements were kept quiet, and Mr. and Mrs. Davis were on their way to New York before news of the ceremony got abroad.

The bride is the youngest daughter of Mr. Henry S. Brewington, 2233 Eutaw Place, is about 19 years old and has always been one of the most popular in the circle of younger women in Northwest Baltimore, where she has lived for several years. She was born in Salisbury, Wicomico county, Md., and is a favorite in that town, where she usually spends part of her summer.

Mr. Davis lives at 1060 Park avenue and is well known in local business circles. The couple have been companions for sometime, but the fact that even an engagement existed was not known.

The marriage was alike a surprise to Miss Brewington's family and many friends. The first intimation the family had of the marriage was when a representative of The American called at the house shortly before midnight and imparted the news. Within five minutes after the reporter reached the house a messenger boy brought a telegram, signed by the young married couple. The dispatch read as follows:

"Were married tonight. Will be back in a week. Please forgive."

Burial of Mrs. Miller.

The remains of Mrs. Louis Graham Miller, an account of whose sad death Thursday night of last week, was published in these columns last Saturday, were interred in Parsons cemetery Monday following the funeral services, conducted by Rev. Dr. Reigart, at the residence at 11 o'clock Monday morning.

A minority report on resolutions introduced by John P. Holland, and endorsing the Bryan Platform of 1900, was rejected by the convention.

HON. JAS. E. ELLEGODD.

he says "Every government degenerates when trusted to the rulers of the people alone. The people therefore, are its only safe depositories." This Eastern Shore is the dwelling place of pure and undefiled religion and domestic virtues, and elections are as honestly conducted, save in the one respect of bribe-giving, as any part of this country.

The rape of the ballot-box, or a fraudulent count, or fraudulent voting, whenever they occur, are exceptional and find an easy corrective through the Courts; but when corruption and venality, by the corrupt use of money, vitiate the great body of the electorate, the fall of the peoples' liberty can't be faraway. A blow from the Goths, and Rome was no more, because she had become rich and corrupt under the imperialism of the Caesars. Byron says, "A thousand years scarce serve to form a state, an hour may lay it to the dust."

Riches rank among the dangerous blessings of mankind. The Divine teacher gave frequent warnings of its influence upon individual character, while sacred and profane history show its influence upon national character. The "love of money" begets a love of power in some, and a love of luxury in others. Luxury tends to effeminacy, and power to despotism. Money and power stimulate and feed each other, with the too frequent resultant of an unholly ambition, illustrated by the familiar saying "The more a man gets, the more he wants". As true of power as it is of money.

The moral law in political affairs is as applicable to nations as to private affairs, and without moral force in politics, there can be no moral power in the government. From a corrupt ballot, there must proceed a corrupt government, for the stream is never purer, nor rises higher, than its source. "Righteousness exalteth a nation" said Solomon; what a beautiful and blessed fellowship is righteousness and peace that kiss each other. But what an ugly alliance is that which exists between wickedness and war, between defiance and submission. Everybody cordially invited.

RIGHT WAY TO RESCUE.

How to Prevent Drowning Persons From Taking Swimmer Down.

It happened at one of the Long Island sound resorts one afternoon a week or so ago. The day was hot, and scores of bathers were enjoying the still, cool water. Suddenly there was a cry from the crowd of spectators on the wharf and a craning of necks. Some distance out in the sound a swimmer who had been doing "stunts" for half an hour had suddenly begun splashing about furiously.

"Help! H-e-l-p!" he cried in a frightened shriek when he came to the surface after sinking once.

"A shark must be after him," said a frightened woman.

"No shark in the sound," corrected a man of the crowd. "He's got a cramp and is frightened to death."

"Why does not some one save him?" asked the woman as there came another agonizing cry from the struggling man.

Even as she spoke a strong limbed youth threw off his coat and tore away the fastenings at his shoes. One more glance to assure him that none of the men in bathing suits was going to the rescue, and he plunged into the water.

"Get a boat!" cried some one, but as usual in such cases at that particular moment there was no boat around.

The rescuer was swimming out and the drowning man still splashed. The crowd cheered and cheered again. It was plain that he would arrive in time.

"That young chap is a hero," said an elderly woman.

"He ought to have a medal for it!" cried another.

"Where is he?" demanded a girl who just worshipped heroes on or off the stage.

Then a change came over the crowd. The rescuer was loading. With another stroke he could have grasped the drowning man, but he held back. Was he going to let him drown after all? The man with the cramp struggled and fought his way toward the rescuer and seized his outstretched arm.

The rescuer struck out with his clinched fist and hit the man in the face. It was an awful blow, and the drowning man sank like a shot.

"Brute!" cried the crowd. "Murderer! He's trying to kill the poor fellow! He ought to be hanged! Just wait until he gets back to shore!" These and other exclamations came from the frenzied crowd.

Then came another change. The head of the drowning man reappeared. He had ceased to struggle. The rescuer was all action. Two strokes brought him within reach of the sinking head. He grasped the hair, rolled over on his back and started for the shore.

The crowd which a moment before had been reviling him began to cheer again. They made for the point of land to which he was heading that they might receive him with open arms. Some of them worried because the head of the unconscious man occasionally went under the surface. They were told that it did not matter.

"That was the cleanest, most skillful rescue I've ever seen," said a man who seemed to know what he was talking about. "The big fellow that was drowning was so frightened over his cramp that he would have taken the youngster under with him had he not held off. He did just the right thing when he hit him, and now he's bringing him ashore in the best possible way. He'll have to be resuscitated anyway, and a little more water in his lungs at this stage of the game will not hurt him."—New York Tribune.

A Versatile Englishman.

Who is the most versatile of living Englishmen? Many holiday makers on Dartmoor must have noticed a signboard over the door of a thatched cottage in the village of Belstone, near Okehampton, which announces that the occupier, William Ellis, is a "photographer," sells "views of the neighborhood," is a "Dartmoor guide," "repairs watches and clocks," is a "chemical master and seed merchant," "port reeve of the Manor of Belstone," etc. But this signboard by no means exhausts the list of his manifold accomplishments and official appointments. He is also churchwarden, organist, bell ringer, lay reader, overseer of the poor, dog breeder (specialist in red setters), dealer in game and last, but not least, Knight of Honor and warden of the Primrose league. This paragon of versatility is a bachelor, lives quite alone, does all his own housework and is a very zealous churchman.—Westminster Gazette.

An Oddity of the Eruptions.

In the Century Professor Russell prints the following bit of personal observation among his conclusions concerning the West Indian eruptions:

The stones and dust shot upward from La Soufrière rose through the trade wind layer and were carried eastward by the upper air current. On falling, however, they again met the influence of the westward blowing trades and were given a slant in a westward direction sufficient to allow them to pass through windows and enter houses. The windows of some of the houses near Georgetown which face eastward have the appearance of an abandoned house which has served as a target for stones, while the westward facing windows, or those looking toward the volcano, are but little injured.

Man of Many Titles.

Of all the ruling sovereigns of Europe, the Austrian emperor can boast the largest number of titles of nobility and territorial rank. In addition to his imperial crown, his majesty is in nine different ways entitled to wear regal attire, twice is he qualified to be addressed as grand duke, once as archduke, eighteen times as duke, once as grand prince, and in numerous ways he is entitled to be called count or lord. In all, his different titles amount to considerably over a hundred.

ELEPHANT EARS.

Tanya, the Big Leaf Lawn Plant, Is Used as a Food.

A plant that has received very little attention as a source of food in this country is the caladium, or elephant ear, Colocasia antiquorum, though it is not uncommonly grown for this purpose in some of the southern states, and it may surprise some readers who know it only as an effective ornament of their lawns to hear of it as an article of food.

It is found oftenest in the coast region of South Carolina, Georgia and Florida, where it is known as "tanya," a local name, probably derived from "tannier," the West Indian name of a similar plant. In other countries, especially in the tropics, this plant furnishes food for many thousands of people. It is a very important food plant in Japan. The negroes of the Gold Coast in Africa have it under the name of "eddoes." It is common in the West Indies. It is the "taro" of the Sandwich Islands, where it is universally used as food, and from it "poi" is made by pounding the roots in water till they are reduced to dough, which is then allowed to ferment three or four days before eating.

In this country the tanya is cultivated to best advantage in rather moist, rich locations, and it requires a long season to bring it to maturity. It is planted in rows, the plants two to three feet apart, and cultivated like other crops. It forms a large, tuberous root, with numerous smaller tubers clustered closely about it. These smaller tubers are used for the planting of the next crop.

To make them properly edible the roots require thorough cooking and must be boiled for an hour, after which the fibrous outer coat is stripped off and the rest served in much the same way as we do potatoes. One who eats tanya for the first time is not likely to be favorably impressed, but on second trial usually likes it better, though it is unlikely that this dish can ever compete with the sweet potato for the favor of the American palate.

Botanically it is related to the Indian turnip of our woods and to the cultivated cala lily. Its virtue as a food plant is not made apparent by tasting the fresh leaves or the uncooked root, but its relationship to the Indian turnip is easily recognized from the pungent, acrid taste. The persistent, smarting pain that even small piece can produce remains long in the mouth and throat. This pungent quality disappears entirely after cooking, however, and the tubers may then be eaten with impunity. The tanya is starchy, like the potato, but compact and closer grained and somewhat lacking in flavor. It is entirely free from fibers or woody parts and possibly might be cooked by a different method so as to appear to better advantage.—Country Gentleman.

The popular view of the relation of the blood to human character and conduct is marked in many a familiar expression. We speak of there being "bad blood" between people at enmity, of "blue blood" as indicating ancestry, of "black blood" as describing a treacherous nature, and in many another phrase mark out our belief that in the mental, moral and physical man, "the blood is the life." The one basis of a healthy, happy and useful life is pure blood. With the blood pure, disease has no permanent lodging place in the system. For this reason the use of Dr. Piero's Golden Medical Discovery rids the body of diseases which have their origin in impurity of the blood. It absolutely purifies the blood, carrying off the waste and poisonous matter, increasing the action of the blood making glands, and building up the body by supplying the blood in quantity and quality such as is essential to a condition of health. It cures ninety-eight people out of every hundred who give it a fair trial.

Workmen at Avalon unearthed a grindstone and bell which have been identified as belonging to the Old Avalon factory destroyed in the flood in the Patapsco of 1898. Both were imbedded deep in the river bottom and well preserved, and the bell is to be put in service at the new powerhouse of the water company.

From an Old Hymnbook.

A writer in the Outlook, discussing the old subject of meaningless hymns or hymns whose sentiment is false, unpoetic or in bad taste, has been turning over the pages of his great-grandmother's hymnbook. "She loved to sing his praise in her temple," her epitaph says and here is what she sang:

And whosoever wicked is

And enemy to the Lord

Shall quail, ye melt, even as lambs' grease,

Or smoke that flies abroad.

Or this:

Why dost withdraw thy hand abacke

And hide it in thy lap?

Oh, pluck it out and be not slacke

To give thy foos a rap!

And was it only a hundred years ago since this was sung in worship?

Conceyed in sin, oh, wretched state,

Before we draw our breath

The first young pulse begins to beat

Iniquity and death.

Admiral Cervera's Quiet Life.

The Madrid correspondent of the Berlin Tageblatt contradicts the story of the poverty of Admiral Cervera and his neglect by Spain. According to the writer, the admiral is living in Puerto Real, an ancient town near Cadiz, where he is "loved and respected by all."

He often goes over to the arsenal at San Fernando, near by, where he has many friends, and also to Cadiz to spend the day at the headquarters of the captain general. His relations with those politicians still at the helm, who imposed on him the impossible task to break out of Santiago, are naturally rather cool, but he receives regularly his vice admiral's half pay, which, with his own private means, is sufficient for his necessities.—Chicago News.

THE REPUBLICAN SPLIT ON THE TARIFF.

It is evident, from events that appear to be multiplying rapidly, that the Republican party of the country will very soon—surely before the end of the next session of Congress—come to the parting of the ways over the issue of the protective tariff and the trusts.

Yesterday Hon. David B. Henderson, Speaker of the House of Representatives, was renominated by the Republicans of the Third Iowa district, which he has represented continuously since 1888. But he declined the nomination because he learned that many of his constituents are in favor of reducing the tariff as a means of fighting the trusts, while he is opposed to any interference with the tariff whatever.

If Speaker Henderson was an ordinary member of the House of Representatives, this action on his part would be regarded as merely significant—as a "straw indicating the direction of the wind." But the fact that he is one of the leading members and the presiding officer indicates that the wind is fast assuming the proportions and velocity of a tempest. When the Speaker of the House of Representatives voluntarily retires from Congress because he finds that he and his constituents are not in accord upon a vital matter of party policy, it indicates that either the member is wrong, or that his constituents are wrong. And the reasonable assumption from this incident will be that Speaker Henderson is wrong, and not his constituents. But his constituents are an important element of the Republican party, and the fact that they are not in accord with their distinguished Representative shows plainly how far the tariff wedge has entered into the body of the Republican party, and how it promises to rend it in twain.

The Republican party has long been the party of the protective tariff, but the iniquities of the protective tariff system have become so great, and the impositions upon the people through its outrageous, that no political party that endorses and sustains this system can appeal with confidence to popular support. The dilemma that confronts Speaker Henderson will confront other Congressmen, but many of them will not be inclined to follow his example. Then will come the open split in the Republican party over the tariff.—Every Evening.

The following letter from Mr. A. B. Farquhar, the head of the great Pennsylvanian Agricultural Work, written to the Farmers' Call, a farmers' paper published at Quincy, Ill., shows what an honest manufacturer thinks of the tariff and its relation to the farmer:

"The fact is that our protective laws are a monstrous swindle upon the agricultural community. As a manufacturer I was inclined to say nothing on the subject, for the reason that it was natural to suppose if anybody was benefited it was the manufacturing class to which I belong. But, as I have explained, the farmer is being destroyed. We are killing the goose that lays the golden egg. And I honestly believe now that it is to the interest of the manufacturers themselves to eliminate the protective feature from our tariff laws."

"Certainly, as our manufactured goods are sold much lower abroad, we could only need protection to get better prices from our customers at home. We do manufacture and sell in Canada, South America and Europe many agricultural machines and implements, and could we have free raw material and the commercial advantages which free trade would give us, America would become the great manufacturing emporium of the world, and the farmer of course, would share the prosperity, since he would have less to pay for everything and get better prices for all he sold. Go on with your good work. When the farmer begins to think and raise up against this swindle it is doomed."

Again the advice of McKinley, the adjudication of Roosevelt, the pledges of the Republican platform, the good faith of the Government and the dictates of humane consideration for a suffering people, the Republicans, rather than diminish the unjust profits of the Sugar Trust, refused to do justice to Cuba. It was but the triumph of greed over right and justice. The Republican party owes its lease of power to the Trusts and it cannot get far enough away from them to deliver an effective kick. Through the protective tariff, the infant industry has grown so rich and so strong, at the expense of the consumer, that they are now, through the Republican party riding rough shod over the rights of the people. These monsters the tariff have created have turned upon the nation and now hold it by the throat. And yet the Dingley bill still is in force. Still it compels the oppressed consumer to pay over a tribute into Trust coffers when he buys their goods. All the evils of the Trusts which were created by the tariff continue to grow greater so long as the tariff remains. Is it not time for revision? Is it not time to elect a party to power which has always been the consistent enemy of Trusts?

A Sanitarium in Salisbury.

Drs. Todd & Dick, together with some business men of Salisbury, have purchased of Adkins & Bailey the lot lying along Lake Humphreys to the left of the dam, with a view of establishing a sanitarium in the near future, for the treatment of nervous diseases.

These gentlemen have been many months quietly perfecting their plans for such an institution in Salisbury, but publicity of the scheme has been withheld, it being the purpose of the promoters to keep the matter from the public until all the details were arranged and ready to be put into execution.

The purchase of the lot was the initial step which awakened the gossip to the suspicion that a new enterprise was about to be launched.

Attorney Joseph L. Bailey is now preparing the papers, and the Court will be asked, within the next few days, to grant incorporation papers.

The Sanitarium will be conducted as a private enterprise, the land and buildings to be purchased with the stock subscriptions, and the cost of maintenance to be met by the fees charged for the treatment of patients. The institution will be open to sufferers from nervous diseases from all parts of the country.

There is no such institution on the Eastern Shore despite the healthful tonicity of its climate and the abundance and variety of its food supply. Drs. Todd & Dick, being the first to occupy the field, should find employment for their talents in this legitimate branch of their profession for which there is a constantly increasing need.

The spot chosen for the site of the institution is one of the most attractive in this locality. The new Peninsula General Hospital is now under construction on a neighboring eminence.

Sig. Sautelle's Circus.

Sig. Sautelle's all new monster railroad shows, museum, menagerie and ancient Roman Hippodrome will exhibit here Monday, upon which day and date the town folks and their neighbors may enjoy a rich and rare holiday. This year Mr. Sautelle has secured the greatest array of circus talent ever under one management. All of the artists constitute a mighty congress of nobodies, each of whom is world famous as an originator of death defying feats of superhuman grace and daring. They have hosts of imitators, but no equals and no one can afford to miss attending the Sig. Sautelle monster show on the above date, as the program is continually alive and inspiring. As usual there will be a street parade and this alone is worth coming miles to see, as it will prove a revelation of wealth and splendor. There will be over 200 men and women, 200 horses and ponies and 70 cages, dens and vehicles in line.

Big Water Spout.

One of the largest water spouts ever seen in New Castle arose Wednesday off Tasker's Iron Works and moved to the jetty. It was about forty feet in height, and consisted of an immense volume of water. It broke over the Jersey shore and did much damage to crops there. The boats on the river resorted to considerable maneuvering to keep out of the path of the water spout.

MONEY ON THE EASTERN SHORE.

How a Financial Question was Settled
By the Grave Judges of the Court of Appeals.

In the Maryland Court of Appeals presides a body of men who in all particular measure up to the dignity of their office. But these grave judges sometimes, in leisure moments when together in the privacy of their official chamber, unbend to indulge in a little friendly banter. On these occasions rare wit and humor abound. Sometimes the conversation turns upon the relative moral, intellectual and financial attainments of the particular locality from which the respective Judges come. This is the one theme of all themes which causes every Judge to bristle up and put each upon his keenest mettle. Invariably this discussion ends with the lines being drawn between the Eastern and the Western Shore. Judges Page and Pearce defend the Eastern Shore, while Chief Judge McSherry, Associate Judges Fowler, Boyd, Jones, Briscoe and Schmucker, tell the story of Baltimore City and the Western Shore.

Recently on such an occasion as is described above, Judge McSherry exultantly exclaimed, "Why, we have $1,000,000 in the banks of the city of Frederick alone which is more money than there is on the whole Eastern Shore". Instantly Judges Page and Pearce challenged the statement. But as nobody present had the figures at hand, settlement of the dispute was left open until the facts could be gathered from the Eastern Shore, which duty the two Eastern Shore Judges addressed themselves to, with the result that considerably more than $7,000,000 was found in the financial institutions of their section of the State. They had the figures compiled in neat form and certified to by the bank cashiers, then mailed a copy to Judge McSherry, with the sealing comment, "Banking is an infant industry on the Eastern Shore." No word has come back from the Chief Judge.

Plans For Fruit Exhibitions At The Next Annual Meeting Of The Maryland State Horticultural Society.

The Maryland State Horticultural Society will hold their next meeting in Dushane Post Hall, Baltimore, Thursday and Friday, December 18th and 19th. One of the most interesting features of the Society's meeting last year was the very fine display of fruits and vegetables, but an effort is being made to make the collection this year the largest and most interesting of any yet brought together. This can only be done with the co-operation of the growers, who are invited to prepare for the exhibit specimens of the different varieties of such fruit as they may have growing.

This is a most opportune time for the Eastern Shore to show its possibilities in apple culture. The growers in this section are urged to interest themselves in this matter and let Wicomico be well represented among the choice fruits exhibited at this horticultural meeting.

Further information relating to the Society may be obtained by addressing the Secretary, A. L. Quaintance, College Park, Md.

New Hospital Begun.

The work of erecting the new Peninsula General Hospital is now actively begun. The excavating is about finished and the foundation walls are being laid. The brick and mortar work is in charge of Mr. Lee Johnson. Thos. H. Mitchell has the general superintendence of the construction.

The walls will be of pressed brick with brown stone trimmings. One car load of the stone has already been delivered. Hon. Wm. H. Jackson is bearing the entire expense.

Sam. Leonard, the colored man who was almost smothered last week by the caving in of a bank of earth at the hospital, is recovering from his injuries and will soon be able to return to work.

One Man Slays Another.

Elwood Teakle Townsend inflicted two abdominal wounds with a tomato knife upon Larry Mitchell, eighteen years old, at Tomlinson's cannery factory, Friday morning. The injured lad was taken at once to the Peninsula General Hospital. Dr. Dick, upon examining the wounds pronounced one harmless, but he has grave fears that the other will prove very dangerous.

Townsend was not arrested at once, but later Chief of Police Elliott was sent to take him into custody.

TALMAGE SERMON

By Rev.
FRANK DE WITT TALMAGE, D.D.
Pastor of Jefferson Park Presbyterian Church, Chicago

Chicago, Sept. 14.—Friendly counsel to both parties in the unhappy labor struggle in the mining regions is offered by Rev. Frank De Witt Talmage in this sermon on the text Luke x, 27, "Thou shalt love thy neighbor as thyself."

A startling telegram was lying upon my desk as I sat down to write this sermon. It was direct information, sent to one of the Chicago newspapers, and it read: "Fifty thousand employees of Pittsburg's mills and factories face loss of work through a famine in fuel as a result of the prolonged miners' strike. Coal and coke stacks are nearly exhausted. It is asserted that some of the largest plants will be forced to close in a few days."

Terrible is the suffering which is being caused in the little towns and villages where the Pennsylvania miners live. A lady who just left the village of Shickshinny, which is situated in the heart of the coal region, told me that there the men and the women and the children were practically starving.

Even the dogs, gaunt and haggard, were running through the streets like famished wolves. More serious to the national welfare is it to think that hundreds of thousands and even millions of men, women and children all over the east are being indirectly affected on account of this miners' strike in addition to those who directly earn their daily wages in the mines.

But the social disturbances attending the Pennsylvania strike of 1902 are no worse than the Pullman strike of 1894, when the troops had to be ordered out and the fire bells ceased ringing lest they should summon together a crowd of starving men and women. Then President Cleveland sent the United States troops to clear the tracks for the mails, and the Gatling guns were unlimbered and made ready to "shoot to kill."

The present disturbance is no worse than the famous Homestead strike of 1892, when the Pinkerton men guarded the works night and day and when H. C. Frick, the superintendent, was nearly murdered, and the strike of this year and those of 1894 and 1892 as mere bagatelles compared to the awful railroad strike of 1878, when every great city—north, east and west—was terrorized and when human blood was being daily shed.

Capital and Labor.

The troubles between capital and labor on account of the strike are no worse here than in foreign lands. John Burns, the labor leader and a member of the present British parliament, told me that during the famous London dock strike of a few years ago the men under his leadership were so pressed by hunger that at times they became almost uncontrollable. It was only by the most level headed leadership that anarchy and riot were averted. One day he saw a large crowd of strikers assembled together. There were murmurings and curses uttered upon every side. He heard an anarchist in a nearby wagon pleading with the strikers to end their hunger by the torch and the murderer's weapon. Then John Burns, the labor leader, cried out in a loud voice: "Stand back, men! Stand back and let me pass!" The men stood back. John Burns passed through the opened lines until he came to the wagon and climbed up. Then he turned and said: "Men, you know I am your friend. You know my wife and children and myself are suffering hardship, just as you are. But, men, if you will hold out a little longer in this strike you will surely win—not, however, in the way my anarchist friend wants you to hold out. He says for you to use the anarchist's torch and the murderer's dagger; he says to use that means which will surely tie the hangman's noose about your neck and turn the artilleryman's guns upon your homes. Is he willing to do what he wants us to do?" With that John Burns took a daily newspaper out of his pocket, twisted it up as a torch, struck a match and lighted it. Then he turned to the anarchist and said, "Now, friend, take that torch and burn yonder building if you dare." The man's face became as white as death. "Then," said John Burns, "I lifted my fist and knocked him down as a butcher might fell an ox. With my foot I thrust him out of that wagon as though he were a mad dog, frothing at the mouth, trying to bite my heel."

Hunger is demoralizing; it is maddening when it is witnessed driving its fangs into those a man loves. However honest a man may be, his principles are in danger of failing if his wife and children through no fault of his are starving. I heard of one case that must be typical of the impulses of many who are controlling them with difficulty. It occurred a few years ago, when the silver mines of the west were closed down. A man walked into the village store and drew a pistol. Then he flung a bag of flour across his shoulder as he pointed his revolver at the men, saying: "When I could find work, I was always willing to work, and then I paid my bills. But now I cannot find work, and my babies are starving. I am going to get them something to eat. I am going to take this flour home. If any man tries to stop me, I will put a hole through his heart."

That may be anarchy, but that will be the anarchy this country will have to face if the time ever comes when the laboring classes cannot earn enough to buy their daily bread. The world does not owe a lazy, good for nothing loafer any lodgings better than the poorhouse or the county jail when he is alive or any burial place better than a grave in the potter's field when he is dead, but the world does owe every honest, faithful man who is willing to work the opportunity to work, and, furthermore, capital does owe this to its employees—when the good times come and capital prospers then wages should be increased and labor should prosper also.

"Now," answers some capitalist, "you are advocating a lot of high sounding nonsense. You are practically saying that every capitalist should become a philanthropist. He should turn his business into a co-operative concern and let his employees share as much as possible in his wealth. That does not go in business. Religion and business, like oil and water, do not mix. Business is not run upon the principle of the Golden Rule, but upon the law of supply and demand. We hire where we can hire the cheapest so we can manufacture the cheapest. We sell where we can sell the dearest. We make all the money we can. Then, if we want to be philanthropists and not business men, we give away as much as we please."

Mix Gospel With Business.

My capitalistic friend, your statements are wrong. The gospel and business do financially mix well. The capitalist who practices the Golden Rule in business and lets his employees share in his prosperity will "win out" every time. What was the history of George W. Childs? There never was a man who received happier financial results from practicing the Golden Rule, than did he. When Mr. Childs, a young man, took hold of the Philadelphia Ledger, it was a financial failure. All employees of that concern were placed upon the lowest possible wages. The trusted men were deserting at every possible chance and finding other places. What did George W. Childs do? He gathered his new employees about him and practically said: "Men, I cannot pay you much in the beginning, but I promise you one thing—as I prosper you shall prosper. Furthermore, when any of you become disabled by advancing years from work I will pension you for life, so that you can live in ease and support your children. If you will be true to me, I will be true to you. We shall go up together or go down together. I will consider the Ledger staff a big family, and as far as possible I shall find my future head men from those who are now working in the ranks."

Did the Golden Rule mean a failure in George W. Childs' life? As soon as new employees heard the ringing words of their chief they went to work with a will. The subscription list of the Philadelphia Ledger doubled and trebled and quadrupled. Why? Because when George W. Childs prospered the employees knew that they would prosper also. Because of their own prosperity as well as of his they worked as they never worked before. Those employees made thousands of dollars for themselves. They made millions upon millions of dollars for Mr. Childs. The magnificent results from practicing the Golden Rule in the Philadelphia Ledger can be duplicated in every other big business corporation in any part of the world.

But the trouble with most capitalists of the present day is that they refuse to do as Mr. Childs did. They shirk their individual responsibility. As your moneys are collected into a great trust or corporation and you only hold a few shares you say you are not responsible for what the whole concern may do. You are like the members of an execution squad who have been detailed to shoot a spy caught within the military lines. You say no one individual is responsible for the execution, because twenty-five bullets instead of one strike the doomed man's heart, but every capitalist who has his money invested in a corporation where starvation salaries are being paid to its employees is responsible for the damage that his money helps to do. He is responsible if child labor is engaged in his factory. He is responsible if men and women, on account of his indifference, go to their mental and physical and perhaps spiritual doom. He is his brother's keeper in so far as that he is bound to see that the man whose toll adds to his wealth has fair wages.

Cause of Social Upheaval.

But the laboring classes as well as the capitalists have sinned and helped to cause the present social upheaval.

The employee is not any more a saint than his employer. They both at times seem to be tarred with the same black stick. Yet the average laboring man pretends to think that all the cause for the present social upheaval is to be laid at the rich man's door and not at his own. In his own blind egotism he seems to be almost as contented with himself and his actions as was the old Quaker, grumbling against the peculiarities of the human race, when he said to his wife, "All the world is queer except me and thee, Mary, and thou art a little queer."

Do the laboring classes always make their employer's interest their own interest? Oh, no. There are thousands and hundreds of thousands of them who show little, if any, sense of moral responsibility. When engaging their services to a man, they do not for one instant stop to consider the money which that employer has invested in his plant. They do not stop to think of the financial risk he is running, of the seven years of financial depression which may come to him when he may have to run his works at a practical dead loss, as when the seven years of famine came to Joseph in the land of Egypt. They do not seem to realize that when they shirk their work they are stealing their employer's money, for time means money.

The different labor associations, like the Bricklayers' union, the Stone Cutters', the Carpenters and Builders', the Steam Fitters', Gas Fitters' and Plumbers' unions, the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers, of Firemen, Brakemen and Conductors, all have their beneficial mission. They ought to benefit capital as well as labor. They ought to be the means of putting through the different state legislatures laws to prevent the employment of children, to limit the hours of labor and to prevent flagrant injustices against their members. But the work of the modern labor union does not stop there. It often goes to the capitalist and tries to dictate what men he shall or shall not employ. It goes to the capitalists and says: "You must look upon every one of our members as an equal and pay all alike. You must pay just as much daily wages to the ordinary worker as to the skilled worker." Or the labor union goes to the capitalist who is paying satisfactory wages and whose employees are all contented and says: "Mr. So-and-so, we have got to call your men off on a sympathetic strike. We cannot make your neighbors pay the union rate. Therefore we shall stop work until the pressure compels your neighbors to yield."

"Well," answers some walking delegate, "that is an exaggerated illustration, but uniform wages to all union workers and, when necessary, sympathetic strikes are absolutely indispensable in their way, and we are only following the example of capitalists and employers in making such combinations. We must look after the interests of the laboring man and keep our labor unions intact. It is only by the co-operation of one union, fighting for the interests of other labor unions, that the pressure is applied and our reasonable demands are granted. The laboring man cannot practice the Golden Rule of looking after the interests of his employer or else he will starve to death. The first thought the laboring man must have is for himself, and himself alone."

Mutual Trust.

My laboring friend, if you cannot reach the high Christian standard of loving your employer as you would love yourself, you are simply heading toward the social economic wilderness. The greatest inspiration for future national prosperity is not to be found in the gold bricks which are stored away in the vaults of our national banks; it is in the mutual trust which the capitalistic and laboring classes ought to have in each other. If the average business firm could not trust its customers or was in such condition that the wholesale business houses could not trust it, that average business house would be wrecked within thirty days. The amount of money which is in circulation today is as nothing when compared to the billions upon billions of dollars' worth of business done in America every year. I was once told by a keen shrewd business man that at least 98 per cent of all business is done upon trust—upon the promise to pay or to do.

Now, if the capitalist cannot trust the laborer; if he feels that at any time a walking delegate might come into his establishment and command his men to cease work on account of some unreasonable demand, what does he do? Why, he naturally and wisely soliloquizes: "I cannot trust the labor market. If I should invest my money in a plant, my men may go out on a strike. Then I will be left high and dry with my property upon my hands, like a horse kept in the stable 'eating head off.' I will not risk my $150,000. I will buy government bonds or real estate first mortgages and take life easy." What is the result? Why, this rich man builds no factory, as he would have done, and masons, carpenters, gas fitters and the plumbers lose the contracts they would have had upon that building, and a great number of men and women who might have worked there go without steady employment. Then the commercial travelers and the merchants who would have been able to sell goods of that factory cannot sell them because the goods are not made, and the people who might have worked in those factories have earned no money with which to buy. Such cases are often a direct result of that capitalist refusing to build that one factory because of his distrust of labor. It is a wrong distrust and arises from blunders and lack of sympathy on both sides. All these evils accrue from the fact that neither the capitalist nor the laboring man will practice the Golden Rule and his neighbor as himself.

The Dove of Peace.

As a student of social economics I have carefully studied the prevailing conditions in Chicago during the years in which I have lived in the Queen City of the West. During the last five years scores of manufacturers have left our city and have transplanted their factories into the little towns far away from the labor centers because they could not trust the laboring classes.

Thus the white winged dove of peace today brings a practical gospel message to the capitalist and the laborer alike. She brings the same kind of practical help as the falcon of chivalric times did to his master. This knight, being very thirsty, would have drunk from a poisoned well. Again and again when his master lifted the cup filled with the deadly water to his lips the powerful wing of the falcon smote it out of his hand. At last the soldier examined the brook and found it filled with the waters of death. So the white wing of the gospel dove of peace would knock the chalice of selfish sin from the white hand of the capitalist as well as from the horny hand of toll.

Rich men, are you ready to have the words of my text translated and brought home to your hearts? Are you ready to cease lifting up the golden chalice of selfish sin? Are you ready to be changed so that your lives may become a blessing, like those of Peter Cooper and William E. Dodge and Baron Hirsch and Montefiore? If you are, then you will look upon your money as a gift from God for the helping of mankind. One of our presidents defined public office as a public trust. Your possessions you should regard as a sacred trust, held not for your own gratification or indulgence, but for the glory of God and the benefit of humanity. If you are ready for the lessons of the text, then you are ready to say: "Here is my money which God has given to me. By this money I can give many men employment and pay them sufficient wages whereby they can build comfortable homes. I can surround them with books and instruments of music. I can make it possible for them, with the advantages I shall give them, to develop their boys and girls into good men and good women." Capitalists, are you ready to do that? Workers, are you ready to feel that you can never be true to your employers and give to them the best service unless you do all in your power to develop your physical, mental and spiritual lives? Are you ready to say, "I will work and be true to my earthly employer because I am ready to work and be true to my Heavenly King?" If you are both equally ready to surrender your lives to the influence of the Golden Rule, then the words of my text will have accomplished their mission upon earth. Then the dark, wide, yawning, fathomless gulf between the employers and employees shall be bridged over by the straight beam of the cross. Then this land shall see its greatest era of temporal and spiritual prosperity. Then the millennium shall be ushered in. Then the capitalist and the laborer shall clasp hands as Christian brothers.

"Well," answers some walking delegate, "that is an exaggerated illustration, but uniform wages to all union workers and, when necessary, sympathetic strikes are absolutely indispensable in their way, and we are only following the example of capitalists and employers in making such combinations. We must look after the interests of the laboring man and keep our labor unions intact. It is only by the co-operation of one union, fighting for the interests of other labor unions, that the pressure is applied and our

SHARPTOWN

W. D. Gravenor & Bro. finished Bounds' new drug store building this week and Herman Spear, the painter, put on the finishing touches and Thursday Dr. F. J. Townsend put in a fine display of drugs and many other things usually carried along with the drug line. This enterprise is fully up to date and the Dr. being a most successful practitioner and practising in connection with his drug store has promise of much success.

Mrs. Sina Phillips, wife of L. J. Phillips of Camden, N. J. died at her home on Sunday of pneumonia at the age of forty five years, leaving a husband and six children, the youngest of which is about two years old. Her remains were brought here on Wednesday and interred in the M. P. Cemetery after funeral services in the M. P. Church by Rev. H. W. Johnson assisted by Rev. E. H. Miller. The funeral was very largely attended as she had many relatives here. She was the youngest daughter of the late John B. Twiford who died here about July second. The floral tributes were very beautiful. Among them being a fine pillow with the words "Our Mother," and a wheel a tribute from a society of which she was a member, one broken spoke and part of the rim removed indicating a lost member, and there was a cross from the Epworth League and many bouquets. She was much beloved by all who knew her. She was a good woman. Her early life was spent in this town where she had a host of warm and loving friends, who mourn the loss of one they dearly loved.

Ned R. Bounds visited Baltimore, Washington, and Alexandria this week.

Albin R. Windsor, book-keeper for Carr, Owens & Heimann, wholesale druggists of Baltimore spent several days with his mother. He was accompanied by his cousin, Albert Francis, a clerk in B. & O. service of Baltimore. Albin has many friends here and is always accorded a welcome.

Howard Walker is visiting relatives in Camden, N. J.

A. W. Robinson, W. T. Elliott, Joe R. Cooper, J. E. Twiford and Dr. E. Dawson visited Baltimore this week.

Prof. Woody and wife of New York gave an entertainment here on Monday night.

A plan is being made by which this town will have a weekly paper.

H. G. Elzey took his son Edmunds to the Peninsula General Hospital on Tuesday and returned Thursday with the boy very much improved. The boy had trouble with his head and was a great sufferer. Dr. Dick however, soon relieved him and he is now up and doing well.

Mrs. Emma Caulk returned to the Normal School this week for her second year.

Mrs. Celia Windsor is in Baltimore visiting her sister and her two children.

The new vessel was launched at the railway on Thursday, and was named the Victor C. Records for the son of Col. Wm. B. Records of Laurel, Delaware. The vessel will be run by Capt. John Griffith of Seaford. She is 130 feet keel, 28 feet beam, and 9 feet depth of hold. The owners live at Laurel, Bethel, Seaford and elsewhere. She is a very pretty model and is of the class known as "rams". She is well built and entirely satisfactory to the owners.

RAILROADERS' ANNUAL OUTING.

Our Correspondent Being In It And Of It Speaks As One Who Knows.

Messrs. Editors:—Were you ever on an outing with a crowd of railroad men and their better halves? No? Well you have missed half your life. I can make this assertion without fear of contradiction, for I was there and know whereof I speak. On Sunday morning last about the hour of three when you and perhaps all of your neighbors were wrapped in peaceful slumbers a special car attached to the Old Point Comfort express went whirling through your town, bearing within its confines as jolly a company as one would wish to join. What could be the inducement for those folks to leave their homes at this hour? Why they were on their annual outing bound for the shores of the balsam Chesapeake in quest of the luscious bivalve. Surely such a mission as this was enough to make one leave his downy couch before the break of day. It made the old feel young again and the sorrowful were filled with gladness when Cape Charles, our destination, was reached. The party found train master, Mr. A. G. Manahan and his assistant, Mr. Jos. J. Rosenstein at the station to receive them. We immediately repaired to the Beach front where breakfast had been prepared and full justice was done to the preparations. Salt air however increased one's appetite and noon found us again devouring the luscious oyster, served in every style and in such manner as is only known to Mr. Isaac Moore, the Delaware Railroad Chef.

The only event that marred the happiness of the party was the sudden and mysterious disappearance of two members thereof namely, Messrs Wm. J. Johnson and Howard Reader of Wilmington. This duel was missed early in the afternoon and organized and diligent search failed to reveal their whereabouts and grave apprehensions were felt for their safety.

In the twilight however these prodigal sons appeared in the distance laboring under an apparently heavy burden. Upon near approach the burden proved to be a long pole suspended between them with three four inch fish hanging upon it. The result of an afternoon's patient angling.

At the suggestion of Mr. B. J. Barker, spokesman, the party extended to Messrs. Manahan and Rosenstein and the other officials of the Railroad a vote of thanks for courtesies tendered them during the day. The party returned by the Norfolk express Sunday evening all feeling better for the day's outing. Those of the company were the following:

Mr. and Mrs. L. E. Powell, Mr. and Mrs. J. Frank Baldwin, Mr. and Mrs. John Fleming, Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Garille, Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Hitch, Mr. and Mrs. H. V. Eason, Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Morris, Mr. and Mrs. Dave Reader, Mr. and Mrs. J. T. Sweeney, Mrs. James Hanson, Miss Ruth Harwood, Mr. Leon Eason, Mr. Isaac Moore, Mr. Howard Reader, of Wilmington, Del. Mr. and Mrs. R. F. Barker, Mr. and Mrs. Jos. Frazier, Miss Lulu Barker, Miss Maud Nelson, Mr. Herbert Sipple, Mr. F. Lee Mc Barker, Mr. T. R. Phillips, of Delmar, Del.

Resolutions of Respect.

The following resolutions were unanimously adopted last Thursday evening at the regular meeting of the Knights of Pythias:

Whereas in the order of an all-wise, yet mysterious Providence, our brother in Pythian knighthood, Eugene O. Cooper, has been removed from our Order by death.

Now, therefore, be it resolved by the Knights of Pythias, No. 56, Knights of Pythias, that in the death of Brother Cooper, this Lodge has lost a faithful Knight, a true and loyal brother, and one who, in the discharge of life's duties was at all times honest, faithful and conscientious.

Resolved, that we tender to his relatives and especially our Pythian brother, Oscar B. Cooper, our heartfelt sympathy, and commend them in their hour of sorrow to the protection and care of the Supreme Ruler, who unfailingly sustains his people amid the peculiarly sad and mysterious Providence of life.

Resolved that a copy of these resolutions be spread upon the minutes of this Lodge, and that copies be sent to the family of the deceased and to the local papers for publication.

Geo. W. D. Waller,

Committee.

Test Drinking Water.

The supply of drinking water for the family should be tested at least once a year. Water that at one time is pure and wholesome may become too impure for use, yet it may be without color and have no odor or taste.

A simple test of drinking water is the Melish sewage test. Fill a clean pint bottle three quarters full of the water to be tested, and dissolve in it half a teaspoonful of granulated sugar. Cork it and set in a warm place for two days. If during this time it becomes cloudy or milky it is unfit for domestic use, says "Health Magazine." If it remains perfectly clear it is probably safe.

Merchants Vs Professionals.

The Merchants and Professional men played their much advertised game on Wednesday before an audience of 800. Before the game the "tip" was given that the Merchants were easy winners and at the start the crowd was nearly all with the Professionals. But before many innings were played the Merchants seemed to be outclassed, the score standing 5 to 1 against them.

From this time on the sympathy of the crowd was with the Merchants who had to take much good natured banter from the apparently victorious Professionals. From the sixth inning on however the tide seemed to turn and every thing went with the Merchants until in the ninth amid the wildest rooting and cheering they scored two runs and won the game by a score of 8 to 7. The rooting of the crowd in the last three innings evidently caused the Professionals to "go up in the air" and many of their errors were ludicrous. The game itself was a mixture of good plays and bad plays but on the whole it was much better played than was expected. Many sore muscles and stiff joints were reported on Thursday but this did not dampen the enthusiasm and the same teams are scheduled to play again next Wednesday.

The line up of the two teams follows, Professionals, L. Atwood Bennett, Pitch; W. S. Richardson, Catch; C. R. Truitt, 1st B; G. Vickers White, 2nd B; E. C. Fulton, 3rd B; W. S. Gordy Jr., S.; E. Riall White, L; F. L. Waller, C. F.; Harry Ruark, R. F.; Merchants, Jesse Guthrie, Pitch; C. W. Bennett, Catch; Jos. E. Davis, 1st B; Harry Mayer, 2nd B; Peter Bounds, 3rd B; Bernard Ulman, S.; L. F. Coulbourn, L; F.; John Farlow, C. F.; B. Frank Kennerly, R. F.

SEPTEMBER COURT.

Good Behavior Of Wicomico People Makes Dull Proceedings.

The September term of the Wicomico Circuit Court convened last Monday morning at 10 o'clock, and has been dragging along uninterestingly through the week.

Judge Holland was alone on the bench when the hour arrived, last Monday, to open court. After the usual method the jury was called and the Court selected the grand jury as follows:

L. Lee Laws, (foreman) Geo. T. Dove, William A. Riggan, James E. Kenney, William J. Ennis, Dr. Edgar W. Smith, Wilbur F. Jester, Jacob Morris, Wm. H. Heath, Fred J. Farlow, Eli Hastings, Emory M. Bothards, Ward Hopkins, J. Phillips, Harry K. Williams, Zadoc K. Evans, R. McKenney Price, Dr. E. W. Humphreys, George W. Messick, W. H. Beach, Peter Dykes, Saml. P. Parsons and Levin J. Wilson.

The Petit Jurors for this term are as follows; James T. Ellis, Azariah P. Disharoon, Virgil Gordy, James Waller, Elisha L. Parker, Herbert N. Messick, Amonitas Covington, John D. H. Lewis, Andrew L. Polit, Wm. L. Wilson, Harry Crawford, Thad D. Disharoon, Wm. J. Downing, Elihu E. Twilley, A. J. Carey, Robert L. Griffith, Uriel Oiphant, Lambert H. Cooper, Charles W. Bacon, L. Beauregard Gillis, William E. Dorman, Fred P. Adkins, A. Lee Pollitt and Charles H. Guthrie.

The calling of the dockets revealed very little that promised to make interesting Court proceedings which reaffirms the good morals of the county and tends to favor the tax-payers, hence the public should be willing to excuse the lack of lively incidents. The cases disposed of were:

No. 1 Appeals. James Kenney vs State of Maryland. Appeal from Justice John Phillips. A appeal dismissed. Graham & Fitch for appellant; Bailey for State. Kenney was fined $25 and costs before the Justice for shooting muskrats at night with lantern.

No. 2 Appeals. Edward Kenney vs. State of Maryland. Appeal from same Justice. Appeal dismissed. Graham & Fitch for appellant; Bailey for State. Same charge as above.

No. 3 Appeals. Levinia Parsons vs. State of Maryland. Appeal from Justice Turpin. Plea not guilty and traversed before Court. Court finds traversed not guilty. George W. D. Waller and E. H. Walton for appellant. Bailey for State.

No. 4 Appeals. Joseph Parsons vs. State of Maryland. Appeal from Justice Turpin. Plea not guilty and traversed before Court. Not guilty. Waller and Walton for appellant; Bailey for State.

No. 42 Trials. J. Hillary Brattan vs. William B. Brattan. Case of replevin. Settled by each party paying his own costs.

No. 10 Appeals. William J. Johnson vs. George W. Giadde. Appeal from Justice Trader. Judgment affirmed with costs to appellee. E. H. Walton for appellant; Bennett & Douglass for appellee.

Wm. E. Hastings, who was under bond for his appearance before court, charged with seduction, failed to answer to his name having taken "leg bail", and his bond was forfeited, judgment being entered accordingly. Wm. T. Godfrey was tried by jury for attempted rape. The jury acquitted him. Mr. Bailey for the prosecution, Jay Williams, Graham & Fitch and Toadvine & Bell for defense. Most of Thursday and Friday were spent in waiting upon the grand jury whose work was retarded by the difficulty of finding witnesses. The likelihood is that court will adjourn today. Saturday, a number of minor offenses to be in the meantime heard and disposed of. Chief Judge Page and Associate Judge Lloyd were on the bench with Judge Holland a part of the week.

The Board of Health stopped Sautelle's circus from going to Lewes, Del. The circus had obtained the necessary permit from Mayor Thompson, and its manager was somewhat ruffled in the matter, and defied the health authorities for a time until instructions from the State Secretary, Dr. Lowber, told the local Board of Health to have the sheriff of the county on hand to take possession of the entire equipment upon arrival, then the circus people gave up. The cause of this action was the presence of several cases of smallpox in that vicinity. The health authorities have equipped a quarantine camp about two miles from Lewes, and have eight patients. The camp has several canvas tents and is equipped with a nurse, cook and watchman.—Ex.

PRESIDENT UNDER SURGEON'S KNIFE.

His Western Trip Abandoned—Operation Is Successfully Performed.

President Roosevelt's Western tour was suddenly ended at Indianapolis by the necessity of performing a surgical operation for the removal of an abscess in his left leg, between the knee and the ankle, which had developed as a result of his carriage accident at Pittsfield, Mass., September 3.

The fact that a serious abscess had developed had been carefully concealed. At length the President, in spite of his desire to keep going, found it unbearably painful to remain on his feet.

After making a number of speeches in Indiana on the final day of his tour he was entertained at luncheon at the Columbia Club, Indianapolis. At 3:15 P. M. he left the club in his own carriage and was driven to St. Vincent's Hotel. The operation was performed there by Dr. George H. Oliver, of Indianapolis, who was in consultation with the President's physician, Dr. George A. Lang, and with Dr. George J. Cook, Dr. Henry Jameson and Dr. J. J. Richardson.

At the close of the operation the surgeons announced that the trouble was "not serious, but temporary disabling." They also stated that the indications favor speedy recovery, and that it is imperative the President shall remain quiet for a time.

The President was moved on a stretcher at 7:45 P. M. to a train, which left for Washington a few minutes later.

In his speech at Logansport, Ind., preceding the operation Mr. Roosevelt declared in favor of a revision of tariff schedules without abandoning the principle of protection. He advocated non-partisan consideration of this question and suggested a commission of experts to deal with it.

Mr. Hill Visits Smyrna.

Rev. Chas. A. Hill, pastor of Asbury M. E. Church of this city, spent last Sunday in Smyrna, to be present at the opening exercises of the Jubilee in commemoration of the one hundred and twenty-fifth anniversary of the entrance of Methodism in Smyrna, which is being held this week in Asbury M. E. Church of that place.

The committee, in making out the program, deemed it advisable that the first speakers of the Jubilee should be the latest pastors of the church. Consequently Rev. Mr. Hill was chosen to preach the opening sermon Sunday morning, and was given a very cordial greeting.

The Smyrna Times, in speaking of the services said:

"The morning sermon was delivered by the Rev. Charles A. Hill, who took for his text the tenth and eleventh verses of the third chapter of the Epistle of Paul, the apostle, to the Philippians: 'That I may know Him, and the power of His resurrection, and the fellowship of His suffering, being made conformable unto His death; if by any means I might attain unto the resurrection of the dead.' In vigor of thought, in terseness of style, in strength of oratory, combined with the simple, plain, spiritual understanding of his subject, it was a magnificent pulpit effort and held the close attention of his congregation for over an hour.

His graphic description of Christ before Pilate was picture painting of the highest class and called forth comment. The sermon dwelt particularly on Christian duty and the reward of a life well spent."

Mr. Hill's pulpit here was filled morning and evening by Rev. G. W. Wilcox.

Anual Berlin Races.

Tuesday October 16 has been set aside as the "Big" fall day for Berlin annual races at Franklin's Driving Park. Mr. T. T. Savage, the secretary of the Association has been industriously at work now for several weeks making preparations for this gala event.

The fast and close racing of last October will long be remembered by the hundreds of spectators from Maryland, Delaware and Virginia who were delighted by the exhibitions. The races this year will commence at 1 o'clock sharp and continue throughout the afternoon. There will be $100 in purses. Entrance fee, 5 per cent of purse. Winners 5 per cent extra.—Berlin Herald.

Fish Plentiful.

Fish are now so plentiful in the Chesapeake bay that all the fish factories on the lower part of the bay are kept very busy handling the good catches. Many factories were run at a loss at the beginning of the season. The business promises to be as good as it was last summer.

CAMPAIGN COMMITTEE MEETS.

Democrats Hear Favorable News From Every County on the Shore.

"Open Letter" From Mr. Ellwood.

The Democratic Congressional Campaign Committee met in Easton on Wednesday and organized for a vigorous campaign. The ground was thoroughly gone over, and plans were made to make an active fight from the start. All the members of the Committee were present and the reports of every member showed that Mr. Ellwood's nomination had been received with enthusiasm throughout the entire Eastern Shore. The following letter was approved and it was determined at any cost to conduct the campaign along these lines.

"Resolved, This 24 day of September, 1902, by the Democratic Campaign Committee in meeting assembled, that we approve of the letter of Hon. Jas. E. Ellwood, which is as follows:

OPEN LETTER.

To the voters of the first Congressional district of Maryland.

We, the undersigned candidates of the Democratic and Republican parties respectively, for the First Congressional District of Maryland, recognizing the great and increasing evil of the corrupt use of money in politics, and the danger that must accrue therefrom and with sincere desire to abate it as far as we can, do hereby in perfect good faith, solemnly pledge our sacred honor, each to the other, and to the public, that we will use our best endeavors for the enforcement of the law against bribery, and to prevent the illegitimate use of money, either before or at the day of election, that is to say, using the language of the Constitution, "we nor neither of us, will not ourselves, nor permit anyone else with our knowledge or consent, give or offer to give directly or indirectly any bribe, present, reward or any promise or any security for the payment, or the delivery of any money or of any other thing, to induce any other voter to refrain from casting his vote, or to prevent him in any way from voting, or to procure a vote" for us, or either of us.

"2d. That we will use our best endeavors to have the Campaign and County Central Committees of our respective parties organize and cooperate with us for the observance and enforcement of the law against bribery, and to this end, if it be necessary, will contribute to a common fund, to be expended by a select committee, to be chosen by the Candidates from their respective parties, for the suppression of this vice.

Respectfully submitted,
JAMES E. ELLEGOOD,
Candidate on Democratic Ticket.

Candidate on Republican Ticket.

And we do hereby request the Hon. William H. Jackson, Candidate for the Republican party, this First District of Maryland, together with the Campaign and County Central Committees of said party, to meet the Candidate of the Democratic party, the Hon. James E. Ellwood, and the Campaign and County Central Committees of said party, to the purpose of effecting an organization for the suppression of bribery in this Congressional District, said meeting to be not later than the 4th day of October next. The date and place of meeting to be fixed by said William H. Jackson.

CANNED GOODS RISING.

Strong Demand From All Parts of the Country.

The canned goods market is strong and active, and higher prices are looked for. There is a good demand from all sections of the country, and many express the opinion that the scarcity of canned goods and the high prices which prevailed last winter will be repeated this coming season. The combined efforts of the canned goods packers and brokers in effecting a reduction of freight rates to the West have caused Western buyers who have been holding off to enter the market, and these buyers are now purchasing freely.

During the last two weeks the price of three pound standard tomatoes have advanced from 85c to $1 a dozen, and gallon cans from $2.75 to $3.50 a dozen. The recent cold weather has retarded the maturing of the tomato. Consequently, the arrival of tomatoes suitable for packing purposes has been somewhat restricted.

The frost in Maine and New York has resulted in the packers of those sections falling short in corn contracts 60 to 70 per cent. This has caused a big demand for Maryland packed corn and resulted in an advance of 10 cents a dozen within the past two weeks. Standard grades of corn are quoted at from 55 to 60 cents a dozen, and extra fancy from 80 to 90 cents a dozen.

The peach packing period is now about over, and as there has not been more than 80 per cent. of the usual pack, the market is very firm. There has been a good demand for peaches and values recently have advanced from 5 to 10 cents a dozen, and will probably go much higher.

Safe Predictions For The Campaign.

Perhaps it is a little early in the season for a campaign prophet, but we venture to make a few safe predictions.

The registration will give great satisfaction to the leaders of both parties. Mud-throwing will be severely discredited by the candidates at whom the mud is thrown.

A few unimportant kickers and soreheads will break away from our side, but the other party will suffer large and significant desertions. The better element of our opponents including many dyed-in-the-wool party men, who never voted anything but a straight ticket, will throw aside their shackles this year and vote with us for everything that is good.

All estimates made by campaign managers will be extremely conservative. The outlook will be particularly rosy. The people will be so enthusiastic for us that we will be able to elect a yellow dog this year. This being the case it will not be surprising if we have a few yellow dogs on the ticket.

As we have already intimated we look for an epidemic of color blindness around election time.

The other side will be snowed under, otherwise there will be a lucid explanation why it wasn't. If, by any chance, through intimidation, colonizing, fraud or pure cussedness on the part of the voters, the other ticket wins then we will be found standing shoulder to shoulder the day after election, doing a little ragchewing, perhaps over the question whose fault it was, but preparing undauntedly for the great struggle of 1904.

Maryland Agricultural College.

The regular work of the Maryland Agricultural College has begun. Seventy-five new students have matriculated. The college proper can accommodate only about 120 students and has been compelled to turn away applicants for want of dormitory room.

The addition to the college building, for which an appropriation was made at the last session of the Legislature, will soon be underway, and will, when finished, increase the capacity of the college to 250 students.

The vacancy in the chair of horticulture, caused by the resignation of Professor Sandston, who has gone to Wisconsin Agricultural College, has been filled by Prof. C. T. Austin, late of the Alabama State Experiment Station.

SALUTES AT SEA.

Courtesies That Must Be Observed
by Ship Captains.

In the days before cannon and indeed until comparatively recent times a vessel made its salutation by lowering its flag. This is the oldest and most honorable greeting which a ship can give, and it ranks before the booming of guns, however many. This salute has always been demanded by English seamen, and its exactness has burned the hearts and the powder of generations of naval commanders. For a foreign ship, whether merchant or martial, to enter an English port without veiling topsails or lowering its national flag was to court the chances of war, though the profoundest peace existed. Without warning or argument the shore defenses or a man-of-war sent a round shot across the bows or between the masts of the insolent intruder, and if the offending flag came not down instantaneously the foreigner was brought to his senses by being raked through and through. Such was the reception accorded by John Hawkins to the Spanish admiral who in time of peace sailed into Plymouth sound without veiling his topsails or striking his flag. The Dutch vehemently resisted the British demand, and it was not until 1873 that they finally agreed to strike the English colors in home waters. The same honor was formally assented to by France in 1704, although it had been long exacted by Britain.

Until modern times it was regarded as a high misdemeanor for a merchant vessel to pass one of his majesty's ships without dipping her ensign, and the consequence was that a shot across her bows compelled her to heave to while her captain's name was taken, the admiralty instituting a prosecution against him for his negligence. The trading ship dips her ensign and waits for the man-of-war's dip in return. Then she dips again, and after that if strict etiquette she ought to dip a third time, but this is seldom done now. The maritime supremacy of Britain is still enforced by the refusal of any British war vessel to dip its flag to any foreign ship until the latter has first lowered its colors, and this acknowledgment of precedence is required not only in home waters, but in all seas.

But naval salutes are now essential matters of etiquette and are exchanged under an elaborate code arranged between foreign powers and the admiralty in 1870. The number of guns to be fired under all conceivable circumstances is minutely stipulated. Second to the salute of twenty-one guns in honor of royal personages and national flags are nineteen rounds given to ambassadors. Colonial governors, foreign possessions and fortresses receive seventeen guns and envoys extraordinary and ministers plenipotentiary fifteen. Two guns less are fired for lieutenant governors. Charge d'affaires are treated to eleven, consuls general to nine and a mere consul to seven. The salute for admirals of the fleet is seventeen guns and for admirals simple fifteen. Vice admirals are greeted with thirteen and rear admirals with two less, while nine guns are fired for commodores, captains and lower officers being classed as not worth the burning of powder.—London Standard.

A Two Country Postoffice.

The most curious postoffice in America is the one which stands in Beebe Plain, a town half in Vermont and half in the province of Quebec, Canada. The old postoffice was built about seventy-five years ago exactly on the line between the United States and Canada, so that it stands in two countries and serves in the postal service two nations. The cellar of the building connects the two countries, and some years ago, when the postoffice was a general store, whisky was known to be sold in one country and delivered in another without having gone out from under the roof of the old structure.

The combination postoffice is now being run by parent and child, the father being postmaster for Canadian Quebec and the daughter postmistress for Vermont. Standing in front of this strange postoffice is a large post, which marks the boundary line, and it is said that one time a man who wanted to get a roadway to his premises moved this post, and many thousands of dollars and no little time were spent to establish the exact line again.

Bible in Four New Tongues.

Four hitherto unknown tongues, so far as print is concerned, are now being added to the list of languages in which the British and Foreign Bible Society prints the gospels, and of these three are for the benefit of subjects of his majesty. The New Testament is to be turned into Nyanja for the tribes of the Shire river bank, Nyassaland, and in this work the Livingstonia mission of the United Free Church of Scotland, the Bantyre mission of the Established Church of Scotland and the Myers mission of the Dutch Reformed church are collaborating. A version in Yulunka is nearly ready for natives of the Falaba district of Sierra Leone and in Bugoto for the inhabitants of Ysabel Island, one of the Solomon group. Lastly a translation into Visayan, spoken by some 2,000,000 persons in the Philippine archipelago, is being undertaken. All are enterprises of great interest to philologists.—London Telegraph.

The Newer Prison Idea.

Newgate, happily, is one of the few surviving prisons of the olden time, and now it, too, is to disappear. It is a long and dreary way between these prisons of the olden time and those of today, in which punishment is based on the ideas of public safety and the cure of certain moral obliquities, for which it is held the individual is not wholly responsible. The old prisons were starting places for the guillotine and the gallows; the new are sought to be made a starting place for a better life.—Des Moines Register and Leader.

HALF A MILLION.

A Careful Estimate of the Jewish Population of New York.

The Jewish World publishes a careful estimate of the number of Jews in Greater New York, based for the first time on the only sure statistical foundation, the number of Jewish burials as recorded by the board of health. These amounted in 1901 to 7,007, and as the death rate in the most congested Jewish district is little over 15 per 1,000 this implies a population of 533,133 in the middle of 1901. Since that time no less than 30,228 have arrived at New York and stayed there, while by natural increase of births over deaths another 12,400 would be added up to Aug. 1 of this year, making a grand total of 584,738.

That this is rather under than over the actual state of the population is shown in various ways. The number of Jewish marriages in Manhattan alone in 1901 was 5,062, which, at a very high marriage rate of 10 per 1,000, would imply a population of 506,200, to which have to be added the 70,000 Jews of Brooklyn and the increase by immigration and excess of births, as before. The high rate of marriage is due to the fact that so large a proportion of the Jewish immigrants are adults, three bachelors to every two spinsters.

Again, since 1881 the number of Jewish immigrants has been counted each year and amounts to date to 627,850 who have arrived in New York, of whom 459,055 have stayed there. Counting the 45,000 Jews who were in New York in 1881 and the natural increase during the twenty-one years as 105,903, a total is reached of 600,958.

A further confirmation is obtained from the nationalities of the residents of New York as declared by the census of 1900. Taking the Jewish percentage of those either born in Russia or of Russian parentage as 80 per cent would give 394,605; Austria at 70 per cent, 123,340; Germany at 6 per cent, 66,114; England at 3 per cent, 6,270, and adding the whole of the Roumanians then in New York there is reached a sum of 607,843 without reckoning the immigration and increase since 1900.

Altogether it is clear that the calculation founded on the death rate is a conservative and minimum estimate and that the Jews of New York number over 600,000, or 16.5 per cent of the total population, whereas 500,000 reside on Manhattan Island, or 27 per cent. Every fourth man or woman you meet with on Manhattan is a Jew or Jewess—Jewish World.

The Yale Foreign Mission.

Some details of the Yale foreign mission are given in the Yale Alumni Weekly.

A house is now being built in Peking for the two Yale men who will go there in the autumn for the first year of study of the Chinese language and customs. One of these Yale men is the Rev. Lawrence Thurston, '98, who has just completed a theological course at the Hartford seminary. The other one had not been determined upon at the time when the article was written. In the autumn of 1903 these two will be joined by two more Yale men. One of these will be the Rev. Harlan P. Beach, '78, and the other is still to be selected. Mr. Beach will be the director in China of the mission. He has already served in that country as a missionary for eight years and therefore already knows his China very well. These four will then decide upon the actual site of the Yale settlement in the far east. It seems to be determined that this site shall be in north China, in the region where American trade with China has attained its most considerable proportions.

Bishop Whipple's Cathedral.

The tower of Bishop Whipple's cathedral, at Faribault, Minn., is now about half finished. The tower is called the Bishop's tower and was begun in his honor, gifts for its erection coming from this country and foreign lands. The names of the givers are preserved in parchment in illuminated text, and already the book has grown to fair proportions. Treasured as it is to be in this tower, it will show to generations yet unborn by its remarkable list of names the place which the founder of the diocese of Minnesota held in the hearts of many peoples. Distinguished and titled names are followed by the humblest, and close upon the names of the archbishops of Canterbury and York, the bishops of London, Winchester, etc., and that brilliant friend of Carlyle, Lady Ashburton, come those of the different tribes of Indians, while churchmen, Roman Catholics, Protestants of all denominations are flanked by colored people of the south. In one case an offering was made by every man, woman and child of a colored town in Florida.

Arguments For Vegetarianism.

Vegetarianism has been re-enforced by a fresh supply of testimony from Germany and from Japan. In a recent walking match from Dresden to Berlin, a distance of over 12 miles, the first six to arrive were all vegetarians, the winner covering the entire distance in less than twenty-seven hours, certainly a very extraordinary performance. An eminent European physician says that the soldiers of Japan, who are entirely vegetarian, have far more endurance than European troops and that this was abundantly evidenced during the recent military operations in China. The diet of the Japanese soldier is entirely composed of barley, rice and beans. On one occasion he knew a company of men to trot a distance of twenty-five miles daily in the heat of the sun and bearing a load of 176 pounds. After the expiration of fourteen days one of the men had gained a pound in weight. He then supplied them with a little meat, which they rejected after three days' trial.—Detroit Tribune.

Letter To S. A. Graham.

Dear Sir: Mr. H. H. Stephenson, Cashier of Oil City (Pa.) Savings Bank writes: "Nine years ago I painted my house with your paint. It wore so well, I want to use it again."

That's nothing wonderful except for the fact that the soft coal region of Pennsylvania is pretty hard on paint with its oil, smoke and grime. All we see in it is that Devoe is good for nine years sometimes. There are thousands of people that know it, and millions that don't.

There's the rub! We paint for the millions; we want to make paint for the millions.

Mr. Cashier, do you know that Devoe lead and zinc is worth twice as much as old fashioned painter's paint, lead and oil, and costs no more? It is 100 per cent a fair profit in your business?

Three quarters of the people paint lead and oil mixed by hand; while the U. S. Government use lead, zinc and oil ground together by machinery—same proportions as Devoe lead and zinc. The majority never is right about anything.

Yours truly,
F. W. DEVON & CO.

H. D. Smith, alias Fred Crosby, who recently spent a few days at a Cumberland hotel, is badly wanted by the Secret Service for having passed raised money orders, in bunches of 5 and 10, at different points. He secured a money order for $1 and then raises it to $10 by erasing the word "one" with acid and substituting "ten" and by adding a cipher to the 1.

For 10 years he practised law in the Caroline county courts, and was admitted to the ministry 30 years ago as a member of the Wilmington Conference.

FOR CONGRESS:
JAMES E. ELLEGOOD,
OF WICOMICO COUNTY.

ORGANIZE FOR WORK.

The democrats in this county and throughout the entire district must at once begin the active work of organization for the coming battle. It will not do to rest supinely with the belief that, because a wise and popular choice has been made in the selection of our standard bearer, victory is assured. Nor will it do for the rank and file of the Democratic party to think that a few leaders can do the work. Every individual member of the party should cheerfully lend his aid to the work of arousing the people to the importance of the coming election. If there was ever a fight waged in the interests of the whole people, that battle will be fought at the polls in November next.

Campaigns on the Eastern Shore are no child's play. They require brains and ceaseless effort to bring victory. The Democratic party has an opponent, in the Republicans on the Eastern Shore, capable of making a strong fight.Flushed with National success and the victory of 1900 in this Congressional District, they will battle for every inch of ground in the coming campaign. Let no Democrat fool himself with the thought that success is already ours. Democratic supremacy can be attained in the First Congressional District this year, but only after hard and persistent work by the party at large. Every district in every county on the Shore must be thoroughly organized. Every voter in each district must be reached and the true issues at stake plainly set forth to him.

Hundreds of Democrats are not now on the registration books. These must all be looked after, for every Democrat in the district not on the registration books on election day means a half vote for the Republicans.

If the Democrats can once be aroused to the importance of organization and work, no fear need be had as to the result but if apathy and indifference are to mark their campaign then the outcome is already foreshadowed. Let every district and precinct at once organize for work, let clubs be formed and let every Democrat feel that he has a personal interest in the campaign and its results.

THE SITUATION IN CECIL.

Bon. James E. Ellegood, the Democratic nominee for Congress in the First district, visited Cecil county this week and met a number of prominent citizens. He created a most favorable impression which with his reputation for integrity and high character gives him a pleasing introduction to our people.

There are no factional troubles in the county that will affect Mr. Ellegood's candidacy and there is no reason why he should not receive the full party vote. In addition he should receive the support of every voter who is independent enough to put principles above party and who recognizes in Mr. Ellegood a candidate who stands for the higher and the purer in politics. On the other hand he will probably lose a large percentage of the purchasable vote for which he will make no bid.

The contest on the liquor question in Cecil will bring out a pretty full vote, which will favor the Democratic candidate, so unless the Republican cause is spent very freely Cecil county ought to give Mr. Ellegood a handsome majority.—Cecil Democrat.

—When a political organization is controlled by the Trusts, and that organization is in control of the Government, then that government ceases to be of the people or by the people; but of the suffering millions by the luxuriant few. Look at the situation in the mining districts.

—In his speeches dealing with the Trust question, the President constantly expresses the fear that in applying a remedy for the Trusts, he will hurt the dear creatures. He would let them go on in their career of criminal combination in restraint of trade; he would permit them to continue their criminal extortion from the American consumer, he would let them go unpunished for these things which are, according to the laws of the land, crimes, rather than hurt the feelings of one of them. He would give them a soothing syrup where they need a physic; he would rock them to sleep where they need a spanking, all because it would hurt him politically to do otherwise.

When the Trusts control the markets in the country; when they can and do fix arbitrary prices for the things the American people must buy; when they continue their criminal operations in open defiance of the law, is it not time to use heroic remedies? Do we refuse to hang the murderer because it would hurt his feelings? Do we refuse to punish the thief because he has some good trait?

The time has come when we must curb the Trusts, or the time will come when we cannot curb them. If the only cure is heroic treatment, then let it be heroic treatment.

But why talk about checking the Trusts at all unless we first propose to take away the tariff that has made them, unless we first propose to deprive them of the tariff behind the shelter of which they are safe from any law we may enact.

—President Roosevelt said in his North Carolina speech that there was no patent device by which we can make the country prosper. In other words, he tells us, as every thinking man knows, that prosperity is the result of natural conditions and that good crops here and poor ones abroad are bound to make good times among the farmers, and prosperity among the farmers means better times the country over. Such times prevail in a measure today but they are largely counteracted by the tariff for Trusts only, which takes the money of the country out of its legitimate channels and puts it in the hands of the money power. If it were not for this discriminating tariff against the consumer, all the people could enjoy the fruits of prosperity as it is now, the Trusts are gobbling up their share and the people's share, too.

—Picture this little scene to yourself:

An American housewife goes into a store and buys a pound of borax, paying 8 cents for it. As she turns away with her package, another housewife comes in buys two pounds of borax and is charged 5 cents for her purchase.

"Why do you charge me 8 cents for one pound of borax and let that other woman have two pounds for 5 cents?"

"Oh," answers the storekeeper blandly, "she's English, you know."

How long would that storekeeper, openly discriminating in favor of the foreign and against the native customer, be able to do business anywhere in the United States?

Yet this transaction in borax illustrated perfectly what the trusts are doing on a colossal scale in the home & foreign markets.—New York Journal.

—Ex-United States Senator Washburn, a Republican, in an interview published in the New York Tribune, September 11, 1900 says;

"There is one thing that greatly disturbs me. The Republican party, whether justly or unjustly, is associated with Trusts in the minds of the masses. As a party we have reached the crisis where we have got to call a halt. The Republican party has got to disconnect itself from the Trusts. It has got to legislate them. The Republicans in Congress will have to examine the subject thoroughly, and whenever they find a Trust is depending for its exorbitant profits largely upon protective duties it will be the duty of Congressmen and Senators to remove the duties at once. This should be done with the duty on steel rails and tin plate."

The contest on the liquor question in Cecil will bring out a pretty full vote, which will favor the Democratic candidate, so unless the Republican cause is spent very freely Cecil county ought to give Mr. Ellegood a handsome majority.—Cecil Democrat.

—When a political organization is controlled by the Trusts, and that organization is in control of the Government, then that government ceases to be of the people or by the people; but of the suffering millions by the luxuriant few. Look at the situation in the mining districts.

Terror Stricken Passengers.

A state of panic prevailed on the Tolchester steamer on Saturday. When in the middle of the bay the new torpedo destroyer came along on her trial trip. The boat was going at terrific speed and carried a mountain like wave at her head. The first instant which the Tolchester steamer's passengers had that anything unusual was going on was when their boat commenced to roll and plunge in the waves. In an instant all was confusion. One lady fainted, others declared that the fortune teller's prediction that the big steamer was to be lost had come true, and some prayed for deliverance from a watery grave. A passenger who was on board says that she never before saw anything like it. The trifling tempest was soon over and the frightened passengers were left to quietly compare notes and laugh at their groundless fears.—Ex.

This is how a certain druggist worked it, he wanted some signs made to attract attention. He thought His thoughts told him he ought to have bright colored signs, as they were to go under the show windows, so he got a bright colored man to paint them. He gave the bright colored man who was to paint the bright colored signs full instructions. He wanted a sign to read: "Our drugs are as good as any and better than many." And he wanted it so it would make people buy drugs of him when they had bad spells. The sign came out: "Our drugs are as good as any and better than many." The druggist told the bright colored painter that his spelling was wrong—and not only spelled any and many and not meny spelled many "I know it, Boss, but you wanted 'em to think of you when they had a bad spell, and I guess that sign'll fix 'em." The sign is still there. Now Lacy Thoroughgood has been trying for sixteen years to fix some sort of a scheme to make you think of him just before you have a clothing spell, or a bad fit. Thoroughgood knows one half of the people in this community buy their clothes of him but he's not satisfied yet. Thoroughgood wants more trade on clothing and will guarantee "no bad fits" when you come into Thoroughgood's store and you are shown his beautiful Fall and Winter clothing, and you find that the prices are very low, don't say that the clothes are not as good as so and so's that you are wearing now. You probably think they're not because they don't cost as much. You can't buy any clothes at any price that's any better than Thoroughgood's, for they can't be made any better.

Scheming

There are several things in which it is necessary to do a little scheming, but the most important thing is to be particular where you buy, buying where you can do the best. I am still catering to the public for a share of the public's patronage and I think if you will come in and give me a trial you will be pleased at your coming.

TALMAGE SERMON

By Rev.
FRANK DE WITT TALMAGE, D.D.
Pastor of Jefferson Park Presbyterian Church, Chicago

Chicago, Sept. 21.—Sympathy and sound advice are given to worried, harassed men and women in this sermon by Rev. Frank De Witt Talmage, on the text Ecclesiastes xii, 5, "The grasshopper shall be a burden."

A unique text, capable of many different interpretations. Some suppose the Solomon's "burden" of the grasshopper, or, more strictly speaking, of the eastern locust refers to the nagging pains of the chronic dyspeptic. The locusta, properly cooked, were edible. They constituted one of the most delicate of foods. They were often served to invalids and to those whose weak stomachs were unable to assimilate any other kind of diet. Thus some commentators assert that the figure of the text is that of an old man contorted with pain because his digestive organs have given out.

Wives and mothers and sisters, what you need today is the advice Solomon gave to the young men of his time. You need the grace of God in your hearts to be able to overcome the burden of the grasshoppers. As Jesus Christ turned to the angry and quick tempered housekeeper when she rushed into his presence crying, "Lord, dost thou not care that my sister hath left me to serve alone?" and gently said, "Martha, Martha, thou art careful and troubled about many things but one thing is needful," so Christ says to every living housekeeper today, "You need the grace in your heart to overcome the little annoyances as well as your great trials."

O woman, how different life would be if you would ask Jesus to stand by your side at the kitchen stove! How different if you would only ask his help when you are mending baby's frock! How different if you would only ask Christ's help when you hunt for the missing silver spoon—if you would only ask him to help you to bear the burden of the grasshopper!

One day a minister was visiting an invalid who was noted for her great Christian piety and her exalted happiness, even though she had been bedridden for some years. He asked her, "Betty, how is it that you can lie here in bed and be so happy when once you were so full of physical life and energy?" "Well, pastor," answered the Christian woman, "it is only because I am leaning hard upon the omnipotent and sustaining arm of God. When I was strong and physically well, I used to have a lot to do. I had a large family, you know, sir, of little children. Then I used to hear God keep saying to me, 'Betty, you do this; Betty, you do that; Betty, you do the other thing!' And so, of course, I did what God wanted me to do. But now, sir, as I am lying in bed I hear God's voice just the same—the same sweet voice of the divine love. I hear it saying to me every day, 'Betty, you just lie here.' And so here I stay because it is God's will, and I am happy, very happy."

Yes, the divine grace is sufficient to help every tired wife and mother triumphantly to bear the little annoyances as well as the great. It is sufficient to help a woman to bear the painful stitches in her side as well as to help her in her domestic duties. It is sufficient even to enable her to bear the nagging and tantalizing and continuous burden of a great swarm of buzzing locusta!

Divine Re-enforcement.
It is important for wives and mothers to have the grace of God in order to overcome the infinitesimal burdens of the multitudinous locust, it is also important for husbands and fathers and brothers to have the same kind of divine re-enforcement to meet the burdensome insectile annoyances that afflict them in turn. It is not the droughts and the freshets and the mortgage upon the land that wear out the patience of the farmer. It is the annoyance of the neighbors borrowing his tools and not returning them. It is the annoyance of the farm hand getting drunk in the midst of the harvest. It is the stupidity of the same farm hand in giving the best horse cold water to drink when overheated, so that the animal becomes foiled.

I once heard of a prominent New York merchant who was sneered at by his business associates and called eccentric because every morning before a yard of cloth was taken down from any of the shelves or the front door of the store was opened to admit the customers he used to call into one room all of his employees. He summoned them together, the highest as well as the lowest, the heads of departments as well as the cashiers and errand boys. Then in that room this great city merchant used to plead at the throne of mercy for spiritual help to meet the little trials and annoyances of the coming day. Surely if a family altar is needed in each home around which a father and a mother and the children every morning and evening may gather, such an altar ought to be erected in every factory and store and office and study. Such an altar ought to be raised by every father and husband and brother and son at which to glean daily for divine grace, so that they may overcome the little annoyances that course about every active life like the burden of the buzzing locusta.

The housekeeper's little annoyances would not amount to much if there were only a few of them and if these annoyances came but seldom. But the trouble with the burden of the grasshoppers is that this insect always travels in multitudes. They advance by swarms, by hundreds, by thousands, by millions. They travel in such great numbers that they make the huge monsters in the African forests turn and flee in wild terror for their lives. They will destroy every harvest in their tracks and eat bare every tree branch. Their advent is a curse, and their departure nearly always leaves complete desolation. In the life of Sir Thomas Graham, the great financier who built the Royal Exchange of London, we read that he was left a foundling in a country field. His mother was a poor woman, who deserted him. Sir Thomas, as a baby, was discovered in that field and his life was saved through the chirping of a grasshopper, which attracted a boy to the place where the child was lying. But that is the only instance in all history which we remember where a life was saved by a grasshopper. As a rule, the locusts travel in such swarms that their mission seems to be to destroy life and not to save it.

Solomon's Advice.

It is the accumulation of little insect annoyances in the home that wrecks the nervous systems and mental happiness of our wives and mothers and sisters, not the individual annoyances which may only come once in a week, a month or a year. Many a woman could bravely meet a great trouble in life. Many a woman could contemplate her execution as calmly and self possessed as did Nathan Hale, the Revolutionary martyr, who, under the scaffold, with the noose about his neck, said, "The only regret I have is that I have but one life to give to the service of my country." Yet the woman who could calmly meet a great trouble would have her patience and her nervous system sorely tried and her happiness wrecked by the sewing machine breaking a needle, by the dough refusing to bake in the oven and by the children tearing their clothes.

Wives and mothers and sisters, what you need today is the advice Solomon gave to the young men of his time.

You need the grace of God in your hearts to be able to overcome the burden of the grasshoppers.

As Jesus Christ turned to the angry and quick tempered housekeeper when she rushed into his presence crying, "Lord, dost thou not care that my sister hath left me to serve alone?" and gently said, "Martha, Martha, thou art careful and troubled about many things but one thing is needful," so Christ says to every living housekeeper today, "You need the grace in your heart to overcome the little annoyances as well as your great trials."

O woman, how different life would be if you would ask Jesus to stand by your side at the kitchen stove!

How different if you would only ask Christ's help when you are mending baby's frock!

How different if you would only ask him to help you to bear the burden of the grasshopper!

One day a minister was visiting an invalid who was noted for her great Christian piety and her exalted happiness, even though she had been bedridden for some years. He asked her, "Betty, how is it that you can lie here in bed and be so happy when once you were so full of physical life and energy?" "Well, pastor," answered the Christian woman, "it is only because I am leaning hard upon the omnipotent and sustaining arm of God. When I was strong and physically well, I used to have a lot to do. I had a large family, you know, sir, of little children. Then I used to hear God keep saying to me, 'Betty, you do this; Betty, you do that; Betty, you do the other thing!' And so, of course, I did what God wanted me to do. But now, sir, as I am lying in bed I hear God's voice just the same—the same sweet voice of the divine love. I hear it saying to me every day, 'Betty, you just lie here.' And so here I stay because it is God's will, and I am happy, very happy."

Yes, the divine grace is sufficient to help every tired wife and mother triumphantly to bear the little annoyances as well as the great. It is sufficient to help a woman to bear the painful stitches in her side as well as to help her in her domestic duties. It is sufficient even to enable her to bear the nagging and tantalizing and continuous burden of a great swarm of buzzing locusta!

Rise by the Grace of God.
Thus, my brother, I want you, by the grace of God, to rise higher and higher in the spiritual life until at last you are at an altitude above and out of earshot of the buzzing sound of the locusts of fault finding enemies. I want you to rise so high in the spiritual life that you will not care what people may say about you or yours as long as you can bring these people to love and live for Christ. Humanly speaking, it is awfully hard to bear the petty annoyances of your neighbors criticizing you and saying mean things about your wife and children. It is hard, from a human standpoint, to refrain from flinging a stone at the locusts of evil nagging which are buzzing about you and your loved ones. But by the grace of God you can live down these petty annoyances. You can go on doing your work, even as Christ went on doing his work, in spite of the jeers and the scoffs which the Pharisees uttered against him and his disciples.

If you are absorbed in your Divine Master's work, you will receive sufficient grace to make you indifferent to the little annoyances caused by what people may say against you. You will be like that gatekeeper whom Major Cole some years ago saw in a Chicago depot. It was during a bitterly cold night. Many male passengers were grumbling and complaining because this gatekeeper made every one of these men unbuckle his coat and show his ticket before he could go to his train. "My friend," said Major Cole, "you do not seem very popular with the passengers of this road." "No," answered the gatekeeper with a smile, "but that does not concern me. So long as I obey orders I am all right. There is only one man whose good opinion affects me, and that is the president of the road. So long as he is satisfied I do not care what these people say." In order to overcome the locust burden of what fault finders may say against you, remember, my Christian brothers, our duty is not to please man, but God, and God alone. After you are convinced that in what you do are pleasing God it makes but little difference what any enemy—man, woman or child—may say against you or your loved ones.

Walking With Christ.

The increasing signs of physical and mental decadence can also be classed among the burdens of the buzzing locust. The annoyance of feeling that your eyes are becoming nearsighted and that you have to wear glasses and sit very close to the light when you read the Bible or the evening newspaper. The annoyance of having the eardrum refuse to clearly throw the echoing sound into the brain, as it once did. The annoyance of not being able to run for a street car or to step off that car when it is in motion. The annoyance of having some young fellow in the car arise and offer you a seat, as though you were an old man. Or, what is worse than all, the annoyance of feeling that you cannot do as much work and do it as quickly as you once did a few years ago. As your brain power seems to lose its grip you perversely place your hand upon your forehead and say: "I do not know what is the matter with my brain. My memory seems to have completely left me. I cannot recall the simplest names or facts. I have to make a memorandum of everything. Even my children have to look after me now as though I was a little child."

When the faculties begin to fail and the hair to whiten, the burden of the locusts becomes very heavy to bear unless a man as a Christian is walking side by side with Christ. Even the Christian will find this burden a heavy burden unless he has an extra amount of divine grace given to him. Mr. Beecher once said that one of the saddest days he ever spent was when the realization first came upon him that he was going down the hillside of life and very soon would not be as physically strong or as mentally alert as formerly. The Plymouth pastor said that this saddening realization came upon him one day when he was attempting to dodge in and out of the carriages and stages and dray wagons that were moving up and down Broadway. As he was in the middle of that thoroughfare heard a driver angrily call out two or three times: "Get out of the way, there gray hairs or you'll be run down!" Mr. Beecher hurriedly looked around to find out what old man was in danger. To his surprise and chagrin, he found that the drayman was shouting to him and that he and no other was the "old man." It is not a hard struggle to physically die. Dying is just as natural an act for the body as is the act of being born. But it is hard to grow old, to feel that you have to ride when once it was an exhilaration to walk, to know that the mind is failing, that the heart has not the old vigor, that the hand which once grasped and wielded the hilt of a sword must now do the small chores around the old homestead. It is hard to know that upon the trembling shoulders of old age even the weight of a small grasshopper's body can become a burden, a heavy, crushing burden.

But there is a Christian as well as an un-Christian way of meeting the criticisms of rivals and of those who are jealous of our successes. One way is to do as Plato, the great disciple of Socrates, did when he was told that even the boys in the streets were laughing at his singing. He answered, "Then I must learn to sing better, so that they will not laugh." The other way is to do as Alexander Pope, the vain and super-sensitive poet of England, used to do. Instead of going ahead and doing the work that God gave him to do, and on account of his enemies' criticisms doing it better and better all the time, he wasted most of his life in bickering and backbiting and in trying to destroy the reputations of those who were attacking him. The one way is to do as D. L. Moody did. He made it the rule of his life to never individually attack a person who had attacked him. The more Mr. Moody was personally assailed and misrepresented the more he would go to God in prayer and ask the Divine Father to make his life so pure and true that there might not remain in his heart any cause for the charge which his enemies were making. The other way is to do as many of us are doing. When a neighbor or a critic makes any derogatory statement about us and our work, we prove that we are not falsely condemned in all particulars, that at least we have the fault of retaliation, because we go hunting for the faults in our neighbor's lives instead of trying, with divine help, to correct the evils in our own.

Rise by the Grace of God.
Thus, my friends, amid the decaying faculties of old age the grace of the Lord Jesus Christ is sufficient to overcome the burden of the buzzing locusts. What was the testimony of the aged Thomas Guthrie, the great Christian warrior of old Scotland? Standing before a large assemblage of little children, he said: "Don't call me an old man, as some people do. Why, I am as young and happy as any child sitting before me today. My limbs may not be as strong as they once were. One of my feet may be in the grave, but the other foot is planted upon the earth so firmly that its leg has sunken knee deep in the clover tops. My hearing may not be as accurate as it once was, but my ears are continually hearing the sounds of sweetest music. My eye may not be as keen to read a book, but my eyesight is continually becoming more inspired to see the beauties of earth as well as the beauties of heaven. I am not an old man. As I approach my second childhood I have begun to live a life of eternal happiness and of never ending joys." Study the faces, the beautiful happy faces, of the aged Christian men and women about, and you will learn as never before that the heart as well as the beauties of heaven, I am not an old man. Address To Democrats.

To the Democrats of the State:—I have already earnestly urged the Democrats of Baltimore City to be sure to register and to declare their "party affiliation" as democrats, so as to be qualified to take part in the primaries in the city next April.

The results of the first day's registration are highly gratifying and we have every reason to believe that at the coming sittings of the officers of registration in the city our full vote will be enrolled and their affiliation as democrats most willingly declared. I now especially address myself to the democrats of the state. In the counties the offices of registration will be open for registration on Tuesday, September 30th and on Tuesday October 7th between the hours of 8 a. m. and 7 p. m., and on the 14th of October for revision only.

Note carefully these dates and see to it that all democrats, who have thus far failed to register, no longer postpone the performance of this most pressing duty; and that all those who are now for the first time entitled to be enrolled as voters go and register.

In addition to securing the registration of qualified democrats, careful and close examination of the books of registration should be made for the purpose of striking off the names of all that have died or become disqualified and also of all names erroneously or fraudulently registered.

It is believed that in most of the counties many names will be found on the registration books which ought never to have been placed there.

These names should be stricken off so that only the names of bona fide citizens of the state and real residents in the several election districts shall be suffered to remain.

I earnestly urge you to organize thoroughly in each election precinct. Get a full list of all registered voters.

Scrutinize these lists. Mark the names of all persons who are not known to be actual residents of the precinct, and challenge, in the mode pointed out by law, the right of these persons to have their names kept upon the registration books.

Take this work in hand at once. It will not be difficult or tedious if you begin it promptly by means of active and intelligent committees in each precinct.

The result of this diligent and vigilant labor will purge the books of large numbers of names of persons who are not entitled to vote and who should not be permitted to control or influence our elections, and will greatly help us in our efforts to restore to Maryland a solid delegation of democrats in the House of Representatives.

The democrats of Maryland should exert themselves to the utmost to aid in this great and important achievement.

Your first duty now is to get the name of every qualified democratic voter on the registration books and to cause these books to be purged of all disqualified and fraudulent names.

When this task is thoroughly accomplished nothing more will be needed but to arouse the enthusiasm of the rank of our party in all sections of the state, and the 4th of November will surely witness a great and gratifying democratic victory.

MURRAY VANDIVER,
Chairman Democratic State Central Committee.

Minor Crops.

"U. S. Department of Agriculture, Climate and Crop Bulletin of the Weather Bureau, Maryland and Delaware Section, week ending Monday, Sept. 22nd., says:

Late vegetable gardens have been killed pretty generally in the extreme west, and elsewhere they have suffered because of the dry weather. Turnips are not a good stand, owing to poor germination of seed planted in August. Sweet potatoes, while light in yields, are said to have improved some during the week. Late cabbage is generally poor. Potatoes are about all dug in the extreme west; the last potatoes promise fair to good yields, but will not be as good as the early crop, scarcely any loss by rotting is reported this week. Beans, cucumbers, pepper, etc., have been cut to the ground in Garrett County. Tomatoes were also killed in the extreme west, but elsewhere they continue as a productive and remunerative crop, the yields being better than expected for the time of year; the fear of frost in the near future has led the growers to give close attention to the crop as it ripens, and as a consequence the canneries have been very busy; they will soon be running short time, however, as the fields have already begun to fail somewhat in places. The quality of the tomatoes has been unusually good during the entire season thus far. Grapes have ripened earlier than usual in many districts, and are now about over, except for Catawbas and a few other varieties; the quality has been good.
